Arabs' Fury Mounts Over Sadat Journey

JERUSALEM (AP) - Greeted by wild applause from Israelis, 60 Egyptian officials and security men arrived in Israel today to prepare the way for President Anwar Sadat's historic trip.

But in most of the Arab world opposition boiled up against the first-ever visit by an Arab leader to the Jewish state. In Washington, President Carter said he spoke with Sadat by phone and found the Egyptian leader "very excited, enthusiastic and confident. He hopes his visit will be successful in breaking down the animosities in the Middle East," Carter Carter told Sadat he will watch his speech in the Israeli parliament on television along with millions of people the world over. He told Sadat, "The eyes of the world are on you." Cairo Radio, reporting the telephone conversation, said Carter was "very impressed" with Sadat's move and congratulated the Egyptian for "taking the best road towards achieving peace" in the Middle East.

Hassan Kemal, Sadat's office director and leader of the advance party, emerged from the government plane at Ben-Gurion Airport. 30 miles west of Jerusalem, and said in Arabic: "We are very happy to be here, and especially at the welcome accorded our Egyptian plane.

"We left Egypt with a prayer in our heart and faith in Allah, and we shall have faith because our intentions are pure and we do want peace."

About 100 Israeli airport workers broke into applause ad several Israelis had to be restrained from rushing up the ramp to greet the visitors.

The motorcade route to Jerusalem, 30 miles away, was lined with Israelis, some with bold red headlines in Arabic and Hebrew reading "Welcome President Sad-

In Ismailia, Egypt, Sadat prayed for peace within 12 miles of Israeli front lines, "God go with you," the congregation chanted in a mosque on the bank of the Suez Canal.

The Israeli government announced that Sadat's itinerary will include a visit to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the traditional site of Christ's tomb, and a tour of Yad Vashem, the national monument to victims of the Nazi holocaust.

Sadat will visit the church Sunday after worshipping at the Al Asqa mosque, East Jerusalem's hallowed Moslem shrine a few hundred yards from the church. The Egyptian leader's guide at Yad Vashem will be Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

In Kuwait, the radical Arab newspaper Al Watan quoted Ismail Fahmy, who resigned Thursday as Sadat's foreign minister, saying that he quit because he failed

Charges Fly As Women Open Meet

HOUSTON (AP) - Forged from the spirit of 56 state meetings and further heated by conservatives' claims of underrepresentation, the National Womens' Conference is opening here to try to de-termine how to end sexual discrimination in the United States.

About 2,000 delegates have been elected or appointed to work on an agenda on women's problems for submission to President Carter and to Congress. They will be joined at the four-day meeting by as many as 18,000 observers.

The Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year is sponsoring the conference. The government supplied $5 million to pay for the conference and the separate state and territorial meetings where delegates were elected.

garding school segregation here

Johnson suggested Lamson may have 'built-in biases" that distort his interpretation of data - such as the $200-a-day salary he is drawing from the department, the plaintiff in the case.

Under questioning from Johnson, Lamson conceded some of his data may be inaccurate, and that there may have been many variables in the school district decisions he believes contributed to segrega-

Also, Lamson admitted he does not know the historical perspective of the school board in the construction of schools and drawing of attendance lines

"At this time, Nov. 18, 1977, you have no way of knowing all of the variables the school board faced in, say, 1950, do you?" Johnson asked.

Lamson answered that he does not.

Johnson went on to say that many of the things Lamson interpreted as intentional segregative actions by the district were unrelated to race — or, in some instances, were actually attempts to integrate schools here.

Lamson said he did not explore the school district's intentions at the time such decisions were made, but only the ultimate effects of those decisions.

In earlier testimony, Lamson charged that the placement of schools in predominantly white southwest areas was orderly, while the placement of schools in the city's northeast was largely haphazard.

However, Johnson brought out that the school district faced numerous obstructions in the northeast, such as railroad tracks and a canyon, that impeded the drawing of attendance zones.

Those obstructions, over which the school district had no control, may in part have been responsible for concentration of minorities in certain areas, Johnson said. But the placement of schools

The traffic safety push, which is expected to begin immediately, also will involve other citizens and businesses. Increased promotion of defensive driving courses and appeals to businesses to encourage driving safety among customers also is expected in the campaign.

Although this year's total number of traffic accidents is projected to be less than last year's, traffic fatalities already have far exceeded those in 1976.

This year's 35 fatal accidents have left 42 people dead, seven of whom have been killed since Nov. 2. In 1976, Lubbock recorded only 11 traffic fatalities.

Police Chief J.T. Alley told this morning's gathering of council, staff, Citizens Traffic Commission and Department of Public Safety representatives that he "can't explain the jump in fatalities."

Foreseen For More Farmers

SPOKANE (AP) - More farmers may be unable to get further credit extensions because of deepening financial trouble, says Donald Wilkinson, head of the Farm Credit Administration.

FCA, one of the biggest borrowers in the national money market, oversees the $40 billion Farm Credit System. The system nationally is not having trouble securing money for agricultural lending, but more farmers may be turned down on requests for credit, Wilkinson said Thursday.

He said Farm Credit System policy is to "stick with the agricultural borrowers" as long as they can repay their debts, but not to extend credit to the point a borrower could be led into bankruptcy.

Wilkinson offered no estimate of how many requests for credit might be refused. Some farmers may have to use subsidized emergency programs such as Farmers Home Administration, Wilkin-

He also said cost of credit will increase during the next few months, with the extent of increase determined by decisions of the chairman of the Federal Reserve

Wilkinson said no policy upheaval is expected if a new board chairman is appointed when the term of long-time chairman Arthur Burns expires Jan. 31. Although the cost of money probably will rise next year, the FCA "does not see an agricultural credit crunch." Wilkinson told the annual directors conference of the Federal Land Bank Association.

fruits and nuts but less meat would satisfy a Senate committee's concern that Americans damage their health by eating too many rich foods, says the Agriculture

Earlier this year, the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs said many people eat too much meat, use too much sugar and salt and consume too many foods rich in cholesterol, leading to obesity, heart disease and other health problems.

On Thursday, the department's Agri-cultural Research Service presented several suggested menus as examples of how the panel's goals could be met.

Under one sample menu, a man 20 to 54 years old might start the day with two cups of cereal and two tablespoons of sugar, one cup of skim milk, margarine, three slices of toast, one-half cup of juice and coffee or tea.

Lunch might consist of macaroni salad, a vegetable, three slices of bread, margarine and one-half cup of milk.

At dinner he could have five ounces of lean meat, poultry or fish; one-half cup of potato; half a cup of vegetable or sal-ad; three slices of bread; margarine; cake, and coffee or tea.

One way of meeting the committee's goals, the department said, would require that people consume: -21 percent more dry legumes and

-25 percent more vegetables and fruit;

-25 percent less meat, poultry and fish, with none of the drippings or visible fat consumed:

—24 percent fewer eggs; -59 percent less sugar, syrup, jams,

-About the same reduction in visible fats and oils, with soft margarine and oil replacing butter, lard and vegetable

-10 percent more milk, all as skim

-69 percent more grain products. The suggested menus are bound to raise the hackles of livestock and poultry producers. Livestock groups, particularly the National Cattlemen's Association, and other agriculture-related organizations have criticized the committee's conclusions about the effects on health of what Amer-

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Warm Welcome In Order to salute two of the nation's top citizens and public servants.

LUBBOCK TONIGHT has an opportunity

The bonored speaker for the annual Lub-bock Chamber of Commerce banquet will be former President Gerald R. Ford.

Sharing the spotlight and platform with him will be his longtime friend, fellow Congressman and public servant, West Texas' own U.S. Rep. George H. Mahon.

ALTHOUGH THEY have known one another throughout their many long years of service in the nation's capital, this marks the first occasion for them to appear together here. It is most fitting that they do so.

Lubbock and South Plains citizens have great admiration for men of integrity, men of hard work, men who put God, family and country first.

In Gerald R. Ford and George Mahon, we couldn't have two more shining examples of these attributes.

THROUGHOUT THE tenure of both men in the nation's capital their service has been marked with devotion to the basic ideals which first marked the nation's birth, its to our city.

As a result, each man was repeatedly returned to the job of serving this need and to seeking to influence others for the betterment of the whole nation.

FORMER PRES. FORD, like Cong. Mahon, is held in high esteem in this area.

While he was losing a whisker-thin decision to Jimmy Carter in last Fall's elections, Lubbock and the South Plains were going in the other direction and voting to return him to the highest office in the land.

Mr. Ford has stepped into the breach at a most critical time in the nation's history and calmly, forthrightly and with determination guided the Ship of State through stormy wa-

John D. Lofton:

Terrorism: What It Is And Isn't

WASHINGTON-Once in a while but not very often, in the endless stream of review copies that cross a columnist's desk, there appears an important book that relates directly to a momentous story currently in the news.

Such a book is "Terrorism" (Litte, Brown), written by Walter Laqueur, chairman of the In-ternational Research Council of the Center for Strategic and International Studies here and director of the Institute of Contemporary History and Weiner Library in London.

In an attempt to disentangle the truth from ome of the myths about terrorism that have developed during the past decade, Laqueur prov-ides us with some valuable essential facts:

(1) CONTRARY TO widespread belief, terrorneither new nor is it an entirely unprece-phenomenon, although it is frequently rgued that in past ages it was sporadic and had eur notes that the 19th Century Russian Social Revolutionaries were as well-organized as porary terrorists, even if their weapons were less advanced, and their ideological and pol-itical sophistication was, if anything, higher. He

"There is little in contemporary terrorist literature, other than more recent technological guid-ance, what cannot be found in the Russian brochures of the last century...' (2) Terrorism, it is asserted, is a "politically loaded term" which should be scrapped since one nation's terrorism is another country's national liberation. True, says Laqueuer, but this isn't

Pointing out that terrorism in the last century was directed against despotic regimes, whereas today it is directed almost exclusively against permissive democratic societies and ineffective authoritarian regimes, he says of terrorism:

"HAVING BEEN THE ultima ratio of the oppressed, it has all too ofter become the prima ratio of a motley crowd of people of varying motivation. The nationalist terrorism of a bygone age aimed at liberation from foreign rule. In our time, more often than not, terrorism is simply one form of nationalist or religious strife."

(3) While it is believed by many that terrorism is "left-wing" or "revolutionary", this is not al-ways true. A past generation of terrorists gravi-tated towards Fascism.

"The real inspiration underlying terrorism," says Laqueur, "is usually a free-floating activism that can with equal ease turn right of left. Terrorism in any case is not a philosophical school-it is always action that counts."

(4) IT IS FREQUENTLY said by the apologists for terrorism that activity will cease only if grievances are removed, poverty is eradicated, injustice is eliminated, and the political process opened up.

"However democratic a society," Laqueur observes, "however near to perfection the social institutions, there will always be disaffected and al-lenated people claiming that the present state of affairs is intolerale and there will be aggressive people more interested in violence than in liberty

(5) Terror is highly effective, it is frequently asserted. Not true, says Laqueur, who documents in detail that what it usually achieves is "counterviolence and greater repression" by those in pow-rorism can be defeated. "The real problem is the price that has to be paid by liberal societies valuing their democratic traditions

A House Divided

EVEN AS THE left arm of the federal bureaucracy attempts to hold back Lubbock's outward expansion, its right arm is tugging in the opposite

The Department of Housing and Urban Development counts the proximity of neighborhood schools as a positive factor in the housing loans it underwrites.

This is contrary to the goal of the U.S. Department of Justice. It has had the Lubbock Independent School District in court this week in an attempt to block construction of neighborhood schools in new subdivisions.

Meanwhile, in another corner of the Justice Department labyrinth, an attempt is being made to kill the development of new subdivisions themselves by denying the city permission to annex

MAYBE THIS IS to be expected when the central planners take it upon themselves to substitute their great wisdom and judgment for that of Different bureaucrats in different agencies set different goals and set their bootheels down on different sides of our necks.

In HUD, for example, the goal is to encourage home ownership by insuring mortgage bankers against losses on loans they make to home buy-Like the mortgage lenders themselves, HUD-

FHA makes an appraisal in an effort to fit the loan to the property value and thus avoid future defaults and losses.

And, like the lenders, HUD naturally takes into account neighborhood factors which affect the market value of the property in question.

Paul Scott:

USING THOSE standards, HUD's loan policies favor new subdivisions over older neighborhoods in the central section of the city.

Justice Department lawyers, however, are insisting that inner city schools left partially vacant by this outward migration—promoted by HUD—reflect some dark plot hatched up by Lubbock school trustees and administrators to thwart desegregation mandates.

Thus, while HUD would consider new schools a plus factor in a new neighborhood, Justice is tell-ing federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward that such schools would be a negative factor contrary to the social goals of the nation.

MAYOR ROY BASS has even accused HUD of "red-lining" older neighborhoods and refusing to insure loans for home improvements in them. A local HUD official categorically denies that "Every property that we get an application on is looked at on its own merits," says Gene Whit-ney, deputy director of the HUD office here. "We do not have a red line.'

("Redlining" is a term for drawing an imagi-nary line around a neighborhood and saying, in effect, that loans within it would be too risky.)

However, Whitney points out that HUD does "always look at them (loan applications) on an economic basis, with no discrimination...(and) neighborhood factors are taken into considera-

"I'M DISTRESSED to learn, from the real estate community, that the local FHA office is very reluctant to insure loans in South Overton because it is a 'rental area'," Bass wrote the local office a few days ago.

South Overton, the area between Broadway and 19th Street east of the Texas Tech campus, is an area in which home owners have organized to promote redevelopment and stability.

Homes, apartment houses and rental units are mixed in the area.

"If my information is correct," Bass wrote, "as a practical matter, our efforts (to upgrade) South Overton will be fruitless...unless families can get reasonable mortgage loan arrangements."

WHITNEY SAYS individual loans have been and will be made in South Overton if the house is structurally sound and has "no particular hazard" to its value. However, he says one question HUD considers is if property values in the neighborhood are likely to hold up: Will people want to live there because of its stability? Thus, HUD hasn't been bending over backwards to encourage people to buy older homes in the inner city and rehabilitate them instead of moving into new neighborhoods. "Yes," Whitney says in answer to my question, "we would take the proximity of schools into consideration" in deciding on an application in any neighborhood, new or old. Absence of a school "would be a negative factor," he adds. While it would not be the determining factor in whether to insure a loan, it would have an effect on the amount because the market value would be affected.

"We go strictly by market," Whitney says. The Justice Department, apparently, never heard of such a thing.

One Solution To Energy Puzzle

The really big story, offering both immediate and future hope, is an order by Interior Sec. Cecil Andrus to Texaco, Inc., to increase its natural gas production in the Tiger Shoal Field in the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Louisiana.

Based on studies by the U.S. Geological Survey and the National Academy of Sciences, Andrus concluded that "gas should be developed and produced at a substantially greater rate, particularly from some of the producible but undeveloped gas reservoirs.'

IT IS IN the exploiting of these huge untapped natural gas reserves where most of the solution to this country's energy needs lies during the rest of this century. The energy supplies are almost beyond belief in these deep water regions. According to the latest study of these experts, Texaco could increase the present field's gas flow, which averaged 445 million cubic feet a day last year, by 129 million cubic feet a day just by adopting higher production rates.

This production action would mean a vast increase of natural gas this winter for states in the Midwest and Northeast, which were so hard hit during last winter's gas shortages. Because of the pipeline network leading from the Gulf, the additional natural gas can be made immediately available to those states THE LONG-RANGE pay off for the nation will come from Andrus' directive calling for the increasing of the number of wells and the tapping of the "geopressurized geothernal zones" in the

In issuing his new order, Andrus gave Texaco until Dec. 1 to file a plan showing how it can "significantly increase production." In addition to putting in more development wells, the directive suggested drilling an exploratory well that would do down at least 16,000 feet to where the vast "geopressurized geothernal zones" are locat-

The potential energy involved in this depth is in the form of methane, the simplest natural hydro-carbon and the chief constituent of the natural gas we burn in our homes and factories.

The estimate furnished by the U.S. Geological Survey is that there is a minimum of 300 years' reserve of natural gas in the Gulf region and there could be as much as 1,000 years.

The higher natural gas reserve estimate is based on the findings of Prof. Paul H. Jones, Louisiana State University. He has concluded that the energy contained in the entire Gulf region may actually be 105,000 "quads" or more than the total of all energy contained in the huge coal deposits in the U.S. A "quad" is an energy unit equal to one quad-rillion BTU's or roughly the amount of energy found in a trillion cubic feet of natural gas, 170 million barrels of oil, or 50 million tons of coal. In 1975, the U.S. consumed an estimated 70 quads" of energy.

The voluminous study of ways to increase gas production in Texaco's Tiger Shoal field is the first of six studies Andrus has authorized to cover the Gulf of Mexico region.

The significance of the studies and Andrus' directive is that they are the first clear indication that the Carter administration plans to use its present authority to insure increased production

The studies also raise questions about the Carter administration's main estimate of available energy supplies-the CIA's estimate titled "The International Energy Situation: Outlook to 1985,' on which the President's energy program is on tracts leased to oil and gas producers by the federal government.

The CIA estimate never took into consideration the vast supply of natural gas in the "deep water" reserves in the Gulf. The studies and their findings will now force the Carter administration to review its assumption that the U.S. will run out of natural gas before the end of the century.

And as Andrus's directive would indicate, the time has come to develop the nation's great untapped wealth off the Gulf Coast and in other regions along our country's long coastlines.

A 'Break' For Spouse Who Stays At Home

AS OF 1977, the "spousal" Individual Retirenent Account has been added to the 1975 breakthrough law creating IRAs. As you know, IRAs allow taxpayers not covered by qualified corporate pension plans to contrib-ute up to the lesser of $1,500 or 15 per cent of their earned income to an IRA and take a current deduction for the contribution.

The new '77 change allows you, that taxpayer, to make a larger contribution for a spouse who doesn't work outside the home

Your year-end tax strategy: Make a bigger contribution, and nail down a bigger 1977 deduction.

SPECIFICALLY, IF you're eligible to deduct IRA contributions, you can contribute to a spous-al IRA the lesser of 15 per cent of your earned income or $1,750-$250 more than to a regular

You are entitled to the same tax breaks you get with a regular IRA. In addition to a current deduction for your contributions, your spousal account grows 100 per cent tax-free.

New tax sections always create new tax questions. Here are Prentice-Hall's answers to the most important queries:

Q. I ALREADY have an IRA. Do I have to set up a new spousal IRA or can I just increase my contributions to my existing IRA?

A. You don't have to but it's wise to set up a separate IRA for your spouse. The reason is that while the law allows a regular IRA to be converted into a spousal IRA with two sub accounts, the IRS isn't expected to issue guidelines before the end of 1977.

Q. My spouse works part-time and makes just a few dollars a year, the only work she does outside the home. Does that mean I can't set up an IRA for her?

A. That's exactly what it means, for if he or she makes one cent of earned income, you cannot set up a spousal IRA. (However, there's no restriction on investment income.)

But you may be in line for an even bigger writeoff. Assuming your spouse doesn't become a member of a company retirement plan, he or she can contribute up to 15 per cent of his or her earned income or $1,500, whichever is less, to a regular IRA.

So if you both contribute to regular IRAs, you could deduct up to $3,000 on a joint return.

Q. SUPPOSE I SET up an IRA in my spouse's behalf this year and she gets a job next year.

What happens to the spousal IRA? A. No problem. You and your spouse can convert your spousal IRAs into regular IRAs. The tax law says the same IRA can be a spousa

IRA one year and regular IRA the next. You and your spouse just fill out Form 5329 and let the Teasury know you're making the switch. Q. What happens to my spouse's IRA if she gets a job with a company that has a retirement plan and she joins the plan?

A. Your spouse's IRA becomes, in effect, a frozen trust. The account balance will be held in abeyance for later distribution according to the account's terms.

ANOTHER NEW IRA tax break for '77: You can deduct on your '77 return contributions you make to your IRA (spousal or regular) as late as Feb. 14, 1978.

And if you haven't yet set up an IRA, you can both create it and make contributions to it as late as Feb. 14, 1978, while taking your deductions on this year's return. In previous years, you had to set up and con-

Suzy Skates Manages To Stay Busy

By JOHN LEIGHTY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Suzy Skates says her business is rolling right along. Miss Skates, who rarely takes a tumble these days, passes out leaflets, makes deliveries, greets people and earries personal messages - all on rollerskates.

Wearing her favorite color, hot pink, the miniskirted 6-foot skater stands out as she whizzes along the city sidewalks, making her rounds for fun and profit.

"It's hard work skating five hours straight," said Suzy, whose fees have risen from $2 to $10 an hour since February. "It's hard physical work. But I enjoy talking to people.

Suzy said she was broke when she got to San Francisco and agreed to take the job of delivering flyers for a yogurt store if she could do it on skates. The store agreed and she was off and rolling.

Since her skating debut she has been hired for many activities, from carrying love letters to delivering a job resume to a downtown company.

Auto Sales Show Rise This Month

ers have reported a 14.4 percent rise in retail deliveries for the first 10 days of November-a performance one analyst called "solid."

They delivered 252,148 new autos, compared with 220,400 in the same period last year, when Ford Motor Co. was recovering from a nationwide strike.

One analyst said the "real" increase, taking into account last year's strike, was about 10 percent.

The daily sales rate was 28,016, fourth best for the early November period. The record of 32,117 was set in 1971.

Ford reported a 38 percent increase to 72.925: General Motors Corp., the No. 1 automaker, was up 10 percent to 143,927; Chrysler Corp. was down less than 1 percent to 29,926, and American Motors Corp. dropped 14 percent to 5,370.
"It was a solid selling period. Not spectacular, but healthy," said the analyst. Both GM and Ford said they were pleased with the public reception of their 1978 model cars.

"The 1978 model year has started on a healthy note," said Bennett E. Bidwell, a Ford vice president. "There has been reasonable growth, about in line with our forecasts. We expect to see year-overyear sales gains for the balance of the calendar year and into the first quarter of

AMC said it delivered 7 percent more cars to retail customers this selling period than last, but total sales dropped because of its "greatly reduced" rental car fleet this fall. The automaker's share of the market was 2.1 percent, up from 2 percent for the year to date, but down from 2.8 percent for the same period last

Chrysler's share of the market fell from 13.7 percent for the period last year to 11.9 percent. Its market share was also short of the 13.7 percent for the year to

Ford boosted its share of the market to 28.9 percent compared with 24 percent during last year's strike-plagued period and 27.8 percent for the year to date.

GM had 57.1 percent of the cars sold, down from 59.5 percent in the same peri-od last year, but higher than the year-to-date figure of 56.5 percent. For the calendar year, GM sales of 4,-500,521 are 10 percent ahead of last year. Ford is up 15 percent with 2,218,491; Chrysler is down 5 percent at 1,092,048 and AMC is down 24 percent at 162,189.

Competition Stiff For Exporters REAL ESTATE MATH COURSE

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although

Australia accounts for only a small part of the total world grain production, its small population and limited livestock feeding frees a large amount of the grains grown annually for world export.

In 1976, Australia accounted for only 2.9 percent of the total world grain production, but it was the world's fourth largest exporter of grain - ranking behind the United States, Canada and Australian grain is a key competitor with U.S. exports in many foreign markets so it is important for U.S. producers, traders and policymakers to know the amount of grain Australia would be likely to export at given prices.

A recent study by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service reviewed the Australian feed grain demand situation and concluded small increases in world wheat prices could significantly increased competition between the United States and Australia in world wheat export markets.

The study, by Lynn Austin, found Australian wheat exports to be the most responsive to changing world market

During the past 10 years, Australia's total grain exports have ranged from 6 to 12 million metric tons a year, with wheat exports accounting for from 4 to 10 million metric tons. But Australia's grain export volume is influenced primarily by the amount of grain produced and consumed domestically, and most of the variation comes in the livestock feeding sector.

The study said a small increase in world wheat prices would result in a significant drop in the amount of wheat used for livestock feeding in Australia,

Man Helps Promote Ecology

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) - Clothed in old moccasins, leggings and an elk-skin coat, Cascade Jack roams Washington state warning people about littering and polluting the countryside.

"I tell them if they don't pack their litter out, they'd better not cross trails with Cascade Jack," says the man tapped by the Washington state Department of Ecology to carry its anti-litter message

Cascade Jack, alias John Eckerson, travels to schools, clubs, fairs and shopping centers around the state, talking down rubbish.

"If you don't clean up trails behind you, ain't nobody gonna do it for you," he says. "It's been disgusting to me to see a year's supply of garbage, bottles, cans and junk everywhere I've gone, from the hills of western Washington to the sage of eastern Washington.

Eckerson, who tells kids he's 177 years old (he is actually in his 40s), says he was raised in the swamps of Mississippi and Louisiana and has worked as a circus ciown, a nightclub performer, a televi sion actor, commercial photographer and policeman before he took his tepee into the hills as a drifter several years ago.

"This is probably the best job I've ever had," he says, "because I'm doing some thing worthwhile and getting paid for it. I've spent years prowling the woods, and it's been kinda disgusting to walk into a place and pack out more garbage than I brought in.

"He's an authority symbol," says Mike Aarhaus, assistant program director of the Model Air Control Act, which pays for the Cascade Jack program through taxes on industries which manufacture potential litter items.

'I'd seen John at black powder shooting matches for three years," says Aarhaus, "an authentic mountain man walking around winning matches and attracting great crowds of people.

We needed a central theme for our anti-litter program, and knew he was it," Aarhaus said. "He carries the spirit of the old pioneer who knew that he needed to protect the land that provided for

The study said that if there was a $10 a ton increase in the world wheat prices and if substitute grains dropped in price by about $5 a ton, the use of wheat for livestock feeding would drop by half a million tons. The extra 500,000 tons of wheat most likely would go into export

"The extraordinary responsiveness of wheat as feed to prices and the livestock inventory indicates that a very volatile situation exists vis-a-vis exports." the report said.

Small changes in the pricing and livestock feed situation "could have significant effects on the quantity of wheat for sale in the world, with obvious consequences for world prices."

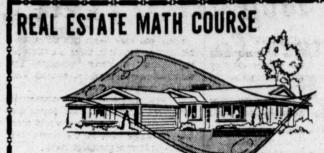

Barley and sorghum, other key Australian crops, are also highly volatile, the report said, although to a lesser degree than wheat. It was estimated that changes in the world prices of barley could easily result in a 25 percent change in the quantity of barley offered for export by Australia

The study said the amount of another major Australian crop, oats, used for livestock feed is not likely to change due to world prices. Corn production in Australia is fairly limited, and exports are mini-stantially by Australian wheat, especially in the large Japanese and Mideast markets, if world wheat prices take a sharp turn upward.

Over the last three years, Australia has exported about 1 million metric tons of wheat a year to Japan compared with U.S. exports of 3 million metric tons a year. Australian wheat exports to Egypt over the past three years have been nearly identical to U.S. wheat exports roughly 1 million metric tons annually

Rising Mortgage Rates Cloud Housing Picture

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — At the housing conventions this week they're watching and talking about the little cloud on the horizon

Nobody in housing can ever take his or her eye off that cloud for long, even though sunshine is bathing their industry in some of the best years of its lite. That little cloud, they say, can soak you.

The savings and loan people, meeting in San Francisco, heard a report that this was their "greatest year ever." In Miami Beach, realtors have been talking about the best year ever in sales of existing single-family homes. But that cloud, they say.

Are they hypochondriacs? Perhaps, but you have to listen anyway, because that cloud probably concerns you too, and anyone else who is likely to be disheartened or pleased by rising home mortgage rates.

"There has been some talk of disintermediation," said John Hardin, president of the United States League of Savings Associations, made up of the nation's primary home mortgage lenders.

Disintermediation! It's like saying the small cloud has become a hurricane and a small leak has been discovered amidships and that water is seeping into the engine room, but that we'll just have the orchestra play louder and maybe it will plug itself.

Disintermediation leaves housing helpless. It is when interest rates become so attractive in bonds and certificates of deposit and government securities that people withdraw their money from thrift institutions.

Thrifts — savings banks and savings and loan associations — can't make mortgage loans without savings.

It hasn't happened yet, and some of the best informed analysts of interest rates and savings say it won't happen either. The seepage won't become a flood, they say, no matter how often in the past it has happened.

In fact, it happens regularly whenever we're at the tail end of an economic expansion, and nobody in Washington or elsewhere has tried to do much about it. In a downturn, housing is the first to get hit.

The problem is that savings and loans aren't in a strong position to compete for funds when interest rates are rising generally. The explanation is simple: they are limited by law to the rates they can pay.

Solon Seeking Ban Against Ivory Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Anthony Beilenson, D-Calif., wants the United States to ban imports of ivory, and wildlife experts say such an effort is needed to stem the slaughter of African elephants.

Beilenson has prepared an Elephant Protection Act to "eliminate the role of the United States in creating the world demand for elephant products, including, but not limited to ivory."

but not limited to ivory."

The act would give the secretary of interior the power to impose a fine of up to $10,000 per violation.

Wildlife experts say demand for and the high price of ivory — which increased from less than $3 a pound in 1969 to about $30 a pound currently — has led to wide-spread poaching of elephants in Africa.

"Elephants as a species are over 300,000 years old, but a continuation of the present level of killing could destroy the last remaining herds in five to 10 years," said Marian Newman of the Fund for Animals

The United States is one of the largest importers of ivory, Interior Department officials said, with millions of dollars worth brought into the nation each year.

Ivory imports from Asian elephants now are banned, but African ivory can enter U.S. ports if it is accompanied by a permit from the country of origin.

William Brown of the U.S. Endangered Species Scientific Authority said African nations which are poor or do not belong to the international endangered species convention readily hand out ivory export permits accepted by the United States.

Brown said both his office and the Interior Department are looking into a possible ivory ban.

Some conservation groups, however, though concerned about the declining African elephant population, are trying to encourage poor nations to manage their elephant populations scientifically in hopes of making the elephant a renewable resource.

They said a U.S. ban on ivory would stifle that effort.

While you may deem this unreasonable, and perhaps it is, there is a strain of logic behind it. Thrift institutions are meant to channel funds into housing. It is their primary investment.

If they competed with commercial banks and other institutions, paying the going rate for money, they would then have to charge more for the money they sell in the form of more range loans.

And that, in a nation dedicated to home ownership — 67 per cent of families own their own homes — high mortgage rates are considered sinful. In theory, that is; in practice, rates are often considered too

The defect in this setup is all too apparent. If thrifts can't compete for funds they can't hope to get them, and if they can't get them they can't make mortgage

In the name of consultation, LBJ used to invite 50 governors or 100 congressmen to the East Room to adopt a resolution rubber stamping his Vietnam War poli-

Every president comes to power pledging an "open administration." But the Pentagon Papers and much that has been written since concerning both the Johnson and Richard Nixon years reveal how much was kept from the public and how much distorted information the government conveyed

When Jimmy Carter came to power, he promised to keep the lines of communication open and to bring the public in on the dialogue when major policies were being developed. In the case of the Panama Canal treaties, the level of public debate before a ratification vote in the Senate has been unusual.

While Carter undoubtedly would have preferred a quick vote after the treaty signings, he was assured by Senate leaders that it would mean a quick defeat. And so, the White House has embarked on an educational "selling campaign" and in the public dialogue, Carter was forced to go back to Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos for further commitments that the United States would be able to

Oil Permits Off Coast Criticized

NEW YORK (AP) - Local environmentalists do not think the federal Environmental Protection Agency is being careful enough when it considers oil drilling off the New York and New Jersey

The federal agency has already granted tentative permits to 10 oil companies, allowing them to drill for oil in an area known as Baltimore Canyon. The site is between 75 miles and 135 miles south of Long Island and between 50 miles and 75 miles off New Jersey.

An EPA official said that the agency's final decision about the offshore drilling would be made within the next two weeks and announced about a week later.

There was no indication that the EPA board considering the case heard anything to convince it that its decision to grant permits on a tentative basis was incorrect.

In September, EPA said its "environmental review does not indicate that significant environmental impacts will result" from oil drilling there.

But environmentalists insist the agency must have its eyes closed. At a public hearing Monday, Sarah Chasis, an attorney with the Natural Resources Defense Council, charged that there are "several deficiencies" in the proposed permits.

She said that EPA has not established maximum daily discharge limits for oil. grease or mercury, nor for chromium and lead which she described as "very toxic. and added that the agency has set up "inadequate" monitoring system.

In short, claimed the attorney, the EPA's impact statement does not "adequately consider the potential impacts ... on aquatic life."

Also speaking at the hearing, the second of its kind, were representatives of the Marine Environmental Council of Long Island and the state Attorney General's office. Both groups - like other environmental groups which have protested the tentative permits in written statements - also oppose the permits.

In February, U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein ordered all plans for oil drilling off the coastline be stopped. However, his decision was overturned on Aug. 25 by the U.S. Court of Appeals. EPA's impact statement finding that the drilling would not seriously damage the environment followed just two weeks lat-

All of which prompted one environmentalist to wonder aloud, "We'd like to know how in the world EPA can make a decision when there are so many questions to be answered.

The debate probably will continue until a Senate vote early next year, but the administration appears to be gaining converts in the process, and the people are becoming more aware of the facts on which to base their own judgments.

In the case of strategic arms limitation negotiations with the Soviets, Carter began by laying out his far-reaching proposals to the public, much to the annoyance of the Russians and the consternation of veteran diplomats. The reaction was so strong that Carter retreated into quieter talks with the Soviets.

President Of Hotel Association Critical Of Lunch Proposal

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — President Carter's plan to curb the "three martini" luncheon by halving these business expense account tax deductions is a prize example of the government defeating its nuclear ould be on how ance of American Hotel & Motel Association.

'The unions say the Carter plan would imperil 500,000 jobs at the very time when federal agencies are subsidizing the training of additional cooks and other hotel and restaurant workers," said Howard B. Holtzman. "These are the very oc-cupations that would be hit hardest by Carter's plan.

He said many hotels and motels depend on expense account trade for up to 60 percent of their business. This is particularly true of the better class restaurants.

Victor Rosselini, president of the Na-tional Restaurant Association, told a recent meeting in New York that the President in his attack on the expense account luncheon "has painted an emotional picture of three martini lunches paid for by tax dollars, of government revenue lost to personal pleasure ... that has no rela-

Rosselini said establishments with a combined annual sales volume of $13 billion would be seriously threatened by the

He doubted the move would raise even the $100 million the Treasury has estimated might be realized in added taxes since, he said, companies would be more apt to shift their expense dollars into other forms of promotion activity.

The Carter plan has been widely criticized ever since it first hit the headlines. Sales & Marketing Management magazine conducted a survey on Carter's original proposal to limit to $50 the deduction for expense account luncheons for two.

The magazine found $50 inadequate in New York and some other big cities but "wildly excessive" in many towns. It con-cluded that a $100 limit would be more realistic because so much business is transacted over lunch in the big cities.

Peterson, Howell & Heather, a Baltimore travel service bureau that does a corporate business of $40 million a year, provides to the companies it serves a reporting system to track the expenses of traveling personnel. It keeps regular annual records on the average cost of expense account meals of some 9,000 salesmen in 50 industries.

The firm said the overall national aver-

Hot-footing it out to the boonies from the clattering pavements of London, the suddenly rusticated poet saluted autumn as "the season of mists and vellow fruitfulness" sound asleep "on a half reap'd furrow" and all that drowsy stuff.

About the same time another city slicker, Percy Bysshe Shelley, the weekend bird watcher who first identified the bird that never wert, was set loose among the fallen leaves and fashioned "A dirge" for autumn, all about the old year "on her deathbed, in a shroud of leaves.

Then there was John Greenleaf Whittier, despite a middle name a mite out of season, listening to "the still small voice of autumn hush" and seeing in "yon maple wood the burning bush.

The bards of yesteryear had a lot going for them, inspiration-wise, in those peaceful, decibel-free autumns of yore when November's song was dirge and not a raucous hard rock festival.

They were lucky enough to beat it off this globe long before the ear-splitting, mind-blowing torments of the chain saw, the leaf blower, the power mower and the monstrous vacuum mulcher from down in the village that sucks up and chews up everything in sight.

Robert Browning, another pavement pounder tranquilized by the tranquility of the countryside, could natter on about autumn winning you best with "its mute appeal to sympathy for its decay," but he never heard the sound truck at election time or lived in a house by the side of the road where the school bus stops and starts three times a day without a muffler to quell its tumult or the kiddies.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Army said this week it is adopting a British-developed smoke grenade system to protect U.S. tanks in battle.

The Army said it has bought for $2.9 million an initial supply of 1,100 systems, made up of smoke grenades and launchers mounted on the sides of tank turrets.

The British system, now being mounted on U.S. M60 tanks in Europe, reacts faster than U.S.-made smoke protection devices, the Army said, adding that "fast reaction time is critical for tank survivability" in combat.

Carter Endorses Toothless Employment Measure

By WALTER R. MEARS WASHINGTON (AP) - So President Carter has endorsed the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1977.

He also endorsed the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976, and that was a lot stronger economic medicine than the version he favors now.

At this rate, with another endorsement or two from Carter, the measure might vanish altogether. In Washington shorthand, it's called the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, after Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., who first proposed it to mandate government measures to put the unemployed back to

They wanted to set by law a limit on unemployment in the United States, and to reach that goal if necessary with jobs financed by the government as the employer of last resort.

What they've got now looks like a bill of last resort since, as a Carter lieutenant noted, the new draft doesn't compel anybody to do anything except set economic goals - which would themselves be subject to change.

Any new programs, and any new spending to cut unemployment, would be subject to separate action by Congress and approval by the president.

In successive versions of the bill, the target unemployment rates have become progressively less ambitious and less binding, as have the provisions for government measures to reach the goal.

The original measure, which candidate Carter opposed as inflationary, set a ceiling of 3 percent unemployment within four years of enactment.

With labor, liberals and black groups committed to the bill, and with his rivals for the nomination supporting it, Carter held out for months.

He said he was no less committed than the other Democrats to curbing unemployment, but that the bill as it stood would have meant double-digit inflation. Carter never was very enthusiastic about the Humphrey-Hawkins formula, but the bill became a symbol and endorsement a campaign necessity. Besides, the measure had been modified so as to set an unemployment target of something over 4 percent

So he endorsed it during the presidential primary campaign, and again in his recommendations for the Democratic platform of 1976.

According to the campaign promises catalog assembled by his staff, Carter went to the White House "believing the Study Raps OMBE Aid For Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) - A program of government-paid services has provided only marginal benefits for most small businesses studied by the General Accounting Office, the congressional investigative agency said this week.

The GAO reported to Congress that only 25 of 169 prospective business owners received enough assistance to start new businesses, while about 37 percent of the minority businesses assisted under the program had failed or could not be locat-

The report was based on a sampling of 344 minority businesses and prospective businesses involved in a program of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, or OMBE, to contract with private firms for advice and technical assistance to minority enterprises.

The program cost an estimated $156 million from 1972 through 1975.

'Generally, OMBE's contractors did not provide the amount and frequency of management assistance needed by minority clients," the report noted.

The contractors generally were not familiar with their clients' in-depth needs. had no plans for providing assistance and did not keep track of clients after initial assistance was provided," it said. "The contractors argued that they generally did not have the time or resources to give clients a comprehensive assistance program because OMBE emphasized serving a large number of clients.

The OMBE said there were only a few qualified contractors when the program started, but that the number has grown, the report continued. "However," it added, "most of these firms receive all their money from OMBE, and they likely would go out of business immediately if OMBE stopped funding them.

The report said OMBE did not adequately evaluate the effect of the program or adequately monitor contractors, so reports on the progress of the program were deficient.

The program should be redirected, it said, "to encourage contractors to provide a comprehensive assistance program to only as many clients as contractors can assist over a long-term period."

Dog Meat Operation Smashed In Kowloon

HONG KONG (UPI) - Police Wednesday broke into an apartment in Kowloon and smashed what they said was one of the colony's largest dog meat distribution provide funds for public employment of those who private business cannot and will not hire," and "supporting the Full Employment Act of 1976.

All of this raises the question of how Carter came to be in a position to negotiate a still milder version of the bill and to announce with considerable fanfare that he was endorsing his handiwork. The answer is simple. He got himself

That put him in a pretty good negotiating position. "We attempted to negotiate sentence by sentence and paragraph by paragraph specific language the president could endorse," a Carter aide said.

What came out was a bill establishing a 1983 goal of unemployment not exceeding 4 percent with, as Carter noted, "flex-quires," and without compulsory measures to attain it.

The jobless rate now is 7 percent.

The bill would establish a federal commitment to full employment - which sounds just as good as it did when Congress first made that declaration in a law passed 30 years ago.

It would at the same time commit the government to combat inflation.

It also requires that the administration and Congress set specific goals for unemployment, productivity and other economic targets each year. That's the kind of work their economic advisers are paid

For all of that, the bill's sponsors and

18-Year-Old

Prison Term

An 18-year-old Lubbock youth convicted last month of aggravated robbery has been assessed a five-year peniteniary sentence by District Judge Thomas L.

The term was meted out to Donald Wayne Reed of 3421 E. Colgate St.
The defense had requested probation after Reed was found guilty by a jury in Clinton's 99th District Court, and the judge had ordered a pre-sentencing re-port before deciding on punishment. Reed was convicted of robbing a wom-an as she sat inside her car parked near a supermarket at East Fourth Street and Guava Avenue. The victim, Mrs. Donna Howle, testified she was with her three small children inside the car when she was robbed April 28.

17-Year-Old

A 17-year-old Estacado High School senior has been acquitted by a jury here of charges of burglary of a vehicle. It took the jury in 99th District Court only 28 minutes to determine Mike Luke of 2619 Parkway Drive was innocent of charges he had stolen a tape deck from a car parked on a supermarket lot Dec. 9,

The trial was presided over by District Judge George Miller of Floydada, serving as a special impact court judge. ?

Luke had been charged with stealing the tape deck from a vehicle belonging to Milton Morgan, an employee of the supermarket at 4th Street and Guava Avenue.

Defense attorney John O'Shea present ed testimony from several witnesses, in-cluding the defendant, who said he was at home watching television when the burglary allegedly was committed.

Longshoremen's Strike Believed Nearing End

NEW YORK (AP) - Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, head of the 50,000-member International Longshoremen's Association, said he hoped today would bring an end to the seven-week strike against container ships along the East and Gulf

Such a wind-up also was eagerly awaited by thousands of businessmen who had Christmas merchandise stranded in transit when dock workers refused to unload the goods. Prolonging the strike further could mean financial hardship, even ruin, for many. The strike also has added billions of dollars more to the nation's record trade deficit. On Thursday, 29 ships bound for American ports were reported stranded abroad while 49 ships lay idle in American coast-Gleason would not go into details when he commented late Thursday, but prom-

Shipment of goods in van-sized metal boxes, which are unloaded by cranes, reduces the manual labor needed from dock workers. Other goods are sealed in pre-loaded barges that are hoisted aboard special "mother" ships. The innovations are costly, but signed to save money by eliminating manual labor. Gleason agreed to go along with automation on the promise that his members would be protected until retirement. This income protection guarantee has drastically cut the potential savings of containerization and the shippers have been resisting. New Orleans negotiators tried Thursday to overcome the objections of three steamship companies to some of the added costs of a newly devised job security program. Gleason hinted that failure to reach agreements there would not necessarily block speedy ratification of new three-year contracts elsewhere. Ratification would be followed by a return to work Saturday at time-and-a-half rates in affected ports.

Gleason has insisted that guaranteed annual income programs, assuring longshoremen of as much as 100 percent of

Anita Bryant Suit Dismissed By Judge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - A federal judge has dismissed a $5 million lawsuit accusing Anita Bryant of conducting a hate campaign against homosexuals. The suit had been filed by the parents

Gleason had set up the settlement schedule last Sunday as tentative agreement was announced here on a master contract for the ports of Boston, Providence, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Hampton Roads, Va. Gleason had called for extension of the master agreement to ports from Wilmington, N.C., to Tampa, Fla., accomplished late Thursday at talks in Miami Beach, and along the Gulf Coast to Brownsville. Today's deadline also applied to local supplements.

While the schedule appeared impossible to meet, the same was true of the last Sunday goal for the North Atlantic master agreement.

Gleason led the ILA negotiations in New Orleans for two days before flying back to his headquaters here Wednesday night to tend to other pressing matters.

about the Holy Spirit, for I do. Without Him no evangelism would be possible. Also, I am deeply aware of the ministry of the Holy Spirit in my own life and work. Time after time I see how completely dependent we are upon Him. The Holy Spirit dwells in all believers in Christ. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (I Corinthians 3:16). He also goes before us and prepares the hearts of people to hear the Gospel, just as He did the Ethiopian official in Acts 8:26-40. I never stand before an audience, large or small, without being conscious of my own inadequacy and dependence on the Holy Spirit.

We are seeing a renewal of interest in the ministry of the Holy Spirit all over the world today. God has given us a won-derful gift by giving us the Holy Spirit, and every believer should search the Scriptures to see more of God's teaching concerning the Spirit,

The administration has placed a major emphasis on getting a bill this year. President Carter has said the reputation of his first year's domestic program hinges on what Congress does with energy.

Johnston acknowledged the possibility that Congress may not finish work on energy until next year. "There's no particu-lar magic in Dec. 31 versus Jan. 1, although we still hope to finish this year,'

Some of the biggest differences be-tween the two chambers — including natural gas price regulation and energy taxes - have yet to be dealt with.

The conference panel that has been meeting for five weeks on non-tax aspects of the energy bill made some headway Thursday in resolving an impasse

The conferees approved Thursday a measure encouraging but not requiring states to consider conservation factors in setting electric rates. It was a compromise between the House bill, containing President Carter's proposals for mandatory federal ratemaking standards, and the Senate bill, which left rate-making entirely to the Carter wanted to require electric utilities to charge lower rates for power used during off-peak times and higher rates when demand was heavy. He also wanted to end rate discounts for big industrial Under the compromise, state regulatory agencies would still have to consider these standards but would not be required to adopt them. However, they would have to explain a failure to do so to the federal government Consumer groups and the Energy Department would have the right to participate in state rate-making proceedings under the compromise and could appeal resulting decisions in state courts. Some electric rate issues still must be resolved, including whether special "lifeline" electric rates should be given to the elderly, reducing their electric bills by as much as 40 percent. That provision was approved earlier by the Senate but not the House.

There is a chance that the tax differences between the two houses may not be resolved until conferees finish work on natural gas — which some congressional leaders say could take most of De-The conference committee must recon-

"There may be some important bargaining involved between natural gas and the tax measures. That's why the tax conference is going slow until it sees what is happening on natural gas," said a congressional aide

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the non-tax conference committee, agreed, saying, "that's where the tradeoffs will be, between natural gas and the taxes. But I can tell you one thing, the House is not going to go along with gas deregulation.

State Insurance Hike Postponed Over Trip

AUSTIN (AP) - Delays by the State Insurance Board should keep rates for both auto and home insurance from rising until at least early 1978, chairman Hugh Yantis indicated today.

Yantis said that while the board had taken no formal vote, he doubted either subject - both holdovers from this year would come up for final action in 1977. In effect, Texans are getting a bargain since they will continue paying last year's rates until the board makes its move.

The board voted early this year to raise its decision because insurance companies sought and obtained a rehearing. Reductions for other classes of insurance meant a $25 million cut in premiums.

No final action was taken because a legal question arose - could the board allow a lower figure in its rating formula for gross premiums taxes than the 3.85 per cent maximum tax rate?

It was viewed as a question to be submitted to the attorney general for an opinion, but no opinion has been request-

Since the next annual building insurance hearing is only about three months away, Yantis said he doubted the board would request the opinion. He indicated that in the future, the board would use a formula allowing 3.85 per cent of premiums for the tax, even though not all firms pay that much. Yantis said there was no pressure from the insurance industry to act now.

As for auto insurance, Yantis said the board still awaits data from insurance companies on their Texas experience for the first two quarters of 1977.

In fact, the placement of schools even before the U.S. Supreme Court struck down school segregation in 1954, attempted to encourage a racial mix in several areas, such as the Posey Elementary School zone, Johnson said.

Lamson charged Thursday that during decades of growth and migrating populations the Lubbock Independent School District made "no attempt to mix students of different ethnic groups" despite the U.S. Supreme Court's mandate to desegregate schools.

In fact, Lamson said in recounting the district's past half-century of development, school officials here resorted to a variety of techniques - including closing schools and manipulating attendance zones — to keep races separate.

When the Supreme Court handed down the historic Brown decision in 1954 outlawing school segregation, Lubbock had two high schools - Lubbock High, for all of the city's white students, and Dunbar, for all blacks.

With the Supreme Court ruling, the school system for the first time drew attendance zones for those two schools. But the attendance zone for Dunbar was confined solely to an all-black residential area, with the rest of the city assigned to Lubbock High, thus keeping segregation intact, Lamson said.

"In 1955, immediately following (the Brown decision), no effort was made to distribute or mix black and white populations within the City of Lubbock, said. Lamson said that on the basis of the Brown case, the Dunbar zone should have been expanded to bring white students to that campus.

When Monterey High School was opened in the mid 1950s. Lamson said, its boundary lines were designed to further segregate minorities - this time, Mexican-Americans. Monterey's attendance zone. Lamson said, was cut to leave all of the city's Mexican-American students at Lubbock High."I believe the placement of the Monterey school and the drawing of its boundary... was the beginning of a continual process of making Lubbock High School a racially identifiable high school" for Mexican-Americans, he said.

Each school opening is an opportunity to desegregate the school system," Lam-son said. But whenever Lubbock built a new school, he added, it nearly always was located in a one-race area

As minorities filtered into previously all-white schools, the district historically would reach farther out, build a new school there, and reassign white stu-dents, Lamson said.

World comment on Sadat's visit ranged from "daring" and "positive" to "unforgivable." Many newspapers and political leaders agreed the trip would have dramatic impact.

'You can't imagine how happy the Egyptian people are," one of the Egyptians told a reporter.

Meanwhile, Israeli radio's Arabic language service said it was devoting its programming to Egyptian music in honor of Sadat's coming visit and broadcast the hit tunes "You Are Dearer Than My Eve" and "Visit Me Once A Year."

Sadat will fly Saturday night to Ben-Gurion, where he will be greeted by Begin. President Ephraim Katzir and a military band playing the Egyptian national anthem. Sadat is to speak Sunday in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. Begin then will address the body. The two leaders may meet privately, as well.

The Egyptian president on Thursday formally accepted Begin's invitation to visit Israel. U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Hermann Eilts gave Sadat the invitation at his residence in Ismailia. Sadat's acceptance capped a chain of events that began Nov. 9 when he told the Egyptian parliament that he would go anywhere, including the Knesset, to further the cause of Middle East peace. Begin quickly issued a series of statements inviting Sadat to come and finally a formal invitation, transmitted through U.S. ambassadors in Jerusalem and Cairo because Israel and Egypt do not have diplomatic relations

Both the Israelis and the arriving Egyptian security authorities face numero problems, the worst being Sadat's plan to pray Sunday at the mosque, where Jordan's King Abdullah was killed in 1951 by a Palestinian extremist because he ac cepted Israel's right to exist.

Sadat had not been expected before Nov. 24, and preparations for the visit became almost frenzied. Thousands of policemen were mustered at short notice and a major soccer match was canceled because the field is too close to Jerusalem's King David Hotel. It is the hotel where Sadat will stay and which, ironically, was blown up in 1946 by Begin in his days as leader of the underground Irgun

Sadat, who has said he will not sign a separate peace with Israel, is expected to repeat to the Knesset the standard Arab positions of insistence on a Palestinia homeland and Israeli withdrawal from lands occupied in 1967 — demands Israel

Patterns/Needlework Aggressiveness Theory Disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Anthropologist Richard Leakey disputes the oft-pro-posed idea that humans are born with an innate drive to kill each other.

On the contrary, Leakey and Dr. Roger Lewin, a biochemist and science editor of the British journal New Scientist, contend that the evidence suggests that we are more cooperative than aggressive.

Leakey and Lewin, writing in their justpublished book "Origins", said there is no doubt that aggression and territorial struggles are part of modern life, but they argue this behavior is the product of our environment, not our genes.
"Anyone who argues for inbuilt aggression in Homo sapiens must see aggres-sion as a universal instinct in the animal kingdom." they wrote. "It is no such

But Leakey, son of famed anthropologist Louis Leakey and director of the National Museums of Kenya, and his coauthor do not claim that humans are naturally good natured toward one another. "It is culture that largely weaves the patterns in human societies.' Looking at lower animals to explain the behavior of humans, Leakey and Lewin note that territorial claims are widespread among different species. But not all animals are territorial.

'That territoriality is flexible should not be surprising," they said. "It is, after all, a biological adaption to environmental conditions so that the species may survive through sufficient access to food supplies and by unhampered reproduc-

"If food resources and space are scarce, then almost certainly there will be conspicuous territorial behavior. It is likewise inevitable that some individuals will fail to secure sufficient food or a place in which to rear a brood. These individuals are, of course, the weakest, and this is what survival of the fittest through natural selection really means. "Territorial behavior is therefore trigpered when it is required and remains dormant when it is not," they wrote.

'We can say therefore that territoriality and aggression are not universal instincts as such. Rather they are pieces of behavior that are tuned to particular life styles and to changes in the availability of important resources in the environ-

As far as war is concerned, Leakey and Lewin contend that wars are planned and organized by leaders intent on increasing their power over people and resources, and that it takes cooperation among people to wage war.

"Powerful leaders have found more and more to fight about and increasingly effective ways of achieving their ends.

"We should not look to our genes for the seeds of war; those seeds were planted when, 10,000 years ago, our ancestors for the first time planted crops and began to be farmers. The transition from the nomadic hunting way of life to the sedentary one of farmers and industrialists made war possible and potentially profit-

Biofeedback No Cure-All, Director Of Mental Health Center Says

By JAMES J. DOYLE
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Biofeedback

has grown very popular over the past few years for a variety of medical problems, but the director of a major mental health center says it has its limitations.

Dr. Geoffrey Newstadt, a psychiatrist at Thalians Community Health Center at Cedars-Sinai Hospital, said the use of biofeedback treatment by untrained persons claiming cure-alls for virtually everything has caused great harm to investigation into the field.

Biofeedback is a technique to provide a person with visual or auditory evidence of changes taking place inside the body changes which the person otherwise would not notice. For example, Newstadt uses a type of electric thermometer to measure skin temperature with headsets that indicate to the patients, through a certain level of sound, whether the skin temperature is rising or falling.

Through hearing a signal indicating the rise or fall of skin temperature, he said,

Biofeedback has become particularly popular to treat pain. But Newstadt said doctors who have used biofeedback in an attempt to relieve pain have reported anywhere from none to moderate suc-

Cairns said in his studies, biofeedback doesn't seem to help relieve lower back pain, but appears to have more value in treating some types of headaches, such as migraine, and in helping patients generally learn to relax.

He said some types of blood pressure, such as essential hypertension — high blood pressure brought on by anxiety and pressure — can be helped by biofeed-back. But the type of blood pressure that causes serious physical damage cannot be helped enough by the method.

Dr. Murray Grossan, an ear, nose and throat specialists, says he uses biofeedback with great success as a matter of routine. He says it is particularly helpful in treating ear pain which results from grinding teeth and some forms of muscle tension "We place sensors on the muscles used for biting down and we convert the muscle output into an electrical energy which the patient can see and hear on a meter.

Public Hearing Slated Feb. 8 On PNG Rates

By PAULA TILKER

Avalanche-Journal Staff On the advice of the city's rate analyst, the Lubbock City Council initiated Thursday an industrial rate case for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. (PNG)

With Dirk West abstaining because of a conflict of interet, the council unanimously voted to set a Feb. 8 public hearing at which PNG will have to propose and justify industrial rates Analyst Ervin Looney told the council a rate case is the best way to "insure that industrial natural gas rates are fair and reasonable.

Council members also amended and then approved a committee recommendation on how to spend $4.5 million in fourth-year Community Development

A daycare center renovation and an architectural and land use study of the Overton South neighborhood were added to the program recommended by the Community Development Advisory Committee (CDAC). The program now needs the approval of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

After the council set the rate case date. Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan praised it as the first step "in doing something about utility rates across the board" and suggested that electric rates will be consi-

However, he said, contracts between other industries and PNG may have to expire before new rates could be applied.

The city has been negotiating a renewed contract with the gas company since January, 1976. The company wants to add a clause giving its board of directors the option of raising the gas price. The city opposes that clause and contends that the gas price already is too

Davis Says Burden Lifted By Verdict

Davis, the richest man ever to stand trial in Texas for capital murder, turned his attention today to his business empire and a holiday skiing trip to Aspen, Colo.,

after being acquitted Thursday.
"I can't explain how it feels, it feels good," said the jubilant Fort Worth tycoon at a victory party attended by his high-priced defense team. State District Judge George Dowlen and a member of the jury that found him innocent.

Davis, 44, an industrialist whose empire is estimated at more than $150 million, was found innocent Thursday of killing his young stepdaughter during an August 1976 shooting spree in which two were killed and two others wounded at his $6 million mansion.

The nine-man, three-woman jury, some of whom had been sequestered for more than four months, deliberated four hours and seven minutes before returning the

At least two jurors later were reluctant to flatly state they believed Davis was innocent of the killing.

'I have in my mind that he possibly could have done it," said juror Jim Watkins. "But there were other things in my mind that said somebody else could

'Cullen, I love you," sobbed Davis' girlfriend Karen Master as she embraced him seconds after Dowlen read the verdiet: "Not guilty said the dark-haired Davis. "I can't think of anything except it's a relief of a tremendous burden.

"I guess there always will be people who think I did it. I know I didn't do it," said Davis, who still faces other charges

Davis, freed on bond Thursday after more than 14 months in jail, said he was the victim of a conspiracy to frame him, adding that he "probably" knows the identity of the gunman. "I would not supply anybody the name of the killer," he said. "Let them (the prosecutors) find out who it is."

Killed were Davis' stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30, the lover of Davis' estranged wife Priscilla.

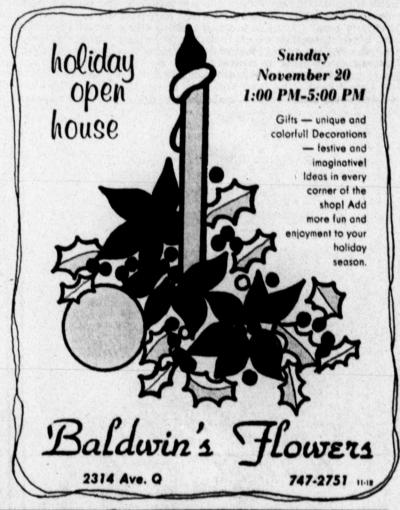

Mrs. Davis and a chance visitor to the mansion. Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, were wounded. Gavrel's girlfriend, Beverly Bass, 19, escaped unharmed.

There were no witnesses to the shooting of the young girl, but the state linked bullets used to kill Farr to those that caused Andrea's death and coupled that circumstantial evidence with the testimony of Mrs. Davis, Gavrel and Miss Bass who said it was Davis who shot at them

If he had been convicted, Davis could have been sentenced to death.

Reached at the sprawling mansion, where she has lived since the divorce proceedings began three years ago, Mrs. Davis went into stunned silence after being told of the verdict. Dear Wondering: Sexual compatibility means mutual sexual satisfaction and fulfillment. Ideally, it is achieved by open and honest communication about what each party likes (and does not like) in sexual relations.

It sounds easy to achieve, but because so many people have grown up with hang-ups and inhibitions about sex, it's not all that simple. Sexual compatibitlity begins with total honesty and the ability to articulate one's feelings and desires.

Avon lady?" When the fish surfaced and blew a couple of bubbles, I said, "If you're going to talk dirty, I'll call Estelle.

The phone rang twice and Estelle said, "Thanks for calling. "So what's happening?"

I asked. "At the tone will you please leave your name and phone number and I'll return your call.'

"This is a crisis center." I said angrily. "Your crisis is ready." I dialed the number of another friend.

I got on a bus and went into town. "Hello there," I said to the bus driver. He pointed to the sign that said, "No talking permitted to the bus driver."

When I arrived at the department store. I took an elevator where a recording told me to please stand clear of the door and face the front. I said, "thank you" and a man moved nervously to the other side of the car.

It was the same all day. If it wasn't a recording telling me what to do it was a person saying something mechanical. It was late when I got home so I climbed into the car and drove through a drive-in where you hang out the window and yell your order into a clown's mouth.

I drove up and waited for Jack to speak to me. Nothing happened. I opened my car door and kicked him, figuring he had a short in his mouth. Nothing. Finally, I threw my arms around his throat and yelled, "You little creep. You think you're better than me...!"

That night my husband dialed the doctor, he got a recording from the medical answering service that said my doctor was not on call, but if we wished to leave our name and number his associate would call us.

I fixed him. I put Lester on the line.

The bidding: South West North East 1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Ten of .

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Against opponents who are unlikely to make a mistake, declarer can occasionally find an unusual line to land a seemingly doomed contract.

North-South's range for their no trump opening bids was 15-17 points, so South's hand just qualified. North raised to game in the hope that his long suit would be a source of tricks.

West's lead of the ten of spades did declarer's cause no harm. South was Ken Meyer of Harrisburg, Pa., and it seems that his natural play after winning the jack of spades was a low club to one of dumniy's honors. That would have ended in the contract's defeat. After East won the ace of clubs West would still have had two club stoppers, and all be would have to do to assure shutting out dummy's clubs would be to duck the second round of the suit.

But Meyer surprised everyone by leading a low club and following low from dummy! Now the contract was unbeatable. East won the ace and continued with a spade. Declarer won the king and played another club, continuing the suit until the king was driven out. The ace of spades was still in dummy as an entry to the good clubs

What induced declarer to make such a spectacular play at trick two? He simply gave the opponents credit for being able to make the right play!

GOREN ON BRIDGE If the clubs were split 3-2, the defenders could always shut out the suit by ducking the first club and winning the second. With only one entry to dummy, declarer would then have no way to force out the remaining high club and get back to the table to cash his winners.

> So South's only chance of bringing in the clubs was to hope that the suit was divided 4-1, and that the singleton was an honor. Thoughtful play was well re-

Waxjack Melted Sealing Wax

Antiques were not always used the way we, with our 20th century viewpoint, might imagine. For many years, books have been written about taper winders, or waxjacks. These small silver pieces held a coil of flexible wax that could be lit like a candle. The suggestion was that the candle was meant for long usage and little light. Some believed it was used as a night light.

The waxjack had a tiny flame so that very little extra grease would spill from Most waxjacks date from 1780 to 1820. After that time they lost popularity.

Q. When was the warming pan first suitable to melt sealing wax, because it dripped its own wax when tilted to melt • The metal pan, filled with hot coals, was held by a long wooden handle. The warm pan was rubbed between the cold bed linens to warm the bed before it was used for the night

> Early homes had poor insulation. There are stories that in medieval England winds in a room could snuff a candle at 20 feet. The warming pan was known in England by the 16th century. They were made with iron or steel handles and solid brass lids with pierced holes. The servant who warmed a bed with one of these needed big biceps and a potholder. The heavy bed warmers were replaced with wooden-handled brass or copper pans by the 18th century. The pierced holes finally were omitted and embers were kept in the pan instead of live coals. The coals made smoke, which caused stains on the bed sheets. The top of the early pans lapped over the edge; later pans had a neatly fitted top.

Machine-stamped warmers were made by the end of the 18th century. They weighed much less, and careless servants could tip a pan and cause a fire.

By the 19th century, the bed warmer became a hot water pan. They often were shaped like bottles.

Copies of bed warmers have been made since the late 19th century. Look for signs of use, cracks at the hinges, wear or burn marks on the handle. Be sure the pan is of heavy enough metal to have safely carried burning coals.

patchwork. With a little sewing knowhow, you'll be able to turn printed remnants and scraps into eye-catching ornaments that are an instant success. And there isn't a much easier way for spreading a little Yuletide cheer!

For a candy cane finishing to 5 inches, you can use 71/2 inch strips of fabric cut into different widths. Sew these lengths of fabric together to form a square measuring approximately 7½ inches square. Make a quarter inch seam allowance, and press all the seams to one side. Fold your square in half, diagonally, with the right sides facing each other. On a piece of cardboard you can design a candy cane pattern that is roughly 1 to 11/4" wide and 6" long. Place the long edge of the candy cane pattern on the fold of your fabric, and trace the pattern in pencil as a guideline for cutting out your cane from the cloth. Sew the unfolded sides of your candy cane together, with a 1/2" seam allownce, and skip a 2" space under the crook of the cane for turning. Turn your candy cane inside out and stuff with polyester.

Model Trains Get Computers

By ARNOLD DIBBLE

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - The model train industry, a $50 million-a-year business for big kids, is highballing into the computer age.

"It just in the gestation period right now," said 64-year-old Claude Newman, dean of model railroaders in the Upper Midwest. "There are a number of railroad model hobbyists in the computer business who have computerized their own

But you can look for it to be in general use in five years. It'll be expensive, you can bet on that, but then some people don't think model railroaders have very good sense about

"With computers, model railroaders can feed in tape that will enable them to run seven or eight trains on the same system without colliding. Man, that will be something, won't

Newman was interviewed on the eve of the Model Railroad Industry Association Show, which is held once a year in a different city and will ride the rails to Baltimore next year. About 25,000 model railroad enthusiasts are expected for the show at the Minneapolis Auditorium this weekend.

Model Railroader, one of the national magazines devoted to the hobby, estimates there are 190,000 model railroaders in the United States. The magazine surveys the market every five years, and its last one in 1974 put model expenditures at

Boston Museum Of Fine Arts Has World's Largest Polaroid

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts has a camera unlike any other in the world. It is the world's largest instant Polaroid carnera, a room-size light-tight box which is 12 feet high by 12 feet wide and 16 feet deep. It is large enough to enable technicians to work inside the camera to operate its machinery instead of from the outside. One minute after an exposure is made, it produces the world's largest instant color print measuring 40 inches wide by 80 inches long.

Combat Racism Theme Of New U.N. Stamp

By SYD KRONISH Associated Press Writer

"Combat Racism" is the theme of the latest commemorative stamp issued by the United Nations. This theme is in line with the U.N.'s General Assembly proclamation marking 1973-1983 as the "Decade for Action to Combat Racism and Discrimination.

The 13-cent black and yellow stamp and the 25-cent black and red stamp (issued from the New York headquarters) show the words "Combat Racism" written on a blackboard. Another set of two stamps issued from the U.N.'s Geneva headquarters shows the colors of five different races being spun together as a firm rope. The designer of the New York stamp was B.K. Wiese of West Germany and the designer of the Geneva adhesive was M.A. Munnwar of Pakistan.

Also released by the U.N. Postal Administration, to coincide with the Combat Racism stamp, was the 12th in a series of its souvenir cards. The new card reproduces the four new stamps as well as four other stamps issued in the past to honor the theme of eliminating racial disunique camera together?

The idea evolved with Edwin Land, founder of Polaroid, and his love of fine art. He felt the spiritual beauty of art could be effectively combined with scientific technical achievement in photography to produce greater public appreciation and enjoyment.

To implement the idea, a cooperative venture between the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and Polaroid Corp. began in 1975 when the room-sized camera was experiments started. The first result of that partnership is now at the Boston mueum, an exhibition entitled "A Medieval Tapestry in Sharp Focus," on view through Nov. 27.

What the public sees is a side-by-side display of "The Martyrdom of St. Paul," a 15th-century tapestry, and an identicalsize color print of its back side with its original unfaded hues and its visible weaving techniques and repairs. The tapestry art masterpiece measures 6 feet 9 inches wide by 9 feet 5 inches deep, and its simultaneous front-and-back comparison marks a successful completion of the pioneer Polaroid pilot project. In order to make the one final complete color print on display, three separate pictures were made in overlapping sections and they were butted together in mounting.

In addition to the original tapestry on display along with a same-size color print duplication of its rear, there are 20 instructive photographic panels included in the exhibit. They are made with a similar experimental Polaroid camera but the photographs it produces are 20 by 24 inches. The panels consist of 10 pairs of closeups of details in the tapestry and each pair is a front view and a back view of the same area. These pairs were shot at up to five times magnification of the original tapestry and they clearly reveal facets of the weaving technique and where alterations were made. "The Martyrdom of St. Paul" is a 500year-old French tapestry which appears from the front — to have withstood the ravages of time well. But in replacing its protective linen backing, a job undertaken every 50 years, the museum discovered that the tapestry's rear side had much brighter original colors and that many repairs had been made over the centuries to replace deteriorated and rot-

It became apparent that it would be valuable to have an accurate color documentation of the back side, a project that was feasible with the Polaroid super-size camera. It has a low distortion, flat field f-39 lens, eight inches in diameter, with a focal length of 78 inches. The lens is mounted on the front wall of the roomsize camera.

To get a life-size image, the tapestry was placed outside the camera exactly 13 feet away, or twice the focal length. The film plane was also placed 13 feet away ... inside the camera. The photographer and assistants go into the camera and turn off the lights. To load the light-sensitive materials, they use infrared image convert-ers which allow them to see without affecting the film.

The light-sensitive Polacolor 2 material comes down a track from a spooled film roll mounted at the top of the 11-foothigh film plane. The photographer presses a cable release which opens the lens shutter and triggers eight strobe lights to illuminate the tapestry.

At the bottom of the film plane track, the exposed light-sensitive material meets spooled print material between a pair of steel rollers which are four feet long. A measured amount of chemical reagent is applied and it spreads evenly between the two layers of negative and print materials when a motor turns the "sandwich" rollers. A seven-foot emerges from the rollers.

A buzzer sounds in 60 seconds and the sandwich is peeled apart, producing a color print of the tapestry which is threeand-a-half feet wide by seven feet long.

Officials of both the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and Polaroid view the success of the medieval tapestry project as a prelude to future cooperative achievements that will help make fine art more widely appreciated and better understood.

Group Probes Jailing Of Americans

LONDON (AP) — The cases of 14 jailed Americans, all but one of them black, have been investigated by Amnesty Inter-national to determine whether they have been imprisoned for political or ethnic

The London-based human rights organization, which was a winner of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, has adopted the 14 cases as "prisoners of conscience," its term for people jailed because of nonvi-olent political action.

Those adopted by us in the United States have been mainly Vietnam opponents and black activists," said Fran Taylor, spokeswoman for the organizatioi.

The cases are: -Nine of 10 people arrested in connection with a racial disturbance in 1971 in Wilmington, N.C., and sentenced by a North Carolina court to up to 34 years in jail. Known as the Wilmington 10, they assaulting emergency personnel. The 10th, a white woman, has been paroled. "Amnesty International believes the imprisonment of the Wilmington 10 is due to their political activity and their ethnic origin," the organization said in a

ADA Examines

House Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - House members are "more than creative" in giving themselves benefits that help their re-election chances, according to the Americans for Democratic Action.

A study released by the liberal organization said these benefits include staff salaries, free mailing privileges, a stationary allowance, office space, furniture, telephone and five free parking spots per office.

The ADA estimated that each House incumbent seeking re-election has an advantage of more than $500,000 over the challenger.

"This incumbent margin has risen by over $78.600 from 1975, representing a 16 percent increase, and by over 50 percent since 1973." the ADA said.

The study fixed the incumbent edge at $567,191, including $387,984 in salaries and office space, $143,245 in communication and travel and $35,962 in miscellaneous benefits of the office.

While most of these benefits are necessary to maintain a congressional office and to serve constituent needs throughout a representative's term, they are available during re-election campaigns as well," the study said.

munity organizers and activists, and Amnesty International said it believes they did not commit the crime and were convicted because of their political activities.

-Imari Obadele, sentenced to three consecutive terms of three years, seven years and nine years on charges arising out of a 1971 assault on a federal officer. He is being held in Madison County Jail in Canton, Miss. His occupation, as listed by Amnesty International, was president of the "Republic of New Africa." Oba-dele, also known as Richard B. Henry, believes that descendents of African slaves are a nation and have right to part

-Lee Otis Johnson, who in 1968 was arrested in Houston and sentenced to 30 years on conviction of selling a marijuana rigarette to an undercover police officer. Johnson, once an organizer for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, was released on bail in June 1972. According to Amnesty Internationals files, he was arrested two years later, again in Houston, and sentenced to 17 years after being convicted of stealing $17 worth of meat and a television set.

"Irrespective of whether or not Johnson was guilty of the act ... the extraordinary severity of the sentence suggested strongly that he was being punished for his political activities," Amnesty International wrote of the case.

All of those men are black. "It is impossible to estimate the num-ber of political prisoners in the U.S.," said Amnesty International in its last yearly report, published in September "People are not officially imprisoned because of their political views or actions, or because of their ethnic origin. But in some cases it is difficult to avoid the suspicion that an individual's imprisonment may be due to political actions, rather than to the crime which he or she is alleged to have committed."

The four cases now being investigated for possible inclusion in the "Prisoner of Conscience" category are:

Eva Kutas, Hungarian-born, currently serving a two-year term following her arrest and conviction in Eugene, Ore. for eral fugitive. Before her arrest, she was involved in community activities and had participated in anti-war activities.

David Rice and Edward Poindexter, both serving life terms for first-degree murder in Lincoln, Neb. Rice is described as having been a neighborhood worker for an anti-poverty program. They were convicted of having killed a policeman with a bomb.

Gary Tyler, a 17-year-old black student who was sentenced in November 1975 to death for the murder of a white student during racial disturbances. The main prosecution witness, according to Amnesty International, has since retracted her testimony. Tyler is on death row in Amnesty International said it chose these particular American cases for two reasons. First, they had come to the at-tention of the worldwide body. Second, they fit, sometimes loosely, the few cri-

Kiwanis Chief Slates Visit To Lubbock

The governor of the Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis International, Charles B. Gillespie Jr. of Midland, will be in Lubbock Tuesday to make his official visit to Division 7 of the Kiwanis

Gillespie will meet with members of clubs from the division, composed of Lubbock, Slaton, Brownfield, Floydada, Levelland and Plainview, at 7 p.m. at the Gridiron Restaurant

Gillespie represents more than 17,500 Kiwanians in Texas and Oklahoma who are members of some 470 clubs. Kiwanis International is a civic club. The club's primary emphasis is on programs for young people, although during the past few years the organization has included programs concerning older citizens.

Gillespie is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a B.S. degree in geology. He is an independent oil operator and owns an oil well servicing company.

Lubbock, Texas 792-9950

"I thought they'd choose anyone but me. I never expected it to be me," the blond, blue-eyed 20-year-old sobbed as outgoing Miss World Cindy Breakespeare of Jamaica crowned her Thursday night.

Second was Miss Holland, 25-year-old model Ineke Berends; third, Miss Germany, 23-year-old law student Dagmar-Gabrielle Winkler; fourth, Miss Brazil, 21-year-old student Madalena Sbaraini, and fifth, Miss United States, 20-year-old psychology student Cindy Miller of Chesapeake, Va

Outside the hall, 20 banner-waving demonstrators chanted "Racism out, sexism out, equality in" before the show and stink bombs were thrown. Feminists say the contest degrades women.

Ten participants were withdrawn by their governments to protest the inclusion of Miss South Africa, 20-year-old white model Vanessa Wanneburg. South Africa's white government has been the target of diplomatic, sports and other sanctions for its apartheid policy.

Miss Stavins, a gymnastics student with 32-24-35 figure, became Miss Sweden after the winner decided to go to the competing Miss Universe pageant in the United States. Organizers made a telephone call to Miss Stavins and asked her to represent Sweden in the Miss World

"I didn't think I'd have a chance, but it sounded fun so I said yes," she recalled. The first thing she did after winning her $37,000 prize was to call her boy friend, architect Perove Janrasson, 25.

"I've been here three weeks and I miss him terribly," she said. "Marriage? Oh, no - I'm too young.

The original contest lineup of 77 dwindled to 65 as Miss Malta and Miss Italy. both 15, were disqualified because of youth; and governments withdrew contestants from Indonesia, Jamaica, Liberia, Yugoslavia, Singapore, Malaysia, Mauritius, the Philippines, India and Swaziland. Those women sat glumly behind the 10 judges - including world motorcycle champion Barry Sheene of Britain, American actor-singer Mickey Dolenz and British actor Robert Powell - as American singer Andy Williams interviewed the contestants.

Miss Swaziland, 20-year-old public relations expert Zanele "Tshabalala, was hauled out less than an hour before the show began. At first, she defied her government's orders. Then, officials at the Swaziland High Commission, or embassy, tele-phoned Scotland Yard to keep her from entering the Albert Hall. The Yard refused, but chief chaperone Julia Morley advised Miss Swaziland to do as she was

"I was told there had been threats of violence against her if she stayed in the contest," Miss Morley told reporters later. A High Commission spokesmen denied threats were made.

Dr. Ashby To Speak At New York Event

Dr. Clifford Ashby will speak in New York Saturday on "Trouping through Texas: Harley Sadler and His Show," at the American Society for Theater Research and Theater Library Association meeting scheduled through Saturday.

Ashby, Texas Tech University theater arts professor, will be among other notable speakers and authorities in entertainment and theater featured at the meeting: Activities will be at the New York Public Library, Lincoln Center.

Cash Reported Missing From Department Store

The manager of a local department store told police $541.33 was discovered missing after the departure of two "nervous" men seen standing near an office

According to Buster Pharr, the two men left TG&Y in Briercroft Center about 4:30 p.m. without buying anything. Minutes later, the manager said, he discovered the cash was missing from a drawer. Reports indicated a key apparently was taken and used to unlock the Reporting stolen television sets Thursday were Phyllis Jo Thurber of 2306-A 40th St., who set her loss at $600, and Bruce W. Ferguson of 910-A 41st St., whose set reportedly was valued at $480. Both victims said doors were pried during the break-ins.

James Marvin Latham said his television was stolen from his 5723 67th St. residence Thursday. However, the set reportedly was found a short time later in a nearby alley.

Bethel Vaughn of 5113-B 13th St. re-ported the theft of a $300 necklace from that residence, and Patsey Fay Parker said two rings, valued at $875, were sto-len from her 5726 74th St. home. Neither of the alleged thefts, reported Thursday, occurred recently

Two Littlefield men were arrested for suspected possession of a controlled substance Thursday night after Lubbock police reportedly noticed the pair acting suspiciously in an alley. According to reports, as officers approached the pair's car in an alley in the 700-block of 13th Street, they saw the driver push something under the front seat. After the men got out of the vehicle, police reportedly recovered an assortment of pills from the front seat and a syringe containing an unknown liquid from the floorboard.

Burglaries, thefts and $4,000 worth or mischief" added new names Thursday to a growing list of Lubbockites victimized by criminals this year.

Contractor Bob Hegdal was the hardest hit - at least monetarily - according to police reports. Hegdal said someone broke into a house under construction at 5402 17th Place Wednesday and turned on water that had been cut off earlier by nlumbers.

The subsequent damage amounted to a $4,000 loss, Hegdal said.

The modus operandi was different but the result was the same at 1427 N. Gary Ave., Floyd Lane told police. Burglars who broke out a front door, then ransacked Multi-Ad, Inc., at that address, inflicted $1,365 worth of damage and made off with more than $2,000 worth of goods. Lane said intruders snatched photo-printing equipment, slide projector, checks, posters and furniture during the burgla-

Guns also were the object of a burglar's search at a South Lubbock motel Wednesday. William J. Quinn of Clayton, C., said thieves took weapons valued at $370 from his car, while Emilio Arzabala of 1903 24th St. told police he lost his television, money, jewelry and radio to thieves the same day, Arzabala estimated his loss at $412.

Cruz Marin of 2905 E. Colgate St., R. L. Pemberton of 1915 E. Auburn St. and Emily Johnson of 2803 Juniper Ave. all became victims in common early this week when thieves entered their homes and stole their televisions.

Another pair of televisions and a stereo reportedly were stolen from Mary Sue Shannon's apartment at 2807 Ivory St. Wednesday. The victim valued the items

Tax Law Hurts H&R Block

CHIT. Block Inc. could lose 500,000 returns and an estimated $10 million next year bese of the 1977 Tax Reduction and Simplification Act, company officials say.
In a letter to stockholders this week

Benry Bloch, president, said the company had done its own survey to determine the impact of the tax law on its business. Bloch said the company could lose five percent of the number of returns it prepares yearly and two percent of the company's customers.

The new law reduces the need for taxpayers to itemize their deductions and raised the income level at which returns must be filed.

In the 1977 season, the Kansas Citybased firm prepared 10.08 million returns, of a 85.64 million filed with federal government. Company volume totaled Bloch told shareholders the negative impact on the firm would not be as drastic as originally thought.

Solons Differ On Cut In Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress' two principal handlers of banking legislation hold opposite views on whether President Carter should try to spur the economy with a tax cut next year.

The chairmen of the Senate and House Banking committees on Thursday advocated opposite courses for dealing with an unemployment rate that persists at about 7 percent.

The prescription offered by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., was "a simple, direct, meaningful tax cut at the begin-

But Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., argued that $10 billion spent creating jobs would provide five times as many newly employed as a $20 billion tax reduction. "What this country needs is a massive attack on unemployment, not a massive tax cut," he said.

In another economic development on Capitol Hill, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns told a banking subcommittee that if Congress forced the close-mouthed monetary agency to disclose too much of its discussions, it would risk runs on banks and disruption of the stock market.

And a survey of corporate executives released by Industry Week magazine showed that 14 percent are uncertain about the outlook for the economy next year, reportedly the largest percentage expressing uncertainty in the six-year history of the survey.

Of the executives from 459 firms who responded, 45 percent said they think business will improve during 1978, with 40 percent saying it will pick up in the first six months Carter is to send Congress, probably early next year, a package of proposed tax revisions and reductions The administration has indicated lately that the proposals may emphasize more reductions to stimulate the economy and that some changes that would disturb business might be postponed. Proxmire, in a statement from his Washington office, advocated such a strategy, saying, "The tax cut should be combined with only such reform as is generally acceptable and can be put through quickly." But Reuss, in a speech to the National Democratic Forum on Urban Policy in New York, disagreed.

"To really do something about our pockets of structurally unemployed whether ghetto young people, jobless stranded in rural and small town backwaters or workers in import-threatened industries everywhere — is the nation's first and greatest task," Reuss said.

SINKING KILLS 12

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiai (AP) - An unidentified cargo vessel bound from Cap Haitien to the Bahamas hit a reef and sank off the north coast of Haiti, killing 12 persons who were believed trying to flee the country, a Tourist Board official said Thursday

He said private industry would respond to an offer to help create jobs. He sug-gested factories closed down by imports or recession could be switched to manufacturing solar energy and pollution con-trol devices, mass transit vehicles and medical equipment.

Public jobs, he said, could include day care centers for the elderly as well as children, sewerage works, rehabilitation of housing and nature conservation.

In his testimony, Burns argued against a bill that would require the directors of the regional Federal Reserve banks to keep verbatim minutes of their meetings and turn these over to congressional committees after a year. Congress would decide what information to make public.

"What you would have us do when we have a problem to discuss is to do it in public so there would be a run on the

Tickets On Sale For Lecture

Tickets are on sale for the Dec. 5 talk by world renowned anthropologist Dr. Margaret Mead at Texas Tech University.

Tickets, which are $2 for Tech students and $3 for the public, can be purchased at the University Center Ticket booth on campus, at Hemphill-Wells in the South Plains Mall or by mail from Tech's Cultural Events office.

Dr. Mead will speak at 8:15 p.m. in the University Center Theatre on "Human Identity and Social Interaction."

She has lived and studied among many societies in the South Pacific Islands. Her observations of social change and family life in these societies and her field work and research into Western society have helped her understand contemporary Western culture.

The 76-year-old Dr. Mead has been honored numerous times for her work and holds 18 honorary doctorates. She also was Time magazine's choice for "Mother of the World" in 1969.

Further ticket information may be obtained by calling Tech's Cultural Events

He said the proposed measure would not allow privacy for discussions of prob-lem banks, confidential financial information, possible criminal charges or im-pending changes in monetary policy. Another bill would require the Federal

Reserve's Open Market Committee, its principal arm for monetary and interest policy operations, to make detailed minutes of its deliberations public after three

The proposal might be considered, Burns said, if the period were extended to five years, premature disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act were specifically ruled out and provisions were made for protecting information that might embarrass foreign governments or

Collector Gives Barbed Wire Exhibit To Center

By GERRY BURTON

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Three strands of barbed wire and three posts made up the wire gap.

It had to be unhooked, dragged to the side, then dragged back and yoked once more to the fence after the car went through. There were 27 wire gaps in the 40 miles of rangeland before R. L. Muston could get to Lamesa to conduct business.

Back then, had anyone told him he would some day cherish strands of barbed wire, he would have insisted the person had to be crazy.

But - not today. Tales of all the wire gaps he took down and put back up in his early traveling career just spice up stories about collecting the more than 400 pieces he donated recently to the Ranching Heritage Center.

Wire, but not the barbed variety, saved him a scary night one trip across that particular ranch heading north out of Midland. He was going through "a dry bed lake with coyotes and wolves all around the rim when the old T-Model quit."

A rubber band failed to hold where a wire in the timer had broken, and the silhouettes on the rim seemed a lot larger before two old cowboys in an old pickup came to his rescue. Among all the saddles and other gear they had an old timer with a good piece of wire.

Muston's first barbed wire, cut four or five feet long and "mashed all up together," came on those early trips northwest out of Abilene, in a gesture to save histor-

It came from Marjorie Merriweather Post whom he met often in the Algerita Hotel at Post. The wire was part of the original ranch wire plowed up to make way for C. W. Post's farm developments. Years later it helped spark interest in barbed wire in a collecting boom which hit in the early 1960s. Very little of the wire came as his first did, directly from the historic source. Most was obtained in a swap and sell session.

Wire already had changed the West when he was born two years before the new century on a ranch in Shackelford

Farming inside barbed wire was the way for his family by the time he entered the Indian Mountain School - one big room where the boys sat on one side and the girls on the other.

"Down the middle were two big woodburning stoves and some benches. Wood for the stove and water for drinking came from across another barbed wire fence

Sitting between two big boys got Muston the blame for all the whittling done on the joint desk, plus a promise from the teacher to slit his fingers with the knife and insert some of the shavings if he didn't stop. His father, a school trustee, helped him out of that bad spot and others, like the water incident which got him a hurried ride home in the teacher's buggy so his father could punish him that much quick-

It began with the simple chore of scooping water from a creek in the pasture and carrying it back to school for drinking. Muston and another boy brought back two buckets this particular day for the segregated drink.

He watered the boys and I went down the girls' row. I was through with the girls and took the bucket to the teacher. When she dipped in a big frog jumped out, got all over her papers and I had to chase it out."

Only a parental demonstration at the family cistern, also supplied from a creek, holding minnows and many frogs, cooled that situation for Muston. Later, while his father built school-ton, then about 16, "batched" while running the 200-acre farm. "I had a wood stove, and I'd put on a and getting back in" on days when he picked 500 pounds a day. One January dinner time, with the porch thermometer reading 72, he left his acket and gloves at the house to finish breaking land with a double disc plow pulled by four horses.' By mid-afternoon, he was keeping a watchful eye on an approaching "blue norther," gauging time for another round each time he reached the turn row 200 vards from the house. He barely beat the wind to the barn in a frantic unhitching and putting up of hors-

The weather station at Abilene said the temperature dropped 50 degrees in an hour, but "I've tested unhooking the horses and running them in the barn. It only took 35 minutes When he took to traveling for a whole-sale fruit and vegetable wholesaler, he always tried to make it to Post at night to put up at the Algerita, and learn a little more about the Post enterprises and area history in the parlor. "Most of the traveling boys would go to a dime picture show, but I stayed there and talked to Marjorie Merriweather Post. She had as much to do with my life as anyone She gave him a first interest in barbed wire, plus a taste for the history going along with it. Leftover Seeds Can Be Stored For Later Use

By EARL ARONSON

Associated Press Writer
Did you buy too many flower and vegetable seeds last spring? Perhaps your gardening plans ran into a snag and you couldn't plant any or all of the seeds you bought. Then the question is: What do I do with my leftover seeds?

Can they be used next season? Can they be stored? For how long?

We turn to our Purdue University expert, John A. Wott, extension home environment specialist, for advice.

"Most seeds, if new or fresh the previous spring, can be stored and reused the next year," he noted. "But the seed must be stored properly — at moderate temperature under dry conditions. Seeds stored under warm, moist conditions will deterioriate rapidly."

Seed is a living, breathing organism and as such should be kept so as not to use up all of its stored "food."

In addition, says Wott, some seeds have a fairly short storage life, under the best of storage conditions. And seed viability or usefulness may depend on the particular season in which it was grown.

Sweet corn, onion, okra and parsnip seeds have a fairly short storage life span about two years — under any conditions. Bean, celery, carrot and leek seeds will generally germinate two to three years after purchase, and tomato, squash, cucumber and lettuce seed in three or more years.

Seed you store should be tested the next spring to make sure you are not wasting effort and time planting something the well-next still and transfer.

thing that will not produce.

Here is a test plan. Place 10 seeds in the folds of a moist paper towel. Put them in a warm area (perhaps above a refrigerator). In five to seven days, check to determine how many seeds have germinated. If the score is under 50 percent, discard the seeds, If germination is 50 to 75 percent, use them but sow more generously than normal to assure an adequate plant response.

While waiting for spring, consider the merits of a cold frame or hot bed. Such structures help you develop sturdy plants ready to set into your garden as soon as conditions permit transplanting. Your county extension service generally has plans for construction of such devices.

Biblical Garden Sets Ancient Israel Scene

By JOEL EPSTEIN

NEOT KEDUMIM, Israel (AP) — Helen Frenkley, combination agronomist-historian-sociologist, is planting a biblical garden and discovering surprises such as the world's original jeweler's weights and an ancient air-conditioning system.

Miss Frenkley, who immigrated to Israel from Washington, D.C., eight-and-a-half years ago, is director of Neot Kedumin, a 400-acre plot, where she and other experts are carefully reproducing the original flora of biblical Israel. In the process she has become an expert in the vast realm of plant lore and symbolism of the Old Testament.

In Neot Kedumim, halfway between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, grow all the exotic plants of the Bible — myrtle and hyssóp, tamarisk and moriah, acacia and ladanum. The gardens probably won't be open to the public for several years, but when they are, signs and electronic speakers will give visitors a botanical tour of the prophets' Israel.

"When Moses led the Jews out of Egypt to the land of Israel, he brought them to a richly forested country — a land flowing with milk and honey." Thousands of years of neglect and eroston have left the hills denuded of trees and the ground bared to the bedrock," says Miss Frenkley. "We are bringing together the plants that made up that original countries of the plants that made up that original countries."

"The seeds of this carob tree are called 'gerah' in the bible, which was the smallest ancient weight. It is the origin of our word 'carat,' the standard jeweler's measure," equal to about .0069 ounce.

Near the stocky carob trunks is a field being plowed for wheat, which Miss Frenkley believes was the original "tree of knowledge" of the Garden of Eden.

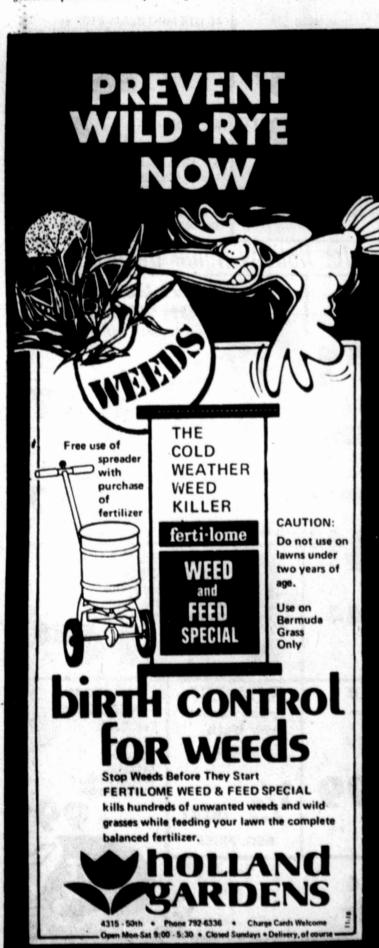

"The theory was proposed by a rabbi many years ago. The sociological implications are staggering," she says. "After all, good and evil, and civilization with all its knowledge and problems, began when man learned how to cultivate grain and settle down from his nomadic life."

In a grove of chest-high tamarisk saplings, Miss Frenkley tells how the full-grown trees acted as a biblical air-conditioner.

"The Bible tells us in Genesis 21:33 that Abraham planted tamarisks in Beersheba," she says. The evergreen-like leaves of the trees are coated with a layer of natural salt.

"The salt absorbs the moisture in the night air, and releases it during the day," she explains. In the shade of a tamarisk, the air might be 8 or 10 degrees cooler than the surrounding desert heat.

Vitamin E Unproven

By LAWIRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB-I have recently read that vatamin E is used to treat many problems of the heart. It gave no further details. My question is, can vitamin E help in the treatment of tachycardia?

DEAR READER-The statement you have read is correct in the narrow sense that vitamin E has been used to treat many problems - but, unfortunately, there is no valid evidence that such treatments for heart conditions in man have any beneficial effects at all. It is useless medicine for this purpose.

We have heard about the supposed miraculous cures from vitamin E now for over 30 years, and they remain just unscientific testimonials, similar to those you could get from your friendly sauke oil peddler of the old-fashioned medical show.

A very recent study by Dr. Dennis G. Caralis of Johns Hopkins University and the U.S. Public Health Hospital at Baltimere, confirms that vitamin E is not useful in treating patients with chest pain from heart disease. Dr. Garalis and his colleagues studied patients with documented heart disease from X rays of the arteries to the heart (coronary arteriograms), and gave them large doses of vitamin E for six months. They gave 1,600 units, a large dose, claimed by enthusiasts to be effective in treating heart pain. The same patients were than given no medicine for two months, followed by six months of a placebo (non-medical substance).

Commenting on the results, Dr. Caralis stated that he believed that it was unlikely that vitamin E would have any beneficial effect on coronary artery disease, and that he believed that vitamin E is inactive. He also pointed out that it was unlikely that any longer period of treatment would be of any benefit either.

Dr. Evan Shute, of Canada, a leading proponent of the miracles of vitamin E for over 30 years, was quoted by Medical World news as saying that the effect of vitamin E in treatment of angina was marginal. "But with an effective diet, it's better than anything else."

The role of diet in treating heart disease has long been established, and if you took distilled water instead of vitamin E, with proper dietary therapy, you would get good results in many cases. I personally consider the highly advertised marketing of vitamin E for heart disease as a public rip-off.

Vitamin E may have some uses as in the treatment of leg cramps, including those associated with arterial disease and anemias in newborn infants-but for the most part, it remains a vitamin in search of a disease. To give you a better understanding of vitamin E and its real role in health, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-12. Vitamin E: Miracle or Myth. Others who want a review of the real status of vitamin E can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O.Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

New Guinness Book Of Records By School Reveals Numerous Changes

LONDON (UIM) - Sandy Allen, the world's tallest living girl, has finally stopped growing and Brian Beattie, riding a motorized tiricycle, covered 1,298 miles on one gallo a of gasoline.

So says the 1971: edition of the Guinness Book of Records, that annual bible for bettors, arguers and triviaphiles.

The new edition has updated, replaced or revised about 36 percent of its old en-

Beattie set what the publishers call 'the ultimate in petrol economy" in Cheshire, England, on July 5, 1977.

Beattie added 147 miles to "the 10 miles in an hour four stroke 3 wheel record" he and Brian Toft set in June 1976, using a 50cc Hond rengined tricycle.

The 350-page book, now in its 24th edition, has thus far sold more than 32.5 million copies around the globe.

New Disease

Discovered

BOSTON (AP) - A new disease that turns a common virus into a cause of cancer and makes a killer out of mononucleosis has been discovered by researchers at the University of Massachusetts Medical School.

The disease, which is inherited by some male children, is a deficiency that allows the Epstein-Barr virus to fatally attack their bodies.

This germ infects about 90 percent of the population, usually with mild flu-like symptoms. It also causes mononucleosis, the "kissing disease" of young adults. The doctors say that when victims of the new disease are infected by the virus, they can develop cancer of the lymph glands, suffer a fatal form of mononucleosis or have a breakdown of their immune defenses. The disease also causes birth defects, including malformed hearts.

A report on the disease, called "Xlinked recessive lymphoproliferative syndrome," is published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers believe the illness is rare, but so far they have identified it in 75 boys in 12 families

"It's a new syndrome," Dr. David T. Purtilo, who directed the research, said in an interview. "Like all other diseases, it's been there for a while. It was just a matter of being able to recognize it."

The disease strikes only boys, but it is passed to them by their mothers, who do not suffer its symptoms

Beadle Assessed 99 Years For Bank Robbery

Avalanche-Journal Staff Burton Russell Beadle, alleged by prosecutors to have been the brains behind the largest bank holdup in Lubbock County history, was convicted of aggravated robbery and assessed a 99-year prison term by a jury here Thursday.

The verdict capped an explosive fourday trial in which a co-defendant and the wife of a man who had previously been convicted of taking part in the heist testified for the state.

It was the stiffest punishment returned by a local jury since Jerry Wayne Trussell convicted of participating in the same

Beadle, 44, a local businessman, was indicted with the Aug. 31, 1976, $66,000 robbery of Wolfforth's American Bank of Commerce.

Witnesses said four masked men burst into the bank about 7:45 a.m. that day. Bank vice president Bruce Miller was knocked to the floor by one man. Witnesses related that other employees were forced by the gunmen to lie on the floor, and were covered by two of the bandits while the other two ransacked the vault.

Eleven employees - Miller and 10 women - were locked in the vault as the bandits made their getaway.

he said.

In opting for 99 years, the seven-man, five-woman jury in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th Dist. Court heeded the words of prosecutor Grady Terrill, trying the case along with Asst. Dist. Atty. Phil Gamble

The defense had asked for probation, and Terrill, in the first words of his final punishment argument termed the request "totally ridiculous.

'Think of those bank employees, think of being forced to lie on the floor with a gun pointed at your head. Think of the thoughts that must have been going through their minds - of their loved ones, their children, whether they would ever see them again or whether they would die in the next few min-

The prosecutor referred to the approximately $40,000 taken in the holdup which has never been recovered.

"If you give this man probation, he will laugh at you," he said. Terrill and Gamble asked for a life

"If you can't do that, let's take one year for every thousand dollars that he stole. Let's give him 67 years," Terrill argued.

It took the jury an hour and 15 minutes to decide to raise that figure by 32. The range of punishment for an aggravated robbery conviction is from 5 to 99 years, neatly attired throughout the trial, has looked the picture of a businessman, stood stoically when the verdict was announced. An adopted daughter, the only witness called by the defense during the punishment phase of the trial, sobbed in the background.

Earlier, the jury had deliberated slighty more than 2 1/2 hours before finding Beadle guilty of the aggravated robbery. Defense attorney Warren Goss had made an eloquent plea to back his contention that Beadle was being made the fall guy in the case and was the victim of a frame. But a portion of the argument apparently backfired on the advocate.

After discounting the testimony of Mrs. Carolyn Trussell and star witness Danny Floyd, Goss zeroed in on damaging statements by Mrs. Marjorie singleton, Beadle's sister-in-law.

The Midland woman had said Beadle arrived at her home around 5:30 p.m. the day of the robbery and told her he had been in on the robbery.

In a hearing outside the presence of the jury, Mrs. Singleton had indicated Beadle was drinking beer when he allegedly visited her Aug. 31. But no mention of such activity was made later when the witness testified before the jury.

"The only thing you have to convict a man on is a dumb statement made by a drunk to his sister-in-law," Goss said at one point in his argument. He contended any incriminating remarks which might have been made by Beadle were spoken

After the jury had been sequestered well over an hour, members sent a note asking to hear Mrs. Singleton's testimo-

When court reporter Dale Dye read back the testimony, there was no mention of drinking. The jury foreman later confirmed the panel had wanted to rehear the testimony because of the allusion to alcohol.

"He (Goss) was talking about the drinking, but we didn't remember anything about it," the foreman said.

Mrs. Singleton also had testified she informed Beadle that, according to radio reports, lawme a were seeking a man with a mustache in connect ion with the bank robbery She said Bead te asked for a razor and shaved off his mustache.

Mrs. Trussell --- wife of the man who received a life sentence for the robbery said that, to her knowledge, Beadle was the one who first approached Trussell about the Wolfforth ban'k.

According to that witness, Beadle had told Trussell he hard checked out the situation and "thought it was an easy bank to

But it was the testimony of Floyd, a lanky 23-year-old who agrized to testify against Beadle in exchange for a five-year sentence recomme adation, who placed the defendant inside the bank. Floyd said Beadle was one of the four gunmen. He indicated Beadle had seemed in charge of a scouting expedition to the bank on Aug. 26 and had handed him a pistol on the morning of the holdup. Floyd also said Be udle had been the man to divide the loot after the robbery.

South Africa Investments Decrease

By WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN

United Press International Writer American companies are shying away from new investments in South Africa, threatening far greater damage to the racially troubled nation than the arms embargo imposed by the United Nations.

People don't want to have anything to do with the South Africans," one American stockbroker said.

Business analysts warned a weakening of South Africa's financial muscle could mean rising black unemployment and racial tensions and could persuade wavering whites to get out with what they can.

The 400 U.S. companies doing bus in South Africa - a veritable Who's Who of major American corporations - have been under pressure from black leaders and church stockholder groups for years to withdraw from the white-ruled nation

That pressure has been stepped up since the government's Oct. 19 crack-down on black dissent, which apparently signaled a tougher stance against accom-modation with the nation's 21 million nonwhite people.

American firms by no means are stampeding out of South Africa. Some companies, such as Chrysler and ITT, sold some of their interests last year while others - Texaco and Kenneco were making investments surpassing $100

But interviews with New York financial sources and church leaders show that the crackdown and the government's refusal to ease its white supremacist policies is beginning to discourage new investment and loans.

South Africa is by far one of the most profitable places to invest," the stock-

"It beats the United States and Canada.

"But if you invest your money, you want to know that the country is going to be there in six months. This has really altered the investment pattern in recent

"People don't want to have anything to do with the South Africans.'

One major company, Control Data, has announced it will not enlarge its holdings in South Africa because of the crackdown on black newspapers and black leaders. It is the only company to announce its investment plans since the Oct. 19 action.

The head of South African lending operatioms for a major U.S. bank said it would be very discouraging for American investment if Prime Minister John Vorster continues on a course of tightened racial controls.

"I think what's confused people is this sudden turn to a much tougher stance, the banker said. "I think we'll wait until after the (Nov. 30) election to see which way he's going to go. If he sticks, it's going to be very discouraging."

American companies do not play a dominant role in the South African economy. Of the approximately $20 billion in total foreign investment, no more than a fifth is in American hands including loans. Britain is by far the largest foreign

The largest American investors include Mobil, Caltex Oil (a joint venture of Texaco and Standard Oil of California), General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Goodyear, Firestone, General Electric, 3M, ITT and IBM, according to church sources.

The assets sold by ITT and Chrysler were purchased by other companies and it is likely South African and European firms would be able to absorb most, if not all the American investments in the event of a major U.S. business pullout.

But both American and South African sources say lessened American invest-ment could have a profound impact on South Africa, whose post-war economic boom has been fueled by foreign invest-

The analysts say the impact of a decline in American investment —whether a fullscale "disinvestment" or merely avoiding new involvement - will not help ease South Africa's racial dilemma.

They say it will displace many blacks who work for American companies, ag-gravating racial tensions. And it could send a signal to South Africans, particularly the more moderate, English-speaking community, that it is time to leave their country with as much as they can

These twin effects would have a far stronger impact on South Africa than the largely symbolic U.N. arms embargo, they say. South Africa is almost selfsufficient in arms production.

South Africa will trigger a resurgence of

For Auction

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A 62-ounce nugget which fills the cupped hands of a man is part of 10,000 troy ounces of raw Alaska gold to be auctioned off this weekend.

Also included in the $1.5 million sale being held Saturday and Sunday are nuggets weighing 19 and 151/2 ounces, as well as smaller pieces ranging up from one

There are 12 troy ounces to the troy pound, which is slightly more than fourfifths of the 16-ounce avoirdupois pound commonly used.

The auctioneers say the auction is being held because Alaska gold miners just are not getting as much as they should for the gold they find. And they say the public has to pay too much after the gold has changed hands.

Most Alaska gold is now sold in the form of dust to smelters outside of the state at prices which range down to about $100 an our Kasler. Kasler said he was hoping for dust prices of about more at the auction

The big pieces will bring the big prices, according to auction organizer Robert

"The reason is that you can use the nuggets for so many purposes, such as jewelry," he said. "Not only that, there just isn't much of the coarse stuff. You just don't find many large pieces."

The 63-ounce nugget is owned by Warren Magnuson, who found it on Ganes Creek, near McGrath.

Miller, the co-owner of a gold mining operation 95 miles west of Fairbanks, said he believed that the 19-ounce nugget would command a price of about $20,

Southern New England Telephone Co. has bought six vans this year, including two which carry Danbury-area employees to the company's New Haven head-

Anthony Detje of Danbury drives one of three vans operating in the Danbury area for employees of American Can Corp. of Greenwich. The 11 commuters using his van each pay $38 a month. But he says saving money isn't the main reason people sign up for the 45-minute van ride to work.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa. (AP) -School directors in this southwestern Pennsylvania community say their attempt to force students to stand for the Pledge of Allegiance is only a return to good old-fashioned patriotism.

The board discussed the policy after reading reports that some students in Hawaii couldn't recite the pledge or spell some of its words.

Although the ACLU hasn't decided if it will legally challenge the policy, it points out that two court decisions have already upheld the right not to pledge allegiance. In one case, members of the Jehovah's Witnesses were supported on religious grounds. The second case involved students, Miss Doyle said.

"Some students felt the country did not stand for liberty and justice for all and the courts upheld them," she said. The board, however, believes the ACLU is going too far.

"This is simply a patriotic gesture," said director Jean Rega. "There was nothing more to it than that. We live in a great land and to pledge allegiance to the flag is a great privilege.

Social Security — How Secure?

By LOU COTTIN

Stop worrying about the "financial integrity" of the Social Security system It never will go broke. Government contribution to the system always has been in the cards. The need for federal financial help was anticipated right from the start of the program. No one ever expected Social Security to be self-

When Social Security began in 1935 it went by the unwieldy name of "Old Age Survivors and Disability Insurance." (O.A.S.K.I.) A National Advisory Council on Social Security monitored the program from its start. In its final report (Dec. 10, 1938), the council concluded: "Federal Financial Participation in (O.A.S.D.I.) by means of revenues from sources other than payroll taxes will be needed.

The advisory council developed the idea of starting the plan with approximately equal contribution by workers and employers. They estimated, however, that Washington would need to step in with general tax money by 1962.

Now, in 1977 everybody seems to have forgotten the original plan was to be a three-way deal: worker, employer contributions from wages, government contributions, when necessary, from general taxes.

The council accepted this planning unanimously. Those who endorsed the program were not dreamers. They were the top echelon figures of the time. The AFL-CIO approved it for labor. The National Association of Manufactur ers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce okayed the program speaking for industry. The names of the firms represented at the council by members who unanimously accepted the eventual government participation in Social Security included: Board chairman and presidents of U.S. Steel, Provident Mutual Insurance, General Electric, Bowery Savings Banks Curtis Publishing. Eastman Kodak was represented by its treasurer.

In a letter to The New York Times dated May 16, 1977, J. Douglas Brown, who headed the Social Security Advisory Council in 1937-38 (and for succeed-

To introduce government contribution now (in 1977) would, step by step, be fulfilling a proper and justifiable plan for financing a mature and effective system...based on the mutual responsibility of employees, emoloyers and general taxpayers."

What we would face if Social Security were allowed to go under is welfare. That would inevitably depend upon "means" test or "needs" test for minimal relief. We can't prove that those who talk of a bankrupt Social Security program have "welfare" in mind for us. But the fact that certain forces have 'forgotten" the original plan for general tax support of Social Security is, indeed, a little strange.

We, the elderly in the United States have never sought handouts. We have never considered Social Security as an act of beneficence. We've paid into the fund all our working lives. In some cases we suspect that what our employers paid into the fund came off our paycheck. Indeed, what employers paid to Social Security came off their taxes. Our 5.25 percent of salary payments for Social Security have never been deductible.

It is up to us seniors to set some records straight. Most of us retire willingly from our jobs. If we were permitted to work until age 70, we would be paying Social Security while we worked. We would produce the counterpart of our own consumption. We would not draw against Social Security. Rather we would increase the total of the Social Security Funds

Second, we do not believe that our Social Security income is fair payment for our lifetime contribution to this great nation. Indeed, we are the ones who made the nation great.-We fought two wars for our country. We sacrificed our children in a third war. We built the communities. Our generation, now seniors, designed the instruments of production that dominate industrial perform-

It is wrong to calculate our present worth just on what we put into the Social Security funds. It is right for us to ask: "Where would this country be if we had not given so much of ourselves these many years? How shall we be rewarded for our own labor, our faith and our patriotism?

It is time to stop talking about Social Security purely in financial terms. There are two words in the term "Social Security." Certainly we must have security." But that bespeaks merely a bare minimum for existence.

The word "social" is what counts. That brings us back to a life as good peo-- Americans, that is

Bell Provides Tap Service To Employers

DALLAS (UPI) - For as little as $12 a month, Southwestern Bell Telephone can provide employers a tap on their employees' telephone conversations.

The interoffice service, called "Service, Observing" by Bell, is really quite innocent, according to the company.

"Basically it's a good service that helps companies insure that their employees treat customers courteously," said Joe McNamara, a spokesman for the telephone company.

According to McNamara, employees who use the tapped lines are supposed to be told the company can listen to their conversations at will. Outsiders need not

Also employers must agree not to use the service for "any other purposes," according to Southwestern Bell

McNamara said Southwestern Bell did not regularly audit or check to make sure that the equipment was not misused. But he said the company would check whenever a complaint was filed.

McNamara said "Service Observing" differed from phone tapping in that it was more like having someone listening in on an extension of a home phone

Couple Finds Life Enjoyable In Wilderness

NORTHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — To find house Dan and Robin Woodard's house, you drive over a mountain on a blacktop road until the blacktop ends, drive down a rut-ted dirt lane until the lane ends, then you

You walk and climb half a mile up a twisting, boulder-strewn path obscured by fallen leaves and pine needles, follow-ing a stream that tumbles down the steep hillside over mossy rocks. Deep in this idyllic wilderness the only sound is the brawling stream.

The house is utterly isolated among the trees, a handsome two-story house covered with weather-mellowed cedar shakes.

Nearby is an acre clearing where Dan and Robin grow their own groceries. Robin cans the produce and stores it in a root cellar. Dan built the root cellar.

Dan also built the house, sawed every board, drove every nail. He is a fine carpenter and a resourceful man; he taught himself the craft. Robin is resourceful, too, and giving. She teaches sewing one day a week in a nursing home.

Behind the house stands another tidy structure. With its two stained-glass windows, also hand-crarted by Dan, it might be a small chapel, but it is not. It is an outhouse. The most troublesome outhouse you can imagine.

"We came here because we like the woods, the outdoors," Dan Woodard said. "We like privacy. All we want to is to be left alone. Instead, for three years we've been in and out of court and it isn't over yet. All because of an outhouse.

Sometimes it gets pretty silly. One official asks why on earth we want an outhouse, and another says if we have an outhouse everybody will want one. How do you deal with that?"

Dan Woodard discusses his outhouse woes with remarkable calm. A less forgiving soul would be tearing his hair.

Dan and Robin, both in their early 30s, met at the University of California at Los Angeles. From the start, they treasured being alone. After graduation and marriage they rented a cabin far back in the redwood mountains of northern Califor-

They wanted their own place, though, and began a search, traveling the country unhurriedly, enjoying the scenery and each other.

In the spring of 1974 they found this spot: 96 acres of romantic mountainside with its crystal brook, ample firewood and garden clearing. No electricity, but they prefer oil lamps. It was ideal.

Dan applied for a building permit. He was told he would need a septic tank. He

Townspeople Claim UFO Story False

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — If this quiet Mississippi River town of 5,300 was sacked by aliens last summer, the invaders covered their tracks well. No one remembers any invasion.

But a headline on an article in a magazine called "Official UFO" tells of the looting and burning of Chester. Chester's "sheriff," Luke Grisholm, writes in the magazine that he tried in vain to get Chanute Air Force Base at Rantoul to send Strategic Air Command jet fighters to repel the invaders.

The story says that Chester television sets went blank and then registered the image of an alien figure. As most everyone here knows, Chester has no city sheriff, but there is a chief of police named Harold Howie. 'Believe me, I'm not a writer," says

Howie. "I didn't have a thing to do with that story."

The magazine says the story was supressed by local officials.

Mayor Stanley Macieiski, identified as Mayor Uhlan Moulton in the story, says he wondered "what I was covering up in Chester."

The mayor said, "I think somebody nearby really wrote the story." "Official UFO" is printed at Spartan Printing in Sparta, a city near Chester. Circulation figures for the magazine, which is distributed throughout the United States, Canada and overseas, were not available.

Editor Jeffrey Goodman said from New York that the story had come from a free-lance writer who asked to remain onymous. He said the magazine staff had tried to "check out" the story as best explained that he planned to build an out-

"Not only would we have to build a road so a truck could come up with a tank, which would be terribly expensive and spoil the beauty, but we really do want an outhouse," Dan said. "An outhouse forces you to go outside even in bad weather, and once you're outside you're glad to be outside.

The town said too bad, no outhouse. Against the law. Dan was told to stop building not just the outhouse but also hired a lawyer, got a restraining order against the town and built his home. The case came up in February and the court found in his favor.

The town gave him a permit for an out-

They returned and found a summons from the town for building without a permit. Dan lost that case in court but won it on appeal. The judge ruled that the town could hardly have been unaware of his

Bank Ruling Appealed

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas asked the 5th Circuit Court of Civil Appeals today to overturn a federal district court ruling that could permit national banks to act as unauthorized insurance agents.

The attorney general, acting for the State Board of Insurance, ap-pealed the August decision by Federal District Court Judge Finis Cowan in a case filed by five national banks in the Gulf Coast area. The banks contested directives from the U.S. Comptroller which outlawed the commissions paid bank officers who sell credit life insurance policies to cover loans made by their banks. Cowan up-held the directive and ordered that commissions be paid, not to bank officers, but to their banks.

The state became a party to the suit because, under Texas law, banking corporations are prohibited from being licensed as insurance agents and receiving commis-

In the brief filed today, the attorney general stressed the existence in Texas of a uniform method of insurance regulation and the fact that Congress specifically left to the individual states the right to regulate the insurance business.

Deaf Smith Harvesting Entering Final Stages

A-J Correspondent
HEREFORD — Deaf Smith County's harvest is entering its final stage as farmers gather the last of their vegetable, sugar beet and cotton crops.

While carrot yields have increased in recent weeks and the cotton crop is termed "outstanding," officials of the Holly Sugar Corp. Hereford plant have been forced to downgrade their estimate of the average sugar beet yield in the Holly growing area.

Bob Ginn, agricultural manager for the Hereford Holly plant said average beet yields have fallen from a pre-harvest prediction of 21-22 tons per acre to an actual turmant of 19 tons.

"We are a little disappointed in our yield average, but the same old culprit is to blame for the drop in beet yields that was responsible for poor corn and grain sorghum yields, and that's the weather,' Ginn explained.

Usually hot and dry weather during July took a heavy toll on area grain crops, and Ginn pointed out that water which might have been used in beet irrigation was applied to hard-pressed corn

The beet crop suffered a double stress when dry conditions persisted in Sep-

'We normally have to cut off our beet irrigation during September in order to have the fields dry enough for harvest. We usually get about two inches of rainfall in September as well, and we didn't get that this year. So we were exceptionally dry and it cost us in terms of tonnage," said Ginn.

The Holly official added that although yields are off somewhat, sugar content is still a fairly-respectable 14.54 percent.

"Harvesting is around 93 percent complete, and we are going to come awfully close to meeting our Monday harvest completion goal. In fact, we might get done by Saturday night if things go right," Ginn explained.

Processing of beets should continue into December and thick juice processing will extend an additional 30 days, according to the Holly agriculturist.

A spokesman for a vegetable packing shed said carrot yields are slightly improved over a month ago with yields running 10-11 tons per acre," depending on the type of row spacing and plant-

"fairly steady" at $50-$60 per ton, and the spokesman estimated that with favorable weather, carrot packing could continue" another four to five weeks."

He added that distribution of the carrots is good at this time with holiday season markets beginning to open up.

Marvin Payne of the Hereford Farmers Gin Inc. reports that harvesting of an unusually good cotton crop in the Deaf Smith County area is about 40 percent complete and the gin has turned out about 1,800 bales.

"The cotton is still yielding well, said Payne. "We are getting yields anywhere from one to two bales per acre, with a lot of 13/4-bale per acre yields." Micronaire on most of the cotton harvested so far is in the premium range which is unusual for the northern High Plains growing area, he pointed out.

The gin spokesman noted that the market has registered no major declines, ranging from 42-45 cents and some cotton grown under contract is selling for 53-55 cents per pound.

"It's hard to say just when we'll be finishing up, but I would guess that if the weather holds, we will be stripping the last of our cotton by Dec. 15," Payne ton yield was lost to diseases, Berry said. In years past, the seasonal loss has gone as high as 18.5 percent, he said.

The estimate for Texas was made by a statewide committee leaded by Berry. The committee also included Dr. Levon Ray, cotton research scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and Dr. Earl Minton, plant pathologist with the Agricultural Research Service, both at the Lubbock center.

Disease loss estimates were compiled from estimates of plant pathologists and agronomists working in cotton through-

On the Texas High Plains and Rolling Plains, where about 75 percent of the state's cotton is produced, almost ideal weather conditions throughout the growing season was the major factor responsible for the healthy cotton crop this season, the scientists agreed.

Other important factors, they said, were significant changes in cultural practices and the use of cotton strains which are more resistant to disease.

"From the time the farmers planted seed to the time of harvest, the weather was excellent," Minton said, "This re-

Even so, "the loss this year would have been high if High Plains cotton producers had been using the varieties they planted 15 years ago," Ray said. Scientists are continually working to develop even better strains, he noted.

"Growers also have learned to used such control practices as alternate row irrigation and cutting off irrigation water prior to the onset of low temperatures in the fall," Ray said. And producers are doing a better job of treating planting seed than they did years ago, he Berry cautioned growers they couldn't count on such such fine weather again in 1978. "We may never see as perfect a

Cottonseed Meal Diet

LAS CRUCES N.M. (Special) - Can heifer calves be fed cottonseed meal and That's what four researchers at New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station did. And they found that feeding cottonseed meal as a supplement significantly increased the winter weight gains of heifer calves during drought years.

The researchers, E.E. Parker, Joe Wallace, Arnold Nelson and Rex Pieper. fed two pounds of cottonseed meal. compared with one pound, daily to heifer calves. The results were significant, they say. During a 133-day winter period, heifer calves gained 37 pounds. In three trails, the researchers found that calves fed one pound of cottonseed meal daily, compared with calves fed no supplement, showed an average winter gain of 47, 30, 77 pounds.

According to the researchers, the question of whether to provide feed supplement to weaner calves should be based on their future use. If calves are to be sold in the spring or bred to calve as supplemental feeding two-year-olds, would probably be beneficial. However, if calves are to be sold the following fall, or kept and bred to calve first as three-year-olds, the benefits from supplemental feeding may be mar-

Another factor to consider when deciding whether to provide a feed supplement is the weather

The data indicated that, during normal years, a relatively high level of performance can be maintained with no supplementation other than salt and phosphorus. However, production was generally increased with supplemental cottonseed meal

The researchers also found that supplemental feeding in normal-moisture years affected weaning weights, winter cow-weight losses, and calving dates, but had no apparent effect on calf crop percentage except for first-calf two-year-

Overall, the researchers found that economic benefits from supplemental feeding during normal years was low.

Conversely, in drought years, supplementation was profitable. For instance, the researchers found that weaning rates increased by 63 to 85 pounds. They also found that the calf crop born the following year increased from 44 to 92 per cent

On the negative side, the researchers found three disadvantages. Feeding cottonseed meal can be expensive. Feeding cottonseed meal can effect grazing distribution, and it may also cause poor range management practices.

Screwworm Assault Heifer Boon Results Excellent

MISSION (UPI) - A final assault on the dreaded screwworm, a cattle pest which used to cost Southwest ranchers $100 million a year, has begun this winter and already is showing excellent re-

Dr. M.E. Meadows, head of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's screwworm eradication program, predicts the parasite can be shoved far south of the border this winter and rendered only a minor problem in both Mexico and the United States by 1981-82.

national eradication program no confirmed case of screwworms has been discovered in Texas for 10 consecutive weeks and that September was the first screwworm-free September Texas has ever known.

Meadows said as a result of the inter-

Only 35 Texas cases have been found during all of 1977, compared to 19,975 during the same period last year, and more than a million annually before the eradication program began in 1962.

"It looks good," Meadows said. "We can't afford complacency, though."

For the first time this year, Mexico participated in the 15-year-old program designed to push screwworms southward to the narrow isthmus of Tehuantepec in Lower Mexico, never more to bother U.S. cattle.

The $30 million a year fight against screwworms involves bombing 1 billion sterile screwworm flies on both sides of the border from Texas to California each week. Scientists say the sterile flies mate with fertile flies and eventually overwhelm the wild fly population.

Before the eradication program began, officials estimated $100 million to $125 million a year were lost by U.S. cattlemen alone. The screwworm flies migrated from Mexico during warm weather to deposit their eggs in wounds of cattle and other warm blooded animls and the resulting maggots attacked the animals, causing ranchers high expenses in manpower and treatment

Meadows said there is no way of knowing what the dollar losses would be today, considering the higher prices of beef and labor, had the screwworm program not been devised.

Until Mexico built its own factory at Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, a year ago to sterilize the flies with atomic energy, USDA screwworm fighters had to battle the annual invasion the entire length of the 1,933-mile border. Now they predict the "grid" of sterile flies eventually can be maintained only across the 100-mile wide isthmus of Tehuantepec.

Dr. James Novy, chief of field operations, said cold weather this winter should kill screwworms out of California, Arizona, New Mexico and most of Texas, freeing up to 1 billion flies a week for concentration on the Northern Mexico states and deep South Texas. Plans are to move the sterile fly grid farther south each of the next three win-

Meadows warned ranchers, however, the flies have been known to travel as far as 180 miles in search of a livestock wound in which to deposit their eggs and that just one untreated and unreported case can lead to 100 or more within three weeks.

"This makes it crucial that ranchers continue watching their animals and promptly forward samples of any worms found in wounds to the Mission lab for identification," he said.

Pesticide Program Scheduled

TULIA - Swisher County producers will have one last opportunity to complete a training program leading to certification as private applicators at a program scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse in Tulia, according to David Gibson, county extension agent.

The program, one of the optional means of qualifying for certification as a private applicator of restricted-use pesticides, includes a discussion of laws, labels and labeling, pesticide safety, mixing and calibration and pests and pest damage dentification. Prepared by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the program includes a review of certain questions relating to the information presented. The program will require approximately two and a half hours. Those attending will have a opportunity to complete a request for private applicator certification which will be forwarded to the Texas Department of Agriculture for issuance of certification.

As an alternative to participation is a training program, an individual may qualify for certification as a private ap-plicator by completing questionaires, obtained from the extension office in the courthouse, and submitting them to the

Commodities

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT ROLES of a futures exchange is that of providing buyers and sellers of commodities — such as farmers, merchants processors, exporters and retailers — with an opportunity to establish prices for fu-

Individuals and firms who use the futures market for this purpose are thereby able to minimize the risk of adverse price level changes. A vital role also is that of providing a central market place where buyers and sellers from virtually every nation in the world continously compete with one another in the common anguage of price.

Because futures prices serve as a common denominator in a worldwide system of interrelated prices, such a marketplace helps to assure that supply and demand developments wherever they occur will be rapidly reflected in the price of grain wherever it is offered for sale.

Futures markets and futures prices thereby help to provide a constant linkage between local prices and world demand.

THE FUTURES PRICE FOR ANY GIVEN commodity at any given moment is truly a "consensus" price. It is the opinion of a farmer in Minnesota who expects his crop to be smaller because of too little rain combined with the opinion of an Iowa farmer who expects to harvest a bumper crop combined with the option of a feed manufacturer who expects demand to be up because of increased livestock numbers combined with the opinion of an exporter about the outlook for foreign supply and demand.

To these views are added the opinions of others as to what Congress is likely to do about farm legislation, whether and how the European housewife is changing her shopping habits, the prospects for currency stability, the probability that a government report will show smaller or larger than expected grain inventories still on hand, and anyone's best guess as to whether broiler producers will expand their flocks and whether Japan will ease or tighten its import poli-

A futures price thus arrived at becomes a statement of the commodity's value at the present time and under present conditions at that particular location. Although prices in other locations may be dealt with in detail, futures prices that respond almost instantly to changes in supply and demand serve as a benchmark of the current value of commodity.

Futures can be considered forecasts in that they reflect what buyers and sell-ers expect the price to be in a given month on the basis of currently-available information. (It stands to reason that if they expected higher prices, they would buy, thereby driving prices up. And if they expected lower prices, they would sell, thereby driving prices down.) Futures prices can thus provide a valuable tool for farmers and others in making advance plans concerning production, storage and marketing.

BEAR IN MIND, THOUGH THAT FUTURES prices are subject to rapid change as new supply-demand information becomes available, or as there are changes in the way information is interpreted.

An improvement in the outlook for exports, for example, could lead to futures prices being revised upward. Or a slackening in demand could lead to lower fu-

Moreover, a futures price can be affected by the way buyers and sellers react to it. For example, if futures prices were particularly high or low, producers might react by increasing or decreasing production, thereby changing the price

All of this notwithstanding, futures prices are useful guide to forward plan-

Brokers Disagree On Risk Hedges

BOSTON (AP) - Commodity brokers have disagreed over whether the federal government should impose broad customer protection rules on their high-risk

The clash occurred in a recent hearing before the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which proposed the rules in September. The panel is holding a series of hearings around the country before issuing the rules in their final form. expected early next year.

The proposed rules received a general endorsement from Ted Thomte, president of Thomte & Co. of Boston, a major futures trading firm. He said that, "unlike many voices" in the industry, he thought the commission "has approached a difficult task reasonably and

He said the customer protection rules were necessary to build more public confidence in a market generally regarded as highly speculative and dangerous. He urged the commission to encourage persons to trade futures contracts in a more conservative fashion, which he cess to this market.

said could be done by limiting the amount of trading that could be done on

Other witnesses, however, complained the commission was going overboard, strangling brokers with restrictions and

The strongest opposition was ex-pressed by Michael Weiner, counsel for the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. He urged the commission not to attempt to make the commodities market as safe as the stock and bond markets.

"A pork belly is not a municipal bond and no one is pretending it is," he said. He objected especially to proposed "suitability" rules which would forbid investment counselors from recommending transactions that might strain a ustomer's finances.

Warning that such rules would tend to stop brokers from doing business with middle-income people, he said, "Even the proverbial widow with a few thousand dollars should not be refused ac-

Cattle Futures Up In Brisk Trading

Harvesting in southern High Ptains areas is reported to be 70 to 100 percent complete, while the central territory stands at 50 to 75 percent, and northern portions of the region have about 25 to 75 percent of the crop out of the fields.

Most gins have sufficient seed cotton on hand to sustain operations during rainy periods.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

BY DUANE HOWELL

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR CECIL ANDRUS has invoked a reclama-tion law of 1902 to propose severe new acreage limitations on farm landholders

The proposals have implications for federally funded projects throughout the nation.

In substance, here is what would be imposed:

— Rehabilitation of the National Reclamation Act of 1902 to limit land holdings to 160 acres or less on farms where federal water is provided.

— A requirement that farmers sell off within five years any federally-irrigated land they hold in excess of 160 acres. Buyers will be chosen by the government on the basis of a lottery or some other "impartial" means. Terms of the sale will be set by the government. Market prices for land need not prevail.

— An enforced residency of all landholders — whether resident, retired, inheritor or investor — to live on the 160 irrigated acres or within a radius of 50 imiles. The secretary retains the option to narrow the radius of residence even further.

CONGRESS PASSED THE 1902 ACT TO OPEN up arid lands of the West to settlement and development, all of which hinged on one thing — water.

To attract homesteaders the government held out the lure of federal water for irrigation. But homesteaders who took title to the land and used the water were required to pay for it, and over a longer period to pay off the original federal investment in the reclamation facilities that provided it. So while it was to be a long ride for thousdands of pioneering farm families, the opening of the arid West was by no means a free ride.

There were some specific limitations in the act: Tracts using federal water could not exceed 160 acres and they had to be farmed by persons who lived there or very nearby. The act itself was seen as a safeguard against land monopoly by large speculators, or as its sponsors described it as "...carefully guarded in the interest of the home-maker and against the designs of the speculative en-

Back in 1902 - when a man and his two sons horse-plowed the fields and provided enough of the crop to feed themselves and maybe one other — 160 acres was a good-sized plot to till. Today, an epoch away, a man and his two sons — mounted on machines and assisted by the modern chemistry of the soil — can provide enough to feed themselves and possibly 100 others, many of whom live in lands across the seas. And 160 acres now is small potatoes.

THE EXPLOSIVE GROWTH OF AGRICULTURE has made the 160-acre limitation patently unrealistic. Its enforcement was a puzzlement even from the start. Much of what evolved was a matter of honest interpretation by the Bureau of Reclamation, charged with delivery of the waters and administration of Family members were encouraged to put together larger holdings on the basis of 160 acres per member. A standard was 320 acres for a man and his wife. It was a practice which grew out of economic necessity, and has never before been

As matters worked out, farmers could buy federal water for lands they held in excess of 160-acre multiples — if they signed "recordable contracts" to sell off

In 1926, the recordable contract system was officially spelled out by Congress in the Omnibus Readjustment Act, which reviewed much of the whole federal water problem. It transferred administration of water deliveries from the Bu-water on their lands. While they received some favorable tax and interest advantages, they contracted to pay off long-term costs of the construction of dams, reservoirs, canals and delivery systems that provided their water.

No mention was made in the 1926 act of any residency requirements, and both farmers and the Bureau of Reclamation long have held that landholders on federally-irrigated lands were in full compilance with the law.

California, for example, produces 25 per cent of the nation's table food, 40 per cent of its fruit and vegetables, and 20-25 per cent of its cotton. And California agriculture, No. 1 in the nation, has been irrigated in a major way through its complexes of irrigation districts.

Kentucky Court Denies Claim For Tax Refund

tucky Court of Appeals today upheld a Franklin Circuit Court ruling that no part of a corporation's net operating loss could be deducted by a shareholder for Kentucky income tax purposes.

A three-judge panel ruled on an appeal by John Y. and Eleanor Brown of Louis-

Brown was a shareholder of Athletic Enterprises, Inc., a corporation which qualified as a small business corporation known as a subchapter S corporation - under Sections 1371-75 of the internal

For the taxable year ending May 31, 1970, Athletic Enterprises sustained an operating loss of $375,961, and Brown's share of the corporation's loss, as a stockholder, was $70,361.

The Browns, who have since been divorced, filed an amended Kentucky income tax return in 1974 for the 1970 tax year, claiming a $4,220 refund of Kentucky income taxes.

When the state Revenue Department denied the claim, Brown appealed to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals. When the board affirmed the department's ruling. Brown appealed to Franklin Circuit Court, which upheld the board.

Under Section 1374(B) of the internal revenue code, each shareholder of a subchapter S corporation may elect to deduct from gross income an amount equal to his pro rate share of the corporation's net operating loss.

Subchapter S sections of the code were enacted to provide stockholders of small business corporations a means of avoid-rate level and then a second time when operating losses of such a corporation. Brown also pointed out that Kentucky's law was amended in 1974 to exclude both undistributed income and losses, and that the Legislature would not have amended the law if the losses had not been deductible previously.

However, the Revenue Department confided the amendment was intended to clarify, rather than change, the law.

The department also countered Brown's claim that computations of gross income for Kentucky purposes are supposed to be as identical as practicable with those required for federal purposes. The department said federal laws on putation of state taxes only if they are not inconsistent with state laws and regula-

Appellate Judge James Park, writing for the three-judge panel, said the statute must not be considered by itself, but as part of the larger body of income tax law.

He said that provisions of subchapter S are interrelated and interdependent and based on the ability of the corporation to elect not to be subjected to federal taxation twice.

Since Kentucky has not adopted Section 1372 of the internal revenue code, the other portions of subchapter S cannot be brought into Kentucky law "piecemeal," Park wrote. He also said that under the provisions of Kentucky law, there can be no such thing as an "electing small business corporation.

"Therefore, none of the provisions of subchapter S is applicable to individual Kentucky tax liability of a subchapter S corporation shareholder," Park said.

Consider Marc, 20: He came to the school 12 years ago, retarded and selfabusive. Nevertheless, he could jump and run then. Now, after years of being shackled to a bed or wrapped in a strait jacket, he cannot walk.

His feet are deformed from pulling against the shackles. Marc's parents say he received no physical therapy, so the muscles of his legs and feet atrophied. Marc is reduced to pushing himself around in a wheelchair with his twisted feet.

Consider Jim, about 18: Despite signs of normalcy, he is often violent. Because the school cannot afford to give him psychiatric counseling, officials say he likely will stay in the back wards with men who can barely speak and who constantly abuse themselves.

Parents of some patients say years of indifference have left the school no more than a place to hide helpless humans. Ten of them asked the civil rights office of the Justice Department and the FBI last month to investigate whether the consitutional rights of their children were being abused. They say they were driven by "total frustration with the indifference of the legislature and Gov. Meldrim Thomson.' The FBI says the investigation will take at least until the end of the year.

The 74-year-old institution has had a history of keeping retarded adults in the solitary-like confinement of windowless rooms and in restraints such as shackles and strait jackets.

Such remedies are less common now but the hospital still houses many of its 640 residents in bare concrete block rooms. In many wards, one attendant oversees up to 24 patients, many of whom need help to eat, to use a toilet, to control their flailing limbs.

Superintendent Jack Melton says he took his job two years ago with the realization "that I would probably get sued for conditions here.'

Patients often are outfitted with helmets and gloves to keep them from hurting themselves. Some, prone to epileptic fits, are restrained in wheelchairs.

For the hopelessly retarded, the school has no regular psychiatric care, no counseling, no training programs. There are far too many patients to be helped by the school's two occupational therapists and two physical therapists.

The school has a 2-to-1 patient-staff ratio, but the 300-odd attendants are stretched over three shifts. Melton says the school, even after adding 160 attend-

Democrats May Lose Labor Vote

By CLAY F. RICHARDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Angered by the loss of key labor bills this year, the AFL-CIO is considering turning against Democrats in Congress who don't support their program - even if it means the election of anti-labor Republicans.

Al Barkan, director of COPE, the union's multi-million dollar campaign war chest, said Thursday the AFL-CIO is tired of Democrats who vote the labor position on social issues but vote against such bills as common situs picketing, repeal of the Hatch Act and other labor reform measures

'We are seriously considering revising our policy with respect to COPE-endorsed Democrats whom we supported in '76 and who voted against us on a number of labor issues," Barkan told reporters attending a Washington Journalism Center seminar

We used to follow a lesser-of-two-evils policy," he said. "The thinking in the labor movement today ... is whether we ought not do what other groups do namely the bottom line on whether to endorse or not to endorse is how the candidate stands on the particular program of the organization.

"Many of them could not have gotten elected if it were not for us," Barkan added. "We haven't drawn up any hit list or anything like that ..., but if we're going to have any credibility on the (Capitol) Hill, if we're going to turn around and support candidates who voted against us on labor issues, you can well understand others who are taking a chance with us saying: if you support these others why should we be different?"" Barkan was asked if the end result would not be an even more anti-labor Congress than the present one.

Sure it might elect some Republicans," he replied. " ... we suffered (Richard) Nixon and (Gerald) Ford, Republican legislatures and whatnot. We're not going to die because the Republicans, antilabor Republicans, might make some gains in '78."

He said the AFL-CIO is considering three alternatives in next year's elections. Two involve running pro-labor Democrats against members they want defeated in the primaries, and urging support for third-party candidates to draw votes from Democratic targets.

The other option is to stay out of the race altogether and "let these summer soldiers who think - as they tell people - they can win without us" see whether they really can.
"We reject completely the arguments these Democrats offer that 'well, my district is conservative and if we voted for labor we'd never come back," Barkan

He named Democrats from highly conservative districts who vote a straight labor line and easily get re-elected.

"They service their districts, and that's all any one of these guys has to do," he quately for only 300 residents. The rest are consigned to custodial watching: wandering around fluorescentlit rooms, huddled in corners, sprawled on floor mats. Melton says private institutions spend $20,000 a year to care for each of their retarded patients. The Laconia school spends half that.

He says he asked the legislature for $19 million for the next two years, hoping to add 275 staff members. He was told the state could afford no more than $16.4 million, enough for 180 new employees. Twenty of them will be custodial and sec-

Critics say the governor and legislature talk about their concern but never vote that concern into dollars.

The school's budget for the past year was $7.2 million. The total state budget was $1.7 billion.

The problem peculiar to New Hampshire is its tax structure. With no state income tax or sales tax, state policy is to keep expenses down, and the Laconia school is a low priority item.

Several legislators have children at the school. One of them, Republican Alfreda Smith of Nashua, whose teen-age daughter is a resident, was among the parents asking for the federal investigation.

"The only way I could get any money at all was to convince the legislature that if would enable the school to qualify for Medicaid funds," Melton said.

The money only goes so far, Melton says, and he made a decision to concentrate on upgrading care for those who could improve the most.

That leaves out the 58 residents of the Powell Building. The two-story structure, built 13 years ago, houses severely retarded men in four wards. Many are incapable of activity.

The scenes there are eerie.

Piped-in rock music plays loudly in what is called the recreation room, interrupted occasionally by messages meaningless to those who hear them.

Wall Street had a good day today. The Dow Jones average was up 13 points," a group of men heard as they stared into Their "recreation," supervised by a lone attendant, consists of wandering about the room, lying on the floor or sitting on benches.

"There are many people here who may never be able to do more than feed themselves, and we cannot afford to spend the additional money in staff time to stretch their abilities any further," Melton says.

Despite the bleak picture painted by critics, things have improved at the insti-tution since Melton left a job in community mental health in northern New Hampshire to take over here.

The goal is to place as many as possible out into communities. They are released for one year on a provisional basis, living in supervised groups and being treated at

But according to Melton, the school's "deinstitutionalization" program has been hampered because few communities have adequate facilities to help ex-

Audience Drills Sheats, Hance

Avalanche-Journal Staff

LEVELLAND - Two candidates for the Democratic congressional nomination came face to face for the first time Thursday, with Kent Hance stressing his governmental experience and Morris Sheats his powers of "persuasion."

The two aspirants to succeed U.S. Rep. George Mahon were quickly put on the griddle by about 100 persons attending a meeting of the South Plains Democratic Council.

In an opening statement, Sheats, pas-tor of Lubbock's Trinity Church, anticipated a question by saying early he realized some people were wondering why he is running as a Democrat.
"I am running as a Democrat because I have always been a Democrat," he declared flatly, "It's the Democatic party that cares about what happens to people." However, that answer did not satisfy a listener on the front row.

You came on tonight as the greatest Democratic candidate that ever lived... but in your public announcement as you were quoted in the paper, you didn't seem too enthusiastic about the Democratic party, except that there are more Democrats than Republicans," the man said. "What made the difference tonight besides the audience?"

The man referred to an Avalanche-Journal article in which it was noted that Lubbock Republicans were upset at Sheats's decision to run as a Democrat because he had supported some GOP candidates, and members of that party looked on him as one of them. Sheats told the AJ in September he had never liked strict party labels and said his decision to run as a Democrat had been a pragmatic one based on a three-to-one Democrat-GOP registered voter ratio in this area. "I never said I wasn't a Democrat," Sheats answered his questioner. He stressed that over the years he has voted for more Democratic than Republican "I make no bones about it, and I'm proud to be one (a Democrat)," he said. Both candidates were queried closely about their farm policy ideas.

Sheats said he has created an agricultural advisory committee to inform him on farmers' problems. He said that if elected he will push for creation of expanded world markets for farm prod-

"I believe it's a serious mistake when the government holds huge surpluses of commodities on hand," because that can depress the market, he said. Sheats said U.S. Agriculture Department staff for finding world markets needs to be beefed up and paid better.

He also said that along with his support of deregulation of oil and gas, he wants a priority energy listing for farm-Hance replied that world markets "may help on down the road," but said that farmers' immediate needs are for a "set-aside" policy of 30 percentand increased target and loan prices. Hance was asked how he will handle the co-existent problems of inflation and unemployment. He said he supports "risk investment" tax incentives through which businessmen would be encouraged to create jobs; and a "WIN" program, through which employees and businessmen are given tax credits for hiring people who have been on unemployment roles.

How can a freshman congressman be most effective in replacing a man with the clout of Mahon, a veteran of more than 40 years on Capitol Hill, the two Democratic primary contenders were asked.

Hance said he will take the same attitude in Congress he did as a freshman state senator. He said people told him his first year in the Senate to just sit back and learn. "I didn't believe that. You learn before you go take the job," he stated. Hance said he is the man who will know when to speak and when not to, when to push for an amendment and when not to, when to compromise and when not to, because he has spent almost four years doing that in the state legislature.

"I have spent 20 years of my life learning to be a persuasive person... I know how to communicate, I know how to argue, I know how to propose and how to advocate," Sheats said in his turn.

Both men indicated they believe seniority is not as important now as it was some years ago in Congress.

Slaton Man Enters Plea Of Innocent To Slaying

Philip Carey Brasfield, accused slayer of a 6-year-old Lubbock child, pleaded innocent to a capital murder indictment during a brief arraignment procedure Thursday,

Also at the arraignment, Dist. Judge William R. Shaver appointed two attorneys to represent the defendant on the capital charge. Brasfield, 28, a Slaton carpenter, is accused of murdering Johany Turner Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Turner of 1028 E. 29th St., on or about Oct. 26. The indictment alleges Brasfield caused the child's death by asphyxiation conducted in a manner and means unknown to the jurors.

The indictment also alleges Brasfield murdered the child during the course of a where he is being held without bond.

kidnapping, thereby raising the indictment to a capital murder allegation. The indictment-was returned to Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th Dist. Court, but the case has been transferred to Shaver's 140th Dist. Court.

Brasfield was indicted by a jury in May for alleged aggravated sexual abuse of a child. That indictment was returned in Shaver's court. In cases in which a defendant already has an indictment pending, it is customary locally to transfer any new cases to the court where the prior indictment has been returned.

Shaver appointed local attorneys Mark Hall and Dennis McGill to represent Brasfield on the capital charge.

After being arraigned, the defendant was returned to Lubbock County Jail,

Getty Oil Sues For Removal Of Energy Department Fine

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)- The Getty Oil Co. has accused a U.S. Senate subcommittee of improperly pressuring federal energy officials into fining it $85 million for allegedly illegal oil transactions abroad. In a suit filed in U.S. District Court here, the company claimed the citation should be thrown out because of the "impermissible pressure" of the Senate subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure. At the time the incident allegedly took place Sen. Edward M. Kennedy chaired the subcommittee. Kennedy's name was not mentioned in the suit.

Last month, the Department of Energy fined Getty, saying it had violated federal oil price controls. The allegedly illegal transactions began in 1973 before price

LoVaca Firm Reports Loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Coastal States Gas Corp. says its subsidiary, LoVaca Gathering. made $6.1 million profit the first nine months of the year on sales of liquids stripped from gas but continues to lose money on natural gas sales. The report said the $6.1 million compares with $3.5 million in earnings the same period last year. The third period earnings totaled $2.2 million, up from $1.8 million. Coastal States released its quarterly financial report Nov. 3. However, no reference to LoVaca was made until a more detailed report was released this week to security holders.

The report said the losses on sales of natural gas from LoVaca's intrastate system were attributed to an inadequate interim rate set by the Texas Railroad

A financial footnote on LoVaca said the diary had revenues of $873 million the first fine months, compared with $726 million the same period last year. Revenues the third quarter totaled $292 million, up from $262 million for the same 1976 period.

controls and continued through 1976. It was the first time an oil company was ordered to make payment to the treasury department for such violations. The suit charged that federal energy officials decided in November 1974 that the transactions were permissible and a not-ice of probable violation was withdrawn. On Aug. 1, 1975, the subcommittee wrote federal energy officials that the transactions circumvented the intent of Congress, according to the suit. Energy officials were criticized the following June by the subcommittee chairman during a public hearing for not properly enforcing price regulations, the suit Then, in August 1976, the company received notice that the citations were being reconsidered, according to the suit.

"(The decision) was based on impermissible pressures from congressional sources which had intruded into the Department of Energy's proceedings and deprived Getty of a fair and impartial determination of its case," the suit charged.

No Love Affairs Foreseen In Space

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Evelyn Hu, a physicist who is one of 120 applicants for astronaut positions in the U.S. space shuttle program, says she thinks men and women can work well together in

"I can't foresee any problems working with men," said Miss Hu, 30, "As to a full-flowered romance in space, I can't see it. There would just be too many other things to do."

Miss Hu is a research physicist at Bell Laboratories in Holmdel.

Fifteen "mission specialist" will be se-lected to work on shuttle flights planned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the 1980s. Selection is to begin late this year or early next.

Miss Hu, a native of New York City,

Daydreaming Found As Effective As TM

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Daydreaming is good for the health and people can slip into any situation that is pleasant for to different people. Some people are them without using hypnotism or transcendental meditation, says a researcher who studied how to relax.

"All work, not one better than another." said Dr. Louis Dubin, a dentist who teaches a course on hypnotism at the Temple University School of Dentistry. He was part of a four-man relaxation study team for 18 months.

Dubin likened relaxing more to a flight into fancy, a mind-visiting trip to somewhere else - or doing something you like, which always makes a person feel

"It used to be if you closed your eyes, sat back in a comfortable chair, maybe listened to music, that this environment of doing nothing was regarded as relaxing." Dubin said in an interview.

IRS Complex Won't Smell Like Rose

AUSTIN (AP) - No more flowers for your income tax collector.

That's the latest ruling from the regional Internal Revenue Service headquarters just south of Austin — and it may start another war of roses.

"We're not sure if they think there's going to be a bomb in the flowers, or that an employee might be away from their desk five minutes," said Ann Merriman, one of several Austin florists who have complained.

Actually the ban isn't just on flowers. The IRS has stopped all personal deliveries to its regional complex, including prescription drugs. Officials said it was partly for security and partly because it was just taking "too much time" for employees to come to the reception desk to receive deliveries.

'It's no good to send flowers home." said Mrs. Merriman. "It's kind of like jewelry. You want everyone to know that you've got it. If a lady gets flowers at home, no one knows about it."

Florist Caroline Jenkins said she suspects the real reason for stopping the flowers has nothing to do with security.

'Sometimes government jobs involve a lot of, you know, messing around. I think they're trying to crack down.'

mistake, that relaxation is unique to the individual, that it means different things geared to move rapidly. They have to be doing something. Their best way of relaxing is doing what pleases them the most playing tennis or scuba diving, skiing or driving a racing car.

"Relaxation is a pleasant emotional state which subsequently results in a pleasant physical state," he said.

"Suppose you enjoyed the seashore," Dubin suggested. "You conjure a mental picture of a beautiful balmy day, the sun shining, the water rolling up the beach, the seagull flying by.
"With no other thoughts you let yourself go into whatever is pleasant for you. You leave your body where it is and transport your mind to another location and experience.

"If you stop being on guard as you do in the course of your business, your professional or your social life, and let go physically and emotionally, all the tension, all hension, all the facade you create for the people around you, you are completely free of all responsibility.

'The muscles relax, the mind relaxes, the physical well-being of the person is almost divorced from his body and he will relate to what pleases him the best."

Dr. Donald Morse, an associate professor of endodontology at Temple's dental school, headed the team that measured the physiological body responses of 37 men and 11 women.

"The real shocker was that the instruction to relax did achieve deep relaxation." Morse said.

The Temple research concentrated on five states of relaxation; alert, relaxationhypnosis, task-hypnosis, meditation and simple relaxation.

Morse noted that the machines that checked brain waves, blood pressure. pulse rate, skin resistance and muscle activity "couldn't tell the difference" when trying to distinguish hypnosis and medititation relaxation from just thinking pleasant thoughts.

Dubin has taught hundreds of dentists. around the nation how to use hypnosis on patients in the office and operating

People Rent Woman To Do Shopping

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A nurse who goes shopping for a hobby is renting herself out for $15 during the coming Christmas season to people who hate to fight the crowds.

For that $15 fee, Anita Strickland will sit down with you to decide who gets what gift and how much you want to spend.

Then for another $15, she'll go out and do the shopping, up to 10 items. After that, it's $1 an item.

If the customer prefers, Mrs. Strickland will do the shopping for a flat rate of $15 an hour.

"I got the idea from a woman's magazine I was reading last summer," said Mrs. Strickland, a nurse at Rex Hospital here. "The article said you should try to run a business doing something you truly enjoy. And I truly enjoy shopping."
The woman in the article bought gifts year round.

"She even had a reminder service where she'd send post-cards reminding businessmen that their wives' birthdays were coming up," she said.

The woman charged $30 an hour. "That seemed like a bit much to me, so I just kind of reduced it."

Mrs. Strickland's rates and other conditions she puts on her services are set down in a contract drawn up by an attor-

Remarried Catholics Still Forbidden To Share Communion

NEW YORK (AP) - The lifting of the penalty of excommunication for Roman Catholics who remarry after divorce openly welcomes them back into participation in the church - but not into sharing Holy Communion.

For that, they'd have to take further steps to regularize their status. The new action was intended to encourage them to take those steps.

It now "is up to them to take the next step by approacing parish priests and diocesan tribunals to see whether the return to full Eucharistic communion is possible," says Bishop Cletus F. O'Don-curing the change.

The excommunication decree's removal, voted last spring by U.S. bishops and approved by Pope Paul VI in an announcement last week, does, however, formally invite divorced, remarried Catholics to participate in church life.

"It offers them a share in all the public prayers of the church community," O'Donnell says. "It restores their right to take part in church services. It removes certain canonical restrictions on their participation."

Many in practice have been taking part with their pastors' approval, while not receiving Communion, despite the 1884 Baltimore Council's excommunication decree, but its revocation gives explicit, official sanction to the growing practice.

But it doesn't, in itself, remove the barrier to sharing Communion. Nor does it alter the church's insistence on the permanent indissolubilty of valid marriages. However, for the nation's estimated three million remarried Catholics - half of the six million who have divorced various moderating moves have taken place to smooth their way back into full communing participation.

Basically, this requires a conclusion that the previous marriage was not a real der church principles.

But formally, such a decision must come from diocesan marriage tribunals. Their procedures have been simplified and speeded up to facilitate the process, although it still is clogged in handling the volume

Broader grounds for annulments also now range from psychological or emotional immaturity at the time of the first marriage to evidence of merit in the sec-

While the number of annulments has swelled 30 fold in the last eight years, it still falls far short of the number of Catholic divorces. Also policies of the tribunals vary sharply from diocese to diocese.

Another way divorced, remarried Catholics can return to Communion is through "internal forum" decisions in their own, informed consciences.

This private alternative is occurring increasingly, through pastoral counselling when evidence is unavailable for a formal tribunal annulment, but when the conclusion is reached in "good faith" that grounds exist for it anyway.

Bishops Define Limits For Sex

By GEORGE W. CORNELL WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Roman Catholic bishops are reaffirming their stand that sexual intercourse is morally right only within marriage and always wrong outside it.

At the same time, their doctrinal committee has denounced a Catholic theological study favoring more flexible standards. The two actions came this were at a meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

They approved a section of a new national teaching guide condemning contraception and sterilization, declaring that sexual intercourse is a "moral and human good only within marriage."

The bishops added that, "for a Christian, therefore, premarital sex, extramarital sex, adultery, homosexual behavior or other acts of impurity are forbidden." Simultaneously, the bishops' doctrinal committee assailed as contrary to church teaching and morally unsound a recent theological study saying the ethics of sex acts hinge not on absolute rules but on the particular circumstances. This "departs from the teaching of the church," eliminates "objective criteria" for evaluating sex acts and undermines the "demands of sound morality," the committee said.

Repudiating the study's conclusions, they said that "by abandoning norms that make specific demands," the study reaches the conclusion that sexual activity outside of marriage can be permissible or even virtuous.

"The norms are wrong and potentially dangerous," Bishop Walter W. Curtis of Bridgeport, Conn., told a news confer-Catholic Thought," was made by a five-member committee of the Catholic Theological Society of America and issued by it, arousing wide interest and varying re-

It says the morality of all sexual acts, including the church-condemned extra-marital and premarital sex, masturbation and homosexual behavior, are to be judged not by fixed rules but by higher ethical standards within the context of particular situations.

Citing those standards, the study says sex acts are moral if they contribute "creative growth" and "integration of human personality" and are "honest, faithful, self-liberating, other-enriching, socially responsible, life-serving and joy-

Such criteria "are too vague to apply with any kind of precision or assurance,' the bishops committee said.

In evaluating sexual morality, the bishops said, "It is not enough to take only the good intention and motives into account; objective criteria must be used ... drawn from the nature of the human person and ... the total meaning of mutual self-giving and human procreation in the context of true love."

The bishops also adopted stringent new guidelines on fund-raising by all church dioceses and religious orders, insisting on regular public accounting of administrative costs, purposes of the funds and their specific uses.

There have been failures in this area," said Archbishop Thomas A. Donnellan of Atlanta. "We're laying down clear requirements for full and open accountability and steps to make sure that they're Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia supported the proposed change, saying it would be "of practical uses" in restraining what he called unsound teaching.

But the proposal was defeated after Bishop William E. McManus of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Ind., complained that it would portray bishops as "kind of policemen ready to pounce down on any-

Prayer Week Launched By Church

Each week, more than 250 persons of Lubbock's Broadway Church of Christ are involved in a "round-the-clock," 24 hours-per-day prayer ministry.

Early this month the church revitalized its 24-hour prayer ministry to involve more persons and to embark on the extensive 168-hour per week ministry. Also, site for praying has been changed from a designated site at the church to any spot, persons signed up for the particular hour, can pray.

Actually the Broadway Church of Christ Prayer Ministry began a 24-hour program back in January of 1975. Under this program, an hour each week was spent in prayer in a room designated for the purpose. A prayer book was maintained with information about prayer requests placed in a book at the prayer room. Carolyn Lanier and Sue Duncan, and others, spent countless hours preparing the prayer book.

An effort was launched early this month to expand the ministry to involve more persons. More than 250 persons had signed after the first Sunday involvement cards were distributed.

More persons now can take part, in-cluding those who are unable to be active or go to the designated prayer room.

Persons becoming involved in the prayer ministry are asked to dedicate a specific hour per week for congregation family concern. A prayer list will be mailed out each Wednesday to those participating. The prayer list will include names of elders, staff members, Bible school teachers, missionaries and deacons, plus names of sick or bereaved persons, special prayer requests, programs of work,

The list will be kept in Jerry Roberts' office. He is minister of evangelism. As needs become known, they should be added to the list by request.

The designated prayer room still be will be available for those who want to use it for prayer.

The program is being expanded to involve more persons, particularly shut-ins, who cannot come to the prayer room,' Minister Joe Barnett pointed out.

Persons of the church choosing hours to pray should contact Jerry Roberts' office and inform where the time of prayer is being spent - home, office, where ev-

Church members participating are encouraged to meet their commitments to pray each week and when unable to do so, contact someone to take their place.

Broadway minister Barnett stated: 'We will love our brethren only to the degree that we pray for them. The prayer ministry is something everyone can be involved in. It is the most powerful minis-

Foursquare Church Conducting Crusade

Evangelist Steve Smart is conducting an area-wide "Come-Together Crusade" at Lubbock's First Foursquare Gospel Church, located at 3115 2nd St.

The crusade opened last Sunday and will be concluded Sunday (November 20). The final week day night service will be at 7:30 p.m. today.

His wife, Glenna, is assisting with the music for the crusade. Pastor Phil Demetro said the evangelist has a special ministry in prayer for the sick and those seeking spiritual renewal, along with a music ministry with his wife.

Sunday services will be at 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m. and the theme will be "Show Me Thy Glory."

Providence...

... the capital of Rhode Island! The river on which that city is situated! But both derive their common name from a word that meant much to the early Pilgrims.

The word providence stands for the goodness, the faithfulness of God. It reminds men that He has provided everything to meet our daily needs. It dwells on spiritual as well as material blessings.

Thanksgiving is man's reverent response to God's providence. In colonial history that word became associated with a single day, an occasion set aside for appreciating our blessings . . . expressing gratitude in worship and celebration.

But providence is a reason for worshipping God all year. And it is a reason for celebrating our religious convictions in daily concern for one another.

'Old Blue Eyes' To Appear In First TV Movie

By JAY SHARBUTT LOS ANGELES (AP) — Well, Old Blue Eyes is back again. This time, Frank Sinatra, 61, is in a three-hour NBC movie, "Contract on Cherry Street," which airs

this Saturday night.
It's his first TV movie. He plays a deputy police inspector in New York, where the movie was made. He runs an alite unit formed to fight organized crime and

His crime-fighting force contains such fine actors as Martin Balsam, Harry Guardino, Henry Silva and Michael

As "Contract" is about cops and mobsters, shots are occasionally heard. And no less than 14 hearties, mostly bad guys, are dispatched during this proceeding, written by Edward Anhalt.

True, 14 KIAs may be a mite excessive. But they are so spread out over the three hours, and the gore and on-camera viol-ence is so minimal, Dirty Harry would turn over in his shoulder holster.

When it's time for a guy to be "taken out," a euphemism for "a hit," you usually only see the assailant firing his artillery at the camera, or a few .45-caliber air vents put in car windshields.

(There is much ado about folks being "taken out." If you don't pay attention, you may feel you're in a short-order corpse cafe.)

The film is a morality tale about honest, cynical cops tired of seeing their ef-forts sabotaged by their superiors, fainthearted prosecutors and overly lenient

At one point, an embittered Balsam suggests the police take the law into their own hands, noting that even Sinatra at one time or another has "taken out" a no-goodnik.

"Of course, I have," Frank gently replies. "So have a lot of other guys. But that's like playing God." And he nixes ing battle against stolen car parts operations involving two competing mobs.

decent, brooding police veteran who never tells his wife (Verna Bloom) what's bugging him, a theme you may have seen exercised before in "Police Story."

Frustration is what's bugging him. And he finally sanctions police lawlessness when Balsam is slain by a black baddle (Johnny Barnes) during a raid on a garage where stolen cars are stripped for Barnes has his hands up, but Sinatra coldly blasts him. As the deceased, whom-Frank disliked anyway, worked for one of the two mobs, a plan is hatched for further police revenge.

The gendarmes try to spark a war of the mobs by killing the leader of one gang. The plan doesn't work out, but bodies still fall and Guardino turns out to ies still fall and Guardino turns out to have a minor problem; He enjoys killing. Sinatra does a good job, but the plot gets mighty murky, the dialogue occasionally is laughable, and this "Contract" seems padded. Its pace might have been better at two or 2 1/2 hours.

All things considered, though, it's a passable way to kill. Saturday night If you've nothing better to do. But considering the talented cast, it's a pity they had nothing better to do.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: How long was Judy Garland on the drugs that eventually led to her death? - Gail Satz, Coconut Grove, Fla.

A: All the way back to her early days at MGM, Louis B. Mayer knew he had a gold mine in the newcomer, but also one with a weight problem. "That's why," Judy once told James Bacon, 'Mayer assigned a special cook to me which I thought was a sort of status symbol. Since even Garbo didn't have her own cook." What the kid didn't know, at the time, was the reason the cook got the assignment was to grind Benzedrine (an appetite suppressant) into her food. "I learned about this years later, after I had two mental breakdowns and tried suicide...that the cook had been paid to doctor my food. She begged me to forgive her, which I did, and we both cried and hugged and kissed, said Judy. From the pep pills, which shot her up, the teen-aged superstar-to-be natually turned to tranquilizers and sleeping pills that slapped her down. "If there had been a pill that made me go sideways," she concluded, "I probably would have taken

Q: Isn't the Rev. Billy Graham planning to quit preaching and become a movie and TV actor? - A.R., Evansville, Ind. A: We doubt it. "Years ago Cecil B. Demille offered me a role in one of his spectacular movies," Dr. Graham once told us, "but I turned it down. Several years later I got a definite offer to do a morning show for a TV network, but said no to that,

Q: Didn't Rock Hudson once run for mayor of Los Angeles? - K.K., Minneapolis

A: You're close, Rock once ran for mayor of Universal City, Calif., as a publicity gag. His "worthy opponent" was his favorite girl friend at the time, the late Marilyn Maxwell.

Q: Actor Rock Stevens, who was in the movie "Muscle Beach Party," looks so much like Peter Lupus of "Mission Impossible." Are they brothers? - M. O'Connor, Springfield, Mass. A. No. They're one and the same. When Lupus made movies like "Hercules and the Tyrants of Babylon" and "Goliath at the Conquest of Damascus," he acted under the name of Rock Ste-

Q: What kind of subjects will Betty Ford Likely discuss if and when she joins her husband in his TV network talks? Or in her own network specials? - Mrs. H.R., St. Louis.

A: The former First Lady is likely to remove the brass knuckles from under her suede gloves and whip up a few feuds. Such as: In response to her husband's first press secretary, Jerry Terhorst (who resigned after his boss pardoned Dick Nixon), Mrs. Ford said she felt that in his article about "the 'Fords' moneygrabbing appearance,' Jerry forgot to look at the other side of the coin. After all, he didn't become a well-known columnist until after he left the White House. It was a stepping-stone for

Reacting to President Carter's admonition earlier this year that people "living in sin" should get married, Mrs. Ford said: 'He sounds like a very good evangelist, but I don't think that's his business.

Thought she reveals she still supports passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, Betty Ford no longer actively works for ERA, explaining: "I just don't think we were well enough or-

She believes the Carter administration's cutting off Medicaid funds for abortion is wrong. "A woman who is poor and cannot afford to go to a good hospital or doctor — you're driving her right back into that butchering business. I believe the Supreme Court originally made the right decision. That was bringing abortion out of the backwoods and into the hospitals, where it belongs." Mrs. Ford made a number of such revelations in a re-

Q: Is it true that Katharine Hepburn remained a spinster all her life because of her great love for the already-married Spencer Tracy? - D. McLeach. Providence, R.I.

A: No. Miss Hepburn was no spinster. She was once married, back in 1928, to a Philadelphian named Ogden Ludlow Smith. Six years later, they had what was described as an "amicable di-

Amtrak To Discontinue Florida Route

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amtrak will discontinue the Floridian passenger train between Chicago and Florida, because it's among the most unprofitable routes in the rail system.

Those words have been translated into a two-hour ABC Theatre presentation, 'Mary White," to be broadcast tonight at

Young Star Lives Up To Billing

By MARY CAMPBELL NEW YORK (AP) - The Dancers and Musicians of Bali performed a program of Hindu temple dances at Carnegie this week to hypnotic effect.

The company's 12-year-old star, I Way-an Pasek Yusabawa, who had been ill, was able to perform his solo, "Baris Ksatriya," but was replaced in the five-man Baris Penyamutan.

The boy was tested at a New York hospital for dengue fever, which he might have contracted before he left home, but test results were not known.

His tiny, round-cheeked face was solemn and everything about him was in-tense. The solo has vigorous walking sleps and dramatic arm thrusts. The small dancer performed it as though he were a mighty warrior managing to con-trol himself, but about to burst forth and destroy entire armies

Even ailing, he lived up to rave reviews received in Europe last spring.

A gamelan orchestra created music with sounds like bells, xylophones, drums and one recorder. The music would change but not develop, as a Western symphony does.

The dancing also changed but didn't develop. Watching it created a mesmerized feeling; you couldn't take your eyes off Dancers were barefoot. They walk, then move one leg while standing on one foot. They don't bend their torsos often but do move their arms. The men spread their fingers and flutter one at a time.

The women bend, sway their hips and move their heads side by side. When four dance, two are in front of two. There are no jumps and lifts as in ballet, but the dancing is more lively than what we have seen from Java and Thailand.

Costumes were in rich colors of heavy silk. Men depicting warriors had wide ribbons, looking like large leather book-marks, hanging from shoulders to knees. Their faces were solemn and their glance swept dramatically to the side, while heads were motionless.

The evening ended with a 20-minute drama in which dancers also sang and epoke and where two wore smilling devil lassks and clowned around.

The troupe is from Sebatu, a mountain village of 1,200. Dances done on this tour of the U.S., the Caribbean and Canada were prepared by Jacques Brunet, a French ethnomusicologist. None has been seen in America before.

Where the show is weak is simply in its concentration on the last weeks in the normal, everyday life of a 16-year-old Kansas girl who loved to ride horseback (she died after a fall from a horse), cared about her fellow man and had an outgoing, almost contagious love of life.

The last few years have not been kind to the 51-year-old Hefner. His fabled Playboy mansion in Chicago is on the block, his $4 million Bunny jet has been sold, the Internal Revenue Service is examining his books and his long-time girlfriend, Barbi Benton, decided to spend

A new high-powered campaign has pro-duced a record number of ad pages in Playboy's December issue, and new magazines, including a sex publication for women, are on the drawing board.

And because of his success in running casinos in England, Hefner is eager to open a $60 million casino club in Atlantic City by 1980.

Unlike most successful publishers, much of Hefness expansion was outside the communications field. He opted instead for Playboy clubs and hotels, Playboy bar trinkets, a modeling agency, record company and a limousine service.

"Some of the diversity was a mistake, some was fortunate. If we hadn't gone into the clubs we wouldn't have been in the easino business," he said in a recent interview. "When the recession came (in the early 1970s) it became obvious. I think New York City and Playboy got all of the publicity in terms of it." Hefner said he was suprised by Play-boy's impact on the magaine world, noting that four of the top 10 selling magazines on the newstands are sex-oriented. But because of an order from Hefner two years ago. Playboy held the line on sexual explicitness at a time when other magazines were testing the legal limits.

"I felt the magazine was out of balance. The notion of the magazine from the beginning was not that one could draw a line in terms of what was acceptable sexual content, because that changes as society changes.

'Merchant' Play Gets

Criticism By WILLIAM GLOVER NEW YORK (AP) — The kinky dramatic notion of "The Merchant," which bowed this week at Broadway's Plymouth Theater, is to transform Shylock into a jolly old gaffer who never really wanted a pound of flesh. Arnold Wesker's new view of a lot of what we remember from Shakespeare's. "The Merchant of Venice" comes off as superior theatrical effort that only fitful-

The players have to say a lot more than is really necessary to make all his revi-Semitism which latter-day audiences frequently feel dominates the maestro of Stratford's classic.

Wesker, who used to be known as one of England's angry young playwrights, dug into the original stories upon which Shakespeare built his opus, to reach his own conclusions. For a bit of literary fun, he borrows three brief lines from the old drama, one of them hilariously out of context. Shylock and his victim, Antonio, are depicted as a couple of convivial cronies who make the famous penalty bond as a kind of mockery of the stern laws of Venice. When despite all auguries it falls due, however, they end up in the Doge's

Portia, no legal eagle this time but an outspoken feminist, supplies solution for the dilemma without any flowery speeches. She just points out that terms of the contract are vague and so the whole thing is not binding. Shylock loses his library as

The Bassanio-Portia romance is handled at a romantic minimum. His choice of the winning chest turns into a mutual criticism of parental eccentricity. In another turnabout, Portia assures everyone she will save prodigal daughter Jessica from marrying Lorenzo, who like Bassanio is a pompous snob.

Joseph Leon, who replaced the late Zero Mostel, portrays Shylock with middling effectiveness in the prolix, sometimes confusing course of events.

Sir John Clements, in his American debut, has the patrician Antonio in fine control, and Roberta Maxwell radiates chilly feminism. Everett McGill and Nicolas Surovy are thematically unpleasant as Lorenzo and Bassanio.

Julie Garfield's breathy Jessica and Marian Seldes, as Shylock's sister, do what they can with underwritten assignments. There are quite a few other performers around with superficial bits to do under John Dexter's somewhat operatic direction.

The unit setting by Jocelyn Herbert, who also provided the Renaissance costumes, is an inner stage triptych through which the action maneuvers.

"The Merchant" has curiosity appeal. with effectiveness limited by over-writing and its self-conscious determination to reverse the old story.

French Actress Leslie Caron Explains Interest In Writing

LONDON (AP) - Three years ago Leslie Caron discovered she was 42 and had nothing to do. "I was at a turning point in my life," she said. "I could either turn to writing or drinking. I chose the pen."

Miss Caron remembered that decision while in London for the world premiere of her latest film, "Valentino," a biographical extravaganza based on the life of the 1920s silent screen lover Rudolph

In the movie that casts ballet star Rudolf Nureyev in the title role, Miss Caron portrays Alla Nazimova, a flamboyant Russian-born Hollywood film star who chose Valentino as her leading man in the 1921 production of "Camille."

"Nazimova is a very exciting, largerthan-life lady and naturally I'm playing her like that," said the French actress.

But the role also calls for a mature "older" woman. The beautiful coquette of "Gigi," the simple village beauty of "Fanny," and the innocent ingenue of "An American in Paris" now fills that requirement with mature grace and her own special style.

At 45, her green eyes sparkle in a nest of wrinkles. In a fashion season which has brought a French haute couture revival of the "cute little girl" look Gigi made famous 20 years ago, she wears simple classics suitable for the mother of two children who are now at Cambridge University.

But the flair of the actress is there, evident in the famous wide mouth outlined in flamboyant pink, matching the soft folds of a sweater cut low to show off a tanned neck free of lines. The firm chin and dancer's figure are testimonials to the strenuous exercise the former ballerina has just put in on summer stock stages from Tulsa to Toronto.

It has been 26 years since Gene Kelly spotted her dancing in "The Sphinx" in Paris and made her a star by casting her in the lead female role of "An American in Paris.'

Rich Demands Winning Performance From Band

By WILLIAM GILLEN

NEW YORK (AP) - Buddy Rich bounded in the door, wearing a New York Yankees baseball cap and a silver racing-driver's jacket. He looked like a trim high school coach.

Rich was taking the field. Not to play a game, but to record an album with his 14member band, which occasionally calls itself the "Killer Force.

Meanwhile, the band members began drifting into the studio, kibitzing with each other and Rich and getting their in-struments set up. Eventually — at one point Rich sat on a stool in the middle of the studio and read a favorable newspaper review - the band settled down to concentrate on the music.

After cutting the first side, Rich and the band members went to the control room to listen to what the longtime jazz drummer calls the "best big band I've ever worked with.

The informally dressed jury - foreman Rich was wearing jeans, a short-sleeved black shirt with a Ferrari logo and jogging shoes - reviewed its own work and pronounced itself satisfied. After the break, the band went back into the studio to finish the session "Was that as great as I thought it was?" Rich, wiping the perspiration off his face with a white towel, asked at the end.

The scene in the control room, with Rich in the middle concentrating on the performance, was repeated, and the result - a swinging, cohesive sound - met the coach's approval. With a "Good night, folks," he dismissed his team. At 60, Buddy Rich, whom some critics have called the "world's greatest drummer," radiates energy. He is his own greatest competition.

Buddy demands the best. He demands a high level of concentration. That's why I like this band," said Greg Smith, a baritone saxophone player from Scituate, Rich's attitude toward his players is

"I'm their coach. I'm their friend. I try to instill pride in them," said Rich, with a hint in his voice of the U.S. Marine Corps he served in during World War II.

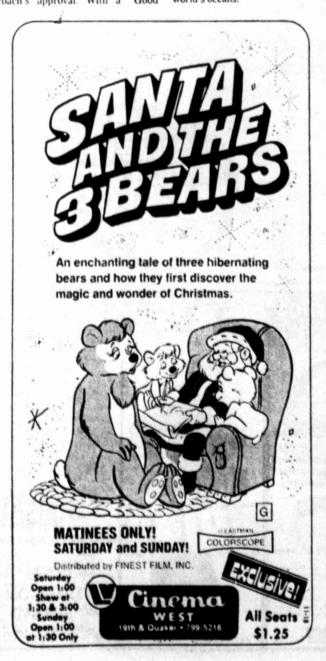

"If I can do it at 60, so can they ... I sure don't want to hear any bad notes. I don't care what they do until 8 at night, but from 8 p.m. until whenever we finish they belong to me.'

Typically, the band members have played with other bands before joining up with Rich. They're young - the average age is 24 - and on the road a lot; 80 percent of their engagements are before high school and college audiences.

"It's not what they are when they come, it's what they become after playing with us," Rich said.

We're like the Dodgers or the Red Sox or the Yankees," Rich said, explaining the band's outlook. "When we go out there, we go out to win."

the distant phone number.

An operator will come on the line briefly to complete the call.

One-Plus is still the cheapest way to make your long distance calls, but Zero-Plus means you can now complete all of your other long distance calls in three seconds or less.

ELECTRONIC SWITCHING SYSTEM—Faster, more reliable calling-that's what Electronic Switching (ESS) gives you. If your number begins with 79, your telephone will be served by this new system beginning the weekend of November 19-20.

Besides faster service, ESS allows us to begin offering in December such useful and inexpensive features as:

Call Waiting-When you're in the middle of a conversation and someone else is trying to call you, you will hear a signal that you have a call waiting. You can then put your first call on "hold" and answer the second.. You can even switch back and forth between the calls.

Call Forwarding—When you are leaving your home or office, you can have your incoming calls automatically switched to another number without your caller even knowing it. You merely dial in a code and the number.

Three-Way Calling—This feature allows two other people in different locations to be on the line with you at the same time-even on long distance calls.

Speed Calling-This allows you to dial only one or two digits of a number-even a long distance number.

One difference in ESS that you should know about: When you call from a 79 telephone number to non-ESS numbers, you will notice a four to six-second delay after you have finished dialing and before you hear the ring. The numbers are being stored in the ESS computer before being sent to the downtown office. Nothing is wrong with your phone when this happens. Calls to other ESS office-served numbers will mean instantaneous connection.

ESS Schedule-745, 742 and 743 numbers now have ESS. 79 numbers will have ESS beginning November 19. 76, 744, 747 numbers will have ESS beginning in the fourth quarter of 1978.

This conversion is the first phase of a complete telephone service improvement program that will give Lubbock one of the best telephone systems anywhere-100 per cent ESS and Zero-Plus by the end of 1978. We are proud of that fact and we know you will like these new and better services. We thank you for making it possible.

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff AMARILLO — The moans and groans from the Caprock this week came from the northwest side of town where Tascosa football coach Jocko Harris tried to prepare for Monterey.

Harris' Rebels rejoiced a couple of weeks ago when they whipped defending District 3-AAAA champ Amarillo High 33-14. But tonight it's a heavyweight group from southwest Lubbock that arrives to defend its bidistrict grid title in Dick Bivins Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

TEXAS TECH HEAD coach Steve Sloan says that he's glad the Raiders chose to play Baylor at the beginning of this season, rather than at conclusion. Tech had its choice of playing the Bears when it did (Sept. 10) or on Dec. 4. "We decided to play them early because they had some inexperience at quarterback, and we figured that if we played them at the end of the season, their quarter-

The Raiders are apparently headed for the Dec. 23 Tangerine Bowl, and Sloan would be happy about a bowl berth because it would mean Tech would be on

"Well, I'm not sure, but they've got a bunch of players back from last year.
Their defense made one touchdown hold up twice in the playoffs last year. So you would have to say it was their defense which made them so tough," the Tascosa coach said.

On most occasions, the Monterey defenders could have made one touchdown stand up this year, too. MHS allowed 13 points against Wichita Falls Rider and 14 (late in the game) at Pampa. The Monterey coach complimented the defensive team's play after Thursday's workout.

"It's really hard to say whether they are better than last year's defense or not. In some areas, we are better and in some we probably aren't. But we allowed 54 points last season in 10 games and we allowed 54 again this year. And each defense shut out four opponents, so it's hard to say," Odom stated.

One thing you can take to the bank is the size of this Monterey defense. The Tascosa coach claimed MHS would possess more size than any team on Tascosa's schedule by far.

The only one that even resembled them in size was Midland High on our schedule," Harris said. "And I'm not sure they were quite as big overall."

Another aid to the MHS defense will be the return of free safety Greg Iseral, who missed segments during the last half of

TCU Heisman Winner O'Brien Dead At 60

FORT WORTH (AP) — Davey O'Brien, the tiny quarterback who led Texas Christian to a national champion ship in 1938 while winning the Heisman Trophy for himself in the process, died today. He was 60. O'Brien, whose name is still sprinkled throughout the TCU record book, had been hospitalized since June.

Utilizing every ounce and inch of his 5foot-7, 155-pound frame, O'Brien guided the Horned Frogs to an undefeated, untied 1938 season that was capped with a 15-7 victory over Carnegie Tech in the Sugar Bowl.

"He was everything," said O'Brien's coach, L.R. "Dutch" Meyer, who directed TCU teams for 19 years. "He was the best play selector, the greatest field general I ever saw.

O'Brien still holds TCU records in most touchdown passes in a season (19),

Iseral's Return Strengthens Defense

"Iseral should be ready to go. We just depend on him to do a lot of things because of his speed. We can do things in our defense which we couldn't do without his speed and ability," the Monterey coach said.

Tonight's defensive job revolves around containing Tascosa's traps and screen passes. The Rebels led District 3-AAAA this year in total offense with full-back Stan Frampton and tailback Don Another Monterey ally should be experience in the playoffs. By reaching the semifinals last year, most of these Plainsmen learned the playoff trail very well.

By CARTER CROMWELL

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff HOUSTON — Texas Tech and Houston, teams with a large common problem this season, will clash Saturday night at 7:30 in the Astrodome. The difference could well be that Tech's big problem is dissipating, while Houston's isn't.

The principal problem for both teams has been the injury to each team's outstanding quarterback-Danny Davis of Houston and Rodney Allison of Tech. The two were the leaders of their teams, and their injuries have kept both clubs from being SWC title contenders at this

Houston is 4-4 and only 2-3 in league play. Tech, though eliminated, for all practical purposes, from the conference race because of its two SWC losses, is 7-2 and is expected to receive a bid to the Tangerine Bowl at 6 p.m. Saturday.

With Allison back in the starting lineup the past two weeks, Tech has scored 94 points, rolled up 734 yards and exhibited a stronger penchant for long, sustained scoring drives. That important quality of an offense had been missing.

Whitfield, Dunbar Gun Down Morton

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
If any team had a right to go into its first game of the year intimidated it would have to have been the Dunbar Panthers.

After all, the Panthers were going gainst the defending Class AA champie Morton Indians, a team that is expected to again make a run for the crown.

But instead of shaking in their Convers-es, the Panthers, behind the 18-point showing of Greg Whitfield, took command of the contest in the second half to score an impressive 64-56 win in the DHS gym Thursday night.

And realistically, the game wasn't even that close as the Indians unloaded with a 6-point scoring barrage with 48 seconds left in the game to cut the Dunbar lead to

Although the Panthers started slow, trailing 19-14 at the end of the first period and 33-31 at the half, they came on like the defending District 3-AAA team they player of the year, banged in a 12-foot jumper to tie the game 33-all with 7:12 left in the third quarter. Morton saw its lead dwindle in the second quarter from 7 when Dunbar hit a shot streak and hit 8 unanswered points to tie the game at 25-all. Morton managed to hold a 1-point margin, however, when James Johnson hit the second shot of a two-shot free throw attempt.

The Indians' lead was short-lived as Hardaway, Dwight Brown and Whitfield all connected, mostly for the 12-foot range, to grab a lead which the Panthers would never give up.

It was certainly the third stanza that spelled doom for Morton. The club could manage only 9 points and all-state for-ward Rusty Lamar had 6 of those.

During the third quarter, Dunbar countered with 21 points as Whitfield and Hardaway both had 12, and Brown 6.

the fourth quarter, Dunbar pulled out to a pair of 12-point leads and even stretched it to 14 with 57 second left.

Whitfield, who hit eight shots from the field, delighted the large crowd with a pair of stuff shots-the second one a real beauty-to end the scoring for the Panthers, now 1-0.

But everything wasn't always dunk shots and fast breaks for the Panthers. And coach Joe McWilliams agreed.

'We made a lot of mistakes tonight." McWilliams said, following the game. "We didn't run our offensive plays that well and our defense broke down a time or two. We've still got a lot of work."

In the first half, it appeared Morton was going to run off and hide as it built a comfortable 7-point lead at the end of the

12 Ranked Units Clash In Six Area Matchups

By WALT MCALEXANDER

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff It's still a long, long way to the state-championship round, but judging from the bidistrict matchups, the unassuming observer might think the title games are set for tonight.

The reason? Twelve ranked teams will be involved in six games tonight—includ-ing three that are No. 1—and all totaled, this weekend's action involves 14 area teams that finished the regular-season on either The Associated Press or United Press International rankings.

Here's just a brief look at games involving state ranked squads: Starting with AAAA, Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m., No. 2 ranked Odessa Permian faces Denton in Abilene; tonight No. 6 Monterey faces No. 10 (UPI) Tascosa in Amarillo.

In AAA, Perryton (No. 1 UPI, No. 3 AP) faces Andrews (No. 5 and No. 7) in Canyon and Brownwood (No. 2 and No. 3) entertains San Angelo Lake View (No. 6 on both).

In AA, No. 3 ranked Idalou faces unrated Littlefield at Plainview and a pair of 7-3 squads, Tahoka and Colorado City, vie in Snyder. Seagraves, ranked No. 1 in A, tackles Marfa (No. 4 and No. 9) in Monahans. Ve-

Ropesville at Amarillo River Road. Elsewhere, unranked Jayton tests Fort Davis at Seminole in a game matching 9-2

PERRYTON vs. ANDREWS This should have been a Brad Beck vs. Booger Brooks contest. Beck was an allstate runningback last year when Perryton gained the semifinals and has duplicated those feats this year, Perryton's last as a AAA school before moving down to AA. But Brooks, a converted bull rider and one of the keys to Andrews' offense, sustained a severe leg bruise and tendon tear on the first play of last Friday's 20-0 win over Monahans and is not expected to play tonight Brooks will suit up, but coach Tommy Watkins said there was little chance of the back getting into the

'80 Games Benefit Lake Placid?

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — On the corner of Main Street of this mountain resort town stands a gracious, 100-yearold Colonial-style inn, complete with sweeping lawns and spacious porches.

It may not stand there much longer. Caught in the currents sweeping Lake Placid toward the 1980 Winter Olympics, that inn, the Homestead, is slated to be torn down to make way for a Hilton fran-

For some town residents, the change is a disquieting augur of things to come, a symbol of the mixed blessings that will accompany the hoped-for economic benefits of being the host city for the Olym-

i'We all had a kind of sentimental attachment for the Homestead," says Mary Prime, a member of one of the village's elite families and a long-time conservationist, describing her fears for the character of the town in which she has lived

But Peter Roland, owner of the hotel, scoffs at such feelings. "Sentiment is great stuff, but you can't eat it."

Their difference of opinion goes to the heart of the changes already affecting Lake Placid as it nears the end of its first season of construction for the Olympics.

The problem, Roland and Prime agree, is to find a way to accommodate the new surge of Olympics-inspired business without ruining the qualities for which visitors come to the area. Where they disagree is on the question of whether the changes are living up to that goal.

Lake Placid is the kind of place for which the word picturesque was made.

It sits on the edge of a small lake and is surrounded by the ancient and beautiful High Peaks of the Adirondacks. Tasteful old homes and the rambling Lake Placid Club are reminders of the day when the area was a popular, fashionable playground of the affluent.

Main Street-less than a 15-minute stroll in length-boosts pleasant outdoor stores, fancy dress shops, book stores and small restaurants. The town has one traffic light and a population of about 2,-900, supported almost entirely by tour-

With the exception of several modern hotels, a Kentucky Fried Chicken place and chronic traffic jams on Main Street during the summer tourist season, Lake Placid looks as though it hasn't changed much since it was site of the 1932 Olym-

Although it and adjoining towns boast attractions not found in other Adirondack hamlets-such as the only bobsled run in North America and the 1932 Olympic Arena-many of those facilities are money-losing propositions.

Lake Placid wants the Olympics as a way out of economic troubles. It wants the prestige and publicity and the mil-

Olympics Seen As End to Money Woes enabling it to build up-to-date sports fa-

The businessmen and community leaders who worked hard for more than a decade to bring the Olympics here again envision much more tourist dollars flowing into their town and businesses.

Almost as soon, however, as bulldozers and earthmovers moved en masse into town this summer, setting in motion a $70 million construction program, Lake Placid began stumbling across new troubles on its way to the Olympics.

Excavation, blasting and other construction work are scarring the wilderness landscape, causing serious pollution of an Adirondack brook, in one instance, and provoking cries of protest from envi-

Town folks are finding the Olympics construction isn't providing as many jobs as expected. They worry about more big chains putting up hotels in town.

Local merchants fear they will be unable to compete with national manufacturers in the marketing of Olympic souvenirs. There is discontent among motel owners over a state-imposed plan to control the prices during the Olympic period.

And some skeptics are increasingly wondering whether the big time Olympics sports spectacle will be scaled down enough-as organizers have promised -to run smoothly in small-town Lake Placid.

Even Olympic organizers, by their actions, betray some uncertainty about the completely favorable predictions they publicly make about post-Olympics Lake

The organizing committee, for example, contends its "no-frills" construction program guarantees that residents will not suffer heavy additional tax burdens to support facilities after the Games. But many of the facilities left over from the 1932 Olympics turned out to be money

With that in mind, the organizing committee lobbied vigorously and successfully this summer for the establishment of an Olympic Lottery, the main purpose of which will be to help defray the maintenance costs of the new ice arena, refrigerated bobsled run and other facilities.

Against the backdrop of all those Olympics-inspired worries, the levelling of one attractive, somewhat outdated hotel -the Homestead has no elevator and no phones in its rooms-to make way for a Hilton hardly seems too significant.

Indeed, Roland says the increasing preference of travelers for standardized accommodations had more to do with his decision than did the coming of the Olympics.

But others in town find the fate of the old inn a symbol of the changes under way, and the differing reactions of Roland and Prime to its demise mirror the mixed feelings of many toward the overall Olympics spectacle.

Prime, a self-described "awful nitpickand other residents will be able to buy groceries during the Olympic period, when as many as 50,000 people a day descend on her tiny village. Nonetheless, she describes herself as a supporter of the Olympics, hopeful everything will turn out all right. Like just about everyone else in town, she sees the Olympics as the only way to give the vilsports center.

Olympic Facts

DATES: Feb. 13-24, 1980.

EVENTS: Speedskating, figure skating, hockey, it jump, cross country skiing, biathlon, bobsled,

TICKETS: Attendance is to be limited to 50,000

TICKETS: Attendance is to be limited to 50,000 spectators a day If you are wondering, however, about your chances of being one of those 50,000 persons, you will have to wait a while longer. Olympic organizers have not yet decided what they will charge for tickets or what their ticket policy will be. Persons interested in buying tickets should write to the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, Lake Placid, N. Y. 12946.

ACCOMMODATIONS: Motel rooms in the immediate area are scarce. Within a 90-minute drive of Lake Placid, there are only an estimated 24,000 motel beds. In other words, at least half of the daily spectators will have to be prepared for long rides to the events. Organizers plan to set up a central board to help spectators arrange for lodgings.

Chaparrals Seek NAIA Cross-Country Title

KENOSHA, Wis. (Special) - Lubbock Christian College's Cross-Country team will make its first-ever appearance in a national meet here Saturday when the annual NAIA event unfolds.

The Chaps departed by van at 5 a.m. Thursday for the 1,200-mile trek here and coach Hugh Rhodes planned to let his sixman team do roadwork each day in an attempt to get ready for Saturday's 11 a.m.

"There'll probably be 175 teams there and if we can come out in the Top 20 we'll be lucky," Rhodes said.

This will be the last cross-country event in a Chaparal uniform for Willie Sang. A junior from Kenya, Sang will graduate in the spring and plans to start his graduate progam at Texas Tech so he can return to his native land. And Sang will be one of the favorites today. He ran a 24:49 last weekend and that's 31 seconds faster than the winning time in the nationals last year "The thing is," Rhodes explained, "we

By halftime, Estacado's basketball players nearly had fouled themselves out of the Lubbock High gym Thursday night. So EHS coach J.J. Wood used the perfect remedy for excessive fouling. Wood switched the Matador defense from the aggressive man-to-man and in-stalled a 2-3 zone which totally nullified Lubbock High's inside game. Meanwhile, the Matadors started warming up from long range in the third quarter and raced away with a 70-55 season-opening victory.

"They were kinda whipping us on the boards until we changed defenses. And that was the difference in the game. Actually, we had planned to use each de-fense for a half and see what happened. And we were pleased with our performance," said the Matadors' coach.

Disappointed Lubbock coach C.E. Carmichael agreed with Wood that the zone had determined the outcome "You've got to take the ball inside against a 2-3 zone, and we didn't. When we did, we didn't ever do anything with it," Carmichael said. The Lubbock coach encountered a disciplinary problem on the eve of this season opener. Last year's post man Craig Mitchell (6-3) was temporarily suspended from the team. Without Mitchell near the bucket, the Westerners were hurting for an inside attack after EHS switched to

For a half, Lubbock's program was relying on its smallest player, 5-4 guard Scotty Garcia. The little senior hit nine of 12 free shots in the first half to help Lubbock gain a 31-30 lead at intermission. Of course, those excessive trips to the charity stripe resulted from Estacado's excessive fouling. And the 2-3 zone put a halt to all of that in the third quarter.

Estacado committed its first foul of the second half with 39 seconds left in the third quarter. By that point, the Matadors had jumped ahead 48-39 with accurate outside shooting and pinpoint passing

Alvin Harris, the leading Matador scorer with 17 points, collected 10 of those in the third quarter. His long-range missile gave EHS a 32-31 lead at the start of the quarter. After Lubbock missed two straight layups, Estacado's Willi Powell canned a long set shot and EHS jumped on top for good at 34-33.

Then Harris tossed a long chest pass down court after a steal, and Mike Chatham slammed in the layup for a 36-33 edge. Still another steal in the 2-3 zone by Dewey Turner allowed EHS another easy bucket as Harris rammed in the layup.

The 7-point lead sufficed, but Lubbock's turnovers against the zone pro-

duced more points. The Matador lead ballooned out to 60-41 midway in the fourth quarter. Only then were the Westerners able to reach the foul line for oneand-one free shots in the second half. While in the first half, it seemed as though the Westerners lived at the line. "We played well for a half, and that was it." Carmichael said. Indeed, the shorter hosts fought on even terms as the visitors fouled away. The teams were tied three times and the lead changed five times in the half as EHS committed 18 fouls in the first two

The list of starting quarterbacks, usually replete with "Who's Who" names in the National Football League, takes on more of a "who's he?" look this Sunday. The Minnesota Vikings, who had Fran Tarkenton scrambling the opposition's defenses for virtually all of their 17 years, will have either Bob Lee, a veteran reserve, or rookie Tommy Kramer calling the signals against the Bears in Chicago. Minnesota Coach Bud Grant says he may wait until Sunday before making up his mind. "We're fortunate in having two quarterbacks who I think can play," he said. "The plays will be the same - it won't matter who the quarterback is.' Tarkenton is out for the season with a broken bone in his right leg, suffered last Sunday against Cincinnati.

In San Diego, the Chargers may go with untested rookie Cliff Olander against the Oakland Raiders if James Harris' foot injury hasn't healed. Harris, hurt late in last Sunday's game against Denver, re-turned to play after Bill Munson suffered a broken leg.

The Green Bay Packers, who were counting so heavily on Lynn Dickey to restore them to contention, will now have to rely on either rookie David Whitehurst or recent acquisition Brian Dowling in Monday night's game against the Redskins in Washington. Here we have the fans, pleading with Coach Tom Landry to stop wasting time

'Dirt' Meets Tony Dorsett

PITTSBURGH (AP) - "Dirt" meets Dorsett here Sunday.
That's middle linebacker Dennis

"Dirt" Winston of the Pittsburgh Steelers and Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys - rookie starters via far different routes in the National Football League.

'He's got a job to do. I've got a job to do. The one who does his best will probably come out the winner," Winston said after practice Thursday

Dorsett left Pitt with a dozen NCAA records, one Heisman Trophy and a million-dollar contract. He'll make his first NFL start because Coach Tom Landry now agrees with Cowboy fans that Dorsett's too good for part-time work.

Winston played fullback, offensive tackle, defensive end and linebacker at Arkansas. He won four letters and his nickname. "When things would get rough, I was a little nasty sometimes," he ex-

Pittsburgh drafted him on the fifth-

"I thought I was going to Dallas. They contacted me quite a bit," said Winston. When Pittsburgh picked me I thought, What could they want with me?"

The Steelers already had Jack Lambert, backed up by Mary Kellum, and the b's top draft pick was linebacker Robin Cole.

But Lambert spent most of preseason in a holdout, and Winston got the playing time he needed to oust Kellum.

With Lambert nursing a knee injury last Sunday and Cole just back from an arm fracture, Winston started against Cleveland. He'll also probably open against Dallas.

'Dennis' contribution has been good," said Coach Chuck Noll. "It hasn't been flawless, by any stretch of the imagination, but he does things very well. Part of it is his enthusiasm for hitting. At 6 feet, 228 pounds, Winston doesn't have the height or range to match Lambert against the pass.

Yet he's a jarring tackler in the Lambert mold, and Steeler statistics show him with 31 solo tackles - but only one assist. "When he hits them, he doesn't need help," said Steeler strength coach Lou Reicke.

"I like to punish people when I hit them," said Winston. "They're threatening my team. Winston and the Steelers also face a mental test against the complex Cowboy "It's probably the most complicated offense in pro ball, but we'e worked real hard on it this week," said Winston.

Meanwhile, game films tell him some uncomplicated things about Dorsett. "I don't know him personally, but I know his speed," said Winston. "He looks like he runs just as fast sideways as straight ahead.

Eambert played most of a preseason game in which Pittsburgh lost 30-0 in Dallas, but Winston had a few collisions with Dorsett.

"I hit him a couple of times pretty good." Winston recalled "He knew I was out there."

and make Touchdown Tony a starter. And here we have the setting, the place where all the records fell, where TD is going to make that debut in the starting lineup Pittsburgh. Oh, it's going to be magnificent watching Tony return to the scene of so many triumphs. He'll be the star of the show,

Only one problem: The Cowboys are gonna lose. So much for Hollywood endings.

Last week's 9-5 mark put the season record at 86-40 for a .683 percentage. This week's picks: Steelers 24, Cowboys 20 - We happen to like Pittsburgh's defensive ferocity and offensive tenacity just a bit more. Besides, the Steelers need this game a lot mere. And more than 50,000 blood-thirsty fans won't hurt, either. Bears 21, Vikings 17 - Minnesota with-

Saints 23, Falcons 10 — How do you figure either of these clubs? We figure New Orleans is more capable of busting loose and will do so before the home folks, giving them an Upset Special.

Redskins 27, Packers 13 - After getting clobbered by ABC last Monday night, NBC could show The Godmother against this dog and sweep the ratings.

EHS Fems Top Big Springers

BIG SPRING (Special)-Alma Robinson scored 20 points in leading the Estacado girls to a 60-34 victory over host Big Spring Thursday night. The win evened both teams' records at 1-1.

Estacado jumped to an 8-2 lead at the, end of the first period and extended that lead to 27-16 at halftime. A 3-point third period destroyed any hopes Big Spring might have had of coming back.

Behind Miss Robinson, Kathy Huey scored 16 points for Estacado.

Sherry Byrd netted 19 points for Big Spring. Estcado won the junior varsity contest

33-22, with Cynthia Harris scoring 16 Estacado's next game will be at Odessa

Ector next Monday

City, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Cleveland at the New York Giants, Miami at Cincinnati, New England at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Detroit and Houston at Seattle.

The Vikings (6-3) have a two-game lead over the Bears and Detroit in the National Conference's Central Division. Chicago will be trying for a season split against the perennial division champs, having lost to them 22-16 in overtime a month

Trying to turn around their fortunes against Oakland will be doubly tough for the Chargers without a healthy veteran quarterback at the helm. They haven't beaten the Raiders since 1968, an 18game span, and were routed 24-0 in this season's opener. Oakland, 8-1 and still tied with Denver for first place in the American Conference West, has won four in a row since losing to the Broncos.

The Packers' biggest accomplishment this season, it would seem, will be avoiding last place in the NFC Central, thanks to Tampa Bay. Green Bay is 2-7. It holds a 13-9-1 edge over the Redskins but in the teams' last meeting, three years ago, Washington won 17-6. The 'Skins, thanks to Mark Moseley's club-record 54-yard field goal with 3:32 to play in Philadel-phia, are still in the NFC playoff race with a 5-4 record.

The Jets can't wait for Richard Todd to return as their No.1 quarterback. He sat out last Sunday's game against Seattle with a knee injury and watched as Marty Domres and rookie Matt Robinson combined to complete just 6 of 18 passes for 52 yards and 3 interceptions in the loss to the Seahawks.

The Colts, with Lydell Mitchell only 14 yards short of breaking Lenny Moore's all-time Baltimore rushing record of 5,-174 yards, are still battling to retain their one-game lead over Miami in the American Conference East. The Dolphins face a Cincinnati squad out to rebound from a 42-10 shellacking by the Vikings.

The Cowboys' lead over St. Louis in the NFC East was shaved to two games by the Cardinals last Monday night and Dallas' inability to generate an offense until Tony Dorsett entered the game prompted Dallas coach Tom Landry to go with the Heisman Trophy winner in place of Preston Pearson.

When the Rams and 49ers got together earlier this year. Los Angeles rolled up a deceptively high 32-14 score (it was 17-14 until the final period) for its 12th victory in the last 14 games against San Francis-

But the 49ers, who lost their first five games this year, have now won four in a row and trail Atlanta by one game and the first-place Rams by only two in the NFC West. The Falcons, visiting the lastplace Saints, don't exactly have a fondness for New Orleans. Last year they were bombed 30-0 in the Superdome.

The Broncos, having escaped with a last-gasp victory over San Diego Ist week, head into Kansas City, which lost a lastgasp game to Chicago five shots all night, a figure he sometimes reaches before the game is a couple of minutes old, Baylor responded: "I did not tell anyone not to shoot. Pete Maravich or anyone else on this team can shoot anytime they have an open shot." Maravich's lack of shooting and abundance of assists was also the topic in the Seattle locker room. "I wasn't surprised Maravich wasn't shooting more, because he was getting the ball to his teammates," said Seattle Coach Bob Hopkins."I wish he had shot more, beczuse that would have given us fewer people to worry about.

TENNIS

WEMBLEY, England — Eddie Dibbs beat Billy. Martin 7-3, 6-7, 6-3 in a tense match that lasted nearly three hours at Wembley Empire Pool and reached the quarter-tinals of a $135,000 Grand Prix tennis fournament.

The two Americans provided the best match of the week, as well as the longest, it was close until the second game of the final set, when Martin, 20, of Polos Verdes. Celif., suffered an ankle injury. He continued playing, but was not as quick as earlier in the match. In other second-round matches, Biorn Borg of Sweden defeated Andrew Pathison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-3, Ray Moore of South Africa eliminated Ove Bengtson of Sweden e-3, 6-4, and Wejtek Fibak of Poland downed Vilay Amritraj of India 6-3, 6-1. SYDNEY, Australia — Pam Teeguarden won by forfeit in the second round of a $100,000 international tennis fournament, when her opponent, Wendy Turnbull of Australia, was forced to withdraw after suffering food poisoning.

The elimination of Turnbull followed the withdrawal of top-seeded Sue Barker of Britain because of a muscle injury. In second-round matches, Terry Holladay of the United States beat Nerida Gregory of Australia defeated countrywoman Pam Whytcross 6-3, 6-2; third-seeded Kerry Reid of Australia defeated countrywoman Pam Whytcross 6-3, 6-2; third-seeded Kerry Reid of Australia dest French veteran Francoise Durr 6-0, 6-1, second-seeded Betty Stove of The Netherlands defeated Helpin Cawley of Australia 6-4, 6-3, and Jeanne Evert of the United States eliminated Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jimmy Connors needed only 47 minutes to dispose of veteran Ken Rosewall of Australia 6-0, 6-2 and get back into contention in the s320,000 WCT Challenge Cup tennis tournament. Dick Stockton took the lead in his four-man division with a 6-3, 5-6, 6-4 victory over Australian John Alexander in another match at Caesar's Palace. Stockton has a 2-0 record while Connors is 2-1. Rosewall dropped to 1-1 but could throw the division into a three-way file with a victory over Stockton Friday. Alexander finished round-robin play at 0-3. In case of a 1ie, the player with the best won-lost record in sets advances.

Having hit the jackpot with third baseman Eric Soderholm and pitcher Steve Stone a year ago. Veeck Thursday announced the signings of outfielder Ron Blomberg of the New York Yankees and pitchers Ron Schueler and Jim Hughes from the Minnesota Twins.

"In each case we spent more money than we can afford," laughed Veeck, who refuses to reveal figures.

Negotiations are private matters," said Veeck. "The important things are pitching and hitting. Forget the dollars.

However, hitting and pitching in two of these cases are somewhat unknown.

Blomberg has played in only one game in two years and Hughes worked only four innings for the Twins and spent most of last season at Tacoma where he had a 9-10 record. Schueler had an 8-7 record with the Twins.

Although Veeck would reveal no figures, it was learned that Blomberg had signed a four-year pact in the neighborhood of $600,000. There was no indication as to what Schueler received but Hughes appears to be another bargain basement acquisition.

Chaparrals Entertain Sul Ross

Darrell Price made an interesting ob-servation Thursday: "I thought when you scored 93 points and shot 50 per cent; from the floor, you were supposed to win," quipped the Lubbock Christian College basketball coach. But that wasn't the case Tuesday night, as the Chaps dropped a season-opening 95-93 verdict to Sul Ross, their 16th straight road loss, dating back to the 1975-76 season.

"We were just weak defensively."
Price said. "and the only way to correct that is to play better. We didn't get back on defense well at all. They had 14 layups during the game. It wasn't a matter of not having the quickness to get back, but. a lot of our people have never played in a situation where it's important for them to know where the other four men on the

"We just had too many reverting back to their old form."

Price will try to correct that the next two days as the Chaps host Sul Ross here tonight at 7:30 p.m. in their home opener and then travel to Abilene Saturday night for a 7:30 p.m. date with McMurry while Sul Ross goes on to Portales and a date with Eastern New Mexico.

"We tried to press some," Price said of the first Sul Ross encounter, "but our front-line people would forget to match up and let them run around loose.

We'll probably start the same five we did Tuesday (6-8 Lowell Walker and Mike Wrinkle, 6-5 Mike Kahler, 6-2 Robert Cobb and 6-0 Steve Doudney) but we've still got some positions up for grabs. "One of our biggest prolems is that we've got a lot of young people who are making mistakes. I think we'll be okay eventually... we'll be hard to beat everytime we go out. . . I don't know of anyone who's going to run us out of the gym. "I think you'll find we'll make some dramatic improvements as we go along and we'll probably peak late and get tough toward the end.

"It's just a shame we have to lose games while we're learning."

Army Seeks Independence

ROCHESTER, N.YY. (AP) - Overtures by Army to play in the Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La., may shortcircuit hopes for unbeaten Colgate to get into that bowl game. A bowl appearance would be a first for either team.

Calhoun Allen, Shreveport's mayor, was quoted by Larry Bump in today's Rochester Democrat Chronicle as confirming that Army "made indirect contact with the bowl crowd.'

Allen said, "Army would be quite an attraction, especially if Army beats Navy. And I'm a Navy man.

The Cadets, with a 6-4 record, were said to be under serious consideration for the Dec. 17 game at Shreveport, which is near Fort Polk and the Barksdale Air Force Base.

Others in the running were said to be Colgate (10-0), East Carolina (8-3), Louisiana Tech (7-0-2) and Louisville (6-3-1).

An Army spokesman at West Point said. "We have heard nothing about it." Maryland was the bowl committee's first pick, but Maryland will play in the new Hall of Fame Classic Dec. 22 in Birmingham, Ala

BU Can Upset 'Horns, Bowls With Same Blow

The Baylor Bears are in a dandy spot to affect two of the major post-season bowls and throw the Southwest Conference football chase in a tizzy Saturday if they upset the No. 1 ranked Texas Longhorns. The regional television cameras will be on the 3 p.m. joust at Memorial Stadium on the day bowls can officially issue invi-

Notre Dame is expected to take the guest spot in the Cotton Bowl if the unbeaten Longhorns win. However, the Fighting Irish might opt for the Sugar Bowl if Baylor does a number on the Horns, and the Cotton Bowl would scramble for another guest team.

The SWC race is far from settled. Texas is 6-0 in league play with Arkansas 5-1 and Texas A&M 4-1.

Texas is a 20-point pick over Baylor but the powerful Longhorns might be missing placekicking and punting specialist Russell Erxleben, who has a leg injury. Steve McMichael, a linebacker, would placekick in Erxleben's place while freshman Steve Hall would punt.

In other games, Texas A&M is a 24point pick over Texas Christian, Arkansas is a 23-point favorite over Southern Methodist and Texas Tech is an eight-point pick over Houston.

Sam Ansley, a freshman who started his first collegiate game against Texas Christian last week, apparently will be the starter with the injured Randy McEachern ready for backup duty.

McEachern, of course, was the quarterback who replaced the injured Mark McBath and Jon Aune in the first quarter of the Oklahoma game and led the 'Horns to a 13-6 victory over Oklahoma.

"I said all along that if Texas and Arkansas solved their quarterback problems they would have outstanding football teams and they have," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "What can you say about a team that's undefeated and we have played seven teams in the top ten it is only fair we get a crack at them.' Baylor upset one of the top ten teams

"Baylor has an excellent secondary and a fine defense," said new Texas Coach Fred Akers. "We're not lining up against a bunch of lightweights.

Texas A&M, which still has SWC dates with Texas and Houston, could at least seal a Bluebonnet Bowl bid if it beats TCU. The Bluebonnet Bowl has indicated it won't announce a team Saturday and the word is the bid will go to the loser of the Texas-Texas A&M game Nov. 26 in College Station.

efficiency has been crystal clear. "With Allison, Tech looks a lot like the team that got everybody excited back in August," Houston coach Bill Yeoman

The Raiders have been able to overcome a number of injuries to offensive linemen this season. At this time, tackles Dan Irons and Ken Walter are very doubtful performers for this game because of knee problems.

However, guard Greg Davis, thought to be out for the season after a second-game knee injury, should be able to play some Saturday. He'll be used at quick tackle, though, his position the last two years.

Houston, although gaining yardage at a higher rate than Tech (356 yards a game to 332) hasn't been the same since losing Davis. Sophomore Delrick Brown has made progress as UH's quarterback, but there is an obvious dropoff in effectiveness when a proven winner is replaced with a sophomore who hadn't previously played a varsity down.

'There's no question that Davis' was a key loss for us," Yeoman said. "We're just like Tech. Tech plays better with Allison in there.

"We've been encouraged about Delrick, though. He's improving. It's just a matter of him getting experience."

The two quarterbacks aside, however, both teams still have a number of offensive threats. Each has an outstanding back-Houston's Alois Blackwell and Tech's Billy Taylor.

Blackwell has averaged 91 yards a game. Taylor is averaging 86. Taylor, par-ticularly, has been brilliant lately, gaining 278 yards and scoring seven touchdowns in the last two games. "Blackwell is definitely one of the top three backs in the conference," Tech defensive coordinator Bill Parcells said. "He could sure play on my team." Speed, as usual, is a Cougar asset, and Yeoman, having invented UH's veer attack, can call the offense's plays as well "Their play selection is difficult to zero in on," Parcells said. "They do some things from some parts of the field that just does what he thinks will work -usually it does."

Defensively, though, the Raiders have

The Raiders, however, have played well defensively this season. They are third in the conference in total defense (243 yards allowed per game) and 10th in the nation against the rush (112.6 yards given up per contest).

"The defense has played nine good games. That's all there is to it," head coach Steve Sloan said. Parcells said, "We've improved on some things the past two weeks. Our pass defense has been better, and our overall pass rush has improved. And we've been real good against the run."

Tech has a number of walking wounded on its defensive unit, but most of the players are expected to play. Defensive tackle Kim Taliaferro (knee) and free safety Greg Frazier (sprained arch) are very doubtful, though. Injuries on defense have had a detrimental effect on Houston's performance. A number of key players have missed time this season.

"When you have as many injuries as we've had, it's impossible to be consist-ent," Yeoman said. "We've got a lot of those guys back now, but they haven't been in there all the time."

Houston lost the entire left side of its 1976 defensive unit to graduation, and most of the rightside performers have been injured this year. Noseguard Robert Oglesby quit the team during fall prac-

Piano Relaxes Bailey

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff When Sam Bailey says "When somebody asks me to play, I'll play," he's not just talking about football. Texas Tech's sophomore tailback has played the piano for seven years, and has played at church services often. He's a business, rather than music, major at Tech but is taking some music courses.

"I really like music," the 5-9, 185-pounder said. "I don't know what I'd do if I couldn't play the piano. It really relaxes me. A lot of times if I'm bothered by something. I go in and play. It's a lot better than getting mad.'

tle in the Astrodome against Houston. "I've been progressing, but there are still some things I need to improve on. I need to keep my head up when I'm running, so I can see where to cut. I need to get better at blocking and improve my quickness to the outside, too." The Raider attack has gotten better lately, and Bailey credits much of the improvement to the offensive line. "They've really been blocking well. Against SMU, they did a great job. They held the block for a long time, so the backs could have a chance to get through there and make some good yardage."

said that Thursday's drill was "one of the better ones we've had.". . . Sloan said it's uncertain now how the offensive line will look when it lines up against Houston. "We've had a lot of injuries, and we're just not sure who all will play Saturday,"

"(Offensive tackle Ken) Walter didn't look Thursday like he'll be able to play, and (tackle Dan) Irons didn't either.' Sloan said tight end Gregg Adkins' knee did look better, though, and Adkins may have a chance to play. . . Greg Davis, an offensive line starter since the 1975 season who was thought to be finished for the season after a knee injury suffered against New Mexico, will be able to play against Houston. He'll be at quick tackle, although he probably won't start. He was a quick tackle the previous two seasons, but was moved to quick guard before this

Sleuth Grimsley Calls X-27 Out Of Moth Balls

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
The crystal ball is clouded, the slide rule rusty, tea leaves soggy and pages of the Ready Reckoner frayed, but old Op-erative X-27 has been called out of moth alls to add some light to college foot-

Still riding the crest of his .750 batting average a decade ago, the venerable ath offers these gems as Grimsley's Picks for 1977:

Ohio State 10, Michigan 6: The Buckeyes have spent 12 months seething over last year's 22-0 shellacking. Woody Hayes finds a new weapon in Ulysses S. Grant's

Oklahoma 33, Nebraska 23 (Nov. 25): The most garish red you'll see among Cornhuskers' supporters will be blushing

Pittsburgh 24, Penn State 17 (Nov. 26):

the ghost of Tony Dorsett.
Texas A&M 27, Texas 20 (Nov. 26): Maybe you can whip an Il-man team, but you can't whip a whole community. Col-lege Station works itself into a frenzy at the sight of the nation's No. 1 team.

UCLA 30, Southern Cal 23 (Nov. 25): A chance to redress years of indignities. Arkansas 21, Texas Tech 10 (Nov. 24): Lou Holtz, who became disenchanted with the pros, has turned the Razorbacks into a power.

Final bowl lineup: Rose — UCLA vs. Ohio State; Cotton - Texas vs. Notre Dame; Sugar — Alabama vs. Michigan; Orange — Oklahoma vs. Penn State; Ga-- Clemson vs. Pitt.

A Thanksgiving season bonus: In the NFL blue ribboner Sunday, the Pittsburgh Steelers add to the Dallas Cowvive spirits in five days. Even Dorsett, as a first-time starter, can't help.

Joe Morgan, on the clogging of Cincinnati's Big Red Machine during the 1977 eason: "I was really proud of our guys. If you can't be a happy winner, you ought to lose with class. These guys did. Didn't whine. Didn't blame anybody. Despite

STEWART A WINNER

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The new coach of the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, Ron Stewart, is no stranger to championship competition. Ron played on a Memorial Cup winner while with Guelph, a Canadian junior team; three Stanley Cup title teams in Toronto; and coached Springfield to a Calder Cup championship in the American Hockey League.

outside efforts to picture us as having dissension, the camaraderie was just as strong as the years we were winning pen-

Brooks Robinson, the Baltimore Orioles' all-time great third baseman, on his retirement: "One day I woke up and didn't even want to look at a glove or a baseball bat. It was as if I was completely drained. I knew then I had had it."

Bob Gibson, the brilliant but introverted former pitching star of the St. Louis Cardinals: "What people don't understand is no two guys are alike. We are all expected to be personality guys. It's not my style. When I pitched, I couldn't wait to get out of the locker room and back to my pad. I owe the public something only when I'm on the field. Off it, my life is

No. 1 pass-catching target for the Jets in the 1960s, on Namath's determination to keep playing: "They say it's his ego, necessity to stay in the limelight and money. Did anybody ever think maybe Joe just likes to play football?"

Bob Cousy, Hall of Fame basketball star for the Boston Celtics: "I've never regretted the fact that I came along 10 years before the big money binge. I feel big time spectator sports are riding a fragile balloon that could explode at any Graig Nettles, Yankees third baseman, on Charlie Finley's proposal to use or-ange baseballs (from the recently pub-lished book, "Raseball I Gave You The Best Years of My Life"): "Baseball is a lot different than tennis, because tennis you're not really watching the spin of the ball. In baseball, you become accustomed to seeing a white ball with red seams spinning this way and spinning
