

Space Agency Rejects New UFO Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. space agency has rejected a White House request to reopen a government probe into unidentified flying objects, saying it would be "wasteful and probably unproductive."

But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it stands ready to analyze any "bona fide physical evidence from credible sources" — evidence that it said has never been found.

The rejection was made in a letter sent last week by NASA Administrator Robert Frosch to Dr. Frank Press, President Carter's science adviser. Press said he accepted NASA's conclusions and did not plan to pursue the matter further.

In 1969, the Air Force closed the government's formal UFO investigation, called Project Blue Book. After 22 years of study and considerable expense, the Air Force concluded that, in the absence of significant findings, continuation of the project was unwarranted.

In a letter to Frosch last July, Press asked that NASA become the government's focal point in a "national revival" of interest in reports of UFO sightings. He recommended that the agency establish a small panel of inquiry.

Press said there was an upsurge in letters received by his office asking about UFOs, especially from young people. He said his staff was too small to answer them and assigned the job to NASA.

Many of the recent letters, averaging two or three a day, have been prompted by the new UFO movie, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." Several demand that Carter make good on a campaign promise that if there were any secrets about UFOs he would flush them out.

Carter reported in 1973, while governor of Georgia, that several years earlier he had seen a UFO in the form of a "glowing light" in the night sky. "I don't laugh at people anymore when they say they have seen UFOs because I've seen one myself," Carter was quoted as saying.

Frosch wrote Press that a NASA technical committee had carefully considered establishing a UFO panel. "I do not feel that we could mount a research effort without a better starting point than we have been able to identify thus far," he added.

"I would therefore propose that NASA take no steps to establish a research activity in this area or to convene a symposium on this subject.

"There is an absence of tangible or physical evidence available for thorough laboratory analysis... To proceed on a research task without a disciplinary framework and an exploratory technique in mind would be wasteful and probably unproductive."

Frosch said he did not intend to indicate in his letter that NASA "has come to an conclusion about these phenomena as such. Institutionally we retain an open mind, a keen sense of scientific curiosity, and a willingness to analyze technical problems within our capability.

"If some new element of hard evidence is brought to our attention in the future, it would be entirely appropriate for a NASA laboratory to analyze and report upon an otherwise unexplained organic or inorganic sample," he added.

Galveston Grain Blast Kills Three

Sadat Sees Hope Of Peace Pact

By The Associated Press

EGYPTIAN President Anwar Sadat said in interviews Tuesday that Israel has not yet made the "difficult decision" needed for Mideast peace but he held out hope of an agreement within two months.

Egyptian sources said Sadat has a counter-plan on the Palestinian issue.

On the prospects for a settlement, Sadat told ABC Evening News: "Premier Begin yesterday said about three months. I may say, two."

The president complained he found "no room for maneuverability" in Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's position on the Palestinian question, which sharply split the two leaders at their Christmas summit.

"Cannot Be Shared"

Egyptian sources told The Associated Press that Egypt's counter-plan points out that "sovereignty of land cannot be shared" and that continued Israeli military presence on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River "will automatically nullify Palestinian identity."

In an interview with NBC television, Sadat said he expects "concrete results" in six to eight weeks and he hoped a peace settlement could be wrapped up by March.

"The Israelis are taking the position of self-determination," he said. "Our position is self-determination and really isn't it a great leap and a real success that after only 40 days from the time I visited Jerusalem we are differing on this Palestinian question in this respect."

He noted that before his Nov. 19-21 visit, Israel claimed the West Bank was liberated Israeli land.

Sadat said he was sending messages to other Arab leaders "telling them about what has taken place between me and Begin and the result and why we didn't make the declaration of principles. I am telling them the whole story."

But he said he would not brief Arab rejectionists who have attacked his peace initiative. "Why should I send them anything?"

The Egyptian plan, intended as an answer to Begin's own peace proposals, will be submitted to Egyptian-Israeli ministerial committees when the panels begin meeting in mid-January.

Waterfront Explosion Hurts 19

GALVESTON (AP) — An explosion heard up to 70 miles away tore through a waterfront grain elevator here Tuesday night, killing at least three persons and injuring as many as 19 others. Two men were reported trapped in the rubble.

Capt. Eddie Chapman of the Port of Galveston Police said heavy equipment would have to be moved in to try to rescue the trapped workers at the Farmers Industry Grain Elevator.

A spokesman for the Galveston County Sheriff's Department said three persons were killed in the explosion in the control section of the grain elevator.

"Expecting More"

Myles Klape, a spokesman for John Sealy Hospital, said 14 persons were taken there for treatment of burns, some of them serious.

"We're expecting more," Klape said. Other officials said at least 19 persons were injured.

Ambulances and firefighters from Houston, Texas City and other nearby cities responded to the scene. Fire officials said they feared a fire that broke out after the explosion might trigger other blasts.

The control section of the grain elevator, located about a mile from downtown Galveston, includes buildings which are not near the grain storage silos. The silos contain highly volatile grain dust which can ignite and explode from even the smallest spark.

New Orleans Blast

A dust explosion is believed to have been responsible for the deaths of at least 34 workers in a New Orleans grain elevator last week.

Windows of buildings in Galveston's business district were shattered and knocked out by the force of Tuesday night's blast.

Residents of Port Arthur and Beaumont, up to 70 miles away, heard and felt vibrations from the blast and flooded telephone lines to local newspapers and radio stations seeking an explanation.

Authorities in the Port of Galveston were trying to move two ships which were loading at the elevator at the time of the explosion. Some boats were being used to search for potential victims in the water.

UT CHIEF RETURNS

AUSTIN (AP) — President Lorene Rogers of the University of Texas returned here Tuesday, seven days after undergoing surgery in Houston for uterine cancer. She will recuperate at her home. Officials at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute said the cancer was in an early stage and was confined to the uterus.

Rain, Snow Chances Upgraded

IF YOU'RE still wishing it would snow during the holidays, you may get your wish today — kind of.

Weathermen advise looking very carefully today and tonight, and you might catch a glimpse of a few flakes of that much heralded substance.

But mainly forecasters say they're predicting rain.

"It's not impossible to see some flakes," one weatherman said, "but there's not enough cold air to call for snow."

"There's a very small possibility of snow flakes, but the chance of snow is very small compared to the chance of rain."

Upstate New York Deluged

However, residents of upstate New York probably wish all they were seeing was a few flakes. A post-Christmas storm dumped two feet of snow on portions of New York Tuesday when a storm blew in from Lake Erie.

The chance of rain in Lubbock is 20 percent today, increasing to 40 percent tonight. When it's not raining, cloudy skies will keep the sunshine to a single hour today and three hours on Thursday.

Partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures are expected Friday, with a chance of rain developing over the weekend.

Upper Level Disturbance

National Weather Service officials attribute the threat of precipitation to an upper level disturbance off the coast of California.

The disturbance is expected to begin moving eastward by Wednesday and continue its trek Thursday, eventually meeting the considerable moisture which already has spread into northwestern Texas in advance of the system.

Although less than 10 of an inch of rain is forecast from the possible showers, the humidity should increase accordingly. The humidity should dip to 45 percent this afternoon and Thursday afternoon, but increase to 80 percent early Thursday morning.

Already Tuesday some portions of the state were seeing evidence of the abundant moisture. A few scattered rainshowers were evident in South and Southwest Texas Tuesday evening and light rain was reported south of Midland.

Showers were also reported south of Hobbs, N.M.

However, only El Paso recorded a measurable amount of rain with .01 of an inch.

Although the winds on the South Plains were southerly Tuesday, most residents would have vouched they chilled to the bone just like those from the north.

The winds averaged between 20-25 mph

Tuesday with the strongest gust reaching 32 mph. Cloudy skies kept the mercury to only 44 degrees, following an overnight low reading of 28 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation, torrential rains soaked southern California, triggering mudslides. The slides closed several roads and flooding was reported in some lanes of the Ventura Freeway.

One traffic death was attributed to the storm.

However, light rains which fell in the state's San Joaquin Valley brought limited relief to a two-year drought in that area.

Carter Picks Fellow Georgian McIntyre As Budget Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — James T. McIntyre, passing an informal on-the-job trial, was selected Tuesday by President Carter to replace Bert Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget. McIntyre took over as acting budget director when Lance resigned Sept. 21, during the controversy over his banking activities. In the past three months, McIntyre had supervised preparation of the fiscal 1979 budget. Carter is expected to unveil the budget Jan. 23.

"He's a professional in every sense of the word, a dedicated career public servant," Carter said of the 37-year-old McIntyre, like Carter a native Georgian.

"He has been successful in putting together the fiscal year 1979 budget," said the president. "It's a thankless job."

Carter, making a surprise appearance in the White House press room, then turned to his newest choice to join the inner circle of Cabinet-level advisers. "I'm very proud of Jim McIntyre," the president said.

As he left the press room, Carter told several OMB employees, "You've got a good boss."

McIntyre told reporters that, without casting a bad reflection on Lance, he "probably will be more involved in the day-to-day decisions and workings of OMB than his predecessor."

"I like to think I run a fairly tight ship," McIntyre said. "I don't plan major personnel changes."

As for his dealings with Carter, McIntyre said, "While my predecessor had more of a personal relationship, mine has been a very professional, business relationship."

He said, however, "I feel personally relaxed and at ease with the president. I don't mind telling him what I think."

The president must wait until Congress returns from its holiday recess Jan. 19 before formally submitting McIntyre's name to the Senate for confirmation.

McIntyre, a native of Vidalia, Ga., was the budget director for Georgia when Carter was governor. He was the deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget under Lance.

McIntyre said he had spoken with Lance several times but that his own experience as acting budget director elimi-

Lubbock Man Charged In Yule Slaying

ONE LAW enforcement investigation was over and another continued Tuesday, following two apparent homicides which spoiled the city's holiday tranquility Christmas Eve and Christmas day.

An 18-year-old Lubbock Independent School District employee, John G. Morin, 316 Ave. R, was charged Tuesday with the Christmas Day murder of a 21-year-old Lubbock man.

Peace Justice L. J. Blalack set bond at $5,000.

Man Found Dead

Police investigating a call about 11:45 p.m. Sunday found the body of Clifton Ray Casbeer slumped across the steering wheel of his small foreign car, but his assailants, witnesses said, already had sped off in a yellow Chevrolet Nova.

A vehicle matching that description was detained just minutes later at the intersection of 4th Street and Avenue Q by Sgt. Jerry Parker of the Lubbock Police Department.

While several persons were taken into custody after other officers arrived to provide back-up support for Parker, Morin eventually was the only person detained, police said.

The fight began earlier Sunday when several men reportedly chased the man's car to the 2500-block of 4th Street.

One witness said he drove by the scene

Energy Problem No Nearer Solution

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's energy crisis struck home at the start of 1977 as Americans shivered through the coldest winter on record. But at year's end the country still lacked an answer to chronic energy shortages and its growing dependence on foreign oil.

As record snowfalls piled up in some cities last winter and many rivers froze, the demand for home heating siphoned off the short supply of natural gas from industries, businesses and schools, forcing thousands to close and idling about 1.2 million workers.

When President Carter took office Jan. 20, he promptly urged the American people to turn down their thermostats and made energy a top priority.

In April, he presented to Congress a comprehensive "National Energy Plan." His strategy was to promote energy conservation and encourage a shift from oil and natural gas to coal and nuclear power.

'Demand for home heating siphoned off the short supply of natural gas from industries, businesses and schools...'

Carter asked for, and got, a new Department of Energy, officially opened Oct. 1 with James R. Schlesinger, once head of the nation's defense and nuclear programs, as its first secretary.

Carter previewed his energy plan on April 18, with warnings of a future world fuel crisis. But by then, snowbound roads and frozen waterways had thwarted and natural gas demand had dropped.

The return of energy comfort, however, only masked the continuing problem, Carter administration officials warned.

Natural gas production, dwindling since 1973, shrank another 3 percent in 1977. Government experts said normal weather, fuel conservation and less industrial use of natural gas were the only ways to avoid a repeat of the gas shortage.

Imports of foreign oil continued to increase — at a rate of about 20 percent in 1977.

Before the Arab oil embargo of 1973, the nation depended on foreign oil for about 37 percent of its total needs, but in 1977 that dependency had reached 48 percent.

And at prices imposed by the world oil cartel, those petroleum imports cost the United States an estimated $45 billion in 1977, about 2 percent of the Gross National Product.

On the other hand, U.S. oil companies spent more and drilled more. Domestic oil production, in decline since 1970, leveled off at about 8.2 million barrels a day in 1977 with the June 30 opening of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline.

On July 8, the pipeline was disabled by an explosion, later blamed on human error, which killed one worker and destroyed a pump station. It resumed operation July 20, but at a reduced flow.

Another problem with the Alaskan oil was distribution. The U.S. west coast, destination of the oil, did not need it all and the Carter administration barred Alaskan oil exports to Japan on July 10.

That meant excess Alaska oil had to be shipped through the Panama Canal to oil ports on the Gulf of Mexico while the government processed a belated proposal by Standard Oil of Ohio for a pipeline from California to Texas.

Congress moved to authorize a pipeline for Alaska natural gas, parallel to the oil pipeline. The United States and Canada agreed on its southbound route along the Alcan Highway.

Meanwhile, on July 21, Schlesinger turned a valve in Louisiana sending the first shipment of crude oil, a tanker load from Saudi Arabia, into an underground strategic petroleum reserve destined to hold 500 million barrels, as insurance against an interruption of imports.

Even without Carter's legislation to spur coal use, coal consumption increased some 4.7 percent in 1977 as electric power plants stepped up coal-burning about 7 percent.

New regulations required environmental repairs after strip-mining, irritating the coal industry but resolving a longstanding problem.

In August, Congress passed and Carter signed amendments to protect clean air but allow some new power plants and industrial growth, another boost for coal.

But coal mining ended the year on a sour note as the United Mine Workers of America went on strike Dec. 6, stalemated in talks on a new labor contract.

Nuclear power faced a dreary year with new plant orders stagnating, minor problems nagging some existing plants and militant opposition battling future reactors.

Concern over earthquake faults stalled operations at the Humboldt Bay nuclear plant in California and the North Anna projects in Virginia. The discovery of untested electrical connectors shut down the D.C. Cook nuclear plant in Michigan.

Some 2,000 protesters camped on the construction site of New Hampshire's Seabrook nuclear power plant and more than 1,400 were arrested May 1 and 2, but federal agencies approved the project in July.

Electric generating capacity generally was adequate in 1977, but the Northwest's hydroelectric system was depleted by a prolonged drought and New York City's overloaded Consolidated Edison system blacked out in the heat of August.

Carter moved to divorce peaceful nuclear power from the threat of worldwide nuclear weapons spread, vetoing the planned Clinch River breeder reactor, a type of power plant capable of producing plutonium which could be used to produce bombs.

'Nuclear power faced a dreary year with new plant orders and militant opposition battling future reactors...'

Carter proposed U.S. government storage of radioactive wastes and an international nuclear fuel bank, to discourage the spread of national processing and storage facilities.

But completion of the energy plan eluded Carter and Congress through the year.

Carter's proposal of a new tax on gasoline was quickly rejected.

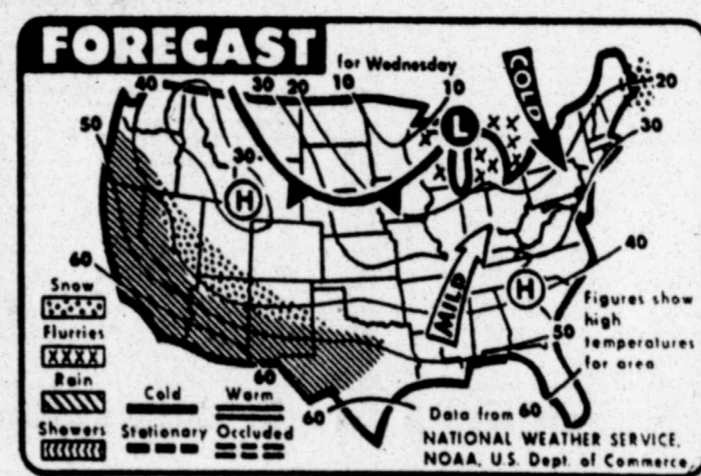

The House approved his proposed taxes on crude oil, fuel-inefficient cars and industrial use of oil and gas. But the Senate balked and ended approving federal regulation of natural gas, a move opposed by Carter and the House.

Congress adjourned, without an energy law, for the Christmas holidays.

But weary members of its conference committee continued looking to a compromise that could sweeten the bitter medicine demanded by the chronic energy ailment enough for the House, the Senate and the president to swallow it in 1978.

Jailed Georgia Man Escapes From Prison

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Buddy Cochran, the white ex-Marine who said his revulsion at racism made him plow his Jaguar through a Ku Klux Klan rally in President Carter's hometown, escaped Tuesday from the Sumter County jail, where he was serving a 12-year sentence.

Authorities said Cochran and Michael S. Proctor, who was awaiting trial for rape, sawed off the lock to their cell door about 7:45 a.m. and bounded off into the woods.

"They took out and we were right behind them," said Sheriff Randy Howard. He deputized a posse of about 30 persons and called in bloodhounds to take up the pair's trail.

Deputies said the dogs trailed the men for several blocks through dense pine woods to railway tracks where they lost the scent.

No trains were passing through at the time, and authorities said they do not believe the pair left the area.

A short time later, Cochran's wife, Mary Sue, who visited him at the jail on Monday, was taken into custody for questioning. Howard said she was not charged.

Cochran, 30, an Americus truck mechanic, was convicted Oct. 25 of eight counts of aggravated assault in the July 2 incident in Plains.

Authorities and witnesses at his trial said Cochran revved up his foreign sports car and rammed it at a speed of between 50 and 60 mph beneath the speaker's platform and into the crowd that was being addressed by Bill Wilkinson, Imperial Wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan.

Thirty-two persons were injured. After Cochran's arrest, Sheriff Howard — who reported that Cochran told him he had drunk no more than a six-pack of beer — said blood-alcohol tests showed Cochran had drunk enough to be legally intoxicated. At his trial, the prosecution maintained Cochran was drunk and looking for trouble.

Defense attorney Robert Bryan said Cochran, who had served two tours of duty in Vietnam, was driven to temporary insanity by the racist atmosphere of the rally.

Cochran testified that his closest Marine buddy was a black man who was later killed in Vietnam, and that he had seen two black Marines hanged in North Carolina shortly after a Klan rally was held nearby.

President Carter's mother, "Miss Lillian," testified at the trial that she saw part of the rally from a distance but left before the trouble broke out.

A jury of six whites and six blacks, who at one time had reported they were deadlocked, convicted Cochran after 13 hours of deliberation.

Cochran could have been sentenced to a maximum of 80 years in prison but he was sentenced to 12 years plus eight more years on probation on Nov. 17.

Death Toll In Dorm Fire Reaches Nine

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Two 18-year-old Connecticut women severely burned in a dormitory fire at Providence College two weeks ago have died, bringing the fire's death toll to nine.

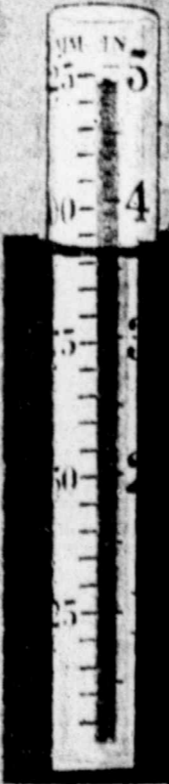

Dorothy A. Widman of Cheshire died Monday night at Roger Williams Hospital. Sally Garvey of Enfield died Tuesday morning at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

They were among 15 persons injured when fire flashed through the fourth floor of Aquinas Hall early in the morning of Dec. 13.

Seven women students, including two who jumped from fourth-story windows to the snow-covered ground, died that day. Officials said they believed the blaze was caused by a Christmas manger display illuminated by a high-intensity bulb.

Three women students remain hospitalized, two of them in serious condition.

Savings for a rainy day makes good sense at Plains.

Everybody talks about the weather. And when it rains on the Southern High Plains that's really something to talk about.

Everybody talks about saving some money for the future. For the children's college expenses. For a special vacation. For emergencies. For security. But, like the weather, talking about savings doesn't cause anything to happen.

Plains National Bank can help you make something happen about your savings. With passbook savings accounts and certificates of deposit. Both pay the highest interest permitted by law. We'll even draft your checking account monthly to help you automatically set aside a portion of your earnings for that future need.

Next time you want to talk about the weather, talk to your rain maker. Next time you want to talk about savings, talk to Plains National Bank.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Subtle Shift To The Right

"A SUBTLE BUT perceptible shift to the right" in Americans' thinking is being analyzed by politicians and social scientists from coast to coast.

Whether the shift is just a passing phase or represents a deeper and permanent reaction to the liberal excesses of the last 15 years is of importance to every American.

The movement reached a zenith of sorts in the landslide defeat of ultra-liberal George McGovern in 1972, faded into the background during the Watergate turmoil, and re-emerged in a more organized manner after the election of Jimmy Carter last fall.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT is making itself heard on such social issues as forced busing, welfare, gay rights, the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion and consumerism.

In the past, what was interpreted as public sentiment more often was the well-articulated position of a civil rights organization such as the NAACP or of a relatively small activist group such as those fronted by Ralph Nader.

It was only after the demands of such groups were carried to excess by politicians and courts, eager to please "the public demand," that moderates and middle-roads began to become alarmed.

AN EDITORIAL:

It Only Counts If It's There

PERFUME atomizers and other cosmetic sprays containing chlorofluorocarbons sold this holiday season will be the last batch not to carry the following message:

"Warning: Contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

The Food and Drug Administration cosmetic labeling order, which goes into effect Saturday, Dec. 31, is part of a gradual phase-out of all chlorofluorocarbon sprays.

CHLOROFLOUROCARBON is the chemical name for gases made of chlorine, fluorine and carbon. First used by General Motors for refrigeration in 1928, they were favored because of their low toxicity, low reactivity and nonflammability.

During World War II, they were used in insecticide "bug bomb" sprays, and, in 1950, they entered the personal consumer market as propellants for hair spray.

Thirty million aerosol containers were sold in the United States that year. It is estimated that the current ban, when fully instituted, will affect more than a billion pressurized spray containers.

FEDERAL CONCERN centers on scientific findings that chlorofluorocarbons are destroying the ozone layer of the atmosphere.

M. STANTON EVANS:

'Quotas' By Any Name Smell Bad To Congress

WASHINGTON—One of the lessons we supposedly derived from Watergate was that Congress must protect its rightful powers from the executive.

It was improper, we were told, for the executive to thwart the legislative will through fund impoundments, secret initiatives or subtle twisting of the laws that Congress in its majesty enacted.

For some peculiar reason, however, this weighty lesson is not applied to other controversies of more recent vintage. Like, for instance, quotas.

In the wake of the Allan Bakke case, virtually everything imaginable has been said about quotas, both pro and con.

That they are a form of reverse discrimination, that they are constitutional (or not), that they are needed to sustain the progress of minorities, that they are demeaning to minorities, and so on.

WHAT IS ALMOST never mentioned, however, is that quotas, be they good, bad or indifferent in their merits, are flatly contrary to the will of Congress.

In adopting the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which is the controlling statute in such cases, Congress unequivocally set its face against the use of racial balances, including quotas and racial balance busing.

These prohibitions were written into the statute (Sections 401 and 407) and were stressed in floor debate by sponsors of the bill, including Sens. Hubert Humphrey, Joseph Clark and Clifford Case, on the plausible grounds that "quotas are themselves discriminatory."

No sooner was this law enacted than members of the executive bureaucracy—with a big assist from the federal courts—went to work to stand it on its head.

FOR UPWARDS OF a decade now, the minions of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Labor Department, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and other agencies of the executive have been promoting racial, ethnic and sexual balance by every means at their disposal.

And they have done so under the presumed au-

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Switch Rather Than...

WASHINGTON—Despite the appearance of a bare minimum of concessions, Prime Minister Menahem Begin of Israel has in fact modified a lifetime of prejudicial thinking on relations with the Arabs—a development of vast importance forecast by a confidential State Department memorandum six weeks ago.

The memo, drafted for Sec. of State Cyrus Vance before peace talks between Egypt and Israel, traced an evolution in Begin's political thinking that was inconceivable before his election as Israeli prime minister last spring.

Written by Mideast experts in the State Department's intelligence branch, the analysis accurately foresaw what even hard-nosed realists in the administration now concede.

Thus, the private sour reaction here to Begin's self-invited visit is sweetening considerably. For the first time since Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's pilgrimage to Jerusalem Nov. 19, the Carter administration's highest officials now see a real chance for an Israeli-Egyptian peace—and a separate settlement for the one million Arabs in the West Bank and Gaza.

Andrew Tully: No One's Laughing

WASHINGTON—If I ever met the guy who sent the "Christmas" card, I had fortunately forgotten him. The card shows a leering Santa Claus peering down a female décolletage.

Bad taste, of course. But the relevant question is why the guy bothered to send out "Christmas" greetings.

Maybe he did so because he got a few extra days off from some bureaucratic cubbyhole and wanted to celebrate sleeping late.

Christmas is funny these days, but not ho-ho-ho funny. For some, Dec. 25 might as well be Arbor Day.

The coffee table is piled high with "Christmas" cards imprinted with bird's eye views of New York City, Ashtabula, Miami, and London.

Some have pictures of dogs, cats, mice and (1) a rhinoceros.

THE IDEA, OF course, is to take the Christ out of what is supposed to be a Christ Mass. This puzzles me. The day, after all, celebrates the birth of a Man named Jesus.

For some, He is the Savior, for others merely another prophet. But Dec. 25 is a holiday because it is Christ's birthday, not because it puts extra dough in the pockets of booze peddlers.

It is every individual's right not to believe. Parenthetically, one of the most compassionate men I ever knew was a roaring atheist. But he didn't send out Christmas cards, and he worked every Christmas Day.

He was not compromising his atheism by taking advantage of a holiday of which he disapproved.

"Have fun," he'd say, "but no, I don't want to take on my daily two ounces of bourbon in front of a Christmas tree."

ANYWAY, I WAS not surprised to learn that in Washington area, public school officials did their best to "neutralize" what they called the "Winter Holiday Observance." That First Amendment ban on establishment of religion, you know.

"How do we deal with it?" a spokesman for the Montgomery County school system asked the Washington Post. "Tenderly. That's how we do it."

"We just try to stay away from legalistic language, depend on people's sensitivities and judgment, and hope there won't be any nativity scenes on the school lawn."

I suppose that's okay, if a touch mealy-mouthed. Public schools worry themselves to death about the feds withholding funds if they seem to acknowledge the official definition of Christmas Day.

BUT HOW ABOUT this Prince Georges County directive? It quotes from a 1964 publication of the American Association of School Administrators:

"A public school may not observe Christmas as though it were a church or a combination of churches.

"On the other hand, an educational institution for children may not, consistent with proven educational principles of readiness and interest, ignore Christmas."

Because I am not a Supreme Court justice, I can't figure out how Christmas Day, as a piece of history, can be observed without noting its religious origin.

Even if the role of "a church or a combination of churches" may not even be implied, the fact remains that Dec. 25 does not honor an obscure Jewish carpenter.

That being the indisputable case, one wonders why the American Civil Liberties Union does not forthwith go into court and proclaim that Christmas Day is unconstitutional because Jesus "established a religion" called Christianity.

JAY HARRIS:

A Glance Back...

FOR MORE years than we sometimes remember, we have been making an annual Holiday visit into the Panhandle.

In some ways, whether during a festive occasion or at Christmastime, it is like going to another country.

Although adjacent to and sometimes confused as being the same, the Panhandle and the South Plains are two distinct entities.

And in some respects, so are those who call each home.

It's only one man's opinion, but to us the South Plains appears as a much more tightly knit, more heavily populated and in some respects busier area.

The Panhandle, although its terrain is marked by the colorful cliffs of Palo Duro and the rolling hills of the Canadian River, nevertheless seems to be the place where one can see from here to yonder and then some...

DRIVING FROM Spearman to Borger and Amarillo and on toward Canyon and Lubbock Christmas Day, we passed through a panorama that holds the key to what happens to the nation.

As the burnished rays of a setting sun colored the blue sky pink, then purple and red, high overhead the frozen trail of a jet liner cut an arrow across the heavens.

The Panhandle-South Plains long ago joined the Twentieth Century, and in fact has already taken a giant step toward the next one with visions of atomic and solar power.

As the golden shadows spread across the rolling hills around Spearman, cattle grazing on winter wheat, portents of food for the world if the price is right. Next, in the red clay hills around Borger, oil well Christmas Trees and pumps tapped fossil fuels of another time, another age. A product also embroiled in controversy.

Further south and nearer Plainview and Lubbock, brown fields gave mute testimony to a record-breaking cotton crop and a bumper grain yield—food and fiber for a nation and a world.

A LOT OF things are happening up in the land of the Big Sky, Golden Spread and a state unto itself.

The Panhandle has just passed through a special election to name a new state senator. Bob Price, a former Congressman from the area won the honor in a squeaker in which only about 18 per cent of the electorate bothered to vote.

In Amarillo, politics and charges and countercharges, primarily among county officials, has caused one downstate paper to label recent events as a possible "Pottergate." Thus far there's been more smoke than fire.

In Canyon, out at West Texas State University, a new president, former Sen. Max Sherman, is shaking things up with his "austerity" program.

And everyone is talking about what is happening on the farm front and wondering where it will all end.

FOR WHATEVER it is worth, Panhandle residents seem to pay more attention to what is happening "down south" than we around here do "up north."

There was a time a couple of three decades ago when Lubbock particularly watched everything Amarillo did, either with a jaundiced or envious eye.

Partially born of the athletic rivalry between the Amarillo High Sandies and Lubbock High Westerners, and the argument over which city was larger, the "friendly feud" lasted for decades. In fact, in some Amarillo circles, it continues to this day.

But, as far as Lubbockites are concerned, the feud ended in the late 1960s and early 1970s when the census removed all doubt about which city was larger. The Hub City won hands down.

And, although both have continued to grow and glow, Lubbock has maintained, even increased, its status in the population bracket as well as several other areas.

BUT, ALTHOUGH there are some major differences in the two distinct yet contiguous sections of the state, there also are many similarities.

Both the Panhandle and South Plains to an extent focus attention on one large metropolitan area and numerous smaller communities.

In both cases, the smaller communities also are growing, are prosperous and in some respects have far less problems in the area of crime and politics than their two larger sister neighbors.

It may come as something of a shock to the city dwellers of Lubbock and Amarillo, but residents of some of the smaller communities still feel safe in leaving their cars unlocked!

They also still exhibit a neighborliness often lacking even among those living next door to one another in the jam-packed environs of Lubbock and Amarillo.

AND WHILE modern machinery, "in town" living styles and conveniences abound in most rural areas, something else also is abundant.

It is an independence and self-reliance born perhaps of a pioneering spirit which seems to have been snuffed out in the concrete canyons and high-speed expressways of the metropolis today.

The rural Panhandle and South Plains resident today still has a wholesome respect for the soil, for the rolling plains and canyons and the heritage which conquered them.

In the smoky haze of dusk's "half light," one can envision the Indian bands of yore trailing through the brakes of the Canadian, the Cowboys and cattle herds stirring dust clouds, the first tentative oil and irrigation wells...the buildings, people and progress...that followed.

Through the years, we have made the trip in all sorts of weather, at times late and tired. The landscape has been altered by time. But, the sunsets, the people and the spirit basically remain unchanged, which is good.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q "I JUST bought a belt labeled size 38, but it's actually 43 inches long. How come?"

A The size is supposed to be the distance from the buckle's end to the middle notch. That brings up the question of how many notches are punched into the typical belt. Five is standard, now. But a lot of those beltmakers don't stick to the rules, the rascals. Some hole out as many as 10 notches for the sake of the bellows bodies. Source of this data, belt expert Leland Williams, says belts can be expected to stretch from wear from year to year, though, oddly, most appear to shrink.

Lance's Arab Benefactor Denies Seeking Favor

ATLANTA (AP)—Ghaith R. Pharaon, a Saudi Arabian who heads an international conglomerate with assets of $150 million, said Tuesday he expects to become even richer while helping to bail out former budget director Bert Lance from a much publicized financial hole.

But Pharaon denied that his offer to buy controlling interest in the National Bank of Georgia, including 120,000 shares held by Lance, was designed to win favor with Lance's long-time friend, President Carter.

"If I made business decisions based on that, I wouldn't be today what I am," the Saudi told a news conference. "We have influence where we come from."

Lance, a former National Bank of Georgia president who left the Carter administration last summer amid criticism of his personal financial dealings, said the deal helps resolve his financial difficulties "to a great degree."

National Bank of Georgia president Robert Guyton said the board of directors approved warranties "that need to be made on behalf of the bank" in order for Pharaon to buy 60 percent of Lance's 200,000 NBG shares. They also approved in principle Pharaon's offer to buy 60 percent of all the bank's 1.2 million shares at $20 per share — the same price offered Lance.

The deal still must be approved by the bank's shareholders.

The price Pharaon offered to pay is nearly double the over-the-counter price of the stock before Pharaon announced his intentions, but he said his offer was not inflated.

The value of the stock should rise "rather dramatically in the years to come," he said.

Lance agreed that the price was not inflated, saying, "I'm not for sale. I've never been for sale, and that stands on its own."

He acknowledged that the deal would help cure what he referred to as "my so-called sick loans."

"I think it covers that and makes them well, if indeed they ever were sick," he said. Criticism of Lance during U.S. Senate hearings included allegations that not all his loans — some of them substantial — were "fully collateralized."

If the National Bank of Georgia deal goes through, it would be the third U.S. bank in which the 37-year-old Saudi businessman has invested.

Two years ago, he bought a 40 percent interest in The Bank of the Commonwealth in Detroit for $10.5 million, but sold his interest a year later.

Last summer he bought 20 percent interest in the Main Bank of Houston, in which former Treasury Secretary John Connally is a stockholder.

Pharaon's hopes of using American investment to build bridges with the Middle East apparently have been bolstered by subsequent acquisitions of 38 percent of Sam P. Wallace, a Dallas-based mechanical contracting firm, and a controlling share in International Systems Inc., a Mobile, Ala., maker of modular housing.

City Manager Reveals Trash System Costs

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — According to Childress City Mgr. David Galligan, an estimated $163,000 is being invested in the conversion of the city's trash collection system from the garbage can method to large multi-family dumpsters.

Galligan said delivery of the first 100 of the 3 cubic yard containers is expected this week. At the same time, the city will accept delivery of a new trash-compacting truck and send an older truck for conversion so it may be used in the new system.

"We're proud of the new system," Galligan said. "It will clean up the community, eliminate most of the problems with dogs, save money, be easier to use and is a health factor."

City officials estimate that because of the new system, the trash collection system will progress from monthly losses to a break-even operation. Eventually, it will be saving the city almost $4,000 per month.

The system is to be supplied by EMCO of Plainview. When complete, 735 containers and two trucks will be in service.

"The first load of containers will be placed in the downtown area and on each side of U.S. 287," Galligan said. "Then we'll start placing the units in residential areas."

At the most, there will be three units for each residential block with placement depending on available space and loading requirements.

City workers will remove all old containers now in use if residents desire, Galligan said, adding that once the new dumpsters are in place all old trash cans should be stored or discarded.

Commercial service is to continue on a daily basis while residential pickups will be twice weekly, weather permitting.

"The entire city should be included in the new system by the end of February," Galligan estimated.

Adult Classes, Testing Slated At Childress

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — Herman Vinson, director of adult education, has announced the scheduling of upcoming adult education classes and G.E.D. testing here.

Adult classes, which will begin Jan. 3, are available to all eligible adults. "These classes are free of charge and will last until school is out in the spring," Vinson said.

The classes will meet at 7 p.m. each Tuesday in the cafeteria at Wilson Elementary School. Courses include preparation for the G.E.D. tests, general adult basic education and English as a second language.

Vinson also announced that the G.E.D. Center at Childress High School will open Jan. 7 for testing of qualified persons.

"The G.E.D. is a test of high school equivalency and serves as a certificate for entering college, trade school or the armed services," Vinson explained.

Testing is open to those who have been out of high school at least a year.

The examination includes five subjects, in English, social studies, science, literature and math. All must be passed before a certificate can be issued.

Banquet chairman for this year is Alvin Davis.

New Year's Eve Party Planned

LEVELLAND (Special)—The South Plains Country Jamboree will hold a New Year's Eve party for the entire family, the first of its kind here.

Communist Money Unwelcome On World Market

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations may be dollar poor, but it is rich in Soviet rubles, Chinese yuans and other Communist currencies. In fact, one of its major problems is finding ways to unload all the Communist money amassed over the years.

What's the fuss? Quite simply, the world organization can't find takers for the money it receives in voluntary contributions from the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries.

The total U.N. reserve of these non-convertible currencies is estimated at around $50 million and it is increasing.

The Communists' money is useless in international commerce since these nations insist on conducting their trade on a barter basis. That means rubles or yuans can't be used to buy a Swedish car, a Japanese camera or French wine. You need the so-called convertible currencies for that, such as U.S. dollars, British pounds or Japanese yen.

Soviet rubles won't even buy Russian caviar because Moscow has decreed that the money must be used only for technical assistance at developing countries. Similarly, the United Nations can't use the Chinese yuan it holds to order ornate carpets from Peking.

Hardest hit in this financial tangle is the U.N. Development Program, which needs all the money it can get as the world's largest supplier of technical aid to poorer countries.

At the end of October, the program had more than $42 million in non-convertible currencies. The totals included $17 million in Soviet rubles and $6 million in Chinese yuans, with the rest contributed by smaller Communist countries.

The Development Program's total 1976 operating budget was $323 million. Both the program directors and its non-Communist and Communist contributors are unhappy about their current plight.

"It is a serious, deteriorating situation," says George F. Saddler, program director of finance.

A Soviet representative, Yuri F. Fokine, complains that the rubles should have been "disposed of skillfully."

"With a little bit of imagination, there should be no problem," he said. The Soviet Union often has hinted it might stop contributing to the Development Program unless the rubles are spent. China already has ended its contributions.

Why do the Soviet Union and China insist on making the contributions in their currencies and restricting their use?

A contributing country gains two ways from such a limitation: It saves foreign exchange, and it creates an incentive for the use of its enterprises, equipment, experts and educational facilities.

Over the years, the Development Program has purchased goods and services from the Soviet Union and East European countries for use in the developing nations, but program sources said the experience

"hasn't been all that rewarding."

So, instead of dealing with what one official called "their endless delivery delays and often inferior merchandise," the program has chosen to let some of these currencies pile up.

The program has rejected Soviet suggestions that the money be spent in other Communist countries where the currencies do have some value, saying such practices would be discriminatory, preferential treatment.

Bradford F. Morse, a former U.S. congressman from Massachusetts and current administrator of the program, plans a series of meetings with high Soviet officials early next year to discuss the non-convertible currency problem. He is expected to ask for a list of Soviet goods that can be purchased without long delays and make another strong appeal that all future Soviet contributions be in dollars.

The national anthem of Afghanistan is "Lui Salami," or "National Anthem." The anthem, adopted in 1943, has no words.

Japanese Business Colony Expanding In Germany

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Japanese are making this Rhine River city their beachhead for an Oriental assault on European markets.

The Japanese Consulate estimates more than 4,000 Japanese live among Duesseldorf's 680,000 population, making the colony the largest in Europe after London, which has only about 200 more Japanese.

The Japanese have been doing business in Duesseldorf since 1952, when two major firms, Mitsubishi and Mutsui Trust, opened branch offices.

About five years ago, the trickle of Japanese coming here turned to a flood as the North Sea ports of Rotterdam and Antwerp, linked by the Rhine to Duesseldorf, overtook Hamburg and north German harbors as the centers of international trade.

"Duesseldorf is in the heart of West Germany and very convenient to the rest of Europe, such as the Netherlands, Belgium and even France," said a spokesman for the Japanese Consulate.

From Duesseldorf, bankers and sales agents from more than 200 Japanese firms here fan out in search of investments and markets for autos, cameras, electronic equipment and other products across Europe.

The Japanese are building an $86 million Japan Center in downtown Duesseldorf and it will include a 300-bed luxury hotel within walking distance of major Japanese businesses and banks. Nearby are a smattering of Japanese shops, where housewives can buy fish products and special sauces hard to find in German stores.

There is also a Japanese club, where businessmen can sip sake; a Japanese-language bookstore that sells Tokyo newspapers, and a restaurant complete with a Japanese menu and piped-in American music.

Unlike other foreign colonies in West Germany, the Japanese are mostly affluent, well-educated businessmen who drive big Mercedes cars and clothe their wives in furs. Most are young male executives who remain in West Germany three to five years before returning to Japan.

"Living is good for the Japanese in Duesseldorf," said Jun Okami, who came from Tokyo seven years ago and works for a new Japanese-language newspaper. "The city has proved very friendly toward us."

But some Japanese complain that the language barrier and the standoffish attitude of their German neighbors make it hard for new arrivals to adjust to life in this country.

"We like it here," said Mrs. S. Kokai, who came from Yokohama with her husband three years ago. "But the Germans are very distant. We want to make friends with the Germans, but we think they don't want to be friends with us. My children want to go back to Japan."

Yutaka Okuda, a former Tokyo resident who runs the Japanese International School, says cultural adjustment is harder on the wives, many of whom do not know the German language.

"Most of the men can handle the language so for them the problems are not so great," said Okuda, who came from Tokyo eight years ago. "But the women have the biggest problem. More and more of them are going to language school."

Okuda says the Japanese do not usually encounter the same overt discrimination by landlords as Turks and other ethnic groups do. Some landlords refuse to rent to foreign workers from poor countries who come to work a few years for high wages in West German factories.

"But one always hears that the Japanese have lots of money," Okuda said. "Sometimes the landlords supposedly charge too much, and the Japanese are too tolerant to complain. It's the same as in Japan."

Okuda said education was formerly a major problem for the Japanese families, who want their children to receive instruction in their native language. But that is less of a problem since establishment in 1971 of the community-run Japanese school, in the suburb of Oberkassel. The school, which offers nine grades, has an enrollment of about 600.

Irate Truck Driver Captured After Taking Two Hostages

MELROSE PARK, ILL. (UPI) — A fruit juice delivery truck driver, complaining the Home Juice Co. was forcing him out of business and owed him money, was captured Tuesday after holding two hostages for several hours.

No one was injured in the incident at a Home Juice branch plant.

The driver, identified as Anthony Robins, apparently was convinced he would be allowed to leave the building. When he emerged, accompanied by television newsman Russ Ewing, he was overpowered by police and taken from the plant in a squad car. Ewing earlier had been exchanged for one of the hostages.

A Home Juice spokesman said Robins owns his own delivery truck and had been associated with the company for more than two years. Robins reportedly fired shots at a safe, but did not open it, and the ceiling of the area where he was holding hostages, the spokesman said.

Robins took Patrick Lane, a supervisor in the wholesale division, and Steve Brewczynski, a dock foreman, hostage in a section of the branch plant shortly after 7 a.m., the spokesman said.

About 10 a.m. Robins exchanged Brewczynski for Ewing, a WMAQ-TV reporter who has been a negotiator in similar situations in the past. WLS-TV reporter Hugh Hill also entered the building a short time later.

Robins had called Peter Boardwell, WLS-TV assignment editor, demanding that he be given money, be allowed to talk to a minister and be allowed to talk to a television newsman.

Robins told Hill that Home Juice gave him "a bad route, a bad time and they were squeezing him out of business," Boardwell said.

Brewczynski, 59, Norridge, was taken to Gottlieb Memorial Hospital "shaken" by his three-hour ordeal, and released soon afterward, the plant spokesman said.

Mammoth Cave, with its 150 miles of explored corridors, was formed of limestone when Kentucky was submerged during the Mississippian Period some 240 million years ago.

Coal Talks Resume Following Holiday Recess Period

By The Associated Press

Negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association resumed talks Tuesday toward ending the nationwide coal strike now in its fourth week. UMW President Arnold Miller said he was not optimistic they could reach a settlement soon.

The negotiators returned to bargaining in Washington, following a weekend holiday recess.

Miller, now officially in his second five-year term as UMW president, said prior to Tuesday's session that he "would prefer not to comment at this time on the discussions."

"Leaks (to the press) by members of both sides who just want to see their comments in the papers only hamper the negotiations, and are often misleading or incorrect," Miller said.

There have been reports that the bargaining is temporarily stalled over the contract wording of several labor stability issues. But Miller said, "It's not actually a matter of writing the contract. Once we come to agreement on the basic points, the wording will come."

At least two UMW officials predicted the strike won't last much longer.

Charles Fuller, president of UMW District 20 in Birmingham, Ala., said he stands by his forecast the strike will last no longer than five weeks. He said both sides were in a good mood and he predicted a strike ratification vote by Jan. 6 or Jan. 13.

In Cabin Creek, W.Va., the president of UMW Local 750, Orville Robinette, said he was optimistic a new contract would be up for a ratification vote this week or next.

"They (the negotiators) seemed to be close to a settlement," said Robinette, who swore in Miller for his second term as president during ceremonies in Washington last week. "That's what my impression was. There's no telling, of course, if the contract will be ratified by the members, but I'm hopeful."

Meanwhile, union local presidents in southeastern Ohio began making plans to halt production of non-union coal in eastern Kentucky.

"We will definitely be going back to Kentucky," said Don Nunley, a UMW executive board member from District 6 in eastern Ohio. "Our information is this is where most of the non-union mining and hauling of coal is centered."

Nunley said he couldn't predict whether plans for another caravan of striking miners would come out of a closed meeting of the presidents Thursday at District 6 headquarters in Bellaire, Ohio.

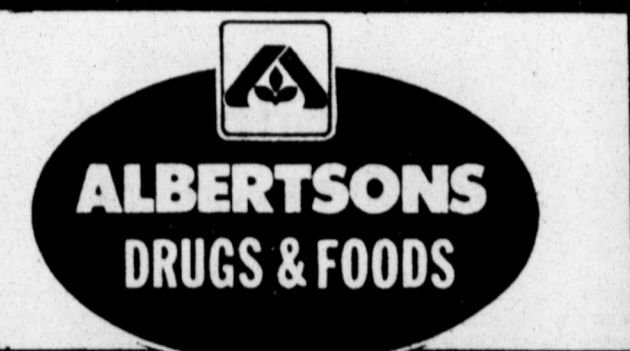

"It's hard to say at this point," Nunley said. "Since (Kentucky Gov. Julian) Carroll has threatened to call out the National Guard to protect the coal operators' property, we have to consider that threat."

Councilmen Turn Down Crossing

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS—Plans to pave a street, which includes a railroad crossing here, have been abandoned, according to City Mgr. David Galligan.
City officials said traffic in the area could be dangerous to motorists. Fourteen sets of tracks merge near the crossing, which is adjacent to the switching yards of Fort Worth and Denver Railroad.
Highway Department officials here earlier announced plans for a $50,000 paving project on 5th Street. Many residents of the southwest section of the city use the crossing on the dirt street to reach shopping areas and had requested the surfacing.
However, railroad officials voiced disapproval of the project because of the danger of accidents. One lawsuit against the railroad is in progress because of a mishap at the site several years ago. A spokesman for the railroad said future plans call for one train per hour to go through the crossing.
Residents, still favoring the improvements, formed a citizen's group to support the proposed project.
City officials then met with Fort Worth and Denver representatives, Galligan said. Attending the recent meeting in Childress were G.F. Dearfield, president of Burlington-Northern and Fort Worth and Denver railroads; W.A. Thompson, general manager of the route; Juel Staven, Childress FW&D superintendent; Lewis White, State Highway Department engineer; and members of the Childress City Council.
During the meeting, Galligan reported, it was advised that railroad expansion plans call for fueling of equipment here. This would block the 5th Street crossing for extended periods of time. It was also brought out that signal lights at the crossing would cost an estimated $50,000.

Profit Made By Facility

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS—Childress General Hospital operated in the black last month, reversing a recent trend towards financial deficits.

Administrator Bob Maynard told members of the hospital board during a meeting that the facility operated at a profit of $6,000 last month. The upward turn came after three consecutive months of deficits, which Maynard said were the result of reduced Medicare payments by the government, coupled with a low patient census.

"Occupancy last month was more than 45 percent," Maynard said, adding that 42 percent is needed to prevent an operating loss.

He further explained that while the number of admissions was about the same as in recent months, patients were staying longer.

During the meeting, board members also approved the lease-purchase of a new blood gas analyzer. Cost of the machine is $8,000 and the hospital is to trade in an older analyzer on the new equipment.

Courthouse Well Watered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The federal courthouse has the most watered lawn in Los Angeles.
Automatic sprinklers turned on Monday — during one of the heaviest rainfalls of the year. Then the turnoff mechanism malfunctioned, and the sprinklers stayed on until workers returned from their holiday recess at 7 a.m. Tuesday.
"I don't know why our security people didn't call us," said Cecil Sanders, building manager of the federal General Services Administration.
"The sprinklers are set by a timer," Sanders explained, "but apparently some debris got into the control box and they didn't go off."
While the sprinklers worked, more than 1½ inches of rain fell on the downtown area.

Scuba Regulators Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Tuesday a South Amboy, N. J., firm is replacing a regulator part in its Scuba apparatus.
Officials said the intermediate hose on the regulators can become disconnected, cutting off air to the diver.
The regulators are manufactured in Sweden for the firm, Parkway Fabricators, Inc. They can be identified by the brand name "Poseidon" and "Cyklon 300" and serial numbers 15024 through 16523 and 18050 through 18549.
Consumers were urged to stop using the units. A free replacement hose will be provided to persons writing to Parkway Fabricators, 1 Raritan St., South Amboy, N.J., Attention: Cyklon 300 Recall.
Consumers should provide their name, address and telephone number and the serial number of the regulator, officials said. The number is printed on the first stage of the regulator.

Rights Viewed In Booklet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rights of handicapped people will be spelled out in three new booklets being prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
More than one million copies are planned for distribution next year, according to HEW officials, who noted that preparation work is in the early stages, and the booklets probably will not be ready for at least two months.
The pamphlets are entitled: "Your Rights as a Disabled Person," "Your Responsibilities to Disabled Persons as a Health Care or Social Services Administrator" and "Your Responsibilities to Disabled Persons as a School or College Administrator."
The first will be printed in English, Spanish and Braille, and the other two only in English.
The booklets point out that under federal law handicapped people have the same rights as others, and if they are qualified they cannot be discriminated against in employment, schooling or other fields.
HEW officials estimate that there are some 28 million handicapped adults and eight million handicapped children in the country.

Ham Operator Aids Rescue

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — A sea rescue involving this land-locked southern Ohio town?
The rescue actually was in the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Florida, but it was made with the help of an Ohio ham radio operator.
Larry Beckwith, who has been a "ham" for 50 years, was on the air early in the morning last week when he heard a weak signal for help.
"I was using a new amplifier with considerable sock to it is why I picked it up," he explained.
He determined that the call was from a ship about 20 miles from Miami. It turned out that the boat's captain, Lawrence G. Otera, was seeking Coast Guard assistance. His ship, carrying five passengers bound for Lima, Peru, was taking on water through a hole in the bow and he was trying to get to Miami for repairs.
For the next four hours, Beckwith and two other radio operators communicated with the ship and the Coast Guard.
After the Coast Guard arrived, Otera had his own radio message for Beckwith.
"The captain came on the air and said, 'Larry, don't pull the plug,' Beckwith said. "The last thing he said was, 'Thank God for ham radio this morning.'"

Carter TV Interview Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will be interviewed by the television networks Wednesday night in an hour-long, year-end program broadcast from the Red Room at the White House.
The interview will begin at 7 p.m. CST.
Part of the interview is expected to look ahead into 1978 and Carter's trip to Europe, India and the Near East. The president and his wife, Rosalynn, leave on the trip early Thursday.
But the White House says most of the televised session is expected to focus on reflections at the end of Carter's first year in office.
The four questioners, selected by their respective networks, are Barbara Walters, ABC; Robert McNeil, PBS; Tom Brokaw, NBC; and Bob Schieffer, CBS.
On his foreign trip, the president will visit Poland, Iran, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium.
Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, says the purpose of the trip is to demonstrate support for developing democracies and to reaffirm ties with traditional allies.
The broad scope of the trip may narrow somewhat in Iran when Carter meets with King Hussein of Jordan to discuss peace efforts in the Middle East.
The president will return to Washington on Jan. 6.

Christmas Cards Available

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It's not too late to get a Christmas card from Utah's governor, but you'll have to pick it up at his office.
An aide to Gov. Scott Matheson says some 300 cards still remain in a basket at the Capitol. Those not picked up may become memo pads, a gubernatorial aide said.
Matheson ordered some 3,500 cards. He ended up paying $350 for them out of his own pocket when the state Board of Examiners voted not to reimburse him for the order.
The governor mailed some to friends and had others delivered to department heads for distribution to state employees.

Auto Recall Announced

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Tuesday announced the recall of 1.3 million cars because of engine stalling problems.
Affected are Dodge Darts, Plymouth Valiants and recently introduced Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volares equipped with 225 cubic inch six-cylinder engines or 318 cubic inch eight-cylinder engines.
The defect, affecting cars built in the 1975 through 1977-model years, has resulted in at least 27 accidents and injured seven motorists, Chrysler said.
Chrysler said only a limited number of parts needed to correct the problems are now available at dealers. It said it will not notify affected owners of the recall until additional supplies are obtained.
On affected vehicles, the automaker will replace the accelerator pump seal in the carburetor. Some six-cylinder models will need a new coolant-controlled exhaust gas recirculation switch in the emission control system.
The pump seal may become distorted through contact with certain types of unleaded gasoline, Chrysler said. In such cases, it said, the accelerator pedal does not respond when depressed.

Busboy Returns Cash Find

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — Brian Carlson could barely believe his eyes when he opened the black case a traveler left behind at a tollway restaurant. It contained packets of neatly wrapped $100 bills.
Carlson, 17, said his first thought Monday was "to go where it's warm" with the money, which totaled $22,861.
But the youth, a $2.40-an-hour busboy at the restaurant near Chicago along the Northwest Tollway, stopped daydreaming and turned the money over to state police.
State police said the money belonged to Joseph T. Faust, 71, of Marathon, Fla. He was given the black case when he later returned to the restaurant looking for it, authorities said.
"He was on his way back to Florida after burying his wife in Wisconsin," a police official said. "He apparently just had a memory lapse."

French Ponder Leftist Rule

PARIS (UPI) — The most popular topic around Paris dinner tables these days is speculating what will happen if the Socialist-Communist Union of the left wins the legislative elections next March.

A handful of French journalists and political commentators have produced books that project detailed scenarios of what France could come to in the first six months after the election. Strangely enough all reach roughly the same conclusion: France is in for a disaster if the left wins.

"The 180 days of Mitterrand" and is signed Philippe de Commines, a name borrowed from a 15th century political commentator. Francois Mitterand is the leader of the Socialist party who was the runner up in the last three presidential elections. The actual authors are Henri Boscoff and Jacqueline Chabridon, two journalists who admit having received help from "two political personalities of import" whom they refuse to name.

Another book is by Alfred Fabre-Luce, an analyst who supports President Valery Giscard d'Estaing but is violently anti-Gaullist. The book is titled "The 100 days of Mitterrand."

A third is by Catherine Clessis, a commentator at the state-run Radio-France station, and entitled "The Dangerous Illusion."

All three books start with the evening of the run-off legislative elections. The left wins in each book.

Mitterand is always appointed premier and in turn appoints his political allies, communists and leftist radicals, as cabinet members. Communist leader Georges Marchais somehow always finds himself minister of planning.

The authors are unanimous about the Stock Exchange and the money market collapsing to the point of having to shut down and the franc losing 15 per cent of its value.

Mitterand carefully but firmly starts to publish laws on nationalizing big businesses and social reforms but the Communist party complains that he is too slow.

Strikes break out and workers hold their employers hostage throughout the country.

For de Commines, Gaullist leader

Jacques Chirac — who also is Paris mayor — organizes a pirate propaganda radio station "Radio Lutece" inside Paris City Hall and orchestrates tries to panic by having newspapers publish headlines such as "no more sugar in Paris."

Miss Clessis writes that pressmen threaten to close down the printing plants if newspaper publishers refuse to print their statement announcing they are taking over the media. An unprecedented May Day (May 1) parade breaks out into violent rioting with dozens of marchers and police being killed.

Fabre-Luce has the crime rate increase by 50 per cent and extremists occupy the Georges Pompidou Center for modern art.

In all three scenarios France's allies adopt a "watch and see" policy toward her. The Soviet Union says it wants to keep Giscard as president for the sake of detente.

Each time, the Communists are the ones who end all the chances for the leftist government.

The conclusions differ slightly, however. In Commines's book, Giscard dissolves parliament, in Miss Clessis's scenario, Giscard faces resignation, dissolving parliament or firing Mitterand and finally "makes the only right decision for France" but intriguingly the book does not say which.

Maryland is named after British Queen Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I.

Psychologist Examines Flying Phobia

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If the thought of the wild blue yonder gives you a case of the blues, you may be a flight phobic. If the whine of a propeller or the roar of a jet engine makes your head spin in terror, you may be a flight phobic. If you muster the courage to get on a plane but spend the entire flight with your heart beating wildly and your white-knuckled fingers clenching the arms of the seats, you have the symptoms of a flight phobic.

Roger McKinley, clinical psychologist and commercial pilot, estimates there may be 17 million normally non-neurotic people who have a tremendously neurotic reaction to flying — or even the thought of it.

McKinley, a clinical faculty member of the University of Wisconsin psychiatry department, says he's found little written about the fear of flying.

He says professionals have tackled the problems of smokers who long to kick their habit and overeaters who can't control their appetites. But he maintains that few people have been systematically treated for flight phobias, which can be crippling for those whose jobs require them to travel extensively.

For McKinley, whose office wall is covered with an enormous head-on photograph of a Boeing 727 jet, flying is a delight: "I personally feel very comfortable flying. It's a way of leaving earthly concerns below. There are marvelous pictures of the earth and cloud formations to watch. For me, it's very pleasant experience."

So why are millions of people terrified of flying?

It is not enough to answer that they are afraid of dying. True flight phobics are not convinced by unbiased statistics telling them it is 10 times safer to get on a plane than get in a car.

According to McKinley, many flight phobias are learned through one or more unpleasant experiences that happen to the phobic individual, or someone he or she knows well.

Here's an example McKinley gives: "You get on a plane on an overcast day. You are not nearly so well-equipped to fly through a thunderstorm as the flight crew. Today, for one reason or another, the aircraft is unable to deviate around a thunderstorm. The "fasten seat belt" sign flashes on and the captain comes on over the intercom, saying that he expects some turbulence. It gets very dark, and lightning flashes around the plane. The ride becomes tremendously bumpy, and you notice that the wings are bouncing up and down. You begin to wonder whether they can stand the pressure, or if they'll drop off. You become very tense. "The aircraft leaves the turbulent weather in about 20 minutes, but your fear lingers. How many experiences like that does it take to produce a flight phobic?" McKinley muses.

In learning to be afraid, a person uses his or her imagination, and plugs in real images he or she has seen in photos from air disasters.

"The memory of scenes of an aircraft accident resides in the front of one's memory more than scenes of an auto accident. I suspect it may have to do with the numbers of lives lost," says McKinley.

The fear of unknown is a major factor in flight phobia, he believes.

"You know all you can do is sit there," McKinley says. "You have to totally depend on someone else and you must accept that that person is competent and capable of handling the aircraft and your safety. You have to have something called faith."

He adds that there are more complicated reasons for some phobias, including fear of flying. Society's anxieties are triggered by one or more experiences in life. As a matter of psychological economics, the anxiety is focused on something specific because it is easier to be afraid of something rather than just to be afraid.

"When this kind of thing is going on, the flight phobia may have less to do with real or perceived risks of flying than with a difficult marital situation or an economic reversal," McKinley explains.

McKinley suggests that there may be several creative ways to treat fear of flying.

Balanced Growth Topic Of Washington Confab

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thorny questions of how Washington should guide the nation's economic growth will be thrashed out next month in a White House conference pitting various economic interests against one another.

A gallery of corporate and labor big shots, politicians and academic experts will converge Jan. 29 for the four-day White House Conference on Balanced Growth and Economic Development.

White House aides believe full employment strategies, the Sunbelt vs. Snowbelt conflict and problems of choosing between economic development and environmental protection are likely to create the most controversy.

"We see this as an unusual White House meeting because it isn't a constituency looking for more money," says conference director Michael Koleta. "Rather, it's an attempt to begin a national dialogue on the tough issues of the future."

The idea for the conference originated in Congress when Gerald Ford was president, resulting from a concern that the White House was not paying enough at-attention to long-term economic issues. White House aides say President Carter sees the conference as an opportunity for discussion among representatives of divergent economic interests.

"It's designed as a citizens' conference," White House aide Jane Frank said. "There won't be an enormous federal presence."

Four key issues will be aired at general sessions focusing on problems of structural unemployment, the fiscal crisis facing local governments, regional disputes pitting the Sunbelt and the Snowbelt, the development vs. environment faceoffs.

The Sunbelt-Snowbelt controversy basically revolves around distribution of federal funds. Officials in large industrial states of the Northeast claim their constituents are paying much more in federal taxes than their region is getting back through various federal programs. They also claim so-called "Sunbelt states" of the South and Southwest getting more than their taxpayers are paying.

The main business of the White House conference will be conducted in small workshop sessions. Summaries will be presented to President Carter at a public session.

"Some of the questions are obvious," Koleta said. Among them:

"How do you attack unemployment without exacerbating inflation?"

"Which level of government should pay for what services?"

"What are the implications of the Sunbelt-Snowbelt controversy? Do we want a regional policy? Do we need one?"

"What about the emerging tradeoffs. Development vs. the environment, for one. Water vs. energy, for another. In Colorado, they can't find water to develop energy resources."

Three-fourths of the 500 participants were chosen by governors, with the remaining 125 at-large delegates chosen by the White House.

"The governors did select fairly straight people," said Koleta. "There's not a whole lot of surprises."

There are a few. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California selected a founder of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), political activist Tom Hayden. And the White House itself selected Gar Alperovitz, an economist who proposes alternative approaches to solving the fundamental problems of unemployment and inflation.

Death Toll Lower Than Last Year

By United Press International

A total of 388 persons died in traffic accidents around the country during the 78-hour Christmas weekend, a final count showed Tuesday, but the National Safety Council said safety-conscious driving practices kept the toll from going higher.

The toll was just within the lowest scale of the safety council's preholiday projection and well below last year's level.

The safety council had estimated between 380 and 480 persons would be killed in traffic accidents during the holiday weekend. Last year, 441 persons died on the nation's roads during the Christmas weekend.

A safety council spokesman said the traffic toll was in the lower end of the scale of what we had estimated. I believe we really should credit American motorists for driving more defensively, keeping their speeds down in line with the 55 mph speed limit and using their safety belts.

The final count of fatal holiday accidents from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday:

Traffic 388
Fires 34
Planes 8
Total 430

California reported 36 traffic deaths, Texas had 34, Missouri 21 and Florida and Georgia each had 20.

No holiday weekend traffic fatalities were reported in Alaska, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont.

Although poor weather conditions may have kept some drivers off the roads, the spokesman said the decrease in fatalities could not be credited to weather alone.

"We really can't pinpoint the reason for the lower total as weather conditions on a nationwide basis, even though California and much of the northeast part of the country both had poor driving conditions," he said. "The variations from past holiday records do not justify it."

CUBA-USSR TRADE UP

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro has told Cuba's National Assembly that the island's trade with the Soviet Union will be increased during 1978. Havana Radio said Monday. The year-end broadcast Saturday night, monitored in Miami, said Castro felt Cuba had surmounted obstacles in meeting its international financial obligations.

Fire Losses Prompt Fund For Family

A fund for the Doug Driver family has been started at Plains National Bank.

The Drivers reportedly lost everything they owned Monday when a fire reduced their mobile home, located east of Lubbock, and all its contents to ashes.

No one was hurt, as the mother, father, daughter and two sons escaped the blaze safely.

The family's neighbors initiated the drive, and request any unused furniture, clothing, cooking utensils or anything else which would help rebuild a household be taken to 1312 32nd St. for distribution to the family.

The family did have insurance, but not enough to cover a total loss, friends said.

CARTER GIVEN SIX MONTHS

NEW YORK (AP) — Media expert David Garth says President Carter has "another six months" to put forward programs that will win the country's support. "If the election were held tomorrow, he'd be in real trouble," Garth said. Carter has a credibility problem, Garth said. In an interview with Politicks, a new magazine, Garth said Carter could have trouble getting renominated to the nation's highest elected office.

ANTLERS FOR SALE — Jung T. Wang, a Korean businessman who gathers tons of antlers from Alaska to New Zealand, poses in San Francisco with one of the horns. This year alone his company has processed 12,000 pounds of Alaskan reindeer antlers and 20,000 pounds of elk and red deer antlers from New Zealand — all to put a spring in the step and life in the libido. (AP Laserphoto)

Ex-Korean's Antler Business Thriving

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jung T. Wang has made a modern-day business out of the ancient Oriental belief that a slice of antler in your morning tea is all you need to put a bounce in your step and a spark in your love life.

Wang says his firm, U-Jin Enterprises Inc., has processed 12,000 pounds of Alaskan reindeer and 20,000 pounds of elk and red deer antlers from New Zealand this year alone.

Working out of an old radio studio, U-Jin buys the antlers and cures them in walk-in ovens. The elixir is then shipped mainly to Oriental and Soviet ports.

In Hong Kong, devotees pay as much as $700 a pound for the prime, top part of an antler, Wang said. But it is the Russians who swear most devoutly by the power of the horns to stimulate the heart, ease digestion and relax muscles, he said.

In the Eastern world, the well-to-do drink tea boiled from the antlers and lesser ingredients for 30 days straight in the fall or winter to shore themselves up for the year ahead.

Unlike ginseng, a dried root also reputed to have curing powers, antlers have never really caught on in the Western world.

Pharmacologists are skeptical. And though Wang admits the antlers' power may be psychological, he's got a storehouse of stories about amazing cures of everything from aches and pains to the blahs.

"The wife of a friend with bad rheumatism was ready for the hospital," goes one such tale. "She took some of it and drank it and the next day was right as rain."

Wang, 45, started the antler business in the United States in 1963 after immigrating from Korea, where he was a translator for the U.S. Army. On a visit to Alaska he spied the thousands of perfectly good antlers ignored and going to waste.

He got permission from the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs to teach Alaskans how to harvest the antlers and promised to buy them all.

But, says Wang, "Unfortunately I did not have the true knowledge how to process antlers." The first 8,000 pounds of horns he shipped were pronounced worthless.

New Auto Registration Plan May Hassle City Residents

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After next year, Texans may no longer have to endure long lines to register their cars. But first, they must survive the confusion in early 1978 of a new license plate renewal program, says Russell Hardin, Lubbock County tax assessor-collector.

"No doubt about it, this is going to be a hassle in the beginning. It's going to require a lot of patience and understanding on the part of motor vehicle owners and my staff," Hardin said.

"But once we complete the switchover to a year-round vehicle registration system, things should be easier on everybody. We won't have that rush of people lining up at the courthouse every March trying to register their cars."

Traditionally, vehicle registrations in Texas — including Lubbock County's 170,000 cars and trucks — expire March 31 each year. That single expiration date for the state's vehicle owners has caused last-minute sieges and other massive problems for such offices as Hardin's, whose staff handles registration renewal.

So, under a new law passed by the state legislature, Texas is converting to a staggered registration program for passenger cars and light trucks, such as pickups.

"The goal is to spread out the renewal dates as equally as possible over the 12 months of the year, rather than have them all expire at one time," Hardin explained. This should eliminate long lines at the county tax office and make the registration process easier on car owners and the tax office staff, he said.

The motor vehicle division of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation studied several possities — using, for example, owners' birth dates and alphabetical placement of their last names — in deciding how to assign vehicle registration dates.

State officials settled on using the current license plate number of each vehicle current expiration month of March — which now is the same for all vehicles in Texas — and counting forward six months, to September.

"Getting everyone on this same system will be difficult for the first year because ment of Highways and Public Transportation last week. Hardin said Lubbock County car owners should begin receiving their notices this week.

He said a complete explanation of the new registration system is enclosed with each renewal notice for passenger cars and light trucks.

The renewal notices for such vehicles are white and come in three parts. The center section will specify the number of months and the appropriate fee involved in the registration renewal.

The renewal notices also spell out the option for those car owners eligible. A notice might say, for instance, that the registration fee is $33 for 18 months or $11 for six months.

"Some motorists are going to be angry when they receive a notice to pay one and a half times as much this year as they paid last year," said Bob Townsley, director of the state highway department's motor vehicle division.

"But it's a simple matter to clear up. All the owner has to do is take the notice to the assessor-collector's office where he can pay six months or all of it."

"But after 1978, motorists should not have to stand in those long lines anymore."

The registration fee on the same-sized cars will differ greatly, depending on the number of months of registration involved, Hardin noted.

While some motorists will be registering their cars for as much as 18 months, others will be registering for only seven (or even less if they exercise their option to register for, say, only one or two months).

But Hardin and his staff stress that the fee differences are due only to the length of registration.

"The price of registering your car has not gone up. It's still the same as it was last year — on an annual basis," said Dixie Jean Thompson, Hardin's deputy in charge of vehicle registration.

"People will be paying the same amount per month as they did last year. But in this transition phase, some people will be registering for more than a full year and others for less than a full year," she said.

Hardin said his office will begin processing vehicle registration renewals in January, a month earlier than usual.

He urged Lubbock County car owners to bring their renewal notices to the tax office, located on the first floor of the Lubbock County Courthouse, 904 Broadway, as soon as they are received through the mail.

Hardin said persons owning more than one vehicle probably will not be able to have the same registration date for their cars. Even under the same ownership, some cars will have to be renewed in different months than others.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday, December 28, 1977

as the key in fixing the month of registration renewal in the future, Hardin said.

The staggered system, he said, is based on the second-to-last digit (the "tens" column) on your present license plate. For instance, if your license plate is ABC-168, the "6" is the key under the new system.

"That number tells you how far from the current registration month (March) that your personal registration month will be," Hardin said.

Under the above example, in which the next-to-last digit is a 6, "your regular registration month from now on would be September," he said.

Hardin calculated that by taking the people will be registering their cars for different periods of time," he said.

Hardin explained some car owners on the first go-around might be registering their vehicles for only a few months, while others will be registering — and paying for — a much longer time frame.

Even more confusing is that some vehicle owners will have an option on how long to register their cars.

For instance, Hardin said, in the above example, "you would have the option of registering your car for just six months and having to renew it again in September of 1978, or registering your car for 18 months, so that your registration would be valid until September of 1979."

Hardin said that option holds true if the next-to-last digit on your license plate is a 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6.

Thus, a person whose telltale code is a 4 would have the choice of registering through July, 1978 (four months past the current March expiration date), or July, 1979.

If the next-to-last digit on your license plate is a 7, 8, 9 or 0 (0 counts as 10 under the new system), "you won't have an option," Hardin said.

"Instead, you will pay a pro rata amount for that designated number of months and then return to the county tax office in the appropriate month to register for a full 12-month period," he said.

That is, a person whose code number is a 7 will be registered through October of 1978 (seven months past the current March expiration date). And sometime during that month of October, he will have to register again — this time, for a full year's period.

The new system pertains only to already registered passenger cars and light trucks, Hardin said.

All other vehicles — including cars with personalized plates — will remain the same as in the past, expiring on March 31 of each year, he added.

Also, he noted, vehicles that are new or unregistered or bear out-of-state licenses will be registered for a full 12 months from the date Texas plates are issued.

License plate renewal notices for almost 11 million motor vehicles through Texas were mailed by the State Depart-

Adolph Coors Company, the Golden, Colo., based brewer, has announced the introduction of the ring pull lid on its 12-ounce aluminum cans in the Lubbock area as a replacement for the Coors Press Tab II lid.

The decision to remove Press Tab II came after several months of monitoring customer response in the 11 states where Coors markets the ecology lid. The response showed a growing consumer disapproval of Press Tab II.

"We've been listening to our customers very closely the past few months and made recommendations to the brewery that we discontinue Press Tab II," said Bruce Gentry Jr., Ring pull cans are now in Lubbock in retail outlets.

The Press Tab II lid required that the customer break a single seal by pressing two scored edges with thumb pressure and folding in the teardrop-shaped tab with index finger.

Coors first used the ring pull lid on aluminum cans in 1968 atop their 12-ounce cans and eventually featured the opening on all Coors cans until the development of Press Tab I, an early version of Press Tab II. Coors cans and lids are manufactured at Coors Container Company in Golden.

Press Tab II was developed in 1974 and move into the marketplace in 1976 after a trial run in three Texas cities. It had been introduced into all states where Coors is marketed except Arizona, Colorado, and New Mexico.

The helicopter, its fuel tanks nearly full, crashed through the roof and the top floor of the 24-unit apartment building, exploding in the Michaelsons' second-floor bedroom. It took firefighters two hours to bring the resulting fire under control.

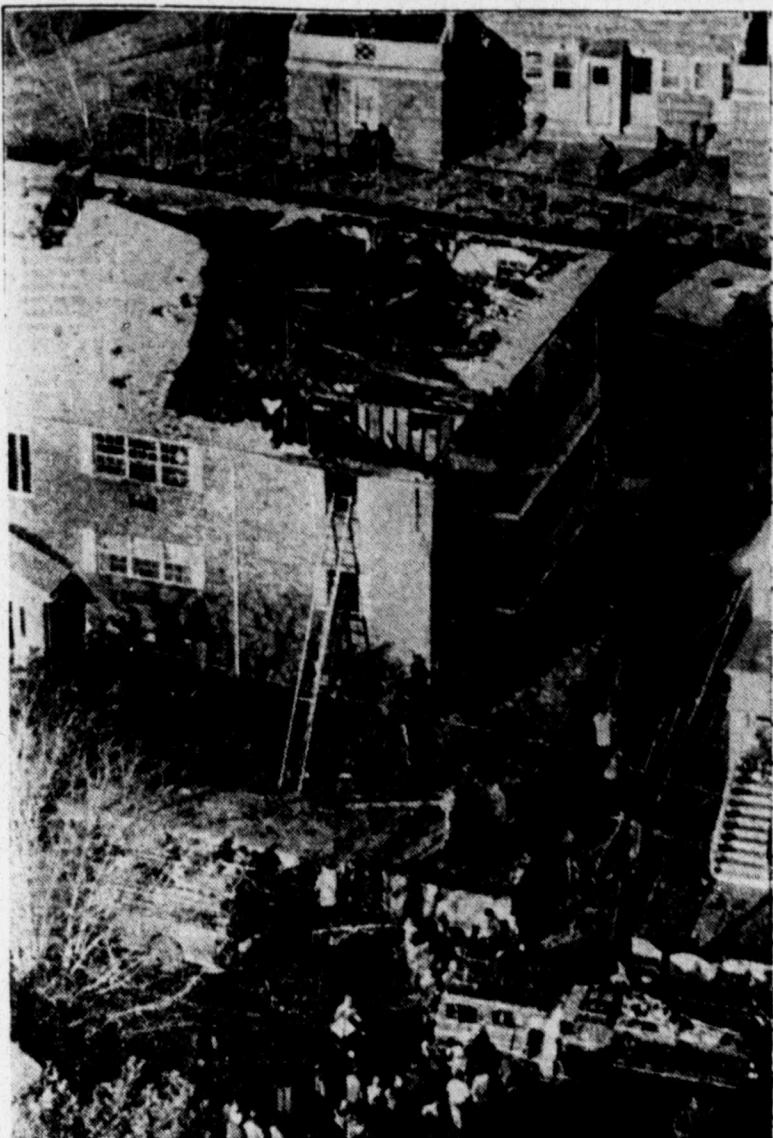

Scores of residents fled the building, some screaming, "Fire! Fire! Get out! Get out!"

Mrs. Michaelson ran across the hall and banged on the door of Larry Goines, an employee of the Boston Herald American. Goines' daughter, Darlene, opened the door and saw Mrs. Michaelson in flames, holding her infant, Dawn. The family smothered the fire with blankets.

Harriet A. Gordon said she and her three children slept through the crash. "The man from the gas company woke me up when he was banging on my window," she said.

William Amaral, 30, returning home from his night shift job, said he "heard a long bang. I ran into the hallway, and people were running through the building yelling, 'Fire!'"

The WEEL helicopter was monitoring the traffic flow on the Southeast Expressway, a major artery carrying tens of thousands of auto commuters from the populous South Shore to Boston. Station WEEL said it first was aware of trouble when its reporter could not be raised for the 7:32 a.m. traffic update. "Good buddies, we've lost a good friend,"

Reporter, Helicopter Pilot Die In Massachusetts Crash

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — A pilot and a reporter substituting for a Boston radio station's regular traffic condition reporter were killed Tuesday when their helicopter crashed into an apartment building and exploded. At least four tenants of the building were injured.

The crash, which occurred shortly after the WEEL reporter gave his 7:28 a.m. traffic condition report, was seen by a helicopter traffic reporter for another station and his pilot, and the word quickly spread to rush hour motorists.

"It went into a spinning dive and crashed through the roof of the apartment building," said Ned Foster of station WBZ. "Then it exploded on impact. It took us a minute or two to believe we saw what we did."

Killed were reporter Henry "Chip" Whitmore, 29, of Boston, and Richard "Red" Bank, 58, of Marlboro, chief pilot for the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission, according to station WEEL. Spokesmen said the two were substituting for vacationing reporter-pilot Kevin O'Keefe, who usually flew alone.

Apartment building residents Ronald Michaelson, 28, his wife Lynn, 26, were critically burned. Quincy City Hospital officials said. The couple's 20-week-old daughter was treated and released.

Another resident, Julia Verga, 62, was critically burned and taken to University Hospital, the hospital said.

Bond Set For Hijack Suspect

ATLANTA (AP) — Bond was set at $250,000 Tuesday for a New York man accused of the Christmas Day hijacking of an Eastern Airlines jet.

Federal Magistrate Owen Forrester set the bond after charging Nikolai Wischnewsky with air piracy. A hearing was scheduled for Jan. 3.

Wischnewsky, 32, an Austrian citizen who lived in Pearl River, N.Y., said little at the arraignment, sitting quietly with his head held in his manacled hands.

Wischnewsky is accused in a federal complaint of taking over the DC-9 "by force and threat of force" and holding hostage the 36 persons aboard.

He allegedly commandeered the Miami-to-Indianapolis flight shortly after its takeoff from Jacksonville, Fla., and ordered the pilot to fly to Cuba.

The hijacker allowed the pilot to land in Atlanta and had freed all but nine passengers and crew members at Hartsfield

International Airport when FBI Agent Don Cochran and an Atlanta policeman overpowered him. A gun the hijacker brandished turned out to be a toy, and the bomb he said he had strapped to his body was found to be a transistor radio.

No one was hurt in the incident.

Cochran testified at the arraignment that Wischnewsky tried to rob a New Jersey store in 1975 "with a similar type arrangement, claiming to have a bomb and holding people hostage."

New York authorities say Wischnewsky pleaded guilty in early 1976 to third-degree robbery for holding the proprietors of a bait and tackle shop hostage with a cigar box that supposedly contained a bomb. He recently was paroled, authorities said.

Wischnewsky complained of chest pains Tuesday morning, but Forrester said at the arraignment that a doctor had examined him and "his report indicates no health problems."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

The idea of putting the plastic bag under newspapers first, for dogs, is the only solution, but there was still the problem of the "edge of the paper" wetting.

I solved this by getting a large empty cardboard carton from the store — cutting it about one and one-half inches from the bottom, making an "edged" box, just big enough for a newspaper section.

You can put in the plastic bag, or piece of shower curtain (I use a disposable diaper), then the few sections of newspaper. The dog will have to go over the edge to get to the paper and probably will no longer "edge wet" because any liquid — or other — will stay within bounds and can be changed easily without spilling.

Our Peke learned very quickly, and when he goes he comes running out — tail wagging — to say "Come, see what I did!" Then he always gets his goodie. — D.H.O.

Dear Heloise:

Here's how to clean your rings really clean. If you have an electric water spraying device for cleaning your teeth, just fill it with a mild suds or cleaner that won't damage the plastic tube, etc.

Hold your rings over the sink (making sure the stopper is in) and aim the little jet of water around the stones and settings of your rings. I set mine on the strongest setting, and it sure does the work. Rinse the rings in rubbing alcohol and dry on tissues.

Be sure this gadget is rinsed thoroughly so as not to damage the tube or container.

Also be sure the sets are all intact so you won't cause them to pop out. I have mine checked and cleaned regularly by a jeweler, but in between times this is great for many-stone and intricate settings. Try it, you'll like it! — Mrs. Merrill Taylor

And, well deserved. Wish babies were as easily trained! — Heloise

Dear Heloise:

If you have either a brushed steel, or a polished steel sink, try using a silver cream to clean it with instead of the usual harsher cleansers.

It won't scratch the pretty finish and for all I can see does every bit as good a job. — Nora Spencer

Dear Heloise:

I took an old rubber spatula and cut a V shape in the middle. This I use to scrape the beaters down during mixing and getting excess dough off when I put cake into pan. — Violet I. Nalitsnik

Dear Heloise:

When I bought my son a pair of trousers the other day the saleslady tucked the receipt into the pocket.

I asked if that was store policy or if it was her idea. When she replied that she thought of it herself, so people wouldn't lose the slip when they pulled the garments from the bag, I suggested she write you.

So just in case she hasn't written, thought I would. — Mrs. K.R.S.

No, never heard of this, but think it's a humdinger! You were sweet to tell on her. — Heloise

South got away with the year's greatest example of egomania with today's hand. He elected to bid one notrump with his 19-point hand that included a five-card spade suit because he wanted to play the hand if his side ended up notrump. Then, when his partner raised to game he shot on to a slam based on his extra point and extra confidence in his own dummy play. West opened the jack of spades. East played low and South took his queen. He.

needed to set up the spade suit so he led back a low spade at trick two. West won and had nothing better to do than to lead a third spade. Now South could count to 11 sure tricks — four spades, three hearts, one diamond and three clubs. The 12th would come if clubs broke 3-3, or if a squeeze could develop.
This time the squeeze worked. Not that it was a difficult one.
South cashed three hearts and the ace of diamonds. Then he played his last two spades. The last spade squeezed poor West. He had to chuck a club in order to hang on to the king of diamonds. The queen of diamonds was thrown from dummy and the clubs were all good.
South admitted he was lucky, but also pointed out that if North played notrump a diamond lead would beat him.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We are having a time with our 9-year-old boy. He has always been overactive. Now his school work is suffering. It's as though he doesn't get the idea of school at all. His teachers say he could do well if he only would pay attention and stop goofing around. Would tranquilizers help him calm down so he gets some good out of school? I read recently about something called "MBD." Could this be what we are dealing with? Who should I see? — Worried Treatment requires teamwork among the doctor, parents, and teachers. If there is a child behavior clinic in your area get help there.

Early diagnosis and treatment are essential. Unfortunately, many schools do not recognize the problem and the fact that such children are not being "bad" or failing to learn because they are ornery. They need special teaching. As soon as this fact is recognized, it's possible to salvage many of these unfortunate youngsters and prevent later antisocial behavior which can result.

Restaurant Owners Believe Customers Basically Honest

TRaverse City, Mich. (AP) — It looks like any family-type restaurant you'd find in a thousand American communities the size of Traverse City.
It has the familiar long counter, and booths in the middle aisle and alongside the wall the length of the dining area.
But this one is different.
It isn't the food. Nor is it the prices.
What makes Stacey's Restaurant unusual is that it may be the only establishment in the nation without a cashier. The customer makes his or her own change.
Customers are simply given a dinner check or told by a waitress how much the bill is. Then it's up to them to walk up to the cash register and do as they are told.
"Ring up the amount, and hit the yellow key," Julia Stathakis advises the customer as she pours coffee.
The till swings open and in it are $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills neatly stacked one under another in separate compartments.
The customer places his bill in the register, takes whatever change is due and pushes the drawer shut.
And all this without any suspicious cashier watching every move.
"We do it all the time," said Mrs. Stathakis, who with her husband, Charles, owns the popular restaurant. "Why should anybody want to steal from me?"
In a big city, she acknowledged, she would go bankrupt in about five minutes.
"I think in the big city they cheat each other because they don't trust each other," she said.

"We let our customers make their own change because if you trust people they won't cheat on you. The only ones people steal from are the people they don't trust."
She said she has learned from the experience that people basically are honest.
"We've been doing this for most of the 20 years we've been here. Once a man discovered he had shortchanged me out of a dollar. He sent me a check and apologized. And I have the letter at home to prove it," she said.
"A banker who does business in the block came in one day and handed me a $5 bill. He said it had to be mine because it was all he had when he reported to work. He had eaten here and said he must have forgotten to put it in the register."

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible
Rev. 13:16-18, 14:1-10A

16 He required everyone great and small, rich and poor, slave and free — to be tattooed with a certain mark on the right hand or on the forehead.
17 And no one could get a job or even buy in any store without the permit of that mark, which was either the name of the Creature or the code number of his name.
18 Here is a puzzle that calls for careful thought to solve it. Let those who are able, interpret this code: the numerical values of the letters in his name add to 666!¹⁴
CHAPTER 14
1 Then I saw a Lamb standing on Mount Zion in Jerusalem, and with Him were 144,000 who had His Name and His Father's Name written on their foreheads.
2 And I heard a sound from heaven like the roaring of a great waterfall or the rolling of mighty thunder. It was the singing of a choir accompanied by harps.
3 This tremendous choir — 144,000 strong — sang a wonderful new song in front of the throne of God and before the four Living Beings and the twenty-four Elders; and no one could sing this song except those 144,000 who had been redeemed from the earth.
4 For they are spiritually undefiled, pure as virgins,¹ following the Lamb wherever He goes. They have been purchased from among the men on the earth as a consecrated offering to God and the Lamb.

5 No falsehood can be charged against them; they are blameless.
6 And I saw another angel flying through the heavens, carrying the everlasting Good News to preach to those on earth — every nation, tribe, language and people.
7 "Fear God," he shouted, "and extol His greatness. For the time has come when He will sit as Judge. Worship Him who made the heaven and the earth, the sea and all its sources."
8 Then another angel followed him through the skies, saying, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen — that great city — because she seduced the nations of the world and made them share the wine of her intense impurity and sin."
9 Then a third angel followed them shouting, "Anyone worshipping the Creature from the sea² and his statue and accepting his mark on the forehead or the hand,
10 Must drink the wine of the anger of God; it is poured out undiluted into God's cup of wrath.

Open Letter to Researchers at the Rat Place:

Enough is enough. You people have succeeded in taking every bit of joy out of my life under the guise of sparing me disease and prolonging my life. For this I am appreciative. Our relationship existed solely on blind trust. When you told me research rats succumbed from coffee, diet pills, loud noises, glue from envelopes, snow, I stopped drinking, dieting, listening, writing home and falling face down in the cold, wet stuff.

When you told me your rats expired from saccharin, cyclamates, X-rays, booze, cigarettes and too much sun, I swore off all those things.

Now I must insist that you arrange a meeting between a bleached blond rat with lipstick on her teeth and myself or it's all over. Frankly, I'm beginning to feel like I'm in a Mel Brooks movie and Marty Feldman just issued a story to a newspaper warning, "Two bleached blond rats died mysteriously today on two little bar stools in Transylvania. Dom DeLuise, a bungling researcher, says their deaths could be the result of hair bleach—however, their sugar-free root beer and their rouge containing No. 2 red dye are under investigation."

I am not the only one who is becoming suspicious of anonymous rats. We sit around in groups and ponder where are the people who make their little cigarettes? Their little cocktail glasses? Who does their makeup? Sews their little beach towels?

And if no one has questioned it— they should— why is it only the wonderful things of life are hazardous? Why don't rats succumb to mince pie? (I hate mince pie.) Or rhubarb? Or working Saturdays? Or seeing your dentist twice a year? Or sweat? Or fresh-cut grass or castor oil?

I'm sorry to be a doubter, but you researchers have to understand there's a lot at stake here— my ultimate will to live.

I respectfully request that at some date in the near future you arrange a meeting between your research rats and myself. Even if they have expired, but have a smile on their faces and look terrific... that's good enough for me.

New 'Lassie' Film Due To Air Soon

By REBECCA MOREHOUSE

NEW YORK (WNS) — Bonita Granville was born into show business and became a child film star, yet she was never engaged in divorce, scandal, alcoholism or drugs. Her one and only marriage, to Jack Wrather, the business tycoon, will be 31 years old in January.

They met on a blind date. So, all you out there who spurn them, take note.

"Jack was in the Marine Corps four years, he came home to a broken marriage and was making small movies," she said. "Henry Rogers, who handled my publicity, said to him, 'I know a cute little blonde you should meet.' I saw him for dinner with Henry and his wife and I never had a date with anyone else."

She is best remembered as the destructive, lie-telling child in "These Three," the sanitized 1936 production of Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour." Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea were the movie's stars. Bonita was nominated for an Academy Award.

"It's funny but I suppose people still think of me as that nasty little girl," she said. "The original play had a lesbian theme but 'These Three' was about a man and a woman. I think it was a better production than the later one with Audrey Hepburn and Shirley MacLaine."

Her reactions to movies and television might be those of a Sunday school teacher.

"I think people are tired of explicit sex and violence, they see what it's doing to the youth of this country. They become desensitized. A youth can go out and kill nine people and think nothing of it. Let's talk about the fall of Rome."

"There are an awful lot of X-rated and R-rated movies. They appeal to the base emotions of people, they don't uplift anybody. We must try to show good things."

Her own personal answer is "Lassie, My Lassie," since 1951 the first "Lassie" feature film. Bonita was the first associate producer, and then the producer, of the "Lassie" TV series, which ran 19 years.

"I want people to see the movie and come out feeling happy and joyous," she said. "The Wrather Corporation financed it entirely, we got no money from any other source. It's a dramatic adventure with music. We have wonderful songs written by Robert B. and Richard M. Sherman, who wrote the 'Mary Poppins' music."

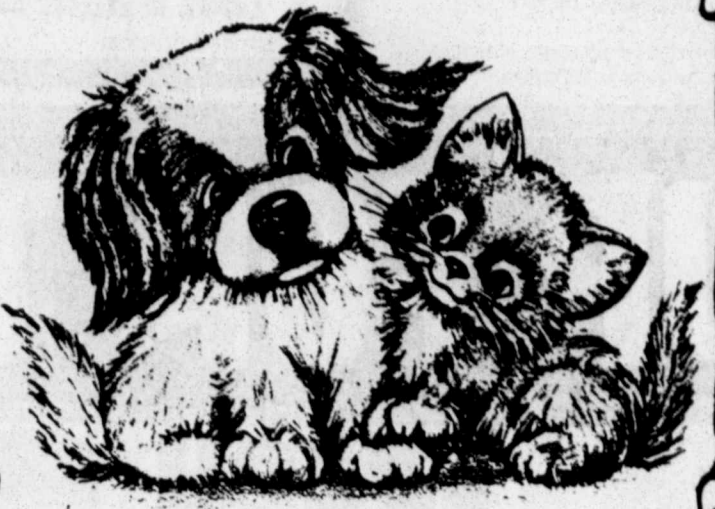

Besides Lassie, a seventh-generation descendant of the original collie, the film's stars include James Stewart, Alice Faye, Mickey Rooney, Pernell Roberts and Stephanie Zimbalist, daughter of Elfrida Zimbalist Jr.

Forester Offers Tips On Firewood

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — It's helpful to know something about the burning qualities of various woods before you stock firewood for your fireplace, says forester Dennis Adams of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Adams said pine, spruce and fir ignite easily because they are resinous, he said a longer lasting fire can be made of heavier hardwoods such as ash, maple and oak. Oak gives the most uniform and shortest flames and produces steadily glowing coals.

For aroma, try burning apple, cherry or hickory wood, he said.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from "Third Eye" ticked me off. I am using company paper to write this letter. I'm also using the company's typewriter and the company's time, but I don't feel the least bit guilty. Why?

As long as my boss can spend several hours looking for a new water heater, or read magazines on hunting during working hours, and play tennis at 2:00 p.m., I think my cheating is as justified as his.

Sorry I am not able to sign my name to this letter but I need my paycheck on Friday. — A Woman Who Hates Hypocrites

Dear Woman: Sorry, I don't agree. Rank has its privileges, dear. The boss can do lots of things you can't because he has earned or inherited the right. With your attitude, Buttercup, you'll never be a boss.

Dear Ann Landers: Please check with your high-class medical experts and give me the facts. If I take 50 sleeping pills and ten tranquilizers, would that be enough to kill me? Or do I have to drink a fifth of whiskey to make sure I finish myself for good? I am sick and tired of this lousy, stinking world and thinking seriously of killing myself. Almost everything I've ever done in my whole life has been wrong. I don't want to botch my last job. Please don't suggest that I jump out of a window or use a gun. I hate messes (P.S. This is no joke from Yale. I am serious and need your advice.) — Goodbye All

Dear All: Sorry, I try to help people stay alive. You'll have to go elsewhere for information on how to kill yourself. The money you'd have to put out for the pills and booze could be better spent on a session with a counselor. Remember that once you're dead, it's too late to try anything else.

Dear Ann: I am a 60-year-old divorced woman. Many people who don't know my age think I am in my early forties.

A year ago I met a very attractive divorced man who is 45 years old. We have been going together for a year and are in love. He wants to marry me and honeymoon in Europe.

Several times he has asked me my age and I've avoided telling him by saying, "That's my secret."

I am not an American citizen and have a foreign passport. Is it possible to keep my age a secret under these circumstances? Am I headed for trouble not telling him how old I am? Your answer will be a great help. — Not Forty

Dear Not: Tell him your age — and quit being coy. If he is put off by a number, he's not the man for you.

Dear Ann: I'm 44, husband same age (swell guy). We get along OK — no drinking, no gambling, no skirt chasing. He has a good job and our home is paid for. Our four children are healthy and normal. They do well in school and the three older ones (teenagers) have never caused us any trouble.

So why am I writing? Because my life is blah. Something is missing. It's like stew without salt. I feel a certain emptiness.

What is it? — Marge

Dear M: The emptiness is in your head, dear. Any woman who has a "swell guy" husband, four normal, well-behaved kids and no money problems has a lot to be thankful for. You need to do volunteer work in a hospital for the handicapped or a home for the aged. It will give you a healthier perspective on your own life.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 111995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Fewer Household Workers Available In U.S. Today

By BETTY YARMON

NEW YORK (WNS) — Here is a sign of the times: U.S. household workers are in short supply and the supply gets shorter and shorter while the demand increases.

The figures are revealing. The unemployment rate among domestic workers is as low as that of any vocation on the list, running about half the national rate of 7 per cent. Estimates have it that as many as three million men and women have dropped out of the domestic-worker market during the past several years.

At the same time, the need becomes greater, particularly as working wives join the labor force in increasing numbers, and many of them are forced to look to domestic help to take care of children and other household chores while they are at work.

The reasons given for the decline in household workers are several:

1. GOVERNMENT WELFARE POLICIES. Many workers who would be forced to take household jobs if they had no other financial support simply feel they would rather take governmental handouts, and they seem able to get away with it.

2. RESTRICTIVE IMMIGRATION POLICIES. Over the generations, when the United States was the great haven of immigrants, foreigners became the pool for household help. Working as a domestic was one of the first steps on an immigrant's path to success within American society. In many countries still, being a maid or butler remains a desired career... but few immigrants prepared to do such work seem to be arriving on our shores.

3. THE FLIGHT OF THE MIDDLE CLASS TO THE SUBURBS. Since most of those who would accept domestic jobs live in the inner city while the demand comes in large part from those now in the suburbs, transportation has become a major problem. Where rapid public transportation does not exist or is inadequate, in the Los Angeles area, potential domestic workers often find the going too difficult and ultimately give up.

4. PSYCHOLOGICAL REASONS. Some Americans simply don't want to be servants. We have been hearing for so long about the American dream and how we are all entitled to share in it — this is drummed into American homes nightly in living color over TV — that the idea of doing menial domestic service has become anathema.

Ironically, the extent of the shortage has made domestic service that much more attractive, to the point that we hear about jobs of $700-a-month plus room going begging, or of calls for couples to fill $20,000-a-year positions bringing no callers.

As a consequence, the lures being offered in classified ads keep mounting: air-conditioned living quarters, private telephone, use of swimming pool, color TV, generous vacations, health and accident insurance coverage.

The man or woman eager to fill such a job will have no difficulty locating offers. Employment agencies, both those that specialize in domestic help and those that work across the board, always have a full quota of such orders. The newspapers are filled with help-wanted ads for household help. In addition, services have sprung up that offer householders help on a part-time basis, with someone else being assigned when the regular worker becomes ill; these services are found in the yellow pages under "House Cleaning."

It all adds up to this equation: Household help is an area where the willing worker can just about always find a job.

In general, the unemployed want to work if given the opportunity.

Unfortunately, though, we have so stressed success in America that people seem prepared to stay out of work rather than help another family do its household chores.

St. Lawrence Seaway Closed For Winter

MONTREAL (AP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway officially closed for the winter when the Swiss freighter St. Cergue became the last ocean-going vessel to clear the St. Lambert lock on Monday, a Seaway spokesman said Tuesday.

The St. Cergue, bound for Dunkirk, France, loaded with 10,000 tons of sunflower seeds, was the last of 83 ocean-going vessels to clear the system since the official closing Dec. 15. It cost $100,000 a day to keep the Seaway operating.

The race to clear the seaway was complicated by cold weather, fog and snowstorms. Seaway spokesmen had expressed pessimism about all the ships clearing the locks before the waterway froze over.

On Dec. 2, the seaway was closed to ocean-bound ships in an attempt to speed the exit of an unusually heavy pileup of ships in the Great Lakes system.

At the time, there were 155 ocean ships still above the St. Lambert exit near here, the largest number of ships ever trapped by winter since the Seaway opened in 1959. At the same time last year there were 95 ships.

Committee To Probe Grand Jury System

By BILL CLAYTON
 AUSTIN —At both state and federal levels, the grand jury system has recently come under considerable criticism. In response, I have appointed a special House joint committee to investigate the grand jury system of Texas, including selection procedures and terms of the jurors and jury procedures.
 Several district attorneys from throughout Texas who testified at the committee's first public hearing claimed that the present "blue ribbon" system of jury selection is discriminatory to racial minorities. It was stated that this procedure is used by some district judges to increase political power in that they select friends to serve on the commission who in turn choose their friends for the grand jury. The suggestion was made that a more random method of choosing jurors is needed. In the past year, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a Rio Grand Valley case that the "blue ribbon" system discriminated against Mexican-Americans.

 Some argue that the "blue ribbon" system allows for the choosing of more up-standing members of the communities and that the present system has been effective and should not be changed.
 Another area of criticism concerns control the district attorney has over the system in that he can get an indictment if he wants and could conceivably use the system for political persecution. The right to counsel by the accused and by the witnesses of the grand jury and the need for the jurors to be properly informed of their duties are other areas where concern has been voiced.
 Most of those testifying agreed that the grand jury system should not be done away with but changes should be made.

Oil Industry Faces More Challenges

HOUSTON (AP) — The oil industry recalls 1977 as a year of accomplishment despite continuing uncertainties.

However, many of the uncertainties will carry over into 1978, and oil executives say the industry will be faced with more challenges.

The uncertainties center on the national energy program proposals that were deadlocked in a House-Senate conference committee as Congress began its holiday recess that continues until Jan. 19.

Industry leaders contend the proposals backed by President Carter place too much emphasis on taxes and controls without providing sufficient incentives to maximize domestic energy development and production.

Orin E. Atkins, Ashland Oil Inc. chairman, has summarized the outlook this way:

Freeze On Fuel Cost Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Council on Wage and Price Stability said Tuesday it opposes an effort to freeze the price difference between leaded and unleaded gasoline.

At hearings held by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on Nov. 29, the Environmental Protection Agency said new controls should be considered to maintain the price difference between the two kinds of gas.

For example, if a service station sold leaded gas for 60 cents a gallon and unleaded gas for 65 cents a gallon and decided to raise the price of leaded gas to 62 cents, it would have to raise the price of unleaded gas to 67 cents to maintain the five-cent price difference.

The EPA said the freeze would discourage drivers from switching from unleaded to leaded gasoline in autos equipped with catalytic converters. Such switching, the EPA maintained, destroys the effectiveness of the converters and increases air pollution.

The council said the EPA's proposal is inflationary and would mean large cost increases for the consumer.

"Moreover, freezing the differentials would likely lead to elaborate and pervasive controls on the retailing, distribution and refining segments of the industry," the council said.

The council suggested the EPA consider less inflationary alternatives to ensure compliance with EPA regulations.

"Uncertainties in both the world economy and the United States petroleum industry have been heightened by government policies which threaten to hinder rather than aid the development of a strong national energy base.

"Despite these problems, the petroleum industry and Ashland have continued to make capital expenditures at an unprecedented rate anticipating that rational thinking will prevail to assure a strong energy base for the future."

Four trends highlighted 1977 domestic operations:

—Demand for petroleum products approximated 18.3 million barrels a day, a record level that compares with the 17.3 million pre-embargo average of 1973.

—Imports of crude oil and petroleum products approached 8.8 million barrels a day, a record level that accounted for about 48 percent of the year's demand for products.

—Crude oil production in the lower 48 states declined for a seventh consecutive year, but the long-delayed midyear opening of the Trans-Alaska pipeline and the start of production from Alaska's prolific Prudhoe Bay area led to the first overall increase in domestic output since 1970.

—Oil and gas drilling operations moved to an 18-year high with an indication that total well completions for the year might approach 45,000, compared with 41,421 in 1976 and the record 57,111 in 1956.

Most forecasts indicate all four trends will continue in 1978, with imports possibly moderating a bit as the Trans-Alaska flow moves toward its initial crude oil capacity of 1.2 million barrels a day.

The record demand for petroleum products pushed 1977 refining operations to record levels as crude runs to stills averaged about 14.5 million barrels a day, or 9.8 percent above 1976.

With refineries operating at 90.8 percent of capacity the first 10 months of the year, the industry moved into the winter season with 1.3 billion barrels of crude oil and products in storage, 7.2 percent above the year-earlier level.

This left refiners in a good supply position should a second straight colder-than-normal winter develop.

For natural gas, however, the situation was quite different.

Interstate pipeline contract requirements for the winter months were estimated at 7.2 trillion cubic feet, compared with available supplies estimated at 5.5 trillion cubic feet. This amounts to a 23 percent shortage, compared with 21 percent last winter.

Domestic crude oil production, which peaked at 9,180,000 barrels a day in 1970, fell to 8,016,000 barrels a day by the time the Trans-Alaska pipeline began operating in late June.

Start-up problems that included sabotage, explosions, and fires forced postponement of the line's projected flow of 1.2 million barrels a day until next spring.

But Prudhoe Bay production was approximating 600,000 barrels a day, boosting overall domestic output to about 8.6 million barrels a day, compared with 8.1 million barrels a year earlier. Spread over the calendar year, Prudhoe Bay crude was expected to boost the 1977 daily average to about 8,188,000 barrels a day, compared with 8,138,000 in 1976.

Plans for marketing Prudhoe Bay's natural gas reserves, estimated at more than 30 trillion cubic feet, were proceeding at year-end with federal approval of a pipeline route across Alaska and Canada.

Alcan Pipeline Co. expressed hope that up to 800 million cubic feet a day can be delivered to markets in the lower 48 states by late 1979 or early 1980.

Still to be made final, however, was federal and state approval for a pipeline to move surplus Prudhoe Bay crude oil from California to inland refinery centers.

In early December, domestic oil and gas operators had 2,151 rotary drilling rigs at work, the highest level since December 1959. Industry sources, while cautiously watching Washington, were predicting the upward trend should continue well into 1978.

John E. Swearingen, the 1978 chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, was among those expressing hope some sort of compromise can be effected to assure adequate incentives for the industry to maximize the search for additional energy supplies.

Swearingen, chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), said the industry can provide ample supplies of energy here at home if the market system is allowed to work and prices are permitted to go high enough to cover the cost of production and allow a reasonable profit.

Oil Exempted From Tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, saying the United States must set up a strategic petroleum reserve "as quickly as possible," issued an order Tuesday exempting oil products destined for the reserve from import fees.

The imposition of import license fees, Carter said, "could create administrative and other problems with respect to the expeditious completion of the reserve."

By proclamation, he exempted crude oil imported for the reserve from a tariff of 21 cents a barrel and finished products such as propane and butane from a tariff of 63 cents a barrel.

"It is necessary that the United States complete the establishment of a strategic petroleum reserve as quickly as possible," Carter said.

He listed the reserve as one of his goals in his energy message to Congress last April.

Americans Wealthier, Live Longer, Know Less

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans are living longer and have more wealth and education than at any time in this century, but crime is worse and the practical knowledge of many educated persons has declined.

Those and other assessments are contained in a Census Bureau report, "Social Indicators 1976," published Tuesday.

The bureau said the average size of the family has declined from a peak of 3.7 persons in the mid 1960s to 3.4. By 1990, the family size will be even smaller because the average married couple will have only one child.

The birthrate is declining and life expectancy has lengthened, the bureau said. A girl born in 1974 can expect to live to be 76 while a boy born in the same year can expect to live to be 68.

Nine of 10 Americans report satisfaction with family life, but three of 10 wish divorce were easier. And family life is more unstable, with more than one-third of the black families and one of 10 white families now headed by a woman.

The number of children entangled in divorce proceedings has more than tripled in the past 20 years while the annual rate of divorce and annulment has more than doubled.

Crime has worsened in the past two decades. The rate of violent crimes against people and property crimes — burglary, shoplifting and the like — have tripled in the past 15 years.

Although the United States has one of the world's lowest death rates from fire, drowning and other accidents, it ranks first in murder and above average in traffic fatalities.

Americans are spending more time in school than their parents and grandparents, but the level of proficiency in direct proportion to schooling has declined.

A set of standardized tests given to adults showed that one of every five was a functional illiterate and less than half can meet minimal standards of adequacy for everyday life, including completion of income tax and insurance forms.

"While the trend toward completing more years of schooling continues, information on actual achievement as revealed by tests is less optimistic," the bureau said.

Most people believe they live in good neighborhoods. The number of luxuries in the average household has increased to the point that one former luxury — indoor plumbing — is now a necessity. The bureau said 98 percent of all homes have indoor plumbing compared with just over half as recently as 1940.

The Central American republic of Nicaragua lies between the Caribbean Sea and the Pacific Ocean and has 200 miles of coastline on each side.

Income is up and leisure time has increased. In addition the average worker is retiring at a younger age than his parents and grandparents. Of the extra time available to Americans, a big chunk is apparently taken up watching television.

Nearly three of every 10 persons said television is the favorite pastime. Of those who go out for entertainment, horse racing is the most popular diversion. Horse racing in 1974 drew more than twice as many fans as the 30 million that watched major league baseball. Greyhound racing ranked third followed by pro football and basketball.

PROPOSED TRANSIT VEHICLE — An artist's conception of what Miami's proposed rapid transit vehicle might look like if voters approve the multi-million dollar rail system in a special election in March. The $695-million rapid transit line is viewed by most Miami officials as a must for the Dade Country area, where some highways are already at 200 percent capacity and no new expressways planned. (AP Laserphoto)

Battle Looms Over Monorail

MIAMI (AP) — San Francisco points to a sleek computerized train system. Washington, D.C., boasts a flashy subway. And if Dade County officials have their way, Miami commuters will speed along overhead in elevated cars not much different in appearance from Disney World's monorail.

County officials say Miami — following the lead of cities around the country — needs rapid transit to give commuters an alternative to snarled traffic and undependable buses. They view rapid transit as the only option in an area where some highways already are at 200 percent capacity and no new expressways are planned.

Plans seemed well under way until recently, when Miami attorney Richard Friedman threw a scare into county officials, collecting enough signatures to force a March 7 referendum on financing the $595-million project.

Opposition To Monorail

Friedman says he will try to convince voters that the 16.5-mile proposed first phase is not what they chose in 1972 when they authorized $132.5 million in bonds for a transportation system.

To counter Friedman, the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce is mapping strategy to raise $100,000 for a massive campaign to save mass transit.

Transportation officials describe Miami's planned transit as a modernistic, open system — "probably the only system in North America that won't have to worry about heating or air conditioning because it will be wide open" with steel-wheel vehicles running on double steel tracks, which will lie on rubber cushions on elevated concrete runways.

Friedman and other detractors of the system have a different description. They call it the "Third Avenue El," referring to New York City's noisy old — and now extinct — elevated train.

Noise Level Debates

But John Dyer, Dade County's transportation coordinator, says the system at Miami would be quieter than New York subways, somewhat louder than typical Unlike Washington's and San Francisco's subways or Atlanta's mostly ground-level railroad, still under construction, Miami's system was planned to speed along overhead at up to 75 mph at a cost of about 50 cents a ride, according to Dyer.

"Nearly every system has some aerial structures, but Miami's will be fairly unique because it will be at surface or in the air," Dyer says, adding that the plan would make the 80 percent-aerial system less expensive to construct and maintain.

Subways Found Unsuitable

A subway was rejected because of South Florida's soggy terrain, and light-rail vehicles were ruled out because of traffic congestion that would result if the vehicles crossed side streets at ground level.

Although full-scale construction of Miami's rail system wasn't planned until next September, work already has begun to upgrade a dilapidated bus system, which annoys riders with slow, hot and unreliable service and confusing routes.

Transmission problems, electrical failures and bad air conditioning often keep half the fleet's 500 buses in the shop daily, but Dyer says by the time the rail system would be ready, a high-quality feeder bus operation would be ready to meet it.

Each of the 18 to 19 commuter stations was estimated to cost $5 million.

And officials say Miami's transit system would rely on proven technology, not experimental computerized controls that have at times crippled San Francisco's 71-mile Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

Rider Population Foreseen

Dyer says he expected rapid transit to sell itself to residents of Dade County, where auto insurance premiums are among the highest in the nation.

He says riders would be attracted by the speed and relative safety of rapid transit, perhaps 10 times safer than the automobile, he says.

Officials, who were shooting for daily ridership of 200,000, say they wanted "to get everyone within three blocks of transportation" in a county that has grown 36 percent since the 1960s and where population is expected to top 1.7 million by 1985.

Operating Deficit Feared

But Friedman contends that taxpayers will face an annual deficit of as much as $100 million. Dyer says the figure will be about $25 million for the first phase, $10 million more than the deficit of the current bus system.

Dyer says his own projections look realistic in view of other cities' experiences. He says Toronto's 26-mile rapid transit system runs a $35.5-million operating deficit annually, San Francisco's $45 million and the 18-mile Washington, D.C., system $33 million.

The first phase of Miami's system was planned for completion by early 1983, 80 percent funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Transportation Urban Mass Transit Administration, Dyer says. In addition, the city planned a 1.8-mile elevated "people mover" resembling Disney World's monorail.

Dyer says that by 1985 or 1986, if federal funding continues, 48 miles of rails and three miles of people mover would be in operation.

He cites various reasons why a mass transit system is vital to Dade County, with highway congestion topping the list.

He says 70 percent of Dade's arterial roads have all the traffic they can handle. The stretch of Interstate 95 through Dade operates at twice its capacity, and voters rejected plans for new highways.

Cities Reject Rail Systems

Although the energy-conscious administration isn't encouraging new highway construction, it has become disenchanted with what President Carter calls "grossly oversized" mass transit systems. Instead, Carter encourages surface rail-bus systems similar to Miami's proposed plan or off-street parking, one-way streets and special bus lanes.

Federal officials have turned down a Denver proposal to build a limited rail system, and plans for rail systems have been dropped in Seattle, St. Louis and Los Angeles. But, besides Miami and Atlanta, it's full steam ahead for mass transit in Baltimore, Honolulu and Detroit, with renovations slated for Boston and Louisville.

Sound Recordings Available For Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Video and sound recordings made by police may be used in the trial of the parents of Joe Campos Torres on charges of resisting arrest.

Police Chief Harry Caldwell said Tuesday, "I think the Torreses have received sufficient publicity. I'm not going to discuss it."

The chief did say videotaping "does have a lot of potential and I intend to exploit this potential. You don't have to take anybody's word for what happened."

Joe Luna Torres and his wife, Margaret, were arrested Oct. 8 after a scuffle in front of a pool hall.

They are the parents of Joe Campos Torres, who body was found in Buffalo Bayou last May. Two former Houston policemen were convicted of negligent homicide, and the jury gave them probation and one year sentences.

Four officers involved in the incident are to go on trial Jan. 16 in federal court on charges of violating the civil rights of the 23-year-old Torres.

The arrest of the Torres couple came shortly after a demonstration of 200 persons protesting the probation sentences given to the two former officers.

Their trial has been set for Jan. 13.

A police official said the Torreses were first videotaped as they were booked into jail. During interviews later, tapes also were made.

Al Levin, an assistant city attorney, said the tapes are legal and "He (Chief Caldwell) wanted to be sure those people (the Torreses) were handled in a very careful, proper manner and he wanted to be sure no future problems would occur."

Percy Foreman, the couple's attorney, said he knows the Torreses were taped, but does not know the details of the tapes. And, Foreman said he doesn't believe the law is clear on whether taped confessions can be used as evidence in Texas courts.

Joe Luna Torres claimed he was beaten during his arrest.

Chief Caldwell said he would like to take the video-sound recording idea beyond jail interviews. He said he is considering placing small sound recorders on the belt of all officers.

The chief also said he would someday like to issue small video cameras to officers working in teams so that both sound and video recordings of arrests could be made.

"It is the closest thing to having a jury present at the time the case occurs," he said.

Credit Spending Trend Expected To Continue

DALLAS (AP) — The chairman of a consumer credit reporting firm says that record-setting Christmas sales were no flash-in-the-pan, that consumers are "seeking credit with a vengeance" and that the trend will continue well into 1978.

The upbeat report came Tuesday from J.E.R. Chilton III of the Chilton Corp., who said that spending this past Christmas will beat last year's record levels by more than 10 percent.

"Based on the surge in demand we've seen since August, it's going to be months before consumers slow their pursuit of credit," Chilton said. "We now feel comfortable that installment credit will hit $230 billion a year from now, a figure that we previously had not expected until 1980."

Chilton considers his firm's credit report volume a lead indicator of retail sales because he says more than half of retail sales are made on credit.

Enrico Caruso made his American debut at the Metropolitan Opera in New York on Nov. 23, 1903.

He said rising incomes have kept pace with the growth of credit obligations, keeping that ratio well away from any "danger levels."

"Regardless of the state of the economy or consumer concerns about the future in general, if they just are confident about their jobs they will take on new credit," Chilton said.

Heartline

HEARTLINE: I have just sold my home and I am planning to move into an apartment. I have a lease from one complex but I do not understand very much of it. Can you give me the meanings of phrases in some leases? J.K.

ANSWER: To help you find out what in many leases have pulled out some of the terms and simplified them.

Lessee — That's you.

Lessor — That's the owner or one of his employees, such a manager or rental agent.

Demised Premises — It sounds forbidding, but it's the legal jargon for the property you're renting.

Ejectment — The "nice" word for eviction.

Notice to Quit — This is a written order for you to get off the landlord's property.

Notice to Vacate — That's your written statement that your getting off the landlord's property.

Assign or Sublet — Subletting is when you lease out your place for only part of the time you've signed for (for instance, just for the summer). Assigning is when you lease out your apartment for the remainder of the time your lease runs.

Indemnify and Render the Lessor Harmless — This means to make the landlord free of any responsibility even to the point of your not suing him.

Arrears — Money not paid when it's due, such as overdue rent.

Distrain Proceeding (or proceed by distress) — If you owe the landlord money and don't pay up, he can "proceed by distress" against you, i.e., take your personal property to force you to pay or sell it to get his money.

Goods and Chattels — That's your personal property. It's usually what the landlord will threaten to take if you don't pay.

Replevin — That's the legal action you can take to get property back that was unlawfully seized. Watch out though — many leases say you agree not to take the action.

Inure (or Enure) — It simply means to "take effect." Most leases inure when you sign them.

HEARTLINE: I am 64 years old. My wife and I are drawing our social security benefits. Recently my wife was at our doctor's office and she saw a newsletter from the National Association of Older Americans. This is a group that I have heard anything about. Can you tell me anything about this group and where I can write to them? S.F.

ANSWER: The National Association of Older Americans is a new organization for older Americans. This group is just ending its first year of existence. Its purpose is to aid older generations as many ways as possible.

The organization offers one of the most informative and entertaining newsletters available to senior citizens. Subjects range from consumer protection ideas to coverage of all governmental retirement programs. They have staff to answer your questions and aid you with problems that may arise. In addition to this, there also is a prescription drug program that offers substantial savings and in January they will offer an excellent Medicare supplement health insurance policy.

Progress Slight In Africa

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Burdened by mounting debts, spiraling populations that outpace food production and growing political turmoil which in some areas has spilled over into war, African states made little headway in 1977 in the battle to give their peoples a better life.

The higher prices for some of the continent's bread-and-butter exports coupled with the economic recovery of the developed nations helped ease the burden on some countries.

But the overall pattern of minimal or negative growth rates underscored the basic weakness of African economies and the fact that most states still must find suitable strategies for development that will lead them away from poverty, ignorance and disease.

Strife Adds To Woes

The undeclared war between Ethiopia and Somalia in the Horn of Africa, continuing civil war in Angola and the growing racial confrontation in southern Africa are adding to the continent's woes by impeding development and reducing foreign investment.

White-ruled South Africa, the industrial giant of the continent, faces the long-term threat of international economic sanctions because of its apartheid policy of separate racial development.

In anticipation of troubles ahead it is stockpiling oil and rapidly boosting military spending. The economy remains in serious difficulty despite growing signs of improvement as the nation emerges from its worst recession since World War II.

Economy Clouded

The country had an excellent agricultural year and exports of gold and other minerals increased. But 1.5 million people are out of work — most of them blacks — and inflation is running at more than 10 percent.

Elsewhere in southern Africa, Rhodesia's economy continues to deteriorate under the burden of war with black nationalists, economic sanctions and the flight of skilled whites from the country in anticipation of black rule.

Zaire and landlocked Zambia both continued to suffer acute economic problems because of the slump in copper prices which provide nearly all their foreign exchange earnings. Zaire's economic creditors staved off economic collapse for the country by further rescheduling $1.5 billion in debts. Inflation in both states is running around 40 percent.

Rebels Hamper Angola

Angola, potentially one of Africa's richest states, is being hampered from forging a revived economy by rebel groups who want to topple the Marxist government and end the Cuban and Soviet presence in the country following the end of Portuguese colonial rule.

Like Mozambique, also a former Portuguese colony, Angola's leftist policies have done little to encourage investment or private enterprise.

Mozambique, for reasons of economic necessity, continues to have close trading links with South Africa although it is one of the most outspoken opponents of apartheid.

Standard Falls

In East Africa, 1977 also was marked by the final collapse of the East African Economic Community, originally hailed as the economic guiding light for cooperation elsewhere in the continent.

The "common market" linking Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda fell apart as a result of the differing economic and political ideologies of the debt-burdened partner states. In the aftermath of the collapse in February, Tanzania closed its borders with Kenya, cutting off Kenya's profitable trade to the south.

Despite this setback, all three nations came out of the year with relatively healthy foreign exchange reserves. Behind their good fortune lay the trebling of coffee prices and high prices for tea — the region's two major exports.

Population Soaring

Kenya, the most prosperous and western-leaning of the three states, continues to draw foreign investment and also to attract a growing number of tourists. Unlike most other African states, it grows enough food to feed itself.

But its population of 13.8 million is expected to treble by the end of the century and it is faced with the arduous task of absorbing more people into the economy.

Socialist Tanzania, in tacit recognition that its economic policies are not providing enough jobs, has decided to encourage more foreign investment. It also is planning to build up a tourist industry separate from that in Kenya.

Foreign Investors Leery

The economic anarchy in Uganda has been offset by export earnings from coffee. But because of the bloodshed that has marked the rule of President Idi Amin, attempts to lure foreign investors and attract tourists are meeting with only marginal success.

Coffee earnings also helped support Ethiopia's economy. But the east African nation is in the midst of a revolution that includes widespread civil war. It is faced by major rebellions in both the north and south and the prospect of eventual dismemberment.

To defend the "motherland," thousands of peasants and workers have been drafted. The chaotic situation has led economists to predict economic collapse.

Somalia's meager resources also are being poured into supporting secessionist guerrillas fighting in Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden region, leaving little leeway for economic expansion.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I'm 64, have no need of leaving an estate and therefore have been considering drawing $700 a month from about $82,000 in savings now earning about 7 1/4 percent interest. How long would the money last?

A. I can give you a rough figure: an account earning 7 percent which is drawn against at the rate of 10 percent ($9,400 is roughly 10 percent of $82,000) would last about 17 years. Now for problems:

You can't make monthly withdrawals of principal from time certificates. In order to draw monthly, you'd have to drop the earning power of your money to a daily account rate (about 5 percent), in which case the money would last only 14 years.

Secondly, what do you do after 14 years? In fact, what do you do in the 12th or 13th year as you see your funds approaching zero?

I receive a steady flow of queries from readers who ask: "How long can I draw X dollars a month from Y dollars invested at Z percent?" It's a "pat" question because the table gives a quick, "pat," answer. But does it make much sense? I doubt it.

As long as we're discussing tabular matter, allow me to quote from some actuarial data at hand which says that a woman of your age can expect to live 19 years. Even if your money could earn 8 percent for you (instead of around 5) that means it would be exhausted in 20 years.

And who says your life span has to be limited by the accepted mortality tables? I repeat, the interest and withdrawal tables are interesting but hardly a solid basis for planning a comfortable, worry-free, old age.

I would urge you to invest the $82,000 at around 8 1/2 percent for income of somewhere near $7,000 a year—thus keeping principal intact until you are old enough to switch to a lifetime annuity paying much more and one which will not subject you to the risks of a Russian roulette game.

Q. How does one buy over-the-counter stock?

A. In exactly the same way one buys any security—via a securities broker.

Q. Fellow officers on my air force base are being urged by a mutual fund salesman to cash in whole life insurance and put the money into a mutual fund. It all sounds suspicious to me. I've bought some whole life insurance which guarantees value. Are there other investments I could make with lower risk factors?

A. There are two questions here—rather unrelated.

1) Cashing in whole life insurance to buy mutual funds.

You are perfectly correct in being suspicious. An officer who has a family to protect must have sufficient insurance to maintain that family if something happens to him. And he does that via insurance which guarantees a fixed dollar amount of protection. A mutual fund is an investment made in hope of gain.

The two courses are unrelated. I would assume that this salesman is commission-hungry.

2) The lower risk factor: There can't be much in the way of lower risk than an in-

CIA Cutback Probe Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Steve Symms asked the House Intelligence Committee on Tuesday to investigate how many overseas CIA agents are being reassigned or dismissed.

Symms, R-Idaho, also urged the committee to determine if the personnel cuts are taking place at the same time Soviet spy operations are expanding.

He quoted an unnamed, high-ranking CIA source as saying 1,200 of the CIA's 4,500 operations employees will be cut.

However, Symms conceded that figure and reports of expanded Soviet intelligence activity could be wrong. But he said the House committee should investigate to determine the facts.

Symms said he made the request on behalf of the American Conservative Union of which he is a director.

At the same time, Symms released a letter he sent to President Carter which said flatly that Soviet "operational activities are expanding at an unprecedented rate."

He told Carter that if the CIA personnel cuts continue, he will urge the president to make proportional cuts in other federal agencies.

insurance policy with a reputable insurance company licensed to do business in your state. You pay X dollars a year, your family is assured Y dollars if you die... and that's it.

There's no risk—and no hope of becoming a millionaire. If you seek capital gain, then you must be prepared to assume the risks which go with such a venture—whether you buy corporate common shares or shares in a mutual fund.

Q. My wife and I have invested in rental property. Would there be any advantage to shifting from joint to individual ownership of the properties?

A. Only your attorney can tell you.

Q. Where does one purchase Treasury bills and bonds?

A. At the nearest Federal Reserve Bank or branch; at your commercial bank, at a securities brokerage office.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For information on annuities, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th St., New York, N. Y. 10017.

Time is running out for self-employed persons or those who have some self-employed earnings to set up a Keogh program to shelter some earnings from taxes. A plan (savings, securities, trust funds, government bonds, insurance, etc. etc.) must be set up before Dec. 31 if any 1977 earnings are to be tax-sheltered. Actual payments into the plan need not be made until April 15, 1978. But act now if you qualify.

Raiders Back In Action In Rainbow Tournament

HONOLULU, Hawaii (Special)—Gerald Myers realizes he came a long distance—and in the wrong direction—to run into the University of Rhode Island. But, the Texas Tech coach isn't alone in this misdirected geography study.

For instance, Providence College's basketballers left Providence, R.I., to come here to play Lafayette College of Easton, Pa., on a neutral court. Or the Tar Heels from North Carolina flew across the Rockies to this island chain to play Brigham Young University, which is headquartered right off the Great Salt Lake.

The jumbled arrangement is the pairing for the prestigious Rainbow Classic Basketball Tournament, a collection of seven Mainland universities and the host University of Hawaii during the Christmas holidays.

The tournament actually began late Tuesday night (Lubbock time) with the hosts playing Stanford and Providence taking on Lafayette. Tech gets its first court action tonight when it goes against Rhode Island at 11:10 p.m. CST. Two hours later, nationally ranked North Carolina takes on BYU.

The tournament continues through Friday night's finals.

And while dodging surfboards, grass skirts and policemen wearing badges, Hawaii 5-0, Myers will be hunting for a starting lineup.

This will be his final major tuneup before start of the Southwest Conference chase next week, and he said, prior to departing Lubbock, that he hoped he would "be pretty set (on a starting lineup) when we come out of the tournament."

"I think we've gained a lot of experience this month. We've improved our rebounding—we've picked up a little bit just about every game."

"We've tried several combinations (during games), trying to see what group works best, and I think we're getting things down better."

"This is going to be a test for us. This is a tough field. There's no looking ahead to North (expected to be the foe of tonight's winner) in the semifinals, because Rhode Island is an awful good team."

San Francisco, one of the nation's top ten teams, found out about the Rams last weekend. Rhode Island defeated the Dons in San Francisco by 2 points.

"That shows how strong they are," said Myers. "They can give you a lot of problems. They have a real good zone defense and we didn't shoot good in the other tournament (two weeks ago at the Volunteer Classic). We have to be more aggressive on offense."

"And they had four guys score in double figures against San Francisco, so you can't gang up on one guy. Jack Kraft (the Rhode Island coach) has been around a long time, is a good coach."

"Rhode Island is better than Utah (the only team to beat Tech this year) when they run that zone. They (the Rams) can hurt you with their press, too."

Myers said he planned no changes in his lineup, which will have 6-7 Mike Russell and 6-5 Kent Williams at forwards, 6-0 Tommy Parks and 6-3 Mike Edwards at guards and 6-9 Joe Baxter at center. This unit has opened every game in leading to a 6-1 record.

chards and 6-8 freshman Ralph Brewster working at the spot.

All have been foul-prone. Brewster and Ricards having fouled out once each and Baxter picking up 13 fouls in the seven games.

And the three have contributed just 69 points in the time.

Russell leads the Raiders in scoring with 21 per game, and Williams follows with 14.3.

Tech will play at the same time Thursday if it wins tonight or at 7 p.m. CST if it falls tonight and goes into the consolation bracket.

Hearing Set Today For Porker Players

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Judge Terry L. Shell set a hearing for 9 a.m. today in U.S. District Court on a suit seeking the reinstatement of three Arkansas football players withdrawn by Coach Lou Holtz from the Orange Bowl game.

Attorney John W. Walker of Little Rock filed the complaint Tuesday on behalf of running backs Ben Cowins and Michael Forrest and flanker Donny Bobo. The three were suspended by Holtz last week for an alleged dormitory incident at Fayetteville involving a female.

Walker requested a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction requiring Holtz to use the three in the post-season classic at Miami. Walker had said Monday he would file the suit.

"We won't know until the hearing what's going to come of it," David Stewart, an attorney for the university, said at Fayetteville.

Stewart said the state attorney general's office had been requested to assist the school. Stewart said he had not seen a copy of the complaint.

Walker asked the court to find that Holtz's decision to suspend the three "was not based upon any criminal charge or infraction of any university rule or regulation and that it was based upon a personal whim of defendant Lou Holtz, which may be based upon racial considerations."

Also named as defendants were the school's board of trustees and Athletic Director Frank Broyles.

Walker asked for an injunction requiring the defendants to "implement fair rules and regulations concerning student conduct which must be applied fairly and equally without racial considerations."

He also requested an injunction requiring the school to "provide special assistance, counseling and other assistance to black athletes on the same basis as they are provided to whites."

Walker alleged that since 1969, the university has recruited numerous black athletes and that the school has been "calculus and cavalier" in affording black students equal opportunities and advantages.

"The result has been that of the more than 25 black athletes who have used their total athletic eligibility, on information and belief, only one has graduated."

"In any case, a far lower percentage of black athletes complete the education program than whites," Walker alleged. "This is due in large part ... to the failure of the university to provide or at least to fulfill its commitments made to the black athletes at recruiting time."

Walker's suit also said that rules applied to the conduct of student athletes "are often vague and uncertain." He said the implementation of the rules and regulations "is conducted in a manner which impact more heavily upon black students. For instance, there have been whites who have been actually convicted of crimes for whom no punishment has been meted out."

Walker said Holtz's decision was made "despite the fact that defendants had not been charged with a crime and had not violated any rule or regulation of the university or any rule that Holtz had made known to plaintiffs."

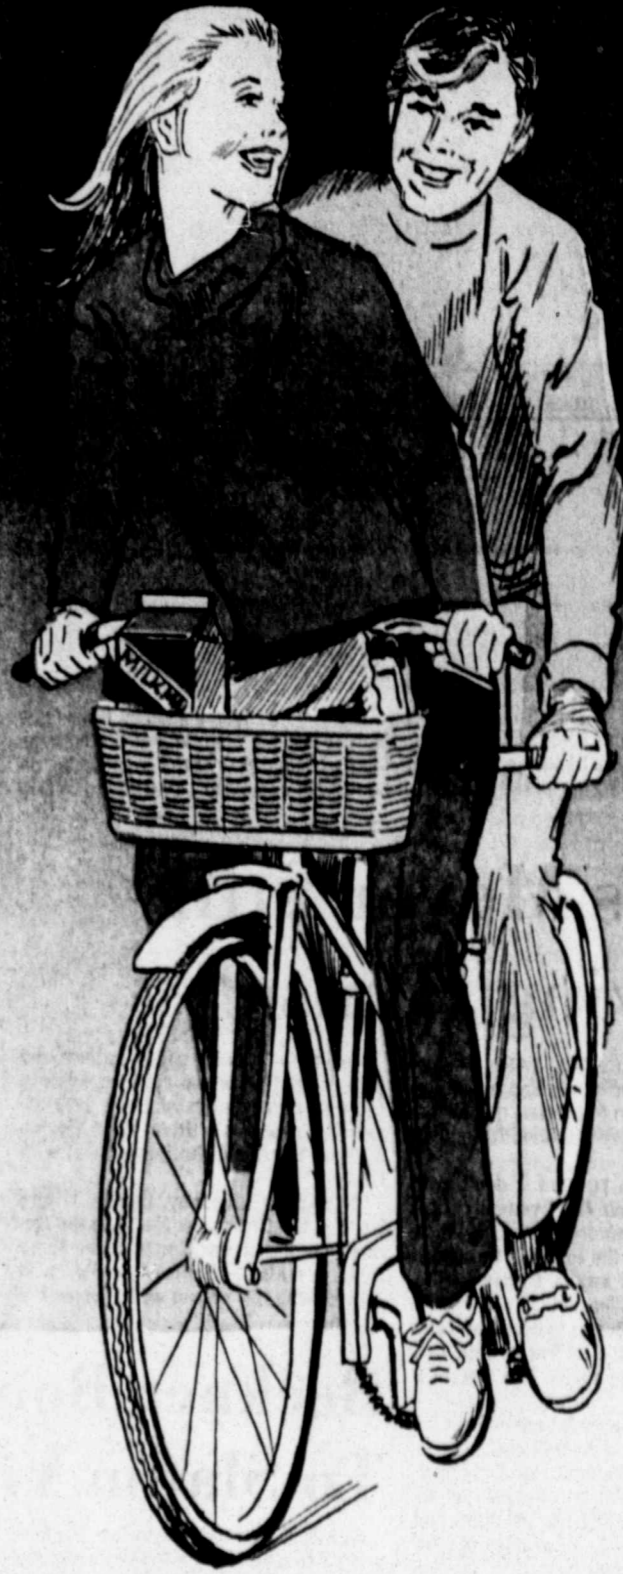

Walker said that in a conference Thursday with Holtz the coach said the three had violated his "do right" rule.

'Tis The Season
To Be...Busy

IT WAS CHRISTMAS morning; you know the scene. The kids, eager to get the day started, awaken mom and dad before it's even light outside. Tugging at dad's arms, they pull him into the front room, to survey what has been left there during the night.

So, following the same script, Rex Dockery arrives in the front room and looks at the Christmas tree. There, among the tricycles, dolls and gifts is his present: A telephone.

Well, actually, it's not that way; it might appear so. As a matter of fact, Dockery took Christmas Day off, and the one before, once he arrived home from Orlando, and the Tangerine Bowl. And he took most of Monday off, also.

But, Tuesday, he was back in the office, back on the telephone, when not on the highway or in the living room of a prospect in this part of the country.

It just appears that he got a new telephone for Christmas, that and a new set of tires for his car.

It's like that for a new head coach.

SOME DAYS, FOR a new head coach, he feels that the receiver has been glued to his car. Dockery admitted it Tuesday as, yes, he talked on the telephone.

"I've been on it quite a bit," he observed. "The day after I first got the job (Dec. 6), I guess I spent half the daylight hours on the phone. It slacked off last week, with the holidays."

"Then, I didn't do too much with us in Orlando preparing for the bowl game," and he laughed (with not much hilarity in his tone), "I guess we didn't do a very good job (with 40-17 loss to Florida State)."

"There were a lot of receptions, and functions, and dinners, as well as the regular preparations, down there."

"I didn't do too much phoning of prospects down there, because, just like the rest of us, I imagine the kids would like some time with their families, too. I did contact some (prospective assistant) coaches... even interviewed a couple while I was down there."

"But, as far as contacting prospects, about all I did was write a few letters."

BUT, SINCE RETURNING and spending the weekend with his family, the grind has started for Tech's ninth head coach. His first priority, upon stepping out of his assistant's office into the head man's chair, was to let the prospects know Tech had a head football coach and to build a staff.

With four holdovers and two lured from Southwest Louisiana and Georgia Tech a few vacancies remain, but, "I hope to have everyone lined up by the third of January (next Tuesday). I'd like to meet here the next morning and map out our recruiting."

"I just didn't want to hurry into hiring," he said, shifting the phone. "I had some head coaches and some who had been head coaches tell me not to worry about hiring immediately. That the selection of the right personnel was more critical than the time. A couple even recommended that I wait until the coaching clinic (next month during the NCAA convention). But, I don't want to do that. I'm making some contacts by phone."

ON THAT DEC. 6, Dockery got the message in the morning that he was to be the man. He left just a short time later for Dallas and some recruiting, arriving back in Lubbock just minutes before he was officially introduced at a press conference as Steve Sloan's successor.

It one of the few times he has been able to conduct business without a telephonic gadget in his hand.

"Right after that," he revealed, "I worked on hiring coaches during the day, and called prospects at night."

Now, "since I felt that it would be a six or seven-week venture (until SWC signing day in February), they (his assistants) should have time with their families. Sam (Casey, from Georgia Tech) and Bud (Robertson, from SW Louisiana) are at their homes, and the others here. We'll be going out recruiting around here close."

In which case, from Santa, he should have gotten a beeper, for those driving times.

Dimmitt Bombs Lubbock In Caprock Opener

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Ken Cleveland had nary a vision of grandeur when he his Dimmitt Wildcats in the Caprock basketball tournament's large-school division.
 Playing the part of David, looking to KO a Goliath or two along the way never crossed the Dimmitt mentor's mind. Or did it?
 "The tournament director called and asked me if we would like to go up a division this year," Cleveland explained. "And that's really the only reason I did it."
 Cleveland admitted though he wanted the "Cats to play some tough competition before the district action starts next week.
 "That (competition) had something to do with it too, Cleveland said. "We'd like to be pressured a time or two before district starts."
 But if it was competition he was for at the three-day event, sponsored by the Caprock American Business Club, it was competition he didn't get during Tuesday's opening round.

The Cats, looking more like one of the class teams on the South Plains, used the 20-point performances of Rocky Rawls and Jim Bradford destroyed the Westerners 80-55 and advanced to the second round of the tournament to face Estacado.
 In other Large School action, Estacado nailed Coronado 60-54. Dunbar nipped Morton 79-77 and Iowa Park held off Monterey 51-50.
 Alvin Harris pumped in 21 points and Willie Powell added 15 more to lead Estacado to its win over the struggling Coronado Mustangs.
 The Matadors, sporting the city's best won-loss record at 14-1, held a 29-24 halftime lead and then coasted home for the win by outscoring the Ponies 31-30 in the second half.
 Coronado, which slipped to 3-12 for the year, held a narrow 7-5 first-quarter lead but was unable to hold off the shot shooting Mats for the remainder of the game. Estacado hit 45 per cent of its shots from the field, Coronado 43 per cent.
 Jay Norton's 18 points paced Coronado. Also hitting in double figures for CHS were Mike Higgins with 10 points and Bill Shockley with 15 points.

 During today's play, Dimmitt takes on Estacado at 7:30 p.m., Dunbar meets Iowa Park at 9 p.m., Morton plays Monterey at 2 p.m. and Lubbock High tangles with Coronado at 12:30 p.m.
 Dimmitt, which won the small-school division last year, attempts to become the first team in the 19-year history of the event to win crowns in both divisions.
 But Cleveland said that might be easier said than done.
 "Estacado has a good basketball team, the best record in the city and all that," Cleveland said. "And they should be hard to beat, all right."
 The lopsided score was somewhat of a puzzle for Cleveland, who has watched the Cats fall to the Westerners by three points and then comeback and whip the Lubbock group by four points.
 "It's just one of those things," Cleveland said, adding that there is really no way to explain what happened on the court at Lubbock Coliseum.
 "I could see how the home court advantage helped during the first couple of games," he added. "But here, well, I don't know."

 Then he simply shrugged.
 The Cats, now 14-3, opened the game with a fast start and held 39-31 halftime lead due mainly to Rawls' aerial acrobatics and Bradford's hot shooting from the lane.
 Lubbock High found itself trailing by as many as 14 points during the first half, but the scrappy bunch continued to peck away at the DHS lead. Scotty Garcia, who ended the evening with 8 points, hit a pair of free tosses late in the second quarter to cut the margin to 6 points. That was the closest the Westerners would ever come to winning the game.
 In the third period, Dimmitt tallied 17 points, while LHS hit only 4 points. And that spelled defeat with a capital D for the Westerners.
 Craig Mitchell led LHS with 15 points, countering with 11 was teammate James Williams.
 Dunbar, which has to be wondering what it ever did to deserve the abuse being dealt by the Morton Indians, defeated the class AA state champs in the tourney's opening game.

Billy Don Hardaway hit 24 points to pace the Panthers. Morton's Rusty Lamar banged home 26 points to lead all scorers.
 During the Reese AFB tournament, the Panthers had to hold off a late Indian stampede to win the event's consolation honors.
 Iowa Park's Jim Rowell hit a turnaround jump shot from seven feet out with four seconds remaining to lift the Eagles over Monterey.
 Keith Jenkins of Monterey sank the front end of a one-and-one foul situation to lift MHS ahead 50-49 with 22 seconds left. Rowell grabbed the rebound after Jenkins missed the second charity toss and Iowa Park moved down for the winning bucket.
 Iowa Park, now 14-1, led most of the way and commanded a 37-27 advantage at one point in the game. However, the Plainsmen scored eight unanswered points in the third quarter to tighten the count.
SMALL SCHOOL
 Frenship used the 35-point showing of Lloyd Strong to down pre-tourney favorite Lubbock Christian High 63-57. LCHS, along with Slaton, had picked the teams to beat crown in the small-school division.

 In other small school action, Slaton nailed Plains 87-54. Cooper fell to Tulia by 15 points 48-33 and Idalou downed Tahoka 53-42.
 Today's play pits LCHS against Tahoka at 10:30 a.m., Plains against Cooper at 9 a.m., Slaton against Tulia at 3:30 p.m. and Frenship against Idalou at 6 p.m.

Pitt's Meyer Still Proving Himself

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Surrounded by bigger names and much bigger players, Glenn Meyer has made a little bit go a long way with the Pitt football team.
 "I don't have a position. I don't even have my own coach. But I've really got it made," the sophomore mite said with a full-size smile in the lobby of the beach hotel where Pitt awaits Friday night's Gator Bowl with Clemson.
 Meyer, who professes to be 5-foot-8 and may be a shade shorter, was an uninvited freshman when he joined Pitt's team a season ago.
 "They wouldn't even let me in drills for the first few weeks," he recalled.
 Now he's on full scholarship and enjoying his second bowl trip because of his reckless pursuit of kickoff and punt and the zesty way he belts his own teammates around on the practice field.
 "I came here figuring that if I flopped in football I'd give wrestling a try," said the curly-haired blond, whose 175-pound frame is marked by bowed legs and thick arms and shoulders.
 "I haven't wrestled yet," he added with tinality.
 Meyer was a standout linebacker at Shaler High School outside Pittsburgh, and he was contacted by assorted small colleges. Some offered scholarship aid, but he chose to enroll at Pitt.
 "I wanted to play in the big time. I liked the idea of being in front of huge crowds and on national television, and I liked playing at the best level of competition," Meyer said.
 Johnny Majors was coaching the Pitt team last season when Meyer first started popping the players on the first team offense as a member of the scrub team that simulates opposing defenses.
 "It seems like every time I really smacked somebody Coach Majors happened to be watching," he said.
 "Then they put me in for the last minute of one freshman game and I had a really good hit on a sweep. After the game, Coach Majors came in the locker room and when he saw me, he said, 'That's my boy Meyer.'"

Meyer was given a game uniform and he saw his first action covering kicks in the final three games of Pitt's 1976 national championship drive: West Virginia, Penn State and the Sugar Bowl with Georgia.
 "It was kind of funny, though. I wore No. 7 in the first game, No. 98 in the second game and I was No. 16 in the Sugar Bowl, so it kind of confused people," said Meyer, who this season wears jersey No. 42 fulltime.

Beckner Boosts MHS To Slaton Victory

SLATON (Special) — Marilyn Beckner scored 26 points and Monterey girls led all the way in capturing a 66-24 win over Tahoka in Tuesday's opening round action at the Slaton Girls West Texas Basketball Tourney.
 The victory for MHS improved its record to 10-3 for the year.
 Host Slaton smashed Rotan 81-48. Cindy Robinson scored 28 points for the winners, while Ginger Duke had 17 for Rotan.
 Post nipped Abernathy 32-29. Dana Giddens had 17 for Post. Pam Hale scored 15 for Tulia.
 Abernathy downed McCamey 59-32. Becky Albers had 16 for Abernathy. Lisa

Michigan More Relaxed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Rains let up in Southern California long enough Tuesday for the University of Michigan football team to get in a full practice for the Rose Bowl, which made Bo Schembechler both happy and relaxed.
 Schembechler, whose teams have lost all three previous Rose Bowl appearances, talked more than an hour with newsmen and said his team was relaxed more, "because we were here last year. The players know a little more what to expect, so I think they are a little more relaxed."
 There was a difference on whether his drills were tough or not.
 All-American center Walt Downing, who appeared with two other players at the news conference, said, "Today was supposed to be a hard practice, so that's why we did a lot of hitting."

Schembechler said, "I wouldn't call it a hard-hitting drill. We will have the same type of a workout on Wednesday, then start tapering."
 The coach said his club would work in the rain if it continues this week because, "We are at a solid practice field that can handle the water."
 Downing, asked if the center position at Michigan received extra recognition because ex-president Gerald R. Ford played it decades ago, answered, "I've gotten some recognition because of that. I can't really say if it's good or bad, but I've gotten some recognition."
 The Rose Bowl will have both the first- and second-team All-American centers in action with the 254-pound Downing for Michigan and 247-pound Blair Bush for the Washington Huskies, representing the Pacific-8.

Asked if he would try and outdo Bush, Downing said, "Bush is a darn good center. I'll try to do the best I can do. It's good to try to play as good or better than the fellow opposing."
 Actually the two centers won't be opposing each other as both play only on offense.
 Downing is the offensive co-captain with safteymen Dwight Hicks the co-captain on defense. Hicks discounted the talk that Michigan wins all but their last game and that reflected on Schembechler.

HOUSTON (AP) — The defied aura of the head coaching position at Southern Cal departed with John McKay, USC starting quarterback Rob Hertel feels.
 "I personally talked to Coach McKay three times in two years at USC," said Hertel, scheduled to lead the Trojans against Texas A&M New Year's Eve in the 19th annual Bluebonnet Bowl in the Astrodome.
 The Trojans were scheduled to arrive here Tuesday night and go directly to the Astrodome for a workout to make up for practice time lost in Los Angeles because of heavy rains.
 "He was more like a god image," Hertel said of his former coach, now head coach of the National Football League Tampa Bay Bucs. "We had all our team meetings with our assistant coaches. But at workouts, we always knew he (McKay) was above somewhere watching."
 John Robinson stepped in after McKay graduated to the pro ranks and last year guided the Trojans to an 11-1 record and a victory over Michigan in the Rose Bowl.
 This season Robinson went with Hertel as his quarterback and although the Trojans slipped to a 7-4 record, they came back with a thrilling last-second victory over UCLA to earn the Bluebonnet Bowl berth.
 "He didn't really coach," Hertel said of McKay. He delegated authority to his assistants and he stood back and watched. Coach Robinson gets right in the middle of everything."
 Hertel, who established three school records this season, also has definite feelings about the Trojan team this season.
 "When we are really playing our game, I feel we are the best team in the nation," Hertel said. "We've been hurt by inconsistency."
 There was nothing inconsistent about the Trojans in their regular season finale against arch rival UCLA. Hertel directed the Trojans on a desperation drive in the final seconds that ended with Frank Jordan kicking a 38-yard field goal with two seconds to play for a 29-27 victory.

Baylor Stings Drake 97-87

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Vinnie Johnson and Arthur Edwards combined for 51 points to lead hot-handed Baylor to a 97-87 victory over Drake Tuesday night in a game not as close as the final score indicated.
 Johnson hit eight of 10 shots in the first half as the Bears shot 69 percent from the field and sped to a 47-37 halftime lead.
 Johnson finished with 28 points and Edwards had 23.
 Wendell Mays chipped in 18, Russell Oliver 14 and Mike Little 12 for Baylor, 6-4.
 Chad Nelson and Gregory Johns each scored 22 points for Drake, 3-4, which narrowed the gap in the final three minutes by out-scoring the Bears' reserves, 10-0.
 Baylor led by 20 before the reserves took over.
 In another game involving a SWC team Tuesday night, Texas fell to Marquette 65-56 in the championship tilt of the Milwaukee Classic.

Saints Aide Appointed To Cleveland Head Job

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns dipped into the deep talent pool of National Football League coaching assistants Tuesday and came up with Sam Rutigliano as the fifth head coach in the club's history.

Rutigliano, 45, comes to the Browns from the post of receiver coach for the New Orleans Saints. This will be his first opportunity as a head coach since directing high school teams early in his career.

"I've always dreamed of being a head coach in the National Football League," Rutigliano said moments after Browns owner Art Modell made the announcement of his appointment at Cleveland Stadium.

"This has been my goal since I became an assistant coach in the NFL 11 years ago," Rutigliano added. "I think the years of preparation I've had will serve me well."

Rutigliano succeeds Forrest Gregg, who resigned under pressure on Dec. 13.

The 1977 Browns lost six of their last seven games, and finished the season with a 6-8 record.

Rutigliano served under Hank Stram at New Orleans, and previously worked as an assistant under Lou Saban at Denver, Chuck Fairbanks at New England and Weeb Ewbank with the New York Jets.

Stram said Tuesday he viewed the loss of Rutigliano from his staff with mixed emotions.

"He knows what teaching and coaching is all about," Stram said. "He has an understanding of what added dimensions a head coach must contend with. He knows what it takes to win, and he does what it takes to get the job done."

"You hate to lose a good coach and excellent person," Stram added. "But he's very deserving, and we're very happy for him."

Modell said Rutigliano was selected from a long list of candidates, which eventually was narrowed down to three finalists.

"I think the one thing that decided it was when I spent 45 minutes with (former Denver runningback) Floyd Little last week," Modell explained. "He said when Sam was at Denver, it was the only time in his career he ever wished he was a receiver."

"One other ingredient to this equation is that he's a teacher," Modell added. "He's contemporary in his knowledge of the game and he's contemporary with players."

Rutigliano said the first order of business will be to familiarize himself with the Browns' organization and assemble a staff.

"The coaches we get will be very, very important," said Rutigliano, dapper in a vested suit. "You can't be successful unless you have a chemistry between management, the coaching staff and the players."

Buckeyes Recovering Speedily From Illness

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A virus that has ripped through Ohio State's football team subsided Tuesday and only one regular, center Mark Lang, was still battling the illness.

As many as 25 cases of intestinal virus struck the Buckeye players, coaches and officials since they arrived in New Orleans a week ago to prepare for a Sugar Bowl date with Alabama Monday.

Lang, a senior from Cincinnati, remained in the team's hotel room as the Big Ten co-champions practiced two hours in Tulane Stadium for their first ever appearance against the Southeastern Conference winners.

Woody Hayes, the Ohio State coach, and Dr. Bob Murphy, a team physician, minimized the affect of the illness.

"It hasn't bothered us a whole lot," said Hayes. "I hope it's out of the way. But you can never be sure. In the 1955 Rose Bowl, we had about eight kids down with it."

Dr. Murphy, making his 10th bowl appearance at Ohio State with Hayes, said, "I'd say it's tailing off. We haven't had any new cases since yesterday."

Regular wingback Jim Harrell and substitute defensive tackle Eddie Beamon both were back in practice after missing Monday's workout because of the virus.

"They call it John Lafitte's Revenge," Dr. Murphy said of the illness. "Whenever you change areas, you become susceptible to the virus. People who live in New Orleans build an immunity to it."

Vikings Still Strong

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who picked Los Angeles as the team to beat earlier in the year in the National Conference Division race, said Tuesday the Cowboys "would be foolish" to take the underdog Minnesota Vikings lightly in the NFC title game Sunday.

"They've been to four Super Bowls with the same people," said Landry at his jam-packed weekly news press conference. "They have some older players who understand the pressure of playoff situations."

Landry said that despite the loss of quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who broke a bone in his leg, "the Vikings are stronger now than when the season started. You have to be strong to get this far in the playoffs."

He said "you could see where the Vikings sagged after they lost Tarkenton then they've banded together and are coming on strong."

Landry said Bob Lee, who is Tarkenton's replacement, is "a veteran and a professional. Of course, Tarkenton could do more things but Lee is very adequate."

Although the Cowboys are 11-point favorites, Landry said "it's a toss-up game. Everybody is in the same boat when you get into the playoffs. The ball is not round and it does funny things."

"Now we could have the edge because we don't have to travel. But the Vikings are tough and they will recover."

Minnesota has defeated Dallas the last three times it has played in Texas Stadium. Ironically, the Cowboys have beaten Minnesota the last three games on the road.

The Vikings and Cowboys will tangle at 4:30 p.m. Sunday for a Super Bowl XII ticket after Denver and Oakland play in Denver for the AFC crown.

"I like Denver because of Craig Morton. I'd like to see 'em win," said Landry. "But Oakland ought to win. You just can't sell enthusiasm short."

Landry said Dallas was in good physical shape and that Preston Pearson, who was held out of the 37-7 rout of Chicago Monday, was ready to play. Tony Dorsett has a sore leg but will be ready for the Vikings.

Baseball Background Helpful To Casper

OAKLAND (AP) — Tight end Dave Casper of the Oakland Raiders isn't kidding when he talks about how his background as a baseball outfielder helped him develop into one of pro football's top pass catcher.

Casper made four catches, including three for touchdowns, in last weekend's overtime victory over the Baltimore Colts that sent the Raiders into the American Football Conference title game scheduled Sunday in Denver.

The one that didn't result in a score was an over-the-shoulder grab of a pass for 42 yards late in the fourth quarter.

"Any outfielder who's ever played baseball knows that technique," said Casper. "We used to practice that all the time when I played center field in the town league at Chilton, Wis."

"You learn to run with your head down and your back to the ball," he recalled. "A lot of times, I didn't see the ball until just before I caught it."

Casper, the 250-pounder who must have been one of the biggest center fielders in baseball history, said about the big 42-yard pass from Ken Stabler, "I saw the ball twice on that catch. I looked up once, then ran to where I thought it was going, looked up again and there it was."

Baltimore tight end Raymond Chester watched Casper's catching with something akin to awe.

"There are two things that makes Dave Casper stand out," said Chester. "The first thing is his hands. I've never seen him drop a ball. The other thing is his ability to get open. It's uncanny."

"He has that sense for the ball," Chester continued. "He's super in the clutch. He's the best in the league this year."

Raider Coach John Madden waited until Tuesday to schedule a full-scale practice session. Although defensive back Neal Colzie suffered a mild shoulder separation in the Baltimore game, Madden said he will play against Denver.

Madden admits he was not expecting Denver to be in the playoffs, much less sporting the best record in the league this year.

He said the key was the trade that sent Craig Morton to Denver.

"I can honestly say I didn't think the day the trade was made that Denver would be 12-2 and in the championship game," Madden said. "He's done the job."

The Raiders, defending Super Bowl champions, will leave Friday for Denver.

Hoosiers Climb In Poll

By The Associated Press
The Indiana Hoosiers are back among the basketball elite, scoring their second big upset victory in two weeks and climbing into The Associated Press' Top Twenty rankings for the first time this season.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, in balloting released Tuesday, obviously were impressed by the Hoosiers' 66-57 triumph over Alabama. That victory followed Indiana's 67-66 upset over Notre Dame two weeks ago.

The Hoosiers, NCAA champions in 1976, now are 6-1 and ranked 15th in the nation, joining fourth-ranked Notre Dame and sixth-rated Indiana State, giving the state of Indiana three of the top teams in the country.

Notre Dame, 7-1, routed St. Joseph's of Indiana 108-72 last week, while Indiana State, 7-0, did not play.

Another upset, Louisville's 61-60 victory over NCAA champion Marquette, helped scramble this week's rankings. Marquette, now 5-1, dropped from second place to fifth.

Kentucky maintained its No. 1 position, walloping Iona 104-65. The Wildcats, 7-0, received all 45 first-place votes and 900 points.

North Carolina, 7-1, beat Tulane 108-103 and moved from third to second with 820 points. Arkansas, 8-0, crushed Hardin-Simmons 86-55 and Kansas 78-72, rising from fourth to third with 614 points.

Louisville, 6-1, moved from eighth to seventh on the strength of its victory over Marquette and a 69-63 triumph over Dayton.

UCLA, 8-1, defeated San Jose State 109-69 and New Mexico State 86-67 but fell from seventh to No. 8.

Nevada-Las Vegas edged Northwestern 100-95 and Iowa 85-84, raising its record to 11-0 and remained at No. 9.

Washington, Chaney Acquired By Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — Trying to halt their slide to oblivion, the National Basketball Association's Boston Celtics traded guard Charlie Scott to the Los Angeles Lakers Tuesday, for 6-foot-8 forward Kermit Washington, currently on suspension, and former Celtics guard Don Chaney.

Team officials indicated more deals may be made soon.

"We're trying to find a winning combination," said Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn, whose own job is in jeopardy.

"We're back to basic personnel," he said in a telephone interview from Milwaukee where Boston prepared to play the Bucks Wednesday night.

The Celtics, giving up 111 points per game, have lost 22 of 32 games this season, including six straight on the current road trip that started on the West Coast. The trade of Scott was not unexpected, although Denver had been the anticipated recipient of the former all-star.

Washington, however, will be sidelined at least until Feb. 9 because he was suspended by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien for punching Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich and breaking his jaw earlier this month.

O'Brien has left open the possibility that he would extend the suspension.

"Washington is the key," said Heinsohn, "a big man, a board banger who can help out (center Dave) Cowens. Chaney can help us right away. He knows the Celtics system."

Scott, a 6-foot-6 former All-American at the University of North Carolina has averaged 22.2 points in six previous NBA seasons and played in three All-Star games.

He had not worked well with guard Jo Jo White this year, however, and was averaging 16.5 points per game. Last season, he missed nearly half the schedule with a broken arm, and averaged 18.2 points in 43 games.

Chaney, who was hampered by a broken finger on his right hand this year, has been averaging 3 points. Washington, before his suspension, averaged 11.5 points per game and 11 rebounds.

The Celtics, in a statement issued at mid-day, described the trade as "the first of a series of moves to turn this season around."

Celtics owner Irvin Levin and General Manager Red Auerbach accompanied the team on its disastrous road trip. Levin already has offered Heinsohn's job to Auerbach — the Celtics' coach during their glory years — but Auerbach turned it down.

Scott went immediately to Oakland for the Lakers' game Tuesday night against the Golden State Warriors. Chaney joined the Celtics in Milwaukee. Washington's reporting date is uncertain.

Heinsohn said the trade "puts more pressure on Jo Jo. He'll be back in his old role, running the show."

Cumpton Takes Hereford Job

HEREFORD (Special)—Don Cumpton, athletic director for the past two years at Muleshoe, has accepted the head football coach post at Hereford.

Cumpton, a former Hereford grid aide and head track coach from 1970-1974, assumes the Hereford athletic director's post Jan. 1, replacing Fred Upshaw, who announced his resignation Nov. 15.

The new Hereford boss led Muleshoe to a 9-1 season and a co-championship in District 3-AA last fall. Prior to his two years at Muleshoe, Cumpton recorded 4-6 and 8-4 seasons as head grid mentor at Sanford-Fritch in 1974 and 1975.

The change creates a vacancy for the Muleshoe job but Muleshoe superintendent Nel B. Dillman indicated the school would try to hire a replacement in the next couple of weeks. Any interested applicants may call Dillman (272-3389).

The new Hereford leader remained uncertain on the future status of most of Upshaw's assistants. Cumpton intends to use a veer offense and a 5-2 defense after a brief evaluation of the Hereford's personnel in the off-season program.

COMPLETE STOCKS & BONDS INDEX

Mart Posts Slight Dip NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, unable to follow through on its pre-Christmas rally, posted a slight decline Tuesday in the slowest trading in 2 1/2 months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had climbed 23.65 points in the last three sessions before the holiday weekend, eased off .17 to 829.70.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 7-6 spread on the New York Stock Exchange. The composite index of all its listed common stocks dipped .01 to 52.25.

Volume on the Big Board came to just 16.75 million shares, down from 20.08 million Friday and the lightest total since a 10.58 million-share session on Columbus Day Oct. 10.

Analysts said investors seemed to have turned cautious in advance of the scheduled report by the government today on the nation's balance of trade for November.

Large U.S. trade deficits have been cited as a primary reason for recent pressure on the dollar in foreign-exchange markets.

Wall Streeters generally weren't looking for much improvement in the latest figures.
