

Coal Strike Assured As Talks Fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between the United Mine Workers union and the coal industry were recessed Monday night, guaranteeing a nationwide strike at the expiration of the miners' contract at midnight.

Thousands of miners, particularly in West Virginia and Ohio, failed to show up for work on Monday getting a jump on the strike.

Arnold Miller, president of the United Mine Workers, called the strike, although saying it "will bring hardships and human tragedy" to the miners.

"As of midnight," Miller declared, "... the United Mine Workers of America will be on strike against the companies" represented by the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. He vowed the miners will "stick it out ... until we win it."

Talks Resume Thursday

Federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said there was "no breakoff" in the negotiations and that the talks would resume Thursday. He said both sides need the time "to examine their respective positions."

Most of the early walkouts occurred in West Virginia and Ohio. Kentucky mines reported full crews on the final shifts.

Miller, who left the negotiations and announced plans to go to West Virginia where many of the miners live, said he would return to the talks whenever he saw signs of real progress.

Industry negotiator Joseph P. Brennan said he would avoid "public posturing" as the negotiations continued, but added: "Obviously in a strike situation things are much more difficult."

Morris Feibusch of the coal operators association said 28 of the approximately 1,800 mines operated by BCOA companies were closed Monday. Only a few of Ohio's 10,000 union members were on the job as scattered pickets turned back the few who wanted to work.

Virginia Miners Walk

Dan Fields of the West Virginia Coal Association estimated 4,800 miners in that state got an early start on the strike, most of them in southern West Virginia. Other industry officials said 1,000 miners were off the job in the state's northern panhandle.

Miller has privately said he foresees a strike of three months, and sources say the coal industry is prepared to accept a work stoppage of at least a month. The effects of the strike are not expected to be felt outside the industry for some time because of large stockpiles of coal.

Miller accused the BCOA of trying to break the union which produces about half of the nation's coal.

But he said, "Our people in the coal fields are ready to take on this strike and stick it out until we win it."

"All of our economic proposals are on the table, including one calling for a substantial wage increase," he said. "I serve notice right now that the longer this strike lasts, the less likely it will be that we will reduce these demands."

Miners' wages now average over $60 a day.

Miller said he was calling the strike

Contributions To Goodfellows Go Long Way

WHERE DO Goodfellow dollars go? Chief Goodfellow can answer that: "The money from dimes to dollars that you contribute to the Goodfellows' Christmas program go for 8,000 to 9,000 apples, oranges, candy bars or loose pieces, nuts and toys."

Chief added: "And how do the Goodfellows find these boys and girls?"

"From official Goodfellow coupons like the one in this edition of The Avalanche-Journal, filled out and mailed by anyone knowing a child that needs a Christmas visit," continued the Chief.

So, why not get that coupon filled out and mailed right away if you know a child expecting a Santa visit but not apt to get one if the Goodfellows miss him or her, along with your contribution, to: Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Tex., 79408.

Insulation Ordinance Interpretation Axed

By PAULA TILKER

Avalanche-Journal Staff
THE BUILDING BOARD of Appeals Monday overturned the city building administrator's interpretation of a controversial insulation ordinance.

After the decision was made, administrator Cecil Turquette declared that while he may have lost the battle, the war isn't over yet.

He explained that he sees the board's decision as an interim measure and that a long-range solution to the problem still must be found. So, Turquette said, he will request further board study of the disputed statute.

Homebuilders Satisfied

The board's action apparently satisfied homebuilders and insulation manufacturers and applicators who had turned out in force to protest what they said was a too liberal interpretation of the ordinance.

After two hours of discussion, the board agreed, deciding that the statute does not require specific labeling of insulation bags by laboratories testing the material's quality. Turquette contends the labeling is necessary.

Instead, the board said, all cellulose ceiling insulation will be acceptable here if it is registered on certain laboratories' approval lists. The laboratories include Underwriters Laboratory (UL) and those listed in the International Conference of Building Officials (ICBO) research report.

Shotgun Blast Kills City Man

A 24-YEAR-old Lubbock man was found dead inside his East Quinn Avenue home late Monday, the apparent victim of a shotgun murder.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack said late Monday the body of David Allen Boone of 926 E. Quinn Ave. was found about 7:50 p.m. inside his small house by neighbors investigating his sudden disappearance.

Boone, according to Blalack, had been dead about 24 hours before the friends found his blood-spattered body.

Blalack said late Monday he would withhold a ruling pending completion of a partial autopsy today, but he added, "It looks like murder. It wasn't any suicide."

Boone's body was discovered in a living room chair that had been knocked over by the blast of a shotgun at close

Diplomatic Ties Broken By Egypt, Five Arab Allies

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt broke diplomatic relations Monday with the five Arab countries that met in Libya to form a "resistance" front against President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative with Israel.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman named the five as Syria, Libya, Algeria, Iraq and South Yemen. The move produced the most serious political division in the Arab world in years.

"At this point only diplomatic relations will be affected," the spokesman said, adding that Egypt acted "in response to the decision announced in Tripoli, Libya, to freeze relations with Egypt."

Resistance Front Formed

The five hardline Arab countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization met in Tripoli. All except Iraq agreed early Monday to form a "resistance and confrontation front" to oppose Egypt's overtures to Israel and denounced Sadat's one-man peace campaign as "high treason."

They also declared the "freeze" in relations with Cairo.

Iraq, still linked with Syria, walked out of the conference without signing the communique and accused Syria of "capitulatory solutions."

An initial report by Cairo's Middle East News Agency listed only Syria, Algeria, Libya and South Yemen as the countries with which Egypt severed relations. That led to speculation Egypt was retaliating only against those nations that signed the conference declaration. The agency later made an official correction, adding Iraq to the list, and that report was confirmed by the Foreign Ministry spokesman.

Recalling Diplomats

He said Egyptian diplomats in the five countries would be recalled within 24 hours and "all the diplomats of the affected countries will be asked to leave Egypt within the same period."

Asked about possible action against the PLO, the spokesman said, "The PLO is not a country." Three top PLO representatives were expelled from Egypt last month and the Voice of Palestine radio station was closed for criticizing Sadat.

The four Arab countries and the PLO ended the five-day Libyan conference Monday by signing the anti-Sadat declaration.

Libya had unilaterally severed relations with Egypt when Sadat made his historic visit to Jerusalem Nov. 19-21.

Keeping Talks Door Open

Despite the harsh rhetoric, however, the anti-Egypt summit, at Syria's insistence, had carefully kept the door open for renewed Geneva peace talks or other forms of negotiations with Israel, with or without Sadat.

The "hardliners" also had stopped short of declaring an irreparable break with Egypt.

Sadat said Sunday that the Soviet Union was behind the "rubbish" of the Tripoli summit and that Egypt could "punish" the Russians.

Over the weekend, it was reported that Egypt was recalling its ambassador to Moscow, but there was no immediate indication whether Sadat was considering severing his already cool diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union.

In Washington, the State Department said it would have no immediate comment on the Egyptian move.

The United States appeared Monday to be trying to reclaim the initiative as a

Area Towns Pledge $87,000 Annually To Juvenile Center

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff

NEIGHBORING governments already have promised to give Lubbock County $87,000 a year to help run the region's proposed juvenile detention center — a pledge far surpassing local expectations.

Commissioners courts of nine counties surrounding Lubbock have passed resolutions supporting the project, and two others have indicated they soon will do the same.

"I'm thoroughly delighted with the response we've received," Lloyd Watts, administrator of the Lubbock County Juvenile Probation Department and an organizer of the proposal, said Monday.

Pledges Still Coming

"At first, I thought we'd be lucky to get $70,000 out of the surrounding counties. But we're already well past that — and pledges are still coming in," he said.

Counties represented in the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG), the umbrella organization pushing for a regional facility for juvenile detention, aren't the only parties interested in getting in on the proposal.

Watts said four counties outside the immediate SPAG area have offered money in exchange for reservations at the $1 million facility Lubbock County plans to build and open by September, 1979.

And the Texas Youth Council (TYC) also wants to use any available space at the center for detention of youths from other parts of the state, he said.

SPAG Gets First Choice

But Watts said the juvenile center won't be opened up to agencies outside SPAG until all of the 14 counties around Lubbock have had an opportunity to participate in the project.

So far, he said, written commitments have been received from Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Motley, Cochran, Hockley, Crosby, Terry and Lynn counties.

Also, Floyd and Dickens counties have given "oral indications" of support and probably will respond with resolutions in the "near future," Watts said.

Only King, Yoakum and Garza counties remain uncommitted.

"Financially, this project is so well girded I don't see how it can go wrong," Watts said.

Besides strong support from outlying counties, local agencies have rallied behind the juvenile detention proposal, he added.

On Monday, Watts met with Superintendent Ed Irons and other top administrators of the Lubbock Independent School District.

They gave their "unqualified support" See AREA TOWNS Page 12

Speaker Stresses Family Life

By CANDY SAGON

Avalanche-Journal Staff
"TODAY YOU have to get married to learn how to be married," the gray-haired woman emphasized to her listeners.

"Very few people any more can learn how to be married from watching their parents. There are no patterns to follow today. It's like the New York subways. They never put a map in the station. You have to get on one of the trains to find where you want to go."

At 76, after spending most of her life observing both sophisticated and primitive societies, world renowned anthropologist Margaret Mead doesn't mince words when it comes to the issues facing American society.

Critical To Solutions

And marriage and the family are two institutions she zeroes in on as critical to solving some of society's problems.

In a speech Monday night to a sell-out crowd at Texas Tech's University Center Theatre, Mead said "breaking family ties is the principal cause of trouble in the world."

It all-starts with the family, the anthropologist stressed to her responsive audience — a point she reiterated in a press conference prior to her speech.

"Those people who say the Equal Rights Amendment is going to wreck the American family are wrong. The American home is being wrecked quite rapidly without the help of the ERA," Mead pointed out to reporters.

"It is being wrecked by the way our welfare system refuses to help poor fathers. The system rewards a man for deserting his family. If he deserts them, they get welfare. If he stays, they don't."

Holds 18 Honorary Degrees

Mead, who holds 18 honorary degrees and is the author of numerous books, drew enthusiastic applause from her 1,000-member audience for her statements on the women's movements and the roles of men and women in American society.

"It used to be men were asked to die in war. ...we're now asking men to live for their country and help with the tedious day by day maintenance," Mead said.

One of the problems facing families today involves trying to raise children to be flexible and expect change, Mead said.

"We have negative identities today. We tell children who they are by telling them what they are not," she said. "Boys are told not to do certain things in order not to be a sissy, and girls are told not to do certain things in order not to be like a boy."

"Instead, we should tell people what they can do and not tie identity to characteristics they can't do anything about, like race or sex," Mead said.

The anthropologist, who attended the recent Women's Conference in Houston, called the conference "a good one," which did not allow itself to get sidetracked from the primary issues.

She disagreed vehemently with the viewpoint of the dissident minority of conservative women at the conference who felt they were ignored and the conference not representative of the majority of American women.

"The minority was perfectly well-treated. And a 900 to 300 vote is not what I would call railroad the minority by the majority," Mead said.

Rural Hospital Threat Opposed

By Sen. Tower

By PAT PATRICK

Avalanche-Journal Staff

SEN. JOHN Tower said Monday he and other senators are "leaning" on U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph Califano, hoping HEW will rescind new guidelines that area health officials say could close all rural hospitals around Lubbock.

"If we can't get HEW to rescind, we may have to take legislative action," Texas' senior senator said.

He noted he is seeing "renewed interest" in a bill which he has had in the works for some time that would repeal the legislation under which the guidelines were issued two months ago.

Tower began a four-day tour Monday of South Plains-Panhandle towns. He said he met complaints about the guidelines everywhere he touched base during the day.

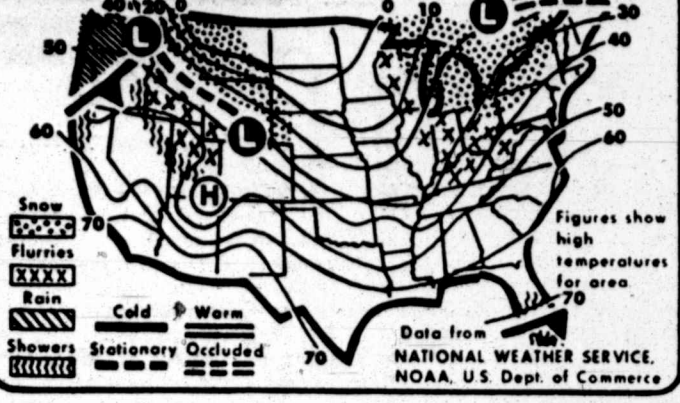

Doctors May Leave

Citizens are worried the rules not only will close their hospitals, but result in doctors leaving small towns, too. "This would require them to seek health care in larger cities," which in West Texas can mean traveling long distances, Tower said.

The guidelines come at a time when many towns in the South Plains already face critical doctor shortages, or, conversely, were beginning in some cases to think they were finding physicians to fill their needs — often through elaborate and costly doctor-attraction programs.

Briscoe Holds Talks With Carter, HEW Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe received assurances Monday that the Carter administration won't issue regulations that would force rural Texas hospitals and clinics to close. Briscoe, on a lobbying visit to Washington, met with Secretary of Health Education and Welfare Joseph Califano and emerged smiling. He could not, however, report similar success in his efforts to bend the administration's stance on energy issues. Briscoe met briefly with President Carter at the White House and later was scheduled to talk to Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger and with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He was accompanied throughout the day by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex. Briscoe said he had nothing new to tell Carter or the others about energy. He simply wanted to reiterate his desire for an energy package that deregulates natural gas prices and provides what Briscoe considers suitable incentives for producers.

Briscoe would not say what Carter had told him. "The president will have to speak for himself on that," he said. The governor said he was "cautiously optimistic" about what will emerge from the ongoing House-Senate conference on energy, the same stance he took after an earlier visit to Washington. "At this point, no one knows what will happen." Briscoe is scheduled to meet Tuesday with Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus. They will talk about the future of Matagorda Island, a barrier island in the Texas Gulf Coast that is the site of an abandoned Air Force base. The state would like to take control of it and convert it into a park, while the Interior Department has insisted that it remain under federal control. Briscoe said he did not know whether Andrus was prepared to make a compromise offer to end the dispute. "The governor also planned further meetings on the hospital issue with Hale Champion, undersecretary of HEW. At these meetings, Briscoe said, there would be a discussion of specific details of changes Califano has promised to make in proposed hospital guidelines. The original guidelines were intended to eliminate 10 percent of the hospital beds in the country and to restrict the kinds of care available at small hospitals. For example, they would have required metropolitan hospitals to deliver at least 2,000 babies per year to maintain an obstetrics unit. The proposals touched off a Texas-size tornado of turmoil in Congress and the states. Most members of the Texas delegation in the House have called for a congressional investigation of them. Califano promised last Friday to revise the guidelines to make sure that states are not forced to close rural hospitals. Briscoe said he would not be satisfied that the problem was solved until he saw the final guideline proposals. "But I'm satisfied that their intent is not to close the rural hospitals," said the governor, who was wearing a custom-made pair of alligator-hide cowboy boots.

Tornadoes, Stormy Weather, Snow Sweep Eastern States

A dangerous storm swept across the Midwest into the eastern Great Lakes region Monday. It stacked traffic-stalling snow drifts on northern Indiana, hit Toledo in northern Ohio with near-blizzard ferocity and crippled air traffic at Buffalo. Tornadoes and stormy weather boiled up in the South. A twister smashed a portable classroom near Knoxville, Tenn., injuring 11 children. Another tornado touched down in Palatka, Fla. It ripped the roofs off houses, overturned cars and capsized boats. Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen authorized use of National Guard equipment and facilities to help motorists stranded by drifts up to four feet deep. Forty mph winds swirled snow into blinding clouds at Toledo, the city's schools were closed and people were urged to stay off streets and highways. Up to seven inches of snow had fallen by noon in snowbelt areas of western New York. Buffalo International Airport was closed to landings and only a few planes were taking off. Schools closed in several northern Indiana counties. Two major highways in the Hoosier state, Interstate 65 in the Lafayette area and U.S. 31 near Peru, were reported barely passable. Hundreds of motorists were stranded under similar conditions last winter when Interstate 65 was closed between Chicago and Indianapolis. The National Weather Service called the storm "dangerous" and urged motorists to monitor radio and television forecasts. It said snow and freezing rain were making travel hazardous from the Mississippi Valley across the Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast. As much as eight inches of snow fell in southeastern Iowa and five to six inches in central portions of the state. The Iowa State Patrol advised motorists to stay home unless their trips were absolutely necessary. At Kansas City, three multicar accidents blocked Interstate 65 for a time. South of the snow and ice belt, tornadoes, violent winds and strong thunderstorms swept the Tennessee Valley and eastern Gulf Coast states. Eleven children were injured, none seriously, when high winds heavily damaged a portable classroom at an elementary school in Knox County, Tenn. One person was injured by tornado-like winds near Riceville, Tenn. At least six twisters were reported overnight in western Tennessee. They caused thousands of dollars in property damage but only a few minor injuries. Tornado warnings were up as far east as Georgia Monday. s Rains of up to four inches soaked portions of the southern Appalachians, triggering flash flood watches for parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia. New avalanche warnings were posted for the northern Colorado Rockies, where forecasters said up to a foot of snow would fall by nightfall. Very cold air spilled into the Plains. Temperatures were well below zero over North Dakota and most of Montana. The nation's morning low was 17 below zero at Glasgow, Mont.

Fall Weather Dry, Warmer

The fall season of September, October and November on the South Plains was dry and a little warmer than usual. Temperatures averaged 2.6 degrees above normal and ranged from 4.2 degrees above normal at Lubbock to 1.1 degrees above normal at Dimmitt. Maximum temperatures averaged four degrees above normal and ranged from 6.1 degrees above normal at Post to 2.4 degrees above normal at Littlefield and Plainview. The highest reports of the season were 106 degree readings at both Matador and Paducah on Sept. 26. Minimum temperatures averaged 1.3 degrees above normal and ranged from 3.9 degrees above normal at Lubbock to 7.7 degrees below normal at Dimmitt. The lowest temperature for the season was 16 degrees at Spur Nov. 10.

Area Readings Skid

A cold Canadian air mass, which rolled into the state Monday, is bringing considerably cooler temperatures today across the South Plains. South Plains thermometers should hit the lower 50's for today's high, with lows tonight dipping to the mid-30's. However, the cold front is moving eastward, and as the cooler air moves out, warmer air from the southwest is replacing it. The warming trend will bring Wednesday's temperatures to the low 70's, but the extended outlook calls for colder temperatures by Friday. Lubbockites may enjoy nine hours of sunshine today and Wednesday, with no precipitation in the forecast through Wednesday. Winds will be southerly at 10 to 15 mph today. But, while cold air spilled into the northern sections of Texas Monday, unseasonably warm temperatures prevailed over the southern portion. Record highs were reported at Brownsville, 94; Galveston, 77; and San Antonio, 85. Thomas Alva Edison was 30 years old when he invented the phonograph.

Revised Consumer Index Planned For February

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Labor Department official said Monday he expects a revised Consumer Price Index, which affects the income of half of the people in the United States, to be in use by February. Julius Shishkin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, said the new index has been enlarged to include buying patterns of 80 percent of the population rather than the 45 percent now included. Previously, the monthly consumer price report on inflation covered only products bought by wage earners and clerical workers. Now it will also include urban professionals and others, and the sample of products will be made more up-to-date. Shishkin said rural areas are not included in the survey because it would be too expensive. In a speech to the Washington Press Club, Shishkin said that half of American workers and elderly have their wages, social security and other payments tied to the index. However, he said the Labor Department is trying to adjust the index so no large jumps or declines will show up just because the figures are gathered differently. The government, which used to include only 400 products, will now check out prices of several thousand. The prices are averaged monthly from a selection of 18,000 retail stores in cities and suburbs across the country. Shishkin said he was "not 100 percent sure" but that he expected the first new index to come out in late February.

Use This Method To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... grow more hair. Have you faced the fact that you have a hair loss problem? Hair loss occurs so gradually that men and women often ignore it. Until it's too late. Even though you see yourself in a mirror every day, many of you won't admit to abnormal hair fall. If you think, honestly, that you might be in this category, look at a picture taken a year ago—three years ago. Notice a difference? If so, now's the time to stop your hair loss. You could be going bald. If it appears that you are already losing hair, whatever your daily hair routine is, if you continue to follow it, your hair will probably gradually thin away to nothing. But it doesn't have to happen. Often hair fall is NOT normal. Now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment that not only stops hair loss, but actually grows hair! And you don't even have to take their word for it. You can try their treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself. Naturally they wouldn't offer this opportunity unless it worked. But it's impossible to help everyone. The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped. But if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss. If you have thinning hair, the Loesch treatment may be the answer for you. If you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair, do something about it before it's too late. Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially by mail. Adv.

CHAPTER TWO: THE CURSE

Santa And The Pigwidgen

(Synopsis: Children did not always celebrate Christmas as they do today. This is the story of how Santa Claus came to be. Long ago a mysterious purse was found in the home of a toy-maker named Claus. When the purse was opened a strange vapor escaped.)

By LUCRECE BEALE
The mysterious warm breeze swept through Claus' house, out the door, up the chimney and through the window cracks.

Now it was gone. The villagers grinned self-consciously. They were ashamed to have been so afraid. They stared at the purse. Where before it had been heavy and bulging it was now flat and empty.

"You shouldn't have opened it!" Claus groaned. "I promised I'd never open it. Now she knows what will happen!"

"Nothing will happen," said an elder nervously. "It was all a joke!"

"There never was anything in it!" scoffed an old man.

"No gold. No nothing," said another.

They laughed and shook their fingers at Claus for having fooled them. "What a prankster!" they cried. "Always having fun!"

A little boy standing at Claus' side opened his mouth wide, wider, wider and gave a huge yawn. A little girl next to him did the same. She said "I'm sleepy!" A second boy said, "I've never been so sleepy!"

"I can't keep my eyes open," complained another child. "I want to go to bed," sighed another.

A moment later, all the children were yawning and rubbing their fists in their eyes. Before anyone quite knew what was happening, the children were sound asleep on their feet.

Mothers spoke sharply. They shook the children. They said, "for goodness sake! It's only mid-day. No time for napping. You'll never sleep tonight!"

But it did no good. Fathers lifted the sleeping children and carried them home to their beds.

All day the children slept. And all night and all the next day. Men blew horns and pounded drums and paraded in the village square making enough noise to shake the houses. Mothers banged pots and pans in the kitchens and called, "Come to dinner — we're having all your favorite things!" Fathers leaned over the sleeping children and promised to play ball or go sledding or climb trees with them if only they would wake.

But the children slept on. Meanwhile Claus worked in his woodcarving shop. He made a special toy for each child. A clown. A doll with moving arms and legs. A tiny horse-drawn cart. A music box. A sled. A doll house. A checker game. A set of ten pins. Something for everyone.

While he worked Mrs. Claus was in the kitchen mixing and baking and loading the pantry shelves with gingerbread men and raisin cakes and chocolate tortes and coconut patties and pecan pies. "When the children wake," they told each other, "we'll feast and give gifts and make merry. What a time we will have!"

But the children would not wake up and, finally, everyone knew a charm had been laid on them and they were going to sleep perhaps forever.

"I can't keep my eyes open! I'm so sleepy."

"It all began when the purse was opened," moaned Claus. "It was my fault. I promised never to open it."

"You must not blame yourself," said Mrs. Claus gently. "It was not you who opened it."

"It comes to the same thing," said Claus. "The purse was in my keeping." He picked up the old black bag and shook it angrily.

"I must find a way to break the curse!" he swore. "I will not rest until I do!"

He flung the bag against the wall. The clasp broke open and a small brass key fell out and skittered across the floor.

Experimental Drug Used In Vietnam May Cause Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drug taken daily by tens of thousands of American troops in Vietnam as part of a medical experiment has been found to cause cancer in male rats in tests by the National Cancer Institute.

The drug, dapson, is the principal treatment for the estimated 12 million lepers throughout the world, including 2,800 in the United States. But Army doctors tested it on GIs in South Vietnam as a preventive medicine for a severe form of malaria that was resistant to standard malaria pills.

A report published Monday of the institute's laboratory studies in which rats and mice were fed dapson in large doses showed the drug caused cancer of the spleen and the lining of the abdomen in male rats.

The institute tested dapson as one of 326 substances it is checking for evidence of cancer-causing activity in what it calls the carcinogenesis bioassay program.

Dr. Cipriano Cueto, a data evaluation expert at the National Cancer Institute, said the findings don't prove dapson causes cancer in humans. But he said the results would justify following up the case histories of people who have taken the drug to determine whether they experience greater incidences of spleen cancer or other malignancies than the population as a whole.

At least one such study in the 1960s of the medical records of about 850 American lepers who took the drug did not show a significant difference in the cancer death rate when compared to the general population.

The scientists reported that the tests showed no cancer causing activity in female rats, or in mice.

"If we get one group (male, female, rats or mice), we call it positive," said spokeswoman Melva Weber. "It would indicate there may be some hazard."

An Army spokesman said Monday, "We don't have the foggiest idea" how many troops took dapson in Vietnam and to find out would take at least a month of intensive research. He added the troops who were given the drug weren't told it was being used experimentally.

Use of dapson was restricted primarily to the Central Highlands region and the area known as I Corps, the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam. Several Army and Marine divisions with thousands of men in each fought for years in the jungles of the two regions where a particularly dangerous form of malaria was believed to be a threat.

Prior to its introduction in Vietnam, the drug was approved as a new investigational drug by the Food and Drug Administration, the Army spokesman,

Maj. David Gardner, told The Associated Press.

An investigational new drug is one the FDA considers of possible benefit to humans and approves for experimental treatment of a specific disease under carefully controlled conditions.

Gardner said dapson was used by the Army only in Vietnam and then "only where recommended by the appropriate medical authority." He said it did prove to be effective in preventing plasmodium falciparum, a rare but unusually severe strain of malaria that was resistant to the standard treatment.

"They didn't have anything else to treat this highly resistant strain," the spokesman said.

Wayne Pines, a spokesman for the FDA, said the only approved use of dapson in the United States is in the treatment of leprosy. He said he could not determine immediately whether the Army still has approval for use of dapson as an investigational new drug.

Most troops in Vietnam took a large, orange malaria pill known as chloroquine once a week. People who belonged to units operating in the highlands or western I Corps were told to take a smaller, white pill every day in addition to the weekly tablet promoted on Armed Forces Radio as "The Pill."

It was the smaller, white pill that contained dapson. The drug distributed by the military was trade-named Aviosulfon and was marketed by Ayerst Laboratories.

Dapson is a parent chemical of several so-called sulfone drugs used in the treatment of leprosy, an infectious, incurable disease that causes disfigurement, blindness and, indirectly, death.

With regular use, dapson and other sulfone drugs halted the infectious nature of the disease and, in time, reversed its spread over the body.

November Auto Sales Show Mixed Rates

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic car sales in November were a modest 2 percent higher than in the same month a year ago, with only Ford Motor Co. posting improved results, according to figures released Monday.

Ford's sales for the month, however, reflected last year's nationwide strike by the United Auto Workers, which left some models in short supply and depressed Ford's sales last fall.

General Motors Corp., which reported an unexpected 14 percent sales slump in the mid-month 10-day reporting period, tallied a one-half percent gain in the final 10 days and finished November nearly 1 percent under the year-ago sales rate.

For the month as a whole, Ford was up 23 percent, Chrysler Corp. declined 14 percent and American Motors Corp. was down 27 percent.

Industry analysts termed the month "mediocre," but noted GM surged back from its mid-month slide to capture better than 60 percent of the market in the final 10-day reporting period.

At GM, which delivered 421,814 cars in November compared to 425,035 in the same month a year ago, Robert Burger, vice president of marketing, said the company was "pleased" with 1978-model sales.

He noted the late November daily sales rate, the industry measure for determining sales percentages, was the company's second-highest ever for the period.

"Obviously 1978 industry sales that meet the strong 11 million rate of 1977 cannot exceed the year-ago rate in every sales period," added Bennett Bidwell, Ford car and truck group vice president.

"Some periods will be above and some below, but we're convinced the industry will remain on a strong track."

Ford delivered 213,347 cars in November, compared with 173,453 in the strike-depressed month a year ago. Chrysler sales of 86,729 compared with 100,932 last November. AMC reported 15,472 deliveries last month, compared with 21,352 a year ago.

Import sales, reported only on a monthly basis, were estimated at 155,000, up about 30 percent from last November. But analysts noted import sales in November 1976 were running unusually low, down from the rate the previous year.

For the Nov. 21-30 period, the four major U.S. carmakers reported sales down nearly 5 percent, based on a daily rate. Ford sold 72,467 cars, up 6 percent from last year's 59,930. Chrysler's 29,069 was 32 percent below 37,663 in late November a year ago. AMC was off 44 percent, from 7,818 to 5,008. AMC blamed the decline on "substantial fleet sales to car rental firms" a year ago.

GM's one-half percent gain for the period came on sales of 160,866 against 140,063 a year ago.

For the year-to-date, sales by the domestic carmakers are up 7 percent. Ford is up nearly 15 percent, GM shows a 9 percent gain, Chrysler is off 5 percent, and AMC is down 24 percent.

Hughes' Will Trial Jury Selected

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury of three women and three men, all more than 40 years of age, was selected Monday to determine the legal residence of the late eccentric millionaire Howard Hughes and the validity of the so-called Mormon will.

After weeks of hearings and motion after motion to delay the Texas trial, the jury was picked from a panel of 24. Two women will serve as alternates. The jurors to hear the Texas case are: Marjorie A. Norton Baker, 56, an employee of the Houston School District.

Glenn Walter Hoffman, 48, a petroleum marketing expert working for the Exxon U.S.A., one of the nation's largest energy producers.

Thomas J. Viviano, 56, a salesman for Gulf-Tex Equipment Co., a fabric equipment firm.

Frank Thomas Dallas, 56, a maintenance mechanic for the Texas Employment Commission.

Yvonne Rucker Rump, 45, an underwriter for an insurance company.

And, Betty C. Hughes, 53, an unemployed secretary.

The alternates are Barbara J. Weil, 43, a realtor and Mrs. H.P. Woolverton, 44, a secretary.

Testimony was to begin Tuesday, with Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory promising to recess the trial after two weeks so jurors would not be forced to hear testimony during the Christmas holiday season.

Earlier during the day, Gregory rejected a motion to delay the Houston trial until a similar hearing was finished in Las Vegas, Nev.

The judge also refused to dismiss an application for probate of the Mormon will in the Texas trial.

A similar trial of the validity of the will is underway in Las Vegas.

The State of California has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to decide the legal residence of Hughes, but no ruling by the high court is expected until Monday.

Should the state of Texas prove that Hughes was a legal resident of Texas, it could collect more than $100 million in inheritance taxes.

Scout Council Decides To Keep Camp Closed

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Camp Scott, where three girls were sexually molested and murdered last spring, will remain closed at least through next year, it was announced Monday.

Ginny Young, public information officer for the Magic Empire Girl Scout Council, said the camp in the rolling, wooded eastern Oklahoma countryside would not be open for camping until new security arrangements are made.

She said the target date for the changes is the 1979 camping season.

The decision to keep the camp closed was made on the recommendation of a task force that had been studying the future of the 640-acre camp, she said.

In the meantime, a study committee will be appointed to create a master plan aimed at strengthening the security at the camp, she said.

The changes include clearing away the densely wooded area for increased visibility, addition of security lighting, relocation of camper living units in a centralized area, installation of a campwide communications system, and training and hiring additional camp security personnel.

The camp has been closed since the partially clothed bodies of Lori Farmer, 8, and Doris Denie Miller, 10, both of Tulsa, and Michelle Guse, 9, of Broken Arrow were found outside their tent wrapped in sleeping bags.

AN EDITORIAL:

Fun In Sun, Surf 'n 10W30

WHEN SEN. Warren G. Magnuson told his colleagues on the Senate Commerce Committee earlier this year that "the worst is yet to come" in oil tanker accident annals, he knew whereof he spoke.

More than 50 lives have been claimed and millions of gallons of oil have polluted offshore waters in the spate of accidents since the Liberian-flag tanker Argo Merchant ran aground off Nantucket Island last Christmas season.

In that disaster, only by the good fortune of stiff winds from the right direction did most of the 7.6 million gallons of oil get swept out to sea rather than onto Cape Code beaches.

LAST WEEK, Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr., director of Texas A&M University's Sea Grant College Program, was quoted by the United Press International as saying the effect of a large untreated oil spill in the windswept first narrows of the Straits of Magellan "will be apparent for more than a decade."

Hann should know. He's one of the environmental engineers who helped supervise cleanup operations.

Major effects of the spill, which took only a couple of hours to reach the shore and spread a two-inch deep layer of oil-water emulsion over more than 50 miles of beach, will be visible in some estuaries up to 20 years from now, he said.

"This blanket of oil smothered marine organisms, oiled waterfowl and made the rocks slippery so that limpets (small, cone-shaped marine organisms) could not live," Hann said.

IF SAFETY regulations now in force are not sufficient to prevent tanker accidents like those that continue to occur, new rules must be developed.

There is no dearth of suggestions for new safety measures. They include mandatory double bottoms and sides, segregated ballast tanks, inert gas systems, and maybe even more frequent—and thorough—tanker inspections.

It's not so unreasonable to suggest improved licensing procedures for officers and crews, publication of lists of unsafe ships and cancellation of the registry of accident-prone vessels when one considers nearly half of U.S. oil is now being imported. And most of it comes in by sea.

THE QUESTION, then, is whether these and other safety proposals should be put into effect by individual nations or through international treaty. U.S. officials, particularly those in the State Department, tend to favor the international approach.

They argue that ocean pollution is an international problem and that unilateral action could result in a confusing patchwork of regulations and invite retaliation from other maritime nations.

Alas, the only agreement in Washington at the moment is that "something must be done." And so it goes, while the oil flows.

Fraser Edge May Be Too Dull

PARLIAMENTARY government prime ministers possess a political tool that American Presidents do not, i.e., they can call national elections at any time during their terms of office.

That's exactly what Australia's Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser has done. More than midway through his three-year term, Fraser announced in Parliament that national elections will be held this weekend.

Liberal Party leader Fraser won office two years ago after then-Prime Minister Gough Whitlam was dismissed; Whitlam, now the Labor Party opposition leader, is Fraser's opponent in the coming election.

by electricity workers in the state of Victoria.
About 500,000 workers walked off their jobs in the heavily industrialized area for six weeks.

Observers say the strike helped gain support for Fraser and hurt the Labor Party, which has strong union backing. The cost of lost production reached into the billions of dollars by the time the strike ended a few weeks ago.

Fraser called for the election during the strike, termed by The Washington Post as "one of the country's most disruptive labor disputes in...years."

THE LEADER of the party (or coalition of parties) that wins a majority in the House of Representatives becomes Prime Minister.
Australian polls indicate that Fraser's Liberal Party, together with its ally the Country Party, is likely to retain a House Majority.

It is a distinct possibility, though, that Whitlam and the Labor Party may reduce the Fraser edge.

Fraser is campaigning hard against union militancy. One of his campaign slogans is:
"Who is running the country, the government or the unions?"

If Fraser wins, the answer most assuredly will be the government.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Refugees Have Troubles
Few Know Or Care About

WASHINGTON—As was brought home forcibly by the recent trip of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Israel, the subject of the Palestinian refugee remains a festering source of conflict in the Middle East.

Exactly how many refugees there are is doubtful, with estimates ranging well up into the millions. But whatever the number, it is taken for granted that Israel "drove them out" at the time of the partition in 1948, and that it was this original act of "imperialism" that started all the trouble.

What is taken for granted, however, isn't necessarily so. I say this as one who has had his doubts about the wisdom of Zionist policy in the past, and who shares the general hope for an even-handed settlement in the Middle East.

THE TRUTH IS that the refugee problem has facets to it seldom mentioned by commentators in the West and never mentioned at all by Yasser Arafat and his followers in the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Some of these neglected aspects are examined by former United Press correspondent Ovid Demaris in his recently published "Brothers in Blood" (Scribners), a study of international terrorism that includes a lengthy, blow-by-blow analysis of how the present Middle East imbroglio unfolded.

Demaris has plenty to say in criticism of the Israelis, including the Stern gang and the Irgun (headed by Menahem Begin), but he does an impressive job of demolishing Arab charges about the plight of the Palestinian refugees.

FIRST, DEMARIS OFFERS extensive documentation suggesting the Arab refugees from Palestine were not "driven out" by the Israelis.

On the contrary, he argues, the Israelis asked the Arab residents to stay and continue working side by side with Palestinian Jews as they had done for decades.

Demaris concludes that the departure of the refugees was chiefly caused by the Arab governments who predicted a bloodbath and wanted their co-religionists out of the way in view of the impending warfare.

SECOND, DEMARIS STRESSES the obvious fact that once the refugees had departed from Palestine, the Arab governments (with the exception of Jordan) made no effort to assimilate them.

The growth and continuation of the "refugee problem" was actively abetted on the theory that
"the worse it gets the better it gets."

Demaris estimates the actual number of refugees who left Israel in 1947-48 at 590,000, with another 300,000 or so departing during and after the 1967 war. He compares this with the number of Jews who have been expelled or driven out of Arab countries:

FROM MOROCCO, 275,000; from Tunisia, 14, 000; from Algeria, 149,000; from Libya, 40,000; from Egypt, 72,000; from Syria, 41,000; from Iraq, 124,000; from Yemen, 54,000; and from Aden, 5,000.

"Of the Jews expelled from Arab countries," Demaris writes, "over 700,000 were absorbed into Israel between 1948 and 1976. There are fewer than 35,000 Jews still living in Arab countries."

"The number of Jews forced out of the Arab world is almost exactly equal to the number of Arab refugees who fled from Israel or were forced to leave. In effect, an exchange of populations had taken place.

But the Arab nations, for reasons of their own, have refused to absorb the Palestinians, while Israel, with far less territory and fewer resources, has taken in and found room for the Jews."

All in all, rather different from the scenario which so many Westerners accept as fact.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

It's Hour Of Decision

WASHINGTON—Because budget office civil servants are once again insisting on meat-cuts in military spending, President Carter is finally being compelled to resolve, his agonizing ambivalence on the defense budget.

Career defense specialists in the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) have directed the three services to prepare budgets reducing their spending in the next fiscal year by 9 per cent.
What's more, they are pressing for some specific reductions approaching that figure, requiring cuts in aircraft carriers and aircraft.

That is an entirely familiar OMB refrain. What is new are responsive vibrations from key staffers at the National Security Council (NSC) and doubts that the Defense Department's new civilian leaders will fight hard enough against the cuts.

ANDREW TULLY:

Are You
One Too?

WASHINGTON—No, Mr. Balderdash, one would not care to invite Communist China to one's club. But one of the weaker arguments against giving full diplomatic recognition to Peking is that it would unleash a horde of spies in the United States and that shortly one of those spies would steal the Pentagon.

This is a weak argument, not because anyone believes the Red Chinese diplomats would eschew espionage, but because the record shows Communist embassy types have been pretty well contained by the FBI and other security shops.

Actually, in recent years the biggest problem has been posed by neutral diplomats who may be giving or selling information to the Reds. Such neutrals are not automatically suspect and thus are not usually subjected to surveillance.

MOREOVER, THE neutral diplomat is much sought-after by both sides. Col. Stig Wennerstrom, the Swedish air attaché who served the Soviet Union as a spy in Washington for several years, told his interrogators that only the neutrals were able to move freely among both their Communist and capitalist colleagues, and thus were able to pick up valuable information.

After all, it is part of the neutral diplomat's job to be known as a good source of information. Only by gaining such a reputation can he acquire, by trade, the bits and pieces of information his country demands.

Wennerstrom even did a couple of errands for the CIA between assignments for Moscow.

Officially, an army, air or naval attaché is an "observer." By the terms of international protocol, he is supposed to confine himself to obtaining information by overt means, in order to keep his country au courant with the development of the armed forces of his host government.

IN FACT, EVERY such attaché is a spy—of varying virtue depending on whether he is oriented to the free world or the Communist bloc. Most of his valuable dope is gathered illicitly.

Thus, although great courtesy is extended them by the Pentagon, there are foreign attachés the American military brass wouldn't trust for 60 seconds with the cafeteria silver.

All Iron Curtain diplomats and, more significantly, most allied and neutral types, perform a set routine whenever they check into a hotel in an American city. They usually manage to pick up a couple of extra registration cards.

Upon their return to Washington, those cards are dispatched to their home capital, where they are stored against the day when that country's spy shop may have to "prove" that on a given date one of its agents was in, say, Rochester, N.Y., not perusing a top secret file in a State Department cubbyhole.

IN RED CHINA'S case, members of its liaison delegation in Washington and its United Nations colony are tailed as closely as possible. They probably still get away with some dirty work, but it is much more difficult to be naughty with an FBI man looking over one's shoulder.

Meanwhile, the U.S. has its own diplomat-spies in Red China, pursuing their own useful, underhanded ends.

Formal Washington-Peking relations, then, would offer both governments an opportunity to station more striped-pants spooks in each other's country.

For better or worse ideologically, that will happen when and if Washington decides that the quid quo is worth it.

Employees
On 'Take'

GET A BUNCH of experts together on the right of every citizen to find a job and you hear a lot of talk about "an honest day's work." But don't try to sell that to the folks in charge of weeding out dishonest employees.

They'll tell you the odds against a boss hiring a potential thief are roughly 2 to 1. That 40 out of every 100 workers will, given the need and opportunity, translate the old bromide to "a profitable day's work" and dip into the till.

These are figures compiled by John Reid and Associates, which pioneered in the field of lie detectors and is now giving honesty tests for firms anxious to cut down on employee theft.

These days, though, Reid uses pencils and paper instead of wires, and says the findings are just as accurate as lie detector tests. With a plus: Polygraphs reveal that you've already committed a crime; the Reid Report predicts whether you might in the future.

THE COMPANY TESTS close to 100,000 jobseekers a year for clients such as banks, retail stores, supermarkets, vending machines, restaurants, bars, truckers and gasoline stations.

All businesses that have one thing in common:
easy access to that irresistible product called money.

Those most likely to steal vary by industry, and vending machine operators score the lowest: 75 per cent of them fail Reid's honesty test. Fast-food applicants have a 50-per cent flunk rate.

And other "bad risks" include gas station operators, bartenders and pharmacists.

Bank employees come out on top, with only a 15-to-17 per cent failure rate.

AS YOU MIGHT suspect, with employee theft climbing into the billions around the country, businesses are desperate to reduce "shrinkage."
In the grocery trade, for instance, shoplifting and employee theft almost equal the total amount of profit.

They can't do much about shoplifting, but they are cutting down on internal shrinkage by hiring Reid to screen potential employees and anybody already on the payroll who's up for promotion.

And if Reid nixes a candidate as a potential thief, that candidate doesn't get the job.

Now and then, a client figures he knows better and hires the job-seeker anyway. But he usually has to report back with the embarrassing news that the worker has just made off with the payroll.

BASICALLY, WHERE the Reid Report succeeds when credit and police checks, references and "gut feelings" fail is that it tests only one thing: an applicant's attitude toward honesty, both his and his fellow workers.

Part of the 90-question test asks hypothetical questions that reveal whether the person thinks stealing, under certain and sometimes heart-tugging conditions, is forgivable.

Other questions are worded to find out if he thinks everybody cheats a little, or at least once in a while, and if he feels "that's just normal."

The rest of the test asks for biographical information, including debts, financial obligations and any history of arrests, convictions or wrongdoing the job-seeker got away with. (Like "borrowing" money from an employer without his knowledge.)

SEVERAL QUESTIONS zero in on the jobseeker's "need to steal." Reid considers gambling, drugs and alcohol addiction, alimony, heavy child support and excessive expenses dangerous triggers that could make a dishonest employee rob his boss.

Some questions don't really count. They're in there either as experimental ideas Reid is considering for future use or as "decoys" to prevent anyone from breaking their scoring key.

Honesty is all the Reid Report tries to measure.
It doesn't care how smart you are, how much education you have, whether you're aggressive or passive, male or female, black or white, old or young.

"Anyone," says a company official, "can be a crook."

APPARENTLY IT WORKS. Independent evaluations give the report an 80-per cent accuracy rating when it comes to sniffing out anybody who thinks it's all right to steal, sometimes, under certain conditions.

The cost is only $11 per applicant. And there are bargain rates for large groups: The price for more than 500 drops to $8 each.

Well, now. Are you thinking the same thing I am?

How many potential crooks do you suppose Reid and Associates could flush out of government? And wouldn't it be possible for us, as their theoretical bosses (for all the good it does us) to ask them to appropriate enough to take the test?

Or, how's this? There are 535 in the House and Senate, so we could get the group rate. I'll throw in $8 to get the kitty started. Now if there are just 354 more worried voters out there.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

MOST FAMOUS AMONG the several sponsors of the late Jack Benny probably was Jell-o. And if you're a Seasoned Citizen, you'll recall those commercials talked repeatedly about six delicious flavors. But can you remember those six? Strawberry, cherry, raspberry, lemon, lime and orange.
To open Benny's old show, each letter of the Jell-o tradename was sung in a rising fanfare. In those days when work was hard and money hard to come by, the much-envied vocalist who sang the final "o" got $25 for that day's job.

Sir, do you ever cross your legs in "the figure-four" manner? That's what it's called when the elevated leg rests somewhere between the knee and the ankle on the supporting leg. Claim is that no men in the world except American men cross their legs this way. Like the switching of the table-fork from the left to the right hand, also a distinctively American habit, it's said to be one of those nationality clues dear to foreign spy catchers.

When statues in old Rome developed cracks in them, certain swift tradesmen covered up those defects with wax. Our language man makes note of this before pointing out that our word
"sincere" comes from the Latin "sincerus" meaning "without wax."

A nuclear stopwatch developed in the University of Iowa physics lab can time nuclear reactions that occur in 3.6 ten-billionths of a second. That's how long it takes light to travel four inches.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

FINAL COTTON HARVESTING OPERATIONS were interrupted by rains last week in the Mid-South and Southeast.

But harvesting continued to make rapid progress in the Texas High Plains and western Oklahoma and advanced to final stages in most western areas of the belt.

Wet fields in Tennessee brought harvesting to a standstill. The Memphis market was moderately active with best demand for high-grade cotton.

Heavy rains stalled scrapping operations in Arkansas while trading remained moderate. A few growers sold crop lots on a sellers'-call arrangements at 550 to 600 points off July 1978 futures.

THE MISSISSIPPI HARVEST WAS DELAYED by wet weather. Market interest increased but growers continued holding the bulk of current-crop cotton. Rains also held up completion of the harvest in Louisiana, where picking was 90 to 95 percent completed. Trading was moderate to active at generally steady price levels.

Harvesting was hampered by wet fields in Missouri. Offerings were thin and sales on local markets remained slow.

Field activities were halted most of the week in Alabama due to rains. Trading was moderate with most growers still holding for higher prices.

The harvest reached the final stages in Georgia. Local market offerings were light and sales were limited to a few mixed lots.

ABOUT 20 PER CENT OF THE CROP was left in the fields in North Carolina when picking was slowed by rains. Mill buying increased, with strongest demand for medium-quality San Joaquin Valley and Memphis territory cottons.

The harvest was about 85 percent complete in South Carolina, although final operations were delayed by wet fields. Mill demand improved but purchases were mostly limited to nearby through first quarter deliveries.

Prices to High Plains growers were steady to $1.50 per bale lower on the week. Mixed lots of mostly grades 42 and higher, staples 30-33, mikes 3.5-4.9, brought around 43 cents per pound. Growers sold mixed lots of mostly grades 52 and higher, staples 33-36, mikes 3.5-4.9, for around 44.20 cents.

A RESOLUTION ON BEEF RESEARCH and promotion was approved by delegates to the annual convention of the Texas Farm Bureau last week in Houston.

The policy statement recognizes the desire for a workable beef research and promotion program and resolves that Farm Bureau will work with other organizations to develop a viable plan.

S. M. True Jr. of Plainview was elected TFB secretary-treasurer. More than 1,400 members attended the statewide meeting.

The American Farm Bureau Federation's annual convention will be Jan. 8-12 in Houston.

Official Wants Export Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — An officer of one of the nation's largest grain companies Monday called for stepped-up efforts by the federal government to boost U.S. farm exports and pump new life into the agricultural economy.

Myron R. Laserson, senior vice president of Continental Grain Co. for North America, said that an export credit program operated by the Agriculture Department could be remodeled to enable larger sales of U.S. wheat overseas.

The program, which has existed for more than 20 years, provides commercial credit to qualified countries to buy U.S. farm products. The loans must be repaid in annual installments, plus interest, with a maximum of three years. "I believe wheat export programs to some countries could be expanded if the governments of recipient nations and the U.S. could agree to financing revisions perhaps even going as far as new legislative authority to finance export sales in excess of three years," Laserson said.

The grain official's remarks were prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Washington Association of Wheat Growers in Spokane. Texts of his speech were made available here.

Laserson noted that India, once greatly dependent upon U.S. food aid, has "joined the ranks of grain exporters" but primarily because it "has inadequate facilities to prevent spoilage" of its total grain inventory.

"We also know that country, as well as most developing countries, has a terribly inadequate food distribution system and that hundreds of thousands of people are hungry," he said.

Laserson said that the United States should help India and other developing countries "build an adequate pipeline" for moving food to needy people during times when their crops are meager or fail altogether.

Some of what Laserson proposed is in the works. For example, the Carter administration recently announced that the export credit allocation for the 1977-78 fiscal year which began Oct. 1 has been doubled, from $750 million to $1.5 billion.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said in Kansas City, Mo., last week that major changes also have been made in the Food for Peace program — also called P.L. 480 — which can help move additional U.S. grain to needy countries.

"In addition, new Title III (in Food for Peace law) using food for development was added to encourage recipient nations to increase their agricultural development and economic programs, including nutritional programs, on a long-term basis," Bergland said.

Chicago Market's Prices Finish Higher

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures rallied from an early loss of 15 points and finished 30 to 52 points higher Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The February delivery led the advance in active trading of 11,200 contracts. Commission house support lifted prices to the day's highs and the highest point since June. The October contract set a new season's high.

Wintry weather and good beef demand in the face of heavy kill overshadowed increased runs and lower cash cattle.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 66 3/4 cents per pound for all weights, a five-week high. The six markets expect 17,300 head today.

Cash cattle were off $1 to up 25 cents, with the best top at $44 per hundredweight at Joliet. The Omaha top was $43.25. Slaughter was 148,000 head.

Hog futures closed 30 points higher to 15 points lower on sales of 6,281 contracts. The nearby delivery led the advance to the highest level since September 1976 and only April was lower.

Early profit-taking was noted on increased hog runs, but this was quickly contained on higher trends in cash hogs and on adverse weather which may affect hog runs today after Monday's moderate kill.

The more distant months were the highest since May, and the nearby reached a new season's peak.

Wholesale hams were up one to two cents at 92 cents to $1.05 a pound, f.o.b. river, a two-year high. The six markets expect 31,500 head today.

Cash hogs were up $1.50 to off 50 cents, with the best top at $44 per hundredweight, equalling six-week highs. Slaughter was 304,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures ran up 77 points to the highest level since July before ending 27 points higher to two points lower on sales of 5,317 contracts.

It-taking forced March lower, with initial buying spilling over from cattle and hog pits on wintry weather and continued strength in cash hogs and bellies.

Light kill and reduced belly storings also were bullish influences.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1 1/2 cents at 43 to 46 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a five-week high.

U.S. Loses Edge In Saudi Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fierce competition by European and Australian suppliers has bitten deeply into the United States' share of the lucrative Saudi Arabia farm market, an Agriculture Department specialist said Monday.

John B. Parker Jr. of the department's Economic Research Service said that U.S. farm exports to Saudi Arabia in calendar 1977 may total $180 million. Although that is an increase from $165 million sold in 1976, the gain is not keeping up with Saudi Arabia's stepped-up total imports.

For example, he said, the U.S. share of the market this year is expected to be about 14.6 percent of Saudi Arabia's total overseas farm purchases. Last year the U.S. share was 17 percent.

Parker's remarks were in a weekly "Foreign Agriculture" report published by the department.

Saudi Arabia's spending on foreign farm commodities has soared from $283 million in 1972, before big jumps in world oil prices, to $1 billion last year and an estimated $1.2 billion in 1977.

Parker said that the increases reflect "the immense purchasing power in this barren desert country, which can produce only about half" its required farm products.

role recently is the bumper world wheat crop and abundant rice supplies," Parker said.

Those have "prompted rugged competition in the Saudi market" from other foreign suppliers, including India and Pakistan in addition to European countries and Australia, he said.

Experiment Station Head Adds New Staff

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) Director Neville P. Clark has announced the appointment of Everett D. Laird and John E. Howard as assistants to the director.

Clark said "both men add needed expertise in fields of communication, management and resource analysis."

Laird will provide leadership in resource analysis, involving special projects for Clarke and his assistants. Laird succeeds Glenn Dowling, now on the staff of Texas A&M President Jarvis Miller.

Howard, who has a joint appointment with the Department of Agricultural Communications, will work closely with researchers, communicators and the TAES director in finding new and effective ways to communicate research programs and results to producers and consumers. His media liaison work will involve analysis of communication techniques.

Laird has a background with industry and has been in the fields of resource analysis, logistics, management, personnel administration, data processing and computer products to enhance management.

Dr. Pat Morrison, area entomologist, will discuss different types of mites found on corn and milo and their control. He will also speak on other types of insects found in both milo and corn. Dr. Robert Berry, plant pathologist, will get and insight on the maize dwarf mosaic (MDMV) problem in corn and milo and head smut in grain sorghum.

He has a B.B.A. degree from Texas A&M University, where he was named a Distinguished Military Graduate.

Prior to joining the experiment station staff, Howard served as vice president of the First State and Trust Co. in Port Lavaca, where he was director of public relations and business development.

He is a graduate of Victoria High School and received his B.A. in English from Texas A&M University.

Conferees Announced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced Monday the names of 17 Texans who are to take part in a White House conference on the economy, Jan. 29-Feb. 2.

The Texans will be among 500 persons who have been asked to discuss specific national policy issues on economic growth and development, Briscoe said in a statement.

Findings are to be presented to President Carter on the final day of the conference.

Texans to be invited include Fred Hofheinz, John Chase and Mrs. Anthony Hall of Houston; B.K. Johnson and Albert Bustamante of San Antonio; Dick Brown, Dan Malone and Harry Hubbard of Austin; Clyde Anderson of El Paso;

Mike Moncrief of Fort Worth; Jose Nee Gonzalez Sr. of Edinburg; Hector Garcia of Corpus Christi; T.L. Roach III of Amarillo; Mrs. C.V. Rice of LaMarque; Mrs. Carl Estes of Longview; Robert Folsom of Dallas; and Mrs. Sam Waldrop of Abilene.

Supreme Court Rules Motorists May Be Ordered From Vehicles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists stopped for routine traffic violations may be ordered by police to get out of their cars, the Supreme Court ruled Monday. Three dissenting justices said the decision "leaves police discretion utterly without limits."

In deciding a Philadelphia case, the high court's six-member majority ruled that such orders are justified by concerns for police safety — concerns it called "legitimate and weighty."

"Establishing a face-to-face confrontation diminishes the possibility, otherwise substantial, that the driver can make unobserved movements," the court said in an unsigned opinion. "This, in turn, reduces the likelihood that the officer will be the victim of an assault."

Justice John Paul Stevens, in a strongly worded dissent in which Justices Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr. joined, said such police actions threaten the constitutional rights of motorists to be protected against unreasonable searches.

"To eliminate any requirement that an officer be able to explain the reasons for his actions signals an abandonment of effective judicial supervision ... and leaves police discretion utterly without limits," Stevens said.

In other matters Monday, the court: — Agreed to settle a dispute over water rights between the federal government and California, a controversy with significant impact for 16 other western states. At issue is whether states legally may impose water-use conditions on federal water-management projects.

— Ruled that states may distinguish between day and night students in determining who is eligible for unemployment benefits. The decision reversed a ruling by the Idaho Supreme Court that paying benefits only to night students violated the equal-protection rights of day students.

— Refused to review an attempt by the Hunt family of Texas to collect at least $375 million from the world's seven largest oil producers for the 1973 nationalization of Hunt oil holdings in Libya.

— Agreed to decide whether the estate of the late Clay Shaw may sue former New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison for allegedly violating Shaw's civil rights by prosecuting him for conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

— Let stand a lower court's ruling that makes it easier for individuals to sue government agencies for alleged civil rights violations in employment. The court's action was a defeat for the Tennessee Valley Authority, which is being sued for alleged racial bias at its Muscle Shoals, Ala., operations.

In the police-powers case, the court reversed a decision by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court that it was unconstitutional to order suspected traffic-law offenders to get out of their cars.

The state court's ruling came in the case of Harry Mims, who was stopped by two Philadelphia policemen in 1971 after they observed that his car was carrying an expired license tag.

One of the officers ordered Mims out of the car, apparently a routine procedure for traffic offenders, and then noticed a bulge in Mims' coat. The officer frisked Mims and found a loaded .38-caliber pistol tucked in the waist of his trousers.

Mims was arrested and eventually convicted of illegal possession of a pistol and carrying a concealed deadly weapon. He already has served the maximum sentence of three years in prison.

Mims' conviction was overturned by the state Supreme Court after he had completed his sentence. The court declared that the policeman had no good reason to order Mims out of the car.

In reversing the high state court, the Supreme Court majority said the intrusion of Mims' rights was minimal.

"What is at most a mere inconvenience cannot prevail when balanced against legitimate concerns for the officer's safety," it said.

The court referred to the "inordinate risk" police face in making routine traffic stops, citing one report showing that 30 percent of all shootings of police officers occur after such stops.

The three dissenting justices questioned the reliability of the report, and charged that the court's decision greatly expands a 9-year-old ruling on police powers.

In that 1968 case, the court approved a police "stop and frisk" policy in situations in which police officers believed that the suspects were armed and dangerous.

"The court cannot seriously believe that the risk to the arresting officer is so universal that his safety is always a reasonable justification for ordering a driver out of his car," Stevens wrote.

"The commuter on his way home to dinner, the parent driving children to school, the tourist circling the Capitol or the family on a Sunday afternoon outing hardly pose the same threat as a driver curbed after a high-speed chase through a high-crime area late at night," he said.

Stevens also questioned whether ordering a motorist out of the car actually protects — rather than endangers — police officers.

"Arguably, such an order could actually aggravate the officer's danger because the fear of a search might cause a serious offender to take desperate action that would be unnecessary if he remained in the vehicle while being ticketed," Stevens said.

Although the majority's decision did not say whether police may also ask passengers in a stopped car to get out, Stevens said the court's logic "necessarily encompasses the passenger."

"Because the balance of convenience and danger necessarily encompasses the passenger. This is true even though the passenger has committed no traffic offense," he wrote.

College's Coliseum Opening Delayed

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING — Opening of Howard County College's new $2.5 million field house probably will be delayed until February or March, college president Charles Hays said Monday.

The latest foul-up in the project, which was to have opened in October, was the weekend arrival of the wrong size glass fittings for doors in the college coliseum.

Also, Dr. Hays noted, one slab of concrete on the gymnasium floor has been torn out because it was too high.

Agency To Reduce Federal Rules, Gobbledygook

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government guardian of safety and health in the workplace proposed on Monday to shed 1,100 rules and thereby lose some of its reputation as a nitpicker.

When the process is done, there will be 10 percent fewer regulations and gobbledygook in the arsenal of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. The top executives in OSHA and the Department of Labor said good riddance.

Many of those rules scheduled for extinction were the ones most often violated in the past.

No. 1 on that list, with 4,027 violations in the last fiscal year, required most employers to affix a plate "of approved design" to their place of business showing approved floor loads.

No. 2 on the list of most violated is a set of provisions in rules about ladders, one of which provides that "the painting of ladders is satisfactory providing the ladders are carefully inspected prior to painting by competent and experienced inspectors..."

The general industry regulations, which cover an estimated 62 million workers and 5 million employers, will be republished soon in the Federal Register. The regulations that OSHA proposes to delete will be marked in black.

The agency will ask for public comment for the following 90 days and will hold hearings if necessary. When that process is completed, "sometime after May, the revised rules will go into effect."

Dr. Eula Bingham, assistant secretary of Labor in charge of OSHA, said that in the meantime there will be little enforcement of those regulations scheduled to be dropped.

Requirements that will be dropped cover, among other things, the shape of toilet seats, the handling of ladders, the color codes of warning signs and the height of fire extinguishers.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall told reporters Monday that the slimming-down will result in better protection for the worker.

"Thousands of working people suffer serious accidents and illnesses each year," he said. "Yet, to the best of our knowledge, none of these accidents or illnesses has been caused by the shape of a toilet seat or because a fire extinguisher was two inches too low."

Dr. Bingham said there is no need for detailed standards requiring certain heights for different extinguishers when there is a section that rules "extinguishers shall be conspicuously located where they will be readily accessible and immediately available in the event of fire."

The entire sections governing the barrel-making industry, bakery equipment and laundry machinery and operations would be eliminated under the proposal because, OSHA spokesmen said, they duplicate general industry standards.

The bakery regulations date to 1947, a spokesman said.

OSHA's regulations were hastily adopted in 1971 when Congress created the agency from existing federal law and "consensus-standards" that industries had adopted for themselves.

Ever since, employers had complained they were bogged down under a welter of rules. Some unions opposed any deletion of standards as weakening employee protection, but others favored greater simplicity.

Among the regulations headed for the scrap pile:

—A clause, in a long section on ladders, requiring that "deflections in Table D-6 are to be determined by measuring, at the midpoint between supports, the distance from the outside edges of both rails to the floor or other reference surface both before and after the test load of 50 pounds is applied to one rail or the ladder ... The angle between the loaded and unloaded rails to the horizontal is to be calculated from the trigonometric equation: $Sine = \frac{\text{equals difference in deflection divided by ladder width}}$

—Insulating gloves may be of multi-ply construction with contrasting colors to aid in the detection of cuts, cracks and deep abrasions.

—Equipment shall be maintained and used in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions.

—Tanks may be of any shape or type consistent with sound engineering design.

—Ice in contact with drinking water shall be made of potable water and maintained in sanitary condition ... A common drinking cup and other common utensils are prohibited ... both a sanitary container for the unused cups and a receptacle for disposing of the used cups shall be provided."

—(In a privy) "The building shall be of fly-tight construction, doors shall be self-closing ... the seat top shall be not less than 12 inches nor more than 16 inches above the floor."

Tax Plan Delay Seen

WASHINGTON — A Treasury Department source said Monday the administration's hopes for smooth passage of a new tax package were severely set back by the sudden illness of Laurence Woodworth, chief architect of the plan.

Woodworth, who suffered a stroke Sunday, was listed in extremely poor condition at Riverside Hospital in Newport News, Va.

Because Woodworth was the key link between the administration and Congress on tax matters, a Treasury Department source said his illness was a "severe setback" for quick passage of the tax package.

Treasury officials said, however, that preparation of the tax plan, including some $20 billion in tax cuts for individuals and business, would proceed on schedule. Carter plans to unveil the plan next month.

Diplomatic Links Broken By Arabs

mediator in the Middle East. U.S. officials in Washington said Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance would visit Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia beginning this weekend to assess prospects for a comprehensive settlement. They said Vance might also visit Syria and that Egypt's mass cutoff of diplomatic relations would not affect the trip. The last such serious break in Arab ranks occurred in 1971, when Syria and Egypt broke relations with Jordan over King Hussein's bloody expulsion of Palestinian guerrillas from his country. The Iraqis, for years Syria's main Arab rivals, denounced Syrian President Hafez Assad in Tripoli for what they called his continued faith in "surrender solutions." Assad so far has won the firm support of only such peripheral Arab states as Morocco and Sudan. The break in relations seemed to indicate Sadat has given up hope of backing from the "hardline" countries and instead will try to ally himself with Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which thus far have stayed out of the furor over his visit to Israel. In related developments Monday: —The official Soviet media stepped up Moscow's attack on Sadat, accusing him of secretly striving for a "separate deal with imperialism and Zionism behind the back of the Arab peoples." —Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin told British Jewish leaders in London that Egypt and Israel "shall talk to each other and we shall find a solution." —Ugandan President Idi Amin left his country for a visit to Libya, where he said he would discuss the Middle East situation with Libyan leaders. Amin has had close ties with Libya for several years. The outcome of the five-day gathering here was a clear victory for Syria's Assad, the four former jet pilot who has steered his country toward increasingly moderate policies since the 1973 Middle East war.

supplier must tell the building inspector in writing all information necessary to prove the material complies with the laboratory tests and standards. Also, the attic scuttle hole through which insulation is blown must be labeled with the type of material installed and confirm that it complies with the required lab tests. The applicator's name and address must be affixed to the scuttle hole label, the board also said.

control, and it must be on the container. "Without it, we can't honestly put a tag on the building and say it meets the code," he said. The ordinance requiring UL or ICBO approval of organic insulation doesn't specify such third-party inspections and subsequent labeling, but Turquette had interpreted it to mean it was required. Now, he said, he will push for the specification.

Escape 'Red Tags'

Monday night's decision means that newly built homes no longer will be "red-tagged" by building inspectors because of "questionable" insulation material. The red tag warns homeowners that the building does not pass final inspection. Inspectors had been redtagging the buildings for the past two weeks but allowed the residences to be occupied pending a board decision on the insulation question. Inspectors now will approve the houses as long as they meet the insulation guidelines set by the board.

High Costs Cited

One manufacturing company representative told the board that it would have cost his firm about $85,000 last month to secure UL labeling, even though the company's product is UL-approved. The cost of labeling runs about a nickel per bag, but expenses mount when the lab's services are secured and additional chemicals applied to the cellulose material. And, the insulation manufacturers contended, they would not market a shoddy product because they would lose business. The integrity of the manufacturer must be relied upon, the group opposing Turquette's interpretation agreed.

No Guarantee Foreseen

Turquette contends that unless insulation is marked with a UL or ICBO stamp of approval, homeowners are not guaranteed a quality product. Unscrupulous insulation manufacturers can send a sample to the laboratories, and have it approved and then not properly treat the insulation that is marketed, he explained. The result could be flammable insulation being blown into attics, he added.

Earlier in Monday's Meeting

the homebuilders and insulators, represented by attorney Bobby Kizer, had appealed to the board to reverse the labeling interpretation and broaden the ordinance to include other testing standards being acceptable ones. The group sought board endorsement of "federal specifications" or American Society of Testing and Materials standards as acceptable in quality checking of insulation.

Without the third-party overseeing there is no way to know what is sprayed into attics, he told the board. Taking it for granted that a product is acceptable because its name appears on what could be an outdated laboratory lists is an "assumption I don't feel I can make as long as we're charged with protecting the homeowner," Turquette said. "We're only asking one thing," he said. "We want proof of third-party quality

Had the board accepted the proposal

it would have forwarded the suggestion to the city council for a final decision. Instead, the citizens group limited itself to a strict interpretation of the ordinance and surrounding controversy, and Kizer and his group stopped pushing for an ordinance amendment. After the meeting, Board Chairman Raymond Powell said he will not raise the issue again unless someone requests further board consideration. Turquette said he plans to do so very soon.

Mine Union Leaders Expect Long Strike

against 130 BCOA companies and all other firms that have no contracts ratified. "With no contract there will be no work. I make this statement in sorrow and regret because the strike will bring hardships and human tragedy." At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum said President Carter had no intention at this time to invoke the Taft-Hartley law in the coal dispute. Granum said this action could be done only if a strike would harm the nation's defense capabilities and "it is not anticipated at this point that we will be doing so."

companies not represented by the BCOA where contracts also are expiring. In addition there are about 20,000 union members who are construction workers. A strike could be expected to last at least 10 days since the UMW's contract ratification procedure takes that long. The UMW has struck nine times in 19 previous contract negotiations. The longest walkout, in 1946, lasted 59 days. But he said more miners were working than had been expected on the last day of the expiring contract. He attributed the number of mines still open to a desire on the part of the miners to earn one more day's wages before the strike began. The most immediate impact of a strike would be on the miners and their families. UMW miners would lose their daily wages and health benefits for themselves and their dependents. Their retired colleagues also would be cut off.

Probers Seeking Clues To Crash

JOHORE BAHRU, Malaysia (AP) — Police and government investigators grimly searched a square-mile area of swamp Monday for bodies and clues to what happened in the minutes before a hijacked Malaysian jetliner blew up in flight and crashed, killing all 100 aboard. At least one American was identified as a passenger. The task seemed insurmountable — rescue workers found nothing more than pieces of victims, the largest part of the plane recovered was two feet long, and the plane's "black box" flight recorder appeared lost.

Plants Stockpile Coal

"Industry officials say the biggest users of coal, utility plants and steel mills, have stockpiled large enough quantities of coal to last several weeks. Government officials say a strike would not be the national problem it was in years past. Negotiations on a new contract to replace the existing three-year pact began on Oct. 6. Federal mediators took charge of the discussions last week and managed to get the two sides back to the bargaining table on Friday. All sides reported over the weekend that there had been serious discussions on "substantial issues." These include the union's demand for a limited right-to-strike over local issues at individual mines and its demand for refinancing of its depleted health and pension funds. The coal association, seeking an end to the wildcat strikes that have plagued the industry in recent years, is proposing penalties for miners who take part in illegal strikes. It also seeks incentives to increase production.

"HOW DO YOU SPELL THAT NAME?" — Sen. John Tower and his wife Lilla sign autographs in Crosbyton for Darrel Robertson, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carrol Robertson. Texas' GOP senator is touring the South Plains and Panhandle through Thursday. His schedule calls for him to be in Tahoka, Morton, Matador, Silverton and Tulia today. Tower said he is so far "unimpressed" with the Carter administration. (Staff Photo by Norm Tindell)

Rural Hospital Area Towns To Aid Detention Center

regional health planning agency for the 15-county Lubbock area, has formed a special committee to help fight the guidelines and make widely known the problems they are expected to cause here. A recent Texas Hospital Association (THA) survey indicated that more than 90 per cent of the hospitals in Texas cannot now comply with the proposed National Guidelines for Health Planning. The survey also indicated that under the rules 96 per cent of the state's smaller hospitals would be closed because of an annual occupancy rate below .80 per cent, and that 96 per cent would be forced to close obstetrical units and send mothers-to-be to distant facilities for deliveries.

to Project Intercept, the district's new alternative school for problem students, and agreed to move the special educational program to the proposed detention center, Watts said. He added that architects will begin designing the juvenile center next month on authorization from the Governor's Criminal Justice Division, the agency funding the planning stage. Lubbock County Commissioners have set aside $500,000, to be matched by the governor's office, for construction of the juvenile detention center.

Energy Fuss Continues

The senator foresaw no near end to House-Senate squabbles over President Carter's proposed energy package — a package he described as "all wet" because of its lack of production stimulation measures. "Right now, the conference committee appears to be stalled. They've just now gotten into gas pricing. It's taken this long to get through the less controversial matters. I don't think the House will accept the Senate version for deregulation. And then you have the tax proposals to go through. So, in terms of a comprehensive energy package, it's beginning to look increasingly less likely to me" that any settlement will come this session, he said.

County's Quota Biggest

Lubbock County, of course, makes up the biggest part of that quota — 26.9. The rest is spread out over the remaining 14 counties, most having quotas of one to three. Under TYC's community assistance program, each county next year will be paid from the state $4,500 for every number below the commitment quota. Thus, if a county has a quota of three and commits no juveniles to state reform schools, that county is paid $13,500. In passing their resolutions, surrounding counties have agreed to automatically assign these state allocations to Lubbock County, for use in operating the proposed juvenile detention facility.

Still Unannounced

Tower, in his third term, has not yet announced for re-election, although he is expected to do so in January. He said he expects no primary opposition, nor any lack of enthusiastic support from all GOP quarters — despite his backing of Gerald Ford during Ronald Reagan's '76 bid for the Republican presidential nomination. Two Democrats already are running for his job, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels and former state Insurance Commissioner Joe Christie.

Review Asked

In a friend-of-the-court brief, the Justice Department asked the Supreme Court to grant review to the Hunt appeal. While taking no position on the merits of the Hunts' complaint against the oil firms, government lawyers argued that federal courts should not be barred by the act of state doctrine from looking into the "motivation" of foreign governments' acts.

Need Set At $225,000

The annual operational cost of the facility is expected to be about $225,000. If the surrounding counties chip in $90,000 to $100,000, Lubbock County will pick up the rest — using its own state-funded allocations plus some special grants.

Previous Rulings

A federal court and the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had ruled previously that a 1909 Supreme Court decision barring federal court jurisdiction in antitrust cases that might question the validity of a foreign government's actions made Hunt's lawsuit impossible. In seeking Supreme Court review, attorneys for Hunt called the so-called "act of state" doctrine "a gaping loophole in antitrust enforcement." They charged that the doctrine "cloaks private conspirators with absolute immunity from judicial challenge so long as they implicate a foreign government in their wrongdoing, or use a foreign government to damage or destroy a competitor."

DEEP IN THOUGHT—Raymond Powell, chairman of the Building Board of Appeals, ponders a point raised Monday during two hours of discussion about the interpretation of a controversial insulation ordinance. Eventually the board overturned the building administrator's interpretation of the statute, which outlines laboratory certification of organic insulation. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

Former Ambassador David Bruce Dies

DAVID BRUCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — David K. E. Bruce, a tall, quiet-spoken intellectual who served as a foreign policy adviser to six presidents, died Monday. He was 79.

Bruce suffered a heart attack late Sunday and died in the Georgetown University Medical Center's coronary care unit at 2:10 a.m., four hours after being admitted.

Bruce was the only American ever to serve as ambassador in western Europe's three most prestigious diplomatic posts — Great Britain, France and West Germany.

"He was among the most eminent diplomats of his generation," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter. "All of us will miss his wise counsel."

A registered Democrat, Bruce was lured from retirement in 1971 by President Nixon to lead the American delegation to the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. Frustrated by the slow progress of the talks, he retired once more a year later, only to be called again to duty by Nixon in 1973 as the first head of the U.S. liaison office in the People's Republic of China.

Bruce, who carried out his duties with an air of easy informality, retired for good in 1976, after serving under President Ford as ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Ford presented him with the Medal of Freedom.

Three Democratic and three Republican presidents relied on Bruce for advice in sensitive diplomatic roles, and he was once asked how he was able to retain the confidence of a succession of administrations.

"The cardinal rule for an ambassador in a foreign country is to cherish no antipathies or attachments for particular domestic political parties or programs," he replied.

Bruce was born in Baltimore, Md., on Feb. 12, 1898. After service as an artilleryman in France during World War I, Bruce studied at the universities of Maryland and Virginia and later practiced law in Baltimore.

From 1924 to 1926, he was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, serving in that role while his father, William Cabell Bruce, was a U.S. senator from Maryland.

The younger Bruce briefly tried his hand in the Foreign Service, but gave that up to go into business. He was a banker and a tobacco farmer and eventually was on the boards of 25 corporations. There was very little in the scope of human activity in which Bruce did not have an interest. His hobbies included sports, art, wine and antique furniture.

He wrote a biography of George Washington and a 1939 book, "Revolution and Reconstruction" which was a study of the first 16 American presidents.

He was the first president of the National Gallery of Art and has been a trustee of the Frick Museum and the Metropolitan Opera Company.

During World War II, Bruce went to London as representative of the American Red Cross and then shifted to an intelligence role in the Office of Strategic Services, the forerunner of the Central Intelligence Agency.

It was not until 1949, after postwar service in the Commerce Department, that Bruce's career as a diplomat actually began.

At the age of 51, he was sent by President Truman to France as ambassador. He was Under Secretary of State from 1952 to 1953 and U.S. representative to the European Coal and Steel Community from 1953 to 1954.

President Eisenhower named him ambassador to West Germany in 1957 even though Bruce had contributed financially to the campaign of Adlai Stevenson, whom Eisenhower had defeated.

From 1961 to 1969, Bruce was ambassador to Great Britain, serving under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. His 8-year tenure in London was longer than that of any American ambassador.

The London Sunday Times once called Bruce "a most skilled practitioner of diplomacy, a shrewd and intelligent observer of men and affairs."

The late Loy Henderson, a top career diplomat, once said that everywhere Bruce went, he impressed everyone by his intelligence and particularly by his modesty. "He was unflinching, never upset, no matter the circumstances. And yet he can be so firm in such a disarming way. He has a keen sensitivity for the problems of the people around him. He was always so considerate of his staff, yet they know he expected the very best from them, and he always got it."

News Briefs

Albert Aguilar, 16, of 1111 40th St. was in critical condition late Monday in Methodist Hospital with injuries he suffered about 2 a.m. Sunday in a one-car crash in the 3200-block of Southeast Loop 289. Police said the wrecked vehicle was found there about 5:20 a.m. Sunday by a passing motorist. The auto left the roadway eight-tenths of a mile west of Southeast Drive and rolled over several times. An 18-year-old city man died of injuries suffered in the mishap.

The Hub Employment Association will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Lubbock Inn for a business meeting and Christmas party.

Veterans of World War I, barracks and auxiliary, of the Hub of the Plains 1489 organization has scheduled its Christmas meeting for noon Saturday at the Adult Center, 26th Street and Avenue P. The meeting will include a potluck luncheon and sing-along.

Householder Finds Burglar In Home

A telephone company employee Monday told police she and her daughter returned home Sunday just in time to find a man standing in her bedroom.

The woman reportedly told police she and her daughter had just entered her East 17th Street home Sunday afternoon when they noticed something was amiss.

Her daughter, she said, walked through the house, and, upon reaching the bedroom, found a black man standing inside.

She told officers the man tried to grab her, but she escaped his attempts. Both women fled to a neighbor's home and called police, but before officers arrived the man had left — along with a $950 television set.

Also Sunday, a 23-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was at a 4th Street and Avenue V club about 11:15 p.m.

when a girl stabbed her.

Belinda Jane Ramos of 2111 21st St. told police she was playing records from the jukebox when a girl approached her and cut her on the shoulder and wrist with a knife.

Louise Ferguson of 3018 Shallowater Drive told police she left a $500 ring lying on a chair when she went to church Sunday, but when she returned the ring was gone.

More than $150 worth of tools reportedly were taken from Larry Don Salyer's 1219 Ave. Q Fina Station between 7 p.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday.

Eileen Floyd of 5416 17th St. told officers someone took her purse, containing $50, from under the checkout counter at a 13th Street and Slide Road grocery store where she works.

Special Education Expert To Speak

University of Missouri professor Donn E. Brolin will present a lecture and question and answer session on continuing education and rehabilitation of mentally retarded persons today at 7 p.m. at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Brolin is a professor in the department of counseling and personnel service and director of undergraduate training and rehabilitation education at the University of Missouri.

The speech, sponsored by the Research and Training Center in Mental Retardation at Texas Tech, will be in room 358 in the Business Administration building.

Brolin's work in career education, vocational evaluation and rehabilitation of retarded citizens emphasizes the "longitudinal continuum of services" needed for the development of an individual's potential.

He stresses the interactions between school and community rehabilitation programs in effective program planning for handicapped persons.

While Brolin's primary interests are with rehabilitationists, much of his work has been in secondary cooperative school programs. He has served on various national committees and advisory groups and currently is president of the Division of Career Development of the Council for Exceptional Children.

Brolin has attained national attention and the demand for his expertise is growing in the field of career education. He has recently published a book entitled "Vocational Preparation of Retarded Citizens" which deals with the area of special education and rehabilitation.

His speech is in conjunction with the Research and Training Center in Mental Retardation's short-term training program, "Rehabilitation of the Mentally Retarded," today through Thursday.

The conference will be held in the Engineering Complex on the Tech campus.

The old stone church at Voss in Norway's fjord country was consecrated on May 26, 1277.

Energy Conferees Fail To Agree On Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional energy conferees failed to break an impasse on natural gas pricing Monday and Senate negotiators began discussing abandonment of a complete energy package for this year.

Votes taken by the conferees showed they were as divided over whether to deregulate natural gas prices as they were when the conference committee began meeting nearly two months ago.

Although a majority of House negotiators voted to support President Carter's proposal to keep price controls on natural gas, Senate conferees remained deadlocked between the administration plan and a rival Senate-passed bill to deregulate gas.

Both sides in the Senate dispute held separate closed-door strategy meetings after Monday's public session and neither agreed to yield, although both groups talked of offering small concessions in hopes of breaking the impasse.

According to participants, both groups discussed the possibility of putting off the natural gas issue and the other major energy dispute between the two chambers — Carter's proposal for a crude oil and other energy taxes — until 1978.

Under such a strategy, Congress would be asked to approve the three pieces of energy legislation already agreed upon by conferees — energy conservation guidelines for electric rates, general energy conservation measures and a bill designed to force industries to convert from oil and natural gas to coal.

However, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has expressed hope to finish the entire energy package this year.

In their strategy session, Senate allies of the administration agreed to continue taking a hard-line in support of continued price controls, according to some of those attending the session.

However, the pro-administration group reportedly indicated it would support a "compromise" giving the industry slightly higher prices for newly produced natural gas than the $1.75 per 1,000 cubic feet ceiling sought by Carter.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the top Senate negotiator, said while the price-ceiling issue was negotiable, failure to go along with Carter's proposal to extend regulation to intrastate markets in producing states would "mean there will be no bill."

In the public session, House conferees voted along party lines, 15 to 8, to stand fast behind Carter's plan to lift the wholesale price of natural gas from $1.46 per 1,000 cubic feet to $1.75 while extending federal price controls for the first time to gas used within producing states.

But Senate conferees rejected the proposal on an expected 9-9 tie. Two Democratic and seven Republican Senate conferees joined in backing a rival, Senate-passed bill to deregulate gas prices.

To underscore their support for the Carter plan, administration allies in the House Monday released a new congressional study showing that the Senate-passed bill could cost consumers as much as $1,000 more by 1985 than the administration program, passed by the House.

The study by the staff of the House subcommittee on energy and power said that the industry-favored Senate bill would raise the average residential price of natural gas from the current retail price of $2.32 per 1,000 cubic feet to $4.78 by 1985.

By comparison, the House bill would raise the price to about $3.93 over the same period, the study said.

A thousand cubic feet is roughly enough gas to heat the average home for three days.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., predicted that the natural gas pricing issue and differences between chambers over the president's proposal for a crude oil tax and other energy taxes won't be resolved until 1978.

"It's very clear that we're not going to get a finished bill out of Congress this year," Johnston said.

Johnston and Sen. Wendell Ford, D-

Ky., sided with seven GOP Senate negotiators in voting against the Carter proposal.

Johnston said that deregulation forces might accept a compromise that raised the wholesale price of natural gas initially to about $2 per 1,000 cubic feet while phasing out price controls entirely over a two-to-nine year period.

Johnston indicated administration forces would be reluctant to go with any compromise that did not extend federal regulation to intrastate markets — gas produced and used in the same state.

The Senate bill would end federal price controls over gas shipped in interstate pipelines in two years for onshore gas and after five for offshore gas. Gas moving across state lines has been under federal price regulation since 1954.

Military Man Remembers Japan As Friendly Place To Visit

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

John W. Blackstock was in church in Illinois that December day in 1941 when word came to report back to Chanute Army Air Field. The Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor.

He didn't see Pearl Harbor at all during WWII. He flew cargo planes to Europe, starting in Italy and going up into Germany.

He also missed Japan way during the Korean conflict. He was flying cargo planes in Europe again, this time in the Berlin airlift.

During his last tour with the Air Force, Blackstock finally made it to the Pacific where Hawaii was headquarters for supply and services of the 5th Air Force.

Like many others he made the pilgrimage to the monument raised over the sunken hulk of the U.S.S. Arizona and read the names of those who went down with it Dec. 7, 1941.

"It's different to us because we lived through it, but it commands a lot of reverence from everybody," Blackstock, now a retired Air Force colonel, said of the "huge concrete structure in the middle of the bay" recalling the day the attack came.

During that tour, in which he wound up as deputy director of supplies and services for the Pacific area, he finally made it to Japan, during tours to Vietnam to keep planes flying.

In the spring, during "cherry season which is very beautiful," he will be going back to see Japan at his leisure. Winning a contest brought the opportunity to Blackstock.

On his first tour he found the Japanese to be about the friendliest people of the Pacific. Most of the college students speak English, he noted, and the policemen who speak English wear a white tassel on their caps.

Finding his way around will be no problem, he figures, since standing on the corner looking lost brings someone who speaks English to assist.

It wasn't that way in Spain where he helped build bases following a contract with Franco. Luckily, the family went beyond the tourist sights to find the real people of Spain very friendly and "just people."

The Blackstocks lived next to an ambassadorial school and the children picked up a number of languages.

In Germany, the family also met friendly treatment, even where other Americans did not. The Blackstocks always had friends to show them the sights of Germany.

"They said it was because we didn't blame them for what Hitler did," Blackstock said, adding that a person with hard feelings about the war could find the same reaction in others.

The Georgia native joined the Army Air Corps, "a very small organization," in 1936 and had been pulled from the mechanic and instrument repair ranks as an instructor when Pearl Harbor was attacked.

He continued instructing the buildup of needed maintenance men with the B-4 and B-6 bombers with a maximum speed of 90 mph and a flying time of "four or five hours if you pumped real hard."

Fuel was carried in both wings, but had to be pumped from the lower to the upper by hand. Cockpits were open.

In 1943 Blackstock went through the aviation cadet program, beginning training in Hondo and winning his wings at Enid, Okla.

His first flying assignment was as a check pilot assigned to the Boeing aircraft company.

His plane was the C-47 "Gooney Bird" during WWII.

Jets had come of age when the Berlin airlift ended, so he spent the rest of his career "flying a desk" on the maintenance end, cannibalizing downed planes to keep others flying when supplies were short.

"We had pretty good supply, but as much as we flew we needed everything we could get."

After retiring in 1968, he stopped first in Oklahoma, then "got to wandering," finding Lubbock had what he wanted while en route through to Colorado.

Military life got into the Blackstock blood. Jack is a marine, Jim just got out of the Navy and Jill spent a hitch with the Air Force as an aircraft mechanic stationed at Reese Air Force Base.

Blackstock found his retirement dream on Route 4 where there are grandchildren to live up the day.

Right now there is the fun of planning what to see on the 15 days he will be spending in Japan, seeing sights he couldn't get around to in a wartime atmosphere and visiting the friends he met while in the military.

Seven-Year-Old Kidnap Victim Returns Safely

IRVING (AP) — "We just grabbed her and hugged her and loved her," said Mrs. Sue Rice of the reunion with her seven-year old daughter, Donna Sue, after an eternity of four hours during which the girl was apparently a kidnap victim.

The happy reunion took place Saturday night at a hamburger restaurant where the man released Donna Sue after driving her around in his car, police said.

"Everytime we ask her what happened, she just clams up," Mrs. Rice said of her usually gregarious daughter.

"It is easier to let it settle and come back to her with questions later on," said police Sgt. Richard Langton who would not speculate on the kidnapper's motives, but added, "I don't guess he just wanted to buy her some ice cream."

Saturday afternoon Donna Sue was playing with several friends when a man approached them.

Mrs. Rice said the man wanted the kids to help him sell flowers and hand out circulars.

Langton said the man diverted Donna Sue away from the others on the pretense of getting apartment numbers for his solicitation.

At about 5:30 p.m. Donna Sue's sister, Cynthia, 9, reported she was gone.

Mrs. Rice said she immediately thought of other Dallas area girls who had disappeared in recent months and who were later found murdered.

Donna Sue told police she thought the man was taking her to help him sell flowers, but soon realized he was taking her away from home. The man, described as middle-aged, heavy set and about six-foot tall, did not speak much to her during the ride.

"I just cried," she said, "and he was nasty to me and called me a cry-baby."

Langton said the man apparently did not molest the young girl, but "she had some scratches from thorn bushes where they left the car, but we don't know where."

Donna Sue said at 10 p.m. the man stopped at a hamburger restaurant and told her to go inside and see if there was a map. "When I came back, he was gone."

She said she then told a customer the man had kidnapped her.

Police, Mrs. Rice and her husband were at the restaurant within minutes.

State Employees Avoid Meal Tax

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas state employees won't have to pay income tax on their meal allowances even though the U. S. Supreme Court says New Jersey troopers must, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

Bullock said there is a difference. In Texas, employees who are away from their headquarters for at least six hours can get reimbursement for out-of-pocket meal expenses, up to $15 a day. But in New Jersey, he said, it is more than just reimbursement.

In Texas, he said, "this allowance is for expenses incurred and certainly is not considered a part of the employee's salary — for any purposes."

Older People Using 'Kid' Dental Ware

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Nowadays, people will go to almost any extreme to look more attractive, a trait that has given rise to a lucrative market for supersonic, multi-speed hair dryers and toothpaste promising a better sex life for the brushee.

But there's one channel adults, in the past, never really sank their teeth into — wearing braces.

However, all that's changing, local orthodontists say, with young men and women, and even the middle-aged deciding to invest money in dental hardware for themselves.

The most common reason given for the change is that parents, after seeing what braces could do for their children, decided to undergo the procedure themselves.

Other probable reasons for older people beginning to wear braces, once thought to be a "kiddie thing," are better orthodontic equipment, not being alone in acquiring the mouthware and, says Dr. J. Taylor Evans, the realization that "you don't have to lose your teeth when you get older."

There are even T-shirts for young and old alike with such witty imprints as "Embrace me, you fool," "Brace your face," "Danger!! High voltage wires" and "I'm going straight."

Orthodontists consider their patients adults at 18 years and up. Treatment and its cost vary little, doctors say, no matter what the patient's age.

"I have no regrets," said Loetta Russell, a 34-year-old secretary for the Texas Tech University Board of Regents, who now flashes a big, brace-filled smile.

The secretary has worn braces since July. She said she decided to wear them after seeing braces on her children.

Mrs. Russell said she got some comments at first about her newly acquired dental hardware, but "it's just a part of me now."

"I recommend wearing braces to anyone who is thinking about it," she said. "I was more self-conscious about my ugly teeth than I am about my braces."

Dr. John F. Brown, who has an office on Quaker Avenue, said he recently attended the Southwest Society of Orthodontists convention at Tulsa, where the main topics were the upsurge of adult patients and the declining population of 12-year-olds. Such a decline could cause a drop in the number of children treated in the profession.

Dr. Brown said the volume of his adult patients has risen in five years from about one to 30, including schoolteachers and physicians. "An adult must make a commitment. They can't be real sensitive and feel self-conscious," he said.

The doctor said his oldest patient so far was a 58-year-old woman who recently concluded treatment after wearing braces for 2½ years. "She had it done for the same reasons a 12-year-old would."

Dr. Evans said that older people are more educated on what his profession can do for them.

He said about 20 per cent of his practice now involves adult patients. The percentage "used to be really small," he said.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: We have been hearing a lot about battered wives but it now appears that husbands suffer more domestic violence than their mates.

A study sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health revealed that men inflict more serious physical damage but the so-called weaker sex goes on the offensive much more frequently. Also, it was learned that the number of wives who kill their husbands is just about the same as vice versa. Of the 47 million married couples in the U.S., approximately 1.7 million have gone after each other with guns or knives.

California statistics show that one-third of all females who were murdered were done in by their husbands. Meanwhile, the other coast isn't doing much better. Boston (which is supposed to be the cradle of class and intellectualism) reported that in the Boston City Hospital, about 70 per cent of all assault victims cared for in the emergency rooms were spouses who had been attacked by a husband, a wife or a lover.

How does that speak for a "civilized" society? — Just Plain Facts Ma'm

Dear Just: Very poorly I'll bet the animal kingdom is less violent than man's. Can it be that what we call "progress" is actually a step in the other direction?

Dear Ann: What is happening to our country? This story is not made up. It appeared in Time magazine.

A 40-year-old woman admitted embezzling $84,958 from Boston's South Shore National Bank where she worked as a teller. She told the judge she felt "entitled" to the money because she used a lot of it to help right such "wrongs" as financial setbacks suffered by her brother who had seven children and her father whose pension evaporated when the milk company he worked for went bankrupt.

She also felt "entitled" to a $6,000 boat, a $12,000 mobile home, a vacation in New Hampshire (which she paid for with the depositor's money) and a $2,000 loss suffered at the racetrack.

The woman did not go to jail. The judge ordered her to work six hours a week in a Boston hospital for six months. The bank gets the boat and the mobile home and the problem of how to keep other bank employees from exercising THEIR feelings of "entitlement." What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — Justice Where Art Thou?

Dear Justice: I think the same as you. The whole thing smells like a barrel of lost herring.

Dear Ann: What can I do about neighbors and relatives who don't even wait for me to answer the doorbell? They just walk in. My husband likes to sit around in his undershorts, which is OK with me. These uninvited people seem horrified to find a man half-dressed in his own home.

How about supplying me with a jazzy answer to sling back at the intruders when they look down their noses at us? It happened twice last week. — Rosie

Dear Rosie: A lock on the door will work better than a "jazzy" answer. I suggest you try it before a stranger walks in and cleans you out.

CONFIDENTIAL: To should I go Out on a limb? Certainly! That's where the fruit is.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Sharing a quiet moment is a nice way to end the day.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Here's a helpful hint to all young moms with toddlers. You know how their footed pajamas wear out in the toes. I used to stitch up the holes, but then the feet in the pajamas would be too small.

So I found some leftover quilted cotton which I had used when making overalls for her. Just cut two pieces the shape of the bottom footies, but one-half inch larger to allow for the seam.

Turned 'jamas inside out and pinned on new footies, sewed on machine twice around to be sure they were sturdy, then turned right side out again.

Either leave on old footies if only a toe hole, or trim away badly torn ones if need be.

Reason for leaving old footies on, if possible, is they are non-slip. Reason for using quilted fabric is that it is very warm. — Kathy De Blasio

Dear Heloise: We have two house cats and, once in a great while, one sneaks out of the house. We worried about them getting lost and so came up with an idea.

We took flat elastic (1/2 inch wide), measured it two inches larger than the cat's necks, and sewed it together making a circle.

Then with an indelible ink pen, we wrote our name, address and phone number on it and slipped one over each cat's head.

This way our cats have identification collars and if they get caught on anything, the collar slips off easily. — Mrs. L. Moriarty

Attach the rickrack to each side of the window, leaving a slight sag in the middle.

The icicles will not slide together using the rickrack, as happens with string or ribbon, but will stay put during the entire Christmas holidays. (That is, if you don't have a cat!) — Helen Warner

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

I hope I'm not too late with my suggestion but every year Christmas seems to arrive the week after Thanksgiving! — Mrs. Frank Wood, Jr.

That's for sure... (it seems) — Heloise

Dear Heloise: If one lives in a house full of girls, there is bound to be a bathroom full of panty-hose, knee-hi's, etc.

So as not to confuse Jane's nylons with Cindy's, I went out and bought different color clothespin hooks, and now there is no arguing over which pair belongs to whom. — O.E.

Dear Heloise: A suggestion to make Christmas packages more attractive:

Use last year's or leftover Christmas cards and stick those little stars teachers use to reward their pupils for work well done, etc., around the card at intervals.

These can be bought in red, blue, gold and silver to match most any card or wrapping paper you are using. — Mrs. Clarence Sedive

Dear Heloise: I like fresh parsley and to make full use of a bunch I wash and drain it, then chop it finely on a cutting board, and put in ice cube trays then fill the tray with water.

These cubes can be stored in plastic bags when frozen and come in handy for gravies, casseroles, etc. — Amelia Middleton

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How common is tubal pregnancy? I understand the anatomy of it pretty well, but why does this happen in some women? Why doesn't the impregnated egg get to the uterus to grow normally? — L.K.

Tubal or ectopic pregnancy means implanting of the fertilized egg elsewhere than where it belongs, in the uterine cavity, usually in one of the Fallopian tubes. These two structures lead down from the ovaries to the uterus. It occurs in about one per cent of pregnancies, according to the latest figures.

The "rendezvous" of sperm and egg (fertilization) occurs in one of the tubes. With tubal pregnancy something has blocked the descent of the fertilized egg. It can be a scarring or narrowing of the tube because of an old or new infection. Or there may be irregularities in the walls of the tube, as a tiny pocket (diverticulum). Adhesions may be the problem.

Unfortunately, the egg continues to grow. Often, if it is not detected, fetal growth may continue until the wall of the tube ruptures. There will be severe pain and bleeding. Often it is not until this occurs that the woman is even aware she is pregnant. This is why tubal pregnancies are not usually diagnosed early.

The tube is often destroyed in the process and has to be removed. The other tube may remain intact and the woman may become pregnant again.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father, who is 82, suddenly developed numbness in his feet during a 1,000-mile bus trip. Can anything be done to relieve this? — Mrs. J.S.

I suspect he didn't do much moving around during the trip. That and the fact he probably had some artery hardening to begin with can account for the numbness. If he is otherwise in good health he should be able to restore circulation with exercise. Buerger's exercise is good for this: the alternate raising and lowering of the legs while in a lying position. If he finds it difficult you can help him. The legs should be raised and lowered about 15 times in a session (about three sessions a day). Walking is another good exercise. Long bus trips are not advised for the elderly, unless there is some opportunity to exercise during them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true a person with gout should not use aspirin? I am taking medicine for it. — J.R.

Depends on the gout medicine you are taking. One medicine used to lower uric acid levels in the blood is probenecid. Salicylates (aspirin) should not be used because they prevent the probenecid from working. Ask your physician. Other analgesics can be used besides aspirin.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — Most of the cast members of NBC's late lamented serial, "Somerset", which was cancelled last year, have moved into new roles on other serials. And fans who bewailed the absence of and beseeched for the return of one of "Somerset's" leading ladies, Jobeth Williams (who played Carrie Wheeler), can now tune in to "Guiding Light" to watch their idol portray Brandy Shel-loo.

With a name like that, the character will surely be a far cry from the sweet-voiced-but-much-menaced heroine Jobeth portrayed during her last serial outing. In fact, Brandy Shel-loo is Dr. Justin Marler's former flame. Justin's then-wife, Jackie, gave up their baby for adoption but told hubby that she'd miscarried after catching the parramours in a compromising hotel-room situation. Justin's now engaged to wed Dr. Sara McIntyre Werner, and Brandy's re-entry will undoubtedly cause a fiery uproar.

The shift from goddess heroine to scarlet woman is no hassle for the sublimely talented Jobeth. She was born in Texas where her father was a singer with the Houston Opera Company. She attended Brown University as an English and American Literature major. But, at age 19, Jobeth was chosen one of the top ten college women of the year by Glamour Magazine and signed for a stint with the Ford Modeling Agency.

Jobeth was stilled by the mechanical Barbie-doll world of high-fashion modeling and turned to theatrical training at the Trinity Square Repertory Company in Providence, R.I. She created a leading role in Michael Weller's much-acclaimed Broadway drama, "Moonchildren," before joining "Somerset."

"People in theater often put-down soap operas. But actors on soaps work very hard to make the story come to life. I have a lot of respect for them and for the work," says Jobeth, who's sole self-doubt is that she has a tendency to be "too thin." "Nothing seems to make me put on weight." But she assured she'll be a "heavy-weight" on "GL."

New Orleans-born Tom Ligon, who briefly appeared on the short-lived serial, "A World Apart", in the early 70s, has been cast by "The Young and the Restless" to portray Lucas, the Prentiss prodigal son who hadn't been heard from since he supposedly caused the fire that scarred mamma Vanessa. After his growing-up years as an "army brat" and graduation from Yale University, Ligon debuted in the off-Broadway rock musical, "Your Own Thing," which led to a featured role in Josh Logan's movie version of "Paint Your Wagon." Tom, who's married to actress Kathryn Dunfee Clarke, has also appeared in numerous nighttime TV series episodes, as well as the film, "Bang the Drum Slowly."

Contrary to previous reports, Ron and Nancy Becker (played by Dick DeCot and Cathy Carriacaburu) will be sticking around Genoa City on "The Young and the Restless" and will not be leaving in the immediate future. Cathy and her screen nemesis, Trish Stewart (who plays Chris Foster), recently returned from a promotional tour of Australia, where "Y & R" is a top-rated program.

NBC's "The Doctors" filmed segments of the show involving child-abuser Tom Carroll at a Manhattan center of Parents Anonymous. Actual sessions of the group's meetings were used to inform the serial audience of the consequences of this national tragedy as seen through the eyes of Tom and his wife, M.J. who are trying to face and solve Tom's problem.

Keith Charles is not only emoting on "As the World Turns" as Ralph Mitchell. He's also writing scripts for the show — but not those episodes on which he appears. Meanwhile, Keith's wife, Nancy Ford, is writing dialogue for "Guiding Light" and, according to Keith, "giving me excellent pointers on serial writing."

(Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow", 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

Turnovers Make Easy Holiday Dessert Treats

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
 Each year around holiday time we're inclined to recommend baking mince-meat or apple turnovers using our favorite cream cheese pastry. They can be frozen successfully and at our house they're relished. This year you might like to try a new filling — apple plus cranberries. The recipe:

- CRANAPPLE TURNOVERS
 1 cup butter, room temperature
 8 oz. package cream cheese, room temperature
 2 cups flour
 1 cup coarsely chopped fresh cranberries
 1 cup pared diced apple
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
 Extra butter
 Confectioners' sugar, if desired

In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon beat together the butter and cream cheese until blended; gradually blend in flour. Divide in half; place each half on a sheet of clear plastic wrap and shape into a flat round; wrap and chill.

In a small mixing bowl stir together the cranberries, apple, sugar and cinnamon. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one half of the dough so it's between 1/4 and 1/4 inch thick. Cut into 4-inch rounds. Put about a tablespoon of the fruit mixture off center on each round of dough; dot with extra butter. Fold over so edges meet; with fork tines press edges well to seal; prick top in a few places. Treat remaining half of the dough the same way.

Place turnovers, a few inches apart, on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until lightly browned — about 15 minutes. With a wide spatula, loosen the turnovers. Serve warm or reheat; dust with confectioners' sugar.
 Makes 2 1/2 to 3 dozen.

Ski Lodge Meals Economical, Tasty, Filling

By MARCIA O. BURG
Women's News Service
 Some weekend skiers settle for meals with basic qualities sought in ski sites — variety and speed, inexpensive accessibility. It's a tall order — turning out economical, tasty, filling, easy-to-prepare meals at a ski lodge. But with poultry and a few cans to bolster your efforts, you won't get snowed under.

SNOWBIRD CHOWDER — In a large covered skillet, saute in 3 tablespoons margarine; one sliced onion; a small green pepper cut in strips; one cup sliced celery. Add two cups cooked cubed poultry and cook 5 minutes.

Add two cups tomato juice; one cup chicken or (canned or dissolved bouillon cubes according to package); two 15-ounce cans of lasagne; and one 12-ounce can whole kernel corn. Season to taste with salt, Worcestershire sauce and basil. Mix well, cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Equip each mug with a raw celery stalk and long carrot stick for stirring and nibbling. And pass a bowl of sour pickles and cheese biscuits. Serves six.

For cheese-ease biscuits, buy a couple of tubes of refrigerated biscuit dough.

Poke a cube of Cheddar cheese into each biscuit and pinch it shut. Bake as directed on package. Or serve with Mideastern cheese turnovers you've picked up from an ethnic bakery or restaurant at home.

Here's another newfangled angle on the traditional chicken-biscuit combo:

UP-COUNTRY WHIRLS — In a sauce pan cook one-half cup chopped onion with two teaspoons lemon rind and one-eighth teaspoon thyme in four tablespoons margarine till tender. Open two 10-and-one-half-ounce cans mushroom or chicken gravy. Stir one-half cup gravy into the sauce pan mixture, reserve remainder. Add two cups finely chopped cooked chicken, salting to taste.

Using 2 cups packaged biscuit mix, prepare dough in a bowl. Combine mix with a sprinkle of caraway seed and one-half cup cold water. Stir till mixture forms a ball and leaves sides of bowl. Roll or pat out to form two 11-by-8-inch rectangles. Spread chicken mixture evenly on dough, then roll up, starting at narrow ends. Press seams closed. Slice each roll into six portions and place, cut-side, down on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 425 to 450 degrees 12 minutes or till browned and done.

Meanwhile, combine remaining gravy with 2 tablespoons chopped fresh or dried parsley. Heat, stirring, and tasting — perhaps adding a bit of wine. Pass gravy with chicken whirls. Yields six servings. Serve with chilled canned sauerkraut, fresh cole slaw (fish stores sometimes make it tasty and sell it fresh) or pineapple Waldorf salad; canned pineapple tidbits; cubed apple; walnuts; raisins; and diced celery, mixed with a little mayonnaise and a few drops of lemon juice.

Fellow skiers will wax rhapsodic over toasty puffed French bread snacks; a super-bowl of snappy marinated (in French or Italian dressing raw vegetables (carrots, cauliflower, zucchini, rutabaga, celery, cucumber, radishes, broccoli and such) and beer.

FRENCH PUFFS — Cut a long loaf of French bread into three-quarter-inch slices. Toast them on a baking sheet about 5 minutes at 350 degrees. Spread slices with canned deviled ham (a total of 2 cans, each 4 and one-half ounces), minced cooked chicken or about three-quarters pound lean ground beef. The ground beef must first be sauteed with a medium chopped onion, then drained and seasoned to taste with salt, pepper and oregano or chili powder.

In a bowl, blend 2 tablespoons flour; two-thirds cup beer; 2 slightly beaten eggs, and 2 cups (one-half pound) shredded Swiss cheese. Spread over the meat and sprinkle with pepper. Raise oven temperature to 450 degrees and bake 10 minutes, till puffed and brown. Yields about 20 puffs.

Ski lodge cookery doesn't have to be an uphill drag.

tunate enough to get a queen of clubs lead from West. He rose with dummy's ace and East dropped the king. A successful spade finesse enabled South to pick up East's king of trumps and now South was faced with a problem in the red suits. There was dummy with king-jack doubleton in each one. There was South with three hearts and two diamonds.

You readers can see that East holds the ace of diamonds and queen of hearts. If South guesses correctly in either suit he is home. Is South a 3-1 favorite or does he have a sure thing?

He has a sure thing assuming East is a reasonably normal bridge player. East has already shown up with king-deuce of spades and king of clubs. He also has 10 red cards. He would surely have opened the bidding with both red aces. Hence all South has to do is to lead toward both red kings. One will win his 10th trick.

Student Recites King Speech

BOYNTON, Okla. (AP) — Sherida Jones, whose effort to recite the "I Have A Dream" speech of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. touched off a school boycott several weeks ago, gave the speech Monday at a school talent program.

Miss Jones, a 17-year-old black senior at Boynton High School, did not place among the three winners at the program.

A predominantly black crowd of about 200 persons attended the program in this northeastern Oklahoma town of some 500 persons, about equally divided between black and white residents.

Some whites attended the program, and there were some white participants.

Last month she planned to give King's speech but school Superintendent Harold Cantwell discouraged her because he said the speech had "racial overtones" and he believed it could cause trouble.

Black students boycotted classes for a week until a biracial committee reached a solution under which everyone returned to class and Miss King would be given a chance to deliver the speech.

Weather Man Returns To Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Out of work a year because he joked about rape on camera, Tex Antoine has another television weather job lined up, beginning Jan. 9 on an independent local station, WNEW-TV.

The station said Monday that Antoine would join the 10 O'Clock News, which has not had a regular weatherman.

Antoine, who acknowledged that his crack about rape was in bad taste, had been a highly paid weatherman for 25 years. He made the ad lib comment on WABC-TV on Nov. 24, 1976.

The station suspended him, then declined without public explanation to renew his contract when it expired in March.

Wife Awaits Russian Husband

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-four-year-old Victor Besedin, a Russian whose marriage in Moscow to an American exchange student marked the start of an almost two-year separation, has a visa and is booked on a flight here from Moscow on Wednesday, officials said Monday.

Besedin had been expected Saturday. His wife, Elaine, said she and the couple's 1-year-old daughter whom Besedin has never seen waited in vain for him Saturday at Los Angeles International Airport.

"We came just in case," she said. "There could have been a mixup. He doesn't speak English so I thought there might be a problem."

Mrs. Besedin said the delay made her suspect that after more than a year of applications, interviews and telephone calls, the Soviet government still had not granted him an exit visa.

But word from the State Department, relayed through state Rep. Jerry Patterson of Santa Ana, was that the trip was still on and the delay probably was due to "some breakdown in communications."

Mrs. Besedin, who met and married her husband while studying at Moscow University, had to return to the United States in August 1976 when her visitor's visa expired.

Woman Attends Own Funeral

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Everyone had a good time at Helen Fisher's wake, including Helen Fisher.

"I call it my fun-eral party," said Mrs. Fisher, 80, who planned and enjoyed her own wake Sunday with 150 family members and friends. She turned 80 on Monday.

"I decided I'll have the funeral now and when I do (die), the family won't have to bother with it. I'll have a big party now while I can enjoy it," she said.

Mrs. Fisher was presented with both a regular birthday cake and another chocolate cake — in the shape of a coffin.

During the party Mrs. Fisher joked with her two sons, five grandchildren and friends while a three-piece band played.

When she dies, she said, no one will have to say, "she would have wanted it this way."

Haley Gets Liberty Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Haley, author of "Roots," has received the Anti-Defamation League's Torch of Liberty award.

Haley, keynote speaker at the league's annual awards dinner Sunday at the Century Plaza Hotel, was honored for "his great contribution to world literature," a spokesman for the league said.

Safety Board Plans Recalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Administration has announced recalls of 7,400 Mack trucks and 2,000 Mazda rotary-engine cars.

The agency said the trucks have some deficient rear axle welds which could lead to loss of control. Involved are Mack models equipped with SWTL56, SW56 and SW57 rear tandem wheels.

The Mazdas are being recalled because of a carburetor problem which could result in fuel leakage and an engine compartment fire. They are 1976 RX-3 Sedans, coupes and station wagons with manual transmissions.

Owners of both vehicles will receive notices from the manufacturers instructing them on how to obtain corrections for the problems.

ICC Examines License Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission is considering changing its rules to make it easier for someone to become a trucker.

Truckers need an ICC license to haul any of the many commodities regulated by the agency. Obtaining such a license can be a long and complex process, partly because of rules allowing current license holders to protest new applications if they feel the newcomer will compete with them.

The ICC is looking for suggestions on how to change the rules. Among the questions it wants answered are:

—Should a carrier whose authority conflicts in any respect with that sought by the applicant be permitted to protest the application?

—How should the commission define the extent of conflict before the competitor may be allowed to protest the application?

The commission has held hearings on the proposals and will consider statements from those sessions as well as written comments.

If you have something to say, write by Jan. 23 to the Secretary, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C., 20226.

Government Offers Firewood

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is again offering free firewood to people willing to chop it up and haul it home themselves.

The wood is available in national forests and usually consists of dead trees, tops from logging operations and other items. In some circumstances other trees may also be made available.

You must have a permit which will specify where to cut, which trees may be taken and how much may be removed.

You can get the permit from the U.S. Forest Service. The local office should be listed in your telephone directory under U.S. Government — Agriculture Department.

Warnings On Liquor Viewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department wants your opinion on whether alcoholic beverages should carry a health warning.

Officials are considering requiring labels to carry a warning that birth defects can result from consumption of alcohol by a pregnant woman.

Comments should be sent to the Regulations and Procedures Division, Room 6213, Regulatory Enforcement, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Washington, D.C., 20226.

New TV Star A 'Blue Blood'

By United Press International

Foremost among the carriage trade performers probably is Dina Merrill, heiress to the Post cereal fortune.

But others have escaped the sacrosanct environs of wealth and breeding. Not least among them is Robert Stack, scion of a pioneer California family.

Randolph Scott, Katharine Hepburn, Tallulah Bankhead, Franchot Tone and Sonny Tufts doubtless were considered black sheep by their blueblooded forebears for letting down the side.

Even Ivy League colleges have contributed precious few actors to the ranks.

Jack Lemmon is a Harvard man. James Franciscus and James Whitmore graced Yale. Jimmy Stewart and Jose Ferrer are Princetonians.

There is a new addition to the list. He is Parker Stevenson, the 25-year-old costar (with Shaun Cassidy) in "The Hardy Boys" television series.

Parker is the son and grandson of a Wall Street brokerage firm — originally Bostonians — that traces its lineage almost back to Plymouth Rock. His maternal grandfather was a Philadelphia lawyer named Meade, a direct descendant of the Union Army's General Meade.

Handsome, blue-eyed, blond Parker Stevenson is the epitome of physiological WASP virtues. There is an aristocratic air about him, quiet good manners and a prevailing calm.

If Oliver Barrett of Erich Segal's "Love Story" were to come alive he almost certainly would be Parker Stevenson.

His silk stocking background in Westchester is as flawless as his pedigree. Parker attended the Brooks School, one of New England's finest prep academies where he stroked on the crew.

Then, in jolly good time, he entered Princeton and once again distinguished himself as a member of an undefeated crew.

Parker, it would be hoped, was expected to join his father's brokerage firm and continue, unbroken, the family tradition.

But some unaccountable genetic defect led the handsome young man to study architecture. Worse, in seeking early financial independence he appeared in some 100 television commercials to pay his own way through college.

Tainted by TV, Parker came to Hollywood's attention and three movies — "A Separate Peace," "Our Time" and "Life-guard" — where he was thrown in with all manner of scoundrels, scoundrels, footpads and probably not a few felons.

"There was some culture shock," Parker said with agreeable good humor. "It's a totally different environment. The pressures and the people are altogether different from what I'd known before."

"I was always interested in architecture, but after I graduated from Princeton I took post-graduate work at New York University in business. So I was thinking about Wall Street, too.

"Acting was always secondary to my schooling. It was a means of saving a little money and enjoying myself aside from my studies.

"After the movies and commercials I turned down a couple of TV series offers."

One supposed, wrongly, that Parker was holding out for the classics, Chaucer perhaps, Shakespeare, at least. But "The Hardy Boys"?

"The 'Hardy Boys' books are classics of a kind," Parker said in his modulated voice. "There were about 60 in all. The first one was published in 1928. They've been revised and brought up to date through the years.

"I'd read a few of them myself. And when I was approached to star in the series I thought the books would make an interesting show."

"I also welcomed the opportunity to get a lot of experience as an actor, learn about the industry and to make some money. So here I am, enjoying it all."

Parker has an apartment in Manhattan and a temporary home above the Sunset Strip. If public reaction is any indication, Parker has the potential to become a star.

Small English Actor Awaits Film Acclaim

LONDON (UPI) — While other performers in "Star Wars" bask in acclaim, 3-foot-8 Kenny Baker waits for a glint of public recognition.

"I haven't had much recognition in the (United) States. Nobody knows me," admits Baker, an Englishman who delights audiences as robot Artoo Detoo (R2-D2) in the film.

"The American stars have cashed in on the film. When it comes to this country Dec. 27, I hope See Threeepio (C3PO — an android in the film) and myself will get recognition as actors," said Baker, described as "the smallest man in England."

The 43-year-old entertainer, who says there is "prejudice in this country about little people," gained some recognition in a two-man vaudeville act called "The Minutones," which he and another "small person," Jack Purvis, created in 1962.

Although he says he never has regretted being small, he admits it has been a drawback to his career.

"Audiences think we're cashing in on our size," he said. "They don't see that I can play the harmonica and vibraphone and do jokes. If someone taller does the same things, they think he's clever."

"During our cabaret act, it takes 10 minutes for the audience to get used to seeing us. They say, 'Look, a little man. Look at his little hands and little feet. I wonder if he's married?'"

"That's natural. But it takes time for them to get used to us, and they're missing the first gags," Baker said with disappointment.

Baker has been performing since he left school at 16 and joined a comedy show called "Lester's Midget Review." After that he landed parts in theater productions, ice shows and talent shows. His most unusual part, though, was as the robot in "Star Wars."

"I don't know how I got the part," said Baker. "My agent knew someone small was needed for the part."

In the movie, about a fantasy battle between the evil Galactic Empire which controls the galaxy and rebel forces led by Carrie Fisher and Mark Hamill, Baker was cast as a small robot which must deliver secret information to the rebels.

The producers fitted a heavy vacuum-cleaner-like contraption around Baker, who is not actually seen in the movie.

"It was murder," Baker says, crouching spread-legged to imitate the straining posture he assumed. "I could only go a few yards and I'd get flaky."

For six months of filming, including three weeks in the Tunisian desert, Baker received $6,500.

"I should have asked for a percentage. Blimey, I'd be rich," Baker said. "I thought the movie was good, but I'm very surprised it is a smash success."

Baker's personal success from the movie has been less than smashing so far. One London newspaper featured a story about him. An American television producer asked him to appear on a show in February. But that is the extent of it.

In fact, Baker recently received a letter from 20th Century-Fox, the film's distributor, asking him to pay for his tickets to the movie's premiere in London.

Murder Jury Gets Final Panelists

Attorneys selected three jurors Monday to complete the panel which will hear evidence in the Leroy Wayne Green capital murder trial, being conducted in Judge William R. Shaver's 140th Dist. Court.

The court is expected to consider a final pretrial defense motion this afternoon. Testimony in the case could begin later today, or Wednesday morning.

All three jurors picked Monday were women. In all, seven women and five men are on the panel. The group includes one black, a Mexican-American and 10 whites.

The last juror selected was Mrs. Gussie M. McClellan, 45, a housewife. Picked earlier Monday were Carolyn Flynn Jordan, 40, a teacher at Bozeman Elementary School, and Mrs. Regina Van Hoose, 19, a secretary at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital.

Green, 21, was indicted for capital murder as the result of the Jan. 12, 1975, shotgun slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Andrew McKay.

The bodies of McKay, 64, and his wife Odessa, 55, were discovered lying near a snow-covered dirt road north of Lubbock, about a mile from the couple's rural home.

Prosecutors allege the McKays were killed during a robbery, elevating the charge to capital murder. If Green is convicted of the capital offense, he will receive either life imprisonment or the death penalty, the only punishment options which would be open to the jury.

Jury selection had begun Nov. 28. During the course of selection, each side was allotted 15 peremptory challenges, or dismissals of prospective jurors for no stated reason.

The defense used 14 of its challenges during the six full days of individual juror examination. The state used 10.

Green is the third person to stand trial for capital murder as a result of the McKay killings. Two other defendants received life sentences after trials before juries here.

Witnesses Relate Shooting Details

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 A former Lubbock policeman Monday testified murder defendant Curtis Fair Jr. handed him a derringer and told him he had shot Simon Joe Ward.

"He said 'I shot him and I called you,'" former officer Lane Horger stated.

Fair, 45, is standing trial before a jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court in connection with the Jan. 19 shooting death of Ward, 29.

Police arrived to find Ward lying face down in the snow outside an apartment at 1605 Ave. D.

He had been shot once in the chest. Chief witnesses during the first day of testimony were Horger and a 25-year-old woman, who told assistant district attorney Jim Darnell she had lived with Ward for about four years in a common-law marriage.

Defense attorney Jack McClendon brought out on cross-examination that the woman—who admitted having been addicted to heroin and having worked as a prostitute—had feared her husband and solicited aid from the defendant.

Horger indicated he had responded to a call of a shooting in the early afternoon. He said he arrived to find Ward lying face down. He said he could not detect a pulse.

"Right after I arrived, Mr. Fair came around the corner of the apartment," Horger related.

The former officer said he asked Fair if he knew what had happened. "He pulled his right hand out of his pocket and he was holding a derringer in the right hand," Horger said.

Horger then testified Fair had stated he shot Ward.

On cross-examination, Horger said there was frequently trouble at the apartments where the incident occurred.

"You might say it is the quick and the dead at those apartments," McClendon asked. "Yes sir, more or less," the witness agreed.

Horger also told McClendon he had frequently heard Ward's name mentioned by other officers in connection with investigations.

The young woman who said she lived with Ward said she had been absent earlier during the day, but had returned to the apartments to look for Ward.

She said she saw him lying face down on the ground near Fair's apartment. Horger had earlier testified the woman was the first person he saw when he arrived in the area.

McClendon quickly asked the witness if she and Ward had been heroin addicts. She said they both were, and said she had engaged in prostitution for some time.

"Do you know what a pimp is—would you call Simon Ward your pimp?" McClendon asked at one point.

"I wouldn't call him my pimp," the woman said.

"Would you give him money?" McClendon persisted. "We'd help each other out," the witness stated.

She told McClendon it required much money to finance heroin for both her and Ward.

The witness told McClendon she had fought with Ward about two weeks prior to his death, and acknowledged she had approached Fair and asked him to try to keep Ward away from her.

"Did Curtis Fair hide you out at a motel?" McClendon queried. The woman said she had stayed at a motel for five or six days before returning to Ward.

She indicated she had effected reconciliation with him on a Friday night, two days before the fatal incident.

"Were you afraid of Simon Joe Ward?" McClendon asked. The witness said she was.

"Simon was capable of killing," she said later.

Don't settle for just any size car.

Cordoba
 for your comparison to the down-sized GM intermediates. You'll find the '78 Cordoba has significant advantages. Advantages that make '78 Cordoba a remarkable value. A longer wheel base (114.9") and more roominess (380.8 cu. ins.) than Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Olds Cutless Calais, Pontiac Grand Prix or Buick Regal. You'll find '78 Cordoba has more of what you're looking for with so many more features and options that are standard equipment.

Kentucky Tightens Grip On Cage Leadership

By The Associated Press
The University of Kentucky basketball team took last week off and the hiatus didn't hurt one bit. The Wildcats strengthened their hold on first place in The Associated Press College Basketball Poll.

Joe Hall's team, with a 1-0 record, received 23 of the 43 first-place votes and 808 points in the balloting by The AP panel of sports writers and broadcasters. That gave the Wildcats a 56-point margin over runner-up North Carolina, which trailed them by a slim 988-969 margin a week ago, when the 'Cats got 29 first-place votes.

The Tar Heels, who got 20 first-place votes a week ago, received 16 this time and wound up with 752 points. They spent last week beating Oregon State 90-64, Duke 79-66 and North Carolina State 87-82 to raise their record to 4-0.

Notre Dame, 3-0, which recorded victories over Baylor and Valparaiso, remained in third, again receiving a pair of first-place votes and amassing 651 points. Marquette, 2-0 by virtue of last week's triumphs over St. Thomas, Minn., and Western Michigan, held fourth with one first-place vote (the Warriors got two in last week's poll) and 508 points.

UCLA, Arkansas and Cincinnati each moved up one position as San Francisco tumbled from fifth to eighth. The Bruins, The AP Top Twenty 4-0, who beat Colorado and Santa Clara, got the remaining first-place vote and 439 points for fifth place.

The Razorbacks, 4-0, beat Mississippi State once and Hawaii twice and grabbed sixth with 395 points. Cincinnati, 3-0 after losing out North Carolina A&T and whipping Biscayne, is seventh with 273 points.

San Francisco's Dons started the week by beating Tennessee, but closed it with a loss to Arizona State, leaving them at 2-1 and dropping them to eighth with 209 points.

Coach Quest Continues

Texas Tech officials still expect a decision soon on a replacement for departed head football coach Steve Sloan, who resigned last Thursday to take the head coaching job at Mississippi.

Some names of candidates reportedly have been submitted to Tech administration officials, and Texas A&M offensive coordinator Tom Wilson and Tech offensive coordinator Rex Dockery are still thought to be leading candidates.

Reports have circulated that Wilson, a former Tech all-conference quarterback and assistant coach, will be announced as the new Raider coach.

Don Henry
...But Time Doesn't Stand Still

OUTSIDE THE TECH athletic department offices, parking spaces were at a semi-premium. There was a steady stream of visitors into the building, although activities within were normal.

Most of the visitors would stick their heads into an office—any office—and ask one question. Getting no answer, they would leave, to be replaced almost immediately by another questioner.

Outside, there was one parking spot which remained vacant throughout the day. On the curb facing that spot was the stenciled message: "Head Football Coach."

And the question which kept popping from lips of most visitors concerned that parking spot, and its disuse.

Inside, one employee stepped down the hall, not asking who but when. There was an urgency about his work, and the need for some assistance—or assistants—was imperative.

He was not so much involved in naming a coach as getting it done, so recruiting could resume. Now, it's a state of limbo.

There is that recruiting need, now that the '77 season has run its regular course. Recruiting... well, that's one of the reasons Ole Miss wanted Sloan and wanted him so quickly and why Sloan wanted some of his assistants on Southern Soil so quickly.

sonal as a phone call from that new head man.

INDICATIONS WERE THAT Tech was receiving an even better reception this fall than in the earlier years of Sloan's stay. The first year, he had only to go on the recommendations of the previous coaches, and he was not well known in these parts. The next year, his coaches were getting better acquainted and the crop improved.

Last year, after a co-championship year, recruiting was even better, well above average, and it could have been better this time around.

Prior to the hiring of Sloan, the interim recruiting load fell to Jess Stiles and John Conley, as the other members of Carlen's staff went to South Carolina with him. Now, some members of Sloan's staff are still here but playing a waiting game. They are working for Tech, but their situation is mainly in keeping in contact with athletes in their areas; they can not recruit for a head coach very well for an unknown head coach. They can only recruit for Tech and try to keep their size 10-Cs from being squeezed out of the doors.

Surely, none of the coaches wants to waste an official visit on a prospect, a visit which a new head coach can use so much more effectively in the new few weeks.

IF TECH HIRES this week—and officials have indicated they hoped to do so—it would give the new man a chance to get the jump on both Jim Carlen and Steve Sloan in relation to their first recruiting years. Both Sloan and Carlen came in about the first of the year, which left only about a month until SWC signing date.

This time, there is about two months of working time, but what is critical now is visitation dates. And the change has caught the Raiders in a bind. High school athletes have only six NCAA institutions they can visit, but with the break between semesters tied in with Christmas, there are not many dates to visit a campus before the first weekend in February.

Tech had a group of players committed to dates, and the ones nearest to this week may want a change to allow them to meet the new head man. And, for these young men to find another free weekend is not an easy thing.

Tech officials Monday sent telegrams to their prospects informing about the coaching change and assuring that a new coach will be contacting them as soon as he is hired and that Tech is still interested in them. But, even this is not as per-

BUT SCHEDULING VISITS is the prime matter. If an athlete decides to pass up a trip here completely, chances are slim to none of recruiting him. Thus, keeping in the picture is the problem.

Whoever lands the head spot here will be trying to stay on the phone to prospects in between phone calls talking to, interviewing and hiring assistants. Then these new assistants will hit the city long enough to grab a fistful of brochures, school catalogs and literature, and a road map and heading out to Perryton, Gainesville, Plano, Corpus Christi, and points in between.

Right now, however, the lines out of the athletic offices are cracking, as the few coaches on hand are keeping in touch.

Monday afternoon, a student drifted into the athletic office, asking for one of the coaches. His inquiry included some remark about some instructions.

"Around here," came the reply to him, "there're aren't any coaches coaching today."

All because of that vacant parking spot out front.

Dunbar, Ponies Vie; LC, CTK Host Foes

Name a gym—any gym—and chances are a Lubbock high school basketball team will be playing in it tonight.

In local boys' action, the Coronado Mustangs (2-5) will travel across town to meet highly touted Dunbar, while Estacado (5-1) entertains Class AAAA foe, Plainview. Both games are slated for 8 p.m. starts.

The Monterey Plainsmen (4-3) and Lubbock High will both journey to the high country to meet a pair of Amarillo schools starting at 8 p.m. Monterey, fresh off a win over Hereford, takes on Tascosa, while Lubbock High, a recent winner for the first time, vies with Caprock.

Only two local UIL fem squads will compete tonight as Estacado visits Morton and Lubbock High journeys to Levelland for 8 p.m. dates.

The visit to Levelland will be the first of two this week for once-beaten Lubbock High. The Westerners will also compete in the three-day Levelland Tournament which tips off Thursday.

Also in action will be both the boys and girls teams from Lubbock Christian and Christ the King. CTK plays host to Tahoka, while LCHS entertains Spade.

The girl's games start at 6:15 p.m., the boys at 8 p.m.

Southland Puts Unbeaten Cage Mark On Line

Southland, bidding to become the South Plains' surprise team of the year, puts its undefeated tag on the line against Patton Springs tonight in the feature game.

Southland's boys, picked by 8-B coaches to finish last in that loop's eight-team race, have already surpassed last season's victory output (4-24) in the first five games this year and won their own tournament over the weekend.

The Eagles have lost 49 consecutive district games over the past four years, but second-year coach Keith Gast appears to have Southland on the upswing.

Other games of interest across the area tonight finds Denver City risking its unbeaten status against defending Class AA state champ Morton, Roosevelt putting its perfect slate on the line against 4-AA pick Abernathy, Sands seeking to keep its ledger perfect against Meadow on the road, and Lamesa, which saw its unbeaten string ended in the Brownfield meet, hosting Odessa.

Elsewhere, games matching possible loop challengers find Silverton hosting Motley County, defending Class B girls champion Nazareth facing Springlake-Earth, which won the Anton Tournament last week and Roosevelt taking on Abernathy. Both those latter teams lost in the finals of tourneys last weekend.

Coronado Tops Amarillo College Tops Midland Dunbar Girls

Coronado, with three girls hitting at least 16 points, thrashed Dunbar in an intracity game at the DHS gym Monday night.

The win lifted CHS to 4-2 for the year, and Dunbar is still winless after six games.

Dona Boyd scored 20, Cathy Wyatt 18 and Mary Tevis 16 for Coronado, which grabbed a 15-8 first-period lead and broke away completely in the last half. Stella Zaragoza scored 15 points to pace Dunbar.

CHS won the junior varsity game 39-31, as Tammie Paden scored 12 points. Betty Lindsey was Dunbar's top point-producer with 7.

Tech Fems Host WTSU

The Texas Tech women, sporting a 10-2 record, will host West Texas State women in a basketball game at the women's gym tonight. Tipoff will be at 7 p.m.

Tech is coming off a 92-42 road win over McMurry.

D'Lynn Brown scored 13 points in leading the win over McMurry, and Karla Schutte scored 12 more for the Raiders.

Tonight's game will be the first of three this week for the Raiders. Coach Gay Benson's Raiders will play at Abilene Christian University Thursday night and host New Mexico State Saturday afternoon.

Anton Needs Two Overtimes

Avalanche-Journal News Services It took two overtimes, but the visiting Anton girls overcame Littlefield Monday night 47-42 to highlight a light schedule of high school games.

Nancy Herrin placed the winners with 21 points, and Wanda Williams netted 15 for Littlefield.

The Littlefield boys evened the count with an 80-49 win. Tommy Twitty scored 23 for Littlefield and D. Dulton scored 14 for Anton.

Amarillo Wins

At Canyon, Amarillo High whipped the host Eagles 71-52. Victor Mitchell hit 18 for the winners, and Randy Sluder had a like sum for Canyon. Teammate Monty Crawford scored 14. Canyon is now 5-4 the season.

Baltimore Stumbles 17-6

MIAMI (AP) — Miami rookie running back Leroy Harris raced 77 yards for a touchdown with 7:42 remaining in the final period as the Dolphins defeated Baltimore 17-6 Monday night and tied the Colts for the lead in the National Football League's American Conference East.

Harris, a 5-foot-10, 220-pound player from Arkansas State, broke open a tight game when he started a plunge up the middle, rolled to the outside and simply ran over Baltimore safety Lyle Blackwood, picked up blocking and rambled to the end zone.

Harris gained 140 yards on 17 carries.

The Dolphins held a tenuous 10-6 lead through much of the game on Bob Griese's 15-yard scoring pass to Andre Tillman in the second quarter and Garo Yepremian's 27-yard field goal in the opening period.

Monterey Rips Estacado Girls

Marilyn Beckner scored 23 points in leading the Monterey girls to a 63-18 intracity win over Estacado in the EHS gym Monday night. The win was Monterey's fifth against a single loss.

EHS fell to 4-3.

Miss Beckner had plenty of scoring help, as MHS leaped away to a 24-4 lead in the first period and left the court at halftime in charge 39-8. Margaret Grennell scored 18 for MHS. Joy Guyton netted 12 to lead EHS.

Monterey won the junior varsity game 44-25, with T. Hill scoring 12 points. S. Jackson had 17 for Estacado.

Baltimore scored on Toni Linhart field goals of 32 and 27 yards, both in the first period.

The victory left both Miami and Baltimore with 9-3 records, one game ahead of New England, 8-4. All three teams have only two games remaining, Miami could wrap up a division title by winning its next two games against New England and Buffalo.

The Dolphin defense succeeded in choking off the passing of Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones, who had stung Miami with four touchdowns when the Colts routed the Dolphins 45-28 in October. Jones wound up completing 18 of 34 passes for 189 yards while Griese hit 13 of 22 for 170 yards.

And when Jones was able to move the Colts near the goal line in the third period, Baltimore was deprived of a score by a fumble.

The Colts, trailing 10-6, had driven to the Dolphin 4 on passes by Jones of 9, 10 and 12 yards to runningback Lydell Mitchell and another 11 to Don McCauley. But as Colts back Roosevelt Leaks bulled toward the goal line, he was hit by Miami linebacker Bob Matheson at the 1 and fumbled. Dolphins cornerback Norris Thomas recovered in the end zone to stifle the scoring threat.

Longhorns Rip LSU 82-66

AUSTIN (UPI) — A 30-point output by Jim Krivacs led the Texas Longhorns to a crushing 82-66 victory Monday in an inter-sectional basketball game against LSU.

In the second half the Longhorns led by more than 30 points and at one point the Texas defense closed out the Tigers for nine straight minutes without a field goal. In the first half, Texas rolled to a 16-2 opening lead, allowing only one Tiger field goal in the first five minutes of play.

The Longhorns hit 56 percent from the field, 63 percent in the first half.

Krivacs was followed in the Longhorn scoring attack by Ron Baxter and John Moore, both of whom collected 17 points. For the Tigers, Durand Macklin got 19 points and Jordy Hultberg had 12.

The win moved Texas to a 3-1 mark—all at home—and LSU fell to 2-2.

TCU Fires Sports Publicist Garner

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jim Garner said Monday he was fired as sports information director for Texas Christian University.

Garner, who had held the TCU position for the past nine years, said "I feel this has been building for some time. Some of the money people who contribute heavily to the program didn't feel I was enough of a glad-hander, a winner and diner."

"That approach just didn't fit my lifestyle," Frank Wendegger, TCU athletic director, had no immediate comment on the Garner situation.

There Is Joy In Broncoland As Mighty Raiders Strike Out

DENVER (AP) — They were at 35,000 feet, somewhere over west Texas, listening to the end of the Raiders-Rams game piped over the plane's loudspeakers. Denver Broncos co-owner Gerald Phipps wept. Coach Red Miller bearded his players. The champagne flowed. "The Raiders are yesterday's champs," said Broncos strong safety Billy Thompson. "Today belongs to the Broncos."

After 17 years and 11 weeks as also-rans, the Denver Broncos were in the National Football League playoffs by virtue of their 24-14 win over Houston on Sunday and an NFL-leading 11-1 record. And they were champions of the Western Division of the NFL's American Football Conference, with a "thank you" to the Rams for Los Angeles' 20-14 win over the defending Super Bowl champion Raiders.

There was yelling and screaming in the aisle of the chartered plane. Equipment manager Larry Elliot raised his index finger. "Number one. Number one. Number one," the chant began. "Playoffs," Miller shouted, uttering the word he had carefully avoided all during the Broncos' amazing season. "I want to talk playoffs." The stewardesses stopped trying to serve meals. It turned into New Year's Eve, Christmas morning and St. Patrick's day in New York all rolled into one. Defensive lineman Paul Smith, the only player to make it through 10 seasons in Denver, stood in the middle of the aisle, uncorked a bottle of champagne and poured it over his head. "I have waited so long, and it feels so good," he shouted. Offensive tackle Andy Maurer's voice rose above the din: "I think we should hijack this plane and take it to Los Angeles and wait outside the locker room and thank the Rams personally."

They didn't. A few minutes later the pilot came on the public address system. He asked for quiet. There was massage: "This is Air Traffic Control Center in Denver, and gentlemen, we want to congratulate you... have a safe landing." They landed and there was mahyem. Police said there were 6,000 to 7,000 Broncos fanatics on hand, sporting orange T-shirts, "No. 1" banners and chants of "Playoff, playoff."

Police said that crime reports and accidents dropped off Sunday afternoon when the Broncos-Oilers game was on the tube. There were no real problems at the airport, either, just a lot of happy, shouting, noisy people. As usual there was no practice Monday. There never is, but the players were told they would have Tuesday off also before turning out Wednesday to begin work for San Diego next Sunday. Miller and his coaches were going over Sunday's films. Miller and Bronco executives meet to discuss playoff plans. The phones were ringing off the hook — everybody in the world wanted press credentials. "It's just really a great feeling," Miller had said earlier. "It's nice to work hard and have it rewarded like this and it's always more fun to do it for the first time."

RUNNING FOR THE SIX POINTS — Dallas Cowboys star rookie running back Tony Dorsett (33) takes the ball from quarterback Roger Staubach during last Sunday's game with the Philadelphia Eagles and goes in for six points from the two-yard line. Dorsett's running posted the third most prolific day by a rookie running back in NFL history.

Dorsett Re-Evaluates Goals Super Bowl Now Number 1

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett has dropped his goal from 1,500 yards to 1,000 yards in his rookie season in the National Football League, but the flashy Heisman Trophy winner says most of all he would like to play in the Super Bowl. Dorsett was on a national championship team at Pittsburgh and the winning ways of the Dallas Cowboys are becoming infectious with the most explosive back the Tom Landry-coached club has ever owned. "Sure, I'm aware of the yards I get," says Dorsett. "You look up at the scoreboard and if you can read you know how many yards you've got."

Dorsett posted the third most prolific day by a rookie running back in NFL history, gaining 206 yards in a National Conference Eastern Division clinching 24-14 victory over Philadelphia Sunday. "If I do get 1,000 yards, fine and well," says collegiate football's leading all-time ground gainer. "If I don't and we are winning, I can't complain." Dorsett, who has been averaging 5.6 yards per carry, boasted in training camp he would get 1,500 yards. But an injury kept him from learning the intricacies of Landry's offense. Then there was 13-year veteran Preston Pearson to beat out. Now, Dorsett needs just 165 yards in Dallas' final regular season games against San Francisco and Denver. Actually, Dorsett could get his 1,500 yards if you want to count post-season play since Dallas is assured at least a first round playoff berth Dec. 26 in Texas Stadium. Newsmen swarmed Dorsett's locker Sunday after his spectacular day against the Eagles which included an 84-yard touchdown run. After most queries were exhausted someone asked Dorsett, "Don't you ever get tired of answering these questions?" He quickly replied "Are you tired of asking those questions? I don't mind. It means I'm doing something."

Steelers Facing Key Tilt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — As much as Coach Chuck Noll wants to ignore it, winning won't be everything when his Pittsburgh Steelers meet the Cincinnati Bengals Saturday. "The only interest we have is in winning... we want to dwell on what we have to get done and not have our minds divided," Noll said Monday in an authoritative tone. Whatever Noll says, simple arithmetic and the not-so-simple National Football league playoff system say that the Steelers can get by if they just keep it close Saturday. The Steelers, 8-4, lead the American Conference-Central, followed by the Bengals, 7-5. If Cincinnati wins at home Saturday, both teams will be 8-5. But the Steelers already own a 20-14 victory over the Bengals. And if the two teams finish with the same records and split their headon meetings, the tie will be broken by points scored against one another. So the Bengals have to win by seven points on better Saturday. If they don't, the Steelers can lose and still clinch the title the final week by beating San Diego. So what happens Saturday if the Steelers are trailing by seven points late in the game. Do they try for a touchdown, or do they settle for a field goal to merely reduce the margin? "I don't know what we'd do at this stage," said Noll. "That's a bridge you cross when you come to it."

Devine Feels Notre Dame Still Has Shot At Title

DALLAS (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine said Monday in a telephone hookup with local media that he feels the Fighting Irish would be a "contender" for the national title if they defeat No. 1 ranked Texas Jan. 2 in the Cotton Bowl Classic. "I don't want to get into a battle of words with other coaches," said the coach of the nation's fifth-ranked team which finished with just one loss. "There are a lot of good teams but the best team in the United States is Texas. And Texas beat Oklahoma and Arkansas. "We're just happy to take a shot at the champ."

great player. That puts him in the category of just under Sainthood. "It should be a great game," said Devine. "The Texas people are just as dedicated as we are and we're just as dedicated as they are. "It should be one of the all-time great bowl games." Devine said he was particularly excited about the trip because "I've never coached in the Cotton Bowl before." Notre Dame will come to Dallas on Dec. 23. "We'll have Christmas in Dallas and enjoy it much the way we did the Gator Bowl last year," said Devine. "We're planning a picture day on the morning of the 24th."

Devine, talking from a telephone in St. Louis, Mo., where he was recruiting, told the Dallas-Fort Worth Media Association that "Texas is No. 1 and our job is to do the best we can. Then we'll let the polls take care of themselves."

Unbeaten Texas doesn't plan to come to Dallas until Dec. 30. It will be the third time this season that the Longhorns will play in the Cotton Bowl. Regular season games against Oklahoma and Southern Methodist were played in the 72,000 seat saucer. Devine said he wasn't certain whether Notre Dame would be wearing its lucky green outfit that the Fighting Irish wore in the upset of Southern California. "We'll wear whatever color the Cotton Bowl officials want us to wear but I suspect it will be white for better contrast on black and white television," said Devine. "We would prefer to wear green."

Paducah, Haskell Share Elite Honors

PADUCAH (Special) — Paducah and loop champion Haskell each filled six spots on the 23-man 7-A All-District team.

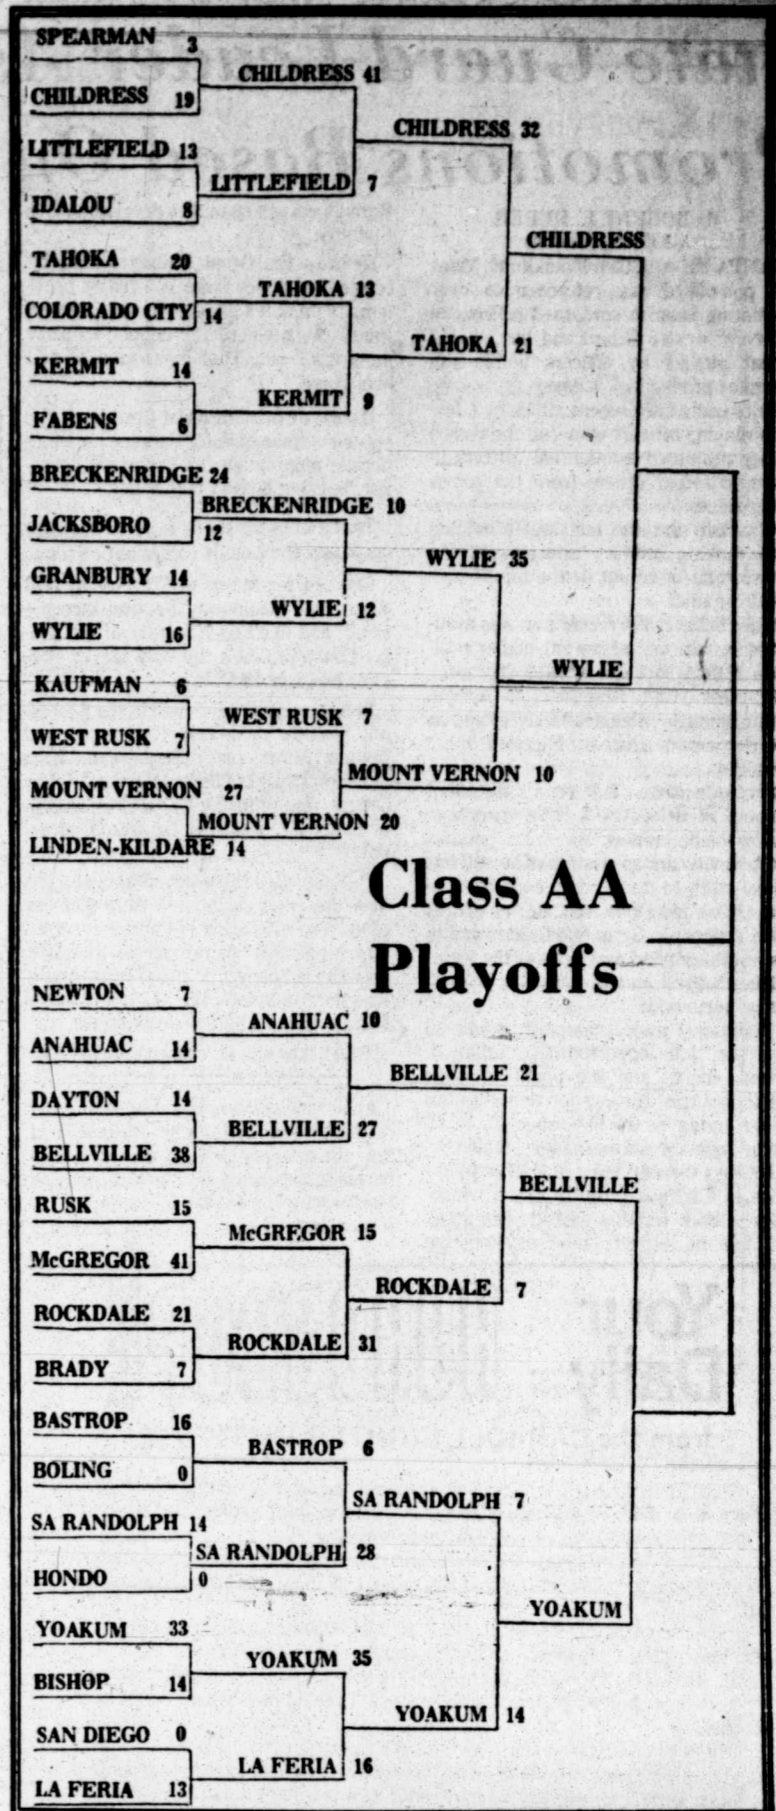

"We'll wear whatever color the Cotton Bowl officials want us to wear but I suspect it will be white for better contrast on black and white television," said Devine. "We would prefer to wear green."

Paducah's picks were quarterback Lee Jack Tippen, end-linebacker Stewart Burns, tackle Terry Luedtke, defensive end Billy Reketa and secondaryman Welton Jones.

THE TEAMS
OFFENSE — C — Chris Colbert (6-0, 170, Sr., Haskell), G — Ronnie Phillips (5-11, 180, Jr., Munday), Randle Russell (5-10, 180, Sr., Crowell), T — Terry Luedtke (6-1, 1 Sr., Paducah), Mark Clonts (6-1, 175, Sr., Knox City), E — Dwayne Diahman (6-5, 210, Jr., Crowell), Stewart Burns (6-3, 204, Sr., Paducah), WR — Bruce Enriquez (5-10, 140, Sr., Haskell), RBs — Vonnie Hise (5-11, 215, Jr., Haskell), Jimmy Browning (5-11, 170, Sr., Haskell), C. B. Sparkman (5-8, 135, Sr., Crowell), QB — Lee Jack Tippen (5-8, 170, Sr., Paducah), PUNTER — Rex Pittman, Haskell.

DEFENSE — LINEMEN — Oran Carroll (6-0, 200, Sr., Crowell), Tommy Mangus (6-0, 175, Jr., Knox City), E — Reketa, Larry Welch (6-0, 175, Jr., Munday), LBs — Hise, Burns, Phillips, SECONDARY — Welton Jones (5-8, 140, Sr., Paducah), Tony Myers (5-8, 140, Sr., Munday), Robert Rodriguez (5-10, 130, Jr., Haskell), Tommy Mayberry (6-0, 160, Sr., Hamlin). The only two unanimous choices were Haskell's Vonnie Hise on offense and Munday's Ronnie Phillips on defense.

Cardinal Tight End Plans To Retire

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tight end Jackie Smith, a 15-year veteran with the St. Louis Cardinals, announced Monday that he will retire from pro football at the end of this season. Smith, 37, originally a 10th-round draft choice out of Northwest Louisiana State University in 1963, holds the Cardinal record for most career catches, 480, and most receiving yards, 7,918. "There is a significant degree of sadness when a person of Jackie Smith's caliber leaves your organization," said Bill Bidwell, the Cardinals' managing general partner. "Jackie is a class individual and the franchise will miss him." Smith's 40 career touchdown receptions are also a Cardinals record.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. As a young investor I would like to know whether the bond market is "less risky" than the stock market.

A. If we restrict ourselves to a discussion of good to high quality securities, the bond market is less "risky" than the stock market.

A bond is a mortgage on some property. If it is a good bond, it will pay you the stated interest every six months and pay off the face value of the bond at maturity (or perhaps a premium price if it is retired before maturity). And that's it. Its price may change daily but, generally, within narrow limits since the price adjusts mainly to changing interest rates for money.

Since interest on a bond is paid before any earnings are computed on the common shares, the bond is less vulnerable to corporate changes than the common stock which can move widely.

However, that's not the full story. The risk in a bond — entirely apart from any risk in devaluation of the dollar's purchasing power, which seems to be a "built-in" risk in our economic system. Since bonds pay fixed interest — say $85 per $1,000 face value a year — and are paid off in dollars which seem to steadily lose purchasing power, a bondholder must be prepared to accept the risk of getting back cheaper dollars. This is true of all investments expressed in terms of dollars.

The argument for assuming the greater risk of stocks is that while they, too, have these risks, they also offer a hope of increased dividends and increased market price...I said "a hope."

There is no hiding place down here.

Q. I enclose a prospectus for an offering of fixed income securities by a group of brokerage firms. It seems to meet my objective of maximum income. I plan to retire next year at 62. I also have savings accounts, municipal bonds and some church bonds. Would you consider this new offering reasonable for my purposes?

A. There has been a steady rise in the number of these investment made available by brokerage and banking houses. In most cases — including your — the sponsors are of excellent reputation and I have no qualms about the fund.

All I would point out is: 1) you are retiring at a young age — 62; 2) all your present investment are already in fixed income savings or bonds. That raises the question: Shouldn't you have some equities in the hope of dividend increases over the years with which to meet rising living cost?

MR. SHULSKY welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Officers Say Garcia Present At Murder Site

Police testified Monday they arrived at an E. 50th Street business to find Demetrio G. Garcia being detained by fellow employees.

Garcia, 27, is standing trial in Judge Deniz Bevers' 72nd Dist. Court for the alleged murder of Charles Whately, 22.

Whately was shot on the premises of the business, reportedly during an office Christmas party on Dec. 21, 1974.

"Garcia was being restrained by two other fellows in the shop reception area," Officer Bill Stallings testified.

Stallings had related that he arrived at the wedding business where the shooting reportedly took place about 2:30 a.m.

He said the shop foreman was holding a weapon that appeared to contain several live shells and one spent hull.

According to Stallings, Whately was lying in an office area.

"Two fellow workers had hold of Mr. Garcia's arms," Stallings said.

Police Det. Joe Nevarez said Whately appeared to have been shot in the abdomen.

He said he tried unsuccessfully to talk to the wounded man. "He seemed conscious, but just moaned and groaned," Nevarez said.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Sam Oatman also elicited testimony from a physician, who indicated that Whately died at a local hospital after surgery, approximately 12 hours after being shot.

Testimony in the case was to resume at 9 a.m. today.

City Man Assessed Six-Year Jail Term

A man who reportedly called police to a local club in order to confess to a robbery has been assessed a six-year prison term.

Pleading guilty to robbery in Judge John McFall's 237th Dist. Court was Marshall Leon Stephens, 31.

Stephens pleaded guilty to the Aug. 29, 1976, robbery of Winchell's Donut House at 3901 Ave. Q.

Police were unable to find a suspect in the heist for approximately three months. But they reportedly received a telephone call from Stephens in November, 1976, asking them to meet him at a local club.

Stephens reportedly stressed during the meeting that while newspaper accounts had said $34 was taken in the robbery, he had actually gotten away with $41.
