

Dying Child Has Smile For Mother

By PETER J. BOYER
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Edouard de Moura Castro, aged 7, his little frame shriveled by leukemia, demanded that doctors let his failing life take its course. He had already taped an articulate message of hope to others facing death.

Last week Edouard asked his mother to remove the oxygen machine that was keeping him alive. "He said, 'Mother, turn off the oxygen, I don't need it anymore,'" Barbara de Moura Castro said Tuesday. "I turned it off, then he held my hand and a big smile came to his face and he said, 'It is time.'"

"Then he left."

Edouard died Jan. 10 after deciding details of his funeral and where he was to be buried.

The son of a Brazilian diplomat, Dr. Claudio de Moura Castro, Edouard lived with his mother and step-sister in Santa Barbara, and spent his few years amazing those who knew him by the things he said and did.

When he was 3½, Edouard became associated with a local group who followed the precepts of the ancient Eastern religion, Vedanta. By the time Edouard died, the Vedanta swami believed his tiny

City Annexation Given Approval

By PAULA TILKER

After 120 days of review and only hours before a midnight deadline, the U.S. Justice Department decided late Tuesday to approve a recent Southwest Lubbock annexation.

A letter informing the city of the decision was mailed Tuesday night from Washington, D.C., federal attorney David Hunter told The Avalanche-Journal. No other official communication with the city is planned, he added.

An A-J telephone query to the department prompted the last-minute decision, Hunter said. As of late Tuesday afternoon, he explained, no decision had been made because the department thought Friday was the deadline.

After the A-J told him the city believed the deadline to be Tuesday, Hunter said, he learned there had been a mailroom mixup and that a decision had to be reached immediately.

The attorneys in the voting rights section of the Justice Department conferred and decided to not object to the annexation, he said.

Hunter declined to say whether the department had been leaning toward rejection, explaining that "we don't discuss internal procedures."

Earlier indications by the department to the city's legal staff had been that the annexation wouldn't be approved on the grounds it would dilute minority voting strength in Lubbock.

Developer Cecil Jennings, whose property was the annexed land in question, said he was "tickled to death" about the Justice Department's ruling.

Had the department decided to oppose the annexation, Jennings had said earlier, he would have appealed to U.S. Atty. Griffin Bell and then to a federal district court.

The approved 960 acres are bordered by 82nd and 98th streets and by Quaker and Frankford avenues. The Lubbock City Council will consider zoning for the property Thursday.

The Justice Department soon will review another Southwest Lubbock annexation application, and Hunter said the process should move faster than the last one.

For Jennings' application, Hunter explained, the department initially did not receive adequate information from the city.

"Now that we have it, it should be quicker," Hunter said.

The additional information requested by the department included projected racial and ethnic makeup of the future residents in the annexed area, and racial and ethnic shifts in the city's population since the 1970 census.

City planners are preparing the required information pertaining to developer Ken Flagg's Southwest Lubbock annexation. The Justice Department then will have 60 days in which to review the material and decide whether to object.

If the department decides it needs additional data, as it did in the Jennings case, it would have 60 more days for investigation.

The extension in the Jennings case caused the mixup in a deadline. Because

Two Accused In Big Haul

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two men have been charged with felony theft in connection with an intricate scheme involving more than $700,000 worth of merchandise from Sears-Roebuck Co. here.

Jose Reyna, 24, was arrested about 11 p.m. Tuesday in Abernathy on a warrant issued earlier in the day by Lubbock authorities. According to a Hale County Jail spokesman, Reyna listed a Lubbock address at the time of his arrest. However, the suspect reportedly had been living in Abernathy recently.

Reyna was brought to Lubbock County Jail today after Justice of the Peace Jeanne Marr of Abernathy set a $15,000 bond.

The other suspect, reportedly a 42-year-old Lorenzo man, had not been taken into custody by noon today.

Police say the alleged scheme spanned a two-year period, but that Sears officials did not learn of the design until more than $660,000 worth of goods had been stolen.

Det. Sgt. Doyle Nelson and Det. Cpl. Garland Lucas, who learned of the situation from outside sources in early December, said the goods were taken from Sears' three Lubbock warehouses.

According to detectives, they had received vague reports of large amounts of merchandise allegedly being stolen from the firm, and finally received information from a citizen on the possible whereabouts of some of the items.

Nelson said the scheme involved several persons — both employees and non-employees.

Sears moved its retail organization from a downtown location to the South Plains Mall early in 1977. Because of the move, the firm reportedly did not conduct an annual inventory at that time.

When the total inventory was held — in June — store officials reportedly discovered a loss of more than $660,000 in merchandise. A "spot" inventory held last month showed an additional loss of more than $40,000, which reportedly is now known to have been taken just during that 7-month period.

According to Nelson the scheme worked this way:

A customer interested in buying merchandise would go to the store and make note of the lot number of the item. He then would contact — or perhaps be contacted by the organizer of the set-up — and pay a fraction of the retail price to him.

The organizer then would pay someone to get that item at one of the warehouses and load it into the car of the customer — who never paid the store — when he

State Post Eyed By Robnett

By PAT PATRICK

Real estate broker Nolan "Buzz" Robnett crossed to the Republican Party today to run for the state representative Dist. 75-A seat now held by Joe Robbins.

Robnett — who was a drug abuse program coordinator under former Democratic Gov. Preston Smith and Robnett who ran an unsuccessful Demo bid in 1972 for state treasurer — said he changed parties because he found himself "uncomfortable" the past few years.

"I am not attuned with the national liberal Democratic line, and some of the liberal state Democratic line I see. I have been very uncomfortable in the last few years explaining my position" as a Democrat and a conservative, he said.

Robbins has told The Avalanche-Journal he will run for re-election, although he has not yet formally announced or filed for the GOP primary.

Robnett criticized Robbins as an ineffective legislator and as philosophically out of step with Westside Lubbock.

"He has shown himself to be more liberal than I am philosophically, and I think that will help me," Robnett, 36, said.

He vowed, if elected, to oppose state personal or corporate income taxes "at every opportunity" and to "join with all Republicans in their program to oppose government's encroachment into our daily lives."

"The real danger we face in Texas," Robnett said, "is the legislature's tendency to spend, and overspend, when these surpluses are announced. Of course, there are thousands of programs which could take money. But, I'm convinced that the people want taxes and spending not only kept down, but reduced."

Elaborating on his party switch, Robnett commented:

"To me, the choosing of a political party is a very personal thing. I must feel that my personal philosophy will agree with the party I serve, and frankly, I felt compelled to run as a Republican...."

Robnett said that "not one Republican" had asked him to run for the 75-A seat on the GOP ticket, that he is enter-

Lubbock lawmen today indicated they will attempt to talk with a former Amarillo couple arrested in Ohio Tuesday in possible connection with the recent murder of a 19-year-old convenience store clerk here.

Bruce Darrell Kelley, a Lubbock Christian College student, was shot to death during an apparent robbery at Vera's Grocerette on W. 4th Street Jan. 15. No arrests have been made in connection with the incident.

However, Texas Rangers and Lubbock County Sheriff's Department deputies have been seeking a 25-year-old man and his 22-year-old wife who had been in the Lubbock area the night Kelley was killed and perhaps had bought a car from a Lubbock man shortly after the incident.

Storm Rakes West; Texas Thawing Out

A-J News Services

A blizzard swept out of Wyoming and into the Dakotas today, dropping the chill factor to 73 below zero in some places, as a bright sun started melting the ice and snow across Texas.

Highway officials in the Dakotas and northern Rocky Mountain states urged people to stay off the roads. The Wyoming Highway Patrol closed a section of Interstate 90 and convoyed motorists on several state highways.

The wind chill reached 73 below zero at Rosehill, N.D., and 65 below zero at the South Dakota flatlands.

In contrast, flooding rains — as much as 9.5 inches in 24 hours — swamped sections of the South. Pensacola, Fla., battered the heaviest deluge.

Traffic accidents were more common than snowflakes in the Hub City this morning as police counts of fender-benders rose to an estimated 45 reports during a four-hour period.

No serious injuries had been reported in connection with those morning traffic incidents, but a police spokesman said some injured persons had been carried to hospitals by private vehicles.

The city netted only 1.20 inches of snow during the night, but bitter temperatures that dropped as low as 15 degrees before dawn today preserved packed snow and ice on city streets which under fair skies seemed harmless enough.

By mid-morning, temperatures in Lubbock had risen to 21 degrees with 14 mph winds, and forecasts called for the mercury to rise to the upper 30s.

Late this morning ice on some heavily traveled streets turned to sludge.

Tonight's chill factor could drop to well below zero, if forecasts for mid-teens before temperatures and 10-15 mph winds prove accurate. Partly cloudy skies with a high near 30 is predicted for Thursday.

Ironically the 1.20-inch snowfall, which has severely hampered travel in the area, added only .11 of an inch of water to the month's total of .23 of an inch.

Before dawn today, snow covered a swath of the state from the Lubbock-

Tech To Honor Sen. Humphrey

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has been named the 1978 recipient of Texas Tech University's Thomas Jefferson Award honoring public officials who have worked to defend and protect the freedom of the press.

The Minnesota senator, who died Jan. 13, was nominated for the honor in November. A personal letter from Humphrey saying he was "most pleased and honored to accept this award," was received by Tech officials the day before he died.

Administrators have been in contact with Humphrey's family since his death and expect to announce shortly who will accept the honor at the Feb. 17 award banquet.

Humphrey is the sixth recipient of the Thomas Jefferson Award, which has been presented to Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Sam J. Ervin Jr., Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana and Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin.

Humphrey's nomination for the honor was endorsed by fellow Minnesotans Vice President Walter Mondale and Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich.

In a letter to Dr. Billy I. Ross, chairman of Tech's department of mass communications, Mondale wrote of Humphrey, "Throughout his long public career, Sen. Humphrey has consistently supported and defended the freedom of speech and of the press. I know of no public figure who has a greater commitment to those fundamental principles than Sen. Humphrey."

Gov. Perpich endorsed Humphrey's nomination saying, "I don't believe there is another public official who has been more open with the news media than Hubert Humphrey. (He) has perpetuated the ideals exemplified by Thomas Jefferson. I think it would be a most fitting tribute to the memory of our third President if Hubert Humphrey were to receive this award."

Hospital Bill Shocks Man

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — George Schwenk was startled by the hospital bill.

Schwenk, who was treated at the County-USC Medical Center for five days, received a $317 bill for delivery of a baby.

Replying, he wrote the hospital, explaining that he had been treated for an eye injury, not childbirth, and asked: "Please correct this error — or at least send me my baby."

SLIPPER COATING — Pedestrians near the First National Bank-Pioneer Gas Building tread gingerly this morning because of a slick coating of ice and snow. Numerous traffic mishaps were investigated by police. The city received 1.2 inches of snow, but it melted rapidly today under bright sunshine and temperatures in the upper 30s. United Way Installs Officers

The United Way of Lubbock installed new officers and members for 1978 and honored outgoing officers at the organization's 32nd annual meeting and awards dinner Tuesday night in the Ballroom of Texas Tech's University Center.

Owen Gilbreath was chosen president of the United Way board, with Kay Houser, vice president; Walter Taylor, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. Robert Wells, planning council chairman; Howard Yandell, budget chairman; Bob Tong, public relations chairman; and Don Douglas, campaign chairman.

Mayor Roy Bass presented plaques to retiring United Way officers, including 1977 president Peck McMinn, vice president Larry Shortes, secretary-treasurer Hadley Phillips, budget chairman Buddy Forbes, and public relations chairman Dr. Gordon Downum.

McMinn, who has served as campaign vice-chairman, campaign chairman and president in consecutive years, gave credit for "a very good year" to United Way volunteers and officers, who helped raise $1.5 million last year.

He also pointed out the addition of the Rape Crisis Center to the group of agencies funded by The United Way, and the building addition currently being constructed adjoining the United Way building at 2201 19th St.

The addition was approved by the board at a cost not to exceed $87,500, according to McMinn, with completion scheduled for March 15. Unappropriated funds are being used for the construction, to be repaid as a rent item in the annual budgets over a 10-year period.

McMinn said the United Way has been in its present quarters since 1957 when less than $300,000 was raised for 17 agencies.

New members of the United Way board of directors elected Tuesday are Joe Brown, David Garza, Marjorie Kastman, Tom Locke, Joe Price, Patti Pyle, O. Robert Smith, Dr. Lowell Snyder and Dr. Moses Turner.

Elected to three year terms on the Community Planning Council are Jerry Bear, Betty Jefferson, Carolyn Matthews, Maj. Vince Micucci, Gena Morris, Tony Reyes and W.H. Tinney.

Mahon Delivers Views On President's Budget

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wielding a knife sharpened by 43 years of public service, Rep. George Mahon dissected President Carter's 1979 budget proposal this week, slicing through presidential rhetoric to lay bare some "misleading" figures.

Mahon, Congress' senior member, first took office in 1935. He became a member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee in 1938 and its chairman in 1964. The Lubbock congressman has announced he will retire after this session, concluding a 22-term career.

On Monday, the day Carter's 1,123-page budget was delivered to Capitol Hill, Mahon began to "peel back the always-present lustrous veneer and seek to discover" what the budget actually contained.

In a traditional speech before the House, Mahon delivered his assessment of the president's budget, serving notice on both Congress and the White House of the document's strong points and shortcomings in the eyes of the influential Appropriation Committee chairman.

The speech outlined major components of Carter's budget, with each receiving words of praise — or warning — from Mahon.

"I think by far the most significant aspect of this budget is that it represents the first real ordering of priorities by the administration," he said. "The business community cannot and will not make maximum investment decisions in an atmosphere of uncertainty, confusion and frustration."

He called the president's "so-called" $25 billion tax cut "the centerpiece of the budget. There is more here than meets the eye at first blush."

Mahon said he supported "efforts to sustain the nation's economic recovery through tax reductions as opposed to spending programs," but noted the president's actual proposals "yield a net tax reduction of some $33 billion, not the $25 billion that has been prominently featured in the media.

"I am concerned," he said, "that the president's proposals for tax reduction may be too large. The proposed tax reductions may also need to be decreased if the reforms proposed by the president are not agreed to. And, in my opinion, many of them will not be."

Mahon also took exception with the president's version of the increase in the national debt resulting from the proposed budget.

"It is unfortunate that accounting techniques used in the budget so greatly distort the amount of real deficit spending that is contained in this budget," he said. "This is not a deliberate trick played by any one president, but a product of the Budget Concepts Commission some 10 years ago that probably should be changed."

Mahon told the House that the public debt would increase by $89.6 billion in 1979 if the Carter budget remains intact. "Yet the unified budget deficit is advertised as only $60.6 billion," he said.

Mahon, who chairs the defense appropriations subcommittee, called Carter's $125.6 billion defense budget "generally adequate ... although the individual details may be somewhat rearranged by Congress."

Noting that the president had promised welfare reform would involve no additional costs over existing programs, Mahon said, "If there is a single disturbing feature of this budget, it's these potentially huge costs associated with welfare reform."

Mahon, the product of a farming family, voiced strong support for what he termed the "crisis" in agriculture. "In my judgement Congress must take action, and I hope promptly, to undertake to deal effectively with the problem," he said.

"The budget calls for spending over $500 billion of the people's money. Half a trillion dollars. And it projects an increase in the national debt of $89.6 billion."

"I recall just a few years ago when Lyndon Johnson anguish over presenting the first $100 billion budget to the Congress," Mahon continued. "Now we are presented with a budget which calls for a debt increase alone in the range of $100 billion and it seems likely to create only limited shock waves."

"I recall in 1935, my first year in Congress, total federal spending was $6 billion ... at the time, $6 billion was considered an unbelievable sum of money for the federal government to be spending. Never, in my most gloomy days, did I consider I would see the federal government spending $500 billion — half a trillion dollars — in a single year."

Crime Cut By Bad Weather

Inclement weather apparently did much to forestall crime here during the night, as police today had relatively few incidents to investigate.

At least one burglar made an attempt to "be prepared" for Tuesday's snowfall. David Behrens complained that someone broke into his 1603 Ave. W residence Monday and made off with his skis, poles and boots, as well as a stereo and watch. The total take, according to the victim, was $585.

Police today still were faced with the search for the armed robber who hit a Lubbock dry cleaning shop Tuesday.

Witnesses said a tall, slender, black man wearing blue jeans and a blue-and-white-striped shirt entered Mackenzie Village Cleaners, 1730 Parkway Drive, about 12:30 p.m. and pulled a gun.

Employee Ruby Cabaniss said the man walked in and asked for some clothes.

"Then he pulled this gun and called for the girls to come up front. One of the girls called Mr. (Millard) Williams, our boss. He came up and the man told him to get the money."

After taking about $50, witnesses said the suspect ran inside a nearby apartment complex.

One of the witnesses said she got a good look at the suspect, before he covered his face with a stocking.

An employer-employee dispute at a city business late Monday apparently resulted in violence, according to a 22-year-old woman who said she was victimized.

The victim, a dancer at a club in the 5000-block of Avenue H, said she and her boss began arguing in a dressing area about 10:30 p.m.

Margie Allen of 5110 41st St. said someone broke into her home Monday and stole several articles of jewelry, a radio and a set of dishes, totaling about $34 in value.

Randy Mathews, an employee at the South Park Inn, said someone apparently stole a $300 television set from the motel.

Illinois Man Flees Suburbia To Open Blacksmith Shop

By SANDRA BALMER

PALATINE, Ill. (AP) — Tom Heckenbach "dug in his heels" for six years, raising his animals, growing his vegetables, heating his house with wood-burning stoves. But creeping suburbia and vandals knocked his heels out from under him.

Heckenbach is packing up his goats, chickens and dogs and surrendering his single acre in the suburbs to a 25-acre farm 70 miles west of Chicago. He and a partner plan to open a blacksmith shop. "I've had it with suburbia," said the 34-year-old bearded and ponytailed bachelor. "I've seen it creep out farther and farther and destroy peoples' values along with the land."

Heckenbach, a high school teacher of blacksmithing and auto mechanics, wants to live his own way — to light his house with kerosene and heat it with wood fires. His food comes from his animals and his garden, when vandals have not wrecked it.

Heckenbach says he has suffered constant harassment from someone who must be "really full of hate."

The problem began as minor vandalism shortly after he first moved to the suburb — 25 miles northwest of downtown Chicago — in 1972 but escalated into acts of violence.

Heckenbach estimates that vandals have slaughtered or stolen about 80 of his animals, mostly chickens. Someone burned two of his sheds and ransacked his home and collection of 1,500 books, some dating to the 17th century.

After one goat was slaughtered, he found a scrawled note on his front door: "You get the same."

"And someone around here must have a beautiful wood-paneled den nearby, because they got about three piles of the white pine from outside my house," he said.

"They" also managed to steal mountains of freshly chopped firewood, chickens, eggs and vegetables.

Heckenbach said he is most bitter about the stolen food, "because if people need it bad enough, all they've got to do is ask me. I'd give it to them, down to the last crust."

His lifestyle is not so unusual, Heckenbach said. "I just want to be independent of outside materials. I'm not afraid to work hard and to try something new."

He is building a device to convert chicken manure into methane gas for use in cooking and heating.

Heckenbach said he would have left long ago but "my great-great grandfather fought off Indians in the Blackhawk Wars to keep his land, and I must have inherited his stubbornness. The more they wanted me to move, the deeper I dug in my heels."

The farm in Lee County has two houses, one modern and one built around 1850. "I'll live in the new one for a few months, just long enough to fix up the old one. It's a lovely old house," he said.

Morton Voters Reject Bond Issue

MORTON (Special) — A record turnout of voters here shot down a $1.6 million bond issue Tuesday by a margin of almost 3 to 1.

The bond approval had been sought by the Morton Independent School District for a variety of improvements.

Of the 910 votes cast in the election, 677 were against the issue while 233 voted for it.

William J. Hodge, business manager for the MISD, termed it a record turnout.

Earlier this month striking Cochran County farmers had voiced displeasure with the proposal saying they could not afford the tax increase.

During a demonstration of farmers in the area American Agriculture movement spokesman Grace Thomas said that the bonds, if approved, would raise school taxes by 9 percent.

Mrs. Thomas said taxes had increased 18.2 percent in 1976.

Supt. Marlin Dodds said Tuesday that if the issue had passed, the tax rate in the district would have increased by 14 cents, from $1.55 to $1.69 per $100 valuation.

A group here, Citizens Against Increasing Taxes, had placed ads in the local paper and done radio spots urging voters to defeat the issue.

Warning Given On Insulation

By CHARLES RICHARDS

DALLAS (AP) — "Ripoff" artists have taken advantage of a shortage of insulation to jump into the market, "and they are doing well, from what I read in the papers," complains a management official of an insulation company.

"People are conscious of high fuel bills and, particularly with insulation in short supply, they are subject to these high-pressure sales pitches," said George Hoffman, vice president of CertainTeed.

He was joined in his warning by officials of other insulation companies at the 34th annual convention and exposition of the National Association of Home Builders.

(Homebuilders here have worked with insulators and city officials to draft ordinance amendments tightening insulation quality controls.

(The proposed ordinance changes will be considered by the city council next month.

(City building inspectors initiated the amendments last month on the grounds the current ordinance does not give them sufficient authority to ensure quality products are used in homes.

(As proposed, the ordinance would require stringent laboratory testing of insulation. And insulation installers would have to register with the city before applying material into residences.)

"Hasty action by homeowners in purchasing insulation materials could result in the purchase of an inferior product. The current production lag has created some unique marketing opportunities for a few obscure, unethical suppliers," Hoffman said.

Robert G. Breniff, a marketing executive with Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., said builders should take care in this period of shortage to make sure that both their contractor and the insulation he uses meet quality standards.

Hoffman said the heaviest area of abuse has been "in the production of cellulose insulation, where the initial investment is relatively low."

"Recent laboratory tests on cellulose insulation indicate that some fire retardant chemicals used to treat the newspaper (in cellulose) are either corrosive or fail to meet fire safety standards," Hoffman said.

Despite industry efforts to more than double production, consumers and homebuilders who want to make their homes energy efficient will find fiber glass insulation in short supply for the next several years, industry spokesmen said.

Owens-Corning increased its capacity by 35 percent in the past year, and CertainTeed is expanding its plants in Athens, Ga., and Kansas City and building a new plant at California.

CertainTeed has doubled its production capacity in the past six years and raised it by 35 percent last year, the company said.

The energy crunch started in late 1976 and early 1977, primarily because of several factors, officials of the major manufacturers said. They included:

—The high rate at which existing homes are being reinsulated.

—The high level of residential housing starts.

—The significant increase in the number of pounds of insulation going into both new and existing homes.

Last year's exceptionally cold winter, spiraling fuel costs and President Carter's energy conservation program combined to cause the clamor for re-insulation, Hoffman said.

Even when the decision is made to add additional production facilities, it is three years before the situation is helped, officials said.

They said it takes a year to overcome the environmental questions in building a new plant, then two years for construction.

Court Upholds Damage Suit

A-J Correspondent

ODESSA — The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld an $800,000 damage suit brought by an Odessa mechanic injured six years ago.

Dyrell Glenn Bryan sued the John Bean Division of the Ford Motor Company after he was hurt in December, 1971, while working at Sewell Ford Inc. in Odessa.

The court ruled damages awarded Bryan were justifiable.

According to a brief filed in the case, Bryan was using a clevis, a tool used in bending an auto axle for wheel alignment and manufactured by the defendant, when the tool broke into pieces.

One of the pieces caused Bryan to lose one of his eyes and he also sustained back injuries, according to the brief.

The plaintiff, defended by Ector County Dist. Atty. John Green, was considered to have been awarded a record amount of damages when the decision was rendered in 1975.

The John Bean Division filed a third party claim for contribution of indemnity against Midland-Ross Corporation, where the clevis allegedly was cast for Bean.

However, the Court of Appeals reversed the decision and remanded for a new trial the issue of liability of Midland-Ross for defective manufacturing.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Verbal agreements are not likely to count for much tomorrow in business. If you want it to stick, you'd better get it in writing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's safer not to rely on others who say they'll get something for you or open doors tomorrow. Use your own contacts or ability.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Co-workers could be more of a hindrance than a help tomorrow. Be very careful that you don't fall heir to their mistakes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A person who is introduced to you as a friend of a friend of yours may be traveling under false colors. Check her out before you get too involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tomorrow is no day to resurrect an old domestic problem. You'll have everyone at home divided and nothing can be settled anyway.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Match your language to the gravity of the situation tomorrow. If you use oral overkill, you'll accomplish only your own downfall.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're buying merchandise at a strange place, check the bill carefully before you pay. Someone may be trying to chisel a few cents.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Look out for a sharpie tomorrow who will tell you how to reap some windfall profits. His operation isn't the kind you'd want to be involved in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're going to speak of someone who's not there, speak well of him. If you derogate a person who can't answer, it may boomerang.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Read the instructions tomorrow before you try to assemble something you've bought. Plunging in blindly could end in chaos.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't build your hopes tomorrow on circumstances beyond your control, or not in accord with your ideals. Take the safe and moral route.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could possibly repeat a pattern tomorrow that has led to mistakes in the past. The leopard doesn't change its spots — the end result will be the same.

Chad Seeking Way To Survive

BY MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Torn by internal rebellion and a Libyan invasion, plagued by poverty, underdevelopment and eight years of drought, this landlocked African nation is desperately looking for ways to ensure its survival.

On government maps, Chad is twice the size of Texas. In reality, the N'djamena authorities hold barely 20 per cent of the nation's territory. They have never controlled the desolate Tibesti Mountains in the north, and have progressively lost control of most of the rest of the country since French colonial rule ended in 1960.

The government of President Felix Malloum seems to have written off the 50,000-square-mile Tibesti region, where Libyan-backed, Moslem Touabou tribesmen have set up what is virtually an independent state.

The last government stronghold in the Tibesti, Bardai, was overrun by the desert warriors after a two-week siege last July. The entire 350-man Chadian garrison was killed or captured. Malloum's 5,000-man army — outnumbered and outmaneuvered by the Touabou guerrillas — has made no attempt to return to the Tibesti and appears to have neither the will nor the strength to mount an offensive.

Virtually the entire eastern half of the country along the Sudanese border is dominated by other Moslem rebels, allied with the Touabous and officially described as "brigands." Government strongholds in this area are surrounded by rebels and are supplied only by air.

Only the densely populated southernmost fifth of the country, where most of the four million Chadians live, remains firmly in government hands. The mostly Christian or Animist population in this area grows the cotton that provides 80 percent of Chad's export income. The average citizen earns around $80 per year, making Chad one of the world's 10 poorest nations.

North of the Tibesti, in an area where no Chadian soldier has set foot for 15 years, the Libyan government of Col. Moammar Khadafi has arbitrarily annexed 30,000 square miles of supposedly unpopulated Chad territory.

Malloum has refrained from breaking relations with Libya while continuing a hitherto fruitless effort to negotiate with Khadafi through the Organization of African Unity.

An official Libyan map in the office of Libyan Ambassador Hadj Hamza Mahfoud shows parts of neighboring Niger and Algeria as well as northern Chad as Libyan territory.

"We have no quarrel with Chad," Mahfoud said. "Our troops occupy only what is our land, and we want to maintain close, brotherly relations with our Chadian neighbors."

But the border is not negotiable, Mahfoud declared.

Malloum is even more powerless against the Libyan takeover than against the Touabou rebellion. Government officials point to the Soviet-made trucks, mortars, rockets and machine guns used by the Libyan army and its Touabou allies. The officials claim that the loss of northern Chad is part of a vast Soviet-inspired strategy of "destabilization" in central Africa which aims ultimately at the overthrow of the pro-Western regimes in Egypt and the oil-rich states of the Middle East.

Perhaps with this threat in mind, President Carter has authorized the sale of American-made arms to the Malloum government. But there is no provision for credit, and the virtually bankrupt government has to pay for the arms in cash.

Chad's exports totaled $60 million in 1976, leaving an overall trade deficit of more than $50 million. The French government pays Malloum an annual subsidy amounting to 30 per cent of the $70 million budget. It also provides some 300 French troops to help train the Chad army and maintain its equipment, but the French army is no longer engaged in combat against the rebels.

A 3,000-man French expeditionary force lost dozens of killed between 1970 and 1975 in a fruitless effort to help Chad contain the rebellion and "pacify" the Touabous. Mercenary pilots from France fly the Chadian air force's six Skyraiders in combat sorties against the rebels.

The country has only 90 miles of paved highways, none of them leading to the capital, N'djamena. The communications problems hinder both sides in the 17-year-old civil war.

While there is no sign of rebel activity in the dusty streets of the capital, Malloum is building a six-foot-high concrete wall fitted with slits for gun emplacements all around the headquarters of the ruling Supreme Military Council. He took power in an army coup in 1975 and has survived two abortive countercoups by disgruntled officers.

Malloum's hopes for Chad's survival are based on promising oil exploration in the rebel-free southern region, continuing peace talks with dissident rebel leaders, and on a possible break in the disastrous drought that has almost dried up the freshwater lake from which the country takes its name.

A consortium of Shell, Esso and Chevron is drilling at various points in the southern desert around Lake Chad and some technicians say there is evidence that Chad may contain the reserves of one billion barrels necessary to finance an 800-mile pipeline to the Atlantic coast. Thus far, confirmed discoveries are merely sufficient to cover Chad's own 1-100 barrels per day consumption.

Eagle To Get Face-Lift

Noxious Gas Cloud Drifts Over States

BALTIMORE (AP) — A noxious gas cloud that swept over Baltimore and drifted into Pennsylvania earlier this month has been blamed on an invisible crack in a sulfur trioxide storage tank.

Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co. said Monday an investigation of the leakage from the firm's Curtis Bay plant found the crack in a weld on the tank. A small amount of the liquid vaporized and formed the white cloud which sent about 100 area residents to local hospitals complaining of running eyes and irritated respiratory tracts. No serious injuries were reported.

The eagle in the lower left quarter of the seal was taken from the Mexican national symbol to represent Los Angeles' many years as a Spanish and Mexican city.

Over the years, each succeeding version of the seal made it look more and more like the U.S. bald eagle symbol, and less and less like the golden eagle of Mexico.

At the urging of Councilman Arthur Snyder, who said the present version offends the Mexican government — he did not say why — the Council resolved to order a new seal made, at a cost of $800 to $1,000.

The council specified that when the seal is copied in the future, such as on police-car doors, the artists be instructed to make sure they paint a Mexican, not an American, eagle.

Anti-Smoking Campaign Directed At Children

By CRAIG A. PALMER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Joseph Califano said Tuesday his anti-smoking campaign is directed more at finding out why children smoke than telling adults to quit the habit.

Califano, an ex-smoker, said nearly $20 million of the $30 million President Carter wants for anti-smoking efforts is planned for research.

Other research is directed at the interaction of cigarettes with alcohol, medicines, and substances workers are exposed to on their jobs.

The Food and Drug Administration planned to announce today new patient-information requirements for birth control pills including a warning about the effects of smoking.

Women taking the birth control pills are what the Department of Health, Education and Welfare describes as one of the high-risk smoker groups earmarked for special attention.

Others are pregnant women and certain occupational groups like asbestos and cement workers.

HEW also wants to develop classroom materials on smoking education that could be available for review by school superintendents before the next school year.

Califano, in a telephone interview, said that although smoking research would get the biggest chunk of the anti-smoking dollars, a major public education effort will be aimed at teen-age and younger children to discourage them from starting to smoke.

Residents Of Buffalo To Stage Snow Ball

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Ever since an American Airlines stewardess named Toby Pyle (wife of one of our Washington writers) told me Buffalo had the worst weather of any city she has visited, I have admired the spunk and good humor of its frost-bitten citizenry.

So it comes as no shock that Buffalo has decided to remember the Great Blizzard of '77 by staging a giant snow ball — black tie, if you please — on Jan. 28, one year to the day after winds howling off Lake Erie began burying the city under a snowfall that 10 days later measured 43 inches. This is not only taller than most St. Bernard dogs and enough to obliterate hundreds of acres of abandoned automobiles, but the drifts were higher than many houses and thousands of people were stranded for days in courthouses, supermarkets, bowling alleys and gin mills.

Ten people froze to death in their automobiles on the bleak highways where nothing moved but rescue snow scooters, and another 18 died in blizzard-related accidents, including fires that raged out of control as water froze inside fire hoses and hydrants coughed up ice cubes.

"Maybe the blizzard was lousy for business and a lot of other things, but it brought out fellowship among the people of Buffalo," said Bill Eaton, an art gallery proprietor who organized the blizzard ball. "Most of us had fun, got to know one another better. The ball is a way of keeping all that going."

The memorial blizzard blast will be held in a lovely Buffalo mansion called Butler Hall, which to me anyway seems exceedingly appropriate as it was the home of the late Mrs. Edward Butler, the long-time president of the Buffalo Evening News.

I met Mrs. Butler, a lady of great charm and wit, on an airplane once going to Ireland and she wondered aloud whether it would be raining when we got there. I thought it strange that someone from Buffalo should worry about the weather anywhere, which elicited both a laugh and an anecdote from my seat-mate.

Mrs. Butler related that one year in the early 1950s the weather was so horrid in Buffalo she decided to cheer up her readers by giving them the weather report each day from Fairbanks, Alaska, by way of suggesting that things could be worse.

"The first day we tried it with a front page box," the lady recalled. "It was 8 below in Buffalo and 15 above in Fairbanks. The next day we slipped to 10 below and Fairbanks was right on zero. The third day I said forget it and went to Florida."

Those who shovel off to Buffalo for the big snow ball will find that the indomitable spirit of Mrs. Butler and weather-wise people like her invest this upstate New York community with a rough and ready pioneer-type humor, which is why the town became one vast slumber party during its wintery ordeal.

I have no idea who is coming to the frostbite frolic, but I hope the guest list includes the 190-pound traffic cop who was blown over six times while on duty that first howling January night, and all the guys snowed in at the bowling alley who just went on improving their game, and the weather forecasters who were snowbound in their observatory out at the airport.

It would be nice if the guest list included the Rev. Hubert Reimann, the priest in rural Sardinia who bunked down 30 orphans of the storm and always answered his phone, "St. Jude's Ski Lodge." And Ruth Rusiniak, the widow with six kids, who cooked up enough soup and goulash to feed 120 refugees camped out in the volunteer fire house in Cheektowaga. Also the lady who couldn't make it home from Nork in the storm, went into a tavern, bought a lottery ticket and won $1,000 a week for the rest of her life.

Since, as Police Commissioner Thomas Blair noted, "the storm brought out the best and the worst in us," maybe a few of the more outrageous looters should be on hand for the grand march, especially the guy who stole the snow plow.

The big blizzard ball undoubtedly will bring out its share of "Buffalo Blizzard Boreds," a large mouth species given to endless recitals of how high the drifts were above their second-story bedroom windows and how after 10 days they finally found their faithful family cars out on the Thruway and the engine kicked to life right away.

Steve Weller, columnist for the Buffalo Evening News, did a classic snow job on the blizzard boreds when he showed up a yarn about his own car being found by four guys drilling for natural gas. It had been buried more than a week, "but the lights were on and the radio was playing 'April in Paris.'"

The reassuring thing about staging a blizzard ball in Buffalo is that the organizing committee doesn't have to book the hall for an alternate date in the event of inclement weather. Just so long as the band can make its way through the drifts to play "Let It Snow, Let It Snow" and similar seasonal ballads.

DR. LAMB

Epilepsy Causes Differ

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In August of 1972 my husband suffered a grand mal seizure while sleeping. A brain scan, EEG and complete evaluation found no cause for the seizure.

The doctors prescribed Dilantin which he took for a while, then quit. He was all right for over a year. Then he had three severe seizures, one after the other. A repeat evaluation again failed to show any cause for his seizures.

Again, he was put on Dilantin and he took it faithfully twice a day. During the next two years he again had some light seizures, but only one at a time and he recovered quickly.

Then last November he again suffered three grand mal seizures in about two and a half hours. These were the most severe attacks he has ever had. He was completely disorganized and delirious. He is now on four Dilantin tablets a day and Mebaral at bedtime.

What can be the cause of these seizures and why should they have started at the age of 49? There is no history of epilepsy in his family, he has suffered no severe head injury and he is not a heavy drinker. I am concerned as to what these seizures might do to him. The doctor says not to worry as long as he takes his medicine but I'm not so sure.

DEAR READER — You have to realize that over half of all cases of epilepsy occur without any apparent cause. This common form of epilepsy is called "idiopathic" as opposed to "acquired" which has an identifiable cause.

The other point your husband's history makes is that many people who develop epilepsy do not have a family history of the disorder. The relatively low incidence of children of parents of epileptics and the occurrence of epilepsy in people with no family history as in your husband's case demonstrates that the chances of inheriting epilepsy are not very great. That, coupled with the ability to control most seizures with modern medicines, means there need be little concern about a person with epilepsy having children.

You can expect your husband to be seriously confused with such attacks. Headaches, confusion and fatigue are all part of the picture in many patients in the post convulsion state, called the "post ictal state."

Despite how it looks, the person with a convulsion does not experience pain from the convulsion. The only pain that occurs is after the person wakes up if he has bitten his tongue or cheek or hurt himself in a fall. That is why it is important to put the person in a safe position where he is not apt to strike himself and have him lie down so he can't hurt himself. If you have something soft, such as a handkerchief, you can put it between his teeth to help prevent biting his tongue or cheek.

To give you more information about epilepsy and what to expect I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You can Have It Too. I used that title because anyone at any age can develop epilepsy as a complication of an automobile accident, a stroke or any other cause of brain damage. It is more common than you might think. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

And I must caution you that an epileptic should not stop his medicine without his doctor's approval. Getting a patient adjusted to the right medicine for him often takes many months, well over a year. If your husband stops his Mebaral he may precipitate severe recurrent attacks called status epilepticus, which is an emergency.

Finance Group Urges Wise Use Of Credit

CHICAGO (Special) — "More and more young people are becoming aware of the need to establish credit and to use it wisely," says James M. Browne, president and chief executive officer of Finance-American, one of the nation's leading consumer finance institutions.

Industry figures show that loans made to young people aged 18 to 35 constitute almost half of all loans made by consumer finance companies. These loans are used for a variety of purposes, but chiefly to consolidate existing debts, to purchase furniture and appliances, and to finance vacation trips.

Browne believes that the young families of today are enjoying a higher standard of living than ever before. This is due to the greater portion of working wives and to the fact that these families are making use of credit to enjoy the finer things of life today. Couples in this age group have grown up in an affluent ear. Influenced by television and radio, they are accustomed to material goods and services. In fact they are much heavier consumers in this area than their parents were at the same age.

By 1980, the number of young people aged 20-35 will increase by approximately 14%. These young adults will be the strongest consumers of tomorrow. It is they who need credit, as well as education and guidance in using it.

It is estimated that two-thirds of all families in this age group have some form of installment credit. This credit may be in the form of department or specialty store charge accounts, gasoline credit cards, automobile loans, instant credit cards of all kinds, cash advance by credit card, monthly or quarterly billing or automobile insurance, and personal loans from banks, credit unions and consumer finance companies such as Finance America.

people have less time on the job and fewer assets. They are just getting started in life. In evaluating the credit worthiness of such a customer, many lenders tend to forget the most important factor in granting credit, the character of the individual borrower.

Browne advises young people to establish credit as soon as possible. With the lowering of the age of majority to 18 in almost all states, more and more young people are opening charge accounts at local stores. The use of checking and savings accounts is another way to make a name for oneself, credit-wise.

Browne tells young people not to be too concerned about borrowing large amounts. "It is better to borrow a small amount and repay it promptly."

Many young people who fall behind in their payments do so not because they don't have the money, but because they don't realize the importance of credit," advises Browne. "A good credit history can help them throughout their entire lives."

According to Browne, the young person who learns how to use credit today has a head start on tomorrow. In the future the widespread use of electronic transfer of funds will make credit essential even for a trip to the supermarket.

"Armed with a good credit history, and knowledge about the use of credit," concludes Browne, "young people have everything to gain from using credit wisely."

Europeans To Vote In Election

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — For the first time in history nine major West European governments will permit their people to vote for members of the European Parliament, an arm of the Common Market. Up to now they have been appointed.

But just when the election will be and where the Parliament will meet are not certain, along with a number of other questions. Original plans called for a vote this May or June, but because of complications in Britain, it may not come until October or even March 1979.

Then there's the question: Should it meet in Strasbourg, France, a capital of wine and liveries of fat geese; in Luxembourg, where it has offices and sometimes meets, or in Brussels where the news reporters are?

Eligible to run are citizens of Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark, Ireland and Luxembourg — the countries of the European Common Market, with a population larger than that of the United States.

The Europeans still have battles to fight before the actual vote, including one over how much salary should be paid members of the Parliament. The current proposal is to pay each of the 410 members about $45,000 a year, in contrast to the $60,000 paid U.S. congressmen.

The longest fight is likely to come over the Parliament's powers. It hasn't many now: partial control over the Common Market's $15 billion budget and the power to vote out the European Commission, the Common Market's joint executive.

The site of the meetings is a delicate point. Strasbourg, where former Premier Pierre Pflimlin is the influential mayor, has recently opened an imposing and expensive Palais de l'Europe for the meetings. Many members like Strasbourg, known for its restaurants and as a symbol of reconciliation between France and Germany.

But the Parliament also has offices and regular meetings in Luxembourg. Restaurants, hotels and landlords there are eager to keep the business — an important part of the gross national product. So for each monthly session a good many of the 1,500 employees of the Parliament pack files onto trucks for a round trip to Strasbourg of nearly 250 miles.

How to Pick Sleepers in Rare Plates

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — The director of a worldwide art exchange in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with high resale potential.

According to Roderick MacArthur, director of The Bradford Exchange, one exceptional plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,750, and another selling at $9.75 in 1969 now sells for $440.

Mr. MacArthur says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes." He offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more. It even includes special offers on eagerly-sought collector plates at modest cost.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to the Bradford Exchange, 85404 Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. To be sure of receiving your free copy, mail your request before Saturday of next week.

Safety Rules Set For Cellulose

WASHINGTON (AP) — With fiberglass insulation in short supply, the Senate is acting to insure the safety of cellulose, a major substitute material.
Senators approved by voice vote Monday a measure that would require the government to adopt interim safety standards for cellulose within four months. And within a year, the Senate would have the Consumer Product Safety Commission study all types of home insulation. Similar legislation is before the House.

produce feed for, among other things,
French cattle.

The businessman is M. F. (Tom) Petzoldt, president of East Perry Lumber Co., which he calls the largest hardwood lumber producer in the Midwest.

Some of the sawdust from the plant is used to make cattle feed that Petzoldt said is on a par with good grass hay.
"It's high in carbohydrates," he said.
"You can replace 50 percent of the corn in cattle feed with it."

The low price of corn today is not in his favor, Petzoldt said, but the sawdust feed still sells.
"We're not in that good a position right now as when corn was $3 a bushel," he said.

A mixture for cow-calf herds sells for $50 a ton, he said, while a fattening ration for steers sells for about $110.
"I know we could sell everything we'd make if we could dry and pelletize it.

Right now we sell it in bulk."

Drying and pelletizing equipment will be completed in about three months, he said.

The plant has a capacity of about 140 tons a day, he said, and now is operating at about 60 tons a day. The feed is being sold both domestically and in Europe.

"We're shipping a little of it across the creek," Petzoldt said. "We have a load going to France. We'll have 15 farmers in here the 30th of this month from France.

"We had a delegation from Switzerland last week. We practically have foreign visitors every week."

The reason for the visits, he said, is because processing of sawdust is not done overseas. A load of sawdust was sent to his plant from Russia for treatment, Petzoldt said.

Petzoldt became interested in the use of sawdust for feed four years ago when a Sand Springs, Okla., man advertised his invention in a farm magazine.

"He had a little pot and was fooling around with it, making 300 pounds at a time," Petzoldt said. "It took a week to make a truck load."

"We fed a few cattle here with it, and had good results, real good gains. We were convinced it would work."

A number of others also are convinced, Petzoldt said. Competitors are building plants in Missouri, and he knows of similar operations in Texas and Indiana.

Third Roosevelt Politician Emerges From Harvard

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
 BOSTON (AP) — Another Roosevelt politician is emerging from Harvard, the ivy-covered university which already has produced two Roosevelt presidents.
 He is Mark Roosevelt, 22, the slender, tennis-playing great-grandson of Bull Moose Republican, Theodore Roosevelt. He describes himself as "a liberal, left-leaning Democrat" who wants to redistribute the wealth.

His father, Kermit, is a Middle East specialist noted for his CIA role in toppling Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh and restoring the shah to the throne of Iran in 1953. "My father's coup," Mark called it during an interview.

Still a Harvard undergraduate, young Roosevelt earned $150 a week running the campaign for John O'Bryant, a 46-year-old former science teacher who in November became the first black elected this century to the Boston School Committee.

With graduation about five months away, Roosevelt now earns $200 weekly planning the campaign for Democrat Lawrence DiCara, new Boston City Council president who wants to run in November for state treasurer.

Born and raised in Washington, D.C., Roosevelt plans to settle in Boston after graduation, stay in politics, eventually aiming at public office in the tradition of "TR", as he calls his great-grandfather, and of distant cousin, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

His name weighs on him. "I've never come to terms with it," he said.

"The Roosevelt name will make people listen to me," he said. "It isn't as if I'm just Joe Sixpack. And I do want to be listened to."

Also troubling to a young, liberal politician in an anti-spy era is his father's CIA connection. His father stayed up once to 4 o'clock in the morning discussing the Iranian coup, he said. Both elder brothers — 17 and 18 years older than he — work with their father in the Washington firm, Kermit Roosevelt Associates.

"They're associates," he said. "All of them nefarious. They consult in the Middle East. I hope that will be the extent of my knowledge of what they do. Will I be disillusioned if I ever join the firm?"

Rise Seen In Young Alcoholics

By JANE SEE WHITE
 NEW YORK (AP) — He eats his meals in a Bowery mission for the price of listening to a sermon. His possessions are stowed in a sagging cardboard box. He sleeps in hallways. He is 28 years old.

The experts say that the number of young alcoholics and mentally distressed who visit the flophouses and soup kitchens of Manhattan's Bowery is growing.

"It used to be very, very rare for us to find anyone in their early 20s. Not any more," says Don Schwartz of the Volunteers of America. "The median age has dropped from about 55 seven or eight years ago into the high 30s now."

There are burned-out alcoholics, abusers of many drugs — any drug. There are vacant-eyed psychiatric patients and there are angry young men who have no skills and no job.

Like most of the Bowery's residents, this young man cannot explain why he came there. As he talks, he keeps his eyes down. They do not seem to focus.

He has been in the Bowery one month. His home, he says, is in Bakersfield, Calif. His family, he asserts, is "very wealthy." He has no place to sleep.

He is tall, thin. A threadbare gray woolen overcoat hangs from his sloping shoulders.

Some of the young men say they're staying in the Bowery, a cheap place to live, only until they find a job. If they drink, they say, it's just to pass the time.

A red-headed black in his 20s stands near an elevator at the city's Men's Shelter. He is holding a pair of high-heeled women's shoes and an enormous purse. At his feet is a clear plastic garbage bag stuffed with clothing.

"You gotta be wondering," he says, grinning widely. "I met this lady last night and now she's in jail. I don't think I should just throw her stuff away."

As he talks, he shifts his weight nervously from foot to foot. "I know you can smell the wine on my breath, man, but I'm saying good-bye to that. I got a job ... pressing clothes in the Bronx — $200 a week."

Others have given up. They know it, and they'll say it. On a Bowery alcohol treatment ward, a graying man who appears to be in his 50s is curled on his side atop a disheveled bed.

"Been down here seven years, since I was 30. No one bothers you much here. I used to teach mentally retarded children, quit because of the booze. I get by, pan-handling."

A State Senate Task Force found that in 1975, 25 percent of the men served at the Men's Shelter were under 30, an increase of more than 9 percent from 1969. But exactly how many of the Bowery's homeless men are under 30 is unknown; it is a shifting population not easily counted.

Explaining the shift, Bowery professionals invoke a sagging national economy and high unemployment, the Vietnam War, the State Department of Mental Hygiene's practice of releasing non-dangerous psychiatric patients, an increase in teen-age alcoholism.

Then they confess that they just don't know.

"From our experience, I can't blame it on Vietnam," says Ed Brown of the Lower East Side Service Center, a drug treatment program. "Those that got addicted there or developed serious problems afterwards had, in fact, been abusing drugs before they got into the war."

At the VOA, Schwartz theorizes. "During the Vietnam War, there was a great deal of narcotics available. Then afterwards, the men were under a strain — trying to readjust, find a girl, get a job. If he's having bad luck, those pressures sometimes force a man to turn to drink."

But listen to Ed Geffner, director of the Manhattan Bowery Project, an alcohol treatment program.

"The younger men we see have histories similar to the older guys — they just got down here more quickly. Generally they don't have much education, 6th or 7th grade, and there was a serious alcohol problem in their family."

There is agreement that former psychiatric patients account for part of the youthful population. Released from state hospitals, many gravitate to the Bowery, where a variety of services and cheap hotels beckon.

The State Senate Task Force noted that the number of patients in state psychiatric facilities declined by nearly 61,000 between 1965 and 1975.

On one evening in 1976, 28 percent of the new clients at the Men's Shelter had a history of psychiatric hospitalization, the Task Force reported. The caveat: This group of new clients was "a much older population ... 61 percent between the ages of 40 and 60 plus."

Overweight Cats Claimed In Pain

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — To be a "fat cat" may be a good deal for the human variety, but the four-footed kind are not to be envied.

They may be in great pain. "Cats are about the only creatures we know of who can actually feel pain from fat," a Boston veterinarian said Monday in a paper presented to a meeting of the American Animal Hospital Association.

Obese felines can develop a disease — steatitis — from a surplus of polyunsaturated fats in their systems, said Dr. Peter Theran, assistant chief of staff of Angell Memorial Hospital.

Their body fat becomes inflamed and causes such intense pain the cat suffers from any movement or touch, and hides from humans so it will not be picked up and cuddled.

Too much red-meat tuna, or fish oil, in cat food can cause the disease, he said. It can be cured by proper diet and vitamin E, Theran said.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Today we'll flash back to some paragraphs and comments we believe deserve an encore:

Q: Is it true that Dick Cavett, making his debut on the Broadway stage in "Otherwise Engaged," tried to get Garbo to be his co-star?

A: "Greta," Dick quipped, "was very anxious to be with me. But I never returned her calls!"

Q: With the astronomical salaries today's athletes get paid these days, I wonder how much the greatest ballplayer, Babe Ruth, received?

A: One spring the Babe held out for — $80,000! This prompted a sportswriter to tell Ruth, "That's more money than Herbert Hoover got last year for being President of the United States." Ruth's retort: "Well, I had a better year than Hoover did!"

Q: Why, after all the derogatory remarks made about U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young at the UN, has President Carter remained firm in expressing continued confidence in him?

A: Likely because he has sincere admiration for the outspoken one-time pastor of two rural churches in Georgia. Also because Young played a decisive role in delivering the crucial black vote that helped put Carter in the White House.

Q: Who, in recent times, was or is the world's richest person?

A: Guinness claims that person was Jean Paul Getty. "Taking together all his properties, the oil giant was the wealthiest at the time of his death in 1976. His riches reportedly exceeded more than $1,750,000,000!"

This typical Hollywood tale of a teen-ager tickled us when screenwriter Art Arthur related it: "A 12-year-old girl was collecting contributions for a Beverly Hills church charity drive. Ringing the chimes of a noted film actor she was speechless when he himself opened the door. Learning what his young visitor's mission was, the generous star wrote out a check for $1,000, and handed it to her. She ran breathlessly back to the fund's treasurer and proudly showed her the check. 'That's great,' the lady agreed, 'but the check doesn't have a signature on it.' 'I know that,' the girl nodded. 'I cut it off and pasted it in my autograph book!'"

It took 23 years for Jackie Gleason to make Marilyn Taylor Mrs. Gleason. And a quarter of a century since writing and dedicating a song to her titled "Marilyn" . . . The Great One, following cosmetic surgery to youthify his appearance, prompted long-time friends to comment: "This is the first time Jackie's ever been known to be 'two-faced!'" . . . Who was the loneliest football superstar glimpsed briefly on the Los Angeles Rams sidelines while the Minnesota Vikings were clobbering his team? Joe Namath! . . . Monte Hall, millionaire game-show host, attributes his success to patience. "I learned patience as a kid growing up in Canada," he commented. "There were 13 people living in our house and we only had one bathroom!" . . . Margaret Trudeau, after being spanked by the media for wearing a short skirt to a formal White House dinner, explained at the time that her husband, the prime minister, picked it out in the first place — "not me!"

Speaking of his brother's church, beer-guzzling Billy Carter commented: "The only time I ever go there is when one of the kids is baptized!" . . . After penning his best-selling biography on Jack Benny, calling him "America's Best-Loved Entertainer," Milt Josefsberg said the only person who might consider that unfair would be Don Rickles! . . . Susan Ford, a professional photographer for a national magazine, found the job a snap . . . Elizabeth Taylor Warner admitted, long after the fact, that she had offered herself to Idi Amin as a hostage for the innocent people trapped during the Entebbe incident . . . The U.S. President who holds the record for the most vetoes: Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Wonderfully wacky Woody Allen is so sensitive, he once said: "When we played softball, I'd steal second; then feel guilty and go back!" . . . This was the year in which former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox partnered with a former black con in a nightclub act billed as Maddox and the Dishwasher . . . RCA estimated the sale of Elvis Presley's records and albums waxed by them over a 22 year span reached an incredible $4.3 billion . . . Johnny Carson described the symptoms of Hong Kong fever as "running a temperature, having a nose that ran and an insane desire to iron your own shirts!"

No, Mamie Eisenhower didn't donate Ike's expensive clothes to any of the charitable organizations after his death. But she did have five or six of the well-dressed President's suits altered to fit their grandson, David. "And he still wears them," smiles his wife, Julie Nixon Eisenhower . . . The name of the actor who played the original "Boy" in Tarzan was Johnny Sheffield, who started life as an incubator baby . . . Pardon the interruption — but we want to make a correction: Inadvertently in a recent column, we referred to one of our all-time favorite comedians, Ken Murray, as the "late" Ken Murray. Better never than late. Happily, Ken is still with us.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can in their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

Mart Moves Upward In Light Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved modestly higher in light trading today, showing some signs of bargain hunting in blue chips.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks added 2.51 points to 774.08 after closing at a 33-month low on Monday and improving only fractionally on Tuesday.

The midday tally of New York Stock Exchange listed issues showed gainers outnumbered losers by a margin of about 4-3. The NYSE composite index of more than 1,400 common stocks was up .14 at 49.54.

American Telephone & Telegraph added 3/4 to 57 1/4 in active trading. Eastman Kodak, also active, was up 1/4 to 46 1/4, and Xerox gained 1/2 to 44 1/4.

Steel issues, which rose Tuesday on a statement by Republic that orders are holding up better than anticipated, continued to climb. Republic added 1/2 to 24 1/4. U.S. Steel gained 3/4 to 32 1/4 and Bethlehem gained 3/4 to 23. Bethlehem today reported a $448.2 million loss in 1977 but attributed much of that to pre-tax writeoffs from plant closings designed to restore profitability.

Louisiana Pacific was one of the largest NYSE gainers adding 1 1/4 to 13 1/4, pacing general improvement in the paper and forest products sector. International Paper advanced 1/2 to 24 1/4, Weyerhaeuser gained 1/2 to 24 1/4, but Boise Cascade was unchanged at 23.

Volume on the Big Board came to just 7.77 million shares as of noon, down from 8.45 million the previous day.

Brokers said some investors appeared to be cautiously awaiting government reports due Thursday on the latest money supply figures and the U.S. trade figures for December.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 3 to 121.25.

Labor Bill Regarded Ominous

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee is beginning final drafting of legislation to overhaul the nation's labor laws, with opponents already admitting they will need a filibuster to block the measure.

The legislation, a prime goal of organized labor, calls for expedited union representation elections and new penalties against companies found violating labor laws on purpose. The Senate Human Resources Committee scheduled a hearing today on the measure, and aides said it was possible the bill would be cleared for floor action.

The legislation is expected to come before the full Senate in March. The House of Representatives passed a similar bill last year.

The Senate measure, redrafted after hearings to meet some of the objections raised by opponents, calls for expanding the National Labor Relations Board from five to seven members to handle an increased caseload. It calls for representation elections within 21 days in most cases and authorizes one and a half times back pay minus wages earned elsewhere for an employee fired illegally during an organizing campaign. It allows the federal government to bar firms from federal contract work for up to three years if they willfully violate the law and would give union and company spokesmen equal access to workers during a union representation election campaign.

The Senate committee scheduled its hearing one day after an estimated 1,000 small businessmen from 34 states turned lobbyist for a day and traveled to Washington to work against the bill.

At a "Small Business, Fair Labor Law Rally" held by the group, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, promised a filibuster to thwart a bill he said would lead to "forced unionization."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, termed the measure "the most ominous piece of labor legislation that has been proposed in recent years," and said members of the group should ask their senators to support the promised filibuster.

Planes Find No Radiation

YELLOWKNIFE, Northwest Territories (AP) — Specially equipped search planes have detected no radiation from the nuclear-powered Soviet satellite that burned up over northwest Canada, officials said today.

The U.S. and Canadian air force planes hunting for debris or radiation contamination criss-crossed the skies today over an unpopulated region east of Great Slave Lake where the satellite, carrying 100 pounds of enriched uranium 235, disintegrated early Tuesday.

A Canadian armed forces "nuclear response team" checked the streets of this nearby town with geiger counters and "the results were zero," said Capt. John Lyne, the group's leader.

In West Germany, Prof. Heinz Kaminski, director of a private institute for space research at Bochum, said the flaming orbiter must have left a radiation cloud some 200 miles long at an altitude of 30 to 40 miles in the atmosphere, though so far it has escaped detection.

Asked why he thought such a cloud may have formed, Kaminski — a well-known scientist often quoted in the German press on space matters — said: "With every re-entering (of a satellite) and consequent disintegration, ionized clouds have developed and will always develop. That is simply physics."

Told that no trace of radiation has been found in Canada, Kaminski said the planes might be flying too low to detect a nuclear cloud and he urged officials to send up a weather balloon to take samples. His own institute has satellite-tracking equipment.

The surveillance planes were following a 450-mile flight path. Taking part in the search were a high-flying U.S. U-2 reconnaissance plane, a U.S. Boeing 707 and five Canadian armed forces military planes.

A team of U.S. experts in radiation detection and cleanup were flown from the Nevada Nuclear Test Site near Las Vegas to mount special sensors on the planes and aid in the search.

"If there's anything to find, we're confident we'll find it," Mahlon Gates of the U.S. Energy Department told reporters at a Canadian air force base in Edmonton, Alberta.

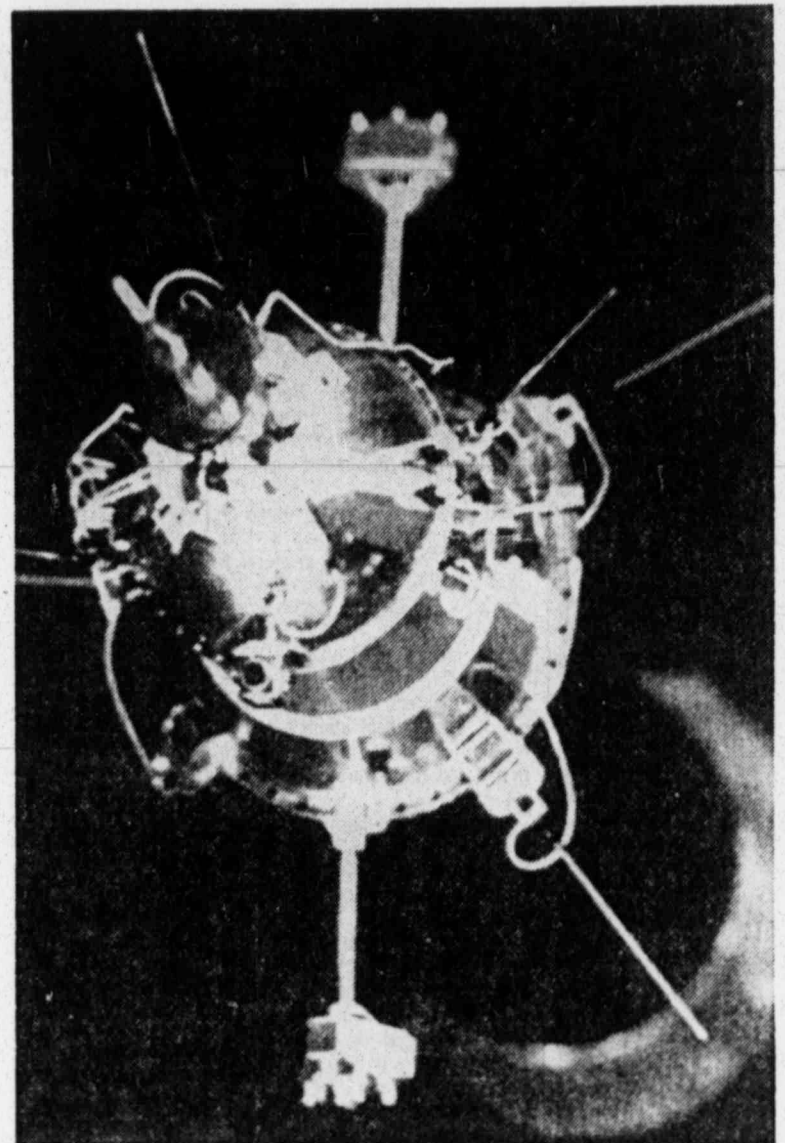

The center of the search is about 34 miles east of the eastern tip of Great Slave Lake and about 200 miles east of Yellowknife, a community of 6,000 about 850 miles north of the U.S. border.

In Moscow, Canadian Charge D'Affaires Alan P. McLaine met today with officials at the Soviet Foreign Ministry to obtain more information about the fallen satellite. McLaine said the Soviets were "very forthcoming" and offered to help locate any debris from the craft.

Under international agreement, the Soviet Union is responsible for any damage caused by the satellite. Canada's external affairs minister, Don Jamieson, said he would pursue with the Soviets "the question of financial liability for any costs of search or any other activities that may be required."

Jamieson also said his government is looking into international legal requirements for cleaning up space debris and trying to determine what the next step should be.

"It appears that destruction did occur during the re-entry process and that the likelihood of any negative effects are minimal," he said. "But we don't want to underestimate that, and all necessary coordination is going on with the United States and the Soviet Union."

EPA Sets New Standard On City Water Supplies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing a serious public health threat, the Environmental Protection Agency today announced the first rules designed to reduce potential cancer-causing chemicals present in the nation's drinking water supplies.

The program, which could cost an initial $450 million, has two parts:

—Setting a standard for the amount of chloroform and related chemicals that may be present in tap water as a result of the use of chlorine to disinfect supplies.

—Using carbon filters for drinking water plants whose ground or river supplies are contaminated by organic chemicals.

EPA Administrator Douglas Costle said the rules would eventually affect drinking water supplies used by 100 million Americans.

He estimated the cost at up to $450 million and annual operating costs of $60 million, with the average family water bill in some areas rising by some $6 to $10 per year.

"This marks the start of the first large scale effort in history to deal with organic chemical contaminants in drinking water," Costle said.

"It will initiate changes on our approach to protecting and assuring the quality of the water we drink, and will give the American public an 'insurance policy' against the dangers associated with chemicals in our water.

Costle said the organic chemicals identified so far in drinking water are present in low concentrations.

"Even so, the lifetime exposure of our population to these chemicals poses a serious threat to public health," he told a news conference. "We are especially concerned about the potential increase in cancer risk."

Chloroform has been shown to cause cancer in test animals. It has been found in the drinking water supplies in many cities across the country, and in recent years it was revealed that part of it was coming from the use of chlorine to disinfect water.

Costle said EPA remains convinced that chlorine is still the best kind of disinfectant. But he said technology has reached the place where it is now possible to have both chlorine and a method of treating its by-products, which are called trihalomethanes.

The standard for chloroform and other THMs would be 100 parts per billion. That would apply initially only to community water systems serving more than 75,000 people.

Those systems would have to begin monitoring their water within three months after EPA issues final regulations, and would be required to meet the standard 15 months later.

All systems serving more than 10,000 people would have to test their water periodically for a year and give the results to EPA and to the states. The agency said the smallest systems would be phased into the program as soon as it is feasible, based on information as it comes in.

The second half of the proposal would require all systems serving more than 75,000 people to use granular activated carbon filtering processes within five years of when the rule is issued in final form.

Supplies with unpolluted sources of drinking water would be exempt from this requirement.

Federal Judge Delays Ruling

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The government today rested its case in the John Thomas cotton price support trial, and U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward then held in abeyance a motion by the defense for a judgment of acquittal.

Woodward did dismiss one of 92 counts in the indictment against Thomas, after prosecutors agreed with the defense contention that no evidence had been presented concerning the particular count.

After arguments, Woodward said he did not wish to rule on the defense bid to throw out other counts.

He told the defense, however, not to get its hopes up.

"In all probability, I will overrule your motion," Woodward said to defense attorneys. The judge indicated he would make such a ruling at once if the defense wanted a ruling, but indicated he preferred to withhold a formal ruling.

"I think some of these points deserve consideration," Woodward stated.

Thomas was expected to testify later today.

The defendant, 44, a former Brownfield resident who recently moved his business headquarters to Houston, is charged with converting Commodity Credit Corp. funds to his own use and supplying false information to the government agency.

The government charges that Thomas did so in 1972 and 1973 by violating federal regulations pertaining to the Upland Cotton Program then in effect.

The defense contends Thomas broke no laws, but instead relied upon the advice of Department of Agriculture officials and of his own attorneys before organizing joint lease farm ventures during those years in Gaines County.

The first defense witness was L.J. Richardson, president of the First National Bank of Brownfield.

Testimony has shown that First National helped finance joint ventures in 1972.

Richardson today told defense attorney Michael E. Tigar that he had called government agricultural officials in Seminole before deciding to lend money to individuals wanting to participate in the joint ventures.

According to testimony, participating members borrowed funds to lease land from Jon-T Farms, Inc., a Thomas company, assigning expected government subsidy checks to the bank as collateral for the loans.

Richardson said use of government subsidies as collateral was a common practice at the time. He said approximately 50 percent of farm loans made by his bank during the period were secured partially or wholly by government checks.

He said he did not rely upon Thomas in deciding to grant loans to joint venturers, but instead relied on their being eligible for the subsidies.

Mrs. Humphrey Named To Post

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Muriel Humphrey was appointed today by Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich to the U.S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of her husband Hubert.

Mrs. Humphrey, who becomes the only woman in the Senate, will serve until a special election is held next November. She declined to say whether she will run in the special election for the four years remaining in her late husband's term.

Mrs. Humphrey said she had not discussed with her husband the possibility of her taking his place in the Senate.

"I had no guidance at all from him on this decision," she said. "I hope he is guiding me today."

Perpich announced the appointment at a news conference in an apartment complex in Hillsboro Beach, a suburb of Fort Lauderdale, where Mrs. Humphrey is vacationing.

Perpich, who had arrived a few hours earlier to meet with Mrs. Humphrey, said she will have "the overwhelming support and love of Minnesotans."

Mrs. Humphrey, 65, appeared at the news conference, with her eldest son, Minnesota State Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey III, at her side.

Asked whether she will seek election in November, she said, "That's a long time away. I have no idea."

Whoever is elected in November will take office immediately.

Mrs. Humphrey said she had been urged by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, a fellow Minnesotan and close family friend, to accept the post.

She leaves Thursday for a brief vacation in the Virgin Islands and then will assume Senate duties in Washington.

Humphrey died of cancer Jan. 13 at his lakeside home in Waverly, Minn. He was 66.

He had served 23 years in the Senate, had been vice president and was the Democratic nominee for president in 1968. He was most recently elected to the Senate in 1976.

Her appointment means that both U.S. senators from Minnesota serve by appointment rather than election. After Mondale's Senate seat became vacant upon his 1976 election to the vice presidency, former Gov. Wendell Anderson stepped down and had Perpich, his successor, appoint him to Senate.

Perpich was required by Minnesota law to make a temporary appointment to fill Humphrey's seat until the November election.

There had been speculation that he would name a "caretaker" who would serve only until November and then not run in the election. But Perpich said Tuesday he would not ask Mrs. Humphrey or anyone else to accept the post with those conditions attached.

Mrs. Humphrey was dressed in a bright, yellow pantsuit and appeared smiling and relaxed.

"As a member of the Senate, I believe that I can help complete some of the very important legislative business that Hubert had hoped to finish," she said, reading from a prepared statement.

"During these coming months, I will do everything possible to assure that the people of Minnesota receive the full representation in Congress that they deserve," she said. "I intend to work hard and diligently in the fashion that Minnesotans have come to expect."

She said her doctor has assured her that "my health is excellent and there is every reason that I can undertake these duties and discharge them in a vigorous manner."

Several other women have been appointed to fill U.S. Senate seats left vacant by their husbands' deaths.

Sen. Hattie Wyatt Caraway, D-Ark, was appointed in 1931 to succeed her late husband, Thaddeus H. Caraway. She won a special election in 1932 and two subsequent re-elections and served until 1945.

Rose McConnell Long, D-La., succeeded her assassinated husband Huey by appointment, serving from January 1936 to January 1937.

That came in apparent response to recent party hierarchy unhappiness with Robbins and comments by some GOP members that they were hunting an opponent for the 43-year-old television newsmen.

Robnett is co-owner of Griffith-Robnett Realtors. He and his wife Kathy and their 10-year-old daughter live at 3702 75th St.

When he ran for state treasurer in 1972, he finished third in a six-man field topped by the late Jesse James. He polled about 127,000 votes to James' 875,000 and Lauro Cruz' 176,000. The other three Democratic primary contenders garnered 108,000, 89,000 and 47,000 each.

Only one Democrat has so far announced as a 75-A candidate. She is Xen Oden.

Child Faces Death With Smile, Hope friend was the reincarnation of a holy man.

"He was not a normal little boy... He was so full of understanding of his suffering, full of understanding of God," said Pravrajika Prabhadrana, the group's head nun.

"I don't know how he got involved with them," said Mrs. de Moura Castro, who added that her son's faith in reincarnation inspired her to believe. "He introduced me into it."

It was Edouard's fascination with the Vedanta philosophy that gave him the belief that death "was like a passageway, a walk into another galaxy," as he said on his tape.

His message was recorded by Kim Downey, a volunteer worker for a group called Hospice, which works with the dying and their families.

When Mrs. Downey asked the boy why he wanted to die, he said: "Because I am so sick. When you are dead and a spirit in heaven you don't have all the aches and pains. And sometimes, if you want to, you can visit this life but you can't come back into your own life.

"If you don't hang onto your body and let yourself ease away," Edouard said on the tape, "it is not so painful."

About two years ago, Edouard's mother took him to a children's hospital, where doctors worked furiously to save his life with drugs.

"They wanted so badly to keep him alive, they just bombarded him, they over-treated him," she said.

"Sometimes doctors want to save people very badly," Edouard told Mrs. Downey. "They try everything to cure them... I don't feel good and I am too sick to live on."

There is solace for the boy's mother: "It was a privilege and an honor to go through this with my son. I hope it helps parents talk things over with their children and doctors. If he's done this in his short life, then it will have been worth it."

Childress area to the Dallas-Sherman area.

Temperatures fell below freezing in the northwestern third of the state while the lower Texas coast reported temperatures near 50 degrees. Most temperatures in the southeastern half of the state were in the 40s, a sharp contrast to Dalhart's 12-degree reading.

Forecasts indicated rain in East Texas would end, leaving the state under clear or partly cloudy skies and temperatures ranging from the lower 30s in the Panhandle to the 50s and 60s across South Texas.

But tonight's lows across the state should regain their bite tonight and Thursday morning with weathermen calling for 10-degree readings in the Panhandle and 20s and 30s in much of the east and south.

Meanwhile, the paralyzing winter storm that grew in the Rockies and swept across several states, including New Mexico and Texas, hurried east-northeast toward the Southern Plains and Louisiana.

If the South Plains seemed cold, a harsher description belonged to New Mexico, where mountain temperatures were expected to drop to as low as 10 degrees below zero. Southwest New Mexico minimum temperatures in the 20s were predicted.

Reading Ability Concern To Students

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Almost half the nation's college freshmen say they can bake a cake from scratch, but more than 40 percent worry about their ability to read and study, according to a new survey.

The results of the 50-question survey by the University of California at Los Angeles and the American Council on Education in Washington, D.C., were released over the weekend.

Questionnaires were filled out by 299,467 freshmen entering colleges or universities for the first time last fall, and raw data was weighted to give a statistical portrait of all 1.7 million freshmen throughout the country.

The finding that alarmed survey conductor Alexander Astin most was the students' apparent lack of college preparedness. Of those responding, 42.6 percent said an important reason for going to college was "to improve my reading and study skills."

"In the aggregate, I think the results this year are kind of a red flag as far as secondary schools are concerned," Astin said.

The goal cited by the largest number — almost three-quarters — of this year's freshmen was to be "an authority in my field." Nine years ago, 58.3 percent of the students named that goal.

For the first time since the annual survey began 12 years ago, a majority of freshmen, 52.9 percent, supported legalization of marijuana. Busing to achieve racial balance was advocated by 40.6 percent compared to 37 percent last year, and a whopping 92.3 percent said women should have job equality.

The pollsters learned that two-thirds of the students can do at least 15 pushups, almost half can bake a cake from scratch and more than 80 percent feel that government should do more to discourage energy consumption.

"Freshmen in recent years had been less willing to advocate federal involvement in people's lives," said Astin. "But the item on energy bucks that trend."

Astin said materialism was reflected in the 58.2 percent who said they want to be "very well off financially," compared to the 40.1 percent who gave that answer in 1967.

Baker Predicts Congress To Be 'Issue Oriented'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 95th Congress has returned to town rested and raring to tackle the great issues that face the nation. Minutes after the Senate convened the great issue being discussed was how early Congress might finish for the year.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd had just finished reviewing the record of the first year of the 95th Congress and giving members a preview of what would be up the second half of the session.

Sen. Hoyard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the minority leader, got to his feet to say he thought the session would be "issue oriented. We see on our agenda a number of items which will create controversy and strong divisions."

And then Baker noted that 1978 is election year in which he, among others, is up for re-election.

"I would ask the majority leader if he would give us any insight he has on this first day of the second session about what he sees in prospect for an adjournment," said Baker.

Byrd was a little reluctant to be pinned down to a particular date.

"I would only say," the majority leader replied, "that I hope the Congress could complete its work and allow a reasonable time before the election for members to concentrate their attention on meeting the people."

That was all right as far as it went, but Baker then commented that, if the time grows too close to election day, "the minority leader may adjourn."

"The rest of the Senate will continue no doubt effectively without him," he added.

people responsible for moving Reagan from the political left to the right.

However, quipped Wayne, "that momentum got beyond me."

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, led a group to Cuba during the congressional recess. But no junket was this trip.

The congressmen worked hard, Reuss told a news conference. And he listed the Cuban officials who had met with U.S. delegation.

Of course, the highlight of the Cuban trip, according to Reuss, was a 3 1/2-hour meeting with "Premier Fidel Franco."

And who was that fellow with the beard and the cigar?

The security guard at the Capitol thought he had uncovered a terrorist plot.

It was hours before President Carter was to arrive at the Capitol to deliver his State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress in the House chamber.

The guard spotted a slender young man placing something beneath a ramp leading into the House wing of the Capitol.

He moved quickly and accosted the young man, who removed the object — a container of coffee yogurt he was leaving there to keep cold until he was ready to eat.

For days, hundreds of farmers were on Capitol Hill lobbying for higher price supports for their crops. They buttonholed everyone they thought might be a member of Congress or congressional staff aide.

Two farmers were chatting on an elevator about the technique and one summed it up by saying, "It's just like the chicken puller said: Grab any leg you see."

Nations Join In Hunt For Bear

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cruise missiles and backfire bombers may be holding up détente but the United States and the Soviet Union are in complete accord when it comes to pregnant polar bears.

The bear in question was caught by the U.S. Fish and Game Department in Alaska last June and fitted with a collar containing a radio transmitter.

She roamed across the ice packs of the Bering Strait into Soviet territory and U.S. officials asked Moscow's aid in locating the animal.

The reply came this week. Soviet official Savva Uspensky said "We shall certainly help our American colleagues in searching for that courageous traveler."

Uspensky, director of the Central Laboratory for the Protection of Nature of the Soviet Ministry of Agriculture, said Soviet officials would give a warm reception to this "transgressor of state borders."

The Soviet official said it was possible the bear actually was native to the Soviet Union and homesickness had been the reason for her trek. "Maybe she was born in our territory and crossed the borders of two countries and continents to give life to her children in the place of her own birth," he said.

Jail Death Probed By Rangers

By MARK VOGLER
A-J Correspondent

ODESSA — The Texas Rangers have launched an investigation into the death of a 27-year-old Pecos man who died here Sunday in the Ector County Jail.

However, a Mexican-American group here Tuesday called for an impartial inquest into the death of Larry Ortega Lozano, saying that an investigation should be done by officials not associated with the Odessa area.

Mexican-Americans from Odessa and neighboring areas dispute the Ector County sheriff's department theory that Lozano died from self-inflicted injuries caused by beating his head against the glass window of his jail cell.

The group argues that Lozano was the victim of a beating administered by lawmen.

Adam Rodriguez, a spokesman for the local Brown Beret group, added that the local Mexican-American community has come across information which he said would shed new light on the case. Rodriguez made his statement during a special briefing Tuesday morning at a packed El QuePasa Club here.

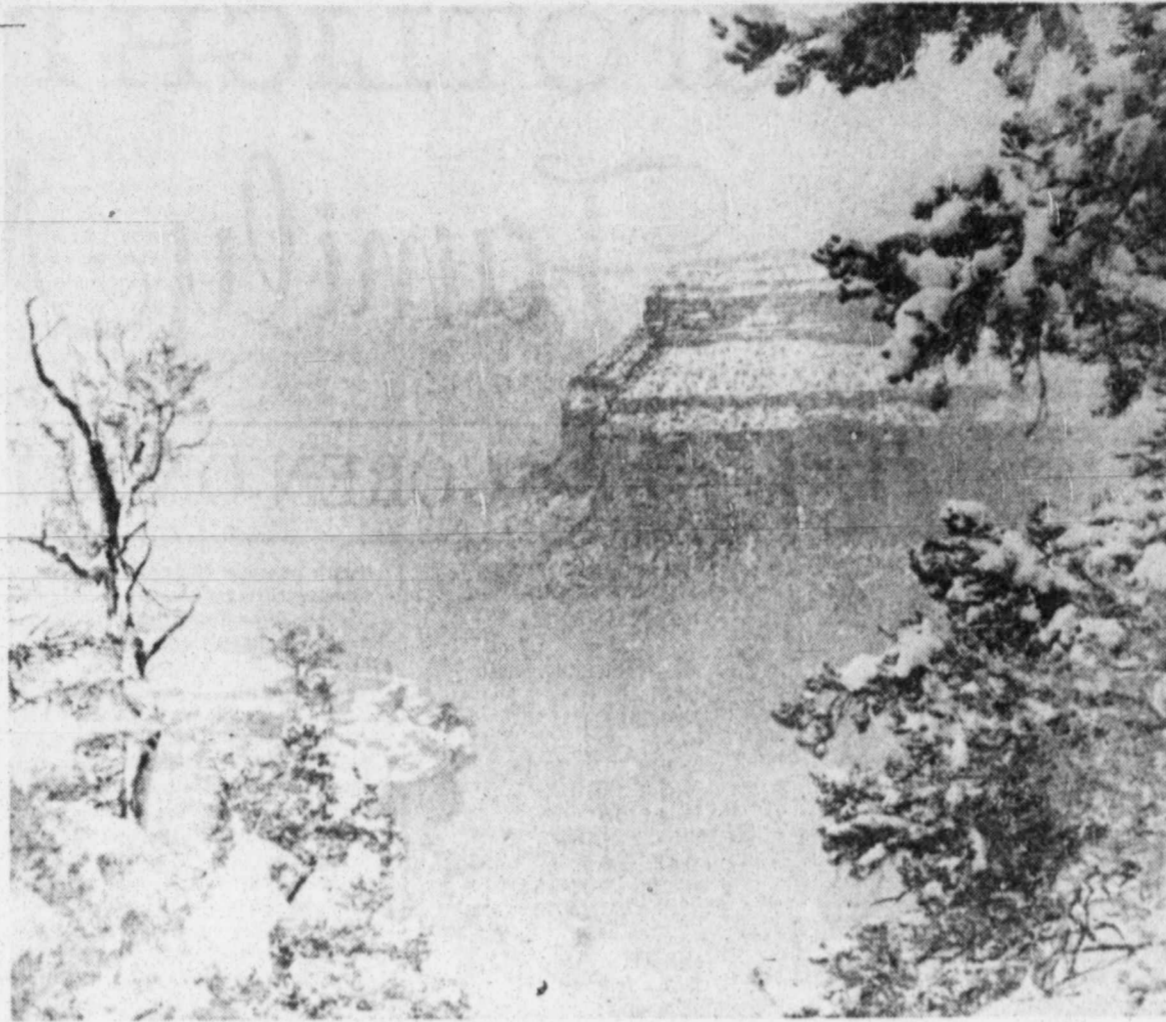

Rodriguez said his group has information about the Lozano case from a man within the sheriff's department and from a cellmate of Lozano's who says he tried to commit suicide that night because he could not bear to observe the physical beating of Lozano.

Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpee said Lozano apparently suffered massive head injuries after beating his head against the glass window in his cell door. A preliminary autopsy found that Lozano had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

However, investigators are awaiting a final autopsy report and a six-member jury investigation, ordered by Lumpee, to determine the cause of death.

Sheriff Elton Faight said he received a telephone call from the jailer about 7:10 Sunday night telling him to come to the Interest Income Hike Foreseen

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is getting more for its money, State Treasurer Warren Harding has assured a House committee.

Harding and his top assistants told the House Cash Management Committee on Tuesday that Texas should earn up to $120 million in interest on state time deposits this year — $22 million more than in the last fiscal year.

The committee also learned that if all the state's outstanding bills "came in today," Texas would be $113 million "in the hole."

Harding and two assistants said, however, that all the claims would not come in at the same time.

The committee is studying how the state — and local governments — may best handle their money. It will report to the 1979 Legislature.

Asked about what he thought of directing local governments how to invest money, Harding said, "at this time I would take a dim view" of the proposal.

Harding was Dallas County treasurer for 26 years before taking the state job Oct. 7, after treasurer Jesse James died. Any law giving the state authority over local government money, said Rep. Bill Heatly, D-Paducah, "would be a retirement act for everybody who voted for it."

Figures recited by Harding and his assistants revealed that the treasury department apparently has responded to legislative demands to increase the amount of money the state has on deposit and to decrease the amount in demand deposits, which do not earn interest.

Time deposits, for example, shot up $452 million in October from October 1976, $503 million in November from November 1976, and $461.6 million in December from December a year ago.

At the same time, demand deposits decreased by $6 million in October from October 1976, decreased $105.1 million in November from November 1976, and

School Start Delay Eyed

By JEFF SOUTH

Lubbock school administrators say opening classes for the next academic year could start after Labor Day — but such a calendar would mean students must sacrifice much of their Christmas vacation.

Instead of doing that, administrators and teachers have recommended the Lubbock Independent School District continue its tradition of a pre-Labor Day start of classes for the 1978-79 scholastic term.

"It boils down to whether you want to start before Labor Day and have a two-week Christmas vacation, or start after Labor Day and have only a one-week break at Christmas," said E.C. Leslie, the district's assistant superintendent for administration.

Leslie and other school officials prefer the first approach — and that's what they will recommend to the Lubbock school board Friday.

The board meets at 7:15 a.m. in the assembly room of the district's administration building, 1628 19th St.

Administrators have asked the board to consider two possible calendars for the coming school year.

Under the first proposal, teachers would report Aug. 23, and students on Aug. 29. The first holiday would be Labor Day, Sept. 4. Winter vacation would be set Dec. 20 through Jan. 2.

Under the second proposal, teachers would report Aug. 29 and classes would begin after Labor Day on Sept. 5. Christmas vacation would be Dec. 25 (preceded by a weekend) through Jan. 2.

The last class day would be May 30 under the first proposal and May 31 under the second.

Both calendars provide the state-required 175 class days and eight teacher in-service workdays.

Superintendent Ed Irons' Administrative Council, the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association and Lubbock Educators Association recommend a pre-Labor Day start because:

— Holding school through Dec. 22, as necessitated by the second proposal, would be an inconvenience for families traveling long distances for the Christmas holidays. And, school administrators and teachers said, attendance would fall off as the holiday draws near.

— The first proposal "allows for a more orderly end of the year for graduation and other senior activities." A post-Labor Day start, on the other hand, "would put graduation nights on Saturday, May 26, and Tuesday, May 29, or Monday, May 28 (Memorial Day)."

— The pre-Labor Day start "allows the completion of the first quarter before the Thanksgiving holiday with the teachers' workday scheduled on Wednesday before Thanksgiving. The second proposal provides for the end of the first quarter on Thursday of the week following Thanksgiving, with students dismissed on Friday for the teachers' workday."

Classes for the 1977-78 school year started on Aug. 30. School board members said they hoped to start classes after Labor Day in the future.

"We're giving them that option," Leslie said. "But at the same time, we feel it necessary to point out some real disadvantages to starting that late."

Also Friday, school trustees will call an election for two expiring terms on the board for April 1.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

South's hand looked so powerful that he didn't believe there could be any trouble on the horizon. He quickly learned he was wrong.

With nine certain tricks in his hand, South decided he couldn't afford to rebid only three spades, since North might pass. However, he would have been better served had he chosen to rebid three no trump and given up his honors, for that contract would have been secure against all but the most outlandish lie of the cards.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer wasted no time in winning the ace and laying down the ace and king of trumps. When East showed out, declarer began to realize that he might be in over his head. He shifted his attention to clubs, but it was too late.

East won the first club and shorted declarer with a heart. When West won the ace of clubs he continued with another heart, forcing declarer to ruff again, and trump control had passed to the defenders. Declarer ended up with only eight tricks, for down two.

Pessimism is a good trait to develop at the bridge table. Had declarer allowed for the possibility of a 5-1 trump split, he might have found the way to make the contract.

Declarer should realize that he can afford to lose two club tricks and ruff and still make his contract providing that the defender who ruffs does not do so with a singleton trump—an unlikely contingency. To protect against a bad trump break, declarer must leave a trump in dummy to handle the third round of hearts. Therefore, he cannot afford to touch trumps at all!

After winning the ace of hearts, declarer should lead a club immediately. If West takes a club ruff, declarer can ruff the heart return, draw trumps and claim. Best defense is for West to win the ace and force declarer with a heart. Now declarer leads another club, and the defenders are rendered helpless.

If East returns another heart, declarer ruffs in dummy. He enters his hand with a high diamond, draws trumps and take the rest of the tricks. West can, of course, obtain a club ruff, but that will only prevent declarer from making an overtrick.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: You often use the term "compulsive overeater." What's the difference between someone who doesn't have any will power and a compulsive overeater?

Loves To Eat

Dear Loves: Do you eat when you're not hungry?

Do you go on eating for no apparent reason?

Do you give too much time and thought to food?

Do you look forward to the time when you can binge alone?

Do you plan these secret eating binges ahead of time?

Do you eat sensibly before others, but overeat when alone?

Is your weight affecting the way you feel about yourself?

Have you ever vowed to diet for a week, but given up after two days?

Do you eat to make yourself feel better when you have problems?

Have you avoided seeing a physician because you're afraid he'll put you on a diet?

Have you put off buying clothes because you're ashamed of your weight?

How did you score? If you answered

"yes" to three or more of the above questions, you are either a compulsive eater or on your way to becoming one.

What can you do about it? I recommend Overeaters Anonymous—a great group of loving, caring people. No dues, no humiliation and lots of understanding, friendly people just like yourself!

For information about the chapter nearest you, write to, Overeaters Anonymous, P.O. Box 6428, Torrance, Calif. 90504. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a therapist who asks his patients to tell their troubles to a machine?

Yes, it's true! I went to a psychologist who calls himself a "doctor," and he asked me if I had equipment at home to make and play back tape recordings because that's the latest thing in counseling.

He says I should make a tape of what I want to say, and he will make a tape of his reactions, and we can both play them when we have time and are in the mood.

Is he some kind of nut? Or are machines now replacing doctors?

Appalled

Dear Appalled: Telling one's troubles to a machine could have its advantages for those who are too inhibited to speak frankly to a therapist. But since you're "appalled" by this method, tell your doctor, and if he refuses to treat you in person, tell him you prefer a therapist who will.

SUGAR PLUMS

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1½ tsp. cornstarch
1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple, well drained
1 cup dried apricots, cooked, drained and chopped
½ tsp. finely shredded orange peel
½ cup coarsely chopped nuts
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. orange extract
4 cups bite-size crispy corn squares cereal, crushed to 2 cups
1 ½ cups (3 ½ oz. can) shredded coconut

In saucepan, beat eggs slightly. Add sugar, cornstarch, pineapple, apricots and orange peel. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Boil two minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in nuts, salt and extract. Add cereal crumbs. Mix well. Cool. Drop from teaspoon onto coconut and shape into balls (about 1-inch). Makes 4½ dozen 1-inch cookies.

Future Service Contract Provisions Debated

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — Signing a long-term contract for health spa, vocational or other future services can bring grief if you don't realize what the contract obligates you for, or if the firm isn't a well-established, reputable one.

Such future service contracts may require you to continue to pay for services even if you want to or must discontinue for health or other reasons, or were misled by some verbal salesmanship, or even if the company closes up.

Among the services that often have such contracts are health spas, reducing salons, dance studios, karate courses, computer dating services, and correspondence and vocational schools such as some truck-driver and computer schools.

Some of the losses consumers have suffered over the years from the more disreputable firms have been startling: advance payments to enroll in new spas that sometimes never opened; thousands of dollars for dance lessons paid by lonely widows, karate schools that closed down after parents had signed up to pay several hundred dollars for lessons for a child, dating services that charged contract prices of as much as $400 but never compared individuals by computer at all, and trucker schools that charged $1,000 to $2,000 when the promised jobs actually were hard to find.

Both state and federal officials are trying to eliminate some of the most disastrous practices, as are the more reputable firms themselves. The Federal Trade Commission already has proposed regulations for home-study and vocational schools, and in 1977 finished hearings on health spa problems.

A major issue is that consumers don't have the opportunity to properly evaluate such services beforehand, points out John F. O'Brien, FTC's Assistant New York Regional Director. Buying services to be provided later is not like buying a vacuum cleaner or other product which you can examine and try out. With future services you have to rely primarily on the seller's claims.

Thus, a main issue in the long controversy over future service contracts is whether the buyer should have the right to cancel without a large loss if he's disappointed or can't continue for medical causes or because he moved, if the spa relocated, or for other reasons. O'Brien argues that the buyer should have the right to cancel, and the seller should have the right to collect damages. But the seller also has the responsibility to mitigate the damages by substituting a new member, just as the landlord has an obligation to try to find a new tenant if one leaves, O'Brien says. A landlord doesn't just leave the apartment empty.

If there's no compulsion on a seller of future services like a spa to reduce the damages, the seller really gains by letting the customer cancel, O'Brien observes. The seller then can collect the full amount without having to provide any services.

In the investigation of home study in vocational schools, the FTC staff indicated concern over high drop out rates. One report estimated that home-study courses had a 75 per cent to 90 per cent drop out rate, computer schools, 77 per cent, truck-driving schools 56 per cent, business and secretarial schools, 45 per cent and electronics and repair schools 55 per cent.

The real battle that emerged in the FTC health spa hearings is how much damages the buyer should have to pay if he quits before the contract expires. The spas are fighting any requirement for only a small penalty such as 5 per cent of the amount of the contract, plus a pro rata fee for the services actually provided, as in a New York City regulation, considered to be one of the strictest in the country.

Ohio now also has a regulation limiting the additional penalty to $10, and California has a straight pro rata rule for cancellations in the first 180 days.

Interestingly, the lawyer for the health spa industry is Basil Mezzines, the former executive director of the Federal Trade Commission itself, who is now in private practice. At the hearings he has argued vigorously to his former FTC colleagues that a moderate cancellation penalty such as 5 per cent plus a pro rata charge would harm the reputable spas.

They claim they usually incur about 80 per cent of their costs in the first 30 days of the contract when they give fitness and stress tests and work up nutritional and exercise programs.

But the 80 per cent estimate does include promotional costs.

The underlying problem is that many spas and other future service providers turn over most of their installment contracts to finance companies. They advance the cash to the spas and then collect from the buyers. The spas say they need this advance cash flow to keep operating, and finance companies wouldn't finance easily cancellable contracts.

Otherwise the more reputable health spas seem willing to accept reforms. The president of the Scandinavian Health Spas testified that the three-day cooling off period in Ohio, permitting cancellation without penalty in that time, has increased the cancellation rate but improved the payment record of members who continued.

Thus, giving buyers who may feel they were high-pressured the chance to review their decision has proved to be a benefit to all around. While a number of states require such a cooling off period, many of the more reputable future service providers voluntarily permit it.

Displaced Homemakers Need Assistance

By BETTY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS) — Add another group to the list of those crying for help in our society: displaced homemakers.

It is estimated that there are as many as 3 million displaced homemakers — generally middle-aged women forced to look for jobs because they are divorced, widowed, or simply face a sudden financial crisis. They need assistance in most cases because they are too young for Social Security and too old to find decent-paying jobs. Included among them are mothers who no longer qualify for welfare support because their children have reached the age of 18.

The crux of the problem is the displaced homemaker's lack of familiarity with the job market. Many have never held a job, having married right after high school in an era when young mothers generally didn't work. Some held jobs briefly up to marriage but have been away from the job market for many years.

Middle-age women who face divorce present a particular problem, especially when they are left without alimony and child support. After years of comfortable living, many of them do not qualify for Social Security through the benefits of their former husbands because they were not married long enough. And they do not qualify, of course, for unemployment insurance.

Fortunately, both private and public agencies are now beginning to do something about the displaced homemaker. An Alliance for Displaced Homemakers has been formed, mainly to publicize the problem so that states will provide help for them. Some two dozen states already have passed such legislation and a move is afoot to get federal legislation that will set up centers all over the country where displaced homemakers will be able to get both counseling and assistance in finding jobs.

Part of the job-finding problem is that of breaking the vicious circle that plagues even young people looking for their first job without prior experience: They are told they have no experience, but no one explains how they can get the experience needed to land a job.

The centers for displaced homemakers already in existence are trying to fight this by giving help in such areas as writing a resume, learning how to assess one's skills in such a way as to make them marketable, the trick of being assertive and, of course, job placement. The displaced homemaker often is directed to volunteer work that in time will provide her with relevant experience.

Often, the centers are operated by women who themselves were displaced homemakers. This provides vitally needed confidence for women who have traumatized by sudden marital and financial upheavals.

The problem will get worse as the divorce rate increases. Statistics tell us that one of every four divorces occurs after 15 years of marriage. Many of the women involved are 40 and over who face a tougher-than-average battle to stay afloat in an unemployment-ridden area.

In the long run, the problem may ebb, since it is so much more common these days for women to continue working after marriage, thus giving them the job experience that can be marketed in the event they too ultimately become displaced homemakers.

At the moment, though, the displaced homemaker represents a tough problem that an enlightened society like ours must attack frontally and must solve.

PEACH PLATTER

The Slim Gourmet

Whether you dine alone — or simply diet alone — you'll want to clip the winners of this month's Slim Gourmet Reader Recipe Contest. Both are simple, slimming — and small servings!

Dorothy Haas, of Manchester, N.H., is a winner with her "Chicken Solo Mio," a single-serving poultry-and-potato dish with Italian flair. "Since the whole family (four sons, so you can imagine the quantity of food to keep them satisfied) always liked Italian recipes, I had to come up with a substitute that would leave my husband feeling as if he had feasted well with the rest of the skinny bunch." So Mrs. Haas created this easy oven dish for one:

CHICKEN SOLO MIO
1/2 frying chicken breast onion salt and pepper oregano or Italian seasoning
1 potato, peeled and thinly sliced
1 onion, peeled and sliced slim
1 bell pepper, seeded and sliced
1 1/2 cups plain tomato juice

Put chicken skin-side up in a non-stick cake pan or small casserole. Season to taste. Bake in a preheated — hot — 450 degree oven until skin is crisp and well-rendered of fat. Drain and discard fat.

Put sliced vegetables under chicken. Pour on tomato juice. Lower heat to 375 degrees. Continue to bake and baste, uncovered, until chicken and vegetables are tender and sauce is thick (one hour or more). A complete meal for one, about 360 calories.

ITALIAN CHICKEN AND POTATOES FOR FOUR — If you'd like to increase this recipe to "family-size" use 2 whole chicken breasts, split, (or a frying chicken, quartered), 4 potatoes, 4 onions, 4 peppers, two 6 ounce cans tomato paste and 5 cups water. Bake in a rectangular roasting pan. (Using a whole frying chicken in place of the breasts adds about 40 calories per serving.)

Cheryl Rodgers, of Wayne, N.J., developed a veal stew for two "since I'm the only one in my family who is weight-watching. I eat half and freeze half for another meal." Cheryl writes that when she has time she likes to spend a whole day cooking low-calorie meals, then she freezes them in single-serving pouches. "This way if I'm in a hurry or just don't feel like cooking two different meals I'm not tempted to go off my diet."

CHERYL'S COLORFUL VEAL STEW FOR TWO

1/2 lb. lean veal, cut in cubes
1 tsp. diet margarine
1/4 tsp. soy sauce
3 cups tomato juice
1 bouillon cube
1 stalk celery, chopped
2 tbsp. chopped onion
1 cup sliced carrots, fresh or frozen
1 cup yellow wax beans, fresh or frozen
2 oz. can button mushrooms, drained optional: 1 tsp. flour and 1/4 cup cold water

Spray a nonstick skillet or electric fry pan with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Add veal cubes, diet margarine and soy sauce. Cook and stir over high heat until meat is browned. Add tomato juice, bouillon, celery and onion. Cover and simmer over low heat about 40 minutes. Uncover. Stir in carrots, wax beans and mushrooms. Simmer, uncovered, stirring often, until vegetables and meat are tender and sauce is thick. (If a thicker sauce is desired, combine 1 tablespoon flour with one-quarter cup cold water and stir into simmering sauce.) Makes two servings, about 300 calories each.

You can win, too! Both winners have been sent copies of my "Slim Gourmet Slim Cookbook" ($12.95, Harper and Row.) You can win, too, if your favorite decolorized recipe is chosen. Winners are announced once a month. Send your favorite slimming recipe to Slim Gourmet Reader Recipe Contest, Sparta, N.J., 07871. (We'll figure the calories for you.)

HERBED MEATBALL STEW

1 1/2 lbs. ground lean beef
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1/4 cup catsup
2 tsp. salt
2 tsp. salad oil
3 tsp. instant minced onion
1 cup water
1 can (1 lb., 12 oz.) tomatoes, broken up
2 cups sliced carrots
1 bay leaf
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. thyme leaves, crumbled
1/2 tsp. ground marjoram leaves, crumbled

1/4 tsp. ground black pepper
1 quart shredded cabbage
1 can (1 lb.) red kidney beans, drained
Lightly combine beef, bread crumbs, eggs, catsup and 1 tsp. of the salt. Shape into about 24 meatballs. Heat oil in a large saucpan. Add meatballs, a few at a time, and brown on all sides. Remove and set aside.

Rehydrate minced onion in 3 tsp. water for 10 minutes. Add to drippings in saucpan; saute for 2 minutes. Add 1 cup water, tomatoes, carrots, bay leaf, sugar, thyme, marjoram, black pepper and remaining 1 tsp. salt. Bring to boiling, stirring well. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 10 minutes.

Add browned meatballs, cabbage and kidney beans; mix gently. Cover and simmer until meatballs are cooked and vegetables are tender, about 15 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 portions.

SQUASH AND BACON

Good combination: Mashed cooked yellow summer squash topped with crisp-cooked strips of bacon.

SAVORY HAM-CHEESE STACKS
1 (16-oz.) can fully cooked hamdingers
2 tbsp. horseradish mustard
4 slices of cheese
1 (8 to 12 oz.) can of crushed pineapple
4 slices raisin bread, toasted
Butter (optional)

Arrange 4 hamdingers in shallow baking pan. Spread top of each with about 1/4 tsp. of mustard over one side of each of the remaining 4 hamdingers. Place, mustard side down, on top of cheese. Secure the stacked hamdingers with wooden sticks. Portion about 2 tbsp. pineapple and juice over each stack of hamdingers. Bake at 425 degrees for about 10-12 minutes, until cheese begins to melt. Spread butter on raisin toast if desired. Serve one stack of hamdingers on each slice of raisin toast. Makes 4 hearty servings.

By JAMES A. WHITE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Five stock exchanges are showing off a new market-connecting system they hope will convince Washington lawmakers and regulators they are making progress toward a national network for stock trading.

The computerized link, dubbed Inter-market Trading System, is a communications system by which a broker on one exchange can query other exchanges seeking a better price for buy or sell stock orders.

The ITS system is the brainchild of the New York Stock Exchange. So far, the American, Boston, Pacific and Philadelphia exchanges are cooperating. The exchanges are demonstrating ITS to congressmen and Securities and Exchange officials, whose approval is needed to launch the system by an April 1 target.

"This is a reasonably simple system, a straightforward approach that meets the needs of the SEC for electronic linkage and increased competition," said Robert Hall, NYSE executive vice president and spokesman for the ITS exchanges.

"It builds on the existing structures and all trading strategies are left intact."

Moving toward a national market system Congress mandated in 1975 without dismantling current market structures has been a major concern of today's exchanges. They are aiming for increased competition — the goal of Congress on the theory it will give investors a better deal — while keeping themselves in business.

ITS is a step the exchanges think will deflect Washington charges of foot-dragging on a national market. However, starting with five to 10 stocks and excluding limit orders — those left for execution when a stock reaches a specific price — no one touts ITS as "the" national market or even a major improvement.

"How is it better than what we do today?" Hall responds to a question. "That's the wrong question. What we have today is not a viable alternative (under the 1975 mandate). But we don't think ITS will be a worse system."

ITS is intended to work this way: A broker on the NYSE, for example, has a customer order to sell 100 shares of a stock that also is traded on the Pacific exchange. The broker checks the current price offered on the NYSE and finds the ITS display terminal shows someone on the Pacific is willing to pay a better price.

If no one on the NYSE will match the better price, the broker uses ITS to message the Pacific seeking the higher offer. In as little as 30 seconds, the NYSE broker will have an answer. If there has been no intervening trade on the Pacific changing the price displayed on ITS, the trade is executed and confirmed. Buy orders follow the same process.

Brokers on participating exchanges have free access to all trading floors without having to buy a membership that on the NYSE, for example, now sells for around $50,000.

There are other features to ITS, such as a daily, preopening interchange of quotes on stocks slated to begin trading more than a quarterpoint away from the previous close. And the system may be altered after gaining working experience.

Experimental Liberal Arts College Closes

FRANCONIA, N.H. (AP) — Franconia College, an experimental liberal arts school in northern New Hampshire's White Mountains, abruptly closed today after 15 years of financial problems and attacks by conservatives.

Mrs. John Guilder, the chairman of the 20-member Board of Trustees, said the financial problems proved too much for the college and the board decided on Sunday to close the institution.

The announcement of the closing came just two days before the 185 students were to have begun their second semester. Mrs. Guilder said the school would attempt to relocate the students.

Ira Goldenberg, the school president, last week reported the college had a deficit of $340,000 from the 1975-76 year, and had been unable to pay it off.

The experimental school has been near financial collapse for almost 10 years. In 1968, trustees reorganized the school and named a new president after a heavy debt almost forced the college to close.

But the problems continued, and school enrollment gradually fell from a high of more than 500 to less than 200.

In a recent interview, Goldenberg said he was trying to save the school financially and "change the college from an elitist refuge for alienated wealthy adolescents, and create a curriculum that makes educational sense."

Goldenberg said the school was saddled with a loan agreement that gave trustees no room to maneuver and were "strapped by the burgeoning costs of an archaic facility which is a disaster."

The experimental college was founded in 1963 to provide an alternative to education provided at more formal four-year schools.

The school gave no grades, and provided courses which differed dramatically from the traditional course of study.

In 1970, the college attracted national

Former Police Chief Attacks Hoover's Image

By ROBERT SHEPARD
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — A man who ran the police departments of four major American cities says J. Edgar Hoover was the "Rasputin of American law enforcement" and relied on easy-to-solve crimes to build a reputation for the FBI. The latest attack on Hoover's oneshining image comes in the new book, "Commissioner," written by Patrick Murphy who served as chief or commissioner of police in New York, Detroit, Washington, D.C., and Syracuse, N.Y.

up a seemingly impressive record of crime-busting by going after "cheap victories" with lots of publicity value. "Assiduously avoiding such difficult law enforcement assignments as organized crime, narcotics trafficking, and street crime," Murphy writes, "Hoover put his money on such easy winners as kidnapping, where the criminals were usually dumb and clumsy and the crime was susceptible to solution within a short period of time."

the unquestioned Rasputin of American Law enforcement." Murphy, who began his police career by following in his father's and brothers' footsteps as a New York City patrolman, deals with a wide range of law enforcement issues in his book. The book recounts his experiences as a reformer called to lead four police departments stained by corruption scandals.

Being in a cruiser car "was like trying to relate to an alien society from behind the windows of a low-hovering flying saucer," Murphy says, recalling his own experience. In what may be regarded as heresy by the many fans of TV detective shows, Murphy contends the worst corruption can often be found in a police department's detective division. "For all their splash, panache, and uncanny ability to make headlines and friends, especially in the press corps," he says, "detectives tend to make an arguably insignificant contribution to the control of crime."

forcement agency in the country" and acknowledges Hoover's many contributions to police work, but he also accuses Hoover of a long list of sins, ranging from alleged racism to fostering a relationship with local police based on "menace and mutual mistrust." To those of us concerned about the right of the American citizen to the best possible police service at every level, Hoover's transparent program to divide and conquer made him and his bureau the biggest single bureaucratic obstacle in the country to better law enforcement," he says.

Vance To Visit Mexico In March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance intends to visit Mexico in early March, a State Department official said.

The visit will be a routine stop as part of a continuing series of consultations that President Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo agreed to when Lopez Portillo visited Washington last year.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said that the dates for the visit have not yet been arranged with the Mexican government. He said that the visit would cover anything of current interest between the two countries.

Cold Weather Helps Shrimpers Set Gulf Record

HOUMA, La. (UPI) — Unusually cold weather in 1977 helped Louisiana shrimpers set a Gulf of Mexico record with a $93 million catch, federal officials say.

The National Marine and Fisheries Services said Monday 66 million pounds of shrimp were caught off the Louisiana coast last year. That was more than shrimpers caught off any Gulf of Mexico state in 1977 and only four million pounds short of the biggest catch on record.

"This is the best catch since 1945 (when the catch was 70 million pounds). It was worth a record $93 million of dockside value with an average of about $1.45 per pound," said Ted Falgout, fisheries agent for Terrebonne and Lafourche Parishes in South Louisiana.

"Last year we had a real cold winter and the cold and low tides killed many fish and other shrimp predators and drove the rest of the fish way out in the Gulf where the water was a little warmer," said Falgout.

Falgout said 1977 was the second consecutive year Louisiana shrimpers had the largest catch among Gulf of Mexico states. From 1970 to 1975, Texas had the highest catch, he said.

Since the completion of the Panama Canal at a cost of $387 million in 1914 after 10 years of construction, more than 425,000 vessels have passed through the waterway.

Journalist's Compliment Repaid With Surveillance

CHICAGO (UPI) — In 1936, Curtis MacDougall wrote what he thought was a pro-FBI editorial for the now-defunct Evanston News-Index.
 "I praised the FBI for capturing a fugitive alive, instead of employing their usual philosophy of shooting first and asking questions later," MacDougall said. "It was a compliment."

The favorable nature of the comments escaped FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who wrote a letter of rebuttal to the paper. He also obtained a report on MacDougall, who then was editor of the paper.
 MacDougall, now a retired Northwestern University journalism professor, said this week the files released to him under the Freedom of Information Act revealed more than three decades of FBI surveillance, which he denounced as an invasion of privacy and a waste of money.

 A two-page report on MacDougall, following the editorial, contained little more than standard biographical data. In 1950, after an informant claimed MacDougall's teachings were pro-Communist, the FBI prepared a 22-page report. New investigations were conducted in 1953 and 1961, the file data showed.

 In total, more than 292 pages of documents, "filled with inaccuracies all the way through," were compiled by the FBI, MacDougall said. And that information that was accurate was innocuous, he added.

Hospital District To Seek Help

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock County Hospital District committee reiterated its hopes Tuesday of getting surrounding counties to agree to pay the bills of their indigents served at the district's soon-to-open Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Joe Stanley, chairman of the district's community programs and relations committee, said he plans to make "eyeball-to-eyeball contact" with outlying county commissioners and county judges soon after the teaching hospital opens Feb. 1.

"We've got to get this problem resolved before we get into a big hassle with one of the counties," Stanley said.

Unless neighboring county governments agree to pick up the tab for non-Lubbock indigents, the hospital district's own taxpayers will face an additional "enormous burden."

Proposed negotiations for reimbursement pledges from neighboring counties have been the subject of hospital district discussion for about three years, Stanley noted.

He said he had planned to contact surrounding counties before the hospital opens. But Stanley fell ill last month, and in the press of other tasks faced by the district board and administration the contacts were never made, he said.

Even so, the district has not discarded the proposal.

Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the district and its 245-bed hospital, said at Tuesday's committee meeting he intends to seek reimbursement for services rendered by the district to indigents from area counties on a case-by-case basis at first.

But, he said, "Whether the (neighbor) county chooses to pay is another story."

Stanley said he hopes area county officials — several of them toured the plush Health Sciences Center Hospital Tuesday afternoon — will be "receptive" to the district's request for reimbursement.

"As I've said before, this hospital is a regional project. We'll be providing top-quality health care to people from all over West Texas — and many from outside the West Texas area," Stanley said after the committee session.

"It's certainly not unreasonable for each county to be responsible for its own indigents," he said.

Stanley believes that with the "proper approach and explanation" from the district, surrounding counties will accept the responsibility of footing the medical bills of their indigents.

He said he wants to avoid the strained relations present between other large Texas metropolitan areas — such as Harris County (Houston) and Bexar County (San Antonio) — and their rural neighbors.

According to the district's 1978 budget, the new county hospital will have a "bad debt" ratio of 21 percent.

That is, of all patients served this year, about one-fifth will not be covered by "third-party payors" — such as Medicare-Medicaid, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, other private health insurance, or the Lubbock County Hospital District medical indigency program — or be able to pay from their own pockets.

Nearly all these "bad debt" patients, about 90 percent, are expected to come from outside Lubbock County. That's because the hospital district, through its medical assistance program, already has made provisions for those non-paying patients who reside in Lubbock County and qualify as indigent under district guidelines.

The need for reimbursement pledges from surrounding counties was discussed by Stanley's committee along with other policies and procedures for administering the district's medical indigency program once the new hospital opens.

The proposed policies state that in most cases, care of indigents at taxpayers' expense will be provided only through the district's Health Sciences Center Hospital. That is, other local hospitals generally cannot expect payment from the district for services they render to indigents.

A major exception to that rule is emergency cases. "Cases that are admitted or treated as emergencies in other facilities will be paid for by the Lubbock County Hospital District to those facilities," the proposal says.

The district, however, will have to determine that the patients in question are indeed indigent by district standards.

The proposed policies will be studied by local hospital administrators later this week and will be considered by the district's full board of managers on Friday, the committee said.

State May Earn Hike In Income

went down $108.1 million in December from December of the previous year.

By December, time deposits made up 88.3 percent of all the state money in Texas banks.

Rep. Frank Hartung, D-Houston, said some states keep as much as 95-99 percent of their money in time deposits and asked, "Can Texas get to that?"

Harding mentioned that the law requires him to keep enough money on demand to "meet all claims on the state."

"If we can't pay our bills it would be an insult to the state of Texas," he said.

Harding was reminded of the $113 million shortage if all bills came in, and Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, said, "It appears you're breaking the law, correct?"

Harding said if the attorney general told him to follow a different policy, he certainly would. He said he relied on longtime top assistants in the department for advice on cash-flow.

Jail Death

jail because "a man had gone berserk..."

Faught said Lozano was restrained by several deputies but had stopped breathing before a doctor arrived at the scene.

The sheriff said Lozano apparently punched out the glass by lifting a 10 inch diameter brass ring from the commode area and banged it against the cell door. He also banged the door with his head, Faught said.

'Newspaper Bandit' Charged In Holdups

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A man suspected of robbing as many as 28 banks throughout the nation as the "newspaper bandit" has been charged in a federal indictment with bank robbery.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Crum said Tuesday the indictment accuses Gary Mellen, 33, of the robbery last June of a First National Bank office in Spokane. More than $5,200 was taken in the holdup. Crum said Mellen also will be charged in a federal indictment with a Seattle bank robbery.

Mellen was arrested by Spokane police on Dec. 9, shortly after the main branch of the Old National Bank was robbed of about $1,000. He has been in custody since on a state charge of second degree robbery.

Crum said an FBI investigation shows the newspaper bandit, whose mode of operation has been to walk into a bank carrying a newspaper and demand money from a teller, may have robbed banks from Miami to Seattle and from New Orleans to Madison, Wis.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible.

Rev. 21:23-27, 22:1-11, The Living Bible

24 Its light will light the nations of the earth, and the rulers of the world will come and bring their glory to it.

25 Its gates never close: they stay open all day long—and there is no night!

26 And the glory and honor of all the nations shall be brought into it.

27 Nothing evil will be permitted in it—no one immoral or dishonest—but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

CHAPTER 22

1 And he pointed out to me a river of pure Water of Life, clear as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and the Lamb,

2 Coursing down the center of the main street. On each side of the river grew Trees of Life, bearing twelve crops of fruit, with a fresh crop each month; the leaves were used for medicine to heal the nations.

3 There shall be nothing in the city which is evil; for the throne of God and of the Lamb will be there, and His servants will worship Him,

4 And they shall see His face; and His name shall be written on their foreheads.

5 And there will be no night there—no need for lamps or sun—for the Lord God will be their light; and they shall reign forever and ever.

6,7 Then the angel said to me, "These words are trustworthy and true: 'I am coming soon!'" God, who tells His prophets what the future holds, has sent His angel to tell you this will happen soon. Blessed are those who believe it and all else written in the scroll.

8 I, John, saw and heard all these things, and fell down to worship the angel who showed them to me;

9 But again he said, "No, don't do anything like that. I, too, am a servant of Jesus as you are, and as your brothers the prophets are, as well as all those who heed the truth stated in this Book. Worship God alone."

10 Then he instructed me, "Do not seal up what you have written, for the time of fulfillment is near.

11 And when that time comes, all doing wrong will do it more and more; the vile will become more vile; good men will be better; those who are holy will continue on in greater holiness."

Russian Leader Fighting Off Flu

By United Press International
MOSCOW (UP) — Although Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has only been seen in public twice in nearly six weeks, Soviet sources insist he is just fighting off the effects of flu or a bad cold.

They say the 71-year-old Soviet party chief has turned up at his Kremlin desk several times recently and should be resuming a full work schedule in the near future.

PARIS (UPI) — French political parties have apparently lost control of their women, a move which might cost them feminist votes in the crucial March legislative elections. More and more women politicians, who have climbed the ranks of party hierarchy both left and right, are denouncing political leaders for deliberately keeping them off the lists of candidates they will present in the elections and are starting to fight back, with the risk of dividing the already-bickering union of the left and government coalition.

Florence d'Harcourt, for example, who has been campaigning actively for the government coalition in suburban Neuilly, has announced that she will maintain her candidacy although the coalition has designated press magnate Robert Hersant to run in that district and offered her the coalition candidacy in a small Paris district instead.

BRUSSELS Belgium (UPI) — The Common Market executive commission begins hurried negotiations with Cyprus in the next few days to outline their future relationship. A break would mean disaster for Cypriot early potato growers.

Cyprus got preferential treatment from the Common Market as a member of the Commonwealth when Britain joined the European community, but this arrangement ends April 1.

Contacts between the market and Cyprus about negotiating a new relationship — in the framework of the association agreements generally applicable to territories which previously were dependencies of market member states — have been dragging on for several years without reaching the real bargaining stage, market sources said. Cypriot products compete mainly with Italian and French Mediterranean-type farm products.

The matter is urgent because one of Cyprus's principal exports is new potatoes, which are harvested in March. If an agreement is not reached soon then the potato growers will be hit by higher tariffs which apply to non-associated countries.

LONDON (UPI) — Britain faces a possible nationwide power blackout in February or March.

The country's 96,000 electric power workers are demanding a 30 percent pay hike. The government has ordered the state-run Electricity Council not to go above the 10 percent it has set as an anti-inflation ceiling on wage boosts this year.

The four main power workers' unions have rejected this as "unacceptable." The crunch could come any time after Feb. 2 when the Electricity Council will give a detailed reply to the power workers' demands.

But officials say prospects of agreement are not good and that widespread blackouts are very much in the cards.

More people die by accidentally choking on food than are killed by guns, airplane accidents, snake bites, lightning or electrical shock, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The rising importance of the conservative Center Democrats in Portugal's corridors of power marks a sharp change in fortunes for that party. During the heyday of the revolution, its militants were branded as "fascists" by leftist mobs that burned out the party's central headquarters and prevented its candidates from campaigning in elections in several parts of the nation.

Even the socialists shunned them as the stalking horses for a return to the right. By contrast, the party today has a significant influence in the student movement and is recognized for its economic expertise. This switch reflects a general trend to the right that has grown in tandem with the nation's worsening economic crisis.

Much of the financial hardship caused by this situation has been blamed on the communist excesses in the early days and to a lesser extent on the inability of the socialists to right these wrongs quickly enough. Whether the conservatives will be able to do better is now a question Portuguese are waiting to have answered.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Wednesday, Jan. 25, the 25th day of 1978 with 340 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Scottish poet Robert Burns was born Jan. 25, 1759.

On this day in history:

In 1890, Nellie Bly, a daring young New York reporter, completed a trip around the world in the astounding time of 72 days, six hours and 11 minutes.

In 1915, transcontinental telephone service was inaugurated in a hookup between New York and San Francisco.

In 1971, Charles Manson and three women were found guilty in the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

In 1972, President Nixon said North Vietnam had ignored a peace bid, which included withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam in six months.

A thought for the day:

'Trial Balloon' Raised To Back Reagan Stand

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among the most ancient and honorable implements of the political trade is the "trial balloon" — a proposal that someone wants to test in public before adopting as his own.

Trial balloons are most often launched just before the climactic phase of a political battle, when one side is not sure of the outcome and is trying to find out if a deal can be made.

Sometimes trial balloons are intended to get a response from the opposition, in which case the origin of the proposal might be anonymous. But they also can be used by a leader to assess the reaction of his own supporters to a compromise. In that case, it must be clear to the supporters that the balloon arose from their own side of the battle lines.

That being noted, attention is called to an article in the most recent issue of the newsletter of the Citizens for the Republic, the political action committee that was organized to keep Ronald Reagan's options open for 1980.

The newsletter included a report by Lyn Nofziger, executive director of the committee, on a meeting between Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos and two U.S. senators, Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Bob Dole of Kansas.

Although Nofziger was only an observer, he obviously was there for Reagan, whose opposition to the proposed Panama Canal treaties probably carries more public influence than the opinion of any senator.

Nofziger did not have anything good to say about the treaties or Torrijos. But he also did not call the Panamanian president anything worse than "dictator" (other opponents have labeled Torrijos a communist and a drug pusher), and he did not double damn the mere idea of lessening U.S. control over the canal zone.

Instead, Nofziger stressed the same theme as Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker after a visit with Torrijos: The Panamanian leader is not locked into a position that requires ratification of the canal treaties as presently written and does not insist that approval come by April.

Baker is widely believed to be seeking a way to support some kind of canal treaty without the appearance of caving in to White House and eastern establishment Republican pressure. Changes in the language of the treaties at his behest might do that for him.

But Reagan has no reason to try to placate Carter or the Republican center and left. That is why the Nofziger report was surprisingly mild.

In the same issue of the newsletter, Reagan himself discussed the treaties in relatively cool terms, expressing concern that "each one has a flaw which may actually bring on problems."

The rest of Reagan's column was devoted to comments from a writer who warned that a Panamanian violation of the treaties might provoke the United States into a breach of the U.N. Charter in order to enforce its rights.

New York Attempting To Locate Teachers

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City is trying to fill some 2,000 permanent teaching positions, but education officials say there are no takers because the schools have become too violent.

The teaching positions open Feb. 1 because of sabbatical leaves and attrition. But Frank Arricale, Board of Education personnel director, said Monday, "We're having great difficulty in finding teachers."

"I'm very worried about it," Arricale said.

He said the board checked out 17,000 teachers who were laid off during the city's fiscal crisis and put on a preferred list for rehiring. "We went through the list in no time flat," the personnel chief said.

Officials then went to a list of part-time substitute teachers, he said. Again they had no luck.

"No one wants to teach for the city anymore," Arricale moaned.

He said people were reluctant to accept the faculty positions because "the environment of the schools has become hostile. There's a lot of violence, especially against teachers."

On Jan. 4, 15-year-old Michael Kittrell was stabbed to death in the hallway of a high school in what was believed to be the first killing in a public school. Police said the assailant apparently was angry because someone had knocked off his hat.

Last year, the Board of Education released figures showing 2,402 assaults in the city's public schools, up from 2,385 reported the previous year.

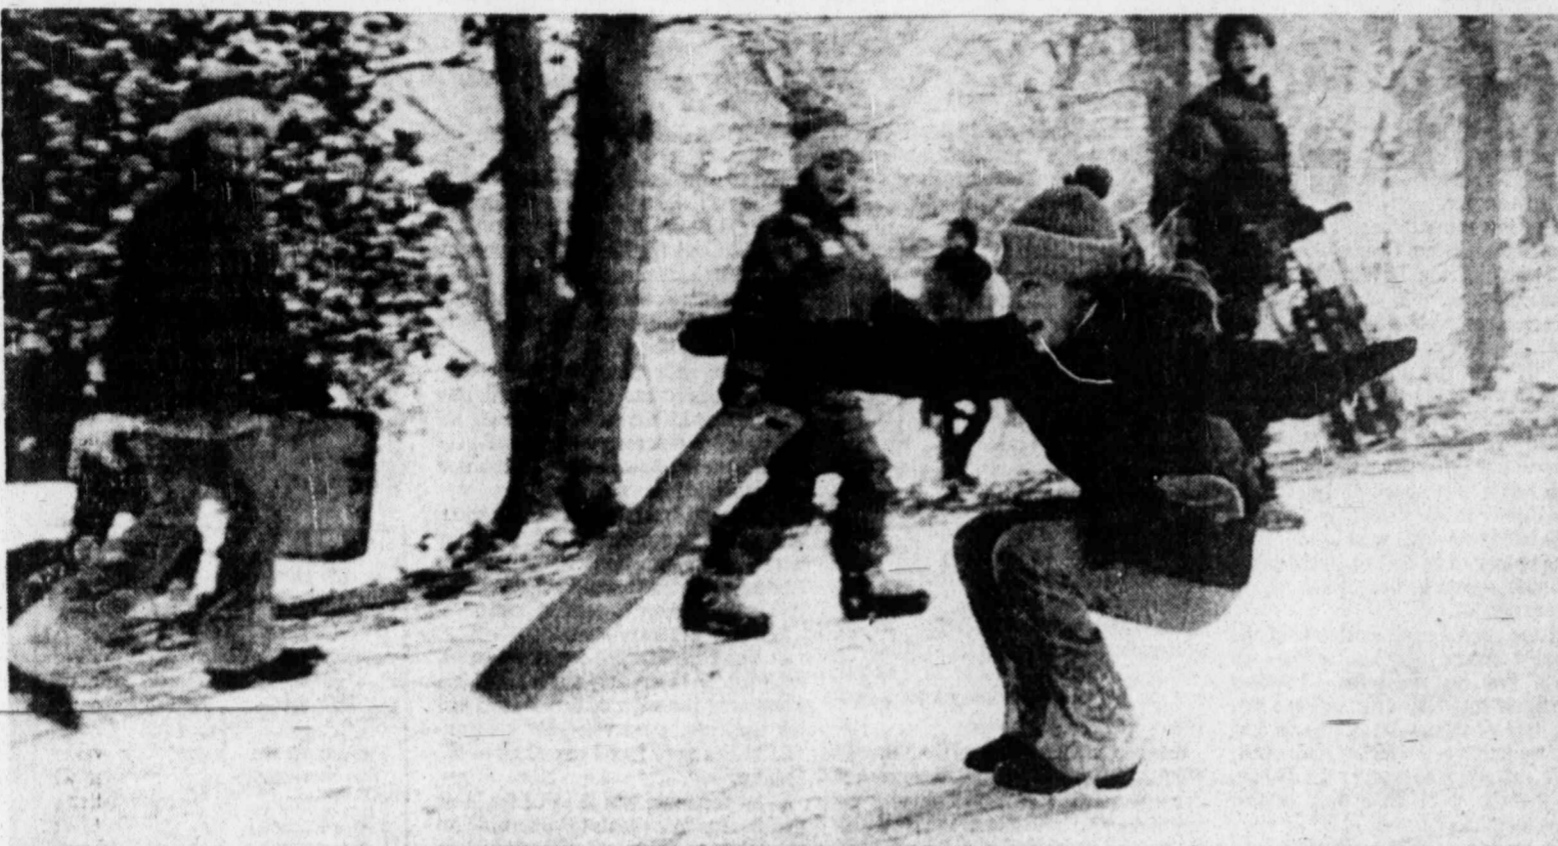

The total number of incidents reported — assaults, fires and thefts — last year reached 11,382.

Teaching positions have been opening up since the beginning of the school year, Arricale said. "In September, 800 abandoned their jobs and that's been continuing all along, but with much lesser numbers," he said.

Board Chancellor Irvin Anker suspended all sabbaticals during the height of the city's fiscal crisis two years ago, but they were ordered restored in December by a labor arbitrator.

The positions, Arricale said, would be permanent because it would be necessary to fill sabbatical positions each year.

Arricale said people also were reluctant to accept the positions because "the layoffs made teachers think the job is insecure."

Files Of FBI Reveal No Large Sum Paid To Ray

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martin Luther King's friends believed there must have been a conspiracy to kill him — and even James Earl Ray said he had an accomplice — but the FBI privately decided Ray killed King with help from no one.

In the largest manhunt in history, the bureau decided Ray had both the racial hatred to provide a motive and the means to finance an escape that carried him to Mexico two days after the slaying and to Lisbon and to London within five weeks.

The FBI, trying to question everyone in contact with Ray in the year between his escape from prison and the April 4, 1968, slaying, could find no one who plotted murder with him.

The bureau's internal files on the King case, compiled by 3,075 agents and totaling more than 40,000 pages, were made available to United Press International in compliance with the Freedom of Information Act.

They portray a small-time robber who charged fellow prisoners 50 percent interest on loans to finance their poker games. And he "mainlined" amphetamines and barbiturates, and after he escaped from a Missouri prison moved to Los Angeles, visited a hypnotist, paid a plastic surgeon to reconstruct his nose, and pulled bills from a fat wad in his pocket to pay for dancing lessons. He signed up for lessons wherever he moved — but never became much of a dancer.

His racism came through in a remark he made to a friend, Charles Stein, who drove with him from Los Angeles to New Orleans and back.

"If Negroes want to be free, they should go north or west," Stein quoted Ray. "If they stay in the South, they should be willing to be slaves."

The FBI acknowledged in a memo that it failed to establish how Ray raised the money for the $1,995 white Mustang in which he escaped or the $134.95 for the 30-06 caliber Remington pump rifle with $74.60 telescopic sight used to kill King, or the money to go first to Mexico, then to Canada, where he bought a roundtrip ticket to London.

But the special agent-in-charge of the Memphis bureau told headquarters on June 27, 1974, that agents found "nothing to indicate that Ray ever received any large sum of money from anyone, and what we know of his living habits both before and after the murder would indicate that he lived on a very limited amount of money."

"We do not know the source of even the smallest amount of money possessed by Ray, but since we know him to have robbed a bank in England after fleeing to that country, it is a reasonable presumption that Ray committed robberies during the time he was a fugitive," the agent said.

As for Ray's claim in a magazine interview that a shadowy "Raoul" offered him $12,000 to kill King, the bureau, after an exhaustive effort, rejected that possibility Dec. 2, 1968, saying:

"Investigation by us, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Mexican authorities has failed thus far to identify Raoul or to verify his existence. We have no information to date to indicate that Ray was involved in a conspiracy."

Ray also encouraged conspiracy plots when he stood in court on March 10, 1969, and changed his plea from innocent to guilty but said he could "not accept" the assertion of his own lawyers and the prosecution that no conspiracy existed.

Ray, 50, was sentenced to 99 years and has made numerous attempts for a new trial.

He escaped for a few days from Brushy Mountain State Prison in Tennessee last June. A special house committee is secretly re-investigating both the King killing and the assassination of John F. Kennedy. Many still believe that King was silenced by those who hated him for his victories in the struggle to bring true equality to blacks.

The documents disclosed Ray was planning to fly to South Africa or Rhodesia a few days before his arrest by Scotland Yard at London's Heathrow Airport on June 8, 1968. It came two months after King was shot down while on a motel balcony in Memphis, where he had gone to lead one more march.

Traveling with a Canadian passport under the alias Ramon George Sneyd, Ray had gone to Lisbon and was heading for Brussels. He was carrying a timetable of South African Airways when British detectives seized him.

Two months before the assassination, under the alias Eric Starvo Galt, Ray wrote for information about travel to Rhodesia, saying it was "not my intention to leave before November (1968)."

The documents also showed: — The FBI, stymied for two months, explored the theory Ray might have been killed after the assassination. Agents had lab tests conducted whenever unidentified bodies were found any place in the country.

— So desperate was the FBI for leads that it instructed agents to "discreetly remind their news contacts" about the tens of thousands of dollars available in reward money.

— The landlady in the rooming house in Memphis told police her roomer had "a silly smile" — a remark which produced several tips from people who knew men with "silly" smiles.

— Because of his known shyness, the FBI office in Birmingham suggested a check to see if he had enrolled at a Dale Carnegie Institute, prompting a dry note from director J. Edgar Hoover's office: "It is not believed likely that Ray would enroll in a Dale Carnegie-type course since 4-4-68, the death of Martin Luther King." But headquarters approved a check anyway.

Coal Bill Sent To Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to impose a coal tax to finance black lung benefits is on President Carter's desk.

The measure, passed by the Senate last month and approved by a House voice vote Tuesday, would raise an estimated $100 million annually.

The revenues should be adequate to maintain benefits of up to $400 monthly for a family of four, sponsors say.

The bill would create a trust fund financed by a tax of 50 cents a ton on coal from underground mines, and 25 cents a ton on coal from strip mines. The tax would be limited to 2 percent of the sales prices per ton.

At current prices, the tax on coal from eastern underground mines would be the full 50 cents allowed, but the levy on western strip mine coal would be about 12 cents.

However, inflation is expected to boost the tax on western coal to the full 25 cents.

Photographer's Murals Not Just Enlarged Prints

By JOHN F. SIMS
NEW YORK (UPI) — To say Stephen Knapp takes photographs and makes murals out of them is a little like saying Michaelangelo was a housepainter who specialized in ceilings.

Not that Knapp puts himself in the same category as Michaelangelo. But his murals are more than just enlarged photographs.

For about the same money paid for not very good "shlock" art to decorate — or blend with — a business office, Stephen Knapp provides original photographic art that can illustrate a product or philosophy.

"If there is a message in my work, it is that beauty surrounds us and that people only have to look to see what is there," he said in an interview.

"I strive not for the content of the photograph but for the esthetics of the final piece," he said.

Knapp, a slender 29-year-old with the open face of a man at ease with himself, calls his work Photographics, "for want of a better name that I haven't found."

Knapp will make a picture out of something few of us would even see, like a rotating leaf full of tiny vein-defined squares of brilliant color or a multicolored patch of cracking paint on a rusting boat hull.

For several years after graduating, Knapp concentrated on photographic art, making limited edition prints of his photographs to be hung in business settings or in the home.

One of them, a picture of undulating reflections in the water of Boston harbor, puzzles the eye at first. You look for a clear image, trying to identify the buildings hidden in the reflection. Then you forget the search for anything so mundane and appreciate the picture in the same way you would an abstract painting.

Another picture, Knapp's favorite because it was his first essay in this field, is again a reflection — of slender trees in a pond. Movement on the surface of the water has chopped the reflected image into cubist splotches of pastel watercolor. Others are more conventional but no less striking.

Knapp sells these works of photographic art, limited to 35 of each, in various sizes. They are on display in many corporate collections.

Then he was asked to take on something a little larger — an entire office wall. But the interior designer with whom he worked had no clear idea of what he wanted on the wall.

"Ultimately we turned to the factory, which made wire and cables for computers and business machines," Knapp said. He took his cameras into the plant and began looking for pictures.

"Looking at it as art rather than machinery, I was able to capture a beauty and a vitality that many people might assume was not there," he said.

The end result was a 50-foot mural illustrating the work of the company through glimpses of its processes and products — a cable winder at work, a pile of green and red wire bobbins, abstract designs made by cleousep photographs of plasticcoated wire.

Taking the photographs is possibly the easiest part of the process. Seeing the images and juxtaposing them harmoniously is the art.

"A collection of striking photographs may be beautiful in and of themselves, but together they can create chaos," Knapp said. "In designing the mural it was important to keep this in mind."

Knapp is constantly searching for new techniques. One large photographic mural was printed on canvas in a process developed by 3M. On another occasion, Knapp worked out how to manufacture a mural for the side of a building, but the project was dropped.

His latest commission, for a bank, is a mural eight feet high and 30 feet long in which the design will be built up from letters and digits used in computer printouts.

"I am always trying to expand the boundaries of my design," Knapp said. "I try to reach beyond what's been done before."

By PHILIP GREER And MYRON KANDEL

College students, who have been moving away from "pure" learning in search of courses that might help them get a job after graduation, may be missing a good bet. Some of the courses they have been thumbing their noses at could be just the thing to give them an edge with corporate recruiters.

A number of studies have shown that one of the major casualties on the college scene has been the study of foreign languages. Students in droves have been turned off to languages — so that many colleges have dropped language requirements from their degree programs. Even secondary schools have cut back. Since the late 1960s, study of some languages has fallen as much as 65 percent. The Modern Languages Association says that from 1972 to 1974 alone, enrollment in language course fell 6.2 percent overall.

Teachers of foreign languages, of course, haven't been very happy about that. On the country's campuses, where jobs of almost any kind are becoming increasingly scarce, language-teaching assignments are among the toughest of all to find.

One teacher, at Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey, decided to find out whether language ability has any market value. A questionnaire was made up and sent to 2,000 major corporations in the New York area, asking how those companies rate language ability in assessing potential employees. Just under 10 percent of the companies responded — and the results don't promise lines of recruiters waiting for the Spanish, German and French scholars. But they do indicate that knowledge of a second language could make a difference when job applicants are sized up by personnel officers.

Of the companies that responded to the survey, nearly two-thirds said knowledge of a second language would "definitely" or "somewhat" increase the chances of landing a job. Most of the jobs where languages would help most, they said, are in sales and management. The language most in demand was Spanish, with German and French second and third.

In some cases, the companies included comments with their answers to the questionnaire and these show that, while there might be a monetary reason for students to pick up on language study, the most important factor in hiring is still specific training in the company's own field. But the comments do show that language study isn't the dead end that many students feel it is.

Ranch Resort Sells For $2.4 Million

MIAMI (AP) — Remuda Ranch Resort has been sold for $2.4 million in bankruptcy court to a group of 15 medical professionals, who say they want to turn it into a medical center.

The buyers, including 10 chiropractors, made the highest bid for the 2,200-acre resort 22 miles southeast of Naples, Fla.

Miami Christian College, a four-year Bible school in Miami, had bid $1.8 million for the property. Officials said they wanted to turn it into a new campus.

"I guess everyone here would agree that we'd like to see the college get the property," Bankruptcy Judge Paul Hyman said in ruling this week. "But I've got no choice. It is my job to see the creditors get the most for the property."

An attorney for the college said it could not raise its bid.

The buyers include chiropractors from Miami, Canada and Venezuela, according to their spokesman, Dr. Fred Gehl.

The property is part of the GAC Corp. holdings. GAC is selling it under Bankruptcy Court supervision.

The resort includes two 100-room motels, two dining rooms, a marina, a campground, six tennis courts, saunas and trap-and-skeet shooting facilities.

Irish Republic Experiencing Worst Crime Wave

By ED BLANCHE

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republic is having its worst crime wave since it was founded 55 years ago, and Justice Minister Gerry Collins warns that "lawlessness is in danger of getting out of hand."

Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government and the Garda Siochana, the republic's 8,000-member national police force, are under intense pressure to crack down on the armed gangs.

Collins, acknowledging the wave of train robberies, bank raids and payroll heists, declared: "We're prepared to stamp out the violence that has emerged in our cities."

The police are forming a special task force to combat the gunmen. Many of them have been linked to the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Several unarmed police officers have been killed or wounded. There are demands to arm the police, but the government fears that would escalate the violence.

A government spokesman said there were more than 250 holdups last year in which the gunmen got more than 1.4 million pounds ($2.7 million). In 1976, the totals were 185 armed robberies and 632,240 pounds ($1.2 million) stolen. In 1968, there were only three holdups.

Former Attorney General John Kelly said the republic, with a population little bigger than Boston's 3.4 million, is suffering "an appalling level of violence unequalled since the civil war" in 1921-22.

Dublin and its environs, which contains a third of the population, is one of the worst areas. There were more than 140 holdups in the metropolitan area last year, including 30 bank robberies.

Lesser crime also has increased. Police report car thefts, for instance, have tripled in recent years to 250 a week in the capital alone.

Police so far have had few successes against the gunmen. Their only major coup was the capture of a well-armed, nine-man IRA gang which surrendered after a 12-hour siege in a Dublin supermarket last November. They held a dozen hostages, but all were released unharmed.

Authorities have told banks and businesses to tighten security. But this has not deterred the gangs.

The Irish Times said recently: "What Britain learned in the '60s, what America learned in the '30s and what we will have to learn in the '70s is that armed bandits cannot be deterred by any means except catching them. Baffle them at one place with video recorders and armed guards and they'll go elsewhere."

A senior detective, commenting on the little success the police have had, said: "One reason is that because of red tape we have only a handful of men on undercover work and this means virtually no criminal intelligence."

"We're not allowed to use informers the way forces in other major cities are. Payments for informers must be authorized from the top and unfortunately informers don't readily respond to IOU notes before they talk."

Authorities suspect the republic's economic crisis may have pushed some men and women into crime. Unemployment is high — 166,000 out of work, or 15 percent of the labor force — and inflation is running at an annual rate of 11 percent, keeping prices high.

Police estimate that about two-thirds of the holdups are carried out by criminal gangs or renegade IRA men lining their own pockets. But they say at least one-third are carried out by IRA squads seeking money to buy weapons.

Security chiefs believe tightened security in Northern Ireland and a sharp drop in contributions from U.S. sympathizers following a big propaganda campaign has forced the guerrillas to raid for funds in the more accessible republic.

Six of the gunmen captured in the Dublin supermarket caper came from Northern Ireland.

Another hot spot is the northwestern counties of Donegal and Sligo. Outlaws known as the "Donegal desperados" are blamed for a spate of holdups, kidnappings and attacks on police. They are believed to be IRA men.

Commented a government official: "The trouble is that in some areas these gunmen are regarded something like the Jesse James gang — good old boys who buy drinks for everyone."

Cosmos Satellites Arouse Fear

By CHARLES M. MADIGAN

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union launched a new Cosmos satellite Tuesday, minutes after another was reported to have burned up in the atmosphere over Canada. The latest one was as much a mystery as its predecessors.

The official Tass news agency said only that the latest Cosmos — number 986 — would "continue exploration of outer space" and will circle the globe every 89.4 minutes.

Soviet press accounts paint the 16-year-old Cosmos series as a noble effort by dedicated scientists who are trying to answer the questions man will face as curiosity takes the human race deep into space.

Cosmos shots have carried dogs, bacteria, equipment, mice, isotopes, nuclear generators and a wide range of other equipment and material into space.

They have helped bridge the tremendous communications problems the vast Soviet Union faces, and they have aided agriculture and science alike by providing accurate weather and geographical information.

But Western press accounts have been peppered with speculation about the possibility the Cosmos series is a vehicle for spies-in-the-sky, fragmentation bombs and most recently, killer satellites to knock out Western equipment.

Western military specialists have claimed the Soviet Union was blasting sophisticated military hardware into space from the very earliest of the Cosmos shots.

In 1967, an official of the Congressional Reference Service at the U.S. Library of Congress, Dr. Charles S. Sheldon, pored over mountains of data and concluded the U.S.S.R. had "spies-in-the-sky."

The vehicle for the superspies, which were at the time viewed as equal to American spy satellites that could show articles as small as a garden hose in their photographs, was the Cosmos series, Sheldon said.

"The inherent nature of these flights reveals which (ones) are for observation purposes," he said. "This can be deduced within a few days of each launch by study of the launching site, hour of the launch, time in orbit and orbital path."

Other Western specialists developed similar theories — including claims that Cosmos carried orbiting fragmentation bombs, and bugs that could crack various communications systems. Recent Western views — confirmed during the past year — have taken a more frightening direction. Space observers now believe Cosmos has also been the vehicle for "killer satellites."

Such a vehicle carries an explosive charge, which is detonated when it close enough to destroy another orbiting satellite.

The information on the Soviet development of killer satellites was firm enough to prompt President Carter and his top aides to warn the program could lead to another complex twist in arms limitation talks.

Gunman Holds Hostages In Canada

OAK LAKE, Manitoba (UPI) — A gunman who killed a Mountie and barricaded himself inside a doctor's house with three hostages used pep pills to keep awake today and said he never will surrender.

Winnipeg lawyer Hersh Wolch, the intermediary in negotiations with police, said the 42-year-old man known only as "Cliff" claimed to have enough pills to stay awake until Thursday.

But the gunman did not set a deadline for authorities to meet his demands for $100,000 and a plane to take him and his wounded wife out of Canada, and Wolch said "the last thing he wants to do is hurt the people he is with in the house."

The hostage drama began Monday after police tried to question the gunman about the theft of a truck.

A shootout erupted in which Royal Canadian Mounted policeman Dennis Onofrey, 27, was killed and two other Mounties were wounded, one seriously. Wolch said the man told him the "shooting was unintentional" and he was "sorry for what happened."

But Wolch said the man warned that he and his wife "were fighting for their lives" and he would "never give himself up." The gunman's 28-year-old wife is in a hospital with stomach wounds inflicted in the gun battle.

The man has been holding Dr. Marcus Scherz and his wife Stephanie and farmer Dave Penney hostage ever since he forced his way into the doctor's home Monday seeking treatment for his wife.

In a telephone conversation with reporters, he said he had five guns and would use them if he had to.

"I've got five big ones. I've got enough to make a helluva big grave," he said.

But he added he was "just an ordinary guy who got into trouble" by jumping bail in British Columbia.

Police sealed off a five-block area in Oak Lake, a prairie hamlet of 300 people 160 miles west of Winnipeg, and trained floodlights around the house.

Authorities gave no indication whether they would agree to the gunman's demands for ransom, a plane and a written pledge a "neutral" country would give him sanctuary.

RATE RISE APPROVED
AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has granted Lone Star Gas Co. a rate increase in the city of Bells that will increase residential and commercial costs for 10,000 cubic feet of gas from $24.38 to $27.93. Lone Star had sought to raise rates in the Grayson County town to $30.25 per 10,000 cubic feet.

Tech Tackles UH, Seeks To Keep Lofty SWC Spot

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

HOUSTON — "I guess it all evens out," mused Gerald Myers as he thought about that last-second shot which enabled SMU to nip the University of Houston Monday night.

"That'll make Houston rearin' to go, though."

Rearin' to go and rearin' to take it out on Myers and his Texas Techsians is what Myers really had in mind.

The two clubs collide here tonight (8 p.m. throw-in), and more than evening of records will be at stake.

At stake for the Raiders will be a share of second place in the Southwest Conference. At stake for the Cougars will be a winning SWC record and a higher rung on the league ladder. There is a bit of pride involved, too.

Until last year, UH had not beaten the Raiders since the Cougars were invited to join the conference. That streak had stretched to six games before UH won in its Hofheinz Pavilion last year. The Cougars followed that decision with a win in the SWC tourney played nearby in the neutral Summit.

But, "They're basically the same club as last year with the exception of Birdsong," observed Myers. Birdsong is Otis, an all-America guard who finished his career with a 30-point average, and the loss has forced the Cougars into a more balanced attack.

"Houston is a lot like the Aggies in that they're big," said Myers. "They're probably a little taller and maybe a little heavier than the Aggies."

Tech handled the Aggies 71-58 in Lubbock last Saturday to run its conference record to 5-1. Houston defeated Rice that night, but lost to SMU in Dallas 76-75 on a last-minute shot Monday night to fall to 4-3 in conference.

Houston, one of the nation's highest scoring teams, went the final five minutes without a field goal against SMU and missed six free shots in the final two minutes.

"We have to keep (6-5 guard Cecile) Rose from penetrating," said Myers. "You let him start getting in close, and he'll kill you. He's averaging about 20 points a game."

Rose replaced Birdsong as the Cougars' shooting guard, with 6-0 Kenneth Ciulli as the quarterbacking type.

Inside, however, the Cougars come with 6-7, 220-pound Charles Thompson; 6-5, 200-pound George Walker; and 6-9, 220-pound George Schultz, and it is this size which Myers fears. And when one of the inside guys gets a bit tired, in comes Leonard Mitchell, a 6-7, 255-pounder who also plays football for the Cougars.

"Their rebounding and their press are the two things we have to watch. Their idea (offensively) is get the ball up to the goal, then go after it. They have so much muscle that they can beat you down," Myers added.

Houston is the middle point in what Myers termed last week as the tough part of Tech's schedule. That three-game test began with the Aggie game last Saturday and will end with Arkansas in Lubbock Saturday night.

In addition to the Tech-Houston game tonight, Texas, with an undented SWC shield, hosts Baylor and Texas A&M, which fell to Texas in overtime Monday night, will play winless TCU in Fort Worth in a pair of 7:30 p.m. contests.

AF Recruiting
A Bit Different

IT HAS BEEN said often that recruiting is recruiting, that it's the same old grind day after day, no matter which school one is working for. Well, yes . . . and no. It is somewhat different at the service academies, and new Air Force head coach Bill Parcels has become even more aware of that in the past month.

Parcels, the former Texas Tech defensive coordinator, has been on the job since Dec. 27, following Tech's Tangerine Bowl clash. The most immediate task was assembling a staff, but orienting the staff to its new surroundings and recruiting followed quickly.

"I had to orient my staff about Air Force," Parcels said. "I couldn't just send them out and say 'Recruit.' Some things about a service academy are pretty different."

Air Force must adhere to most of the NCAA rules pertaining to civilian colleges, but is not bound by the scholarship limits of 30 per year and 95 overall. Every person at the academy is on scholarship anyway. Nor is there a signing date. One simply waits and sees which players show up in the fall.

"Not having a signing date makes the recruiting season longer, but it doesn't really mean there is more pressure," Parcels said. "Since a deadline doesn't exist, there is a little different tempo."

MANY PEOPLE BELIEVE that the antipathy of much of the nation's youth toward military service makes it hard to recruit athletes at a service academy, but Parcels disclaims the theory.

"I've noticed just the opposite. I think the kids we recruit know that they'll have a good job and a good career opportunity when they get out of here. The quality of an education here speaks for itself."

Parcels said his staff has contacted "about 350" prospects thus far, mostly in regions west of the Mississippi River. He has just returned from a recruiting venture through Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The entrance requirements, academically and physically, are tougher than those at a civilian school, so the Air Force must eliminate some prospects that a civilian university could take.

"There is more red tape here," Parcels said. "There are less restrictions at a civilian college."

PARCELLS HASN'T HAD much time to evaluate the current personnel, but he has looked at films of six 1977 contests and has been able to form some basic opinions.

Air Force is not big, but has some talent. Quarterback David Ziebart, a junior-to-be, has potential, and Parcels is impressed with soph-to-be punter Scott Schaefer. He tabbed the offensive line as "decent."

"We aren't big, compared to what I'm used to seeing. Tech would not be considered a really big team in the SWC, but they are bigger than Air Force. Speed here is not as apparent as it is in the SWC, either. We need to change both of these situations."

"In the line, we have six or eight kids that weigh 240 to 245. If we can develop them . . ."

Speed at the skill positions is a primary recruiting target this year, as is size, particularly at linebacker. Parcels said Air Force has some "pretty good-sized" defensive linemen.

He said he would be satisfied to recruit 20 to 30 players "that can play." To do that, he will probably have to bring in more than that.

"In Division I football, if you can bring in that many each year that can play, you're in good shape."

He will implement an off-season program similar to Tech's, with emphasis on weights. Spring training will begin April 5. At that time, the staff will begin to install the various offensive and defensive schemes.

PARCELLS SAID HIS club will probably use a variation of the I formation and throw the ball considerably because of Ziebart's ability and the lack of good size.

As he did at Tech, he'll choose his basic defensive alignment and other looks after deciding how many quality tackle and linebacker types he has on hand. If there are more tackle types, look for a five-man front. If linebacker types predominate, he'll probably use a four-man front with three linebackers.

"I believe strongly in doing what your personnel will let you do."

Parcels will institute a tough program, aimed at lifting Air Force from the depths it has experienced recently. The Falcons have not had a winning season since 1973 and have posted a 10-32-2 record since then.

He believes the players will react well to his program because they haven't been winning and are expected to have do-anything-to-win attitude. This was present at Vanderbilt when Parcels went there with Steve Sloan. At Tech, it was not initially because the Raiders had been having decent success with a program that was much easier. Thus, the players didn't react positively at first about the new program.

"The players here want to win, so I think they'll be pretty receptive," Parcels said.

It's Official: Namath Retires

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the most productive passer in the history of the National Football League, says he has ended his 13-year pro football career without bitterness or regret.

Namath — the man who brought the old American Football League respect, the man who helped change the image of the professional athlete and the man whose career outlived his physical abilities — told reporters Tuesday he was finished.

"I have no regrets. I'm not bitter about anything," said the 34-year-old Namath, whose record of 4,007 yards passing in 1967 has stood the test of a decade and healthier men.

"I'm not going to play next year," said Namath, now gimpy from four knee op-

Coronado Job Interests 17

Long distance may be the next best thing to being there but only Pete Ragus knows for sure.

The Lubbock public schools athletic director spends much of his time on the phone lately as applicants for the Coronado head football coaching position increase daily.

"Approximately 17 persons have called and intend to submit resumes," Ragus said. "We are getting telephone calls and asking these coaches to send resumes with their entire coaching backgrounds included."

Ragus expects to continue receiving applications for approximately 10 more days. Then he expects to narrow the field to five or six persons and screen those hopefuls. Resumes from assistant high school coaches outside the Lubbock system will not be considered for the job. However, assistants from the Lubbock school system will be considered. The athletic director estimated that four of the hopefuls were from the local system.

Fabens coach Jack Quarles and Dunbar defensive coordinator David Graham have expressed their interest in applying for the job. Monterey grid aides Bobby Mogle and Bob Gay told The Avalanche-Journal that they did not intend to seek the post. Other local names frequently mentioned are Lubbock High defensive aides Richard Mason and Ed Campbell along with Coronado assistants David Browning and Porter Smith.

Two quality Class AAA coaches, John Blocker of Fort Stockton and Don Beck of Perryton, have considered applying for the position.

Blocker, a Hub City native, played on

"You're always interested in a good job, but I really don't know yet whether I will apply. I'll just have to think about it. I feel that I have an excellent opportunity at Fort Stockton right now," Blocker said.

Beck said he had not been officially contacted about the job but might consider it if "someone contacted me." The Perryton coach figured it would be a "nice combination" if he accepted the CHS job and his son, Brad, decided to play football for Texas Tech. However, the older Beck stated that his son's decision wouldn't influence his move.

"It would make the job much more attractive to me if he (Brad) does go to Tech. Right now, though, he is strongly considering both Tech and Texas. But he hasn't visited either one yet," the Perryton coach said.

Beck also may apply for the Plainview job, which opened Tuesday after head coach George Kirk resigned to take a head football coaching spot at Klein (16-AAAA).

"That job is bound to have some affect on what happens here," Ragus figured.

Confident Pardee Named New Coach Of Redskin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A confident Jack Pardee took charge of the Washington Redskins today with the hope of keeping the team a winner just like it was under his predecessor and former boss, George Allen.

Pardee concedes that he may have problems because of a lack of draft choices, but he says the so-called Over the Hill Gang isn't that aged, pointing out that only eight of last year's 45 players are over 30 years of age.

Pardee, the first choice of team President Edward Bennett Williams after Williams fired Allen last week, said Tuesday that the Redskins have great talent compared to many other National Football League teams.

"The talent here is very competitive," said Pardee, while admitting he would like to have Walter Payton, the NFL's most valuable player, whom Pardee coached at Chicago. "There are a lot of guys I love on the Bears. The same can be said for the Redskins."

The 41-year-old Pardee quit the Bears, a team he coached for three years and led into last season's playoff, to actively seek the post in Washington, where he played two years and was an assistant for one under Allen.

Pardee signed a multi-year contract with the Redskins but the terms were not disclosed.

"I wasn't completely unhappy there (Chicago)," he said. "As a coach, I was strapped with many things that wouldn't change. I couldn't change most of them being facilities, the stadium we played in."

"Here, those things are solved. The only thing I'm interested in is being a good football coach."

Pardee said his coaching philosophy is much the same as Allen's.

"I tried to learn from George because he always was successful," he said.

Pardee, like Allen, will work primarily with the defense, but he does not want to be described as "defensive-minded" or a "defensive coach."

Pardee expressed concern about the Redskins' lack of draft picks — their first choice in May is in the ninth round, but they have a first in the following year's college draft.

Blue's Contract-Not Person-Top Issue Of Day

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK — Charles O. Finley let the baseball hierarchy cool its heels for an hour and 11 minutes, then he popped into the commissioner's 16th floor headquarters — dapper, intense, bustling with vigor.

"My doctors tell me I gotta get out of baseball," he said. "My health. But now it looks like I may have to hang on one more year."

Marvin Davis, Denver oil man, had just announced he was withdrawing his $12 million offer to purchase Finley's Oakland A's because of a hangup in the contract with the Oakland Coliseum.

Thwarted in efforts to dispose of his beleaguered ball club, Finley then went behind closed doors to find out why he couldn't sell one of his players to the Cincinnati Reds for $17.5 million in cash and a minor league player.

It wasn't exactly Charlie O's day.

This was modern-day baseball in full cameo. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the game's absolute authority, was there. Quiet, soft-spoken Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, and Chub Feeney, the outgoing, cigar-chomping boss of the National League, made separate appearances and ducked immediately into the conference room.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and lean, lantern-jawed John Gaherin, advisor to the Major League Player Relations Committee, were on hand to take opposite sides of the issue. They were the negotiating antagonists of the baseball strike-lockout in the spring of '76.

Lawyers appeared with their brief cases. Secretaries shuffled back and forth between offices, carrying important-looking documents. The court reporter settled down with his machine. The door slammed shut.

Baseball's barons were gathered to decide the fate of a human being. The irony of the drama was that the human being most involved — Vida Blue, 28, lefthanded pitcher out of the Louisiana bayous, nine years in the majors, was not present.

Where was Vida Blue? Commissioner Kuhn was there to protect what he said were "the best interests of baseball." MacPhail and Feeney were there to protect the interests of their respective leagues. Miller was the players advocate, Gaherin the spokesman for management generally.

Bob Howsam, president of the Reds, was there to guard the interests of his ball club and he brought two other executives to lend him support. The New York Yankees' George Steinbrenner sent his lawyer, Tom Andrews. The Yankees had a stake, too. They had tried to buy Blue for $1.5 million and Kuhn had said "no deal."

Who was there to protect Vida Blue's interests? Who was there, besides Marvin Miller, to defend the rights of this talented black man whose career had seen him shuffled from Burlington, Iowa, to Birmingham, Ala., back to Iowa and finally to Oakland, where he pitched in three World Series?

"No one," snapped a caloused observer. "What do you think those guys are doing in there? They're not talking about Vida Blue. They're talking about a piece of paper — his contract."

Toe Blake coached the Montreal Canadiens to eight Stanley Cup titles.

"That's baseball. You don't deal with human beings. You deal with pieces of paper."

Such is the cold, impersonal nature of the new game. Individuals are simply pawns — especially now with the disappearance of the reserve clause — to be moved back and forth across a giant board. There is no place left for tradition, romance of the game, sentiment between owners and players.

Players, freed of their former bondage, all want to become instant millionaires.

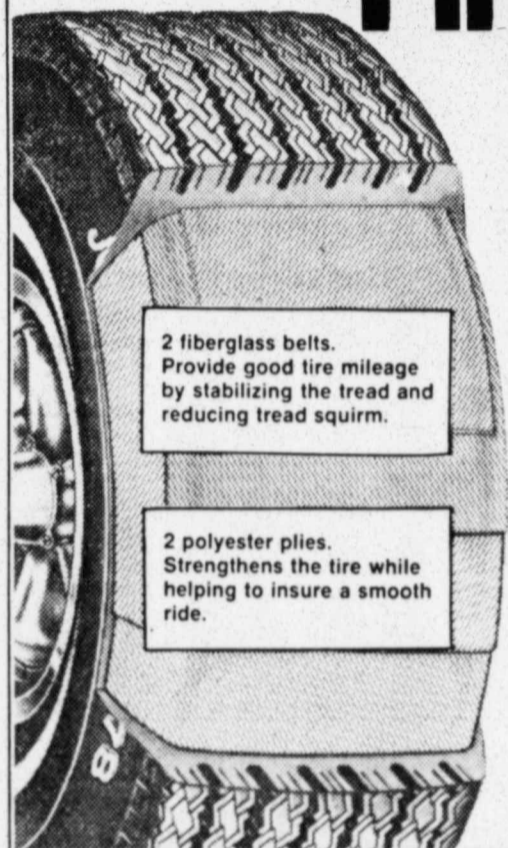

The owners struggle to keep their franchises alive. Both become involved in an insatiable appetite for the spectator dollar.

Christopher Lasch, the noted cultural critic and historian, writing his opus "The Corruption of Sports" declares that sport has turned into a circus, adding:

"The degradation of sport comes not from being taken too seriously but in the subjugation to some ulterior purpose — profit-making, patriotism, moral training or pursuit of health."

Coronado Job Interests 17

Long distance may be the next best thing to being there but only Pete Ragus knows for sure.

The Lubbock public schools athletic director spends much of his time on the phone lately as applicants for the Coronado head football coaching position increase daily.

"Approximately 17 persons have called and intend to submit resumes," Ragus said. "We are getting telephone calls and asking these coaches to send resumes with their entire coaching backgrounds included."

Ragus expects to continue receiving applications for approximately 10 more days. Then he expects to narrow the field to five or six persons and screen those hopefuls. Resumes from assistant high school coaches outside the Lubbock system will not be considered for the job. However, assistants from the Lubbock school system will be considered. The athletic director estimated that four of the hopefuls were from the local system.

Fabens coach Jack Quarles and Dunbar defensive coordinator David Graham have expressed their interest in applying for the job. Monterey grid aides Bobby Moegle and Bob Gay told The Avalanche-Journal that they did not intend to seek the post. Other local names frequently mentioned are Lubbock High defensive aides Richard Mason and Ed Campbell along with Coronado assistants David Browning and Porter Smith.

Two quality Class AAA coaches, John Blocker of Fort Stockton and Don Beck of Perryton, have considered applying for the position.

Blocker, a Hub City native, played on the 1951 and 1952 state championship teams at Lubbock High and coached at Frenship before taking the Fort Stockton job.

"You're always interested in a good job, but I really don't know yet whether I will apply. I'll just have to think about it. I feel that I have an excellent opportunity at Fort Stockton right now," Blocker said.

Beck said he had not been officially contacted about the job but might consider it if "someone contacted me." The Perryton coach figured it would be a "nice combination" if he accepted the CHS job and his son, Brad, decided to play football for Texas Tech. However, the older Beck stated that his son's decision wouldn't influence his move.

"It would make the job much more attractive to me if (Brad) does go to Tech. Right now, though, he is strongly considering both Tech and Texas. But he hasn't visited either one yet," the Perryton coach said.

Beck also may apply for the Plainview job, which opened Tuesday after head coach George Kirk resigned to take a head football coaching spot at Klein (16-AAAA).

"That job is bound to have some affect on what happens here," Ragus figured.

Confident Pardee Named New Coach Of Redskin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A confident Jack Pardee took charge of the Washington Redskins today with the hope of keeping the team a winner just like it was under his predecessor and former boss, George Allen.

Pardee concedes that he may have problems because of a lack of draft choices, but he says the so-called Over the Hill Gang isn't that aged, pointing out that only eight of last year's 45 players are over 30 years of age.

Pardee, the first choice of team President Edward Bennett Williams after Williams fired Allen last week, said Tuesday that the Redskins have great talent compared to many other National Football League teams.

"The talent here is very competitive," said Pardee, while admitting he would like to have Walter Payton, the NFL's most valuable player, whom Pardee coached at Chicago. "There are a lot of guys I love on the Bears. The same can be said for the Redskins."

The 41-year-old Pardee quit the Bears, a team he coached for three years and led into last season's playoff, to actively seek the post in Washington, where he played two years and was an assistant for one under Allen.

Pardee signed a multi-year contract with the Redskins but the terms were not disclosed.

"I wasn't completely unhappy there (Chicago)," he said. "As a coach, I was strapped with many things that wouldn't change. I couldn't change. Most of them being facilities, the stadium we played in."

"Here, those things are solved. The only thing I'm interested in is being a good football coach."

Pardee said his coaching philosophy is much the same as Allen's.

"I tried to learn from George because he always was successful," he said.

Pardee, like Allen, will work primarily with the defense, but he does not want to be described as "defensive-minded" or a "defensive coach."

Pardee expressed concern about the Redskins' lack of draft picks — their first choice in May is in the ninth round, but they have a first in the following year's college draft.

HIGHLIGHTS
PHILADELPHIA — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors defeated South Africa's Cliff Drysdale 7-6, 6-4 in a first-round match in the $225,000 U.S. Indoor Tennis Championship. In other matches, Eddie Dibbs defeated Terry Moor 7-4, 6-3, Sandy Mayer, the 15th seed, overcame Jan Kodeš of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 4-6, 6-2. Ray Moore of South Africa edged Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 4-4 and Antonio Zugarelli of Italy scored a 7-6, 4-3 victory over Hank Pfister. In a second-round match, Britain's Buster Mottram edged Tim Gulikson 1-6, 6-3, 6-2 and eighth seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania edged Mark Cox of Britain 7-5, 6-2.

LOS ANGELES — Second-seeded Martina Navratilova breezed to an easy 6-0, 6-1 victory over Michele Tyler of England in a first-round match of a $100,000 women's tennis tournament. In another first-round match, fifth-seeded Rosie Casals eliminated Pat Medrado of Brazil 6-1, 6-4. Earlier, third-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain defeated Bunny Bruning 6-3, 6-2 and sixth-seeded Betty Stove of the Netherlands advanced to the second round when her opponent, Lee Antonopolis failed to make an appearance.

HOCKEY
BUFFALO — A change in format from the two National Hockey League All-Star game to a four-game All-Star series against a similar team from the Soviet National has been agreed upon by the NHL's owners and players. At a joint news conference, NHL President John Ziegler and Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association announced that instead of the two-day break in the schedule, there would be an eight-day hiatus during which the series would take place.

BERCHTESGADEN — West Germany's Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein won her second straight women's special slalom and increased her World Cup lead to 34 points, and American women had their best Alpine showing in nine years, finishing 4-5. Miss Wenzel had a combined time of 1 minute, 55.77 seconds and finished more than half-second ahead of Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland and Pernine Biesen of France. Backcountry skier of Cham, Mass., led the Americans as she finished fourth followed by Christine Cooper of Sun Valley, Idaho and Abbi Fisher of South Conway, N.H.

SURROUNDED — Beverly Barker of South Plains finds herself surrounded by Red Raiders after hauling in a rebound Tuesday night. Tech Fems Top SPC For 20th Victory

The Texas Tech women's basketball team topped its season record to an impressive 20-3 Tuesday night in the women's gym by downing South Plains College 61-54. In the game marred with 42 turnovers, the Techs used the 13-point performance of Jill Owens and the 11-point showing of Marilyn Payton to score the victory. Also hitting in double figures for Tech was Rosemary Scott. She had 10 points. Pacing SPC was Beverly Barker. Miss Barker led all scorers with 20 points. Tech will meet Wayland Baptist College Saturday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. in the Lubbock Coliseum. The game will

Ponies Drop Bulldogs In Three OTs

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Steve Ahlenius and Jay Norton combined for nine of Coronado's 11 points in the third overtime here Tuesday as the Mustangs won a 69-65 thriller over the host Bulldogs. Plainview, down by 50-39 with 4:08 left in regulation, climaxed a stirring comeback with 25 seconds left when Jamie McAlister hit a jumper. Both teams scored four points in the first overtime, but Ahlenius missed the front end of a one-and-one with no time showing on the clock to force a second extra period, which went scoreless as Brent Roy's shot at the buzzer went in and out.

Ahlenius, who finished with a season-high 23 points, canned two free shots and then hit the front end of a two-shot foul to start the third three-minute period and John Biddle rammed home a driving layup to put the Mustangs up by five. Plainview managed to cut the margin to two, but Ahlenius, who hit 5 of 6 free shots in that stanza, and Norton, who converted a field goal and two of three free shots, came back strong. Ahlenius, in the final 25 minutes, hit 6 of 8 field goals, including all four he attempted in the fourth quarter. Norton hauled in 12 of Coronado's 28 rebounds in the contest, as the Mustangs

Petersburg's Gains Hired By Denver City

DENVER CITY (Special) — Gary Gaines, who won two district championships and compiled a 17-5-1 record in two years at Petersburg, has been named head coach and athletic director at Denver City. The Screening Committee sliced the original 60 applications down to five and Gaines was selected from that group Monday night. A Crane native, Gaines was a four-year letterman and MVP in 1970 at Angelo State, where he also served as graduate assistant one year. The former offensive halfback-defensive safety, spent one year at Fort Stockton and four years at Monahan as an assistant before assuming the Petersburg position. Gaines went 7-3-1 his first year, bowing to Hart in district last year's 10-2 team fell to Sunray in the Regional contest. Gaines, who inked a two-year contract, replaces Bill Gravitt, who was reassigned within the Denver City system.

Canyon Routs EHS Girls

Canyon's defending state champions limited Estacado to two points combined in the middle two quarters Tuesday in chalking up an 85-15 victory here. The Eaglettes, now 25-0, had four girls in double figures, with Nancy Walling leading the way with 23 points, 10 of which came in the first quarter when Canyon sprinted to a 28-5 lead. Canyon was up 53-5 at halftime and 67-7 after three stanzas. Merry Johnson added 22 points for the victors, with Sharon Brown getting 16 and Glenda Williams 12. Jeannette Baker led Estacado, now 7-14, with 7.

Hot-Hitting MHS Dumps Herd 68-58

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Through most of this season, Monterey's offense has been a duet featuring Tony Hamby and David Davidson. Lately, though, the supporting actors are helping, too.

The Plainsmen offense continued to jell Tuesday night in the Monterey gym by shooting 58 percent from the field and beating Hereford 68-58. The victory clinched at least a share of the District 4-AAAA first-half basketball title since the Plainsmen raised their league record to 3-0.

However, the final dance of the half will determine the outcome of the race Friday night when Coronado (2-1) entertains MHS. A CHS victory would tie the Mustangs with the Plainsmen for the honors.

"We're playing pretty good. We've got a little offense since the Caprock tournament. I thought we shot the ball pretty well outside at the start of the game," said Monterey coach Joe Michalka.

Yes, Joe, the Plainsmen have sharpened their game considerably since December. Monterey has won seven of its last eight starts. The only setback, a 47-41 loss Amarillo High, came on a night when MHS shot 30 percent from the floor. And Monterey just doesn't seem to do that anymore.

During the eight-game stretch, Michalka has stayed with the same lineup and has used the same number of reserves to provide most of the breathers. Co-captains Hamby and Davidson still do most of the shooting, but postman Chuck Perry and forward Craig Ehlo add a valuable assist in the scoring, too.

Against Hereford, Monterey led by a shaky margin for most of three quarters but never seemed to lose its mental toughness and try an ill-advised shot. The Plainsmen converted plenty of good percentage shots which followed crisp and accurate feeds.

While Davidson led the scorers with 21 points and Hamby followed with 18, Perry contributed 14 and Ehlo 11 to balance the offense. This offense deserves the credit because Hereford's attack wasn't too shabby itself.

By halftime, the Herd found itself shooting 50 percent from the field (11 of 22) but trailing 31-23. Hereford narrowed the deficit to 39-35 with a minute left in the third quarter. Then Monterey countered with 4 quick points to keep the 8-point lead after three quarters. Davidson canned two foul shots with 39 seconds left. Then before the buzzer, the 6-0 guard dribbled and fired a 20-footer into the nets.

The abrupt turnaround seemed to knock Hereford out of the contest in the fourth quarter. Davidson opened the final period with a layup after catching an alert midcourt pass from Hamby. That bucket gave MHS a 45-35 edge.

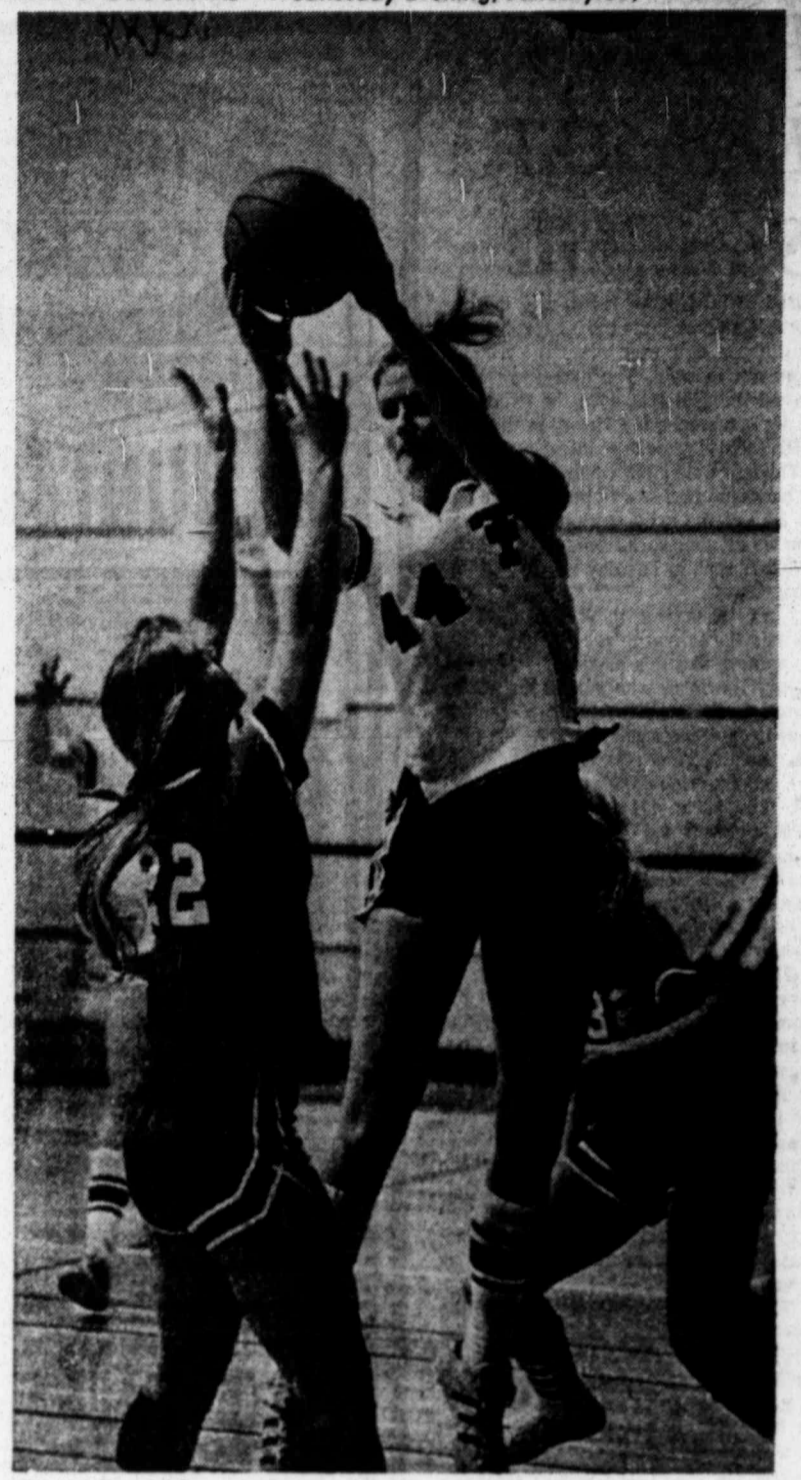

Then Perry deflected a Hereford shot straight to Ehlo, who raced down for another easy layup. Seconds later, Davidson swiped the ball from Hereford guard Jackie Mercer and strolled in for another crisp shot. The next patented Plainsmen layup by Hamby resulted from a sharp pass from Kevin Kirkman and lifted MHS ahead 51-36.

From that point, Ehlo spent most of the last five minutes at the free-throw line, hitting seven of 10 charity shots.

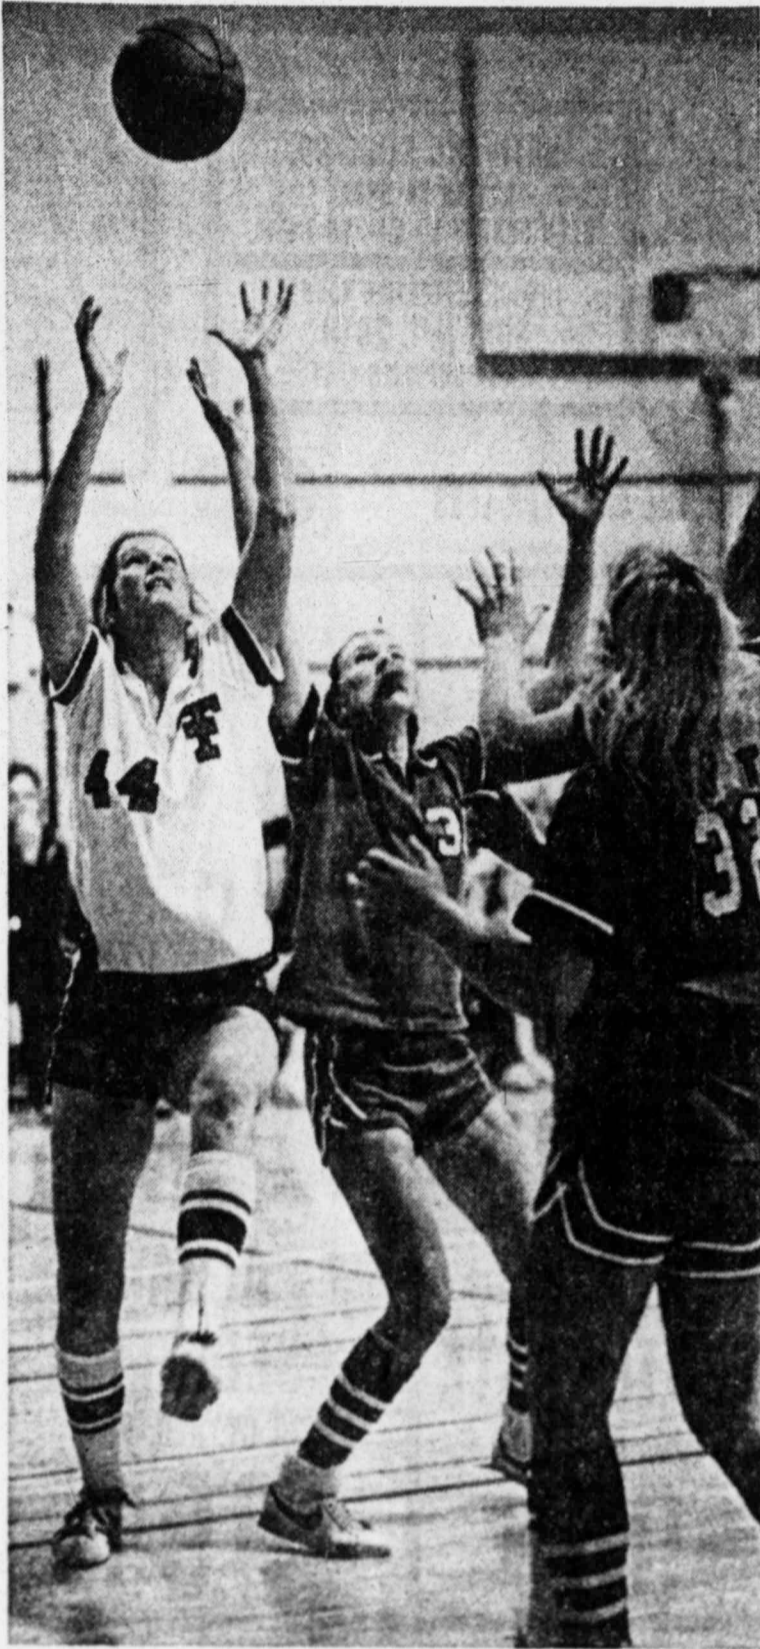

Herd guard Kelly Kitchens followed Davidson in the scoring with 20. However, that production hardly bothered Michalka too much.

"We were real proud that he didn't get way up in the 20's. Davidson started out on Kitchens and picked up two quick fouls. Then Ehlo and David Key tried him at different times. Ehlo did as well as he was capable of doing on him," the MHS coach said.

MHS and Hereford each stand 14-11 overall but the Herd would gladly trade its 1-2 league mark.

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I didn't know whether to laugh, or feel sorry for him, when Jimmy Connors said he felt old at 25 after winning the Masters. It seems to me that he has tried to soften his image and the press won't let him. When they are not knocking him, they are blaming everything on his mother. Why must people be so cruel?

His career as a pro was short, but he played in three leagues—Canada, the AFL and NFL—in four years. He once held the record for the longest kickoff return in the American League, 94 yards. Hall is now in business in the San Francisco area.

— Evelyn Ann Mears, Tulsa A. In his stormy dealings with the press, Jimmy Connors has always given as good as he has gotten. His sassy-kid image was more than a pose; it was basic to the way he grew up and the way he was trained, not unlike Muhammad Ali's boastfulness. But Connors has never been a sympathetic figure, even when he was entitled to some benefit of the doubt.

Q. I'd appreciate your listing of Satchel Paige's rules for good living—ending with "Don't look back, someone might be gaining on you." If these can be found in some reference book, I'd like to have that information, too.

— W.E. Duncan, Houston A. This is a repeat performance, but then Satchel's rules are worth repeating: (1) Avoid fried meats which angry up the blood; (2) If your stomach disputes you, lie down and pacify it with cool thoughts; (3) Keep the juices moving by jangling around gently as you walk; (4) Go light on the vices such as carrying on in society; (5) Avoid running at all times, and (6) Don't look back, something might be gaining on you.

The list has been printed in the first Fireside Book of Baseball, published by Simon and Schuster.

Q. What ever became of Ben Cantwell, former Giant and Boston Braves pitcher? He started his career in Jacksonville, Florida, and was sold to McGraw for $25,000. On the same team was an 18-year-old kid from Tampa, a catcher named Al Lopez.

(Do you have a question about a sport personality? Send your questions to SPORTS HOT LINE, 6700 Squibb Rd, Mission, Ks., 66202. Because of the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible.)

— Charles H. Reasoner, Hollywood, Fla. A. Ben Cantwell died on December 4, 1962, at his home in Salem, Missouri. A burly righthander whose career never fulfilled his promise, he won 76 games and lost 108. His teammate, Al Lopez, fared much better. As a catcher and manager, The Senor made it into the Hall of Fame.

Q. Could you tell me whatever happened after high school to the greatest back in high school history? From 1950 to 1953, Bob Hall of Sugar Land, Texas, rushed for 11,232 yards and scored 899 points. In one game he had 687 yards, seven touchdowns and 13 extra points. He was 6 foot one and 205, ran the 100 in 9.7.

— Tim Myers, Three Forks, Mont. A. The most sought-after schoolboy player of his time, Kenneth Hall (not Bob), was described by one college recruiter as "a Greek God." But this may have been another case of too much, too soon. Hall was recruited by Bear Bryant at Texas A & M in 1954, starred in the same freshman backfield with John David Crow, but dropped out of school in the middle of his junior year. Bryant once said his biggest mistake as a coach was "not going after Kenneth Hall and bringing him back."

EVANS RESIGNS
CLEVELAND (AP) — Dick Evans, pro scouting director for the Cleveland Browns, resigned Tuesday, a team spokesman said. Browns information director Nate Wallack said Evans does not have another job. It was the latest in a series of staff changes for the Browns since the hiring of Sam Rutigliano as new head coach.

Panthers Blast LV

SAN ANGELO (Special) — Dunbar had no trouble collecting its 21st win of the season as it used the 23-point outing of Greg Whitfield to shoot down host Lake View here Tuesday night 87-44 in a District 3-AAA basketball contest.

The Panthers, now 21-4 overall and 1-0 in the loop's second-half play, jumped out to an early 14-0 lead over the winless Chiefs and then coasted home for the win.

Coach Joe McWilliams used his entire squad during the onslaught which saw the Panthers hold a commanding 40-18 first-half lead.

Everyone on the Dunbar team scored at least a point against the Chiefs. Scoring in double figures for DHS were Wayne Williams with 17 points and Billy Don Hardaway with 18 points. Whitfield led all scorers by hitting nine shots from the field and five more from the free-throw line.

Leading Lake View was Doug Martin with 13 points.

In all, DHS outscored Lake View 37-18 from the field and 13-8 from the line.

Perreault Ends OT Star Tilt

BUFFALO (AP) — If this was, in fact, the last All-Star game the National Hockey League will ever play, it certainly went out in style. The hometown hero scored the goal that gave the Prince of Wales conference the victory in the first NHL All-Star game to go into overtime.

The fans went crazy when Gil Perreault's backhand shot was tipped into the net at 3:55 of the extra session, completing the Wales' comeback from a 2-0 deficit to a 3-2 triumph in Tuesday night's 31st annual contest.

"Just when you think you need to change the format of the All-Star game, something like this happens," observed Scotty Bowman, who guided the Wales squad to its fourth consecutive triumph since conference-against-conference play was instituted four seasons ago.

Everyone cried out for reform, and earlier Tuesday it was announced that the NHL's players and owners had agreed to dispense with the single-game format in favor of a four-game all-star series against a similar team from the Soviet Union during a week late in January next year.

The complainers hadn't counted on overtime, since it hadn't happened before. They didn't count on the surprising game-winner, which entered the net when center Phil Esposito of the Campbell side attempted to deflect the puck into the corner but tipped it past his own goalie instead. If they counted on anything, it was that the Wales Conference would win, since the team had dominated the last three encounters and, on paper, anyway, boasted a clear-cut advantage entering this final showing of star wars.

The advantage wasn't displayed on the ice until the second period, after goals by Bill Barber of the Philadelphia Flyers and Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders, had given the Campbell stars a 2-0 lead. But in that second session the Wales players took the first 10 shots and halved the deficit on a tally by Toronto's Darryl Sittler.

It was the same relentless, frenzied, furious offensive pace that brought them even in the third period. The Wales side took the first 11 shots this time and finally pulled even when another Buffalo player, left wing Rick Martin, connected on a third rebound with just 1:39 remaining in regulation time.

Martin, whose second goal of the third period at Vancouver last year gave the Wales Conference a 4-3 victory, was overjoyed by his achievement. "When I'm old and gray," he said, "I can tell my kids that I scored a goal in the only (NHL) All-Star game ever played in Buffalo. It was great!"

So was the play of the Campbell Conference goalies. Bill Smith of the Islanders and Wayne Stephenson of the Flyers.

"It was a good game," said Smith, who all but stood on his head to blunt a Wales attack which wandered through the first period but was awesome in the second and third. "Everybody got their money's worth."

Even the five Islanders who represented the Campbell squad, Smith's heroics won him the automobile awarded the game's outstanding player, but he revealed later the five Islanders had agreed that if any won the prize, the car would be sold and the money divided among them.

The hometown fans certainly got their money's worth. The Wales side outshot the Campbell team 31-5 in the last two regulation periods and 40-12 for the game, and both Sabres players on the team scored goals, even if the game-winner wasn't exactly an artistic success.

"I'm going to write Esposito a letter to thank him," said Perreault.

"Yeah," admitted Esposito, "It was one of my all-time great tip-ins."

erations and numerous other injuries. "I knew this was my last year."

The quarterback said he would announce his decision officially today at a sports-celebrity golf tournament in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Namath, who signed with the Los Angeles Rams this past season after the New York Jets made him a free agent, said he was not sure what his future held — movies, television, business or something else — but he said coaching probably was out.

"I don't know for sure what I'm going to be doing," he said, "but I'm not concerned. I've got some other people, such as my manager, Jimmy Walsh, looking around for things for me to do — the right things."

Namath, however, told the New York Times: "I don't think I'll ever return to football as a coach. I think I could coach, but from what I've seen of other coaches, such as Weeb Ewbank with the Jets and Chuck Knox with the Rams, it takes up too many hours to do it right. And if I was going to do it, I'd want to do it right."

"I'm solid financially," Namath said. "I want to keep busy because I always like to be busy, but I'm not in a hurry."

Namath said he might be interested in owning an NFL team if the league expanded to Birmingham, Ala. "That would be different," he said. "I might like that. But that's a long way down the road. I'm not thinking about that now."

Namath was the man who gave the old American Football League credibility when he led the Jets to a 16-7 victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III in 1969. And, after a dozen seasons with the Jets, he joined the Rams with hopes of another Super Bowl triumph.

But after four starting assignments and two losses, Namath gave way to young Pat Haden and watched the rest of the season from the sidelines.

Portland Zaps KC.

By The Associated Press
 Jack Ramsay, the coach of the Portland Trail Blazers, spends most of his time during a game perched on one knee, resting on a towel strategically placed about five feet from the end of the Blazers' bench. Sometimes he gets up and paces the sidelines, shouting encouragement to his players or advice to the officials.

Tuesday night at Kansas City, he was able to sit back and relax.
 And enjoy.
 "It was just great basketball," said Ramsay, savoring the Blazers' 120-97 romp over the Kansas City Kings. Portland, the defending National Basketball Association champion, raced to a 76-41 lead at halftime and never was threatened.

"The first half, that's as good as we can play," said Ramsay. "We played great defense and executed on offense. We would have beaten anybody in the league."
 "That's the most frustrating half I've ever played in," said Kansas City guard Lucius Allen.

Lakers 117, 76ers 102
 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, not chosen for the All-Star Game this year for the first time in his nine NBA seasons, scored 39 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to lead the Lakers to their fourth consecutive victory. Los Angeles led 67-48 at halftime and by at least 10 points throughout the second half.

Jazz 96, Celtics 91
 Pete Maravich scored six of his 30 points in the final five minutes as New Orleans posted its sixth straight victory to move within one of a team record. Two free throws by James McElroy and a blocked shot by Rich Kelley in the final minutes sealed the verdict.

Knicks 99, Warriors 97
 Bob McAdoo scored 23 points and hauled down 20 rebounds and reserve Lonnie Shelton added 22 points for New York, which went ahead to stay by outscoring Golden State 25-8 in a 12-minute stretch starting midway through the second quarter. The Warriors pulled within a point on four occasions, but never could draw even.

Pistons 104, Bullets 101
 Detroit moved in front by scoring 10 straight points late in the fourth quarter but needed four free throws by Leon Douglas in the final 14 seconds to hold off the depleted Bullets, who lost Phil Chenier and Mitch Kupchak, two of their top players, to injuries over the weekend.

Bulls 131, Nuggets 114
 Chicago got 28 points from Wilbur Holland and 20 points and 17 rebounds from Mickey Johnson in winning its sixth game in seven starts and pulling within three games of first-place Denver in the Midwest Division. The loss was the third straight for Denver, which is 1-3 since guard Brian Taylor declared himself a free agent and left the club.

Cavaliers 96, Pacers 92
 Veteran reserve forward Bingo Smith scored 10 points in the fourth quarter as the Cavs erased a 90-86 deficit in the final 1:51 by outscoring the Pacers 10-2 after that. The victory snapped an 11-game road losing streak for the Cavs and pushed them one game above the .500 mark.

A's Deny That Revering Side Issue In 'Trade'

NEW YORK (AP) — If Vida Blue is forced to remain with the Oakland A's, an unhappy pitcher is bound to become unhappier.

The A's, who attempted to trade Blue to the Cincinnati Reds for $1.75 million and minor league first baseman Dave Revering, are acting as if baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn will approve the trade.

They're already treating Blue like an ex-teammate and labeling Revering the savior of the downtrodden franchise. So if Kuhn keeps Blue from becoming a Red — an action most baseball people feel the commissioner will take — then the A's and Blue may choke on some of the statements that followed Tuesday's hearing on the Blue matter.

"We got the best of the transaction," said Neil Papiano, the Los Angeles-based lawyer for Oakland owner Charles O. Finley. "A year from now I don't think we'd trade Blue for Revering straight up."

Now who's kidding whom? Blue, a former Cy Young Award winner and one of the hardest throwers in the game, is a proven quality pitcher. Revering is merely a minor leaguer with potential. Blue's price tag, according to the recent deal involving Oakland and Cincinnati, is $1.75 million plus whatever Revering is worth.

Last season, a disgruntled Blue was 14-19 with a 3.83 ERA for the A's, the worst club in the American League West. Revering is a minor league power hitter, but unproven on the major league level.

"If he wins 20 games for Cincinnati, it would be something he hasn't done in some time," said Papiano of the 1971 Cy Young winner, who was 24-8 in his rookie season (1971), 20-9 in 1973 and 22-11 in 1975. "Revering is a power hitter, the best in the minor leagues. He's younger than Blue (24-28). He'll fit into Oakland's rebuilding plans."

The suspicion was that Revering was just a throw-in, that Finley, who has been talking bankruptcy, needed the $1.75 million a lot more than he needed a minor league star. Papiano denied this.

"Revering was not a side issue," the lawyer said. "The testimony today was that Finley has been trying to get Revering for some time, so were some others, including the New York Yankees."

If the A's were attempting to prove that the Blue-Revering deal was different than the attempted Oakland sales of Blue, Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers of 19 months ago, then they would want to prove the worth of one Dave Revering. The $3.5 million sales of 19 months ago were voided by Kuhn, who said at the conclusion of Tuesday's hearing that he will be ruling on the A's-Reds trade within several days.

Finley, in his testimony Tuesday, apparently tried to show how this transaction differed from the ones Kuhn cancelled, using Dave Revering as Exhibit A.

Finley, Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, and Cincinnati President Bob Howsam all testified at the six-hour hearing that the December deal was properly within the major league rules and should be upheld.

"I'm optimistic," said Howsam. "We think the transaction is in the best interests of baseball."

In cancelling Finley's $3.5 million sales in June 1976, Kuhn cited his authority to protect "the best interests of baseball." When, in turn, Finley sued Kuhn for $3.5 million, a federal judge in Chicago upheld Kuhn's authority, calling his powers "near-dictatorial."

It is the precedent of Kuhn's action in that case that will turn the current case, say most baseball insiders. In a statement explaining his landmark decision, Kuhn said: "If such transactions now and in the future were permitted, the door would be opened to the buying of success

But Kuhn warned against holding him inflexibly to that position.

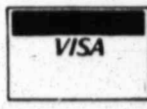

"What I said before is worthwhile to evaluate," he said Tuesday. "But beyond that, that's as far as I'll go."

Finley hopes Kuhn will fool the experts once again and approve this sale.

"I'm optimistic," he said. "By gosh, it's about time I won one."

New Comedy On News To Be Aired Tonight

By JOAN HANAUER
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Who says television isn't varied when viewers can watch a spaced out comedy in the style of a documentary or a two-part documentary about the space race.

The comedy, one of the funnier efforts to appear on the screen of late, is NBC's "Peeping Times," a satirical news magazine show that will be broadcast tonight at 8 pm., CDT.

One of the best segments of the show deals with illegal aliens, in which a professional alien smuggler is asked his favorite method. "By mail," he said. "Parcel post." And the audience watches while he packages an illegal alien for shipping.

There's a section on Bigfoot, and the town that fakes evidence of the creature's existence. The doubting television interviewer is shown a home movie of Bigfoot that leaves the audience with the question, Why does Bigfoot wear an ankle bracelet?

Other imaginative subjects explored by Miles Rathbourn (Alan Oppenheimer) and Dan Cochran (David Letterman) include a self-service hospital, the dance class at a reformed prison, and the story of a New York longshoreman who wants to become a nun.

Then there's the story of crime in America and a look at people serving time for having committing victimless crimes, like the woman who removed the tag from her couch — you know, the one that says "Do not remove under penalty of law!" — and the fellow who taped a baseball game without the express written consent of the Commissioner.

David Frost and Marvin Minoff are the executive producers of the show, created, produced and directed by Rudy DeLuca and Barry Levinson.

Over on PBS, "Nova" marks the 20th anniversary of America's first venture into space with a two one-hour programs to be broadcast tonight and Feb. 1, at 7 p.m.

The first show, "One Small Step," traces the space race from 1957 when the Soviets launched Sputnik through America's emerging dominance crowned by the landing on the moon, through to the Soviet-American handshake in space in July, 1975.

The second stanza is titled "The Final Frontier," which might strike a chord with "Star Trek" fans, whose pressure led to naming the first space shuttle the Enterprise.

But the real fascination of the second show lies with other developments that might be within our grasp.

These are the visions of Gerard O'Neill, a theoretical physicist at Princeton University, who asks, "In the long run, is a planetary surface the place for a technological civilization?"

Instead, he suggests the colonization of space and predicts that within 200 years there will be more people living in space than on earth.

As Captain Kirk says, "Space — the final frontier..."

The shores and waters of Lake Baikal in the Soviet Union harbor about 1,000 species of animals and plants found nowhere else—including a fresh-water seal.

Former Commander Of Pueblo In Training To Become Artist

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Lloyd Bucher has traded in his navy blues for blue jeans. The retired Navy commander of the spy ship Pueblo is in basic training to become an artist.

"I'm going to make a living out of it," Bucher said of his art training Monday, the 10th anniversary of the capture of the USS Pueblo at sea by North Koreans.

Criticism of the Pueblo's capture nearly ended Bucher's 28-year Navy career, which began in the enlisted ranks.

The Pueblo incident is "not something I think about often," said the 50-year-old Bucher as he straightened out his locker at Arts Center College of Design, where he has been a full-time student since June.

The orphan from Pocatello, Idaho, returned from the Navy in June 1973 on a $1,400-a-month pension.

Bucher and the other 81 Pueblo survivors were heroes briefly after their release before Christmas 1968. But a naval court of inquiry questioned the surrender of the ship without a fight and signing of confessions by Bucher and others while in North Korean prison camp, in violation of the military code of conduct, which has since been changed.

The court of inquiry's recommendations that Bucher and other ranking officers be court martialed were ignored by then-Secretary of the Navy John Chafee, who said: "They have been punished enough."

Bucher later landed an assignment which involved him in the mining of Hai-phong harbor in 1973 under then President Richard Nixon.

"I could just see the president saying, 'Isn't that the same SOB who just sold the ship to North Korea?'" Bucher chuckled.

His 1970 book, "My Story," paid for the home he, his wife, Rose, and son, Mike, 23, share in Poway, about 35 miles north of San Diego.

After his retirement, he augmented his income with lectures, either on the Pueblo or on "What's Right With America." For a time he considered writing a novel, but was bothered by insomnia while worrying over phrases.

Bucher maintains that blame for the Pueblo affair should be shared by Lyndon Johnson's White House.

Dentist Decision Upheld

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Fitting false teeth falls under the statutory definition of dentistry, the Maine Supreme Court ruled when it upheld the conviction of a dentist who fitted dentures to test the law.

John Hussey, 31, president of the Maine Denturists Association, deliberately made dentures to test a state law barring denturists from practicing dentistry.

He was convicted in Superior Court of four counts of unlawfully practicing dentistry in August, 1976.

The Maine Supreme Court turned down his appeal Friday.

Hussey said Monday he was "very much surprised" by the ruling. As a result of the decision, he will now have to pay an $800 fine which had been held in abeyance pending the appeal.

The key issue in the case was whether fitting false teeth classifies as dentistry.

Under Maine law, only a licensed dentist may take "impressions of the human tooth, teeth, jaws..."

Hussey argued that since denturists only take impressions of gums, they are not performing dental procedure when the fit false teeth.

However, a decision written by Justice

"Hell, I made a lot of mistakes," he said. "But ... the people who really fell down were never held accountable."

The worst part of the experience, he said, was "being witness to the brutality that was inflicted on many members of the crew."

The death of one crew member during the attack on the ship was tragic, but because it could not be helped, Bucher said it was "not nearly as poignant as hearing the yells of people in pain."

David Nichols said when the state legislature passed the law, it "was clearly concerned with the entire process by which prosthetic dentures are supplied to patients."

"The practice of dentistry includes the taking of gum impressions," Nichols wrote.

The question of denturists rights was hotly debated during the 1977 session of the Legislature.

Last July, Maine denturists won a mild victory when lawmakers passed a measure allowing them to make and fit dentures under the direct supervision of a dentist.

Supporters of the measure argued that denturists could fit false teeth at a lower cost.

Singer Writes Own Life History

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rosemary Clooney has written an eye-popping autobiography, "This For Remembrance," relating her drug addiction and love affairs with equal candor.

Her personal saga of triumph and tragedy is a compelling story of the pressures and demands of fame, an unhappy marriage and the struggle to hold a family together.

Rosemary turned to tranquilizers and barbiturates to maintain her sanity. She became totally dependent on the drugs which eventually led to her undoing.

There are some similarities in Rosemary's life and Judy Garland's. Both were told they were strong, indomitable women who could cope with anything. Rosemary found out differently.

Rosemary had started in movies, her own television series and had sold millions of records. She played to full houses on concert tours in the United States and abroad.

She supported her parents and her own brood. On the surface Rosemary Clooney was a very together lady, a self-sufficient breadwinner, a tower of strength. Beneath the veneer she was crumbling emotionally.

Rosemary hit bottom professionally and personally in 1968. She insulted the audience in a Reno, Nev., club in which she was playing. She stalked out in a seething rage brought on by exhaustion, drugs and ravaged nerves.

She was placed in restraints and flown from the Nevada city to Los Angeles in a hospital plane. Rosemary was put in a straitjacket and locked in the psychiatric ward of a local hospital.

It wasn't the first time Rosemary had lost control. There were ugly disturbances, temper tantrums, drug induced tirades and inferior performances in other cities.

The principal difference between Judy's and Rosemary's public breakdowns was publicity, or lack of it.

Judy's humiliations, fights and suicide attempts were reported in detail. Rosemary's friends went to great lengths to shield her. Few of her shenanigans were chronicled in the press.

Rosemary is not sure whether the media was protective of her or unaware of the nightmare life she was leading.

"I was in the hospital four weeks," she said. "I was totally unaware of some of the bizarre things that happened to me. It was a long, slow return to sanity and normalcy for me."

"But I did hold my family together through all of my troubles. And no matter how bad things got I never lost faith in myself."

"I broke down because I never told myself the truth. I thought I was the strongest person in the world because I was told that by my mother as a child and by everyone else I knew down through the years."

"From the time I was a teenager I worked as a radio and band singer. I never had any rest except when I had my pregnant, and even then I worked while I was pregnant."

"My nerves and emotions couldn't handle the overload of work and responsibility. It caused a short circuit."

"Ten years ago I thought my career was over. Hell, six years ago I thought so. I did some singing in clubs when I was getting better. But I was unhappy. Gradually I learned to cook and put in a vegetable garden in the yard of my home. And

I spent hours and hours with my children.

"I went through analysis and group therapy. It really helped."

Rosemary worked three months on her book with a collaborator, writing openly about an affair with a much younger man, her marriage and subsequent divorce from Jose Ferrer, and of the one great love of her life.

Rosemary is outspoken about her mother and father who took turns at deserting Rosemary and her sister, Betty, when they were still children.

"Writing my story was less painful because I'd gone through analysis," she said. "I wouldn't have attempted the book if I hadn't. I'd have kept too many things buried."

"As it is, there are some things I didn't put in the book, stories that might hurt other persons or affect on my children negatively."

"The most painful part of my life to write about was the death of my sister, Betty. She was closer to me than any person in the world."

Rosemary takes no drugs these days. She is cutting two new record albums, "Everything's Coming Up Rosie" and an album of Crosby favorites. She has lined up concerts in Ohio and Florida.

Television Barred By Mayor

SEATTLE (AP) — Mayor Charles Royer, a former television commentator, has barred TV cameras from his twice-a-week informal news briefings.

"I don't want to be on television all the time. I don't have that much to say twice a week, frankly," Royer said Monday.

"I just want to tell them what is going on this week, sort of a background session," he added. "With television it would be with cameras and lights and not as easy flowing as it is."

Royer also said he was barring the use of tape recorders at the sessions.

He said he would continue to grant television interviews after the briefings, but Larry Badger, acting news director at KING-TV where Royer used to work, said that wasn't good enough.

"If it's on the record, we want to be there," Badger said. "We should be allowed to use the tools of our trade, the television camera."

When KING reporter Linda Brill and cameraman Jan Nickman arrived for one of the informal sessions Monday morning, mayoral press aide Carol Lewis — formerly KING's City Hall reporter — told them the camera had to go.

"I wouldn't call it an argument, but there definitely was a disagreement, and low-key," the reporter said. Royer discussed the matter afterward in a televised interview.

Royer also said he was barring the use of tape recorders at the sessions.

He said he would continue to grant television interviews after the briefings, but Larry Badger, acting news director at KING-TV where Royer used to work, said that wasn't good enough.

"If it's on the record, we want to be there," Badger said. "We should be allowed to use the tools of our trade, the television camera."

Scotland To Celebrate Burns Niche In Honor Of National Bard

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

Today, Jan. 25, is Burns Niche, Scotland's St. Patrick's Day, except it's held at night and usually far into the next morning unless a sudden drought sets in.

Tonight all over the world, in the highlands and the lowlands, from both the feuding Campbell and Macdonald Clans, from Glen Garry in Inverness to Glengarry, Ontario, where a whole Scottish regiment once immigrated, Scots will gather to pay homage to Robert Burns, the national bard.

Rabbie, as he is affectionately called tonight by speaker after speaker delivering the traditional toast, was the Shakespeare of Scotland, the wooing, wenching, sardonic, sentimental, often drunken and always repentant home-loving poet who died at 37 from a heart condition aggravated by his affinity for the "barley-brie," the national dram distilled in the islands and highlands. That was nearly 200 years ago.

He left behind some of the loveliest lines ever written: "My love is like a red, red rose," "John Anderson, My Jo," "Bonnie Wee Thing," "Mary Morison," "My Heart's in the Highlands," "Charlie, He's My Darling," "A Man's A Man For That," "Auld Lang Syne." And some of the wittiest: "To a Mouse," "To a Louse," "Lines Written on a Banknote," "Stanzas on Naething" and "Address to the Toothache."

Also some of the most incomprehensible, written as they were in the even then obscure 18th century Ayrshire dialect, which will not deter modern Scots saluting the bard on his birthday from nodding their heads knowingly or in seeming, pretended understanding, and laughing in all the right places when "Tom O'Shanter," Burns' best work, is read aloud or recited from the podium. It's all about a Lowland laddie, like Burns himself, leaving the pub after a sip too many, heading home to his shrewish wife aboard his gray mare Meg and running into even worse trouble than Macbeth with some witches on the heath. Enjoying Burns Niche to the fullest requires a lot of pretending, especially on the part of the outsider, the non-Caledonian guest who has to pretend to like haggis and at least tolerate bagpipe music.

Every Burns niche everywhere begins with the ceremonial entrance of the haggis to the skirt of the pipes and the wiggle-waggle of the kilts.

Haggis, for the deprived many unacquainted with the caviar of Scotland, is giblets and entrails and chitlins and what not boiled up with oatmeal and onions and unspecified spices inside the stomach of a sheep. "What the rest of the world throws away, the Scots savor," claimed one detractor. Another called it "boiled castrated bagpipe." But to the gourmet born beyond Hardrian's wall, above the banks of the Tweed, in the bonnie bents, braes and glens and lochs of Scotland, haggis is a steaming daub of heaven.

The Bagpipe also is an acquired taste, if not hereditary. "The best that can be said for it, in addition to everything else," allowed Oscar Wilde, "is that it doesn't smell." But then Wilde was an Irishman living in England who died without hearing the band of the Royal Scots Guards squeeze out "Amazing Grace" on their pipes.

After the haggis is piped in, the clan chief or dinner chairman intones a benediction, written by Burns, hailing the haggis as the "Great Chieftain O' the puddin' race." Then if a broad sword isn't handy, he lifts the hem of his kilt, reaches into his right sock just above the flash or garter and pulls out his sgian-dubh, a wee dirk used for hacking up a haunch of venison or a rival clansman. The knife is thrust into the maw of the haggis, and the juices come gushing forth in a cloud of steam.

Haggis invariably is served with "neeps and tatties" — bashed turnips and mashed spuds; bannock — an oatmeal pancake with the flavor of old shirt cardboard, and cock-a-leekie soup.

Great 'do is made about everyone wearing the proper colored tartan kilt, so that a Keith isn't found in the drag reserved for a MacLeod, and habadashical heresy isn't committed by a non-Scot wearing the highland tu-tu. This is all very strange. Burns probably never wore the kilt. He was Lowlander, and, besides, the tartan was forbidden from 1746 to 1785, during most of his lifetime, as English troops cruelly crushed the highland revolt that failed to bring Bonnie Prince

Charlie to the throne. Somewhere on Burns niche someone will do the sword dance, which is the way Scots pare their toenails, and the highland fling, which terrified the good burgers of Carlisle when Highland regiments invaded across the border, and the Gay Gordons, which is not a group anathema to Anita Bryant but the dance of a regiment raised by a merry duchess who gave each recruit a guinea and a kiss.

Near breakfast or after, the night will end with a wee dooch an' doris, the last wee dram of golden elixirs with names like "Stag's Breath," "Duggan's Dew" and "Doctor's prescription."

Woodworker Does Brisk Business

By SANDRA BALMER
CHICAGO (AP) — Frog Tool Ltd., on the surface, is just another shop that sells woodworker's tools. But to Richard Watkins and the would-be carvers who haunt his store, it's a haven from the "throw away society" — a place to create something lasting and worthwhile.

Watkins, a physicist-turned-cabinet-maker, sells maybe 10,000 woodworking and carving tools, one of the widest selections in the country. He also offers instruction in cabinetmaking, woodcarving and woodworking.

Along with the instruction, Watkins preaches the gospel of quality, not quantity.

"Most Americans want quantity, not quality, if given a choice," he lamented in a recent interview. "They like big pieces of furniture — not well-crafted pieces. They like loud music, not fine music."

Yet business at Watkins' North Side shop has been brisk.

"There are some people that have become disgusted with the tripe they hear on television and radio. Some don't want to be treated like cattle any more," he said, explaining why people — from lawyers and corporate executives to cab drivers — are working in wood.

Watkins switched careers about 10 years ago. But he was going broke because consumers didn't want handmade cabinets and furniture.

Instead, he found a need for supplying the few woodworking enthusiasts and professionals with rare hand-made tools.

To find some of them, he toured Europe, buying tools from factories in small towns and villages where the skills of forging and grinding fine workmen's materials are passed from father to son.

Now he scours Europe once a year for the finest chisels, mallets and perfectly shaped woodcarving implements. He travels to Germany, Austria, France, England, Belgium and the Netherlands.

His love for the craft is paying off, he said, because people "want to find something that isn't used up and forgotten."

"I get all kinds of people here. One guy owns one of the largest auto dealerships in the city. One time he said to me, 'You know, I'm in business. I think only about dollars and cents.'

"But sometimes I just sit and think about what piece I'm working on and suddenly I'm back down in my shop. And I feel great!" Watkins recounted.

He acknowledged that probably the great number of beginners who buy tools or take classes are merely caught up in the passing fad — "getting back to basics."

And once that notion irritated Watkins.

"But it doesn't bother me any more. I say to myself, 'That is how all things start. People just don't throw a switch — they go into things by degrees. And maybe it's just one more step towards starting a serious business.'"
