Eight-Inch Fall Due Some Areas

Avalanche-Journal Staff

A MASSIVE winter storm surged across the Panhandle and South Plains Thursday afternoon and evening, shutting down traffic in the Hub City and dumping 5 inches of snow here by 10 p.m. Forecasters predicted that possibly 4 more more inches could fall before dawn today.

The National Weather Service issued a heavy snow warning and travelers advisories for the South Plains and southern half of the Panhandle, expecting as much as nine inches of the white stuff for the Lubbock area today

Some Highways Close By 9 p.m. Thursday U.S. 823 east of Crosbyton had been closed due to heavy snow. and the Department of Public Safety reported cars and trucks were unable to make the climb up the Caprock. Roads and highways throughout the Panhandle and South Plains were considered very hazardous, and all unnecessary travel was being discouraged Thursday night and early today.

Paducah Schools Shut Down At one area school - Paducah - announced there would be no classes due toe the bad weather, and, in Lubbock, the record for a low maximum, 36 degrees set in 1969, was shattered when the mercury failed to climb above the freezing mark.

Snow covered most of an area south of a line stretching from 35 miles northwest of Clovis to near Plainview to just north of Paducah.

The heavier activity was in an area from just west of Lubbock and north to the Littlefield and Abernathy vicinities. An NWS spokesman said the snow reached as far as 125 miles southwest of Lubbock.

The National Weather Service late Thursday was predicting an average 1 to 4 inch snowfall in the area, with 8 to 10 inches expected in the Panhandle, and about 5 inches in the central counties of the South Plains.

Snow Drifts High

At 8 p.m., one southwest Lubbock resident reported that he had used mail boxes to find his way through the blowing flakes. He added that the snow had already drifted up to six inches deep on some streets, causing extremely hazardous driving conditions.

Robert Woods, Lubbck's street maintenance supervisor, said the city's six salt-spreacding crews had been working 24 hours a day for about the last two weeks. "In Lubbock, we've got better than 1,000 miles of streets, and we cover about 186 miles of the main streets. We try to pick the main ones to get the people to and from work," he said.

Woods reported late Thursday the crews would probably dump at least 250,000 pounds of salt on city streets.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation busily worked through the night to keep Loop 289 and the main thoroughfares out of Lubbock

Airport Shuts Down

The snowy weather, which began as fog and freezing drizzle early Thursday, also successfully shutdown Lubbock International Airport for another day. Reportedly, only two flights had left the Hub City as scheduled early Thursday.

Across the region, weather watchers reported 4 inches of snow in Idalou, 3 inches in Cotton Center. 2.5 inches in Amherst and 2 inches in both Meadow and Petersburg early Thursday evening. Accumulations of 1 to 1.5 inches of See HEAVY SNOW Page 14

Bus Driver Shoots Alleged-Hijacker

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas bus driver shot and critically wounded a Nigerian national Thursday afternoon after the man allegedly comandeered the bus and three passengers by brandishing a weapon that turned out to be a plastic toy pistol, police said.

Police were mystified by the 24-yearold man's motive in the incident. The alleged hijacker, identified by police as Osogie Onoredioion, was reported in critical condition Thursday night with a bullet wound in the neck.

"We don't really know what to call it. It is bizarre," said police spokesman Ed Spencer. "The suspect never said what he wanted."

Postmaster General Quits Post

Gen. Benjamin F. Bailar resigned Thursday, three years to the day after he took over as head of the financially troubled Postal Service.

Bailar told a news conference that he was quitting to become executive vice president of United States Gypsum Co. in Chicago.

He said the effective date of his resignation will be determined by the Postal Service's board of governors. "I expect I'll be here a few weeks," he said.

Bailar said he will have a higher salary than the $66,000 the postmaster earns, but did not specify his new salary.

Praises Performance Bailar praised the performance of the Postal Service since the postal reorganization of 1971.

"I strongly believe that the process of postal reform that began just six short years ago is paying off... We have made solid progress and it is continuing," he

"Putting it as simply as I can, the Postal Service is doing a superior job, and the American people know it," Bailar told

In his resignation statement, Bailar repeated his opposition to House legislation that would strip the Postal Service of much of the independence Congress gave it in the postal reorganization of 1971. The bill would restore presidential power of direct appointment of the Postmaster General and abolish the Postal Service

Governors Appointed

Currently, the president appoints the governors, who then name the postmas. ter general.

His three-year tenure as postmaster general was marked by continuing controversy over the quality of mail service and the agency's financial problems Bailar made moves toward reducing expenditures by lowering service levels, such as proposing to eliminate Saturday. deliveries. However, such moves were consistently opposed by postal workers'unions and the House subcommittee chairmen whose panels oversee postal operations.

The Postal Service deficit in the last fiscal year was $688 million, the seventh straight annual loss for the agency. However, this deficit was smaller than the $1.2 billion and $989 million in 1976 and

Draws Criticism

In addition to the controversy about Saturday mail delivery, Bailar had drawn criticism from some members of Congress because of his efforts to close thousands of small post offices as an economy

During his three years in the job, the price of a first class stamp rose from 10 cents to 13 cents. Even then, the agency was required last year to ask Congress to increase the federal postal subsidy.

When he took over the postma job, Bailar said he wanted to "depoliticize" the postal system. Before 1971, postmasters had held Cabinet rank. The old Post Office Department was often criticized for patronage practices.
In July, 1975, Bailar was confronted with a major test of his administration when postal unions representing 600,000 See POSTAL Page 14

Amarillo Crash Kills Woman

AMARILLO (AP) - A private plane carrying six persons from Enid, Okla., to Hereford, Tex., crashed near a city park in a residential area Thursday, killing one woman aboard and injuring six others, including one on the ground.

The plane, a twin-engine Cessna 310, was attempting to land in inclement weather at Tradewind Airport, less than a mile from the crash site, authorities The dead woman was identified as Mattie Hebinck of Enid. Her husband, B.J. Hebinck, was among the injured. The pilot was identified as Leonard agency in Enid. Agency officials identified the others aboard as Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wiebe and Don Roberts.

One person in a house was injured but was treated and released. The house caught fire.

Sociologist Reports On National Child Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mothers are more likely than fathers to physically abuse their children while sons are more likely than daughters to be victims of abuse, a University of Rhode Island sociologist told Congress Friday.

Richard J. Gelles, basing his conclusions on a national survey of family violence, also said children between the ages of three to five and 15 to 17 run the greatest risk of physical abuse.

The parents of between 900,000 and 1.8 million children stabbed or tried to stab, or shot or tried to shoot their offspring, Gelles told a House science and technology subcommittee concluding three days of hearings on domestic violence.

His research showed that between three and four million children had been kicked, bitten or punched by their parents and as many as two million children were so Gelles also found that between 1.4 million and 2.3 million children have been beaten up by their parents, as many as 375,000 in 1975.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts showers for parts of Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. Snow also was in today's forecast for the southern Rocky Mountains. (AP Laserphoto

The survey may underestimate the level of physical abuse of children, Geller said, because researchers did not look at single-parent homes and based reports on information from parents who might not have admitted all abuses.

Gelles did not focus on those caught abusing their children but sampled 2,143 representative American families.

He said because of the lack of reliable statistics, it is impossible to say whether the incidence of child abuse is increasing. The subcommittee also heard from Larry Brown, director of child protection for the American Humane Association, which collected official statistics on child abuse and neglect from all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The AHA report found that women were at fault in 61 percent of the cases cited, supporting Gelles' finding that women are the most frequently reported child abusers.

More than half of the perpetrators were over 30 years old. But the AHA differed with Gelles over which ages are most frequently abused, finding that incidents were distributed almost evenly cross all age groups up to age 14, when incidence declined. Brown said instances of severe physical abuse, including bone fractures, brain damage, skull fractures, burns and scalds, accounted for less than 4 percent of the reported cases of neglect and abuse. He said lack of supervision, the most frequent form of abuse, accounted for about 35 percent of the total, while minor physical abuse, cuts, bruises and welts, accounted for

Sexual abuse was reported in 12 percent of the cases, he added. Friends, neighbors and relatives were the major sources of reports of violence. Most of the cases reported involved poor people, though there were substantiated cases of abuse and neglect at all income levels. Brown said the AHA data refutes the claim that parents who abuse children have themselves been the victims of abuse, because parents had been the victims of abuse

Earlier, a young Alabama soybean and cotton farmer brought the hundreds of protesters at the hearings to their feet to cheer when he said farmers want to be able to make an honest living.

The slower rate of expansion lessened fears of the Federal Reserve, the nation's central bank, which often is referred to as the Fed, would tighten credit to slow the growth, which could cause interest rates to rise and stock prices to fall.

"The increase was much lower than expected," said David Jones, an economist with the Wall Street firm of Aubrey G. Lanston Co.

"This suggests to me that the Fed can hold it stable over the next few weeks without further tightening of credit," Jones added

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported that the basic measure of money supply, called M1, rose $900 million in the week ending Feb. 8 to a seasnally adjusted average of $336.8 billion.

The broader money-supply measure, known as M2, increased $2.4 billion to an average of $814.1 billion.

Bell denied any illegal wiretapping. After the jury verdict in the wiretapping case, State District Judge Franklin Spears refused Bell requests to overturn the verdict or grant a new trial.

The appeal was originally filed in the 4th Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio, but was transferred to the 11th Court of Civil Appeals in Eastland because there was a vacancy on the three-judge panel in San Antonio and one of the judges owned stock in the telephone

C. L. Todd, vice president and general manager for the San Antonio divison of Southwestern Bell, said Thursday the company was pleased by the appeals court's reversal of the earlier verdict and

"We do not wiretap and we have never wiretapped," Todd said in a statement. "We are naturally pleased the appellate court apparently supports our position that no evidence whatsoever was presented in the trial to show that any wiretapping had taken place."

In San Antonio, Pat Maloney, lawyer for the Ashleys, said he would ask within 15 days for a rehearing of the case by the appeals court. If that fails, he said he will ask the Texas Supreme Court to overrule the appeals court ruling

Maloney called the appeals court decision "shocking" and said evidence presented to the jury in the case was "compelling and overwhelming that Bell was a wiretapper

Ashley, from his real estate office in Blanco, said he and his wife. Bonnie, were "utterly astounded" by the appeals court reversal of their trial court victory.

Judge Admits Error In Attending Davis Victory Celebration

AUSTIN (AP) — State District Judge George Dowlen of Amarillo admitted he made a mistake by appearing at a "victo-ry party" for millionaire Cullen Davis, who was acquitted of murder after a lengthy trial in Dowlen's court, a state judicial official said Thursday.

Executive director Maurice Pipkin of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct said the commission questioned Dowlen Jan. 14, after persons in the Tarrant County district attorney's office "asserted - alleged is too strong a word that certain things had transpired having to do with laxness of security.

Pipkin said the commission was also particularly interested in a newspaper story that Dowlen had attended the victory party, after Davis was acquitted in the shooting death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Pipkin said Dowlen was invited - "he wasn't ordered, he wasn't subpoenaed" - to appear before the commission, and he came at his own expense.

Pipkin said he and a member of Attorney General John Hill's staff had visited with prosecutors from the Tarrant County district attorney's office because "we felt we needed to get the state's viewpoint on this thing.

"The commission questioned Dowlen very closely on those matters asserted, and the judge answered frankly and openly and without evasiveness in areas that might be called 'gray areas'," Pipkin Pipkin said the commission "was satisfied in his brief appearance at the socalled victory party he was a victim of circumstance, he just happened to be in the building.'

He said, however, Dowlen stated that he "had made a mistake by even being with the group for one minute Another incident about which Dowlen was questioned, Pipkin said, occurred when a deputy was escorting Davis to a fifth-floor cell. Pipkin said as they were getting on the elevator someone called out to the deputy, and Davis got on alone and rode to the first floor. He said Davis punched the button and rode back to the

"I guess," said Pipkin, "that there is divided responsibility" in such a trial, with the sheriff's office being responsible for custody of the defendant.

Pipkin stressed that the commission did not consider its questioning of Dowlen an investigation.

"The commission as a body and as individuals were very complime appearance," Pipkin said.

At the commission's request, Pipkin said, he wrote Dowlen thanking him for his "openness and willingness to answer

As far as the commission is concerned, Pipkin said, the "matter is closed. Nothing is pending."

PRESIDENT CARTER'S proposed sale of sophisticated U.S. fighter planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia has injected a jarring note into the Mideast picture at a time when none was needed.

As has been the case in so many other of Mr. Carter's foreign policy endeavors, this one makes little sense. And if one wanted to be political about it, it flies in the face of one of his campaign promises, that being not involves sending Egypt 50 U.S.-made F-5E jet fighters. Sixty of America's most advanced jet fighters, the F-15, would be sold to Saudi Arabia. And Israel would get 75 of the F-15s and 15 F-16s.

On the surface, it would seem that Israel, which the U.S. has stated it would "guarantee" as a state, is getting the best of the deal. However, considering that Saudi Arabia supports Egypt and supposedly could transfer its sophisticated planes to its ally, a different picture emerges.

BUT, IT IS not the war build-up capacity that disturbs us so much as the long-range, overall philosophy which prompts it.

The arms package to Egypt will cost $400 million, that to Saudi Arabia $2.5 billion and this particular instance. It still makes sense.

A Great Tax Revolt

over taxes: Californians can actually do somequestions to the state's voters at every election.

In the May 6 primary, voters here will have a chance to pass a constitutional amendment reducing property taxes to 1 per cent of market value. That radical step, yielding $7 billion in instant tax relief, would pass overwhelmingly today.

tax goes up annually. If the homeowner's income is falling, as with many older taxpayers, hardship is intense. Consequently, an anti-property tax constitutional amendment, peddled for years without success by a 74-year-old right-wing Republican activist named Howard Jarvis, suddenly found a readymade constituency.

fors, Jarvis collected 1.5 million signatures (three times the number needed) with ease.

THERE IS NO DOUBT about massive public

In contrast, scarcely any respectable California politician supports the proposal. Even former Los Angeles police chief Edward Davis, seeking the Republican nomination for governor, has dismayed his conservative supporters by refusing to

"How can we justify sitting on $6 billion while ordinary working people have to pay $200 a month or more in property tax?"

"Sitting on $6 billion" refers to the state's average-not maximum-daily cash balance in 1977, which never dipped below $4 billion.

The surplus at year's end was estimated by fiscal experts for Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. at $3 billion (though other state officials privately call this a gross underestimate). But even accepting the $3 billion surplus, why did Brown and the legislature fail to turn part of

The answer lies in the sad reality that tax relief has far lower priority for officeholders than it de-

EVEN WITH THE critical need for passage of property tax relief to forestall Jarvis, Brown has not been able to unravel a legislative deadlock.

That may be because the true priority for tax relief remains low. The governor stressed to us the need for a "prudent reserve" and, in footballcoach fashion, tacks on his office bulletin board newspaper clippings of gloomy financial forecast So he limits relief to $1 billion-scarcely enough to stave off Jarvis.

Accordingly, the political establishment warns the Jarvis amendment would force massive new sales or income tax levies. But Jarvis himself rebutted that with fiendish efficiency over television the other day, pointing to fine print in his amendment that requires a two-thirds vote in the

It would bring supposedly indispensable services supposedly dewater to southern U.S. states and northern Meximanded by taxpayers.

Such a fascinating prospect is why that prominent Republican publicly refers to the Jarvis amendment as demagogic while privately admitting he may well vote for it.

JAY HARRIS:

IT IS ONE of the axioms of youth that there always will be a tomorrow.

The thought prevails even as many of us grow older. But, for some, including the young, it all ends much too soon and often tragically.

This was brought to mind this week with release of data on the leading causes of death among America's young. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, auto accidents take the heaviest toll among those in the age group one to 24.

In 1975, the last year for which figures are available, 20,279 persons between 1 and 24 died in vehicle mishaps.

Almost as startling, the next leading cause of death in that age group was homocide, which claimed 6,195. Cancer took the lives of 5,219, suicide 4,736, and birth defects accounted for 1,883

THE FIGURES are a commentary on the life style of not only the young, but much of the na-

Auto related accidents still rate as one of the major killers in the U.S., although disease and homocides still take the largest toll by far. Auto deaths rank sixth among all age groups. But, for the young, the fact that so many of them died without rhyme or reason should give pause for thought. Sometimes, there are no tomorrows...

According to Bobby Boaz, a spokesman at the National Highway Traffic Safety offices in Washington, there are three major reasons for the high incidence of auto deaths among the young:

1. Persons in this age group are not as susceptible to heart attacks, strokes and such, so comparative figures naturally are higher; 2. Many young people do not know their tolerance for liquor or realize if they drink three cans of beer in a twohour period, they are probably legally drunk and thus can't drive: 3. Young people are less experienced drivers and too often take chances ..

Boaz said that an estimated 46,700 persons perished in cars last year, and that half of all traffic fatalities are in some way alcohol-related. It's something to think about, for the young and the old, the quick and the dead.

DURING THE many years that Paul Crume wrote his Big D column for The Dallas News, we often would clip some of his thoughts. Following is one that says a lot

The human mind is not a time capsule all filled with man's personal events and time.

The human mind can make images. The human being can write things down and does, especially malicious gossip about his enemies. As a result, to the extent that he is able and willing to encompass it, a man can relive the whole rich experience of the human race from the smoky Stone Age caves to the Moon walk.

He can frequent the European courts which first heard Mozart. He can talk with Socrates. He can stand with Galileo before the Inquisition. He can go with Hilary to the top of the world, and sail with Drake into the harbor of Cadiz. He can watch the genius of Michelangelo at work, even though he cannot know it. He can make use of every cunning tool, poem, piece of art and bit of knowledge that the human race has left strewn along its trail into the here, now and hereafter.

More than half say they are afraid to walk alone as much as even a block from home at night. Three of four say they have bought guns or other such items and have added security devices at their homes.

The survey is the first by the Texas Crime Poll. which plans to take such studies twice a year. Future topics will include the death penalty, prostitution, marijuana and wife abuse.

According to Dr. Raymond Teske Jr., director, the latest poll "suggests that the public is very much aware of the crime problem." He can say

Statisticians for the State Insurance Board have recommended an 8.2 percent rate boost for the Northwest area of Texas, which includes Lubbock, Amarillo and Midland-

Chinatown War Renewal Seen In Shooting Of Youths

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Two Chinese-American youths were shot and an elderly bystander was grazed Wednesday in what some authorities said could be a renewal of the Wah Ching-Joe Boys Chinatown gang war in which five were killed last fall in an assault on a restaurant

The latest violence erupted in midafternoon at Portsmouth Square. Police said Leon Chin, 18, was approached by a group of youths and attacked with fists. One of the assailants was reported to have pulled a .45-caliber pistol and fired, wounding Chin in the right shoulder. His companion, Leonard Ma, 15, was hit in the left arm and hip.

Police said a ricocheting bullet grazed 68-year-old Lai Sin Liu on the left leg. All three were treated at Mission Emergency Hospital.

Police said the attackers were believed members of the Joe Boys, said to keep out of Chinatown - Wah Ching turf except at Chinese New Year and July 4.

Police blame feuding between the two gangs for th shooting spree last September in the Golden Dragon restaurant that left 11 wounded in addition to the five fatalities.

No Jurors Chosen In Hawkins Trial

By PAT PATRICK

Avalanche-Journal Staff After four days during which 27 prospective panelists have been cut; the Samuel Christopher Hawkins III capital murder trial still is without a juror.

Attorneys questioned 10 persons during a marathon session that lasted until almost 7 p.m. Thursday with no luck in choosing a juror for the death penalty

Judge Richard N. Countiss ordered the prosecution and defense teams to meet with him about 8:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss procedural matters in hopes of ending the jury picking problem.

Countiss said he does not intend to hold a Saturday session, although he possibly will have juror selection proceed Monday even though that day is a holiday in observance of George Washington's birth-

Hawkins, 34, is accused of stabbing a six-months-pregnant Borger woman to death during an attempted aggravated

Abbe Rodgers Hamilton, 19, was found in the bedroom of her Panhandle home May 3, 1977, bound hand and foot and stabbed about 10 times

The Amarillo man's trial was moved to Lubbck on a chane of venue from Hutchinson County. In a capital case, each side is allotted 15 strikes of a prospective juror for no stated reason. The defense used two of its free strikes Thursday. Thus far, the defense has used a total of six of the peremptory challenges, while the state has used only one. About half of the 10 veniremen culled Thursday were excused by 84th District Court Judge Countiss because they expressed reluctance to impose the death penalty in any case. The final man examined during the night was excused because he has a son in the state penitentiary and said he would thus feel bias against prosecutors.

GUIDED TO A HALT — Francis Gilmore's 40-ton rig was guided to a perfect halt on the Kansas Turnpike Wednesday after Gilmore lost his sight and was directed by an anonymous trucker using a CB radio. The truck remained on the turnpike Thursday while Gilmore was under treatment of an El Dorado opthamologist. Gilmore is from Grand Rapids, Mich. (AP Laserphoto)

Blinded Trucker Hails CB Pal For Help In Halting Big Rig

By PAUL STEVENS

EL DORADO, Kan. (AP) — A Michigan truck driver who went blind while driving a 40-ton rig on the Kansas Turnpike secluded himself in a motel room Thursday, hoping to hear from the anonymous trucker who guided him to safety by citizens band radio.

Francis Gilmore left orders, motel manager Elwood Moore said, to allow no phone calls to his room from anyone but his wife, his company and the trucker who saved his life and disappeared.

A man identifying himself as that trucker called Gilmore at the motel Thursday morning, said Moore's wife Maxine, but Gilmore was at a doctor's office and the man promised to call back. He left a name, which Mrs. Moore declined to reveal, but he did not leave a number.

Meanwhile, an ophthalmologist said he could find nothing wrong with Gilmore's eyes, and said his sight may return soon.

The physician, Dr. K.B. Dellett, added that professional reasons forbado him from commenting on the apparent cause of Gilmore's blindness.

But Kansas Highway Patrol Trooper Claude Vail, who drove Gilmore to see

Dellett, said the doctor told him that Gilmore suffered from hysterical blindness, a rare disorder caused by emotional stress. Dellett could not be reached Thursday to confirm that diagnosis.

Gilmore, 43, of Grand Rapids, said in an interview Wednesday night that he was hauling a truckload of automobiles from Lansing to Wichita when he began losing his sight on a stretch of the turnpike 13 miles east of El Dorado and 35 miles outside Wichita.

Gilmore told Vail that his vision "went off and came on" several times before it was lost completely, the trooper said.

"I was just panicky that I'd hit and kill someone," said Gilmore, a trucker with 15 years of experience. He said he saw cars heading toward him on the four-lane turnpike, which has lanes separated only by a grassy median.

Gilmore radioed on his CB that he was losing his vision and got an immediate response.

"I knew there was a box (tractor-trailer) behind me," he recalled. "I started hitting my brakes. I was all over the road. He came on the radio and kept saying, Take it easy, take it easy.""

As the two trucks sped along, the helpful driver kept feeding instructions to Gilmore.

"I owe my life to that man, he was really calm, really beautiful," Gilmore said.

The anonymous trucker told him,
"Get calm, just get calm. Go to your right, go to your right. You're getting up on the edge, you're on the shoulder," Gilmore recalled.

Then the comforting words, "You're okay. Just shut it down."

Gilmore asked the trucker to go ahead for help. And that was the last he heard from him

Vail was parked in his patrol car on the turnpike when two motorists in cars pulled up behind him and told of hearing Gilmore's call for help on their CB radi-

FBI Nabs Kidnap Suspects

HOUSTON (AP) — The FBI reported the arrest of the last of five suspects Thursday in an alleged plot to kidnap the son of wealthy Houston developer Kenneth Schnitzer.

Robert R. Frank, special agent in charge of the FBI here, announced the arrest of Armando Luna, 51, of Houston, aboard the commercial vessel Valley Forge after it docked at Sewaren, N.J.

Frank said Luna was charged with conspiracy to kidnap Douglas Schnitzer, 21, of Tucson, Ariz., from Schnitzer's apartment Tuesday.

Arrested earlier and charged with the same offense were Earl J. Gorel, 53, Raymond Puscedu, 51, Lizandro Tijerina-Gutierrez, 31 and Richard Rodriguez, 33.

Gorel, of Houston, was arrested Tuesday at his home and is being held on $50,000 bond.

Puscedu, Tijerina-Gutierrez and Rodriguez were arrested outside a Tucson apartment complex where young Schnitz-er, a University of Arizona student, resided, agents said.

Puscedu, of suburban Pasadena, was held on $100,000 bond while Tijerina-Gutierrez and Rodriguez, both of Houston, were released on their promise to appear in court.

The elder Schnitzer is the managing partner and one of the developers of Greenway Plaza Ldt., a $400 million office-hotel complex; major stockholder of the National Basketball Association Houston Rockets and a major stockholder of the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros.

FBI agents here and in Arizona said it was the second attempt to kidnap the younger Schnitzer. They said an attempt last year failed when alleged kidnappers could not find the right apartment.

Russian Flu Cases Found In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Two confirmed cases of Russian flu in Houston were reported Thursday by Baylor College of Medicine.

They were believed to be the first confirmed cases in Texas outside military installations. Two cases had been confirmed earlier at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio.

The two Houston cases are both teenagers, a girl 15 and a boy 16.

Dr. Robert Couch, director of Baylor's

Influenza Research Center said one of the teenagers has recovered and the second is convalescing at home.

Both were said to reside in northeast

Houston but inside Loop 610.

Couch said it is reasonable to expect that Russian flu will spread rapidly in the Houston area but that there is no cause for alarm or panic. He said the disease is highly contagious but not especially severe and that 90 percent of those affected are under age 20.

He expects the flu in Houston to follow its national pattern of clustering in high schools and colleges, where young people abound.

Couch advised young people to avoid crowds as much as possible to prevent contracting the ailment.

Couch said Russian flu already has been confirmed in 10 states and the District of Columbia.

The National Center for Disease Control has reported the virus has been isolated in laboratories in Texas, Wyoming, Colorado, California, Illinois, Tennessee, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, and

The virus first was identified in the Soviet Union and Hong Kong in October.

As other power companies were announcing service cutbacks until coal stockpiles are replenished, TVA, with only a 25-day coal supply on hand at its 10 key plants, was outlining a plan which could put as many as 100,000 people out of work by the first of the month.

In the meantime, a second "Operation Chimney Sweep" convoy under heavy guard rolled across southwestern Indiana

Hunting More Costly In England

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Peer recently returned from a three-week stay in England. The Lubbockites were visiting Mrs. Peer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kelley of Oklahoma, temporary residents of London.

By TED J. SIMON A-J Outdoor Editor.

The English countryside had been quiet for several minutes, with no indication of any game birds in the area. In an open field, 10 hunters patiently looked across at an area dense with trees and brush.

Finally the silence was broken; people were heard shouting on the far side of the wooded area. The shouts were accompanied by the sound of sticks being rapped against tree trunks. Adding to the clamor was the sound of barking dogs.

Out of the small forest flew a ring-necked pheasant. The cock's long tail feathers were easily seen against the gray sky. Lubbock resident J. D. Peer took careful aim and squeezed the trigger of his shotgun. A puff of feathers surrounded the bird and it dropped to the ground. As the noise from the woods continued, more and more pheasant flew across the open field. Two hens came within range of Peer, but he held his fire. A nearby hunter dropped one of the hens, and then quickly bagged the second female bird. The Texan had just been introduced to an English style hunting club where the general rule is: If it's a game bird -

'My father-in-law, James Kelley, is a member of a hunting club in England," explained Peer, "and he invited me to take part in some bird shoots as his guest. Over there, just about all of the land is privately owned, and that's the reason for hunting clubs. Membership in such a club is something like a private country club membership here in America.

This particular club has access to 6,000 acres of land, but the acres are divided among several farms. The person in charge of the club and the hunt is the gamekeeper. He also selects what field will be hunted for a particular time. The game keeper and his assistants constantly check the condition of the fields and also keep an eye out for predators such as foxes.

Peer noted, "Hunters don't want foxes in their fields, because foxes enjoy the taste of pheasant as much as humans do. Consequently, every fox seen is

Game birds, including ring-necked pheasant, are raised by the hunting club. The birds are released in an area where feed is always provided to encourage the birds to remain in the hunt area. When birds are raised for a hunting club, there are no bag limits

As the birds flew over the field where the Lubbock resident stood, bird after bird was dropped by the hunters. "The first time I hunted over there, 12 of us killed a total of 57 pheasant, à couple of woodcock and a wood pigeon," noted Peer. "To me that was a spectacular hunt, but to the club members it wasn't anything at all. Sometimes a dozen hunters will bag as many as 200 birds a day.'

Although there are no bag limits, each hunter is allowed to keep only a brace of birds - a cock and a hen. All other birds go to the gamekeeper, who sells the extra birds to a market. The revenue goes to the club's treasury

"When an English hunter takes his birds home, noted the Lubbockite, "he will usually hang the birds up for a day or longer with feathers, legs and heads still attached. It's their way of aging the meat for a taste they prefer." Peer added, "My father-in-law, being an American, doesn't care to do that. We dressed our birds as soon as we got to his home.

Appearing much the same as a ring-necked pheasant here, the bird's English cousin is usually threefourths to a full pound heavier. The birds tend to be fatter, with a layer of fat a quarter-inch thick on their back after being dressed.

The exciting birds are as fast and wild as they are in America, and are just as difficult to shoot. The Lubbock resident believes the high number of birds taken is because of the beaters and the longer amount of time a hunter is able to spend in the field.

"Hunting pheasant over there isn't a snap," observed Peer. "If you're a good shot here in Texas, you'll do well over there. But, if you only down every other bird here, you'll do the same over there." The Lubbockite recalled, "One guy in our hunt downed seven straight birds. But, when you consider that some of the English hunters shoot three boxes of shells a day, several days a week, for several months, it's no wonder they're such good shots in the field."

He continued, "I assume their shotguns are full choke; they were consistantly dropping birds that were as much as 60 yards away. But, they don't care for magnum loads. They believe Americans are over powered. The English claim they take just as many birds with a standard load of six size shot.

Beaters for a hunt usually are high school students or retired hunters that still enjoy the out of doors and working their dogs.

Peer exclaimed, "The dogs are fantastic! When a hunter or beater gives an oral command to his dog, or motions to the right or left, the dog responds immediately and correctly. They sure don't lose many downed birds. Of course, there again, the dogs over there get to work a season that may be several months long for one species of bird.'

For safety purposes, the hunters and beaters make it a practice to know where the other is at all times. If a beater shouts "low bird" then the hunter knows that someone may be in the hunter's line of fire. Surprisingly, hunters and beaters do not wear bright red or orange for safety purposes. Two weeks before Peer arrived in England, a beater was fatally shot because he wasn't seen in some heavy brush by a hunt-

"Accidents like that," said Peer, "are why the clubs insist that a member have a quarter of a million dollars in insurance." He added, "Hunting in England can be expensive. I understand the membership in one particular club can cost as much as $2,500 a year, depending on how often you plan to participate in the

A popular item for English hunters is a shooting stick. The length of a walking cane, the wooden stick is pointed at one end and has a folding seat on the opposite end. The device is stuck in the ground as a portable seat in the field. The stick enables a hunter to lean back and keep his legs straight while taking the weight off his feet. The handy item remains upright in the ground when the hunter stands to shoot. J. D. Peer smiled, "My father-in-law gave me a shooting stick that I'm sure will be handy during our dove season." The Lubbock hunter also indicated he will be grateful from now on for how convenient and inexpensive it can be to hunt in this part of the woods to push pheasants toward hunters at the opposite end.

HERE WE GO - A line of beaters prepares to enter some The dogs used include retrievers and spaniels, they flush the birds but do not point.

Nixon Blackmailed, Haldeman's Book Suggests

NEW YORK (AP) - Richard Nixon's top White House assistant says the former president was the driving force behind the Watergate burglary and that, afterward, Nixon may have been blackmailed by Charles W. Colson.

'I believe the initiative for the Watergate break-in came from Nixon through Colson," H.R. Haldeman says in a new book written from prison. "Nixon lit the match, handed it to Colson, who in turn touched off the fuse.

phones of Lawrence F. O'Brien, who was chairman of the Democratic party, and an assistant. The reason, Haldeman writes, probably was O'Brien's connection to industrialist Howard Hughes whom, Haldeman said, Nixon hated.

Colson has denied any involvement in the break-in, although he has acknowledged that Nixon had sought information on O'Brien.

Haldeman also says that in 1969 the Soviet Union moved a massive arsenal of nuclear missiles near its border with China and invited the United States to join a pre-emptive nuclear strike against the Chinese.

Nixon turned the Soviets down, but was then informed, to his horror, that the Soviets intended to go ahead on their own," says Haldeman, who was Nixon's chief of staff until Watergate forced his resignation on April 30, 1973.

Five excerpts from the book, "The Ends of Power," are to be published beginning Monday by newspapers around the world that bought serialization rights. Newsweek magazine plans to publish 30,-000 words from the book in the next two circumstances in a fictional book, "The Company." The third Nixon intimate, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, consistently has refused to level any charges against Nixon.

Haldeman says also he believes that Nixon "simply began to erase all of the Watergate material from the tapes when he started to worry that they might be exposed." But he says the former President was so lacking in mechanical aptitude -"clumsy would be too elegant a word" that Nixon figured it would take him 10 years to do the job.

Haldeman expresses confusion about whether Nixon caused the famous 18 1/2minute gap in the tape of a conversation he and Nixon had three days after the Nixon referred to the gap as "Rose's 18 minutes" in a telephone conversation after Haldeman resigned, the former aide writes, conceding that "it could be he's shifting the blame for a Watergate mistake again.

Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's long-time secretary, testified she accidentally might have erased four or five minutes but no more - of the crucial tape while transcribing it. Experts concluded that the gap was the result of at least five deliberate erasures, but no investigators ever were able to fix positive blame.

lieved disclosures about Howard Hughes's $205,000 loan to his brother, Don Nixon, cost him the presidential election in 1960 and the California governorship in 1962.

According to Haldeman, Nixon be on sometimes seemed to lose touch with reality," he writes. Haldeman says that Nixon had been trying for years to get proof of O'Brien's relationship with Hughes. Nixon believed that O'Brien was a lobbyist for Hughes for as much as $180,000 a year while holding the Democratic party post. Proof of that would be a hot political issue.

In the spring of 1971, a memo surfaced indicating that the Justice Department had settled a major antitrust case against ITT for a $400,000 political donation.

When O'Brien capitalized on the scandal, he "became a symbol of hate - political, not personal - for both Colson and Nixon," Haldeman writes. "Nixon decided, as always, to counterattack."

He continues: "I believe it is almost certain that Nixon asked Colson to help him 'nail' O'Brien. Colson naturally turned to (E. Howard) Hunt. And Hunt tried to do it by tapping O'Brien's telephone at the Watergate. Hunt, also a long-time CIA employe, pleaded guilty to the Watergate burglary and served 32 months in prison. He recruited four of the other burglars from Miami's Cuban community and co-captained the squad with G. Gordon Liddy. Haldeman said he was made aware of the possibility that Colson was blackmailing Nixon by Kenneth Clawson, a member of the White House publicity staff. "Chuck Colson is blackmailing Nixon. He's got Nixon on the floor," Haldeman says he was told by Clawson Haldeman says he probed further and "Nixon didn't know that Colson was taping all of his telephone calls with Nix-on before and after Watergate happened."

He's got on tape just what Nixon said all through the whole Watergate mess."

After the election, he writes, one of Nixon's first orders was that Colson had to go; the stated reason that he didn't want anyone in the White House who might be hit in the future with Water.

But he adds that Nixon "was genero in his sweeteners to soften Colson's reluctance to leave" - strong assurances he would be a senior adviser from the outside and a special assignment overseas. Colson chose Moscow, Haldeman

"I don't know if Colson was ever, or is now, blackmailing Nixon," Haldeman writes. "But I noticed something very strange about the Nixon-Frost television interviews. In all those hours discussing the case, Colson's name was mysteriously

Order Could Save Texas Corn Growers Millions

DIMMITT (Special) - Texas corn at least 25 cents per bushel in many growers could be saved millions of dollars each year by an administrative order to provide the cost of transportation as part of the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) loan, the president of the Texas Corn Growers Association (TCGA) as-

"Provisions for a terminal loan on corn are not currently included in the CCC regulations," said Carl King of Dimmitt. "Failure to correct this problem already has cost Texas corn farmers

The Castro County corn grower early this week called on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to rectify the situation. He said last year's record crops have resulted in "disastrously low prices" which are far below the cost of production.

A lack of adequate storage and the apparent gap in marketing have made it even more difficult for Texas corn farm-

"It is imperative that this adminstrative order be corrected so that Texas corn growers will not suffer the same kind of economic losses due to an inadequacy in the marketing program again,"

Until 1977, farmers had only a few occasions to use terminal storage for loan purposes, King noted, despite the fact that there has never been a provision for corn as there has been for wheat, miloand other grains.

below the $2 per bushel CCC loan, it is obvious that the program will be used more extensively by Texas corn producers, he said.

"Since many Texas corn producers are in areas where there is limited storage, a large portion of the corn has to be handled in terminal elevators many miles from where the grain was produced," King pointed out.

"Previously, however, as long as the corn was marketed through normal channels, there was no problem.

would grant a transit rate on the feed grain which enabled farmers to ship to a distant point, store the corn for some time period, reload it for shipment to its final destination and be charged only the lower through-rate from the point of ori-

"Currently," said King, "the farmer must pay the freight to the terminal and it cannot be recovered if the CCC takes title to the grain.

Reason is that the paid-in freight to the terminal has to be registered for possibility that the CCC might take title to the commodity, King claims it should accept the paid-in freight and register the transit in its name.

King said the through-rate from origin could be used at no cost to anyone.

The CCC would have to add the paidin freight to the loan farmers receive, said the grain official. However, producers would be required to pay the interest on the freight, and the CCC would recover the total amount when the grain is shipped

Entomologists Review Problems Of Farmers

To the farmer, pest management programs mean two things: dollars and decisions, members of the Southwestern Branch of the Entomological Society of America were told during their annual meeting which closed here Thursday.

The recommendations may come from a private consultant, county extension agent, extension entomology specialist, or industry entomologist and may involve lengthy and complex field and scientific research, but the farmer is concerned with only the two factors, the head of a private consulting firm in Nebraska stressed

'The dollar-that's the bottom line. said Earle S. Raun of Lincoln. Neb., the consultant. The producer wants to know what the recommendations will cost and thow much they will save him. Raun not-doesn't want to be bothered with the details until a decision has been made and it's time to carry out some particular pest management practice, Raun said.

Raun was one of the principal speakers at general sessions of the three-day meeting at the Hilton Inn. Some 250 entomologists from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Mexico attended.

The entomologists presented results of scientific research conducted in the areas of crop protection, forestry, ecologyy and behavior, medicine and veterinary medicine, physiology, biochemistry, toxicology, and urban and industrial entomology.

The group also heard remarks from the society's national president, Dr. Edward H. Glass of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, N.Y., and their branch president, J. Pat Boyd of Zoecon Industries, Dallas.

Raun echoed a theme heard throughout the conference, that methods used to control pests are shifting from an emphasis on chemicals to biological and other controls, and that entomologists are paying more heed to "economic threshold." or the point at which controls should be justified.

"I think we need more control methods that don't involve chemical pesticides." he said. "We need better economic thresholds." But he cautioned, "Pesticides will be with us for a long time.

Another general session speaker, D Scott Campbell, traced the organization and efforts of agencies of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to prevent, control and eradicate the spread of pests. Campbell, of San Antonio, is area director of the Plant Pest Organization branch of USDA's Animal and Plant Health

Noting that his agency also has become 'more oriented to controls other than in farming is increasing. he cited control of the citrus black fly in Texas as an example. When the pest was found in 1971 in the Brownsville area, an all-out eradication program with chemicals was launched. About 1974. Campbell said, his agency introduced a parasite which is a natural en-cal controls.

He said the parasites have almost controlled the pest and pursue it when the pest moves from one area to another.

"But we must maintain the capability of going back in for hot spot chemical treatments" when necessary to control or eradicate a dangerous pest." he said.

Campbell noted that the Plant Pest Quaratine branch is involved in cooperative efforts with state and federal governments in projects such as preventing the spread from West Texas of the High Plains boll weevil and control of the range caterpillar in New Mexico and Tex-

Farming Found Too Expensive

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (Special) - So you want to own your own business, be your own boss, make your own business decisions and accept the profit?

You're not alone. These desires are inherent in American's free enterprise sys-

Young people want to establish their own business, but they are turned off by the amount of money they need to ge

New Mexico State University's extension farm management specialist Gene Ott, says this is particularly true for those who want to farm. He also says the number of young people interested

About all when they are deciding on their career is an automobile, a couple thousand dollars in savings with a chance of borrowing a couple more from their parents, a good education, good health and the desire to work on their own. These are great personal assets but they don't have much borrowing power.

But it is important to remember that not many successful people started at the top, points out the specialist. Instead they worked their way up by using their skills, talents, ambition, business judgment, managerial ability and limited capital to attain their life's ambi-

There are ways for young people to get started in business - ves. even in farm ing. One way to get a foothold in a farm business is through a labor-share lease.

This arrangement is like a partnership. but a formal partnership agreement is not necessary.

In a labor-share lease, one person is usually short on capital but has a desire to farm and is willing to work hard.

He teams up with a farmer with ade quate capital and a good size busines who needs a dependable assistant to help with the labor and share in managerial responsibilities

Each party contributes what he has in exchange for a proportionate share of the earinigs.

Farm earnings to be shared are what remains of gross income after all operating expenses have been paid, explains Ott. Many such arrangement provide for a guaranteed amount for living expenses plus a liberal bonus for young assiatants who prove their ability

With young, energetic and dependable help, the farmer-owner often enlarges the business, thus providing more income for both families

Usually such arrangements are intended to be only the first step on the ladder to having your own business.

Often the junior member of the arrangement in a few years is able to accumulate a few head of livestock, or some machinery and a little cash toward the next step, which may be leasing a farm.

Occasionally a full fledged partnership develops out of a labor-share lease that eventually leads to full ownership.

Young people who sincerely want to farm can find a way even if they don't have much capital, if they are willing to start where they are and work and sacrifice to reach the goal of having their own farmong business, Ott says.

Farm Machinery Sales Declining year included a decline of 8.5 percent to WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of farm machinery, including tractors and grain combines, declined much more last year than industry and government experts had counted on, and the outlook seems o be fuzzy for 1978.

One major uncertainty, according to Agriculture Department experts, is the extent to which farmers cooperating in the American Agriculture movement's strike for higher prices will refuse to buy

The underlying factor behind much of the equipment sales decline is the severe slump in the farm economy, primarily because of precipitous drop in cash grain prices from their record levels of 1973-

A partial factor, however, is that when prices were high at that time many farmers bought new tractors, combines and other equipment and are able to get along now with what they have. Part of the strategy of American Agriculture, the Colorado-based strike movement, is to get farmers to quit buying all but essential items in an attempt to force government action on raising commodity price guarantees Meanwhile, farm implement industry figures for 1977 and the outlook for 1978 show that sales not only dropped sharply last year but for the most part are still

An annual survey by the Chicago-based Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute showed that sales of tractors and combines - which represent the largest investments in machinery for most farmers — dropped 6.4 percent and 12.4 percent in 1977, respectively, from 1976. Sales of all types of tractors last year totaled an estimated 143,450 units, compared with 153,284 in 1976. Initially, the industry forecast that 1977 tractor sales would dip only slightly, to about 151,000

Looking at 1978 prospects, the institute said sales may be around 133,500 tractors, another decline of 6.9 percent.

Two-wheel drive tractors of 100 horsepower or more dropped less than 1 percent last year to 60,800 units, but in 1978 the decline may be 4.9 percent to 57,800 Sales of the biggest, most expensive tractors - the four-wheel-drive models - plummeted 25.4 percent last year to an estimated 7,850 units, from 10,519 in 1976, the institute said. A slight drop of one-tenth of 1 percent to 7,800 units of the big tractors is forecast in 1978. Sales of self-propelled grain combines dropped 12.4 percent last year to 28,500 units from 32,581 in 1976.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE PRODUCER STEERING COMMITTEE of the National Cotton Council this week called for immediate initiation of a paid voluntary diversion program for the 1978 cotton crop.

Chairman Herman Propst of Anson told the House Agriculture Committee in Washington that the grower group's position is being taken independently of the council as permitted under the industrywide organization's by-laws.

The producers are asking that acreage eligible for payment under the diversion program be limited to 20 per cent of a farm's 1977 planted cotton acreage.

THE RECOMMENDATION IS BEING MADE, Propst said, because producers feel it would - Encourage a needed reduction in plantings this spring and have immediate impact on the market. Put money in farmers' pockets now, when it is sorely needed, to buy seed, fuel, and fertilizer to get the 1978 crop started. Regarding the 20 percent limit on acreage for payment, the producer group believes this reduction would be adequate and would still provide enough production for domestic mills and export markets. Costs of production vary from region to region, Propst pointed out, and warned that too large a reduction in any one community could seriously disrupt that community's economy. 'We believe gins, warehouses, cottonseed oil mills and agribusiness suppliers would be seriously impacted if plantings are reduced beyond that percentage,

EXCESSIVELY LARGE REDUCTIONS on individual farms also could cause landlord-tenant problems similar to those experienced under previous farm

We would not like to see wholesale changes in rental agreements, or tenant farmers who have expensive farm equipment but no land to farm," he said. Propst also told the House committee that a per-farm limit of 20 percent on a voluntary basis should materially reduce the cost of such a program to taxpay-

The producer chairman emphasized that his group fully endorses testimony presented by the Cotton Council calling for expanded export credit and other measures available under the 1977 act to bolster farm income.

Five Years Projected To Rebuild Elevators

tive years to rebuild the $100 million Continental Grain Co elevator demolished in an explosion that killed 36 per-

But when it is rebuilt, Val Cantu and many of his 40 coworkers who survived the blast say they will not return.

Cantu said he and many other Continental survivors believe sabotage caused the giant structure to blow apart, raining tons of concrete and steel on an adjacent two-story office building. Later that day, a grain handling plant in Mississippi blew up killing two and a week later 18 died in an elevator explosion in Galveston. Since then at least six other persons have died in several grain industry explosions across the nation

After the Galveston explosion, Louisiana Agriculture Secretary Gil Dozie mentioned the possibility of conspiracy and companies tripled security at other Mississippi River elevator

The FBI denied its agents were investigating the possibility of sabotage. However. Jefferson Parish sheriff's deputies and an FBI agent confirmed to UPI they were investigating a series of telephone calls to the sheriff's department threatening the elevator with a bomb.

'We are conducting an inveregarding some bomb threats that have been made," FBI spokesman Al Simms said after he was told UPI had learned of the investigation "We are aware some threats were made to them."

Despite the FBI investigation and the fears of grain elevator employees, federal officials have said they doubt sabotage caused the chain of explosions.

'I don't want to rule it out 100 percent " said Leland Bartelt, administrafor of the Federal Grain Inspection Service. "But I'd be greatly surprised if it turned out to be sabotage.

David Borchert, manager of the devastated Continental plant, was unavailable for comment but several of his workers have said they were informed each time a bomb threat was made at the Mississippi River plant. Several of those workers said they walked off the job after each call fearing the threat would be made good. "When they had a bomb scare people wanted to knock off (work)," said Cantu. "(Then) the company decided they were going to put their foot down on people taking off when bomb threats

Not even a week before the explosion they had a meeting and said they were going to take disciplinary action. The following week - boom. I think the bomber made his threat good, I really believe that.'

Cantu said in his five years at the plant there was relatively little fear of grain elevator explosions.

"This is the thing I can't understand We used to work down there with flames and torches, we used to work down there with welding equipment, but we had water on hand in case a fire broke out.

We used to do these things and nothing ever happened. Now elevators are blowing up all over the place. Something is going on.

The Continental plant employed a security guard to patrol the grounds, but Cantu said a bomber intent on destroying the plant could toss a timed explosive on a conveyer belt running from the Mississippi River to the storage silos.

'He wouldn't have to come on the grounds at all, just throw a bomb into the belt going into the silos and there ain't no way to get to it if you wanted

Cantu lives with his wife and 6-yearold daughter at his mother's home. He has been supporting the family with unemployment checks since the explosion and plans to begin training as a sales

Forty other Continental empoyees those with 10 years or more seniority were kept on the company payroll to help to clean up the site and guard what was left of the structure. But most of them worked up to 70 hours with time-and-a-half for overtime and they were forced to find part-time jobs to supplement the partial loss of Company officials kept track of job opportunities at other plants in the area and informed laid-off workers of the openings, but Cantu said he won't return to a grain elevator.

"I see what it looks like now and think about all the times I've worked up at the top of those silos," he said. "I can imagine all those times I worked up there and any of the times it could have

Davan's hint that Israel might stiffen cluding airfields at Etzion near the key its negotiating stance came during a fastpaced day's visit in which the foreign minister reaffirmed Israel's dependence on the United States to be "more than a mediator" in negotiations with the Ar-

"With all the difficulties that we are facing and sometimes agonies and conceffs, we in Israel appreciate the basic act that we are negotiating for peace. And this is of the utmost importance." he said in a news conference.

Even before Carter announced the Saudi arms sale. Egypt had demanded that Israel give up its installations in Sinai inseaport of Eilat, and in the Rafiah area near the Mediterranean. Both are close to the old Israeli border that existed prior to the 1967 Six-Day War.

While seeming to stiffen Israel's position on the bases, Dayan also reaffirmed Israel's intention to retain a score of settlements in the Sinai as part of a "security belt." He said the settlers would be protected by Israeli policemen, not soldiers, in a demilitarized zone under United Nations supervision.

Dayan said he had no doubt that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is committed to peace. "But can anyone assure us that we won't be obliged someday to fight American aircraft attacking Israel from Saudi Arabia," he said.

Sale Defended

Carter administration officials, in defending the projected sale, insist that turning over F-15s to Saudi Arabia beginning in 1981 would not threaten Israel's security or tip the military balance in the Dayan said he did not consider the arms deal a form of "direct pressure" by Carter on Israel. But he added an effort is under way to try to reverse the president's decision.

That effort, he said, will continue when Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Prime Minister Menachem Begin visit Washington in March. The White House announced, meanwhile, that Begin will be in Washington March 14 for two or three days. Carter's talk with Dayan was characterized as "friendly and candid." U.S. "Mediator"

After talks with Vance, Dayan said 'The United States should carry on its role of mediator and more than mediator. There is no substitute. Without the United States we cannot achieve an agreement with the Arabs.

Israel has expressed dismay over U.S. opposition to Israeli settlements in captured Arab territories and to Washington's proposal to sell jet fighters to Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

The State Department launched its defense of the jet fighter sales in a 10-page memorandum delivered to Capitol Hill. Sale of the jets to Saudi Arabia is consistent with peace objectives and the decision was undertaken with "scrupulous care" for Israel's security, the memorandum said.

Veto Introduced

A resolution to veto Carter's entire proposed sale of jet fighters to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia was introduced in the House Thursday by Clarence D. Long: D.

Cairo airport officials said 114 passenger's were aboard the two planes, headed in opposite directions between London and the Kenya capital, Nairobi. They said 47 passengers left for London on other flights and the rest were at the airport or in Cairo hotels awaiting arrange-saying they felt it would not be effective in restoring coal production. Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen said a Taft-Hartley injunction probably would be seriously considered if there is no strike settlement within the next week or 10 days.

Governors from Illinois, Indiana. Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky, West Vir ginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee. Maryland and Wisconsin were invited to the White House talks. Sources had said earlier that Marshall, who is taking personal control of the talks, intended to keep negotiators at work in intensive sessions

Negotiators had no comment before beginning face-to-face discussions.

Union president Arnold Miller said Wednesday night he thinks a contract agreement is possible by the end of the week if the other side will "get down to "I'll know how serious they are a few

Resumption of the talks came as the effects of the lengthy strike were making themselves felt on the country.

In Indiana, National Guardsmen escorted coal trucks over a road strewn with nails. In Ohio, state troopers kept an eye on coal shipments in their state. Cutbacks Inevitable

The Association of American Railroads said rail carloadings of coal for the five weeks ended Feb. 4 fell by 55 percent from the comparable period in 1977. It said major railroads have begun providing additional service to eastern and midwestern points they do not normally serve in order to transport surplus coal from the West to hard-pressed utilities and industries.

Marshall said Wednesday night negotiators reached "general consensus" that a tentative contract settlement rejected by the union's bargaining council would serve as a starting point for the resumed talks. He said bargainers agreed not to reopen the entire settlement package.

The rebellious bargaining council rejected the tentative settlement last Sunday. The agreement, voted down 30-6, would have levied fines and imposed other discipline on miners participating in wildcat strikes. It also would have meant inches fell during the season.

Beleaguered FBI Cites Two For Spying

By PETER DALE SCOTT Pacific News Service

Last Week's arrest of two alleged spies working on behalf of the Vietnamese government comes at an opportune moment for the beleaguered FBI, which claims to have had the accused under serveillance for two years.

Following on the heels of the first prosecution and conviction of FBI officials in the agency's history, this latest spy case may well lead to a refurbishing of the Bureau's image and even an extension of its threatened powers. If so, it would not be the first time that revelations of supposed subversive plots coincided with a major reassessment of FBI authority

According to recent critical studies of the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover, perhaps sincerely, had exploited the political value of public fear - fomented by spectacular (if unsuccessful) spy trials in the years after World War II.

Undoubtedly Soviet spy rings were a danger in that period, as witnessed by the atomic cases involving Soviet clerk Igor Gouzenko in Canada, and the British atomic scientist Klaus Fuchs. But Hoover, in his successful campaign to pertuate the FBI's wartime powers of political surveillance, helped inspire a series of much more sweeping political trials in this country, many of which were either thrown out of court or remain highly conroversial to this day

Many of those accused of disloyalty or treason by the FBI's informants in this period were not spies or communists at all, but opponents of Hoover's policies within the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Some were associated with the wartime Office of Strategic Services (precursor to the CIA) which in 1944 made its own move to be perpetuated as a peacetime agency.

This OSS proposal was frustrated after Hoover leaked it to a reporter friend on the Chicago Tribune. Some of these same OSS people, and their friend in other agencies, had also been targeted by U.S. friends of Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as too friendly towards the Chinese Communists under Mao Tse-tung.

From amidst those political and inter-agency fights came the ill-fated arrest Newsreels all across the country showed triumphant FBI agents leading the respected China specialist in handcuffs from the State Department Offices. Service and his co-workers had been fingered after a group of FBI agents and FBI ex-agents from the Security Branch conducted a series of illegal break-ins against the journal Amerasia where several classified papers were found.

Charges against Service and two others were thrown out by the grand jury, and the Justice Department later admitted it lacked adequate evidence to make the arrests but had proceeded anyway, hoping to discover "sufficient legal proof" on the scene. Charges against the other three (designated "conspiracy to remove documents" — not espionage) were later dropped because of illegal OSS and FBI procedures

The FBI, however, would not let the issue drop. Embarrassment over the failure of a major Bureau case led to even larger charges that the Truman Administration accusation that numerous known Communist Party members were "working and shaping policy in the State Department.'

McCarthy's charges were a distortion of a secret 100-page FBI report on communist influence in government, which had reached him through a member of U.S. Army intelligence and a lobby group working for Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist Chinese.

Hoover, who knew McCarthy's charges were false, refused to correct them. In fact, his own speeches had already helped create the mass Red Scare hysteria out of which the FBI emerged more powerful than ever.

Some historians have attributed the leaking of McCarthy's and other FBI reports such as that on Alger Hiss — to the Bureau's frustration at losing cases in court. Others have pointed out that in 1947 Hoover was lobbying for an internal security act which would perpetuate his wartime powers of domestic political surveillance. That same year the National Security Act gave statutory powers to his rivals in the CIA.

Then, as now, the FBI possessed virtually no statutory power to collect intelligence or conduct surveillance on U.S. citizens involved in domestic political activity.

President Truman refused to sponsor the legislation Hoover wanted, and in 1950 unsuccessfully vetoed the Hoover-backed McCarran Act that took its place. Truman also rebuffed Hoover's attempt to be made director of the infant CIA. Embarrassed by Republican charges about the Amerasia case, Truman did establish the Federal Employee Loyalty Program in 1947 through a special executive order and it is that order, a Senate report revealed recently, which set up the attorney general's list of subversive groups and "was used to provide a legal basis for the FBI's investigation of allegedly 'subversive' organizations.' Many of the FBI's statutory responsibilities relate to the investigation of actual federal crimes as denoted originally in such laws as the 1910 Mann Act against interstate prostitution, and as progressively expanded by such laws as the Organized Crime Con-Hoover's continued concentration of tailing political "subversives," and the Bureau's investigations of Dr. Martin Luther King, Dr. Benjamin Spock, and other antiwar activists led first to the illegal operations of the late '60 and '70s, and in the aftermath to the present reassessment of the Bureau's functions. Amont the worst of those fiascos was the indictment in 1971 of the Revs. Daniel and

Philip Berrigan, and others, for an alleged plot to kidnap Henry Kissinger and blow up the heating tunnels in Washington. This belated indictment by Atty. Gen. Mitchell, who was hardly friendly towards the anti-war movement, came several months after Hoover, in testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee, had publicly linked the Berrigan brothers to the kidments, while his brother was eventually convicted on the single charge of smuggling a letter out of a federal prison.

Crucial to the defense case was the admission by an FBI informant in court that he had been the first to propose using a gun to kidnap Kissinger, and that he had offered technical information on the detonation of explosives. The over-eager informant, who was given more than $9,000 by the FBI, had hoped for a much larger reward.

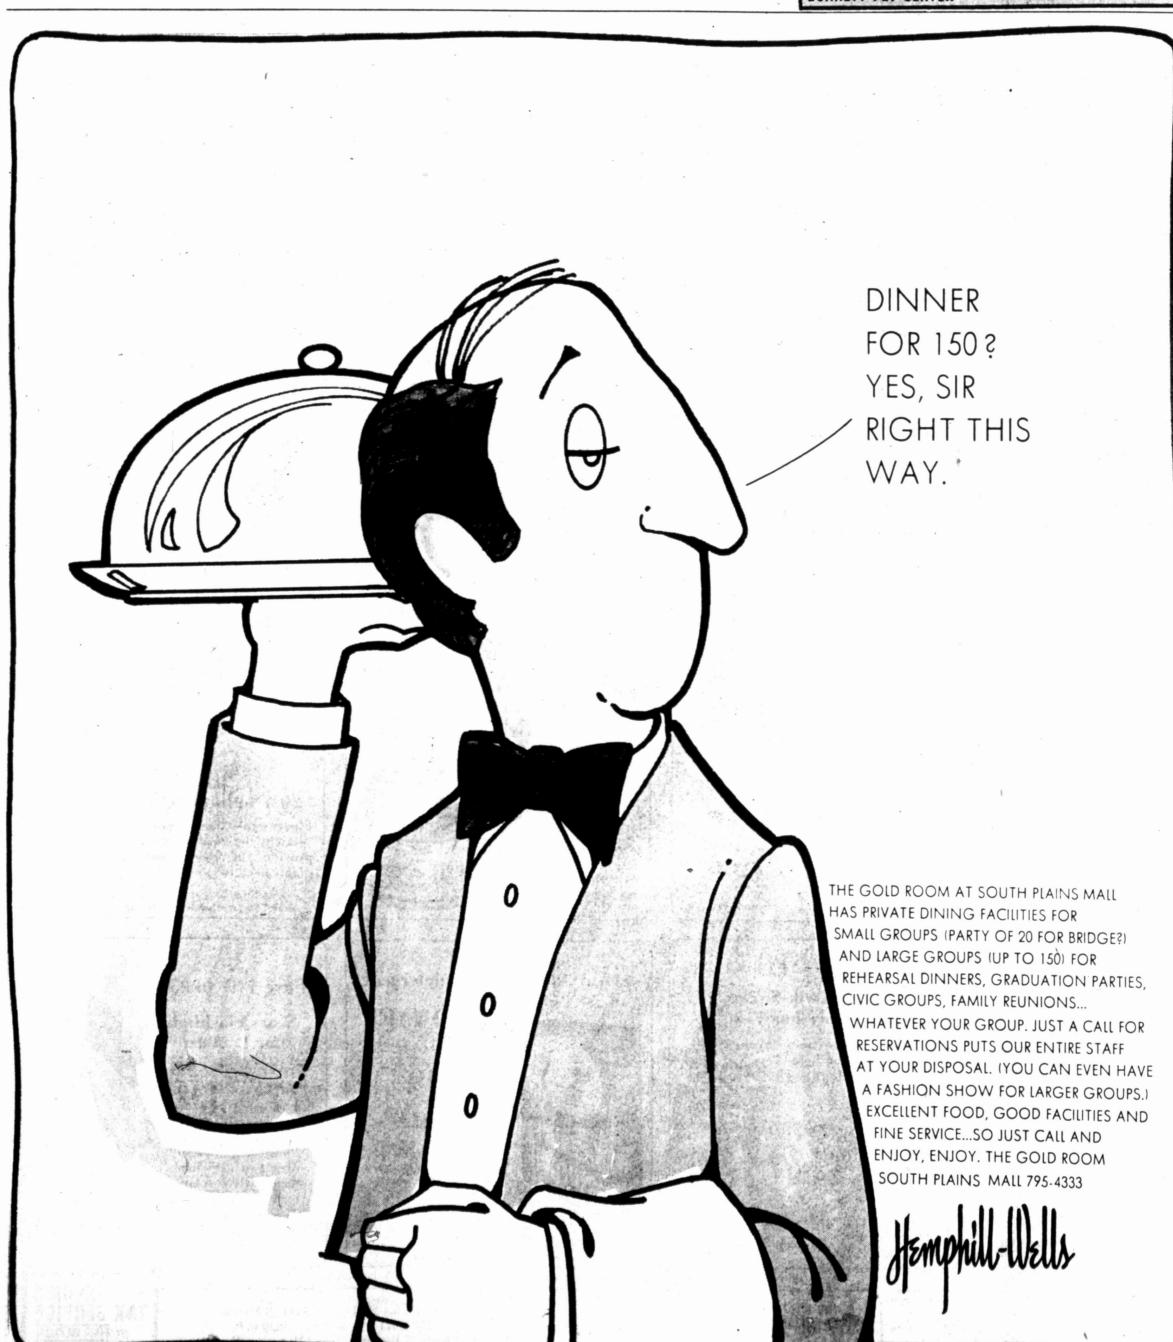

The ultimate collapse of this case against the Berrigans was politically embarrasssing to the Nixon Administration, drew new public support for the cause of the ac cused, and served further to polarize a divided country.

Yet the politically astute Hoover had already gained what he had hoped from his prejudicial leaks about the Berrigan case to a frightened Senate Appropriations Committee: a $14 million supplemental budget, 1,000 additional agents (later know inside the Bureau as "the Berrigan 1,000"), and 700 additional clerks.

Hoover's highly unusual leaks about unindicted suspects seemed to many an effort to restore the FBI's former status within the Nixon Administration, which shortly before had begun plans to conduct its own political surveillance outside the FBI.

Suggestions On Integration Gratifying

When school trustees and administrators Monday appealed for suggestions to integrate schools here, they probably didn't expect to get so many so soon and on such a cooperative note.

"I have not received a single belligerent letter," Supt. Ed Irons said, thumbing through a file of Wednesday's mail. 'The public's response has been very positive. Everyone's saying, 'Let's work it out and do the best we possibly can'.

That attitude, he said, also describes the presentation made to the school board today by the Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools, a new group urging the board to view court-ordered desegregation "as an opportunity for improvement of all Lubbock schools, rather than as a burden or a problem."

Carla Crisford, a parent and one of about 20 alliance members at the board meeting, read a statement of necessary ingredients for a successful school inte-

"The racial minorities in the community must not bear more than a proportionate amount of change and dislocation. Therefore, "the new plan must distribute all changes equitably across the entire community," she said.

"Lubbock's vitality, strength and growth will be endangered by any plan which seeks to minimize integration and does not take into account the stability and integrity of communities throughout all of Lubbock." Mrs. Crisford said the school district's new integration plan must have a "strong chance of long-term

- Design of the plan should involve 'substantial, systematic citizen participation." The public should be given options and hearings should be held before the school board adopts a plan for submission to U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward by April 1, she said.

- The district should use workshops and other techniques to adequately prepare teachers, administrators, parents and students for integration. zen input. We want all the suggestions we can get from the community because there are so many diverse ideas to take into consideration.

But Waters was leery of delegating too much of the board's responsibility to an advisory council. "This is a tri-ethnic board, too," he said.

Even without such a council, the district "wants and will utilize" public input, Waters said.

Irons said that while some of the alliance's ideas may be "a bit too idealistic," he firmly agrees with many of the points especially the need for "fairness" to all parts of the city and for a "long-term" that brown child, just as I represent that white child. I want whatever we do to be fair and educationally sound for everyone concerned.'

The presentation by the alliance is by no means the only input the district has received for complying with Woodward's order that nine minority schools here be desegregated.

Wednesday alone, Irons received six letters from various parents, some with 'very good suggestions.'

One man wrote that "unless escalating racial polarization is defused, the integration issue stands to hurt the dynamic progress of public education in Lubbock." Drawing on his school integration experiences in Illinois, he urged school officials to use broad community participation and "use integration as a positive factor to enhance the community.

Some of the writers were strongly against busing students.

'We are letting government officials come into our home and tell us our seven-year-old can no longer go to the school we have chosen to raise him in," said one Another added, "Besides having to be miles from home and other children they have gone to school with, there is the problem of an energy crisis...So stop wasting gasoline and leave the kids

But even anti-busing parents said Lubbock should follow the court's order and integrate its schools.

One woman suggested integration 'without busing. I for one would gladly send my child to a minority school if preand after-school care was offered. If you could guarantee good supervision, you would have more white children than you'd need."

Another mother proposed that Dunbar High - one of the nine schools Woodward says must be desegregated - be turned into a school for high school sophomores from throughout the city.

That idea would make Dunbar an integrated school, she noted. And juniors and seniors in the Dunbar zone could be reassigned to help integrate predominantly threatened. We hope that wisdom and patience will solve this problem in the fairest way possible."

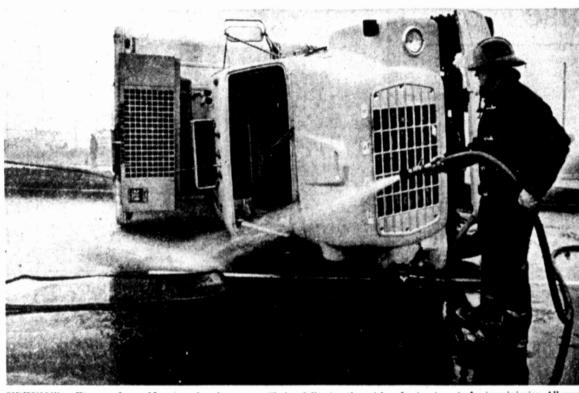

A father, writing about school integra-tion, said: "If it does become necessary for the Lubbock Independent School District to furnish some transportation, please investigate the possibility of working with the Citibus system. It may be possible to save some school district dollars and improve the city system at the same time.

He told the TAB members that Texas is not only number one in business climate, but also first in positive attitude.

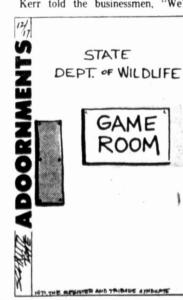

Citing reasons for the attractive business climate in Texas, Kerr pointed out that there is no corporate income tax in the state. Forty-five other states do have that tax.

He said the absence in Texas of a personal state income tax means that personnel transferred here from other states get the equivalent of an automatic raise in pay. Some 44 other states in the nation. have some form of personal income tax.

Unemployment tax rates in Texas are 90 cents per $100 payroll, whereas the national average is $2.70, Kerr said. He cited the work ethic as a primary benefit to business in Texas.

Kerr recommended that the South Plains Chapter members contact their legislative representatives for the purpose of defeating the Consumer Protection Act. Another measure opposed by the TAB chairman is the Labor Reform Act, "which has no other motive than to punish employers," he said.

Zoning Board Reverses Packing Plant Ruling

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, which less than a year ago denied a meatpacking plant permission to expand, Thursday reversed itself.

Ben Grantham won permission to enlarge his plant, a legal nonconforming use located on about 11 acres north of Erskine Street and west of Knoxville Ave-

In okaying the request, though, board members stipulated that ingress and egress to the property be from Erskine Street instead of Knoxville Avenue.

The board also specified that Arizona cypresses be planted on the north, east and west sides of the property to screen the plant from residential areas.

Paul Payne Jr., a nearby property owner who vehemently opposed the expansion, warned board members their approval means he will seek heavy manufacturing zoning in the area.

permanently will cripple attempts to develop the area into residential neighborhoods or commercial ventures. And, he told the board, if the plant is allowed to expand, "it will be on your back to be responsible for what it does to the community as a whole.'

The board 10 months ago denied Grantham's request for expansion, indicating his plans were not specific enough and that enlargement would discourage residential development in North Lubbock. Thursday board members indicated that as long as the plant remains open, everything possible should be done to minimize the plant's impact on the area. Grantham's latest request was accompanied by construction details. His representative, architectural consultant Arnold Maeker, told the board that although the plant will be enlarged, the business volume will not be increased. The reason for expansion, he said, is to upgrade the plant's efficiency and to keep it competitive. And, Maeker said, Grantham's "livelihood is at stake" in the board's decision.

"If he can't keep it (the plant) competitive, he would have to close," Maeker ex-The board also approved an amended request by a church to allow a recreation hall at 4402 40th St. The Bethany Baptist Church, which last month was denied permission to build a gym on the site, won approval for a smaller building that will house classrooms and a recreation hall. Several board members who last

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a girl with one leg shorter than the other develop scoliosis, a condition you have discussed in the past? If so what can be done? -

Scoliosis (SCO-lee-OH-sis)is any deviation of the spine to one side or the other as viewed from the back. There can be many causes. Having one leg shorter than another might result in "postural scoliosis." The back curves in the direction of the shortened leg. Often the use of an appropriate lift in the shoe on the shortened side may give sufficient correction.

Scoliosis is mostly a problem of adolescent girls, many of whom do adopt poor posture. Often, though, poor muscle tone or nerves or other disturbances are the real cause of the poor posture. Parents should watch their children's posture, and be sure some defect is not causing it. In any event, it should be corrected.

Some scoliosis is congenital (occurring at birth). If diagnosed early, conservative treatment (i.e., the Milwaukee brace and therapy) will help. If not, surgery may be required. Undiagnosed polio as a child may cause this.

I have discussed this before, but it bears repetition because from past experience I know that mention of the factors involved will usually prompt some parents to seek medical help for what they had considered merely "lazy posture.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a woman has a hysterectomy and still has her ovaries can she still get pregnant .?-P.G.

No. Pregnancy requires a uterus

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We are three painters who are constantly getting small bugs (in the forearms only) from shrubs around houses we paint. The mites are so small you can't see them, but they burrow into the skin and itch. On looking through a magnifying glass and picking with a needle, a small black spot will come out, but it is impossible to get them all. We have tried ointments and everything else, but nothing seems to get rid of them. Can you think of something we have not tried? Alcohol, ice, boiling water-nothing helps.-B.E.M

Apparently the bugs are not on the legs, which are covered. It is strange your faces are not affected.

Wear long sleeves; apply insect repellent to your arms and clothing before going to work; also, have one of those 'black spots' examined to see just what type of insect it is.

Obviously, not all bushes would harbor the pests, so you might be able to identify the ones that do. Those bushes should be covered with a cloth or sheet of plastic while you are working.

Scratching or fooling around with a needle can produce a secondary infection, which is stubborn to treat. One of you should see a dermatologist, who can identify the specific mite and suggest further treatment. Be sure the insects have not set up permanent housekeeping on your clothing. A garden supply store can the mite problem down

The medicine (a diuretic) is doing what it's supposed to do - causing you to lose liquid. It is a high-blood-pressure medicine. From your description it might be doing its job a bit too well, or your dosage may be a bit excessive for you. Report your symptoms to the doctor. Too frequent urination may mean you are losing too much potassium along with the liquid loss. He may want to reduce your Readers of newspapers and viewers of television have absorbed so much crime, I don't know if they can handle the following story, but I hope they try.

In Sun City, Arizona, recently a woman decided to have a garage sale. She made up her signs, priced her merchandise and got everything in order for the sale which was to begin the next day.

Everything in readiness, she left home for some errands. While she was gone, a neighbor's automatic garage door opener raised her door by mistake, bringing all the signs and merchandise into full

When our heroine arrived home she found the sale had gone on without her and the garage was picked clean. However, she found a tally of items sold and prices paid. All items were not only accounted for, but the collection mounted to $15.20 .75 cents more than there should have been.

ANN LANDERS

Ann Landers: My dad and mom were divorced two years ago. It says in the divorce decree that my dad is supposed to pay all medical and dental bills for my brother and me.

I am a 13-year-old girl and would be quite decent looking if my teeth didn't stick out in front like a chipmunk.

I went to a dentist who straightens teeth and he said I have a very bad protrusion and should have braces for three years at least. But my dad refuses to pay for the work so the dentist won't do it. I think it is gross that he has enough monev to buy his second wife a nice fur coat but can't afford to have his own daughter's teeth straightened. My mom works but she can't afford the dentist bill and has no money to hire a lawyer to make my dad live up to his agreement.

Please give me some advice. - Wishing For Those Railroad Tracks

Dear Wishing: Chasing divorced fathers to make them pay for things is usually a losing battle, especially if there's no money for lawyers

Ask your mom to take you to a university dental school. They often do very good work and the prices are much lower than those of practicing dentists. Good luck. dear. I hope you get those "railroad tracks.

Dear Ann: Here's better advice for "San Berdeo," whose guest neglected to pay for long-distance phone calls. The hostess should suggest in the future that the delinquent boor instruct the operator to charge her calls to her home phone. It's very easy to do and would eliminate the problem completely. - Mr. Know

Dear Mr.: It's easier to eliminate the guest. A person who would try to stiff a hostess with long-distance calls is not about to follow any instructions.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not speaking for myself only, but for about half the teenagers in the world. I am sick of your advice; "See your school guidance coun-

In our school anyone who wants to see the guidance counselor has to go through a third degree just to get an appointment. The person who arranges appointments asks questions like, "Why do you want to see the guidance counselor?" What do they expect you to say — "I'm nuts," or "I'm pregnant," or "I think I have VD"?

When a person is worried and scared he doesn't want to tell anybody the details except the person he is asking for help. The screening is a real turn-off. After a couple of sessions with a go-between you just decide to sweat it out by yourself and go quietly insane. I know you won't print this letter because you don't like criticism. Also, it's not a big deal, like how to hang toilet paper. - Newsday Reader Going Nuts In

Dear Reader: The situation you describe does not exist in many schools only in the large ones. In my opinion, it shouldn't exist in any school — no matter how large. A student who wants to see a guidance counselor should be able to make an appointment without answering any questions relating to the nature of his problem. It's nobody's business.

'Why don't finesses work lucky for me?" groaned the Unlucky Expert. "For everyone else they do.'

The Unlucky Expert had ruffed the second heart, led a trump to dummy's king and tinessed the jack on the way back. West had scored his queen and led a third heart. South trumped that and was now down to one trump while he still had to knock out the ace of diamonds. There was no way for him to pull West's nine of spades without allowing the fourth heart to take the setting trick. We will concede that if the trump finesse had worked, South would have made five odd. But South had contracted for four and he should have taken the best play to make that contract.

The best play wasn't at all complicated. A suit breaks 3-2 some 68 percent of the time. A finesse works just 50 percent of the time. South should just cash the ace and king of trumps and knock out the ace of diamonds

This would give him time to collect all his diamond and club tricks before the defense would be able to establish a heart. He would lose that queen of trumps, but he wouldn't lose his con-

Iodine Used To Repair Furniture

By ANDY LANG Associated Press Writer

Q - Is it true that iodine can be used to hide a scratch on furniture that has either a varnished or lacquered finish? Will it harm the finish or the wood?

A - It is true and it won't harm the finish. However, iodine dries to a dark color and may be as conspicuous as the scratch if used on furniture with a light finish. To be certain it will do the job, the iodine should be applied first to a part of the furniture that cannot easily be seen Then, if there is a match, use it on the actual scratch

Q. - I am confused about latex primersealer, which I often see advertised. Sometimes the ad says it should be used as the first coat for an interior wall. Other times, I see where the regular latex wall paint is recommended as either a first coat or a final coat. Can you clarify this for me'

A - The primer-sealer is intended for unpainted interior walls and ceilings of wallboard, plaster, masonry and all types of dry wall. The latex wall paint can be used either as a primer-sealer or a finish coat for interior walls and ceilings of wallboard, wallpaper, plaster and other porous, absorptive materials. While it can be used on primed wood, it is not termine whether it will meet your requirements spring. I will have to do a lot of scraping to get rid of a kind of cracked condition my neighbor calls checking. I am resigned to what I expect will be a lot of work, but what I want to do is to avoid having the same thing happen. What causes checking?

A. - Any of a number of reasons or a combination of two or more of them. The usual causes are: when oil paint has been applied on a damp surface: when a low quality paint has been used; when the paint has not been mixed properly; when it has been applied unevenly; and when it has been applied in a too-heavy coat.

Q. - Can you tell me how deep the footings should be for a concrete foundation? I remember reading somewhere they should be at least 30 inches deep. but now I have just read that they should be as much as 42 inches. Which is correct?

A. - There is no such thing as a figure that covers all conditions and all areas. It depends on at least half a dozen factors. the most important of which is the location. In some parts of the country, where there are no harsh winters, a footing need be only 6 or 8 inches below grade. In others, where the winter temperatures drop to 20 and 30 below zero Fahrenheit, the footings must be 4 or 5 feet deep.

TV Show Host Says Photos Not Images

By IRVING DESFOR

Associated Press Writer Casey Allen is a professional photographer who started teaching photography at New York University 25 years ago. He was also director of photography at New York's Central YWCA for 14 years. And eight years ago. Casey took over as host of a weekly television show for WNYC-TV on which he interviews people prominent in the world of photography.

Now I'd like you to hear Casey Allen's provocative ideas about "images" vs. 'photographs" which he made public some months ago at the Visual Communications Conference at the University of Maryland. His barbed words startled the audience, pleasing some and upsetting others, but they sure got attention. OK. Casey Allen, vou're on:

Just about eight years ago when I started 'In and Out of Focus' as a weekly TV program. I began to hear people in photography talking about their 'images." It sounded as if everybody had out they were referring to their photographs, not their personal status in the community. IMAGE became the new catch word to show others you were 'with So I looked up the word in "Websters New Collegiate Dictionary"

"IMAGE. 1. A reproduction or imitation of a form, person or thing - a statue. 2a. The optical counterpart of an object produced by an optical device (lens or mirror) or an electronic device b. A likeness of an object produced on photographic material. 3a. An exact likeness (God created man in his own image), b, A person strikingly like another the is the mage of his father). 4a. A tangible or visible representation the is the image of tilial devotion) 5a A mental picture of omething not actually present an impression. b. A concept held in common

That's a lot of images

PHOTOGRAPH. A picture or likeness obtained by photography.

That's it. No subheads or multiple choices. So why not call a photograph a photograph instead of an image? It seems

But the simple, direct way doesn't appeal to everybody. To some, whole new vistas of imagery were opened up. Some found they could substitute the photographic process for lack of talent in drawing or painting and they could become part of the exciting new world of fine arts photography. Just substitute the word image' for 'photograph' and there was nothing to hold them back "For instance, for a recent exhibit at the Image Gallery (that word again) in New York, the photographer had cut up many color photographs into small pieces, then pasted these bits and pieces together again in new and random ar-Then I looked up the definition of rangements. This is how he created his graphs. I was not impressed nor did I think it was an example of photography. It is not even necessary to start with your own original photographs

"I don't think the words 'photograph' and 'image' are interchangeable. Image needs a modifier: photograph doesn't Is it an electronic image, a mental image, a sculptured image, a photographic image? To call a photograph by Andre Kertesz. Paul Strand or Edward Weston an image is like describing a mangificent mountain by saying it's cute. Maximum Oil Allowable Set Despite Pipeline

As usual, in setting the statewide allowception of three months last winter, able, the commission restricted production in the oil-rich East Texas Field to 86 percent to avoid possible waste.

The commission first set a 100 percent allowable March 16, 1972, and two weeks Sciences Center Facility In Good Shape later announced that East Texas would produce at the lower rate, which has remained unchanged.

> Wallace said crude oil imports into the United States totaled 7,741,000 per day for the four-week average of Feb. 3.

"This is a million barrels per day less imports than those a year ago, and is due primarily to Alaskan production being able to reach the lower 48 states," he

When wide-open production was ordered nearly six years ago, Byron Tunnell, then commission chairman, criticized environmentalists for slowing down the search for oil, claiming the Alaskan pipeline had been delayed by protests that it would harm caribou

Figures released by the commission Thursday showed that oil production in Texas last year totaled an estimated 3,-016,666 barrels a day, a decrease of 136,-177 barrels a day from 1976.

Nominations by major buyers of Texas crude oil totaled 3,575,638 a day for March, a decrease of 8,502 barrels a day from February.

Ed Leland of Amoco Production Co. indicated, however, in reducing Amoco's request for oil by 2,000 barrels a day that there was no lessening of demand. The company, he said, merely wanted to bring its nomination in line with what it was receiving.

Collector Utilizes Beer Cans ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A computer analyst at Kirtland Air Force Base here is recycling beer cans into a solar energy heating system. 'Based on my experiments," Nat Martz says, "I believe the beer can approach is the most economical method available to me. It will make it possible to eventually heat my entire house. Martz, who works for the Air Force Systems Command's Weapons Laboratory, has spent evenings and weekends for the last two years designing, building and testing a prototype

It consists of a solar collector filled with 400 beer can halves and connected to an insulated bin of gravel, where the sun's heat is stored. He cut the aluminum cans with a band saw and installed the halves with the open ends facing the sun in a glass-covered wooden box 7 feet long and 3 feet wide.

There is an open space between the cans and the glass. Heated air is drawn from there with a fan and forced into a 2-by-4-by-6-foot concrete-block bin filled with gravel.

Martz plans to install 10 or more similar solar collectors on the south side of his seven-room house's pitched roof and build a gravel bin 10 times larger than the present one against an east wall.

"I believe I will reduce my heating bill 75 percent by using the sun instead of natural gas," says Martz, who has collected 3,000 additional cans for the project, total cost of which he estimates will be about $2,500

When the system is finished by next winter, air will be blown over the gravel to bring the stored heat from the bin into the house," he explains. "I plan to build a microprocessor computer to automatically control the air flow. Martz says the idea is not a new one and that he has heard of a Colorado man who tried the scheme a decade ago. But his research turned up no more information, and he had to design the prototype from scratch. He has spent $300 for materials so far, borrowed heat sensing instruments for his tests and has depended on friends for cans and assistance.

The prototype is a closed loop system and provides heat only for test purposes. It has generated temperatures as high as 300 degrees and operates at 80 percent efficiency on sunny

Most of the last two years were spent determining the best size for the collector, experimenting with different gravel sizes and amounts, and laying out air passages through the bin to provide even heat absorption. Martz also had to find the best position for the collector relative to the sun. He calls the beer can halves "heat cups." They provide more heat absorption and reflecting area than corrugated or angled surfaces. And aluminum painted black absorbs and releases heat faster than other metals, he points out.

Wood partitions connected at opposite ends separate the cans, providing a channel for an even air flow.

Martz, who does his own carpentry, metal and masonary work at home, has also constructed a solar water heater hooked up to a home-built whirlpool bath. He is convinced that "everyone should and can have at least some sort of supplementary heating system if we are to really conserve "Building a beer can solar heater is no job for the person who is all thumbs," Martz concedes. "But anyone who is reasonably handy with tools should be able to do it.'

Girl Sailors Fearful Of Sea Duty

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) - A limited survey of women sailors indicates that the majority fear going to sea because they would get seasick, be confronted with immorality - or just don't like water.

The survey was conducted by Soundings, a naval base newspaper. Of the 83 women who responded, 58 said they don't want sea duty and 25 said they did.

"I get seasick," wrote one woman. Another said, "There is already enough morality in the Navy. If women go to a, there will be even more.

One landlubber wrote, "I have a fear of being surrounded by water.

The survey was prompted by the Navy's plans to let women serve on noncombatant ships such as tenders, rescue vessels and training carriers. The Navy envisions that the crews of some noncombatant ships will be from 25 to 50 percent

One woman militant said women should go to sea "and finally assume the responsibility for the defense of this country - which they have shirked for so long. But another said, "Women are different. Don't try to make men of us."

Another woman, fearing ships would result in sexual exploits, said, "I don't want all ships to be USS Peyton Place."

Perry recommended $184.1 million in spending on high-energy laser beam weapons, an increase of about $34 million over this year, in what he described as an 'early advanced development effort."

At the same time, Perry made a cryptic reference to continuing research in what is called "charged particle beam technol-

Suicide In Children Under Scrutiny

(EDITOR'S NOTE — How many children killed by cars run into traffic on purpose? How many kids who lall" from windows actually mean to? Very little is known about child suicides, but experts agree that pungsters, even infants, suffer the same deep depressions and melancholia that drive adults to death.)

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP) - He sat sullenly in his classroom. When the teacher asked him a question, he jumped up, ran to a window and tried to leap from the third-story

The teacher caught him by the heels and pulled him back into the room.

The boy's parents could not believe their 9-year-old son wanted to kill himself. It was a joke, a childish gesture. The teacher disagreed and suggested therapy. Days passed with nothing done.

One day, the boy swallowed a package of phonograph needles.

"His parents believed it then," said the teacher. "The whole thing made me think though, 'Would I believe it?' It made me wonder how many kids in my fourth grade are so depressed that they might want to commit suicide.

Suicide by children of kindergarten and grade school ages — from 5 to 14 — is an emerging problem in the field of mental health. Some experts believe that even infants can intentionally kill themselves.

Within a span of a few months, three New York boys killed themselves. A 10-yearold supposedly ignored by his family put a noose around his neck, stood on a chair and asked his brother to pull away the chair. The brother refused, so the 10-year-old kicked it away and strangled. A 14-year-old, with an excellent school record, used a makeshift ladder to fix a rope around a tree and hang himself. A 13-year-old who had been sick with the flu got up from watching TV the night after Thanksgiving and went to a friend's 17th-floor apartment. Without explanation, he opened a window, pushed out a screen and hurtled to his death.

The National Center for Health Statistics reported 170 confirmed child suicides in 1975, the most recent year for which data is available.

"That figure is demonstrably inaccurate," says Dr. Ari Kiev, developer of the Crisis Intervention Clinic at Cornell Medical College. "There has always been a stigma attached to suicide, particularly child suicide. As a result, it is concealed and it is not accurately reported.

There also are suicides that go undetected. Deaths that appear to be accidental, particularly traffic accidents

Child suicide also went undetected because child psychologists and other experts refused to believe that children could go into deep depression and melancholia, disturbed states of mind commonly considered to be afflictions of adults

Ten years ago, we didn't seem prepared to really recognize suicidal depression among children," says Dr. Martha Welch, a Greenwich, Conn., psychiatrist and former head of the therapy unit for nursery-aged children at Albert Einstein College of Medicine. "But we are always learning more and I believe that one reason we've become aware now is that children with difficulties are discovered in school and di-

Presbyterian's Psychiatric Institute in New York, said:

"There are some psychiatric disorders which are difficult to accept. One of these for a very long time was child abuse. Another is suicide. And another one, depression. But it is the understanding of the depressive condition in the adult which has progressed so much that it has provided a model for child psychiatry.

It was learned that children commit suicide for many of the same reasons as adolescents and adults, mainly while in deep depression, which may take many forms and come from many causes. Some may kill themselves in the hope of rejoining a parent who has died. In achievement-oriented families, children have tried to kill themselves rather than come home win poor grades. Rejection - lack of love - is a common theme in suicide notes. Children who feel unloved, that they cause trouble to those around them, are apt to see life as a tunnel with no way out except death.

One of the most debated elements of child suicide is whether young children rec-

'Children do not develop mature ideas about death until middle childhood,' says Dr. David Shaffer, formerly of the Institute of Psychiatry in London, where he conducted a "psychological post-mortem" of 30 child suicides. "Half the children in the 6 to 11 age group in one study believed death to be reversible. In the 11 to 13 group, 13 percent still believed this."

Dr. Puig-Antich, however, says his clinical observations demonstrate that "children from 6 to 12 know what death means, and when they say they want to die, they aren't kidding. They are quite aware of what they are saying.

Dr. Daniel Casriel, founder of New York's Casriel Institute, has reservations about whether children and adults with emotional problems understand death

"It isn't so much that the suicide wants to die, but that he doesn't want to live anymore. A child who is severely depressed feels as though he has an emotional spear in his belly. It isn't that he feels he would be happier dead, just that there would be less pain," he says.

"Death is really not something anybody wants. It is just a way of avoiding the pain of living.

That pain seems evident in most descriptions of a potentially suicidal child. "Children who are severely depressed feel sad most of the time. They have difficulty experiencing pleasure. They have difficulty sleeping, they lose some weight, they lack appetite. Frequently they feel guilty about things they haven't even done, says Dr. Puig-Antich. "They also think frequently about suicide and they express this desire in many ways, and some of them attempt to kill themselves.

Dr. Shaffer, now head of child psychiatry at Columbia-Presbyterian's Psychiatric Institute, says depression also could be "camouflaged in temper tantrums, boredom, restlessness, rebelliousness and defiance.'

whether he died, he was just so unhappy. If he had died, everybody would have said it was an accident. There are children who are invalved in self-destructive activities that could lead to death. That's what I call suicidal.

Dr. Shaffer says threats to jump in front of a car "are among the most common suicidal utterances made by young children." In 1975, there were 2,006 pedestrians aged 5 to 19 and 2,118 aged 10 to 14 killed by cars in the United States.

'It would be impossible to say how many might have been suicides, although there were circumstances pointing that way," says Dr. Dominick D'Maio, chief medical

The phenomenon of possible infant suicide is seen in a wasting-away condition

"It was first discovered in an orphanage in South America," says Dr. Casriel "Here were infants apparently given everything essential to their biological needs, yet they seemed to curl up and die. It was found that these infants were never picked up, never cuddled. I think there are babies who want love and refuse to live without it. That is certainly seen in older children.

"The thing that must be remembered is that if a child feels helpless, there is no way to protest except to kill himself."

A teenage or young adult form of marasmus is anorexia nervosa, death by starvation. This has been typical of certain teenage girls, who stop eating supposedly to lose weight. In one case, a girl who had starved herself to 83 pounds had friends who would force her to eat. When she left them, she would go home and force herself to

A number of experts believe there would be more child suicides if young children had the skill to carry them out. For example, one child thinking he was eating poison consumed a bowl of sugar; another tried hanging himself with a light string.

"Children lack the skill and sophistication to carry out their suicidal intentions." says Dr. Shaffer. "It takes a considerable amount of planning in order to prepare a suicide that will not be prematurely detected and thus prevented.

The psychological post-mortem provided by Dr. Shaffer in the London study indicated that more than half the 21 boys and nine girls who committed suicide did so at about the time of puberty. He found that 12 had IQs of 115 or higher and that they

Experts agree that the child whose suicidal tendencies remain untreated may carry them out in later life, especially during the high risk ages of 15 through 24. This age group accounted for 4,736 suicides in 1975 - a rate of nearly 13 a day.

The way to reduce that incidence is to provide treatment as soon as the problem is discovered," says Dr. Puig-Antich. "There are three rules of the thumb that anyone can use to detect a potentially suicidal child:

—"Does the child look sad frequently?

"Does the child say, or make statements, that he feels sad?

Helicopters To Disrupt Seal Hunt

LONDON (AP) - Conservationists opposed to seal hunting in Canada announced Thursday they plan helicopter flights to seal breeding grounds on North Atlantic ice fields to disrupt next month's hunt

The hunt is scheduled to begin March 10 on the ice floes around Newfoundland, home of the harp and the hood species prized by hunters.

Part of the controversy stems from methods of the hunters, who club the furry white seal pups to death. The Canadian government describes the clubbing as "the most humane method for killing" the seal, while opponents call it cruel and barbarous.

Canada has set a 1978 quota of 180,000 harp and 15,000 hood seals. The harp seal limit is up 10,000 over the 1977 ceil-

Conservation groups in Canada, the United States and Europe claim continued hunting of baby seals will drive seals to extinction in five to ten years. Supporters see the hunt as a boon for unemployed fishermen and a traditional part

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government has vigorously defended the hunt. It claims there are 1.2 million harp seals in the North Atlantic area, making it the second most numerous species in the seal family "and giving it a very large margin for survival.

Greenpeace, described by spokesman Allan Thornton as a "direct action pressure group" of dedicated conservationists, announced its plans Thursday at a joint news conference in London with representatives of Friends of the Earth. another conservation group.

Thornton said Greenpeace is seeking a six-year moratorium on all harp and hood seal hunting to allow for extended study of the creatures and to give scientists time to determine how many still exist.

Friends of the Earth spokesman Jon Barzdo said his organization favors a two-year moratorium, but also wants the hunt halted immediately.

For the past several years Greenpeace. which was founded in Vancouver, British Columbia, but now has members throughout North America and Europe, has tried to disrupt harp seal hunts by sending small groups onto the ice floes. In the past conservationists, far outnumbered by hunters, have used their own bodies to shield seal pups.

"Although we want to again use helicopters to reach the ice floes, we don't know whether we'll even be able to get into the area" because of pending legislation, Thornton said.

"About a dozen" Greenpeace members of several nationalities plan to set up a base at St. Anthony's, Newfoundland, from which to launch a peaceful disruption of the hunt, he said.

Legislation now being considered by the Canadian House of Commons will require anyone entering the hunt area to obtain permission from the Minister of Fisheries. Thornton predicted the bill would be passed by March 10.

He said his group also plans a protest vigil March 10 outside Canada House, on London's Trafalgar Square. The following day, the protesters will march on a Canadian-owned store that sells seal coats and other products, Thornton said.

Similar demonstrations are planned in Paris and in American cities, he added, but was unable to give details of protests outside London. Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores, now touring Europe to publicize the Canadian government's pro-hunt policy, was scheduled to hold a news conference in London Monday.

ADVENT, W.Va. (AP) - Betty Godby's post office was still shrouded with mist when the sound of hoofbeats began floating up the narrow, winding hollow.

Clip-clop. Clip-clop. Clip-clop.

The hoofbeats grew louder. And as they did, the figures of a fat, bay mare and a slim, gray-haired man began to emerge from the early morning fog. When they reached the old frame house containing the post office, the man dismounted, tied the horse to a tree and went inside.

Lloyd Parsons had come for the mail. Although he had ridden through the fog from his home a mile away, in another sense he had come through the mists of Nearly 120 years after the demise of the Pony Express, this weather-beaten West Virginian still is delivering mail on horseback. In fact, postal authorities in Washington, D.C., say Parsons is one of the last horseback mailmen in this country. "There used to be a fellow down in Kentucky that delivered on a horse but I hear he's retired. says Postmistress Godby, stuffing a fistful of envelopes into Parson's canvas mailbag. "I guess Lloyd here might just be the last of the

If so, Parsons and his mare, Ginger, take the distinction in stride.

"The people down in Charleston are always after me to have a fixed schedule, but you can't have a schedule out here," he said, tying the mailbag to the saddlehorn and climbing aboard Ginger's broad back. "How long it takes me to deliver the mail depends on te conditions of the roads. It may take me four or five hours or it may just take me all

The Advent Post Office, a fourth class operation, is located six miles up a dirt road in central West Virginia. Two carriers serve some 70 families in the surrounding hills and hollows.

Parson's 17-mile route takes him over some of the most tortuous terrain in Appalachia. He relies on a Jeep during summer but turns to Ginger from November through giant, sparkling jewels. Overhead, a flock of cavorting cardinals decorated an oak tree. "I've lived around here all my life," Parsons said, taking a deep drag and making a playful swipe at a dried oak leaf wafting past his nose. "Been riding horses since I was in diapers and don't ever intend to stop.

But he did, just a moment later, dismounting to drop a couple of letters into a roadside mailbox. "This here's First Creek," he said, climbing back aboard. "I go from here over to White Oak Creek and then up to Price's Ridge. There must be 25 or 30 houses along my route, mostly older folks.

"They're always glad to see me, especially around the first of the month when I'm carrying the pension checks. Sometimes, during the middle of the winter, I'll be the only person some of them will see for a week or more.

Parsons has been delivering mail for more than 20 years, since he was in his early 30s. He says he's gone through three horses during this time and hasn't missed a single day. A contract carrier, he earns about $3,000 a year, has no hospitalization and gets no vaca-

"I bid in the job," he said. "My contract calls for me to deliver the mail 13 days a month, year 'round. I deliver on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and do some truck farming the rest of the time. If it wasn't for the farming I'd starve on what I make carrying the mail, but this job will make me eligible for a Social Security pension when

He also does some hunting but says he can't bring himself to shoot deer, which are relatively plentiful in this part of the country.

Parsons' passion is coons. "I caught four of them last Thursday night," he said, rolling himself another cigarette. "Sold 'em for $10 apiece down at Ripley. I could've gotten $20 if they'd been skinned.

Ginger shied suddenly but Parsons just laughed.

"I'm still breakin' her in," he said, looking down at her feet. "I'm gonna have to put some new shoes on her pretty soon. Do my own shoein'. Do a little of most everything, I guess.

Looking ahead, he spotted a white-haired woman standing be side a mailbox on the crest of the ridge, some 50 yards up the hill.

"That's Harriet Taylor," he said, urging Ginger into a trot. "Hi, Lloyd," the woman said as he approached. "Got any mail for me today?" Parsons pulled out a package and handed it to her. They exchanged a bit of small talk and then he rode on, along the ridge. "I don't know what we'd do without him," said Harriet Taylor, clutching the package. "I've seen him come up that hill when the snow was knee-deep. I took him inside that day and gave him a cup of coffee and a stiff shot to warm him

Giggling at her indiscretion, she turned and waved as Parsons and Ginger faded into the tree line.

Congress To Probe 'Junk Call' Sales

ers trying to sell insurance, retirement property or magazines get under your skin, a professional in the business suggests a simple solution: "hang up on

But in some government circles and among public interest groups, there is a growing feeling that such direct tactics are not enough

In Congress, at the Federal Communi-cations Commission and in at least one state. California, officials are responding to complaints that telephone solicitation and marketing should be regulated or banned.

No one can say for certain how many commercial sales calls are made to homes and businesses each day. One congressional aide who has worked on a pending bill says he has heard estimates ranging from 7 million to 12 million calls

Another in the equipment and phone marketing business suggests 8 billion to 10 billion yearly, if calls from one business to another are included. That would mean 22 million to 27 million calls are made each day, if callers worked every day of the year.

Whatever the number, both proponents and opponents agree that telephone marketing has experienced a boom in recent years. And both sides feel strongly about Invasion Of Privacy?

"That doesn't solve the problem. The point is, it is an intrusion of privacy the incessant ringing - and there is no way of knowing whether it is something important or a 'junk call,'" says Warren Nelson, an administrative aide to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Aspin and Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., have introduced bills in the House and Senate that would require telephone companies to annually allow customers to inform them if they do not wish to receive commercial phone calls. The cost of compiling the lists would be borne by marketers who would be liable for a maximum $1,000 fine for each call made to a customer who registered as not wanting

The FCC and the California Public Utilities Commission also have begun steps aimed primarily at possible regulation of automated marketing devices. The FCC has been asked to begin rulemaking hearings - a preliminary step to agency regulation. The California commission earlier this month ordered 29 telephone utilities to submit plans for banning automatic and semi-automatic telephone marketing equipment.

Such devices have heated up opposition to telephone soliciting in recent months because critics fear increased technology will mean a flood of phone calls in the fu-

Automated Call Systems

Systems that automatically dial all numbers in sequence, after being coded for a given sales pitch, may enable sales firms to call from several hundred to 1,-000 listed and unlisted phones in a single day. Others also use tape recorded pitches by professional salesmen or celebrities that automatically tape customer responses or use a human operator only to open and conclude the spiel.

Digital Products Corp. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., last July began marketing the first totally automatic system. The system dials a number and has a tape recorded message activated at the sound of a voice. It is capable of posing a question and recording a response, but is designed primarily for opinion polling, not sales, says Bill Selewacz, company president. So far, only about 50 of the systems have been sold, partly, Selewacz thinks, because potential customers are leery of what direction attempts at government regulation may take.

Disastrous Incidents

While the quality and capability of automatic and semi-automatic equipment can vary greatly, its growth has led to stories of flubs and near disasters, according to Bob Woodrum, press secretary to Sen. Woodrum recounts a story — the origin of which he has forgotten - of a 4-yearold boy who beckoned a roofing company to his home after he responded to a recorded sales pitch. His parents refused to sign a contract and sent the roofers on their way. On a more serious note. Woodrum says a Minneapolis woman is preparing to sue one marketing operation because she couldn't break the connection during a taped message and was denied the use of the telephone during an emergency.

Woodrum, who wouldn't release the woman's name while filing of the suit was pending, said she had discovered her mother had suffered a heart attack and was finally forced to return to her own home next door to telephone for help.

Banks Cited For Credit Card Schemes To Get Bigger Fees

that issue credit cards are levying new finance charges but few consumers can wade through the legalistic language that tells them they're paying higher rates, the staff of a House panel says.

The banks are devising "new schemes to reap more revenue from credit card users," the staff of the House banking subcommittee on consumers said in a memo to Chairman Frank Annunzio, D-Ill. A copy of the memo was obtained by The Associated Press.

The memo cited this section of one disclosure statement as an example of the confusing language consumers sometimes confront:

"The Finance Charge at periodic rate for purchases is computed by (i) multiplying each portion of the Purchases Finance Charge Balance shown on the face of the statement by the Number of Days in Billing Cycle, (ii) applying to the resulting products the applicable daily perithese products together.

What that means, in simple English, is that the 15 percent finance charge is based on the purchaser's average daily balance starting from the day he makes his purchase

The staff memo said "numerous pieces of evidence are now available that indicate that bankers have not only purposely begun using methods which would be difficult to understand, but they have taken pride in designing disclosure statements that will confuse

"This office has a tape of a banker announcing to other bankers that his statement of the charge went uncommented on by all his customers except the attor-

nevs of those who paid in full each month," it said. The memo says banks have "changed the rules of the game after hooking con-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many banks monthly bills in full. The extra charge, which was clear to everyone paying it, was dropped early this year because of consumer resistence A new, more subtle development involves banks computing the finance charge from the time of purchase rather than after the customary 25-day grace period, the memo said.

This charge is obvious only to the minority of credit card users who pay their bills in full. The majority, accustomed to paying finance charges, is less likely to notice the new - and more expensive way of computing this charge.

Bill Moroney, a spokesman for the American Bankers Association, said that any confusing language results from the Truth-in-Lending Act and government regulations that enforce it. "We are supporting a bill in the Senate to change the law. We'd love to see the language simplified," he said. The staff memo quoted an estimate by an unnamed accounting firm that the new method of computing finance charges could cost consumers $580 million per year in extra charges.

The charge "will not only be costly to the consumer, but unless a massive consumer education campaign is begun, the consumer will go on paying those extra costs without really understanding why the bills are greater," it said.

Sabotage Seen In Alaska Spill

By TERI BURKHART

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) - Sabotage produced the biggest oil spill in the short history of the trans-Alaska pipeline and forced a day-long shutdown, but oil began flowing again Thursday and tanker shipments were not interrupted.

Alaska state troopers said they had no suspects and did not know what kind of explosive had been used to blast a twoinch hole in the pipeline Wednesday aft-

John Ratterman, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., said oil flow resumed at 10 a.m. (2 p.m. CST), less than 24 hours after the explosion was reported.

There was enough oil in holding tanks in the pipeline port of Valdez that no delays in tanker shipments was anticipated, Ratterman said

Thousands of barrels of thick crude oil a more specific estimate was unavailable Thursday - gushed from the hole in the half-inch thick steel pipe. The spilled oil formed pools and sprayed four acres of frozen tundra with a black film before workers could clamp a huge "sleeve" over the jagged gash in the 48-inch diam-

Environmental officials were unable to assess the damage because the area was covered by three feet of snow. Alyeska said the oil had not reached the Chena River, more than a mile away.

The largest previous spill occurred during last summer's startup, when a worker accidentally drove a truck into a valve on the 800-mile line. That had spilled less than 1,000 barrels. Three men were charged with attempting to blow up the line last summer, but the explosive device they set didn't even dent the pipe. Trooper Lt. George Pollitt said the small hole caused by the latest explosion

O'Donnell Voters Read said the proposed facility would house classrooms for students in grades nine through 12, a gymnasium and an auditorium. Renovation in the elementary school building would mainly correct building deficiencies. If approved, Read said, taxes would rise about 11 percent beginning Oct. 1, 1978, from the present $1.79 per $100 valuation to $1.98.

Read also said March 1 is the last day for candidates in the upcoming school elections to file for positions on the ballot.

The terms of David Franklin and Kenneth Eaker expire this year, and so far, only Franklin has filed for a spot on the ballot, Read said.

Absentee voting in that race will begin March 13 and will continue through er, a spokesman for the federal Alaska Pipeline Office.

Tanker trucks were dispatched to take away the oil that workers siphoned from large pools around the elevated portion of the line. By late Wednesday, nearly 1, 000 barrels of spilled oil - clean enough for use - already had been loaded into trucks and taken to the nearby North Pole refinery.

Oil-laden snow was trucked out.

Alyeska personnel, state troopers and a military demolition team also worked through the night to uncover additional clues. Investigators found a hole at the base of the depression and a black stain on the snow, which they believed were the remains of a primer cord for explo-

The spill was the fourth of any significance for the line, which moves oil from the Prudhoe Bay fields.

The previous leaks, including an explosion at Pump Station No. 8 in which one person was killed and five were injured, were attributed to human error.

The exact time of Wednesday's explosion was not known - it varied from noon to 3 p.m. local time - although the spill was reported by a private pilot who flew over the area in early afternoon. The flow of oil was reduced to a trickle by about 8 p.m. The effectiveness of Alyeska's highly sophisticated leak detection system was not clear. Alyeska and federal officials initially reported that the system, based in the control center in Valdez, had not detected the spill. Niver later said the system had picked up something. "They knew something was happening ... The instruments did indicate a leak.

But the leak had been reported by then,

Appealing for an end to such support, the Rev. Miguel d'Escoto chided United States congressmen and the State Department for believing Somoza's pronouncements in favor of human rights and constitutional government and called the Nicaraguan leader "the thief who has stolen

The United States had President Nixon and found him intolerable, yet when compared with Gen. Somoza even his Nixon's) greatest critic would have to admit that he was like a child with first communion purity," d'Escoto told a House International Relations subcom-

It was the second in a series of hearings before a panel headed by Rep. Don Fraser. D-Minn. The hearings are aimed at determining whether human rights abuses are aided by military assistance to foreign governments.

As was the case with Indonesia in the first day's hearing. State Department officials found themselves on the defensive against criticism that arms aid encourages repression.

The theme is likely to be repeated in later hearings dealing with the Philippines, Thailand, Morocco and Iran, all of which are among the nations that are examined in a lengthy State Department report issued last week at congressional be-

For Nicaragua, where the Somoza family has been in power for four decades, arms sales agreements worth $2.5 million were proposed in each of the last two years. One was signed, but neither went through because of United States' concern about alleged human rights viola-

A pending request, supported by the State Department, is for $150,000 for training of Nicaragua's National Guard. Sally M. Shelton, Deputy Assistant Sec retary of State for Inter-American Affairs, said the department has "on numerous occasions' expressed concern about the situation, but sees improvement during the past year.

'Although problems remain, it is our opinion that marked progress has been manifested since early 1977," she said.

She described as "significant" changes the lifting of martial law that had been in effect since 1974, an easing of press censorship, and despite "a few disturbing reports recently ... a marked dimunition of of charges of serious human rights violations by the National Guard.

What in the World is happening today?

Sparked by progressive dedicated teachers, today's students are taking an increasingly active interest in the world at large. One way they are getting the information they want is through the classroom use of daily newspapers.

Daily newspapers are serving as a vital addition to the list of resources available to teachers. Within the pages of daily newspapers, there is current information relating to virtually every area of study. Subjects such as social studies, economics, science and geography are brought vividly to life in current news articles:

Newspaper reading also contributes to a child's grasp of language and improves writing, spelling, and English usage skills.

Perhaps most important, newspapers can make children aware of the events and ideas which shape their world, helping them to become informed and participating members of society.

This newspaper offers special educational services to teachers in its circulation area. Teachers not familiar with these services, are invited to write or telephone for complete information.

Anti-Inflation Support Soug

NEW YORK (AP) - The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, saying "this administration does not intend to let inflation get out of hand," sought support from influential business executives Thursday for the president's anti-inflation and tax propos-

'As leaders in the business and financial community, you understand fully the seriousness of our inflation problem and you can play a critical role in conveying to the public the importance of success in this program," Charles Schultze told about 500 luncheon guests of The Conference Board.

'I hope and trust that we can count on your support in this endeavor.'

The Conference Board, made up of top executives of some of the nation's leading corporations, performs research on various business topics and often serves as a spokesman for business interests.

Speaking in the posh Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria, Schultze reviewed the development during the Vietnam War of the nation's inflation problem. Retail prices have increased at a rate of 6 to 61/2 percent a year for the past

"The inflation continues today largely on the momentum generated during those turbulent years," Schultze said.

"Businesses raise prices to recapture wage and other cost increases granted in the past, and in anticipation of wage hikes in the future. Workers, seeing prices rising, press for wage adjustments to protect themselves against past and future price increases

ministration, voicing concern for the privacy and civil rights of student loan defaulters, said Thursday it has sharply restricted earlier plans to turn the bad debts over to private bill collectors.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., defended government-backed student aid programs that the administration is seeking to expand but blamed abysmal, negligent and inept management by HEW for the program's high default rate

In the past decade, he said, HEW has failed to ensure that money was going to the neediest students or to enforce its own rules on the administration and collection of student loans

Califano promised to intensify collection efforts but said he would rely primato do the bill collecting

Instead of turning over an estimated $430 million in unrepaid student loans to private collection agencies, as HEW had announced last September, Califano said private contracts will be let on an experimental basis in only two of the department's 10 regions.

The secretary said pilot programs will be run in the Southeast and Far West regions encompassing Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North and Arizona, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Guam, American Samoa and the Pacific Trust Territories

The two regions account for about onethird of all the federally insured student loans in default, Califano said.

He said private collectors would only receive cases after the federal government has made at least some effort to contact debtors and ask for repayment. In thousands of cases, that has never been done, Califano said.

"In carrying out these efforts, we will respect the privacy and civil rights of the borrowers," Califano pledged, adding that federal laws prohibiting harassment or intimidation would be scrupulously

Meanwhile, in an effort to track down defaulters in another federally assisted loan program Califano said the Internal Revenue Service to support legislation that would remove the confidentiality restrictions on some IRS information.

Present law prevents the tax collecting agency from disclosing any information it collects on individual taxpayers to anyone outside the government.

Califano proposed amending that law to permit IRS to give educational institutions current addresses of former students who have defaulted under the National Direct Student Loan Program. That program, which receives federal funds but is administered by colleges and universities, is estimated to have more than $600 million in uncollected loans and an even higher default rate than the Federally Insured Student Loan Pro-

President Carter's proposed "voluntary deceleration of wage and price increaswould help end the inflationary spiral, Schultze insisted. After the president made the proposal during his State of the Union message, many business and labor spokesmen expressed skepticism over the success of such voluntary controls.

Schultze said the president's proposed tax reductions, including a $17 billion cut in personal income taxes, would stimulate continued economic recovery but would not add to inflation. Some critics have charged that the income tax cuts would just barely offset large recent increases in Social Security levies.

"If the tax program is enacted, the growth in consumer spending will be raised and business investment plans should strengthen," Schultze said. He predicted that unemployment would be cut from 6.6 percent in the last quarter of 1977 to 51/2 to 6 percent by the end of

Acknowledging that cold weather, the coal strike and weak auto sales resulted in disappointing economic showings last month, Schultze expressed strong confidence that the economy was basically

TILTON, Ill. (AP) — Tilton, population 2,500, is a town without a zip code, and city officials say the refusal of the Postal Service to provide one hurts financially

"We're losing tax money," says Mayor Herschel Jones, who contends that neighboring Danville is getting Tilton's share of some state taxes.

Tilton has even sued, unsuccessfully, to get its own zip

The town shares one with Danville, a city of 42,000 to the northeast. A Tilton resident's mailing address actually is Danville, 61832, although the Postal Service says it is all right for Tilton to be substituted for Danville in the address.

When someone from Tilton purchases a car in nearby Indiana, he must pay Illinois a use tax. The state refunds part of that tax to the community in which the person lives, based on the address listed by the person, said Reg Ankrom of the Illinois Revenue Department.

"Any time people list Tilton as their address, Tilton gets the money," said Ankrom. "If they list their address as Danville, that city gets the money.'

Mexico Oil Fields Producing

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - Mexico's southeastern oilfields, in the states of Tabasco, Chiapas, and Veracruz, are now producing 1 million barrels of crude oil a day - about 81 percent of the nation's total production of 1.235 million bar-

By the end of this year, according to the state oil company Petroleos Mexicanos, Mexico could export 450,000 barrels. Production is expected to reach 1.694 million barrels of crude per day by the end of 1978. Pemex reported that 90 percent of the 9.6 million cubic feet of gas produced in the southeastern zone is being utilized.

Russians Ban Film Effort

Poor Joe Wambaugh. For an ex-cop, he sure gets into a lot of hot water. He's still in the process of suing the producers of "The Choirboys," the film version of his last novel, and now the Russians have banned his latest effort. "The Black Marble.

The big Soviet sneer developed over the small matter of a martini, it seems. The main character of the book is a vodka-guzzling cop named Valnikov, who drinks only Stolichnaya. That's where the Russians come in.

As Wambaugh told the New York Times, he concoted the Black Marble with the this, "the greatest martini ever made." concoted a Black Marble Martini ad campaign. But permission was needed from the Soviets who export Stoli-

Says Wambaugh, "We sent galleys to the Comissar of Trade or whatever. He reads it and says, 'Nyet. The book is anti-Soviet.' The world will never know we created t world's greatest martini. A very sad end to all this.

As with all his novels, there's already talk of filming 'The Black marble." But Wambaugh's learned his lesson on that count.

"Since I left the police department I've been drinking too much and my morals have been deteriorating, so since I have to become a producer, and make a movie that's faithful to "The Black Marble."

Residents Resent Crowding

BALTIMORE CORNER, Md. (AP) - Are there two or three residents of Baltimore Corner?

That's the closest thing to a controversy in the tiny Eastern Shore town that, one citizen said, gets "comers and goers now, but no comers and stayers."

William Collier, owner of the general store and filling station, is quite definite about the population of the hamlet at junction of Maryland 312 and Maryland 313 in Caroline

"Just my wife and I, that's it," he said. "She tends the store, mostly. I have another job, and we live in that white house next door.'

Across the road and down a bit sits a mobile home, but the occupant doesn't count as a true Baltimore Cornerian, according to the 69-year old storekeeper.

"A single fellow lives there," Collier said with a twinkle in his eye, "but he's outside the town limits."

William Bradley, 58, the trailer's occupant, doesn't agree. "I've lived here 15 years," It really doesn't matter much. Baltimore Corner is unincorporated, with no government of its own and none of the financial aid formulas or other headaches of bigger communities to worry about.

For a mere $2,000 Plimpton rented himself out to make a "personal appearance" at a party in Washington, D.C. the socialize capital.

Many veteran hostesses were incensed, however, at the notion of hiring someone to liven up your party. said famed party-thrower, Kitty Miller, "I think the idea is insulting."

Plimpton was on the defense however, in a recent issue of Women's Wear Daily. "The papers tried to make it sound as if the party were being given by a businessman when it was the official opening of an office," argued our modern-day Walter Mitty. "It's called a personal appearance-and people get paid for that all the time...it's the same as being asked to entertain.

tribes, estimated that 88 percent of the jobs probably would be filled by non-Intricof Associates, and its findings were contingent on all parties accepting the proposed settlement prepared by a White House task force.

The report also said that Maine could receive nearly $2.4 million in new tax revenues because of increased business activities resulting from Indian tribal investments.

The task force has suggested settling claims to 12.5 million acres of land through a $25 million payment from the federal government, a $1.7 million state payment each year for 15 years and the sale of 300,000 acres at $5 an acre by 14 large landowners.

The plan would allow the Indians to purchase another 200,000 acres at fair market value.

Child's Search For Toy With Candle Thought To Be Cause Of Fatal Fire BALTIMORE (AP) - A lighted can-cidentally set fire to a piece of furniture

dle, used by a child to hunt for a ball, was tentatively blamed Thursday for the nine-alarm apartment fire that killed a city policeman and left 77 tenants home-

Patrolman Edgar J. Rumpf, 33, was trapped by flames and smoke when he reentered the Beethoven North apartments looking for residents. Authorities said he had turned in the first alarm while on routine patrol and helped lead at least two children to safety. The blaze broke out Wednesday afternoon when fire officials said a 10-year-old boy living in a second-floor apartment ac-while looking for a lost ball.

The child became frightened and ran from the building to a pharmacy across the street to call his mother, investigators The fire, meanwhile, spread rapidly in the five-story structure, part of a twobuilding complex converted to fashionable apartments 10 years ago. A total of about 200 persons live in the twin build-

CITY ON ICE — Bobhouses are crowded close together on New Hampshire's Lake Winnipesaukee to form a small city on Meredith Bay. Snowplows clear streets on the

Ice Fishing Now Easy Sport

Color television, no less, is what Leon Gregg of Weare, a 53-year-old construction worker, has in his bobhouse on Lake Winnipesaukee

The early day ice fisherman bundled up, chopped a hole through the ice with a long chisel, baited the gear and waited in the cold for a bite

Between bites, the angler thought solitary thoughts, serene in the wide-open and soul-cleansing cold twixt sky and ice. But then came progress in the form of claustrophobic bobhouses over the ice holes.

Then, as any house, the bobhouse was improved, enlarged, modernized, outfitted, winterized, decorated, heated, furnished, insulated, glazed, lighted, shingled, electrified and otherwise made liva-

Livable indeed. Gregg's place on the ice sleeps three, has storm windows, liguid propane gas heat, a portable toilet and a kitchen.

It's estimated that there may be as many as 2,500 bobhouses on Winnipesaukee's 44,586 acres - from the sparsely populated bay where Gregg sets up to congested Sudith Bay, where the houses make up a tiny city, complete with snowplowed "streets" to handle the traffic.

Gregg's bobhouse is an example of the splendor of the neighborhood on the ice off Leavitt Beach in Meredith.

Gregg's neighbor, Peter Picken, 35, part owner of a printing company, has not one but two bobhouses, one of them 8 by 12 feet, so large that a flatbed truck was needed to haul it to the lake from North Chelmsford, Mass.

Picken shares an 8-by-10 bobhouse with friends. "We've had two families in the houses over the weekend," Picken says with pride.

Picken's houses have triple bunks, folding couches, tailored curtains, five-foot counters, gas lighting and kitchens and CB radio to communicate while zooming around the lake aboard his snowmobile But the jewel of Picken's neighborhood sits between his two houses - a chemical toilet in an outhouse larger than some of the humbler bobhouses in the vicinity. For all this, Picken averages a catch of about 25 lake trout a year. The simplest system and approach and the purists would say the most true is exemplified by Mark Kurahara of Belmont, a 26-year-old teacher of emotionally troubled teen-agers at the Spaulding Youth Center in Tilton.

Kurahara prefers no bobhouse at all, just warm clothes and the simplest of gear. He comes onto the ice every day to set his traps for cusk, a much less glamorous fish than the trout, a lowly bottom dweller, a fresh water relative of the simple and sturdy cod.

"I like it out in the open," says Kurahara, who often brings his charges from the school with him to initiate them into the silent joys of ice fishing.

Like other purists, Kurahara has little use for snowmobiles which buzz about

MATADOR - Plans are underway for the 41st annual Father-Son Banquet and Union Youth Church services, both sponsored by Matador Lions Club.

The church service will be Sunday at the United Methodist Church and the banquet will be Thursday at the Motley County School gymnasium.

Entertainment for the boys and their dads will be provided by the Texas Tech Puppeteers of Lubbock, a group that has entertained for the annual Mother-Daughter banquet here the past two sea-

The Father-Son Banquet was begun here by the late Paul Eubank, when he taught in the Matador schools and served as scoutmaster. He was later a member of the Texas Legislature. He also started the Union Church service honoring the youth of the community.

Eubank was a lieutenant in the Navy when he died in combat in the Pacific. John V. Stevens if general chairman of the banquet, and Ronnie vandiver is chairman for the youth service.

'Crime Avalanche' Assails Lubbock Police Detectives

heaviest snowfall this year fouling city streets, police detectives sought to cope with yet another storm: a small avalanche of serious crime that included four armed robberies and a murder, all within a 4 1/2-hour period.

Raymond Booker, 34, of 1017 E. 29th St., was killed following what witnesses said was an argument over a dice game at a local tavern. Police were called at 11:10 p.m.

Wednesday to 3607 Zenith Ave., where they found Booker sprawled in a small room at the rear of the club. He had been shot three times in the chest and once in the thigh, police said. Witnesses said three men apparently were involved in the game when one became enraged and hit another participant in the mouth with a beer mug. A suspect reportedly then stepped back and shots

Services for Booker are pending with Jamison Funeral Home.

Sandwiched around the fatal shooting were four armed robberies, beginning about 9 p.m. Wednesday with a residential holdup at an elderly couple's home.

The 78-year-old victim told officers that two men came to his front door and said the tire on their car was flat. The men asked to use the telephone, but were advised to go to another house. The suspects told the victim they already had tried two other residences, so the elderly man relented

As the man and his 74-year-old wife sat in the living room, the visitor made his call but told the couple he got no answer. He asked if the pair could wait a few minutes, then try again.

At that point one of the men reportedly said that if he could have change for a quarter, the pair would leave.

But as the victim attempted to check his pockets for change one of the men produced a knife and demanded all his money - about $30. His partner reportedly took a television set from the kitchen, meanwhile.

The duo reportedly then left through the front door and fled in an unknown direction.

Just 90 minutes later as Jimmie Aguilar, 25, tried to make cigarette change for a tall, black man, he too was surpised by a suspect's weapon. The bandit demanded all the receipts at the Fina Station at 34th Street and Avenue A, then told Aguilar to "get back" before fleeing west around the side of the building. Police said the take was undetermined.

In perhaps the most bizarre incident, a 49-year-old Austin auditor told sheriff's officers he was abducted at a Clovis Road club by two men The victim, Hillard D. Taylor, who reportedly is in the city on assignment at Texas Tech University, said he was forced into his own vehicle, a green Pinto station wagon, by two men who warned him "don't look at us.

Taylor said his glasses were removed and his head was shoved down onto the dashboard while one of the men drove for about five minutes. At that point, Taylor told officers, he was ordered out of the car and told to raise his arms. While he did, one of the suspects took his wallet, containing about $60, then searched him further.

Taylor said he then was told to get back in the car. Another 10 minutes of driving passed,

Taylor said, and the suspects wanted to know if there were anything in the vehicle they could use to bind their captive. Taylor showed them some duct tape. He was bound hand and foot, he said.

Moments later, the men then covered Taylor's head with his jacket and admonished him to "play it cool." Taylor said the duo continued to drive around as if they were seeking something, Taylor said

Finally, the car stopped, the victim said, and Taylor was told to lie still or "I'll blow your head off.

A few minutes later the two men returned, Taylor said, and the victim told police he heard the sound of rattling paper at that point. One of the men reportedly asked his companion, "Did you get a lot of money?

Taylor said that sometime later his captors left the vehicle after warning him: "Lay there and don't move for 30 minutes or I'm gonna shoot you.'

Taylor said he waited about half that long, then freed himself. Unfamiliar with the city, he said he drove for some time before finding the sheriff's office at Main Street and Avenue H. Meanwhile, police had been called to the Circle Gulf Station, 6280 Ave. H, about 1:10 a.m. to investigate a reported armed robbery. Attendant Cecil Thrailkill said two men parked a green Pinto at the side of the station and one entered and asked for a certain brand of oil. As the clerk attempted to go to the rear of the station to get the oil, one man reportedly struck his arm and Thrailkill For French Left said he turned to face a short-barreled Thrailkill said one of the men then took the register keys from his coat pocket and told him to turn around. As he complied, Thrailkill said, the suspect struck him in the back of the head. Thrailkill said he was unconscious about five minutes before calling police, who found the victim bleeding when they arrived.

The attendant declined medical attention and told officers the suspects got away with about $220.

After talking with the kidnapped victim later, police recovered a live, .32-caliber round from the green Pinto and a key holder and tobacco pouch reportedly taken during the service station robbery at

Detectives theorized Thursday that the same two men may have been involved in three of the night's robbery incidents. The crime wave spilled over into the daylight hours when a bandit entered the Mackenzie Village Cleaners, 1730 Parkway Drive, and held up owner Millard Williams. The 72-year-old proprietor had lost about $60 during an afternoon robbery Jan. 24.

On Thursday, the young, black suspect walked into the shop, Williams said, and was producing a gun as he opened the

"Give me your money," the bandit told Williams.

"You want my wallet?" the owner asked. "No. I want what's in the register," the holdup artist replied.

With that the dialogue ended, Williams said, and the bandit fled east with about

The criminal onslaught didn't stop there

Cathy Robinson of 1712 E. Dartmouth St. said someone broke into her residence Thursday and stole assorted items valued at nearly $1,200. Taken were jewelry, appliances, clothing and other items, the victim said.

Someone who forced his way into Derwood Taylor's 2710 Bates St. property during the past week apparently was responsible for about $3,500 damage.

The victim told police someone smashed sheetrock walls, broke out 72 panes of glass and smashed drawers and kitchen cabinets.

A 24-year-old Lubbock woman said she was walking to her house Thursday when a youngster stared at her, then yelled an obscenity. The woman said she ignored the youngster but was stunned when an object struck her in the left eye near the temple. When police arrived they found the woman bleeding heavily from a gash.

A police search for the juvenile was unavailing. A broken overhead door apparently was the entry point for burglars who struck a business at 1941 Texas Ave. Wednesday. Charles Arnold said the burglars stole a tool box and tools valued at

Meanwhile, apartment owner Ben Snyder filed two reports with police after miscreants inflicted nearly $2,800 worth of damage to his vehicle and property.

Snyder, of 1300 E. 65th Drive, told police someone broke out all the windows in his car, then entered an office at an apartment complex at 1017 E. 29th St. and broke out $2,000, worth of windows there. Also stolen were a checkbook, a wall clock and some office records, after which about $200 worth of paint was spilled on the surroundings.

Still other burglars "dropped in" on a business at 2323 34th St. Thursday. Paul Alexander said the intruders entered through a roof duct and stole $1,500 worth of power tools, a small pistol, some change and a radio.

Next door, at the El Sombrero, 2321 34th St., Tony Rangel said he, too, had been visited by rooftop intruders. Rangel said the burglars stole change from a ci garette machine, meat, shrimp and cheese. He estimated his loss at $350.

A couple of Lubbockites who police said apparently had been drinking returned home to find their apartment ransacked. A 23-year-old woman said $500 was missing from its hiding place in a bedside Bible.

Leonard Sanchez of 2101 13th St., No. 8, and Elida Reves of 908 E. 34th St. No. 6. both said their televisions were taken by burglars who pried open their front

Separating Surgery Planned For Siamese Twins

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Surgery to separate Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen, joined at the top of their heads. may be performed as early as next week, a University of Utah Medical Center spokesman said Thursday.

The twins, born Oct. 18 to David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, were to enter the center for tests this weekend to determine whether surgery can be performed safely.

It would be the second separation of Siamese twins in Utah this year. Doctors who separated two unidentified girls Monday at Primary Children's Hospital said successful separation surgery with one or more twin surviving - has been achieved only 20 times in medical

The separated twins were listed in critical condition Wednesday, although a hospital spokesman said one had shown marked improvement.

Poll Indicates Gain

PARIS (AP) — A poll conducted by the news magazine Le Point indicates the Socialist-Communist left will receive 52 percent of the vote in the first round of the national elections in March to 44 percent for the center-right coalition that has governed France for 20 years.

It was a gain of 1 percentage point for the left since the magazine's last poll in November. A computer projection said the leftists would win 253 National Assembly seats to 220 for the coalition if the Communists and Socialists revived their reement to run only one leftist candidate in each runoff election.

Spinks Seeks Early Retirement

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I want to retire young," 24-year-old Leon Spinks said Thursday, the day after he won the heavyweight championship of the world

Spinks did not know his immediate plans but it looks as though they include two fights, including the rematch with Ali, despite a World Boxing Council edict that he fight Ken Norton next.

While Spinks contemplated a vacation, Ali packed for a five-day public appearance tour to Bangladesh. "I'm gonna let him have the title for a couple of months to enjoy it, then I will return," said the 36-year-old ex-champion, who is now in the position — his legs and reflexes willing - to become the first man to win the heavyweight title Spinks said he would certainly give Ali a rematch, and Top Rank Inc., the pro-motor of Wednesday night's upset, is planning an Ali-Spinks rematch for $5 mil-However, Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, plans to put Spinks in against another challenger before he meets Ali. Arum has a contract to promote Spinks' next six fights and he didn't say where Norton is on that list. "Norton is among the people who will be considered," Milton Chwasky, Spinks' attorney, said at a news conference Thursday morning Another news conference, scheduled by Jose Sulaiman, the WBC president, was called off.

Sulaiman and the Norton camp say they have an agreement signed by Ali and Spinks that the winner of their fight would sign by April 5 to defend against Norton within 90 days of that date, or be stripped of title recognition.

"Are you kidding," said Arum? "Sulaiman is a joke. Spinks will fight somebody respectable next, and then fight Ali again. Spinks hasn't agreed to any-

So, the ex-Marine from St. Louis finds himself in the state of pleasant confusion after just eight professional fights. Nobody ever has won the title with less pro experience. Pete Rademacher is the only one to fight for the title with less, making his pro debut in a title bid against Floyd Patterson, in which he was stopped in six rounds in 1957.

Spinks went in to the fight without apparently being in any awe of Ali and he still was a pretty cool customer the morning after his stunning win.

Asked how it felt to be the champion, he replied: "I knew I was the champion of the world. The decision came last night." But he did admit that he lay awake last night and kept saying to himself, "I did it. I did it." Ali made no alibis for his defeat, saying "I gave the best I could. I knew he was a good fighter. What surprised me was his strength and stamina. "I'll be back. I'll be the first man to win three times. I underestimated him." Now, after 23 championship title fights, Ali no longer is champion. But he's anything but out of the championship picture.

Tech basketball coach Gerald Myers in-Saturday night, then took another verbal crack at the officials of the Houston game Thursday

Tech lost an 81-77 verdict to the University of Houston Wednesday night, and in the contest, Myers drew a pair of technical fouls. But, Saturday, the Raiders must face the 12th-ranked Longhorns who whipped Tech 101-86 in Austin last month.

"It's an extremely important game," Myers observed at Thursday's weekly press conference. "Yes, we have a chance; we've got a chance to beat anybody, but you have to be playing right. It'll be a lot tougher against their zone, but we have to attack it.

'But, we're not going into the game with a negative attitude.

Brewster, the 6-8 freshman from El Paso Bowie, came off the bench to score 11 points and grab 11 rebounds. "We're thinking of using him with (6-9 Joe) Baxter and (6-7 Mike) Russell on the front line," Myers said. "And that's not a demotion for Thad Sanders (who started against Houston). Ralph just played a very good game, and it will give us a big lineup.

Myers said, concerning the Houston game, that Tech made some mistakes near the end. Tech was playing without 6-5 starter Kent Williams, who is sidelined for the rest of the year with a broken jaw, and "it will take us a game or two to get (a new working combination) in shape. I think we can get our lineup in shape be fore the tournament (which begins Feb.

"There is no question of our guys re-dicated he may start freshman Ralph we can bounce back, but we have to Brewster against nationally ranked Texas come back with the same type of effort."

referee Tony Stigliano in the opening seconds of the second half, at a time when Myers claims he had not said anything. 'He had warned me in the first half when Guy Lewis (the UH coach) got a 'T.' He warned me, and I wasn't saying anything.

"I feel," said Myers, "that he had predetermined that (technical) on me." Myers took the opportunity to talk about officials and point to the need of a full-time director of officials. Dan Spika, who was at Wednesday's game, handles the job now on a part-time basis, but Myers said the ex-coach needed more time to handle all the duties.

"It's a full-time job, training officials. It's something that takes time. Dan will do better at it next year (with the year's experience), but it is still a full-time job. I think the officials and coaches both want "He should assign the officials-I'm not sure who assigned them this year-so as to get the best guys at the key games. "Like other night, I feel that the pressure of the game got to one of them.

In another area of interest, Myers indicated he had not heard from his official protest of the incident where Williams' jaw was broken. Myers claimed after looking at films of the Aggie game that Aggie forward Willie Foreman hit Williams with an elbow.

While here Wednesday, Spika viewed the video tape and then returned to the Southwest Conference with the film.

DHS, Mats Meet Again

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Ladies and gentlemen, in the blue corner, standing 30 feet, 7 inches and weighing in at 975 pounds, the Estacado Mata-

And in the maroon corner, standing 30 feet, 6 inches and weighing in at 885, the defending District 3-AAA champions, the Dunbar Panthers.

Gentlemen, let's keep it clean. Now, shake hands and at the buzzer, come out shooting.

There's a heavyweight fight, of sorts, scheduled for tonight in the Coronado gym at 8 p.m. And it pits first-half district champion, Estacado against rival Dun-bar, the loop's second half victor. And to add a little seasoning to the stew, there is more than just pride on the line when the two state-ranked teams tangle. For one thing, the winner of tonight's brawl will win the outright title in District 3-AAA. A nice incentive. And for another, the victor advances to the bidistrict round of the state playoffs where it will meet the winner of District 4-AAA, probably the state's Numero Uno team, Mineral Wells. The playoff, anticipated by most local high school fans all season, came about when Estacado went unbeaten in the first round and Dunbar turned around and pulled the same trick in the second

Dunbar, the state's No. 4 team, stands 26-4 for the year, while Estacado, the fifth-ranked team in the Lone Star State, lays claim to a likewise respectable 25-4 mark. Estacado's record is the best in the school's short history.

To do a little backtracking, the teams have met twice this year with Estacado winning an 81-79 overtime decision in the Dunbar gym and the Panthers taking a narrow 73-72 victory in the Estacado gym. Both games were witnessed by SRO crowds. Another large turnout is expected tonight.

Both coaches, J.J. Wood of Estacado and Joe McWilliams of Dunbar, agreed that the record book can be chunked out the window when the duo takes the floor

"We've had some good games with them in the past, all right," Wood said, after the Matadors had clinched the firsthalf crown by knocking off doormat Lake View. "But that won't mean a thing this time. It's just this one now."

McWilliams echoed the same sentiments following the Panthers' win over Snyder Tuesday night which secured the second half crown for Dunbar, "Everytime we get together, it's a good game. Anything could happen. This time should be no different."

Never in the history of Estacado High have the Matadors managed to take the Panthers to the cleaners twice in the same season. Food for thought.

The Panthers, a well-balanced team which shoots from the inside and outside, is led by 6-6 postman Billy Don Hardaway, last year's Mr. Everything. Hardaway, a dominant force all year, has banged home 679 points in 30 games, while pulling down 428 rebounds. If given the opportunity, Hardaway could easily score 30 points or more in ev-

However, Greg Whitfield, a 6-3 guard, is the key to the Panthers' defensive machine. Whitfield, an outstanding jumper, has raked away 502 rebounds, tops in the city. He has also scored 440 points.

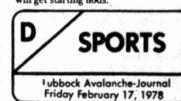

Estacado's main offensive punch comes from Alvin Harris. Although the 6-0 Harris does not lead the team in total points (postman Dewey Turner has garnered 417 points, while Harris has 396), he pulls the majority of the load in the Gungho Department.

It was a last-second shot in overtime by the scrappy Harris that lifted Estacado to its win over Dunbar. And it was also a couple of key assists by Harris in the second Dunbar clash that almost pulled the game out of the bag for the Mats.

Like the Panthers, Estacado has a key defensive weapon. Freddy Ivory is the Mats leading rebound man with 252.

Other starters for Estacado include 5-11 Mike Chatham and 6-3 Willie Powell. Powell, who has been hampered with an ankle injury the past two weeks, is one of Estacado's key weapons from the 15-20

For Dunbar, 6-3 Dwight Brown, 5-8 Wayne Williams and 5-10 Mike Baldwin will get starting nods.

SWC Indoor Meet Today

FORT WORTH (Special)-The Southwest Conference indoor track and field championships will be run today and to save everybody the trouble they might as well draw the winner out of a hat.

"I don't know why basketball coaches complain about one-point losses," said Baylor coach Clyde Hart. "We lost last year's meet by a half a point. If someone wins it this year by a full point it will be like a runaway.

Close and exciting competition is expected in not only the team race, but in several individual contests as well with defending champion Houston, Baylor, Texas, Texas A&M, Rice and Arkansas all hoping to capture the title.

Texas Tech coach Corky Oglesby will be trying to move up into that group, aided by his distance runners and one of the favored long jumpers.

Five defending champions will be back and despite the loss of Texas' star sprinter, Johnny Jones, the 60-yard dash could be the most exciting race of the night.

Jones will miss the indoor meet because of a hamstring pull suffered in the Longhorns' Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame, but Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey would probably have been the favorite Arkansas distance runner Niall O'Shaughnessy, who is having an outstanding indoor season, will likely compete in the 1,000-yard run tonight, where he set a conference record of 2:06.75.

Earlier in the indoor season O'Shaughnessy upset indoor world record holder Dick Buerkle and last weekend in Oklahoma he anchored the Arkansas distance medley relay team to a winning time of 9:41.60, less than three seconds off the world record

Other than O'Shaughnessy, the defending champions in action will be Houston's Cecil Overstreet in the long jump; Baylor's Mark Collins in the 440-yard dash (although he will probably run in the 600 tonight); Houston shot putter Randy Coffman and Arkansas' Steve Baker in the two-mile

Overstreet jumped 25-41/2 on his last try in the 1977 meet which gave Houston the team championship with 431/2 points. Baylor finished with 43, Texas A&M had 41. Texas 381/2 and Rice 35

Overstreet got that winning jump after Tech's Jim MacAndrew had taken the lead his final jump. MacAndrew will challenge Overstreet again this week, after winning at Oklahoma City last week with a lead measuring 25-2.

"MacAndrew is jumping well," said Oglesby, "but he his leg has been bothering him some. He hurt it in the triple jump at West Texas a couple of weeks

Tech will bid for a win in the distance medley this afternoon, one of the two events (with the shot put) to be finished during the afternoon. Tech will use a unit of Charles Green on the 440. Randy Yates on the 880, Ricky McCormick on the three-quarter and Terrell Pendleton on the mile. At the WT meet two weeks ago, Pendleton had a 4:07.8 mile

Pendleton will also anchor the two-

Green will challenge Dickey and TCU's Don Collins in the 60-yard dash.

gan, an optometrist, fired his way into the first-round lead of the $200,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament Thursday with a 5-under-par 66.

Morgan sank birdie putts ranging from 10 to 30 feet over the demanding Riviera Country Club course and held a 2-stroke lead going into today's second round of Deadlocked at 68 were Danny Edwards and Forrest "Fuzzy" Fezler.

In the group at 69 were Lanny Wadkins, former U.S. Open champion Lou Graham, Lyn Lott and George Cadle.

Morgan finished late in the afternoon and said the early winds were bothersome. But he had no excuse for hitting his drive into the trees on the 18th hole On that hole he cut a 3-iron 30 yards from the pin, pitched to 15 feet and made a par-saving putt. On his birdies, he sank a 10-footer at the first hole, 20-footers at both the third and fifth and a 30-footer at the sixth. He bogeyed both the fourth and seventh but' needed only a 4-foot birdie putt on the ninth to finish with a 32, three under par, for the front nine. The optometrist sank 20-foot putts for birdies at the 10th and 13th holes and then parred on in for a 34 on the back Jack Nicklaus, in only his second tournament of 1978, shot a 1-over-par 72, but said, "I played better than I scored."

Also at 72 was defending champion Tom Purtzer. Hale Irwin, winner here in 1976, was a stroke further back at 73. Only 11 of the 147 players bettered par on a sunny day but one that opened with chilly temperatures and winds up to 35 miles an hour. The winds abated later in the day.

I think this is a course where, if conditions stay the same, it won't take a real low number to win," Morgan said.

Tech Chooses Assistant SID

Joe Hornaday, a Texas Tech graduate, has been named assistant sports information director at Tech, athletic director JT King announced Thursday.

Hornaday, now employed at the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, will begin work the first week in March. He will be working with Keith Samples, who was promoted from the assistant position to sports information director last month, succeeding Ralph Carpenter, who went to Ole Miss with football coach Steve Sloan.

Hornaday, 31, has been working for the Star-Telegram sports department since January of 1973. Prior to that, he edited a paper while he was in military service and stationed in Germany. He is a native of Austin.

"It's easy. A couple of more $3 million-plus paychecks against pushovers and then maybe a $10 million killing for a fourth fight against Ken Norton, win or lose." That was the way the beautiful picture was painted to the rusting 36-yearold boxing champion of the world.

It looked inviting to Ali, although he fell into long periods of moodiness. There was one catch in it. Ali and all the brains and well-wishers around him reckoned without the grit and determination of a ring-raw, 24-year-old ex-Marine named Leon Spinks. They forgot that the gristly Spinks, 27 pounds lighter than the champion, with a four-inch shorter reach and only seven pro fights to throw against Ali's 17 years' experience, grew up in the ghetto of North St. Louis.

He learned his art on the streets where strong fists and a stouter heart were the main sources of survival. In these alley brawls, the more you got hit and the deeper the hurt the fiercer you fought back.

This was the scenario of the 15-round title fight Wednesday night in the Hilton Pavilion when Spinks, unawed by the Ali mystique and calling upon his rudimentary street skills, hammered out a split decision over the world's ring idol. "Ali was duped. Everybody around him told him this kid would be a pushover," said Gene Kilroy, one of the champion's advisers.

Ali manfully shouldered the blame. "I played around too much in the early rounds," he said. "What I didn't figure on was his stamina and his will to win." In the next breath, the aging ex-titleholder talked of another Ali miracle, a comeback that could make him the first man ever to win the heavyweight title

He had his championship taken away in 1967 because of refusal to enter military service and had to win it back after 312 years of mandated idleness. Another comeback now at age 36? It's unthinkable. Time has caught up with one of the finest fighting machines and most electrifying personalities the game

To attempt a return would only compound the saddest of tragedies.

What brought about such a sorrowful closing chapter to so brilliant a career? Why couldn't Ali, with all his wealth and success, have followed the example of Gene Tunney and Rocky Marciano and retired at the peak of the mountain?

That's the way Ali dreamed it. Then, with no more worlds to conquer, he could have set out to share the gift of gab and theatrical flair with people everywhere. He could do another "Roots" in Africa for television, portray a black Egyptian pharoah and go to Italy to do Hannibal.

There were two ideal moments for him to make the proper decision. The first on that stormy morning October 30, 1974 in Africa when he regained his title from George Foreman, the second Oct. 1, 1975 after he had beaten Joe Frazier a second time in the "Thrilla in Manila," one of the hardest fought of all heavy-

But Ali couldn't quit. Unknown to many, although he had earned close to $50 million in fight purses, the champion found himself financially strapped. His liquid assets were negligible. How could this come about?

Maybe the greates fighter who ever lived. All was less adroit in business acumen. He lived high, spent freely, trusted almost everyone.

Two divorces cost him dearly. Close friends say he was a sucker, a soft touch. a sucker for the sad story. The extent of his charitable donations and altruism were immense. Without seeking publicity he was constantly laying out $100,000 to rescue a Jewish rest home in New York, start a camp for underprivileged in Africa or making some similar gesture.

Friends say he invested in schemes that never materialized. He maintained a huge entourage of some 25 people. He carried them around the world with him. putting them up in the fanciest suites and underwriting the highest living standards. The rumor that Ali was being bled by the Muslims seems unfounded. Herbert Muhammad took one-third as manager - no more.

It was financial pressure that forced Ali to fight Alfredo Evangelista in Landover. Md , last May in what turned out to be a farce. Ali refused to train properly and get into shape. Supremely confident of his skills, he walked the tightrope of catastrophe.

The Spinks fight was one of these. Three weeks ago in training at Miami Beach Ali weighed 234 pounds. His footwork was slow, his reflexes dull. Then came a warning from Angelo Dundee, his longtime trainer: Don't take Spinks lightly. He could be tough.

Ali began Spartan training, almost like a cram the night before a big exam. He starved and ran himself down to 2241/2. That was not enough. Mentally, he wasn't ready. He tried to "spook" Spinks out of the fight by hamming it up in

Raider Women To Battle Texas

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Thursday brought cold temperatures and poor visibility to the Lubbock area, and Texas Tech women's basketball coach Gay Benson was taking a similarly dim view of her team's performance in a 91-69 loss to Houston Wednesday night.

"We just didn't hit our shots," she said. 'We got behind in the second half and tried to rush things, instead of working patiently. We got a lot of fouls on our post people, too.

"We were tired, and we just didn't move the ball. I was disappointed because we had had one of our best weeks of play last week."

After trailing by just two points at halftime, Tech shot only 28 per cent from the floor in the second half, and Houston pulled away for the victory, its first in four games with Tech this season. The problem now is to bounce back quickly because the Raiders face Texas, the nation's 11th-rated team, tonight at 7:30 in Lubbock Coliseum.

"I think we'll come back with a good effort." Benson said. "Our players were pretty upset with the way they played against Houston. It's important for us to play well against Texas, so we can get

Tech, 27-6, completes its regular season with games against South Plains College Feb. 20 and McMurry Feb. 21 and will then enter the AIAW zone tournament with an eye toward gaining berths in the state and regional tourneys.

Texas is 18-5 for the season after its Monday triumph over Texas A&M.

Tech and Texas were to have played Jan. 30 in Austin, but Tech could not get to Austin because of bad weather, and there is some concern that the Longhorns will be detained this time. They were to have left for Lubbock Thursday, but are now slated for departure this morning.

The Raiders are expected to go with their usual starting lineup tonight of Karla Schuette (9.1 points per game), D'Lynn Brown (15.0), Marilyn Payton (12.2), Cheryl Greer (7.2) and Rosemary Scott

Texas is expected to begin with its usual quintet of guard Alisha Nelson (1.2) -a Canyon product-forwards Kim Basinger (12.7) and Linda Waggoner (17.5) and Cathy Burns (11.8) and Retha Swindell (13.4) at the post spots.

Saturday night, UT will battle sixthranked Wayland Baptist in Plainview.

Tech, H-SU Slate Baseball Opener

ABILENE (Special)—Weather permitting, Texas Tech will begin its 1978 baseball season today with a doubleheader against Hardin-Simmons, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The same teams are scheduled to battle in a twin bill Saturday, starting at 1 p.m., but weather conditions may force postponement of the contests both days.

Tech coach Kal Segrist is concerned about the lack of practice outdoors that his team has had because of the poor weather. The Red Raiders have been outside to practice just seven days since beginning "spring" workouts Jan. 21, Segrist said

"We're a young team, and we really need the work," he added.

The Raiders count 23 freshmen and just seven lettermen among the 34 players on the 1978 squad.

Hardin-Simmons, which will begin its season today, also, has had weather problems, too, and Segrist is concerned that the games might have to be postponed.

They've got a clay infield down there. and they think it should drain pretty well. but it might be pretty sticky," he said. Segrist added that if the games can't be played this weekend, the teams will attempt to play early next week.

Tech's scheduled starting pitchers for today's twin bill are freshman lefthander Robert Bryant in the opener and frosh righthander Rick Hall in the nightcap.

Squadman David Bolton, 1-0 with a 3.38 earned-run avearage in 1976, will "definitely" start one of the games Saturday, Segrist said, probably the first. The second-game starter is expected to be either freshman Gary Moyer or freshman Larry Womble. The latter is a Plainview prod-

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff That old line about basketball being an indoor sport and immune to the elements just doesn't hold-if you'll pardon the pun-water, anymore.

And because of the weather conditions around the Lone Star State, Lubock Christian College's weekend games were in somewhat of a precarious situation late Thursday

The Chaparrals are due to host Panhandle State here at 7:30 p.m. tonight and then travel to Wichita Falls for a Texoma Conferece battle with Midwestern State University Saturday night. However, Panhandle mentor John Smith, when reached early Thursday afternoon, stated, "It 's a good thing we're not playing tonight, because we couldn't

And, if you'll recall, 17 days ago LCC was unable to get past Plainview in its attempt to travel to Goodwell for a game. And, it only stands to reason that if Panhandle can't make it here tonight, both games-the first one was reset for next Tuesday-will be written off.

Chaparral coach Darrell Price was bubbling over with joy Thursday, but it had nothing to do with basketball. Price's wife Anita gave birth to a 7 pound, 14 ounce girl, named Lindsy, at 11:15 a.m. And with Price due to be out of town the next two days, he was only haypy that

The Chaps will once again start guards Gary Norris and Edwin Miles, with Mike Kahler, who had six assists in a 93-81 loss to Wayland Tuesday, starting on the front line with Mike Wrinkle and Brian Fort-

Lowell Walker, who went 7-for-7 from the field and pulled in 11 rebounds, will see plenty of action.

Panhandle brings an 8-9 mark into tonight's game against the Chaps, who are 3-20. The Aggies have lost their last two outings-both at home-to Wayland (84-82) and to Eastern New Mexico (92-65).

Probable starters for the visitors will be 6-1 Bill Ingram, 6-2 Jamie Baby who is the team's top point producer with a 15.0 average, 6-3 Ray Marshall, 6-4 Ron Zink

State' Playoffs On

The state playoffs have arrived for teams in 5-AA, 5-A, 8-B, 12-B and 2-AAA as it's sudden death from here on out.

Although tonight and Saturday's games are still classified as "district" rather than "state" tilts, the losers will be eliminated and the winner will get a spot in the bidistrict round

District 3-A (Hereford) and 4-A (Roosevelt) will conclude their district tournaments and, if the winners tonight are different than the round robin champs, another tilt will be needed and the boys must have a champion by midnight Saturday, although the girls' champs don't have to be crowned until Feb. 25.

Here's a brief look at each of the playoffs on tap tonight:

5-AA - Tahoka is defending champion but was tabbed fifth in this year's race. After finishing 42 first round, Bulldogs

5-A — Defending champion Stanton was picked second, but went 7-1 in district, losing only to Shallowater in first round. Shallowater was picked third in league but also went 7-1, losing only to Stanton in second round.

8-B — New Home and Ropesville were picked to finish 1-2 in the preseason poll and that's exactly how they'll finish. However, defending champ Ropes was picked second and may have a thing or two to say about the final order. Ropes won the first half with a 6-1 ledger and New Home, 5-2 the first round, finished 7-0 the second half, a game ahead of

Insurance Company Exonerated In Laurie Goforth Case

AMARILLO (UPI) - State officials have exonerated an insurance firm that denied coverage to a teen-aged mother who suffered a heart attack and gave birth while in a coma, but her attorney said Thursday he may still file suit in the case.

The State Board of Insurance said Wednesday that American National Insurance Co. of Galveston acted properly in denying health coverage to Laurie Goforth, 18, of Borger, because she had experienced heart problems before applying for the policy.

Ricky Goforth, 21, and his wife had applied with American National for accident and health insurance coverage on Dec. 12, 1977. The company placed the policy under conditional acceptance pending its review of the couple's medical records.

On Dec. 17, 1977, Mrs. Goforth suffered a heart attack and was placed in intensive care where she was in a co-

American National, on Jan. 26, 1978, rejected Mrs. Goforth's application for health insurance, contending she was not qualified.

"By that time, she had had a baby, was in a coma and placed in intensive care," said William Berger, research director for the State Board of Insurance. "We felt possibly that the company had decided that since she had a heart attack, it would be a good time to turn her down.

The insurance board's investigation showed Mrs. Goforth actually had been hospitalized for a possible heart attack on Dec. 3-6, less than two weeks before applying for health insurance coverage. Investigators said she did not mention the heart problem when she ordered the insurance

George Snell, an Amarillo attorney representing Goforth, said he is reviewing the posscbility of legal action against American National despite the findings of the insurance board.

"It's possible they could not have violated any provisions of the insurance code and still be civilly liable," Snell

Snell said the insurance company promised to cooperate, but so far has failed to sent any of the information he requested.

"We're handicapped in that we have to rely on the information that they have," Snell said. "They told us if they pay anything, we're going to have to take it away from them.

Berger suid American National's underwriting rules prohibit the company from accepting a policy from a person who has suffered a heart attack until the applicant can show a two-year period without any heart trouble.

"The facts were that she was not eligible under the underwriting rules." Berger said. "The company looke bad because here's this young couple with a new baby and she's in a coma and the mean old insurance company's turned her down.

"That'f why we sent investigators, but the facts are that the company did not act improperly," Berger said. Although Snell said the state's investigators found the company followed insurance codes, he still questions if it made a reasonable underwriting decision in rejecting the application. He said the insurance board does not get involved in that aspect of the case hands approach 2 a.m., cars pick up North American and European tourists speed through Santiago in a rush to get are not bothered by the curfew because home as this city of four million settles in they go to bed early anyway. for another night of Latin America's longest-running curfew. more than four years, since the military overthrew the government of President Salvador Allende on Sept. 11, 1973. On the first day, the curfew began at 4 p.m., then it was put at 8 p.m and gradually moved back to what it is now.

Curfew Curbs Chileans' Style; Northern Tourists Don't Mind

In the metropolitan region, it lasts from 2 a.m. to 5:30 a.m. daily except Saturdays, when it begins at 3 a.m. It varies slightly in other regions, and shortened hours are sometimes announced for spe-

On Christmas and New Year, for example, the government let people in Santiago stay out all night. Curfew hours are reduced now in some coastal resorts because it is summer vacation season.

The curfew has forced changes in lifestyle on this traditionally late-to-bed, lateto-rise country. Dinners where guests once would have arrived for drinks at 10 and sat down to eat at midnight are forced to start at 8 or 9 so people can be on the way home by 1:30 a.m. Some restaurant owners and hotelkeepers have complained that the curfew posted in English and Spanish in all major hotels — hurts the tourist business.

SANTIAGO (AP) - When the clock's Ermita restaurant, told a reporter that "On the other hand Latin American tourists, principally Brazilians and Ar-Chileans have lived under a curfew for gentines, come from places where an intense nightlife is the custom and expect to find the same level of diversion in Santiago," Silva added.

> He said these tourists complain that their "inspiration" is cut off when restaurant personnel suggest that they leave before curfew time.

Some tourists get a taste of the curfew as soon as they land. Except during summer daylight saving hours. The twice-aweek Lufthansa flights from Frankfurt and New York reach here during the curfew. The airline serves breakfast to the passengers and plays music until the curfew ends and airport personnel have had time to get to work.

Spokesmen for taxi concerns complain that the curfew contributes to accidents because of the frantic race to get home on time. They say lifting it would create more jobs because taxis could work through the night.

But many people, regardless of their attitude toward the military government, find the early morning quiet to be a blessing. A European diplomat who has helped numerous political refugees leave busy street some nights that he was grateful when 2 a.m. arrived.

The curfew is part of the state of emergency under which the military governs. The state of emergency suspends all constituional guarantees, including political activity, free speech and press, and the right to hold meetings.

In the early days of the curfew, there were reports of violators being shot. Anyone out after curfew now is usually detained until daylight. Police sometimes order cars to stop by firing a shot in the air. Statistics released a few months ago showed an average of about 12 detentions

Althought other Latin American countries occasionally have applied curfews, there is nothing in recent memory to compare to Chile's. Argentina, despite the government's war with terrorists, has no curfew. Brazil did not enforce a curfew even during its last military coup, in 1964. A nine-month curfew in Lima was lifted in May. Some other Peruvian cities have been under brief curfews in recent months because of strikes.

After President Augusto Pinochet's victory in Chile's Jan. 4 plebiscite, a reporter asked if he might consider easing the state of emergency.

"Don't you like the curfew?" replied the army general. "Don't you sleep well

January Construction Of Houses Curtailed By Bad Winter Weather

duced construction of new houses by the can still make a difference. Economists largest amount on record last month, caution that it may take several months severe winter weather, the Commerce Department said Thurs-

New housing starts declined by 29 percent in January, surpassing the previous record of 27 percent set in January 1977 during another period of harsh weather. However, housing picked up last year when the weather improved, and it became one of the best years in history for housing construction. Building permits for new housing declined 15 percent in January to an annual rate of 1.5 million units.

Economists are predicting another strong year for housing in 1978 but are expecting a decline from the 1.99 million housing starts in 1977 to about 1.85 million this year.

Michael Sumichrast, economist for the National Association of Home Builders, said heavy rain particularly affected construction in the Far West. Below-freezing weather in the Northeast and Midwest made it difficult to lay mortar for bricks. and blizzards cut down on some construction projects, he said. .

The department adjusted figures for

WASHINGTON (AP) - Builders re- seasonal variations, but unusual weather to establish a trend

The housing report follows equally bleak figues for consumer spending and industrial production in January.

On Wednesday, the government said retail sales fell 3.1 percent, the largest drop in 13 years; and industrial output fell 0.9 percent, the biggest decline in 22 months.

Weather was a major factor, although decreased auto demand and the coal strike also were contributors.

In its housing report, the Commerce Department said privately owned housing units were started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.55 million, down from the 2.19 million rate in December. That was still 11 percent higher than the 1.39 million rate in January 1977.

Single-family homes were started at a rate of 1.14 million, down from the December rate of 1.57 million. Apartment buildings declined from 474,000 to 302,-

The declines were spread through most regions of the country. In the Northeast, housing starts declined from a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 190,000 to 124,000 in January. In the Midwest, the drop was from 434,000 to 273,000: in the South from 912,000 to 652,000 and the Far West,

'Serpico' Screen Writer Arrested

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) -Norman Wexler, producer and screen writer whose credits include "Serpico" and "Joe," has been arrested again this time for allegedly skipping out on a $33.60 motel bill.

Wexler, 51, posted $1,500 bond Wednesday and was released from jail. He is accused of running out on the bill at the Raintree Inn.

Wexler was arrested in 1972 after a flight from New York to San Franciso during which he was accused of interfering with the crew of the plane and being abusive to a stewardess. He pleaded guilty to a simple assault charge and was given a year's probation.

In 1975 he was arrested after a flight from New York to Los Angeles during which he was accused of biting a stewardess on the arm. He said that he only kissed the stewardess on the arm. He was arrested in Colorado Springs less than two months later after trying to buy several guns. Wexler was granted deferred prosecution in Denver in 1975 in both cases after agreeing to remain free from arrest for a year and to remain under supervision of a psychiatrist.

Transsexual Teacher Wins Court Case

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - Paula Grossman, a transsexual teacher fired because school officials felt her presence in a classroom would have an unhealthy effect on students, should receive a disability pension, a New Jersey Appeals Court ruled Thursday.

The Appellate Division of Superior Court, which in 1974 upheld the woman's dismissal from the Bernards Township school system, said her sex change operation had resulted in a physical incapacity to teach. The teacher, who now works in an office job with the city of Plainfield, should receive the pension despite being mentally and physically fit to perform her duties as a teacher, the court said. "The plain fact is that no school district will employ her because of her transsexual status and the feared effect that may have on pupils she might be called upon to teach," the court ruling devised the disability pension program.

Engineer Speculates On Cause Of Crash

bulence caused by a jet aircraft could have affected the chartered DC-3 that crashed here in December, killing all 29 persons aboard, a pilot said Thursday.

Malcolm K. Oleson, a pilot with 5,600 hours of flying experience in DC-3s, said, "It (wake turbulence) can be quite violent. It's a possibility" that it could have caused the crash.

The National Transportation Safety Board is winding up hearings into the crash, which killed, among others, the coach and players of the Evansville University basketball team Oleson, a retired aviation engineer for

Douglas Aircraft, was senior project engineer in the development of the DC-3. Much of his testimony was speculative since there were no survivors of the crash, and since the aircraft is not equipped with an automatic flight recor-

'Normally, we don't allow speculative testimony at the hearings," explained NTSB commissioner Francis McAdams. 'However, due to the circumstances and Mr. Oleson's obvious background in the DC-3, we are allowing this testimony.' Wake turbulence is the phenomenon of unstable air created by the takeoff of large jets. A Delta DC-9 jetliner left Dress Regional Airport about 90 seconds before the ill-fated DC-3 took off Dec. 13. "The turbulence still would have been around," said Oleson. "It might not be as strong near the ground, but it likely would still be there.'

The common pays $1.68 in dividends (a return of about 8 percent on current market) which is covered by recent earnings of about $2.17 a share.

Now you must decide whether you want to stay with a solid 8.6 percent return or cut back to an 8 percent current yield in the hopes of increased common dividends in the future (preferred dividends are fixed) and/or a rise in the common's stock market price. (A quality preferred such as this will rise only if interest rates decline.)

Sister Of Actress Dies Of Overdose

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An autopsy showed that the 21-year-old sister of actress Mary Tyler Moore died of an apparent drug overdose, coroner's investigators said Thursday.

Investigator James Kono said the autopsy on Elizabeth Moore found "pulmonary edema, a lung congestion that is consistent with someone who has taken an overdose." Kono said investigators would be able to tell by Friday exactly which drug or drugs she had taken.

Miss Moore died Wednesday at the home of her aunt, Alberta Hackett.

Miss Hackett said her niece had been upset "over her boyfriend, a romantic thing." but dismissed the possibility that her death was a suicide.

Songstress Seeks Personal Identity Offstage

NEW-YORK (AP) — The song stylist She took that chance. Pings pinged, tood before the pinball machine, bongs bonged. Every light in the game stood before the pinball machine, rhythmically bumping her knee into the crazy technology to make the steel ball do her bidding

"Darn," Roberta Flack said mildly, as the ball rolled past the flippers and out of sight. She had only one more chance to reach 100,000 points and get a free ball.

"I think it's important to be around me when I'm Roberta Flack the person. I've been very blessed. There's a lot of space when I'm just me. I'm not on stage all the time.'

She isn't. Sometimes she's half way round the world in concert. Sometimes she's in the studio making a record. Sometimes she's home, quietly writing poetry or thinking about the book that's gnawing inside her. Sometimes shes communicating with her piano. And sometimes she's engaged in a program for the community. And with all that, she works on her doctorate at the University of Massachusetts.

At the moment, she's busy promoting her latest album, "Blue Lights in the Basement," her second self-produced re-

It is a musical journey through the simplicity and elevation of love and the twists and plunges of being apart. The vocals have that distinctive Roberta Flack easiness — that ability to project a quiet suffering and carry pain elegantly. The ability to go from a husky but gentle hum to a near-gospel high.

"I try to project emotion and feeling and not pretend," she said, exchanging her coffee for unadulterated mineral water. "You really have to go inside yourself and use your imagination and take the trip. You really have to knock your-

> "Production is guaranteed to slow you down," she said. "You can't be in the control booth with the engineer while performing in the studio."

Besides, she's quick to say, it's particularly difficult for a woman to simultaneously be a producer and an artist. "All of those negative attitudes others project have to be dealt with, and that slows down the process."

The pinball empress smiled again. She had a confession: She wants to start writing her own material.

With the urge to write some music is the desire to perform in different languages and do some spirituals. "It's the kind of art form that constantly takes you back to where you came from," Miss. Flack said. "It's the one most natural to me - the Negro spiritual. I hear it in my

It's the sort of music that takes Roberta Flack all the way back to her Black Mountain, N.C., childhood. Her family moved to Arlington, Va., when she was still young. That's where her father salvaged an upright piano and started his daughter's love affair with music. At the age of 13, she won second place in a state-wide contest for black students, playing a Scarlatti sonata.

"I practiced nine to 10 hours a day on the classical piano," she said. "But blacks were and still are discouraged from going into classical music." She leans forward and her quiet voice grows softer: "To live is to suffer and struggle, particularly for black people. The only way to survive is to be productive." Miss Flack entered Howard University when she was 15. By the time she graduated, she had directed an amateur production of Verdi's "Aida." She was barely 20 when she went to teach English for $2,800 a year in a segregated school in Farmville, N.C.

A year later, she was back teaching in Washington, D.C. But at night, Miss Flack was the darling of the pop scene at a number of local bistros and clubs. By 1967, she had become something of a star at a Georgetown club called Mr. Henry's. Her first album, "First Take," was released two years later, but did not generate the excitement of her second project few weeks ago. All last year, while "The November People" was waiting for a theater in New York. Miss Sterling worked steadily in regional theater. "The theater has been spreading out across the country and I've been getting the chance to exercise myself in parts I otherwise would never get the chance to do," she said in an inter-

Last year, she performed at the University of Mississippi, in Albuquerque, N.M., and in Austin, Texas, doing plays like "The Gingerbread Lady," "Twigs" and "The Glass Menagerie.

The glamor of the big studio days in Hollywood is gone and few new dramas ever reach Broadway these days. But Jan Sterling is earning a living doing the thing she knows how to do best — acting.

Like Sally McKee in the "High and the Mighty," she has learned to face facts.

"I'm 56 years old," said the actress. 'Am I going to collect my Screen Actors Guild pension and just make a small life for myself, or am I going to be like Helen Hayes and Ruth Gordon and people like that who are really out there battling and will be until they're dead?'

When, she's not acting, Miss Sterling lives in London where she is barred from acting because of union regulations against foreign performers. Instead, as a member of the Women's Royal Voluntary Service, she does volunteer work in prisons and hospitals.

"Dealing with people on a one-to-one basis in this way gives me great satisfaction. ... I get a feeling of worth as an individual," she said.

In the 1950s, Miss Sterling performed in a number of prison movies. Asked if there was any connection between her prison roles and her real life work as a volunteer, she laughed:

"That's so funny because one day I was interviewing women who had just come into the prison from the courts ... women who had just been arrested ... and I felt as if I were on a movie set and that later we'd all put on our clothes and go by little whirlwind who runs Tyumenskaya Pravda newspaper are his big,

When Nikolai Lagunov wants to make a point, his eyelids shoot up like window blinds on a tight spring, revealing two huge orbs that pop out like hard-boiled eggs with gray dots on them.

Nikolai Lagunov is every bit a party man, from his state awards to the way he lyrically quotes Lenin to the unabashed praise he has for the Soviet system

But in his own way, he is every bit a newspaper man, at least as far as that description can go in a country that views the press as an official arm - and an important tool - of the government.

He has been editor-in-chief of the regional Pravda for the past 12 years - a time during which its circulation has climbed from 90,000 to 140,000.

And he considers himself the authoritative source on everything that happens in this harsh, vast corner of the world where the Soviet Union has widescale oil and gas ventures.

"I've been here for 45 years," he told a group of western reporters. "After the great patriotic war, I visited all over. When I came here, you had to come in by reindeer.

Believe me, I know the differences in this place between now and then.

For a short man who wears the traditional conservative gray suit that is the uniform of Soviet elite, Lagunov appears to be a whirling dervish of a personaliy.

When he smiles, every crack, wrinkle and bump on his plump face springs into action, culminating with a flash from those great bulging eves and an explosive smile that shows more teeth than even the famous Jimmy Carter gumline.

He said there is an old Russian proverb aboat this snowy region that sums up the development of the Siberian oil fields: Now we have to live in places where the farmer never took his cattle to graze."

The Tyumen region of western Siberia is probably one of the unfriendliest places on earth - cold that reaches minus 58 fahrenheit in the dead of winter and a hot, short summer that offers mercy only to the mosquitoes - blood suckers as they are called.

Lagunov believes his job as editor is to convince people that western Siberia is not such a bad place to live.

Better he should have decided to sell skunks to farmers, or maybe the Siberian

The first thing you notice about the stub- gion to pet stores in suburban American shopping centers. Still, he said, he believes his newspaper is doing a fairly good job convincing Soviet citizens to travel to these harsh areas, battle frostbite and mosquitoes, and settle down.

"There is no better place in the world for the hunter or the fishermen," he said. Sure, there are problems - housing being one of the biggest of them. A man comes here without his family and they don't come until later. That's difficult

And although he tries to play down the harsh conditions of life in Siberia - playing his natural role as state propagandist he knows there are some problems even he can't hide.

'Let me remind you of one of the big hardships," he said, popping his eyes and making wild gestures as he held a galley sheet of the front page of his newspaper. 'For every hectare of water (2.5 acres) here we have 125 kilograms (275 pounds) of mosquitoes — the blood suckers."

Perhaps not surprisingly, Lagunov has the same gripes and almost the same attitudes as his western counterparts when it comes to some media topics. He hates television, claiming it is a difficult medium to live with. You can disagree with a newspaper story and think about it, but television is a one shot medium. The story is here and then gone, he Besides, the richness of human beings is to be with their fellow human beings. Going to movies is better than television. Television separates people. I limit myself in the amount of television I watch. he said. It is difficult to compare Tyumenskaya

Pravda with western newspapers because so much of a Soviet paper is propaganda that it is hard to tell where the flack ends and the fact begins. But the Siberian editor clearly has his good days - days when he gets to fill almost his entire newspaper - all four or six pages -with news from the region,

He seemed quite proud of a piece that showed up on page one jabbing a local gas pipeline construction chief for his slow work. He has also crusaded, in his own strange way, against shabby shoe repair services and and a more universal problem - airports that misplace bag-

He claims he doesn't have to clear his stories with the local Communist Party chief, but he is so well connected with the system that he admitted he knows where the line is drawn on story content for his newspaper.

The visit with Lagunov ended on a philosophical note, during which he opined about the inherent goodness within people and the way external conditions sometimes lead to problems.

"We are all born with goodness, but the external circumstances of life can change us," he said.

And it was interesting that as the little editor talked, he stood a few yards away from the mandatory Lenin portrait that seems to be hanging in every government office in the Eoviet Union.

Stock Mart Prices Drop

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market extended its latest losing streak through a fifth session Thursday in selling blamed on the coal strike, fears of tighter credit, the sagging dollar and doubts about economic prospects.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials hit a 34-month low for the second straight day, falling 8.40 to 753.29.

Over the past week the average has dropped 24.52 points.

Losers outstripped gainers by close to a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, with more than 1,000 issues posting declines. The Big Board's composite index retreated .40 to 48.94.

Volume on the NYSE set a moderately active pace, totaling 21.57 million shares against 20.17 million the day before.

Analysts ticked off a long list of factors behind the market's persistent weakness:

-Signs that the Federal Reserve might be planning to tighten credit further in an effort to slow the growth of the money supply. Statistics issued by the Fed at the NYSE close showed an increase of $900 million in the basic measure of the money supply for the

-The dollar's resumption of its months-long slide against leading foreign currencies. The U.S. curreached a record low my issued by the government late Wednesday. The data showed sharp declines in both retail sales and industrial output last month, reflecting the adverse winter weather that disrupted activity in much of the country.

 The continuing coal strike, which has caused power problems in the Midwest and brought warnings that industrial activity might soon be significantly disrupted.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national rices for New York Stock Exchange ssues as of NYSE close Prices and follower consolidated for securities also raded on other markets.

Heartline

HEARTLINE: I am 62 and I just retired from my job. I am going to draw my Social Security benefits along with my company's pension. When I retired from my company, they took me off their group hospitalization so now I have to purchase private insurance until I am eligible for Medicare. I talked to one agent and he kept talking about preexisting health conditions. Can you tell me what this has to do with buying health insurance? M.K.

A. This provision is one of the least understood yet one of the most important provisions of a health insurance policy. A preexisting health condition is a condition which you were treated for prior to your policy being issued. Many policies will not provide for health conditions which occurred before the policy went into effect. In some policies, such conditions are covered after a specific waiting period, such as a year after the policy has

When applying for a policy, most companies will ask questions about your medical history. It is of the upmost importance that you disclose full information on the application about your medical history - for example, injuries, hospitalizations, or illnesses. If you fail to include in the application any preexisting health condition, the company can deny your claim on the basis of misrepresentation or failure to disclose full informa-

It is very common for a policy to contain a provision under which the company may deny a claim or rescind coverage during a specified period after policy issuance for reasons of misrepresentation at the time of application. This period is generally two years. After that period, such a provision does not apply. The policy, in effect, becomes incontestable and the company must pay for your claim.

For people who have problems understanding their health insurance, Heartline has developed a book to help them. "Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance" covers the major questions you will have concerning the purchase of health insurance. This book covers Medicare supplements, disability income policies, and regular health insurance policies. There is also a policy checklist in this book which will help you in asking questions to an insurance agent that calls on you. To order, send $1.50 to Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance, P.O. HEARTLINE: I was at my doctor's office last week and they had a newletter from the National Association of Older AMericans. They had some interesting features in it. I would like to get in touch with this organization, but I did not write their address down. Do you know anything about this group? B.J.

A.The National Association of Older Americans (NAOA) is a new organization just ending its first year of existence. The purpose of NAOA is to aid older Americans in as many ways as possible.

The NAOA organization offers one of the most informative and entertaining newletters available to senior citizens. Subjects range from consumer protection ideas to coverage of all governmental retirement programs. they have a prescription drug program that offers substantial savings and they offer a very competitive Medicare supplement health insurance

HEARTLINE: I am 66 years old and a widow. I am drawing my Social Security benefits. I also work part time and I made $1800 in wages during 1977. Will I have to file an income tax return with the

A. In your case, no, if your gross income from wages, interest, or dividends was less than $3700 during 1977, then you would not have to file an IRS tax return. However, if you are due a refund on the taxes you paid then you must file a return to receive these. This $3700 figure is just for single people who were 65 or older

Rio Heart Victim Identified

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - An American tourist who died of a heart attack during Rio's carnival celebration last week has been identified as George Chester Mitchell, a 68-year-old retired school teacher from King of Prussia, Pa., near Philadelphia. The body will be flown back to the United States for burial Saturday night, Consul Margaret Barnhart said Thurs-

She said the man was apparently stricken Feb. 7 and taken to an emergency hospital, where he died. She said he had only some money and a camera with him and no identification at all.

American consular officials identified the body at the city morgue after being advised by a hotel that one of its guests was missing and that his American passport and baggage still were in the room.

Ms. Barnhart said Mitchell's family home apparently was in Kentucky and that his next of kin was a sister living in Frankfort, Ky. She said he apparently was traveling alone and had come here as a tourist for Rio's carnival.
