

Pentagon Plans To Close More Military Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon leaders are preparing for a new round of military base closings and reductions that they calculate will save up to $300 million a year.

They have instructed each armed service to list bases that can be eliminated or cut back. An announcement of installations that may be affected is likely late this month or in February.

"We'll have to get at some bases that are very hard for the services to give up," said one senior official.

This imminent economy move is certain to meet resistance from congressmen whose districts would be affected by a loss of jobs. The last major base cut was ordered by the Ford administration two years ago.

President Carter and top Pentagon officials already are under strong pressure from a bipartisan coalition of more than 200 congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest to prevent any further base closings in their districts.

They claim that their areas have been unfairly treated in favor of the South and West.

Beginning with his election campaign, Carter has said he intends to pare the number of bases in his effort to hold down defense spending.

Since the Kennedy administration, Democratic and Republican presidents and defense secretaries have been gradually trimming the number of bases in the face of growing resistance.

In recent years, Congress has imposed requirements, including waiting periods and Defense Department environmental impact statements, that have tended to slow the closings.

Some communities have fought delaying actions in the courts, although so far they have failed to prevent any shutdown or consolidation.

Because of restraints written into law, the Pentagon no longer is as free as it was in the 1960s to announce flatly that a specific base will be closed. Instead, it must select bases as "candidates" for closing, which is how the Pentagon will describe the installations on its forthcoming list.

Meanwhile the Army is reported unhappy with a proposal by Defense Department officials to spread the returning 2nd Infantry Division among three bases in the Northeast, rather than concentrating that division at Fort Bliss in Texas.

The first 6,000 members of the division are due to leave South Korea by the end of 1978, with the remaining elements to be withdrawn by 1982.

The proposal to spread the division among Fort Drum, N.Y.; Fort Dix, N.J., and Fort Devens, Mass., is criticized by senior Army officials on grounds of the cost and difficulties of training a division split in three parts and brought together only periodically.

Pentagon leaders dispute the Army's contention that as much as $500 million would have to be spent to build necessary barracks, mess halls and other structures at Fort Drum.

Defense officials defend the idea of concentrating the 2nd Division at Fort Drum for training purposes, saying that the climate there is much closer to that of Europe — the main area of U.S. Army concern — than at Fort Bliss in the Southwest.

City bankers, while satisfied with ever-increasing deposits which surpassed the $1 billion mark at year's end, tempered their optimism for 1978 with some concern for the economic futures of their farmer customers.

Figures compiled today from Lubbock's eight banks showed $1,104,602,863 on deposit at the close of business Dec. 31, 1977. Deposits had increased $90 million since the end of 1976 when the record $1 billion mark was first attained.

The gain since Sept. 30, 1977, was 11.6 percent or $114 million, while the 1976 to 1977 year-end totals reflected an 8.9 percent increase.

Although bankers indicated that farmers in the immediate area generally were able to pay out their loans for crops this year, the financiers recognize the farmers' potential plight.

"We are very sympathetic to the farmers' basic problem of high costs of production and equipment and a depressed market for their products," said Wayne Fennell, Lubbock National Bank president.

Fennell's bank, which demonstrated the highest monetary gain with $25 million added since 1976, said, however, that "we have not yet felt the monetary effect of the record cotton crop."

Howard Yandell, president of Lubbock's biggest bank, First National, agreed "we are fortunate this year in that we got some very good yields in the cotton producing area."

North of here, Yandell noted, the grain producing farmers are encountering more problems than cotton farmers in the immediate area.

"We do have some concerns in 1978," Yandell said. This winter's "extremely dry conditions" and the "cost-price squeeze that farmers are encountering, as emphasized by their demonstrations and unrest" could have an effect this year, he noted.

"We have had one farmer who has decided not to farm this coming year because he can't break even," Yandell said. "There is a great deal of concern as to what crop will be planted. Cotton is the best dryland crop we have and I would anticipate a large acreage of cotton being planted."

No Threat To RAFB Indicated

Proposed new military base closings hold no danger for Lubbock's Reese Air Force Base, U.S. Rep. George Mahon predicted today.

"I don't see at all that Reese Air Force Base is in jeopardy," said Mahon, calling the facility "one of the real top-flight bases in the Air Force."

The House Appropriations Committee chairman, looked on as one of the five most powerful men in Washington, D.C., also forecast that Congress this year will pass "some sort" of legislation to aid farmers.

However, he cautioned that it would be "unrealistic" for agricultural leaders to expect 100 percent parity to emerge in legislation. And he suggested that a planned "tractorcade" this month in the nation's capital may be ineffective.

"It may be this approach has just about reached its climax," Mahon said of recent headline-grabbing farm strike activities.

Pentagon leaders have instructed each armed services branch to list bases that can be eliminated or cut back, and an announcement of installations that may be affected is expected late this month or in February.

Mahon agreed that at an economy move is needed. "There are too many military bases at home and abroad," he said.

But he said he does not look "for any massive closing effort."

Reese AFB was listed as an "alternate" to the closing of Webb AFB at Big Spring or Craig AFB at Selma, Ala., both of which are now being phased out of business.

When that alternate listing was revealed, Mahon had stated flatly that Reese never would be closed as long as he was in Congress. However, at the end of this year, he will be gone, retiring after 44 years in the House.

His leaving poses no problems for Lubbock's base, Mahon tried to assure questioners today.

"Political considerations do have a part (in military base site locations), but most often, not a very large part, he said.

Mahon added he thinks Webb's closure is a thing which will help Reese stay in the air.

The Air Force has already made a reduction in its flight training facilities and "I do not anticipate that another one of the training bases would be marked for closing," he said.

Mahon said national farm policy needs

Carter, Sadat Fail To Solve Problem

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — President Carter met for an hour with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt today and afterward expressed support for "the legitimate rights of the Palestinians."

Sadat told newsmen he and Carter shared "identical views" and had decided on "specific steps" to be taken for peace. But Carter's endorsement of the rights of the Palestinians did not go beyond his previous statements.

He refrained, for example, from endorsing the independent Palestinian state demanded by Sadat and other Arab leaders and rejected by Israel.

Reading a prepared statement as a desert wind tugged at his coat, Carter enunciated "first principles" for a lasting peace between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

True peace, he declared, "must be based on normal relations between all the parties."

"There must be withdrawal by Israel from land occupied in 1967," he continued, and there must be secure borders for all parties. And "there must be a resolution of the Palestinian problem" insuring the legitimate rights of the Palestinians, and the Palestinians "must participate in the determination of their future."

As in the past, Carter did not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization, with which both Israel and the United States refuse to deal because of its dedication to the destruction of the Jewish state.

Carter later briefed Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin on the Aswan meeting in a telephone call from Air Force One en route to Paris. In Beirut, the Palestinian Liberation Organization ridiculed Carter's statement, saying "Let Mr. Carter tell us where he wants these rights realized — on the moon or on earth."

Begin, who spoke to reporters after the phone call, did not comment directly on Carter's defense of Palestinian rights. However, he was sharply critical of self-determination for the Palestinians and restated Israeli opposition to an independent state.

Candidates Sign Up For Races

Wayne LeCroy said today he will seek re-election as Lubbock County justice of the peace, Pct. 6, ending speculation he may run for district clerk or state representative for the city's west side.

LeCroy, 45, will seek the Democratic Party's nomination. He entered office April 19, 1967, by appointment of the mie Stevens provided figures on the year's high cotton yield in the 25-county area.

"We have already classed 2,681,000 bales of cotton out of a projected 3,300,000," he said. "This time last year we had only classed 1,441,000 out of a total production of 1,800,000."

He was elected to the job in 1968 and again in 1970 and 1974, making him the only JP that his precinct — which covers about three-fourths of the City of Lubbock, generally the west and north parts of the municipality — has ever had.

Also today, Bidal Agüero, 28, of 2902 Grinnell St. announced he will seek the Raza Unida Party's nomination for county commissioner of Pct. 4, which encompasses Lubbock County's northwest quadrant.

Agüero accused the only other candidate in that race so far, incumbent Democrat Alton Brazell, of "17 years of aloofness and lack of concern for the needs of the people."

"It is time to have new and innovative ideas as to how to run our county government," Agüero said. "Those new ideas must put the needs and concerns and problems of the people before monetary concerns."

LeCroy of 5522 18th St. said he was making his re-election announcement now to dispell rumors he may seek some other office.

He stressed that during his 10 1/2-year tenure he has kept an "open door" to his constituents and made his JP office a "court open to the people." He said he will continue to do so if elected for another four years.

Roy Bass Will Not Run For Office This Year

By PAULA TILKER

Striking a humorous note throughout a news conference, Mayor Roy Bass today announced he will not seek re-election to a third term.

Neither will he run for any other political office at the present time, said Bass, adding he plans to "re-introduce myself to my law partners."

Bass, first elected in 1974 and again in 1976, said he made his announcement early so that others interested in the position "can make whatever plans they need to make."

The two names suggested most often as possible mayoral candidates are council members Dirk West and Alan Henry, whose terms expire March 31.

Although he declined to affirm his interest in the mayor's chair, Henry today told The Avalanche-Journal that he will make an announcement "within a few days" regarding his future political plans.

West confirmed his interest in the race, saying he will "make some kind of announcement" within two weeks.

City Hall political observers had predicted that a decision to run by West and Henry would hinge on Bass' plans for a re-election bid. The other council members, Carolyn Jordan and Bill McAlister, each have another year left in their terms. Neither has indicated an interest in succeeding Bass.

Although he said he will not run for any other political office at the present time, Bass indicated he is not permanently out of politics.

"I wouldn't want to shut that door," he said.

When asked whether he would support other political candidates, and specifically Kent Hance in his bid for U.S. Rep. George Mahon's seat, Bass answered: "I am strongly for Kent Hance." And, the mayor added, he will help Hance however he can.

When queried, Bass also said he will not throw his support behind a mayoral candidate. He will leave it to the people to decide who the next mayor should be, he added.

Throughout his announcement, Bass fell back on humor to make his point. The mayors' bid has its serious moments and problems, he said, but his sense of humor was the "saving grace."

His decision to not seek re-election was

Park Faces Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee issued a promised subpoena today for the testimony of Tong-sun Park, a key figure in the Korean bribery investigation.

Committee Chairman John J. Flynn Jr., D-Ga., said the subpoena calls for Park's "personal appearance" before the panel.

"I have directed that it be served upon Mr. Park as soon as he enters the jurisdiction of the United States," Flynn said in a statement.

Grid Holiday Costly

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Bronco fans waited 18 years for their heroes to make it to the big game but even so, many of them are complaining that a $2.4 million price tag for honoring the team seems a little steep.

Gov. Richard Lamm and Mayor Bill McNichols have declared Friday an official Orange Crush holiday in honor of the Broncos first trip to the Super Bowl, and said all Colorado state employees and Denver city workers will be given the day off.

The holiday will cost taxpayers about $2.4 million to pay the employees who take the day off and for overtime pay for those who work, said State Controller Dan Whittemore.

John Lay, executive assistant to Lamm, said the purpose of the holiday was not to give employees an extra day off, but "to try and get a community and statewide response to the Broncos."

Honoring the Broncos was a fine idea but not at that cost, irate citizens said in telephone calls to the local news media.

"I think it's a crime. I'm as proud of the Broncos as anyone and I agree with the symbolism of the gesture, but I think it's an out-and-out waste of the taxpayers' money," one caller told United Press International.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," another caller said. "There are thousands of Bronco fans in this state, but you don't see them getting the day off with pay. It's stupid."

The Denver City Council Tuesday night debated, but did not pass, a resolution supporting McNichols' stand.

Councilman Bill Roberts referred to his unsuccessful attempt last year to declare a holiday for Martin Luther King's birthday.

"I feel all the joy in the world for the Broncos. It's just too bad Dr. King couldn't have been a football coach," said Roberts.

Councilman Paul Hentzel said the decision to declare a holiday may have been made a bit too soon.

"I think the mayor has put us on the spot. There are thousands of Bronco supporters out there, but this is a bit premature. Why don't we wait until the Broncos win and then declare a holiday on a Saturday or a Sunday when it won't affect us?" said Hentzel.

"This may start something," he warned. "What will we do if the Nuggets win the basketball championship, or the Rockies (a pro hockey team), or the Comets (a volleyball team)?"

Young Praises Film About King

YOUNG

"It won't stand up to a lot of people's image of history, but it's basically what happened," he said at a Tuesday news conference arranged by NBC.

"It's not a documentary of the civil rights movement, the Vietnam War protest, Selma, but it puts all of those together in a sweeping history and I think it's authentic," said Young, a former civil rights worker who is portrayed in the six-hour drama.

The film "King" is scheduled to be shown Feb. 12, 13 and 14 and stars Paul Winfield as the slain civil rights leader and Emmy winner Cicely Tyson as Coretta King, Abby Mann, who won an Oscar for his adaptation of "Judgment at Nuremberg," wrote the script and directed.

After reading a script copy last summer, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, who led the Southern Christian Leadership Conference after King was killed in 1968, said that the movie "portrays Dr. King as a very weak and cowardly sort of leader. It even implies that once Dr. King thought he might have to resort to violence."

Editor Flies Over Homeland

GABORENES, Botswana (AP) — Donald Woods, the white liberal editor who escaped from South Africa where he was under a five-year banning order, has been flown from sanctuary across a wide stretch of his homeland.

An official from Lesotho, the independent black kingdom to which Woods escaped over the weekend, made the 2-hour, 20-minute flight with the Woods family Tuesday to try to ensure their safety under an agreement with South Africa guaranteeing overflight rights.

It had been feared that if the 10-passenger Lesotho Airways plane were forced by weather or other circumstances to land in South Africa, authorities there would try to arrest Woods.

The flight, however, was without incident. Still, his wife called it "a nerve-racking experience."

"I am relieved and I feel safe for the first time," Woods told reporters in the capital of this former British protectorate. In South Africa the ban had effectively silenced him since last October.

The order restricted him to East London, where he had been the outspoken editor of the Daily Dispatch, and forbade his writing or saying anything for publication.

The family is to continue to Zambia today to catch a plane to England.

HHH Still Undergoing Treatment

WAVERLY, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who has inoperable cancer of the pelvis, spent his two-week vacation from the Congress enjoying visits with his family and friends, watching football on television and doing casual office work, according to an aide.

Fred Gates of Humphrey's staff says the senator plans to return to Washington for the new session of Congress Jan. 19, but no date has been set for the trip.

Gates said Tuesday that the anti-cancer chemotherapy begun at the National Cancer Institute in Washington has continued while Humphrey has been in Minnesota.

The drugs are administered about once a week. Humphrey, 66, has said that the chemotherapy program is "one of the most aggressive" ever tried by doctors.

Treaty Negotiator Plans Debate

LINOWITZ

The two-hour debate is scheduled for Jan. 13 at the University of South Carolina and will be carried live on national public radio and taped for use on public television at a later date, according to an announcement Tuesday.

Reagan, former California governor and a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976, opposes the treaties, which would give Panama control of the canal by the year 2000 and are before the Senate for ratification. Buckley supports them.

Former Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina will moderate.

TOKYO (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, traveling in China, has met with Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua, China's Hsinhua news agency reports.

In a dispatch from Peking, Hsinhua said Huang and Kennedy met Tuesday and had "a friendly talk." No details on the meeting were given.

Hsinhua said the Chinese foreign minister gave a banquet in honor of Kennedy and his party, who arrived in Peking Saturday from Shanghai.

School Hit By Screw Vandal

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — Somewhere there's a vandal with a screwdriver — and maybe with a screw loose.

When officials at Winter Park High School returned from the holiday weekend they found the place littered with doorknobs, electrical outlet plates, toggle switches and other equipment.

Someone had unscrewed every screw he could reach. Some of the unscrewed pieces were missing, but no other damage was done.

The culprit "must have spent hours, or else there was an army of them," Assistant Principal Bernard Bell said Tuesday.

School maintenance crews spent most of the day putting the school back together.

Officials aren't sure how the vandal got in, but Bell has a hunch. "Probably with that screwdriver," he said.

Use Of LNG Urged By Official

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States should substitute more foreign liquefied natural gas for foreign oil and pass on increased costs of LNG to all gas consumers, according to the head of the American Gas Association.

George Lawrence said reducing oil imports with the substitution of 1.6 trillion cubic feet of LNG in 1985 could cut the U.S. energy dollar drain by $1.5 billion to $2.5 billion.

Massive imports of foreign oil have contributed to a trade imbalance, with the United States buying more overseas than it sells. The pattern contributes to inflation at home.

Lawrence says gas companies will cancel plans for new LNG projects if the administration fails to average in the high cost of LNG with the low cost of regular natural gas.

Energy secretary James Schlesinger, opposing the concept of average prices, recently advocated making LNG consumers pay the full cost of their more expensive fuel. Lawrence urged that the views expressed by Schlesinger not be translated into official policy.

In testimony prepared for an Energy Department hearing today on potential LNG policy changes, Lawrence also said government failure to approve pending LNG projects would force millions of American consumers to switch to higher-priced electricity or to foreign oil.

He urged the administration to replace its general guidelines and case-by-case approach with a new policy "free from uncertainty, ambiguity and regulatory delay."

Gas companies are looking increasingly toward LNG as a supplement to domestic natural gas supplies, which already are dwindling and are expected to decrease sharply by 1990. One LNG terminal already is in operation in Massachusetts, and a second is under construction in Maryland.

Four proposed new LNG projects would supply Indonesian gas to the West Coast and Algerian gas to the Gulf and East Coasts. Shipped by tanker in liquid form at a temperature of minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit, the fuel would be returned to gaseous form in shore stations and fed into existing gas pipelines.

The government over the weekend approved a proposal to triple to 45 trillion BTUs (British Thermal Units) the amount of Algerian LNG imported through Everett, Mass. A BTU is the amount of energy needed to heat one pound of water 1 degree Fahrenheit.

Lawrence said the United States could be importing 1.6 trillion cubic feet of LNG by 1985, 2.4 trillion by 1990 and 3 trillion by 1995. Each 1.6 trillion could replace 750,000 barrels of imported oil.

"By 1985 the United States will need to be importing significant quantities of LNG if we are to have an adequate supply of dependable, clean and reasonably-priced energy," Lawrence said.

"LNG is superior in many respects to imported oil, and should be considered as a preferred replacement for foreign oil."

Motor vehicles registered in the United States number about 131 million, approximately 100 million more than in any other nation.

Crown Transfer Plans Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, following its latest court victory on the issue, is proceeding with plans to return the Crown of St. Stephen to the Hungarian government.

Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White on Tuesday turned down Sen. Bob Dole's request to delay the transfer. The Nebraska Republican argued the entire court should decide the issue.

Dole, who lost his case earlier in U.S. District Court, said return of the 977-year-old crown was a "treaty" that required Senate action.

White did not issue a written opinion. A separate but similar suit by 17 members of Congress, including Dole, was rejected by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on Dec. 21.

The crown has been a symbol of Hungary's national identity and religious freedom. It will be presented to the Hungarian government on Friday in Budapest and will remain on display there.

Americans of Hungarian descent objected to having the crown returned to a communist government.

Court Decrees American Samoa Ready For Jury Trial System

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — By court decree, the people of Tutuila, Aunuu and the other islands of American Samoa are ready for that linchpin of American justice, the jury system.

In a ruling made public Tuesday, a federal judge concluded that the matai don't have the control they once did over the aiga; that ifoga is a thing of the past; and that Fa'a Samoa has to change.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant did not plunge into his decision lightly.

"I wish to emphasize that I have great sensitivity to the views ... that these questions should be resolved by American Samoans themselves," he wrote in a 13-page opinion.

But he ruled nevertheless that Jake King, a U.S. newspaper publisher convicted by three judges of willfully failing to pay his Samoan income tax, had a constitutional right to a jury trial.

King, who publishes the weekly Samoa News, was fined $250 and put on a year's probation for failing to pay $1,098 in taxes for 1969. He filed suit against the secretary of the interior, now Cecil D. Andrus, as administrator of the American territory.

The Samoans, residents of a group of South Pacific islands 2,300 miles southeast of Hawaii, have a constitution with a bill of rights that contains all the protections for criminal defendants contained in the U.S. Constitution except the requirement for jury trials.

The argument put forth by the Interior Department was that jury trials would undercut traditional values and harmonious relations among the 29,000 Samoans, undermine confidence in the present system of justice and be "impractical and anomalous."

The Interior Department said in effect that the Samoans have gotten along just fine with Fa'a Samoa, the Samoan way of life, which encompasses the aiga, or extended family, who lives under a chieftain called a matai on communally owned land. Under the custom of ifoga, one family renders a formal apology to another for a serious offense committed by one of its members.

The department argued that it would be impossible to empanel a jury of impartial persons because of the Samoans' "sense of oneness," arising out of almost endless family relationships.

Alas, said the judge, things aren't that simple any more. Paradise has grown.

There are well over 1,000 aigas and matais in American Samoa. Some people considered part of an aiga are distant relatives who don't know each other. Individual households have increased from 2,600 in 1960 to 6,000 in 1975.

"The aiga has also lost ground in the face of widespread intermarriage of American Samoans with Americans and others," he said.

"The monopoly on political expression for a family, once held by the matai, has given way to the right to vote of all adults. ... The ifoga is becoming a thing of the past. ..."

All this led Judge Bryant to conclude that "from a logistical and administrative point of view, the jury system in American Samoa is entirely feasible."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Here's To Plain Speaking

INURED AS we have been to the government's turgid way with the language, it's difficult to conceive of an official communication that does not appear deliberately designed to defy comprehension. But a dispatch from the capital informs that a serious effort is indeed underway to introduce plain talk into the government's communication with the citizenry. Language specialists are said to be at work this very minute translating traditional bureaucratic into language understood and used by real people.

AT THE ENERGY department, for example, the campaign for clear English reportedly ranks right up there with solving the energy crisis on the list of priorities.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, aides say, has an unnerving way of tossing badly written documents into the air—which is probably preferable for morale purposes than his heaving them to the floor.

Over at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where there's no end of material to work on, they've embarked on a five-year program to rewrite some 6,000 pages of regulations. Cleaning up Washington's language clearly is going to be no easy task.

There's inertia to overcome and the fear that may strike many a bureaucratic heart at the prospect of actually being understood.

And then there is the legal as well as the linguistic aspect to be considered.

Government regulations can have the force of law and, of necessity, are often complex.

So the language not only must be comprehensible, but of a precision to hold up in court. Uh, oh.

NEVERTHELESS, the word experts say it can be done. And they have support from the very highest quarters for the effort.

President Carter, not one himself to garble the grammar, has given the campaign his special blessing. Getting Congress to act on his proposal, however, could turn out to be a simple matter compared to persuading the bureaucracy to talk straight.

Oh, well. Good luck. Or, as they might say in bureaucratese, maximized efficacy.

John D. Lofton:

Congress Leaps...Then Looks

WASHINGTON—If Congress is not going to look before it leaps, Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., believes that it should, at the very least, look after it leaps.

At the request of Sen. Leahy, the General Accounting Office has come up with a plan which would require the federal bureaucracy to report regularly to Congress on how legislation is working out in real life.

As it stands now, this lack of appropriate accountability leaves Congress with no way of checking on a program without commissioning costly, individual evaluation reports.

Sen. Leahy will introduce the new GAO-designed accountability process early next year. Says the senator:

"One of the basic problems right now with federal programs is that there is little communication between the people who create them and the people who put them into practice.

"We have no way of insuring that a program is going to have anything to do with the reasons Congress enacted it. Often they don't."

"We will be getting away from the mindset which says that if we throw lots of money at a problem, the problem will go away, regardless of the quality of program being funded with that money."

ONE OF THE important areas which this new accountability process should examine closely is the cost to the private sector of federal regulatory programs.

A lot has been said and written about the cost of government red tape, but how many Americans really appreciate just how expensive these rules and regulations are? These are expenses, incidentally, which are ultimately borne, not by business, but by consumers themselves.

A new study, titled "Public and Private Expenditures for Federal Regulation of Business," authored by Robert DeFina, a research assistant in the Center for the Study of Business at Washington University, shows that the cost imposed on the U.S. economy by federal regulatory activities in 1976 totaled a whopping $65.5 billion.

This estimate is comprised of $3.2 billion in administrative costs and $62.3 billion in compliance costs.

The study examined the annual cost of federal red tape in the areas of consumer safety and health; job safety and working conditions; financial regulation; specific industries, and paperwork.

NOT INCLUDED IN this study, because there is no data available, are the costs of federal regulatory activities in the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service;

Also, Packers and Stockyard Administration;

Will Koreagate Lead To War?

PRESIDENT CARTER faces a tough decision on South Korea early next year.

The President will have to decide on whether to go ahead with his planned phased withdrawal of the remaining 32,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea in face of a possible Congressional cut off or sharp reduction of U.S. military aid to that strategic ally.

Without the expanded U.S. aid for the South Korean military forces, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have warned the White House that any further withdrawal of U.S. forces would tip the balance of power in favor of the North Koreans and this could lead to another Korean war.

Of immediate concern to the President's military advisers is the failure of congress to act on the administration's proposal to turn over to the South Koreans approximately $800 million worth of arms now in the possession of U.S. troops to be withdrawn.

THE GOVERNMENT OF President Park Chung Hee agreed to withdrawal of U.S. forces in exchange for President Carter's promise to transfer the arms and to provide additional military aid over the next four years to bolster South Korea's military forces.

This arms agreement, which is the basis for future security relationships between the two countries, is now being threatened by a reluctant Congress becoming disillusioned by the findings of Congressional inquiries into Korean covert efforts to influence U.S. lawmakers.

So serious is the situation that Democratic Congressional leaders have notified the White House that the House will not act on the military equipment transfer legislation unless Seoul cooperates with the U.S. in its investigation of the Korean CIA's effort to influence U.S. Congressmen with gifts and money.

Most disturbing to the Joint Chiefs of Staff are reports now circulating within the administration that the objectives of certain key members of Congress and staff members of Congressional Committees probing the Korean scandals go much further than exposing the lawmakers involved.

THEIR OBJECTIVES ARE to use the inquiries to topple the pro-U.S. government of President Park Chung Hee by creating an atmosphere in Congress to force a Congressional cutoff of all U.S. military aid.

An Oh-So-Sorry Set Of Stats

WASHINGTON—Village Blacksmith Microvalve, Inc., developed a model to sell for $5.50, and contracted to sell several gross to Tokyo Rosie, Ltd., at that price which was domestic and worldwide.

Big deal! But the Village Blacksmith Microvalve crates were stopped at the Japanese wharves and denied entrance to the island empire which actually is ruled by the Almighty Yen.

What the heck. All right, perfectly legal and devilishly devious.

It turns out that the dimensions of an inner gadget of the Village Blacksmith Microvalve were a millimeter off the Japanese standards, so the bargain was out and the price was knocked crankside worldwide.

Meanwhile the clever imitative Japanese had something called Pseudo Microvalve, at less cost, and it soon was dumped at a lower price in America and Europe enabling Japan to pay the price of Arab oil with a smile.

IT DIDN'T HAPPEN, perhaps, that way, but Robert Strauss told similar stories on Japanese non-tariff restrictions.

Such legalistic gouging brings a slow flush to the handsome, high-up brow of Texan Strauss, our ambassador for world trading.

During Mid-December Strauss was often visible with his opposite number, Trade Minister Nobuhiko Ushibi.

I'm just chauvinist enough to be glad that Ushibi, though tall for a Japanese, stands half a head shorter than our man Strauss, and habitually wears an open-mouthed smile, as if he brought America the horse laugh.

What he also brought was an oh-so-sorry set of stats which show Japan with an annual $10 billion trade bulge over the United States, built up in large part by deals like the one on Village Blacksmith, but also on perfectly open transac-

Cited as an illustration of this strategy was the highly unusual public statement of Leon Jaworski, the special counsel to the House Ethics Committee one of the two committees probing the Korean scandal, calling on Congress to bar further aid to South Korea unless there is full cooperation.

Under normal circumstances such a statement would only be made by the committee chairman because of its far-reaching implications.

Jaworski made his statement without even consulting committee members and after holding hearings that almost make it impossible for the South Korean government to cooperate without convicting itself.

Besides the ethics committee, the House Subcommittee on International Organizations is investigating the covert efforts of Koreans to buy influence among American congressmen, government officials, and the press.

THIS COMMITTEE IS headed by Donald Fraser, D-Minn., a leader in the successful campaign that reduced and then cut off all U.S. military aid to Cambodia and South Vietnam during the closing days of the Vietnam war, and after U.S. troops were withdrawn.

In a congressional hearing in 1975 while the pro-U.S. regime in Cambodia was fighting for its life, Rep. Fraser suggested that it should surrender to the Communists in order to end the war and reduce the killing there.

Since the Communists took over, more than one million Cambodians have been put to death or died from other actions by the new regime. Working with a network within the Justice Department and the State Department that want to topple the Park government, Rep. Fraser recently tried to silence South Korea's number one defender on his Committee, Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill.

The Justice Department was asked by Fraser to look into allegations from the committee's staff that Derwinski had informed the South Korean government about the planned defection of one of its intelligence agents to the U.S.

IN MAKING A complete denial of the charge, Derwinski has told colleagues that the attack against him was part of a campaign to embarrass and silence anyone that opposes or tries to upset the move to turn Korea into another Vietnam.

With the basic security relationship between the two countries now in serious danger of coming apart, the issue facing President Carter is whether he will continue with the U.S. troop withdrawal without definitely knowing where Congress stands on future aid to South Korea.

The decision could be one of the most important foreign policy actions undertaken by the President during his first term in office.

Note: Sen. George McGovern, a close political ally of Rep. Fraser, already has called for a cut off of aid to South Korea. He also proposed that the Carter administration reach over the head of South Korea and start negotiating the future of the Peninsula directly with Communist North Korea.

Too Many Credit Lines Can Entangle Budget

(Second Of Nine Columns)

Have you recently asked for a new loan before repaying an old one?

Are you taking cash advances from your credit cards to pay for the most routine monthly expenses?

Overwhelmed as you are at this start of 1978 by debts you piled up during the Christmas buying season of 1977, are you seriously considering requesting protection from your bill collectors by taking out a consolidation loan, so that you can repay all of them and then be left with one big monthly repayment on the one big loan?

If your answer is yes to even one of these questions, you may be—you probably are—already way over your head in debt.

(1) A WORKABLE YARDSTICK over the years:

- If you are using 10 percent of your take-home pay (weekly, monthly, annually) to repay loans (excluding your mortgage), your load is comfortable.

- If you are using 15 percent of your take-home pay for repayment, your load is manageable.

- If you are using 20 percent or more for repayments, you are dangerously overloaded.

(2) HOW MUCH DEBT is too much debt?

Prolonged and profound study underlines that the following are clear warning signals that you are moving perilously close to the debt borderline and may already be crossing it.

- You are continually lengthening the repayment periods on your installment purchases and putting down smaller and smaller initial payments.

Simultaneously, your interest load is increasing just because you are sinking deeper and deeper into debt for longer and longer spans of time.

- What you owe on your revolving charge accounts also is climbing steadily.

- Before you have finished paying last month's bills, this month's are piling in.

- YOU ARE SO bedeviled by so many separate bills coming at you from so many sources each month that you turn to a lending institution for a loan to "consolidate" and pay off all your debts—leaving you with just this one big loan to meet.

- You still have your credit cards, however, and you continue to buy on credit, thereby adding more new bills on top of the big loan you must repay each month.

- Only you can stop this vicious circle which you yourself have created.

(3) Keep your debt load below that 20 percent of your after-tax income (not including your ents ought to gather round their representatives and senators and demand satisfaction. They can get it if they try.

And they will not be trying if they accept their congressman's answer that Ambassador Ushibi says he's going back to Japan and join his government in raising the Japanese economic growth rate from 7 percent to 10 percent.

The Japanese people are out-producing us, with the help of a responsive government, and the reason is not that Oriental work ethic is higher than the Yankee or any Western Hemisphere one.

If Americans are dense and sentimental enough to think we "owe" the Japanese a trade advantage, that's how it's going to be. But we have a responsive government too, and this month is when every Congressman ought to hear from the folks at home.

home mortgage). This means that if you earn $800 a month in take-home pay, or $9,600 after taxes a year, your debt limit would be under $2,000 a year.

(4) DO NOT OWE MORE than 10 percent of the amount you could pay for out of your income within the next 18 months. Again, say your take-home pay is $800 a month; that gives you 10 percent, or $80, for debt repayments each month.

With this monthly sum, you could pay off $1,500 over 18 months. Your comfortable debt limit would be about $1,500.

(5) Do not owe more than one-third of your discretionary income for the year—meaning the income you have left after you have paid for the basic needs of food, clothing and shelter.

Once again, say you earn $9,600 in take-home pay a year and you spend an average of $200 a month for shelter, $280 a month for food, $50 a month for clothing.

Your basic living costs are $535 a month or $6,360 over the year. Your discretionary income is, therefore, $3,240.

By this yardstick, your debt limit is $1,080, one-third of your discretionary income of $3,240.

Which ever system you select, follow it faithfully.

Tomorrow: If you are turned down for a loan.

Dissident Refuses To Apologize

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Raphael Cancel Miranda is an aging soldier in a Puerto Rican war of independence who has spent more than half his life in federal prison.

On March 1, 1954, Miranda scattered bullets into the wall of the U.S. House of Representatives. Five congressmen were injured.

Miranda is now 47 years old. He has spent 23 years in prisons at Alcatraz, Leavenworth and now the maximum security facility here.

It needn't be that way, attorneys believe. Miranda probably could receive clemency and his freedom if he would admit that his attack was wrong and would accept conditions for his release.

But Miranda refuses.

"There is more at stake than just us as individuals," he says, peaking of himself and three others jailed after the shootings.

"We don't recognize the legality of the United States government over Puerto Rico. We know they have power ... but power is not the same as having authority."

He said that signing the clemency papers would mean that "we are accepting that authority."

Puerto Rico became an American commonwealth in 1952 upon a vote of the people, but Miranda insists that American interests have remained firmly in control and, "There are so many ways we can colonize the people's minds."

He says that 17 percent of Puerto Rican land "has military bases of the United States. They control the lives and the minds of Puerto Ricans in many ways."

The congressional shootout, he said, "was defensive. We had been attacked. We did not come here to invade the United States. They sent troops there to invade us."

But was the sacrifice of half a lifetime worth it?

"It is worth it. I'm not judging it by what has happened to me, but for what good I've done to my people. This struggle is the main thing in my life. The nationalists haven't forgotten a high price. Puerto Rican nationalists haven't forgotten."

Some 300 demonstrators gathered at the penitentiary entrance Oct. 30 to press for the release of Miranda and other "political prisoners."

Earlier, a group of Puerto Rican nationalists occupied the Statue of Liberty to draw attention to Puerto Rican liberation.

"Today, the people in Puerto Rico and many other people who are fighting for national liberation see in us a symbol of a system — a fight — for national liberation," said Miranda.

One of the four who attacked Congress is free. Andreas Cordero was released Oct. 6 from the U.S. Penitentiary at Springfield, Mo., because he has cancer.

Miranda is serving an 81-year sentence and could be behind bars until age 104 — "if I live that long."

Miranda's is assigned to menial duties, partly by choice.

"I worked in the dining room for awhile," he said. "Now I'm working in the education department. Sweeping up. I don't want higher than that."

Miranda thinks he could be assigned to more important jobs "if I tried — if I want to. But I don't want no strings, (nothing that would involve a favor). I started doing this time mopping ... just give me a mop and let me do my time."

Prison officials say Miranda has had only two brushes with prison authority. One was "for agitating" and refusing to work in the summer of 1972. The other was Oct. 9, 1974 for refusing to obey an order to be in a visitors' area.

Since then, says prison spokesman Ronald Beai, Miranda has received complimentary work, housing and health reports.

"Overall, in the several years he's been here, he's maintained a pretty good record," Beai added.

In the quiet times after the floors are clean in the education department, Miranda said, "I read. I write a lot to my family. I have two children, four grandchildren, a wife, sister, family, friends. I spend most of the time writing. I spend most of the time in the cell."

Mayor Re-Elected To Unwanted Post

BETHLEHEM, Ga. (UPI) — Bethlehem Mayor Thomas Bell was re-elected Monday to a post he did not run for and had not planned to accept.

No one qualified for the mayoral race, but Bell drew 34 write-in votes. Another resident, Ed Rogers, came in second with two votes, and Robert Harrison, the elections supervisor, got one.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Jan. 4, the fourth day of 1978 with 361 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Sir Isaac Newton, discoverer of the law of gravity, and actress Jane Wyman were born Jan. 4 — he in 1642 and she in 1914.

On this day in history:

In 1885, Dr. William Grant of Davenport, Iowa, performed the first appendectomy. The patient made a complete recovery.

In 1937, about 10,000 Italian troops landed in Spain to help the nationalist forces in that country's civil war.

In 1948, Burma became an independent nation after centuries of influence and control by Great Britain.

In 1974, President Nixon refused to release any more of the 500 documents subpoenaed by the Senate Watergate Committee.

Austin Due Large Hike In Housing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's hottest housing markets during 1978 are expected to develop in 12 comparatively small to medium-sized urban regions scattered around the country.

The communities identified in an industry forecast are Albuquerque, N.M.; Austin, Charleston, S.C.; Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and environs; the greater Harrisburg, Pa., area; Hartford, Conn.; Kalamazoo, Mich., and suburbs; Knoxville, Tenn.; the Lincoln, Neb., region; the metropolitan area centered on Riverside, Calif.; greater Seattle, Wash.; and Tulsa, Okla.

Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., a Boston firm which annually forecasts housing trends, said the 12 communities were chosen because they were the only ones in the 50 states which appeared among the top in three important categories: projected actual sales of new and existing single-family homes, performance in relation to the size of the local market, and potential improvement over 1977 sales figures.

"They are the ones on everybody's lists," a spokesman said.

Jackson W. Goss, IMIC president, said pace of sales and rate of growth probably are the most important measurements of a housing market's health.

"By these standards, this group of localities will outperform the major urban centers in 1978," he said.

The 12 "sleepier cities" were identified through information collected from government and private sources, thrift institutions and IMIC's own sales force.

IMIC said other cities are bound to be good home markets in 1978.

"We know, for example," the spokesman said, "St. Louis will be hot in 1978 but it didn't fit into all three categories. When we checked for 'hot building towns' only 12 came out."

Following 1977's outstanding performances by big city markets — San Diego, Chicago, Houston and Washington, D.C., for example," Goss said, "this year will see a broadening of the current housing boom into the second tier of urban areas."

He said the 1978 national housing scene generally will be effected by these trends:

— Younger families as well as older couples, so-called empty nesters, are looking more for localities where husband and wife can work.

— Home seekers are looking increasingly for recreational attractions, not only sunshine but easy access to skiing and other winter sports.

— There is a movement back to the first circle of metropolitan suburbs where younger buyers find more opportunities for renovation plus close-in advantages.

Clown's Work 'Serious Business'

SEATTLE (AP) — Clowning around is serious business for Richard Nasch, who at 29, is running away to join the circus. Next year, he reports to the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus as a clown.

"I love the circus," Nasch said. "It offers everything — music, comedy, color, mime, excitement, the whole potpourri of entertainment — even the smells. All your senses are fulfilled."

Nasch began clowning with the Spherical Circus Works, which performs for local street fairs. When the circus came to town, Nasch would be there, hanging around the big-time clowns.

He applied for the Ringling Brothers' clown college several months ago. Of 4,000 applicants, he was one of 60 accepted and one of 24 to be hired for next year's tour.

As a "baby clown," he'll make $155 a week, less $10 for room in a tiny cubicle on a train carrying the circus across the country.

While clowning may look easy, Nasch said school was "intense" and sometimes scary. Climbing wobbly ladders, dancing on stilts, taking a fall and rolling out so as to avoid injury — and come up smiling — all take practice, he said.

Clown college included classes in Tai Chi, a martial art which "centers your energy and gets you ready for the day," said Nasch, as well as instruction in juggling, tumbling, unicycling, riding elephants, making false noses, magic, mime, balloon sculpture and nutrition.

Then there were the Saturday morning cartoons on TV. "We were polishing our funny bones," he said.

In the search for the clown in himself, Nasch tried various faces, and finally de-cidied his mood was that of a duck — a waddling creature that has certain clown qualities.

When he dons his face, 45 minutes in the making, "a magical transformation occurs — a certain feeling comes over you. It's very joyous," said Nasch.

Clowning may be joyous, but the clown's schedule is not — two shows a day, six days a week, with three shows on Saturday.

But for Nasch, it's fulfillment. "It's really an act of love. It really makes me feel good to make people laugh."

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Is Dean Martin really a drunk? Or is this just his image? — Harry Schornstein, Scottsdale, Ariz.

A: "People love to hear about my drinkin' or to think that I'm drunk," he once told interviewer Oriana Fallaci. "Like with Phil Harris. In fact, everytime there is a joke on TV about drinking, it's either gonna be Dean Martin or Phil Harris. I'm not that much of a drinker...The image is there because when I was with Jerry (Lewis) and I was so unhappy, yes, I used to drink. There was nothin' to do but drinkin' and I drank, gettin' drunk at times. But no one has ever seen me drunk. I've never been picked up by the cops, as many actors have. I could name you a dozen."

"You know," the versatile superstar continued, "these all-American boys who drink like hell, those liars, are picked up by the cops, but their names never get to the papers. If I had been picked up, you can be sure, right away it would have been in the headlines."

"Yes, they think I am a drunk, and who cares? There's nothin' wrong with drinkin', and I'm not saying I don't drink. I love to drink a little. And to make fun of it."

Like the time he summed up what he thinks about actors who go into politics with Ronnie Reagan (then governor of California and a friend for 20 years) sitting in the audience: "I only would become governor if all the drunks voted for me!"

About his long partnership with Jerry Lewis, Martin told Fallaci, that when they went to a party, he sat so quietly in a corner that everybody thought he was bigheaded and stuck up. Which he wasn't. "It was because I didn't know how to speak good English, so I used to keep my mouth shut. I used to say 'ain't' all the time, and 'dese' and 'dems.' And didn't know how to hold a conversation. Now, I've reverted to 'dese' and 'dems' on TV and I'm a big hit 'cause I talk bad English. Yeah — it's a crazy world."

Q: I heard that the late Fats Waller was once kidnapped by Al Capone. What's the story? — C. S., Shreveport, La.

A: As a surprise for the boss' birthday party in Cicero, Ill., one of Capone's associates kidnapped Fats to play for Al and his guests. The henchman kept Waller incommunicado for a few days, finally releasing him in time to entertain at the shindig. He found hundred dollar bills stuffed in his pockets for every request he played, and his glass was constantly filled with vintage champagne. As a result when Fats returned to Chicago he found himself several thousand dollars richer. Waller later said the only reason he recalled the incident was because it was the first time he drank champagne.

Q: Who said: "Make two grins grow where there was only a frown before?" — M. Maxon, Minneapolis.

A: Arthur Elbert Hubbard, author-poet, 1865-1915.

Q: For years, my husband's been after me to stop smoking — warning me about cancer and heart disease. Now he's come up with a new one that may do the trick. Claims smoking causes wrinkles. Is this true? — R. Schultz, Milwaukee.

A: Yes. As we once pointed out, Dr. Harry W. Daniell of Redding, Cal., examined and photographed the "crow's feet" of more than 1,000 subjects. He claimed the association between cigarette smoking and wrinkling is indisputable. You can test his theory at a cocktail party by observing the faces of men and women smoking. Usually the wrinkles of a subject who smoked heavily during youth are deeper in later years.

Football Brings More Visitors To Tut

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — King Tut and the Super Bowl are the main attractions in town the next two weeks, and both are virtually assured of capacity crowds.

The Tut exhibit, which closes Jan. 15, the same day as the Super Bowl, has been seen by more than 750,000 people since it opened at the New Orleans Museum of Art Sept. 18. The crowds have been heaviest in recent weeks, swelled by Christmas, New Year's and Sugar Bowl visitors.

Many have camped overnight on the museum grounds to assure themselves of tickets. They used blankets, camp stools, bed rolls and outdoor stoves to ease the wait, sometimes up to eight hours.

The final weeks are expected to attract capacity crowds, largely because of Super Bowl visitors.

"We expect the lines will get worse this week," said Donna Banting, exhibit coordinator. "Everyone who came into town for the Sugar Bowl game will probably try to take in the exhibit before leaving."

"Only a limited number of people can get in to see the exhibit each day so we've had to turn away thousands."

She said the cold weather and rain has not hampered the spirits of those waiting to see the 55 artifacts from the tomb of King Tutankhamun.

"People started fires in the trash barrels to try to keep warm. But we had to have firemen come out and extinguish the fires because the plastic trash liners and cups made a terrible odor when they burned."

"We have a city ordinance prohibiting overnight camping in the park, but the city police have been marvelous to these people by letting them stay."

The New Orleans museum's final visitor count is estimated to be about 850,000, more people than those who saw the exhibit at the National Gallery in Washington, D.C. A total of 830,340 people saw the show in Washington and 1.3 million people viewed it in Chicago.

After New Orleans the Tut exhibit will be in Los Angeles, Seattle, New York and San Francisco.

Businessmen Express Uncertainty About Chairman-Designate

By JOHN CUNIFF
 NEW YORK (AP) — One of the imperatives for the chairman-designate of the Federal Reserve Board is to make known to the world his monetary philosophy. The reason: Uncertainty equals confusion — in regard to the value of the dollar and the value of stocks, among other things. Never was there doubt about Arthur Burns' views. He is consistent and there-constructed on the quicksand of inflation. Businessmen love Burns, or so it was said. But an important distinction must be made: Big business, made up of establishment firms, generally agreed with him. Small business feeling was mixed. It's chief complaint was the matter of high interest rates, at one point under Burns the highest this century. Big business, though hurt, could pass on such costs to customers; small business found it more difficult. Beginning firms were in even worse shape, unable to raise capital at all because funds ordinarily available for such purposes were diverted into higher paying, less risky bonds. Can Miller cooperate more closely with the Carter administration while retaining a nonpartisan political stance? It cannot be predicted; it must be demonstrated.

Conceivably, he might even have Burns' presence on his board, since the former professor's appointment as a member continues until Jan. 31, 1984. Burns said he needs time to make that decision, and the chairman makes up his mind deliberately. Never has he been known to reveal much of anything until he is fully prepared to do so. Should he choose to remain a member of the Fed board he would find himself in an awkward position, and so would the new chairman. Sort of like Henry Kissinger looking over Cyrus Vance's shoulder.

Analysis

fore predictable. He is conservative. He believes that inflation is the number one economic danger. He likes free markets. G. William Miller is not an unknown. As president of Textron Inc., a giant diversified corporation, he is recognized as a successful businessman. Politically, he is a Democrat.

Associates also describe him as a broadly knowledgeable and widely active individual, concerned about creating jobs, about the plight of blacks and about community welfare.

But in the midst of worries about a declining dollar, a massive trade imbalance, a depressed stock market, high unemployment and a renewed threat of greater inflation, American businessmen and foreign officials wonder about his money views.

A Federal Reserve Board chairman has enormous power, as much as any single individual outside the White House. As the person having the greatest influence over the money supply and the cost of money, he can actually challenge a President's economic expansion plans.

Burns exercised his powers. Some Democrats even blame his restrictive policies for sopping up funds released through the 1975 tax credit, which was aimed at stimulating the economy.

He has been an overpowering presence on the seven-person board. Highly secretive in its deliberations, the Fed seldom revealed disagreements among its members. Burns prevailed.

In fact, for eight years and in his own way, he has dominated the Fed as thoroughly as J. Edgar Hoover ran the FBI or Henry Kissinger the state department.

Never has there been any doubt about where Burns stands. Business knows. Unions know. So do heads of foreign nations.

Carter and Congress have always known, too, and sometimes they have disagreed with him. The most angry of the criticisms has been the allegation that Burns is so concerned with inflation that he fails to appreciate unemployment.

More sweeping is the criticism that Burns has been content to see the economy amble along below its capacities rather than risk the threat of inflation generated by expansion. Carter seemed to share this view.

George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, was more certain. He wanted Burns out. Jobs, jobs, jobs — 4 million a year of them, said Meany. Burns, however, believed that permanent jobs couldn't be BISMARCK, N.D. (UPI) — The Bureau of Indian Affairs has announced that the Devils Lake Sioux Indian Tribe has been paid $8.35 million by the U.S. government for land taken from the Fort Totten Indian Reservation.

Earl Asher, Aberdeen, N.D., said nearly $6.69 million of the settlement was paid to 2,673 enrolled members of the tribe. Each member got a payment of $2,500.

Surveys Show Few Understand Free Enterprise

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP)—Repeated surveys show that relatively few Americans understand corporate finance and the private enterprise system. Many believe that what a company takes in is used to line the pockets of a privileged few.

Asked what percentage of a dollar of sales is kept as profit by most companies, many individuals told John Q. Jennings, a labor-management consultant, that the figure was more than 30 percent.

The truth is that manufacturing companies in the first half of this year retained as profit about 5 1/2 cents of each dollar of sales. In 1967 the return was a nickel. In 1957 it was less than that.

Measured another way, as a percentage of shareholder money invested, these companies earned after-tax profits of 14 percent, 11.7 percent and 10.9 percent respectively for the same periods.

Neither do many people know how the corporate pie is cut. This is the circular graph divided into wedges indicating the distribution of corporate revenues.

In 1976, the world's largest manufac-

Second In A Series

ing corporation, General Motors, used 51 percent of its gross revenue to pay suppliers. Employees received 32.4 percent, taxes 8.5. Depreciation accounted for 2 percent, and 2.7 percent was used in the business.

That accounted for 96.6 percent. The rest went to shareholders, the people who put up the money to keep the operation solvent.

Businessmen often complain that popular arithmetic, if it ever arrives at this stage in analyzing the corporate dollar, seldom goes beyond. To divide that 3.4 percent by the 1,223,406 shareholders, for example.

In 1976, GM profits of $2.9 billion averaged out to $2,372 when divided by the number of shareholders. If the total were divided by the number of shareholders it would come out to $10.08 a share.

Neither, say business executives, do many people stop to think of who those shareholders are: pension funds, employees, other small investors and the like, as well as speculators and the rich who are said to line their pockets.

But all this arithmetic still doesn't tell a complete story. In spite of what appear to be solid profits, some businessmen are complaining about the erosion of profits.

Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, most recently sounded the warning. The figures do not tell of inflation's devastation, said Burns. When companies seek to replace inventories and build new plants they will be in trouble, he said.

In a speech, Burns said that replacement of plants and inventories last year alone came to $50 billion more than corporations were able to claim for tax purposes.

Harold Williams, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, also believes the big profits reported in 1977 were deceptive. In reality, he said, they were "dangerously low."

Jack Carlson, vice president and economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, agreeing with Burns and Williams, observes that corporations have been unable to afford replacements for their worn physical assets.

Walter Hanson, head of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., the public accountants, comments that corporate profits as a percentage of national income have fallen from 16.5 percent to 8.5 percent over the past decade.

The decline of true corporate profits, said Hanson, is related to the inability of companies to generate the capital they need to replace old facilities and expand to acquire new business.

"Our tax code completely fails to take into account the substantial increase in replacement costs brought about by inflation," he said. The purpose of depreciation as a tax deduction is to set aside money for the replacement of equipment, he reminds people.

But, a study by T. Rowe Price, the investment advisers, shows that if adjusted for depreciation based not on the purchase price of assets but on the cost of replacement, many companies would have little or no profits at all.

Among them it named Alcoa, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, International Harvester and Texaco. All apparently living a statistical illusion, storing up problems for the future — theirs and the country's.

Italian Government Launches Campaign

ROME (AP) — The Italian government says its campaign against tax evasion is targeting owners of expensive cars, actors, doctors, lawyers and businessmen who declare a deficit.

The Finance Ministry said its computer will select between 10 and 20 percent of the taxpayers in each of those groups for audits.

President Realizes Smaller Nations More Independent

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ever since President Howard Taft went to Panama in 1908, American presidents have enjoyed foreign travel. Some presidents have been happiest while visiting abroad in the full aura of imperial trappings — the red carpet ceremonial welcomes and the state dinners in palaces. Such moments are recorded for history and few presidents can resist playing it to the hilt.

President Carter has entertained 20 or so heads of state at the White House. There has been a steady parade of old friends and allies and by the leaders of the emerging nations to meet the new American president and to size him up. Now it is Carter's turn. The world has changed and he wants to see it. Up to now, he has kept his foreign travel to a minimum, one trip to the London Economic Summit where he made a big hit with the British.

Now, he is visiting Poland, Iran, India, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium. The president is armed with the fact that the world is shaping up in a different way and while the two super powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, still can call the tune if they choose to do so, the new realities are that there is a growing independence among smaller nations.

Carter's own foreign policy approach to the world is that it has gone beyond the East-West struggle and the United States must recognize the changes in the global community and to have a broader focus.

An administration official said Carter's journey is to engage the United States more with the emerging powers in the world and to try to identify the United States more directly with change in world affairs.

Presidential aides are miffed that some columnists have asked, "Is this trip necessary?" These aides do not see it as purposeless, although admittedly there is much that can be called "symbolic" in the places he has chosen to visit his first time around.

Poland is the only nation in the Soviet sphere, but it is the largest in Eastern Europe and it has welcomed American presidents with enthusiasm that cuts across all political boundaries. The ethnic ties of the past and the fact that Poland is an East-West bridge makes it an important stop for Carter.

The journey to Iran has many aspects because it is a world oil supplier and is strategically located on the Persian Gulf. It will be up to Carter to persuade both the Shah of Iran and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia, whom he will also see during an overnight stop in Riyadh, that the price hold-down should remain through 1978.

Also in Iran, Carter will be seeing Jordan's King Hussein, probably to encourage him to join in the peace talks between Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The president's visit to India is intended to encourage the government of Prime Minister Morarji Desai and to rebuild an old friendship with the world's largest democracy. Relations between the United States and India fell to a new low when Indira Gandhi was prime minister.

Carter's invitation to France was one of the first from a major power. French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing has wanted Carter to come to France before the parliamentary elections in March. Administration officials insist that Carter is not going in order to give Giscard d'Estaing a political boost. Nevertheless, there are indications that this may be a factor.

Expert Devises Survival Kit

By DAN FREEMAN
NORTHFIELD, Vt. (AP) — A kit no bigger than a tobacco can could prevent a lost hunter, hiker or cross-country skier from dying on some lonely mountain, says an expert in winter survival.

Donald Jennings, an instructor at Norwich University and a retired soldier, has spent years learning and teaching how to live and survive in the winter wilderness.

He says people shouldn't fight the elements. "Nature is just there. How you use it depends on how you survive."

The survival kit he recommends for anyone venturing into the wilds in winter contains a number of items — some obvious, some innovative — which fit into a small package.

The items include a balloon, a candle stub, matches dipped in model airplane glue for waterproofing, a pencil and some paper, a magnifying glass, a whistle, safety pins, a needle and thread, adhesive bandages, aspirin, a razor blade and wire.

The pencil and paper, he says, could cut the amount of time a person is lost in the woods by days. Jennings says people going into the wilderness should leave a note at their car telling when they entered the woods, when they are due to return and the compass reading of the direction in which they headed.

Knowing that information, Jennings says, rescue teams "could cut search patterns in half."

The candle stub, matches and magnifying glass are for building a fire, he says, and the candle stub can raise the temperature inside a snow hut by as much as 30 degrees.

The wire could be used to build a lean-to shelter, the whistle for signaling for help, and the balloon can be a makeshift canteen.

Safety pins and the needle and thread can be used for first aid on cuts and to repair torn clothing that leaves flesh exposed to the elements.

It's a good idea to throw in a couple of sugar or soup cubes, or carry freeze-dried food, he adds, though it shouldn't be the first concern of someone lost. "If you've left directions, you'll be found in 24 hours," he says.

A person's attitude is most important when lost, Jennings says. He says anyone lost should administer to spiritual as well as physical needs. "Religion helps," he says.

The Dominican Republic occupies the eastern two-thirds of Hispaniola — the island discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1492 — and the remaining third is occupied by Haiti.

"Stay put," he advises. "Unless you're positive of where you're going."

Jennings was in the Army for 22 years. He was an instructor in mountain winter warfare, mountain and cold weather training, rock climbing and avalanche survival. He is a civil defense winter survival instructor, and senior mountain instructor and ski area director at Norwich University.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your coterie tomorrow there will be one who is inclined to cause problems. You'll spot this quickly and be able to neutralize her adverse effects.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Two opposing forces will be at odds in your career areas tomorrow. Fortunately for you, the proponents of your cause will be able to nullify the detractors.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't go to those who have rejected you in the past for favors tomorrow. On the other hand, you probably can count on those who have seen fit to help you previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will have a penchant for conducting yourself admirably with others in commercial dealings tomorrow. In purely social situations, you may put your foot in your mouth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An old grudge shouldn't be allowed to influence your decisions tomorrow. If this happens, another might do something out of spite in an attempt to balance things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will not be a good self-starter tomorrow. Someone else may have to prod you a little, but you'll gratefully accept the nudge and go on to be a winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before you make a request of another tomorrow, be sure you'll be able to reciprocate when the shoe is on the other foot. It's not your nature to be a taker without giving in return.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When you throw cold water on co-workers, you may get by once. I wouldn't advise you to try the sour grapes again, if you want their cooperation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid negative persons like the plague tomorrow because you will have more than your share of self-doubts. Associate with positive thinkers and their vibes will be infectious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Being a good-time Charley with your money to impress pals will be an exercise in futility tomorrow. Spread it around on your family if you want to make points.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A career associate who has it in for you may try to make you look small in the eyes of others tomorrow. If you react with your best instincts, you can negate his ploy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Doubts will creep into your mind tomorrow, but at least they won't be concerning material things. The problem could be what to do with your windfall.

Your Birthday
Jan. 5, 1978

An interesting change could take place within your associations this coming year. You may become the focal point of a group where you have previously been only a spoke in the wheel.

Magazine Finds Hitler's Family

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — As a child, Adolf Hitler wanted to become a Roman Catholic bishop, the news magazine Oggi says.

The magazine said last week it had located and interviewed a number of Hitler's relatives in Austrian villages.

"Until age 7, Adolf Hitler was a child like any other," Anton Schmidt, 70, described as a first cousin of the German dictator, told Oggi. "Then he began to be restless. For instance, for some time he was obsessed with the idea of becoming a bishop."

"When he came to our home in Spital, he built an altar with some benches and pretended to officiate mass. Then he de-

Bolivia Abandons Hopes For Sea Outlet

By ALBERTO ZUAZO

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — The military government of land-locked Bolivia has tacitly abandoned hope that the negotiations with Chile and Peru will resolve its bid to obtain an outlet to the sea.

The commander of the Bolivian navy, Adm. Gutemberg Barroso, whose fleet is confined to Lake Titicaca on the Peruvian border 12,000 feet high in the Andes, confirmed the government's loss of faith in the long-stalled talks.

Addressing the closing exercises of the officers academy, he said Bolivian government had done its best to negotiate and its efforts would be judged by "the tranquil opinion of history."

Earlier, the president, General Hugo Banzer, told reporters that the problem of the negotiations would have to be resolved by the future national legislature of the civilian government to be chosen in elections next year.

In effect, Banzer admitted there will be at least a year's delay in a new approach to the issue of the outlet to the sea. The members of the new congress are to be elected July 9, but they will serve six months as a constitutional convention before taking office as a legislature in early 1979.

The problem dates back to the little-known War of the Pacific of 1879 when Chile conquered Bolivia's seacoast and, further north, part of Peru's.

The peace treaty between Chile and Peru, signed in 1929 after the direct mediation of U.S. World War I hero Gen. John J. Pershing, provides for the return of about half the former Peruvian territory. It also provides that Chile could not cede any part of the remainder of the conquered land to a third country without Peru's consent.

Under the 1929 treaty, Peru had to approve Chile's 1975 offer to cede to Bolivia a narrow strip of land along the Peruvian-Chilean border, Peru declined to approve, proposing instead that the three countries share sovereignty over the Chilean port of Arica. That counterproposal, made in late 1976, was unacceptable to both Chile and Bolivia. Even without the problem of Peru, the negotiations between Chile and Bolivia would be deadlocked. Chile demanded a territorial exchange, not only for the average seven-mile wide corridor, but also for the whole 200-mile strip of ocean over which Bolivia would acquire sovereignty.

The Chileans asked for some Bolivian land on the Chilean border which is rich in mineral. The proposal was extremely unpopular with Bolivian public opinion, and virtually rejected by the Banzer government.

The military government's diplomatic campaign for an outlet to the sea has made some progress on which the civilian government may be able to build. Before the serious talks over the issue began in 1974, Bolivia and Chile had had no diplomatic relations for 12 years. At least now, the countries exchange ambassadors.

American Forefathers Guzzled More Booze

SEATTLE (AP) — If your New Year's hangover is only now fading away, think how bad it must have been for your forefathers.

They drank three times as much, according to one researcher.

William Rorabaugh, a University of Washington history professor who spent four years researching American drinking, said the typical American male from 1790 to 1830 drank 17 gallons of booze a year.

"They drank it before breakfast, before they arose," Rorabaugh said. "I suspect in some cases it was used as a mouthwash. They had some with breakfast, then at 11 a.m., then at noon, then in the afternoon, then in the evening."

Wine — at $1 a gallon — was too expensive because it had to be imported. The average daily wage in those days was about $1.

"There wasn't much beer around, either," said Rorabaugh. "The German brewers didn't come to this country until the 1840s. There was, however, hard cider and whiskey.

"Whiskey was very cheap, about 5 cents for a fifth. Drinking it kind of reaffirmed the ideals of liberty and equality," Rorabaugh said.

Changes Proposed For Civil Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has tentatively approved splitting the Civil Service Commission into two new agencies and will send the proposal to Congress soon.

Commission Chairman Alan K. Campbell, who has been discussing the idea publicly for months, has said it would eliminate an inherent conflict of interest within the present commission, which has the duty both to manage the federal personnel system and to protect more than 2 million employees from abuses of their job rights.

The two new agencies would divide those two responsibilities.

Carter has indicated that a draft proposal to split the commission "is headed in the right direction," said Joseph E. Oglesby of the commission's public affairs staff.

The commission would be replaced by an Office of Personnel Management, which would report to the president, and a Merit System Protection Board, which would be totally independent.

There remains a question as to whether the changes could be made under the Reorganization Act through which Carter has been authorized to restructure government agencies, or whether separate legislation would be needed. Under that act, the changes would become law within 60 days unless vetoed by either the House or Senate.

"The present system has resulted in a dreadfully slow process for hiring" and prevents government management executives from shifting personnel to where they are most effective, Oglesby said.

There are two general types of civilian employees in the federal government — careerists who come under the commission's authority and political appointees. Under the current system, some jobs are reserved for career personnel and others for political appointees.

Under the proposed change, Oglesby said, agency executives would be able to interchange political and career personnel in assignments. He said the object would be to make the employees "more productive, more responsive by giving managers more freedom to manage."

He said the new system also would offer "more bonuses and inducements to manage well."

"The proposed system would speed up the hiring practice," Oglesby continued. "A lot of the slowdown is a contemporary result of some well-intended safeguards" that have resulted in such an overkill of protection that the system has become cumbersome to operate.

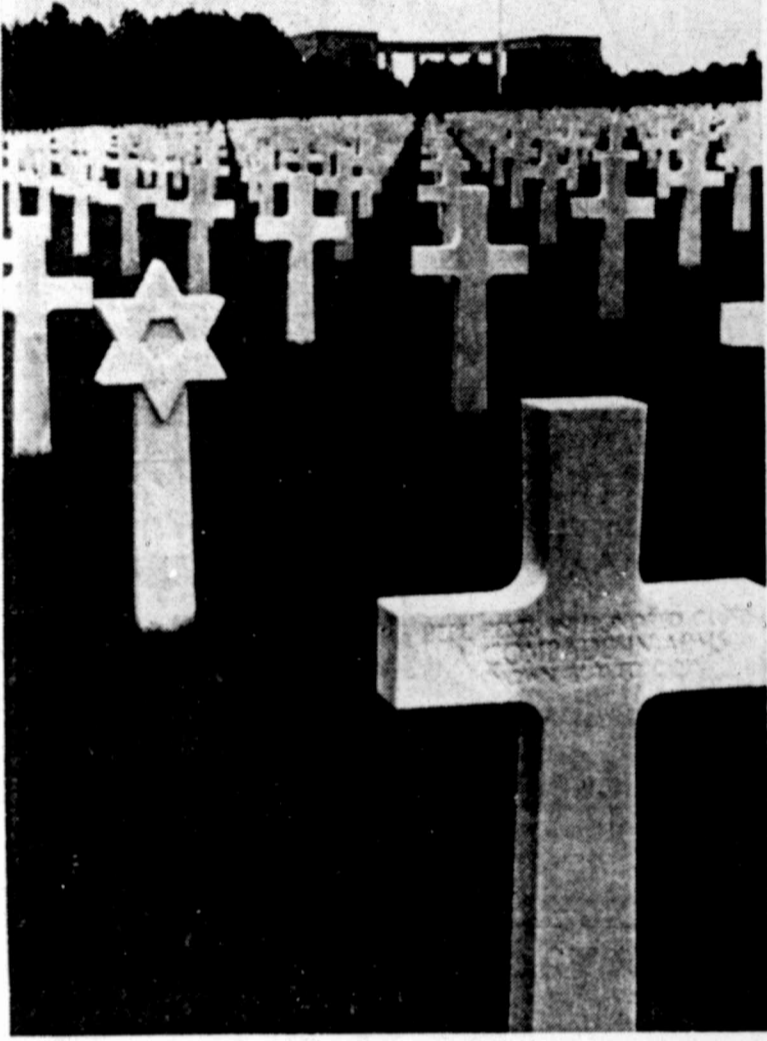

Oglesby said there would still be a ratio of 85 percent career employees to 15 percent political appointees among agency managers.

The Civil Service Commission now has three commissioners appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate. Some assistants also are political appointees.

Under the proposed system, the Office of Personnel Management would be headed by a director and a deputy, both appointed by the president. Five assistants could be appointed by the director and would be considered political appointees also.

The personnel office would handle recruitment for federal jobs and civil service exams, operate the employee retirement, health and life insurance programs and oversee equal employment opportunity in government, promotions, reductions and pay classifications.

The Merit Protection Board would have three members appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate for single, nonrenewable terms. The board would hear appeals from federal workers involved in firings, demotions and suspensions. It also could investigate personnel practices and complaints about merit system violations.

Carter Restates Mideast Views

pendent Palestinian state.

"We will not agree to such a mortal danger to Israel," Begin said.

Carter and Sadat met at the airport outside Aswan, the Egyptian winter playground on the upper Nile, during a 90-minute pause in the American president's flight from Saudi Arabia to Paris, the sixth stop on his seven-nation foreign tour. Sadat asked for the meeting after Carter said he favored a Palestinian homeland linked to Jordan rather than an independent state.

The two leaders were relaxed and smiling after their talk and embraced warmly after their statements to reporters. Sadat grinned broadly.

One high-ranking member of Carter's party said the U.S. president would seek to learn three things from Sadat:

1. What he expects from the political and military talks between the Egyptian and Israeli foreign and defense ministers that are to begin later this month.

2. What position Egypt will take when the negotiations start.

3. What specific objections Sadat has to Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's proposal for Palestinian self-rule under continued Israeli control of the occupied West Bank territory along the Jordan River.

Sadat told a Mexican television reporter he has "run out of concessions" and was asking Carter to pressure Israel to modify its position.

He said he was ready to re-evaluate his stance on security measures to satisfy Israel, but would not compromise on the return of all Arab territories taken in the 1967 war or on the question of self-determination for the Palestinians.

Copter Crash Kills Three

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A military helicopter carrying seven persons crashed today while searching the Great Smoky Mountains National Park for a small airplane which went down Tuesday night with five aboard, authorities said.

All five persons aboard the plane were reported killed, and there was a report that three persons aboard the helicopter also died.

It was not immediately determined what caused either accident.

BEGINNING LAST YEAR — U.S. Rep. George Mahon this month is starting his 44th and last year as the congressman from the 19th District. He today urged citizens in the district to have "confidence and believe in ourselves" as a nation. "I think we'll wrestle successfully in 1978," he said. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley) to push for more foreign markets for agricultural products and for provision of additional credit for farmers.

Mahon Expects Aid For Farms

"There must not be any more farm embargoes. This shook agriculture from the top to the bottom," the House dean declared.

As for the farmers' demands for 100 percent parity, Mahon said:

"One hundred percent parity would be great. But we couldn't get 100 percent parity without having the votes in the House. And it would be unrealistic to think we can get the votes for it."

There always are about 80 to 90 votes of the total 435 that can be depended upon for farm legislation, he commented. "But the average congressman from Brooklyn or from San Francisco is interested in his consumers. He wants the cost of living as low as possible for his consumers."

Mahon reiterated that he believes "something will come of the crusade" that farmers have staged in recent weeks.

On other issues touched on at an interview session, Mahon said:

— President Carter's Mideast peace efforts "have to be applauded." But he continued that it would be "unrealistic to believe that a smooth and completely satisfactory solution will be reached" any time soon.

— A tax cut is something he can forecast "with complete confidence."

— Carter led voters during his election campaign to expect "too much" if he won.

"He ran the kind of campaign that led people to believe" he was a fresh breeze on the Washington scene, a man who "wouldn't be hobbled by tradition."

"But if you're going to get something done, you've got to know something about the ball park in which you're playing," the 78-year-old Capitol Hill veteran said.

Carter will do better this year in his dealings with Congress, because he has learned some things, Mahon said.

But he looked on 1978 still as a year in which "it's just a question of how we'll muddle through."

Mahon said he believes the country's greatest problem now is "uncertainty. Big business and little business have got to plan ahead."

Businessmen are not sure what they must deal with in the way of taxes and regulation, he said.

"We have got to eliminate as much of the uncertainty as we possibly can."

Candidates Seek Posts In County

ject of controversy, praised in some quarters and criticized in others, for setting the bonds on murder suspects higher than those recommended by the Criminal District Attorney's office.

In a prepared statement LeCroy noted, "I have been criticized for setting high bonds in murder cases, but frankly I get plain mad when someone shoots another person down or kills someone with a motor vehicle."

"No one should be able to appoint himself judge, jury and executioner and have any hope of getting by without punishment."

Aguero, a 1967 graduate of Lubbock High School, opposed Brazell in 1974 for county commissioner as a last-minute Raza Unida candidate. He said he had only 18 days to campaign and still drew 20 percent of the vote.

With 10 months left in the current year's campaign, Aguero said he is "confident" he can give a better showing.

"My decision to seek the position is one which was based on the opinion that the concerns and needs on the people in Lubbock County have been placed second to the personal thinking of the present commissioners that money is more important than those needs," Aguero said in a statement at a press conference.

He criticized the reluctance of commissioners last week to set up an alcoholic detoxification center for the county unless state and federal funding can be obtained. He also said the medical indigency guidelines set by the commissioner-appointed Lubbock County Hospital District board are "absurd" because they are too low for the "vast majority of poor persons."

"In talking to various voters inside the precinct, many have expressed that they are happy with the present commissioner because he keeps their farm road graded. It is time to go beyond grading streets as political favors to get re-elected," Aguero said.

Issues to be addressed in his campaign, he said, include the county jail, shared city-county services, the county hospital, rural fire protection and county welfare programs. He said he plans to give "specific plans and proposals" regarding those issues over the next few weeks.

Aguero runs Lubbock's Amigo Enterprises, which includes two publications, a pest control service, and a consultant service in writing federal, state and local grant applications.

He has been involved in various local organizations, including the Texas Tech University Chicano Student Organization, the American Civil Liberties Union chapter, the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce and the Arnett Benson Neighborhood Council.

Freight Rate Hike Opposed By Hill

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Attorney General John Hill said Tuesday he will aggressively fight a move to increase the freight rate charged by the railroad which hauls coal to San Antonio.

The increase proposed by Burlington Northern would cause consumer utility bills here to jump, he said.

Hill told a news conference that he will intervene in the rate case which is being heard by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Burlington Northern, which hauls coal from Wyoming to San Antonio for the municipally owned City Public Service utility, has asked for ICC approval to hike its rate from $11.94 per ton to $18.24 per ton.

"I understand that the full increase would cost San Antonio bill payers another $20 million a year," said Hill, a Democratic candidate for governor.

cash flow for 1977 and the potential for carry-forward into 1978," Stevens said.

Texas Commerce Bank processed for marketing and collection more than twice the number of bales this year that it handled last year, he said.

W.R. Collier, president of American State Bank, which is one of the large farm loan institutions, said, "It's evident that farmers need an increase in prices they receive for their commodities. They have been a victim of the cost-price squeeze for a number of years."

Although "it's a little bit early to determine what effect the (farmers') strike might have," Collier said, "most of our customers produced cotton this year and our farm loans are in pretty good shape."

Aside from agribusiness, Stevens noted the area's healthy economy was due to a low unemployment rate of under 3 percent "which means that all segments of our industrial, wholesale and retail concerns are operating at a peak performance."

The $131 million of new construction during 1977 also was credited with strengthening the economy.

Most of the city's bankers painted a rather rosy, if not glowing, outlook for 1978 except for Bank of the West president Rodney Joy.

"The Washington (D.C.) picture seems to have all sorts of contradictory policies which I think affects the mood at this time," Joy said.

"The farm profits," Joy predicted, "after allowing for inflation, are likely to drop to their lowest level since 1934. And I'd say the total consumer spending in the nation after adjustments for inflation is expected to rise only 3.5 percent in 1978 and that's down from nearly 5 percent in 1977."

ICC Secretary Accused Of Witness Tampering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission is accusing its secretary, who faces dismissal next week, of trying to persuade a witness to lie in a Justice Department probe of the official's alleged ties with organized crime.

The allegation is among five charges of wrongdoing filed by the ICC against Robert L. Oswald, who is both secretary and congressional liaison for the ICC.

The charges were disclosed Tuesday by Oswald's attorneys and confirmed by an ICC source who asked not to be identified.

ICC Chairman A. Daniel O'Neal, who gave Oswald a 30-day notice of "proposed termination" on Dec. 8, said the commission will decide "in the next several days" whether to uphold the dismissal or reinstate Oswald.

But O'Neal refused to comment on the allegations against Oswald, saying he is forbidden by federal privacy regulations.

Oswald also is accused of disclosing confidential ICC information to individuals outside the commission, improperly arranging for lawyers to represent trucking firms before the ICC, failing to cooperate with an ICC probe into his conduct and violating a federal law barring government employees from engaging in proscribed political activities.

When O'Neal announced Oswald's dismissal last month, the chairman would say only that the action was based on "several allegations of improprieties."

Oswald's attorneys, the Washington firm of Ambrose & Casselman, released the detailed ICC charges and responses the commission had requested.

The attorneys called the allegations "a mishmash of incidents, basically innocent in themselves, which have been twisted and distorted to give the impression of illegality."

Oswald, 43, is hospitalized here with an undisclosed illness and could not be reached for comment.

Myles J. Ambrose, one of the attorneys, said his client has done nothing wrong and would request a public hearing before the ICC to refute the allegations.

The ICC probe follows a Justice Department investigation into Oswald's possible involvement in an ICC decision affecting the family of the late Carlo Gambino, reputed one-time leader of organized crime in New York. O'Neal said the separate Justice Department investigation was continuing.

The ICC charged that Oswald arranged on several occasions for private attorneys to represent trucking firms before the ICC, actions which the commission said gave the appearance of partiality.

It cited one case in which Oswald allegedly set up and participated in a meeting between a Washington attorney and Thomas Gambino, an owner of one of the companies, Consolidated Carriers.

The ICC said Oswald told the attorney that Consolidated previously had received an unfavorable ICC ruling because Gambino's father, Carlo, had been linked to organized crime, and that the attorney's law firm agreed to represent Consolidated.

The ICC also charged that Oswald told the attorney, Theodore Polydoroff, that Oswald was being investigated by the Justice Department, and asked Polydoroff not to tell anyone that Oswald had met with Thomas Gambino.

Ambrose said Oswald denies trying to persuade Polydoroff to give false testimony to a grand jury. Ambrose added that Oswald provided names of attorneys authorized to practice before the ICC only in response to direct inquiries and at the request of members of Congress or their staffs.

Ambrose also said that the Civil Service Commission, in an advisory opinion, found that Oswald did not illegally participate in a political activity as the ICC charged.

Ambrose said his client released confidential information only at the direction of ICC members.

Oswald was placed on administrative leave last June, after the Justice Department probe became known. But he continued to draw on his $47,500-a-year salary, so in September, O'Neal reinstated Oswald to a lesser position while the ICC made its own investigation.

In late October, Oswald, a 16-year veteran of the ICC, took sick leave for stomach problems and applied to the Civil Service Commission for disability retirement. The commission turned down his request for early retirement on Dec. 8, the same day the ICC handed him his dismissal notice.

The ICC regulates the interstate movement of railroads, trucking firms, bus lines and other modes of transportation.

U.S. Facing Problem Of Holding Old Level Of Productivity Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — From the nation's productivity center comes a New Year message portentous in its content. It describes a malady and it prescribes some medicine, but it doesn't promise a cure.

The problem is lagging productivity, which isn't to be compared with nagging backache or tension headache, or other disturbing but often superficial ailments.

It goes much deeper: it's a malignancy, but it gets very little attention from the public.

Productivity growth is achieved by the skillful, efficient use of labor, capital and technology. It is what has given Americans their high standard of living and position of economic dominance.

But in recent years the United States hasn't been able to maintain its old rate of productivity growth. Between 1967 and 1977 the annual average dropped to 1.5 percent from 3.2 percent in the period 1947-1966.

In fact, output per hour in manufacturing increased more slowly in the United States than in any of the 12 major western industrial nations between 1960 and 1976. More slowly than in Britain; half Italy's rate.

Meanwhile, greater demands are being made on the U.S. system, not just to deliver more goods and services, but to produce the less tangible products of equality, security and environmental purity.

In a letter to President Carter and Congress, George Kuper, executive director of the National Center for Productivity and Quality of Work Life, wrote: "Our most recent performance should be taken as a warning."

The warning, said Kuper, is that the American belief in bigger and better can no longer be taken for granted. "Our economy may not be able to deliver on our expectations," he wrote.

Already, some of the delivery has been cancelled. If productivity over the past 10 years had increased at its earlier, 3.2 percent rate, the 1977 gross national product would have been $100 billion higher.

In all likelihood, that would have meant lower prices, more jobs, a smaller trade imbalance, a stronger dollar. In short, a bigger pie so that everyone could have a bigger slice without cutting into the slice of others.

As it is, people today seem to be nibbling at their neighbor's portion because we aren't as effective as before managing our labor, capital and technology.

The problem is not simply that people may not be willing to work as hard as before, although that certainly might be a contributant. The changing work force is believed to be more of a factor.

For example, an influx of women and teen-agers into the labor force, many of them with minimal skills, is believed to have added to production costs. The early retirement of skilled men has hurt also.

Capital, meanwhile, has often been hard to raise, and expensive when available. High energy prices have hurt. And business uneasiness over the extension of government regulation is cited as a factor.

"Disquieting" is how the center described the decline over the past decade in outlays for research and development, which is considered perhaps the main engine of productivity increases.

Unfortunately, only 2.2 percent of the gross national product went into RD last year, compared with 3 percent in 1964. It's been the reverse in the Soviet Union, Japan and Germany; their RD is rising.

The nature of the ailment is known and we are seeking remedies, but as one member of the center said, it's even been difficult getting publicity for the ailment.

Furloughs Cause Ire In Prisons

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Prisoners contend Christmas furloughs given former Nixon administration officials show that the Federal Bureau of Prisons provides unfair privileges to the "mighty and rich."

The prisoners were angered by a medical furlough granted former Attorney General John Mitchell and Christmas furloughs given H.R. Haldeman and John Erlichman, former President Richard Nixon's two top aides.

In a letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell, a group of inmates at the Medical Center for Federal Prisoners said the furloughs went against the policy of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

The group, the Committee for Prisoners Equal Rights, said they do not oppose the furloughs but simply want to point out that the privilege is not afforded other prisoners.

"Obviously, this is unequal justice and unequal treatment, and this is the reason for a great deal of bitterness here. The men fully realize that in this country there are two kinds of justice, one for the mighty and rich and another for the ordinary and poor," the letter said.

P.J. Ciccone, director of the Medical Center, refused comment Tuesday on the three furloughs, but he said the more than 1,200 federal prisoners at the center get adequate medical care.

The group said Mitchell could have received medical treatment at the Springfield center.

"Mr. Mitchell would have been perfectly safe in this medical center," said the letter, which was sent to Bell last week. "Very prominent public officials have previously been sent here without incident."

Ciccone said some prisoners were released in time for Christmas if they had accumulated a certain number of "good days" to warrant an early release. He said no Christmas furloughs were granted but added one or two furloughs had been granted to prisoners showing emergency need.

Among those signing the letter was Nick Civella, reputed crime boss of Kansas City, who is serving 36 months for interstate and foreign travel and transportation in aid of racketeering.

The prisoners asked Bell to revise the system of furloughs, allowing other prisoners to get them.

hasn't been able to maintain its old rate of productivity growth. Between 1967 and 1977 the annual average dropped to 1.5 percent from 3.2 percent in the period 1947-1966.

Couple Gets Snickers For Raising Birds, Bees

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Patricia Demko's canaries and her husband's yellow jackets prompt their share of snickers, but to the Pittsburgh couple the birds and the bees are no joke.

"I get a lot of kidding about the birds and the bees, but I just laugh it off," said Mrs. Demko, who spends about six hours a day caring for 350 singing canaries in her home.

Mrs. Demko's birds have two rooms of their own, including one her husband, Steve, added for her growing flock. It boasts piped-in music, a special heater and a dehumidifier.

"I know we're a little strange, but my birds get better care than a lot of people's kids," she said. "They have all the comforts of anyone."

Even their 9-year-old daughter, Valerie, has pet birds. "Sometimes she gets jealous thinking they get more attention than she does," said Mrs. Demko.

Mrs. Demko's fascination with birds evolved by chance from her husband's 20-year-old hobby tending bees and moving pesky nests from unwanted places.

Demko, who owns about 150 hives scattered across southwestern Pennsylvania, was asked to get rid of a nest at a friend's home, and accepted a canary as thanks.

The bird was too young to sing, so Demko went to a pet store and bought an adult male in full song.

"When I heard the song, I was hooked," Mrs. Demko recalled. "I bought a few females and started raising babies."

That was in 1972. In the years since the couple have devoted their time, energy and money to the care and breeding of prize-winning Red Factor canaries.

The family's monthly seed bill runs about $140. The birds also eat fresh fruit, vitamins, eggs and protein-rich grain. During mating season, they consume a dozen eggs daily.

Selling canaries is not profitable, even at $25 for a singing male. Cash prizes for outstanding birds are generally small.

"There's no money in showing birds. It's just the thrill of competition," she said. The Demkos won about 50 awards in 1977, mostly trophies, in shows from Dallas to Baltimore.

They bought a van and special cages to take the birds on tour. Other breeders also travel in style, but few give their birds music or special heaters.

"They look at me like I can't possibly be for real, and tell me these luxuries are taking away from what I might make," she said. "But if I wanted money, I might as well go out and work."

Age Pleases Centenarian

WAYNE, W.Va. (UPI) — "Ha, Ha, I made it!" hooted Victoria Mills as she celebrated her 100th birthday Tuesday.

"I feel like I'm on top of the world," she said as she ushered in her second century of life in the company of her three children, eight grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

"I felt if I passed out before 12 o'clock, I might not make it. But once it was past, it was OK."

Mrs. Mills' birthday brought dozens of cards and letters, including greetings from West Virginia Sen. Robert Byrd and Rep. Nick Joe Rahall. But as late as last week she wasn't relishing the prospect of reaching 100.

"I'm not proud of it... I don't want to live another day after I make 100," she said last week.

But the new centenarian was singing a different tune Tuesday.

"After I got up pretty close (to 100), I got anxious for the children so they'd have something to brag about," she said.

Italian Coins Drop Out Of Circulation

ROME (AP) — The 200-lire coin issued several weeks ago to help solve a perennial shortage of change dropped out of circulation because they are considered collector's items, officials say.

Some 16 million of the coins carrying the date 1977 were distributed. The mint resumed production, dating the new coins 1978.

Two Political Questions Loom Over 1978

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two things we may find out this year:

—Is Jimmy Carter going to be a one-term president?

There was some talk about that in 1977, but it was far too early to make an intelligent assessment.

In the past, a president would have two, even three years to make his record, but Carter probably changed that by beginning his 1976 campaign in 1974. Politicians, like generals, frequently use the last successful campaign as the model for the next one.

Potential rivals, Democratic as well as Republican, will be closely watching what happens to Carter on energy, welfare reform, health care, tax reform, SALT and the Panama Canal treaties.

Carter doesn't have to win them all, but if he gets whipped on most, look for a number of 1980 hopefuls to begin open preparations for the campaign. If they are regarded as serious contenders — California's Gov. Brown, for example — Carter will be further weakened.

But if the president has some victories — especially in such high impact domestic areas as energy or taxes or on a "leadership" issue like the canal treaties — it will likely deflate the enthusiasm of potential opponents, particularly in his own party, to get out front. And, perhaps more important for early campaign preparations, it would make fundraising difficult for 1980 challenges.

—Is the Republican Party going to survive into the 1980s?

The answer to the first question relates to the second, but the 1978 congressional elections are the first test.

Despite recent exceptions, the political party not in the White House still is expected to make congressional gains in midterm elections. If the GOP can make at least token inroads into the margin now held by the Democrats — roughly two-thirds of the House and Senate — it probably will have averted disaster at least through the 1980 presidential election. If the party only manages to maintain its present strength, its fate will continue to be in question. There might be survival in merely holding on, but to many it will look like nothing but postponement of the inevitable.

If the Republicans lose a score of House and half a dozen or more Senate seats this year, predictions of the death of the GOP as a major national political party will begin to look valid.

However, the GOP is not likely to close shop the day after another losing elec-

Many Hospital Charges Called Waste Of Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Unneeded and wasteful hospital charges account for nearly half of the $140 billion spent annually on health care in the United States, according to Saturday Review.

An article by Robert Claiborne in the current issue of the magazine blamed the waste on an excess of hospital beds, under-utilized equipment, excess surgery and needless laboratory tests.

The cost of health care has risen more than twice as fast as other consumer prices since 1965, Claiborne wrote, with hospital costs accounting for 40 percent of the total health bill.

"Health care in all its forms soaked up more than one dollar in 12 of our gross national product, and by 1980, according to government estimates, the figure will exceed one dollar in 10," Claiborne said.

The author said part of the increase could be attributed to improved health care, but the main reason is "the way the health care industry is organized."

He said that although Blue Cross medical insurance started out independent, it soon shared directors with the American Hospital Association, and is now run by doctors and hospital officials.

The result, according to Claiborne, is that hospitals are reimbursed for whatever they spend, a practice which leads to waste.

The article cited a recent investigation which found more than 5,000 surplus beds in New York City hospitals.

County Looking To Inspection For Jail Advice

State officials will inspect the Lubbock County Jail next week, and county commissioners hope the visit yields not only a favorable report on the existing operation but also some helpful advice on building new facilities.

Arnold Maeker, who is designing a replacement for the county's 47-year-old lockup is "in a tizzy" over what he says is a new "inmate housing rule" issued by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards (TCJS).

Under that rule, which Maeker said was "not written into the original standards" and was issued only last August, dayrooms in the proposed new Lubbock County Jail must conform to the same space requirements as cells.

That is, for each prisoner assigned to a dayroom, there must be 40 square feet of space — of which at least 18 square feet must be "clear," free of furnishings or toilet facilities.

Maeker said he was unaware of that requirement when he submitted for TCJS review in December a set of working drawings for the county's proposed new 335-inmate detention center.

The state agency reported the results of its review to the county two weeks ago, and "here's where things get sticky," Maeker said.

The TCJS stated that the architect's plans are in compliance with the bulk of the state standards, even down to the dayroom space requirements, which state officials said seemed to meet the "40 square feet" rule.

When he read that report, Maeker said, "I knew something was wrong. That was the first time I had heard that the dayrooms were supposed to have 40 square feet of space per inmate."

His plans actually called for dayrooms a bit smaller than that. "We are not very far off, but we don't comply with their (dayroom space) rule — because we didn't even know that rule existed," Maeker said.

Maeker told the Lubbock County Commissioners Court there are two ways the proposed jail plans could be redrawn to enlarge the dayrooms:

— Some cells could be eliminated, reducing the prisoner capacity in each of the planned three long-term detention cellblocks from 90 to 86. But this would lower the "manpower efficiency" of the new jail, since the same-sized staff would be required to handle a smaller number of inmates.

— Eight-man cells could be paired to make 16-man cells, freeing up space for larger dayrooms. But 16-man cells are hard to manage and would present problems meeting state requirements to segregate various categories of prisoners, such as non-violent from violent-prone inmates, first-time offenders from repeaters, and pretrial detainees from convicted felons.

County commissioners don't like either alternative. They plan to ask the TCJS for a "variance" or exception to the new construction rules on dayrooms, so the initial plans won't have to be changed.

"Since they (TCJS staffers) said in effect that we comply, and now they're changing the rules on us, I say leave the plans as they are and try to get a variance," Commissioner Alton Brazzell remarked.

If the state won't allow a variance, he added, "We may be faced with starting completely over on this project."

Commissioners had hoped to go out for bids on the proposed new jail construction about March.

The TCJS is scheduled to visit the Lubbock County Jail Jan. 10, in with U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward's call for regular inspections of the facility and with other requested variances by the county.

Guy Van Cleave, executive director of the agency, said that while his staff is in Lubbock, "We'd be very happy to work with Mr. Maeker and the commissioners court" on the dayroom matter.

"I don't think we'll have much trouble working it out. Although I can't speak for my commission, I believe that if the dayrooms are within reasonable limits to the state standards, a variance may be possible," Van Cleave said.

He also said his staff and county officials may come up with other alternatives, to enlarge the dayrooms without sacrificing efficiency or cell sizes.

On another matter, Van Cleave told The Avalanche-Journal he was "mistaken" three weeks ago when he said the county's request to operate its jail with fewer than the state-prescribed number of guards had been withdrawn.

Actually, the TCJS approved that variance, which will be temporary until the new jail is opened in 1980, "as long as a guard is on duty on each floor at all times," Van Cleave said.

The variance was requested because state rules require one guard for every 45 inmates or fraction thereof on each detention floor.

Two floors of Lubbock County's five-story jail house about 60 prisoners. Those floors now have one guard around-the-clock, and county officials did not want to have to place a second guard on each of the levels.

Treasurer, Clerk Eye Re-Election To Jobs

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Clerk Frank Guess and County Treasurer Connie Hopping Nicholson, both Democrats, filed for reelection Tuesday, saying they want another four years to institute improvements in their respective courthouse offices.

Guess, 59, of Idalou, took office as county clerk here on Oct. 1, 1969, by appointment of the Lubbock County Commissioners Court after his predecessor retired. Until that time, he had been a cotton farmer and businessman in the Idalou area.

Guess was elected to the post in 1970 and again in 1974.

"I enjoy being county clerk and feel I have done a respectable job at it. During the past eight years, my staff and I have initiated several things to modernize the office and make record-keeping more efficient and accurate at a savings to taxpayers," he said.

Guess said those "marks of progress" have included the use of a computer to index property records and the use of microfilm to store records.

"Another sign of progress is the county's decision to buy a punch-card election system" to replace paper ballots, he said.

As supervisor of county elections, Guess will oversee the use of the recently purchased punch-card voting system in 1978.

"Within the next year, I am also looking forward to having several other functions of my office put on a computer," he said. County commissioners hope to install a central courthouse computer to serve Guess's and other departments by this fall.

Guess, who is in charge of a department of 21 employees, designated himself as campaign treasurer in his reelection bid.

Mrs. Nicholson, 44, formerly a real estate salesman, resides at 2330 61st St. She was elected county treasurer in 1974.

"The role of the treasurer is crucial to the check-and-balance system of county government," Mrs. Nicholson, who served last year on State Comptroller Bob Bullock's committee to draft finan-

Action Rated As 'Success'

American Agriculture farmers' "more militant" third phase rumbled into Lubbock Tuesday — but with only half the "aggressively active" force of farmers that strike leaders had predicted would converge on the city.

Only 1,100 of the 2,400 tractors strike leaders estimated would be needed to completely surround Lubbock showed up about 9 a.m. to circle Lubbock's Loop 289.

The Lubbock tractorcade, which Hereford strike leader Mike McCathern said was staged to keep the farmers' problem in front of the public, was termed "a great success" by state strike officials.

"I think it's fantastic," McCathern, a main organizer of American Agriculture activities across the state, said. "Phase Three began a success, and hopefully Washington will have reacted favorably by the end of January (the end of the phase). If not, then there will most likely be a Phase Four."

Tractorcades across the region Tuesday were the last planned Phase Three demonstrations for this area, according to Robert Mahagan, a Hale Center organizer, though strike leaders will continue to meet with government officials about their problems.

Today, representatives of the striking farm group were scheduled to meet with Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill in several South Plains communities.

Lubbock police officials apparently expected more than the estimated 2,000 farmers who began moving toward the city about 8 a.m. Tuesday from outlying communities, some as far away as the New Mexico state line.

Fifty off-duty policemen were called in, along with 16 units of the Department of Public Safety as the tractors chugged along over the 27-mile circle of roadway.

Only "minor inconveniences" were caused by the tractor caravan, a police department spokesman said following the episode. Officers spent most of their time untangling a few clogged traffic lanes and trying to keep traffic moving at a steady, though slow pace.

Strike leaders in "ramrod trucks" — pickups bearing special American Agriculture ensigns — were directing farmers' vehicles into a single, solid lane of traffic along the loop and then supervising their exits from the highway.

Spitzer groups of rallying farmers at times tried to put a more aggressive edge on the strike, but generally failed, police reported.

One group about 10:15 a.m. displayed a large sign on the back of a truck telling farmers to "double up" — to pull their tractors two abreast — but police dispersed the group before traffic became congested.

Most motorists seemed able to maneuver through the columns of vehicles, and few complained.

One man, however, told officers that farmers along the Levelland Highway refused to allow his car to pass their caravan even though he had turned on his emergency flashers upon reaching their group. The man told police he was trying to rush his wife, suffering from heart problems, to a local hospital at the time.

When investigating officers arrived, though, the tractors were again moving steadily in a single, unbroken line.

The line of tractors in Lubbock continued to grow until about 11:30 a.m. when farmers began to exit the loop and move toward Mackenzie Park where organizers had planned a "picnic" for the striking group.

After lunch, the farmers directed their tractors back toward the loop in time for an air show by 30 supportive crop-dusting planes scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

By 2:30 p.m., most of their tractors had completed their rounds and headed for home.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have never known anyone personally who has a clean cookie sheet.

There was one woman in the old neighborhood who was rumored to have one, but she was quite weird and when I saw her coming, I always looked the other way.

Cookie sheets are like underwear, dish towels, and toothbrushes. They're never on display to the public, so who cares what they look like.

Men do not understand cookie sheets. My husband watched me put biscuits on mine the other day and said, "That reminds me, I have to have the oil changed in the car this week."

When I didn't respond, he asked, "Just for curiosity's sake, how much does a new cookie sheet cost?"

"The last time I bought one it was around $2.98."

"The last time you bought one, they were using beads and trinkets for money."

"Why should my cookie sheet bother you?"

"Because it looks like a health hazard. What's that baked on it?"

"Which layer?"

"That's not funny, you know. Look at it! It's even rusting in the corners."

"That's because some idiot put water on it."

"Heaven forbid I'd tell you how to run your kitchen, but why don't you pick up a new one?"

"For the same reason you hold your glasses together with a paper clip and have three knots in your shoestring."

"That's different."

Americans need one last bastion from which to defend their cheapness. Maybe it's a favorite lipstick, that you use a bobby pin to dig it out with a pin in your shorts...a cord that's down to two inches on your power mower starter...a broom handle stuck in the sliding glass doors of your $65,000 house...a comb with 15 teeth missing...a $6,000 car with one set of car keys.

All I know is yesterday my husband bought me a new cookie sheet and when I went outside, my neighbor saw me coming and looked the other way.

Antique Market Not 'Tourist Center'

LONDON (UPI) — When you see all the silver that is carted onto the sidewalks each Saturday at Portobello Market, you can't believe there are enough attics left unlooted in Britain to support even one more antique shop.

But somewhere Bennie Gray and his 126 stallholders have found enough treasures to fill a mammoth building off Oxford Street. He says it will soon become London's largest antique market.

It is already London's newest, most luxurious — and probably its most expensive.

There is none of the clutter of Portobello or Chelsea or Camden Passage in Gray's newly renovated building that stands just around the corner from an exclusive South Molton Street.

You don't pile through baskets of odds and ends at Gray's. You ask the well-dressed stallholders for a closer look at their treasures.

Gray maintains that despite the market's proximity to the bustle of Oxford Street, it was not planned as a tourist attraction.

"Really, it's a dealers' market," said stallholder Susan Walker. "If you get any passing trade, it's just something extra."

Mrs. Walker, like many of her fellow dealers, had a stall in another market until Gray announced a year ago he was opening in central London. He plans to extend the market through the rest of the Davies Street building by next summer, adding about 370 more stalls.

"Business is very good," said jewelry merchant Jean Szymest. "People have shown a lot of interest because there's so much under one roof."

Swiss antique dealer Jack Shmoon, visiting the new market for the first time, believed with this one "the antique market has come of age."

"It's a market where dealers are serious and active professionals. They know what they're doing. They move their stuff rapidly," Gray said.

In some ways Gray's is more like a museum than a market. Most stallholders specialize in some sort of beautifully displayed collectors' item.

There are old scientific instruments in one case; select oriental art treasures in the next. One dealer specializes in fancy corkscrews, unusual tools and optical equipment. Another sells only antique porcelain. Toys fill the shelves of another stall.

One couple from Tennessee said they read about Gray's in a U.S. antique magazine. They were at the new market when it opened early in November.

"Things aren't cheap here," they said. "But the quality is excellent."

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

Attention weight-wary workers! Here are some prize-winning ideas for punching out on the excess calories in your company cafeteria. In a recent column we asked brown-baggers to share some of their top-drawer ideas for carrying low-calorie lunches from home. Today we share their answers.

Carolyn Wakefield of Lynn, Mass. is the first-prize winner for the best series of suggestions. She wins a copy of my "Slim Gourmet Cookbook" ($12.95, Harper and Row.)

Here are some of her suggestions:

CHEESE DIP — stir 2 tablespoons of dry onion soup mix into a cupful of low-fat cottage cheese, then place in a wide-mouth thermos. Pack melba toast, carrot sticks and celery stalks for "dippers."

PACK A POCKET — a pita pocket (Syrian flatbread) — with homemade cold ratatouille and one slice of cheese. Or fill the pocket with oil-free tuna or egg salad made with low-fat mayonnaise. More crust than bread, pita pockets are made without sugar or shortening... great for low-cal lunches-to-go.

ROLL-UPS — take half a celery stalk, or a dill pickle, carrot stick or cucumber spear. Roll a thin slice of lean meat and cottage cheese around it and fasten with a toothpick.

SOUP OR STEW — homemade and skimmed of fat! Reheat and pack it in a wide-mouth thermos. Or, if your office lunchroom has a microwave oven, pack it in glass jars and freeze. Reheat it right in the jar (with the metal lid removed.)

STUFFED EGGS — mash the yolks with low-fat cottage cheese, a dash of mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Stuff the yolks and sprinkle with paprika. Chill, then pack in thermal bag if office refrigeration isn't available.

COTTAGE SLAW — Carolyn offers yet another way to flavor up cottage cheese: mix it with shredded cabbage, grated carrot, crushed juice-packed pineapple and a scant sprinkling of raisins. Terrific, even if you don't take it to the office. If you do, pack it in an insulated bag.

RUNNERS-UP

MORE BROWN BAG IDEAS for beating the high caloric costs of the company cafeteria or the school lunchroom. These winning readers have been sent copies of both my "Calorie Watchers Cookbook" and "Rating the Diets" ($2 each, Consumer Guide.)

IT'S IN THE BAG — a sealable, boilable freezer bag, that is! Jeannette Bell of Birmingham, Ala. thinks that the electric bag-sealer is the greatest weight-watcher aid since the scale. She packages single-serving portions of leftover lean meat or poultry and vegetables, or fat-skimmed low-calorie meal-size soups; stores them in the freezer and takes out one each morning on her way to work. At lunchtime she simply pops the bag into her electric hotpot full of boiling water. And enjoys a homemade hot meal.

CHICKEN OUT — Kathleen Hawk, of Houston, Tex., thinks cold chicken makes the best lunch of all. Her favorite trick: arrange several chicken thighs on a cookie sheet and season to taste. Bake them.

When cool, slip the tray in the freezer. When frozen, remove chicken pieces to a large plastic bag. In the morning, remove one or two pieces of frozen chicken and wrap in foil, along with some crunchy nibbles like celery or carrot sticks. Everything will be just right by lunchtime.

FRUIT AND CHEESE — low-fat cottage cheese, that is. Sylvia Bagley of Peabody, Mass. writes that her favorite no-work lunch-at-work is an eight-ounce container of low-fat cottage cheese and an eight-ounce can of juice-packed fruit. Simply drain and combine, and add a dash of cinnamon (from a spice tin kept in the desk.)

During the winter when fresh fruits aren't readily available, Sylvia keeps several varieties of fruit in her desk in small cans. If there's no office refrigerator, the cans can be frozen at home. In the morning, put a can of fruit and a container of cottage cheese in an insulated bag. The fruit will thaw by lunch time and the cheese will be chilled.

CANTALOUPE SUNDAY — Ruth Messineo of Clifton, N.J. shares her favorite slim lunch: scoop the seeds from a sweet ripe cantaloupe. Pack the cavity with part-skim ricotta cheese or low-fat cottage cheese. You might add a dash of spice. Then wrap well in foil and pack in an insulated bag.

SHRIMP PLATTER — Annette Burshten of Northridge, Calif. thinks that shrimp cocktail is a worthy indulgence for people who can't get away from their desks (a luxury that's still less expensive than lunching out!) She likes to cook and clean a lot of shrimp at once, then bag and freeze it in single-serving portions (about four ounces.) In the morning she packs the celery sticks, saltines and a small container of cocktail sauce. By lunchtime the shrimp is thawed but the celery is chilled and crisp.

Breakfast wisely and well! For a complete guide to calories, carbohydrate, protein and fat in today's packaged cereals — by brand name — send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET CEREAL GUIDE, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

"There is no balm in Gilead" for a declarer who goes down in a contract that requires no more than a modicum of care to bring home.

North-South bid smoothly to their best spot. When South jump shifted, North presumed correctly that there might be a heart weakness, so he raised clubs rather than a heart trump contract with his tenuous heart stopper.

West led the ace of hearts and continued with the jack. Declarer ruffed and decided to protect against a 4-2 spade break. He drew two rounds of trumps and then tried to cash the ace-king of spades, intending to ruff a third round to set up the suit. That line would have succeeded had the spades broken according to plan.

Unfortunately, East ruffed the second spade and played another heart. Declarer was forced to ruff with his last trump and, no matter how he squirmed, he still had to concede one more trick to the defenders for down one.

South's line of play was reasonably conceived. However, he could have protected himself against the possibility of East having a singleton spade. After ruffing the second heart, declarer should cash one spade honor and then cross to dummy with a high diamond to lead a second spade.

If East ruffs, declarer follows with a low spade. He could then win any return, draw two rounds of trumps to exhaust the defenders' cards in that suit, and sluff two diamonds on the king-queen of spades. The defenders would get nothing more than the two tricks they had already collected.

But it is no better if East discards on the second spade. Declarer wins and ruffs a spade with a high trump. He returns to his hand with the ten of trumps and ruffs another spade high. Now he draws trumps, and at the end he concedes a diamond trick to the defenders, but that is only their second trick.

Franchising Increases Competition

CHICAGO (UPI) — People selling their houses are more concerned with making a fair deal than in making a killing, a realty firm survey indicates.

The purpose of the survey was to gather and distribute to member realty firms and brokers as much vital information as possible in the booming and highly competitive realty franchise business.

"We wanted to know what customers wanted from their brokers," said Henry Porterfield, Realty World's Midwest regional director.

"We found that a seller wants to feel he is getting a fair market price for his house, and he wants to feel he was properly handled by his broker. As a result, homeowners who want to sell today are being wined, dined and wooed."

Porterfield said the survey also showed a seller wants to spend as little time as possible with the broker, "but a buyer is willing to spend all the time the broker can afford to make sure the broker understands the buyer's precise needs."

Porterfield said house sellers who bought their homes seven or eight years ago probably will get twice what they paid for their houses in today's market, which he described as "booming."

"What this has meant to realtors is that brokers and consumers are getting a myriad of services unheard of four or five years ago."

The advent of national franchising in the real estate business has increased competition and resulted in scores of services to make selling or buying a house a near-science, Porterfield said.

One of the major new services offered by this firm to its brokers and customers includes a free interior design consultation service.

"We provide a team of experts to inspect a home which is ready for sale and work out interior decorating changes which will make the home salable," Porterfield said. "The advantage here is that professional designers can turn problems into assets. The changes can be elaborate or simple, from removal of walls to rearranging furniture and changing wallpaper."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm dating a gentleman who seems very much interested in me. He's 60 and I'm 55. He'd make a wonderful catch, but there's a slight problem. He's funny about money.

He takes me to the finest restaurants, but when we leave, I always slip a few dollars under my coffee cup because his tips are so meager. He's a self-made man who recently sold his business for several million dollars, so I know he can afford to tip properly.

Otherwise he is a very high-class gentleman. I don't want to lose him. A lot of women in this town would love to have him — stingy or not.

Should I remind him that a tip should be at least 15 per cent of the bill? He figured he knew me well enough to tell me flat out that I used too much perfume.

Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Atlanta: Don't offer this high-class low tipper any tips on tipping unless you're sure he can take it as well as dish it out. Some self-made men tend to be a little tight with their money. It's a tendency they developed in their leaner years.

DEAR ABBY: You say that people who are habitually late are "inconsiderate, selfish and immature." What have you to say about guests who always arrive 20 to 30 minutes early?

Gertrude

Dear Gertrude: They are as inconsiderate and oftentimes more irritating to the hostess than the latecomers.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from 38 and Hates It, and I want to say that I had the same problem, only worse. I was a "40D," stood 5 foot 1, and had a very well-proportioned figure except for my conspicuously oversized bosom.

Ever since I was 14 I suffered because the boys laughed at me, some thought I was a pushover, and some made insulting passes at me. Not only that, I had a chronic backache from being so top-heavy.

I am now 33 and married. Last year I heard about a doctor who performed breast reduction surgery, so I went to him, and it was the wisest decision of my life.

He reduced my breasts to a normal 34 B and I've never been happier. (My hospitalization insurance covered it too.) No more ill-fitting clothes or humiliation or backaches! I never knew that plastic surgeons could reduce breasts. I thought they could only enlarge them.

Abby, please let other women know that they don't have to be stuck with oversized bosoms all their lives. And tell them to be sure the doctor is a board-certified plastic surgeon.

No Name, Please

Dear No Name: Here's your letter. Thanks for sharing.

Book Provides Easy-Follow Tips, Information On Rug Braiding

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

Your husband's old suit, your child's pants or daughter's skirt, may all be recycled into a handsome braided rug. You will get your reward — a floor covering of your own design.

Fourteen rugs and five years after her first one, Sally Clarke Carty decided to tell other people how to do it. Her book, "How To Make Braided Rugs," is a step-by-step, easy-to-follow roundup of braided rugmaking. She well remembers her own problems in trying to make rugs.

"When I began I went to the library but could find only technical books. Then I found material written by people who did not know how to sew and sewers who did not know how to write."

In her book she tells how to find the bulk wool, if that's what you want — it takes 2/3 to 3/4 pound of wool for each square foot of braided rug. A 3x5-foot rug takes 15 yards (about 8-12 pounds).

Make a choice of braid size — narrow is for more experienced braiders; wider width is easier to handle and goes faster.

Pick the color, design and shape to suit your environment, Mrs. Carty suggests. Braided rugs can enhance a modern setting and, although most people think of them as colonial, the earliest recorded date is 1830, when New England mills mass-produced wool.

The migration westward carried the rugs there. Wives in covered wagon trains made rugs from scraps of materials, while more refined floor coverings were made in New Hampshire and Massachusetts woolen mills. A wall-to-wall look may be achieved by measuring a room's width and making a round rug with that measurement as the rug's diameter. The rug will almost completely cover the floor.

Rugs may coordinate an entryway and living room, the dining area of a kitchen with warm tile floor, bedroom, or living room, Mrs. Carty says.

There are instructions for the dyeing of various kinds of materials.

"Pattern can express individuality and I particularly like to work old clothes into a rug. It's a sentimental gesture," Mrs. Carty suggests. One chapter offers distinctive designs and how to do them.

And there's plenty of opportunity to do custom work, says Mrs. Carty, who tells how to get into it.

Stock Exchange Clears Trader Of Floor Bookmaking Charge

By PHILIP GREER and MYRON KANDEL

The New York Stock Exchange has closed out its investigation of bookmaking on its trading floor — in just about the way the cynics said it would be closed. Peter R. Kellogg, a partner in NYSE's biggest specialist firm, whose father is possibly the exchange's most influential member, has been found not guilty of one charge of acceptance bets, even though he admitted doing it.

No public announcement of the findings has been made, in line with the Big Board's policy when a member is cleared of charges. The results of the case, which became final last week, have been routinely sent to the Securities and Exchange Commission, which can take action of its own if it wants.

In our coverage of bookmaking on the exchange floor — for which three members have been fined, suspended and censured — we reported that our sources identified the younger Kellogg as one of the most active in booking bets on sporting events. The exchange, though, did not level any charges on that score. Rather, Kellogg was accused of booking bets only on the outcome of the 1976 presidential election.

In his reply to that single charge, Kellogg admitted accepting about $10,000 in bets on the election. He conceded that most of the bets were taken on the NYSE floor and that he changed the odds daily. He also said he made a profit of "approximately $6,0048.00." But, according to the hearing panel's report, he denied the conclusion that he committed "acts detrimental to the interest and welfare of the exchange."

The panel, by 2 to 1 vote, agreed with him. The majority backed up its finding with these reasons: there had been "no recent notice" that betting was not permitted; it was "reasonable" for Kellogg to assume betting was "not improper" because "members in positions of authority on the floor had not taken action to prevent betting on sporting events which had existed for a considerable period of time;" and besides, nobody ever told him to stop.

The panel also said Kellogg was involved in betting "on a single event over a limited period of time."

As we reported earlier, the Kellogg case was especially sticky for the NYSE and, in fact, took almost three months longer than the other cases to finish up. His father, James C. Kellogg III, is a political power in New Jersey and is especially close to Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., who is chairman of the Senate securities subcommittee, with oversight over the SEC and the exchanges. Kellogg also is a major force in exchange politics.

A group of shareholders in Kennecott Corp. has been knocked out of the box in its attempt to stop the copper giant from taking over Carborundum Corp., but they've raised an important question about how big corporations are run.

Kennecott is offering to pay $66 a share for the stock in Carborundum, a big abrasives manufacturer headquartered in Niagara Falls, N.Y. The offer, with a total tab of $567 million, easily topped an earlier $47 per share bid by Eaton Corp. of Cleveland. Before the bidding started, Carborundum traded on the NYSE at about $35 a share.

Carborundum's shareholders haven't wasted any time. So far, 90 percent of the stock has poured in, with the offer slated to run at least until Jan. 4.

For Kennecott's owners, though, it's another matter. Several threatened to sue at first, but only one case got to court, arguing that the directors acted too quickly; that the takeover was a "waste of corporate assets" that better deals were available, and that shareholders should be allowed to vote. The case was dismissed last week by a New York State judge.

The court's ruling disposed of the case, but it didn't deal with the broader question of stockholder rights in the companies they own.

The Kennecott-Carborundum deal is a big one even by Wall Street standards. The price amounts to about 80 percent of Kennecott's current assets, which could make it closer to a merger than an acquisition. Under the law in New York, where Kennecott is incorporated (although the subsidiary actually buying the stock is incorporated in Delaware), mergers have to be approved by shareholders; takeovers do not.

The offer was endorsed by Kennecott's directors in a four-hour meeting called on one day's notice (six of the 17 directors didn't make it to the meeting at all).

'Bad Risk' Businessmen Get Aid In Obtaining Bank Loans

By NICK GREGORY
CHICAGO (UPI) — Jack D. Smith is a matchmaker. He brings together "bad risk" businessmen and bankers to set up loans.

Smith said he succeeds about 70 percent of the time in obtaining loans for businessmen previously turned down by lending institutions.

He limits himself to small businessmen, most of whom need $25,000 to $100,000, occasionally more. His clients might be merchants, industrialists or farmers.

"The problem with small businessmen," Smith said, "is that while they are experts in what they do, they don't know how to go about making a loan, or they don't have the time, because there's too much red tape — too many forms to fill out. Bureaucracy is overwhelming."

Smith, 46, had 22 years in banking before going into business in Rockford, Ill., two years ago as president of Credit-Pak Capital Resources Co. A native of Ridge Farm, Ill., south of Danville, Smith became president of the Ridge Farm State Bank at 26, and later became president of the First National Bank of Woodstock, then of the First National Bank of Rockford.

Smith thinks small businessmen are turned down on loans mostly because they fail to get their story across effectively.

"The businessman knows what he's doing at work, but he can't get his point across to the people with the money," Smith said.

"The normal procedure," he explained, "is for the applicant to talk to a loan officer, who relays the story to the bank's loan committee." Smith, with 26 years experience in commercial loans, thinks his way is better.

"Our goal is to put together the reason why his outlook is promising. We visit the place of business, organize the facts, make the projections — put together a loan arrangement package, then present it to the loan committee."

"Credit-Pak doesn't take all cases," he said. "We analyze problems — separate promising ones from hopeless. We ask for a current statement, a profit and loss statement and a resume of what the prospect is doing and what he wants to do."

The emphasis is on accuracy in communication, Smith said. "The loan committee must have a clear picture of the businessman's ability, his potential, his willingness to work hard and succeed."

Banks could improve their money-lending practices, Smith said, by following some of the steps taken by his firm.

"They should visit the place of business of an applicant. There's a lot to be learned there," Smith said.

He recalled a six-figure industrial loan made recently for the purchase of new equipment to modernize a plant to comply with Environmental Protection Agency regulations. The company had heavy losses, a deficit net worth, limited collateral available as security and poor cash flow.

But the new equipment would make the plant the most advanced in its part of the country and Smith's firm was able to arrange commitments for substantial sales.

DR. LAMB

Estrogen Often Helpful

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 53 and had a complete hysterectomy 12 years ago. At that time, my gynecologist put me on Premarin to be taken 20 days, then off five days. I am still taking it. I have read many articles that estrogen is dangerous. Do you consider it to be dangerous? If not, how long should I continue to take it?
 I also had a partial thyroidectomy, and take one grain of thyroid daily. I have high blood pressure, caused by a blocked artery to the kidney, and take one Aldomet daily to control my blood pressure and one Valium daily for nerves.
 I smoke a half pack of cigarettes daily. I feel tired all the time, and am unable to do much housework. I am under a doctor's care. I'd appreciate your advice.

DEAR READER — You are not likely to get cancer of the uterus from taking female hormones since you don't have a uterus. You can forget about that.

What are the other problems that you might have from taking female hormones? If you have breast disease, or have a lump in the breast, then you probably shouldn't take them, but if your breast are normal and remain normal, that is not a factor.

You could have some increased risk of heart attack or clotting, but that risk is minimal — particularly since you have taken your medicine so long now without any trouble. It would be far less of a risk if you didn't smoke. My suggestion would be to give up your cigarettes instead of the medicine your doctor has prescribed. That might increase your energy, too.

You need to explore the blood pressure more. If you have a localized obstruction in the artery to the kidney and that is all, with normal arteries inside the kidney you could have it surgically corrected, the blocked area could be replaced with an arterial graft. In certain cases, such an operation will permanently cure high blood pressure when the obstruction is the real cause. In those cases, I prefer surgery to medical management. Ask your doctor to refer you to a cardiovascular center or a high blood pressure clinic at a university medical center.

You may be tired because you may not have your thyroid replacement fine-tuned for your needs. A low thyroid function can cause fatigue. You may also feel tired because of your high blood pressure or from the medicines you are taking. Most sedatives, including Valium, can make you feel less energetic.

Being tired is a symptom. It is often from psychological factors, but it can be medical. To give you a better understanding about this and what you can do about it, I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Weary. Others who want information about fatigue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78292.

If you have normal breasts, had your uterus out, stop smoking, and control your blood pressure, there is no reason why you cannot take female hormones as long as you get some benefits from them. Studies show that as a group, women live longer and feel better if they are able to use female hormones after surgical menopause. The total benefits usually outweigh the few risks which can be minimized.

Researchers Report Glycerol Helps Regulate Body Weight

By AL ROSSITER JR.
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two researchers report that high amounts of glycerol in the blood of rats reduces their weight, suggesting the sweet, syrupy liquid somehow helps regulate body weight.
 Dr. John Davis and David Wirtshafter of the University of Chicago proposed esis with rat experiments. One group was injected with glycerol and another group with the sugar, glucose. Rats treated with glucose had a gradual increase in weight while the weight of those receiving glycerol decreased for a few days and then gradually increased — but but at a lower level than the glucose-treated animals.

that glycerol blood levels provide a signal to a system in the brain that monitors and controls the fat content of the body.

"If we are correct in the interpretation of our experimental results, they should stimulate a great deal of research which could provide new exciting insights into the problems of the overweight," Davis told the National Science Foundation which sponsored the work.

Although the findings have far-reaching implications for humans who are overweight, Davis said much more research must be done on laboratory animals before human experiments could even be suggested.

Glycerol is manufactured in the body from the breakdown of fats. Fatty acids are released for energy purposes and glycerol goes into the blood stream where it ultimately is converted into glucose.

For industrial uses, glycerol is obtained from animal and vegetable fats. It is used for a variety of purposes ranging from sweeteners to antifreeze solutions and the manufacture of high explosives.

Davis and Wirtshafter, a graduate student in the department of psychology, reported the results of a series of glycerol experiments with rats in the journal Science, a publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

It is generally believed that there is some mechanism in the body to regulate weight. Davis said it often has been suggested that the regulation is achieved by control of the body's fat content.

If this is so, he said, then the system which controls body weight must be able to sense the size of fatty tissue by some signal. He said there have been studies suggesting glycerol concentrations in blood may be related to the size of fatty cells.

The assumption then would be that an increase in glycerol in the blood would be interpreted by the control system as an increase in fat cell size and this an increase in body weight.

"A body weight control system would then be expected to temporarily activate compensatory mechanisms (for example, reduce food intake, increase energy expenditure, or decrease efficiency of nutrient utilization) to bring body weight down to within its normal range," the report said.

The two researchers tested the hypoth-

Screening Of Movies Planned At Prison

PHOENIX (AP) — Motion pictures will be screened by a three-man committee before they can be shown to Arizona State Prison inmates, Ron Taylor, acting corrections director, says.

Films that exploit sex and violence will be banned, he said.

"I'm not advocating that we feed prisoners a steady diet of Walt Disney, but we've got to make some judgments about what films we're going to show," he said. "Movies that are filled with violence and explicit sex acts only serve to fuel the fire for more disruption at the prison."

Establishment of the committee came a few days after Gov. Wesley Bolin received a copy of La Roca, a magazine published by inmates. Bolin's name was on the masthead — as an editorial courtesy.

Bolin, who took office recently and subsequently named Taylor as corrections director, was scanning the paper when he noticed the schedule of movies to be shown next month. The capsule summaries included listings for such movies as:

— "A fascinating blend of an erotic love story and chilling tale of the macabre."

— "A hard-hitting, tell-it-like-it-is, nitty gritty tale of a pimp."

— "Max (a former SS officer) meets Lucia, who was Max's teen-age mistress and torture toy in camp. The old relationship sparks with new life in sadistic and masochistic tastes."

There were other entries about "kinky sex," and a two-hour chase of terrorists through the streets of San Francisco.

Jeff Martin, activities director at the state prison in Florence, said the movies are provided by two Los Angeles film distributors.

Seven inmates have been stabbed to death by other inmates at the state prison this year and numerous others have been injured.

NINE DIE AS FOG SHROUDS HIGHWAY — Motorists and others examined one of several chain car accidents that involved hundreds of vehicles, Tuesday on a fog-shrouded highway near Milan, Italy. Nine persons died, and nearly 100 others were injured in the collisions which closed the highway near Bergamo for several hours. (AP Laserphoto)

More Break-Ins Reported Here

Another round of break-ins composed the bulk of recently reported incidents today, as police and citizens alike were settling in for another apparent year of high residential crime.

William Bottorff complained that someone broke through the glass in a door at his 2620 41st st. home sometime during the holiday season and stole stereo equipment and two paintings. The loss reportedly was set at $800.

According to Marvis Steele of 1925 Ave. N, a television set, a pistol, assorted jewelry and $90 cash was the take for whoever got through a window at her home Tuesday.

Charles Leroy Campbell of 1625 16th St., No. 367, reported the loss of $240 worth of goods from his apartment Tuesday after a burglar pried a door. The property stolen reportedly included a radio, tapes and jewelry.

After offering three people a ride early Tuesday, a 30-year-old Texas Tech University student said he was repaid by having a knife held to his chest while two women searched him for money.

The victim said he had been at an East Lubbock lounge until just before 3 a.m., when he went to his car to leave.

The trio, a man and two women, reportedly were offered a ride home just minutes later. After he stopped at a service station, "somewhere on E. 19th Street" the victim said he was accosted outside the station by the three and threatened at knifepoint.

Told that he would be killed if he did not comply with the robbers' demand for money, the victim said he subsequently was searched by the two women and gave up $12.

Seconds later, the victim told police, he saw a chance to run and took it.

Officers also were investigating a vehicle burglary Tuesday in which a reported $6,095 in goods were stolen.

Jerry Gibbons of 2107 52nd St. said someone broke into his 1977 van Monday or Tuesday and stole a CB, several belt buckles, eight track tapes, T-shirts and about $5,000 worth of costume jewelry.

Vandals reportedly cost Patrick Clements an estimated $1,300 Tuesday, after someone put two large dents in the hood of his car, cut the radiator hose and removed the oil plug. The miscreants also squirted shaving creme on the car's interior, then applied toilet tissue to the mess. Clements said he did not notice the damage beneath his care and drove away with no oil in the engine. The engine was ruined, he said.

Tom Squyres of 2123 Cypress Road said someone broke into his home Monday or Tuesday by using an axe, then stole three guns and a like number of pairs of boots. Squyres estimated his loss at $400.

Mike McDaniel of the Human Development Center, 1210 Texas Ave., said someone removed a cassette adapter valued at $200 from a desk at the center Friday.

Bob De Spain of Route 2, Lubbock, said someone entered Bob's Custom Ready Built Homes on Clovis Road over the weekend and stole several hundred dollars worth of hand tools. De Spain said he had not prepared an inventory of the stolen goods.

A pair of wire-haired terriers valued at $220 were reported stolen from John B. Cruce's residence on 8009 Quinton Ave. sometime since Sunday. Cruce said the female had been found by Tuesday, however.

Burglars reportedly entered Lubbock Christian High School, 5601 26th St., Sunday or Monday, by breaking through windows at a teachers' lounge. Joe Burks of 5312 30th St. said the intruders took $30 in change from two vending machines and stole a stereo system valued at $200.

Selma Nombrana of 7402 Ivory Ave. said burglars took a television and radio from her residence in the past four days. She said the items were worth about $495.

Two stolen guns and damage to his window will put a $300 dent into George Lemley's budget, after burglars broke into the Slaton resident's pickup Tuesday while it was parked in the 2200-block of 19th Street.

Burglars took a $485 television and caused $150 damage to two windows sometime in recent weeks, after they broke into Marie Melton's residence at 601 37th St.

Camping equipment and sporting goods, including binoculars, custom knives and hatchets all valued at $240, were stolen after burglar's broke into a camping trailer in the past week, belonging to Dale Odom of 1907 63rd St.

Maxine Cave of 4630 55th Drive said someone stole her car's wheel worth $225 Sunday or Monday.

Gargantuan Long Island Estate Continues To Wait For Buyer

By MALCOLM N. CARTER

NEW YORK (AP) — Another of the gargantuan Long Island estates on which the wealthy lived in cocoons of silken luxury is going the way of the gaslight.

Built by a horse doctor and pharmaceutical heir, the 556-acre Bell estate on a half-mile of white sand in Easthampton went up for sale two months ago.

Whether it's the asking price of $7 million or the real estate taxes of $1,000 — a week — no one has made a serious offer for all or part of the wooded estate.

The sale bespeaks a vanishing era, propelled to a precipitous end by rising taxes, the expense of maintaining huge

Family Claims Hughes Not Texas Resident

HOUSTON (UPI) — Attorneys for the family of Howard Hughes have started trying to prove their contention that the late tycoon was not a Texas resident.

The state Tuesday rested its case in the trial to determine — for inheritance tax purposes — whether Hughes was a Texas resident.

Assistant Attorney General Rich Harrison told Probate Judge Pat Gregory early in the afternoon session the state had concluded its case with the presentation of final documents linking Hughes to Texas.

Frank Davis, attorney for Hughes' survivors who dispute Texas' claim, began his case shortly after Harrison finished. Davis is attempting to prove Nevada was Hughes' legal residence. But to win his case he only needs to show Texas was not Hughes' residence.

The bulk of the state's case consisted primarily of introducing several hundred documents detailing Hughes' business activities between Houston, where he was born and buried, to other points in his vast business empire.

Hughes, 70, died during an emergency medical flight from Acapulco to Houston on April 5, 1976.

The trial had been recessed for a two-week Christmas break.

William R. Lummis and Annette Gano Lummis, Hughes' only survivors, want Nevada made his legal residence because it has no inheritance taxes.

During the last day of the state's case, attorneys introduced documents showing Hughes transferred money from his Houston bank to keep his Nevada enterprises going.

The state also showed in a letter from former aide Noah Dietrich that Hughes visited Texas on several occasions without telling his business associates.

Suspect Jailed In Slaying Of Houston Man

HOUSTON (UPI) — A suspect arrested in Florida in possession of a slain Houston executive's credit cards and automobile has been charged with capital murder, authorities announced Tuesday.

Sheriff Jack Heard said Jeffrey David Mathis, about 23, residence undetermined, was charged in the death of Henry Ehrenkranz, 57, who was abducted from a department store parking lot, robbed and shot Saturday.

Heard said Mathis, arrested Tuesday in Temple Terrace, Fla., near Tampa, also had a .25-caliber pistol of the type used to shoot Ehrenkranz, president of International Building Maintenance Co. and Texas Window Cleaning Co.

The sheriff and Police Chief Harry Caldwell said a "confidential source" had informed them Mathis had gone to Florida. There were reports a girlfriend had tipped authorities.

"We received information (about noon Tuesday) that a person was attempting to use the deceased's credit card at a bank in Temple Terrace," Heard said. He said Mathis was trying to obtain cash at a bank with the card.

Heard said he was sending three deputies to Florida for further investigation.

Ehrenkranz was kidnapped about 5:45 p.m. while waiting in his 1977 Cadillac in a department store parking lot for his wife. His body, with multiple bullet wounds including two in the head, was found on a Harris County road Sunday.

His wife told investigators the couple had stopped at the store on their way to a party and when she returned after 15 minutes inside her husband and his car were gone.

Sheriff's Detective Larry Wolford said it appeared Ehrenkranz, whose jewelry was gone and whose pockets were rifled of all but 98 cents, was robbed "because he was in the wrong place at the wrong time and looked too good."

Conference Slated On Safety Project

A pre-construction conference for a $545,000 safety project along U.S. 84 in Lubbock, Lynn and Garza Counties and along U.S. 82 in Crosby County will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the Conference Room of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation district office.

The purpose of the conference is to plan and coordinate the construction work for the safety and convenience of the public during construction of the projects, officials said.

The safety project includes removing and rebuilding culvert headwalls and inlets and the installation of guard fences.

The meeting will be open to the public.

More Break-Ins Reported Here

Another round of break-ins composed the bulk of recently reported incidents today, as police and citizens alike were settling in for another apparent year of high residential crime.

William Bottorff complained that someone broke through the glass in a door at his 2620 41st st. home sometime during the holiday season and stole stereo equipment and two paintings. The loss reportedly was set at $800.

According to Marvis Steele of 1925 Ave. N, a television set, a pistol, assorted jewelry and $90 cash was the take for whoever got through a window at her home Tuesday.

Charles Leroy Campbell of 1625 16th St., No. 367, reported the loss of $240 worth of goods from his apartment Tuesday after a burglar pried a door. The property stolen reportedly included a radio, tapes and jewelry.

After offering three people a ride early Tuesday, a 30-year-old Texas Tech University student said he was repaid by having a knife held to his chest while two women searched him for money.

The victim said he had been at an East Lubbock lounge until just before 3 a.m., when he went to his car to leave.

The trio, a man and two women, reportedly were offered a ride home just minutes later. After he stopped at a service station, "somewhere on E. 19th Street" the victim said he was accosted outside the station by the three and threatened at knifepoint.

Told that he would be killed if he did not comply with the robbers' demand for money, the victim said he subsequently was searched by the two women and gave up $12.

Seconds later, the victim told police, he saw a chance to run and took it.

Officers also were investigating a vehicle burglary Tuesday in which a reported $6,095 in goods were stolen.

Jerry Gibbons of 2107 52nd St. said someone broke into his 1977 van Monday or Tuesday and stole a CB, several belt buckles, eight track tapes, T-shirts and about $5,000 worth of costume jewelry.

Vandals reportedly cost Patrick Clements an estimated $1,300 Tuesday, after someone put two large dents in the hood of his car, cut the radiator hose and removed the oil plug. The miscreants also squirted shaving creme on the car's interior, then applied toilet tissue to the mess. Clements said he did not notice the damage beneath his care and drove away with no oil in the engine. The engine was ruined, he said.

Tom Squyres of 2123 Cypress Road said someone broke into his home Monday or Tuesday by using an axe, then stole three guns and a like number of pairs of boots. Squyres estimated his loss at $400.

Mike McDaniel of the Human Development Center, 1210 Texas Ave., said someone removed a cassette adapter valued at $200 from a desk at the center Friday.

Bob De Spain of Route 2, Lubbock, said someone entered Bob's Custom Ready Built Homes on Clovis Road over the weekend and stole several hundred dollars worth of hand tools. De Spain said he had not prepared an inventory of the stolen goods.

A pair of wire-haired terriers valued at $220 were reported stolen from John B. Cruce's residence on 8009 Quinton Ave. sometime since Sunday. Cruce said the female had been found by Tuesday, however.

Burglars reportedly entered Lubbock Christian High School, 5601 26th St., Sunday or Monday, by breaking through windows at a teachers' lounge. Joe Burks of 5312 30th St. said the intruders took $30 in change from two vending machines and stole a stereo system valued at $200.

Selma Nembrana of 7402 Ivory Ave. said burglars took a television and radio from her residence in the past four days. She said the items were worth about $495.

Two stolen guns and damage to his window will put a $300 dent into George Lemley's budget, after burglars broke into the Slaton resident's pickup Tuesday while it was parked in the 2200-block of 19th Street.

Burglars took a $485 television and caused $150 damage to two windows sometime in recent weeks, after they broke into Marie Melton's residence at 601 37th St.

Camping equipment and sporting goods, including binoculars, custom knives and hatchets all valued at $240, were stolen after burglar's broke into a camping trailer in the past week, belonging to Dale Odum of 1907 63rd St.

Maxine Cave of 4630 55th Drive said someone stole her car's wheel worth $225 Sunday or Monday.

Ex-Gunner Gets Chance To Fly His Own Navy Torpedo Bomber

By LINDEL HUTSON
 WEINER, Ark. (AP) — Tommy Wofford was too young to be a Navy pilot during World War II — he had to take a back seat to all the action.
 "They weren't putting 17-year-olds up front then," says Wofford.
 Today, Wofford is making up for lost time. He has his own pudgy blue Navy torpedo bomber, and no admiral tells him when or where to fly it.
 Wofford works on his plane in a shop behind his house and when he wants to fly, he taxis down the highway to an airstrip between a soybean field and takes off.
 In 1974, Wofford found a surplus Navy plane that had been used after the war to fight forest fires in Missouri and Wyoming. The plane was only a skeletal war relic when he bought it.
 It took Wofford's checkbook and help from more than 20 of his fellow members of the local Experimental Aircraft Association to rebuild it — scrounging parts from around the country. "I estimate I've spent $30,000, not counting labor," said Wofford, a 51-year-old farm implement dealer in this northeast Arkansas community of 700.

 Wofford trained as a rear seat gunner on the same type aircraft, but that's not the reason he picked the TBM torpedo bomber.
 "It was economics more than anything else," he said. "My first choice was the Douglas dive bomber, the Dauntless. There's only one of those flying now, and they built nearly 6,000 of them. I wanted it worst of all, but I couldn't afford it."
 "So I settled on a TBM, and now I'm kind of glad. Because out of 9,836, there's only six flying in the original military configuration."
 His plane fought the Pacific war from the decks of the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown. The plane now gleams in a new blue paint job, Navy insignia, rebuilt bomb bay doors, gun turrets, bomb racks, rocket rails, a gunsight and tail hook for carrier landings. The plane has been used in two movies since Wofford completed its restoration this year.

 Wofford located surplus parts from aircraft enthusiasts around the country. "Some airplane people never throw anything away," he said. "And, you meet a lot of interesting people this way." The Navy at Memphis also donated the remains of a plane.
 Wofford's plane is an attention grabber as it sits alone at the edge of the grass airstrip beside Arkansas Highway 39. "Lots of people will stop to find out who the plane belongs to," he said. "The plane is a good way to get acquainted."
 It takes the cooperation of local authorities when Wofford wants to move the plane from the airstrip to his home repair facilities.

Newspaper Refused Exemption

By JAMES H. RUBIN
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cincinnati Post has yet to prove that its financial condition is perilous enough to warrant an anti-trust exemption for a joint operation with its rival, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Justice Department says.
 Assistant Attorney General John H. Shenefield recommended that public hearings be held to determine if the Post is capable of surviving on its own.
 Attorney General Griffin Bell has at least a month to decide whether to hold hearings or go ahead and either accept or reject the proposed exemption.
 There was no immediate comment from the owners of the two papers.
 Shenefield said there were too many unanswered questions about the Post's finances to grant an anti-trust exemption that would further a national trend of eliminating financial competition between newspapers in the same city. The Post and Enquirer are Cincinnati's two remaining dailies.
 The Post, owned by E.W. Scripps Co., reported $11 million in losses since 1970. But Shenefield said yearly losses have been cut in half since the recession of 1974 and, in any case, the figures have not been substantiated by an audit.
 The Post also reported $25.2 million in revenue in 1976 and a loss of about $1 million and similar figures for the first 11 months this year.
 Shenefield also said the Scripps company has failed to demonstrate that there is no buyer for the Post that might operate it at a profit.
 The case is only the second test of a 1970 law aimed at preserving failing newspapers by permitting joint operations in the same city.
 Scripps contends that Congress intended the law to allow "a newspaper owner to be able to keep alive his own editorial voice" without even trying to find another buyer, said Shenefield.
 But the assistant attorney general said that interpretation would "provide an incentive to mismanagement. It would allow any publisher that has demonstrated its inability to survive in commercial competition to have the perpetual benefit of participating in a commercial monopoly even if it could be demonstrated that someone else might successfully operate the paper independently."
 The Post and Enquirer each have a daily circulation of about 190,000. But the profit-making Enquirer also sells a Sunday edition that circulates 290,000 copies.
 The two papers requested on Sept. 28 that Bell permit them to combine production, circulation, business and advertising operations while each maintained its own staff of editors and reporters.
 Shenefield said if the Post showed increasing or constant losses that were substantial relative to its revenues, "then the records of efforts to improve (the paper) that now exist might be enough to support the conclusion that the Post is in probable danger of financial failure."
 "But that is not the case ... the actual operating results of the Post cannot be determined, there is no history of increasing losses and the Post's daily circulation, despite past decline, remains equal to that of the daily Enquirer."

Mayor Turns Heat Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of Edward Koch's first orders as New York City's 105th mayor was a directive to turn the heat down in City Hall.
 Arriving by subway at 8:45 a.m. Monday for his first full workday as mayor, Koch said, "Please turn down the heat. It's too hot. It was too hot in City Hall and too cold in Gracie Mansion," the mayor's official residence.
 Although freezing temperatures prevailed outside, Koch said "a good temperature for a working environment is 68 degrees and 60 degrees is good for a sleeping environment."
 Koch had a busy first day as mayor. Among other duties, he presided over the swearing in of Herman Badillo as deputy mayor for management and Robert McGuire as police commissioner.
 Badillo, who ran against Koch in the Democratic primary, gave up a seat in Congress, where he represented the South Bronx, to take the deputy mayor's post.

Notre Dame Reigns As National Champ

AP Puts UT Fourth; UPI, Fifth

Avalanche-Journal News Services
Less than three months after critics were clamoring for his scalp and "Dump Devine" bumper stickers were flourishing in South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine is having the last laugh and basking in the glow of college football's national championship.

The Fighting Irish, whose over-all winning percentage of .774 entering the 1977 campaign was the best in history, added another chapter to the Notre Dame legend Monday when they were voted national champions by the 64 voters in the nationwide Associated Press poll and 39 coaches, who participate on United Press International's poll.

In a race among five teams with identical 11-1 records, Notre Dame's 38-10 Cotton Bowl rout of previously No. 1-rated Texas enabled the Irish to win out over Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and Penn State.

"There's a lot of personal satisfaction in a job well done and maybe this is hard to understand but I'm happier for the team than for myself," Devine said when he was informed that Notre Dame had won the mythical National Championship. "I have a combined feeling of being humble and thankful."

"I usually try to hold my emotions in, but I'm kind of quivering all over right now. I'm just so thankful that my staff and my players are the kind of people they are."

Notre Dame, which finished the regular season in fifth place, received 37 1/3 first-place votes — one voter split his ballot among Notre Dame, Alabama and Arkansas — and 1,180 of a possible 1,280 points from AP and 23 firsts and 365 points from UPI.

AP Runner-up Alabama, a convincing 35-6 winner over Ohio State in the Sugar Bowl, climbed from third place to second with 19 1/3 first-place ballots and 1,132 points. Arkansas jumped from sixth to third with 5 1/3 first-place votes and 1,011 points by clobbering previously second-ranked Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl 31-6.

Texas, the only team in the country to go make it through the regular season undefeated, dropped to fourth place with the remaining two first-place votes and 797 points. Penn State, which also finished 11-1 by downing Arizona State 42-30 in the Fiesta Bowl, rose from eighth to fifth with 768 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were 10-1 Kentucky, 10-2 Oklahoma, 9-2-1 Pittsburgh, 10-2 Michigan and 8-4 Washington. Kentucky was on probation and ineligible for a bowl while Pitt trounced Clemson 34-3 in the Gator Bowl and Washington upended Michigan 27-20 in the Rose Bowl.

Alabama was a close second in UPI's poll, only 11 points behind Notre Dame. Alabama received 13 first-place votes and 354 points and Arkansas finished third with two first-place mentions and 310 points.

"After the loss to Mississippi, I felt it was a real challenge," said Devine. "It was a challenge to myself and our staff and our players. Along the way you going to face challenges no matter what job you in, and if you stay in coaching long enough you are going to have bad starts and bad moments. It just depends on how you react to those bad things."

It was the closest balloting for UPI's national championship honors since 1966 when Notre Dame edged Michigan State by only five points.

Penn State, a decisive victor over Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl, was fourth with 251 points and Texas, which had entered the post-season bowl parade as the No. 1 ranked club, fell to fifth place. The

Hogs 'Save' SWC's Pride

LOU HOLTZ IS short, skinny, bespectacled, hypertense and a mile-a-minute talker. His 1977 Arkansas was team comprised of more robust physical specimens than he, but it didn't scare any opponents with sheer size and strength.

In short, neither Holtz nor his team looked like savior material. You'd pick Donald Duck first. Nevertheless, they played the role perfectly Monday night. The Razorbacks, under first-year head coach Holtz, saved the Southwest Conference from complete embarrassment in the post-season bowl games with their shocking 31-6 upset of Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Otherwise, the SWC clubs got knocked in the dirt. Florida State ripped apart Texas Tech 40-17 in the Tangerine Bowl; Southern Cal pinned a 47-28 whipping on Texas A&M in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl; and Texas lost its No. 1 ranking, its pride and probably the cleats of its players' shoes by a 38-10 count to Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

Rather ironically, the three SWC teams given even-to-good chances to win got crushed, and the one that was expected to be crushed—Arkansas—did the crushing.

THOSE POOR LITTLE maligned, crippled, undernourished Hogs. Just two players on the starting defensive unit weighed more than 210 pounds. So what, everyone said, if the unit was extremely quick? So what if it had allowed less than 9 points a game (third in the nation) in winning 10 of 11 during the regular season—the one defeat a 13-9 squeaker to Texas?

Those poor little Hogs, who lost excellent offensive guard Leotis Harris to a knee injury in pre-bowl workouts. They who would face second-ranked OU without the services of three top offensive threats—backs Ben Cowins and Michael Forrest and flanker Donny Bobo—because of suspension. No matter that they still had all-SWC quarterback Ron Calcagni and the rest of a fine line. How would they move the ball versus Oklahoma?

Excellent, as it turned out. The Razorbacks gained 407 yards, 317 on the ground, as Roland Sales rushed for an Orange Bowl record of 205. The Hogs controlled the game from the start, as Oklahoma fumbled and slid around on the damp turf.

Sooner coach Barry Switzer said, "Arkansas did what I didn't think a team could do—take the ball and move it like they did."

IT WAS A good thing that Arkansas did because the SWC's other three bowl teams performed abysmally. The league, considered to be a strong one before the 1977 season began, probably is, but the Razorbacks were only representatives to prove it.

The Tech story is well known by now. The Raiders were favored over Florida State by 7 points but fell by 23 in the face of a furious Seminole passing attack. Although they didn't take the lead for good until the second quarter, the winners really controlled the game from its inception.

Texas A&M was favored in some quarters, considered the underdog in some others. The Aggies have talent, but not as much as in the past two years. And, somehow, the Farmers never seem to win the important ones.

This year, A&M had its biggest confrontations with Michigan and Texas—both ranked No. 1 at the time—Arkansas and Southern Cal, the former a member of the top ten and the latter ranked 20th. The Aggies lost them all.

One knew that they wouldn't win the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, although the score was a surprise to some.

AS FOR TEXAS, there's not too much to say about the Longhorns, either. Like the other two, this one was a massacre almost from the beginning.

Prior to the contest, anyone with any knowledge of matters knew that Notre Dame had a good chance to win, but few, if any, predicted a 28-point margin of victory.

It was a surprisingly dark post-season for the Southwest Conference, but Arkansas, thankfully, provided a bit of light.

Raiders Host Samford

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

For a month, Texas Tech has had a set lineup, but now, a game before the Southwest Conference season arrives, coach Gerald Myers is not sure.

The Raiders will take on Samford University in Lubbock Coliseum tonight, but Tuesday, Myers admitted, "Honestly, I'm not sure who we'll start."

It is a case of getting in the final experimentation before the Raiders open the league race at Austin Saturday, and Myers is having trouble deciding which combination to use first.

Tech came back from the Classic in Honolulu with one subburned assistant coach and two more blisters on its record. Going into tonight's 7:30 p.m. contest, the Raiders are 7-3. They dropped a 12-point decision to the nation's No. 2 team (North Carolina) and a 1-pointer to 18th-ranked Providence. The win was over Rhode Island in overtime.

But, "We're not playing as well now as I'd hoped we would," Myers said. "We're making a lot of mental errors on defense. We'll go along okay for a while, then miss an assignment."

"We need to be rebounding better, too. That's the big thing. We've had trouble rebounding all season."

Tech has opened all 11 games—including the Athletes In Action "exhibition"—with a lineup of 6-9 juco transfer Joe Baxter at center, 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-7 Mike Russell at forwards and 6-3 Mike Edwards and 6-0 Tommy Parks at guards.

Despite the unsettled opening unit, Myers feels he will have to go most of the time with these five, plus 6-1 guard Geoff Huston, 6-4 swingman Thad Sanders and 6-8 freshman Ralph Brewster.

Russell is averaging about 20 points a game, but he and Williams have been the only consistent double-figure scorers.

"We played well against Rhode Island (in the first game of the tournament), didn't look good against North Carolina, then could have won the Providence game (being beaten on a jumper from the key with two seconds remaining). But, we weren't shooting well that night."

Samford will come in with a 2-6 record, with one of the losses being by a 106-91 count to Texas A&M in the Birmingham Class Tournament Dec. 17.

The Birmingham team is expected to open with a lineup of 6-2 William Williams, 6-4 Jake McGill, 6-7 Robbin Bum-bry, 5-11 Ervin Terry and 6-10 Steve Khan.

Bumbry leads the team in scoring with a 13.4-point average.

After tonight, the Raiders will play three of their first four conference games on the road. Tech will play Texas in Austin Saturday night then host TCU next Monday, then head for Baylor and Rice for games Jan. 12 and 14, respectively.

Tickets will be on sale for tonight's game, reported ticket manager Carol Baker. The tickets, priced at $3.50 and $4, will be on sale an hour before gametime.

Tickets are available since the Tech students are off campus for the holiday-semester break.

Portland Spoils Visitors' Mark

By The Associated Press

Yes, National Basketball Association teams can win on the road.

Five of Tuesday night's six games were won by the visiting team. The lone exception was in Portland where the Trail Blazers erased a four-point deficit in the final 15 seconds and beat the Chicago Bulls 92-90. But nobody else ever wins in Portland where the defending NBA champion Blazers have won 27 consecutive regular-season games plus 10 more in last spring's playoffs.

"It's always nice to win on the road," said Los Angeles Coach Jerry West, whose Lakers invaded New York's Madison Square Garden to begin a seven-game road trip and posted a 120-117 victory over the Knicks.

"It's beautiful to get that first game on the road because we've got six more of them coming up," added rookie guard Norm Nixon, the Lakers' hero with eight of his career-high 26 points in the final 3:31.

The Knicks, meanwhile, can look at it from the other side. The loss came in their final home appearance prior to an eight-game, three-week road swing.

"If we would have won, it sure would have been a good sendoff," said Knicks captain Earl Monroe.

Road teams have only been winning about 30 per cent of the games this season, but that percentage took a beating Tuesday night as the Denver Nuggets trounced the Washington Bullets 101-100, the Detroit Pistons beat the Atlanta Hawks 106-103, the Indiana Pacers nipped the New Orleans Jazz 104-103 and the Phoenix Suns defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 125-103.

Lou Hudson also scored 26 points for the Lakers, who posted their fourth consecutive victory and moved to within one game of the 500 mark. Los Angeles out-scored New York 34-11 from the free throw line.

Bob McAdoo scored 16 of his 38 points in the fourth quarter to keep the Knicks in contention. He had a hand in his club's last 15 points, scoring 11 and handing out two assists, but had a shot blocked by Jamaal Wilkes with five seconds left that could have put New York in front.

Blazers 92, Bulls 90 — Portland raised its record to 29-5 and its home-court mark this season to 19-0 with a stunning come-from-behind effort against Chicago.

Two free throws by Norm Van Lier with 13 seconds remaining made it 90-86 in favor of the Bulls.

But Maurice Lucas scored from in close to cut the lead in half and Lionel Hollins stole Van Lier's inbounds pass and raced in for a stuff shot to tie the score. After a Chicago timeout, Dave Twardzik and Bob Gross combined to give Portland possession of Van Lier's inbounds pass, and Hollins scored the game-winning layup with two seconds on the clock.

After the game Hollins, who led the Blazers with 27 points, was brought from the locker room to center court where he received a standing ovation from the capacity crowd of 12,666.

Nuggets 101, Bullets 100 — The Nuggets won their fourth in a row and second on the road when David Thompson scored on a driving layup with four seconds remaining.

"We're playing a lot better on the road now," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "We're not strong enough or deep enough to dominate people, but if we can play under control like we did, we'll do all right."

Thompson scored 12 of his game-high 26 points in the fourth quarter.

Auerbach Says Heinsohn Victim Of 'No-Cut Era'

BOSTON (AP) — A soft-spoken, gangling refugee from Harvard Yard has been anointed to lead the stumbling Boston Celtics out of the National Basketball Association wilderness.

"There aren't any communications gaps when you're winning," said new Celtics Coach Tom "Satch" Sanders, alluding to a reason for the firing Tuesday of boisterous Tom Heinsohn, the winningest coach in the NBA.

"Familiarity breeds contempt," conceded Celtics President and General Manager Red Auerbach, who gave Heinsohn the news before a team practice in Lexington, Mass.

Alluding to what Auerbach termed the veterans of the once-dominant team's roster, Auerbach said. "They've been around Tommy for too long. You have to have new blood."

With the club off to its worst start, 11-23, Auerbach made Heinsohn the fall guy and the first Celtics coach fired in nearly 30 years and gave the job to Sanders, Heinsohn's hand-picked assistant.

Until last summer, Sanders, a former Celtics forward, was the losing basketball coach at Harvard University, a job he took after retiring from the Celtics in 1973.

Auerbach said the decision was his alone, although team owner Irving H. Levin wanted to fire Heinsohn. In December, Levin offered the coaching job to Auerbach, who turned it down.

"Levin is kind of spoiled," Auerbach said. "He likes the idea of winning. I felt the present situation could not be turned around. We needed a new slant, new motivation, and new direction."

Sanders said the Celtics can make the playoffs.

"We're not that far away from winning," he said at a news conference with Auerbach. "The personnel is there."

Heinsohn said he may return to his insurance business or go into broadcasting.

"I think the decision (on the firing) was made before the West Coast trip," he said from his Natick, Mass., home.

The Celtics were winless on that swing last month and dropped games by huge margins. Players griped privately about Heinsohn's coaching and tough-guy demeanor.

"The virus of losing took effect," was the way Heinsohn explained it Tuesday in a barely audible whisper.

Only a week ago, Auerbach traded star guard Charlie Scott to the Los Angeles Lakers for suspended forward Kermit Washington, former Celtics guard Don Chaney and "future considerations," — possibly a Laker first round draft pick.

"I had the feeling we had put things together," Heinsohn said. "I wouldn't be surprised if the team started to win. Sanders is a tough customer in his own way."

Saying he was shaken by the trauma of the firing, Auerbach conceded players' complaints helped make up his mind.

"That," Auerbach said, "coupled with getting the hell knocked out of us."

Auerbach pronounced Heinsohn "a victim of the era of no-cut contracts," a tough coach who expected more from some players than they were willing to give.

But the Celtics major dome also complained that, under Heinsohn, the team had "a defeatist complex," expecting to lose.

Heinsohn, who entered the season with a 416-240 record in nine years, was only the fifth coach in the team's history. The last to be fired was John "Honey" Russell in 1948.

Heinsohn won five NBA Atlantic Division titles and league championships in 1974 and 1976.

Aside from Auerbach, with a 938-479 record, the former Holy Cross and Celtics star forward was the winningest coach in NBA history.

Sanders, a 6-foot-6 defensive-minded forward who played with Heinsohn, and then under him, conceded Tuesday he signed on last year expecting a season of scouting and the usual quota of Boston victories.

But, said Auerbach, "The players felt the communication system had broken down."

"I kept hoping these monkeys would turn it around," Auerbach said, "so I procrastinated. I didn't have the guts to do it, to fire Heinsohn."

The former Holy Cross gunner was the team's top draft pick in 1956 and was NBA Rookie of the Year in 1957. He averaged 18.2 points from 1956 to 1965 and played on eight championship teams.

Coach Frustrated Despite Queens' Mark

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Ten games, ten wins, and still, Wayland Baptist College's Dean Weese feels the Queens aren't playing well.

"It bothers me," said Weese recently, after the Queens won their tenth game and stepped to the top of the national women's basketball ratings. "If we're going to be No. 1, we should look like it, and it's frustrating to me when we don't look the part."

Weese feels he's speaking for the team, too, when he adds, "I think they're just like me. They're more concerned about playing well than winning and being No. 1. Right now, we've got to be more consistent."

The WBC coach should understand consistency. He has won 610 games, as a high school and college coach, and he has averaged more than 30 wins a year in his 20 seasons. His teams have lost only 97 times.

"I think we're fortunate to be 10-0 with the schedule we've played," said Weese, noting road victories over Kansas State, Kansas and Texas, as well as wins over Louisiana Tech, national juco champ Panola and Stephen F. Austin.

The wins helped lift the Queens to the top spot nationally. As to how the rating has affected the team, Weese remarked, "It's something that works differently on each individual. Some use it as a motivating force, and others may tend to take it for granted that we should be there."

"I don't think there's any pressure (from the Queens' winning tradition), I would like for us to have more pride in our ratings and tradition and let it be a motivating force for us."

Despite the record, Weese feels the team has been inconsistent in its play. "We're hitting 51 percent from the field, which is very good. We're not scoring quite as many points as last year, but (this year) we don't have anyone weak on our schedule."

"I think we're better defensively. We haven't pressed that much so far, but we're getting it together."

Weese feels the team has gotten steady performances from 6-1 all-America senior Marie Kocurek, 5-11 junior Valeria Goodwin and 5-10 sophomore Kathy Harston.

The team is in the midst of a holiday break which Weese feels can be helpful, physically and mentally.

"With people like Mississippi College (here Saturday), North Carolina State (at Raleigh Jan. 12) Delta State (Cleveland, Miss., Jan. 21) and the Old Dominion Tournament (Jan. 13-14) coming up, we should come back excited about our schedule."

The crowds here haven't motivated the team as the coach had hoped. "I've been disappointed that our crowds haven't been as good as they should be. There were probably 2,500 at the Kansas State game and maybe 3,000 at Kansas University and probably that many at the Texas game (all on the road)."

"I think it will come along as Plainview becomes more girls-basketball oriented. We get great student-body support. It's just a matter of getting adults in the stands to make it even better."

As to begin No. 1, "Well, before those three big games (Panola, Stephen F. Austin, Texas), I told the girls if we beat them, I thought we deserved to be No. 1. And, according to the scores, maybe we do deserve to be there."

DALLAS — The "Gates of Mercy" — are you ethically bound to close them when you're shooting for high stakes, such as the college football championship of the United States?

This was one of the prickly little issues which emerged — almost unnoticed — from Notre Dame's resounding 38-10 victory over previously unbeaten and top-ranked Texas in Monday's Cotton Bowl.

The setting: only a few minutes were left on the clock.

Notre Dame had its precious upset triumph in the bag, leading by 28 points. More than that, the Longhorns, banged and battered throughout the afternoon, were reeling like a punch-drunk prizefighter, ready to go down for the full court.

Their eyes were glassy and their legs wobbly, and they were being humiliated before their worshipping fans. Instead of taking pity on their already vanquished victims and letting them crumble to the canvas softly with perhaps a shred of dignity remaining, they were the fired-up Fighting Irish pumping away desperately for still another score.

The gun sounded with Notre Dame two feet from another touchdown.

Although Coach Fred Akers and his shattered Texas legions issued no public outcry, they obviously resented it. Longhorn supporters were embittered. They accused the Fighting Irish of electing to "pour it on."

Dan Devine, the Notre Dame coach, stoutly denied any such intent, although he acknowledged that he was aware that Alabama, Notre Dame's keener rival for No. 1 ranking in the polls, had crushed Ohio State in the Sugar Bowl 35-6.

The final score from New Orleans was flashed on the electric scoreboard as the Cotton Bowl game ground toward its conclusion.

"Sure, I saw it — so did the players. We knew the significance of it," said Devine.

He admitted he threw in fresh troops. He said he didn't tell them to cool it. He allowed them to play ball.

"I pulled out our best runners, Vegas Ferguson and Jerome Heavens," he said. "I substituted our second-string quarterback, Rusty Lisch. He is a good kid. He wants to win a place on the team. Naturally, he's going to do the best he can. I would expect him to."

"When you are desperately trying to score, you use your timeouts. We had all three timeouts still available when the game ended. Does that sound as if we were trying to run up a big score?"

Suppose such had been Devine's intention — could anyone have blamed him? These were not ordinary games, but final major bowls, all involving teams with national championship aspirations. All knew they were under the microscopes of the pollsters. Who is so naive as to believe that the voters aren't influenced by the margins of victory?

Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma recognized this when he sent his No. 2 Sooners against Arkansas in the Orange Bowl night game at Miami, having seen Notre Dame's and Alabama's smashing scores.

"To be No. 1, we've got to win big," he commented. Instead he lost it, beaten 31-6 by the Razorbacks, an 18-point underdog. It's doubtful that Alabama's Bear Bryant pulled any punches.

The polls have turned "mercy" on the football field into an archaic word. There was some criticism when Pittsburgh smothered Temple this season 76-0, LSU beat Rice 77-0 and Texas battered Rice 72-0. One must remember that even subs can be fired by desire. So how do you hold down a score without fixing the game?

The final bowl games accented one of the refreshing characteristics of college football as contrasted with pro football. Coaches deal with impressionable young men. Players are 260-pound hunks of highly sensitive and inflammable fibre. Arkansas, Notre Dame and Washington — all 10 to 18-point underdogs — proved that if you want hard enough, you can traffic in miracles.

Cauthen Takes AP Honor 'In Stride'

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The son of a blacksmith father and a horse-trainer mother and too small for most sports, Steve Cauthen seemed destined to be a jockey.

His destiny was realized with amazing speed and impact in 1977 as the 17-year-old riding phenomenon from Kentucky burst to the forefront of sports with a string of riding feats unequalled in horse racing history.

Tuesday, Cauthen was named the Associated Press Athlete of the Year, becoming the first jockey so recognized in the 47 years of the award.

"I certainly appreciate the honor," said Cauthen, who rode 488 winners in 1977 and won purses worth $6,151,750, the first time a rider has topped the $6 million mark.

"I try to take honors in stride," he said. "I try never to let myself get too excited or too disappointed. I just go day-by-day, try to ride the best I can every day. I don't dwell on awards, but will just try to get another next year."

"Thanks," he added with a wide grin. A 5-foot-1, 95-pounder, Cauthen topped such outstanding athletes as baseball's Rod Carew, football's Walter Payton and basketball's Bill Walton in the balloting among sports writers and broadcasters.

Cauthen received 79 first-place votes while Minnesota's Carew got 40, Chicago's Payton 33 and Portland's Walton 24. Other first-place vote-getters were Cincinnati outfielder George Foster, 20; New York Yankees outfielder Reggie Jackson, 19; retired Cosmos soccer star Pele, 13; Masters and British Open champion Tom Watson, 10, and Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas, 8.

The past year was filled with notable

STEVE CAUTHEN
... Male Athlete of Year

sports achievements such as Jackson's World Series homers, Carew's .388 batting average and Watson's dramatic victories. But Cauthen's accomplishments overshadowed even those.

Highlights of his year included riding six winners in a day on three different occasions, winning Aqueduct's Gold Seeker Purse on Little Happiness to go over the $6 million mark, and riding three winners his first time out without an apprentice's five-pound weight allowance.

Cauthen, already leading the Santa Anita jockey race in the meet that began here last week, also proved he was a durable athlete.

He suffered a broken wrist and ribs and facial cuts when his mount at Belmont Park, Bay Streak, broke a leg and fell last May 23. A month later, Cauthen came back to win with his first ride since the accident, scoring aboard Little Miracle at Belmont.

Although the year has brought tremendous change in the young rider's public life, he said he strives to remain the same person he was before his success.

"My friends still treat me just like I'm Steve Cauthen," he said. "And that's just who I am, Steve Cauthen."

Cauthen's almost uncanny knack for getting the most out of his mounts has been the subject of much conjecture and debate.

"He's a natural," some say. "He knows horses," others say. "He rides smart, knows exactly what a horse can do and when," still others contend.

Cauthen himself, a quiet but articulate young man, attributes much of his riding success to his attitude and to the smooth way he tries to handle horses.

"I approach each race the same, whether it's a claimer or a stakes race," he explained. "I figure I owe my best to the people who put me on their horse."

"And I try not to jerk horses around. I try to do everything I do with a horse very gradually and easily."

A player of "race horse rummy," a ping-pong enthusiast and avid football fan when he's not on a horse, Cauthen said riding fills most of his hours. Asked if he were yet romantically involved, he grinned and replied:

"No ... you got somebody in mind?"

Alabama, Arkansas
2-3 In Grid Polls

(From Page One)

Longhorns received only one first-place vote.

Rounding out the top 10 were Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, Michigan, Washington and Nebraska.

Six coaches from each of the seven geographical areas of the nation comprise the UPI ratings board. Each week they vote on the top 10 teams and points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first through 10th.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI football board:

EAST Joe Yukica, Boston College; Carmen Cozza, Yale; Frank Burns, Rutgers; Jackie Sherrill, Pittsburgh; Frank Maloney, Syracuse; Jerry Claiborne, Maryland.

MIDWEST Jim Young, Purdue; Lee Corso, Indiana; Bill Hess, Ohio U.; Dan Devine, Notre Dame; Woody Hayes, Ohio State; John Pont, Northwestern.

SOUTH Bear Bryant, Alabama; Vince Dooley, Georgia; Bill Dooley, North Carolina; Doug Dickey, Florida; Jim Carlen, South Carolina; Johnny Majors, Tennessee.

MIDLANDS Al Onofrio, Missouri; Tom Osborne, Nebraska; Barry Switzer, Oklahoma; Earle Bruce, Iowa State; Jim Wright, Wichita State; Bob Cummings, Iowa.

SOUTHWEST Bill Yeoman, Houston; Steve Sloan, Texas Tech; Emory Bellard, Texas A&M; Charlie McClendon, LSU; Grant Teaff, Baylor; Hayden Fry, North Texas State.

MOUNTAINS Frank Kush, Arizona State; Ben Martin, Air Force; Jim Bradley, New Mexico State; Lavell Edwards, Brigham Young; Bill Mallory, Colorado; Wayne Howard, Utah.

PACIFIC John Robinson, Southern California; Craig Fertig, Oregon State; Jim Sweeney, Fresno State; Mike White, California; Don James, Washington; Terry Donahue, UCLA.

Both Alabama's Bear Bryant and Arkansas' Lou Holtz expressed disappointment that their teams weren't voted in as national champs but also congratulated Notre Dame.

"I think Notre Dame is the only team that could have jumped over us," Bryant said. "I think we're as good as anybody and Notre Dame's winning it is just some people's opinion."

"Naturally I'm disappointed for our players and our staff because they did an outstanding job this year. We came so far this year against one of the toughest schedules in the country. But Notre Dame has our congratulations."

Holtz said he was "naturally disappointed, but happy for Notre Dame. I'm not upset and not bitter, but I think we're the best football team in the country. We were picked to finish sixth in our conference and it took a long time for people to take us seriously."

"I have no problem justifying why Notre Dame is No. 1 but I have a problem justifying why Arkansas and Alabama aren't No. 1 along with them."

Notre Dame, third in The AP's pre-season poll but No. 1 on UPI's pre-season list, started off slowly. The Irish defeated Pitt 19-9 but trailed in the game until Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh suffered a broken wrist. The following week they lost to Mississippi 20-13 and then had to come from behind with 17 points in the final period to beat Purdue 31-24.

"I'm not sure that was the turning point, but the Purdue game was very important," Devine said. "At that point we just started to play better football and the team just got better as the season went along. Rather than being a turning point we just started to do things better."

"Doing it the hard way makes this even more enjoyable. Overcoming a lot of adversity and having a difficult path always makes it more satisfying."

The national championship was Notre Dame's seventh since the AP poll began in 1936. Oklahoma is second with five titles. Notre Dame's other championships were in 1943, 1946, 1947, 1949, 1966 and 1973.

The Irish dropped as far as 14th place during the season but were either fifth or sixth during the final six weeks.

Red-Hot Monterey Dumps Harvesters

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Joe Michalka leaped back in his chair and let loose with a cry resembling that of Cochise or Flaming Turkey Buzard before they pounced down on a store keeper and his grubby little kids on one of those B westerns.

Well, maybe the Monterey coach wasn't that vocal. But even given a chance he would have been. Nonetheless, he was a happy man, all right.

"That, that was a big win for us," Michalka said, following the Plainsmen's 66-61 victory over the South Plains' third-ranked Class AAAA team, Pampa.

"In fact, that is probably one of the biggest wins we've had in that gym in quite a while," he continued.

The band of merry men surrounding Michalka in the locker room, including assistant coach Rob Knight, all nodded its heads in unison.

Gladys Knight and the Pips would have been proud.

Michalka, who admits better teams have graced the halls of MHS, pointed out that "this was the best game this team's played all year. And it's probably the best they can play."

The Plainsmen, now 10-10, would hardly have to take a back seat to anyone after the way they played against the Harvesters.

And here's why:

1. Monterey hit 27-45 shots from the field for a cool 60 percent. The group hit 70 percent in the first half.
2. From the free throw line, the Plainsmen, always known for their high shooting percentages, earned 12-15 shots.
3. And to top matters off, guards David Davidson and Tony Hamby combined for 42 total points, while hitting at a 75 percent clip.

Davidson, who showed his stuff by blistering the bucket with some dazzling outside shooting, wound up by hitting 11-16 shots. At one time, the MHS senior canned six straight, while hitting 8-10 in the first half.

"Boy, we were hot," Michalka said. So much for explanations.

For awhile though, the Harvesters, now 10-5, were just as warm. In fact, the Panhandle bunch concluded by hitting 29-56 shots for 52 percent.

Through most of the game, the two squads traded long-range buckets, with the Plainsmen able to hold a 43-32 halftime lead after jumping out on the visitors 22-14 in the first quarter.

Monterey seemed to cool down a might in the third period when Davidson, who hit 22 points, went out of the game with groin injury. After he hit, Monterey hit only two buckets and found itself with a narrow 3-point lead heading in the final period.

Pampa, which was led by Rusty Ward's 18 points, grabbed a 4-point lead with 4:13 remaining when Ricky Bunton hit an easy jumper and a free shot after being fouled on the attempt.

Bunton's bucket wound up being the Harvesters' final 2 points for more than four minutes. Johnny Hays' bucket with 17 seconds left ended the scoring.

In the meantime, the Plainsmen were running off 11 unanswered points. Hamby had five of those including a nifty dunk shot and three free shots, while teammates Steve Layton, Kevin Kirkman and Davidson all added two each.

Should both Monterey and Pampa both win their districts, they would meet in bi-district.

"I hope we play again," the MHS said. "The way we played tonight we just might, too."

AP Award No Surprise To TD

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett wasn't surprised but he was happy and humble and said he had just the place for his latest trophy — The Associated Press National Football League Rookie of the Year.

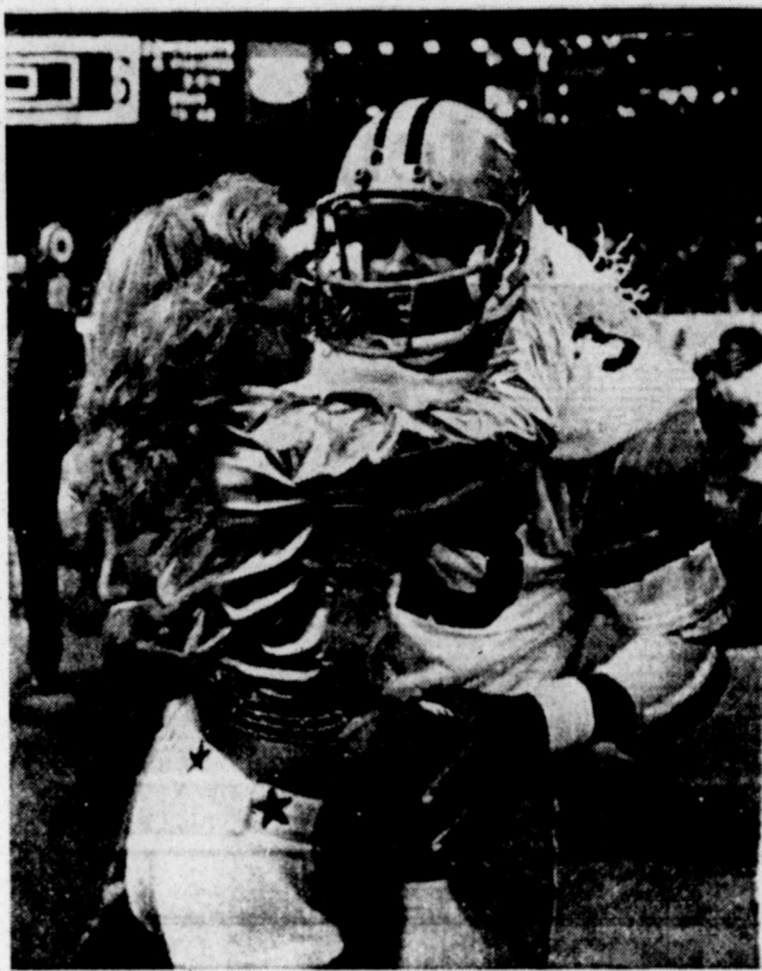

"It ranks right along with the Heisman Trophy," said the former Pittsburgh All-American, who became only the eighth rookie back in the history of the NFL to gain more than 1,000 yards.

"To be top dog in your first year of your profession for an athlete is quite an honor," said Dorsett. "I want to thank each and every person who voted for me."

Dorsett, who suffered a knee injury in training camp, wasn't even a starter until Dallas' ninth game of the season yet gained 1,007 yards.

Such great backs as O.J. Simpson, Jim Brown and Walter Payton didn't rush for 1,000 yards in their rookie seasons.

Dolphins' Duhe Tops Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Defensive tackle A.J. Duhe, a key part in the reconstruction of the Miami Dolphin defense, was named the National Football League's Defensive Rookie of the Year today by The Associated Press.

Duhe, the Dolphins' No. 1 choice in last spring's college draft, was an easy winner in balloting by writers and broadcasters covering the 28 NFL teams. He received 48 of the 84 ballots to dominate the voting. Linebacker Terry Beeson of Seattle finished second with 11 votes, followed by Duhe's defensive linemate with the Dolphins, Bob Baumhower, who had five.

Other players receiving more than one vote were defensive back Oliver Davis of Cleveland, end Mike Butler of Green Bay, tackle Eddie Edwards of Cincinnati and linebacker Kim Bokamper of Miami.

Playing a position that usually requires a few years of experience to master, Duhe was a defensive giant for the Dolphins. He moved into the starting lineup early and helped Miami become the fourth-best team in the American Conference against the rush. Not only was he an overwhelming choice for defensive rookie of the year but he even received some support for the All-Pro team, an unheard of honor for a defensive rookie.

The Dolphins, coming off a 6-8 season, owned the 13th selection in the 1977 draft and went for Duhe, a 6-foot-4, 247-pounder out of Louisiana State. He was the seventh defensive player drafted and the sixth lineman following Edwards, who went to Cincinnati; Gary Jeter, picked by the New York Giants; Joe Campbell, selected by New Orleans; Butler, drafted by Green Bay, and Phil Dokes, who went to Buffalo. The other early defensive pick was cornerback Gary Green, picked by Kansas City.

Duhe's collegiate statistics at LSU were outstanding. He averaged 72 tackles a year in his four seasons as a starter there and recorded 27 quarterback sacks for his career. In his rookie year in the NFL he had 83 tackles, seven sacks and a blocked punt. The block, on Nov. 13 against New England, set up Miami's clinching touchdown in a victory over the Patriots. A week earlier he was awarded the game ball for his three sacks against the New York Jets.

"He is a phenomenal individual, whose brains and brawn are in a dead heat," LSU Coach Charlie McClendon once said of Duhe, who was a two-time academic All-Southeast Conference selection. "At the line of scrimmage, A.J. has great explosiveness."

A native of Reserve, La., in the heart of Cajun country, Duhe's given names are Adam Joseph Jr. He prefers the initials, however, and has no trouble convincing people to use them.

'Pokes Set To Launch Countdown

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys began their Super Bowl XII countdown today with Coach Tom Landry scheduling a heavy workload for the National Conference champions.

Dallas will concentrate on the American Conference champion Denver Broncos through Saturday, get Sunday off, then fly to New Orleans on Monday.

Landry said Tuesday that two Cowboys were nursing injuries but nothing of such a serious nature that it will keep tight end Jay Saldi or runningback Tony Dorsett out of the Jan. 15 game.

Saldi was hospitalized with a severely bruised leg and Dorsett was nursing a slight leg injury.

"Both should be ready go full speed," said Landry.

"Tony is having trouble with the leg but it shouldn't be a factor with a lot of rest," he added.

Landry said he felt Denver could handle the massive media pressure and the hoopla of Super Bowl week although the Broncos are at the National Football League summit for the first time.

"I think the mental pressure is something of a factor because it does change your routine," said the dean of the National Football League coaches. "You use the same routine for 22 weeks in a row then things are so drastically different with the interviews and travel a week ahead of the game."

Landry said he believed the 1971 Cowboy team which defeated Miami 24-3 in Super Bowl VI in New Orleans was better than the current edition.

"We were a confident team," said Landry. "It was one of the few times I went into a game knowing we were going to win."

Landry said he looked for a "defensive" Super Bowl.

"Denver has the most consistent defensive team I've seen this year," said Landry.

Orangemen Beat NTS, Get Break

By The Associated Press

Got this one down in your dictionary of hoop idioms.

It comes courtesy of Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim, who gave his eighth-ranked Orangemen the next three days off after they defeated North Texas State 94-84 Tuesday night.

Why the post-holiday vacation? "We're just over-basketballed," he replied, etching this new term somewhere between "outclassed" and "undercapitalized" in the mythical "Dictionary of Untranslatable Coaches' Expressions."

Boeheim was quick to point out that he meant his players have "worked hard and we know we need a rest."

But maybe North Texas State was "over-basketballed" by the 11-1 Orangemen. They outscored Syracuse 42-40, outscored them 43-36 in the second half and got a combined 55 points from Mel Davis and Charles MacMillan, but still managed to lose by 10 points.

Maybe the Mean Green was "under-refered." Bill Blakeley, the North Texas State coach, claimed that "We knew we couldn't get a break on the calls. That's why we went with a zone defense, but we still got into foul trouble."

"I don't mean to take anything away from Syracuse. They are awesome and deserved to win," Blakeley continued. "It's just too bad computers can't call the games."

Dale Shackelford scored 23 points while Louis Orr contributed 18 points and 12 rebounds to the Orangemen's 10th consecutive victory. Ken Williams had 15 points and 11 rebounds for North Texas State.

Elswhere on a light night where ranked college basketball teams are concerned, No. 10 Louisville beat Memphis State 78-75 and No. 20 Georgetown defeated North Carolina Central 107-51.

In other games, VMI topped Cleveland State 71-66 and Siena defeated Oklahoma 69-66 in first-round action at the Siena Invitational tournament; Wisconsin-Stevens Points beat Loras 73-67 and Wisconsin-Green Bay beat Shaw 77-59 in the first round of the Green Bay Classic, and Michigan won the Hall of Fame Classic championship with a 94-75 victory over Malone.

Meanwhile, it was Oral Roberts 66, Columbia 60, Lamar 88, New Orleans 73, Air Force 83, Lewis 49, and Utah State 79, Fairleigh Dickinson 44.

Ricky Wilson's three-point play with 29 seconds remaining capped Louisville's rally from a five-point deficit with 1:42 remaining and lifted the Cardinals past Memphis State in a Metro Conference game.

Wilson finished with 24 points to lead the winners while James Bradley had 29 points and 10 rebounds for Memphis State.

"I don't know what happened tonight. We just didn't attack," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum after his 8-2 Cardinals had a close encounter of the three-point kind.

Ed Hopkins made 13 of 16 shots from the field and scored a career-high 29 points, leading three players in double figures and helping 9-2 Georgetown to its seventh consecutive victory.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stocks Still Sharply Declining

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined sharply again today, dragged down by continuing pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 8.23 at 809.51 after a 13.43-point drop in the first session of the new year Tuesday.

Losers overpowered gainers by more than a 4-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After falling to new lows against several leading foreign currencies on Tuesday, the dollar continued to slump today.

Brokers say the dollar's weakness has prompted foreign selling of U.S. stocks, with little buying interest among American investors to absorb that pressure.

American Medicorp, the most active NYSE issue, climbed 2 3/4 to 23 1/2. Humana Inc. recently sweetened its offer for the company's stock after Trans World Airlines' Hilton International subsidiary made a competing bid.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .39 to 51.43. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.00 to 125.69.

Volume on the Big Board reached 9.92 million shares by noon today against 7.83 million at the same point Tuesday.

Walt Disney Productions fell 1 1/4 to 38 1/8. The company said its plans for a Disneyland park in Tokyo had run into problems.

Automakers Cut Down Production

DETROIT (AP) — Keeping their fingers crossed because of a mini-slump in sales, U.S. automakers are scaling back January production only slightly from what was planned at the start of the model year.

The 799,600 cars planned for the month, although 7 percent less than projected in the fall, would be 13 percent higher than the 708,225 produced in January 1977.

The January production schedules announced Tuesday could be sliced further if sales for the last 10 days of December, due to be reported Thursday, do not live up to automaker hopes.

In mid-November, sales started trailing the previous-year figures after booming ahead all year. For the period of about Nov. 10 to Dec. 20, sales were 5.4 percent behind the 1977 pace.

General Motors

General Motors Corp. planned 470,000 cars for this month, 13 percent ahead of 1977. Ford Motor Co. planned 224,000, up 12 percent; Chrysler planned 92,300, 14 percent ahead; and American Motors Corp. projected 13,000 cars, 22 percent ahead.

Chrysler

Chrysler's plans include week-long shutdowns of two Detroit plants and one in Newark, Del., to reduce inventories of compact and intermediate models.

Ford Motor Co. planned 224,000 cars for this month, 12 percent ahead of 1977. American Motors Corp. projected 13,000 cars, 22 percent ahead.

Network Officials Change Often

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — For almost two years, top echelon network officials have been coming and going as if the executive suite had a revolving door.

Network presidents and other executives have been hired and fired like baseball managers on a losing club, and for much the same reason.

Until the 1975-76 season, network television has prospered for 20 years as a well ordered industry — a multi-billion dollar business that was as predictable as taxes.

CBS was the leading network for two decades, with NBC in second place in the ratings and nipping at the leader's heels. Safely at the bottom of the heap, in no challenging position for top spot, was ABC.

In the 1975-76 season that all changed when ABC, under the leadership of Fred Pierce and Fred Silverman (the program genius lured away from CBS) shot up into the lead in the Nielsen ratings.

For CBS and NBC it was no longer a matter of who's on first. It was a fight to stay out of the cellar.

What does a ball club do when it hits bottom in the league standings? Traditionally, it fires the manager. That is what CBS and NBC have been doing.

A great deal has been written about the turmoil at NBC, which also is in the process of firing up to 300 persons in an effort to streamline its organization and boost profits, but perhaps the more significant changes have occurred at CBS.

The changes at CBS not only involve men going in and out of that revolving door, but also two important changes in the organization and location of its hierarchy. The network has reapportioned its executive structure to follow ABC's lead in dividing areas of responsibility, and it has moved its entire programming division to California, where the bulk of the television product is turned out.

The first change at CBS occurred in April, 1976, when Robert J. Wussler, then 39, was named president of the CBS Television Network. He succeeded Robert D. Lood, who had held the post since 1969 and resigned because of the overwhelming pressures of the job. Those who recalled Wood's good humor when he took the job said in his last years as president he had become irritable, edgy.

That the job of network president — which then ranked fourth in the CBS hierarchy after the chairman of the board, the president of the CBS, Inc., and the president of the Broadcast group — was too much for one man became the management consensus within a year and a half.

Wussler named as assistant vice president, Robert A. Daly, to serve as his chief aide, and appointed B. Donald (Bud) Grant as vice president of the program department.

The next big step at CBS came in October, 1976, when John D. Backe was elected president of CBS, Inc., replacing Arthur Taylor. William S. Paley, chairman of the board of CBS, Inc., at that time announced he would step down as chief executive officer in favor of Backe the following April.

Backe was a surprise choice. He had been head of the CBS Publishing Group, one of the smaller CBS divisions although it includes Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Popular Library and a raft of magazines including Field and Stream.

Backe at 44 says of his job: "I've been the president of something since I was 36, I've always been in a turnaround situation where something tough had to be done. By now, it's part of the job. I don't see this as any greater challenge than I've been involved in previously."

Backe is not considered a figurehead — he is a professional management man who runs the diversified corporate entity that CBS has become. But there is no question who is in charge — William S. Paley, just as he always has been for the 50 years of CBS' history.

The next CBS move of major importance was the transfer on its entire programming hierarchy from New York to California, effective May 1, 1977. The move has its logic. Except for news, most soap operas and a few game shows, almost all television originates in California.

Will ABC and NBC follow CBS' lead? Right now they plan to stay in New York, the capital of the advertising agency business and the financial capital of the country, with many corporate headquarters in the area. If CBS appears to be gaining an advantage from its West Coast move, the other networks would reconsider.

The big restructuring move by CBS came last October, when the revolving was in full swing and for some executives it certainly was a bad day at Blackrock, as the imposing CBS headquarters skyscraper is called.

There were new men in the third and fourth spots in the organization and CBS split its table of organization responsibility to resemble the set-up at ABC.

Children's Series Set For 1979

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Narnia is a magical land discovered by four children as they wander through the back of a wardrobe closet in an old English country home.

In Narnia the children meet a heroic lion named Aslan who seeks to free Narnia from the spell of the evil White Witch.

C.S. Lewis, who ordinarily concentrated on more mature themes, wrote seven books that make up "The Chronicles of Narnia" and became a children's classic.

He also said, "I am almost inclined to set it up as a canon that a children's story which is enjoyed only by children is a bad children's story. The good ones last."

Children's Television Workshop, the folks who gave us "Sesame Street" and "Electric Company," now will be turning the first book of the Narnia series, "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe," into two hour-long animated specials to be broadcast in early prime time on CBS-TV in 1979, sponsored by Kraft, Inc.

This is CTW's first move into prime time commercial television, and its first experiment with full-length animation.

David Connell, CTW's vice president for production and executive producer for the first "Narnia" show, believes the show will be a huge success with the whole family.

"I first became aware of the books 10-12 years ago when I was visiting a friend for a drink in his New York apartment," Connell said in a telephone interview from California. "He handed me this book and told me I had to read it. 'It's a fairy tale,' I said, and he said, 'Shut up and read it.'"

Connell read the whole series for enjoyment, and it wasn't until three or four years later that he began looking with a professional eye into the rights to the books.

To further back his argument he points to the fact that "The Chronicles" American publisher, MacMillan, has sold 6 million copies of the books in this country in the last five years, perhaps half to college age youngsters.

"I am at this moment three blocks from the UCLA campus," Connell said, "and the bookstores all around the campus have huge displays of 'The Chronicles.' Think about those kids who were in college seven or eight years ago — they are likely to be young parents now."

50-Year Veteran Of Show Business Never Asks To See Scripts

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sylvia Sidney celebrated her 50th year in show business this week with the candid observation, "I work all the time because I don't ask to see the script."

"When I'm approached for a job I just say, 'How much and what time?' instead of asking what I'm going to play and what my billing will be."
 Miss Sidney, a tiny woman with a raucous sense of humor, endures on stage, film and television at a time when most of her contemporaries are dead, retired or refusing to accept the fact they no longer are leading ladies.

She became a movie star playing Depression day tenement girls in a series of 1930s heavyweight dramas: "Dead End," "An American Tragedy," "City Streets," "Ladies of the Big House" and "Mary Burns, Fugitive."

Most of her roles were heavily dramatic and played against such leading men as Spencer Tracy, Fredric March, Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Herbert Marshall and Gary Cooper.

Unlike many stars of her heyday, Sylvia willingly allows camera closeups disclosing the alterations that time has etched in the hauntingly beautiful face of the girl she once was.

"I work because I need the money," she said, laughing. Clearly, Miss Sidney must need a great deal of money because she is as busy as any actress alive.

She has just completed work in "Damien: Omen II" at 20th Century-Fox. Since October of 1976 she has appeared in the movie, "I Never Promised You A Rose Garden," four TV movies, including "Raid On Entebbe," the Broadway production of "Vieux Carre," and two plays in stock.

"I've been working steadily since 1927," she said. "I've been a member of Equity for 50 years."

"Long ago I used to be sticky about billing and scripts. Not any more. There comes a time in life when there are some things you cannot have. So you take what you can get and make the best of it."

"When the rug was pulled out from under me in movies and television, I went back to the theater where I started in 'Crime' with Chester Morris and Kay Francis back in 1927."

"But I've come back to TV and movies because of my willingness to play whatever I'm offered. A lot of ladies still have the star syndrome, demanding big parts and special treatment."

"They ought to do what I do, accept what's available."

"There's an element of luck involved too, I suppose. I seem to be in the right place at the right time. Also, I'm dependable. I don't cost producers money. I get to work on time and don't make too many demands and I'm always healthy."

"I've got to be healthy. I worked two days on this picture in terribly intense scenes from 7:30 in the morning until 10 at night, spending almost every moment of it on my feet."

Despite 35 movies, Miss Sidney never thought of herself as a member of the Hollywood community. She lived in New York for many years and now makes her home in Roxbury, Conn.

"It's just not another fashionable New York suburb," Miss Sidney said. "It's a real town with real people. It's got reverse snobbery too. If you have an unlisted telephone number nobody will speak to you."

"I moved to Connecticut because my

New York apartment got too small for my dogs."

Miss Sidney breeds and shows champion pugs. Two of them accompanied her to Hollywood for "Damien: Omen II." She found time between acting assignments to write two books on needlepoint, on which she is a recognized authority.

She lives alone, except for the dogs, and wouldn't have it any other way. She was married three times — to publisher Bennett Cerf, actor Luther Adler and agent Carlton Alspop.

"I've been unmarried for 27 years which is fine with me," she said with a wicked grin. "Three times is enough without looking foolish. After each of my divorces my husbands got married again and stayed married."

"If you've been around 67 years you've got to learn something."

She doesn't wax sentimental about her leading lady days. Nor does she watch her old movies on television.

"God, no, I don't watch my own work!" she exclaimed. "I was never a great fan of mine. I always liked other pictures a lot more than the ones I did."

Miss Sidney has no definite plans for the coming year, but she knows there will be plenty of work.

"I'm available," she said.

Disastrous Opening Night Often Provides Success For Operas

By ROBERT MUSEL
 LONDON (UPI) — One of the recipes for a successful opera appears to be a disastrous first night.

Rossini wore so extravagant a costume for the premiere of "The Barber of Seville," he got more laughs than Figaro. Donizetti's "Mary Stuart" ran into both censorship and personal problems — the former led to changing the libretto to a non-royal story for some performances and the latter to the mezzo-soprano punching the soprano because she sang the words "you prostitute" with too much feeling.

Offenbach's delightful "Orpheus in the Underworld" incredibly flopped when it began its catchy course in 1858, partly because the government wasn't too happy about the fact Jupiter seemed to resemble Napoleon III and, among other mishaps, a friend of the composers rushed backstage to demand that he drop everything and act as his second in a duel.

But there is nothing as durable as a good tune, a fact often buried under the dissonances of modern works. And Donizetti's curious but, melodious version of British history was chosen by Joan Sutherland the other night to mark the silver jubilee of her first appearance at the Royal Opera House in Covent Garden. And Offenbach's classic, which paradoxically became a hit because the most influential critic in Paris panned it, was given a shining new production by the English National Opera at the Coliseum Theatre.

The critic, Jules Janin, denounced "Orpheus" so often as a scandalous tampering with mythology that, naturally, he filled the theater for 400 performances. More than a century later the crowds still come but these days Jupiter's amorous advances no longer arouse anything but good-humored applause and audiences arrive to hear the famous Can-Can and the dozen or so tunes with which Offenbach wisely underpinned the story of composer Orpheus and his tone-deaf love, Eurydice.

The words and music received full value from Eric Shilling as Jupiter, Ejile Belcourt as Pluto, Norma Burrows as Eurydice, Terry Jenkins as Orpheus and Stuart Kale as John Styx, the dead King of Boeotia.

The more formal of the two new productions was at Covent Garden, where Miss Sutherland is a cult and receives the adulation of her status whatever the status of her voice on any given night. As it happened she was not at her best in the first act although her command improved as the night went on and she earned her predictable ovation. Critics agreed, however, that the acting honors of the night went to Huguette Tourangeau, the Canadian Mezzo-soprano whose jealous Queen Elizabeth dominated Miss Sutherland's Mary Stuart in the confrontation scene. "A tremendous performance," said The Times.

The libretto of Mary Stuart owes little to history — the triangle of Elizabeth, her cousin and the dashing Earl of Leicester existed only in the imagination of Schiller on whose original the opera was based. But no one goes to a theater to study history so in the convention of music drama it is acceptable that Leicester aroused the fury of his lover Queen Elizabeth by being too solicitous about the fate of Mary Stuart. Thus sealing her doom Donizetti's music is always pleasing though not quite.
