

School Officials Defend Building Plans

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Armed with statistics of booming residential construction in the city's southwestern sector, Lubbock school officials today opened a federal court hearing with a defense of their proposal for new facilities outside Loop 289.

The U.S. Justice Department will try to shoot down the Lubbock Independent School District building program by arguing that new schools in predominantly white southwest areas would hurt desegregation efforts in other parts of the city.

U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward picked up on the department's theme during district Supt. Ed Irons' presentation of the "drastic growth" that has occurred south of the loop in recent years.

In formulating plans for construction of four elementary schools and a junior high outside Loop 289, Woodward asked Irons, "You gave no consideration to the effect on integration?"

"Not in printed form," Irons told the judge. However, the superintendent indicated he would explain later the other factors school trustees pondered before they settled on the $11.9 million bond program voters overwhelmingly approved in February.

The Justice Department has asked Woodward not only to block the proposed new schools, but also to require the school district to implement a comprehensive "systemwide" desegregation plan.

Those issues are not expected to be explored until later this week.

This morning's session, recessed at noon until 2 p.m., dealt only with Irons' explanation of what the school district has done since Woodward's 1976 desegregation order, affecting primarily eastside secondary schools, went into effect.

Irons also detailed the events that led to the new proposed building program.

He said the district has made few changes in the school attendance zones since the 1970 court-ordered desegregation plan.

The only changes were the result of construction of new elementary schools — such as Williams and Mahon — as approved by the federal government, the closing of K. Carter Elementary School and the elimination of some optional attendance areas, Irons said.

The Carter school closing is considered important to the case. The Justice Department contends that the elimination of Carter and other inner-city schools has discouraged integration — part of the department's basis for seeking a new desegregation plan.

However, Irons said Carter was closed because of a "sharp decline" in enrollment due to the effects of a ravaging tornado in 1970 and the encroachment of apartment complexes on what had been a residential neighborhood.

When it was closed in 1970-71, Irons said, Carter had just 75 students.

Irons noted the district's proposal to build three new elementary schools south of Loop 289 to reduce overcrowded conditions at Parsons, Murfee and Williams schools inside the loop.

He said 1,703 elementary students now live in the proposed attendance zones of the planned new schools. In addition, Irons said, the district hopes to build a junior high school south of the loop to relieve congested Evans Junior High.

By 1981, he said, more than 1,300 junior high students will live south of Loop 289.

The area northwest of Loop 289 is not growing as rapidly, having only 230 students right now, Irons said. However, in three to four years, that area too will need an elementary school, he said.

Irons said the schools south of Loop 289 had been approved by the Texas Education Agency's technical assistance team. The team did a study of the situation in 1976 "at the suggestion of federal attorneys" and found that "at least one" elementary school is warranted, he said.

Carter Supports Major Jobs Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter formally threw his support today behind the controversial Humphrey-Hawkins bill that would set a 1983 unemployment rate of 4 percent as a national goal without mandating specific programs to combat joblessness.

"This is an ambitious objective and one that may prove very difficult to achieve, but setting our sights high challenges us to do our best," Carter said in a statement issued at the White House.

The administration's support for the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1977, the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, culminates negotiations that began in June for a policy aimed at reducing unemployment. The legislation is named after Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., its original sponsors.

The bill, according to Carter's statement, commits the federal government to achieving full employment while remaining committed to achieving "reasonable price stability."

The 4 percent unemployment rate translates to a rate of 3 percent for all adults in the work force. The October jobless rate was 7 percent.

The bill would also:

- Establish a framework for economic policy decisions, with the administration sending to Congress its goals for employment, unemployment, production and income over a five-year period;

- Recognize that "special government efforts" are needed to fight high unemployment "but that primary emphasis should be placed on expanding job opportunities in the private sector";

- Recognize that monetary and fiscal policies, rather than government control of private production, wages and prices, must be used to achieve full employment and price stability.

Unemployment has shown little fluctuation in recent months and little response to government programs.

An earlier version of the bill was much more controversial, because it mandated specific government programs to attain the lower unemployment goal.

Carter said last year during the presidential campaign that he supported the bill's concept, but he never endorsed the actual legislation.

Although the compromise legislation offers no specific programs to provide jobs, it makes some important changes in the way the government plans economic policies.

It recommends that the president consider several programs for fighting unemployment, including public works projects and revenue sharing. It also recommends that he consider regional policies to reduce unemployment among specific groups or within depressed areas; youth employment programs; job training and counseling; and "reservoir" jobs.

"Reservoir" jobs were described as public service jobs created only after an official finding that all other means of reaching the unemployment goals are insufficient. They could only be created with separate authorization by the Congress.

A summary of the bill distributed by the White House said the legislation would declare that it was "the continuing policy and responsibility of the federal government to use all practicable means consistent with other essential national policies to promote full employment, production and real income, balanced growth and reasonably stable prices."

The bill sets as a national goal "the fulfillment of the right of all Americans able, willing and seeking to work to full opportunities for useful paid employment at fair rates of compensation."

Hotel Blaze Fatal To 42

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Recovery teams pulled 42 bodies from the burned-out shell of the Hotel Filipinas in downtown Manila today, and one of the dead was identified as an American. Fire Marshal Francisco Agudon predicted a death toll of at least 50.

The Red Cross said the dead American was Kenneth Charles Eccleston of Riverdale, Md.

Recovery efforts, like the battle against the fire itself, were hampered by rains brought in by Typhoon Kim, which was passing north of Manila as the early-morning fire broke out. Firemen fought winds of up to 50 mph to keep the blaze from spreading to nearby hotels, restaurants, airline offices and shops.

The Red Cross identified four other bodies as those of Ruth Lofelack, an Australian; Romeo Miamoto, a Japanese; and Mary Jane Buhatin and Mary Ann Rufino. Their nationalities were not immediately known.

Lt. Col. Agudon, the metropolitan Manila fire marshal, said firefighters had seen more bodies in the ruins of the hotel.

The seven-story hotel on Roxas Boulevard across from the U.S. Embassy and Manila Bay, caught fire shortly before 7 a.m. as many of the guests were asleep. Armando Aquino, a 37-year-old roomboy, said the blaze started on the fifth floor, quickly engulfed the top three floors and then moved down.

Aquino said faulty wiring appeared to have caused the fire, but fire department investigators said it would be some time before the cause could be determined.

The number of persons in the building at the time was uncertain. There were reports that about 240 of the 300 rooms were occupied, and 47 survivors were taken to the Hotel Mirador several blocks away. A number of other survivors were reported to have checked in at other hotels.

Recovery teams brought out a stream of bodies during the afternoon, most of them burned beyond recognition. One fireman said he found about 10 bodies huddled inside one room. Three bodies wrapped in sheets were atop one stretcher.

Two persons jumped to their deaths as cameras of the government television station were trained on them. A Red Cross spokeswoman said other dead had suffered massive bone fractures, indicating they, too, jumped.

Survivors reported panic among the guests, some of whom stumbled and fell as they ran down fire escapes.

The guests included a small party of Canadian tourists. Norman Scharcha, 58, of Selkirk, Manitoba, said he and Roy Armstrong, 72, of Vancouver, were in a second-floor room when they were warned to get out.

"We went down the stairs into the lobby," said Scharcha. "The fire seemed to be falling from the upper floors. We stood in the rain outside the hotel for several minutes while firemen started working on the fire."

Meanwhile, Typhoon Kim hit the Luzon coast near the port of Infanta, then veered north away from Manila. Its strongest winds dropped from 128 mph to 103 mph.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage in the Infanta area, a major rice-growing region. High waves from Manila Bay knocked down a number of shanties in the Tondo slum area of Manila, and dozens of families were evacuated.

Pipeline Rates Get Temporary Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that seven of the eight oil companies who built the Alaska pipeline may continue, at least temporarily, to charge crude-oil transportation prices the government claims are exorbitant.

The justices, voting 4-3, ruled that the companies could charge their proposed rates until they decide whether to review a lower court's ruling and a decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission that the proposed rates were invalid.

If the court eventually should agree with the lower court and ICC, or leave their findings intact, the companies would be required to refund all money charged in excess of the rates set by the commission last June, plus interest.

On Oct. 20, the court agreed to let three of the companies — Mobil, Exxon and British Petroleum — continue charging rates higher than allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission pending review of the firms' appeals.

But the court ordered the three firms to insure their rates, so that if they eventually were ruled to be too high rebates could be paid.

Today, all pipeline owners except Phillips were allowed to continue charging the higher rates.

In other matters today, the Supreme Court:

— Returned to the U.S. Court of Claims for further study a $5-million lawsuit against the Army filed by a soldier who was cut in half by a tank three years ago. The claims court had dismissed the suit.

— Agreed to decide whether a rare and endangered species of fish, the snail darter, should be allowed to scuttle a $116 million dam on the Little Tennessee River.

— Voted 5-4 to direct the Oregon Supreme Court to restudy a decision striking down the state's method of firing employees in view of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on state administrative procedures.

The legal controversy over the Alaska pipeline, rates involves how much of a share in the pipeline profits Alaska will get, but is not expected to affect how much consumers pay for petroleum products.

The ICC issued an order last June that suspended proposed per-barrel transportation rates and established substantially lower rates for a seven-month period lasting through January.

The oil companies contend the lower interim rates would cost them a total of $340 million.

The $9 billion pipeline was constructed by the Alyeska Pipeline Service Corp., an agent for its eight owners — Mobil, Exxon, British Petroleum, Sohio, Arco, Phillips, Union Alaska and Amerada Hess.

Last June, those companies filed rate schedules with the ICC for transportation of crude oil through the pipeline ranging from $6.04 to $6.44 per barrel.

After the Justice Department, Alaska state officials and the quasi-governmental Arctic Slope Regional Corp. protested that the proposed rates were too high, the commission suspended them for a seven-month period — June 28 to Jan. 28.

Voting Machine Bids Scheduled

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County commissioners today set Dec. 12 as the date to take bids on a mechanical voting system to replace the use of paper ballots here.

Commissioners will take bids at 1:30 p.m. that day on both lever-type and punch card election systems.

Commissioners also named an Austin architectural firm, Barnes, Landes, Goodman and Youngblood, to draw plans for a juvenile detention center for the county, and they formally okayed an earlier-agreed-upon contract for operation of the city-county library.

The session this morning was a relatively quiet one, but things were expected to heat up this afternoon when they were to meet with volunteer firemen from throughout the county.

Commissioners hoped this afternoon to resolve long-standing problems on providing fire protection to rural areas. After the city of Lubbock quit providing fire protection in the county — the result of a hassle over prices for fire calls — commissioners obtained service from volunteer units in smaller county towns.

Currently, the county is paying the volunteer firemen $275 per call. The county proposes lowering that fee to $200 effective Jan. 1, while the firefighters want a raise to $300 per call.

Lubbock County is the largest county in the state still using paper ballots. The system has been criticized as outmoded, inefficient and requiring too many election workers.

Critics also have questioned just how private paper ballot voting is because citizens must mark their choices at tables in the open.

County Judge Rod Shaw told the commissioners court today that the County Election Board believes 300 to 400 lever-type machines or 600 to 800 punch card machines would be necessary to avoid citizens having to wait a long time in line to vote.

A representative of a commercial punch card system company recently touted his machines as a less expensive voting method than lever-type machines.

However, commissioners expressed

State Rests Case Against Cullen Davis

AMARILLO (AP) — The state surprisingly rested — but did not close — its case today in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

The declaration by prosecutor Joe Shannon caught everyone by surprise.

Judge George Dowlen summoned the attorneys to the bench for a conference, sent the jury out, then beckoned the lawyers back for another private discussion.

He ordered the proceedings recessed until 1:30 p.m., at which time the defense is expected to disclose if it will call any rebuttal witnesses.

State attorneys called two rebuttal witnesses after the defense rested on Saturday, which marked the end of 12 weeks of testimony in the longest murder trial in Texas history.

Attorneys began selecting jurors on June 22 to provide a panel to determine if the 44-year-old defendant is guilty of the Aug. 2, 1976 shooting death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

The defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded and her lover, Stan Farr, was slain in the midnight gunfire.

Asked the basis for his abrupt action, Shannon said, "this whole thing has to come to an end sometime."

He pointed out that by resting as opposed to closing, the state retained the option of calling more witnesses should the defense choose to do so.

He said his decision was made "about five minutes before we came in here this morning."

Asked if he considered it a bold move, Shannon said, "you can describe it as being bold or timid, but it keeps options open."

Chief defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes called it a "calculated tactic" and said he was not certain at this point what the next defense move would be.

If the defense decides not to call any rebuttal witnesses, closing arguments in the case could begin as early as Wednesday or Thursday.

Dramatic and contradictory testimony came first from a Fort Worth nurseryman and next from his wife.

Defense witness Uewayne Polk told the court he was at the mansion the night of the shooting spree to pick up plants he said Mrs. Davis never paid him for. He recalled looking at his watch and noting it was 11:11 p.m.

Polk said he saw a figure he took to be a hobo or wino moving across the estate and that he followed the figure to the mansion.

He said he did not recognize the man, but it was "definitely" not Davis.

He testified that the man was carrying a bag and that he stopped to put something onto his head. Mrs. Davis previously testified that the gunman wore a woman's wig.

With Polk's defense testimony still causing tremors, prosecutors called his wife to the stand.

She testified that her husband's watch had been damaged months before the mansion slaying and that it was giving "weird time figures."

She also testified that her husband had abandoned attempts to collect an overdue bill from Mrs. Davis prior to the shootings.

Miss Lillian Thanks Hosts

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Lillian Carter offered thanks to her Irish hosts at the last formal event of her 10-day "Friendship Force" visit to Ireland.

MRS. CARTER

The event was a reception at a town meeting hall Sunday.

President Carter's mother joined 250 Iowans in the friendship exchange program. After completing formalities of the tour, Mrs. Carter and the Iowa residents planned to travel on their own around Ireland before returning to the United States.

An Irish delegation is visiting Des Moines as part of the exchange program started four years ago by Carter when he was governor of Georgia.

Mamie Celebrates 81st Birthday

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower planned to observe her 81st birthday by visiting the Eisenhower Center and the grave of her late husband, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Eisenhower's birthday is today.

Last year, Mrs. Eisenhower began visiting the grave on her birthday, rather than on the former president's birthday. On that day, Oct. 14, the Army places wreaths at the president's grave inside a chapel at the center.

"She doesn't like the crowds anymore," said Edna Eisenhower, 86, wife of the former president's late brother, Roy, who died in 1942.

A small birthday party was planned for Mrs. Eisenhower at a country club in Abilene.

Prince Charles Still Ailing

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles is 29 years old today, but it's not likely to be an entirely happy occasion for him. He's still suffering from a case of food poisoning picked up last week in Australia.

PRINCE CHARLES

Doctors said Sunday the prince was "improving." He's still not planning any birthday celebration.

Three persons were hospitalized as a result of food poisoning from a luncheon last Thursday in Darwin and about 20 others were less seriously affected.

Guests at the luncheon said Prince Charles didn't eat very much, but was seen nibbling at some roast chicken and potato salad and a slice of watermelon.

Bond Criticizes President

MACON, Ga. (AP) — State Sen. Julian Bond says blacks are beginning to wonder whether President Carter and Georgia Gov. George Busbee have forgotten the black support they received at election time.

Since Carter was elected, he says, "Nearly 100,000 black Americans have lost jobs they had before. Nationally, the unemployment rate for blacks has climbed to higher than twice that for whites."

"It is almost as though we were climbing a molasses mountain dressed in snowshoes, while everyone else rides a rather rapid ski lift to the top," said Bond.

Senator Hit With Pie

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., has joined the ranks of politicians who have been anointed in the face with a pie.

A University of Colorado group calling itself the Student Libertarian Army claimed responsibility in a news release for the Friday incident in the parking lot of a Boulder newspaper.

It said Hart got the pie because he "is a politician and as such is both a symbol of and a participant in the authoritarian system called government, which we oppose."

An aide to the senator said one of two women who approached Hart said she wanted to ask him a question and the other one pulled a boysenberry pie from a shopping bag and lobbed it into the senator's face.

The senator's aide said Hart vows he will "never again trust anyone with a shopping bag."

Denver Orchestra Strike Settled

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm helped orchestrate a tentative settlement of a month-long strike by musicians against the Denver Symphony Orchestra.

A proposed three-year contract would raise musicians' salaries by an average of $82.50 a week over the next three years, a spokesman for the musicians said after a negotiating session that began Saturday morning and went non-stop into Sunday morning.

The musicians can back out of the agreement if the symphony is unable to raise $500,000 by next month, officials reported. Without the funds, the symphony says it would not be able to pay the raises.

The contract calls for roughly a $45 weekly increase the first year from the musicians' $300 present salary, $17.50 per week the second year, and $20 per week the third year.

Go Climb A Rock

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — White Mountain Middle School is offering students an unusual course for building self-confidence: rock climbing.

Thirty pupils in grades six through eight are enrolled in the course, offered for the first time this year in the Ruidoso schools.

"Almost all the kids say they are really afraid at one point during a climb. Usually kids won't admit fear that easily," said course instructor Bob Palko. But he said learning to admit fear and conquer it is "the main value of the course: building self-confidence."

There have been no injuries to students taking the course.

"The kids all encourage each other," Palko said. "They laugh at each other on the way up, but cheer or applaud when the climber makes the top."

Local Elves Prepare Tots' Toys

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Santa's Lubbock elves are a bit large, but then they probably should be in Texas.

Too, their green suits are splashed and variegated with greens mixed with a little sand color. Maybe that comes from all the paints they spray on toys getting set for the upcoming Yule season.

Most of the year they are known as the Marines stationed at the Marine Corps Reserve center on 4th Street, but come November they add a big chore, getting thousands of repairable toys ready by the time Santa gets around to packing that bag for his Christmas Eve flight.

The nationwide Toys for Tots program is the annual Christmas effort of the Marine Reserves with Lubbock Marines putting in about 12 hours a day for several weeks to turn toys outgrown by some youngsters into gifts for others who might not have one otherwise.

Families, screened by a Christmas Selection Committee working with many Lubbock agencies, may choose one new and one used toy for each child on selection day.

The Marines do the repairing and the center acts as a toy depository where many Lubbock organizations bring results of individual drives for old or new toys.

Personnel at Reese Air Force Base, which conducted a successful drive last year, are going the extra mile this year, doing all the repair possible before delivering the collections.

"This is Reese's contribution to the Marine Corps' Toys for Tots, to take the load off the Marines," Capt. Bob Allen, commander of the 1958th Communications Squadron at Reese, said.

The squadron is coordinating the Reese drives which already has yielded a truckful of toys.

"Getting into the repair cycle" will involve most organizations at Reese with Allen calling on whatever group has the required technology — mechanical, electrical or dressmaking.

Getting toys collected cleaned and prepared "without expenditure of funds" is the base's aim.

Volunteers are collecting, repairing and otherwise readying donated toys. Reese wives are dressing dolls and the Junior Officers Council is making a drive for new toys.

Drops for old or new toys are at the main gate, the commissary, Toyland, Reesette, Four Seasons and the main exchange.

The group cannot take money to purchase wheels for old toys or for new toys but can contact a downtown agency handling the money end of the toy drive.

Some of his squadron will be spending spare time down at the Marine toy shop adding their hours of volunteer labor to that of the marines who will spend many long hours a day for about a month making sure every Lubbock child gets a toy.

KALYMNOS ISLAND

The island of Kalymnos in the Dodecanese chain was not incorporated into Greece until 1948. It was looted by the Saracens in the Byzantine era, and later its main town was destroyed by the Crusaders. The Knights of the John Masters of the Order of St. John conquered the island in the 14th century, and up until 1821 it was under Turkish rule.

Critics Question Sheats Letter

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Trinity Church pastor and congressional candidate Morris Sheats is soliciting campaign funds with a letter couched in fervent religious language.

"Growth and change are natural for God. Moses was a shepherd — God made him prime minister. Daniel was a stranger in a foreign land — God made him a president. Peter was a fisherman — God made him a leader of the early church. Paul was a rabbi — God made him a missionary."

"God believes in changes!"
"For several years God has been changing my ministry. He is changing me from a local shepherd to a national leader," the letter begins.

"The decision (to run for Congress) is simply God's next step for my life," it says later.

When Sheats announced in September as a contender for the 19th Congressional District, he was asked if his evangelical faith made him feel "anointed" to succeed retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon.

He answered no, saying: "I'm not God" and "I don't have any signed letter from God as to what's going to happen next May" in the Democratic primary.

The campaign letter, however, contains lines critics say sound as if Sheats believes he has been "chosen."

Here are other excerpts from it:
"By now many of you have heard of my mission to run for Congress. I will represent the 19th Congressional District of Texas. This decision comes after years of intensive waiting upon the Lord. His directions have been precise — now is His time for this change."

"Consider what one Joseph did for the people of God. Consider what one Moses did for the people of God. Consider what God can do with Morris Sheats in our nation that desperately needs Godly leaders!"

"It will be an uphill fight. To fight for what is right is always an uphill battle. Yet I know the victory is ours! I must have your prayers and financial help. You see, God has given me a specific plan. It will work with your help!"

Criticism of the fund-raising mingling of religion and politics has come both from without and within Sheats' congregation.

One church member, who has been a financial supporter of such things as the pastor's television "Rap" ministry, minced no words:

"It makes me feel like a vote against Morris is a vote against God."

"If Morris had just run a political campaign and said, 'I think I'm the best man' for this thing kind of says 'God man.' But this is the best man."

Sheats said he has received no negative comments about the letter's tone, and he said he has "no apologies" to make for it.

He suggested phone calls about it received by The Avalanche-Journal were prompted, perhaps, by political support for other 19th District candidates.

"It's a sad commentary. You get calls from less than half a dozen people and it's been mailed to at least 4,500 people. Which way do you think the odds go?" he said.

Sheats said critics are reading too much into the letter: "I do believe that what I'm doing is right for my life. But I'm not saying I believe God has told me I'm going to win," he said.

The 37-year-old pastor recounted a conversation he said he had recently with another minister. "He asked me, 'Do you feel like this is God's will for your life?' I said to him, 'If a Christian businessman was running, would you want him to feel like what he was doing is right?'"

"He said, 'Of course.' I asked, 'Why should it be any different for a minister?'"

Referring to criticism from a church member, Sheats said, "Everybody that goes to Trinity Church would not support my candidacy."

But he added, "I feel the majority of the people are very definitely in favor of me. Our board of elders gave me a unanimous vote of confidence, that I did not ask for, for the campaign. They wanted me to know that they are with me."

Interestingly, when Sheats was first told The A-J wanted to talk to him about the letter, he quickly said, "We made a mistake."

It turned out he was not talking about the letter's content, but something it did not contain — a disclaimer required by federal election law.

Tech Students Devise Tests For New Navy Diving Suit

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

At first the idea seems ludicrous: the U.S. Navy, with a multi-million dollar diving facility on the coast of Florida, selects Texas Tech — 500 miles from the nearest ocean — to conduct tests to help evaluate the Navy's new diving suit.

But three Texas Tech graduate students in psychology took the idea seriously.

Dave Dixon, Chuck Schafer and Fritz Gidcomb, all certified divers, accepted a $3,500 grant from the Navy, suited up in their scuba gear and spent 28 days in the Men's pool conducting tests on underwater physical agility.

The three are developing a battery of tests to measure physical fitness and coordination underwater. The Navy will use the tests to measure a diver's agility while wearing a newly-developed diving suit.

Although there are standardized tests for measuring physical fitness on land, Dixon said "currently there is no method to measure motor skills underwater."

In order to develop a method, the trio took physical fitness tests designed in 1963 by psychologist Edwin Fleishman and used in public schools nationwide, and adapted them to underwater conditions.

"Obviously, a person can't do pushups underwater. We had to come up with tests which could be done underwater and would measure the same skills as physical fitness tests done on land," Dixon said.

What they came up with were 14 tests to measure a diver's flexibility, strength and endurance.

They then asked 21 certified divers at Tech to volunteer to be tested. Over the next month the divers performed each of the tests in 16-foot deep water in the Tech Men's Gym pool, with Dixon, Schafer and Gidcomb recording the results.

Some of the tests had the diver pushing a 20-pound weight along a pole with his feet; jumping through a hoop while weighted down with 30-pound boots and a 20-pound weight belt; running up and down 20-inch high steps, and pulling three air-filled five-gallon bottles attached to a pole down to chin level.

"We got some funny looks while we were conducting the tests," Dixon recalled. "But then a guy hopping around on one foot or running up and down stairs in the deep end of a pool is not exactly your normal occurrence."

The three grad students also got some funny looks from some of their friends after spending 28 days on the bottom of a swimming pool.

"That much time in the water tends to wrinkle your skin, dry your hair and leave you with a chlorine odor you can't wash off," both Dixon and Schafer remarked.

Dixon, a fourth-year graduate student, says he is now analyzing the data from the tests and plans to select the seven most representative ones.

They plan to pick the seven tests that

Group Cites Clockmaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eli Terry, pioneer in the realm of time-keeping, fathered 10 patents that led to his founding of the first successful clock factory in America, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc. (IPO), a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of the U.S. patent system.

Terry, born in 1772, was apprenticed at an early age, then set up his own shop and by 1800 in Plymouth, Conn., was selling all the clocks he could make.

At first, like his competitors, Terry worked only on order for each clock. But Terry overthrew this traditional handcraft approach by designing a shop with water-powered machines operated by apprentices, which turned out 10 to 20 clocks at a time, IPO says.

One of Terry's contracts called for 4,000 wooden clocks, which caused him to take on two partners, one of whom was the famous clockmaker, Seth Thomas. In 1814 Terry perfected a wooden shelf clock which virtually cornered the market. He sold thousands of these and, protected by his patents, amassed a fortune in the next ten years, the organization reports.

But the most famous of Terry's patents, granted Nov. 17, 1797, was an ingenious "equation clock" which showed both apparent time (as a sundial would), and mean time (adjusted for a uniform solar day).

Rain, Wind Predicted For Northwest Coast

By The Associated Press
 Rain and wind were forecast today for the northern Pacific Coast and into extreme western Montana, with scattered snow showers likely in the mountains. Chilly temperatures hit much of the East today, with readings in the 20s and 30s. Temperatures will be mostly mild from the northern Rockies through the southern plateau and eastward across the plains and northern Mississippi Valley. Areas of rain or snow extend across northwest Indiana and Lake Michigan while a few showers linger over northern New England. The first major snow of the season hit sections of Massachusetts this weekend, but sunny skies accompanied by cold temperatures were expected today.

Most of Massachusetts received some snow Sunday, with up to eight inches reported in sections of the Berkshires. Police in some western Massachusetts communities closed roads Sunday, due to icy conditions. Travel advisories were in effect over the eastern Dakotas because of dense fog. Skies were mostly cloudy over the Northeast and portions of the northern Rockies and northern Plains. A large high pressure area centered over North and South Carolina covered the entire Southeast, and most of the eastern United States. It gave the southeast another clear cold night Sunday with temperatures as low as the 20s in the mountains of north Georgia and western North Carolina.

By early tonight, the high should be centered offshore east of the Carolinas coast. This means another mostly sunny day for the Southeast, and a warming trend will set in for most areas today. Fair skies were forecast for the Panhandle and West Texas today, with partly cloudy skies expected elsewhere. Ohio's snowy weather settled down by Sunday evening. About five inches of snow remained on the ground at the Akron-Canton airport and there was one inch at Youngstown Sunday. Cleveland's snow had melted and settled to a trace. Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 10 at Warroad, Minn., to 71 at Miami, Fla. Temperatures in Texas climbed into the 70s and lower 80s today as clear to partly cloudy skies dominated the weather picture from the Red River to the Rio Grande. Cloud cover over the eastern half of the state during the night kept overnight lows considerably warmer than during the past few mornings, but skies over West Texas were mostly clear. There was no mention of rain in Texas forecasts.

Today's forecast for the Lubbock area calls for a high in the low 70s and a low tonight in the upper 30s. Slightly cooler weather is expected Tuesday, with a high in the upper 60s. Mainly westerly winds of 10 to 15 miles per hour today should drop to 5 to 10 mph tonight. This morning's low at Lubbock International Airport was 39 degrees, following a Sunday afternoon high of 74 degrees. Early morning temperatures ranged from the low to upper 30s in northwest sections of the Panhandle and in far western portions of the state to near 60 in extreme southern portions of the state while most areas had readings in the middle 50s. Early morning temperature readings included 40 at Amarillo, 53 at Wichita Falls, 56 at Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio, 42 at Lufkin, 50 at Houston, 67 at Corpus Christi, 59 at Brownsville, 51 at Del Rio, 43 at San Angelo and 37 at El Paso.

WEATHER FORECAST—Cool to cold weather was forecast today for most of the nation. Rain was expected in the Northwest, with milder weather stretching from the northern Rockies into the Plains. (AP Laserphoto)

New Orleans Mayoral Election Loser Appeals To State Court

By DAVID N. ROSENTHAL
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The man whom Ernest "Dutch" Morial defeated to become this city's first black mayor has asked the state Supreme Court to overturn the election and declare him mayor. An attorney for the defeated candidate, City Councilman Joseph DiRosa, a white, said today that briefs were filed with the clerk of court Sunday. The suit argues that Morial, a former state appeals court judge, was not qualified to run for mayor because he did not resign his judgeship before the first general election last month as required by a disputed state law, attorney Gibson Tucker said. DiRosa had taken a similar court challenge to Morial's candidacy as far as a state appeals court last week. But the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals turned him down, and he said at the time that he would not pursue the matter even if he lost the election. Tucker said DiRosa made no mention of his earlier pledge in instructing him to file suit. "He just told me that he wanted every avenue explored to test the legality of Morial's candidacy," Tucker said. Morial received 51.5 percent of the votes in Saturday's runoff to DiRosa's 48.5 percent, a margin of about 5,500 votes, according to unofficial final returns. Mayor Moon Landrieu, a recent president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors who was forbidden to seek a third term, leaves office May 1. Morial, who lost a city council election to DiRosa here eight years ago, says it was then that he began to believe that New Orleans would be ready to elect a black mayor by 1977. Morial says friends gave him the nickname of "Dutch" during childhood, and he can't remember why. Morial, 48, received 97 percent of the black vote and 19 percent of the white vote, according to pollsters. The white percentage was nearly triple what Morial got in the October election and was similar to Maynard Jackson's 1973 total in Atlanta when he became the first black mayor of a major southern city. New Orleans' population of about 550,000 is almost evenly divided racially. Voter registration is about 58 percent white and 42 percent black. Morial said he had won without owing anything to anyone. "I am free like a sparrow," Morial said when asked if he had committed jobs to any potential office holders. Landrieu has brought a number of blacks into city government during his eight years in office and many politicians say they don't expect a dramatic change when Morial is mayor. "Moon made much of the needed racial reforms in city hall here," pollster Allen Rosenzweig said. "Now there is not much for Dutch to do but replace Landrieu's blacks with his." In addition to being the first black mayor of New Orleans, Morial was the first black to graduate from the Louisiana State University law school, get elected to the state legislature and sit on juvenile and appellate court benches. Morial resigned his judgeship 10 days ago after an adverse ruling by a federal court on his challenge to a state law which prohibited judges from running for public office.

Bodies Found In Plane

MIAMI (AP) — The bodies of six Americans have been recovered from the wreck of a small private plane that crashed last week into mudflats north of Grand Bahama Island, officials said. A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said Sunday that rescue workers finally were able to reach the wreckage of the 310 Cessna after trying all week. The victims were identified as pilot Ronald E. Marsh from Navarre, Ohio, and passengers Mary Jane Carpenter, Rebecca Smith, Richard Montz and John D. Slutz, all from the Canton, Ohio, area, and Carol Carter of Sunrise, Fla. Officials said the plane lost contact with the Freeport, Bahamas, control tower shortly after it had taken off for Fort Lauderdale Nov. 5. The wreckage was discovered in the inaccessible mudflats the next day. A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said the plane, which crashed about three miles from the airport, never climbed higher than 500 feet. It was uncertain when the bodies would be returned to the United States.

British Teacher Learns English

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A British school teacher participating in an exchange program in this country says he's learned a few things about English — or at least what Americans call English. After a quarter at Helgate High School here, John Brown, a teacher from Cheltenham, has learned that if he wants potato crisps with his soft drink, he has to ask for potato chips. If he wants potato chips with his hamburger, he has to request French fries. And while his British students queue up on the pavement, American students are lining up on the sidewalk. Brown has traded places with Helgate High English teacher Kenneth Ballinger for a year. Ballinger "is in England doing my job, living in my house and driving my car," Brown says, hastening to add, "but he's with his own wife."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Saying It--Loud, Clear

TEXAS VOTERS sent a message, loud and clear, to their judges and prosecutors last week: Crack down, hard, on repeat violators of criminal law.
An amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing district judges to deny bail to any person accused of a felony while already out on bail on other charges was approved by an astounding 83.4 per cent of the voters.

Another amendment, approved by 66.2 per cent of the voters, gives a State Commission on Judicial Conduct broader powers to censure judges who are found guilty of various degrees of misconduct.
Again, the Texas public demonstrated that it wants professional, steely-eyed, straightforward and unbending administration of justice—and a swift kick in the decorum of any judge who fails to measure up.

ONE OF THESE would enlarge the state Court of Criminal Appeals and was sold to the voters on the argument that this is necessary to unclog the appeals process and thus get felons behind bars instead of out on the streets while their cases await final disposition.
This amendment was approved by 72.9 per cent of the voters. It will give the Court enough judges to divide themselves into three three-member panels, instead of one, to dispose of a case backlog and provide speedier, surer justice.

TWO OF THE SEVEN amendments on the November ballot went down to defeat. Two others, expanding the veterans land program and encouraging the preservation of historical landmarks, were approved.
The best explanation for the defeat of a proposal permitting the Legislature to prescribe rules for electronic transfer banking is that the public still has an inherent distrust of computers.

Off In The Wild Blue Yonder!

James J. Kilpatrick:

Nobody Can't Whip Somebody

LET ME BRING up the rear, if I may, in what may seem to be a concerted assault upon Jimmy Carter, "the one-term president." Four observations come to mind:
• Yes, Jimmy Carter is in trouble.
• Most of the trouble is of his own making.
• This being so, he can unmake most of it, and:
• The one-term talk, at this point, is baloney.

SOME OF THE President's problems have developed from events beyond his control—the election of Begin in Israel, for example, and the resurgence of Communist power in France and Italy.
But to a remarkable degree, Carter's troubles are rooted in the nature of Carter, in his own errors and misjudgments, and cannot be attributed to other factors.
Meg Greenfield, in Newsweek, has put her finger on the main difficulty. Carter simply is not presidential.

THE CHORUS WAS not deliberately orchestrated. Carter is indeed in trouble. One does not have to be a licensed and certified pundit to perceive it. The polls provide empirical evidence of a drop in the President's popularity.
Veteran members of the House and Senate freely confirm that evidence. The President himself, in his recent press conference, acknowledged the fact. The troubles extend in every direction.
Carter is in trouble with the liberal, Abourezk-Metzner-McGovern wing of his party. He's in trouble with many of his conservative troops as well.
He's in trouble with the blacks, who lately have been charging him with "callous neglect."
He's in trouble with women, with organized labor, with business, with farmers—name the pressure group, from oilmen in Texas to steelmen in Ohio, and you'll find an outfit that gives him the old fishy eye.

A YEAR AGO, immediately after the gentleman's election, there was much speculation on a small issue: Would the gentleman be sworn in as James Earl Carter, or as Jimmy Carter? He soon made it official.
In the archives of our Republic, this period is to be known forever as the "Administration of Jimmy Carter." Something is ever so slightly amiss in the perceptions of a President who takes his nickname to the office.
There was widespread applause nine months ago as Carter set about dismantling the trappings of an imperial presidency—not that many such trappings remained from the days of Gerald Ford.
Overheard: "That guy is lousy with money. Of course, he's lousy without money, too."
Description of a fat friend: "He has more chins than a Chinese phone book."

Bass Fights 'Hook'

SUDDEN THOUGHT: What a day for real Thanksgiving it would be if Congress vacated Washington next week and forgot to go back for a whole year!

Food and Fiber is dedicated to documenting how the farmer, rancher and processor of food and fiber have contributed to the development of America.

people be appointed to a committee to help the South Plains Manpower Consortium spend the Youth Employment funds funneled through it.

We can learn a lot about individual freedom and responsibility just by remembering that God punished the serpent but didn't take away the apple.

With leaders of the AFL-CIO and of the League of United Latin American Citizens both endorsing Gov. Dolph Briscoe, challenger John Hill must feel like the deb who got all dressed up for the inaugural ball and then remembered that nobody had asked her to go.

"In my opinion, it's really dumb to add another committee layer to the already cumbersome planning process and even dumber to talk about including 'youth' on the committee (high schoolers, or junior high, I suppose), though I'm fond of young people..."

Some in Congress want to outlaw residential gas lights. The outlaws, who thrive on darkness, are behind them 1,000 per cent.

From the Quote Wrack: "I'm more confused than ever and have the distinct feeling that someone—either the utility commission, the utilities themselves, the ratepayers or myself—has been flimflammed."—Fort Worth Star-Telegram columnist Patrick Martin, expressing surprise that electric utility companies support an order that they sell excess power to other utilities.

"WHEN THE MANPOWER programs are as complicated as they are," Bass continues, "so that even the professional bureaucrats have a hard time keeping up with them and administering them, it's really insane to imagine that adding high school or junior high folks to a 'youth committee' is going to do any good except enable the bureaucracy to point with pride to how much it's trying to involve the people..."

THE FOOD AND Fiber National Institute of Achievement, headquartered here, has an exhibit this week at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Outlook Conference in Washington, D.C.

Lest we forget: It was Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock who co-sponsored the constitutional amendment to give district judges authority to deny bail to persons accused of committing a second felony while already free on bail.

"Whatever anonymous staffer put these requirements in the application process gives me the impression of either having an HQ (that's for 'hypocrisy quotient') about as high as the national debt, or else having a CQ (that's for 'common-sense quotient') about as low as a ring in a Scotchman's bathtub."

John Arn, executive director of Food and Fiber, took the exhibit—a talking manikin similar to those in its exhibits at the Texas Tech Museum—to Washington.
Food and Fiber's traveling exhibits have been seen by more than 4 million persons in the last 16 months. The Texas State Fair in Dallas, the Texas Cattle Feeders meeting in San Antonio and the Padre Island Mall on the Gulf Coast were among the most recent exhibition sites.

who's "got to swing" for murder. He did some pseudo-philosophy, verses and essays, no more. Oscar was always a second-rater when he went beyond his depths of inimitable comedy. He died at 44, but his reputation rose on high with his soul. Better off dead!

It gives Americans something to think about in the struggles that lie ahead: Rowse wrote about Oscar: "It is impossible to assess the appalling consequences of this historical case. It made a tremendous sensation all over the world...We need not attach much importance to the number of (guilt-stricken) people who fled abroad...There were thousands of people whose lives were ruined...many of them valuable lives, doctors, medical officers of health, schoolmasters, soldiers and seamen, men of service to the nation...the loss was unforgivable."

Oscar's perversion got him into the civil courts, the criminal court, reading Gaol, and into an exile so deep that his sons legally altered their names to hide from the shame.

Prof. Rowse more than intimates that the Empire never recovered from Wilde's disgrace. The British became the laughing-stock of Old Europe, where Frenchmen and Italians and ancient Greeks fairly worshipped: the names of their great artists, inventors and soldiers who happened to be fits.

It must not happen here.

I have sympathy for the American society which doesn't know what to do about the 20 million queers at large in the United States.

I doubt if our state and national legislatures could summon a majority vote to an explicit amendment to the Civil Rights laws to protect these sexual outcasts.

Preparation Is 'Secret' To Landing Good Job

Admittedly, political events today move faster than in the past and neither the cop nor the vigilante bothers a pair of "consenting males" at their loathsome play.

AN ENORMOUS, RARELY duplicated net total of 3 million workers will have entered the job market by year end 1977—despite retirements, mortalities, firings and a defiantly stubborn unemployment rate of more than 7 per cent.

(4) Study in advance for the job interview. Assemble in order all papers you will need: your resume, samples of your work, the like.

But before this ink is dry, some perverted maniac will corrupt, rape or murder some child who has a right to normal life. It's questionable whether a fully-identified homo should be at large in our streets.

The greatest proportion of these will be young people graduating from college and high school; a full million adult women will have returned to the work force after dropping out to devote some years to being homemakers and having babies.

Avoid dogmatic statements during the interview; don't ask questions unless invited; don't criticize your former employer; don't discuss personal, domestic or financial problems unless asked.

No psychiatrist has yet done more for the violent queer than the hangman's noose or an enforced exile in Siam where, they tell me, everything goes.

Yet, this remains a painfully indifferent, if not antagonistic job market to so many, that a well-planned search for employment is more vital than ever.

If the employer introduces the subject, be ready to state the salary you want. Ask when you may phone to learn the decision on your employment. Thank the interviewer.

IN EXPRESSING sympathy for pervert-ridden society, I return to historical authority.

Where, therefore, can you find out more about the kinds of jobs you are qualified to hold? How do you write a resume and a letter of application that will convince an employer you are the right person for a job?

(5) MAKE YOUR job-hunting a full-time project and don't take off on mini-vacations. Apply early in the day to allow for multiple interviews, tests or other procedures.

A. L. Rowse, Shakespeare scholar, historian and as far as possible from being a pornographer, has recorded that the penalty paid by the British Empire for prosecuting Wilde was greater in scale, if not in literature, than what was meted out to the clever Anglo Irish.

Where do you go for information on job opportunities in your field? Here are key guides:

Be on time for appointments. Follow up leads immediately.

With his glittering wit, Wilde had written matchless comedies before being exposed as the corrupter of Lord Alfred Douglas, along with various stable boys and bell-hops, no doubt.

(1) SELF APPRAISAL. Take an inventory of your qualifications, background and experience, so that you know exactly what assets you have to offer an employer.

After the interview, conduct a frank review of yourself. Did you present your qualifications well? Talk too much? Too little? Did you pass up clues on how to sell yourself?

After the humiliation and during the imprisonment, Wilde never again could evoke the magic laughter of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Lady Windermere's Fan."

Also, are you physically qualified for the target job? Do you have to change your field of work? How long can you afford to be out of work? What is your career goal? Now, five or 10 years from now?

Were you too aggressive? Too weak? How can you improve the next interview?

He produced the haunting "Ballad of Reading Goal," about his observation of the fellow inmate

List the jobs you feel best qualified to handle in order of preference.

For an excellent pamphlet on resumes, "Merchandising Your Job Talents," send $1 to Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, Stock No. 029-000-00255-0.

Out with the limousines! Away with "Hail to the Chief"! Let pomp and circumstance be exorcised!

(2) PREPARE YOUR resume—whether you're applying for a clerical or sales position or a professional or managerial job. Have it typewritten, with enough copies duplicated for your anticipated needs. Never pass out carbon copies!

Your resume should consist of personal data (name, address and phone number); employment objective (job you seek); work history (by job, most recent and working backward with dates of employment, names and addresses of employers, positions you held and specific duties you had); scope of responsibility and accomplishments; education and military experience, if any.

A few of us stodgy types said he was overdoing it. Something in the nature of our people wants a little ritual, wants a little black tie and gold braid. Carter's insistence upon folksiness began to wear thin last summer.

Include, too, such important miscellaneous items as knowledge of foreign languages, volunteer activities, special skills (typing, shorthand, membership in professional organizations).

Supply references (names, addresses and positions of three persons who know your work competence). Get references' okay.

IT IS THE totality of his inexperience that has hurt him. Carter campaigned as the "anti-Washington" candidate. He created an impression in many influential places of contempt for values that Washington holds dear.

(3) PREPARE LETTER of application to go with resume and to ask for interview when answering a help wanted ad or applying for an out-of-town position. Be concise.

What do you have for a businessman who has spent his entire day trying to figure out Jimmy Carter and failed?

He arrived as the new boy on the block, the rich kid who moved into the biggest house, and he set about making friends in all the wrong ways.

And as for this one-term speculation: Republican critics, licking their chops, should remember the rule that you can't beat somebody with nobody.

Whatever Mr. Carter's status may be in November of 1977, it surely will be different in November of 1980. He will be Mr. Somebody then, and he will be a tough foe to beat.

Alaskan Pipeline Recovering From Shaky Start

By WARD SIMS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — After a shaky start, the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline is delivering crude oil from Prudhoe Bay to the marine terminal at Valdez with only an occasional minor problem.

Tankers large and small are churning through Valdez Narrows toward refineries in the Lower 48 at the rate of about one a day.

As of Nov. 1, more than 68,750,000 barrels of the estimate 9.6 billion barrels of recoverable crude at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope had been pumped into the loading tanks at Valdez.

With 4½ months of pipeline operation on the record, William J. Darch, president of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., says the integrity of the line and the standards of construction have been demonstrated satisfactorily.

Alyeska is the consortium of eight oil companies which designed and built the 800-mile, $7.7 billion line, and now is operating the long steel tube.

"Obviously, the extremely sophisticated system has not been yet completely debugged," Darch said, alluding to minor problems which still crop up.

"The combination of the extremely sensitive and sophisticated instrumentation, with the problems of Alaskan geography, means that we are learning still, and probably shall continue to do so for some time."

Noting that the 100th tanker is scheduled to sail from Valdez with cargo tanks filled with Alaskan oil this month, Darch said it is a signal to Alyeska "that in the language of today we've gotten our act together."

Problems plagued the construction project after the first oil entered the 48-inch line at Prudhoe Bay on June 20.

There were spills and accidents that kept pipeline engineers busy for more than a month, until the first crude from the North Slope started spurting in the tanks at Valdez on July 28.

The worst was an explosion and fire which leveled the pump house at Pump Station No. 8 just southeast of Fairbanks on July 8. One man died in the blast, and reconstruction work on Pump 8 is still going on, with completion scheduled in January.

Alyeska estimates that it will take about a month after that for systems checking at the station, and that Pump 8 will go back on the line sometime in March.

Alyeska originally had planned to be running about 1.2 million barrels of crude a day through the line by this time, but the Pump 8 disaster intervened.

The daily flow rate on Oct. 31 was 754,000 barrels, but the flow rate varies from day to day. On Oct. 28, for instance, it was 695,000 barrels, on Oct. 26 730,000 barrels.

The daily average flow rate from oil-in on June 20 through Nov. 1 was 509,444 barrels.

"It depends on what goes on in the field, at Prudhoe, and it depends on what goes on in our own operation," Alyeska spokesman Sam Akin said of the daily flow rate.

"We may close down a pump at one of the stations for a few hours for some reason or another, and that will slow down the rate. There are all kinds of things that can affect it. It bicycles from one day to the next.

"We expect that it will hang around the 750,000-barrel figure until Pump 8 goes back on line.

"We will have the capacity then for the 1.2 million barrels a day we were originally to have had by now, but the amount to be moved depends on what the owners want moved.

"If they have a need for that much crude oil someplace, they'll bring ships in to Valdez to move it. If not, we'll be moving at lower quantities."

Coast Guard figures show that 90 tankers laden with North Slope crude had cleared Valdez through Nov. 1. With most destined for refineries in the Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles areas.

The others took their cargo through the Panama Canal to refining facilities on the East Coast, or transferred the crude to smaller tankers which could transit the canal.

The first tanker out of Valdez was the 120,000-ton Arco Juneau. It left on Aug. 1 with 824,803 barrels of oil for the Atlantic Richfield refinery at Cherry Point, Wash.

Akin says there have been minor hitches on the line since the period of major problems in the month after start-up, but he likens them to "taking your new car back to the dealer to fix the bugs."

Akin says the Trans-Alaska pipeline started out with an automatic handicap that magnified every problem or accident.

"Pipelines everywhere else in the world are started up with water," Akin said. "They actually fill the lines with water and pump it from Point A to Point B at the other end until they are satisfied everything is right."

"We couldn't do that up here. With the low pipe temperatures, we'd have had a whole lot of frozen water. We had to do our testing with oil."

Gold Mine May Yield Vegetables

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A long-abandoned Alaskan mine may yield a commodity almost as precious here as the gold it once produced — a year-round supply of fresh fruits and vegetables.

A local corporation, Alaska Hydro Gardens, has asked the city Planning and Zoning Commission for permission to build a hydroponic farm in an decaying tunnel of the Alaska-Juneau Mine.

Hydroponics is the science of growing plants in trays with the use of liquid nutrients instead of soil. Lamps substitute for the sun.

The mine in Last Chance Basin once was the largest underground mine in the world. It produced $80 million in gold from its discovery in 1886 to its shutdown as a non-essential wartime activity in 1943.

If the city gives its approval to convert part of the mine to a garden, residents of isolated, chilly southeast Alaska would be the main beneficiaries.

Larry Chaplin, a public information officer with the state Department of Labor who is promoting the venture, says he and his friends could be producing fresh tomatoes, cucumbers, strawberries and melons in marketable quantities within two years.

"We might have miles of farms up here," Chaplin says. "Look at all those tunnels that could be put into production and the amount of produce that could come out of them."

Vegetables and fruits have not been produced commercially through hydroponics because of the expense involved in the nutrients and the electricity needed for heat and light.

But Chaplin believes the process can be profitable in southeastern Alaska because his firm would be competing with already high prices that include the cost of air and barge transportation — the only means of getting fruits and vegetables to this sea-locked region.

"If we can grow vegetables here, why bring them in from Seattle?" asks Chaplin.

Alaska Hydro has asked the city to lease about 600 feet of tunnel for a year and a half. Six months would be devoted to research and upgrading the tunnel and a year to gardening on an experimental basis, promoters say.

Electricity for heat and light would come from a proposed water generator on nearby Gold Creek.

City planning officials are studying several other proposals for use of the mine. Among them is a recommendation to turn the area into a tourist attraction.

But Chaplin says his company's proposal would be compatible with tourism while serving a community need.

"We're not planning on cutting any trees or paving any meadows," Chaplin says. "And we can grow just about anything from a coconut tree to a grape vine if we want to take the care and time."

'Boat People' Posing Problem In Thailand

By United Press International
BANGKOK, Thailand — Confusion reigns in Southeast Asia over the fate of an estimated 100,000 refugees from Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam.
 Thailand, host to more than 90,000 people who have fled their homelands, has ordered the ouster of all "boat people" who arrived during the past two months.
 Norway and Britain have promised refuge to all Indochinese picked up by their ships. The United States has agreed to accept up to 15,000 refugees from the coasts of Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan, the Philippines and Singapore.
 But Thailand has a special problem.
 "If we treat them well, our relations with Vietnam will be endangered," a Thai official said. "If we do not treat them well, the rest of the world considers us inhumane."

SEOUL, South Korea — The United States and South Korea are marking time in negotiations on how to conduct American questioning of Korean businessman Tongsun Park concerning his role in alleged Korean influence-buying in Washington.
 Hasty and optimistic speculation by Seoul newspapers on an accord has changed to a cautious tone and now the talk of speedy agreement no longer is printed.
 Signs are growing that the Americans still want Park returned to the United States for questioning.
 Both sides, however, are extremely secretive and little is known at this stage. Negotiations are continuing, but whether an accord on the controversial case will be reached soon cannot be predicted.

SYDNEY, Australia — Trade Minister Douglas Anthony has been doing the lion's share of the work in improving Australia's trade relations with non-Communist Asian countries.
 Earlier this year, for instance, the Philippines complained bitterly about Australia's trade barriers and there was strong evidence of impending plans in Manila to obstruct Australian imports through exchange controls.
 Enter Anthony. He took the initiative and invited a top-level Filipino trade mission to Australia in September. The mission concentrated on assessing export opportunities in items not politically sensitive in Australia.
 The result? Philippine exports to Australia will now include automobile parts, raw coffee, seafood, wood products, toys, gas cylinders, marble blocks, tiles, travel goods, hand embroidered table linen, ladies' leather handbags and purses and handmade cotton goods.

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippines is undeterred by financial and administrative problems in the way of its bid to host the 1978 United Nations General Assembly session.
 Filipino officials say they can supply a proper assembly site — the Philippine International Convention Center which also hosted the World Bank-International Monetary Fund meeting in 1976 — and the necessary administrative backup manpower for the session.
 Just last week, a U.N. survey team flew into Manila to find out whether the Philippines indeed has the facilities required for such a mammoth undertaking.
 Philippine First Lady Imelda Marcos last month went to New York as a special envoy to issue the invitation to U.N. members, who have yet to make a decision on the offer.

Hard Times Strike In Clinton

By JACQUELINE HUARD
CLINTON, Mass. (UPI) — It's been downhill for Clinton ever since the president left town. But no one's blaming Jimmy.

Two days after President Carter spent the night last March, the town's biggest employer closed up shop, taking with it 800 jobs badly needed by Clinton's 12,906 residents.

A few months later there was a 3½-month strike at the town's second-largest industry. And the latest count showed Clinton's unemployment at 11 percent.

But over at Lou's Diner, Jimmy is still a hero.

"It's not his fault Colonial Press closed down," said short-order cook Michael Turini, 26. "That had been in the works two to three years. Poor guy, he just came at the wrong time."

What sticks in Turini's mind is his cousin, one of 800 people picked in a lottery to attend the special town meeting with the president March 16. Carter gave the cousin his White House telephone number.

"And Jimmy told people to circle Clinton on any mail they sent and it would get special attention," Turini said.

Sharing his sentiments is beer distributor Edward Thompson, who with his wife, Katherine, and 10 children, hosted Carter overnight. Like many Clintonians, he has only good feelings for the President. The whole family calls him "Jimmy."

"Certainly the fact he appeared in Clinton didn't hurt the economy," said Thompson, 57. "As far as helping Clinton, what's he gonna do?"

Despite the high unemployment, many people appear unconcerned about the town's economy.

Last month, one of the items on a special town meeting agenda was hiring someone to recruit industry for Clinton. Selectmen tried to take a vote at two separate meetings but couldn't because there wasn't a quorum of 250 people.

Local residents remember many a meeting when people were rounded up just to get a quorum. And one unidentified man this week offered a $100 door prize to be drawn by one of those attending the next special town meeting.

But it's not much of a joke to Dr. Lawrence Burke, a general practitioner and chairman of the finance committee.

"People weren't interested in showing up," he said of last month's meetings. "I think they may be complacent. People just didn't care. They probably have the attitude, 'Well, George will do it.'"

Town officials did succeed recently in setting up with neighboring Lancaster an 11-member Economic Development Committee to draft a blueprint for the town's future in order to get federal aid.

All in all, it's hard for anyone passing through to tell Carter was ever here. There aren't any "The President Slept Here" signs and there are no immediate plans to put any up.

"Clinton is Clinton," Turini told a reporter. "It's gonna take a lot to change this place."

"But don't forget to say our football team is 7-0."

Bill Harrah Looking Forward To Expansion, Not Retirement

By GARY PEDERSEN
 RENO (AP) — Expansion, not retirement, is foremost in Bill Harrah's mind these days, as the possibility of gaming in Australia increases.
 Forty years after he opened a dimly lit bingo parlor in downtown Reno, William Fisk Harrah runs what the experts say is the best gaming operation in Nevada. And while his $100 million-plus operation is centered here, he says his thoughts are across the ocean.
 "They already have slot machines in Australia and it looks like in a couple of years casino gaming will be legalized. They are looking at what gaming can do for their country. It would be a challenge for us," he said.
 The Nevada Gaming Commission has some reservations about allowing Nevada gaming operators permission to expand to out-of-state or in foreign countries, but many feel if any could win that permission it would be Harrah, who already is laying the groundwork.

Harrah, 66, a man who reveres privacy, allowed interviews recently as his 40th anniversary in gambling approached.
 Over the years he has steadfastly built a reputation for management excellence, and along the way built two of Nevada's busiest hotel casinos, here and at State-line on Lake Tahoe.
 Harrah's is a public corporation with an impressive financial foundation. The latest annual report shows $14.6 million net earnings, up 25 percent on a 14 percent increase in net revenue of $161 million in 1976. Figures for the current year appear to be on their way to being better.
 "Any successful business should always be thinking about expansion. We are. Our Harrah's World is on the front burner, we have an expansion planned downtown here, and the Australia possibility remains.
 "And we aren't anti-Las Vegas, either. If we could find a super deal on a hotel down there ... we'll be there. We don't want to go down and buy some land and build a new one, but as I said, if the right deal comes along, we'll take it."

 How about expansion to Atlantic City, where voters have approved casino gambling?
 "That's a possibility and we are looking at it. But we are going to sit back a while and watch what happens. We want to see if they are going to be able to control it, or see whether the bad guys will be taking over," Harrah said.
 Over the years, Harrah has let action — not words — speak for him. His friends call him reserved, quiet, private and insistent on quality. But above all they say he is a good businessman.
 "I've built all this on solid business principles. I've been fortunate to have some excellent management people. I'm not an expert on gaming, but I have some people who are," he said.
 He's attracted many new customers with top-name entertainment. He calls many of those performers friends and has them to dinner at his opulent Ranch-harrah south of town.
 To many, the name Harrah is synonymous with automobiles. "Cars have always been my thing. Ever since I could remember. Cars. I wanted to know all about them," he laughed.

TV Viewers In America Reject British Bobbies

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — British bobbies might be held in high esteem around the world, but a British character actor says they tend to bomb in the United States as the stars of television series.

Walter Gottell, a tall, hawk-nosed man in Portugal for the filming of "The Boys from Brazil," should know. He played the chief constable in "Softly, Softly," a series that ran for 12 years on British television and was still going strong when it stopped.

"Our series was exported to several European countries and the Commonwealth, but never to America because we didn't shoot enough people to satisfy American tastes," Gottell said.

As compared to the lashings of violence in American series, "Softly, Softly" was markedly placid most weeks. In the average year, only about 10 characters were seriously hurt on screen, the bobbies failed to solve the crime in four episodes and two episodes dealt with corrupt policemen.

With the stern but kindly good guy image behind him, Gottell has turned to different roles. He played the Egyptian intelligence officer, Col. Riad, in "Black Sunday" and the KGB chief in the latest Bond film, "The Spy Who Loved Me."

Now he has been cast as an truculent Nazi hit man in "The Boys from Brazil," which is being filmed around Lisbon to the delight and amazement of the Portuguese.

A popular lagoon south of the city has been turned into a South American jungle crowded with 20 tons of tropical plants. Parts of Lisbon itself have been transformed into various South American cities populated by several thousand Portuguese extras.

The $12 million movie is the most expensive one ever filmed in Portugal. It stars Gregory Peck as Nazi fugitive Joseph Mengele — "the Angel of Death of Auschwitz." Sir Laurence Olivier plays the Jewish agent hunting him, which was a flip flop for him. For the character he played in "Marathon Man" was a caricature of Mengele, whom he has now been cast to hunt.

The book by Ira Levin and the movie hinge on an attempt by a group of aging Nazi war criminals to create a pack of new little Hitlers through genetic engineering and environmental conditioning.

The chief villain, Mengele, is based on an actual fugitive war criminal accused of being responsible for the death of 300,000 Jews, killed in often horrific genetic experiments during World War II. Recent reports have claimed that he was still alive and residing in a military zone in Paraguay.

Songwriter Cahn Offers Advice

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's the custom for elderly songwriters to grouse that today's tunes aren't as good as in the old days. We now turn the floor over to Sammy Cahn, 64.
"Aw, I don't hold with that much," the by phone from New York. "I think every generation has the right to put its own stamp on its own culture."

Lyricist Cahn, a songwriter since age 17, has 18 new tunes in one show arriving next Nov. 23. It's a CBS music special called "Once Upon a Brothers Grimm."

and a favorite composer for such singers as Frank Sinatra, Cahn counts the tunes he's written in the thousands, not hundreds.
The better-known ones range from "Three Coins in the Fountain" to "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon." In addition to his "Love and Marriage," later a hit for the Cahn, a resident of Beverly Hills for 17 years, still maintains an apartment in his native New York, where he and a partner, Saul Chaplin, broke into the songwriting business as a team.

It was there they first scurried about the hallowed halls of tunesmithing, the Brill Building in mid-Manhattan, knocking on publishers' doors, offering their wares and learning of rejection.
"We got turned down every day, but that's how we learned to write," laughed Cahn, who recently ended a stint at New York's Rainbow Room in a show that featured both his anecdotes and his music.

When he began his career, publishers ran things. Cahn was asked where he'd try today if he, at his current age, was starting fresh, had no reputation and never had a song recorded or published before.

"I'd try to find a recording artist who doesn't write his own material, which would be very difficult," he said, noting that most of today's pop singers prefer to write their own songs.

Why the change?
"I wish I could explain it, but I can't," he said. But he suggested that today a singer needn't be all that good to succeed, which helps composers with not-so-hot voices make it as singers.

The suggestion wasn't sarcastic, just realistic.
Cahn, now in the process of writing special material for a coming 50th anniversary salute of CBS by CBS, was asked the inevitable question: Which comes first, the words or the music?

"The phone call," he said, meaning the songwriting assignment.
Cahn criticized the old Hollywood musicals about songwriters that give the impression they sit and wait until they suddenly are smitten by inspiration, then feverishly compose a big hit.

"Ah, that's all nonsense," Cahn said. "I'm often asked in my show, 'Do I need to be inspired to write a lyric?'"
"Well, since the gentleman who hires me to write the lyric doesn't need to be inspired to pay me, the question is academic. You write when you're hired. And you had better be able to write."

The Chinese lunar calendar, which dates to 2600 B.C., preceded the Gregorian calendar by 4,200 years. According to the calendar, the Gregorian year 1977 is the year 4375.

Eric Sevareid Ready To Retire

By MIKE FEINSLBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — He was born in the wheat-growing Great Plains village of Veiva, N.D., on Nov. 28, 1912, so Eric Sevareid will be 65 at the end of this month, and will retire.

He has been broadcasting for the Columbia Broadcasting System since he was 26, trying to make sense out of the world and to make the world make sense.

Last Thursday night he was honored at a lavish party, a newsman feted by Supreme Court justices, members of Congress, ambassadors, cabinet members and journalists.

It was held in a plastic tent in the brick courtyard of Decatur House, a historic mansion across Lafayette Square from the White House. A cold wind buffeted the tent. Rainwater flowed under the flaps but did no harm.

Sevareid used the occasion to hail his listeners and tell why he scowls.

"I discovered after all these years," he said, "that most people in this country have a deep instinct about fairness and honesty, that they recognize these things. They may disagree with you violently half the time, but if they think you're trying to be fair, then they will go along, and they will listen."

As for the scowl, he said he couldn't help it.

"I can't smile at machinery for some reason. I think it's a family thing. All Sevareids are scowlers. Probably came from generations of ancestors peering through the mists of Norway."

Richard Salant, president of CBS News, gave him two retirement gifts — fishing gear and an old typewriter.
The typewriter was an IBM Blickensderfer. The fishing gear was an Orvin cane rod by Wesley Jordan and a reel by Stanley Bogdan.

Among those who attended were Vice President Walter Mondale, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, retired Justice William O. Douglas, cabinet member James Schlesinger, colleague Walter Cronkite and most of CBS' on-the-air Washington correspondents and, from another network, Howard K. Smith.

Sevareid leaves the air at the end of this month, but he said he would return to face the camera from time to time. He will be a CBS consultant.
He acquired a taste for journalism hanging around the office of the Veiva Journal, a weekly.

He worked for the Minneapolis Journal, but was laid off in hard times. He went to Europe and worked for the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune and for the United Press, as night editor.

Then Edward R. Murrow called him from London in August 1939 and said, "I don't know very much about your experience but I like the way you write and I like your ideas."

House Sets Nov. 21 Hearing On Houston's Environment

HOUSTON (UPI) — Congressional hearings on the city's environment Nov. 21, will prelude a $1 million regional air study that could discredit unreasonable federal standards for the area, two lawmakers announced.

Reps. Bob Gammage and Bob Eckhardt, both Houston area Democrats, said the new investigation will supplement statistics from other cities that have been used unfairly to set air quality standards in "unique" Houston.

"For too long, the Environmental Protection Agency has promulgated air pollution control strategies based on data collected in Chicago and Los Angeles which simply may not apply to Houston's critical problems," Gammage said.

Gammage and Eckhardt, who say Houston's problem may involve unusual geography and very high humidity as well as normal hydrocarbon pollution, won congressional authorization of the study last spring.

Eckhardt said that, without the study legislation and an extension of compliance deadlines, existing regulations would have put "a lid on new industrial construction here and a squeeze on existing plants."

The congressman was referring to the EPA's much criticized "tradeoff" policy.

DR. LAMB

Gas Can Be Controlled

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had trouble with gas on my stomach for about a year now. My doctor says I eat too fast. I have always been a slow eater.

I do not have a problem with constipation but do have trouble passing gas and having a bowel movement. I don't think it's what I eat; it's anything, about an hour after I eat anything. It's very uncomfortable, and my stomach makes very loud noises which are very embarrassing.

I've told my doctor this, too. My stomach doesn't hurt, it just swells until I do have a bowel movement. Is there anything you can tell me that will help?

DEAR READER—This is a fairly common complaint. Everyone has some gas or air in the digestive system. You can't eat or drink without swallowing some air. The way a person eats can add to swallowing air. Most people pass the air they swallow readily and they are not even aware that it has happened. Others have real problems with it—at least 10 percent of the population.

Fermentation in the digestive system is another cause for gas. The classic example here is mature bean seeds. They contain a triple sugar that cannot be broken down by digestion and this carbohydrate ferments releasing gas. This also happens in people who cannot digest lactose, the double sugar in milk. These people find that milk and milk products are a major cause of gas and sometimes more distressing symptoms.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness, which will give you a complete review of the various causes of gas, gas pains and what you can do about it. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. By following a few simple rules, you may be able to help yourself. You can identify whether or not you swallow air, and perhaps break the habit. The loud noises you describe in your stomach are caused by forceful contractions of your digestive system.

The whole tube from mouth to rectum contains a middle layer of muscles that contract and relax to move the food along for digestion.

The over-active bowel sounds suggest that you may have some element of a spastic colon. When the colon goes into spasm from the over-contraction of the muscles in it, the spasm shuts off the opening. The food, liquid, and gas behind the spasm is literally trapped, and nothing will happen until the spasm is relieved. This can cause severe pain either from the spasm which acts like a muscle cramp or from distention and stretching caused by the trapped gas. It doesn't matter whether the gas is from swallowed air, fermentation or both. It hurts just as bad.

That suggest that you may need some treatment for spastic colon. One of your best helps here is to add bulk in the form of cereal fiber as found in bran foods. Also try to establish regular habits. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1/4, Spastic or Irritable Colon, to give you more information on what to do about an over-active colon.

Greasy Rock Group Sha Na Na Slides Up TV Rating Scales

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One's first reaction to an encounter with the Sha Na Na rock group is to put in a call for the cops.

The 10-member gang gives more the appearance of a 1950s San Quentin graduating class than a bunch of musicians.

They slouch around in undershirts, denim, sneakers, black leather, gold lame and a tattoo here and there. They are bound together by a common predilection for the greatest hair since Elvis Presley first arrived on the scene.

Sha Na Na looks like a Saturday night police lineup after a rumble on the wrong side of the tracks. You'd swear you've seen their photographs on post office walls.

But turn the grungy congregation loose in a concert hall and Sha Na Na will pack the joint at $8 a ticket.

For more than a decade the all male mob has been enchanting crowds with top flight rock, zany stage antics and professional musicianship. Now Sha Na Na is gleefully slipping into high ratings with a syndicated weekly half-hour frolic on 120 television stations.

Their names are Dirty Dan, Bowzer, Screamin Scott Simon, Chico, Jocko, Lennie and like that.

Much as they resemble a street gang specializing in the liberation of hubcaps, most members are former college students with nothing more than traffic tickets on their records.

They have no official spokesman nor leader, but Bowzer with his slicked back pompadour, black T shirt and pipestem arms has emerged as the most amusingly sinister of the group.

His real name is John Bauman and he's about as tough as any classical pianist who studied at New York's famed Juilliard School. He also may be the most articulate of the gang.

During a rehearsal break the other day Bauman explained Sha Na Na's origins.

The group's name is taken from the refrain of the 1957 hit, "Get A Job."

"We began when we were students at Columbia," he said. "There were 12 of us and we sang as the Columbia University Kings Men. We had no professional aspirations. But in 1969 we began to play gigs and the ball started rolling."

"What we're doing is the best of 1950s rock as it used to be when everyone wore greasy ducktails. We came on the scene when rock groups had no show. They just stood on stage and sang."

"We were dynamic. We put in comedy and mythologized choreography. Then we added a lot of street corner group stuff — 10 guys moving all the time and having fun. Our success is based more on theatricality than music."

"We're the most successful rock act in history without a hit record. We've done eight albums but never had a top single."

"We do a lot of parody on the mood of the 50s. But musically we're straight rock and try to recapture the songs of the era as they were done originally."

"The songs we sing would be unacceptable if they were written today. If you wrote a number like 'Teen-ager in Love' you'd be laughed out of the business. It would be considered too adolescent, but it is acceptable as nostalgia."

Sha Na Na makes no pretense at sanity in concert or on the tube.

Bauman says Sha Na Na was the forerunner of the freaky antics of David Bowie and Alice Cooper. Their greasy, street tough image predated Henry Winkler's Fonzie by four years.

He also believes Sha Na Na appeals to all age groups. Citizens in their 30s and 40s remember the music and costumes as something they lived through. Those in their 20s relate the phenomena to their parents. To teen-agers and pre-teens Sha Na Na is a freaky new sound and look.

"We've never had a leader," Bauman went on. "We're a democracy. We literally vote on all decisions. What songs to do, how long to tour and other things. There are politics within the group but the factions are changing all the time."

ABC Chief Attacks Groups Telling Sponsors To Drop 'Soap'

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Silverman, the president of ABC Entertainment, this week attacked as undemocratic those groups pressuring advertisers to withdraw from sponsorship of "Soap."

ABC refuses as a matter of policy — and possibly expediency — to give out any figures on sponsorship for the controversial "Soap," but the campaign to push sponsors into dropping the show must at least be inconveniencing the network.

Silverman in a Chicago speech last week compared the pressure groups of today with their "threats of economic reprisals" and "ultimatums to advertisers" to the 1950s blacklisting by Red Channels of broadcasting personnel it considered Communist sympathizers.

That may be going too far, but Silverman does ask the pertinent question: "At what point does pressure become repression?"

No one questions the right of an individual to pressure a network by writing or telephoning complaints about programs. Many people — some of them "Soap's" severest critics — argued against trying to stop ABC from premiering "Soap" in September because they considered that undemocratic pre-censorship.

Silverman obviously believes that pressure on advertisers — well-known as a skittish breed — also falls into the category of undemocratic censorship, since it does not leave the final answer with the general public.

Silverman quotes a survey by the Louis Harris organization which found that 81 percent of those surveyed who had seen more than one episode of "Soap" plan to watch more episodes, and that less than one out of five persons surveyed found the show objectionable.

More impressive are the Nielsen ratings, which show that "Soap" is the only new show this year that has been in the top 30 every week of the season.

If church and other well-meaning groups have the right to pressure advertisers into dropping sponsorship of "Soap," then the National Rifle Association has the right to pressure advertisers who might sponsor anti-gun programs, and any group with a sizable membership — even the ones that some of us are opposed to — has the right to exercise similar pressure.

Silverman dragged another issue into the argument that doesn't belong there — efforts to restrict or even outlaw advertisements aimed at children.

It's one thing to argue that the audience should be the final arbiter of what is offensive — but that doesn't apply to small children who obviously cannot make adult judgments.

It would seem that Federal Trade Commission chairman Michael Pertschuk agrees. In a speech prepared for a Harvard workshop on children's television Pertschuk said the "commercial exploitation of children is repugnant to a civilized society" and expressed concern about television ads aimed at children, particularly those pushing highly sugared products.

Variety, the weekly show business trade paper, estimated broadcast advertising revenues for children's programs to be about $600 million a year.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be realistic regarding targets you set for yourself tomorrow. You could be disappointed by biting off more than you can chew and wound your pride needlessly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be very clever and resourceful tomorrow in dealing with material matters. In matters of the heart, however, you're governed more by emotions than by wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Associating with friends will be important tomorrow, and it should prove enjoyable. Just take care not to become immersed in their personal problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Unfortunately, tomorrow you will be judged by the company you keep. If your cohorts aren't well-regarded, your reputation could suffer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tomorrow should be fun and games, but keep an eye on the clock. Too late a night will cause regrets tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tomorrow may be one those days when you could be quite lucky materially, but somewhat unlucky in love. Don't spin your wheels chasing cupid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Big issues won't dismay you tomorrow as you're capable of handling them in stride. It's the little things that'll get you off balance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Important tasks should be tackled early in the day tomorrow when your stick-to-itiveness is the strongest. Your attention wanes as the clock winds down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're involved with high rollers and free spenders tomorrow, you're likely to follow suit. They may be able to afford it, but can you?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be a good provider and protector tomorrow, but do so in a manner that doesn't make those close to you feel unduly obligated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be attractive to members of the opposite sex tomorrow, but more so as a friend than a lover. Don't misinterpret harmless compliments for something serious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial prospects will be mixed tomorrow. Your gains will outweigh losses, but they could be even greater if you were more prudent money-wise.

Americans Continue To Move To Sunbelt

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are continuing to move to the Sunbelt states of the South and West, and away from urban centers to smaller cities and towns, according to a nationwide survey by Merrill Lynch Relocation Management, Inc.

"The movement of people in large part accompanies the moves of industry," said Weston E. Edwards, board chairman of the relocation firm, "and businesses are increasingly willing to locate in communities on the remote fringes of urban areas, and throughout the lower-cost base areas of the South and West."

Edwards cited Seattle and Portland as two metropolitan areas where residential home demand is particularly strong.

Strike By Firemen Threat To Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain's firemen walked out of their station houses today in an unprecedented nationwide strike for more pay, leaving hastily trained servicemen and volunteers providing a thin line of fire defense.

The first casualties after the firemen walked out at 9 a.m. were an 84-year-old woman, who was critically burned when her chair was set alight by a spark from her fireplace, and two Royal Marines overcome briefly by smoke.

The strike was the most serious challenge so far of the Labor government's determination to maintain its 10 percent, anti-inflation ceiling on annual wage increases, now in its third year.

The firemen, whose weekly pay base averages $115, are demanding a 30 percent increase. A survey made earlier this year and quoted in today's Financial Times showed that the average wage of a manual worker in Britain is $128.70 a week, a policeman below rank of sergeant $144.90, and a security guard $126.36.

Police said the injured woman was Mary Cranfield, who lives in a farmhouse near Chesterfield in Yorkshire County in northern England. Her son raised the alarm and helped police put out the fire before a Royal Air Force team of firefighters reached the house, police said.

The Royal Marines were affected by smoke and given oxygen after bursting into an apartment in Birmingham, Britain's second-largest city, to put out a mattress fire. An officer at the scene said the men continued with their duties after treatment.

Union leaders claimed the strike action was nearly total. But the first hours of the strike brought less than the normal number of emergency calls, and official said the backup force was coping well.

No law prevents the firemen from striking, but this is the first time they have ever staged a nationwide walkout. Firemen in Glasgow, Britain's third largest city, went on an unofficial strike for two weeks in 1973, the only previous strike by British firemen.

Richard Foggie, assistant general secretary of the Fire Brigades Union, claimed nearly 100 percent of the nation's 43,000 firemen were supporting the strike, expected to last at least a week.

"It is solid," he said. "The British fire service is in limbo. We have only a handful of firemen showing reluctance to join the strike. This is a massive response."

But officials in special fire control centers around the country said citizens were apparently taking extra precautions and that there were relatively few emergency calls.

Royal Air Force personnel manning one of the 850 25-year-old fire trucks pressed into service were summoned to extinguish a burning washing machine at Weston-super-Mare near Bristol in western England. The old fire engines have been dubbed "green goddesses" because of their olive-drab color.

The makeshift fire force, most of whose members have only a week's training, were not using Britain's regular fire stations and modern equipment because the Labor government wants to avoid confrontations with the picket lines thrown up outside the fire houses.

The London fire control center, set up in the Greater London Council's emergency flood center, reported emergency calls were considerably less than on an average day when London's 6,500-man fire brigade normally deals with 250 to 300 calls.

"The signs are that people are definitely being more careful with fire precautions," a brigade spokesman said.

Home Secretary Merlyn Rees in a broadcast Sunday night said the government is not seeking confrontations over its pay policy that "is for the good of us all," but it will not back down.

Rees said he could not believe "that anyone, for example, would allow children and old people's homes to burn down around their occupants." But Michael Brown, one of the firemen at the station that protects Windsor Castle, told reporters: "We won't turn out even if the queen is trapped in the castle."

The biggest danger appeared to be in strife-torn Northern Ireland.

Five bombs exploded in Belfast Sunday night, gutting at least three buildings. Four other bombs were defused.

some concern about the cost of accessory equipment and supplies that must be purchased to use the punch card system.

The library contract approved today — although it was not on the published agenda — ends a city-county squabble over how costs for the library should be apportioned.

The new contract calls for the county to pay 40 percent of net local operating costs.

Girls Drive Away In Officer's Car

KERRVILLE (AP) — A statewide bulletin went out early today after a car was stolen in Kerrville. The car, however, shouldn't be too hard to spot. It's a green 1974 Chevrolet with red lights on top of it and a sign on the side that reads, "Kerrville Police."

A police spokesman said officer Jim Blodgett was talking to the night clerk in the lobby of a motel on the outskirts of Kerrville when he saw two young females drive away in his car.

Officers said they believed the car was headed for Florida. Noting that it is against the law in Texas to leave the keys in the ignition of a parked car, the spokesman said he doubted that charges would be filed against the officer, saying the embarrassment of having his police unit stolen was probably enough punishment for the officer.

Somalia Ousts Soviet Forces

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somalia, angry at the Soviet Union's tilt toward rival Ethiopia, is expelling the Soviet navy from its chief bases on the Horn of Africa and ordering thousands of Soviet advisers out of the East African country, Radio Somalia has announced.

The broadcast Sunday said the Marxist government was also breaking diplomatic relations with Cuba, renouncing the 1974 friendship treaty with the Soviet Union and ordering a reduction in the Soviet Embassy staff in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

Somalia has been the Soviet Union's chief ally in East Africa since 1969. But recently Moscow has been pouring arms into Ethiopia and denying them to Somalia in an attempt to end the rebellion in Ethiopia's Ogaden region by Somali tribesmen, who want to join the territory to neighboring Somalia.

Somalia claims that the Marxist military regime in Addis Ababa is also being aided in the Ogaden war by Cuban troops, a charge which Cuba denies.

Neither Moscow nor Havana had immediate comment on the Somali action. But Somali President Mohammed Siad Barre had repeatedly warned the Russians that the Soviet-Somali alliance was in danger, and the announcement Sunday was no surprise.

It has appeared for some time that the Russians thought either that the Somalis would not go so far or that Ethiopia would prove a more valuable ally. But with much of Ethiopia in revolt and the ruling military clique in Addis Ababa a hotbed of dissension, the Kremlin may have made a serious miscalculation.

Information Minister Abdulqadir Salad Hasan announced that the Soviet military and technical experts in Somalia, who are believed to number between 3,000 and 4,000, had seven days to leave the country. He said the Cuban embassy staff had to get out in 48 hours.

Abdulqadir said Soviet use of Somali facilities "on land and sea" would end immediately.

The Soviet navy's Indian Ocean fleet has been using the port of Berbera, on the Gulf of Aden in northern Somalia, and Kismayu, on the southern coast.

Western experts say the Soviets also had missile storage sites at Berbera. Somalia exchanged these facilities for Soviet weapons and training for the Somali armed forces.

Abdulqadir said the Soviet Union and Cuba have "brazenly interfered" in the Ogaden war. He repeated his government's charge that the supplies of "military assistance and personnel" to Ethiopia herald an attack against Somalia in the future.

Somalia says between 7,000 and 15,000 Cuban troops are in Ethiopia, but both Ethiopia and Cuba deny this. Western diplomats in Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, say they believe there are only 200 to 400 Cuban military advisers in the country.

Somalia in turn denies that its army is fighting in the Ogaden desert of southeast Ethiopia, although it admits to arming and aiding the rebels, who are Somali tribesmen. The rebels now are believed to control 90 percent of the territory and need only the cities of Direddawa and Harar to drive the Ethiopian army from the region. But some foreign military experts believe the recent Soviet aid may enable the Ethiopians to regain control.

Siad Barre has asked the United States, Britain and France as well as the anti-Communist governments of Saudi Arabia and Iran for arms. The United States said it would not send weapons to Somalia while the Ogaden war continued, but France, Iran and Saudi Arabia are reported to have responded more favorably.

Rate Issue Aired By Conferees

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee trying to draft a national energy bill is tackling what could be one of its biggest stumbling blocks — electric rates.

President Carter and the House say utilities should be required to charge less for electricity used during the night or at other off-peak times. The Senate disagrees.

The committee handling non-tax parts of the energy program begins work today on resolving that difference, with neither House nor Senate conferees indicating they are willing to yield much ground.

A second conference unit handling energy taxes also was meeting today in its effort, fruitless so far, to reconcile the wide differences between chambers over energy taxes.

The impasse over electric rates is so great that only intervention by the president may be able to help conferees settle on a compromise, said Rep. Philip R. Sharp, D-Ind.

He said only active involvement by the White House may persuade Senate conferees that they should go along with the same form of the House-passed bill forcing utilities to revise their rates.

He said House conferees might agree to modify their plan somewhat to meet Senate objections, but that some such program would have to be in the bill.

But Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., who led the Senate fight to ditch the president's electric rate-revision proposal, said, "Senate conferees are united on the issue, and nothing has been brought out to make us change our mind."

"I wouldn't want to say that the Senate isn't going to compromise, but if there is a compromise on this issue, I don't know where it is."

Carter's energy plan would impose national standards on rate-making by electric utilities. Basically, it would require utilities to sell electricity at rates that reflect the cost of generating it.

Thus, utilities would have to end the practice of giving big industrial users large discounts. And the administration's program would also make electricity cheaper if it is consumed during the night or at other times when demand is not as high as during peak hours.

The House went further, voting to give the federal government broad powers to intervene in state rate-making cases to challenge and even overturn rates approved by state utility regulatory agencies.

The Senate rejected the rate-overhaul plan entirely.

Two Sisters In Chicago Area Now Volunteer Firefighters

CLARENDON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Their father was a fire chief and their childhood home once doubled as a fire station. So sisters Diana Casey and Debbie Jeffry feel they're just doing what comes naturally — fighting fires.

The women are members of the volunteer fire department of this unincorporated area west of Chicago.

"For three years the fire department was in our home until a station could be built," says Mrs. Casey, 26-year-old mother of two.

"The whole fire department system was at the house — a couple of fire engines, six phones and a 100-foot siren tower in the back yard. Fire drills were held at the house every Friday night," she adds.

Now the sisters are going through what might be called a second childhood.

"We answer more than a dozen emergency calls a month, either for ambulance service or firefighting," says Mrs. Jeffry, who works for a chemical company. "Occasionally, Diana and I wind up on the same fire truck answering an alarm. And we're together at fire drills on Friday and Sunday."

Like the other 30 volunteers, the sisters are on call around the clock and are alerted by remote telephone pagers — or respond to the fire sirens. Their firefighting gear is kept at the station.

As a teenager, Mrs. Casey helped organize the women's volunteer auxiliary and eventually became president. Later she did secretarial work for the fire department, then became a firefighter and an emergency medical technician. She has been a volunteer firefighter seven years, and Mrs. Jeffry joined her two years ago.

"We're trained in all facets of firefighting, and we're both practicing for licenses to drive the fire trucks, like we do the ambulance," Mrs. Casey says.

"Sometimes, I'll be out fighting fires early in the morning before I go to work," says Mrs. Jeffry. "Helping out in emergencies is a good way to start the day."

Begin Supports Visit By Sadat

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin took Anwar Sadat up on his offer to visit Israel and invited the Egyptian president to address the Israeli parliament.

Begin spoke Sunday as bombs killed two Arabs in Jerusalem and as a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization endorsed the recent joint Soviet-American declaration as a basis for a new Geneva peace conference.

"If President Sadat wants an official invitation from me, he has it," Begin told reporters after the weekly meeting of his cabinet. But "this gesture should not be exaggerated," President Sadat has not yet decided to come," Begin added.

Twice last week, Sadat expressed willingness to go to Israel if his trip would give impetus to the Geneva conference and President Carter are so anxious to have convened this year. But he told visiting U.S. congressmen Saturday that he had not been officially invited.

Sadat also said Saturday he had sent Carter the name of a Palestinian-American professor who would be acceptable to PLO leader Yasir Arafat as the representative of the Palestinians at Geneva. The Israeli Foreign Minister rejected the proposal, but Begin said:

"If it comes to a concrete proposal, connected with a name, we must first hear the name in order to make a decision."

Sadat did not identify the professor, but said he was a U.S. citizen. However, informed sources in Cairo said he was a PLO member, and Begin reiterated Israel's refusal to negotiate with PLO delegates at Geneva.

Said Kamal, head of the PLO's Cairo office, told a meeting of Arab foreign ministers in Tunis Sunday that his organization is prepared to cooperate in new Geneva talks if the United Nations invites Palestinian representatives on the basis of the Soviet-American declaration.

The document, issued in New York by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, called for resumption of the Geneva talks before the end of the year with Palestinian participation. The declaration did not mention the PLO.

"The minimum basis that the PLO can accept for the participation of the Palestinian people ... is the U.S.-Soviet statement," Kamal said.

"We agree to participate in the Geneva peace conference provided U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, in the name of the two superpowers, invites the representatives of the Palestinian people as part of the Arab delegation to the conference," Kamal added.

Marxist Palestinians of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the two bombs that exploded Sunday in Jerusalem and said they were in retaliation for the Israeli air strikes that killed 110 Palestinians and Lebanese in southern Lebanon last week.

One bomb, in the Old City's Christian quarter, ripped through the top floor of a two-story building, killed an Arab student and wounded four persons. The second bomb exploded about three hours later in the Jewish suburb of Talpout across the street from a nursery school. An Arab teenager was killed and a man was injured.

Study Shows TV Teaches Aggression

LAS VEGAS, N.M. — Children can learn some nasty tricks from their daily diet of television violence but the exposure doesn't necessarily mean they'll act like the cops and tough guys they see on the screen, a psychologist says.

Dr. Joe Flippo says his three-year study at New Mexico Highlands University suggests children learn aggressive techniques from TV but will only incorporate them in their behavior patterns if they are reinforced.

"They will do what they see in the shows, but only if they are rewarded," says Flippo. "Television is a means of learning aggressive behavior."

U.S. Studies New Moves In Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uneasy about its hopes for Mideast peace talks, Carter administration officials are considering a new diplomatic initiative by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to get the Arabs and Israel moving toward the negotiating table.

One option being discussed is having the Middle East foreign ministers meet with Vance next month in Europe. He is planning to attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Brussels and also may make a stop in Budapest to return the Hungarian crown of St. Stephen.

The other option — particularly if prospects for a Geneva conference by Christmas fade — is to send Vance on his third tour of the Middle East in January.

He made diplomatic trips to the area in February and again in August.

"It mostly depends on Tunis," said one knowledgeable official, referring to the current meeting of Arab foreign ministers that has tried, but so far failed, to bridge differences on how to negotiate with Israel.

Contingency planning has not yet reached the point where the United States has approached the foreign governments involved.

Officials here are still waiting the outcome of efforts in Tunis to reconcile the Egyptian and Syrian approaches to negotiations with Israel.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, in a dramatic gesture, has offered to sweep aside procedural difficulties. He has proposed having the Palestinians be represented at Geneva by an American university professor of Palestinian origin. And he has offered to go to Jerusalem to talk to the Israelis — an offer that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has welcomed.

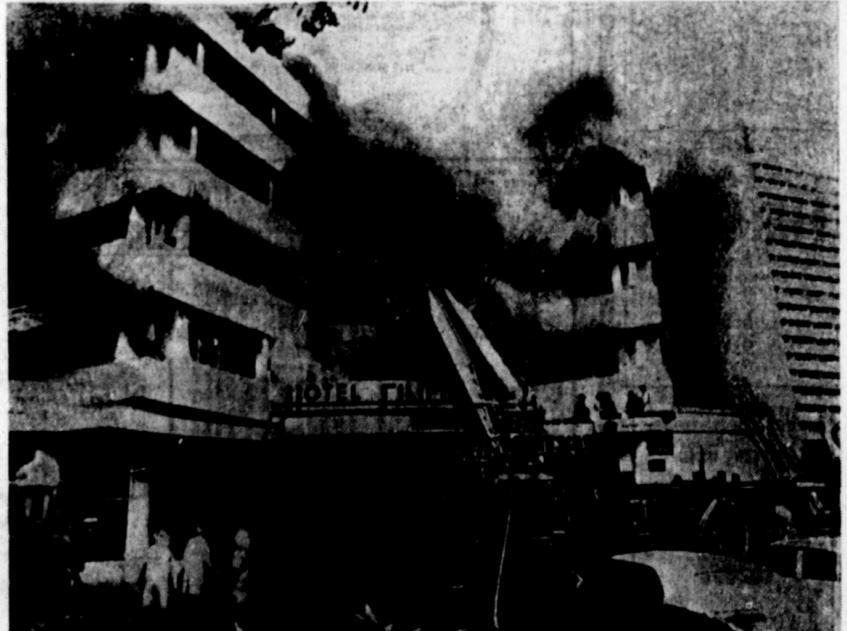

Syria, on the other hand, is insisting on direct participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization in the Geneva talks along with recognition that the PLO is on an equal footing with the other Arab parties.

At the moment, officials here said, a series of meetings between Vance and the Middle East foreign ministers in Europe next month is more likely than another Vance trip to the area.

But they said that if a Geneva conference by Christmas turns out to be impossible because of Arab differences, it might be necessary for him to go to the Middle East again in January.

While the dispute over Palestinian representation is the key obstacle, there are other problems including insistence by some of the Arabs for what amounts to a commitment in advance from Israel to yield almost all the territory it won in the 1967-Six Day war.

The United States has seized on Sadat's public attempt to break the procedural deadlock. President Carter, at a news conference last week, urged Syria, Jordan and Lebanon to follow Egypt's lead and agree to an immediate convening of peace talks.

Friends, Colleagues Establish Fund For Larson Children

A fund to aid five Lubbock children whose parents died following a two-car collision Saturday near Lubbock International Airport has been established at American State Bank here by family friends and colleagues.

Becky Larson, 10-year-old daughter of victims Dr. and Mrs. Robert Larson of 3102 59th St., was reported in satisfactory condition at Methodist Hospital early today after surgery for injuries she received in the 4:30 p.m. collision.

Two other Larson children — 7-year-old Russell and 4-year-old David — were passengers in the Larsons' 1973 Volkswagen when the fatal crash occurred at the intersection of Regis Street and U.S. Hwy. 87. The two youngsters were treated and released at Methodist Hospital.

Seventeen-year-old Rocky Atkinson, driver of the two-door Plymouth Fury involved in the collision, was not reported seriously injured, but police said the youth was "visibly shaken."

One source said two Larson children — Robert and Douglas — were attending a Boy Scout event at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center when the accident occurred.

Passersby and emergency medical technicians attempted to save the Larson couple at the collision scene, just inside the city's northern boundary, while others comforted the three children.

But Dr. Larson, 38, a professor in the home and family life department at Texas Tech University, was pronounced dead on arrival at 5 p.m. at Methodist Hospital. Mrs. Larson, 40, died about an hour later at that hospital.

Funeral services have been set for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons). The Bishop Samuel D. Richards will officiate.

Burial will be in Utah under the direction of Lindquist Mortuary in Ogden, Utah.

Terrorist Study Cites 50 Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government scientist estimates there are 50 terrorist groups with 3,000 members in the world, but only four or five represent an international threat.

Robert Kupperman did not list the groups, but referred elsewhere in the report to the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Japanese Red Army and the Red Cells in Germany.

The study also mentioned groups operating in this country: the FALN, which supports Puerto Rican liberation; the Weather Underground and the American Indian Movement.

Kupperman, chief scientist for the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, studied terrorism with grants from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The report, released over the weekend, said terrorists could carry out "mass annihilation" with nuclear weapons, and biological or chemical agents.

But obtaining nuclear materials in the United States would be difficult because of generally good security measures at nuclear installations, the study said.

"The techniques for control and detection of nuclear materials are much better than those for chemical or biological agents," Kupperman wrote. "Chemicals of great toxicity are so widely used in farm and factory that preventing access to such agents by potential terrorists is an unachievable goal."

There are only loose controls over access to cultures of virulent disease-causing biological organisms and "only limited knowledge is required to breed a large amount of bacteria from a minute sample," Kupperman wrote.

MRS. ROBERT LARSON

As news of the tragedy spread, friends of the family mobilized efforts to care for the five children, whose future home remains undetermined.

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints sheltered the youngsters until grandparents arrived Sunday.

Dr. Carl Andersen, chairman of the university's home and family life department, said the Robert or Kaye Larson Memorial Fund has been established at American State Bank.

A bank spokesman said early today that "four or five" contributions had been deposited during the fund's first two hours of existence.

Persons who want to contribute to the fund may deliver donations to the bank, located at 1402 Ave. Q, or may send funds to The Robert or Kaye Larson Memorial Fund, in care of American State Bank president W.R. Collier, P.O. Box 1402, Lubbock 79408.

Dr. and Mrs. Larson were married Feb. 14, 1963, in Manti, Utah.

Dr. Larson was graduated from Manti High School and Snow College, a branch of Brigham Young University.

He received a doctoral degree from Florida State University and served for two years as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He was a former bishop of the Lubbock first ward of the church and was a high councilman of the Lubbock stake.

He was a member of the National Guard and was active in Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Mrs. Larson was graduated from Weber College. In 1962 she served as a field missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

She had been president of the church's Relief Society and was a Sunday School teacher and Relief Society teacher.

Dr. and Mrs. Larson had lived in Lubbock since 1969.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible mean when it says, "Judge not, and ye shall not be judged" (Luke 6:37)? Does this mean we should never make any decisions about what other people are doing, even when they seem to be doing evil?—Mrs. L. P.

DEAR MRS. P.: No, the Bible makes it very clear that we should be discerning about good and evil. We are not to sit back and accept evil as if it were good. We are told instead, "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try (i.e. test) the spirits whether they are of God" (1 John 4:1).

Our standard is the Word of God, and we are to know the truth of God's Word. When we know God's truth, we will also recognize what is false, whether it is false doctrine or false behavior.

What Jesus condemns in this statement is a self-righteous, critical attitude, rooted in pride, that goes around condemning people. It is the kind of attitude that says, "I am better than you are." Instead of loving other people, someone who is constantly judging others in a critical way will actually snub or scorn other people because he thinks he is superior to them.

The true Christian should never be judgmental and prideful. He knows he is just as much a sinner in God's eyes as the next person. He knows he is not saved because he is better than other people, but simply because of the grace of God. "What happens now to human pride of achievement? There is no more room for it... the whole matter is now on a different plane — believing instead of achieving" (Romans 3:27, Phillips Translation).

Pride and a critical, judgmental spirit go hand in hand. When we let Christ into our lives, however, these will begin to fade as we let Him fill us with His love.

Murder Trial Opens Today

Testimony was expected to begin this afternoon in the murder trial of Debra Gay Adair, 26, accused of the April 2 shooting death of John Michael Burks.

Jury selection was conducted this morning before 110th District Judge George Miller of Floydada, presiding over a special impact court.

Burks, 26, of 2214-A 15th St. was shot once in the left temple with a small caliber pistol, police reports indicated.

The wounded man was found by police who responded to a call to Miss Adair's 5112 35th St. residence about 3:30 a.m.

Reports said Burks was found unconscious in a bedroom chair. He was taken to a local hospital, where he died about four hours later.

Man Markets Home Earthquake Alarm

DUBLIN, Calif. (UPI) — There are home fire detector alarms and home burglary alarms. And now Richard Spencer has come up with a home earthquake alarm.

The idea is that the alarm responds to the first shock waves, sets off a piercing whistle and gives you precious seconds to get out of your house before the full force of a quake hits.

Spencer, 32, whose firm Seismotronics is wholesaling the $90 Quake-Alert device to electronics distributors, says experts agree most deaths in a tremor are caused by collapsing buildings.

Thus, he says, his patented invention would be particularly useful when people are sleeping.

"It sounds like a police whistle — very shrill," he says.

Besides, notes Spencer, the small rectangular box has terminals in the back "so you can hook as many alarms as you want to it remotely — bell alarms, miniature sirens, beeper horns."

Spencer, who formed his company in February and started marketing the alarms two months ago, says the bulk of his sales thus far are in earthquake-conscious California, Hawaii and Alaska, as well as Nevada.

The Quake-Alert, a meter with a sensor, was born in Spencer's 1974 attempts to measure building vibrations caused by air-conditioning systems.

"I looked around the electronics market trying to find a sensing circuit that would pick up low frequencies and finally I just made one myself," he says.

He then applied the instrument to measure an earthquake's low-frequency horizontal and vertical motions.

Many people who hear about the alarm want to know what good it will do to know in advance about an earthquake.

"The machine will register a shock and sound the alarm before you will feel it, especially if you're asleep," he says. "People are a lot safer just getting outside."

Spencer says people who use his device usually keep it "on fireplace mantels, in cupboards, on any sort of shelf, on desk tops. We recommend they are kept up high, away from children."

He says his business indicates that people often respond only when emergencies threaten. After one quake in the area, he says, "I got 50 calls for these alarms. People got scared."

The dress jacket without a tail was first worn at the Tuxedo Club, Tuxedo, N.Y., in 1886.

State Prison Chief Backs Death Penalty

By AMY KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

HUNTSVILLE—James Estelle believes in the death penalty. It's justice, he says, the "ultimate punishment" for the killers society can't figure out.

"Here you've got a human being," he says. "A living, breathing, walking, talking human being. And some guy comes up and snuffs him... Quite frankly, at the point somebody is convicted with capital punishment, I'm not nearly as concerned about that individual as I am concerned about the safety of the community left at their hands."

Estelle figures if his attitude changed, he'd have to quit his job as executive director of the Texas Department of Corrections and search out a living beyond the red brick compound that houses his office and the state's death chamber.

Since he took on the job in 1972, Estelle has never had to execute a Death Row inmate. But, he says, if he owes it to the Texans who favor capital punishment—an apparent majority, he notes—and to the taxpayers who write his paycheck, he's willing to do it.

"If you have a real philosophical difference of opinion, then you've got a decision to make," he says.

But for Estelle, the decision is an easy one—both on professional and philosophical grounds. His personal feelings don't get in the way of his official job as state executioner or the belief common among supporters of capital punishment that it deters other violent crimes.

"I wish I could be (opposed to capital punishment)," he comments. "But the Jonas Salk of our discipline hasn't come marching down the road yet. And the day I can tell my children that there is a safe alternative to the death penalty will be the day I back off my support of it."

"With the lack of knowledge about aberrant human behavior, I just don't believe that for a few cases there is a safe alternative."

What about the possibility of life imprisonment without parole?

"That's truly a good definition of cruel and unusual punishment," he answers. Estelle shores up his arguments much like other death penalty supporters: the Legislature's revised capital punishment statute, passed in 1973, was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976; it excludes inmates who could be rehabilitated and returned to society; and the thought of an official execution keeps potential killers from carrying out their work.

First In A Series

The new law limits capital punishment to five categories of crime: murder of a peace officer during the course of his duty; murder during the commission of a kidnapping, burglary, robbery, arson or aggravated rape; murder for hire; and murder of a private citizen or penal institution employee during an escape attempt.

"You're not talking about the family beef or the triangle murder... You're talking about people who commit murder in the process of the commission of another felony. For instance, the shopkeeper who gets killed by an armed robber simply to eliminate a witness. Or somebody who gets killed for strictly and purely a profit motive. Or a thug who goes out and puts himself as a gunman for hire. It's a very distillate group."

Estelle defends the statute as fair; and Estelle charges the penalty is administered unfairly to the poor and minority groups, saying the ethnic breakdown among Death Row's 61 residents is roughly 50 percent white and 50 percent black and brown.

Meanwhile, he says he does not and has never looked forward to participating in an execution; yet he somewhat glumly predicts continued delays—primarily because of federal court rulings and the "imagination, innovation or creativity" of defense attorneys trying to keep their clients alive.

If "justice delayed is justice denied" for Death Row inmates, Estelle reasons the same is true for society. And he says there's no way to calculate how or if an established but inactive death penalty has hurt society.

The thought of capital punishment, he notes, probably doesn't keep the average murderer from committing his crime. But an execution would prevent a repeated occurrence. It deters the person who is thoughtful enough to question its effects.

And, he adds, it deters him from the idea of murder.

"Now that's three of us, but if you apply the principle universally, I have to conclude that the death penalty is a deterrent."

Police In Mexico Seeking Driver

VILLA AHUMADA, Mexico (UPI) — Police are searching here for the driver of a gasoline truck they say is responsible for a fiery train wreck Saturday in which at least 30 persons were killed 60 miles south of El Paso, Texas.

Some reports placed the number of victims as high as 37, including 10 children.

Authorities said the truck driver, Roque Flores, was trying to beat the train to a railway crossing when the passenger train collided with the tank of the truck. Flores fled after the incident.

Killer Believed To Be Friend

DALLAS (AP) — The family of a 9-year-old girl whose body was found Saturday near Lake Ray Hubbard believes Barbara Marsh was abducted and slain by a friend — but they don't know which one.

"We think it was a good friend mentally gone wrong who done this, because Barbara wouldn't have gone with a stranger," said Betty Latham, the slain girl's 20-year-old sister. "Mother cautioned her a lot."

Barbara last was seen Friday night as she played basketball near her East Dallas home. Some 12 hours later two fishermen stumbled upon her body. From afar they said it looked like a mannequin. The body apparently had been in the water nine or 10 hours, and officials said evidence at the scene indicated the young girl was drowned while unconscious.

The death marked the third apparent abduction-slaying of young Dallas-area girls since February. The apartment complex Barbara's family lives in is about six blocks from the spot where Ladina McCoy last was seen in February. Seven-year-old Ladina's body was found four months later near a Southwest Dallas creek.

In September a 12-year-old Denton girl disappeared after her mother left her with the family washing chores at an area laundry. Suzie Magee last was seen talking to an unidentified man at a Denton fast food restaurant. Her body was found two weeks later in an Oak Cliff gravel pit.

Help Texas Plan for Clean Air

ATTEND A PUBLIC MEETING
Lubbock, 7:30 p.m. — Monday, November 14, 1977
City - County Library
Public Meeting Room
Seventh Street

The 1977 Amendments to the Federal Clean Air Act became effective in August. These new amendments require that a list be prepared designating the areas of the state that do or do not meet the national ambient air quality standards for each of the five pollutants: particulate matter, sulfur dioxide, photochemical oxidant, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen dioxide.

The Texas Air Control Board is requesting public participation in the process of designating these areas of attainment and nonattainment of the air quality standards. Available data require considerable judgment and interpretation and frequently allow different conclusions. These conclusions or designations and the resulting consequences mandated in the Act can seriously affect air quality and economic development in Texas.

For additional information and to learn how you can be involved in this process, contact the Texas Air Control Board Regional Office, Briercroft Office Park, Building 15, Lubbock, Texas 79412, and attend the public meeting.

This meeting is being held to inform you about the important decisions relating to the designation of attainment and nonattainment areas that the Texas Air Control Board must soon make and to obtain your advice as to the designation which is most appropriate for your community. A court reporter will be present to provide a record of the meeting.

YOUNG FUN JUSTIFIES ITS NAME, PICTURES CORRECTLY HINT

Young Fun, In South Lubbock, Excels In Quality, Selection

"Lubbock and area can count itself as most fortunate, especially in the pre-Christmas season, in having access to such a store as Young Fun, Inc. Lubbock's newest children's store with the finest collection of toys and furnishings for the discovery years."

Young Fun, Inc., located in Town South Center (3402 73rd St. at Loop 289 and Indiana Avenue), is a revelation in quality and selection, with a staff experienced with children, understanding the stages of their development.

Young Fun tries (most successfully) to stock the unique and exclusive, with some items manufactured especially for this store.

The big and attractive store is presently open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and until 9 p.m. on Thursdays. After Thanksgiving, Young Fun will be open every week night.

Many Services
Among the other customer considerations is layaway at no additional charge; welcome of Master Charge and Visa; so-beautiful gift wrap at just 25 cents regardless of package size, and delivery service!

These services, plus the exceptional and "different" stock, and the knowledgeable staff have contributed to the store's growth since its establishment a year ago.

Sherry Fewin is manager and brings with her a rich experience in working with children, having taught five years in a private school here before entering the business. She is assisted by three full-time and three part-time student staffers.

"To enumerate the items would be impossible, so please come by and see just how very much is offered at Young Fun, Inc."

Among the goodies to be found are: Madam Alexander and Effanbee dolls. One section devoted to stocking stuffers, birthday gifts and favors, etc., all priced under $5.

Realistic animals such as the quality Steiff line from Germany are noted in the big store's stock.

And creative playthings: Soccer balls.

The Scribbler activity center: wheeled goods, skate boards, games that are "different", providing action, fun and education.

See the large cuddly bears and other animals including dummies, rabbits and more.

And the Show 'n Tell phonoviewers: electric organs, Legos, Dinky Toys, Tonka adventure buggy, etc. Even the Good-year Blimp with "make your own sign."

And what a display of infant and juvenile furniture! See the out-of-the-ordinary tube beds, etc. some contemporary, and the chests, rockers, tables and animal chairs, decor pieces, etc.

Or maybe selection will be the Crazy Super Soaper (floating sponge with soap inside), musical toys, wooden toys, and more.

"If seeking a toy to be loved and enjoyed, one cannot miss at Young Fun, Inc. just off 73rd Street and Indiana Avenue, a store that is truly different... to your advantage."

Bernice's Hair Fashions Providing Service, Staff, Cost To Appreciate

Razor cuts or scissor cuts for both men and women; everyday low prices, and the skilled staff at Bernice's Hair Fashions make for an unbeatable combination.

Every beauty service is of the highest quality when secured at Bernice's, 2107 Knoxville Ave., near Methodist Hospital.

Uni-Perms, including cut, shampoo and set, are a modest $21, and other services at the salon are equally reasonably priced.

The staff is adept in all the new hairstyles and latest methods, and one could do well to form the habit of depending upon Bernice's, phone 795-2604. Early and late appointments can be arranged.

Barbara Huffman, a Jessie Lee graduate well recognized in the trade and by customers who appreciate quality in beauty and hair care, is manager. Barbara has been with Bernice's for 14 years. Bernice Sturdivant still is owner.

Barbara is assisted by an able staff including Mavis Taylor, Debbie McCollum and Mary Williamson.

Mary, an Odessa Beauty School graduate, has been with Bernice's for seven years, and specializes in blow dries and curling iron, though rendering the other beauty services as well.

Mavis is newest member of the staff and is highly regarded by customers and co-workers alike as a color technician. A Jessie Lee graduate, she has been an operator since 1965, and is glad to help with color problems.

Debbie McCollum, a graduate of Mickie's Beauty Academy, specializes in blow dries, curling irons and general hair-dos.

With these operators, one can be certain that the complete hair care and beauty services are available.

"Hair care from any member of this qualified staff can actually make you the envy of the crowd."

Manicures are available.

Whether long or short hair styles are the situation, or whether old or new style cuts are desired, Bernice's can be a most satisfactory solution.

It is pointed out that with the very popular Uni-Perm, one's hair behaves as nicely as naturally wavy hair. There's none of the harsh stiffness falsely referred to as "body," either.

Bernice's is open six days a week.

Remember the location, one-half block south of Methodist Hospital at 2107 Knoxville Ave., phone 795-2604, a location especially appreciated by residents of that area and by hospital-related personnel, visitors, etc.

"Enviably beauty care is just as near as Bernice's Hair Fashions in Lubbock where the coffee-pot always is on and a friendly, casual atmosphere prevails."

Prater's Fine Turkeys, Hams, Dressing Readied For Season

"If you have ever eaten a Prater's turkey, then surely you are looking forward to another as the highlight of Thanksgiving holiday meals!"

"If you have not formed the Prater's habit, then a delightful new experience awaits."

Fresh turkeys will be ready Friday, Nov. 18, and Thanksgiving turkey orders are being taken for pickup on Nov. 21-22-23.

Lubbock facility and are completely cooked, ready to eat and have the same sugar-cured goodness of the other hams for which Prater's is so favorably known. The boneless hams are available in 4 to 8 lb. sizes.

Or maybe the choice is brown-and-serve baked turkey:
 Fresh, fattened birds;
 Smoked turkeys; or those long-cured country hams, smoked or spiced.

ter's, defy comparison. The firm's successful goal has been to produce fresh birds for the people in this area at holiday times when they want them most.

Prater's turkeys have a better finish, are fatter and juicier than turkeys that have been quick-frozen and which may have remained frozen for weeks or even months.

Prater's Turkeys began business in 1952 with only 500 turkeys, working up to 30,000 at one time.

If the bird is needed before the 21st, there is no need to call for reserve order.

You may buy the Prater products at Prater's (just drive about two miles south of Loop 289 on University Avenue and look for the Prater's sign on the left) or you can find the special Prater's label right in your favorite supermarket.

At the Prater plant, clean throughout, there is noticeable attractive decor and ease in shopping. Everything is modern and convenient, inside and out, and a huge paved entry and parking apron makes for easiest access.

Hickory-smoked Canadian bacon; country-cured bacon; smoked sausage, and smoked turkey breasts.

For the small family, Prater's comes through with smoked chickens at a 3 1/2-4 lb. average size.

It's all at Prater's.

A spacious display room with self-service refrigerated cases makes viewing and selecting especially convenient at Prater's.

Now the word is generally known... broadbreasted, baby beef type fresh turkeys from Prater's just cook and taste better than quick-frozen birds that have been shipped long distances.

"Think Ahead"

Prater's smoked items are ready to heat and serve, having been smoked slowly over hickory embers until the meat is moist with just the correct touch of hickory flavor.

Multiple Products

Check the several products for which Prater's is famous, products that are available for the holidays and for any "good meal."

A delicious smoked turkey roll is now a member of the Prater's product family. These are breasts that are put into rolls and smoked, and not only are most delicious, but have been appreciated by weight watchers.

For assurance of a Thanksgiving meal unmatched in tasty goodness, depend on Prater's products (that also are great for gifting).

Store hours are 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. The phone number is 745-2727.

Brown-and-Serve

The brown-and-serve baked turkeys are marinated by Prater's then completely cooked, ready to eat. They are cooked in foil to retain all the delicious juices, then placed in plastic bags and vacuum packed. The average turkey requires only 1 1/2 hours oven time to be ready for the table. (It is advised to remove the foil from the breast and legs during the last 15 minutes of preparation to bring the bird to a golden brown.)

Great For Gifting

Business concerns and individuals alike have found that Prater's smoked turkeys, hams and Canadian bacon make ideal gift items at Christmas and for other special occasions.

And it is time to think about Christmas remembrances, isn't it? Prater's can help.

Boneless Hams

The boneless hams are prepared at the Fresh, fattened birds, as readied by Prater's.

Slumberland Reveals New Partner, Added Products, Design Services

Three significant announcements are made by Slumberland, 3532 34th St., the one-stop interior design firm:
(1) Owned and operated for the past three years by the husband-wife team of Al and Shirley Clifton, the firm has now taken in a partner, Curtis Campbell, who is specializing in the commercial, tile and carpet phases of the expanded business.

Campbell, a Texas Tech graduate is a former teacher and coach at Olton, Levelland, Roosevelt and at Evans Junior High School in Lubbock. A seven-year Lubbock resident, he has been owner and supervisor of apartments here for two years, and has been announced as new half-owner of Slumberland.

Interior Decorating
(2) Another key announcement: Slumberland in the past has maintained a custom drapery department. Now, however, with the new partnership formed, Slumberland has taken the entire second floor of its building for a new and complete interior decorating department, the "Unique Decor and Interior Design."
"We will now be able to handle the needs of all our friends and customers in interior design and decorating, both residential and commercial."

Added Products
"With the formation of the new department, we have added carpet, ceramic tile, vinyl flooring, new lines of fabrics, blinds and woven woods, and we soon will be adding a complete line of wallpaper."

Gary Wood, specialist in interior design for four years in Lubbock, heads the residential department. He is a graduate of Texas Tech in Interior Design and has been associated with Slumberland for three years. He would like to invite his friends and customers to come by any time they have decorating needs.

"Gary or one of our other professional decorators will be glad to assist in giving new ideas, and they will be glad to give free estimates on any decorating need."
Sale Underway
(3) A third announcement of import is that of the Thanksgiving Sale underway at Slumberland.
Serta mattresses are marked at 40 per cent off regular price!

Custom drapery is 20 per cent off, including fabric, labor, lining, woven woods and blinds.
Note this:
Traditionally, Slumberland has featured one of the very largest selections of bedspreads in the entire state; and this still holds true. A remarkable selection of "everything for the bedroom" has been provided at Slumberland.
A complete stock of brass beds is stocked.
Also, see the gorgeous velvet headboards and the pillows, satin sheets, round beds, lamps and even sheets and spreads for the round beds.
"If you haven't visited Slumberland in the last few months, we believe you are in for a pleasant surprise... a real revelation in quality, quantity and friendliness. Come by and meet or renew acquaintance with the new partner, Curtis Campbell, with the Cliftons (who both were reared in Denver City and who have made quite a name for themselves in their ownership and service at Slumberland), and with the entire staff. Each can be of definite benefit in just about anyone's decorating plans."

The firm is especially well known for its manufacture of refuse containers for industry, home, business and municipalities, together with irrigation needs.

The irrigation program throughout the

The capabilities of the firm are many, even including shearing 12 ft. material and bending the same size.

Correct and adequate machinery in the shop are prime items in the variety of quality-work turned out by Fabit Corp., enabling custom shearing, bending, channel and angle work, etc., for contractors and warehousing needs.

Apartments, restaurants, commercial establishments — all find the Fabit-made trash containers to be the utmost in quality.
More and more individuals, businesses and municipalities are finding that it makes good sense to "buy your refuse container directly from Fabit, the manufacturer, getting the best quality at the best price."

A five-ton bridge crane serves the entire 6,000 sq. ft. production area and helps speed the work and keep material handling costs down.
Fabit Corp. gives your work its undivided attention.
"Let Fabit prove its ability! Your work can be done with us for a quoted contract price or on an hourly basis.
"Also, inquiry is invited about our Refuse Division."

Carpet World Stages Year-End Stock Reduction Sales Event

Year-End Stock Reduction is underway at Carpet World, 3221 34th St. This means that every carpet in the big showrooms is marked down in price for the big sale.
In this sale, one may select from hi-lo shag, kitchen carpet and all, and prices start as low as $6.95.
(All quoted prices at Carpet World include expert installation and pad, owner Gary Chamberlain emphasizes, with no hidden costs.)
Chamberlain has been in the carpet business virtually "all his life," as has Jerry Hosch of the sales force. They know carpet and they know how to stock for Lubbock area needs and preferences. Both are lifelong Lubbock residents.

Bays Directly
Carpet World represents over 20 mills, with the firm purchasing directly from the mill in truckload lots, "eliminating the middle man and passing the savings on to the customer."
Due to this purchasing procedure, Carpet World is cheaper than many of the so-called discount operations, the ownership explains.
Among the lines, every one of prestige quality, is Walter by Ludlow, Georgian by West Point Pepperell, and Lewis Carpet.

Free estimates and immediate installation anywhere in the area are company policies.
Financing is available.
A lot of people have turned to Carpet World during its 2 1/2-year history, profiting accordingly, Chamberlain likes to prove.
Selection and installation still is possible for holiday needs and enjoyment at Carpet World, 3221 34th St., (just east of Indiana Avenue), phone 792-3948.

Farmers Group Independent Agents Offer Multiple Aids

Gene Cribbs and Philip Wilbanks have a very pertinent question: "Are you utilizing the services of a Farmers Insurance Group independent agent in Lubbock?"
"If so, you know the benefits; if not, then likely you should inquire and profit accordingly."
Wilbanks and Cribbs are two of the some 18 independent agents in Lubbock affording "anything in insurance" the Farmers Insurance Group way.
All these agents will be introduced from time to time on these pages of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, with two being featured each time (with selection based on their proximity in office location).
Today meet Wilbanks and Cribbs, both maintaining offices at 3323 82nd St. (82nd and Indiana).
Each has a background that makes for his understanding and services as an insurance agent, whether in the personal lines or any of the conceivable insurance needs.

A Viet Nam veteran, Wilbanks attended Lubbock High School and is a '76 graduate of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview.
"I enjoy working in the insurance field more than anything I have ever done," Wilbanks emphasizes. "I like people and I like to aid them, and insurance through the Farmers Group provides an excellent opportunity for this service."
Whatever the insurance need, Wilbanks can work out a plan to benefit; he only asks the opportunity.
"These men are your kind of folks... neighbors who not only have your interests at heart but are aligned with a company that can meet the multiple insurance needs of today."

Payments, less an expense charge, earn a high prevailing interest rate (currently 8 per cent) with 4 per cent guaranteed.

Cribbs
Cribbs, an area native, is a graduate of Plainview High School and a Texas Tech graduate of 1963. After college, Gene served more than 12 years as an insurance adjuster, 1 1/2 years of this tenure with Farmers Insurance Group before going into the agency field.
Gene's wife, the former Shirley Garrett of Plainview, also is a '63 Tech graduate and now teaches in the Lubbock Public Schools. They have a son, Stan, 12, and daughter, Susan, 15.
Gene is glad to serve, whether in life, fire and casualty and all insurance lines, and he notes that his background in adjusting has been of extreme benefit in presently serving his customers.

"Anything in insurance" is the correct image of Farmers Insurance Group, Los Angeles based organization celebrating its 50th anniversary in 1978 and one that has been represented in Lubbock for over a quarter century.
Seven office locations are now utilized in Lubbock, with another under construction. These are located at 3328 82nd St. (the district office); 2221 34th St., 5106 Slide Road, 5602 Slide Road, 3534 34th St., 3408 50th St. and 4417 50th St.
Among the local Farmers Insurance Group agents are Jerry Rose, Jim White, Don Busby, Rick Dyer, Tom Malona, Gene Cribbs, Gary Jeter, Dick Heath, Al-line Baxter;
Joe Schoenig, John Hatchett, Howard Havery, Lee Robertson, Lanny Harris, Don Freeman, Jere Smith, Presley Shofner and Philip Wilbanks. Bill Hatchett is district manager.
Each is thoroughly versed in the full spectrum of insurance services — auto, fire, life, truck, boat, commercial, liability and all.

IRA Outlined
Special attention is directed to the IRA-Plus savings including such features as:
Allowable savings contributions are 100 per cent tax sheltered.

Wilbanks
Philip Wilbanks has been a career agent with the Farmers Insurance Group since early August.
A lifetime Lubbock resident, he served with the sheriff's department for six years.

Rhea's Crafts Enabling Fun Way To Christmas Preparation

"Isn't it high time to plan and begin those craft projects for Christmas?" One can get a very valuable assist in this field at Rhea's Crafts, 2831 34th St., where fresh, new stock augments the already-huge selection of Christmas gift and decor items.

Rhea's makes it fun — satisfying and economical, too.

Always-ready assistance is a big factor in the services rendered at Rhea's Crafts.

Free Help

Individual instruction is absolutely free when one purchases at Rhea's.

The long-standing rule is that anyone buying supplies there is welcomed and even encouraged to come in, sit at the big worktable and even use the big spray paint room, completing the selected project without any further charge. Rhea Abbott is one hand to "show you" just how the project is done. What an opportunity for uninterrupted pursuit of one's craft projects, with free instruction!

A tremendous stock of plaster is on hand at Rhea's. See all the new items including Christmas-related ones including the Three Kings, snowmen, Santas and nativity scenes, and more.

And there are silk flowers for Thanksgiving and Christmas centerpieces.

Blossoms for combs, too.

Plus everything for decoupage, including beautiful prints.

Pastel Chalks

Rhea's stocks a full selection of pastel chalks as an added service, some may not yet realize.

Of course, there are macramé supplies for every need.

And Mirro-Magic, too: with this process, one can open "windows" in mirrors to display and frame cherished prints, photographs, decorative paintings or those special mementos.

With this technique, mirrors become frames to reflect and protect fine prints, heirloom photos or decorative painting. All materials are available at Rhea's.

Check also regarding the five ways to finish plaster, including antiquing, bronzing, marbling, acrylics and pastel chalk.

(Remember, Rhea's not only has ideas by the scores, but stocks all necessary supplies in kit of individual piece form.)

Spray paints and base coats are included in the wide stock, together with acrylics in various sizes; embroidery paints, "fab-acrylic" for painting on materials, and a most fascinating stock of Fantasy Fur.

Glass beads, bangles, etc. (even genuine water buffalo teeth from India, and goat thong from Greece) are provided.

There is so very much from which to select at Rhea's Crafts that one must come and inspect the big store with its off-street parking, to correctly visualize just what awaits there.

The wide, wide selection is made possible at so-low prices, too, due in large part to the interest of the ownership in "treating folks right".

Everything is departmentalized, displayed for easy viewing and comparison.

Whether the desire is for the work area advantages, the new stock arrivals, the pastel chalks, the helpful free assistance, selection from the huge plaster stock, or any of the other goodies at Rhea's, likely this Lubbock store has "just what you have been seeking."

Caldwell Auto Service Cites Advisability of Winterizing

"Has the cooler weather or even the calendar (or both) reminded you that winterizing time is here for your automotive units?"

The added demands of driving in inclement weather, of keeping the vehicle ready for holiday or ski trips, or to ball-games . . . all should prompt one to be prudent, to have both family and business vehicles readied for new-season performance.

Caldwell Auto Service, 34th Street at Indiana Avenue, long has served the driving public . . . whether for checking the cooling systems, installation of Delco shocks, Delco batteries, Bear front end alignment, balancing with Hunter equipment, etc.

(Be sure and check with Caldwell for the Wynn's flush systems that you likely have read about.)

Personal service is the big item at Caldwell Auto Service, together with the finest est products and the "know-how" of a full crew.

(Caldwell's is a state inspection station, remember.)

Wrecker Service

Wrecker service is another of the services of the firm.

"See us for the quality lines and quality workmanship," Bruce Caldwell invites. "Among the products we stock and recommend are Delco and Monroe shocks; AC-Delco ignition and filters; Motor Craft ignition and filters; TRW water pumps, Delco batteries and starters; Wynn's motor flushing system, and more."

Or, if it is a wash, wax and polish that is desired, Caldwell can get the job done, fast and efficiently.

Among major credit cards accepted at both the auto service division and at the station are Texaco, Arco, Skelley, Diners Club, Carta Blanche and Phillips 66.

Tested by Decades

The shop was established back in 1946 and has remained at the same well-known and well-recognized location since 1959.

Service Calls

Service calls receive prompt attention at Caldwell's, whether for flats, a car that won't start, etc. Just call Caldwell Auto Service, phone 799-4395, any weekday between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

"If interested in the ease and pleasure of driving into a station always kept clean, with the finest products available, with easy access from two sides, if entrusting the auto to mechanics with a record of dependability is a consideration, then become acquainted with Caldwell Auto Service where one's trade is merited and appreciated.

"Chances are you'll become a regular customer of Caldwell Auto Service — to your saving!"

Woolco Arranges Complete Christmas Shop Including Trees, Trim, Lights

Woolco's Christmas Shop is just that — a complete Christmas shop featuring a wide assortment of Christmas trees, lights and trim at low, low prices.

The artificial tree assortment includes fir, balsam and Scotch pine.

Also, Woolco this year will offer cut natural Christmas trees including Scotch pine, Douglas fir and plantation fir; these will be trim and full natural grown Canadian trees. The live trees are scheduled to arrive by Dec. 1.

Light sets include both indoor and outdoor sets and replacement bulbs from General Electric. (Also provided are the import bubble light sets.) And there are many assorted items with which to trim the tree. Stocked is garland, icicles, ornament balls, spray snow and hanging Christmas figures. Also artificial snow, snow flock, tree cotton, nativity plaques and the Alpine village window scene.

Assorted Decorations

Also featured in the Christmas Shop are lawn and porch decorations.

One may select from the manger scene, Santa Claus and reindeer, electric candles and other electric lawn decorations. Also featured is the artificial electric fireplace.

Also this year, Woolco's Christmas Shop will feature the Christmas stocking program at the stocking booth. Woolco sales personnel will use glitter to put the customer's name on different size stocking.

And there will be a gorgeous selection of nursery grown three-bloom poinsettias to be available by Dec. 1, great for centerpieces.

"Come out now and see the Christmas Shop at Woolco. An amazing selection awaits."

Toy Stock Excels

Toys, toys and toys! Not "just" toys, but Fisher-Price toys are among those featured at Woolco in Lubbock, indicative of Woolco's devotion to quality.

There is a great selection of crib and playpen toys, and mobiles, rattlers, stacking beads, and more.

Plus a wide choice in the old "stand-bys" such as Katy Kangaroo, radio, camera, riding horse, etc.

And new toys. Be sure and see Oscar the Grouch, the medical kit and the stethoscope that really works!

Or the choice might be from the Sesame Street units, a movie viewer projector, and more.

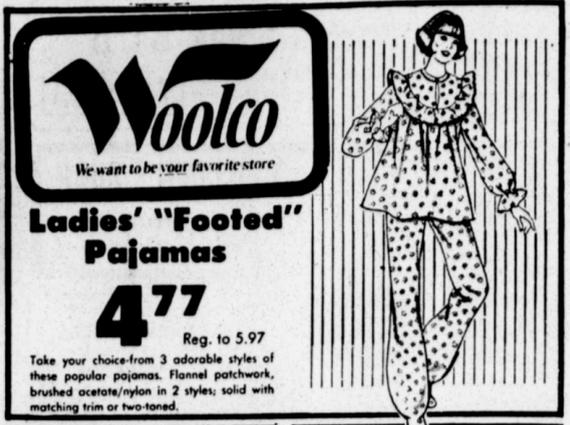

There is a super variety of action toys including trucks and bulldozers, play action sets and adventure action toys.

Shop now when selection is the most complete ever, and use Woolco's lay-away plan if desired, everything at Woolco makes for satisfaction and ease in early Christmas shopping.

Dock Strike May End With Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Tentative settlement of the 44-day longshoremen's strike in North Atlantic ports is expected to lead to settlements along the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts. But no matter what develops, dock workers are not expected back on the job before next weekend.

Union and shipping negotiators for striking Gulf Coast and South Atlantic Coast ports were to meet today on the three-year pact that was reached Sunday between the International Longshoremen's Association and the New York Shippers Association.

The accord covers ports from Maine to Virginia, but was expected to set the pattern for the remaining striking ports. The agreement calls for a 30 percent wage-benefit boost over the length of the contract, raising the current hourly wage of $8 to $10.40 by the third year.

Thomas Gleason, ILA president, said Sunday that no increase in shipping costs would be necessary as a result of the pay hikes because "productivity has gone up 1,500 percent" through automation. There was no immediate comment from the shippers.

Gleason said he hoped to have the all ports ratify the agreement by Friday.

About half the union's 50,000 longshoremen have been involved in the strike that began Oct. 1, and is directed only against container ships. Shipping sources say the costs of the strike so far run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Pre-Christmas deliveries by importers and exporters have been among the casualties of the strike, which has caused layoffs in trucking companies and other related businesses.

The master agreement, worked out here Sunday after a weekend of virtually non-stop talks between the ILA and the shippers, provides 80-cent hourly pay increases in each of the three years, with the first-year increase retroactive to last June 1, although the contract's effective date would be Oct. 1.

In addition to voting on the master agreement, dockers in the various ports also will be voting on separate contracts with local shipping groups on such issues as a guaranteed annual income and job security.

In New Orleans, the nation's No. 2 port, Paul Guillory, vice president of Local 1419, said Sunday that only a few differences in local contracts remain unsettled. He said the major local concern is a guaranteed annual income.

In New York, where longshoremen have had a contract with a guaranteed-annual-wage provision of a full year's work, the new agreement could mean that as of Oct. 1, 1979, every dockworker would receive at least $21,632, even if he does not work.

While guaranteed-income and job security were local issues, the master agreement has clauses making the shipping companies responsible for seeing to it that there is enough money in funds set aside for paying guaranteed incomes, plus welfare and pension payments to the dockers.

Dickman, in the foreground, president of the New York Shippers Association, Sunday announces that tentative agreement has been reached on a master contract that could end a 44-day walkout by longshoremen at Gulf and East Coast ports. J.T. Alley Marks 20 Years As Chief

Most people who've had the same job for 20 years deserve at least a pat on the back. For Lubbock Chief of Police J.T. Alley, make that a few hundred pats.

Today veterans of both the police department and city hall had their chance to give Alley his well-deserved pat of appreciation; today is Alley's 20th anniversary as head of the Lubbock Police Department.

Alley, a tall, strapping man still very much in his prime at 54, has long surpassed the longevity record as the department's top administrator, held by Don Reeder who served from Aug. 12, 1937, to May 1, 1947, just under 10 years.

To say "you've come a long way, baby," to the police chief may raise the eyebrows of protocol officers, but in Alley's case the phrase seems fitting.

It's been just over 31 years since he joined the force as a patrolman Sept. 4, 1946. Within 11 years, Alley made patrol sergeant (1947), patrol captain (1951), juvenile division's first captain (1956), and chief (1957).

When Alley began two decades ago his pay was $660 per month. Today, a raw recruit makes just under $1,000 per month. With time, the chief's pay naturally has risen. City officials say that with a recent cost-of-living raise Alley makes about $27,000 today.

Married and the father of four daughters, Alley's military service and advanced training were preparatory to a career in law enforcement.

He served four years in the Marine Corps, as a military policeman and in active duty overseas for 2½ years. In 1952 he became one of the 102 selected graduates of the FBI's National Academy, at that time the largest class ever to graduate from the elite school.

Thereafter, he attended the Texas Department of Public Safety's traffic school and the Northwestern University municipal administration school. He is a member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

For those who know the chief, there is little doubt LPD's top administrator will be back in 10 years for a 30th anniversary celebration.

Police Arrest Brothers After U-Turn By Van

After observing a van make an illegal U-turn in the 3400-block of 34th Street early today, police arrested two Lubbock brothers for allegedly having outstanding traffic warrants and subsequently booked them on suspicion of felony possession of marijuana.

After discovering that the brothers, ages 20 and 16, were wanted on traffic warrants, officers jailed the pair about 2:40 a.m. A search of the vehicle reportedly turned up about 10 ounces of suspected marijuana.

Two Lubbock men said they were robbed at gunpoint in separate weekend incidents.

Jesus Jimenez told police he heard a knock at his 601 Ave. B door about midnight Saturday, and when he responded, found two men standing there.

According to reports, one of the visitors produced a blue-steel revolver and demanded Jimenez' money as they walked inside. Before they left, the victim said, the duo also took a case of beer and a television.

The robbers reportedly hit Jimenez on the head before they made their getaway; however, he told police he was not seriously injured.

The total cash taken reportedly was $50.

About $300 was the haul for three men and three women who reportedly robbed another Lubbock resident early Sunday.

George Davenport said one of the women pulled a .22-caliber pistol and her companion relieved him of his billfold containing the money about 3 a.m. at his Avenue D home.

Reports indicated that before they left the scene the bandits returned the wallet to the victim, but kept the money.

In recently reported break-ins, Tony Wright said someone broke a plate-glass window near the front door of his 1705 Ave. K office during the weekend and made off with an electric typewriter, a dictating machine and a television set.

Several Lubbockites reported losses from weekend vehicle burglaries.

According to Richard Morgan of 5004 54th St., someone pried the door of his car parked in the 4300-block of 19th Street and stole two boxes of dental equipment and 30 eight-track tapes. The complainant set the loss at about $3,000.

Tape players reportedly were stolen from James Teeter of Route 2, Box 350, Lubbock, whose pickup was parked in the 3100-block of Aberdeen Avenue, and Steven Russell, whose car was parked near his 509 Ave. S apartment.

Reporting similar losses were Bobby Joe Prado of 3007 Fordham St. and Gary McCormick of 5416 50th St., No. 219.

John Seasmom of 5517 3rd St. told officers $300 worth of clothing and bedding was stolen from his vehicle parked at his home Saturday or Sunday, and Dale McCrum of 6607 Ave. S said a box containing $250 worth of tools was lifted from the rear of his pickup at his home.

Police today also were investigating a recent rash of coin machine break-ins.

J.W. Holland, manager of J.W. and Lou's Kar Wash at 3606 50th St., said someone pried a soft drink machine in the parking lot and got away with $100.

Bill Bryant, owner of National Ride Car Wash at 4900 Ave. P, told police that although someone pried the same type machine at his business, they failed to get to the money. However, the complainant did set a $25 damage figure on the machine.

And according to Floyd Allen, owner of Allen Laundry at 4907 Memphis Ave., a dollar-bill changer was pried. However, reports indicated the loss had not yet been determined.

The lone attendant of a 34th Street convenience store told police Sunday she was raped and almost kidnapped by a young white man who entered the store Sunday brandishing a knife about 3:50 a.m.

The young clerk told officers she was sacking ice in the rear of the store when she noticed the man walking toward her with a large knife in his hand.

Wearing blue jeans and a windbreaker, the brown-haired, 18-25-year-old man ordered her to quit screaming and to go into a back storeroom.

She obeyed the man's commands, she told police, including those that she disrobe and lie on a nearby bathroom floor.

After raping her, she said, the man told her to get dressed and he'd "just take" her with him, but when he went to the front of the store to check for customers that might see them, she slammed the door and locked it behind him.

The woman said her assailant tried to break through the door, but two men entering the store apparently scared him away.

Seeing the two newcomers, the man ran through the store and out a side door, police said.

Only a short time earlier, Lubbock police were searching for three white men who robbed an Abilene airman of more than $300.

Gregoria A. Banks of Abilene's Dyess Air Force Base told police he was at 19th Street and Avenue R about 7 a.m. Sunday when the three men he had been talking with told him they knew where he could buy a television set.

The three men left in their own car, and Banks followed behind them in his own vehicle, he told officers. When the cars arrived at a 6500-block of Ave. P address, one of the men pulled a pistol and demanded Banks' wallet, containing $317.

Another Lubbock man told police he too was robbed of about $250 about 1:45 a.m. Sunday by an 18-25-year-old man who entered his store in the 100-block of E. Rice Street. Police were still investigating that incident today.

Police also spent much of the weekend investigating violent attacks on Lubbock citizens, many of which sent the victims to local hospitals for treatment.

A 17-year-old Dartmouth Street woman told police she was parked outside that address about 3:30 a.m. Sunday when she heard two gunshots. The third sound she said she heard was a bullet shattering the glass in her right front window.

Two Oklahoma City men claimed they were walking outside a University Avenue business about 1 a.m. Sunday when they were attacked by two men.

Robert Mythen, 26, and Keith Sanders, 22, told police they were walking near the intersection of 4th Street and University Avenue when the two men stepped from an alley and began fighting with them.

Sanders suffered a knife wound to the neck in the altercation and was admitted in satisfactory condition at West Texas Hospital. Mythen was treated and released.

Two other Lubbockites suffered gunshot wounds during a fight at a 700 Idalou Road club about 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

John Andrews Dotsy of 2422 E. 8th St. told police he was walking east on Idalou Road when he heard shots fired. The next thing he knew, he told officers, he had been shot in the left heel and ip the wrist with a small-caliber pistol.

Wilbert Gene Bradford, 36, of 1814 E. Brown St. told police, after they arrived to investigate the shooting, he was beaten during the same incident. Witnesses said more than 20 shots were fired. Bradford was in satisfactory condition at West Texas Hospital.

The mother of an 11-year-old Lubbock boy told police her son was struck over

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK63 ♠AQ874 ♠A1092
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—It is far more likely that you have a minor-suit fit than that you have a 4-4 spade fit. Nevertheless, we would choose to reverse with two spades. There is still a chance that North might have bypassed bidding a weak spade suit. Also, you should be able to conveniently show your clubs at your next turn.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠83 ♥K962 ♦KQJ6 ♣K72
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Double. This is a good time to tell your partner that much of your strength is in the diamond suit. Don't worry about the possibility of your opponents running to spades. Your partner might be able to take care of that major, and even if he can't, you'll get another chance to bid.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J106 ♥AQ10 ♦K1054 ♣Q109

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Bid two no trump. Despite the fact that you are minimum and partner is a passed hand, his jump shift is a one-round force. Because of the balanced nature of your hand and the useful intermediates, we prefer the no trump rebid to supporting partner with three trumps and perhaps getting him over-excited.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J106 ♥952 ♦J10763 ♣K6

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—With only 5 high-card points, we would not blame you if you passed. However, we are reluctant to take that action with what is really quite good trump support. Since we feel that a raise to two spades would be too encouraging on such a weak hand, we would give partner another chance by responding one no trump.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AJ82 ♥Q ♦AK105 ♣J332

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. 1 ♠ Dble.
Pass Pass 2 ♥ Pass
Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—It looks as if West is trying a baby "psychic" on you. Since partner is marked with spade length for his penalty double of one spade, we would bid two spades to expose West's chicanery.

♠J85 ♥A109 ♦KQ742 ♣84

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner is showing extra values, and we have something in reserve for our free raise. If partner has a spade stopper, there should be reasonable play for three no trump, and even five diamonds cannot be ruled out. We would indicate our interest with a cue-bid of three hearts and let partner decide.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠962 ♥Q87 ♦KQ10 ♣J742

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠
Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner is reluctant to let the opponents buy the hand too cheaply, and in competing for the part score, so we intend bidding. Despite the lack of a spade stopper, we would bid one no trump to describe our shape. The hand could probably play better in one of the red suits, but we don't know which one to choose, and it's highly likely the opponents will buy the hand in any case.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A92 ♥A85 ♦AK84 ♠A105

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With all your points in prime controls, you certainly don't want to stop short of game once partner made a free raise. However, a direct jump to three no trump wouldn't do justice to your hand because this bid virtually compels partner to pass. The bid that leaves all your options open is a cue-bid of three clubs. When you next bid three no trump, partner will be under no constraint to pass if his values are mostly distributional.

More 'Deuces' Mean Treasury Savings

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Expect more two dollar bills, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas A and M University Agricultural Extension Service. Putting more "deuces" into circulation to substitute for a proportionate number of "ones" means less paper money will have to be printed. Miss Kerbel said the Treasury would save $5 to $6 million annually.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 36-year-old virgin who is just about ready to climb a wall. I'm nothing special to look at, and the way things are going I'll never find a husband.

I dated a married man for a while and I really got stuck on him. He wanted me to go to bed with him but I didn't. Now I'm sorry because he was transferred out of town and there went my last chance.

I'm only human and I have those feelings like everybody else, and I mean it is frustrating. I've held off all these years because I didn't want a man to think I was easy or a tramp, but I'm told that even nice girls give in nowadays.

I'm going on a vacation next month, and if I get the chance, I'm really going to live a little. We never know how long we have to live, and I'd like to know what it's like to have a man before I die. Would that be wrong?

Only Human

Dear Only: I wouldn't call a 36-year-old virgin a "tramp" for deciding to live a little before she died. It's wrong only if you hurt yourself, someone else, or if you feel it's wrong for any reason.

I wouldn't give the same advice to a youngster, but you're an adult, in charge of your own life, and you don't need permission from anyone.

DEAR ABBY: I have a good friend who is getting on my nerves. She herself doesn't drive, but when she rides with me she insists on telling me how to drive, when to "go," when to "stop," where to turn, when to slow down, where to park — and if there's enough room to park. Her sudden warnings of "look out!" startle me, causing me to stop abruptly, which could cause an accident.

I have driven for years without a single violation or accident, but this friend makes me so nervous I'm beginning to lose confidence in my self. I hate to hurt her feelings, so will you please print this, omitting my name and city? Backseat drivers need to be reminded that they rattle the driver and cause wrecks.

Fed Up

Dear Fed: Never mind her feelings. Few backseat drivers are aware of their nervous habit, so don't rely on a general warning in my column to get this important message to your friend. Tell her yourself — and emphatically. The lives you save could be yours and hers.

DEAR ABBY: Is it no longer considered "good etiquette" to call and thank one's hostess after a lovely dinner party? I have had several dinner parties lately, and no one has bothered to call or send me a written "thank-you."

Am I just being... Old-Fashioned(?)

Dear Old-Fashioned: The well-mannered guest always telephones the hostess within a day or two to express thanks. The super-gracious guest always writes a "thank-you" note promptly. Those who neither call nor write are thoughtless, lazy or ignorant.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
I call 'em women in white socks living in a pantyhose world. You know them as housewives. There's a lot of them around considering the fact they have no union, no leadership, no lobbyist and no PR.

A few weeks ago in New York, Ladies Home Journal and Kentucky Fried Chicken co-sponsored a seminar to consider this woman who is almost an enigma.

To be a housewife these days you have several options: defend it...apologize for it...deny it, say you are only temporarily at home until something opens up.

Why? If you're a closet housewife, it's time to come out and be counted. There's certainly nothing wrong with women opting to develop a career, return to school or admit that carrying everyone else's nose tissue in your purse doesn't do it for you. Just knowing that the options are there is enough for some of us.

But when did a woman selling orange slices in the dime store become more impressive than a woman who did a darned good job raising three kids for 20 years?

Maybe the time is now to say, "I don't make meat loaf for my husband for dinner when I hate meat loaf because he demands/expects/needs it. I do it because I want to."

Maybe it's the time to say, "I like the freedom of staying home and having control of my day and creating my own challenges. At least for now."

Maybe it's time for some of us to join forces with Susan Revit, Bayville, N.Y., who wrote:

"I always wanted a white shag rug. I thought it would look nice.

Then I had my first child. That made me think twice.

I always wanted some Lenox pieces to put on the table and admire.

And then we had our first child and I opted for a dryer.

I always wanted glass table tops and crystal like a bell.

And then I had our first child and thought plastic would do as well.

I always wanted so many things I always wished for.

But when I saw my first child, I wanted children so much more."

The Slim Gourmet

Fruit is the ex-fatty's favorite dessert, but it needn't be saved for the grand finale of a meal. If you're a creative cook, fruit can also add flavor to lean meat main courses. Today we've got a trio of hamburger skillets with foreign flavor...from fruit!

ARGENTINE BEEF SKILLET
 1-1/2 lbs. lean ground beef round
 10-1/2 oz. can beef broth, fat-skimmed
 1/2 cup sherry wine
 2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped
 4 onions, halved, thinly sliced
 4 tsp. golden raisins
 6 dried apricot halves
 1 bay leaf
 1/2 tsp. thyme
 2 unpeeled red apples, diced
 2 fresh unpeeled pears, diced salt to taste

Spread the chopped meat in a large nonstick fry pan or electric skillet over high heat, with no fat added. Permit the underside of the meat to brown. Then break up into bite-size chunks, turn and brown other side. Pour off all fat. Add broth, wine, tomatoes, onions, raisins, apricots, bay leaf, thyme and approximately 1 teaspoon salt (or to taste.) Simmer, uncovered, stirring frequently, until nearly all the liquid is absorbed. Stir in apples and pears. Continue to cook and stir until fresh fruit is tender but not soft. Serves 6, under 300 calories each.

1/4 cup sherry wine
 3 tsp. lime juice (or 2 tsp. lemon juice)
 1 1/2 cups plain or seasoned tomato juice

1/4 cup thinly sliced green stuffed olives
 1/4 cup olive juice (from jar)
 4 tsp. golden raisins
 2 cloves garlic, chopped (or 1/4 tsp. instant)
 1 tsp. cumin seeds (or 1/4 tsp. ground)
 salt and pepper to taste

Brown ground meat in large nonstick skillet according to directions in first recipe. Drain and discard fat. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer, uncovered, until most of the liquid is absorbed, stirring frequently. Serves six, 210 calories each with beef, about 20 calories more per serving with meat loaf mixture.

QUICK POLYNESIAN CURRY
 1 1/2 lbs. ground lean beef round, or lamb (cut from leg)
 2 onions, halved, thinly sliced
 2 stalks celery, thinly sliced
 2 tsp. soy sauce
 1/2 tsp. MSG (optional)
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 tsp. curry powder (or more, to taste)
 6-oz. can plain tomato juice (three-quarters cup)
 6-oz. can unsweetened pineapple juice

4 tsp. white raisins
 1 red apple, unpeeled, diced (optional)

Home Movies Discussed By Expert

Jay Garon is the Scrooge of the home movie world.

He finds such films a big bore. You know the typical script: children opening Christmas presents in a weller of torn paper and ribbons, or children with birthday cake frosting on their faces waving to the camera.

Or people getting in and out of cars, or on and off boats or airplanes, or posturing before famous landmarks.

"Parents spend their time showing off their children, their last trip to Europe," Garon said in an interview.

If you insist on making home movies on a holiday, he suggests a documentary of your family's own special traditions.

But he would much rather involve parents and children in make-believe films. Garon, a literary agent and former Hollywood bit player, thinks they're more fun for both the participants and captive audiences.

"If you do a good job, it can be very funny, serious or cute.

"If it turns out to be embarrassingly bad, it usually is funny.

"If it is too bad, they probably will never show it."

Garon and his assistant, Morgan Wilson, have written a book to tell how. "The Family Movie-making Book" (Bobbs-Merrill $10.95) grew out of letters Garon wrote his younger sister in Fall River, Mass. As a working mother, she worried about her two children getting into trouble for lack of excitement.

Home moviemaking on weekends was Uncle Jay's solution. He drew on his own observations and experience. In the early 1940s, he had specialized in oriental roles, "mostly Japanese villains in early war movies.

"When genuine Japanese returned from internment camps, there was no need for us synthetic Japanese any more."

His scripts include gothics, murder mysteries and science fiction. They are tailored for families with two to six children — "anyone from an intelligent four-year-old to 15-year-olds.

"Every high school has its dramatic club. It's popular and part of the social structure."

He suggests that children invite their friends and neighbors to participate.

"It gives the kids a chance to show off, to win public acclaim.

"It can be used as an instruction book by teen-agers involved in high school and community theater. It teaches how to set up, write your own screen play or change a play to suit your own group."

Garon said he gets his ideas mainly from old silent movies.

His advice to home moviemakers: Plan in advance. You're wasting film and money if you don't.

Decide where you're going to shoot, what furniture is required.

You can make four sets in four corners of one room by moving furniture and changing pictures on the wall.

"That's what Mama's doing as producer. She figures out how to do it cheaply within the family budget. She knows what's in the attic and the basement to use as costumes and props."

They don't have to be silent movies, he said. "Decent and affordable sound equipment for home movies is available.

"It's all so automatic now. If you can drive a car, you can use home movie equipment.

"And the film and developing charges cost less than going to the movies and a restaurant."

Vitamin Overdosage Health Hazard

CHICAGO (UPI) — Vitamin overdose poisoning is becoming a major health problem in the United States, says Dr. Philip White.

White's editorial was accompanied by a report on the case of a four-year-old boy who became ill from taking massive doses of vitamins from his grandmother's health food store. Tests determined that he had more than 10 times the normal level of vitamin A.

The report was made by Dr. Bennett A. Shaywitz and colleagues at Yale University's medical school. It said the boy's teachers observed him eating the vitamin tablets continuously at nursery school. After four weeks' hospitalization to solve the problem, the child was placed in a foster home, where he has had no further symptoms, the report added.

Police arrested three men for possession of marijuana about 3:20 a.m. Sunday after officers found a plastic bag of what appeared to be marijuana in their vehicle while investigating the report of an intoxicated driver.

Burglars took more than $900 of drugs from the Fee Pharmacy here about 2:30 a.m. Saturday, store employees told officers. The burglars cut a hole in an air conditioning duct to enter the building.

Thieves also made large cash hauls during their efforts over the city during the weekend.

Lena Effie Bursleson of 1101 53rd St. told police she had just cashed an insurance check about 9 p.m. Friday, but shortly after a man came by her home she noticed the $1,500 cash was missing from her purse.

Russell Taylor of an 810 N. University Ave. lounge told police someone took a bank bag containing $1,400 from behind the seat of his locked pickup parked outside the business between 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Friday.

Someone slipped into a back room and took $983 from Bed'n Bath at 4511 50th St. between 6 p.m. Friday and 6 p.m. Saturday, Jean Smith of the store told police.

Doug Davis of 1605 Ave. W. reported the theft of his $4,760 stereo system from his home sometime between 4:45 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Renaldo Rena of 2700 Fordham St. told police burglars took a $225 television set and some jewelry from that home about 1 p.m. Saturday.

Burglars took $450 of tools from a tool shed behind Robert Scott's 2108 14th St. home Saturday.

City Parks and Recreation Department employees reported the theft of a $75 alternator from a city pickup parked at K.N. Clapp Park about 10 a.m. Saturday.

Burglars who broke into Rick's Car Lot No. 2 at 2313 Texas Ave. Friday took a set of car keys from a filing cabinet there and then took the car that went with it, A.J. Lanford told police.

Film Attracts Carter, Aides

By JURATE KAZICKAS
WASHINGTON (AP) — There are not too many events in Washington that get the president and all his top aides out of the White House for an evening of entertainment together.

But the world premiere of Shirley MacLaine's movie, "The Turning Point," did the job.

There was Hamilton Jordan, Carter's top aide; Carter's appointments secretary; Carter's chief speechwriter — and, of course, President and Mrs. Carter — at the Kennedy Center on a bitterly cold Sunday night. Why?

"She is a great performer and a great woman," said Tim Kraft, Carter's appointments secretary.

"She's a top fund raiser. She is for all the right causes. She is going to be very important for 1980," said Mary King, deputy director of ACTION.

"She has friends everywhere. Everyone likes her," said Greg Schneiders, assistant for special projects at the White House.

Whatever Shirley MacLaine's charisma, Carter himself was delighted by the movie.

"It was absolutely beautiful," he said, kissing the actress on the cheek after the showing.

The film is the story of two ballet dancers. One, played by Miss MacLaine, gave up dancing to have a family. The other, portrayed by Anne Bancroft, sacrificed a family to pursue her career in dance.

"This is a film with positive values about real life choices," said Miss MacLaine, surrounded by autograph seekers at the post-film reception. "There's no violence or gratuitous sex."

She said she had asked to have the world premiere in Washington because she is originally from Arlington, Va.; studied ballet in the area, and "when I spoke to the president about the film, he said he would attend."

As did many other White House staffers.

The reclusive Jordan, whose last major public appearance was at a reception for the signing of the Panama Canal treaty, showed up in a grey suit and rope-soled shoes and maintained his low profile by disappearing right after the movie ended, as did the president.

But most of his White House crowd hung around for the reception, where presidential assistant Midge Costanza stole the show dancing with ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov.

Meanwhile, Bella Abzug cornered one of Jordan's assistants to lobby on women's issues as she prepared for the women's conference in Houston this week.

"You gotta be tough with these guys at the White House," she explained.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sales of homes to singles is on the rise, reports House & Home magazine. The decision on the part of singles, the publication notes, is both economic and emotional. New Gum May Help Prevent Tooth Decay

By ROBERT KIECKHEFER
 CHICAGO (UPI) — Dental researchers are trying to see if chewing gum, a villain in many cases of tooth decay, can turn into a cavity fighter with the help of a new sweetener.

Researchers at Loyola University's school of preventive dentistry are testing a theory that the sweetener, xylitol, actually cuts the number of decay-producing bacteria in the mouth. The research is underwritten by William Wrigley Co., producers of Wrigley's gum.

Dr. Kirk Hoerman, a dentist who heads the school, said interest in xylitol-sweetened gum was prompted by a 1974 Finnish study which indicated that people who chewed xylitol gum four times a day had a significant reduction in cavities.

Initial reports from the Loyola study, Hoerman said, "did not see any effect of xylitol that was as astounding" as in the Finnish research. But he said some encouragement was noted.

Whatever the final outcome of the study, Hoerman said, it is important that xylitol alone not be regarded as a cure for cavities.

"The important thing right now is to minimize what could be a high expectation among the public, particularly mothers and children, that xylitol is a miracle, a cure for holes in teeth. It is not a cure for that."

Hoerman's study includes three groups of dental students, who chew seven sticks of gum a day for 10 weeks. One group chews gum sweetened 100 percent with xylitol, another gum with sugar sweetening and the third given a gum base with flavoring but no sweetener.

Researchers take samples of transparent film called plaque from the students' teeth each week and count the number of bacteria, including streptococcus mutans which are known to cause tooth decay.

"Initially it looks like the count of streptococci (in plaque from xylitol chewers) are less than in individuals chewing gum containing sugar," Hoerman said.

But he said it is too early to tell whether xylitol is actually reducing the streptococcus count.

"It could be the effect we're seeing is nothing more than denying sugar because the control (the flavored gum base) is not much different from those chewing xylitol."

Xylitol is a chemical which occurs naturally in berries, some fruits, tree leaves and bark and mushrooms. It also is produced naturally in some animal tissues and in the human body.

It has about the same sweetness and caloric value as sugar. It cannot be used in beverages, however, because of cost factors and the necessary amounts would produce a laxative effect.

The studies with xylitol and other substances, Hoerman said, point toward a time when dentists can entirely prevent cavities if given early enough access to children.

"Some dentists, of whom I include myself, say today, given a child of 3 years of age with few or no cavities and for whom you would write a prescription of in-office care and appropriate nutritional schedule throughout the years to fit that child, there is no reason he should ever have a cavity," he said.

Until that time comes, he said, "we treat the backlog of the ravages of decay."

Scientists 'Locate' Missing Continent

By AL ROSSITER Jr.
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mountain chains bordering the Pacific Ocean may hold the remnants of a lost continent that once existed in the South Pacific, according to a new theory by two geologists.

Drs. Amos Nur of Stanford University and Zvi Ben-Avraham of the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel, call the theoretical continent Pacifica and believe it existed 225 million years ago near where Australia is now.

The two scientists suggest in a report in last week's issue of Nature, the British science journal, that the geologic forces that are constantly reshaping Earth's crust split Pacifica into fragments which slowly migrated across the Pacific.

Scientists believe Earth's crust consists of plates of solid rock riding on warm plastic material and pushed horizontally by upwellings of molten rock from cracks in the ocean floors.

The denser rock of sea bottoms tends to slide under the lighter material that makes up the continents. But when continental masses collide, their edges bunch up and are believed to form mountains.

It is generally accepted that the Himalayas are the product of collisions of two continental slabs consisting of India and much of the rest of Asia. The Alpine mountain chain likewise is believed to be the result of movement of ancient action between Africa and Europe.

Nur and Ben-Avraham believe the fragments of Pacifica were welded to North and South America and Asia and are now parts of mountains bordering the Pacific. The scientists said, for example, that a continental block called Wrangellia which is now part of the Coast Range in Alaska and Canada may have once been part of Pacifica.

The Andes in South America also may hold fragments of the lost continent. Continental chunks in Japan, East Siberia and China may have had similar origins.

Raiders Too Much For Oilers 34-29

OAKLAND (AP) — Just after Billy "White Shoes" Johnson did his thing, sending Houston ahead on a 71-yard pass play, the Oilers had to call on Dan "Soft Shoe" Pastorini to kick off. "Field position is a quarterback's best friend, and I had a lot of friends today," the Oakland Raiders' Ken Stabler said after Sunday's 34-29 National Football League victory over the Oilers.

He added, "It was a real horse race out there."

But halftime was something else. "When I came back onto the field, I thought it was the Pass, Punt and Oilers Coach Bum Phillips had sent several players onto the field early for an impromptu kicking tryout session. Toni Fritsch kicked three field goals in the first half but also suffered a pulled hamstring and was unable to handle the team's last five kickoffs.

Linebacker Ted Thompson tried the last two kickoffs in the first half, two weak efforts barely getting over the 50-yard line. Quarterback Pastorini took over in the second half, with similar results, and also missed an extra point attempt.

The final Houston kickoff came after Johnson got far behind cornerback Willie Brown, gathered in a Pastorini bomb and scored on the 71-yard play which sent the Oilers ahead 29-24 early in the third period. Pastorini's kickoff reached the Oakland 31-yard line, was returned to the 43 and Stabler took the Raiders on a touchdown drive which ended with Clarence Davis' 3-yard touchdown run.

"Field position killed us," said Phillips. "We lost our kicker and gave them good field position the rest of the game. Thompson had been practicing kicking, but we forgot to bring his kicking shoe. Pastorini was kicking with a soft shoe, also."

Pastorini, who had thrown a 41-yard touchdown pass to Ken Burrough in the first half, went down throwing rather than kicking at the end. But Brown and Jack Tatum intercepted passes inside Oakland's 10.

"They came up with big plays, so we had to get some, too," said Tatum, who returned Pastorini's last pass from the 6-yard line to the 47 with four minutes left.

Stabler, whose efforts included touchdown passes to Dave Casper and Fred Biletnickoff, completed a pair of third-down passes as the Raiders ran out the clock for the victory which left them 8-1 and still tied with Denver for the AFC West lead. Houston fell to 4-5 in the tight AFC Central race.

"We played well enough to win," concluded Phillips.

But Pastorini was intercepted four times and rookie runningback Rob Carpenter, who rushed for 120 yards, lost a fumble at Oakland's 40.

"They were all fired up," said Stabler. "They're only a game back in their division. They're still in the race."

Earl Scudday Big Night In Big D

STARTING TONIGHT, the Dallas Cowboys have a three-game span in which to build a legend of invincibility. But the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Steelers and Washington Redskins, in that order, have an opportunity to prove the 'Pokes are only human.

Probably the biggest test for the Cowboys comes tonight at Texas Stadium against the high-flying Redbirds. The swift Cardinals may not be a better team than the Steelers, now that the Pittsburgh brawlers are playing up to their potential again, but the Saint Looey lads are in Dallas' Eastern Division. That gives the game additional importance.

The Cardinals' challenge to the undefeated Cowboys is the glamor event, no doubt about it. Roger Staubach vs. Jim Hart . . . Mel Gray vs. Cliff Harris . . . Ralph Neely vs. John Zook . . . and Conrad Dobler against the world!

To top it all off, Dandy Don and Frank and Howard will be there in living color to tell the world how it really is. Or how they think it is. Who could ask more?

There is a lot at stake in the contest. The Cowboys' perfect record is on the line, along with the chance to make a complete runaway of the NFC East title race.

The Dallas organization is downplaying the importance of the 8-0 record at this point, but every coach and player is aware of the situation. You better believe there are some secret thoughts about the possibility of making it 14-0.

Another incentive for the Cowboys is the home field advantage in the playoffs. The teams with the best won-lost records during the regular season get that big edge in the first two rounds of the playoffs.

So it's a big night in Big D, and for pro grid fans everywhere.

TEXAS STADIUM provides emergency medical facilities for patrons stricken during the tussles, and Dallas President Tex Schramm better see that the medics are at their battle stations tonight. The Saint Looey gridders were dubbed the "Cardiac Cardinals" a couple of seasons ago, after winning a lot of key games in the final minute of play. They are just as explosive this year.

Fans know that the Cards got off to a slow start this season, but few know the reason. Rumors have drifted around the NFL that backfield ace Terry Metcalf was in the Cardinals' doghouse early in the year, because of his salary demands and threats to play out his option, so the brass ordered Coach Don Coryell to use the other runningbacks as much as possible.

Coryell says it ain't so, that he substituted because Terry had an arm injury that made him even more fumble-prone than normal.

No matter, the Cardinals have it all together now. Terry is playing regularly, and former SMU standout Wayne Morris gives them the kind of speed and power at fullback that they haven't had before.

FORTUNATELY FOR DALLAS, the Cowboys' strong point — defense — is the best answer to the explosive St. Louis offense. Harvey Martin, Cliff Harris, Charley Waters and their friends rate right up there with the best in the NFL. In fact, the 'Pokes probably have their best defensive secondary and most aggressive defensive line in their history.

The linebackers are good, although they lack the experience to be great. But give Bob Breunig and Thomas Henderson a couple of more years and the experts will be thumbing through the Hall of Fame roster for comparisons.

This may come as a shock to many Cowboy fans, but Coach Tom Landry doesn't think the offense is even close to its potential. The patched-up offensive line is loaded with newcomers, because of injuries, and Landry says it is going to take some time for them to develop the skill and precision that marked Dallas blocking in previous Super Bowl years.

But the new faces, headed by tackle Pat Donovan and guard Tom Rafferty, have done a good job. If they continue to improve, then the Dallas offense won't have to ride into the playoffs on the broad shoulders of that destructive defensive unit.

THE FOLKS WHO buy the tickets usually expect the impossible, but Landry is more realistic. He says he would be pleased with two victories in the next three outings, and he probably is sincere in that statement.

The Cardinals obviously are capable of beating any team in the league. Then comes the trip to Pittsburgh, where the Steelers are back in top form and screaming "Kill! Kill! Kill!" through foaming lips. You can bet that Dallas' little wide receivers, Golden Richards and Drew Pearson, remember the mauling they took from the Steeler secondary in Super Bowl X.

If the Cowboys get past the Cards and Steelers, then the Redskins await at Washington. George Allen's old guys may really be over the hill now, but they still are tough defensively. A week ago, the 'Skins held Bert Jones and the Baltimore Colts to one touchdown. That ain't easy!

Landry says two wins out of the next three games would be fine. One out of three would tighten up the race a lot, but still leave Dallas with an edge. But if they lose all three?

Dallas doesn't want to even think about that possibility.

Eliminating Jump Ball SWC Cage Experiment

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

DALLAS — Arkansas basketball Coach Eddie Sutton has a Southwest Conference trophy in his office, a 16-game SWC win streak in his scorebook, four starters returning, and a well marked passport in his hip pocket.

So what else is new around the basketball circuit?

Well, no jump balls or tipoffs, for one thing.

The SWC's nine basketball coaches gathered Sunday at D-FW Airport for a pre-season meeting, but even as they gathered and talked about an experiment this season, it was drawing varied comments, including complaints.

At a news conference held in conjunction with the meeting, SWC officials announced an experimental plan for this season aimed at speeding up the game as well as eliminating a possible officiating impossibility.

Simply, instead of the center jump to open a game and jump-ball situations, teams will alternate getting the ball out of bounds. To start a game, there will be the pregame ritual—a la football—of a coin toss to see who gains initial possession.

"I'm for it," said Texas' humorist-coach Abe Lemons. "We never got a tip all year anyway. Arkansas got 95 per cent of them."

"I wish they'd drop it like a hockey puck, our players are so short. With our luck, we'll probably lose the coin toss."

For others, the comments weren't quite as humorous but were divided. It's an experimental deal—like the 30-second clock of a couple of years ago—to be used in all conference games and at home where visiting teams will agree.

Reasoning was that a true tipoff is one of the hardest parts of the game for officials to administer ("who can practice throwing a ball up straight between two 6-9 guys?" questioned Lemons).

But, once the subject returned to the upcoming race, the opinions were unanimous: The favorite's tag belongs to Arkansas. Behind that, the fingers were pointed at Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Houston, Texas and Baylor.

The voices raised in support of Arkansas were many, and all boosted the Razorbacks as one of the nation's Top Ten teams.

"We have a good ball club," admitted the man who directed an unbeaten SWC record last season and a 26-2 season as well as an eight-game (winning five) tour of Brazil in the spring.

Four of the regulars return, paced by all-SWCers Sidney Moncrief, Marvin Delph and Ron Brewer.

"We'll be better than a year ago, because Moncrief, Brewer and Delph are better. The question mark is if some of our younger players can develop and give us bench strength."

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf admitted the Aggies would have material, but he said he has not settled on a starting unit. "We'll play nine or ten people."

Returning for the Aggies are a pair of starters from 1976, guard Karl Godine and forward Jarvis Williams—who sat out last year on SWC probation—along with four players who had starting experience last season.

Also, Shelby commented that his best rebounder is a freshman (6-6 Vernon Smith).

Raider coach Gerald Myers pointed to 6-7 all-SWC Mike Russell as "one of the top forward prospects in the country."

The Raiders went 20-9 a year ago to finish third in the league. Myers marked down a tentative starting lineup of three returnees (Russell, guard Geoff Huston and guard-forward Mike Edwards), a letterman (soph Kent Williams) and a newcomer (6-9 juco transfer Joe Baxter). But he added quickly that a pair of newcomers, guard Tommy Parks from Midland College and 6-8 freshman Ralph Brewster from El Paso Bowie, have "excellent chances of working into the lineup."

Houston lost all-America Otis Birdsong, a first-round pro draft pick, but all other starters return, and Birdsong's apparent replacement, Cecilie Rose, "has been the most improved player we have," said coach Guy Lewis.

More than one coach — including his own — pointed to the potential of Baylor guard Vinnie Johnson, a junior college grad. Haller remarked of the 6-1 guard from Brooklyn hitting 30 points and handing out 13 assists in a recent scrimmage.

"We're going to a running game, to suit our talent," said Haller. "We know we'll take our lumps, but we'll be a lot better in February than in November."

And, by that time, most folks will be accustomed to no center jumps.

Tarkenton, Dickey, Munson Break Legs

49er Tackle Banaszek Also Goes Down

By The Associated Press
On a day when he suffered the first disabling injury of his fantastic 17-year National Football League career, Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton set still another standard for quarterbacks.

Tarkenton's season and perhaps his career almost certainly ended Sunday when he was sacked by Cincinnati's Gary Burley and suffered a fractured bone in his right ankle during the third period of the Vikings' 42-10 victory over the Bengals.

It was announced late Sunday that Tarkenton also suffered a broken thumb. The quarterback did not discover the thumb injury until he entered the hospital to have X-rays taken of the ankle.

Dr. Don Lannin, Vikings team physician, said, "There isn't any chance of Tarkenton playing any more this year." "I don't know if I could have played with the thumb next week, even though I did continue to play Sunday," Tarkenton said. "I knew it was bad for sure when Dr. Lannin told me after the X-rays were taken that it's not back, it's not good, it's like the break Bob Berry suffered three years ago." Tarkenton said, "Berry had to retire from football because of the break he suffered.

Tarkenton said the thumb injury came when he jammed it on somebody's helmet.

But before he got the ankle hurt, Tarkenton dazzled the Bengals, completing 17 of 18 passes for 195 yards and the most accurate performance an NFL passer has ever produced.

Call it something to remember him by. It seemed almost fitting that the fabulous scrambler's passing accomplishment should nearly overshadow the grim aftermath of a day that was dotted with serious injuries around the league.

Tarkenton was one of four NFL players to suffer broken legs Sunday. The others were Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey, hurt on the final play of a 24-6 loss to Los Angeles; San Diego's Bill Munson, injured on the only pass he threw in a brief backup appearance as Denver topped the Chargers 17-14, and San Francisco tackle Cas Banaszek, who was hurt early in the 49ers' 10-7 overtime victory against New Orleans.

Two other quarterbacks who had rebounded from previous lurches this year, Brian Sipe of Cleveland and Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, also were injured in their game, won by the Steelers 35-31, as defenses zeroed in on signal callers.

The league's stingiest defense also turned into an offense with Atlanta scoring a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns on a recovered fumble by Ralph Ortega and an interception by Robert Pennywell to whip Detroit 17-6.

Oakland and Denver both remained tied for first place in the AFC West. The Raiders held off Houston 34-29 and the Broncos rallied to beat San Diego 17-14.

Bears 28, Chiefs 27
Walter Payton scored three touchdowns and rushed for 192 yards in 33 carries, pushing his season's total to 1,129. He became the first runningback in Bears' history—including such Hall of Famers as Red Grange, Bronco Nagurski and Gayle Sayers—to gain more than 1,000 yards in two consecutive seasons.

Payton's accomplishment was almost overshadowed by the Bears' dramatic victory constructed on a 37-yard pass from Bob Avellini to Greg Latta with only three seconds left in the game. Just 21 seconds earlier, the Chiefs had taken the lead on a 14-yard run by Ed Podolak.

Vikings 42, Bengals 10
Tarkenton's performance topped the NFL accuracy record of 20 completions in 22 attempts by Cincinnati's Ken Anderson in 1974.

He was scrambling away from Burley when the 265-pound defensive end hit him. "He tried to plant his leg and spin," said Burley. "He was going down on a spin when I hit him. I had my weight on him when he went down. There was no way I could stop and let his leg out." The injury overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Chuck Foreman, who rushed for 133 yards.

Broncos 17, Chargers 14
San Diego led throughout and it took a pair of second-half TD passes from Craig Morton to Haven Moses to pull the victory out for the Broncos.

Morton hit Moses with a 33-yarder midway through the third period and then again on an 8-yarder with just 96 seconds left in the game.

"We always try to find a way to win, one way or another," said Denver Coach Red Miller. "This was the other."

Rams 24, Packers 6
Dickey's injury on the last play of the game cast a pall over the Rams' victory, which kept Los Angeles one game in front of Atlanta in the NFC West.

The Packer passer, booed all day long, completed 18 of 36 for 276 yards while L.A.'s Pat Haden, directing a ball-control offense, hit on 10 of 17 for 146.

Falcons 17, Lions 6
Trailing 6-0 after three periods, Atlanta rallied for the victory behind its dominant defense. Ortega took a recovered fumble 14 yards for the winning score and Pennywell's 20-yard return of the interception for a last-minute TD clinched it.

"I'm going to have to look at the films to believe it," said Ortega. "I was shell-shocked. I didn't know what to think."

Steelers 35, Browns 31
Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes before being knocked out of the game with a shoulder injury. Playing with a cast on his broken left wrist, he finished with 13 completions in 21 attempts for 283 yards.

Cleveland backup Dave Mays threw three TD passes to Larry Poles as the Browns staged a late rally. Mays was replacing Sipe, who also left the game with an injured shoulder.

Colts 31, Bills 13
Lydell Mitchell scored a pair of touchdowns and Bert Jones piloted Baltimore to its eighth victory in nine starts.

Mitchell rushed for 82 yards and caught three passes for 60 more. Jones completed 12 of 23 for 180.

Dolphins 17, Patriots 5
A determined Miami defense bottled up New England's attack and helped the Dolphins stay one game back of Baltimore.

The idea was to halt the Pats' most effective weapon, the screen pass to runningback Sam Cunningham. "I could get out on the ball," said Sam Cunningham of the Patriots, "but I couldn't run with it. There were people following me."

Miami limited Cunningham to five catches for 28 yards.

Redskins 17, Eagles 14
Mark Moseley's 54-yard field goal with 3:41 to play lifted Washington past Philadelphia. The Redskins rallied for 10 points in the fourth period and then nailed down the victory when Horst Muhlmann missed a 31-yard field goal try with 18 seconds left.

49ers 10, Saints 7
A 33-yard overtime field goal by Ray Werschling carried San Francisco to its fourth straight victory following a string of five consecutive losses at the start of the season.

Wilbur Jackson gained 108 yards in 24 carries and running partner Del Williams had 110 in 25 tries for the 49ers.

Giants 10, Bucs 0
Tampa Bay absorbed its 23rd consecutive defeat over two seasons, bowing to New York. The expansion Bucs had the ball inside the 15-yard line half a dozen times but could not score.

Bobby Hammond scored the game's lone touchdown on a short plunge after a bad snap on a punt gave the Giants the ball at the 1-yard line.

—Seahawks 17, Jets 0
Seattle posted the first shutout in its history as Jim Zorn threw a pair of touchdown passes.

Zorn, who completed 16 of 37 attempts for 219 yards, hit Don Testerman and David Sims for the Seahawk TDs. The Jets, with regular quarterback Richard Todd injured, managed only 25 yards passing.

STRETCH DOWN — New Orleans runningback Tony Galbreath stretches into the end zone for the score despite the efforts of San Francisco's Cedrick Hardman (86) and Mel Phillips. Galbreath scored on an eight-yard run. San Francisco won in overtime 10-7. (AP Laserphoto)

Dallasite Morris Key For Cardinals

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys can all but order the champagne to celebrate another National Conference Eastern Division title with a victory over St. Louis Monday night, but a local boy wearing a Cardinal uniform could turn out the party lights.

Dallas, the only remaining unbeaten National Football League team, owns a fat three-game lead in the NFC East with the Cardinals 5-3.

Dallas outlasted St. Louis 30-24 the last time the two teams met, but that was before Wayne Morris, a second-year runningback from Southern Methodist, bloomed into a potent offensive force to mesh with the explosive Terry Metcalf.

"There has been a tremendous change in the Cardinals since the last time we met them, and one of the big reasons is Morris," says Cowboys Coach Tom Landry.

Morris rushed for 182 yards in last week's 27-7 slaughter of the Minnesota Vikings — the second best day a Cardinals runningback has ever had.

"Wayne had a good preseason then injured his Achilles tendon and that made me very fearful because I have such great respect for him," said Cardinals Coach Don Coryell. "I certainly didn't want to risk him until he was completely well. Now, he is well and seems to have found himself and is playing very well."

The 200-pound Morris can do leg squats with 705 pounds of weights on his shoulders and does repetitions with 425 pounds.

Broken Arm Halts Bethea

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston defensive end Elvin Bethea, who had played in a team record 135 Oilers games, is out for the rest of the season with a broken arm suffered in Sunday's 34-29 loss to the Oakland Raiders.

"So much for my streak," said Bethea, who snapped a radial bone in his right forearm late in the fourth quarter. "I guess there's no way I'll be back."

The Oilers also were hampered in the game when kicker Toni Fritsch suffered a hamstring injury and couldn't kick off. The job was turned over to Ted Thompson, who had left his kicking shoe in his bag but I forgot it this time."

which makes him one of the strongest running backs in the NFL.

"You can't key on Metcalf anymore with Morris in there," says Landry.

Coryell says, "It's still uphill to the playoffs. We're going to have to play every game as a must win. Dallas is one of the all-time great football teams."

"We played well against them a month ago in St. Louis and they beat us," Coryell said. "We've never beaten them in Dallas."

Coryell admits "our goal is the wild card. I don't see any possibility of catching the Cowboys."

In the last three seasons, the Cardinals and Cowboys have split games, winning encounters at home. That changed this year with Dallas winning in St. Louis.

"We still don't have a lock on it," says Landry. "I remember when we were three games out with five to play and still made it to the Super Bowl. This will be another one of those 24-21 games. You don't beat the Cardinals 7-0."

The game will be nationally televised with a sellout crowd of 65,000 on hand in Texas Stadium.

Reb-MHS Tilt Toss-Up?

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Don't ask how he does it, but Monterey's James Odom is back to his old bad luck on coin tosses to determine post-season playoff sites.

But don't blame the Plainsmen coach for making the mistake this time.

"I flipped the coin this time, and Jocko (coach Harris of Tascosa) called it. Oh that's all right; our guys are used to that," Odom said.

Odom lost the toss three out of three times last year and played one other playoff game at a neutral site. His Plainsmen still survived to the semifinals before losing to Temple. With playoff wins at Amarillo, El Paso and Abilene last year, the Plainsmen definitely own a big edge in playoff experience over Tascosa's players.

"We will have to play our best game to beat them, though," said the MHS coach after Thursday's win over Hereford. "They have a lot of quickness."

Meanwhile, the six-year Rebel coach wondered if his team's quickness "would offset Monterey's size."

"They went further last year with less offense than any team I've ever seen," said Harris, who worries about the added versatility in the Plainsmen attack this year.

The Plainsmen (9-0-1) and the Rebels (9-1) both failed to win on one pre-district occasion. Monterey missed an extra point and a 28-yard field goal in the late stages of the 13-13 tie with Wichita Falls Rider. Tascosa dropped an intriguing 25-22 setback to El Paso Riverside.

"That was the worst we played all season by far. They probably were the worst team we played all year, but we were penalized a whole lot and our kids were flat," Harris said.

The two teams possess other statistical similarities. Monterey has won nine games by a total of 225 points, an average of 25 points a night. Tascosa's victory margin has averaged 20 points a game with 180 more points than the opposition in nine games.

Each club also leads its district in total offensive and defensive figures. Tascosa has rushed for 263.7 yards a game to Monterey's 210.2 a game. Monterey leads in passing 94-56 per game. The MHS defense has allowed 129 yards a game to Tascosa's 139 yards on the ground. In pass defense, Monterey has allowed 77.6 yards a game to Tascosa's 85.9 a game.

pa 41-14 while the Rebels won 21-0. MHS blanked Midland 19-0 while TMS survived 14-7.

Tascosa holds the scoring edge against Plainview with a 57-0 win compared to Monterey's 21-0 victory.

Based on these stats, the game should rate as a stiffer test for both squads than they've faced throughout the year. And those stiff tests often boil down to a field goal or a blocked kick or a punt return. More than one sage hath stated, "when two teams are pretty equal, it all comes down to the kicking game."

Hammer Wins PGA Title

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — It was almost like a decade-later replay for Laurie Hammer as he stood over a 10-foot, 18th-hole putt for the $16,500 first prize in the PGA Club Professional Championship.

"I remember having an identical putt in the 1967 Haig and Haig Team Championship with Dave Stockton and I made it to win the tournament," said Hammer, who was a touring golf pro in the late 1960s.

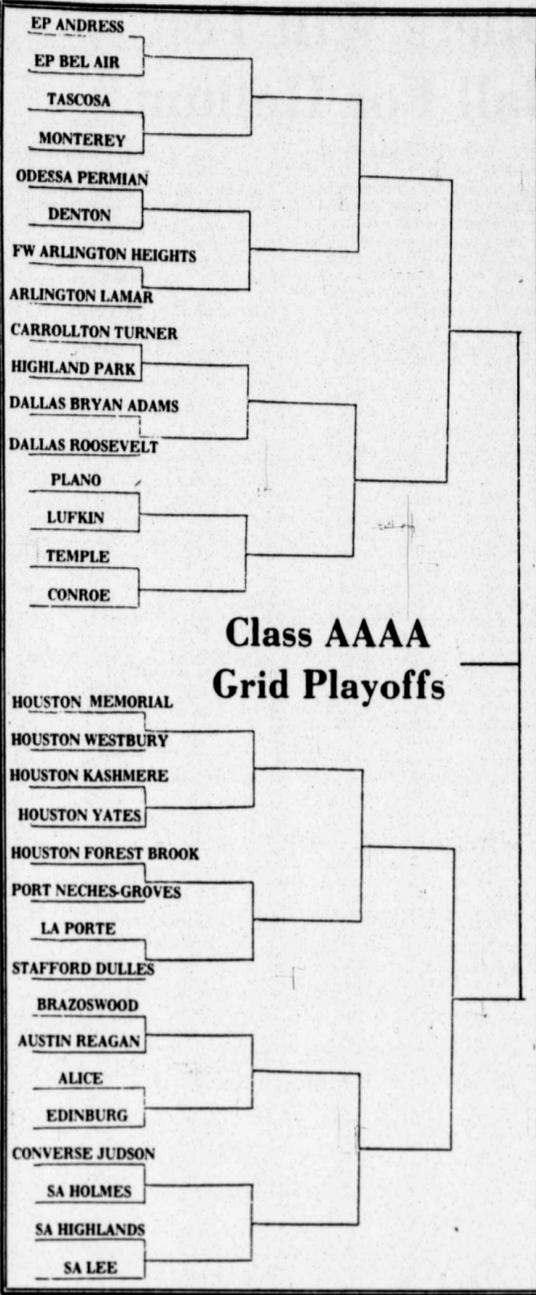

Now a club pro in Boynton Beach, Fla., Hammer made the putt Sunday, too, winning his biggest pro paycheck with a one-stroke victory over Steve Benson of Glen Ellyn, Ill., in the 10th PGA Club Pro tourney.

Hammer's one-under-par 71 gave him a four-under-par 283 for the four rounds of play over three courses in chilly but sunny weather at Callaway Gardens near here.

Benson's 283 was good for $9,900.

Tied for fourth with tourney scores of 286 were Tim Collins of Greenville, S.C.; Tom Aycock of Kingsville, Texas; Rives McBe of Irving, Texas, and Ron Smith of Kennebunk Beach, Maine. They won $4,500 each.

Kelley Praises Effort

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Way back in August, the Estacado Matadors were tagged the team to beat for the District 3-AAA football crown.

But it didn't wind up that way. Nope. Instead, the defending champs, the Lake View Chiefs, a team some coaches felt would finish as low as fourth, pulled off a mild surprise in capturing the crown.

Despite finishing in second place behind the Chiefs, coach Louis Kelley said the entire '77 was not a complete loss for his club.

"We had a lot of good things come out of it," Kelley said. "Of course we are disappointed that we didn't win it, but I was pleased with the way our kids never ducked their heads and gave up."

Kelley, who wound up his third year at Estacado, pointed out that the tough schedule the Mats faced this year was one of the determining factors in the overall performance of the team.

"I think we had as hard a schedule as anyone could have had," Kelley said. "But at the first of the year, I thought we could have come out of it (the nondistrict portion of the slate) with a 2-2 record. But instead we lost a game that we should have won and wound up 1-3."

During the opening four weeks of the season, Kelley's crew faced the likes of Plainview, Lubbock High, Coronado and Monterey. All four opponents are of the mighty AAAA classification.

Now you know why Kelley cringes everytime the '77 schedule is mentioned. It could easily be referred to as Murderer's Row. And it was for the Matadors.

On the opening night, Estacado was edged by Plainview 15-6, the next week they beat LHS 14-0, followed by losses to Coronado (17-6) and District 4-AAAA champ Monterey 10-7.

"I really think we should have beaten Monterey," Kelley observed. "We outplayed them at the end, but we just got started too late and couldn't make up the difference."

Following the loss to Monterey, the Matadors had to face loop and city rival Dunbar.

"It's tough having to get up for Monterey and then Dunbar," Kelley said. "But we managed to do it. I just hope in the future that we don't have to face a pair like that in a row."

But if "getting up" two weeks in a row is tough, three weeks is even tougher. Just ask Kelley.

"I think that what really hurt us was having to play Lake View right after beating Dunbar," Kelley added. "Here we had played two of our biggest rivals in a row and then we had to play Lake View. That was tough for us, and we really weren't ready for them."

Lake View blanked the Matadors 21-0 and EHS saw its chances of winning the loop title outright take a sudden nosedive.

After losing to the Chiefs, Kelley said the Matadors played their best football of the year. He might even call it awesome.

"We really come on during the last few weeks and played some good ball," Kelley pointed out. "During this time our defensive unit was consistent and so has our offense. Inconsistency hurt us in the early going."

Kelley felt some of that "inconsistency" can be attributed to the type of offensive formation (the wing-T) the Matadors were running.

"Looking back now," Kelley said. "I see MATADORS Page 5

ROCKET SHOTS FROM ROD LAVER

Stoughton's First Goal Sparks Cincy

By The Associated Press

It's been an agonizing first month for the Cincinnati Stingers and no one epitomizes the horrendous start the World Hockey Association club has had more than Blaine Stoughton.

The right winger, who finished ninth in WHA scoring last year and fourth in goals with 52, entered Sunday's game with Winnipeg looking for his first score of the season. His search is over now.

Stoughton's breakthrough goal with only 1:28 remaining gave the Stingers a 3-2 win over Winnipeg and thwarted the Jets in their effort to gain ground on first-place New England.

It was Sunday's only scheduled WHA contest and the Stingers' third in as many nights against Canadian clubs. After dropping a 3-2 decision Friday night to Edmonton, Cincinnati rebounded Saturday night with a 6-5 win over Quebec.

Stoughton's goal capped a third-period comeback for Cincinnati which finished second in the WHA's Eastern Division last season but has been struggling this year to stay ahead of last-place Birmingham. The Stingers now have 4-9 mark, three points ahead of the Bulls but 20 back of the Whalers.

The 24-year-old Stoughton was sent in alone by Rich Leduc, who had teamed with Stoughton to tie the game 4½ minutes earlier.

Winnipeg, which trails New England by three points and has played one more game than the Whalers, had taken a 2-1 lead in the first period and held that lead until 14:09.

Jets goaltender Markus Mattsson, who blocked 21 shots, made a stunning save off a blast from Stoughton, but was still off-balance and helpless when Leduc's centering pass bounded off the skate of the Jets Kent Nilsson and into the Winnipeg goal to tie the score.

Cincinnati Coach Jacques Demers conceded that Leduc's goal was lucky, but that that sort of thing has a tendency to even out over the course of the season.

"Sure it was a fluke," he said. "You should see how many flukes have beaten us. We've lost six games by one goal so far this season."

Meanwhile, Jets Coach Larry Hillman said he is concerned that something is missing from his club's attack.

"Something is not sparking us," he said. "Other clubs are smartening up. They come in here and play a clean type, close-checking brand of hockey with no roughness or intimidation and it's working."

The Winnipeg power-play continued to be ineffectual, missing on two opportunities Sunday night.

Oilers Will Test Ball For Helium

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips has a hunch the Oakland Raiders used an illegal helium-filled football on kicking situations in their game Sunday at Oakland.

To check out his suspicion, Phillips had punt return specialist Billy Johnson punt into the football and give it to equipment manager Greg Doremus for the return trip to Houston.

"There's probably nothing to it," Phillips said, "but we're going to send the ball to Rice University and have it tested."

Phillips said he would send the ball to Rice today.

Ray Guy, Oakland's punter and kickoff specialist, is recognized as the best in the National Football League. But several of his towering kickoffs Sunday started the Oilers talking on the sidelines.

"I have never seen anybody hang kick-offs like Guy did. I told (special team coach) Andy Bourgeois that the ball was hanging up there too long," said Johnson, who was limited to two runbacks by the high kicks.

Even more suspicious to the Oilers was Oakland's habit of calling for a new ball before each punt. On several occasions play was delayed by the punting team's request.

"One time they brought a ball all the way upfield to get it in play," Doremus said.

He personally took charge of the late game effort to abscond with Guy's kicking football, which Phillips described as being slightly discolored.

Johnson's only punt return of the game late in the fourth quarter ended as he ran out of bounds near the Oilers bench. Doremus took the ball from Johnson and then had to verbally fend off two persons who sought to retrieve the ball.

"First a ball boy came up and asked for it. When I told him 'no' he left. But in a few seconds an Oakland equipment man came up and asked for the ball," Doremus said.

Cubans Down SDS 65-55

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP) — The scoring and rebounding of Felix Morales carried a touring Cuban national basketball team to a 65-55 victory over South Dakota State Sunday night.

Morales, a strong 6-foot-11 center, had 12 points, 10 rebounds and blocked shots as the Cubans took charge after a slow start.

South Dakota State led 8-5 as the Cubans appeared tired in their second game of a ten-game U.S. tour.

DRIVE THE 1978 RABBIT.

It's just a wonderful car. We had an advantage: we started with a wonderful car and made it even better. Over a million people all over the world have been impressed enough to buy them. What's so impressive? Easy. If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Mercedes-Benz 280E, believe it or not you'll get better acceleration. If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Cadillac Seville, you'll get more trunk space. And there are 32 cars you can trade up to a Rabbit for more people space. The '78 Rabbits look better than ever, too. Handsome metallic colors. Touches of chrome here and there to make them even snappier.

The biggest news of all for '78 can't be seen. And barely heard. We've refined the Rabbit's fuel-injected engine to make it quieter and more efficient. Once we were famous for making a car that looked ridiculous. Now we make one that makes the others look ridiculous.

City's Fem Cagers Launch UIL Career

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Yes, baby, you have come a long way. And it looks like you're going to go a long way this winter, too.

So much for last year's intricacy girls basketball schedule, when the whole starting team could pack into one car and drive from 34th over to 19th street. The schoolgirls are playing their own University Interscholastic League schedule this time with long trips and playoffs just like the guys.

But not all things will be the same. For instance, the girls will play the traditional girls' half-court rules with three offensive and three defensive players at each side of midcourt this year. But the girls probably will change over to the boys fullcourt game next year. The girls already have made that change in 48 other states.

"I'm already trying to figure out where I'm going to hide one of my players next year when we change over," said Monterey girls coach Phil Hood. "She can play good defense, but she's not too good on offense."

The five Lubbock public schools girls teams begin UIL seasons Tuesday night with Monterey at Abilene Cooper, Dunbar at Lubbock High and Estacado at Coronado. CHS, LHS and MHS will compete in a three-team league of their own for District 4-AAAA honors while Plainview and Hereford wait a year before starting UIL play. Dunbar and Estacado will battle for District 3-AAA honors along with San Angelo Lake View and Snyder but without Sweetwater, Brownfield and Lamesa.

MONTEREY
The Plainsmen (yes, they're the Plainsmen, too) return plenty of experience from last year's 12-1 team which defeated Estacado for the city championship.

Coach Hood calls on virtually all of last year's stars back to this year's lineup. Margaret Grennell, a 5-7 junior, always stayed above the 30-point scoring range, and teammate Marilyn Beckner, a 5-8 senior, averaged nearly 25. The playmaker on the offensive side will be 5-8 Sheri Davis.

Monterey's defense centers around strong 5-9 junior Rhonda Dunn while Janet Mears (5-6 soph) and Jana Field (5-8 junior) should guard some opposing scorers, too.

CORONADO
Since the CHS girls volleyball team advanced to the bidistrict round against Pampa, coach Melissa Gebhart waited patiently for her entire unit to return. However, the team still begins Tuesday with a portion of the players ready. The CHS varsity finished 4-8 last year, but Coach Gebhart is anxious to watch the graduates from last year's 9-3 junior varsity.

Kathy Wyatt (5-8 1/2 junior) and Donna Boyd (5-5 junior) each averaged around 15 points a game on the JV. They should start on the offense along with playmaker Marci Daniels, a 5-5 1/2 junior. Defensive starters for now are Natalie Fullerton, a 5-5 senior, Laura Wade, a 5-7 junior; and Carolyn Pasewark, a 5-9 senior. Coach Gebhart says that help waits in the wings from volleyball players Ruth Cummings (5-6 1/2), Jan Williamson (5-7), Lisa Spough (5-6) and Lisa Davis (5-5).

ESTACADO
Coach Nan Barber and Estacado shouldn't be too far ahead of Coronado's situation since many of their players joined the squad Thursday after volleyball season.

Estacado finished 11-2 in basketball last year and graduated two outstanding scorers, Ramona Spencer and Equilla Peoples each scored around the 20-point figure in most Matador games. Miss Spencer now plays for Amarillo College and Miss Peoples plays at Odessa College.

Without those two, the only returning offensive starter is Kathy Huey, a 5-3 sen-

Lufkin Pulls Big 4A Upset

By The Associated Press
No Class AAAA ranked teams are pitted against each other this week as the Texas schoolboy playoffs begin, but in other classes teams ranked by The Associated Press will be at each other's throats in the first round of action.

Losses during the final week of the regular season cost district titles for several Top Ten teams, but most advanced as expected into the bidistrict playoffs this weekend.

The biggest upset in AAAA was No. 5-ranked Longview's 28-20 loss to Lufkin in 14-4A. Untouted Lufkin captured the district crown and faces Plano, a surprise winner in 13-4A, in bidistrict competition Friday in Waco.

In another Class 4A upset, eighth-ranked San Antonio Churchill fell 6-0 to San Antonio Lee to give Lee the 32-4A title to Lee.

Top-ranked Port Neches-Groves swept 22-4A with an unblemished record, and faces Houston Forest Brook in the first round of the state playoffs.

In 3A, fourth-ranked Perryton and No. 6 Andrews take on each other while No. 3 Brownwood and No. 7 San Angelo Lake View face each other in another bidistrict tilt.

Second-ranked Humble was stunned 31-14 by Huntsville in a game that threw the 10-3A crown to Huntsville. Top-ranked Gregory-Portland took the 15-3A title with a 47-6 victory over Beeville, keeping its record spotless to set up a bidistrict matchup with Raymondville.

Second-ranked Spearman in 2A takes on No. 9 Childress in a West Texas bidistrict showdown in Pampa.

All the Class A ranked teams either won their districts, or placed behind other ranked teams. In 20-AA, No. 1-rated Bellville emerged district winner with a 28-6 win over Sealy and will face Dayton in the next round of competition.

Top-rated Seagraves tackles No. 6 Marfa in Class A. In another game pitting two ranked teams, No. 8 Vega and No. 10 Petersburg face off.

Top-rated Wheeler, idle in the final week of the regular season, took the Class 1-B title over No. 8 Groom to set up a meeting with No. 5 Ropesville in bidistrict. Either No. 6-ranked Valley Mills or untouted Hutto will face fourth-ranked D'Hanis.

The other offensive regulars will come from a group which includes Monique Hicks (5-6 junior), Alma Robinson (5-6 junior) and Joy Guyton (5-6 soph). The defensive starters possess more experience with Debra Goodie (5-6 senior), Patricia Williams (5-3 senior) and Felisa Johnson (5-6 junior).
"Huey is a good playmaker. She's so quick and she comes up with good steals. But Ramona and Equilla were our height inside so we're inexperienced there," said the EHS coach.

LUBBOCK
As they often do in the boys game, the Westerners also lack height in the girls game, according to coach Bud Clower.
"Most of the teams usually have some who are about 5-0 or 5-10, so we're kinda small," Clower said.

Four returnees from last year's 5-7 squad provide good experience along with two sophomores in the starting unit. Senior port Regina Dudley (5-7) averaged 12.6 points a game last year and junior forward Mary Jones (5-4) tossed in 22.6

points a game. The new offensive regular is Paula Patterson (5-7). Defenders for LHS are Rachel Moreno (5-8 senior), Shirley Sumner (5-4 junior) and Leticia Rivera (5-6 soph).

DUNBAR
The Pantherettes of coach Barbara Elliott count on four returning players, too. Offensive threats are Sharon Thompson (5-7 1/2 senior) and Wanda Young (5-10 junior). Defensive veterans are Anita Hamilton (5-8 senior) and Robbie Johnson (5-3 senior).
"It's hard to get them ready in five days," coach Elliott said. "Sharon is probably our best shooter and Wanda has improved a great deal."

Other newcomers will try to complete the Dunbar lineup in the early part of the season.

think I should have put us in the 1-formation from the beginning and left us there. Since we have been in the "1," our offense has moved the ball better and scored more points."

As far as other changes, Kelley said he would have started linebacker Mike Chatham at the quarterback slot from the word "go."

The Estacado coach added that also he would have given the ball more to scat-back Kenzey Burrell.
"If Kenzey had gotten the ball a few more times at the first of the year he would have gained 1,400 yards," Kelley said.

It wasn't until the Monterey game that Burrell showed the kind of running moves that he possesses. Against the Plainsmen, Burrell juiced his way to 167 yards. Prior to that game, he had not even reached 100 yards.

"Overall, though," Kelley said, reflecting back on the Mats' 6-4 record, "we had a good year. These are not complaints from me. I had a super group of kids that worked extremely hard without complaining or griping."

That can make up for a few losses, right coach?

Irish To Gamble On Cotton Bowl

By United Press International
The Texas Longhorns, that team everyone forgot about at the start of the season because it had a new coach, now offense and untested quarterbacks, is now only one win away from clinching a tie for the Southwest Conference championship.

And that win should come Saturday in Austin against the Baylor Bears. Meanwhile, the Notre Dame Fighting Irish, the team that the Cotton Bowl officials almost forgot about last Saturday, is only one victory away from having an invitation to the holiday attraction in Dallas.

That win should come Saturday in South Bend against the Air Force. But over there on the sidelines, somewhat downcast as a result of a six-point loss to the seventh-rated team in the country last Saturday, are the Texas A&M Aggies and they are as anxious as they can be to alter the Cotton Bowl picture.

"For our sake, the primary concern is that Texas remains undefeated," said Cotton Bowl executive vice president Wilbur Evans. "That makes our bowl much more attractive. I think even the Aggies on our committee would agree to that."

Evans and fellow Cotton Bowl official Cy Johnston sweated out Notre Dame's comeback victory over Clemson last Saturday and they will be in South Bend this week as well. If the Cotton Bowl invitation is forthcoming as expected, the Irish probably will accept. But they will be taking a gamble.

For Texas to stay in its No. 1 spot and provide the top opponent for the Irish, the Longhorns must not only get past Baylor this Saturday, but the Aggies as well on Nov. 26. The Longhorns will be favorites to do it, just as they demolished TCU last week 44-14 with fourth-string quarterback Sam Ansley handing off to Earl Campbell and throwing to Johnny "Lam" Jones.

But wins by A&M this week against TCU, against Texas and over Houston Dec. 3 and the Aggies would go to the Cotton Bowl.

And A&M would like to do just that to make up in part for its loss to the Arkansas Razorbacks last Saturday.

A&M fell 26-20 on a 58-yard touchdown throw from Razorbacks quarterback Ron Calcagni to Robert Farrell with 1:41 left. Then, with time running down and the Aggies failing to use either of their two remaining time outs, quarterback David Walker moved the Aggies down the field only to have a pass intercepted in the end zone on the last play of the game.

Pistons Nudge Bullets

By The Associated Press
Until the final four seconds, Ralph Simpson was in Herb Brown's dog house. Then he shot his way out.

Simpson got into hot water with some bad passes earlier in the game and then unleashed a shot near the end that he wasn't supposed to. But he finally made up for his mistakes with the winning field goal as the Detroit Pistons edged the Washington Bullets 104-102 in the National Basketball Association Sunday night.

"I wasn't supposed to take the shot at the end, and I wasn't even supposed to be in the game," said Simpson, "so it wasn't too bad a moment for me."

Simpson was pulled off the court by Detroit Coach Brown after his bad passing proved costly to the Pistons. When he later came back into the lineup, Simpson looked as though he would hurt the Pistons with his shooting as well.

With the game tied at 122, Brown set up a shot for Eric Money. But Simpson tried a field goal prematurely with 21 seconds left. It missed — but luckily, the ball bounced out of bounds off a Washington player, giving possession back to Detroit.

"We tried to run the clock down," said Brown. "But Ralph took that shot. Boy, I didn't want him to do that."

He didn't mind what he did next, though. Simpson tossed in a 20-foot jumper for the winning points.

"It was a gratifying victory and it became more gratifying because everyone helped out," said Brown, more benevolent towards Simpson in the afterglow of victory.

Simpson's winning shot came after Detroit had controlled the ball almost all of the final 42 seconds after a basket and two free throws by Phil Chenier that tied the game at 102. With Bob Lanier, Marvin Barnes and Al Eberhard all watching from the sidelines with a variety of injuries, the Pistons shot in front by as many as 22 points in the first half. The Bullets then rolled back and, with a 12-2 spurt early in the fourth period, went ahead 94-91.

The lead then changed hands five times and was tied on three occasions until Detroit got the ball back following Chenier's two free throws.

Lakers 97, Warriors 95
Jamaal Wilkes, Don Ford and Lou Hudson led Los Angeles over Golden State. Hudson scored on a fast break and hit a three-point play in a 7-0 Los Angeles spurt that opened the fourth quarter and overcame a two-point deficit. The Lakers never trailed again, although the teams were never separated by more than five points.

Suns 116, Pacers 107
Ronnie Lee made several key steals and nine big points down the stretch as Phoenix defeated Indiana. Early in the fourth quarter, Indiana had crept to within one point of the Suns before Lee began his heroics. Lee had a season-high 24 points to lead all Phoenix scorers, followed by Paul Westphal with 23 and center Alvan Adams with 22.

SuperSonics 117, Jazz 83
With Marvin Webster dominating the inside, Seattle opened a 22-point lead in the third quarter and coasted past New Orleans. The loss was New Orleans' fifth in a row and fourth straight on the road.

Celtics 127, Bucks 119
Two Jo Jo White jump shots halfway through overtime boosted Boston to a five-point lead and the Celtics went on to beat Milwaukee. The Bucks got within 120-117 on Quinn Buckner's jumper. But John Havlicek, who came off the bench to score 15 points, had four of them in overtime after Buckner's basket.

White led all scorers with 23 points. Dave Cowens and Cedric Maxwell added 18 each. Maxwell's points all were in the first half.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.
Jude 1:9-18, The Living Bible
9 Yet Michael, one of the mightiest of the angels, when he was arguing with Satan about Moses' body, did not dare to accuse Satan, or jeer at him, but simply said, "The Lord rebuke you."
10 But these men mock and curse at anything they do not understand, and, like animals, they do whatever they feel like, thereby ruining their souls.
11 Woe upon them! For they follow the example of Cain who killed his brother, and like Balaam, they will do anything for money; and like Korah, they have disobeyed God in the hope of gain and will die under His curse.
12 When these men join you at the love feasts of the church, they are evil scammers among you, laughing and carrying on, gorging and stuffing themselves without a thought for others. They are like clouds blowing over dry land without giving rain, promising much, but producing nothing. They are like fruit trees without any fruit at picking time. They are not only dead, but doubly dead, for they have been pulled out, roots and all, to be burned.
13 All they leave behind them is shame and disgrace like the dirty foam left along the beach by the wild waves. They wander around looking as bright as stars, but ahead of them is the everlasting gloom and darkness that God has prepared for them.
14 Enoch, who lived long ago, soon after Adam, knew about these men and said this about them: "See, the Lord is coming with millions of His holy ones.
15 He will bring the people of the world before Him in judgment, to receive just punishment, and to prove the terrible things they have done in rebellion against God, revealing all they have said against Him."
16 These men are constant grippers, never satisfied, doing whatever evil they feel like; they are loud-mouthed "show-offs," and when they show respect for others, it is only to get something from them in return.
17 Dear friends, remember what the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ told you, 18 That in the last times there would come these scoffers whose whole purpose in life is to enjoy themselves in every evil way imaginable.

SMU Game Morale Builder

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Looking back on Texas Tech's victory over SMU, Steve Sloan could find little to be unhappy about. Dominating a game from its beginning and winning 45-7 is, after all, a pretty good morale booster for the victorious coach.

It was the second consecutive game in which the Raiders have amassed more than 40 points, and the triumph kept them in solid contention for a bowl berth.

"We were able to control the line of scrimmage on offense most of the time, and we played well defensively again. Our defense has played nine good games this year.

"Of course, we knew we had to play well to stay in the running for a bowl. That gave us a good deal of motivation."

Defensive end Richard Arledge remarked following the contest, "We couldn't have prepared for a game better than we did for SMU. We had a great effort with a bowl bid in mind."

The Raiders piled up 444 yards total offense, and they mounted touchdown drives of 80, 62 and 73 yards. Lately, Tech has been sustaining more long drives than it did earlier in the season.

Fullback Billy Taylor played his second excellent game in succession, rushing 20 times for 127 yards and scoring two touchdowns. That followed his 151-yard, five-touchdown effort versus TCU. He now has 771 yards rushing for the season.

"He's played two great games in a row for us," Sloan said.

Rodney Allison, steadily rounding into form after his early-season injury, sparked the attack.

"Rodney really makes a difference for us, of course," Sloan said, "but all three of our quarterbacks have contributed this season. Tres (Adami) and Mark (Johnson) helped us win while Rodney was out."

Defensively, the Raiders allowed 288 yards and rarely let SMU get going. Tech recovered two Mustang fumbles and intercepted three passes. Two fumble recoveries set up Raider touchdowns, an interception set up another, and a second theft led to a field goal.

Injuries did cloud the Tech victory, though. Five regulars suffered knee injuries — tight end Gregg Adkins, middle linebacker Gary McCright, offensive tackle Ken Walter and defensive tackles Curtis Reed and Kim Taliaferro.

Sloan said McCright and Taliaferro may have torn cartilages in their knees. Reed and Walter suffered sprains, he said. He added that Adkins probably won't be able to play this week against Houston and that the status on the others now is uncertain, but they'll obviously miss much practice this week.

Defensive tackle Jim Krahi suffered a bruise on his calf, and tackle David Hill has a severe shoulder bruise.

"We'll probably have to get a couple of freshmen ready this week to play at defensive tackle," Sloan said.

Sloan also said that free safety Greg Brazier is still suffering from a sprained arch.

"We had so many guys hurt this week that it's unusual. Usually, we'll accept. But they've made improvement."

For Texas to stay in the top six, the Longhorns must win this Saturday, well on Nov. 26. The favorites to do it, by TCU last week.

Quarterback Earl Campbell led the Rams to a 28-13 victory over SMU.

EGUIN (Special) — Julius Hill ripped off a 31-yard scoring run in the first quarter, then came back with a 56-yarder in the third in leading Eastern New Mexico University to a 28-13 victory over Texas-Lutheran Saturday night.

The victory brought ENMU's record to 3-6 for the season. The Greyhounds will close out the season next Saturday by hosting Bishop College at 3 p.m. CST.

Eastern broke from a 7-all tie with another long play, as quarterback Joe Martini hit T.C. Castle with a 49-yard pass play in the second period.
