NEWSPAPER BLOCKADE — Angered by an Avalanche-Journal editorial, striking farmers saved their largest show of strength for the newspaper. A tractor blockade surrounded the A-J building about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday and prevented newspaper delivery trucks from leaving until about 4 a.m. Wednesday. The top photograph is a view of the sea of tractors parked in the nearby Civic Center parking lot which were used for reinforcements in the A-J blockade. Top left, A-J Editor Jay Harris talks to angry agriculturalists about the offending column before using a police department public address system to explain the editorial. Below left, two farmers point to a dent in a farmer's pick-up they said the police officer caused when he struck the truck with a flashlight when it did not stop. Right, paper loaded on delivery trucks sit waiting for an end to the seemingly endless procession of tractors.

A-J ACTION — Left, farmers, incensed by a Dec. 18 Lubbock Avalanche-Journal editorial, late Tuesday blockaded the loading dock at the A-J and prevented newspaper delivery until about 4 a.m. Wednesday. Right, one of several trucks loaded with copies of the A-J bound for rural areas met a wall of tractors and farmers early Wednesday. At left a Lubbock policeman, in the driver's seat of one of the big rigs, appears frustrated by futile attempts to move the vehicle with a wrecker. Lower left, city police take one of the striking farmers to jail. Initial reports indicated that 31 arrests had been made at the demonstration, but Police Chief J. T. Alley said only five were officially booked. However, all charges were later dropped, and no records were kept of the arrests. Bottom, Chief Alley directs officers' movements at the demonstration, which broke up about 4 a.m. Wednesday when pleas for reason were issued by strike leaders and A-J management. Later in the day, the protestors moved their tractor blockades to numerous food distributors and processors in the city. (Staff Photos)

Consumer Price Hike Observed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased .5 percent in November, the biggest increase in five months and an indication that inflation may once more become a major headache after a period of relative calm.

The Labor Department blamed the rise largely on higher food costs and a 1.5 percent jump in prices of 1978-model automobiles.

Food prices increased .6 percent, prices of other goods were up .5 percent and charges for services advanced .4 percent.

The government's Consumer Price Index had increased only .3 percent in each of the preceding three months. After the November advance, the CPI stood at 185.4 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning consumers had to pay $185.40 for goods that cost $100 a decade earlier.

The increase in prices for the 12-month period ending in November was 6.7 percent. Economists expect the increase next year will be at least that, if not higher. In all of 1976, prices increased 4.8 percent, as food prices were especially stable.

Food prices also had been stable since June of this year, rising just .6 percent from July through October.

Contributing to November's .6 percent food price increase were beef, up 2.7 percent, and fresh fruit, up 6.3 percent. There were also increases for eggs, pork, poultry, cereals, bakery products and processed fruits and vegetables.

These rises were offset somewhat by declines in dairy products, fats and oil products, coffee and fresh vegetables.

The increase in food prices was expected since wholesale prices of farm products had risen sharply in the previous two months. But the .5 percent boost for other consumer goods was higher than predicted. It was the largest increase in this category in nine months.

Besides auto prices, there also were increases for alcoholic beverages, up .7 percent, and apparel, up .8 percent. The increase in auto prices included both 1978-model U.S. cars and imported vehicles.

The falling value of the dollar in nations such as Germany and Japan has resulted in price hikes for auto imports from those countries. Used car prices were up .1 percent in November, after declining sharply for seven consecutive months.

Prices for gasoline and motor oil rose .8 percent, but that was less than in October. Fuel oil and coal prices declined .8 percent, the first drop since early in 1976.

Among services, mortgage interest rates declined for the fourth month and medical care services advanced .5 percent, the smallest increase this year.

All of the figures were adjusted for seasonal variations. This procedure, for example, causes one-time increases in auto prices to be phased into the CPI over a period of months, rather than all at once. Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall said the overall .5 percent increase in the CPI "means some greater increase of inflation." He added, "We're always concerned about that, but it wasn't unexpected."

The Labor Department also reported Wednesday a .4 percent decline in the purchasing power of workers' paychecks in November because of the combined effect of a reduction in working hours and the erosion caused by inflation.

America's Leaders Said Out Of Touch

By LOUIS HARRIS

A recurrent complaint of many Americans is that the leaders of their most important institutions and professions are out of touch with the very people they are supposed to lead or help.

In particular, according to a recent Harris Survey of 1,498 adults nationwide, Americans are critical of most branches of government:

- By 44-43 percent, a plurality feels that the White House is "mostly out of touch" with the nation. This is a marked improvement from the 51-35 percent majority who felt this way in 1975. But given President Carter's insistent assertion that he would listen to the people, these results must be a disappointment for him.
- By 45-43 percent, Americans feel that the leaders of state governments are out of touch with their constituencies. This is a turnaround from the 46-41 percent plurality who felt that state governments were in touch in 1975.
- By 43-40 percent, a plurality feels that the military establishment is out of touch, a slight improvement from the 44-38 percent margin of two years ago.
- A 46-38 percent plurality of Americans is convinced that the executive branch of the federal government is not sensitive to the governed. This is a slight improvement from the previous 50-34 percent negative feeling.
- By 47-38 percent, a plurality also thinks the U.S. Supreme Court is "mostly out of touch" with the people. This is a poorer showing than the 43-38 percent margin that was recorded before.
- By 58-31 percent, a majority of Americans believes that Congress is not in tune with their needs and wants, a poorer score than the 55-34 percent of 1975.

Another area in which negative feelings predominate is organized labor. A 47-40 percent plurality believes that union leaders are not responsive to the wishes of the rank and file. This is a reversal of the 45-39 percent plurality who felt they were in touch in 1975.

As they look at other institutions that affect their lives, Americans tend to be more positive, although in most cases there is still a strong feeling that things could be better.

-A 73-18 percent majority feels that doctors really know what most of their patients want, up from a comparable 69-21 percent majority who felt this way two years ago.

-A substantial 67-23 percent majority feels that TV news is in touch with its public, almost the same as in 1975.

-By 58-31 percent, people feel that colleges and universities respond to the needs of their students and faculty. Two years ago, a 55-34 percent majority felt the same way.

-A 56-32 percent majority feels that the press is in touch with its readers. This is slightly lower than the 59-29 percent majority who felt this way in 1975.

-By 50-40 percent, people feel that the leaders of local governments are in touch with their constituents, a slight rise since 1975.

Three other major institutions also receive positive ratings:

-A 49-37 percent plurality feels that leaders of organized religion are aware of their parishioners' needs and expectations. This is an improvement over the 44-40 percent endorsement of 1975.

-By 45-38 percent, lawyers continue to be viewed as sensitive to their clients' needs.

-By a narrow 45-44 percent, a plurality now thinks business leaders are in touch with the attitudes of the people who buy their products. This is a marked turnaround from the 50-39 percent plurality who felt that the heads of major companies were out of touch in 1975.

It is clear from these findings that many Americans feel a lack of responsiveness among the leaders of their key institutions. People have this feeling most acutely about the nation's political leaders, who are seen as largely out of touch with what the country needs and wants. This finding raises questions about how well political democracy is really working in this country.

Ford Sees Improving Climate For Canal Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford said Wednesday he has urged President Carter to gear up an administration campaign for Senate approval of the Panama Canal treaty.

The former Republican president said he thinks prospects are improving for the two-thirds Senate support it will take to endorse the pact, to yield the canal to Panama in the year 2000.

Ford said he'll keep speaking out for treaty approval. "I happen to think the administration has to do more, and I've told the president that," he said.

Ford, who conferred with Carter on Tuesday, said he thinks the president and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance should be more active in pressing for ratification of the treaty, which is expected to come to a Senate vote by late winter.

"I think the public attitude is turning," said Ford, who advocated the treaty during the 1976 campaign, while Carter was saying he would not yield practical control of the canal in the foreseeable future.

Ford also chastised the Republican National Committee for sending out a fundraising letter in which Ronald Reagan urged rejection of the pact. He said he agrees with the committee's refusal to help pay for a Reagan tour in opposition to the treaty.

"I thought it was ill advised to take such an issue and seek to raise money on a single issue for a broad-based party," Ford said, over ham and scrambled eggs with a group of newsmen.

Winding up a four-day Washington visit, sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, Ford said he's heading for a family Christmas in Vail, Colo.

While Ford said he will continue to speak out for the canal treaty, he expressed reservations about the proposed new strategic arms limitation accord with the Soviet Union.

He said that agreement deserves a far higher priority than the canal treaty. Ford said he won't make up his mind on the new SALT accord until he has more complete data on its effect on specific weapons systems. Ford also said he thought that Carter made "one of the worst decisions of this administration" in rejecting production of the B-1 bomber.

Negotiations on both the Panama treaty and the SALT accord were underway during Ford's administration, and his secretary of state, Henry A. Kissinger, was a key architect of SALT proposals. Still, Ford said he may wind up opposing that agreement unless he can be convinced that the final terms are in keeping with U.S. defense interests.

Ford said "I don't see much point" in Carter's coming trip to six nations. "It's kind of a face-saver," he said, since Carter had announced a more extensive trip and then postponed it.

The former president said it might be more useful for Carter to go to the Middle East if peace efforts are progressing there. The president will be in Saudi Arabia during the nine-day trip, but not in Egypt or Israel, the two nations most directly involved in the peace efforts.

Ford said his administration's foreign policy helped prepare the way for the present peace effort. He said an agreement for partial withdrawal from the Israeli-occupied Sinai Desert showed that Egypt and Israel could negotiate. "I'm pleased that (Egyptian President Anwar) Sadat has grabbed the ball," he said.

Ford said he will be politically active, raising money and helping Republican candidates in the 1978 campaign. He said he thinks the Republicans can gain 20 to 30 seats in the House, one or two in the Senate, and three to five governorships next year.

The former president said he hasn't decided on his future as a potential candidate. "I'm certainly not going to make any decision until 1979," he said.

Ford warned that if conservative Republicans tie the party too tightly to the Panama Canal issue, the 1980 GOP nomination for the White House won't be worth anything.

"I want a good candidate, and at this stage I am not going to pass judgment on who is and who isn't," he said.

Then he headed for his final appointments and his skiing holiday, still talking about 1980. "I'll be too old to ski then," joked Ford, who is 64. "But not too old to be president."

Probated Term Given Student In Big Spring

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — A Howard County court jury has sentenced Minnie Linda Jones to one year on probation for breaking a stick across a teacher's face.

In the misdemeanor trial held in County Judge Bill Tune's courtroom Tuesday, Mrs. Newbill pleaded guilty to the assault charge but asked through her attorney, Wayne Basden, for a probated sentence. County Attorney Harvey Hooser asked for a jail term and no fine. The misdemeanor charge could carry penalties up to one year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

In their final arguments, Basden and Hooser both spoke about the need for the jury to set an example.

Hooser asked for the jail term while Basden called for the case to be judged on its own merits and referred to Hooser's request as "vigilante justice."

Prosecution also asked for the jail term. "Put an end to open season on teachers."

Linda Alexander, the first grade teacher who was struck Sept. 22, and Lynn Hise, Big Spring superintendent, were witnesses for the prosecution. Mrs. Newbill was the defense's only witness.

Big Spring Police Honor Robert Sims

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Robert Sims was named both Police Officer of the Year and Police Association Member of the Year at the annual Police Association Christmas Dinner Tuesday night.

Sims, who had been with the Big Spring Police Department 2 1/2 years, was instrumental in an armed robbery in progress shortly before Christmas last year at a local convenience store.

He has also been extremely active as a member of the board of directors of the Police Association.

The department presentation was made by Chief Stanley Bogard, who expressed pride in the record of the department during the past year in which two attempted armed robberies were thwarted. The association presentation was made by James Van Ness, past recipient of the award.

Two civilians who contributed to the apprehension of armed robbers at pharmacies here were given special citizenship awards by John Burson, president of the Police Association.

They were Linda Holland, who fled out the back door of one of the pharmacies to notify officers, and Bobby Joe Roy, a young boy who was seated outside another pharmacy where a robbery was in progress and who obtained the license number of the fleeing bandits.

In an emotional presentation, Bogard presented the police badge of the late Ricky Klahr to the officer's mother. The badge had been placed on a plaque and was awarded in his memory. Last year, Klahr was winner of both top police awards. He died early last year after a long battle with Hodgkin's Disease.

PIG FINDS HOME

TORONTO (AP) — Humane Society officials in this Canadian metropolis didn't know exactly what to do when Lisa Boorman applied to adopt the pig they found wandering the Toronto streets. The Society, which said it had never had a porker up for adoption before, finally decided to use a modified cat adoption form and let her have the pig. Miss Boorman, 20, said she took the animal to her fiancée's barn north of Toronto after agreeing not to eat it.

Gas Demand Leveling In Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. gasoline consumption is leveling off for the first time since the end of the Arab oil embargo, and researchers predict it will actually decline in the 1980s.

Two respected research groups report that gasoline demand this year has increased less than 3 percent from the demand last year.

"As far as I'm concerned, I believe gasoline prices are getting into the area where high prices are discouraging use," said Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Los Angeles-based Lundberg Letter, a weekly compilation of gasoline statistics.

According to Lundberg's survey of gasoline station sales in every state, demand increased during the first nine months of 1977 by only 2.2 percent. He said the trend indicated that by the 1980s, the demand would begin to decline.

The American Petroleum Institute, an industry group which monitors gasoline shipments from refineries, said Wednesday that deliveries increased by 2.6 percent this year.

That compares with an increase of 5.1 percent in 1976, and an average 3.7 percent increase since 1974, when the oil embargo was lifted. Year-to-year consumption figures have increased at about the same rate as delivery figures.

Carl Gustin, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy, said federal officials were "pleased that these surveys show a slowing in the rate of growth of gasoline consumption. It may be too early to say that this represents a long-term trend, however."

"We will be watching the situation closely in light of the president's 1985 goal of reducing gasoline consumption 10 percent below early 1977 levels," Gustin said.

But John Lichtblau, director of an oil economics consulting firm that surprised many observers last month by predicting that gasoline consumption would decline through the 1980s, said the trend apparently already is beginning.

"Our expectation is that the increase in 1978 will be below 3 percent, maybe less than 2 percent," Lichtblau said.

Last month, Lichtblau's Petroleum Industry Research Foundation predicted that gasoline consumption in the 1980s would fall below the 1977 level despite a 40 percent boost in the number of automobiles. The decrease would occur because the new, more fuel-efficient cars would replace "gas guzzlers" now on the road, the group said.

Lundberg agreed that improved fuel efficiency was a prime factor, but he said the price of gasoline was equally important. Full-service regular gasoline costs an average 60 cents per gallon now, up 3 cents from the same time last year.

"You have a couple of million families with two cars who have to make ends meet," he said.

"And when they look at their remaining take-home pay a couple of days before payday, I think they are saying, 'Honey, you drop me off at work and I'll take the bus home or hitch a ride with Jack.' They just can't afford to keep running two cars."

Jury Prepares For Lengthy Deliberations

DEL RIO (AP) — Jurors in a multi-million dollar damage suit arising from a butane tank explosion two years ago set up a Christmas tree in the jury room Wednesday as they apparently anticipated that their deliberations will go on at least until Friday.

The jurors received the case, filed against a Mexican butane gas company and six defendants in the United States, on Friday afternoon following 11 weeks of testimony in the state district court of Judge George Thurmond.

Plaintiffs in the suit are relatives of victims and survivors of the accident that killed 16 and injured 50 on April 29, 1975, when a butane gas truck owned by Surtigas of Piedras Negras exploded and caught on fire after loading at a local refinery.

Witnesses said the truck appeared to go out of control and jackknifed and exploded. Parts of the truck were thrown about half a mile and hit three mobile homes.

The suit is a consolidation of more than 50 legal actions originated against Surtigas and companies connected with the construction or design of the truck. It was filed by 35 plaintiffs.

Other defendants named in the suit are Lubbock Manufacturing Co., Fontaine Truck Equipment, William Saines, administrator of the estate of truck driver Jesus Verdusco, Altamil Corporation, Modern Machinery Shop Inc., Laredo Diesel and International Harvester.

The combined damage claims exceed $100 million. Dozens of experts witnesses testified in the case that was moved here from Eagle Pass on a change of venue.

Several settlement proposals by separate defendants were presented during the trial. The jury, whose oldest member is 39 and the youngest 19, must decide on nearly 300 issues and proposals. The bulky evidence had to be taken to a hotel near the courthouse and the jury was set up in a ballroom.

Jury deliberations were recessed briefly Tuesday when one of the jurors said she had to go see a doctor. She returned to the jury early Wednesday.

Attorneys in the case said they expected the jury to go on until Friday and then adjourn until next week.

Dollar Closes Higher

By The Associated Press
The U.S. dollar closed higher in world foreign exchange markets Wednesday, buoyed by expectation that President Carter would announce measures to halt its steady erosion in value.

But Carter's statement, which came after the money markets in Europe, New York and Tokyo had closed, left many dealers unsatisfied with the U.S. government's intentions to prevent the American currency from sliding further.

The dollar rose in New York against all major currencies except the British pound.

In London, the dollar drifted lower against all major currencies except the West German mark in uneventful trading. The dollar came under some selling pressure early in the European day but European central banks apparently intervened modestly to give it a slight boost. Nevertheless, the dollar declined from its highs for the day to finish slightly lower from Tuesday in Europe.

No Change In Tokyo
In Tokyo, the dollar remained unchanged against the yen and analysts said it is expected to stay at the 240.725 yen mark through the rest of the year.

Late Wednesday, Carter issued a statement saying the U.S. "in close consultation with our friends abroad," will intervene in foreign exchange markets to counter disorderly conditions. But a high-ranking Treasury official told a press briefing that Carter's statement doesn't signal any basic change in U.S. intervention policy.

The U.S. Treasury official also made it clear that the U.S. doesn't contemplate massive intervention in foreign exchange markets to support the dollar against other currencies.

Turnaround Maneuvers
"I think they're trying to get some room to maneuver," a dealer in New York said, so that the government would "not look like complete fools" should the U.S. begin intervening in the foreign exchange markets. Now, the dealer said, it wouldn't look like such a turnaround if the U.S. did intervene.

Initial reactions by dealers in New York included comments such as "It's the same old thing" or "too little, too late."

It wasn't the promise to intervene that some market participants expected, a dealer said.

In very light, late trading, banks were selling dollars for the strong currencies, he added.

There was some optimism, however. One dealer said he thought Europe might look more favorably on the U.S. position. Noting that Carter is leaving for Europe next week, he said the president couldn't go to major European capitals without at least expressing U.S. policy to intervene in a disorderly foreign exchange market.

Gold Up Slightly
The price of gold rose slightly in London and Zurich. The dollar's only drop was recorded against the French franc. The late rate was 4,745 francs, down from Tuesday's 4,753.

Against the Swiss and German currencies the dollar pulled back from record lows Tuesday. In Frankfurt the dollar was valued at 2,116.3 German marks, up from Tuesday's 2,110. In Zurich the dollar recorded a late rate of 2,016.5 Swiss francs, up from Tuesday's 1,997.5.

Gold rose by 50 cents an ounce in Zurich Wednesday to close at $160.375 an ounce. In London an ounce of gold closed at $160.40 Wednesday, up from Tuesday's $159.75.

In New York, the dollar rose to 2,029.2 Swiss francs late Wednesday from 2,028.8 late Tuesday. The dollar fund also firmed to 2,130.8 marks from 2,121.3 and rose to 241.54 yen from 240.38. But the pound gained ground to $1,882.8 in late trading from $1,879.3 Tuesday.

More Premium Dollars
The British Treasury announced Wednesday it has decided to drop the 25 percent surrender requirement on investment premium dollars effective Jan. 1. The measure will have the effect of making more premium dollars available and will allow British investors to obtain a higher overall return on sales of foreign securities.

In Paris, the dollar continued to decline in very light trading, the French franc also improved against the mark and Swiss franc. The finance ministry announced that the country's gold and foreign currency reserves declined by 393 million francs in November to 101,665 billion. Foreign currency reserves alone declined 305 million francs to 22,854 billion due to operations by the Bank of France in the foreign exchange market to support the franc, the ministry said.

In Switzerland, the dollar gained against the Swiss franc in mid-session trading. It was helped when the Swiss National Bank offered virtually unlimited 3-month swap facilities to the commercial banks to meet end-of-year liquidity needs.

In Tokyo, bankers and securities industry sources said the Bank of Japan could decide Friday to lower the official discount rate from the current 4.25 percent level. The government is putting the final touches on its fiscal 1978 budget proposal, but analysts say it won't boost economic growth to the official 7 percent goal without additional measures such as a reduction in the discount rate.

The British pound closed in New York at $1,882.8, compared with $1,884.0 in London late Wednesday, and $1,879.3 in New York late Tuesday.

Clean Air Results Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's air is cleaner than in 1970, but some pollutants are increasing despite emissions control efforts, the Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday.

The worst pollutant appears to be smog, produced when hydrocarbons and nitrogen dioxide are exposed to sunlight. Nearly every urban area in the United States is violating health standards for smog, the EPA said.

"Urban smog levels remain high and are even increasing slightly in some areas," said EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle.

Costle noted, however, that levels of such air pollutants as sulphur dioxide, carbon monoxide and particulate matter have decreased substantially in the past six years.

"America's air is getting cleaner," he said. "But we're still a long way from having healthy air throughout the country."

Costle issued his statement following the release Wednesday of EPA's 1976 National Air Quality and Emissions Trends Report.

The report showed that from 1970 to 1976 sulphur dioxide levels dropped 27 percent, carbon monoxide levels fell 20 percent and particulates (smoke and dust) decreased 12 percent.

The long-term declines, however, run counter to some short-term estimates.

From 1975 to 1976, the report said, emissions of sulphur oxides increased 4.6 percent, nitrogen oxides, 3.6 percent, hydrocarbons, 6.4 percent, and carbon monoxide, 1.5 percent.

Particulate emissions from man-made sources decreased 7 percent from 1975 to 1976.

The report noted major improvements in particulate levels in metropolitan New York, Chicago and Denver.

"The greatest improvement occurred in the New York area, where the percentage of people exposed to particulate levels violating health standards decreased from 60 percent in 1970 to zero percent in 1976," the EPA said.

The agency said Chicago reported a decrease of 33 percent while Denver dropped 9 percent.

However, a number of areas in the country reported increased levels of particulates in the air. This was attributed primarily to the drought, which resulted in increased levels of wind-blown dust, the EPA said.

The long-term decrease in carbon monoxide was attributed to auto emission controls.

Costle cited specific industries as contributing to the nation's air pollution problem. "Some industries such as steel, copper, petroleum and electric utilities still are lagging in pollution controls," he said.

Health Center Officials Eye Four Cities

The new regional academic health center to be developed by the Texas Tech University School of Medicine in the Permian Basin will be located in Big Spring, Odessa, Midland or Andrews.

Proposals for the site of the center, to be developed as a site for future medical education programs, were submitted by all four cities.

Medical school staff members will continue to review the proposals after the holidays, Richard A. Lockwood, M.D., vice president for the Health Sciences Centers, said.

The oral meetings which had been tentatively scheduled for early January will not be necessary because the written proposals were so comprehensive, a medical school spokesman said.

A decision on the next step to be taken in the selection of a site will be made after reviews of the proposals are completed, Lockwood said.

Community participation on the selection of the site was formally solicited in late November so the choice could be based on future program advantages for both community and medical school health planning.

The building for the medical school will be in one of the four cities, although educational programs will be developed in several Permian Basin cities.

Planning funds have been provided by the Texas legislature to develop a center in the Permian Basin and the medical school intends to request funds from the 66th Legislature for the center's construction and operation.

Firm Recalls Pacemakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced Wednesday that 75 external pacemakers have been recalled because of a moisture problem that could cause them to fail.

The devices were the Hewlett Packard Co.'s External Pacemaker, model 7834A, used in hospitals to provide temporary pacing on demand or at fixed rates for heart patients. They are strapped to the arm and cannot be implanted. The Waltham, Mass., firm told the FDA it discovered the moisture problem in running final lab tests on the pacemaker. It began the recall Nov. 4.

The company said it knew of no deaths or injuries caused by the defect.

College Campuses Debate Life's Origins

religionists, but a debate between scientists."

However, the pro-evolutionists — and not their opponents — both brought up Scriptural creation accounts, terming them not scientific but religious. The anti-evolutionists contended that the evolutionary theory, dealing with unobserved, untestable concepts of origins, itself went beyond empirical scientific limits, necessitating faith in it, with evidence selected one-sidedly to favor it.

Imagination Plays Role
"The evolutionist is not dealing with a real universe," said physicist Slusher. "He's dealing with a universe that he builds out of his imagination."

However, zoologist Wilber contended that when anti-evolutionists "being by postulating creation, attempting to interpret geology by using Scripture, then I say it's putting together things that were never intended to fit together and cannot be smashed together without destroying both."

No win-or-lose decision was attempted in the debate, the object being in such affairs simply to air the evidence on both sides.

Anthropologist Charney, challenging the Scriptural assertion that humans are "wonderfully made," said that far back in time, "we are descended from some quadrupedal animal on all fours" and "we bear many scars of the evolution ... The body of man is a hodgepodge."

Many Physiological Problems
The "upending of man on his two legs" has caused many physiological problems, he said, adding that it focused the weight on spine and pelvis, leading to backaches and other ailments, burdened the heart with pumping blood upward against gravity, causing circulatory problems and overloaded the feet, causing fallen arches and bunions.

Also, he said, the "reduction in snout didn't take evenly" in human, leaving the problem of "oversized teeth in undersized jaws," resulting in dental troubles.

Biochemist Gish replied that if walking upright and reduced jaws caused disadvantages, it was contradictory to imply evolution produced them, since the theory holds that natural selection preserves improvements, not handicaps.

"These are all reasons why they should be selected against," he said. "It would seem that man never evolved in the first place." However, he contended that the physical problems were not inherent, but derived from slack living habits.

The debaters had 30 minutes each for opening speeches and 10 minutes each for rebuttals, with additional time for questions from the audience. Other excerpts:

Single Type Of Matter
Wilber: "All this complex universe derives from organization of a single, particular type of matter.

From its earliest beginning, matter of the universe showed a dynamic state one might call 'Genesis' or becoming.

"It is adequate to assume that complex organism resulting in unique relationship of macromolecules one to another is sufficient to account for the characters of highly organized structures that we refer to as living."

Slusher: "It's contrary to the second law of thermodynamics to say that you can start with an exploding cosmic egg and get a complex, ordered universe out of it. That law says that all spontaneous processes involving energy and matter move toward molecular entropy and disorder..."

"The particles would spread out and eventually reach a state of maximum entropy ... My students would laugh me out of the room if I said I saw an exploding building produce a more complicated arrangement than there was to start with, does not give rise to order. As physicists say, you've got to have a motor."

Transitional Forms Lacking
Gish: "If evolution is true, our museums should be literally overflowing with transitional forms ... The fossil record does not provide them ... What the fossil record does show is the explosive appearance of different kinds, with a lack of transitional forms."

Wilber: "The evolutionary pattern is seen only when the whole is observed, and not when the crack in the painting is exaggerated. No one can claim that the geological record is completed. No responsible scientist makes such claims..."

"When we talk about certain gaps ... what's that due to? Simply to the fact that some professor hasn't put enough graduate students looking hard enough to find them. That doesn't mean we should stop being scientists."

At the campus debates, some pro-evolutionists have refused to participate, saying they wouldn't dignify the events.

"There is rigidity on both sides," anthropologist Margaret Mead said of absolute Genesis literalism and scientists who hold a totally mechanistic view of life's development. "Scientists become rigid when confronted by these attacks..."

"Science is a method of explanations, not a dogma. But some scientist mix their ideologies with it. When they do, scientists can be just as dogmatic as some religionists ... We don't need Genesis put in biology put in religious books. Religion and science are two different methods of approaching truth."

Humanists Issue Statement
Recently, the American Humanist Association issued a statement signed by 180 scholars, including many top scientists, saying evolution is "the only presently known, strictly scientific and not religious explanation" for life, and that classroom teaching should be limited to that viewpoint.

Challenging that position, 500 scientists, including some notables in the field, have signed a statement being circulated by University Thomas G. Barnes, calling for "openness as a principle of science" in dealing with matters of origin.

Scientific evidence can be marshaled either for creationist or evolutionary concepts, the statement says, and evidence for both should be objectively presented in the classroom, where presently only evolution is taught and creationism suppressed.

Students "have a right to know the scientific evidence that supports that alternative," the statement says.

Among The Arguments
Among the various pro-and-con arguments about evolution are these:

All life shares a basic biochemical relationship, a fundamental unity of molecular chemistry, infinitely varied, but partaking to different degrees of the same genetic system, suggesting a common origin and consistent with it.

But anti-evolutionists say this only shows the same earthly building blocks and the same fundamental method of vitalizing organization were used for developing the different classes of life, rather than that they all evolved and branched from the same original line.

Comparative anatomy, for example the similar skeletal and muscular arrangements of human arms, the front legs of alligators and horses and flippers of whales, often is offered as evidence of evolution.

Again, critics note that the same mechanical principles of joints and leverage work with anything, inert or living, and that use of common functional principles in different creatures does nothing to prove common descent.

So-called "vestigial organs" in humans used to be cited by the score as evidence of once useful parts in ancestral forms that no longer serve any purpose in the evolved state, but this argument has diminished this argument as further findings bring about continuing usefulness of parts once thought useless.

For instance, the appendix has been found to have lymphoid in it, and aid to blood formation and the immunizing system in early life, and the coccyx, or so-called tailbone, provides a fastening base for muscle tissue without which it would be uncomfortable to sit.

Stages Of Recapitulation
In embryology, a fetus goes through stages of "recapitulation," developing gill-like pouches that dissolve as lungs develop.

However, the stages are said to provide guides to vascular and bone development.

The fossil record of the horse is said to be the most complete sequence, from ancient, terrier-sized "eohippus" on down.

"There are some persistently difficult gaps to get filled in," leontologist Malcolm McKenna. "It's not a continual line, but individual frames. We assume continuity. It has to be hypothesized, but it's a reasonable hypothesis."

As for transitional crosses between biological families, he says, "There's nothing to establish it from the fossil record."

Airline To Provide DFW To London Flight Daily

GRAPEVINE (UPI) — Officials of Braniff International, bubbling about their new Dallas-Fort Worth to London route, Wednesday said the airline would provide one 747 flight daily with a round trip ticket possibly as low as $349.

The award of the route, which will be formalized soon, was announced by the White House. Moments later Braniff officials issued a news release and members of the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Board held a news conference to comment on the announcement.

The selection of Braniff was considered a surprise. The Civil Aeronautics Board had recommended Pan American be given the route, but President Carter — who had the final decision — chose Braniff.

The CAB must amend its order before the route officially will belong to Braniff. "Braniff is extremely pleased and honored to have been selected after careful consideration by the president as the United States flag carrier to provide non-stop service between Dallas-Fort Worth and London," said Braniff board chairman Harding L. Lawrence.

"By this decision, the president has demonstrated his dedication to providing the American people, including those in Texas and the Southwest, with the most competitive, lowest priced air service possible."

Lawrence said Braniff immediately will file with the CAB a wide range of fares including the $349 standby round trip ticket and a coach round trip ticket price of $818. Braniff said the prices compare to $896 from Dallas to New York to London and back.

Airport spokesmen said flights could begin within 60 days.

During its presentation to the CAB, Braniff claimed its extensive "feeder" flights from points in the Southwest to DFW for the London leg would generate so much revenue that the actual price of the flight to London could be kept low. A DFW official said there are 300 flights daily into the airport — including 152 by Braniff and one by Pan Am — and that any of them could carry London-bound passengers.

One member of the CAB board strongly denounced the initial Pan Am recommendation because of Braniff's strength in the Southwest.

The Pan Am proposal called for four flights a week during the summer and three a week during the winter.

Henry Stuart, chairman of DFW Board, cheered the selection of Braniff.

"The Braniff proposal gives us the frequency of service we all like."

Farmers Donate Blood, Explain Goals

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A farmer's lifeblood trickled, red drop by red drop, into a small plastic container.

Wesley Bennight of Dimmitt watched and worried — but the frown on his face was due to the frail state of his economic lifeline, his farm, not the physical essentials he was giving away.

Bennight was the first of a steady flood of striking farmers who donated blood throughout Wednesday at Lubbock's South Plains Blood Services.

They had come to town, reportedly 2,000 strong, to get help, and then decided to give it while they were here, too.

And their help was being put to immediate use — the first of their donations going to a child leukemia victim at Methodist Hospital who needs blood not more than four hours old.

While tractors ringed the Blood Services building at 415 Ave. R and bluejeaned, overcoated men waited in line, they tried to explain to blood unit employees what their strike is aiming at. "One hundred per cent parity is not a guaranteed profit. It's just asking a fair price for our products."

"Why should we, the farmers, use energy that we (Americans) need elsewhere to produce a surplus that we can't sell?" Bennight asked.

The 30-year-old cotton and corn planter has been on his own in the farm business for only two years. "And I'm $26,000 worse off now than when I started, and that's not even counting the $60,000 I spent to buy equipment to get started," he said.

Farmers do not want government handouts — in fact, they wish the government would stay out of their business, Bennight stated. "We'll produce what we can sell. But when you produce and the government then keeps you from selling. They told us to plant fencerow-to-fencerow a couple of years ago and then embargoed it after we planted," he said.

"We're going to produce what the world needs and what we can sell. But would you work if you knew you weren't going to get a paycheck? Would you put in a crop if you knew ahead of time you wouldn't be able to sell it?" Bennight asked.

He emphasized that by asking for 100 per cent parity farmers are only demanding a fair marketplace price for their Bennight was echoed by Dick Fellers of Hereford, a farmer who says he cut back from 1,900 acres last year to only 640 acres of corn, milo, wheat and sugar beets this year because he felt it economically useless to plant all the land.

"I have been solvent at the bank for the last nine years. But this year I owe them activities for the nationwide farm strike for about a week, Fellers said Wednesday is the first time he has joined in.

"I actually borrowed to come in today. With my business and the bank and the financial situation, some might wonder if I can afford to do it, but it's time I helped get us some attention."

"We have kinda set back and depended on government officials or others to take care of our business too long. We raised the crops and then went to town and took what they'd give us for it, rather than telling them what we needed," Fellers declared.

He, too, stressed that "100 per cent parity will not guarantee anybody a profit." It will only guarantee farmers a fair market price for their products which will allow them to "hope for a profit after weather, insects and other variables have taken their toll," he said. "We don't want the government in the thing at all, if we can help it," Fellers stated.

Another farmer, Bob DuLaney of Dimmitt, said, "Basically, we want the government completely out of things, except to say what they want us to raise for domestic and foreign markets.

"It's completely incorrect when people think that 100 per cent parity is asking the government to give us the same thing as a guaranteed annual wage," he said.

DuLaney tried to sum up a layman's explanation of parity: "At the year parity was set, it took one bushel of corn to buy a pair of shoes. The bushel of corn should do the same thing now, the price we get for corn needs to be equalized so that our buying power would stay good."

DuLaney was the informal organizer of the blood donation project for Blood Services, which furnishes blood to 41 hospitals in the South Plains area, an approximate 120-mile radius around Lubbock.

He couldn't figure out he had ended up in charge.

"I just walked in to the Red Raider Inn headquarters room about 7 a.m. this morning and they turned it over to me," said DuLaney, looking puzzled.

products. When you face weather catastrophes such as hail, wind and drought, plus insects, plus crop diseases, and on top of that you've got low prices, where is there a chance for a profit? People who go to five-day week, 8-to-5 jobs get a paycheck without facing such uncertainties. "I've actually paid $13,000 a year for the privilege of having a job," he joked, though he wasn't smiling.

a fistful. I've got more than enough land and equipment for collateral for financing. But this year they said, 'Sorry, no way.'"

"They said they're sorry because they know there's no way with things as they are for me to make money next year, there isn't any margin," he said.

Though South Plains and Panhandle area farmers have been involved in regional

en by A-J photographers Paul Moseley and Milton Adams, a policeman, apparently keyed up over the potentially volatile situation, attempts to block Moseley from photographing a farmer arrested outside the newspaper offices. Moments later, in center

Strike Also Hard On Farmers

By MONA HARVEY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Anyone who thinks activities by striking farmers are just fun and games had better think again seemed the consensus of two dozen farmers reshaping the week's events over waffles and coffee.

For one thing, it is not fun to ride around in a tractor, trundling down highways, for days at a time.

Strikers who headed towards Lubbock from Plainview Tuesday bounced along at 10 mph, taking four hours for a 40-mile trip.

"The cabs on those tractors are not for luxury, like some people have been saying," a Dimmitt farmer said. Either cabs or a rollbar are needed on tractors these days as driver safety precaution in case one turns over. "And they're not very stable."

"The heaters in those cabs are not required but I wouldn't have traded mine for $500 last night," grinned Dick Shackelford of Dimmitt. "It was cold last night."

Shackelford drove one of the vehicles which surrounded The Avalanche-Journal early Wednesday delaying distribution.

"It wasn't bumper-to-bumper," he said. "Tractors don't have bumpers. But we were real close."

He further noted the ride was not uncomfortable, "just boring."

Shackelford, who has participated in the strike movement for two or three weeks, said he has not done as much as some others.

He was active in the Austin tractorcade to the Capitol. In Austin he received a traffic ticket. "I thought you could drive through a red light with a green tractor but you couldn't," he said. Later the vehicles were allowed a parade permit.

Shackelford said he is "not proud" of the picketing and closure of warehouses but it is a desperation move "because we're broke."

Farmers cannot even afford this strike, he noted.

"Tractor tires are built to travel on soft dirt. With those tractors parked on the asphalt," he waved towards the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center lot, "they're going to wear out about four times faster. And those rear tires cost $400 each."

"I don't want my banker to know about this," he quipped.

Shackelford, who says he is "half a million dollars in debt," had to refinance his land last year to take out a loan for new crops. "But that well can run dry."

Some farmers may be forced to take jobs in town, he said. He figures he could teach school but others may not be as well qualified for city jobs.

"I farm because I like it," he said. "I like the land."

He said he has learned that all types of farmers seem to be involved in the action, not just the grain farmers as he had first believed.

LONE PROTESTOR — As Wednesday drew to a close, striking farmers from across the South Plains began heading their tractors toward home. This tractor, driven by a farmer from Anton, was just one of many that left the Borden Company Dairy following an almost 24-hour blockade of the plant. Despite the farmer's attempts to halt all of the company's deliveries, Borden officials managed to transfer a three-day supply of milk to Plainview for distribution before the picket line arrived, farmers said. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I want to share with you something written by Robert N. Test, of the Cincinnati Post. I know you will find it as inspiring and as beautiful as I did. Sincerely yours — J.S.K., Atlanta

Dear J.S.K.: Beautiful indeed. I received permission today from the author to share his philosophy with my readers and here it is:

To Remember Me

The day will come when my body will lie upon a white sheet neatly tucked under four corners of a mattress located in a hospital busily occupied with the living and the dying. At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my deathbed. Let it be called the Bed of Life, and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face, or love in the eyes of a woman. Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain. Give my blood to the teenager who was pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play. Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist. Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that, someday, a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses and all prejudice against my fellow man.

If, by chance, you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever.

Dear Ann: Now that you have solved the most important problem in the world — how to hang toilet paper — will you advise me on the proper way to place the paper towels in the kitchen? Please hurry. My whole marriage depends on it. — Rolling With The Punches

Dear Rolling: Hang the paper towels the same way you hang the toilet paper, dear. Consistency is a virtue.

Dear Ann: You're going to decide this one. I'm too mad to think straight. I was browsing in a gift shop today and my sleeve accidentally brushed against a glass flower. It fell off the shelf and broke.

The saleswoman came over and said with a fake smile, "That will cost $8.95." I did not break the piece intentionally. Accidents DO happen. I told her so. She replied, "See the sign?" and pointed to something that read, "If you break it, it's yours." I did hand over $8.95 (plus tax!) but I feel as if I've been had. What would YOU do? — Steaming

Dear Steam: If I broke something in a store I'd offer to pay for it without being shown a sign. Of course it was not intentional, but people should expect to pay for their "mistakes."

As Reese points out, the commonest reason for not playing trumps immediately is that you want to ruff some of your losers in dummy.
After this hint it is easy to see that South should not touch trumps until he has done something about those two small diamonds in his hand.

LIFE-CYCLE COST
Estimate the "life-cycle cost" before buying any major appliance. Life-cycle cost is the purchase price of the appliance plus the operating cost during its average lifespan. Ask the dealer or manufacturer for this information, says Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Can he afford one round of trumps? No, although it is not too easy to see why he can't.
West holds the first trick with his jack of hearts and continues. South ruffs; cashes his ace of diamonds; ruffs a diamond; ruffs a heart to get back to his hand; ruffs his last diamond; leads dummy's 10 of trumps; overtakes; pulls trumps and eventually loses two of his three clubs.
Suppose he had led just one round of trumps before starting on ruffing diamonds. After he had ruffed his last diamond he would have had no way to get to his hand to draw trumps. He would try a heart and West would get to make his jack of trumps.

A Minnesota reader wants to know if we would open on notrump with:

He points out we have 16 high cards and stoppers in all four suits.

The answer is a resounding "no." When you have any singleton, the chances are so good that you should play in a suit that you should always start with a suit bid. This time the right opening is one diamond.

teachers try to reinforce proper behavior in order to help children gain self-confidence.
"We put demands on them they might not put on themselves otherwise, but we also make them learn things they wouldn't learn either," said Mrs. Blankenship.
Classes are kept small, and studies interrelated. If one teacher helps children learn the rooms of the house, another teaches them the furniture that goes in the rooms.
"Instead of getting a dose of everything, each class reinforces the others," noted Roger Rutherford, program coordinator.
The biggest problem is just getting these children enrolled, Rutherford said. "People seem to overlook the fact that children are handicapped from the time they are babies," Rutherford said, "but if training is started at an early age, children may be ready for first grade without having to suffer through work too difficult for them to do."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a radical mastectomy five years ago. About a year later my arm swelled up. I have learned to live with it, but about every six months or so the arm and hand get feversish. My doctor tells me to raise the arm, but it is very annoying. Can you tell me about this? — Mrs. L.D.

A complication of radical mastectomy (removal of a breast and nearby lymph nodes) is this arm swelling (edema). Let me try to explain why it happens.

The lymph system is part of the body's fluid collection and "drainage" mechanism, so to speak. When a part of it is disturbed these fluids may collect locally, leading to such swellings. Stagnation of lymph flow can cause a temperature rise.

Post-mastectomy patients should avoid infection and cuts, rashes, or any break in the skin that can lead to it. If a cellulitis (skin inflammation) develops, antibiotics to treat it are needed promptly.

You should also avoid carrying heavy objects, bruising, or any undue strain on the arm. Raising your arm is to help in releasing the fluid.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain briefly and in ordinary language just what the prostate gland does? How big is it, and where exactly is it located? — H.A.

It's a walnut-sized, roundish structure and it's located just at the outlet of the urinary bladder (the urethra). In fact, the urethra passes through the middle of the prostate and on to the penis.

The prostate produces a slightly alkaline fluid which increases during sexual stimulation. It contributes to the bulk of the semen released during ejaculation. The sperm are carried along in this semen. The secretions also nourish the sperm.

That's as short and as clear as I can make it. For further details of this gland and problems men encounter with it, see my booklet, "The Presky Prostate." If you'd like a copy, send a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to cover printing and handling to me: P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 66-year-old woman, in excellent health. On my last physical examination the doctor found my blood pressure was 160 over 95. I was told not to worry about it, just come back in two weeks for further checking.

However, I want to take any precautions necessary. I have been having slight headaches and a sort of wooziness in the mornings, also a slight pain in my legs and feet. I have gained about 12 pounds in about a year, and dieting doesn't seem to help. What do you suggest? — K.M.C.

The blood pressure reading is not considered terribly high for a woman your age. However, with your symptoms (headaches, wooziness) it can be significant. Most doctors nowadays take a cautious approach to high blood pressure problems unless an emergency is involved. It is wise to confirm readings, as your doctor will do in your next visit. If you have not reported the recent symptoms do so at that time.

With high blood pressure, even a slight one, an ounce of prevention now is worth a pound of cure later on. The recent campaign to detect high blood pressure has shown a decrease in strokes and heart attacks. Lose weight.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I understand that Dantrium is a new drug, so new, in fact, that I cannot find it in any reference books on medicine. What is it used for? Is it to be used with other medicines? — Mrs. E.C.

This is a trade name for dantrolene sodium. It's a muscle relaxer and has only been available for general use since 1976. Newly licensed drugs are defined along with uses and contraindications to use (when they are not to be used) in special supplements for doctors. In this specific case, any doses of tranquilizers or sedatives are lowered as the dantrolene sodium is increased. The chief use is to relieve muscle spasm and spasm pain.

Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Dizzy Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea, Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to him, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK — A day doesn't go by without a torrent of letters from viewers complaining about "Another World."

"What has happened to the show?" reads one typical letter. "It has gone from bad to worse. It seems the villains have come out of the woodwork and the storyline has gone to pot."

Head writer Harding Lemay's obsession with Executive Suite-type office backstabbing and power plays apparently alienated audiences more attuned to middle-class romantic tussles. These stories of business politics were fictionally convoluted, even though they stemmed from Lemay's own experiences as a book publishing executive as related in his much-praised and awarded 1971 memoir, "Inside. Looking Out."

Once the office intrigue plots were diminished, Lemay developed a story of an insidious man-servant, Sven, who manipulated his paramour, housemaid Helga (whose husband he had "done in"), and her daughter, Regine, to help take over the fortune of their boss, money magnate Mac Cory. In the process, Mac's much-beloved-by-viewers marriage to Rachel sank to the pits. This plot course also met with outraged viewer disapproval.

Add to that the fact that "AW" was collapsing under the weight of an excessive number of suddenly-appearing and equally suddenly vanishing peripheral characters. The result was audience confusion amid the lack of story focus.

But matters are changing. "It's getting better," is the consensus of those involved in the production. The show's writers are sprucing up their act by eliminating the peripheral people and concentrating on the show's core characters.

Among the recently removed is Molly Randolph, the poor country-cousin Frame sister. Molly had initially set her money-grubbing sights on wealthy Iris' son, Dennis, then latched onto Michael Randolph. Her roving eye for Cliff Tanner led to her downfall and departure.

The role of Molly was actress Rolanda Mendel's first paying acting job when she joined the show nearly a year ago. The daughter of Dutch-Jewish immigrants who fled Nazi persecution to live in Rye, N.Y., Rolanda supported herself with waitress jobs while attending Manhattan's Neighborhood Playhouse drama school. Her "AW" exit marks the latest hatching of members of the show's Frame family. With Steve dead, Emma back on the Chadwell farm, and Hanice and Sharlene wandering hither and yon, Willis, is the last of the once great and story-powerful Frames to remain in "AW's" Bay City.

The elimination of cumbersome characters and a recent intriguing murder, among other pot-boiling plot incidents, promises to lead "Another World" back on the track of its former glories.

Tune in tomorrow to see if it does.

Rolanda Mendel's departure from "AW" came at the same she accepted a Soap box magazine award as best actress in a teenage role, which she shared with Suzanne Davidson (Besty Stewart on "As the World Turns"). A star-studded award banquet in New York City also honored Jed Allan (Don Craig on "Days of Our Lives") and Susan Lucci (Erica Brent on "All My Children") as best actor and actress in adult roles. "Days of Our Lives" was named best daytime serial, best ensemble acting, and best written story.

While he's causing all sorts of headaches as Brian Kendall on "One Life to Live," teenager Stephen Austin is doing double-duty as the prince in the New York City Ballet's Yuletide extravaganza, "The Nutcracker." Steve, who has trained with the famed ballet company since he was a toddler, has performed the role the last few years. And he keeps to a rigid rehearsing schedule under the tutelage of his mother, who's a dance teacher.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN: THE RACE

Santa And The Pigwidgeen

(Synopsis: The Pigwidgeen refuses to lift the curse unless Claus beats him in a drinking bout. Tweedlekeys uses his wits and Claus wins the contest.)

By LUCRECE BEALE

After the drinking contest the Pigwidgeen stomped away and all the pygmies withdrew to ponder the awful fact that their king had lost.

Claus waited in the great hall. Patrick Tweedlekeys crawled out from under the table. "Where have you been?" cried Claus. Tweedlekeys lifted the tablecloth. Claus leaned over and saw a half empty vat of chocolate milk. A hose led from the vat to the urn the Pigwidgeen had drunk from.

"So that was why the urn was always full!" exclaimed Claus admiringly. "Precisely," replied the elf. "And now our wits together have twice defeated the Pigwidgeen and he must lift the curse."

But when the Pigwidgeen returned, he announced there would be still another contest. This time he would race Claus to the end of the rainbow and the winner would name his own reward.

Before Claus could protest the Pigwidgeen left the castle and raced toward the far distant spot where the rainbow ended.

The Pigwidgeen had put on magic boots which could take 100-mile steps and when Claus had barely started the Pigwidgeen was half-way there.

"It is useless!" moaned Claus. He leaned against the tree and gasped for breath.

At that moment one of the flying reindeer appeared in the woods. Quietly Claus approached him and gently rubbed his nose. He climbed on the reindeer's back and whispered softly, "Fly! Oh, please fly me to the end of the rainbow!"

The reindeer soared into the sky and in an instant came to earth at the spot where the rainbow came to an end. Hours later the Pigwidgeen came panting up. There was Claus sitting on a rock, calmly smoking his pipe.

"What kept you?" enquired Claus pleasantly.

Now the Pigwidgeen was mortified and sunk in gloom. But when they returned to the castle and Claus demanded that all curses be lifted, the Pigwidgeen declared there would be one last contest.

"And how do I know it will be the last?" demanded Claus. "Always you break your word and put me off."

The Pigwidgeen led Claus outdoors to a small round box in the middle of the lake of ice in front of the castle.

"This box holds all my sorcery," said the Pigwidgeen. "All my spells, charms, hoodoo, hexes, curses, incantations, enchantments and witchcraft."

"If you can lift the box, it will be yours and all my magic power will pass to you. If you lift it you will turn to stone. Agreed?"

Claus nodded solemnly. The box was very small. Even if it were filled with the lead he was sure he could lift it if only an inch from the ice.

Claus, on the reindeer's back, soared into the sky.

While the Pigwidgeen went away to call the pygmies to watch the contest, Patrick Tweedlekeys rushed up to Claus and cried, "It's a trick! The box is really the tip of the North Pole. No one on earth could lift it!" "What shall I do?" groaned Claus. The elf screwed up his face and pulled at his hair and twisted his ears. He was stirring up his wits.

At last he growled, "Go back to the castle and delay things as long as you can." With that he dashed away.

Tomorrow: Merry Christmas to All

Union Officials Promise To Testify

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A state district judge Wednesday allowed two union leaders mentioned in a court of inquiry into alleged wrongdoings in the Cameron County Manpower Program to spend Christmas at home on condition they answer some tough questions from prosecutors next week.

Judge Darrell Hester, who had said Tuesday he was prepared to order the arrest of Don and Clarence Gray, had the two brothers sign an agreement in open court Wednesday. The Grays agreed to waive non-self-incriminating rights and furnish information for a team of auditors and to appear next Wednesday before representatives of the FBI, Cameron County sheriff's department and the local district attorney.

Don Gray is the business manager of Harlingen Local 823 of the Plumbers and Pipefitters Union.

Witnesses in the inquiry have testified about the financial dealings involving union and federal Manpower funds handled by the Grays as union leaders.

On Tuesday, Hester had ordered the Grays to appear before them saying, "I have prepared and I am prepared to order the arrest of Clarence Gray and Don Gray being fully satisfied that they have committed any number of felony offenses. However, it is my understanding that the district attorney's office still believes that some meaningful statements will be furnished them by the Grays."

The Grays also agreed to furnish specific union and Manpower-related records to the auditors by noon Thursday.

"When we get to court, we'll find justice," said Don Gray before Wednesday's hearing. "This (court of inquiry) isn't justice. This has just scared a lot of people."

Buddy Wright, attorney for the two men, said there has been no indication of any criminal activity. "We are more than willing to go along with the request of the court," he said.

Don Gray said he still has the support of union membership and added, "I still represent the membership and they know all I have done has been for them."

After the Grays agreed to submit information and answer questions of investigators, the judge also said he would not order the arrest of 12 or 14 other persons, "who in my opinion the evidence shows have committed felonies. But I will not do so if I am not going to order the arrest of those two (the Grays) that I think have most profited in this sordid mess."

During testimony, S. T. Hyde, owner-operator of the Gulf Welding Supply Co. in Harlingen, testified that Don Gray invited him to a meeting three or four years ago at a union office where a scheme involving phony invoices was outlined.

James Parker, an investigator for the Cameron County district attorney's office, told the judge that Clarence Gray arranged for federally-paid Manpower trainees to build a private home.

Poignant Christmas Songs Created By Slaves

By GENE WHITE
Written for UPI

It was 1619. A Dutch vessel landed 20 African natives at Jamestown, Va. They were quickly bought up by the colonial settlers.

Fourth In A Series

This was the beginning of the African slave trade in the American colonies and the beginning of a body of music which gave us, "Rise Up, Shepherd, An' Foller" and "Go Tell It On the Mountain" that "Jesus Christ is Born."

For the next 250 years, slave ships loaded with Africans came to these shores. Her they were: suddenly cut off from their homeland, separated from their families, thrown into an alien culture, having to learn a strange language. Yet from these people a mass of noble music sprang.

The songs of the slaves — Negro spirituals — are unsurpassed among the folk songs of the world and unequalled in the poignancy of their beauty. Yet, slave songs about the nativity seldom are heard. The songs deal with the desolation, the fear, the loneliness, and at the same time the desperate hopes, which filled the hearts of southern slaves, eve at Christmastime.

Because most people do not understand the longings expressed in the spirituals of the black slave, we have not totally accepted. It is strange to our senses that a Christmas song would mix allusions to the shepherd's watch of the first Christmas with the plaintive cry of the slave for release, as in "Lis'en to de Lam's, all acryin'. I wan'ta go to heaven when I die."

There is another reason Christmas spirituals are not very popular: there just aren't very many of them. The Negro slave never sang many songs of Christmas.

Most slave songs are filled with imagery and offer a means of identification for the slave with the song's theme or message.

Most spirituals are songs of sorrow, songs of work songs of hope and heaven, songs of protest, songs of release or escape, songs of judgment for the sinner.

Only a scattered few were songs of the Nativity.

One of the reasons may be that Christmas Day was confusing to the slave, a day of special license having no religious significance. Another may be that Christmas, as celebrated by the "massa" for the family, was a sad reminder to slaves of all they had lost, as it might be to someone whose nearest loved one had died on Christmas.

Nevertheless, Christmas had some significance. For one thing,

Jesus was born of poor parents, something with which the slave could relate. And the slave's great hope, his only hope, was God. One of the best known of the Negro Christmas spirituals contains this plea for rest and release:

"When I was a seeker,
I sought both night and day,
I asked de Lord to help me,
An' He show'd me de way.
Go tell it on de mountain,
Over de hills an' everywhere,
Go tell it on the mountain,
That Jesus Christ is born."

A sad fact is that the individual spirituals cannot be attributed to one person. Each song, both words and melody, likely were formed in the mind of one person and modified slightly by the group as they sang in the fields. From an anonymous people came anonymous music.

There was a time when the Negro race would have been willing to let these songs die. Immediately following the emancipation, many Negroes revolted against everything connected with slavery.

Negro spirituals were oral literature in the true sense. When the songs no longer were sung by the people, they were nearly lost. However, a handful of pioneer collectors set down on paper the words and melodies during the first decade after the Civil War.

Quake Death Toll Climbs To 519

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The death toll from an earthquake that struck southeastern Iran's coal basin mounted Wednesday to at least 519 dead and 671 injured, the nation's relief agency reported. Many victims were said to be children trapped by collapsing mud-brick walls.

The quake struck an area 430 miles south of Tehran shortly before dawn Tuesday, devastating the villages of Sar-Astiyab, Gisk and Bab-Tangol and damaging at least 13 other villages. The damage in some villages did not become known until reconnaissance helicopters flew over them early Wednesday.

Two C-130 Hercules transport planes ferried tents, blankets, clothing, food and medical supplies from Tehran to the stricken area, where thousands of miners and their families were homeless in subfreezing temperatures.

Mining operations ceased and it was feared steel production would be halted at the nation's big mill at Isfahan.

The new death count — up from 343 Tuesday — was reported by Ismail Gilanpour, a spokesman for the Red Lion and Sun, the Iranian counterpart of the Red Cross.

The survivors sobbed and beat themselves in anguish inside tents set up by the Red Lion and Sun as food prepared for them by relief workers was left to be eaten by stray dogs.

"Oh God! You took away my only son!" cried Mohammed Hussein as he beat his forehead and searched through the ruins of his former home. Hundreds of persons wailed as they searched for missing children, parents, wives or husbands.

Military and civilian rescue teams searched through rubble, broken doors and broken wooden beams for more bodies. The injured were taken to hospitals in Kerman and Zarand or to 11 field hospitals in the area.

Health Minister Sheikh Ullislamzadeh and the head of the Red Lion and Sun, Hussein Khatibi, directed operations at the scene.

The only foreigners reported killed were seven Afghan workers on a construction site near Zarand. Several hundred Americans were working 155 miles from the quake zone at Sarscheshmeh, helping develop Iran's first copper mine.

Prime Minister Jamshid Amouzegar was keeping Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi informed of rescue operations, officials said.

It was the most damaging quake to hit Iran since 1968, when an earthquake in the northeastern part of the country killed 12,000 persons.

The Red Lion and Sun said Tuesday's quake registered 6.2 on the Richter scale, but the U.S. Geological Survey recorded it at 5.5.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded by seismographs. An increase of one on the scale corresponds to a tenfold increase in magnitude. A quake registering 6 can cause severe damage in a populated area.

American frontiersman Daniel Boone was born in 1734.

QUAKE TOLL MOUNTS — Rubble fills the ruined streets of village of Sar-Astiyab, Iran Wednesday. The village is one of 16 hard-hit by an earthquake that shook the area 430 miles south of Tehran before dawn Tuesday. Officials said the toll had soared to at least 519 dead and 671 injured in the coal-mining area. (AP Laserphoto)

Dam Collapse Called Preventable

ATLANTA (AP) — Proper inspection could have spotted trouble at a dam before it collapsed Nov. 6, unleashing a 40-acre lake that tore through Toccoa Falls Bible College and killed 39 persons, a federal investigative board said Wednesday.

The report, however, said the board "could not determine a sole cause of failure" and fixed no blame for the collapse of the Kelley Barnes dam.

Robert L. Crisp Jr., of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, chairman of the board, said the 40-year-old earthen dam had not been properly inspected before it collapsed.

"I think a proper inspection would have indicated there was a problem with the dam," he told a news conference.

"Without rain, eventually something would have occurred. The dam suffered from some problems," including a slide on the downstream side, "and the factors seem to downgrade the integrity of the dam."

However, the old dam was poorly designed and inadequately maintained, the board said.

Investigators said the dam's downstream slope was covered with trees and brush; old pipes had not been plugged and a 1973 landslide was not repaired.

A landslide or "slope failure" appears to be a distinct possibility, the board said. The dam was "in generally poor condition before its collapse."

The dam broke early in the morning of Nov. 6, releasing a wall of water that swept down the normally picturesque creek across the small campus. Many of the 39 victims were children. All were associated in some way with the college.

Water rose in the lake behind the dam after several days of heavy rain. The dam broke while three men who had inspected the dam and decided to evacuate the area below were pounding on doors.

Diminishing Winds Still Whip Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The deadly winds howling through California's valleys slowed to 60 miles per hour Wednesday, and a misty rain helped contain a wind-whipped fire that has killed three men at an Air Force base.

Six other deaths have been blamed on the winds, which caused millions of dollars in property damage to towns of the San Joaquin Valley.

The winds, preceding a Pacific Ocean storm front, affected the state from extreme northern California to Mexico.

The devastation continued Wednesday, but the National Weather Service said the east and southeast 100 mph gusts that turned the San Joaquin Valley into a mustard-colored dust bowl Tuesday were down to 50 and 60 mph Wednesday.

They were expected to drop to 25-to-40 mph Wednesday night, with light rain, and to 15-to-25 mph by Thursday morning, forecasters said.

The rain was welcomed at Vandenberg Air Force Base, where firemen encircled a 5,000-acre brush fire that was still out of control. Firefighters from the Air Force and surrounding counties used bulldozers in an attempt to control the fire on the 98,400-acre base 50 miles northwest of Santa Barbara.

Killed Tuesday while fighting the fire were the base commander, Col. Joseph E. Turner, 48, a Virginia native and a Korea and Vietnam war veteran; Base Fire Chief Billy J. Bell, 44; and Assistant Base Fire Chief Eugene F. Cooper, 45.

The fire was one-third contained Wednesday morning, Inspector Chris Sprull of the Santa Barbara County Fire Department said. The winds were still strong enough to keep planes with fire-retardant chemicals grounded, said Air Force Sgt. Jim Schmidt of the base information office.

The other six deaths were separate traffic fatalities, three in the San Joaquin Valley, two in Northern California and one near San Diego.

The property damage was concentrated in the flat agricultural San Joaquin Valley area around Bakersfield. The City Council at Arvin, a farming town of 7,000, asked the state to declare it a disaster area. Electricity was cut off Tuesday, and the town suffered an estimated $1.25 million damage to homes, businesses and public facilities, said Jeff Cohen of the state Emergency Service Office.

Water was short because well water could not be pumped during the electricity shutoff, said Sam Mangun of the Arvin-Edison Water Storage District. He said sand had drifted four feet high in his firm's parking lot.

Electricity was restored to much of the town Wednesday morning, but in nearby Bakersfield 38,000 of the area's 175,000 customers were without power and many steel power towers were reported down, Cohen said.

In the Taft area southwest of Bakersfield, visibility was cut to 50 feet in the blowing dust.

Far to the north, in Humboldt County, 65,000 of 100,000 homes and businesses were without electricity and a state of emergency was declared in the county.

Many roads were closed for the second day Wednesday, although Interstate 5, the main artery through the central part of the state, was opened around mid-morning.

Fire fighters assisted police in rescuing stranded motorists, some of whom had been sitting in their cars for 24 hours, said Kern County Fire Capt. Ron Marshall. Three bulldozers were being used to cut through the dust drifts.

Mishap Paralyzes Publisher's Wife

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union Leader, says his wife Nackey was paralyzed from the waist down from injuries received in a highway accident Saturday in Nevada.

The Union Leader quoted Loeb on Wednesday as saying his wife was paralyzed, unable to speak, and breathing with a respirator.

Mrs. Loeb, 53, was reported in serious condition at the Washoe Medical Center in Reno. Her husband, 72, also hospitalized, was reported in satisfactory condition.

The Loebes were injured when their four-wheel drive wagon skidded on ice, went off the road and overturned on a highway near Reno.

The Loebes have a house in the Reno area.

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is predicted today for Michigan, Indiana and Ohio, with rain forecast for northern California and most of Oregon, according to the National Weather Service. (AP Laserphoto)

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE
 NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

Warming Trend Continuing

Temperatures are expected to climb into the 60s today in Lubbock as the warming trend which nipped winter's first South Plains snow in the bud continues.

The National Weather Service looked for high temperatures today in the low 60s, with variable high cloudiness and southwesterly winds 15 to 20 miles per hour.

After a dip into the mid-30s tonight, temperatures are expected to reach 70 by Friday.

No precipitation was forecast.

The warming trend had spread from Amarillo through Lubbock and Midland Wednesday as the high pressure front which brought brief snow to West Texas Monday pushed deep into South Texas and the to the east, diminishing in strength steadily.

The state was expected to warm up today.

Parents Fret Effects Of Tingly Candy

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A sugary powder called "Space Dust" which causes a mild tingling on the tongue has caused a mild onslaught of inquiries from parents concerned that it may be harmful.

"The number of calls we've had from this has been fantastic," said Robert Bartz, district director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, who has been assuring callers that Space Dust is only a harmless candy.

"It's creating more phone calls for us than banning saccharin."

Some parents complained that Space Dust, a carbonated powder with the same crackling taste as carbonated beverages, gave their children headaches or sore throats when they consumed "excessive" quantities, Bartz said.

One state judge here told a television interviewer Tuesday that the powder might encourage children to experiment with narcotics.

But Bartz said Space Dust was test marketed a year ago in Seattle, Wash., without problems and has passed extensive tests by the FDA.

"The concern over this appears to be limited to this area," Bartz said. "We had a national staff meeting on Tuesday and I raised the question but no one seems to be getting any inquiries except Houston, where they only had a few."

Jack Whiteman, public communications manager for General Foods Corp. of White Plains, N.Y., said the firm's product is being test marketed in several areas, including the mid-South, where it was introduced on Dec. 1.

County Hospital To Post Bids For Equipment

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Smarting from charges of bidding irregularities, the Lubbock County Hospital District has decided to play it safe on future purchases of equipment for the county's Health Sciences Center Hospital.

From now on, the district's board of managers has ordered, staff recommendations on awarding bids will be posted along with agendas of upcoming board meetings.

This will allow bidders to know in advance who is likely to get each contract — and give disgruntled bidders a chance to express their gripes to the board before a vote is taken.

Also, on advice from their attorneys, board members have decided for the time being at least not to buy a $50,000 patient-monitoring alarm system from a manufacturer that has been involved in an earlier purchasing controversy.

Executive director Gerald Bosworth and the board's finance committee had wanted to purchase the system outright from Hewlett Packard. But the full board delayed that until competitive bids are solicited from other companies.

The board's precautions on future purchases follow a dispute over the district's decision to buy from Hewlett Packard a physiological monitoring system, sophisticated machines for keeping tabs on the vital signs of patients to be served at the county's 245-bed teaching hospital, set to open Feb. 1.

Of the several bids on physiological monitoring systems, Hewlett Packard agreed to supply the equipment for $584,984, and a competitor, American Optical Medical Division, for $472,664.

However, when evaluated for technical quality, the Hewlett Packard equipment rated a nine on a 10-point scale, and American Optical, an eight.

The hospital district decided to buy the Hewlett Packard machines. To bring the cost down, the district reduced the size of the package by about 29 percent, but there nevertheless remained a $112,000 difference between the Hewlett Packard system and a comparable-size American Optical system.

American Optical's local representative has protested that bid award, accusing the district of numerous irregularities.

That protest seemed to be on the mind of Jack Flygare and some other board members in advocating changes in the bidding procedure.

Typically, bids are opened by the staff prior to board meetings, and the staff sends its recommendation to the board for approval.

Flygare asked that a summary of bids and the staff's recommendations be available to bidders before board meetings, by including that information in pre-meeting agendas.

"I'd like for them to know the staff recommendations in advance of the meeting," he said.

The other purchasing matter taken up by the board this week concerned an "arrhythmia monitoring system," which ties in with the physiological monitoring system.

The latter monitors heart rates and other signs, putting them on a television-like scope. The arrhythmia monitoring system actually monitors the scope, sounding a three-level alarm when there are significant, dangerous changes in a patient's condition.

The alternative to the arrhythmia monitoring system is to staff the monitoring area with scope technicians around the clock. Hospital district administrators said this alternative would be less accurate and would cost $31,500 to $63,000 in salaries a year.

The proposed arrhythmia monitoring system would cost about $50,000.

Bosworth had recommended that the district buy the system outright from Hewlett Packard, to ensure that it will be compatible with the Hewlett Packard physiological monitoring system.

The board and its legal counsel, though, questioned that arrangement. They feared it may make the district vulnerable to further charges of irregularities.

So the board this week voted to seek competitive bids on an arrhythmia monitoring equipment.

EMS System Moves To New Station

The Lubbock County Hospital District's public ambulance system will start making runs today out of a new station located at West Texas Hospital, 1401 Ninth St.

The district-operated Emergency Medical Services (EMS) system will move its Station No. 1 from a county-owned building at 10th Street and Avenue G, to West Texas Hospital beginning at 9 a.m. today.

Lubbock County commissioners had asked the hospital district to vacate the 10th Street facility so that it can be converted to a central maintenance garage for county vehicles.

West Texas Hospital is providing EMS space, including sleeping quarters for emergency medical technicians and parking area for the ambulance units, at no charge.

The hospital district had been paying the county a monthly rent of $400 for the 10th Street site, and district administrators — before West Texas' offer — feared they might have to shell out even more money to lease a privately owned location.

C. Arthur Wardner, West Texas Hospital administrator, called the agreement between his institution and the hospital district a "joint effort by hospitals in extending to the community a reliable health-care delivery system. Money saved by taxpayers by not having to pay rent for a facility of this type will be returned to them in services rendered by EMS."

He suggested that the savings might be applied toward training emergency medical technicians as paramedics — something EMS officials have long wanted to do.

Stuart Haggard, EMS coordinator for the hospital district and emergency services coordinator for the county's Health Sciences Center Hospital, said, "Locating EMS Station No. 1 at West Texas Hospital will provide a professional atmosphere for our emergency medical technicians."

"It also will contribute to the rapport with physicians and nurses working in the hospital emergency room."

West Texas Hospital has had a 24-hour emergency room for about nine months and has been included as a hospital "in rotation" for EMS patients since Oct. 24.

Also, West Texas is one of two hospitals in the city with direct voice linkage through a radio communications system with EMS ambulances in the field. St. Mary's, whose emergency room is temporarily closed to EMS for renovation, also is tied into that communications network.

Putting an EMS station at West Texas Hospital will not affect the procedure for determining where emergency patients will be taken.

Hospital district officials said patients will continue to be taken to the hospital emergency room of their choice.

If they have no preference, patients will be taken to the hospital on rotation — currently, either Methodist or West Texas. Later, St. Mary's and the Health Sciences Center Hospital will be added to the rotation.

Haggard also said Wednesday that EMS Station No. 2, now located in rented facilities at 19th Street and Orlando Avenue, will be moved to the Health Sciences Center Hospital complex, perhaps early next year.

The hospital district will continue to lease a building for Station No. 3 at 48th Street and Avenue Q.

Haggard said relocation of the two sta-

Optimists Launch Royce Phillips Fund

Monterey Optimist Basketball Wednesday presented a check for $500 to the Royce Phillips fund at Texas Bank.

Phillips, 22, was killed early Saturday in an automobile crash at the intersection of University and Indiana Ave. His wife is eight months pregnant and has no hospitalization insurance.

"Our participation was based on the contributions the Phillips family has made in all youth sports in Lubbock, not just in basketball," an Optimist spokesman said. "Royce was extremely generous with his time in assisting with various programs in the city and, in this small way, the Monterey Optimist Basketball organization wishes to express its appreciation."

The fund was started by the surgery department at Methodist Hospital, where Phillips was employed. It is being administered by the Texas Bank.

Nations Leave Oil Prices Unchanged

CARABALLEDA, Venezuela (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ended its semi-annual meeting Wednesday without a decision on whether to raise crude oil prices. In effect, this means a price freeze until the cartel holds another price-setting meeting.

The next regularly scheduled semi-annual meeting of OPEC oil ministers is set for June 15, but an OPEC spokesman said an extraordinary meeting could be convened at any time. Some ministers mentioned the possibility of calling a special price meeting in about three months. The OPEC minister could also backdate any increase they decide on at a later date.

Spokesman Hamid Zaheri did not elaborate on whether or when a meeting might be held. The communique issued after the meeting said only that the regular meeting was scheduled for June.

Despite their inability to settle the oil price question, the windup of the two-day session at this resort outside Caracas was "very friendly and cordial," a Venezuelan press officer said.

A Saudi-led bloc pressed for a 1978 freeze on the current price of $12.70 for a 42-gallon barrel. It was opposed principally by Iraq, Libya and Algeria, which demanded hikes ranging up to 23 percent.

Experts calculate that every 10 percent increase in the OPEC price costs U.S. motorists one cent more per gallon at the gasoline pump.

The United Arab Emirates minister, Mana Saeed Otaiba, told a news conference Tuesday that unanimity was possible only if the 13 ministers agree to hold the line on prices. He said his government would freeze oil prices unilaterally if the OPEC majority demanded an increase.

Otaiba gave three reasons for a freeze: the world economy has not recovered enough to bear the effects of a price increase; inflation produced by such a hike would hit developing countries harder than the industrialized world, and a price increase is unrealistic since there is a current production surplus of some 2 million barrels of oil daily.

The Iraqi-led price hawks said an increase is necessary to counter the effects of inflation on the prices of goods they buy from the industrialized countries.

The OPEC price-setting meeting in Doha, Qatar, last December, split on the price issue, with Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates adopting a lower price than the OPEC majority. Libyan Oil Minister Ezzedin Mabrouk, who said his country favored at least a 10 percent increase, had predicted a similar split this year. Otaiba said he would not be the only holdout for a price freeze. Iran was also known to be against an increase.

The conference's first working session Tuesday was delayed for hours as Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez and his oil minister met individually with the other oil ministers in an attempt to avert a repetition of last year's split.

Perez was instrumental in bringing OPEC members back to a uniform price after that price disagreement in which 11 of the members settled on a 10 percent increase in January and 5 percent in July. But Saudi Arabia and the UAE refused to go above 5 percent.

After a peacemaking tour of the Middle East by Perez, the Saudis and the UAE raised their increase to 10 percent in July while the others abandoned the additional 5 percent they had planned.

White Eyed For New Demo Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Agriculture Secretary John White has emerged as the leading candidate to succeed Kenneth Curtis as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, informed sources said Wednesday.

White is one of three candidates President Carter is said to be considering for the post, which Curtis resigned after less than a year.

Sources who asked not to be named identified the other candidates as former California party chairman Chuck Mannatt and White House aide Timothy Kraft.

The sources said Mannatt is handicapped by his past support for California Gov. Jerry Brown, who challenged Carter for the Democratic nomination in 1976 and is considered a possible challenger in 1980.

Kraft was one of Carter's most successful field organizers in 1976, but the sources said he does not want to leave the White House, where he is Carter's appointments secretary.

That leaves White, 52, who served from 1951-77 as Texas's commissioner of agriculture. As the second-ranking official in the federal Agriculture Department, he has been the department's chief day-to-day administrator.

White has ties to the farm vote and to party liberals, having served as Texas co-chairman of the 1972 presidential campaign of Sen. George McGovern. He is regarded as an astute politician and a good manager, the sources said.

White said Wednesday, "Wherever the president feels I'll serve best, I'll go, and go gladly. But I want to make it clear that I'm happy with what I'm doing, and the job (as committee chairman) hasn't been offered to me."

Curtis, a former governor of Maine, served less than a year in the party post before informing Carter he wanted to quit.

"I'd like to do something else with my life," Curtis said earlier this month when his resignation was revealed, agreeing that the chairmanship was "a lousy job."

Curtis and White House spokesman Jody Powell denied that the resignation was caused by sniping at the chairman by White House staffers. Curtis said one of his chief headaches was the party's debt, which has been reduced this year from $3.8 million to $2.5 million, according to party treasurer Joel McCleary.

McCleary said Carter has agreed to participate in at least five party fund-raisers next year, which he hopes will erase the debt and provide money for congressional candidates in the 1978 election.

Thieves Hit Tourists During Trips To Rome

ROME (UPI) — Jerked off her feet and dragged behind the roaring motorcycle, the frail, 83-year-old woman hung onto her purse until she felt the pain of her right hip fracturing.

Betty W. Gardner of St. Louis, Mo., collapsed moaning on the ground and the two thieves on the motorcycle grinned and sped away to divide the spoils from her handbag.

Mrs. Gardner's autumn tour of sunny Italy ended nine days later when she died in a Rome hospital.

The Italian press, possibly conscious of the importance of the tourist trade to Italy, carried no mention of either the attack or her death.

It wasn't, after all, very unusual.

Purse snatchers, usually working in pairs on a motorbike, strike every 45 minutes in Italy, according to the Central Institute of Statistics.

Most of the victims are foreign tourists.

In Rome alone, more than 3,600 purses will be snatched by the end of the year at an average rate of 10 a day.

Nearly 1,200 of those victims will be Americans, according to the U.S. consulate.

"We get about 60 people in here every week at the peak of the tourist season — all with the same story," said one U.S. official. "A motorcycle comes by with two men on board and the guy in the back grabs the purse out of the woman's hand or the jacket folded over the man's arm."

"Those, of course, are only the people who lose their passports in the attack. The actual number robbed is much higher, but we only keep records on those who require a new passport."

The British embassy receives four complaints each day from its citizens in Rome during the warm months. The Swedish embassy gets reports of only two robberies a day but says, "we don't have as big a problem as the other embassies since most Swedish tour agencies warn their clients in advance of the dangers here."

One of the least attacked groups is the Japanese — with an average of only 23 victims a month.

"Because of language problems, most Japanese tourists travel in large groups and spend a good deal of their time in Rome on tour buses," said one Japanese diplomat. "Those who get attacked are the ones who stray off on their own."

American consulate records show that more than half the attacks are directed against women more than 45 years of age.

"They go after the people least likely to fight back," said one consular officer. "Once they pick a victim they don't care what they have to do to get the bag — break her leg, her hip, her collar bone, her arm or dislocate her shoulder. That's how we hear about a lot of these cases — from the hospital."

The thieves are not only ruthless, they are also often sadistic.

"I was taking an evening stroll when they hit me," said a 63-year-old American woman who asked not to be identified. "No one came to help me and the motorcycle made a U-turn and came back."

They sat there for a full minute dangling the purse in front of me, just out of reach, and laughing at my efforts to grab it back. Then they left," she said. "It was so humiliating I felt almost as if I had been raped."

For many tourists, the purse snatchers turn a Roman holiday into a nightmare.

Karen Mazur, 24, sat in the U.S. consulate trying to get a collect call through to her father in Whittier, Calif. Her hands were trembling.

"They got everything," she said. "My sister's passport and mine, $3,000 in travelers checks, the numbers of the travelers checks, $300 in cash, our Eurail passes, our driver licenses, my camera, eyeglasses and all the credit cards."

"Karen had everything because her bag was bigger," said her sister, Candy McDonald. "We never expected it. It was broad daylight. It was noon."

"We screamed and ran after them until we couldn't run anymore," said Karen. "We flagged down a police car but they just shrugged."

"I wish now that we had skipped Rome

— our vacation is ruined and we're only halfway through."

"I never want to come back here again," nodded Candy.

Matt Andrea, a city planner from Washington, D.C., was on a photography vacation taking pictures of Rome's architectural wonders — until the bag containing his precious architectural camera lenses was snatched.

"There are 54 people on my tour," he said. "Within three days of getting to Rome, nine of us had been robbed."

"I always thought of Rome as the center of civilization, but it really isn't very civilized."

One British woman was overheard offering a surrusion to a friend who had complained of "feeling like I'm the prey and there are hunters all around me waiting for me to let my guard down."

"Maybe it's time tourists stopped coming to Rome for a while," said the woman. "Maybe if we just all stayed away they'd be concerned enough to clean those thieves out."

Truckers Run African Mercy Convoys

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Jacques Laurent says there's nothing like sailing a 13-ton truck through the sands and rock of an African desert.

He's done it 10, maybe 12 times in the past eight years, always with his buddies and always with a purpose beyond his sheer lust to go.

Laurent, 45, and his friends have formed a convoy corps that makes overland hauls to Africa, at no charge, whenever there's a need.

Guy Waegheenaere, 32, a Belgian army paratrooper, has been in most of Laurent's convoys since the two met on the way to Dakar, Senegal, in 1969.

"The better the project, the more time I can get off from the Ministry of Defense," Waegheenaere said, explaining how he manages to pull three and four month leaves almost every year.

For Laurent, it's easy. As a self-employed heating repairman in Liege, Belgium, he works when he wants. "My wife, she says nothing," he said. "I have this passion to travel and she understands."

It may have started as a passion to travel but something more motivates them now.

Back in 1969 when Laurent was doing "nothing but working," the head of a Liege auto club asked him to guide some 250 young people on an overland trip to Dakar. Waegheenaere was handling logistics.

Five 13-ton trucks, an ambulance, a Land-Rover and 26 cars spent two months on the open road and 10 days in Dakar and Laurent was hooked.

Waegheenaere got started two years earlier when he and 34 other Belgian soldiers answered an officer's plea for volunteers to cart 27 tons of grain and other supplies to the village of Ounianga Kebir, south of the Tibesti Mountains in Chad. The officer had stopped at the village on an east-to-west Africa trip a few years earlier. He promised the people he'd be back with help.

Laurent took a group of students in two Land-Rovers on a three month trip through Mali, Senegal, Niger, Upper Volta and Nigeria in 1970 and came back to Belgium to leave a month later with a some doctors and social scientists for a study of the Toumbous tribe in Niger.

"Since then it's been about one a year for us," Waegheenaere said.

Three years later their best friend, a pilot, was killed in a crash over mountains in northern Iraq. Laurent, Waegheenaere and five other paratroopers went to search for the body. They brought it back to Belgium for burial.

"He was our leader, our friend. What could we do?" Waegheenaere said.

"That was when the traveling became important for us. That was when we formed our own organization."

It was 1973 and drought parched most of West Africa. The men decided they needed to help.

They made speeches and gave slide shows in Belgium and Luxembourg to raise money and bought four World War II-vintage, four-ton U.S. Army trucks for $1,000 apiece.

"We loaded more than six tons on each truck," Waegheenaere said. "The Common Market gave us five tons of sugar and five tons of milk and we worked constantly for a month to get ready to go."

In July they left for Niger. "It took us a month to get there and we traveled two months in the country, distributing the goods."

"God it was hot. I lost 22 pounds and so did my friend. Ten men left on the trip with us and only four stayed till the end."

two of the trucks and put the parts inside the other trucks. They raised the money for fuel and spare parts.

And, as on all of their trips, they themselves "lived off the land." Companies donated their food and they bedded down in the trucks.

The latest trip was a spring convoy to deliver three trucks for a non-governmental organization project in Bayad al Arab, a village south of Cairo across the Nile from Beni Suef.

They were supposed to go on to deliver five more trucks to a Belgian couple's village development project in Ethiopia but Sudan would not assure them safe passage so they canceled that.

"We always do the trips for a humanitarian reason," Waegheenaere said. "And we always give directly to the people — not to intermediaries."

"It's a great feeling of freedom. It is to do something concrete, something interesting..."

Holiday Blues, Allergy Linked

By United Press International
Dr. H. L. Newbold believes in allergies as much as tykes believe in Santa.

"Some holiday blues might just be allergic reactions to party food or Christmas trimmings," Newbold said in an interview with New York.

He even said if there were a reindeer named Rudolph who had a red nose, there's a chance the rosy proboscis came from an allergy to Christmas trees or eggnog.

Newbold, a New York psychiatrist who now is into nutrition and allergies, formerly taught at Northwestern Medical School.

His forays into the food and environmental allergy field make him believe such hidden allergies even can make a person fat — in addition to itchy or depressed.

He has discovered allergies to Christmas greens can make a susceptible person short of breath, depressed or itchy from a sudden rash.

Sugar, eggs, milk, and wheat usually are involved in the holiday fare, Newbold said, and can make persons allergic to them feel very blue.

"Eggnog is the piece de resistance when it comes to party fare linked to allergic-induced depression," according to the doctor.

"It's got eggs, sugar, milk. Just loading up on other party fare — candy, cookies, alcoholic beverages, cheeses — can be enough to push a formerly non-allergic person over the line for the first time."

"I frankly think a lot of holiday blues is depression linked to a food allergy."

Newbold said he has seen people "flip out" when struck by a food allergy.

After that they made deliveries of trucks and goods for "Europe Third World," a volunteer group of Common Market employees who support projects in the third world, and several Belgian nongovernmental development groups.

In 1975, they wrote to friends they had made in Upper Volta to get a shopping list of what was needed most.

They got 10 tons of medicine and other goods donated along with eight trucks, all worth about $50,000.

With only six drivers, they dismantled

U.S. Pop Art Display Startles Russians

MOSCOW (UPI) — An exhibition of American painting has brought Pop Art and Super Realism to the Soviet Union — to the bafflement of some Soviet viewers.

"It looks more like an ad than a work of art," art student Alexander Sokolov, 25, said of Andy Warhol's giant silk screen series of Elvis Presley.

"I like the frame. The painting? It has little in common with art," painter Boris A. Pinskihasovich, 63, said of Ed Ruscha's "The Los Angeles County Museum on Fire."

The show, called "Representations of America," opened to the general public last week at the Pushkin Museum. After two months in Moscow it will travel to Leningrad and Minsk.

The 85 paintings — more than half of them from New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art — cover a range of American art from Winslow Homer to Andrew Wyeth and Andy Warhol.

They were brought to the Soviet Union by Henry Geldzahler, curator of 20th century art at the Metropolitan.

"They asked us to send over a show of realism. I tried to do it. Our direction of realism is to stretch it as far as it will go," said Geldzahler, who was recently named New York City's commissioner of cultural affairs.

Geldzahler said he sent Soviet officials photographs of the paintings he selected and the only changes they requested were the addition of a nude by Leon Kroll and works by three Russian-born artists, Rafael Soyfer, Ben Shahn and John Graham.

The elephant was first used as the symbol of the Republican Party in the United States in 1874.

Stocking Stuffer For Smokers

By United Press International
Here's a Christmas stocking stuffer idea for all worried over someone they love who won't cut out cigarettes. It's a "holiday check list" from the Harvard Medical School in Cambridge, Mass.

Just cut out the check list for smokers, detailed here, roll it, tie a ribbon around it, mark it with love and put it in your smoker's Christmas stocking.

The check list from the medical school's Department of Continuing Education is published in the December "Harvard Medical School Health Letter."

"Given the unequivocal fact that cigarette smoking is this nation's number one injurious personal habit," it is time to list all the dangers posed by inhaled tobacco smoke, starts the "Holiday Check List."

"As you (the smoker) proceed down the following list — much as you would check off a list of holiday chores — you might conclude that the best gift you could give yourself is the decision to stop smoking."

"Smokers expose themselves to over 1,000 different chemicals each time they light up and increase the risk of:

... LUNG CANCER — "Up to a 24-fold greater chance of heavy smokers developing this number one cancer killer (versus non-smokers) not to mention an increased chance of developing mouth, lip, voicebox, pancreas and urinary bladder cancer."

... HEART ATTACK — "A two-to-three times greater chance of dying from a heart attack than a non-smoker, and given the fact that 675,000 Americans will die of a heart attack next year, a doubling or tripling of the risk is no small item."

... EMPHYSEMA — Chronic obstructive lung disease marked by difficulty in breathing with even minor exertion. Nineteen times more common in smokers versus non-smokers. The most common life-threatening chronic disease in America and almost a sure bet in a heavy smoker who lives long enough."

... STILLBIRTHS AND SICK INFANTS — "A twofold increase in risk for spontaneous abortions (miscarriages) in smoking mothers. Children born to smoking mothers weigh 200 grams less on average than children born to non-smokers. Studies in Britain and Israel show that infants of mothers who smoke are more likely to be admitted to the hospital during the first year of life for bronchitis or pneumonia."

Commission Warns Consumers Of Unsafe Christmas Lights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Purchasers of replacement bulbs for Christmas lights were advised Wednesday to inspect them for a protruding wire at the base that could cause the bulbs to shatter.

The advice came with the Consumer Product Safety Commission's announcement that Market Research Imports, Inc., of Incline Village, Nev., is voluntarily withdrawing from sale certain imported replacement bulbs made in Taiwan.

The bulbs have a thin strand of wire approximately one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch long, which may protrude from the soldered tip at the base of the bulb, the commission said.

It said the defect, which poses a fire or electrical shock hazard, may be corrected by simply snipping off the protruding wire with a pair of scissors or pliers. Or the consumer may choose to return the bulbs to the place of purchase for exchange or refund.

Two models of bulbs are subject to the defect and are identified on the package as item No. LC-9004, size 9 1/4 and item No. LC-7004, size 7 1/4. The words, Replacement Bulbs, MRI, also appear on the package.

The bulbs were sold four to a package for about $1 or less nationwide.

Other distributors may have imported the same bulbs from Taiwan and may be selling them under different brand names, the commission said. It advised consumers to inspect all replacement bulbs before installing them.

More than 2,200 injuries from holiday decorations were treated last year in hospital emergency rooms across the country, the commission said. Of these, one-third were from Christmas lights.

The agency cautioned consumers to look for broken or cracked sockets on each light set and to discard the set if any are found. It also advised them to look for frayed wires, loose connections and exposed bare wires and to repair or throw away any set showing any of these potential trouble spots.

Careful handling of lights while unpacking decorations or repacking them will reduce the chance of damaging a good set of lights, it said.

Modification Program Stirs Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials testified Wednesday that overcoming a major problem of the C-5A cargo plane at a projected cost of $1.3 billion is an essential part of a balanced program for improving the nation's military airlift capability.

In response to critical questioning by Sen. William Proxmire, Air Force Maj. Gen. Charles F. G. Kuyk Jr. said that during the first 30 days of an enemy attack in Europe, the C-5A could deliver major combat equipment accounting for 35 to 40 percent of the Army's firepower.

Kuyk gave this firepower estimate after saying the exact numbers of tanks and big artillery pieces were classified, drawing a protest from Proxmire that the public could not evaluate the program unless it had the facts.

Proxmire, D-Wis., said at the outset of a hearing by a Senate-House subcommittee that the General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, also was skeptical about the C-5A repair after its study of the program.

tee on priorities and economy in government that expenditure of $1.3 billion to fix the wings of the C-5A was his candidate for the "biggest turkey" in the Pentagon's $11-billion program for increasing strategic mobility.

He told the Defense Department witnesses that the General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, also was skeptical about the C-5A repair after its study of the program.

Couple Pays $1,000 Reward For Cat

LA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — Bill and Shirley Ramser believe Christmas will be brighter because of their $1,000 reunion with their cat Laura.

"This is going to be a great Christmas," said Ramser after the missing pet was returned Tuesday night.

The holiday also will be brighter for Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bays, who found the cat in an empty garage in the apartment complex where they live.

The Ramsters put up their savings of $1,000 as a reward for the return of Laura after she escaped from a nearby pet boarding facility Dec. 10.

Chess Game Delayed By Player Dispute

BELGRADE (AP) — Soviet grandmaster Boris Spassky boycotted his world championship semi-final chess match with Viktor Korchnoi on Wednesday, escalating a procedural dispute over whether he has to sit and face Korchnoi at the chess board.
As a result, tournament organizers took the unusual step of postponing the 12th game of the 20-game match until Friday, but protests by both players were threatening to torpedo the tourney.
Spassky, a former world champion, is trailing the self-exiled Russian Korchnoi 6.5-3.5 with one adjourned game. The winner will play world champion Anatoly Karpov, another Russian, next year for the crown.
Spassky's protest apparently centered on the Yugoslav umpire's removal from the game area of a demonstration board that Spassky relied on for studying positions.
When Spassky had not shown up an hour after the 12th game was to begin Wednesday, organizers went into an emergency session to discuss the situation.
Because the one-hour limit had been exceeded, the game point normally would have gone to Korchnoi. But instead the organizers announced that the game would be played Friday.

Korchnoi earlier this week filed a protest with officials about Spassky's practice of leaving the game board and retiring to a specially screened-off box where he pondered his next move, studying the large, electronically operated demonstration board hanging on a wall.
Spassky began using this technique in the 10th game, which was adjourned, and continued it in the 11th game Monday, the first game he won during the tournament.

Sadat Finds Proposals 'Unacceptable'

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat met with Israel's defense minister Wednesday to discuss an Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Desert and said afterward, "Things are moving very fast." But he called Israel's reported proposals on the future of the West Bank "unacceptable."

The Sinai pullout is expected to be approved at Sadat's summit meeting here Sunday, Christmas Day, with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

Sadat's comments came at a session with reporters after his second day of talks with Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman.

His statement that Begin's West Bank proposals, as reported by the news media, were "unacceptable" indicated he was not backing down from his public stance that Israel must withdraw from all occupied Arab lands.

Begin has said he will offer "self-rule" for the Palestinian Arabs on the West Bank of the Jordan River while maintaining a military presence there.

The Egyptian leader has pledged repeatedly he will not abandon his Arab partners and conclude a separate deal with Israel. He told reporters Wednesday he talked with Weizman about "a comprehensive settlement" that would include Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and the Palestinians.

Some sources suggested, however, that Sadat and Begin want to forge ahead at an expanded peace conference in Cairo or at a reconvened Geneva conference with what is attainable in the Sinai.

An Egyptian source said Weizman and his Egyptian counterpart, Gen. Abdel Ghani el-Gamasy at their meetings discussed "maps, timetables and other details of a Sinai withdrawal."

Upon returning to Tel Aviv from his surprise 24-hour visit to Egypt, Weizman said "valuable spadework" was accomplished.

In related developments: —Oil-rich Saudi Arabia, an influential power in the region, expressed guarded support for Sadat for the first time during the current Arab dispute over his peace moves. In a newspaper interview broadcast over official Saudi radio, Prime Minister and Crown Prince Fahd called Sadat a "brother" and said the Saudis' "love and respect for the Egyptian people is beyond question."

—State-run Damascus radio reported that "hundreds of thousands" of Syrians demonstrated against Sadat in Aleppo, Syria's second-largest city. Many chanted slogans denouncing the Egyptian as a "traitor," it said. Syrian President Hafez Assad leads a "confrontation front" of hard-line Arab states opposed to Sadat's peace initiatives.

—The violent anti-Sadat campaign in Beirut continued. An explosion apparently caused by a misdirected rocket, heavily damaged an unfinished building next to the Egyptian Embassy. It was the third apparent attempt in as many days to blow up the embassy.

—A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization said Palestinian leaders would meet "within a few days" to study how to deal with the Sadat-Begin developments.

—In Jerusalem, Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan conferred with Weizman on his return. Begin is to disclose the details of his peace plan to the full Israeli cabinet Thursday. He also scheduled meetings with right-wing hardliners in his own Likud bloc who are opposed to major concessions.

Informed sources said the Weizman-Egyptian discussions focused on security arrangements Israel wants in exchanged for its withdrawal from most of the Sinai, a 20,000-square-mile desert the size of Vermont and New Hampshire together that Israel captured from Egypt in the 1967 Middle East War.

They discussed Israel's insistence on retaining a foothold at two key points, sources said.

Israel reportedly wants a long-term lease on Sharm el-Sheikh, on the Sinai's southern tip, which commands Israel's water route eastward into the Red Sea, and on the Rafah Salient, the southwest approach to the Gaza Strip, which for centuries has been an invasion route to the Holy Land.

Weizman flew to Egypt secretly Tuesday aboard a U.S.-provided DC-9 jetliner, met with Sadat and then conferred for six hours with Gamasy at an Egyptian air base near Alexandria.

The secrecy was not lifted until Weizman returned to Ismailia, the Suez Canal's headquarters city, for a final 45-minute talk with Sadat.

A few reporters were admitted to the president's elegant pink-walled villa as Weizman hobbled into the guest room on a cane. His ankle was broken in a car accident last month.

He exchanged pleasantries with the reporters, and he told Sadat, "See you next Sunday," the day Begin is to come here.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Weizman would return earlier, however.

Accompanied by two Israeli generals, Shlomo Gazit and Herzl Shafir, he then flew to Cairo, where he briefed Israel's three delegates at the current middle-level peace talks before flying home.

Afterward, the chief Israeli delegate at the Cairo conference, Eliahu Ben-Elissar, told reporters, "We are progressing and the Christmas meeting will be an historic event."

Saudi Arabia Offers Guarded Support For Sadat, Egyptians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabia voiced guarded support Wednesday for President Anwar Sadat — its first such expression during the current campaign by hard-line Arabs against the Egyptian's single-handed campaign for peace with Israel.

Elsewhere in the Arab world, anti-Sadat invective and violence continued. A rocket narrowly missed the Egyptian Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon, and Syrian radio said hundreds of thousands of persons demonstrated against Sadat in Aleppo, Syria's second-largest city.

In a Saudi newspaper interview broadcast by official Riyadh radio, Saudi Arabian Prime Minister and Crown Prince Fahd said:

"We, as brothers to the Egyptian people and Sadat, will never cease contacts with Egypt or giving our advice whenever it serves the Arab interest.

"Our love and respect for the Egyptian people is beyond question and we will never change our attitude because we are one with the Egyptian people. What harms us harms the Egyptian people, and what makes us happy makes the Egyptian people happy."

Saudi oil money is the principal foreign support for Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the Palestinian guerrillas, the "confrontation" Arabs bordering Israel.

The Saudis have avoided siding publicly with Sadat, in an apparent attempt to preserve their role as an influential mediator.

Observers noted Fahd's statement again avoided open endorsement of Sadat's initiative. But its reference to the Egyptian leader as a "brother" was seen an indication of support when contrasted with the virulent denunciation of Sadat by his opponents.

As Sadat prepared for his Christmas Day summit with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin in Egypt, the state-run Damascus radio said hundreds of thousands of Syrians demonstrated in Aleppo, chanting slogans denouncing Sadat as a "traitor."

In Beirut, stronghold of the Palestinian movement, an explosion apparently caused by a rocket that missed its target heavily damaged an unfinished building next to the Egyptian Embassy.

It was the third attempt to blow up the embassy in as many days. Security forces defused two time bombs left outside the embassy early Monday and Tuesday. Minor explosions caused slight damage to other Egyptian offices in Beirut earlier this week.

An organization calling itself the Lebanese Arab Youth claimed responsibility for all the attacks.

"These attacks are only the beginning," the group said in a statement distributed to Western news agencies. "Our future strikes against the traitors and everything associated with them will be harder."

Yasir Abed Rabhu, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization's information department, said Wednesday the impending Sadat-Begin meeting is intended to "pave the way for a unilateral peace between Egypt and Israel."

He reiterated PLO rejection of Begin's proposal that Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip be given civil autonomy but with a continued Israeli military presence.

"The Sadat-Begin project will find no hole to sneak through and liquidate the Palestinian cause," Rabhu said.

He said a meeting of all Palestinian leaders would be held "within a few days" to consider how to deal with the Sadat-Begin developments.

Farmers' Input Sought By Hill

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General John Hill said Wednesday he will tour agricultural communities early next month to learn from farmers first hand whether they agree on what ought to be done to solve their problems.

"We all know that costs of farm production are too high and prices are too low. Wringing our hands and firing off letters to Washington are not going to change that.

Military Budget Foes Revive Guns-Butter Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The guns vs. butter argument was resurrected Wednesday by a coalition of unions, city officials and civil rights leaders who fear President Carter is reversing his campaign promise to cut the military budget.

Leaders of the coalition told James McIntyre, acting director of the Office of Management and Budget, that they are disturbed about reports that the Pentagon will claim 25 percent of the increase in federal spending next year.

The guns vs. butter debate — military against domestic spending — raged in the 1960s, during the time of the Vietnam War buildup in the United States.

The coalition predicted "severe competition for scarce federal funds in the coming years" and expressed doubt that domestic social programs will be adequately funded if the military budget continues its escalation.

The group included officials of the United Auto Workers union, the National Urban League, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the National Education Association, the International Association of Machinists and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

"Mr. McIntyre assured us that the reported figures as to growth of the defense budget are not fixed in cement," said

Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y. However, coalition members agreed that McIntyre gave no indication that the defense budget would not show a big increase when the president's spending proposal is made public next month.

"We were very pleased when Mr. Carer said during the campaign that he was going to slash the defense budget without impairing the nation's safety," said Ron Brown of the Urban League. "Now we're very concerned — we have not seen evidence that the commitment will be fulfilled."

Published reports indicate Carter will seek an increase of more than $9 billion in the $117 billion defense budget. During the 1976 campaign he pledged to pare $5 billion to $7 billion from the budget.

The coalition presented OMB with an analysis of defense spending prepared by two longtime advocates of a slimmer, less expensive, military force — former Pentagon officials Townsend Hoopes and Herbert Scoville.

Hoopes and Scoville said "there can be no compromise over the procurement of weapons needed to maintain a secure deterrent and a stable nuclear balance." But, they added, "we should not pursue the illusory goal of nuclear superiority."

At a press conference, the coalition leaders revived the guns vs. butter debate that was so intense when the Johnson administration attempted to fight the war on poverty and the war in Vietnam simultaneously.

In a statement, they said, "A major test of President Carter's commitment to social concerns will therefore be his decisions on military spending."

Members of the coalition, most of them early Carter supporters, said the defense budget can be safely reduced, with savings going into domestic programs. The UAW, for example, considers national health insurance a top priority. The mayors and the public employees union seek improvements in urban and welfare programs. These social efforts would cost billions at a time when President Carter seeks to reduce the federal budget deficit.

"There has to be dollars from somewhere," said Gene Casraiss of the UAW. He contended there is room for savings in the huge defense budget.

Brown, vice president of the Urban League, added, "You no longer can have both guns and butter. We are firmly on the record in this matter — we choose butter."

Hoopes and Scoville presented OMB with a wide range of potential savings in the Pentagon budget based on their analysis of current U.S. capabilities, the international situation and a reading of Soviet capabilities and intentions.

"The new administration has inherited and is carrying forward a planned expansion of U.S. military forces," they said. "In our view, such an expansion is not warranted at this time by the general climate of international conditions."

"On the contrary, we believe a number of military deployments can be safely reduced. They would produce desirable savings in the military budget and thus permit the transfer of funds to socially useful programs."

Hoopes served in various Pentagon jobs, including under secretary of the Air Force, during the Johnson administration and was assistant to the secretary of defense during the Truman administration.

Scoville was assistant director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency from 1963 to 1969 and previously was an official at the CIA and the Defense Department.

Califano Says Enforcement Too Rigid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Joseph Califano said Wednesday he is looking for alternatives to "atomic bomb penalties" that force his agency to cut off funds for schools not complying with desegregation orders.

"To say to a major school system we will cut all your funds unless you meet these standards has aspects of cutting off your nose to spite your face," because much of the money is used for disadvantaged children, he said in an interview.

Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act prohibits federal aid to schools that discriminate on the basis of race or national origin, and it falls to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to carry out the law in many instances.

Califano said he is looking for alternatives. "You need a penalty that's related to the offense or an incentive that's related to what we want people to do to make these things work — and these atomic bomb penalties don't work," he said.

"I'll use them (existing penalties) if that's all I've got, but I want them related to the offense."

On another topic, Califano said the administration has given up hope of passing a national health insurance bill next year.

He said the objective now is passage of a bill "during the first term of the Carter administration."

"I think the trick is to find a national health insurance program that will pass," he said. "We've had national health insurance proposals since Harry Truman's time but nobody's been able to put one together that would pass."

Califano is charged with putting together the administration's health insurance package, and he said the best tactic might be to outline a concept, send legislative guidelines to Congress, and follow up with a legislative proposal.

On other matters, Califano said: --HEW is preparing the first national standards for determining age discrimination in federal programs. He wants "to start from scratch and see if there are any other systems besides the traditional Title VI system of dealing with this problem."

HEW is charged with drafting regulations for the age discrimination act of 1975, which directs the government to eliminate from its programs and practices age-related distinctions that cannot be justified. The law takes effect Jan. 1, 1979.

—He does not think it will be possible to extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Califano, a lawyer, said he does not understand the furor over the amendment, but supports it.

Japan Purchasing Less U.S. Coal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher coal exports by the United States to Japan could help take some of the heat off the current trade controversy, according to a coal association official.

Maurice Cahn, president of the Coal Exporters Association of the U.S., pointed out in a letter to Robert S. Strauss, Special U.S. representative for trade negotiations, that Japan has cut its purchases of U.S. coal steadily in the past few years.

Japan purchased 25.4 million short tons worth $1.4 billion in 1975, 18.1 million tons valued at $1 billion in 1976 and about 16 million tons in 1977 worth $900 million. A short ton is 2,000 pounds.

Canada and Australia have increased or maintained their coal sales to Japan, Cahn told Strauss, noting that both maintain a favorable trade balance with Japan in contrast to America's deficit position.

Cahn also asked Strauss to urge the Japanese to consider purchases of American steam coal that will be required for future power generation in Japan. Japan now buys only high quality coking coal from the U.S. for use in steel mills.

Cahn said 600 jobs are created in the coal fields by every million tons of U.S. coking coal imported by Japan.

Building Boom Expected

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — City officials are expressing optimism concerning a building boom here after $1,271,979 in construction permits were issued this year.

Two of the largest building projects of the year, an industrial expansion at Lancer Homes and Rolling Acres Addition, a housing subdivision developed by Alex Saied, are outside city limits and consequently not included in the building permit figure.

Lancer Homes, the county's biggest industry, is now completing expansion of its operation to include an additional 70-100 workers and Childress Bottling Co. has announced plans for a new building. In addition, several new businesses opened in the city this year.

Largest single new housing development is Rolling Acres Addition where more than 30 new homes are in planning or construction stages.

Also under construction is the new Kirkland Church of Christ. The finishing touches are being applied to an apartment complex under construction nearby.

Bomb Threat Suspects Arrested

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N. M. — Eight boys, ranging in ages 15-17, have been arrested the past several days in connection with a series of bomb threats phoned to Hobbs High School.

According to Monroe Harrelson, Hobbs High School Principal, the school's 1,700 students and teachers have missed more than six hours of classes since the first threat was received. Most of the class time was spent in Watson Memorial Football Stadium while Hobbs police combed the grounds and buildings for bombs.

Hobbs Detective Sergeant Jimm Ott said the first of the juvenile offenders were apprehended through an "almost foolproof method" and he implicated others. Ott says he doesn't want to "disclose the method at this time."

According to police, this is the third consecutive year juveniles have been charged with making bomb threats. The first year, a juvenile girl was sentenced to New Mexico Girl's School and last year a boy was fined $1,000.

Tests Begun On Flu Vaccine

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health authorities rushed laboratory tests Wednesday to determine if the nation's $43 million stockpile of swine flu vaccine may be effective in combating a flu strain now sweeping Russia.

The lab work was being hurried along at the National Center for Disease Control so results will be available by Thursday, when the nation's top flu experts meet to assess the public health danger posed by the Russian flu.

No specific vaccine to combat the Russian strain is available. It required more than three months to get a vaccine into the hands of physicians in the 1968 Hong Kong flu epidemic, and twice that time for the swine flu vaccine. Present vaccines protect only against the A-Victoria and B-Hong Kong flu varieties.

The Russian influenza virus is the same strain that caused worldwide epidemics from 1947 until 1957 and was described by one CDC official as a "distant cousin" of swine influenza, a killer strain believed responsible for 500,000 American deaths in 1918.

The antigenic relationship to swine flu opened the possibility that the swine flu vaccine might give some protection against the A-USSR influenza.

The federal government is storing more than 73.1 million doses of the swine flu vaccine under refrigeration in an Atlanta warehouse. Another 11.4 million doses are in storage in various state and city health departments. The vaccine was left over from the aborted $135 million national swine influenza immunization program launched in 1976.

"It's in progress," said Dr. Gary Noble, referring to the swine flu vaccine lab work. Noble, chief of the CDC's respiratory virology branch, said, "We'll know by tomorrow how effective it is (against the Russian strain)."

He said preliminary tests indicate that the swine flu vaccine may give some protection against the Russian virus, but he added, "It's very age-specific" — meaning the vaccine could boost the protective antibody levels of persons in certain age groups but not in others.

Federal health officials concede there is no way to prevent the new flu virus from reaching North America. The virus swept from the Russian Pacific coast to Moscow in barely a month.

It was described as moderately severe with the usual flu symptoms of high fever, headache, muscular pain and feeling of weakness lasting from five to seven days. In Russia it has afflicted an estimated one out of seven, with an attack rate of more than 15 percent.

Utility Seeks Rate Increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Power Light Co. asked the public utility commission Wednesday for an average rate increase of 18.4 percent, which should raise company revenue by $118 million a year.

President Bill Campbell said the proposed rate increase would raise the bill of a residential customer using 11,102 kilowatt hours of electricity a year, by about $8.88 a month.

Campbell said, however, TPL is converting from natural gas to lignite to generate electricity, and added, "Our customers will see increased benefits of this conversion program in 1978 when Texas Power Light becomes one of only a few electric utility companies in the country with a declining fuel charge per kilowatt hour to its customers."

He said TPL is generating 35 percent of its electricity with lignite, but that figure will go up to more than 54 percent in 1978, when two new lignite-fired generating units go into operation.

TPL serves approximately 615,000 customers in 51 counties of Central, North and East Texas.

The rate increase proposal varies for different classes of customers, Campbell noted, with the company asking for a 25.4 percent increase for residential customers, 23.4 for commercial and 14.9 percent for industry.

Campbell said TPL had asked in its last rate proposal for sufficient revenue to meet financial requirements though mid-1979 but did not get even half of what it was seeking.

TPL sought $165 million, and the commission granted a $58.2 million rate increase last April.

"We have no choice," Campbell said in a statement, "but to continue our present construction schedule, converting from gas to lignite and nuclear. Present rates will not properly support that program. This requested increase should provide the needed support into 1980."

At least one consumer group — the McLennan County Consumers Association — already has protested TPL's rates and asked for a public audit of the charges.

The association said TPL's charges rose from $11 million in July to $37.9 million in September.

Carolina Prison Worse Than Death, Says Little

NEW YORK (AP)— Two years after her acquittal in a sensational murder case and two months after her escape from prison, Joan Little said Wednesday that she would rather die than return to jail in North Carolina.

"I know when I go back through those gates, I go into dead isolation," she declared in an interview with The Associated Press at Rikers Island jail. "There's no telling what will happen to me."

Miss Little was recaptured here Dec. 7 and is hoping that Gov. Hugh L. Carey will deny North Carolina's request for her extradition.

She spoke animatedly — even acted some roles — about her escape, her notoriety, the man who informed on her and her capture.

In 1975, Miss Little, a 23-year-old black, was acquitted of killing her white jailer, Clarence Alligood, with an ice pick. The trial had become a rallying point for those interested in upholding the rights of women, blacks and prisoners.

She said she was defending herself from a sexual assault.

At the time, she was serving a 7-to-10-year sentence on a 1974 larceny conviction. After being acquitted of the murder, she was returned to prison to serve out the term.

She escaped from the minimum security North Carolina Corrections Center in Raleigh by scaling a fence last Oct. 15. She said she was fed up.

"I said to myself, 'I have taken all I can take, everything has gone bad, I have nothing else to lose,'" Miss Little said. "I was in such a depressed mood, nothing really mattered to me."

What had depressed her, she said, were two denials of parole, assignment to what she considered an arduous prison job, inability to get permission to attend business school outside and removal from the prison's work-release program.

"They just kept harassing me and harassing me," Miss Little said.

As an example, she said authorities took another inmate's word instead of her employer's about her absence from work as a dental assistant. This led to her removal from the work-release program on Sep. 26 and her assignment to the prison mess hall.

"I made up my mind before I left. I said, 'Joan, are you willing to take the consequences? If I get away clear and get busted somewhere else, rather than go back to North Carolina or rather than go back to that prison, period, I'd rather be dead — I'd take my chances of their killing me first.'"

Miss Little said a Riker's Island psychiatrist has prescribed a tranquilizer because "I just felt like I was cracking up."

"I worry about going back to North Carolina," she said. "I know they're going to be harassing me and they're going to provoke me to do something I wouldn't ordinarily do...."

"I'm not trying to get out of doing time. I want to do it to get it over with," she said.

Miss Little said that in the North Carolina jail, the authorities did nothing about a positive skin test she had had for tuberculosis. When she had another positive test here, doctors told Miss Little that a cold could bring on the disease and gave her a form prescribing preventive medication for a year.

Miss Little — who had refused to wear the standard pink dress with "escapee" emblazoned on it — wore a prison-made pink jumpsuit and red sneakers.

Although restrictions stipulated by defense lawyer William Kunstler prevented questions about her time as a fugitive in New York, she volunteered that she had taken an apartment in Brooklyn, where her father and other relatives live.

On the night of her capture, Miss Little and her lover, George McRae, picked up her one-time fiancé, Vernell Muhammad, at Kennedy Airport after his flight from Raleigh, she said.

"I was afraid of the man," Miss Little said, adding that she had met Muhammad last May at a Black Muslim mosque where she was allowed to visit while in prison and that they had courted during visiting hours and by mail.

"I got kind of tired of him," she continued. She said she told Muhammad a week earlier that their relationship was finished.

Saying she suspected Muhammad's motives, Miss Little added that she nonetheless agreed to meet him at the airport, where she frisked him for a gun and gave him this warning:

"If you got anything in mind to hurt me or George, don't, because you're going to get wasted."

As a result to get his money, she related, she also told him that she was pregnant with his child, although she was not pregnant.

Miss Little said that she and McRae eventually left Muhammad at the airport and went on their way. In the interval, she said, he called police and they picked up her trail in McRae's car outside her apartment.

With one police car trailing them, two others blocked a Brooklyn street. There were no flashing lights, no sirens and no bullhorn urging their surrender, she recounted, "so I just went around them."

"I wasn't going to stop — it would have been just too easy to give up like that," she said.

However, the police fired through the windshield and punctured a rear tire. More cars closed in and ended the chase.

She was charged with assault, reckless endangerment and resisting arrest and held for an extradition hearing Jan. 6. A charge of criminal mischief has been dismissed.

Maintaining that "all I ask for" is a "new beginning," she said she wanted more education than the high school equivalency she has attained, plus work as a dental assistant or even as counselor in prison.

She also said she would change her name, perhaps to Theresa. "I want to change my name because that name, 'Joan Little,' it kind of holds you back. I doesn't help to be remembered as a murderer."

Mitchell To Spend Christmas In Jail

By United Press International
John Mitchell's attorney said Wednesday he did not seek a Christmas furlough for the former attorney general because a post-holiday medical leave was more important and "I didn't want to push my luck."

Mitchell will spend Christmas in jail although his fellow Watergate cover-up conspirators, H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, have been granted five-day prison leaves to be with their families.

The reason is that the Justice Department gave Mitchell an open-ended furlough expected to start about Dec. 29 so he can seek medical opinions on whether surgery is needed for a troublesome hip.

"I was hopeful it (the leave) could have been accomplished before Christmas," Hundley said in Washington. But, "for reasons beyond anybody's control it couldn't be. I had to make arrangements with the doctors."

Haldeman, Richard Nixon's White House chief of staff, began his furlough Wednesday from the federal prison at Lompoc, Calif. He was among 115 inmates released from Lompoc for the holidays in a prison effort "to strengthen or re-establish family ties."

Ehrlichman, Nixon's domestic affairs adviser, is to be released Friday from the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz. Mitchell, serving time at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., will leave prison about four days after Christmas, and Hundley said he will be examined by Dr. P.M. Palumbo, who for a time was orthopedic surgeon for the Washington Redskins football team.

"I'm sure he is going to want to bring in consultants — other doctors who are very expert in this field," Hundley said. "I'm just delighted he's willing to do it. He is a top man in the field, generally."

Mitchell probably will be admitted to Georgetown University Hospital in Washington for the examination, Hundley said, adding that Mitchell's hip ailment has caused "constant pain and (he) is taking too much valium just to try and ease the pain."

Haldeman, Mitchell and Ehrlichman initially were sentenced to serve 30 months to eight years for their role in the Watergate cover-up conspiracy, but in October won reductions of sentence to one to four years from U.S. District Judge John Sirica.

Mitchell and Haldeman, who entered prison last June, are eligible for parole next June. Ehrlichman, also convicted in connection with a break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, entered prison two months earlier and has a parole date set in April.

Violation Of Plea Bargain Pact Voids Sentence

AUSTIN (AP) — A man on death row won the right to live Wednesday because prosecutors broke a plea-bargaining agreement not to try him for capital murder.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the death penalty conviction of Herbert Sherril Washington and said he cannot be tried again on the charge.

A Houston jury assessed the supreme penalty against Washington in the killing of John Thomas Henry during a robbery. Case records show his lawyers agreed to enter guilty pleas to aggravated robbery and attempted murder of a peace officer in return for the state's dropping the murder charge. Washington then was given prison sentences totaling 75 years.

But a week after the convictions were entered, Washington appealed.

Prosecutors then went back to trial on the capital murder charges and obtained the death penalty.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Cate said he did not intend in the plea bargaining to leave Washington free to appeal. But Assistant District Attorney James Brough testified that the right of appeal specifically had been preserved.

"In light of this testimony and the fact that a written waiver of the right of appeal nowhere appears in the records of any of appellant's (Washington's) three convictions, we cannot conclude that appellant ever agreed, as a part of the plea bargain, to forego his right to appeal," the high court said.

Therefore, it said, Washington did not violate the agreement when he appealed and the state was obligated to stop the capital murder trial.

In another case, the court reversed the murder convictions of Doyle Edward Skillern and Charles Victor Sanne in the 1974 shooting death of state narcotics agent Patrick Randel.

Both can be tried again. Skillern had been sentenced to death and Sanne to life imprisonment. Randel's body was found in his car at a roadside park in Live Oak County on Oct. 24, 1974.

Both convictions were reversed because, over the objections of defense attorneys, the trial judge permitted jurors to separate after he had given them the charge.

agents said they last saw Randel alive when he left a motel in Beeville with Skillern and Sanne the night before his body was discovered.

Witnesses testified that when Skillern and Sanne were arrested they had the narcotics agent's gun, drug purchase money, diamond ring and credit cards.

In reversing the convictions, the court said that when jurors are allowed to separate over defense objections, a conviction can be upheld only if the state proves no harm resulted.

"The state failed to offer any affidavits or testimony from the jurors involved," the court observed. Other witnesses were unable to testify that they were certain the jurors had no contact with spectators.

Even Kitchen Sink Not Safe

VACA, Texas (AP) — A thief could have picked up and walked away with everything but the kitchen sink after he broke down the door to a Port Lavaca home early Wednesday. But he wanted the sink.

Port Lavaca police said Julian Ybarra reported he couldn't find anything in the house disturbed except the door and the sink, which was still hanging precariously from its plumbing.

Detective Sgt. Joe Pena said the frustrated thief apparently "just tried to tear it away from the wall" but failed.

Pena said police are stumped as to a motive for the burglary, but the investigation is continuing.

"Usually, they try to take everything BUT the kitchen sink," Pena said. "This is a first for me."

Court Bars Stock Sale By Furr's

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The two sons of the late Lubbock businessman Roy Furr still cannot sell company stock in order to help settle debts, under terms of an order handed down Wednesday by the Texas Supreme Court.

Without issuing its own opinion, the state's highest civil court let stand a trial court judgment from Lubbock, and an appeals court decision from Amarillo which have held that the sale of stock would violate Texas corporate law.

Roy K. Furr and Don C. Furr, the surviving sons, were sued by their sister, Shelly Furr Hall, who has successfully blocked the proposed sale, contending the business deal would unfairly give the brothers controlling interest in the family operations.

Those operations consist of Furr's, Inc., Furr's Realty, Farm Pac Kitchens, Inc., and Furr's Cafeterias, Inc., all headquartered in Lubbock.

When the elder Furr died in June 1975, court records indicate the family empire was valued at $7 million, but also held liabilities of nearly $5 million.

Under the direction of Roy K. Furr, court testimony revealed, the Board of Directors of the Furr business operations attempted to settle those debts by making several sales and mergers. It was at this point that Shelly Hall objected to her brothers' dealings and the court proceedings began.

In March, 1976, Roy and Don Furr were ordered by a Lubbock County district court not to sell or transfer any property belonging to the estate of Roy Furr.

That decision was upheld in August, 1977, in a 13-page opinion by the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals.

In a separate but related case, the Texas Supreme Court recently clarified the extent of the Furr estate, opening the way to the disposition of the disputed stock sale.

Furr's widow received half of the estate, but court records show she wished no part in the administration of the family business.

In another Lubbock case, the Supreme Court routinely upheld its earlier order requiring a new trial in a payment dispute over construction work done at the local airport.

Recently, the court upheld lower court decisions ordering the new trial to determine how much, if any, the L.H. Lacy Company of Dallas is due from the City of Lubbock for the airport project.

Bell Appeals To Court For Higher Rates

DALLAS (UPI) — Southwestern Bell Wednesday said it is losing $350,000 a day and asked the Third Court of Civil Appeals for permission to charge higher rates.

In a motion filed with the appeals court, Southwestern Bell asked the court to reconsider a portion of its Dec. 7 rate decision and to suspect the Public Utility Commission's 1976 order which established new rates for the company.

Bell asked the court to halt the rate order and to allow the company to implement higher rates under bond until the appeals process on the case is completed.

"Realistically, we expect that appeals through the Supreme Court will require several months," said John Hayes, vice president for Southwestern Bell.

"Meanwhile, each day we're losing revenues that we can never hope to recover. We're asking the Court of Civil Appeals to allow us to immediately implement new rates, so that we can realize those revenues."

The new rates would be put into effect under bond, if the court desires, to assure refunds to customers if the case ultimately is not decided in our favor.

The company said increases, if approved, would be made on services where records are easily maintained so that refunds can be made. He said there would be no increases in coin charges, long distance rates or directory assistance charges.

Most of the motion was aimed at the PUC's rate decision for Bell.

Prisoners Get Hearings For Paroles

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Parole hearings were to be completed Wednesday for 96 Americans being held at the federal prison here after they were repatriated earlier this month in the prisoner exchange program with Mexico.

Another 20 convicts were freed Tuesday, bringing to 64 the number released mandatorily because they have served two-thirds of their Mexican sentences or accumulated sufficient good behavior or work credits.

Prison officials said no prisoners were expected to be mandatorily freed Wednesday, but "that doesn't mean there won't be any at the last minute."

Parole hearings began Dec. 12 before five U.S. parole commissioners after the initial airlifts returned the Americans, most jailed for years in Mexican prisons on drug convictions.

A total of 233 U.S. citizens were repatriated in the first phase of the historic exchange treaty signed into law by President Carter last October.

About 400 Americans remain jailed in Mexico and airlifts are being arranged for next February and March to return those who qualify for repatriation.

Ten of the American convicts returned under the treaty were detained to answer U.S. charges ranging from traffic warrants to airplane skyjacking.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET INDEX

Mart Rally Ends Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rang up its first gain in a week Wednesday with a rally led by depressed blue-chip issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, which had fallen 16.46 points in the last four trading days, climbed 7.71 to 813.93.

Gainers held a 3-2 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .30 to 51.41.

Big Board volume hit its highest level in almost a month at 24.51 million shares, up from 23.25 million the day before.

Analysts said the upswing was inspired in part by news reports on the details of President Carter's tax plan, including a lowering of corporations' maximum tax liability and an expansion of investment tax credits.

They also noted encouragement over a steady showing by the dollar against major foreign currencies today after its recent slide.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 103.03, up .53. The NASD reported volume of 8.84 million shares.

New York (AP) — Wednesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidations securities also traded on other markets.

FSU Coach Ponders Choice Of Quarterbacks

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Texas Tech is worried about Florida State's top-flight passing game, but coach Bobby Bowden of the Seminoles doesn't even know which quarterback he's going to use in Friday night's Tangerine Bowl football game against the Red Raiders.

"The decision is so important we'll probably flip a coin," joked Bowden about the choice between Florida State's two premier signal callers, Wally Woodham and Jimmy Jordan.

The two have shared the position all season, throwing for a combined 2,409 yards to compile a 9-2 record and hold the 19th ranking among the country's top college teams.

"It won't make that much difference who we go with," Bowden said Wednesday. "They're both alike. They both deserve to start, but we'll make a decision on that Thursday night."

Texas Tech coach Steve Sloan said he was concerned about the Seminoles' explosive offense, particularly the passing game because "we play mostly running teams, with the exception of Rice and Arizona."

His own quarterback, Rodney Allison, has come back strong from a broken leg suffered in the third game of the season and "he'll be playing at about 85 or 95 percent capacity."

Along with the Woodham-Jordan aerial game, Florida State has a rusher Bowden calls "the finest little runner I've ever coached."

Larry Key, a 5-foot-10, 180-pounder is "the most underrated back in the country," his coach says. "He's small, but he's quick and the pros will go for him. . . You know there's a trend toward smaller backs now."

Key holds all the rushing records at Florida State and gained 1,117 this year. Bowden is fearful of Texas Tech's defenders, saying it is "the best defensive football team we've played."

Glancing over toward Sloan at a luncheon session, the Seminoles' mentor quipped, "I don't see how a guy as nice as him could have such a big and mean defense."

Flowers Uses Miscue As Experience Play

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ORLANDO, Fla.—Larry Flowers remembers the 59-yard touchdown pass by Arkansas that was the difference in a 17-14 Razorback win over Texas Tech Thanksgiving Day. But the Raider free safety hasn't let the incident grow out of proportion.

Flowers was out of position on the pass play—on the other side of the field from his man, wide receiver Bobby Duckworth. With Flowers on the left side looking for a running play, Duckworth blew straight upfield past another Tech defender and was many yards in the clear for the winning TD pass.

"I remember it, sure," Flowers said Wednesday as the Raiders continued their preparations for Friday night's Tangerine Bowl battle with Florida State. "But I don't let it bug me any more."

"I'm just a sophomore, and I have to look at it as a learning experience. It will probably help me in the long run."

The Tech secondary has had problems at times this season, particularly with deep pass routes, but Flowers expects the unit to play well Friday.

"We've been kind of down this year because of injuries, but we've been improving every week."

"Teamwise, I think we've picked up our momentum after the Arkansas loss. That was a tough one, but we're getting ready to play this game pretty well. After a loss, you just have to try and improve for the next game. You have to shake off losses."

Flowers, a sophomore slated to start against the Seminoles, respects the FSU passing game, which is averaging 224 yards a game—the country's ten-best figure—and has completed 54.5 percent of its passes.

Complementing the throwing game is tailback Larry Kay, who rushed for 1117 yards in 1977 and finished the year as the nation's second-best all-purpose (rushing, receiving, kickoff returns, punt returns) runner. Thus the Raiders must not concentrate solely on the run or pass.

"They've got good receivers," Flowers said. "They're quick and have pretty good speed. That (Roger) Overby has real good speed. They're not really similar to the other receivers we've faced this year."

Wally Woodham, a sophomore who has started at quarterback since the fifth game, has thrown for 1270 yards and has a 61 percent completion rate.

"Woodham has a real good arm," Flowers said. "He reminds me of the quarterbacks (P.J. Gay and Clyde Christenson) North Carolina used against us."

LARRY FLOWERS

"Their passing attack reminds me of Arizona's. Florida State tries to get its receivers deep on post routes, and that's something we've had trouble with this season. I've been working real hard on covering that particular pattern."

Flowers played primarily on the specialty teams last year as a freshman, earning a reputation as an extremely aggressive player. He began the 1977 campaign as backup free safety behind senior Greg Frazier but has gained a lot of playing time because the 1976 all-SWC performer has been hobbled with injuries.

Terps, 'Hall' Welcome Gophers Back To Bowls

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Minnesota, which built a 7-4 record in a strange manner, makes its first postseason football appearance in 15 years tonight when the Golden Gophers battle Maryland in the inaugural Hall of Fame Classic.

Maryland, also 7-4, has been established a one-touchdown favorite for the 7 p.m. CST kickoff at Legion Field, with all net profits going to the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, Inc.

"In this business, it's either fire or ice," said Gopher Coach Cal Stoll. "We had some great, great highs, but also some low days."

The high point of the Minnesota season came in a 16-0 victory over the then top-ranked Michigan Wolverines, only defeat for the Big Ten champion which faces another Gopher victim, Washington, in the Rose Bowl game.

There was, however, an 18-6 loss to Big Ten lightweight Iowa along the way and consecutive defeats by Indiana and Michigan State following the shocking upset of Michigan.

Meanwhile, Coach Jerry Claiborne's Terps won six of their last seven games after a surprisingly poor start, and failed in their quest for a third straight Atlantic Coast Conference championship. It will be the fifth straight bowl game for Maryland.

With Ohio State having gained a spot in the Sugar Bowl, Minnesota's invitation here allowed the Big Ten to send three representatives to a bowl for the first time in its history.

Of course, for years the conference was tied in to the Rose Bowl, and only two years ago began allowing its teams to compete elsewhere.

Minnesota's hopes against the Terps will be keyed to a defense led by all-Big Ten tackle Steve Midboe, a 236-pounder, and a ball control offense relying on the strong running of sophomore fullback Kent Kitzmann.

Kitzmann, a 204-pounder, more than doubled his season's rushing figures in the final two games when he rushed an NCAA record 57 times for 306 yards against Illinois and came back the next week with 40 carries for 154 yards against Wisconsin, giving him 647 yards for the year. He got off to a slow start because of injuries.

Aggies Plan To Open With Mosley

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Texas A & M coach Emory Bellard said Wednesday that freshman Mike Mosley will start against Southern California Dec. 31 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Bellard said senior quarterback David Walker is not fully recovered from a chest injury.

Mosley, a 6-foot-2, 176-pound freshman from Humble, ran wild in A&M's regular season finale against Houston.

The Aggies, currently on Christmas vacation, will reassemble at College Station next Monday for three workouts. They will travel to Houston next Wednesday.

Bellard said USC is "similar to the 1975 team which beat us in the Liberty Bowl."

"They're very talented, well coached and have a very deceptive record," said Bellard of the Aggies' Dec. 31 foe in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"A 7-4 season is not bad but it is not a great record for Southern Cal. And, I mean that as a compliment and not derogatory."

Bellard said "In the games I lost, there were some breakdowns and mistakes, as is usually the case any time a good team loses."

USC beat AM 20-0 in the 1975 Liberty Bowl.

Sloan scoffed at a remark that his team was considered seven points better than Florida State.

"They said we were eight points better than Houston, too," Sloan said, noting that Tech was whipped 45-7 by the Houston club.

The youthful-looking Sloan, who after this game will take over as football coach at Mississippi, believes "it's a real even game. And the defense holds the key."

Hogs' Starting Trio Suspended By Holtz

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas coach Lou Holtz said Wednesday that runningbacks Ben Cowins and Michael Forrest and wide receiver Donny Bobo had been suspended from the football team.

The Razorbacks are preparing for the Jan. 2 Orange Bowl meeting with Oklahoma.

"The three players will not play in the football game," Holtz said. "For me to make any other statement concerning this situation would be unfair to the players."

Cowins has been an All-Southwest Conference performer for the past two years. The 195-pound junior gained 1,192 yards and scored 14 touchdowns during the Razorbacks' recently completed 10-1 season.

In 1976 Cowins rushed for 1,162 and led the league. Forrest, a 210-pound junior, had been hampered by injuries much of the year, but rushed for 310 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Bobo, a 181-pound sophomore, led the team in receiving with 22 catches for 454 yards and five touchdowns. He also scored once on a flanker reverse.

The suspensions came one day after an injury to all-America offensive guard Leotis Harris. Harris suffered torn ligaments in his knee during Tuesday's practice and will miss the Orange Bowl game.

Freshman Trent Bryant and senior Barnabas White are expected to battle for Cowins' position. Freshman Gary Stiggers will probably be the starter in place of Bobo.

Either Chuck Herman or Mark Lewis, who shared time at left guard, will be moved to right guard to replace Harris.

"My Company just discontinued our retirement plan. No panic. I'm going to 'roll-over' my retirement cash into an LNB/IRA."

If your company discontinues your retirement plan, you have up to 60 days to "roll-over" (transfer) your money into an Individual Retirement Account.

You pay no taxes now and your dollars start earning 7 3/4% for an effective annual yield of 8.057%. Also, if you leave a company and take your retirement cash with you, you're going to have to pay taxes on the money your company contributed. But, if you "roll-over" your retirement cash into an IRA, your nest egg is protected from taxes until you retire—when your taxes will probably be a lot lower.

In an LNB/IRA, your dollars start earning 7 3/4% interest which results in 8.057% effective annual yield.

IRA was a good deal last year. This year it's even better. For everybody.

Talented Backfield Group Guides AAA Honorees

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
There are dream backfields and there are dream backfields. Put a little added emphasis on the second dream backfield, if you please.

Picture this, Andrews quarterback Booger Brooks takes the snap from center then he has to perogative to 1.) handoff to Perryton's Brad Beck on a dive play 2.) run around the end on one of his patent dashes 3.) pitchout to Estacado speedster Kenzie Burrell.

Not to run the phrase into the ground, but you guessed it, a dream backfield.

Beck, the Perryton battering ram who has led the Rangers into the state finals for the past two seasons, has been named the Avalanche-Journal's South Plains Class AAA player of the year.

And right behind, not more than a step or two, is Brooks, a fleet footed quarterback who has been hailed by more than one college scout as the next Rodney Allison. Meaning of course, he knows what to do when he puts the piskin under his arm.

Named as the top coach in Class AAA ranks was Fort Stockton mentor John Blocker. Blocker, the second year coach of the Panthers, led his team to an 8-2 won-loss record and a shot at the District 2-AAA title.

During his two seasons at Fort Stockton, Blocker has won 13 games, lost five and tied two.

The Panthers reeled off eight straight wins before losing to Andrews 21-13 in the loop's big shootout. Fort Stockton also lost its final game to Pecos.

"Everyone down here respects the job he (Blocker) has done down there," Pecos coach Jerry Millsapps said.

Joining Brooks and Beck in the backfield is Burrell, small but durable runningback with speed to burn. Burrell, who did not play exceptionally well during the season's early going, ended the year with 1,067 yards. Tops in the city for a ten game schedule.

But when people talk runningback on the South Plains, they speak almost in reverence about Beck, a recent selectee by Sporting News and Parade Magazine as a prep all-America.

Beck, one of the state's most complete players, rushed for 1,858 yards, averaging 6.6 yards a carry and scored 23 touchdowns last season. In addition, he threw for four more TDs, kicked 30 PATs (along with a 41-yard field goal) and hit 8 of 16 passes for yards.

In his high school career, Beck rushed for 4,992 yards and collected 56 touchdowns.

Newcombe Advances In Net Meet

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Veteran John Newcombe of Australia defeated Brian Teacher of San Diego 6-3, 7-6, 6-3 Wednesday in first round play of the $200,000 Australian Open at Kooyong.

In their first-round matches, Australia's Cliff Letcher, playing with a heavily bandaged right knee, downed Tim Wilkinson of Shelby, N.C., 6-2, 7-6, 6-1; Dick Crealy beat fellow Australia Paul Campbell 6-2, 7-6, 5-7, 6-3, and Australian Colin Dibley topped Eliot Teltcher of Palos Verdes, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Newcombe, 33, making a comeback after more than a year away from tournament tennis, put together his backhand volley and passing shots to eliminate Teacher, the 23-year-old runnerup to fellow American Roscoe Tanner in last week's New South Wales Open at Sydney.

With the boisterous crowd of 6,000 roaring for Newcombe, the Aussie hero of yesterday grabbed a 5-2 lead in the first set and then clinched it two games later with a strong crosscourt volley.

Newcombe led 3-3 in the second set on his serve, momentarily faltered and Teacher came back to tie at 6 games all.

In the tiebreaker, Teacher failed to hold a single service, while Newcombe held only two in 10 games, double faulting twice before taking the set 7-3.

Newcombe was command in the third set and served two aces in the ninth game to win the match.

Newcombe said he had watched the Teacher-Tanner final last week on television and picked several weaknesses in Teacher's game, which he took advantage of Wednesday.

"On today's form, and if I get through the next two rounds, I think I am playing well enough to win," Newcombe said.

Teacher said, "I was not really charged up for a tough first-round match against someone like Newcombe."

In 1976 he was the only schoolboy to gain more than 2,000 yards. For his efforts, he was named first team all-state as a junior.

"He was the best I ever coached," Perryton boss Don Beck said.

Maybe, the Perryton coach is a little partial. After all, Brad is his son.

While Beck was ruling District 1-AAA with a hand, Brooks was doing the same down in 2-AAA.

The bronco-buster turned blue chip signal caller, led the loop in rushing with 969 yards on 161 carries, hit 25-61 passes for 489 yards and nine touchdowns and scored 14 TDs on his own.

And at the same time he was leading the Mustangs to a loop crown and a 9-0-1 season record. However Andrews fell to Beck and the Rangers in bidistrict 26-6 without the services of Brooks, who was sidelined with a leg injury. (Beck would later feel the injury bug's bite in a quarter final game against state finalist Brownwood.)

Perhaps Brooks' top game was when he rushed for yards and almost single-handedly knocked off Fort Stockton in the loop's showdown game.

Burrell also saved his best for last rushing for 276 yards against Sweetwater on the last night of the year. He also had 95 yards called back because of penalties.

"He can do it all," Estacado coach Louis Kelley said time and time again about the 155-pounder with 9.6 speed in the 100-yard dash.

During the course of the game, if Brooks should ever need to throw, he would have two formidable ends to toss too.

Heading the list of receivers are Seminole's Steve Thomas (6-4, 205) and Borger's John Plumley (6-0, 195).

Thomas, who was raved about by almost all coaches contacted, caught 22 passes for 425 yards and three TDs from his tight end position.

Plumley, a junior, caught 15 passes for 300 yards and seven touchdowns. He possesses 4.7 speed in the 40-yard dash.

Another receiver, listed as a flanker, is Perryton's Joe Sooter. The 170-pounder, latched on to 16 passes for yards for a club with ran with the ball almost 90 per cent of the time. Sooter, a 6-9 high jumper, was an all-district performer as a defensive back, too.

Comprising the offensive line are tackles Roman Lomas (6-4, 256) of Fort Stockton and Jamie Jackson (6-1, 195), guards Gregory Cooks (6-1, 222) of Lubbock Dunbar and Craig Woods (6-0, 215) of Pecos, and centers Mickey Munsell (6-2, 205) of Andrews and Jeff Leader (6-1, 227) of Perryton.

Coaches who either played against or coached against both Leader and Munsell agreed that it was a dead toss up who was the better of the two.

But when it came to describing Lomas, things were different.

"He's an awesome hitter," coach John

Blocker said, adding that Lomas is a little larger than the 256 listed on the program.

Leading the list of linebackers are Robert Scott (5-11, 170) of Canyon, Monty Bean (5-11, 180) of Andrews, Everett Todd (6-2, 207) of Sweetwater, Mike Chatham (5-10, 205) of Estacado and Brent Fletcher (6-0, 170) of Perryton.

Chatham and Todd, although only juniors, drew praises from almost all of the head coaches.

"That kid of Estacado (Chatham) is one of the best I've ever seen," said Lake View coach Clovis Hale. "We had a hard time against him, all right."

Two of top hitters are Scott and Fletcher. Both averaged over 20 tackles per game, despite playing both ways, as runningbacks.

Leading the long list of top defensive backs in the area is Fort Stockton's Tate Randall. Randall (6-1, 190), who doubled as the Fort Stockton signal caller, picked off 10 enemy aerials from his safety spot. He ended his career with 26 interceptions.

Randall is joined in the backfield by Bobby Hungerford of Brownfield, Rick McIvor (6-3, 190) of Fort Stockton, and Daryl Green (5-9, 155) of Dunbar.

At 5-8, 137 pounds, Hungerford is the smallest member of the team. Despite playing on a team that rarely drew much attention, Hungerford stood out in a crowd with his aggressive play.

Top performers on the defensive line are Bobby Amaro (6-2, 220) of Lamesa, Ricky Lloyd (5-8, 175) of Andrews, Doug Hardy (6-0, 195) of Perryton and Tony Elrod (6-1, 175) of Borger.

Lloyd led the list with 134 tackles, six quarterback traps, five fumbles, two interceptions. He is a three-day all-district selectee.

Lewis Wants Shot At Payton

LOADED FOR BEAR—Dallas Cowboys linebacker D.D. Lewis says he thinks it will be fun to play against Chicago all-pro runningback Walter Payton. "It's a thrill when you can stop him." (AP Laserphoto)

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis thinks it's fun to play against Chicago's All-Pro runningback Walter Payton.

Before you conclude the nine-year veteran Cowboy defender has made too many tackles without his helmet on, let him explain.

"It means more to go against a top runner like Payton—it's a thrill when you stop him," says Lewis. "You've got to go 100 percent all the time... you can't ever relax. We really get keyed up when we meet Payton. He's a big challenge."

The Cowboys shackled Payton with one of his worst days as a pro in a 1975 National Football League meeting which Dallas won 31-21. Payton as held to 41 yards rushing on 17 attempts and caught only one pass for 24 yards.

"I remember one run he made when he crossed back over the field after I thought he was down," says Lewis. "You can't assume you are out of the play when he's on the other side of the field. You had better be ready and you had better pursue."

Payton gained only 47 yards on 15 runs on a frozen field as Chicago played a wild card into the National Conference playoffs Monday against Dallas with a 12-9 victory over the New York Giants. He gained 1,851 yards this season, falling 152 yards shy of O.J. Simpson's record 2,003 yards for 14 games.

The Cowboys can counter with explosive Tony Dorsett, who became only the eighth rookie in NFL history to gain over 1,000 yards.

Lewis says "Payton is explosive like Tony. He is so quick. Payton can take a step and he is gone. He doesn't stick out in my mind as being a great pass receiver but that was two years ago. He'll probably come down here and catch 10 balls. All I know is that as a runner he is in a class all his own."

Lewis is one of the surest tacklers on the Cowboys and his experience is invaluable on a defense where tackle Randy White, linebacker Thomas Henderson, middle linebacker Bob Breunig and cornerback Aaron Kyle are playing their first seasons as starters.

Chicago returns to the NFL playoff scene Monday at 1 p.m. CST in Texas Stadium after a 14-year absence.

"I'm sure it's an exciting time for the Bears and they will play with a lot of emotion," says Lewis. "But so will we... we can't wait. In fact, the attitude of the whole team right now is 'let us get out of here and get on the field.'"

Lewis believes the difference between the 1976 Cowboys who lost to Los Angeles in the NFC first round and the 1977 version is like the contrast between "daylight and dark."

"This year we've got the offense to go with the defense," he concludes. "I'm just glad we're not playing Minnesota."

I've seen enough of Chuck Foreman. I hope Los Angeles beats them."

The Dallas-Chicago survivor meets the winner of the Los Angeles-Minnesota game for the NFC title Jan. 1 and the right to advance to the Super Bowl.

Hula Bowl Asks NCAA To Probe Campbell Case

HONOLULU (AP) — The Hula Bowl has asked the National Collegiate Athletic Association to investigate the participation of some players, including Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, in the Senior Bowl.

The two all-star football games are played the same day, and officials each year fight for commitments from the nation's top collegiate talent. The Senior Bowl players are paid, while the Hula Bowl offers a trip to Hawaii, a Waikiki hotel room and meals.

Hula Bowl executive director George Boucher said certain players may have violated NCAA regulations by agreeing to play in the Jan. 7 Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

NCAA regulations make a player ineligible for a post-season bowl game if he has signed an agreement, prior to that game, to play in an all-star game in which he would be paid.

"Although such violations may have been entirely inadvertent, the seriousness of the possible infractions warrants an immediate investigation by your organization," Boucher said in a letter to NCAA executive director Walter Byers.

Boucher's request was prompted by Campbell's apparent decision to play in the Senior Bowl. However, Campbell's name was not mentioned in the letter.

The Hula Bowl has a signed agreement from the Texas runningback to play in the Honolulu game. But Campbell said he wants to play in the Mobile contest, and his name was included on the Senior Bowl roster.

Campbell said he thought the Hula Bowl agreement he signed was just an invitation, and also said he has not signed any agreement with the Senior Bowl.

Since then, Texas coach Fred Akers has said Campbell hasn't decided which, if either, all-star game he will play in. He said Campbell won't make a decision until after the Cotton Bowl game.

The top-ranked Texas Longhorns will meet Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Powell, Mosser Head Hub City Prep Cagers

Long distance is the next best thing to being there for sharpshooters Willie Powell of Estacado and Carrie Mosser of Christ The King.

Powell and Mosser earned this week's city boys and girls high school basketball honors from the Avalanche-Journal.

Powell, a 6-3 senior, leads his Matador team (14-1) in scoring with 169 points and stands second in rebounds with 87 behind Freddy Ivory's 115. Coach J.J. Wood has nominated the talented leaper for player of the week honors on four straight occasions this month.

"He's probably the best outside shooter in town," said one city coach recently about Powell.

Meanwhile, Mosser continues to pace her Christ The King team (10-6) with 20 to 25 points a game. Mosser collected 23 points in Tuesday night's 69-40 romp over McAdoo.

Other boys city nominees are Coronado's Jay Norton, Monterey's Tony Hamby, Dunbar's Billy Hardaway and Lubbock High's Pete Del Busto. Lubbock Christian High coach Gary Bowe declined to nominate any Eagle after last week's 9-3 showing in the Commander's Division of the Reese tourney.

Norton scored 34 points in the last two games for CHS. Hardaway pumped in 22 and 23 points a night during Dunbar's recent grueling schedule of five games in six days. Hamby continued to fin sh around the 25-point mark for Monterey's team. Del Busto held his offensive foe, Rocky Rawls of Dimmitt, to four points during Tuesday night's game.

Except for Mosser, most of the prep girl nominees were defensive specialists. Coronado's Laura Wade produced three good games at guard during last week's Key City tourney at Abilene, according to coach Melissa Gebhart. Wade leads her team in rebounds with 71. Regina Dudley of Lubbock High was also nominated for the honor.

Canyon, Southland Stay Undefeated Around Area

Canyon and Southland have the distinction of being the only undefeated basketball teams on the South Plains — both 15-0 — but only one is top-rated on The Avalanche-Journal's first area cage poll of the season.

The defending Class AAA state champion girls are No. 1 in their division, which has only two teams listed.

Southland is third in the B listings, trailing Jayton and Sands. Jayton has only 17-3 ledger yet is top-ranked because the Jaybirds got a two week late start due to football — they advanced to the state quarter-finals — and then lost two of their first three outings.

Abilene Cooper, Estacado, Dimmitt, Lubbock Christian and the Jaybirds head the boys listings, with Canyon, Slaton, Stanton and Jayton heading the girls divisions.

Since few area AAA towns participate in girls basketball, that classification is not included.

Slaton, which will host the annual West Texas Invitational Tournament from Dec. 27-Dec. 31, has lost only to Canyon (by 20) in Canyon, by 10 in the finals of the Tulia Tournament) and Class AAAA Dallas South Oak Cliff (by 6) in semifinals of Queens Classic at Plainview).

Caprock Event Scheduled For Coliseum

Lubbock's annual high school basketball tournament, the Caprock holiday tourney, will be held next week in Lubbock Coliseum.

The American Business Club, which sponsors the event, had held the tourney in recent years at the Coronado high school gym. The tourney, divided into two divisions again, begins Tuesday with a small-school division game between Lubbock Christian High and Frenship at 9 a.m.

Other first-round games in the small-school bracket Plains against Slaton at 10:30 a.m., Cooper against Tulia at 2 p.m., and Idalou against Tahoka at 3:30 p.m.

The large-school division starts at 12:30 with Dunbar against Morton. Lubbock High meets Dimmitt at 6, Iowa Park meets Monterey at 7:30 followed by Coronado and Estacado at 9 p.m.

Braves Nix Barnes' New Contract Plea

BUFFALO (AP)—Marvin Barnes ended his two-week hiatus from pro basketball Wednesday, his request to have his contract renegotiated rejected by the Buffalo Braves.

Barnes, who was suspended after he missed practices because of a contractual dispute, agreed to return after a morning meeting with Braves owner John Y. Brown and general manager Norm Sonja.

A Braves spokesman said performance incentives were added to Barnes' contract, but there was no renegotiation. The 6-foot-8 forward practiced with the National Basketball Association team Wednesday.

ENMU Bows In Finals To Adams State

ALAMOSA, Colo. (Special)—Gerard Campbell scored with nine seconds remaining Tuesday night and insured Adams State of an 81-80 win over Eastern New Mexico and the championship of its Cool Sunshine Basketball Tournament.

The teams had to go into overtime after an earlier Campbell free throw after time had expired tied the count at 71.

Eastern New Mexico had a 42-26 half-time lead, but the cushion disappeared in the second half.

Adams had the lead in the overtime, and Campbell's points upped the margin to 81-78 with nine seconds. The hosts allowed Eastern New Mexico race down and score as time ran out.

Campbell finished the night with 34 points for Adams. Teammate Ed Jackson had 28 points and hauled down 25 rebounds.

Bob Kirkley led ENMU with 25 points. Rick Ely had another 22.

Kirkley and Richard Hawkins were named to the all-tournament team.

Prior to the championship game, Lubbock Christian College fell to Western New Mexico 98-78.

Steelers Plan Benefit Game

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers say they'll play play an off-season benefit basketball game for survivors of the University of Evansville, Ind., basketball team.

The 14-member team and coach Bobby Watson, a native of the Pittsburgh area, were among 29 persons killed when their twin-engine plane crashed Dec. 13 near Evansville.

The benefit game will be played after the Steelers end their National Football League playoff appearances, said Bernard J. Regan, a Pittsburgh magistrate who manages the team's off-season basketball squad.

'Bear & Woody Show' Opens In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—They raised the curtain on the "Bear and Woody Show" Wednesday—the guaranteed hit starring Wayne Woodrow Hayes and Paul Bryant, both supported by a cast of big, fast, mean football players.

Bryant of Alabama, with 272 major college victories to his credit, is the winning active coach in the business. Hayes of Ohio State, with 231, is second on the list.

Unfortunately, we had just scheduled a game with someone else.

Hayes said the Sugar Bowl meeting might lead to more meetings between Southeastern Conference teams and Big 10 teams. "When we began playing in the Rose Bowl, we began scheduling games with Pac-8 teams," he said. "I would think a game like this might tend to open up games and conferences."

Neither man would say anything concrete about his plans for the game.

"How would you defend Ohio State quarterback Rod Gerald? Well, you have to bring some people from somewhere to slow him down," Bryant responded to one question.

How does Ohio State plan to defend against Alabama's wishbone? "I don't worry about that," said Hayes. "I let our defensive coordinator worry about that. I just stand there and applaud."

Queens Retain No. 1 Spot

PLAINVIEW (Special)—The Wayland Baptist College Queens continue to lead the women's collegiate basketball poll, conducted by the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Forty coaches vote in the poll, and the Queens received 31 first-place votes. Delta State, the defending national AIAW champions, are ranked second and landed six first-place votes. Tennessee, ranked third, and UCLA, tapped seventh, drew the other first-place ballots.

The Queens are 10-0 for the season and do not play again until after the Christmas break.

Bucks Scuttle San Antonio

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Bucks, blending pressure defense with balanced scoring led by Marques Johnson's 23 points, opened a 28-point second quarter lead and rolled to a 116-92 National Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday night.

Dave Meyers added 18 points for the Bucks, who ran their winning streak to a season-high four games as the Spurs were held under 100 points for only the fourth time this season.

The Spurs, who lead the NBA in scoring, were paced by Larry Kenon and George Gervin with 16 points apiece.

The Bucks, sparked by four early baskets each by Quinn Buckner and Meyers and forcing turnovers with a switching, trapping defense, outscored the Spurs 16-2 to lead 28-11.

Reserve Alex English sank four baskets in less than three minutes as the Bucks built their lead to 54-26 with 4:05 left in the second quarter. The Spurs committed 16 turnovers in the first half, which ended with Milwaukee ahead 56-39.

Gervin and reserve Mo Layton led a rally as the Spurs three times cut their deficit to nine points early in the fourth quarter, the last at 91-82 with 8:55 to play.

help the Houston Rockets beat the New Jersey Nets 103-93.

Murphy scored eight of his team-leading points as the Rockets broke away from a 75-75 tie in the fourth quarter with a 15-6 burst. They were never headed after that. The Rockets built their lead to as many as 13 points, 101-88, in the game's closing minutes.

World Series Film Arrives Just In Time For Winter

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — On Wednesday, the first day of winter, baseball breathed some summertime into rainy New York by premiering its 1977 World Series film. The results were predictable with the Yankees still coming out on top in six games and Reggie Jackson, once again, stealing the show.

Time certainly has not dimmed Jackson's incredible performance of three home runs in three swings in the sixth and final game of the Series. The film opens with Jackson's third shot of that Tuesday night, a mammoth blast to center field, and it closes with the same sequence, also introducing footage of the immortal Babe Ruth circling the bases.

"The greatest single performance I've ever seen," said Dodger manager Tom Lasorda of Jackson's feats, which included four homers in his last four swings, most homers in a Series (5), runs (10) and total bases (25).

Jackson's classic home run swing was the subject of artist Paul Calle's official World Series lithograph, also unveiled Wednesday, with copies given to the baseball Hall of Fame, commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office, Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, Jackson and his Yankee teammates and the National Art Museum of Sport.

Steinbrenner accepted the lithograph on behalf of Jackson and his teammates, and it wasn't determined how the Yankees would split the prize. One was suggested that hanging the print in the Yankee locker room would result in eventual defacement — an obvious reference to Jackson's up-and-down season of turmoil and triumph.

But if Jackson's season was tainted, his Series was absolutely magnificent as the film portrays. "Reg-gie, Reg-gie, Reg-gie," the fans proclaim as their hero returns to the field to take his curtain call following his third homer of Game 6.

While Jackson played the lead role, other characters—some famous, some not—also shared in this entertaining and exciting filmed tribute to baseball's most classic event.

The Yankees won Game 1. Umpire Nestor Chylak was not even in the picture as the camera zoomed in on the Dodgers' Steve Garvey's slide into home plate. Chylak was somewhere up the first base line when he called Garvey out. (Garvey still looked safe.)

The Dodgers won Game 2. Mrs. Steve Yeager, wife of the Dodger catcher, cheers wildly after her husband smacks another homer off Catfish Hunter. The camera doesn't pick up her reaction after her husband is hit in the lower abdomen with a foul tip. "It only hurts a little while," says Lasorda as he comforts his fallen player.

Frank Sinatra is on hand as the Series moves to Hollywood country, where the Yankees, behind pitchers Mike Torrez and Ron Guidry, win the third and fourth games.

The Dodgers, behind clutch pitching from Don Sutton, win Game 5, but a dormant Jackson wakes up with a towering homer on his final swing, building the excitement for his sixth-game heroics.

Jackson walks on four pitches in his opening at-bat in Game 6, then socks a rocket to right field off Burt Hooton. Before he can get to Hooton again, Lasorda replaces "Happy" Hooton with reliever Elias Sosa.

"Happy, you're out of here," Lasorda says when he gets to the mound. But Lasorda then goes into his stalling act to give Sosa a little more time to warm up. Finally umpire John McSherry arrives at the mound.

"Hi John, how are you," asks a poker-faced Lasorda. "Make up your mind," McSherry commands.

"I don't know, John, it's such a hard decision. Whatever you say, I'll do."

They both wave their right arms, summoning Sosa.

It's these sidelights that give baseball, not beholden to any clock, its own special character. And on a raw, winter day in New York, with the official Series film—available for group showings—out of the can, spring training doesn't seem too far away.

TIGER IN THE KITCHEN—Rusty Staub, right, of the Detroit Tigers offers a plate of ribs to his friend, Bud Harrelson, shortstop of the New York Mets, Wednesday in the kitchen of his restaurant, Rusty's, in New York. After all, says Staub, what's the benefit of owning a restaurant if you can't feed a friend? The two became acquainted when both were playing with the Mets several years ago. (AP Laserphoto)

College Grid Attendance Increases

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Nearly 33 million people attended college football games this season, an increase of more than 1.5 percent over last year, the National Collegiate Athletic Association reported Wednesday.

The NCAA said attendance at all 638 football-playing four-year colleges in the United States totaled 32.9 million, an increase of more than 893,000 spectators from 1976. The increase in attendance was the biggest since 1971, when most colleges went to an 11-game schedule.

The NCAA said the average attendance per game was 10,463.

Average attendance at NCAA Division I games increased 2.52 percent to 30,805 per game. The biggest percentage increase in attendance was recorded by the 163 non-NCAA members—which includes schools belonging only to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and schools which belong to neither association. Their average attendance was up 8.31 percent to 2,607 per game.

NCAA Division III colleges showed the only decline in attendance, down 3.79 percent to 2,438 spectators per game.

The country's 36 major college independents increased 377,510 spectators, the largest increase ever recorded by independents.

Penn State moved to the top of the list among independents after expanding its stadium and averaged more than 62,000 spectators per game. Notre Dame was second with average attendance with 61,075, followed by South Carolina with 52,525, Pittsburgh with 47,978 and Georgia Tech with 45,716.

The Big Ten, which attracted nearly 3.7 million spectators to its games in 1977, remained the top drawing conference in the nation despite a slight decline to an average of 59,443 spectators per game.

The Southeastern Conference attracted 3.3 million spectators and was up nearly 5 percent. The Big Eight was third with attendance of nearly 2.5 million, an average of $3,900 per game, also a record.

The big three were followed by the Pacific Eight, 1.8 million and 41,816 per game; Southwest, 2.0 million and 39,131 per game; Atlantic Coast, 1.4 million and 36,418 per game, and Western Athletic,

1.3 million and 29,791 per game.

The biggest increase in per-game attendance was recorded by the Missouri Valley Conference, which increased its average attendance per game by more than 23 percent to 12,686. Total attendance at Missouri Valley games for the year was 431,324.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

STATEMENT RELEASED FROM AMARILLO by the president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association sympathized with farmers' concern about low prices...

"We see no merit in forcing packing plants, or other innocent bystanders, to close," he said. "This is counter-productive for all concerned. Packing plants are the marketplace for cattle feeders, and if we lose our markets everybody in the production chain suffers."

"Cattle feeders have been doing a good job of marketing their cattle as they become ready for slaughter," he added. "If we start closing down packing plants, we face the risk of a back-up of overfed cattle like we had following the government price freeze in 1973. That triggered a 'wreck' which we're just now working out of."

"The cattle leader compared the strikers' closing of packing plants with longshoremen's dock strikes, which shut down grain exports."

"We farmers deplore those — call them unfair, disruptive and counter-productive," he said. "And now we are doing the same thing to ourselves. It's illogical, especially when the only publicity resulting from it probably will work against us instead of for us."

THE STRIKE'S IMPACT WILL BE FELT mostly at the local level, the farmer-cattlemán said. "Farmers driving local businessmen out of business is unfair and against the wishes of most of the farmers I know," he said.

A more constructive approach to the problem of low prices, Miller said, would be for "all of us in agriculture to work together to develop markets and improve prices."

"Most farmers and cattlemen I know have grave reservations about asking the government to guarantee a profit by legislating 100 percent parity," he continued.

"This would necessitate strict government production controls. And stricter controls are the last thing most of us want."

"We believe in free enterprise and, thus, we prefer to produce for a free market."

Sale To China Deemed Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although China has bought some soybeans, cotton and soybean oil from the United States this year, prospects for it buying wheat or other grain continue to be slight, the Agriculture Department said this week.

A month ago, rumors circulated that China had purchased or was on the verge of buying U.S. wheat. Department officials discounted those reports at the time, and no evidence has surfaced since to indicate such sales.

The department said in a report included in a weekly issue of "Foreign Agriculture," published by the Foreign Agricultural Service, that sales of soybeans, cotton and soybean oil to China so far this calendar year total about $100 million.

Although this is up dramatically from only $44,000 worth of U.S. farm commodities sold to China last year, it is far below the record $664 million worth of products, including wheat, sold in 1974.

The report was written by Carolyn L. Whitton and Frederic M. Surls, foreign trade analysts in the department's Economic Research Service.

In addition to the cotton and soybean oil, China recently bought more than 75,000 metric tons of U.S. soybeans. But that was part of an old order for 390,000 tons China had placed with an American company, with a provision the beans could come from sources other than the United States.

Thus, the remainder of the 390,000 tons was provided from other sources, meaning that the United States was the "residual" supplier for whatever could not be provided elsewhere.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. "At least part of the amount (of soybeans) purchased in the United States will be going to third countries to fulfill PRC (People's Republic of China) export contracts," the report said.

Miss Whitton, co-author of the report, told a reporter that trade sources indicate part of the U.S. soybean sale is going to Roumania. China also normally exports soybeans to Japan, she said.

The report said that China's oilseed situation "continues to be tight despite recent claims of an increase in the 1977 oilseed harvest," and for the second time since the People's Republic was formed in 1949, has become a net importer of soybeans and edible oilseed oils. The previous time was in 1973.

As of last September, the most recent month analyzed, China's oilseed exports this calendar year totaled 67,600 tons, primarily soybeans. That compared with 210,000 tons exported in 1976, considered a relatively low level of exports, the report said.

Looking at China's grain import situation, the report said that more than four million tons of grain have already been sought from countries other than the United States for delivery in the first six months of 1978. Traditional suppliers include Canada and Australia.

The report said China's purchases of soybeans and the other commodities "cannot be taken as an indicator" of a change in its policy regarding U.S. grain and agricultural products in general.

"The United States may still be functioning as a residual supplier," the report said.

Live Cattle Futures Advance In Trading

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Trading on the plus side all session, live cattle futures ended seven to 37 points higher Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

February led the advance in an active trade of 10,516 contracts. The new spot month rose to a new season high and the highest since May at $43.65 per hundred-weight.

Traders were impressed by reduced cattle arrivals and the sharp upturn in cattle and beef prices despite the sizeable kill so far this week.

The wide discount of futures under cash also was a bullish influence, traders said.

Wholesale beef was up one cent at 69 1/4 cents per pound for all weights, highest since January 1976. Cash cattle were steady to up $1.50 per hundred-weight, with the best top at $46.50 at Joliet, highest since April 1976.

The six markets expect 9,000 head today, Wednesday's slaughter was estimated at 144,000 head.

Hog futures were up 47 points to off 35 on a turnover of 4,870 contracts. April paced the upturn as the distant February showed the most loss. The erratic trade was traced to evening up ahead of today's pig crop report from the Agriculture Department.

Selling followed weakness in cash hogs despite light runs and further cuts in hams. However, good support on the fall was stimulated by discounts of futures to cash and strength in cattle futures.

February equaled the season's high at $41.70.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off two cents at 81 1/4 to 85 cents per pound, f.o.b. river points, a two-month low. Cash hogs were off $1 to up 50 cents with the best top at Peoria at $46.

The six major terminals expect receipts at 23,000 head today. The kill Wednesday was set at 271,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures ended 20 points higher to 12 lower on sales of 5,092 contracts. March was up most and February suffered the greatest decline. Prices swung 50 points lower to 35 higher in an erratic movement.

Selling generally followed lower cash hogs despite light runs. Support on the setback was generated by the light storages out of town and in Chicago.

Traders also noted firmness in cash bellies. However, most traders seemed cautious ahead to today's pig report.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up one cent at 48 to 53 cents per pound, f.o.b. river, a three-month high.

Foundation Announces Grant To Grain Board

Jim Perry, in the name of the M. G. and Johnnie D. Perry Foundation, has announced a $10,000 grant from the foundation to the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB), headquartered in Lubbock.

In presenting the check to Larry Witten of Olton, TGSPB chairman, Perry said the grant was given to the board "for the good work it has done and with the hope that this (money) will help toward obtaining additional worldwide markets and better prices for U.S. grain sorghum producers."

Witten commended the foundation for its dedication to finding ways to help the farmer and rancher "obtain a fair and equitable profit for their products."

The foundation, established in 1946 and located in Robstown, also seeks to acquire more economical methods of production through research and education.

WASHINGTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission reported Wednesday that an order is being drafted which will "terminate" proceedings to determine whether reprocessing of highly toxic plutonium should be allowed.

Without plutonium reprocessing, development of the controversial "breeder" reactor, often criticized by President Carter, will receive a major and perhaps fatal blow.

By a 3 to 1 vote Monday, the commission agreed to terminate the "Generic Environmental Impact Statement on Mixed Oxide Fuels" proceedings and also to deny licenses to two plutonium recycling facilities, the Barnwell, S.C., facility recently attacked by the administration and a facility in Tennessee sought by Exxon.

NRC spokesman Vera Miles says that the termination order will contain certain "caveats" and exceptions.

Other sources indicate these exceptions may provide for continued experimental plutonium recycling. However, commercial reprocessing, a vital component of the nuclear breeder reactor industry, would not be permitted, it was indicated.

The breeder reactor actually produces more fuel than it consumes and has been touted by the electric utility industry as the source of reasonably cheap fuel for conventional nuclear reactors.

With the supply of uranium ore rapidly dwindling and the cost of fissionable uranium soaring, the utilities have been counting on approval of plutonium recycling by the NRC.

Advertisement for LOKEY'S YOUR CHRISTMAS STORE. Features a sunflower character and text: "Sunny Sunflower says... ARE YOU KEEPING CHRISTMAS? It is a good thing to observe Christmas Day. The mere marking of time and seasons, when men agree to stop work and make merry together, is a wise and wholesome custom. It helps one to feel the supremacy of common life over the individual life. It reminds a man to set his own little watch, now and then, by the great clock of humanity which runs on sun time. But there is a better thing than the observance of Christmas Day, and that is, keeping Christmas. Are you willing to forget what you have done for other people, and to remember what other people have done for you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put rights in the background, and your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellow-men are just as real as you are, and to try to look behind their faces to their hearts, hungry for joy; to know that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are going to get out of life, but what you are going to give to life; to close your books of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness - are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas. Are you willing to stoop down and consider the needs and the desires of little children; to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear in their hearts; to try to understand what those who live in the same house with you really want, without waiting for them to tell you; to trim your lamp so that it will give more light and less smoke, and to carry it in front so that your shadow will fall behind you; to make a grave for your ugly thoughts and a garden for a day? Then you can keep Christmas."
