Storm Cripples Eastern Cities

A-J News Services
A howling snowstorm swept up the East Coast today, virtually halting travel and shutting down the big cities, while a developing storm in the Southwest continued to pose a threat to the South Plains.

Travelers advisories and warnings to take special care of livestock were posted in the Lubbock area today as the third winter storm in three weeks squeezed ever tighter around the city, dropping snow here before noon and holding the temperature below 20 degrees.

It was the second time this week that snowfall surrounded the city and threatened to deliver significant amounts of precipitation.

But only tiny amounts of snow had fallen in Lubbock earlier in the week, while much of the state suffered hazardous driving conditions, closed schools and businesses and reported scores of vehicle accidents and at least seven fatalities related to the slick roads.

Repeatedly updated weather reports this morning, however, showed the snow moving into the Lubbock area, and by late morning moderately heavy snow began to fall, prompting travelers advisories for the city that until recently had been "iced in" but scarcely "iced on."

Streets here were quickly frosted with a slippery covering of snow, but as of noon today, no serious traffic problems had resulted.

However, a spokesman at the National Weather Service said snow was expected to continue intermittently throughout today and tonight, with possible accumulations of one to two inches.

Travelers advisories covered the entire Northwest Texas area, as well as Midland-Odessa, San Angelo, Big Spring and other areas to the south and east.

At least one major traffic artery — Interstate 40 — through the Texas Panhandle and into eastern New Mexico was described this morning as "extremely hazardous" and "very slick."

The storm, sweeping out of New Mexico, reached the Abilene area early this morning and was expected to hit the Dallas-Fort Worth area another blow by late afternoon.

Winter storm watches covered West Texas, the Panhandle and Eastern New Mexico by noon.

Crane, in the Midland-Odessa area, reported 4 inches of snow on the ground, and snow was reported in the Abilene and San Angelo areas.

Closer to Lubbock, Brownfield reported an inch of snow on the ground at mid-morning.

In North Texas — where seven weather-related deaths have been reported this week — sub-freezing temperatures maintained dangerous road conditions and forecasters indicated significant relief is not expected until late in the weekend. More snow was forecast for Saturday in that area.

The National Weather Service reported a 60 percent chance for snow in Lubbock this afternoon and tonight, but stated that the city may see 35 degree weather Saturday — along with a 20 percent chance for additional snow.

Afternoon temperatures were expected to climb to the upper 20s or low 30s, but the noon reading here was only 18 degrees — just four degrees above the early morning minimum.

A warming trend — to the 30s and 40s — was forecast for Sunday, and Tuesday temperatures may reach as high as 50 degrees, but low temperatures for those days are expected to fall well below the freezing mark.

Area minimum temperatures recorded during the 24-hour period ending at 8:45 a.m. today included 9 degrees at Olton; 10 at Floydada and Silverton; 11 at Crosbyton and Tulia; 12 at Spur and Dimmitt; 13 at Abilene and Post; 14 at Friona, Hereford, Jayton, Matador and Paducah; and 15 at Big Spring, Brownfield, Lamesa and Snyder.

A savage snowstorm swept the East Coast today, leaving downtowns all but deserted, airports and highways shut down and thousands stranded on back roads and major highways.

Every type of business was closed down in many states. The financial centers of New York City operated on a limited basis, with corporate headquarters and banks shut down, and stock exchange trading was trimmed to only a few hours. As much as a foot of new snow was

Carter Drops Goals For Inflation Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan for the U.S. economy mixes a $25 billion tax cut this year and an anti-inflation program pegged to voluntary restraints by business and labor on wages and prices.

Carter virtually abandoned his commitment to a balanced budget by 1981.

pledging instead to work for a balanced budget when the economy is near full strength.

He also abandoned his previously stated goal of reducing inflation to 4 percent by the end of 1978.

In his first annual economic message to Congress today, Carter said his economic package, if approved by the House and Senate, will reduce taxes by $258 for a typical family of four with $15,000 annual income, a reduction of nearly 20 percent.

(President's State Of Union Message On Page 16, Sec. C)

About 96 percent of all taxpayers will receive some reductions, he said.

Presidential aides said the tax reduction, however, would only be intended to offset increases in other taxes such as Social Security during 1977 and 1978.

The president also promised to consider additional tax reductions on a regular basis, perhaps annually, to keep the tax burden on Americans from cutting further into their income.

In announcing his economic program, Carter said it contains "my economic priorities for the years ahead and my strategies for achieving them."

It is intended, in part, to meet criticism from the business community, which has complained it did not understand Carter's economic policies.

"I have begun from the premise that our economy is basically healthy, but that well-chosen government policies will assure continued progress toward our economic goals," Carter said in the report he sent to Congress.

There was little that was new in the program that had not already been leaked by the administration to reporters. But some of the goals of the program for unemployment and inflation were changed.

A chief aim is to reduce the nation's jobless rate from the current 6.4 percent to as low as 6.1 percent by the end of this year and 5.5 percent by the end of 1979.

Carter said his economic program should ensure growth in the economy of 4.5 to 5 percent a year and a reduction in unemployment of about one-half percent each year. The economy grew by nearly 5.8 percent in 1977.

"Our problems cannot be solved overnight," Carter said. "But we can resolve them if we fix our sights on long-term objectives, adopt programs that will help us to realize our goals and remain prepared to make adjustments as basic circumstances change."

Hospital Brochure Raises Eyebrows

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"When you work on a tight deadline, you always worry about the little things that will come back to haunt you," said David Butler, community relations director for the Lubbock County Hospital District.

He should know, Butler has been harried lately with receptions, tours and other chores for the Feb. 1 opening of the county's Health Sciences Center Hospital. Among his duties: getting information pamphlets ready for patients.

One of those brochures — titled "Obstetrical pre-admissions" — may well be haunting Butler. And raising the eyebrows of mothers-to-be.

It begins innocently enough. "We are happy that you have chosen us to assist you in the birth of your baby. Our hospital provides the most modern equipment and facilities, all developed for the well-being and comfort of both mother and child."

The pamphlet then provides information on financial arrangements, what patients should bring, visiting hours and the like, and includes a pre-admissions form patients may fill out.

Except for such items as "husband participation" and baby photos, the obstetrical brochure is much like the pre-admissions pamphlets for other types of hospital patients — perhaps too much so.

An item in that third category requests: "If accident, give date, time and place."

Butler admits that tidbit, while appropriate for other kinds of patients, shouldn't apply to obstetrical cases. "Somehow it just slipped in there," he said.

Daniel Pledges War On Crime

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Price Daniel Jr. today pledged to be an attorney general who makes "openness in government" a hallmark of that office as he said he did while he was Texas Speaker of the House, and mapped a war on crime.

Daniel said that if elected the state's top lawyer, he wants not only to be in a position to carry out the "nuts and bolts" functions of the job and issue opinions that are called for, but also to:

—Fight drug traffic both at the Texas-Mexican border and inside the state's cities;

—Battle organized crime;

—Be an aggressive consumer rights protector;

—Make certain environmental laws are followed.

He promised, as has his Democratic primary opponent Mark White, to go to court against President Carter's energy package if it "seeks to intervene or to regulate or to distribute or to price our purely intrastate natural gas."

Daniel characterized himself as an enemy of federal government intervention. "I have been down that road with success in the past," he said.

He referred to a case he handled as a private attorney, challenging an attempt by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to regulate the development and sale of lots in city subdivisions.

The 36-year-old son of former governor and now Supreme Court Justice Price Daniel Sr. also agreed with another stand taken in Lubbock recently by White — tax valuation of agricultural land.

Commenting on the current movement for an improved farm financial situation, he said:

"Most of what they (farmers) desire as objectives are federal matters...but there is one thing that on the state level we can do and that is redoing the system of property taxes...."

"Valuation of agricultural land ought to be on the basis of production, rather than

Sadat Refuses To Resume Talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance today apparently failed to persuade President Anwar Sadat to quickly revive the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks. Sadat denounced Israeli "arrogance" and the "twisting" of peace efforts.

NBC News reported, meanwhile, that it learned Sadat might fly to Washington Sunday for talks with President Carter and that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin might also go to Washington.

There was no official confirmation or denial of the report here or in Washington, but U.S. diplomatic sources traveling with Vance discounted the possibility of a Sadat-Carter meeting.

Sadat told reporters after conferring with Vance that the political negotiations with Israel can be resumed only if the Israelis agree not to "tread on anyone's sovereignty" by insisting on maintaining settlements in Sinai.

Israel's position on the settlements is "a joke," he said.

Vance later left Cairo for Ankara, where he is to confer with Turkish officials about the Cyprus situation. He is to travel to Athens, Greece, later.

"The whole approach to peace is being twisted. We are losing time," Sadat said.

The Egyptian leader did not say what the next step might be, but responding to questions at a news conference, he said Egypt would study alternatives brought to him by Vance. He did not divulge any details.

Vance said, "The door for peace is not closed."

Sadat's comments reaffirmed that the gulf between the two sides that led to his suspension of the talks in Jerusalem was still wide.

At the same time, he said, there was an agreement to resume the work of an Israeli-Egyptian military committee in Cairo, but it was unclear whether this had Israel's approval.

"They want land, they want security, they want everything," Sadat said of the Israelis, "and they are not ready to understand that peace cannot be achieved without justice."

Sadat accused Begin of arrogance, his most outspoken direct criticism of the Israeli leader since Sadat visited Jerusalem two months ago and started the peace process.

"Mr. Begin in his arrogant way said in See SADAT BALKS Page 14

Consumer Index Creeps Upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose a moderate 0.4 percent in December, bringing the overall rise in prices in 1977 to 6.8 percent, the government reported today.

The inflation rate was about in line with what the Carter administration predicted for the year, and compared with a 4.8 percent price rise in 1976.

The Labor Department blamed last year's acceleration of inflation on higher food prices during the first half of the year, when severe winter weather affected crops and reduced supplies.

The administration originally projected consumer prices to rise 6.7 percent in 1977, but revised its forecast in April to 6.9 percent because of the weather's effect during the first quarter of the year.

Although inflation was higher last year than in 1976, the rate cooled during the second half. Consumer prices rose at a seasonally adjusted 4.6 percent annual rate during the final three months of 1977, compared with a 10 percent annual rate in the first quarter.

Administration economists predict inflation in 1978 will rise at about the same rate as last year, with the average family's food costs increasing 4 to 6 percent.

In his State of the Union speech Thursday night, President Carter expressed concern with the high rate of inflation and proposed a new, voluntary program to combat it through wage and price restraints. He called on government, business, labor and other groups to hold wage and price increases in each sector of the economy during 1978 below the average increases of the last two years.

The 6.8 percent inflation rate last year compares with rates of 7 percent in 1975, 12.2 percent in 1974 and 8.8 percent in 1973.

Food prices rose 8 percent last year following an increase of only 0.6 percent in 1976.

The Labor Department also reported that the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck declined 0.3 percent in December because of inflation and a drop in weekly pay.

Over the year, real spendable earnings — take-home pay after reductions for inflation and taxes — were up 3.4 percent because of a reduction in federal income taxes last June.

In December, the consumer price index stood at 186.1, meaning that it cost $186.10 to buy the same marketbasket of goods and services purchased for $100 in the 1967 base period.

Flu Epidemic Sweeps U.S.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Influenza activity has reached epidemic proportions over most of the United States, with outbreaks particularly widespread in the New England and East Coast regions, federal health officials said today.

The national Center for Disease Control said pneumonia and influenza deaths reported for the first two weeks of January from major cities of the U.S. have exceeded the so-called "epidemic threshold."

'Godfather' Of Arizona Sentenced

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ned Warren, who once proclaimed himself the "godfather" of multimillion-dollar Arizona land promotions, has been sentenced to a term of 54 to 60 years in state prison for grand theft, bribery and conspiracy.

Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson rejected a final-hour motion for a sanity hearing Thursday and ordered Warren, 64, to serve the term despite a defense attorney's contention that it would amount to a death sentence.

Warren, who underwent open-heart surgery in March 1977, admitted two months later that he misrepresented cliffside land in Yavapai County, Ariz., for sale as residential lots to overseas servicemen through a Tokyo firm known as Capital Management Systems.

He also confessed to offering $700 to a county investigator to wreck a case against him.

Warren promised to testify about organized crime and the 1975 gangland-style shooting death of associate and grand-jury witness Edward Lazar. But Deputy County Attorney Frank Murray complained last month that Warren lied and gave useless information, and Judge Thompson ordered Warren jailed Dec. 14.

Defense attorney Harry Stewart testified under oath that Warren's mental condition had deteriorated while in jail.

Warren, a purported 1950s New York confidence man and later a promoter of Florida swampland, also took the stand and told of jailhouse talks with "my father who has been dead for 16 years."

Warren's wife, Barbara, testified that he "was a different man" after the heart surgery, and began talking to nonexistent people "on a day-to-day basis."

Jail medical personnel were asked by Murray whether they had "observed Mr. Warren having a hallucination or any other encounter of the third kind." They responded that they had not, relating that Warren complained of hallucinations only a day before the sentencing.

Warren came to Arizona from Florida in 1965 and was licensed by Real Estate Commissioner J. Fred Talley shortly after Talley's son went to work for Warren. Talley died of a heart ailment during a state probe of his practice of licensing ex-convicts, and allegedly taking bribes.

Stewart said because of Warren's heart disease, "his life expectancy is three to five years. Any sentence beyond that ... is the same as a death sentence."

The defense noted that Warren faces a 12-year federal term for a 1975 extortion conviction. He also awaits trial Feb. 21 in U.S. District Court in San Diego on 23 land-fraud charges.

SPINY LOBSTER

The spiny lobster of the Florida Keys is not really a lobster. It has no claws, but it does have a rough, spiny shell and two rigid antennae. It is actually a saltwater crayfish, technically known as Panulirus argus.

Rock Musician Hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sex Pistols are going out with a bang.

Only hours after the lead singer announced the punk rock group is breaking up, the bass player was carried off an airplane on a stretcher.

Doctors said Sid Vicious — his real name is John Ritchie — was hospitalized for a drug overdose.

Johnny Rotten started the episode Wednesday night when he announced at the CBGB club in New York that he would no longer be performing with the other three members of the British band.

Then came Vicious, arriving Thursday in the first-class section of a Trans World Airlines flight from Los Angeles.

"Everybody thought he was sleeping, which he was, but when it came time to get off, he was still sleeping," an airline spokesman said.

He was rushed to Jamaica Hospital where a spokesman said: "He's young and he's healthy. All vital signs are good."

Still waiting to be heard from are the other two members of the group — Paul Cook, the drummer, and Steve Jones, the guitarist.

Young Thief Generous

NEW YORK (AP) — A 15-year-old boy drove a bakery truck through the city for about four hours, dispensing cakes, bread, donuts and other items at discount prices along the way, police said.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

There was only one problem: it was stolen.

The youth, who was not identified, spent time at a juvenile home last year for taking a joyride in a stolen Greyhound bus, police said.

Officers said he started his latest spin Thursday by jumping into the bakery truck as it sat idling on a Manhattan street.

He was charged with grand larceny and criminal possession of stolen property.

Burden Eyes Challenge

NEW YORK (AP) — Bella Abzug, who wrested the Democratic nomination for a congressional race from Carter Burden in a court fight, may have to battle Burden again in the June primary.

Burden, a former city councilman, said Thursday at a news conference that if he loses a court appeal, he will challenge Mrs. Abzug to run for a full two-year term in the seat vacated by Mayor Edward Koch.

As the wrangling stands now, Mrs. Abzug — who served three terms in Congress from 1972 to 1976 — will be the Democratic candidate in a special Valentine's Day election to fill Koch's unexpired term.

But the seat comes up for grabs again this year, and Burden indicates he will try for nomination in June.

Burden's lawyers were to file an appeal today of the court decision which gave the nomination to Mrs. Abzug.

Burden asked for a recount Thursday but the Abzug camp refused.

Police Looking For Gunman In Armed Robbery

Police today were looking for the gunman who hit an eastside service station early today in the city's latest armed robbery.

Wayman Lee Ralls, the attendant at Walt's Service Station at E. 19th Street and Quirt Avenue, said he had just finished waiting on a customer, when a young man drove into the driveway about 3 a.m.

According to the 45-year-old clerk, as the stranger entered the business he produced a chrome-plated pistol and proceeded to take all the bills and some change from the register.

After the bandit stuffed his pockets with the cash, he opened a nearby drawer and removed a .38-caliber pistol.

Ralls told police the robber left in a dark-colored car in a westward direction. In addition to the $150 gun, the take reportedly included $140 cash.

About two hours earlier, a 25-year-old Lubbock man walked up to a police patrol car at Broadway and Avenue F and said he had been robbed of $300 cash.

According to reports, however, the "victim" appeared intoxicated, and was unable to provide officers with details of the alleged incident.

Police today still were looking at the report, which stated the victim thought he was followed outside an Avenue F club by a man holding something that "looked like a gun."

Recent cold weather apparently has done little to dissuade break-in artists in the city.

Someone reportedly got through a window and stole $715 worth of goods from Julian Rios' 1922 5th St., No. 2, residence Thursday. Among the goods taken were a stereo, television and camera.

Ronnie Bryant of 6302 Elgin Ave., No. 244, said he had not used his trailer holding a cement mixer in about a week, but discovered it was missing Thursday. The property, which had been in a 34th Street alley, was valued at over $600.

Chong Seun Lotwick, complained that his 2118 10th St. home was burglarized Thursday, and $1,200 worth of goods taken. Reports indicated entry was gained by breaking a window, and police said traces of blood were found in the immediate area.

According to Maria Vasquez Serda of 1526 E. 1st Place, whoever pushed out a board nailed over a broken window at her house Thursday made off with a television and power saw.

Lubbock police, tipped-off that a group of men might be attempting to sell narcotics to truck drivers, arrested five men Thursday morning.

The officers stopped a vehicle matching the description of a car reportedly driven by the drug dealers, then received permission from the driver to search the car.

Police said they found a plastic container allegedly filled with a controlled substance beneath the front seat. The five suspects were arrested and transported to the county jail and 181 pink pills were sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory for analysis.

You might say Gerald King of 3017 68th St. was really steamed Wednesday after climbing from a steam bath he was enjoying at the Lubbock Country Club. When he arrived at home he found that $1,500 was missing from his wallet. Police arrested a suspect in connection with the incident.

A television and record player, valued together at $649, reportedly were taken from Frieda Womack's 1914 Ave. L residence sometime Wednesday.

Meanwhile, burglars entered a business at 512 E. 34th St. Wednesday or Thursday and made off with several tools, a pair of calculators and change from a soft drink machine coin box. Losses totaled nearly $210, according to David Adkisson of 4316 49th St.

Gary Lee Bilibrey of 1802 5th St. said someone broke into his pickup Thursday while it was parked near his residence and stole a rifle, a box of ammunition and caused $75 damage.

A 15-year-old Lubbock boy said he was beaten with a baseball bat and kicked several times after he intervened in a friend's dispute with some other youngsters. The attack occurred Tuesday, the victim said, near 1st Street and Avenue N. Though the youngster reportedly sustained several bruises, he did not require hospital treatment.

St. was really steamed Wednesday after climbing from a steam bath he was enjoying at the Lubbock Country Club. When he arrived at home he found that $1,500 was missing from his wallet. Police arrested a suspect in connection with the incident.

A television and record player, valued together at $649, reportedly were taken from Frieda Womack's 1914 Ave. L residence sometime Wednesday.

Meanwhile, burglars entered a business at 512 E. 34th St. Wednesday or Thursday and made off with several tools, a pair of calculators and change from a soft drink machine coin box. Losses totaled

Food Marketing Group Studies Expense Of Accepting Checks

A-J News Services

It costs a food store about 26 cents to accept a check, which is the way 75 percent of all grocery purchases are made, a new study by the Food Marketing Institute shows.

That cost presumably is considered when food prices are set, although the study did not raise that point.

The study by the food chains' trade association also showed that, contrary to estimates offered by bankers, the cost of "bad checks" is relatively low — about a nickel for every check accepted at the check-out stand.

The study was prompted by talk of introducing computerized systems in supermarkets in which consumers would pay for their purchases with a card that would transfer funds directly from their bank account to the market's.

One advantage of such a system, proponents say, would be a reduction in supermarket costs for handling checks and writing off bad ones.

Timothy M. Hammonds, FMI's research director, noted, however, that most labor costs would be the same or possibly higher with an all-cash or electronic funds transfer system.

The survey of 2,484 stores with total 1976 sales of $12 billion, or 10 percent of national supermarket sales, found that each store wrote off as totally uncollectable an average of 1.5 checks a week out of the 1,707 it accepted.

An average of 17 checks a week were returned to each store marked "insufficient funds," but, the report said, "most of the checks will be collected on subsequent redeposit."

The average uncollectable check was written for $38.52, which worked out to 3.4 cents per check accepted. The cost of trying to collect on bounced checks worked out to an additional 1.8 cents per check accepted, the study determined.

When the costs of issuing and validating check-cashing courtesy cards, wages for those handling checks, processing them and some bank fees were cranked in, the bill for accepting each check came to 25.9 cents, the study said.

"Labor costs are the major factor in the cost of check acceptance," with 68 percent of the total assigned to wages, the study said.

The stores in the sample had average weekly sales totaling $93,000, compared to the industry-wide average of $67,000. The average value of accepted checks was $40.85, but individual store averages ranged from above $100 to below $10.

The checks accepted totaled 75 percent of the sales, but the study noted that the range of the percentage ran from 9 percent of sales to 137 percent. The latter figure is possible because many supermarkets "accept checks for amounts in excess of the purchase or provide cash even when no purchase is made," the report explained.

This is the situation in most Lubbock supermarkets, said a spokesman. "In Lubbock supermarkets will send more checks to the bank than they probably sell in groceries. We probably cash a lot more payroll checks" than in other cities, he said.

Another food store chain executive whose nine stores average 125 bad checks weekly said the penalty in Texas is not as high as other states.

In some states writing bad checks is "treated as a crime," he said. "Here it's a misdemeanor which only draws a slap on the hand."

Guest speakers for the event are Mark White, candidate for attorney general, and Ignacio Cisneros, "Texas' Outstanding Man for 1977."

A reception for the featured speakers is slated at 6 p.m. Saturday in the Terrace Room of the Civic Center.

Pete Morales and his orchestra will provide entertainment at the banquet. Persons desiring more information about the reception and banquet may call Robert Lugo at 763-2933.

New officers include Esther Sepeda, president; John Cervantez, vice president; Rosemary Gonzalez, secretary; and Gonzalo Garza, treasurer.

Guest speakers for the event are Mark White, candidate for attorney general, and Ignacio Cisneros, "Texas' Outstanding Man for 1977."

RECORD REACHED

LONDON (AP) — Exports of Scotch whisky reached a record $999.6 million last year, 17 percent above 1976. "This record was achieved at a time of worldwide recession and in spite of continuing discrimination against Scotch whisky in important world markets such as the United States and leading members of the European Economic Community," the Scotch Whisky Association said.

Students Suspected Of Misusing Newspaper Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two third-year law students at Hastings College of the Law here have been fined $2,250 by the school for allegedly spending the student newspaper's funds on cigars, champagne and a trip to the Bahamas.

Dean Marvin Anderson said this week that the fines were levied after a San Francisco auditing firm questioned expenditures by the former co-editors of the paper, Larry Falk and Sid Luscutoff. No formal charges have been filed. Anderson would say only that "sanctions have been applied because we felt there was sufficient evidence to justify imposing them on the basis of a report by a faculty-student committee and on the audit that was done."

The fines were $1,500 for Luscutoff and $750 for Falk, Anderson said.

The committee report said the alleged misappropriations included:

- $181 "for the printing of engraved invitations for a party for Sen. (Samuel) Hayakawa following a political speech."
- $69.75 for cigars and tobacco.
- $56.50 for champagne for a party related to Luscutoff's candidacy for a student office.
- $1,148.87 for food.

—$55 for dinner at Trader Vic's restaurant.

—$548 for expenses Luscutoff incurred on a trip to Minnesota, Florida and the Bahamas.

Luscutoff could not be reached for comment, but Falk said, "If I did wrong, I'll make amends. But most of the allegations floating around are fallacious."

He added, "In some ways I've almost been pronounced guilty and I was never even allowed to explain."

Brothers Parlay 'Twinness' Into Advantage

By MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Matthew and Morton Kornreich have learned to live with and even enjoy twin jokes and, in fact, have parlayed their "twinness" into a business advantage.

The Kornreichs share a large and luxurious office overlooking Manhattan's Fifth Avenue with facing desks separated by a sitting area. Although they looked different in a picture seen before the interview, the twins are hard to separate in person.

"We work so closely together that one of us can start a sentence and the other finish it," said Matthew. "Our proximity helps one to fill in when the other is out — in fact clients are never sure which one of us they're talking to on the telephone."

"And it really doesn't matter, since in business matters we think of ourselves as complementary halves of a corporate whole," said Morton.

But aren't clients somewhat intimidated being confronted by two identical, high-powered Kornreichs?
"Not a bit — at least we've never found them to be," said Matthew, or was it Morton? "If a client does seem uncomfortable, the one of us who isn't talking to him suddenly has an appointment."

"Or we'll take the client to the conference room, if there's a need for privacy," said Morton.

Born on the West Side of Manhattan the Kornreich twins were inseparable until high school.

"There weren't any psychology books then on the subject, but our parents seemed to realize instinctively that we had to have separate identities," Matthew said.

"Besides, Morton had a lot of talent for art and I didn't. He went to High School of Music and Art and I went to DeWitt Clinton high school."

They joined again at the University of Pennsylvania, but again, Morton majored in English and Matthew in insurance. They were also together "most of the time" in the army.

"I always planned to go into the insurance business with our father (Saul Kornreich, who died in 1971), but Morton tried his hand at advertising before joining us," Matthew said.

The Kornreich brothers are insurance brokers, which means they are not affiliated with one company, but handle virtually all types of insurance through different firms.

Students Ask State To Recognize Bee

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — Third- and fourth-graders at Barnard Elementary School in Woodstock recently asked the state legislature to pass a bill making the honeybee the official state insect.

The House General Committee responded by holding a public hearing Tuesday, then unanimously endorsing the bill.

With television cameras whirring, a half dozen students from the school testified the honeybee is worthy of special recognition because it provides food, pollinates plants, makes honey. Besides, they argued, other states have official insects.

Rep. Michael Smith, R-Woodstock, urged his colleagues to give the bill serious consideration. "It's not a big bill," he said, "but they are sincere."

"It turned out that Morton had been in a few hours earlier and bought the identical coat."

The Kornreichs, though "one corporate entity" in business, separate when they leave the office. Morton lives in New York's Westchester County with his wife and their three children.

Matthew, married with two children, commutes to Connecticut. His daughter, Kathy, has joined the firm, and she is a member of the "million dollar club," meaning she wrote more than that amount in insurance in one year.

The Kornreichs share a golfing hobby, where on occasion one has finished a round for the other, "and still lost," they said.

The Kornreichs say they had never had serious disagreements, either in business or in their personal lives.

"It would have been impossible for us to work together for so long, so successfully if there had been," they agreed.

Author Says TV Changes Life

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — What does America do? It watches television. That's the dismaying definition of our country supplied by Jeff Greenfield, who has switched from active politics to the country's main spectator sport — television.

"At first it occurred to me as a humorous view of America — watching television," Greenfield said in an interview. "Then it became bothersome. I don't think anything else applies as universally to America."

"Work? No, because kids don't work, old people don't work, the unemployed don't work, homemakers may work, but they don't go to work."

Greenfield has written the text for an enormous coffee table book with 516 illustrations — "Television, The First Fifty Years," published by Abrams, a publishing house best known for its beautiful art volumes.

The book differs from most coffee table tomes — as Greenfield is quick and correct in pointing out — because the pictures were chosen to illustrate the text, not vice versa.

One major theme of the text is the pervasiveness of television in America, and how it has changed the nation's way of life.

"Television is so pervasive because it combines so many things that used to be separate," Greenfield said. "That's why people react to it so intensely, like the people who think the whole medium is intrinsically evil."

"But there is nothing on television so violent, not to say gory, as the comic books I used to read as a kid in which people were regularly dismembered by ghouls.

"Then there is the fiction of the 1930s and '40s, commercial fiction that television has taken over. It was just as sappy and silly. Or the cowboy movies on Saturday — they were just as dumb, manipulative and silly as the television Western."

"It was all scattered, but now the fiction magazine, the Saturday morning movie, the comic books, the cowboy, the radio news — all those forms are contained in one medium."

"My own notion is that television is a little bit like money — it reveals character. People who are generally okay can come into money and they aren't going to go crazy. People who are fundamentally materialistic and crazy for possessions will buy the biggest car, the fanciest jewelry."

"If you have character you will go out with your wife, talk to your friends, play with your children. But it is very easy to do none of those things and just turn the box on."

Greenfield makes an exception in his general refusal to view television with alarm — children's shows, and specifically the commercials that sponsor them, mostly for "toys that don't work the way they say or food products, every one of which has sugar in it."

"In that specific regard, all the alarm is justified. If kids ate the diet advertised on television they would have no teeth by age 5 and probably diabetes by 10."

This professional television watcher contends the medium has drastically changed our habits — from getting us to bed later to altering patterns of entertainment in cities and practically killing off the night club. But the biggest changes he cites have occurred in politics.

"Television has changed our politics immeasurably," he said. "It has transformed the way we look at political people and what we expect of them. It has changed our participation in the political process."

"Television already is covering the 1980 election, discussing Jerry Brown and Jerry Ford and President Carter, and things haven't even really started to pick up yet. Politics has become a growth industry in New Hampshire because of the heavy coverage of its early presidential primary."

"Television covers the Super Bowl the same way it covers presidential elections and people are beginning to look at national politics as a spectator sport. They can't play in politics any more than they can play in the Super Bowl. They, at home with their one individual vote, are very removed from Ronald Reagan, or Ford, or Morris Udall."

"The disparity in power is too enormous, particularly since television has removed much of the need for the politician making close alliances on the state and local levels with district leaders who are in touch with the voters."

He added that television also concentrates on giving the viewers a phony personal view of politicians — Jerry Ford making an English muffin in the White House or Jimmy Carter carrying his own suit bag.

"We think we know our politicians as people better than ever before," Greenfield said, "but at the same time we know it's no more real than our knowledge of guests on the Johnny Carson show."

"We get so involved in who they are, we forget to ask what they are going to do."

New Season Uncertain For Comedy

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Will "All in the Family" be back next fall? The answers are (a) maybe, (b) maybe not, (c) perhaps with half the cast and a new title, and (d) perhaps as a frequent special.

CBS programs chief Robert Daly says: "We have an option on the show for another year and we're trying to convince the talent to stay." A spokesman said Daly means the entire cast.

But producer Norman Lear, whose hit series began on Jan. 12, 1971, says in a carefully qualified answer the "Family" as we know it is fini because two of its four stars are leaving.

He says Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers are committed to other projects next season. Reiner for ABC and Miss Struthers for CBS.

"And 'All in the Family' to me is that group, that set, that music, that title ... we are looking at the last season of all that, and the concluding shows will wrap up all of that," he adds.

CBS, he said, would like to do a half-family series next fall with the two other "Family" regulars, Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton, and call it either "Archie and Edith" or "The Bunkers."

But Miss Stapleton isn't signed for either "and I'm not sure Carroll is, although he's indicated interest," Lear said.

"It could happen. I don't know. If the network can't get that, it would like to see six, eight, maybe 10 specials with all four 'Family' stars. That could happen if the other doesn't."

"But the show, 'All in the Family,' with everything it's come to mean, well, we're watching its concluding season now."

What about Daly's statement that CBS is trying to convince all the "Family" talent to stick around for a ninth season?

"Well, all that's true," Lear said. "And as part of that talent, I'm just telling you how I see it."

Critics Claim Cohesion Lacking In Carter Plan

By JOHN CUNIFF
WASHINGTON (AP) — By Monday evening, when the American public has heard the various economic messages of President Carter, they will be able to see the warp and woof, said Walter Heller.

Analysis

lot of loose threads but little discernable pattern in the past year. Heller, an adviser to the Council of Economic Advisers and former chairman of that group under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, uses such words as cohesion, coherence, cooperation and coordination. All these, the business community sometimes argue, have been missing or at least difficult to discern. As a consequence, confidence in the Carter economic program has been noticeably lacking. Therefore the effort, said Heller Thursday evening, just before the round of economic messages began, will show "Not just the substance of policy but how it hangs together." The warp and woof, that is.

Relations between the Fed and the White House will be more like they were in the Kennedy administration, said Heller, who then was chief economic adviser to the White House. "We had our say and he (William McChesney Martin, Fed chairman) had his. Nobody gave up independence but we had reasonably well balanced policies, without shots being fired across the other's bow." It was not quite that way with Burns and Carter. The President, intent on a growth economy, seemed to irritate the chairman, whose greatest economic fear has always been inflation. Even if better cooperation and coordination of policies results, there is still a question of how much business support the President can muster. A survey by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce suggests that Carter's problem is not solely one of programs but of understanding. Many businessmen feel he simply does not understand them. Large exporters especially are likely to remain angered by the president's insistence on revocation of tax deferrals for goods shipped abroad, on the continuance of double taxation of dividends, and on the goal of limiting tax deductions for business lunches. The extent of the business community's suspicions is indicated by the continued belief of many that the president eventually will revert to wage-price controls in an effort to restrain inflation. To them, controls are anathema. And, says Heller, they are to the administration too. "He's dead set against them," he said, and so, he said, are all his top advisers. Nevertheless, a more active role is planned by the president in keeping the wage-price spiral from gaining momentum. "A very gentle attempt," said Heller.

Perhaps the most acceptable aspect of the Carter program, so far as business is concerned, is the prospect of a tax cut, in part to offset higher energy taxes and Social Security payments, but also with some incentives to expansion.

Armored Car Business Booms Due To Terrorism Increase

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — An old woolen mill in the placid Berkshire Mountains has a new type of customer these days: oil-rich Arabs, South African industrialists, Argentine business executives — anyone afraid of a terrorist attack on their automobile. The mill is the home of Armored Vehicle Builders Inc., a three-year-old firm. Company president Michael Dan says he can turn a modest Toyota into a fortress able to survive machine-gun fire. And business is booming. "We can't keep up with demand," said the 27-year-old Dan, a former race car driver. "If you ordered a car today, you'd have to wait eight months" to receive it. With 60 employees, Dan says Armored Builders will armor at least 300 private cars and 425 vans this year, doubling last year's production. Some vans are ordered by security firms, some by individuals. What will people pay for this security? One Arab paid $175,000 for a fortified Lincoln Continental, Dan said, but the average price for an armored four-door sedan is roughly $30,000, including the new car. Declining to discuss private armored auto sales, Dan said 1977 commercial sales topped $3 million. Dan said the company has a variety of sophisticated anti-terrorist weapons it can build into cars, but declined to discuss most of them. Some of the cars and vans, he said, carry automatic tear gas sprayers, activated by a button, to overcome attackers surrounding the vehicle. In designing the armor for cars, Dan said he attempts to leave the outside of the vehicle unchanged so terrorists will not realize what they are facing and intensify their attack in response. The firm uses fiberglass-reinforced plastic, lightweight steel plates and special plastic windows.

"When we started, everyone laughed at us," he said. "Who ever heard of a plastic armored truck?" But the vehicles are "three times as safe when they are shot at" and cost half as much to maintain, he said.

controls certain early-season insects and

LASTING PROTECTION
Di-Syston systemic seed treatment insecticide protects your cotton against thrips, aphids and mites. Control starts the instant the seedlings break through the soil and lasts through the 4 to 6 leaf stage.

ECONOMICAL
Cottonseed treated with Di-Syston provides low-cost insect protection. You save time and labor by eliminating a costly first cover spray, and expensive, time-consuming replants are reduced or eliminated.

PROTECTS STANDS
With healthy, fast-growing seedlings, more plants make it through the cool, wet growing conditions of early spring. You get thicker, more uniform plants that get more bolts, grow and mature uniformly, and are easier to pick.

WILL NOT DESTROY BENEFICIALS
Inside the seedling, Di-Syston protects plants against harmful insects, but does not wipe out beneficial insect populations. It allows beneficials to multiply for important policing of bollworm populations later in the season.

COMPATIBLE
Seed treated with Di-Syston is compatible with fungicides you need to combat seed-borne and soil-borne diseases. And it is proven to be compatible with most pre-emergence cotton herbicides now in use.

Grape Growers Open Meeting In Lubbock Today

Commercial and home grape growers will gather here today and Saturday for the annual meeting of the Texas Grape Growers Association.

The meeting will be at the South Park Inn. It will be conducted by the Texas Grape Growers Association, Texas Tech University, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University.

Registration will start at 10 a.m. today. The $15 registration fee includes a luncheon Saturday and membership in the association. Dr. George McEachern, extension horticulturist at Texas A&M and grape association secretary, said.

Two internationally-known grape breeders will speak. Tours of a research vineyard, a research laboratory and a commercial winery here also will highlight the two-day educational program.

The second annual Texas Grape Day will be observed Saturday to call attention to the increasing importance of grapes as a commercial crop in the state.

Speakers will be Dr. Jim Moore, grape breeder and instructor of horticulture at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, and Philip M. Wagner of Rider-wood, Md., a pioneer in commercial grape production east of the Rocky Mountains.

Moore has developed new varieties that are performing extremely well in Texas, said McEachern. Moore spent a year evaluating European grapes for potential in the United States and has developed high quality table and wine grapes, some with clusters weighing 10 pound each.

Wagner operates a commercial vineyard and winery. He has experimented and selected more than 40 French-American hybrid varieties of grapes for use east of the Rockies. The grape breeder has had 32 consecutive wine vintages at his winery and sells 150,000 vines annually from his commercial grape nursery.

At 12:30 p.m. today, participants will leave the inn for a tour of the Texas A&M University research vineyard. Dr. William Lipe, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, will be in charge.

The group will visit the chemistry department at Texas Tech at 4:30 p.m. Dr. Roy Mitchell will explain the research on wines made from several varieties of High Plains grapes.

At 8 p.m., the group will tour the Llano Estacado Winery where they will taste the four wines commercially produced and bottled there.

Saturday's program will start at 9 a.m. and will feature presentations by Moore on grape breeding in Arkansas and by Wagner on his selection of French-American hybrids and "The New Viticulture."

Vineyard owner Ed Auler of Llano, association president, also will talk. Mitchell will review wine research at Texas Tech, and Lipe will report on the production and quality of High Plains grapes.

Grape propagation techniques will be discussed by Ron Perry, horticulturist at Texas A&M in College Station. Pruning vinifera grapes will be discussed by Dr. Mike Kilby, extension area horticulturist at El Paso.

McEachern will report on grape demonstration programs conducted in the state.

The association will conclude the annual meeting with a business session.

Bergland Calls Farm Strike Public Relations Success

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says the call for a farmers' strike by a group known as American Agriculture has been "a spectacular success" from a public relations standpoint.

Bergland told reporters before a speech in Spokane Wednesday night, that he will meet next week with members of the Denver-based farmers' group in Washington to discuss their demands.

"We often take (farmers) for granted," he said. "Some of my friends from Chicago and Los Angeles don't see why we need farmers as long as we have supermarkets."

But Bergland said that he does not intend to recommend any changes in the 1977 farm bill until the measure has been tested for one year and that if striking farmers carry out threats not to plant, harvest or sell their crops, "they'll all go down the drain" financially.

In his speech to about 1,000 persons at the Pacific Northwest Farm Forum Banquet, Bergland said bad weather is the one thing that could drive him out of office.

"Agriculture is influenced more by the weather than all of government policies laid end to end," Bergland said. "Weather confounds most of us and may be the one factor that drives me from office."

"The world has produced two record-breaking crops of grain back-to-back.

When production is high, prices go down.

"I believe government intervention is necessary. We don't know what the weather will be like anywhere next year," he said.

He also said economic and agricultural conditions probably will improve gradually.

"I think the disaster loan program we have now is a disaster," Bergland said. He said he plans to submit to Congress an all-risk crop insurance program that would be offered to farmers on an optional basis.

Cotton Dust Problems Slated For Discussion

HOUSTON (Special) — Cotton dust and labor legislation will be key topics at a special current events seminar here Feb. 5 in conjunction with the National Cotton Council's annual meeting.

The seminar will begin at 1 p.m. in the Hyatt Regency's Ballroom III.

Lead-off discussions will focus on the extension research currently under way to find solutions to problems related to cotton dust, with special emphasis on efforts to identify the causative agent of byssinosis — a respiratory ailment associated with the dust.

Participating in the discussion will be representatives of government agencies involved in the research effort, along with staff members from Cotton Inc. and the council.

A review of major labor legislation pending before Congress will round out the seminar. Participants will include John Datt, director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office, and Warren Richardson, Committee for Individual's Employment Rights, also in Washington.

The seminar will be concluded with a question and answer period.

General sessions of the council's industry-wide meeting are scheduled Feb. 6-7 at the Hyatt Regency.

Research activities at The Museum of Texas Tech University are centered in the areas of anthropology, biology, geosciences and history.

Bell Summons Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Marston, fighting his removal as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, headed for Washington today for talks with Attorney General Griffin Bell that may decide how long Marston stays in his job.

Bell summoned Marston and the U.S. attorney's four top assistants to Washington to discuss the Carter administration's plans to fire the Republican prosecutor.

But Marston was reported having difficulty reaching Washington because of a major snowstorm and a train derailment.

The scheduled meeting comes on the heels of new confirmation Thursday that Marston's office is investigating the law office of Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., the congressman who urged President Carter to replace Marston.

The matter sparked a growing controversy after Carter disclosed last week that, at Eilberg's urging in November, he had asked Bell to speed up Marston's ouster. Bell later said he already had intended to replace him, and the administration has denied knowledge of any investigation of Eilberg until this week.

It was learned Thursday that there has been some sentiment in the Justice Department to keep Marston in his job in hopes of rescuing the administration from further embarrassment.

At least one high-ranking department official has said privately that Bell may be better off settling his differences with Marston.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, described Marston as inexperienced in trial work and insubordinate for challenging Bell and Carter publicly.

But the official, in outlining a rationale for keeping Marston in the post, said Bell might decide it is "in the best interest of criminal justice" to retain him.

Other administration officials suggested that the 35-year-old U.S. attorney, who has 2½ years remaining in his four-year term, might be allowed to stay on until pending investigations are completed.

Marston's first assistant, Kirk Karaszewicz, said that Bell's deputy, Michael Egan, called Marston Thursday and said the attorney general wanted to meet with him.

"Nothing else was said," Karaszewicz related. The five men were scheduled to take a train to the capital and meet with Bell.

on market value."

In many parts of the state, taxes make the difference between a profit and a loss for farmers, Daniel said.

"In particularly dire straits, he continued, is the agricultural man who owns land in a metropolitan area where it may be hit by city, county, school, hospital district, state and other taxes — perhaps based on the subdivision worth of the property.

"It renders that land impossible to survive for grazing cattle or growing crops," he said.

Daniel noted that before Christmas, polls and political analysts were forecasting his victory over White in May. "That's causing me a great deal of concern, because that's a good way to for campaigns to be lost — getting complacent."

He discounted White's continuing theme that his position in the polls is based on voter confusion — people seeing the name and thinking immediately of his famous father.

"The polls ask clearly, 'Do you know Price Daniel Jr.?'

"I have name recognition of my own from three times in the House, from a term as Speaker of the House and as president of the Texas Constitutional Convention (in 1974)," Daniel stated.

"I'm proud of my father's name and record and contributions to this state...but my race is based on my record and what I've done."

On the Equal Rights Amendment — an issue that appears more volatile in West Texas than other parts of the state — Daniel pointed out he voted for the ERA as a legislator and still supports it.

"I'm a strong advocate for equal rights of all citizens of this country. I have a strong record on all minorities. I was the first speaker to give women, Republicans, blacks, Mexican-Americans a chance in the House."

"I took the attitude, 'Every representative represents about 75,000 people. Why should those 75,000 people be denied representation just because their representative was a black or a woman or a Mexican-American?'"

Daniel said he doesn't think the ERA will present itself as a legal question for him if he becomes attorney general. Possible rescission of Texas' ratification "is a federal matter and I wouldn't have to address that," he said.

the Knesset (parliament) that he does not need recognition of anyone here," Sadat said. "Very well, let us not start commenting on this because it is still the old arrogant way, and today or tomorrow he will see that Israel will not gain by it at all."

Sadat is scheduled to make a major address to the Egyptian People's Assembly Saturday in which he will explain his view of what went on in Jerusalem and probably define his future course of action.

"Peace, everyone in the whole world knows that no one will tread on the land or the sovereignty of the other," Sadat declared.

He spoke to reporters on the lawn of his Nile-side retreat 15 miles north of Cairo, where Vance was helicoptered for talks after his arrival from Jerusalem.

American officials had said that even if Vance failed to repair the current rupture, the peace process will continue, possibly with another mission by the secretary of state after a cooling-off period.

Vance is appealing to Sadat and Begin to call off the public war of words and resume the private negotiations between their foreign ministers which Sadat suspended Wednesday.

Begin, after a meeting with Vance Thursday, told a joint news conference he was prepared to "refrain from public statements, of course on the basis of reciprocity." He said Israel is ready to reopen the peace talks, but the next move is "up to Egypt."

One U.S. official said the talk between Vance and Begin was "extremely straightforward." He said Vance was taking to Sadat "a very full sense of the state of play on the Israeli side."

Jet Hijacked In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A masked man hijacked a domestic airliner with 42 persons aboard today, demanding money for cancer treatment and safe passage to India, officials reported. The plane landed at Karachi airport and at least 19 persons were allowed to disembark.

Radio Pakistan reported that Nuk Khan, chairman of Pakistan International Airlines, was negotiating for the release of the remaining hostages. Officials said the hijacker, apparently a Pakistani, was armed with a pistol.

He reportedly allowed the pilot to land the PIA twin-engine Fokker 27 turboprop here for refueling.

Khan offered himself as a hostage in exchange for release of those still on board but the hijacker refused, officials said.

The hijacker allowed a PIA catering staff to take food and water onto the aircraft, officials said.

Officials said the hijacker sent a message to authorities in Urdu, the Pakistani national language, saying he had no political motives and that he was not a terrorist. They said he told them he had cancer and needed money for medical treatment.

Radio Pakistan said he was demanding about $2 million.

Officials said that among those freed were all the women on the plane, two children and a Japanese national. The radio report said the plane had been carrying a total of 42 persons, including the hijacker and six crew members.

Hadi Abdul Ghani, 68, one of those released, said the hijacker burst into the cockpit shortly after takeoff, argued briefly with the captain and then re-entered the passenger cabin, holding a revolver and warning passengers not to move.

Ghani said the hijacker appeared to be a Pakistani about 30 years old.

"He is wearing Pakistani dress, baggy trousers and long shirt," Ghani said. "He was speaking Urdu."

Radio Pakistan said the plane was commandeered shortly after it left Sukkur in central Pakistan on a 300-mile flight to Karachi at 9:45 a.m. today (11:45 p.m. EST Thursday).

Khan told reporters the masked man ordered the pilot to fly to India. When the pilot told him the plane did not have enough fuel to reach India, the hijacker allowed him to land at Karachi to refuel, Khan said.

Jet Hijacked In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A masked man hijacked a domestic airliner with 42 persons aboard today, demanding money for cancer treatment and safe passage to India, officials reported. The plane landed at Karachi airport and at least 19 persons were allowed to disembark.

Radio Pakistan reported that Nuk Khan, chairman of Pakistan International Airlines, was negotiating for the release of the remaining hostages. Officials said the hijacker, apparently a Pakistani, was armed with a pistol.

He reportedly allowed the pilot to land the PIA twin-engine Fokker 27 turboprop here for refueling.

Khan offered himself as a hostage in exchange for release of those still on board but the hijacker refused, officials said.

The hijacker allowed a PIA catering staff to take food and water onto the aircraft, officials said.

Officials said the hijacker sent a message to authorities in Urdu, the Pakistani national language, saying he had no political motives and that he was not a terrorist. They said he told them he had cancer and needed money for medical treatment.

program will be his effort to get labor unions and business leaders to accept smaller increases in wages and prices in order to reduce inflation by one-half percent a year.

Carter's chief economic spokesman, Charles L. Schultze, acknowledged to reporters that the initial reaction of business and labor ranged from "wary acceptance to a little bit of grumbling." But if successful, he said, inflation could be reduced to 4 percent by 1981.

Carter said success of the inflation program will depend on major firms and unions consulting with the government in advance on steps that can be taken to slow the wage and price spiral in individual industries.

"This program is based on the initial presumption that prices and wages in each industry should rise significantly less in 1978 than they did on the average during the past two years," Schultze said.

Carter said he rejects the idea that inflation can be reduced only through slow-growth policies that keep unemployment high. But he also said that unless inflation is controlled, "the prospects for regaining a fully employed economy will be seriously reduced."

The president said there will be continued emphasis on reducing the inflationary contributions of government regulations and programs, and announced establishment of a high-level interagency

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: In what kind of a mansion are Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, living? In "Julia," the story of playwright Lillian Hellman's life in the '30s, actress Fonda proves she's still one of the most beautiful actresses on the screen. What kind of a future do you predict for her? — Sidney T., Tulsa, Okla.

A: It wouldn't surprise us at all, after the controversial life she's led since the Vietnam war, if one day the story of Jane Fonda won't make a better film than any in which she's ever appeared. As to the Haydens' way of life, Time reports they live simply in a $40,000 house in Santa Monica with their son, Troy, 4, and Vanessa Vadim, 10, her daughter by French director Roger Vadim. "I was living in France in the world of Roger Vadim," she recalls, "with my blond hair and falsies...I became angry reading about the war because I felt betrayed. I felt I wanted to be with the people who were doing something about the war...My marriage was also falling apart...I got on the phone to Sam Brown, who is now head of the Peace Corps but who was head of the Vietnam moratoriums. And I said: 'My name is Jane Fonda. What can I do?'" No phony, Jane looks upon women's liberation in the same light as Vietnam. "I think," she's said, "if you just kept the current structure and put women in it, the problems would still exist."

Q: What did a talkshow guest mean when he said Gypsy Rose Lee did the first "sit-down striptease in show business"? Was she on strike or something? — P. J., Lansing, Mich.

A: Nothing to do with a strike — Gypsy always made a hit. Once, on tour with Fanny Brice and Bobby Clark in the Shubert version of the Ziegfeld Follies, the trouper tripped and tore some ligaments. However, in the tradition of showbiz, Gypsy rose to the occasion. Hobbling onstage she rested her crutches against a bench, then did her regular striptease routine, stopping the show sitting down.

Q: What is the derivation of the name "White House"? — H. C., Norfolk, Va.

A: The name of "The President's House" or "The President's Palace," as it was generally referred to before it was burned in the War of 1812 and rebuilt in 1817, came from the fact that white paint was used to obliterate scars of the fire. The name "White House" became official in 1902. It was originally designed by Irish-born architect James Hoban on a site selected by French engineer Maj. Pierre L'Enfant. The cornerstone was laid in 1792. First occupied by John Adams in 1800.

Q: Isn't it true that although bacteria can be readily cultured from paper money, it rarely is the source of significant illness? — Roger E. Heering, Columbus, Ohio.

A: "Paper or metal money may indeed be contaminated with microorganisms that might cause human disease; however, I have never seen documentation in modern medical or scientific literature that contaminated money has been responsible for spread of human disease," says G. F. Mallison of HEW's bacterial diseases division. "Microbial contamination on any surface, including money, dies away rather rapidly. I am certain that money is rarely contaminated with enough pathogenic microorganisms to cause disease, even if the money were ingested."

Q: Some weeks ago I heard Bea Arthur of "Maude" say that she was from the eastern shore of Maryland. Since I am originally from Salisbury, Md., I'm curious. Where was she raised? — Mrs. Julia A. Spencer, Richmond, Va.

A: Beatrice Arthur was born in New York City but grew up in Cambridge, Md., where she attended Cambridge High School. In private life she was the wife of Gene Saks, a noted stage and movie actor-director. They have two sons, Matthew and Daniel, both teen-agers. They live in Pacific Palisades, Calif., where Miss Arthur devotes whatever time she can spare to the organization called "Actors and Others for Animals."

Q: Whatever hapened to Dianne deLeeuw, the 20-year-old beauty from Paramount, Calif., who won many skating trophies including an Olympic medal competing as a member of the Dutch team at Innsbruck? And has she got dual citizenship? — Mrs. Howard Jaffe, Brooklyn.

A: Yes, Dianne, who spent 16 of her 20 years skating on thin ice, does have dual citizenship since her parents are Holland-born. The world champion skater of 1975 has now gone pro as star of the Holiday on Ice Extravaganza of 1977. Since her earlier triumphs, the 5-8 star has visited many countries and has a hobby: "I love going into strange stores and finding out what the people in different countries buy," she says. "It's something like being an anthropologist — you can tell so much about a country's culture by what you find in the stores."

Q: Weren't both Irving Berlin and Al Jolson once song-pluggers? — S. Walsh, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: Yes, Jolie, snatched from a synagogue choir, got his showbiz start as a singing stooge in vaudeville, receiving meager pay from song publishers to introduce and popularize their new songs in theaters, dance halls, at benefits, etc. In the same early 1900s, Irving Berlin plugged songs at Tony Pastor's Music Hall as part of an act billed as "The Three Keatons." Youngest was Buster Keaton, who became one of the most famous comedians of silent pictures.

Zenith said this week it's Swiss-based watch operation, Zenith Time S.A., has not been profitable since Zenith acquired it in 1971. It said sale discussions have been under way with unidentified Swiss interests.

SEATTLE (AP) — A 26-member trade mission has arrived here from Taiwan to drum up export markets for Taiwanese products and buy an estimated $250 million worth of American grains and production equipment. Zenith's worldwide watch sales are estimated at $1.6 million a year under two brands, Movado and Zenith. Zenith Time has a marketing and service office in New York with about 50 employees, a spokesman said. Zenith recently announced a massive cutback of U.S. manufacturing operations, saying that by the end of this year it will lay off 5,000 employees.

Bell Summons Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Marston, fighting his removal as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, headed for Washington today for talks with Attorney General Griffin Bell that may decide how long Marston stays in his job.

Bell summoned Marston and the U.S. attorney's four top assistants to Washington to discuss the Carter administration's plans to fire the Republican prosecutor.

But Marston was reported having difficulty reaching Washington because of a major snowstorm and a train derailment.

The scheduled meeting comes on the heels of new confirmation Thursday that Marston's office is investigating the law office of Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., the congressman who urged President Carter to replace Marston.

The matter sparked a growing controversy after Carter disclosed last week that, at Eilberg's urging in November, he had asked Bell to speed up Marston's ouster. Bell later said he already had intended to replace him, and the administration has denied knowledge of any investigation of Eilberg until this week.

It was learned Thursday that there has been some sentiment in the Justice Department to keep Marston in his job in hopes of rescuing the administration from further embarrassment.

At least one high-ranking department official has said privately that Bell may be better off settling his differences with Marston.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, described Marston as inexperienced in trial work and insubordinate for challenging Bell and Carter publicly.

But the official, in outlining a rationale for keeping Marston in the post, said Bell might decide it is "in the best interest of criminal justice" to retain him.

Other administration officials suggested that the 35-year-old U.S. attorney, who has 2½ years remaining in his four-year term, might be allowed to stay on until pending investigations are completed.

Marston's first assistant, Kirk Karaszkiwicz, said that Bell's deputy, Michael Egan, called Marston Thursday and said the attorney general wanted to meet with him.

"Nothing else was said," Karaszkiwicz related. The five men were scheduled to take a train to the capital and meet with Bell.

Karaszkiwicz said Egan did not explain the purpose of the meeting.

Of the four assistants accompanying Marston to Washington, only Karaszkiwicz was appointed by Marston. The others, all holdovers from previous U.S. attorneys, are Gilbert Scutti, chief of the criminal division; Alan Lieberman, chief of the public corruption prosecution division, and Robert DeLuca, chief of the civil division.

Marvin Wall, a spokesman for Bell, declined to elaborate on the purpose of the meeting. "They'll have to discuss the whole situation," said Wall. "I guess he (Bell) wants the top people (in Marston's office) to tell him what the situation is."

Meanwhile, Pennsylvania Sen. John H. Heinz, a Republican, handed Bell a letter Thursday in which Heinz threatened that if Marston is replaced, "I would have to give the most serious consideration to using all the powers and prerogatives of my office to oppose the appointment of his successor unless it could be clearly shown that your decision is based on a fair analysis" of Marston's performance.

The Senate must approve presidential appointments of U.S. attorneys, and reliable sources said the Senate Judiciary Committee would block any replacement for Marston that was opposed by Heinz or Pennsylvania's other Republican senator, Richard Schweiker.

Earlier Thursday, Eilberg's administrative assistant, Eugene Zack, confirmed reports that Marston's office had subpoenaed the records of Eilberg's law office on Dec. 16.

Zack also disclosed that Eilberg has hired prominent Philadelphia criminal lawyer John Rogers Carroll to represent him.

Eilberg refused a reporter's request for an interview Thursday. But his assistant, Zack, said the congressman denies all wrongdoing.

Eilberg "feels the (media) reports (of the investigation) are to say the least contradictory," Zack said. "He feels he has done nothing wrong and if such an investigation is taking place, it will completely exonerate him."

The investigation reportedly concerns a $65 million addition to Hahnemann Hospital in Philadelphia and what role, if any, Eilberg had in securing government financing for the project.

Marston's office also is investigating a second Democratic congressman from Pennsylvania, Daniel J. Flood, according to sources in Washington and Philadelphia.

Bell was reluctant to discuss the case Thursday. At a White House news briefing called to announce that federal appeals court Judge William H. Webster was being named to head the FBI, Bell was asked why he chose Webster, a Republican, for the FBI spot but was trying to fire a Republican in Philadelphia. He replied, "I would say I made up the list (for FBI director) without regard to political party. I was looking for the best person I could find."

There also was renewed concern about the matter in Congress.

Rep. Thomas B. Evans, R-Del., introduced a resolution with 24 co-sponsors urging Carter to keep Marston on until pending investigations are completed.

And Rep. Alan Ertel, D-Pa., asked Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., chairman of a judiciary subcommittee to hold hearings to determine "whether there is a basis in fact for what some regard as the appearance of obstruction of justice in the attempt to replace Marston."

on market value."

In many parts of the state, taxes make the difference between a profit and a loss for farmers, Daniel said.

In particularly dire straits, he continued, is the agricultural man who owns land in a metropolitan area where it may be hit by city, county, school, hospital district, state and other taxes — perhaps based on the subdivision worth of the property.

"It renders that land impossible to survive for grazing cattle or growing crops," he said.

Daniel noted that before Christmas, polls and political analysts were forecasting his victory over White in May. "That's causing me a great deal of concern, because that's a good way to for campaigns to be lost — getting complacent."

He discounted White's continuing theme that his position in the polls is based on voter confusion — people seeing the name and thinking immediately of his famous father.

"The polls ask clearly, 'Do you know Price Daniel Jr.?'

"I have name recognition of my own from three times in the House, from a term as Speaker of the House and as president of the Texas Constitutional Convention (in 1974)," Daniel stated.

"I'm proud of my father's name and record and contributions to this state, but my race is based on my record and what I've done."

On the Equal Rights Amendment — an issue that appears more volatile in West Texas than other parts of the state — Daniel pointed out he voted for the ERA as a legislator and still supports it.

"I'm a strong advocate for equal rights of all citizens of this country. I have a strong record on all minorities. I was the first speaker to give women, Republicans, blacks, Mexican-Americans a chance in the House."

"I took the attitude, 'Every representative represents about 75,000 people. Why should those 75,000 people be denied representation just because their representative was a black or a woman or a Mexican-American?'"

Daniel said he doesn't think the ERA will present itself as a legal question for him if he becomes attorney general. Possible rescission of Texas' ratification "is a federal matter and I wouldn't have to address that," he said.

Jet Hijacked In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP). — A masked man hijacked a domestic airliner with 42 persons aboard today, demanding money for cancer treatment and safe passage to India, officials reported. The plane landed at Karachi airport and at least 19 persons were allowed to disembark.

Radio Pakistan reported that Nuk Khan, chairman of Pakistan International Airlines, was negotiating for the release of the remaining hostages. Officials said the hijacker, apparently a Pakistani, was armed with a pistol.

He reportedly allowed the pilot to land the PIA twin-engine Fokker 27 turboprop here for refueling.

Khan offered himself as a hostage in exchange for release of those still on board but the hijacker refused, officials said.

The hijacker allowed a PIA catering staff to take food and water onto the aircraft, officials said.

Officials said the hijacker sent a message to authorities in Urdu, the Pakistani national language, saying he had no political motives and that he was not a terrorist. They said he told them he had cancer and needed money for medical treatment.

Radio Pakistan said he was demanding about $2 million.

Officials said that among those freed were all the women on the plane, two children and a Japanese national. The radio report said the plane had been carrying a total of 42 persons, including the hijacker and six crew members.

Hadi Abdul Ghani, 68, one of those released, said the hijacker burst into the cockpit shortly after takeoff, argued briefly with the captain and then reentered the passenger cabin, holding a revolver and warning passengers not to move.

Ghani said the hijacker appeared to be a Pakistani about 30 years old.

"He is wearing Pakistani dress, baggy trousers and long shirt," Ghani said. "He was speaking only Urdu."

Radio Pakistan said the plane was commandeered shortly after it left Sukkur in central Pakistan on a 300-mile flight to Karachi at 9:45 a.m. today (11:45 p.m. EST Thursday).

Khan told reporters the masked man ordered the pilot to fly to India. When the pilot told him the plane did not have enough fuel to reach India, the hijacker allowed him to land at Karachi to refuel, Khan said.

Carter said there would be net tax reductions for individuals of $17 billion. If Congress approves, they would take effect on Oct. 1.

He said individuals would also benefit from $2 billion in reductions in the federal excise tax on telephone bills and the federal payroll tax for unemployment insurance.

There would be an additional $8 billion in tax savings for business, partially offset by about $2 billion in business tax reforms, for a net reduction for business of nearly $6 billion.

The corporate tax rate would be reduced from 48 percent currently to 45 percent on Oct. 1 and to 44 percent in 1980.

Carter would make permanent the existing 10 percent investment tax credit, and extend it to investments in industrial and utility structures, as well as to equipment.

Businesses would also be allowed to use the investment tax credit to offset up to 90 percent of their federal tax liability, compared with 50 percent currently. But Carter would reduce the amount of business entertainment expenses that will be deductible.

Carter also said that if Congress fails to follow his recommendation for a full rebate of proposed new energy taxes, then he would ask for additional tax reductions for individuals to offset this increase.

Carter also said that if federal expenditures are held in check, and if the economy responds as planned, he should be able to recommend substantial additional tax reductions in years ahead.

"Tax reductions will be needed to strengthen consumer purchasing power and expand consumer markets," he said.

Schultze told reporters, however, that the $25 billion in tax cuts proposed for this year is only intended to offset various increases in taxes in 1977 and 1978, such as the higher Social Security tax bite, and that it contains little if any tax reductions beyond that.

But even a tax cut of $25 billion is running into some opposition. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, said he favors a tax cut of only about $15 billion.

But Carter said a tax cut of $25 billion is needed to keep the economy growing at an acceptable rate after mid-1978. Without it, he said, economic growth would fall below 3.5 percent in 1979, and unemployment could begin rising again.

Carter said his budget for fiscal year 1979 will provide for a budget deficit of near the $62 billion deficit in the current fiscal year, with about $15 billion to $20 billion resulting from his tax cut program.

The president also announced several programs to deal with special unemployment problems. He said the jobless rates of 17 percent for teen-agers and 40 percent for black teen-agers are intolerable and must be brought down.

He is requesting $400 million to begin a new program of hiring youths and disadvantaged workers in private industry.

Schultze said the measure probably will be accomplished by offering tax incentives, but that details are not yet worked out.

Carter also said that the public service employment program will be continued at the 725,000-job level through fiscal 1979, and, he said, his budget will propose creating 50,000 jobs as part of his welfare reform program.

Recent declines in the value of the U.S. dollar are "not surprising," he said, in view of the nation's trade deficit and the trade surpluses of other countries.

"However, we will not permit speculative activities in currency markets to disrupt our economy or those of our trading partners," the president said.

dumped on many areas and travel along most of the coast was dangerous.

Many highways were closed — dotted with thousands of stranded vehicles. Airport traffic in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere was at a standstill as crews battled in the mounting blizzard to clear runways.

A barge loaded with more than 6 million gallons of crude oil was adrift in 16-foot seas off the coast of Atlantic City, N.J. Gale winds ripped a bulk carrier from its anchorage in Boston Harbor. A commercial fishing boat sank off the coast of New Hampshire after the four persons who had been aboard were removed by the Coast Guard.

Some New Yorkers found ways to get around despite drifts and the snowfall that measured 13 inches at noon. Several were skiing in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue.

States of emergency were declared in Rhode Island, New York City, Harrisburg, Pa., and other areas along the coast. Some power outages were reported.

And little relief was in sight. The storm, considered the worst in a decade

A $463,000 project will reconstruct 6 miles of U.S. 84 in Lubbock County close to the city of Slaton.

The final $476,000 project will improve FM 1071 in Lamb and Hale counties.

The Department of Highways and Public Transportation will announce project bids on Feb. 4 and 15.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: In what kind of a mansion are Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, living? In "Julia," the story of playwright Lillian Hellman's life in the '30s, actress Fonda proves she's still one of the most beautiful actresses on the screen. What kind of a future do you predict for her? — Sidney T., Tulsa, Okla.

A: It wouldn't surprise us at all, after the controversial life she's led since the Vietnam war, if one day the story of Jane Fonda won't make a better film than any in which she's ever appeared. As to the Haydens' way of life, Time reports they live simply in a $40,000 house in Santa Monica with their son, Troy, 4, and Vanessa Vadim, 10, her daughter by French director Roger Vadim. "I was living in France in the world of Roger Vadim," she recalls, "with my blond hair and falsies. I became angry reading about the war because I felt betrayed. I felt I wanted to be with the people who were doing something about the war... My marriage was also falling apart... I got on the phone to Sam Brown, who is now head of the Peace Corps but who was head of the Vietnam moratoriums. And I said: 'My name is Jane Fonda. What can I do?'" No phony, Jane looks upon women's liberation in the same light as Vietnam. "I think," she's said, "if you just kept the current structure and put women in it, the problems would still exist."

A: Beatrice Arthur was born in New York City but grew up in Cambridge, Md., where she attended Cambridge High School. In private life she was the wife of Gene Saks, a noted stage and movie actor-director. They have two sons, Matthew and Daniel, both teen-agers. They live in Pacific Palisades, Calif., where Miss Arthur devotes whatever time she can spare to the organization called "Actors and Others for Animals."

Q: Whatever happened to Dianne deLeeuw, the 20-year-old beauty from Paramount, Calif., who won many skating trophies including an Olympic medal competing as a member of the Dutch team at Innsbruck? And has she got dual citizenship? — Mrs. Howard Jaffee, Brooklyn.

A: Yes, Dianne, who spent 16 of her 20 years skating on thin ice, does have dual citizenship since her parents are Holland-born. The world champion skater of 1975 has now gone pro as star of the Holiday on Ice Extravaganza of 1977. Since her earlier triumphs, the 5-8 star has visited many countries and has a hobby: "I love going into strange stores and finding out what the people in different countries buy," she says. "It's something like being an anthropologist — you can tell so much about a country's culture by what you find in the stores."

Q: What did a talkshow guest mean when he said Gypsy Rose Lee did the first "sit-down striptease in show business"? Was she on strike or something? — P. J., Lansing, Mich.

A: Nothing to do with a strike — Gypsy always made a hit. Once, on tour with Fanny Brice and Bobby Clark in the Shubert version of the Ziegfeld Follies, the trouper tripped and tore some ligaments. However, in the tradition of showbiz, Gypsy rose to the occasion. Hobbling onstage she rested her crutches against a bench, then did her regular striptease routine, stopping the show sitting down.

Q: Weren't both Irving Berlin and Al Jolson once song-pluggers? — S. Walsh, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: Yes, Jolie, snatched from a synagogue choir, got his showbiz start as a singing stooge in vaudeville, receiving meager pay from song publishers to introduce and popularize their new songs in theaters, dance halls, at benefits, etc. In the same early 1900s, Irving Berlin plugged songs at Tony Pastor's Music Hall as part of an act billed as "The Three Keatons." Youngest was Buster Keaton, who became one of the most famous comedians of silent pictures.

Q: What is the derivation of the name "White House"? — H. C., Norfolk, Va.

A: The name of "The President's House" or "The President's Palace," as it was generally referred to before it was burned in the War of 1812 and rebuilt in 1817, came from the fact that white paint was used to obliterate scars of the fire. The name "White House" became official in 1902. It was originally designed by Irish-born architect James Hoban on a site selected by French engineer Maj. Pierre L'Enfant. The cornerstone was laid in 1792. First occupied by John Adams in 1800.

Q: Isn't it true that although bacteria can be readily cultured from paper money, it rarely is the source of significant illness? — Roger E. Heering, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Paper or metal money may indeed be contaminated with microorganisms that might cause human disease; however, I have never seen documentation in modern medical or scientific literature that contaminated money has been responsible for spread of human disease," says G. F. Mallison of HEW's bacterial diseases division. "Microbial contamination on any surface, including money, dies away rather rapidly. I am certain that money is rarely contaminated with enough pathogenic microorganisms to cause disease, even if the money were ingested."

Q: Some weeks ago I heard Bea Arthur of "Maude" say that she was from the eastern shore of Maryland. Since I am originally from Salisbury, Md., I'm curious. Where was she raised? — Mrs. Julia A. Spencer, Richmond, Va.

Las Vegas Dropping Plans For SST

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A proposal by the Greater Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce to lure operators of the SST Concorde jetliner to service this gambling resort has been abandoned. John Solomon, aviation director, advised the Clark County Commission Wednesday to forget the Concorde proposal, at least for now. Solomon said he and the airport staff have been unable to find an airline interested in operating the Concorde on a trial basis for charter flights.

Solomon said more evidence about public attitudes, performance and noise levels would be available if regular trans-Atlantic business picked up for the super-sonic jet.

"Chances of the SST operating into McCarran International airport are nil," Solomon told the commission sitting as the airport committee. He said the matter would be dropped unless the commission insists otherwise.

In order for the Concorde to service Las Vegas the Federal Aviation Administration must designate the city as a receiver port and an airline must promote and schedule the flights. Neither has occurred.

Medicaid Fraud Cited By HEW

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computer screening of all 275,000 health practitioners serving Medicaid reveals more than 400 suspected cases of criminal fraud, a government official says.

Another 450 cases are under examination for possible abuse while 200 cases have been dropped, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. told a news conference Wednesday.

An investigator in the Health, Education and Welfare Department said there have been no indictments yet. The federally aided, state-run program provides medical care to the poor.

The computer search, called Project Integrity, tries to find billing patterns that indicate a likelihood of fraud and abuse. For instance, it discovered pharmacists who submitted claims for hundreds or thousands of pills dispensed to the same persons every day for a year; and physicians who billed the government for performing two or more appendectomies on the same person.

Zenith To Drop Watch-Making

CHICAGO (AP) — Zenith Radio Corp., which had announced a 25 percent cutback in its U.S. work force, now says it wants to get out of the watch-making business as well.

Zenith said this week it's Swiss-based watch operation, Zenith Time S.A., has not been profitable since Zenith acquired it in 1971. It said sale discussions have been under way with unidentified Swiss interests.

Zenith's worldwide watch sales are estimated at $1.6 million a year under two brands, Movado and Zenith.

Zenith Time has a marketing and service office in New York with about 50 employees, a spokesman said.

Zenith recently announced a massive cutback of U.S. manufacturing operations, saying that by the end of this year it will lay off 5,000 employees.

Obverse English Speech Thrives In Common Folk

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 RIDGEGIELD, Conn. (AP) — When James Thurber lived here in Connecticut in the pretty little town of West Cornwall, he had a cleaning lady who came every day "trailing a glory of cloudiness."

Della was her name, and she used to ask questions like, "Do you want cretonnes in your soup tonight?" Or she would inform her employer that the lawn was covered with "fletchers," not medieval arrow makers as the dictionary advised, but birds that other less gifted wordsmiths called flickers.

Speaking pure Lewis Carroll, Della would Jabber (wocky) while she dusted about her brother who worked at the town incinerator, where "they burned the refuge," and another who got high marks in his "silver service eliminations," and a beautiful sister who tragically died young "after she got tuberculosis in her teeth and it went all through her symptom."

The art of speaking obverse English, delivering a glancing blow to a cliché so that you don't quite hit the nail on the head, happily has not vanished from the lips of the common folk, the everyday conversationalist who probably watches television too much but doesn't quite listen to it.

"Language," wrote George Santayana, "is the door to knowledge." In the building where I work in New York there is an inventive linguist who leaves the door ajar, and sometimes hanging off the hinge, almost every time he opens his mouth.

The Denver Broncos-Oakland Raiders football playoff game, he bumbled, "was a real cliff dweller."

Trailing further glories of cloudiness, the same rhetorician explained that teen-aged jockey Steven Cauthen, despite his baby looks, was "no shrinking violet ... he's tough as they come."

He once spoke sadly of a friend whose marriage was breaking up because the wife "drank like a fish out of water."

Both my mother and my father had this ability to put a little extra English on the Queen's English, so that words came out a rakish, jaunty angle, like the way Rex Harrison wore his tweed hat.

My mother thought I kept my 16-foot sailboat "at the marina," probably because there was an Italian restaurant at the end of the dock.

I told her I was going out to Nebraska to do a story on the wheat harvest. "Oh," she said, "are those the migraine workers?"

I had to tell her the migraine workers were reporters sent out to wheat farms looking for stories dreamed up by bosses born on wheat farms.

Dad liked crossing the country by Greyhound because it was "very scene-i-anic," but disliked "the muriels" in the state Capitol at Baton Rouge. He had a friend at work who complained of "too many flies in the oatmeal," but was at Madison Square Garden the night Bobby Orr "did the Mexican hat rack." The friend was badly hurt in a "profane gas explosion" and wound up in the "expensive care unit" at St. Clare's Hospital.

This facility for fracturing the obvious with a karate chop must have rubbed off because in Washington recently I found myself complimenting a beautiful mother of six teen-aged girls with the line:

"You look younger than all your daughters put together."

The sports scene, in particular, seems to lend itself to this sort of thing. The New Orleans Times-Picayune had a stringer correspondent for high school games who wrote that Baton Rouge and Istrouma fought to a scoreless tie in the annual renewal-of-their-bitter-rivalry, "but the game actually was much closer than the score indicated."

Then there was the night when heavy-weight Kingfish Levinsky was carried back to his dressing room after being pole axed by Joe Louis in the first round and told reporters he had been "knocked into a transom."

Candidates Seek Seats On Board

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Although past elections have proven otherwise, candidates for Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District posts hope area residents will show some interest in the race by going to the polls Saturday and voting.

Four candidates, two of them incumbents, are vying for three expiring seats on the district's five-member board of directors.

Seeking another two-year term are present directors Cubby B. Key and W.D. "Billy" Sims. Challenging are Joanna Doss and Danny Edwards.

All candidates say they cannot understand why past elections have drawn such poor voter turnouts since the district is the governing body for the county's only complete recreational facility — Buffalo Springs Lake.

Voting is not controlled by precincts and the three persons receiving the most votes will win the election. At least one new member will be added to the policy-making board since longtime director V.G. Browning is not seeking re-election. Among concerns expressed for the lake, Mrs. Doss wants county residents to know they paid for the recreational facility; Edwards said he would work for a better fish spawning program; Key foresees an outdoor theater; and Sims hopes the board continues operating smoothly in assuring lake maintenance and upkeep.

District board members serve staggered two-year terms. Directors R.M. "Max" Wisner and Dale Miller will finish up their present terms next year at which time another election will be held.

Only 162 of the county's 79,000 registered voters went to the polls in last year's race. Such things as apathy, forgetfulness, lack of controversy and the absence of a dominant political figure were given by the candidates as reasons for poor showings at the polls.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and are located at the east entrance of the Lubbock County Courthouse, Lubbock Fire Station No. 6 at 35th Street and Indiana Avenue, Wolforth City Hall and at the community clubhouses in Shallowater, Idalou and Slaton.

All registered voters residing in the county are eligible to vote.

Ray Lemmon Seeks Commission Post

AUSTIN (UPI) — Former Rep. Ray Lemmon of Houston will campaign for the Democratic nomination for seat on the Texas Railroad Commission.

Lemmon apparently will oppose Commissioner John Poerner, who was appointed to the commission by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to replace former Commissioner Jim C. Langdon, who resigned effective Jan. 1.

Knorpp Testifies During Trial

AMARILLO (UPI) — Suspended Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp has testified in his removal trial that he was allowed overdrafts on his personal checking account and would have had no need to deposit county funds in the account.

Knorpp is accused of mishandling county funds by depositing them in his personal bank account. His trial was expected to go to the jury late today after Knorpp finished his testimony.

He said Thursday he had "excellent relationships" with his bankers and was allowed overdraft privileges on his bank account so his checks were covered.

Knorpp has been accused of using county funds to cover personal overdrafts.

Knorpp, who was suspended with pay Oct. 7, is accused of depositing in his personal account a $225 check drawn on the National College of District Attorneys.

High Plains District Schedules Election

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District had some rough sailing last year. The outcome of the district's election Saturday to fill three expiring terms on the board of directors should determine whether the waves have calmed.

The names of four candidates will be on Saturday's ballot. One of those candidates is the district's former manager, Frank Rayner.

It was Rayner's resignation last August as the district's top employee that caused the 15-county agency to make the news.

Rayner most likely would have been fired as manager if he had not stepped down. The resignation resulted in the former manager's receiving a new contract making him a consultant to the district until September.

That contract has caused some question on whether Rayner would be eligible to take office if elected.

Rayner says he is eligible, but the board's attorney says he feels the former manager could not take the oath of office because of possible conflict of interests.

Both sides cite portions of state law which they say support their cases. However, if Rayner wins the election, the matter probably would have to be settled in court.

Rayner is challenging incumbent Pet. 1 director James P. Mitchell, who represents Lubbock, Crosby and Lynn counties on the board.

Running unopposed are Pet. 2 director Selmer H. Schoenrock, who represents Cochran, Hockley and Lamb counties, and Pet. 5 director Malvin A. Jarboe, representing Floyd and Hale counties.

Incumbent candidates say they want to continue working on a long-range plan which would improve water conservation, and also to improve the district's public education on the resource which is becoming scarce in the South Plains-Panhandle area.

Rayner has based his campaign on the promise to correct the wrongs he said he saw in the district while manager. He says the board is too involved in managing the staff — a job he says he should have had while with the agency.

Several board members have said they wonder how Rayner plans to make such vast changes in the district as a board member when he feels such alterations should be the responsibility of the manager.

All candidates say they feel area residents should take more interest in the district, and they hope for a large voter turnout.

All registered voters residing in the district are eligible to vote.

There will be 25 polling places within the three precincts. All will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Polls in Pet. 1 will be located at the Lorenzo Community Center; Wilson Co-op Gin; New Home Co-op Gin; east entrance of the Lubbock County Courthouse; Lubbock Fire Station No. 6 at 35th Street and Indiana Avenue; Wolforth City Hall; County Clubhouse, Slaton; and the community clubhouses in Idalou and Shallowater.

Sentence To Be Set For Perryton Man

ENID, Okla. (AP) — Charles Ray Gregor, 21, of Perryton, will be sentenced Feb. 8 on his guilty plea in the murder of an Enid woman whose nude body was found Dec. 1 south of here.

Gregor pleaded guilty Thursday to killing Tammy Sue Marshall, who was an Enid High School senior before dropping out of classes last fall.

Assistant District Attorney Al Hoch indicated he will recommend a life prison sentence for Gregor, who was visiting Enid during the Thanksgiving weekend when Miss Marshall disappeared.

Authorities said Gregor killed Miss Marshall by forcing the broken leg of a coffee table against her throat.

The first Salvation Army meeting in the United States was held in Philadelphia in 1879.

The Slim Gourmet

Nothing beats tomatoes for adding variety and versatility to other vegetables. Simmered or baked in a savory tomato sauce, even the most neglected of vegetables assumes a new popularity. For the calorie-careful tomato-sauced vegetable dishes take on a special significance... no added fat, butter or margarine needed!

Consider this: a level tablespoon of butter or margarine is 100 calories... about the same number of calories in a 16-ounce two-cup can of tomatoes!

Here are some zesty combinations to try:

GREEK STEWED PEPPERS
4 bell peppers, seeded and sliced
16 oz. can tomatoes, broken up well salt and pepper to taste
1/4 tsp. dill weed
1/4 tsp. oregano
1/4 tsp. savory
1/4 tsp. thyme

Combine ingredients in a covered pan and simmer slowly over low heat until peppers are tender. Uncover and continue to simmer until most of the liquid evaporates. Makes four servings, under 40 calories each.

BAKED VEGETABLE CASEROLE ITALIANO
1 large eggplant, peeled and diced
9 oz. package Italian green beans, defrosted

16 oz. can undrained Italian plum tomatoes, broken up well salt, or garlic salt, to taste pepper, or hot pepper, to taste
1 tsp. oregano
3 tbsp. grated extra-sharp Romano cheese

3 tbsp. Italian-seasoned bread crumbs
Combine vegetables in ovenproof casserole. Stir in seasonings. Sprinkle with cheese and crumbs. Bake at 375 degrees 30 to 40 minutes. Makes six servings, under 75 calories each.

CHEDDAR-BAKED ZUCCHINI
3 medium zucchini, sliced (or 2 packages frozen)
16 oz. can tomatoes, broken up well
6 slices (3 oz.) extra-sharp Cheddar cheese

3 tbsp. seasoned breadcrumbs
Allow zucchini to defrost thoroughly, if frozen. Put a layer of zucchini in the bottom of a casserole or baking dish. Add a layer of torn-up cheese and broken-up tomatoes. Continue layering zucchini, cheese and sprinkle with crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven 20 to 30 minutes until tender, brown and bubbly. Makes eight servings, 75 calories each.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

We would all rather hold good hands than poor ones. But making a bid to reveal our goodies is not always a blessing as East discovered on this deal.

If there is a culprit in the auction, it is South. His decision to leap to four spades with a hand that contained no singleton or card outside the spade suit was that of a typical hand-hog. With six running tricks, there is no excuse for his failure to bid three no trump, a contract that would have been laydown. Fortunately for his partner, he had the skill to land his contract.

A club lead would have netted the defenders four tricks, but in view of the auction, that would have been a strange lead indeed. Instead, West made the normal decision to lead his partner's suit. The queen lost to the ace, and the heart continuation went to dummy's king. Two rounds of trumps drew the outstanding cards in that suit.

Had there been no adverse bidding, declarer might have tried playing three rounds of diamonds, or leading a club to his king. Either would have led to the contract's defeat. But since the bidding and play virtually marked East with at least six hearts and the ace of clubs, declarer saw a way that would almost guarantee his contract.

Declarer cashed the ace and king of diamonds, then led dummy's last heart. When East covered with the eight, declarer discarded his remaining diamond, and East was end played.

A heart would allow declarer to discard a club while ruffing in dummy, so he would lose only two hearts and a club. A club lead would have the same effect. And if East could return a diamond, declarer could ruff. If diamonds were 3-3, the thirteenth diamond in dummy would be established for a club discard, with the ten of trumps as an entry. And if East turned up with four diamonds, he could have only a singleton ace of clubs, so declarer would lead a low club and duck in dummy, setting up the king as the game-going trick.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Compote Recipe Good Winter Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There's a phrase in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" that I've always loved. Maybe you have, too. It's "The living is easy" in the song "Summertime."

Well, the living can be easy in winter-time if you devise simple dishes or choose simple recipes to prepare. For example, a compote I call Sangria Figs.

I devised it recently when I was rushed for time and needed a dish on hand that could be used a couple of ways — as a dessert or as an accompaniment to a main dish.

A package of dried figs laid me on the kitchen counter. Why not couple the fruit with Sangria for a compote? Red wine, sugar and some fresh fruit with figs would be the only ingredients needed. All on hand.

The compote was a success, especially with tasters who shy away from anything really sweet. I served the Sangria Figs as a dessert at brunch and as a snack, with cookies, for evening refreshment. I also used them as an interesting accompaniment for roast chicken, but they would be equally good with other poultry and some meat dishes.

Sangria is of course the popular Spanish drink. True Sangria, according to one Spanish authority, is made with a bottle of red wine, lemon and club soda. But there are many versions of it. Often, in the United States, sugar is added and so are slices of apple, orange and pear.

SANGRIA FIGS
1/2 cup sugar
2 1/4 cups dry red wine
12 oz. dried figs (about 36), see note below

1 orange, unpeeled
In a glass or ceramic container (cylindrical or wide-mouth), stir together the sugar and wine until the sugar is entirely or almost dissolved. Add the figs. Quarter the apple and core; cut into thick lengthwise slices and add. Cut the ends from the orange and discard; slice the orange fairly thin, halve the slices and add. The figs and apple slices should be covered with the wine, but it doesn't matter if all the orange slices are not covered. Cover the container and refrigerate overnight. Makes 9 to 12 servings.

Note: For this compote use soft, not pulled, golden or Mission (dark) figs.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every couple of years or so, some inventor thinks he has put together a robot housewife that will electronically do all the chores a woman does.

The last one I observed was a 275-pound little number, built from parts of autos and appliances, that stood six feet tall. The owner was thrilled that it was programmed to meet the mailman and empty the garbage.

Whatya wanta bet? In a couple of weeks it will be emptying the mailman and meeting the garbage.

No one tells a computer what to do. Everyone should know that by this time.

Do you remember your first computer? Mine was a little number at the IRS in Cincinnati. For no apparent reason it coughed up a bill for $42.17.

I called the computer and a person answered the phone who said she had nothing to do with my return as it was handled exclusively by the computer.

"Would you please put the computer on the phone? I have a question."

"That is not possible," she said. "Computers do not answer the phone. They are not human."

"Then perhaps you would have it write me and explain the billing."

"Computers are not programmed to write letters," she said.

"I see. Could I drop by and have a discussion?"

"Computers do not receive people and have discussions."

"Then perhaps you could tell it I called."

"Computers cannot hear, nor do they take messages."

"Could I threaten it?"

"I'm afraid not. They have no natural enemies."

"What would happen if it knew we no longer had a relationship?"

"A computer has no feelings."

"Look, if it can't talk, hear, respond or feel, then what if I didn't send it a check for $42.17?"

"It could put you in a slammer for twenty years."

Computers just better watch their step. I predict someday they'll be replaced by people and then where will they be?

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Until I read your column today I thought I was the only woman in the world whose husband didn't trust her out of his sight.

We've been married a year and I feel like a prisoner. I have my own car (which I paid for myself), but my husband carries the keys and if I have to go anywhere he insists on driving me there.

When he comes home from work I get the third degree. "Was anybody here today? Who did you talk to?" (He places the telephone cord in a certain way so he will know if the phone has been used.)

I've never lied to him and have no reason to, but he doesn't believe a thing I say. I am his fifth wife, and now I know why the first four couldn't live with him.

Please don't write me at home because he gets all the mail before I do. Just write a message to "Stuck in Penna" and tell me what to do.

out specifically what you consider inappropriate attire for your office, you'll have your own dress code.

DEAR ABBY: I am in my middle 40s, single by choice, and I have an excellent position. My widowed mother lives with me and I am not lonely.

A few months ago my favorite cousin died. She was a few years older than I, and her husband was 12 years her senior. Well, the new widower has been coming here very often to visit "us." Both Mother and I agree that he is interested in me. The problem is, I am not interested in him.

So far I've been able to avoid being alone with him, but he is very persistent. If he doesn't catch on pretty soon, I may have to hurt his feelings in order to discourage him. Can you give me a few pointers?

Not For Him

Dear Not: Keep the conversation impersonal, don't let him get you alone, stay out of his reach, and retire early. He'll get the message. (P.S. How about introducing him to a friend? One woman's leftovers can be another woman's banquet.)

'Butterfly Love' Test Of Skills

A delicate design takes wing in the Butterfly Love needlepoint pillow pictured at left. With the right shapes and a sense of balance, you can test your own needlepoint skills. Chart your pattern on graph paper first — it's the right place to make up your mind. Use common geometric forms to get your ideas across. And don't get stuck on little details — when you keep it simple and neat, your design is bound to show up.

Your romantic butterflies deserve a closer look — they're really a flowery arrangement of four fan shapes. The edges of their wings are accented by crescent moons. And their markings — exotic rows of dotted plumes — are picked up in the border by arcs colored in a rainbow of pastels.

If the design sounds a trifle bold, it looks subdued in soft shadings of peach, beige, gold and blue. That's the kind of thought you'll want to put into your own design.

Use your imagination to work in elements that don't always go together. There's nothing to lose by taking chances, and you may come up with something. If you miss, you can always try again — it's only paper.

When it comes to needlepoint design, there's one last thing. It's important! You must always consider the impression your background is making, as well. Although it may not hit the eye at once, a well-paced background is the secret to the success of your design.

Needpoint design is something to think about, and that's exciting. If you would like to get better acquainted with this craft before moving on to your own designing, the Butterfly Love pattern is worth spending some time on and is available in a kit that comes with a full-color design on 10-mesh cotton canvas, wool and polyester yarns, a needle, and complete directions. Backing and cording are not included. The finished pillow measures 14" square and fits our custom pillow form.

Cards Feature Wright Brothers

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Collectors of U.S. Souvenir Cards will be interested in the recent issuance featuring a block of four of the engraved vignette originally used for the 6-cent air mail Wright brothers commemorative stamp of 1949.

The central motif of that stamp is a reproduction of the historic Wright brothers' plane. Likenesses of Wilbur and Orville Wright appear in the upper right corner of the vignette. To the left is another vignette of the 60-foot high, granite Wright Brothers National Memorial located atop Kill Devil Hill, N.C.

Cards are priced at $1.50 each and may be ordered by mail from the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Send your orders immediately as this card will be withdrawn from sale on Feb. 12. Make your money orders (no cash) payable to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and address to: ASDA 77 Souvenir Card, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D.C. 20228.

To hail the 1980 Olympic Games which will be held in the U.S.S.R., that nation plans to issue a comprehensive series of stamps. According to the Soviet Ministry of Communications, the stamps are being designed by leading Russian artists and will depict "an athletic tribute to the 1980 Olympiad and the golden cities of the USSR." The stamps and other philatelic items will be issued at various times between now and August 1980.

Featured are the following: The Olympic Flame, the Olympic Symbol, Greco-Roman wrestling, free wrestling, judo, boxing, weightlifting.

Check with your local stamp dealer for availability of these items which will be issued as part of the continuing series.

Lesotho, located in southern Africa, honors the United Nations' "Decade For Action To Combat Racism" by issuing four new stamps. The central motif is dedicated to "preserving the basic freedoms of all."

The 4-cent bears the head of a white child facing a black child, with an equal sign between them. The 10-cent depicts a black and white jigsaw piece fitted together. The 15-cent illustrates black and white interlocking gears. The 25-cent shows black and white hands shaking.

Each stamp also bears the inscription "Decade For Action To Combat Racism." The stamps are printed in black and white.

The Federal Republic of Germany issued a 70-pennig stamp in 1976 to honor the U.S. Bicentennial and in tribute to Carl Schurz, a German-American of great influence between the Civil War and the turn of the century. Why he was selected for this tribute is explained in a detailed biographical sketch featured in the latest issue of "Topical Time," the journal of the American Topical Association whose members specialize in various topics on stamps.

Schurz, who came to this country in 1852, was a Civil War General, a U.S. Senator from Missouri, Secretary of Interior under President Rutherford B. Hayes, editor of the N.Y. Evening Post, a farmer and a lawyer.

In commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, Great Britain and many of its Commonwealth members will be issuing stamps depicting the Queen, Her Royal Beasts and beasts of the issuing countries. Each country will have a set of three stamps of the same denomination. The portrait of the Queen will be a new one which has never been used on any previous issuance. It is interesting to note that the "Lion of England" is the King of Beasts. The earliest reference to this beast is during the reign of Henry I in 1127.

Survey Shows Styles Preferred In Houses

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

The survey of readers' preferences in houses they might have built showed that 65 percent would rather have one large bedroom and two small ones than three of medium size, that 67 percent preferred the laundry near the kitchen rather than the bedrooms... and that 76 percent wanted a family room rather than a dining room if only one could be had.

Next came questions about living rooms, garages and bathrooms. Would you rather have a large living room and a small dining room or a medium living room and a medium dining room? Do you prefer a one-car garage that would allow an extra room in the house or a two-car garage? And do you want one bathroom in the master bedroom and one outside it or two bathrooms outside it?

There was almost a dead heat in the replies about living room and dining room sizes. In favor of a large living room and a small dining room were 50.1 percent of the responders. Supporting a medium-sized living room and a medium-sized dining room were 49.9 percent of the responders. This can be called a moderate surprise, since several architects who were questioned were sure the large living room-small dining room concept would get the most votes, although all admitted it would be by a small margin. Admittedly, there might have been a lack of precision in the question, since quite a few persons wanted to know what was meant by large and what was meant by small. "Too many builders," said one woman, "seem to think a room 11 feet by 11 feet or thereabouts is large, when it's really uncomfortably small." A few who specified both rooms should be medium-sized added that the two rooms should be in combination to provide one very large area.

A two-car garage ran far ahead of a one-car garage — 87 percent to 13 percent even though the smaller garage would mean an extra room in the house. "What nearly everybody needs," said one man, "is more space on the outside to store equipment needed for upkeep, toys, etc. That's why so many garages are filled with everything imaginable except automobiles." The 13-percent responders were very emphatic in their choice, as typified by the comment: "It's silly to ask for a two-car garage, even if you have two cars, when you can get an extra room instead. When you go to sell the house, an extra room will add to the value of the house by a considerable amount; a two-car garage rather than a one-car garage will add very little if anything."

Also one-sided was the voting about bathrooms. Nearly 80 percent said one bathroom should be in the master bedroom, one outside it, as against almost 20 percent who thought neither bathroom should be in the main bedroom. Along with this tally came many suggestions about a small or one-half bathroom somewhere else in the house regardless of where the other bathrooms might be located and even if there were only one other bathroom. As one woman put it, "The biggest mistake we made was in not having a little bathroom in the laundry room where it would be reached from the outside without going through any other rooms. Of course, we are retired and spend much time in our backyard, but I would imagine such a bathroom would be just as necessary for a family with small children."

Book Gives Delights Of Eccentric Ways

By G.A. FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

THE DESTINIES OF DARCY DANCER, GENTLEMAN. By J.P. Donleavy. Delacorte, 492 Pages, $9.95.

In "The Ginger Man," expatriate American novelist J.P. Donleavy gave us Sebastian Dangerfield, who thumbed his nose at the common man's ordered pursuit of respectability and along the way became one of the great comic figures of recent literature.

Now, 22 years and six novels later, Donleavy has given us Reginald Darcy Thormond Dancer Kildare, another testimonial to the delights of eccentricity and fresh evidence of the writer's mastery of comic invention.

Although the rough rural beauty of Darcy Dancer's world seems at first far removed from that of the impetuous Dublin university student of "The Ginger Man," the two characters have a number of qualities in common: one of them is a well-bred, deadpan earnestness that makes the inevitable bawdy descent into the lowlife of post-World War II Ireland all the more hilarious.

Blind Photographer Teaching Course To Visually Impaired

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Let me share with you a couple of interesting photographic sidelights which I've come across:

George Covington, 34, is teaching photography this summer at the Maine Photography Workshops in Rockport, Maine. What makes it newsworthy?

Covington is legally blind and he teaches other people who are similarly visually impaired.

Jacob Deschin describes Covington's plight — and how he overcame it — in a recent issue of The Photo Reporter, a quarterly published by Modernage Labs in New York City.

Covington is not totally blind but he cannot see people's faces, the interior of a room, a scenic view or the buildings on a street. However, he can see with the aid of a magnifier and he believes that 90 percent of the legally blind people in the United States can see to a degree, just as he can.

"Photography will allow them to see more," says the former lawyer. "I began taking pictures a few years ago, not because I could see, but because I couldn't see! I was able to reduce the world I could not see into a two-dimensional photograph which I can see through a magnifier. It was a great revelation."

The next step was to share his success in photography with other visually handicapped people. The summer workshop provided a good opportunity. Students with impaired vision learn the basic rules of visualization using a simple and inexpensive zone-focusing 35mm camera. Then they are taught the basic darkroom skills of processing black-and-white film and how to make prints.

"Photography has allowed me to see things I could not see normally," Covington sums up. "It has opened a whole visual world I thought was closed. Life has become richer. And there is great satisfaction in being able to pass this knowledge along to others with impaired vision."

The moral, of course, is: Don't let a handicap stop you from enjoying photography.

perimental Kodak photographic products. In the file, each product folder contains its chemical formula, its toxic properties and medical information that may be needed. It is kept up-to-date.

The telephone number of the Poison Information Service is distributed to poison control centers and hospital emergency rooms throughout the country through the poison control network of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For example, a small child in St. Louis finds a jar of liquid in papa's basement workshop and drinks some. The doctor discovers it's Kodak Dektol developer but doesn't know its formula or exactly how to treat it. He calls the Poison Information Service and within minutes he has all necessary information.

Dr. Jones recalls the case of a man working with photographic chemicals in a secluded area of Africa some years ago, when one of the solutions splashed in his eyes. He was rushed to a doctor who rinsed his eyes with water but was uncertain if anything else should be done.

The physician's problem was broadcast by an amateur radio operator in Africa and it was received by a ham radio operator in the United States. The latter called the Poison Information Service and shortly the medical information needed was relayed back to Africa.

"We retain all chemical records permanently," Dr. Jones reports. "You never know when a youngster, playing in a garage of basement, might find a product that was discontinued 20 years ago and decide to eat or drink it."

He estimates about 900 calls were received in 1976. They originated in this country and Canada, mostly from hospitals and poison emergency centers but occasionally from a frantic parent or the victim himself. If the call comes after normal business hours or on weekends, the call is switched to the Kodak Park Medical Department which is always staffed. All the information is taken and relayed to Dr. Jones or one of his staff. If necessary, a trip to office files is made to get it, but the needed information is found and relayed back to the originating source.

Varieties Of Cucumbers Offered

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Ready for 1978 are two new cucumber varieties and a hybrid cantaloupe from Park Seeds of Greenwood, S.C.

The cantaloupe is named Scoop, two weeks earlier than Mainrock and Early Dawn, according to President Bill Park. The earliness makes it good for short-season areas. Scoop is only five inches across, oval-shaped with thin rind and thick flesh.

The cucumbers are Pickle-Dilly and Whopper. The former is of medium size and production is early. The deep-green cuke is good for pickling and its size permits trellis of the vines to save garden space.

Whopper is deep green, up to eight inches long with a very small seed cavity — 90 percent flesh. It is not bitter, is ready for harvest in 60 days and the hybrid is crisp. The yield is reported heavy and the variety is disease-resistant.

How about a Garden Carpet? Introduced last season by Hallmark Cards, the Carpets come in six easy-to-plant varieties, five featuring flowers and one vegetable. Each packet contains three pre-seeded 8-by-36-inch mats of seeds that will provide a colorful display. All you need is a spade or rake to prepare a patch of soil and a trowel. The carpets can be cut up and put in flower pots or window boxes, used as mixed borders, near sidewalks or patio walls; or in boxes.

You loosen topsoil three or four inches deep, break up lumps, smooth the surface, roll out the Garden Carpet, cut it to bed size, cover with one-third inch of topsoil or peat moss and water. You can thin out.

Poll Chooses Influential Persons In Religion

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Persons of varied pursuits, ranging from evangelism to the U.S. presidency and from the academic world to the ghetto streets, have been singled out as the 10 most influential American figures today in the field of religion.

Only one of them is an official of the institutional churches, which seems to say something about where the religious leverage is these days, the indications being that it's outside the establishments.

The selections were made through a poll by the ecumenical weekly, Christian Century, of the religion specialists of the major secular newspapers and other media and of editors of the nation's religious publications.

Chosen almost unanimously as the most influential religious figure was Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham, described by various responses as the "personification of religion in American life," the "one and only" who has "preached the gospel to more persons than anyone in history."

In the poll, respondents were cautioned not to consider "who ought to be most influential" or whose influence was "good or bad," but simply to name those with the most impact, whatever its quality.

A total of 109 Americans got at least one ballot. Following are the other nine among the top 10 most frequently listed, along with some of the comments about them:

The Rev. Dr. Martin Marty, church history professor at the University of Chicago, a Lutheran, prolific author and speaker, termed the "No. 1 idea broker" in religion, "trying to make sense of it all."

President Jimmy Carter, Southern Baptist, described as demonstrating that "evangelical religion and politics mix," who "sets the style for the born-again movement" and who has "made civil religion respectable again without losing us in the piety."

Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs director for the American Jewish Committee, called an interfaith "wheel-dealer" whose diplomacy and wide involvement were credited as being instrumental in "improving Christian-Jewish relationships in this country" and in forging evangelical-Jewish bonds.

The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame, former head of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, a Roman Catholic. "When he speaks, the pope and the president listen," was among comments. "He carries more weight outside the church than within."

Oral Roberts, the Pentecostal faith healer turned United Methodist after gaining stature as an evangelist and who now has an extensive television ministry, heads a university in Tulsa, Okla., that bears his name and plans a new hospital and health center there.

Bill Bright, founder and president of Campus Crusade for Christ International, the strategist behind the recent "Here's Life, America" campaigns in many cities, now heading a drive to raise $1 billion to "win the world for Christ in this generation."

Jesse Jackson, a black Baptist clergyman in Chicago who heads Operation

PUSH—People United to Save Humanity. A "moral force," a respondent called him, who "continues to believe that the church is the basis for community action."

Anita Bryant, singer, entertainer, Southern Baptist and television promoter of Florida orange juice and an influential crusader against homosexuality, described as galvanizing.

William P. Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church, president of the National Council of Churches and former head of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches. A onetime practicing attorney, he was termed now the "top Protestant establishment figure."

Public Study May Help Lawmakers

By EDMOND LABRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Recesses of Congress are supposed to be opportunities for members to get to know their constituents better and find out what is on their minds.

On their return from their recent break between sessions, the lawmakers found a prodigious piece of homework on the American people done for them by the Commerce Department.

From the 564-page mass of statistics the department published at year's end it is possible to extract evidence that:

— Most of the population doesn't have a great deal of confidence in its government.

— Americans are worried about crime and drugs. Many are afraid to walk alone at night.

— Yet Americans, on the whole, may be getting calmer.

— Urban dwellers spend more time sleeping than doing anything else.

— Most people express great satisfaction with their family life. Yet divorces keep increasing, although nearly half the respondents to a poll think they should be harder to get.

— The great majority like where they live.

— Compared with citizens of other Western countries, Americans are fairly moderate drinkers.

— They are not the most dangerous drivers in the world, though by no means the safest.

— Their eating habits have changed, but not altogether for the better.

— More than half of a sample questioned liked their jobs and rated a feeling of accomplishment ahead of income.

The governmental authors of the big book, much of which consists of brightly colored charts, caution against following its statistics out of the window and do not contend all are of equal quality. Beside the usual agency statistical sources, they drew on a wide variety of private surveys, studies and opinion polls.

A 1976 poll found only 14.1 percent expressing "a great deal of confidence" in Congress. At that, the legislative branch ran ahead of the executive, which scored 13.9 percent.

Among citizens who did not register to vote, 37.4 percent said they were just not interested, and another 9 percent that they disliked politics, didn't prefer any candidate or thought their vote wouldn't matter.

Responding to a 1974 poll, 45 percent said they were afraid to walk alone at night. By big majorities, respondents wanted more public money spent to reduce crime, thought the courts were too lenient on criminals, favored the death penalty for murder and mandatory permits for possession of guns.

Between 1960 and 1974, production of handguns increased from 603,000 a year to 2.3 million. Among 17 developed countries the United States had far and away the highest rate of homicides and intentional injuries: 8.3 per 100,000 population. Second-place Finland had 2.6.

But the United States was fifth in deaths attributed to motor vehicle accidents. Its rate of 26.5 per 100,000 population for 1973 was exceeded by Austria, Belgium, Australia and Italy.

Surveys in the early 1960s found 3.5 percent of men and 7.9 percent of women reporting they had had nervous breakdowns. By the early 1970s the figures were down to 2.6 percent for men, 5.4 for women.

Urban Americans surveyed in 1975 reported spending more time sleeping — 54.7 hours a week — than in any other activity. They slept about 1 1/4 hours a week more than they had a decade earlier, spent about half an hour less on their job and devoted about five hours less to family care. Leisure time went up 3.5 hours to 38.5.

In 1976, 52.1 percent said they were very satisfied with their jobs. When asked to choose between aspects they liked, more than half cited work that was important and gave them a feeling of accomplishment. Income came in second and promotion third.

Only 3 percent of home owners and 5 percent of renters questioned in 1974 said they wanted to move.

In surveys from 1973 to 1975, at least three-fourths expressed great satisfaction with their overall family life, but only about two-thirds reported specifically that their marriages were very happy.

Although divorces increased from 390,000 in 1963 to 977,000 in 1974, by 1975 nearly 49 percent of respondents said they thought divorces should be harder to get and only 30 percent that they should be easier.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To be on the safe side, give co-workers and helpers the kid glove treatment. They won't perform well if they're not buttered up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make play out of work tomorrow, but don't play and avoid your work. The former will benefit you, the latter won't.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're not overly possessive of loved ones. Tomorrow, however, you may feel that they must account to you for all their actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Weigh the odds wisely tomorrow before you toss the quaillet. Avoid any confrontations where you may be over-matched going in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you put conditions on things which you give others tomorrow, they in turn will do the same. No one will get much of a deal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) That old adage of neither a borrower nor a lender be is worth keeping in mind tomorrow. Misunderstandings could arise in either instance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Stepping out of line in the romance department will be asking for trouble tomorrow. Even a harmless rendezvous could be seriously misjudged.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A sensitive friend could have hurt feelings if he learns that you did something for another pal that you refused to do for him. Play no favorites.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless you are collectively appointed, do not assume you're the spokesman for your peer group tomorrow. Some other friends want to be chairman as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Holding an outsider up as an example to a member of your family tomorrow could prove to be a poor way to make a point. Such comparisons arouse animosity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An independent associate will not appreciate it if you poke your nose into his affairs tomorrow, even though your intentions are well-meaning.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Agreements should be entered into cautiously tomorrow. Unless both parties are in complete accord, someone is going to feel they got the short end.

CB Market Glut Drops Unit Prices Drastically

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Citizens Band radio industry, flourishing mightily only three years ago, is in turmoil.

Sales of CB transceivers in the United States fell to 8 million in 1977 from 11 million in 76.

Prices dropped so badly that a CB built to sell for $130 is lucky now to fetch $50 at retail against a manufacturing cost alone of around $40.

Most of the CB fan magazines have folded.

Still, a veritable flood of CB imports continues. The International Trade Commission is due to rule any day on an industry plea for aid.

Only four American manufacturers remain in the business and they have only 6 percent of the market as against 20 percent three years ago.

The huge glut of CBs is a story repeated throughout the history of trade, a combination of greed and deluded optimism.

To understand what's happened one can go back 2,000 years to the Roman slave market. The Romans could use perhaps 25,000 new slaves a year but, periodically, after the Roman armies had won big victories abroad, the market would be glutted with up to 100,000 men, women and children. The price of slaves would fall so low the dealers couldn't feed them and many would starve.

Historically, whenever something becomes extremely popular it soon is over-produced and floods the market.

In 1976, when the market in the United States for CB receivers hit a peak of 11 million, Japan, Hong Kong, Korea and Taiwan flooded the country with 16.5 million imported units! Last year they again sent many more CB transceivers to America than the 8 million gross sales.

This market flooding has some unusual aspects. The United States is the only legal market for CB transceivers in substantial quantity. Even the countries that produce them don't allow their use.

According to Travis Marshall, a vice president of Motorola, Inc., stationed in Washington, if the flood of imports were to be stopped dead tomorrow by a stiff tariff increase it would take more than a year to liquidate the piled up inventory and stabilize prices at reasonable levels.

Unusual also is the fact the transistors and other semiconductor parts are the guts of a CB transceiver are nearly all American-made and shipped to Taiwan, Korea and Hong Kong for assembly. Only Japan has its own semiconductor industry.

A third little understood factor in the CB situation is that much of the gross overproduction has been carried on by fast buck operators in Asia, encouraged by greedy U.S. importers, Marshall said.

Newspapers Describe Humphrey

By United Press International

St. Louis Post-Dispatch
Hubert H. Humphrey was fond of saying that his mistakes were those of the heart, not the head — by which he evidently meant that he sometimes erred because of excess compassion. There is no doubt that Mr. Humphrey was a warm-hearted, personable man who attracted many friends and who from the beginning of his political career demonstrated, by his sponsorship of much social welfare legislation, his concern for people who were disadvantaged in life. By the time of his death, at the age of 66, he had won the genuine friendship of many of his political opponents, as well as the admiration of millions for his good humor and courage during a long and painful bout with cancer.

Perhaps Mr. Humphrey's biggest mistake was in supporting the Vietnam War long after others had recognized its folly. His position was no doubt due in large measure to an excess of loyalty to Lyndon Johnson, who had chosen him as vice presidential nominee. At any rate, his stand cost him the votes of many former supporters in 1968 when he lost the presidency to Richard Nixon by some 500,000 votes.

Whatever his weaknesses, Hubert Humphrey's unflagging fight for worthy political causes, his devotion to the democratic process and his solid legislative contributions entitle him to a place in history. His zest for life in the face of adversity during his last years should serve as an example that politics can be exhilarating and constructive.

New York Post

...There were those who ridiculed him (Humphrey) when he referred to "the politics of joy." Some sophisticates derided the phrase as a banality. In fact it was an expression of his refusal to yield to the counsels of minimal expectations and hard-headed "realism."

He was keenly aware that he had not always heeded his own message. He would be scornful of any retrospect that ascribed total consistency of conviction to him. He might have well been president if he had aired his doubts about the Vietnam War much earlier than he did.

But somehow the decency of his instincts, the liveliness of his intelligence and the destructibility of his spirit are perceived now as the memorable aspects of his life.

His death has given new impetus to the drive for passage of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill — a national if limited commitment to full employment. It has inspired rededication to the faltering fight for equal rights. It has stirred new concern about every issue of justice with which his name was identified.

To be remembered that way is what he would have valued most.

ABC Program Director To Be NBC President

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Silverman, who took the ABC television network from the bottom of the ratings to the top by using his college thesis as a guide, has signed on with NBC to repeat the chore.

Sources at both networks said Silverman, 40, would be named president of NBC at a news conference today, to take over the network in June when his ABC contract expires.

Silverman will replace Herbert Schlosser who has been president of NBC since 1974. It was not known whether Schlosser would be fired or given another position.

Frederick Pierce, president of ABC, confirmed that Silverman was leaving his $300,000-a-year post as president of ABC Entertainment.

"While we are sorry to see Fred leave, we have achieved our leadership through a long-term team effort, and I am confident that we will continue that leadership," Pierce said.

The move means Silverman will have served in powerful positions in all three major networks.

ABC captured the ratings lead during Silverman's tenure. When he joined ABC in May 1975 after 12 years at CBS, the network was at the bottom of the viewing pile.

As a student at Ohio State University, Silverman wrote his master's thesis on how ABC should compete with the other networks. Among his innovations was a "living schedule," a schedule of programs unbound by traditional "seasons" which are introduced at different times of the year.

Silverman also developed a "cross-pollination" theory, taking secondary characters from popular series and giving them their own shows — "spinoffs," as they are known. "Laverne and Shirley," for example, were first seen as characters on the show "Happy Days."

The two shows often have placed first and second in weekly ratings this year.

During Silverman's tenure as programming chief at CBS, the popular "Mary Tyler Moore Show" spun off "Rhoda" and "Phyllis."

After working at stations in Chicago and New York, Silverman was hired by CBS as director of daytime programs at the age of 25. He was named vice president for programming at CBS in 1970, the post he held until he was hired by ABC.

Last year, ABC averaged a 21.5 rating, the highest rating level of any network in recent years and a 2.8 lead over CBS. NBC trailed in the ratings, causing wholesale firings at the RCA-owned network this fall.

Part of ABC's success last year can be attributed to the dramatization of "Roots," a search by author Alex Haley for his past. The program, one of Silverman's special projects, was watched at least in part by 130 million people during its eight-night run.

Silverman's critics scoff at his taste in programming, charging that such hits as "Donny and Marie," "Starsky and Hutch" and "Happy Days" are "low-brow" entertainment.

Paul Klein, programming chief at NBC, has denounced ABC's shows as "comic-book" material. Silverman soon will be Klein's boss.

"I'm not jealous of ABC's programs," Klein has said. "I am a little envious of the size of their audience, but only 5 percent envious."

FRED SILVERMAN

Acting Termed 'Atrocious' In Pierce's 'Graveyard'

"Graveyard" Stars Alex Cord, Lana Wood, Ben Johnson, Iron Eyes Cody and Charles B. Pierce. Written, produced and directed by Charles B. Pierce. Photographed and edited by Jim Robertson. Rated PG. At Showplace Four.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Fine Arts Editor

Charles B. Pierce, the independent filmmaker who seems driven to insult the American public at least once a year, has boldly stated, "I've produced five movies in five years, and they've taken in almost $100 million at the box office." Calling a $2 admission price average over the past half decade, that means at least 50

In any case, Graveyard kidnaps Beth Colter, played in laughable fashion by Lana Wood. Ben Johnson (who else?) is the father who rides off to the rescue, trying unsuccessfully to imitate John Wayne in "The Searchers," and Iron Eyes Cody is his faithful Injun companion Standing Bear. On the road, they meet a friend in Jack Elam (the film's only bright spot) and enemies in Pierce and an idiotic Shoshone named Scar, the latter played by Jacob Daniels.

Of course, the Indian's name in "The Searchers" was also Scar ... but you really don't think Pierce was aware of that, do you?

Acting, as mentioned before, is utterly atrocious. Lana Wood, looking like a New York model on assignment, is the worst of the lot. Some of you chauvinists may remember her expose in Playboy; others may simply see her as Natalie Wood's kid sister. But let me assure you right here that Natalie did not have enough late night talks with Lana, since the latter knows not the first thing about acting.

Her movements are stiff, her expressions fake. And despite the fact the whole thing takes place in 1848 Montana Territory, Lana decides if it's a western she ought to play it with a Southern accent. One almost expects her to turn to Cord and say, "Graveyard, please take me back to Tara." Then bat her eyelashes and swoon into his teespee.

Iron Eyes Cody is the Indian you've seen weeping over pollution in TV commercials; he'll be bawling when he sees himself in this picture. Cord couldn't even try to act, Pierce doesn't if he tried and Elam blows everyone out of the saddle without half trying. As for Ben Johnson, it's hard to appreciate his efforts any more. This actor has proven he'll take any grizzled garbage cowboy part offered him these days, and who can forget the fact his sole Academy Award effort ("The Last Picture Show") came with a part he never wanted to accept?

Perhaps realizing the audience would not care about relationships, Pierce has provided filler with cheap action — most shot in slow motion. We're given tomahawk duels on horseback, plunging sticks shot into Bad Guys (who then laugh and fall dead), and a nasty who manages to put his foot in an underwater bear trap after killing a three-legged dog

Then there's the charming game in which Indians tag armed men, then shoot them with arrows. Fun, fun, fun.

But it's all just padding to get us to the Big Surprise: the scene in which Graveyard tells Lana he's taking her to Running Wolf, a dying chief who is her real father and wants to see her before hooking it for that big powwow in the sky. You get it? While Ben Johnson was out deer hunting 20 years back, his wife (Lana's mother) was lonely and started fooling around with the nearest Indian buck.

Such infidelity means daddy ain't really daddy after all, which inspires Ben to mutter, "This country can be mighty hard on a man."

Of course, there's more. Music permeates the film from start to finish, with catchy lyrics like "A chick a wah ooh wah!" And then Lana starts falling for Graveyard, who couldn't even beat Scar in a fair fight, probably because he tells her such sweet nothings as, "Your hair is as smooth as the young deer floating in the sky." Which brings us to Pierce's character of Bugle, a crazy old trapper said to be "touched by the Great Spirit."

This movie proves he was touched all right. Touched by a direct blow to the head with a sledgehammer, that is.

While many Lubbockites are shocking film buffs by swarming in huge numbers to trips like "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre" and, worse, "Beyond And Back," the brunt have been plaguing me with calls requesting answers to such immortal questions as, "What the heck is going on? Where's Fonda? Where's Keaton? Where's Bancroft? Where are the big films?"

Good news, folks. They are now booked. All except "Equus" and "Three Women," the latter still being teased through posters at Showplace Four. And along with the standouts are some very interesting diversions.

However, if you've a mind to stay home, remember that Home Box Office television will screen Peter O'Toole and Katherine Hepburn's "The Lion In Winter" at 7 p.m. today. February will bring to HBO "Bound For Glory," "Alice's Restaurant," "Echoes Of A Summer" and even "Rocky."

million people have been taken in by such slop as "The Legend Of Boggy Creek," "Bootlegger" and now "Graveyard."

And that's incredibly sad. Pierce has always insisted on writing, producing, directing and acting in his pictures. Fact is, he usually stuck his son in every one of them also, although Junior seems to have wised up and disappeared this time around. But despite his multiple duties, don't look for Pierce to subscribe to any sort of auteur filmmaking theories. He's not trying to make any sort of statement. He just doesn't want to share the bucks.

And he obviously doesn't care to learn, either. The only thing which sets "Graveyard" apart from the rest, aside from acting which could very well be in the running for honors as the worst of this century, is the larger budget. Pierce has made enough money to buy more expensive toys. He shoots in wide screen scope, plays around with zooms and slow motion, instills a bit more violence. But his film's errors only stand out all the more through these glossy Hollywood excesses.

The picture, which could just as easily have been titled "You Mean To Say My Mama Played Around," relates the supposed legend of a Cheyenne brave who abducts a half-breed girl from her white father. The Cheyenne is Graveyard, naturally, and he's played with one expression by Alex Cord. His muscles (remember him in the motorcycle flicks?) haven't gone soft yet. His head, I'm not too sure about.

Retroactive Death Penalty Bid Denied

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bid by Attorney General Evelle Younger to make the state's death penalty law retroactive and execute 53 criminals has been rejected by the state Supreme Court.

Without comment Thursday, the court unanimously denied Younger's petition, which argued that a murderer's sentencing should be reheard because of the state's new capital punishment law.

Younger's attempt revolved around the case of Michael Payne, convicted of rape and murder in the death of a San Francisco woman two years ago.

Payne originally was sentenced to death. But his sentence was modified to life imprisonment by an appellate court after the state Supreme Court overturned the death penalty law in December 1976.

Younger sought to have the Court of Appeal retroactively apply a new death penalty law, which was passed last August over Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s veto.

The appeals court ruled such a move would violate Payne's rights under ex post facto laws, double jeopardy and equal protection. It called Younger's comments "fallacious, sophistical and specious." Younger is an announced candidate in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

In January, Younger asked that the new death penalty law be used retroactively to include inmates whose sentences had yet to be commuted.

Sixty-eight prisoners faced execution when the old law was overturned. Sentences were reduced for 15 after Younger announced his plans to seek retroactive capital punishment.

Shipowners Face Higher Channel Pilotage Costs

HOUSTON (UPI) — The West Gulf Maritime Association Thursday charged shipowners are facing a 20 to 25 percent increase in pilotage costs on the Houston Ship Channel under a new rate structure approved this week.

Under the new structure passed Tuesday pilots' annual earnings will run between $72,000 and $75,000.

The Houston Pilots, meanwhile, accused the industry organization's officials Wednesday of lying about the earnings of those who guide the ships on the channel.

A letter of protest to the Pilot Board released by the WGMA said the increase was not fair and just and the industry was disappointed the board did not see fit to publicly censure the pilots for a two-day sickout staged last week.

WGMA President Wiley George said the letter did not ask the board to take any action.

The pilots planned another meeting to decide on possible further action of their part. They contend the rate increase is about what they asked for.

Capt. J.B. Niday, presiding officer of the pilots, said an analysis of the rate structure shows while pilotage costs for some ships will go up about 30 percent, in other cases the rates will actually go down.

Niday challenged the WGMA's estimate of pilots annual earnings under the rates.

"They're lying in their teeth. They don't know what I make," he said, while refusing to disclose what pilots earn.

Fentress Bracewell, chairman of the Pilot Board and the Port Commission, said: "I hope that both sides do some rather careful analysis of that new rate structure."

"We're not dealing with raising the price of the cost of a can of beans."

This is the first time the board has been called in to settle a rate dispute between the pilots and the industry. In the past the two groups have worked out their agreements in private sessions.

Michigan Grade School Students Protest Legal Cat Killings

By CHRIS PARKS
LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — "I think about it like this," fifth grader Alana Andrews wrote. "What if I was a cat? I wouldn't want to be shot for no reason at all."

Using a time-honored American tradition, Alana and her classmates at the Theo V. Eddy Elementary School in St. Clair are trying to influence the course of public policy in Michigan.

The youngsters wrote letters of outrage to their state senator, Thomas Guastello, demanding repeal of an obscure, 49-year-old statute which makes it legal to kill house cats.

The letters were bundled up and mailed to Guastello under a cover page with the drawing of a black cat and the title, "Save Our Michigan Cats!"

"I feel that the law about shooting cats is ridiculous (sic) and should be stopped."

Trip Gives Reason For Energy Bill

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember back in November when President Carter, huffing at Congress' failure to enact an energy program, called off his grand tour abroad?

There was still hope, it seemed then, that the House and Senate would pull it self out of the energy mire and pass the legislation in 1977.

Carter said he didn't want to stray overseas while the dim hope of passage flickered atop Capitol Hill. He'd stick around town and help push for his policy, he said.

It appears now that Carter should have stuck to his original timetable.

He could have visited the nine countries on four continents in 11 days and hardly missed a point of order in the congressional energy debate.

Despite his continued presence in Washington, the energy program became bogged down ever deeper in the quarrel-

John Darrah wrote. "What about the cats opinion of this?" asked Jennifer Loynak. "They don't have weapons or protection. Animals are somebody so lets treat them like somebody."

"If you found your cat lying on your front yard, murdered purposely. Im sure you wouldnt be thrilled to death," Jill Kimmsa pointed out. "Please stop this law. How would you like to be killed?"

Stephen Lutz said he thought it was "a very bad habit to kill cats."

"You know, a cats life may not be as interesting as a persons, but its a life," he said.

Scott Jackson, who has two cats, warned Guastello that "if they get killed from hunters, I will be bugging you so darn bad you will be tired of reading my letters."

Heeding the call of his young constituents, Guastello introduced legislation to repeal the old state law. And his legislative colleagues are moving quickly to comply with the childrens' demands.

The bill already has cleared the state Senate and was approved by the House Conservation Committee on a 9-4 vote Wednesday.

It must now be approved by the full House.

One committee member voting against the measure, Rep. Harry Gast, insisted that he's not a cat hater — he just believes the bill is not really necessary.

Gast said he does not think the childrens' impassioned letters are a proper basis "on which legislation should be made."

Analysis

ing House and Senate, whose conferees finally threw in the towel and went home for the holidays just before Christmas.

So, Carter split for home, too.

Then, nearly four weeks after he would have returned to the White House, he set off on the venture into international politics plotted by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security assistant and resident global thinker at the White House.

It was a somewhat less grand tour than that originally on the books, but it took him to seven countries on three continents, and to a New Year's Eve bash in Tehran with the Shah of Iran.

The trip didn't produce anything dramatic, but it apparently gave Carter new, possibly stronger argument for energy policy.

Of course, as fate and congressional recesses would have it, when he got back, the House and Senate weren't around to hear his message.

So he told James Schlesinger, his energy secretary who was about to follow his footsteps in Saudi Arabia.

Everywhere he went, Carter said, foreign leaders told him of their "grave concern" about the United States' inability to deal with its energy problems.

What it boiled down to, he said, was that "perplexity and disappointment" abroad was contributing mightily to the slide of the value of the dollar in foreign markets. That's because we're spending $45 billion a year to import fuel, which some heads of state and just plain folks overseas figure is more than we can afford.

Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, put it this way:

"They understand, even if some people over here don't, that the decline in the value of the dollar is directly related to our inability so far to get control of our energy appetite."

"Energy also comes up in relation to nuclear non-proliferation. It's hard to convince people, particularly India, that we're serious about non-proliferation as long as we show no ability to get control of our fossil fuels," he said.

That argument helped win for Carter a commitment from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, for "a whole new effort" to break the legislative impasse.

The 95th Congress goes back to work this week, but it will face a host of other problems besides energy, some new, some old.

Although Carter consider's the energy dilemma Congress' top priority, the deadline for adjournment is now far away. So don't look for that sense of urgency that produced the frantic, albeit futile, flurry of activity to pass an energy bill that marked the closing days of the first session.

So Carter has a new argument, bolstered by a continuing slide of the dollar that has economists everywhere worried. But he can't be sure that argument will reach an attentive audience in the Congress.

Trial For Extortion Begins in Italy

SAVONA, Italy (AP) — A former mayor or a former relief official went on trial Wednesday on charges of extorting $15,500 each from a construction company building prefabricated houses for people made homeless in the Friuli earthquake in 1976.

The former president of the Savona hospital is charged with trying to get a payoff, and two other officials are accused of failing to report the matter to the government.

Academy Honors Science Fiction, Horror Films

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Donald Reed used to grouse that the Oscar voters rarely honor what you'd call weird movies. So he did something about it. He started his own honors emporium here in 1972.

It's "The Academy of Science Fiction, Fantasy and Horror Films."

This Saturday, for the first time, its annual awards bash is being televised nationally, to 80 cities, on a network set up by the Robert Wold Co., which transmitted last year's Nixon-Frost interviews.

The honors festival was taped here last Saturday. Among those on the show: Darth Vader and Mark Hamill of "Star Wars," William "Star Trek" Shatner and Buster "Flash Gordon" Crabbe.

For Reed, 40, a law librarian at tiny Woodbury University here, the 90-minute program marks a great leap forward for the do-it-yourself academy he founded "with just a few friends and family."

He says the academy now has 600 members, two-thirds of them from the Los Angeles area, the rest from around the nation. The tab for adult members is $25 annually, $15 for school-age participants.

The ranks include such sci-fi notables as veteran director George Pal and writer Ray Bradbury, but Reed emphasizes membership isn't restricted to makers of science fiction, fantasy or horror films.

"It's open to anyone devoted to a serious study of these films, anyone who enjoys them," says the academy president, who got hooked on moviedom's weirder wares as a kid growing up in New Orleans.

"Most people enjoy Halloween once a year, but I have it practically every day," he laughed, listing his favorites as "The Mummy" with Boris Karloff, "Dracula" with Bela Lugosi and "Star Wars."

He pronounced himself mightily pleased that the two hottest movies of 1977 are sci-fi flicks — "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

"Horror films, fantasy films and science fiction films have always been a staple, always made money," he said. "But it's only now that they're getting their recognition (in the industry)."

Why so? "People tended to look down on these films," he theorized. "They don't consider them culturally important. But they're not only entertaining, they also are great works of charm."

Granted, some may not think, say, "The Mummy," is quite that. But to enthusiast Reed, "the horror film is a medieval morality play brought up to date. "These pictures are deeply spiritual. In the traditional horror film — and there are some exceptions — a moral lesson is taught. And good is rewarded, evil is punished."

Speaking of evil, it is said TV now has too many award shows. Isn't Saturday's cheer to sci-fi, fantasy and horror coming at a time the market for awarding is glut-ted? "Yes," Reed conceded. "But we offer something different. The industry has refused to honor these films for 50 years. This academy was needed."

Navy Continues War Against Heavy Sailors

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy has fired another salvo in its five-year war against overweight sailors and shore personnel — and this time it could stop or slow promotions.

The latest tack is a new regulation requiring Navy supervisors of enlisted personnel to include height and weight figures in annual or semi-annual performance reports.

The reports also must contain a "comment" as to whether the Navy man or woman is fatter than Navy standards allow and a lower grade for such an individual in the "appearance" category of the evaluation form.

The periodic evaluation reports have a lot to do with whether enlisted personnel are recommended as eligible for regular promotion exams, Capt. Brayton Harris, a Navy spokesman, said Wednesday.

The Navy started its campaign to slim its ranks in October 1976, Harris said. The purpose of the crackdown is to ensure individual "good health" among Navy people, Harris said, and to "improve the Navy's physical readiness."

"It's an appropriate move. Being fat is unhealthy," said a young, thin sailor. "I don't know," said a somewhat older chief petty officer. "I'm still at my football-playing weight of 15 years ago. It's just moved down some."

By the Navy's standards, a man 66 inches tall, regardless of age, can range from 111 to 175 pounds.

Husband-Wife Salvation Army Team Planning To Retire

Maj. Avedis Kasarjian of Lubbock's Salvation Army installation, has been informed that Col. Guy Hepler, Texas Divisional Commander, and his wife, are retiring January 31 this year after completing a combined record of service of 91 years.

The Heplers are stationed at Dallas. The couple has been in Dallas since 1973, when they were transferred from the Georgia Division, where Colonel Hepler was commander from 1971 to 1973.

Mrs. Hepler is director of Women's Services of the Salvation Army in Texas. The colonel became interested in the Salvation Army through its band program. He played in an Army brass ensemble at age 14. He enlisted in the Salvation Army in 1929 and attended officer's training school at Atlanta. He was commissioned in 1930.

Mrs. Hepler, the former Clarice Gordon of Atlanta, Ga., entered Salvation Army officer's training in 1934 and received her commission that year.

The colonel and Mrs. Hepler, a lieutenant colonel, have been involved in the youth programs of the Army for many years. He is a former youth director of Oklahoma for the Army.

Recalling their years of rushing to the needs of disaster victims, the couple counts the tornado that destroyed the Panhandle town of Higgins (Tex.) in the late 1940s, as the worst they have ever witnessed. It completely leveled an entire town, they said.

They have two married children. The Heplers will retire to Tampa, Fla.

'Workshop' Set At St. John's

A two-day "worship workshop" will open at 6 p.m. today in St. John's United Methodist Church here. The church is located at 15th Street and University Avenue.

Leaders will be Jane Marshall and Jim White, both of Dallas. She is a well known composer of anthems for adult and children's choirs. He is a professor of Christian Worship at Perkins School of Theology at SMU.

The workshop will open with a meal at 6 p.m. today, followed by a period of hymn singing led by Bob Wert and Betty Dotts. Marvin Gregory will give the message of welcome. Introductions will be made by Frances Richards. From 7 to 9:30 p.m., "An Evening of Dialogue" will be presented, featuring Jane Marshall and Jim White.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. From 9 to 9:45 a.m., Jane Marshall will lead "Altogether Now!" And from 9:45 to 11:30 a.m., two groups will hear Jane Marshall on the subject "Clear Signals, Clear Sounds." The other group will hear Jim White lead "Worship: Preservation and Praise." A worship service at 11:30 a.m. will conclude the workshop.

Westmont Slates 'Lity Sunday'

Sunday will be "Lity Sundy" at Lubbock's Westmont Christian Church, located at 4808 U'ica Ave., according to Victor Sedinger, minister.

This is an annual observance which emphasizes the priesthood of believers, and the ministry of the layperson.

The morning worship service will be conducted by laypersons of the congregation. Les Hodson, chairman of the Administrative Board, will bring the morning message on the subject "Feed My Sheep." The message is based on the 21st chapter of John.

Others who will be participating include Marilyn Wragg, Pat Wiggs, Bob Peterson, Janice Watts, Gwen Selke, Jerry Wiggs and Howard Fenton. All are elders.

Unification Church Program Set

The Unification Church of Rev. Moon will hold a public program at 7:30 p.m. today in Lubbock's Memorial Civic Center.

A representative of the controversial church said there would be entertainment and messages of the teachings of Rev. Moon at the open meeting.

He said a question and answer period would be conducted to field controversial questions about the movement.

Highland Baptist Begins 'Growing Adventure'

Even as a new year, 1978, began January 1, members of Lubbock's Highland Baptist Church, began "A Growing Adventure."

This adventure is an intercessory prayer ministry that aims at a 24-hour prayer ministry, seven days a week, 52 weeks in the year.

Originator of the idea was the Rev. Richard D. Waters, pastor of Highland Baptist Church at 4314 34th St.

Most of the prayers go up from a prayer chapel, located on the west parking lot of the church, which sits at the intersection of 34th Street and Quaker Avenue.

These are busy streets during rush hours of traffic, but the little, white prayer chapel (actually a sort of miniature sanctuary), sits quietly beside the busy streets.

Inside, almost any of the 24 hours of the day, a single, a couple, or three, maybe four, persons are kneeling in prayer at the little chapel at the altar rail.

They could be praying for you...for me. Prayer requests are taken in person when the chapel is occupied, which is most of the time, and when there is no one around, a message recorder takes the prayer requests, and the requests are later transferred to the prayer list in the chapel.

The prayer chapel will be dedicated during the 10:45 a.m. worship service, January 29.

Highland Baptist Church actually began a prayer ministry in April 1977 and it ran a limited time, then the present permanent prayer ministry began January 1 this year as an outgrowth of that first effort.

Things moved right along when it was decided to build a prayer chapel. The chapel was built by 25 men of the church over a 4-month period — mostly on Saturdays.

Berwyn Tisdell, one of the church members, is the architect. The work on the chapel was done under supervision of Jack Carlile, another Highland member, who is a building contractor along with being a Lubbock fireman.

Members of the church have given contributions which have a paid for most of the costs of construction.

The telephone number of Highland's Prayer Ministry is 795-6892. Requests for prayer already are coming in from the church membership, the city of Lubbock, and from its area and points around the world.

A church spokesman said an "Answered Prayer" notebook is kept in which grateful persons share how God has answered prayer.

At the present time, 192 intercessors have signed up to pray for one hour each week. This list is expected to grow with assists from Tech students and young persons, who are invited to participate. Past experience indicates the youths and young adults prefer to take the hard hours either late or early.

According to observers and longtime residents, the Highland prayer ministry is one of the most ambitious in the city's history for an effort of its kind (prayer). The magnitude of the time element is focused when the arithmetic of 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for a full year, is recalled.

Highland members have indicated "we will meet the challenge as a 'growing adventure' in our Christian lives."

Need a prayer for yourself, a loved one, or a friend? That telephone number is, repeat 795-6892.

Elders' Meeting Studies Peter

"What would Peter do as an elder in our day?" This question is being given careful attention during the third annual Elders' Workshop, which ends today at Lubbock's Sunset Church of Christ.

The three-day session began at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Fifteen leaders are conducting the study of Peter's comments as an elder as found in I Peter 5:1-7:14.

"This study," said Abe Lincoln, one of the speakers, "is related in a very practical way to current needs."

Elders' work in coordinating the "feeding" of the congregation flocks, serving as counselors, correcting the disorderly, detecting and utilizing the potential of each member in a well-overseen work program, are some of the areas featured at this year's workshop.

Six question and answer periods and two discussion sessions have been on this year's schedule.

Last year, elders from 16 states and one foreign country attended. According to registrations, this year's attendance will be equally as outstanding, a church spokesman said.

Speakers included: Cline Paden of Lubbock; Al Pickering of Abilene; Lowell

Johnson of Lubbock; Abe Lincoln of Lubbock; Ken Erb of East Ridge, Tenn.; Jack Zorn of Belle Chasse, La.; Truman Scott of Fairfield, Calif.; Ted Stewart of Lubbock; Ernest Petty of Huntsville, Ala.; Ted Kell of Lubbock; Harold Phillips of Janesville, Wis.; Richard Rogers of Lubbock; Don Peden of Louisville, Ky.; and Richard Whitehead of Gainesville, Fla.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Rev. 20: 11-15, 21: 1-8, The Living Bible

11 And I saw a great white throne and the one who sat upon it, from whose face the earth and sky fled away, but they found no place to hide.

12 I saw the dead, great and small, standing before God; and the Books were opened, including the Book of Life. And the dead were judged according to the things written in the Books, each according to the deeds he had done.

13 The oceans surrendered the bodies buried in them; and the earth and the underworld gave up the dead in them. Each was judged according to his deeds.

14 And Death and Hell were thrown into the Lake of Fire. This is the Second Death—the Lake of Fire.

15 And if anyone's name was not found recorded in the Book of Life, he was thrown into the Lake of Fire.

CHAPTER 21

1 Then I saw a new earth (with no oceans!) and a new sky, for the present, earth and sky had disappeared.

2 And I, John, saw the Holy City, the new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven. It was a glorious sight, beautiful as a bride at her wedding.

3 I heard a loud shout from the throne saying, "Look, the home of God is now among men, and He will live with them and they will be His people; yes, God Himself will be among them."

4 He will wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain. All of that has gone forever.

5 And the one sitting on the throne said, "See, I am making all things new!" And then He said to me, "Write this down, for what I tell you is trustworthy and true."

6 It is finished! I am the A and the Z—the Beginning and the End. I will give to the thirsty the springs of the Water of Life—as a gift!

7 Everyone who conquers will inherit all these blessings, and I will be his God and he will be My son.

8 But cowards who turn back from following Me, and those who are unfaithful to Me, and the corrupt, and murderers, and the immoral, and those conversing with demons, and idol worshippers and all liars—their doom is in the Lake that burns with fire and sulphur. This is the Second Death."

Health Services Hospital Gives Tentative Rates

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Daily rates for semiprivate and private rooms in the county's new Health Sciences Center Hospital tentatively have been set at $65 and $75, respectively.

Those proposed room charges are "reasonable and in line with prevailing community rates," Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the medical facility and the Lubbock County Hospital District, said in presenting them to the finance committee of the district's board of managers.

The committee Thursday agreed with that assessment and recommended Bosworth's rate proposals be approved by the full board. The board is scheduled to meet Jan. 27, five days before the new hospital begins admitting patients.

A survey by the hospital district staff shows the recommended rate schedule does indeed strike a median among rates for other Lubbock hospitals.

For example, semiprivate (two-bed) rooms at the new county hospital tentatively will cost patients $65 a day. According to the staff survey, the daily rate for similar accommodations at Methodist Hospital is $59; at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital, $65; at West Texas Hospital, $70; and at University Hospital, $62.

The recommended daily charge for private (one-bed) rooms at the Health Sciences Center Hospital is $75. That compares, the survey said, with rates of $59 to $68 at Methodist; $73 at St. Mary's; $82 at West Texas; and $70 at University.

The new county facility, the primary teaching hospital for the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, will offer a preponderance of private rooms. About two of every three beds in the facility will be in private rooms.

All told, the university-affiliated hospital will have 245 beds. District officials plan to open about half that number when the hospital starts accepting patients Feb. 1.

Bosworth said the proposed new rates have been approved by Blue Cross-Blue Shield during recent negotiations. The recommended charges represent the levels Blue Cross will reimburse the district for care given to its policy-holders.

Ben Robinson, finance committee chairman, noted that the suggested rates for the Health Sciences Center Hospital generally are higher than Methodist's, but the same as St. Mary's and lower than West Texas's.

Bosworth said negotiations with Blue Cross will continue to set rates for "hundreds and hundreds" of other items and services offered by the hospital. His recommendations Thursday included only the most basic and important charges.

The finance committee Thursday also held a two-hour closed-door session to discuss architect fees for the $23 million hospital project. Details of that discussion were not disclosed.

Prior to the committee's meeting, the full board of managers convened for a one-hour executive session to study contractual arrangements with Texas Tech for providing diagnostic and other support services for the new hospital.

The board then broke into open session and immediately approved an agreement on the matter. That agreement will be sent to the Lubbock County Commissioners Court for ratification on Monday and to university regents for their approval.

The contract spells out how such support services as X-ray labs, the pharmacy, cafeteria and therapy rooms — most located in the university's part of the massive hospital-medical school complex — will be managed and financed.

"The word 'shared services' is kind of dead right now," J.C. Rickman, board chairman, said after the meeting, using the term that had been the focus of years of fruitless negotiations between the district and medical school.

Under the "shared services" concept, the university would have operated most of the services involved and sold them to the district as needed for hospital functions.

In August, the two institutions scrapped that approach and hit on a new, mutually acceptable arrangement. Thursday's contract, Rickman said, spells out the "general" parameters of this new arrangement.

"The hospital district will operate nearly all the support services," regardless of their physical location, Rickman said. These services include the central supply, emergency room, laboratory and blood bank, pharmacy, therapy services, radiology, medical records, and dietary and cafeteria services.

The university will manage a limited number of services, such as data processing, security, grounds maintenance, social work, out-patient clinics and communications.

Each entity will keep detailed records, to be reviewed quarterly, on the cost of the services it manages, the contract says.

And then the institutions will reimburse each other so that "the hospital district will bear those costs of the diagnostic and other support services which relate to in-patient and emergency services care. The medical school will bear those costs related to out-patient care."

Rickman called the contract "a real partnership agreement," and said he expects it to be approved by the county and the university.

Related agreements dealing with individual services will be worked out in coming months, he said.

Official To Ask Local Council For Amendment Of Ordinance

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A city official will ask the Lubbock City Council for emergency consideration next week of an amended insulation ordinance.

Following amendment approval Thursday by the Building Board of Appeals, building administrator Cecil Turquette said he will request expedited of the proposal to ensure citizen safety.

If the council agrees to consider the board's recommendation on an emergency basis, only one instead of two approving readings would be required for passage.

Should the council decline emergency consideration and approve the amendments routinely, it could be about eight weeks before the changes become effective, Turquette said.

In the meantime, he added, there would continue to be no city control over insulation being blown into houses.

The proposal that will go before the council is the refinement of several versions prepared by homebuilders, city staffers and insulators. The building board has amended each proposal and sent it back to its source for further refinement.

Except for minor changes in laboratory testing requirements, the latest version differs little from those considered several weeks ago. As proposed, follow-up, in-house insulation testing would be required on a regular basis. Certain approved laboratories would conduct the tests.

Turquette and board members contend such unannounced testing will assure consumers a good quality product.

Also, the amendments propose requiring a $5,000 surety bond from insulation contractors and installers as well as a $5 permit before material can be installed in a building.

Besides expanding the number of approved testing laboratories, the proposal would require an insulation installer to attach to every attic scuttle hole a placard containing detailed information about the insulation manufacturer, brand of material used, the testing laboratory, date of installation and signature of the installer.

Homebuilders and insulation manufacturers and installers at Thursday's meeting agreed the proposals would be acceptable to the housing and insulation industry as well as protect consumers.

Turquette began fighting for the changes last month after the building board overturned his interpretation of the current ordinance.

The building administrator had contended that the ordinance requires certain laboratory stamps of approval on insulation packages.

Insulators and homebuilders objected, and the board agreed the ordinance did not specifically require such labeling.

Contending that only such labeling and unannounced spot checks at factories would assure citizens quality products, Turquette introduced the first of several ordinance amendments.

County Judge Denies Pay Hike Hearing

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County rank-and-file employees won't get a hearing before the county's salary grievance committee to make their pitch for a 10 percent pay hike.

After "very careful evaluation," County Judge Rod Shaw said he can find no state law that allows the committee to hear such an appeal.

Reportedly, 189 of the county's approximately 370 workers signed a petition asking the grievance panel to convene to hear their request. They say Lubbock County salaries are so low many employees must moonlight to support their families.

Shaw said he sympathizes with the employees' plight. "They're fine, dedicated people and many of them likely deserve a pay raise," he said.

But the judge — who serves as non-voting chairman of the grievance committee — said that according to state law, the salary panel can be convened to hear appeals only from elected officials.

Shaw said three elected officials had signed the pay hike petitions. But they have declined to make presentations to the grievance committee as individuals, he said.

"I contacted each of the elected officials who signed the petition. They told me they certainly did not want to petition for themselves. They had intended simply to give moral support for their staffs" and the other employees, Shaw said.

Had any of the elected officials wanted to appear as individuals, Shaw said, he would have convened the grievance committee to hear their particular cases.

But because all three declined, the salary panel will not be called into session.

Shaw said.

"I just can't find anything in the law that permits (non-elected) employees to petition for a grievance committee hearing," he said.

Shaw said Criminal District Attorney Alton Griffin, the county's legal counsel, concurs with that finding.

Shaw said he and other members of the commissioners court "are concerned" about the pay levels of rank-and-file workers. Salaries will be "seriously examined and evaluated" later this year, perhaps during summer budget sessions, the judge said.

By that time, he said, county officials will know "where we stand financially." Right now, the county's fiscal future is too uncertain because the cost of a new jail and other committed projects has not been determined, Shaw said.

County employees got a five percent pay hike Jan. 1, but they say their salaries are still far below the pay levels of comparable positions in other local governmental entities and the private employment sector.

A hearing before the salary grievance committee might do little good anyway. Unless its vote is unanimous, the committee's decision on salary questions serves only as a recommendation to the commissioners court.

The three elected officials who originally signed the pay hike petition but apparently now have declined to appear as individuals are reported to be either justices of the peace or constables. Constables here make only $1 a year.

The grievance committee is composed of Shaw, six top elected county officials (excluding commissioners) and three citizens-at-large.

Lawyer Says Government Unable To Stop Crime

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Leonard Weinglass gained notoriety during the early 1970s as defense attorney for such social activists as Jane Fonda, the Chicago Eight and Angela Davis.

Thursday the Los Angeles attorney visited Texas Tech University to practice some social activism of his own.

In a speech at Tech's University Center Theatre, Weinglass railed at what he called "the tide of crime sweeping this country," and the inability of either the police or the government to stop it.

"No real effort has been made to address the basic issues of crime in this country or to lessen the level of violence. The police have all the paraphernalia of a small army today, but the streets still are not safe," Weinglass said.

"To deal with the root causes of crime, the government would have to deal with economic and social issues it would rather not deal with. (So) they arm the police with equipment that can't protect us and say that stiffer penalties will reduce crime. Have you seen the murder rate going down?"

The attorney called for a re-examination of the entire criminal justice system. "We like to say the criminal justice system works when a criminal is apprehended and sent to jail. But today when a criminal leaves jail he comes out more dangerous than when he went in.

"Even Nixon said the jails were schoolhouses for criminals," Weinglass added.

He said the government was telling the public "a myth" by claiming that stiffer penalties will deter crime and that terrorism is the greatest danger to American society today.

Nowhere is there any support to show that the threat of capital punishment lowers the crime rate, Weinglass said. "The real roots of crime lie in the social and economic conditions of our country."

In addition, he said, there were 20,000 murders in this country in 1975, according to the FBI. "Only seven of those murders were political assassinations, yet the government says terrorism is our greatest peril."

Weinglass said he felt Americans have "lost the capacity to protect ourselves (because) the government has abdicated its responsibility to protect its citizens."

"The government is not willing to use the resources to protect its citizens that it uses to protect itself against dissent and demonstrations."

Weinglass, who currently is a lecturer at the University of Southern California Law Center, appeared at Tech under the auspices of the university's Cultural Events program.

Webster Vows To Restore FBI's Glory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William H. Webster, the administration's second choice to head the FBI, vows to restore the troubled law-enforcement agency to its past glory, but with one eye on the U.S. Constitution.

FBI NOMINEE AND FAMILY MEET PRESS — Judge William H. Webster of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis introduced his family during a news conference Thursday, following word that President Carter has selected him as director of the FBI. From left are his wife, Drue, and daughters Drue and Katy. His son is away at college. (AP Laserphoto)

The 53-year-old federal appeals judge was selected by President Carter Thursday for a 10-year term in the $57,500-a-year post. The St. Louis Republican faces Senate confirmation before replacing Clarence Kelley, a Nixon appointee who plans to retire in mid-February.

Webster has his work cut out for him at the FBI, shadowed in recent years by allegations of illegal activities ordered from on high. But the graduate of Amherst and St. Louis' Washington University law school said he was eager to tackle the task.

"We should make the FBI the model for all law-enforcement agencies in this country in terms of professionalism and awareness of constitutional procedures," Webster told a news conference in St. Louis after his selection was announced in Washington.

The FBI under his management will aim to become the "preeminent law-enforcement organization within its own jurisdiction for the protection of our citizens within the framework of the Constitution."

The selection of Webster, appointed to the federal bench by Nixon in 1971 and once considered for the Supreme Court by Gerald Ford, follows a year-long White House search for a new FBI chief.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank Johnson of Alabama was named last August after an exhaustive nationwide search, but withdrew from consideration Dec. 9 after prolonged recovery from major surgery.

Webster, noting a recent physical showed him in perfect health, said, "I've missed two days of work for reasons of health in the last 29 years."

Webster leaves duties as a jurist on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a post he has held since 1973, hearing appeals from seven Plains and Midwestern states.

Attorney General Griffin Bell announced the selection of Webster, who beat out U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr, of Chicago. McGarr, 56, also a Republican appointee to the bench, expressed disappointment he was not chosen and said a newspaper story printed during the selection process damaged his reputation.

The attorney general went out of his way to emphasize the new FBI chief would report to him — not the White House.

"I do not want the director of the FBI involved in White House operations," Bell said. "We've been down that road before."

Bell, a former federal judge himself, said he knew Webster for "several years." "His life has been that of a lawyer, a prosecutor and a judge. I think he will bring a level of high intellect to the job."

Snowbound Patients Serenaded

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Since Dr. Jerry Sutkamp couldn't see his patients because of this week's heavy snow, he tried to cheer them up by singing to them over the telephone.

Callers to Sutkamp's suburban Bellevue, Ky., office heard the doctor say in a recorded message, "I am sorry to inform you the office is snowed in. We cannot get out, you cannot get in." And then his voice starts singing:

"Oh, the weather outside is dreadful,

WOMEN STUDENTS

Among U.S. students in the traditional years of college attendance, or the 22-and-under age group, women now form a majority of 52 percent, reports the Census Bureau.

"But the storm is so delightful. But since it has got to snow, 'Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow.'"

Farmers Hope To Establish Successful Coliseum Picket

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

When Gerald Myers said Thursday that the Aggies present "a lot of problems," it was closely akin to saying the Dallas Cowboys have a pretty good football team.

Both are decided understatements. And the Farmers from Texas A&M will be coming to Lubbock Saturday afternoon, not armed with tractors but with experienced basketball players who don't need picket signs to stop traffic.

It's set for a 3:08 p.m. throw-in—tipoffs are out of date in the Southwest Conference—with a regional television audience and a capacity crowd in Lubbock Coliseum expected to view the proceedings. And, it's a continuation of one of the league's most heated feuds.

The Aggies are the only SWC team to hold an edge (24-21) over Tech in past games, and for the past few years, the home court has meant little in the way of favoritism. In the last 10 years, the Aggies have won 6 times in Lubbock, Tech 4 times in College Station.

And of the last 11 games, 8 have been decided by 3 points or less.

But, this year, the Aggies were picked to finish second in the conference, Tech third. And Tech coach Gerald Myers is not deceived by the Aggies' 1-2 conference record (Tech is 4-1).

"They've played four teams and three of the teams have been extremely tough. They lost to Baylor and Arkansas on the road, then got beat by Houston at home," Myers commented. "They beat SMU 78-71 in College Station, and we just beat SMU by 2 out here (Tuesday night)."

"The Aggies present a lot of problems for us, and we're also going into the tough part of our schedule. We have the Aggies, Houston and Arkansas the next three games, and they're the top three teams—with (unbeaten) Texas—in the league."

The Aggies come in with a team loaded with veterans, and the problems involve physical aspects for Tech.

"They're a great rebounding team—strong, aggressive, good jumping ability—and that (rebounding) is one of our weaknesses. We're just not a good rebounding team. The Aggies are getting the second and third shots at the goal, and that's where we could be hurting."

"They're the most physical team I've seen this year."

Tech will be trying to hold onto the second best record in the conference. Behind the league-leading Longhorns' 5-0 slate, Tech is 4-1 and in a virtual tie with Arkansas (3-1) for the second spot. For the year, Tech is 12-4.

"SMU (the 45-43 squeaker last Tuesday) was a 'must' game for us, since we're going into the tough part of the schedule. And the Aggies always play hard in Lubbock."

Myers said he felt his team "seemed to come together" on the road trip last

Estacado Hosts Chiefs, Seeks First-Half Crown

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Most coaches seem to become more quotable when their teams are winning. The wins and the quotes just go hand and hand at times.

Same goes for Estacado basketball coach J. J. Wood in recent days. His Mat-adors, 20-2, can capture the first half title in the District 3-AAA race when they entertain San Angelo Lake View tonight at 8 p.m. And the likable EHS coach has drawn up an interesting comparison.

"Winning the first half is kind of like having an air-conditioner in your car," Wood said. "It makes the trip a little bit more comfortable."

Would you believe the same clever mind dreamed up, "It takes two halves to make a whole."

Anyway, the Estacado game highlights a group of top-notch high school games around the Hub City tonight. District 4-AAAA leader Monterey, 1-0, plays at Lubbock High, 1-1, at 7:30 p.m. Snyder travels to Dunbar and Lubbock Christian goes to Idalou at 8 p.m.

Lake View, 0-5 and 1-14 overall, lacks the record to impress anyone, but the EHS coach isn't ready to give away any game plans.

"They have some ballplayers," he said. "They gave Snyder a good game in the Snyder tournament. They came up here and got the shots they needed against Dunbar but they couldn't hit anything."

One local coach doesn't mind revealing his plans for tonight. Monterey boss Joe Michalka says his team will use a box-and-one defense at times to stop LHS guard Scotty Garcia. And the veteran coach didn't keep it any secret, either.

"I want the spectators to know what to expect. I want the student body to know. They can get behind us, hollering "defense" and it can help us," said the MHS coach. "We know that Garcia has to handle the ball to make them go. He's their playmaker. So we will box-and-one with Darren Layton on Garcia and we'll use David Davidson on him when Layton gets tired."

But C.E. Carmichael, David Thetford and the Lubbock High brain trust should beware of the tricky Michalka.

"C.E. has done one of the best coaching jobs in the city and Lubbock High plays with so much emotion and enthusiasm that you have to admire them. We're in a good frame of mind to play because a lot of our kids remember what Lubbock High did to us over here in the first half of district last year," said the MHS coach.

Michalka referred to Lubbock's 61-60 win at Monterey on Jan. 28 last year when Garcia fired a last-second shot under an opponent's armpit. The ball glanced off the backboard and dropped through the nets as the buzzer sounded.

Don't be surprised if a similar wacky finish occurs again tonight.

Bits And Pieces

ARKANSAS HAS ANNOUNCED the signing of Tom Christenbury, a high school football recruit from Memphis (Tenn.), although the SWC signing date is not until Feb. 8 and Christenbury is not a mid-term graduate. This is allowed under an obscure rule that allows a player to be signed by a team before its normal signing date if that player resides in a state in which there is also a South-eastern or Atlantic Coast Conference team. The SEC and ACC have their league signing dates in early December. It was Dec. 10 in 1977.

Steve Rajeff. You know him, of course. You don't? Well, he's been the world casting champion for the past five years, and he's just 21 years old. The championship is not well publicized, but the San Francisco State student is being urged by sporting goods companies to turn professional and promote their products. The sport is not well known in the United States, but is popular in other parts of the world. When Rajeff competed in Norway this year, there were contestants from 14 countries. He says there are 1500 to 2000 competitive casters in the U.S., but 150,000 in West Germany. One might think the sport is completely safe, but Rajeff recalls a time when a cast line snagged behind him and went out of control, wrapping around his neck twice and hurling the plug into his face just an inch below his eye . . .

RICE IS ONLY 3-10 this season, but hasn't been blown out of many games, as most people expected. A number of SWC observers believe first-year head coach Mike Schuler is getting as much out of the talent he has available as any coach in the league. One thing that has helped the Owls is conditioning. Schuler has said that when he took over the team, none of his players could run more than six laps around the court without having to rest. It remains to be seen, however, if Schuler can actually recruit well enough to rebuild the Rice basketball fortunes, which have been poor the last several years . . .

Surprise! The early leader in the Southwest Conference swimming race is SMU, the defending team champion and the champ for at least 150 years in succession, or so it seems. Through the early portion of the 1978 campaign, Mustang swimmers have posted the top times in 11 of 14 individual events and all three relays. Houston swimmers have the best times in the other three races . . .

FORMER TCU AND professional football star Sammy Baugh remembers clearly the personality of Bobby Layne, who was a well-known carouser during his playing days. "He was something," Baugh said with a chuckle. "I remember that Harry Gilmer (former quarterback) always laughed about him. He said, 'I've never seen anybody like him. He'd be out until 4 a.m. or 5 a.m. every night, but he'd always be ready for practice and practice as hard as anybody. Finally, he'd wear himself out and would sleep in for two or three days, getting up only to practice. Then he'd wake up one day with a gleam in his eye and rub his hands together and be ready to go again.' He was a hell of a football player, though. The players believed in him . . .

Baugh on Doak Walker: "He could do damn near anything on a football field. As a runner, he had this habit of not getting tackled . . .

Baugh recalls when quarterbacks were live bait even more than they are today. "It used to be that linemen could hit you and hit you until the play was dead. If a guy caught a pass and ran to complete a 70-yard scoring play, the linemen could hit you until he crossed the goal. There wasn't anything called roughing the passer then. Finally, Mr. (Washington owner George Preston) Marshall got a rule put in that said the quarterback couldn't be hit after he released the ball. It was a good thing. Quarterbacks were getting killed . . .

Bobby Bowden, who led Florida State to a 10-2 record and Tangerine Bowl victory over Texas Tech in 1977, says he will not accept the North Carolina job, if it is offered to him. He says he likes where he is living (Tallahassee, Fla.) and that it is worth more to him than money . . .

Monterey dominated the first half and coasted to a 75-39 girls basketball victory over Lubbock High Thursday night in the MHS gym.

The victory gave MHS a commanding lead in the first half of district 4-AAAA play with a 2-0 mark. Another MHS win Monday night over Coronado would clinch the first-half championship.

Marilyn Beckner and Becky Crow led the winners with 21 and 20 points respectively. Margaret Grennell followed for MHS with 16. Regina Dudley led the Westerners with 18.

The Plainsmen sank of 18 of 39 field shots in the first half and finished the game with 27 of 69 for 39 percent. Most of the regulars departed from the game in the early minutes of the second half after MHS commanded a 40-point lead. Jana Field led the Monterey rebounders with 8. Monterey outrebounded Lubbock High 47-20.

Monterey now stands 15-7 overall, while Lubbock fell to 0-2 and 6-13 for the year.

Class A Nabs Spotlight

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Tonight is "Class A" night across the South Plains, as each of the three districts has a feature tilt.

And two of those outings will involve the No. 1 teams in the area—in 4-A where Lorenzo treks to Hale Center for a key boys tilt and in 5-A where Stanton visits Shallowater for a contest that will likely decide the first half title.

In 3-A, Bovina entertains Farwell and the winner will have undisputed lead in that race with a 4-0 record. Bovina was picked third in the 3-A pre-season poll and Farwell was tabbed to finish in a dead heat with Vega. And since 3-A has a tournament involving the top four finishers in round robin play, tonight's game means much for both teams, but perhaps more to Bovina, since that school has not been in the state playoffs since 1961.

Farwell has 14 cage titles, including five this decade. The Steers are 10-8 on the year; Bovina 8-11.

District 4-A has also gone to the tournament format, so tonight's tussel at Hale Center is actually a must-contest for both teams. Lorenzo, the No. 1 Class A team in the area, is 14-3, 6-0. Hale Center, the defending loop champ, is 5-1 in league play and a five-game winning streak has given the Owls an 11-9 overall mark. Stanton's girls, the best in the area according to the ratings, are 21-2 on the season and 1-0 in 5-A play. Shallowater, No. 4 in the area, is 16-7, 2-0.

Here's other games of importance across the area:

District 5-AAAA — The first-half title is on the line as Abilene, No. 1 in the area with a 24-3, 6-0 mark, faces cross-town rival Copper, No. 2 in the area with a 21-3, 5-1 reading.

District 1-AAA — Levelland (10-5, 1-1) seeks to get back into the loop race against Perryton (12-11, 2-0). Canyon (12-12, 1-0) hosts defending champ Borger (13-8, 0-1) in another key game.

District 2-AAA — Monahans (19-3) and Pecos (6-11) seek to remain unbeaten in league play against Seminole (11-9, 1-1) and Ector (16-9, 1-1), respectively.

District 3-AAA — Dimmitt (20-4) and Friona (19-4) seek to go 3-0 in league wars against Littlefield (14-9, 0-2) and Olton (9-11, 0-2), respectively, while Morton (10-9, 1-1) and Muleshoe (14-7, 1-1) battle for survival in the first round. Tonight also marks the opening of girls league action.

District 4-AAA — Abertnathy faces Floydada in key games in both boys and girls play. Abertnathy's boys are 13-9, 1-0 and the girls are 16-10, 1-0. No other boys team is unbeaten and Lockney's girls, who face Tulia at home, are 19-7, 1-0.

District 5-AA — First-half champion Denver City takes the night off from league activity and Slaton's girls, No. 1 in area AA circles, attempt to improve their record to 20-5, 3-0 against Post.

District 7-A — Paducah (19-3, 5-1) has a chance to tie for the first half title should Crowell stumble tonight. The Dragons are at Rotan tonight.

District 6-B — Spade seeks its third loop win in as many outings against Cotton Center in boys play, while the CC girls hope to move into a first-place tie with Sudan, which is idle from league play tonight.

District 7-B — This is another biggie, as Anton (8-12, 2-0) and picked third in the pre-season polls is at Whitharal (18-4, 2-0), No. 3 in the area and the pre-season favorite. Anton's girls and Three Way share the lead there with 1-0 marks.

District 8-B — Winner of the Sundown-Smyer girls game will have at least a share of the first-half crown and would win it outright if Whiteface stumbles against Wilson on the road. Smyer, which beat Whiteface Tuesday, Sundown and Whiteface are all 5-1. Ropesville can win the boys first-half outright with a road victory over Southland, which has dropped three straight after opening with 17 consecutive victories.

District 12-B — Jayton's girls, No. 1 in the area, hope to improve their record to 26-1, 3-0 against McAdoo. Motley County's boys, unbeaten in three league tries, has the night off.

District 4-AAAA, N.M. — Hobbs, No. 1 in the state with a 15-0 mark, hosts Roswell Goddard and Clovis, tied for No. 2 with a 16-1 ledger, is at Roswell.

Chaps Seek To End Long Road Skid Against DBC

DALLAS (Special) — Friday, Feb. 20, 1978 will never rival Dec. 7, 1941 as a day in infamy, but staunch Lubbock Christian College cage fans can still clearly recall the events of that day.

Mainly, Marcus Johnson hit a free shot with five seconds left to lift the Chaparrals to a 69-68 victory over Dallas Baptist and enable LCC to halt an 11-game road losing streak.

Since that time, the Chaps have dropped 25 straight encounters—strange and otherwise—on the road.

But tonight, LCC opens a brief visit to the Metroplex area by taking on Dallas Baptist at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday faces Texas Wesleyan in Fort Worth in a pair of Texoma Conference South Zone tilts.

LCC, which is playing only 181 ball on the road as a senior college, stands 1-15 this year and 0-5 in conference wars. DBC is 6-16, 0-4, but has won 10 of 13 against LCC over the years.

Chaparral coach Darrell Price will have 10 players available for the trip, as Mike Winkle has recovered from an achilles heel injury. However, he has worked out only two days in the last five weeks, so it is doubtful if the 6-5 junior forward will log much playing time tonight.

Jack Bell, down with a bad back, will not make the trip. Price's probable starters will be 6-2 freshman Gary Norris and 6-0 Steve Doudney at the guards, with 6-3 freshman Lamar Sampy, 6-4 freshman Brian Fortner and 6-5 senior Mike Kahler on the front line.

The Chaps have been sparked by Sampy this year, as the Houston Jefferson product ranks eighth in scoring (16 7/8) and seventh in rebounding (8.1) in the TAC.

Kahler's 52.6 field goal percentage is the fifth best in the league but the DeSoto product has taken only 95 shots in 16 games.

DBC and LCC compare favorably statistically. LCC is averaging 72.4 points a game, DBC 71.5; DBC is allowing 80.4 points a game, LCC 87.4; LCC is grabbing 40.3 rebounds a game, DBC 37.7; the Chaps are hitting 44.6 from the field, DBC 42.7. The biggest difference is at the foul line, where DBC is hitting at a 70.7 clip and LCC 61.9.

The Indians are led by Bill Burden, who is averaging 18.2 points.

TWC, which leads the LCC series 5-3, is presently 2-12, 0-4 in TAC Play. The Rams are allowing 87.5 points a game, worst in the conference.

This weekend series will be the first zone games of the year. LCC is presently rated No. 8 in the Dunkel Ratings, with the top four teams in the rankings advancing to the District VIII playoffs in early March.

Namath Not Ram Problem

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Is it definite that Joe Namath will not be back with the Rams next year? And now that the season is over, does anyone know what went on inside their team? Did Namath create any problem?

— Marvin Wilkes, Redford, Mich.

A. Broadway Joe ceased to be a problem of any kind on October 10, the day he was benched by Coach Chuck Knox for the rest of the season. The Rams had decided by then that Joe, at 34, had lost the touch, and Pat Haden became their main man.

Off the field, Namath was never a problem and, in fact, may have been the team's best-liked player, says Isaiah Robertson. "We did some memorable partying. His philosophy with women is never to date them more than once and you never have any problems. And you know something, he's right. I'm going to miss all the beautiful girls around training camp next year. With Joe gone, I guess we go back to the dogs."

Namath's contract with the Rams runs out on February 1. They have the right to match his best offer, but won't. The question now is whether any other team will ante up the money to bring Joe Willie back, one more time.

Q. I have no sympathy for Kermit Washington, but I am puzzled by what has happened to him since he caved in Rudy Tomjanovich's face. First, why would the Boston Celtics trade for a guy who may not play again this year? And were the Lakers trying to lighten their legal problems by unloading him?

— Wendell Crey, Adams, Mont.

A. The Celtics, suffering through a dismal season that has seen their coach fired and attendance drop, figure they have nothing to lose. Washington will be eligible for reinstatement on February 9. His lawyers are in touch with Larry O'Brien, threatening to test the commissioner's powers in court. So the Celtics are gambling that Kermit will be available the final two months of the schedule. If so, he may give them what they have badly needed—a Paul Silas type of power forward.

Around the league, the word is that the Lakers were shopping him long before the Big Punch. If the courts find the Lakers liable for Washington's conduct—and three suits are pending—the trade won't help them.

Q. A few years ago the Miami Dolphins had a 14-0 record. Would you please tell me what the best won-loss records are for regular season in the NBA and the baseball major leagues? Also, what the longest winning streaks are in these two sports?

— Hadley B. Roberts, Salmon, Idaho

A. Baseball's best record was posted by the 1906 Chicago Cubs (116 wins, 36 losses), and the longest winning streak was 26 games by the 1916 New York Giants. In basketball, the Lakers established both marks, with a string of 33 wins and a finish of 69-13, in 1972.

Q. I have asked these questions before. Please answer. What clubs did Cy Young play with? Was Lefty O'Doul an outfielder or pitcher?

— W.L. Dillard, Sacramento, Calif.

A. Hall of Famer Cy Young won his 511 games pitching for Cleveland, in the National and American Leagues, with the St. Louis Browns and Boston Braves. Lefty O'Doul started his career as a pitcher, appearing briefly on the mound for the Yankees, in 1919, then spent the next 10 years in the outfield, with the Giants, Phillies and Dodgers.

Browner Reaps Another Honor

HOUSTON (AP) — Notre Dame defensive end Ross Browner gave the No. 1 signal twice during his final collegiate football season.

The first time came when the Fighting Irish beat Texas in the Cotton Bowl to win the national championship. The second time was Thursday night when he won the Vince Lombardi Award as the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman.

And maybe the second time had a deeper personal meaning.

"I wanted to go out with a national championship," the senior 6-3, 247 pounder said. "We accomplished that and now I feel I can give the No. 1 signal to my father because I came out on top in this, too."

Browner addressed his No. 1 signal to his late father, Jimmy Lee Browner Sr., who died of cancer in 1976.

"I do have some reasons to dedicate the rest of my life to the fight against this dreaded disease," Browner told the sell-out crowd of 1,200 at the $100 per plate dinner. "I got a lot of the discipline that I have today from my father."

Browner, a finalist for the Lombardi Award last year when the trophy went to Houston's Wilson Whitley, won out this year over teammate tight end Ken MacAfee, Texas defensive end Brad Shearer and Kentucky defensive end Art Still.

Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine said Browner, as one of four team captains, was one reason the Fighting Irish came

Pardee Quits Chicago For Greener Pastures

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears found themselves without a football coach today after Jack Pardee "re-signed" for greener pastures.

Pardee, who had been bidding his time in signing a new contract, asked permission to talk to the Washington Redskins and shortly after that the Bears issued a release that Pardee had resigned.

Pardee, who had been at the Bears' helm for the last three years and had been reluctant to sign again, said, "I nearly fell out of bed when I heard the news Wednesday night."

The news was that George Allen had been fired as coach of the Washington Redskins.

Pardee left for Washington to talk to the Redskins and the Bears were in line searching for a new head coach. Before leaving, when asked whether he had been fired or quit, Pardee said: "Well, no, I'm just talking to Washington. Nothing has changed." Told the Bears had said Pardee had resigned, he replied, "Well, whatever they said."

Jim Finks, general manager and vice president of the Bears, was on his way to Tampa, Fla., for the National Football League meetings and unavailable for comment.

Pardee, reached at O'Hare International Airport before leaving for Washington, said, "I enjoyed living at Washington more than I did any other place."

Pardee is a 15-year veteran of the National Football League, having played at Los Angeles and Washington under Allen. Recently he said he was displeased with facilities involving the Bears' training camp and their home grounds at Soldier Field.

How close was Pardee to signing again with the Bears?

"I assumed it could have been worked out and at the time there were no other alternatives," said Pardee.

But an alternative presented itself with Allen out of the way at Washington and Pardee wasted little time in setting up an appointment with Edward Bennett Williams, president of the Washington Redskins.

Finks announced Pardee's resignation after the two had met Thursday morning to work out a new contract.

Pardee was hired by Finks in 1975 and the Bears finished the season at 4-10. They were 7-7 in 1976 and 9-5 this season when they earned the wildcard berth in the playoffs only to lose to the Dallas Cowboys.

Pardee's previous credentials include coaching the Florida Blazers to a 14-7 record in the World Football League although the club failed to meet the payroll in the final weeks of the season.

Pardee insisted that his agent, Ed Hookstratten, had nothing to do with the manipulations. Hookstratten, however, is also the attorney for the Los Angeles Rams and the agent for Allen.

"Ed hasn't sought job for me at all," said Pardee. "once I heard the job was open at Washington, I decided to take a shot."

ference guard and second team all-American at Texas Tech after winning all-state honors at Wichita Falls Hirschi.

In submitting his resignation, King said, "In coming to Coronado, I had some definite goals in mind, many of which I have not accomplished to my satisfaction." He added, however, "I appreciated the opportunity to work at Coronado."

Ragus said that King, however, felt that a change was the best move at this time.

King succeeded Jimmie Keeling as head coach at Coronado after the 1974 season. In three years at the Mustang school, King had a record of 10-19-1. Last season, the Mustangs finished 4-5-1.

At Kerville, King took over in the summer of 1974 and guided the Antlers to a 6-5 season. They won their zone championship but lost to Uvalde in the district playoff.

Western Miners Remain On Job

BROADWAY STARS LOVE NEW YORK — Frank Langella, right, star of "Dracula," adopted a playful pose Thursday with Andrea McArdle, star of "Annie," during filming of commercial "I Love New York." DENVER (AP) — When members of the United Mine Workers walked off their jobs six weeks ago, it was an impressive show. About half the nation's coal production stopped.

But half of it didn't. "Out here in this part of the country, we don't pull the pin and take off," said Jesse Mascarnas, president of UMW Local 1799 in Craig, Colo.

At the Empire Energy Corp. mine near Craig, Dec. 6 — the day the strike started — was just another workday for 120 UMW members.

Before the end of December, their contract was settled. About 80 percent of the West's 14,000 coal miners — who produce more than a quarter of the nation's coal supply — have been only minimally affected by the UMW walkout.

All but 13 of the UMW contracts that cover about a third of western miners have been settled. Eight mines are idle in Utah, five more in Colorado and New Mexico.

Between 85 percent and 90 percent of the coal mined in the West — which includes North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico and Arizona — is taken from just under the surface, unlike eastern coal, much of which is deep beneath the earth.

Of the West's estimated 14,000 coal miners, 8,000 work above ground. Of those, only 3,000 belong to unions.

But for those who are union, western mine operators "are more liberal with their coins" than their eastern counterparts, said Thomas Pysell, assistant to the UMW's western director.

An eastern underground miner takes an average of eight tons of coal a day from underground. In the West, a surface miner — aided by heavy equipment — can produce between 50 and 100 tons of coal in a shift.

A surface mine worker at the top of the wage scale brought in $9 an hour under the last set of contracts. The new 40-month agreements signed by the UMW's 3,000 western surface miners provides an additional $1.94 an hour over the life of the contract, plus automatic cost-of-living increases, two more paid holidays — for a total of 12 — and an increase in sickness and accident benefits from $100 to $150 a week.

Eastern UMW miners were making about $8 an hour when their contract expired Dec. 6, and the union reportedly is asking for a $2.80 hourly increase over the 40 months of a new pact.

Also, the two points that stalled UMW talks with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association in the East never were in question in the West, Pysell said.

Workers did not ask for the right to strike over local grievances. And the employee benefit fund, paid for by royalties in coal production, is in healthy condition, unlike the one in the East, which was hit hard when wildcat strikes last summer cut coal production. Pysell said there were about 877,000 beneficiaries for the eastern fund while "here we may have 500 drawing off the fund."

As for the unions themselves, the UMW represents a little more than one-third of the unionized western miners — only slightly more than its closest rival, the International Brotherhood of Operating Engineers. It also competes with other unions ranging from the United Steelworkers to one-town bargaining units like the Thompson Creek Mine Workers Association of Colorado's Western Slope.

In 1970, the West contributed 30 million tons of the country's coal production. By 1977 it had moved up to 150 million tons of the total estimated U.S. production of about 600 million tons.

By 1990, as the nation reverses its energy picture and relies heavily on coal again, it is estimated that one-third of the supply will be from the West.

Doctors Remake Face, Head Of Newborn

By LORI COOKE

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — When Clayton Briley was born seven weeks ago, the middle of his face was pushed in and his eyes bulged out, tell-tale signs of a congenital birth defect known as Crouzon's disease.

Eight days ago, doctors operated for six hours, rolling back the skin of his face and manipulating his brain by hand so they could cut the bones of his skull and rearrange them into a normal face.

Clayton is getting ready to go home today, with nothing but an ear-to-ear scar across his scalp to mark his ordeal. He was the youngest child ever to undergo such surgery at Duke Medical Center here, which performs similar operations about once a month.

Crouzon's is a birth defect which affects what doctors call skull sutures — the openings where a baby's skull has not yet closed. They normally are felt as soft spots on a baby's head.

In a baby with Crouzon's the openings are closed at birth, forcing the brain to grow toward the top of the head so the child ends up with an elongated skull structure. The section of the face around the eyes and nose is not developed. The eyes bulge out and the face is usually wider than normal.

The breathing passages are too small and the child often breathes through the mouth, adding to the abnormal look.

The surgery Jan. 12 began when doctors made the ear-to-ear incision across Clayton's scalp and rolled the skin down the front of his face. Because the two bones at the top of Clayton's skull had not fused, Dr. Robert Wilkins and his neurosurgical team lifted them out and set them aside.

Although the top skull sections had been separate, two openings usually found at the front and back of infant heads had grown together. Doctors had to separate the bones so Clayton's brain would grow normally.

With the openings made, doctors moved Clayton's brain out of the way so they could reshape his face.

Led by Dr. Calvin Peters, a team of plastic surgeons loosened Clayton's eyes, eye muscles and optic nerves from the eye sockets. Peters then cut through one socket, across the forehead area, then in to the other socket. He also cut across the bone which forms the bridge of the nose, loosening it but not cutting through.

Then the skull was settled forward into a normal position, the eyes settling into their sockets instead of bulging out.

Clayton had no eyebrows before the operation, but Peters created a bony eyebrow as he cut across the forehead area and moved the nose and eyeball.

That done, doctors rolled the skin off the back of his head and opened a second seam there, giving him both the skull openings that normal babies have. Then they replaced his skull bones in the front of the brain and closed up the original incision.

Clayton snapped back beautifully. "He came screaming out of the anesthesia," said his mother, Aseath Briley.

The parents decided to chance the surgery because, Mrs. Briley said, "We wanted to give him every chance in life we could."

The Brileys have a 4-year-old daughter who is normal, as are the other members of the family.

Doctors at Duke say Clayton may need additional surgery later. They say there is very little chance Clayton will be mentally retarded.

Agency Denies Rule Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission won't require safety rules for electrical extension cords now, but says industry should include label warnings voluntarily.

It suggested label warnings to parents to keep children away from plugged-in cords because they can suffer severe mouth burns if the cords are bitten or chewed.

Korean Police Find Stolen Radar Parts

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Korean police have recovered a stripped-down pair of radar parts that were worth $21,000 when stolen from the U.S. military recently, an American spokesman announced today.

He said police, acting on a tip, arrested a Korean man and found "major portions" of the electronic components Wednesday in a hotel room in suburban Seoul.

The spokesman said South Korean authorities were looking for a second Korean suspect of involvement in stealing the parts, called modulator-oscillators and intended for use in missile radar systems.

But it denied a petition from the National Electrical Manufacturers Association of New York, asking for mandatory federal safety standards for extension cords.

"In 1975 and 1976, CPSC learned of some 3,000 injuries to infants from extension cords. Of these, 28 percent were mouth burns, mostly to children younger than age 10," the agency said Thursday.

"Almost 400 of the mouth burns were to children under 2 years of age who bit or sucked the cord."

The agency said some Underwriters Laboratory standards already address mouth burn and shock hazards from extension cords, but newly proposed UL rules would further reduce such injuries by adding insulation to cords and requiring warning labels.

The CPSC said about 500 million extension cords are sold annually in the United States.

Agency Says Sex Replaces Violence On Television

By JOAN HANAUER
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Sex on television, to paraphrase Mark Twain, is something that everybody talks about but nobody does.
 "Even if it is all talk, there is more of it. As the violence level has been reduced, there has been a growth of programs based on sexual themes," said Joseph R. Daly, chairman of Doyle Dane Bernbach, a major advertising agency.
 Actually, Daly didn't say it — he wrote it in a speech to be delivered Thursday at a conference in Key Biscayne, Fla., but was weather-bound in London and his speech was rescheduled for delivery by another Doyle Dane executive.

 "In the current television season," the Daly speech continued, "I believe these sex-oriented programs have reached new levels in terms of their numbers and the potential controversy of their content."
 What to do? Conduct a survey, of course, which Doyle Dane did, polling 400 Americans on their attitudes toward sex on television. Summarizing the results, Daly suggested:

 "I think we can conclude from the survey results that sex on television is a major source of concern for many Americans, equaling violence in importance."
 Answers to the first question in the poll should dismay the industry — 46 percent said that television was worse than it was five years ago. 26 percent found it better and 28 percent called it about the same.
 In a question about public satisfaction with the handling of various themes, 66 percent were generally satisfied with the television handling of sex related scenes and themes, while 54 percent were generally dissatisfied.

 What gives the figures added zing is that when asked whether sex-related material on television today accurately reflects what is happening, 66 percent agreed. In addition, 60 percent agreed with the statements that it makes people more understanding of other people's way of life, and 58 percent also agreed that it provides people with the kinds of entertainment they desire.

 Daly believes those polled "are willing to tolerate a wide range of sexual subject matter, depending on its context and the extent to which it is perceived to threaten the welfare of their children or their concepts of normal family life."
 He advised that while "television should continue to be innovative and experiment, it probably also should leave the evolution of new sexual patterns" to others.
 When it came to who should select programs, the viewing public voted for itself to make the decisions, followed by broadcasters, then consumer organizations, with sponsors trailed only by the government in unpopularity as censor.

 Daly's answer, "We do feel that the ultimate decision regarding program selection or rejection of potentially sensitive programs must rest with the advertiser."
 Since a program drawing a big audience over a sustained period can find advertisers to sponsor it, that puts the responsibility for what goes on the air right back in the living room.

TV Actress Started As Singer

By JAY SHARBUTT
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's a mind-buster to sit with Wonder Woman, expecting the usual Hollywood babble, but hearing instead knowledgeable talk of jazz and even a brief rendition of "Cloud-burst."
 That's a tune recorded years ago by the famed jazz vocal trio of Lambert, Hendricks & Ross. About Annie Ross, one of the trio, Lynda Carter, also known as Wonder Woman, had this to say:
 "God, what a voice. She must have had, what, 4½ octaves? And what timing and phrasing. She was just incredible."
 But then, says the lady whose "Wonder Woman" series moved from irregular status on ABC last season to a regular. CBS slot this year, music has always lit up her life.
 The tall, black-haired, blue-eyed actress from Phoenix, Ariz., began as a singer, working with several groups heard in various locales, among them club lounges in Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe.
 She got into acting, she says, "because I was tired of the road. It stopped being fun travelling all the time. I really wanted to study acting and did nothing but study here for about 2½ years."
 But Miss Carter is about to giving singing another go. The former Miss World of 1973 will cut a solo album for Epic Records in February, then headline her own Las Vegas club act in late June.
 She credits Ron Samuels, the personal manager she wed last May, with encouraging her to take another shot at the vocalizing with which she began her showbiz career a few months out of high school.
 Miss C., who lists Lena Horne and Melissa Manchester as among the singers she most admires, says she primarily sang ballads in the days before she began her climb to success as a non-warbling Wonder Woman.
 She was asked what is afoot musically in her first album.
 "It's contemporary country, cross-over country," she said, meaning the tunes — several of which she co-wrote — are aimed at appealing to fans of both country music and the other kind.
 She emphasized it won't be "middle-of-the-road," a pop music category some describe as ear pabulum.
 "That's what I don't want, the 'actress is now going to sing' stuff," she said. "I've been working on music too long and writing for too long to do that. I'm going to do what I want."

Owner Describes Discotheque's Success

By DOLORES BARCLAY
NEW YORK (AP) — The lights are cold. The dance floor is strangely bare. Giant speakers that boomed with spicy funk are now stilled. Studio 54, the dance emporium of the famous, not-so-famous and infamous, is at rest after a night of festive uprising.

It's mid-afternoon and the last dancers left about 5 a.m. Steve Rubell then bounds through the side stage door. He coughs a few times and apologizes for his apparent cold. He coughs again and smiles — all crimson cheeks and watery eyes.

At 33, Rubell has a lot to smile about. He's co-owner of Studio 54 — one of the nation's fastest moving, fastest growing and most popular night spots. Rubell should be exhausted. He isn't. Up the night before until maybe 7 a.m., he's back at the discotheque to prepare for another night.

"It's really the theater," he says, as he watches a light technician change settings and a florist re-arrange fresh cut lilies. "You just don't come to a disco sometime in the evening and open it up and play music. We try to produce a show here."

In less than a year, the $1 million investment Rubell made in the former opera-house-turned-television-studio with his partner, Ian Schrager, has paid off handsomely. How handsomely Rubell won't say. "It's been a very, very successful enterprise," he says.

Nonmembers pay $9 on weekdays and $10 on weekends to get into Studio 54. Members, who pay $75 a year, are admitted for $3 less. On a given evening, there may be as many as 2,000 people boogieing the night away on West 54th Street.

"We turn away between 2,000 to 3,000 people on a Saturday night," said the diminutive Rubell, who personally stands at the door and picks through the hordes to decide who will and who will not be permitted in that evening.

"I don't let people in when I have doubts about them," he said. "We let anybody in who's nice. We don't care where people are from. But if they're from out-of-town or abroad, we give them first choice."

"I will let in single gays but not single straights," said Rubell. "This is not meant to be a pickup place. It's a place to have fun." And what is it thousands of pairs of feet mightily stand in line for?

Perhaps it's a chance to dance side by side with people like Liza Minnelli, Bianca Jagger, Diana Ross, Raymond St. Jacques, Sylvester Stallone and Caroline Kennedy.

It could also be a chance to live out a drug fantasy. Studio 54, like many discos of the '70s, caters to a drug-oriented society. One of the backdrops shows a man-in-the-moon and a giant spoon whose contents trickle up to his nose as tiny lights.

But perhaps people flutter to Studio 54 because they can hear the most up-to-date disco music pouring forth from speakers measuring 9 feet by 16 feet. And they can dance with 11,000 light bulbs flashing overhead, including nine poles with three sets of lights each that are capable of revolving while being raised or lowered in the crowd.

And it's a place where outlandish attire is more the norm than the exception. Anything goes — sometimes even clothes. Bare is often best.

Then, again, for those weary of the dance and din, there's an entire balcony area with carpeted lounging bleachers.

The upper section of the balcony is retained in its original, complete with uncomfortable wooden seats. Many years ago, live studio audiences sat there and laughed over the exploits of Phil Silvers in his Sgt. Bilko show.

And where Capt. Kangaroo once delighted the small set.

Now, barechested men in white boxer shorts empty ashtrays and collect dirty glasses.

"It's a Disney world for adults," Rubell said. "It's not a planned dream but a dream come true. I have fantasies — I don't want to stop here."

Part of his vision includes turning the basement of Studio 54 into a Coney Island-type amusement area, complete with bumper cars, a gazebo for birds and a room for silent films. He'd also like to start a disco in London. "It'll be different," he said. "This place is a part of me. I'm here every night because I like people and I like greeting people."

Rubell stands suddenly, apologizing for his blue jeans and track shoes and his relentless cough. The enthusiasm and smile are still there. "Hey, you want to see something?" A reply is not needed as he leads the way to the bowels of the discotheque.

There in the basement, through a myriad of passageways with low-lying ceilings that the 5-foot-5 Rubell has no problem with, is a collection of props and paraphernalia that would make a feast for the average 6-year-old. Balloons from past parties. Swings hanging and primed for a good push.

All of this from a Brooklyn kid who wanted to be a schoolteacher. Instead, after graduating from Syracuse University, he opened a chain of family restaurants — Steak Loft. One day he walked past the old opera house on West 54th Street, just off Eighth Avenue, saw a for sale sign and in five minutes decided to buy it with Schrager, his former attorney.

For the most part, Schrager occupies his time planning the many private parties that take place at the disco — like the one for Bianca Jagger, complete with flying white doves, or the New Year's Eve bash with disco queen Grace Jones holding forth on a serpent head stage. Meanwhile, Rubell, the doorman and bouncer, becomes media's child.

"I'm in a glass house," he says, returning to the main floor, from the basement. "I find I get treated for better or for worse. It's nice for people to think you're a success. It's nice NOT to have been comfortable and then to be able to buy what you want. It's nice to NOT have and then to have."

Diana Rigg Lauded In Stage Performance

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — There's good news for those who would go almost anywhere to see the delectable Diana Rigg in almost anything.

Britain's National Theater is presenting her in a sumptuous revival of Ferenc Molnar's "The Guardsman," a play which once was all but killed by success. It is a production of great beauty. Rigg glides through sets patterned by designer Ralph Koltai on extravagant turn-of-the-century paintings by Gustav Klimt, and her gowns are gorgeous.

Moreover, Peter Wood directs the comedy with some stunning theatrical coups, and the National's vast resources are deployed with delicacy and finesse.

Yet the fascination of "The Guardsman" today is simply to see it all. It has been in limbo for nearly half a century because no one would challenge the ghost of the Lunts.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne first appeared as a team in "The Guardsman" in 1924 on Broadway, and it became their only movie. After the Lunts, few dared tackle the roles until Maggie Smith and Brian Bedford broke the ice last year at Stratford, Canada.

Hopefully the current National Theater version will ease the play back into the standard repertory. For it is a deliciously funny comedy — despite what its author thought.

Molnar said he wrote it in 1910 "to work off the most searing pain of my young life." He said it was "a perfectly agonizing play" even though audiences would keep laughing at it.

"I think the crux of the play has more depth than its comedy line," Diana Rigg agreed in an interview before opening night. "It's about the female and male condition."

Well, yes and no. Its basic joke is the ludicrous sight of a man trying to seduce his own wife.

Nandor, an actor of giant ego, knows his wife Ilona finds a new admirer every six months — and their marriage is six months old.

So he masquerades as a royal guardsman and mounts a flowery assault upon her virtue.

The outcome is predictable, but there are surprising delights along the way.

"In tactics," Ms. Rigg admitted in her interview, "women can run rings around men. I believe women are more devious than men. We're more subtle."

Which is what "The Guardsman" is really about — a woman running rings around a man with devious, subtle ways. It can hold depth and comment on "the female and male condition" but mostly it's just good fun watching Diana Rigg work her wiles on Richard Johnson's peacock-proud husband.

Director Wood, playing less for depth than frothy frolic, makes this play about actors blatantly theatrical. He opens and closes with brilliant theatrical tricks and ends the first act with another.

At that point, in full view of the audience, stage hands in seconds whisk away a living room set and transform it into a box at the opera. Then the curtain falls.

The audience files out for intermission in no doubt that they are watching a play.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Debbie Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor went to high school with Dick Tracy and James Bond.

Neither Tracy nor Bond made it as super sleuths. Tracy became a meat cutter and Bond is now an environmentalist.

Miss Reynolds and Miss Taylor remember that back during school days, they were always being asked about the same boy.

"People would come up to me and ask, 'How's Eddie?'" Miss Reynolds said, referring to singer Eddie Fisher, who was married to actresses Debbie Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor.

Having a famous-sounding name can bring unwanted attention — like a middle-of-the-night telephone call.

"The teen-agers call at one in the morning and say, 'This is Johnny Carson. I need to see you tomorrow,'" said Ed McMahon.

"It gets to be a problem, too, like when I bought a television last week. The salesman wanted to know my name and when I told him, he thought I was kidding."

Food salesman Jimmy Stewart at one time had more people thinking he was a Cincinnati Reds utility infielder by the same name than the actor.

Most name-alikes don't mind the attention. Many say it can be fun.

"It's even had its advantages," said banker Roy Rogers. "It's useful when you're running for office in national conventions. Nobody forgets Roy Rogers is on the ballot."

"But I really hated the name when I was young because I was teased so much. It was worst at times like in the doctor's office when the nurse would come out and call your name. It was embarrassing to get up."

Rogers doesn't know that Dale Evans is a dentist in Kentucky. School days were particularly hard on Evans, because his name is the same as that of Roy Rogers's wife, but now he says his name makes things easier on the job.

"I think it relaxes my patients," he said. "They get in the chair and they can kid me about my name. It gets them relaxed."

Critic Applauds Opera 'Thais'

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Sills ranged from sexy to sweet — and sang beautifully — as the Metropolitan Opera performed "Thais" this week for the first time since 1939.

Many think that the title character in Jules Massenet's "Manon" is the role Miss Sills sings best, so it is no surprise that she can sing his Thais. But besides experience Miss Sills also reveals extraordinary grace.

In a bare-midriff outfit, she dances seductively, then — during the famous "Meditation" — she dances reflectively.

Baritone Sherrill Milnes, whose part as the monk Athanael may give him even more to sing than Miss Sills has, was splendid.

This opera, which has had only 38 Met performances including this week's, is set in fourth century Egypt. Athanael, in the desert with his order of monks, decides he should save the soul of Thais, Alexandria's most popular courtesan. She, worried anyway about growing old, decides to enter the convent as he suggests.

Athanael, who when he first envisions Thais lusts for her, declares love for her as she dies in the last scene. But she is concentrating on heaven and doesn't hear him.

as a stage director, made Milnes look silly in act one by having him yank off the belt of his robe and reveal shorts.

Otherwise, the acting was up to the vocalizing. Miss Sills managed not to show signs of strain when she sang while lying down, leaning back on cushions or kneeling.

She sang with the sweetness and human warmth of tone that is even more distinctive than her coloratura trills.

The other parts are small, with tenor Raymond Gibbs doing good work in the third largest role. Louise Wohlfalka of Manchester, N.H., displayed a clear soprano in her Met debut in one small part. John Pritchard conducted and concertmaster Raymond Gniwek was the fine violin soloist for "Meditation."

California Sculptor To Erect Moving Art

BERLIN (AP) — After a seven-year delay, California sculptor George Baker said Thursday he is finally erecting the one-ton, 30-foot moving sculpture he created for West Berlin's German Opera.

"I must have gone to the opera 52 times," said the 46-year-old Los Angeles resident and Texas native, recalling the 18 months he spent in Berlin in an artist exchange program from 1971-1972.

Baker's work is an assembly of 13 irregularly shaped aluminum discs, all polished to varying degrees of reflectivity, that move by electric motors and a small computer. Pieces of the work arrived by truck today after being flown from Los Angeles to Frankfurt.

The opera house couldn't afford the $71,000 sculpture when Baker first proposed it. But 26 U.S. companies in West Germany donated the money to mark the 75th anniversary of the American Chamber of Commerce.

The sculpture is to be mounted on a wall in the foyer of the German Opera, one of the modern post-war opera buildings in West Berlin. The city's restored pre-war opera house is in East Berlin.

Born in Corsicana, Texas, Baker is professor of sculpture at Occidental College in Los Angeles. For the 1976 American bicentennial, he created the stainless steel "Nebraska Wind Sculpture," a piece that floats on a lake by an interstate highway near Kearney, Neb.

Play Tells Of Unbiblical Beginning Of Christianity

By WILLIAM GLOVER
NEW YORK (AP) — In his hunt for untrite play themes, Romulus Linney comes a cropper with "Old Man Joseph and His Family," an unbiblical account of how Christianity began.

Based purportedly on ancient apocryphal tales omitted by savants from the New Testament, the raffish drama had its press opening in a Wednesday matinee at the Chelsea Theater Center in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

For this production, the Chelsea merged effort with Manhattan's Colonades Theater Lab, another experimental group, as the start of a (maybe) continuing relationship.

Linney previously has ranged afar for dramatic topics, from Frederick the Great to Lord Byron, from 19th century Americana to Pearl Harbor tragedy. His approach has always been disciplined, literate and cautious.

He is on a different track this time as Joseph becomes a cranky octogenarian, Mary a silly 15-year-old and Jesus, as the episodes flick by, grows up a juvenile vagrant.

The shoddy lampoon, full of modern vulgarisms, is too inane to even rise to offensiveness.

Lou Gilbert enacts the gimpy, skeptical Joseph like a pushcart peddler, and the rest of the cast directed by Robert Kalin can be dismissed for general futility.

The players spend a lot of time moving parts of an ornate cardboard set around, sticking up signs and changing costumes — a conglomeration all allegedly based by Carrie R. Robbins on medieval Ethiopian illuminated manuscripts.

A lot of effort has been wasted on this futile exercise by playwright Linney.

Another dramatist of wide-ranging interests, George Bernard Shaw, is the subject of "My Astonishing Self," which opened Wednesday night in far better shape at Off Broadway's Astor Place Playhouse.

Radio City Hall Still Slated To Be Closed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite efforts to save Radio City Music Hall, the management of Rockefeller Center has reaffirmed its plan to close the financially troubled entertainment landmark on April 12.

Alton Marshall, president of Rockefeller Center, Inc., said the closing plans were reinforced by testimony Wednesday before the state Senate Special Committee on the Culture Industry.

"My impression of the testimony supplemented and verified our position to close the hall as it has traditionally been operating. We can go on to new things," Marshall said.

Most of the witnesses deplored loss of the traditional family fare featured at the theater, but said the hall has outlived its usefulness because its attractions are no longer widely popular, and it is too large, even for conversion to ballet or opera.

Donal Donnelly, a young Dubliner clad and wigged in reasonable facsimile of the original, enacts the solo text which Michael Voysey bases upon sundry GBS material.

The show is an expanded version of "By George!", which the late Max Adrian did a decade ago, and proves out as quietly engaging pastiche. Biographical bits are woven together with tart observations on Ellen Terry, vivisection, poverty and Joan of Arc.

Donnelly's impersonation will not knock you out of your seat, but Shavian doters can have a dandy time.

Play Tells Of Unbiblical Beginning Of Christianity

By WILLIAM GLOVER
 NEW YORK (AP)— In his hunt for untrite play themes, Romulus Linney comes a cropper with "Old Man Joseph and His Family," an unbiblical account of how Christianity began.

Based purportedly on ancient apocryphal tales omitted by savants from the New Testament, the raffish drama had its press opening in a Wednesday matinee at the Chelsea Theater Center in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

For this production, the Chelsea merged effort with Manhattan's Colonades Theater Lab, another experimental group, as the start of a (maybe) continuing relationship.

Linney previously has ranged afar for dramatic topics, from Frederick the Great to Lord Byron, from 19th century Americana to Pearl Harbor tragedy. His approach has always been disciplined, literate and cautious.

He is on a different track this time as Joseph becomes a cranky octogenarian, Mary a silly 15-year-old and Jesus, as the episodes flick by, grows up a juvenile vagrant.

The shoddy lampoon, full of modern vulgarisms, is too inane to even rise to offensiveness.

Lou Gilbert enacts the gimpy, skeptical Joseph like a pushcart peddler, and the rest of the cast directed by Robert Kalvin can be dismissed for general futility.

The players spend a lot of time moving parts of an ornate cardboard set around, sticking up signs and changing costumes — a conglomeration all allegedly based by Carrie R. Robbins on medieval Ethiopian illuminated manuscripts.

A lot of effort has been wasted on this futile exercise by playwright Linney.

Another dramatist of wide-ranging interests, George Bernard Shaw, is the subject of "My Astonishing Self," which opened Wednesday night in far better shape at Off Broadway's Astor Place Playhouse.

Radio City Hall Still Slated To Be Closed

NEW YORK (UPI)— Despite efforts to save Radio City Music Hall, the management of Rockefeller Center has reaffirmed its plan to close the financially troubled entertainment landmark on April 12.

Alton Marshall, president of Rockefeller Center, Inc., said the closing plans were reinforced by testimony Wednesday before the state Senate Special Committee on the Culture Industry.

"My impression of the testimony supplemented and verified our position to close the hall as it has traditionally been operating. We can go on to new things," Marshall said.

Most of the witnesses deplored loss of the traditional family fare featured at the theater, but said the hall has outlived its usefulness because its attractions are no longer widely popular, and it is too large, even for conversion to ballet or opera.

Rockefeller Center Inc., which runs the 6,000-seat theater, announced it would close the hall after its annual Easter pageant.

Donal Donnelly, a young Dubliner clad and wigged in reasonable facsimile of the original, enacts the solo text which Michael Voysey bases upon sundry GBS material.

The show is an expanded version of "By George!", which the late Max Adrian did a decade ago, and proves out as quietly engaging pastiche. Biographical bits are woven together with tart observations on Ellen Terry, vivisection, poverty and Joan of Arc.

Donnelly's impersonation will not knock you out of your seat, but Shavian doters can have a dandy time.

DR. LAMB

DES Linked To Sterility

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you described the effects of DES on male children. My husband is one such case. Although he is not completely sterile his sperm count is only 4,500,000. We are unable to conceive. Can this effect of DES be reversed? Is there hormonal therapy that can correct this dysfunction? We would appreciate your advice concerning this matter.

DEAR READER — DES (diethylstilbestrol) is a synthetic substitute for estrogen and it was once widely used to prevent miscarriages or a threatened abortion. The spotlight has been on its effect on the daughters of women who used DES. As I mentioned in my earlier column there is evidence that it may also have affected some of the sons by affecting sexual development and more often affecting sperm production. It is certainly true that low sperm counts and infertility can result in a man whose mother took DES to preserve her pregnancy.

However, that does not prove that this caused your husband's low sperm count. There are lots of men who have low sperm counts whose mothers never went near DES during pregnancy. The normal count is 60 to 150 million sperm cells per milliliter (there are about 3.5 milliliters per teaspoon).

There are some things that can be done in selected cases to improve a man's fertility which may help in your husband's case. It is important to have had an evaluation to be sure there are no hormonal deficiencies that can be corrected. Some men have higher counts when they are placed on thyroid supplements. Recently there has been some success reported in using the fertility pill that women use, to increase sperm production in men. The same hormones from the pituitary gland that stimulate the ovary in the woman stimulate the testicles in the man. Using this principle the fertility pills were tried and found to work in some cases.

Another technique that has helped in some cases is the use of pooled specimens. A large number of sperm cells can be collected in several specimens and artificial insemination used but that is cumbersome and expensive and some people object to artificial insemination on moral grounds. I believe the Vatican has come out against artificial insemination for any reason, even when the donor is the husband.

The number of sperm cells is not the total answer either, it depends upon whether they are normal or abnormal sperm cells. A large specimen of abnormal sperm cells will not produce a pregnancy.

I should remind my readers that the number of sperm cells often has little to do with a man's sex drive or inclinations. He can be normal in all regards and not be fertile, so one should not equate fertility with masculinity, whatever masculinity really is, since each culture seems to have its own changing definition of that term.

My best advice would be for your husband and perhaps yourself to go to a fertility clinic for a careful study, to learn if he can benefit from a fertility pill or other recent developments. Each case is different, and you won't get a good answer without a good personal study.

Readers who want information on impotency can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 3-12. Scientists Give Injections Differently

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Two scientists at the Yale School of Medicine have discovered a way for diabetics to receive insulin injections and still maintain an active sports life without threat of medical problems.

Diabetics receiving insulin shots, especially through the common leg injections, can suffer hypoglycemia, which frequently follows physical exercise, the pair said.

Hypoglycemia is an abnormal decrease in the body's level of blood sugar that can result in a wide variety of symptoms including feelings of anxiety and nervousness, nausea, vomiting, fatigue and visual and speech difficulties.

As reported in the current issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Philip Felig and Dr. Veikko A. Koivisto discovered a correlation between hypoglycemia and the rapid absorption or disappearance of insulin that has been injected beneath the skin.

They found that absorption insulin was more rapid in parts of the body that were exercised.

The scientists injected insulin into the leg, arm and abdomen of 11 diabetic patients, who then exercised on a stationary bicycle for one hour.

Exercise increased the disappearance of leg-injected insulin by 135 percent, they found. However the workout caused no significant increase in the absorption of insulin injected into the arm or abdomen, they found.

What's more, the extent of hypoglycemia was reduced by 57 percent when the insulin was injected into the arm, 89 percent when it was injected into the abdomen.

Felig, a professor of medicine, said the findings will permit diabetics to lead a more active life. He and Koivisto urged that diabetics check with their doctors before changing their customary treatment procedures.

'Letterology' Science Claimed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What's in a name? For Elliot Teplitz, the answer is $25,000 in less than a year, working at what he calls "the world's best new science."

Since last February, Teplitz has collected that amount in $25 chunks in exchange for scrutinizing the given names of more than 1,000 people, then listing for them compatible mates, cities and jobs. Soon, he says, he'll be able to diagnose illnesses as well — just by studying the way the letters fall in their names.

He calls the technique he claims to have invented "letterology."

Teplitz says he spent seven years testing the technique across the country, but only began charging in February for a 12-page analysis that takes him no longer than 35 minutes to prepare.

That's one advantage of letterology over other "this-is-who-you-are" sciences like astrology and phrenology, he says. It's quick — quick to do and quick to learn. He claims he can teach anyone letterology in an hour.

It also gives people specifics, instead of vague generalities, he says. It tells them, by name, who to match up with, where to live, and what to do for a living.

The son of a Russian immigrant-turned-millionaire, Teplitz says letterology has given him new insights into all sorts of people.

Teplitz, a 32-year-old who giggles like a teen-ager, says his own name reveals him to be silly, witty and alluring, among other things.

Under his theory, both Barbara Walters and Richard Nixon qualify as warm, hard-working, barbaric and earthy. Both have an "a-r" combination in the right position. The key letters in any name are the pair that follow the first letter and the pair that precede the last letter, he says. If one of the pairs in a person's first name is the same as a pair in someone else's last name, or vice versa, that's compatibility, he says.

HE CALLS IT "LETTEROLOGY" — Elliot Teplitz, who says he's made $25,000 since February of last year by scrutinizing more than 1,000 persons, birth certificate names, then listing for them their compatible mates, cities and jobs, calls the technique he invented "letterology." He dubs it "the world's best new science." (AP Laserphoto)

Space Goal Set Early By Woman

By MONA HARVEY
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

A former Lubbock resident, named this week as one of six women in the U.S. astronaut corps, expressed her interest in becoming a space scientist as early as the eighth grade.

Dr. Shannon W. Lucid, 35, of the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, recalls a teacher's consternation over her aspirations.

The teacher had assigned the class to write a report on what they hoped to become as adults.

Mrs. Lucid's answer, "rocket scientist," puzzled and upset the teacher who admonished the young girl to "be serious, this is your future we're talking about."

Mrs. Lucid will be one of 20 mission specialists — selected from 6,818 applicants — who will report for training July 1 at Johnson Space Center in Houston.

She applied to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration program due to her "proven ability in a scientific field." She also is licensed to pilot commercial multi-engine aircraft.

"I had an intense interest in flying when I was in the eighth grade and that was even before Sputnik (the first orbiting satellite)," she said.

Her prophetic report was sparked by "various science fiction books I had read" as well as her fascination with Robert Goddard, the father of American rocketry, she said.

Of the six women mission specialists, Mrs. Lucid is the only mother. Her youngsters, aged 9, 8, and 2, and her chemist husband all are "very excited" about her recent career development, she said.

She currently participates in cancer research as a post-doctoral fellow in biochemistry at the foundation in Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Lucid was about the age of her oldest children when she lived in Lubbock. She attended P.F. Brown Elementary in the second grade and part of third grade before her family moved to Bethany, Okla.

Relatives who live here include her grandfather, J.O. Wells, now in a nursing home; an uncle, J. Roy Wells of 3505 40th St.; two aunts, Mrs. Ben D. (Dora) Johnson of 4511 49th St. and Mrs. Edward C. (Bertha Mae) Derr of 6131 Lynnhaven Drive; and a cousin, Dr. Maynette (Mrs. Doyle Z.) Williams of 3006 80th St.

Country Music Veteran Approaches Birthday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Ernest Tubb will be 64 on Feb. 9, but he's no sluggish locomotive near the end of a tiring trip. He rolls on like the sagebrush in his beloved Texas and he's not slowing down.

During his show, silver-haired men often approach Tubb and say something like, "I've been listening to you since I was a little kid." The exaggeration may be mildly irritating, but Tubb dismisses it in his distinctive, deep baritone with a respectful, "Thank you."

After 45 years as an entertainer, he's become the Hubert Humphrey of country music. He has been a warrior for traditional country music with lengthy achievements and adoring fans who write him like he was part of the family.

"They tell me if the cows got out and if the pigs are sick," Tubb said. Best known for his record "I'm Walking the Floor Over You," Tubb reflects on his career with an astuteness that belies the fact he never finished grammar school.

"Every once in a while, something will happen and I'll say, 'I'm glad I didn't miss that.' I get nice things in the mail, some of it from servicemen. It makes me glad I didn't retire.

"It's like anything else—you're either in or you're out. I've seen people try to slow down before, and after a while they're out. I like what I do. If you keep a band, they have to make a living.

"You have to work to live and you have expenses to meet, like my bus—it costs me $100 a day to move by bus. And by working, you get new fans and keep old ones."

"I don't care much for television," Tubb went on. "But I do some guest shows to let people know I'm still around."

Smiley Wilson, who works for the agency that books Tubbs, said the entertainer runs his life according to the rigors of the road. "He'll stay up till 3 a.m. or so when he's home and sleep till noon," Wilson said.

STILL GOING STRONG — Legendary Ernest Tubb is one of the hardest-working singers in country music, even though he's approaching his 64th birthday. He's holding an album of his idol, Jimmie Rodgers, at one of Tubb's two Nashville record stores. (AP Laserphoto)

If it's achievement that Tubb still pursues, there's little left for him to accomplish. He's sold at least 30 million records, recorded 250 or more songs and was the sixth member elected to the songwriter 30-member Country Music Hall of Fame.

He has sung on the Grand Ole Opry for 35 years, is a successful songwriter and has two Nashville record shops that are tourist attractions and do a thriving mail-order business.

"I guess the main thing I'm proudest of is that I've entertained people and meant something to their lives and they have a warm spot in their hearts," Tubb said.

"I'm honest, or at least I've tried to be. I'm what I am—myself. If you're not yourself, you're not honest and you're not going to survive long. You can't fool the public too long."

Public Finally Discovers Critics' Choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The pop music world seems to have an ever-flowing spring of "important new figures" — emerging giants whose music is loved and understood by with-it critics and trashed by folks who pay money for records.

For record companies, it's kind of neat to have one of these artists in the stable. They don't sell many records, but you keep them around to show folks that somebody in the outfit's got taste. And, who knows, the artist might eventually catch on and sell.

It was with that last possibility in mind that A&M records decided to stick with a young West Indian singer named Joan Armatrading even after her third album, while swamped by a sea of critical praise, began collecting dust on record store shelves.

A&M beated up promotion for Miss Armatrading and, instead of sending her packing, started production on a fourth album. The risk has begun to pay off, with brisk sales on her new album to complement the usual critical hoopla.

Miss Armatrading, as more and more record buyers are discovering, is not very difficult to appreciate. The Birmingham, England-raised singer delivers her straightforward message with a rich, folksy blues style so pleasing it almost makes you wish some of those other important new figures had come in.

The lady herself, rather a cautious sort who takes no pains to hide her distaste for interviews, is delighted that it has taken this long for commercial success. You get the feeling she would have delayed it further if she could have helped it.

"There never was a critical problem, if you want to call it a problem," she said one day recently. "Right from the first album, I've been well received by the critics. Every album has been really well received, critically. I couldn't ask for more. It's just been a matter of getting the sales to meet the critical acclaim."

"But that's never been a problem, in my mind."

Miss Armatrading, whose "Show Some Emotion" album is slowly climbing up the pop charts, says "it never bothered me that I didn't sell many albums."

"In fact," she continues, "when I made the first album, I didn't want it to sell. I didn't want to be an overnight star, an overnight success. I couldn't have coped with it."

"It's not an easy thing to cope with, to suddenly come from nothing to everybody all of a sudden knowing you and bothering you with questions. I'm very pleased and I'm very glad that I've had time to adjust to whatever is going to happen."

What is going to happen, apparently, is a lot more attention will be paid the reluctant star from St. Kitts in the Caribbean. Her deep-touching lyrics of hope and dashed love, her ability to slide from blues to reggae to folk-rock, are bound to give her consistent commercial success.

It looks, at last, as if one of those glimmering promises turned out to be the real thing.

As for the pressures yet to come, Miss Armatrading sighs and says, "I'll take it as it comes. I'll have to sort it out when I get there."

Unique Experience In Sound Awaits Visitors To 'Audium'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A paradise of sound is cooking in a former bakery where two enterprising musicians have blended darkness and a battery of speakers into one of the most absorbing aural experiences since the Sirens wailed at Ulysses.

Composer Stan Shaff and designer-conductor Doug McEachern call their brainchild "Audium: A Theater of Sound-Sculptured Space" in San Francisco. They have taken a former bakery and have blended darkness of speakers into one of the most absorbing aural experiences since the Sirens wailed at Ulysses. (AP Laser-photo)

The listener walks down a dark, winding labyrinth marked by the faint sounds of children's voices and delicate chimes. The path leads to a small amphitheater and 49 chairs set in three concentric circles on a raised, red-carpeted platform.

Quadrasonic speakers shaped like inverted bowls and teacups hang from wires while larger speakers are embedded in the sculptured walls and hidden beneath the platform.

McEachern takes his seat at a futuristic podium and spins a few dials. The lights dim slowly until the room is pitch dark.

Voices speak from the walls, then a quadrasonic symphony fills the darkness. There are squeaks, creaks, booms, zooms, bells ringing, birds singing, bands playing and trees swaying in an eerie breeze.

Suddenly the sound of a waterfall crosses the room and babbles through the opposite wall. After the final ripple, a swarm of insects seems to invade the room. They are trailed by a jumbo jet landing — seemingly in the room — and then the disturbing sound of a massive flock of squawking gulls fleeing in terror from some evil force.

Each person's impressions of the experience are unique. A ringing sound that reminds one person of a church bell might well be a death knell to another.

"An elderly woman heard a chime early in the performance and told me it had the exact same tone as a grandfather clock in her house when she was a child, more than 70 years ago," Shaff recalled. "She said it brought her back to that time and she lived her life all over again in the short space she was here."

It took Shaff, a trumpet player, and McEachern, a pianist with an electronics background, 18 years to develop Audium. They feel the key to the unique production is being able to move sound through an environment specially constructed for it.

McEachern takes Shaff's composition and directs the sounds through 136 speakers. He can move them at various speeds, bounce them in various directions and brush them off the walls and up against each other in myriad combinations.

"Audiences should be able to get more involved in active listening, where they can feel a sound as kinetic, sculptural, shaping energy," Shaff said.

"They should feel the sound as it bumps against them, caresses, travels through, covers and enfolds them."

Refining Art Of Soap Opera Roles Pays Off

NEW YORK (AP) — The name Ann Wedgeworth may not spark instant recognition, but for six years on NBC's "Another World" and "Somerset," she was known to millions as Lahoma, one of TV's most popular soap opera characters. Lahoma was an original earth mother: a naive, vulnerable, slightly loose woman redeemed by a heart of gold.

Miss Wedgeworth has since refined her portrayal of such characters into a fine art and lately it's begun to pay off. This season, she's in the not inappropriate role of Faye, a disenchanted housewife and soap opera actress in Neil Simon's hit play "Chapter Two." Miss Wedgeworth also was named best supporting actress of the year by the National Society of Film Critics for her part in "Handle with Care," a critically acclaimed film which uses the CB radio phenomenon as basis for a sympathetic satire of Middle America.

In the movie, Miss Wedgeworth is hilarious as Dallas Angel, one of two women who meet in a bus station and start a conversation only to discover they share the same husband. With tears streaming down her cheeks and as the shock of discovery begins to dissolve, she asks her husband's other wife "Connie, does this mean that we're related?"

laughed. "She's just doing more thinking about it than anything else."

Miss Wedgeworth thinks the part in the Simon play her biggest break yet in a long and sometimes frustrating career that spans several years.

"Every once in a while, I think maybe I'm going to give it all up, but I sort of know even when I'm thinking it I don't really mean it," she said. "Sometimes you just get tired, you know. ... I might talk about getting out of the business but I don't really mean it. I really want to act."

It was that strong desire to act that brought Miss Wedgeworth, like so many others, to New York. After several auditions, she was accepted by Lee Strasberg's Actors Studio and performed in a number of Studio productions, including "Blues for Mr. Charlie" and "The Last Analysis."

Television came later. She accepted the part of Lahoma in "Another World" because, "at the time, I needed the money." Her first major movie break came when she was cast as Frenchie in the Al Pacino-Gene Hackman film "Scarlet-Crow."

Frenchie is one of Miss Wedgeworth's favorite roles, in her own words another "vulnerable, affectionate ... slightly tarnished" woman. She said she didn't think much about acting in movies until she started doing them. Her feelings have changed. "Now, I want to do movies a lot," she said.

Miss Wedgeworth said she has no specific method for creating her characters.

Plant Shutdowns To Cut Automobile Production

DETROIT (AP) — Plant shutdowns by Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. will drive this week's U.S. car production down 9 percent from last week, a trade publication said Thursday.

But the week's estimated production of 171,006 cars is 5 percent above the year-ago level, said Ward's Automotive Reports.

Three Chrysler plants and one AMC plant are closed for the week to reduce excess supplies of cars on dealers' lots. Just two plants, both General Motors Corp. facilities, are to work overtime Saturday.

This week's car production compares with 187,601 last week and 162,681 in the same week a year ago. For the year, production is 521,764, up slightly from 520,745 at this time last year.

U.S. truck production is estimated at 67,006, up about 8.5 percent from both last week's total of 61,756 and the year-ago figure of 61,658. For the year, 181,377 trucks have been built, compared with 189,822 at the same time in 1977, a record truck sales year.

Canadian car production this week will total 20,924, up 14.5 percent from the 18,209 cars built last week but well below the 26,036 in the same week last year. To date in 1978, 59,695 cars have been built in Canada, compared with 72,744 at this time a year ago.

'Grayeagle' Up (Or Down) To Pierce Standards

"Grayeagle" stars Alex Cord, Lana Wood, Ben Johnson, Iron Eyes Cody and Charles B. Pierce. Written, produced and directed by Charles B. Pierce. Photographed and edited by Jim Robertson. Rated PG. At Showplace Four.

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Fine Arts Editor

Charles B. Pierce, the independent filmmaker who seems driven to insult the American public at least once a year, has boldly stated, "I've produced five movies in five years, and they've taken in almost $100 million at the box office." Calling a $2 admission price average over the past half decade, that means at least 50 million people have been taken in by such slop as "The Legend Of Boggy Creek," "Bootlegger" and now "Grayeagle."

And that's incredibly sad. Pierce has always insisted on writing, producing, directing and acting in his pictures. Fact is, he usually stuck his son in every one of them also, although Junior seems to have wised up and disappeared this time around. But despite his multiple duties, don't look for Pierce to subscribe to any sort of auteur filmmaking theories. He's not trying to make any sort of statement. He just doesn't want to share the bucks.

And he obviously doesn't care to learn, either. The only thing which situates "Grayeagle" apart from the rest, aside from acting which could very well be in the running for honors as the worst of this century, is the larger budget. Pierce has made enough money to buy more expensive toys. He shoots in wide screen scope, plays around with zooms and slow motion, instills a bit more violence. But his film's errors only stand out all the more through these glossy Hollywood excesses.

The picture, which could just as easily have been titled "You Mean To Say My Mama Played Around," relates the supposed legend of a Cheyenne brave who abducts a half-breed girl from her white father. The Cheyenne is Grayeagle, naturally, and he's played with one expression by Alex Cord. His muscles (remember him in the motorcycle flicks?) haven't gone soft yet. His head, I'm not too sure about.

In any case, Grayeagle kidnaps Beth Colter, played in laughable fashion by Lana Wood. Ben Johnson (who else?) is the father who rides off to the rescue, trying unsuccessfully to imitate John Wayne in "The Searchers," and Iron Eyes Cody is his faithful Injun companion Standing Bear. On the road, they meet a friend in Jack Elam (the film's only bright spot) and enemies in Pierce and an idiotic Shoshone named Scar, the latter played by Jacob Daniels.

Of course, the Indian's name in "The Searchers" was also Scar... but you really don't think Pierce was aware of that, do you?

Acting, as mentioned before, is utterly atrocious. Lana Wood, looking like a New York model on assignment, is the worst of the lot. Some of you chauvinists may remember her expose in Playboy; others may simply see her as Natalie Wood's kid sister. But let me assure you right here that Natalie did not have enough late night talks with Lana, since the latter knows not the first thing about acting.

Her movements are stiff, her expressions fake. And despite the fact the whole thing takes place in 1848 Montana Territory, Lana decides if it's a western she ought to play it with a Southern accent. One almost expects her to turn to Cord and say, "Grayeagle, please take me back to Tara." Then bat her eyelashes and swoon into his tepee.

Iron Eyes Cody is the Indian you've seen weeping over pollution in TV commercials; he'll be bawling when he sees himself in this picture. Cord doesn't even try to act, Pierce couldn't if he tried and Elam blows everyone out of the saddle without half trying. As for Ben Johnson, it's hard to appreciate his efforts any more. This actor has proven he'll take any grizzled garbage cowboy part offered him these days, and who can forget the fact his sole Academy Award effort ("The Last Picture Show") came with a part he never wanted to accept?

Perhaps realizing the audience would not care about relationships, Pierce has provided filler with cheap action — most shot in slow motion. We're given tomahawk duels on horseback, plunging sticks shot into Bad Guys (who then laugh and fall dead), and a nasty who manages to put his foot in an underwater bear trap after killing a three-legged dog. Then there's the charming game in which Indians tag armed men, then shoot them with arrows. Fun, fun, fun.

But it's all just padding to get us to the Big Surprise: the scene in which Grayeagle tells Lana he's taking her to Running Wolf, a dying chief who is her real father and wants to see her before hooking it for that big powwow in the sky. You get it? While Ben Johnson was out deer hunting 20 years back, his wife (Lana's mother) was lonely and started fooling around with the nearest Indian buck.

Such infidelity means daddy ain't really daddy after all, which inspires Ben to mutter, "This country can be mighty hard on a man."

Of course, there's more. Music permeates the film from start to finish, with catchy lyrics like "A chick a wah ooh wah!" And then Lana starts falling for Grayeagle, who couldn't even beat Scar in a fair fight, probably because he tells her such sweet nothings as, "Your hair is as smooth as the young deer floating in the sky." Which brings us to Pierce's character of Bugle, a crazy old trapper said to be "touched by the Great Spirit."

This movie proves he was touched all right. Touched by a direct blow to the head with a sledgehammer, that is.

booked. All except "Equus" and "Three Women," the latter still being teased through posters at Showplace Four. And along with the standouts are some very interesting diversions.

However, if you've a mind to stay home, remember that Home Box Office television will screen Peter O'Toole and Katherine Hepburn's "The Lion In Winter" at 7 p.m. today. February will bring to HBO "Bound For Glory," "Alice's Restaurant," "Echoes Of A Summer" and even "Rocky."

Good news, folks. They are now

GOOD GUYS IN A BAD MOVIE — When we say good, we are referring to characters and not acting talents. From left, Iron Eyes Cody, Lana Wood and Ben Johnson are the ones tormented by a kidnapping redskin named "Grayeagle" in Charles B. Pierce's new movie. But we're laughing at them, not with them. The picture, rated PG, is playing at Showplace Four.

Fast Action Keeps Chute Boss Happy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Sonny Linger goes home happy when the action is quick-paced and the horses and bulls buck with spirit at a National Finals Rodeo performance.

He's been chute boss at the finals 15 of the last 19 years.

The lanky, 49-year-old is a behind-the-scenes figure at the world championship rodeo, even though he spends each night hustling up and down in front of the chutes during riding events, making sure the stock and contestants are ready.

Like many of the contestants and other rodeo personnel, Linger's childhood was spent on a ranch. He learned about horses and cattle on his family's spread near Alamosa, Colo.

And in that setting, on the eastern edge of the Rockies, he also developed an appreciation of the outdoors. When he's forced to spend a lot of time on the road or has to be in a big city longer than he'd like, Linger unwinds by returning home and riding up into the Yellowstone River breaks.

"Then I just sit there and wonder what the hell that country looked like 100 years ago," he said.

Linger got into the rodeo stock business after working for another contractor for about 20 years. He rode and steer-wrestled at many of the rodeos his boss stocked.

Before he quit competing in 1962, Linger won several major shows. "But I got too busy," he said. "And besides—I wasn't really enjoying it. I liked working with the stock better."

So he formed the Linger Rodeo Co. with his son and now has about 100 head of stock on the more than 11,000 acres he ranches. "We don't have too much stock," Linger said. "We believe in quality rather than quantity."

As chute boss, Linger is responsible for seeing the rodeo doesn't lose its momentum. He makes sure that as soon as one contestant is about to nod and be let out atop a horse or bull, another rider is getting ready for his or her turn.

"We try to talk to the stock contractors and see where we need to put an animal to get a good ride out of him," Linger said. "Some of them like to be in an end chute right up against the wall and others might need to be facing one way or the other."

He said the animals can sense a person's mood. "I've gone to a show down and kind of draggy and the stock seems to sense it and behave the same way," he said. "But if you go feeling good and really gung ho, the animals will usually really work for you."

Linger said it's more satisfying to him to get a stubborn horse to buck well than to watch one that bucks that way every time out. "Maybe that's what has kept me in the business so long — trying to figure out why," he said.

The rodeo business isn't very rewarding financially, Linger said, but he likes it because it's "one of the last strongholds of individualism" in the business world.

have to go," he said. "You just go where you want to, or in this business, where they'll have you. There are no written agreements or stuff like that. People you deal with do what they say or they don't stay in the rodeo business very long."

Chaps Vie To Snap Road Losing String

dropped 25 straight encounters—strange and otherwise—on the road.

Vandy Coach Looks Ahead

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — With his team — and resignation reports — behind him, Vanderbilt football Coach Fred Pancoast is planning a different approach for next season.

Jack Bell, down with a bad back, will not make the trip. Price's probable starters will be 6-2 freshman Gary Norris and 6-0 Steve Doudney at the guards, with 6-3 freshman Lamar Sampsy, 6-4 freshman Brian Fortner and 6-5 senior Mike Kahler on the front line.

The Chaps have been sparked by Sampsy this year, as the Houston Jefferson product ranks eighth in scoring (16.3) and seventh in rebounding (8.1) in the TAC.

"If I've made mistakes — and I'm sure I have — then one of them may have been not testing these players," the coach says. "In our preparations for next year, we'll go to the edge of the cliff and see who falls off. We may wind up with just 30 players going to Arkansas next September, but those on the plane will want to play — and will be totally dedicated to winning."

Kahler's 52.6 field goal percentage is the fifth best in the league but the DeSoto product has taken only 95 shots in 16 games.

That sober view came Wednesday after Pancoast and his 22 seniors met in what he called a soul-searching session.

DBC and LCC compare favorably statistically. LCC is averaging 72.4 points a game, DBC 71.5; DBC is allowing 80.4 points a game, LCC 87.4; LCC is grabbing 40.3 rebounds a game, DBC 37.7; the Chaps are hitting 44.6 from the field, DBC 42.7. The biggest difference is at the foul line, where DBC is hitting at a 70.7 clip and LCC 61.9.

"This meeting took place right after the general meeting with the team, and I think it was profitable," Pancoast said in an interview. "We have an excellent class of leaders coming up next season. They are players who want very badly to be winners in their last year."

The Indians are led by Bill Burden, who is averaging 18.2 points.

"I know that I admitted the coaching staff needed to re-evaluate its work. And I meant it. I am having the players offer constructive criticism of coaches, coaching methods, team attitudes and other things. They don't have to sign these things. We want an honest input," he said.

TWC, which leads the LCC series 5-3, is presently 2-12, 0-4 in TAC Play. The Rams are allowing 87.5 points a game, worst in the conference.

There were reports circulating last week that Pancoast, who came to Vanderbilt in 1975 from Memphis State, was planning to quit for the real estate business. His teams have finished 2-9 the past two seasons, and he's been under alumni pressure.

This weekend series will be the first zone games of the year. LCC is presently rated No. 8 in the Dunkel Ratings, with the top four teams in the rankings advancing to the District VIII playoffs in early March.

He confirmed a report that an unidentified group of Vanderbilt alumni had offered him $100,000 to resign, but he ended all speculation by affirming his desire to stay at the Nashville college. His contract has two years to run.

Saturday, a combined junior college-high school event is on tap. Teams from Odessa College, New Mexico Junior College, South Plains College, Southwestern Christian at Terrell and LCC will compete in the juco division and Lubbock's AAAA high school—Coronado, Lubbock High and Monterey—will compete in the high school division.

NMMI Boosts Rank To 13th Position

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (Special) — A week ago New Mexico Military Institute was listed No. 20 on the national junior college basketball list.

The following Saturday, Texas Tech, Eastern New Mexico, Wayland Baptist, Panhandle State, West Texas State, Abilene Christian and possibly Angelo State will join the host team.

The Broncos split two games last week and immediately jumped into the 13th spot with a 16-3 record.

Both days field events will start with the pole vault at 12:30 p.m. and running events will begin at 1 p.m.

North Iowa (12-1 with 11 first-place votes) and Casper, Wyo. (14-2 with six first-place votes) held onto their 1-2 rankings. Five other schools also drew first-place votes, including the third through sixth and ninth-place teams.

Among the 10 Chaparral athletes involved will be Willie Sang, who reaped Cross Country All-America honors last fall in sparking LCC to a 30th place finish in the national meet.

The remainder of the Top 20 are: No. 3 — Vincennes, Ind., 13-2; 4 — Mercer County, N.J., 12-2; 5 — College of DuPage, Ill., 16-1; 6 — Henderson County, Athens, Tex., 15-2; 7 — Mineral Area College, Mo., 14-3; 8 — Waukesha County Tech, Wis., 12-2; 9 — Wabash Valley College, Ill., 14-0; 10 — Cowley County, Kan., 13-2.

Admission will be $1 for each of the two meets.

11 — Pensacola, Fla., 15-3; 12 — Navarro, Corsicana, Tex., 15-4; 13 — NMMI, 14 — N.E. Mississippi, 13-1; 15 — Seminole, Fla., 14-3; 16 — Ponomac State, W.V., 13-3; 17 — Lon Morris, Jacksonville, Tex., 13-2; 18 — Connors State, Okla., 11-3; 19 — Independence CJC, Kan., 11-3; 20 — Lindsey-Wilson, Ky., 13-2.

New Mexico Skiing Prospects Excellent

Since the end of November, most ski resorts in New Mexico have had just one thing to say about this skiing season, "Think snow!"

With two recent snow storms, all of New Mexico's ski resorts are open, except for Raton. Lodgewood Ski Basin at Raton has a tentative opening date scheduled for February 1.

Taos Ski Valley is 85 percent open. Angel Fire only has the "front bump" open, but the weatherman seems to be cooperating for some good to excellent skiing in the Land of Enchantment.

Tape recorded ski information is available by telephoning toll-free 1-800-545-9876. Updated information is placed on the tape every Monday and Thursday by 3:00 p.m. The ski report will continue until after Easter.

George Allen Bitter, Knocks Skins' Williams

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bitter George Allen, fired abruptly as coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins by team President Edward Bennett Williams, bid farewell to his assistants Thursday after viciously criticizing the man who released him.

As the Redskins began a search for a successor to the most successful coach in Washington history, Allen called Williams "devious, deceitful and a Jekyll and Hyde."

Allen attended the funeral of Redskins controller Chester Minter, who died Sunday, on Thursday morning and then went to Redskins Park, the magnificent plant he created near Dulles International Airport, to talk with his assistant coaches, several of whom are being mentioned as taking over the reins of the Redskins.

Williams said again that he was convinced Allen was negotiating with the Los Angeles Rams even though Allen had agreed, but had not signed, a four-year extension of his contract calling for a reported $250,000 a year.

"I believed we had an agreement in July," said Williams. "We had agreed to all terms. I then sought to get a signed contract and did not get one."

"I finally told him that the club was being seriously prejudiced by the paralysis it was in from not knowing where we were going next year," he continued. "I had exhaustive meetings with him in the last 10 days and I told him I would have done the things I did around my home if I couldn't come to an agreement by last Saturday. I never received a call from him. I called him on Monday and told him I couldn't wait any longer."

"I was convinced he was negotiating with Los Angeles and I was determined not to sit and react to what Los Angeles did about it and I so advised him," said Williams, adding that Allen and the Rams have the same attorney, E. Gregory Hookstratten.

Allen denied he had talked to the Rams, although he said he would only consider jobs in Washington and Los Angeles, where he was head coach before coming to the nation's capital in 1971.

"I always thought this would be my last coaching job," said Allen. "To say that I've been thinking about going to the Rams is untrue and inaccurate. I don't have any job with the Rams. My first choice has always been the Redskins. I wouldn't have planted apple trees that I brought down from Carlisle (the Redskins training camp at Carlisle, Pa.) if I planned to leave here. I wouldn't have done the things I did around my home if I hadn't planned to be here a long time."

Williams said he would seek "the best coach I can get" to replace Allen, splitting the duties of head coach and general manager between two men. He said he would interview members of the current Redskins' staff as well as outsiders.

Those likely to be interviewed from the staff include defensive coordinator "Torgy" Torgeson, who is rated most highly by the players, plus offensive coordinator Charlie Waller and defensive backfield coach Ralph Hawkins.

Yet Williams has a fondness for doing things big and probably will look for a big-name as a replacement for Allen.

Jack Pardee, who resigned Thursday as coach of the Chicago Bears, will seek the coaching job with the Skins, according to the Bears. Pardee is a former Redskin player and assistant coach.

Ara Parseghian, the former Notre Dame coach and now a television commentator, also is rumored as a candidate for the job.

Allen painted a sordid picture of high-level interference, lies and backstabbing over the last seven years in his dealing with Williams.

In his seven years here, Allen's record was 67-30-1, the best in the club's history.

Philadelphia Meet Draws Big Talent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eight recent world record setters highlight the field for tonight's Philadelphia Track and Field Classic.

Dick Buerkle, Greg Joy, Mike Tully, Houston McTear, Herman Frazier, Larry Shipp, Lorna Forde and Patty Loverock all bettered world marks within the last two weeks.

In fact, the Philadelphia meet has so much talent that it turned down a last-minute offer by Tanzania's Filbert Bayi to come from Los Angeles to run in the mile.

"Bayi played games with us all last week and we just had to turn him down," said Earl Williams of the Philadelphia Department of Recreation, sponsors of the annual meet.

"He (Bayi) made his decision last Friday night to fly to LA, and he's not worth the price now," said Williams, pointing out the list of world record breakers, Olympians and former NCAA and AAU champions in the meet.

Buerkle, who established an indoor world mark for the mile of 3:54.8 in beating Philadelphians at College Park, Md. last Friday night, is running in the 1,000-yard race here. He will face Mark Belger, unbeaten in the event in the past two years. Belger, incidentally, set an American record for the 880 of 1:48.1 last Friday, missing the world mark by two-tenths of a second.

The 22-year-old Joy, Olympic silver medalist from Vancouver, high-jumped 7 feet, 7 inches at the Maryland meet, a half-inch better than Dwight Stones' indoor mark. Stones, Kyle Arney, Franklin Jacobs and Rory Kotinek, all 7-6 or better leapers, go against Joy in the Philadelphia meet.

Tully set a pole vault mark of 18-4 inches at the Muhammad Ali Games in Long Beach, Calif., two weeks ago. Tully, the National AAU and World Cup titlist, broke the mark of 18-3 3/4 by the Pacific Track Club's Dan Ripley, who along with former world record holder Earl Bell of Arkansas State, is in the field.

Rains Halt Tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Officials adopted a "wait and see" attitude, with little confidence or optimism, after heavy rains washed out the first round of the $225,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament Thursday.

The tournament schedule has been pushed back one day and now is scheduled to end Monday—weather permitting.

Another rain storm off the Pacific is expected to hit the drenched and partially-flooded Monterey Peninsula Sunday or Monday.

"We just have to play it one day at a time—just wait and see what happens," said Jack Tuthill, the veteran Tournament Director for the PGA Tour and the man in charge of the day-to-day operations of the tour.

Barring more rain, "there's a good chance" the first round will be played today, Tuthill said.

"No matter what happens, it's going to be an awkward situation," said Jack Nicklaus, who is scheduled to open his 1978 season in this event. "If we play, it's going to be a golf tournament played in very difficult conditions—but we've played in very difficult conditions here before."

Due to the unusual format—pros play one round with celebrity amateurs on each of three courses before the final round at Pebble Beach—it is impossible to play double rounds in this event. The contract between the sponsors and the tour specifies that the tournament can run as late as Tuesday.

The tournament, often subjected to wind, rain and cold, was limited to 54 holes in 1974.

Tuthill and other officials called off competition Thursday morning more than two hours before the first men were to tee off at Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill.

"The courses simply were unplayable," Tuthill said. "You walk on a green and you sink in up to your ankles. There was no possibility we could have played."

The area, saturated with three weeks of almost-uninterrupted storms, received about 1 1/2 inches of rain during the night. The courses were inundated. Greens, tees, fairways and bunkers were flooded.

Water swept down the hills behind the posh Pebble Beach clubhouse complex and sent a foot of water rushing through the pro shop, damaging or destroying hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise. Standing water also accumulated on the floor of the PGA Tour office and damaged six handy-talky radios that were being recharged.

ABC-TV announced it would extend its scheduled national television coverage from two days to three—Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Exact times of the Monday telecast were uncertain.

SKI YOU CAN DO IT

Tree Slalom to Improve Rhythm

Skiers have been told for years to get the weight on the downhill ski, and as modern ski technique develops, the emphasis has been on using independent leg and foot action to make a better turn.

The tree slalom exercise will help improve rhythm, timing, and the feeling of going from outside (downhill) ski to outside ski. Find a row of trees or rocks.

Now run at a good pace, making your turns round and feeling the weight transfer from one outside foot to the other as you turn. Imagine that you are skiing, trying to make your weight go to that new downhill ski as early in the turn as possible. Make your "course" at least 50 yards long and try to run through it five times. Run the course once making small slalom turns, the next time making large, giant slalom turns.

This exercise is fun and will help you condition your legs for the upcoming ski season.
