

OPEC Expected To Hike Price Of Crude In '78

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is expected to agree on a 5 percent increase in the basic price of crude oil for 1978 despite the Carter administration's campaign to ward off a rise, the Middle East Economic Survey said today.

The authoritative oil newsletter said the oil minister of one government seeking an increase commented: "If the Saudis agree to 5 percent, they will have a deal as far as my country is concerned. But we couldn't go for anything below that."

The minister was not identified. U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said on Sunday after a visit to Saudi Arabia, Iran and Kuwait he thought there was a chance the oil cartel would decide not to raise prices for some time. He said he hoped the base price would remain at $12.70 a barrel for all of 1978.

The Middle East Economic Survey commented: "It has already become quite clear that there is no hope of even the most moderate OPEC producer heeding the U.S. call for a price freeze through all or part of 1978."

It pointed out that Saudi Arabia, the "most moderate of the moderates," has declared some increase is justified.

"The fact is, of course, that there must be some increase if a Doha-type split is to be prevented at Caracas. And that is above all what the OPEC partners are determined to avoid this time," said the newsletter.

The 13-nation cartel meets in Caracas, Venezuela, on Dec. 20 to decide on prices for 1978.

The organization split last December at a meeting in Doha, the capital of Qatar. Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates agreed on a 5 percent increase, and the other 11 members agreed to raise prices 10 percent the first half of the year and 5 percent more on July 1. The breach was healed in June, with the 11 countries foregoing the 5 percent increase, and Saudi Arabia and the U.A.E. raising their prices to conform to the others.

OPEC's economic commission began a meeting in Vienna today to prepare reports, documents and recommendations for the Caracas meeting.

Iraq has been insisting on a 1978 price hike equal to the current rate of inflation rate in Western industrialized countries, as shown by the International Monetary Fund's index. This has been averaging at 9 or 10 percent for exports of the industrialized countries.

Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Iraq also have been complaining about the downward slide of the dollar, the accepted unit of payment for oil sales.

"The OPEC countries have suffered severely from inflation and the sinking dollar. Consequently, we feel that oil prices must be raised to offset the deterioration in the purchasing power of our revenues," said the Iraqi oil minister, Tayeh Abdul-Karim, in an interview published in Kuwait Sunday.

He also urged that OPEC institute a tight system of production quotas to prevent surpluses accumulating and affecting prices.

Flash Floods Slay Jinxie; Scores Dead

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — Searchers slogged through debris-littered red mud in search of more bodies today in the wreckage of a low-lying campus area where at least 37 persons died after a torrent of water burst from an earthen dam and smashed through the pastoral setting of a small Bible college.

About 45 persons were injured. At mid-morning, Stephens County Hospital administrator J.W. Warren said that the bodies of two persons reported missing had been found. But he said later he had been "misinformed."

Twenty youngsters, children of students or faculty members at the Toccoa Falls Bible College, were among those who died when the floodwaters hit at 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Most of the other victims were students or teachers at the college. Two volunteer firemen who were trying to reach the college's housing area to give the only warning of the flood also died.

Some of the students who died were trapped in a four-story men's dormitory, which had 40 residents. Twelve of the 45 persons injured were hospitalized.

The path of destruction was described as about 2 1/2 miles long and 1,500 feet wide, most of it near the area where a creek, fed by a reservoir, makes a sharp turn at the foot of two hills in the campus community called Toccoa Falls, about two miles outside the northeastern Georgia community of Toccoa. Two trailer parks nestled at the foot of the hills, primary housing areas for married students, were leveled.

Eldon Elsberry, a volunteer fireman, said he and two other firemen saw the water cascade down Toccoa Creek about 1:30 a.m.

"I looked up and I saw red water that was really starting to move," he said. "We ran and got into a Jeep. We were going to turn the sirens on and wake people up."

He said the Jeep was swamped before they could cross a bridge to a trailer park. Elsberry got hold of a small tree but his partners were lost.

"I woke up last night and heard a noise and the lights went out," said one young man who recounted the disaster at memorial services Sunday. "I grabbed my wife and kids. I knew God had us in his hands."

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, who flew from Washington, was among those who inspected the disaster scene on Sunday. She later said the scene was "indescribable." She told a news conference, "It's a terrible tragedy." She visited survivors at a hospital, touching their arms and whispering encouragement.

She told Toccoa's 9,000 residents and the college students that President Carter had promised federal assistance.

Gov. George Busbee, who also inspected the flood area, said the dam that Man Killed, Coed Hurt In Mishaps

A 57-year-old Lubbock man was dead and an 18-year-old Texas Tech University coed was fighting for her life today following separate traffic-related accidents.

Joe Genaro Mendoza of 903 E. Rice St. was killed about 12:20 a.m. today after being involved in a freak accident in the 1100-block of East Rice Street. The 38-year-old driver of the vehicle in which Mendoza was riding was jailed on suspicion of involuntary manslaughter.

According to reports, the suspect's pickup was going west on East Rice Street and struck a parked truck, which subsequently rammed into a parked sedan.

When police arrived they found Mendoza pinned inside the pickup, which had suffered extensive front damage. The victim, who reportedly was injured when the vehicle struck the tailgate of the parked truck, suffered severe head injuries.

The death marked Lubbock's 37th traffic fatality of the year.

Services for Mendoza are pending with Henderson Funeral Directors. The Lubbock resident for the past two years moved here from Levelland.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; a son, Joe Mendoza Jr. of Lubbock; two daughters, Katherine Castillo of Guyton, Okla., and Janie Campos of Lubbock; three sisters, Andrea Leal, Santos Rosales and Jesusa Rivas, all of Karnes City; two brothers, Fernando and Manuel, both of Karnes City; and 11 grandchildren.

Following a Saturday night hit-and-run incident, Rebecca Ann Hairston of 3016 25th St. remained in critical condition in Methodist Hospital's surgical intensive care unit today.

The young woman was injured as she and other persons were crossing University Avenue following a football game at Jones Stadium.

According to reports, as the pedestrians crossed in the 500-block of University Avenue about 6:30 p.m., Miss Hairston was struck by a pickup, which drove away without stopping.

Police described the suspect's vehicle as a 1967-1968 white Chevrolet pickup, which should have left front-end damage and possibly blood on the bumper. The driver reportedly was a white man and there were no passengers.

Court Enters Nuclear Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether Congress may place a $560-million ceiling on liability that operators of nuclear power plants would face from a major nuclear accident.

The justices said they will study a ruling by a federal judge in North Carolina last March striking down as unconstitutional the liability limit law passed by Congress in 1957.

The federal government said U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan's decision, if not overturned, "could stand as a major impediment to further private development of nuclear energy in this nation."

Separate appeals from McMillan's decision were filed by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Duke Power Co.

The controversy stems from a lawsuit filed by the Carolina Environmental Study Group against Duke Power involving two power plants under construction in the Charlotte, N.C., area — the Catawba Nuclear Station on Lake Wylie, about 15 miles southwest of Charlotte, and the McGuire Nuclear Station on Lake Norman, about 17 miles northwest of the city.

The environmental group challenged the federal law that, as amended, fixes $560,000 as the maximum amount all persons could recover for injury, death or property damage in the event of a major nuclear catastrophe.

McMillan ruled in a 61-page decision that the liability limit law, called the Price-Anderson Act, unconstitutionally infringes on individuals' rights of equal protection and due process.

He said Charlotte-area residents "are threatened with certain injury of relatively minor nature, and with the reasonable likelihood of major or perhaps catastrophic injury, without assurance of adequate compensation if that should occur."

In urging the court to set aside the trial judge's decision, government attorneys said private operators such as Duke Power need to be insulated from excessive liability insurance costs.

"The act serves the dual purpose of removing the deterrent to private participation in nuclear energy programs that had been presented by the lack of adequate insurance to cover liability claims," the government said.

Justice Department lawyers said the act also provides benefits for victims of "nuclear incidents," such as making plant operators liable without fault for damages and allowing for hikes in the liability ceiling.

They estimated that by 1985 the total

Voters To Decide Fate Of Seven Amendments

Seven proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution will be on the line Tuesday, and Lubbock voters will help decide their fate.

Many South Plains counties also will be voting on other issues, including the selection of a new state senator to replace Max Sherman. Sherman resigned his 31st District seat to become president of West Texas State University in Canyon.

But in Lubbock, the suggested constitutional amendments are the only matters on the ballot. They appear to be generating little interest here.

The seven proposed constitutional amendments would:

- Expand provisions for denial of bail.
- Expand the Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine judges and allow it to meet in panels of three judges.
- Increase the Judicial Qualifications Commission from 9 to 11 members, change its name to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct and expand its powers to punish judges.
- Provide tax relief for historic sites, unique natural resources or other significant resources.
- Allow the Veterans Land Board to issue and sell an additional $200 million in bonds, and let the unmarried surviving spouse of a veteran who died in the line of duty be eligible for the program.
- Allow collection of fees from producers of a particular commodity for promotion, research, education and administration.
- Allow banks to install Electronic

Funds Transfer machines at sites away from the bank itself, for instance, at grocery or department stores.

Most interest has been centered on Proposition No. 3, the bail denial proposal, and Proposition No. 6, the bank EFT measure.

The Texas Constitution provides that bail may be denied to a person accused of a felony if he previously has been convicted of two separate felonies.

Denial of bail in this situation is preceded by a hearing at which the prosecution must produce evidence that "substantially" shows the guilt of the accused.

If a person is denied bail under the provision, he must be tried within 60 days or the order denying bail is set aside.

The Court of Criminal Appeals may hear an appeal from an order denying bail.

The proposed amendment would expand the denial provision, adding two groups of accused felons: ones accused of a felony "less than capital," committed while on bail for an indictment for another felony, and, ones accused of a felony involving use of a deadly weapon after conviction for a prior felony.

The proposal would be more restrictive in one sense, because it would allow only district judges to order a bail denial. At present, any judge of a court of record, or

Realtors Back Self-Help Revitalization

By PAULA TILKER, Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock Board of Realtors today endorsed a self-help program of neighborhood revitalization through private means.

The board's next step in its plan to restore and preserve the city's housing will be to select a neighborhood to participate, and then offer it help.

Following a program outlined by the National Association of Realtors and working with city officials, the local board will enlist the support of residents in the target area.

The program will be concentrated in areas in the early stages of deterioration, board members said.

As planned, the board would buy an abandoned house in the area, renovate it and then sell it at no profit. Board members hope the initial renovation will serve as an incentive to nearby homeowners to upgrade their property.

Homeowners would be encouraged to voluntarily join a neighborhood organization to further promote housing rehabilitation, and the realtors board would coordinate efforts.

Mayor Roy Bass calls the revitalization program a "wonderfully encouraging sign" that local communities can "take care of themselves" without federal assistance.

Urban Renewal Agency Director Orville Alderson echoed Bass' endorsement, saying, "I think it's absolutely tremendous to get more and more people involved in this thing to make public money stretch further."

"There's too many housing problems for the federal dollar to help," he continued. "There is no way there is even going to be enough private money. There has to be private sector help."

The board indicated it will accept city Planning Director Jim Bertram's suggestion that the renovation work be concentrated in areas falling into the early stages of decline. If the neighborhoods could be stabilized and kept from deteri-

Special Admission Policies Hit

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An Indiana attorney who helped prepare a brief for the Alan Bakke reverse-discrimination case said he believes special school admission policies for minority students are immoral and destructive to a democratic society.

William Harvey, dean of the Indiana University Law School at Indianapolis, said in the brief prepared for the Pacific Legal Foundation: "If equal protection of the laws is to maintain its constitutional integrity, it must apply to each individual, regardless of race, color or national origin."

Bakke, whose case is before the U.S. Supreme Court, claims minority students who scored lower on admission tests were admitted to the University of California at Davis medical school ahead of him. Bakke, who was twice denied admission to the school, claims the school's special minority admissions policy is unconstitutional.

Premier Gets Hero's Reception

MONTREAL (AP) — Premier René Lévesque of Quebec wore a French Legion of Honor insignia in his lapel when he returned from an official visit to Paris.

Lévesque, who was greeted at an airport Sunday by about 10,000 supporters, is in the center of a diplomatic wrangle over his acceptance of the honor — one of France's highest civilian awards — last Thursday.

The Canadian government sent a "reminder" to the French government which said the award should have been cleared with the Canadian government first.

But Lévesque described the government's attitude as "petty."

Meanwhile, during the weekend, French Premier Raymond Barre said in an interview by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. that his government will pay no attention to Canada's warnings about the kind of relations France will have with Quebec.

U.S., Russia About Equal

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are about equal in overall military strength, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown says.

The two nations have "a rough parity" in nuclear arms, and "we are roughly comparable militarily," Brown said Sunday during a television interview.

He said there may be fears that a Strategic Arms Limitation Talks agreement would give the Soviets a military edge, but added, "We have no intention of arriving at a SALT agreement that doesn't preserve our nuclear capability."

Brown refused to discuss specifics of treaty negotiations "until the details are settled."

What 'Day' Is It?

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — After less than two years in office, Gov. Cliff Finch appears to be easily outstripping his predecessors in the issuing of gubernatorial proclamations.

The proclamations — embossed, sealed and signed "Proclamation by the Governor" — are usually issued on behalf of noteworthy persons, civic groups, charity organizations and other causes.

But sometimes the honors are rather arcane. Finch proclaimed July 9 "Wolfman Jack Day" in honor of the disc jockey.

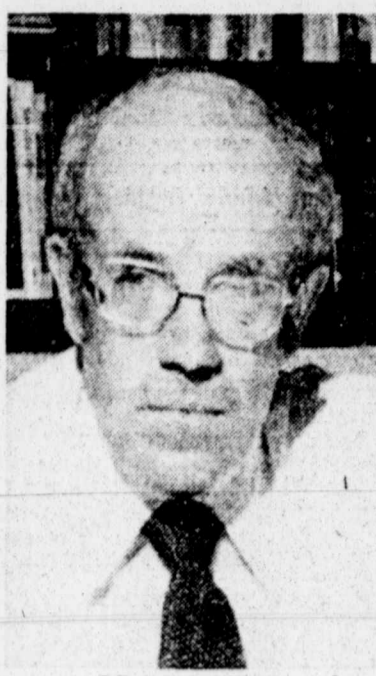

Mississippi observed "Jogging Day" with little fanfare Oct. 11.

By proclamation of the governor, this is United States Marine Corps Week and today is Black Elected Officials Day.

That brings Finch's total to more than 350 proclamations in less than two years. In four years in office, his immediate predecessor, Gov. Bill Waller, managed only 420 proclamations, while Waller's predecessor, Gov. John Bell Williams, signed only 225.

Computers Used To Save Lives

By BOB KLESTERMAN
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — There are those who argue that computers know too much about private citizens. But you don't hear arguments like that from patients at LDS hospital, where a computer is helping save lives.

The HELP — Health Evaluation through Logical Processing — computer system allows a half dozen experts in different medical fields to advise 300 doctors on prescribing drugs and ordering, making and interpreting tests.

It warns the doctor if a patient has a known allergy to a drug, or if changes should be made in administering the drug.

It monitors heart rhythms of coronary care patients and the cardiovascular system of patients during and after surgery. And with fewer false alarms than under other systems, it warns nurses at the onset of trouble.

Dr. Homer R. Warner, chairman of medical biophysics and computing at the University of Utah School of Medicine, heads the program at LDS Hospital, a 550-bed institution.

Warner says other hospitals are making increasing use of computers, but the program at LDS is unique because:

—It has more information about the patient going into it. Patients admitted for elective surgery have their medical history, vital statistics and their hospital test results put into the computer. Drugs prescribed for the patient and results of other tests are added to the data base.

—Most hospital computer systems require that the physician ask for whatever help he needs. The computer at LDS is programmed to anticipate many of the questions doctors ask.

—The computer monitoring of heart and intensive care patients is routine at LDS. It is considered experimental at most hospitals.

The cost of the computer to the average patient is $2.55 per day. Costs range from 35 cents for drug monitoring to $20 a day for coronary care patients.

In a study of 13,727 patients, it was found five percent had drug alerts by the computer. Of these, 45 percent were due to lab tests and 29 percent were due to interaction between drugs. Doctors changed therapy in 77 percent of the cases.

Chinese Explain 'Friends' Policy

By PHIL BROWN
TOKYO (AP) — China's Communist leaders, in a lengthy review of the state of the world, make clear that they have settled on a policy of being friends, at least temporarily, with anyone opposed to their enemies.

The article last week in the official Peking People's Daily disclosed there had been some disagreement over such points as how capitalists could be allies of the Chinese Communists. The decision was to set aside some doctrinaire points in favor of practical results.

This explains the recent relatively good relations between Peking and Washington despite the article's assertion that the United States and the Soviet Union are exploiting "bullying superpowers," "the common enemies of the people of the world."

Declaring that the Soviet Union is the more ferocious, reckless and treacherous of the two, the article said putting it on a par with the United States "blurs the primary target," meaning the Soviet Union.

Analysis

The opposition to being friends with ideological foes was led by the "Gang of Four," the radical leaders arrested last October, the article indicated.

"They opposed China's support to the Third World, opposed China's effort to unite with all forces that can be united, and opposed our dealing blows at the most dangerous enemy," the article said.

"They vainly tried to sabotage the building of an international united front against hegemonism and to disrupt China's anti-hegemonist struggle, doing Soviet social-imperialism a good turn."

Arguing for the united-front policy, the article praised the Soviet alliance with the Western allies against Germany in World War II and the Chinese Communists' alliance with the Nationalist Chinese government against Japan.

"These were necessary, it said, to safeguard the Soviet and Chinese Communists from the greatest danger at the time.

Later, the Chinese Communists went back to war against the Nationalists, driving them from the mainland in 1949, and the Soviet Union took a hostile stance toward the capitalist West.

The Chinese view is that the nations of the Third World will naturally fight imperialism because they have been subjected to its most ruthless oppression. It considers Africa, Latin America and Asia, including China but excluding Japan and the Soviet Union, in the Third World.

"In the common struggle against the Soviet Union and the United States, it is both necessary and possible to ally with the Second World under given conditions," the article said.

It did not spell out those conditions.

The Second World is Japan, Canada and Europe.

While the Second World has exploited the Third World, the article continued, it also "is being subjected to interference, control and bullying by the two hegemonist powers and to their war threats, particularly on the part of the Soviet Union."

No-Fault Insurance Appears To Be Slipping In Popularity

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years ago, no-fault auto insurance seemed to be an idea whose time had come. Now, it appears to be an idea whose time has gone.

Both the House and Senate commerce committees quit for the year last week without taking action on no-fault legislation. And no state has enacted no-fault legislation since North Dakota in 1975.

Supporters of no-fault in Congress and the insurance industry say the problem stems in part from vigorous lobbying by trial lawyers.

"They've bottled it up in a lot of legislatures," said Les Cheek of the American Insurance Institute.

Trial lawyers say no-fault is making no headway because "there's no public interest. It's about as popular as typhoid fever," says attorney Robert Began of the American Trial Lawyers' Association.

And even a supporter like Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, concedes the idea lost ground because there's no clear evidence that it has substantially reduced rates in the 16 states that have it.

The no-fault concept was first broached in the 1920s, but it was not until Massachusetts adopted it in 1971 that it became a major issue in Washington and in state legislatures.

A total no-fault system puts auto insurance in the same mold as health insurance. A driver who has an accident collects damages from his insurance company, no matter who caused the crash.

Under the traditional system, one driver may have to file suit to recover damages from the driver who was at fault.

No-fault advocates said the system would return more of the premium dollar in benefits and give less of it to the lawyers. Therefore, they said, it would reduce rates.

Satellite Used In Relaying Information

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Scientists used a two-way satellite hookup to exchange information — including color drawings and slides — at the start of a conference for brain researchers.

The satellite relay on Sunday linked scientists in Washington, D.C., and Lexington, Ky., with persons attending the 7th annual meeting of the Society for Neuroscience.

The society includes more than 5,000 researchers probing human behavior by studying how messages are transmitted in the brain and nervous system.

The video link — which may, in the future, allow scientists to exchange information without ever leaving their laboratories — got underway with a message from Dr. Thomas Bryant, chairman of the President's Commission on Mental Health.

Bryant sent greetings from President and Mrs. Carter from a studio at the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md.

Through a split-screen effect, viewers in the three cities could see several researchers at once. At one point the society's president, Dr. Floyd Bloom of the Salk Institute, presented a technical drawing of the brain. From Lexington, Dr. William Martin of the University of Kentucky discussed it with Bloom.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's ATS satellite and the Communications Technology satellite were employed in the relay.

In fact, the results have been mixed. One State Farm official told the Senate Commerce Committee this year that his company's premiums had gone up 24 per cent since 1970 in no-fault states and 27 per cent in states without it.

In the few states that have added no-fault laws without restricting the right to sue, rates had risen 47 per cent, he said.

A Department of Transportation study released this year found that no-fault can help in keeping rates down. But the trial lawyers' Began says that was "a non-study."

Eckhardt said several factors helped muddy the financial picture. One was the rampant inflation that pushed the cost of medical care and automobile repair higher in the years after no-fault was enacted. As a result, insurance costs also rose.

Another was the weakness of the no-fault laws enacted by states such as Florida and New York. There, a plaintiff can sue if damages exceed a "threshold" amount, such as $1,000.

Eckhardt said lawyers and doctors have found it easy to push costs past the

Hydrogen Plane Studied For Future Flying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air passengers may someday ride in hydrogen-powered planes that could fly three times faster than the supersonic Concorde, but without the controversial noise problem.

Lockheed-California Co. has a new federal contract to study design of a liquid-hydrogen aircraft that could carry 200 passengers up to 6,000 miles at a cruise speed of 4,000 miles per hour.

The Concorde can go 1,300 miles per hour, although it is restricted to half that speed when flying over most land areas because of its loud sonic boom.

The British-French plane flies at 60,000 feet compared to about 120,000 feet for the proposed hydrogen plane. The higher altitude would eliminate the noise problem.

"From that height, the intensity of any sonic boom would be so dissipated by the time it reached the ground that it would not be objectionable to anyone hearing it," said Dan Brewer, Lockheed's manager for hydrogen studies.

Willis Hawkins, Lockheed president, said American airlines should be flying hydrogen planes by the end of the century.

The 15-month, $270,000 study was awarded last week by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

thresholds in those states. He said the thresholds appeared to have given them an incentive to do so.

He said it will be up to no-fault advocates to point to states like Michigan to show how true no-fault statutes have reduced rates. Michigan has a nearly pure no-fault law.

The Transportation Department study found that, adjusted for inflation, auto liability rates in Michigan had declined under no-fault. The department found that the average Detroit driver's six-month premium went from $74 to $56 in constant dollars from 1974 to 1977.

In Florida, however, the average Miami driver's six-month premium went from $71 when no-fault took effect to $163 this year, in constant dollars.

Eckhardt said he still hopes to push no-fault through his commerce subcommittee next year. Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., has also said he intends to act next year.

A Magnuson aide said the Senate would have acted this year except that other bills, such as airline deregulation and air-bag legislation, took priority.

Began is confident that the bills will not pass. No-fault, he said, is "an experiment which failed."

Scott Calls Himself 'Survivor'

By BOB BAUM
 PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jack Scott, the man who Patricia Hearst says drove her and two fellow fugitives across country to elude the FBI, considers himself a survivor.

After what he calls "three tough, miserable years" of battling the FBI and the U.S. Justice Department, Scott and his wife, Micki, have bought a comfortable turn-of-the-century home in northwest Portland. They have a child, Jonah Gregory, born on Labor Day, and express "an implicit faith in the future."

Scott talks of writing a book about his knowledge of the Hearst case and of the terrorist organization that kidnapped her, the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Miss Hearst has testified that the Scotts drove her from California to Pennsylvania, along with SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, and let them use a farmhouse the Scotts rented near Jack's hometown of Scranton, Pa.

Scott, now 35, still carefully avoids admitting whether he helped the fugitives shortly after six of their comrades were slain in a shootout with police in Los Angeles.

But he drops grenade-sized hints. "Sure I'm going to write about it," Scott said. "If I was there a day or two after the massacre in Los Angeles and I can portray Patty Hearst's state at that time, I think it's worth writing about."

"Let's say I was in those situations," he said. "Whatever I write, some of it would portray her in a sympathetic manner and some would show that she lied under oath."

Scott, once the unconventional athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, said he feels the government has no further interest in his connection with the Hearst case.

"The word was communicated to us that the Carter Justice Department wasn't going to pursue the Hearst case any further," he said.

But the Scotts still recall with bitterness those three years, which included a five-month disappearance "underground."

"What we kept saying is, 'If we've done something wrong, please give us a trial,'" Scott said. "Suppose we did it, and it was the right thing to do because it saved lives, we have the faith that even in Scranton a jury would be able to decide who the real criminals were. It would have been the government that was on trial, not us."

Micki recalled an incident after they were subpoenaed in Portland to appear before a grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa. She had used the telephone to order concert tickets from a Portland music store, Longhair Records.

"I said 'My name is Micki Scott and I'll be right there to pick them up.' When we got downtown and pulled up at Longhair Records there were like three carloads of marshals waiting for us."

Then the FBI came knocking at the door, and Rolling Stone magazine published an article, complete with dialogue, on Scott's alleged cross-country trip.

"Eight different times in a 2½-year period the national networks ran stories that Micki and I were about to be indicted in Pennsylvania," he said. No indictment came.

"We found out they (the FBI) had hired a team of psychiatrists to find out how they could most effectively get us to talk," he said.

Intimidation and an offer of a $200,000 bribe to Scott's father did not work, he said.

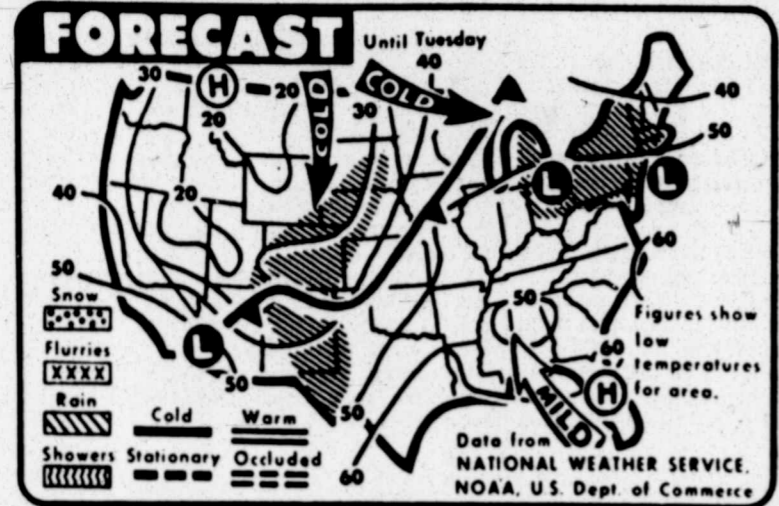

Scott said the Hearst cloud started to lift when Micki was hired as director of the community center in Linnton, a small industrial section of north Portland.

With that part of their lives behind them, a $20,000 advance for a book on basketball star and friend, Bill Walton, in their pockets, and a belief that "at least 50 percent" of Americans now share similar values, the Scotts decided to have a child.

"Having Jonah shows a certain faith in the future based on our experience over the last three years," Scott said.

Israel Defies U.N. Arms Embargo

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Sunday Israel will stand by South Africa despite an arms embargo imposed by the United States and the United Nations.

"Israel does not support apartheid but it is not our business to get involved in the internal affairs of another country," he said in a speech.

"South Africa has always been a friend of Israel and we will not abandon it because of President Carter's position," he said.

Dayan said Israel's dealings with South Africa have been open and legal.

In addition to trade in goods ranging from canned pineapples to dry cereal and promised shipments of coal from South Africa, foreign sources say Israel has been a major arms supplier.

Ex-Israeli General Will Head El Al

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The former head of the Israeli Air Force will take over the directorship of El Al as soon as the national airlines board of directors confirms his appointment, a state-radio report said Sunday.

Reserve Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, who since his air force retirement in April 1973, has headed up the Cal air freight company, is expected to assume the director-generalship of El Al later this month, the radio report said.

Mordechai Ben Ari, El Al's founder and current director-general, is to become chairman of the board of directors, the report said.

Amin Says Carter Puppet Of Groups

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin said today President Carter is controlled by "Zionists and imperialists" and could be assassinated.

Amin spoke at the opening of a five-day conference of Organization of African Unity (OAU) information ministers, who will discuss plans for the formation of a pan-African news agency. His speech was broadcast by the official Radio Uganda and was monitored here.

The president said Americans and Britons are trying to hinder attempts to bring about black-majority rule in Rhodesia and "this is the same as is being done in Palestine where the Israelis are being supported by the U.S. and other Western imperialist countries."

"I am not surprised, as President Jimmy Carter is in the pockets of Western Zionists and imperialists," Amin said. "But I sympathize with President Carter because he is being trapped and he could be assassinated. However, I am not against President Carter as such nor the U.S. as a country."

The opening ceremony took place four hours late at Ombaci, four miles from the northwestern Uganda town of Arua, where Amin also inaugurated an American-supplied and built telecommunications satellite station. The conference is being conducted in the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

Amin also accused "Western imperialists" of blocking moves at the United Nations to impose a total economic boycott on white-ruled South Africa. Last week, the United States and other Western powers in the Security Council vetoed slapping an economic embargo on South Africa but voted in favor of an arms ban, the first ever against a U.N. member.

"This is a great shame on these countries," he said, "because once again they came out in their true colors at the expense of the suffering majority of Africans."

The Ugandan leader urged conference delegates to establish the pan-African news agency without further delay.

"The fact that the agency has still to get off the ground," he said, "has exposed the African continent far too much to unscrupulous machinations by the imperialist and Zionist mass media."

African countries rely to a great extent on foreign news agencies for their foreign news, including that from within the continent.

Even if the agency is formed, Amin predicted, they "will try to stifle the voice of the people and say we are infringing human rights."

Uganda has taken steps to regulate the entry of foreign reporters, Amin said, after discovering "that no matter what we do for them they will not appreciate and report our affairs accurately."

Beets Examined As Source Of Red Food Dye

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The beet may provide the food industry with the red coloring it needs if the federal government decides to ban the only remaining artificial red dye left on the market.

A University of Maryland scientist is developing a process to extract red colors from beets as an alternative to the artificial dye, which may be a cancer-causing agent.

Dr. Robert C. Wiley's process for obtaining the pigments is a technique developed by a Danish company to extract sugar from beets and juice from apples.

After visiting the company in Copenhagen, he was shipped a smaller version of the extracting machine, which slices the beets thinly and drops them into a solution that extracts the pigment.

Wiley said he has been able to recover between 70 and 90 percent of the color, compared to the recovery rate of 50 percent in the traditional process that squeezes juice from beets by pressing.

He said the process will be perfected in about six months.

"We've been working on this for over a year and I think we're getting close to what we want," he said.

Wiley, professor of food sciences in the division of agriculture and life sciences, said the new process has attracted the attention of the food industry, which may lose its only remaining red coloring, Red Dye No. 40.

The Food and Drug Administration has already banned Red Dyes No. 2 and No. 4 and a government pathologist said that Red Dye No. 40 "has all the properties of a carcinogen."

Wiley said beets "are the most economical natural pigment on the horizon at this time."

He said his process could be enlarged to produce 800 pounds of pigment a day.

Beets also can yield a yellow pigment and when mixed with the red can develop orange and other hues.

Alabama Death Threat Reported

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — State troopers said today a Tuscaloosa, Ala., man has been arrested on a charge of threatening to kill Gov. George C. Wallace.

African countries rely to a great extent on foreign news agencies for their foreign news, including that from within the continent.

Even if the agency is formed, Amin predicted, they "will try to stifle the voice of the people and say we are infringing human rights."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

A Vote For All Seven

ALL SEVEN OF the proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution are deserving of support by Lubbock voters Tuesday.

Proposition 1 would enlarge the Court of Criminal Appeals and enable it to handle a growing backlog of cases. This is an essential weapon in the state's war on crime because justice delayed is justice denied.

Proposition 2 would add $200 million to the Veterans Land Fund and permit widows of servicemen killed in the line of duty to participate in the program.

Proposition 3 would provide the courts with a very key anti-crime weapon: The denial of bond to persons who commit new crimes while already out on bail on another offense.

ANY PERSON WHO has been previously convicted of one felony and who is accused of using a deadly weapon in the commission of another could be denied bail if Proposition 3 is approved.

Any person under indictment for a felony who is accused of committing any felony while free on bail could be locked up without bail pending trial of the second felony accusation.

Although opponents contend the right to bail is guaranteed by the federal constitution...

James J. Kilpatrick:

Keep 'em Short And Sweet

NEW ORLEANS—Several hundred members of the APME gathered recently to take the waters and to talk, among other things, about ways to improve the writing in American newspapers.

Two of three points of general application might usefully be passed along. APME stands for Associated Press Managing Editors. Most of the members are old geezers getting a little long in the tooth, relics of the glorious days of green eyeshades and rimfire Underwoods...

Their faces bear marks of suffering that even the best gin will never smooth away. And their anguish, to hear them tell it, gets worse with every passing year.

The pain emerges from the copy they are called upon to edit day by day.

YOUNG REPORTERS, it is said, arrive in their city rooms ill equipped for the job at hand. Their sentences wander off in all directions; their spelling is only so-so; their sense of organization is seldom very keen.

And it is not only the neophytes who cause despair; many experienced reporters also are stuck in pedestrian paths of prose competition. What to do? Saul Pett, one of the AP's most gifted writers, ventured an observation.

The problem, he said, is not so much a problem of poor writing as it is a problem of poor thinking tion, Proposition 3 is the answer to the revolving-door way in which habitual criminals escape punishment while continuing to prey on society.

PROPOSITION 4 would encourage preservation of historic landmarks by permitting local governments to exempt such sites from ad valorem taxes.

Proposition 5 would let farm producer associations levy assessments against all producers in order to conduct promotion programs. A producer now has to ask to be assessed; if the amendment is adopted, he would, instead, have to ask in order to get a refund if he objected to the assessment.

Proposition 6 would give the Legislature Power to make the rules permitting banks to use electronic fund transfer (EFT) systems. This convenient, safe banking method is the wave of the future and will benefit banks, retailers and consumers.

Proposition 7 would make it easier to suspend, censure or remove state justices, judges and justices of the peace. A re-named State Commission on Judicial Conduct could publicly censure a notorious judge, thus helping restore public confidence in the judicial system.

The Avalanche-Journal recommends a vote "for" all seven proposals.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Fall's For Propositions

THAT REGULAR fall ritual—amendment of the Texas Constitution—is upon us.

Just as walks in the woods tone our muscles, football games mellow our tonsils and Thanksgiving dinners fatten our middles, voting on constitutional amendments sharpens our mental processes for the long winter ahead.

This year, tomorrow, we will decide the fate of seven proposed amendments with such exciting titles as "Assessments by Agricultural and Marine Associations to Finance Production and Marketing."

Now, there is a subject worthy of curling up with as the cold winds of the season's first northerers howl through the night!

Since Dallas has a controversial $110 million road bond election tomorrow, Austin a $17 million jail and courthouse bond election, and the Panhandle a state senate election, the turnout in those areas is likely to be heavy.

IT IS OUR CIVIC duty, therefore, to study the seven amendments and vote on them lest Lubbock be embarrassed by the paucity of ballots cast here.

Having done my homework as penance for voting against a new constitution two fall seasons ago, I plan to vote for each of this year's seven propositions.

I will do so with gusto in some instances, with reservations in others.

Proposition 1 would enlarge the Court of Criminal Appeals and, theoretically, unplug the system so that crooks will go to jail instead of staying free while their convictions are appealed.

Defense lawyers no doubt will devise other effective delaying tactics to thwart justice, but I will have at least done what I can to make them earn their money.

PROPOSITION 2 will add $200 million to the Holmes Alexander:

When Will We Ever Learn?

WASHINGTON—"What's this I hear about the blessed coming of the Holy One in a world where nations work together, and all men love one another?" asked the Returning Traveler.

Nothing of the sort, the Traveler was told. It was not goodness which finally brought the world into order. It was wrong that did it. Not gentleness, but force; not sweet reasonableness but bitter reaction.

If the world has become a better place to live in—and if it stays that way—brutality and ruthlessness have played a bigger role than loving kindness.

"But this is incredible!" exclaimed the Traveler. I was prepared to return home from my travels one of these days and behold that the meek had inherited the earth and that it was ruled by the principles of the UN Charter, the U.S. Constitution and the Ten Commandments. You are telling me—not so?"

YES, THE TRAVELER was assured. Perhaps it began with a couple of hijacks in the year of 1977. A railroad train in Holland was captured by a group of Pacific islanders who demanded ransom as well as political concessions from the government.

After much fussing a unit of Dutch commandoes simply stormed the train, released the prisoners and were not very gentle with the revolutionaries.

"But," objected the Traveler, "maybe the revolutionaries had some fair grievances, such as the American colonists of 1776 had."

If so, nobody seemed to care. Then, a French passenger plane was taken by Africans, perhaps with equal grievances, and the Israeli military pulled an airborne tactic which saved most of the prisoners and killed some hijackers.

BUT THE BEST example of the new system was the dispatch of West German commandoes in October '77, a night attack which blew down the plane doors, saved all the captives except the previously assassinated pilot and caused a couple of the culprits to commit suicide, if they weren't surreptitiously murdered out of German spite.

"Excuse me," the Traveler broke in. "You have been reciting two-sided tales of violence, but I originally asked about the founding of a One World Government."

That's how One World Government came to pass, he was assured. Each nation of the earth organized commando units with no mission except to attack crime and kill all criminals on the spot.

Nobody likes skyjacks, kidnapers, blackmailers very much. Nobody really cares if they abruptly died without due process of law. Those captured were executed on the spot, those who escaped went about the world with a price on their heads.

"But surely," cried the Traveler, "much injustice was done. Innocent persons or persons of mental incapacity, must surely have been killed $500 million previously authorized to help veterans buy land through the Veterans Land Board.

Obviously, the Legislature goofed 31 years ago in naming the Board in accordance with its function, but the program is said to have helped 61,000 veterans without costing the taxpayers hardly anything.

The amendment would permit an unmarried spouse of a veteran who died in line of duty to use his land eligibility and that looks reasonable to me.

PROPOSITION 3 is my favorite. It would permit judges to deny bail to a person arrested on charges of committing a second felony while free on bail after indictment for another felony.

If he's previously been convicted of a felony, he could be denied bond, too.

Whether our state judges will have the stomach for locking up these poor, misunderstood darlings remains to be seen—but, since they're elected, the judges presumably will read the election returns and a heavy vote of approval might give them more intestinal fortitude than they ever suspected they had.

This is an important amendment giving the courts a responsibility for helping in the war on crime.

APPROVAL OF Proposition 4 would permit property tax relief to encourage the preservation of cultural, historical or natural history resources.

Dangers of abuse lurk in this authority, which would be permissive rather than mandatory, but within proper bounds the step would encourage owners to protect our heritage rather than tear it down for a new drive-in or beer joint.

Proposition 5, the one with the dull name mentioned in paragraph 3, would strengthen producer organizations engaged in promoting Texas farm commodities.

It would authorize assessments against all benefiting producers, who could demand and receive refunds if they felt strongly about it, in order to finance these programs.

PROPOSITION 6 would permit banks to place computer terminals in stores and elsewhere for the instantaneous electronic transfer of funds (EFT).

Enabling legislation would be required to provide that all EFT terminals could be shared by all banks. Thus, a consumer making a purchase in a store with an EFT terminal could use his bank card rather than cash, check, charge account or credit card to pay for his purchase.

If he didn't have any money in his account, it could be embarrassing. But, in that case, he shouldn't be making the purchase in the first place. I don't really trust computers but, since they're with us, we might as well use them to best advantage and okay EFT banking.

PROPOSITION 7 will rename the State Judicial Qualifications Commission as the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. Now, wow!, folks, that alone is worth a trip to the polls.

In addition, the Commission will be given broader powers to discipline judges, suspend them from office and publicly reprimand them.

It may never or seldom use this power, but at least we can scream to high heaven if it doesn't thus try to restore sagging public confidence in the courts.

If you've read this far with a tingle of excitement and anticipation, if you can't wait for the polls to open tomorrow, you go to the head of the class in concerned citizenship.

Recognition ceremonies will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. tomorrow at your friendly neighborhood polling place.

Sylvia Porter:

So, You Think You Wanna Be The Boss?

NEVER BEFORE in all U.S. history have so many of you been trying to realize the American dream of being your own boss, of leaving an employer's safety umbrella and entering the uncertain world of the self-employed.

New business starts are at record highs, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., with new incorporations up 15 per cent to 375,766 in 1976 alone and continuing at an unprecedented rate.

Simultaneously, though, new business failures remain at dishearteningly high levels even in these recent years of economic recovery and expansion.

The total of failures among incorporated businesses hit a peak of 11,432 in 1975, began declining but still held at large totals in 1976 and 1977.

WHAT'S MORE, despite all surface reasons—weather disasters, burglaries, etc.—in nine cases out of 10, the three reasons for failure of a new business will be the managers' incompetence, inexperience, and ineptitude.

And odds on a new business surviving even two years are only a chilling 50-50.

But to hike those odds in your favor, first study with utmost care the Small Business Administration's "Checklist for Going into Business." The latest revision of the pamphlet (it's free) is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20417.

Below you'll find some tough questions I've selected. Answer them honestly. Then get the pamphlet itself and answer all the rest. The pitfalls will emerge and so will the safeguards.

DO YOU WANT to own your own business badly enough to keep you working long hours without knowing how much money you'll end up with? Have you worked in a business like the one you want to start? As a foreman or manager, say?

Have you had any business training in school?

Have you saved any money? Do you know how much money you'll need to get started? How much of your own can you put into the business? Where can you borrow the rest you need to start?

Have you figured out what net income per year you can expect to get from the business? Can you live on less than this so you can use some of it to help your business grow? Have you talked to a banker about your plans? Received approval or a negative reaction?

HOW ABOUT A partner? If you need a partner with money or know-how you don't have, do you know someone who will fit? Someone you can get along with?

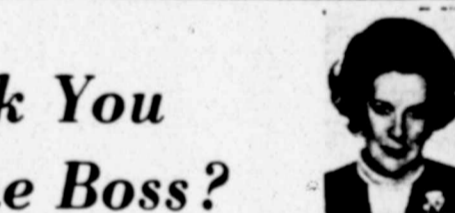

by the international commandoes.

"And did these violent men not sometimes get out of hand, avenge personal quarrels, become subject to the worst elements of the world community? In short, did they not—or wasn't there a danger of their becoming a Klan or a posse? Isn't there a danger to innocent lives?"

Very much so. But there is no other way that a One World Government will ever be attained.

"Let us see how long it works," was all the Traveler could think to say.

by Brickman

Do you know the pros and cons of going it alone, having a partner, incorporating your business? Have you talked to a lawyer about it, received a good or bad reaction?

How about your potential customers? Do most businesses in your community seem to be doing well?

Have you tried to find out whether stores like the one you want to open are doing well in your community and in the rest of the county? Do you know what kind of people will want to buy what you plan to sell?

Are your location and building well-chosen for your type of store? Can customers get to your building easily—from bus stops, parking spaces, their homes?

Has a lawyer checked the lease and zoning?

HAVE YOU COMPARED prices and credit terms of different suppliers, shopped for the best supplier for you? Have you considered saving money by buying second-hand equipment and supplies?

Do you know what financial statements you'll have to prepare and how to use these statements? What licenses and permits you'll need? Is your lawyer with you all the way?

And have you explored your insurance needs? Credit for your customers? Employee needs?

Kekkonen Viewed As Easy Winner In Finland

By PHILIP M. STONE
HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — President Urho K. Kekkonen has started actively campaigning for his re-election in January. But the only real question is by how large a margin he will win.

Kekkonen, 77, has been president of Finland since 1956. He has won three election terms of six years each and in 1973 parliament passed a constitutional amendment extending his term of office until 1978.

There was a move to pass a similar amendment for the Jan. 15-16 elections. But Kekkonen stopped it, saying it was not in the best interests of democracy to cancel elections.

Six major parties — the Social Democrats, Center Party, Communists, Liberals, Conservatives and the Swedish Party — have nominated Kekkonen as their candidate. They control 93.5 percent of the seats in parliament.

Other parties have nominated four candidates in opposition, but most Finns would be hard pressed to name more than one of them.

Kekkonen's strength comes from his success at running Finland's foreign policy — a duty the constitution prescribes as the domain of the president.

The main purpose of Finnish foreign policy is to keep the country at peace with the Soviet Union, its eastern neighbor with whom it shares a 793-mile border. But at the same time, the Finns are considered one of Europe's neutral nations.

During his 20 years as president and the five terms he served as premier previously, Kekkonen formulated very close personal relations with the Soviet leadership. The Soviets have stated several times how deeply they appreciate that relationship.

Thus, the reasoning in Finland is that what is good for Finland's relations with the Soviet Union is best for the country. And that means Kekkonen.

Most criticisms of Kekkonen come from outside the country — usually foreign press comments which then are reported in Finnish newspapers. The Finns are very sensitive to foreign press reports and they often become major news items in Finland.

The latest dispatch to cause a furor was published just before the election campaign officially began. The Stockholm newspaper Expressen in an editorial printed under a half-page picture of Kekkonen said he was "a danger to Finland." The article, printed at the start of a week in which Kekkonen was to make two separate one-day visits to Sweden, said he had become so powerful that no one dared question his actions.

The Finnish press rose to Kekkonen's defense, but the president saw fit two weeks later to begin his election campaign with a speech which, in effect, was in answer to Expressen.

"It has been claimed," he said, "that the position of the president has grown so central and important that other governmental bodies of the state are only executing his will and are left without an independent status or authority to make decisions."

"When I categorically deny this I can at the same time say that I do not believe that anybody who knows our system and is able to think can seriously insist anything like this," he said.

Although Kekkonen is going through the motions of an election, he actually had it tied up in April, 1975. It was a perfect example of how he can affect domestic politics if he feels the need.

At that time, a four-party coalition government headed by the Social Democrats disagreed on economic policy and the Social Democrats told the president the government might collapse.

Kekkonen, irritated by party politics as the country's economic crisis grew worse, wrote a letter to the party leaders.

He criticized the coalition for giving government ministers a 20 percent pay increase, he lambasted the Center party chairman who was finance minister for attending a conference in Sri Lanka while the economy was in crisis, and he said he might just dissolve Parliament and call new elections.

The political parties panicked. Nobody was ready for an election — the Social Democrats least of all. Two weeks of meetings with Kekkonen followed in which the president laid the groundwork for the laws he thought should be passed before parliament recessed for the summer.

The politicians agreed, and within days the Social Democrats suddenly announced they would nominate Kekkonen for president in 1978.

That astounded everyone — the Center party most of all since Kekkonen was a former Center party man and always had been their presidential candidate.

When Kekkonen accepted the Social Democrats' offer, the other major parties quickly joined the bandwagon.

One of the oldest and most popular Finnish jokes about Presidential elections goes like this: "Every six years we elect a new president. His name is Urho Kekkonen."

Unemployment Sets Record

In Australia

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — The number of Australians out of work rose in October to a postwar record of 370,335, or six percent of the work force of 6.2 million people, the government has announced.

Employment Minister Tony Street told parliament that industrial strife in southern Victoria state was largely to blame for the 0.6 percent increase over the September jobless rate.

An estimated 500,000 workers were laid off in Victoria at the peak of a crippling strike by electrical maintenance workers during October. The strike has since been settled and workers are slowly returning to their jobs.

Street said effects of the strike on employment could stretch into the future. "Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of production was lost, firms' cash flows have been shot to ribbons, and therefore their future planning would be in some difficulty," he said.

The new statistics gave the opposition Labor party campaign ammunition for the Dec. 10 parliamentary elections. Unemployment and inflation are two of the major campaign issues as Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser's conservative coalition tries to keep control of both the House and Senate.

Labor politicians have predicted unemployment will rise even higher in the coming year, especially after graduating high school and college students hit the job market at the end of December.

Costly Restaurants Lamented By Briton

LONDON (UPI) — Few Britons can afford to dine in the nation's top restaurants. Egon Ronay lamented in his latest guide to good eating, which was published today.

"Half or more (customers) are tourists or resident foreign business people," he said. "Japanese businessmen living in Britain are the biggest spenders."

Ronay said the high price of hotel and restaurant service puts Britain in danger of "pricing itself out of the market."

A room in a deluxe hotel now starts at $90 a night without service and breakfast, he said, and a meal in a top restaurant costs $36 to $45 per person.

MY ANSWER
By BILLY GRAHAM

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A friend of mine said there is nothing wrong with white magic and that only black magic is wrong. I noticed in your book "Angels" that you disagree with this. What is white magic, and why is it wrong? — Mrs. T.C.I.

DEAR MRS. I: The difference between black magic and white magic is the purpose for which each is used. In black magic, a person attempts to use supernatural forces to do something harmful to another person, such as putting them under a spell or hex. White magic attempts to use supernatural forces for the good of oneself or another person and may involve the removal of a hex or the use of good luck charms.

The Bible does not make a distinction between black magic and white magic. In the Bible's view, all attempts to use psychic or occult forces are wrong regardless of their intention. Such practices

USDA Changes Price Support Time Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today that effective immediately government price support loans will be made to farmers for 1977-crop corn, wheat and other grains on a basis of nine months instead of for 11 months as has been the case.

Officials said the loans will be due nine months after a farmer receives his loan. The procedure of having a loan fall due on its anniversary date was in effect when the loans were made for 11 months.

The department said that "by shortening the length of the loan, a greater number of the loans will mature before the 1978 harvest" and that "this will permit 1977 grain to be moved from the farm and country warehouse to make room for the 1978 crop."

Farmers who already have obtained 1977-crop grain loans will have 30 days to consider an option of continuing the loans for 11 months or reducing them to nine months. Notices will be sent to individual farmers by local federal offices.

The program involves 1977 soybeans in addition to wheat, corn, sorghum, barley, oats and rye, a spokesman said.

The loans are available to farmers who want to use their crops as collateral. If market prices rise much above the loan rates farmers usually pay off the loans and sell their commodities for cash. But if market prices are low, as they have been, farmers can let the government take over the grain as final settlement.

Override Effort Not Anticipated

By TOM RAUM
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress probably will not try to override President Carter's veto of a bill authorizing $80 million for a breeder reactor project he wants halted, congressional sources said today.

Aides to both backers and foes of the project agreed there is little likelihood that the veto could be overturned.

"There is strong opposition among both the House and the Senate leadership against even bringing it up," said one source.

Both houses must vote by a two-thirds margin to override a veto.

Members of the energy conference committee resumed work today on the nontax portions of energy bills passed by the House and Senate. Later in the week, a second conference group will begin working on tax provisions.

In his first veto message since taking office, Carter said Saturday that the Clinch River breeder project in Oak Ridge, Tenn., would "imperil the administration's policy to curb proliferation of nuclear weapons technology."

However, the issue was clouded by the fact that both House and Senate have agreed to include the $80 million in another bill — one containing almost $7 billion in funds for a wide variety of federal programs.

In an effort to make it more difficult for Carter to kill the project, breeder backers managed to get both houses to include a provision in that funding bill to require the money to be spent even should Carter veto — as he did — the other bill.

Critics of the reactor are now urging Carter to veto this bill, too, when it reaches his desk. The bill has been approved by a House-Senate conference committee — including the $80 million for the breeder — and is expected to win congressional approval later in the month.

It was not immediately clear whether Carter was considering a second veto of this funding bill.

However, administration backers in Congress noted that even if Carter fails to veto the spending bill, there is a procedure under which he could refuse to spend the breeder money.

Such an impoundment of funds would give breeder proponents another crack at the project because Congress has 45 days in which to overturn any presidential decision to withhold funds.

Breeder reactors produce more nuclear fuel than they consume, but the fuel manufactured is plutonium, which is capable of being diverted for use in atomic weapons.

Carter wants the project halted as part of his program to halt the world-wide spread of bomb-suitable nuclear materials.

President Carter plans to seek public support for his beleaguered energy proposals in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night.

Democratic congressional leaders who support the Carter energy package say the speech may improve the chances that a compromise meeting of the president's criteria will emerge from the conference panel.

But critics say it is too late for Carter to have any significant impact.

With most other business out of the way for the year, congressional leaders hope the conferees will reach agreement

Rent Increase Approved For Buffalo Lakes

A 25 percent cost increase in boat compartment rentals at Buffalo Springs Lake for next year was approved by the lake's governing board this morning.

For the first time since 1966, board members of the Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 voted unanimously to raise the rent of the 74 stalls available to the public.

Board president Max Wisner said rising cost in maintenance for the facilities was the reason for the higher rent. He added the rates would still be below average for similar facilities across the state.

Persons renting stalls the first three months of next year through Dec. 31, 1978 will pay $150 instead of the present $120.

on an energy measure. But it appears unlikely a final version will be completed before mid-December.

The House passed most of Carter's energy proposals, but the Senate changed some parts greatly and rejected key provisions in others.

The conference committee handling the non-tax sections met 13 times without resolving any of the major differences between the House and Senate.

The panel still faces conflicting proposals on natural gas pricing and electric utility rate reform.

The tax conferees must consider proposed taxes on crude oil and gas-thirsty automobiles. Both provisions were passed by the House but rejected in the Senate.

A Senate Armed Services subcommittee was slated today to hear Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's assessment of American-Soviet progress toward limiting strategic armaments.

For some congressmen, the recess provides time to bone up on several subjects.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd and eight other senators leave Wednesday for a three-day trip to Panama.

They hope to talk with both Americans and Panamanians, including the nation's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, about the proposed new Panama Canal treaty, which would give Panama control of the waterway after the year 2000 while retaining an American right to defend it.

The treaty is before the Senate for ratification.

Two Airplane Crashes Kill 11 Persons

By The Associated Press
Eleven persons were killed in weekend plane crashes off Grand Bahama Island and in the southern Catskill Mountains.

Coast Guard officials say five Ohio residents and a Florida woman died in the crash of a twin-engine plane in a mudflat off Grand Bahama Island.

The Coast Guard in Miami said the crash late Saturday claimed the lives of pilot Ronald E. Marsh of Navarre, Ohio, and Mary Jane Carpenter, Rebecca Smith, Richard Montz and John D. Slutz, all from the Canton, Ohio, area.

The sixth victim was identified as Carol Carter of Sunrise, Fla.

Chris Heselvine of Bahamas Air Sea Rescue said the 310 Cessna lost control after it took off from Fort Lauderdale.

Heselvine said the tail of the plane was spotted at mid-morning Sunday, sticking out of some mudflats north of Grand Bahama Island.

The bodies of five persons killed when a small private airplane crashed in dense fog in the southern Catskill Mountains have been found.

A search party found the Piper Aztec in dense woods near Claryville, N.Y., where it had crashed Saturday while the pilot attempted to find a place to land, authorities said.

Troopers identified the pilot as George Newman, 42, of North Miami Beach, Fla. The four passengers were identified as Leon Davis, 64, and his wife, Mollie, 61, both of Loch Sheldrake, N.Y.; Charlotte Kaufman, 47, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Phyllis Michael, 45, whose last known address was Floral Park, N.Y.

The plane took off from Sullivan County International Airport and flew to Atlantic City, N.J., according to authorities.

While heading back to Sullivan County later in the day, Newman ran into dense fog throughout southeastern New York state. Troopers said Newman radioed several area airports to see if conditions would permit him to land.

Shortly after Newman asked for directions to an airport in Liberty, direct communication with the plane was lost, they said.

A hunter reported hearing an airplane overhead and a crash.

Search teams combed the area until shortly before midnight Saturday, and arrived at the crash scene Sunday. Continuing dense had hampered air searches.

Archbishop Says Mass After Prison Release

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
 ROME (AP) — Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji said mass today in a convent chapel where he is resting after his release from prison and expulsion from Israel.

The Vatican expressed "deep satisfaction" for the release of the 55-year-old prelate, who had served nearly three years of a 12-year sentence for smuggling arms to Palestinian guerrillas in Jerusalem and the West Bank. The Israeli government acceded to a direct appeal for his freedom by Pope Paul VI.

A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the ambassadors of Lebanon, Syria and Egypt reportedly attended the mass, celebrated in Greek by Capudji and the Greek Catholic patriarch, Maximus V. Reporters and photographers were barred from the chapel at the Vatican's request.

Vatican sources said Capudji would recuperate for about three months and then would be given a new post, probably in the Americas or Australia. Associates said he lost about 25 pounds in prison.

A Vatican announcement said "News of the archbishop's liberation was received with deep satisfaction by the Holy See, which during these years has not ceased being interested in Msgr. Capudji's situation, worried also for his precarious health."

The pope in his letter to Israeli President Ephraim Katzir assured him that the release "will not be detrimental to the State of Israel." Capudji told a Lebanese newspaper that the Vatican agreed he could not return to Jerusalem and would be kept out of the entire Arab world permanently.

Looking pale and weak from hunger strikes, Capudji was greeted on his arrival Sunday by a delegation from the Palestine Liberation Organization, a representative of the Vatican and other church officials.

An envoy of PLO leader Yasir Arafat told reporters: "We consider him a hero."

a symbol of resistance, a man who really loves his people and his land."

Capudji, a native of Syria, refused to talk to reporters at the airport. But the Beirut newspaper An Nahar said he gave it an interview in which he paid tribute to the Palestinians who during his imprisonment hijacked planes or seized hostages in Israel and then demanded his release.

"I shall never forget the martyrs who sacrificed their lives to win my freedom," he was quoted as saying.

The archbishop expressed gratitude to the pope but complained about being barred from Jerusalem.

"I left my heart in Jerusalem," he said. "I am married to Jerusalem. Without it I am only a walking cadaver."

"The pope had to accept the Israeli terms for my release. But for me these terms are worse than a death sentence. When you are doomed you die only once. But I shall die a hundred times a day as long as I am away from my children, my people in Palestine, my church in the East."

"I have left a prison only to enter a bigger and more painful one. That's how I feel about my new exile."

Capudji's flock in Jerusalem and the occupied West Bank totaled about 4,500 Melchite Catholics, an Eastern-rite branch of the Roman Catholic Church that recognizes the primacy of the pope.

Vatican observers said the Vatican's negotiations for Capudji's release, culminating in a letter from the pope to Katsir last Thursday, may mean an improvement in the sometimes chilly relationships between the Holy See and the Jewish state.

The Vatican has never granted diplomatic recognition to Israel although it has diplomatic ties with most of Israel's Arab neighbors. It has been openly critical of Israel's control of the Christian holy places in East Jerusalem and the West Bank though it never objected to Jordan's control of them. Now it advocates international control of them.

Capudji was arrested Aug. 8, 1974, and charged with smuggling four submachine guns, two pistols, 220 pounds of explosives and a quantity of grenades and bullets from Lebanon to Israel in his limousine. An Israeli court rejected his demand for immunity from prosecution, found him guilty and sent him to prison Dec. 9, 1974.

Church sources said the Vatican began trying to get Capudji released about 18 months ago, but the negotiations which resulted in his release began in July, after a conservative government took office in Israel.

SECOND TIME AROUND — The Lovely brothers of Cabot, Vt., say they're so pleased with their marriages, they'd marry their wives all over again. And they did — in a church ceremony Sunday. Four Brothers Official May Be Chosen To Read CIA Documents

Repeat Vows With Wives

CABOT, Vt. (AP) — Four Vermont brothers and their wives — with a total of 123 years of married life behind them — have fulfilled a claim they'd made for years: Given the chance, they'd get married all over again.

The four couples repeated their vows Sunday in a special church ceremony replete with crying babies, popping flashbulbs and damp-eyed relatives.

Married again were the Loyd Lovelys, Robert Lovelys, Ralph Lovelys and Paul Lovelys.

A hush fell over the the United Church in Cabot as the couples, in fancy suits and long gowns, marched down the aisle to the strains of the traditional wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin." When the organist switched to "I Love You Truly," friends and relatives dabbed their eyes with handkerchiefs.

"None of us ever had church weddings, receptions, honeymoons or even wedding cakes," explained Wilma Lovely, who married Lloyd 34 years ago Sunday. "We were married during wartime."

For Dora Lovely, who eloped with Robert at age 16, the ceremony served as "a booster shot" for the couple's 30-year marriage.

"The first one wasn't the same as doing it in church," she said. "And my parents were very upset because I was so young."

Ralph Lovely was married without the watchful eyes of family members 20 years ago because, as his wife Lola remembered, "We went by ourselves because it seemed like such a sacred thing."

Marge Lovely, married to Paul, endorses the idea of re-marriage.

"I'm very grateful for the 39 years Paul and I have been married," she said. "Renewing our vows was something we wanted to do for our own personal gratification."

Others in the congregation rose at the request of the Rev. David McBride to repeat their marriage vows with the Lovelys.

"We pray for their children and grandchildren that from this example each might learn new possibilities for happiness, patience to endure and to understand, and renewed devotion to the marriage vows," McBride said.

The four couples have 11 children and 30 grandchildren among them.

Lloyd and Wilma Lovely were hosts at the reception after the service, and helped cut a huge white cake trimmed with pink and green frosting and topped with four pairs of bride and groom statuettes.

Another tradition was observed, too: "Some things never change," said Paul Lovely. "I'm nervous all over again."

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica indicated today he may appoint a court official to read CIA documents on the assassination of John F. Kennedy that the agency is trying to keep secret.

The judge made the suggestion after lawyer Bernard F. Fensterwald argued that he had been denied much of the material on the assassination that he had requested under the Freedom of Information Act.

Fensterwald has sued the CIA for all its information on five persons including Lee Harvey Oswald, the man the Warren Commission said shot Kennedy, Jack Ruby, who in turn assassinated Oswald, also is one of the five.

Fensterwald has asked for papers on the CIA's investigation of David Ferrie, an airplane pilot who had been the chief suspect in an investigation of the Kennedy death conducted in New Orleans. Ferrie is dead.

He also asked for the CIA's files on Sylvia Duran, a Mexican Communist and the only person to testify that Oswald had been in Mexico just before the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination.

Sylvia Odio, a Cuban woman who said that two Cubans and Oswald met with her in Dallas just before the murder, is the fifth figure in Fensterwald's request.

Fensterwald complained that since he had made his request for the files on April 3, 1975, he has received about 25 percent of the records and another 25 percent were not supplied to him. He told Sirica the remaining 50 percent are "so badly distorted by deletions to be worthless."

He asked the judge to look at the papers himself in private to determine whether the validity of the agency's claim that national security prevents disclosure.

Sirica indicted he might appoint a special master to review the documents. A special master is usually a private attorney appointed by the court to carry out a specific assignment.

Michael D. Ryan, an assistant U.S. attorney arguing for the CIA, said the agency had released 936 documents and had withheld 396.

"Ninety-three percent were denied on the basis of national security and to protect intelligence sources and methods," he told the judge.

Ryan asked Sirica to take the agency's word that the withholding was necessary but Fensterwald told the judge he should determine "whether the CIA's efforts are to be given credibility."

Fensterwald, who once represented James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King, has been active in assassination probes for years. He submitted five affidavits to Sirica, one of which, from Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., said that the CIA files were "unnecessarily classified."

Five Pulled From Plane In Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Five persons were injured when a twin-engine airplane crashed and burned Sunday night about one mile south of Tulsa's Riverside Airport.

The crash site was in the city limits of Jenks, a Tulsa suburb. Jenks Fire Chief Bill Heinen said one of the occupants managed to get out of the burning craft and, with the help of residents of the area, pulled the other four persons to safety.

Heinen said the plane, en route to Tulsa from Arlington, Texas, was beginning its approach to the airport runway but it "came in too low, hit tree tops and, of course, went directly to the ground."

Two of the injured were identified by a spokesman at Hillcrest Burns Center as Wayne Burcham, 44, of Tulsa, and James Robbins, 46, of Sapulpa.

Burcham was listed in guarded condition with 2nd and 3rd degree burns over 34.5 percent of his body. Robbins was listed in fair condition with 2nd degree burns over 5 percent of his body.

Names of the other three occupants were being withheld late Sunday night pending notification of next of kin. They were identified only as a Tulsa woman and two Dayton, Ohio, men.

Two of those three were not believed seriously injured, but one was admitted to St. Francis Hospital with a broken leg.

Zoo Plans To End Monkey Business

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Officials at the Memphis Zoological Gardens aren't taking any more monkey business from Big George and his troublesome gang.

George, a male rhesus monkey, and eight female accomplices are being replaced on Monkey Island by 10 monkeys with calmer personalities. Moreover, zoo director Charles Wilson says they'll be deported to a Canadian breeding colony.

The monkeys have escaped numerous times over the years, causing headaches for zoo employees, visitors and nearby human residents.

"They have threatened several zoo visitors while on their foraging expeditions off their island," Wilson said. "We have to remove the animals that are serious threats to public safety."

Man, 22, In Hospital Following Shooting

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was in critical condition at Methodist Hospital today following an early morning shooting incident at an Avenue S residence today.

Gaylon Lynn Smith of 6509-B Ave. S was found in the kitchen area of another apartment after reportedly being shot three times by a woman. According to witnesses' accounts, the incident was the result of an earlier argument.

Smith, who was in surgical intensive care, suffered gunshot wounds in the neck, chest and abdomen.

In recently reported house burglaries, Leon A. Love of 2721 E. Colgate St. said whoever broke through a window at his home Sunday made off with his $329 television set, and Maria Castillo of 2905 Parkway Dr. said her stereo was lifted by a break-in artist who gained entry in a similar manner this weekend.

According to Michael J. Skalsky of 1306 39th St., someone cut a window screen and stole $371 worth of household goods from his residence sometime during the past three days.

Claiming he was a "package delivery boy," a young man burst into a Lubbock residence, ransacked the house and then locked an unattended young boy in a closet before fleeing from the scene of one of many weekend burglaries in the city.

Police said John Randy Malone of 2005 10th St. drove up outside his home about 8:15 a.m. Saturday just in time to watch the man flee from the residence.

Malone, after checking to make sure the youth was unarmed, followed the intruder, but quickly was left behind.

His son, after being let out of the closet where the intruder had placed him after clipping all telephone wires in the house, told officers the man tapped on a window and said he had "a package for your daddy." When the youth opened the door

Church Considers Theme Of Unity

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nearly 175 ranking theologians of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will tackle an always thorny unity theme as they begin a three-day convocation today.

Major essays on the theme, "Formula for Concord," will be delivered by three seminary presidents of the 2.8 million member church, which has been split by doctrinal dissension in recent years.

The theme ties in with the 400th anniversary of the Formula of Concord, one of the documents included among the Lutheran confessional writings, an official said.

"The convocation is to provide study and reaction to the basic tenets of our belief in unity," said a church spokesman. "The material will be used by pastors and teachers as they start applying the program at the parish level."

Those making major addresses are Dr. Robert Preus of Concordia Theological Seminary, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Dr. Martin Warth of Seminario Concordia, Porto Alegre, Brazil; and Dr. Ralph Bohmann of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis.

New Survey Shows Head Lice Prefer Affluent Whites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contrary to popular myth, a new survey shows that head lice prefer the affluent to the poor, favor women over men and infest white scalps more often than black ones.

Dr. Leslie Norins compiled the new survey uncovering many facts hidden by "the conspiracy of embarrassed silence" about lice. He said the findings disprove many myths about lice.

Norcliff Thayer, Inc., a lice remedy manufacturer that financed the survey, said medicine sales indicate there were only 250,000 cases of head lice nationwide in 1963 — and 5 million last year.

Norins said he questioned 4,000 nursing service directors at community health agencies, got a 15 percent response and found that 85 percent of reported cases involved whites, 7 percent Hispanic, 4 percent black and 4 percent from other ethnic groups; females with head lice outnumbered males by 2 to 1; nearly 70 percent were in families with middle or upper-bracket incomes; the Southeast is the area most prone and the Northeast was the only area reporting a significant decline.

Understanding Fats

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB—I have had two heart attacks, both mild, and am on a low cholesterol diet. What are vegetable fats? Are they polyunsaturated or not?
 Can I have peanut butter sandwiches without too much damage to my system?

DEAR READER—Judging from the enormous number of letters I get about fats that is one of the most difficult concepts for the public to understand about foods.

The term vegetable fat includes all fats that don't come from animals or animal products. Hence it includes safflower oil which is low in saturated fat and high in polyunsaturated fat, and coconut oil, which is just the opposite, high in saturated fat and low in polyunsaturated fat. If you want to limit saturated fat and use polyunsaturated fat, don't depend on a food label that just says vegetable fat — it is often coconut oil, saturated fat.

The other point people have trouble with is understanding that the fat in food is made up of several different types of fat. Part of the fat is saturated, part monounsaturated and some polyunsaturated fat. The ratio is important. If you want to eat food that contains fat that is low in saturated fat and relatively high in polyunsaturated fat, you will choose fish, or not quite so good, poultry. The red meats tend to contain fat that is relatively low in polyunsaturated fat.

The number of letters about peanut butter also attests to its place as an American favorite. Half the weight of peanut butter is FAT and about 20 percent of that fat is saturated fat. You would be better off to choose breast of chicken and eat chicken sandwiches if you want to limit your fat consumption.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. It will give you the general principles you need to follow a diet that helps keep your level of fatty cholesterol particles down. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 69 years old and had a hysterectomy at age 53.

A year ago, we moved and I went to a new doctor. He proceeded to do a Pap test. Now it's been a year since the negative test and I received a notice it is time for my yearly Pap test. Is this necessary? I always thought that after the uterus was removed that was it.
 Please find it in your heart to answer this old lady.

DEAR READER—From a purist point of view, you could develop cancer of the vagina, but of course your days of worrying about cervical cancer is indeed small in anyone who has had both the cervix and body of the uterus removed.

I still think you should have an annual examination with or without a Pap test. You need to be sure you don't have any lumps in your breasts. You are in the age group for the peak rate of breast cancer (between 55 and 74 years of age). When there, talk your Pap test question over with your doctor.

Unless your ovaries were removed with your uterus, you should have an examination anyway, because ovarian cancer can still occur and is the fifth most common cause of cancer deaths in women in the same age group.

Airline Magazines Offer Uplifting Reading

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 OVER DENVER (AP) — In case nobody has noticed, the airline in-flight magazines are going in for some very uplifting literature these days.

Now on a cross-country hop or even the milk run out of Scottsbluff, Neb., or aboard the Boston shuttle you can dip into best sellers like Walker Percy's "Lancelot," John Cheever's "Falconer" and Phil Caputo's "A Rumor of War" instead of memorizing that little plastic card telling where the exits are.

So far, none of the jet set culture custodians has dared to break any new literary contrails with an offering like Erica Jong's "Fear of Flying" or Piers Paul Read's "Alive; the Story of Andes Survivors," in which the passenger list gets confused with the menu, but there is real hope for the English language at 37,000 feet.

After years of heavy turbulence on the lips of stewards making cabin announcements, the mother tongue at last may be ticketed, as they say aloft, for friendlier skies and not have to deplane from the rear.

Both "ticketed" (as in "are you ticketed?") and "deplane" failed to make the latest edition of the Oxford English Dictionary, but they are hardly the outer abominations of airline prose.

Just this morning as we were taxiing (to cite another noun converted to a verb at great expense by the aircraft industry) onto the runway, the captain came on the horn to wish us good morning and announced: "This is United's Flight 98 non-stop to Los Angeles. If there is anyone aboard not going to Los Angeles, this might be an excellent opportunity to deplane."

Meaning, I suppose, that it could get a bit dicey deplaning from the rear or wherever when we climbed out over Long Island Sound to our cruising altitude.

"Are you lunching with us today?" cooed a sweet young thing, genuflecting by my side in the aisle in a curtsy borrowed from "The King and I." Have you noticed how courtly cabin crews have become lately, both in gestures and lingo, as the competition for customers gets tougher up there? Now where else did she think I'd be lunching at 27,000 feet over Lake Erie?

The question might be valid on Freddie Laker's no frills, brown bag airline or maybe aboard Air Syria during the Ramadan fast but there wasn't much choice aboard this "non-stopper," as the Flight Services Supervisor — the head stewardess in drag — kept calling our flight.

Somewhere west of the wide Missouri ("Down there on your left," the captain advised those of us who might be inclined to look skyward for the mighty river), the seatbelt sign came on "purely as a routine precaution" on account of what was deemed "light turbulence" was causing pots and pans to rattle in the galley closets, overhead luggage compartments to burst open and one tray of cocktails to seek a higher altitude.

"Our light turbulence unfortunately is accelerating to normal turbulence and we now have head winds," the captain came on again in his normal May Day voice, "so will the flight staff please pick up the cabin and resume their seats?"

"Pick up the cabin? Did that include the guy who had fallen out of the John?"

A new gimmick on some airlines these days, "as part of our audio program," permits passengers to eavesdrop on conversations between the flight deck and the tower on approach. There the prose style can get very dramatic. It sometimes beats the in-flight movie.

"United 98, take runway four, 275 degrees and taxi to Gate 43.

"What's he doing down there? Who is that? What's his heading?"

"That's Northwest 64. We're using parallel runways today."

"Well, you might have said so," suggested our cool captain with just a bit of pique trailing sparks from beneath his peaked cap. Then he got back on the blower and in an emotional farewell address thanked us for choosing his airline over all the others in the world. Dickens doing a deathbed number couldn't have phrased it more poignantly.

One felt guilty for passing up Air Ghana, Cathay Pacific and Icelandic Air and all the bereft others to fly into Los Angeles or Scottsbluff or wherever today, but we were grateful for his joy at having us aboard. Gratitude is such a rare commodity in the world today, those of us deplaning through the forward door could barely keep our passions in check acknowledging the stewards' tender adieu and muffled sobs as we passed into the terminal area to join the unticketed masses in the baggage recovery area.

But for airline rhetoric at its most recherche, nothing has shaken me to the soles of my earth shoes like the question posed by a drawing, magnolia-scented

Possible New Comet Reported In China

TOKYO (AP) — A Chinese observatory sighted "a fast-moving, blurred celestial body, possibly a new comet," Thursday and Friday, the Hsinhua news agency reported today.

The official Chinese agency said the Truchinshan observatory in Nanking reported the celestial body had a brightness of 13.5 magnitude. A magnitude of more than 6 is not visible to the naked eye.

For 21¢ or less you could put this letter into a call across the country.

If you're an average talker, you can say about 175 words in one minute. Which means you could put a personal letter like this into a more personal one-minute Long Distance call. And it'll only cost you 21¢ plus tax if you dial One-Plus from 11 p.m. Friday to 5 p.m. Sunday, or any weekday after 11 p.m. Of course we're not suggesting you talk for just one minute. But even if you talk 10 minutes, you're only talking $1.58, plus tax. Or $2.57 if you dial Sunday through Friday between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. And that's talking clear across the country. So if you're still putting words into letters, just think of what you could be putting into a Long Distance call.

Merchants In Plains Miss Big Tourist Boom

By JOAN MOWER
 PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Merchants in President Carter's home town are uneasy about the dwindling number of tourists visiting Plains since the boom days just before the president went to Washington. Officials say the tourist traffic will probably be only about one-third of the 1.5 million people who had been predicted to visit the tiny south Georgia town each year.

"We'll be lucky if we get 500,000 tourists this year," said Mayor A.L. Blanton. "It's nothing like the state people thought."

Blanton said one reason for the decline is Carter's absence: The president has spent only seven days in Plains since his inauguration.

"He hasn't come home very often, and I don't think I blame him," Blanton said.

"He can't rest when he comes home because there are so many tourists around. The best place for him to relax is Camp David."

Billy Carter, the president's flamboyant, beer-drinking brother and operator of a now-famous gas station, is a pretty good tourist draw, but he cannot attract them the way his brother does.

He, too, has moved his family out of town to get away from the crowds.

House-Swapping Becomes Vacation Alternative

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Tired of the traditional vacation at a resort or hotel? Looking for a place to stay that's big enough to hold the whole family without breaking the budget? Try house-swapping.

You can get a rent-free holiday by temporarily trading your home with someone in another part of the country or world. It is time to start planning now, however, if you're interested in a swap next summer.

The advantages of house-swapping are that you have no hotel bill, you can cut down on restaurant costs by cooking your own meals and you may have a car included in the exchange. You also can learn what it's like to live in a community instead of getting only a tourist's-eye view.

There are disadvantages, too, however. With a few exceptions, maid service is not included in the swaps. You may be nervous about the idea of leaving your own possessions with strangers. The house you select may not be exactly what you had in mind. And the exchange services which put would-be house-swappers in touch with each other offer no guarantees of satisfaction.

There are a number of house-swapping plans available, but they all operate in the same basic method. An interested individual who wants to trade his or her home pays a fee to have it listed in a directory published by an exchange service. The listing usually includes a basic description of the house or apartment, the location and the time it will be available for swapping. Some services also include people who want to rent, rather than trade their homes.

Copies of the directory are mailed to everyone who has listed a house. You also may subscribe to the directory without listing your own residence. Either way, it is up to you to make contact with the owner of a listing that interests you and to work out the details.

Fees for the service generally range from $10 to $25, depending on whether you want to list your house or just receive the directory. Most exchange services publish two lists — one around the beginning of the year and a second, auxiliary list in the early spring.

Ben Kernan of Inquire, a Katonah, N.Y., house-swapping service founded in 1975, said Nov. 15 is the deadline for listing a home in the agency's main directory; March 15 is the deadline for the auxiliary publication. Kernan said the service expects to have about 500 listings this year — 60 percent in the United States and 40 percent overseas. About 2,500 copies of the directories are distributed.

Kernan advises potential traders to check home and automobile insurance coverage to see whether additional coverage is needed. "You might want to remove valuable breakables, particularly when children are involved," he adds.

If a car is part of the deal, the two parties involved should agree on who will pay for gasoline and oil, damage, etc. Traders also should spell out who pays utility and telephone bills during the period of the swap.

Kernan said there are several things you can do to make it easier for anyone moving into your home:

Leave names to call for emergencies or information, list local shops and sights, stock basic provisions and explain arrangements about sheets, towels, etc.

The Vacation Exchange Club Inc. of New York City, which was founded in 1960 and claims to be the nation's oldest house-swapping service, expects to have a total of 3,000 listings in its upcoming directories. The listings are fairly evenly split between the United States and foreign countries.

Spokeswoman Mary DeBardo said about one-third of the people who list their homes or subscribe to the directories actually wind up swapping. She said house-swappers generally are people with families or retired couples looking for a low-cost way to travel.

Miss DeBardo said the club had had few problems, but if there is a serious complaint — about owner or occupier — the club will drop the individual from future listings, Miss DeBardo said.

One way to minimize the chance of trouble is to exchange references, from a bank or an employer, for example, or from previous swappers.

Start making arrangements for a vacation house at least two months in advance, particularly for overseas travel or summer trips.

Individuals who have traded their homes generally say they have been pleased. "I was sort of nervous," recalled one woman who has made half a dozen swaps during the past few years. But she said that the people she's traded with have taken careful care of her home. "I had a friend (stay here) once and she left the house in far worse shape than the people I've exchanged with," she said.

The address of the Vacation Exchange Club Inc. is 350 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10013. Inquire is at Box 208, Katonah, N.Y. 10536.

Two States To Choose Governors

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

Two states choose governors and 38 major cities elect mayors this week, but clues to the nation's political future will be hard to find.

Jobs, federal funds and crime control are among the issues, but the only national development has been President Carter's trips to New Jersey and Virginia, where he campaigned for the Democratic gubernatorial tickets.

The Republicans are trying to retain the governorship in Virginia and take back the New Jersey Statehouse they held four years ago.

Meanwhile, black candidates are making historic races in New Orleans and Buffalo, N.Y.

The Democratic mayoral nominee is expected to win easily in New York, while most other big city elections are non-partisan.

The Virginia race is between Republican Lt. Gov. John Dalton and Democrat Henry Howell, who has run twice unsuccessfully.

Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin, who served previously as a Democratic governor, converted to the GOP and won again four years ago.

He beat Howell, who believes — as does Dalton — that Tuesday's election will be close.

Support of a state income tax appeared initially to have hurt New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne's re-election chances. But new polls show him even with Republican Sen. Raymond H. Bateman, who received a campaign visit from former President Gerald Ford.

In New York City U.S. Rep. Edward Koch, the Democratic nominee, is considered to be far ahead of Mario Cuomo of the Liberal Party, Republican Sen. Roy Goodman, and Conservative Barry Farber.

Coleman Young, who became Detroit's first black mayor four years ago, has solidified his political base and is expected to defeat City Councilman Ernest Browne, also black and a Democrat.

In Buffalo, liberal Assemblyman Arthur Eve opposes conservative Sen. James D. Griffin in the mayoral runoff. Both are Democrats but Eve, who placed first in the earlier primary, is the first black to make a serious run for mayor in the largely Italian and Slavic city.

State Appeals Judge Ernest Moreau is New Orleans' first major black candidate, facing Councilman Joseph DiRosa in a runoff on Saturday.

With Republican Mayor Ralph Perk of Cleveland defeated in the primary, Dennis Kucinich, clerk of municipal court, is facing state Rep. Edward Feighan Tuesday in that Ohio city.

Other major cities picking mayors Tuesday include Seattle; Minneapolis; Pittsburgh; Toledo, Ohio; Miami; Louisville, Ky.; Charlotte, N.C. and Dayton, Ohio.

Houston also is voting for a mayor Tuesday, but a runoff is likely in the race to succeed retiring Mayor Fred Hofheinz.

Red-Haired Women Labeled Powerful

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Redheads, who have long been labeled fiery-tempered, now may have a new stereotype to live down.

According to a survey of 200 Utah college students, red-haired women are regarded as powerful while their male counterparts are seen as timid.

"The red-haired female is perceived as the executive or professional type, not very feminine and slightly aggressive," said Dennis Clayton, an assistant professor of psychology at Mount Union College, who surveyed students from Brigham Young University and Utah Technical College.

However, he added: "The red-haired male is seen as a timid, feminine, Bozo-the-clown type character."

The same sex differential didn't apply to findings on persons with other hair colors.

Two Sons Of Prominent New Yorkers Seek Post

By JOHN SHANAHAN

NEW YORK (AP) — In a real-life edition of "my daddy can beat your daddy," two sons of powerful men are spending more than $1 million to compete for an elective job which has little power.

The prize in Tuesday's election: borough president of Manhattan, a largely titular post that includes two votes on the board of estimate, which helps shape the city budget. There are four other borough presidents.

Robert F. Wagner Jr., 33, son of a former three-time mayor of New York and grandson of a former senator, and Andrew Stein, 32, son of Jerry Finkelstein, millionaire publisher of The New York Law Journal, are competing for the $40,000-a-year borough presidency.

In the final three days of the campaign, the two were spending at least $200,000 on television advertising, more than the combined total of the four major mayoral candidates.

Wagner says he'd like to become a U.S. Senator eventually, while Stein acknowledges ambitions to become governor.

Each man's father has committed $100,000 or more of his own money plus all the political clout he can muster.

Stein won the Democratic primary with 37 per cent of the vote and Wagner finished second with 36 percent. Wagner, who campaigns as the best Democrat available, already had the Liberal nomination and was subsequently endorsed by the Republicans.

The general campaign became a fight for endorsements. Such politicians as Gov. Hugh Carey stepped outside party lines to endorse young Wagner. And Sen. Hubert Humphrey withdrew his endorsement of Stein once he heard that Wagner was in the race, too.

Stein is a state assemblyman from Manhattan who was first elected at the age of 23, when his father helped him spend a record $250,000 to win the seat.

Stein, who changed his last name a few years ago to show some independence from his father, says he spent $550,000 to win the primary and that he will have spent another $125,000 by Tuesday.

Saudi Prince Likes American Football

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — When Prince Faisal of Saudi Arabia saw his first American college football game, he concluded, "I like the spirit of the game very much."

Faisal, who has been in the United States observing military training at Fort Benning, Ga. and Fort Rucker, Ala., attended Auburn University's homecoming day game Saturday when the Tigers took a walloping 27-13 loss to Mississippi State.

Education Official Boosts Fuel Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Education Commissioner Ernest Boyer, promoting President Carter's energy proposals on a government subsidized broadcast service, says energy costs could have a devastating effect on school budgets.

In an interview taped by the U.S. Office of Education for use by radio stations, Boyer was asked what his agency expects to do about the "energy crisis" in the schools.

"First, it is absolutely essential the proposed energy program set forth by President Carter be enacted," Boyer replied.

If the cost of energy is not controlled and schools' consumption of energy made more efficient, he said, "it's going to have a devastating effect on the cost of education in the country."

The more money spent to heat schools the less there is for classroom instruction, Boyer said.

The Office of Education Service to Broadcasters can be dialed toll free by any radio station in the country. It offers daily recorded announcements that often repeat information contained in government press releases but sometimes feature interviews with educators.

An agency spokesman defended Boyer's promotion of the energy bill on the service.

"It's a subsidized news release we put out, too," he said in reference to printed material regularly distributed to reporters by the government. "No one's being forced to use it."

As for Boyer's taped promotion of administration legislation, "He certainly feels he's a spokesman for the administration and as you would expect he's going to speak favorably on that one (energy). I don't think you can fault us for that."

78-Year-Old Federal Judge Rules Utah Court

By ROGER BENNETT
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — In nearly three decades as a federal judge in Utah, Willis W. Ritter has tilted at foes ranging from noisy elevators to the U.S. Senate.
 At 78 he is the nation's oldest chief judge of a federal district court — a job his critics are determined to take away from him, and a job he is fighting just as hard to keep.
 Ritter, who financed his education by working as a hard rock miner, was appointed to the bench in 1949 by President Truman and narrowly won confirmation in a bitter, yearlong Senate battle over his qualifications.
 Not long after that, Ritter was annoyed by a noisy elevator in the post office downstairs from his courtroom and ordered the lift stopped while court was in session. Mailmen complained they couldn't get the mail out, so Ritter arrested 25 of them and threatened to arrest "the entire post office department, if necessary."
 The elevator was quieted.
 Another time, Ritter freed 29 Utah State Prison inmates because state lawyers failed to show up on time for a hearing.
 And when a group of Indians sued the government, he awarded them nearly twice as much in damages as they had asked. The award was overturned.

 He also threw Salt Lake City streets into turmoil for two days by ordering police to stop issuing parking tickets until a suit on the constitutionality of ticketing was resolved. That order was reversed, too, but not before sidewalks, driveways and even fire lanes were clogged with parked cars.
 Crotchety and often rude on the bench, Ritter wastes no time on unprepared or incompetent lawyers who are often embarrassed by a terse "shut up and sit down." Reporters turn notebook pages in his courtroom with exaggerated care to avoid making noise.
 Ritter's supporters call him a champion of civil rights, Indians and young first offenders; a brilliant jurist who will not tolerate pettiness, stalling or incompetence.
 His critics say he is biased and downright unfair. Recently, the attacks have increased. He is now besieged by Congress, the legal profession, the Justice Department, the state of Utah and the press.
 The Justice Department, in an unprecedented move, asked the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals last month to bar Ritter from hearing any cases involving the federal government, charging he is biased against government lawyers.

 "He has become a law unto himself," said the 1,080-page petition. "He invents and follows his own rules."
 The state attorney general's office filed a similar petition regarding its own attorneys and the state bar association wants Congress to repeal a "granddaddy clause" in a retirement law permitting Ritter to serve as chief judge beyond age 70. When the law was passed, it covered 32 judges. Ritter is the only one left.
 And the state congressional delegation has got the House Judiciary Committee to consider creating a third federal judgeship in the state. That would cost Ritter his administrative stewardship of the court since the "granddaddy clause" does not apply to districts with more than two judges.
 Ritter's response last week was a sharp letter to the committee demanding the opportunity to tell his side of the story. He accused the Mormon Church of conducting a religious vendetta against him and said the proposal smacks of "Malice, Mormonism, McCarthy-Nixon dirty tricks and conspiracy."
 Earlier this year, Ritter filed an affidavit with the Supreme Court charging the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals — which almost routinely overturns his rulings — is biased against him.

 Ritter's most celebrated loss to that court came in January in the case of convicted killer Gary Gilmore. Opponents of capital punishment won a midnight stay of execution from Ritter hours before
West German Freed On $50,000 Bond
MIAMI (AP) — A West German businessman charged with attempting to export defense materials to Communist countries has been freed on $50,000 bond, according to federal officials.
 The U.S. marshal's office said Sunday that Carl Wieschenberg posted the surety bond after U.S. District Judge Joseph Eaton reduced his original bond from $500,000.
 Wieschenberg and John Heiser III of Highland Beach have been on trial since Oct. 18 on charges of failing to register as agents of a foreign country. Prosecutors have charged the two conspired to export navigational devices and a computer used in defense systems without U.S. authorization. The trial is expected to end this week.

Gilmore was to face the firing squad.
 Chief Judge David Lewis of the 10th Circuit and Utah Attorney General Robert Hansen flew to Denver, convened the court and reversed Ritter in time for Gilmore to be shot at sunrise.
 Ritter's opponents in Congress say his reversal rate alone is enough to remove him: 60 percent in civil cases, 40 percent in criminal cases and 76 percent in habeas corpus cases.
 Ritter also has had a stormy relationship with the press. He issued an order in 1969 banning artists from his court. He also forbade drawings made from memory outside his court to protect "the citizens of Utah ... for whom going through a battery of news and camera-men is akin to running the gauntlet in Indian War days."
 He recently extended the ban on cameras and tape recorders to the entire post office building where his court is located, and even to the sidewalk outside.

 The Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, United Press International and 11 newsmen recently asked the 10th Circuit to modify that ban to permit courtroom sketches and the use of electronic equipment in parts of the building having nothing to do with the court.
 The judge has refused all recent requests for interviews, but in 1974, when the state bar association voted to ask Congress to repeal the "granddaddy clause," he told UPI:
 "I'll tell you when I'm going to quit — when they take me off that bench feet first. I'm going to be around here for a long, long time. I am doing what I want to do and there is not a thing anyone can do about that."

Tobacco State Officials Upset With U.S. Report On Smoking

By DON KENDALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent government task force report on smoking is still drawing heat from tobacco state officials who see it as a move to undermine the industry.

Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., says some of the proposals in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare memorandum "are even more alarming" than news stories have indicated. The senator's state is the leading producer of burley tobacco.

Huddleston's remarks were in a letter to HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who has criticized federal price supports for tobacco farmers and pro-smoking advertising practices.

The Kentucky senator said he was particularly upset over suggestions that price supports be eliminated and efforts made to re-educate tobacco farmers to produce other crops and put some small producers under welfare programs.

"I think that this is an absurd suggestion," Huddleston told Califano. "Most of these farmers use tobacco as their only cash crop and it would not be feasible for them to switch to other crops and still receive the same return. What is actually being suggested here is that tobacco farmers be placed on welfare."

The HEW memorandum also suggested that the department urge and support individuals to bring lawsuits against tobacco companies for injuries suffered as the result of smoking.

"It is inconceivable to me that the federal government would seriously consider authorizing legal action aimed at bringing an industry to its knees economically," Huddleston said.

Instead of undertaking a "massive public relations, legal and regulatory campaign," HEW should consider what Huddleston called "a massive new crash program" to eliminate "alleged smoking hazards."

Califano, who quit a three-pack-a-day smoking habit two years ago, recently said that the government has a clear obligation to counter what he termed the seductive advertising claims of the cigarette and liquor industries.

Last June Califano questioned the wisdom of federal tobacco price supports offered by the Agriculture Department.

Palestinians Given Israeli Ultimatum

A-J News Services
JERUSALEM — Defense Minister Ezer Weizman says if the Palestinians in southern Lebanon continue to shell northern Israel, the Israeli Army will act "swiftly and fundamentally" to restore peace. Radio Israel reported today. Weizman said Israel will not confine itself to returning the artillery fire, according to the broadcast. The defense minister made his threat after two days of cross-border artillery exchanges in which three persons in Lebanon and two Israelis were reported killed, and 18 on the Lebanese side were reported wounded. The fighting was accompanied by hard-line statements from both Palestinian and Israeli leaders on Middle East peace efforts. PLO chief Yasser Arafat vowed "fighting until victory." The fighting began with a rocket attack early Sunday on the northern Israeli town of Nahariya, located on the Mediterranean a few miles from the Lebanese border. Two men were killed. Israeli military sources said the attack apparently was launched by Palestinian guerrillas of the so-called rejection front, which opposes any accommodation with the Jewish state. In retaliation, Israeli gunners pounded guerrilla positions across the Lebanese border in a cannonade ordered by Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, who visited the families of Shmuel Mintz, 33, and Louis Levi, 45, who were killed by shrapnel.

"Israel will settle the accounts with those who did this deed," he said. "But there is no guarantee it will not happen again." A Lebanese reporter in southern Lebanon said fighting escalated around the Palestinian-held town of Nabatiyah as guerrillas traded fire with Lebanese rightists backed by Israeli gunners across the border. Three persons, including a 12-year-old girl, were reported killed.

The fighting was the first major outbreak of violence since Sept. 26, when a U.S.-mediated cease-fire took effect in an attempt to halt fighting between Israeli-backed Christian rightists and Syrian-backed Palestinians.

In a separate incident, an Israeli naval craft sank a Lebanese fishing boat that opened fire when ordered to leave border waters, a military spokesman said. In Jerusalem, the Israeli cabinet endorsed Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan's rejection of a reported call by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for a working group to prepare a detailed agenda for a Geneva Middle East peace conference.

"Israel and the United States agreed on a working paper to renew the Geneva conference," government sources quoted Dayan as telling the cabinet. "If the president wants to deal with the working paper or reject it, he can do so," Dayan said. "There is no need to make the chances of reconvening Geneva (the Geneva talks) more difficult by erecting new institutions." Syria has proposed a plan, approved by top Palestine Liberation Organization leaders in late July, to ease the tensions in the Israeli-Lebanese border area by withdrawing Palestinian guerrillas from the immediate border.

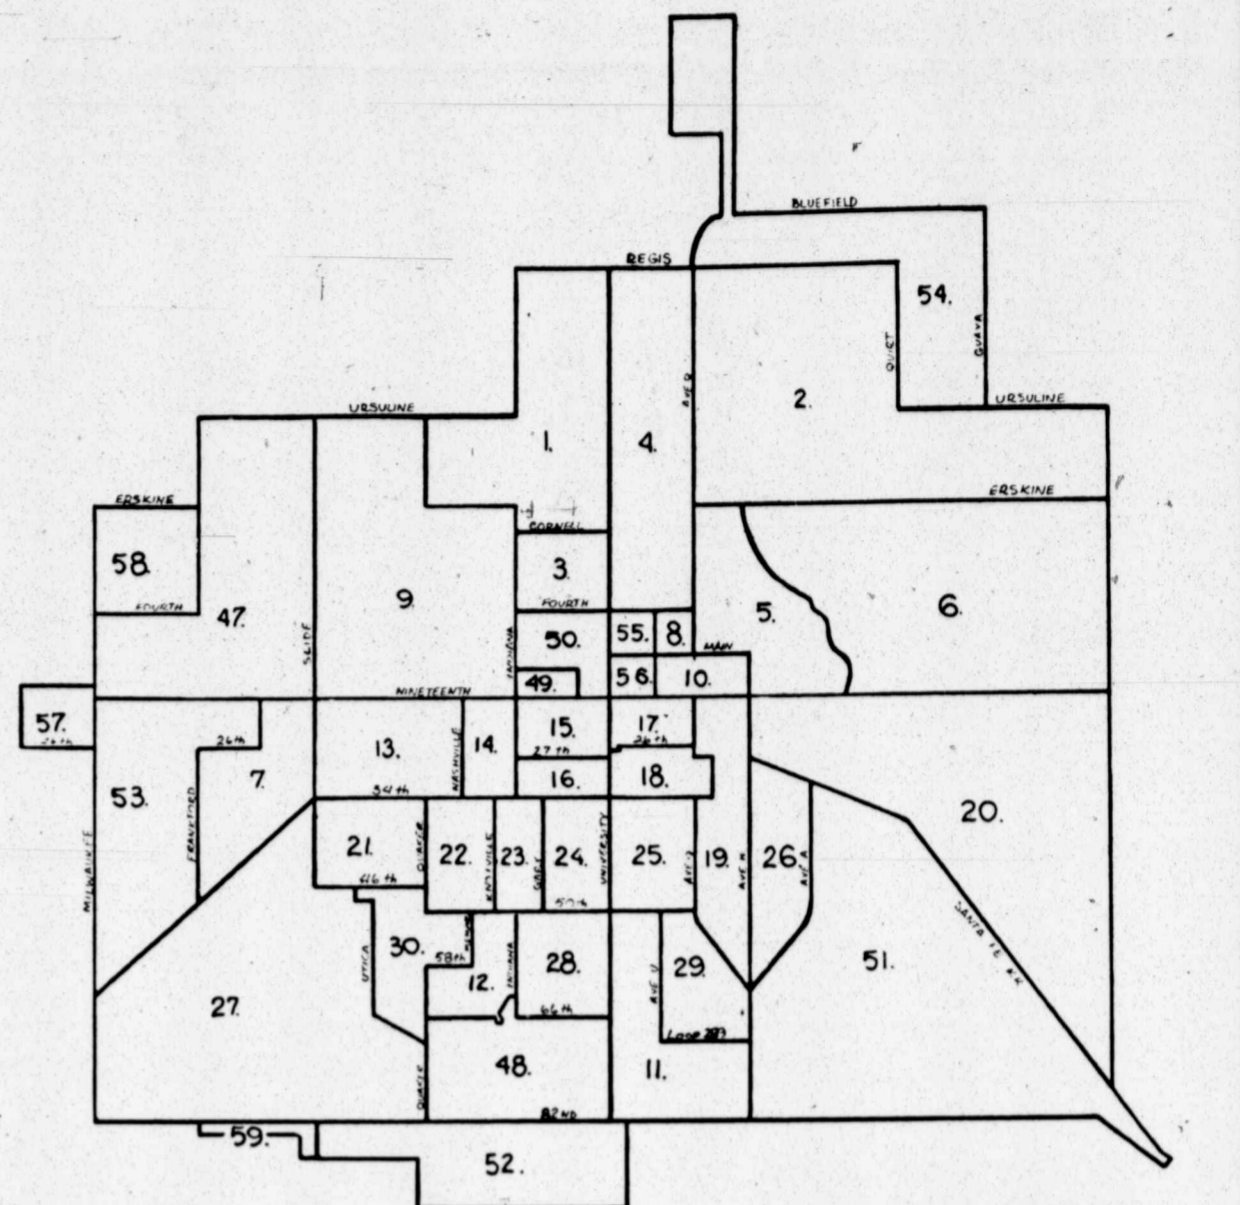

The rightists have insisted all guerrillas must unilaterally withdraw to behind the Litani River, which runs nine miles north of the frontier.

Arafat, who previously rejected the rightist call, reiterated his stance in particular militant language in an address to 150 guerrilla trainees in the southern port city of Sidon. "I say in the name of the Arab nation there will be no withdrawal (beyond the Litani)," Arafat said. "I say no withdrawal but fighting, fighting until victory."

College president Kenn Opperman said an inspection of some road repair work along the reservoir was made last week but the check "had nothing to do with checking to see whether or not there was fault in the dam, but whether contracted work had been accomplished."

Opperman said the only previous problem in his four years in office occurred about a year ago, when water spilled over the dam and caused some $100,000 damage. The college, established in 1907, had about 450 students living on campus. Another 100 commuted to classes. Rescue workers said bodies had been washed as far as five miles downstream of the falls. Officials said the campus community was left without water, electricity and natural gas service. Many residents from nearby Toccoa brought jugs of water to the area.

Travelers' warnings were issued for those fog-pervaded regions. Occasional snow and snow showers hampered driving conditions above 7,000 feet in the north and south central mountains of New Mexico early today, prompting official travel warnings there. An upper-level storm system in West-Central New Mexico was blamed for the erratic South Plains weather and New Mexico chill. Skies were partly cloudy throughout much of the western half of Texas early today, but East Texans saw clear skies this morning. By the time the Lubbock workday was well underway, however, the city had reached a relatively mild 50 degrees. Readings across the state ranged between the 40s in the Panhandle and the upper 60s in the Rio Grande Valley. Today's high in Lubbock should fall only about eight degrees short of Sunday's 78-degree top reading, with the lows landing in the upper 30s tonight. Forecasts called for mid-60 temperatures Tuesday and top readings of 50-60 Wednesday. Lubbock's brief encounter with moisture should net "a half-inch or less," ac-

Polling Places

Here is a list of City of Lubbock polling places for the Texas constitutional amendments election Tuesday. Lubbock County residents living outside the city limits should consult their voter registration cards to find out the number of the precinct in which they live. Then they should look beside that number on the list below to find out where to vote.

Persons residing inside the city can do the same thing — consult their voter registration cards and the polling place list. Or they can look on the map above, locate where they live, check to see what precinct number they are in, and then consult the polling place list for the balloting site.

Persons having any questions about where they should vote should call the county clerk's office.

A number of small precincts have been combined with larger ones for voting Tuesday.

Texans To Vote On Amendments

any magistrate, may deny bail. Another new provision requires a bail denial order to be entered within seven days after an accused person is jailed. As in existing law, the order must be set aside if the accused is not brought to trial within 60 days after arrest, but not if the defendant has asked for a trial delay.

The Court of Criminal Appeals is directed to give preference to bail denial appeals.

The proposition is supported by Texas District and County Attorneys Association. It is opposed by the Criminal Defense Lawyers Association and the Texas Civil Liberties Union. If passed, the civil liberties group plans to test the amendment's constitutionality in court.

Supporters say the provision will help keep criminals off the streets. They maintain it is a common occurrence for someone to commit a felony while out on bail after indictment for another felony.

The amendment has been the object of increased attention in Lubbock since charges were pressed last week in the kidnapping-murder case of 6-year-old Johnny Turner Jr.

The man charged in that case was indicted last May for aggravated sexual abuse of a child and was free on bond when he was arrested in connection with the Turner boy's abduction.

Supporters say the new law carries adequate provisions to protect individuals' rights.

Opponents disagree. They call bail denial "preventive detention" — the jailing of a person, who is supposed to be presumed innocent until proven guilty, on the basis of a prediction that if not jailed, he may be a danger to society.

They say it will have little impact on bail denials or the crime rate, pointing out that current bail denial provisions are rarely used since prosecutors hardly ever have cases ready for trial within 60 days, and since prosecutors can get bail set so high defendants are unable to pay it and thus are kept in jail.

Proponents of the EFT system say it will save consumers time and money through avoidance of check verification procedures and elimination of bad checks, whose costs merchants and banks pass on in prices of goods and services.

The devices could be as simple as automatic teller machines now in use at some banks, or as sophisticated as terminals which would electronically transfer funds from a purchaser's to a merchant's account through codes punched in when a person is at a store trying to buy an item.

Opponents worry about adequate security from computer theft and storing of private financial information in electronic memory banks.

They also have suggested that doing away with cancelled checks will hamper consumers' ability to verify bank accounts and commercial payments. Proponents answer that banks will have printouts of funds transfers and that merchants and consumers can have detailed receipts of purchases and funds transfers for use as "cancelled checks."

Branch banking enters the picture, too. The Texas constitution prohibits branch banks, and the constitutional amendment is necessary because the EFTs would be located away from bank sites.

Opponents maintain such things as automatic teller machines amount to little branch banks.

They say small independent banks will be hurt by the system. On the other hand, proponents say the devices can be shared by all banks — large and small alike.

liability figure would exceed $1 billion.

In another action today, the Supreme Court refused to consider expanding the scope of a controversial 1976 decision that closed the doors to federal courts for many state prisoners.

The court turned down an Ohio prosecutor's appeal of a new trial ordered for a convicted rapist and murderer, who led police to the body of his 9-year-old victim.

The justices were asked to rule that state prisoners who claim they were denied the right to legal counsel or the right not to incriminate themselves are not entitled to go to federal courts after receiving "an opportunity for full and fair hearings" in state courts.

Last year, the court ruled that state prisoners who receive "full and fair" chances in state courts to appeal convictions on claims of impermissibly gained evidence do not have a right, if unsuccessful, to go into federal courts.

That decision, in a case entitled Stone vs. Powell, was heatedly attacked by civil libertarians, who accused the court of callous disregard for individual rights. The ruling affected those prisoners whose claims centered on the Constitution's 4th Amendment safeguards against unreasonable searches.

es and businesses in the restoration effort.

Alderson urged the board also to consider the cause of neighborhood deterioration in its program. If the group can determine the source of the problem, he explained, corrective steps could be taken to prevent it from happening again.

Board endorsement of a neighborhood program alone could help reverse a downward trend, Bertram said. If lending institutions are aware of board support of a particular area's renovation work, he explained, they may be more willing to help finance such a program.

Absentee landlords could be a stumbling block in neighborhood renovation, Bertram and Alderson agreed. Landlords often want to keep their property as rent houses and are unwilling to sell, Bertram said.

"It is a real problem to get landlords to fix up their property," Alderson agreed. "Owner-occupied houses are easier to work with."

U.S. Unemployment Cost In 'Trillions'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment in the United States will cost the economy trillions of dollars in output and potential tax revenues by the end of this century unless joblessness is sharply reduced, according to a new study.

The study, released Sunday by the Exploratory Project for Economic Alternatives, was highly critical of the nation's recent leaders for allegedly trying to explain high unemployment, rather than taking steps to reduce it.

"Our national debate today is focused on the sad question of how high an unemployment rate we must accept, rather than on how low a rate we could achieve were we to make it our priority," said the study.

The nation's jobless rate was 7 percent in October, virtually unchanged from April. The report said that not too many years ago a 2 percent rate was considered realistic.

In an attempt to assess the cost of high unemployment, the study said the nation could lose $6 trillion in potential economic output and $1.3 trillion in federal taxes in the next 25 years if the jobless rate averages 5.5 percent, instead of a hypothetical 2 percent.

That has been the average unemployment rate for most of the post-war period, the study said. If joblessness were to average 6.5 percent, the report added, the cost could be $7 trillion in the nation's potential gross national product and $1.5 trillion in taxes.

The study said that if the United States had succeeded in lowering unemployment to the levels achieved by most European nations in the past 20 years, output would have increased $3.6 trillion, with an additional $750 billion in tax money.

Floods Ravage Areas Of Dixie

broke above Toccoa Falls had been declared a high-hazard dam by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The hazard designation does not mean such dams are structurally unsafe, but that if they break, damage would be significant, a corps spokesman said.

The college constructed the dam in 1940 to provide the campus with water and electrical power. In recent years it has not been used for those purposes. The lake formed by the dam has been used as a recreation area.

Students and faculty members held a memorial service Sunday. One young woman prayed, "Help Rick to be found, Lord, dead or alive. Not knowing is hard."

Another young woman asked prayers for a friend whose husband and daughter were missing. She prayed, "Put your arms around her."

Rain had fallen intermittently in the Southeast and northern Georgia in particular since Wednesday. The National Weather Service reported three inches of rainfall in Athens, Ga., about 40 miles from Toccoa Falls, fell Saturday.

Nine other persons, six of them children, died in flood-related incidents in North Carolina over the weekend.

The heavy rainfall weakened the Toccoa Falls dam, sending tons of water from the 80-acre lake down the 186-foot Toccoa Falls and into the creek, which meanders through the campus area.

"There was this awful screaming and the ripping of metal," said Bill Stacy, 19, who lived in a mobile home with his parents, two brothers and a sister. "It is a miracle, but we all got out, and my parents helped hunt for the bodies later."

College president Kenn Opperman said an inspection of some road repair work along the reservoir was made last week but the check "had nothing to do with checking to see whether or not there was fault in the dam, but whether contracted work had been accomplished."

Opperman said the only previous problem in his four years in office occurred about a year ago, when water spilled over the dam and caused some $100,000 damage.

The college, established in 1907, had about 450 students living on campus. Another 100 commuted to classes.

Rescue workers said bodies had been washed as far as five miles downstream of the falls. Officials said the campus community was left without water, electricity and natural gas service. Many residents from nearby Toccoa brought jugs of water to the area.

Travelers In Southwest Area Warned Of Rain, Snow, Sleet

A-J News Services

Travel warnings went up in sections of the Southwest today, as weathermen reported sleet and rain in far West Texas and the possibility of snow in the mountains of New Mexico.

A dreary cloud cover — bearing a 70 percent chance for rainfall today — lingered over Lubbock this morning, and forecasters said chances for showers or thunderstorms will continue through Tuesday.

Rainfall amounts, however, are expected to be generally light, causing only a brief interruption to the area's cotton harvest activity.

Chances for moisture will decline to 40 percent tonight and drop to a scant 20 percent on Tuesday.

South Plains weather, with its 15-20 mph southerly winds this morning, was mild by some standards.

High, gusty winds and rain mixed with sleet prompted the National Weather Service to issue a warning for the Sierra Blanca area of far West Texas.

Fog invaded the Houston area and a region from Dallas-Fort Worth south to Port Arthur, where forecasters warned that visibility could drop to near zero.

Judge Cuts Testimony

AMARILLO (AP) — Some of the startling testimony of a defense witness in the T. Cullen Davis capital murder trial will not be presented to the jury, State District Court Judge George Dowlen ruled today.

Sandy Myers, 27, testified Saturday that Davis' estranged wife Priscilla had hinted at trouble just before Stan Farr was shot to death. Mrs. Myers said that earlier Mrs. Davis said, "I've got to get rid of Stan."

Dowlen told prosecution and defense lawyers of his ruling this morning before the trial was resumed.

The trial, which was scheduled to reconvene at 9 a.m., had not begun by mid-morning.

The material that the judge will not allow before the jury includes threats allegedly made by W. T. Ruffner against Farr and Mrs. Davis. Dowlen also said the jury would not hear Mrs. Myers' testimony about Mrs. Davis wanting to get rid of Farr.

Davis, whose pale, chiseled features betray little emotion, is the estranged, millionaire husband of Mrs. Davis and is on trial here in connection with the Aug. 2, 1976, pistol-slaying of Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Miss Wilborn and Farr, Mrs. Davis' live-in boyfriend at the time, were gunned down in a bloodbath that left Mrs. Davis critically wounded along with Gus Gavrel, 22, a friend of the family.

Mrs. Davis has claimed Davis shot her, Farr and Gavrel just as they arrived at the $6 million Fort Worth mansion shortly after midnight.

Davis and his girlfriend, Karen Master, have claimed Davis was asleep at Mrs. Master's home at the time of the killings.

Last week's testimony included Ruffner, Malcolm McDaniel, Valerie Faulkner, Becky Ferguson and Mrs. Myers, all of whom painted a scene of drug use and free-wheeling sex as part of Mrs. Davis' life-style.

Dowlen allowed Mrs. Myers on Saturday to tell the jury that Mrs. Davis had told her shortly before Farr's death that "something heavy is coming down" but he withheld a ruling as to whether she could relate before the jury that Mrs. Davis had talked of getting "rid of" Farr, or that Ruffner had once told her, "I'm going to get that tall —"

Ruffner and Farr were in-tandem live-in boyfriends at the Davis mansion after the Davis couple separated.

Chief defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes of Houston has carefully presented evidence he hopes will convince the jury that one of Mrs. Davis' enemies, rather than her husband, killed the child.

The trial, now running into its fifth month, was moved here from Fort Worth when attorneys were unable to seat a jury.

Change In Working Hours Stirs Furor At FCC

By WALTER R. MEARS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a tempest brewing in one of the teapots of the bureaucracy, and it is worth noting for what it says about the government President Carter is trying to reorganize.

The new boss of the Federal Communications Commission has decided that the agency should be open until 5:30 p.m. each day, so that its hours will coincide at least roughly with those of the people who have business there.

That hardly seemed revolutionary to FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris, who figured there should be people around to answer the telephone after 4:30 in the afternoon.

Effective on Nov. 14, there will be. But not without a hassle, since that means a change in working hours for many of the 1,500 people who work at the commission.

After days of grumbling, a delegation from the Employee Representation Board spent 90 minutes with Ferris last week complaining about the change. They told him an employee survey showed overwhelming opposition to the shift in working hours.

He told them the agency is supposed to serve the public, even if it is inconvenient.

As Ferris put it in a thoroughly bureaucratic memo, he wants FCC hours "to interface with the business, professional and consumer communities we are charged by law to work with, and thus to provide better services to them ..."

Analysis

In other words, he figures there ought to be somebody around to take calls and transact business after 4:30 in the afternoon. Under the current schedule, there's no answer at the FCC switchboard after that hour.

There are employee complaints that the change will foul up carpools, make it harder to find parking places and disrupt child care arrangements. One woman complained she'd miss her favorite television program if she had to work until 5:30.

Actually, she may be able to tune in anyway. FCC employees have an hour's leeway on starting times, under a flexible time arrangement. So a good many of them will be able to stick to the 8-4:30 timetable if they want, and if their supervisors approve. And Ferris has told his section chiefs that they should make adjustments wherever they can to accommodate the needs of the employees.

Ferris doesn't set the hours alone; the commission does that. But after 13 years as a top aide to Senate and then House Democratic leaders, he knows enough to count votes in advance. He got approval from a commission majority before he ordered the change.

He's still surprised at all the fuss over what seemed to him a logical move. "Our own convenience isn't our primary reason for being here," he says.

And that gets to the point. No reorganization of agencies is going to end public disenchantment with government. If the new office is no more responsive than the old ones, the citizens who have to deal with it will be no less frustrated than they are now.

Politicians are always talking about responsive government, and the officials they appoint echo that promise. But if the promise is to be kept, it has to be done by people far down the line, in rank and in salary.

Carter can't make the government responsive just by saying so. Nor can Ferris do so at the FCC by keeping the place open an hour later. But it is a start.

"I said certain things over and over, day after day, month after month," Carter wrote in a compilation of his campaign speeches. "That government can be both competent and compassionate ... That we could have, and must have, a government as good as its people."

Perhaps he can deliver on that pledge, but there won't be any way for the people to know about it unless they can get somebody to answer the telephone.

Steelworkers May Vote On Plan

VIRGINIA, Minn. (AP) — Striking steelworkers in Minnesota and Upper Michigan may vote this week on a proposal which could solve the key issue of incentive pay, Lloyd McBride, president of the United Steelworkers of America, says.

McBride, who has endorsed the industry proposal, made the announcement here Sunday to a steelworkers rally which drew about 2,500 people. The rally followed a peaceful march through the city's streets.

The union's negotiating committees will meet today to study the proposal. The offer could be passed on to the locals, with or without an endorsement, for their vote. It could be rejected entirely.

Although full details will be given to the locals later, McBride said, the incentive pay proposal would give iron ore miners two-thirds parity with their steel mill counterparts. The strikers have been seeking full parity.

The incentive pay issue has bogged down negotiations in the three-month-old strike, with the industry insisting it is not a legitimate local issue and the union equally adamant that it is.

An experimental negotiating agreement included in the national steel industry contract prohibits strikes on nationally negotiated issues, but the union retains the right to walk out over local issues.

McBride said in his talks with high-level industry negotiators, it became increasingly obvious that no progress would be made until the incentive pay issue was resolved.

McBride said he asked the industry representatives to come up with an offer on incentive pay before the arrangements were completed.

Friday, after several weeks of negotiations, the industry made an offer that McBride felt he could endorse. Although the proposal does not fully meet the union's demands, he said, it represents a substantial improvement and, more importantly, the establishment of the incentive pay program in the area of ore mining.

"They have come a long way toward meeting our proposal," McBride said.

Trial Puts Focus On Midwifery

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Midwifery, an accepted practice among the predominantly Mexican-American population of South Texas, takes the legal center stage this week when a Brownsville pharmacist-midwife goes on trial on injury to a child charges.

The trial of Miguel Orihuela was to begin today before State District Judge Darrell Hester, who granted a change of venue from Brownsville to this South Texas coastal city.

"We're just trying to feel the pulse — test the waters — of public opinion of midwifery," said Cameron County Assistant District Attorney Joe K. Hendley. "And I'm very relieved we got a change of venue."

The 44-year-old Orihuela was arrested June 24, six days after the birth of Juan Martinez Valenciano, and charged with injury to a child.

A Cameron County grand jury issued a July 19 indictment that alleged Orihuela grasped the head of the infant with an unknown instrument during delivery and "did then and there mash the head of said child."

The child remained in the hospital for about three weeks and is now at home with his parents. Although officials say the shape of the infant's head appears normal, the prosecuting attorney said he had been told by attending doctors that the child may have suffered brain damage.

The defense contends, however, that Orihuela followed accepted midwifery procedures in the delivery of the child and did nothing to cause injury.

If convicted, Orihuela faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Orihuela's initial arrest led to an almost daily barrage of charges against him from the Cameron County district attorney's office.

He also has been arraigned on charges of delivery of dangerous drugs, practicing medicine without a license and destroying the life of an unborn child. Orihuela has been held in the Cameron County jail on bonds totalling $197,000.

About 35 persons staged a march outside of the jail shortly after Orihuela's arrest, protesting the arrest of the midwife.

Orihuela's wife, Linda, 29, has also been charged with practicing the art of healing and possession of controlled substances after police officers confiscated "half a trash can full" of federally controlled substances at the Orihuela residence.

It was during a similar raid on the Orihuela pharmacy in June that officers made the grisly discovery of three human fetuses floating in pickle jars in a refrigerator.

License Issuance Opens In January

AUSTIN (AP) — Year-round motor vehicle registration for Texans begins Jan. 1.

Registrations will be issued on a monthly expiration basis, instead of having some 11 million all expire at midnight April 1 each year.

Immediately after Christmas, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation said, it will mail new registration application forms to vehicle owners.

Another first, the department said, will be the appearance of two validation stickers on the multi-year license plates, which came out in 1975. The new stickers will represent month of expiration and year of expiration for the vehicle.

League Opposes Quotas, PLO

Mark Briskman is one Yankee who doesn't appear too eager to go home.

A transplanted New Yorker, Briskman heads up the Dallas regional office of the Anti-Defamation League (ADL), a national organization founded 63 years ago to combat anti-Semitism.

Today the 5,000-member group includes persons of all religious faiths and works, as Briskman said, "to combat all prejudice and promote inter-faith and inter-group relations."

After 18 months in the Lone Star state, Briskman calls Texas "more progressive than other places in the country who think they're so progressive."

"I like it here," he adds simply.

The ADL executive visited Lubbock Sunday and said in an interview with The Avalanche-Journal his group now finds itself on the opposite side of the fence from most black and women's right groups over the Allen Bakke case now before the Supreme Court.

Bakke, a California medical student, contends he was denied admission to the University of California at Davis Medical School solely because he was white.

Briskman said the ADL filed the major friend of the court brief in support of the Bakke position, even though many minority groups see a Supreme Court ruling in Bakke's favor as a blow for affirmative action or minority recruitment programs.

"We are against quotas. We believe a person should be judged on merit and not on race. But this doesn't mean society should not be responsible in insuring minorities get a bigger piece of the action," Briskman said.

"Affirmative action was not set up as a quota system. We think minorities ought to be aggressively sought and recruited by schools and businesses, but we don't support the use of quotas."

One of the main reasons for the ADL's stand, Briskman said, stems from the common usage of the quota system to keep Jews out of many universities. Several medical schools used quotas to keep Jews out until as recently as the 1960s, he said.

"Jews see quotas as a means of keeping them out, while other minorities see quotas as a means of getting in. The issue is a heart-breaker for us, but the use of quotas to keep Jews out is too recent in our memories to us to support its use."

Briskman added he was afraid that if the Supreme Court did rule in Bakke's favor, it would lead to more quotas.

Group To Hear Tech Museum Director

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a museum there is the challenge to put up exhibits in such a way, to evolve programs in such a way as to "gently inspire" response in others to understand, to appreciate and to learn.

Dr. Leslie C. Drew, who will be heading efforts to do just that at The Museum of Texas Tech University, today will be meeting the association that supports the museum and its programs.

The new director, who began his duties Nov. 1, will be speaker for the 48th annual meeting of the West Texas Museum Association at 7 p.m. in the museum.

Action awards will be presented to three persons or organizations having made significant contributions to the cultural environment of the Southern High Plains.

New officers and trustees named today will take office in January.

Drew, with a background in museum work dating back to his elementary school days, came to Lubbock from the Museum of the Rockies in Bozeman, Mont., mainly, he explained, because he felt it was time to apply all his museum experience in one with deep roots.

In Lubbock — where community, university and museum enrich each other — he will not have to explain a museum to those already deeply involved in the effort.

He will, instead, be helping guide a varied effort toward varied goals in the museum's multiple roles in research, teaching and interpretation.

The museum here has a lot to offer its many audiences, he stressed, and a lot of resources, human as well as financial.

"The Museum itself is about how people cope in arid and semi-arid lands. The Ranching Heritage Center shows how it was done."

Although there are a number of outdoor museums dedicated to regions around the country, the outdoor ranch museum is given over to an activity, Drew added.

Visitors on the site look at the structures and try to imagine themselves working in the buildings, standing the rigors of the environment and economic conditions and still forging ahead.

"It puts ranching into a great perspective," Drew said of the center.

Drew became interested in museums through association with a museum director who came to his school regularly with lantern slide programs.

Helping with the setup of the program led Drew to respond to a request for Saturday help at the museum.

At first, the help consisted of "that good old supportive stuff, sweeping floors and cleaning restrooms," but eventually it led to his going into the field to collect specimens.

Since that early inspiration, Drew, a biologist with a specialty in spiders, has collected specimens in many areas for museums at Michigan State University and the Peabody Museum at Yale University, as well as for the Museum of the Rockies.

He also has been an assistant professor of entomology and natural sciences.

The Drew family will arrive Thanksgiving week. It includes Mrs. Drew, an elementary school teacher; Joe, 18, a freshman chemical engineering major at Montana State; Bill, 16, and Elizabeth, 14.

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K83 ♠6 ♦KJ8742 ♠AQ5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—This is a difficult problem. You want to be in game—even slam can't be ruled out—but three no trump is unlikely to be the right contract, if partner has only one stopper in hearts. We would suggest some jump bid in a minor, either three clubs or three diamonds. Despite the fact that your suit is not quite up to the standard for a jump rebid, we prefer the latter since it is more descriptive of your holding.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K106 ♠KQJ8 ♦76432 ♠9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Pass. This hand is going nowhere once partner could not rebid one heart over your one diamond response. A two heart bid by you would be a reverse—forcing to game—and would only serve to get you too high.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J95 ♠7 ♦KQ103 ♦K9842
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
4 ♦ Pass Pass 4 NT
Pass 5 ♦ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Whatever you do, don't double. You know for sure that the opponents are in their worst spot. If you double, you will certainly drive them into hearts. Pass quietly and hope that they stay where they are. Undertricks at 100 apiece are not to be sneered at.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A65 ♠J87 ♦AKQJ62 ♠A
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♦
Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Bid three diamonds. You doubled originally because your hand was too strong for any other action. Actually your hand is better than it needs to be, so you should jump in diamonds—two diamonds would show a somewhat weaker hand. If that coaxes a spade rebid from partner, we would go on to game in his suit.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K6 ♠A962 ♦AQ7 ♠AJ107
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1 ♦ Dble.
Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—You are decidedly stronger than minimum, so you must take another bid to advise partner of this. The choice lies between two no trump and three clubs. With only one stopper in the enemy suit and such good support for partner, we prefer the club raise.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK643 ♠KJ83 ♦K93 ♠7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Dble.
Pass 2 ♠ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Double. This is not a sure thing, but since partner is known to have some values and shortness in spades, defensive prospects are particularly bright, especially with the trumps stacked against declarer. Don't worry about the opponents running to three clubs—it is unlikely that they can make nine tricks anywhere and partner should have quite a few clubs.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQJ9765 ♠83 ♦952 ♠6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. A minor suit bid by partner would have been forcing, but four hearts is not. Don't make the mistake of taking out to four spades—you told your story with your first bid. Actually, you have a rather good hand for your partner—two trumps and a singleton.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AKQ83 ♠A9 ♦AJ6 ♠873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Since our hand is likely to produce seven tricks for partner, our vote goes to three no trump. Two no trump would be something of an underbid. The other choice is three spades, but the drawback of that action is that it suggests a rather more unbalanced hand with a longer spade suit.

At Wit's End...

When it comes to homework, educators have heard every excuse in the book. "My mother wrangled the garbage in it."

"I put it in the family Bible to hold my place and forgot to take it out."
"My little brother peed on it."

The excuses often showed more imagination than the assignments turned in and invariably involved a third party who was totally responsible for their deficiency.

This fall, 850,000 women over 35 are returning to the classrooms as students. They're not entering the academic world empty-handed. Thanks to their children, they have a couple of years' supply of excuses. Only a few words have to be changed to get them off the hook.

"I was going to do my homework last night, but my husband put me to bed early."
"My paper was typed neatly and ready to turn in when my brother spilled his martini all over it at the breakfast table."

"I had every intention of going to the library, but I couldn't find my car keys."
"My children were hanging on the phone all night and I couldn't call my best friend and get the assignment."

"I didn't feel well. I went into false labor 10 months early."
"I picked the same topic every other person in the class picked. The Evolution of Storm Doors in the Ming Dynasty... and all the books were out."

"Our dog is being paper trained, you may have noticed."
"I was absent yesterday because I was waiting for the washer repairman and didn't know you had made an assignment."

"Do you think just because this assignment is done in yellow crayon, my kids did it for me?"
"My husband wrapped his gum in it."
As the child of one of my best friends told his Mother at breakfast one morning, "You just tell your teacher we got home late last night and we felt your sleep was more important to your health than that stupid assignment."
That's easy for him to say. He's not a 50-year-old second-semester Freshman.

The Slim Gourmet

If you can't stand the calories in a conventional pumpkin pie, how about an unconventional pumpkin pie? A dessert that's very untraditional about calories, too! Today we've got three for you to try.

Our first is a frozen mousse, simply a blend of cooked or canned pumpkin with frozen vanilla yogurt, spiked with pumpkin pie spice — ready-to-use or mix your own 1 tsp ground cinnamon plus a 1/4 tsp each of ginger and nutmeg. You can freeze the mousse in parfait glasses, or spread the mixture in a pie pan and cut it in frozen wedges to serve. Or combine two great dessert traditions with out de-calorized pumpkin meringue pie. Or pumpkin cheesecake pie... very protein-rich.

PUMPKIN YOGURT MARBLED MOUSSE
1 qt low-fat frozen vanilla yogurt
1 1/2 cups cooked or canned unsweetened pumpkin (not pie filling)
1/2 cup skim milk
1 1/2 tsp pumpkin pie spice
optional: 3 tsp brown sugar, honey or equivalent no-calorie sweetener 8 gingersnaps or cinnamon graham crackers, crushed into crumbs

Transfer frozen yogurt from freezer to refrigerator until it's softened slightly, like soft-serve frozen custard or yogurt.
Combine pumpkin, milk, spices and sweetener together in a large bowl. Add soft frozen yogurt and gently fold together until marbled. Spoon into 10 parfait glasses and sprinkle with crumbs. Cover and freeze solid. (Allow to soften briefly at room temperature before serving.)
Or, pie into a solid pie pan (no holes in the bottom). Sprinkle the top with crumbs, cover and freeze. Soften before cutting into wedges. Makes 10 servings, about 85 calories each. (Brown sugar or honey adds about 15 calories per serving.)

pastry for 9-inch pie
3 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups cooked or canned unsweetened pumpkin
1/3 cup honey (or no-cal sweetener to equal 1/2 cup sugar)
13-oz. can evaporated skim milk
1 1/2 tsp pumpkin pie spice
pinch of salt
4 tsp sugar
Prepare pastry and line a nine-inch nonstick piepan. Preheat oven to 475 degrees.

Separate egg whites into a non-metallic electric mixer bowl and set aside.
Put the yolks in blender container or in another mixing bowl. Add pumpkin, honey or sweetener, canned milk, spices and salt to the egg yolks. Blend or beat until smooth. Pour into pie shell. Bake in hot oven 10 minutes. Lower heat to 350 degrees and bake 50 to 60 minutes more, until set. Remove from oven and cool.
Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Beat in the sugar one tsp at a time, until stiff. Pile on top of cooled pie. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 12 to 13 minutes. Chill before serving. Serves about 10, about 200 calories each. (No-cal sweetener reduces each serving by about 30 calories.)

BLENDER-EASY PUMPKIN CHEESE PIE
8-inch ready-to-fill graham cracker pie shell
1 1/2 cups low-fat creamed large-curd cottage cheese
3 eggs
1 tsp rum flavoring or vanilla
1 1/2 tsp pumpkin pie spice
pinch of salt
5 tsp brown sugar
Optional: brown or white sugar substitute equal to 4 tsp sugar if more sweetness is desired. Unwrap packaged pie shell. Combine remaining ingredients in covered blender. Blend on high speed until very smooth. Pour into pie shell. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven one hour or more, until set. Chill several hours before serving. Serves eight, under 175 calories each.

Four 'Untraditional' Pumpkin Recipes Given

Now that Halloween is over and Thanksgiving is but a few days away the pumpkin is an ever popular item in the kitchen.

The big, bright orange vegetable has many uses besides the traditional Thanksgiving pumpkin pie. After cleaning the seed, it can be washed, roasted and salted for a snack-time treat for the entire family.

For those with an eye for the unusual here are four out-of-the-ordinary recipes for cookies, ice cream, fluff pudding and almond bread, all utilizing that versatile vegetable.

fy. Beat in egg, orange and vanilla extracts. Stir in pumpkin. Add flour, baking powder, salt and pumpkin pie spice. Beat until well mixed. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto greased baking sheet. Place a pecan half on top of each cookie. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, until edges just begin to brown. Makes about 4 dozen.

If low sodium baking powder and salt substitute are used, there are 1.6 mg. sodium per cookie. With regular baking powder and salt, 45.7 mg.

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM

1 qt. or 4 (1/2-pint) cartons heavy (whipping) cream
1/3 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
3 cups canned or pureed fresh-cooked pumpkin, chilled
1/2 cup sugar
2 tsp. lemon juice
2 tsp. pumpkin pie spice
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt (plain, iodized, or salt substitute)
Ice (small cubes or crushed)
Ice Cream & Freezing salt
Whip half the cream just until softly mounded. Add remaining cream, 1/3 cup sugar and vanilla; whip until well combined. Fold in pumpkin, 1/2 cup sugar, lemon juice, pumpkin pie spice, cinnamon and salt. Chill in refrigerator.

For churned ice cream: Place ice cream container in churn. Pack churn about 1/4 full of ice. Then layer salt and ice until churn is almost full. Pour cream mixture into ice cream container. Set dasher in place. Put cover and motor in place, if electric. Crank until almost frozen; follow directions for individual ice cream maker. Keep churn well packed with ice and salt. When dasher will not turn any more, remove from ice cream container. Make sure no salt or water gets into the ice cream container. Scrape ice cream off dasher and return ice cream to container. Cover container. Pack churn completely full with salt and ice; cover and let stand for about 1 hour. Or set ice cream container in freezer for about 1 to 2 hours.

For still-frozen ice cream: Turn chilled cream mixture into ice cube trays (leave out the cube dividers). Freeze until firm around the edges. Turn into large bowl. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer until smooth. Turn into ice cube trays again. Freeze until firm around the edges. Turn into large bowl. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer until smooth. Turn back into ice cube trays. Freeze until firm. To serve, let soften slightly. Makes about 1-1/2 quarts.

With salt substitute, there are about 2 mg. of sodium per 1/2 cup. With regular salt, 99 mg. per 1/2 cup.

PUMPKIN FLUFF IN ORANGE CUPS

1 (3-oz) pkg. cream cheese, at room temperature
1 (1-lb.) can pumpkin
1 (8-oz.) can fruit cocktail, drained
1/2 tsp. salt (plain, iodized or salt substitute)
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
Marshmallows for garnish

Cut off top 1 to 1-1/2 inches of each orange; reserve. Scoop out pulp from oranges; discard membrane. In small mixing bowl, combine 3/4 cup of the orange pulp and the cream cheese. (Reserve remaining orange pulp for other use.) Beat cream cheese and orange pulp until fluffy. Beat in pumpkin, a small amount at a time. Stir in drained fruit cocktail and salt.

In a small saucepan, combine reserved orange tops and water. Bring just to boiling. Remove from heat. Discard orange tops. Add brown sugar to flavored water. Bring to a boil full rolling and boil 1 minute. Beat sugar syrup into pumpkin mixture.

Spoon pumpkin mixture into orange cups, filling each to the top. Set filled orange cups in a shallow pan or casserole. Garnish each with marshmallows. Bake at 350 degrees, for about 20 minutes, just until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Orange cups may be prepared and filled ahead of time; cover with plastic wrap and store in the refrigerator. Bake an extra 5 to 10 minutes to heat through.

With salt substitute this recipe has 56 mg. of sodium per serving. With regular salt, 257 mg.

PUMPKIN ALMOND BREAD

2/3 cup shortening
2/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1 cup canned or fresh pureed pumpkin
1 egg
1/2 tsp. orange extract
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
1/4 tsp. almond extract
1-1/2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt (plain, iodized, or salt substitute)

1/2 tsp. ground ginger
1/2 cup toasted, chopped almonds
1 tsp. vinegar

In mixing bowl cream shortening and sugars together until fluffy. Beat in pumpkin, egg and extracts. Add flour, baking soda, salt and ginger; stir until well mixed. Stir in almonds, then stir in vinegar.

Turn into a well greased and floured 9x5 inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 to 70 minutes, until a wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. (If using a glass loaf pan, reduce temperature to 325 degrees.) Cool in pan on rack for 15 minutes, then turn bread out and cool on rack. Makes one 9-inch loaf.

If low sodium baking powder and salt substitute are used, there is about 7.5 milligrams sodium per 1/2 inch slice (1/16 of the loaf) of Pumpkin Almond Bread. With regular baking powder and salt, there are 186 mg.

PUMPKIN DROP COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 tsp. orange extract
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
1 cup canned or fresh pureed pumpkin
1-3/4 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt (plain, iodized, mixture or salt substitute)
1/2 tsp. pumpkin pie spice
Pecan or walnut halves
Cream shortening and sugar until fluff-

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with Hot Stuff On The Hill — the 19-year-old girl who has passes made at her because she has a 38 bust. Well, I'm only 5 feet tall and I also have a 38 bust. I've had it since high school, and I've suffered terribly because of it. Blouses and dresses gapped. I used a safety pin for every space in between. Sweaters at least stretched, but I had to wear a size much too big in the shoulders so I wouldn't look like I was on the make.

I am now a happily married mother, but I still get come-ons from men I didn't know existed until we were face to face. Therefore, I know it wasn't my language or the look in my eye that provoked their passes.

I'm not ugly, but I'm no beauty queen either. My oversized bust has embarrassed me since I was 13. I get catcalls, whistles and even dirty remarks from men when I pass.

Abby, those women who feel cheated because they're small-busted should walk a mile in my bra.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.M. IN MPLS: Don't quit trying. Sometimes it's the last key in the bunch that opens the door.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Dear Frank: Your poem arrived during the High Holy Days, so I tried it on my ram's horn. It was beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: As far as I'm concerned, that self-proclaimed "liberated" woman who thought her boyfriend should pay for her birth control pills is far from liberated.

Her attitude is typical of most "liberated" women. They prefer to open their own doors and light their own cigarettes, but when it comes to money — the liberation's over!

Most men spend between $15 and $25 for an evening out. Multiply that by the number of times they go out during the month and it's a lot more than the $3 or $4 a month she pays for birth control pills.

When was the last time this girl picked up the tab for an evening out? And when did she last invite him over for dinner? And when was the last time they used her car on a date?

I think she should pay for her birth control pills, don't you?

Realistic

Dear Realistic: Not necessarily. A man who's asked to shell out for his girlfriend's birth control pills would be a fool to refuse. It's peanuts compared to what his monkeyshines could cost in terms of child support.

Obesity Not Due To Heredity

How many times have we heard someone say "I'm overweight because it runs in my family!" Overweight is usually not due to heredity. However, we may have "inherited" our patterns of eating and our preferences for certain types of food from our family. Eating behavior can be changed if we are determined to reshape our eating patterns. Limiting excess calories from snacking or overly rich desserts could be the starting point in reducing caloric intake.

Bolles Case Claimed Not Closed

By CAROL JACKSON
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — All the conspirators have not been identified yet, chief prosecutor William Schafer III says, but the state eventually will prosecute all those responsible for the death of newsman Don Bolles.

"We have always maintained that there's a small band of conspirators," Schafer said. "As I said before, we don't have all the conspirators, but we will."

A Superior Court jury convicted suburban plumber James Robison and Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap of first-degree murder and conspiracy Sunday afternoon in the Arizona Republic reporter's death. The conspiracy conviction also included the plot to kill Arizona Attorney General Bruce Babbitt and Al "King Alfonso" Lizanetz, 51, a former employee of multimillion liquor wholesaler Kemper Marley Sr., whose name has figured prominently in the investigation of Bolles' murder.

Robison and Dunlap face possible execution by gas when Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson pronounces sentence Dec. 6.

Bolles was fatally injured June 2, 1976, when a bomb exploded beneath his car as he backed from a space in the Clarendon House hotel parking lot. He mumbled the names "Adamson," "Emprise," and "Mafia" to passersby as he lay on the pavement.

Hospitalized 11 days before his death, Bolles lost both legs and an arm to infection.

Robison, 55, and Dunlap, 48, were arrested Jan. 15, after John Harvey Adamson admitted his role in the car-bomb slaying.

Adamson, the state's key witness in the murder trial, admitted planting a homemade dynamite bomb beneath Bolles' car after luring him to the mid-Phoenix hotel with a false news tip. Adamson claimed Robison triggered the blast with a radio-control transmitter.

Dunlap, Adamson testified, hired him to kill Bolles, Babbitt and Lizanetz. Babbitt was reportedly a target because of an antitrust suit against the liquor industry and Lizanetz because of his constant barrage of letters to legislators reporting alleged Marley crimes.

Adamson said Dunlap told him Marley would finance the assassinations.

Neither Babbitt nor Lizanetz was harmed.

Phoenix police detective Jon Sellers, chief state investigator, said after court, "We have got some new information as a result of the trial. This gives us more avenues of investigation, leading towards more conspirators. This isn't the end."

As the verdict was announced for Dunlap, his eldest daughter, Pam, burst into sobs and threw her arms around her mother, Barbara.

Several of Dunlap's five daughters and two sons cried.

Mrs. Dunlap clutched the back of the court bench and closed her eyes. Occasionally, she said, "Hush, children. This is not the place."

Dunlap struck the defense table with a hesitant fist after the verdict was read and looked toward his family.

Pam Dunlap reached toward her father as he was ushered out the door and pleaded, "Can't we speak with him?"

The deputy responded with a brusque, "No, not now."

Dunlap said, "They won't let me talk to you kids. Everything is normal. I'll see you later."

The stocky Robison contained his feelings and said to his court-appointed attorney, David Derickson, "That's the breaks."

Derickson, who tried to prove Robison was across town at the time Adamson claimed the plumber met him, said he was "extremely disappointed."

"I can't believe that 12 people could not find sufficient doubt in the evidence presented to return a verdict of not guilty," Derickson said.

John Savoy, assistant defense attorney for Dunlap, said, "The verdict was wrong. They refused to let in evidence concerning the defense theories of why Bolles was killed."

Paul Smith of Boston, head of Dunlap's defense team, contended Phoenix attorney Neal Roberts was behind the killing and framed Dunlap, Robison and Robison are charged with the attempted bombing of a federal building in Phoenix.

Roberts took the stand, but refused to answer any questions, saying his answers might be used against him in the pending federal action.

Smith, who was absent from court Sunday, also tried to show Adamson was working for the New York-based Emprise Corp. Reorganized under the name of Ramcorp, Inc., Emprise owns all six of the state's greyhound tracks and one horse racing track. It was the target was the subject of several of Bolles' investigative pieces.

Two of those articles were read to the jury during eight weeks of testimony, but Thompson barred other references.

Adamson explained to the jury during his eight days on the witness stand that Marley wanted Bolles killed because of articles the reporter wrote that spoiled Marley's 1976 appointment to the State Racing Commission.

Marley was not charged and strongly denied any involvement when he testified during Dunlap's defense. Marley said he did not want the post to begin with, but was pressured into accepting. Marley called Bolles "just another reporter," one of many covering Marley's activities, and said he "didn't pay any attention" to Bolles' articles.

During closing arguments, Schafer called Marley's commission defeat "ignorable," and said, "Don Bolles was writing and dredging up old things from the past. Bolles is the only one who sticks out like that. What really made Mr. Marley mad was not that he didn't get the appointment, but the way he didn't get it."

In a brief press conference shortly after the court session, Babbitt, himself allegedly marked for death, said he was "very happy about the jury verdict."

Babbitt said Schafer would try to prove during the Dec. 5 pre-sentence hearing that circumstances warrant the death penalty.

By statute, Babbitt said, five standards justify the death sentence and Schafer will try to show four of those exist. They are:

1—if one of the defendants has a previous violent felony conviction. Robison was convicted earlier this year in the beating of a Scottsdale talent agent.

2—if the defendants knowingly created a grave risk of death to other persons besides the victim.

3—if there was payment involved in the crime.

4—if the offense was committed in an especially heinous, cruel or depraved manner.

Babbitt said, "The murder file remains open. We will do everything humanly possible to bring to justice everyone involved in this outrageous and heinous act."

Babbitt would not name additional suspects, but said the trial evidence would be considered carefully before any arrests are made.

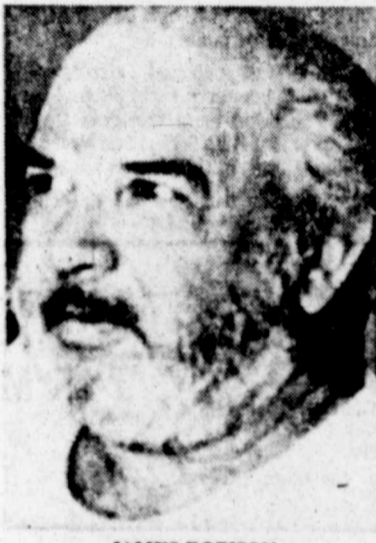

"I think the complete extent of this case will be known only many months down the road," Babbitt said. "But," he added, "two more have gone down today, continuing the process."

GRIM SATISFACTION — Chief Prosecutor William Schafer III, right, and chief investigator Jon Sellers appeared grim but pleased after the jury returned first degree murder and conspiracy verdicts against two men charged with the bomb murder of reporter Don Bolles. Plumber James Robison, 55, and contractor Max Dunlap, 48, are to be sentenced for the crimes Dec. 6. (AP Laserphoto)

Specialist Seeks Origin Of National Anthem

By DONALD SANDERS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ever wonder where the music for "The Star Spangled Banner" came from? William Lichtenwanger does. And he's trying to shoot down the longstanding belief that the national anthem was taken from a rowdy English drinking song.

Lichtenwanger, a music specialist writing in the current issue of the Library of Congress' Quarterly Journal, says he believes new-found evidence will prove the tune had a loftier origin.

Lichtenwanger, former head of the reference section in the library's music division, concurs that the tune was written by John Stafford Smith, an English organist and composer who lived from 1750 to 1836.

There has been a scholarly debate for years over the origin of the tune. "To Anacreon in Heaven," to which Francis Scott Key wrote the words of the national anthem. Many scholars in recent years have attributed it to Smith, and Lichtenwanger agrees.

But he questions the popular belief among scholars that the song was designed as a drinking song, or perhaps something worse, debauchery.

"To Anacreon in Heaven" was the song of The Anacreontic Society, which was founded as a kind of gentleman's club in London about 1766 and expired about 1792 or 1793.

Lichtenwanger's article quotes a piece in the Times of London in 1787 as characterizing the association as "this truly convivial and respectable society." A year later, a writer for the Times said of a meeting:

"Its reputation was high for both music and mirth. That any 'convivial' society could sit through three symphonies, a concerto, a piano trio and assorted lesser pieces before turning to food, drink, song and 'mirth' gives new meaning to conviviality ..."

"It certainly is not great poetry, but neither is it a 'dirty ditty.' For a song of its kind and place it shows a genuine imagination, a touch of whimsy to accompany its pseudo-classical setting."

The Times of London writer is convinced that the society, at least in its early years, was seriously devoted to music. Joseph Haydn attended at least one meeting, and his symphonies were played frequently.

In later years, the society seems to have taken a different tack. One man who attended meetings wrote that after midnight, "The proceedings were very disgraceful to the society: as the greatest levity, and vulgar obscenity generally prevailed. Improper songs, and other vicious compositions were performed without any shame whatever."

Another wrote that in 1793, ladies were admitted to a gallery, and as a result the songs were toned down. Many members resigned in protest and the society was dissolved.

There has never been serious doubt about the words to "Anacreon in Heaven." They were printed some 30 times in Britain before 1800, attributed to Ralph Tomlinson, Esq. For 65 years there was no attribution to a composer.

In 1841 a supposed newspaper article — apparently bogus — said the tune had been composed by Samuel Arnold, who sometimes conducted at the Anacreontic Society and was its last president.

In 1872, Stephen Salisbury, then president of the American Antiquarian Society, read a paper referring to Arnold as composer of the tune of "The Star Spangled Banner." William Chappell, a London music merchant and scholar, wrote in effect: "Don't be silly; the composer was not Arnold but John Stafford Smith."

One of the puzzles has been that Smith, so far as is known, never claimed credit although he lived for 60 years after it was written. One theory is that Tomlinson paid him a flat fee to yield his legal rights.

The new evidence was found in 10 volumes of diaries written by one Richard John Samuel Stevens, which had been held by his descendants for a century and a quarter.

Stevens, a lesser figure in British music, was a frequent attendant at Anacreontic Society meetings. He wrote of Tomlinson, then its president: "He wrote the poetry of the Anacreontic Song, which Stafford Smith set to music."

"Be it granted then," Lichtenwanger writes, "that John Stafford Smith was the composer of the Anacreontic tune and, hence, of 'The Star Spangled Banner.'"

Designation of "The Star Spangled Banner" as the national anthem was a long time in coming. Until the Civil War, it probably took third place behind "Yankee Doodle" and "Hail Columbia" as the song most frequently heard at patriotic occasions.

In the 1890s the military services adopted "The Star Spangled Banner" as the anthem, but it was not until March 3, 1931, that a law was enacted making it official.

Carter Aide Considered For Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — P. R. "Bobby" Smith, who headed Jimmy Carter's farm campaign a year ago, is considered to be a top choice as assistant secretary of agriculture for marketing services, according to Agriculture Department sources.

Smith currently is an assistant to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and has headed special task forces looking into peanut and tobacco programs.

The position has been vacant since the resignation last month of Robert H. Meyer, who quit after it was disclosed he had lobbied on behalf of family interests and those of his neighbors in the Imperial Valley of Southern California.

Meyer was opposed to a 1902 federal law which restricts water from federal projects to persons holding no more than 160 acres each. The Interior Department says it intends to enforce the law, which could result in the break-up of many large farms in the West.

Smith, a native of Barrow County, Ga., has been a farmer, cotton ginner and warehouseman, according to a biography provided by his office. He also has served as vice president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federal and has held offices in other farm and commodity organizations.

Italians Learn New Speed Laws

ROME (UPI) — Italy's complicated new eight-speed traffic speed law has gone into effect — with a vengeance.

In the first day of operation Sunday, police nabbed nearly 1,300 drivers violating the new laws, which prescribe speed limits from 31 mph in cities to 87 mph on superhighways according to road conditions and the vehicle's engine size.

Police use new Swiss-made Multanova photo-radar machines to check speeds and take photographs of the offending vehicle's license plate.

Fine notices for up to $660 with photographic evidence of the crime are sent to the motorists' homes when they are caught speeding. Failure to pay within two weeks means the fines are doubled.

Police slapped fines of $165 or more on 195 drivers in the first day of operation and 1,102 speeders got smaller fines of $22 and $44.

There were a lot of flashes as the Multanovas photographed the rear number plates of offenders and there was plenty of cursing when the speeders realized they had been caught.

One bitter insurance agent given a major fine said, "Those machines cost $17,500 each but they'll pay for themselves in no time."

British Film Star Firth Lives Like Runaway

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — That furtive figure with the battered suitcase and shock of blond ringlets hauled into shake-down rooms in the world's airports is actor Peter Firth.

Peter, 24, is the star of "Equus" and a refugee from Pudsey, Yorkshire, England.

When it comes to lifestyles Peter is in a class by himself. Ask him his address and he can't give it to you because he doesn't live anywhere. Or rather, he lives everywhere.

Young Firth fled Pudsey at age 15 to seek his fortune in London. He's been roaming ever since despite great success on the stage and now on screen.

It was necessary for him to settle in London for eight months when he starred in the British version of "Equus" and another 10 months on Broadway. He also chafed at being stuck in Toronto for four months for the film version.

But aside from those long runs, Firth has been peripatetic. He believes in the adage that it's difficult to hit a moving target.

Peter alighted in Hollywood this week to plug "Equus" in which he stars with Richard Burton. But it was only a four-day stop.

"Footloose is the only way to be," he said, his eyes roving the Beverly Hills restaurant with the restlessness of a man on the lam. In truth Peter's only crime is being an actor.

"I don't know where I'll be or who I'll be with from day to day. I never plan ahead a week or a month. It's been that way with me for years. I'm a great one for keeping my options open."

His bills and mail are sent to his agent in London. From time to time Peter telephones the agent or stops by to pick up messages and to keep his meager financial entanglements in order.

Firth could have stayed at home in Pudsey where his parents own a pub. In time he could have become a boniface himself. But wanderlust and a desire to act uprooted him from the blessings of Yorkshire.

"We lived in the pub," he said. "There is one pub for every 15 residents in Pudsey. We were a local and the drinkers were a lot like Andy Capp. Good drinkers."

"I served beer myself and became a good darts player. But I was fascinated by the transients who never seemed to be in a rut."

"Now I'm a gypsy myself, although I seldom sleep by the side of the road. Sometimes I follow the sun to France or the Caribbean or Spain. You've got to be able to run. There are a lot of people chasing me."

"I pay no property taxes. I don't own an automobile. I pay no rent. I have no possessions except what I can carry in my suitcase. And it's not a large bag. Oh, there's the odd shirt hanging in closets of friends here and there."

"Working in plays and pictures always keeps me on the hop. There's not even a girlfriend to encourage me to put down roots. All one really needs is a passport and air fare."

Firth, a quiet young man, usually stops in cities and towns where friends put him up for a few days at a time. He sleeps on floors, couches and chairs when there isn't a guest room.

He carries a pocketful of change in various currencies, none of which he fully comprehends. Peter forks over what he assumes is the proper amount and relies on the honesty of the citizens in whatever country he happens to find himself.

"It works out well most of the time," he said. "Some of my hosts are hostesses which generally makes for a longer stay."

"But sometimes I find myself in a telephone booth on a wet Sunday afternoon and not able to reach anyone. Then I put up at hotels, which I really don't like to do. I dine out a great deal, of course."

While Peter is no hippie, he does attract the attention of the constabulary, especially airport officials.

"The authorities are always taking me into small rooms where I am grilled and searched for contraband," he said. "Though I'm an actor, I'm not a familiar face. Perhaps I have a suspicious appearance because I'm stopped so often."

"The men in the grilling rooms look at my passport and ask for my home address. It really puts them off when I tell them I have no home. No one seems willing to accept the simple truth."

"They ask me about drugs a great deal. And because I'm an actor I'm very good at deceit."

Peter suddenly appeared fretful and uneasy. He'd been sitting in one place for almost two hours. Clearly, he was anxious to be on the move.

Waterbed Myths Dispelled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John Farnum doesn't want to make waves, but he's out to debunk what he terms "waterbed myths."

It's not true, he insists on the 10th anniversary of "the birth of the waterbed industry as we know it," that waterbeds make sleepers seasick, crash through ceilings or leak on parquet floors.

Farnum, owner and manager of the North Carolina Waterbeds in Raleigh, says his business would not have quadrupled in the past six years if the myths were fact.

"You know where these myths come from?" Farnum asked. "It's the jokes on TV. You know, a guy's waterbed springs a leak and his apartment is flooded. Very funny, but not true. It's like those Polish jokes. They're funny too, if you're not Polish."

Jokes and myths notwithstanding, waterbeds have found a place in the furniture industry.

"Every year has been a growth year," said Farnum, who estimates he has placed 4,000 to 5,000 waterbeds in North Carolina homes. He said nearly 3 million American families now have the water-filled beds.

Farnum credits California designer Charles Hall with turning waterbeds — long admired by hospitals for their therapeutic qualities — into a consumer product 10 years ago.

The beds quickly became a fad and counterculture accessory, with early customers often students or other young people interested in novelty and inexpensive bedding.

But in the early 1970s, the quality and design of the beds began to improve and the clientele started changing. Now, Farnum says, waterbeds come with contemporary and early American frames and customers include computer programmers, lawyers, engineers and military personnel.

Prices have risen, he conceded, but remain competitive with conventional beds.

Farnum said national sales so far this year have totaled $238 million. That's up from $175 million in 1976.

For those who remain in doubt about waterbeds, Farnum has another argument:

"We have a 30-night sleep warranty."

Device Combines Typewriter, Organ

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Musician-inventor Charlie Carmichael has made music as simple as ABC.

His marriage of a typewriter keyboard to an organ-like device enables just about anyone to play a recognizable song at first sitting.

A touch-typist becomes a virtuoso. "If you can type, you can play," Carmichael said.

It may be the perfect instrument for would-be musicians with songs in their hearts but blocks in their heads when it comes to reading musical notes.

Carmichael calls it MACKS — Musical Alphabet Code Keyboard System. His prototype is housed in a portable sewing machine case he bought from the Salvation Army. A 10-inch speaker produces the music from one end.

An ordinary typewriter keyboard fixed to a sloping side is wired to an organ oscillator board inside. Only the numerals and 26 letters are wired. The operator cannot backspace if a wrong note is hit. Carmichael developed a code to write sheet music for MACKS, providing a letter or number equivalent for each note in a range of three chromatic octaves. On his sheet music "F-W-O-W" are the first four notes of "Amazing Grace."

Most of the song he has encoded so far contain only lead notes. Others contain harmony lines, calling for up to four letters to be depressed at the same time for a rich, full sound.

The instrument is not for professional musicians, said Carmichael, a truck scale operator.

"It's for people who have tried and always wanted to play some music and never could," he said. "There's a lot more typists than pianists."

It took a year and a half to build MACKS, but the idea was born 30 years ago in a high school typing class. Carmichael was going over the tune "Military Escort" in his head, banging the typewriter keys in time.

"The teacher grabbed me by the hair on my head and said, 'What are you doing, Charlie Carmichael?'"

"The first thing that came into my mind was I was playing my musical typewriter. And I began to think there was a way to do it."

Carmichael said it cost about $600 to give life to MACKS, which he treats as a member of the family, but he said it could be manufactured for about $300.

Critic Disappointed With Lindsay Wagner's First TV Special

By JAY SHARBUTT
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lindsay Wagner strikes me as a smart, lively, pretty good actress capable of far more than is demanded of her in NBC's "Bionic Woman" caperings. Her advisers must agree. They've got her in a special, "Lindsay Wagner — Another Side of Me," on ABC. It opened Sunday here and in San Francisco, and airs nationally tonight before ABC's football follies.

I was hoping she'd have a good show. Alas, no dice. Her national singing debut is sabotaged by a program so sweetly stupefying its makers must have overdosed on pabulum before starting work. Miss Wagner starts her work singing a bit of "If My Friends Could See Me Now," which Shirley MacLaine used as a theme for one of her specials a year or so ago. So much for original concepts. Having done this, then marched during the opening credits with the Locke High School Marching Band. Miss Wagner speaks of fulfilling one dream — "my own special" — and having another dream also come true. Which is her wedding in December 1976 to actor-writer Michael Brandon. In the show, they are seen leaving the church, heading to snow country and romping about on a site where they plan to build a love nest.

Cooing sounds run rampant. In time, Miss Wagner also sings some ballad about being happy in "a one-room shack," which is about all one can afford these days, what with the cost of houses around here.

The segment goes on and on and on, and it is welcome relief when Miss Wagner takes to sitting at home by a fire, talking of her star-struck days as a kid and how she once met Esther Williams. And by golly, she suddenly is doing a water ballet with a troupe of lady water lilies called the Meraquasas Synchronized Swim Team. Then she discusses the virtues of ice cream with some wails.

For the next act, she says she likes silent comedy. And lo, we get a long, long silent comedy in which "Flooky Flickers Presents 'The Perils of Paul.'" Of course, of course.

The Wagner hour exhibits hopeful signs of life when singer-composer Paul Anka arrives, but quickly is reduced to banter about "My Way" and shots of her seated at a table, digging Anka's night club act.

By the time the proceedings arrive at what I guess is the big number — Miss Wagner and hubby doing a bit of "Carnelot" — you may get the feeling she got a raw deal from her writers and producers.

She did, and it's a pity. When given the chance to sing, which isn't often, she warbles surprisingly well, sounds a lot like Karen Carpenter and is on key 99 percent of the time.

Alas, the songs assigned her only one what you'd call pleasantly distinguished. They sound as if composed by parties who got a B in harmony class and a C-minus in lyrics.

Here's hoping the Bionic Woman tries another non-bionic special, but summons some certified experts to give her show the zip that's sorely lacking tonight.

Space Mining May Occur By Year 2000

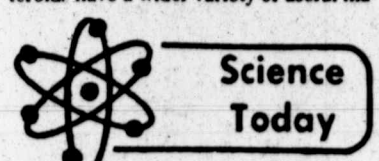

By CLARENCE M. ZAITZ
 LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Experts say space mining is feasible by the end of this century.

lar power stations out of material taken from the moon and asteroids. Dr. James Arnold of the University of California, chairman of the group, said the concept is that metals, chemicals and gases from the moon and asteroids could be readily used to build solar power stations in high Earth orbit, in addition to the space colonies that would be needed to support the station builders and maintenance people.

Scientists already have a pretty good idea of the materials available from the moon. The moon can provide aluminum, iron, and titanium, and silicious lunar soil would yield substances to make fiberglass and inorganic adhesives.

id metallic iron and nickel. One good-sized asteroid, Arnold said, could represent about 20 years' production of steel in the United States. Scientists think the asteroids have a wider variety of useful materials than the surface of the moon. The panel suggested that NASA embark on a program of near-earth resource evaluation.

Thomas Young, director of planetary programs for NASA, was present and said "Our response is that this (proposal) is something that seems directly in line with our mission. We are extremely interested. It is a mission we expect to properly support."

Dow Jones Adds 3.30 To Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed some widespread gains today, continuing Friday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 7.27 on Friday, added another 3.30 to 813.24 in the first hour today.

Gainers opened up a 3-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume came to 5.04 million shares by mid-morning. Analysts noted encouragement over the market's rebound last week after it attracted support at the Dow-800 level.

They also cited hopes that the tight-money worries that gripped Wall Street early last week would prove to have been excessive.

Sony Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, unchanged at 7 1/2. Blocks of 200,000, 150,000 and 124,800 shares traded at that price.

Thiokol rose 1/4 to 24 and Hoover Ball Bearing was up 1/4 at 17 1/2. Thiokol said the two companies had called off discussions on a possible merger.

The 11 a.m. NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was up 18 at 50.45.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed 47 to 113.35.

Two-Inch Pupfish Attract Visitors To State Park

By JEFF W. HENDERSON
A-J Correspondent

There is a good possibility Nessie of Loch Ness, Scotland, fame will be captured some day. We will flock to see her, for the odds are very good Nessie is a long-necked plesiosaur — an aquatic dinosaur thought to have become extinct some 40 million years ago.

You and I would probably stand in line for hours to see the last living specimen of a prehistoric woolly mammoth if suddenly one were discovered tomorrow and exhibited for public view. The last one died about 10,000 years ago.

What about a chance to see a passenger pigeon or the dodo bird? It was only recently they vanished. The American bison (buffalo) and the whooping crane are slowly beginning to come back from the brink of extinction.

There are many animals on the endangered species list today — many of which we will never have a chance to see, especially some of the aquatic animals.

However, there is one place out in West Texas where you can observe the antics of an extremely rare fish — the Comanche (stylistic spelling) Springs Pupfish. Balmorhea State Park, between Fort Stockton and Van Horn on U.S. 290, is the only place where the average traveler can have a chance to see the pupfish. Balmorhea has been a mecca for West Texans since the 1930s, when one of the largest man-made swimming pools in the U.S. was created at San Solomon Springs; it covers two acres.

The springs, which gush out some 22-26 million gallons of water a day, have been a site long known to thirsty travelers. However, if one of the Apaches or one of the troopers from old Fort Davis were to visit the springs today, he wouldn't recognize the place.

Up until about 1871, the area around the springs was very marshy. In 1871, canals were constructed through the marshes to drain them. The canals diverted the water to irrigate nearby farms.

Little did the early developers of the area know they were destroying the habitat of the Comanche Springs Pupfish.

It's strange, sometimes, that no one ever stops to contemplate how fish got in a spring-fed marsh which is about 100 miles from the nearest river.

The San Solomon Springs were dredged and further developed in 1926 by L.B. Nusterman. He deeded the land to the state in 1934, with the swimming pool and a recreation area being developed by the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC).

The state began a program to protect some of the wildlife, and the pupfish managed to survive, as did another species — the Mosquito Fish.

To the east of the springs, the state built an 18-unit lodge. Canals from the springs flow around the lodge, forming a natural habitat for the pupfish and Mosquito Fish. It is possible to stand for hours and watch the pupfish. Every now and then, you will see a fleeting shadow in the water — that's a tiny Mosquito Fish.

In a study released in May 1977, two biologists — Anthony A. Echelle (Baylor University) and Clark Hubbs (UT-Austin) estimated there were only 2,000 adult Comanche Springs Pupfish in the environment at San Solomon Springs.

Besides getting a chance to see the rare, two-inch long pupfish, Balmorhea offers the visitor a chance to get away from it all.

The swimming pool is a big drawing card, with visitors coming from as far away as Midland-Odessa and El Paso to spend the day swimming in the 76-degree water. Swimming rates are 50 cents for adults and 25 for children under 13.

The 18-unit lodge is an attraction also.

"We have had families book every room for family reunions," said Jake Dameron, park superintendent.

It's easy to see why. The 3,300-foot elevation never seems to get too hot — the rugged Davis Mountains are just a few miles away.

The lodge features central heating, air-conditioning, TV and kitchenettes. The rates are most reasonable — $10 for the first adult, with a $2 charge for each additional adult and a $1 charge for each child between 6-13 years of age. Children under six stay free. Kitchen use is an additional $4, and you furnish your own utensils.

East of the lodge are a picnic area and camping facilities.

The park has five campsites with shelters, permanent tables and grills. And there are 28 multi-use sites with shelters, tables, grills, water and electricity. There is a restroom with showers located in the camping area.

For the recreational vehicle or travel trailer user, the park has a dump station.

The lodge makes an attractive place to stay while you spend some time at nearby Fort Davis (32 miles south on Texas 17), McDonald Observatory (about 50 miles to the south and west, you take Texas 118 from Fort Davis) or just fishing at Lake Balmorhea (two miles south of the park and stocked with catfish and bass).

The fishing lake is privately owned, and it costs $1.50 per person for 24-hour fishing privileges.

Reservations for the lodge or a camping site (it's difficult to get in without a reservation) can be made by writing to the Balmorhea State Recreation Area, P.O. Box 15, Toyahvale 79786.

Balmorhea is a good place to "cool your heels." After all, it's not every day you get a chance to swim among exotic and rare aquatic animals.

Royal Canadian Band To Follow Tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — Guy Lombardo, who made millions and delighted millions by ignoring every popular music trend of the past half-century with his "sweetest music this side of heaven," will be buried Wednesday but his band of Royal Canadians will go on.

A family spokesman said Sunday that funeral services would be held at Freeport on Long Island for the bandleader, who died in Houston Saturday at the age of 75.

Lombardo's youngest brother, Victor, who was leading the band during Lombardo's illness, will take a day off for his brother's funeral, then he will take the band to Connecticut for a tour of that state.

On Dec. 31, when New Year's Eve revelers turn on their radios it will still be Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians playing "Auld Lang Syne," as they have for nearly 50 years.

Lombardo once said he got in the habit of ending each program with "Auld Lang Syne" — a practice copied by many other bandleaders in the days of big swing bands — because he started out with his first orchestra in Western Ontario, which was "heavily Scottish."

"Every dance ended with the playing of that song," he said.

And since Dec. 31, 1929, when the Royal Canadians first played the Scottish air on radio, every New Year has been greeted with the song's strains on millions of radios and later on television sets.

Even the crowds that braved winter's wrath to welcome the New Year in Times Square sang "Auld Lang Syne" to the music of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, piped out over the crowd.

Lombardo succumbed about 9:45 p.m.

Saturday at Houston's Methodist Hospital. His wife of 51 years, Lillibelle, was at his bedside.

The hospital said he died of a breathing problem which had led to his hospitalization Oct. 27.

A spokesman for famed heart surgeon Michael DeBakey, who operated on Lombardo Sept. 23 for an "aneurism of the descending thoracic aorta," the main heart artery, said later the "respiratory insufficiency" was not related to the surgery.

The bandleader was born Gaetano Lombardo Jr., son of an immigrant Italian tailor, in London, Ontario, and was only 12 when he formed his first band with four other youngsters, including his brothers Carmen and Lebert.

The Lombardo brothers went to Cleveland in 1925, and in 1927 moved the band to Chicago. In an era when jazz history was being made in the Windy City by Louis Armstrong, Bix Biederbecke, and the like, Lombardo managed to become successful with his light, straight-melody music because it suited the dancing style of white Middle America.

Lombardo carried his sweet music unconcernedly through the eras of swing, progressive jazz and rock untouched and unchanged, making $1 million or more a year and selling more than 400 million records.

Among the songs he made famous and profitable were "Little White Lies," "Boo Hoo," "You're Driving Me Crazy" and "Seems Like Old Times."

Lombardo once said of his success against the musical tides that "we lose 'em in their teens, but we catch 'em up later ... and when we get 'em we keep 'em."

WON'T BE SAME — The picture shows Guy Lombardo leading his Royal Canadians in 1974. There'll still be a New Year's Eve this year, but for millions of Americans and Canadians, it won't be the same. Lombardo, who led his band in "Auld Lang Syne" for every year since 1929, died Saturday night in Houston. He was 75. (AP Laserphoto)

Tests Show Casts May Harm Muscles

HOUSTON (AP) — Unfortunate white rats have been forced by scientists to run unending mazes, smoke countless packs of cigarettes and ingest massive doses of saccharin. Now the rats are wearing casts on their legs in a study of muscle atrophy.

Dr. Frank Booth says most people have "always assumed" the muscle loss sustained during prolonged periods of bed rests and use of casts while broken limbs healed could be totally reversed.

But Booth, professor of physiology at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston, says tests with rats indicate differently.

And he believes the tests could lead to new methods of treatment and rehabilitation designed to reduce the amount of damages humans suffer to their muscles.

Booth says his tests have shown that up to half of the research rats' muscle mass can be lost in only three weeks of inactivity. The early tests are part of a three-year project supported by the National Institute of Health.

Protein synthesis necessary for normal muscle mass to continue developing begins to decline "within three hours of putting the rats in leg casts," he added.

While no one knows the cause for atrophy or degeneration of muscles in humans, Booth said he is optimistic his studies will indicate it may be due to the breakdown in protein synthesis.

"Muscle proteins are continually being replaced, so if you have one gram of muscle, half (of that gram) will be replaced normally by new protein in just one week," he said.

"However, whatever triggers this replacement seems to break down when the muscle is not used and the protein does not get replaced."

In an effort to isolate the biochemical triggering mechanism responsible for the protein breakdown, Booth has put casts on the back legs of several white rats and examines the atrophy process.

"Some orthopedic specialists are becoming aware of the apparent reduction in muscle damage when some mobility is allowed," Booth said. "And they are using limited mobility casts which cover the joints and allow for minimal movement."

Booth also is doing a project funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in which long-time gravity loss is being observed. The major aspect of this specific work involves minimum stimulation of the muscles in casts to see if that will significantly slow the atrophy process.

The NASA scientists want to know about the muscle atrophy to determine exactly how much simulated exercise, such as stationary bike riding, should be done during long space flights.

Booth said rats in casts for 30 days took at least 60 more days to recover most of their original muscle mass. "This recovery time may be longer in humans," he said.

If the protein breakdown process can be clarified and techniques designed to stimulate muscles while at rest, Booth said, there is no reason for the withering of casted limbs and muscle collapse of bedridden persons in the future.

Mondale Claims U.S. Consistent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale says the United States applies its human rights policy uniformly, but uses a more subdued approach with some countries.

"We've spoken repeatedly on human rights and pointed out that we do not think there is an automatic, sort of a mechanical rule that can apply in all countries and in all circumstances," Mondale said Sunday.

He was interviewed on a television program.

Mondale was asked to reconcile administration pressure against white-ruled South Africa with apparent silence on human rights violations in black-governed African nations.

Mondale said the administration has voiced concern about government prisoners in many African nations.

On another topic, Mondale denied the administration used a double standard in permitting former CIA Director Richard Helms to plead no contest to charges of failing to testify fully before a Senate committee.

Turkeys Race To 'Finish'

TURLOCK, Calif. (AP) — They waddled, wobbled and gobbled, but with plenty of prodding from their handlers, most contestants finished the first Turkey Tech Grand Prix with feathers flying.

The plump birds and their handlers had to run a course under a three-foot high bar, through a puddle of water and down a lane wide enough for one bird.

On the back side of the U-shaped course, handlers carried their turkeys over a haystack, put them down and then prodded the birds toward the finish line.

Some of the birds were named "Gobble De Guk," "Traveling Drumsticks," "Galloping Gobbler" and "Leaping Giz-zards."

A few of the birds refused to race and just sat down, as if to say the effort wasn't worth it, which it probably wasn't from their point of view.

they have since modified their stand and say they will keep the program," Briskman said.

On the broader question of U.S. policy toward Israel, the ADL executive said his group "was concerned and troubled over the apparent change in policy by President Carter toward the Middle East situation."

"The Oct. 1st joint U.S.-Russian statement was especially shocking," Briskman said. "After several years of trying to keep Russia out of the Middle East, it appears the Soviets are being brought back in."

Briskman said the statement read by Carter contained the phrase "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people," which Briskman called a "clear movement away from the President's campaign promises and Democratic foreign policy."

The Palestinians and the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) are two different things, Briskman pointed out, and the statement made no distinction between the two.

"Israel has said the Palestinians are welcome at the Geneva peace talks, but not the PLO."

"The PLO national charter calls for the destruction of the state of Israel and does not recognize Israel's right to exist," Briskman said. "You do not enter into a conversation with people who don't recognize your right to exist."

"You don't sit down with killers, murderers and terrorists."

The main thing the President should remember, the ADL executive said, is that if the PLO is allowed to organize a state on the West Bank it will "invite Russian technicians and military hardware into the area."

"The PLO, if not an agent of the Soviet Union, maintains close relations with the USSR. You are inviting missiles to be pointed not just at Israel but at the Middle Eastern oil fields if the PLO set up its own state."

"And if Russia interrupts the flow of oil from the Middle East, it will undermine the entire Western alliance," Briskman said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

I John 4:11-21, 5:14, The Living Bible

19 We know that we are children of God and that all the rest of the world around us is under Satan's power and control.

20 And we know that Christ, God's Son, has come to help us understand and find the true God. And now we are in God because we are in Jesus Christ His Son, who is the only true God; and He is eternal Life.

21 Dear children, keep away from anything that might take God's place in your hearts. Amen.

II JOHN John
CHAPTER I

1 From: John, the old Elder of the church. To: That dear woman Cyria, one of God's very own, and to her children whom I love so much, as does everyone else in the church.

2 Since the Truth is in our hearts forever,

3 God the Father and Jesus Christ His Son will bless us with great mercy and much peace, and with truth and love.

4 How happy I am to find some of your children here, and to see that they are living as they should, following the Truth, obeying God's command.

5 And now I want to urgently remind you, dear friends, of the old rule God gave us right from the beginning, that Christians should love one another.

6 If we love God, we will do whatever He tells us to. And He has told us from the very first to love each other.

7 Watch out for the false leaders — and there are many of them around — who don't believe that Jesus Christ came to earth as a human being with a body like ours. Such people are against the truth and against Christ.

8 Beware of being like them, and losing the prize that you and I have been working so hard to get. See to it that you win your full reward from the Lord.

9 For if you wander beyond the teaching of Christ, you will leave God behind; while if you are loyal to Christ's teachings, you will have God too. Then you will have both the Father and the Son.

10 If anyone comes to teach you, and he doesn't believe what Christ taught, don't even invite him into your home. Don't encourage him in any way.

11 If you do you will be a partner with him in his wickedness.

'Youngsters' Vie For Cleveland's Highest Office

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
CLEVELAND (AP) — Dennis Kucinich was a 20-year-old "political brat" when he began his career with a run for city council in the late 1960s.

Now he is scrapping to become the next mayor of Cleveland — at 31 years, he would be by far the youngest big-city mayor in the nation.
But first he will have to defeat 30-year-old Edward Feighan.
"It's a remarkable phenomenon, an honest-to-goodness new generation of leadership in Cleveland," says local Republican leader Robert Hughes. "Both of these guys are half Ralph's age."
"Ralph" is Ralph Perk, the 63-year-old three-term incumbent who has been the ranking GOP city official in the nation.

To get where they are today, Democrats Kucinich and Feighan attacked Perk as the puppet of big-money corporate interests. They criticized his support of tax breaks for Sohio Oil Co. and National City Bank while homeowners paid ever-rising property taxes, and they blasted his efforts to sell the city-owned electric utility to a private utility giant.
Perk ran a surprising third in the non-partisan October primary, setting the stage for Tuesday's showdown where youth will be served.

Currently, in the 20 largest cities, the youngest mayor is Houston's 38-year-old Fred Hofheinz, who is stepping down Jan. 1. Next youngest is 44-year-old Pete Wilson of San Diego. The youngest mayor of all cities over 100,000 is 33-year-old Paul Soglin of Madison, Wis.
Although both Cleveland candidates are young, they are a study in contrast.

Kucinich (ku-SIN-ich) is a native son of the city's large Croatian community. Despite his best efforts, he still looks 26.
"I like to be thought of as a populist," he says, but Feighan charges Kucinich has fanned the flames of racial antagonism in past campaigns. He has never polled well in the city's black community.
Currently clerk of court, Kucinich is a maverick Democrat who served on the city council and mounted a couple of strong but unsuccessful congressional campaigns. In the primary, he was first, barely, stealing support from Perk's longtime stronghold, the ethnic neighborhoods.
Feighan (FEE-un), who grew up in the suburbs, is from a prominent Irish family. He started in politics well after Kucinich already was established, choosing instead to teach high school in Cleveland.
In 1972 he ran for state representative and won. He is the head of the city's large legislative delegation. All but unknown outside his near-west side district, he has risen from nowhere in the four months since he won the Democratic nomination — considered worthless at the time because of Perk's supposed popularity with the voters.
Kucinich is brash and abrasive, a tough and seasoned political fighter. Feighan is better polished and less intense.
The lines are drawn. Feighan is getting support from the traditional labor, business and political establishment and from George Forbes, the city council

Bachelor Promised Farm For Marrying

KERRY, England (UPI) — Bachelor Johnny Thomas' uncle has finally convinced him that a wife is worth her weight in gold.
David Thomas, 75, has promised to turn his $360,000 Great Claddia farm over to nephew John if he marries.
"I've always enjoyed being a bachelor but I must say it would be nice to have a woman to look after me, and this offer from my uncle is too good to turn down," John Thomas said.

Why Use Limited By Taste

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Little Miss Muffit sat on a tuffet eating curds and whey."
Unfortunately, there aren't enough Miss Muffits to eat all the whey American cheese factories turn out every week, and the bitter taste of the byproduct of cottage cheese manufacture makes it unpalatable to the rest of us.
"Even the pigs can't eat it all," says Dr. George A. Muck of Dean Foods Co. of Franklin Park, Ill., which produces four percent of the nation's cottage cheese.
"The acid whey produced in making cottage cheese can make animals sick if you give them too much."
Whey is an excellent source of protein, and sweet whey, the byproduct of cheddar cheese manufacture, is already used in dairy products.
Even acid whey has potential uses other than feeding the pigs.
"It can be used as a fertilizing aid, but you have to give it away to the farmers or even pay them to let you spread it on their land," Dr. Muck said.
Producers can't throw it away. The product has been classified as a threat to the economy and "environmental officials won't let you flush it down sewers or into streams," company president Howard M. Dean, Jr., said.
This leaves the cottage cheese industry with up to eight billion pounds of excess acid whey annually, and understandably, much effort has been put into finding a use for it.
A recent Food and Drug Administration decision to allow processed whey as an ingredient in ice cream — of which Dean is one of the top 10 producers — gave impetus to the effort.
A dried milk protein concentrate can be made out of acid whey, but it is a difficult process involving reduction of the high carbohydrate content.
Now Dean has developed a method of conversion that it believes will turn an environmental nuisance into a nutritional profit-maker and eventually could have great significance for world nutrition.
The new process turns out a protein concentrate from the acid whey. It has the consistency of condensed milk and it could be carried a step farther to make a powdered concentrate. Both products would be compatible for mingling with other powdered milks, Dr. Muck said.
Dean expects to turn 250,000 pounds of acid whey daily into this concentrate.
The firm will use it in making ice cream, and as a byproduct they will get lactose for use in non-dairy coffee creamer compounds. Some of the concentrate will be sold to other producers.
Dean and Dr. Muck told UPI, the long range implications of a practical way to use acid whey concentrates for human consumption are highly significant.
"It's a product that doesn't have to be refrigerated, and in many parts of the world, particularly the underdeveloped countries, that can be of vast importance," Dr. Muck said.
He and Dean said their research on end uses for the concentrate had barely begun.
"We think it will be somewhat more economical to produce than dehydrated milk and similar protein concentrates," Dr. Muck said.
He sees a potentially large use of it by macaroni and spaghetti manufacturers and by makers of various bakery products. It also has possibilities, he said, as a component in the mashes from which alcoholic beverages are made.

Superport Arguments Abound

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A proposed deepwater superport off the Texas Coast would provide thousands of jobs and pump millions of dollars into Texas, or destroy the delicate environment of the Texas Coast, depending on which side you listen to.
Supporters of the port, including some heavyweight politicians, and opponents, including environmentalists, gave their views last week at a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers public hearing.
Col. Jon C. Vanden Bosch said the hearing, attended by about 1,000 persons, was held to obtain public input about the proposed port, expected to cost between $500 million and $1 billion.
The port would be used by deepwater tankers as an unloading point for oil, coal and other cargo.
"This is a far-sighted and thoroughly planned proposal of modernization and improvement," said U.S. Rep. John Young of Corpus Christi. "This alternative has great merit, is much needed and is well-designed to meet the requirement of the future in a safe and efficient manner."
U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., and Gov. Dolph Briscoe sent statements supporting the superport.
"In terms of employment, it provides a wider based industry with the importation of coal, liquid products, dry cargo and bulk cargo," said state Rep. Hugo Berlanga, who noted that as many as 20,000 jobs would be created.
Other proponents said the port would add as much as $100 million to the Texas gross product.
But environmentalists said the environment would fall victim to the port and residents of Port Aransas said the economy of their coastal tourist-fishing town would be ruined.
"How can anyone justify, on an economic basis alone, the building of a petroleum-based facility costing $500 million... when oil reserves are projected to last for only 20 or 30 years more?" asked Port Aransas biologist Dr. Faust Parker Jr.

Grange Slates Annual Confab

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Grange, the nation's oldest existing general farm organization, will hold its annual meeting Nov. 14-22 in Greensboro, N.C., and officials say that the Panama Canal will be among items on the agenda.
John W. Scott, Grange master, said last week that more than 500 delegates are expected at this year's meeting, representing about 500,000 members nationally.
"Gone are the days when farmers were only interested in planting and harvesting," Scott said in a statement. "They, too, pay taxes and are concerned about international affairs and regulations which affect their daily lives and those of their neighbors and friends in the city."

AUDI FOX BEATS CHEVY CORVETTE!

If you're a little wide-eyed, we can't blame you. We were a little surprised ourselves when our 4-door sedan, the Springer Audi Fox, beat the Chevy Corvette in a Slaton test conducted by the American Testing Institute. But it's true. The Fox won!

Under identical conditions, with the Institute's test driver handling both cars.

The Audi Fox beat the Chevy Corvette. Over and over, and over again. And our four (0 to 50 in 8 seconds) Audi Fox is also tested (27 mpg highway, 23 mpg city) — based on EPA estimates using standard transmission. Actual mileage may vary depending on how you drive, car's condition and optional equipment.

That's how legends are made.

Fuel Needs Too Much For Output

LONDON (UPI) — Power blackouts hit British industry and homes today despite emergency manning of key generating stations by management officials.

Electricity Board officials briefly shut down supplies to industrial centers in Yorkshire, the Midlands, London and southern England as power demands of the new work week outstripped production.

The disruptions were caused by a wildcat slowdown by less than 10 percent of the power workers.

Energy Secretary Anthony Wedgwood Benn met with official union and management representatives to seek a formula that could be presented to the rebel workers in an effort to solve the conflict.

Five state-run electricity plants closed by a week of wildcat slowdowns by 6,000 workers were reopened Sunday using managers to shovel the coal and engineers to operate the turbines.

In large ads in Sunday's newspapers, the boards offered instructions on ways to cope with the blackouts. Families were asked to alter their mealtimes to prevent surges in electricity demand at traditional eating periods.

Another said, "Please make sure that elderly or infirm neighbors are safe and warm."

Board officials said they hoped the blackouts would be shorter and fewer than those that have hopped around Britain's cities for a week.

Police reported a wave of muggings and handbag thefts during blackouts in Reading, a city west of London. Smash-and-grab thieves plundered downtown London stores.

One wildcat leader hinted the workers may be close to accepting a government deal.

"Obviously this can't go on," he said. "We have taken a lot of criticism. If we could get the promise of a government inquiry we would go back to work."

The state-owned company said electrical customers who are suffering power outages for up to three hours a day at homes and businesses will face higher bills in coming months as a result of the walkouts.

In another labor dispute, coal miners last week rejected a productivity plan that would have boosted their salary increases over the stipulated 10 percent limit. The miners say they will hold out for a 90 percent across-the-board increase.

One of London's national newspapers, the Mirror, did not appear for the second day because journalists refused to work until negotiations on their pay claim began.

Customs and Immigrations officials threatened a token strike at British airports and ports Tuesday, which may delay passengers entering the country by up to four hours.

Smith Remains Opposed To Universal Vote

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — British and U.N. peace negotiators have ended a round of talks with Prime Minister Ian Smith without modifying his opposition to giving the vote to all adult blacks.

"There is certainly agreement that the eventual aim is majority rule," Lord Carver told reporters after meeting for nearly two hours with Smith Sunday. "There is also agreement that there must be ... a transitional regime. And there is ... agreement that before that is brought about there has got to be an ... effective cease-fire."

But he said Smith is still opposed to universal suffrage and wants this resolved before any discussion of a cease-fire. He said differences also remain between Smith and black nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe over the composition and leadership of the Rhodesian army during the transition to majority rule.

Carver, Britain's nominee to head the transitional government, and Lt. Gen. Prem Chand of India, came to Salisbury after a meeting last week in Tanzania with Nkomo and Mugabe, the leaders of the guerrilla forces in the war. They left Sunday for Botswana and Mozambique, two of the five black "front-line" nations that support the guerrillas.

Smith is demanding that the present Rhodesian army be the nucleus of the transition government's armed forces and that it be under white command. Nkomo and Mugabe demand that the army be disbanded and replaced by their guerrilla forces.

Peasants Kill Deadly Lion

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — A killer lion, believed by some peasants to be a woman transformed into a beast by a faulty love potion, has been killed by villagers, but not before it sent two of them to the hospital.

Salehe Kondo, 66, chairman of the Kibaha district branch of the ruling Revolutionary Party, described the hunt Sunday from his hospital bed, where he was being treated for bites and scratches.

He said the lion attacked Said Kambi Thursday night but was frightened away by an approaching truck. Kambi, 30, also was hospitalized with scratches.

A posse of 150 villagers armed with machetes, bows and arrows, one shotgun and a homemade firearm called a gabore set out after the lion, which was spotted Saturday.

DEDICATES U.S. HEADQUARTERS — Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, the 72-year-old French prelate suspended by Pope Paul VI, celebrated mass at a new chapel on the former Woodward estate in Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y. The Archbishop and his

Rebel Prelate Dedicates Headquarters

OYSTER BAY COVE, N.Y. (UPI) — French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre has dedicated the North American headquarters of his 60,000-member society which defies the Vatican by celebrating the Catholic Mass in Latin.

Lefebvre Sunday ignored a ban by the local bishop to dedicate the headquarters of the Roman Catholic Pius X Society at the estate of the late sportsman William Woodward, who was shot to death by his wife.

About 700 followers of the French prelate had to walk the last half mile to the ceremony at the headquarters because of a court-ordered ban on parking in the exclusive neighborhood.

Lefebvre's head in North America, celebrated a 90-minute solemn Pontifical Mass in a chapel adjacent to a bedroom where Woodward was slain.

The society established by Lefebvre is opposed to most of the reforms of the Second Vatican Council and is dedicated to celebrating the now-banned Latin mass. It reportedly has 50,000 members in Europe and 10,000 in the U.S.

Bishop John McGann, head of the local Rockville Centre Diocese, had banned Lefebvre from performing any priestly duties, but the French prelate said, "It is my duty and right to come here today and give you the blessing of God."

Lefebvre told those attending the mass they should guard "the true faith."

He said the society is not opposed to Pope Paul VI or other leaders of the church. "But when their way is toward Protestantism, we don't go," the 71-year-old bishop said.

The use of the estate as a religious headquarters is being challenged in court by the Oyster Bay Cove Village trustees who maintain it would create insufferable traffic problems. A hearing is scheduled for Nov. 22.

Poacher Fined Three Camels

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A Bedouin tribesman convicted of illegally catching lobsters and threatening two game reserve inspectors with a dagger has been fined three camels.

The sentence was passed on Id Rizik by a tribal court that convened in the oasis near Nueiba, on the Gulf of Eilat, a game reserve spokesman said.

Rizik was tracked down by inspectors after protected south Sinai lobsters began appearing on the menus of expensive restaurants in Eilat and Tel Aviv.

Two inspectors caught Rizik with a sackful of freshly caught lobsters, but when they attempted to arrest him he threatened them with his dagger and fled to the hills, the spokesman said. He later was apprehended.

The tribal court this week fined Rizik three camels — two young ones for poaching the lobsters and one for drawing his dagger, according to the spokesman.

The court also ordered him to swear that he would never repeat the offense at the risk of paying six camels in addition to a possible jail sentence for a second offense.

Actor Sees Hope In Mideast Crisis

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Kirk Douglas, in Israel for the production of his latest film "The Fury," said Sunday he feels Jews and Arabs can coexist in the Middle East.

Douglas visited East Jerusalem and said he was impressed with Israeli-built child-care centers in areas populated by Arabs. He said this shows good relations also exist between the two groups.

U.N. Renews Efforts At Peace In Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations this week renews its years of effort to bring peace to Cyprus and settle the differences between the bitterly divided Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities.

The General Assembly begins debate today with an appeal for the U.N. Security Council to keep the question of Cyprus "under constant review."

The resolution was drafted by the non-aligned group that has played a leading role in Cyprus peace efforts since Turkish troops invaded the eastern Mediterranean island on July 15, 1974.

The sponsors — Algeria, Guyana, India, Mali, Sri Lanka and Yugoslavia — said they were "gravely concerned over the prolongation of the Cyprus crisis which endangers international peace and security."

A U.N. peace-keeping force has been on Cyprus for more than 13 years in its efforts to resolve the differences between both sides.

The nonaligned nations asked both Greek and Turkish Cypriots to reopen peace talks and called on all nations to respect Cyprus' independence and "cease any form of interference in its internal affairs."

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said 10 days ago in a report to the General Assembly that "there has been little or no forward movement," but he reiterated the belief that the key to any

Good Harvest Seen In China

TOKYO (AP) — China will have a good harvest this year despite serious drought in the North and heavy rains in the South, Hsinhua said today.

Reporting China's 16th consecutive year of successful harvests, the official Chinese news agency said production of cotton and other industrial crops increased, and "an excellent harvest of grain is in sight." It gave no figures.

Only 10 percent of China's total area is arable, Hsinhua said, and less than half of that is properly irrigated.

During the last winter-spring period 100 million peasants and one million Communist Party officials worked on farmland improvement programs, leveling 16.3 million acres of farmland and improving irrigation on 6.4 million more acres, it said.

In line with China's efforts to achieve basic farm mechanization by 1980, output of tractors, combines, seeders, rice transplanters and other types of farm machinery increased between 10 and 60 percent in the first eight months of this year, compared with the same period in 1976, the report said.

It said three new chemical fertilizer plants, each with an annual capacity of one million tons, went into operation in Heilongjiang, Szechwan and Hopei provinces.

Egyptian Medical Authorities Urge Kissing Restraint

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Medical officials have urged citizens to refrain from kissing to stop the spread of a mysterious fever that has killed four persons and infected 250 others in the Giza area south of Cairo.

Symptoms of the disease, which some officials believe is carried by mosquitos, are high temperature, severe headache and muscular pain. But other officials believe the disease can also be spread by human saliva and have urged citizens not to kiss.

The fever first was reported last month in the region of Belbeis, northeast of Cairo, but it reportedly was contained.

Effect Of Curb Not Immediate

By R.M. SORGE
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Aside from its political impact, the newly imposed U.N. arms embargo will not weaken South Africa's defense set-up in the immediate future.

In the view of experts at the U.N., the South Africans will not run out of military hardware, including sophisticated equipment, for years to come.

What may hurt more than the ban itself is the psychological effect of the first from trucks and communications equipment to blankets.

The French would be the big losers if existing arms contracts were canceled. Still to be delivered are two Agosta-class submarines and two A69 frigates under an existing $800 million contract.

From Israel the South Africans have received gunboats, automatic weapons, armored plate and licensing for six Ramata-class fast-patrol boats to be equipped with Israeli Gabriel surface-to-surface missiles.

Major licensing agreements with Italian and French-British interests also exist for South African manufacture of aircraft.

Still another gray area is the nuclear field. The resolution forbids "cooperation with South Africa in the manufacture and development of nuclear weapons" but does not mention nuclear development for peaceful purposes.

Analysis

practical step of the United Nations to push South Africa into isolation.

Several Western delegates who were instrumental in the U.N. Security Council toning down the embargo resolution — including U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young — expressed hope Pretoria "gets the message."

They are certain that Black Africa will not sit back. Before long the Africans are expected to press for an expansion of sanctions to tighten the embargo and reach into the economic field.

Experts believe two main factors will dampen the effectiveness of the arms embargo resolution adopted Friday.

— South Africa's existing and well-stocked military machine is not in dire need for imports and can rely largely on its domestic arms industry.

— Existing contracts, loopholes in the resolution and smuggling will allow continued procurement of equipment that cannot be obtained on the home front.

The embargo did not catch the South Africans by surprise. Defense expenditures were increased from $414 million in 1972 to $1.5 billion in 1976 and were expected to reach over $1.8 billion in 1977.

Their defense industries can produce anything from jet fighters to armored cars and field equipment suited to cope with guerrilla warfare. South Africa has reached about 75 percent self-sufficiency in arms and 100 percent in ammunition.

The resolution also appeals to governments to "review" existing contracts and arms-licensing arrangements, but leaves it up to them to decide how far to go.

It is unclear what "gray area" goods the resolution covers. It refers to "related material," which could mean anything

Cowboys' Pillage Awes New Yorkers

SLIDE, ROGER, SLIDE — Roger Staubach of Dallas slides to the astroturf of Meadowlands Stadium during first period of 24-10 win over New York Giants Sunday. He was running to escape a Giants pass rush. (AP Laserphoto)

Joe Pisarcik, quarterback of the New York Giants, had a chance to meet each of them on a personal basis Sunday as the unbeaten Cowboys scored a 24-10 victory, running their National Football League winning streak to eight games.

Between them, the four linemen had six of the eight sacks that Pisarcik suffered. Linebacker Tom Henderson and safety Randy Hughes recorded the others.

"We just kept coming, like we always do," said White. "I don't key on anything. I just keep coming."

Pisarcik, an alert quarterback, noticed all the Dallas visitors.

"We called our extra pass blocking 'Joe protection,'" he said. It really means the backs stay back to help the ends. But Dallas messed us up by calling delayed blitzes all the time.

"Then there is 'the Henderson problem,'" Pisarcik continued. "He's so quick I'd look up and say, 'What are you doing here?'"

Henderson, who had a piece of six tackles to go with his sack, understood Pisarcik's dilemma.

"Our defense dominates a game," he said. "I feel sorry for the teams we play."

The Giants, of course, can use all the sympathy they can get. From the Cowboys:

Bobby Cox New Brave Manager?

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner was scheduled to meet today with former St. Louis third baseman Ken Boyer and Braves veteran pitcher Phil Niekro to discuss the Braves' managerial opening.

But some observers speculate the meetings are little more than courtesy calls because Turner already has made up his mind to hire New York Yankees first base coach Bobby Cox.

Turner met Cox for the first when the two lunched together Saturday, team spokesman Bob Hope said. "I'd say he (Turner) seemed to be impressed, although he still has to talk to some other people about the job," Hope said.

Earlier, Hope said the Braves, who finished in last place in their National League division this year, were looking for "an up-and-coming" manager and described Cox as the "frontrunner."

On Sunday, however, Hope said a decision on who would manage the Braves in 1978 would not be made for "a minimum of 10 days."

Cox successfully managed teams in the Yankee farm system before being called up to the parent club last season as a coach.

He was reportedly being groomed as a possible replacement for Yankee Manager Billy Martin, until Martin piloted the Yankees to the 1977 World Series championship and nailed down the job for at least another year.

Braves officials have speculated that Cox's relations with Martin were hurt because he was under consideration as a replacement, and that a move by Cox would be welcomed by both men.

boys, all they got was trouble. With Dallas defenders swarming all over him, Pisarcik was able to complete only 6 of 17 passes for 61 yards, but when you deduct the 59 yards he lost on those eight sacks, New York's net air gain came to just 2 yards.

Roger Staubach had a comfortable 15 completions for the Cowboys, including three long ones to Drew Pearson that kept Dallas scoring drives moving. Pearson's catches were for 25, 23 and 41 yards, stretching his streak to 39 games in which he has had at least one reception.

His first catch, on a third-and-15 play, kept the Cowboys moving in a drive that was completed by Staubach's 5-yard TD pass to Billy Joe DuPree. Then Pearson grabbed the 23-yarder in a drive helped by a long pass interference call against New York's Bill Bryant and climaxed by Tony Dorsett's 1-yard TD plunge.

Pearson's third grab for 41 yards came with the Cowboys en route to Efren Herrera's 35-yard field goal.

Dallas' first TD came when Jay Saldi recovered a fumbled punt at the 8-yard line and took it into the end zone—despite the fact he never got off his back. The Giants got a 51-yard field goal by Joe Danelo and a 1-yard TD by Bobby Hammond, who set up the score with a 28-yard punt return.

"Our offense is No. 1 and our defense is No. 1," said Saldi. "Now, we want our special teams to be No. 1 too. That punt return by Hammond hurt."

Irish Top Bowl Lists, Face Value Decision

By The Associated Press
Stop the presses! The main man in determining this year's college bowl picture is not grizzled old Bear Bryant of Alabama but a gentleman in clerical garb who works out of South Bend, Ind.

The name, football fans, is the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the fancy-named Faculty Board in Control of Athletics. The entire board officially has to approve Father Joyce's recommendation, but they've been listening to him for 25 years so why stop now?

This is the problem: The bowl bids go out Nov. 19 and, according to a Sugar Bowl spokesman, "I'd guess Notre Dame will be everybody's first choice, but they'll have to make a value judgment as to who the No. 1 team will be on bowl day."

So, does Notre Dame, ranked fifth in the nation last week and an impressive 69-14 victor over Georgia Tech, opt for the Cotton Bowl, whose host team probably won't be settled until No. 1-ranked Texas, a 35-21 winner over Houston, meets Texas A&M on Nov. 26?

Or do the Fighting Irish decide that Texas A&M, 10th last week and idle over the weekend, will win the Southwest Conference shootout, thereby changing Notre Dame's course to the Sugar Bowl, where second-ranked Alabama nailed down the host spot, as well as its sixth Southeastern Conference crown in seven years, by trouncing 18th-ranked Louisiana State 24-3? The Crimson Tide has two regular-season chances left to lose — slim and none, alias Miami and Auburn and you pick which is which.

Or will it be Notre Dame's opinion that

Oklahoma, currently ranked No. 3 and a 61-28 romper over Oklahoma State, will turn back Nebraska on Nov. 25 — the Sooners must first face Colorado next Saturday — win the Big Eight championship and become a stronger opponent in the Orange Bowl?

And now, the envelope, please. "It would be nice if we could wait," says a source close to Notre Dame, "but if Texas is No. 1 on Nov. 19, we've got to go with them."

Of course, 13th-ranked Clemson, which was held to a 13-13 deadlock by North Carolina — guess what Clemson's unlucky number was this weekend — could spoil all the guesswork by upsetting the Irish come Saturday.

But if all goes according to form, it will probably be Texas-Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl, Alabama against the Ohio State-Michigan Nov. 19 loser in the Sugar Bowl and Oklahoma against the Nov. 26 Penn State-Pitt winner in the Orange Bowl, the loser perhaps winding up in the Gator Bowl.

"It's still kind of a confusing picture, but I think a lot of people will be jumping on Nov. 19," says another bowl official. "The results this week (Notre Dame-Clemson, Arkansas-Texas A&M, Colorado-Oklahoma, Brigham Young-Arizona State) will start settling the dust."

Some more bowl talk:

• If Texas doesn't win the SWC championship, the Longhorns probably would prefer to remain within the state for recruiting purposes, leaving only the Bluebonnet and Sun Bowls.

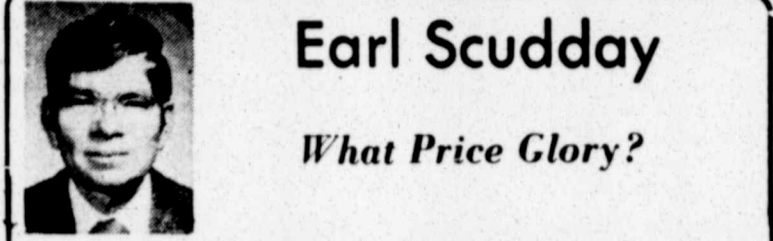

• The Liberty and Fiesta Bowls are very interested in Arkansas — don't bet against the former — and the Fiesta wouldn't mind having any SWC contender.

• Why is the Sugar Bowl leaning toward the Big Ten runner-up? Well, the Sugar has never had a Big Ten team and it had Pitt last season and Penn State the year before.

• The Sugar Bowl's contract with the SEC, currently in only its second year, is preventing the Cotton Bowl from matching No. 1 Texas and No. 2 Alabama.

• And Notre Dame, which began the season by edging Pitt only because the Panthers lost quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, then lost to Mississippi and had to come from behind in the final period to beat Purdue, has, according to still another bowl spokesman, "gone from being in a trap to a very good position, an unbelievable position considering where they were after three weeks."

The Rose Bowl, of course, will pit the Ohio State-Michigan winner against the Pacific-8 champ, either Southern California, UCLA or Washington.

Earl Scudday What Price Glory?

IT COMES AS something of a shock to realize, suddenly, how much college football has changed during the last couple of decades. It started in the years immediately following World War II, with a booming economy and a sports-hungry nation, and accelerated under the impact of television and bowl game hysteria.

The race for national prestige and big gates inevitably produced recruiting wars, with all their attendant evils. Pandora's box was open.

Still, there remained a bit of the traditional atmosphere of college athletics. The football players of the 1950s and 1960s, with their scholarship grants, off-season jobs and sales of game tickets, were not as pure as Frank Merriwell of Yale. But there was more of the amateur than the professional on the campus.

Even that remnant of the good of 'days has been fading in recent years, with the disclosure of outright buying of hot grid prospects and the increasing commercialization of the football program at many major universities. Goodbye, Frank Merriwell.

Now, the battle for recognition in the national polls and torrid competition for bowl bids has eliminated the last vestige of sportsmanship. Or so it seems to this observer. How else can one explain those tremendously lopsided scores every Saturday?

Time was when most coaches would settle for 30 or 40 points against even the most hated rival. The tally now has to climb to 50 or more to satisfy the new breed!

The national polls and the bowl scramble is the only logical explanation, unless one believes that there are a lot of coaches these days without a shred of — and here's that word again — sportsmanship.

IF ANY READER doubts this criticism is warranted, then take another look at the scores of Saturday's games.

Michigan, which was No. 1 earlier in the season and would dearly love to regain that lofty perch, beat winless Northwestern 63-20. Big deal! And Oklahoma humiliated Oklahoma State 61-28. The Sooners and the Cowboys are bitter rivals, but 61 points?

Then Notre Dame, that citadel of college football tradition, avenged a 1976 loss to Georgia Tech by destroying the Engineers 69-14. Irish Coach Dan Devine must really want that No. 1 rating and the Cotton Bowl bid.

There were some other goodies around the country, too. Louisville stomped Wichita State 51-21, USC drubbed Stanford 49-0 and Arizona State pounded Wyoming 45-0.

Even in the Southwest Conference, there has been premeditated murder of the little 'uns by the big 'uns. These are dark days for the undermanned Rice Owls, but their foes delight in running up astronomical scores on them. To their everlasting credit, the Owl players show more courage and class than many of their point-hungry foes.

SOME DEFENDERS of the ruthless powerhouses will say that the big margins cannot be avoided. But in a lifetime around football teams, I have seen only a few games that could not have been held within bounds by early substitution. A team that has its stars in the game for three quarters cannot disclaim responsibility for a 50-7 or 61-14 romp.

If a coach keeps his first units in the game until the opponent is completely demoralized, then even the scrubs often maintain the touchdown parade. But this season, the stars — not the scrubs — are doing most of the scoring, even in the fourth quarter.

It is ironic that the professional teams, so reviled by many college officials, have displayed more sportsmanship in this department than the amateurs. There are a few exceptions, but most of the pro mentors call off the dogs when they get from 25 to 30 points ahead. It may be sportsmanship, or just the realization that they have to face those guys again on another day.

PERHAPS IT IS asking too much, in this cynical era, that a little concern and mercy be shown to the hopelessly outmanned. With so much money and prestige riding on the polls, it may be impossible for coaches to think in those terms.

But surely, if college athletic competition is to be justified, there should be higher goals than winning by the largest possible margin. Whatever happened to the idea that the name of the game is sportsmanship and fair play?

Oilers Enjoy Dream Outing

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's 47-0 massacre of Chicago in a National Football League game Sunday brimmed over with the stuff that dreams are made of.

Kenny Burrough. Houston's cat-quick wide receiver, normally sees single coverage only in his dreams.

As for the Bears, the whole game was a nightmare.

Burrough rubbed his eyes in disbelief and pinched himself to be sure he was awake before hauling in touchdown bombs of 85 and 43 yards from Dan Pastorini as the Oilers returned the big play to an offense that had long been given up for dead.

The victory, which ended a three-game losing streak, evened Houston's record at 4-4 and kept them in the running for the See OILERS Page 2

She trailed 1-2 and was down 0-40 in the first set, but the U.S. Open champion fought back to even the match at 2-2 and then went on to win the next four games and the first set. Virginia Wade's big serve and Françoise Durr's sparkling net play gave them a 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 victory over Helen Cawley and Joanne Russell in the doubles final.

TOKYO — Top seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain outlasted ninth-seeded Kim Warwick of Australia 6-2, 6-1 in the final of the $100,000 Fred Perry Japan Open tennis tournament to take the $18,000 top prize. David Pearson plunged through the cheering cars for second, 100 yards behind Waltrip, with Benny Parsons third. Allison and Yarborough wrestled their battered, smoking cars around the line for fourth. Allison's Chevy, which was eased off when he saw trouble, was sixth. Lone Star Race

By The Associated Press
 The nation's longest unbeaten string and losing streak came to a halt Saturday. Where else but the wild and wonderful Lone Star Football Conference.

Texas A&I's unbeaten string ended at 46 games in a 7-6 loss at Commerce to Texas State as Tomy Hawk kicked the deciding extra point.

Stephen F. Austin ended a 15-game losing spell with a 31-13 homecoming victory over Howard Payne as halfback Bobby Mitchell dashed for 181 yards and three touchdowns.

East Texas State Coach Ernest Hawkins could scarcely believe his eyes as the Lions—the LSC's worst defensive unit statistically—handcuffed the potent A&I attack.

"They just did one hell of a job," said Hawkins of his defense, which allowed only an 80-yard scoring pass from Elvis Hartsfield to Glenn Starks. The all-important extra point fell afoul of a bobbed snap. Starks tried a pass but it fell incomplete.

In other games Saturday, Southwest Texas nudged Angelo State 23-20 and Abilene Christian mauled Sam Houston State 41-18.

Southland Chase

By The Associated Press
 Louisiana Tech University knocked all the suspense out of the Southland Conference football chase Saturday by bagging the championship trophy with a helping hand from Arkansas State.

Tech cruised to a 23-6 victory over Lamar while Arkansas State shocked Southwestern Louisiana 17-15 on homecoming in Jonesboro, Ark.

The Bulldogs from Ruston, La. own a 4-0-1 league record with Southwestern Louisiana too far behind to play catch-up with a 2-1-1 ledger. Arkansas State is 2-2 while McNeese and Texas-Arlington are 1-2. Lamar is 0-3.

In other games last week, McNeese State tripped Northwestern Louisiana 14-7 and Southern Mississippi thrashed Texas-Arlington 20-3.

Injuries Leave Sloan With Many Concerns

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Steve Sloan reflected Sunday on the previous day's 49-17 victory over TCU, finding some good things and some bad things. Then he shrugged his shoulders and said, "Well, we won. That's what counts."

And winning is something the Raiders must continue to do if they are to receive an invitation to a bowl game. The triumph over TCU upped their record to 6-2 with three games to go.

Tech plays SMU in Dallas Saturday and battles Houston in the Astrodome the following Saturday night, Nov. 19. Bowl invitations can first be extended at 6 p.m. that day.

"I feel like we have to win that SMU game to be considered for a bowl," Sloan said. "If we lose to SMU, I don't think we'll get any consideration. Winning that game would make us 7-2 and give us a chance to get into a bowl."

"I don't know if a bowl would wait until after our game with Houston to invite us, or not. I just don't know how much effect that would have on it."

At this point, Sloan has some major concerns about his team. The Raiders, banged up all season, suffered some more injuries against TCU, and several players are questionable for Saturday's contest with SMU.

Seven plays tackle Dan Irons played just seven plays versus the Horned Frogs after his knee swelled up in practice Thursday. Offensive guard Greg Wessels twisted a knee, as did defensive tackle Curtis Reed. Safety Greg Frazier sprained an arch, and cornerback Mike Patterson injured a leg.

Sloan said Irons, Wessels and Frazier are expected to miss "several days," and Patterson and Reed will be out "for awhile."

Offensive guard Greg Mahoney is still limited by a hamstring pull, although he played some against TCU, and Irons' backup, Wilbert Cunningham, is still hobbling on a sprained knee, suffered in practice last Tuesday.

Kenny Thiel, who is backing up strong tackle, quick guard and strong guard, did well against TCU, "considering that he'd only practiced there one day," Sloan said.

The Tech defense played very well against TCU, except that it allowed two touchdowns passes. Overall, it held the Horned Frogs to just 117 yards, 15 on the ground — the lowest rushing yard by an SWC team this season.

Other than the two TD passes, which gave TCU a temporary lead in the second quarter, Sloan was pleased with the pass defense.

"Our pass defense was better overall against TCU than it has been in some games," he said. "I was more confident in it this time."

The Frogs completed just nine of 25 throws and had one intercepted. The theft set up a Tech touchdown.

The Raiders threw TCU for losses 14 times and allowed the Frogs to convert on only three of 16 third-down plays. The Raider defenders set up three touchdowns with a blocked punt, a trap of the TCU punter after a bad snap and the pass interception.

Offensively, the Raiders showed some improvement. Rodney Allison was inserted into the starting lineup at the last minute and steadied the attack, although he couldn't run too effectively. He could still throw and exercise his leadership ability.

"Even at half speed, he's not bad," Sloan said. "He's probably one of the best option quarterbacks there's ever been."

"I hope he'll be improved this Saturday. If he can be at just three-quarter speed, it'll be a lot better. Right now, we're just doing the best we can on offense because we've had to shuffle a lot of inexperienced people in and out of there."

Sloan was disappointed in the team's turnovers in the first half. An interception of an Allison pass set up a TCU field goal, and two fumble recoveries by the Frogs set up their second-quarter touchdowns.

Tech's final yardage figure was 290, which isn't good, but that is somewhat deceiving. The Raiders actually rushed for 281 yards, a healthy figure, but lost 63 for a net total of 218. Tech had 332 yards at the end of three quarters, when, with the Raiders leading 42-17, a number of reserves entered the game.

With Allison not at full speed, Tech's offense was somewhat limited. Fullback Billy Taylor did most of the work and responded with an excellent performance. He rushed 26 times for 151 yards, nearly a six-yard average. He scored five touchdowns to set a school record, and caught four passes.

Taylor is the team's leading rusher with 644 yards for a 4.8-yard average per carry. He is also the club leader in receptions with 22.

Pats' Francis
Out For Year?
 FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots All-Pro tight end Russ Francis may be lost for the season with three broken ribs.

Francis was injured Sunday in the Patriots' 24-14 upset loss to Buffalo when he collided with Bills linebacker Bob Nelson on the Patriots' fourth offensive play.

A Steve Grogan pass intended for Francis was incomplete and the tight end lay motionless on the field for several minutes.

Snyder Incentive Too Much For DHS

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Snyder went and fired the shot heard round District 3-AAA last week. The Tigers, eliminated from the loop race the previous week by Estacado 21-14, decided to do some eliminating of its own for a change. Their victims: the Dunbar Panthers.

"There was some added incentive to beat them," Snyder coach Mike Jenkins said about the Tigers' 16-13 upset win over the Dunbar Panthers. "We wanted to be a factor in the district race and the only way we could do it at this point is to beat a contender which Dunbar was."

Dunbar, which could have forced a two or three way tie in 3-AAA if it beat Snyder and then turned around and poked Lake View on the final night of loop action, could do nothing right against Snyder, turning the ball over five different times.

Jenkins pointed out that one of the reasons for the abundant turnovers by Dunbar was the "aggressive" play by the Tigers.

"We were ready for Dunbar," Jenkins said. "I thought for a while that we would have a mental let down after losing to Estacado but we didn't. We got after them and played perhaps our best game of the year."

Most sports types might wonder a bit why Snyder waited until the tenth week of the year to shuck off its cloak of mediocrity.

Why wait coach?

"I wish I knew the answer to that one," Jenkins said with a laugh. "I guess for a change we weren't inconsistent as we have been for much of the year. Yeah, we've been inconsistent most of the year. We just couldn't get it all together."

Jenkins, who in his second year as head coach of the Tigers, credited the offensive and defensive lines for the win.

"The lines played their best game of the year," Jenkins pointed out. "We were able to control the line of scrimmage the whole game. And that makes a difference, a big difference."

Yes it does.

The Snyder coach also pointed out that "for a change we were able to stop the big play when we needed to."

What Jenkins was referring to, of course, was when the fumble recovery by Gary Hamilton which thwarted a last-ditch effort by the Panthers to crack the Snyder goal line late in the game.

Facing fourth-and-10 from the Snyder 22, the Panthers attempted what appeared to be a double reverse with speedster Kenneth James winding up with the ball.

However, on the exchange James fumbled the ball and Hamilton wrapped all of his 170 pounds around it.

"In the past we have given the big play to them (Dunbar)," Jenkins said. "I think we took it away from them this year with the exception of the passes."

The only "big play" that resulted in a DHS touchdown was a 71-yard pass from quarterback Darryl Green to Wayne Williams. The duo connected on a 41-yarder late in the game, too.

Many Feel Acree Will Be Fired After Friday's Midland Game

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Rumors start flying around the Permian Basin at a rapid pace every time the name Jim Acree enters a conversation.

The former Texas Tech football assistant has coached the Midland Lee Rebels for the last eight years. But that coaching term may end after Friday night's season finale with Midland High.

Oh, everything was going great a year ago as Acree's Rebels were nipping big bully Odessa Permian and heading toward the Class AAAA playoffs. But this year started off with a bang in late August when the team was disqualified from competing for the District 3-AAAA title. The University Interscholastic League ruled Lee was using illegal contact equipment during the first four days of fall workouts. Immediately after the UIL verdict, sources close to Lee's program expected this season would be Acree's last in the Rebel camp.

To add fuel to the fire, Lee (now 4-5) has lost three games this year in the last minute including two in-a-row on the last play. This team was rated third in the Texas Football pre-season poll on Class AAAA schools and many a Midland native has complained through these trying downfalls.

At the head of this storm stands veteran Midland schools athletic director Sam Cox, who really stands between a rock and a hard place. Like most athletic directors, Cox must defend his coach to an extent and he can't speak for the seven-member school board, which will review Acree's status shortly after the season ends.

"Certainly, this thing has been a real burden and it has been for some time," Cox said Sunday. "I can't speculate on what the board will do. I can't anticipate what they will do. I can only recommend."

Though the Midland athletic director admits the pressure has existed on the Acree status. Cox denies any problems have been added to the matter.

"He committed an offense and it received a lot of publicity but, actually, things have kind of leveled off. He committed a violation but it was only one violation," Cox said.

Acree's future seemed cloudy again in late October when he was suspended by the Texas High School Coaches Association. One Midland source indicates Acree intends to appeal his suspension and file an $8 million lawsuit against the coaches group, if necessary. But Cox denies any knowledge of the lawsuit and downplays the importance of the suspension, too.

Arkansans Favored In Cross-Country Meet

WACO (Special) — Despite owning a freshman-dominated team, Arkansas will be a favorite to defend its Southwest Conference cross-country champions hip here today.

The Razorbacks will share favorite's honors with Rice as the conference goes to a 10,000-meter distance for its annual meet. The course is approximately six miles.

The meet began at 11 a.m. at Connally Golf Course.

Arkansas has won four meet championships this year, led by Mike Clark and Steve Baker, members of last year's championship team.

Six of last year's top 16 runners return, led by Rice's Marty Froelick and Mike Novelli, with Froelick getting third a year ago behind the departed Niall O'Shaughnessy and Texas Tech's Terrell Pendleton.

Tech is expected to battle Texas and Baylor for third spot, led by senior Marc Johnson and sophomore Greg Lautenslager.

Joining the Tech twosome will be junior Ricky McCormick, junior Tony Lozano, and freshmen Robert Wilson, Darrell Rose and Richard Postma.

Arkansas will be shooting for a fourth straight championship. The Razorbacks won last year at Lubbock.

Tech has won two meets this year, at Wayland Baptist in a season-opener, and its own title two weeks ago.

UIL Changes Announced

AUSTIN (AP) — The University Interscholastic League's legislative council decided Sunday to allow its members to decide whether to eliminate Class AAAA football spring training and whether girls should play full or half-court basketball.

Members of the UIL voted last year to abandon the six-player, half-court form of girls' basketball still played in five states in favor of the five-player, full-court game. The council decided, however, to have members vote again in light of a recent federal court decision upholding Tennessee's six-player rule.

The council also voted to permit district and regional track and field meets to be run in meters or yards. The state meet will be run in meters.

The 20-member body also decided to allow members to vote on establishing state baseball tournaments in Class AA, A and B. Travel costs have prevented state baseball tournaments in those classifications.

AT ADDED MASTER CLEANERS FACILITY — Shown at Master Cleaners' new 3420 82nd St. shop is Judy Guy, the friendly staffmember most usually working with the customers at the modern plant serving south Lubbock, and Dan Barnett, manager and vice president.

Master Cleaners, In Two Locations, Assures Professional Garment Care

Take a combination of new convenience, professional care, long experience and there you have Master Cleaners! The convenience factor involves an added location for Master Cleaners, with the firm opening its Number 2 facility in early August at 3420 82nd St. to provide the only cleaners south of Loop 289. Many Lubbock residents have long depended on Master Cleaners, patronizing the still-existing and very popular business at 2301 34th St. R.D. Barnett, 25 years in business, and president of the firm, still serves at the 34th Street facility, with Dan Barnett, vice president, managing the newer establishment just a block west of Indiana on 82nd Street. Great For South Lubbock Everything is designed for customer convenience and for a quality operation at the new and added location. Large concrete aprons make access easy, with plenty of parking space and two drive-up windows provided. Professional care remains the watchword at both locations. Master Cleaners watches for tears, rips, missing buttons, etc. . . . all the little things that can be so important; they want your clothing to be right and look right when it is dry cleaned at Master Cleaners. Expert attention is assured by such staffmembers as Clara Dooloff, presser with the firm for 25 years! Dan Barnett emphasizes that Master Cleaners specializes in such needs as wedding gown cleaning and preservation, leathers, suedes and furs, to say nothing of the very excellent alteration and drapery service. One-day service is provided at no extra charge. Master Cleaners No. 2 is open Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. with Saturday hours of 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. (On Saturdays, items brought in by 10:30 a.m. can be out by 1 p.m.!) "For new convenience, for knowing that your clothing and drapes will receive only the finest care, and for knowledge that your business is appreciated, visit the new Master Cleaners now. It will become a habit!"

Holiday Needs Receive Gary's Attention In Services, Items

Gary's Frozen Foods, the firm traditionally providing the finest in nutritious barbecue, corn dogs, super dogs, custom cooking, and more, has done it again: Gary's for the second year is stocking the new dynamic nut cracker (electric) that it offered last holiday season. The response at that time was so great that Gary again is offering this "satisfaction guaranteed" unit with a full one-year guarantee. The price: $49.95, at Gary's, 109th Street at South University Avenue, phone 745-1933. (Not only would this electric nut cracker be most convenient during the holidays, but wouldn't it be a great Christmas gift?) This electric unit, cracks any size pecans, English walnuts, Brazil nuts, etc., with little or no damage to kernels. Each nut is locked and cracked automatically! Kernels and shells fall out for fast repeat. A safety shield prevents against flying shell particles. Actually "it is the fastest hand-fed nut cracker available," with nothing to adjust; one machine cracks all, and the estimated life is 10,000 lbs. pecans! Custom Cooking And don't forget the custom cooking services, and the other fine Gary's products. Gary's is glad to custom prepare any meat, at any time, whether it is wild game or whatnot. Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritious goodness. Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef Brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef suet and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat. This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label. Also, Gary's still has something else relatively new: the 10-pack of Gary's Corn Dogs! Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry. Corn Dogs from Gary's are enjoyed by kids and adults alike. Also, one still can get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef Brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket. The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace. These products, long recognized as the finest obtainable, are prepared in the modern, enlarged, functionally attractive quarters for Gary's, specifically designed and built for service, in south Lubbock. Every Gary's Frozen Foods product is an experience in goodness! School children, their parents and a lot of other people (unexpected guests included) can attest to the deliciousness of Gary's Super Dogs, corn dogs — and the Gary's Bar-B-Que package available on retail basis. Gary Tidwell, plant manager Jack Conner, and the entire staff at Gary's Frozen Foods personally devote all efforts to insure that Gary's Super Dogs, for example, are made from the finest wieners, dipped in a batter that is a distinctly different flour mixture. Gary's Frozen Foods products are U.S.D.A. inspected every day, insuring the use of the best meats and preparation.

ELECTRONIC NUT CRACKER AGAIN MARKETED — these for the unit cost of $49.95 plus postage and handling. Gary Tidwell emphasizes that not only is this unit available at charge of $2.50. Gary's Frozen Foods, but the firm will be glad to mail

CABINETS, FURNITURE ITEMS, EVEN TOYS ORIGINATE AT WOODCRAFTERS

Woodcrafters Home Of Quality Workmanship, Newest In Ideas

For the finest in residential and commercial cabinets and other woodwork, it is Woodcrafters, at 2205 Auburn St.

This Lubbock firm "that offers more" was opened back in May by long-experienced co-owners Kenneth Olson and Terrell Hutchens.

Both are graduates of Southwestern University in Oklahoma where each majored in Industrial Arts.

They came to Lubbock right after graduation in 1967 to work for the next five years as industrial arts teachers for the Lubbock Independent School District. The next five years both taught vocational courses for the schools, and during this time Kenneth and Terrell kept up with their cabinet work during the summers. They handled jobs such as the 8-ft. traveling medical display cabinets for the Tech Medical School, together with many residential cabinet jobs.

Woodcrafters has the best in machinery enabling these men to give detailed and exact cuts and a beautiful, even finish job whether the project is cabinets or furniture, for example. They are veritable specialists in commercial and residential wood work.

Kenneth and Terrell are pleased to give the customer a finished product on the desired deadline . . . without sacrificing quality of their work. Besides all this, they can give one the necessary consultation on what is best in design or placement when you may be unsure.

Wooden Puzzles
 Something of immediate interest: for Christmas and the months beyond, Woodcrafters has designed and cut 1 1/2-inch wooden puzzles just right for a youngster or as a novelty piece for one's desk. These animals (nine varieties and more to come) are 10 inches tall and are cut into four or five pieces so that they can be used as a puzzle. They can even stand . . . and one could make an entire zoo and not have the pieces scattered everywhere. These are left in the natural wood finish and offer greater opportunity for the youngsters to crayon or paint their own preference in faces and clothes, for example.

Add to all this that these are practically indestructible, and one discovers their utility as really great gifts. (Terrell and Kenneth will build to any size, should one desire a larger cut-out.)

These toys may be found at the Card Cottage in the Terrace Shopping Center, and at Woodcrafters, 2205 Auburn St.

May we have the pleasure of working with you at Woodcrafters? Remember, for finest woodwork, call 747-4741 or (residence) phone 747-0336, or come by the firm at 2205 Auburn.

Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery Tells 'Money-Saving Truth'

"Many of you have profited — for months — by checking the ads of Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery on these pages, and purchasing accordingly. (Selecting at the same time from the hundreds of other items already marked at 'rock bottom' at this popular Lubbock grocery that recently celebrated its second anniversary.)

"Others of you possibly have yet to learn the money-saving truth . . . that Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery can be a tremendous friend to the family budget. May we prove this at a very early date?"

See the Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery ad on these pages for specific examples of the bargains to be found at this unique Lubbock store, at even lower-than-usual prices to celebrate the firm's anniversary.

Certainly, all will agree that it is advantageous to shop more carefully than ever before . . . for price and value. Then . . . be sure and check the Lubbock Kash & Karry ad.

(Not only this week, but check each week on representative money-saving staple items provided by this distinctive firm at 901 N. Ave. Q.

"Did you know that groceries still can be purchased in Lubbock at rock-bottom prices — and — with full carry-out and sackng service?"

"If you are shopping elsewhere, you may be doing much of the work yourself, and still be paying too much; so — try Lubbock Kash & Karry Wholesale Grocery and pocket the savings!"

Located at 901 N. Ave. Q, phone 747-6033, this firm is Lubbock's only independently and wholly owned and operated wholesale grocery.

Low Overhead

It takes pride in "selling for less," a policy made possible by its cash arrangement, low overhead, purchases directly from the manufacturer, its policy of "pick it up yourself and save the difference," and local warehousing.

Co-owners are Tommy Toombs and Noble Sides, with Toombs as manager. Sides, formerly with the Ben E. Keith Co., enjoys a wide acquaintance in the area, as does Tommy who also is a long-time Lubbock resident. Both are on the job to give their personal attention.

In its fully-stocked quarters on North Avenue Q, Lubbock Kash & Karry sells in quantities as small as one-half case lots, and packaged meats, etc., by the package.

A very good stock of refrigerated products, including these packaged meats, is maintained.

The firm has enjoyed acceptance and appreciation of those even coming long distances to take advantage of the prices and selection. More than 1,600 items are included in the stock that veritably affords "anything for the grocery business," and housed in a big 6,000 sq. ft. building at the north Lubbock location.

Staffmembers are on hand to load merchandise for the purchaser, remember.

Everything is top quality, with definitely no "seconds" even at the low prices.

SOUTH PLAINS LEADING BAND HOUSE
5302 AVENUE Q
Briercroft Shopping Center
"FOR OVER A QUARTER CENTURY"

Earl Ray Music, In Briercroft, Suggests Holiday Musical Gifts

Wouldn't an ideal Christmas present for that band student son or daughter be a quality instrument from the Earl Ray Music Co. in Briercroft Center?
"Selection there will assure that you are all set — with the best — for current school needs, and beyond."
Service does not end with the rental or sale at this leading band house. Earl Ray maintains the largest band instrument repair department on the South Plains, with fulltime specialists on the job.
"Wouldn't this be a very good time for you as a band student to 'trade up' to a quality instrument to best serve you in the progress that you have made in your music pursuit?"
"Let us at Earl Ray Music Co. show you how easy and rewarding this can be."
Reliance upon the Earl Ray Music Co.

Long a standby as "the South Plains" leading Band House," the Earl Ray Music Co. at 5302 Ave. Q in the Briercroft Shopping Center, pledges the finest in instrument repair and sales, even leasing and trade-up.
For more than a quarter century of being known and trusted by band directors, parents and bandmen throughout the area, Earl Ray Music Co. early in 1974 moved from a former 1502 Ave. Q quarters to the large modern home it now enjoys — a facility that has met with exceptional response from customers who actually are excited about the added conveniences and still-fine service at Earl Ray's.

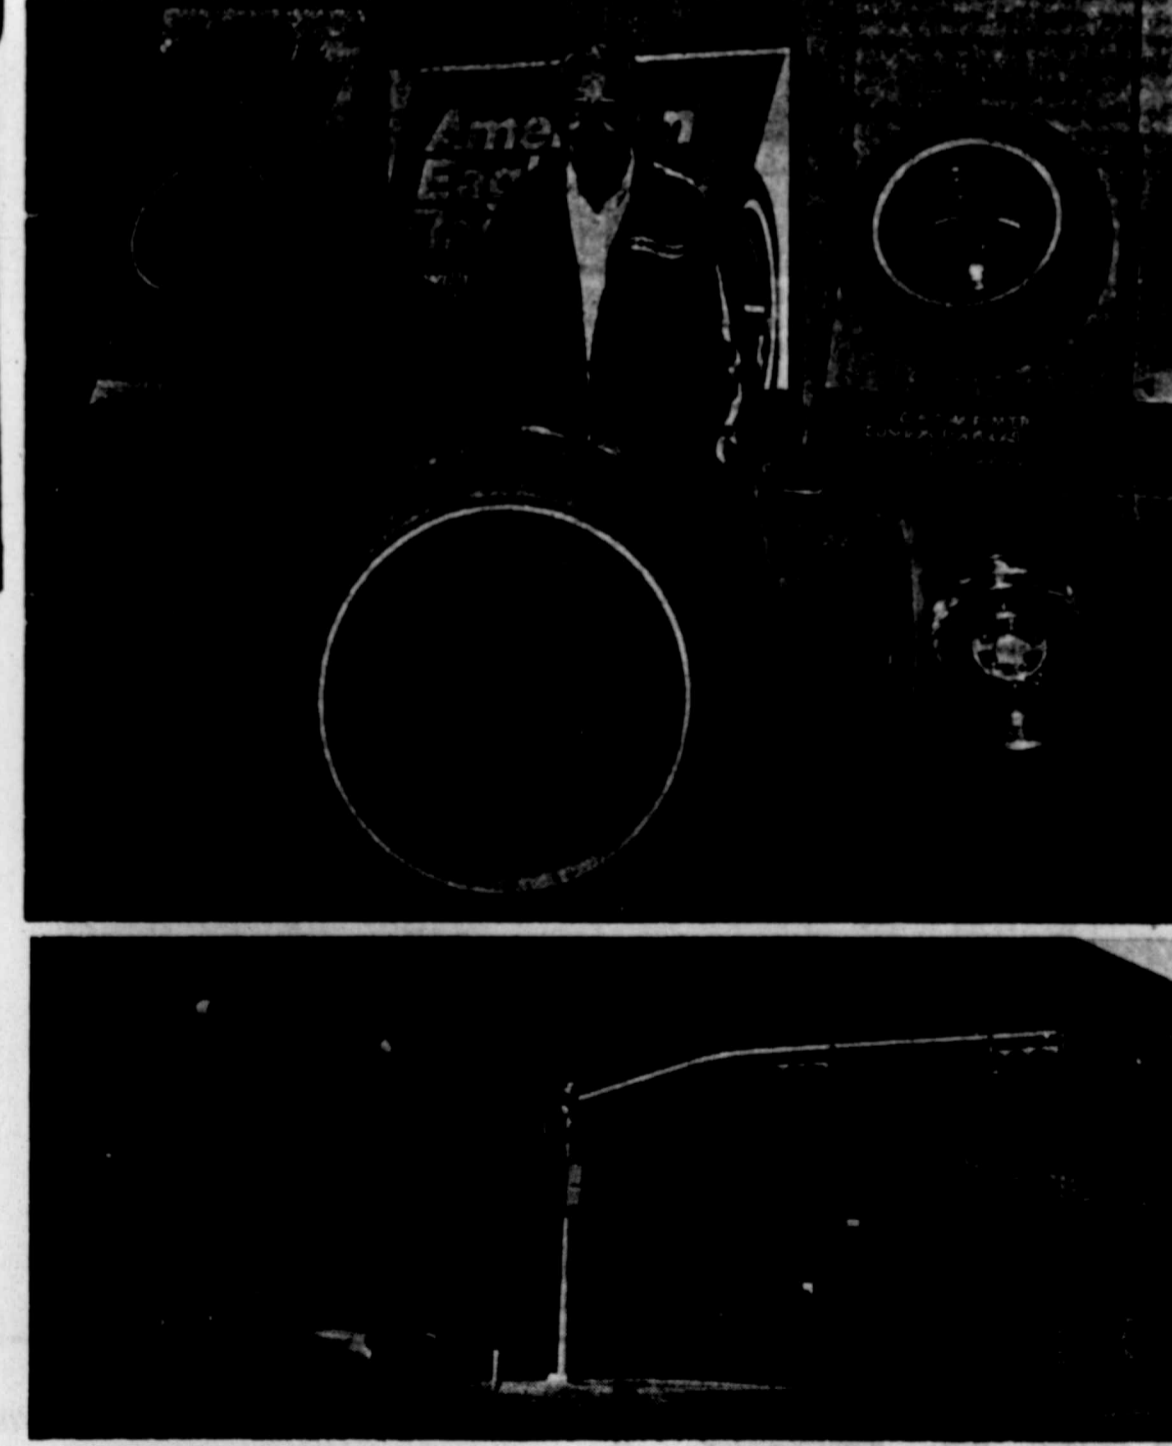

Selling, servicing and trade-rent-lease of fine instrument lines still is the whole business of Earl Ray. Whether selection if from Conn, Vito, Selmer, Bunday, LeBlac, Ludwig, Bach, Olds, Gemeinhardt, etc., quality is assured.
More and more students throughout Lubbock and entire area are learning the advantages of "trading up" to a better instrument at Earl Ray Music Co. As the students progress in their musical careers, the "trading up" is especially advantageous.
"Whether or not you purchased your present band instrument from Earl Ray, they will be glad to give you a price you are sure to appreciate with trade on a better one.
A wide choice of instruments is stocked.

Month-Long McWhorter's Tire Sale Includes Every Tire In Huge Stock

Every tire in the house is sale priced throughout November!
At McWhorter's, that is.
"For the unbeatable combination of the world's finest tires and the best tire deals in West Texas, rely upon McWhorter's, home-owned and home-managed, at 1008 Texas Avenue in downtown Lubbock.

Imagine... sale prices on the famous Goodyear tire line right here before the holidays... when such deals can be especially appreciated, whether in preparation of ski trips, a Thanksgiving trip, or wheels for Christmas gifting!
Tire Chains
(Speaking of ski treks, it is that time again, and McWhorter's is ready with a stock of chains in all sizes. Wise advice is to get these chains now, before the rush.)

Front-end alignment and brake service are other key reasons for turning to McWhorter's before the holiday rush, too.
See the McWhorter ads in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal for specific prices.

McWHORTER'S COMES THROUGH AGAIN — Not only have tire specials been announced throughout November by Lee Coil (pictured) of McWhorter's, but availability of tire chains in all sizes is told to aid in the ski trips ahead.

Business & Industrial Review

PLAUDITS FOR DEPARTMENT HEAD — Mort Salit, right, is congratulated here by J.G. Treadaway, Woolco manager in Lubbock, upon designation as "Outstanding Employee of the Month". Salit, one of the best acquainted and most popular of the Woolco family of dedicated staffers, has been with the firm for more than five years. A native of Baltimore, Md., Salit attended the University of Baltimore, and has been in the retail and wholesale field for 30 years. He is a 14-year Lubbock resident, and he and his wife have two daughters. Salit exemplifies the type employee Woolco is proud to claim. Treadaway emphasizes, fitting in with the store's constant endeavors to "become your favorite store".

Layaway, Other Purchase Options Enable Easiest Christmas Shopping

"Each year, don't you envy the shopper who plans ahead and avoids the last-minute rush of the Christmas season, the person who already has all gifts selected and often paid for in full!"
Woolco makes this all so, so easy for you, too, with its already-huge Christmas-oriented stock added to each department, and with the layaway and purchase options that make for easy shopping, whatever the need.
"All merchandise except seasonal or close-out items may be put on layaway. In fact, we at Woolco are now taking layaways for Christmas which will be held until Dec. 16. Now, wouldn't it be wise to select now and use this convenient plan to ease the Christmas rush at later date?"

This added convenience (in addition to Woolco's three types of charge accounts) enables one to put only 10 per cent down and place almost any type of merchandise on layaway.
Nominal Charge
The handling charge for this service is only 50 cents for purchase up to $50; $1 for purchases between $50 and $100, and $2 for $100 and up. Payments then are to be made at least once per month.
The efficient and friendly credit department personnel will be most happy to serve in either the handling of layaways or in opening a charge account with Woolco.

Options Listed
The three already-popular credit purchase options include:
First, there is the Revolving Charge Card that enables the customer to shop at his or her leisure, making one charge at one of the convenient checkouts in the front of the store.
Second is the 30-60-90 day account for major purchases, allowing one to pay one-third of the amount per month... with no finance charge!

"Third, we have the Installment Payment account that allows you to make just one small monthly payment, with the finance charge figured on the unpaid balance."

DESIGNED FOR MAXIMUM CUSTOMER SERVICE — Pearl Garza, pictured, is one of the several Woolco staffers on hand to assist in the multiple purchase plans especially appreciated in Christmas planning.

"Along with the Woolco credit service, we gladly accept your BankAmericard or Master Charge purchases."

Toy Selection Complete At Woolco

For a complete selection of toys from which to choose for Christmas... again it is Woolco!
And now is the time to see and select from so much that is new... and all at Woolco's low, low prices.
There are dolls and accessories, with all the newest dolls including Baby Come Back, Baby Heartbeat, Donnie and Marie and others, plus a wide variety of the "old standards" such as Barbie, Ken and others.
There are new lines of clothing to fit all popular 11 1/2-inch dolls, too.

Plus toy refrigerators and appliances... everything to set up toy housekeeping.
There is an extensive selection of stuffed animals, and a wide variety of riding toys (sidewalk bicycles and tricycles included)... the Green Machines and Yellow Jackets, Hot Wheels of all sizes, pedal cars and battery-powered riding toys!
What a selection of games and puzzles... all the great and new table games, Star Wars games and puzzles, Jaws and Monopoly, even large floor games, miniature pool tables and pinball machines.

There is a wide selection of HO race sets and train sets, featuring Aurora, the biggest name in HO racing. There are HO train sets at low prices, and a complete line of accessories.
Plus cars and trucks in abundance. Select from Tonka, Nylint and others. All this and much more contributes to Woolco's correct claim to "a complete toy selection, ready now for Christmas."

GEARED FOR WINTER, FOR FASHION, FOR FIT — Children's Shoe World prides in the things that count. Shown with quality footwear for the season are staffmembers Wanda Teal, Glenn Hobgood and Alan Allgood. Note the firetruck that in every season proves a delight for the children who look forward to a trip to Children's Shoe World.

Children's Shoe World Stocks Footwear Needs For Season

"Make Children's Shoe World your winter, school and holiday footwear headquarters: they have earned the title!"

This invitation from "the largest in West Texas" is qualified in unmistakable manner by the friendly firm's regular and corrective footwear, its provision of the right facilities and by the interest and qualified help of its staff.

Actually famous for fit and quality, Children's Shoe World, at 3624 50th St., stays at the forefront in every season.

Boots, Galoshes

Examples of the exciting current offering include gaucha type boots, dingo boots, and (note this, for sure) a complete assortment of rubber footwear — overshoes, galoshes.

A complete line of Child Life and Lazy Bones shoes are stocked. The Child Life really "dressy", slinky patent shoes are in top style, and available here.

One's doctor's prescription is gladly filled in these famous shoes at Children's Shoe World; after all, the firm works in close harmony with the doctor, following his advice and prescription. It would do no less as the largest store in West Texas serving orthopedic needs.

Those visiting the store within recent weeks have found that it has been most attractively and functionally remodeled and enlarged for maximum customer service through arrangement, display and atmosphere.

It all adds to the fact that the people at Children's Shoe World are capable and honest in their effort to meet the needs of all children.

Alan Allgood, co-manager, brings to the Lubbock area many years of shoe fitting experience. He emphasizes, and correctly so, that parents should be conscious of their children's foot problems, then bringing them to Children's Shoe World where "we can take care of your needs".

Wanda Teal, co-manager, is a native Lubbockite and began servicing little feet here back in 1951. She has been with the firm since its opening in 1967, and is fitting the second generation of many families.

Rounding out the very capable staff is Glenn Hobgood, another who recognizes and emphasizes the importance of proper fitting for the children.

This is a staff worth knowing — and depending upon.

E.R. Handy, owner and founder, takes pride in the services rendered, in the staff capabilities, in the progress and continued growth of the business, knowing that well-pleased customers tell others!

"If you have never shopped Children's Shoe World (the largest in West Texas serving orthopedic needs, remember), then a new experience and treat awaits, for we take pride in putting you, our customer, number one!"

The entire personnel at this unique children's shoe headquarters believe that it is much more important to fit a child correctly in a quality shoe best for his or her feet than it is to simply make a sale.

Even with all the comfort and correct fitting, which is stressed, the Children's Shoe World is well aware of style and brand names, and continually keeps abreast of what is new and best.

Correctly fitted shoes for the youngster is among the most important items in the healthy development of his or her body, each staffmember agrees. From the vital "first step" days until the feet are fully formed for normal growth, the child deserves the best in shoes.

Remember — an extensive line of regular and corrective footwear for children is the rule every day at Children's Shoe World, 3624 50th St. in Lubbock.

Store hours are 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. (including Saturdays).

Both BankAmericard and Master Charge are welcomed.

Alan Allgood, Wanda Teal and Glenn Hobgood have the extensive experience in fitting regular and orthopedic footwear: they know how to recognize the possibilities of foot troubles in youngsters. Most important, they will be the first to recommend that you consult a doctor before making a shoe choice if there is the slightest possibility of complications.

"Isn't this the type of firm to which you should trust your children's feet?"

Tole Painting, Oil Classes Among Mrs. B's Pre-Holiday Considerations

A most impressive schedule of tole painting, oil instruction, workshops and seminars has been announced for forthcoming weeks at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts.

Due to the enthusiastic acceptance and the popularity of Mary Lou Garrison's previous tole seminars at Mrs. B's, a return engagement is announced.

All-day sessions will be held Nov. 17, 18, and 19, with night seminars on Thursday and Friday (Nov. 17, 18).

Enrollment is underway, and one should register at earliest possible date to be assured of a place in the seminar.

And on Nov. 14, 15 and 16, one-day workshops in florals and landscapes will be conducted by Jeanie Lewis, much-sought-after oil instructor. Five of these workshops will be held in all.

Other one-day workshops are "in the mill" at Mrs. B's, and one should inquire for details. The qualified instructor list includes Charl Egeland and Sarah Storrs (tole painting) and Jo Daugherty and Sally Carlier, oils.

All this, plus the tremendous stock of craft supplies at Mrs. B's, 5105 29th Drive, phone 797-5850, enables preparation for unique Christmas gifts. But there is no time to delay!

Daily there are new arrivals throughout the stock, and frequent visits are invited and advised to stay abreast of all that is new. Everything at Mrs. B's, owned and actively managed by Margie Berryhill, says "welcome." The easy access, off-street parking in an uncrowded area, a building specifically designed and remodeled for the big craft and gift shop, the attractive arrangement within, the ample classroom area, the huge stock, and the friendliness of Margie and her daughter, Stacey, all correctly prove "We're glad you are among our customers."

Outstanding in Field

As to the instruction in the near future, most tole painters are familiar with the expertise of Mary Lou Garrison of the Village Tole House in Arlington (Tex.). A Master Tole Teacher, her drawings and paintings have been shown extensively.

Jeanie Lewis is a very outstanding artist, and is a native of Lubbock, though later living in Arizona, New Mexico and Houston.

Jeanie's main media is oil, but she also likes to work with acrylics. Her paintings are primarily landscapes and florals. Bright, happy colors dominate.

"I feel that with enough patience and desire, anyone can learn to paint," Jeanie emphasizes.

All materials necessary in any of the seminars, workshops and classes at Mrs. B's are stocked there.

Picture frames are now stocked, as is a very, very good selection of wood for the tole paintings.

It is an outstanding pre-holiday season at Mrs. B's!

AMONG CLASS PROJECTS — This still life will be one of the paintings featured in forthcoming workshops at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts. Note the accompanying story for details regarding the impressive instructors and announced schedules.

HAROLD HARVEY, INSURANCE SPECIALIST, PLACES SERVICE FOREMOST

Modern, Knowledgeable Service Sure At Harold Harvey Agency

"Is your insurance program up to date, meeting the needs of today and tomorrow?"

"Does your insurance fully serve the purpose of your personal preference?"

"Does it need review by a trusted and knowledgeable expert in the field?"

Then, turn to Harold Harvey, whether the need is for complete planning, for review, for mortgage cancellation life insurance or whatnot.

Harold Harvey's continuing efforts and subsequent successes in insurance service are matter of record.

For a fact, the Harold Harvey Agency (No. 5, Briercroft Office Park, phone 747-6673) can materially assist, professionally and correctly, in the insurance picture.

Harvey takes pride in representing companies with good records, and prompt payments can be (and should be) a big factor in choosing one's insurance agent. Harvey prides in promptness.

The Harold Harvey Agency calls to attention some other situations in which they can be of prime benefit:

"Re-evaluation of one's insurance makes good sense what with property values going up every day."

Harvey points out the value of an "inflation-guard endorsement" that annually increases the insurance coverage of the home. This endorsement can be put on an annual basis on current homeowners' policies at a cost far from prohibitive. It provides a realistic protection of values.

"Specializing in fire and casualty insurance, the Harold Harvey Agency can render services that can be rewarding for every client."

Mortgage Cancellation
Among the key areas in which Harvey can render a special service is that of home owners mortgage cancellation life insurance, paying off the mortgage in full should the breads in... or die.

The complete homeowners and mortgage cancellation package can be placed through Harvey with one company for maximum convenience and efficiency—the Floyd West Co. organization with which Harvey has had close contact since back in 1959.

Harvey also is a specialist in bonds, whether the need is administrator, guardianship, various types of court bonds, etc.

Whatever the insurance or bond need, Harold Harvey can simplify the problem. It is as elemental and easy as that.

Package Policy
A package policy that affords a substantial decrease in premiums in one of the services made available at the Harold Harvey Insurance Agency!

Applicable to commercial interests including hotel-motel and office, institutional, apartment, mercantile, processing and industrial, the Multi-Peril "package plan" is now available in Texas, and Harold Harvey at No. 5 Briercroft Office Park, is eager to assist with this program in improving one's insurance situation.

In the complex world of insurance, it makes good sense to rely on Harold Harvey, a veteran in the field of "modern insurance practices with old-fashioned service."

Harvey is no newcomer to the insurance field or as a trusted friend and capable adviser to Lubbock and area policyholders.

"Visit or call Harold Harvey now. It could well improve your insurance picture."

Precision Tune In Lubbock Stresses 'Good Product At Reasonable Price'

"Doesn't your car need a tune-up? Does the cooler weather hint that one of these mornings it will be c-o-l-d, and a properly functioning vehicle will be a necessity?"

Then, isn't a trip in order, now, to Precision Tune, before the rush period? Open since March, Precision Tune, 34th Street at Avenue Q in Lubbock, has apparently made quite a good name for itself. Customer response has been reported exceptionally good by the manager and local co-owner, Hank Tunnell.

Motor tune-up is the only business of the firm, Tunnell, an area native, emphasizes, with prices sure to appeal.

Prices Appeal
For a 4-cylinder auto, tune-up price is $25.50, for 6 cylinder, $27.50, and for 8 cylinder, $29.90, with these prices including parts and labor!

Involved are all-new Champion spark plugs, points and condenser, adjust timing and set carburetor plus (if needed) at no extra charge, replacement of P.C.V. valve, fuel filter, rotor cap, distributor cap and three spark plug wires.

Good, qualified mechanics are another pride of Tunnell who actively is on the job, with the clearly-marked, easy-to-find shop open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Fridays and until 5 p.m. Saturdays.

Speedy Service
Appointments, though not absolutely necessary, are welcomed. Same-day service is the rule, and one usually has to wait only 45 minutes to one hour, Hank reveals.

Modern Equipment
Latest equipment is utilized, including the Marquette engine analyzer and the Clayton dynamometer.

Precision Tune has a three-page list of guidelines including a "good product at reasonable price". Close check is kept on the quality of all service.

Success Story
Precision Tune was founded in October 1976 in Beaumont by Bill Childs, who still is president of Precision Tune, Inc., of Beaumont. His first venture (in a vacant service station in Beaumont) has grown until he owns five shops in the Texas-Louisiana area including partnership in the Lubbock operation.

"It adds to a business that will have close to $1 million in gross sales when all the projected shops (eight or 10 more) are opened this year."

Childs says he got the idea for his tune-up shops from a 1974 report on automotive tune-up shops. After visiting a similar operation in California and researching the concept, he started his own business that has resulted in the noteworthy expansion.

Any doubts Childs had about generating interest in his project were dispelled this summer after International Entrepreneurs and Business Week magazine published articles on Precision Tune and the franchising of tune-up shops. Childs said he received inquiries from more than 150 persons as far away as Alaska and Canada.

High traffic, visibility and accessibility mark the Precision Tune operations, and the Lubbock facility is no exception.

"Meet Hank Tunnell and his staff, note their know-how, their modern equipment, and their devotion to service ... and you'll discover why Precision Tune, in Lubbock, is recommended."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW®

by Whipple and Borth

Pentagon Sets Goal For Women Soldiers

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Pentagon has its way, women will constitute one-tenth of the armed service's enlisted personnel by 1983.

To reach this goal, the Defense Department says it plans to increase the current 95,400 enlisted women to 200,600 over the next five years.

This would be the largest force of service-women since World War II.

The plan assumes some changes in law and regulations to permit women to serve in combat zones and aboard Navy ships.

A study ordered by Defense Secretary Harold Brown earlier this year projected potential savings of more than $1 billion a year if the plan is carried out.

The study also predicted an improvement in quality of the all-volunteer force.

Manpower authorities say women recruits, all with at least high school education and some with college training, have demonstrated that they learn fast, perform well and stay longer in service than many male volunteers.

The drive for more women will coincide with an expected drop in the pool of available young men because the teenage population is declining, experts say.

Some senior Army officers oppose the increase in uniformed women, contending they would lose time during pregnancy and might not bear up under extended hardships in the field.

The views are challenged by other officers and civilian officials who claim men have a worse "lost time" record than women. Males have higher rates of desertion, absence without leave, alcohol and drug abuse.

The training of women has been made more rugged, particularly in the Army, and officials say they have done well.

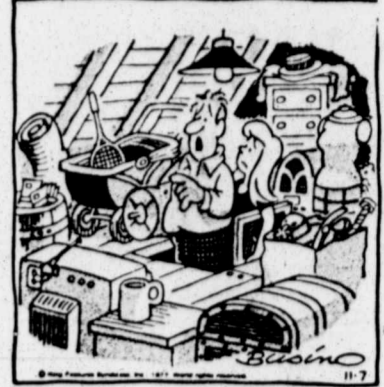

The range of military jobs open to women has been expanded in recent years beyond the traditional clerical and medical assignments. Women drive trucks, maintain engines and sensitive equipment, fly planes, serve in the military police and carry out many other assignments once restricted to men.

But prohibitions against women in combat have complicated the problems of officials who favor a larger force of females.

To cope with this, Army staff officers are developing support roles for women in combat zones, while prohibiting service in the strictly fighting branches such as infantry and armor.

For example, women soldiers may drive Army trucks close to the West German border with communist countries in peacetime. But they would not be allowed to do so during a war. New rules now under study may change that.

Grand Canyon Draws Criminals

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) — The natural wonder of the Grand Canyon makes it the most popular national park in the country, attracting 3.2 million visitors a year. But not all are there for the view.

Along with the throngs who come to stand awestruck at the canyon's rim or to hike the grueling trails to the Colorado River below, the canyon draws dope peddlers, thieves and killers.

Although the name — Grand Canyon — conjures up an image of isolation and raw nature as anything on earth, its rims are nearly urbanized by visitors. On some days in July, which is the busiest month at the canyon, as many as 20,000 people visit.

The urbanization is having its effects. Thirteen years ago, there were 94 criminal cases handled in state and federal courts here. In 1976, the number hit 1,000 and it is going higher this year, law enforcement officials report.

Most of the crime involves break-ins, shoplifting and drug possession. But there are more serious occurrences as well.

Last January, for example, Michael A. Sherman and his wife Charlotte, both 27, were found dead, shot through the head, at Powell Point, less than one mile from the main village here.

The Shermans were traveling cross-country and were described as "typical tourists" getting a look at the canyon. The motive was robbery, authorities said, although the case has not been solved.

Last year, 198 persons were arrested for investigation of shoplifting and there were 49 larcenies and 14 burglaries reported.

Hundreds of visitors report thefts from their cars and motel and cabin rooms. Backpackers on the trails and in the campsites of the huge gorge report that their gear is stolen.

One day this summer, Park Service officials said, about 20 visitors reported that cameras were missing from their cars. Most of the equipment was recovered later in Eugene, Ore., and part of the evidence was film in the cameras with pictures of the canyon.

A force of 34 Park Service rangers patrols the canyon during the busy summer, while half as many are on duty in the winter months. All are trained as law enforcement officers, says Chief Ranger Gary Kuiper.

"You have to be ready for almost anything," Kuiper says. The rangers, who enforce Park Service rules and federal laws, are assisted by a U.S. magistrate here. In addition, a Coconino County sheriff's deputy is assigned here full time.

The Civilian Conservation Corps, a Depression-era public works program, left its mark at the canyon in the form of a well-used jail. Last year, officials say, 184 persons were held in its single cell.

Also within the realm of the canyon's law enforcement officers is traffic control. Traffic violations are committed frequently by motorists too busy gawking at the canyon to pay attention to the road, officials say.

In 1976, officers issued 1,241 traffic warnings, and there were 187 traffic collisions, including one in which a person was killed.
