

Fleeing Newsman Fears South Africa Civil War

By SERGE SCHEMERMANN

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — Banned newspaper editor Donald Woods said Sunday after fleeing South Africa that his racially divided homeland is headed for civil war unless the white minority government "comes to its senses very soon."

Woods, long one of South Africa's most outspoken liberal editors, said he expects to devote his exile to ending racial repression in that country and to defending before the outside world other detained or banned dissidents within South Africa.

The 43-year-old editor spoke in an interview with The Associated Press at the home of the acting British ambassador in this small landlocked black African state, where he fled Saturday after hitchhiking in disguise 300 miles from his home in the South African port city of East London.

Woods, who was under banning orders in South Africa that restricted his movement and freedom of speech, said he hopes to leave here with his family within one or two days for Britain. He expects to settle in Britain or the United States, he said.

His wife and five children traveled to Lesotho Saturday separately from him. A Lesotho government official said Woods probably will leave by a special charter flight Tuesday morning. Scheduled flights from this capital city land in South Africa, and all flights must overfly South Africa or the Transkei, an independent black homeland tied to South Africa.

But the Lesotho official predicted no problems with Woods's overflying South Africa. He pointed out that black nationalist leaders wanted by the South African government have flown in and out of Maseru without difficulty.

Woods, his children milling around him as he spoke, appeared relaxed Sunday. But he described his flight from South Africa as the most "scaring seven or eight hours in my life."

Asked why he risked a long jail term if caught fleeing in defiance of a five-year banning order, Woods said: "The (South African) Nationalist government made it impossible for me to continue to function as a journalist and critic of its policies, and I was no longer prepared to remain silent while they continued doing the things they were doing and saying the things they were saying."

Woods, editor of the Daily Dispatch in East London, was a close friend of black activist leader Steve Biko, 30, whose death last September in security police detention sparked an international outcry.

On Oct. 19, the South African government banned or detained more than 50 black leaders and seven white dissidents, including Woods, and shut down the country's two main black newspapers.

Woods's banning order prevented him from continuing his work as an editor, being quoted in the press, leaving East London or having most visitors without official permission.

Woods said the closing of the black newspaper The World and the arrest of its editor, Percy Qoboza, and his own banning closed "the one area of limited freedom left in South Africa — the press."

"Unless the Nationalist government comes to its senses very soon, there is no doubt in my mind South Africa is headed for civil war along racial lines," he said.

Woods, who made it clear he rejects violence, did not say when or how he expects the war to start.

The editor said his first task will be to write about Biko, particularly the inquest at which a magistrate cleared security police of blame for the black leader's death from brain damage. Dissidents say the injuries were caused by police beatings.

Describing his escape, Woods said only his wife, Wendy, and eldest son, Dillon, 13, knew of the plan.

He said he dyed his greying hair black and put on a false moustache before going to the outskirts of East London and hitchhiking rides toward Lesotho. He said he rode past an unmanned Transkei border post to a point close to the Lesotho border.

"I got three lifts and assumed three different identities," he said. "First I was an Afrikaner who couldn't speak much English, then I was an Australian and finally I was a German."

Discarding his jacket at the border, he swam a flooded river and got a final lift to Maseru.

Woods made these other points in his interview:

—The massive government victory at the Nov. 30 elections "exceeded my worst expectations because it implied that the white electorate was simply not prepared to opt for peace and negotiations with blacks."

—Recent events dashed his hopes of interracial negotiations and political power-sharing. "The government has banned or detained those blacks and whites who were best placed to bring about a reconciliation. What is left in the field is two polarized racial groups who will carry on a collision course to racial war."

—As a fifth-generation South African, he is "very sad" to leave. But he said he intends returning to South Africa "as soon as there is a change of government or a change of heart in the government."

"And if I can do anything, wherever I am, to bring about that state of affairs, I will do it by any means other than violence," Woods declared.

Chilean's Future Hinges On Balloting

SANTIAGO (AP) — The plebiscite of support Chilean President Augusto Pinochet has scheduled for Wednesday could either strengthen his personal power base or leave his military government greatly weakened.

Chile's ruling four-man military junta was split over whether to hold the plebiscite. Civilian political leaders and foreign observers agree that because of this the junta can never go back to governing as it did before.

The leaders of the navy and air force, Roman Catholic bishops and the outlawed Christian Democratic party either opposed the staging of the referendum or, in the case of the Christian Democrats, have urged a "no" vote against Pinochet.

Despite this opposition, Pinochet, an army general, is going ahead with his planned plebiscite, claiming he is within his rights as chief of state.

If Pinochet wins big, his opponents say, he probably will try to take more power into executive hands, leaving the junta as a figurehead or less. If he fails to gain a large majority, the split within the junta will still leave Chile's military government badly shaken.

Pinochet announced less than two weeks ago he was summoning all Chileans over age 18 to the polls to react to what he said was the "international aggression" of a recent U.N. General Assembly resolution condemning alleged human rights abuses in the South American country.

The plebiscite, requiring a "yes" or "no" answer, does not directly refer to the United Nations but would back Pinochet in "his defense of the dignity of Chile" and reaffirm the legitimacy of his government.

Between 5 and 6 million people, in a population of 12 million, are expected to cast the sealed paper ballots. Citizens who do not vote will have their identity cards declared invalid.

The pro-government press has been filled with advertisements and news stories urging people to vote "Si Chile" or "Si Presidente." Large segments of the nightly news broadcasts on national television are taken up with people explaining why they are going to vote "yes."

The U.N. resolution, passed last month with the support of the United States and other Western nations, was one of many international condemnations of the deaths, torture and detentions that followed the right-wing military's 1973 coup against the government of socialist Salvador Allende.

There are no figures on the number killed, but estimates go as high as 7,000. The government acknowledges more than 40,000 leftists were jailed, but all but a few hundred since have been freed or expelled.

According to reliable sources, Chile's navy and air force have been ordered by their commanders to stay in their barracks Wednesday and take no part in policing the vote. That order came last week after junta members Gen. Gustavo Leigh of the air force and Admiral Jose Merino of the navy unsuccessfully opposed the plebiscite.

The fourth member of the junta is the national police chief, Cesar Mendoza. Leigh told Pinochet the plebiscite would damage the prestige of the Chilean military inside and outside the country. Merino argued it could lead to a resumption of civilian political activity and increase public demands for union and municipal elections.

In letters that came to light last week, Leigh accused Pinochet of violating the statute authorizing the junta's rule by proceeding without its members' full backing. Merino accused the president of "trampling" on the wishes of the junta.

This is the first public crack in the junta. But differences have long been rumored, including last July, when Pinochet announced his plan for a "new democracy," but with national elections no earlier than 1985.

Besides opposition within the junta, Roman Catholic bishops in this overwhelmingly Catholic nation have appealed to the government to suspend or postpone the plebiscite. The bishops say restrictions on free expression and other civil liberties have prevented the public from being able to vote informatively.

The leaders of the Christian Democratic party, largest political group in Chile despite its illegal status today, are risking detention in their campaign for a "no" vote against Pinochet.

Watchdog Group Warns NATO Members Of Military Laxity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atlantic Council said Sunday very few members of the 15-nation North Atlantic Alliance have "done as much as they should" to strengthen their conventional military forces in the face of growing Soviet power.

The council said that "unless the United States and its allies act promptly to reverse the trend, elements in the Kremlin will be encouraged toward the kind of 'dangerous political adventurism or military coercion' that it said marked Soviet foreign policy after World War II.

The council produced a policy paper on "the growing dimensions of security." Its members include former top security and diplomatic officials of past Democratic and Republican administrations. It describes itself as a non-profit organization to promote the security and economic well-being of nations around the Atlantic basin.

The council said a gain in Soviet-Warsaw pact conventional strength in fire power, mobility and striking range "has overbalanced improvements in NATO defense measures" in recent years.

"Warsaw Pact countries already have the ability to mount a major offensive without reinforcement and the disparity continues to widen," the council said.

Without an adequate conventional defense, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be faced with the choice of using nuclear weapons at the outset of hostilities or withdrawing in the face of superior forces, it said.

The report criticized NATO countries for delaying essential modernization, cutting terms of military service, and stationing troop units and supplies too far away from potential war fronts.

The group urged strong efforts to forge NATO armies, air forces and navies into a soundly united coalition force, rather than merely national components, not truly meshed together.

Meanwhile, a separate document published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research presented conflicting arguments on the issue of standardizing NATO military equipment.

Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla., called such standardization the key to survival of the alliance.

But retired Army Gen. James H. Polk, who commanded U.S. army forces in Europe until 1971, called standardization "window-dressing except for such practices in use of fuel and ammunition."

Bartlett contended NATO loses up to 30 to 40 percent of its combat effectiveness because of inadequate standardization of weapons as well as other equipment among the national forces that make up NATO.

But Polk argued that the difference in national production methods, differing tactical concepts and the cost of international research and development stand in the way of standardization.

Under U.S. prodding, major NATO nations have agreed to boost their military spending, after accounting for inflation, by about 3 percent. This would match a commitment made by Defense Secretary Harold Brown to increase "real growth" in U.S. military power by about 3 percent a year.

LAST CALL FOR 23S — Buyers lined up outside an Alexandria, Va., electronics store on New Year's Eve to purchase 23-channel citizen band radios, sale of which became illegal on Jan. 1. The Virginia outlet apparently was among only a few in the U.S. attempting to unload the sets, banned in favor of the 40-channel variety by federal law. Observers speculated that other dealers would simply hold the old sets and use them to salvage parts. The Alexandria sale saw some sets going for as little as $5, brand new. (AP Laserphoto)

Wallace Divorce Trial Set

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and his wife of seven years, Cornelia, face each other in divorce court Wednesday on their wedding anniversary.

The crippled 58-year-old Wallace sued his wife, 20 years younger than he, last September on grounds of incompatibility. She countered with a suit charging cruelty and fled the governor's mansion, saying she feared for her life.

The raven-haired Mrs. Wallace, who has a penchant for expensive clothes, says her husband refused to provide her with the necessities of life and that she had to spend her savings for living expenses. She has not specified how much alimony she wants.

Wallace apparently was disillusioned with the marriage long before he filed for divorce. His friends said he contemplated divorce when he learned Cornelia had bugged his private telephone in 1976, but waited a year.

He reportedly was fearful of the effect a divorce would have on his political future as he campaigns for the U.S. Senate this year, but finally decided he had to take the risk.

Wallace was jealous of his active wife, their friends said, and thought she neglected him, traveling frequently while he stayed home in his wheelchair. He was left paralyzed from the waist down when he was shot by a would-be assassin while campaigning for the presidency in 1972, about 17 months after he and Cornelia were married.

"He's got this terrible jealousy of Cornelia," one friend of Mrs. Wallace said long before the divorce stories surfaced. "Every time she gets out of his sight he thinks she's running around on him."

Mrs. Wallace found it necessary to publicly deny she had affairs with other men. She said she tapped the governor's telephone to find out who was spreading destructive rumors about her and accused Wallace's brother, Gerald, of making her husband suspicious of her activities.

Tensions growing out of preliminary legal skirmishes in their highly publicized divorce were blamed for Mrs. Wallace suffering from mental and physical exhaustion, which sent her to the hospital over the Christmas holidays.

The divorce trial could be delayed if she has not recuperated, but the presiding circuit court judge, Joseph Phelps, said the Wallaces deserved a quick settlement. He said testimony about the grounds for the divorce would be conducted privately to protect the families, but said the public had a right to know about the monetary settlement.

Mrs. Wallace, a divorcee with two sons from her marriage to citrus heir John Snively, told UPI about a year after she and the governor married that she wanted a baby, but she said Wallace laughed at her.

The governor has four children from his marriage to former Gov. Lurleen B. Wallace, who died of cancer in 1968. He has two grandchildren and another is on the way.

His estranged wife said she did not try to imitate his late wife, who Wallace ran in his place in 1966 to get around a constitutional ban on him seeking a second consecutive term. Wallace was said to have scoffed when his second wife hinted she would like to run for governor.

The 20 years difference in their age, Mrs. Wallace said, bothered the governor more than it did her when he proposed. She said she also wondered if she would

Hussein Raps Israel's Stance On West Bank

TEHRAN (UPI) — King Hussein said Sunday Israel has shown a "shocking and very distressing" refusal to be flexible, and its stance on the West Bank complicates Jordan's entry into Middle East peace talks.

He said there could be "disaster" in the area if Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin fails to adequately reciprocate peace initiatives of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Hussein traveled to Iran to meet with President Carter. Carter, meanwhile said that while Hussein would be willing to join Middle East peace talks under certain conditions, the time is not ripe.

"Under certain principles, King Hussein would be ready to join the talks either directly with the Israelis or jointly with Egypt and Israel," Carter said, "but at the moment I think President Sadat is strongly representing the Arab position and for the moment I see no reason — and I think the king agrees — for Jordan to join the talks directly."

A senior administration official who attended the meeting said, "the obstacle to Jordan going to Cairo now is that there has been no definition of the principles to govern how the Palestinian question is to be handled."

"Until there is an adequate definition of that and the question of (territorial) withdrawals, I think it is unlikely the Jordanians will be able to join the talks."

In his interview, Hussein said Jordan would be willing to attend peace talks if it saw a possible solution to Middle East problems. But he said Begin's recent statements have not been encouraging.

He said that contrary to Begin's plan, Israeli troops on the West Bank should be withdrawn "in the shortest practical time."

Asked if he saw any sign of flexibility from Begin, he said:

"I haven't seen from his public statements anything to indicate that, and this is really shocking and very distressing as far as I'm concerned."

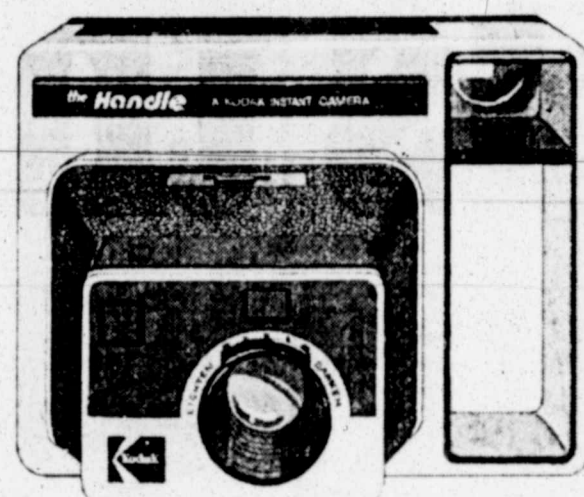

The Israelis "have taken no step in my opinion to match in any form or weight the very courageous initiative of President Sadat" and if Egypt's initiative is not reciprocated, "I don't see what the future will hold for all of us except possible disaster."

Although Jordan was initially somewhat critical of Sadat's decision to visit Jerusalem in November, Hussein said he now has accepted the move as "a very courageous one."

"We support what he has set forth and we are definitely hopeful that the momentum for peace will continue and that we will have a dream come true in our area — the establishment of a just and durable peace."

Will the Middle East situation be worse than before if Sadat's efforts fail?
"I believe so," Hussein said.

Pope Links Violence, Arms Race

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI, marking the 11th World Day of Peace, said Sunday that violence in the world can be traced to the arms race and "the conflict provoked in society by dehumanizing conditions of life."

The 80-year-old pontiff celebrated New Year's Mass in the Basilica of St. Mary Major in downtown Rome before several thousand Romans and pilgrims and later wished a Happy New Year to about 20,000 faithful gathered in St. Peter's Square.

In his emotional 25-minute sermon, titled "No to Violence, Yes to Peace," the pope made only passing reference to the Middle East, expressing the hope that Moslem and Christian populations living in Lebanon can set an example of peace for the rest of the region.

Frequently stumbling over his words, Pope Paul appealed to young people to reject violence even though war threatens them and the rest of mankind with "its supreme irrationality, with its absurdity."

He added: "Such conditions of life provoke, especially among the young, frustrations which set off reactions of violence and aggressiveness against certain structures and economic situations of contemporary society."

He said those who react violently often are trying to destroy a specific aspect of modern life, which he called "a desecrated society, a society without soul, a society without love."

Pope Paul, who instituted the peace day, told the basilica gathering, "You have the capacity of an extraordinary openness and a joyous availability, which unfortunately adults sometimes have forgotten or lost."

"You too, young people, have your word, fresh, new, original, to say and make heard to your elders. Speak this word of peace, this 'no to violence,' with energy, with force, with the force of your pure hearts, your clear eyes, your joy of living, but living in a world in which justice and peace are joined."

Troops Search For Gunmen In Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — Police and Army troops searched this capital and the surrounding countryside Sunday for the kidnapers of former cabinet minister Roberto Herrera Ibarquien, one of Guatemala's wealthiest men.

Herrera, 55, was kidnapped Saturday by gunmen who cut off his car on a road outside the city and shot his chauffeur and bodyguard to death.

Herrera, Foreign Minister and later Interior Minister under President Carlos Manuel Arana Osorio (1970-1974), was the sixth prominent Guatemalan kidnapped in December.

Police said the wealthy sugar cane grower was normally protected by four bodyguards but two of them were given the day off for New Year's Eve.

Police said the kidnapers' car crashed into Herrera's as he was driving along a narrow road on the way to his farm 10 miles from the capital.

When his chauffeur and bodyguard got out to see what had happened, the gunmen shot them down and shoved Herrera into their car, police said. Herrera was not believed to have been injured.

Herrera, who holds a doctorate in international law, is a member of the government commission studying the problem of Belize, the former British Honduras, a British colony claimed by Guatemala.

There have been hundreds of political killings in Guatemala in the past year. Among the victims have been peasants, workers, students, landowners, businessmen, politicians, bodyguards and police.

County Jail Setup Gets Few Takers

After all the work put out to merge the city jail with that of the county, how did prospective city offenders show their appreciation? They stayed at home.

Two persons, however, did decide to take part in the city-county jail's inauguration New Year's Day, which began at 7 a.m.

Late Sunday, two city prisoners sauntered into the sheriff's office to accept Blanchard's invitation. One prisoner was booked for drunkenness and the other was charged with house burglary.

As of Sunday morning, the municipal jail was closed except to illegal aliens. City-arrested prisoners will be booked directly into the county lockup.

A police spokesman said the average number of offenders booked by the city daily is about 10, far more than Sunday's number.

However, county wrongdoers apparently were more ambitious, with 16 being picked up from midnight Saturday to 9 p.m. Sunday.

A book-in officer at the county jail said there was no confusion in admitting the city offenders, "just a little more paperwork."

He suggested it was calmer Sunday because of the weather. "I guess everyone tried to stay out of the snow."

Strike Differences To Get Attention

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Federal mediators are to meet with union and company representatives Wednesday in an effort to resolve differences between striking meatcutters and Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., Gov. J. James Exon announced Sunday.

The Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen struck the plant nearly 10 months ago. Last month, the company began hiring non-union workers and reopened the plant despite demonstrations by the union that were broken up by tear gas.

Exon said Vice President Walter F. Mondale, in the absence of President Carter who is overseas, assured full federal support for the mediation effort to take place in South Sioux City, Neb.

The governor described the dispute at the Dakota City, Neb., plant as a "major confrontation between monopolies or near-monopolies representing both industry in their fields, with Nebraska family farmers, citizens, community interests and law enforcement agencies caught in the middle."

Violence broke out Friday at the plant. Tear gas was used to break up the confrontation and 16 persons were arrested.

The meeting Wednesday will focus on the need for resumption of negotiations that were broken off in November, the governor said.

Exon pointed out that management and labor officials both were open to criticism. The National Labor Relations Board recently cited the company for unfair labor relations, and the union for illegal interference with company rights.

In addition, Exon said, Iowa Beef was sued in December by the U.S. Agricultural Department for alleged monopolistic practices in the beef feeding and marketing industry.

Club Braves Icy Atlantic

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The water was warmer than the air, but the 79 people who plunged into the icy Atlantic Ocean Sunday shivered anyway.

It was the 23rd annual New Year's Day "Polar Bears" swim. Sixty-three men and 16 women thrashed about for five minutes in the 37-degree waves-off Newport Beach.

On the beach, about 2,000 spectators huddled together, taking an occasional snort of liquor to brave the 34-degree temperature, numbing northerly winds and snow flurries.

Leading the Polar Bear pack was Jack Morgan, 70, of Newport. He's been at every New Year's Day swim since he helped to found the club back in 1955.

He said it started when he and three friends decided to see how long they could extend the swimming season. Eventually they were going year-round, and now seven "regulars" swim every weekend.

Nations To Discuss South-West Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The five Western powers trying to negotiate an end to South Africa's administration of South-West Africa have called for a meeting of all parties involved in New York on Jan. 17, the Rand Daily Mail reported.

The Johannesburg newspaper said Thursday that the move apparently was an effort to break a negotiating deadlock. It said the West may submit its own settlement plan to both South Africa and the South-West Africa People's Organization, the nationalist group recognized by the United Nations as spokesman for the country's blacks. The five Western powers are the United States, France, Britain, West Germany and Canada.

New Year's Eve Fires Take Heavy Death Toll

By The Associated Press

A babysitter saved a 4-month-old boy by throwing him from the second floor of a burning building in Chelsea, Mass., but died in the blaze with two other children and a fireman just as the new year came in.

In other holiday fires, two men were killed in Boston, a couple and their daughter died in their sleep in New York, four children died in Waldport, Ore., and a husband, wife and daughter were killed in Kent, Wash.

Chelsea police said a man identified as Walter Juskievicz, 23, tossed 4-month-old Sean Vele from an upstairs bedroom as flames roared through a three-story brick duplex.

The baby was caught by a neighbor and doctors at Chelsea Memorial Hospital found no injuries and did not admit him, an emergency room nurse said.

Firemen fought their way into the burning building and brought out the babysitter and the two other young children, Michael and Denise Elliott, from the second floor. But all three died soon afterward.

Capt. James Trainor, 54, a 30-year veteran of the department, collapsed and died in heavy smoke while trying to cut a hole in the roof. Firemen said he apparently suffered a heart attack.

In an apartment house in Boston's Roxbury section, two tenants identified by police as John Sullivan, 58, and Nate Gill, 62, were killed by flames just after midnight.

The fire traveled through the third and fourth floors of the Harrison Avenue building and forced several other residents into the street. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

In New York, Anthony Sonora, 43, and his wife Patricia and their 2-year-old daughter Ann Margaret died in their sleep through their frame house in the Corona section of Queens. An 8-year-old son, Joseph, was rescued by firemen.

A neighbor said people tried so hard to wake up the family from outside that it was several minutes after the fire was discovered before the fire department was called.

Four children died in an early Sunday fire near Waldport, Ore., a few hours after their mother called home to wish them Happy New Year, state police said.

Troopers said the fatal blaze started about 3 a.m. and destroyed the isolated two-story home in Lincoln County.

Troopers said Carolyn Van Strum, who was visiting with friends, had called home shortly after midnight.

The victims were identified as Daphne, 13, Alexie, 13, Juris, 9, and Benjamin Van Strum, 5.

Three members of a Kent, Wash., family were killed when a fire ignited by fireworks burned through an apartment complex, authorities said.

The King County medical examiner's office identified the dead as Michael O. Anno, 29, his 25-year-old wife, Theresa, and their daughter, Taci, 9.

Kent Fire Chief Tom Foster said the family apparently had set off New Year's fireworks about midnight. The sparks touched off a small fire, which they thought was extinguished.

Jeff Carters Selected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jeff Carter and his wife Annette are going to American Samoa and the Northern Mariana Islands for the inauguration of the first popularly elected chief executives, the White House said Sunday.

President Carter selected his son and daughter-in-law as his personal representative for the ceremonies.

Peter Tali Coleman will take the oath of office Tuesday in Pago Pago as governor of American Samoa.

On Jan. 9, in Saipan, the Northern Mariana Islands, Carlos Camacho will be inaugurated governor, the first phase in the islands' becoming a U.S. commonwealth.

The area is part of the Trust Territory of the Pacific administered since 1947 by the United States under an agreement with the United Nations.

American Samoa is about 2,300 miles from Hawaii and was acquired as a trust territory through cession agreements with tribal chieftains in the 1900s.

Spectators Prepare To See Rose Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — About one and a half million persons were expected to line the streets this morning for the start of the 89th annual Tournament of Roses Parade.

Thousands of persons had staked claims to curbside vantage points by the weekend, and an estimated 5,000 recreational vehicles and passenger cars were parked in Brookside Park near the starting point.

This edition of the parade and the Rose Bowl football game are being held on Monday this year in deference to Sunday churchgoers, a parade association spokesman said. About 125 million people worldwide were expected to see the parade on television.

The forecast called for a temperature of about 40 degrees this morning, and weathermen have said there could be some rain. But there's no chance the parade will be either canceled or delayed by weather.

A total of 61 floats were getting finishing touches Sunday in the staging area. There will be 22 bands and 33 equestrian groups passing along the 5 1/2 mile parade route.

It has rained on Jan. 1 in the past, but the parade has never been canceled. Parking areas get soggy, but one official noted, "we haven't lost any cars in floods since 1934 when a few autos were swept down the Arroyo Seco (a normally dry river bed) from the Rose Bowl area."

The parade began in 1890. Valley Hunt Club president Charles Holder and others of the socially prominent in Pasadena launched the Tournament of Roses "to afford the people, old and young, some holiday amusement and, perhaps, establish something permanent in this line."

Holter urged residents of nearby communities to come to Pasadena. "Decorate your horse and your bugles with all the flowers you can," he said, "especially with roses."

Former President Gerald Ford is the grand marshal this year, the third former President to have the honor. The others were Herbert Hoover in 1945 and Dwight Eisenhower in 1964.

Group Notes Few Reforms In FBI, CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter administration did little during its first year in power to reform American intelligence agencies despite congressional investigations revealing abuses, a private group said in a report released Sunday.

The report was issued by the Center for National Security Studies, an organization that has taken an adversary position to the CIA and FBI.

While official sources say the administration is moving to safeguard Americans against intelligence agency violation of their rights, Morton Halperin, the center's director, said there has been "little sign of effective reform."

Halperin noted that Carter campaigned on a platform which included ending illegal intelligence activities and reducing secrecy on national security policies.

And he said it has been 18 months since congressional committees headed by Sen. Frank Church and Rep. Otis Pike completed investigations of past intelligence abuses.

Despite the promises and investigations, he said, "no bills have been introduced in the Senate," and "the House intelligence committee has not yet even begun work on reform charters."

Halperin formerly worked at the Pentagon and was on the staff of the National Security Council when Henry Kissinger headed the top advisory panel. He recently won nominal damages in a civil suit charging Kissinger ordered his home telephone tapped on suspicion Halperin leaked classified information to the press.

The Halperin report made these points:
—A Carter draft executive order on classification of government documents "is a no-change document ... instead, it proposes sanctions against officials who leak information, regardless of whether or not the information dealt with government improprieties."

—The administration has introduced legislation "which would relieve intelligence officials from being sued for damages by victims of intelligence agency abuses, no matter what the officials had done."

—Only one FBI agent has been indicted and "former CIA Director Richard Heims was allowed to bargain his way out of a perjury indictment for lying to Senate committees about CIA involvement in Chile..."

—Gerald Ford started notifying some targets of the FBI's counter-intelligence program but not victims of other illegal intelligence programs. The Carter administration has declined to expand the notification process.

—The Carter administration continues to defend intelligence officials in lawsuits brought against them for such things as the FBI program of opening private mail.

Carter's Efforts Called 'Useless'

BY NED TEMKO

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat Sunday made a fiery "goodbye to American interests" in the Middle East and charged President Carter's policy was hurting the region toward war.

He also dismissed as "useless" Carter's efforts to bring Jordan's moderate King Hussein into the peace process.

Arafat, wearing his usual sunglasses, battle fatigues and an Arab headdress, addressed several thousand guerrillas from rival Palestinian groups at a rally marking the 13th anniversary of the first commando raid against Israel by his Fatah guerrillas.

With former rival Dr. George Habash of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine at his side, Arafat said Carter and U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski had written off the Palestine Liberation Organization's role in the search for a Middle East settlement.

Dayan Asks Settlers To Return

By ALLEN ALTER

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan Sunday urged Jewish settlers in the occupied Sinai peninsula to go along with the government's proposed return of the territory to Egypt, calling the move critical to a Middle East peace.

"The people of Israel support the government plan as shown in the vote in the Knesset (parliament)," Dayan told a crowd of 3,000 persons at the Sadot settlement near the Gaza strip in northern Sinai.

"If the settlers oppose the program, and because of this peace is not achieved, the people will not go with them," Dayan said.

Frequently interrupted by settlers demanding a clear statement of what they view as Israel's claim to the area, Dayan said, "We never suggested in all the years the imposition of Israeli sovereignty."

"With the exception of East Jerusalem, Israeli law has not been imposed and there has been no annexations" of any territory captured in 1967, he said.

Dayan was accompanied at the meeting by Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, a reserve general who led the Israeli counterattack across the Suez Canal in 1973.

Sharon said the government sees the settlements as an inseparable part of the peace plan and urged the settlers to continue developing the region.

Sources in Jerusalem said the Israeli plan for the occupied territories calls for settlers to pay taxes to the Egyptian government and be subject to the Egyptian criminal code, although civil cases would come before Israeli courts.

In his speech to the Knesset last week, Prime Minister Menahem Begin said the settlements "shall remain in place ... linked with Israel's administration and courts. They will be protected by an Israeli force."

The parliament endorsed the government's proposals 64-8 Wednesday's with 40 abstentions, most from the opposition Labor Party.

Dayan and Sharon left the regular weekly meeting of the cabinet early in order to attend the rally. Begin and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman missed the cabinet meeting, but a government spokesman said they were sick.

Given the secret trips that have accompanied the latest steps toward a peace settlement, their absence prompted speculation about more foreign travel.

But the spokesman denied it and foreign ministry officials said there was no indication that President Carter wants to meet with Israeli leaders during his world tour.

Bhutto Fate Decision Due Soon

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Gen. Zia ul-Haq, Pakistan's military ruler, said Sunday he will decide this month whether former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, under criminal indictment for murder, will be barred from campaigning in the next national election.

Zia told a news conference his military government will make a decision on Bhutto's political fate within two or three weeks. Several of Bhutto's political associates in the Pakistan People's Party may be included in the ban, Zia said.

The general reiterated his pledge to schedule national elections and return Pakistan to civilian rule by the end of 1978.

"I prefer soldiering and I am sure that I do not want to be a politician," Zia told reporters.

Zia had indefinitely postponed elections scheduled for last Oct. 19, saying he wanted to allow more time for trials against Bhutto. The former prime minister faces civil and criminal charges on alleged offenses ranging from the 1974 slaying of a political opponent to abuse of power during his five-year tenure.

Bhutto was ousted in a military coup led by Zia last July 5 following four months of bloody civil strife. Since then, Zia has imposed martial law and banned all political activity, including campaigning.

shouted Arafat to a packed stadium in the heart of a mostly Palestinian area of West Beirut. "He said goodbye to the PLO. I tell him, if he does not already know the implication of such a statement, goodbye to America in the (Middle East) area."

"Goodbye to American interests in the area."

Arafat was answering U.S. charges the PLO had excluded itself from the negotiating process by its hardline opposition to Sadat's November peace visit to Israel.

Arafat's 10-minute address followed an hour-long parade by the guerrillas and guerrilla trainees, armed mostly with Soviet rifles and ranging in age from 4 to well over 80.

They were celebrating the 13th anniversary of a bomb blast in an Israeli tunnel that launched the guerrillas on their war against the Jewish state.

Arafat said Carter's recent rejection of an independent Palestinian state had pointed the Middle East toward war.

"My answer to Carter is that if there is no Palestinian state, there will be no stability in this area."

"No to surrender," shouted Arafat, arms flailing. "Yes to fighting."

In what guerrilla sources called an indirect reference to Sadat, the bearded guerrilla chief said, "I say it strongly to Carter and all Carter's agents in the Arab world. If you think you can force anything on the Palestinian revolution, you are wrong."

"We are not warmongers," he said. "We are demanding our rights. And we know, as (former Egyptian leader Gamal Abdel) Nasser said, that that (land) which is taken (by Israel) through force can be retaken only through force."

In a pointed reference to a recent resurgence in Soviet influence in the Middle East, Arafat said, "We (the PLO) are not alone," and mentioned Moscow as high among its allies.

Arafat, smiling and eliciting laughter and applause, said Carter had spent "40 useless minutes with (Jordan's) King Hussein" in Tehran on the U.S. president's current foreign tour.

"He (Hussein) could not give you (Carter) anything," Arafat said. "You can get nothing without (the support of) the Palestinian people and the PLO."

Habash cheered politely during the speech and more loudly during the guerrilla parade — which included PFLP fighters.

But the radical leader's presence, alone, indicated a cementing of a rapprochement between the PLO and the PFLP that began at an Arab anti-Sadat summit in Tripoli last month.

Habash pulled the PFLP out of the PLO's executive committee, three years ago in protest against what he saw as Arafat's overly moderate stands.

Strike Factor Seen In Coal Stockpiles

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) — The president of the United Mine Workers union said Sunday that coal operators seem to feel they can survive a long strike — and meanwhile wear down the union's contract demands — because key customers have stockpiled so much coal.

Arnold Miller said contract talks in Washington have stalled because the Bituminous Coal Operators Association believes a long strike would force the miners — who are without any form of strike benefits — into accepting a less than favorable contract.

Some industries and utilities had stockpiled three-month supplies before the UMW went on strike Dec. 6.

"But I can assure our members that if our negotiators reach a contract that doesn't suit me, it won't come down to the various union locals," Miller said in an interview with Beckley radio station WWRN. "And the (union's) bargaining committee won't automatically rubber stamp any agreement. It has to suit them and suit me ... if I don't like it, it ain't going to come down."

Miller also said the only way he would agree to a contract provision calling for fines against miners who conduct illegal wildcat strikes or have excessive absences would be if there is a similar provision calling for fines against coal operators.

If a miner is to face penalties for staying off work, Miller said, then there should be similar fines against coal companies which delay or refuse to negotiate local issues.

Miller was here to swear into office newly elected officers in UMW District 29.

Sadat May Support Carter's Position

By W. G. KIROLOS

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat indicated Sunday he was ready to throw his weight behind President Carter's call for a Palestinian homeland tied to Jordan.

Diplomatic sources said this could break the Arab-Israeli deadlock over the future of the West Bank of the Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

Reacting to Carter's latest statements on the Palestinian issue, Sadat said in an interview in the newspaper Al Akhbar: "I have been calling for the past four years for a link between Jordan and the envisaged Palestinian state."

Carter, who will meet with Sadat in Aswan, Egypt, Wednesday, said in Warsaw at the outset of his current world tour he favored a non-independent Palestinian homeland linked to Jordan.

What Sadat advocates, however, is an independent state with a federal or confederal link to Jordan. By contrast, Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin rejects the idea altogether, and is prepared only to grant self-rule to the Arabs of the West Bank and Gaza.

However, Sadat hinted there is room for compromise between the Egyptian and Israeli positions.

"We should renounce the policy of either getting everything or rejecting everything," Sadat said. "We should get what we can get until we can get all that we want."

The Egyptian-Israeli differences had surfaced at the Christmas Day summit between Sadat and Begin, forcing postponement of a "declaration of intent," outlining the basic principles of an overall settlement, which the two leaders were planning to issue.

Sadat then turned to America, "which holds 99 percent of the cards" in the Middle East conflict, and appealed to Carter, through U.S. ambassador Hermann Eilts, to declare backing for the Palestinians' right to self-determination.

Carter's statement last week that he opposed the idea of an independent Palestinian state drew a sharp reaction from Sadat, who said he was "surprised, disappointed and embarrassed" by it.

But the Egyptian President apparently was reassured by Carter's later comments.

Carter will arrive in Aswan at 12 noon (5 a.m. EST) Wednesday on his way from Riyadh, the Saudi Arabian capital, to Paris, and will spend about four hours talking to Sadat.

Aswan, about 500 miles south of Cairo, is the site of the giant Soviet-built High Dam and is renowned for its warm weather and Egyptian antiquities.

Sadat, accompanied by West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, arrived there Sunday aboard a Nile boat from Luxor. The two have been on a working vacation in southern Egypt for the past three days.

In an interview in the weekly magazine October, Sadat said he spurned an offer by some Palestinian groups, which he did not name, to meet with him secretly.

Charging the Palestinians were "wasting all available opportunities," by refusing to join his peace drive, Sadat said:

"Their confusion has reached such a point that they asked, through an Arab country, to meet secretly with me. Can anybody imagine this? This is the apex of confusion and impudence. I naturally refused."

Sadat said the Palestinians also asked to meet secretly with Moshe Dayan during a recent visit to West Germany, but the Israeli Foreign Minister turned them down.

River Kwai Bridge Open To Tourists

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The River Kwai, site of the World War II bridge built by Allied prisoners of war of the Japanese, is open to tourists.

There is one well-equipped hotel an hour's boat or car trip from the bridge, while along the river there are floating rafts, equipped with few of the amenities of home-but-comfortable nonetheless.

In addition to the bridge and the Allied war cemetery, the sights worth seeing are the wildlife, waterfalls, caves and scenery of the surrounding jungle.

Most of the sightseeing can be done from river boats.

Credit Rules, Wage Law Top Consumer Action

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Tougher credit rules and higher minimum wages highlighted congressional consumer action this year, while the Supreme Court handed down decisions on package labels and lawyer advertising.

President Carter signed the Fair Debt Collection Act on Sept. 20, making it a federal offense for debt collectors to threaten violence, use obscene language or contact consumers by telephone at inconvenient times or places.

Other provisions prohibit collectors from publishing lists of debtors, impersonating government officials or lawyers, obtaining information under false pretenses and collecting more than is owed.

Under the Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1977 the minimum wage rises from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour on Jan. 1. It will rise to at least $2.90 in 1979, $3.10 in 1980 and $3.35 in 1981.

Consumers also will get a greater choice in shopping for loans and mortgages, thanks to the 1977 amendments to the Federal Credit Union Act. They let credit unions make loans with more flexible terms, allowing them to compete with banks on mortgages and other types of loans.

Still pending before Congress are measures to create an office of consumer representation, allow consumer class action suits, establish consumer cooperative banks and give citizens broader standing to sue the government.

The Supreme Court rulings during 1977 included a finding that it is unconstitutional to prohibit newspaper advertising by lawyers. States still may regulate such advertising. Consumer groups hailed the decision as a means of getting price and specialty information to consumers.

Another decision held that states may not supersede federal food labeling provisions allowing some items to weigh less than the weight stated on their labels.

Looking at Social Security, the court decided it is illegal to require a male surviving spouse to prove he depended on his wife for at least half his income in order to collect survivors' benefits.

Other rulings rejected local laws prohibiting "for sale" and "sold" signs on houses and limiting the definition of "family" in areas where only single family dwellings are allowed.

The Office of Consumer Affairs of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has compiled a list of major actions by government agencies affecting consumers. Among them:

- Most aerosols containing chlorofluorocarbon propellants had to carry warning labels starting Oct. 31 under a Food and Drug Administration rule. The Consumer Product Safety Commission adopted a similar label for aerosols under its jurisdiction, effective Feb. 20.
- The Civil Aeronautics Board dropped requirements that tickets for one-stop-inclusive tour charters be purchased in advance.
- The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration adopted a rule requiring front seat automobile crash protection of either air bags or passive seat belts beginning in 1981.

- Plastic bottles containing acrylonitrile were banned effective Dec. 22 by the FDA. The agency says the chemical migrates into fruit juices and other liquids in the bottles.
- Mandatory FDA rules for cosmetic labeling took effect April 15. All new products are required to list their ingredients in descending order of predominance.
- The Federal Reserve System issued rules prohibiting surcharges to customers who use credit cards instead of cash. Cash customers may receive discounts, however.
- An FDA rule requiring women taking estrogen to be given information on the risks and benefits took effect Oct. 18.
- The Housing and Urban Development

Department increased the maximum mortgage amount for a one-family home from $45,000 to $60,000 for buyers with loans insured by the Federal Housing Authority.

- Health, Education and Welfare rules took effect June 3 prohibiting discrimination against handicapped persons in employment and in programs and activities receiving federal assistance.
- On Aug. 15, FDA rules went into effect prohibiting sale of hearing aids to persons unless they have had their hearing examined to determine the need for such a device. Persons over 18 can waive the exam, however.
- FDA rules on labeling intrauterine contraceptive devices took effect Nov. 1, including a requirement that patients receive an easily understood brochure before the device is put in place.

- The Consumer Product Safety Commission banned on Feb. 27 the manufacture and use of paint containing more than 0.06 percent lead.
- The FDA banned the use of zirconium in aerosol drug and cosmetic products following studies showing some forms of zirconium cause lung disease in animals.
- The Interstate Commerce Commission prohibited household movers from charging full freight rates on goods totally or substantially lost or destroyed in shipment.
- And finally, the FDA launched an effort to ban saccharin, the artificial sweetener which has been associated with cancer in animals. However, congressional action has postponed the ban and the FDA is working on a warning label requirement.

Lockheed Workers To End Walkout

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — About 500 striking Lockheed Co. aircraft services workers voted overwhelmingly Sunday to accept a company contract offer and end their seven-week walkout, union officials said.

Members of International Association of Machinists Local 821 approved by 90 percent what union spokesman Pat Ziska said is the same contract proposal to be voted on today by an additional 8,500 striking Lockheed workers, also IAM members.

The aircraft services workers walked off the job Nov. 12; they were scheduled to return to work Tuesday.

The Lockheed machinists scheduled to vote today, who belong to a separate union local, went on strike Oct. 10 against plants in Burbank and Palmdale.

The offer approved Sunday provides for wage increases of 6.14 percent, or an average 40 cents an hour, in the first year and 3 percent in the second and third year of a three-year pact. Cost of living allowances are also maintained for the machinists, whose average wage is $7.32 cents an hour.

The workers retain all of their previous seniority privileges. A key issue in the dispute was Lockheed's wish to change the seniority system, which allows workers with six years' or more employment to "bump" junior workers during layoffs.

The contract also provides for improved pension benefits.

On Thursday, 5,000 Lockheed workers in Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi and West Virginia accepted a similar contract. An additional 5,000 workers at Lockheed's Missiles and Space Division in Sunnyvale, near San Francisco, returned to work last month despite objections by the international union.

The Burbank-Palmdale workers are the only remaining Lockheed strikers.

Insurance Companies File Bad Risk Guidelines

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Professional athletes, people with marriages on the rocks, entertainers, people who sell liquor and people who own Rolls Royces are considered bad risks by some of Connecticut's largest automobile insurance companies.

On the other hand, the most desirable people, from an insurance standpoint, are managers of wholesale establishments, farm managers, finance company employees, retired workers, farmers, teachers and policemen — in that order.

A new Connecticut law requires the companies to file with the state Insurance Department any guidelines they give to their agents.

The guidelines showed:

- Many insurance companies frown on selling auto insurance to single, enlisted military men.

- Entertainers, pro athletes, people who sell or serve liquor, unskilled workers and people who have histories of unemployment are not considered good risks.
- Companies discourage agents from selling policies to sports car owners or extremely expensive cars, including Rolls Royces.

Hanover Insurance Co., based in Manchester, N.H., believes some of the worst risks are bellboys, masseurs, oil field workers and single students.

Hanover said single people, men especially, tend to have more money, drink more, lend their car more often and "do not have to account to anyone and are free to drive anytime they desire."

The same goes for divorced persons, the company said.

Someone to talk to

Throughout life, we all occasionally need someone to be a thoughtful and understanding listener. Especially when things aren't going right.

This is why the time of a funeral -- the gathering together of friends and people who care -- fills an important need for the family.

Literary Group Opens Attack On Broadcasters

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (UPI) — Television newscasters have replaced government bureaucrats as the target of a literary group dedicated to the banishment of despicable aberrations that have crept into the English language.

The Unicorn Society of Lake Superior State College, which took nominations from members and like-minded purists from around the country, singled out this group of lingual trend-setters for its "1977 Very Unique Redundancy Repetitive Award."

It cited the experience of a Nashville, Tenn., contributor who waged a year-long battle against a local station to eliminate the use of such phrases as "completely destroyed," "most unique" and "more unique." The contributor reported "limited success" in his campaign.

Based on responses, the society compiled its annual "Dishonor List" of words and phrases banished from the Queen's English. Among the selections were:

- "Nuk-u-lar." What some people are reading on the air for the word "nuclear."
- "Medication." We can no longer afford this. It's too expensive. We've got to get back to the cheaper "medicine."
- "Situation and Process." As used in "the wet pavement situation," which simply means that it rained, and "the eating process."
- "Such superfluous words as: prioritize, parenting, orientating and conceptualize."

"There are two phrases commonly used by bureaucrats that we're placing under observation, not yet banning," said society archivist William T. Rabe. "memo" as a verb — for example, "I'll memo this proposal," and "impacts" as in "See how it impacts when it is referentially memooed."

"We're turning away from government to the true celebrities," Rabe said. "The greatest celebrity in the United States is Walter Cronkite."

"The greatest number of nominations were for banishment of the phrase, 'uh know,'" said Rabe. "We admit we can't do anything about it this year and we may be too late to do anything about it anytime. It is a parasitic disease of the English language which may already be terminal."

IT'S FINALLY HERE — The much-awaited snow, which Lubbockites dreamed of for Christmas, arrived a little late on the South Plains and instead brought in the New Year. Donna Barke expresses the emotions felt by many Lubbockites suffering a dry winter season by engraving "AT LAST" in a blanket of snow on her car's windshield Sunday afternoon. Viets Report Cambodian Air Assaults

HONG KONG (UPI) — Reports from Vietnam Sunday said the Hanoi government blasted Cambodia with air and artillery attacks in border fighting that some foreign experts predicted could escalate into a new, full-scale Indochina war.

The centuries-old rivalry between the two Southeast Asian nations broke into the open again with reports of heavy fighting between the Communist neighbors that led to a break in diplomatic relations and atrocity charges by both sides.

Cambodian President Khieu Samphan announced the diplomatic break on New Year's Eve, saying Vietnam had been waging an "undeclared and premeditated war." He ordered Vietnamese diplomats to leave Phnom Penh by Jan. 7.

Vietnam did not deny the charges but blamed Cambodia for the conflict in the largely unmapped border area that was the scene of some of the bitterest fighting involving American troops during the Indochina War.

The mass-circulation Hanoi daily Nhan Dan Sunday accused the Cambodians of atrocities including cannibalism and brutality against pregnant women.

Reports reaching Hong Kong quoted "travelers from Vietnam" as saying fighting "is continuing in the Ha Tien-Tay Ninh boundary area, consisting of air raids launched from Saigon into the parrot's beak and artillery exchanges."

The border area cited in the reports runs northwest from the Gulf of Thailand to a salient of Cambodian territory extending about 30 miles into Vietnam in the shape of a parrot's beak — the same area where both nations reported earlier fighting.

Ground fighting involving tanks left behind in southern Vietnam by the Americans has stalled, the reports said.

Each side accused the other of atrocities — with Samphan claiming the Vietnamese "destroyed rubber plantations, burned down forests, strafed the people — children and old ones alike — and raped and killed women."

The Vietnamese countered that Cambodian troops "have perpetrated utterly inhuman crimes, raping, cutting fetuses from mother's wombs, disemboweling adults, burning children alive."

Experienced foreign observers in Hong Kong and Bangkok predicted the break initiated by Cambodia will give the Vietnamese an excuse to fling into battle its tough army and attempt to silence its ancient foe permanently.

Fighting along the border has been going on since shortly after the defeat of American supported regimes in Phnom Penh and Saigon in 1975.

Vietnam, the experts agreed, is the most expansionist power in Southeast Asia, and is not expected to let the current opportunity slip past.

Despite the reports of continued fighting, Vietnam — publicly at least — tried to put a verbal damper on the explosive situation.

"Once again, the government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam proposes that the two sides meet as early as possible to solve the border issue between the two countries in the spirit of brotherly friendship," the Hanoi newspaper said.

come up with a stand that would be beneficial for all of us in agriculture. I don't see that a two-hour meeting would make any difference," McCathern said.

Of the American Agriculture effort, McCathern said, "We're not a farm organization. We're an agricultural movement. But we have within our movement grass roots members out of all of the other farm organizations."

Cecil Turner of Hale Center noted of the conference, "It's very discouraging to us for someone to come along and say that farmers are wanting government help and government subsidy. All we want is 100 percent parity which we call nothing but a fair deal. This gives us an even break with the other segments of our population."

Agriculturists in Tulsa and Plainview will hold 7:30 p.m. meetings today to determine their week's activities. They will gather at the courthouse in Tulsa and at the Hale County Agriculture Center in Plainview.

Farmers around Hereford and northern parts of the state will contribute their parading tractors to the 261-mile band of 1-40 stretching from Amarillo to Oklahoma City.

Arkansas farmers will travel northwest on Highway 65 to meet Dumas farmers, and Lake Village, Ark., tractors will roll east on Highway 82 to meet farmers from Greenville, Miss.

Derral Schroder of the strike movement's national office in Springfield, Colo., said farmers there will picket in Denver.

Large turnouts also are expected in Alabama and Georgia, he said.

Arkansas strike official Wayne Lassiter said as many as 2,000 farmers are planning to converge on Memphis, Tenn., next weekend for a two-day demonstration. Farmers from Missouri, Mississippi and Kentucky are expected to join the Arkansas and Tennessee strikers there.

hazardous driving conditions in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

In Westchester County, N.Y., parkway police reported that 25 cars piled up in a collision on the snow-covered Hutchinson River Parkway near Connecticut.

Six ambulances were dispatched, but an official at United Hospital in nearby Port Chester said injuries to four accident victims in the emergency room there did not appear serious.

Travel advisories, heavy snow warnings and winter storm watches were in effect from Illinois and Wisconsin east to Massachusetts. The heaviest snowfall was expected over the central Great Lakes — possibly up to 6 inches.

Travelers advisories over the Appalachians were for 1 to 5 inches of snow in northern regions and wet snow mixed with rain from western Maryland through North Carolina. Advisories in the upper Great Lakes were for extreme cold, gusty winds and snow flurries.

Rainshowers were scattered along the Gulf of Mexico as well as over northwestern California. The skies were sunny over much of the central and western portion of the country.

Temperatures around the nation Sunday ranged from 11 below at Bozeman and Helena, Mont., to 82 at Homestead Air Force Base in Florida.

Monday's forecast calls for continued snow from the Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley to New England. Rain is expected in northern Florida and along the Pacific Coast.

Girl Captures Baby Derby

(By The Associated Press)

In the annual contest to see who can produce the first childbirth of the year, Thomas and Theresa Dohack of Kirkwood, Mo., and St. John's Mercy Hospital are claiming first-prize. The hospital said a baby girl was born to the Dohacks at one second past midnight Sunday.

The baby weighed 5 pounds, 7 ounces. Nicholas Jonathan Petty came close. He made his appearance five seconds into 1978, according to Erlanger hospital in Chattanooga, Ga.

Nicholas is the son of John and Kim Petty, both 20, of Chattanooga. He weighed 9 pounds, 13 ounces.

Hospital spokesman Fred Gault said the parents would rather have had the last baby of 1977 so they could use him as a deduction on their 1977 tax returns.

In New York, Daisy Bristol gave birth to one daughter 15 seconds after midnight and another 15 minutes after midnight. The Bellevue Hospital Center said the mother and twin girls were "doing fine."

Few 'Zonians' Favor Treaty

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP) — While Americans who live in the Canal Zone still overwhelmingly reject the new Panama Canal treaties, some are beginning to accept them as a fact of life. A small and possibly growing number even support them.

The two treaties signed in September and now awaiting U.S. Senate ratification in two months would turn the U.S.-owned canal and zone over to Panama by the year 2000.

"There is resignation among the employees that there will be a treaty soon. They've been exposed to so much information on it they expect it will be passed," says Panama Canal Co. personnel director Gordon Frick.

Frick spoke for the 9,500 Americans and their families who man the waterway and live in the Rhode Island-size Canal Zone.

"There are a few who still say it won't get through (the Senate), but most people seem to reluctantly accept that we will have one, and there is a growing acceptance," he adds.

A recent survey by a civil council here showed that 616 Americans polled were against the change — and 103 in favor of it.

Most "Zonians" have been opposing the treaties all along out of nostalgia, for fear it would leave them out of jobs, or deteriorate their lifestyles. A good many claim they do not see why the United States should have given in to Panama's demand for sovereignty in the canal in the first place.

"Only God knows whether the treaty will pass (the Senate) and I wish he were making the decision," says George Bouche, a Canal Co. dredging division engineer. His grandparents on both sides came from Virginia early this century to help build the waterway.

"There is no legal, moral or ethical reason to give it to the Panamanians. It's ours. And why should we give it because someone asks us for it or threatens us like a bully?"

Girl Captures Baby Derby

(By The Associated Press)

In the annual contest to see who can produce the first childbirth of the year, Thomas and Theresa Dohack of Kirkwood, Mo., and St. John's Mercy Hospital are claiming first-prize. The hospital said a baby girl was born to the Dohacks at one second past midnight Sunday.

The baby weighed 5 pounds, 7 ounces. Nicholas Jonathan Petty came close. He made his appearance five seconds into 1978, according to Erlanger hospital in Chattanooga, Ga.

Nicholas is the son of John and Kim Petty, both 20, of Chattanooga. He weighed 9 pounds, 13 ounces.

Hospital spokesman Fred Gault said the parents would rather have had the last baby of 1977 so they could use him as a deduction on their 1977 tax returns.

In New York, Daisy Bristol gave birth to one daughter 15 seconds after midnight and another 15 minutes after midnight. The Bellevue Hospital Center said the mother and twin girls were "doing fine."

EXHIBITION PLANNED

PARIS (UPI) — An exhibition of Rubens' works from French public collections will be shown at the Grand Palais Museum of Paris through March 13, 1978. The show is one of the most important organized in France to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the death of the Dutch artist.

Edward Koch Takes Reins In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward I. Koch woke up at 7:15 Sunday morning, ate an apple and drank some coffee, took a bus to City Hall and was sworn in as mayor of the nation's largest city.

After the swearing in — which was strictly ceremonial because Koch actually became mayor shortly before midnight Saturday — the former congressman spoke to a crowd of about 2,500, portraying the city as an ailing but recovering giant whose future depends on the willingness of its people to give of themselves.

"If we who live in this great urban center are to survive, we must give more than we ask," he said. "Living in the heightened reality and splendor of this city demands a price. But it is a price worth paying."

He said, "New York is not a problem. New York is a stroke of genius."

At the fringes of the gathering in City Hall Park were about 80 demonstrators for a variety of causes, an example of what Koch meant when he talked about the city's "bounding, exuberant diversity."

The protesters included members of a homosexual rights group, young job seekers and the Hispanic Organization of Latin Actors, who want more support for Spanish-language theater.

Koch warned that New York still faces serious money problems and service cutbacks. "The depth of our problems matches the scope of our achievement," the new mayor said.

He said the day's weather reflected the status of the city — "a little gray, but the sun is shining. ... We have survived. And soon we will begin to flourish."

Frenchman Begins 500-Mile Swim

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Pierre Passot, 29, entered the Rhine River on Sunday with the aim of swimming, or floating, to the English Channel.

Passot expects to spend more than a week in the water to cover the 500 miles. He said he will eat and sleep in the water where the temperature is expected to be constantly under 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Because lock operators are not working on New Year's Day, however, he planned to leave the water and walk around the first few locks.

Two boats were following him for support, with a physician aboard one. Passot was wearing a waterproof suit, like that used by divers.

Recombinant DNA Research: Boon And Threat

By TED HOWARD and JEREMY RIFKIN
Pacific News Service

Among the creations of Greek mythology was the chimera, an animal with the head of a lion, the body of a goat and the tail of a dragon. The monster vomited forth horrible flames and, the myth had it, personified a terrible storm — "pouncing suddenly on the darkened waves, it unleashed the raging tempests to destroy men."

Twenty-five hundred years after the flowering of Greek civilization, two teams of scientists led by Drs. Stanley Cohen and Herbert Boyer reported that they had constructed a novel life form.

Taking two unrelated organisms that would not mate in nature, Cohen and Boyer isolated a piece of DNA from each, and then hooked the two pieces of genetic material together. The result was literally a new form of life, one that had never before existed on the face of the earth. They dubbed their creation "DNA chimeras," because, Cohen says, "they were conceptually similar to the mythological chimera."

Cohen, of course, was referring to their hybrid nature. He did not know at the time that his chimera — or as it is technically known, recombinant DNA — was destined to unleash "raging tempests" of its own, provoking one of the bitterest, and perhaps most important, battles in the history of modern science.

The discovery of the recombinant DNA process in 1973 was immediately hailed by biologists with a zeal equaled only by their earlier praise of Watson's and Crick's discovery of the structure of DNA. Using the new techniques, the genetic material from virtually any two unrelated organisms can be spliced together, opening up a whole new arena of experimentation and study.

"Now and in the next few years we shall be doing things that would have been thought completely improbable a few years ago," says Dr. Paul Berg of Stanford. Another researcher predicts that "problems people were interested in 100 years ago are starting to be tractable now with these methods."

A product of nearly 30 years investigation, climaxed by a series of rapid discoveries in the late 1960s and early 1970s, recombinant DNA is a kind of biological sewing machine that can be used to stitch together the genetic fabric of unrelated organisms. Dr. Cohen sees it as genetic surgery in four stages. To begin with, a chemical scalpel, called a "restriction enzyme," is used to split apart the DNA molecules from one source — a human, for example. Once the DNA has been cut into pieces, a small segment of genetic material — a gene, perhaps, or a few genes in length — is separated out.

Next, the restriction enzyme is used to slice out a segment from the body of a plasmid, a short length of DNA found in a bacteria. Both the piece of human DNA and the body of the plasmid develop "sticky ends" as a result of the slicing process. The ends of both segments of DNA are then hooked together, forming a genetic whole composed of material from the two original sources.

Finally the modified plasmid is used as a vehicle to move the DNA into a "host" cell, usually a bacteria. Absorbing the plasmid, the bacteria proceeds to duplicate it endlessly, producing identical copies of the new chimera. These are called clones.

On the surface, the combining of different organisms in this way — a mouse DNA with a human, or a rhododendron with a horse — may seem bizarre. Researchers, however, are quick to point out that they are not creating giant mice with human heads that will walk out of a laboratory a la Frankenstein.

The purpose of recombinant DNA is considerably more significant. What the new technique makes feasible is the isolation and purification of a gene in massive quantities.

In May of 1977, for instance, a research team in California announced that, using the technique, they had isolated and analyzed a gene that orders the production of the hormone determining human growth. Now that this gene has been scrutinized, the next step will be to implant it in a human cell and stimulate it into functioning. Researchers say this technique ultimately will provide a cure for dwarfism. Just as easily it could be used to develop a basketball team of 10-footers.

Though recombinant DNA is still in its tooling-up phase, its proponents already envision a wide range of applications that will solve various medical and social problems.

Cohen, for one, imagines the synthesis of a variety of "biologically produced substances such as antibiotics and hormones, or enzymes that can convert sunlight directly into food substances or usable energy."

Dr. Joshua Lederberg anticipates "the production of high-quality food protein supplements."

Others have volunteered scenarios where recombinant DNA solves the nation's fuel crisis by converting waste into energy, retrieves precious minerals from the ocean, cleans up oil and chemical spills and eliminates world-wide pollution.

"How much do we need recombinant DNA?" says Dr. David Baltimore, a Harvard Nobel Laureate. "Fine, we can do without it. We have lived with famine, virus and cancer, and we can continue to."

So great are the expectations surrounding recombinant DNA that a major scientific-corporate-government complex has sprung up around it; a technical boom town set to mine the new genetic motherlode. The federal government has become an enthusiastic supporter of the research, handing out at least 180 recombinant DNA research grants to over 80 laboratories around the country in one year alone.

Seven major pharmaceutical companies also are engaged in the recombinant race, and a dozen more drug, chemical and agricultural companies are poised to enter a field that Fortune magazine predicts will soon become a "multi-billion dollar industry." Researchers at General Electric already have developed a recombinant oil-eating microorganism that they hope to use one day to clean up oil slicks.

DNA clearly has come of age. Summing up progress in recombinants, a Swiss scientist observed during an international genetics conference, "this sort of research is gaining uncontrollable momentum."

But now the catch. Like another Greek mythical figure, the Trojan Horse, recombinant DNA chimeras hide within their outward beauty a deep and dark danger, one that may be as destructive to humanity as the horrors of nuclear holocaust. In splicing together genes from two different species, scientists are creating a novel form of life whose properties they cannot know until it is already created.

Once the two kinds of DNA are joined together, the chimera is placed within a host, usually the bacteria E. coli, where it quickly proceeds to copy itself. E. coli has been selected by most researchers to house the recombinant DNA simply because more is known about it than any other bacteria on the planet.

There is a good reason for our encyclopedic knowledge of E. coli; it is a common inhabitant of the human gut. And that is where the problem comes in.

What might happen, researchers have begun to wonder, if the recombinant DNA chimera results in a cancer-causing alignment of genes?

Placed in the protective environment of the E. coli, the new cancerous life form would churn out cancer like a Detroit factory stamping out autos.

If this E. coli finds its way out of the laboratory, carried on a lab technician's skin, it would then roam free among trillions of its friends, and likely would pass some of its cancer around. Once these virulent E. coli begin invading human systems, well, no one knows exactly what might happen. A new plague? A cancer epidemic? A real-life Andromeda Strain?

To add to the problem, restriction enzymes necessary for cutting apart DNA molecules are commercially available, and will be sent through the mail to anyone who requests them. Most biologists agree: any high school student can do it.

Many concerned scientists believe that recombinant DNA may well be the single most dangerous technology in human history.

A-bombs, nerve gas, biological warfare and the destruction of the stratospheric ozone layer by fluorocarbons are all less a threat to human existence than recombinant DNA, argues Dr. Liebe Cavalieri of the Sloan-Kettering Institute.

"All of these dangers can, in theory if not in practice, be limited or controlled," notes Cavalieri. "The threat of a new life form is more compelling, for once released, it cannot be controlled and its effects cannot be reversed. A new disease may simply have to run its course, attacking millions in its path."

Dr. Robert Sinsheimer of Cal Tech believes, "what we are doing is almost certainly irreversible. Knowing human frailty, these structures will escape, and there is no way to recapture them."

Dr. Erwin Chargaff, the iconoclastic professor emeritus from Columbia University, is typically blunt: "I should say that the spreading of experimental cancer may be confidently expected."

The possibility of these scenarios of mass death and genetic destruction becoming reality was frightening enough that it caused even the technology's top experts to stop and think.

On July 26, 1974, 11 of them took the unprecedented step of publishing an open letter to the biological community, calling upon their fellow researchers to observe a temporary moratorium on performing certain of the most dangerous experiments.

The signers of the document read like a "Who's Who" of molecular biology. Among them were DNA discoverer James D. Watson and Drs. Berg, Cohen and Boyer.

With the weight of this all-star cast of scientists behind it, the moratorium was almost universally observed, although recently a few have returned to DNA research.

Predictably, the recombinant DNA moratorium — the first self-imposed ban on basic research in the history of science — provoked a storm of press interest. National newspapers headlined such warnings as "Danger in Man-Made Bacteria," "Hybrid Molecules Test Threat Seen," and "Bid to Ban Test of Sugar Germ."

Recombinant DNA, it was apparent, had become a subject of national interest.

HEW Plans 'Sophisticated' Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government plans "some very sophisticated advertising" to convince cigarette smokers their habits can kill them. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano said Sunday.

Califano, an ex-smoker who once putted three packs a day, said the government has a duty to communicate the dangers of smoking to the public.

"We plan to announce a campaign early this year that will employ some very sophisticated advertising, telling people that smoking, by every statistical measure we have, is slow motion suicide," Califano said in an interview with U.S. News & World Report.

The tobacco industry's "strong lobby," in combination with agriculture interests "has dissuaded him from trying to change the government's tobacco subsidy programs, said Califano.

"People have a right, within obvious limits, to eat or drink or smoke whatever they like," he said.

"But if you have a product like cigarettes that results in premature death of thousands of people every year and adds billions to our national health bill, then people ought to be alerted to that fact."

President Taps Leftist Leader For Turkey's Next Government

By EMEL ANIL
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — President Fahri Koruturk on Sunday designated Bulent Ecevit, leader of the leftist Republican People's Party and two-time premier, to form Turkey's next government.

The president tapped Ecevit following the fall of Premier Suleyman Demirel's five-month-old conservative coalition in a parliamentary vote of confidence Saturday.

Ecevit told reporters he hoped to announce his cabinet within a week.

Sources close to Ecevit reported he was inclined to base his government on the support of 14 independents and three deputies from two small parties in the 450-seat ruling assembly.

Ecevit's Republicans hold 214 seats. Political observers here say the new premier will probably have to give cabinet posts to some of the independent deputies to maintain his slim parliamentary majority.

The next government will have to tackle an economic crisis, mounting political violence and long-standing foreign policy conflicts, issues that paved the way for Demirel's fall.

Diplomatic sources say they believe Ecevit will launch a "peace offensive" on Cyprus soon after assuming office and that he will probably offer to meet with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis to discuss the troubles on that Mediterranean island, divided between hostile Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities.

"Ecevit is no less capable of the dramatic gesture than Egypt's Anwar Sadat," a Turkish columnist wrote Sunday.

Turkish troops invaded northern Cyprus under Ecevit's premiership in the summer of 1974. Soon afterward Ecevit resigned, citing irreconcilable differences with his coalition partner.

Informed sources said Ecevit would also attempt to reach an accommodation with the International Monetary Fund to obtain a standby credit Turkey needs to ease a critical balance of payments deficit and resulting foreign currency shortage.

This would necessitate such economic austerity measures as devaluation and a reduction in investments.

Ecevit might find political violence, which claimed 250 lives last year, the toughest problem to tackle.

He has little control over the extreme right and left-wing student gangs engaged in a war for the control of Turkey's educational institutions.

Demirel's three-party coalition, which came into power last August, comprised his Justice Party and two right-wing partners, the Moslem fundamentalist National Salvation and ultra-nationalist National Action parties.

It replaced a short-lived government led by Ecevit that came to power after national elections in June but which failed its first parliamentary confidence test.

Demirel's coalition fell Saturday as a result of a censure motion submitted by Ecevit's party.

Vance Reaffirms Plan

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Sunday that despite continuing controversy, the United States is moving ahead with plans for him to return the Crown of St. Stephen to Hungary on Friday.

Vance said that in light of court rejections of efforts to restrain the government, "we are planning to go forward as planned... to return the crown." The religious relic was given to the United States for safekeeping during the Communist takeover of Hungary in World War II. Americans of Hungarian heritage have demonstrated against the return of the crown, and have protested to the White House.

Vance said that during President Carter's visit to Warsaw last week, a number of Polish officials commended the United States "on doing this."

"It's going to be a simple ceremony, without a lot of speeches," Vance said. "We'll be returning the crown, the sceptre, the orb and a robe."

Vance plans to break away from Carter's tour in Paris to fly to Budapest. The U.S. delegation will be arriving in the Hungarian capital the day before to take part in the ceremonies.

Vance called it an "extremely appropriate" symbolic gesture, which has had generally favorable reaction throughout the world.

Tokyo Night Life Changes Districts

TOKYO (UPI) — Tokyo's Ginza long has been known as the best entertainment district in Japan. But fast overtaking it as a night-life area is the Roppongi District.

Roppongi means "six trees," but the area, near the Akasaka nightclub district, is a jumble of concrete and steel buildings. Roppongi chiefly caters to the free-spending younger set.

Guerlain Toilet Water Sprays Special Event

For the first time, a special offer of Guerlain toilet water sprays to acquaint you with three classic fragrances... Shalimar, Chamade and L'Heure Bleue.

Shalimar commemorates the love of a man, the Shah Jehan of India, for a woman, the Mumtaz Mahal.

Chamade expresses that incomparable moment when the heart beats wildly at the sight of a loved one.

And L'Heure Bleue, one of Guerlain's most sophisticated perfumes, was inspired by that very romantic time of the day when the sky has lost the sun but not yet found the stars.

Service Agency Seeks To Help Vietnam Veteran

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

More than 4 1/2 years have passed since the last American serviceman left Vietnam, a battle which left its veterans bitter because there were no winners in what many of them say was a political war.

Many of the veterans, drafted at 19 or 20 and now in their late 20s and early 30s, are surviving as well as they can in a society where it has become almost necessary to have a college degree to obtain a good job.

When the Vietnam veteran came back to the United States, that good job or college education seemed elusive.

However some have been successful in making the transition from soldier back into the mainstream of American society.

But others have not been that lucky and found it hard to fit into a society that seemed to hold no understanding of the Vietnam experience. An experience which, Vietnam veterans say, may only be shared with other Vietnam vets.

In Lubbock, the American GI Forum's Veteran's Outreach Program is attempting to bridge the gap between the Vietnam-era veteran and society.

It is trying to help veterans like Fred Ramirez. But for 31-year-old Ramirez, it has been doubly hard to hold onto a good job since he came home from Vietnam with a 100 percent disability.

Ramirez's disability is not apparent, and he worked for three years after his discharge from the service.

"But, it's really hard. I haven't worked steadily since 1972," the young man said. "As soon as they find out you're classified 100 percent disabled, they find some way to get rid of you."

"It's gotten to the point where I don't want to hassle with it. But, I'll keep on trying... some day I'd like to own my own business."

Frank Gutierrez, veterans outreach specialist, said it is extremely difficult for his office to help people like Ramirez. "The problem is once an employer hears that a veteran is 100 percent disabled, he becomes very hesitant to hire him."

"However, the employers must make the jobs available. Without their assistance, we can't do our job," he added.

"I'm of the opinion that if you give a man a chance to achieve, he will perform," Gutierrez said.

Another Vietnam veteran, Esequiel "Curley" Quintana, who returned from Vietnam with a 70 percent physical disability, is grateful for assistance provided by the program.

"It's been hard for me; I've been to the Texas Employment Commission more than 50 times. But, as soon as they find out that you're disabled, forget it," Quintana said. "However, I got my last job through very good recommendations from the counselors at the VOP."

Quintana, 30, has since resigned from his last job and decided to enroll at Texas Tech this month. "I guess anybody can survive, but I don't just want to do that. I want to work to be somebody, and school is just the stepping stone it takes to do that," he said.

Gutierrez and Leopoldo Quirino, VOP counselors and Vietnam veterans themselves, say they've worked with other vets like themselves and understand their problems.

"We want to support all veterans, qualified and unqualified for our services," Gutierrez said. "If we can't help them with their particular problem, we try to refer them to someone who can help them."

He advised veterans that the only way to receive assistance was to apply for whatever is available.

"But, the problem is that some think that we're providing charity for them, and others expect more from us," the counselor said.

The program, headquartered at 2020 4th St., is primarily concerned with helping the unemployed, underemployed or economically disadvantaged veteran.

Unemployment in Lubbock looks good, Gutierrez said. However, he added that unemployment among Vietnam veterans here has reached 20 percent.

"Most of our clients are just seeking a good job," he said. "Many of them have not had the opportunity to go after that college degree or skill necessary to crack the good job market."

Employers may list job openings with the program at no cost. All services are also free to the veteran seeking assistance.

Gutierrez added that Vietnam veterans also have an organization here that offers them a chance to share ideas and problems with other Vietnam vets. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 8537, was begun last spring to bring Vietnam vets together.

"We expect to be addressing lots of issues that are being neglected by the other service organizations," Gutierrez said. "We're expecting a lot from this organization, but we still have a long way to go."

The meetings are held on the first and third Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at the VOP office.

Those desiring more information about the group may contact Gutierrez at 763-5691.

State Law Test Case Seen In Odessa Trial

A-J Correspondent
ODESSA — For possibly the first time in the history of the state a district attorney has called for a special grand jury session to investigate complaints of abuse of elderly people.

The Ector County grand jury meeting Thursday may be a test case of a new state law giving the power to prosecute for abuse of the elderly to the district attorney's office. Previously the power rested with the state.

Ector District Attorney John Green said last week he called for the special session as a result of a four-page memorandum from State Health Commissioner Dr. Fratis L. Duff and a series of articles by the San Angelo Standard Times.

The report and the series chronicled alleged abuse at Western Hills Manor Nursing Home, an Odessa nursing home owned by Heritage Care Center in Dallas.

The report to Green alleged:
— Neglect due to the failure of staff to monitor patient activities and location;
— Licensed nurses did not make rounds after reporting for duty;
— The nursing director was having to assist with the administrative management of the facility and was unable to devote adequate time to train and supervise her staff; and — Improper training of staff and unqualified help.

The report also told of a patient at the home who was missing for several hours. An orderly found her behind closed doors in her wheelchair and she was admitted to an Odessa hospital for serious head injuries. A state official said it was "physically impossible" for her to get through the closed doors.

Green said his office had other complaints not filed in the report, but that the report basically alleged the home "did not have proper equipment, and did not have the proper aides," he said.

"We've found witnesses who will come forward and testify," Green said, adding that the people testifying include some patients, their children and former administrator Floyd Cox.

Cox has said he was fired as Western Hill's first administrator because he refused to cut costs at the expense of patient care, Green said.

Cox, who has been administrator of nursing homes since 1968 and also served as director of the nursing care program for the Arkansas Welfare Department from 1959-1968, is now administrator of a Denton nursing home.

Also under subpoena to testify is Floyd Joyner, the administrator of Western Hills Manor.

Green said he plans to continue a "full-scale investigation" with an agent from the county attorney's office and a Texas Ranger.

The new law, passed during the special legislative session in July, regulates the Hospital District Redefines 'Emergency'

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Diane Wright was frantic when her husband David suddenly started fainting, having spasms and vomiting. She summoned help from Emergency Medical Service (EMS), Lubbock County's tax-supported public ambulance system.

But by the time they arrived, ambulance attendants say, David's condition had subsided. By their account, he was no longer an "emergency" — and so, he was deemed ineligible for EMS transportation to a hospital.

Mrs. Wright was furious, "appalled by the lack of service given by EMS." In an impassioned letter to the Lubbock County Hospital District and various county officials, she demanded action. "Lubbock needs something better than this," she said.

Now the hospital district, which administers EMS, has profusely apologized for the Wright incident. And district officials say steps have been taken to avert such foul-ups in the future.

Gerald Bosworth, the district's executive director, said the EMS definition of an "emergency" may be broadened to include "borderline" cases, such as Wright's.

"The rule we are operating under is, 'When in doubt, decide in favor of the patient.' We've told our EMTs (emergency medical technicians) if they have any questions whether a case is technically an emergency, they should go ahead and transport that patient anyway," Bosworth said.

Sometimes, he noted, there is a "fairly fine line" between emergencies and non-emergencies. And EMTs have done an "overall excellent job" in making the distinction. Mrs. Wright's was the only such complaint since EMS started more than two years ago, Bosworth said.

The Wright incident was discussed briefly last week at a meeting of the administrative committee of the hospital district's board of managers.

Jack Strong, committee chairman, said "borderline" emergency cases require "very tough decisions. No matter which way we go, somebody's likely to get mad at us."

He explained that when the EMS system was conceived, the hospital district made assurances that "we wouldn't handle anything but emergency cases." This was done to minimize the encroachment by the district into the business market of local private ambulance firms, Strong said.

As set up, EMS would attend to all emergencies, and private firms to non-emergency and transfer cases.

In most incidents, such as car accidents and heart attacks, an emergency is easy to define, Strong said. But occasionally the distinction is "much more difficult" — particularly when it appears that a patient's "emergency" condition may have passed.

The latter circumstances seem to describe the Wright incident, hospital district officials said.

In her letter of Dec. 12, Mrs. Wright of 4823 11th St., wrote: "Today was the worst day of my life — partly because of the refusal of two EMS attendants to take my husband to the hospital. I do not understand why they bothered to come if they were not going to help."

Mrs. Wright said she called Medical Arts Clinic, which in turn called EMS to refer them to someone who can help them."

At noon, he began to faint and have spasms and vomit. The blood vessels were protruding on the left side of his forehead. Once when he fainted, he hit the corner of a cabinet and cut his forehead and his nose and blackened his eye.

"All this happened within a 15-minute period. I needed help — he needed help. I was scared."

Mrs. Wright said she called Medical Arts Clinic, which in turn called EMS to the scene.

"They came. I was so relieved when they arrived."

The attendants agreed that David was sick, but said this was not an emergency. I was told to take him to the doctor or hospital myself. I asked what I should do if he had more spasms — flailing his arms or biting his tongue and vomiting... I was told, 'He'll get over it.'"

The attendants offered to help move Wright into the family's car. Or, they said, Mrs. Wright could call Aid Ambulance, a private firm handling non-emergencies. She called Aid.

"And after describing the symptoms, they said I needed to call EMS," Mrs. Wright said.

Finally, some friends drove Wright to a hospital emergency room, where he stayed for four hours and was treated for what was reported to be dehydration. He has since recuperated.

Hospital district and EMS officials admit they were in error in the incident. They said Wright's symptoms seemed to have subsided by the time they arrived. But in hindsight, EMS should have transported the man anyway, they said.

Legal Intern To Assume Consumer Attorney Post

David Ferrell, a December graduate of Texas Tech University School of Law, is in line to become the Lubbock area assistant attorney general for consumer protection.

Ferrell, 29, has been working as a legal intern in the office since July and has been the only person in charge since Clinton Averitte resigned Aug. 31.

Ferrell will not officially become the assistant attorney general until he successfully completes his State Bar Exam.

Until that time, any case which requires litigation will be handled by attorneys in Austin or Dallas.

A native of El Paso, Ferrell was president of the Student Trial Lawyers Association and a member of the Phi Delta Phi law fraternity at Tech.

He received his bachelor's degree in criminal justice from the University of Texas at El Paso and served in the Navy for three years.

Ferrell is married and the father of two children.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
Before I turn the page on 1977, I'd like to take one last glance at the people who brought me such pleasure throughout the year.

Most of them I've never met, but their quotes somehow sustained me in my hour of despair.

There was the letter asking me to address St. Gerard's PTA (St. Gerard being the patron saint of motherhood) with the explanation: "I would have written sooner but my arm was in a cast. I hit a kid and missed." Name withheld due to all the mothers who would push for canonization.

There was the 37-year-old grandmother in Toledo who gave birth to quadruplets. When asked if she had been taking any fertility drugs she answered, "I wasn't taking anything but aspirin."

And a factory worker from Clifton who was walking around a hospital in satisfactory condition after a car fell on his head. He said, "The only thing hurt was my head. I found it will hold up a car. I'm just glad it wasn't a Greyhound bus."

Former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller came up with a goodie: "I've joined Politics Anonymous. It helps you break the habit. Anytime you feel you want to run for public office, you call a certain number and Fanne Foxe comes over and pushes you into the Tidal Basin."

And while we're into politics, how about the quote from Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe who appointed a dead man to serve a three-year term on the state Health Advisory Committee? "It was just a routine appointment," he said. Designer Oscar de la Renta, when asked by a lady (whom he judged to be about a size 96) why he didn't design for fat ladies, answered, "Madam, I am not in the upholstery business."

How about the man in Massachusetts who requested he be buried on the 18th green at the club — so he could offer a friendly hand to tap the ball back toward the green?

There was the juror who refused to serve on a prominent murder case because she'd "miss her water bed" — an 80-year-old woman who wanted to host NBC's Saturday Night Live show because "I want one more cheap thrill before I go," and the Department of Agriculture, which sent their last two mailings by United Parcel Service because "we don't want to take the risk with the U.S. mails."

My favorite laugh was from a schoolboy in Charlotte, N.C., who wrote me for information on myself for a paper. His second letter said, "I must regret your letter did not come in time, so I did a report on Fidel Castro."

Happy New Year.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQ ♠K85 ♣952 ♦AK1073

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Considering partner's reverse and your fitting cards in both his suits, slam is a very real possibility. While we would not blame you if you decided to jump to six hearts, there is a possibility that you have two quick diamond losers. A jump to five hearts will alert partner to your ambitions and, because you did not cue bid diamonds, warn him that you do not have a control in that suit.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A1084 ♠J98 ♣AQJ954

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—What started out as a promising hand has become even better by partner's heart response. Nevertheless, there is no need for you to get hyperactive in the bidding. A quiet one spade rebid now will make it easier for partner to describe his hand properly and will leave you well placed for the subsequent auction.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K762 ♠K84 ♣AK82 ♦J6

Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?
A.—With 14 points and a balanced hand, we wouldn't criticize you severely if you chose to jump to two no trump. However, that may result in missing a 4-4 spade fit. Our choice would be a simple one diamond response, to give partner the opportunity to show a four-card spade suit.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQJ109 ♠AKQ6 ♣754 ♦Q

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three no trump. This may not be the right contract if partner has only one stopper in clubs, but all the other alternatives are fraught with danger. You certainly don't want to support diamonds with three low cards in partner's suit, and a three spade rebid would show a hand with six spades and four hearts. Since the club queen will probably carry its full weight in no trump, a raise to three no trump is the best you can do under the circumstances.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AKQJ ♠952 ♣A83 ♦762

What is your opening bid?
A.—There are those who would advocate opening one club, or even one diamond, with this hand. However, we don't like opening a convenient club with three low cards in the suit.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: A 16-year-old girl wrote to say she was "sick of this house, sick of this town, sick of being under my parents' thumb, sick of being treated like a baby. Sick of being lonely even though I have lots of friends, sick of this lump in my throat, sick of almost running away but losing courage at the last minute, sick of the authorities who don't know the wonders of pot but keep screaming about how harmful it is. Sick of not being able to cry. Sick of needing to be somebody and knowing I never will. Sick of wanting revenge against people who have hurt me. Sick of wondering if I am really insane."

I told her she was sick all right and suggested that she get some help.
My response unleashed an unexpected torrent of letters. Almost no adults wrote — only teens. The thing that amazed me was the very strong feelings expressed on both sides. Here is what my week has been like.

From Vermont: Recently a 16-year-old girl wrote and told you some of the things she is sick of. You told her SHE is sick. Well — I think YOU are sick. I'm 16 and everything she is sick of I am sick of — and so are most of my friends. Either you don't remember your teenage years or you had it real easy. — Just J.

From Des Moines: It's plain that you have no idea of how rough it is to be a teenager today. The girl who wrote sounds very normal to me. I know. — I'm There

From Summit, N.Y.: When I read the letter from that 16-year-old girl it was just as if I had written it. In fact, I HAVE written it mentally, many times. And don't tell me I need professional help. I am perfectly normal. You must have been born 40 years of age. — Boo To You

From Tennessee: Your answer to "16" was cruel and completely lacking in understanding. The emotions she is experiencing are not a sign of mental illness. They are just the everyday, ordinary symptoms of growing up. Teenagers frequently question their sanity. Haven't YOU ever wondered if you are nuts? Or are YOU perfect? — Disappointed

From Boston: Your answers are usually pretty good but that one to the 16-year-old girl was terrible. If she is sick, then three-fourths of the teenagers in this country are, too. — 14 And Right With Her

From Pittsburgh: So she is sick, is she? Well — so am I. I am sick of hearing about poor, abused teenagers. I had a drunken father who used to beat my mother and hit us kids five nights out of seven. We never had enough food in the house. All the money was spent on booze. My life was hell but I made it. I'm 20 now and have no patience with complainers. — L.C.J.

From Mansfield: That 16-year-old has an "I" problem. I counted 20 "I's" in her letter. No wonder she's sick. — Grossed Out In Ohio

From Tampa: That teenage girl who is sick of everything has some screws loose in her head. I love my home, my town, my family, my friends, and I never wanted to run away. I can cry. I want to be somebody someday and I WILL be. I don't smoke pot and have no interest in messing up my head. I know I'm a little bit crazy at times because everybody is. This is a sure sign that I'm normal. — Al- so 16

So — there you have it, folks. Whether you were for me or against me it was a healthy sign that you felt strongly enough about that girl's letter to write.

Is pot a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I hate to throw you a curve, but you can't have all the easy ones. I only sweat on my left side. It is as though someone drew a line from the top of my head down through my body, so that on the left side I sweat and on the right side I don't.

It's not bad in the winter when it is cold, but in the summer it gets quite uncomfortable because I do sweat profusely on the left side. My doctor didn't believe me until I took photographs. He said it might be neurological. What is this and can anything be done to correct it? Can you shed any light on it? — Mr. R.A.

I can only tell you one thing with any certainty — that it is some neurological disturbance. Interference with normal sweating (as on the right side of your body) indicates some interference with the part of the nervous system that controls these functions automatically. Sweating involves dilation of capillaries (tiny blood vessels) near the skin surface, so a vascular problem would be involved, probably as a result of a nerve disturbance.

The cause can be any of a number of diseases that damage nerves. It's an intricate problem requiring a thorough physical examination, including X-rays, to try to pinpoint the nerve involved. As far as immediate causes are concerned, one thinks of diabetes, thyroid-gland deficiency, or any of the vascular diseases.

You will get more answers at a neurological department of a major medical center. If there is one near you, go there. It's a rare condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How come they say all women have some male hormones in their body? — Mrs. T.T.

Because the adrenal glands (possessed by both sexes) produce both types of sex hormones in different amounts. In the male, androgen, which produces male characteristics, predominates. In the female, estrogen does, producing the female traits.

This is why, after menopause, when the ovaries cease producing estrogen, some women may develop mild male characteristics such as unwanted facial hair. The male adrenal hormones have begun predominating slightly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I wake in the morning I have a gagging and choking. It subsides after I have a glass of cold milk or juice, but sometimes it recurs during the day. I have not had my tonsils out, and I wonder if they could be the problem. I am a 32-year-old male. — K.W.

Huge tonsils can allow phlegm to accumulate during the night and cause the gagging when you're in an upright position. It might also result from heavy secretions higher up, as from sinuses or the nasopharynx. Have your throat checked.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The topic of trichomonas was being discussed the other day among several women at coffee break. Someone said the male was the carrier, sometimes without knowing it, and also that he can be contaminated with pork. I cannot buy this remark, but we do not know otherwise. Please set the record straight. — A.L.

Trichomonas vaginitis is a genital infection. Pork-eating has nothing to do with it. Perhaps your informant was confusing this with trichinosis, worm infestation from raw or poorly cooked pork.

The rest of your information appears correct. The male can have the trichomonas infection and practically no symptoms. In women, the parasite produces a heavy odorous vaginal discharge and considerable itching.

Treatment is quite effective. But if there is recurrence the male should be examined. If he had it also, both partners must be treated at the same time.

I'd like to know the subject for the next coffee break.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to him, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to Just Plain Jealous had to be one of your worst! A woman wrote that her husband's firm sends him on business trips in the company of a pretty, young, single female, and she asks you how to handle it. You replied, "What's to handle? Say nothing, continue to trust him; expect the best and you'll probably get it."

Abby, you've got to be kidding! Would you have given the same advice to a jealous husband whose wife had been sent on business trips in the company of an attractive, young, single man?

If ever there was a perfect set-up for hanky panky, this is it! The man will be "lonely" for his wife, and the young woman will start crying on his shoulder about some unhappy love affair, and before you know, they'll be comforting each other — in bed.

I would have told Just Plain Jealous to (a) raise the devil with her husband's boss and insist that they put an end to such tempting business trips, or (b) pack a bag and go with him, even if she had to farm out her kids or hire a sitter.

No Dummy

Dear No: I've been deluged with mail from readers who agree with you. (Only ONE applauded my "trust him" view.) Please consider that Just Plain Jealous stated that her husband had never fooled around. Shouldn't a history of faithfulness inspire trust?

I still maintain that if a man is going to cheat, he'll find a way to cheat on his lunch hour.

Your suggestion to "raise the devil" with the husband's boss would have the man come off looking like an over-protected little boy. And your "pack-your-bag-and-go-with-him" solution would cast him in the role of a weak character who can't be trusted.

DEAR ABBY: Among our Christmas gifts this year, my wife and I received four cards stating that a gift in our name had been sent to such and such charity.

Abby, we don't consider these "gifts." In fact, we resent others contributing to their favorite charities in our names. Most gifts to charities are tax-deductible, which gives the giver — not the recipient — a tax break. (Some "gifts!")

How do you feel about the gift-in-your-name gimmick?

Against It

Dear Against: I'm for it. There are hundreds of worthy organizations that can put the money to good use. (So what if it is tax-deductible?) Most people receive more than they can use at Christmas time anyway.

DEAR ABBY: I noticed your "orchids" to the Yankee Silversmith Inn in Wallingford, Conn., for providing duplicate menus in braille for the blind.

I thought you might like to know that all the elevators at the Holiday Inn, Indianapolis, Ind., airport have the floor numbers in braille.

I had never seen this anywhere and thought at the time that it was a great idea.

C.E.McD: Arlington, Va.

Dear Mr. McD: It is indeed a great idea. When everyone realizes that not all of us can walk, talk, hear and see, and when all public facilities are designed to consider those with handicaps, what a wonderful world it will be!

Problems? Tell them to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, write Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cold Water Washing Helps Thaw Turkey

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Food specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln recommend a cold water method to thaw frozen turkeys.

Immerse the bird in its original wrapper in cold water, changing the water as often as necessary to help speed up the process, they say. They warn that thawing in warm water encourages bacterial growth and spoilage.

The specialists allow about 30 minutes for each six pounds of turkey when using this method.

TURKEY SOUP

Saute 1/2 teaspoon curry powder with 1/4 cup chopped blanched almonds and a little sliced green onion in 1 tablespoon butter. Stir in a can of condensed cream of chicken soup and 1 1/4 cups small turkey pieces — and a little apple sauce, if you have it. Heat and serve with crusty bread to four.

AT HOME — This pink floral print dress is perfect for at home or away. Half cotton and half polyester, this dress buttons down a pleated bodice to a high waistline.

Oswald: "We're starting the thirtieth year of the Jacoby column with an added starter. Alan Sontag of New York, who is 14 years younger than you and 44 years younger than me, will be co-author of the column with me from now on."

Jim: "Alan has been just about the most successful American player the last few years and has also completed a fine book on bridge. He will be a great addition."

Oswald: "Today's hand shows Alan at three notrump. It is a fairly normal contract, but he had a tough problem at trick two."

Jim: "East took his ace of hearts and shifted to the jack of spades. If Alan covered with the queen, West would take his king, lead low to the ten and the defense would have five tricks."

Oswald: "Alan ducked that jack lead, but covered the ten on the next lead. As he explained later, that would have lost the hand if West held the ace-king and ten, but he came to the conclusion that East held both jack and ten. His reasoning was based on that indefinable thing known as 'table presence.' He was there and knew what to do."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Aunt Heloise: I trimmed my dog's whiskers and my mother got very mad at me for doing it. She couldn't tell me why I shouldn't have, only that for some reason it wasn't a good idea.

Can you tell me if my dog really needs her whiskers? — Bill Novelli

Well, I can tell you that my daughter tried the same thing with our little chihuahua and I got after her too.

I called our vet and asked her why dogs and cats need their whiskers.

She replied that dogs and cats use their whiskers to tell how large or small a space they can get their body through. They use them like an antenna or feelers and they sure do need them.

So don't do it again and you will make your mother and me, and your dog happy. — Heloise can do it himself. After all, it will teach them how to iron and if they scorch them it won't show anyway... — Slave-no-more

Dear Heloise: I recycle the beautiful greeting cards that are too pretty to throw away by cutting them the size of a postcard.

After Christmas I use them to thank my students for the gifts they gave me, and children (kindergartners) love getting mail. — Carol Jones

Dear Heloise: Here is how I solved the problem of expensive mattress pads shrinking.

I bought a cheap brand in a queen size, washed it and put it in the drier and, of course, it did shrink but now it fits my double size bed perfectly. — F. Wright

Dear Heloise: My husband had no one to help him take a heavy air conditioner out of the window.

So he came up with the idea of pushing the wheelbarrow in the house by the window, pulling the air conditioner out of the window and putting it in the wheelbarrow.

Then he very easily pushed the wheelbarrow (with the air conditioner on it) out to the garage to where he could clean it and fix it. — Martha R. Bone

Dear Heloise: Since school is now in session, I have a hint that has helped my daughter.

Buy one of those magnetic car key holders from a hardware or auto supply store.

Place one of these in the school locker — any place it can stay safely where the books and coats won't knock it out.

Keep it filled with phone change and anytime after a game, or anytime it's "time to pick me up," there is always phone change. — A. Carpenter

This is a great emergency fund too for most every child has at some time forgotten or lost their lunch money. Saves Mom a trip to the school... — Heloise

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: I have six boys in this abode. It's a mad house when I don't get their shirts ironed so we had a board meeting with the whole family and decided the following:

New Year's Eve Violence Keeps Police Busy Here

While Lubbock was bringing in the new year, police were bringing in a load of drunks as well as looking for suspects in a reported rape and an attempted murder.

About 8 a.m. Sunday police went to the St. Mary's Hospital emergency room, where they met a 21-year-old waitress who told them she had been raped by four men who pulled her into their old, gray pickup about 10 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of 2nd Street and University Avenue.

She said the men stopped alongside a dirt road where two of the suspects raped her. She said she was then taken to a house in the 3000 block of 2nd Street where she was sexually assaulted again. The victim said one of her attackers left, but the other three kept her captive late Saturday and she eventually fell asleep.

The woman told police she awakened Sunday morning, left the house and called for help at a nearby food store.

Three of the suspects were described as "long hairs," and all were said to be wearing blue jeans. The victim said one of the rapists had a tattoo on his forehead and arm.

Irma Y. Garza, 17, of 3103 Baylor St. said she and a friend were fired upon while entering her house about 11:40 p.m. Saturday.

Miss Garza said they were followed home by three Mexican-American men riding in a white pickup-camper.

She said that while she and her friend were starting to enter her house, one of the suspects got out of the pickup and began loading a handgun.

Another man got out of the vehicle parked in front of Miss Garza's residence and began arguing with the man holding the gun. He then snatched the pistol away from the first suspect and began shooting, Miss Garza said.

No one was hurt, police reports show.

but bullet holes were found in the northwest corner of the victim's house.

After stopping a car in the 4900 block of 21st Street last night, police arrested four men for drug possession and carrying firearms.

Reports show an off-duty policeman stopped the suspects' vehicle about 11:45 p.m. Saturday for leaving the scene of an accident at 34th Street and Quaker Avenue. A subsequent search revealed two pistols and substances thought to be illegal drugs.

Christine Johnston of 2200 5th St. told police someone entered her residence between 4:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday and made off with a stereo and telephone. She estimated her loss at about $500.

A checkbook, pair of boots and a pellet gun were reported missing by Steve C. Waller of 2110 20th St. He said the property, valued at about $200, was taken from his vehicle while it was parked at 3111 34th St. Saturday afternoon.

Bob Dozier no longer has his hubeaps after parking his car in front of his 4707 48th St. residence Friday night. Police had no suspects.

Richard Lee Tanner of 1929 73rd St. reported about $500 damage to a vacated house he was renting out at 4904 37th St. He reported doors and an air conditioner destroyed, and garbage strewn through the house.

Manuel De Carosa of 3408 Ave. J said $800 worth of tools were lifted from his home between 6 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

A 46-year-old man was arrested about 2 a.m. Sunday after he was reportedly seen beating his wife in a parked car in the 1900 block of 50th St.

About $500 worth of tools reportedly were taken from the bed of Rodney Gene Payne's pickup while it was parked at 2701 64th St. Sunday morning.

PUPPIES' DAY ON THE BUS — Twenty puppies destined to become guide dogs for the blind hung out on a San Diego Rapid Transit Corp. bus. Golda Meir Hospitalized

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Golda Meir will stay in Bejenson Hospital for a few more days for tests, a spokesman said Sunday.

The 79-year-old Mrs. Meir was brought to the hospital after becoming ill Saturday.

A relative said she had a stomach disorder but hospital spokesman declined to say anything beyond a statement that proper treatment would be determined after completion of tests.

A report in the Yedioth Aharonot newspaper said she was in shock after the loss of blood and body fluids possibly caused by a burst ulcer.

Doctors said there was no indication of a heart problem.

Capital Spending Up For Utilities

NEW YORK (AP) — Capital appropriations by the nation's investor-owned gas and electric utilities rose sharply in the third quarter of 1977 following a steep drop in the second quarter, the Conference Board said Sunday.

Third-quarter utility appropriations amounted to $10.2 billion, a 64 percent gain over depressed second-quarter levels, but still lower than first-quarter appropriations of $10.7 billion, said the organization of business leaders.

The third-quarter upswing resulted in a solid rise in the backlog of unspent appropriations, which climbed to $100.3 billion.

At third-quarter spending pace, utility backlogs would support more than four years of capital spending.

CLARK SELF EMPHASIZES ALL DEPARTMENTS INCLUDED IN SALE

'See Self's And Save' A Sure Fact In Annual Red Tag Sale

"See Self's and Save." Never has this motto been more indicative of the true situation than now at Self's in Slaton, with the big firm's annual Red Tag Sale now in progress. For 35 years, area residents have benefited from this gigantic sale event, a tradition at Self's, on West Garza Street in Slaton. Every department of the huge store is involved, with the entire stock on sale! Not only are the sale prices most inviting, but the items all are recognized for quality, backed by well-known and respected brand names.

including triple dresser, mirror, chest, bed, frame and night stand, regular $695 but now sale priced at $545. (This is all wood, too.) Two Kroehler velvet sofa — loveseat combinations are included. These are heavy, overstuffed, extra thick cushions, in traditional style, regular $1,095 but now an unbelievably low $699. And a Bernhardt dining room group, including lighted hutch, extension table, six chairs, regular $1,589, but now $995. Recliners There are La-z-Boy rocker recliners, a really good stock, starting as low as $144. All Tell City furniture in stock is marked 25 per cent off!

All pictures, lamps and wall accessories are one-third off! Carpet Example of the carpeting bargains includes Georgian cut-and-loop shag carpet, 100 per cent nylon, regular $12.95, installed for $10.95 per yard. Then there are game sets as low as $199, including table and four chairs. Free Delivery Free delivery is a Self feature, and purchase terms are available. "If you are economy-minded and quality-conscious, then we strongly suggest you check item by item at Self's and see for yourself how at any time (and especially during the Red Tag Sale) one can 'See Self's and Save'."

Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions Stages Clearance Sale, 'Largest Of Year'

January Clearance, the largest sale of the year, begins today at Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions, 50th Street at Salem Ave. All fall and winter merchandise in the extensive stock is substantially reduced with 30 per cent savings arranged on most. And there are coats at 50 per cent off, including lots of boys' coats! A banner opportunity for dollar and cents savings on in-season merchandise is recognized with all departments within the store represented in the markdowns. One may select from fall and winter merchandise for infants through student sizes for boys, and from infants through pre-teen apparel for girls.

It is pointed out, for those who may not have recognized the type store afforded by the Grays, that the shop initially was founded as a store carrying top quality apparel for toddlers to size 14 for both boys and girls. Now the stock has been appreciably expanded, with a tremendous selection in pre-teen sizes presented along with the smaller apparel. The pre-teen selection for girls involves the complete wardrobe (with exception of shoes) with choices in tops, pants, long dresses, etc., even sleepwear. Plus accessories. There are few stores that carry such a selection in this age range, and Gray's must be commended for its continuing and successful efforts in stocking this ad-line. Owners and founders Tom Gray and Kay Gray want to express their deep appreciation of the reception and growing trade accorded them. Without this trade and confidence, the present large stock would have been impossible. Great Opportunity For those who may not have yet become acquainted with this distinctive store the current January Clearance affords a banner opportunity. Come in, browse, note the pleasing decor and convenient stock arrangement, and the quality of the merchandise. Even with the large stock, nothing seems "crowded."

Capital Spending Up For Utilities

NEW YORK (AP) — Capital appropriations by the nation's investor-owned gas and electric utilities rose sharply in the third quarter of 1977 following a steep drop in the second quarter, the Conference Board said Sunday.

Third-quarter utility appropriations amounted to $10.2 billion, a 64 percent gain over depressed second-quarter levels, but still lower than first-quarter appropriations of $10.7 billion, said the organization of business leaders.

The third-quarter upswing resulted in a solid rise in the backlog of unspent appropriations, which climbed to $100.3 billion.

At third-quarter spending pace, utility backlogs would support more than four years of capital spending.

CLARK SELF EMPHASIZES ALL DEPARTMENTS INCLUDED IN SALE

'See Self's And Save' A Sure Fact In Annual Red Tag Sale

"See Self's and Save"
Never has this motto been more indicative of the true situation than now at Self's in Slaton, with the big firm's annual Red Tag Sale now in progress.
For 35 years, area residents have benefited from this gigantic sale event, a tradition at Self's, on West Garza Street in Slaton.
Every department of the huge store is involved, with the entire stock on sale!
Not only are the sale prices most inviting, but the items all are recognized for quality, backed by well-known and respected brand names.
Representative Buys
Among the Red Tag specials are: Broyhill colonial bedroom suite; including triple dresser, mirror, chest, bed, frame and night stand, regular $695 but now sale priced at $545. (This is all wood, too.)

Two Kroehler velvet sofa — loveseat combinations are included. These are heavy, overstuffed, extra thick cushions, in traditional style, regular $1,095 but now an unbelievably low $699.
And a Bernhardt dining room group, including lighted hutch, extension table, six chairs, regular $1,589, but now $995.
Recliners
There are La-z-Boy rocker recliners, a really good stock, starting as low as $144.
All Tell City furniture in stock is marked 25 per cent off!

All pictures, lamps and wall accessories are one-third off!
Carpet
Example of the carpeting bargains includes Georgian cut-and-loop shag carpet, 100 per cent nylon, regular $12.95, installed for $10.95 per yard.
Then there are game sets as low as $199, including table and four chairs.
Free Delivery
Free delivery is a Self feature, and purchase terms are available.
"If you are economy-minded and quality-conscious, then we strongly suggest you check item by item at Self's and see for yourself how at any time (and especially during the Red Tag Sale) one can 'See Self's and Save'."

Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions Stages Clearance Sale, 'Largest Of Year'

January Clearance, the largest sale of the year, begins today at Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions, 50th Street at Salem Ave.
All fall and winter merchandise in the extensive stock is substantially reduced with 30 per cent savings arranged on most.
And there are coats at 50 per cent off, including lots of boys' coats!
A banner opportunity for dollar and cents savings on in-season merchandise is recognized with all departments within the store represented in the markdowns.
One may select from fall and winter merchandise for infants through student sizes for boys, and from infants through pre-teen apparel for girls.

It is pointed out, for those who may not have recognized the type store afforded by the Grays, that the shop initially was founded as a store carrying top quality apparel for toddlers to size 14 for both boys and girls. Now the stock has been appreciably expanded, with a tremendous selection in pre-teen sizes presented along with the smaller apparel.
The pre-teen selection for girls involves the complete wardrobe (with exception of shoes) with choices in tops, pants, long dresses, etc., even sleepwear. Plus accessories.
There are few stores that carry such a selection in this age range, and Gray's must be commended for its continuing and successful efforts in stocking this added line.

Owners and founders Tom Gray and Kay Gray want to express their deep appreciation of the reception and growing trade accorded them. Without this trade and confidence, the present large stock would have been impossible.
Great Opportunity
For those who may not have yet become acquainted with this distinctive store the current January Clearance affords a banner opportunity. Come in, browse, note the pleasing decor and convenient stock arrangement, and the quality of the merchandise. Even with the large stock, nothing seems "crowded".

FUNCTIONALLY BEAUTIFUL — Davis R.V. Center shows here how Avion's smooth aerodynamic design cuts wind resistance to a minimum, saving engine strain, improving fuel economy and handling ease. New '78 models are in stock, as are the new Avion Mini Motor Homes, said to be a new standard in luxury, yet affordable.

Davis R.V. Service Center
Pinpointing Year-End Values

"Start the new year right... the Davis R.V. Service Center can help!"
 For example:
 Davis has two 1977 Avion trailers left, and these great units are being marked at clearance prices. (These are 26 ft. and 28 ft. sizes.)
 Also, every Golden Falcon in the rather large stock is being marked at $250 over dealer cost! These good, moderately priced trailers are new '78 models and are stocked by Davis in 22, 26, 31 and 32 ft. sizes, the latter a 5th wheel unit.
 New '78 Avion trailers are now here, as well as two of those great Avion mini motor homes.
 To help one get started right in '78, Davis is marking some accessory items at special low prices... such as Skyliner antennas at $20 off regular price.
 And non-toxic anti-freeze is just $3.95 per gallon.
 The Davis firm (located east from Avenue Q and the Clovis-Amarillo "Y" stocks and presents exceptional values in every department.
 Service is a big asset there, and now is an ideal time for many to have their recreational vehicle units checked before the rush sure to come within just a few months.

 Storage is available, too.
 Aside from the R.V. units, Davis stocks the needed accessories that make for vacation and trip comfort and convenience.
 "See us for your needs in camper and trailer jacks (hydraulic, tongue, stabilizer and stack types); for air conditioners by Frigiking... and for awnings by A & E Systems."
 "From the moment it is installed, an A & E awning becomes a beautiful and functional extension of your R.V., ready to provide shade and shelter wherever you go! Select a size to meet your specific need."
 More about the products and services of the Davis R.V. Service Center:
 Davis is Avion travel trailer dealer for 15 area counties.
 Equalizer hitches are stocked and installed. Installation also is available on air conditioners and awnings.
 The Davis firm services any make or brand of recreational vehicle, and it is wisely suggested that the units be kept in top condition for ready use as vacation and trip opportunities avail themselves.

 More about the Avion: it is designed and constructed very much like an airplane... and very beautiful. It isn't happenstance. The Avion is purposely built as a precision vehicle, with the best workmanship and materials utilizing aerodynamic principles (including lighter weight, greater strength and less wind resistance). There's something very special about an Avion... a lot more than just a pretty face!
 "Come by and learn the absolute truth that Davis R.V. Service Center has everything for the person who appreciates the out-of-doors... everything for the recreational vehicle owner."
 Meet owners-operators Mr. and Mrs. Boots Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Davis and profit accordingly. They opened the center back in mid-1973 and have consistently given their personal attention to every sale and service.
 This personalized type of service has gained a wide and favorable reputation for the Davis R.V. Service Center, 220 Paris Ave., phone 806-747-2781.

Hallie's Thrift Shoppe Providing New Year Wardrobe Economy, Fashion

Was wardrobe expenditure sacrificed for other gifting needs during the holiday season?
 Is your clothing budget less than preferred?
 The answer to either likely will focus attention on a sensible solution... recognition of Hallie's Thrift Shoppe as a great place to trade.
 Hallie's Thrift Shoppe, 3510 Ave. Q, can appreciably aid the fashion need and the economy need "for you, too" in every season of the year.
 It's a reality: One can beat inflation, beat the rising apparel costs, by depending upon Hallie's Thrift Shoppe for the right apparel at lowest prices.
 At Hallie's Thrift Shoppe there is lots of new merchandise plus consignment items that are strictly "first class" that can be a smart solution to the wardrobe budget.

 With the seasonal expenses now present, and with the increased costs at every hand, it is exciting to find a firm that can greatly reduce some of this cash outlay.
 One can dress smartly for every season, and at a cost "that can be lived with," thanks to Hallie's Thrift Shoppe's full selection and unique business concept.
 Hallie's, primarily a resale shop for better merchandise, has been at its present 3510 Ave. Q location (with off-street parking) more than four years, with owner-operator Hallie Payne formerly at another Avenue Q location for five years.
 Special-occasion apparel and fantastic buys in winter and party clothing are now available.

The exceptional stock, attractively displayed with plenty of room for selection and fitting, involves top quality new and nearly new formal wear, school and street wear, etc.
 There are clothes for the entire family (sold on consignment) and the prices are most appealing.
 "If you have items suitable for consignment, call Hallie's at 744-6772 for appointment and arrangements."
 Though a wide stock is on hand, Hallie's at the present especially solicits consignments of top quality and fashionable long dresses and men's wear.
 New merchandise from area stores also is stocked by Hallie's.
 Easy off-street parking at both front and rear is just one of the conveniences at Hallie's Thrift Shoppe.

SIDE-LOADING CONTAINER SERVICE ADVANTAGES CITED BY FABIT

Side-Loading Refuse Container Service Available From Fabis

"Greetings for the new year from Fabis, a company that can work for you."

"We at Fabis are especially mindful of the friendships, confidences and patronage of past years, and we look forward to further opportunities of serving."

Refuse Service is a key sector of the Fabis Corporation scope of services, some may conceivably not yet realize.

Providing side-loading container service, the Refuse Service Division services a growing number of enthusiastic area customers who appreciate the convenience and reliability.

Recently, this containerized refuse service, including containers and pickup, has been initiated in Wolforth, with Fabis doing the job.

Fabis's commercial refuse service likely can benefit many others in the region; let us explain full details.

Well established and known for its versatility in custom fabrication, manufacturing of complete machines or parts, the Refuse Service, as announced by Clyde A. Blakeley, president, can be of special benefit to commercial and industrial accounts in Lubbock and neighboring communities.

The Refuse Service Division is geared to manufacture, sell, lease and service refuse containers.

The service is unique in that it uses new automatic side-loading container dumping equipment. Company officials state that the new equipment is better suited for use in narrow alleys or curb-side container installations and that it does not spill as much trash as front-loading container systems.

Lubbock Owned-Operated

Refuse Services Division is headquartered at the Fabis Corporation location at 1408 N. Quirt Ave.

The division is managed by O.T. "Ted" Ratcliff IV who is a 1971 graduate of Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in Industrial Engineering.

"Refuse Services Division's side-loading container service is cleaner, faster and quieter."

Furthermore, there is provided one source for:

(1) Dependable refuse container service with the best equipment.

(2) Container purchasing, front or side loading containers.

Safety, Speed Involved

Advantages of the side-loading equipment are quite evident, Blakeley and Ratcliff point out:

It spills far less trash than front-loading systems, especially in windy weather.

Safety is another big factor, as the truck doesn't back, it just stops, dumps, then goes on, and the driver can see the container during the entire operation.

If noise is a factor, consider the advantages of a container held firmly and handled gently, without banging and clattering and with far less damage to the container.

Fabis knows its business; it holds process and apparatus patents in the refuse services field . . . and it is locally owned.

"Establishment of this division with its wide range of services, provides the first opportunity commercial users have had locally for side-loading refuse services." For small businesses, apartments, etc., the advantages are evident.

Meets Other Needs

The unique services of Fabis include engineering and development of prototypes or production models, metal production models, metal shearing, bending, hole punching, rolling, welding, shape cutting, grinding, painting, assembly and wiring, etc.

For custom fabrication, the name to know and remember and depend upon is Fabis.

For wide versatility in custom fabrication, from simple to the most complicated demands, manufacturing of complete machines or parts in small quantities or in large production runs, Fabis Corporation, North Quirt at Loop 289, is the answer.

Serving Today's Needs

The firm has been especially busy in fabricating for new plants and for plant expansions, with such needs as hand rails, walkways, ladders, stairs, etc., with each designed for utility and many to meet OSHA requirements.

The capabilities of the firm are many, even including shearing 12 ft. material and bending the same size.

A 225-ton press brake is one of the equipment items enabling Fabis Corp. to exercise such capabilities.

Correct and adequate machinery in the shop are prime items in the variety of quality-work turned out by Fabis Corp., enabling custom shearing, bending, channel and angle work, etc., for contractors and warehousing needs.

Stocks Parts

Fabis Corp. stocks parts and provides service for all its products, also.

Adherence to close tolerances is standard procedure at Fabis. With experienced management and the best machinery available, Fabis Corp. has the capability of precision fabrication work. Accurate, precise work is the rule and the result is better quality products that look better and work better. This highest quality costs no more!

In order to do this best possible job and maintain a high volume of production, Fabis Corp. is equipped with the best shear and press brake available.

A five-ton bridge crane serves the entire 6,000 sq. ft. production area and helps speed the work and keep material handling costs down.

Fabis Corp. gives your work its undivided attention.

"Let Fabis prove its ability! Your work can be done with us for a quoted contract price or on an hourly basis."

Lubbock Floor Covering Commences January Clearance Savings Tuesday

January Clearance begins tomorrow, Tuesday, at Lubbock Floor Covering, 2144 19th St. in Lubbock.

(Lubbock Floor Covering will be closed today in observance of the New Year holiday.)

The big, annual sale means that among the special bargains provided are:

●Bedspreads, custom-made drapes, counter tops, even ceramic tile, terrazzo and Mexican tile, all at a big 25 per cent discount!

Whatever the carpet or decorating need, Lubbock Floor Covering is worthy of consideration, and the firm is happy to include the current specials in its wishes for a bountiful New Year for all.

Pre-market specials currently are posted on the very, very good carpet stock.

Financing up to 36 months is available, with no money down.

Lubbock Floor Covering, the "Mister Carpet" firm at 19th Street and Avenue V, works hard to please!

The ever-expanding services, together with continuation of tremendous stock at prices to appreciate, proves the firm's consideration of the customer.

"And did you realize that Lubbock Floor Covering even installs hardwood floors?"

Full Service

Some may not yet realize that a full service — for coordinating one's vinyls, counter tops, carpet and even window treatment — is the exciting situation at Lubbock Floor Covering.

Kathy Miller, specialist in interior design, is a valuable staffmember, as many have discovered, bringing outstanding qualifications and a capacity for service that results in greater customer help.

She is of special aid in color consultation, assisting in proper and pleasing coordination of drapes and carpet, for example.

Bob Hendon at Lubbock Floor Covering points out some other items of special interest:

New shipments of carpet are evident in the showrooms, and more are on the way! Whatever one's carpet need and preference, there is no problem in price, selection or availability at Lubbock Floor Covering.

(Also note the selection of original oil paintings stocked to aid in decor coordination and new life for any room.)

And remember . . . Kathy Miller is glad to go into the home, even measuring for installations, glad to assist in problems where qualified advice is of prime value. She is glad to work with the home resident, answering design questions and assisting in planning of a decor to please — for the winter season ahead and for seasons to come.

"Come in, meet Kathy Miller at Lubbock Floor Covering, and you will discover how she, Bob Hendon and the other staffmembers have established themselves as leaders in service — to your benefit.

Lubbock Floor Covering in recent months has made other significant strides, including remodeling and rearranging.

Cabinet Tops

Also the merchandise variety has been expanded, with the custom-made drapes and custom cabinet tops now included in the scope of operation.

Shades

Shades and woven woods are other available products of note.

Don't overlook this fact — an extremely good selection of carpet is traditional at Lubbock Floor Covering. (New, exclusive lines have been added to the already significant list.)

Each staffmember is devoted to service, knowing his or her business and taking personal interest in every transaction.

Mrs. Camp's Catering Services Proving 'Tops' In Convenience

Wouldn't dependence upon Mrs. Camp's Pastries be a good resolution in assuring mealtime enjoyment throughout the new year?

Not only are delicious pastries available, but in 1977 announcement was made that Mrs. Camp's Catering Services also are available!

So... if a wedding looms within the weeks ahead, or if there is an anniversary, shower, business or club gathering that would be made more memorable, a greater success with expert catering, then Mrs. Camp's should enter the picture.

Imagine... everything for a complete wedding reception, including the most beautiful cakes ever, punch, nuts, finger sandwiches, mints, coffee, silver service, the complete bride's table! Yes, complete table decorations including flowers, candelabras and everything.

And... still at Mrs. Camp's, 4005 34th St., phone 792-2343, the solution to every party need is presented... for pastry goodness any day and for the most elaborate of special occasions.

"Come by, view and select, and learn for yourself why Mrs. Camp's continues to serve in an outstanding manner that proves of extra benefit on special occasions, together with service throughout the year."

Although a large stock always is in the cases at Mrs. Camp's, special orders and special decorating requests for "your special situation" are heartily welcomed and encouraged at the modern 4005 34th St. bakery.

Aside from the delightful products, attention also is called to the attractive, convenient and modern quarters of Mrs. Camp's, all designed for maximum customer service, at 4005 34th St.

Every operation at the facility is for finest preparation, display and service related to superior bakery products.

The modern home is thoroughly in keeping with a steady progression of improvements and expanded services of the veteran firm.

"Come by, inspect the premises, note the conveniences, and become one of the growing family of Mrs. Camp's customers who recognize the tastiest in pastries and know where to get them!"

Mrs. Camp's is truly outstanding in specialty baking.

Specializing in custom orders, Mrs. Camp's "does one job better," concentrating all efforts at this one location and this one field.

The custom party cakes, wedding cakes, anniversary cakes and many other products are not only the most delicious to be found, but they are veritable works of art. The skilled decorators create designs or use the customers' design in cakes for special occasions, baking and preparing on as little as one-day notice.

Twelve different types of cookies are baked daily.

Only fancy pecans are used in the nutty cookies—no other nuts are used.

Nine pie varieties are baked daily, including fruit, chess, pecan, cream and whipped cream.

French pastries also have made a lot of friends for Mrs. Camp's.

Cakes and other bakery goodies are stacked in the cases at all times, and many decorative creations are in stock, sometimes eliminating need of special orders for a particular occasion.

Wedding cakes are delivered within the Lubbock city limits.

Mrs. Camp's operates on both retail and wholesale basis, selling wholesale to institutions only.

'Significant Price Reductions' Mark
 Spring Crest Draperies January Sale

A lot of people have become acquainted during the past year with Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock, Briercroft Shopping Center, 5302 Ave. Q.

Now comes the firm's first Annual January Sale, beginning tomorrow, Jan. 3, and continuing throughout the month.

Among the truly fantastic buys are:

A full 20 per cent off on all fabrics from the very good stock, with some reduced even more... to 50 per cent!

And all woven woods are marked at 15 per cent off.

"So... if looking for something better for your home, for your parents' home or for a son, daughter, brother or sister, then it is time to discover just how very much Spring Crest can do for you!"

Opened in July by the very personable and knowledgeable husband-wife team, Ben and Brenda Powell, this home-owned and home-operated firm has much that is new in this area.

This relatively new but well received drapery store is exclusive dealer for the Spring Crest hardware in the Lubbock area. It is a franchise dealership and consequently passes on the advantages of mass buying power and the 17-year experience of nationally-known Spring Crest to its customers.

Why is Spring Crest different?

Actually, Spring Crest Spring-Pleated Custom Draperies are the neatest hanging draperies in the world because they actually hang from a steel spring inserted in the top hem, with no crinoline headers to get soft and fall apart. They must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated."

Furthermore, aside from their beauty and simplicity, they are competitively priced.

Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock stocks a complete line of drapery fabrics.

Free estimates are given for home or business.

A large line of decorator rods is stocked.

There is 10-year warranty on drapery hardware.

Only three to four week delivery time is involved for the custom made drapes.

Also available are woven woods, shades, shutters, custom bedspreads and the Classique metal blinds.

Drapery hardware is stocked for the "do it yourself" trade, too, with its simplicity lending itself to ease in installation.

Crestrand, the alternative to sheers (the elusive sheer that is different and popular) is stocked. It is beautiful, unique and thoroughly different.

BankAmericard and Master Charge purchase plans are welcomed at Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock, located in Briercroft Center, between Earl Ray Music Co. and Maxine's Accent; with plenty of off-street, at-the-door parking for customer convenience.

And remember this:

"No matter what your style, Spring Crest can dress your windows better; these custom draperies add elegance to the most formal setting, but also can be the perfect finishing touch to a casual room. These unusual draperies are formed by threading a spring steel pleater through a narrow hem at top of the material. Result: a drapery that hangs beautifully with rounded, supple folds rather than the sharp, stiff edges of conventional pleated draperies."

Village Craft Corner Slates Impressive Workshop, Classes

A very outstanding workshop and class schedule, involving staff and guest instructors, ushers in the new year at Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall.

(Also not to be minimized is the good selection of picture frames now marked at 25 per cent off!)

Really exceptional opportunities are afforded in the instruction program at Village Craft Corner.

Early Workshop

Some openings still are available for the Georgia Bartlett workshop beginning Jan. 9, continuing on Jan. 10, 12 and 13, with sessions from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. on the announced dates.

Georgia specializes in florals, and her work has been shown in numerous galleries including the Elegante Gallery, Odessa; Frame Gallery, Lubbock; and the Garland Lott Gallery in Plainview.

She is art instructor in the Abernathy High School, and Village Craft Corner feels most fortunate in including her among the presentations of really qualified personalities in their field. She has made a watercolor copy of the original wallpaper used in the Barton Ranch House, now at the Texas Tech Museum, and the copy was sent to New York where it was printed, enabling the museum to restore the Barton House to its original decor.

"Poppies" will be the subject of a 16 x 20 canvas oil at the impending January workshop.

Classes Being Formed

Numerous classes resume at Village Craft Corner, beginning in mid-January, and the highly qualified and well recognized staff includes Barbara Bibberry, tote, miniatures and oil canvas; Mac Carrow, portraits, oils; ElWanda Ketron, landscapes and florals in oil; Jeannie Elliott, oils at all levels; Danny Gamble, watercolors; and Paul Wylie, western art, landscapes and sculpture.

Early inquiry is urged regarding inclusion in any of these classes.

As in the past, early arrangements are necessary due to the wide demand for participation in the Village Craft Corner workshops and classes.

Full details will be gladly furnished, including schedules and additional information regarding each instructor.

"It would seem that Village Craft Corner has outdone itself for the new year arranging a truly outstanding instruction schedule at a shop already known for comprehensive schedules."

(And don't fail to recognize that scads of craft, art and hobby supplies are stocked in the big shop.)

Business & Industrial Review

ENTHUSED ABOUT SALE — Among those on hand at Linda Givens' semi-annual sale beginning today, are owner Linda Givens and staff members G's, in Sunshine Square, ready for the firm's semi-annual sale. Laura Fennell, Ruth Ann Crumpton and Modean Clayton.

Semi-Annual Clearance Event Beginning Today At Linda G's

It is Semi-Annual Sale time — clearance time — at Linda G's, 50th Street at Salem Avenue, in Sunshine Square. Beginning today (with the store open regular hours), this sale opportunity affords fall and winter merchandise at tremendous savings. Actually, the sale involves all fall and winter apparel, from regular stock, at savings of 20 per cent to a whopping 75 per cent. (Note again that all is regular merchandise, with no special promotional items secured for the sale.) One may select from street dresses, long dresses, jump suits, coordinates, a good stock of sweaters, and more. Fashion rightness was never more evident, in the current-season items included in the sale, or in the galaxy of spring wear arriving daily. Ultra Suedes — Be sure and see the many spring hues received, and also note the new Ultra Suede from Herbert Levy, presented in new spring colors. Room must be made within the store for these items, and consequently the fall and winter merchandise is marked just as low as possible. "Name" lines are the rule, for every season, at Linda G's, and the shop stocks a large selection in apparel, sizes 6-18 for the missy and young career girl. Each item is absolutely the newest in fashion, appealing to the discriminating and value-minded. Linda Givens, owner, shares the enthusiasm of the current stock and the sale that is beginning today, and invites early shopping for best selection. "Find out for yourself the superiority that is Linda G's: shop and save during the Clearance Sale commencing today."

Gary's Frozen Foods Products Add Nutrition, Zest To Menus Of Area

"A good meal can become an 'out-standing' one if Gary's Frozen Food products have a place on the menu!" And likely at no time of the year can Gary's products be more appreciated and enjoyed than in the post-holiday season as a change of pace from the rich foods of the festive occasions. "We're hearing some mighty good things about Gary's Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight, newest of the Gary's family of products!" "Shouldn't you find out for yourself how this and other of the firm's fine products fit into your menu for finest in nutritious food? Discover how Gary's provides the best in barbeque, corn dogs, super dogs, custom cooking, and more. Custom Cooking Gary's is glad to custom prepare any meat, at any time, whether it is wild game or whatnot. Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritious goodness. Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef Brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. Whether the occasion is a festive meal, a Sunday dinner or even a snack, or a birthday party, one can profit from dependance upon the home-owned, home-operated Gary's Frozen Food firm and its products. The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef steak and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat. This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label. The 10-pack Corn Dogs have met with exceptional response. Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry. Also, one still can get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef Brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket. The many quality products and services from Gary's has made possible the continued growth of the firm, thanks to loyal customers who appreciate good food and Gary's sincere desire to please. The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace. These products, long recognized as the finest obtainable, are prepared in the modern, enlarged, functionally attractive quarters for Gary's, specifically designed and built for service, in south Lubbock. Every Gary's Frozen Foods product is an experience in goodness! School children, their parents and a lot of other people (unexpected guests included) can attest to the deliciousness of Gary's Super dogs, corn dogs — and the Gary's Bar-B-Que package available on retail basis. Gary's Frozen Foods products are U.S.D.A. inspected every day, insuring the use of the best meats and finest in preparation.

A & J Blind And Shade Shop Posting Month-Long Specials

What an advantage, now when one desires home improvements but still must consider the budget that so often is strained at this time of year. It is the announcement from A & J Blind & Shade shop, 1917 19th St., that special January savings have been posted. For the month of January there is 20 per cent off on the popular Del Mar woven wood shades. This represents true quality at a substantial savings. Also... there is more: A & J is discounting its mini-blinds a comparable 20 percent at this time! When one can secure famous-name lines at lowest price... from a firm that puts the emphasis on value throughout the year, then it would seem that now is a very good time to act... and profit. Quick service on all custom shades is a longstanding practice at A & J. Thanks to A & J, addition of new beauty to the home need not be prohibitive in price, discount or not, in any season. When the need calls for shutters, laminated shades, venetian blinds, draperies, custom-made window shades, light-proof shades — all the new woven woods and the popular one-inch Riviera blinds, a superior product, service and fast attention all are assured at A & J Blind & Shade Shop, "the shadiest business in town." Service Emphasized For a fact, the newest in materials and patterns, with equal emphasis on service and lowest possible prices, is the correct image and reputation of this firm that can be of exceptional service when it comes to home and business improvements. A lot of area residents can attest to this fact. Remember... woven wood shades are a popular offering of the firm, especially at this time of year, and they can be most attractive. And A & J has the eye-pleasing, easy-to-keep Riviera Slim Line (only 1-inch) venetian blinds that are available in almost a hundred colors. Drapes Quick service on drapes is another of the many advantages at A & J Blind & Shade Shop, 1917 19th St. Venetian blind repair is another specialty. There are transparent shades stocked, striped shades in nine colors and up to 72-inch widths, and others. The shop comes through with the greatest variety in window shades one could imagine, with over 50 colors in beautiful fabrics and stripes. Scores of colors and patterns in the new woven wood fabrics in roll-up shades are available. Supplies are stocked for the do-it-yourself handyman, too, and laminated material by the yard, shade rollers, etc., are stocked.

Billie Jo's School Of Dance
Beginning Spring Enrollment

It's a child's world, and the pitter-patter of dancing feet is the sound around Billie Jo's School of Dance at this time of year... as everyone is preparing for the new spring enrollment period that starts now, continuing through the month of January.

Eight teachers, all specialized in their field, already are preparing the annual recital held at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

There are costumes to be made, scenery to be designed, and the details of choreographing and staging the recital to be worked out. Each teacher is specialized and knows his or her job to perfection.

Skilled Staff
Marilyn Campbell and Brenda Woods, Billie Jo and Tracy Inglis head up the gymnastic department. Balance beam and tumbling are included to give the students a variety of opportunities.

Sherry Allen heads up the jazz department. Sherry is very versatile and she is great with the pre-schoolers and makes a big hit with all her students. Sherry, a former Apache Belle, teaches baton, pom-pom routines and is also great in gymnastics.

Billy Jo teaches the tap department. She has been instructing in Lubbock for 19 years. Before that time she spent two years in show business, traveling with a troupe called "Jimmy Barnes and His Girl Friends." There were four girls and Jimmy.

"Those were some fun years," says Billie Jo, "but I like teaching much better, it is fun to watch the kids work and observe their talents grow and develop. This is a real satisfaction to me."

"Kay Hobbs will be returning to the staff, but after 10 years of teaching with this group she is going to cut her hours down. Kay has four children of her own, and she is a fantastic mother, as well as a great teacher. We at Billie Jo's understand a mother's place is at home, at least some of the time, so Kay will only be teaching a few private students one night a week."

Sherry Wines will be returning for the second year to head the ballet department. Sherry is a member of the Lubbock Civic Ballet; she has her Bachelor of Arts degree in dance from Texas Tech. Sherry loves to teach dance as well as to perform. She has performed in the musicals Showboat and Carousel and the full-length ballet, Coppelia.

Marilyn Campbell returns for her second year to the staff, teaching tumbling, acrobatics and ballet, modern jazz and pre-school combinations. Not only is Marilyn a super teacher, but she also is a great performer. She can sing like a lark and can dance like a trooper. Marilyn travels to Ralls one day a week and teaches there. She has her voice teacher, Dovey Barron, one day a week coming to her studio and working with voice students here in Lubbock. Marilyn is "one busy little lady."

Carla Mullier will be new to the staff, out by no means new to the studio. Carla has been with Billie Jo's since she was three years old and is now going to teach several classes of her own.

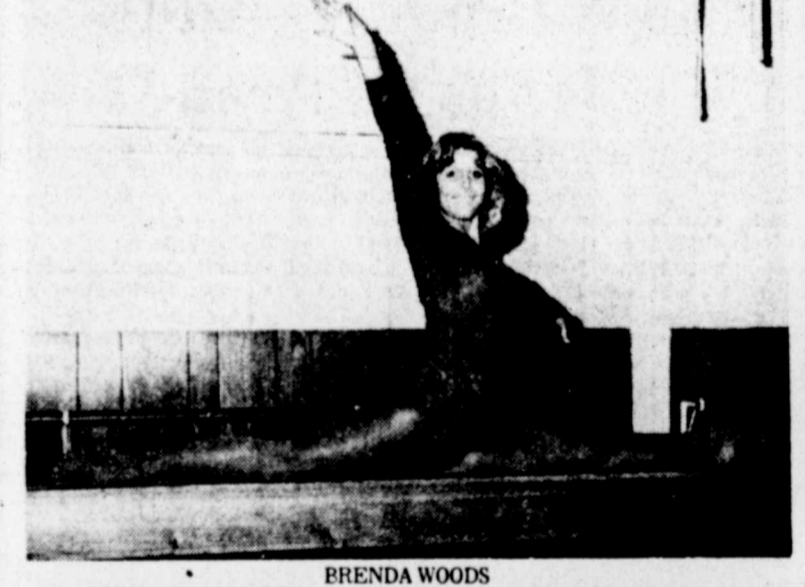

"Welcome to the staff, Carla," Tracy Inglis will be returning to help Billie Jo with her tumbling classes. Tracy has been teaching with Billie Jo four years and always makes a big hit with the students.

Subjects taught at Billie Jo's are tap, ballet, modern jazz, tumbling, balance beam and baton, with special pre-school combination classes.

All teachers at Billie Jo's are specialized in the subject they teach. Call 795-0108 or stop by 4228 Boston Ave. for full information.

'Old Pelican' Howard Hunt Ready To Forget Watergate

MIAMI (AP) — "Let me get on to another life that is not Watergate-related," says E. Howard Hunt who, almost a year after completing his Watergate prison sentence, has remarried and resumed his career as a writer of thrillers.

"Watergate is over with. It's finished. Let's get on to new things," Hunt said in an interview at his Miami home where he is working on his 54th adventure novel.

Three days before Christmas, Hunt married Laura Martin, 31, of Albany, Ga., a Spanish teacher whom his daughter befriended in Spain several years ago. Hunt's first wife, Dorothy, died in a 1972 plane crash, and he met Miss Martin while he was in prison in northern Florida.

Hunt smiled at his bride and said, "Just like an old Faulkner story. Georgia girl, Florida boy."

Since the end of his 32-month prison term last February, Hunt told the Miami Herald, he has visited his parole officer once a month to report "whether I've been arrested during the month, that sort of thing." He had been given a 2½-to-8-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine for leading the burglars at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington in 1972.

He had to give up skeet shooting because he can't own guns. His right to vote can be restored only by a presidential pardon.

Although his life has become more normal in some ways, Watergate still stamps him. Two or three times a week, he said, "someone will come up and make themselves known to me, give me their cards, tell me they want to be helpful if I need anything and so forth, and it's just very nice."

Then there are the pickets at the universities whose "Crime Does Pay" signs refer to his $2,000 lecture fee.

Referring to the label of "Watergate burglar" that is often used to describe him, Hunt said, "I don't like being called a criminal. It seems to me that I am an ex-criminal. A criminal to me is a practicing criminal, like a lawyer is a practicing lawyer."

"When a lawyer has been disbarred, then he's an ex-lawyer. I haven't exactly been disbarred from the practice of criminality, but I've abandoned it.

"I shouldn't be required to carry that burden, like, who was it, Sisyphus? Who had to push the millstone up the mountain every day, and then he was released and the next day he had to start all over again?"

"I really shouldn't be required. I did that for almost three years in prison, and enough is enough."

In addition to his writing and lecturing, he has taken up scuba diving and painting.

The office in his suburban home where the onetime CIA agent writes his spy thrillers is cluttered with pelicans, including carved and painted ones.

"In Little Havana (a Miami neighborhood) they kept calling me El Viejo Pelicano (the old pelican)," Hunt said. "I couldn't understand why until someone told me that when the storm comes (a pelican) tucks in his wings, sticks it out and weathers the storm instead of flying away. EVP, that's how I sign myself to some friends."

Marijuana Raiders Hit Oregon Coast Target

BANDON, Ore. (AP) — The unpatrolled expanses of Oregon's 400-mile Pacific shoreline may no longer prove a haven for dope smugglers, federal officials said Sunday following the biggest marijuana bust in the Northwest.

Frank Grimes, director of the patrol division for U.S. Customs in Oregon, said officials have suspected for three years that dope smuggling was popular on the Oregon coast.

Fifteen men were arrested and about eight tons of marijuana valued at more than $16 million were seized in a pre-dawn land and sea raid Saturday in rural Coos County.

The men arrested were from California, New Jersey, Colorado, Massachusetts, Illinois, Texas and Washington. They were held without bail in Coos County jails on smuggling-related charges pending arraignment Tuesday before a federal judge in Portland.

Federal and local officers continued to search the wooded shoreline for more suspects, including the owner of the beach farmhouse where the raid occurred south of Bandon in Southern Oregon.

"We just opened our Coos Bay patrol office Dec. 6," said Grimes. "This is the only office on the coast between San Francisco and Seattle. We've been wide open, the soft underbelly of the coast."

"It's been extremely tough to operate with no one on the coast," Grimes said. "We finally got someone there, and, boom!"

He said the marijuana seized was in the form of expensive "Thai sticks" and probably came from Singapore or Bangkok.

"It's potent stuff and we figure we have around eight tons of it," Grimes said.

The street value of the marijuana is $16 million to $20 million, according to Michael Wright, special agent in charge of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration office in Eugene.

"There is no question that it was the largest seizure of marijuana ever made in Oregon and Washington," said Wright.

Wright estimated that the successful raid involved the cooperation of about 150 persons from the U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Customs, Coos County and Curry County sheriffs' office and Coos Bay and Bandon police.

A small freighter, two World War II-era amphibious vehicles and several trucks also were seized in the raid. Coos County officials said the marijuana was under armed guard at the North Bend Air Station and most of it would be destroyed today.

Coast Guard Cmdr. George Passmore said officers had observed suspected drug smuggling on the beach for several hours before a flare was fired at 4:48 a.m. Saturday to trigger the raid.

He said two Coast Guard helicopters flew over the beach and were fired at from the ground. A 100-foot vessel with Panamanian registry, identified as the Cigale, was observed close to the shore unloading crates into the amphibious craft.

The Cigale was chased by the Coast Guard while officers on shore tried to round up the fleeing suspects, Grimes said.

Nothing Cards Promote Cash

DENVER (UPI) — The many benefits of Nothing Cards, which have recently surfaced in Colorado, include a cheerful feeling at the sight of a mailman, no end-of-the-month bills and use of a currency acceptable in all stores.

The product of a Sherman Oaks, Calif., company, the Nothing Card proudly bears the picture of former President Millard Fillmore on the front and an explanation of the plastic card's uses on the back.

"The Nothing Card is absolutely good for nothing," reads the list of participating stores and restaurants. From a brochure said some of the suspects were found in the woods and a couple were caught hitchhiking on a nearby road.

The Cigale was empty when the Coast Guard overtook it about five miles off shore. Five men were discovered in a life raft and taken into custody. Passmore said attempts had been made to scuttle the freighter, but a damage-control party stopped the flooding and towed it to shore.

chance accompanying the $2.85 card, holders learn the possible uses include a "Go now, pay now" trip.

The booklet points out that users of cash instead of credit cards enjoy many benefits, including universal acceptance, no service charges and freedom from huge bills.

"When people ask you why you don't panic when the mail is delivered, show them your Nothing Card," read the instructions. "And the only thing that comes in the mail after your vacation are the pictures. No bills to destroy the memories."

Pair Celebrates Survival Of Desert

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) — A man and a woman who spent Christmas Eve sleeping in their downed private plane in the barren Baja California desert flew home New Year's Eve, and told a harrowing tale of their week-long battle to survive the wilderness.

"We sure didn't have a good Christmas, but we're going to have a great New Year," said Ron Whipple, 30, who, with his friend, Jo Dalley, 26, were rescued by a U.S. Air Force plane that spotted them Friday.

A few pounds lighter but in good condition, they survived by drinking rain water that they collected in jars and eating "absolutely horrible tasting" mussels that they found on the coast near Punta San Carlos.

A constant cloud cover and steady rain had made it impossible for passing planes to see them, and the emergency radio signals they sent were not monitored.

Their holiday misadventure began Dec. 19 when they rented a single-engine Piper Cherokee for a leisurely vacation tour of the Mexican coast. Whipple, a former Navy pilot, and Miss Dalley, who teaches at a naval school, made it to La Paz in Baja, Dec. 23.

But when they tried to fly back to Tijuana they ran into bad weather and "figured we better find a place to land so we made a run at a little dirt strip," said Whipple.

They landed but found they were in a vast wasteland with rain limiting their visibility. They tried to take off again after several hours but the bad weather forced them to return to the dirt strip.

When no planes from either the United States or Mexico came to their rescue, they trudged through the mud, looking for a village, walking all night. They found nothing and walked back to the plane.

They slept in the tiny plane Christmas Eve.

"We were starving," said Whipple. "We walked down to the beach the next day, climbed down a cliff and saw some mussels. We roasted them over a fire. We ate the absolutely horrible tasting things."

The next few days they stayed by the plane, playing cribbage, hoping their emergency signals would be picked up.

Last Tuesday Whipple began walking to look for civilization, leaving Miss Dalley behind.

He walked two days and two nights and found nothing but an abandoned mud hut, but it contained "hard corn, pinto beans, peppers and water," which he boiled and ate. He kept walking, "got hysterical" at one point and "fell into a little ravine that was full of cactus and got needles all over my body."

At the plane, Miss Dalley said, she was surrounded by coyotes at night who forced her to remain inside the craft.

On Friday, the Air Force plane passed by and she contacted it by radio.

"I was jumping up and down on the wing of the plane, screaming as loud as I could," she said. Whipple, meanwhile, had reached a small fishing village, where some men fed him and drove him by truck back to the plane.

Later in the day, the Air Force plane brought Whipple and Miss Dalley food, blankets and gas, and the couple flew home.

Producer Sues Art Dealer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Game show producer Ralph Andrews traded his platinum wristwatch, Edison phonograph and elephant tusks for letters reported to be from Robert E. Lee and George Washington.

But Andrews now says the letters are not genuine and he wants his goodies back.

Andrews, in a $2 million Superior Court suit filed Thursday, said art dealer George Pollack assured him the documents — a letter from Lee to his troops dated April 10, 1865, and an April 14, 1789, letter from Washington accepting the nomination as the United States' first president — were real.

But after the trade, Andrews said, he had the letters appraised and learned they were facsimiles and only worth about $20.

Other documents he received in the deal were genuine, Andrews said, but he still wants the whole trade invalidated.

Among the items Andrews traded were two platinum and diamond wristwatches, an armoire, a Degas pastel drawing, an exercise bicycle, an Edison phonograph and some rare coins.

Besides the Lee and Washington letters, Pollack gave Andrews two Wells Fargo stock certificates, Abraham Lincoln and Beethoven death masks and a Thomas Jefferson letter about spies, according to the suit.

Energy, Economy Top Carter's Goals For 1978

WASHINGTON — President Carter considers energy legislation, an improved economy, ratification of the Panama Canal treaty and a new agreement limiting nuclear arms to be his top goals in the opening of the new year.

He expects a busy year in the Middle East. And he will propose some new domestic business, as well — such as taking education out of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and establishing a Department of Education as still another new Cabinet office in his re-organized government.

Otherwise, 1978 will be a year of consolidation for the Carter administration. None of the new items of business will be as important to the president as finishing up the top items he has left over from 1977. And energy will be first on the agenda.

"The early and obvious things that are important to us are resolution of the energy bill; the president's budget and the budget message, which will outline his plans for the economy; the Panama Canal treaty; and we'll hopefully consummate SALT II," said top Carter aide Hamilton Jordan in a year-end interview.

"Of course, there will be continuing U.S. involvement in the Middle East. And Congress has made some progress on our welfare reform package. And, of course, although it probably will not be introduced until late in the session, we'll be developing during the year a national health insurance program."

Some new twists are likely in solutions the administration will propose to old problems.

Stuart Eizenstat, the president's chief domestic assistant, has told reporters Carter is considering tax incentives as a weapon against inflation. The plan would give companies and unions tax advantages if they agree to restrain price and wage increases.

Eizenstat and Frank Moore, the president's chief congressional lobbyist, say Carter also is considering ways to make the bureaucracy more manageable, including changes in the Civil Service system to include incentives for federal employees.

Another White House official, who declined to be identified, indicated Carter's budget, which goes to Congress in January, will include an assault on unemployment among young blacks, whose jobless rate skyrocketed this year to well above the national average.

Like his administration colleagues, this official declined to be specific, for fear of stealing some of the thunder from Carter's official announcement. But he called black unemployment "one of the tougher problems" the administration faces in the coming year.

"I will be disappointed," he said, "if by this time next year we haven't made progress on it."

Administration officials have no illusions about the difficulty of winning ratification of the Panama Canal treaty. They report progress, citing a private poll which they say gives approving the treaty a seven-point edge among the general public.

Other polls have shown public rejection of the pact — or at best a standoff between those who want the treaty and those who don't. "If we ratify the treaty, even if it's by one or two votes, I think it's going to be a tremendous political success," said one senior member of the White House staff.

White House officials also are aware that Carter's fight for the Panama treaty is a warmup for their battle for approval of a new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT), which the president predicts will be negotiated in 1978.

They are known to be thinking about applying many of the political tactics they are using on behalf of the canal treaty in their effort to convince the Senate to approve SALT II as well. In one way, they think, the battle for SALT won't be as tough.

"The difference between the canal and SALT is there are people out there in the country that believe in the notion of arms control," one aide said. "In the case of the Panama Canal, there was no constituency out there, because the Panama Canal doesn't touch daily the lives of the American people."

Nor does the administration have any illusions about progress toward peace in the Middle East.

As the euphoria of visits between Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat wears off, one administration official said, "Sadat is going to be trying to get us to nudge the Israelis, and the Israelis are going to be trying to get us to nudge Sadat."

"And we're going to be trying to bring (Jordan's King) Hussein and maybe (Syrian leader Hafez) Assad into the thing, so we're going to be juggling a lot of balls."

One bright spot, said Jordan — and other senior officials agree — is that the administration is better prepared for the coming year than they were for 1977.

"Going into 1977," Jordan said, "we were preoccupied with the selection of the Cabinet and agency heads and the organization of the White House staff, learning our jobs here, and working out systems for circulating paper, and devising the president's schedule, and the decision-making processes."

"We certainly didn't have the time in 1976 to prepare for 1977 that we've had in the last few months to get ready for 1978. Although 1978 will be just as busy a year, I think we're better prepared for it."

C NEWS

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Mon. January 2, 1978

Record Auto Recalls Reported Last Year

DETROIT (UPI) — Domestic and foreign automakers recalled a record 12.6 million motor vehicles during 1977 for possible safety problems and some industry analysts believe recalls will continue at a good pace for some time.

"Consumers are more ready to complain today, and complaints from owners are frequently the basis for recalls," said Clarence Ditlow, director of the Center for Auto Safety in Washington.

"I expect to see recalls at a high pace for the next several years," he said.

No one cause has been cited as the primary reason for the record number of recalls last year.

Among the possible reasons given by consumer, government and industry spokesmen are higher expectations by consumers about their cars and the fact that buyers are becoming more aware that there is a government agency to which they can complain.

Other likely reasons cited are the introduction of several new models — which means more than the usual number of flaws — and the possibility that higher production in 1977 resulted in lower quality control.

Since September 1966, when the federal Motor Vehicle Safety Act became law, 64.9 million vehicles have been recalled by manufacturers for the repair of safety-related defects.

Irving Cochrane, consumer affairs specialist with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said he doesn't attach any particular significance to the 1977 total.

"The fact that there's a new record is not that significant," he said. "Really, it's little more than coincidence."

Of more significance, Cochrane said, is the widening of the definition of safety defects.

"The scope of safety-related problems has been broadened," he said. "For example, the recent recall of 1.3 million cars by Chrysler because of stalling problems came about as a result of a NHTSA investigation, and it's the first time that stalling has been considered a safety problem."

GM recalled 3.1 million vehicles in 1977 while Chrysler called back 4.6 million, Ford 2.5 million and American Motors 31,600.

Fifteen percent of the recalls last year were by foreign manufacturers.

WINGED EXIT — A massive flock of birds took to the air over the Mississippi River Elevator where 35 died last week. Trudeau Will O' The Wisp For Dallas Reporter

By STEVEN R. REED

DALLAS (UPI) — This story has an unlikely villain — the otherwise affable, bilingual Pierre Trudeau, prime minister of Canada.

Premier Trudeau is somewhere in Colorado today, enjoying his vacation, his Secret Service protection, his mountain privacy and is no doubt smiling because he wore down the pursuit.

The story could be for anyone who ever paid in advance for a motel room and arrived to find it canceled, or reached the rent-a-car company 10 minutes after it closed or failed to make dinner reservations in a resort community during the skiing season.

But it's a story about journalists and it is true.

The dateline could have been Colorado Springs or Denver or Aspen or Snowmass, but it is Dallas because that is where the story ended, where the hunt was called off.

At a time when Amy Carter was in Crested Butte and Gerald Ford was in Vail, Trudeau arrived in Colorado and I was dispatched from Texas to cover his visit, meeting a photographer in Colorado Springs the night before Trudeau's arrival Tuesday.

Yes, I admit it. I thought it might be a glamor assignment. No, I was wrong. It was not. Members of the Canadian press called it a "death watch." But don't take their word for it.

En route to the seclusion of Snowmass, almost two miles high in the mountains near Aspen, Trudeau stopped in Colorado Springs for a tour of the North American Air Defense Command, of which Canada is a partner. No other prime minister had visited NORAD during its 20-year existence, but perhaps no other had passed nearby for a ski outing.

Trudeau's visit included a number of what the Air Force described as "photo possibilities." But there were no remarks or questions at the airport. There were no speeches, parades or news conferences. He dined privately with Gov. Richard Lamm the night he arrived and privately with 65 Canadians assigned to NORAD the next day. While reporters and photographers shivered in 11-degree dampness inside a breezy granite cavern, Trudeau toured the Cheyenne Mountain headquarters of the military operation. He smiled, but made no comments, allowed no questions.

Five hours later, at the conclusion of his luncheon, he paused near the same press entourage and allowed perhaps a half-dozen questions, all of a military nature, and, just as reporters began warming up, his press aide pronounced "thank you, ladies and gentlemen" and it ended. He departed from the airport before most of the press caught up.

And it was on to Snowmass on a crowded commuter plane whose pilot announced there were four emergency exits. "But I assure you you won't need any of them." Somewhere over the Rockies, my nose began to bleed. I felt lightheaded. The oxygen mask did not work. It was dark. The forecast called for snow. But we made it, reaching the Aspen airport about 6:10 and phoning immediately about a rental car. The office closed at 6.

We called the lodge to inquire about a courtesy van. "We've been expecting you," said a woman's voice. "We had to cancel your reservation. Your money did not arrive in time."

"But it arrived?"
"Yes, and you can have it back."
"Well, we'd rather just get another room."

"Sorry, we're full."
"Do you know of any place where we could stay?"

"Everything's about full, and we're pretty busy. Sorry."
We began phoning resorts and found a room for $50 per night, one bed, one sofa (no television, no radio). It was 8 p.m. and we realized we had not eaten all day. A clerk recommended a restaurant in the village.

"Do you have a reservation?" asked the hostess.

"No, we just got to town."

"Well, we're booked solid through Sunday."

"It was Wednesday. We didn't think we could wait. At another restaurant we were served within two hours."

Trudeau's host, Alaska Sen. Mike Gravel, agreed over the telephone to allow pictures the next morning at Ski Lift 7. We found 7 on the maps but could not find it by car. A ski patrol member gave us the bad news.

"Park at 6 and ski to 7."

"We don't ski."

"Then you can't get there."

We parked on the road and walked across the slopes to 7 as skiers whizzed by. A ski patrol supervisor informed us Trudeau and Gravel left early and already were atop the mountain.

"We'll ride the lift," we said.

"You can't unless you have skis."

"We didn't, and couldn't."

He ferried us to the 9,600-foot level by snowmobile. Trudeau shot by, stopped and took the next chair back to the top. We saw him for perhaps 30 seconds. We decided to await his return on the chance he would chat. An hour and 15 minutes later we learned he had chosen another slope. The wet snow had soaked through my boots. I couldn't feel my toes. We were returned to the village.

Well, you won, Pierre. I wrote that "we were indeed skiing, that Gravel was your host and that the ski patrol said you skied well for a man of 58. And I returned home Thursday night and went to the doctor Friday, fairly ill for a man half your age. I have a rump full of penicillin and three prescriptions which help ease the cough.

I don't blame you for wanting your privacy. Even a visiting head of state deserves a chance to get away from his job and reporters. But honestly, I wasn't even going to ask you about Margaret.

Kidnappers Sought By Grecian Police

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Police Sunday sought three men who kidnaped the 8-year-old son of a Lebanese businessman but then released him unharmed and without collecting any ransom.

The boy, Mounah Zein, was discovered by his parents outside a seaside cafe about six miles from his home shortly before midnight, a spokesman for the family said.

Earlier the family received a call from the kidnappers, saying they were dropping demands for a $500,000 ransom.

Then around 11 at night they called again and said where the boy was waiting to be picked up," the family spokesman said.

The boy's mother, Soud, would say only that her son was unharmed and that the kidnappers were Greeks. They had identified themselves in their first phone call as Palestinians.

Mounah, who looked fit despite his ordeal, told newsmen the only thing that bothered him was that he missed a night's sleep.

"Otherwise it was all right and they gave me a steak and water for food," he said.

Police said the boy told them he was picked up by three men who drove him about 30 miles outside of Athens.

Mounah told police the three spoke Greek. They spent the night in a farmhouse and then two men took him for a long ride and freed him outside the cafe where his parents found him.

"Police are now doing their utmost to find the kidnappers," a government spokesman said. "This is a unique case in the annals of Greek crime and we will not allow it to become a bad habit."

Mounah was kidnaped Friday afternoon by men who first told the family they were Palestinian guerrillas and wanted a $1 million ransom.

Whooper Habitat May Revise Plan For Dams

FORT MORGAN, Colo. (UPI) — The whooping crane may not lose its resting place near the confluence of the North and South Platte rivers in Nebraska if the National Wildlife Federation prevails.

The marshy area long a stopover for whoopers during their annual migrations, is threatened by the controversial Narrows Dam in northeastern Colorado and the Missouri Basin Power Project near Wheatland, Wyo.

London Blast Fatal To Syrian Pair

LONDON (AP) — Two employees of the Syrian Embassy were killed when a bomb went off in their car near crowded Piccadilly Circus New Year's Eve.

Police said they have not determined the motive for the bombing that killed a medical attache, 40-year-old Jawdat Awad, and embassy driver Sayez Shibly, 27.

They were in a parked car a few blocks from Piccadilly Circus, the heart of London's nightlife district that was jammed with revelers bringing in the New Year.

A Syrian Embassy spokesman said the two men had been visiting sick Syrians.

The blast hurled the blue Volvo across Stafford Street and shattered the fronts of two shops. Witnesses said they saw flames shoot 15 feet into the air as the explosion blew the car's roof and doors off.

"I was just walking along and the blast threw me off my feet," said 17-year-old Gary Bishop. No bystanders were injured.

Commander Jim Nevill, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad, said, "It's far too early to say what the motive was. I am keeping an open mind. In view of the target being a Syrian Embassy vehicle, it now seems unlikely that this was the work of Irish Republican Army terrorists."

The Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA, which is fighting British troops in Northern Ireland, has in the past claimed responsibility for a number of bombings in Britain.

Riad el-Rayyes, a Syrian and the editor of an Arab-language weekly published in London, dismissed speculation that the bombing could have been related to Syria's opposition to Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

The Syrian Embassy said both of victims were married and Awad had two children and Shibly three.

In a letter to Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, the federation's executive vice president Thomas Kimball said both projects would damage downstream waterflows, significantly alter the habitat and endanger the whoopers' future.

Because whooping cranes already are on the endangered species list, the federation asked Andrus to designate the habitat, known as the Big Bend area, as critical, which would prohibit federal projects from altering the area.

The Bureau of Reclamation proposed the Narrows unit to dam the South Platte River near Fort Morgan. The project would cut streamflows by about 11 percent, Kimball said.

The Missouri Basin Power Project includes the Greylocks Dam, which would dam the Laramie River and cut about two percent of the annual average streamflow, he said.

According to the Wildlife Federation, the two projects would lower water in the Big Bend marsh and allow vegetation to encroach on sandbars, which are the favored feeding areas of whoopers.

"We want to place federal decision makers on notice that further water developments in the Platte River system must not be allowed to destroy or adversely modify the crane's critical habitat," said Kimball.

The number of whooping cranes had been reduced to 25 by hunters, but since the endangered designation, the population has risen to almost 126, Kimball said.

More Refugees Flee Vietnam

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A Vietnamese fishing boat with 38 persons aboard arrived in Darwin late Sunday, bringing to more than 1,000 the total number of refugees who have sailed from Vietnam to Australia since the fall of Saigon.

A government spokesman said the 108-foot wooden Thanh Hai was escorted into Darwin by a naval patrol boat after being sighted by fishermen 30 miles southwest of Australia's northernmost city shortly after noon.

Officials said that with the arrival of the Thanh Hai, a total of 1,011 refugees have sailed from Vietnam to Australia in 28 boats since the fall of Saigon in April 1975.

The spokesman said that although all 38 refugees, including 12 children, are believed to be in good health, the boat will be kept at a quayside mooring until they have been examined by customs, health and immigration officials.

Broncos Slip Past Raiders

By TOM HALLIBURTON
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 IRVING — Please allow the pro football world to temporarily change the name of New Year's Day to D-Day.

The New Year entered Sunday with two big D teams, Dallas and Denver, winning their conference championships and advancing to Super Bowl XII. And Dallas unquestionably did it with defense against the Minnesota Vikings. The Cowboys blunted the Minnesota running game to smithereens and dominated most of their 23-6 NFC title game in Texas Stadium.

For the second straight playoff game, the Doomsday Junior crew held a top-caliber runner in check. Last week, Chicago Bear fleet-foot Walter Payton gained a mere 60 yards in 19 carries. This time, Viking game-breaker Chuck Foreman managed 59-yards in 21 tries. There aren't the same old Dallas defensive names which completed in the most recent Cowboy Super Bowl bid of 1976, though. Forget Bob Lilly, George Andree, LeRoy Jordan, Mel Renfro and some of those familiar heroes.

Doomsday Junior consists of names such as third-year linebackers Bob Breunig and Thomas Henderson, sophomore cornerback Aaron Kyle, third-year tackle Randy White and other new names to blend with reliable veterans. The defense permitted only one score last week, it was a meaningless fourth-quarter pass after Dallas established a 37-0 edge. On this cold Sunday, the defense topped last Monday's performance and refused Viking admittance into the end zone.

When it needed points, Minnesota could call on kicker Fred Goetz for a pair of second-quarter field goals. The Vikings' most effective offensive play probably turned into a swing pass. However, even the Poikes figured out that play in the final minutes when Henderson stepped in front of a Viking receiver Sammy Johnson for an interception. For this stellar showing, coach Tom Landry ex-

DENVER (AP) — Craig Morton called Haven Moses the most valuable player, Haven Moses called Craig Morton the MVP — and nobody said much of anything about Ed Marion.

Moses, Denver's wide receiver, and Morton, the Broncos' retrained quarterback, teamed on touchdown pass plays covering 74 and 12 yards Sunday. And a quick whistle by Marion, the game's head linesman, helped the Broncos score another touchdown in their 20-17 victory over the Oakland Raiders in the American Conference championship game.

It put the Broncos into the Super Bowl, the game the Raiders had won a year ago. It was one more extraordinary step in Denver's equally extraordinary rise to prominence in the National Football League.

"All along they said we were too young and that we didn't belong here," said Red Miller, who, in his first year as the Broncos' head coach, guided them into the playoffs for the first time ever and within one step of pro football's most coveted title. "I wonder if they believe we're for real now?"

He and the Broncos made believers of the Raiders, whose last loss in Denver came in 1962, long before the teams were part of the NFL and before there was such a thing as a Super Bowl.

"Give Denver credit," said Raiders Coach John Madden. "The Broncos have a fine defense and their offense does just enough, getting a touchdown here and there. The game is a collection of good things, average things or bad things. And both teams had some of each today. Collectively, those things mean victory or defeat."

One of the things that meant defeat for the Raiders was a fumble that wasn't called. It came midway in the third period with Denver leading 7-3. Rob Lytle, taking a handoff at the Oakland 2-yard line, was belted by Raiders safety Jack Tatum and the ball popped loose. Oakland defensive tackle Mike McCoy pounced on the ball for an apparent recovery.

But while the Raiders' offensive unit was starting on the field, Marion was waving his arms and blowing his whistle.

No fumble, he said. And when he and another official were bumped during the confusion, the Raiders were flagged for

Longhorns Looking For Title

By TOM HALLIBURTON
 Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 DALLAS — Although 1977 turned into college football's year of the Longhorn, top-ranked Texas entered 1978 with one last bit of unfinished business.

The Longhorns (11-0) can wrap up the national championship today with a win over Notre Dame in the 42nd Cotton Bowl Classic. Should the Fighting Irish spoil those intentions, the title picture changes from burnt orange to any number of color schemes.

The Irish and four other teams (Oklahoma, Arkansas, Michigan and Alabama) begin the day with 10-1 records and hopes for a share of the title pie. Alabama plays Ohio State (9-2) in the Sugar Bowl, Michigan tests Washington in the Rose Bowl before Oklahoma and Arkansas collide in the Orange Bowl. Those outsiders need help from Notre Dame, though. And it's likely the pollsters might turn the Cotton Bowl into a winner-take-all arrangement for the Horns and the Irish.

Barring miserable weather conditions, a sellout crowd of more than 72,000 fans will jam the Cotton Bowl Fairgrounds. Some of those fans probably purchased tickets for as much as $150 apiece.

If the two teams measure up to their regular-season statistics, those spectators may get their money's worth. Texas allowed the opponent an average of 91.1 yards rushing compared to Notre Dame's average yield of 89.1. Offensively, the Steers rushed for 436.8 yards a game to Notre Dame's 440 ground steps.

While the Irish display plenty of gifted pro prospects, the Horns have Earl Campbell and Earl Campbell and Earl Campbell and...

The latest Heisman Trophy winner rushes across a field with the strength and velocity of the west Texas wind. A 220-pound brute with 4.6 speed, Campbell led the nation in rushing with 1,744 yards.

When quarterback Randy McEachern wishes to test the airways, there's Olympic sprinter Johnny Lam Jones on the receiving end with Notre Dame All-American cornerback Luther Bradley in pursuit.

Irish defensive ends Ross Browner and Willie Fry resemble bookends with their 250-pound frames. This formidable pair could invite Campbell to try the Notre Dame middle more than the flanks.

Meanwhile, the Texas defense also owns an All-America selection. Outland trophy winner Brad Shearer penetrates with One of Shearer's main cohorts will be absent today, though. Middle linebacker Lance Taylor suffered a dislocated shoulder injury, against Texas A&M and required surgery in late November. The injury forces Texas coach Fred Akers to move weakside linebacker Mark Martignoni into the middle while freshman Robin Sendlein (220) takes Martignoni's old spot. That makes two linebackers, who have never started a varsity game at those positions. And that could spell trouble for the Texas defense.

Notre Dame's versified attack also should create problems for the Texan tacklers. All-America tight end Ken MacAfee leads a group of dependable receivers for the throwing arm of quarterback Joe Montana. The multiple offense may line up in a different formation on every play with wing slot and tandem sets. Runningbacks Jerome Heavens and Vagas Ferguson provide more Irish speed than the team has had in recent years.

Should the outcome boil down to the kicking game, betexas super toe Russell Erxleben aided UT with long-range field goals in narrow escapes against Oklahoma.

DORSETT PICKS UP SIX — Tony Dorsett (33), a Dallas Cowboy running back, breaks away from Minnesota Viking linebacker Matt Blair (59) and picks up six yards during the first quarter of the NFC championship game in Dallas Sunday. Boxer Ron Lyle Jailed After Shooting Incident

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Ron Lyle, who once spent seven years in the Colorado State Penitentiary for second-degree murder, was in jail New Year's Day after being booked on charges of first-degree murder in connection with the shooting death of a friend.

Joe Busch, spokesman for the Lakewood Police Department, said the 35-year-old Lyle was arrested late Saturday in connection with the fatal shooting of Vernon Clark, 39.

Clark was shot once in the head with a handgun, police said.

Lyle, ranked among the top five professional boxers, was being held without bond in the Jefferson County Jail. He was scheduled to appear in court Tuesday morning for arraignment. Details of the shooting weren't immediately available, but police said a fight apparently preceded the shooting. Lyle was host at a small family gathering at his home in an upper-middle-class section of this Denver suburb when the shooting occurred.

Police said officers went to the Lyle home after Lyle reported the shooting to a neighbor who is a policeman. Clark had been dead for about a half hour when police arrived.

Two of Lyle's brothers, Phil and Robert Lyle, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Harris, were questioned and later released, police said. They said three children also were in the Lyle home.

OU's Speed Too Much For UA?

MIAMI (AP) — The University of Oklahoma has so many speed merchants there is a friendly disagreement on the team over just who is the fastest.

"If you draw a line 40 yards downfield, we would all cross it just about stride for stride," says quarterback Thomas Lott. "We all run a 4.5 or 4.6 40 and there just isn't much difference. But if you have to give the edge to somebody, I'd say it would go to (fullback Kenny) King."

However, when King was asked the same question, he replied, "Well, Freddie Nixon. But on the first team, I guess Elvis Peacock is faster over the 100 and in the shorter distance I guess I am a little quicker."

Lott also agreed that Nixon, a reserve halfback who plays behind Peacock, probably is the fastest man in the backfield. But even that makes the fleet sophomore the second fastest man on the team.

Coach Barry Switzer says the fastest man on the team is tiny Lee Hover, a 5-foot-9, 160-pound receiver. Hover plays third string, primarily because of his size, behind Bobby Kimball and Steve Rhodes.

That speed will come in handy Monday night when the Sooners go against Arkansas in the annual Orange Bowl.

The Sooners did have another fast runner in sophomore George Cumby, but shifted him to linebacker this year, where he made All-America.

Defensive coordinator Larry Lacey, with tongue firmly in cheek, said Cumby was shifted because he was the slowest man in the backfield.

"He could only do the 40 in 4.6 and we felt sorry for him because he was getting outrun so much," Lacey said. Cumby, standing nearby, just grinned.

Just about everyone on both sides of the ball for Oklahoma can run. Switzer says this is by far the fastest team he has seen in his 11 years at Oklahoma, five of those years as head coach.

The starting defensive 11 averages about 4.8 seconds in the 40-yard dash, including the down linemen. The slowest man on defense is junior linebacker Daryl Hunt, who trundles along at 4.9 seconds in the 40.

Peacock says the offensive line is the same way. "I think everybody in our offensive line can run the 40 in 4.7 or 4.8 seconds. The season we were undefeated (1974) I think the line averaged 4.9 or 5 seconds."

Despite the speed in the offensive backfield, none of the offensive runners finished in the top 30 rushers in the nation. Lott led the team with 760 yards, Peacock had 695, King had 641 and Billy Sims had 412. The players all realize that in the Wishbone offense, no one is going to get the ball enough times to get a huge amount of yardage.

Lott says he gets kidded by the others because he does carry the ball more.

"When we get down near the goal, they kid me that I won't give the ball to anyone else, that I'm going to take it in," Lott says. "And I say, 'Yeah, that's why I'm the quarterback.'"

Olga Korbut To Wed Singer

MOSCOW (AP) — Olga Korbut, the diminutive Soviet gymnast who became a world star at the 1972 Munich Olympics, is engaged to marry singer Leonid Bortkevich of the Soviet pop group "Pesnyari," the Tass news agency said Sunday.

The agency released a photograph of Korbut, now 21, and the tall, moustached Bortkevich chatting together in Minsk, Byelorussia, on Christmas Eve. The brief text said they would be married but did not give a date.

Rumors about a marriage between Korbut and the singer had been circulating for several months. Korbut lives in Grodno, Byelorussia, and the Pesnyari group, now near the top of Soviet music charts, is also based in the Byelorussian Republic.

The 5-foot Korbut, who won three gold medals and a silver medal at Munich, retired from active competition last year but has continued to perform in exhibitions.

Goolagong Wins Net Title

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Evonne Goolagong routed fellow Australian Helen Cawley 6-3, 6-0 Sunday and won her fourth Australian women's singles tennis championship.

The 31-year-old Cawley was considerably weakened by a stomach virus that struck her Sunday morning, hurting her chances in her first Australian final in 16 attempts.

The match, delayed two hours at Goolagong's request to allow the ailing Cawley to recover, lasted just 50 minutes.

Several times, as Cawley attacked the net trying to force her opponent into errors, Goolagong whipped spectacular backhand winners down the line or cross court. From the net, Evonne won points with drop volleys and smashes.

Goolagong, 26, a former Wimbledon, French and Italian open winner, had been out of tennis for more than a year to give birth to a daughter, Kelly. But in six weeks she has won four women's tournaments and $57,000 in prize money on the Australian circuit.

Goolagong heads for America in a few days to test the strength of her comeback against Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Renata Tomanova and the other top women players on the women's pro circuit.

Lott's Injury Minor

MIAMI (AP) — For John Keith, the primary New Year's Eve noisemaker was the telephone.

It began ringing off the wall shortly after Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott strained a hamstring Saturday during the second-ranked Sooners' final full-scale workout for Monday night's Orange Bowl clash with No. 6-rated Arkansas.

"The bookies got all worked up," reported Keith, who is Oklahoma's sports information director. "I got calls from guys who said they were with the Houston Press and the College Station Gazette. There ain't no such papers."

The injury to Lott was considered minor by trainer Ken Rawlinson but it excited the nation's betting fraternity almost as much as the crippling knee injury suffered by Leotis Harris, Arkansas' All-American guard, and the suspensions of running backs Ben Cowins and Michael Forrest and wide receiver Donny Bobo for a dormitory incident involving a woman.

Oklahoma started out as a 13-point favorite. When Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz suspended the three players the line shot up to 18 points and the game was taken off the boards in many places.

In fact, the Arkansas people report bookmakers in Little Rock were deluged by bets on Oklahoma.

As for the game itself, it will be Arkansas' quick defense (8.6 points a game) trying to slow down the nation's top rushing team (328.9-yard average).

Meanwhile, Oklahoma's underrated defense, featuring All-Americans in linebacker George Cumby and free safety Zac Henderson plus second-team linebacker Daryl Hunt and third-team nose guard Reggie Kinlaw, must contend with All-Southwest Conference quarterback Ron Calcagni Co.

The Arkansas field general, only a 30 percent passer in 1976, completed 53 percent this season for 1,147 yards and 10 touchdowns. Only three other Arkansas quarterbacks have ever thrown 10 TD passes in a season and the school record is 11.

In addition, Calcagni's 1,693 yards in total offense is the fourth highest in school history and his career total of 2,413 is eighth best.

Oklahoma doesn't have anyone with huge totals—Lott rushed for 760 yards, halfback Elvis Peacock 695, fullback Kenny King 640 and halfback Billy Sims 406—but that's because the Sooners are knee-deep in ground-gainers. On a carry basis, Lott averaged 5.5 yards, Peacock 5.7, King 5.6 and Sims 6.2.

Although both coaches are playing it down, a key aspect in this game between 10-1 teams could be the outcome of the Texas-Notre Dame Cotton Bowl. If No. 1-ranked Texas wins, college football's national championship will be a foregone conclusion. If Notre Dame prevails, Holtz and Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer think anything can happen in the final Associated Press poll.

Woody Believes Discipline Key To Winning Team

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ron Springs was scared. Tom Cousineau sat in awe of the man. Aaron Brown's mother believed Woody Hayes did not treat his players right.

Hayes has built a reputation of a masterful recruiter in his 27 seasons at Ohio State. Some say that is the 64-year-old disciplinarian's main plus in keeping the Buckeyes among the nation's collegiate football powerhouses.

"Woody's a salesman and that is what recruiting is all about," said running back Jeff Logan, one of six players in Ohio State history to gain 1,000 yards rushing in a single season.

"He pushes what is good at Ohio State. He's flexible with each player. He has to be. We're all different personalities," said Logan, a key weapon for the Buckeyes against Alabama in the Sugar Bowl Monday.

Hayes recruits in quality, not quantity. It has paid off in 13 Big Ten titles or cotitles. The last six have come in a row, a conference record.

"We've never exceeded 30 recruits in one year," said Hayes. "The best class I had was Archie Griffin's class. We only took 16 that season. Last year we only took 24. We've always done well with those numbers."

Springs recalled the first time Hayes visited him at Williamsburg, Va., Lafayette High School.

"He had an alum along with him and the alum mentioned he had helped a player with his grades at Ohio State," recalled Springs, the Buckeyes' top rusher with almost 1,100 yards in 1977.

"The coach had a fit. That's the first time I saw him get mad. It scared me. But I was still interested in Ohio State," said Springs, who led the nation's junior college rushes at Coffeyville, Kan., two seasons ago.

Springs was the target of the college powers. Those after him read like a Who's Who of Top Ten squads — Southern California, Nebraska, UCLA, Maryland, Oklahoma, California and Ohio State.

Hayes visited Springs twice and talked academics. "That impressed me. He talked about the educational opportunities. The other coaches talked about their football programs," said Springs, a 6-foot-2, 196-pound junior tailback.

Cousineau, a junior linebacker from Fairview Park, Ohio, recalled when an Ohio State assistant coach got him out of the school cafeteria. He figured it was to meet Hayes.

"When we turned the corner in the hall, there must have been 300 people in the lobby. I thought there had been an accident. Sure enough, they had Coach Hayes backed into a corner, trying to get his autograph."

"We went into the administration offices. There was a little window and people kept looking in as we talked. I was in awe. We talked about everything," said the 6-3, 227-pound Cousineau, considered the strongest of the Buckeyes.

Perhaps because his father is a retired prep football coach, Cousineau wondered about Hayes' retirement plans.

"I asked him how long he was going to be around? He never gave me a straight answer, asking, 'Well, what else would I do if I didn't coach?' He also said it would depend on his health," said Cousineau.

Brown, the quickest middle guard in Ohio State history, recalled the apprehensions of his mother.

"She felt Coach Hayes didn't treat his players fairly and there was also a problem with his black players. I won her over. She sees now that he treats his players right," said the ever-smiling senior from Warren, Ohio.

Chris Ward, the Buckeyes' two-time All-American offensive tackle, remembered he was in English class when the principal knocked on the door.

"He said he wanted to see me. I thought I had done something wrong. But he said somebody was in the office to see me. It was Coach Hayes," said the 6-4 1/2, 268-pound Ward, a senior from Dayton, Ohio.

Despite Hayes' iron-fisted rule, the players remain loyal.

"I haven't regretted my decision. I wouldn't trade it for anything," said Logan, a senior from North Canton, Ohio, and second generation performer for Hayes.

Logan's father, Dick, was a tackle on Hayes' first Buckeye team in 1951.

Sugar Bowl Contest Not 'Another' Game

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Try as they might, Coaches Woody Hayes and Bear Bryant can't convince their players that Monday's clash between Ohio State and Alabama is just another football game.

"Why, if I thought I was carrying the Big 10 banner, I might lose a night's sleep," said Ohio State's Hayes.

"One game doesn't prove a thing," said Bryant.

But the players don't all see it that way.

"Ever since I was a freshman, we've played the top teams in the country. This Sugar Bowl game against Ohio State will just top it off," said Alabama's Ozzie Newsome, a senior receiver and an all-America selection.

"Maybe the game doesn't carry some of the flavor of Alabama-Tennessee or Alabama-Auburn."

"But we're not just representing Alabama, we're representing the whole South. We're the Southeastern Conference champion."

Ohio State's giant offensive tackle, all-American Chris Ward, also sees it as more than just a football game between two tradition-laden schools.

"We're definitely representing the Big 10," he said. "When a school plays in a bowl game, it's representing its conference."

Bryant and Hayes have both expressed regrets that so much is being made of their meeting—the two men who've won more major college football games than any other still in the business.

"Yeah, that's about all we've been hearing since the game was announced," said Newsome. "I think that's great. What could be better? You get these two together, and the roof may fall in."

"But really, when the kickoff comes, there's not too much they can do but watch."

For Ohio State, Monday's Sugar Bowl game is sort of a consolation appearance, since arch-rival Michigan beat them for the Big 10 championship.

"If we'd voted right after the Michigan game, we probably would have voted not to come," said Ward. But by the time the game gets here, we'll be ready mentally. We've been ready physically, and now we're getting our minds right."

Jeff Logan, senior running back for Ohio State, said his team has too much pride to turn in a second-rate game.

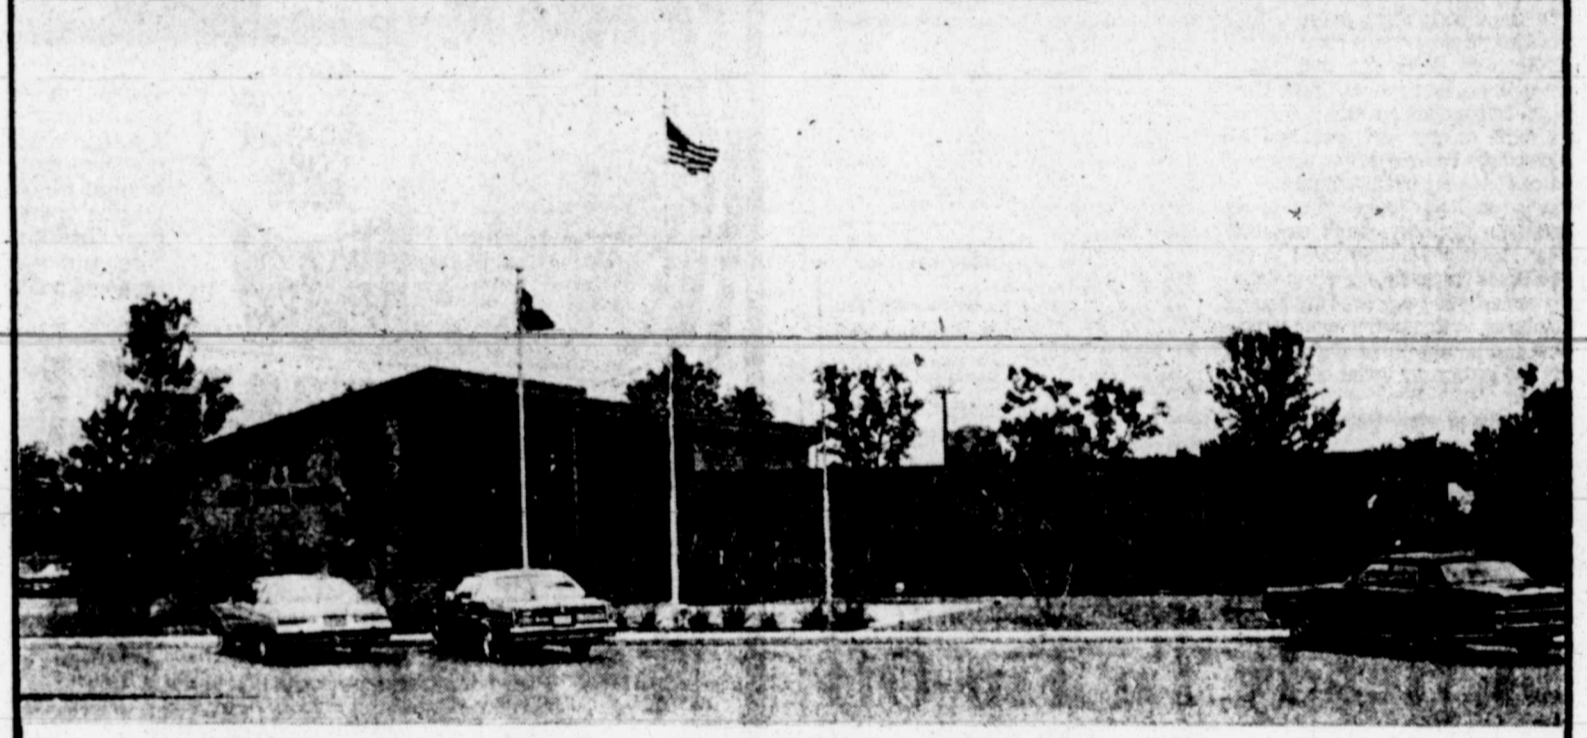

"We've been in this situation before," he said, referring to last year's trip to the Orange Bowl. "We're not exactly happy about not being in Pasadena, but I like to think our team has too much character to let that affect us."

Aaron Brown, Ohio State's quicksilver nose guard, said he expects a top performance.

"Coach Hayes always tells us we have one more great game left in us," he said. "Since this is the last game for us, this has to be the game."

Heartline

HEARTLINE is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write HEARTLINE, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I have been drawing my social security benefits for almost three years. I will soon be 65 years old and going on Medicare. I have seen in various governmental publications that Medicare does not cover routine foot care. I have to have a lot of medical care for my feet. Can you tell me what Medicare means by routine foot care? C.R.

A Medicare's definition of routine foot care which is not covered is the treatment for flat feet or other structural misalignments of the feet; and removal of corns, warts (including plantar warts), and calluses. However, you can receive coverage for routine foot care if you have a medical condition affecting the lower limbs (such as diabetes) which requires that such care be performed by a podiatrist or a doctor of medicine or osteopathy.

For those people on Medicare, Heartline has developed a detailed book covering the whole Medicare program. "Heartline's guide to Medicare" is written in easy to understand question and answer form and contains all of the up to date information on Medicare. This book covers many medical items and services that are covered by Medicare, complete information on the deductibles you have to pay, a sample Medicare claim form with detailed instructions on how to fill it out, and a complete explanation on how the reasonable charge under part "B" is figured. This book may be ordered by sending $1.75 to Heartline's guide to Medicare, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. This book is completely guaranteed and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I am now working in the railroad industry and I plan to retire within the next year. I have heard that to qualify for the supplemental annuity, a person must have "a current connection" with the railroad industry. How does a person establish this current connection? J.K.

In general terms, an employee has a current connection if he has at least 12 months of railroad employment during the last 2 1/2 working years before retirement. If an employee does not qualify on this basis, an earlier 2 1/2-year period with 12 months of railroad service may be used, but only if the employee did not have a regular nonrailroad job following the earlier period, as such non-railroad earnings would break the earlier current connection.

However, self-employment (working in an individual's own unincorporated business) or working for certain U.S. Government agencies (Department of Transportation, Interstate Commerce Commission, National Mediation Board, Railroad Retirement Board) does not break a current connection.

HEARTLINE: I am 61 years old and I am still working. I will be 62 in July and I plan to retire and start drawing my social security benefits at that time. I have read some of the social security literature and I find it very confusing. Can't the government make this literature easy to understand? C.R.

Your wish may be coming true very soon. Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has announced plans for a program to rewrite HEW regulations to make them more understandable to the general public, and has asked the public to submit suggestions, called "Operation Common Sense," the project will include a "sunset review" to eliminate rules that are ineffective or outdated, and what Califano termed a "top-to-bottom overhaul of the way HEW develops new regulations."

Califano pointed out that in the past 25 years HEW regulations have grown to fill 6,000 pages in 13 volumes of the Code of Federal Regulations, and that in the past eight years alone HEW has written more than 3,000 pages of regulations.

Califano said that many of these rules "impose archaic and even incomprehensible requirements — often in elaborate and excruciating detail." The result has become a body of regulations that "makes little sense to anyone," Califano said, including "the people who administer them, or the people who must comply with them."

HEW programs affect virtually all Americans in such areas as health care, social security, education and social services, and Califano has asked everyone who has "encountered a rule that has perverse effects, a confusing form, or an unfair requirement, to submit comments to him with suggestions on how these regulations should be changed."

Comments on revising HEW regulations and on new procedures for writing new regulations should be sent to Operation Common Sense, P.O. Box 536, Washington, DC 20044.

Emphasis On Peace As World Launches New Year

By The Associated Press
The new year began with world leaders renewing calls for peace on earth — a goal those who raised one too many to the end of 1977 could well appreciate. Pope Paul VI celebrated New Year's Mass in the Basilica of St. Mary Major in Rome and urged people everywhere, especially the young, to say "no to violence, yes to peace."
President Carter greeted the arrival of 1978 in Iran, the second stop on his international tour, with a wish for "peace throughout the world." To that end, he announced in Tehran, he would add a visit with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat — the instigator of the current round of Middle East peace negotiations — to his travel agenda.

On the not-so-sober side, millions who reveled in the waning hours of 1977 sought their own versions of peace Sunday.
Many slept late. Those who couldn't resort to "hair of the dog" and other home remedies to quiet the sounds of the night before.
Television sets were tuned in — sometimes softly — for the playoff-games between the Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings and the Denver Broncos and Oakland Raiders.

Parties in New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl and in Miami for the Orange Bowl ended as the business on the playing field began.
Others could not find peace — of the noble or less noble variety.
The cacophony of drums and horns echoed through Philadelphia as more than 15,000 music merrymakers strutted in their sequins and feathers to "Oh Dem Golden Slippers," the trademark tune of the annual Mummers Parade. Despite near-freezing temperatures and a threat of rain or snow that almost forced postponement, the 78th annual extravaganza went on to the delight of thousands of spectators along Broad Street.

Police said the turnout seemed lighter than usual. The same analysis came from the West Coast, where some 6,000 early birds, most camping out in recreational vehicles, gathered along the Tournament of Roses parade route in Los Angeles.
In other parts of the nation, attempts to do anything but stay at home — or far away from home — were hampered by a stormy New Year's Day.
Travel was discouraged in the Midwest by heavy snow and winter storm warnings. By midmorning, more than 8 inches of snow had been reported in Dubuque, Iowa, and Lacrosse, Wis.

Major transportation hubs like Chicago and Atlanta were snarled by adverse conditions — 5 inches of snow in the Windy City and heavy fog that kept planes grounded in the South.
Travel advisories also were posted for the upper Mississippi Valley and parts of Ohio, Kentucky, New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.
The weather contributed, in part, to a tragic new-year start for some families. By late Sunday, more than 120 persons had died on U.S. highways.
Meanwhile, the Indian news agency Samachar reported that an Air India jumbo jet with 236 persons aboard exploded in the air and crashed into the Arabian Sea Sunday night after takeoff on a flight from Bombay to the Middle East.

Elsewhere, nog and grog became a part of New Year's Eve-Past.
The bunting came down at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the Royal Canadian Mounted Police played the traditional "Auld Lang Syne" for the first time without Guy Lombardo, who died in November.
And workers swept debris from the area of No. 1 Times Square, when the ball of light dropped down the tower to signal the end of 1977 for millions of shivering New Yorkers and warmer television viewers.
Those thinking of New Year's Eve-Future got early advice for next year from Dr. Maxim Asa, physiologist and director of the New York Stress and Research Center Inc.: "There really is no cure for the hangover, except not to get one in the first place..."

Female Dieters' Heart Deaths Probed

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Center for Disease Control is focusing its investigation of 40 deaths believed related to liquid protein diets on 15 cases — all involving women who died unexpectedly of heart-related causes.
Center Director Dr. William H. Foege said that while investigators cannot definitely say any of the deaths were caused by liquid protein, "there is a definite risk in using the products."

Foege said 25 of the 40 cases were placed in a separate category because there were severe diseases which could have caused the deaths, or the deaths were due to causes not related to the heart.
The remaining 15 cases — involving women ranging in age from 25 to 51 — had many similarities. Each of the deaths was unexpected and involved a person using liquid protein diets exclusively for a long period of time. The deaths were due to ventricular fibrillation, in which the heart beats wildly and does not pump blood. The cause of the irregular heart beat is unknown.

Foege said the 15 women had dieted for an average of five months and had lost an average of 83 pounds. Twelve of the 15 were under medical supervision.
Myocarditis — an inflammation of the heart muscle — turned up in seven of the 14 autopsies performed. An eighth case showed degeneration of the heart muscle without inflammation.
Foege said most of the women "were feeling better than they had felt in years and were overjoyed with their marked weight loss" prior to their deaths.
He said the 15 deaths remain unexplained "and we have not yet determined whether a cause-and-effect relationship exists between them and the prolonged use of the liquid protein diet."
Foege said in some of the 15 deaths, the women were getting only 300 calories a day, less nutrition than victims of World War II concentration camps received.

"Therefore, some of the deaths may be due to starvation," he said. "If starvation is the cause, then it is not the product, but the way it is used."
He said electrocardiograms of many of the women were consistent with patterns shown in starvation, and he said sudden deaths have occurred in several previous starvation cases.
Although he said it is possible that toxic materials are present in the liquid protein products, none has been identified.
It has been estimated that two million to four million people have used liquid protein diets, but Foege said it is believed only about 100,000 used the diets in the same intensive, long-term manner as the 40 cases studied by the center.
He said researchers have found that patients on the diet died from irregular rhythms of the heart at a rate significantly higher than the general population.
And until further research can be done, he said, he would not recommend the diet.
