Escapee, or moral paragon?

By ABNER KATZMAN

BOSTON (AP) - James Carr, president of a financial firm accused of defrauding its customers of millions of dollars, is "a man of very high moral standards," says the caretaker of his luxurious home.

But authorities say Carr is really a Canadian named Alan Abrahams, a prison escapee whose wanted posters span the continent.

Carr disappeared last Saturday after his $100,000 bail was revoked. He left behind a lifestyle including chauffeur-driven foreign cars and a trio of servants in the exclusive seaside community of Marblehead.

Charles Evans, hired by Carr six weeks ago as caretaker, seemed bewildered Monday night as movers emptied the house of its plush furnishings. He said he did not know where Carr or his family was, or where the furniture was being taken. The movers refused to comment.

Carr, about 47, was last heard from when his lawyer said last week that Carr had suffered a breakdown and had been admitted to a New Jersey hospital.

His company - the Boston-based Lloyd, Carr & Co. - has been accused of fraud. He and two other company officers were charged with contempt of a federal court order, issued in Grand Rapids, Mich., to stop "cheating and defrauding" its commodity options customers of millions of dollars.

Federal officials say Carr escaped from the New Jersey State Prison in Trenton in December 1974.

Authorities say he is also sought for obtaining money under false pretenses, passing bad checks and parole violation in the United States and passport fraud in Canada.

"I can't believe any of this," said Evans, who knew Carr as a devoted family man and energetic businesman who spent his free time with his young wife, Lynn, and his three children, the first two from a previous marriage.

The family moved into the waterfront home on Marblehead Neck, where houses commonly sell for more than $100,000, last June. They promptly renovated and redecorated the almost new house.

Carr built a garage for his Rolls-Royce and Mercedes-Benz and a combination sauna, steamroom and whirlpool bath, Evans said.

The now-bare home was maintained by Evans and two maids, who were all paid in cash, Evans said.

The man who State Secretary Paul Guzzi says defrauded Massachusetts investors alone out of about $12 million was generous with his employees and even gave Evans a substantial Christmas bonus, the caretaker recalled.

Carr never revealed anything of his past, Evans said, and was a stickler

Women, blacks, Oriental join ranks of astronauts

By HOWARD BENEDICT

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's first women and minority astronauts should be in orbit within three years, after veteran spacemen have launched the space shuttle program. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Monday named six women, three black men and an Oriental to its previously all-white male astronaut corps.

They were among 35 new crew members who will fill pilot and mission specialist seats on the shuttle, which is to make hundreds of space trips in the next decade.

The new astronauts will begin two years of training on July 1 at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston to prepare for flight, said center Director Christopher C. Craft.

But the practiced skills of pilots from the present 27-man corps will be needed on the first six orbital flights, all scheduled for 1979.

The women selected are Dr. Anna L. Fisher, 28, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., a physician; Dr. Shannon W. Lucid, 35, of Oklahoma City, a postdoctoral fellow in biochemistry at Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation; Dr. Judith A. Resnik, 28, of Redondo Beach, Calif., an engineer at Xerox Corp.; Sally K. Ride, 26, of Stanford, Calif., a physics research assistant at Stanford University; Dr. Margaret R. Seddon, 29, Memphis, Tenn., resident surgeon, City of Memphis Hospital; and Kathryn D. Sullivan, 26, Cupertino, Calif., a postgraduate student in earth sciences at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. Drs. Fisher and Lucid are married, and Dr. Lucid has three children. Dr. Fisher's husband, also a physician, had applied to be an astronaut, but was not accepted.

The three blacks are Air Force Maj. Guion S. Bluford Jr., 35, of Dayton, Ohio, chief of the aerodynamics and airframe branch at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; Air Force Maj. Frederick D. Gregory, 37, of Hampton, Va., now at the Armed Services Staff College, Norfolk, Va.; and Ronald E. McNair, 27, Marina Del Rey, Calif., a civilian in the physics department of Hughes Research Laboratories.

The astronaut of Oriental extraction is Air Force Capt. Ellison S Onizuka, 31, of Kealakekua, Hawaii, currently chief of the engineering support section of the test pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and a Hawaii-born, third generation Japanese-American

Ex-Odessa mayor Reese enters 19th District race

By LINDA HILL SCHAFFRINA

Advocating an across-the-board 30 percent tax cut, former Odessa Mayor Jim Reese this morning announced he will run for the 19th District congressional seat. He made his announcement at a press conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

"We must get the government off our backs and out of our pockets now by reducing personal income tax rates by at least 30 percent over a twoyear period," Reese said.

Although he supports budget cuts, he said, such cuts will not be needed to finance the tax cut. "That's the miraculous thing. You really don't have to (cut the budget)," Reese said, "because history shows that tax cuts actually increase revenue by increasing economic activity."

The candidate said he advocates cutting the cost of agricultural production and expanding export markets, with higher export prices, as methods of helping farmers in financial trouble.

"Let's cut the cost down, and Congress can do it because Congress is the biggest cost in the country," he Specifically, Reese said he supports sharply accelerated depreciation schedule for agriculture equipment, eliminating the Occupational Health and Safety Administration and put-ting the Environmental Protection Agency "in a cellar somewhere."

He said he does not believe farmers want price supports "because you'd have to add another room to the farm house to let the bureaucrat move in." But, he said, prices can be increased for exported farm goods, such as those exported to European countries which place an import tax on American agricultural products.

On another topic, he said he sup-ports deregulation of natural gas pricing. "I think that government ought to get out of the energy business and leave it up to the free market," he

The candidate declined to say how many terms he would like to serve, but said he supports limited congressional terms with a maximum congressional terms with a maximum of eight to 10 years for congressmen, two six-year terms for senators and one six-year term for the president.

He said he is running for Congress this time, after being defeated in 1976 by Rep. George Mahon, because "we just felt we didn't have any choice."

Reese said he believes he will win this time, since he got "almost half this time, since he got "almost half the vote" against Mahon in 1976.

Poerner also said one of his priorities is to see that the data the commission collects on the oil and gas industry from the well to the consumer is accurate so that the commission has credibility among the persons affected by its policies. He said

Tests to hire teachers get OK

The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — States may use standardized tests to hire teachers and set their salaries, even if blacks end up with proportionately less pay and fewer jobs, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

Over objections by the Justice Department and the National Education Association, the justices, by a vote of 5 to 2, upheld a teacher testing system employed in South Carolina that authorities said this year will disqualify 83 percent of the black applicants but only 17.5 percent of the whites.

The Justice Department said the testing system has an illegal "exclusionary effect" on blacks and will lead to 7"overwhelmingly white faculties" in the state's public

Warning that other states may adopt the system unless the court held it invalid, the education association predicted that the tests would "hasten the disappearance of black educators in the South."

The court majority, without issuing an opinion, summarily affirmed a ruling made last year by a three-judge federal district court. The lower court said there was no evidence the state intended to use the tests to discriminate against blacks. (NEA vs. South Carolina, 77-422; U.S. vs. South Carolina, 77-543)

The district court concluded: "The state has the right to adopt academic requirements and to use written achievement tests designed and validated to disclose the minimum amount of knowledge necessary to effective teaching."

The tests, developed by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., measure both professional and general knowledge.

They have been employed for teacher hiring in two other states — North Carolina and Mississippi. Only South Carolina has used them for hiring and to set teacher pay, over warnings from the testing service that this was a misuse of the tests.

The state's board of education has required teaching candidates to take the tests since 1945.

In 1975, the Justice Department, later joined by the NEA, brought suit against South Carolina, charging that the tests violated constitutional guarantees against racial discrimination and provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The department said that from 1954 to 1976 the proportion of black teachers in the state declined from 42 percent to 29 percent. Comparing pay, according to the government, the two highest, pay grades were 98 percent white and two lowest grades were 51

South Carolina officials defended the tests assuring competence. They pointed out that the tests were initiated in an era when many of the state's teachers had not finished or even attended college.

The state noted also that its black population — 30 percent of its total — was almost identical in proportion to the number of blacks in its current teaching force.

In dissent, Justice Byron R. White, joined by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., issued an opinion saying the case should have been accepted for oral arguments before the court to decide whether the tests validly measured teaching performance.

Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Thurgood Marshall did not participate in the case. As usual, no reason was disclosed.

In other action Monday, the court: -Affirmed a federal district court ruling that upheld the method Congress used to grant its members a pay raise from $42,500 to $57,500 annually. (Pressler vs. Blumenthal, 77-

Rep. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., had brought a suit, saying Congress should be forced to vote directly on its own pay raises. Under a salary act it had passed, a special commission made congressional, judicial and executive salary recommendations to the president, who in turn made his recommendations to Congress. Either house could have vetoed the raise but neither did. (The veto provision of the act was eliminated last April after the raise had gone into effect and after Pressler had brought suit. From now on, recommended pay raises must be approved by votes of both house.)

-Passed up a chance to extend a landmark ruling it made in 1976 that significantly limited the procedural rights of convicted state prisoners.

In the 1976 case, the justices held that prisoners who had been given a fair opportunity in state courts to challenge the validity of incriminating evidence found in a search could not raise the same claim proceedings.

again in federal habeas corpus On Monday, the justices rejected a plea by Tennessee authorities asking them to extend the same limitation to confessions that had been upheld in state courts. (Morford vs. Elliott, 77-

The new case involved a confession made by Otis Elliott, a Tennessee man found guilty of murder and sentenced to 99 years in prison in the killing of a store owner. Elliott claimed police had beaten him, taken him to a cemetery and made him kneel near a tombstone while a pistol was discharged nearby. Officials said his claim was false and noted that a judge who saw Elliott a few days after the alleged beating said he saw no evidence of physical abuse.

State courts had upheld the validity of Elliott's confession, but a federal appeals court ordered another hearing to decide whether it was sum up his own feelings about Humphrey, "The people in this county thought he was an A No. 1, OK cat."

Humphrey buried in Minneapolis

Braving temperatures below zero and a wind chill factor down to minus 40 degrees, Humphrey's friends stood in line throughout the night Sunday and until afternoon Monday for a chance to pause briefly at his coffin in the Rotunda of the Minnesota state capital at nearby St. Paul.

Thousands standing in line in the darkness Sunday night began to sing when Mrs. Humphrey arrived to visit the rotunda.

Some of them had supported Humphrey from the beginning of his political career, but to a whole generation of Minnesotans Hubert Humphrey has been a foremost figure on the American political landscape since their birth.

Hours before the door opened for Monday afternoon's funeral services hundreds of others huddled outside the soaring gothic House of Hope Presbyterian Church waiting for seats, sometimes singing, "The Bat-tle Hymn of the Republic." sometimes "God Bless America." They came from Wisconsin and South Dakota, even as far away as West Virginia, where Humphrey challenged John F. Kennedy in the 1960 presidential primary.

More than 40 senators and an unknown number of members of the House of Representative came from Washington for the final tribute at the church on a hill not far from the Mississippi River.

Nearly 2,500 persons crowded into the church, 1,000 invited guests went into the main sanctuary and the others to various rooms in the church.
California Governor Edmund G.
Brown Jr., and his father were among the invited guests.

While dignitaries and friends from across the country were invited to pay their respects, Hubert Humphrey's goodby was mainly for the people who first sent him to Washington in 1948 after he had served for three years as mayor of Minneapolis.

"While he was an international and national figure...He was always a Minnesotan, always a son of the prairie," said Mondale. Humphrey's home state and its people, Mondale said, "nurtured the special genius and immense humanity" that distinguished Humphrey.

The Senator, 66, when he died at his home in Waverly about 40 miles north of here was actually born and reared in South Dakota. He came to Minnesota as a student at the University of Minnesota.

Before he died, he had expressed the wish that his funeral could be reserved for his friends from the small town across Minnesota who had supported him over the years.

While that was impossible, the service did reflect much of Humphrey's personality.

There were scriptural readings by a Protestant minister, a rabbi and the archbishop of Minneapolis-St. Paul. There were long colorful remarks by Dr. Robert Schuller, the television evangelist from Garden Grove, Calif., and a rousing spiritual by a black Noting the ecumenical tone of the service, Mondale referred to his friend and mentor Humphrey as the 'Pope John of politics."

Mrs. Humphrey, seated with her immediate family across an aisle from President Carter, smiled at times.

There was even a ripple of laughter when the Rev. Calvin W. Didier noted the service had fallen behind schedule, a reference to Humphrey's habit of talking at such length that he usually stayed far behind schedule.

President Carter, who apologized Sunday for some harsh remarks he had made about Humphrey during the 1976 presidential campaign, delivered a moving assessment of the bouncy senator Monday.

During his recent visit to India, Carter said, he thought of Humphrey when he was shown a quotation from Gandhi on the most deadly sins.

The sins, Carter said, were: wealth without work, knowledge without character, commerce without morality, science without humanity, worship without sacrifice and politics without principle

While all men sin in the eyes of God, Carter said. Hubert Humphrey - at least by the definition of Gandhi was a man without sin wool lamb of hers got the judge's firstplace vote.

Last year, son Johnnie, 10, showed the grand champion pig at the livestock show. But he didn't fare so well this year. His pig and lamb didn't get the judge's nod or slap. There's next year, of course.

Mrs. Casbeer's cause, for now, is raising the prestige of "the little people."
"You look around, and there's a lot more sheep and pigs than there are steers," she noted. Sure enough.

"The kids work just as hard on the lambs and pigs as do other youngsters on the big calves," Mrs. Casbeer said. In fairness, she did allow that in the seasons or years to come her prized youngsters likely will be working with those steers.

Just wait. By then, Mrs. Casbeer, likely with the sanctions of her spouse Gilbert, will be speaking out in behalf of manicured calves.

But it's today that counts, right?

Hang in there, Mrs. Casbeer!

Outstanding pair named at Crane banquet

R-T Staff Writer

CRANE - Dr. B. J. Maynard, a physician here for 30 years, and 'civic-minded'' Bernice Passur were named Crane's Outstanding Citizen and Crane's First Lady for 1978 at the annual Crane County Chamber of Commerce banquet Monday night.

'When you receive an honor like this, you could just cry," Mrs. Passur said from the podium after she was introduced by Rubye Coffey, a welfare worker who was the town's 1977 First Lady Mrs. Coffey described her successor, a Crane resident since the early 1950s, as "vital, energetic and civic-minded. A near-tearful Mrs. Coffey told the 180 folks at the banquet that "Crane has a very special place in my heart.' State District Court Judge Ken G. Spencer, the 1977 recipient of the Outstanding Citizen award, introduced his successor, Dr. Maynard. Spencer likened the physician to the "stature" of the late U.S. Sen. Hubert

Spencer said that it's the "long pull and the long-term of service . . . and of sacrifice" that makes one deserving of the award

Seven were nominated for the award. "All those nominated . . . have been winners and are winners,' Spencer said. Spencer said "no one could find fault with (Maynard) and sincerely maintain it. Maynard, who has practiced medicine here since 1948, is "admired and appreciated by his home folks." The judge said the doctor is among the ablest physicians and heart specialists in the state.

'I know of nine men who can testify that they walk this earth because of Billy Joe," Spencer said of Maynard. And the judge said the doctor was a man of compassion.

'We love our pastors," Spencer said, "but I'll wager that all of the pastors (in Crane) ... have not consoled, talked with and comforted ... as many (bereaved) people" as

Dr. Maynard gave thanks for the recognition. "I'm glad you thought I deserved it," he told Spencer. "I didn't." Dr. Maynard and Mrs. Passur were selected for the awards by past recipients. The evening's fare also included the passing of the chamber presidency from Larry Sheppard to Bob An-

Nixon avoids reporters at D.C. funeral

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Walking in a pouring pain to avoid reporters, former President Richard Nixon slipped back into seclusion after his first visit to the nation's capital in 31/2 years.

Nixon spent barely 48 hours in Washington, where he paid tribute to the late Hubert Humphrey on Sunday. He did not speak to reporters before or after the ceremony, held at the Capitol.

Nixon resigned on Aug. 9, 1974, amid the burgeoning Watergate scandal.

The United Airlines jetliner carrying Nixon and 161 other people landed in Los Angeles Monday in a driving rain, but Nixon left the plane by a ladder exit rather than go through an enclosed ramp into the terminal building where reporters and photographers waited.

Nixon's black limousine whisked him away even before all other passengers had disembarked.

Congressional sources said Nixon had asked whether there would be any objection to his attending the Humphrey memorial service. The request was relayed to Humphrey's widow, Muriel, who said she would "absolutely not" object to Nixon's appearance, sources reported.

George Strait, an ABC reporter on the Nixon flight to Los Angeles, quoted Nixon as saying Humphrey was his "political opponent but personal friend.

Strait said Nixon allowed photographs but declined interviews on the plane. He quoted Nixon as saying he stayed in the background at the Washington ceremony because "I know that's the way Hubert would have wanted it. Any words should be spoken by the president ... I wouldn't want anyone to think I was trying to upstage him or take advantage of the Nixon said he had received a telephone call from Humphrey last week, on Nixon's 65th birthday.

H. L. Hunt suit settled out of court

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A lawsuit that claimed the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt had two wives at once has been settled out of court, reportedly for $7.5 million.

Frania Tye Lee, 73, of Atlanta, who said Hunt was bigamously married to her from 1925 to 1934, wouldn't reveal how much the Hunt estate gave her to drop her suit. Lawyers for the Hunt estate wouldn't say, either.

The Shreveport Times carried an unattributed report today that the settlement was about $7.5 million. The Times and Shreveport Journal reported earlier that Mrs. Lee spurned a $5 million offer last week and held out for more.

U.S. District Court Judge Tom Stagg dismissed the jury Monday, saying, "The case has been resolved."
"All in my favor," Mrs. Lee added later. "We have about three weeks of legal work ahead. They're warning me not to say a word.

The settlement was reached after a week of testimony. Mrs. Lee spent nearly two days on the stand, recalling her relationship with Hunt and being stand, recalling her relationship with Hunt and being cross-examined about it.

Mrs. Lee said Hunt married her in 1925 in Tampa, Fla., signing in as Franklin Hunt. She said the marriage collapsed nine years later when she discovered that all the while, he had been dividing his time between her and another wife and family.

Mrs. Lee said she was living in Dallas when she found out that Hunt had another wife, Lyda Bunker Hunt, less than 100 miles away in Tyler, Texas. Mrs. Lee said Hunt was away much of the time, saying he was tied up with oilfield business. A former maid, Annie Mae Solomon, 73, testified that Hunt came home frequently but rarely stayed long—"just long enough."

Ray Hunt, executor of the Hunt estate and a son of H.L. Hunt by a later marriage, testified that it was family knowledge that Mrs. Lee's four children had been fathered by H.L. Hunt.

In her lawsuit, Mrs. Lee sought to be declared Hunt's commonly accepted wife. She also asked for half of the wealth he accumulated from 1925 to 1934, plus everything accumulated from that amount since

Because Hunt's holdings were so vast and intricate, there was no accurate estimate of how much might be involved. Hunt, who became will-known for his espousal of conservative causes, died in 1974 at the age of 85. Heirs to the Hunt estate did not dispute that the late billionaire had some kind of relationship with Mrs. Lee and considered himself the father of her

However, the key issues in Mrs. Lee's suit were whether Hunt's marriage to her was legal and whether she relinquished any further claim to the Hunt fortune in a document she signed in 1942.

Lawyers for the Hunt estate contended that the document dropped all claims to his property in return for $100,000 in cash, plus $2,000 a month. The document identified Hunt as father of Mrs. Lee's children, but did not refer to a marriage.

Mrs. Lee testified that she signed the document under pressure and kept quiet about it in future years rather than embarrass the man she loved.

"That was my contribution to his life," she said.
Hugh Hunt, one of Mrs. Lee's children, testified that his mother broke her silence after becoming "very upset" in 1974 over a book H.L. Hunt had written about his early life.

"He was never supposed to deny our family existed," the son explained.

Mrs. Lee testified that during negotiations over their 1942 settlement, Hunt offered her $1 million not to expose him as a bigamist. She said she rejected the offer.

She testified that after their breakup in 1934, Hunt continued to pursue her, once wiring her that he was en route for a visit because "too strong the urging. my engine is surging."

State workers pay source questionable

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's freeze on new hiring forced the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs, (GOMA), into a subterfuge for paying 42 employees, a former Briscoe administration official says.

The source said the employees were necessary to do GOMA's work of administering federal manpower money earmarked for the state's underemployed migrants, but GOMA's acting director disagreed.

Former Sen. Don Adams, who Briscoe put in charge of GOMA after suspending director Rogelio Perez, said there were ways to get the job done with eight or nine employees.

Perez, said there were ways to get the job done with eight or nine employees.

The source, who requested anonymity for fear of jeopardizing other state employment, said the additional employees could have been placed directly on the state payroll without costing taxpayers a cent.

He said Rudy Flores, a Briscoe administrative assistant and liaison with GOMA, knew of the 42 employees who worked for GOMA but drew their pay from Counterpoint, Inc., a non-profit corporation.

"I think he was aware. He knew the size operation (GOMA) had," the source said. In fact, he said, a request to hire additional people was sent up through Flores.

Counterpoint's $900,000 arrangement, begun on Counterpoint's $900,000 arrangement, begun on Oct. 1, used funds channeled through the Texas Migrant Council, a GOMA grantee. Before that, GOMA employees were paid by several grantholders.

Only seven employees are currently on GOMA's state payroll.

Kansas and Missouri were hit with snow Monday and expected more today. Some rural school districts in Kansas closed for the day.

Heavy snow and some rain fell across scattered areas of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Rain mixed with snow or sleet hit the Southeast today as a storm moved in from the lower Mississippi valley behind a warming trend. A winter storm watch was posted for the Tennessee Valley.

Warmer weather in central Florida was expected to hamper salvage efforts of fruit damaged by Monday morning's sub-freezing temperatures. The warming after a frost makes the fruit fall from the tree prematurely.

Up to 12 inches of snow fell over wide areas of western Kentucky and the southern parts of Indiana, Illinois and Ohio Monday, closing schools in some areas. Shortages of road salt were reported in Kentucky and Illinois.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 30-below-zero in International Falls, hours changed

Late registration hours have been changed for persons still wishing to enroll in spring semester classes at Midland College, Registrar Dee Windsor announced.

Late registration has been scheduled to 8 p.m. today, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday in the Office of Student Services in the administration building.

The final date to register for a full-time course load is Jan. 23 and for three classes or less, Jan. 30.

Windsor advised persons to enroll as quickly as possible since classes already have begun. He said, "Although a number of classes have been closed due to maximum enrollment, numerous others still have vacancies and offer the advantage of being somewhat smaller in enrollment."

He said among the classes still open are industrial engines, business, journalism, speech, art, music, mid-management and foreign languages.

Interested persons may get in touch with the Office of Student Services at 684-7851, extension 166.

Court to consider arguments on police newspaper searches

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will hear arguments on the legality of surprise police searches of newspaper offices.

A Justice Department legal brief favors searches by police with search warrants. The department opposed use of subpoenas, arguing this would remove the element of surprise.

News media representatives contend surprise searches would have a chilling effect on press freedom, jeopardize confidential notes and disrupt news operations.

Oral argument is set for today.

The case started in 1971, when Palo Aito, Calif. police raided the Stanford Daily, to recover photographic negatives of a demonstration in which nine officers were injured. Police said no useful photographs were recovered.

A federal trial judge initially ruled the search unconstitutional, saying police should first have considered a subpoena.

An appeals court upheld the decision, and Pale

An appeals court upheld the decision, and Palo Alto police and the Santa Clara County district attorney appealed to the Supreme Court.

William S. Cook, president of the Union Pacific Corp., New York City, also is here with the Champlin group, which is headed by President William T. Smith of Fort Worth.

It always is a pleasure to have distinguished business leaders as special guests here, and this group of oil firm executives certainly is no exception.

Members of the party will be the guests of honor at a reception given by The Midland Wildcat Committee from 5 to 7 p.m. today in the Midland Petroleum Club.

Reception honorees, in addition to Cook and Smith, include Bobby F. Abernathy, vice president, exploration, production; Fred Motto, vice president, marketing, manufacturing; Bruce J. Relyea, vice president, finance, administration; Roy K. Russell, vice president, industrial relations, and Charles A. Zubieta, vice president and general counsel, all of Fort Worth.

Ed H. Chittick, vice president, Houston Region; Robert N. Stafford, regional production manager; James F. Harms, regional exploration manager, and Jerry Casler, general manager, supply, distribution, all of Houston.

Robert L. Walker, district exploration superintendent, and Willard B. Johnston, district production manager, both of Midland.

It's great to have the Champlin officials here on this occasion and all Midlanders join in welcoming them to this Headquarters City of the Permian Basin Empire.

It is hoped that their visit will be both profitable and enjoyable and that they will come back to see us at every opportunity.

WASHINGTON-The Justice and Energy departments have reopened a two-year-old federal investigation of a

Georgia fuel scandal, which could cause shock waves reaching all the way to the White House. The probe in-

But there are allegations, we've just learned, that a federal lawyer covered up the Spruill connection in an attempt to spare Carter embarrassment. The allegations have been made against Doug Robinson, then an attorney for the Federal hideaway of a fuel distributor.

Harrell Feldt, prominent young Midland attorney, is due congratulations on two counts.

First, congratulations are in order for the excellent, dedicated performance given and the outstanding leadership provided while serving as president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce during the last year.

Secondly, he merits congratulations and all best wishes on his election to a second consecutive term in the office.

He also is due a vote of thanks for his willingness to serve a second term at the helm of the Midland C. of C., which is exceptionally active and busy in meeting the demands and challenges of a thriving city and

The role of president of the chamber is a right demanding one, requiring considerable time and effort in planning and directing the organization's farreaching program of work. That he is willing to again serve in the office of president is an indication of his interest in and dedication to affairs of the chamber and the rapidly-expanding community.

Midlanders should back Feldt by supporting him and the chamber in every way possible during the coming months.

The chamber presently is engaged in several most important projects and it is well that Feldt has agreed to serve another year in order that the continuity in these specific work programs will not be interrupted. These particular projects, when and if prought to a successful conclusion, will have a tremendous impact on the continued growth and betterment of Midland and Congratulations also are due Joe Kloesel, W. F. Ortloff and W. P. Franklin, who have been elected vice presidents of the chamber, along with Ray Moudy as treasurer.

A story in last week's paper, buried on the inside pages, is an illustration of what I'm talking about. The Agriculture Department announced it was cutting down on its free milk program for 1.4 million needy schoolchildren. Starting on the second free serving of milk for needy children would save the government $25 million a year.

Now this is the kind of tax-saving that every American can applaud. I don't know which congressional committee discovered that kids need only half a pint of milk with their meals, but these men and women legislators should be congratulated for putting their feet down and saying "Enough is enough. We will not support a program which gives needy children more milk than they can drink. As watchdogs of reckless spending it is our duty to cut down on waste and, if you can't do it with free milk, where can you do it in the federal budget?"

What amazes me is how Congress got wind of the fact that some needy kids were trashing their second halfpint of milk.

Since the newspaper story didn't say, I can only guess it came from either an informer planted among the school children or from garbage pails dug up by the staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Milk Waste.

There are some bleeding hearts in this country who will probably write to me and suggest that Congress pass a law saying that if the kids ask for second half-pints they should have to drink it all. But you don't save taxpayers' money that way. All you do is encourage needy children to drink more milk.

The worst thing you can do in this country is give a needy child a second helping at school mealtime. For one thing it raises expectations, and they will start to believe that they can get seconds any time they want them. By limiting the milk intake of each poor schoolchild, Congress is saying in no uncertain terms that it will no longer tolerate this kind of overrun in government spending. It's one thing to vote money for tanks that don't move and planes that don't fly and dams that don't dam, but when it comes to blowing money on halfpints of milk the elected officials of this country are on the ball.

A saving of $25 million out of a national budget of $400 billion may not sound like much to some people, but as a taxpayer I can't think of a more worthy place to cut back spending than in a school milk program.

As someone who has been critical of the way Congress throws our money around, it is a pleasure to give them credit when credit is due.

The men and women responsible for this bill deserve high marks for serving notice on the schoolchildren of America that we taxpayers are sick and tired of giving them second halfpints of milk, and if they aren't careful we might even take their first half-pint away from them, too.

It's about time someone in this country said to its poor children, There's no such thing as a free

The President of the United States misfires again

Nick

WASHINGTON — Once again.
President Jimmy Carter shows ineptness. His handling of the case in which the Republican U.S. attorney in Philadelphia is being replaced adds to the accumulating evidence that this is one President who desperately needs a crash course in U.S. government.

There is nothing unusual for the incumbent or freshly elected President to appoint people of his party to judgeships and U.S. attorney slots. But where Mr. Carter has erred

But where Mr. Carter has erred grievously is to practice politics as usual, and perhaps a little more than usual, after he had piously promised a new, cleaner-than-clean system of making such appointments.

Moreover, in the case of U.S. Attorney David W. Marston, Mr. Carter has given the appearance of obstructing justice by engaging in a telephone conversation with Pennsylvania's Democratic Rep. Joshua Eilberg, who sources say is under investigation by Marston. Eilberg wanted and still wants Marston replaced as soon as possible.

Richard Nixon was accused of using sly grins and innuendo in his public utterances to do in someone, and the same could be said of the way Mr.

same could be said of the way Mr. Carter handled the questions on Marston at his press conference last

The President said he couldn't say whether Marston had done a good job. But he dismissed him as a last-minute appointment of the Ford Administration, and noted he was "not a practicing attorney" and was without "any prosecuting experience."

Mr. Carter slyly observed that the only criticism he ever heard of Marston was that he had a very heavy nmitment to call press conferences en he had evidence or when a grand jury acted on an indictment Thus Mr. Carter used the political knife to discredit Marston and put the best face on a situation where Eilberg is under heavy suspicion.

Perhaps Jimmy Carter didn't know, when he pledged to choose people of "merit" in "open and honest" fashion for judiciary appointments, that senators, and particularly Sen.

James Eastland (D-Miss.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee play the of the Judiciary Committee, play the largest role in final selections. The traditional system holds that if, say, the Democrats are in, the Administration recommends nominees and the Democratic senators from the state involved send their preferences on blue slips to Chairman Eastland. If that state has a Republican senator, he can let his preferences be known

But the weight of consideration goes to the Democrats, as it should, because an Administration has a right to select people with whom it is compatible. The same applies, naturally, when the Republicans are in.

But the Carter bunch became torn between high promise and realism and this caused embarrassment in at least three U.S. attorney posts.

In New Jersey, U.S. Attorney Jonathan L. Goldstein, a Republican

appointment who had a record of successfully prosecuting Republicans and Democrats alike, was in the midst of more investigations when suddenly he was told by the Carter Administration that he was out. Goldstein squawked, naturally, and this reflected on the Administration. A similar situation developed in Michigan when another Republican. U.S. Attorney Philip Van Dam, was ousted after claiming he was appointed to a four-year term on merit.

New York's Democratic Sen.
Daniel Patrick Moynihan, being a savvy fellow, insisted one year ago that three U.S. attorneys in New York all Republicans — be kept on because of their good work. Moynihan was living up to what Mr. Carter advertises but doesn't practice.

Anyway, the Carter box score shows: 10 Democrats named as U.S. circuit judges, no Republicans; 21 Democrats as district judges, no Republicans; 55 Democrats and one Republican named as U.S. attorneys.

Mr. Carter obviously misspoke when he said Marston was "one of hundreds of U.S. attorneys in the country," because there are just 94.

The Nixon Administration took about nine months to appoint all but two of those 94 and allowed a handful of Democrats to hold a U.S. attorney's of Democrats to hold a U.S. attorney s job. Nixon had to oust U.S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau of New York but didn't catch hell, as Mr. Carter did, because Nixon didn't brag in the cam-because Nixon didn't brag in the campaign how holy he would be.

As it turned out, about 80 percent of the Nixon appointments to judiciary were Republicans, about par for the course. Democrats, however, held several important posts at the Justice Department in the Nixon Administra-

When Robert F. Kennedy was at-torney general, three of his top people were able Republicans — Jack Miller, John Doar and William Hundley. Mr. Carter brought in a "New South" Republican, Michael J. Egan of Georgia, now associate attorney general, to select and screen judicial nominess. But Mr. Carter's attorney general, Griffin Bell, fired Donald Baker, a Republican, who was doing a first-rate job as chief of antitrust enforcement. Egan was cited in newspaper stories as delaying an investigation of $60,000 in payments allegedly made to Pennsylvania's Democratic Rep. Joseph M. Gaydos by George E. Schumacher, the Carter Administration's nominee for U.S. attorney in Pittsburgh. Gaydos' law firm received the payments, but lost the records. Gaydos backed Schumacher's nomination. # Army paper criticizes China leaders

The Washington Post

HONG KONG - China's leading army newspaper has launched an unprecedented attack on "slippery and "windblown" leaders, indicating that powerful military officers are deeply dissatisfied with the results of a 15-month-old political purge.

In two articles longer and more vehement than anything published on the subject since the death of Communist Party chairman Mao Tse-tung, the Liberation Army Daily has criticized leaders who have managed to survive politically in the last several years by adhering to dizzying changes in

The articles provide the strongest evidence in months that party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng is struggling to hold together a still faction-ridden party leadership "The main features of those who follow the wind are steering the boat according to which way the wind blows and the advocacy of opportunism," said a Jan. 4 Liberation Army daily article that has just reached here. "Their color changes when they hear the wind, and they sell their soul at a discount. Speculation has become their habit, and they treat any woman who gives them milk as their mother."

The articles identify no current Chinese leaders, but they appear to be aimed as high as the ruling Communist Party Politburo, and particularly at leaders such as Peking mayor Wu Teh and Peking army commander Chen Hsi-lien. Both men seemed to ally themselves with a dogmatic Maoist faction in Peking in 1976, then quickly declared allegiance to a more pragmatic faction that took power after Mao's death late that year.

Their continued political survival appears to be the key issue threatening the cohesion of the post-Mao leadership, which is essential if the country is to revive its moribund economy. The army newspaper articles indicate Hua has failed to persuade some of his important military backers of the need to spare some high leaders from the ongoing purge of former supporters of dogmatic Maoists like Chiang Ching, Mao's widow. Hua, who himself has managed to survive the political twists and turns of the past few years, is thought to have protected Wu, Chen and others from the wrath of party Vice Chairman Teng Hsiao-ping and other veteran officials who had been pushed into political limbo by Chiang Ching while Wu and Chen survived.

The army articles make it clear they are criticizing people who retain considerable influence in the party. "Such people should feel ashamed in front of the party and revolutionary martyrs," the Jan. 4 article said. "They must not think they have succeeded because they have gained some initial successes with their speculative transactions.

They are like grass growing atop a wall, bending with the wind. They are as changeable as clouds and rain. Their necks function like ball bearings and their waists like spring bands, and wind gauges are planted on their heads.

The Jan. 4 article was reprinted in the nation's The People's Daily, on Jan. 6 Another, similar Liberation Army daily article entitled "Make a Picture of the Slippery Clique" was reprinted in The People's Daily Tuesday.

Ironically, the People's Daily displayed both article on the top of page two, the exact spot where in October 1976 Chiang Ching's faction printed their last and most vehement, though similarly veiled, attacks on Hua and other pragmatic leaders.

Wild cooking: exotic dishes for sportsmen

By ART SCHUMANN

Copley News Service
There's an old saying that you can eat anything that doesn't eat you first. Sportsmen are apt to do more than believe it.

For some reason, sportsmen believe that any possible food is subject to three steps — seasoning, cooking and eating. They apply their reasoning to just about everything.

Their willingness to try may go back to the days of the mountain men and early settlers, the people who had little choice but to eat whatever came

Or, perhaps we have just become too beef-oriented, leaving the sportsman with the urge to try something Whatever the reasons, over the years people have shot and trapped and eaten most wild animals. Some have developed into delicacy dishes, and others.

If you're ever moved by an adventure some spirt, here are some exotic dishes you might try:

ROLLED VENIS ON ROAST (Serves one to six, depending on 4 lb. piece of venision (use rump cut of round, rolled and tied)

Salt and pepper Try to use at least a four-pound roast since venison shrinks while cooking. Place meat in a conventional roasting pan, but do not cover or add water. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Roast in low oven at 300 degrees (the low temperature retards shrinkage), frequently basting with liquid shortening. Finish basting with juices accumulating from roast. Allow 32-35 minutes cooking time for each pound of meat

Serve the venison hot because deer fat tends to congreal while it's still

RABBITSTEW (Serves six, if they're not real hungry) 1 rabbit 3 t/bsps. butter 1 cup potatoes (cut like little french

One-half cup celery (cut in strips)

One-half cup carrots (cut in strips) 1 sliced onion 2 cups broth (from the rabbit)

1 cup tomato sauce One-half cup chopped parsley One-fourth cup flour One-fourth cup cold water

Cover rabbit with salt water and stew until tender; drain and save broth. When cold, bone rabbit and cut up meat coarsely. Melt butter in frying pan; add potatoes, celery, onion and carrots. Cover and cook 15 minutes; then add broth and tomato sauce. Bring this vegetable mix to a boil and add meat, parsley and salt. Add thickening and let cook for another 15 ROAST WILD DUCK

(With Sausage Stuffing) Fills two ducks:

One-fourth cup finely chopped onion One-fourth cup butter One-fourth cup finely chopped

3 cups cubed, day-old bread One-half tsp. poultry seasoning One-eighth tsp. black pepper One-fourth tsp. salt One-half cup milk 1 egg, beaten

One-fourth lb. pure pork sausage Add onions and celery to butter which has been melted in saucepan. Cook until transparent and yellow. To this, add bread and seasoning. Toss to lightly coat with butter. Remove from heat. Add pork sausage. Combine milk and egg and drizzle over bread mixture. Stir lightly to blend. Pack into salted cavity of the bird. Close filled cavity with skewers or tooth-

Place bird in roasting pan and brush breast with melted butter or margarine. Place pan in preheated oven at 325 degrees. Repeat butter brushing every 10-15 minutes for three-quarters of an hour. Cover the roasting pan for final hour of cooking. Allow ducks to bake for a total of one and one-half to two and one-half hours until they're tender.

DEAR ABBY

Don't be ashamed of mentally ill kin

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How do I explain my mentally ill brother to my fiance? My brother has been in a mental hospital for nearly 10 years. He comes home to visit twice a year for a week, and I visit him about once a month. (He is not in this city.) I don't know what type of mental illness he has, or how he got that way.

Mother said he had a "nervous breakdown" and is "confused." But he doesn't seem confused to me. He jokes a lot and is very thoughtfuleven remembering people's bir-

I love my brother and want my fiance to love him, too, but mother seems ashamed of him and has asked that I not mention him or his condition until after I am married. This doesn't

What is your advice?-"IN THE

DEAR IN: You are tragically uninformed about your brother's condition. You have a right to know the facts, and so has your fiance. Have a talk with your brother's doctor.

And when you next visit your brother, invite your fiance along. Mental illness in the family is nothing to be ashamed of. I know of no family that has escaped it completely.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying that there are still some fellows 2 tbsps. flour and one-fourth cup of around who want their brides to be virgins. I've always thought so, but I can't find a guy who agrees with me. After birds have been thoroughly cleaned and singed, cut up into pieces

I'm a 20-year-old female virgin who intends to stay this way until I'm married.

It's not easy staying a virgin. Men butter. Add milk or cream and simknow they won't get anywhere with me so they stay away. Some of their explanations are unreal. For instance, one guy said, "Hunting a woman is like hunting an employee. They're no good unless they've hadexperience.

So how would you answer him?-

DEAR HANGING: I'd explain that some employers prefer to hire someone with no experience because an inexperienced person has no bad habits to unlearn.

DEAR ABBY: Our only child, a son, died leaving a young wife and a small son I'll call Tommy. Tommy's mother subsequently married a man in rather modest circumstances and now they have two more sons besides Tommy.

At Christmastime we always remember Tommy's half-brothers generously, but naturally we go all out for our only grandchild.

Now Tommy's mother refuses to let our grandson spend weekends with us because we favor him over the others. What is your advice?—GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You can't be faulted for favoring your only grandchild, but his mother calls the tunes, so don't alienate her. Since Tommy must live with his halfbrothers, don't make life difficult for him by giving his brothers reasons to be jealous.

If you want to do something special for Tommy, go "all out" on his birthday, or set up a trust to be used for his education, but at Christmastime treat all the boys with equal generosity.

Standing ovations can come many ways

By ERMA BOMBECK

By ERMA BOMBECK

I've made a study of standing ovations and I've come to the conclusion that anyone can have 'em.

There are certain phrases and actions that will bring an entire auditorium to its feet, clapping wildly and refusing to stop long after you've left the stage.

For some unexplained reason, people go bananas whenever they see a line of dancers or ice skaters in a single row kicking in time to the music. It doesn't matter if they're all kicking in the same direction or at the same time or if indeed their feet are two inches from the floor, people love precision.

at the same time or if indeed their feet are two inches from the floor, people love precision.

Some songs naturally excite an audience. Inspirational things like "Climb Every Mountain" or "The Impossible Dream" or "Swanee." I once saw a woman's luncheon audience give a standing ovation to a string ensemble warming up, but it had been a long luncheon with a lot of coffee.

State songs will bring people to their feet. Awhile back at a banquet I attended, an organist played state songs throughout the meal. Singing "Dixie" with cottage cheese in my mouth is not the most attractive thing I've ever done.

Standing by intimidation is a favorite. I've never trusted lecturers who say something insone like, "You show me a man who doesn't love his country and I'll show you a man half asleep" and suddenly

Lawmakers lead assault against family violence

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — It is America's invisible problem, Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., asserts, but listen to her statistics for awhile and you learn the battered spouse is everywhere.

A fourth of all murders in the United States occur in the family. Half of these are husband-wife killings.

Twenty-five percent of U.S. couples use violence against each other during their relationship. Ten percent use extreme physical abuse.

A minimum of 10 percent of the children who witness parental violence become adult batterers. More police die answering domestic violence than in any other line of their duty. For instance, 20 percent of the officers who lost their lives in 1974 did so attempting to break up family

Only 2 percent of battering males are ever prosecuted.

In most states police cannot arrest the offending husband unless they witness the crime or have a warrant from a judge.

Spouse beating spans all classes, incomes and races. It happens to the rich as much as to the poor.

Women commit acts of violence probably as much as men, Mikulski says. Yet women are not as physically strong as men and often were raised to be subservient to them.

If Mikulski and Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., and scores of other members of Congress have their way, these statistics soon may not be so glaring. Both Mikulski and Boggs have introduced separate bills - which have been sponsored by other members - that would attempt to reduce family violence.

Traditionally, physical abuse against family members has come under the jurisdiction of state and local governments, usually through assault and battery under criminal

Neither bill would attempt to give the federal government this iurisdiction.

"The question we in Congress are asking is what should be the role of the federal government regarding domestic violence?" said Boggs, whose bill was co-introduced by Rep. Newton Steers, R-Md.

"No one agency under existing mandates could effectively spearhead a comprehensive approach to identify, prevent and treat the problems of battered spouses on the federal, state and local level," Steers said.

Under the Boggs-Steers bill (introduced in the Senate by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn.), the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) would have a $60 million appropriation over three years to tackle the problem.

Of the funds, 60 percent would have to be granted to local programs dealing with domestic violence. These would include shelters, hotlines, training, mental health counseling and job training. Private, non-profit groups or public agencies could ap-

A national information clearinghouse on family violence also would be established in NIMH under the Boggs-Steers bill. The agency would study state and local laws dealing with domestic violence and make recommendations to Congress on possible changes in the law. Mikulski's bill takes a different focus. Instead of NIMH, ACTION, which includes such programs as Vista, the Peace Corps, and the RSVP rogram for elderly, would take on

A national center for community action against family violence would be set up in ACTION to recruit and train volunteers from local com-munities across the country. The volunteers, who would receive stipends, then would establish and operate battered spouse programs such as shelters and hotlines.

The center also would serve as a national information clearinghouse, run its own hotline and conduct a national media campaign on family abuse. Mikulski's bill calls for spending $25 million over two years.

U.S. energy appetite worries foreign allies

y JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) - Remember

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember back in November when President Carter, huffing at Congress' failure to enact an energy program, called off his grand tour abroad?

There was still hope, it seemed then, that the House and Senate would pull itself out of the energy mire and pass the legislation in 1977.

Carter said he didn't want to stray overseas while the dim hope of passage flickered atop Capitol Hill. He'd stick around town and help push for his policy, he said.

It appears now that Carter should have stuck to his original timetable.

It appears now that Carter should have stuck to his original timetable.

He could have visited the nine countries on four continents in 11 days and hardly missed a point of order in the congressional energy debate.

Despite his continued presence in Washington, the energy program became bogged down ever deeper in the quarreling House and Senate, whose conferees finally threw in the towel and went home for the holidays just before Christmas.

So, Carter split for home, too.

Then, nearly four weeks after he would have returned to the White House, he set off on the venture into international politics plotted by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security assistant and resident global bigniew Brzezinski, his national security assistant and resident global hinker at the White House.

It was a somewhat less grand grand our than that originally on the books, but it took him to seven countries on hree continents, and to a New Year's Eve bash in Tehran with the Shah of

The trip didn't produce anything dramatic, but it apparently gave Carter a new, possibly stronger argument for his energy policy.

Of course, as fate and congressional recesses would have it, when he got back, the House and Senate weren't around to hear his message.

So he told James Schlesinger, his mergy secretary who was about to follow his footsteps in Saudi Arabia.

Everywhere he went, Carter said, foreign leaders told him of their "grave concern" about the United States' inability to deal with its States' inability to deal with its energy problems.

What it boiled down to, he said, was that "perplexity and disappointment" abroad was contributing mightily to the slide of the value of the dollar in foreign markets. That's because we're spending $45 billion a year to import fuel, which some heads of state and just plain folks overseas figure is more than we can afford.

Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, put it this way:

"They understand, even if some people over here don't, that the people over here don't, that the decline in the value of the dollar is directly related to our inability so far to get control of our energy appetite.

"Energy also comes up in relation to nuclear non-proliferation. It's hard to convince people, particularly india, that we're serious about nonproliferation as long as we show no ability to get control of our fossil fuels," he said.

That argument helped win for Carter a commitment from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, DWash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, for "a whole new effort" to break the legislative impasse.

The 95th Congress goes back to work Thursday, but it will face a host of other problems besides energy.

some new, some old.

Although Carter consider's the energy dilemma Congress' top priority, the deadline for adjournment is now far away. So don't look for that sense of urgency that produced the frantic, albeit futile. flurry of activity to pass an energy bill that marked the closing days of the first session

So Carter has a new argument, bolstered by a continuing slide of the dollar that has economists everywhere worried. But he can't be sure that argument will reach an

Capitol restoration sparks protests

ly JIM ADAMS associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George M. White will go down in history as the U.S. Capitol architect who restored the original Senate. House and Supreme Court chambers much as they were in the early 1800s.

But his work is not always appreciated by his contemporaries.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, DN.Y., for one, claims the architect is turning the Capitol into a mausoleum and complains the original House chamber "looks like a high-class bordello."

The architect's latest effort is a 188,000 carpet in the House chamber that is patterned roughly after one in the old chamber in 1822. It is getting ixed reviews from the relatively ew House employees and reporters who have seen it.

Critics say the bright red and blue colors of the new carpeting are too striking for the somber chamber; upporters say it adds a little color to be place.

You can see it Thursday night when resident Carter's State of the Union address to Congress is televised nationally from the House chamber.

The architect's partial restoration of the old House chamber — and the oral wreath pattern of the new arpet — are based on Samuel F. B. Iorse's meticulous painting in 1822 of louse members convening for a night

The old House benches, rostrum and carpeting could not be restored because the chamber is now part of the walkway thousands of tourists, congressmen and workers use to get from the House wing to the rest of the Capitol.

But White's restoration of the chamber's dome and walls is faithful to Morse's 1822 painting: scarlet drapes between the marble columns, recessed designs in the dome and and a replica of the great polished brass chandelier with 30 simulated oil lamps.

This is the House chamber into which the British piled all the furniture they could find for the burning of the Capitol on Aug. 24, 1814.

The original Senate and Supreme Court chambers are not walkways and so the architect restored them completely, with fine old desks, benches, columns and carpeting, to look just as they did in the the early 1800s. The two chambers were used only as House-Senate conference rooms before White restored them and that is what Stratton was complaining about, with a certain amount of humor, during a debate in the last ses-

"Two or three or four spaces which we used to use for conference committees are now museums," Stratton

"And what they have done to Statuary Hall in the old House chamber should not be done to anything," he said. "It looks like a high class bordello with those pink curtains hanging there."

Rep. George E. Shipley, Dill., ask-ed Stratton what a lowclass bordello looks like but Stratton said "my own education has not gone quite that

NAACP again aligns itself with industry

WASHINGTON - For the second time in a week, the NAACP aligned itself with big industry against one of President Carter's energy proposals. At a congressional hearing Monday, the civil rights group opposed the administration's proposed truck fuel economy standards for 1980-81, saying that they would probably increase unemployment in the automotive industry.

The move followed by seven days an NAACP position paper taking the oil industry's side against parts of the president's energy bill pending before Congress. The focus of that complaint was also jobs. The NAACP accused Carter of moving to limit growth at a time when minorities need economic expansion to provide jobs.

Monday, the NAACP termed the truck fuel standards "ill-conceived" and asked the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to reconsider them.

That position coincides with arguments that have been made by all three major automakers. Officials of the Ford Motor Co. testified Monday that the standards would force Ford to cut about 30 percent of its production, with a resulting loss of about 25,000 jobs among company and suppliers. On Jan. 9, NAACP's Board of Directors went on record in favor of more subsidies to the energy industry, against continued price controls on new oil and gas, against energy price rebates to consumers, and in favor of more nuclear power plants, including the controversial fast breeder reactor.

Monday's testimony was given by NAACP Board Chairman Margaret Bush Wilson, a St. Louis attorney who called in November for a 'progressive partnership" among big government, the big minority,

"I do not appear today as an expert, or to question the figures used by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to justify its proposed fuel economy rules ...," she said. "I want to talk about the social costs of the proposed regulations.'

Wilson said job loss in the auto industry, which overall has a work force with about 25 percent minority, would be "a relative certainty" if the proposed standards go into effect.

"It is our information," she said, "that plans have been suspended for converting Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue plant in Detroit to light truck production ... The minority population is that plant is over 55 percent ... Obviously, if the Chrysler Corp.

shuts down that one plant, there will be an increase in general unemployment along with a disproportionate increase in unemployment among minorities.

Safety Administrator Joan Claybrook disputed Wilson's claims. In a brief interview, Claybrook said that she believes Chrysler has been trying to close that plant for years, and that Chrysler board chairman John Riccardo called her the day the standards were announced, Dec. 12, to tell her he would close it.

"I said to him, 'don't you want to see what the rules will be first?' "Claybrook said. "He said, 'well, we're just going to close it.'

Beyond any commercial sales, officials see the trip as one more opportunity to improve relations between the two nations - the very thing that many people feel is necessary if still larger equipment sales are to become a reality.

a long way down the pike.' The Chinese have, since 1973, purchased at least $150 million in petroleum exploration, drilling and production equipment from the United States, $100 million in petrochemical processes and $200 million in construction of eight ammonia plants, according to the Commerce Dept.

The Department of Energy, which is otherwise none too popular among firms doing business in what Texans like to call the oil patch, has attached special meaning political meaning to the trip — it is the first delegation from China to visit the United States at the invitation and expense of the federal government. Others see the trip, however, as comparable to that of a June 1977 delegation whose trip here led to the sale of two fixed offshore oil platforms by The National Supply Co., a division of Armco Steel.

In terms of developing trade potential, petroleum equipment sales rank second only to agriculture, says Young. The Chinese also have bought petroleum equipment elsewhere in the world and will spend 12 days in Japan after they leave the U.S. on

The search for the latest in high techology is seen not as a Chinese admission of failure but as an effort to add to the already great strides Peking has made in developing its own oil resources. Its production of crude oil is estimated at 83.6 million tons in 1976 compared to one-sixth of that in 1966.

The nation is able to export some quantities of oil, mostly to Jpana, and the United States has an interst in seeing that figure rise as part of worldwide efforts to increase energy supplies. Peking has announced an ambitious goal of developing ten new oil fields each rivaling China's largest current reserve at Taching.

Defense budget hikes to help NATO accounts

By GEORGE C. WILSON The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - NATO, the 15nation alliance of garrisoned soldiers who have yet to fire a shot in anger, is now where the action is for the American military

So much so that President Carter's first military budget going to Congress later this month is being advertised as "the NATO budget."

The big increases in his $126 billion defense budget for fiscal 1979 are for NATO-related conventional forces and weapons. The President wants to increase NATO accounts by about 5 percent, compared to only a little over 2 percent for the entire Pentagon Service leaders, acutely aware that NATO is the name of the game, are putting Vietnam out of their minds and concentrating on widening their roles in Europe.

They are being encouraged to think NATO by an assistant defense secretary who himself dramatizes the shift in focus, Robert W. Komer.

Komer, formerly head of the U.S. government's pacification program in Vietnam, is now Defense Secretary Harold Brown's chief NATO adviser. working out of an office near Brown's in the Pentagon's prestigious E-ring. Additional evidence of the NATO focus includes:

-President Carter's announcement on his recent overseas trip that 8,000 more U.S. troops will go to Europe to bring American units attached to NATO up to full strength.

-An attempt by the Marine Corps, long identified with the Pacific, to carve out a frontline role for itself in

I feel teens should date

NATO by conducting maneuvers during the last two years on the northern and southern flanks of the alliance - Norway and Turkey.

-The Air Force's stationing more of its hottest planes in Europe, adding a wing of F-111s to those already in Britain and putting 72 F-15 fighters in Bitburg, Germany, without taking out the F-4s already there.

-Consideration by the Army, long worried whether its reserves could get into a European battle in time to stop a Warsaw Pact advance, of a new scheme to take tanks and other heavy stuff out of reserve-unit armories in the United States and garage them in Europe, where reserves would fly to join up with them.

-Defense leaders' forcing the Navy and Marine Corps to buy cheaper planes - the F-18 and A-4 - on the theory that Israeli losses in the Yom Kippur War of 1973 demonstrated that quantity will be more important than quality in a NATO war.

Although this NATO emphasis is widely supported in Congress, there are some concerns arising that the White House and Pentagon have developed tunnel vision.

Mike Mansfield, U.S. ambassador to Japan, warned Navy leaders recently that Japan is becoming nervous aboug being abandoned by the U.S. military. Those fears are nurtured by the withdrawal of American combat troops from South Korea, and the uncertainty about future Pacific deployment of aircraft carreirs.

Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, gave military substance to such fears by indicating current U.S. war plans call for pulling the carriers away from Japan if war breaks out in Europe.

Zumwalt said on the ABC "Good Morning America" television program last week, "If we had a war with the Soviet Union, we would abandon our allies in the Western Pacific and concentrate on the defense of Hawaii and Alaska, putting most of our ships into the Atlantic in a desperate effort to try to save Europe. Why all the new stress on beefing up NATO?

The official Pentagon answer is that the United Staes and its NATO allies, now that there is a standoff between the United States and Soviet Union in strategic nuclear weapons, must spend money to field more nonnuclear strength in Europe. Strong conventional forces are the best way, the argument goes, to persuade the Kremlin that attacking the West with nonnuclear forces would be a loser,

Also, U.S. officials state that while the United States was preoccupied with Vietnam, the Soviet Union expanded and modernized its Warsaw Pact forces by deploying new tanks, armored personnel carriers, antitank weapons, aircraft and electronic warfare equipment. The United States and its NATO allies have some catching up to do, both in arms and war planning, officials stress.

Carter has promised to increase the U.S. investment in NATO by at least 3 percent a year, urging other mem-bers of the 29-year-old alliance to follow suit. He has called for a summit meeting of NATO heads of state later this year in Washington.

Redwood forest moves in on Craig Morton

NEW ORLEANS-Denver quarterback Craig Morton kept trying to say that just to get to the Super Bowl was a big step for the Broncos, but he didn't have his heart in it.

The Super Bowl just hasn't been apple pie for Morton. His six shooter keeps firing smoke instead of bullets. Craig completed eight of 15 passes, which is better than 50 per cent, but four of them went to the men wearing the silver and blue, and two of the passes he completed to his own men were fumbled away. Craig looked like he played with his arm in a sling.

THERE WERE several good reasons why Craig failed again in the Big Game. Dallas' defensive linemen looked like giant Redwood trees with teeth. It's hard to throw with Redwood branches in your face. But then again, you shouldn't throw with branches in Morton hit whoever was open, but the Dallas defense was open just as many times as the Bronco receivers were. Once Morton tried te give Ed "Too Tall" Jones a break. Morton fired a ball right at the defensive end, but he couldn't hold it since his fingers were taped together.

Randy White and Harvey Martin spent so much time in the Bronco backfield that they could have played cards with Morton. They sacked Craig only twice, but Morton was belted to the ground on almost every play by the two

DALLAS COACH Tom Landry never said so in as many words, but he feared Morton would come back to haunt him in the Super Bowl. So, the Cowboys spent the entire two weeks working on the pass rush. They knew that Morton lacked mobility, and the 'Pokes never worried about Craig running. They just teed off on Morton and tried to knock him to Baton Rouge. They almost succeeded in that goal. "It was not the quality of play by Craig," Landry said after the game. 'Interceptions happen when you put good pressure on the quarterback. If you don't get that pressure, a quarterback doesn't have interceptions. It's really as simple as that. We intended to put pressure on Craig because we knew his mobility is lacking.'

three full quarters before Denver coach Red Miller had to yank Morton from the game in an effort to get something going. Even though Norris Weese came in and led Denver 26 yards for a touchdown, most Denver fans knew the Cowboys had won when

IT TOOK the Cowboys less than

Morton went to the bench. When the leader is defeated, the rest soon takes care of itself. "Craig couldn't quite get things going. That's why we brought in Weese. Norris is a better runner, and we just had to do something to offset that rush. Our line couldn't keep Dallas out. We needed more mobility at quarterback. Replacing Morton is nothing unusual for us. We've done it before" Miller reasoned.

MARTIN, WHO played with Craig early in his career at Dallas, hated to see Craig pulled from the game. "It was rough out there. You had to hit or be hit. I hated to see Craig have to leave the gane, but we knew what we had to do. I think we did it well. Craig did all he could do, but the Cowboy defense was ready. I think Craig may have had his head down a little because we never gave him any breathing room. It's frustrating when we can't get to a quarterback, but it's frustrating for a quarterback when he can't throw," Martin said.

Randy White, who shared the game's MVP honors with Martin, said he just had a job to do, and he did it pretty

"I REALLY didn't think about the Morton thing," White said. "I just did my job. That's all I was concerned about. I didn't take time to think about what effect our rush had on Morton. I just wanted to get in there on every play. I've got enough to worry about. I can't think about what the other guy is going through.

'It had to hurt Denver when Morton left the game. It hurt them emotionally. Weese is a good quarterback and he can run. That gave us a new worry, but when you lose your leader out there, you're going to feel it. Morton has been their leader all year and losing that hurt Denver." DALLAS' ROGER Staubach, who replaced Morton in 1971 as the Cowboys' top signal caller, knew how

"This game had to be a tough thing for him," Roger said. "I've been down that road before and I know how he must have felt. The battle between Craig and I never materialized, did it? I didn't have that great a day myself. Our offense blew a lot of chances in the first half, and that made me very uneasy. Denver came back and scored on us, but that pass to (Butch) Johnson (a 45-yard score) hurt them.

Staubach may not have played as well as he has in the past, but Morton is the one that will have to suffer the DALLAS BEAT us at our own game. Our defense usually puts the pressure on the other team, but Dallas did that to us. They kept us in predictable pass situations," Morton said. "I'm disappointed I didn't play better, but I can't base my year on one game. I didn't play well, but we all accomplished a lot this year."

Denver and Morton came a long way this year, and no one will ever take that away from them. The only trouble is no one ever remembers the losers in the Super Bowl. Dallas knows that feeling too.

DENVER (AP) - Denver's love affair with its football team, headed on the rocks in New Orleans, withstood its first real crisis as thousands chanted 'We Love Our Broncos' and "We Will Be Back" in the closing minutes of Super Bowl XII.

But will the relationship sour if the Broncos slump next fall? Coach Red Miller has the unenviable task of trying to match Denver's incredible 1977 season, when a team picked to finish no better than third in its division in some preseason polls streaked to a 12-2 record, knocked off two playoff foes and earned a berth in the Super Bowl.

The Broncos' magical mystery tour came to an abrupt halt Sunday, when the Dallas Cowboys routed the turnoverplagued Denver team 27-10 in the Superdome. The slipper wouldn't fit Cinderella's foot, and the Orange-clad Broncos became pumpkins at the stroke of 8:49 p.m. CST.

SOME FANS didn't care. It had been too good to let it end on such a low note. With the clock running out, the chant began as a rumble, then grew and grew. The disappointed Denver fans were paying tribute to a team that had brought them so many good times. The loss seemed to pull everybody together.

"We Love Our Broncos" was the initial refrain, then a new one promising that the Broncos would return.

"Our fans are unbelievable," said Miller. "They had to be suffering right along with us, but even when we lost and the season was over, they were saying thanks."

They said thanks again at Denver's Stapleton Interna-tional Airport when the team ar-rived home Monday afternoon.

About 1,000 persons braved 17degree temperatures to stand on the roof of an airport parking lot and wave banners proclaiming their appreciation. A beaming Miller shook as many hands as he could.

Others lined the corridors inside the airport, cheering and seeking autographs as the players filed through.

CRAIG MORTON, who suffered a Super Bowl record four interceptions and was removed from the game in the third quarter, drew some of the loudest cheers. His eyes glistened as he led his wife through the

There were other positive aspects to the loss.

The craziness known as Broncomania has subsided. No more hucksters trying to capitalize on the team's success by selling orange T-shirts, orange cowboy hats, orange televisions and the like. No more shootings in bars when someone wants to play the jukebox while the Bronco game

Broncomania promises to be back in full force next fall, however, if the Broncos can recapture their 1977 form. With a young, aggressive defense and an offense that showed steady improvement, there's reason to think it's possible.

But the Broncos won't be sneaking up on anybody next year. Denver has often marveled at how teams like Oakland and Dallas, never taken lightly, beat off challenges week after week from teams anxious to knock off the champions.

Denver will find out how tough that task is.

Last week was not a very good one for the nation's topranked college basketball teams.

After Arkansas fell from the ranks of the unbeaten with a loss to Texas Saturday, Kentucky and Indiana State were left as the only major unbeaten teams.

Overall, eight of the top 20 teams in The Associated Press poll lost, and the group combined for only a 32-10 record. The result was quite evident in this week's balloting by a national panel of sportswriters and broad-

BARBER, ADMITTEDLY just looking for a spot in the pay-line "was more surprised than anybody" when the 45-50 foot putt found the hole and lifted him one stroke clear of defending champion Jerry Pate and Lee Trevino, who spent most of the final round stretching and twisting in a vain attempt to ease the pain in his surgery-scarred back. "I could have three-putted just as easy as I made it," said the 46-yearold Barber, who earned $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 for his 11th career victory, one which combined with his late-season triumph at Napa, Calif. in 1977 to place him in this year's World Series of Golf.

Taylor says he's free

NEW YORK (AP) - Guard Brian Taylor of the Denver Nuggets, stating that the National Basketball Association team has defaulted on a $50,000 payment due Jan. 1, declared himself a free agent Monday night.

"I felt it was the type of decision I really didn't want to make," Taylor said in a telephone conservation from his home in Denver. "However, I'm convinced that basketball has become more of a business so I have to look out for my interests. I opted to become a free agent because there are several things in writing in my contract which haven't been fulfilled.

Taylor said his desision was based on the fact that the Nuggets failed to honor an addendum that was added to his contract when the he was acquired from the Kansas City Kings in a preseason trade.

"What this decision boils down to is that I was promised that certain payments would be made to me at specific times. I feel that I have been tricked because I haven't received these payments. It's not like Denver made no promises to me at all. They did, but they didn't keep them,'

Taylor said. Taylor said that the Nuggets made an earlier payment of $50,000 on time but missed the second payment by 19 days before providing a partial payment. The third payment, which was due Jan. 1, has not been met, according to Taylor.

"I gave them 15 days to make good on the payment and when they didn't I chose the course of action that I felt would be best for me."

Taylor said his decision to become a free agent, however, goes beyond the money involved. "I don't want to have to rely on someone else to make decisions for me in my life. It's my life and I want to make the decisions," he said.

Blue talks set today

NEW YORK (AP) - The last baseball game was played three months ago and the first exhibition is close to two months away. But Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has provided plenty of fuel for hot stove discussion through two hearings with disgruntled pitchers and his stance over contests with Cuba.

Facing Kuhn today was an attempted resolution of the Vida Blue trade the commissioner placed in limbo when it was announced at the meetings in Hawaii last December. Among those scheduled to appear at a hearing was Charles O. Finley, who dealt Blue to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for first baseman Dave Revering and $1.75 million. Also slated to participate were Cincinnati President Bob Howsam, Reds Executive Vice President Dick Wagner, New York Yankees President George Steinbrenner - an interested observer - along with American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney and a host of attorneys.

It seemed no decision could appease all parties involved. Were Kuhn to approve the exchange, he faced possible contradiction to the stance he took in 1976, when a federal court upheld his right to void Finley's sale of Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each. Steinbrenner said he would protest approval of Blue's trade to Cincinnati, since Kuhn had prevented Blue from coming to New York. Finley, who faced losing Revering and the $1.75 million unless Kuhn accepts the deal, is no stranger to the commissioner's midtown office. He has spent years battling with the sport's head man. Howsam, who attempted to acquire Blue to bolster a pitching staff that includes starters Tom Seaver, Bill Bonham, Paul Moskau and Fred Norman, might go to court should the deal be voided or modified. Cincinnati's claim was that there is no similarity between their attempted acquisition of Blue and the Yankees'

'Ours is a trade and the other was a sale," said Wagner. "We don't see how he (Kuhn) can turn the trade down. There is no reason for him to refuse it."

NEW ORLEANS - The "bottom line" is what the Super Bowl is all about.

For instance, that 5 p.m. CST start of Sunday's game was worth between $6 and $8 million to New Orleans, reaping the harvest of its fourth Super Bowl. A mid-afternoon start, as usual, would have enabled the some 60,000 visitors to the city in the crowd of 76,000 a good chance of starting for home the same day.

With the game not starting until the twilight hour (because of the added revenue from prime time television in the East and Midwest) most out-of-towners had to stay over an extra night. The average Super Bowl visitor spent at least $100 a day. Multiply $100 a day by 60,000 and you have the extra

But the Super Bowl is well worth the difference because of the extra revenue to the city. The average fan who goes to the Superdome, says Skinner, spends about $4 at the concession stands. So the Superdome got about another $100,000 from the various forms of refreshments.

Big bench punch gives Pacers win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The indiana Pacers showed the value of bench strength in extending their home court winning streak to six at

Ron Behagen and Earl Tatum, two players acquired by Indiana Coach and General Manager Bobby Leonard since the season began, combined for 39 points as the Pacers scored a 120-112 overtime victory in Monday's only scheduled National Basketball Association game.

Behagen scored 23 points and led all rebounders with 16. Tatum finished with 16 points, including six in the overtime session

'You've got to have that good bench strength to win," said Indiana assistant coach Jerry Oliver. "Tatum did more than score points for us in the overtime. He did a real good job stopping Bernard King in the over-

"I think our problem is maintaining continuity down the stretch. "The team lacks confidence, 'said Loughery. "We've got to start winning some of these close games to give the team some self-assurance."

The key doesn't fit; calls to immigration coaches locked out

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Coach Don Coryell of the St. Louis Cardinals says he doesn't know whether a changing Los. Angeles Sports of the locks means a changing of the Cardinals owner Bill Bidwill said Monday that he ordered locks changed on the outside doors to the offices of the National Football League club, calling it a security matter. As a result, all of his coaches have been locked out of their offices. Coryell, who has made no secret that he is unhappy in St. Louis and would prefer to coach elsewhere, said his assistants have been given the option of looking for new jobs. And he said that changing locks in such a

Asked whether that learned that Sarai had meant he was preparing to leave for malaria and needed good, he said: "Well, if all the coaches have been told to look for new jobs, you can draw your own conclusions. I just don't know.

Bidwill said that Coryell had been told to instruct his coaches not to

The Cardinal coaching situation has been in flux since Coryell traveled to Los Angeles last week to discuss coaching the Rams. Since then, defensive backfield coach Chuck Weber has quit to take a similar job with the Cleveland Browns.

In the past, apparently, a Cardinal assistant took some game films and scouting reports when he left the club for a new post elsewhere. And although Bidwill refused to discuss that incident, he said he wanted to take some precautions, especially after he said Coryell gave his staff permission to talk with other teams.

Coryell and the Cardinal owner have been at odds since the coach's emotional outburst, following a loss last December to the Washington Redskins. Coryell said he wasn't happy in St. Louis and that he had not been given enough authority over team operations.

Bidwili has said that Coryell can go Los Angeles in exchange for a first-round draft pick, which the Rams have indicated is out of the question. Rams Coach Chuck Knox has since left to coach Buffalo.

'Cats start slow, but finish fast

By The Associated Press
It seemed like a replay of Super Bowl XII. Kentucky, like the Denver Broncos, insisted on passing to the wrong team in the first half.

The top-ranked Wildcats survived their shaky start, managed a 30-22 lead over Mississippi despite 14 first-half turnovers Monday night and went on to a 76-56 triumph over the Rebs.

"It was just a case of trying to throw to a man that wasn't open," ex-plained Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, who may know now how Craig Morton felt Sunday.

Instead of having to face a flex defense which included Harvey Martin, Randy White and Too Tall Jones, Kentucky passers found themselves confronting a Rebel zone which - like Doomsday II - was converting mistakes into points. "Our turnovers were excessive, and self-made," continued Hall after the Wildcats had raised their record to 13-0 and 5-0 in the Southeastern Conference despite a total of 21 turnovers. "Most of them were from trying to force passes when it was obvious the man wasn't open.'

BUT KENTUCKY, according to Mississippi Coach Bob Weltlich, 'doesn't allow things to bother them. If you play them fast, they play fast. If it's slow, they can play slow. If you play a power game, they'll play a power game. That's what you've got to have to have a championship team."

The Wildcats' passing may not have been accurate, but their shooting was. Kentucky made 61 percent of its shots from the field and got 15 points - all in the second half - from sixth man

Lee and Jack Givens combined for nine points in the 11-0 Wildcat surge that opened the second half and turned the contest into a runaway. Joe Kyles led Mississippi, 7-8 and Fairmont beat Shepherd 78-77 in a game that was decided before the opening tap. A technical foul was called on Shepherd's Al Middleton for dunking the ball during warmups. Paul Brownlee made the shot for Fairmont before the game began. Larry Bird scored 35 points and col-

Freshman Jeff Lamp injured his ankle early in the second half but scored 21 points before the mishap, helping Virginia's 11-1 Cavaliers slash Penn State.
