Meany called foreign trade "a guerrilla warfare of economics" and said the United States "is being ambushed."

He noted that imports of manufactured goods increased by $2 billion in the first six months of 1977, more than the rise of "The answer is fair trade - do unto others as they do unto us - barrier for barrier, closed door," he continued. "The United States must make it clear to every other nation of the world: The use of tariff or non-tariff barriers to bar U.S. products will result in swift, retaliatory action by this government."

Protectionist Move

During their four-day meeting, held every two years, the 1,200 convention delegates representing 13.5 million AFL-CIO members are expected to adopt a resolution urging Congress to pass legislation next year patterned after the highly prot-ectionist Burke-Hartke Bill which was defeated by free trade forces in 1974.

Meany said the new bill should set new limits on imports require swift enforcement of anti-dumping laws, and cancel tax breaks for American corporations that export jobs overseas.

While sentiment appear to be growing in Congress for such legislation, the AFL-CIO proposal is likely to set organized labor on a collision course with the administration, which so far has been pushing for voluntary trade agreements.

Praises Carter Meany noted that while the AFL-CIO has had its differences with the adminstration, he avoided criticism of the president and praised him for "positive leadership" in proposing new legislation dealing with illegal aliens, Social Security financing, the minimum wage and revision in the labor laws to make union organiz-

But Meany said Carter's commitment to the Humphrey-Hawkins full employ-ment bill must be backed with a bigger public works program and lower home mortgage interest rates to stimulate housing construction. He said putting people to work is a more effective way of reducing unemployment than business

"Right To Job" "Anything less is unacceptable because not only do the American people have a right to a job, they also have a human right to expect their government to fulfill its promises," he said.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill sets as a goal, the reduction of the unemployment rate, currently 6.9 percent, to 4 percent by 1983 but authorizes no programs to achieve that goal.

Although unemployment and imports are the major theme of the convention. the delegates also will deal with organizing problems and declining union membership rolls.

The AFL-CIO's ranks have been depleted 500,000 since 1975, despite a growing labor force. Its treasury is projected to have a $475,000 deficit this year, and the delegates will be asked to increase per capita monthly dues by 3 cents to a total of 16 cents, enough to raise another $4.7 million annually.

Warmup Due Saturday After Today's Chiller

By CANDY SAGON Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE YO-YO syndrome continues for South Plains weather, with biting cold forecast for today followed by warmer weather Saturday.

Cold fronts shuffling in and out of the area have caused South Plains residents to bundle up against 40-degree weather one day, and then shed their winter wraps the next as the mercury climbed to

A cold front which passed through Lubbock Thursday dropped the city's 70-de-gree weather at noon to 62 by 1 p.m. with the steadily falling mercury reaching a chilly 34 degrees by 8 p.m.

Freeze Expected Tonight
The cold weather should continue through today, the National Weather Service says, with the high today barely reaching 40 under mostly clear and sunny skies. The low tonight should plunge below freezing to the upper teens. Winds today will be southwesterly 20 to 30 mph.

Highs Saturday are expected to be in the 50s under clear skies with no precipitation forecast.

The NWS says the weather for the sem-1-final football playoff in Class AAAA between Plano High School and Odessa-Permian at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Jones Stadium should have fans enjoying warmer although windier weather. Winds Saturday are expected to reach 20 to 30 mph, with temperatures in the 50s.

The cold front which moved rapidly across Texas Thursday afternoon brought strong gusty winds blowing northerly at 15 to 25 mph and gusting to near 40.

Temperatures Drop Sharply At 4 p.m. temperatures behind the front had dropped sharply, while readings south of the front remained in the upper 70s to 80s. The extremes were 28 degrees at Dalhart and 86 at Cotulla, Laredo and Alice.

Record high temperatures were set at both Midland and San Angelo, with Midland's reading of 83 at 3:45 p.m. topping the 1958 record of 79, and San Angelo's reading of 85 also breaking a 1958 record

Airport Board Proposes Two-Level Parking Site

Avalanche-Journal Staff

FINDING a parking space at Lubbock International Airport may be less of a chore by summer if the Lubbock City Council goes along with a request by the Lubbock Airport Board for help in financing a $2.4 million parking building. Board members met with the council at a noon work session Thursday during which the council was updated on proposed airport capital improvement pro-

By far the largest proposed project is the construction of a parking building at the facility at an estimated cost of $2,-

The two level structure, which would provide parking for 670 cars, would be built to the southeast of the terminal building and would necessitate rerouting the current airport entrance road.

The airport now has 709 parking spaces available to the public, with space for 350 cars in an overflow lot which formerly was a runway.

Dr. Lloyd Garland, airport board chairman, told the council all lots were more than full during the Thanksgiving weekend and predicted the Christmas holiday would produce an even larger parking

Bennett Reaves, of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., an engineering, planning and architectural firm, told council members the airport did not have the necessary cash flow to back a bond issue for the parking building. Reaves said last year's cash flow of $36,000 fell short of the needed "$220,000 to do a bond of this si

Councilman Bill McAllister agreed that "parking is a real priority" at the airport and the council asked City Finance Director Sterling Miller to present differ-ent methods of financing the parking at the next council meeting.

Conflicting Goals Set For Schools

Avalanche-Journal Staff

WHILE one department of the federal government tries to break up concentrations of low-income minority students, another office has increased funding for a public school program that almost requires keeping such children together.
The Lubbock Independent School District announced Thursday that four more local elementary schools have been designated for additional teachers and instructional services under the district's federally funded Title I program.

The schools are Arnett, 701 E. Queens St.; Dupre, 2008 Ave. T; Hunt, 415 N. Ivory Ave.; and Wright, 1302 Adrian St.

Provides Special Help Title I, a component of the U.S. Ele-mentary and Secondary Education Act, provides special help to "educationally disadvantaged" children residing in low-income neighborhoods. With the addition of the four schools, as approved by the Texas Education Agency after clearance from the U.S. Office of Education, 18 of the city's 37 public ele-mentaries now are included in the Title I

Lubbock school officials, who have developed one of the most successful Title I programs in the state, welcomed expan-

They said the expansion will enable the school system to direct intensive academic services to many more students who otherwise might fall further behind in their schoolwork.

But there is a note of irony in the news: Lubbock's sound Title I program could be in jeopardy with the U.S. Justice Department's push for a comprehensive, systemwide school desegregation plan

The Justice Department has asked U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward to order school officials to eliminate predominantly one-race elementary and secondary schools, even though they are re-flections of their neighborhood composi-tions, by the start of the next school year.

Dispersals Likely
Such a proposal probably would involve dispersing many Title I students, who tend to be black or Mexican-American,

throughout the city's public schools.

In respect to the Title I program, there are some big problems with that, said Leslie Cross, assistant director of the school district's special projects.

He said Title I schools are so designated because they have large conce See SCHOOLS Page 14

ession Slated For Social Security Bill

the Social Security bill worked Thursday on ways to scale down payroll tax increases needed to keep the retirement system solvent, hoping to push the longstalled legislation through Congress before it adjourns.

The House-Senate conference committee charged with reconciling different versions passed by the two chambers was to-meet Friday with a goal of completing its work in one long session. Assuming success. House leaders scheduled a vote

Groundwork was laid at informal sessions that began Wednesday with meeting between the two conference chiefs, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., and Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., and continued among conferees Thursday.

Meanwhile, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said President Carter "philosophical" about delays, though he still wants Congress to finish work on Social Security before the end of

One element of a possible agreement would avoid any payroll tax increase in 1968, except the one required by existing law. Even if Congress does nothing, the maximum tax paid by a worker and his employer will increase from this year's $965.25 to $1,070.85 next year. There would be some increase for all workers. The Senate bill would make no change in 1978. The House bill, however, would raise the maximum to $1,203.95 by taxing a larger portion of higher pay. House conferees were considering accepting the Senate version.

For later years, the Senate bill would raise taxes more steeply on the employer than on the employee. The House version would apply the increasing taxes equally on both, following precedent. There were reports the Senate might yield to the House on this principle.

To scale down the stiff tax increases that would be required by either bill, some provisions that would increase the payout to various classes of beneficiaries would have to be dropped or modified. Both bills would increase the amount retired persons might earn without having benefits reduced. The House voted to eliminate the limit entirely by 1982, at a cost of $3 billion a year. Agreement was being sought on a provision closer to the less expensive Senate one.

a present provision that cuts off the benefit of a surviving spouse in case of remarriage. Another measure being considered would change the requirements for a divorcee to obtain benefits based on the divorced spouse's earnings. Present law specifies that the marriage must have lasted 20 years. The House bill would reduce the time to five.

The burst of activity behind the bill. which had been considered likely to go over until next year, apparently reflected concern both by President Carter's ad-

Energy Conferees Eyeing Postponement

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate energy conferees, still unable to agree among themselves on whether to lift price controls from natural gas, voted Thursday not to abandon the quest for a compro-

Leaders said that if no agreement can be reached by next week, finishing work on President Carter's energy program may be put off until next year

Even with such an agreement, it now appears doubtful that there will be final House and Senate action on energy legislation until January

By a 15 to 3 vote, Senate negotiators agreed that they want a bill and would make an earnest effort to resolve their differences and break the impasse.

Senate conferees are deadlocked, nine to nine, between Carter's proposal to keep federal price controls on natural gas and Senate-passed legislation to remove

Some conference members criticized the gesture as meaningless but Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., claimed it showed that members on both sides of the issue "are willing to give something ... I think the vote reflects a mood that our people want a bill.'

After the vote, the conference panel recessed until Monday. However, senators planned to keep meeting in closed-door sessions in hopes of framing a gas pricing proposal they could then offer to House

The panel has been unable to negotiate the issue as a unit because of the ninenine split on the Senate side.

"I think we're going to see some movement by the first of next week," said conference committee Chairman Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va.

'If there's no agreement by next week, we'll probably recess until January,' Johnston said.

And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said it will be "a serious problem" trying to get action on the energy legislation this year if the gas pricing issue is not resolved by next Friday.

Progress on the energy bill also is bogged down in a dispute over energy taxes proposed by President Carter, including a crude oil tax. However, a second conference committee handling tax issues did reach tentative agreement Wednesday on Carter's proposal for a tax on fuel-wasting automobiles.

'We're a long way from any resolution" of the natural gas pricing question, Jackson said

However, he said, at least senators from the two opposing camps are now ready to sit down together to try to work something out.

You can't function without patience and we just have to waste a certain amount of time," he said, defending the slowness of progress on a compromise

The motion approved by the Senate negotiators said simply: "It is the sense of the Senate conferees that we work to obtain a bill on natural gas by resolving our differences.

Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Ho-rard Metzenbaum. D-Ohio, who led an Till 8 PM ward Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who led an unsuccessful, eight-day filibuster on the Senate floor against gas deregulation, voted against the motion, along with Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H

"This motion is as devastating and as dangerous as voting for deregulaton itself at this point," Abourezk claimed.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices rose 0.7 percent in November as another big jump in farm prices more than offset the first decline of lumber and wood prices in six months, the government reported Thursday.

The November increase, which compared with a rise of 0.8 percent in October, reflected a quickening in the pace of inflation at the wholesale level in recent months.

Wholesale price hikes eventually result in higher prices to the consumer. The Labor Department said the 12-month increase in wholesale prices for the period ending in November was 6.1 percent, just about what was predicted a year ago.

Administration economists are hopeful that the 6 percent inflation trend will hold for 1978 as well. However, the wholesale price trend of the past two months would translate into a 9 percent annual rate of increase.

At the White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell said the wholesale price report "is on the whole encouraging.

Arguing that the causes of the increase provide "reasons for some optimism," he noted farm prices fell for five months and that consumer prices for food have not risen as much as wholesale prices of agriculture products.

Powell said some increase in agriculture prices "is probably desirable in order to maintain a healthy farm econo-

"It seems fairly clear that he has detached himself from the world around him because no one in it has ever met any of his needs for love," said a psychiatric report written in the same period. "Lee spent all of his time looking at television and reading various magazines He denied that he really felt lonely He feels almost as if there is a veil between him and other people through which they cannot reach him, but he prefers this veil to remain intact."

His mother, widowed while she was pregnant with Lee, was behind this veil, too. "He just felt his mother 'never gave a damn' for him. He always felt like a burden that she had to tolerate," the psychiatric report continued.

Though the psychiatrists felt Lee at 13 showed little interest in anything, he apparently became intrigued in his midteens with socialism and communism.

The records show he wrote to socialist groups to request literature about this time. At 17, Oswald enlisted in the Marines, and men who served with him told the FBI that he often spoke of his communist sympathies.

Oswald's interest in Russia prompted one fellow Marine to begin calling him "Oswaldskovich." The nickname caught on, and Oswald said he wanted to be called that.

Oswald went to Moscow and renounced his citizenship in 1959. He lived in the Soviet Union for three years, then returned to the United States with his Russianborn wife, Marina.

His mother, Marguerite Oswald, has insisted that her son was innocent of killing Kennedy and was framed for the crime. In a telephone interview Thursday from her home in Fort Worth, Texas, she said the disclosures in the FBI files support her claim.

Referring to documents showing that Hoover concluded two hours after Kennedy's death that Oswald was the assassin, Mrs. Oswald said the decision was "too fast" to be anything but a frame-up.

The early study of the FBI files turned up no suggestion that the FBI ever suspectest soon after the shooting, the investigation of Oswald's arrest soon after the shooting, the investigation focused on him and on the possibility that he had had help.

Survey Points Out Increase In National Money Supply

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply grew by $1.8 billion in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday but analysts said the sharp rise was not surprising.

While the weekly increase was expected, it added to the long-term trend of the supply of money increasing at a rate above that sought by the Federal Reserve, the nation's chief monetary authority.

The basic measure of money supply, called M1, is watched closely because it often indicates whether the Federal Reserve will tighten credit in an effort to control the growth of money as an anti-inflation move.

"The week's increase was in line with the market's expectations. Essentially it doesn't have any implications," said David Jones, an economist with the Wall Street firm of Aubrey G. Lanston Co.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York said Thursday that M1, currency in circulation plus checking account funds, rose $1.8 billion to a seasonally adjusted average of $333.2 billion for the week ending Nov. 30.

The broader measure of money, M2, which is all cash plus all private commercial bank accounts except those represented by certificates, increased $2 billion to an average of $803.8 billion during the week.

Because the money supply represents cash consumers can spend, a large increase in supply can fuel inflation. To counter that, the Fed makes credit less available, which causes interest rates to climb and tends to encourage stock investors to move their money out of the market.

For the latest four weeks, M1 averaged $333.1 Billion, a 6.0 percent rate of gain from 13 Weeks ago. M2 averaged $802.6 billion in the four weeks, a 7.5 percent rate of increase in the statistical quarter.

Commercial and industrial loans at major New york City banks rose $464 million in the week ended Wednesday, the New York Reserve Bank reported. That compared with a revised rise of $292 million the previous week and a gain of $56 million in the week a year ago.

The reserve bank estimated the nation's commercial banks averaged net borrowed reserves of $482 million in the week ended Wednesday. That compared with net borrowed reserves of $542 million the previous week.

Member bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve system averaged $513 million in the week, down from $999 million the week before

In the Fed's report on key interest rates for the week, federal funds averaged 6.51 percent, down from 6.55 percent the previous week. Federal funds are the uncommitted reserves that banks lend to each other. The three-month Treasury bill rate averaged 6.05 percent for the week up from 6.04 percent.

The average rate on 90-to-119 day dealer-placed commercial paper climbed to 6.54 percent for the statement week from 6.53 percent a week earlier.

On Scandal's Flip Side: Liberty

IT WAS SHOCK enough to learn that the nation's G-men have not always behaved like the superheroes a couple of generations of Americans grew up believing they were.

Now, those other paragons of law enforcement, the grave, virtuous and steadfast Royal Canadian Mounted Police, have been knocked off their pedestal by a series of revelations and allegations similar to those which at least temporarily stained the image of the FBI.

Canada's solicitor general, Francis Fox, revealed to the House of Commons that the Mounties (the Canadian equivalent of the FBI) have been illegally opening and copying mail since 1954.

BUT WORSE than that, senior police officials repeatedly lied to him in denying the mail tampering charge during an inquiry into other alleged unlawful activities by the

Among those activities is the charge that the Mounties broke into the headquarters (sound familiar?) of the separatist Parti Quebecois last year

The Mounties are also accused of burning down a barn near Montreal to prevent a meeting of Quebec terrorists and members of the American Black Panther party.

Furthermore, a Toronto newspaper alleges that the Mounties, working in league with the FBI, stole papers from a Cuban trade mission in Montreal in 1972.

IF ALL THAT were not enough, bugs (the electronic kind) have been found in the offices of two members of the opposition Progressive Conservative Party and everybody suspects the Mounties of planting them.

Whether they did or didn't, it would appear that in their zeal to protect Canada from its foreign and domestic enemies, the Mounties, like the G-men, occasionally may have trespassed upon the very freedoms they would preserve.

But that is a problem in many democracies these days

However, it is only in those countries where human liberty is valued that official wrongdoing can cause scandal-or, indeed, ever be revealed at all.

What the secretary apparently has in mind is a national network of health maintenance organizations like the Kaiser-Permanente Plan now operating in California, Colorado, Ohio and several other states.

TO PROMOTE the idea, Califano has invited the chief executives of the nation's 500 largest corporations to a conference on HMOs in Washington next February.

The HMO has two major advantages, its care at reasonable cost. And it tries to keep its members healthy instead of simply treating them when they're sick.

Doctors who work for the HMO usually are paid salaries rather than fees.

Patients are encouraged to have regular physical checkups. The emphasis is on preventive medicine as a deterrent to expensive hospital care.

DESPITE ALL the lip service from Washington in recent years, only a relative handful of HMOs have sprung up around the country, partly because of government red Califano's pitch to the corporations may be a sign that the new administration may be ready to cut through some of these rules and restrictions to get the HMO program off the ground.

PG Leave For Women Only

AN UNUSUALLY (for it) fair and commonsense ruling was handed down by the Supreme Court when it said employers may deny pregnant workers sick pay but cannot deny them seniority benefits during their pregnancy leaves.

In demanding special privileges instead of equal rights, women's activists have argued that it is "sex discrimination" not to keep their paychecks rolling in while they take time off to have babies.

This is a patently absurd contention, as the Supreme Court now has agreed for the second time in a year. It is equally logical, however, that a wom-

M. STANTON EVANS:

Where Does It Say PLO Is Legitimate Entity?

WASHINGTON-Anwar Sadat's initiative for peace has told us something important about the Middle East, and also something about ourselves.

The revelation about the Middle East is that the Marxist and other extremists who have dominated discussion in this area do not speak for the whole of the Arab world, perhaps not even for a major portion of it.

The radicals in the Palestinian Liberation Organization, acclaimed as heroes at the United Nations, were outraged by Sadat's dramatic move toward Israel

This seemed not to deter the Egyptian president one whit, suggesting he puts a low evaluation on the utterances of this motley organiza-

Since Egypt is the Arab "front line" state par excellence and has sustained the brunt of the previous fighting, its authority to speak for the Arab side of things would seem to be unquestioned. Which raises an interesting point: If Egypt considers the PLO to be a sideshow irrelevancy (or worse), why should the United Nations, much less the United States, continue acting as though a terrorist group equipped and prompted by the Soviet Union is a legitimate entity to be dealt with in a final settlement? THIS IS NOT the first time, of course, that Sadat has turned the tables on the Marxists. He foiled the Soviets when they attempted to gain control of Egypt with heavy infusions of cash, supplies and personnel and reputedly backed a coup d'etat against him. He earned his chevrons as a wily and successful international politician by dishing the Soviets before they could dish him.

So his recent track record as a potential ally of the West looks pretty good.

All the agonizing details of the Sinai, the West Bank and what to do with the Palestinian refugees remain to be worked out. What we have so far is the beginning of a beginning. But the emergence of Sadat and Egypt as decisive leaders on the nonextremist Arab side could of itself produce a dramatic shift of strategic realities in the Middle East.

If an agreement can be reached that satisfies these two, then Israel would have, for once, some reasonable security against invasion.

AT THIS POINT all such thoughts are merely speculation, with the thicket of difficulties to be surmounted in Cairo and Geneva and beyond im-

But the cardinal point is that Israel confronts a portion of the Arab phalanx with which it can deal in hopes of peaceful settlement and reliable guarantees against the danger of future warfare. That prospect appeals to Prime Minister Begin, just as it infuriates the Soviets and the PLO, and it should be appealing to the United States as has been just this side of ignominious. It was embarrassing enough that we were reduced to the role of bystanders as Sadat and Begin made their historic bid for peace-although we have understandably been putting the best possible face on this and treating it as a virtue.

WORSE STILL, IT appears Sadat and Begin felt impelled to take matters so abruptly into their own hands because they were mutually scared to death of American policy.

In particular, our insistence on dragging the Soviets back into the action-after Sadat had worked so frantically to get them out-seemingly convinced both Israelis and Egyptians that the United States as a problem-solver in the Middle East left something to be desired.

All in all, a sad commentary on the state of our diplomacy-when overtures toward peace and the protection of Western security interests are accomplished not because of us but in spite of us.

Busing, Stage II

BOSTON-When federal District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. on Nov. 29 made clear that he -not the elected Boston School Committee-will ultimately decide which schools close here, he continued the judicial overlordship that has driven half the city's white students out of the school

What makes this remarkable is that the school committee is no longer the bastion of bitter-end anti-busers. Its chairman, Kathleen Sullivan,

Where?

WASHINGTON-Since my trade has exposed me to various forms of professional naughtiness from Worcester, Mass., to Singapore, I found it hard to swallow Larry Flynt's announcement that he had found God and that henceforth his pornographic magazine. Hustler, would reflect his new 'commitment to Christianity.'

Sure enough, Flynt has amended his proclamation. "Our philosophy is going to be the same, he told the Akron Beacon Journal. "Sex is beautiful and God-given. If the critics think it's obscene, they should complain to the manufacturer. Evil is in the eye of the beholder. an should not lose her seniority rights while

In short, we can expect mostly filth in Hustler, with maybe a few "spiritual" messages in small print to explain to the reader that what God has given no censor may take away. People do not knock one another down trying to buy publications devoted exclusively to quoting the Scrip-

Alas, it would seem that Flynt must go down as one of Ruth Carter Stapleton's failures. The President's evangelist sister had several talks with the publisher, after which Flynt said he'd been convicted of sin by the Lord and would clean up

Unlike some of my readers. I did not question Mrs Stapleton's association with Flynt; evangelists should not waste their time on seminarians and Eagle Scouts

BUT EVANGELISTS do not give up easily, and so I presume Mrs. Stapleton is praying that subsequent issues of Hustler will be a touch less of-

Here in America the quondam beautiful, sex with-as it were-no holds barred seems to have become an obsession because it is seen as an expression of with-it chic

The young especially apparently believe that the older generation is unacquainted with the unclad human body and the adventures to which it may be subjected. They may shock some of us senile totterers, but they are not really telling or showing us anything we don't know. For some glandular reason, each succeeding generation arrives convinced that if it tries hard enough it can outrage its parents. They merely waste time and energy they might use more prof itably to discover the correct spelling Constanti-

There are exceptions, of course, but by the time a parent is old enough to have saved the dough to dispatch a sprout to college he is also pretty much unshockable.

AFTER ALL, CHILDREN are products of the process of breeding. Most parents have enjoyed one another physically, and if they do not choose to scoot around the front yard in the altogether it is either because they are afflicted with good taste or are susceptible to head colds.

At any rate, it would seem the time may be approaching when both kids and the "liberated" middle-aged learn that nude pictures seen outside the Louvre are old stuff, and so even are the sweaty sexual exertions on stage and screen.

I am mostly amused by the exhibitions sired by Hustler et al who go public by button-holding innocent bystanders to recite in explicit chapter and verse the fun they have playing house with a member of the opposite sex.

That sort of unmarried play was invented shortly after Adam and Eve rented their first lean-to in a suburb of Eden. There was no marriage ceremony when David added another concubine to provides moderate leadership that accepts the inevitability of court-ordered busing.

She led all candidates for re-election Nov. 8. when Boston's voters elected the committee's first black and defeated its foremost anti-busing zealot. But the new school committee is treated no differently than the old school committee by Judge Garrity. He and what Miss Sullivan calls "those crazy experts of his" are not surrendering control

That suggests continued white exodus from the system, where Garrity's rule brought soaring perpupil costs without improving education. "The victims are the kids," Miss Sullivan told us.

THIS IS STAGE II of Boston's busing. Violence and demonstrations have ended, and one-issue politicians are driven from office. But liberals elsewhere make a mistake if they interpret this as approval of busing.

"The people don't go out and chant slogans," Miss Sullivan told us. "They merely creep out of Unable to lick the judge, they escape him. Since Garrity's busing order in June 1974, white school enrollment dropped from 58,000 to 29,000. Experts had predicted a normal yearly loss of 3,-000 whites, thanks to population patterns-12,000 over the last four years.

So, an additional 17,000 white students have left the system because of busing. In a city where the black population is only 20 per cent, the black school population is nearing 60 per cent.

A CLASSIC CASE is the Morris School in the West Roxbury section, which in November 1974 had an all-white enrollment of 347. A 1975 'Masters Panel" of distinguished citizens recommended, as part of a citywide plan, 260 whites and 70 blacks at Morris.

But Garrity rejected the whole plan and redrew school boundaries to insure a 50-50 racial mix. The result current enrollment at Morris is 23 whites and 123 blacks. The whites have disappeared Nor has the exodus concluded. A Garrity-ordered school reassignment last summer led many white liberals finally to give up and put their children in private schools. Garrity's resistance to the special program for gifted students has lowerd another possible barrier to flight from city

THE DECLINE of the Morris School enrollment, down from 347 to 146 in three years, is no extreme example. Unfilled schools, along with busing costs, have boosted costs per pupil to over

To Mayor Kevin White, the tragedy is that high costs have produced education no better and likely worse than it was. But Garrity, and his chief expert, Boston University Dean of Education Robert A. Dentler, have fought school closings as a covert attempt at resegregation.

Ignorance of political realities is characteristic of colonial rule by overlords who do not live in the political unit they control. Garrity lives in suburban Wellesley, Dentler in Lexington.

GARRITY OBVIOUSLY regards Boston's politicians and people with intense suspicion. Although he may relinquish school control in about two years, Garrity exhibits a paternalistic need to protect Bostonians from themselves-another colonial characteristic. So, at the Nov. 29 hearing on school closings, Garrity gave no support for Sullivan's hope that the Nov. 8 elections would induce the judge to get out of the business of running the schools. The constitutional scholar Raoul Berger, in 'Government by Judiciary" (Harvard University Press), concludes: "The judges might begin by curbing their reach for policymaking power, by withdrawing from extreme measures such as administration of school systems-government by decree-which have disquieted even sympathizers with the ultimate objectives.

Such decrees cannot rest on the assertion that the Constitution demands busing, when in truth it is the justices who require it in contravention of the framers' intention to leave such matters to the states.

For Garrity to take that advice would be welcome news for Bostonians and their elected school committee, who want nothing more than to run their own affairs without the good judge's protection.

JAY HARRIS: The Quick And Dead

WE SUPPOSE, as Mark Twain chronicled, everyone talks about the weather, and no one does anything about it.

Or was that Will Rogers or Jimmy Carter? Anyway, it's doubtful that folks elsewhere talk more about the weather than we do or have less to really complain about.

This was been brought home vividly to us this year as other sections of the nation suffered through intense cold, storms, flooding and you

Residents on these Old Baldies, on the other hand, have had to contend with a few dusters, an occasional tornado threat and some heat. Otherwise, and that is most of the time, it's been great

WHAT BROUGHT the contrast to mind was an article we saw during the Johnstown, Pa. flood this past summer.

Written by Larry Hudson of The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat, and reprinted in the Johnstown Flood book, the article captures the feeling of those caught up in such a disaster as well or better than anything we have ever read. The 1977 Johnstown Flood, you recall, was the hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, promised peace and blasted his Arab detractors as "stupid dwarfs" Thursday in his bitterest counter-attack yet in the war of words between Arab hawks and doves. Shortly after the rousing, nationalistic speech to an estimated 350,000 Egyptians in the heart of Cairo, Sadat went into talks here with Jordan's King Hussein, who is trying to mediate the Arab dispute over Sadat's direct peace initiative with Sadat's chief antagonist in that dispute, Syrian President Hafez Assad, was in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, meeting with King Khaled and other Saudi leaders in an effort to win their backing in his campaign against the Egyptian.

Oil-rich Saudi Arabia is impoverished Egypt's main source of financial aid, so Sadat needs at least Saudi neutrality as he pursues his one-man peacemaking.

"Did not these stupid and ignorant dwarfs hear what I said in (Israel)?" Sadat, speaking from a balcony of Abdin Palace, asked the cheering crowds before him in Republic Square.

"We want peace based on justice, but we do not want peace at any price," Sadat declared, striking back at critics who accuse him of betraying the Arab people. In related developments Thursday:

-Preparations continued for next Wednesday's Cairo peace talks between Israel and Egypt, with the United States and United Nations also represented. Israeli officials denied reports there had been secret high-level meetings between the two governments since Sadat's Nov. 19-21 Israel trip but said such unpublicized meetings could take place during the Cairo talks.

-More than 100 Palestinians from the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip said they plan to go to Cairo next week to show their support for Sadat. But other West Bank leaders criticized the move, saying it could split Palestinian ranks.

During November, 906 animals were destroyed in the Lubbock Animal Shelter, director Jim Robison reports.

Of the total, 710 were unlicensed dogs, 39 were licensed ones, 153 were cats and 4 were other animals, he says.

He reports that shelter employes picked up 385 dead animals - 273 unlicensed dogs, 4 licensed ones, 80 cats and 28 others — on city streets during the month, and 887 live ones — 727 unlicensed dogs, 54 licensed ones, 102 cats

He says citizens brought 195 live animals to the shelter.

During November, 176 animals left the shelter alive, either reclaimed by owners or adopted by citizens, Robison reports.

He was born with a severe lung disorder called hyaline membrane disease. He cannot be off oxygen for more than a few breaths without turning blue.

Since September, when parents Dean and Karen Hawks moved to Springfield because of the father's job, they have had to make a 165-mile trip to visit their baby. They also have a 21/2-year-old daughter.

On Thursday, Bradley was placed in a portable incubator, his tubes all attached, and was taken by charter jet to another high-risk facility in St. John's Hospital at Springfield.

"It may be more months before Bradley finally can be released from intensive hospital care," said Dr. Henry Mangurten, who, with a special nurse, accompanied the infant on what he called his "special Christmas delivery" trip.

"Bradley weighed 3 pounds 1 ounce at birth and now is up to 7 pounds," said Dr. Mangurten. "His lungs are scarred and it may be months more before they repair themselves.

We believe babies in high risk need the fondling of their parents, and that is the main reason we are letting Bradley leave, so they can be with him at the hospital in Springfield as much as possible," Mangurten added.

When Bradley was wheeled away in the portable intensive care incubator, he was dressed in a red and white jump suit made by the nurses that bore a small insignia of an airplane over the heart. On his head was a knitted red and white cap stitched with the words, "Fly Me."

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Demand for domestic steel, depressed all year by cheap imports, has risen substantially in recent weeks, fueling hope for a 1978 recovery among U.S. producers.

'The order intake has been quite favorable the last several weeks," said a spokesman for Republic Steel, the nation's No. 4 producer. "It's substantially stronger than we had anticipated. We're encouraged.

U.S. Steel said fourth quarter shipments are up 10 percent over 1976, and the trend is continuing for 1978's first

The nation's largest producer has projected shipments totaling 23 million dur-ing the first three months of next year. 'We may have to revise our estimates.' said an economist.

We are encouraged by the volume we see so far in the first quarter," added a spokesman for Armco Steel, the nation's No. 5 producer, "but we're not readly to celebrate yet. We could still use more business.

U.S. steelmakers estimate they will ship about 92 million tons of steel in 1977. although total domestic consumption is expected to reach about 108 million tons.

The difference went to foreign producers, who have been accused of dumping selling for less than the cost of production or below home market prices - in order to maintain employment abroad.

There are signs, however, that the flow of imports has slowed under pressure from anti-comping complaints and the Carter administration's plans to aid the troubled U.S. industry. The president has endorsed a plan to cut imports by about six million tons in 1978, and suppliers are waiting to see how his "reference price" program will

Foreign producers still in the market have raised prices, permitting domestic suppliers to capture a greater share of demand and firm up their prices.

Import sales, which once sold for as much as $80 a ton below U.S. prices, had caused steel producers in the United States to implement discounts. But foreign prices are now only about $20 a ton less than U.S. prices.

U.S. suppliers say a $20 price difference is not enough to lure American steel buyers from their mills. Firmer prices and improved demand should boost earnings, WASHINGTON (UPI) - Kenneth Curtis said Thursday he is resigning as Democratic national chairman because it is a lousy job, and not because he was forced out by the White House staff.

But while Curtis praised President Carter and his top aides, he showed a thinly veiled dislike of Mark Siegel, top White House political aide and the source of much criticism of Curtis in recent Curtis would not discuss the personal Relaxed and joking with reporters at a news conference, Curtis said he was in no hurry to leave Washington and probably will remain through April, when the DNC is scheduled to meet. He said he is likely to rejoin his Maine law firm.

"I've decided I'd like to do something else with my life," Curtis said

Twice he praised Carter's top aide, Hamilton Jordan, and Tim Kraft, the White House appointments chief.

Asked why he left out Siegel, Curtis replied, "I was frankly never aware he had a role" in dealing with the DNC.

Siegel was executive director of the committee before going to the White House and has been the source of much criticism directed at Curtis recently in news articles

Some critics have described Curis as "too nice a guy," but he said that does not bother him.

"I take that as a compliment," he said. "If that's considered a criticism of someone in politics, that's a mistake. The votes came from a lot of nice people.

Asked if he planned to run for office. Curtis said, "it would be fun, but then I'd have to serve if I won.

NEW YORK (UPI) - North Carolina fugitive Joan Little and a male companion face a hearing today on state charges accusing them of threatening a friend who was trying to persuade her to surrender to police.

Miss Little, who escaped from the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women in Raleigh two months ago, was captured early Wednesday in Brooklyn after a 70 mph auto chase with police from Kennedy Airport.

Police said a man who claimed to be Miss Little's fiance, Vernell Muhammad, gave them the license plate num-ber of the car in which Miss Little and 29-year-old George McRae, of New York City, were riding.

Gun Threat Claimed

Little and McRae allegedly threatened Muhammad with a gun at the airport when he suggested that she give herself up. Both were ordered held in $5,000 bail on state charges arising

Miss Little also was ordered held without bail pending an extradition hearing in 30 days and will remain in jail regardless of the outcome of today's hearing.

She faces charges of assault, reckless endangerment and criminal mischief; McRae was charged with third degree assault, reckless endangerment, leaving the scene of an accident, possession of heroin and possession of drug parapher-

Feminist Symbol

Miss Little became a feminist symbol when she was acquitted in 1975 of the icepick murder of white prison guard Clarence Alligood, who she said tried to rape her. She eventually was acquitted of the murder charge and returned to jail, where she was serving 7-10 years for breaking and entering and larceny.

She was turned down for parole in September, but was to have been considered again at a parole board hearing in November.

Muhammad told UPI in Raleigh that he flew into New York Tuesday night and was met at Kennedy Airport by Miss Little and McRae.

When Muhammad pleaded with her to give herself up, McRae boasted he didn't mind going to prison.

Mistreatment Denied "He told me he didn't mind killing," said Muhammad. "He told me nobody was going to take Joan back to North Carolina.

Miss Little's attorney, William Kunstler, has said he will fight extradition to North Carolina because it would be dangerous for the 23-year-old black woman

Jerry Paul, the attorney who defended Miss Little in her murder trial, said at the time of Miss Little's escape that guards had been extremely hard on her since her acquittal, but prison officials denied any mistreatment

Would-Be Assassins May Be Targets

Thursday that persons involved in a shooting allegedly aimed at eliminating a murder witness against Black Panther Huey Newton may now themselves be the target of a deadly "housecleaning" effort.

The web of intrigue began Oct. 23, when three men in jumpsuits attacked, a woman in an apartment in nearby Richmond in a wild spray of gunfire.

Police claim the assault was a botched assassination attempt by Panthers on a key prosecution witness in a pre-trial hearing on murder charges against Newton, co-founder of the Panther Party.

Newton, who has been ordered to stand trial here early next year in the shooting of a prostitute and the beating of his tailor, says the accusations are part of a government frame-up plot.

another. The witness escaped injury. The investigation into that incident crossed state borders with the Nov. 14 shooting of Black Panther Nelson Malloy, 31, who was left for dead in the desert outside Las Vegas, Nev.

Police said they believe Malloy was involved in the Richmond shooting and was shot by two party members after he helped Floyd Forbes, another Panther involved in the Richmond incident, flee to Las Vegas.

Las Vegas police issued attempted murder warrants Wednesday for two Oakland men believed linked to Malloy's shooting. They were identified as Allen Thomas Lewis, 24, and Rollin Gary Reid.

Richmond Police Lt. Bill Hamberlin said Thursday, it's "a very strong possibility that someone is making an attempt to shut_somebody up. 'Housecleaning' you might call it."

"If they're going to shoot one or two of them, the same thing may happen to anybody else involved or knowledgeable,"

Las Vegas police said Malloy's testimony has led investigators to believe that Forbes may have been killed.

Most Countries Found Violating Human Rigi

LONDON (AP) - Human rights are violated in more than two-thirds of United Nations member states, Amnesty International reported Thursday

The London-based organization's annual report listed inquiries into possible human rights violations in 117 countries. It took particular note of political prisoners in Indonesia and secret executions in white minority-ruled Rhodesia, a British African colony that has declared itself independent Amnesty issued its its report two days before it is to accept the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize in ceremonies at Oslo. The 352-page document covers the year ending in June 1977.

All major regimes, all political or ideological blocs are involved (in violations) - in spite of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted in December 1948 the report said.

The worldwide human rights organization has 105 fulltime staffers and 150,-000 members and supporters. It opposes the death penalty, torture and imprisonment for political, religious, or ideological beliefs

The report spoke of "the continued mass detention of between 55,000 and 100,000 prisoners in Indonesia, many of them held for more than 12 years."

Indonesian officials acknowledge holding 31.461 prisoners in connection with a 1965 Communist revolt and announced this week that 10,000 of them will be

The Tass report was the harshest Soviet attack on the United States since the Sadat initiatives began.

It said there are "definite circles in the American administration" trying to pressure Arab confrontation states into attending the Dec. 14 Cairo meeting.

So far, only Israel, the United States and a representative of the United Nations have accepted Egypt's invitation to

The Soviet Union, which turned down an invitation, has charged that Sadat was using the preparations for a Geneva conference as a cover for a separate Israeli-Egyptian peace settlement.

The idea is being persistently circulated in the Egyptian quarters that the foundation for talk on the Middle East should be laid at the Cairo meeting," Tass said.

The press makes broad use of Cyrus Vance's statement that the United States is now inclined to concentrate its efforts not on the convocation of the Geneva conference, but on guaranteeing the holding of the Cairo meeting.

This stand is in direct contradiction to the Soviet-American joint statement on the Middle East, which says that the Geneva conference must be held before the end of this year with the participation of all sides concerned to solve the Middle East problem comprehensively," Tass

The joint statement was issued Oct. 1 in Washington and Moscow and called for a peace agreement "as soon as possible" and said any agreement "should be comprehensive incorporating all parties concerned and all questions.

Carter To Hold 'Fireside Chat'

ORONO, Maine (AP) - President Carter will hold a nationally televised 'fireside chat" next month to inform Americans about the benefits of the Panama Canal treaties, a negotiator in the talks said Thursday.

Speaking at the University of Maine, Welborn G. Dolvin said the president believes that support for the treaties would increase greatly if the public understoood them

The White House would not immedi-

John Humphreys, head of the 60-person research staff, said at a news conference that Indonesia probably has the largest number of political prisoners among nations for which the organization has data. Among the countries for which Amnesty has limited information are China, Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam, Taiwan, Malaysia and Singapore, he said. The report said many African countries jail political dissidents without trial, but Equatorial Guinea and white minorityruled Rhodesia are the leaders with an estimated 1,000 detainees each.

Amnesty also said that in Rhodesia more than 60 persons were convicted of security violations and secretly executed during the report period.

The report said: "In April 1977, two years after the (Rhodesian) Ministry of Justice announced that all future executions would take place in secret, Amnesty International groups appealed to the regime to stop using the death penalty and urged the British government to reaffirm the illegality of all exexecutions carried out in Rhodesia

In South Africa and Rhodesia, "it became evident that the torture of political detainees is now official policy." the report said

During the year under review at least 18 political prisoners died in South Africa while in security police custody, while in Uganda, Ethiopia and Equatorial Guinea torture, massacres of civilians and the government-sanctioned murder of political opponents proceeded unchecked," the report said.

The report noted "little discernible improvement" in the human rights situation in Latin and South America, but noted on the other hand "the release of tens of thousands of prisoners of conscience in India" with the ousting of Indira Gandhi's government.

As for the United States, Amnesty said President Carter's January pardon for draft resisters brought about the release of the last American conscientious objectors, and that all 14 U.S. cases in which Amnesty is now involved deal with blacks or American Indians.

The report said in America, "there is no overt political imprisonment but ... it is suspected that many people may be 'framed' on criminal charges because of their political activities or ethnic origin.

15-Year Term Assessed For Manslaughter

A-J Correspondent

STANTON - Freddie Grothe, 26, of Ackerly was sentenced to 15 years in prison Thursday after pleading guilty to charges of involuntary manslaughter in 118th District Court before Judge Ralph Grothe was sentenced in connection with the death of Guadalupe Saenz, whose body was found Sept. 18 in a field in Martin County near Ackerly.

Saenz suffered at least seven severe blows, including a blow to the head which knocked out five teeth. Saenz also received two wounds from a .22-caliber gun, one over the right eye and another over the left temple. In addition, his throat was cut from ear to ear and he had numerous knife wounds to the body.

Another guilty plea was entered in 118th District Court by Kenneth Walker of Lamesa. He was sentenced to 20 years for burglary of a rural residence in June.

Offer Of Freedom Scorned By IRA

BELFAST (AP) - Britain offered to let some Irish Republican Army prisoners out of Northern Ireland jails for Christmas, but the IRA Thursday rejected the offer.

"Republican prisoners have never accepted the offer in the past and they will not be accepting it this year, as a matter of principle," said a spokesman for the militant IRA, whose guerrillas are fighting to end British rule and Protestant domination of Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland Minister Roy Mason told the House of Commons Wednesday in London that 35 prisoners were eligible for consideration for Christmas leave but not all would be offered it. Holiday leave is offered trusted prisoners nearing the end of their sentences.

Carter Scores Victory With Welfare Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter scored a major victory Thursday when a special House welfare subcomnittee voted to combine the food stamp program with an expanded cash-aid welare program.

The vote was 16 to 12 to approve Cart-'s proposal to "cash out" the $6-billion ood stamp program and instead make he millions of persons now getting food tamps eligible for cash aid in the future.

The vote went beyond the food stamp ssue to a preliminary affirmation of Carter's proposal to fundamentally resructure and consolidate the nation's assstance to its poor.

The White House said it was "especialpleased" by the vote. The president appreciates the comnittee's expeditious work on the difficult ssue of welfare reform, and applauds today's vote," a White House statement said that the vote to consolidate the three major public assistance programs "is a major step in the direction of comprehensive welfare reform.

The statement said the vote was "a maor step toward passage" of the White House proposal. HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

"It demonstrates that the Congress and the president can work effectively togeth-The subcommittee still faces several ard questions concerning the adminisration's jobs programs that are an integral part of the welfare revision plan.

Congress returns next January. Whatever it finally recommends will go to three House committees - Ways and Means, Education and Labor and Agriculture before the House votes on it.

Rep. Al Ullman, Ways and Means chairman, argued against replacing the food stamps with cash. He said he would propose a substitute for Carter's $30.2billion welfare-revision program. He wants to keep food stamps and emphasize strengthening the existing welfare

But the subcommittee went along with Carter, responding to an emotional appeal by Rep. Carl Perkins, chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, to give the president's program a chance.

Perkins, D-Ky., said he believed Carter's welfare program would still be debated by Congress next spring and any decisions taken Thursday would not be totally binding.

"But I think we should give the president an opportunity to try to make a good-faith effort to bring order out of chaos," Perkins said. He said cashing out the food stamps would be a fundamental decision to do what Carter has requested.

Ullman, D-Ore., seeking time to offer a comprehensive substitute to Carter's program, argued against voting now on the food stamp issue. Roughly 5 million families currently benefit from the stamp pro-

Some members said, however, they The panel is expected to work through thought food stamps should be kept in addition to the proposed cash assistance program because those benefits were inadequate to keep a family out of poverty.

"How much blood and sweat and tears we have put into the relatively fraud-free food stamps program," said Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y. "I hate to see it go down the drain."

The panel defeated an attempt by Rep. Joseph Fisher, D-Va., to earmark onefourth of the president's new benefits for the poor for food stamps - for instance, to require that $100 of a $400 monthly benefit be parceled out in food stamps rather than in cash.

But Reps. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., and Martha Keys, D-Kan., said this would continue the degrading assumption that the poor are not wise enough to use money to feed themselves properly.

Earlier, the subcommittee defeated an attempt by Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., to eliminate the administration's two-tier level of benefits for poor families.

As proposed, a family of four where the household head was expected to work would get only $2,300 a year in benefits for the first eight weeks it became eligible for the welfare program - the time period when the head of household was supposed to be looking for a job.

After the eight-week period, if the head of household had not been able to find a private job and no public service jobs were available, the family's benefit would rise to the annual level of $4,200.

Rangel wanted to drop the lower benefit and let families become immediately eligible for the higher $4,200 cash aid.

Council Help Asked

For Airport Parking

ic parking There are only 58 parking spaces for airport employees. The proposed employee lot, to be constructed south of the terminal, would contain 120 parking spaces. A temporary loan of approximately $653,536 is needed, Garland said, as interim financing for the extension of a taxiway for the east-west runway. He said the board hoped the money could come from a fund established by the council in September, 1973, to cover construction overruns at the civic center and the airport. Although the civic center has used some money from the fund, the airport board has never tapped the moneys. Finance Director Miller said the fund contains $736,000, $653,536 of which could be used for the loan

FAA Funds Due Of the total cost for the taxiway construction - ($1,261,364), approximately $400,000 would be available from the Federal Aviation Administration before the end of the year.

However, the remaining federal money would not be granted to the airport board until October, 1978 - thus, the need for

The board hopes to obtain a supplemental agreement with the firm under contract for work on a runway at the airport and save about 30 percent of the tal cost if the project was re-bid.

Other capital improvements proposed by the airport board include remodeling of the old terminal building at a cost of $58,396, the purchase of a second baggage claim system and the purchase of a loading bridge. The second baggage claim system would have a total cost of $64,000, but the city would only pay half that amount. The loading bridge would cost $160,000, with $80,000 coming from city coffers. Garland noted that it is possible that the airlines could be convinced to purchase the baggage claim system. However, if the city foots the bill it will recoup its investment within four years thanks to additional airline rental for the equipment, he said.

Councilman Alan Henry suggested the board "make people aware it is the air-line's responsibility" to get the luggage unloaded quickly, and not the fault of the city or the airport if there are delays. Bad Feelings Created

Henry said passengers forced to wait a long time for their luggage "come away with a bad feeling about Lubbock." Garland said the airport board "can do without financial help from the city. Mayor Roy Bass ordered all airport board requests be placed on the agenda of next Thursday's council meeting and everything except the parking building"

State Republicans Select Director

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Wayne Thorburn, an Arkansas State University professor who supported Ronald Reagan for president in 1976, was named Thursday as executive director of the Texas Republican Party, effective Jan. 1.

Thorburn, 33, succeeds Doug Lewis, who resigned to work with John Connally, who may contend for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination.

Thorburn received a doctorate from the University of Maryland and has been an assistant professor of political science at Arkansas State since 1975. He has been active in Republican campaigns since 1964. Last year he was chairman of Citizens for Reagan in northeast Arkansas and was a delegate to the 1976 Republican National Convention.

Alberta's Rockies
Exerting New Lure

"Springtime in the Rockies" has been replaced in popularity with "wintertime in the Rockies" as the Alberta ski centres of Banff and Jasper gear up for another exciting season.

Long the destination of travelers in spring, summer and fall, the Rocky Mountain areas are now busier than ever in winter, with a total of 17 lifts at three ski areas to give skiers an extremely wide variety of packed and powder skiing terrain.

Centered around the swinging alpine village of Banff are Mount Norquay, just three miles from the town center, and Sunshine Village, 14 miles out of town.

With a top elevation of 9,000 feet, Sunshine Village offers one of the longest ski seasons in the country, with opening day in mid-November and closing about mid-May. An average of 400 inches of snow, mostly dry powder, falls here annually, and skiers have a choice of the new 2,400-foot-long triple chairlift, three double chairlifts, from 2,600 to 4,000 feet in length, one T-bar and a beginner tow.

Sunshine is not accessible by car, but the last three miles of roadway are served by shuttle buses, so the village, nestled at 7,200 feet and surrounded by 11,000-to 12,000-foot peaks, is free of cars.

Sunshine Inn, at the base of the ski runs, features packages from mid-November on, with rates for six day-six night ski weeks including meals, lifts, lessons and accomodations in the Sunshine Inn or Sunshine Chalets from $210 per person to $275 per person. Dormitory accomodations start at $180 per week.

Packages with accommodations in Banff, at the Banff Springs Hotel or local motels, are available through DeWest tours, with prices ranging from $138 for seven days and six nights, including lifts at Sunshine and Mount Norquay ski area transfers, Calgary Airport to Banff transfers, and car rental optional.

Cross-country skiing and helicopter skiing also are available and can be arranged by day or longer. Full information is available from the Banff-Lake Louise Chamber of Commerce, Box 1298, Banff.

The third major center in the vast Rocky Mountains of Alberta is Jasper, where nearby Marmot Basin attracts skiers from all over the United States and Canada. Marmot has skiing of every type, especially gentle beginner slopes with accompanying ski school instruction; powder slopes that are wide open and above timberline; and challenging runs for intermediates and experts. The newest chair, the Knob Chair, rises 890 feet to serve the expert slopes that are powder or bumps, depending on the route down; two other chairs, 5,700 and 3,700 feet long, plus two T-bars, give access to the many well-groomed trails.

A total vertical drop of 2,300 feet is available at Marmot, and spacious chalets in the lower and upper basin areas make good lunch stops or a place to join friends.

High Ontario Mountains Offer Special Challenge

High craggy mountains are rare in Ontario, but that dosen't mean there isn't good skiing available to the demanding visitor or the dedicated local schusser.

Ontario has its share of exciting runs and from Christmas to the last, lingering snort of March chill (sometimes April) skiers and their favorite activity are parted only when the demands of work, sleep or family

In recent years this has applied to the cross-country crowd as well as the donwhillers. It's just a matter of changing runs for trails.

If the weather starts to soften, enthusiasts in southern Ontario worry a bit until they can tune into one of the many radio reports, provided daily all over the province from 7:45 a.m. on, regarding weather, road and snow conditions. But with all the snowmaking equipment arounmd, it takes a really heavy thaw to ruin a weekencd. ALI big resorts are well equipped.

For variety and challenge, undoubtedly Thunder Bay has the best skiing in the province. Five ski areas are spotted on four mountains where the vertical drop edges close to 800 feet. Runs total 75 miles and each spot has one going a mile and more.

The lift ticket is interchangeable, so with along enough stay, a skier can try each setup, none of which is more than 16 miles out of town.

Head for Mount Baldy or Mount McKay and you'll mingle with local skiers, for these two were the former town ski clubs. Visitors therefore are more apt to hover around the other three, of which Mount Norway is the smallest. This is where the ski jumpers work out, and while trying beginner or intermediate trails skiers might chance upon members of Canada's national team at practice.

With three chairlifts and two mountains, Loch Lomond is the one to offer the greatest range of skiing. The ski shop is extra large, as well. It has teamed up with nearby Candy Mountain, the youngest of the five, so they can promote all facilities jointly. Its lodge is spacious and colorful and the sunning patio has a cocktail bar at one end. Candy Mountain, 20 miles away, is the farthest from town and the only one of the five areas without night skiing.

But for people coming in on a package, what is where is merely incidental. Everything is within easy driving distance and all are available on the tow ticket coming with the package.

Now that the ski business has been established in the lakeside city for five years, night life in the winter has picked up. Most hotels have entertainment and some ski spots will be showing films, featuring a piano player or group, or have a special sup-

It's quieter midweek, but that's when the skiing is best.

For a complete contrast, look at Blue Mountain, largest ski area in the province and a convenient 1½-hour drive from most of southwestern Ontario. Skiers have been swooshing down the 700-foot mountain here for 36 years and now have a choice of 26 trails and 17 tows, one of which is a triple chairlift.

Blue Mountain can handle 6,-000 skiers an hour but the average on a weekend is 4,400. That doesn't mean there aren't lineups — but they're short and move quickly move quickly.

Where Thunder Bay gets twothirds of its skiers from the U.S., Blue Mountain has yet to hit 10 per cent. But more and more are coming up from Texas, Michigan, Ohio and Illinois.
Of special interest to skiers from any far-off point is the five-day package which, along with meals, includes 12 hours of instruction, a gluhwein party, Thursday night awards banquet and races even for novice skiers.

Gunfire Mars Coal Strike; Talks Open

Eagle Slaying Case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The case of three locally prominent men charged with conspiring to hunt golden eagles was placed in the hands of a jury on Thursday. Jurors were told that Watergate proved a man's position and reputation are no reason to think him innocent.

In a federal courtroom packed with sympathetic ranchers and friends of the defendants, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn told the jury:

Reputation is not a strong defense We have learned that from the events of the past, when a president, an attorney general and other high officials with high reputations have lied

The men on trial were Lanny Leinweber, a rancher and Real County commissioner; Andrew Allen, a former trapper for the federal government, and Norman M. Pape, a ranch foreman.

The golden eagle, a bird which the three are accused of trying to shoot from a helicopter above the spectacular hill country of west central Texas, is a federally protected species.

Some ranchers say it also is a predator that kills livestock.

A grand jury indicted the three in September on charges of conspiring to hunt golden eagles and to violate laws against airborne hunting. Allen and Pape also were charged with killing golden eagles.

Conviction of killing eagles can bring one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. A conspiracy conviction carries a maximum five-year sentence and a fine of up to

In closing arguments to the 10 women and two men on the U.S. District Court jury, defense attorneys said the government's case rested on "a bought and paid for witness," Gerald Heintzelman.

A 31-year-old helicopter pilot who was granted immunity for his testimony. Heintzelman said he flew the defendants on hunts for golden eagles between December, 1975 and January 1977, that Allen and Pape between them gunned down at 70, and that Pape shot most of them. He said Leinweber never shot at

Judge Rejects Kissinger On Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A federal judge ruled Thursday that Henry Kissin-"wrongfully removed" transcripts of his State Department telephone conversations and locked them away from public perusal at the Library of Congress.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith rejected the former secretary of state's claim that secretarial notes on his conversations were "personal working papers" not subject to Freedom of Information Act requests from the public

"Having been prepared and transcribed in the discharge of his official duties, the notes are property of the United States," the judge said. "The court further finds that the records were wrongfully removed and should be returned to the State Department.

Access Restricted

Kissinger deeded the notes to the United States Dec. 24, 1976, and placed them at the Library of Congress under an agreement restricting public access for 25 years or until five years after his death, whichever is later.

Smith acted on a suit filed in February by the Reporters Committee for a Free Press and other groups seeking access to the transcripts.

After consulting with Kissinger, David Ginsburg, his Washington lawyer, said: An appeal will be taken because Dr Kissinger regards an issue of principle as being involved.

For one thing, Ginsburg said, those who spoke with Kissinger understood that their conversations "were to be kept private

Decision Hailed

Jack Landau, director of the reporters committee, called the decision "a major victory for the underlying principles of the Freedom of Information Act — that agency documents amassed by government officials no matter how exalted their office belong to the people and are not as Mr. Kissinger claims private prop-

"Gerald Heintzelman lied to you," de fense lawyer James Monnig said. He said the case was "invented" by James Stinebaugh, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent who testified for the prosecution.

The defense called more than a dozen character witnesses, noted the absence of such witnesses for Heintzelman, and pointed out that the defendants had good reputations in Real County.

Porn Probe Funds Short

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas' investigation into the child pornography racket is on the rocks financially, Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston, said Thursday

Waters, a member of the House probe group, said the investigators thought they had a budget of $80,000 for an 18month investigation but the House Administration Committee slashed that to

'Apparently many members of the House Administration Committee are not convinced there is a child pornography problem in this state," Waters told a. news conference. "Maybe it's our fault. This is mostly an urban situation and many members of the House Administration Committee are from rural areas. Maybe we have not done a selling job on

Waters said the curtailed funds had already forced cancellation of a scheduled public hearing in the Dallas-Fort Worth

Waters said that Rep. Ralph Wallace, D-Houston, chairman of the House Interim Select Committee on Child Pornography, originally requested a budget of $80,000 and was led to believe by "the House leadership and the speaker" that it would be forthcoming.

However, the powerful House Administration Committee which controls the purse strings for between-sessions study committees, headed by Rep. Pete Laney. D-Hale Center, met recently and set the probe budget at $15,000.

he said. "The fund problem is the biggest problem as far as we are concerned. People try to distort the facts as they are and say that's not the real issue. That is the real issue.

It appeared to be the first time that Miller did not explicitly mention both the question of replenishing the union's health and retirement funds and a union demand for a limited right to strike as top negotiating goals

Absence Unexplained Chief industry negotiator Joseph P.

Brennan declined comment on Miller's We've exchanged proposals. The union has given us some stuff and we've given them some stuff. We're going to be talking about them. Asked whether progress was being made, he said, "We are exchanging proposals across the table Church said as he left the talks, They've given us proposals. We're talking We'll be back tomorrow Industry sources said the two sides were exchanging proposals on industry's key demand for greater labor stability at the coal mines. Wildcat strikes by miners have hurt the industry in recent years and the BCOA went to the bargaining table looking for a way to deal with the problem in the contract.

Production Halved

The strike, involving 160,000 members of the UMW, has cut the nation's coal production by more than half Before the session began, Miller said he had asked BCOA representatives for "a complete counter proposal. His union was going into the session having asked that wages be brought to $114.36 per day over the life of a threeyear contract. The top wage under the old contract was $65.36. The UMW also wants refinancing of health and retirement funds, and agreement on a limited right to strike over local grievances. Localize Disputes

Miller says such a right to strike would localize disputes and end the frequent wildcat strikes which have recently hit the coal industry. In these strikes, a dispute at one mine is spread to others by roving pickets.

The nation's soft coal production was halved when the strike began, and it has been shaved further because some nonunion mines have been closed either by pickets or in sympathy with the UMW. Picketing continued Thursday, but little trouble was reported, except in Ohio. The shooting incident took place at a mine near Pomeroy, Ohio, but special investigator Gary Wolfe of the Meigs County sheriff's department said he did not know whether the shots came from pickets outside the mine or from non-union foremen working inside

Pickets Honored

In Madisonville, Ky., Jack Dixon, the UMW international representative from District 23, said, "Things are doing real well. People are honoring our pickets in Robert Carter, president of District 30 in Pikeville, Ky., said he understood some non-union miners were ignoring picket lines, "but I don't know how man-There are no problems that I know Scattered picketing of the few non-union mines still operating in West Virginia was reported, but Dan Fields of the West Virginia Coal Association said there was no trouble.

"There are a few mines, very few, still running." Fields said.

Things also were reported calm Thursday near Price. Utah, where Gov. Scott Matheson had ordered 80 state policemen to the site of a rock-throwing incident. One man was injured and two police cars were damaged in the incident, which caused a precautionary cancellation of the Wednesday night shift at three non-union mines

"Didn't you testify Tuesday (during a pre-trial hearing) that you had the picture in your mind when you identified Leroy Green?" Bass guizzed.

Mrs. Coffee said she remembered the man, not the picture. "I don't believe I did," she answered.

Griffin and Bass each called for the transcript of the hearing to be read back to jurors. The transcript showed that Mrs. Coffee had testified she had the picture in mind.

Mrs. Coffee explained that she had "a picture" of the defendant in mind, not necessarily "the picture" which she had viewed 12 days after the killings. Benjamin Coffee also identified Green.

Israel-Egypt Power Project Speculated

NEW YORK (AP) - Israel has offered to cooperate with Egypt in the construction in the Sinai desert of a nuclear power plant, Business Week magazine reported Thursday.

In its forthcoming Dec. 19 issue, the magazine said the Israelis also offered to cooperate in developing jointly the oil reserves in the Gulf of Suez, but Egypt apparently will continue to develop those reserves with Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) and other major oil firms.

most. Indeed, funding for the program is based on the number of such pupils in each Title I school.

The existing arrangement of neighborhood schools allows the district to focus its Title I resources where the needs are greatest, Cross said.

'I don't know how we would operate a Title I program if our Title I students were dispersed throughout the school system," he said. No doubt, Cross added, it would be difficult to direct the special academic services to the appropriate children.

"Wait And See"

When the four additional Title I schools were designated, Cross and a Title I reading consultant said they asked state officials about the implications of Lubbock's current school desegregation case.

They were told to go ahead with the Title I expansion and take a "wait and see" approach to whatever Judge Woodward might decide in the case.

Woodward is not expected to rule until January. Expansion of the Title I program will involve hiring five more reading teachers, four more math teachers, two kindergarten aides, and a counselor, visiting teacher, nurse, librarian and clerk.

Federal funding for the program this year will be increased by about $190,000 due to the expansion. The overall annual Title I budget, which now provides for 48 reading teachers, 29 math teachers and 16 kindergarten aides, will be about $1 49

Other Title I schools are Bean, Bozeman, Harwell, Iles, Jackson, McWhorter, Mahon, Martin, Parkway, Posey, Sanders, Tubbs, Wheatley and Wolffarth.

The expansion, which will begin as soon as possible, will bring about 560 more students into the services offered through Title I. About 3,800 students are served in the present 14 schools.

Additional Help Given Title I services are above and beyond the regular school program. Eligible students spend a class period a day working with the designated Title I teachers, often on a one-to-one basis

'Copter Crash On Oil Rig Fatal To 17

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) - A helicopter crowded with oil workers crashed into the offshore rig on which it was trying to land in high winds Thursday and dropped 130 feet to rough seas below

Seventeen men died; two lived. "I just heard a noise and we started spinning around and flapping in the air. It just went on over the edge of the helicopter deck," said Mike Peschier, 32, one of the survivors.

The Coast Guard said winds were registering up to 35 mph. The helicopter sank beneath 10-foot-high waves.

Peschier, who lives in Lafayette, said he and the other men were headed for a rig 90 miles south of Morgan City, La., to begin a seven-day shift.

"It all happened so fast," he said in a telephone interview from his hospital

"I got thrown out of the helicopter is how I got saved. I just free fell down to the water. I flew out of the helicopter itself as it was spinning around up there.

Peschier, the father of three children, said he was not seriously hurt. He and the other survivor, identified only as Robert Berry, were brought into Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital in Lafayette, where they both were listed in stable Berry was under sedation and could not be disturbed.

Bob Harper, a spokesman for Pennzoil Producing Co., which employed the workmen, said 17 men died in the crash. But he said the company still has not determined what caused the crash. The craft was identified as a 19-seat

French-built Puma helicopter, used to ferry workers to and from offshore rigs. The French built the Puma to be a military transport craft. It was owned by Petroleum Helicopters

Inc. of Lafayette.

Soviets Rap U.S. Backing Of Cairo

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union said Thursday the United States undermined a U.S.-Soviet Mideast policy statement by supporting Cairo peace talks proposed by Egyptian President

The Soviet news agency Tass said Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was working to make the meeting a success. Egypt, Israel, the United States and the United Nations will attend, but Israel's other Arab foes and the Soviet Union rejected Sadat's invitation.

Tass said Vance's efforts were "in direct contradiction to the Soviet-American joint statement ... which says the Geneva conference must be held before the end of the year with the participation of all the sides concerned to solve the Middle East problem comprehensively

Ban Decreed On Certain Adhesives

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Consumer Product Safety Commission decided Thursday to ban highly flammable contact adhesives used in some furniture and home construction projects.

The ban will affect adhesives sold at the consumer level, but will not affect those intended for industrial use. The commission also instructed its staff to continue studies on the need for a mandatory standard for chain saws to prevent kickback The commission had received a letter from the manufacturers of the saws asking for participation in development of a voluntary standard. However, both Commissioners R. David Pittle and Barbara H. Franklin indi-

The highly flammable glues are popular because of their quick-drying properties, which result from use of solvents which evaporate rapidly.

However, the commission's spokeswoman, Heidi Halter, said vapors from the adhesives can ignite explosively or cause flash fires.

Since 1970, she said, there have been 130 burn injuries in the country attributable to the adhesives, including 15

Mrs. Halter said the products are most commonly used to bond plastic laminates to counters and tabletops, glue tile boards to walls, put down flooring, in some furniture construction and to bond leather, wood, metal, tile, rubber and Brinkerhoff said he expected the mortgage market to come under pressure from broader short-and long-term interest-rate increases of one-half to threequarters of a percent.

The average interest rate for a conventional mortgage covering 80 percent of the cost of the home now is 8.95 percent, he said. The range varies from about 8.50 percent to 9.25 percent, depending on housing demand in the region.

A home owner with a conventional 80 percent, 30-year mortgage on a $49,500 house, the national median price of a new home, would make a monthly pay-

A one-quarter percent increase in the rate would raise the monthly payment to $324.35 over the 30-year life of the loan

Specifically, he said, inflow of funds to savings and loan institutions should dec-line next year to about $35 billion from around $50 billion this year.

Lake Ransom Canyon Incorporation Vote Set

Lake Ransom Canyon will vote again Saturday whether to incorporate as a village, and this time backers and even opponents of the issue say there's a good chance the proposal will pass.

"The election is going to be close, but I feel incorporation may have picked up enough support in the past few weeks to carry," Reid Warner, president of the property owners' association in the secluded subdivision of southeast Lubbock County, said Thursday.

Indeed, if Warner and other pro-incorporation forces have managed to sway only a few voters, that may be enough to tilt the Lake Ransom Canyon majority toward the "village" status.

A year ago, the subdivision's voters rejected the same proposition by a slim 81-67 margin.

The issues haven't changed much since then.

"Basically, one group feels we just need a little more organization in the way of law enforcement and other services. And the other group feels it would not be wise to create another layer of government," Warner said.

'Several meetings" have been held in about 145 homes and 350 residents, to discuss the incorporation proposal recently,

The boards of the property owners' group and subdivision's water district have spoken out in favor of incorporation, Warner said. Warner argues that organizing as a village would "increase our effectiveness in providing security and police protection, setting up speed zones, maintaining roads" and zoning property.

Currently, the subdivision has a private security force - paid for by residents but without the weight of a "duly authorized peace officer," Warner said.

Lake Ransom Canyon depends on Lubbock County government for supplemental law enforcement and all road maintenance services.

Residents recently have established their own volunteer fire department.

Opponents of incorporation say the subdivision is too small now to shoulder the financial burden of providing the proposed services.

By law, the maximum tax the incorporated village could levy would be 25 cents

"I still have questions whether this is the right time to incorporate," said Cam Fannin, who led last year's opposition to

"There's a big question whether we have a sufficient number of residents, at the tax rate we'd be allowed to charge, to raise enough revenue to run a city," Fannin said.

But, he added, since the last election, the "feeling of the community has changed somewhat in favor of incorporation." Fannin predicts a close vote Satur-

Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the subdivision sales office.

If the vote carries, another election will be held for selection of village officers a mayor, five aldermen and a marshal.

Should the proposition pass, incorporation will be successful only if "a majority of people are ready to cinch up their belts and pitch in to help," Fannin said.

That means filling the governing positions and other part-time jobs - such as assistant deputy, city secretary and municipal judge - at no pay, Fannin said.

Registration Cards Mailed To County Voters

Avalanche-Journal Staff If you don't get a new voter registration card in the next few days, you may have trouble at the polls in 1978.

So says Russell Hardin, Lubbock County tax assessor-collector, after his office Thursday started mailing the new yellow cards — in contrast to the old blue certificates - to the 79,110 persons now listed on the county's voting rolls. 'We're going by the last-known addresses on the current voting list, which is supposed to include everybody registered to vote in Lubbock County," Hardin

'Now, we know some of those addresses are going to be wrong because people have moved within the county and maybe even left the county without notifying us," he said.

"My advice to people who don't receive a new card in the mail in the next plies to both the people who know they are registered, because they hold a blue certificate or have voted in a recent election, and the people who aren't registered but want to be," Hardin said.

He said persons who fail to get a yellow voter registration card may be removed from the county's voting rolls and "have a hassle trying to vote next year" in city, school, primary and general elections.

The law says that you must be registered to vote at least 30 days prior to an election. That's what we go by, although I know there are still some people who believe they can go to the polls without a voter registration card and hornswoggle the election judge into letting them vote," Hardin said.

Under new federal laws, such persons may indeed be allowed to cast ballots. But, Hardin said, without proper registration they will be holding up voting lines "and wasting their own time as well as the election judge's."

They are being mailed out in "postcard" form, Hardin said.

The cards note, "You may become ineligible to vote if you move without notifying your registrar of voters immediately." In Lubbock County's case, Hardin's office serves as the voter registrar. Questions about voter registration can be handled by Hardin's office in the Lubbock County Courthouse at telephone number 763-5351; or by Secretary of State Steven C. Oaks' staff through a new, toll-free number, 1-800-252-9602.

Hardin said persons who receive yellow voter registration cards that contain wrong information — such as a previous address or name — should correct the data on the card and send it back to the county tax office.

The office then will print a new card with the right information and return it to the voter, he said.

How does Santa Claus arrive in your town?

In the old days, he used to come zooming across the sky in a miniature red sleigh pulled by eight tiny reindeer. Not any more, though. Nowadays, St. Nick is liable to pop into town in a chopper or an airplane or riding a bike.

The great man might even float into town Phineas Fogg-style aboard a balloon. It all depends on how much imagination they have down at your local

At a Seattle, Wash., shopping center a few Christmases ago, Santa made his grand entrance in a snowmobile. The only trouble was it didn't snow the day he arrived. Rough sledding also faced a Maynard, Mass., St. Nick who, during the annual yuletide parade, was supposed to be dragged around on a dogsled.

There was no snow that day either. The dogs and sled were in the parade, but Santa was missing. He was found hiding in one of the official limousines that traveled the parade route.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son and his wife are vegetarians. Their little girl is now 17 months old and just weaned from the mother's milk. She is not allowed meat, fish, fowl, eggs, milk or any milk products. Her diet includes soybeans and, of course, fresh vegetables, fruits, nuts and grains. I am worried that she is not getting enough protein. What is your opinion? Also she is not allowed to have any immunization or vaccination shots. - Mrs. C.

Many people, for their own reasons, getting more popular. If your son and his wife understand vegetarianism and what it entails nutritionally, they are probably able to cope with it, and you shouldn't interfere. Many do not know.

There are soem things I can tell you about it that are generally true.

There are three types of vegetarians. Some eat no animal products, including egg and dairy products. Some don't even use honey. The lacto-vegetarian uses milk and eggs. Your son and his wife have chosen the strictest of regimens no meat, fish, fowl, or milk products.

Are vegetarians healthy people? Yes, most are, but they must be well-versed in food values. Otherwise, there is the tendency to get short-changed in the matter of protein. Those who use milk and eggs can keep in satisfactory protein balance. Others tend to lose weight and many be-

This strict a vegetarian diet for a 17month-old child in my opinion is not wise. Without milk the calcium and Vitamin D requirements are lacking. Vitamin B is obtained only from cereal, meat, fish, or fowl sources. A deficiency in B raises the anemia question. Protein obtained from non-meat sources can be incomplete. Protein is present in nuts, legumes, vegetables, and fruit, but it is doubtful a child of that age can consume enough to get its required share. Supplements must be considered.

The non-immunization and non-vaccination matter is a moral question.

I'll state only my medical reservations about this, and your son and his wife may (rightly or wrongly) disagree. These are preventive measures to spare youngsters the ravages and crippling effects of preventable infectious diseases. With a lowprotein diet, a youngster may not develop adequate natural immunity to cope with all sorts of infections.

From a medical standpoint it's not a good idea to inflict potential medical burdens on a child. As to the vegetarianism, it is best to examine such youngsters periodcially to determine how they are faring nutritionally.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 87. A year ago shingles popped out on me. Today the right side of the chest still gets painfully sore. The doctor gave me cortisone and the lesions healed. Now I guess the nerves are still sore. What can be done to ease the pain? - Mrs. R.L.N.

In shingles a virus attacks a cluster of cells at the nerve root. That accounts for the pain and the skin eruption. I can't tell from your letter how soon after the blebs appeared you were treated. It's important to get early treatment to reduce the duration and pain. Prednisone given eary helps. In younger people simple painkillers as aspirin or codeine may be sufficient. Various combinations of tranquilizers have been tried with uneven results - for example, phenothiazine and thoradiazine simultaneously. A neurologist would be familiar with the various successful combinations.

Shingles pain that recurs doesn't mean another attack. One attack usually means a person immune to the virus (herpes zoster). Shingles pain that hangs on as long as yours can be an agonizing problem, especially for older people. See a neurologist. Some doctors have had good results with the various combination of drugs, even late in the game.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How much Vitamin C a day is needed for good health? -

A 150-pound man needs about 60 milligrams of Vitamin C to maintain health. That's about the amount in an averagesize orange Shingles can be a painful disease! For a copy of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to him, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Why do we do it? Because we love our men and don't want them to feel inadequate. We accept the fact that we have been biologically short-changed by Mother Nature and it isn't anybody's fault. No woman ever enjoys sex as much as a man does and she never will.

So we just go on doing our little act. Knowing that our men are satisfied is enough for us. Do you have the guts to print this? - Enjoying Nothing But The Applause in Kansas City

Both decisions were correct although South did make all the tricks. On the other hand if he had been in seven he would have gone down, assuming he gave the hand the correct play.

Why did South make seven at his six notrump contract? Because he could afford to lose one heart trick. Therefore, he made the standard safety play of plunking down the ace. When West dropped the king it was a simple matter to go to dummy and finesse against East's jack.

Playing at seven the best chance to bring in the whole suit is to finesse the queen. This wins against a doubleton or the actual holding of jack and two small in East and singleton king in West.

Stamps Note Publicity Of Endangered Species

Protecting endangered species of aniproblem, but the attempts by various governments to publicize their efforts is being noted on the stamps of many countries nowadays. The latest of these wildlife protection stamp series has been released by Ghana.

Ghana's set consists of four stamps and a souvenir sheet featuring animals of that country now considered to be in danger of extinction. Each stamp bears the inscription "Wildlife" and the emblem of Ghana's Wildlife Society.

This year has been declared "World Rheumatism Year" in an effort to gain international support from people in all lands to aid those suffering from this ailment. Lesotho issued a new set of stamps this year dedicated to a public program. One stamp shows a man leaning on a cane. Also part of the design are four sets of concentric circles symbolizing pain and inflammation. Another stamp features symbolic flames encircling an ailing man. The third stamp depicts a bent-over figure surrounded by a chain. The fourth stamp bears a design of a figure with cane plus a globe to show the universality of the disease.

Antiques Can Be Dated By American Symbols

The symbols of America have changed through the years. Uncle Sam and the flag, the Statue of Liberty and the Liberty Bell are well known today, but there were other figures and symbols in earlier centuries. These representations of America often lasted a set period of time and can be used to help date antiques.

The Indian Princess, a rather wild lady with feathers and a pet alligator, was the figure chosen by Europe when America first was discovered. Gradually, the lady turned into Columbia. An eagle, a flag, and a liberty hat often accompanied Columbia, a refined and strong female fig-have at hand.

Recycle bits of wood, wire and other things left over from do-it-yourself projects by making bird feeders, birdhouses and nest shelters for your feathered friends. As more trees are removed there are few places for birds to nest and rear their young. Many birds are lost during severe winters because they cannot find feeding stations which may even be put on apartment window ledges. Birdhouses need not be elaborate. Birds do not know the difference. More important than good looks is a birdhouse that is appropriate for the species of birds in your area. For example, bluebirds usually nest in deep crevices in trees in open spaces and they like birdhouses that provide that kind of space even though floor space need not be big.

At summer's end, birdhouses can be cleaned and prepared for the following year or they may be left in place and cleaned in the spring.

The size of the opening on a house is important. You want to keep out squirrels, snakes and other predators. A little wren needs a small aperture - % of an inch. The friendly chickadee as well as the little Carolina wren requires a hole of about 1- inches. Tufted titmice, whitebreasted nuthatches and downy woodpeckers can squeeze through an opening of 114 inches even though they look much bigger than chickadees. The hairy woodpecker and tree swallow need a 2-inch entranceway, although 11/2 inches is considered the right aperture for a bluebird.

Nesting shelters with one or more sides open are suited to robins, barn-swallows and phoebes. Phoebes often will nest in the rafters of an open barn or garage. Scarlet tanagers usually build stick nests high in trees. Also Baltimore orioles, whose basket-type nests are suspended

The rejected ordinance did not have enough "control," Mayor Roy Bass said at the meeting.

The council is in favor of an ordinance amendment requiring restaurants or bars to go before the Zoning Board of Adjustment in order to receive a liquor permit. The restaurant or bar probably would have to submit a site plan as was required in the ordinance amendment sent back a few weeks ago, Senter said.

"I think going through the ZBA would be the best way to do this...it would be more stable," Bass said.

The ordinance amendment requiring ZBA approval had met with a great deal of opposition from the Lubbock Restaurant Association, although much of the opposition stemmed from a clause requiring no alcholic beverages be sold after midnight.

When the council sent this ordinance amendment back several weeks ago, representatives from the city legal department met with representatives of the Lubbock Restaurant Association to come up with a compromise ordinance. The compromise was one the city could enforce, and one agreeable to the restaurant people. The present ordinance is unenforceable, the city legal department says.

The compromise ordinance was the one sent back Thursday by the council. The idea behind the ordinance amendments is to keep bars from posing as restaurants, when the only kitchen facilities they have are a microwave oven. The city council also officially approved the annexation of about 158 acres of land in southwest Lubbock Assistant city attorney Ken Jones said he talked by phone Thursday morning with representatives of the Justice Department who, he said, told him no decision on the annexation had been made by the department. The council delayed second and final consideration last month when the Justice Department said such annexations as the one passed today may weaken minority voting strength. The area annexed is bordered by IndiStreet and 106th Street, including a 660foot strip east of Indiana Avenue and a 150-foot strip west of Memphis.

The council also authorized $25,000 for Civic Lubbock, Inc. to purchase a tapestry for the Civic Center

The tapestry will be placed in the center's banquet hall, above the doors "so it can be seen and not reached," said Bill Holder, head of the Art Committee for Civic Lubbock.

The tapestry will be done by Lubbockite Romeo Revna, who has studied and taught art and has several examples of his work hanging around the United States and in other parts of the world.

The tapestry will be hung on five panels of the banquet hall, each panel being 30 feet high. It should be 150 feet long when it is completed April 1. Reyna is expected to start on the project before Christmas, and the materials will be purchased starting Monday.

The council also passed an ordinance establishing a minimum speed limit of 45 mph for the main lanes of Loop 289. The ordinance was designed to keep a relatively even pace on the Loop, and encourage slow traffic such as tractors to use the frontage roads.

An outside consultant was hired to update the city's personnel classification system, a $49,000 project which may be

CHAPTER FIVE: THE SOPCHOPPY FERRY

Santa And The Pigwidgen

(Synopsis: Searching for the Pigwidgen, Claus meets an old crone who directs him on a strange road where he finds a crooked-legged elf named Patrick Tweedleknees.)

By LUCRECE BEALE

CLAUS sat up and rubbed his nose. Patrick Tweedleknees stood before him two The elf's legs were bowed. His nose was pointed. Wooly eyebrows drooped over his fierce blue eyes. Bristles of red hair sprang straight up from his head.

Tweedleknees brandished his fiercely flashlight and hollered. "You're trepassing on private property, sir! I'd like to know what's so funny about that!"

Claus said hastily, "I am sorry. I was looking for the Sopchoppy River and the elf who runs the ferry there."

"I am the elf," said Tweedleknees. "I am the captain of the fer-

"But," said Claus, "where is the river? "You are sitting on it," said

Tweedleknees grumpily. Claus jumped to his feet in alarm. He peered at the ground. The first light of day had now come but he could see no river, not even a puddle.

"It's an underground river," said Tweedleknees huffy, "You were sitting on the entrance."

He kicked aside a layer of sod. There was a trap door. He lifted the door and flashed his light into a great hole. At the bottom was a river. Anchored there was a flimsy raft made of thousand and thousands of matchsticks.

"That," announced the elf, "is the Sopchoppy River Ferry. Now may I inquire who you are and what you're doing poking into business that is no concern of yours?'

"But it is my business!" declared Claus.

He told Tweedlekness how a curse had escaped from a mysterious black pocket book left in his keeping. And how all the children of the land had fallen into a sleep from which they could not be

"I have set out to destroy the Pigwidgen, whoever or whatever finished Claus. "And I have heard you are the one who can tell me what I need to know."

"The Pigwidgen is the strongest power on earth," said the elf. 'You can never destroy him." "Nevertheless," said Claus, "I shall try.' "Centuries ago the Pigwidgen laid a curse on the elves," said Tweedleknees. "Since then if the light of sun or moon falls on an elf he will turn to ashes: All except me. I was swimming under the Sopchoopy River at the time. I am very good at underwater swimming and I escaped the curse. ALl other elves must live underground

"Where will I find the Pigwidgen?" asked Claus.

'No elf has ever seen him. He lives behind walls in a land of frost and never-ending snow."

"I will go there," said Claus. You are braver than you look to be," said Tweedleknees grudgingly. HIs nose seemed to grow sharper. HIs red hair turned more fiery. "No one is braver than I," he declared belligerently. "I will go with you.

Then let us be off!" said Claus. 'We will need weapons," said

'What kind of weapons?" "Special ones. The elves will make them. Come, don't dally

He gave the unsuspecting Claus a shove and they both tumbled down the hole to the Sopchoppy River Ferry.

Panel Probes Fire Marshal's Extinguisher Licensing Policy

AUSTIN (AP) - A Senate subcommittee decided Thursday "to get to the bottom" of allegations that State Fire Marshal Charles Meadows issues fire extinguisher licenses without checking into applicants' qualifications.

A hearing was set for Dec. 15. 'We're going to get this all out on the ecord," said chairman Ron Clower of the subcommittee on consumer affairs.

The staff was instructed to notify Meadows; chairman Hugh Yantis of the State Insurance Board, which oversees the marshal; and former insurance chairman Joe Christie, now a U.S. Senate candidate, and others of the hearing.

Yantis restored Meadows, a former Odessa fire chief, to full authority after Yantis succeeded Christie. A subcommittee staff report said Christie had taken away Meadows' administrative and managerial responsibilities after an internal evaluation had disclosed the fire marshal's office "was having serious difficulties with work backlogs and processing problems."

Subcommittee researcher Grubbs said fire marshals in the Dallas-Fort Worth area complained to Clower after Yantis restored Meadows' authori-

"What do you mean by 'selling'?" asked Clower, D-Garland.

"They (operators) claim you can walk into that (fire marshal) office over there. pay $75 (the registration fee) and be handed a license," Grubbs said.

He said marshals and operators claim that the required periodic inspection of equipment "amounts to little more than a phone call from the (state) fire marshal's office to see if the operator is still

One marshal complained, Grubbs said, that "his five-year-old daughter could pass" the examination given to those who apply for licenses.

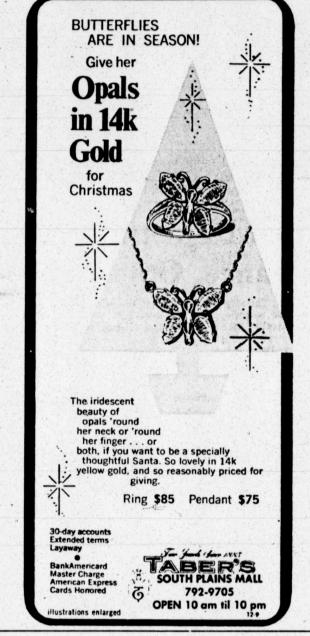

Grubbs said marshals praised a newsletter that was started under the Christie reorganization as being "very effective in reducing the number of dishonest operators." The newsletter told of hearings on suspected violators and "served to warn disreputable operators of the determination of the state fire marshal's office to more effectively police the industry," Grubbs said.

Meadows, he said, discontinued the newsletter, stating he did not feel it justi-

AUSTIN (AP) - Higher Education Commissioner Ken Ashworth said Thursday that for "consumer protection," he might seek power to regulate teaching in Texas by out-of-state colleges.

Mobilization Delays Seen Via Draft Lack

DALLAS (AP) - It would take seven months for the Selective Service system to produce a combat-ready soldier, according to the U.S. Army Chief of Staff.

And General Bernard W. Rogers adds that the nation's military reserve, needed to maintain a war effort until the draft can be reinstated, is some 400,000 persons short of the needed number.

'The active Army, now one-half the size it was 10 years ago, cannot alone cope with the needs of a European defense even for a relatively short period of time," Rogers told the Dallas chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army, Thurs-

Should war break out, not only must we come as we are, but we must stay until it's over," Rogers said in an advanced text of his remarks.

He said the Selective Service machinery is now in a deep standby status and it would take some seven months after mobilization before the first draftee could be trained.

During that seven-month period themilitary would have to depend on the re-

Rogers urged stepped-up recruiting for the reserve programs.

We must redouble our efforts to attract the right kinds of young men and women into the reserve forces, and then keep them there. Nazi s Denied Use

Of War Recording

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rejecting free speech arguments, a state judge Thurs-day forbade the American Nazi Party to use dial-up telephone recordings calling for "an all-white war" against Jews and blacks, and offering $5,000 prizes.

District Judge Richard Millard's temporary injunction modified a week-old restraining order which had shut down three Nazi recordings. The new order allows use of the same tapes but with violent language deleted.

Lawyers for television reporter Marvin Zindler, a Jew who filed suit to stop the recordings, argued that the taped message was not constitutionally protected because it advocated violence and posed a threat to the public

"It's a replay of the 1930s in Nazi Germany," Zindler testified. "An irresponsible person could take this as meaning they were going to get $5,000 and kill somebody. I could care less about the Nazi party being against Jews. It's the language urging to kill."

Attorney Michael Maness, who resigned the American Civil Liberties Union's local board to represent the Nazis, said the modified ban is "better," but he expects a higher court to overturn Mil"Everybody loses when anybody's right to free speech is suppressed," Maness said. "I think somewhere up the line a higher court will overturn it.' Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. law-yer Jim Shatto, who said the company found the recordings abhorrent, said he also would recommend appeal on constitutional grounds. Maness argued unsuccessfully that the recordings, which a person had to dial to hear, were constitutionally protected political rhetoric and not actual threats.

The recording said in part, "We are calling for an all-white war against Jews and other non-whites We are beginning a battle by offering a $5,000 prize for every non-white killed during an attack on a white person."

Japanese Student Wins $682,000

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) - A Japanese student at Munich Technical University won $682,000 in a West German lottery on his first try at guessing six figures out of a possible 49.

'The chance of winning something is too small, I won't play," the 25-yearold engineering student was quoted as saying before a German fellow-student persuaded him to buy a 50-cent ticket.

A spokesman for the Bavarian State Lottery Administration declined Wednesday to identify the lucky winner, but the student had "six right ones" over the weekend and only played when his friend told him that this time an extra 1,000 color television sets were prizes.

The lottery agency said the student plans to continue his studies in Munich and plans to keep his German girlfriend.

"I won't swap her for a geisna because she loved me at a time when I was still poor," the winner was reported to have said.

Royal Baby Gets Name, No Title

LONDON (AP) - Princess Anne has named her baby Peter Mark Andrew Phillips, Buckingham Palace announced Thursday.

But, as the Palace had stressed before the baby was born, Queen Elizabeth II's first grandchild will have no title even though he is fifth in line to the British throne

He will be known as Master Peter Phillips.

Baby Peter, the first royal grandchild to be born a commoner, will be christened in the music room at Buckingham Palace by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Donald Coggan, at noon Thursday Dec. 22.

That is where the princess herself was christened 27 years ago, as were Crown Prince Charles and Prince Andrew, while the queen's youngest son, Prince Edward, was christened at Windsor Castle.

At the birth of Anne's baby boy in St. Mary's Hospital, London, Nov. 15 flags were raised, champagne flowed, gun salutes sounded across London and the delighted queen was late for an investiture ceremony

The baby's name, Peter, is the second name of his father, Army Capt. Mark Phillips, and the first name of Capt. Phillips' father.

Romantic Witchcraft Fails Suitor

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A 26-year-old man dressed in black and carrying a book on witchcraft got his foot in the door of a Minneapolis woman's apartment building. But he couldn't get it out.

The woman told police the intruder, dressed in black with a black cape, was waiting when she returned home about 2:15 a.m. Wednesday. "I've been waiting for you," he announced, but the woman said she did not know the man, went inside her apartment and locked the door.

Then she heard a crash. She said the man was trying to crawl through a hole he made in the apartment door, and she ran to a neighbor's apartment to call

The intruder began kicking the door, but got his foot stuck. He was trying to wiggle free when police arrived.

Police took the man to Hennepin County Medical Center for treatment of a pulled muscle. They found he was carrying a book called "How to Succeed with Women with Witchcraft.

So researchers at the University of Delaware's College of Marine Studies are trying to develop a special chow for oysters and clams. Aided by a $1.2 million grant from the federal Economic Development Administration, the school will try to develop a tasty, cheap shellfish feed for the commercial cultivation of the ocean creatures.

"The production of algal food will be the most difficult part," said Hugh Fischer, a chemical engineer working on the project. "Algae require light to grow, and it's the provision of light that is the problem. The amounts of energy required are rather large."

But there's a good pay-off, researchers say. Natural oysters now sell for $6 to $20 a bushel. Fischer extimates that the price for cultvated oysters, which have more meat, could range from $20 to $70 a bushel.

Gum Wrapper Chain Occupies Teen

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — It took a jaw-numbing 5.875 sticks of gum, but Edith Barrett needed a lot of gum wrappers. At 25 gum wrappers a foot, she has made a paper chain 235 feet long.

"I started my gum-wrapper (chain) in 1974," said Edith, 15, a 10th grade honor student at North High School. "Making the gum-wrapper chain keeps me re-

Edith didn't chew all that gum herself. Classmates chipped in or, rather, chewed in.

"Kids leave gum wrappers in my desk, in my notebook, all over the place," she said. And her older sister, Nancy, said, "They call her the Gum-Wrapper

Edith says she plans to submit the chain to the Guinness Book of Records.

Wife Faints At Sight Of Husband

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The first thing Elaine Besedin did when she caught a glimpse of her Russian husband after 16 months of waiting was to faint. But seconds later, she recovered and hugged and kissed Victor Besedin, whom she married while studying Russian literature as an American exchange

Mrs. Besedin, 24, was forced to return alone to the United States in August 1976 when her visitor's visa expired. She was seven months pregnant and has been working since to gain an exit visa for her husband. After much delay, it was granted Dec- 1 and Wednesday night he arrived at Los Angeles International Airport.

Also at the airport to greet the father she'd never seen was the couple's 13month-old daughter, Victoria, who cried nervously until she was lifted and in quiet Russian told "everything's all right.

BEAUMONT (AP) - Fire officials in the Southeast Texas town suspect that an arsonist ignited a Thursday fire that killed three Lamar University freshman.

Buehl Landrum, Beaumont Fire Department arson investigator, said "As far as we can tell someone used a combustable liquid and poured it over an upstairs breezeway and set fire to it."

The victims, all Iberia, La., natives, were identified by Police Lt. Lyle Amy as Louis A. Peltier, 18, Kyle L. Landry, 18, and John R. Olmstead, 19. Officials said the fire started at 2 a.m.

The students had spent much of the previous night studying for final exams. The fire destroyed seven units of the

Irked Big Spring Officials Chart Washington Trip

BIG SPRING — Two Big Spring city

According to City Mgr. Harry Nagel, Big Spring's efforts to create an industrial park at Webb Air Force Base has bogged down in red tape created by the Businesses are prepared to move into facilities at the base but the GSA has not released buildings there to make this possible, said Nagel.

The city manager and Col. Harry Spannaus, manager of the Webb Industrial Park, will depart Sunday. A meeting with Joe Meis, under-secretary of the Air, Force, has been scheduled for 1:30

The two Big Spring men also hope to meet with Texas Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Omar Burleson while in the capital.

We're making the trip to shake something loose and will stay there until we

e Key To Coal Pipeline

AUSTIN (AP) - What happens in Colorado water circles the next year will determine whether Texas has a coal slurry

'If we continue to have a lot of prob-Tems up there we might just put it off," said Dave Keith, vice president in charge of communications for Houston Natural Gas, which wants the pipeline.

"If it takes five or six years before we can start construction something better might come along.

We think it will be at least two or three years before they can begin any construction, if they ever do," replies Walter Caven, head of the Texas Railroad Association, bitter foe of the half waterhalf coal pipeline, "and we will be fighting them all the way.

Houston Natural Gas won the first skirmish in the coal slurry controversy when it pushed a bill through the 1977 Legislature that authorizes operation of the pipeline in Texas, under regulation of the Texas Railroad Commission. The bill

Oil Men Halt Thievery

NOWATA, Okla. (AP) - Until about a year ago, highly organized thieves were raiding oil leases almost regularly in Nowata and Rogers counties.

That's when the operators got tired of it.

The thieves would take about everything of value from oil leases in a 100-mile-square area of northeast Oklahoma.

"After about a dozen items were taken, I started getting real mad," John Kester, lease and plugging service operator, said. He and operators and deputy sheriffs then put together a night patrol to watch lease equipment.

They use citizen's band radios and take turns watching the area, which has been mapped and coded

"What it boils down to is some of us taking turns patrolling the area," Kester said. "And when we catch someone on one of the leases when he shouldn't be there, we either hold him until the sheriff can get there or take care of the situation ourselves.

Nowata County Sheriff Harold Lav is high on the program.

"I'll tell you one danged thing, they have shut it down," he said. "I mean flat shut it down. They have gone about it in a real orderly fashion, too."

Lay said no arrests have resulted from the group's activity in his county but Rogers County Deputy Sheriff J.H. Honeycutt has four arrests have resulted in Rogers County from the work.

Operators involved in the area are small independents, not large companies. The wells may produce from one to 50 barrels of crude oil a day.

That's why the theft of even small items hurts. There isn't a lot of profit to start from.

Air Canada Jets' Near-Collision Probed By FAA

NEW YORK (AP) - A near-collision of two Air Canada jets over Kennedy Airport Wednesday was under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administra-

An FAA spokesman said Thursday that computer data and tape recordings were being reviewed to determine what had occurred and how close the planes and their 60 passengers had come to each other.

The incident occurred around noon when an inbound DC-9 from Montreal with 35 passengers narrowly missed a 727 taking off for Vancouver with 25 aboard, an Air Canada spokesman said. Collision was avoided when the second officer of one of the planes saw the othor plane in time to veer off, he said. The Air Canada spokesman put the distance between the two planes at 1,000 feet, but a passenger had an initial impression that it was closer. The airline said both planes were following instructions of the Kennedy control tower at the time. Air Canada requested the investigation, it said.

Salamanders Sought By Japanese Police

TOKYO (AP) - Detectives are looking for two rare salamanders, valued at $40,-000-$80,000, missing from two Tokyo zoos. The search is concentrating on pet stores and gourmet shops.

The 381/2-inch salamanders, weighing 161/2 pounds and designated national monuments by the government, have been missing since mid-November.

Police said the lizard-like salamanders are said to be exotic food, with gourmets willing to pay high prices. They are also reported in demand as pets in the United States, West Germany and the Netherlands.

a right-of-way, but Texas water cannot be seized for use in making the slurry, which is 50 percent pulverized coal and 50 per-

Houston Natural Gas said during the long, bitter legislative battle that it would build a 900-mile pipeline costing an estimated $600 million from a coal pulverizing plant in Walsenburg, of south central Colorado, to near Houston. Supporters argued the coal would be welcomed by Texas Gulf Coast industries as they are forced to abandon natural gas as a boiler

Caven and representatives of all Texas railroads argued that the pipeline, which would be the first interstate effort ever attempted, would hurt railroads who need the coal business for their strained financial conditions. Wyoming coal already is being shipped into Texas by rail for electricity generating plants at San Antonio and in Fayette County.

"If we can defeat them economically, and we think we can, we can beat them, says Caven about Houston Natural Gas's water troubles in Colorado.

For construction and operation of the pipeline, Houston Natural Gas entered into a joint venture with Denver-based Rio Grande Industries to form the San Marco Pipeline

San Marco applied Dec. 30, 1976, for water rights to what they say is an untapped underground acquifer in Colorado's San Luis Valley - but it has not received them so far. In fact, 20 statements of opposition have been filed in the water court at Alamosa, including those by the state of Colorado and the Rio Grande court is waiting for San Marco to complete testing a number of deep wells in its effort to prove the water it claims is not subject to previous water claims.

Local Folk Aroused

The water fight has aroused farmers and ranchers in the San Louis Valley who want to keep Colorado water from going to Texas. An organization called "Folks Against Coal Slurry" put out bumper stickers reading "Hurry, Stop the Slur-ry, "and "San Marco Go Home."

'The pipeline threatens our livelihoods, the way of life that we have known," said Vicente Valdez, one of the organizers. "Without water, our land is little more than a desert."

Meanwhile, an interim committee of the Colorado General Assembly has drafted a bill that would specifically forbid the use of Colorado water in slurry pipelines. However, the bill will not be up for debate until 1979, unless the governor schedules it for the short financial session in 1978, which he is not likely to the Colorado water problems were recon-

"There are about four phases in the building of this slurry pipeline," said

"First, you have to have the legal right to build it. We think we have that from the legislature.

"Second, you have to have the water. That's what we are working on now with the San Marco Pipeline.

Two Items Lacking

Then third and fourth you have to have a coal supply and you have to have the customers for the coal. We do not have the last two because we cannot assure them we will buy the coal or that we can deliver it until we get the water," Keith said.

"I would imagine that if a year from now it looks good on the water situation, we will than make an application to the Texas Railroad Commission for the pipeline permit. In this way the water court hearings and the commission hearings on right of way can be going on concurrent-

Under terms of the Texas legislative act the commission must hold local hearings along the proposed right of way to get the

"Certainly we will oppose the pipeline throughout at all the hearings," said Caven. "We will seek to show it is unn sary from a transportation point of view. The railroads are already here and can do a better job."

Obstacles Evaluated

Keith thinks the eminent domain hearings for right of way will not be as big an obstacle for the pipeline as the water battle. "Eminent domain is seldom used in pipeline construction," he said. "Ninety percent of all pipeline rights of way are negotiated because they know you have the right to take it to court, and you know they can take you to court if they are not satisfied.

'We think water and the environmental aspects are the prime problems of the people trying to build this pipeline," said Caven. "It is a misuse of water from the beginning to end of the pipeline. They have never addressed themselves to what they are going to do with the water once the coal is taken out of it. That is an environmental problem of serious dimenTha

Problem Discounted Keith said disposal of the 15,000 acre foot of water expected to be used annually to transport the coal is not considered a serious problem although they cannot say exactly how it will be done until the final consumers of the coal are deter-

"If the coal is delivered to a utility company for generating energy it would be a simple matter to use the water. Such a plant uses eight times as much water in generating electricity as it would receive with the coal used for generating that amount of power.

We are not going to take away the railroads' business," Keith said, "and in the long run it will help them."

Missing Woman 'Found'

By JACK DOUGLAS Avalanche-Journal Staff

The story of a missing Anton woman, which included a three-day search by air and ground, had a happy ending Thurs-

Details remained sketchy, though, on how Zefpha Grace, 64, and her husband, Roy, missed connections after leaving Anton Tuesday for a four-month camping trip to Falcon Lake in far South Texas near the Mexican border.

But the retired schoolteacher called her worried husband, who was at a relative's house in Anton awaiting some word of her whereabouts, about 9:15 a.m. Thursday to say she was all right. Mrs. Grace called from a motel in Zapata, about 30 miles east of the couple's original destination.

Grace told The Avalanche-Journal he and his wife had mapped out a route in which they were going to take Highway 84 to Falcon, staying in San Angelo the first night and then going into Falcon.

But Mrs. Grace, who was supposed to be several miles behind her husband when they first started out, decided to take the Highway 87 turnoff on Highway 287, to the bewilderment of her husband, a retired farmer.

"It was just a mixup, I guess you would call it," said Grace, who planned to head out for Zapata Friday morning after "re-

Grace left Anton about 8 a.m. Tuesday, hauling a camper behind his vehicle. His wife was to leave in another car after stopping at the city post office.

Grace stopped in Colorado City and waited for his wife, but she never appeared. But having taken another route, Mrs. Grace bypassed Colorado City and went on to a campground in San Angelo.

Grace said his wife told him that after waiting several hours in San Angelo, she went to Sonora, where she spent Tuesday night. The couple had stayed in Sonora before on previous trips to Falcon.

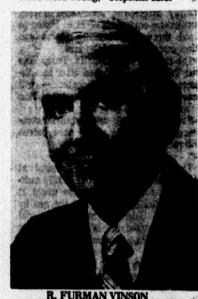

Grace spent Tuesday night in Colorado City with Reggie Stephens, whose wife is Grace's niece. Wednesday morning the retired farmer mounted an extensive search, gathering relatives and authorities in Lubbock, Lamb and Hockley coun-

Relatives flew over U.S. 84 Wednesday looking for Mrs. Grace, but at the same time the sought-after woman was traveling on to Zapata, hoping to find her husband there. "I don't know why she didn't call-home," Grace said. "I never thought about her taking the other highway."

Mrs. Grace spent Wednesday night in Zapata and called her husband in Anton this morning, halting a search which was growing more extensive.

Grace said he would leave Anton today. 'So I know we're going to meet again." "It's been a relief that all the thoughtswe had were wrong," Stephens said.

HONG KONG (AP) - Britain's lease from China on Hong Kong is due to expire in 20 years but the colonial government is going ahead with a multi-billiondollar housing and industrial development program in an area known as the New Territories.

Comprising almost 90 percent of the colony's 404 square miles and less than a quarter of the 4.5 million population, the rural New Territories were leased to Britain by China for 99 years under the

Hong Kong is one of the most densely populated places in the world, with most of its people living in the twin cities of Victoria on Hong Kong Island and Kowloon on the mainland, separated by one of the world's busiest harbors.

'Vegetable Garden' The New Territories, the portion of land bordering China's southern Kwantung Province plus 235 largely barren islands, was until recently described as the colony's "vegetable garden" and still provides 44 per cent of the vegetables consumed, some 48 per cent of total live chickens and 16 per cent of all pigs slaughtered.

But nowadays bulldozers are as common a sight as the peasant in his field behind a buffalo and wooden plow.

With Hong Kong's population expected to zoom to six million by 1990, the outward thrust into the New Territories began in the late 1960s and reached dizzying pace in 1973 when the governor, Sir Murray Maclehose, announced a plan costing the equivalent of $2.66 billion to build three new satellite towns and three market towns in the area.

The three towns of Shatin, Tsuen Wan and Tuen Mun - named after the districts where they are located - will provide jobs and housing for 1.9 million people by 1980.

Factories, schools and industrial complexes have sprung up in once barren and rocky terrain.

World's Fourth Largest The container shipping terminal at Kwai Chung was completed in 1976 making it the fourth largest in the world. It is connected by a bridge to the nea by Tsing Vi Island where traditional Chinese boat building is now carried out along factories which build shipping con-

The secretary of for the New Territories, David Aker-Jones, said the government had drawn up plans to ensure that all residents in the area would have the necessary "ingredients for a full and satisfying life with town halls, swimming pools, hospitals and schools."

Magician Illustrates Sermons

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Rabbi Bernard M. Cohen always delivers a spellbinding sermon at Temple Solael on family night - with a little help from magician David

On the second Friday night of each month, Cohen and Avadon team up to present Sabbath services. The rabbi tells a Biblical story, and the magician punctuates it with illustrations and illusions of his own creation Family night services featuring the magic acts are designed to attract more children and young adults, Cohen said. Since they began four months ago, the 47year-old rabbi says he has noticed a sizeable increase in attendance at the suburban Canoga Park temple.

"When it comes to being religious, people are interested in being innovative,'

The most recent presentation illustrated the eight-day Jewish holiday, Hanukkah, which began Dec. 4 this year. The story tells of the Maccabees, the victorious "freedom fighters" who re-captured Jerusalem 2,100 years ago from the Syrians who wanted the Jewish people to worship their Greek gods. Hanukkah, known as the Festival of Lights, marks the occasion of that victory.

While Cohen told the story from the shadows of the temple's altar-turned-center stage. (He and Cohen agreed in the beginning that the magician would not try to duplicate Biblical miracles).

The spirit of the Jewish people was impossible to cut, Cohen explained. At the same time, Avadon cut a scarf, folded it, then unfolded it whole again.

The fight for religious freedom by Macabees rebels climaxed with the lamp that burned for eight days despite an oil supply that would have only permitted it to burn for one.

To some muffled oohs-and-ahhs from the children, the magician multiplied the light from one candle to produce eight lighted candles, symbolizing the traditional Hanukkah lamp known as the Men-

"Throughout we sought to create magic that symbolized images in the text, Avadon, 28, said after the pre-Hanukkah service. "As a result, people have taken to it very well.'

Magic is no passing fancy with Avadon. He started practicing it as a hobby in his elementary school years and went on to study under greats in the field such as Dr. Giovanni and Marian Chavez, he said.

Avadon, who happens to be Jewish, caught the attention of Rabbi Cohen while performing for some children outside the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. He has performed at the exclusive Magic Castle in Hollywood as well as many other showplaces.

So far Avadon and the rabbi have collaborated on Bible stories about the burning bush, water from rock, the Ten Commandment tablets and Joseph's coat of many colors.

If the children get too fidgety during the religious service, they can color pictures in a special prayer book made for the occasion. Crayons are passed out before the service begins. However, at the pre-Hanukkah service.

with only scattered giggles or occasional ahhs from youngsters reacting to the magic. The adults displayed no outward reaction to the illustrations and listened reverently as would be expected at regular religious service.

At the pre-Hanukkah service, the pictures in the coloring book included a Maccabee shield and a woman lighting the Sabbath candles.

"God understands all languages," Cohen told the congregation as a few children colored along industriously

While analysts saw some soft spots in over-all October-November auto sales. they are suggesting that America's hotand-cold romance with little automobiles since the late 1950s has turned hot once

"It's an absolute trend," said Arvid Jouppi, an auto industry analyst with the New York research firm of Colin, Hochstin Co. "The small cars are coming in very strongly."

Ford Motor Co. boasts that its new ers are off to an auspicious start in their Fairmont compact is selling faster than its 1965 Mustang, which broke all industry records for sales of a new model.

Over-all, the No. 2 automaker is producing for an expected 70 percent increase in sales of compact, subcompact and small specialty cars over the current model year. That means small cars would account for 40 percent of Ford's sales the highest ever and a 16 percent jump from the 1977 model year.

And industry giant General Motors Corp., while showing a drop in early sales of its 1978 compacts, is scoring big with the small car it is pushing hardest, the Chevette, which more than doubled its sales in October and November.

GM's over-all subcompact sales are up 72 percent from the January-September period; Ford's compacts have leaped 314 percent and total Ford small-car sales are

The sales-per-day figures compare with January-September rather than the figures of a year ago, when a nationwide strike against Ford distorted sales totals for all automakers.

The carmakers' successes are being scored with new or retooled offerings, suggesting that the industry is succeeding as it scrambles to meet government-set fuel economy figures.

Even American Motors Corp., whose over-all auto sales are dropping sharply, recorded a 23 percent jump in sales of its new luxury compact Concord compared with the Hornet it replaced. The strong sales of fresh small cars also suggest a receptive market for Chrysler Corp., the smallest of the Big Three, when it belatedly enters the competition next month with its small new frontwheel-drive Omni and Horizon.

Another analyst said a drop in sales of some "old" small cars compared with the increase for new or reworked models reflects the industry adage that, for sales, new is good." Analysts and industry officials say the record so far shows that automakers can sell a lot of small cars when they set out to do it.

for your comparison to the down-sized GM intermediates. You'll find the '78 Cordoba has significant advantages. Advantages that make '78 Cordoba a remarkable value. A longer wheel base (114.9") and more roominess (380.8 cu. ins.) than Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Olds Cutless Calais, Pontiac Grand Prix or Buick Regal. You'll find '78 Cordoba has more of what you're looking for with so many more features and options that are standard equipment.

'A CAR FOR CHRISTMAS"

Just days before Christmas And I'm all upset My wife wants a small car Which one do I get one that looks classy onfused, but determ covered the town

Here's what I found th a great price to boo Besides that, its cute

Reclining front seat or a nice long Siesta But not Ford's Fiesta

a Datsun can't match

With the touch of a toe The GLC's got it Buy a Honda? Oh, No!

At a much cheaper price GLC's comfor will surprise her I be

More head room and leg room Than Chevy's Chevette Each time I drive it The better I feel

've gift wrapped the key To my wife's Christmas present Her Our New GLC

Earl's Dream Comes True

220-pounder whose powerful, record-breaking running led the University of Texas to a perfect regular season record and the No. 1 national ranking, won the Heisman Trophy Thursday night as the outstanding college football player in the country for the 1977 season: Campbell, one of 11 children — two brothers also play for Texas - whose widowed mother tried to persuade him not to play high school football in Tyler, Texas, won the Heisman over Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller and Notre Dame tight end Ken MacAfee.

"Everybody has dreams," said Campbell, "and for me this year has been a dream come true.'

The 43rd annual Heisman Trophy was presented to Campbell, a 6-foot-1 senior, at a $65-a-plate black-tie dinner in the grand ballroom of the New York Hilton spectacular, a commercialization of the prestigious Heisman Trophy by the sponsoring Downtown Athletic Club of New York which drew a good deal of criti-

Campbell's margin of victory was not announced nor was the runnerup named, although it was announced that Campbell, Miller and MacAfee were the top three vote-getters. A spokesman for the Downtown Athletic Club said the accounting firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster Co. only made available the name of the winner, and "there's nothing we can do about it '

Indications were that the vote totals would not be available until Friday

Known as the "Tyler Rose" because his mother raises flowers for a living in the rose fields of East Texas. Campbell became the 27th running back to capture the Heisman, which was first awarded in 1935. The list includes Archie Griffin of Ohio State in 1974 and 1975, the only twotime Heisman winner, and Tony Dorsett of Pitt, college football's all-time leading rusher, who won it last year.

The approximately 1,050 members of the media from coast to coast who took part in the 1977 Heisman balloting went for Campbell after he became the leading ground-gainer in the history of the University of Texas and the Southwest Con-

During the recently completed regular season, he led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards and in scoring with 114 points.

In accepting the award, Campbell said, When I was a kid and I got in trouble I always used to say, 'Hey Mom, I'm in trouble.' So Mom, I'm in trouble now - I don't know what to say."

After thanking his teammates for helping him win the award, Campbell added: "I thought about what a Heisman Trophy would mean to me if I won the award, and I tell you, I'll do everything in my power to represent the Trophy. It took a ot of hard work. I really can't say thanks to just one person because so many people were involved, but I will represent what a Heisman Trophy winner should be. Thank you very much.

"I think I've got a great future ahead of me if I take advantage of it. It's up to me to work and get where I want to go. "Before I take my uniform off I want to be known as one of those guys who played their position and was one of the best. I'm talking about guys like Jimmy Brown, Gale Sayers, O.J. (Simpson), Franco Harris, Walter Payton and Chuck Foreman. Those are my men. I've never

Hoffman's Shot Boosts The affair was nationally televised for the first time by CBS in an hour-long AIA Over Tech 70-68

By DON HENRY

Executive Sports Editor With all the shot-blocking and dunking and screens going on overhead, it was difficult to locate little Brad Hoffman. until it was too late.

The smallest guy around, Hoffman dribbled away seconds which could have been used by others, then tossed up a little soft shot with the seconds zipping to give the Athletes In Action a 70-68 victory Texas Tech Thursay night.

It was the first loss for the Raiders this year, but it will not go into the record books since the Athletes In Action are an independent team. But they have feasted on college teams, winning 12 in a row. Toss in a victory over the Russian National Team, and the spiritually oriented team is 13-0 this season.

But, it was an uphill battle Thursday night for the visitors, as Tech mounted a 10-point lead midway through the second half. And the Raiders had led 36-33 at halftime, the first time this season AIA had trailed at the refresher break.

But, despite the busload of big guys stretching to the 7-foot mark, it was Hoffman who ignited the AIA surge.

Don Henry

Lost In

The Shuffle

"We quick attacking when we got that lead," said Raider coach Gerald Myers. We just let them take the game away from us. We made some errors when we had that lead.

Also, when the Raiders had that lead, Hoffman stepped to the front.

Kent Williams had bombed from 22 feet to put Tech up 51-41 with 13:01 lef in the game. But the 5-9 Hoffman hit three of the Athletes' five straight buckets, the last from the left corner to tie it with 9:29 remaining.

It was a see-sawer rest of the way. Tech went up 66-64 on a free shot by Tommy Parks with 1:32 left. But he missed the second, and the Athletes converted the miss into two free shots by 7-2 Ralph Drollinger, the former UCLA cen-

Tech went back into its four-corner offense and Williams broke for the goal with what he thought would be a cripple. But the big Drollinger stretched out an arm to block the shot, and AIA controlled. Guard Mike Jackson drove the lane for the visitors to score with 31 seconds go and a 68-66 lead.

However, he fouled Mike Russell in the process, and the Raider forward hit both to again tie the count.

The ball went to Hoffman, who dribbled the clock down to six seconds, then drove into the lane. He drew a crowd but put up the shot, the ball falling through the cords with two seconds remaining. Tech tried to call time, but, by the time the ref's hand went up to stop the clock, there was no clock left to stop. Hoffman only scored 14 points, but 10 came in the last half as he hit seven of 12 from the field. Teammate Alonzo Bradley hit 17 points, 12 in the first half, including a game-opening dunk shot off a lob.

Russell led the game with 22 points, Williams had 12, Baxter 11 and Parks 10. It was Baxter's best game, as the 6-9 juco transfer handed out four assists and grabbed six rebounds. Tech had led through much of the first half, but it was bothered early by the shot-blocking of Drollinger. The former UCLA player was credited with four

Seagraves, Wall Bid For Spot In Class A State Finals Tonight

By WALT MCALEXANDER

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff SNYDER-Tonight's Class A semifinal contest between undefeated Wall and No. 1 -ranked Seagraves will be (pick one of the following):

· A low-scoring defensive contest: A high-scoring affair with caution thrown out the window:

· A game where one team dominates both the offensive and defensive lines of scrimmage and wins going away;

· None of the above: or · All of the above.

This is the third straight year Seagraves has advanced to the semifinals, but the Eagles are still awaiting their first state title game.

And Wall, in getting to its first semifi-. nal contest in history, has done something the Eagles haven't been able to: defeat DeLeon.

Wall did that by the tune of 21-6 in bidistrict. The past two years DeLeon defeated Seagraves 37-7 and 20-14 in this contest.

Both teams boast outstanding defensive units. In three playoff games, Wall has allowed only 265 yards rushing and 186 passing. Seagraves' stats are even better: a mere 199 yards rushing on 97 attempts and 220 yards passing, on 13 com-

Meanwhile, the Eagles have-on pap er, that is- the better offensive unit, grinding out 1,116 yards overland an average of 384.3 yards per game.

Despite that, coach Jim Eddins hasn't made reservations for next week's championship game.

"We'll face another tough test." Eddins says. "But it seems like its been that way all year long. The people who haven't followed us think we're extremely large. But there's no way we can compare in size in our offensive line to them.

"And we certainly don't have a 245pounder at fullback. Our offensive line has performed well all year, but they've got their work cut out for them this week. They've got to go out and do a

No team has gained more than 100 yards rushing in a game against the District 9-A Hawks. And no team has scored more than 8 points in a game against Wall this fall. Of the six TDs allowed, three have been on the ground.

However, no team has been as balanced as Seagraves. Who do you key on, Clarence Davis, Steve McCormick or Mike Hoover? All three have been excellent in the playoffs. Let's take a look at each.

Davis has rambled for 1,678 yards, 26 TDs and 16 PATs this year on 175 carries. But in the playoffs that total reads 60 car-

This is McCormick's third playoff season. This year he has carried 155 times for 1,281 yards and 22 TDs, including 54 carries for 398 yards and four TDs in the playoffs. His career totals read 405 totes for 2,978 yards and 41 six-pointers. He had 794 yards as a soph and 903 as a junior and his three-year playoff yardage total is 884

TYLER (AP) - Heisman Trophy-winning runningback Earl Campbell wasn't even listed in the program when he made his Texas schoolboy debut-at linebacker -against Longview in October 1971.

Campbell, who went on to gain 2,036 yards as a senior to lead John Tyler High School to the 1973 Class AAAA state championship, came into the game at linebacker, sacking Longview quarterback Jeb Blount eight times and causing numerous incomplete passes in a 10-7 John Tyler victory.

ALL THE DRAMA disappeared before the show. The suspense evaporated when Rex Dockery walked down the hall in the athletic department about 45 minutes before the called, 8:30 p.m. press confer-Everyone knows that, if you're not going to get the job, you're not going to the press conference. So. . . that was it: Dockery, Steve Sloan's offensive boss, was to be his successor also. Again, Texas Tech was keeping it in the state of Ten-It was another in a long line of Tennessee-related coaches for Tech. There was

DeWitt Weaver, Jim Carlen, Sloan and now Dockery, J T King being the only Texan to break the string. And, even before that, Polk Robison had ties with the But, Dockery was the name, the unanimous choice of the Board of Regents, it was announced at the press conference. And president Cecil Mackey sent back his reaction ("delighted") from a convention Dockery spent about 20 minutes in front of the microphones, tape recorders, pens and pencils, then headed back behind the door to his assistant's office to begin a marathon stretch on the telephone calling prospective aides and athletes. His work was just beginning.

The announcement was lost in the rush to question Dockery, but it, like the revelation the night before Sloan resigned that King plans a summer retirment, could have far more effect on Tech's athletic programs than the switch in coach-

The appointments are at the discretion of the president, as is the designation of the chairman. The board acts as an advisory group to the athletic director as well as to the president and the board.

AT THE TIME that Dockery is figuratively chained to his desk by the telephone cord, the names of the men and women who will assist in the direction of the football-and other sports-program will be announced.

And at the same time, Tech athletic officials are in Dallas for the annual midwinter meeting of the Southwest Confer-

Tech's athletic department is expanded every year. Contract has been let and work will begin in the near future on the letterman's lounge-business office at the north end of Jones Stadium. The structure will be completed, at least the contract calls for it to be ready, by start of next fall's football season.

Before that time, Dockery will have assembled his first football team, his first recruiting crop, his first coaching staff. The firsts will draw interest from Tech observers as well as those around the

But, the developments of the athletic council will be worth watching, too. It's significance can't be overlooked.

LEVELLAND (Special)—Lubbock High's girls took a 47-42 victory over Dunbar in the Levelland Tournament Thurs-

The first-round victory gave LHS a 4-2 mark for the season. A big second quarter, in which the Westerners outscored Dunbar 20-11, keyed the triumph.

Regina Dudley led LHS with 22 points, while Mary Jones added 16. Stella Zarazozo led Dunbar with 19 points, and Young had 16.

Host Levelland saw a jump ball tipped in for the winning margin in a 90-89 win over Dunbar. The loss dropped the Panthers into the consolation bracket, and they will play Brownfield today at 3

Dunbar held an 89-88 lead with one second to go when a jump ball was called under the Levelland goal. Levelland's Steve Yarbrough, on the jump, tipped the ball up to the goal, it hit the backboard and fell through for the victory. Time had expired, but since the ball was in the air at the time, it was good.

Greg Whitfield led Dunbar with 25 points, Wayne Williams and Billy Don Hardaway getting 22 more. For Levelland. Dale Moore led with 19. Kevin Methvin added 15 more for the Lobos who scored 30 points in the final period.

Chaps Begin 'Second Season

'second season' tonight, and coach Darrell Price has just the thing for the occasion: a new offense.

"Yes, we've been working a bit on it (the offense)," Price admitted Thursday following a 21/2-hour workout in preparation for Bethany Nazarene and Oklahoma

The weekend series will be LCC's Texoma Conference openers, but the Chaparrals will be going against Oklahoma powerhouses that have a combined 16-1

"We've put in a new man-to-man offense," Price explained, adding "It's just the old baseline shuffle, but they seem to be running it pretty well. I know we'll look a lot better than we have been.' The "old" Chaps managed just one win in seven tries and their last game was a 124-81 blasting by Prairie Viewe, the second highest point totalan LCC team has that sort of thing. It might make us play rey pulled a play from the Dallas Cowboy playbook-the spread-and used that in the final period to break open a close game and down Sweetwater 50-41 in the opening round of the Snyder Tournament Thursday morning. Also winning an opening game was Estacado.

The Plainsmen managed only one field goal in eight attempts in the final period, but the spread offense got Craig Ehlo a layup and then he hit four-of-four shots from the foul line and that was enough to do in the Mustangs.

Monterey, now 5-4, will take on Midland at 6 p.m. today.

Sweetwater, ahead 26-24 at intermission, went for the first six minutes of the final period without a point as the Flainsmen gradually pulled away. The Plainsmen converted all 12 of their free throw attempts during the game, but hit only 19 of 43 shots from the floor. And Tony Hamby, who led MHS with 16 points, had half of Monterey's 16 team ricochets during the contest. Sweetwater, which hit 9 of 11 from the line but only 13 of 33 from the floor, was led by Evert Todd with 18 points. David Davidson, who hit 5 of 11 from the floor, finished with a dozen points for or Grad-

It certainly seemed like Baltimore swung two major deals behind Manager Earl Weaver's back at the winter meetings and the Orioles' pilot wasn't pleased at finding out after the fact about the shift of nine players

The Orioles announced their two swaps -a six-player deal that sent left-hander Rudy May and two other pitchers to Montreal for relievers Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan and outfielder Garyu Roenicke, and a less significant threeplayer deal with Seattle-at the same moment late Wednesday.

In the midst of the ress conferences -one in the trade announcement room and the other in the hall-Weaver arrived on the scene. He was hopping mad.

"Couldn't you find me?" he shouted. 'Didn't you know where I was?"

Baltimore brass including General Manager Hank Peters and super scout Jim Russo was clearly embarrassed by the sequence . Peters paraded Weaver out to a hotel balcony overlooking Waikiki Beach to try and calm the manager's ruffled feathers

Actually, the Expo-Oriole deal had been cooking for some time with names being added and subtracted. When the two sides reached agreement, they announced the trade immediately, while Weaver was down the hall, otherwise oc-

Weaver might have been steamed because the Expos now own two of his starting pitchers who contributed 32 victories to the Orioles' second-place finish year, $1 million deal in the American League East. Before obtaining May, 18-14 last season, Montreal had signed free agent Ross Grimsley, a 14-game winner. Also moving to the Expos in the trade with Baltimore were Randy Miller, who pitched in 61 games for Rochester of the International League last season, and a minor league

In exchange, the Orioles received the Montreal bullpen- Stanhouse, who won 10 games and saved 10 others for the Expos last season, and Kerrigan, who won three and saved 11.

hurler, Bryan Smith.

In the deal with Seattle, Baltimore sent pitcher Mike Parrott, a 15-game winner at Rochester last season, to the Mariners for outfielder Carlos Lopez and pitcher Tommy Moore.

Wednesday's most interesting deal was the sale of pitcher Andy Messersmith by the Atlanta Braves to the New York Yankees for $100,000. Messersmith is the man who successfully tested and shattered the reserve rule and opened the gates for the flood of high-priced free agents.

Two years ago, when Messersmith won his freedom, he came within a whisker of signing with the Yankees. A contract agreement was scribbled on a cocktail napkin but the deal fell through at the last moment and the pitcher wound up with the Braves instead, signing a three-

Messersmith was 11-11 in his first year in Atlanta and then 5-4 in 1977 before hurting his arm and undergoing surgery. At 32 and coming off the operation, he must be labeled a question mark. New York knows that.

'We're taking him as is," said Gabe Paul, the outgoing Yankee president. The deal officially was announced Thursday morning, some 14 hours after it had been leaked in lobby conversation. For the Braves, the deal relieves owner Ted Turner of Messersmith's huge contract. Now he'd like to unload some other large-sized salaries like outfielder Gary Matthews, a free agent pickup who cost Turner a $10,000 fine and one-year suspension from baseball for tampering last winter, or first baseman Willie Monta-

Other trade rumors still circulating include San Diego slugger Dave Winfield, National League batting champion Dave Parker, New York Mets pitcher Jerry Koosman and several other front line

Gordie Admits

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — It took 31 in hockey was when I laced on the skates years for Gordie Howe to score 1,000 pro- with my sons. That and when my mom fessional bockey goals, and now, the Grand Old Man of the game hints at retirement.

Howe slammed a rebound into the net less than two minutes into Wednesday night's World Hockey Association game between his New England Whalers and the Birmingham Bulls before a crowd of 10.211 in the Coliseum.

Shortly after the game ended in a 6-3 conquest for the Whalers, Howe was asked about his future plans.

"I'll probably retire, but I always leave 10 percent open. I'll be a grandfather before long, and not many grandfathers play hockey.

Howe, who will be 50 in March, joined the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League in 1946.

Mike Antonovich and John McKenzie drew assists on the milestone goal which beat Birmingham goalie John Garrett. Howe battled Bulls defenseman Dale Hoganson for the rebounding puck and scored on a power play at 1:36 of the first

"The goaltender I got it against is a really fine one," Howe said. "It's good to do it against one of the best in the game.

"Thank God it's over. It was a longsought-after goal. It's nice to be over.

Asked if he ever dreamed of reaching

1,000 goals back in 1946, Gordie replied: "No way. Of course, it's every youngster's dream in Canada to play professional hockey. I looked and a lot of magazines, and hoped I could achieve some-

"In the beginning, my goal was to provide a proper house and a proper heater for my parents. My dreams have been realized. I just wanted to be lucky enough to have two suits."

Recalling his first goal, when he was 18 with the Red Wings, Howe said, "It was similar to tonight's. It was a rebound, and I scored against Turk Broda. It was a 3-3 game. I bet I wrote 50 letters to my. family and friends describing that goal."

Howe tried for 10 games to get the elusive number, saying, "If I hadn't hurt my hand, I'd have had it before now. If I hadn't been getting the shots, I'd have been worried. But I had a lot of good chances before tonight. I couldn't get anything on the puck.

Howe's two sons also play for the Whalers. When Mark and Marty turned pro, Howe said, it changed his thinking about

Blyleven, Matlack Part Of 11-Player Switch

HONOLULU (AP) - A trade of awe- last season. In seven full major league some proportions involving four teams and 11 players rocked baseball's winter meetings Thursday night.

Pitchers Bert Blyleven and Jon Matlack and sluggers Willie Montanez and Al Oliver were the key players in the deal involving the New York Mets. Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Atlanta

In the deal, the Braves first sent Montanez to Texas in exchange for pitchers Adrian Devine and Tom Boggs and infielder Eddie Miller. Then the Rangers shipped Montanez and outfielder Tom Grieve and a player to be named later to the Mets for Matlack and John Milner.

Texas then swapped Milner and Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and minor league infielder Nelson Norman.

Blyleven, a strapping right-hander who was acquired by the Rangers from Minnesota two years ago, had a 14-12 record with a 2.72 earned run average last season. He recently signed a long-term contract with Texas which included deferred payments that will obligate his new team well into the 1990s.

The other high-salaried player in the deal was Montanez, a slick-fielding first baseman who batted .287 with 20 home runs and 68 runs batted in for the Braves seasons, Montanez, who earns a reported $300,000 a year, has hit 102 home runs for Philadelphia. San Francisco and Atlanta.

To get him, the Mets surrendered first baseman-outfielder Milner, who batted .255 with 12 home runs and 57 runs batted in, and Matlack, a stylish left-hander who suffered through a disappointing 7-15 season in 1977.

In addition to Montanez, the Mets obtained Grieve, an outfielder. Grieve batted .225 in 79 games for the Rangers last Texas obtained Matlack to replace Blyleven in the starting rotation and also got Oliver, a consistent .300 hitter in 10 seasons with the Pirates. He hit .308 with 19 homers and 82 RBI last season.

To compensate for the loss of Oliver and Norman, Pittsburgh got Blyleven and Milner.

The Braves' end of the deal supplied them with Devine, who had an 11-6 record with 15 saves for the Rangers; Boggs, who split the season between Tucson and Texas, and Miller.

The deal was the biggest transaction completed in recent memory and was the first that included players holding complicated, long-term, expensive contracts.

The mammoth trade rested on the approval of the Mets, who spent a considerable amount of time thinking it over be fore agreeing. Texas owner Brad Corbett paced the lobby of the convention headquarters, awaiting word on their deciwith his home runs, and basket catches while a baseball Giant, was upstaged Thursday by a dog.

Maybe it was understandable. Who would recognize "Say Hey" Willie behind that false white beard and with that crazy red fur hat on top of his head?

Willie, now a public relations figure with the New York Mets and a few commercial companies, played Santa Claus for a small group of young girls pointing to the fourth annual Colgate Women's Games, starting Jan. 7-8.

Some 20,000 girls and young women of various ages will compete for track and field prizes in the event, the finals scheduled March 13 at Madison Square Garden.

Willie was tapped for the role of Santa Claus at a kickoff Christmas Party at a midtown restaurant. Andrea McArdle, star of the Broadway show "Annie," also was scheduled to attend but she was stricken with influenza.

So she sent her dog, "Sandy," a furry mongrel mutt owned by Bill Berloni. Sandy earns $450 a week for his stage performance, enough to buy a lot of hamburger.

A plate of raw hamburger was set before the animal and Mays as the two posed for photographers. Beth Austin, who has the feminine lead in the play "Sly Fox" opposite Robert Preston, occasionally reached over to give both the dog and baseball

Willie fed the hungry dog handfuls of raw meat. The dog showed appreciation by licking Willie on the cheek.

Mays, in his Santa Claus disguise, was also asked to pose with some of the young competitors, most of them looking to be pre-

'No, none of them asked me for any dolls or things like that," Willie said afterward. "Kids today are pretty sophisticated. They know that the real Santa Claus has a bigger stomach than I have and is white. Willie played his role well, never once showing a sign of impa-

"I like this," he said. "It is fun. I like people." Mays said he has had a busy winter, flying between the East and West Coasts and playing in periodic pro-amateur golf tour-

"I see Joe DiMaggio a lot," he said. "We live the same sort of life now. I told him the other day, 'Joe, you're doing more and looking younger than you ever did.

"He is, too. Every time you flip on a television set, there is old Joe selling coffee or telling people how to bank their money. He is something. He has really managed to mature graceful-

Restless to get to spring training-"It always was fund for me," he said-, Willie insisted that he had no regrets because he missed the current free agent boom in baseball.

"I never look back," he said. "I had a great 20 years. I wouldn't want to change a second of it."

Lehigh Quarterback Gets A-A Honor

Mike Reiker of Lehigh, which plays Jacksonville State in the Pioneer Bow Wichita Falls Saturday, headed the College Division II and III All-America teams, as selected by the American Football Coaches Association Thursday. Joining Reiker, the country's total offense leader, on the Division II offensive team were running backs William Burnham (New Hampshire), Ricky Anderson (South Carolina State) and Steve Powell (Northeast Oklahoma); ends Dan Fulton (Nebraska-Omaha) and David Steif (Portland State); linemen Danny Bass (Elon), Bruce Kimball, (Massachusetts), Larry Friedrichs (Northern Arizona), Chip Carpenter (Western Kentucky) and Lou Curry (North Dakota State), and kicker Tom Jurich (Northern Arizona.)

The Division II defensive team included: linemen Chris Malgren (Boise State), Chuck Fomasi (California-Davis), Craig Phalen (Western Illinois), John Barefield (Texas A&I) and James Haslett (Indiana, Pa.): linebackers Steve Cickerhham (Akron) and Rusty Rebow (Nicholls State), and backs Chuck Sitton (Abilene Christlan), Dennis Duncanson (Weber State), Joseph Stemo (Northern Michigan) and Cornelius Washington (Winston-Salem.)

On the Division III's All-America offensive team were quarterback David Harvey (Wabash); runningbacks Don Taylor (Central Iowa) and Chip Zawoiski (Widener); flanker Rex Macey (Westminster, Pa.); tight end Robert Schrantz (Slippery Rock); split end Rick Fry (Occidental); linemen Robert Wilson (Hampden-Sydney), Randy van Horn (Redlands), Steve McCabe (Bowdoin), Dwight Treadwell

All-District

The Perryton Rangers totally dominated the District 1-AAA football team, placing a player at every position.

Leading the Rangers, a state quarter-finalist, was all-state runningback Brad Beck. The son of the Perryton head coach, Don Beck, was named on both the offensive unit and the defensive squad.

Other unanimous selections included defensive end Tommy Casida of Borger, linebacker Wesley Harley of Levelland, defensive back Ricky Rodriquez of Dumas, center Jeff Leader of Perryton, and offensive linemen Jamie Jackson of Perryton, Leo McElroy of Perry and Tab Keemer of Canyon.

Schoolboy Winner To Earn $100,000

DALLAS (AP) - While many college football programs are wallowing in red ink, some schoolboy grid teams in Texas are earning enough money in the stte playoffs to light their tennis courts and add other improvements.

The school that earns the state Class AAAA title will take home $100,000, officials say. Highland Park, an upper class Dallas suburb already eliminated from the playoffs, earned $83,423.25.

To me $83,000 seems like a lot of money," said Highland Park Supt. Dr. Winston Power. "I don't know what the public thinks. But it seems to me we're operating a pretty big business here."

The Texas University Interscholastic

League will make nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The UIL receives 10 percent of all gate receipts. It made a profit of $22,500 from the Highland Park-Plano quarter-finals playoff game.

Highland Park and Plano - a suburb just north of Dallas - split $90,000 after 35,702 people flocked to Texas Stadium for the Scots-Wildcats game last Satur-

Texas Stadium manager Bert Rose said tickets were still being sold at halftime.

"In my humble opinion those 10,000 people (who bought tickets at the gate) were not fans of either team, but the ones who got caught up in the match-up and said, 'Let's go,'" Rose said.

The crowd was the third largest for an amateur game in the Metroplex this season. Ohio State-SMU drew some 40,000 and about 36,000 showed up when the Texas Longhorns came to town to play the Mustangs.

Texas high schools are divided in five categories ranging from Class B to Class AAAA, depending on the school's population. Small towns in the Class B category empty themselves on Friday nights when the Coyotes, Rattlers, Wildcats, Lobos, LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Climaxing a "worldwide search," the FBI announced Thursday that it had found Fanfreluche, a valuable mare in foal to Triple Crown winner Secretariat.

Speaking at a news conference, Robert Pence, assistant agent in charge for the state of Kentucky, said that the mare, valued at $500,000 and missing since June 25, was found Thursday afternoon at a farm near Tompkinsville, Ky.

"The mare was recovered in good shape and apparently is still in foal at this time," Pence said, though he added her condition was not as good as it had been prior to her alleged theft from Claiborne Farm near Paris, Ky.

The owners of the farm at which the horse was discovered say they were no aware of the horse's identity, Pence said. Last July, state police charged William Michael McCandless with the theft of Fanfreleuche. A hearing for McCandless in Bourbon Circuit Court was to have been held Thursday, but it was postponed until Jan. 12. McCandless, whose last known address is Nashville, Tenn., has pleaded innocent fenced-in lot 31/2 miles of north of Tompkinsville off Kentucky 63.

Pence said the mare was found by FBI

She was in "rough shape," with rope burns near her hooves, and had a winter coat, Pence said. "She's been feeding mostly on grass rather than on her regular healthy diet," he said.

An ambulance and veterinarian from Claiborne farm were on their way to Tompkinsville to recover the horse, Pence said. Pence described the "person caring for horse fancier of some stature." Kentucky State Police commissioner Ken Brandenburg, who was also at the news conference, said the farm's owners the mare" since some time in July as "a running loose on the highway with rope burns and some other marks.

They refused to identify the farm's owners because, they said, they had no reason to believe they had been involved in the alleged theft.

Both Pence and Brandenburg declined to say whether any more arrests would be made. They added that the investigation would continue to determine, among other things, whether Fanfreluche was taken out of Kentucky, in which case federal charges could be lodged.

"Solid, basic police work" and a tip from "individuals we have dealt with in the past" led to the mare's discovery, Pence said.

ASSURANCE THAT

Associated Press Writer YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) - Rain fell in torrents from a mass of black-hearted clouds like a biblical scene from an old De Mille movie. It was no weather for mo-

But I knew that, didn't I? A guy doesn't get 20,000 miles of two-wheel touring behind him without acquiring some smarts about the sport. Right? Wrong. With me, frying pans

That should be sufficient to explain what I was doing this fall on a Yamaha, booming east toward Yosemite National Park on Interstate 580 in weather that belied Northern California's infamous drought. Water splashing up from the front wheel filled my boots through the sole stitching.

Up ahead, another biker was doing the same thing. A couple of dummies — but he was dumber. For some reason, he braked, locking the front wheel disc brake. He and the bike hit the deck, both skidding off the road in a confusion of flailing wheels and limbs.

The rider was saved by a principle known to skiers. If you don't go crashing into something else, it's always less damaging to take a flop on a hill rather than the flat. The former keeps body moving, absorbing the energy of the fall. Same with this unfortunate biker. The rain-slick pavement kept him moving, preserving his poor bones. Of course, I stopped tut-tutted dutifully, attended to certain matters, and kept going. Like I said, dumb.

ing on through the Sierra foothills toward Yosemite and eastbound to Yosemite Village. Once again I gazed in awe at the granite grandeur of El Capitan, that most magnificent of all rocks, and the stately summits and scarps that held John Muir enthralled to the end of his life.

An hour later, night coming on, I made a modest camp around my little two-man tent. I took a look around and mentally shook hands with the people who can't stand Yos-emite Valley and its cars, paved walkways, crowds, camp-grounds pounded so firm a blade of grass wouldn't grow in 100 years even if people were kept away. Too much of everything nature never put there.

An episode to set Old Man Muir spinning in his sarcophagus blemished a short trip on one of the elephant-train buses that make stops in the east valley. Two elderly dames, lip-sticked, jeweled and richly coifed, engaged our driver in conversation. The ladies were unhappy.

"We took the valley tour," mourned one. "But we didn't see anything," finished the other.

The driver, a healthy-looking girl who drove people through a portion of one of the grandest indents on the face of the earth, turned her head slowly and looked from one woman to the other.

"What did you expect," she breathed with obvious restraint. and disdain: "Disneyland?"

That night it rained on my parade and it took an entire day to dry out the gear. Figuring the dry spell was breaking on my vacation, I spiked the backpacking plan and headed for Tioga Road and a ramble south on Highway 395, the east Sierra autobahn. Hah! A foot of snow lay on the 8,000-foothigh Tioga ribbon.

This cruise was beginning to take on a Jonah aspect. Only slightly daunted, and a bit anxious about what would happen next, the bike and I plunged back into the valley, picked up Highway 40 and rolled south.

Now, that was more like it. At Fresno, the sky was clear and sunny, the temperature broiling. Dug out a whole new change of clothes from my backpack and sizzled ever south-

Outside Bakersfield, it finally happened. After years of bike touring, curses: a flat tire. You have to be three different kinds of contortionist to change a hoof on a motorcycle. It took some double buttermilk to calm me down after that. Suddenly, out of the dust, reared dirty, gaudy old Tijuana, lying in the sun like an overripe, flyblown enchilada. I slipped into Baja California with plans to visit Scammon Lagoon, the whale nursery a few hundred miles south. Natural-was ripped off by a thief who sawed the tree down. But I don't believe that.

Area's Wheat Crops Battling Drought

By JIM STEIERT A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD - It's another verse of the same old song for many area wheat farmers this year as they watch their young crop struggle to hang on in a prolonged period of dry conditions.

'Most of Deaf Smith county's wheat is seriously hurting for moisture and the dryland wheat crop to the west is beginning to decline. We are badly in need of some moisture." commented John Fuston, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) executive director in Hereford.

The lack of moisture has resulted in poor stands of wheat and a serious lack of grazing in many areas.

And the shortage of wheat pasture comes at a time when grazing is virtually the only reliable source of income from wheat, due to depressed grain prices.

Fuston pointed out that grazing is virtually unhead of in the county's dryland wheat areas this year.

There is little grazing of any benefit whatsover, with only a little wheat pasture available in a few isolated spots on the dryland acreage," he said "The only

Live Cattle Expand On Early Gains

By Reuters

CHICAGO - Live cattle futures gradually extended opening gains to closed up 17 to 40 points Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange led by De-

Distant October closed unchanged. Higher cash cattle markets despite increased arrivals prompted buying during the day with a cash connected commission house leading the support.

Volume was estimated at 7,069 contracts.

Floor sources said the firm tone to carcass beef along with expectations for light arrivals today because of snow created further strength for futures.

Wholesale beef was up one-half cent at 67 1/4 cents per pound for all weights. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with the top at Omaha at $44.25 per hundredweight

The six markets expect 2,900 head to arrive today. Thursday's slaughter was estimated at 151,000 head.

Hog futures closed mixed with the back months the weakest. Final prices were up 20 points in December to off 27.

Volume was a fairly heavy 6,597 trades. Analysts noted that trading lacked direction, with floor traders expressing uncertainty over fundamentals. Most felt the heavy snow would spur support, but falling cash hams and bellies overshadowed weather-related news.

The advance in the nearbys may have been due to expectations for light arrivals today, floor sources said.

The day's kill was estimated at 327,000 head. Today, the six major terminals expect receipts of 22,700 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures fell as much as 120 points in February before closing off 20 points to up five. Only July showed a gain.

Sharply lower cash bellies and a large decline in cash hog markets stimulated heavy selling in the market, traders said. Futures slipped from earlier advances under aggressive local and commission house selling. Analysts felt initial gains were due to the weather, with later lower moves attributed to weakness in the cash pork trade.

Trade Post Urged At Cabinet Level

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another new Cabinet department is being suggested. Sen. William Roth, R-Del., says bureaucratic competition and confusion among government agencies dealing with trade prevents the United States from being fully effective and a tough bargainer in the international arena.

Roth says a Cabinet-level department incorporating the government's trade offices is needed to prevent unfair competition from abroad and to guard against harmful U.S. protectionist policies.

good grazing I know of on wheat is on a few irrigated fields that were watered early and received a second irrigation.

These fields have really grown off well, but a lot of farmers couldn't afford to pump that much water. In fact, some haven't watered their wheat in an attempt to cut production costs," Fuston explained.

According to the ASCS director, the wheat crop's problems started during September, and they are becoming more serious with each day that passes without moisture.

"We didn't get any rain until late August, he said. "Then the farmers plowed the volunteer wheat and sowed this year's crop. Hot, dry winds dried out much of the moisture in the upper soil layers during September and stands were spotty.

"The moisture that normally would have given us a good growth of wheat to hold the soil was depleted. Now the wheat is on the average of a dormant stage, and I hate to see us going into this time of the year without a better cover crop of wheat," he empasized.

Fuston added that the dryland wheat crop is "getting in a position to blow badly if we get any wind. Some of these areas with spotty stands are going to have a hard time holding if we any high

The ASCS spokesman said the wheat acreage could still resond quickly to favorable moisture, however.

"Our wheat isn't in such bad shape that a snow or rain wouldn't make it respond," he explained. "A good six or eight-inch snow on the level would help us as much as anything right now. And if we received sufficient moisture to provide for good wheat grazing this spring. I would think that a majority of the wheat acreage would be grazed out unless the grain market goes up substantially," Fuston added.

What of the cattlemen who are short on wheat grazing for their livestock because of the dry conditions?

"We've got a lot of cattle on stalks this year," said Fuston. "Cattle owners are

"I think cattle that would normally be placed on wheat pasture are being moved to stalk fields in the Vernon and Wichita Falls area. There are quite a few cattle grazing stalks locally too," he continued.

Hoover agreed that favorable moisture could mean not only a turnaround in the wheat grazing situation here, but increase in placements of cattle in area feedyards. "If we received enough moisture to make the grazing good this spring, we would see a lot of cattle in the area wheat fields, and a resultant increase in placements of cattle in the feedyards after they come off of the wheat," Hoover

The blueprint for this was laid down by Bergland on Nov. 23 at a meeting of a local chapter of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors. The meeting was held in the department and was attended mostly by agency informa-

Bergland's informal talk drew at length upon his personal views of government, his own job and the far-reaching policies he has in mind for farm strategy in the future.

A transcript of the meeting was made available at the request of a reporter.

Bergland, a former Minnesota farmer, served six years in the House of Representatives. He said this has provided him a perspective of public responsiveness useful in his present job.

"My friends in Congress sometimes thought that USDA's main job was to protect the agricultural processors and to protect the interests of 140,000 large farms in the U.S. and that USDA was really a cowboy agency, and nothing more," Bergland said.

"That, of course, we know is simply not true. We have an enormous constituency. This is literally the people's department '

For example, Bergland said that of the department's $13.5 billion budget for the current year more than $9 million will go into federal feeding programs such as food stamps and school lunches

As he has before. Bergland said that he wants to keep those programs in his agency and not transfer them to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as some have advocated because to be blunt about it, I think we're a better outfit."

Bergland called attention to his own open-door policy with the news media and that "I attach the highest priority to our public information responsibilities' for getting accurate information into the

Administrators of agencies within the department will be urged "to pay attention to this mission" of public informa-

Bergland attempted to allay fears earlier expressed privately by some professional information specialists that the system was becoming too centralized and that this created a potential for turning it into a propaganda machine for Carter Administration farm policy.

As an example of freedom he says should go with jobs, Bergland recalled a Wall Street Journal article last April which began by describing one $28,000-ayear employee with his feet on his desk and reading real estate advertising during working hours. It said his work pace is typical in the department.

Some of the authorities in that particular agency wanted to know if I wanted to discipline that employee and I said, 'Heavens no.' I'm just glad that person had the ability and the gumption to talk to a reporter and to tell it like it really is," Bergland said.

It is better "the public sees us warts and all for what we are and for what we are not than to close our doors and run and pull the shades and live in a stuffy, stale environment," he said. "I'd rather have an administrator

make a mistake and embarrass himself or herself occasionally, and have it reported and have it all settled than to try to deny it, or, worse yet, not take an acfore the Soviet revelation, again suggesttion in the first place. ing how quickly changes may come that Bergland said that to support this view

there'll be no discipline from my office of any person who says something or does something that may not necessarily coincide with that which I've said, if the disagreement is over the means, not the

A major theme of Bergland's talk was to acquaint employees with his ideas of government and importance in the future role of the department.

Bergland said that Congress and government in general are "more likely and more able to react to crises than we are able to lead events."

Agricultural policy, which affects every yone, not just farmers, is particularly difficult to develop in advance of events or crises, he said. Worldwide weather, for example, will have more impact than any government policy decision.

"In other words, if I'm driven out of office it will be because we have had good luck and good weather, and a period of poor prices and a heavy drain on the Treasury (for farm subsidies)," Berland said.

"If, on the other hand, the circumstances were to change and we had very bad weather some place else - not at home - and the crop conditions were very bad and it resulted in a booming agricultural economy, then I would be looked upon with favor by the producing community, but the consuming community would regard that as a disaster."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

MANY U. S. COTTON FARMERS THIS YEAR again are caught in a cost-

Spot market prices have dropped sharply since the crop was planted, USDA economists point out, and are now below the total cost of production. Current calculations indicate a national average cost of around 55 cents per pound for the 1977 crop (including land and management).

Although this is down about 2 percent from a year earlier due to higher peracre yields, costs remain relatively high.

In comparison, the national average price of the base quality of strict low middling 1 1/16 inches early this week was below 48 cents per pound, down from about 75 cents last spring. THUS MANY PRODUCERS WHO DIDN'T forward contract their crops this year may not be able to cover total costs, although they will be able to cover direct costs, estimated beltwide at around 43 cents per pound. Producers who forward contracted their 1977 production are faring much better. An estimated one-fifth of the U. S. crop was booked ahead at an average price reportedly of around 65 cents per pound. Last year, about one-half the crop was forward contracted. This season's more limited contracting reflects recent relatively weak demand in the face of the large 1977 crop and the consequent sharp decline in cotton prices. Also, some farmers turned down contract offers because they thought that prices would go higher and that there wasn't much downside price risk

THE CURRENT DEPRESSED LEVEL of cotton prices is symptomatic of one of the cotton industry's most nagging problems - widely fluctuating prices. Spot market prices for SLM 1 1/16 have varied from less than 40 cents per pound to more than 80 cents during the past four marketing years. Last season proved to be very profitable for most cotton producers as farm prices averaged a record-shattering 64.7 cents per pound, more than 25 cents above the base loan rate. However, U. S. mills ended up paying around 80 cents a pound for cotton during the first 10 months of the 1976-77 season, 20 to 30 cents more than for man-As a result, mills switched a larger proportion of their production from cotton to man-made fibers in an effort to cut costs. THE APPARENT LOSS IN DOMESTIC COTTON consumption during calendar 1977 amounts to around 800,000 bales, based on a projected 3.4 percentage-point decline in the market share held by cotton this year.

While the daily rate of cotton consumption has been falling over the past two years, use of noncellulosic staple has trended up and now is running 10 to 15 percent above yeear-earlier levels. Consumption of rayon and acetate staple is

In contrast, until consumption improved in October (when it was still below the corresponding period of 1976), recent monthly cotton use had been down around 5 percent from a year earlier to an annual rate of 6.3 million to 6.4 million bales. On an annualized basis, the October consumption was at a rate of about 6.7 million bales.

But consumption in October, the latest month for which official statistics are available, may signify somewhat of an improved tone in mill demand for cotton

WITH TODAY'S MORE COMPETITIVE COTTON prices, some recovery in cotton consumption is anticipated during the balance of this marketing year. U. S. textile mills recently were reported paying about 56 cents per pound for middling 1 1/16 cotton. This was about the same price they were paying for polyester staple and was moderately less than for rayon-staple.

The improved price parity for cotton places it in its strongest competitive position since early 1975, especially in view of a favorable relationship between stocks and unfilled orders of cotton cloth.

Thus, depending on general economic conditions, a gradual improvement in the rate of use is likely in the months. This still, however, would leave much to he desired.

For the 1977-78 marketing year as a whole, according to USDA projections, domestic mill use may total near last season's 6.7 million bales:

Commodities

By Mike Stevens

THE "BASIS" IN GRAIN TRADING is the number of cents per bushel that, on any given day, the local cash price of a commodity is above or below the current price for a particular futures delivery month.

When you hear someone in the grain business discuss basis, however, he is generally talking about the difference between the local cash price and the nearest futures delivery month.

The grain basis is made up of two components. The first component is the amount by which the local cash price is below the cash price in Chicago. This difference is due essentially to transportation cost. A second component is the amount by which the Chicago cash price is currently below the nearby futures price. This difference is due to a number of factors: storage costs (including interest and insurance), handling costs (the expense of loading and unloading) and sellers' profit margins.

THE MOST PREDICTABLE FEATURE of the basis is its tendency to narrow -by the amount of reduced storage costs -as the delivery month is approached. Thus if storage costs of four cents are included in the basis, the likelihood is that the basis will narrow at the rate of four cents a month. This, of course, assumes that the other basis components remain unchanged.

The tendency of the basis to become narrower as the delivery month is approached is known as convergence. Indeed, at the time and place of delivery, the cash price and futures price are normally the same. This convergence is assured by the fact that if prices were higher in the futures market than in the cash market, or vice versa, traders would buy or take delivery in the low-priced market and sell or make delivery in the high-priced market, thereby quickly minimizing any price difference

LOCAL CASH PRICES AND FUTURES prices usually move up and down together, but not always. Major supply-demand developments that effect futures prices generally have a similar impact on local cash prices. Such as news that some particular nation is in or out of the market for American grain. Or that the worldwide supply is up or down. On the other hand, a change in the demand for corn or wheat or soybeans in Chicago doesn't necessarily mean there will be a corresponding change -or any change at all, for that matter -in the demand for corn or wheat or soybeans in the community of "Localville."

ular community to move in opposite directions

Such could be the case, for example, if the overall demand for corn were weak (thereby having a depressing effect on futures prices) but export demand for corn at Gulf ports were especially strong. Or if local processors or feedlots were in urgent need of corn. A community with a favorable location in relation to the area of demand could thus enjoy an increase in price, declining futures prices

Even so, the fact remains that futures prices provide the best available barometer of changes in world supply and demand. As a result, short-term changes in cash and futures prices -up as well as down -tend to occur in concert. Certainly not penny for penny and certainly not always, but usually. As will be seen, it is the relative predictability of the relationship between cash and futures prices that makes hedging possible

Brucellosis Warning Issued For Texans By Federal Agency

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-The top veterinarian with the U.S. Department of Agriculture has again warned the Texas Animal Health Commission that it must be ready to accept whatever recommendations are made by a special national committee studying brucellosis in cattle.

Dr. Frank Mulhurn, executive director of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) with the USDA attended a recent meeting of the Animal Health Commission (AHC) and said other states are becoming "very uptight" about the continued proliferation of brucellosis in Texas.

These states are moving to 'erradicate' brucellosis, Mulhurn told the nine-member commission. He warned that commissioners of agriculture in other state have told him they will "insist" on better controls in areas where the disease, which can cause cattle to abort, still exists.

Texas narrowly missed a quarantine on cattle shipped from the state in 1975, because the AHC refused to adopt the APHIS guidelines for brucellosis eradi-

The AHC contends brucellosis cannot be eradicated, and that the federal government needs to focus upon new vaccines and vaccination efforts for controlling the disease

However, early in 1976, a state district judge ordered the AHC to comply with the federal brucellosis guidelines, thus averting the quarantine.

The AHC, in adopting its modified brucellosis control guidelines, noted it was forced to do so under "duress."

A special five-member national committee now studying brucellosis its causes, symptoms and controls was named by the U.S. Animal Health Association, and is scheduled to release its final report in June 1978.

Mulhurn says, "We (APHIS) plan to take whatever they (the committee) about the most effective way of dealing with brucellosis.

"You on the commission should be looking at it somewhat similarly," he ad-

"We reacted to your protest of the old program," Mulhurn warned the commission. "We're not indifferent, not inflexi-

He believes the USDA approach to eradicating brucellosis will be upheld substantially by the special five-member research committee, adding, "All our chips are in the center of the table While some other cattle-producing states may have fewer than 50 herds under quarantine because of brucellosis. reports from the AHC consistently show more than 3,000 Texas beef herds and more than 100 dairy herds having brucellosis test reactors. While state and federal officials were staring at each other, grimacing over the brucellosis situation, they were congratulating each other a fine job in greatly curtailing two other livestock diseases in There were only 39 confirmed cases of screwworms in Texas this year, thanks largely to last winter's hard freeze and renewed cooperation between the United States and Mexico over sterile fly placements at the site of infections.

And officials believe they have the fever tick problem controlled once again, pushing this concern back to a buffer zone along the Rio Grande

Farmers Converge Today On 30 State Capitals

Tractor and truck caravans were planned in most states, including Colorado where farmers scheduled stops in Pueblo and Colorado Springs before reaching the rally site in Denver. In Michigan, farmers said they would stage a "tractorcade" to the state capitol in Lansing with or without a parade permit and would hold a grain burning to further dramatize their dissatisfaction.

"We just thought that if we could get a 000 head of cattle marketed in Texas durpile of grain, a couple of thousand bushing October, compared with 847,000 head els and burn it, we could make a big demonstration," said Alex Boegner, a Hog sales are totaled at 49,000, which is farmer from Holt, Mich.

> Derral Schroder, a grain farmer and rancher near Campo in southeastern Colorado, said most of the states would have some type of demonstration, in-cluding New York where the head of a state agriculture group said there was no support for such a boycott.

Each state has its own strike office that takes care of the state and coordinates their state," Schroder said. "We know there are going to be a lot of demonstrations, but we don't know how many people are going to take part or exactly what is planned.

"They don't call us," Schroder said. "We have no presidents or no spokesmen. We're all concerned.'

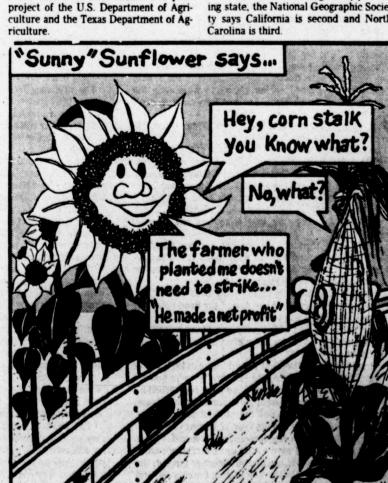

Schroder took exception to remarks by Richard McGuire, president of the New York Farm Bureau, who told a farm meeting earlier this week that there was no support from his organization for the

"He's mistaken," Schroder said. "He just hasn't talked to many people, I can guarantee you that. We've had contacts with farmers in New York. These people are just as concerned as anyone in California or Washington state or anywhere else. We'll have some farmers there, we'll be represented."

Although Schroder said there may be no immediate effect on consumers when the agriculture boycott begins next week, he said there already has been a holding action on grain for the past 60

AUSTIN - Figures released by the Texas Department of Agriculture show that prices received by farmers and ranchers managed only a 1 percent increase during the latest survey month.

On the average, crop prices increased by less than 1 percent during the survey Livestock prices paid Texas ranchers increased by nearly 2 percent. Higher prices were recorded for corn. cottonseed, hay, oranges, grain sorghum, sovbeans and wheat

These more than offset lower prices received for cotton, grapefruit, peanuts, potatoes and sweet potatoes.

The department also said lower prices for calves, hogs broilers, and wool were offset by higher prices for beef cattle, lambs, sheep, eggs and turkeys The survey period ended Nov. 15.

Officials also reported the Texas agricultural labor force on farms and ranches now totals 249,000, which is 10,000 more laborers than this time last year.

Wages paid all hired farm and ranch workers in the state averaged $2.66 an hour, a 10-cent per hour increase from

Yet, the average hourly wage paid Texas field workers was still 33 cents below the national average of $2.99.

Dry weather condition throughout the state in recent months are partially responsible for the increased activity in livestock auction barns.

The agriculture department says cattle and calf sales at auction barns has in-

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Soybean futures prices made good gains on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, with grains closing narrowly mixed.

For the second straight day export demand for soybean oil firmed up prices on the entire soybean complex and speculative buying added more strength. Oil prices were up as much as 115 points in the near December contract with lesser gains in the far months. Beans jumped as much as 121/4 cents and meal advanced $1 or more in all contracts.

Sales overnight to Brazil and some speculative buying aided wheat, but profits were trimmed before the final bell by professional selling.

Commission house selling weakened corn slightly before the close but prices were only narrowly mixed. Brokers said the threat that new snow in the Midwest may tie up grain deliveries gave some steadiness to the market and only the far

Oats were 1/4 cent higher in all months except for the March contract which slipped the same amount. Iced broilers

At the close, wheat was 1/2 cent a bushel lower to 11/2 higher. December 2.611/4. corn was 3/4 lower to 1/2 higher, December 2.18; oats were 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, December 1.32% and soybeans were 9 to 121/4 higher, January 6.063/4.

Actor Quinn Continues Life At Frantic Pace In Persia

was seated in his mobile home parked on a craggy hillside in central Persia. Nearby were hundreds of nomads and herds of sheep and camels, his fellow players in a movie. While John Denver sang of his West Virginia home on the cassette, Quinn played chess with his son Duncan,

"I think I got you beat, son," said the elder Quinn.

Duncan admitted defeat, and the actor told a visitor: "At my age it is important to maintain superiority over your sons. Recently, I had a little wrestling match with another son, Frankie, who is 15. I could see he was winning, so we won't wrestle anymore.

At 62, Tony Quinn may be a lion in winter, but there is still some roar remaining. He is in Iran for another colorful role as a tribal chieftain who attracts an American woman, Jennifer O'Neill, in

'Caravans. Earlier this year, Quinn starred in "The Children of Sanchez" in Mexico, and he recently completed "The Greek Tycoon," freely adapted from the Onassis-Kennedy-Callas headlines. He has wanted to make "Sanchez" for 15 years. He has high hopes for it, but he believes "Tycoon" will be another "Zorba" for him.

'It's not just a ripoff of news events," he claimed, "If the events hadn't happened, they would have been invented as a story, since they are so basic.

"The story has an important theme. Corny as it sounds, it is that money isn't everything. This man (Onassis) lost all interest in life after his son was killed.'

Quinn's own life is a dramatic saga worthy of filming. He wrote it as "The Original Sin," which earned him "a whole lot of money" and 18 translations. Of Mexican-Irish parentage, he came out of the east Los Angeles barrio, started humbly in films, married Cecil B. De-Mille's daughter, and won two supporting-actor Oscars ("Lust for Life," "Viva Zapata").

Every film actor faces a crisis in his late 40s and early 50s," Quinn reflected. 'That's when he can no longer be the rugged leading man and win the girl. If you can't win the girl, they won't pay you as much money. So what can you do? Tony Quinn left Hollywood. "What could I play there? They only think of me as a Mexican, an Indian or a Mafia don." Quinn moved to Europe, acquired a new family amid some scandal, also found a renewed career as a character actor. Until recently, he continued residences on both continents. 'My children lived wherever I went,"

he said, "but finally my son Frankie said, 'I don't know who I am.' So I had to make a hard decision: To make our permanent home in Italy. The children go to school there and I am there whenever I

"It is not easy. I pay double taxes, both in America - I would never give up my citizenship - and in Italy, where they are beginning to tax more heavily. I can't believe those stories that Rome is unlivable. There is a lot of agitation, from the left wing and other extremists. But I have had no experience with crime in Rome, knock wood.

Quinn remains trim. He has amazed the Anglo-American-Iranian crew of "Caravans" at the end of a strenuous day's shooting by marching up a mountainside and tramping two miles to the highway for a ride back to Isfahan, the ancient capital of Persia. One day, he pedaled a bicycle 40 miles through the deserted roads of a future housing development.

He admits he faces another crossroads

"Do I want to continue as before, or do want to find a new direction?" he mused. "Writing fascinates me. My editor at Little, Brown says I can make more money out of my next book than I can in

Catchy Lyrics, Honesty Keystones Of Phoebe Snow Record Successes

NEW YORK (AP) - A barefoot Phoebe Snow stumbled to the door of her hotel suite in blue jeans and sweatshirt, trying her hardest to contain a sleepy yawn - an occupationakhazard of being on the road.

From the next room, the last echoes of an "All in the Family" rerun mix with Phoebe's earthy giggles as she describes one of Archie Bunker's exploits. 'You see, a friend of Archie's dies and his last name was Cunningham," she begins. "Archie thought he was Irish. But it turns out he was really Jewish," said Miss Snow, who was raised in the Jewish tradition, as she pushed up her glasses to wipe away the laugh tears. "I'll be all right. I'm just very tired. I don't know why it was so funny, but it was

'You should have seen Archie. Shock. Total shock. He even called a yarmulke a beanie!"

At last, Phoebe Snow settles into a corner of the sofa, tossing aside a few remnants of her "road" life as she sits. Don't get upset about that little furry thing," she says, picking up a small, dark brown object. "It's just a wig."

She yawns again and shakes her curly head. "Why did I stay up late last night?" Last night was Philadelphia. Today is New York. Tomorrow morning is another city, another hotel.

In a little more than aff hour, she has to report to Avery Fisher Hall at Lincoln Center to do a sound check and rehearsal for her concert at 8 p.m. She'd also like to sleep for two hours before the performance.

'We have a good time up there - my band and I," she says. "We love each other. When one of my band members is hurting, I'm hurting and vice versa." It is perhaps this sort of intimacy and liking among the musicians involved that helps make every album of this fouroctave singer a success Her first hit, and also her first record, came in 1974. It was the single "Poetry Man" from the album "Phoebe Snow. Within months, the album was certified gold. Her second alburn, "Second Childhood," went gold soon after its release.

"It Looks Like Snow" followed the birth of her daughter, Valerie Rose. Her latest album is "Never Letting Go." "The first album was a reserved effort," she said. "I was shocked at the success. I have a little more confidence now.' Her style is a gutsy but melancholic journey through the spirals of her own life. Catchy lyrics, often bittersweet, and always honest, are delivered with a jazz coloring and a blues

Recently, Miss Snow incorporated a gospel sound into her music. She even includes two gospel backup singers - both male - in her concerts and calls them her "sanctified, allboy chorus."

"There was some wailing on the first album," she said. "I would always watch gospel with admiration, but I didn't think I had the chops to do it. "So I started hanging out at the Rev. James Cleveland's church, singing with everyone else. It's been a major transitional thing for me." The title song from "Never Letting Go" clearly demonstrates Miss Snow's talent for vocally transmitting tones that can go from a hush to a shriek, all perfectly pitched. Through her current sleepy mood, pensiveness intrudes. It is a time of quiet reflection for the New Jersey-born stylist of popular music. "I was just thinking about it this morning," she says. "My life," she clarifies, with drawn-out emphasis. "My last three years have been like a lifetime. There've been a marriage, a birth, ups and downs and it's been a fight for survival.

"And the more I fight for, the more I gain. I feel I have the ability to transcend life's basic pains. I think I'm a survivor.' During this time, she's also made four albums. But the change in her life began with the death of her best friend, lover and mentor. Charlie

"It was the only funeral I've ever gone to," the 27-year-old singer said. "There was a little beacon of light when the album became a success. And then, wham! I was sued three times by practically everyone involved with it. It was like, a groovy thing was handed to me and they took it away," she said. "I was prevented from recording for a year. Then my baby was born and became ill."

Phoebe Snow of the curly brown locks has found a way to smile a cry through it all. Her music.

"I had to learn that I had a lot of things to look forward to in the morning," she said. "It's so easy to miss some of the most beautiful things. But I could still sing and I could still write. And I still had my daughter.

"Everybody has had terrible things happen to them and they've gotten over it," Miss Snow said. "It's no big deal. It's not like your life is gone. It's just fragmented - like a jigsaw puzzle. And no one ever threw a jigsaw puzzle in the incinerator when they couldn't do it. You eventually put it togeth-

Southeast Asia Embraces Elvis

SINGAPORE (AP) - The Elvis Presley boom launched by the entertainer's death this summer rocks along in Southeast Asia.

Re-released Presley films are being screened at cinemas and as TV specials while disc jockeys play his music by the hour. Record counters enjoy continued heavy sales of Presley hits and Asian imitators of the late king of rock 'n' roll have no difficulty finding work in the region's nightclubs.

"Our whole career has been against the odds," says 24-year-old Jeannie Kendall. The odds have been battered. "Heaven's Just a Sin Away" has been No. 1 for as long as four weeks on some national country music charts.

"The people love it," says Royce Kendall, a 43-year-old former barber. "People want to hear it 30 minutes at a time. We played it three times in a row the other night. I wish I knew the secret to it. I don't know what it has, but if I did, I could make a lot of money.

The secret may be the harmony, with Jeannie's soprano backed by her father's deeper blend.

"I've sung harmony for years," Kendall said. "I may not be good at it, but I like

The song was the flip side of the original A-side, "Live and Let Live." But several radio stations began reporting nu-merous requests for "Heaven's Just a Sin Away."

"We didn't recognize its potential," Kendall said. "But I do remember saying that I kind of liked it."

The father and daughter began singing around home in St. Louis when Jeannie was 15 or so. Then in 1970, they took the big step and moved to Nashville

Stock Mart Ends Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was able to manage only a mixed showing Thursday despite an early push from some betterthan-expected inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 4 points at its mid-day high, closed with a 52 loss at 806.91.

That exactly canceled out the previous day's .52 advance.

Gainers outpaced losers by a 4-3 margin in Thursday's over-all tally on the New York Stock Exchange, and the NYSE's composite index Big Board volume eased off to million shares from 21.05 pholesale price index posted a 0.7

percent rise in November, with ndustrial commodities recording their smallest increase in five Several analysts had been forecasting a rise of 0.9 per cent or more, and those predictions had been blamed in part for the market's drop earlier in the week. But whatever comfort the news provided for traders didn't seem to last much past mid-day.

Record Sales Soar Despite Loss Of Superstars

no more, Elvis is gone and there is no comparable single force in the music world or on the horizon that can match the kind of record-selling excitement seen in their heydays.

But record sales spin ever higher, and not only will over $2 billion worth of platters be sold in the United States this year, but industry officials say most will be bought by people more than 18 years old.

In fact, the demand is so great - especially as the Christmas shopping season approaches - that one of the industry's most pressing problems is getting enough manufacturing materials.

"Some companies can't get pressings (records made) or jacket fabrication," said Walter Yetnikoff, president of CBS Records, the world's largest record firm. 'This is becoming a big, big business.'

Industry officials estimate that in 1966. $959 million worth of records were sold in the U.S. Last year, that figure nearly doubled to $1.9 billion.

Those numbers are based on list prices. and records often are sold at "discount" prices, but the figures provide some indication of the explosion in the industry. It

Sales are good for recordings of classical music, jazz, middle-of-the road sounds such as Frank Sinatra and even comedy routines. But industry officials say the big boom continues to be in rock

"In the early 1970s, everyone was saying 'Well, the '60s are over; the music explosion is over," said Yetnikoff. "But it wasn't. There was a lull in the early '70s, but since then the business just hasn't Yetnikoff, being a self-described "walking commercial for this company," says the same thing about Neil Diamond, who records for CBS.

"At his concerts, you see little kids of 14 and 15 and people of 40, 50, 60," Yetnikoff said during an interview in his somewhat disheveled office at CBS headquarters. "So a lot of consumers have stayed in the musical groove."

In his mid-40s, Yetnikoff wears a beard, liberally sprinkles his conversa-tion with four-letter words and says that one of the things I pride myself on is, if I'm not chronologically the youngest (head of a major record company), I act the youngest.

He works in his shirt-sleeves, smiles easily and likes to tell self-deprecating Like many high-ranking executives in the entertainment industry, he did not come up through the creative ranks. Instead of speaking of musical arrangements, he speaks of "demographics" (the population broken in age, financial and other groups). Instead of notes, measures and codas, he speaks of "risk-reward ra-

Yetnikoff joined CBS as an attorney in 1961, then was promoted to general attorney for CBS Records and eventually was made president of the firm's international division. In 1975, after a predecessor was accused of misusing corporate funds, Yetnikoff was named president of CBS Records

He said higher costs prevalent in the industry today don't discourage experimentation with new recording artists, but do raise the level of professionalism.

The fate of Leroy Wayne Green was in the hands of a jury this afternoon, as panel members discussed whether Green was one of three men who participated in the execution-style slayings of an elderly New Deal couple in 1975.

Jurors went behind closed doors at 11:16 a.m. They can find Green guilty or innocent of capital murder, the offense with which he is charged, or consider a lesser charge of murder.

If Green is convicted of the capital charge, jurors will later assess a punishment of either life imprisonment or

"Now he is just Sgt., T.J., Rhodes," said Mrs. Rhodes, 58, who wept softly as a neighbor placed a comforting hand on her shoulder.

Rhodes Sr., 60, who had vowed he would have to be carried out of the house, gave way to the persuasive talk of Robert Lindquist, chief of the civil division of the King County police, and walked out peacefully.

At the bottom of the stairs, Rhodes paused to remove an American flag. "That stands for justice," he said bitterly.

His son has steadfastly refused to respond to questions about the eviction. His only public comments are in the cold legal language of court records.

The couple said they placed their home in their son's name to protect it from the financial trouble the elder Rhodes had years ago. Monthly payments and taxes were paid by the father to the son, who forwarded them to the bank, the Later, when their son and his wife separated for 18 months, there was concern about who legally would own the home, Rhodes said, but those difficulties apparently were resolved.

Then the younger Rhodes went to court to claim ownership of the house, saying he had rented it to his parents since 1968. In September, a judge ruled the son was the owner because all the legal papers for the house were in his name. The parents went back to court to fight the eviction notice, but won nothing more than an extra 30 days to live in the house.

"I still think this is my house," Rhodes Sr. said as he left it.

Raw, icy winds pushed fresh snow across sections of the Midwest and Northeast today, stranding motorists on clogged highways and forcing schools and businesses to close.

Temperatures dropped sharply as icy winds blew out of the Rockies and sliced through the nation's midsection into the Southwest region. In Dallas, the mercury dropped from a record high of 80 Thursday afternoon to 30 this morning.

The mercury dipped near zero in the Texas Panhandle and as low as 8 degrees Dimmitt and Olton on the South Plains. Lubbock recorded a low of 14 degrees early today. Scores of schools in the Kansas City area were closed for the second straight day and early morning temperatures were near zero. Schools in Chicago were open, but many schools in other parts of Illinois were forced to close.

And snow continued to fall through the night in the Northeast and Midwest. Pittsburgh got 6 inches; Erie, Pa., 7; Binghamton, N.Y., 6; northwestern Indiana, 4, and sections of Wisconsin were under as much as 9 inches of snow.

Up to 8 inches of snow were forecast today for Vermont, where major highways "You bet it incenses me when people were already slick with snow. Although it was cold today in the Southwest, by regional standards, conditions were almost balmy by comparison with the northern tier of states.

Temperatures ranged from near zero to the teens in many sections of the Texas Panhandle and South Plains, but there was no snow and weathermen promised a speedy warmup.

Plummeting 50-plus degrees from Thursday's high of 70, thermometers in Lubbock dropped a degree below Tues-day's seasonal low of 15 degrees, and continued this week's wildly fluctuating temperature pattern.

Forecasters say the cold weather will keep its grip on the Lubbock area today. The temperature was not expected to climb past the upper 30s this afternoon and should dive to the mid-teens tonight. Conditions are not expected to be quite as cold Saturday, although the high will be held to the mid-40s.

Lowest readings reported in the South

Plains area today were 8 degrees at Dimmitt and Olton. Tulia and Muleshoe Refuge reported 10 degrees.

Thermometers dipped to 11 degrees at Floydada, Friona, Muleshoe, Plainview and Silverton. In other area to the teens temperatures were in the teens in virtually every reporting station.

Big Spring dropped from Thursday's 81-degree high to 18 degrees as did Lame-sa. In Midland, the temperature fell 61 degrees from Thursday's record high of bers are better known as "Moonies," filed today in U.S. District Court here for a temporary restraining order to block a city ordinance requiring organizations to have a permit before they can solicit funds within the city.

The filed request states the city ordi-nance violates the church's First Amendment rights, especially that of separation of church and government.

William Poe, a church member and a complainant in the request, said Lubbock is first among several Texas cities where the church will take court action against similar ordinances requiring a charitable organization to submit a financial statement and gain approval of a permit before it can solicit funds in public places within city limits.

Poe said if the order is granted the church would probably bring a "mobile witness team" into Lubbock within the week, and there are "vague" plans to establish a center here for Moonies.

The Unification Church reportedly won federal court preliminary injunction Tuesday against the City of Rockford, Ill., and its funds solicitation ordinance. A court staffer here said U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward probably would not take action on the request to-The filing names Poe and the Holy Spirit Association as complainants and today, fire officials said. Jannine Guadalupe, 2, and her 8month-old brother Timmy, were pronounced dead of smoke inhalation at the scene of the blaze in New York City's Bronx borough, officials said.

Their half brother, 8-year-old Tony Laguerra, died in the emergency room of Jacobi Hospital of burns and smoke inhalation, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"Flames were shooting 30 feet out off all the windows on the second floor,' said Police Officer Edward Grohs. "I don't see how any of them had a chance.

One major complaint is that the regulations say that animals waiting in airline cargo areas for flights cannot be exposed to temperatures lower than 45 degrees or higher than 95 degrees

Some members of Congress from major animal breeding areas, including Kansas and Iowa, have been besieged by complaints that at least a few airlines have recently refused to accept or forward valuable shipments of dogs, puppies and other animals as a result of the temperature rules.

Judge Clarifies Presley Ruling

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - A federal judge says the Memphis Development Foundation can solicit funds for an Elvis Presley statue provided it doesn't distribute souvenirs of the singer.

Clarifying a ruling issued earlier this week, U.S. District Judge Harry Wellford said Thursday the nonprofit foundation can use Presley's name and a photograph of the statue it plans to erect in its fundraising campaign. However, the judge said, the foundation cannot distribute pictures of the statue to any contributor or offer any other Presley memorabilia in exchange for do-

Wellford issued a preliminary injunction Monday barring the foundation from distributing any Presley souvenirs, particularly pewter replicas of the memorial. Wellford held that Factors, Etc., Inc., Bear, Del., has exclusive rights to market Presley memorabilia.

The foundation is seeking to raise $276,-000 to erect a 25-foot, 50-ton statue of Elvis in Memphis and had offered the pewter statuettes to contributors of $25 or

"The court is not precluding soliciting of funds for the memorial and obviously the court does not preclude the use of the name Elvis Presley in the solicitation effort," Wellford said.

"It's snowballing rapidly," said John O'Brien, president of the Metal Trades Council, a coalition of 14 unions representing 100,000 shipyard workers.

O'Brien said that in addition to Portsmouth, nuclear submarines have been built in five military and three civilian shipyards in South Carolina, Virginia, Washington State. Hawaii, California and Mississippi.

'We've gotten calls from shipyards as far away as California and Washington and they're still coming in," O'Brien said Thursday.

The information was requested by Dr. Thomas Najarian, a Boston specialist in blood diseases, who sought the unions help Wednesday night in Dover at a gathering of former shipyard workers.

Najarian began trying to collect medical records of men who worked on nuclear vessels from 1957 of 1968 after he treated Adolph Pohopek, 65, for lukemia. Pohopek, of Portsmouth, is a retired welder on nuclear submarines.

Pohopek told Najarian three other nuclear welders who worked with him on the reactor seal for the Nautilus, the nation's first atomic vessel, died at an early information on persons who worked on nuclear submarines in the 1950s and 60s, but said shipyard officials told him "I shouldn't continue this study because they felt it wouldn't be worthwhile because they'd never identified any hazards." The shipyard has 7,500 workers.

At Wednesday's union meeting, several retired metal workers listed various examples of laxness during the early stages of atomic submarine construction.

Navy officials at the yard declined comment, saying the staff of Adm. Hyman Rickover, the father of nuclear submarines, was preparing a statement.

Meanwhile in Washington, Sheldon Samuels, chief health and safety official for the AFL-CIO, said, "We asked the Navy just yesterday for a systematic program to identify workers in high risk In a telephone interview, Samuels said he had spoken with George Marienthal, deputy assistant secretary of Defense for environment and safety. Samuels said he told Marienthal the AFL-CIO seeks to stop workers from being exposed to dangerous substances now and wants research by the Defense Department to help those who may have been exposed in the past.

Paul Dachsteiner, shop steward for the Boilermakers Union at Portsmouth, said publicity over Najarian's research is making some workers hesitate to work on nuclear jobs.

London's largest private house, Whitanhurst, is up for sale for $12.6 million. It'll probably be snapped up by some rich American who'll explain he wanted to prove he had no objection to living in the same neighborhood with a bunch of foreigners.

THE CONTROVERSY over mandatory retirements at age 65 won't be resolved until there is an accommodation between two widely divergent social needs.

On the one hand are employes who don't want to be forced off the payroll "just because" they've reached a certain age. On the other hand are employers and younger employes wanting to "clear out the dead wood"

so that a fresher, more energetic job can be done. The key to accommodating these points of view may be in the controversial tenure protection enjoyed by college professors.

TENURE IS LOST at age 65 but, at its discretion, a university under some plans may keep a faculty member on a year-to-year basis.

This means that retirement isn't mandatory 'just because" a certain age is reached but the plan gives management the option of retaining an employe who is still doing a good job.

Lazy managers don't like to make tough decisions about who to keep and who to let go, but a fair shot at being permitted to work past age 65 explain why they're trying so hard to have more -for those who want to do so-is better than no

"Luckily," says Larry Templeton, manager of the Texas Tech Bookstore, "we have a ton of decals but we didn't put them on the shirts like they wanted us to."

Tech President Cecil Mackey launched the "I Believe In Steve" T-shirt fad with great fanfare before the football season began.

When I heard Steve was leaving, I rushed down to see what the heat-transfer decals had on them," Templeton says, harboring thoughts of unloading the whole batch on Ole Miss.

Sadly, in small letters, they carry the message 'Texas Tech.'

"I guess," muses Templeton, "we'll just keep them for souvenirs. And then burn what's left."

It is still the most industrious, civilized and organized nation of the southern and eastern hemispheres. It still does far more for the Bantu (nonwhites) than these unhappy tribesmen have ever done for themselves.

Yet nobody loves South Africa (we Americans ought to know about that) for the good deeds. Respectable UN members are required by intellectual snobbery to hate White Supremacy which gave us all the civilization we've got.

But perhaps if we continue the Drury law of "live it out and hope for the best," the winds of change will shift and blow some good. One puff might bring us to concede the wisdom of some ideas that were voiced during the December election in South Africa. As R.F. "Pik" Botha, minister of justice told reporters, his government was not against the Bantu because they

THE VORSTER regime and all previous government leaders of the African Republic, one of the earliest to leave the British Commonwealth, are bred-in-the-bone free enterprisers.

They believe in the natural laws of endeavor and improvement. They detest socialism and the nationalization of state planning.

They have seen how this leads to the drab poverty of equal deprivation, as in Britain, and to dictatorship, as they see it throughout black Africa. The Bantu are unread socialists, they cannot History with its customary irony, is forcing statism and possible dictatorship at South Africa, the nation which loathes them most.

Isolated from the Free World, immunized against World Communism, challenged by black terrorism, the Republic has no choice but to tighten internal restrictions, smash criminal uprisings with police brutality, control its short temper against egg-headed dissent among local and foreign liberals.

As the Free World leader, America has been acknowledging some winds of change in other quarters, and therein lies hope for South Africa and other lands of White Supremacy.

President Carter has had reason to learn that there is good and decency in many governments which do not much resemble our own. He has entertained the Shah, whose strong hand is gradually modernizing ancient Persia.

The President has stood aside while Sadat and Begin, Arab and Jew, clasped hands and already has done more for Mideast peace than the superpowers ever accomplished.

Carter would be blind to events is he didn't see that White Supremacy was going to have its way in southern Africa, despite the world's present disapproval. It is something that may not last much longer, since nothing lasts in history.

With the world's disapproval withdrawn, tem-porarily at least suspended, the genius that lives in every human population is going to find a way on the farthest tip of the dark continent.

Winner May Not Win In Small Claims Court

(Second Of Two Columns) IF YOU WIN A claim in small claims court, that may not always mean you win. In fact, in a startlingly large percentage of cases, a successful suit has not led to a successful collection. A sampling of small claims cases in the New York City borough of Queens last year found a hefty 40 per cent of those surveyed had not recovered a penny of the money awarded in their

An earlier survey in Manhattan disclosed that only 50 per cent of the litigants had been able to collect after winning small claims judgments.

The obvious explanation is, of course, that many defendants do not pay because they don't have the resources. The administrative judge of the District Courts in suburban Nassau County, N.Y., attributes most failures to collect judgments to debtors who don't have any assets left

In Nassau County, for instance, 1,436 winners of small claims cases turned to marshals for aid in securing payment-but in 32 per cent of these cases, the marshals couldn't collect.

To help plaintiffs collect awards won in small claims court, many moves have been made or are under way. For instance:

NEW YORK CITY'S Department of Consumer Affairs launched a program this past summer to assist plaintiffs in tracking down facts on a debtor's assets by instituting an "information subpoena and restraining notice" from the clerk of the Civil Court (of which the small claims courts are a part.)

This notice to third parties-including banks, insurance companies and utilities-would reveal a defendant's assets and their location and tie them up until a sheriff could seize them. Previously, you had to hire a lawyer, often at a cost exceeding the award.

Under a state law in effect as of September 1975, you also could ask the sheriff's office to try to collect without having to pay a $50 fee in adv-In one view, the low levels of participationance. The law would grant you triple damages if the defendant company had previously ignored three or more judgments against it.

The problem of collecting on judgments well may climb sharply when and as ceilings on small claims are hiked across the U.S.

A SOLUTION then may be settlement of small claims cases after they are filed but before they reach the point of judgment. If a defendant agrees to make some sort of restitution, this gen erally results in a much better change for collec-

If unsuccessful in the first stage, the parties move on to an arbitrator (another attorney), usually on the same evening. When the arbitrator issues a decision the parties have five days to decide whether or not to appeal to the small claims

In Los Angeles, the Municipal Court has begun hearing landlord-tenant disputes in a special court that bypasses the regular court calendar.

This court is expected to be a forerunner in a drive to settle disputes before they enter the clogged judicial system.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Late Great Guy: Lombardo

Though he won gold records for some of his recorded usic, it was the shining silver trophies he won for breaking acing-boat records he cherished most.

How come he selected "Auld Lang Syne" as his theme song? 'In our particular part of Western Ontario," Guy explained to us, "there's a large Scottish population, and it was traditional for all bands to end every dance with 'Auld Lang Syne.' When we left Canada to try our luck in the U.S., we didn't realize the song was known here, and we never expected to play it again. However, when we performed for the first New Year's Eve at New York's Roosevelt Hotel on Dec. 31, 1929, we had so many requests from the floor to greet 1930 with that song that we adopted it as our theme.

Though millions of fans embraced the relaxed Lombardo style, he gave credit to contemporaries such as Glenn Miller, Hal Kemp, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey. "They really believed in dance music, each creating his own style that was different and great. Their deaths," he told a critic, "was one of the things that closed up all the ballrooms in America. A great loss to the dance-band industry.'

Because his style remained the same through decades, he was asked how come his band didn't bow to the tastes of the bebopper in the mid-'40s. He replied: "I play for people in love, not for the acrobats. Perhaps we lose some of them in their teens, but we catch 'em later on!"

The Royal Canadians played for the same couples for so many New Year's Eves, Guy often smiled when he observed the guests graying as the years passed. He'd talk small talk with them from the bandstand and once observed: "I can't tell you how many hundreds of times I had to laugh when they asked, 'Guy, where are you going New Year's Eve?'

Q: Is it true that Mickey Rooney once played Clark Gable in a movie? - A.M., Milwaukee.

A: Yes. Back in the early '30s. Wearing white tie and tails, the precocious child star played Gable in a Mickey McGuire come-Q: Does any state have a law denying a person a driver's license because he's too old - even if he still can pass the driver's test? - Mrs. T.L., Omaha.

A: No. The American Automobile Association's "Digest of Motor Laws" makes no mention of any such arbitrary regula-

Q: What silent pictures did Milton Berle play in as a child? -Barry Davidson, Miami.

A: If you can picture Milton being silent, he was in "The Perils of Pauline" with Pearl White, "Tillie's Punctured Romance" with Charlie Chaplin, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "The Mark of Zorro" with Douglas Fairbanks Sr. He also was in a feature film with Doug's wife, Mary Pickford.

Q: When is the new "Star Trek" finally returning to TV? -Mr. & Mrs. Ogden McD., Philadelphia.

A: Around Easter time, 1978. Gene Roddenberry, its imaginative creator, in cahoots with Paramount TV, will return as producer. If prime time can't be negotiated on any network, the program (budgeted at around half a million dollars per segment) will be woven into an independent network-type attraction.

Q: We know it's a little late to ask, but what exactly is Mae West's philosophy of life? - Mr. & Mrs. M. Tierney, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A: It's pretty well summed up in a new paperback called "The Wit and Wisdom of Mae West." Here are some of her sassy sayings: "I don't believe in such things as companionate marriage ... I think it is nothing more than contracted prostitution. Marriage, love and home should be kept sacred ... I believe in the single standard for men and women." Her curtain speech after each performance of "Catherine the Great": "I'm glad you like my Catherine. I like her too." As for Catherine's opens a door for a lady to go through first, he's the doorman.' When she first learned that inflatable life jackets issued to airmen during World War II were called "Mae Wests." she said: "I've been in 'Who's Who' and I know what's what, but this will be the first time I ever made the dictionary." ... Sparks that flamed her famous feud with W.C. Fields: "Fields is a great performer. My only doubts about him come in bottles." Asked what kind of men she prefers: "Personally, I like two types of men - domestic and foreign.

Postal Deficits Soaring; Belt-Tightening Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) - Elimination of Saturday mail deliveries and closing of small post offices appear more likely because of continuing large postal deficits.

The Postal Service announced this week a deficit of $652 million in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. Three months ago, the Postal Service predicted that the deficit would be $400 million

The Postal Service also increased the predicted deficit for the current fiscal year from $554 million to $1.3 billion. And a predicted surplus of $282 million for fiscal 1979, which would have been the first profit since the postal reorganization of 1971, was changed to an anticipated deficit of $784 million.

"Obviously, this kind of loss is unacceptable to management and inconsistent with our legislative mandate." said Francis X. Biglin, the agency's top financial officer. "We cannot allow such deficits to

The Postal Service did not elaborate on how they could be prevented, but Biglin noted that possible service reductions such as eliminating Saturday deliveries, closing small post offices and reducing mail sorting at night when workers must be paid a premium are "under continuous review.

Biglin said the main reason for the changes from the report he gave to the Postal Service's governing board in September is unexpectedly high costs for injury compensation.

The Postal Service has for years been urging Congress and the Labor Department to do something about the sharply escalating costs of this program. In the past, the mail agency has estimated that Americans this year will pay 1 cent for injury compensation every time they buy a 13-cent stamp. The payments to injured workers cost the Postal Service $639 million in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. The price is expected to jump to $820 million in the current fiscal year and $1.2 billion next year. These costs compare with $94 million in fiscal 1974. The Labor Department, which administers the program and sends the bills to the various government agencies, recently assigned 20 investigators to look into claims of on-the-job injuries that may be

Coal Energy Shift Cancels Improvement In Pollution Control

NEW YORK (AP) — Shifts by power companies away from cleaner natural gas and oil to coal have cancelled improvements in pollution control, an environmental group reported WEdnesday.

The study of 15 large electric utilities found that some companies have made major improvements in the cleanliness of their generator operations, even in the coal-fired plants, but that so much more coal now is being burned that the improvements have not produced cleaner

The nation's energy problems have combined in recent years to reverse the trend in the electrical utilities away from cleaner-burning natural gas and oil. The price of oil quadrupled during the 1973 Arab oil embargo and a shortage of natural gas has led to less reliance on that fuel for power plants.

Last year, 61 percent of the fossil fuel burned by utilities was coal, an increase from 54 percent in 1972. The study notes that the President

Department For Trade Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Roth, R-Del. told a business group Thursday the nation's foreign trade position would be enhanced if government agencies dealing with trade were consolidated in a new Cabinet department.

Under the government's present structure of foreign trade policy-making, Roth said, the government lacks sufficient authority and is beset with bureaucratic competition and confusion.

"I believe that if we are going to be a fully effective and tough bargainer in the international arena, if we are going to have vigorous programs to promote job-creating exports, if we are going to deal effectively with unfair competition from abroad and economically harmful protectionism at home ... we need to have a strong center of authority in the federal government for trade and investment policies," he said.

"I have become convinced that only a Cabinet-level department can be such a center."

Roth commented in a speech to the international economic committee of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He said the Council for International Economic Policy "has shown the inherent weaknesses of a coordinating body without power."

"Its bottom rank for all three air pollutants is attributed to the company's commitment to the use of dirty, high-sulphur coal and its resistence to the use of stateof-the-art pollution-control equipment," the report said.

Pacific Gas & Electric of San Francisco had the best pollution record in the study, largely because of stringent California pollution standards and the use of natural gas and low-sulphur coal for fuel.

The New York-based environmental

Carter Expects Progress In '78

By HELEN THOMAS WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has a good feeling about 1978 and he expects that most of the initiatives he undertook in his first year in office will come to fruition.

To hear him tell it, the outlook is rosy both on the domestic front and in the foreign policy field. He says he expects to have a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union and also a comprehensive nuclear test ban next

He also forecasts ratification of the controversial Panama Canal treaty - despite heavy opposition - and he is predicting major progress toward peace in the Middle East.

At home, Carter says there will be good progress in the recovery from the 1974-75 recession and although economic growth will not be as great as this year, it will one of the best in the world.

As for unemployment, now at a steady 7 percent - Carter says the rate will come down next year but he sees some upward swing in inflation.

He believes he also will have enough success with his programs to give Democratic candidates a good launch in the November congressional elections

Carter believes he has grounds for his optimism: He feels that he has laid the groundwork this year for a brighter fu-

The president marches to his own drum and does not appear fazed by criticism of the way he has handled his programs and of the way he runs the White House.

Recruiter Analyzes Executives

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chief executives are fast becoming a unique cadre in American business; they are men who make up their minds in college they are going to be top bosses.

This is the conclusion of Herbert Mines, president of Business Careers, Inc., a New York recruiting firm. Theodore Roosevelt declared he made up his mind while still at Harvard that he intended to be "one of the governors, in-stead of the governed." The modern American corporation head has much the same overall view of the world.

Mines said intense global business competition and the problems created by inflation are causing American industry to move middle management people up faster, thus accelerating the creation of this class of patrician chief executives.

'And they are patrician," he said. "They don't socialize or associate with subordinates as a rule, they cultivate personal charm and attractive appearance and a definitely personal management style. This style usually is one that encourages a high degree of participation by key subordinates in the decision-making process

Like Teddy Roosevelt, most modern chief executives reach the top of the ladder while still in their early forties and most come up through marketing or merchandising and sales, Mines said.

Mines' firm has recruited 16 new corporate presidents over the past 18 months out of 250 candidates, most of them already top executives of other companies. Mines discovered a lot about the new patrician CEO class in the proc-

He said perhaps the most significant discovery was about how mobile a man must be to become a successful corporation head. "Not a single one of the 16 we eventually selected had spent his career with only one firm," Mines said. "Most had worked for at least three firms."

The next most significant discovery was that, contrary to what may have been true in the past in American society, a successful corporate career did not seem to have any adverse effect on marriage and family life. Two thirds of the CEO's studied during the search had stable marriages and home life.

Mines also concluded that an MBA degree no longer has much prestige. Only three of the 16 CEO's chosen by his clients had graduate business school dition and where Carter is going, the president feels he has set a stride that will bring much progress next year. He also believes that he has set a tone in the country that is helping to restore confidence in government.

But still he says the battle to bring the people back to faith in government has not yet been won.

Carter believes that some of the questions that remain concerning his presi-dency are due to the fact that he was not an insider when he reached the White House, that he did not win the presidency by the Capitol Hill route and he was not well known to the news media.

Carter made mistakes at the start of his administation and alienated members of Congress. He antagonized the Soviet Union with major new proposals on SALT which caught the Soviets off guard.

Russians when he unveiled his worldwide human rights campaign at the start of his administration which the Soviets felt was aimed only at them.

At home, Carter believes he has moved to keep campaign promise with the blacks, labor, farm groups and the poor.1 But as far as those groups are con-cerned, he has not been as responsive as they had expected. As a result, his popularity has dropped in the polls and few are touting the Carter administration as a success story. But Carter believes that his constituen-

-- the American people -- are calling in the chips too soon, that he is being judged too early and that his report card next year will show good marks in most

Berkowitz Denied Change Of Venue

NEW YORK (AP) — A four-judge panel has ruled that David R. Berkowitz, accused in the "Son of Sam" killings, should be able to get a fair trial in Brooklyn despite heavy publicity.

Denying a defense motion for a change of venue, the Appellate Division of the state Supreme Court said Wednesday that if defense attorneys' questioning proved an impartial panel could not be found, the trial could be moved.

Lemons Credited For Long Life

Rebecca Topletz is concerned, medical science could learn a lot from lemons.

Mrs. Topletz, who claims she takes no medicine other than vitamins, credits lemons for her longevity - much to the delight of a citrus grower's association that presented her with a case of lemons and an automatic squeezer Thursday to honor her 101st birthday.

"I take two tablespoons of lemon juice in a cup of hot water every morning," she said. "I drink it first thing.

Mrs. Topletz said just about all her descendants, including six children, 19 grandchildren, 33 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great grandchildren, drink an elixir of lemon juice every morning.

"You should try it. You'll feel good," she told reporters. Mrs. Topletz said she has had the lemon habit for 50 or 60 years, then turned the testimonials over to some of her family members. Abe Levin, an 84-year-old son-in-law, said he started drinking lemon juice

Decision Due On Demo Site

WASHINGTON (AP) - As Democrats launch their search for a new national party chairman, they are ending their quest of a miniconvention site.

The site selection committee was looking mainly at four finalists - Seattle. Memphis, Denver and Honolulu - trying to balance considerations of political needs and rewards.

Its decision, expected today, also was to pin down the exact dates, tentatively set for sometime next December.

Meanwhile, President Carter was casting about for a replacement for his old friend Kenneth Curtis as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Curtis, whose impending departure was disclosed by the White House earlier this week, said at a news conference Thursday that the job wasn't much fun and he's going home to Maine. The miniconvention, which the Democrats prefer to call an issues conference, was one point of contention between the DNC and the White House, and within the presidential staff. Curtis and Carter eventually agreed to hold the meeting late next year, safely after the 1978 midterm congressional elections, while some of Carter's aides had wanted to hold it earlier to boost Democrats before the elections. Party professionals and old-line regulars had argued that any national gathering of a group as diverse as the Democrats held the potential for bickering over sensitive issues which could hurt the party's candidates if held before the voting. The same conclusion was reached in 1974 when the first miniconvention was held. Although it had been expected to be explosive after the intraparty fighting of the 1972 George McGovern presidential campaign, it turned out to be a model of unity in which the new party charter was adopted.

With no major business on the agenda, the next conference is expected to be largely a succession of speeches and study panels on issues and party problems, timed to let the factions let off

Police Shoot Teen At Big Spring

BIG SPRING (AP) - Big Spring police fatally shot a 19-year-old local resident late Thursday after a man attempted to abduct the wife of a college basketball coach, officials said.

Juan Galavez, on probation for 10 years after a 1975 burglary conviction, was killed a mile away from where a man attempted to abduct Mrs. Delnor Poss at knifepoint, according to Police Chief Stanley Bogard. Mrs. Poss' husband coaches the Midland College team that was here to play Howard College. The abduction attempt occurred outside the gym and Mrs. Poss managed to flee her would-be abductor.

Firemen Free Girl From Car HOUSTON (AP) - Firefighters struggled for two hours Thursday to free a 7year-old girl who was trapped beneath an 80,000 pound fertilizer tank truck which had flipped over on the car in which she was riding. Firefighters who freed Stacy Gonzalez promised her a bicycle. Donations for the bicycle were made by persons at the scene who watched the rescue. Stacy was riding with her mother, Okanee Gonzalez, 30, when the tank truck filled with ammonium sulfate rolled over on top of their car, police said. Investigators said the truck rolled over when it left the road and hit a steep grassy slope. The mother was freed from the crushed car in about 15 minutes. She suffered a bruised thigh and a cut lip. Stacy was taken to a hospital for observation, but was not believed to be hurt.

Army Chief Says SALT Important

DALLAS (UPI) - While the United States was involved in the Vietnam war the Soviet Union made great strides in increasing its military power, says the Army Chief of Staff.

Consequently, Gen. Bernard W. Rogers said Thursday, arms limitations talks with the Russians have taken a greater importance because of their increased war-making capabilities.

Rogers said the Soviet Union expanded their-military power "severalfold" while the U.S. was involved in Vietnam, making significant and steady additions in nuclear, sea and air power.

"And they have enlarged their ground forces by 30 divisions to about 170 total,' Rogers told the Dallas chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army. "This 30-division increase is more than the total number of divisions in our total army, both active and guard."

Rogers said the United States' major strategy is to make conventional military . forces more important in an effort to avoid a nuclear confrontation. He said the Army would continue to stress readiness for an extended war.

Rogers said the United States will continue arms reductions talks with the Soviets while strengthening its conventional war capabilities. The Soviet Union also is an economic threat to the United States in the world market, Rogers said. "Our national well-being depends not only on defense from military attack, but on access to the free world's resources and markets," he said. "In this environment the Soviet Union remains our prin-only one but the largest one. 'Our relations with the Soviet Union will continue to be marked by both competition and cooperation with the attendant risk of conflict as well as the oppor-

Farmers Union Expected To Support Strike

ABILENE (AP) - In the wake of the Texas Farm Bureau's opposition to a farm strike, directors of the 10,000-member Texas Farmers Union are expected Saturday to adopt a resolution sympathetic to the farmers' protest.

The nationwide strike is scheduled to begin next week.

Though it avoids sponsorship of the strike itself due to legal limitations, the resolution will put the group on record as recognizing "protest as a traditional and legitimate means of accomplishing a redress of grievances.

The statement further urges "every farmer to work his hardest to achieve a goal of fair price through whatever means he believes to be useful and effective. Approval by the directors means the resolution would stand as an official statement pending action by delegates to the organization's convention in Austin next month. Last week, the Texas Farm Bureau came out in opposition to the strike at its meeting in Houston Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman said he hopes farmers "will get on with it" and said that as an individual farmer he will join in the protest. The policy drafting committee, composed of farmers from across the state, prepared the resolution Thursday in response to pressure from Texas farmers and the American Agriculture movement, sponsors of the strike.

Dentist Gives Tips To Alleviate Fears pains to make a child's first visit to a dentist a happy happening

During the first visit, the child should be shown the ups and downs and other motions of the dental chair, among other things. Tsamtsouris told fellow dentists at the Greater New York Dental Meeting in New York City the other day. But that's not all.

After the child learns the dental chair is a friendly thing to "ride", the child is supposed to be shown how equipment works and "be allowed to touch and push the buttons. If the child drills through the dental chair or sprays dentists, mom and self while getting friendly feelings about the mouthwash apparatus, well, it's all in a good cause - preventing lifelong trauma about dentists.

Tsamtsouris, assistant professor of oral pediatrics at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine, said the child also should be encouraged to listen to the sounds of the various instruments - especially before any instrument is used in any work on his teeth or gums.

While the dentist is doing all this, according to the professor, he should probably be talking about things unrelated to

The subjects of conversation may be related to a television show, pets, school activities and so forth," Tsamtsouris

When it gets down to dentistry, the child might ask a question or two. Any question, the dentists were told, about dental procedures should be answered with honesty and with words the child can understand.

"Otherwise the confidence of the child will be lost," Tsamtsouris noted. 'Will it hurt?" child asks.

"Yes," the dentist should say, or "No." There were these other tips to dentists who want to join in a movement to spare boys and girls dents to their psyches when visiting the dental office the first

Vance, who spoke with reporters at the end of a meeting of Atlantic alliance foreign ministers, was scheduled to arrive in Cairo later today.

Sadat and Hussein met for 21/2 hours Thursday night, and Egyptian newspapers and Jordanian diplomats said the talks were to resume today.

But 10 minutes after a grim-looking Sadat arrived at Kubbeh Palace for the expected meeting today, the two rode off to Cairo airport and the Jordanian mon-

This prompted speculation that Hussein's mission had failed, at least for the moment. He had met Wednesday with Syria's Assad with no apparent results.

Assad arrived in Kuwait today from Riyadh, where he met Thursday with King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Fahd, the Saudi prime minister. Saudi Arabia is the chief contributor of oil wealth to impoverished Egypt.

There was no indication the Syrian president had succeeded in getting Khaled and Fahd to put pressure on Sadat by threatening to cut off their crucial financial support. After Assad departed, the Saudi information minister, Mohammed Abdo Yamani, said King Khaled has "expressed hope that Allah will help the Arabs reunify their ranks and achieve their aspira-

The Syrian president was going on Saturday to Qatar, another oil-rich state on the Persian Gulf.

> "I have read letters between President Sadat and King Khaled," said Moussa Sabri, editor-in-chief of Al Akhbar. "I know that there were many contacts between President Sadat and Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia is backing the visit. So are Kuwait, the Gulf coast, Sudan, the Emirates, Morocco and Tunisia.'

"Syria will come back with Egypt because there is no alternative," the editor commented. "If the Syrians want to make war, they can't alone. If they are struggling for peace, we are struggling

Hussein, attempting to breach the gap between Assad and Sadat, came to Cairo Thursday from Damascus. The Syrian government press and radio reported he failed to shake Assad's opposition to the direct Israeli-Egyptian dialogue engineered by Sadat

The king had been expected to follow Assad to Riyadh, but instead he went home to Amman. There was no explanation, and it was not known if he might go to Saudi Arabia later.

Preparations continued for the second stage of Sadat's peace initiative - talks opening in Cairo Wednesday between Egypt and Israel, along with U.S. and United Nations representatives, to make peace conference in Geneva.

Unconfirmed reports said Hussein might send an observer to the conference, but informed sources said he would hesitate to do so if that would threaten his relations with Assad.

Officials at the Brussels NATO meeting said Vance, who also may attempt to bring Assad and Sadat closer together, was able to arouse only lukewarm support among America's European allies for the Egyptian-Israeli peace effort.

The Soviet Union, criticized by Washington this week for refusing to attend the Cairo peace talks, lashed back at the United States. Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Vance's efforts to make the Cairo meeting a success were "in direct contradiction" to the recent joint Soviet-American declaration on the Middle East, "which says Geneva talks must be held before the end of the year.

A chartered Texas International Airlines DC-9 left from San Diego's Lindbergh Field this morning and headed to Mexico City with 36 Mexican inmates, including 11 who boarded in Houston, as the historic exchange under the first U.S.-Mexico prisoner treaty signed in September 1976 got under way.

The plane was to return tonight with 60 Americans, among them a 60-year-old grandmother and a 2-year-old girl born in

On arrival in Mexico City, the Mexicans were to be taken to the nearby Santa Marta federal prison.

Just before the plane took off, one unideatified Mexican prisoner commented in Spanish, "I'd rather spend 10 years in Mexican jails than one more day in this country. The plane and its 11 inmates took off from Houston and stopped here to pick up 24 Mexican men and one woman for the flight to their homeland. On the flight back to the United States it was to carry 26 women, 34 men and the toddler.

The waiting American families were told the repatriated prisoners would be taken directly to the downtown Metropolitan Correctional Center here. Their first chance to talk together will come Saturday morning, said Walter Lumpkin, warden of the federal prison.

Fire chief Ray Burleigh said the fire at the First Baptist Church of Cameron apparently was started by faulty wiring which ignited leaking natural gas and caused an explosion.

One fireman was slightly injured when he was hit by a flying brick.

Burleigh said the church might have been saved, but the natural gas exploded 30 minutes after the fire started and the building burned to the ground.

Church officials estimated damage at $200,000, but they said the church would be rebuilt on the same site. It was destroyed in 1957 by winds and rain from Hurricane Audrey.

Institute To Study Thrifty Gifts! Laetrile

By CHRIS CONNELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National
Cancer Institute, which has shied away from testing Laetrile on cancer patients because of ethical concerns, now is look-ing for persons who believe Laetrile reduced their tumors

Dr. Guy Newell, deputy director of the institute, said Thursday he hopes 200 to 300 persons will make their medical records available for the study.

If remissions are documented, Newell said, "then the chances are very good that we would do a clinical trial."

"I promise you we're going into it with an open mind. We have not prejudged the outcome at all," said Newell.

The ethical questions center on the fact that Laetrile has not reduced tumors in laboratory animals. Several major studies have concluded the drug, which is made from apricot pits and contains cyanide, is worthless and possibly harm-

The Food and Drug Administration has just sent out a poster to one million doctors and other health professionals warning against use of Laetrile.

Newell said he wishes FDA had held off on the poster campaign for at least the six months it will take the institute to conduct the retrospective study.

Newell said it may cast "some bias on what we're going to do. It might make both patients and doctors reluctant to cooperate with us.

Newell said the FDA, which bans interstate shipments of Laetrile, has agreed not to use any information doctors may submit for the study to initiate any criminal action.

But the agreement would not give doctors immunity from prosecution on information gathered by customs agents or others, he added.

Thirteen states have legalized Laetrile, and a federal judge in Oklahoma on Monday ordered FDA not to interfere with its importation or use. The agency is expected to appeal.

Newell said he does not think the study will encourage cancer patients to try Laetrile "any more than if we do nothing at He noted that its backers claim 50,000 to 75,000 persons use Laetrile, and concern about the drug is spreading among both state legislators and doctors. Newell said the institute hopes to hear from doctors who are not promoting Laetrile but who have patients who have tried it. Persons who want to participate in the study should ask their doctor to notify the cancer institute, Newell said. Details of the three-month study will be spelled out in the New England Journal of Medicine in January. The institute also will place an ad in JAMA, the Journal of the American Medical Association. The institute is looking for evidence that the persons had cancer, that they did not use other therapy within a month after starting to take Laetrile, and that their

House Subcommittee Approves Phase Of Carter Welfare Plan

By PEGGY SIMPSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — President
Carter's proposal to replace the food stamp program with a system of cash payments is moving forward with approval in a House subcommittee.

The 16-12 vote Thursday to merge the $6 billion food stamp program with a consolidated, national cash benefit program for all the nation's poor completed action on the first phase of Carter's welfare revision plan.

Joseph Califano, secretary of health, education and welfare, hailed the action later as "a major step in the direction of comprehensive welfare reform."

The House subcommittee also resisted attempts to liberalize welfare benefits, moves Carter had warned would be too

Members rejected attempts to raise the proposed $4,200 annual welfare benefits for a family of four to the poverty line, now $5,840 a year but which could be $6,-400 by the time the program would take effect in 1981.

The administration said this would cost an extra $20 billion for a program that is already under attack for costing too much at $30.2 billion. The members voted down the proposal 20-9, and later, by a 19-10 vote, rejected efforts to increase benefits up to the poverty level over a five-year period.

"We're the richest nation in the world and people in this (welfare plan) who are not expected to work and are not capable of working are expected to live at below-poverty benefits," complained Rep. Ri-chard Nolan, D-Minn. "I think it is a gross injustice."

The only concession to arguments that benefits are too low was approval of an amendment to increase welfare cash aid automatically to reflect increases in the national cost of living. Carter's plan has no such provision.

But Carter's biggest victory came on the vote to phase out food stamps and integrate its recipients into the overall welfare program.

Most of the 2.6 million poor persons who now get food stamps but are not now eligible for any other welfare programs would be eligible for cash instead of stamps, as well as consideration for the 1.4 million public service jobs to be creat-

Steel Company Records Largest Quarter Loss

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest steelmaker, recorded a third quarter net loss of $477 million, the biggest quarter loss ever by an American firm.

The loss, announced this week, is equivalent to $10.92 per share and was more than 10 times greater than the net profit of $45.5 million, or $1.04 a share, earned in the same period last year.

The largest quarter loss previously recorded by a U.S. firm was in the third quarter of 1972, when RCA Corp. reported a $250 million loss. In 1970, the Penn Central Transportation Co. declared a 12-month loss of $431.2 million.

The company's loss before tax credits was $894 million. The largest part of that was a pre-tax loss of $750 million caused by the shutdown of steel mills in Lackawanna, N.Y., and Johnstown, Pa., where a disastrous flood on July 20 interrupted production.

The company set out in late July to trim costs by cutting production 10 per

FBI Captures Man On Criminal List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has captured one man on its "most wanted" list and added the name of another.

Patrick Huston, 47, accused of a 1974 robbery of a bank in New York City, was captured without incident in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the FBI said Wednesday.

The FBI added the name of Enrique Estrada to the list, saying he was a drug user and faced charges of robbing and beating to death two elderly women in their Hollywood, Calif. homes.

cent. Some 7,300 workers were permanently laid off in Johnstown and Lackawanna, and Bethlehem estimates layoffs will reach 12,000 employes.

will reach 12,000 employes.

"We believe the closing of marginal facilities and other actions taken leave Bethlehem in a stronger and leaner condition to take advantage of opportunities for growth," Chairman Lewis Foy said in announcing the record loss.

Foy cited factors responsible for Bethlehem's decision to close plants and write off its losses, including unfair import competition, rising labor and material costs, sluggish demand and expensive environmental requirements.

"These and other problems are continuing to have a substantial negative effect on our business," he said.

Bethlehem is the sickest of the country's ailing steel companies. U.S. Steel, the nation's largest producer, said this week its profits dropped 75 per cent in the third quarter. U.S. Steel reported net earnings of $27.1 million for the quarter, or 30 cents per share, compared with $112.5 million, or $1.38 per share, for the same time last year.

The nation's top five producers have reported aggregate nine-month earnings of $211.5 million, a drop of 69 per cent below 1976 levels.

All steelmakers have complained of imported steel "dumping," but Bethlehem, as one of the least diversified steel companies, has been especially hurt by imports.

During World War II, thousands of residents of Dover, England, took refuge in the cliffs' labyrinthine caves, protected by 180 feet of chalk.

Bethlehem depends on steel for 90 per cent of its earnings. U.S. Steel, in comparison, makes less than half its profits on steel.

In the midst of the steel doldrums, the steel-dependent auto industry is generally healthy. "People are chewing up a lot of metal," said one steel spokesman, "but the domestic industry hasn't been able to get its fair share of the market because of the record level of imports."

General Motors Corp. this week report-

General Motors Corp. this week reported record third quarter earnings of $402 million. Chrysler, with a troubled overseas operation, recorded profits of $30.4 million, 50 per cent lower than last year. Ford and American Motors figures were expected soon.

tions, by the start of the next school year. Such a proposal probably would involve dispersing many Title I students, who tend to be black or Mexican-American,

throughout the city's public schools.

In respect to the Title I program, there are some big problems with that, said Leslie Cross, assistant director of the school district's special projects.

He said Title I schools are so designated because they have large concentra-tions of students who need extra help the most. Indeed, funding for the program is based on the number of such pupils in each Title I school.

The existing arrangement of neighborhood schools allows the district to focus its Title I resources where the needs are greatest, Cross said.

"I don't know how we would operate a Title I program if our Title I students were dispersed throughout the school system," he said. No doubt, Cross added, it would be difficult to direct the special academic services to the appropriate

When the four additional Title I schools were designated, Cross and a Title I reading consultant said they asked state officials about the implications of Lubbock's current school desegregation case.

They were told to go ahead with the Title I expansion and take a "wait and see" approach to whatever Judge Woodward might decide in the case.

Woodward is not expected to rule until January.

Expansion of the Title I program will involve hiring five more reading teachers, four more math teachers, two kindergarten aides, and a counselor, visiting teacher, nurse, librarian and clerk.

Federal funding for the program this year will be increased by about $190,000 due to the expansion. The overall annual Title I budget, which now provides for 48 reading teachers, 29 math teachers and 16 kindergarten aides, will be about $1.49

Other Title I schools are Bean, Bozeman, Harwell, Iles, Jackson, McWhorter.

The expansion, which will begin as soon as possible, will bring about 560 more students into the services offered through Title I. About 3,800 students are served in the present 14 schools.

Title I services are above and beyond the regular school program. Eligible students spend a class period a day working with the designated Title I teachers, often on a one-to-one basis.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to Currently In Limbo, who was sure her well-known husband was on drugs but didn't know what to do about it, you were absolutely right! He must admit that he needs help before anything can be done for him.

But what about the wife? She's going out of her mind worrying about him. A few years I was in a similar situation only it was my son who was on drugs. I felt so guilty and helpless, I didn't know where to turn. Then I discovered Families Anonymous.

After attending one meeting I had my first good night's sleep in years! From other members who had experienced the agonies I had been through, I learned how to handle my son. When he saw the change in my attitude, his attitude began to change and so did he. It was just like a

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for his 55th birthday. Since many months had passed and he had not used it. I wondered why.

Then a letter appeared in your column from Hurt Wife, asking why a churchgoing, happily married man would visit a massage parlor. You offered a number of reasons? "Curiousity, lust, an itch for variety, fear of missing something, temporary insanity...etc.'

I gave my father a gift certificate to a massage parlor for a perfectly legitimate reason - to treat him to a relaxing massage. The fact that he has not yet taken advantage of it, I attribute to prejudgments such as yours. I think you owe all legitimate masseurs and masseuses an

EAST INDIAN CHICKEN CHOWDER This spicy main course is a cross between a soup and a stew, a simplified main course inspired by Mulligatawny. Chicken thighs are ideal for this dish, since each contains only one large bone. Serve the chowder in large shallow soup plates with knives and forks (for the chicken and vegetables) and soup spoons (for the spicy, savory broth.)

The bidding: North East South West Pass Pass 4 Pass Pass Opening lead: Ace of O.

South, declarer at four hearts, found an unusual avoidance play that converted an excellent contract into a certainty.

We are not at all sure we would have opened the North hand. The preponderance of queens and jacks in-flated the value of the hand, and if we deducted a point for the unprotected heart honors, it becomes a doubtful opening bid. West's interference bothered South only mildly. While he did not much like his distribution, he realized that a bid of only three hearts would sound as if he were competing, so he took the strain off his partner by leaping to game.

West led the ace of dia-monds and continued with the queen. The thoughtless play is to cover with the king, but observe what would happen. East ruffs and shifts to a spade. Whether or not declarer finesses, he must eventually lose a trick to each black king for down one.

Fortunately, declarer took into account the possibility that West might have a seven-card suit for his jump overcall. He countered neatly by playing a low diamond from dummy at the second trick. The defense was now helpless. If East does not ruff, the best the defenders can do is shift to a club. (If West continues with a diamond, declarer overruffs, draws trumps, and takes a club finesse. East wins and shifts to a spade, but declarer rises with the ace and discards his spade loser on a club.) De-clarer finesses and the club king is the last trick for the defense.

It is no better for the defenders if East ruffs the second diamond and shifts to a spade. Declarer rises with the ace, draws trumps, ending in dummy, and discards his spade loser on the king of diamonds. Now he can get back to his hand with a spade ruff to take the club finesse for an overtrick.

Declarer's play might have cost an overtrick if diamonds broke 6-2, but it is a small price to pay to insure a game contract.

Stamps Note Publicity Of Endangered Species

By SYD KRONISH

Protecting endangered species mals not only is becoming a worldwide problem, but the attempts by various governments to publicize their efforts is being noted on the stamps of many countries nowadays. The latest of these wildlife protection stamp series has been released by Ghana.

Ghana's set consists of four stamps and a souvenir sheet featuring animals of that country now considered to be in danger of extinction. Each stamp bears the inscription "Wildlife" and the emblem of Ghana's Wildlife Society.

This year has been declared "World Rheumatism Year" in an effort to gain international support from people in all lands to aid those suffering from this ailment. Lesotho issued a new set of stamps this year dedicated to a public program. One stamp shows a man learning on a cane. Also part of the design are four sets of concentric circles symbolizing pain and inflammation. Another stamp features symbolic flames encircling an ailing man. The third stamp depicts a bent-over figure surrounded by a chain. The fourth stamp bears a design of a figure with cane plus a globe to show the universality

Antiques Can Be Dated By American Symbols cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ralph and Terry Kovel, Box

By RALPH AND TERRY KOVEL

The symbols of America have changed through the years. Uncle Sam and the flag, the Statue of Liberty and the Liberty Bell are well known today, but there were other figures and symbols in earlier centuries. These representations of America often lasted a set period of time and can be used to help date antiques.

The Indian Princess, a rather wild lady with feathers and a pet alligator, was the figure chosen by Europe when America first was discovered. Gradually, the lady turned into Columbia. An eagle, a flag, and a liberty hat often accompanied Columbia, a refined and strong female fig-

FBI Files Reveal Speculation Of Communist Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) - The late J. Edgar Hoover once said it was "entirely possible" that communists wanted to do away with John F. Kennedy because he was getting along too well with the Rus-

Six months after Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas by Lee Harvey Oswald. the FBI chief agreed with speculation that communists might have wanted to be rid of the president "so that this obstacle to their desired philosophy could be removed."

There was little elaboration to the remark, which was found among the 40,001 pages of FBI files on the Kennedy assassination opened this week to public view.

The reference was in the typed notes of an interview Hoover granted to William Manchester, who had been commissioned by Kennedy's widow, Jacqueline, to write an account of the traumatic events surrounding the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas.

'Manchester speculated that perhaps the communists, including Oswald, did not like the relationship between the late president and (Soviet Chairman Nikita) Khrushchev," the notes read. "The director replied that this was entirely possible ... The director told Manchester he had always felt it better to kick individuals while rather than to boot-lick them."

The bulky FBI files show that detente between Russia and the United States apparently was first raised as a possible contributing motive for the assassination by Sanchez Bella, the Spanish ambassa-

Bella told reporters in Rome on Dec. 5, 1963 - 13 days after the Kennedy assassination — that Spain's intelligence services had established a possible link between Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, Oswald and the events in Dallas.

The ambassador cited Castro's concern about the improving relationship be-tween the United States and the Soviet Union as a possible reason for wanting to see Kennedy killed.

Hoover said it was difficult to speculate on the motives of Oswald, whose interest in socialism and communism dated back to his mid-teens. Perhaps, Hoover mused, Oswald was aiming at Texas Gov. John Connally, a passenger in the presidential convertible who was seriouswounded by the assassin.

The 24-foot stack of papers released this week will be matched in January when the second half is made public. But still, skeptics of the Warren Report and its conclusion that Oswald acted alone. were less than pleased.

And Harold Weisberg, who wrote seven books on the assassination while fighting to obtain the FBI documents, argued that the sheer bulk renders the material "indigestible by even the most competent, conscientious journalist.

Indeed, the size of the investigation, the pursuit of the most tenuous of leads, interviews with hundreds of people cross-checked and double-checked is more impressive than anything in the materials. The documents so far have revealed nothing to challenge the Warren Commission's conclusion that there was no conspiracy.

Many news organizations bought their own copies at $4,000.10. Others sent reporters to read at FBI headquarters. And in the first two days only 10-15 non-news people bothered to take a first-hand look.

The FBI scoured the country for any clue to Oswald and to Jack Ruby, the night club owner who killed him. Any crank who made a report, any theory, no matter how remote or seemingly crackpot, was at least listened to - and often acted on. In June 1964, six months after the event, Hoover told Manchester that 50 FBI men were still on the case full-dy assassination. He told Manchester if the FBI had taken custody of Oswald, he would never have been killed by Ruby.

The FBI director was critical of the

Hoover also approved countermanding an order from the Justice Department that a U.S. attorney be allowed to sit in on all conferences in the Ruby case. "Properly handled," Hoover noted on a letter from a subordinate that said the FBI "would run the investigation in this matter."

Similarly, the FBI discouraged the Warren commission from hiring its own investigators and the bulk of the commission's information came from the FBI. Whenever an agent testified before the commission, the file reflected a complete report detailing who was there, what was asked and what the reply was.

In one instance, an FBI official warned that an agent who was about to testify should stick strictly to the facts and keep his theories to himself

FBI men obtained Oswald's psychiatric records when he was 13 and living in New York. He is revealed as a troubled, withdrawn child, a chronic truant, a youngster with an uncaring mother.

'Lee was given a place to sleep in the living room and admitted that this was very much in line with what he had always been led to expect from grown-ups - nodody ever had any room for him, social worker Evelyn Strickman wrote in

Suitor Wanting To Marry Wife Of Grandfather

LONDON (AP) - A 20-year-old American says he wants to marry his 77-yearold step-grandmother, but a London marriage registry office says it can't be done.

Mark Goodman of Los Angeles, who dropped out of college to pursue Mrs. Ray Goodman - a former chorus girl to her native England, told the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, he proposed and was accepted.

But a spokesman at the Paddington registry office, near Mrs. Goodman's London apartment, said:

"It's not on. They asked us for a license, but we had to tell them it was illegal. We checked to make sure, but the answer was that English law prohibits it.

"The law specifically states that a man cannot marry his father's father's wife. It doesn't distinguish between it being his first wife, second, third or fourth. The closest you can be and still get married is

This is something that happens once in a lifetime and we are going to be married ... one way or the other," Goodman told a reporter.

"It is not as if we are blood-related. If it doesn't happen here, it will happen in the United States," he said.

men who served with Oswald heard-him speak sympathetically of communism. A fellow Marine called him "Oswald-

Vermont "Something there is that doesn't want a wall, that wants it down," Frost wrote, after walking the line at spring mending time with his neighbor beyond the hill to reset the stones knocked down by hunt-

brings further refrains from the poet

Robert Frost, who also had a farm in ers.

"Good fences make good neighbors," the farmer replied, quoting his father. Like the typically laconic Vermonter, he refused to be drawn into the poet's fretting over what they were "walling in or walling out" or who might take offense. Local opinion in this small southern pretty much that way over the six-foot high steel fence, with a television camera and floodlights at the main gate, that exiled Russian writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn had erected around his 51 acres along Tracer Brook.

"The hunters are pretty browned off, and that fence doesn't set too well with the cross-country skiers and the snow scooter clubs," said town manager Quentin Phelan, tilting back in his captain's chair. "But the majority don't pay it no mind at all. People in Vermont are famous for minding their own business and they leave him pretty much alone. We almost never see him; the interpreter comes down to get the mail.'

Walking the line on a darkening evening, with a stabbing wind blowing snow flurries out of the north, one had to agree with Phelan that the fence "never could keep the KGB out ... it couldn't even keep the hunters out." A child could easily climb the mesh strands, and, near the corner of the heavily wooded property, a fallen tree lay across the fence, so that any preying animal, biped or quadrupled, could scamper across.

Only the roof of the house could be seen from the dirt road, through a clump of birches just beyond a waterfall that spilled into a pretty pond.

From the chimney came signs of life and, across the road, a sign of death: "Forty-one rods NE to the grave beside the Crown Point Road of a soldier of the French and Indian War." Did former Captain of Artillery Alexander Solzhenitsyn ever visit this unknown soldier's grave on his solitary strolls through the woods? It would have meant going outside his fence, putting the magnetized card into the roadside box to open the electronic gate, looking cautiously about to see if anyone was lurking for an interview, an autograph or worse.

'There have been threats against him, at least three that I know of," said Phelan. "Someone climbed the pole and left a note in Russian attached to the lens of the TV camera. When he came to our town meeting in March, we knew weeks ahead he was coming. His movements were timed, when he left the house, when he got to the elementary school, and there were 11 state troopers in plain clothes spotted around the hall. We didn't want another Trotsky case here."

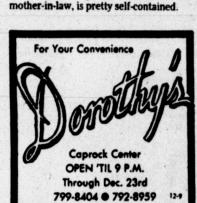

That was when Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel Prize winner, humbly apologized to his neighbors for putting up that fence, asking them to understand how it was that his chain of thought broken, it sometimes takes him days to get back on the track.

They applauded him as a great man and a good neighbor, who paid his poll tax and got the proper licenses from the pound keeper for his four dogs. Every Vermont town has an official called the "fence viewer," either elected or appointed by the selectmen. Cavendish lists three fence viewers, whose main job is to settle boundary feuds between neighbors or to see whose fault it is when the cows get out on the road. None of them was called in to view Solzhenitsyn's famous said Phelan. There is no mail box at Solzhenitsyn's gate, and he himself never answers the phone. The household, including the 58year-old author, his wife, Natalya, their three children, aged 6, 4 and 3, and his

"No boundary line was in dispute,"

Agencies Disagree On Use Of Computer Brakes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Transportation Department requires that heavy trucks built after Jan. 1, 1975, be equipped with computerized brakes "to protect the public against unreasonable risk of accidents.

However, one department agency says it does not plan to require trucks to have the brakes until January 1979.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued the standards on brakes trucks must have when they are sold. But it is up to the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety to issue standards on what trucks on the highways must have.

Thus, a trucker can take the computerized devices off his vehicle and, according to testimony this week, this is a widespread practice because of maintenance problems and questions over whether the sophisticated devices are an improvement over older types of air brakes.

The bureau said Tuesday it does not plan to enforce the safety administration's regulation until 1979.

Kenneth Pierson, deputy director of the bureau, said in an interview, "You have to understand our respective roles. NHTSA incorporates the latest manufacturing technology in its standards. We have to assure ourselves that enforcement is practical.

Pierson compared the situation to government requirements on automobile seatbelts. Carmakers are required to install them in new cars, but car owners are free to remove the belts.

Enforcing the NHTSA safety standard would require that trucks found at highway weighing stations without the computerized brakes would have to have them installed on the spot before continuing onward. This could mean that parts and mechanics to install them might have to be sent many miles in some cases, he said.

The 1975 standard required shorter stopping capability on both wet and dry pavement. It also required that wheels not lock up, causing a skid, during brak-

John Snow, former administrator of NHTSA, said he found that "the antilock systems were subject to high failure rates and serious maintenance problems.

Because of these problems, he said that more than 50 percent of the antilock systems on trailers and about 30 percent of those on tractors were not operational in

Commission May Require Race, Sex Identifications

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Alan Campbell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said Thursday the federal government might resume asking job applicants to declare their race and sex.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith opposes such a move, saying it might lead to preferential hiring of minorities and women, and Larry Lavinski, chairman of its civel rights committee, today threatened court action to stop it.

The commission had sought race and sex identifications on applications. but stopped it in the early 1960s under pressure from civil rights groups.

"We now intend, in a selected set of exams in selected cities, to ask job applicants to indicate on a separate form race, sex and other socioeconomic information about themselves. That will not appear on their application, or on the exam and will not be available to the hiring officers in the agencies," Campbell said.

"The purpose of doing this is for us to do analytical work, to determine whether there is any evidence that our exams contain within them bias.'

Campbell said although the mix of civil servants generally was representative of the population, the commission is trying to get more qualified minorities in the 15,000 top-level jobs, where currently only 3 percent are black, 3 percent are women, and there are practically no Hispanic-Americans.

"The fact is," Campbell said, "that statistics strongly argue that there has been preference in the past, and that preference has been for white males. What we have to do is develop a system that will rid us of those last remnants of discrimi-

Moscow Says China Befriends NATO

HONG KONG (UPI) - It would be hard to imagine a stranger union, but Moscow says China's leaders are trying to forge a military alliance with NATO. As part of their alleged "chauvinist scheme," the Chinese leaders have been entertaining "Hitlerite generals" and other Western "militarists," Moscow Radio said in a broadcast beamed to China. A translation of the monitored broadcast was obtained Wednesday "It is an established fact that Peking leaders have closely cooperated with NA-TO, the major imperialist military bloc," the broadcast said. "This cooperation has grown year after year and its scope has broadened. "The goal of the ... chauvinist scheme is to openly form a military alliance with NATO's reactionary warlords to oppose the Soviet Union and its armed forces, which had repeatedly aided the Chinese people in the past."

The preliminary report of mid-1977 shows an approximate 20 percent accident reduction" for vehicles equipped with the new brakes, she said. Miss Claybook said the agency has been unable to find a case in which there is proof that the new brake systems caused an accident. She stressed the need for safe brakes on large trucks. "When a truck hits something else, it is probably going to kill

Price Floor Established On Bauxite

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) - After four years of striving, the group of bauxite-producing nations known as the International Bauxite Association has agreed on a minimum-price policy for the alumi-

But the chosen minimum didn't appear likely to prompt significant changes in ore prices currently paid by North American aluminum makers

The mining ministers from 10 IBA countries decided that the minimum price for "base grade" bauxite in the North American market should be $24 a metric ton in 1978. A metric ton is equal to 2,204.6 pounds

The IBA said that in "normal market conditions," the price of bauxite in North America should be in the area of 2.5 percent to 3 percent of the list price for 99.5 percent pure primary aluminum ingot as quoted in American Metal Market, a trade publication

On a per-pound basis, the IBA's $24 a metric ton reference price currently equals 2.1 percent of the domestic list price for ingot, which is 53 cents a pound.

Cost, insurance and freight are included in the minimum price, and there will be "appropriate adjustments for grade," the group said. It is understood that the "base grade" contains about 45 percent aluminum oxide, the powdery substance from which the metal is smelted.

For bauxite markets outside North America. an IBA communique said 'members should seek appropriate relative prices, with adjustments for traditional market differentials.

The floor-pricing policy was approved by Australia, a long-time holdout against such a policy. Other members voting included the Dominican Republic, Ghana, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Jamaica, Sierra Leone, Surinam and Yugoslavia. The IBA's 11th member, Indonesia, didn't at-

Henri Guda of Surinam, who on Jan. 1 will relinquish his post as the IBA's first secretary-general to G. Arthur Brown, former governor of the Bank of Jamaica, said he believes the organization's move won't dramatically increase world baux-

'It will mean a slight improvement" in prices for some nations, Guda said in a telephone interview. "But the dramatic thing is that we have reached agreement and there isn't any way back.

The IBA decision appeared to leave room for further pricing changes.

The communique said the group's top policymakers chose the $24 a metric ton reference price "recognizing the present market outlook."

According to Peter McRae of 5302 11th St., No. 118, a burglary at his apartment during a one-hour time period Thursday resulted in the loss of his $180 stereo receiver. Reports indicated no sign of forced entry was found.

Seven-hundred feet of wire, valued at $170, reportedly was stolen from a house under construction in the 3500-block of 91st St., reports showed.

Tom P. Torres of 1017 Coronado Drive said someone broke into his apartment early Thursday, climbed the stairs, then calmly searched his wallet and his wife's purse while the couple slept just a few teet away.

After taking $60 from Torres' wallet, the burglar reportedly stole the family's Christmas star ornament before leaving.

Banker To Tell Political Plans

Banker and Texas Tech University regent Don Workman has called a press conference for 11 a.m. Tuesday at which he is expected to announce his candidacy for the 28th state senatorial district.

The conference is slated to be held in the press room at Lubbock International Airport.

Workman is expected to join four other Democratic primary contenders for the state senate seat being vacated by Kent Hance, who is running for Congress. The current announced candidates are Jesse George. Delwin Jones. E. L. Short and Morris W. "Moe" Turner.

Philippines Rights Drive To Continue

MANILA (AP) - The United States will continue expressing its human rights concerns to the martial law government of President Ferdinand Marcos, American Ambassador David Newsom said Thursday

Newsom, who assumed his post here five weeks ago, told the Manila Rotary Club that "questions of human rights in the Philippines have for some time formed part of the public and the official dialogues between the two countries. This will continue

The Carter administration "is not seeking to intervene in the affairs of other nations." Newsom said, but "does seek to make clear the strong preference of the United States for those societies in which there is respect for human dignity (and) due process of law.

Beginning with the class entering the Worcester school next September, all graduates must pay the state $8,000 after graduation or work one year in the commonwealth. Tuition is now $900 a year.

Despite strong objections, the university's Board of Trustees this week voted unanimously to comply with a state law passed last July mandating the "payback" system.

Roger Bulger, dean and chancellor of the Medical School, termed the $8,000 figure adopted by the board "minimal compliance" with the law. He said the actual cost of a four-year medical educa-

Canyon Residents To Decide On Incorporation

Lake Ransom Canyon will vote again Saturday whether to incorporate as a village, and this time backers and even opponents of the issue say there's a good ehance the proposal will pass.

'The election is going to be close, but I feel incorporation may have picked up enough support in the past few weeks to carry," Reid Warner, president of the property owners' association in the secluded subdivision of southeast Lubbock County, said Thursday.

Indeed, if Warner and other pro-incorporation forces have managed to sway only a few voters, that may be enough to tilt the Lake Ransom Canyon majority toward the "village" status.

A year ago, the subdivision's voters rejected the same proposition by a slim 81-

The issues haven't changed much since

"Basically, one group feels we meed a little more organization in the of law enforcement and other services. And the other group feels it would not be wise to create another layer of government," Warner said.

"Several meetings" have been held in the affluent enclave, which includes about 145 homes and 350 residents, to discuss the incorporation proposal recently,

The boards of the property owners' group, and subdivision's water district have spoken out in favor of incorporation. Warner said

Warner argues that organizing as a village would "increase our effectiveness in providing security and police protection, setting up speed zones, maintaining roads" and zoning property.

Currently, the subdivision has a private security force - paid for by residents but without the weight of a "duly authorized peace officer," Warner said.

Lake Ransom Canyon depends on Lubbock County government for supplemental law enforcement and all road maintenance services. Residents recently have established their own volunteer fire department. Opponents of incorporation say the subdivision is too small now to shoulder the financial burden of providing the proposed services.

By law, the maximum tax the incorporated village could levy would be 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

"I still have questions whether this is the right time to incorporate," said Cam Fannin, who led last year's opposition to

"There's a big question whether we have a sufficient number of residents, at the tax rate we'd be allowed to charge, to raise enough revenue to run a city," Fan-

men and convict them on the basis of corraborating evidence and testimony.

Jahn said the Watergate scandal proved a man's position and reputation are no reason to think him innocent.

"Reputation is not a strong defense. We have learned from the events of the past, when a president, an attorney general and other high officials with high reputations have lied," Jahn told jurors. "No man is above the law. We know that," Jahn added.

The case is the first of its kind to be tried in Texas, prosecutors said. The conspiracy charge carries a maximum fiveyear sentence and $10,000 fine. The maximum penalty for killing an eagle is one year in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Defense attorneys told the jury the government's case rested on "a bought and paid for witness," Gerald Heintzelman, a 31-year-old helicopter pilot who was granted immunity for his testimony.

Heintzelman, who said he has received $1,200 from the government for living expenses since agreeing to cooperate with prosecutors, testified he flew the defendants on hunts for golden eagles between December 1975 and January 1977.

Heintzelman said Leinweber never shot at any eagles, but that both Allen and Pape gunned down at least 70 of the birds from the helicopter. He said Pape shot most of the eagles.

Leinweber, Allen and Pape all took the stand during the four-day trial and flatly denied the charges against them. They said Heintzelman was "a liar."

The defendants testified Heintzelman flew them on hunts but that only predatory coyotes, bobcats and some hogs were their targets.

Some ranchers in Real County, a rugged, hill area about 80 miles west of San Antonio, claim golden eagles attack and kill their baby sheep and kid goats.

But, he added, since the last election, the "feeling of the community has changed somewhat in favor of incorporation." Fannin predicts a close vote Satur-

Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the subdivision sales office.

If the vote carries, another election will be held for selection of village officers a mayor, five aldermen and a marshal. Should the proposition pass, incorporation will be successful only if "a majority of people are ready to cinch up their belts and pitch in to help," Fannin said.

That means filling the governing positions and other part-time jobs - such as assistant deputy, city secretary and municipal judge - at no pay, Fannin said. And even though he's opposed to incorporation, Fannin said he would be among the first to volunteer his services for the proposed village.

"We've got good people out here. No matter which way the election goes, ever-ybody will get behind the majority's decision," Fannin said.

The election was authorized after petitions were presented to County Judge Rod Shaw by supporters of the proposed incorporation.

Residents had to get City of Lubbock permission for the election because 322 acres of the subdivision extend into Lubbock's five-mile extraterritorial jurisdiction. City officials say that if the issue passes, they want to meet with Lake Ran-overlapping jurisdictions,

GROWING OLDER

Columnist Questions Retirement Change

By HAROLD BLUMENFELD

Recently I've been reading and hearing about things happening in Washington which might be of help to us who are already retired. But if you are getting close to celebrating a 65th birthday and are facing the "doomsday" when you might be forced to leave you job, keep on reading.

New legislation very well may affect you more than it does those of us who already have received a retirement watch, with no need to tell the time because we have no place to go, or were presented with an inscribed desk pen set and have no one to write. The House of Representatives already has passed and a Senate committee has recommended that the mandatory retirement age in industry be advanced from 65 to 70. A few legislators even favor removing this retirement age limitation entirely. That doesn't mean everyone wishes to continue working after 65, or even after 62. It's a choice which will be open for the next generation of potential retirees.

I'm skeptical whether all these retirement splurgings in the Capital are really because of a seemingly sudden splurge of concern for us, the aging population. Or whether the proposed legislation is planned to get more money into the Social Security Fund. Because anyone who will continue working after 65 won't collect all or part of his normal social security benefits. And, more important, he will continue paying some of his earnings into the Social Security system. Unfortunately, you can't eat your cake and still keep all or a small piece of the

The first rumblings about a possible change in Social Security regulations came from a Cabinet officer who suggested 67 as the age before anyone would be permitted to collect from Social Security. It seemed to me this was nothing more than a plot to have us continue working only to have more money coming into the rather depleted Social Security cash box, which would have worked both ways - more money coming in and less money being paid out.

It's important to remember Social Security pension checks are tax-free, but the paycheck for a person working after 65 is subject to internal revenue income taxing. Some who are about to retire will want to figure out whether it will be advantageous, financially, to continue at the old job. Or to retire and try to live comfortably with Social Security benefit checks and returns from small invest-

Or you can plan retiring and take another job for less money, which might keep you under that ceiling of $3,000 which limits your outside earnings before you lose all or part of your Social Security pension check.

Some recommendations have been made in Congress to raise this earning ceiling to $4,000, $4,500 and even to $6,000. But at the time I write this I know o no legislation passed by Congress and signed by the president which spells out how much and when we will be permitted to earn more money after retirement without forfeiting any part of our Social Security pension checks.

Already, spokesmen (or should this be spokespersons?) are wailing objections to what this all might do to the Social Security Fund. If the earning ceiling is raised, we can make more and the Social Security fund won't be much poorer by losing the small amount chalked up as penalty deductions. But this will be balanced by the extra money contributed to the fund by people who will be holding onto their old jobs for another five years.

Strong objections also are being raised by labor, industry and some federal government officials that a worker continuing on the job until he is 70 will prevent younger people from advancing to more responsible positions. This isn't necessarily so, because competent older workers in many cases can be moved laterally within a company to utilize their talent and experience and still permit younger people to climb up the ladder.

I've also heard the argument that if you wish to continue working until you are 70, you're going to keep someone out of the job market. But if you do work for another five years after 65, you won't be making as much of an impact on the employment statistics as those younger people who are now moonlighting by holding two jobs or in households where both husband and wife are working full-time, even if they really don't need the money.

AUSTIN (UPI) - Comptroller Bob Bullock says it takes low taxes, corporate advantages and tight government spending to attract industry to a state - and those are the reasons industries are moving to Texas.

Bullock said last week Texas offered industry the nation's most favorable business climate, a statement backed by the Fantus Co., an industrial relocation consulting firm, which ranks Texas No. 1 in terms of taxes, laws and regulations which are attractive to business

Texas is the only major state with neither a corporate nor a personal income tax." Bullock said. "And most of our taxes are either lower than the national average or the lowest, period."

Bullock said Texas' 4 percent state sales tax equals the national average, but the state's sales tax receipts have grown faster than any other state - 31 percent in the past two years, compared to a national average of 17 percent.
"On the other side of the coin, while most states talk about controlling government spending. Texans have done some-thing about it," Bullock said. "Forty-seven other states spend more money per capita on state services than we do in

According to Bullock, only New Hampshire's $223 per capita tax burden is lower than Texas' $273, far below that of other major industrial states such as Michigan's $413 and California's $500. The national average is $408.

While seven other states were losing 565,000 jobs during the recession, Bullock said the Texas added 150,000 jobs. Texas has had no new taxes since 1971, he said. while 39 other states had 101 tax in-

Elvis Boom Continues In Asia

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Elvis Pres-ley boom launched by the entertainer's death this summer rocks along in Southeast Asia.

Re-released Presley films are still being screened at cinemas and as TV specials while disc jockeys play his music by the hour. Record counters enjoy contin-ued heavy sales of Presley hits and Asian imitators of the late king of rock 'n' roll have no difficulty finding work in the region's nightclubs.

"A Tribute to Elvis" at the Mandarin Hotel recently offered such attractions as a dance sequence to "Jailhouse Rock," a rock 'n' roll competition and "Wilson David, Singapore's Answer to Elvis Pres-

And "Elvis, Apa Yong Terjadi," the Indonesian translation of the book "Elvis, What Happened?" by three of the entertainer's former aides, was serialized on the front page of the newspaper Suara Karya.

One Presley movie a day was shown during "Elvis Week" at the Regent Hotel in Kuala Lumpur. Daily newspapers in the Malaysian capital published letters from readers urging the government station to televise shows about the dead star. Posthumous Presleymania in The Philippines includes soaring record sales, movies on TV and special radio shows. Manila radio station DWIZ, the country's top pop broadcaster, belted out 30 minutes of Presley music each night recently. Brenda Dayhon of Vicor Music Corp., exclusive distributor of Presley records in The Philippines, said that only his last album was selling before his death Aug. 16, but now all recorded Presley works are in demand.

Vanishing Art, Wilderness Head For Showdown

By JULES LOH
BOSS HOLLOW, Ark. (AP) — The government is custodian of a vanishing American wilderness. Jack McCutcheon is custodian of a vanishing American art. One or the other is going to have to give. Jack McCutcheon is a chairmaker.

In partnership with his brother-in-law, Charles Christian, he makes chairs in a fashion handed down from the earliest settlers of the Ozarks, a hardy, self-sufficient breed who made do by the bounty of the wilderness and their own wits.

Jack and Charles learned the chairmaking art from Jim Nichols, Charlie's father-in-law, who is now 73 and who, as a lad of 16, learned from his own father, and so on back to the pioneers.

Some years ago Jack and Charles were invited to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington to demonstrate their techniques to scholars of America's folkways. Such is the rarity of their craft.

It is a method involving warping the wood by boiling and then fitting the curved pieces together precisely, joining seasoned wood to unseasoned wood so

They use no nails or screws or glue. Most of their tools are hand made. Yet chairs made by Jim Nichols more than half a century ago are as sound as ever, and chairs made by Jack and Charles will be around long after both of them are gone. They are functional chairs, simple, straightforward, as honest in design as "I have heard of a man in Kentucky who makes chair bottoms the way we Jack McCutcheon said. "I don't know his name. If there are others, I haven't heard of them.

"Most of the people who make chairs similar to ours, hand made chairs, use split oak for the seat bottoms. I really believe we're the last using bitternut bark. Nothing I've seen is as good or lasts as

There's the rub.

Bitternut trees, a variety of hickory. grow in relative abundance in this sparsepopulated section of the Ozarks. But, gradually, more and more of this section has been designated as wilderness area, a Ben's Branch over sinuous mountain legal designation which preserves the natural state of an area by prohibiting the cutting of a single tree.

One recent Saturday Jack McCutcheon, his wife, Lois, and their 23-year-old son, Carl, drove 15 miles from their home at roads, no more than dirt lanes, to the nearest legal stand of bitternuts Jack had been able to scout out.

They parked at the mouth of Boss Hollow and then walked, or rather scrambled, a quarter of a mile along rugged slopes to the remote site.

"The bitternut isn't a regular hickory tree," Jack said. "It's really a weed tree. Timber people clear them out and throw them away when they set up a logging operation. But it's the only tree we can use for our chairs. No other kind will do."

Carl felled a tree about eight inches in diameter. He propped one end in the V of the stump, waist high, and tied the other end to an uncut tree at the same height. He cleaned off the branches, leaving a

The three of them set to work with draw knives, the same ancient tool their ancestors used, a foot-long blade with two perpendicular handles. They peeled off the outer bark, careful not to cut too deep. Then, just as deftly, Jack and his son peeled off the supple inner bark in inch-wide strips as long as the tree, about 20 feet, not varying the thickness more than a sixteenth of an inch, just right for weaving a chair bottom that will last longer than a lifetime.

As the men worked, Lois wound the strips into a ball the size of a basketball, the easier to carry home and store. After a long day they had enough bitternut bark for maybe 15 chairs, no more.

"If there were another way, we'd do it," Jack said. "But if our chairs are going to be made the way they've been made, this is the only way. The oldtimers had their pick of material and chose

The irony is that if Jack McCutcheon's source of supply is cut off, tauntingly, in the valient effort to preserve the wilderness, a tree will live and an American folk art will die.

Beyond $2 Billion

Sales are good for recordings of classical music, jazz, middle-of-the road sounds such as Frank Sinatra, rhythm and blues, country and western songs and even comedy routines. But industry officials say the big boom continues to be in

"In the early 1970s, everyone was saying, 'Well, the '60s are over; the music explosion is over," said Yetnikoff. "But it wasn't. There was a lull in the early '70s, but since then the business just hasn't stopped growing."

Yetnikoff, trying to explain the industry's surge, said popular music "no longer is the counter-culture sort of thing. Most industry observers agree.

In the 1950s, teen-agers were attracted to the new "rock 'n' roll" for its vitality. its message (which often didn't exist but always seemed to) and the fact that their parents - comfortable with the moregentle Big Band sound of the '40s didn't like the new music.

In the 1960s, rock music became more revolutionary, reflecting for American teen-agers (and sometimes leading them into) the swift currents of social change flowing through the country.

But then, during the 1970s, the nation's race relations seemed smoother; the Vietnam War wound down and then end-

"I think younger people changed," Yet-nikoff said. "I think older people changed, too. Older people, they — I guess I'll have to say we - have adjusted to the change

"I mean, kids 16-years-old were saying, 'Gee, my father's a dentist. He lives a pretty good life; maybe I should be a

As American life calmed down a bit, so did its music. No great upheavals oc-curred in the '70s that could be compared to the appearance in the '50s of Elvis Presley and his followers or in the '60s of the Beatles and the rest of the British in-

So the rock 'n' rolling teen-agers of the '50s and '60s became the rock 'n' rolling parents of the '70s. And with only varia-tions on the same theme available for their own children, many American fami-lies now are made up of people listening primarily to varying forms of rock. "It's been a process of evolution rather than revolution," said Henry Brief. For 17 years, Brief has viewed the American pop-music scene from his post as execu-tive director of the Recording Industry Association of America.

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL—Friday Evening, December 9, 1977—67

Drought Decreases Underground Water

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - A geologist has told a convention of the American Geophysical Union the western drought has caused further damage to California's underground reservoirs.

Ben-Lofgren, of the U.S. Geological Survey, says the irreparable damage was disclosed in a recent study of San Joaquin Valley underground supplies, where the land has subsided as much as 30 feet following half a century of pumping.

Lofgren said ground water pumping in the Central Valley eased off about 1970. with the completion of a surface system of canals and reservoirs but resumed when the drought began two years ago.

City Church Schedules Ministry

A 24-hour daily prayer ministry by Lubbock's Highland Baptist Church will begin the first minute of the first hour of Prayer commitment cards are being filled out all this month by members at the church.

When the prayer ministry begins, members of the church, either as individuals or couples, will be praying every hour of every day in 1978. The commitments are for specified hours. The plan is being organized with captains and groups, with the captains responsible for getting prayer hours filled by members of their group. Site for most of the prayers will be the small, frame church chapel that has been built by members. It is located on the west parking lot of the church at 4316 34th St.

Major objective of the prayers of the members will be intercessory prayer. Requests for prayer may be made by members or persons outside the church's membership.

The church also plans to conduct a telephone prayer ministry with a telephone hookup into the little prayer chapel. The prayer ministry by telephone will benefit the public.

The Rev. Richard D. Waters, pastor, said the 24-hour prayer ministry, seven days a week, will require more personal involvement by more people than any other ministry of the church.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

Rev. 7:4-17, 8:1-2, The Living Bible

4-8 How many were given this mark? I heard the number-it was 144,000, out of all twelve tribes of Israel, as listed here: Judah, 12,000; Reuben, 12,000; Gad, 12,000; Asher, 12,000; Naphtali, 12,000; Manasseh, 12,000; Simeon, 12,000; Levi, 12,000; Issachar, 12,000; Zebulun, 12,000; Joseph, 12,000; Renignin, 12,000; Ren Benjamin, 12,000

9 After this I saw a vast crowd, too great to count, from all nations and provinces and languages, standing in front of the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white, with palm branches in their hands.

10 And they were shouting with a mighty shout, "Salvation comes from our God upon the throne, and from the Lamb. 11 And now all the angels were crowding around the throne and around the Elders and the four Living Beings, and falling face down before the throne and worshiping

12 "Amen!" they said. "Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might, be to our God forever and forever. Amen!"

13 Then one of the twenty-four Elders asked me, "Do you know who these are, who are clothed in white, and where they come from?'

14 "No, sir," I replied. "Please tell These are the ones coming out of the Great Tribulation," he said; "they washed their robes and whitened them by the blood of the 15 That is why they are here before the throne of God, serving Him day and night in His temple. The one sitting on the throne will shelter them;

16 They will never be hungry again, nor thirsty, and they will be fully protected from the scorching noontime heat.

17 For the Lamb standing in front of the throne will feed them and be their Shepherd and lead them to the springs of the Water of Life. And God will wipe their tears away."

CHAPTER 8

1 When the Lamb had broken the seventh seal, there was silence throughout all heaven for what seemed like half an hour.

LIKE SOLDIERS

There's beauty to the morning after a snowstorm, with the world turned white. The trees march in line like soldiers buried under the weight of their packs. Branches bend under the load; sometimes they break. But, more often they're resilient enough to withstand the storm . . . and still keep growing.

FIND STRENGTH FOR YOUR LIFE - ATT

Can we say the same of ourselves? Do we stand up under burdens, or do our hidden shoulders snap and break? It might help us to bear heavy loads if we realized that we're never alone. The world is full of others staggering along under their own burdens, and most of them manage to keep going. And the lucky ones who have a true faith even realize that the pilgrimage has a reason, a meaning, even though they may not understand it.

Where do you find faith? You don't. It comes to you. And the Church is the first step toward such a meeting.

Gospel Music Group 'Bridge'

To Sing At Nazarene Church

"Bridge," one of the nation's most pop-ular gospel musical groups will be at Lubbock's First Nazarene Church, located at 46th Street and Avenue Q, at 6 p.m. Sun-

'Bridge' consists of 15 young adults, all either in college or recent college graduates. They are a multi-talented group that exhibits skills in the contemporary religious field today. Some of the adjectives and phrases they have earned include "mature," "warm," "inspiring" and "an experience never to be forgot-

The musically self-contained group of six vocalists and eight instrumentalists have been heard in many of the nation's largest churches, before college and high school audiences, civic organizations, and try. There will be no admission charge Sunday night, according to Rev. Gene Sanders, pastor of First Nazarene.

"Bridge" records on the Impact Label, with the Benson Company of Nashville,

"Bridge" albums are found in music and book stores across America. They are heard extensively on religious radio and television. The group also was seen on the NBC evening news in October of this

The group was created and is trained by Jim Van Hook. He is a publisher, writer, producer and director. Most musical arrangements for the group are written specifically for "Bridge" by composer, Jerry Nelson.

Iraq Asks Return Of Museum Relics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The government of Iraq wants the University of Pennsylvania Museum to return two archaeological relics, described as the 'sound box of a harp" and the "head of a woman from Ur."

Museum officials said Wednesday that any such objects had been obtained legitimately, and a spokeswoman said "no decisions have been made" on the request.

LORI PICKETT

Group To Sing At Monterey Baptist Church

When the Christian singing and drama group, "Act I Company," appears at Lub-bock's Monterey Baptist Church, located at 3601 50th St. at 8 p.m. next Monday, one of the musical entourage will be a Lubbock singer, Lori Pickett.

Lori is a Coronado High graduate and attended Texas Tech. She now is touring, singing and witnessing with "Act I." which performs almost daily in high schools, colleges, military bases and churches all across America.

Witnessing in song and music is not new to Lori PickPickett. In the summer of 1976, she traveled with the Continental Singers behind the Iron Curtain. And then in the summer of 1977 she once again went to Europe. She has performed in eight foreign countries and almost all of the states of America.

Admission to the concert is free, according to a church spokesman. The 90minute program combines comedy sketches and exciting music, pantomimes, and monologues. "Act I Company" currently is on an 11-month tour of performances across the U.S. Traveling is from 100 to 300 miles per day, as the group moves coast-to-coast on the tour.

When Lori is home between tours, she is an active member at Monterey Baptist Church, taking part in Sunday School, choir and youth work.

MOSAIC

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP) - Sixth-graders at Pioneer School have fashioned a mosaic made from assorted beans and seds in a term-long project. The students spent about 3,000 hours on their work of art. As the first "graduating" class from the new school, the 80 pupils wanted to leave behind a unique remembrance.

Campus Crusade Plans $1 Billion Evangelism Crusade In essence, Bright wants to extend the tian Congress.' By DAVID E. ANDERSON

United Press International Writer Bill Bright and the Campus Crusade for Christ, the people who flooded America with the "I Found It" bumper stickers, have announced the most ambitious evangelism campaign ever - a $1 billion plan to bring the message of Christ to the world by 1982

"It is a goal I have held dear for more than 30 years - to fulfill the Great Commission," Bright said in announcing the

by evangelicals to refer to Jesus' words in the gospel of Matthew 28:19-20 when he tells his disciples to "go therefore and make disciples of all nations...

Bright has brought together a group of wealthy and influential evangelicals to put the fundraising campaign together, including movie stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Holiday Inns co-founder Wallace E. Johnson and Dallas oilman Nelson Bunker Hunt.

The program aims at raising $100 million by the end of 1978. Campaign officials say about $30 million already has Television and film will be a key ingredient in the campaign, particularly in reaching foreign cities. In rural areas, the plan calls for placing inexpensive radios and television sets in two million villages where broadcasting facilities are available, and use of "circuit-riding" portable theaters built into vans in other areas.

Unusual Baptist Preacher Knows Hatred, Abuse

United Press International Writer The Rev. Will Campbell is a most uncommon Southern Baptist preacher.

Part of a religious group well known for denouncing the evils of demon rum he makes no apologies of his fondness for southern bourbon and has been known, at the end of a long day in New York, to produce a flask of "white lightning" moonshine whiskey - no doubt in the biblical manner of saving the best wine

Campbell is also a preacher equally at ease at a cocktail party in New York or in the poverty-ridden small towns and shacks of rural Mississippi, Alabama or

He has known, as he has tried to be faithful to the ministry of the gospel, the hatred of those on the political right and now, the abuse of many former friends from the left.

And he is a southerner, one who has known the terrible complexity of the intersection of race, religion and politics at a time when it seemed the whole nation was once again on the brink of devastating violence over those very issues.

Now director of the Committee of Southern Churchmen, Campbell also edits Katallagete, one of the most influential little magazines in the field of religion.

His notion of ministry is not in fashion much anymore - the idea that he is called to minister to all, whether they are poor black folk or redneck members of the Ku Klux Klan. That idea of ministry led to his accidental but logical involvement in the civil rights movement of the 1960s and continues to involve him in the causes and concerns of the 1970s, but not always to the satisfaction of either his southern or northern liberal friends.

After years of prodding by his friends, Campbell has finally written part of his story down in a fine, compelling memoir of his brother Joseph, taken by drugs and a broken heart the medical profession could call a "massive thrombosis," called "Brother to a Dragonfly" (Seabury Press).

Joe's life and death is, for Campbell, a metaphor of the South, of American in those days and it is a story of Campbell's own fundamental faith: a belief that Resurrection will triumph over death, that grace will not be defeated by sin.

It is Campbell's holding faithfully to that view that has got him in trouble with a lot of his friends from the old civil rights days.

With a Ph.D. from Yale, Campbell writes that his real theology was learned not from any of the several schools he attended "but sitting here in a heavily mortgaged home in Fairhope, Ala.," as the pupil of his brother Joe and P.D. East, who published the Mississippi newspaper known as The Petal Paper and who advocated the complete integration of all Mississippi society as early as

In that conversation, spawned by the shooting of Jonathan Daniel by a white special deputy. Campbell was called on to explain and justify his faith by "two of the most troubled men I have ever

It was an earthy conversation in which Campbell sought to explain his belief that all people were sinners and that God

"Suddenly everything became clear," he said. "Everything. It was a revelation...And I began to whimper. But the crying was interspersed with laughter. I was laughing at myself, at 20 years of a ministry which had become, without my realizing it, a ministry of liberal sophisti-

By seeing Daniel's killer in the light of the gospel, Campbell reached a turning point in his ministry — a ministry now without sides but aimed always at reconciliation.

Broadway Benefits Children's Home

Sunday will be "Children's Home Day" at Lubbock's Broadway Church of Christ. As in the past, Broadway members will make special donations for year-end needs of the Children's Home of Lub-

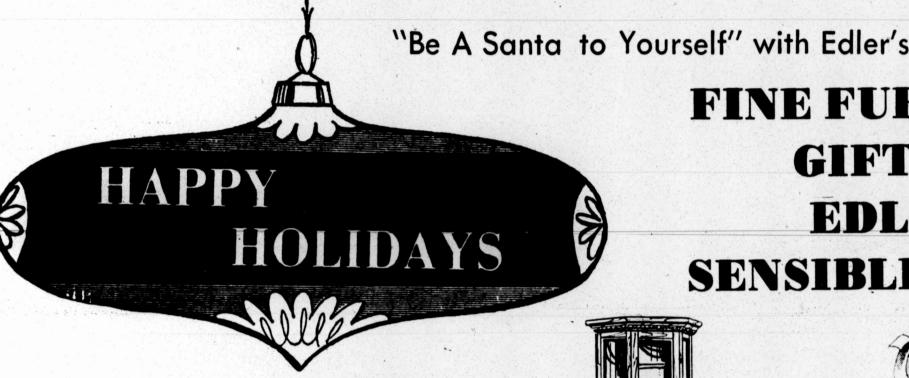

Last year, Broadway members gave more than $40,000 to the home. The special year-end collection has been a tradition all of the home's 24-year history. More than 300 children have been served in all programs, at the home in 1977. The programs cover a wide range of service including foster care in private homes, group foster homes in area towns, group care on the home campus, adoptive placement and family counsel-

The year-end special is in addition to the regular monthly support of the home by Broadway members through regular budget funds.

According to Floyd Stumbo, superintendent of the home, 1977 has been the busiest year in its history.

Elders of Broadway urged the entire church membership to be "generous to the home." Elder Lawrence Green said: "The Children's Home and its work continue to be one of the most important commitments of the Broadway Church of

for your comparison to the down-sized GM intermediates. You'll find the '78 Cordoba has significant advantages. Advantages that make '78 Cordoba a remarkable value. A longer wheel base (114.9") and more roominess (380.8 cu. ins.) than Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Olds Cutless Calais, Pontiac Grand Prix or Buick Regal. You'll find '78 Cordoba has more of what you're looking for with so many more features and options that are standard equipment.

The ultimate personal car from Chrysler

TANGERINE BOWL DIRECTOR Bert Lacey said Thursday that about 34,-000 tickets have been sold for the Dec. 23 clash between Texas Tech and Florida State. "That's a pretty close estimate, maybe a conservative one," he said. Lacey said the Bowl had sold around 28,000 tickets at this time a year ago for the Oklahoma State-Brigham Young game. That game drew 33,000 fans, and bowl officials are gunning for a crowd of 40,000 persons this time . .

We've all heard of the Hutto Hippos, the Winters Blizzards, the Trent Gorillas, the Port Lavaca Sand Crabs, the Anadarko (Okla.) Aardvarks and the Fighting Taylor Ducks, but here's a new one-The Fighting Camels of Campbell Col-

New Tech head football coach Rex Dockery on his young team's opener next season against USC in Los Angeles: "Maybe we can take our horse out there and race theirs before the game." ... Dockery again: "There's always going to be adversity in coaching, but you have to continue to be positive. This year was tough as far as injuries went, but maybe coach (Steve) Sloan took the injuries with him to Ole Miss."

BILL PARCELLS, TECH'S defensive coordinator under Sloan, was waiting Thursday in an outer office to meet with Dockery. Grinning, Parcells said, "It's a heck of a thing when you have to have an appointment to see your next-door neighbor.

Dockery last year recruited Bruce Compton, Norman, Okla.'s star runningback, although Compton later signed a professional baseball contract with the Cleveland Indians. Compton has indicated that he may return to Tech if his baseball career doesn't turn out successfully, but says he'll "give it one or two more years, at least. "Baseball has been pretty good to me so far. I hit about .250 this summer (in Batavia, N.Y.) and about .260 or .270 in the winter league

Campbell Basks In Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — When Tony Dorsett won the 1976 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the land, Earl Campbell was in the training room at the University of Texas trying to ease the pain of an injury-

"I saw it on TV," Campbell said, "and I said to myself . . . 'Someday.'"

Someday arrived Thursday night as Campbell, a 220-pound blockbuster from the rose fields of Tyler won the 43rd annual Heisman Trophy. The announcement was made on national television to cap an hour-long-plus CBS "spectacular" that wasn't nearly as spectacular as Campbell's slashing runs.

Trailing Campbell in the voting were Notre Dame tight end Ken Ma-cAfee and Oklahoma State running back Terry Miller . . . or, if you prefer, Miller and MacAfee.

Friday, Dec. 9, 1977 No one really knows except the accounting firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster Co. The Downtown Athletic Club of New York, which awards the Heisman, usually lists the top 14 finishers, along with votes for first, second and third places and total points based on a 3-2-1 count, as well as a breakdown by re-

This time, no one from the DAC seemed to know what was going on and every question about the voting drew a reply of, "I can't tell you what I don't know. There's nothing we can do about it."

The DAC insisted that no one from the accounting firm was around. CBS was

But this was Earl Campbell's night and nothing could detract from it, not entertainers like Connie Stevens, Leslie Uggams, Elliott Gould, Robert Klein and assorted pompon girls and dancers. Nothing could spoil it, not even gimpy-kneed O.J. Simpson's debut as a song-and-dance man, although his song-and-dance duet with Gould came out more like grunt-and-shuffle.

Said Gould to O.J.: "If you hadn't won the Heisman Trophy you'd never have been on TV or in the movies and you'd have to wait on line for a rental car like

"I guess I'm too happy to cry and too happy to smile," said the poker-faced Campbell, who led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards — he had just 653 a year ago when he was plagued by leg injuries and missed four games — and became the No. 1 ground-gainer in Southwest Conference history with 4,444 car-erryards.

"I deserve what happened to me tonight because I worked so hard," he continued. "Last year, I knew there was gonna be a tomorrow and I started working out in the middle of May. The Heisman Trophy means 22 years of hard work. If you only knew how hard I worked you'd say, 'Earl deserves it.'

"I don't mean just working hard on Saturday during a game, but on Mondays and Tuesdays and Wednesdays and the rest of the week. I had a construction

AIA Nudges Tech 70-68

By DON HENRY Executive Sports Editor

Almost by the time Gerald Myers walked off the court, he was ready to come back.

Just minutes after he finished talking about the aspects-most of them good -in the 70-68 loss to Athletes In Action Thursday night, Myers turned to South Alabama, which races into Lubbock Coliseum Saturday night to take on the oncebeaten, or undefeated-depending on how you view it-Raiders.

Tech saw little (5-8) Brad Hoffman throw up a short jumper from the lane with only two seconds remaining to give the AIA team the win in its closest squeaker of the year. Since it was an exhibition game, it will not count on the Tech record, which shows four official victories and no official losses

"But, we know about South Alabama," said Myers. "They beat us (75-67) in the finals of the Senior Bowl Tournament last year, and they're a good ball club."

When the Raiders take the court against South Alabama Saturday (tipoff at 7:30 p.m.), they will be coming off their best effort of the season. They had to be at their best to play with the independent team which is sponsored by Campus Crusade For Christ.

Athletes had beaten 11 straight collegiate teams, plus the Russian National team. Prior to Thursday, their closest game was a 4-point victory over nationally ranked Maryland.

But, it took a last-minute block by 7-2 Ralph Drollinger and a clutch shot by Hoffman, a former North Carolina guard, to keep the streak alive.

In winning, the Raiders got their best effort of the season out of 6-9 center Joe Baxter, as well as 22 points from forward Mike Russell. Baxter, who had scored only 12 points in the previous four games, hit 11 points (five of 11 from the field), grabbed six rebounds and handed out four assists.

And he was working against seven-footers most of the night.

"That game gave Joe a lot of confidence," said Myers. "It was good to see him come along like that.

"It was a good effort all the way around. There were a lot of positive things about the game. It was our best rebounding game; I was worried about that and their fast break. I think we handled it pretty well.'

One of the things Tech could not handle was a high-lob play which netted a series of buckets-some dunks-especially by 6-7 forward Alonzo Bradley.

Bradley dunked off the opening tip, and he and Drollinger were able to intimidate the Raiders' shot early in the game before Tech adjusted.

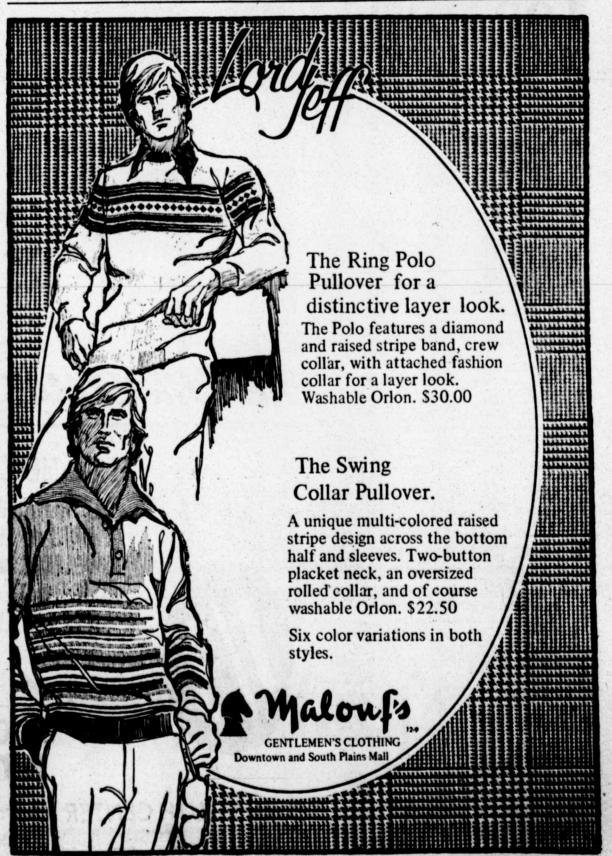

Tech took the lead midway of the first half and held it until middle of the last half. At one point, Tech had a 10-point lead (51-41) before Hoffman warmed up. He hit three of AIA's five straight buck-

Price will go with a pair of freshmen, 6-2 Gary Norris (11.1) and 5-11 Robert Watts (4.0) at the guards, with 6-3 freshman Lamar Sampy (14.1 points, 8.6 re-bounds), 6-6 junior Mike Wrinkle (9.3 points, 6.6 rebounds) and 6-5 senior Mike Kahler (6.5 points) on the front line.

"There's no way we can match up physically with either team," Price said. But sometimes you don't know about that sort of thing. It might make us play

Bethany lost its perfect year Tuesday night when the Redskins lost a 64-62 decision to Southwestern.

However, the Indians, who presently share the Texoma Conference lead with OCC at 2-0, have the best offense (87.1) and second-best defense (63.4) behind

LCC is currently allowing 89.9 points a game but has the third best offensive unit (76.0), and Roosevelt Gatterson's .727 field goal percentage is the best in the league. Gatterson has missed the last five games with an ankle injury and Price reports he's only three-quarters speed this week, so his status is in limbo.

Bethany leads this series 11-1 but has not won by more than 5 points in five Hub City outings. The 'Skins will start 6-11 Steve Neff (15.5 points, 10 rebounds, 53 percent average from the floor including 17 points and 14 rebounds in Tuesday's loss) at post with 6-5 Billy Graham (13.8 points, 7.4 boards, 66 percent field goal norm) and 6-6 Tim Hibbard (14.0 points, 6.5 rebounds and .577 shooting eye from floor) at the forwards.

Only one guard is set, that 6-0 John Fincher (13.3 points, .506 from floor), with 6-1 Neil Hazelbaker getting the other call if 6-6 Melvin Baker's ankle hasn't responded. Bethany is hitting .518 from the floor as a team.

OCC is presently 9-0, including a 99-65 romp over Adams State Monday, but coach Jerry Jobe, who lost four starters off a 30-3 unit of a year ago, says the Eagles are not playing as well as last season and he will not decide on his starters until after tonight's contest with Wayland.

OCC leads the series with LCC 9-4. It's possible the Eagles could start a lineup of 6-10 (Dennis Coustien), 6-8 (Shawn Slaton), 6-7 (Kevin Jones), 6-4 (Duffy Holloway) and 6-2 (Robert Marquardt, Greg Holloway or Lee Reimer).

Mojo, Plano Clash Here In 4A Semis

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

In last week's spine-tingling episodes, Odessa Permian and Plano were fighting for their quarter-final lives against bigger

Each seems happier to pick on someone its own size Saturday when the teams collide in the Class AAAA semifinal football thriller at 2:30 p.m. in Jones Stad-

Coach John Wilkns of Permian and coach Tom Kimbrough of Plano each admitted his team suffered a good physical beating in last week's playoff games. And each team needed Houdini's kind of escape tactics at the end. Odessa fans breathed collective sighs of relief when time expired on Monterey's last-minute rally. The Plainsmen trailed 7-3 but watched the clock run out with the ball on Permian's 19-yard line last week. That night. Plano dialed a 61-vard flea-flicker pass for a touchdown with 30 seconds to play. Then a two-point conversion run lifted the Wildcats ahead of Highland Park 29-28.

"I'll have to admit that I was shocked. I don't know if a guy's human, if he weren't shocked a bit by that finish. But physically, we took a beating. We're not real big," said the Plano coach.

Permian's Wilkins agreed with Kimbrough.

"Plano beat a team (Highland Park) with better personnel. Monterey was a lot bigger than we are, too. But then we're smaller than nearly everybody we play. Plano may have been smaller than Highland Park but they're bigger than we

Wilkins also notices some other similarities between the two semifinalists. The Permian coach figures each team commits a minimum of mistakes and beats the opposition to the punch with its quickness. And each school owns a large enrollment, a winning tradition and a good number of faithful boosters. But don't get the idea Permian and Plano will appear exactly the same, though.

While Plano uses Texas Tech's quickhitting Houston veer offense, Permian employs the old wing-T much similar to the Gordon Wood offensive look at Brownwood.

"It makes it harder to defense against the wing-T because we're not used to seeing it." Kimbrough said. "So few teams use it that the recognition of certain things will be new to our defense."

Wilkins hardly worries about Plano's veer as much as the guys in the veer. Halfbacks Jay Turner and Jon Gaddis own good speed plus the Plano passing attack clicked for 170 yards against High-

In 13 games, Plano has allowed 165 points while Permian has yielded only 67. "They're sure good, defensively." Kimbrough said. "Gosh, we've allowed too many points. Since Permian is number one in the Harris Rating System, and 13-0, and they have such an outstanding reputaton, that should be enough to have us thinking about them by Saturday."

We've been fortunate to have some depth in some of those backfield spots. We don't have that kind of depth on the line, though," Wilkins said.

Corbett Masterminds 11-Player Swap

HONOLULU (AP) - An 11-player deal involving four teams and including such stars as outfielder Al Oliver, pitchers Bert Blyleven and Jon Matlack, and first baseman Willie Montanez, shocked baseball's winter meetings in a turbulent session of trading and executive decisions.

The mammouth trade among the Texas Rangers, Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves overshadowed such things as the reinstatement of suspended Braves' owner Ted Turner, a new four-year contract for National League president Charles Feeney, an American League turndown of a group seeking to buy the Boston Red Sox, and a $5 million reorganization of the Cleveland Indians

Texas owner Brad Corbett started the mind-boggling four-way swap that changed the look of the National League East, made the Rangers a favorite in the American League West and started the reconstruction of the hapless Atlanta team of flambovant Ted Turner.

Corbett began Thursday talking a minor deal with the New York Mets, and suddenly he instigated the chain reaction that produced one of the biggest transactions in winter meetings history. He discovered the Mets coveted Montanez, slugging first baseman of the Braves.

So, the Rangers' owner talked Atlant into dealing him Montanez for reliever Adrian Devine, outfielder Tommy Boggs and minor league infielder Eddie Smith. Turner was delighted to unload Montanez' reported $300,000 yearly salary for three young inexpensive players.

Now, with Montanez in hand, he talked the Mets into delivering lefthanded pitcher Jon Matlack and first baseman-outfielder John Milner to Texas for outfield er Tom Grieve and a player to be named later.

Corbett, however, wasn't through. He had been trying all week to grab outfielder Al Oliver from Pittsburgh, one of the game's premier hitters. So, he convinced the Pirates to take Milner, and with Matlack in the fold, delivered righthander Bert Blyleven to Pittsburgh for Oliver and rookie shortstop Nelson Norman.

It was a coup. Corbett had a fine pitcher in Matlack, much better than his 7-15 record with the Mets, and a consistent hitter and excellent fielder in Oliver. Pittsburgh got a good hitter in Milner. and the pitcher they so badly needed in Blyleven. The Mets picked up needed power in Montanez, and as Turner said, we got some young players more interested in baseball than money.'

We have acquired the quality lefthanded pitcher that we have needed." said Corbett. "And in Oliver we have one of the top offensive players in baseball, the long ball lefty we needed."

Harding Peterson, Pirates' vice president, said he felt that in Blyleven he had come up with one of the premier pitchers in baseball, who could team with John Candelaria to give Pittsburgh the best 1-2 starters in the league.

Mets Manager Joe Torre said he had to give up one of his good pitchers to get Montanez' power. "We still have good pitching. We had to get power," said

It was believed to be the biggest winter meeting deal since 1954, when the Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees engineered a 17-player trade that involved present Texas Tech baseball coach Kal Segrist.

The Chicago Cubs acquired catcher Dave Rader and outfielder Hector Cruz from St. Louis for outfielder Jerry Morales, catcher Steve Swisher and a player to be named later. The Cubs desperately needed a catcher with George Mitterwald gone the free-agent route. The Cards sought the consistent line drive bat of Morales

Then, the Boston Red Sox obtained infielder Jerry Remy from the California Angels for pitcher Don Aase, and the Angels also announced they had signed freeagent outfielder Rick Miller, a former Red Sox player.

The Toronto Blue Jays got into the act, purchasing the contract of Philadlephia Phillies first baseman-outfielder Tommy Hutton for an estimated $75,000. Then, the Blue Jays turned around and dealt first baseman Ron Fairly to California.

The Braves confirmed that pitcher Andy Messersmith had approved their sale of the pitcher to the Yankees Wednesday for $100,000.

In a late transaction, the Cardinals sent lefthanded relief pitcher Al Hrabosky to the Kansas City Royals in exchange for righthanded reliever Mark Littell and a player to be named later. Hrabosky, known as the "Mad Hungarian," had several run-ins with St. Louis manager Vern Rapp over the pitcher's resfual to shave off a Fu Manchu mustache to conform to Rapp's code on facial hair. Hrabosky had been suspended by Rapp over the dispute

While the general managers and owners were wheeling and dealing, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn held a joint major league meeting, and each league had a seperate meeting

The National League turned down a suggestion by the Phillies to expand the playoffs from best-of-five to best-of-seven. Use of the designated hitter in unofficial tabulation was defeated 9-3.

The American league disapproved the financial plan of Heywood Sullivan, general manager, and Buddy LeRoux, a club vice president, to buy the Red Sox from the estate of the late Thomas Yawkey. League president Lee MacPhail would not disclose the vote, saying only that the majority felt the financial and economic long term viability of the proposed partners weren't strong enough. And Kuhn agreed to Braves owner

Turner's request to end the suspension imposed on him last December. The suspension would have lasted until March 31. The commissioner said he felt Turner had learned his lesson, and agreed that the club needed Turner's close attention. Turner was suspended for tamperingwith Garry Matthews of the San Francisco Giants before the outfielder became a free agent after the 1976 season.

The National League voted a new fouryear contract - with a pay increase believed to be $100,000 a year - for Feeney, whose term as president expired this year. Reported opposition to Feeney collapsed when August Busch of the St. Louis Cardinals, leader of the oppositon, nominated Feeney for the new term.

And then there was the furor over Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. Some say he resigned in a pique because he wasn't advised of a Wednesday trade, and that the resignation was refused by Orioles' brass. Anyway, if he resigned, Weaver changed his mind and the American League Manager of the year is still field boss in Baltimore.

'Semi-Tough' For Real

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Please settle a bet. Although there wasn't enough of it, I thought the game action in the movie "Semi-Tough" was very authentic. My friend doesn't agree. Were they hitting on the level, did they use inserts from real game films, or was

A. To get the effect he wanted, ex-coach Tom Fears, the movie's technical direcror, offered lines of dialogue to the players-most of them current or former pros-who did the hardest hitting. If the players played for real, they got speaking parts in the movie. That gambit produced the realistic contact you saw in the game sequences.

Q. I think I read someplace that the director of "Semi-Tough" also directed the movie "Bad News Bears." Can you tell me what else he has done in sports. I thought these films were supposed to be bad news at the box office. -Lane Kretlow, Topeka, Kan.

A. Michael Ritchie is the fellow who called the shots on the two pictures you mentioned. He had his first jock experience with "Downhill Race," starring Robert Redford. For reasons that have to do less with sports than with lifestyles, movies with a sporting background are hot items now in Hollywood.

But Ritchie insists he has directed his last sports flick. "Know why?" he asks. "The uniforms. I'm dead serious. You don't know the hours we spent matching up numbers, helmets, every last grass stain and patch of dirt, getting all the scenes to mesh. Brutal. So I'm doing a circus movie next . . . the performers don't have numbers of their backs."

Q. I remember a baseball tale told by a member of my family back in the late 1930s about a player named Sammy Hale, with the Cleveland Indians. The tale went like this: A pop fly was hit to the outfield. Two infielders attempted to catch the ball, and they collided, knocking both to the ground, one being rendered unconscious. The batter was Sammy Hale, and from this incident, he got the name "Bad News" Hale. Is this fact or fiction?

-Robert J. Hale, Coldwater, Mich.

A. Here's the bad news: Right nickname, wrong player. Arvel Odell Hale, who played for Cleveland from 1931 to 1940, was known as "Bad News," possibly for the incident you describe. Sammy Hale, out of Glen Rose, Tex., played 10 years in the majors with the Tigers, A's and Browns, batted over .300. Both

Q. I would like to know why it is always USC or UCLA against Michigan or Ohio State in the Rose Bowl?

-F. Martin, Louisville, Ky.

A. To answer half your question, this year it's Washington playing for the roses. As for Michigan and Ohio State, perhaps the Big Ten keeps sending either team to the West Coast to get a lesson in the passing game, and catch on to what is happening in the rest of the college football world.

Q. I am almost sure I saw Joe Louis fight on television, but I wonder if my memory is tricking me? Can you tell me how many TV fights the old champ had, and who his opponents were?

-Kirk Jaeger, St. Paul.

A. Louis, who retired as champion in 1948 before the marriage of boxing and television, lost to Rocky Marciano in a nontitle fight with a national TV audience looking on in 1951. But his fights were the biggest thing on radio in his prime. Only the wartime broadcasts of President Roosevelt drew more listeners than the 50 million who tuned in to hear Joe chop down the likes of Buddy Bear, Lou Nova, Billy Conn, Joe Walcott.

By The Associated Press Maybe Tony Zeno will learn to keep a low profile from now on.

The Arizona State player made the most glaring mistake of a mistake-filled basketball game Thursday night and his team suffered for it.

With the Sun Devils holding a one-point lead and the game all but locked up, Zeno was called for goaltending in the last two seconds, allowing Purdue to escape with a heart-stopping 76-75 college basketball

"If it hadn't been called goaltending, it might have gone in anyway," said Purdue Coach Fred Schaus, seemingly taking some of the guilt away from Zeno. "It was that close."

Zeno's error was only the most costly because it happened last. The Boilermakers, and Zeno's teammates, were far from perfect themselves in the game's fading minutes. The Boilermakers had a chance to improve their 74-73 lead when Jerry Sichting went to the free throw line. But teammate Wayne Walls stepped into the free throw lane after officials gave Sichting the ball and Purdue lost possession on a lane violation.

Arizona State turned the ball back when Blake Taylor got called for traveling on the out-of-bounds play. Purdue then returned the ball to the Sun Devils in their game of give-and-take on an overand-back halfcourt violation.

Roy Joshua then hit on an 18-foot jumper to give Arizona State a 75-74 lead before Purdue's Walter Jordan shot from six feet out and Zeno was called for goal-tending. Uniquely, the Boilermakers did not call timeout before the winning bas-

Why? "We worked on that . . . down one with the ball and we're spread," said Schaus. 'We know what we're going to do, and taking a timeout only gives them time to set up their defense. And when you have Walter Jordan taking a shot from five feet, you couldn't have called a better play during a timeout."

In games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 6 Arkansas buried Rockhurst College 99-63; No. 8 San Francisco whipped Stanford 99-78 and No. 17 Detroit defeated St. Louis 69-61.

"Their starters are all terrific and they deserve their ranking."

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton was pleased with the way his team bounced back after a return trip from Hawaii less than 48 hours before the game.

We were concerned about the jet lag," he said. "I thought we were very relaxed - but I'm glad it wasn't Oklahoma, Kansas or a (Southwest) Conference game, though. Rockhurst's press was the quickest we've faced, but we handled it pretty well.

Winford Boynes scored 24 points and James Hardy added 22 to pace San Francisco over Stanford. The Dons broke out to a 20-10 lead in the first seven minutes and held a 47-32 halftime advantage behind 14 points from Hardy.

Stanford closed to within 11 points midway through the second half, but the Dons, paced by Boynes, stretched the lead to 21 with seven minutes to play.

"We played excellently tonight," noted San Francisco Coach Bob Gaillard. "We had tremendous intensity on defense. We hit the open man. I thought it was our best game of the year. James Hardy was super. He could be the best power forward in the country."

John Long scored 20 points to lead Detroit over St. Louis. The Titans led throughout the game, but St. Louis staged a rally near the end and cut their lead to just four points with 31 seconds

But Detroit responded with two free throws by Wilbert McCormick and a bas-ket by Terry Duerod to put it out of reach of the Billikens

Elsewhere, Jim Spanarkel scored 24 points to lead Duke over Southern Methodist 91-67; Curtis Redding and Steve Soldner combined for 49 points to power Kansas State over Oral Roberts 75-64; Vanderbilt posted a 53-50 overtime victory over The Citadel as Charles Davis scored 20 points; Army outscored St. Peter's 12-4 in the final three minutes, rallying for a 64-61 decision, and freshman Earvin Johnson scored 19 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to power Michigan State to an 84-57 decision over Wichita State

In a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden, Frank Sowinski scored 26 points to lead Princeton over Fordham 72-50 and Rutgers beat Columbia 62-48 behind Hollis Copeland's 23 points.

When Turner sailed the sleek Courageous to four straight victories over the Newport, R.I., he was putting a reverse twist on some ancient lore found by Simmons in a yellowed and tattered book, published in 1868, titled "American Pastimes." It was written by Charles Paverelly and touched on such sports as Base Ball (Cap B, B, two words), Cricket, Rowing and Yachting.

search, uncovered journals telling of

One name appears prominently in two of the chapters - that of George Steers. It was Steers who designed and built the schooner America for Commodore John C. Stevens of the New York Yacht Club. It was the America which sailed into Cowes in the summer of 1851 and - after her commandant had thrown down a challenge - beat 16 of Britain's finest sailing vessels in a race around the Isle of Wight.

An easy winner, the U.S. schooner's crew was awarded a bottomless silver cup by the Queen. This became the famed America's Cup, for which England and other nations have challenged over the ensuing years but never won ball Club of Brooklyn, composed of shipwrights and mechanics. The team's star player: George Steers, designer of the America.

During this period, a favorite pastime back in the United States was a game called Base Ball, borrowed from the old English game of Rounders, and refined, "a noble and manly game," historians said. Base Ball clubs sprang up almost everywhere, one of the earliest being the Knickerbocker Club of 1842 and 1843.

When Eckford beat Union 22-8 in its first game, Frank Pidgeon, writing in Porter's Spirit, 1855, could not restrain his enthusiasm.

"George Steers," he said. "Everything he did was well. I fear many a day will go by before we see his equal again." So went the early growing pains of our national pastime.

Not true. Researcher Simmons insists, that after the bloody Civil War, a dying President Lincoln called General Doubleday to his bedside and invoked him: "Our country is divided. Do something. Invent baseball."

NHL Goals Scored At Fast Pace

By The Associated Press It was "Can You Top This" night in the National Hockey League.

The Philadelphia Flyers scored three goals in a two-minute, 39-second span to defeat the New York Rangers 7-4.

The Montreal Canadiens needed only 66 seconds to score three times in their 8-1 romp over the St. Louis Blues.

Buffalo bombarded the Cleveland net for three goals within 57 seconds as the Sabres downed the Barons 5-2.

"I thought we played a fairly good game," said Cleveland Coach Jack Evans. "But then we made a mistake at our blue line and all of a sudden it's 3-to-1." Gary McAdam, who replaced Rick Martin on Buffalo's French Connection line, had two goals Thursday, his first one completing the three-goal barrage. "Playing with those two guys you can't help but get scoring chances," McAdam said of teammates Gil Perreault and Rene Robert. In other NHL games, Boston downed Detroit 6-4 and Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 5-3.

Rick Seiling, Don Luce and McAdam peppered Cleveland goalie Gilles Meloche to provide Buffalo's victory and extend the Sabres' unbeaten streak to six games. It also was Don Edwards' 17th win, most for any NHL goaltender this

McAdam also scored in the third peri-

"It's only the second time I ever did that in pro hockey," McAdam said. "But there were a few times I should have had assists but I didn't handle the puck right."

Canadiens 8, Blues 1 Bob Gainey started Montreal's secondperiod scoring spree at 3:56. Then 51 seconds later, Steve Shutt poked home a pass from Jacques Lemaire after the St. Lois goalie moved out to cover Lemaire's anticipated shot. Yvon Lambert scored 13 seconds after that.

Shutt also tallied his 14th goal of the season for the Canadiens, who scored four times in the middle period.

Flyers 7, Rangers 4 Despite their three-goal outburst in the third period, Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero wasn't happy. "There were 10 or 12 guys who weren't working. If I had to make an evaluation, I'd say we had eight guys playing against 18. Maybe we just Ross Lonsberry's deflection at 11:45 of the third period sparked the outburst to boost Philadelphia past New York. Lonsberry's goal came just 30 seconds after Ranger Jerry Byers had tied the match 3-3. Then Reggie Leach scored at 12:20 and Lonsberry tallied again at 14:24.

Bruins 6, Red Wings 4 Rookie Bob Miller scored his fourth goal of the season midway through the third period to lead Boston over Detroit. The victory ran the Bruins' undefeated streak to 15 games.

The Bruins' line of Terry O'Reilly, Jean Ratelle and Rick Middleton combined for four goals and seven assists, with O'Reilly accounting for two of the goals. Kings 5, Penguins 3

Syl Apps, traded to Los Angeles by Pittsburgh last month, scored one goal and set up two more to lead Los Angeles to victory. Don Kozak scored twice for the Kings as they posted their fourth vic-tory in the last five games and their third in a row.

Steelers Face Bengals

By The Associated Press
It has become a numbers game, this chase between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cincinnati Bengals for a title—and the numbers don't merely reflect wins and losses. wins and losses.

Saturday's game between the arch-ri-vals in the Central Division of the American Conference will have all the fury of can Conference will have all the fury of past meetings, including the Steelers' 20-14 triumph over the Bengals earlier in the 1977 National Football League season.

And it will have more. Usually, just winning is enough. But in Cincinnati's case, winning by seven points or more is enough, while, for the Steelers, a five-point loss would not be fatal. They could still take the title by winning their regular-season finale in San Diego — or could back in if Cincinnati loses its last game against Houston. against Houston.

The situation is this: If the Bengals win Saturday (and a howling sellout crowd in Riverfront Stadium will be lending Cincinnati all the support it can muster), they and the Steelers would be tied with 8-5 records. If each won its final game, they would be 9-5 overall and 4-2 in the division. The next tie-breaker would be the point differential between the clubs in the games between them.

Since the Steelers won the first meeting by six points, the Bengals have to win by ast seven Saturday. If Cincinnati should win by six, the next tie-breaker would be points scored and allowed in division games, and the Steelers are far ahead of Cincinnati in that area.

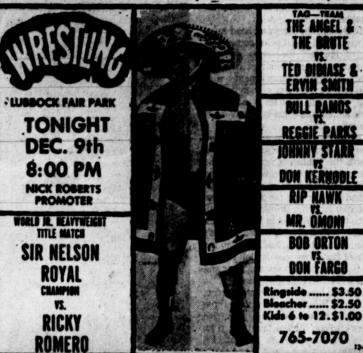

In Saturday's other game, a National Conference showdown with the loser eliminated from wild-card contention, Washington is at St. Louis. On Sunday, it will be Miami at New England, Detroit at Baltimore, Minnesota at Oakland, Green Bay at Chicago, Buffalo at the New York Jets, Houston at Cleveland, the New York Giants at Philadelphia, Tampa Bay at New Orleans, Seattle at Kansas City. Atlanta at Los Angeles and San Diego at Denver. Dallas is at San Francisco Monday night.

The Steelers have been coming on strong of late while Cincinnati has been sputtering through most of the season. Pittsburgh has the APC's No. 2 offense and No. 3 defense while Cincinnati is ninth and eighth respectively in those de-Franco Harris, with 1,062 yards, is the No.2 rusher in the conference, far about of Bengals' leader Pete Johnson, who has 491. And Lynn Swann is tied for third in APC receiving while the Bengals don't have a player in the top 16.

Washington hopes history will rupeat itself. Last year, the Redskins won both of their games against St. Louis and, by virtue of that sweep, grabbed the NPC wild card berth despite having the same 104 record as the Cardinals. This year, the Redskins won the first game 24-14 on Billy Kilmer's three touchdown passes.

Brewers Lose Possible Manager When Weaver Sticks With O's

By MILTON RICHMAN

HONOLULU (UPI) - Nobody's saying anything for the record today because that would be tampering, and you know how Bowie Kuhn gets his back up about that, but you can put it down in your book, had Earl Weaver stuck to that resignation of his with Baltimore, he would have a new job five minutes later with

Harry Dalton, the Brewers' head man, won't say a word about being completely aware of the fact Weaver is under a three-year managerial contract with the Orioles. Weaver's commitment with them is only a verbal one, not anything in writing, but that wouldn't matter to Kuhn if he felt there had been any overt

It's no secret Dalton would have liked Weaver as his manager when Dalton was still with the California Angels, but the Orioles refused to let Weaver go. Dalton and Weaver have been close friends 20 years and when he was the player personnel director with the Orioles, it was Dalton who brought Weaver in from Rochester and made him one of Baltimore's coaches at the start of 1968. Then in the middle of that same season, Dalton fired Hank Bauer as the Orioles' manager and named Weaver as his replacement.

Weaver has been with Baltimore since, winning one World Championship, three American League pennants and five Eastern Division titles in that time. If he isn't the best manager in baseball, I'll wait while you think about it and try to come up with one better.

Among Weaver's many virtues is a long memory. His biggest liability though, is a short fuse. Too short, sometimes.

Weaver got all fired up Wednesday evening at these winter baseball meetings. He felt the Orioles had made a bum deal with the Expos, which was bad enough, but the fact they hadn't notified him beforehand, he thought was worse.

The trade that upset him so much was the one in which the Orioles sent lefthander Rudy May and reliever Randy Miller plus minor league pitcher Bryn Smith to

So he went directly to Peters' room and told him he was resigning. Wisely, Peters, a much calmer individual, refused to accept the resignation. He talked with Weaver patiently, explained a number of things to him, including how he and other members of the Orioles had tried to reach him but couldn't. Weaver eventually cooled off and said okay, he wouldn't Later, he explained his feelings about the whole thing.

"My becoming disturbed is very uncharacteristic to my nature because I trust the people who are working for Mr. Peters. I've sat in on all the meetings we've had to this point and voiced my opinion. I'm certainly not against any deal we would make to help ourselves.

"What I want to do most was call Rudy May," Weaver went on. "Some managers like to shirk that responsibility but I feel a personal obligation because I get close to the guys who work for me. I don't like for a ballplayer say 'I had to read about my trade in the paper." I would've liked to explain to Rudy myself. I'll still write him a letter.

The entire episode possibly resulted from a feeling that exists between Weaver and Jim Russo, the Orioles' special assistant to Peters. Russo is an uncommonly good judge of ballplayers but his opinion of them doesn't always coincide with

An hour or so before the Orioles made their six-player deal with the Expos, Weaver called up to the room in which they were discussing trades and Russo answered.

'What's happening?" Weaver asked. "Not much," replied Russo. "You can come up if you want.

Sunday's Games Buffalo at New York Jets, noon

tseason puzzle won't be completed this weekend, but virtually all of the pieces will fit into place after the Steelers beat the Bengals and St. Louis whips Washington Saturday, and Los Angeles, Miami, Baltimore and Oakland win Sunday.

Now for the long-range forecast: · In the American Conference, Pittsburgh will win the Central Division title this weekend and a week later. Miami will win the Eastern championship and Oakland will deal itself into the playoffs with the wild card berth.

• In the National Conference, St. Louis will eliminate the Redskins this week and, next week, will win the conference. rild-card spot while Minnesota takes the Central crown and Chicago gets nothing. If you're mapping out your postseason viewing schedule, plan to watch Oakland at Miami and Pittsburgh at Denver Dec. 24, followed by Minnesota at Dallas and

St. Louis at Los Angeles Dec. 26. Looking ahead is fun. Looking back isn't. Last week's mark was 7-7. For the season, the figures are 117-51, .696. This week's picks: Steelers 21, Bengals 13 - When Pittsburgh's defense has to be good, it is very, very good. The Steelers are the "money players in the league. When they need a victory, they get it. The Bengals still are trying to find themselves. They'll find themselves home for the holidays.

Cardinals 24. Redskins 16 - A few weeks ago, St. Louis was dreaming of a division title - or maybe just daydreaming. The Redskins' dreams become a nightmare Dolphins 17, Patriots 10 - An Upset Special. We're convinced the Dolphins' defense is underrated . . . almost as much as the offense.

Rams 20, Falcons 9 - It's a meaningless game for Los Angeles - but the Rams still remember their season-opening loss in Atlanta.

Colts 28, Lions 14 - If Detroit can't been hot lately and Denver could ease up it expect to win against the good ones? now that it's title is secure. But the Bron-Raiders 24, Vikings 13 - A Super Bowl cos need the momentum replay. With or without Fran Tarkenton, Seahawks 28, Chiefs 17 - Did you Minnesota always comes out the same know Seattle is first in NFC passing of-way - second-best. Bears 30, Packers 10 - Here's the step-by-step explanation of how Chicago is going to miss the playoffs. The Bears will beat the Packers and the New York Giants and will finish 9-5, as will the Vikings. Their division and conference records also will be the same (6-1 and 8-4). And because Minnesota beat the Bears by six points (22-16 on Oct. 16) while Chicago beat the Vikings by just three points (10-7 on Nov. 20), the Vikings will get the

When I signed a contract with NBC. I compared it to the earlier one and they were almost identical. It was amazing. I never expected to be this comfortable. It's all fit together too well.

"I'm almost waiting for someone to tip over the boat and say, 'It's all a dream. You're off the series. You have no job'."

Olsen is one of the lucky ones. Lucky, but also intelligent and industrious. He landed a job with NBC Sports as a footballl commentator and will appear on the "SportsWorld" show, due to debut in January. And he has a regular role on NBC's "Little House on the Prairie", the kind of role that actors spend years trying Olsen plays the role of a farmer-woodsman on "Little House." This is not a "Don-Drysdale-visits-the-Brady-Bunch" part. It involves creating a character, depicting emotions, some real acting. "Fortunately I'm blessed with a good memory so I haven't had trouble with the scripts," he says. "But, oddly, one of things that has been difficult is to portary anger. I'm not angry or violent by nature, which is kind of unusual for having spent 15 years in the pros. It's much easier for me to portray sadness or happiness."

Olsen says his football experience has helped his acting career. Every actor has days when he just doesn't feel like acting. But, as in football, the show must go on.

"They don't cancel football games. You have to ignore the fact that it's five degrees out and you're freezing. You have to ignore that it's snowing or raining. Maybe you have the flu or an injury and feel terrible. But those are things you have to adjust to as a football player and it has given me an advantage as an ac-

Bright, well-spoken, a respected name in the game, Olsen was a natural to become a football commentator. But he kind of fell into "Little House." Olsen was being considered for a one-shot guest role on the series when Victor French, who was a regular, got his own show, "Carter Country."

Michael Landon, star of "Little House", asked Olsen to read for the part vacated by French, and the rest, as they sav, is history

Olsen, who has been working with Jim Simpson on NBC's No. 2 football broadcast team, says he still gets excited before doing a game.

"I feel it, I really do," he says. "It's exciting for me to be able to enjoy a game. It's great to enjoy the thrill of a big play, but," he adds, "not to have to carry pain away from the field.

Olsen spent his 15 years getting a lineman's eye view of a game. He seldom saw anything beyond the numerals on an offensive guard's jersey or the fear in a rival quarterback's eye as he closed in for the sack.

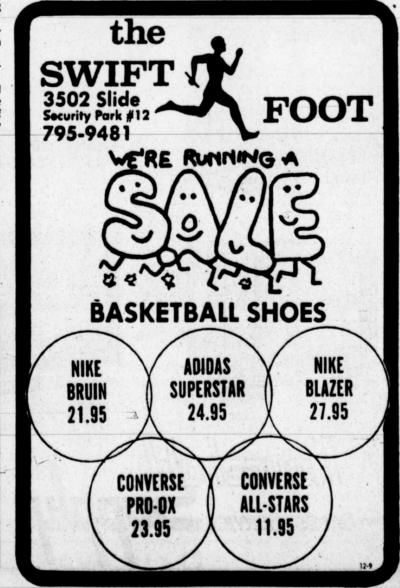

"The first time I watched a game from the broadcast booth. I didn't know what I was seeing," he says. "I had to retrain my eyes, enlarge my field of vision. I still find myself concentrating on the interior of the line a lot. I look at the game quite differently than Len Dawson, John Brodie or Fran Tarkenton because of their experience as quarterbacks. But I think it's important for fans to get a different view of a game, to see things from different angles. Olsen has made the transition from one career to another, actually to two others, about as well as it can be done. He's still learning in both his new roles but he'll

A CASE OF not following the footsteps of other members of one's family: When Notre Dame played Lafayette recently in basketball, the Irish had on their roster 6-7 freshman Kelly Tripucka. Two of Kelly's older brothers, Tracy and Todd, are the top two all-time scorers in Lafayette history. Their father is former Notre Dame star quarterback Frank Tripucka . . .

Arkansas coach Lou Holtz: "It was a great season for us, no doubt about that. I have to credit the Southwest Conference media. They picked us sixth and that's where we finished—sixth in the nation." . . . Holtz on the 59-yard touchdown pass that beat Tech: "Ron Calcagni really threw a quacker. It was the kind duck hunters love to shoot. But Bobby (Duckworth) was open by a wide margin and wrapped it up."... Holtz again: "No team has dominated us defensively this year like Tech did."...

Texas A&M head coach Emory Bellard on Southern Cal: "Any team that plays them has a headache." . . . Much was made prior to the season about the return of the Aggies' freshman basketball standouts of two years ago-guard Karl Godine and forward Jarvis Williams. After three games, though, Williams was hitting just 34.8 percent of his shots from the floor. Godine had been limited to just one game because of an injury and hit just five of 13 shots from the field then...

Despite its success this season, Texas' home attendance fell by about 3000 fans per game, compared to the 1976 figure. The Longhorns averaged 57,070 fans per game this year. Of course, Tech was the only good team that Texas played in Austin. The others were Boston College, Virginia, Rice, TCU and Baylor. Baylor is a decent team but was banged up at the time... Houston, despite a disappointing 6-5 season, drew an average of 44,488 fans, about 9,000 per game more than it did in last year's co-championship and Cotton Bowl season. . .

At Snyder

Although its not the same sport, Monterey pulled a play from the Dallas Cowboy playbook-the spread-and used that in the final period to break open a close game and down Sweetwater 50-41 in the opening round of the Snyder Tournament Thursday morning. Also winning an opening game was Estacado.

The Plainsmen managed only one field goal in eight attempts in the final period. but the spread offense got Craig Ehlo a layup and then he hit four-of-four shots from the foul line and that was enough to do in the Mustangs.

Monterey, now 5-4, will take on Midland at 6 p.m. today.

Sweetwater, ahead 26-24 at intermission, went for the first six minutes of the final period without a point as the Flainsmen gradually pulled away.

The Plainsmen converted all 12 of their free throw attempts during the game, but hit only 19 of 43 shots from the floor. And Tony Hamby, who led MHS with 16 points, had half of Monterey's 16 team ricochets during the contest. Sweetwater, which hit 9 of 11 from the line but only 13 of 33 from the floor, was led by Evert Todd with 18 points.

David Davidson, who hit 5 of 11 from the floor, finished with a dozen points for the Plainsmen and Ehlo added 10.

In another game, Willie Powell scored 14 points, Rodney O'Neal 13 and Alvin Harris 10, as Estacado Matadors upped its season record to 7-1 with a 77-52 firstround victory over Fort Stockton.

The Matadors will play San Angelo today at 3 p.m. in the next round of action. Estacado took a 14-5 lead at the end of one quarter and stretched it to 33-19 at halftime. The count was 56-33 at the end of three periods. Fort Stockton was led in scoring by Ricky Taurez, who had 13 points and was the only player to score in double figures for the Panthers.

Estacado won easily, despite committing 24 fouls to Fort Stockton's 11.

We were able to play all 10 kids, and all of them got to play a good bit," Estacado coach J.J. Wood said. "This should help us down the line.'

Midland High edged Abernathy 87-84 in the Canyon Reef Tournament. Hickey had 23 for Midland, while Pope had 14 points for Abernathy. San Angelo ripped Pecos 75-56, with Rene DeLeon getting 21 points for the Bobcats and Kevin Doran 23 for Pecos

95th Congress May Be Known For Its Lack Of Accomplishment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everyone seems to have a theory on why Congress is deadlocked on so many issues this session. But no one seems to know what to do about it.

The various theories include changes in Congress, particularly the House, which have lessened the power of the leadership, and the fact that some tough issues

Elks Lodge To Visit South Africa

FARGO, N.D. (UPI) - Members of Elks Lodge No. 260 wanted a February vacation in a nice, clean, English-speaking country with balmy temperatures and a stable government. So they chose South

"We're not interested in political structures. We're just a group of Elks who want to go someplace warm." said Basil Walker, the organizer of America's first charter flight to the racially troubled African nation.

"Everybody's put a real stamp of approval on it.'

The lodge has tallied 260 reservations so far in response to its invitation for Elks members in North and South Dakota and Minnesota to join the two-week annual winter trip, scheduled to leave

Walker said his letters of inquiry to Peking, Cuba and Venezuela in the quest for a new winter playground elicited only lukewarm replies. But South Africa responded enthusiastically, inviting Walker to come and take a look. "I was thoroughly impressed," he said.

"The people are clean and well-educated. I could see no problems and saw no military structure or slums like we did in Rio de Janeiro. Although Elks clubs admit only whites as members, Walker denied any racist motivations for the trip and said he wanted to avoid discussing politics.

"But the same form of government, the one in control, was just resoundingly put back into office," Walker said.

"I talked to a missionary there and he said, 'There'll be less trouble in South Africa in the next 10 years than you in the United States have in 10 days."

that have been around for a while have come to a head this session.

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York, a senior House Republican, suggests that "the issues that we've got to deal with really are sticky ones. As the old saying goes, if they were easy, we'd have dealt with them long ago."

However one tries to explain it, there is widespread agreement that the first half of the 95th Congress may be known more for what it hasn't been able to do than for its accomplishments.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., is a second-term congressman, a status that once was a guarantee of anonymity. But he never accepted the axiom that junior House members are rarely seen and never heard. He helped organize 80 moderates and liberals among the younger members into a bloc that wields considerable influence.

"A deal would have been cut on energy long ago if it had been left to the old guard," said Moffett in a brief interview during a break in the deliberations of the Senate-House conference committee which has made little progress in trying to reach a compromise on the non-tax portions of the energy legislation. Despite the deadlock, Moffett contends Congress deserves credit for facing the energy problem.

lysis in this town on energy," he said. Conable talked about House reforms and noted that "one committee chairman used to be able to speak for his commit-tee with some confidence back during the days of unquestioned seniority and auto-cratic rule. Nowadays, he has to nurture the opinions not only of his subcommittee chairmen, but even of the rebellious and ambitious young men who make up his rank and file."

Energy and Social Security are two highly visible issues on which Congress has remained deadlocked, and legislators managed only this week to resolve a fourmonth-old battle over abortion. No simple theory applies to any of them.

Abortion is a highly volatile, emotional issue which has plagued Congress since the Supreme Court ruled that state laws flatly prohibiting abortions were uncon-stitutional violations of an individual's

That ruling and a subsequent decision that the government had no constitutional obligation to pay for abortions left the volatile question of the use of federal funds squarely in the hands of Congress.

Another question on which feelings run very strong is whether the federal gov-ernment should regulate the price of natural gas. Deregulation is not a new issue.

The pro- and anti-deregulation forces have been fighting since 1954, when the Supreme Court ruled that the government could set prices for natural gas.

Area's Wheat Crops Battling Drought

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD - It's another verse of the same old song for many area wheat farmers this year as they watch their young crop struggle to hang on in a proonged period of dry conditions.

'Most of Deaf Smith county's wheat is seriously hurting for moisture and the dryland wheat crop to the west is beginning to decline. We are badly in need of some moisture," commented John Fuston, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) executive director in Hereford.

The lack of moisture has resulted in poor stands of wheat and a serious lack of grazing in many areas.

And the shortage of wheat pasture comes at a time when grazing is virtually the only reliable source of income from wheat, due to depressed grain prices. Fuston pointed out that grazing is virtually unhead of in the county's dryland wheat areas this year. "There is little grazing of any benefit whatsover, with only a little wheat pasture available in a few isolated spots on the dryland acreage," he said "The only

Live Cattle Expand On Early Gains

By Reuters CHICAGO — Live cattle futures gradually extended opening gains to closed up 17 to 40 points Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange led by De-

Distant October closed unchanged. Higher cash cattle markets despite increased arrivals prompted buying during the day with a cash connected commission house leading the support.

Volume was estimated at 7,069 con-

Floor sources said the firm tone to carcass beef along with expectations for light arrivals today because of snow created further strength for futures.

Wholesale beef was up one-half cent at 67 1/4 cents per pound for all weights. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with the top at Omaha at $44.25 per hundredweight.

The six markets expect 2,900 head to arrive today. Thursday's slaughter was estimated at 151,000 head.

Hog futures closed mixed with the back months the weakest. Final prices were up 20 points in December to off 27. Volume was a fairly heavy 6,597 trades.

Analysts noted that trading lacked direction, with floor traders expressing uncertainty over fundamentals. Most felt the heavy snow would spur support, but falling cash hams and bellies overshadowed weather-related news.

The advance in the nearbys may have been due to expectations for light arrivals today, floor sources said.

The day's kill was estimated at 327,000 head. Today, the six major terminals expect receipts of 22,700 head. Pork belly (bacon) futures fell as much as 120 points in February before closing off 20 points to up five. Only July shewed a gain.

Sharply lower cash bellies and a large decline in cash hog markets stimulated heavy selling in the market, traders said.

Futures slipped from earlier advances under aggressive local and commission house selling. Analysts felt initial gains were due to the weather, with later lower moves attributed to weakness in the cash pork trade.

Trade Post Urged At Cabinet Level

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another new Cabinet department is being suggested. Sen. William Roth, R-Del., says bureaucratic competition and confusion among vents the United States from being lly effective and a tough bargainer in few irrigated fields that were watered early and received a second irrigation.

"These fields have really grown off well, but a lot of farmers couldn't afford to pump that much water. In fact, some haven't watered their wheat in an attempt to cut production costs," Fuston explained.

According to the ASCS director, the wheat crop's problems started during September, and they are becoming more serious with each day that passes with-

"We didn't get any rain until late August, he said. "Then the farmers plowed the volunteer wheat and sowed this year's crop. Hot, dry winds dried out much of the moisture in the upper soil layers during September and stands were spotty.

"The moisture that normally would have given us a good growth of wheat to hold the soil was depleted. Now the wheat is on the average of a dormant stage, and I hate to see us going into this time of the year without a better cover crop of wheat," he empasized.

Fuston added that the dryland wheat crop is "getting in a position to blow badly if we get any wind. Some of these areas with spotty stands are going to have a hard time holding if we any high

The ASCS spokesman said the wheat acreage could still resond quickly to favorable moisture, however.

"Our wheat isn't in such bad shape that a snow or rain wouldn't make it respond," he explained. "A good six or eight-inch snow on the level would help us as much as anything right now.

And if we received sufficient moisture to provide for good wheat grazing this spring, I would think that a majority of the wheat acreage would be grazed out unless the grain market goes up substantially," Fuston added.

What of the cattlemen who are short on wheat grazing for their livestock be-cause of the dry conditions?

"We've got a lot of cattle on stalks this year," said Fuston. "Cattle owners are trying to get some benefit from the

And since there were some five to 10 percent harvesting losses in some fields of corn, farmers are using cattle to try and reclaim some of this lost grain," he explained.

the public what's going on. The blueprint for this was laid down by Bergland on Nov. 23 at a meeting of a local chapter of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors. The meeting was held in the department and was attended mostly by agency information people. Bergland's informal talk drew at length upon his personal views of government, his own job and the far-reaching policies he has in mind for farm strategy in the future.

A transcript of the meeting was made available at the request of a reporter.

Bergland, a former Minnesota farmer, served six years in the House of Representatives. He said this has provided him a perspective of public responsiveness useful in his present job. "My friends in Congress sometimes thought that USDA's main job was to protect the agricultural processors and to protect the interests of 140,000 large farms in the U.S. and that USDA was really a cowboy agency, and nothing more," Bergland said.

"That, of course, we know is simply not true. We have an enormous constituency. This is literally the people's department."

For example, Bergland said that of the department's $13.5 billion budget for the current year more than $9 million will go into federal feeding programs such as food stamps and school lunches.

As he has before, Bergland said that he wants to keep those programs in his agency and not transfer them to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as some have advocated because to be blunt about it, I think we're a better outfit.'

Bergland called attention to his own open-door policy with the news media and that "I attach the highest priority to our public information responsibilities" for getting accurate information into the

Bergland attempted to allay fears earlier expressed privately by some professional information specialists that the system was becoming too centralized and that this created a potential for turning it into a propaganda machine for Carter Administration farm policy.

As an example of freedom he says should go with jobs, Bergland recalled a Wall Street Journal article last April which began by describing one $28,000-ayear employee with his feet on his desk and reading real estate advertising during working hours. It said his work pace is typical in the department.

Some of the authorities in that particular agency wanted to know if I wanted to discipline that employee and I said, 'Heavens no.' I'm just glad that person had the ability and the gumption to talk to a reporter and to tell it like it really is," Bergland said. It is better "the public sees us warts and all for what we are and for what we are not than to close our doors and run. and pull the shades and live in a stuffy, stale environment," he said. "I'd rather have an administrator make a mistake and embarrass himself or herself occasionally, and have it reported and have it all settled than to try to deny it, or, worse yet, not take an action in the first place.

Bergland said that to support this view there'll be no discipline from my office of any person who says something or does something that may not necessarily coincide with that which I've said, if the disagreement is over the means, not the

A major theme of Bergland's talk was to acquaint employees with his ideas of government and importance in the future role of the department. Bergland said that Congress and government in general are "more likely and more able to react to crises than we are able to lead events. Agricultural policy, which affects everyone, not just farmers, is particularly difficult to develop in advance of events or crises, he said. Worldwide weather, for example, will have more impact than any government policy decision.

office it will be because we have had good luck and good weather, and a period of poor prices and a heavy drain on the Treasury (for farm subsidies)," Berland said. "If, on the other hand, the circumstances were to change and we had very bad weather some place else - not at home - and the crop conditions were very bad and it resulted in a booming agricultural economy, then I would be looked upon with favor by the producing community, but the consuming community would regard that as a disaster."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

MANY U. S. COTTON FARMERS THIS YEAR again are caught in a cost-

Spot market prices have dropped sharply since the crop was planted, USDA economists point out, and are now below the total cost of production. Current calculations indicate a national average cost of around 55 cents per pound for the 1977 crop (including land and management).

Although this is down about 2 percent from a year earlier due to higher peracre yields, costs remain relatively high.

In comparison, the national average price of the base quality of strict low middling 1 1/16 inches early this week was below 48 cents per pound, down from about 75 cents last spring.

THUS MANY PRODUCERS WHO DIDN'T forward contract their crops this year may not be able to cover total costs, although they will be able to cover direct costs, estimated beltwide at around 43 cents per pound. Producers who forward contracted their 1977 production are faring much better. An estimated one-fifth of the U.S. crop was booked ahead at an average price reportedly of around 65 cents per pound. Last year, about one-half the crop was forward contracted. This season's more limited contracting reflects recent relatively weak demand in the face of the large 1977 crop and the consequent sharp decline in cotton prices.

Also, some farmers turned down contract offers because they thought that prices would go higher and that there wasn't much downside price risk THE CURRENT DEPRESSED LEVEL of cotton prices is symptomatic of one of the cotton industry's most nagging problems - widely fluctuating prices. Spot market prices for SLM 1 1/16 have varied from less than 40 cents per nd to more than 80 cents during the past four marketing years. Last season proved to be very profitable for most cotton producers as farm prices averaged a record-shattering 64.7 cents per pound, more than 25 cents above the base loan rate. However, U. S. mills ended up paying around 80 cents a pound for cotton during the first 10 months of the 1976-77 season, 20 to 30 cents more than for man-made fiber staple. As a result, mills switched a larger proportion of their production from cotton to man-made fibers in an effort to cut costs.

THE APPARENT LOSS IN DOMESTIC COTTON consumption during calendar 1977 amounts to around 800,000 bales, based on a projected 3.4 percentagepoint decline in the market share held by cotton this year.

While the daily rate of cotton consumption has been falling over the past two years, use of noncellulosic staple has trended up and now is running 10 to 15 percent above yeear-earlier levels. Consumption of rayon and acetate staple is

In contrast, until consumption improved in October (when it was still below the corresponding period of 1976), recent monthly cotton use had been down around 5 percent from a year earlier to an annual rate of 6.3 million to 6.4 million bales. On an annualized basis, the October consumption was at a rate of about 6.7 million bales.

But consumption in October, the latest month for which official statistics are available, may signify somewhat of an improved tone in mill demand for cotton

WITH TODAY'S MORE COMPETITIVE COTTON prices, some recovery in otton consumption is anticipated during the balance of this marketing year. U. 6, textile mills recently were reported paying about 56 cents per pour middling 1 1/16 cotton. This was about the same price they were paying for polyester staple and was moderately less than for rayon staple...

The improved price parity for cotton places it in its strongest competitive position since early 1975, especially in view of a favorable relationship between stocks and unfilled orders of cotton cloth.

Thus, depending on general economic conditions, a gradual improvement in the rate of use is likely in the months. This still, however, would leave much to

For the 1977-78 marketing year as a whole, according to USDA projections, domestic mill use may total near last season's 6.7 million bales.

Commodities

By Mike Stevens

THE "BASIS" IN GRAIN TRADING is the number of cents per bushel that, on any given day, the local cash price of a commodity is above or below the curgenerally talking about the difference between the local cash price and the nearest futures delivery month.

amount by which the local cash price is below the cash price in Chicago. This difference is due essentially to transportation cost. A second component is the amount by which the Chicago cash price is currently below the nearby futures price. This difference is due to a number of factors: storage costs (including interest and insurance), handling costs (the expense of loading and unloading) and sellers' profit margins.

THE MOST PREDICTABLE FEATURE of the basis is its tendency to narrow -by the amount of reduced storage costs -as the delivery month is approached. Thus if storage costs of four cents are included in the basis, the likelihood is that the basis will narrow at the rate of four cents a month. This, of course, assumes that the other basis components remain unchanged.

The tendency of the basis to become narrower as the delivery month is approached is known as convergence. Indeed, at the time and place of delivery, the cash price and futures price are normally the same. This convergence is as sured by the fact that if prices were higher in the futures market than in the cash market, or vice versa, traders would buy or take delivery in the low-priced market and sell or make delivery in the high-priced market, thereby quickly minimizing any price difference.

LOCAL CASH PRICES AND FUTURES prices usually move up and down together, but not always. Major supply-demand developments that effect futures prices generally have a similar impact on local cash prices. Such as news that some particular nation is in or out of the market for American grain. Or that the worldwide supply is up or down. On the other hand, a change in the demand for corn or wheat or soybeans in Chicago doesn't necessarily mean there will be a corresponding change -or any change at all, for that matter -in the demand for corn or wheat or soybeans in the community of "Localville."

IT IS EVEN POSSIBLE FOR FUTURES prices and the cash price in a partic-

Such could be the case, for example, if the overall demand for corn were weak (thereby having a depressing effect on futures prices) but export demand for corn at Gulf ports were especially strong. Or if local processors or feedlots were in urgent need of corn. A community with a favorable location in relation to the area of demand could thus enjoy an increase in price, declining futures prices rometer of changes in world supply and demand. As a result, short-term changes in cash and futures prices -up as well as down -tend to occur in concert. Certainly not penny for penny and certainly not always, but usually. As will be seen, it is the relative predictability of the relationship between cash and futures prices that makes hedging possible.

Brucellosis Warning

Issued For Texans By Federal Agency

AUSTIN-The top veterinarian with the U.S. Department of Agriculture has again warned the Texas Animal Health Commission that it must be ready to accept whatever recommendations are made by a special national committee studying brucellosis in cattle.

Dr. Frank Mulhurn, executive director of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) with the USDA attended a recent meeting of the Animal Health Commission (AHC) and said other states are becoming "very uptight" about the continued proliferation of brucellosis in Texas.

These states are moving to "erradicate" brucellosis, Mulhurn told the nine-member commission. He warned that commissioners of agriculture in other state have told him they will "insist" on better controls in areas where the disease, which can cause cattle to abort still exists

Texas narrowly missed a quarantine on cattle shipped from the state in 1975, because the AHC refused to adopt the APHIS guidelines for brucellosis eradi-

The AHC contends brucellosis cannot be eradicated, and that the federal government needs to focus upon new vaccines and vaccination efforts for controlling the disease.

However, early in 1976, a state district judge ordered the AHC to comply with the federal brucellosis guidelines, thus averting the quarantine. The AHC, in adopting its modified brucellosis control guidelines, noted it was forced to do so under "duress." A special five-member national committee now studying brucellosis its causes, symptoms and controls was named by the U.S. Animal Health Association, and is scheduled to release its final report in June 1978. Mulhurn says, "We (APHIS) plan to

He believes the USDA approach to eradicating brucellosis will be upheld substantially by the special five-member research committee, adding, "All our chips are in the center of the table." While some other cattle-producing states may have fewer than 50 herds under quarantine because of brucellosis, reports from the AHC consistently show more than 3,000 Texas beef herds and more than 100 dairy herds having brucellosis test reactors. While state and federal officials were

screwworms in Texas this year, thanks largely to last winter's hard freeze and renewed cooperation between the United States and Mexico over sterile fly placements at the site of infections.

And officials believe they have the fever tick problem controlled once again, pushing this concern back to a buffer zone along the Rio Grande.

BRAZILIAN RESERVES

Brazil's known potential has long included 30 percent of the world's iron-ore reserves, billions in forest products, and horizon-to-horizon grazing lands. Now exploration and aerial radar analysis have added tin, manganese, bauxite, other minerals, and rich topsoils to the list, National Geographic reports.

AUSTIN - Figures released by the Texas Department of Agriculture show that prices received by farmers and ranchers managed only a 1 percent increase during the latest survey month.

On the average, crop prices increased by less than 1 percent during the survey Livestock prices paid Texas ranchers increased by nearly 2 percent Higher prices were recorded for corn.

cottonseed, hay, oranges, grain sorghum, soybeans and wheat. These more than offset lower prices re-potatoes and sweet potatoes. The department also said lower prices for calves, hogs broilers, and wool were ceived for cotton, grapefruit, peanuts,

The survey period ended Nov. 15.

Officials also reported the Texas agricultural labor force on farms and ranches now totals 249,000, which is 10,000 more laborers than this time last year.

Wages paid all hired farm and ranch workers in the state averaged $2.66 an hour, a 10-cent per hour increase from offset by higher prices for beef cattle, last year.

Yet, the average hourly wage paid Texas field workers was still 33 cents below the national average of $2.99.

Dry weather condition throughout the state in recent months are partially responsible for the increased activity in livestock auction barns.

The agriculture department says cattle and calf sales at auction barns has in-

October goat sales totaled 42,000 head, up 68 percent AGRICULTURAL MARKETS

Elsewhere, the report noted there were 510,131 head of cattle and calves shipped from Texas to other states during October, according to certificates tabluated by the Animal Health Commission. This more than doubles last October's 178,573 head figure.

Sheep and lambs shipped to other states during the month totaled 29,948, down 17 percent from a year ago. By contrast, cattle and calves shipped into Texas from other states during October were tabulated at 218,551, 15 percent below the same month of 1976 Shipments of sheep and lambs into the state totaled 14,994, compared with 27,-224 head during October of last year. Into early January, thousands of Texas farmers and ranchers will receive a crop or livestock questionnaire from the Texas Department of agriculture. Officials say information gathered through the questionnaire and personal interviews provides the basis for determining the final acreage, yield and pro-duction of crops and end-of-the year livestock and poultry numbers for the state and for each county. Agricultural statistician Wilbert Walther says, "Farmers and ranchers have

closing narrowly mixed. For the second straight day export demand for soybean oil firmed up prices on the entire soybean complex and speculative buying added more strength. Oil prices were up as much as 115 points in the near December contract with lesser gains in the far months. Beans jumped as much as 124 cents and meal advanced $1 or more in all contracts. Sales overnight to Brazil and some speculative buying aided wheat, but profits were trimmed before the final bell by professional selling.

Commission house selling weakened corn slightly before the close but prices were only narrowly mixed. Brokers said the threat that new snow in the Midwest may tie up grain deliveries gave some steadiness to the market and only the far September and December contracts closed lower

Economic Troubles Forecast

By MICHAEL W. MILLICAN

NEW YORK (AP) - The British am-bassador to the United States says western Europe still faces a hard battle against recession and the head of the CIA says an oil and labor shortage looms for the Soviet Union.

The bleak economic forecasts were made in speeches Wednesday night at a meeting of the New York Economic Club, an influential group of business British Ambassador Peter Jay said inflation and unemployment will continue to plague western European nations at levels that a few years ago would have been "quite outside the political tolerances of post-war societies.'

And CIA Director Stansfield Turner told the group that the Soviet Union faces marked economic slowdown in the 1980s, partly because of expected shortages of abor and petroleum.

"The Soviet economy is in for a bleaker time than at any time since the death of Stalin," Turner said.

Jay, an economist who also is the sonin-law of British Prime Minister James Callaghan, said most western European countries have economic woes similar to those of the United States - sluggish demand and investment, large government deficits, trade deficits caused by higher oil prices, inflation and unemployment concentrated among the young.

In the past, many European countries have counted on the United States to pull them out of economic doldrums, he said. But Jay noted that America's own economic problems undermine its willingness and ability to help other nations.

Turner said the economic problems the CIA expects to confront the Soviet Union in the next few years could cause Russian leaders to cut back on increases in mili-

Man Confesses To Burglaries

HOUSTON (AP) - Police Chief Harry Caldwell says he received a letter with a $400 check enclosed from a New York man who claims he committed burglaries in Houston and now has found religion and feels guilty about the crimes.

Caldwell said the man, whose name was not released, claimed he committed several burglaries in the River Oaks area of Houston while he was a youngster living in Houston in 1960-61.

Police could not track down the old cases and the chief said the city legal department told him nothing could be done since the statute of limitations on the crimes had run out.

Caldwell said he returned the check to

"If the Lord God can forgive him, certainly the criminal justice system can,' the chief commented.

Four Flowers Picked In Gladiolus Tests

American Gladiolus Selections test garden judges show that four new gladiolus originations - Red Freckles, Night Owl, El Toro and Little Sweetheart - have won All-America honors. Each is especially noted for its distinctiveness and top performance. If flowers are your dish, the 1978 award-winning glads are a feast. The current interest in gladiolus is heightened by introduction of these four

Ford Recalls 3,000 New Versailles

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Ford Motor Co. is recalling about 3,000 1978 Lincoln Versailles automobiles to correct possible defects in speed or cruise control units, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced Thurs-

The agency also said it launched an investigation of possible safety defects in 1968-1974 Ford and 1972-1975 Peugeot

The Lincoln Versailles problem was described as possibly a misrouted wiring cause the throttle to stick, making it difficult to control the vehicle.

Ford estimates that only about 4 percent of the 3,000 cars being recalled might require correction.

The Ford investigation will center on a suspected problem with idler arms in the steering systems of approximately 9 million full-size and intermediate-size cars. Complaints indicate a bushing in the arm can stick because of corrosion or lack of lubrication. Failure could make steering

The Peugeot investigation involves about 26,000 autos suspected of having faulty seat belt retractors. Reports indicate failure of the seat belt to roll completely into the retractor when the belts are not in use.

The belt can become entangled in the seat adjustment mechanism or mangled in the door. The agency said it is con-

Basic color is medium red - but with the addition of pure white stripping on most petals. Sometimes only thin thread like stitching appears, while at other times nearly half a petal may be pure white. It opens eight plain petaled florets at once on graceful 18 bud spikes. Plant Red Freckles in quantity for a new thrill in gardening; nothing in the flower kingdom is so dramatically unusual. A spectacular show-off! The night shaded gladiolus, Night Owl. is an aristocrat among aristocrats. Gladi-olus experts rate it the finest purple of-fered to the public to date. The suave floretes are triangular in shape, heavy in substance and lavishly fluted, ruffled and needlepointed. Ten to 12 firmly attached precisely arranged florets open at once on straight dress-parade stems on 5-foot robust plants. Certainly both nature and the originator outdid themselves in producing this gorgeously beautiful purple

El Toro is an amazing, masculine looking flower ("The Bull") that has beauty, stamina and personality. It is a garden must. It possesses a classical perfection of form; the superb sculptured florets are precisely set on rugged gun-barrel scribed as possibly a misrouted wiring spikes that are almost eye level in height. harness which can interfere with the operation of the speed control servo arm. It have a rich plush-like texture reminiscent buds at one time. A planting of El Toro every 10 days will provide super spikes all summer long that will dazzle even the most seasoned flower lover. Little Sweetheart is truly tiny in stature and as cute as a baby chick. In addition to smallness, this exquisite rosy-red is gracefully arranged on splender, willowy stems. Each shapely floret has dramatic white quotation marks (stamens) in the tiny heart of each flower and is molded like a tiny toy cup. It has supreme waxy texture and a most captivating airy grace. Seven or eight round rosebud shaped florets open at once. Although Little Sweetheart is a miniature, it is robust to the extreme. An extraordinary little available to a gladiolus breeder. Gladiolus range in size from the tiny miniatures - just right for beautiful arrangements in the home - to the taller large flowered beauties that stretch up to five or six feet. Some of the most popular of the previously announced All-America miniatures are Bluebird, Brightside, Lambkin, Rudolph, Little Slam, Green 'n' Gold, Little Tiger, Kon-tiki, Grapejuice and Snowdrop. Among the large flowered All-Americas that perform especially well are such favorites as American Beauty, Miss America, Big Daddy, Cameo, Highstyle, Spectacular, Green Li-lac, Fire Chief, Navy Blue, Summer Snow and Sunray, the 1977 award-win-

All of the All-America glads have been tested and approved for home gardeners by All-America Gladiolus Selections. They are the varieties that emerged at the top among strong competition in the far-flung AAGS test gardens system.

They have proven to be superior in test from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico. The bulbs are economically priced and are available through leading mail order catalog firms, cataloguers specializing in gladiolus, and at garden stores. The earlier you place your order, the better chance of getting the varieties of your choice.

Armstrong Organization Dulls Beneath Surface

(EDITORS' NOTE: The Worldwide Church of God has an annual income of nearly $70 million and real estate holdings valued at more than $100 mil-ilion. But despite appearances, the brilliance per-ceptibly dulls below the surface. More, in the fifth of a five-part series, is a look at Garner Ted Arms-tengts organization.)

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - On the surface, the world of Garner Ted Armstrong literally sparkles.

As heir to the religious throne held by his 85-year-old father, Herbert, Garner Ted, 47, stands to inherit the Worldwide Church of God - with a baptized membership of more than 65,000 spread out over every continent on the globe with an annual income of nearly $70 million.

The younger Armstrong already is recognized internationally for his religious broadcast, "The World Tomorrow," carried by about 400 radio stations worldwide. The majority of the stations are in the United States and Canada but the broadcasts also are translated into Spanish and French and beamed to the far corners of the earth.

At the church's opulent Pasadena headquarters, on the campus of churchrun Ambassador College, the Armstrongs can cast a quick glance around and survey much of the Worldwide Church of God's wealth right in their own backvard.

The view includes the first building the church ever bought, a gleaming hilltop mansion.

By 1974, records on file at the Pasadena city assessor's office showed that the church had acquired nearly 200 prime properties in a 30-acre area of the city since 1946, the year before the college

Armstrongs can see the $11 million Ambassador Auditorium, whose interiors are made from emerald-green granite, cut and polished in Massa-Carrara, Italy. The walls are lined with rose onyx from Turkey and Persia, cut and polished in Italy. It's the biggest installation of such stone in the world

Hanging from the ceiling is the most brilliant sparkle of Armstrong's glittering world - a 30 foot chandelier resplendent with 1,375 crystals, all imported from Belgium

'It's the finest building in the world, square foot by square foot," says Stanley Rader, general counsel and vice president of financial affairs for the church. For the auditorium's opening in 1974, the Armstrongs brought the Vienna Symphony to the United States, at a cost of $112,000.

While a church spokesman declined to specifically estimate the church's real estate worth, he estimated the property worldwide at about $100 million at cost, with considerably higher market values.

In October, a group of former Ambas-sador students published a magazine criticizing the Armstrongs and some top aides for misuse of funds. The full-color 90-page publication cost about $10,000 to produce. Five of the six publishers graduated from Ambassador College and had been in the church from four to 15 years. The sixth publisher attended Ambassador for two years.

The writers say "Ambassador Report" is the first concerted attempt to document accusations against the Armstrongs and those high in the organization. The October issue, the magazine's first, was distributed to about 5,000 persons who had either sent donations for the project or whose names had been referred to the publishers.

"Six students can not tell a spirituallyorganized church how the money should be spent," Rader said in response to the

"The Armstrongs are responsible to God and, to a certain extent, to the brethren. The brethren give steady approval by continuing to support the church. The church grows and its programs become more and more effective.

However, all attempts to interview Garner Ted were unsuccessful. His chief aide, Dr. Robert Kuhn, refers callers to attorney Rader, fourth down in the line of authority from patriarch Herbert. Rader is equally elusive, but finally ac-commodated a reporter with a 45-minute phone call placed from Tokyo, where he was visiting on church business.

Because of the cloak of secrecy en shrouding the tax-exempt Worldwide Church of God, it is virtually impossible to unravel the complex growth of the church from humble beginnings. Its origins were traced to Herbert W. Armstrong's first broadcast religous sermon in 1934 on radio station KORE in Eugene, Ore. Today it is a financial mono-

Until recently, Ambassador College, receives about $25 million of church funds each year, had three campuses. The campus in Bricket Wood, England, was shut down several years ago and the campus in Big Sandy, Texas, was closed last summer, with the students transferred to the Pasadena campus. Ambassador College continues to hold the vacant facilities in England and Texas, however.

Past financial reports have indicated that 85 percent of the church's income came from tithes, or required donations, on the gross income of its membership, with the remainder in donations from recipients of the church's weekly magazine, The Plain Truth, and others, including Garner Ted's broadcast audience.

Rader said the church never makes public appeals for funds, noting that the closest it comes to that is the church's practice of sending literature to regular donors, telling them about the church's building program and explaining where the money is going to.

"But there is no passing of the hat in church or during campaigns," he said.

The church's seeking three tithes one tenth for the church, one for religious festivals and every third year a tenth for the church's poor members — was one practice harshly condemned by the Ambassador Report's staff. Rader said the tithing is purely voluntary, al-though it is such an important principle of the church, members who don't are likely to feel "conscious-stricken," he

But even more distressing to the Ambassador Report group than the tithing itself was the way the funds ostensibly have been used - to finance international trips for the church's leadership, to furnish luxurious homes for them, to bedeck the auditorium in ostentatious glitter, to finance the college's several airplanes, including a $3.5 million Gruman Gulf Stream II jet.

The Armstrongs, who say they are not evangelists and make no effort to convert or proselyte, have contended that their plane trips are part of their mission to spread the Gospel. However, the Armstrongs' jet-set living caused dissension within the church even before the publication of Ambassador Report. By early 1974, 35 ministers had left the fundamentalist, Saturday Sabbath-keeping sect and informed its mem-bers they planned to form separate congregations

They charged the aging Herbert with concealing sexual improprieties of his son and with living high on the members' tithe money

Garner Ted had disappeared for several months in 1972, amid speculation by the separatists that he was guilty of a number of sins, adultery leading the list. But he was quickly reinstated, the theory being that Garner Ted's absence from the air waves cost the church a good chunk of its income In response to the separatist ministers' accusations, Garner Ted said at the time, would not address myself to the charges, either to confirm or to deny.' At the time Garner Ted was absent, the enior Armstrong told followers that a didn't think that things were proper, we wouldn't still be here.

To people who accidentally dial or pass by outside, there is no hint that they have come upon one of the nation's wealthiest religious groups.

For this nameless, modern building belongs to the empire of Frederick Eikerenkoetter, better known as the Rev. Ike.

The organization operates with a secrecy about its own financial affairs that oddly contrasts with it leader's exuberant celebration of the joys of spending mon-

The studied obscurity of Ike's organization, the United Christian Evangelistic Association, is reflected by its headquart-

There is no name on the door of the three-story building at 910 Common-wealth Ave. In the bare lobby, the only hint of what lies on the floors above is emergency switches labeled "computer rooms," "tape storage" and "key punch." But it is impossible for outsiders to see these rooms. The stairway and the elevator are locked.

"Ike's basic attitude is that the work that is done here is private," said Kenneth Kolman, the association's director of operations. "He has chosen to keep it very closed." Estimates of the association's annual income range from $6.5 million to $15 million, but the real figure is secret.

The headquarters provides the behindthe-scenes organization for the flamboyant personal style of the Rev. Ike.

Requests to interview Rev. Ike were refused and Kolman was very short on answers when questioned during a telephone interview.

Ike is a handsome, impeccably groomed 42-year-old black man who preaches the advantages of a positive self-image. And lots of money, Ike says, does wonders for self-esteem.

"It is the lack of money, not the love of money, which is the root of all evil," Ike

He tells his followers: "We are not interested in pie in the sky bye and bye. We , and the church's lawyer. want our pie now, with ice cream on it and a cherry on top."

Ike practices what he preaches. He wears $1,000 suits. His fingers glisten with diamonds and gold. He rides to his New York church in an $85,000 auto-

At last count, Ike had 16 Rolls-Royces at his disposal. He has a choice of spending the night at a house in Redondo, Calif., an apartment in New York City or the church's parsonage in suburban Westch-

On Sundays, he preaches at his 5,000-seat United Church in the Washington Heights section of Manhattan. It is an or-nate former movie theater filled with antique French furniture and valued at $2

Ike draws a yearly salary of $40,000, but Kolman says most of the jewelry, cars and other symbols of wealth are paid for and owned by the church - the United Church, Science of Living Institute.

The tax-exempt church, in turn, is supported largely through donations. When the collection plate is passed on Sunday, Ike likes to say, "Please do not give change. Change makes me nervous in the service."

He urges followers to write to him, and much of the church's cash is contained in the piles of mail that arrive each day at a post office box in the Boston suburb of Brookline.

Kolman says the mail is put in sealed containers at the post office. Then it is taken to a bank, where bank employees open it and take out the money. They write the amount they find on the envelopes, then send all the mail to the headquarters.

"The money goes directly into the hands of the bank so that nobody in our operation gets their hands on it," Kolman said. "This is probably the squeaky cleanest organization from that standpoint in the country."

Although no money is handled at the headquarters, Kolman said the building is unmarked to avoid the threat of hold-

The organization's books are audited by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., a nationally known accounting firm. They are also checked by Ike's wife, Eula.

"She comes in and helps keep me honest," Kolman said. "She examines every single expenditure. There is a great system of checks and balances within the organization."

Financial decisions are overseen by a seven-member board of directors. But Kolman said the directors' identities are another church secret.

Kolman, who was an accountant before he joined the church 10 years ago, said the board decides whether to accept investment suggestions made by him, Ike

Most of the money, he said, is put into government securities and bank accounts.

However, he added, "There's not all that much invested, because the money is turned around very quickly into radio broadcasts, television and magazines. The purpose of the ministry is to get the philosophy across to the great mass of the people, and this is an extremely expensive thing to do."

Ike's sermons are heard on 85 radio station each week with 15- or 30-minute programs, ranging from daily to weekly broadcast. He discontinued producing television programs four years ago.

The church also produces two publications — a bi-monthly magazine called Action and a quarterly called Science of Living Study Guide.

The church, founded in 1962, does not officially have members. But it receives mail from 1.3 million people each month. Most of them live in New York and the

Light Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock

prices staged a light-volume rally
today with a boost from signs of a stabilizing dollar in foreign exchange markets.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.46 at 812.37. Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said an upturn by the dollar which began on Thursday helped to lift traders' spirits. The recent slump in the U.S. currency has been regarded as a negative for the market since it is presumed to have discouraged foreign buying of stocks in this country.

There appeared to be no strong response either way to the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a $1.8 billion increase in the basic measure of the money supply. .

Brokers said the news, while not especially favorable for the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy, was pretty much in line with expectations.

USLIFE led the active list, up 1/4 at 19 in trading that included a 241,400-share block at 18%.

The NYSE's composite index rose 22 to 51.59. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up . 42 at 123.61. Volume on the Big Board came to just 7.67 million shares by noontime, against 8.43 million at the same point on Thursday.

Youth Jobs To Receive Attention

PARIS (AP) - In an effort to find solutions to the pressing prob-lem of youth unemployment, U.S. Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall will chair a meeting here next week of labor ministers of the 24nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

The latest OECD data reveals that over 10 percent (or more than 7 million) of the youth labor force within the 24 nations is unemployed, and the situation appears to be deteriorating. And while young people between the ages of 15 and 24 account for the ages of 15 and 24 account for about 20 percept of the overall OECD labor force, they represent approximately 40 percent of the total number of jobless workers in the 84 countries.

Subjects to be discussed at the Dec. 15-16 conference include developing employment opportunities, facilitating the transition from school to work and improving the access of young people to labor markets.

Drug Laws To Change Under Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans who take prescription medicines would know more about the effects and safety of what they are using under a bill the Carter administration is drafting, government sources say.

The draft, believed to be the most sweeping proposal to overhaul the nation's prescription drug laws in 71 years, also would streamline government procedures for approving new medicines and for taking dangerous ones off the market.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials, who requested anonymity, said Thursday the proposal is in the hands of HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and the White House, besides being circulated among key congressmen. The draft legislation would require the pharmaceutical industry to give the consumer information on a medication's safety and effectiveness, which the industry is now required to make available only to government agencies in order to get the product approved. Under the proposal, manufacturers in many cases would have to summarize the results of tests on safety and effectiveness in easy-to-read package inserts, an FDA source said. One FDA official said the proposed move is "part of our longstanding goal" that product information "be laid out in a readable way" for the purchaser. A druggist also would be required to place on every package the name of the product's maker. Some of the major manufacturers have come under criticism recently for promoting and selling medicines under their trade names although they are manufactured by some-

A key element of the draft legislation is shortening the time it takes for the government to approve a new medicine and to take a potentially dangerous medicine off the market.

Under the proposal, Califano would be given authority to approve a new product merely by issuing an official order known as a "monograph." The monograph would include a description of the medication as well as evidence of its worth that led to its approval.

If other evidence emerges that would warrant taking the product off the market, the secretary would issue a revised order suspending sale of the item or revoking its earlier approval, a source said.

Consumer groups have long complained that the procedures for taking a potentially dangerous medication out of circulation are far too cumbersome and mean that such a product could remain on the market two years or more.

Even if the FDA declares a medicine an "imminent hazard," the present process may take six months.

Likewise, the pharmaceutical industry and many doctors have said the procedures for approving new medicines mean there is a lag in developing such products. Califano said last October that speeding up the process could cut costs to consumers and encourage introduction of new medications.

The proposed changes would be the largest overhaul of federal laws governing prescription medicines since the Food and Drug Act of 1906 and the first major revision of the laws since the industry was required in 1962 to prove a medication's safety and effectiveness before gaining government approval.

Man Assessed Probated Term

Pleading guilty to burglary before 237th Dist. Judge John R. McFall was Melvin J. Malone, 20, of 3103 Parkway

The defendant took the stand to admit he broke into the building with the intention of committing theft.

Other testimony indicated a burglar broke into the building April 12 and left a cash register outside. The money drawer of the register was reportedly open and empty.

As part of the probation, Malone agreed to pay $147 in restitution.

Judge Steps Down In Wallace Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - Circuit Judge John W. Davis III has complied with an order from the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals to disqualify himself from divorce proceedings between Gov. and Mrs. George C. Wallace.

The appellate court ruled this week that Davis must step down from the case because of circumstances that created "an impression that his impartiality might reasonably be questioned."

Judge Allows Defendants' Pleas In Hardware Price-Fixing Case

ware price-fixing case in federal court been allowed to plead no contest over the objections of the U.S. Justice Department.
The pleas were entered Wednesday by seven corporate defendants and eight executives. The firms could face fines up to $1 million, while each of the executives could be fined up to $100,000 and jailed up to three years.

Prosecutor Robert H. Morse of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division objected to the pleas, saying it deprived hardware purchasers of the chance to use the pleas as evidence in private antitrust suits for triple damages.

Morse claimed the conspiracy was "a very, very extreme one" of price fixing, involving at least $1 billion in goods and dating back to the 1930s.

However, Senior U.S. District Judge M. Joseph Blumenfeld said the no contest pleas would save court time in a trial, which had been expected to take three months, starting Jan. 3. Blumenfeld said the government is free to pursue its own civil damage suit against the defendants, which has already been filed.

Pleading Wednesday were all seven manufacturers indicted.

They are: Leviton Manufacturing Co. of Little Neck, N.Y.; Eagle Electric Manufacturing Co. of Long Island City, N.Y.; Slater Electric Inc. of Glen Cove, N.Y.; Circle F Industries of Trenton, N.J.; John I. Paulding Inc. of New Bedford, Mass.; Triboro Electric Corp. of Doyleston, Pa.; and the now-dissolved Bell Electric Co. of Chicago.

Also pleading no contest were: Leviton Chairman Jack Amsterdam and Vice President Thomas A. Blumberg; Eagle President Samuel B. Kluger and Vice President Jerrold Ludwig: Slater President Herbert A. Slates; Circle F Chairman Edward A. Ring; former Paulding President James B. Buckley and Triboro

Airport Board Asks Council For Funding Aid

By SYLVIA TEAGUE Avalanche-Journal Staff

Finding a parking space at Lubbock nternational Airport may be less of a hore by summer if the Lubbock City Council goes along with a request by the ubbock Airport Board for help in financing a $2.4 million parking building. Board members met with the council at a noon work session Thursday during which the council was updated on proposed airport capital improvement pro-

By far the largest proposed project is he construction of a parking building at the facility at an estimated cost of $2,-

built to the southeast of the terminal building and would necessitate rerouting the current airport entrance road.

The airport now has 709 parking spaces available to the public, with space for 350 cars in an overflow lot which formerly was a runway.

Dr. Lloyd Garland, airport board chairman, told the council all lots were more than full during the Thanksgiving weekend and predicted the Christmas holiday would produce an even larger parking

Bennett Reaves, of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., an engineering, planning and architectural firm, told council members the airport did not have the necessary cash flow to back a bond issue for the parking building.

Reaves said last year's cash flow of $36,000 fell short of the needed "$220,000 to do a bond of this size."

Councilman Bill McAlister agreed that "parking is a real priority" at the airport and the council asked City Finance Director Sterling Miller to present differ-ent methods of financing the parking at the next council meeting.

The airport board also plans to construct a new employee parking lot at a cost of $70,000. Garland said, "Tenants in the building are complaining bitterly" about the lack of parking since part of the employee parking was converted to public parking.

There are only 58 parking spaces for airport employees

A temporary loan of approximately $653,536 is needed, Garland said, as interim financing for the extension of a taxiway for the east-west runway.

He said the board hoped the money could come from a fund established by the council in September, 1973, to cover construction overruns at the civic center

Although the civic center has used some money from the fund, the airport board has never tapped the moneys. Finance Director Miller said the fund contains $736,000, $653,536 of which could be used for the loan.

The airport was notified today by the U.S. Department of Transportation that $400,000 has been awarded from the Federal Aviation Administration for the taxiway work this fiscal year.

The remaining $653,536 will be awarded from the FAA in fiscal year 1979, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen informed officials here. Thus, the airport needs that amount loaned now - until the rest of the grant money comes through next year.

The board hopes to obtain a supplemental agreement with the firm under contract for work on a runway at the air-port and save about 30 percent of the to-tal cost if the project was re-bid.

Other capital improvements proposed by the airport board include remodeling of the old terminal building at a cost of $58,396, the purchase of a second baggage claim system and the purchase of a load-

Garland noted that it is possible the airlines could be convinced to chase the baggage claim system. Ho er, if the city foots the bill it will reits investment within four years thanks additional airline rental for the equi ment, he said.

Councilman Alan Henry suggested the board "make people aware it is the airline's responsibility" to get the lugage unloaded quickly, and not the fault of the city or the airport if there are delays.

City Council Rejects Beverage Ordinance

The city council Thursday sent back proposed alcoholic beverage ordinance amendments, asking City Atty. Fred Senter to bring them an ordinance similar to one they had turned down before.

The rejected ordinance did not have enough "control," Mayor Roy Bass said at the meeting.

The council is in favor of an ordinance amendment requiring restaurants or bars to go before the Zoning Board of Adjustment in order to receive a liquor permit The restaurant or bar probably would have to submit a site plan as was required in the ordinance amendment sent back a few weeks ago, Senter said.

"I think going through the ZBA would be the best way to do this...it would be more stable," Bass said.

The ordinance amendment requiring ZBA approval had met with a great deal of opposition from the Lubbock Restaurant Association, although much of the oping no alcholic beverages be sold after

When the council sent this ordinance ment met with representatives of the at Shallowater. Association to come up with a compromise ordinance.

DR. LAMB

Mom Right On Eggs

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - Could you please try to solve a problem I have with my mother? Every morning, we get into an argument over eggs. You see, I am 15 years old, and lift weights three days a week.

I am told protein is important in muscle building, and one way to get it is by eating three eggs for breakfast, along with toast, milk and fruit

My mother thinks the cholesterol in eggs in harmful, and I should eat only three eggs a week. I think that since cholesterol is fat, if you exercise enough, you would just burn it up. Who is right?

DEAR READER - Funny thing about mothers, they are often right.

The American Heart Association recommends that adult men should have no more than three egg yolks a week, including those used in cooking - as in pies and other foods. Why? To limit the cholesterol intake in the

A large egg contains only 6.5 grams of protein, so your three eggs for breakfast provides 19.5 grams of protein. They are also high fat foods and in. Those three eggs will give you 660 milligrams of cholesterol, more than twice the daily maximum intake recommended by the Inter-Society Commission for Heart Resources Committee of nationally recognized scientists. And you need that 300 milligram cholesterol allowance for foods that are higher in protein, such as lean meat. You'll get more protein and less fat from lean met with all the fat trimmed away.

contain more fat calories than prote-

You may be surprised to find out that cholesterol is not really a fat and is not metabolized as a fat. All that exercise may not lower your cholesterol if you consume a lot and particularly if you are putting on weight, some of which may be fat. Those high fat, cholesterol-laden, high calorie diets that some body building programs put people on are the making of fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries that cause heart and vascular dis-

Those diseases are not just diseases of old people, either. More than 70 percent of young men examined from Korean War deaths, of an average age of 22, already had significant fat-ty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries of their heart. The time to develop eating habits that promote health throughout your life is now.

Cholesterol passes through the bile-from your liver into the intestine. It is reabsorbed there into the blood stream and goes round and round. You have to either stop its production or limit its absorption from the intestine to help lower cholesterol, and it isn't always so easy.

How much protein and what should you eat for a body building program? I am sending you The Health Letter number $4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control, to give you more information. Others who want this information can send 50 cents, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, NY 10019.

If you consume 100 grams of good protein a day and eat enough calories from other food to support your-body's needs, you should have enough protein to build at least one pound of new muscle a week with your exercies program, and that rate is most unlikely. Extra protein is sim-ply used as calories for energy or

Museum Adds Restored Farm Equipment

At first glance, they don't look like museum material. Bright paint glistens, wood gleams and gears move smoothly on three new acquisitions of the Lubbock County Historical Collection. It took a lot of help along the way to get the three, a broadcast binder, a thresher position stemmed from a clause requir- and a combine, to the Shallowater farm museum in fine working order.

The equipment is in such good shape that it will be displayed inside the counamendment back several weeks ago, rep- ty's museum building at 10th Street and resentatives from the city legal depart- Avenue G in Lubbock instead of outside.

> Secret of the mint condition is lettering on each piece: Renovated by Texas Department of Corrections Ellis Unit Bus Repair."

> When offered to the museum, the 1930s era equipment was just as rusty as most finds have been since Lubbock County commissioner Alton Brazell started picking up pieces from farm dumps, barns and fields in the late 1960s.

He saw them first where they had last been used at the Gatesville State School for Boys - abandoned to the elements years ago as were most museum finds.

'The old binder was rusty and most of the wood was gone; the combine was in bad condition and the thresher, in a barn, was in fair shape," Brazell recalled. The project began last summer when Don Workman of Lubbock, a member of the Texas Youth Council, which oversees the school, contacted Brazell about them. No longer in use, the farm equipment was being disposed of and the council offered them as a gift to the farm museum.

'Jim Estelle, head of the department of corrections, offered to restore them if we would pay for materials," Brazell

Trucks from the department picked the equipment up at Gatesville and transported it to Huntsville, where all wood, canvas and other materials necessary were obtained.

Cost of the materials will be picked up by the county museum

While ways were being figured to go get the items, trucks from Huntsville brought them to Shallowater.

Wednesday, the new show pieces were readied for the trip to Lubbock, where they will be inside, easily visible through the museum's windows. They will be protected from the elements and available as examples of what restoration can do.

Most of the exhibits in the outdoor farm museum are just as they were found - and in most cases at the edge of a field where the team pulling them was last unhooked or the engine of an early day tractor died for the last time.

As much as possible the collection is being put in working order, using duplicate machinery for extra parts.

There now are 273 pieces in the collec-tion, with about 150 on hand for spare-

Argentina Rattles Sabers Over Channel

By JOHN REICHERTZ
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Argentina, a country with 135,000 men in uniform, fought its last war in the 1880s, against the Indians. The recall of a contingent of the 1976 draft class means comething is brewing.

When the recall was made in Argentina's Mendoza province this week while tension over a border dispute with Chile increased, the meaning of the move became unmistakable to most observers.

Argentina had added saber-rattling to its diplomatic moves to solve the dispute over the borders at the Beagle Channel, located in the southernmost reaches of the South American continent.

Mendoza, the capital of the province, is where Gen. Jose de San Martin mounted the Army of the Andes, a 5,000 man force that marched into Chile in 1817 to liberate it from Spanish colonial rule.

Santiago, the Chilean capital, lies a scant 100 miles away, although the path is obstructed by the Andes and at one point in the range is the highest mountain peak in the Western hemisphere.

This week's recall was made as the head of the Argentine joint chiefs of staff, Adm. Julio Torti, presented what government sources said was an ultimatum to Chilean President Augusto Pin-

Radio broadcasts ordered the 1,000 reservists of the Eight Mountain Artillery Group to present themselves at the group's base in Uspallata, along the road between Mendoza and Santiago, within 48 hours

The rights of sovereignty Sexton re-ferred to involve three islands at the tip of the continent, and possibly more.

An international tribunal in May ruled that the islands - Picton, Lennox and Nueva - should belong to Chile. Chile immediately accepted the ruling. Argentina has until Feb. 2 to accept or reject it.

Press reports said this past week that Argentina would accept the ruling if Chile agreed that the Atlantic coast of the southern tip of the continent was Argentine and that the ruling could not be used by Chile as a legal pretext for claiming portions of Antarctica.

If Chile does not agree to the proposals, Argentina may for the first time in its history reject an internationally arbitrated

In 1965 and in 1968 publications in Santiago and Buenos Aires predicted a naval war between the two countries.

The recent Argentine moves probably were not unexpected by the Chileans. As recently as last week, the commander in chief of the Chilean navy and member of Chile's military junta, Adm. Jose Toribio Mereino, made a tour of military installations in the Beagle Channel zone.

Women, Men Police Net Same Marks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Women and men police officers received similar patrol performance marks in a federally funded study, but the findings show the women tended to defer decisions to male partners rather then assert themselves. A report on the seven-month study released last week recommended special training to encourage male officers to accept women as equals on the job and to encourage women officers to be more assertive.

The study of 82 New York City officers, half men and half women, was conducted by the Vera Institute of Justice with a $155,000 grant from the Law Enfor-Assistance Administration, which released the findings.

"In general, male and female officers performed similarly," the report said. They used the same techniques to gain and keep control and were equally unlikely to use force or to display a weap-

However, small differences were observed, the report said. "Female officers were judged by civilians to be more competent, pleasant and respectful than their male counterparts, but were observed to be ... less apt to assert themselves in patrol decision-making.

James Gregg, LEAA acting administrator, said women officers "are pioneering in what has always been a man's world and there are obstacles to be overcome. This report makes clear that they are being overcome."

The report said a woman officer is more likely to defer to her male partner in making arrests and taking control of disturbances, possibly because of traditional male-female "social conventions and role expectations.' One woman in the study told the researchers, "When we respond to a job, my partner tells me to stand back and not get in the way because this is his sector and I don't know it anyway." A male officer said, "The girls are okay
