The fire broke out at 3 a.m. on the top floor of Aquinas Hall, which housed 300 students. The building, built in 1939, had no sprinklers or outside fire escapes, but recently had undergone fireproofing.

One resident of the dormitory said the fourth floor had a lot of lighted Christmas decorations.

"The fire doors kept the blaze from spreading beyond one corner of the top floor," said the Rev. Aloysius Begley, al-umni chaplain and prior at the Roman Catholic school. Hundreds of coeds, some in night clothes, some wrapped in blankets, fled in their bare feet into the 17-degree cold and snow around the red brick building. Firefighters carried others down ladders.

Students from surrounding buildings also helped get some of the coeds out breaking windows in some instances and helped firemen by hauling hoses, moving parked cars and raising ladders to young women screaming for help from upper windows.

Seven to 10 girls were at the windows screaming 'Get us down!' There were not enough firemen to get them down. Kids from the dorms helped put up ladders to get them out and brought blankets for the girls who were burned," said sophomore John Colusardo of Garrison, N.Y.

Farmers To Strike Tonight

By United Press International

American Agriculture leaders have asked to plead their case before a joint session of Congress today, on the eve of the scheduled first nationwide farmers' strike.

We wish to convey that the United States is facing a crisis unprecedented in American history," American Agriculture spokesmen said in a telegram sent to the nation's capital Monday.

"If you allow this nation to face famine, mass unemployment and economic chaos unparalleled in American history, then Congress has failed the American people and must face the responsibility.'

Keith Thomas, a founder of the maverick strike movement, said farm leaders want to meet with President Carter before the strike begins Wednesday, but there has been no action from the White country would sway the president to meet with agricultural leaders.

Leslie Bitner, an American Agriculture leader in Washington, D.C., said the strike will begin at midnight tonight, with 50 tractors symbolizing the nation's states being driven around the White House.

The farmers, burdened with low prices for their products, want 100 percent parity, which would give them at least a break-even price for crops.

Farmers from at least 35 states met in Denver Monday to discuss the strike. It was the first meeting of its kind by members of American Agriculture, a grassroots movement that began 91 days ago in Springfield, Colo.

The consensus is they are not going to buy, not going to sell, not going to buy any agricultural equipment and no production supplies," said Bob Keenan, an American Agriculture spokesman. Many of the farmers have mortgages or outstanding loans, but Keenan said they

Farmers in the West have already planted their winter grain and are now in their slowest season. Keenan and other American Agriculture leaders say the wheat can be harvested, stored and used for callateral to get more government

No one - not even strike leaders know how many farmers will take part in the nationwide movement. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has said the federal government can play only a limited role in remedying the farmer's economic plight.

Government leaders predict the strike will not likely produce any quick, substantial or lasting impact on food prices. But Bitner said the action might be felt quickly if farmers decide to picket food middlemen, such as meat packers.

"Then consumers could feel it within a week," Bitner said.

American Agriculture leaders say strike action will vary with each farmer who participates. The organization, which has no dues, no officers and no rules, will not provide direction for farm-

"We can't tell anyone what to do," said Thomas. "What everyone does on the. strike day is up to the individuals.'

Farm organizations in several states have questioned the effectiveness of the proposal, and the National Farmers Organization in Corning, Iowa, refused to officially endorse the effort, although it supports the right of farmers to strike. NFO President Oren Lee Staley, a

She is at the prison hospital at California Institution for Women at Frontera.

The Harrises are scheduled for trial June 5 on the kidnapping charge. Both were sentenced to prison for a Los Angeles crime spree, involving the same incidents for which Miss Hearst received probation. Miss Hearst is free on bail pending appeal of a bank robbery conviction.

Rosalynn Carter Visits School

NEW YORK (AP) - Rosalynn Carter visited a public school in Harlem and a nursing home in Greenwich Village to see self-help programs for the young and old.

The president's wife on Monday met with several of the 207 residents of the Village Nursing Home, including Marian Tanner, 77, who was the inspiration for the book "Auntie Mame," written by her nephew, the late Patrick Dennis. The community has raised $110,000 to keep the home from closing

"You really set a good example for the whole country when you show people are caring for each other and show what can be done," Mrs. Carter said.

In Harlem, Mrs. Carter saw the children at Public School 180, where federal money will be used to hire two youth workers and an additional teacher. "We must let them know we care," Mrs Carter said of children.

Cotton Growers Group Gives Loan Program Information

As the harvesting and ginning of a record cotton crops of more than 3.25 mil-lion sales on the High Plans draws to a close, farmers are asking questions about use of the Commodity Credit Corp. loan

Answers from the Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., come in the form of "mostly information, very little

"For producers who decide not to sell now at these low prices," says PCG executive vice president Donald Johnson, "the loan is probably the most economical choice, but the sell-or-hold decision itself is a decision for each individual."

Plains producers have been selling at 100 to 400 points over loan values, depending on quality. The average recently probably has been about 200 points or $10 per bale over the applicable loan rate. If prices fail to recover sufficiently, farmers who put cotton into the loan may not get the $10 per bale "premium." But should the market rise more than enough to cover carrying charges before the term of the loan expires, the farmer can realize a greater return.

'At the end of the initial 10-month loan period on 1977-78 crop cotton, if prices are still low, farmers will have the option to extend the loan for an additional eight months," Johnson points out.

Under the previous loan program, all cotton loans expired 10 months from the first day of the month in which they were written.

The new option to carry cotton in the loan for a maximum of 18 months, the PCG executive explains, "means the farmer can retain title to his crop long enough for the size of the 1978 crop to exert its full influence on the market." It means also that changes in world cotton consumption over the next year and half will come into play while the loan cotton is still under farmer ownership, he These factors may turn out to be either bullish or bearish, Johnson cautions, "but longer term loans do improve chances that use of the loan may be prof-

As for advice, PCG officials suggest onthat producers might be wise, where feasible, to delay market decisions two or three months. During this period, they point out final cotton program regulations for 1978 will be issued, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will publish January planting intentions report and the outcome of ongoing multifiber trade negotiations will become known.

'All of these will have an effect on market prospects for next year," PCG officials say.

Standards Proposed On Mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pickup trucks, vans and four-wheel-drive vehicles would have to get 1 to 3 more miles from a gallon of gas in model years 1980 and 1981 under a new federal proposal.

In announcing the proposal Monday, the Transportation Department claimed the increased efficiency would save 12 billion gallons of fuel over the lifetimes

But officials said the recommendations are subject to change and invited comments from manufacturers, citizens groups and other public segments. A public hearing was set for Jan. 16 in Washing-

gress resumes full sessions after the New

The Supreme Court ruling stripped some 11 million workers of the protection Pepper says Congress intended to give them when it passed the Age Dis-crimination in Employment Act of 1967.

In a 7-2 decision, the court said the law was designed primarily to encourage the hiring of workers between 40 and 65 and did not bar all employers from forcing workers to retire before age 65.

The court's opinion, written by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, dealt only with the estimated 11 million Americans working for companies that had manda-tory retirement plans in effect before the

But Burger's opinion implied that even forced retirement plans adopted after the law was enacted might be valid.

Pepper said his bill would eliminate "the loophole through which the court has threaded this unfortunate opinion. 'The provision of the (1967 law) which the court interprets to permit early forced retirement will be nullified the day my bill is signed by the president. Unfortunately, it is unlikely that my bill will become law until early next year.'

The proposed law — actually amendments to the 1967 legislation — was passed overwhelmingly by the House in September and the Senate in October. There were important differences in the two versions, however, so the bill was given to the conference committee to fashion a compromise.

The House version would wipe out all mandatory retirement before age 70 in private business and ban all age-inspired mandatory retirements for federal work-

The Senate went along with the age-70 wording for private jobs but wanted to leave mandatory retirement for federal workers unchanged - required at age 70.

The Senate also wants to exempt university professsors and schoolteachers, thereby allowing administrators to retire faculty members at age 65.

Disagreeing with the court's majority Monday, Justices Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr., said the ruling could have a bizarre result.

Since the court interpreted the law to mean that employers may retire a worker before age 65 but may not discriminate because of age in hiring, "the individual so retired has a simple route to regain his job; he need only reapply for the vacancy created by his retirement," they said.

Marshall and Brennan contended that no job applicant likely would be better Open Tues.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

HISTORY WILL record it was in the 1960s that our federal government began to become the oppressor rather than the protector of Americans' human rights.

Until that time, our courts and our regulatory agencies, by and large, told us what we could or couldn't do. Now, they are telling us with in-creasing frequency and militancy things that we

Unless the trend is reversed-and there are a few hopeful signs that it will be-representative, responsive government as we have known it will writhe under the boot heel of totalitarianism. If that seems to be an unrealistically harsh assessment, consider the evidence.

RATHER THAN merely tell a businessman he can not pollute the air, the government tells him -precisely-what he must do to keep from it.
Instead of telling automakers that their cars can not be death traps, the government tells them they must install air bags.

Instead of merely telling white parents they can not bar black children from their schools, and black children they can go to school where they wish, the government tells both white and black children they must go to school across town.

"IN THE EARLY 1960's, the federal approach to regulation began to undergo a radical shift," says the National Association of Manufacturers.

A 'Must' Situation

"Today, regulations are frequently based on the chilosophy that government is the most effective instrument of social change. Government is now selling businesses and individuals what they MUST do for society."

This yoke of oppression is denounced almost daily from the political stump but, once elected or appointed, our lawmakers, bureaucrats and judges appear to relish the enormous dictatorial powers at their disposal.

"ONE OF MY ADMINISTRATION'S major goals is to free the American people from the burden of over-regulation," Jimmy Carter said in a message to Congress on March 4.

Yet, his executive department employes have been in Lubbock almost constantly telling us, or urging a federal court to tell us, how to run our municipal, county, school and business affairs.

"Our governmental bureaucracy has become a monstrous octopus whose many-faceted tentacles are often strangling, rather than serving, the best interests of the people of this state and nation," Price Daniel Jr. says in campaigning to become attorney general of Texas.

"The only way the octopus can be brought un-der control," he adds, "is for the voters to get involved, to participate and to hold their government accountable at the polls."

This is easier said than done, however, because of the legislative powers which have been usurped by unelected federal judges and bureau-

Vice Admiral Robert Monroe, director of the nuclear defense agency, says there "simply is no scientific or logical way of denying that ER weapons...reduce unintended casualties by a significant factor compared with standard fission

As Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia acidly pointed out in debate with Mark Hatfield of Oregon, there have been 7000 nuclear weapons in West

Europe for many years, and all are designed to kill an aggression army-but preferably to deter

crats throughout the land.

"AMERICA is being confronted with a basic choice concerning the future of government controls," says the NAM. "We can accept a regulated society and permit more and more decisions to be made by government, or we can demand changes to allow individuals greater freedom to make more decisions on their own," it adds. The latter course of action, according to the NAM, "will require that Washington begin to take regulatory reform seriously and redefine and limit the powers of the regulatory agencies."

More self-restraint by the courts, I might add, also will be required.

ADDRESSING THE Texas Association of Business, J. Fred Bucy, president of Texas Instru-ments, said recently that business "should lead a trend back to genuine concern for individuals.'

Over-regulation was brought on, he noted, because business was not responsive. Voters pressured the government to act. The actions got out of hand. "If we do our job," Bucy said, "we can save

Texas. If we fight well, we can save the Southwest. That done, perhaps we can begin to turn the tidal wave of government control and socialism that is engulfing the United States.'

The job? It boils down, Bucy said, to "getting involved in politics."

Chimes Of Concord Less Lethal

By this time in December we have become almost blase about the Mideast miracle where ancient enemies so unexpectedly clasped hands.

In Rhodesia, the Iron Premier Ian Smith has relaxed into compromise. He actually allowed himself to use the fearful term one-man-one-vote which for 27,000 European whites meant to be politically buried by a black majority with many remembered wrongs to avenge.

White Rhodesia already has a constitution which already gives parliamentary seats and civil rights to the black tribesman, and this raises hope that the long white rule has imbedded some ideas of protection for the minorities.

Peace in Rhodesia desperately depends on the attitudes of white governments in Britain and America where it's to be hoped that the Anglos will approve of the Afros when they govern well, and not hesitate to disapprove in the opposite

Another traditional pair of enemies, Greece and Turkey seem to have caught the Christmas spirit, and have chosen to talk calmly about Cy-prus, the perennial problem.

THE BELLS OF concord are audible in still stranger places. Weapons, if the human mind refrains from boggling at the paradox, are coming to seem less lethal and more peaceful.

The season's example is the steady change from the heavy, horrible explosives of the Vietnam war to development of smaller, more selective projectiles, the enhanced radiation (ER) artillery warhead and the precision-honed cruise missiles.

Both are mercy killers, compared with the incendiary napalm and the "smart" bombs of a few

Tidings of relative peace, even within the military environment, would be more discernible if the peace mongers practiced sanity and fair play. But the remarkable ER warhead with its limited radius and stunning radiation was re-named the neutron bomb by the anti-preparedness press and politicians. It was made to seem a wildfire of deathrays. In truth, the development of the neutron warhead was a breakthrough in developing a "clean" nuclear explosion if that term is given a relative connotation There is going to be nuclear fallout, but a lesser fallout. The neutron weapon will moderate the inevitable destructiveness of war.

TALK OF "RELATIVE" cleanliness on an admittedly deadly weapon is one of the contradictions in our time. We must learn to live with it. The theme of "relative" peace runs through some of the most learned nuclear discussion.

up" to expand the facilities at the air tering services. Caught unprepared for the passenger spiral triggered by Southwest Airlines' entry into the Lubbock market, the City Council now faces the problem of how best to finance a proposed $2.4 million parking building. WHEN THE NEW terminal was built at Lubbock International Airport, everyone reasonably believed that the 700-car parking lot would be adequate for several years. Already, though, an overflow lot for 350 cars has been provided on an abandoned runway and it, too, has been full at times. The Airport Board now proposes a two-level parking structure at the east end of the present parking lot to provide spaces for 670

The urgency to get construction underway, assuming a building is the best solution, can be seen in the fact that passenger boardings here totaled 37,049 last month. That's up that time a record airline year for Lubbock. Before erecting the parking building, the City Council should assure itself, however, that the location is the best possible from the standpoint of convenience for airport

The proposed location is not the most convenient, certainly, for those who want to first unload their baggage before parking.

OF AT LEAST equal importance to the air traveling public is the need for the airlines to off-load their luggage more quickly. A second baggage carousel is "in the works" but, more than that, those airlines which don't hire enough personnel to get the baggage quickly to the carousel are doing their passengers a disservice. Similarly, there is a need to provide a second passenger screening area to eliminate what has become a bothersome bottleneck inside the terminal.

Airlines need to devise and implement a way, too, to separate those who are queuing up to board a plane from those who are offloading and trying to get through the crowd to the exits. These improvements need not wait for completion of the parking garage.

In May 1969, in separate speeches in Detroit and San Francisco, Sen. Javits ripped his party's president, Richard Nixon, on both his foreign and domestic policies.

In June 1971, when liberal GOP Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., announced his intention to challenge (attempted cannibalization?) Nizon for presidency, Sen. KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Hallmark Cards Inc., is more than one step ahead of Christmas card shoppers this year - it is gearing up for its 1979 Christmas card

Hallmark plans for Christmas two years in advance, with actual production of the cards coming one year to eight months prior to each Dec. 25. A design staff creates the cards in a maze of white cubicles drapped with green house plants and an occasional stuffed animal. An adjacent room is used to present possible cards to a consumer panel for its reac-

Hallmark, which prints hundreds of millions of greeting cards annually, also produces other gift items included in the firm's annual sale figure of $500 million. Don Fletcher, product manager of seasonal greeting cards, said sending Christmas cards is definitely popular. "We are talking about tradition," Fletcher said. "Christmas is a time of year when there is a lot of introspection," and the cards serve as a link between friends and families.

The operation for Hallmark's 1979 line of Christmas cards first begins with an analysis of past cards, Fletcher explained. Each card is analyzed and broken down into 80 categories, with the results fed into a computer to aid in plan-

However, the popularity of a certain card does not guarantee it will be reissued unchanged each year, he said. A top selling card may be redesigned along the same theme but is rarely repeated. The company aims for new cards, making available more than 1,000 new designs each year.

Hallmark first decides how many cards it will produce, then developes card lines, such as juvenile or religious, and issues guidelines to its staff. "We really don't care what the top selling card is," said Fletcher. "The card is just one in 1,000."

Hallmark cards also are sold overseas in 100 countries and printed in 15 lan-

Cards are evaluated through research as well as sales figures. The computer evaluation takes out a lot of the subjectivity. Fletcher said.

Will sending Christmas cards, a custom that developed in the 1840s, ever lose its popularity? The officials at Hallmark

"One of my favorities came out several years ago when there was a lot of chatter going around that sending Christmas cards was a dying tradition," said Bob McCloskey, head of Hallmark's contemporary cards division.

"So we put out a Christmas card that said 'Just a card to let you know ... I'm not sending Christmas Cards this year.'

"It was a big seller. People were trying to be trendy, so they bought this card. It's kind of funny, but it made me realize that Christmas cards qill always be around in Speaking in Los Angeles, the AFL-CIO president urged an expansion of public works programs by an infusion of $5 billion of federal funds, while declining support for a business tax cut.

Critics will quickly pounce on what they see as contradictory goals: More government spending and perhaps less vitality in the private sector, and some-how a balancing of the government's books as well.

A formula that might be proposed by businessmen would also seek more jobs and a balanced budget, but it would almost certainly call for a business tax cut and incentives to capital investment. That's how jobs are created and federal revenues increased, they'd say.

In either case the goals are huge. The economy this year was stronger than we have tended to credit it with being, and the increase in total employment was deemed "very impressive" by the Bureau of Labor Statistics

Still, this unusual performance resulted in a 12-month increase - through November - of 3.9 million workers, or less than the number sought by Meany for 1978, a year that is expected to be weaker than 1977.

This, in fact, has been an extraordinary year for employment. The ratio of em-ployed people to the total population reached an all-time high of 57.8 last than ever before, and a greater percentage of the population employed than ever before, why then didn't the jobless rate fall well below 7 percent?

The answer lies partly in the increase of the civilian labor force. Annual labor force increases in recent years have averaged a little more than 2 million, but in the past 12 months the number jumped to 3.2 milion.

Said Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics: "The labor force growth for women and teen-agers was cons ably larger than the population growth." Some 1.7 million women 20 years or over joined the labor force.

"As is well recognized, there are a great many people on the margin of the labor force who will, when opportunities

501 Texas Commerce

present themselves, take available jobs," Shiskin told the Joint Economic Commit-

In November, if not for the entire year, that shift from outside the labor force was fairly heterogeneuous, said Shiskin, including not only women and teenagers, but semiretired persons, the voluntarily idle and seasonal workers.

Catch 22 When the problem improves

Catch 22. When the problem improves it gets worse. When employment opportunities seem more abundant, more people join the labor force and thus prevent the jobless rate, which is a percentage of the labor force, from falling.

Mired in the 7 percent range since April the rate for November was 6.9 — unemployment in 1978 is expected by most mists to show only little downward movement, at best to 6.5 percent

Britain Facing Troop Shortage

LONDON - Britain appears to be running out of troops.

Total manpower of the three econon axed armed services next year is sched uled to be only 342,000 men - about 50,-0000 less than five years ago.

Out of this the government has to provide 55,000 for the British Rhine Army and 14,500 for Northern Ireland. Now another 18,000 are tied up on fire-fighting duties during the current firemen's strike. The manpower drain is so severe that

PARIS - France is hoping to take over many U.S. arms markets if President Carter makes good his pledge to limit American foreign arms sales, government sources say. President Valery Giscard D'Estaing plans to tell Carter during his visit here Jan. 46 that France does not believe a unilateral reduction of arms sales without world disarmaent can be of much help, the sources say.

While Carter is considering plans for arms sales cutbacks French Defense Minister Yvon Bourges is busy flying around the world drumming up clients for French arms factories. Among new contracts for military hardware were orders from Libya, Morocco, Nigeria, Abu Dhabi, Egypt and Ecuador.

MOSCOW - Somalia's decision to close down Soviet bases, including the major naval facility at Berbera, could give Moscow a bargaining chip at negotiations with the United States to demilitarize the Indian Ocean. Now they can pressure the United seeking to replace the Berbera facilities at Aden. Either way they come out ahead, diplomatic sources say.

Clarabell's First Christmas

It was a clear, Christmas Eve night in Tennessee. It was not so long ago as you might think, even though Clarabell was just a little calf when it happened. Clarabell was special, even for a Jersey calf. If she weren't special, how then could all this have hapthe barn wall. The cold made white clouds out of Clarabell's breath.

All the cows on Wilburn Farm but Clarabell were asleep. Even Hermann the Bull was quiet tonight.

It was the coldest night Clarabell had ever seen. The heat lamp in her stall had gone out. Her sawdust was damp. The water in her bucket was hard, and made her nose sting when she touched it.

Clarabell could smell the smoke from the chimney where the Wilburns lived. She knew if little BIlly was awake, he would come and make her

But he did not come. Clarabell turned her brown, big eyes longingly toward his house. They were very good eyes. How else could

She poked up her big, chocolate-colored ears. They were very good ears. How else could she have heard what she heard? She stood up on her long, skinny legs. The Wilburn's house was all dark. She sniffed with her wet, shiny nose. It was a very good nose. How else could she have smelled what she

What she smeller was peppermint. What she heard were bells. And what she saw — well, you wouldn't believe. The sound of the bells grew louder.

They made a sound like nothing she had heard before. It was music, sweet music, music like the sound the herd makes as it lies down for the night. It was coming from the Wilburn house, where little 6-year-old Billy was Clarabell liked Billy. He was gentler than the other humans. He was nicer. He never talked. Clarabell did not know that this was strange for a human. She thought it was nice.

She opened her brown eyes wide. Something was on top of the Wilburn house! But she could not tell what. It frightened her to think someone might be after Billy.

She waited. She waited a long time.

No cars came down the road. Nohing moved on the farm. Stars shone like candles in the sky. Even the wind died down to a whis-

And then, in a twinkling, like a leaf sucked up by a dust-devil, it was llying. Whatever-it-was — for Clarabell still did not know - was flying. Bells jingled happily as it climbed into the sky. Stars went dark as it passed.

Clarabell caught her breath at what she saw. There were eight of them that flew across the yellow moon. They were calves! Calves like her! But they had funny things like tree braches on their heads. And they could fly.

The eight calves-with-branches pulled a box behind them. In it sat a man. He was a fat man. He had a beard. He laughed, for Clarabell could hear his laughter echoing in the night. It was a good laughter, joyous laughter, ho-ho-ho laughter.

And then the calves and the man and the laughter were gone.

Clarabell waited, but they did not come back. She waited until her eyelids were very, very heavy. Finally, she could keep her eyes open no longer. She slept.

She dreamed of peppermint and a man-who-laughed and of calves-withbranches who flew.

Since it was Clarabell's first Christmas, she could not have known she saw Santa Claus. Nor could she know that animals get a special present, too. As he passes over, Santa sprinkles dust that lets animals talk on Christmas morning, just like humans do. He has dust for every kind of animal. He has dust for Jerseys. He had dust for Clarabell.

"Wake up, wake up Clarabell, honey. We have much to talk about, and the morning is oh, so short."

Clarabell woke up. The voice she heard was gentle, and soft, and not like a human's at all. She opened her eyes. At the other end of the barn, by the wooden gate, she could see her mother. Her name was Heads Belmont Star. She was very pretty. She had a white star in the middle of her forehead.

And it was her mother who was talking!

Since Clarabell was a very smart calf, it took her no time at all to get loose from the rope that tied her in her stall. She trotted down the barn to meet her mother.

Heads Belmont Star first had to explain to Clarabell why they could talk. "It takes very strong magic," she said.
"It is very, very hard for an animal to talk. And that is why we can only talk this one day."

Families Prefer PG-Rated Movies

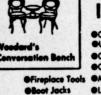

DALLAS (AP) - Producer Joe Camp says his research has shown that family audiences prefer movies rated PG rather than the blander G-rated movies

Italian Kidnappers Capture Wrong Man

TURIN, Italy (AP) - Three men kidnapped Giuseppe Ginessi Monday night, but released him early today after he convinced them he was not his employer.

Ginessi, a 50-year-old former policeman who works for 52-year-old Pier Ettore Carpignano's building materials firm, told police his captors wanted Carpignano, and it took him several hours to convince them they had the wrong man.

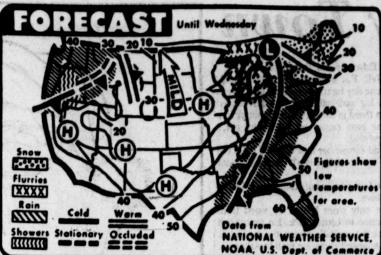

"When I produced my personal documents and they heard over the radio news of my kidnapping, they appeared convinced," Ginessi told the police. Then they anesthetized me with chloroform. When I regained consciousnes. I found myself in the countryside near Tur-

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Soyuz 26 cosmonauts took the day off today to adapt to weightlessness in their orbiting space laboratory.

Radio Moscow said the cosmonauts were given a "rest day" because the first three days of their mission were "hard and tense. Now comes the period of active adaptation to weightlessness."

Commenting from the ground, cosmonaut-scientist Konstantin P. Feoktistov told a radio interviewer the Salvut 6 lab. launched Sept. 29, was more comfortable than previous Soviet space stations and even included an experimental shower in a hermetic cabin.

The station's double docking facilities increased its reliability, he said. The Soyuz 26 docked Sunday with the second unit because the first device "was found to be suspicious," he said.

The Tass news agency said the cosmo-nauts awakened Monday on their own, without having to get a wake-up call from ground control, and tackled their work "For the first time in two days the ommander and flight engineer could afford to relax a little and speak emotionally during their strictly business conversations," Tass said.

Eritrean Rebels Claim Conquest Of Port Near

ROME (AP) — Eritrean rebels fighting for the independence of Ethiopia's northern province claim they have captured half of Massawa, the country's only major port, and soon will have the rest.

Meanwhile, a Kuwait newspaper reported that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has proposed a joint defense pact with Somalia and Sudan to justify a joint will have constituted assigned the Marriet military operation against the Marxist government in Addis Ababa, which is supported by the Soviet Union.

"The liberation of Massawa will herald the complete independence of Eri-trea,"said Amde Michael Kahsai, a spokesman in Rome for the Eritrean People's Liberation Front.

Kahsai said the front's forces have nearly completed the conquest of Massa-wa after four days of hard fighting and al-so are about to capture Adi Kaieh, 70 miles south of Asmara, the Eritrean capital and the nearest supply post for the cit-

Kahsai said there were about 15,000 Ethiopian soldiers defending the area around Massawa, but that guerrillas now control the vital airport and fuel depot.

Kahsai said an all-out attack on Asmara would begin after the government forces at Massawa and Adi Kaieh are routed. The government is reported to have 22,-000 to 24,000 troops at Asmara, but Kahsai claimed the city is without electricity or water and all its factories are closed.

percent of the province.

Ethiopia's military government also is fighting rebel Somali tribesmen in its southeastern Ogaden region who are trying to annex the region to neighboring Somalia. The rebels have seized most of the region since last July, and the government now holds only two cities.

The Kuwait newspaper Al Wattan, quoting unidentified "high-ranking Arab diplomatic sources in Beirut," said Sadat proposed the joint defense pact when So mali President Mohammad Siad Barre visited him recently in search of aid for Ethiopia.

The report said Barre welcomed Sadat's proposal as a "riatural reply to the Soviet and Cuban military intervention in the affairs of the Horn of Africa."

Al Wattan said the proposed attack on Ethiopia, which has been given the code name "The Grand Winter Operation," also was intended to divert attention from the controversy aroused by Sadat's peace overtures to Israel.

Smith, Blacks Make Progress In Talks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) -Prime Minister Ian Smith says he and three black leaders are making progress toward scrapping Rhodesia's white government in negotiations that all four men describe as "frank and friendly."

Smith met the black leaders for three hours Monday and flashed a bright smile as he emerged from the red brick house where the talks are being held to end 12 years of white minority rule.

"So far, so good," Smith said. "I can assure you progress has been made."

Smith's meeting with Bishop Abel Muzurewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Jeremiah Chirau was the longest of the three sessions held since Smith opened his "internal" settlement initiative Dec. 2. ings has been rotating, with Sithole, president of the African National Council, presiding over Monday's talks. In 1968, Sithole was convicted of plotting Smith's assassination from his jail cell.

Monday's meeting marked the first time Smith has sat under black chairmanship at settlement negotiations.

Sithole said later, "If we go on at this rate we should be able really to cover a lot of ground. But there are quite a lot of problems that must be faced squarely.

"They are difficult, but there seems to be quite a lot of confidence that these problems are not in any way insurmountable," he said.

Asked if agreement had been reached on universal suffrage as the black nationalists understand it, Sithole said, "Yes, we have agreed."

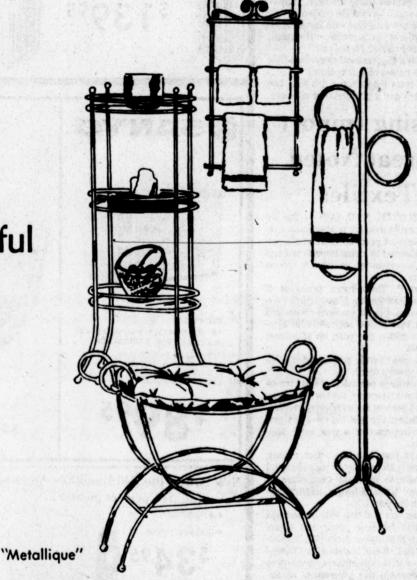

Sources close to the talks said that on Friday Smith gave in to the blacks' demand that the minimum voting age be set at 18. In return he asked for certain safeguards for whites, such as guaran ing them enough seats in Parliament to block any effort to abolish their constitutional rights.

Nostalgia Reigns In Sleepy Town

ROMANCE, Ark. (UPI) - The morning fog vanished but rain in these toehills of the Ozark Mountains screened the Romance Grocery and Post Office build-ing from the two-lane highway.

Drivers of White County pickups had to have private knowledge to know just where to turn north onto the muddy track leading down to the wooden bridge, its top timbers ruptured, across Clifty

Four persons sat inside the wooden grocery-post office while the rain darkened the imitation brick siding of the wooden building.

Tommy Cole, 57, a retired farmer - "I had two bad heart attacks up in that cold South Dakota and came home and lost 40 pounds by pushing away from the dinner table and, I tell you, it's a victory to be able to get up in the morning and put both feet on the floor, a victory" - sat in the rocking chair by the wood-burning

In the next chair, also wooden and its paint worn off by five decades of White County folk sittin' and talkin', sat Quin Edwards, 49. He owns the store and the surrounding two acres of pine and fir

Beyond the second shelf of catsup. beans, pickles and candy, on the far side of a screen, sat Glenn Bellew, 60, postmaster of Romance and a model Norman Rockwell somehow missed.

What's goin' on?" said Cole. The humming of Mrs. Edwards' sewing machine halted.

"Nothing but the rent," she said. Cole, Quin Edwards and Glenn Bellew smiled. It was an old joke but it's return was like a visit from an old friend and, in Romance, traditions are treasured.

The hamlet's garden spot is not the mud patch between the Clifty Creek bridge and the store, not the ungardened yards of the three "widow woman houses" beside the store, not the browning round bales of hay in the fields.

The grass is tended and the flowers fresh on that acre on the eastern rise that is the cemetery of Romance. Mrs. Edwards' grandparents lie there. Brown slabs, their letters eroded, poke up under the pines, the last sign of Kentucky pioneers who came and founded Romance 130 years ago.

Rare in Romance is the sight of youth. Youth is seen mostly in pictures. On the meat counter, in a horseshoe frame carved by Edwards, is a photograph of his granddaughter; she lives in Jacksonville, most of the way down the road to Little Rock. The Edwards' other son and daughter also live away.

Cole's children are gone too. So are Cole looks at the stove, two oil drums, one atop the other and welded together above a bed of sand. "We got widows and oldsters but few young'uns here. They've orphaned us," he said and smiled. Cole is too delighted with surviving his heart attacks to grumble. "Romance! What's in a name? I'll tell you.' He tells a geographical story. In it Cole cites the names of nearby towns.

Rising Import Threat Noted In Textiles

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) - The domestic textile industry is winding up a record shipment year, but next year's outlook is clouded by rising imports and regulatory uncertainties, an industry spokesman says.

Robert P. Timmerman, president of the American Textile Manufacturers Association, said in his year-end review and forecast that textile shipments hit a record $42 billion this year, up 12 percent from 1976.

But he said textile profits did not follow the upward trend

"Our earnings per dollar of sales are estimated at 1.9 percent, well below the nation's 5.4 percent manufacturing average, and substantially less than our 2.4 percent performance of a year ago," Timmerman.

He said that despite sluggish profits, the industry stepped up its pace of capital investment to maintain its position as the most modern textile industry anywhere in the world."

Timmerman said that $930 million was earmarked for new plants and equipment, up $120 million from 1976. However, he said, these investments "cannot keep pace with expenditures necessary to meet nonproductive government regula-

He said the textile industry faces new noise and dust standards in 1978. "Calling them expensive is an understatement, he said, "for these two proposals alone will cost upwards of $6 billion."

Timmerman, who is president of the Graniteville Co. in South Carolina, said the industry's profit sluggishness reflects acute competition with textile imports from low-wage foreign countries.
"Import gains, in heightening the competitive fever, continued to outstrip exports, thereby siphoning off additional domestic sales potential," the textile as-sociation president said, noting that imports had grown to nearly $6 billion in

Looking toward 1978, Timmerman said he expects a slower upward momentum than in 1977 because of inventory surpluses in the textile pipeline and a level-ing off of the recovery from the 1974 re-cession. "Still," he said, "we anticipate a gain in shipments over 1977."

On the matter of energy, he said the long-term situation will be "plagued with uncertainties" as long as Congress is unwilling to deregulate oil and natural gas.

in North Pleasure street, liked each other, came out a few miles and saw Joy in each other's eye and came on down the road a few miles and he give her a Rose Bud. And a few miles further the romance began. Mrs. Edwards' sewing machine had not halted.

She pointed to a sign on the candy counter. Cole looked at it and laughed. The sign: "Cows may come and cows may go but the bull in this place goes on

"Glenn," said Mrs. Edwards, "tell

Tommy what really happened." The postmaster, facing the screen and sitting with folded hands, moved one hand. He lifted a yellowed paper and read. Romance was founded by Kentuckians who, when post office-naming time came in 1884, wanted to call the place Kentucky Valley. Washington did not think highly of that, too confusing.

So the villagers went to the school teacher, Professsor J.J. Walters. He said the place "looks so romantic" it deserves Romance as its name. Washington ap-

Washington paid little attention to Romance since then. That bothered Romance little enough. Cotton was king. Until the boll weevil - "the boll weevil am a little black bug, come all de way from Mexico, they say, uh huh, they say, uh huh" goes the song — unthroned cotton in White County.

Hay was less profitable. One by one the four stores - the furniture shop, the hammer mill for corn, the other grocery - shut. Only the Edwards' shop remains.

Her husband said the population is down to 75. "There hasn't been a ball game here since the (Second World) War." his wife said.

that one of four plants proposed by the U.S. Agriculture Department will be built in Colorado.

The plants would use low quality or surplus grains such as wheat to produce alcohol for blending with gasoline. This could provide a new market for farm commodities, cut surpluses and ease the shortage of domestic energy supplies.

Jack Fletcher, president of the wheat committee, said private funding already is being used to start work on a proposed project. The deadline for submitting the als to the Agriculture Department

Fletcher, who operates a farm near Agate, said several sites are under consid ation, including one in the Sterling area. The pilot plant would produce about 20 million gallons of alcohol a year, consuming about 5 million bushels of wheat or 10 percent of the state's output.

The plants would cost about $25 million apiece and would be backed by government guarantees of up to $15 million.

Compromise Proposed On Natural Gas Bill

bers of a congressional conference committee today made the first substantive attempt to break a deadlock on the critical natural gas section of President Carter's energy plan.

Democratic House members proposed a compromise designed to open a search for middle ground between widely varying versions of the natural gas bill approved by the House and Senate.

But even as the attempt was made to end the deadlock, it became clear that the administration has given up all hope of obtaining final congressional approval of the energy program this year.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale said the administration still is hopeful the conferees can reach agreement on the energy plan this year with the full Congress finishing its work early in 1978.

There was no immediate indication how the 18 equally divided Senate delegates to the conference committee would react to the House compromise proposal.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said he doubted that senators supporting deregulation of natural gas prices would back the proposal.

The offer would include continued federal price controls, as urged by Carter. and also extend federal regulation to gas produced and consumed in the same

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said he hopes the offer "will break the Senate deadlock which has prevented a resolution of this issue.

As described by Dingell, the compromise would guarantee producers a steady increase in price over the ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet of gas now in-

Instead of tying price hikes to rises in the world price of oil as Carter originally urged, the House compromise would link it to increases in U.S. inflation to a maximum rate of 9 percent a year.

The federally regulated lid now is $1.46 per thousand cubic feet. The Senate has approved a plan for lifting controls for some kinds of gas in two years and the rest in five years. Other elements of the House compromise include abandonment by the House of a provision giving the Energy Department authority to allocate gas produced and consumed in the same state. If the federal government had such authority, gas intended for use in industies in Louisiana and Texas could be sent to meet residential shortages in Ohio or Pennsylvania, for example.

The House compromise also cushions profit losses among producers whose higher-price gas contracts expire in the middle of the transition to federal controls of the intrastate market.

During a breakfast interview today, Mondale said "there is a chance yet" that an agreement could be reached so that members of Congress returning in January from the Christmas recess could complete work on the legislation. Mondale said his optimism was based on a report he received Monday night from Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, but he gave no details.

The vice president said if an agreement can be reached on the remaining controversial issues, House and Senate staff members could prepare the final drafts of the report to be issued by the House-Senate conference committees working on the measures. If such a resolution is achieved, he said, we will have accomplished clearing the major remaining hurdle.'

On Monday, Rex Granum, a deputy White House press secretary, said con-gressional leaders who predicted that the energy measures would not be enacted this year were merely stating the obvious. He said Carter was "increasingly concerned" about the chances for simply obtaining agreements on the bills.

Sources said House Democrats agreed in a private meeting Monday to offer the roposal today. The sources said it would fall far short of lifting federal price controls on natural gas, a policy included in the Senate version of the energy bill.

Instead, with a proposed Thursday adjournment date approaching, House negotiators are focusing on two lesser elements of the nation's natural gas pricing policy. They are willing to abandon a provision in the Carter administration plan approved by the House that would permit the federal government to allocate natural gas produced and intended for consumption in the same state.

Gas produced and consumed in the same state currently is under no federal price controls, and the House and Senate are in disagreement over whether regulation should be extended to such reserves. In an effort at initial compromise on that issue, sources say, the House conferees will propose that when gas contracts are expired and renewed in the higher priced intrastate market, producers will be guaranteed against major profit losses if federal controls with lower prices have been imposed.

One knowledgeable House source said the Senate is unlikely to accept the compromise. "But it's a first step and it's worth the effort," he said.

In a public meeting of the conferees Monday, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., urged the committee to give up its effort and adjourn for the year with no natural Carter's energy package includes an increase in the current federal price ceiling of $1.46 per thousand cubic feet of gas to $1.75. If the conferees reach no agreement on natural gas, the lower price would remain in effect, so Abourezk and other opponents of the oil and gas industry have no objection to a continued im-

Nine of the senators support deregulation and nine support continued federal controls with varying degrees of willingness to compromise on price or extension of controls to the interstate market.

NewVotingBox

Gets Approval The High Plains Underground Water

Conservation District Board of Directors in its regular meeting Monday approved an additional voting box to be placed at Fire Station No. 6, 3320 35th St., for its upcoming Jan. 21 election.

The election will fill board seats representing Precincts 1, 2 and 5, which expire at the end of the year. Deadline for persons to be put on the ballot is Dec. 31.

The voting place apparently was added after Carolyn Lanier, president of the Lubbock League of Women Voters, appeared at the meeting and said there was an unbalanced distribution of election ballots in the district's jurisdiction.

The board also approved Jan. 5 and 6 dates to begin interviewing applicants for district manager. The former manager, Frank Rayner, vacated that post in August under apparent fire from the board. A. Wayne Wyatt, a natural resources specialist hired by the district, submitted his final recommendation to the board, calling for, among other things, additional district personnel, a better public information program for water conservation and replacement of some field equipment.

North Korea Considered 'Hot Spot'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Two decades after the Korean conflict, North Korea still is unwilling to seek peace, remains "a serious threat" to South Korea and, in the view of the United States, "is well equipped" for an offensive war.

The warning was issued Monday by the Carter administration in a report to Congress. It said it will withdraw American ground troops by 1982, but made clear it will beef up U.S. air and naval strength in and near South Korea.

The report stressed that, even after the pullout of American soldiers, the remaining U.S. air and naval forces "will continue to provide an effective deterrent to a resumption of hostilities by North Ko-"North Korea continues to threaten the stability of the region. The threat it poses to the Republic of Korea (South Korea) remains serious," according to the 12page report submitted to Congress under the foreign aid law. 'The North Koreans are well-equipped for an offensive war.'

The report accused Pyongyang's communist regime of being "intransigent on all political issues which divide the peninsula." It also charged North Korea with 'further increasing its military capabilities" through massive manufacture and foreign purchases of modern weapons.

The pullout of U.S. forces will go ahead as scheduled. But the report made clear that the withdrawal, beginning with some 6,000 GIs by the end of 1978, will tip the balance of ground forces in favor of North Korea.

So, Congress was informed that the withdrawal plan will be "accompanied by significant materiel and other measures to strengthen and modernize the ROK (Republic of Korea) forces" - in other words, significantly higher U.S. military sales and aid. The administration already has requested more that $280 million dollars in military assistance and credits for 1978. Also, American naval power - as well as U.S. air, intelligence, and logistic presence - will continue to help protect South Korea from its northern neighbor. Numerically, North Korea has a bigger air force and a larger navy than South Korea. Therefore, the report explained: —"The continuing commitment of U.S. air power to South Korea, even after the withdrawal of ground combat forces, and the upgrading of the ROK Air Force are required to ensure a capability to gain and maintain air superiority. -"The continued commitment of the U.S. Navy to the defense of Korea will enable U.S. and Korean forces to gain and retain control of the sea in the battle area in the event of a North Korean at-

Lawyers Claim Analyst Broke UH Policy

Houston lawyers Monday said a financial analyst fired for alleged violation of university policy used institutional funds for pyramid investment in federal mortgage

Mark Winslow and John Held, lawyers for a UH inquiry into investments by Samuel U. Harwell, said pyramiding Government National Mortgage Association bonds was legal and often was done by private investment firms. But officials have said any investment in federal mortgage bonds was against the policy of UH, and most other universities, because the bonds are not considered reliable enough.

"We know there was a pyramid," Winslow said. "We don't know the extent or the rationale of it."

Lawyers for Harwell issued a statement saying his investment "in indebtedness of the United States government was done pursuant to the expressed written authority of appropriate" UH officials.

Investment firm spokesmen said most brokerages have strict controls which would prevent institutional investments without authorization from appropriate officials. Held said the investigation has turned up an unexplained bank transaction in which a UH certificate of deposit was used as collateral for a note to an individual who has no known connection with the university. UH spokesman Farris Block said the university has no knowledge, information or records reflecting that a UH board of regents member who committed suicide Sunday had participated in any of the investments.

Robert L. Grainger, 46, was found dead at his home of a shotgun wound to the head. The Harris County medical examiner has ruled the death a suicide.

Held said Grainger was the UH official who first became concerned about the "nature and suitability" of the federal mortgage bond, or Ginnie Mae, invest-

The university has hired special auditors to determine the status of the bond investments and has begun their "orderly and systematic liquidation." Government authorities were checking whether laws had been violated.

Holmes Describes Life With Hughes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - John Holmes, who says he'd rather not inherit Howard Hughes' millions through the Mormon will, resumes testifying today about life with the reclusive tycoon.

Holmes, who was Hughes' closest aide in his declining years, took a surprise gamble last Friday by signing away an estimated $10 million he could have gained if the Mormon will is proved authentic. 'I would not want to take money from

Mr. Hughes under these circumstances,' said Holmes after he signed a renunciation of his share in the will. He said he didn't believe Hughes wrote the disputed document, declaring, "It's

The state of California had asked the Supreme Court to halt the Houston proceedings, contending the high court should settle the domicile issue. Hill asked the court not to interfere, saying California and the Hughes heirs

A leadership aide who would not be quoted by name said the House and Senate conferees would hold a joint meeting late today or Wednesday.

The conferees have agreed on all provisions affecting Social Security, but the House members rejected the tuition credit rider, insisting the vote should come on the Social Security issues alone.

The aide said he understood the conferees were prepared to release the bill and that the House Rules Committee was standing by to provide special procedures allowing a vote Thursday. The Senate is expected to act immediately after the Califano told reporters Saturday that a college tuition tax credit now attached to the bill is so bad that he would seriously consider recommending that President Carter veto the entire package.

Califano said it is intolerable for Sen.

William V. Roth, R-Del., chief sponsor of the tuition credit, to hold the Social Security bill hostage. In reality, however, Roth has had the unanimous support of other Senate conferees when votes were taken. Senate and House conferees reached

Getting a Social Security bill this year is a top priority of the Carter administra-

Roth said the bill would have been cleared on Friday for final action had it not been for "meddling" by administration officials.

Roth said senior conferees from the Senate and House agreed early Thursday to allow a one-year test of the credit. But the White House got involved and got the deal off-track," he said.

Carter wants the bill finished this year because the tax revision bill he wants to send Congress next month will include major income tax cuts. He cannot decide how big of a tax cut to recommend until Congress determines how high Social Security and energy taxes are going to rise.
The tuition credit, which would cost about $1.25 billion a year, is a familiar issue. The Senate has passed it three times in the past two years by lopsided votes.

Roth calls the proposal a rare piece of legislation because it would help the middle class, Americans who are not poor enough to qualify for government aid, but are hard-pressed to meet the rising

Carter and congressional opponents say the money could be better spent by expanding current grant programs for education. They say the credit would apply to poor and rich alike and fear it would be used by colleges as an excuse to raise

Engineers Step Up Inspection Of Dams

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Dams in more than 40 states are being inspected by the Army Corps of Engineers and dam inspections in remaining states will begin early in 1978.

The acclerated inspection program, part of a $15 million project to inspect 9,-500 non-federal dams over the next four years, was stepped up after a dam disaster in November in Georgia.

The program for federal inspection of dams was enacted into law in 1972 after a pair of dams failed, one at Buffalo Creek, W. Va., killing 125 people and another at Rapid City, S.D., killing 23.

A spokesman for the Army corps said inspectors will review dams' design, maintenance, operating machinery and backup generators. The federal teams will train state officials to continue the inspections.

A 55-year-old woman told police she was bound and robbed by two men who broke into her Southwest Lubbock home early today. The bandits reportedly took several fur coats, silverware and other valuables after tying up Lena Wilhite of 3106 79th St. The robbers apparently spent about 20 minutes at the home of the victim, who managed to get free and go to a neighbor's home after the intruders' depar-Mrs. Wilhite said she was awakened about 3:20 a.m. by a man who appeared in her corner bedroom of the 3106 79th St. residence.

"I got a gun - get down on the floor," reportedly were the stranger's words. The woman told police that after the man asked if she was on the floor, he went into the room and threw a coat over her

The victim recounted that she heard someone going through drawers in other rooms of the house, and after a few minutes, the man returned and jerked the phone from the wall in her bedroom. She told police he then brought a phone from the kitchen and began tying her hands with the cords

At that point, reports indicated, another man entered the bedroom and told his accomplice to tie their victim's hands be-

The intruders reportedly then said they would tell Mrs. Wilhite when they were going to leave. Initial reports did not reveal whether the robbers returned to the woman's room or if she heard a getaway vehicle, but she estimated they were inside the residence about 20 minutes.

When police, who were responding to a reported house burglary, arrived in the neighborhood, they were met by the vic-

The ensuing search by investigators revealed entry into the residence was gained by prying a side window. They reportedly found a screwdriver, knife and pen light on the ground, and said all the lines in a phone box beneath the window had been cut. In addition, all the phone

"I would like to see Texas move more toward the local detention system" for juvenile offenders, said Workman .

He praised the proposed regional juvenile detention center for the 15-county Lubbock area. "It will be the first and only one of its kind, funded partly by the youth council with state Criminal Justice funds.

Workman said the state has long needed places for minor offenders to be kept near their homes, rather than being shuttled to distant state reformatories.

"If there's a serious offender who needs to be out of the community, both for his own sake and the community's, it will still be there. But the local facility will be available later to help phase the youngster back into the community.'

Workman also said that, as a senator. he will work for more efficiency and reduced costs in Texas' youth institutions. once the youth council gets out from under a federal court order which now rules

"The tenure systems needs to be looked at very closely,' he stated, noting that in some colleges and universities tenured faculty make up 80 to 90 percent

"I think that's very bad...It has a tendency to create obsolescence in the classroom unless there's some updating.

"You could increase faculty salaries and you still couldn't do anything about quality," Workman said. "And if you're 100 percent tenured, you could have an outstanding person you want to bring in and couldn't do it."

He took a stand for higher public school teacher salaries, and a fervent anti-crime and anti-criminal attitude.

"Society is going to have to recognize that people with problems, they're going to have to lock them up to deter crime and to protect the community.

"Most people say the criminal is a product of his environment, being disadvantaged. I find it interesting that Lubbock and Corpus Christi had the highest crime rates recently. And it just so happens that those two cities also had the lowest unemployment rates and one of the highest affluency, per family income, rates in the state."

He added: "There are those (criminal "We didn't even think there was a fire offenders) I believe who can be worked with. But the community ought to have the benefit of the doubt.'

Workman said he does not intend to resign his Tech regency while campaigning for the senate.

The law does not require resignation until taking office in January, 1978, he said. "I don't see any conflicts. I don't see how it would hurt the university. Workman's wife, Skeet, recently was appointed a member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women. She

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Improved weather in the Midwest, enabling farmers to move their crops to market, depressed grain futures prices Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Commission house selling, including a good amount of stop-loss trading, contributed equally to the declines.

The pickup in farmer selling was attributed to both weather and a farm strike scheduled to begin Wednesday and resulted in hedge selling by grain companies in all pits.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.25 to $4.50 a bale lower

A higher than expected government crop estimate Friday prompted selling of futures contracts, brokers said. After the market closed Friday the government estimated the 1977 U S cotton crop at 14.6 million bales 4 per cent large than its November projection and 36 per cent greater than last years crop.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton advanced 16 points to 47.65 cents a pound Friday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was moderate on Monday. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate.

Growers sold mixed lots of new crop cotton at 50-350 points over 1977 loan rates. Gins paid s58-370 per ton for cottonseed, mostly 363-364.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations were mixed. The base price of grade 41, staple 34, mikes 3.5-4.9, stood at 45.30 cents per pound, 100 points lower than a week earlier.

Classing offices graded 48,000 samples on Monday. The season's total stood at 2.228,000 bales, compared with 924,000 last year. About 25,000 samples were received and approximately 375,000 were carried over as unclassed.

Chemical Firm Indicted On Charges Of Fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — The maker of two pesticides used worldwide has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of concealing research that allegedly showed the products can cause cancer. six current or former employees were indicted Monday on charges of mail fraud, conspiracy to commit fraud and concealing material facts from the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The products have been suspended temporarily from the U.S. market for most purposes, and a decision on whether to ban their use permanently in the nation is expected in April, an EPA official

The 11-count indictment charges that the company and its employees con-spired to conceal laboratory data show-ing the pesticides induced tumors in laboratory animals and might pose a risk of cancer to human beings, said Robert L. Herbst, assistant U.S. attorney who conducted the investigation.

The company said it is "an outrage that the government would even consider seeking such indictments."

Paul F. Hoffman, chairman and chief executive officer of Velsicol, said: "The government's position is incomprehensi-

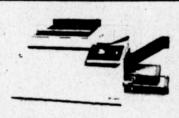

Before their suspension in this country, the pesticides were used widely for agricultural purposes, particularly in corn-growing to control the black cutworm, a common farm pest in river valley bottom lands, EPA officials said.

On Dec. 24, 1975, the EPA temporarily banned domestic use of the pesticides for most purposes, but they still are widely used on farms in other nations and in this country to control termites, according to Dave Menotti, a lawyer for the EPA in Washington.

The criminal proceeding centers on whether we were told what we should have been told and whether we should have been told it," Menotti said. "We're convinced these materials are carcino-genic in rodents and because of that we have to be concerned about their posing cancer risks to man."

The information allegedly withheld dealt with pathologists' findings on liver tissues of mice used in two studies. According to the indictment, the livers contained tumors visible to the "naked eye

The indictments charge that the cancer tindings were withheld from the EPA and that the company told the EPA all data on the studies had been submitted.

Antitrust Suits Dropped

DALLAS (AP) — Twelve antitrust suits filed by individuals and companies in the eattle industry from 19 states accusing major supermarket chains of price-fixing have been dismissed by U.S. District Court Judge William Taylor.

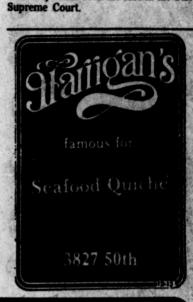

The suits claimed the supermarkets conspired to depress the price they paid to packers and slaughterhouses for fresh, frozen or processed beef. The cattlemen claimed they had been injured because the alleged action lowered the price they received for beef.

The suits, some of which were filed in Texas, were consolidated last year in Judge Taylor's court.

Included as defendants were 15 supermarket chains, the National Association of Food Chains and the National Provisioner, a commercial wholesale meat reporting service.

In his ruling to dismiss the suits, Judge Taylor said he would "strike the retail price-fixing allegations" and dismiss the complaints on the basis of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that said an indirect purchaser is not an injured party in antitrust suits.

The supermarkets had claimed that the cases should be dismissed because the cattlemen were arguing against a "passon theory" such as in the case in the U.S.

U.S. Chamber Fights Labor Reform Act

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - It's been a good year all in all, said the man from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, citing its successes on legislation before a 95th Congress that "we didn't expect to be so non-

But it now faces its biggest test in years, the Labor Reform Act of 1977, a bill it calls "a fraud on the American people" and a "power grab by the labor unions," even at the expense of employees.

The house passed the bill Oct. 6 by a vote of 257-163. The chamber claims the better judgment of U.S. representatives was compromised by union pressure, money and reminders they wouldn't forget at election time.

It now seeks to defeat the bill in the Senate. The unions won in the House because "it was a power play based on their political clout," said Robert Thompson, a Greenville, S.C., attorney who heads the chamber's effort. Labor leaders respond with the cry,

Mon ton

"Remember J. P. Stevens." In 15 cases the National Labor Relations Board concluded that Stevens, a large textile concern, violated labor laws. It has been fined more than $1 million. "The unions did a great job tying in with the J. P. Stevens horror story," said

Thompson, "J. P. Stevens is the most High on the list of what the chamber says are the important issues is what it calls "steamroller" or "quicky" elecunion would be held within 15 days after the union petititions.

"They're saying that if they can't get a quick election in a legal campaign the mployer will be able to dissuade at least half the voters from voting the union in," said Thompson.

He claims close to 50 percent of cases are lost by the unions, even through the average election today comes 30 days after the petition. Within 15 days, he says, many employers cannot get the facts before their workers. If the union has cards from more than 50 percent of employees within those 15 days it wins. But if it does not, it does not lose; it may be allowed an additional 30 days before the required election, and probably another 30 after that.

The chamber suggests this means the law is for the benefit of the unions - not than employees. Otherwise, why should the time period be longer when the un-ions have fewer membership cards?

The legislation also calls for expanding the presidentially appointed five-member board to seven members with seven-year terms. The chamber calls this "packing." It feels the new members would tend to be pro-union

It believes also that the threat of government-imposed penalities against employers, especially small ones, would effectively discourage them from showing their side of the story. Fear of them, said Thompson, might preclude any fight on the employer's apart.

"The thrust of this effort is at small business," he said. "If the issues are put to a vote and they lose, they run the risk 18 months later of being liable to fines they cannot afford."

"The little guy would be killed if he couldn't pay," he said, arguing that "if this bill becomes law it will have the full Unions, he said, have been losing members and they want to get them back, and so have adopted the notion that "the sol-ution to all problems lies in the lawmaking process. "It's a power grab," he said. Society will recognize, he said, that this is "an effort to change the basic labor philosphy under the guise of reform, and that it's the wrong direction. People are not in sympathy with a legislative ef-

Urban Aid Formula Stirs Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Millions of dollars in federal housing and urban development aid are going to cities in the North and Midwest - and not to Texas - because of a new distribution formula written by Congress this year. Figures recently compiled by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, while still undergoing revision, show how the new formula hurts Texas by weighting factors that favor older, decaying cities.

Pennsylvania, with a population of 11.8 million, is receiving $232 million under the program this year. Texas, with a population of 12.2 million, is getting less money - $188 million.

The disparity could lead to bitter regional fights in Congress during the next few years, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, in a recent statement aimed at the northern and Midwestern congressmen who dominate the committees that write urban legislation.

'We have had enough of regionalism. We see what you are up to and we do not like it. In a few years, we will be a majority in Congress (because of rising populaprefer to seek a truce that will encourage nationalism rather than regionalism," he

Ordinance Changes Eyec

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Building Board Of Appeals members Monday informally discussed proposed ordinance amendments that would uire surety bonds, permits and specific labeling for organic insulation used in

Homebuilders, insulation manufacturers and applicators will respond in writing to the proposals at a Jan. 9 board

Should the board decide then to approve the proposals suggested by city staffers, it will meet later that month to recommend formally that the ci.y council adopt the changes, said Cecil Turquette, building administrator.

The proposals represent the building department's answer to a defeat before the building board last week. At that time, the board rejected Turquette's interpretation of insulation ordinance requirements and upheld some homebuilders' and insulators' contention that testing laboratory labeling is not required on bags of cellulose insulation.

After the board's decision, Turquette declared he would push for an ordinance change to provide for such labeling, thereby ensuring the quality of loose insulation used in Lubbock. thereby ensuring the quality of loose in sulation used in Lubbock.

His ideas of how to accomplish that are contained in the proposed changes, which provide that:

—Anybody who installs insulation or contracts to do so in the city must file with the building inspector a $5,000 surety bond. The bond would serve to guarantee compliance with the insulation ordified in federal court here that children of illegal aliens generally perform better than native-born minority children.

The testimony of Dr. Jose Cardenas, executive director of the Intercultural Development Research Association, came Monday in a suit brought against the Tyler Independent School District.

Cardenas also said federal legislation dealing with bilingual education does not place any constraints on the children involved in the programs as to their citizenship status.

Similar Texas law, he said, does require that the children be either citizens or legally admitted aliens.

Earlier Monday, University of Texas professor Gilbert Cardenas testified that Mexican illegal aliens are not a drain on the U.S. economy and are not "oriented toward welfare programs."
On Sept. 11, shortly after the suit was filed, U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice issued a preliminary injunction preventing the school district from charging $1,000 tuition to children of illegal aliens.

Gilbert Cardenas, testifying for the plaintiffs, said a survey for the U.S. American Border Study Project indicated that illegal aliens do not use hospitals and legal services in the United States.

He added the study showed that Mexican illegal aliens "had a fear of institutions because they do not want to be apprehended. Undocumented workers are not oriented toward welfare programs."

During cross examination by attorney John Hardy, the UT professor said that 'aliens are conributing far more to the economy than they are withdrawing from it in the form of benefits."

In answer to other questions, he declined to offer any specific figures on the number of illegal aliens in the country or in Texas, saying that the estimates range from four million to 20 million, but that the methods used to arrive at the figures are "suspect." Susan Cardwell of the Texas Attorney General's office then suggested that "it would be very difficult to plan an education for those people if you don't know how many they are."

Gilbert Cardenas agreed and said it would be "impossible to come up a national estimate."

Another witness Marion Houstoun, associate director at the Center of Labor and Migration in Washington, D.C., told the court the average age of the illegal alien is 28.5 years. She added that most of the illegal alliens are males and about 50 per cent of them are married.

She said that there are no data available on how many bring their families to the United States, but added. "Very few will bring their families with them. Visa abusers are more likely to bring their families than are undocumented work-

AUSTIN (AP) — Tyler engineer Homer Key told railroad commission examiners Monday that the water level beneath huge East Texas oil reservoir is rising

"If the water level continues to rise, wells are going to be watered out in the very near future," Key said.

Key, representing the "C.M. Beckett Group" of 33 independent operators, said the reason for the quickly rising underground water level is the "high rate of oil withdrawal from the north side of the

"I just don't see how we can afford lever-type machines," Commissioner Coy Biggs said after a bid opening revealed the purchase of such a system would run about $1 million — four to five times the cost of punch-card voting equipment.

Biggs and his colleagues delayed the final selection of a voting system until 9 a.m. Thursday, when they meet with the Lubbock County Election Board to analyze bids submitted by manufacturers of the different devices. the different devices.

Commissioners received bids on new, used and reconditioned machines, of varying capabilities, for both election systems. In addition, price quotations were taken on computers and other accessories necessary for the punch-card package.

As if that were not enough data for commissioners to digest, manufacturers disagree on how many machines would be required to adequately equip Labbock County's 50 polling precincts and 80,000 registered voters.

Punch-card salesmen say the county should buy one of their devices for every 125 voters — a total of about 650 punch-card machines.

Representatives of lever-operated equipment say their machines are faster to vote on and could accommodate 350 on punch-card machines as they can on lever-type machines."

Shaw said the claim that the county would need only one lever-operated machine for every three punch-card devices seems "out of proportion. The election board doesn't feel people vote three times as fast on lever machines."

Shaw recommended that in comparing prices of the two systems, the commissioners court and election board should be looking at buying 400 lever-operated machines, or 650 devices — plus accessories — of the punch-card variety.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 12 vears to a man who, from all outside appearances, is an ideal husband. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I'm 34 and he's 49. I don't drink or smoke, and I've never looked at another man. He thinks sex is for animals, but he does accommodate me on my birthday, anniversary and Christmas. Then he acts as though he's doing me a favor.

He is good-looking, meticulous in his dress, and has a very successful business. The only people we see socially are his relatives and a few business associates. I spoke to my rabbi about my loveless marriage, and he said as long as my husband doesn't mistreat me, I have nothing to complain about. If I weren't financially dependent on him I'd leave him. I'm aching for a pair of arms to hold me. I could even live without sex if he would only let me fall asleep on his chest. I am dying inside.

Where do I go from here? Craving Affection

Dear Craving: To your husband, with the announcement that if he doesn't see a counselor about improving the quality of your marriage, you are going to see a law-yer. There is more in life than three square meals a day. You may have to support yourself, but craving affection as you do, it could be preferable to being yoked to a cold fish for the rest of your

It was Oscar Wilde who wrote that "life imitates art." Only a short while ago we described how the defenders cooperated to surround dummy's honor card. A few days later we received this report from the 1977 World Team Championship in Manila.

The auction was simple enough. After North made a vulnerable overcall, South introduced his spade suit. The North hand now became extremely powerful, so a jump to game was fully warranted.

West led the king of diamonds. At those tables where the defenders continued passively, declarer was able to make his contract. He discarded a heart on the second high club and then continued with the jack of clubs. East ruffed, declarer overruffed and led the queen of diamonds. Whether or not West covered, declarer had no problem holding his losers to two hearts and one diamond.

The aggressive defenders were well rewarded for their enterprise. They could see that there was little hope of defeating the contract if declarer held the ace of hearts, so they assumed that partner held that card. A heart shift was imperative. Any heart would do if East held the ten of hearts as well as the ace. However, to allow for the possibility that declarer held the ten of hearts vital to shift to the jack of

Boston Officials Seek Support For City Plan

BOSTON (AP) - Boston officials are seeking White House support for a cityment scheme that depends on a level of bureaucratic coordination rarely seen among the many and varied federal

"There is a scarcity of federal money, and President Carter is inclined to help the cities that help themselves," says John Drew, Boston's chief Washington lobbyist. "Well we know this, so we dug in and came up with an approach toward solving our problems." Boston is the first city to tie its many federal aid requests into one bundle.

In drawing its plan, Boston is attempting to reverse four very distinct types of urban problems.

In targeting the Blue Hill Avenue area, the city will tackle head on one of its most dilapidated black communities.

The range of federal program needs are wide: Commerce Department money to prepare an industrial park site; Small Business Administration grants to aid "high-risk" business prospects; Labor Department money for youth employ-ment, and Housing and Urban Develop-ment funds for private home and public

In Hyde Park, a strong, still-beautiful, predominantly white neighborhood, the city hopes to head off decline with an urban conservation effort. Funds would be available for modernizing the shopping area at Cleary Square and for street re-

Out at Columbia Point, where the John F. Kennedy Library is being built, the city would tear down vacant and aban-doned units of a disastrous federal housing project, and build a new neighborhood, practically from scratch, using money from eour federal agencies including HUD's New Towns fund.

The Harbor area would get most of the Boston Plan funding to rebuild the abandoned South Boston and Charlestown Nay yards into a Marine Industrial Park. Almost 10,000 of the 14,000 Boston Plan jobs would be created in the park.

The federal money would be drawn from HUD's urban action grant program; Commerce's Economic Developmen Administration; Labor's youth and skilled training programs, and Transportation's Federal Highway Administra-

"The city is asking alot when we talk about all these agencies working on one project, but we can't do it without this Boston would use the federal money to 'leverage" $400 million from private business interests willing to invest in the ment, or creating public amenities — such as a park — that would attract retail

r residential developers. White House officials hope to make a decision on how to handle the Boston

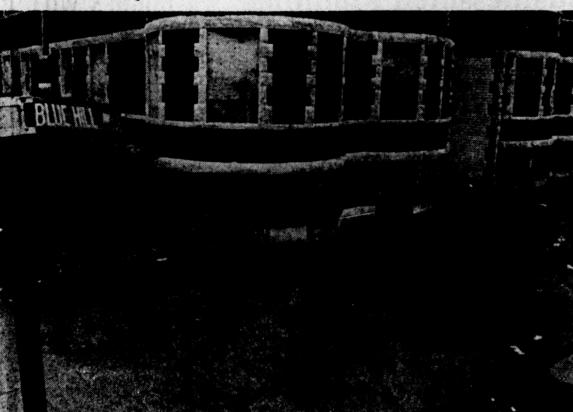

"At this point, we're still analyzing the proposal. Trying to figure out how much money is being spent now. How much they'll really need. And whether their ideas can work," an aide says.

The presentation of the Boston Plan involved a star-studded cast of federal officials, including a few Cabinet officers, and a Massachusetts contingent including Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Edward W. Brooke and House Speaker Thomas

There are political reasons for the White House to attempt the interagency acrobatics necessary to implement the Boston plan.

Most important is Speaker O'Neill's support. Also, it could be a showcase for the Carter urban plan to be unveiled next "Detroit has a nice plan, but its problems are immense," says Kevin White. "Carter will be out of office by the time Detroit is turned around. We can do it now. If Washington helps."

EPA Fears Letup On Steel Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The steel industry's current sales problems should not be used as an excuse to ease up on enental standards, says Environmental Protection Administrator Douglas Costle.

"Steel would certainly have to be at or near the top of the list" of 300 "recalci-trant industries" that are not doing enough to clean up the emissions they put into the nation's air and water, Costle said in an interview with U.S. News and World Report released Sunday.

Even with the laggards, however, America's air is getting cleaner, Costle said, but he added that there is no U.S. city where he would feel 100 percent confident about its drinking water.

The steel industry is experiencing economic problems and is laying off large numbers of workers. The industry contends much of its problems are the result of government-subsidized foreign steel undercutting prices on the U.S. market.

Those problems, however, should not excuse the industry from cleaning up, Costle said. "It has been among the industries most reluctant to deal with its pollution problems, and we intend to be as tough with it as is necessary to make its plants comply with the law." its comply with the law.

its plants comply with the law."

The industry says EPA regulations already are keeping it from being competitive. Costle responded that the industry "does have some economic problems right now, but pollution control costs are not at the heart of their problems...

"No American should be required to choose between his job and a healthy place to work and live. The steel industry todis"—uncontrolled—is not only an unhealthy place to work, it's a hazard to unitieshify place to work, it's a hazard to those who must live near its plants."

Actor Stevenson Fears Succeeding Too Quickly

NEW YORK (AP) - In the decade after he turned 14, Parker Stevenson appeared in more than 100 TV commercials, three motion pictures and episodes of "Gunsmoke" and "Streets of San Francisco.

A year ago, at 24, Stevenson began work with Shaun Cassidy on a television series of their own, "The Hardy Boys." now in its second season on ABC. And yes, the rather sudden rise to stardom has Stevenson a bit bothered.

"It's a question that's foremost in my mind, now that the show's successful, almost in a cult way," the young man from Philadelphia said in an interview. "I'm worried about burning myself out.

"It worries me because I'm more concerned now with where I'll be 10 years from now.

It's not so much that Stevenson, who mixed studies in architecture at Princeton with screen tests and acting jobs, has planned his immediate future beyond a

"I think I'm most concerned now with pacing myself, because doing too much too quickly can be commercially dangerous. An actor can get overexposed, and I want to avoid that.

The whole thing began when Stevenson, then 14, failed to land a camp counselor's job he was after. He took a shot at TV commercials, and filmed his first one at 15 - for a facial cosmetic for teenagers.

His first starring role in a motion picture was in 1971, when he played a 17year-old responsible for maiming his best friend in "A Separate Peace." He entered Princeton, and before graduating starred in two more movies, "Our Time" and "Lifeguard." His performance in "Lifeguard" led to the TV work.

"I don't like getting the script the day to go in and just do it. I'd rather have a little input into what I'm doing.

"When we first started working with the pilot for 'The Hardy Boys'," he said, 'I repeatedly asked the producer, 'How do you see the characters?' I never did get an answer. I think they were waiting to see how things went.

"So I looked at some of the (Hardy Boys) books, tried to get some ideas from them," Stevenson said. "I found I had to go more and more to myself for feeling for the part."

The approach apparently was successful, and the show became a hit despite Sunday evening competition from CBS' popular "60 Minutes."

The shows that go on and on," the actor said, "seem to work because the characters work. In our case, the story line is important, but we're also trying to work into the show this relationship between two brothers, two different people.

'We've been working on that for over a year," he said.

Businessmen Planning 'Black Pages' Listing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Some businessmen are planning to publish a government-financed directory of blackowned establishments and black businessmen designed to "encourage blacks to direct a greater percentage of their income to minority business enterprise." Dr. C. Milton Young III, chairman of Black Pages Inc., a non-profit organization, said in an interview this week that he developed the idea for the directory because blacks should utilize the same 'concept of economic togetherness which has eased the path of Jews, Italians and others of similar background.

"The majority of black businesses are undercapitalized and don't have any other exposure to the general public other than through word of mouth," said Young, 46, an internist.

In addition to listing black-owned businesses, the Black Pages will include black professionals, salesmen and trades-

Raymond Burr Ponders New Television Series NEW YORK (AP) - It's been 20 years legal profession," he said, "and I could since Raymond Burr began a long run as television's most famous barrister, and the burly Canadian actor is as busy as ev-

"I did a cameo thing in '79 Park Avenue,' the television special, I had a part in a movie we just finished in Canada and I'm talking about two other movies now," said Burr, known round the world for his portrayal of "Perry Mason" in the courtroom series that ran nine seasons. "I'm considering a two-hour special for television," the actor continued, "and I'm thinking about a television series, though there would have to be limitations written into it, like six months a year away from work

"If I don't go back to television next year with another series, I won't go back for a series at all," Burr said.

Burr's next scheduled appearance on TV is as narrator of a public television special Christmas Eve, "Christmas Around the World." It's an hour-long program of live reports on Christmas celebrations in eight countries.

Burr, at 60, maintains the commanding presence that made him a symbol of justice both as Mason and as the wheelchairbound Chief Robert Ironside in the crime series, "Ironside." It's difficult to sit across from Burr and not think of Mason and Ironside.

"People really identified me with law and justice when I got into the 'Perry Mason' show," Burr said. "In fact, I stopped driving my car whenever I'd had a drink. How would it look for Mason to be arrested for drunken driving?

"I didn't live 24 hours a day as Perry Mason or Robert Ironside," Burr said, "but I always thought it was important to become vitally interested in the charac-

In fact, in the nine years he was Mason, Burr spoke several times to legal groups. "I've always had a great repsect for the say things for lawyers that they couldn't say for themselves.' "Perry Mason" was as popular as it was - episodes still are being rerun in this country and abroad - for several reasons, Burr said. The cast was a good one, the writing and direction were superior, and, said Burr, "I don't think there is anything like nine years on television for developing a character.

"And then we were dealing with certain fundamental truths," he said, "that most people could identify with."

Burr acted on the stage and in scores of movies before "Perry Mason." Until then, he was best known as the prosecuting attorney in "A Place in the Sun" and as the killer in "Rear Window.

After "Ironside," Burr played an investigative reporter in "Kingston: Confidential." The series, which was Burr's idea, ran just 13 episodes. "We never got the right kind of scripts," the actor said, "and never came close to the concept I had in mind when we started."

Though crime was at the core of both "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," violence was downplayed in favor of reasoning as a solution to problems.

The kinds of things on today are more of a reflection of the times we're in," Burr said. "I think there is more violence than necessary in some shows, but I don't think all violence on television is wrong. It wouldn't honestly reflect what is going on in the world."

NEW YORK (AP) - Television's news and public affairs commentators might consider a little silence now and then, just to give the viewer time to think, says NBC's Edwin Newman.

"I believe some silence is helpful to thought," says Newman, himself a thoughtful man, "and I believe to some extent radio and television discourage thought and reflection.

"I'm talking about something everybody in this business comes to at one time or another. You're on the air and you want to show you're more amusing and more trenchant than the people you're working with, or against.

'As I was talking, I heard someone in the control room say, 'Tell him to shut up.' It was very good advice."

Newman joined NBC News in London in 1952, after beginning his career in journalism in 1941 with Internatonal News Service and United Press. He later ran NBC's news bureaus in London, Rome and Paris, and has been based in New York since 1961.

"So far, for my first 75 years, I've been having a wonderful time," she said. "I'm optimistic if we pull ourselves together we are going to make it. There is, at least, hope. And this project is an oasis of hope for the children."

Dr. Mead, the author of some 50 books, stopped to sip a glass of red wine. In a few minutes the apartment overlooking Lincoln Center was filled with poets and writers and she would greet them all.

The artists gathered Sunday night at the home of poet Ned O'Gorman, director of the Children's Storefront Nursery School, a project in Harlem for underprivileged children. Before the evening was out, they would march over to Lincoln Center to read poetry and prose, listen to music and raise money for the children.

O'Gorman, who founded the school 11

"The reason I've run for president," quipped McCarthy, "was to get my poems published. Of course, I wanted to open up the political process.

McCarthy has published several works of poetry and prose, including "Other Things and the Aardvark" and "The Year of the People.' Presently it was time to walk over to Lincoln Center.

"Yes, I'm optimistic," Dr. Mead said as she walked through in the crisp, cold New York air. "There is hope. Hope for the children. If only we adulearn not to destroy ourselves."

LoVaca Ruling May Affect Crystal City

this South Texas town hope Monday's Texas Railroad Commission decision against LoVaca Gathering Co., means their gas will be turned on again.

In September, LoVaca ended natural gas to the predominantly Mexican-American city of 8,000 persons because the city council refused for three years to pay 'pass-through charges" under an interim rate structure approved by the Railroad

The city opted to pay only its 36 cents a thousand cubic feet contract price and owed more than $600,000 in back payments when the gas was cut off.

Paul Rich and Pedro Nieto, attorneys for Texas Rural Legal Aid, said they immediately would search the decision for possibilities of getting the city's natural gas supply reconnected.

'Clearly we're going to have to take a look at the Railroad Commission action,' Rich said. "If they are going back to the old contract, the citizens may have a basis to look to reconnection."

For the past two months poorer residents of the city, many of them migrant farmworkers, have cooked outdoors and bathed in cold water.

As written, the proposed ordinance requires that insulation meet the minimum standards set by the Underwriters Laboratory (UL) or International Conference of Building Officials (ICBO). But beard members indicated they are open to inclusion of other acceptable testing labo-

The clincher, however, is that the other laboratories have adequate follow-up inspections, the board indicated.

Turquette has based his push for a stricter ordinance on the grounds that without constant third-party inspection and bag labeling, the consumer is not ensured a quality product.

An insulation manufacturer and applicator, Randy Rue, spoke out strongly in favor of Turquette's proposal Monday. Labeling by a third-party testing laboratory that conducts regular factory inspections is the only assurance of a quality product, Rue told the board.

And improperly treated cellulose insulation is "pure kindling" that could be set off by a spark, he said.

The insulation controversy is more than a safety issue, he said, explaining that economics also are involved.

His company has UL approval and follow-up service, he said. But "price-wise, I can't compete with poorer quality" insulation companies that install material cheaper, Rue said.

He explained that because of fewer costs, some insulators can sell an inferior product more cheaply than his company, which must pay more for UL testing.

The board's and council's decision on whether to require specific labeling and follow-up inspections "will put one or the other" type of insulators out of business,

At least one local insulation manufacturer will ask the board to consider interim requirements until UL or ICBO approval can be secured.

Bill Moss, an attorney representing A-1 Insulation Manufacturing Company, indicated he will propose an ordinance amendment allowing manufacturers to use other testing laboratory approval until UL or ICBO okay is granted.

He told the board that his client's product has been approved by one testing lab-oratory but that UL or ICBO approval is several months away. In the meantime, the company does not want to lose busi-ness, he indicated.

self in the position of rewarding a public utility which pursues profits at any cost in deliberate disregard of its contractual and public utility obligations," Newton

President William Greehey of LoVaca said the company did not have the money to make such a huge refund.

The commission's order said the interim order will remain in effect pending litigation on the action. Newton, who proposed the commission order, said the Coastal-LoVaca problem arose because LoVaca had sought shortterm profits by using up low-cost gas on 'whenever and whereever possi-

The order carried 2-1, with chairman Mack Wallace joining Newton, and Jim Langdon dissenting

Langdon sought to delay the vote. He and Greehey predicted the order would bankrupt Lo-Vaca, and Greehey questioned what the order might do to Lo-Vaca's gas supplies with the "dead of winter" approaching.

Langdon said the order might produce an "almost horror story" in the social and ecomomic life of South Texas.

Newton countered by saying Lo-Vaca has an excess of gas and added, "No lights are going out" as a result of the or-

"It would be preposterous for the commission to relieve Coastal-Lo-Vaca from its contractual obligations, to give them complete absolution for their sins of utility mismanagement," Newton said. Lo-Vaca has some 400 customers, including Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and the Lower Colorado River Authority. Newton said those cities, as well as Dallas and Fort Worth, supported his proposal.

In adopting the order the commission wiped out an 1973 interim order that had allowed Lo-Vaca to charge for gas whatever it had to pay producers, plus an extra five cents per thousand cubic feet

The 1973 order was adopted after LoVaca curtailed gas deliveries by up to 50 percent in 1972-73, claiming it could no longer operate under its decade-old longterm contracts, which charged approximately 20 cents per mcf. Under the interim order, prices to customers went up to around $2 per mcf, resulting in skyrocketing home utility bills. The refund would be the difference in original gas prices and what LoVaca charged customers above those prices. Greehey estimated the difference is $1

Witnesses Claim Notes Co-Signed By Brothers

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - Henry C. Johnson and Robert Johnson, his brother who has been missing for almost a year since he reportedly fell overboard from a boat in the Gulf of Mexico, co-signed several promissory notes, according to testimony in federal court here Monday.

Henry C. Johnson is being tried on charges of interstate transportation of stolen wheat and with aiding and abetting his missing brother in another alleged illegal wheat scheme.

Testimony in the trial began Monday before five-woman, seven-man jury in federal court here.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Ron Eddins told the jury he would show how farmers were cheated out of their grain by the Geronimo Elevator Co., owned by Henry Johnson,, and the Robert Johnson Grain Molasses Co., owned by Robert Johnson, who has been missing since Jan. 3, when he went on a fishing trip in the Gulf of Burns Flat Policeman Tony Willis, who was manning the roadblock, fired two shotgun blasts at the pickup, hitting the radiator and the left rear tire and causing the truck to go out of control, authorities said. Smith was arrested without resistance, the patrol reported.

Many law enforcement officials do not believe Johnson drowned, but claim he is hiding. Following his disappearance, officials said they were unable to find about 400,000 bushels of grain that were supposed to be stored in his elevators.

William Long of a fertilizer firm and T.I. Sutton of a finance company testified Monday that the Johnson brothers in the past co-signed several promissory notes.

The Johnson brothers in June and July of 1976 transported the grain from Colorado and Oklahoma to Houston for sale, prosecutors claim.

Howard Martin, Henry Johnson's lawyer, told the jury that Robert, not Henry, was the "wheeler-dealer, promoter and the go-getter" in the families' wheat business and that Robert's misdeeds should not be laid at his brother's door-

Martin said the two firms - Geronimo Elevator Co. and Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. — are separate entities which should not be considered together. A Wichita Falls bank official, Eddie Thacker, testified the Geronimo Elevator Co. bank account was overdrawn $3.55 on June 1.

Larry Robb, a stockbroker, said the Geronimo Elevator Co. account with his firm once owed $458,443, while the Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses account had owed $254,949.50. Robb testified that both debts eventually were paid.

The FBI said earlier that it was investigating the local union after a disgruntled employee had claimed union funds were being misused.

Hester asked Curry why he had not noticed that considerable sums in leasing funds went into the personal checking accounts of Don and Clarence Gray. Curry told the judge that a younger member of his firm, Mike McClennan, did the actual work on the audit. Hester then directed that McClellan appear today at the Court of Inquiry.

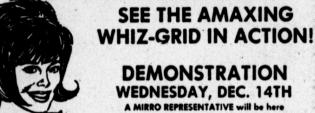

Hester called the seldom-used Court of Inquiry on the request of Andy Muniz, then acting director of the local Manpower program. Muniz was fired last week as acting director by the Cameron County Commissioners court on the recommendation of Hester.

The commissioners also canceled all contracts with the Plumbers and Pipefitters Union Local 823 and the Texas Language Academy in Brownsville, which had a federal grant to train cashiers and checkers.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 10 for Gulf Oil Corp. Vice President Fred W. Standefer on his conviction in federal court for approving use of corporate funds for free vacations for an Internal Revenue Service supervisor. Standefer, 53, was convicted Friday of approving more than $3,000 in corporate funds to pay for five golfing vacations taken by Cyril J. Niederberger while he supervised Gulf's tax audits.

"A CAR FOR CHRISTMAS"

One that looks classy (And so many don't) That gets good gas mile With features we want

Confused, but dete I covered the town

After test driving all of them Here's what I found

A great little car With a great price to beet And so many options Besides that, its cute

GLC's comfort will surprise her I bet More head room and leg room Than Chevy's Chevette Reclining front seats For a nice long Siesta

Each time I drive it The better I feel I'm falling in leve With an automobile

I found it, I bought it I've gift wrapped the key To my wife's Christmas present MG Our New GLC

Cancer, Defects Linked To Drug

WASHINGTON (AP) - DES, a drug taken by about two million expectant mothers to avoid miscarriages, may increase the risk of fatal cancers, especially of the breast, new evidence indicates.

That suggestion comes 61/2 years after findings that about 200 daughters of women who took the drug in the early 1950s developed vaginal and cervical can-

Two years ago, researchers also found that thousands of sons of DES mothers suffered lowered sperm counts and other birth defects of the reproductive tract. The latest evidence was revealed Monday when Dr. Sydney M. Wolfe, director of the Ralph Nader-financed Health Research Group, wrote a letter to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano asking that doctors alert their DES patients of the possible cancer haz-

DES is a hormone that was widely prescribed until the early 1970s for its presumed anti-miscarriage benefits.

But Wolfe says research done by the University of Chicago over a 20-month period ending in November 1952, showed the drug didn't significantly lower the incidence of miscarriages. That research did not stop almost automatic prescription of DES by some doctors for their pregnant patients, he said. Follow-up checks on the women involved in the Chicago research also showed that 31 of 693 DES patients developed breast cancer compared to only 17 of 668 in non-DES women. Among those patients, 12 DES users died. Only four of the control-group cancers were fatal.

"These preliminary findings strongly suggest that there is an increased amount of endocrin-related cancer, especially breast cancer, in DES mothers," Wolfe wrote in his letter to Califano

Wolfe suggested more study of the drug, with financing coming from the profits of the drug's makers.

The drug also is used as an morning-after birth control pill, a practice Wolfe said should be abandoned except in cases of rape and incest.

Dr. John C. Bailer, editor of the Jour-nal of the National Cancer Institute, called the cancers in DES mothers "killers." He said the frequency of death indicated the the drug might trigger cancers that are less treatable. In addition to use as an anti-miscarriage drug and for morning-after birth control, similar synthetic estrogen products are used for treatment of post-menopausal women and as a food additive for cattle. In other action relating to substances suspected of causing cancers, the Food and Drug Administration has announced a ban on five dyes used in soaps, lipsticks and other cosmetics.

None of the five had been approved for use in food. The ban takes effect Tuesday.

A sixth dye, Blue No. 6, which also had been used in the same cosmetics as the others, was ordered banned for all uses except as a color identifying surgical sutures. The FDA said manufacturers of the product had failed to submit required data proving the blue dye safe for nonsurgical purposes.

Wayne Pines, a spokesman for the FDA, said the agency does not consider the color additives a serious health hazard and does not believe a recall of drugs and cosmetics containing the colors is Davis, Klein Feuding?

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I saw a note in one of the sports pages out here that you don't invite Al Davis of Oakland and San Diego owner Gene Klein to the same party, because of the way Klein crowed over the Chargers upsetting the Raiders. Hasn't Davis been on losing sides before without this?

-Craig Floyd Sacramento, Calif.

A. Well, there's more to it. Davis is angry because Klein showed him up with an inside story about the exhibition game between the two teams last summer in Oakland. The Chargers kept quarterback James Harris out of the game, instead using a rookie. Klein recalled that Davis was so angry, "he held up our check for the game."

That rookie was Cliff Olander, architect of the November defeat of the Raid-

Q. The publicity about next year's Grand Prix tennis circuit indicates that it has absorbed Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis tour. This doesn't sound like Lamar Hunt to me, or has he pulled back from pro tennis? -Hedley Warren, Charleston, S.C.

A. What we have here is a problem in semantics. The Grand Prix people would like to prevail with the impression that they have "absorbed" WCT. Actually, of the 32 major Grand Prix tournaments, meaning the ones with $175,000 or more in prize money, the WCT has eight, leading to the WCT Chanpionship

The only change from before is that WCT tournaments now count in the Grand Prix money-winnings table.

Q. A friend of mine said he read in the New York Times that the NFL was studying a plan to sell ads on the football field. He said the article suggested maybe Pepis-Cola between the 10 and 20, Ford between the 20 and 30, and so on. I have to believe this is a joke, but then that's the way I've felt about a lot of things that have come to pass lately.

-Reed Schesinger, Memphis, Tenn.

A. Satire in unskilled hands is a weapon that regularly backfires. The Times sports section has a page for contributors to write articles, and this fellow tried a satire on the commercialization of pro football. Cried NFL writer Bill Wallace, "What we have here is another Orson Welles invasion of the Martians!"

The topper came when Larry Gruenstein of Ralph Nader's "FANS" organization called Pete Rozell's office for further details.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK - From Frank Thomason, Knoxville, Tennessee: You fellas really goofed when you told somebody that Alabama and Notre Dame are the only college teams that have ever played in all five of the major bowls (Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange and Gator). I knew right off that Tennessee had done so, so I started checking and so has Penn State and Georgia."

In reply: Ouch! That particular reliable source of ours is now regarded as liable. Thanks for the correction.

Dockery Keeps Trio Of Tech Assistants

By CARTER CROMWELL Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

One of Rex Dockery's top priorities now, following his recent appointment as Texas Tech head football coach, is to assemble his staff, and he has taken steps toward that end by hiring Bud Casey from Georgia Tech and Sam Robertson from the University of Southwestern

Casey is already on the recruiting trail for Tech, and Robertson, who arrived in Lubbock Monday, is expected to go on

Al Tanara, Jess Stiles and Taylor McNeel will be held over from the previous staff that operated under Steve Sloan, leaving three spots open, Dockery announced Monday. Bill Parcells is expected to remain as defensive coordinator if he does not get the head coaching post at Air Force.

"It will be a while before the staff is completed," Dockery said. "We have enough people here now to handle recruiting, at least through the Christmas holidays. It's important that I be sure before hiring someone. I hope to have the staff assembled by Jan. 1."

Casey, a 1966 graduate of Northeastern (Okla.) State after spending 21/2 years at Alabama, has coached at Georgia Tech since 1972. Last season, he coached the runningbacks, but he coached defense

Dockery said he will coach either the unningbacks or the receivers for Tech. Casey, 38, coached in the high school ranks from 1966 to 1968, spent the next three years at Northeastern Oklahoma, and then a year at the University of Tampa before moving to Georgia Tech. Robertson, 34, is a native of Chattanoosee, where he was an offensive guard and later a linebacker. His most recent coaching experience has been as defensive coordinator at USL.

Prior to coming to USL in 1974, he was defensive coordinator at Oregon in 1972 and 1973, linebacker coach at Kansas State from 1967 through 1971 and a graduate assistant at Tennessee in 1966.

Robertson replaces Gary Wyant of Sloan's staff, Dockery said. Wyant went to Mississippi with Sloan. Dockery said Robertson will coach the secondary "for now," but indicated that definite coaching assignments have not been finalized. Last season, under Sloan, McNeel coached the runningbacks, Stiles the defensive ends and Tanara the offensive

Adolph Rupp Demanded, Gave Loyalty

By CRAIG AMMERMAN Associated Press Writer

The old man, his fading life flashing before him, leaned forward and looked away, trying to mask his emotions.

Adolph Rupp, college basketball's winningest coach, was being destroyed by opponents with no respect for his cunning - cancer and diabetes. He only had a few months left, and he knew it. Now, his concern was his legacy.

'Son, more than anything, I want that trophy to be what I'm remembered for. Every year, I want them to know that the award for the best player in the country is named after me.

Rupp was talking about the trophy named for him, which each year is awarded to The Associated Press college basketball player of the year. He permitted his name to be connected with the award only after an expensive, bronze trophy had been purchased and after he was assured every effort would be made to create basketball's equivalent to football's Heisman Trophy.

Two years ago, Rupp went to a banquet at Indiana University, a hated rival during his 42 years as coach at the University of Kentucky, to present his trophy to Scott May. The audience was not interested in being reminded of the times Rupp teams had defeated the Hoosiers, but Rupp reminded them any-

Then, he added: "A few years ago, a group of people decided they wanted college basketball to have its own Heisman Trophy. Of course, they named it for me." He meant it.

Rupp was a man who demanded, and gave, loyalty. He was, without question, a revolutionary force in basketball; no coach may ever top the 879 games his Kentucky teams won. Included were 27 Southeastern Conference titles and four national championships.

He was respected and feared by his opponents, his players, officials, nearly anyone who came in touch with him. He was a man who loved to swill bourbon, and oversee the prize Hereford cattle he raised, and tell stories, so long as he was the central figure.

And he was uncompromising. He never forgave those who forced him to retire from coaching at the mandatory retirement age of 70.

"I'll tell you something you can count on, son," he said a few months ago. "When I go, some of these people who

Fans Give Coach

Private Sendoff LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - It wasn't, as some had feared, a circus. It was, simply, a private sendoff for Adolph Rupp from the people who loved him—the Rupp, the craggy, domineering showman wto directed Kentucky basketball through 42 years of unparalleled success, died Saturday night after a lengthy bout with cancer of the spine. He was 76.

The old coach's death immediately cast a new light on Monday night's Kentucky basketball game against South Carolina. Obviously, a memorial was in or-

Just as he had solved Kentucky's basketball problems for four decades. Rupp took care of his own memorial. After the 23,000 or so fans and both teams rose for a moment of silence, Rupp's taped voice recited a poem by Rudyard Kipl-

The crowd did a visible double-take when Rupp's nasal Kansas twang began to echo through the arena and surrounding concourses of the basketball palace built and named for him. Yes, it was Rupp speaking, but he wasn't chewing out a player or a referee and he wasn't passing along one of the million or so anecdotes that illustrated the Rupp legend.

It was not a classic rendition of poetry, but no one in the crowd seemed to care. After 42 years and 874 victories, fans had gotten used to having Adolph Rupp around. His death, while expected, still shook those who followed his success through the years.

It was a memorial for Rupp, but it was also a chance for the fans to visualize the man in the familiar setting of a basketball arena. At the end of the reading, Rupp added a simple, "thank you" and his voice faded away But that didn't end the memorial. It continued as Kentucky's top-ranked Wildcats defeated South Carolina 84-65 before a crowd of 23,741 in the largest basketball arena in the country. The team, the fans, the building-those constituted the real memorial to Rupp. The old coach who built the program from the ground up doubtless would have agreed.

Reminded of the incident a few months ago, Rupp said, "That's right, son, and I've still got that damn bill. Before I die, I'm going to make Gerry Calvert pay for it.'

Calvert, a standout guard on the Kentucky teams in the mid 50s, later grew very close to his former coach, serving as family attorney. But after Rupp's death, Calvert asked that this story remain untold, believing the coach never knew who signed that restaurant bill.

There are countless stories of how Rupp, in times of distress, could find words to describe his plight.

Once during a visit to New York, his team trailed at halftime and one of his All-Americans had been held scoreless. He paced around the dressing room, glared at his star and advised him to avail himself of the bathroom facilities "so you can tell the folks back home that you did something in Madison Square Garden."

Any attempt to remove Rupp from center stage was treated roughly.

Once, an official was delighting the Kentucky crowd with acrobatics every time he called a foul. Rupp called timeout, motioned the official to meet him in front of the press table and announced loudly, "I'm the show in this place and don't you ever forget it.'

Another time, he ordered a practicing pianist removed from the team's coliseum so the Wildcats could hold a scrimmage. "She could miss 15,000 notes and nobody would know it, but if we blow one layup the whole world wants to know what happened," he said.

One night after his team had lost an important game in Alabama, Rupp hopped into a cab and ordered the driver to "step on it" even though the way was blocked by a truck. So, the driver rammed the truck. "Now that you got his attention, we can move," Rupp said.

He was a man who had no time for anybody who suggested there was anything to be gained from losing. "If winning isn't so important, why do you keep

In one of his last public appearances, long after cancer had begun to cripple him, Rupp went to a banquet to present the trophy which bears his name. Helped into the auditorium by friends, he told one, "Now, son, I'm not in good shape so I want you to keep all these autograph seekers away from me.

When his subject did as told, Rupp turned and bellowed, "What the hell are you doing, boy. These people want to see me. Now get out of the way and let them come in here.

On his final trip to New York, Rupp brought along a portrait of himself. It was autographed and measured 2 feet by

"There's only four of these in the world, and I could sell it back in Kentucky for thousands of dollars, but I want ing room," he told this reporter. There were several telephone conversations in the few months that preceded Rupp's death last Saturday. Each time, the writer assured Rupp the portrait was hanging in his living room, afraid to mention that his wife had made him hang it in O'Brien's Actions Unfair'?

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "I've only been in three fights in five years and I didn't start any of them," Kermit Washington of the Los Angeles Lakers said Monday, after learning he is suspended for at least 60 days and fined $10,000 for injuring another player in a fight during a National Basketball Association game.

Rudy Tomianovich of the Houston Rockets remains hospitalized at Centinela Valley Hospital in Los Angeles, where he was taken out of the intensive care unit Monday. The NBA announcement of Washington's suspension and fine said Tomjanovich suffered "injuries reported to be a fractured cheek bone, a broken nose, a fractured skull and a concussion' when he was punched by Washington during a Friday night game, won by Houston 116-105. 'I knew they would go by the severity of Rudy's injuries, but this is ridiculous, the Los Angeles Times quoted Washington as saying.

"There must be some way I can take this to court," Washington said as he packed and left the Lakers in New Orleans, where his teammates play the Jazz

"That's the only thing I can do, otherwise, it's the end of the season for me," the 6-foot-8 fifth year pro added. The suspension carries through the 57th game of the 80-game regular season, but the league announcement indicated it might be extended

The Laker rebounding specialist estimated it was costing him at least $50,000 including lost salary.

Laker officials and coach Jerry West kept repeating "no comment" when asked about the fine and suspension. The Times said West was overheard telling Washington he thinks the league ruling was "unfair."

Washington said he sees himself as "a sacrificial lamb," in NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien's crackdown on pro basketball violence. Earlier this season O'Brien fined Laker star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar $5,000 for hitting Milwaukee's Kent Benson, after Abdul-Jabbar was elbowed in the stomach.

games with a broken bone in his hand, suffered when he hit Benson, and was "After the way he (O'Brien) dealt with Kareem, I saw myself as a guy he was quoted Washington as saying. Recalling the Tomjanovich injury, Washington said he had been fighting with another Houston player, Kevin Kunnert, when he saw someone else running at him.

"Why did Rudy have to run at me? It was so silly and unfortunate. Everyone knows if you want to break up a fight you run at your own guy. You can get killed the other way.

Washington said he might understand the heavy fine and long suspension "if I had hit Rudy from behind, or if I had started the fight in the first place.' Washington had recently been moved into the starting lineup and was having his best season with the Lakers, averaging 11.5 points and two rebounds per game, after injury problems each of the past two years. He helped Los Angeles to the NBA's best regular season record in 1976-77 before he was sidelined with a knee injury for the final month of the season and the playoffs. The team missed his rebounding in four straight playoff losses to Portland, which later won the league title. Losing Abdul-Jabbar for 20 games and

Washington for at least 26 games have been crippling blows for the Lakers, who also have forward Jamaal Wilkes out with a viral infection and low blood count. With a 10-15 record so far, the Lakers may be hard-pressed to make the playoffs again.

pro touchdown late in the second period when he returned a kickoff 64 yards to the 49ers' 20-yard line. The return set up Dorsett's first touchdown catch in the NFL, on a 20-yard pass to the right sideline, and Dallas was ahead to stay 21-14. After the smoke cleared from the halftime fireworks, Dorsett got his 12th touchdown rushing, a team record, on a 21-yard sprint. He finished the game with 92 yards and needs 43 more to reach 1,-

"Our offense was excellent. The runners ran and the blockers blocked," said Landry.

Plunkett, who had thrown only four touchdown passes over the first 12 games of the season, hit Gene Washington five times for 130 yards. The nine-year veteran receiver pulled in a 27-yard scoring pass in the second half.

"It was sort of a revival," said Washington, speaking for himself as well as the passing attack which was by far the 49ers' most impressive of the season.

Ken Harrison, Delvin Williams and Paul Seal also caught touchdown passes for the 49ers, now 5-8 in the NFC West. There are only some 1,600 students in the Port Neches-Groves High School.

Plano made $45,000 as its share for just one playoff game against Dallas Highland Park.

When Plano played Odessa Permian in Lubbock some 300 miles to the west last Saturday, the high school flew its team to the city. There are still a lot of college teams using a bus. Port Neches-Groves will bring its 200-member band and 80-member spirit group to Texas Stadium at a cost of $10,000

Crowds are on the increase at most SWC schools but Southern Methodist, for example, played before only 6,000 persons in the Cotton Bowl when it met Rice in November. "I'd guess we'll be over a $100,000 again this year," says Gilbert Massey, the Port Neches-Groves athletic director "There's something special about our football team to our community," says Massey. which has outsold us or outdrawn us." There are some SWC athletic directors most envious of Gilbert Massey.

Hogs Nab Fourth, Fifth Poll Spots

William & Mary didn't gain a spot in the national college basketball rankings but the Indians certainly made their presence felt in the latest balloting by upset-ting North Carolina and enabling Notre Dame to move into second spot behind Kentucky in both the United Press International and Associated Press polls.

North Carolina (5-1) fell from second to fourth (UPI) and fifth (AP) after losing 78-75 to the William & Mary.

Notre Dame (6-0), taking advantage of the upset and helping itself with three victories last week that included a 69-66 triumph at UCLA, received nine AP firstplace votes and 872 points in nationwide balloting by sports writers and sportscasters and three firsts and 373 points from UPI's board of coaches.

But the Fighting Irish were easily outdistanced by Kentucky (3-0) which beat Indiana 87-64 and Kansas 73-66 and remained No. 1 with 42 first-place votes and 1.014 points from AP and 34 firsts and 406 points from UPI.

The other AP first-place vote went to Marquette which moved from fourth to State and Kansas.

City Police Investigate Burglaries

Assorted burglaries, involving the usual easily carried items, again were occupy-ing much of police investigative time to-

According to Mickel J. Goins of 4602 50th St., No. 309, a $500 shotgun and a $600 rifle were stolen from his pickup parked in front of his apartment sometime during the past two days. Reports indicated entry into the vehicle was gained by breaking a window.

An $800 stereo reportedly was stolen from the 1925 22nd St. residence of Cee Cee Trumble Monday night, reports showed. Police said entry was made by breaking through a back door.

Arturo Gonzales told officers he returned home Friday night to find his front door open. After he got inside his 1514 46th St. residence, he found a window had been broken and his television and rifle taken. According to Bruce Wayne Briles, whoever broke through a sliding-glass door at his 1220 48th St. house Monday made off with more than $300 worth of After dating a man since March, a Lubbock woman told police Monday she discovered his promises had turned into a scheme to cheat her out of $500. The 31st Street resident told officers she agreed, at the man's request, to de-posit checks totaling $1,585 in her local checking account earlier this year. The man, she said, told her he was arranging a purchase for a large company, and that if other companies found out, they would underbid his own firm. For that reason, he needed the checks in another account than his own She reportedly told officers she deposited the checks and then gave the man $500 cash from her account when he asked for it.

The only problem, she found out, was when the previously deposited checks were returned by the bank after she already had given the man the cash.

Lubbock police Monday were seeking the man for questioning in connection with the forgery.

Identity Sought In Apparent Murder Case

PADUCAH (Special) - The anonymity of an apparent murder victim found at the bottom of a cistern near here Saturday has put investigation of the case at a standstill.

"We're up against a rock wall until we get him (the victim) identified," Cottle County Sheriff Frank Taylor said this morning. Taylor is being assisted in the investigation by Texas Ranger Leo Hickman of Childress.

The body was found Saturday afternoon by a rancher in a cistern near an abandoned house 20 miles north of here and west of U.S. 83.

The victim, thought to be a white man about 30 years old, appeared to have been slain by a gunshot wound behind the ear, Dist. Atty. W.H. Heatly said. The weapon apparently was a large caliber revolver fired at close range The body is undergoing an autopsy at the Medical Center in Dallas. Taylor said he hopes fingerprint comparison tests being conducted by the FBI in Washington, D.C., will help reveal the man's However, Taylor said the victim's body, which apparently had been in the cistern from three days to two weeks, was badly decomposed, making thorough fingerprint tests more difficult.

Authorities mentioned a suspicious set of car tracks had been found near the death site. Taylor explained that, while there were many tracks found due to the heavy traffic of hunters, there was one set that appeared to go directly to the nearby farmhouse and then turn around. That particular set of tracks could be linked to the mysterious killing, the sheriff said, "but it's just a shot in the dark." Taylor said he did not know when final reports would be received from Washington and Dallas.

The dead man was described as about 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighing 135 pounds. When found, he was dressed in small, zippered boots, light blue dress pants, a short-sleeved sports shirt and a tan vinyl

He had dark brown hair and a moustache. He was wearing a watch and a Masonic Lodge ring.

Panthers Drop Westerners In Overtime 66-60

Avalanche-JournalSports Staff

For a man who has every reason in the world to be happy, Joe McWilliams doesn't seem to be.

After all, his Dunbar Panthers have won eight of ten games with their latest victim being the scrappy Lubbock High Westerners.

"We just haven't been making the progress that we need to be making," McWilliams pointed out following the Panthers 66-60 overtime win over the Westerners' Monday night in the DHS

CHS grabbed the lead at the beginning and never trailed. Its guards set the pace for the victory by holding Dunbar to four field goals.

CHS won the junior varsity contest 37-10, with Vanessa Rogers scoring 12 points. Lisa Smith had 6 for Dunbar.

WTC Gives Coach 401st Win, Cake

SNYDER (Special)-Western Texas girls presented coach Sid Simpson with his 401st coaching win and then handed him a cake when it was over.

WTC defeated Amarillo College 70-59 for an 8-3 season and 4-0 conference record. AC fell to 7-1, 1-1.

Karen Williams and Cindy Luttrell netted 17 points each for the winners. Helen Williams canned 21 points for Amarillo.

games—is hurting what is supposed to be the finest roundball team in the city.

"We've only had one practice in a week and that was last Wednesday," McWil-liams said, shaking his head. "Maybe that's why we've been so sluggish lately... and too cautious."

The Dunbar coach said the Panthers were "pressing things and trying to force things to happen," when they lost the lead to the Westerners.

"In basketball, you just can't try to force things to happen," McWilliams said. "And that's what we we're trying to The Panthers, behind the 22-point per formances of Greg Whitfield and Billy

Don Hardaway, finally caught ablaze-of sorts-late in the fourth quarter when they reeled off 6 straight points to grab a 48-44 lead. However, the Westerners, who over the past two weeks wouldn't have to take a backseat to anyone when it comes to sheer hustle, clawed and scratched until they tied the game with nine seconds remaining Lubbock High could have won the game outright if Craig Mitchell had hit a one-and-one attempt after being fouled in the backcourt by Hardaway. However, his first shot sailed wide and the game was forced into overtime. During the extra period, the Dunbar unit shined as it scored 11 points and limited LHS to only 5. Ron Jenkins hit a four-foot jumper 30 seconds deep into the period to give LHS a narrow 57-55 lead. After that, LHS had to wait almost two full minutes before it could collect its next bucket, a closerange jumper by Mitchell. By that time the Panthers already had a narrow-yet comfortable-5-point ad-

Whitfield and Hardaway were the big guns during the overtime, scoring 4 points each. Daryl Green added a point and Wayne Williams hit a field goal to round out the scoring.
For Dunbar, it hit 27-65 shots from the field, while LHS countered with 25-81

Dunbar was particularly inept in the third quarter when it scored only 8 points. The Westerners roared back with 17 and grabbed a 1-point advantage heading into the final period.
