New York Greets Concorde

NEW YORK (AP) - French and British Concorde jets each carrying 100 pas-sengers landed at Kennedy Airport to-day, bringing commercial aviation here into the supersonic age and signaling another defeat for those who had vowed to bar the fast but noisy plane.
Under gray skies, the swept-wing jets carrying crews of nine and capacity loads set down on runway 31 Right just 31/2 hours after leaving Paris and London on their first regularly scheduled flights on the lucrative New York run. The French craft landed at 7:50 a.m. CST, followed about two minutes later by the British.

Both flew at a cruising speed of 1,340 miles per hour across the 3,500 miles of ocean, beating the sun across the Atlan-

"This means Concorde has made its biggest breakthrough yet," said Norman Lornie, spokesman for British Airways. "This is a prime airline business market. London and New York are the two business capitals of the Western world.'

A small band of pickets was on hand from various anti-SST groups, but their protests have diminished considerably since the first test landings of the plane proved less noisy than many residents of nearby areas had feared.

The flights marked the effective end of a 20-month court battle to keep the Concorde from using John F. Kennedy International Airport, whose neighbors claim noise from the supersonic jet is louder than that from regular jets.

Demonstrators had jammed the airport several times during the ban by snarling traffic with slow-moving cars.

Regular Concorde passenger service between Europe and Washington's Dulles International Airport had started

Today's twin landings - coincidentally coming exactly 14 years after the assassi nation of the president for whom the airport is named - were a finely timed operation worked out for the 3,500-mile route over the Atlantic.

Air France and British Airways were exuberant about the inaugural flights. 'Morning, New York' reads a breezy greeting from British Airways in fullpage newspaper advertisements today in London.

Air France ads in the British press announced "Concorde aujour d'hui" — Concorde today — and showed the SST flying over the New York skyline and the Statue of Liberty.

Both airlines ran full-page ads in today's New York Times.

Dickerson Sentenced

By PAT PATRICK

Avalanche-Journal Staff Judge Thomas L. Clinton today overruled a motion for a new trial for Harold Wayne Dickerson, convicted in August of the 1971 burglary of the Naomi Miller Martin residence at 5411 42nd St.
Dickerson later was sentenced to an 11-year prison term. Defense attorney Phil Brown had asked that the conviction be set aside for three main reasons:

That jurors discussed the fact Mrs. Martin was found dead in her home two days after reporting the burglary to police - a fact that had specifically been kept from them during the burglary trial.

food costs held the overall rise in consumer prices to 0.3 percent in October for the third consecutive month, the government reported today.

The relatively small rate of increase, about 3.6 percent at an annual rate, re-flected the declines in wholesale farm prices last summer that have continued to exert a moderating effect on retail

Grocery prices rose only 0.1 percent in October, the same as in September, and have been largely responsible for bring-ing down the nation's inflation rate since the middle of the year. Food costs com-prise about one-fourth of the Consumer Price Index.

Consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of only 3.8 percent over the past three months. This is a marked improvement over the 10 percent rate during the first three months of the year, when the effects of cold weather and fuel shortages pushed up the price of food and other goods at a rapid pace.

Wholesale farm prices had fallen nearly 13 percent in May through September before jumping 2.4 percent last month.

However, government economists said not all of the decline had been reflected at the retail level and predicted that processors and other middlemen would be able to absorb some of the October increase in wholesale prices.

In October, the Labor Department said, the Consumer Price Index stood at 184.5, meaning that a marketbasket of goods and services selling for $100 in the 1967 base period now costs $184.50.

The index also showed that consumer prices in October were 6.5 percent higher than those of a year ago.

The purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck increased 1.1 percent last month, the largest gain this year. The government said this was due to a 1.3 percent increase in average hourly earnings combined with a 0.3 percent rise in the work week, which more than offset the pace of inflation last month.

Over the year, real earnings — take-home pay adjusted for inflation and taxes - have increased 4.6 percent. The overthe-year gain was due largely to the in-crease in the federal tax deduction that reduced withholding taxes in June.

Non-food prices also continued to moderate last month, rising by only 0.3 percent, about the same as in the four previous months. This came despite the fact that higher prices for the new 1978 mode cars were introduced into the index for the first time in October.

The Labor Department said the newcar index rose 0.6 percent. However, used car prices fell 2.1 percent.

Prices for gasoline and motor oil jumped 1.4 percent last month, considerably more than each of the preceeding two months. Clothing prices also rose in October following a decline in Septem-ber, and prices for tobacco products continued to rise sharply.

.The cost of services, including rent and utility rates, rose 0.4 percent in October, compared with increases of 0.5 percent in both September and August and monthly increases averaging 0.8 percent earlier in

Charges for electricity declined slightly last month but natural gas costs rose sharply, the government said. Rents increased 0.4 percent, while the cost for medical care rose 0.7 percent.

Among food prices, there were declines for sugar, cereal and bakery products,

Fresh vegetable prices also declined last month following a sharp rise in September. Prices for fresh fruits turned up in October. Poultry prices increased after declining for four months and the price of beef rose for the second consecutive

The administration has forecast an inflation rate of about 6 percent for the year, compared to a rate of 4.8 percent in

The ideological and political feuding that rocked the first National Women's Conference has been carried back to Lubbock by several anti-feminists who claim the forum was nothing but a rubber stamp for the feminist movement.

The four-day conference, which ended Monday in Houston, was disrupted by re-peated clashes between the feminist maority and a minority group that claimed its views were not heard.

Millie Monte, who attended the conference as an alternate delegate, today sup-ported the minority views, calling the conference a "farce" conference a "farce.

The group also plans to urge area legis-lators to vote against federal appropriations for future women's co Mrs. Monte said.

Mrs. Monte, who said she supports "traditional family values," added that the purpose of the conference "as far as we're concerned was to silence the conscience of America.' "Our voices were not heard," she said. The minority views were always voted down, she claimed. She also charged that the delegates were stacked in favor of the liberal feminist factions and that the majority used parliamentary tactics to suppress minori Lubbock's only voting delegate, Betty Anderson, disagrees with Mrs. Monte's assessment of the conference.

Both factions employed parliamentary maneuvers to delay proceedings and to frustrate the other, Mrs. Anderson said. "I think the commission and chair did their best in attempting to have all voices heard," she said.

TV Sets Still Popular Items With Burglars

Televisions again proved to be the hot-test items in town as police today were investigating complaints by several residents that their sets had been stolen.

George Harris said burglars who got his $700 set sometime since Friday made the illegal entry by removing a glass from a door. The break-in occurred at his 2109 18th St. apartment.

A window reportedly provided entry for whoever got inside Vahid Aryan's 4102-B 35th St. residence Monday and stole his TV set.

A burglar cut a screen and pried a door to get to Beulah Pritchard's $365 television at her 1920 45th St. house Monday.

According to Vinnie Linker of 3221-A 33rd St., a break-in artist pried a slidingglass door at the rear of her apartment sometime during the weekend and stole her $350 set.

Reports indicated the point of entry was unknown at Damaris Jane Cotton's residence, from which a $120 television set was taken. The burglary at 5433 47th St. took place sometime Monday

Thanksgiving Mail Sought For Child

While other children are preparing to eat Thanksgiving Day dinner with their families this week, nine-year-old Priscilla "Prissy" Garcia of Lubbock has begun her third week of hospitalization in M.D. Anderson Hospital at Houston.

Prosecution Nears End In Busnapping Trial

cution in the Chowchilla kidnapping trial said. "Dr. Dickerson did them for me. is nearing the end of its case amid confusion about the accuracy of an expert witness's testimony

Dr. Maurice Oberg, an environmental act nature by which the calculations were hygienist, left the witness stand late Monday after defense attorneys spent four hours chipping away at his testimony about conditions inside a van in which 26 children and their school bus driver were buried.

Defense attorneys learned from Oberg that his new higher estimate for the temperature inside the van came from another witness, Dr. Bruce Dickerson, who was scheduled to take the stand today. The question of temperatures and environmental factors is crucial to the state's case against the three defendants -James Schoenfeld, 26, Richard Schoenfeld, 23, and Fred Woods, 26. The three men, who have admitted they kidnapped the children and driver in July 1976, are on trial on a more serious charge - kidnapping with bodily harm. If convicted, they would receive life imprisonment with no chance of parole.

The defendants contend they never meant to harm their captives and installed an adequate ventilation system to keep them comfortable.

The extensive cross-examination began when Oberg estimated the temperature in the buried kidnap van had reached a high of 82.9 degrees Fahrenheit.

The defense noted this was a much higher figure than Oberg had offered 12 days earlier when he first testified. He said then the 27 kidnap victims, buried in the moving van for 161/2 hours, probably were subjected to temperatures no higher than 75.5 degrees.

He was asked what changed his mind. Oberg said he had spent part of the 12day court recess reviewing his 14-year-old college lecture notes. In further questioning, defense attorney Herbert Yanowitz elicited Oberg's revelation that he had help from Dickerson in preparing his revised figures.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The average cost of a new house declined for the first time in two years during the summer, the government says.

The average cost of $54,000 in the July-Auguest period was a decline of 0.6 percent from the second quarter, according to the Commerce Department.
Housing prices had climbed 2.6 percent in the first quarter and 5.2 percent in the second. The last time housing prices declined was in the third quarter of 1975,

Housing officials, however, do not expect the abatement in housing prices to continue. Rising wood and insulation prices during the summer could push up the cost of many houses this fall.

sian military power think in terms of massive tank displays, huge rockets and millions under arms.

And while this is an accurate picture, to a point, there is another factor involved in the growing Soviet strength which is overlooked, even by some in Washington.

WHERE ONCE Britain ruled the waves and then the United States, the latter's supremacy in this area is not only being challenged, but perhaps surpassed.

Today, the Soviet Navy has more than three times as many submarines as the U.S. and packs a 5,600-mile missile that oculd hit San Diego or Hawaii from its home waters.

However, as the U.S. learned in the Mideast War of 1973, the Russian surface and submarine fleet can be a major factor in any showdown. Then, a confrontation was avoided by a last-minute truce arranged by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger.

Cracks Widen In Treaty Support

WASHINGTON-The largest and most impressive number of military officers ever to take a public stand on a national security issue has come out in opposition of the new Panama Canal

Altogether, 320 retired generals and admirals led by Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former Supreme Allied Commander-NATO, and Adm. John C. Cain, former Commander-in-Chief of Pacific, have notified the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Service Committees of their opposition.

Organized by the Reserve Officers Association (ROA), which was chartered by Congress to advise on matters of national defense, the unprecedented opposition of military leaders is designed to counter the support given the treaties by the present Joint Chiefs of Staff and Sec. of Defense

THIS NEW and growing military opposition to the treaties is in addition to that presented earlier to President Carter and the Congress by four former Chiefs of Naval Operations-Adm. Robert B. Carney, Arleigh A. Burke, George Anderson, and Thomas H. Moorer.

The military officers in the Lemnitzer-McCain group represent all the branches of service.

Included are Gen. Lewis Walt, former Asst. Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps; Gen. Charles L. Bolte, former Vice Chief of Staff, Army; Maj. Gen. Earnest L. "Mike" Massad, former Dept. Asst. Sec. of Defense; Maj. Gen. Kenneth O. Sanborn, former Commander, U.S. Air Forces, South, Panama; and Brig. Gen. John S. Elsenhower, son of the late President Elsenhow-

The officers come from 40 of the nation's 50

THEIR POSITION-free of political constraints -was presented by Maj. Gen. J. Milnor Roberts, ROA Executive Director, in a little publicized appearance before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

So important is their opposition to the treaties that Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a leader of the bipartisan group in the Senate opposing ratification, has begun circulating the list of names of 320 military leaders, and the states from which they come, to colleagues.

THE MAJOR opposition theme of these military officers is that the U.S. is taking a grave security risk in sharing the operations and control of the strategic waterway with the Marxist government of Panama because of its close relationhip with Communist Cuba.

This issue along with the Panamanian view that they will be free to employ technicians from Communist countries to run the Canal, if they so desire, will be raised by these military leaders when the Senate Armed Services Committee holds hearings in January over the security implications of the new treaties.

The military officers already have supplied the Committee with documents showing that Carlos Lopez Guevara, one of Panama's treaty negotiators, is on record as saying that the technicians hired by Panama to run the Canal might be of any nationality, including Russian, Cuban, or ese, as well as American

THIS POTENTIAL danger was spotlighted by Adm. Thomas Moorer, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in a little noted statement to the House International Relations Committee. Adm. Moorer warned the lawmakers that they should not be surprised to see a Soviet or Cuban presence quickly established in Panama if the treaties were ratified in their present form.

IN NOTING THAT a large Soviet mission had recently visited Panama, seeking concessions and offering economic assistance, Adm. Moorer reported:

"Anyone who reads Soviet literature concerning maritime affairs soon learns that the Soviets fully understand the strategic importance of the Panama Canal, even if some here in Washington

"In my view, this prime reason for the burdensome support of Cuba by the Soviet Union is related directly to the interest in the Canal as they greatly expanded their maritime capabilities, both warships and merchant ships. We have, in fact, a Torrijos-Castro-Moscow Axis."

IN THE VIEW of Adm. Moorer and the 320 other military officers, the Panama Canal represents a vital portion of our U.S. naval and maritime assets, all of which are absolutely essential for free world security.

Note: In 1976, the U.S. acceded to Panama's request and gave up control of Bayano Dam, a source of energy and a necessary control valve on the lake which supplies the locks with water.

The daily inspections of the dam ceased immediately after Panama took possession. Within a few months, the dam became inoperable.

Torrijos could find no Panamanians with the knowledge and skills to repair it and was forced to fly in a team of Yugoslavian engineers and me-

COUNTLESS NUMBERS of you are probably unaware that you have just received a big and unexpected family tax bonus-getting back deductions you thought were lost or picking up extra deductions you had not counted on.

And it's all due to a new Treasury ruling, reversing a previous position, that capital outlays count as support for dependents.

Autos, TV sets, etc., can now help you meet the more-than-half support test needed to claim a dependency deduction.

SAY YOUR SON, Robert, is a college student who earned $3,000 in '77 to pay for part of his expenses. Your $2,000 provides the rest of his support and you also buy him a used car for $2,500 as a Christmas gift.

Up to now, you couldn't claim Robert as a dependent, but under the new ruling, your $2,500 Christmas gift counts as support. Along with your $2,000 in cash support, you've contributed more than Robert's $3,000.

And while in general a dependent's income must be less than $750, there is no income limit for a child under age 19 or for a full-time student

THE RULING is not limited to children. If you handle all other tests correctly, it can help you with any dependency claim. Say your mother lives in your home, receives $3,000 in Social Security, another $2,700 in support from you.
You give her a $400 TV set for her own bedroom as a Christmas gift. The TV set counts as support you provide, which plus your $2,700 tops the $3,000 she provides for herself.

If you put the set in the family den, though, it becomes an item of family use, not support for your mother. The set doesn't count for dependency purposes and you lose the deduction.

NOW SAY YOU buy a car, titled and registered in your name, but your son uses it about half the time. No part of the price of the car counts as support. If you really want to give him the car, put title and registration of the car in your son's name-if he is to use it most of the time. The car is then a gift to your child and is added to support you provide. Or say your son wants to buy a $4,000 car next year, and you provide $3,600 to pay for his other expenses. You lose out. Your son is paying for the car entirely out of his own funds, so the full cost of the car is treated as support he provides himself in '78, even if he makes only a small

IF, THOUGH, YOU provide enough toward the purchase of the car to put him over the morethan-half support mark, you get the dependency deduction. Your son wins too by keeping his personal exemption on his return.

Can this be bad news for you, however, if your child has already bought a car in '77? Does the new ruling eliminate a dependency deduction you were expecting to get this year? No, there's a big break here.

tired father who has provided some of his own support in '77 with SS benefits. If you buy the car before Dec. 31, you may lock in a dependency deduction for him. The capital outlay counts as sup-

10,000 Die In Storm In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - A death toll of at least 10,000 was reported today in the cyclone and tidal waves that hit the southeast coast of India over the weekend. Hundreds of bodies were burned on

The latest figure was given to reporters at Hyderabad, capital of Andhra Praesh state, by state Revenue Minister P.N.

Another storm approaching the southwest coast was downgraded to a squall.

India's worst storm disaster since 1971 began Saturday when the fierce windstorm and heavy rains hit a 250-mile stretch along the coast of Andhra Pradesh. J. Vengal Rao, chief minister of the state, said about 2,600 bodies have been recovered. On the opposite side of the Indian subcontinent, drenching rains lashed the west coast as the third cyclonic storm of the month churned from the Arabian Sea toward the heavily populated areas of Goa and Bombay. The storm was fast weakening, however, and weather stations said the sprawling port of Bombay, which is in the storm's path, would be spared violent killer winds. Back from a helicopter tour of the devastated Andhra Pradesh, Rao said he saw hundreds of bodies floating in the flood waters. They were being collected and burned on huge pyres, he said. Three towns famous for handloomed fabrics, Bapatla, Chirala and Repalle were reported in total ruin. Hundreds of thousands of persons were homeless and scores of villages were washed away. First damage estimates ran over $25 million.

Indian army and air force troops were distributing relief supplies and trying to restore communications.

It was India's worst weather calamity since the October 1971 cyclone that took 10,000 lives in Orissa state, 750 miles to the northeast.

The Andhra Pradesh cyclone, with winds up to 95 miles an hour, was one of three violent November storms to hit southern India

One week earlier, a cyclone from the to an Internal Revenue Service auditor. Bay of Bengal raged across Tamil Nadu state near the country's southern tip, killcounts before U.S. District Judge Wiling 407 persons and causing $24 million worth of damage.

The third storm, off India's west coast, at latest report was slowing and weakening after causing havoc to coconut plantations and fishing boats at Kalpeni Island, 200 miles offshore

Warning of at least 24 hours of torrential rain, the Bombay weather station said the third storm would hit the coast near Karwar, 250 miles south of Bombay, early Wednesday.

Kissinger Says U.S. Should Aid In Talks

NEW YORK (AP) - The American role in the Middle East now should be to try to facilitate further contact between the parties without trying to maintain a joint posture with the Soviet Union, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today.

Kissinger said he also thought a Geneva conference would be more useful as a meeting to ratify agreements rather than as a forum for negotiating them.

He said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat came away from his historic trip to Jerusalem "with the confidence that an agreement acceptable to both sides can be negotiated.

Speaking on the NBC "Today" program, Kissinger continued, "The United States should not tie itself to one particular formula... (but) should facilitate the realization of whatever the Egyptian and Israeli leaders have in principle agreed upon, to make it possible for moderate Arabs to join this process."

Israel's U.N. ambassdaor, Chaim Herzog, also characterized the Sadat visit as "the beginning of a process, not an end in "That process will be a long, drawn-out one if it is going to get anywhere." Heraog told interviewers on the ABC "Good Morning America" program.

Kissinger said he felt the parties ought not go to Geneva just for the sake of going there, but he said the conference, 'as a ratification forum, can be very useful. As much as possible should be negotiated ahead of time.

Kissinger said the United States 'should pursue these efforts pretty much on its own.

'The Soviet Union has been responsible for most of the crisis in the area... Kissinger said. "If there is a solution, the Soviet Union can participate in endorsing it, but I do not think the Soviet Union is necessary to bring matters beyond this

Preparing a second draft means the president probably won't have a document to sign much before Christmas. The administration plans to put the new order into effect early next year.

Carter aides say they probably will scrap a first-draft proposal to develop a standard secrecy agreement by which agencies could have required employees to promise never to reveal classified in-

The earlier proposal would have allowed any agency with authority to classify documents to require of its employees a secrecy pledge as "a precondition of access to classified information."

Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., chairman of the House government information subcommittee, called the standard pledge "singularly objectionable" because it would have "a distinctly chilling effect on potential whistle blowers, and (it) seems particularly inappropriate in an executive order whose objective is greater openness.

A "whistle blower" in government jargon is someone who reveals wrongdoing despite attempts to keep it a secret.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we booted the secrecy agreement," said one official.

"That seems to be the drift of what the staff recommendations seem to be," said another source. "The sense of the staff would be to recommend dropping any reference to any kind of secrecy agree-

However, the officials say individual agencies still could impose secrecy agreements of their own.

Some agencies, including the CIA, presently require such pledges. The Supreme Court has said secrecy agreements give the CIA the right to censor the writings of former employees

CIA Director Stansfield Turner has actions spelled out for human rights and cused former agency analyst Frank Snepp of violating such an agreement by publishing "Decent Interval," a book out self-help programs. WASHINGTON (AP) -The timetable for delivering U.S. food aid to needy countries has been delayed two months because of a Carter administration review of human rights in the recipient nations, a senior Agriculture Department official said today.

However, Kelly M. Harrison, the department's general sales manager, said the logiam has been cleared and that new Food for Peace agreements with eligible nations are expected to be signed in the next few weeks.

"Increasingly scarce labor will result in a natural decline in the unemployment rate," William A. Cox, staff economist a group of University of Southern California students this week.

"Young people have been backlogged, waiting for jobs because the work force couldn't absorb them. A decade from now, they will be absorbed much easier.'

Cox said the rate of increase in the national labor force has been 2.5 percent a year through the 1970s. But the "baby boom" peaked in 1955, meaning fewer people now are coming of working age than in the past decade. By the late 1980s, he said, the nation's work force should be

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - There was heavy selling of grain futures Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade after prices were pushed lower by commercial grain users. Substantial Hedge pressure was the dominant feature in the corn and soybean pits, as grain companies offset weekend purchases in cash markets by selling futures contracts. Soybean deliveries receded an average of 14 cents, to $6.12% a bushel in the January contract. Corn futures lost 2 cents, with the nearest month selling at $2.24 at The downturn affected wheat futures, which lost more than 4 cents a bushel in

Soybean futures resisted the hedge pressure until shortly after midsession, when some large sales by grain dealers triggered stop-loss selling by local profes-

The selections were announced Monday.

Grain Forecast May Not Change

ture Department may not issue another estimate of 1977 Soviet Union grain production, despite speculation that Moscow's harvest disclosure three weeks ago may be wide of the mark.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev announced Nov. 2 that grain production this year was 194 million metric tons, short of Moscow's planned goal of 213.3 million tons

The official estimate also was short of U.S. forecasts that the Soviet crop would reach 215 million tons. On the heels of Brezhnev's comments, the department revised its estimate to 194 million tons to coincide with the Moscow report.

"There is some speculation on just how this 194 million figure will hold up,' Fletcher Pope Jr. of the department's Economic Research Service said Monday in response to a reporter's questions.

One line of speculation has been that the Soviets may have suffered a greater setback than Brezhnev's announcement indicated and that eventually Moscow will issue a final harvest figure substantially lower than the 194 million tons.

But Pope, who also is a member of the department's Soviet grain task force, said some people think the final figure may be 3 (million) to 5 million tons larger than Brezhnev announced.

"Personally, I'm not expecting any major changes from the 194 million tons," Pope said. "I'll be surprised if there

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agricul- nounce a final 1977 grain harvest figure eventually. However, Pope said he did not expect a new estimate before Dec. 14 at a meeting of the Supreme Soviet, at the earliest, and perhaps not until late January when Moscow officials review 1977 performances.

Meanwhile, the 194 million tons of grain reported as the Soviet Union's harvest this year is the central basis for estimating its import requirements currently put at 20 million to 25 million tons in 1977-78

Of this total, department officials expect that about 15 million tons of U.S. grain - perhaps 10 million corn and 5 million wheat - will be bought by the Soviets for delivery through next Sept. 30, the end of the second year of a 5-year grain agreement. Under the agreement, the Soviets are pledged to buy a minimum of 6 million tons of wheat and corn annually - the amount purchased in the first year. The United States earlier this fall gave Moscow permission to buy up to 15 million tons in 1977-78.

Including 250,000 additional tons of wheat and 250,000 tons of corn, announced Monday by the department, the Soviets now have bought about 4.4 million tons of U.S. grain under terms of the second year of the agreement.

Taking Pills Could Get Complicated

By BRUCE NICHOLS HOUSTON (UPI) — Following future drug prescriptions may become a bit more complicated than just taking so many pills so many times a day. It could many piles so many times a day. It could involve watching one's watch.

The same could apply to taking other kinds of treatment and possibly even to visiting the doctor or hospital.

Dr. Michael Smolensky and colleagues at the University of Texas have been studying the idea that medical care, especially drugs, can be more effective at one very specific time than at another because of body rhythms.

Smolensky and Dr. John McGovern, also of Texas, have published a book in the field entitled "Chronobiology in Allergy

"What we're trying to determine is the practical application of man's time structure in solving clinical problems such as appropriately managing diseases with chemotherapy," Smolensky said.

We've been taught that the body is relatively constant and what is generally unrecognized is the practical significance of biological rhythms, the time structure, of the body and its implication for diagnosis and treatment.

Smolensky said "wide variability" in response to drugs or other treatment depending on time of day, week or month applies as much to males as to females, whose menstrual cycle is the most obvious example of chronobiology. He said the value of more carefully timed treatment, already shown in limited areas of research, is a two-pronged affair involving risks and benefits. That is, timing can be juggled to minimize toxicity and maximize curative effects.

Smolensky said Texas scientists have conducted studies on asthmatics, trying to determine the most effective times to give them so-called bronchial dilators, which guarantee free breathing for a pe-"We're starting to look at the possibility that there may be a need for an unequal dosage, unequal interval, administration of drugs. In asthmatics, for example, airways tend to be in better shape during midday

"The big push now is to use the drugs already available for treating cancer, for example, in a more efficient manner," he

Other Texas tests will involve inducing cancerous tumors in mice and experimenting with variable time, variable dosage, treatment with the goal of minimiz-ing toxic side effects while maximizing benefits of strong anti-cancer drugs.

Aside from drug-timing, or chronopharmacology, Smolensky said other changes in health care delivery could arise from proving that patient's symptoms and response to treatment vary according

"Most doctors, for example, see patients only in the daytime and their physical conditions can change quite rapidly after the office closes at 5 or 6," he said.

"I'm not sure it would change his work cycle, but it may change how he operates with his patient as far as the patient's perhaps through self-observation or his

Louisiana Town Wants State Capital Moved

COVINGTON, La. (UPI) - The St. Tammany Parish police jury wants the State Capitol, the governor's mansion and all other state government buildings moved back where they belong. The jury unanimously passed a resolution recently saying Covington is the true state capital and all government buildings now in Baton Rouge should be moved to this rural town in southeast

Juror Ralph Privette introduced the resolution as a protest to a new state law requiring parishes to pay a quarter of the engineering costs for state building pro-

Privette said the history books back his theory that Covington is the true capital

In the 1950s, Gov. Earl Long's wife committed him to a state mental hospital in Mandeville and the hub of state government moved to the north shore of Lake Pontchartrain while Long proved his sanity and later stayed to regain his strength.

The governor managed to have himself released from the mental hospital by firing the facility's director and appointing a new man head of the institute who gratefully testified at a hearing that the governr "is as sane as I am."

Long remained in St. Tammany Parish.

MEDICAL COST AID

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - A week ago the parents of critically ill Kevin Boyd were facing $14,000 in medical bills and had no idea where they would get the ad-ditional $50,000 needed for an operation that could save the 11-year-old. But thanks to state aid and scores of private donors who read about the Boyds' plight, medical bills will be paid and Kevin will get the bone marrow transplant that will give him the chance to live.

DR. LAMB

Salt Affects Pressure

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been told I have high blood pressure. I am taking a mild medication. I exercise, am about eight to 10 pounds overweight, and seem to have no particular stress in my life. I'm 58, and my blood pressure has been 170 over 400. Some have mentioned that it might be caused by drinking nothing but commercially softened water at home. Could the salt in this contribute enough salt to my system to be a problem?

DEAR READER - Your blood pressure is not alarming, but statistics do show that low normal readings are associated with a lower incidence of heart attacks, strokes and other problems associated with disease of the arteries. It will help you if you can regulate your life to have a more normal

The first order of business is to get rid of every pound of fat you can. Keep your exercise program going, and cut down on your salt.

There are differences in water softeners, but some do increase the salt (sodium) content in the water. In addition some scientist studying heart disease have claimed that soft water in the pipes dissolves out heavy metals that are toxic to the kidneys and may lead to high blood pressure.

If you want soft water for drinking purposes, why don't you just get bot-tled distilled water? I would suspect the mild medicines you are receiving help eliminate salt from your body.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you more information on what you should be doing. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband is in his late 40s. He is a big eater, but does heavy physical labor, so usually uses up the energy from his big meal.

He eats no breakfast, has a light lunch, and a big dinner. He doesn't have much indigestion except during the night - two nights in a row this week, he got up quickly to vomit, and had a lot of acidity. He says he's not About a year ago, he had bleeding from his bowels, it stopped but came back once. What do you think cause the vomiting?

DEAR READER - Anyone who has unexplained vomiting must have a medical examination. There is no other way to find out the cause and it can be a symptom of an important illness He could have a haital hernia with food regurgitating back into his lower esophagus after that heavy evening

He could have an ulcer or an obstruction of the outlet of the stomach. He could even have a malignancy. I hate to alarm you, but you simply cannot ignore that kind of history. While waiting to see the doctor, I think you should have him change his eating habits and eat a normal breakfast, a reasonable lunch, and a very light evening meal at least three hours before he goes to bed. He should stop coffee, cigarettes and alcohol if he uses these, BUT he simple must see a doctor.

I might add for other readers that unexplained bleeding from bowels is often hemmorrhoids, but it can also be cancer and should never be neg-

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The United States had a plan in 1917 for invading Mexican oil fields in case of a World War I energy shortage, a history professor says.

But Dennis O'Brien of the University of California at Sacramento said the plan became unnecessary because oil companies cooperated, diplomacy was effective and Mexican President Victoriano Carranza was passive.

O'Brien said the existence of the plan was first publicized in an article he wrote for a University of Mexico publication. A review of the article was published this "Mexico was the Saudi Arabia of its day, and the United States was really on the razor's edge, leaning dangerously close to intervention," O'Brien said in an

"In revealing what the United States was contemplating in those days, the plan is a real 'smoking gun' which proves what many Mexicans have suspected, but none has been able to prove.

Engineer Claims Bus Defective

AUSTIN (AP) - Some injuries in the New Mexico bus wreck that killed 17 Austin residents in 1972 would have been less severe if Wayne Corp. had used safer seats, a seat designer has testified.

Dr. Verne Roberts, Duke University engineer, told a jury Monday that injuries would have been "moderate to minor" if seats like those he recently designed had been used on a bus carrying members of the Woodlawn Baptist Church.

Roberts was called to the stand by Dale Haralson, who filed suits against Wayne Corp., the bus manufacturer, on behalf of four survivors and the families of 10 persons killed in the wreck.

Roberts said he viewed the bus wreckage in Roswell, N.M., and decided "on the spot" that the bus body was defective. "I think I told you (Haralson) at that time that no one should have died in that accident past the first row.

On cross-examination, however, Roberts testified that a bus driver would not be able to see all his passengers if highbacked seats were used. Safety regula-tions require the driver to be able to see the passengers, said Lancaster Smith, lawyer for Wayne Corp.

The president told a gathering of scientists and their friends that science and research has been allowed to backslide in

"We will have problems on our hands if we don't reverse this trend," Carter said. research in the budgets.

Carter, a music buff who works with the recorded sound of the classics playing in the Oval Office, was noticeably pleased when Dr. Peter C. Goldmark presented him with the first experimental pressing of the 33-one-third rpm disc.

Major Airports TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese newspaper reporter says he carried an electronic lighter shaped like a pistol in a shoulder bag through 14 major airports in Europe and Asia and was stopped at less than half of them.

"Despite anti-hijacking drives by air-line companies the world over, ongoing counter measures at the major airports are not so effective," Hiroshi Sekiguchi reported in the Tokyo Shimbun.

There are good chances for people to get aboard an airplane with devices of of-Sekiguchi said during his 18,630-mile fact-finding trip, guards at seven airports detected and confiscated his lighter -Tokyo, Amsterdam, Rome, Tel Aviv, Cairo and Singapore.

"At others, they did not conduct any close examination at all," Sekiguchi said. These airports were in London, Frankfurt, Athens, Karachi, Bombay, Bangkok and Kuala Lumpur.

Sekiguchi said that at Orly Airport in Paris he packed the lighter inside a suitcase which was not checked.

"Even X-ray screening could fail to detect arms and weapons craftily hidden in a passenger's luggage. I found present methods of searching criminal equipment by opening luggage quite poor at most airports," the reporter said.

"But what impressed me most during my recent trip was Tel Aviv airport in Israel. The officers at the airport seemed to believe nothing but their own eyes. They examined passengers' belongings for offensive devices virtually item by nouncing Mayor Michael Bilandic for what she called his "fraudulent and conspiratorial" role in a taxi fare increase, consumer sales commissioner Jane Byrne arrived at City Hall to find her books and papers being packed into cardboard house.

On her desk was a letter of dismissal

from Bilandic.

Mrs. Byrne, a favorite aide of the late Mayor Richard Daley, passed a lie detector test on her charges last week. On Monday, she said she was eager to testify before a federal grand jury Nov. 29 about the matter, which is under investigation by the Federal Trade Commission and the LLS atterney's office. the U.S. attorney's office.

Upstairs, Bilandic was telling a news conference that Mrs. Byrne was fired and that he, too, had passed a lie detector test on whether he took a bribe in the 11.7 percent fare increase, although Mrs. Byrne never said a payoff was involved.

The mayor declared the polygraph test settled the matter and walked out without answering questions.

John Reid of John Reid Associates, the firm which gave both examinations, said the results show both Mrs. Byrne and Bilandic were telling the truth in answering the questions they were asked. He said those results were possible because Mrs. Byrne's memo mentioned discussions she said she overheard between Bilandic and other parties, but did not specify any illegal behavior on Bilandic's part. Reid said the questions Bilandic answered were directed toward denying he had done anything illegal.

The mayor's responses, to questions he himself formulated, showed he did not take a bribe, did not participate in an illegal conspiracy, did not ask taxi officials to illegally dummy figures, and personally knows of no one who received a bribe to increase taxi rates.

Mrs. Byrne's test showed she heard Bi-landic say he could hurry the passage of the fare increase along by "blowing up some other matter and tack the fare increase on in unfinished business;" that she heard Bilandic tell the head of a taxi firm "to change the figures in his columns to add up right ...," and that she heard Bilandic and the taxi executive discuss the justification for the cab fare in-

Reid said that on a fourth question, relating to a telephone conversation Mrs. Byrne claimed she overheard between Bilandic and a cab company attorney, there were "unexplained emotional res-ponses" which made it impossible for the examiner to decide if the answer was true or false. Mrs. Byrne's questions were deter-mined by the Chicago Daily News, which arranged and paid for the examination.

"I know Mayor Bilandic is lying." Mrs. Byrne told reporters in her office. She said her ouster was "as cheap as every-thing else that's been going on around

"I might be a go-between or represent Iranian interests who would want to do something in this country," Helms, 64, told the Washington Post.

Helms was fined $2,000 and given a

Wheat Suit Dismissal Sought

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - A motion to dismiss a class-action suit filed on be-half of Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico wheat farmers after the 1972 Russian wheat sale has been taken under advisement by a federal judge.

Approximately 30 attorneys appeared in U.S. District Court here Monday for oral arguments on the matter. Among them was former San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who argued that the farmers should be allowed to take their case

The wheat farmers allege that the nation's major grain dealers conspired with certain U.S. Department of Agriculture officials to control the market prior to the Russian wheat sale. They contend this alleged conspiracy caused farmers to sell their grain at depressed prices, caus-ing windfall profits for the major compa-mal business hazards.

But Alioto argued that only through a conspiracy could 25 percent of the wheat crop be "very effectively concealed" in the middle of the wheat harvest.

He said if the case goes to trial, the farmers hope to show, among other allegations, that Clarence Palmby, a former assistant secretary of agriculture who helped negotiate the Russian grain deal, was simultaneously being paid by Continental to supply inside information and keep the negotiations from becoming public.

Palmby left the Agriculture Department just before the sale was consumated and took a $60,000 a year job with Con-

Only those farmers in the three-state area who responded affirmatively to court questionnaires asking about sup-port for the suit are considered a part of the class action litigation originally brought by Ed Cleveland, an Altus, Okla.,

In Vatican VATICAN CITY (UPI) - Cardinal Lui-Traglia, who served in the Roman Catholic Church's administration under four popes, died today after a year-long illness. He was 82 years old.

Traglia had served since January 1974 as dean of the College of Cardinals, a chiefly honorary post. His death reduced the number of cardi-nals to 132, of whom 14 are over the age of 80 and thus ineligible to vote for the

He served in the Vatican under Popes Pius XI, Pius XII, John XXIII and Paul VI in various capacities, including that of "devil's advocate" in charge of raising objections to candidates for sainthood. He helped run the pope's diocese of Rome for 32 years, first as vice gerent and then as papal vicar. Pope John named him a cardinal in 1960.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Dock workers and local shipping officials are discussing a contract proposal from the shippers that International Longshoremen's Association President Thomas W. Gleason describes as their "best offer

Gleason arrived Monday from New York to deal with the New Orleans Steamship Association and flew back after the negotiating session because of a commitment. He said he might return for today's meeting. The union leader remained optimistic that a settlement was impending which could hasten the end of the ILA's selective strike in Gulf and Atlantic coast

"There has been a lot of improvement in the offer," he said.

A shipping representative indicated he also was encouraged by the Monday meeting, and said the offer was "different in some respects" from previous industry proposals. The spokesman said major points remaining unsettled were mostly local issues, but they include some form of guaranteed income for longshoremen. Gleason said he wanted to wind things up in the Gulf so a membership vote can be taken on both coasts in time for dock workers to go back to work on Thanksgiving Day - a holiday on which work would be at overtime pay. A three-year "master contract" setting the pattern of agreement was tentatively approved last week for New York and Atlantic ports. Among other things, it includes annual pay increase that would push the present $8-an-hour scale to $10.40 after two years. Gleason said a New Orleans agreement would bring settlement by other shipping associations in the Gulf, including The Mobile, Ala., Steamship Association and the West Gulf at Galveston

The strike which started Oct. 1 was limited to container and barge-carrying ships, whose automated system of loading cargo has reduced dock labor and thus eliminated many longshoremen's On the Atlantic coast, ports have been hard hit by the strike because container shipping amounts to up to 85 percent of all cargo. At New Orleans, container ships handle about 25 percent of the freight — less than that at some other Gulf ports. Containers are about the size of trailer truck bodies. They arrive at the dock pre-packed and are simply lifted aboard ship

Pension Plan At Issue In Transit Strike

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - A strike by 1,850 employees of a suburban bus company disrupted transportation for more than 100,000 passengers for the second straight day today and snarled traffic on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

Bus drivers, mechanics and office workers struck the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District Monday, shutting down a system used by 80,000 workers, 29,000 students and 7,000 senior citizens. Union officials said the district's pension plan was at issue. No negotiations were scheduled.

Police said traffic was clogged on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and in downtown San Francisco during peak commuter hours. About 20,000 persons usually ride AC-Transit buses across the bay to work. The traffic flow was hampered further by a wind-driven rain storm, which flooded streets and freeway on-ramps.

AC Transit's contract with Amalgamated Transit Union Local 192 expired July 1 and work had continued with day-to-day extensions of a 1974 contract.

But a walkout was called after a 12:01 a.m. strike deadline passed Monday with-out agreement by negotiators — despite an eight-hour bargaining session Sunday night.

John Wesley, local president, said the district's pension plan hasn't been im-proved in 12 years, with an average benefit for 295 current pensioners of $260 a District officials said Wesley's figures were misleading because they did not take into consideration workers who retired under less favorable terms years

Greyhound Sets Contract Talks

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Bargainers for Greyhound Lines and the strike-ready Amalgamated Transit Union met again today in an attempt to head off a nation-wide walkout of 14,000 bus drivers and terminal workers.

"We're meeting with the company again ... They're reviewing proposals we left with them. We don't know where we are after that," said Don Rhodes, vice president of the AFL-CIO's Greyhound bargaining council of 31 locals. "We feel there are some rays of hope.'

The union rejected Greyhound's sec-ond offer Monday. Rhodes said negotiators had set no deadline for reaching Greyhound officials declined to comment on the union rejection and did not disclose contents of their offer.

In Columbus, Ohio, 35 strikers at the lo-cal Greyhound Lines terminal returned to work shortly after noon Monday after a 12-hour unauthorized walkout linked to the national negotiations.

The three-year contract covering the union employees expired last month, but has been extended day to day during ne-

Special Studies WWI Controversy Cousteau TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Another season of Jacques Cousteau's underwater specials always is good news. The good news, a series called "The Cousteau Odyssey," starts on public TV tonight in

His one-hour premiere show - there'll be three more this season - concerns a World War I controversy: the sinking in 1916 of a British hospital ship, the Britannic, in the Aegean Sea near Greece. No wounded were aboard at the time, although the Britannic, sister ship of the Titanic, carried 1,136 persons - nurses, doctors and the crew. Fortunately, all but 30 survived the sinking. Cousteau & Co. set out in this well-photographed show to explore the ship and

-Was the Britannic sunk by a German torpedo or a mine?

-Was it, in violation of the rules of war, carrying either war material or fresh troops headed for combat?

-Why did the huge ship, supposedly made sturdier after the Titanic's fatal pause to take on ice, sink so quickly?

The show opens with Cousteau chatting about the sinking with eight elderly survi-

Seems the crew of his ship, the Calypso, even though aided by sonar, has trouble finding the sunken hulk of the Bri-

But all ends well, of course, and a three-man team of divers is dispatched 370 cold, dangerous feet beneath the Aegean to study the barnacle and coral-en-

way. As with many Cousteau specials, there's an almost-obligatory moment of crusted remains of the ship. Wearing tanks of oxygen, nitrogen and helium, they only can stay down 15 minutes because of the extreme pressure. Then they must spend nearly three hours

It's hard, physically difficult work for young men. But even Cousteau, at 67, makes the dive - which says something not only about his curiousity but also of a wonderful spirit undamaged by age.

An equally moving moment comes when Sheila Mitchell, 86, a volunteer nurse aboard the Britannic when it sank, eagerly climbs in a special diving saucer for a close-up look at the ship.

An animated, lively woman who now lives in Edinburgh, Scotland, she obviously is having the time of her life as she takes her first look at the colors of Cousteau's underwater world.

"It's more beautiful than I ever thought," she joyfully cries. Upon return-

As for the all "is Cousteau sought to the sinking, well, suffice it to say they'll disappoint those who thought the Britannic carried war goods or was done in by a heartless German U-boat captain. The show was made for KCET as part of a three-season series the Atlantic Richfield Co. has bankrolled for nearly $4 million. If the premiere is typical, the bankroll is being well-spent.

Ballet, Plot Of Movie Get Praise Of Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Herb Ross set out to make a movie about the ballet. His co-producer, Arthur Laurents, wanted a film about people and emotions because nobody wants to see a movie about the

And 20th Century-Fox wasn't sure it liked their idea in the first place.

Now they're all tickled. "The Turning Point," their finished product, is getting smash reviews...from the nation's top screen critics. President Carter even turned out for the premiere last week. The film displays some of the finest ballet in the world, brings viewers to tears with an emotional plot and breaks ground by giving two women lead roles. Near-capacity audiences at Washington's DuPont Circle Theater, where the film opened, regularly burst into applause when male dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov leaps and spins across the screen in his American film debut. The Soviet defector is joined in the movie by ballerina Leslie Browne and others from the American Ballet Theater of New York, performing short segments of their best work. It is a stunning turnabout from a barrage of movies based on violence or dis-

"Anything you do is a political act. But I think this ope was conscious," says Ross; explaining his desire to stress cul-tural values and generate more interest in the ballet, particularly among men. We want men to look at ballet as prize fighting," he said in an interview. Laurents, screenwriter in "West Side Story." stresses it is not the ballet but the story that makes the movie. He recalls refusing for eight years the request of Ross and his wife, once-eminent ballerina Nora Kaye, that he write a story of the _dance. Who ... wants to see a movie about ballet?" asked Laurents, who considers ballet dancers to be mindless. "But there was the challenge," he said. My feeling was, I have to find a story that could work any place, because ... I think that anything in the theater and the film has to deal with people and emo-His multi-layered story, featuring Anne

Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine, revolves around the friendship and rivalry of two women -- one who quit her dance career to raise a family, the other who pursued a successful life in the ballet.

"There's envy, there's resentment," Laurents said. "They evade, they duck and finally they have to face it and it really comes out in a scene that I'm extremely proud of .... This is friendship, not like the friendship between men, who are very covered, too busy being macho."
Ross added, "It was a picture that everyone in the industry (including Fox) said would never be made, and when it was made, would never work.

"Everything we do is done the long ay, the way your grandmother would we done it. We baste the turkeys with itter, honey and burgundy wine. We art with fresh cranberries for our cranrry sauce," said Ronald Alheim, who ves as head chef

Alheim's recipe for his turkey dressing nphasizes his point.

The ingredients are 60 pounds of onis, a case of celery, apples, 100 pounds mushrooms, turkey giblets, Alheim's memade croutons, fresh parsley, lots sweet butter and the giblet juices.

We make twice as much dressing as e actually need to stuff 40 turkeys beuse everybody loves it so much," Aleim said.

The staggering logistics of the feast are the hands of the youthful staffers and lunteers of Refer.

"It seems like a very big task. For instnce, a truck drove up with 100 cases of otatoes and onions," Alheim said. "I was wondering where I was going to get eople on a weekday morning to unload

Storm Brings Traffic To Halt On Interstate 80

RAWLINS, Wyo. (UPI) - Two motorists said they had never seen anything like it: a 21-mile stretch of blizzard-battered interstate highway littered with trucks and campers turned on their sides and clusters of cars in snowdrifts.

The scene was a section of Interstate 80 east of Rawlins. Similar conditions existed Monday in the Casper, Wyo., area, the result of a snowstorm that brought blizzard conditions to isolated sections of the state.

Stranded motorists in both areas were rescued by law officers in four-wheel drive vehicles and put up for the night. In Rawlins, more ter, Rawlins Chamber of Commerce and American Red Cross organizers said. A theater and recreation center also were opened in nearby

Jordan Praises Sadat's Visit To Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Jordan's information minister today praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel and the Israeli government radio said King Hussein is interested in talking with Israeli leaders.

Jordanian Information Minister Adnan Abu Odeh told reporters in Amman, "The visit of President Sadat has achieved its goals. This visit has broken the ice and removed the psychological barrier and brought fresh hope for resuming the Geneva peace conference within a new framework.

It was the first praise for Sadat's mission to come from any of Egypt's "confrontation" allies bordering on Israel.

The Israeli government radio, quoting a source on the occupied West Bank, reported that Jordan's King Hussein was interested in talks with Israeli leaders. but added that this depended on the results of Sadat's secret talks with Prime Minister Menahem Begin

The government radio, however, said Jordanian authorities had been disappointed by Begin's noncommittal reply to Sadat's call for territorial withdrawal

It quoted a source in the occupied town of Ramallah who is close to the Jordanian court and had returned from the Jordanian capital of Amman Monday.

But the sources said if there is good news from the talks, Jordan may follow the Egyptian initiative.

The Jordanians were also unsure about Sadat'position on the return of the West Bank to rule by Amman, the source said In departing from Israel, Sadat left behind a challenge to the Jewish nation: Make the "hard and drastic" decisions necessary for a Middle East peace.

Sadat ended his historic three-day mission to Israel Monday after pledging with Begin there would be "no more war" between their nations. He flew back to Egypt, his plane flanked by Israeli jets until Egyptian air space approached and was received by hundreds of thousands of cheering Egyptians who lined his motorcade route chanting, "With soul and blood we re-

most 40 percent of the districts Mexican-American students attend schools that have a minority enrollment of greater than 90 percent. It said 42 percent of the blacks went to schools with more than 60 percent minority enrollment

The court said if the extent of the school district's discrimination had a systernwide impact, then the scope of the remedy also must be systemwide

Regarding the 1973 plan, the court said intentional discrimination against black students was not an issue on the current appeal. But it added: "The unique limitation on desegregation to the sixth grade in black schools, which the AISD proposed and was approved by the district court, raises a fair inference that the AISD intended to continue extensive segregation of Mexican-Americans.

Austin is not just a case of a school board's inaction or failure to reduce segregation because of the force of residential patterns unrelated to official board action. Here the school authorities produced more racial and ethnic separation in the schools than in the residential patterns of the district as a whole.

Sadat, in a break with his Arab allies, recognized Israel's right to exist, terminated the long-standing state of war against the Jewish state and promised to ance program, dispensing emergency aid for housing, utilities, food and burials. To qualify, a family generally must have lost its regular income, through illness or a job layoff for example, and have depleted its savings, Mrs. Washington

Also, she explained, eligible recipients must be residents of the state of Texas for at least 12 months and residents of

Lubbock County for at least six months. Those who qualify do not get cash, but rather, the county makes arrangements with grocery stores and individual landlords to pay certain bills based on a rigid schedule of family size, Mrs. Washington

Emergency assistance is good only for about two months, she said. All the while she added eligible and ineligible clients receive counseling and referrals to other private and public social service agencies, to find jobs and additional assistance.

Monday, the county welfare board, meeting with Mrs. Washington, County Judge Rod Shaw and Commissioner Jim Lancaster, discussed several proposals to make the department's role clearer to the public and general assistance "more realistic" for families with emergency needs

Mrs. Washington said the proposals should help reduce friction her staff has been getting from clients who do not qualify

First, the welfare board and staff want to change the name of the agency to the 'county department of human resources" or a similar title, to emphasize the department's role in referrals and downplay the "welfare" angle.

Shaw called such a move "very logical," saying the word welfare has a "bad Also, Mrs. Washington said the current name is really a misnomer because emergency assistance and welfare "are two different things. People get the wrong idea that they can come here and qualify for money for a period of several months But No. 1, we don't give out money. And two, the assistance we do provide is limited to just a few months Another proposal is to increase the general assistance allowance for shelter. Presently for those who qualify, a family of one or two members is eligible for $50 a month; three or four members, $60; and five or more members, $65. Mrs. Washington said it is "very difficult to find housing" for such small allowances. And if a landlord refuses to accept the county's offered payment, the family must find supplemental assistance

Lady Bird, Lynda Undergo Checkup

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) - Lady Bird Johnson, widow of President Lyndon Johnson, was undergoing a routine checkup at the Mayo Clinic this week.

Her daughter, Lynda Robb, accompanied her to the clinic and also was having home or apartment, she said. Shaw agreed that the welfare department should not be forced to "go begging" to private agencies to supplement the emergency housing payments of eligible families

Mrs. Washington suggested raising the monthly housing allowances by about $20, but board members said even that may be too low. They asked Mrs. Washington to survey rent prices and make a formal recommendation to the board next month

Board chairman Dale Jones said allowing a large family just $65 rent a month is 'unrealistic. You can't buy a tent for

Other proposals Mrs. Washington was instructed to study include:

-Lowering residency requirements. Many applicants are turned away despite 'dire financial needs" because they have not lived in the state or county long enough, Mrs. Washington said. She said her staff tries to refer such clients to other agencies when possible

-Allowing 18-year-olds to qualify for emergency assistance on their own. Currently, if an 18-year-old is sick or laid off from work, he still cannot be eligible for help as long as his parents have an income -Allowing families that have an income but are facing an unusually high expense for medical care or some other

"Somebody had said they thought she was murdered... but another juror said, 'We're not here to discuss that," Mrs. Tyler continued.

On cross-examination assistant District Attorney Jim Darnell got each of the two to state their guilty verdict on the burglary charge had not been influenced by statements concerning Mrs. Martin's death.

Darnell called several other jurors to back that up.

Two days after reporting a burglary to police, Mrs. Martin was found sprawled across a living room couch in her home. Autopsy reports indicated she had been stabbed at least 25 times in the chest and Investigators also found teeth marks on her chest and a wrist, charred areas on her chest and head bruises.

Police Sgt. F.C. Hargrave testified at the burglary trial concerning the tracing of a color television set allegedly stolen from Mrs. Martin's home. Part of his testimony there was about a serial number

"I presumed that he (Hargrave) obtained the serial number from the owner of the TV set, Naomi Miller Martin,' reads an attidavit from juror Hill.

It continues: "If not, I don't think the alleged stolen TV set that was present in the courtroom would have been tied back to Naomi Miller Martin. This was also the general consensus among the other Hargrave testified today he never personally obtained the serial number either from Mrs. Martin or from Radio Lab, an appliance store where repair work on the TV set reportedly was done.

Brown contended that made Hargrave's burglary trial testimony "hear-

Brown also put on the stand a longtime Radio Lab employe, who testified he had checked the store's records going back to 1970 and could find no reference either to Mrs. Martin or to any TV set having the serial number of the one reportedly stolen from her home. the first faster-than-sound passenger run into Kennedy The inaugural French Concorde flight took off from Charles de Gaulle Airport late. Sixteen minutes later, British Airways sent one of its supersonic jetliners up from London's Heathrow Airport. Among the paying customers on the French plane was fashion designer

Pierre Cardin, who said it was his third Concorde flight. "To me, Concorde represents tomorrow's travel today," said Cardin. "It's fast, it's quiet and it's comfortable.

The fare to fly aboard Concorde is $793 one way. To cross the Atlantic via conventional 650 mph jets costs $656 first class, $313 tourist and $146 on no-frills standby

Air France will fly into Kennedy every day. British Airways initially will land twice a week, gradually increasing the schedule to daily flights in January.

The issue of Concorde landings has been both a financial factor for the twoairlines, which repeatedly said the plane needed access to New York to turn a profit, and an incalculable prestige factor for the governments of France and Brit-

most turned into a foreign political problem for President Carter when French officials grumbled that continued prohibition of the plane could put a damper on relations with the United States Today's landing was cleared by the courts after the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey - operators of Kennedy - repeatedly failed to issue new noise standards for the airport. The authority could not find a level that would bar Concorde but not the jets that already use the runways

Last week, the authority said it will adopt noise standards, effective in 1985, which basically will parallel the federal regulations designed to reduce airport noise by the mid-1980s

Federal standards do not apply to 16 Concordes now in service. A Port Authority spokesman said Monday that the noise standards would grant no exceptions, forcing Concorde - and all other jet aircraft - to generate no more than 108 Effective Perceived Noise Decibels upon takeoff

In test takeoffs at Kennedy last month, Concorde averaged 87.7 decibels at one monitoring location and 107.5 at another, the Federal Aviation Administration

This will be made possible by a new ystem contained in Social Security bills recently passed by the House and Senate. The bills now await final negotiations by House-Senate conference committee.

The benefit provisions went largely uncticed in publicity over heavy Social Security tax increases in both bills.

Young workers who will retire in the year 2012 at 65 can do little planning now if they only know what their Social Secur-ity will be in dollars. By then today's concept of the purchasing power of dollars

More helpful will be to know what is called the "replacement rate" — a work-er's pension calculated as a percentage of his wages before he retires. If a worker earned $10,000 this year and retired next year on a $5,000-a-year pension, his re-placement rate would be 50 percent.

The average Social Security replacement rate bounced up and down during the program's first 37 years: 29 percent in 1954, 34 percent in 1955, back to 30 per-cent in 1964. The reason was that Congress adjusted benefits to the cost of living only every few years.

In 1972, Congress tied retirement benefits to the cost of living. This was supposed to stabilize the replacement rate, but because of a miscalculation it threatened to make the rate go haywire.

The average worker's replacement rate

The average worker's replacement rate is now 44 percent and is due to rise to 46 percent in 1979. Under the 1972 formula it could rise to 67 percent by the year 2050, and for low-income workers could rise to 106 percent that year — that is, they would get bigger pensions than their working earnings.

The cost of such increases would be staggering, doubling Social Security tax hikes Congress now plans.

Both the former that 1979 mints in the correct that is the correct that is, the correct that is the correc tempt to correct that 1972 mistake, through a new system known as "wage indexing." Benefits will be based on working life corrected for inflation. Using this mechanism, the Senate bill is de-signed to make the replacement rate for an average worker, retiring at 65, come out at 43 percent, generation after generation, to the year 2050.

The average worker today is someone who makes $10,000.

If his wife did not work, their replacement rate as a couple would be 64.5 per cent. If she worked for average wages, she would be entitled to her own 43 per-replacement rate: 34.4 percent for one and 51.6 percent as a couple if the wife and $1.6 percent as a couple if the wife didn't work.

Replacement rates also vary with income level. For a low-income worker (one earning less than $4,600 in 1976) the individual replacement rate at 65 would be $4 percent. For a high-paid worker (earning over the Social Security "base" wage, now $16,500 but rising to $30,300 by 1985) it would be 32 percent.

The House bill at first glance also provides an average replacement rate of $45 percent. But it is based on retirement at 62 rather than 65, and works out to $41 percent for an average worker retiring at

Before workers can figure their re-placement rates, the Social Security Ad-ministration will have to publish a table based on the final version of the law showing precisely what rates go with ing of retirees today compared to the working population at this time."

The choice of replacement rates in the final bill will affect many generations of Americans, yet they were scarcely debated by Congress.

In both the House and Senate the replacement rates were set in subcommittee and never challenged after that. In each case the rates were chosen to be slightly below what would be the case in 1979 under the 1972 law — 5 percent below in the House version, 2.5 percent in low in the House version, 2.5 percent in

The House bill provides a 10-year guarantee of 1979 level retirement benefits, the Senate five, so that workers who now are a few years from retirement will not

Non-Indian Tribal Vote Suggested

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) - Some Navajo tribal leaders have suggested allowing non-Indians to vote in tribal elec-

Although there have been no formal resolutions prepared for consideration by the Navajo Tribal Council, some members have been giving serious thoughts about the advantages of having non-Navajos participating in tribal government.

The proposal stems from the Tribal Council's decision to claim criminal jurisdiction over all persons living and visiting the giant reservation.

"I don't think claiming jurisdiction over non-Indians is going to cause a legal problem," said a tribal attorney. "But it might cause the tribe some problems with public relations and fairness." If the tribe approves the voting propos al, it will do so on the basis of politics and a desire to show off-reservation groups that the tribe can consider non-Navajo factions on the reservation, officials said. No tribe ever has allowed non-members to vote in its elections, and Navajo officials speculate that only a few of the largest tribes even could consider it to-

They said the number of Anglos on the reservation is small compared to the Navajo population.

Non-members still would not be allowed to share in the tribe's wealth or to be considered for various community or tribal welfare programs. Those would remain exclusively for Navajos, officials

Non-members also would be discouraged from running for tribal offices. Tribal officials said this could be done by requiring candidates to understand both Navajo and English. Very few Anglos are able to speak Navajo, which is considered to be one of the most difficult languages

Tribal officials said another motive for giving non-Navajos the right to vote is that it will bring the tribe closer to eventual separation from the states and becoming a U.S. territory or the 51st state.

Tribal officials admit, however, that selling the idea to reservation residents may be difficult because many Navajos think one of the biggest advantages of the tribal government is that non-members cannot vote.

One of the threats to the aging is the tendency for everyone else to lock them into stereotypes and expect only certain types of behavior. Sexual gratification is one example, he said.

"One of the cruelest hoaxes perpetrated on old people is to try and convince them they don't need sex anymore," Pal-more said. "The majority of healthy men and women remain sexually active in their 70s and on into their 80s. This is very common among normal, healthy married people.

Another inhibiting stereotype imposed on the elderly, the researchers said, is the idea they they are not capable people anymore.

However, the drawbacks to getting old were not ignored in the Duke study. Older people do lose physical strength and their senses do begin to dull. It does take them longer to learn new tasks and their reaction time does slow significantly. But Maddox said the data proves that older people are as resilient as they have to be. They are able to meet the demands of everyday living." What they lose, he said, is "extra resilience."

Extreme physical and emotional demands take an increasingly heavy toll as people grow older, Maddox said. Also, old folks seem to become rigid in

By the time one reaches the 70s or 80s, the prospect of death is accepted as a part of life, he said. The study also indicated that people do not make sudden turns to religion as they grow older. If the older generation is more religious, Maddox said, it is because older people were raised in a more religious atmosphere. While the lives of most elderly Ameri-

Combinations of mental, physical and family pressures render many older persons virtually helpless, he said. Over the age of 75, Maddox said, the chief executive. The new governor will be a native son and will succeed the latest in a string of appointees sent from Washington.

This first election on Tuesday, Nov. 22, was made possible by a plebiscite called last year by former Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe. The Samoans voted overhwelmingly in favor of choosing their governor after resisting popular elections in three previous plebiscites.

A turning point in the move toward elected governors was the arrival of Earl B. Ruth, a former congressman from North Carolina who took over the governor's office in early 1975.

Within 18 months of his arrival, Ruth had fired, removed or discredited many of the Samoans appointed to executive positions by former Gov. John M. Hay-

He since has served in the administration of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific, and was deputy high commissioner when he resigned earlier this year.

Lutali, also 57, has served 10 years in the Fono, the Samoan legislature, and was speaker of the House for six years and president of the Senate for four years. He was elected as the territory's non-voting delegate to Congress in 1974.

Both candidates have pledged to preserve the Samoan way, but the campaign has been waged on such issues as the future political status of the territory, a constitutional convention, economic development and tourism, and improved day of 1977 with 39 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury. Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius. French statesman and military leader Charles de Gaulle was born Nov. 22, 1890. American composer Hoagy Carmichael was born on this date in 1899.

On this day in history: In 1950, a wreck on a Long Island Railroad train as it pulled out of a tunnel from New York City killed 79 persons. In 1960, the U.S. Navy launched the "Ethan Allen," at that time the most powerful nuclear submarine in the world.

At the beginning of 1977 there were an estimated 183 million people in the United States with some form of private health insurance, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas. Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested and later was named by the Warren Commission as the man who fired the fatal shots. Vice President Lyndon Johnson was sworn in as the nation's 36th chief executive a short time after the shooting.

In 1974, President Ford arrived in Vladivostok for talks with Soviet Communist Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev.

Doctor Blasts Insurance Act

SEATTLE (AP) — Compulsory national health insurance is not the best and least costly way to provide medical care, says Dr. William Mangold of Texas.

Mangold, appearing in a debate before a University of Washington medical group, refuted statements made by Lyle Mercer, executive secretary of the Washington Coalition for a National Health Program.

"Our country cannot afford not to have a comprehensive health care program, Mercer, who also is a member of the board of Group Health Cooperative in Seattle, said.

Mercer said the Kennedy-Corman Health Security Act before Congress is the best prospect for satisfactory national health insurance

Mangold replied that such compulsory insurance would dramatically alter the health care system, providing that medical costs be paid directly by the federal

Mangold suggested an alternative a measure supported by the American Medical Association, which he said would maintain the existing relationships between doctors and hospitals, patients and private health insurance companies. The AMA alternative would provide federal subsidies to the unemployed and self-employed, and require that employers provide coverage.

In Search For Antivenin By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The ability of South Texas woodrats to survive rattlesnake bites may lead researchers to develop a new and more effective antivenin for human use. The woodrat's immunity was discovered at Texas A&I

University recently by a group headed by Dr. John Perez in research funded by the National Institutes of Health here. Perez, in a telephone interview, said he hopes to isolate the factor that gives the woodrats their resistance to venom within a year. If he can, a new antivenin might be devel-

Although there are antivenins now available for rattlesnake bites, they have limitations. After one use, humans become allergic to them, Perez said.

Perez said one of his students, Curtis Hatch, noticed that woodrats often lived in close proximity to rattlers in South Texas. Perez asked him to capture one and bring it into the "We injected the woodrat with a dose of rattlesnake venom and we were surprised that it didn't die," he said. Subsequent experiments with numerous woodrats confirmed the resistance factor.

The group soon discovered other animals which live with rattlers and have developed resistance to their venom. One of the toughest is the Mexican ground squirrel. Perez said that one of them, placed in a box with an average-sized rattler, will wind up killing the snake.

The resistance is not absolute. A big snake generally will kill a small woodrat or ground squirrel.

Perez said he and his students have succeeded in transferring the resistance factor from woodrats to ordinary laboratory rats by injecting blood serum from the woodrats into the lab rats. He thinks a protein in the blood carries the res-

New School Called Aid To Integration

Construction of Lubbock's first public schools south of Loop 289 may well be a force in favor of racial integration, not a tool of segregation, a Texas
Tech University professor Monday told
U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward.
Dr. James Jonish, economics department chairman testifying as an expert witness for the Lubbock Independent School District, said he has found evidence of a "significant population disper-sal" of black and Mexican-American famlies from their traditional neighborhoods

If, as the U.S. Justice Department claims, the district has been trying to contain minorities in certain parts of the city, the strategy has been "not entirely successful," Jonish said.

He said "some degree of penetration by Negroes and Mexican-Americans" has been made in neighborhoods throughout Lubbock. Jonish expects the dispersal fo continue, saying some minorities are "starting to show up in schools in the southwest" already.

Under questioning by school attorney Tom Johnson, Jonish said movement of minorities into areas outside Loop 289 earmarked for new schools is likely.

Also, Jonish supported school officials' contentions that with or without the proposed new schools, the residential boom on the city's south and west sides will continue.

This is a key point in the district's argument that the new schools are needed and that their construction will have little if any effect on the racial composition of inner-city schools.

Texas Tech economics professor Dr. Robert Rouse, another expert witness for the school system, defended-the district's selection of school sites.

The Justice Department contends that the sites beyond Loop 289, some acquired several years ago, were a scheme be-tween school officials and developers to lead, or at least accommodate, predominantly white residential growth in Lubbock's southwest quadrant.

Rouse conceded that the "location of schools is obviously important" in resi-dential development and that people moving southwest probably had a "comfortable assumption" of getting neighborhood schools.

But, he said, the prospect of new schools was only one of "many factors" in the southwest migration. And even though the proposed school construction has been in limbo since the Justice Department's latest discrimination charges were filed, housing starts and other resi-dential activity have not let up, Rouse

"Regardless of what the effect has been, building has continued," he said. Rouse said the school district has saved taxpayers a substantial amount of money by trying to stay ahead of residential de-velopment in buying school sites early. Purchasing land after development takes place would cost the district several

The transcript of a deposition submit-ted to Woodward Monday details the dispersal of minorities cited by Jonish.

In the document, Jonish said that from 1960 to 1970, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, the bulk of Lubbock's black pop-ulation expanded from two census tracts to six; Mexican-Americans, he said.

spread out from nine census tracts to 16.

These figures, Jonish told Woodward during the hearing, are reflected in school enrollments and racial compositions — evidence that population movements, not school district actions, are responsible for changes in the ethnic make up of various schools.

up of various schools.

Jonish also said many factors — ostensibly "not of school origin," Johnson noted — have promoted the residential growth outside Loop 20. These factors, Jonish said, include development of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and the county's Health Sciences Center Hospital, expansion of Texas In-Center Hospital, expansion of Texas In-struments, and the opening of South Plains Mall.

Woodward recessed the school construction and desegregation hearing until 9:30 a.m. Nov. 28. School officials say they will need two or three more days to present their arguments.

Legion Changes Convention Site

ences between a hotel and American Legion officials has spurred the Legion to move its 1979 convention site from Kansas City to Houston.

Legion officials approved the move after charging that the management of the plush Crown Center Hotel, which was to be the convention headquarters, was too slow in completing convention plans and not flexible enough in granting price breaks and free rooms to the Legion. Officials said Monday the decision means the loss of $5 million they had expected the convention to pump into the Kansas City economy

'They apparently didn't take us seriusly enough in negotiations," said Bill Miller, the Legion's national convention director. "So we pulled out."

Convention and hotel officials were surprised by the Legion's move. They had been working 18 months to reserve nearly 7,500 rooms for the convention, which was expected to bring 20,000 Legionnaires into the city.

"I was as surprised as anyone that they pulled out without notice," said Chris Marker, general manager of Crown Cen-

The Legion had asked for a complimentary room for every 50 Crown Center rooms rented and for some of those free rooms to be complete suites. The hotel agreed to meet the Legion's request to back $1 to the Legion for every room rented by conventioneers.

Miller said the decision to move the convention to Houston came after the hotel was slow in providing a written version of a verbal agreement for free meeting space for conventioneers. Hotel and convention planners say they have managed to reclaim some of the money the economy was expected to gain from the convention.

"The groups we're getting to fill those 1979 dates will mean about $4.5 million to our economy," said Ray Benniston, director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau. "That means we only have a $500,000 loss to make up.

The shooting occurred about 1:36 a.m., officials said, and the suspects were arrested in Gilmer 20 minutes later following an exchange of gunfire between a woman suspect and a Gilmer policeman.

Longview police scheduled a news conference this morning to release details surrounding the officer's death.

Gilmer Police Chief Lee Standifer said one of his officers stopped the vehicle and told the driver, a man, to get out of the car and put his hands on the vehicle. Standifer said the officer then told the woman to get out of the car, but she fired at the officer.

Standifer said the officer returned the fire, hitting the woman once. She was transferred to a Longview hospital for treatment of her gunshot wound.

What do you lead from three worthless cards in a suit partner has bid? The usual choice is "top of nothing." but a convincing argument can be made for selecting the lowest. Consider this hand, where South became declarer at four spades after a routine auction.

West led his lowest heart, won by the ace in dummy. Declarer drew trumps in three rounds, then ran the queen of clubs. In with the king of clubs, East surveyed the defense prospects. It was reasonable to assume that both high diamonds would cash, and that would give the defenders their book. However, since it was obvious that West held a near yarborough, where was the setting trick coming from?

Had the opening lead been the "top of nothing," East would have had an insoluble problem. He would have had no way of knowing whether West had started with two or three hearts, so he might have tried to cash the king of hearts with devastating results.

The actual opening lead of the two of hearts meant that West had to have either one or three hearts. Since East could see that declarer held a minimum in high cards, it was more than likely that declarer held some distributional values for his decision to go on to four spades. What could be more probable than that he, rather than West, held the singleton heart?

Obviously, therefore, the defenders had to rely on the diamond suit to produce three tricks in order to beat the game. If West held the queen, the contract was always down. But there was the possiblity that West held the jack.

To cater to this. East shifted to a low diamond. Declarer decided that the king-jack of hearts, ace-jack of diamonds, king of clubs and a singleton spade were enough for an overcall, so he opted to finesse the nine. West was surprised to win the jack, but he recovered sufficiently to continue the suit and defeat the contract.

She chooses shades of pink and dusty rose.

But Suzanae discovered that she was really a soft, summer-like person. So the woman found a new apartment and bought a new wardrobe full of flowers and pinks. She was remarried within a year.

Suzanne describes getting your palette this way: "It's like a peak experience. It makes you more aware of your own special or extraordinary dimensions."

After doing the palette, she often color coordinates wardrobes, houses and offices for her clients. "There really isn't anything worse than someone living where he isn't comfortable," she says.

I'm an 18-year-old girl and I feel like 35. My reputation is totally gone because I've slept with just about every guy I know. I made it through high school by the skin of my teeth. I've attempted suicide twice. I've seen a psychiatrist, but I can't get it together. All my friends have given up on me.

My family keeps wracking their brains to find out where they failed me. They really tried their best, but it was a game I played to see how much I could get away

I can't remember what it's like to feel respected or to respect myself. I am ready to say to hell with life because I'll never regain the love and respect of those

Start by getting back into therapy. Put all your failures and mistakes behind you. God forgives. Accept Him into your life and let Him work His wonders. But first, get your head together by forgiving yourself. You can do it if you try. Write again and tell me how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: A friend called me and asked for a recipe she'd heard I had. A mutual friend had told her it was the most delicious casserole she'd ever tasted. Well. it was just a can of this and a package of that. A child could throw it together in five minutes. I was ashamed to tell her it was so simple, so I said it had been in my family for years and I promised my grandmother I wouldn't give it

Rural Sociologist Experts Say Farmer Businessman, Financier, Gambler

By CAROLYN A. LESH KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Sociolgists say he most often is in his early 50s, a little wary of outsiders and desperate to hold on to what generally is a lowpaying job with long hours.

His profession was determined at birth. He is part businessman, part financier, part gambler. But he is best known by the title farmer

"The farmer doesn't separate work and leisure as much as people in town," said William Heffernan, a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri-Columbia. "He may spend an entire Sunday afternoon working on a show cow. Now someone else may think that's work. But that farmer may not want to be doing anything else in the world. He's the kind of person who really loves his work."

Heffernan, who operates a 40acre farm in addition to his teaching job, calledfarming a contagious profession with an extremely low job turnover.

'Farmers like being their own boss, being close to nature and carrying out a family tradition," the professor said. "There has to be other reasons than money, especially when you consider the amount of capital they invest and what they get back.

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures for last year show the realized net income per farm was $7,885 with the average acreage at 393 acres. Dr. Norman V. Whitehair, director of the extension Division at Kansas State University in Manhattan, estimates a typical farmer works 2,500 hundred hours a year - 500 hours longer than someone who puts in 40 hours a week for 50 weeks a year

Agriculture officials estimate it would cost anywhere between $500,000 and $1. million to set up an average-size farm today - making the business almost probitive for anyone not born into a farm

"The high cost is keeping out a lot of young men who want to go into farming," said Dr. Kan Flora, a rural sociologist at Kansas State. "What's going to happen, I think, is that there's going to be a method devised where farmers don't really own their land Flora said one possiblity would be the government owning the land and then leasing it to farmers We're beginning to see the demise of the family farm in the sense of the farm being wholly owned by the family who works it. Both Flora and Heffernan said farmers hold close ties to their churches and tend to think big labor and government have too much power. The two professors also believe farmers generally are closer to their families and neighbors than urban-

"I think it has a lot to do simply with the fact that there's less geographic movement," Flora said. "The people who live in rural areas have lived there for a long time." But the closeness among family and friends apparently makes it harder for farmers to accept people with different lifestyles or backgrounds

"I've been looking at some national surveys and I don't exactly understand why it's true, but rural people in general seem to be less accepting of people who are different than them - cn terms of such things as interracial marriages or whether they would vote for a black or a Jew for president," Flora said. "I suppose that comes back to the issue of tight-knit communities."

Flora and Heffernan disagreed on the basic nature of farmers.

"They're optimistic," said Heffernan. They're aLlways thinking 'things will always get better.' They'll be out there year after year planting a crop and hop-ing for better prices and weather."

They're pessimistic about everything in general," Flora said. 'I don't claim this is a scientific finding, but I think being so affected by the weather makes them that

But most farm experts agree that the image of the farmer wearing bib overalls and a straw hat and saying aw-shucks is a myth today

"Farmers today are businessman who have to have a vast knowledge in things such as herbicides, pesticides, marketing and high finance," said John Junior Armstrong, head of the Kansas Farm Bureau. "He's just like his city cousin now. If you put them together, you wouldn't be able to tell them apart.

Rural communities, however, still lack some of advantages of metropolitan

"One of the biggest problems is the shortage of doctors in rural areas," said

But there is cleaner air, more open space and less crime. And there are still people who do not lock their doors at

"I remember when a retired attorney from Washington bought a farm out here," said Heffernan. "The first night in the house he went to lock the doors and found out there were no locks. That kind of shook up someone coming from Washington, D.C."

charged with fleeing from the Lubbock County jail in 1974 - Monday pleaded guilty to the charge, and Judge Denzil Bevers assessed him a 10-year prison

A Lubbock jury earlier had convicted Guiterrez of escape and sentenced him to life in the penitentiary. However, the Court of Criminal Appeals in September reversed the life sentence.

The court ruled prosecutors had improperly relied upon a 1966 robbery conviction of Guiterrez's in order to enhance his punishement and convince the jury to sentence him to life.

Gutierez, 32, was in jail awaiting trial on an indictment of burglary of a vehicle when he escaped with 10 other prisoners on July 12, 1974.

Testifying in 72nd District Court Monday, Gutierrez admitted taking jail keys from Deputy G.T. Arrington after other prisoners had assaulted the guard that

SALT Debate Starts Early

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate de-

conferences and background briefings and utilizing a constant flow of leaks.

Already facing a tough fight for ratification of the Panama Canal treaty, the Carter administration and its supporters on Capitol Hill clearly are disturbed that opponents of an arms limitation pact have jumped to a fast start in their campaign to mobilize opposition to any agreement that does not contain major

Thus, supporters of the agreement likely to emerge from the Geneva talks, such as Sens. Gary Hart, D-Colo.; John Culver, D-Iowa; and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are speaking out with increasing frequency Culver and Hart have denounced what they call leaks of classified information by treaty opponents and have demanded an investigation, which they are not like-

President Carter originally had ex-pressed hope that a SALT II agreement could be concluded by the end of the year, but he has since indicated it could be sometime early next spring before the two nations agree on all the details.

Whatever treaty finally emerges from the Geneva talks would require ratification by a two-thirds majority of the Sen-

Many observers on Capitol Hill contend Carter will have a difficult time obtaining the votes necessary for ratification, especially if he is unable to convince Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the Senate's most influential critic of detente, that the treaty is in the best interest of U.S. secur-

Both sides in the domestic debate can talk at length about the fine details of the alphabetical jumble that identifies modern weaponry

- Can the provisions be verified? Critics of SALT contend that we cannot be certain the Russians won't cheat. On the other hand, they add, the Soviets know that our system makes it impossible for an administration to get away with violating any of the limitations written into the pact.

Supporters contend that the technology of our spy satellites has become so sophisticated that we now can detect any cheating. The two sides disagree on

South Africa Ignores Ban By Polaroid

BOSTON (AP) - Polaroid film and cameras have been secretly sold to the South African government despite a company ban on such transactions, a former employee of a Johannesberg firm said.

Indrus Naidoo, a stock dispatcher for Polaroid distributor Frank Hirsch until 1976, made the charges to The Boston Globe via trans-Atlantic telephone from Bonn, West Germany, where he is on a speaking tour.

Polaroid Corp. headquarters in Cambridge, Mass., dispatched a company official and auditor to South Africa to investigate the allegations after they were disclosed, the Globe said.

Naidoo claimed that Frank Hirsch shipped Polaroid products to military headquarters outside Pretoria and to several government bureaus which issue identification passbooks to blacks, the newspaper reported in today's editions.

The passbooks, a symbol of oppression in South Africa, must be carried by every black over the age of 16. They contain a picture as well as the individual's name, tribal origin and permitted places of residence and employment. Blacks must carry the passbooks while traveling.

In 1971 Polaroid became the first majo U.S. corporation to oppose apartheid, South Africa's racial separation policy, and halted sales to the government short-

Naidoo said Frank Hirsch billed all shipments to the South African government through a pharmacy in Johannesberg. Polaroid products are available in drug and photographic supply stores in South Africa.

Polaroid knows the South African gov-ernment is using its film, the Globe said, but believed the purchases were made on the open market

The Globe said Naidoo, who now lives in London, worked as a dispatcher of photographic products for Frank Hirsch.

- What would happen to the strategic positions of the two superpowers if there were no agreement?

Supporters of the pact say the Soviets would move far ahead of the U.S. in the number of multiple-warhead missiles. Opponents contend the agreement now being negotiated would permit the Russians to increase their missile force by about as much as they would without an agreement.

- Who would be in a better position for the start of future arms control talks? The agreement now being negotiated would contain a protocol under which the

U.S. would agree to limit deployment of the Cruise missile Supporters of the treaty contend such limits would expire after three years while limits on the number of multiplewarhead missiles, where the Soviets are stronger, remain in effect for the full eight years of the proposed treaty. Opponents say the United States would be under enormous worldwide political pressure to continue to observe the Cruise missile limitations even after the

Kiss Attracts Record Crowd

A-J Fine Arts Editor

A record shattering attendance figure of 10,250 filled the Lubbock Coliseum Sunday night to see theatrical rock and roll artists Kiss, some reportedly buying tickets from scalpers for between $20 and $50 the night of the show. Previous indoors attendance records in Lubbock were 10,000 capacity houses for another generation's Lawrence Welk and the King himself, Elvis Presley. But Kiss managed to squeeze in more through rock's usual festival seating arrangement, which sees no chairs on the main floor.

Even so, it looked like a lot more than 10,250. Every seat, with the exception of those directly behind the stage, was filled. The concourse which circles the Coliseum was not used for concessions traffic, but was packed with those standing for the entire show. Every aisle had at least two people to every step, sometimes three, sometimes more in their laps.

And the floor itself was a mass of humanity packed sardine tight. If someone had fainted in that crowd, it would have taken them hours to hit the floor.

Meanwhile, the loot Kiss made through the selling of programs, Kiss baseball hats, T-shirts and other souvenirs would most likely have been enough to support a beginning band. But the Kiss Army, as the band's legions of fans have dubbed themselves, is not interested in other bands. They made that point more than evident Sunday night through their treatment of the opening group, Swan Song recording artists Detective.

Hampered anyway by a drastically distorting sound system, Detective gave it a good shot and came off with some fair rockers. Former Yes keyboardist Tony Kaye was impressive and ex-Steppenwolf guitarist Michael Monarch put on a fine display during the band's closing number.

But when vocalist Michael DesBarres shouted, "This will be our last song," he was met with a roar of cheers.

The masses had, after all, started gathering in the nippy winds outside the Coliseum doors well before 6 p.m. to see one band — and one band only. The doors were opened at 6:30 p.m. At 9:15 p.m. the roadies began to expose the Kiss stage scaffolding. At 9:20 the lights went out, the celestial ball began spinning and the crowd reaction was the loudest this writer has heard at any con-

It was deafening. Fleetwood Mac didn't get that kind of response from 14,000 in Fort Worth. The Osmonds didn't get it from 6,000 screaming youngsters in the Civic Center. My memories of seeing The Beatles in Dallas in the early '60s don't include such a loud vocal response. The Kiss crowd ranged in age between the Fleetwood Mac and Osmonds followers. Whereas this writer expected to see 10,000 kids catching the Sunday show before going to elementary school in the morning, the actual brunt of those present seemed to be in the junior high and high school range. The small tykes and college students appeared in relatively equal numbers.

A few parents also escorted their children to the show, and odds are they're still at home asking what the world is coming to.

Kiss claims to use over $1 million worth of stage equipment, and it was hard to argue the fact Sunday. The initial set sees drummer Peter Criss behind his traps at center stage. To each side is a metal stairway, lit in Busby Berkeley style, leading up to balconies which held bassist Gene Simmons and axemen Ace Frehley and Paul Stanley. All are wearing the huge, clunky platform shoes (the musicians' balance is amazing), the uniforms of black and spangles and the now infamous facial makeup.

As KISS is spelled out in gigantic marquee lights behind them, the hydraulic system lowers the balconies to the stage and the guitarists begin their prancing show. Explosions are used and, of course, Simmons wastes few precious moments before wagging the publicized, abnormally long tongue and stalking the crowd which, by this time, has already gone berserk.

Though it probably won few Kiss Army draft evaders back to the fold, it was the course of the emphasis placed on the music. The set design was awe-surprising to note the emphasis placed on the music. The set design was awe-some, yes, but most of the uninitiated fully expected the show to be theatrics and little else. Instead, Frehley offered a better than average guitar solo and and little else. Instead, Frehley offered a better than average guitar solo and Criss was given four minutes alone on the drums.

The loudest reaction, though, was saved for the gimmicks. Frehley stepped on a platform at the front of the stage during "Love Gun" and was lifted a good 15 feet into the air. He then let his sound people help his guitar keep playing while he left the stage, only to return a few minutes later and set fire to it. Stanley, the lead vocalist who couldn't even seem to talk in key, later smashed his guitar into splinters for the crowd's amusement.

And Simmons did his expected blood-drooling bit, only to be raised by a different hydraulic works to beckon fire jets which sent 25-foot flames raging toward the Coliseum ceiling.

One of the more inhibiting moments, at least when one considers the influence of the music on the scattering of small minds, came when Stanley began to sing "I Want To Kill." As he yelled "I Want!," the crowd responded with "To Kill!" The refrain grew in volume and enthusiasm until, at last, he had almost 10,000 screaming "TO KILL!" at the top of their lungs.

But for the most part, Kiss remained an entertainment medium. The theatrics, if nothing else, satisfied natural curiosity. And the music, though it can't be pigeonholed into the cliched category of "three chord guitarists," is still no great shakes.

Now at the risk of having the Kiss Army brand me a traitor and douse me with blood, a la "Carrie," I'll admit I went in prejudiced. I don't think Kiss could make it a month without the makeup and the fire jets, and Sunday's performance couldn't bring me around. But I do find all four musicians and their staff good businessmen. And it was obvious — especially when the house lights clicked on to expose the glitter falling on the crowd and even those near the rafters standing to sing "I Want To Rock And Roll All Night (And Party Every Day)" — that the huge volume of fans present felt it had received its money's worth and then some. Remember, some had paid scalper's prices to see Kiss perform for one hour on the dot, then had begged as hard as the rest for five full minutes before the band returned to play encore material. Still, there's little doubt money did not even enter into the discussion when attending fans joined their friends the next day and said, "I was there."

Colorado Mining Town Known For Prejudice

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP) — This rough coal mining town of 10,000 persons on the plains of southeastern Colorado is known as a center for farming and ranching — and lately, for raw racial prejudice.

Repeated attacks on the foreign students at Trinidad State Junior College here have cut foreign enrollment and forced an English language teaching cen-ter to close after four years of operation.

"Ragheads go home!" shouted white students who gathered Monday when the 80 foreign students who study English at the center boycotted classes to demonstrate for better law protection on cam-

Iranians to the hospital for stitches. Five foreign students and seven Americans were arrested, but the district attorney said Monday that charges against the foreign students would be dropped.

Lynn Hinch, director of the English

Language Systems center, said the offi-cial reason for its closing is the repeated assaults on its students on campus and on the streets of Trinided. Some of the agencies that formerly sent students here sim-ply will not send them any longer, she

Last July, three foreign students were hospitalized after they were beaten on a Trinidad street. There were no witnesses and no arrests. "Prejudice has become quite common and almost accepted in our modern society." said an editorial in today's Trinidad Chronicle News. "The mistrust of outsi-ders is great ... the average Trinidadian could care less if one or two of them 'Ayrabs' is getting his head thumped."

Problems for the foreigners began soon after they arrived — scuffles in hallways, snowball barrages as they walked across "I think there are just a lot of factors," said Miss Hinch. "Most of the students on campus are from this area and they do not know a lot about other parts of the world. Everyone has misconceptions and problems."

However, she noted that few of the international students had experience with cultures other than their own. "A lot of their ideas of America came from Hollywood," she said.

'It is a matter of distance and comm nication," she added. "The community did not really know much about the foreign students. They were just something different."

Many Imaginative FBI Tactics Ineffective

By MARGARET GENTP.Y
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wildly imaginative tactics, some of doubtful legality, marked a 15-year FBI campaign to disrupt dissident groups. But many of the operations were failures even by the bureau's own standards.

The operations were detailed in 52,648 pages of counterintelligence files the FBI released Monday under terms of the Freedom of Information Act.

The heavily censored files, covering activities from 1956 to 1971, describe the FBI's attempts to harass and disrupt groups ranging from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Ku Klux Klan to the Black Panthers and the Students for a Democratic Society.

The bureau already has released much material on the programs, dubbed Cointelpro by the bureau. Both the Justice Department and the Senate Intelligence Committee have said many of the activities were illegal, but department officials concluded that criminal prosecutions were unwarranted.

What the latest files made clear was that the bureau launched Cointelpro with little apparent thought to its effectiveness, much less its legality.

A favorite Cointelpro tactic was anonymous letters and leaflets. Parents of student protesters received mysterious missives, often signed "Concerned Friend," warning of drug use whether it was true or not. Black Muslims in New York received comic books ridiculing Muslim leaders. Communist Party members received unsigned leaflets designed to foment dissension within the party. But the FBI had no way of judging what impact such activities were having. Field offices frequently reported to headquarters that "no tangible results" were produced

In 1966, for example, the FBI plotted to stir up a battle between the Mafia and American communists on the theory that neither side could do much harm if both were engaged in battling each other.

New York agents tried to get a phony letter attacking a Mafia leader published in the party newspaper, the Daily Worker, but it was never printed. Anished in the party newspaper, other fake letter was sent to Teamsters Union locals in Philadelphia, purportedly from a party member angered by mobsters' alleged union infiltration

For all the FBI agents knew, nobody paid any attention to the letters. The New York office concluded two years later that the operation had been fruit-

FBI agents in several offices told of efforts to pit one protest group against another. But often they reported that rivalry and internal dissension already were rampant and that no help from the bureau was needed.

San Francisco agents, however, claimed success in 1971 for an effort to splitthe Black Panther Party into warring factions supporting Eldridge Cleaver, in exile in Algeria at that time, and Huey P. Newton.

The Cleaver-Newton split was widely reported at the time. Although the FBI took credit for it in internal memos, the reports listed no factual evidence to back the claim

U.S. supporters of Cuban leader Fidel Castro became the targets of FBI harassment shortly after the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961, according to the documents. The campaign involved infiltrating pro-Castro groups, sending anonymous letters intended to spread dissension and trying to discredit one leader by arranging his arrest on vice charges.

The campaign against pro-Castro groups was authorized in June 1961 by former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, two months after the American-backed Bay of Pigs invasion failed.

Other memos show that Washington officials often rejected field office proposals with a strong potential for disruption, not because of qualms about the propriety of such acts but because of fear that the FBI involvement would be publicized and would "embarrass the bureau."

Other ideas were rejected because headquarters officials considered them unnecessary, such as a proposal to install an FBI man as imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan. That idea was shelved in 1967 on grounds that the FBI already had enough informers in the Klan.

Various protest groups became Cointelpro targets after Director J. Edgar Hoover and his chief aides concluded that they were threats to domestic security. The protests had erupted in numerous violent incidents, and the bureau was

The memos reflected little sympathy for or understanding of the goals of the civil rights and anti-war protests.

For example, San Francisco agents in April 1968 discussed what sort of rumors they should spread about the city's black activists. The white agents relied on racist stereotypes for their analysis.

"In seeking effective counterintelligence, it should perhaps be borne in mind that the two things foremost in the militant Negro's mind are sex and money,' the memo said.

"The first is often promiscuous and frequently freely shared. White moral standards do not apply among this type of Negro. You don't embarrass many Negroes by advertising their sexual activity or loose morals. Money is not as freely shared...'

The FBI campaign should focus on efforts to stir up internal squabbles over money and power, the memo continued.

Parents Receive Phony Warnings

By JONATHAN WOLMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dear Mom and Dad: If you received a letter in the late '60s from an anonymous "friend" warning that Junior was "throwing away his future" in political protest, you weren't alone.

The FBI wrote several of them. along with leaflets, pamphlets, stu-dent newspapers and letters to politicians, all in an effort to discredit or hamper the anti-war movement.

The bureau released 52,648 pages of its counterintelligence files on Monday, revealing the tactics it used to curb the influence of dissident political groups

A quick glance through a few hundred of the 9,000 pages devoted to the New Left revealed three letters to parents which purported to be written by sympathetic friends. Names were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

In one case, the FBI said it hoped to spur the parents of a young activist to action by telling them of a bogus drug problem.

"I have great revulsion for what I am about to do," the phony letter said, "but I feel a greater good will be served: that is the salvation of (name deleted).

"It is with great remorse that I inform you that he is using pot and LSD and my heart cries out to him. ...

The FBI agent who wrote the letter in October 1968 said the bureau wanted to simulate the handwriting of an friend of the activist, "but handwriting samples were not readily availa-

Another letter went to the mother of a 17-year-old girl who was picked up by police while wearing a hat bearing an obscene phrase.

"Dear Mrs. (deleted)..." the FBI letter began, "...I am sure there is something wrong with any so-called 'movement' which resorts to the gutter in its search for a means of expres-

"If you permit her pathetic asociation with her Yippie friends, she will surely end up where my poor daughter is now - under psychiatric care.

The FBI told one father, believed to be influential and unsympathetic to New Left politics, that his son had been "actively present at any and every wild type of demonstration going on in Washington, D.C."

The son, said the "concerned friend," was making a mess out of what started out to be a promising fu-

"As his father, perhaps you can speak to him to try and straighten him out before he messes himself up completely," the letter urged. The FBI also wrote leaflets intended to stir up animosities between radical groups, such as one to New York University purportedly written by a member of Students for a Democratic Society The leaflet, entitled: "Hackett, the Racist with the Megaphone Mouth," depicted a black activist as anti-Semi-

One FBI letter, purportedly from a Vietnam war veteran, was sent to a Wisconsin state legislator complaining about scholarship aid being given to radicals at the University of Wiscon-

In Washington, the FBI published a fake student newspaper called "The Rational Observer," which was distributed at American University in a campaign to discredit the anti-war movement.

Davis Loses Credibility

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ

Q. I know that Al Davis was the only NFL executive to vote against giving commissioner Pete Rozelle a raise. Is this why Rozelle booted him off the competition committee? Do you have any background on this? - Dave Quigley, San Jose, Calif.

A. Rozelle often humorously refers to his "nearly unanimous" pay raise. That, wasn't the issue. Rozelle, and many NFL owners, resented the way Davis 'orchestrated' George Atkinson's lawsuit against Chuck Noll. The fact that Davis was presented as a member of the Competition Committee, which proposes rules changes annually, lent credibility to his remarks. Rozelle just took

Q. Can you tell me what is going on between Bowie Kuhn and the Texas Rangers over the Larry Hisle tampering case, other than what I read in the papers? - Greg Parsons, Louisville

A. Kuhn's office warned the Rangers not to sign Hisle, because it had evidence of tampering beyond general manager Danny O'Brien's joking remark that Texas would "ink up the presses" to sign Hisle.

What Kuhn found out about was the considerable proseletyzing by ex-Minne-sota pitcher Bert Blyleven, which Blyleven openly mentioned on his daily radio

Q. Why do the NFL officials constantly exchange footballs during a game when there is no rain? They keep wiping off the football, even on sushiny, dry days. Do you know?

- Daved Reisler, St. Louis

A. If it has rained at all during the week of a game, the synthetic turfs retain all receivers these days use a product named Hold Tite, which the players call "stick 'um.' You may notice thay keep extra loads of the stuff on the insides of their socks for replenishment between plays.

So the centers and quarterbacks ask the officials to wipe off the footballs alternately. Frequently, when you see a thrown ball fail to spiral, it is because the quarterback had difficulty getting it out of his hand.

Q. You mentioned a few weeks ago the early teams that had an edge in the NFL beating the point spread. Can you tell me how it is going at the mid-season point, who the hot teams are with the bettors?

- Jay Dahlgren, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

A. As you probably know, being in New York, the Jets are the champ team to bet on. They have returned money seven times in the first eight games. The next top two are Denver and Dallas, both 7-2 against the line. Among other money-winners are Atlanta and Kansas City.

Q. I saw that a college coach said his team had to go into a "goal line defense" at the 50-yard line because the other team had a 60-yard field goal kicker. Is there any hope that colleges will correct this ridiculous unfair advantage?

A. The probability is that the college coaches will insist that the two-inch kicking tee be done away with, or at least reduced to one-inch, and also the kickers be prohibited from tying their shoes so that the laces bend their toes upward. The best rule change would be to turn the ball over at the line of scrimmage on a miss, but the colleges hate to follow the NFL lead on any rules.

BETHANY, Okla. (Special) — For the second straight year, Bethany Nazarene has been selected as the Texoma Conference pre-season favorite.

Behtany, which tied for fourth last year, finished with a 28-10 mark, including post-season action in the District 9 (NAIA) finals and winning the national title of National Christian College Athletic Association in Chattanooga.

Redskin coach Jim Poteet has four returning starters: 6-11 senior Steve Neff, 6-9 senior forward Donnie Dean; 6-6 senior forward Tim Hibbard, and 6-0 junior guard John Fincher.

Bethany nudged out Oklahoma Christian 86-83 for the top spot despite drawing six of the 10 first-place votes from league coaches, who could not vote for their own teams. OCC and Midwestern, which finished third, each drew two first-win the Texoma's Southern Division, with Bethany nudgeing OCC 5-3 for the Northern honors.

Huey Leads Estacado Win

ODESSA (Special) - Estacado's girls needed some key defensive steals in the fourth quarter to edge Ector 39-33 here Monday night.

EHS, now 2-1 overall, led only 14-13 at halftime, but Kathy Huey and Joy Guy-ton produced valuable steals off the press to aid the second-half surge. Huey paced the scorers with 22 points while Tammy Alexander led Ector with 19.

"Kathy (Huey) kept us in the game with her play in the fourth quarter," said EHS coach Nan Barber afterwards.

Shooting Woes Fail To Halt Matador March

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff The question running rampant through the stands Monday night in the Estacado gym was, "When are the Matadors going to run away with this doggone thing.

The answer: Not until late in the fourth quarter. And make that almost never. Despite appearing to have Amarillo Caprock outclassed by a longshot—and a free shot-the Matadors came awfully close to letting this cage game slip out of their grasp.

But when it came down to the verdict, and the last of 18 free shots had been missed by the Matadors, they had come out on top 73-61.

"We were just rushing our shots too much," head coach J.J. Wood explained after the game. "You could tell that by the way the ball kept going over the rim the way it did."

Wood, who watched his team win its second game against no losses, pointed out that the Matadors, a fast-running, long-shooting team, just got in too big of a hurry every time they moved down to take a shot.

That fact was obvious as the Matadors hit 27 of 76 shots from the field and 19 of 37 attempts from the free-throw line.

During the third quarter when Estacado lost a 8-point lead, the Matadors hit a measly 3-of-13 shots from the floor. "That (the second quarter) almost beat us," Wood said. "But we were able to come back in the second half and play better basketball." Night and day is more like it.

After Alvin Harris hit a 16-foot jumper and added a free throw to move the Matadors to a 1-point lead 34-33 early in the third period, Estacado never lost the lead again although Caprock did manage to tie at 36-all with 3:15 remaining.

Fouls-and a bunch of them in a hurry were what eventually proved the downfall of the Longhorns. With less than three minutes left in the third stanza, the visitors committed eight fouls and turned the ball over to their hosts six times.

It was during that time span that Estacado started to slowly but surely domi-nate the game the way it had in the early

Jaybird Roundballers To Rule Over Class B

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Despite the fact Nazareth won the girls Class B state championship a year ago, Jayton's teams ranked as the surprise squads of the South Plains. And while that element won't be present this year, the Jaybird cagers-both boys and girls-could be the best in the One thing's for sure—they're the best in District 12-B. Loop coaches made each a unanimous choice to win the league title in The Avalanche-Journal's poil of area Class B leagues.

Mazareth girls rolled over Jayton 64-22 in the regional semifinals last year, and Hedley toppled the Jaybird boys 73-59 for the trip to Austin,

Second-year coach Johnny Jones has three returnining starters back-back, that is, if the Jayton gridders are ever eliminated from the state playoffs. Returning-once the football season ends -will be 6-2 Gene Cleveland (12.0 points, 8.9 rebounds), 6-5 Harold Parker (12.1 points, 11.2 reobunds) and 5-11 Randy Prince. Also, 6-0 sophomore Patrick Parker and 6-314 senior transfer David Noles will probably round out the lineup.

Vendell Neff, who directed the girls to a 25-8 mark a year ago, has six letterwom-en back, including 5-10 Penny Summer and 5-11 Melodie SoRelle.

Elsewhere across the South Plains, Nazareth is not even picked to repeat as 5-B girls champion. That honor—a unani-mous one although coaches were not allowed to vote for their own teams-goes

Sudan was a near-unanimoius pick to replace Cotton Center as the 6-B champ, Anton was tabbed to repeat in 7-B, Whiteface again drew the 8-B nod and Klondike was the choice to unseat Sands in 9-

On the boys' side of the ledger, Silverton was a unanimous pick to repeat in 5-B, Spade a unanimous 6-B choice again, Whitharral the 7-B pick in a race which saw four of the league's five teams get first-place votes, New Home a near-unanimous pick to unseat Ropes in 8-B and Sands also a near unanimous pick to retain the 9-B title.

Silverton rests its boys hopes on 6-6 Jackie Vaughn, who averaged 24 points and 10 boards a game as a junior when he reaped all-South Plains honors. Vaughn has started the past three years. Linda Vaughn, a three-year letterwoman and twice all-district, will anchor the girls team. Joining the 5-10 Miss Vaughn will be 5-9 Mignone Rauch, who was all-district last year. Spade's boys are sparked by 6-4 Lynn

Coronado Beaten By Abilene Girls

Abilene High edged Coronado's girls 34-32 Monday night at the CHS gym. Lois Brooks and Debra Grant led Abilene with 12 points each. Kathy Wyett headed Coronado with 18 followed by Dona Boyd with 10.

Cowan, who averaged 26 points and 14 rebounds a game in rating all-South Plains last year. Rodney Hall, at 5-9, chipped in with 16 points and 13 assists a game. Sudan's girls are led by 5-6 Sandra Weaver. but defending champ Cotton Center has two all-district performers back-5-7 Melba Davis, and 5-9 Liz Terrell. Whitharral's girls lost five seniors off an 18-9 team and will be on the short side, as only two girls—both freshmen—are above 5-5. And Anton must replace all-South Plains standout Rex Jones and playmaking guard Zane Butler. Timmy Belcher, 5-11, is the lone holdover although 6-3 Scott Goen started at times.

The New Home-Ropes race will be a thriller again. Cecil Thomas, who directed Union to the 1976 state tournament, is New Home's coach and he has 6-0 Marty McClintock, who averaged 21.4 points a game, at his disposal along with 6-2 junior Isiah Roberson and a host of two-year lettermen. Ropes, however, has a halfdozen 6-2 cagers plus 6-0 Gary Means, who averaged 17.2 points last year.

Lynette Joiner reaped all-district honors last year and will against lead White-

Sands will rest its chances on 6-3 Martin Nichols, who averaged 22.3 points and 12.5 rebounds last year in winning all-South Plains honors. The Mustangs also have two other starters-5-8 sophomore. Larry Feaster and 6-0 junior Van Gaskins -back. Also, 6-2 sophomore David Long has outstanding talent, according to Stan Pulliam, who has compiled a 63-9 mark in two years at the school.

Jeanene Bradford, a 5-6er, was almost unstoppable for Klondike last year as a junior when she averaged 40 points a game. Klondike finished 24-4 but lost twice in league play to Sands, which finished 34-2 and has third-team all-state forward Jill Floyd back. A 5-91/2 junior. Miss Floyd averaged 27.2 points a game last year.

Other outstanding individuals to watch

6-3 senior Jimmy Avery of Whitharral (22 points a game last year); 6-5 senior Rickey Turner of Motley County (19.2 points, 9.3 rebounds); 6-4 senior Roger Bennett and 6-6 Mark Pye of Dawson, both of whom were honorable mention all-South Plains a year ago; 5-9 junior An-Man Pent heavy rush by the Packers defense, searched out running back Mike Thomas for a 7-yard touchdown pass to give the day night's television special.

Redskins a 10-9 victory over the Packers. The fourth-quarter score was set up by a 30-yard rifle shot from Theismann to Danny Buggs and a 12-yard scramble by the Redskins quarterback that put the ball at the 7. "It was a tough one to lose," said Green Bay Coach Bart Starr. "The big play was the third down pass to Buggs and the scramble by Theismann was the back-breaker."

Theismann, who had a sporadic night in hitting only 10 of 21 for 124 yards and one interception, did not get into the groove until near the end.

"I didn't throw well," he said. "I wasn't getting set. I saw the dogs (blitzers) coming and I hurried myself.

With previously untried quarterback David Whitehurst replacing the injured Lynn Dickey for Green Bay, Washington Coach George Allen tried to confuse the rookie by "using every dog in our play book, including a couple of new ones."

But Whitehurst, an eighth-round draft choice from Furman, wasn't rattled, completing 12 of 24 for 144 yards though he suffered three interceptions in the second half - none of which the Skins managed to convert into scores. Whitehurst was sacked six times for 33 yards.

Whitehurst said the turnovers did hurt the team while the defensive unit "really played a hell of a game."

The rookie said he thought Washington would not score again after Chester Marcol broke a 3-3 tie with a 42-yard field goal in the third period. Marcol earlier had a 40-yard placement and Washington's Mark Mosley hit one from 35 yards. After the Redskins scored the touchdown. Green Bay got another 44-yard field goal from Marcol with 4:16 remaining in the game, electing not to try for a first down on fourth-and-four. "We weren't worrying about them scoring a touchdown," said defensive tackle Diron Talbert of Washington. "We were dogging on every play because we were worried about their kicker." The Redskins now stand at 6-4 and in third place in the NFC East behind Dallas 8-2 and St Louis 7-3. They have a slim chance to make the playoffs as a wild card entry. They still have games remaining with both the Cardinals and Cowboys.. including a contest with Dallas Sunday.

"We want to beat somebody when it doesn't have to go down to the last play." Talbert said, noting that the Packers had one last chance as the clock wore down. 'I still think everyone can play better. And if we want to make the playoffs everyone is going to have to play better."

Regrouping Mentally Top Raider Problem

By CARTER CROMWELL

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Steve Sloan sees at least one good thing about the short time available to prepare for Arkansas-it leaves Texas Tech little time to brood about last Saturday's crushing loss to Houston.

"We sure haven't had a lot of time to dwell on the Houston game," Sloan said at Monday at the last of his weekly press conferences.

"That's fortunate." Sloan admitted that Tech's biggest problem was regrouping mentally for the nationally televised Thanksgiving Day game against the Razorbacks.

'We'll have to put ourselves back together mentally in a hurry, since we don't have as much time to prepare. We've played hard all season, and we don't want one game to break our confidence. It's really important how we play in this game.

The four days between games allows the Raiders little time to let their injured players heal, and injuries abound on the Raider squad.

"I can't remember a year in my college coaching experience when we've had this many injuries," Sloan said. "It's very frustrating. Injuries take away your consistency and ability to execute properly.

"We've had a lot of guys hurt and miss a lot of practice during the weeks. Some have been able to play in the games, but they haven't been as effective because of the lost practice time."

Currently. Tech has a lot of players in the "maybe" category.

"We've got a lot people who are doubt-ful for the game," Sloan said. "It makes it tough to decide who's going to be in the starting lineup. We really don't know how we're going to line up in the offensive line. That and free safety are our biggest problems, injurywise.

last year, but it's not been that way this season. That's just part of the game. though. We're not the only team that has had injuries.

The Raiders have had to shuffle their personnel in the offensive line all season, with several players seeing action at two or three positions. Center Terry Anderson is the only one of the 12 players listed on the offensive line two-deep at the start of the fall that hasn't missed time because of an injury.

We were in good shape when we reported for physical examinations," Sloan said Monday. "That was the last time."
Sloan said tackles Dan Irons and Ken Walter probably won't be able to play against Arkansas because of knee injuries. Irons and Walter didn't play against Houston. Offensive guard Larry Martin suffered a bruised leg against Houston and wasn't able to jog Sunday.

Quarterback Rodney Allison still can't run effectively, and his limitations showed up against Houston, a quick, fast

"It's really a problem against a team that's fast." Sloan said, noting that Arkansas is very fast defensively. "He can't run real good, and he can't set up as quickly to pass."

Sloan said that the club should be at full speed bowl in time for its Tangerine Bowl appearance Dec. 23 against Florida State, except for strong safety Alan Emerson, who has torn knee cartilage

He praised Arkansas, which is 9-1 for the season, ranked in the Top Ten and Orange Bowl-bound.

"If they aren't as good as Texas, they're awfully close," he said. "They've got a lot of speed and exceptional athletic

"The only difference between them and Texas is that they don't have (Earl) Campbell. But they've got four or five good runningbacks, and they've got (Ben)

Cowins has gained 1127 yards this season for a 112.7 average per game and has a 5.5-yard average per carry.

Sloan said the biggest difference in the Razorbacks this season is quarterback Ron Calcagni, one of the many Arkansas players that were injured last year. This season, Calcagni has a 53.8 pass-completion percentage and has a 149.7 total-offense average per contest.

the same ones who play offense. And we've got one good foul shooter. I won-der. . . I think I'll just give (McMurry coach Hershel) Kimbrell a call and see if he'll go along with that (playing women's #

Despite the 0-3 start-including an 89-68 blasting by McMurry in Abilene last Saturday, Price has managed to keep his sense of humor about the situation.

"We're going to have some different people on the floor (tonight). I'm pretty sure we'll make some changes. . . they might even be drastic changes. . but we're definitely not going to stand pat."

Indications are that sophomores Steve Doudney and Robert Cobb will relinquish their starting positions. And the most likely replacements are freshmen Edwin Miles of Houston Kashmere and Gary Norris of Lubbock High, who measure 6-1 and 6-2, respectively.

Most likely candidates for the front line are senior Mike Kahler, junior Mike Wrinkle and probably freshman Roosev-

Gatterson, a 6-3 Houston Kashmere product, is the only Chaparral to finish in double figures all three outings this year. However, Gatterson twisted an ankle in a dorm fracas after returning home Saturday night. He scored 15 against McMurry in his first start of the year.

"Our game was fairly even for about nine minutes," Price said, "and we were only down 22-21. But then they scored 15 straight, and it got a little tough after

"We had 14 turnovers the first half and only got 22 shots. We couldn't even get it off, and they weren't applying that much

McMurry, now 1-1, will go with soph Donnie Ray Cruse, who scored 30 points last Saturday, along with 6-4 Steve Mack-ey (19), 6-0 Nickey Martin (12), 6-4 freshman John Wooten, and 6-7 David Nelson. a senior from Permian. Wooten and Mackey had 10 rebounds each against LCC last week.

Football News Tabs Irons All-America Texas Tech offensive tackle Dan Irons

has been named to the Football News All-America first team, along with Texas runningback Earl Campbell and defensive tackle Brad Shearer.

The selection came as a surprise to Irons, because he has missed a lot of the season because of a knee problem.

"I am really surprised," the 6-7, 260-pound senior said. "I was only about halfspeed the first couple of games. After that, I improved steadily and was almost 100 per cent by the Texas game. But I've hardly played since then.

Irons, a pre-season all-America choice in many estimations, played just a few plays against TCU the week after the Texas game and hasn't played in the last two games against SMU and Houston. He isn't expected to play Thursday against Arkansas.

The knee that was operated on twice during the spring puffed up with fluid two days before the TCU game, and the knee is still bothering him, although Irons said examinations have revealed that there is no further ligament or cartilage damage.

Southwest Conference players making the Football News' second team all-America were TCU wide receiver Mike Renfro, Arkansas offensive guard Leotis Harris and Texas A&M fullback George Woodard.

Irons is the second Raider in as many years to make all-America. Linebacker Thomas Howard made the national roll last season. Previously, Tech had all-Americas in center-linebacker E.J. Holub in 1959-60, end Dave Parks in 1963, runningback Donny Anderson in 1964-65, tackle Phil Tucker in 1967, kicker Kenny Vinyard in 1968, defensive back Denton Fox in 1970 and tight end Andre Tillman

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A.D. Shaver and Jerry Blakely feel their respective teams, Tahoka and Littlefield, played one outstanding half of football each in their Class AA bidistrict games last week and then were able to

And both feel they've got to improve against Kermit and Childress in this week's regional battles.

Littlefield, now 8-3, will be going for its second straight upset over a state-ranked team. The Wildcats upended No. 3 Idalou 13-8 last Friday. Childress, ranked No. 10, bested Spearman, ranked No. 2, by a 19-3

Tahoka, also 8-3, tripped Colorado City 19-14 while Kermit, which has lost only to AAA foes Monahans and Pecos in 11 outings, toyed with Fabens 14-6.

We need to continue to play the type defense we have the last month," Blakely, whose 1973 team lost 27-14 to Childress in regional. "Plus, we need to try and gain some control of the offensive line of scrimmage. We have a great deal of respect for their passing attack. They throw more than any team we've faced this year. They threw 28 times against Spearman and hit 45 percent of those.

'We've got to keep the ball from them, because they're a big play team and definitely will put some points on the Littlefield rushed for 275 yards but only got 30 yards passing on two completions. Rudolph Smith took up the slack of Raymond Biaza, who was injured in the regular-season finale.

Smith carried 28 times for 180 yards and scored both TDs, one from 9 yards out and the other on a 67-yard gallop. That gives him 1,189 yards on 172 carries and nine TDs.

"We played as good as we have all year," Blakely re-emphasized. "Especially down on the goal line late in the game. They had a first down at the 3 and couldn't score. Our entire defense deserves credit for the win.' Linebacker Kent Ball had 23 tackles to up his total to 164, tackle Ronnie Milligan 15 to give him 107, linebacker Jett West 14 to give him 180 and cornerback Stan Jackson was in on 14 stops.

Shaver praised his squad's second-half showing but says the Bulldogs will have to play even better this week against Ker-

All Bailey did Friday was carry 43 times for 178 yards. That hiked his season's total to 2,183 yards on 363 carries. He also has 25 TDs and 158 points.

Bailey had help as Leslie White gained "close to" 100 yards, linebackers Randy Meeks and Britt Dockery had 21 and 17 tackles, respectively, and guards Rayford Harris and Doug Barham and end David Jolly had excellent games, according to Meeks now has 211 stops on the year, Dockery 177 and Jolly 133.. The Tahoka defense, which has forced 28 turnovers this year, picked off its 16th pass but offensively the 'Dogs were 0-for-2, with one being intercepted.

"Our kids did an excellent job blocking on the offensive line, getting Bailey just enough of a crack where he could get through. Our backs leading the play also were more than adequate.

waim Quits As TCU Boss

FORT WORTH-Veteran Texas Christian basketball coach Johnny Swaim, saving he had lost his enthusiasm for the sport, resigned Monday to go into private business and was immediately replaced by his first-year assistant Tim Somerville.

"The timing of this decision was not planned, but when I reached the decision in my mind, I felt it was best that I resign before the season starts. (TCU opens the season Friday in the Clemson tournament.) I had told myself a good while ago that I wouldn't coach past 50, and I'm giving myself back two years," said the 48-year-old Swaim.

all record.

Swaim, who led TCU to two SWC titles in 10-years, said, "I can't point my finger to any one thing. It just gradually built up in me. I thought I might be all spizzed up for the season, but it didn't happen.

"I've been in basketball 40 years or since I was eight years old. I'm tired of smelling jock straps and hearing balls bounce. I feel like the lion turned loose in the movie 'Born Free,' because I'm out in the jungle of a new world now."

Swaim, dabbing away at tears welling in his eyes, said, "If I'm crying it's not because I'm sad. . . I'm crying because of the memories.

Swaim's overall record was 102-150 in 10 years at TCU. He was a former player on three SWC champion TCU teams and was a starter at Graham High School.

Swaim coached the Frogs to the SWC championship in his first year as head coach, 1967-68, and he won again in 1970-71. He said he had no immediate business plans and asked one sports writer, "Do you have a job open?'

Swaim said he made his decision Friday morning and concluded that "at my age I had better get into business because I'm not a wealthy person.

"All of a sudden, coaching was dull. I just didn't want to coach any more. Friday is when it really hit me. I just realized, 'Hey, it's wrong for me to be down there on the floor with those kids (with this feeling); I have to do it right now,' Swaim told the Avalanche-Journal Monday afternoon.

'And, I felt they would be in good hands. I'm convinced I'm not leaving TCU in the lurch. Coach Somerville can motivate players. Lee (Pestana, TCU's other assistant coach) does a good job, and for the first time ever, we have a part-time assistant. But, it came to me (the decision to quit) as clear as a bell. "I had reached the point where I was Somerville, 32, joined the TCU staff in February, coming from Concord College in West Virginia. He was 15-15 in 1976 and 16-12 in 1977. "It's a sad day for me because I came said Somerville. "It's a great honor, but there's not much happiness. Basketball has lost a great coach and a great human

"The first I knew anything about it was Friday when he called me and told me, Somerville told the Avalanche-Journal "I tried to talk him out of it, but he had his mind made up. It was like a bombshell. The only reason I had come down here was to work for him. And I just loved him.

Somerville said TCU would stress aggressive man-for-man defense and play a running style offense.
