In the process of organization is a new farm gas users' corporation to be known as the Tri-County Gas Co., Bill Milen said Tuesday.

The new organization was formed at Pleasant Valley last week, and if approved, will have for its purpose the buying of natural gas from wholesalers and selling it to farm users, it was explained.

The group has applied for a charter from the Secretary of State, and after it is approved here, the executive committee of the corporation will go to Washington to meet with the Federal Power Commission, a final step which must be taken before the corporation can be completed.

The three counties, it was explained, are Parmer, Bailey and Lamb county.

Seedling Disease In Cotton

Seedling disease damage caused by cool, wet weather is being reported by farmers on the South Plains, says J. K. Adams, county agent.

What can farmers do about it?

Extension Plant Pathologist Dr. Robert Berry says about all you can do after cotton is planted is worry.

He thinks it is better at this point to wait a few days rather than rush into replanting right away.

Rotary hoeing can help some, Berry said. The hoeing will help dry out the top of wet soils and open the ground so it will warm up more rapidly.

Cotton will not be susceptible to seedling disease after it gets 6 or 8 inches tall, he says.

"A little hot, open weather will help fight the disease," he said.

Berry figures that cotton planted by early June will still be early enough to give good yields.

By replanting a field right away, Berry believes you might run into more cool, damp weather and have the seedling disease problem over again.

Most Soils In Blackwater Area Subject To Wind, Water Erosion

Most soils in the Blackwater Valley Soil Conservation District are subject to either wind or water erosion and sometimes both, according to Willie Welch, District Board. He said conservation-minded farmers know that such losses are uncalled for and therefore take needed steps to protect their land. In order to be safe, the soil needs a protective cover at all times. Unfortunately, the regular row crops provide cover for only a portion of the year. And even then the growth made sometimes could hardly be termed as adequate. When this happens, the farmer has two alternatives: surface roughening tillage and planting a winter cover crop. A variety of small grain, winter legumes, or a combination of these planted in the fall will usually provide needed protection. Caution should be taken when grazing these crops. This is necessary in order for a sufficient amount of cover to be left on the soil at all times. Too many times a crop planted to protect the land is misused and fails to accomplish the intended purpose. Forage produced, but not utilized by the grazing animal is not wasted. It may seem that way at first, but the differences between not having or having an adequate cover. Too, the residues left will provide continued protection after the planted crop has completed its growth. Such residues are worthwhile and needed to improve the plant - soil - moisture - air relationship.

When a legume such as Austrian Winter Pea or Hairy Vetch is planted, the best results are obtained by allowing the crop to grow to maturity. By doing this, a greater total growth is made and the legume is able to do a better job of nitrogen fixation. And too, the residue is of a better quality. All of these factors are in contribution to an improved soil, increased soil fertility, a better moisture intake rate by the soil and aids in cutting down evaporation losses. Welch said that conservation is the result of planning. Planning assistance is available to the farmer from the Soil Conservation Service through the Blackwater Valley Soil Conservation District.

"We traded in Muleshoe; it wasn't much of a town, but it was the best town in the area, a sandy little trading post with fewer than a dozen homes and some half-dozen businesses. "Let's see, it was something like this," Jennings mused, "George P. Kuykendall had the bank — it was the Blackwater Bank — and M. D. Smith was the grocer; he also had the postoffice in his store. Then Joe Rutherford ran the hotel, and in one side of the hotel. C. D. Gupton had a grocery. There was a blacksmith shop, and E. R. Hart ran a lumber yard. "Then the Elrod boys owned a grain business. There was a tiny little barbershop run by Jack Carr.

"Funny thing about that barber shop: There wasn't enough hair-cutting and shaving to be done to keep a barber busy all the time, so Jack just operated his shop on Saturdays and Sundays; rest of the time he cowboyyed. So, everybody came to town on Saturdays and Sundays to get his hair cut.

"There was one little church — an interdenominational church — and a tiny school. And that was Muleshoe back in 1916."

J. W. Jennings and his father were active in the drive to get the county organized. "Hurley was the only other town worthy of the name in the county, so we all met there at old Hurley one night and set up our campaign.

"In order to get a county organized, it was necessary that there be 150 poll-tax payments, and we just didn't have that many. In fact, we barely had 100. So, at the Hurley meeting we decided that we would try to get the law changed to permit a county to be organized with only 100 taxpayers.

"Accordingly, they decided that Bill Kennedy and I should go to Austin to get the law changed. Well, we went to Austin, and we pulled a few ferent jello salads. French bread, strawberry short cake and iced tea. Tomato juice served as an appetizer and the food was served smorgasbord.

The chairman of each of the committee expressed deep appreciation for the wonderful cooperation they received from all the parents. Tickets were sold for $1.50 each to help pay for expenses so that none would have to be used from the Band Booster fund.

Terry Hutton gave the invocation. Mr. Bradley pronounced the benediction.

After the banquet was over, the combo played for the clean up committee.

The septors each "willed" something to band members and the thoughtfulness was appreciated and enjoyed.

For both the participating parents and band members, it was a very enjoyable evening.

A newly formed combo, consisting of Wayland Ethridge, Leasel Richardson, Bob Breckenridge and Joe Mayfield played dinner music to the delight of all present.

Mrs. Fran Powers, in a lovely turquoise formal (and an admittedly new wig) sang several numbers, giving the theme "Gold Nugget" a truly authentic glamorous touch.

The menu consisted of ham turkey, potato salad, bean salad, macaroni salad, many dif-

"Members of Congress from all sections of the Cotton Belt have protested the change in skip-row proposed by the United States Department of Agriculture. I have protested personally on several occasions to Secretary Freeman and other USDA officials. I have also written Secretary Freeman the attached letter.

"Cotton producers throughout the Cotton Belt have done an excellent job in presenting the facts to the USDA.

"Please do not be misled by the agreement of the USDA to suspend further action on skip-row until the House Committee on Agriculture begins consideration of a general cotton bill. We have blocked the proposed change for the moment, but this is only temporary.

"The USDA claims that to reduce the cotton surplus the national allotment must be cut, skip-row modified, producers persuaded to go the domestic allotment route, or some other method devised to cut production and reduce the huge carry-over. The point is, the skip-row fight has not been won and the matter will be finally decided at a later date.

TSTA Fees Paid 'Ahead Of Time'

Teachers in two Bailey county schools to "show our appreciation for the work done by Texas State Teachers Association" in the organization's successful battle for a teacher pay raise, sent in their TSTA dues ahead of time. The announcement was made by TSTA Executive Secretary Charles H. Tennyson. The bill, a compromise measure, granting a $101 million teacher pay hike, passed both houses last week.

Tennyson said teachers in the two schools paid their $10 dues for next year, four months early; the 1965 - 56 membership year begins Sept. 1.

Bula Bus Driver Given County's Highest Honor

By MRS. JOHN BLACKMAN
BULA — Mrs. W. C. Risinger was honored as school bus driver of the year for Bailey county Wednesday afternoon in an assembly program in the school auditorium. C. A. Dempsey from the Texas Motor Transportation Association, gave tribute to Mrs. Risinger for her efficiency as a busdriver. She has driven for eight years, more than 10,000 miles. Tribute was given because of her "dependability, pride, welfare and safety of our children."

She faced all kinds of weather conditions and she also serves her community well in other capacities. In behalf of the Texas Motor Transportation, Texas Department of Public Safety and the Texas Department of Education, Mrs. Risinger was presented this award.

Waterways' Need Cited By SCS
 Waterways are often needed in the Blackwater Valley Soil Conservation District, according to Charles Ball of the local Soil Conservation Service. Farmers who have recently built waterways are: H. W. Sewell, Ed Little, and G. A. Fowler.
 Ball said, where a waterway is needed, several factors are to be considered. First would be the location. He said the most satisfactory location usually is a natural draw. Because the grade and slopes are established, and too, the natural slopes confine the water flow to the waterway and eliminate the need for a lot of costly construction work.
 Here also, the moisture conditions are more favorable for grass growth. Ball said another factor to be considered is the use to be made of the waterway after it is established to grass. Since the vegetation in the waterway receives extra water, it can be made to be an asset to the farm.
 Ball said that with the proper management, a grassed

Plentiful Water Supply Is A 'Must' For Livestock Production, Says SCS

Adequate livestock water is a necessity for conservation ranching, according to David Springer of the local Soil Conservation Service. He said properly distributed water will bring about uniform grazing of a pasture. The desirable distance for livestock to travel for water is one-half mile in rough country and no more than two miles in relatively flat areas.
 Springer stated that a pond should not serve more than 50 animals, units or cows on a year-long basis. Usually, more than this number watering at one location will cause trailing and damage near the pond.
 The storage capacity of the pond should be sufficient to provide 20 gallons per animal unit or cow per day in addition to the expected losses from evaporation and seepage. He said evaporation alone accounts for at least six feet loss per year.
 When selecting a site for a pond, Springer said, there are several factors to consider. First, to offset the high loss from evaporation in the Blackwater Valley Soil Conservation District, a pond should have a small surface area in relation to its depth. A pond should have at least 25 per cent of its water at a 10-foot depth. Second, the drainage area should be large enough to protect life of the pond. The spillway should be on soils or material which will be erode or be protected with a good grass cover.

USDA Presents Top Service Award To L. J. Cappleman, Texas FHA Chief

L. J. Cappleman, Texas state director of the Farmers Home Administration, received the United States Department of Agriculture's coveted Superior Service award which was presented by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman during special ceremonies on the Washington monument Grounds in Washington, D. C. Cappleman has been state director for 12 years and a USDA employee for 30 years. Cappleman was cited "for exceptional effectiveness in program administration, agricultural leadership and institution of a farm management program to improve the living standards of Texas farm families."

Besides the citation certificate, Cappleman received a silver medal.

Howard Bertsch, Washington, D. C., the agency's administrator, congratulated Cappleman and said that "this outstanding Farmers Home Administration State Director and his hard-working staff served some 127,000 Texas farmers and other residents during the fiscal year of 1964 alone, when they extended supervised credit totaling close to $74.5 million."

Administrator Bertsch emphasized that the importance of this rural credit program to Texas is clearly defined. "If each of the 74.5 million dollars loaned by the agency throughout the state last year passed through only five hands, as they were spent and respent, these loans would have had a cumulative economic impact of $37-2.1 million."

"He has made a major contribution to the strengthening of family farms and rural communities and the alleviation of poverty in rural Texas," Bertsch said.

A statement of achievement accompanying Cappleman's nomination for the award explains that while serving as state director for the past four years "he has exhibited remarkable leadership qualities in administering a program that has effectively carried out Farmers Home Administration objectives by formulating realistic programs designed to best serve eligible Texas farm families."

Scouts Set Date For Family Night

A reminder for the Cub Scouts Pack 620 and parents; the final award program and outing at Horse Shoe Bend will be Thursday night, May 28. Mothers of each Cub are asked to bring either homemade ice-cream or homemade cookies to the social-awards program.
