

Sadat Gets Invitation To Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin today officially invited Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Israel, in response to Sadat's proposal that he make the trip to try to bring peace to the Middle East.

In Cairo, Sadat said the visit, which he first suggested last week, was his "sacred duty." It would break a long-standing taboo against any Arab leader dealing directly with Israeli leaders.

Since Israel and Egypt have no diplomatic relations, Begin sent his written invitation through U.S. Ambassador to Israel Samuel Lewis. He was to relay it to the U.S. Ambassador in Cairo, who would deliver it to Sadat.

Begin told parliament his invitation promised to receive Sadat "with all the honor and majesty" reserved for a head of state.

He said he also invited the leaders of Syria, Jordan and Lebanon to meet him for peace talks.

Begin did not release the text of the invitation to Sadat, on grounds that it would be discourteous to do so before it was received. He said he had written to President Carter thanking him for making U.S. Embassy communications available for transmitting the invitation to Cairo.

He said he was happy that he and Sadat already agreed there should be no preconditions for the visit.

"We have our positions — we will bring them to a conference table," he said.

Begin said he would ask parliament's house committee to arrange for Sadat to address the 120 deputies.

Israel Radio said the invitation would probably be made public later in the day.

"I consider this trip as a sacred duty and that this vicious circle we are turning around in ... has to be broken," Sadat told reporters after a meeting with a U.S. congressional delegation at his Barrages rest house outside of Cairo.

In Washington today, Egypt's ambassador to the U.S. ruled out a separate peace with Israel resulting from a visit by Sadat to Jerusalem.

Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal told reporters: "He is not going to Israel to have a separate settlement. That is not in the cards."

Ghorbal said that if the visit takes place, Sadat will insist on total Israeli withdrawal from the territory lost by Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the Six-Day War of 1967 and on an establishment of a Palestinian state on the west bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza.

If the Sadat visit materializes, it would be the first public visit by an Arab leader to Israel since it was founded in 1948.

Sadat said yesterday: "For sure, this Arab-Israeli conflict contains 70 per cent psychological problems and 30 per cent substance. So let us overcome this psychological problem and go to the substance."

"For that I shall be going to the Knesset (Israel's parliament) and if need be I shall be opening a discussion with the 120 deputies to give them the real facts in the area here, not from their point of view, but the other point of view so they can decide for themselves."

"I consider my visit to the Knesset as part of the preparation for Geneva," Sadat told a U.S. congressional delegation and reporters in a one-hour meeting. "Without good preparation for Geneva, we shouldn't go because we would not reach anything ... we shall sit and differ and argue about this and that."

Protest Clash Mars Welcome For Shah

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police and competing forces of demonstrators clashed as the Shah and Empress of Iran arrived at the White House today, and tear gas wafted onto the lawn of the executive mansion during welcoming ceremonies by President Carter.

At least four police officers and eight other persons were hurt as pro and anti-shah forces rushed one another just as the shah was arriving for his two-day state visit.

The demonstrators threw rocks, cinder blocks and wood from an unattended pile of lumber at the police. At that point, the mounted officers charged into the demonstrators on the park area known as the Ellipse just south of the White House. Using sticks and tear gas, the police forced the demonstrators back toward the Washington Monument.

At least 10 arrests were reported, including two at a companion demonstration on the north side of the White House.

Fighting between hooded protesters, mostly Iranian students, and supporters of the shah continued in some areas of the monument grounds even after the Ellipse was cleared. There also were incidents of shoving between the two forces on the north side, at Lafayette Park.

Though the disturbance was audible during the official welcoming on the White House grounds, Carter proceeded with the ceremonies on schedule. Both he and the shah dabbed their eyes, apparently irritated by the tear gas that drifted even into White House offices and those of the Treasury Department, two blocks away.

The president formally apologized to the shah, a prime seller of oil and buyer of U.S. weapons, for the disturbances.

"I've already apologized to the shah for the temporary air pollution in Washington," Carter told reporters as he accepted a tapestry portrait of George Washington from the shah. "I thought he made his speech under difficult conditions, but with typical strength," he said.

Police gave no official estimates, but it was clear that the demonstrators on both sides numbered well into the thousands.

Order appeared restored, except for a few isolated fistfights well away from the

School Delay Hiking Cost, Expert Says

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Continued delay in a voter-approved bond sale and construction of schools south of Loop 289 is costing Lubbock taxpayers plenty of money, a Texas Tech University professor told U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward today.

Testifying in the second day of a school construction and desegregation hearing, Dr. Robert Rouse, past chairman of the Texas Tech department of economics and finance, said construction costs are skyrocketing and interest rates also may increase.

Rouse said the longer construction of the proposed four new elementary schools and a junior high outside Loop 289 is held up by the court, the more money the projects will cost Lubbock later.

"On the basis of the assumption that the need for the schools has been established, the financing of construction should proceed with all deliberate speed," he said in support of the Lubbock Independent School District building plan.

Rouse said Lubbock is a "rapidly growing city" and needs schools in growing areas south of the Loop.

But U.S. Justice Department attorney Steve Gurwin said the high cost of construction and financing is simply another reason that the district should consider alternatives to building new facilities.

He advocates using space in existing facilities as a means to promote integration and beef up declining inner city and east-side enrollment.

Furthermore, Gurwin alleged today that the amount of available space in existing schools is much higher than school officials have led Woodward to believe.

Dr. John Bell, of the U.S. Office for Civil Rights, supported Gurwin's contention with an analysis of a "hard date" Bell received from the school district during a May inspection.

Bell compared the building capacity and enrollment of each public school in the city. He found that while some schools are overcrowded, many more facilities have surplus space.

Bell divided the city into four quadrants and said that available building capacity within each quadrant is far greater than combined student enrollment.

For example, Bell said, in the northwest quadrant there is a total elementary building capacity for 4,116 students, yet only 2,980 students are enrolled.

In the northeast quadrant, Bell's analysis showed 7,200 spaces for 4,200 students; in the southeast, 6,100 spaces for 3,800 students; and in the southwest, 8,500 spaces for 6,500 students.

Gurwin noted there is "no quadrant in which the number of students enrolled exceeds permanent capacity."

Bell said the same trend holds true at the junior high school level.

School officials are expected to dispute the figures later in the hearing.

Supt. Ed Irons testified Monday a $1 million plan to bus elementary students from outside Loop 289 to under-enrolled central and eastside schools was considered but dismissed, before Lubbock school trustees decided to build failities where the children live.

But Irons' failure to produce details of the busing proposal, and evidence that similar alternatives to other building items had not been studied, seemed to heighten U.S. Justice Department hopes of getting the school construction program blocked.

Woodward questioned some projects, such as construction of a southwest junior high school and an electronics laboratory—radio station at Monterey High, included in the $11.9 million bond program passed in February.

Woodward asked whether the $100,000 electronics lab, the only one of its kind in Lubbock, could be relocated from predominantly white Monterey to some other campus "as a tool for integration."

He suggested that the lab might be used to attract white students to a predominantly minority school, as the Justice Department advocates.

The proposed southwest junior high school would relieve congestion at Evans Junior High, currently 291 students over permanent capacity. The new school would be located outside Loop 289, where 661 junior high pupils — a figure projected to double in four years — now reside.

However, Woodward noted there are

Defendant Tells Jury Of Beating

Debra Gay Adair, accused of murdering her boyfriend, John Michael Burks, testified today she once kicked her in the mouth hard enough to break two of her teeth.

The testimony came during her long rendition of an "up and down" love affair that lasted about 4 1/2 years and ended with his death April 2 of this year.

The case is being tried in 89th Dist. Court before Judge George Miller of Floydada, who is serving as a special impact court judge.

Miss Adair, 26, said that Burks frequently hit her and threatened her during the years they lived together at his 2214-A 15th St. residence.

"He told me once, 'If I ever ever catch you running around on me, I'm going to mess you up so bad that no one will ever look at you again,'" she testified.

She said that after a party at which he accused her of flirting with another man, "He jerked me around by the hair and threw me down and then he kicked me in the mouth and it broke two of my teeth."

Her attorney, John Davis, asked her why she kept living with him if he treated her so badly.

"Because I loved him and he loved me. There were a lot of times that he would hit me, and then he would be so sorry," the thin defendant said quietly.

Police responded to a call at Miss Adair's 5112 35th St. residence about 3:30 a.m. April 2 and found Burks, 26, slumped in a bedroom chair. He had been shot once in the head.

A policeman testified Monday he was met at the door of the residence by the defendant. "She said, 'Oh my God, I shot him,'" Corp. Joe Pierson stated.

Another policeman testified a .22 caliber pistol, found in the night table in the bedroom, showed one spent round and several live rounds.

Burks, a railroad employe, died shortly after being taken to a local hospital. He had a bullet in his brain.

A signed statement by Miss Adair, a former Texas Tech student who now lives in Levelland, was introduced into evidence Monday. In it, she admitted firing the fatal shot.

Blaze Hits Restaurant

By PAT CARLSON

Flammable liquid left near a hot oven has been blamed for today's early morning $200,000 blaze at a fashionable West Lubbock restaurant.

Most of the Brookshire Inn's interior sustained heavy damage during the hour that smoke and flames were visible. Firemen got the call to the 3838 50th St. restaurant-club about 3 a.m.

Reportedly, several bottles of cooking liquor — used in preparing flaming desserts — were sitting near an oven which apparently was left on after closing Monday night. According to Fire Marshal A.C. Black, the heat caused the bottles to break and the liquid ran down over electrical switches.

Beadle Blamed For Bank Heist

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The wife of a man who already has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the 1976 armed robbery of Wolforth's American Bank of Commerce today pointed to Burton Russell Beadle as the man who masterminded the holdup.

Mrs. Carolyn Trussell — who has had a felony charge of providing implements for escape filed against her — made the remarks concerning Beadle during a hearing outside the presence of jurors.

Beadle, 46, is being tried for aggravated robbery before a jury in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court.

He, along with Jerry Wayne Trussell and two other men, were indicted for allegedly pulling off the largest bank robbery in Lubbock County history.

Nearly $66,000 was taken during the Aug. 31, 1976, holdup, and about $40,000 of the loot reportedly is still missing.

Trussell was assessed a life sentence after a trial here in April, and his wife today indicated there had been a falling out between her and Beadle because of money problems.

Mrs. Trussell said she met with Beadle several times after the robbery, while her husband was waiting to stand trial.

"I told him (Beadle) I needed some money," the witness said in reference to one alleged meeting some months after the holdup.

"He said he had some $2 bills that he was scared to spend — he said they were in a well in Lamesa," Mrs. Trussell stated.

"When I met him at the Longhorn (a local nightspot) he said he had his money and he was going to sit on it. He said he was sitting on it, and wasn't nobody going to get it away from him," Mrs. Trussell testified.

"Did he tell you where it was?" Assistant District Attorney Grady Terrill asked.

Mrs. Trussell said Beadle had not.

Earlier, the brunette, wearing a short-sleeved black blouse, had related details of a series of meetings between her husband and other men, including Beadle, in which she said plans for the robbery apparently were hatched.

"He (Beadle) came over to the house several times," Mrs. Trussell said. "He was the one that told Jerry about the bank."

According to Mrs. Trussell's testimony, Beadle told Trussell that he had "looked at it and thought it was an easy bank to hit."

She said the Wolforth bank was mentioned in the purported conversation during the latter part of July.

"He (Beadle) said he had checked it out and had rented a safety deposit box there," Mrs. Trussell testified.

She said Beadle had indicated the alleged purchase of the deposit box had, according to Beadle, given him an opportunity to go into the bank vault.

"Jerry left the house about 7 o'clock," Mrs. Trussell said when asked to give an

Carter Administration Plans To Return Hungarian Jewels

By BARRY SCHWEID
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is preparing to return Hungary's crown jewels, probably by having Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance make the delivery next month, it was learned this week.

The Crown of St. Stephen, a symbol of Hungarian nationhood, has been in American custody since the end of World War II. Vance would stop in Budapest after President Carter completes a projected nine-nation world tour from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2.

The Vance mission, as well as the presidential trip, are still indefinite because of the congressional battle over the administration's energy legislation.

However, it is known that the United States recently informed Hungary of the intention to return the crown, scepter and orb, and that Vance was selected to deliver the jewels.

There is considerable symbolism involved on the U.S. side. The stop in Budapest would represent U.S. support for the relative liberalism of the Kadar government and could clear the way for improved trade relations with Hungary.

Only Poland and Romania of the nations in the Soviet sphere have been granted so-called "most favored nation" status. This involves tariff and credit arrangements regularly given to most U.S. trading partners.

Vance already has a 10th stop on his itinerary. He will start out a day ahead of the president and fly to Argentina, joining Carter on the president's first stop in Venezuela.

Next month, Vance has his own plans to attend North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings in Brussels.

The crown was sent as a coronation gift to Stephen, Hungary's first king, in the year 1000 by Pope Sylvester II and has remained a symbol of Hungary's nationhood.

All kings after Stephen wore the crown at their coronations. Karl II of the Austria-Hungarian empire last wore it at his coronation in 1918.

The crown was kept in the Budapest Royal Castle. But shortly before the Soviet army captured the capital in 1945, Hungarian soldiers took it and other regalia to U.S.-occupied territory.

In 1970, the Hungarian government made unsuccessful appeals for the return of the jewels for the celebration of the 1,000th birthday of King Stephen. But Hungarian officials in the United States strongly opposed its return to a communist government.

The Byzantine-style crown is studded with gems, decorated with miniatures depicting religious scenes and surmounted by an incline cross.

Senate Biographies Short On Humility

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Mirror, mirror on the wall, who's the fairest senator of all? Just ask one; he'll tell you.

The biography put out by the office of Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, begins: "If someone were to write down all of the qualities needed in a senator from Idaho, he might start by reading a biographical sketch of Jim McClure."

Unless that someone happens to prefer McClure's Democratic colleague, Sen. Frank Church, whose biography begins by informing us that "for nearly a generation, over 20 years, Frank Church has been the most celebrated Idahoan to represent his state in the Senate since William E. Borah, the famed 'Lion of Idaho.'"

Biographical hyperbole is not limited to the lions of Idaho.

"Clifford Case often has been described as 'integrity at work,'" says the "background kit," issued by the Republican senator from New Jersey. It goes on:

"In an era when the public has become distrustful and disenchanted with most political leaders, Clifford Case has stood out as an exception, an officeholder who has earned the trust not only of his constituents but of all who know him."

Sen. Jennings Randolph's biography includes a page and a half listing of awards including one from the Washington Post Lions Club in 1966, the National Utility Contractors Association's Man of the Year in 1972, and in 1963, the Youth Appreciation Award from the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, Inc.

Some try to show a bit of humility. The single-page biography for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., opens with this note from Clint Fuller, his executive assistant:

"Sen. Helms protests that this resume is too long. However, since his has been a somewhat varied career, I feel that different aspects will be of interest to different people who make inquiry of us."

From the Arthur Burns' manual on how not to make friends and influence senators, comes the Federal Reserve Board chairman's call for senatorial support for a campaign to hold down salary hikes for federal employees.

Appearing before the Senate Banking Committee, whose members along with all other members of Congress received a $12,900 pay boost this year, Burns urged Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to "join me in bringing about a lowering of your salary and mine."

Stevenson noted that Congress had gone for eight years without a pay raise "and nobody followed our lead."

"What we had was inaction," said Burns "we did not have moral leadership."

The next time you're at one of those famous Washington cocktail parties and you find yourself standing next to Arthur Burns — he's the short, gray-haired fellow smoking the pipe — you might turn to him and in your most knowledgeable tone say, "How's the M2 looking, Mr. Chairman?"

No doubt, everyone around you will stand in awe of your fiscal expertise. The chairman speaks often of M1, M2 and M3, and practically no one knows what he's talking about.

For those who care, M1 is the amount of money in currency and checking accounts; M2 is the total of M1 plus the money held in savings and other time deposits in commercial banks, while M3 equals M2 plus deposits in other thrift institutions such as savings and loan associations and credit unions.

Incidental intelligence from the office of Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo.: the state of Wyoming has the highest percentage of citizens band radio operators in the nation.

According to a Hansen press release, 32,591 Wyoming residents had CB licenses as of the end of May. That represents 8.7 percent of Wyoming's population.

Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Martha Keys, D-Kans., hold the unique distinction of being the only husband and wife in Congress.

In a recent press release they also claimed another distinction with the announcement that their red 1966 Oldsmoobile Cutlass had passed the 200,000-mile milestone. The event was duly celebrated with champagne at a curbside reception.

TV, Sound Equipment Taken In City Crimes

Easily carried television sets, stereos, radios and tape players again were the most popular items for burglars made to Lubbock police.

Robert Torres of 1118 34th St., rear, reported the loss of a television set, stereo, radio and several record albums after someone broke through a window at his home Monday. The complainant set the missing property's value at more than $500.

According to James David Dean, whoever broke through a second-story window at his 2414-D 15th St. residence sometime during the past two days made off with a stereo, television set, tapes, albums and a watch. His loss also was set at more than $500.

Mark Henry Herranen of 1908 Dixie Dr., No. 6, told police he no longer has a stereo and radio after burglars pried his front door Monday, and David Eugene Clark of 3201 35th St., No. 6, said his tape player was stolen from his car parked at his home.

Burglars broke through a window at Jimmie M. Smith's 1908 55th St. house Monday and reportedly got away with a $250 television set.

Grace Henderson of 2322-B 62nd St. told officers two television sets and a microwave oven were taken from her home Monday after someone apparently gained entry by prying a garage door.

Toots, valued at $230, reportedly were taken from a van parked in the 2400-block of Main Street recently, Jim Serage told police.

Steve Viney of 3305 Akron Ave. said a $170 drill was stolen from a tool box in the bed of his pickup parked at his home last week.

Squabbles over an allegedly stolen purse early Monday set off a round of gunfire at an East Lubbock club that sent two Lubbockites to city hospitals with minor injuries.

A 21-year-old East Colgate Street resident told police she and several friends were at the 23rd Street and Fir Avenue club about 5 a.m. Monday when one of her friends' purse turned up missing.

Suspecting a 23-year-old man sitting nearby was the culprit, her friends accused the man of taking the handbag, she said. The man became angered at the accusation, which he denied, and slugged her in the mouth, she said.

The woman was treated at a local hospital for bruises and "several loose teeth," police reports indicated.

While she was at the hospital, though, another man went to the club to find her assailant. He did, and upon making the discovery, pulled a pistol from his jacket and fired four shots at the man.

The 23-year-old victim was only slightly injured, but was treated at a city hospital for the wounds.

As the man drove off from the club toward the hospital, the man unloaded six more shots from his revolver into the back of the moving vehicle.

Another Lubbockite, 25-year-old Carl Ross of 3621 E. 15th St. told police he was at his girlfriend's Cherry Street home watching television about 10 p.m. Sunday when he heard a noise in the living room of the house.

When he went to investigate, he told officers, he found a man standing in the room carrying a television set in his arms.

Ross said he yelled at the man, who then dropped the set and pulled a knife. During a brief fight that followed, Ross suffered several minor cuts, but the attacker escaped.

Glenda Gail Mooney of 1710 E. Brown St. told police someone took about $1,000 of clothing from her closets about 10:15 p.m. Sunday, took them to her driveway and then set them on fire.

Burglars took $74 worth of tires from Capitol Tire Sales at 1400 34th St. sometime about 10 p.m. Sunday and caused more than $60 damage to the building in their attempts to enter.

Ronald Robertson of Laramie reported the theft of a citizens-band radio from his motorcycle while the vehicle was parked outside a 20th Street restaurant about 9 p.m. Sunday.

Richard Hodges told officers someone took a .410-gauge shotgun from his pickup parked outside his 5710 2nd Place home about midnight Saturday.

Eight-track tapes were reportedly stolen from autos owned by Robert Glasing of 5712 2nd Place and Kevin Watson of 4303 19th St. No. 12. Both men reported losses near $100.

Evel Knievel To Begin Six-Month Jail Term

By LINDA DEUTSCH SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel has been given one week to get his affairs in order before he begins serving six months in jail for beating his former press agent with a baseball bat.

Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie compared Knievel's actions to a primitive form of "frontier justice." He also said Knievel would spend three years on probation.

Knievel admitted he attacked Sheldon Saltman because he didn't like a book Saltman wrote about him.

Knievel attacked Saltman with the baseball bat Sept. 21 while an unidentified man held the victim. Saltman suffered compound fractures of both wrists and has begun action on a civil suit against Knievel.

"I have not been perfect and I have never claimed to be," Knievel said Monday just before sentencing.

Rafeedie scolded Knievel, 39, for setting a bad example for his young fans around the world.

"We long ago abandoned frontier justice in California," said Rafeedie. "No al-front justifies such retaliation. It sets a terrible example."

Saltman, 46, now a vice president of the telecommunications division of 20th Century-Fox Studios, was the press agent for Knievel's unsuccessful 1974 attempt to jump Idaho's Snake River Canyon in a rocket-powered motorcycle. He wrote of that association in the book, "Evel Knievel on Tour."

Knievel said the book depicted him as a drug addict, adulterer, anti-Semite and "an immoral person." However, he acknowledged that 85 to 90 percent of the book is truthful.

'Shenandoah' Step Forward In Productions At LCC

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Fine Arts Editor

Those who missed the Lubbock Christian College production of the musical "Shenandoah" at Moody Auditorium this past weekend most likely missed an important step forward in that school's theatrical progress. It was, without a doubt, the most ambitious project yet undertaken at LCC. The casting demands most likely saw every interested LCC student earn a part. The set design and, yes, even the curtain indicated hundreds of hours of dedicated labor.

Director June Bearden has outdone herself with a knowledgeable display of simplistic touches. The costumes managed to ease the audience smoothly into the Civil War years and the choreography, again supplied by the versatile Suzanne Aker, ranged from the more sublime to all out "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers" type barn burners.

In short, the pieces were there. The hint of better things to come was well evident. And yet, though "Shenandoah" was never boring, the musical suffered horrendously on closing night. Let's face it. To produce a successful musical, one must first supply an array of strong singers and an orchestra which can offer pleasant, if not powerful, musical accompaniment.

This LCC production possessed very few of the former — and obviously didn't look very hard for the latter. Indeed, from the opening prelude to the closing notes, the student

But director Bearden knew how to manipulate (without stressing) the musical's inbred sentimentality and, within minutes, she had the audience eating out of her hand. Even if that audience couldn't hear everything going on.

The story, after all, is the same. Charlie Anderson and his six sons work their farm in Virginia, for the most part attempting to ignore the color differentiation of blue and grey. "If those fools want to slaughter each other, that's their business," Anderson proclaims. All he cares about is his family and his "500 acres of good rich dirt."

But the war will not let Anderson be. One son is taken prisoner by the Union Army. Another is murdered by a scar-faced marauder, the latter played with malicious gusto by talented set designer Rick Houston. Anderson's daughter-in-law is presumably raped and killed minutes later. Then another son is killed by mistake by a Confederate sniper. Seething with outraged grief, Anderson seeks bloody revenge.

The story of one war's disruption of one family is universal. As a character phrased it, "It's like all wars, I suppose. The undertakers are winning."

Thus the tear-jerker motif was there at the beginning. But June Bearden refused to succumb to temptation, choosing to subtly seduce the tear ducts instead through underplayed action. The ends of both Act One and Act Two are stunning only because of the simplistic and realistic stage set by Bearden. No stop action, no blackout on a closing heartfelt line, just the curtain slowly closing while the action progresses.

It was quite effective, to say the very least. In regards to acting and musical performances, the play was a hodgepodge of talent levels. Lawrence Crowder was effective as Charlie Anderson, in tune with his own vocal limitations while scoring with "I've Heard It All Before" and missing through poor amplification on "Papa's Gonna Make It All Right."

David Brown displayed a strong voice with the second appearance of the song "Next To Lovin, I Like Fightin," but for some unexplained reason kept his talents hidden the rest of the time. Philip Lollar, as Henry, was just plain funny. His little efforts, an example being his struggle to read his hymnbook in church, added so much to the overall effect.

Michael Davis, playing the part of the youngest son Robert, was inspiring in his youthful confidence. He also projected better than many of the "adult" actors and was highly entertaining in his duet with Robinson, "Why Am I Me." Marc Gaston also projected well as Sam, offering more feeling than most could muster out of such a corny part.

Saving a bit of the best for last, we should also pay tribute to Byron Rogers and Randall Hinds. Rogers was the epitome of stereotyped hellfire preachers, but added much more to the role with his damn-those-bluebellies sermons. Family loss affects all. Meanwhile, Hinds was the one picked to express the soldier's griefs and doubts, and he did so very melodically with the song "The Only Home I Know."

A-J THEATER REVIEW

orchestra threatened to undo all the sweat and blood shed by the rest of the crew. This is not to say one instrument was off key. Nearly all were! The strings screeched, the brass creaked and the entire orchestra pit was an embarrassment.

Even more embarrassing, though, was the fact orchestra director Wayne Hinds did not possess the foresight to downplay the poor musicians.

As for the cast, only one of the women appeared capable of carrying a song with enthusiasm and projecting it past the second row (this writer was seated in the third). That was Susie Belton as Anne, whose song "Freedom" was the most enjoyable one in the show. Bubbling with life, Miss Belton belted out the words with the young slave character Cedric Robinson and, despite Robinson's perhaps nervous ineffectiveness, used her own talent to make the song a hit.

It should be mentioned Moody Auditorium was packed for the final staging, no doubt inspired somewhat by Jimmy Stewart's memorable performance in the story's touching screen version. That became evident at intermission with so many people discussing "songs I've never heard before ... and where is that song 'Shenandoah' anyway." The musical, you understand, is very much a different and newer theatrical creature.

'Jazzbeaux' Rallies Listeners In Support Of Ideas, Fantasy

By ROBERT McEWEN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When the clock nudges midnight, uncounted hordes of West Coast insomniacs grab their phones and twist their radio dials to the mellifluous voice of a man named "Jazzbeaux."

His six-hour talk show has become somewhat of a phenomenon, spawned by Jazzbeaux's magic ability to rally his listeners behind the idea or fantasy of one eccentric caller.

Those who call don't want to discuss Congress or terrorist hijackings or the rest of the 11 o'clock news.

They just want a sympathetic ear to stuff with stories about pets, hobbies and their daily travails. And Jazzbeaux — whose off-the-air name is Al Collins — is a man who cares enough to treat their molehills like mountains.

Take the Frogonians, for example. One night a woman calling herself "Olga of Bodega Bay" said she thought the best way to fight California's drought would be for everyone to collect frogs and tadpoles.

"Why?" asked Jazzbeaux.

Because every place she had ever seen a frog she also had seen water, therefore...

Hundreds called in to say they had fallen in love with Olga and her idea, including tree surgeon Mike Fleming of Williams, Ore., who said he had an albino frog. Jazzbeaux immediately created the "Frogonians" and named Fleming its president.

Now there are more than 7,000 card-carrying Frogonians, a Frogonian museum in Williams, Frogonian T-shirts, buttons, bumper stickers and a newsletter, "The Croaker."

The show, broadcast over KGO radio on the strength of 50,000 watts, reaches to Guam, Mexico and the Arctic Circle.

Jazzbeaux's popularity is not hard to understand. He seems to be one of those rare persons who can find something to like in everybody, and in whom everybody can find someone to like.

Crew-cut and goateed, he describes himself as something of "a brownie, or a troll." His wardrobe — an array of loose-fitting, purple and orange jumpsuits and little triangular caps — does nothing to discourage that image.

Although he looks to be in his mid-50s, Jazzbeaux refuses to divulge his age. "I've been at this 16-year-old emotional level for such a long time that I can't handle thinking about my real age."

At any rate, he has been in the business since the late 1960s. He has worked in Chicago, Kansas City, New York and Los Angeles but this is the first time he has been able to develop a late-night talk show to his own satisfaction.

"It's my calling," he says.

One recent high spot of his late-night show was the coronation of a caller as "The King of Clamonia." The caller, known to listeners only as "Jerry of North Bay," told Jazzbeaux he had a wonderful method of unearthing clams using a pneumatic pump.

Jazzbeaux agreed to meet Jerry at a beach the following dawn to pump for clams. When he arrived, hundreds of listeners were there waiting.

Some 6,000 people attended the first annual "Al Collins Listeners Convention" last summer, and more than 18,000 showed up at a Petaluma ranch to eat eggs fresh from a henhouse for another Jazzbeaux scheme.

"A 29-year-old boy named Clarence, who was very shy and had never left his hometown of Talent, Ore., before, found the courage to get up on a platform and speak to those 18,000," Jazzbeaux said.

"Now he wants to become editor of a yearbook with pictures of all our listeners."

"That's what I try to do on my show, you know — get people out of their immobilization. People think it's corny when they hear Bing Crosby sing all that stuff about 'Accentuate the Positive,' but that's where it's at, man. It's true."

Jazzbeaux has a more colorful way of expressing the same sentiment on the air. He expounds on the wonders of "The Majuberos Seed."

He tells listeners it is "the quintessence of creativity, inspiration and all things good," and advises everyone that becoming "majubertzized" is "the second best feeling in the world."

"I figure it's smart to call it the second best feeling because everyone has something of his own that he likes best," he said. "And then there's the obvious choice for the best feeling. So it's more believable if I say it's the second best."

Navy Offers Remedial Reading

By MARC WILSON
GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP) — Elijah Foster joined the Navy after three years of high school and one year of junior college. But a Navy test soon determined he couldn't read at the second grade level.

"When the safety of men at sea might depend on someone's ability to read a warning sign, we can't fool around," said Chief Petty Officer T.G. Binkley.

So Foster, 20, a recruit from Chester, Pa., near Philadelphia, was assigned to an intensive, five-week remedial reading program headed by Binkley.

The program, one of three the Navy has developed since 1967, graduates about 975 of the 1,500 recruits entering it each year. About 92 percent of the graduates then go on to complete basic training and become sailors. Navy figures indicate.

"When they told me I couldn't begin basic (training) until I passed the reading course, I was looking for the gate. I wanted out," Foster remembered. "I was very depressed."

But the program, from which Foster graduated recently, paid off. Foster's reading level rose nearly three grades. Scores on subsequent exams qualified him for additional schooling. He also was named a leader in his basic training group.

"Chief Binkley and the teachers got on our cases pretty hard," the trainee remembered. "If we didn't learn, they just kept with us till we got it. They were like brothers, they cared..."

"That never happened in (public) school. The teachers just said what they had to say and if we didn't get it, too bad. "I can read now. That's really something," he concluded.

Binkley says the Navy, at times, can do better at teaching reading than public schools because "we have better discipline, we have instructors in front of these kids all the time, we supervise their homework." But he admitted that depression could be a problem.

"But wouldn't you be depressed if you went through high school and couldn't pass a basic reading test?" Binkley asked. "You should hear parents scream when we tell them their son can't read."

The Navy says 3 percent of its recruits can't pass basic reading tests, although most have high school diplomas and some have attended up to four years of college.

"I think much of the problem began in the '60s when school systems starting advancing kids too easily," said Cmdr. R.D. Aydt, executive officer of the Navy boot camp here.

Still, 35 percent of recruits who enter the program don't graduate.

"It breaks my heart," Binkley said. "We try everything we can, but there's a point where you have to give up."

He said that when he took the job, "the guy I replaced said the first thing I'd have to learn is that lots of people can't read. I didn't believe it then. I believe it now."

Health Foods Not Safer, Says FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food safety is not guaranteed by the absence of additives, the head of the Food and Drug Administration says.

Donald Kennedy said so-called natural or health foods have "no benefits that we can see over foods available in the regular marketplace."

Aflatoxin, a mold product that grows on corn and peanuts, is as natural as it can be — and about the worst carcinogen we know of," Kennedy said.

He was interviewed by U.S. News and World Report, which released the story Sunday.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

- By Bernice Bede Osol
- SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Patience, pace and second effort are important words to keep in mind tomorrow. Things you do hastily are apt to go awry.
 - SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be in for some heated objections tomorrow from people who usually go along with your way of doing things. Meeting fire with fire isn't the answer.
 - CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be security-conscious tomorrow. Don't leave valuables lying about to tempt the light-fingered.
 - AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Fax pas you make tomorrow will linger in the memory of others. Conduct yourself so as to leave potential detractors wordless.
 - PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are no shadings in the way you do things tomorrow. Certain affairs you'll manage with ease and excellence. In other areas, the opposite is true.
 - ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's most important tomorrow that you have the right people in your corner if you get involved in something that you know little about.
 - TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your chances for getting what you strive for tomorrow are only fair. You might have to step on too many toes in the process.
 - GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take the responsibility for your errors tomorrow. Don't look for a scapegoat or try to rationalize them. Alibis won't make amends.

THE DOCTOR SINGS OPERA — Dr. Alfonso de la Morena demonstrates his operatic tenor at the Argonne, Ill., National Laboratory, where he works as a researcher in radiobiology. Former Opera Singer Practices Medicine

By C.G. McDANIEL
ARGONNE, Ill. (AP) — Alfonso de la Morena, former opera singer, current physician, says his two professions have at least one thing in common: sensitivity.

"To be an artist the only thing you need truly is sensitivity," he said in an interview. He agreed that sensitivity also is essential to be a good physician.

De la Morena, a 41-year-old native of Madrid, is a researcher in radiobiology at Argonne National Laboratory, where he is involved in work to determine the safe limits of radiation exposure. He also works part time in private practice as a family physician.

But before that, he could be seen on the stages of opera houses in Chicago, New York, Madrid, Vienna, Rome, Moscow, Philadelphia and elsewhere, singing with such noted artists as Renata Tebaldi, Tito Gobbi and the late Maria Callas. His last performance was in 1966 at the theater at Lake Como in Italy, where he sang in "Carmen."

His singing career began when he was a medical student at the University of Madrid and auditioned for a student choral group. The producer thought he had greater potential and asked de la Morena to star in a film about the history of the university — he played a singing medical student.

For that, he had to learn the last act of "Aida," even though he had never before sung opera. De la Morena says the performance earned him an invitation to study and sing at the famed La Scala opera house in Milan, Italy, the beginning of a career that was to last from 1957 to 1966.

Why did he give it up? Love. "You cannot enjoy being the wife of a tenor," he said. "You can enjoy being the wife of a doctor much more."

De la Morena was married in 1963 and constant traveling gave him little time to be with his wife. His decision to quit came in 1965 when he was singing in Philadelphia and received word that his wife was having complications with the birth of their second child.

Giving up was "not easy at all," he said, but he wound down his career and immigrated to the United States with his family in 1968. Since then, he and his wife have had two more children.

He sings in public now only at charitable benefits. "God gave me the voice and he will tell me when I definitely quit," said the doctor.

Carnegie Apartments To Be Converted

NEW YORK (AP) — Studio apartments above and next to Carnegie Hall that once were home to Marlon Brando, Isadora Duncan and Leonard Bernstein are to be converted to work studios.

Only one-fourth of the 140 apartments surrounding the music hall are occupied now, and according to Carnegie Hall Corp. comptroller Ronald Geraghty, "eventually no tenants will live there."

Those now living in the studios can stay on, he said, but he also noted that they have commercial leases. Commercial leases are not covered by rent control, and "there is no limit on how much the rent can be increased" when the rents are hiked next October.

Monthly rents now range from $200 a month for a small, bathless room to more than $400 for two rooms with a bath.

Triacontanol Stimulates Plant Growth

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Researchers at Michigan State University say a chemical found in alfalfa hay could be used to increase world food production as much as 25 percent.

Called triacontanol, the substance has been found far more effective than commercial nitrogen fertilizer in improving the yields of tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce and other plants.

Horticulture professor Stanley Reis, who isolated triacontanol a year and a half ago, presented the results of field tests at a conference in New York Monday.

The university has given American Cyanamid Co. of Princeton, N.J. an option to develop the chemical for agricultural use.

In a recent interview, Reis said the most surprising quality of triacontanol is that it increases the growth of plants in the dark.

Plants normally lose weight at night because they draw on stored food to live when they don't have light to stimulate growth. Plants treated with triacontanol increase in weight overnight, he said.

"You can almost sit there and watch them grow," Reis said.

Triacontanol, a form of alcohol, has been found in the leaves of many plants, as well as in beeswax, salad greens, carrots, potatoes and apples, Reis said.

Because it is so widespread in nature, Reis said, researchers hope it can be used on crops without any dangerous side effects.

Farmers have long recognized the value of rotating alfalfa with other crops to restore nitrogen to the soil. Until the experiments here, it was generally thought that the enrichment was the result of nitrogen stored in the plants roots and not to a substance in the plant itself.

Reis said the precise mechanism by which triacontanol works is not known. It is known that it can be applied in either solution or spray and works best in small amounts.

Chinese Leadership Seeks Scientific Help

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
 WASHINGTON (AP) — China's new leadership reportedly is reaching out to foreign scientists of Chinese ancestry, including some Chinese-Americans, for help in recovering from a 10-year setback in scientific development.

U.S. intelligence sources said the Peking leaders who succeeded the late Mao Tse-tung are trying to repair damage caused to China's science and education communities by the "cultural revolution," which began in the mid-1960s. During that period, Maoists purged and harassed scientists and teachers. Universities were shut down for four years, and there was a general lowering of standards after they were re-opened in 1970, U.S. experts said.

Over the past several months, the new regime has invited "overseas" Chinese scientists to China to consult with native scientists, deliver papers at technical meetings and conduct research of various kinds, sources said.

They did not identify any of those receiving the invitations. The development recalls the critical role credited to about 100 American-trained Chinese physicists in research which led to China's first successful nuclear weapons test.

Many of these physicists, educated in U.S. colleges, returned home between the end of World War II in 1945 and the communist victory in 1949.

Chinese research in nuclear weapons, missiles and space continued after the onset of the Maoist cultural revolution, which was aimed at enforcing ideological purity. But the pace has been much slower than U.S. analysts had expected.

Indications are that the new Peking leaders are interested in a broad advance in scientific and technical fields, not just weaponry. They also appear to be attempting to upgrade China's university products in other fields as well, sources said.

After Chinese colleges re-opened in 1970, students were chosen for political reliability rather than educational accomplishments. Examinations were dropped, and the curricula were heavily loaded with ideological matter. All graduate programs were eliminated.

As a result, experts said, qualified teachers are in short supply.

They cited one recent report which said that 68 percent of all college graduates serving in scientific and teaching jobs in the Shanghai area failed high school level tests in mathematics, while 79 percent failed in physics.

Recent intelligence reports say the new leadership is planning to re-institute college entrance examinations, re-establish graduate schools in scientific specialties and reduce the amount of time college students and professors must spend in manual labor in the fields.

Also, sources said, the new leadership intends to allow freedom of debate in scientific subjects while downplaying the political content of college courses.

Small Rattles Pose Hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says undersized baby rattles pose a health hazard and will have to meet certain size and shape requirements.

Infants risk choking and suffocating on such small rattles, the Consumer Product Safety Commission said.

The deaths of at least eight children in the United States and two in Canada have been traced to suffocation from rattles.

The Toy Manufacturers Association says the required changes will add from five cents to 30 cents to the cost of some rattles, now selling for as little as 29 cents. Rattles represent a $9.4 million business in the United States, the association estimates.

The new standards, based on Canadian regulations, will take effect 90 days after a final rule is approved.

Writer Finds He Has Two Sides

By TOM JORY
 NEW YORK (AP) — Three or four times a week, when he's on to something good, Walter Wager leaves "Mr. Nice Guy" at the office.

Wager, by day director of public relations for the American Society Composers, Authors and Publishers, writes spy thrillers by night. And that means, he says, "I have to be very schizo."

"There are two me's. There's the amiable public relations man, not really bothered by the little disturbances and setbacks of the day."

"But maybe it's because I'm holding the violent reaction for 8 o'clock at night when I walk out of here."

"When I'm working on something," Wager says, "I get pretty psyched up a night. It's sort of an explosion of aggression."

Wager has written 20 books, most of them of the cloak-and-dagger variety. His credits include "Viper III," which became the movie "Twilight's Last Gleaming," "Telefon," being filmed now; and his latest, "Time of Reckoning."

"The thriller has become a sort of psychiatric and travel text and also an engineering manual," Wager says. "It's no longer enough to write a mysterious little story."

That, Wager says, requires lots of research, much of it on-the-scene. "My next thriller's set in Bangkok, so I went to Bangkok," he says. "You have to put yourself in the story. If I do a scene in a hotel, I have to see what it looks like."

One big problem for cloak and dagger writers today, Wager says, "is who's the bad guy? That may be why my next book has as the bad guys the international narcotics dealers."

Plots and characters vary in Wager's novels, but, says the author, "There seems to be a lot of getting even in them." In "Time of Reckoning," a young man seeks revenge against Nazi war criminals he blames for killing his parents.

Wager says he began as a "mad reader" of the hard-boiled detective stories of Raymond Chandler and Dashiell Hammett and the British thrillers of Graham Greene and Eric Ambler. "Now I'm quite a fan of John LeCarre, and at his best, Len Deighton is very good."

He began writing himself while a student at Harvard Law School toward the end of the war. "I was offered a job with the OSS," he says, referring to the World War II intelligence service, "but somebody told me the war was almost over, so I passed it up."

His first thriller, "Death Hits the Jackpot," published in 1954, dealt with the theft of money from an OSS courier.

Wager claims he "works very hard at not working," but once off on a new book, he puts in four hours a night, three or four nights a week, and a half-dozen hours on weekends.

"I'm 53," he says, "not as strong as I used to be, and I put in a busy day here in a complicated job. It takes 500 to 600 hours to write a book, but once I'm past page 35, I'm going a page an hour. The first 35 take maybe 200 hours."

Writing, he says, has proven a valuable outlet for pent-up emotion.

"There are very definite limitations here," he says of his job at ASCAP. "This is an organization of dignity, in which one has to be proper and prudent and a certain self-restraint is involved."

Environmental Groups Find Tables Turned

By ALICE Z. CUNEO
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Impact statement, once the exclusive legal tool of animal lovers and conservationists, has become a weapon of business interests and others opposing projects environmentalists support.

And people such as John Lesly, once a brassy young Natural Resources Defense Council lawyer stalling government projects, find themselves on the other side of the legal fence.

The turnarounds resulted from the change in administration and a change on the part of government in its handling of environmental issues.

During the Nixon and Ford administrations, the Interior Department followed policies or planned projects on offshore leasing, coal development, or dam building which environmental groups opposed.

So the groups went to court demanding orders requiring preparation of the lengthy environmental impact statements required under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1970.

The other change has been brought about by President Carter's close relationship with environmental activists, many of whom have been appointed to top Interior Department jobs.

But the flurry of environmental impact statement lawsuits has not stopped, even though the environmental lawyers are working for Uncle Sam.

Lesly, for example, was hired by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus for a job in the solicitor's office. On Lesly's advice, the department decided not to prepare an environmental impact statement on controversial rules implementing a 1902 reclamation law.

Analysis

Now, lawyers for hundreds of California farmers who would be forced to sell land under proposed rules for receiving water from federal projects say they are prepared to go to court seeking an environmental impact statement.

They say the breakup of large farms would require more roads and possibly threaten wildlife in western states where the rules would apply.

Christmas Decorations Made From Nature's 'Discards'

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Martha Ames makes beautiful Christmas decorations from the kind of materials most people sweep up with dead leaves.

Groundskeepers at the New York Botanical Garden where she works collect pine cones, acorns, magnolia pods and other fallen or dried plants for her as they go about their daily chores.

In an interview, Mrs. Ames said she does some collecting herself. She urges students in her holiday decoration classes at the garden and the Horticultural Society of New York to gather similar materials on their lawns or during country strolls.

Nature does not suffer, she said. "Pine cones have to drop on the ground. There's no harm done in gathering them. It's not like breaking branches.

For wreath bases, she either buys styrofoam rings at a stationery and party goods store or cuts her own from corrugated boxes thrown away by retail stores.

Mrs. Ames is a catalog assistant in the botanical garden library. She said her classes grew out of a hobby she learned more than 15 years ago from a suburban garden club member. She and her husband, a commercial artist, live in Yonkers.

As she talked, she showed this reporter and a photographer how to make a wreath on a styrofoam ring. She poked a tiny hole in the outer rim with a sharp pencil, squeezed a dot of white glue into it, and stuck in one scale, or petal, from a pine cone. "You don't have to fill the hole with glue," she said. The finished wreath contained more pine cone petals, dried flowers, weeds, beechnuts, acorns and acorn caps, and radish seed pods that look like miniature dried green beans. All were held together with dots of white glue. Any brand that dries colorless is suitable, she said.

The possibilities for materials are almost endless, Mrs. Ames added. Goldenrod and baby's breath, for example, or any flowers that dry on their stalks.

Or you can use herbs and spices, dried whole ones bought at the grocery store and/or store-bought ones combined with sprigs and branches from indoor and outdoor plants.

She showed us a small wreath decorated with whole nutmegs, whole cloves, dried ginger root, coriander pods, bay leaves, cinnamon sticks, branches of dried rosemary, and statice sold by many retail florists. It was trimmed with a bright red ribbon bow and three tiny plastic bags of spices.

Mrs. Ames uses similar materials and techniques to make candleholders and trim tiny baskets for table decoration.

Last year she added macaroni wreaths to her repertoire "to show it could be done very inexpensively." She guesses shells, spirals, bow-ties, wagon wheels and other interesting shapes to corrugated cardboard rings. She spray paints them with gold or silver after the glue has dried.

"They become very solid," she said. She has one wreath more than 10 years old. If pieces are knocked off accidentally, she just glues them back on. To restore scent to an herb wreath or add scent to others, stick in whole cloves at random, she said.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: You told a 16-year-old girl who wanted to invite a certain boy to a sorority dance to ask someone who had already asked her out. Why? That's the first step in giving control of the relationship over to the man. He calls her if he feels like, while she's sitting home waiting to be called.

If a girl thinks a man has an interest in her, what's wrong with calling him? I'm single, 29, and have been dating since I was 16. If I meet a man who appeals to me and I think it's mutual, I'll call him and invite him over. He might think I'm pushy, and he may even reject me, but that's the chance I take. And it beats sitting home alone waiting to be called.

Also, I never give my phone number to a man who won't give me his. If he refuses, or gives me his office number, I know he's probably married or living with someone.

Times have changed, Abby. Women no longer must wait to be chosen. They can do some choosing on their own. This doesn't mean chasing after someone who has no interest in them. My motto is: "It never hurts to ask."

Bonnie in Allentown

Dear Bonnie: Your attitude makes sense, and will probably find more winners among women than men. Men have been risking rejection for years. If a woman takes the initiative and is rejected, it's not the end of the world. Let's declare 1978 the year of the open season on all eligibles — regardless of sex.

DEAR ABBY: A niece of mine was married recently. I wasn't able to attend the wedding and didn't know what to get her for a wedding gift, so I sent her a check for $100. (It's not easy for me to shop as I am somewhat handicapped.) I just received a thank-you note from the bride which both annoyed and shocked me. She wrote, "Your generous gift has already been put to good use in buying gifts for the girls in my wedding party."

I was under the impression that a cash wedding gift should be used to buy something for the newlyweds.

Am I wrong to feel perturbed? It was my intention to give her a "gift," not to help with the wedding expenses.

Disappointed

Dear Dis: Your niece probably put the money where it would do the most good. Overlook it. At least she was honest.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F.J.R.: Instead of yearning for some kind of immortality, remember the words of Benjamin Franklin:

"If you would not be forgotten, As soon as you are dead and rotten Either write things worth reading Or do things worth the writing."

If you feel left out and lonely, you know how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

double, so South rated to lose a hand, two diamonds and a club. Declarer could set up a club for a diamond discard, but when West won the queen of clubs, he would surely find the diamond shift to defeat the contract.

Declarer was tempted to allow the king of clubs to win, in the hope that West would continue the suit. However, after some thought he came up with an even more deceptive line.

South won the ace of clubs and drew trumps in two rounds, ending in his hand. Now he led his low club. West carelessly followed low, and declarer was home.

East was forced to win the club, and he could make no damaging return. He tried to cash two hearts, but declarer ruffed the second and led the jack of clubs. West's queen was ruffed away, declarer returned to his hand with a heart ruff and discarded a diamond from dummy on the ten of clubs. Thus, the defenders got only one diamond trick and declarer scored his contract.

On Monday night, November 21, the American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation will hand over to the Arthritis Foundation a check for $125,000. The ceremony will take place at the Continental Charity Game in Atlanta during the Fall North American Championships. Those same hands played at the national site will be played that evening throughout North America. You can join in organized bridge's efforts to help its fellow man by contacting your local bridge club for details of the game nearest you.

The Foundation is careful to see that its charities are not among those that squander the sums raised. On this hand, West was guilty of the reverse — hoarding his assets.

North's jump to four spades was rather aggressive. He certainly had the right trump holding, but we would prefer to see a singleton somewhere to add distributional strength to the hand.

West led the king of clubs and as soon as dummy came down declarer realized that he had problems. East had to have both missing diamond honors for his

Model Finds Work 'No Picnic'

By JANE SEE WHITE
 NEW YORK (AP) — To Carla LaMonte, de la Renta is "Oscar" and Bliss is "Bill." She has climbed to the top of one of the most slippery heaps in the world to earn $100 an hour as a fashion model.

But all is not soft swirling fabrics, gentle background music, wealth and fame. This long-limbed daughter of a Holyoke, Mass., factory worker is realistic: It could all end tomorrow, she says.

"At first I just wanted to make a living. Then I wanted to be one of the top 10 models. Then I wanted to be one of the top five. But once you're on top, what's next?"

"Down. So I can't turn down a job — I always think it might be the last."

She works virtually 365 days a year, often for as long as 16 hours a day. No matter what havoc it will wreak on her personal plans, Carla almost never turns down a job.

"If I find out I've been left out of a show, I call my agents and ask why. They say, 'because you're too busy,' and I say, 'but did they want me?'"

So most of the time Carla LaMonte runs from job to job, dashing for subway, flagging taxicabs. Her thick brunette hair askew, she clutches bulky tote bags filled with the paraphernalia of her trade: spare stockings and shoes, makeup and bobby pins, and an enormous, hour-by-hour appointment calendar.

Carla has been modeling for 10 years, but her age is a mystery. She won't tell because, she says, each designer has a different notion of who Carla LaMonte is: Bliss sees her as a sophisticated woman in her 30s; Clovis (Ruffin) thinks of her as 25-ish. Carla LaMonte intends to keep working for both.

The work is no picnic. One recent Monday, Carla rose at 6:30 a.m. to set her hair before embarking on a series of seven fashion shows scattered around the city that began at 8 a.m. and ended after 10 p.m. Sunday's schedule was much the same, and Tuesday's.

Carla changed clothes at least 40 times, sipped at least 40 zippers, changed hairstyles nearly as often in not many more minutes.

She whipped herself into elegant, glowing beauty in tiny overheated dressing rooms, where as many as 16 other models slipped and pined and brushed and, now and then, brushed one another with busy elbows in the frenzy of changing.

Of course, the money is fabulous.

"That's not true," Carla objects. "It sounds great, but I don't get paid until they send the money to my agent. I must lose $3,000 a year from designers who go out of business without paying me."

You can't get a secure grip at the top of modeling's slippery heap, Carla says. Turn down a Sunday show and the designer may not call you when he has a Wednesday show; dare to settle into a "look," and when fashions change, you no longer complement them. Get too heavy, or stay too thin — you've got trouble.

"And now, in the United States, blondes are in," Carla says. "Of course, if there's one brunette in a show, it's likely to be me."

"But that doesn't mean it'll always be that way."

Author Korda Lists Several Techniques To Help Women In Search Of Success

NEW YORK (WNS) — To the surprise of no one at all, a noted expert on success in life in the United States concludes that it's still far more difficult for a woman to succeed than for a man. He is Michael Korda, whose new book "Success!" seems destined to achieve as much acclaim as did his previous best-seller "Power!"

"Difficult as it is for anyone to succeed," he writes, "women carry the additional burden of a cultural and social tradition in which they were not supposed to compete against men, let alone win." He then proceeds, in a chapter titled "Women and Success," to list a number of success techniques that should prove helpful to the ambitious woman:

1. Develop a steely, uncompromising gaze. Men find it difficult to look a woman in the eye under the best of circumstances, and when a business situation is involved, particularly one that is competitive, it pays great dividends simply to outstare them. "You may also find it helps not to wear glasses, Korda adds, "for nothing should detract from the eyes themselves."

2. Tears are generally much underrated by feminists. If there is one thing men fear more than anything else, it is tears, and it is possible to combine the suggestion of tears with absolute and uncompromising firmness. It is necessary, though, not to weep or show any sign of weakness.

3. Keep your hands still. Avoid the usual hand signs that men use, like hands near the face to indicate thought or hesitation. Women should particularly avoid pointing their index finger at men, which is taken as a sign of aggression and likely to produce violent retaliation. The best thing a woman can do with her hands is to keep them folded neatly in her lap.

4. When sitting, avoid large, low chairs. They are difficult to get in and out of gracefully. Make for the most upright simple chair you can find. Your aim is to present a model of determination and it is easier to argue from an upright position than if you are slouched back on a low sofa.

5. Avoid any hint of a priggish, school-marmish tone in your voice. Men fear correction from women, and what might be a casual suggestion from another man will be taken as an unpleasant reproach when it comes from the opposite sex. Voice control is important — never be shrill.

6. Objects to avoid: glasses dangling from your neck on a chain; hats; high boots in the office; white gloves (they make you look like a temporary secretary from the 1940s); harlequin glasses; sequins on anything; blue jeans; turbans; T-shirts with comic or pornographic messages printed on them; heavy dangling ear rings.

7. Hire a male secretary. He will increase your prestige enormously.

8. Do not answer the telephone yourself. If there is no one around to answer it for you, let it ring. Do not allow yourself to be placed in a secretarial relationship. Remember that men have been used to service from women, both at home and in their working lives.

9. Do not become a "go-for." Men will look to even very successful women to perform such chores as ordering food for them at a meeting. Women should refuse, even impolitely, for while men can afford to take a step backward, women cannot.

10. Avoid note-taking at meetings. Such action again merely tends to reinforce the image of women as having subservient roles by nature.

11. Remove from your desk top such menial objects as staplers, tape dispenser, paper clips, and filing cards. These should be relics from a day when all women were regarded as secretaries or clerks.

12. Remember that nobody wants you to succeed except you. The odds are stacked against you. Therefore learn to challenge, for no one will stand up for you but yourself. When someone makes a mistake, point it out; when you are not satisfied, say so; when you have a point to make, make it. The way up consists of a long series of challenges and confrontations, and minor victories can lead to a major triumph.

Caution Urged When Considering Putting Home On Rental Market

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newsfeatures

Some homeowners fail to consider depreciation when they decide to offer their homes for rent. An owner must keep a good sum available for home repairs and emergency problems — big things like water pumps, boilers and water tanks. A hurricane also can do a lot of damage to roofs. But often it is little things that add up to a big cash outlay.

One family had been renting their former residence for a decade as they lived in another area of the country. When a vacancy coincided with their own vacation period, they decided to move back for a few months and refurbish the house.

It became an expensive fix-up, clean-up, paint-up, even though they did a lot of the work. Through the years they kept up with appliance problems, but they assumed that tenants were keeping the place maintained. In reality many inconveniences were being tolerated, and maintenance had fallen behind. Some tenants fear a rent increase if they ask for service or new equipment.

To begin with, there was a $5,500 paint job for the 5-bedroom house, indoors and outdoors. Because no tenant had put up the storm windows which had been in a closet through the years, the windows had taken "quite a beating" and a lot of puttying and trim work had to be done, an expensive, time-consuming job. "And why in the world wouldn't tenants use storm windows in these days of high-cost energy?" asked the owner. It may not have been laziness, it may well have been ignorance.

The kitchen needed a major scrubbing, especially the ceiling which was heavily coated with grease, and three coats of paint were needed to cover the dark green walls, even after several wash-downs. A bath wall needed a tile job because tiles had fallen off during the years and had not been replaced. Dogs may have had free reign in the house and several floors needed to be scraped and re-finished.

As this owner pointed out, "You can't do a half-way job if you own a house. You must either do repairs regularly and keep everything in condition or you must be prepared to spend larger sums when you get around to general deterioration." That family opts for a regular checkup when a lease is renewed.

Owners of resort houses may have such problems compounded. A variety of tenants throughout a season can make a home particularly vulnerable to disrepair and even abuse.

In one house at the end of a renting season, there was a non-working self-cleaning oven; a range that didn't bake unless you were clued to turn the handle slightly to the right; the dishwasher knob had fallen off and needed to be replaced; a plastic door shelf in the refrigerator looked as if it had been smashed with a mallet, and its freezer section had a back panel which didn't quite meet its side panel.

Some problems may have been due merely to faulty equipment, one tenant said. But some problems may well have been due to a succession of tenants who simply did not know how things worked or should be used.

Dow Jones Cuts Loss To .44

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, starting after Monday's decline. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 7.53 points Monday, slipped another 3 1/2 in early trading today. But by noon it had cut its loss to .44 at 837.92.

Gainers took a slight lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said the market seemed to be groping for direction after its sharp swings of late. Last week the Dow jumped 35.95 points in its sharpest rally of the year.

Diamond M was actively traded, up 1 at 37 1/2. On Monday, Western Co. of North America raised its offer for Diamond M stock from $36 to $37.50 a share.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .09 to 52.46. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .33 to 118.35.

Volume on the Big Board totalled 10.15 million shares by noon against 10.93 million at the same point Monday.

Carborundum was delayed in opening as Kennecott Copper proposed a $66-a-share offer for the company. Eaton Corp. had previously made a $47 offer which Carborundum opposed.

The devices allow television viewers to watch one program while recording another for future use. The machines also play tapes pre-recorded with movies and other programs.

But the competing products of Sony and Matsushita are incompatible — the tapes from one cannot be used on the other.

That means the winner would not only gain millions in initial sales, but in future sales of tape cartridges.

Sales of the units are expected to total 250,000 this year, 500,000 in 1978 and experience a 50 percent growth rate in 1979 and 1980, according to AudioVideo International magazine.

The recorders are priced from $1,000 to $1,300 plus accessories while tapes cost $15 to $20 each.

The Matsushita machines sold in the United States are marketed under the Panasonic, JVC and Quasar labels, although the Quasar version is slightly different than the others. Matsushita controls all three companies.

The videotape version also is sold here by RCA, Magnavox, Sylvania and Curtis Mathes.

Sony has its Betamax, which is sold under other names by Zenith, Sears, Sanyo and Toshiba.

YOU DON'T PUMP A LOT OF MONEY INTO A SUBARU.

46 Highway/31 City MPG

DL 3 DOOR SEDAN

Because our SEEC T engine doesn't need a catalytic converter, our cars run on regular gas. Not the more expensive unleaded.

Your actual mileage may vary because of the way you drive, driving conditions, the condition of your car and whatever optional equipment you might have. But with the mileage Subaru delivers on regular, it will be a long time before your water goes from full to empty.

SUBARU INEXPENSIVE AND BUILT TO STAY THAT WAY.

PASS INTERCEPTED — Dallas' Tony Hill drags down St. Louis' Jeff Severson in second quarter after a Cardinal interception. St. Louis went on to end Dallas reign as the only undefeated team in the NFL 24-17 thanks to a fourth-quarter spree. (AP Laserphoto)

Cowboys Taste Defeat

DALLAS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, back to their old cardiac finishes, unearthed 15-year veteran Jackie Smith for his first touchdown pass since 1975 Monday night to share heroics with Jim Hart to bury previously unbeaten Dallas 24-17 in high fourth-quarter drama.

"I think it's obvious we've turned our season around," said Hart, who rifled a 49-yard touchdown pass to Mel Gray and lobbed a three-yard scoring pass to the 37-year-old Smith with 3:10 to play for the game winner.

Dallas' record dropped to 8-1 and St. Louis put some suspense back in the National Conference Eastern Division race with its fifth consecutive victory for a 6-3 ledger.

"I never thought something like this would happen to me again," said Smith, who was catching only his third pass of the season. "It's great to be part of it."

Hart said "We usually throw that pass to the halfback and I think it surprised them."

Dallas, off to its best start in the 17-year history of the club, appeared to have the Cardinals well caged, building a 14-3 halftime lead on Tony Dorsett's one-yard touchdown run and a two-yard scoring pass from Roger Staubach to tight end Billy Joe DuPree.

All St. Louis had to show for the first half of the nationally televised match was Jim Bakken's 26-yard field goal. But Dallas muffed a chance to blow the game wide open when Randy Hughes intercepted a Hart pass at the St. Louis 17 only to see DuPree return the favor with a fumble on an end around. St. Louis' Wayne Morris scored on a one yard touchdown run after Benny Barnes was flagged on a 43-yard interference call and the Cardinals trailed only 14-10. Eifren Herrera's 21-yard field goal set the stage for Hart's fourth quarter heroics.

He found Gray wide open behind Aaron Kyle and Cliff Harris for the game-tying touchdown then burned the jittery Cowboy defense with the pass to Smith.

"We had the best feeling coming in here that we've ever had," said Hart. "The Cowboys were riding high and we had never won here so we turned the negative points into positive points for us."

Cowboy Coach Tom Landry agreed.

"We haven't played good for the last three or four weeks and a loss was inevitable," said Landry. "The Cardinals have made things interesting again in the division particularly with us going to Pittsburgh next week."

Landry sounded like there might be some changes in store for the sputtering Cowboy offense—like rookie Tony Dorsett moving into a starting position.

"We have to use Tony more because he is running good," said Landry.

St. Louis Coach Don Coryell, who had seen his team lose a 30-24 heartbreaker to Dallas on Oct. 9, was euphoric.

"I've never been as happy about a win like I was tonight," said Coryell. "This was a great victory. We wanted it bad."

St. Louis intercepted Staubach twice, and the Cowboy quarterback said "I can't blame my injured hip or thumb. I threw well in practice. We just missed some big third down plays and when we got up 14-3 I guess we really got too conservative."

The game was a rough and tumble affair with both Barnes of the Cowboys and St. Louis' Lee Nelson being ejected for fighting.

"I just lost my cool and I shouldn't

Raiders Climb To 16th

Avalanche-Journal News Services - Texas remains firmly planted at the top of the heap in United Press International and The Associated Press college football polls, with Alabama, Oklahoma and Ohio State refusing to budge from the other top spots.

Texas Tech did make some headway in the polls, moving from 18th to 16 on AP's list and, after a two week's absence from UPI's poll, jumped into a 16th place tie with North Carolina and UCLA.

Michigan traded places with Notre Dame for the No. 5 position in AP's nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters released Monday.

Texas, after an easy 44-14 win over Texas Christian, received 58 of 61 first-place votes and 1,214 of a possible 1,220 points. Alabama, which defeated Miami of Florida 36-0, received one first-place ballot and 983 points while Oklahoma also received one first-place vote and 962 points following a 52-14 rout of Colorado.

Ohio State, a 35-7 victor over Indiana, received 819 points.

Michigan, sixth a week ago, crushed Purdue 40-7 and polled 655 points while Notre Dame had to rally in the final period for a 21-17 triumph over Clemson and slipped from fifth to sixth with 639 points.

Sevent-ranked Kentucky took the remaining first-place ballot after downing Florida 14-7 and totaled 548 points. The Wildcats were seventh last week, too.

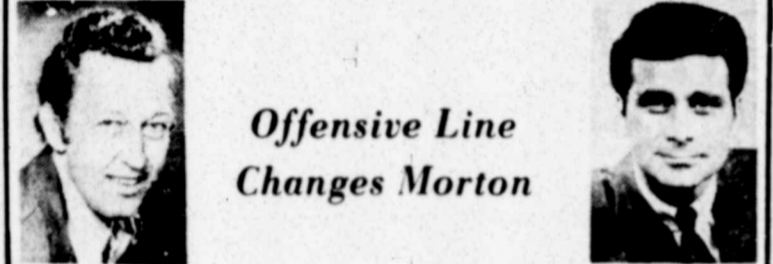

Arkansas got 529 points for beating Texas A&M 26-20. Penn State whipped Temple 44-7 and received 458 points and Pitt piled up 377 points for a 52-26 rout of Ar.y, rounding out the Top Ten.

Nebraska, Arizona State, Florida State, Texas A&M, Clemson, Texas Tech, Brigham Young, North Carolina, Washington and UCLA make up the Second Ten.

Last week, it was Texas A&M, Nebraska, BYU, Southern California, Clemson, Florida State, Arizona State, Texas Tech, North Carolina and Colgate. Southern Cal fell from grace with a 28-10 loss to Washington. The victory thrust

Offensive Line Changes Morton

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I didn't think they could use wiretap evidence in court. So how come the name of Lee Majors was made public when the feds tapped a bookie's phone in a Fort Worth gambling case? Supposedly Majors was overheard placing two bets for $1,000 each and talking about a date with a waitress. If this is true, can Majors be prosecuted for gambling? And why would a guy who is married to Farrah Fawcett want to bet on football games?

—N. A. Tibury, Tulsa

A. Under the Title 3 of the Omnibus Crime Bill, the use of a court-authorized wiretap in an interstate gambling investigation is admissible in court. This order must be limited to a specific period of time, approved by the Attorney General and signed by a U.S. District Court judge.

According to a federal agent, an individual who simply makes a bet, and is not a participant in a bookmaking operation, will not be charged. So whatever trouble the case may cause Majors, it won't be court.

Q. Craig Morton has done a great job at quarterback for Denver and has them among the top teams in the NFL. He was unhappy in Dallas and took his lumps with the Giants. Has Morton changed his game or is he a late bloomer like Sonny Jurgensen?

—Ralph Skall, Raleigh, N.C.

A. The biggest change for Morton is that he again has an offensive line in front of him. Don't forget, when he had one in Dallas he took the Cowboys to the Super Bowl. He has also switched his number from 14 to 7 and, off the field, has married for the second time, to a Dallas girl.

Q. Do you think Ted Turner is trying to turn himself into a new Charley Finley? Not only does he have the Braves on the bottom, we keep reading that he is trying to unload John Drew, his best shooter, from the Hawks, and cut down his payroll.

—Alfred Peverell, Atlanta

A. Turner isn't the innovator Finley is, but he is just as much of a nonconformist, and has youth and a more natural wit on his side. Explaining his philosophy on baseball, and basketball. Turner says: "It's a game. A big game. But only a game. Even collecting garbage is more important. What would you rather have, a yard filled with garbage or a ticket to a ball game?"

Before his recent appearance on the "Tomorrow Show," Turner learned that host Tom Snyder was paid close to half a million dollars annually by NBC. Whereupon Turner put down Snyder expertly: "You're just like a ball player. You're overpaid. What you do isn't hard. And you only work a few hours a day."

Q. What has happened to Clint Longley? With so many quarterbacks getting crippled this year, and so many teams looking for back-ups, how could they let him out of the league?

—Don Trotti, Pittsburgh

A. The one-time "Mad Bomber" is now with the Toronto Argonauts in Canada but may well be back in the NFL before the month is out. He ran not yet played enough games in the CFL to make him ineligible on this side of the border. Longley has been through waivers, can sign with any team that wants him.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK: Concerning your answer to "what schools have graduated starting backfields into the pros"... The 1953 Notre Dame backfield consisted of quarterback Ralph Gullelmi (Redskins), halfbacks Johnny Lattner (Steelers) and Joey Heap (Giants) and fullback Niel Worden (Eagles).—Jim Dwan, Houston.

Pont Quits Because Of Family

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — John Pont says losing 26 of his last 27 games didn't convince him to quit as head football coach at Northwestern, but losing time with his family did.

"It's been seven days a week, 8 1/2 to 9 months a year," Pont said in an interview Monday night. "I didn't start thinking about that until about four weeks ago."

"The losing did not convince me to resign," he added. "In fact, the losing affected me the opposite way, which is my nature. I sort of like adversity and I react in a positive sense."

"If anything, the fact that we were 0-6 four weeks ago and then 0-7 made me feel, look, forget this other stuff. You're going to make this thing go, stick around, you're going to turn it around."

He'll still have his chance, but not as coach. Pont, 50 and in his 22nd year as a head coach, announced Monday he will end his five-year coaching career here after Saturday's Big Ten finale with Illinois but will stay on as athletic director, a job he took in 1974.

An incident just before the season set him to thinking that he was spending too little time with his wife and three children.

"We had a friend of my son who was a junior in college visit. He was hitch-hiking back to the East Coast. He left early in the morning and I was down having a cup of coffee with him and he said, 'Mr. Pont, I hope you don't take offense but back in Lafayette when John starts talking about his parents we think it's a figment of his imagination.'"

"Sometimes when something is said in jest you can have an interpretation that strikes home."

He says he announced his decision Monday to give his successor more time for recruiting. He says he hopes a new coach will be selected within three weeks although he has no one in mind.

The announcement before the final game is not intended to fire up the winless Wildcats to win one for the coach, he says, since that can discourage players as well as inspire them.

"The reasons we've lost have not been because of coaching," he says, and the Wildcats "have played some fairly good football."

"I think a lot of people see the bottom line... but they don't see us play."

Being 0-10 this season after going 1-10 in 1976 "would be frustrating if we were dealing with guys who didn't care, didn't try and didn't respond because then you start doubting your coaching ability. But the players we have have done what we've asked them to do. I think it's more a disappointment than frustration," he says.

Pont came to Northwestern after eight years as head coach at Indiana. In 1968, he took the Hoosiers to the Rose Bowl, where they lost 14-3 to Southern California. He had coached two years at Yale and seven successful years at Miami of Ohio before that. His record at Northwestern is 11-43 with one game to go.

Pont said that after his announcement he told his players "as long as there's a game to be played there's a game to be won."

"And if they don't win, it's not going to be the end of the world. And if they do win for a group of young men who've worked like the devil this season, that would be satisfying."

Mallory Challenges Angry Buffalo Fans

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Bill Mallory, the beleaguered coach of the University of Colorado football team, has challenged angry CU supporters to buy up the remaining years on his contract.

Mallory issued the challenge during a stormy meeting of the Boulder Buff Club on Monday.

The hostile meeting, interrupted frequently by shouting, followed a 52-14 weekend drubbing administered to his club by Oklahoma in a nationally televised game.

"I'm here to run the show," Mallory snorted, apparently unprepared for the hostile reception from the CU boosters. "When you people aren't pleased with me, then buy up my contract or I'll leave and go somewhere else."

Colorado started the season fast, winning its first five games, including a 29-13 victory over Oklahoma State in the Big Eight Conference opener.

However, the Buffaloes have won only one game since then, while losing to Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma, and tying Kansas.

"Maybe you'd better listen to us occasionally," said one frustrated fan after comparing Mallory's record with that of Eddie Crowder, former Buffalo head coach and now CU athletic director.

NFL Players

OFFENSE — Walter Payton, running back, Chicago Bears, rushed for three touchdowns and gained 192 yards as the Bears edged the Kansas City Chiefs 28-27.

DEFENSE — Ralph Ortega, linebacker, Atlanta Falcons, returned a recovered fumble 14 yards for Atlanta's first touchdown in a 17-6 victory over the Detroit Lions.

Lefty Luongo Boxing's Unofficial Chronicler

BOSTON (AP) — You've never heard of Lefty Luongo, but if you ever throw a punch, or took one on the chin, he's probably heard of you.

Lefty, a grizzled 66-year-old who hangs out in the taverns of Boston's Italian North End, lives in a world about as wide as a boxing ring.

Charlie "Lefty" Luongo is the unofficial chronicler of a sport that often is said to be dying but is never buried.

"Don't believe what they say about boxing," declares Lefty in a booth at one of his favorite haunts. "There's some good boys still around, like in the old days."

"The only problem with boxing today is that everyone is out for himself," he adds, after making a half-hearted request for an unspecified payment for the interview.

Luongo, who says he fought in five different weight divisions during a boxing career that ended 30 years ago, deals in "gossip" of the sport. At least that's how his weekly column in the Post-Gazette newspaper, published in the North End, is headed.

He is a link between today's fighters and the old men in New England nursing homes who fought 40 or 50 years ago.

In case you've been wondering, Lefty says Tony "Manfra" Mandell, 73, "has been around with Harry Foley, Battling Hurley and Sammy Fuller."

"Remember Andy Callahan?" asks

Lefty. "He was a World War II hero. So was George Renda, an Italian boy, and Andy Callahan was Irish."

"I say prayers for those kids. I thank God for being alive myself. Don't forget the Man above does things, so pray."

Lefty keeps tabs on long-forgotten boxers and not just those with Italian surnames. He can speak a smattering of Yiddish from days long ago when Jewish fighters could be found in Boston's gyms. "When kids were hungry, when they stole fruit to feed their families."

Luongo's boxing column is a mixture of boxing lore, status reports on feeble fighters of the past and editorials on the sport.

"Where are the boxing commissioners of Rhode Island?" Lefty demands. "What are they doing for boxing? Get in touch with me, boys, as I would like to do something in regards to boxing."

"Remember this ex-boxers and sportsmen: There's an ex-boxer in Boston that's very ill and needs help. What do you say boys? He's made history. Don't wait until he does not need it. Do you understand me? Get in touch with this writer. The guy is really in a bad position."

Lefty's pleas for aid to ex-boxers often go unanswered. But his requests for boxing gossip circulate on a grapevine that winds throughout New England and beyond.

He gets hand-scribbled notes from ex-fighters and files the news either in his head or in the overstuffed paper bag he carts around under his arm.

Luongo has family roots in Rhode Island, and some of his most intriguing reports are datelined Providence.

"Ray Patriarca is good to ex-boxers," Lefty announces. "Don't believe what they say about him."

Sale Of Bosox Still Up In Air

BOSTON (AP) — Lawyers are bickering over who should own the Boston Red Sox and the debate is in extra innings.

The American League baseball team still is run by the estate of the late Thomas Yawkey, and rulers of that domain lost a court skirmish Monday in the franchise fight.

The estate, headed by Yawkey's widow, Mrs. Jean Yawkey, wants to sell the team for $15 million to a group headed by General Manager Haywood Sullivan and former team trainer Buddy LeRoux.

But an unsuccessful bidder, A-T-O Inc. of Willoughby, Ohio, owner of Rawlings Sporting Goods, offered $18.75 million and insists it should get the franchise.

Probate Judge Joseph P. Warner ruled here Monday that A-T-O's suit, filed two weeks ago, will be heard a week from today, despite the Yawkey estate's effort to settle the matter immediately.

The formal sale to the Sullivan-LeRoux group, which includes Mrs. Yawkey herself, and an AL ratification vote, already has been postponed once.

However, A-T-O lawyers hinted Monday they may appeal a court ruling that goes against them, potentially delaying the sale for months.

Atty. Edward Lev, representing the Yawkey estate, said Monday that the A-T-O suit "has the effect of a preliminary injunction."

"As a practical matter," he complained, "the estate cannot sell to those they feel are most qualified. The executors are losing interest on $15 million."

"There is uncertainty in the operation of the team," he said, "and the $300,000 per month operating expenses of the franchise must be paid by the estate."

However, Atty. Haskell Freedman, a former probate judge, and former Boston Mayor John Collins, both representing A-T-O, responded that the executors can sell the team.

"There is no emergency," Freedman said, citing published reports that before the A-T-O suit was filed, AL owners were opposed to the Sullivan-LeRoux group's financing.

The group's $15 million would be provided in part by the State Street Bank and Trust Co., which laid claim to the franchise itself as collateral and ordered annual ticket price hikes.

Sullivan has said he must renegotiate that proposed loan of $5 million to $6 million because its terms would put bankers in charge of the team payroll.

A-T-O argues the Yawkey estate was legally bound to accept the highest offer for the team. On Monday, Lev branded the company "an interloper" with no legal right to interfere.

Jal, Cards Battle For State

Jal and Eunice will battle for New Mexico's Class AA state championship in Eunice next Saturday.

Earlier in the year, Jal (6-4) defeated Eunice in Jal. Eunice will bring a 5-6 mark into the 3 p.m. CST finale.

Elsewhere on the New Mexico scene, Clovis, the No. 2-ranked AAAA team, will host Alamogordo at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the first round of the AAAA playoffs. Clovis is 9-2, Alamogordo 8-2.

Carlsbad, which finished second behind Clovis in the 4-AAAA race, will be at Albuquerque Sandia at 2:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Carlsbad is 8-2 and No. 1-ranked Sandia is 9-1.

A Class AAA quarter-final game sends Portales (6-4) to Raton at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Artesia, the 4-AAA winner, is at Tularosa that same night.

Savings for a rainy day makes good sense at Plains.

Everybody talks about the weather. And when it rains on the Southern High Plains that's really something to talk about.

Everybody talks about saving some money for the future. For the children's college expenses. For a special vacation. For emergencies. For security. But, like the weather, talking about savings doesn't cause anything to happen.

Plains National Bank can help you make something happen about your savings. With passbook savings accounts and certificates of deposit. Both pay the highest interest permitted by law. We'll even draft your checking account monthly to help you automatically set aside a portion of your earnings for that future need.

Next time you want to talk about the weather, talk to your rain maker. Next time you want to talk about savings, talk to Plains National Bank.
