U.S. Judge To Act In Coal Case

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration asked a federal judge today to order striking coal miners back to work, saying the 94-day coal strike would "imperil the national health and safety" if it continues.

Justice Department lawyers, acting under the Taft-Hartley Act, asked U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson to order members of the striking United Mine Workers union back to the mines imme-

The government also asked for a court order directing coal companies to reopen the mines, idle since the strike began on

Robinson set a hearing on the request for 2:30 p.m. CST. It was not known when Robinson will rule on the govern-

The government petition asks that the order be directed at 1,451 defendants, including 810 UMW entities, the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, coal mine contractors and the members of the UMW's international board.

Officials said Attorney General Griffin Bell planned to be in court when government attorneys argued their case later. His presence was seen as an sign of the importance the Carter administration attaches to the case.

Bell said, "I believe that the miners will obey the law and this includes court orders. I also have every confidence that law enforcement officers in the states concerned will provide adequate and effective protection for those miners returning to work. We are a nation commit-

Under the Taft-Hartley Act, Robinson has the power to order the miners back to work for 80 days and to direct both sides to resume good-faith bargaining. Failure to comply could result in fines or prison for contempt of court. The Justice Department said striking miners at more than 1,000 independent coal companies not represented by the BCOA wwould be covered by the proposed court order, though they are not named as defendants in the suit.

Federal marshals will serve copies of the complaint on all defendants as well as any order Robinson issues.

The Justice Department said the court order would cover union workers in 14 states: Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Alabama, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Utah, Kansas and Missouri.

Leaders of the 160,000 striking miners and government officials expect widespread defiance of a back-to-work order.

City Rejects License Plea

Avalanche-Journal Staff
A last-minute plea by the husband of a Lubbock masseuse failed to convince the Lubbock City Council to amend a massage parlor ordinance today.

Arguments by Mike Wilborn and Mayor Roy Bass did not sway the rest of the fees of $500 for parlor operators and $100 for each masseuse. The vote for final ordinance approval was 3-2, with Bass and Councilman Bill McAlister dissenting on the grounds fees were too high.

The split vote prompted one disgruntled former parlor owner to mutter outplayed a key part in the issue.

She apparently was referring to the fact that council members Dirk West and Alan Henry are candidates in the April 1 municipal election. Carolyn Jordan, who first suggested two weeks ago that the licensing fees be upped from $50 and $10. joined West and Henry in pushing the approval through today.

Council members this morning decided to install stop signs at 63rd and 64th Streets where they intersect with Toledo Avenue. The decision was made after about a dozen homeowners presented the council with a petition signed by about 300 people supporting the traffic control

The 63rd Street site was the scene Monday of an automobile accident in which one man was killed and a child critically injured. The mishap apparently spurred nearby homeowners to formally demand stop signs at the site.

Food Price Rise Boosts Inflation

soaring food costs, wholesale prices jumped 1.1 percent in February for their biggest monthly gain in more than three years, the Labor Department said today. On an annual basis, that is a 13.2 percent increase - double the current basic inflation rate. Wholesale prices rose 0.6 percent in January.

The sharp February increase, particularly in the food sector, probably will show up at the consumer level in coming months, a development which may force President Carter to alter his economic projections for 1978.

Last month's jump in the finished goods category, which is the broadest measure of inflation at the wholesale level, was the fifth consecutive month of significant gains and was the largest since a 1.9 percent increase in November 1974. the department said.

The consumer foods sector gained 2.9 percent last month, the largest increase in that category since November 1974.

"Prices of food-related products rose much more than in the previous month at all three major stages of processing finished, intermediate and crude - in part because of the impact of adverse weather on supplies of some items," a department statement said.

Food prices rose 1.1 percent at the wholesale level during January.

If food costs are excluded, the department said, the finished goods sector posted only a 0.4 percent increase compared with 0.6 percent in January.

Over the past year, finished goods were up 6.6 percent while consumer food prices were 7.7 percent higher than in Feburary 1977, the department said.

Consumer prices rose 0.8 percent in January, twice the pace of the previous six months. February's consumer prices will be made public later this month.

Last month, a White House spokesman said upward inflationary pressure dem-onstrated the "clear need" for the president's voluntary program to moderate wage and price increases.

The Labor Department measures wholesale prices by two different meth-

The finished goods method is considered to be more accurate barometer of inflation, because it counts only once the price increase of an item moving from one stage of processing to another.

Consumer finished goods include both food ready for sale on supermarket shelves, durables, such as automobiles, furniture and jewelry, and nondurables such as clothing and gasoline.

The other method is the all-commodities index, which double counts some items. That index rose 1.0 percent last month, the largest since last April's identical 1.0 percent gain.

The index for intermediate materials advanced 0.9 percent in Feburary, the same as in January. Intermediate materials are commodities that have been processed, but require further processing before they are ready to be sold to consum-

Crude materials are products entering the market for the first time which have not be manufactured or fabricated.

J. Dawson Ahalt, chairman of the Agriculture Department's food and agricul-ture outlook board, said the agency is reassessing its forecast of a 6 percent increase in food prices this year, as a result of the big jump in February.

Ahalt said he did not have any new figures on how high food prices might ris

Miller Hints Of Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) - The new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, G. William Miller, took up today where former chairman Arthur Burns left off, expressing deep concern about the nation's inflation rate.

"One of the great disapppointments of the past year has been the lack of progress in reducing the pace of inflation, Miller told the House Banking Committee a day after he was sworn in as the nation's chief central banker.

He said an increase in wholesale prices of 1.1 percent in February was "discouraging" and said he thinks the administration and the Congress should explore new ways of trying to restrain wage and price

We need more persuasion in terms of more specific ideas" to convince business and labor leaders it is in their interest to help keep inflation under control. But he said he does not favor direct wage and price regulations at this time because 'they are not workable."

Miller said overall inflation in the economy is at an annual rate of about 6 percent, although other government economists say it may be as high as 6.5 percent. Burns had hammered away on the need for the government to exert greater efforts to control inflation. Miller, former board chairman of Textron Inc., took the same position today.

Farm strike activities had ended this morning across Texas with protesters shifting attention to a planned blockade of Mexican produce trucks coming into Nogales, Ariz., according to American Agriculture spokesman Johnny Jesko in Hereford.

Picketing farmers pulled up stakes about 8 a.m. today in Bushland near Amarillo, where protesters had caused a slowdown in traffic on Interstate 40 since late Tuesday Department of Public Safety Lt. Dan

Large Blackout Hits San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A circuit breaker which overloaded on a surge of 138,000 volts cut off power to nearly 1.2 million San Diego County residents in the area's biggest blackout ever, say San Diego Gas and Electric Co. spokesmen.

The power was off for just under 41/2 hours throughout the area and a couple of hours longer in some outlying regions, company spokesman Fred Vaughn said Wednesday night.

"For some reason, 138,000 volts were switched into an oil-insulated circuit breaker while it was still electrically attached to the ground," Vaughn said.

Dozens of people were stranded in elevators when power failed at 3:11 p.m., including at least 14 elderly people at the city administration building.

Thousands more found themselves in one of the biggest traffic jams ever seen here as businesses closed early because of the blackout and freeways and streets were clogged with workers trying to get home an hour before the usual rush hour.

There were no reports of deaths caused by the blackout.

New Post Office Rule Deals With Packages

The Lighter Side

Service, which has been criticized for designing machines that can mangle packages, is asking consumers to wrap their parcels better to reduce the chance of

A Postal Service regulation taking effect today specifies how packages should be wrapped to enhance the chances they will be delivered intact.

Post office window clerks will be working with individual mailers to try to ensure that packages are well wrapped, said Francis Gardner, the official who wrote the regulations

"We hope that window clerks will have some reinforced tape under the counter and will pull it out and show people how it should be used." Gardner said in an in-"We have between terview Wednesday. now and the next Christmas season (when package handlers are the busiest) to try to educate the public.

Much of the 10,000-word regulation consists merely of recommendations on how to wrap packages. Gardner said the points will be brought home with displays in post office lobbies and brochures available at post offices.

The regulation forbids using masking tape or cellophane to close packages. Twine and cord are not recommended but will be accepted. The preferred material is reinforced tape, the regulation

It will be 30 miles long, will cost an estimated $678 million and is scheduled to be completed by 1985.

The South Korean capital's first subway is six miles long and has been in operation since 1974.

Gardner said that Postal Service studies show almost two-thirds of the damage to poorly wrapped parcels results from the way they are closed.

The regulation also recommends that packages not be wrapped with paper, because it can become torn off in handling and the address lost. One recommendation suggests noting the return address inside the parcel.

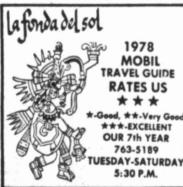

A container with the marking "do not bend" is now required to have stiffeners protecting the contents.

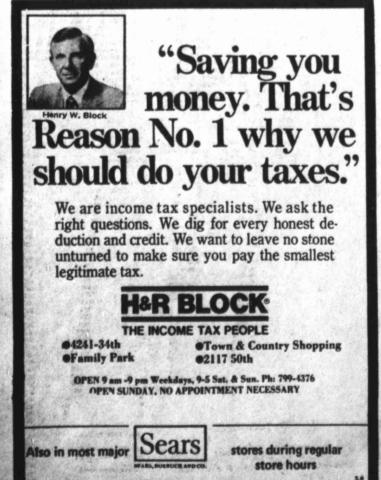

The Postal Service has been criticized frequently for damaging packages since it opened a billion-dollar mechanized system in 1976 that mainly handles parcels.

House investigators charged that the network of 21 mail-handling facilities is full of unnecessary gadgets that severely damage parcels. "Examples of nonsense machinery are everywhere," the report alleged. After the report was published, the Postal Service acknowledged having 3.7 million items at the Chicago post office that had been torn loose from their original wrappers. At 1976 hearings held by a House Post Office subcommittee, postal officials said problems in the package-handling system were being corrected.

Turner Opens Campaign For State Senate

With the help of Rodney Allison, former Texas Tech University star quarterback, state senate candidate Morris Turner opened his campaign headquarters at 1919 Broadway Tuesday.

Turner, a former Lubbock mayor, told a crowd of about 35 supporters he would have three priorities if elected to the state senate.

The construction firm owner said he would work for a "sensible, reasonable and practical approach to public school finance," a curtailment of growth in big government and a "healthy and productive business climate.'

Turner, 45, said a good business climate is "good for all of us" because it means a strong tax base and less tax burden on the individual taxpayer.

Characterizing the Texas Senate as "big business," Turner said the district's representative must "command the respect of the district and of the senate."

He said his business background would help him make "sensible decisions," while his experience as mayor of Lubbock had given him a "sensitivity to the problems of the people."

"We must elect someone who will do what they say," he said, and pledged, if elected, to represent the district with

'integrity and dedicated service." Turner faces fellow Democrats Don Workman, E.L. Short, Delwin Jones and Jesse T. George in the May 6 primary. The sole Republican in the race is Joe Robbins.

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Thursday Evening, March 9, 1978-A-3 Researchers Design Windspeed Survey

Hundreds die, thousands are injured and more than $800 million in property damage occurs every year in the United States as a result of tornadoes, hurricanes and severe tropical storms.

With all the havoc, it is especially critical to protect hospitals throughout the storms, and Texas Tech University researchers have developed a question to help such institutions prepare structurally for the severest winds.

In a report prepared by Dr. James R. McDonald, Tech associate professor of civil engineering, tables indicate that one of the worst windspeeds encountered by any hospital in the United States was a 200 mph blast that made a direct hit on Bishop Bergen Mercy Hospital in Omaha

But the high winds have been noted across the country, and the Xenia, Ohio, high schools also experienced 200 mph winds in 1974. Monahans' Ward Memorial Hospital last year was struck by winds between 150 and 200 mph. Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi was hit by hurricane winds gusting from 160 to 180 mph in McDonald's study was done for the Veterans Administration, and the questionnaire he prepared for the VA would allow any trained engineer using it to make a rational judgment on how a facility will perform in a windstorm.

VA hospitals have had their share of high winds. In 1959 a 115 mph blast hit the VA Regional Office and Hospital in Fargo, N.D., and better than 90 mph winds have struck VA hospitals in Brockton, Mass., Providence, R.I., and Bay Pines and St. Petersburg, Fla.

While McDonald's questionnaire was for VA use, the engineer said it could apply to other buildings, including hospi-

"The information from our historical survey, evaluations of the construction subsystems, and use of the questionnaire provide the information VA personnel needed for developing new design criter-ia, if needed, and for assessing the condition of existing facilities with regard to their windstorm resistance.

"We hope soon to provide a similar questionnaire for public use," McDonald

In developing the questionnaire McDonald said he relied heavily on the work of the Texas Tech University Institute for Disaster Research which, in the past seven years, had structural engineers surveying building damage resulting from more than 30 windstorms. McDonald is a member of the institute as well as a member of the Texas Tech fac-

In most cases, McDonald said, the historical approximation of the property of the pr

The safest solution, however, according to McDonald, is good initial construction. Working with McDonald in the study was Texas Tech graduate student Patrick A. Lea of Tyler.

Man Charged With Murder In Shooting

A 45-year-old Lubbock man was charged Wednesday with murder as the result of a weekend shooting outside a Cited in the charge was Manuel Viera Arrellano of 514 40th St. The suspect is accused of gunning down Richard Carri-zales Mata Jr., 18.

Mata was killed about 1:20 a.m. Sunday outside the Cotton Club on U.S. 84.

Witness accounts indicated Mata and other men had been arguing periodically through the night at the club, where a birthday party for a 15-year-old girl was in progress.

Investigators arrived to find Mata, of 2003 E. 47th St., lying dead on the south end of the parking lot and near the front doors of the club.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack said the victim had been shot at least four Arrellano reportedly turned himself in In another case, Richard Spivey, 34, was charged Wednesday with injury to a child, a felony offense.

Spivey is accused of hitting a four-yearld girl and of cutting her with a knife. The charges stem from an incident

Monday at a county mobile home park.

A female resident of the park said Spiv ey, also a resident, walked over to the front yard where her girl was playing, picked her up and carried her back to his own trailer.

The woman indicated she tried to stop Spivey from taking her daughter into his trailer, but did not succeed.

Reports indicate sheriff's deputies were summoned to rescue the child, who

The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $2,500 bond for Arrellano and a $10,000 bond for Spivey.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Light At Tunnel's End?

WHILE THE next move in the drawn-out coal crisis is up to the miners, the White House still has its work cut out for it.

Implementation of the Taft-Hartley Act, too long delayed, nevertheless may not solve the basic problem-how to get the miners back into the mines.

Among American workers, coal miners stand alone in their distrust of management, their own leadership and the government.

THEREFORE, IF a majority of the miners do obey the provisions of the T-H law, it will mark a first.

It will be recalled that former President Harry Truman and UMW Chief John L. Lewis both were defied in the great confrontation of 1949-50. There is little reason to expect a sudden change of heart this time around.

With that history, it was surprising to hear a White House spokesman at first suggesting that no contingency plans were in the works for government seizure of the mines, a point disputed by a later statement.

Branding such talk as irresponsible "at this stage," the spokesman said the thrust at the moment was to get the miners to observe the T-H Law.

ADMITTEDLY, THIS would be by far the best procedure.

Government seizure of the mines would lead to all sorts of complications, not the least of which would be putting Washington even further into private business and the free enterprise system.

Too, the miners would expect, and probably get, a raise and other considerations with which the mine owners would have to contend once the mines were returned.

WE HOPE THE President is correct in his feeling that enough miners will return to work to keep the nation from what was termed an "economic catastrophe."

The White House is pinning its hopes on the possibility of separate negotiations and enough supplies to keep furnaces and plants going until warmer weather.

It is a calculated risk. If it works, fine. If not, then we are not only back where we are now, but actually in worse shape. The White House has miscalculated once in its assessment of the length of the walkout. Neither it nor the nation can afford another miscalcu-

WASHINGTON-Dixy Lee Ray makes you shamed of yourself for even questioning nuclear

She's the governor of the state of Washington, a stumpy, cheery, gray-haired person of 63 who wears rubber-soled shoes and open-necked shirts and speaks in a voice as gentle as the fog that so often rolls over Puget Sound. She just doesn't have any patience with people who can't see the beauty, the safety and the inevitability of nuclear power. President Jimmy Carter is a sissy by her standards, and unaccountably hung up in his anti-proliferation fantasies.

"Must have been frightened in his mother's worth," she sniffed amiably, when one of the reporters asked her to account for what she regards nervous Nellieism in the chief executive, who

THE GOVERNOR'S conference chose her once ain as their emissary to their energy meeting ith the President. She says 90 percent of them is, of course, a former nuclear submarine officer.

ov. Ray, who was for three years chairman of e Atomic Energy Commission during the Nixon ministration, doesn't exactly say that radioactity is good for you, but she certainly doesn't link it will do you any harm.

"There is lying, misunderstanding and ignorate about what radioactivity is," she furned.

"We have much more to fear from chlorine gas -can you imagine what would have happened if those derailed cars had any kind of nuclear mate-

Gov. Ray thinks that the politicians are unfair to nuclear energy-every time a new one comes along with "the same tired arguments about waste, that are dutifully reported by the press."

She was asked about the current stories about the GIs who were exposed to fallout during the nuclear tests in the '50s, some of whom developed leukemia.

"We have some kind of cancer mania in this country," she said impatiently. You take someone who was involved in an atomic weapon maneuver and says it is a case of life and death, no matter how many cigarettes they have smoked -that is jumping to conclusions.

IN THE BRAVE new world of Dixy Lee Ray, we will have from 400 to 1,000 nuclear plants in the United States

We will have reprocessing plants for the wastes -the plutonium which can be fashioned into nuclear bombs and which gives timid souls such pause—and we won't need to import uranium. Someone diffidently reminded her of the cata-strophe at the reprocessing West Valley plant in New York, after workers developed mysterious and debilitating maladies and some of their children were born deformed.

"That was waste from a military program," she said briskly, and then conceded that there is not much distinction between military and civilian atomic waste. It was the responsibility of those omic waste. It was the respons who operated the plant."

At the end of this bracing session, Ray, a Democrat, was asked to say how the people of Washington feel about President Carter, the nuclear "People don't think about him," she reported

THE SAME GROUP of reporters huddled with another unconventional Democratic Western governor, Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown Jr. of California, who not only thinks a lot about Jimmy Carter-although he denies it-but is the leader of the Pacific Coast anti-nuclear faction.

He was appraised of Ray's feelings about soft-headed nuclear foot-draggers like him: Brown, who is trendy and intriguing, and not averse to being President some day, does not expect the nuclear energy issue to the surface in his coming campaign for re-election, even though his Republican rivals are giving him the Ray treatment about his radioactive reluctance.

WE HAVE A BILL in California that prohibits the construction of any nuclear plants until the appropriate federal authorities approve a demonstrated technology to permanently dispose of the

In the 1978 budget for energy research and development, he notes, the President has allocated $1.7 billion for nuclear energy, but a piddling $421 million for solar and geothermal energy, which Brown greatly favors. If he does run against Carter in 1980, it could well be on the nu-

If it's not an issue now in California, it could well be in the nation by then—particularly if all the governors are gung-ho for the "only alterna-tive" that Ray so unreservedly espouses. ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Fare Fight

IT WAS SOMETHING of a letdown when I returned to work and no one blew trumpets or announced my arrival to the assemblage.

My Sweet Wife and I became accustomed to royal treatment, you see, during a four-day visit to the United Kingdom as guests of Braniff International aboard its pre-inaugural flight between Dallas/Fort Worth and London.

It still blows my mind to think that you can leave Lubbock at 3:40 p.m. and touch down at London's Gatwick Airport less than 12 hours lat-

That's roughly twice the time it takes just to drive from here to Dallas!

BRANIFF BOOKED us into the Tower and Savoy Hotels, where we arrived after a 40-minute train ride into Victoria Station, a delightful expe-

Our room looked out upon the historic Tower Bridge over the River Thames. Around the corner was the infamous Tower of London, where Medieval visitors sometimes lost their heads.

Alas, we were wined and dined so frequently that there was time for nothing more than an appetizer tour past this and such other storybook sights as Big Ben, Westminster Abbey and the nging of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

We had time, though, to visit and talk with a fair cross-section of Britishers-from trade officials to cab drivers to strap-hangers on the underground-and to form firsthand impressions of the mood of the people.

THAT MOOD SEEMED to be essentially upbeat, despite the United Kingdom's serious economic problems and political wranglings.

London newspapers were filled with concern over a rising crime rate and over racial questions at home and in Africa. Too, they devoted considerable space to the alarming plight of the U.S.

Prices are high. A cup of coffee at the hotel cost 70 cents American. An evening meal in its fancier dining room ran about $47 for a party of Both the price and the good quality of the meal were comparable to what you would find in this

Ties in Harrod's department store were priced from four pounds (about $8) to 11 pounds; luggage bore price tags double U.S. prices.

DESPITE THE inflated prices, an English vacation will be well within the means of middleclass Texans, now that Braniff has cut both the time and the fare for getting there.

Because of British objections to the $399 roundtrip fare filed by Braniff, the pre-inaugural flight actually became much more of a "pre" than the airline had intended.

The first commercial flight was to have been on the same-day return of the 350-seat 747 that took our group to London.

Instead, the plane was grounded-except for our return flight Saturday-while the UK and American governments fought over whether Braniff could put its low fares into practice.

The British contend that a higher fare is necessary to maintain the profitability of its British Caledonian Airways service between London and

IN FACT, BRANIFF claims it already has 60,-000 reservations in its computers (a figure that rose from 40,000 during our four-day tour) for two-way travel between London and D/FW.

If and when My Sweet Wife and I get to be among those later passengers, we shall surely miss the fanfare which greeted us at the airlinehosted dinners on our first trip.

Now that I stop to think of it, we had portal-toportal treatment that may be hard to match in the future. The Basses took us to the airport and Bill and Marian Moss were there to meet us and take us home when we returned.

I mean, getting announced when you arrive for dinner is grand but-actually, old chap-you haven't lived until you have the Lord Mayor and the Altrusa Club's Lubbock Woman of the Year carrying your bags for you.

Anyhow, said the editor, we'd send an office boy to Sidney's hotel to wake him up, and in an unbelievably short while, back would come the yarn with an ending as sharp as a whiplash. Thinking while sleeping is a rare feat of genius.

We have the other American example of Stonewall Jackson, who could snap out of a sound slumber with a battle plan intact. Jackson's biographers say he often inspected the Confederate picket lines all night, the better

THE APPROACHING end of the 20th Century is not predictable. There have already been many queer twists.

Who could have guessed in 1903 with the strenuous Theodore Roosevelt in the White House that his distant and paralytic cousin would outdo him in leading American power to bestride the world? Already it is a growing opinion of many that Harry Truman, not FDR, made himself the most memorable and beloved American of our times. O. Henry at his boldest could hardly have conceived that U.S. secret police would be trying to retrieve the craven mistakes of an American President and his brother, the attorney general, by attempting to poison a Cuban rebel leader.

It was nowhere in the cards that the super-confident Lyndon Johnson would retire before his next election, nor that the resilient Richard Nixon would be forced out after carrying 49 states.

In the April "Playboy," David Frost tells of the only intimate interview Nixon ever gave, and this one on television. Frost demurred when asked if Nixon had exposed himself for money.

...knowing him, I believe that his main concern became history-and trying to nudge history in a long forlorn battle toward a balanced judgment of his presidency...

"I suspect," Frost continued, "that some years hence his place in history will be schizoid in the sense that people will separate his foreign policy from his domestic policy." Sitting in the Senate press gallery, I have often thought of the muse of history as a sleeper, like O. Henry, who holds an ending at which we can-

Where Oh Where Has

Our President Gone? never-to-be-known day before this month of March ends, the 1975-1978 recovery-expansion

-sixth upturn of the post-World War II period -will be 36 months or three years old. It will then match the average life of all previous post-World II expansions-with the single exception of the abnormal 106-month advance of

That expansion distorts the average because it was artificially prolonged by President Johnson's inexcusably inflationary financing of the Vietnam war in the mid-1960s and because it was artificially killed by President Nixon's deliberate slumpinducing tactics in the late 1960s.

USING JUST THE 36-month average life of the other five post-World War II upturns, the current expansion now enters the late middle-age stage. Even compared with the 45-month expansion of 1949-53, longest of them all, it is only 11 months

Against the 24-month span of the 1958-60 advance, shortest of them all, it is already in the 'old" category. Q. Okay, then. How does our current expansion shape up against the other upturns at this critical point's

A. Much, much better than I'm sure most of you think. In fact, surprisingly superior considering that the upward progress has been so erratic and that gloom-doom has dominated business and consumer psychology throughout almost the entire upturn. Specifically:

(1) MUCH, MUCH BETTER than average have

* Corporate profits. As of latest reporting date, after-tax corporate profits had skyrocketed more than 70 per cent from the bottom against the 43 per cent average of the previous five upswings.

· Housing starts. Building of new houses-a fundamental industry in the U.S. with far-reaching impact-has soared more than 131 per cent in these years against an average rise of less than 27 per cent in the previous five expansions. * Civilian employment has jumped more than

10 per cent against an average of 6 1/2 per cent —and employment kept climbing even while unemployment stuck at such frighteningly high lev-

* Personal incomes have advanced a respecta-ble 34 per cent against an average of 24 1/2 per * Also perceptibly better than average have been retail sales and new orders for consumer

(2) BUT EXCEEDINGLY disappointing have less than 8 per cent against an average in previous upturns of 35 per cent. * The cost of living. As measured by the official Consumer Price Index, our cost of living is 18 per cent higher than at the start of the comeback, about double the 9 per cent average. * Plant and equipment spending-so vital a force in previous expansions-has yet to play a full part in this expansion, with its entire increase in these 36 months put at less than 25 per cent as against a 28 per cent average in previous upturns.

(3) AND ABOUT THE same as in previous expansions have been: * Growth in our gross national product about 16 per cent:

Average length of work week, up 2.3 per cent; * Rise in consumer debt, about 38 per cent; * Decline in unemployment rate, about 2.3 per

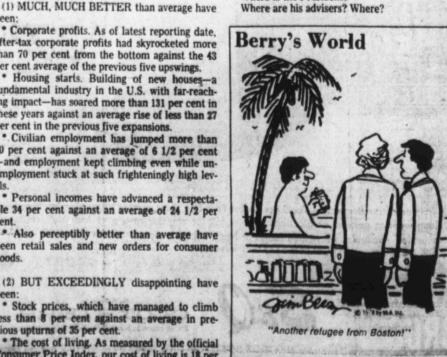

And now, what does all this mean to you and me?

We must be on the alert for (a) signs of accelerating inflation signaling a blowoff that could lead only to another destructive slump and (b) signs of rapidly decelerating growth, signaling an end of this expansion is actually near.

THESE, THEREFORE, are the months when stimulative policies should be in place to prolong the expansion to keep workers and businesses earning money on which they pay the taxes that will finance the budget and cut our deficit, and when tax-monetary policies also should be in shape to support the expansion and curb infla-

KHABAROVSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) -When people in this Siberian city in the Soviet Far East hear the time on the radio, they add seven hours.

Moscow beams its radio and television broadcasts across the expanse of the Soviet Union to Khabarovsk, 5,280 miles away. The morning edition of Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, is transmitted to typesetting facilities by satellite and hits the newsstands eight hours ahead of Moscow.

But no matter how the Kremlin tries to make the city feel part of the Soviet way of life, Moscow is a long way off.

It's an eight-hour plane trip, almost as far as from Moscow to New York. Tokyo, Saigon, Singapore and Alaska are closer, and the disputed Chinese border is just 25 miles away.

So when Moscow Radio announces visitors have arrived for Kremlin talks, it seems to have very little to do with this frozen, sunlit city where the temperature frequently drops to 60 below zero during the long, severe winters.

Founded 120 years ago and named for roaming Cossack fur trader Yerofei Khabarov, Khabarovsk has grown to a population of just over half a million. The government is trying to give it some of the air of a metropolis.

Man Trying To Keep Former Pet In Zoo

CHICAGO (AP) - Bill Stanton, who CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Stanton, who turned a skunk into a family pet and a bureaucratic headache, has gone to court to try to keep Lincoln Park Zoo from letting the animal go free.

Stanton says the skunk, which wandered into his garage last November, is too tame to survive in the wild.

State officials told Stanton he would be breaking the law if he let it go and would be breaking the law if he kept it.

Finally, a compromise was reached and the Illinois Department of Conservation took the skunk and placed it in the zoo. Stanton and his seven children kept the skunk six weeks and named it Wishbone after it ate some of the family's Thanksgiving Day turkey.

For four weeks, Wishbone lived in a special little house in the Stantons' living room, watching TV cartoons with the kids, responding to their whistles, and making friends with the family's two dogs and one cat. Not once did the contented skunk spray. "Wishbone was domesticated," said Stanton. "We cried when he was taken from us. But since we couldn't have him, we were happy when he was placed in the zoo. Now we want the zoo to keep him, but it plans to put him back into nature when it starts warming up."

Stanton has asked Circuit Court for a temporary restraining order barring the zoo from setting Wishbone free. A ruling is expected Friday.

"Wishbone would not survive on his own," said Stanton. "He no longer is afraid of people, or of dogs or other animals. And I'm told if other skunks will not accept him they will kill him."

"A skunk is a primary carrier of ra-bies," said Dr. Lester Fisher, 200 direc-tor. "Several years ago we decided not to have skunks at the 200. With court action in progress, I won't comment on what I'm going to do. I don't know yet what they want me legally to do and legally what I can do. Non-Paying Diners Not Forced To Wash Dishes

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - If you've just eaten a sumptuous meal at a posh restaurant and you've forgotten your wallet, don't worry - chances are you'll never have to wash dishes to pay for your tab.

Like diners everywhere, Minneapolis Star reporters David Peterson and Debra Stone wondered whether restaurants ever carried out the legendary threat to force patrons into the scullery to work out their check.

In a telephone survey and in an actual test, they found the answer was no.

LOOK, NO CAVITIES — Hand-carved totem poles are the Indian symbols of Southeast Alaska. The oldest are collected in accessible parks in Ketchikan, Wrangell and Sitka. The best totems were carved in the last hundred years, after Indians first traded with outsiders for iron tools. These totems are in the Sitka National Historical Park.

ARCTIC-STYLE BABYSITTER — An eskimo baby is secure in a roomy parka. Visiting with friendly Eskimos is a highpoint of many package tours to Alaska. Approximately 1/5th of Alsaka's citizens are of Aleut, Indian, and Eskimo heritage.

Alaska Casts 'Spell Of Yukon'

Special To The A-J
At the turn of the last century, famous gold rush poet Robert W. Service was describing "the great, big, broad land 'way up yonder" and its characters. In yards of mesmerizing verse, he immortalized the prospector who fell under "the spell of the Yukon" as they "moiled" and found gold (in varying amounts), along with plenty of adventure.

The "Great Land," as the Aleut Natives dubbed Alaska centuries before bard-of-the-North Service, continues to cast its spell. It holds special appeal for independent spirits attuned to the "call of the wild," those who seek wilderness and pioneer travel adventures - the vagabonds. They opt to travel "on their own," flexibly, self-sufficient, and in the style that suits them best, ranging from packsacks with tarp and sleeping bag to the best-equipped motor homes and trail-

Visionaries dreamed of a land route connecting Alaska with the rest of the United Staes for four generations, but it took a major catastrophe to start the bulldozers rolling. Japan's toehold to inva-sion of Alaska via the Aleutian Islands triggered the construction of the Alaska Highway, perhaps the greatest engineering feat of our time. It was slammed through muskeg, mud and mosquitoes in only 9 months, a joint "military road" venture by Canada and the U.S.

From Mile 0 at Dawson Creek, B.C. to its end at Fairbanks, Alaska, mile 1523, the Alaska Highway, now 35 years old, continues to be an important supply route, and the Great American Adventure road for the RV crowd and camping

It's a long, long road a-winding. 900 miles of it are still dirt and gravel, but well-maintained. Do-it-yourself explorers relish the mix of historic landmarks, gold rush relics, ghost towns, fishing lakes and streams and long stretches with few signs of civilization but frequent glimpses of bear, moose, caribou and other wild life.

Alaska highways are almost all paved. They cover about a fifth of the state, within the Interior region, and around the Gulf of Alaska. They connect with sea, land, and air routes to the "Outside" (every place else but Alaska, including

Out of Fairbanks, two highways, one recent and the other historic head south. The George Parks highway passes by the portal of McKinley Park on its way to Anchorage. Check ahead on regulations and space, if you hope to stay in the Park. Campground reservations are required in order to drive beyond specified areas. However, you can park at Headquarters, then take the free shuttle buses for sightseeing and recreation deep into the Park.

The Richardson Highway winds down a narrow canyon through some of Alaska's choicest mountain scenery and terminates at Valdez. First a trail to Interior gold fields, then a wagon road, this highway is now paralledled by the oil pipeline. At oilport Valdez, ferries cross Prince William Sound within sight of the tidewater Columbia Glacier. At Whittier, you can piggyback your vehicle on the railroad that tunnels through to Portage.

Then you can continue north to Anchorage, or south to seaport Seward. Or take the Sterling Highway that heads across the wild and beautiful Kenai Peninsula, then south to where the road ends at Homer Spit, near the tip. Noted for fish and game and outdoor recreation, the Peninsula is convenient and popular with Anchorage area Alaskans. Small towns with Russian names, onion-domed churches, and old graveyards with painted Indian "spirit houses" and orthodox crosses are a dead giveway that the Russians once settled here.

A boon to car travelers is Alaska's unique "Marine Highway System" which offers smooth sailing instead of paving. You can park your vehicle in the hold and sit back and let the ferry captain do the driving among the islands of the Inside

The island and mainland towns of S.E. Alaska's Panhandle have several miles of roads around them leading to fine recreational areas. But most towns are not connected with each other or the rest of Alaska except by sea and air. Among the ports of call are fish-and-timber-oriented Ketchikan and Wrangell; Norwegian-settled Petersburg; government-based Juneau; and Russian-Tlingit-flavored Sitka.

From ferry port Haines, a 159-miles highway cuts through mountain passes to join the Alaska Highway in Canada. A little farther north, the White Pass & Yukon Route railroad carries freight, vehicles and passengers between seaport Skagway and Whitehorse, and another Alaska Highway junction.

The ferries come Alaska-sized, with all the creature comforts, including some staterooms requiring reservations. The atmosphere is informal as Alaskans and visitors share the facilities: reclining deck chairs; sleeping bag space in the top deck solarium; washrooms with showers; and a choice of eating at the snack bar, cafeteria, or in the dining room, plus

From Seattle north, fares for the thousand-mile scenic spectacular are expected to remain under $100 for passengers; from under $350 for vehicles, depending on their size. There's no charge for stopovers and no problem for foot passengers. Because of the logistics of getting cars on and off, drivers must say where at the start of the trip and reserve ahead.

Allow at least three weeks for Alaska travel, especially if you plan to drive the Alaska Highway, and consider travel time to and from your starting point. Allow more, if you want to add optional flying tours beyond the road ends at Anchorage and Fairbanks.

The cost will depend on your style. Veteran campers have their own ways of economizing. Alaska prices vary according to the distance from the source of supply and availability. We noted in a recent average price index that hamburger (one of our main gauges) ranged from $1 a pound in Juneau to $1.76 at Nome, on the Bering Sea. We've paid $2 a night campground fees to $52 (double) for a 'cleanup'' in a fancy Anchorage hotel.

Actually, with time and means to shop around there are plenty of choices in the larger towns and many smaller ones: budget to expensive accommodations, and shopping malls with universallyknown restaurant, food and department store chains. Our rule of thumb is to budget about a fourth more for traveling on our own up North than we do for home state travel.

You won't have to look far to find "A bunch of the boys...whooping it up" in a typical Robert W. Service setting: flickering lights, rinkydink piano, pot-bellied stove, mahogany bar, swinging doors plus a bunch of swinging visitors, too. Try the Malemute Saloon (near Fairbanks); the Red Dog (Juneau); the Salty Dawg (Homer Spit); the Bird House (near Anchorage) - and a myriad more.

Mostly, though, you'll find that Alaskans are energetic and hardworking during the long, light days of summer. But they take time to be hospitable, and are inclined to be friendly as a husky pup. Almost every town has a Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center. Or just ask anyone - especially AVA and DOT.

AVA stands for the Alaska Visitors Association; DOT, the State's Division of Tourism. One way or another they involve most of Alaska's still sparse (about 400,000) population spread over the state's 586,412 square miles. DOT's official travel book "Worlds of Alaska," available free from the Dept. of Commerce and Economic Development, Pouch E, Juneau, AK 99811, tells all, and lists a complete travel index of attractions, facilities, services, tour operators, and suggests many helpful guides for on your own travel.

Tourists, Sportsmen Attracted To Alaska

Alaska is a perfect state for tourists and sportsmen. Its mountains are the highest and the rivers are long. The Yukon River flows for a distance of 2,300 miles.

More than twice the size of Texas, the great land has fish and game to match its size. But, keep in mind the mosquitoes are also some of the biggest anywhere; take along a good brand of insect repel-

Area Experiences Severest Winter

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Twenty years from now, the grandchildren of many Lubbockites will be hearing 'Winter of '78." And though most young people listen to such tales a bit skeptically, National Weather Service records will confirm their grandparents' stories. According to those records, this winter has been one of the most severe across the South Plains. And last month was Lubbock's coldest February since weather records

Temperatures averaged 9.2 degrees below normal across the South Plains during February as numerous cold fronts steadily moved into the region.

NWS officials attribute the lower readings to the large supply of low level moisture which accompanied the fronts, producing thick blankets of clouds that blocked the

A spokesman for the weather service said that under clear skies, it is not unusual for temperatures to increase by as much as 25 degrees. But clouds hovered over Lubbock almost continually until Feb. 27 and 28, when Lubbock's high readings finally climbed into the 60-degree range under mostly clear skies.

And along with February's cold fronts came several periods of snow, culminating in the record-breaking snowstorm of Feb. 16 and 17. That storm system deposited snow totals of 8 to 10 inches across the South Plains. Officially, Lubbock was covered with an 8.7-inch white blanket, and public schools,

Texas Tech and many businesses closed because of the hazardous road conditions. While the snow caused problems for many residents, the moisture it brought pushed the area's average precipitation level for February to .34 of an inch above normal. Crosbyton records show that town received 1.34 inches of precipitation above normal during February.

Last month, Lubbock recorded 10.2 inches of snow which yielded 1.39 inches of moisture. Only a few of the western and southern counties in the South Plains area had below normal precipitation during February. Because of the snow and steady string of cloudy days, maximum temperatures for the region averaged 13.5 degrees below normal, ranging from 17.6 degrees lower than usual at Silverton to 8.8 degrees below normal at Friona.

Lubbock's average maximum temperature for February reached only 44 degrees. And of 29 cities in the region, only Big Spring, Lamesa and Seminole reported maximum high reading averages of 50 degrees or above. Minimum temperatures across the region also fell below normal readings for February by almost five degrees. Lubbock's low reading average last month was only 23.8 degrees, with a string of 115 consecutive hours of freezing or below readings the week of Feb. 14 through Feb. 21, contributing much to that low mark. All of the 29 cities in the South Plains area reported minimum low averages of well below freezing for February, with Paducah being the coldest spot in the region with a low average reading of 19.2 degrees. The morning of Feb. 18 was the coldest of the month, records show, with several reports of low readings at or near zero. The lowest reading that morning was 5 degrees

Late Snowstorm Aids Tow Truck Businesses

Towing firms and auto body shops in Southern Illinois, which is buried under a foot of new snow by a dawdling late winter storm, are doing a booming business. 'We've had snow on the ground for about 62 days," said state police Sgt. Ben Behler at Effingham, hit with 8 inches Tuesday and Wednesday. "If I were in the wrecking or body business, I'd be getting rich about now.

The small, but prolific, storm stalled over Southern Illinois for more than 24 hours, dumping up to a foot of snow. Hundreds of schools closed Tuesday and Wednesday and at least two deaths were blamed on the weather.

Josephine Seifert, Chicago, was killed and 27 others injured when a chartered bus returning to the Chicago area from New Orleans slid into a truck on Interstate 57 one mile north of Pesotum.

"A lot of people just ran off the roadway and there's not too much we can do for them until we get enough wreckers," Behler said. "There's ice on the roads and then snow on top of it. It's like going down a road on a flat tire. Bumpy bum-

Foot-deep snows crippled the Springfield area, bringing the capital city's season snowfall total to record heights.

More than 100 persons spent Tuesday night in the Effingham National Guard Armory. Another 40 spent the night in the National Guard armory at Mattoon.

The storm occurred the same day as a statewide tornado drill. The National Weather Service and state police termed it a success. As the storm moved slowly to the east it turned to rain and sleet over much of the Ohio Valley and into the Virginias.

Freezing rain broke power lines and transformers in Washington, Ind., blacking our more than half of the town of 12,-000 population.

Travelers advisories were posted from northern Kentucky through portions of Ohio, the Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and North Carolina Lesser amounts of snow Tuesday included 2 inches at Columbus, Ohio, and 1 inch at Atlantic City, N.J., Philadelphia, Pa. and Baltimore, Md.

Another rainstorm, described by the National Weather Service as "weak to moderate," was expected to move ashore in Southern California today and officials warned it could cause new mudslides and push pounding surf into beachfront

"Due to high tides and eroded beaches, this surf will pose a threat to property along exposed beaches," said a special NWS statement.

In San Fransisco and across the bay in Oakland more than an inch of rain fell when a Pacific frontal system moved eastward into Utah and Idaho over much of central and Northern California.

Sunny skies and warmer temperatures dominated the Plains, initiating a slow

Ron Fowler of the Department of Game, Fish and Parks said no official count of dead deer and antelope have been made.

Springlike weather conditions com-manded center stage in Texas today, scat-tering rainfall in the East and Northeast and possibly offering the same here by Saturday, the third day of an expected warming trend.

The cloud cover and light rain showers reported in eastern sections of the state were expected to clear this afternoon.

Readings had reached the upper 30s, after an early morning low of 25, as most of Lubbock's labor force headed for work today. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 20s and 30s in North Texas to the 40s along the Gulf Coast. Before dawn today, the state's extreme temperatures were 24 degrees at Amarillo and 52 at El Paso. Other morning readings included 26 degrees at Dalhart, 29 at Wichita Falls, 35 at Texarkana, 39 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 35 at Del Rio and 32 at San Angelo.

Afternoon temperatures today shot range from the 5th in the Northwast To as to the 30s in Big Bend Country.

The historically blustery Labbook violaimed a quiet corner of today's force which called for south and southwester winds of 10-15 mph today and tonight.

Friday winds, however, may ran from 15-25 mph.

4,700 West Germans Live Under Shadow Of War Crime Probe

By PETER GEHRIG

BUERGSTADT, West Germany (AP) — World War II still overshadows the lives of 4,700 West Germans under investigation for Nazi war crimes.

Most of them live virtually unrestricted lives as investigators plod through

Perhaps foremost among those under investigation is Kurt Lischka, a 68-year-old retired office clerk in Cologne, who served as deputy Gestapo chief in Paris in 1940-43. He is now accused of deporting thousands of Jews from German-occupied France to Nazi death camps.

He was tried in absentia in Paris in 1950 and sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor. But the West German constitution bars the extradition of German nationals, and it was only in 1975 that the Parliament ratified a treaty allowing trials in West Germany of persons suspected of war crimes in France.

Attempts by The Associated Press to contact Lischka for comment about his situation have been unsuccessful. His telephone number is unlisted.

Another, Herbert-Martin Hagen, refers all questions to his lawyer, Hagen, an executive of a machine tool factory in Warstein, near Dortmund, was Gestapo commander of Bordeaux before becoming a senior Gestapo official in Paris in

In 1955 a French court sentenced him in absentia to life imprisonment at hard labor for ordering thousands of Jews arrested for deportation and selecting 50 hostages for execution.

Although most under investigation refuse to speak with reporters, Mayor Ernst Heinrichsohn of Buergstadt talks readily about his role in World War II and says he regrets Nazi atrocities and is ready to pay the penalty if a German court finds he committed war crimes.

Heinrichsohn is being investigated as one of several chief suspects in abetting the murder of Jews by helping deport them. Of 80,000 Jews sent to the death camps from France, fewer than 3,000 survived.

"I was 20 years old, a mere office clerk," he told The Associated Press in an interview in his modern office. "It is true that in Paris I worked in Department IV-J, the so-called Jewish department.

"I was transferred from that department at my own request in November 1942 after my father told me during my leave that one could hear terrible

"I didn't know what was going on. I was told by my superiors that these peo-ple (the Jews) were sent to labor camps as stipulated in telex notes." Wartime teletype messages signed "SS-Unterscharfuehrer (Corporal) Heinrichsohn" listed departure details of trains from France up to three times a week in 1942, carrying up to 1,000 Jews in cattle cars.

"On Friday, Aug. 28, 1942, the 25,000th Jew was deported," says one such document signed by Heinrichsohn.

According to the Central Office for Investigation of National Socialist Crimes in Ludwigsburg, 82,667 Germans have been investigated for war crimes since World War II and 6,425 of them have been convicted. The office says that 1,026 have been sentenced in absentia to death or long prison terms by French courts but none has been executed or served a sentence.

The statute of limitations on World War II war crimes runs out Dec. 31, 1979, meaning suspects no longer can be prosecuted except those under investigation. Heinrichsohn, a 57-year-old lawyer, has been mayor for 25 years of this Bavarian town of 3,500 near Frankfurt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President
Carter will meet here with heads of state and government of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization May 30-31 to review military reinforcement of the alliance and developments in the Communist bloc, U.S. officials said today.

Authorities Hunt For Ex-Official

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two years ago, diplomat William Bradford Bishop Jr. left his State Department office here and allegedly murdered his family in their Bethesda, Md. home. And then he van-

Two years later, authorities say they are no closer than they were in March 1976 to developing a motive or discovering where he is.

Technically, the case is still open," said Montgomery County police spokes-woman Nancy Moses. "But we are no longer actively seeking evidence and the FBI hasn't found anything either. He is charged with murder.'

The State Department, meantime, has officially terminated the once-promising diplomatic career of Bradford Bishop, who left his office early on the afternoon of March 1, 1976, complaining of a cold.

A graduate of Yale University with two master's degrees, Bishop held the post of assistant chief of the State Department's special trained activities office.

Bishop spoke Italian and Serbo-Croatian fluently and held diplomatic posts in Italy, Ethiopia and Botswann before returning to Washington.

He has been charged with the bludgeoning murders of his 68-year other mother; his 37-year old wife Annette, and three sons aged 14, 10 and 5.

Bishop was last seen March 2, 1976, when he used a credit card to buy $15.50 worth of sporting goods in Jacksonville, N.C., about 100 miles south of the Tyrell County, N.C. site where a forest ranger discovered the burning bodies of Bishop's family

The State Department at one point was working under the assumption that Bishop had left the country, but his passport has still not surfaced.

And no one has been able to advance a motive for the killings. There is no evidence of infidelity, financial problems or job worries.

Investigators have learned that unknown to his friends and associates, Bishop had seen at least three different psychiatrists in the year or so before the inci-

University Probes Grade Tampering

NEW YORK (AP) - The chancellor of the City University of New York says the university might revoke the degrees and lift the Phi Beta Kappa keys of students who graduated from Queens College with honors after their grades were doctored.

At least 12 past or present students of the college apparently got various scholastic honors by tampering with their grades in the school's computer, officials University officials are now trying to trace those who graduated with altered records.

A former student who worked in the registrar's office and who allegedly did the tampering has been fired. Officials said he disclosed the names of at least a dozen students whose grades he changed.

The Trilateral Commission, a private foreign-policy group with members from North America, Japan and Western Europe, released a report, meanwhile, suggesting policies to encourage the Soviet bloc to slow the arms race and give up violent expansion efforts. HAPPY HOMECOMING - Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin hospital Tuesday after three open-heart operations. The infant and daughter Jennifer were getting acquainted with nine-month-old Stevie, who went home from an Indianapolis, Ind., was born with two holes in his heart. (AP Laserphoto)

Baby Goes Home After Operations

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The doctors kept telling the parents to give up, that there was no hope. But 9-month-old Steve McLaughlin is now home after three open-heart operations and a long series of complications.

Doctors at Riley Hospital still don't see how he made it.
"They call him the miracle baby," said his mother, Vicki McLaughlin. "No baby in anyone's memory has undergone what he's done and they just can't believe he's survived.

Soon after Steve was born June 3, doctors discovered a heart murmur. He had two holes in his heart and was missing a pulmonary valve.

"They couldn't do anything about it then — he was just too small," said Mrs. McLaughlin. After 10 days, doctors sent the boy home.

But three months later the infant caught a cold that doctors said threatened his life. When the cold turned into nia, doctors ordered open-heart surgery Oct. 19.

They patched the holes but couldn't do anything about the pulmonary valve or the artery pressing on his windpipe," said Mrs. McLaughlin.

Then, on Dec. 5, a heart catheterization disclosed that the stitches holding one of the "patches" on the heart had broken and open-heart surgery was scheduled for the next day.

"Every time, the doctors told us not to hope, that he really had no chance," said the boy's father. James, "But we went to the chapel before and after (the surgery) and prayed and hoped. And he kept mak-

Four days after the second open-heart operation, the boy's kidneys stopped working and doctors gave him two hours to live. An hour and 15 minutes later, they started working again. But the ordeal wasn't over. Included in

- His heart stops three times in Janu-The third operation came Feb. 24 when doctors gave the 8-pound, 2-ounce boy another pacemaker. It's an adult size and protrudes from his abdomen. But doctors have said Steve, who went home Tuesday after being hospitalized since Oct. 12, will live to grow up to it. Doctors plan to give him an artificial valve when he is about 4 years old.

Jury Selection Slows Down

By A-J Correspondent WICHITA FALLS - The third day of jury selection in the capital murder trial of Philip Carey Brasfield slowed to a crawl today in 89th District Court as four prospective jurors were questioned and rejected for various reasons.

Five jurors have been selected in two days of intensive questioning by Lubbock County Dist. Atty. Alton Griffin and defense attorney Dennis McGill. Twentyeight prospective jurors have been questioned and the 29th was being questioned late this morning.

The defense used its second of 15 allotted "strikes" today when it rejected a man who said he had a 6-year-old grand-

Brasfield, 28, of Slaton, is charged with capital murder in connection with the abction-slaying last fall of 6-year-old Johnny Turner Jr. of Lubbock. The case was moved to Wichita Falls on a change of venue.

Another man was excused from service because he said he had already formed an opinion about the case.

The jury is being sequestered for the duration of the trial, which attorneys esimate could last two to three weeks.

Texas Derailment Forces Evacuation

JUSTIN (UPI) - Fifteen cars of a Santa Fe freight train, including five tankers carrying chemicals combustible at mild temperatures, derailed north of Dallas before dawn today, forcing evacuation of about 60 persons in the rural com-

Becky Ferryman, wife of the chief of the volunteer fire department, said the tankers were leaking butyl alcohol and butyl acetate with flash points of 78 and 83 degrees respectively. The morning temperature was near 40. The fire department initially reported chlorine gas was leaking from the derailed cars, but Santa Fe officials said the tankers were filled with less dangerous chemicals. A Denton County sheriff's sergeant said there was no danger, but onlookers were kept 5,000 feet from the wreckage.

Evacuees said they were awakened about 5:15 a.m. by volunteers pounding on the doors of homes on the north side of the small town of 741 persons. Judy Shaw, wife of the pastor of the church where the families were taken, said the residents were told a Union Carbide Co., chemical expert from Texas City was flying to the area and evacuees could not return to their homes until he

State troopers blocked Texas FM 156 on the north side of town between homes and the wreckage, which were separated by pastureland. Santa Fe pulled several upright cars away from the scene and dispatched equipment to move the wreckage.

Book On Cloning Called Fiction In Interview

By The Associated Press David M. Rorvik, author of a forthcoming book that allegedly chronicles the creation of a human being by cloning, once said he was writing a pornographic, science fiction thriller called "The Clone," the Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune said to-

The Tribune said that Rorvik, who was born in Circle, Mont., on Nov. 1, 1943 and went to school in the state, was interviewed by the newspaper in May 1970. He discussed his career as a freelance writer and talked about the novel he planned to

'Rorvik says he finds fiction writing more difficult than nonfiction, but is determined to complete his novel, 'The Clone,' and perhaps get it made into a movie," the 1970 Tribune story said. "The Clone' is a pornographic science fiction thriller based on current medical possibility, he said," according to the eight-year-old report. Rorvik's new book, "In His Image: The Cloning of a Man," is being published by J.B. Lippincott Co. It describes the alleged creation of a boy, now 14 months old, by cloning, the process of duplicating living things from an individual cell. Cloning has been used in creating plants and a frog but has never been attempted with humans. Lippincott has said Rorvik assured them the story was true, but that the publishing company did not know whether it was indeed fact.

Rorvik has been unavailable for comment since news of his book first broke. A statement issued by Lippincott on Wednesday quoted him as saying the boy, offspring of a wealthy, unidentified man, is "alive, healthy and loved today."

Information about Rorvik himself also has been sketchy. He is a 1966 graduate of the journalism school at the University of Montana and received a master's degree from the Columbia University School of Journalism in 1967. The same year he received a Pulitzer Traveling Fellowship

Rorvik became embroiled in controversy during his senior year at the University of Montana, the Tribune said, because of his editorials published in the student newspaper, the Kaimin. Parents threatened to remove their children from the university because of alleged sex-flavored and subversive material published in the newspaper.

When Rorvik tried to publish a poem banned from the campus literary magazine as "flagrantly offensive," the night foreman of the University Print Shop refused to set the poem in type.

Rorvik replied to criticism he received at the time with the following statement: 'It's quite possible that some of the material included in the Montana Kaimin has been sex-flavored. So what?

"If subversion entails deviating too far from the flag-waving standards of provincial Montana in the defense of free expression, political freedom (even, or especially, for the communists) and total sexual autonomy to suit the supporters of Orphan Annie, J. Edgar Hoover, Pope Paul, Tim Babcock (then governor of Montana), pristine printers and rest of those tired old women, then we are in fact subversive. And proud of it."

Charges Filed In Solis Death

Murder charges have been filed against two Lubbock men in connection with the death of 25-year-old Thomas Solis Jr., whose bloody, battered body was found in the trunk of his own car Feb. 21. Charged were Oscar Rios, 24, of 615 30th St. and Bonafacio Reyes, 29, whose last address, according to authorities' re-cords, was Rt. 6, Lubbock.

Solis' body was removed from the trunk of his 1969 Plymouth Fury parked in the 1100-block of Ute Street on the afternoon of Feb. 21.

He died about eight hours later, on Feb. 22.

His relatives had reported him missing after he went to an East Broadway club to get hamburgers shortly after midnight Feb. 19, reports indicate.

Officers said Solis' brother located his car and that when police checked it, they found dried blood on the front dash and on the inside of the windshield. Outside the auto, blood was dripping from the

Detectives removed the back seat and discovered the victim in the trunk. The Criminal District Attorney's Office recommended bonds of $5,000 each on the two suspects.

Abortion Clinic Directors Opposed To Law

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Abortion clinic directors say a newly passed restrictive abortion ordinance could mean more expensive abortions and a loss of privacy for women seeking them, but they vow to fight the law in the courts.

'Certainly, this will raise the cost," Kathy Gotshall, director of the Akron Center for Reproductive Health, said after the City Council passed the measure 7-6 Tuesday. Courtroom Battles Appealing To Country Lawyer

By RICHARD H. GROWALD MOUNT HOLLY, N. J. (UPI) - Tomorrow is invading Mount Holly.

Until a few years ago cows grazed in the High Street of this pre-American Revolution county seat in southern New Jersey. Now the station wagons of commuters to New York, Philadelphia, Trenton and Wilmington loll under the High Street oaks.

The inn founded in 1749 by an Aaron Burr ancestor still operates but its 10th generation of waitresses may be ogled by strays from the New Jersey Turnpike. That older artery, the Delaware River, nurses local pride however — George Wshington had planned to cross his Valley Forgers here but the ice dictated a direct and notably successful assault on upriver Trenton.

John Lee Madden, country lawyer of Mount Holly, blends the comforts of America's yesterdays and the needs of to-

He enjoys practicing law in his 140-year-old house, his three-year-old daugh-ter Tina playing with Muffin the dog in the back yard and the nation's "oldest continuously used courthouse" down the

In his basement law offices - a door hides the workshop where the lawyer himself did the cabinetwork — two rag dolls sit on a leather chair in front of wall-high shelves of legal books. Tina had asked her father to babysit the dolls.

On a shelf sits a plastic statuette of a vengeful goon bawling "Sue the B—s." The dolls of daughter and of father signify thoughts of a country lawyer.

Madden is 35. Born and schooled in Mount Holly, its rocking chair and technicolor seasons, he first wanted to be a

'As an undergraduate in college, I was an English major. I was very, very taken by Robert Burns and the Romantic

"I contemplated going to Scotland, be-coming a Burns scholar. I wrote poetry. I had rhymes at the end of each line.

Madden, so taller than six feet that he has the gentle big man's habit of cocking a smiling face down toward shorter beings, ran a spoon around the inside of a cup of tea on his desk. "The poetry I wrote was quite poor."

He smiled. But his eyes showed hurt.

Saying something has always been important to Madden. He does not enjoy being robbed of individuality. As a boy he had planned to attend Notre Dame but picked a smaller college, Indiana's St. Joseph's, because it seemed less domineering. "I saw no reason to become anonymous," he said. Thwarted at poetry, he thought of teaching. A Mount Holly elder suggested he express himself rather by becoming a lawyer. Madden grinned; "he suggested that if I wanted to teach, I could always teach law to judges.

'The drama of trial law attracted me. Also, it would let me help someone who had a problem. And, sure, lawyers have a social standing. I figured I would never get rich at it.

'I was right," Madden said.

genuinely enjoy trying cases in court. You can feel the exhilaration of an athlete victorious. The courtroom com-

Madden was graduated from New Jersey's Seton Hall law school and joined a ing his first case.

It was 1968. A young man of Mount Holly was being sued. A woman had driven her automobile into the road and collided with the young man's auto. "My fellow had hit her, certainly, but I thought we had a pretty good case, arguing she had pulled into his path and he hadn't time to stop.

Madden shook his balding head. 'It taught me about preparing a case. It taught me that some clients don't quite tell all, even to their lawyers.

"A I was about argue my excellent case, destroying the woman's bid for damages, her lawyer rose and casually mentioned in court that my client had pleaded guilty in town court to careless driving in the incident."

Madden learned. There is a country court lore about a lawyer's appearance. A Philadelphia attorney - flared trousers, collar-length hair, Elton John eyeglasses - came to Mount Holly on behalf of a woman injured in an accident, a case normally which wins the victim a fortune.

The lawyer also had his client wear eye make-up and a short skirt. She won the case but little money in damages.

"The judge called the lawyer into his chambers after the jury awarded the little money. He told the Philadelphian that jurors are influenced by lawyers' appear-

Madden leaned back in his chair. He wore a gray suit with an almost invisible plaid, a white shirt, black socks, dark brown shoes, a navy blue tie. The plaid may have been the touch of the pot - the sober color rones meant this was a lawyer in a town without discotheques.

Madden learned so well that by 1970 the governor had named him a New Jersey prosecutor. The next year, trying a man for kidnapping a woman, Madden heard the defense attorney argue the victim could not even identify the alleged kidnapper's gun — she could not say if it was an automatic, a revolver, it's color.

During a recess, Madden slipped the gun off the evidence table and stuck in under his jacket. Later, addressing the jury, he mentioned the defense argument, pulled out the gun and pointed it just above the jurors' heads and suggested they too might not grasp the weapon's vital statistics if faced by it for two hours.

rags under the floor and telling all she had run off. When the trial opened, the defense indicated it was going to make much of death having not been yet prov-

Prosecutor Madden acted. He got the body-wrapping rags and had them placed under his courtroom table. "The defense attorney rose and asked the judge what was smelling so foully in the courtroom.

"He was told. The defense attorney shrugged and said, 'Never mind,"' The defense attorney said he would accept death as proven, but please get rid of those stinking rags.

Madden spent five years as a prosecutor, "If I stayed on, I'd get into a rut, not good for the career." He resigned and "I had been the advocate for the people. Now I was defending a person. It's

"I do not enjoy standing next to someone at the bar when the judge orders that someone off to jail. I've come to know that person. If I have lost the case, no matter the evidence, I cannot help feeling maybe I've let him down.

That's what hangs like an albatross around a lawyer's neck.

Madden's hands stroked the air. Once he might have lit a cigarette to reach sign tanking visitors for not smoking; his wife won her no smoking case with him. From Trenton came a state political calm. Now his hand but touched a small leader. Sitting in front of Madden's desk - he is enough of a no smoking fanatic to have the sign but enough of a defense lawyer to have an ashtray alongside and sketched a political career for the popular prosecutor.

'I have very definite political ambitions and desires" - he was a Democratic campus organizer in college but Mount Holly and his view of man's nature made him a Republican later.

Higher office? He had watched as a prosecutor how Republican and Democratic governors appointed prosecutors strictly on party lines.

"Ability, interest, popular standing these were incidental. It was the party label that counted most. It disillusioned Madden decided to skip the leader's promises. He smiled. "My marriage, my family, they've changed me. Politics could rob me of time with them.' Upstairs, his wife was cooking. In the backyard, Muffin barked as Tina played. The smile faded when asked about Chief Justice Warren Burger's recent statement that 50 per cent of America's trial lawyers are incompetent. "Well, the First Amendment to the Constitution (dealing with free speech) applies as much to a Chief Justice as to the rest of us. I'm in no position to debate the Chief Justice," the country lawyer said

Madden said, "There are some judges of course, who should shape up. I've seen one or two myself who didn't seem to know what they were doing in court."

"But what Burger said, well, it harms justice, this public infighting among lawyers and judges. I've seen some physicians do horrible things but one doctor does not bawl publicly at another." Madden's hands gripped his chair

"Throughout history, lawyers have been looked upon with emotions ranging from fear to disdain, and contempt. Principally because law involves everybody and it is incomprehensible to most. A profession with terms and words understood by few outside the profession.

TRIPOLI, Libya - Libya and Sudan are quietly trying to patch up their long history of strained relations.

The move comes despite the fact that Sudan is one of Egypt's closest allies and Egypt is still on bad terms with Libya.

Inder the aegis of the Organization of African unity, Sudan and Libya have agreed to reopen border crossings and normalize relations.

Cairo has said nothing about the move.

ioration of ties between Egypt and the Palestine Liberation Organization has stirred deep concern among Lebanese Christians

"If Egypt expels its 50-75,000 Palestinian residents," the reasoning goes, "where will they end up?"

The Lebanese army is still struggling to get back on its feet and the government works in close consultation with Syria the main ally of the PLO.

Therefore, Lebanese Christians are afraid that if Egypt expels any Palestinians, they may join the 400,000 already in

Described as a "safety valve" for the giant Soviet-built dam, the canal will funnel excess amounts of water from Lake Nasser to the Toshki depression, thus saving the banks of the Nile from threatened erosion.

Thousands of acres in the desert also will be cultivated.

Chrysler To Begin Repair Jobs On Defective Dodges, Plymouths be over for nearly 1.3 million Dodge and Plymouth vehicle owners who were told last December their cars would be recalled for a potentially dangerous engine-

A Chrysler Corp. spokesman said Monday recall letters to individual car owners - which dealers require before they will inspect and repair a recalled vehicle are about to be sent.

"It has taken us this long to get all the necessary parts to the dealers in sufficient numbers to handle the recalls," the spokesman said. "That phase has just been completed and letters should be going out very, very soon."

The company, bowing to pressure from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, last Dec. 27 announced the recall of 1975 through 1977 Dodge Dart and Aspen and Plymouth Valiant and Volare models with 228-cubic-inch, six-cylinder engines and 318-cubic-inch V-8s.

The cars were suspected of having a defective accelerator pump seal that could deteriorate under contact with certain additives in unleaded gasoline, resulting in engine stalling.

Some of the cars equipped with six-cylinder engines also may require replacement of a control component on the emission control system that could be a factor in stalling problems.

The federal agency called the defect a safety hazard because of the danger of engine failure during critical acceleration, such as when pulling into heavy

The same models were involved in two earlier recalls involving defective hood latches and possible battery leaks that could allow acid to destroy the brake

Some owners took the cars in for repairs on those recalls and became disgruntled when dealers told them they must wait for the official notification before the engine-stalling problem could be

"It takes a lot of time to get a recall of that magnitude into effect," said Chrysler spokesman Robert Heath.

The chief of Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe died two hours before he was to mount the gallows in a gymnasium of the Nuremberg jail where he and other convicted Nazi war criminals were held.

The question of possible American involvement in Goering's suicide was raised by Die Welt am Sonntag, the Sunday edition of the West German daily newspaper Die Welt, which has a nationwide circulation.

Goering, sentenced by the International War Crimes Tribunal in Nuremberg to death by hanging, committed suicide by biting a capsule containing hydrocynamic acid Oct. 15, 1946 the Nuremberg jail, the newspaper said.

After Goering's death, prison guards found a letter in his cell for Col. Buron C.

In his letter, Goering said he had been in possession of the poison since his transfer to Nuremberg.

Goering also told the American commandant that none of his guards could be blamed for not finding the capsule when he was still alive.

"It was virtually impossible to discover the capsule," the letter said, according to Welt am Somntag.

The newspaper raised doubt whether Goering's letter told the real story.
"Goering felt a deep dislike for the commandant. He felt that the arrogant American prison commandant was treating him disgracefully. So why should Goering have adressed a letter to that man?" Welt am Sonntag asked.

"The letter apparently was designed as a cover-up, a smoke screen action, with which Goering tried to protect the man

It said that Robert Kempner, the U.S. chief prosecutor at Nuremberg, expressed a similar opinion.

"At first, I thought that the letter was correct. But today I have doubts. I am sure that Goering went to Nuremberg without a poison capsule and somebody gave it to him there," the newspaper quoted Kempner as saying.

The newspaper said Goering's wife, Mrs. Emmi Goering, "was convinced, five days before his suicide, that he had no poison in his possession.'

She visited Goering for the last time in his cell Oct. 11, 1946.

Mrs. Goering, according to Welt am Sonntag, said later she asked her husband, "Do you have a comb?".

Goering simply shook his head. The word "comb" was the code Goering and his wife used for the poison.

Foundation Testing Dental Program On Children

The program could "turn around" the insurance payment policy for dental care by allowing coverage for preventive treatment, said project director Dr. Harry Bohannan of the American Fund for Dental Health in Lexington, Ky.

"We are not experimenting with children," said Bohannan. "We are not experimenting with new products. We're using only things that have been proven effective and safe.

Treatment will vary from "everything you can do for a child to the least you can do - just examine the child," Bohannan said in a recent telephone interview.

"All of the treatments have been applied with varying degrees of success, he said. "But nobody had ever developed a complete dentistry plan where all the preventive procedures would be com-

The initial examinations of the children were completed recently, said Bohannan, and the actual preventive program is being implemented by American Fund for Dental Health staff.

Third, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders also were examined to provide a cross-section of the general dental health in the communities. Their records will be participating in the program at the end of the three-year period, said Bohannan.

Beside changing insurance coverage of dental care, any national health insurance program also might be interested in testing the concept that money is better spent on preventing the disease than treating it after it occurs, he said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The speedometer and the fuel gauge on your car will tell how much fuel you have burned but won't tell you quickly when fuel con-sumption is too high or erratic.

The same thing is true of the standard instruments on an airliner. Accordingly, engineers around the world recently have developed some sophisticated new instruments to sound early warnings and enable motorists and airlines to save money on fuel and make timely engine adjustments or repairs.

For example, Lear-Seigler, Inc., of Santa Monica, Calif., has just won a $4 million contract from Boeing Co. of Seattle to install its performance data computer system on Boeing 727 and 737 airliners.

The system has been tried out extensively on Boeing airliners in use by Conti-nental Airlines and the German Lufthan-sa airline. Continental reported a fuel saving of 4.3 percent with the system on the test 727s and Lufthansa said it saved 3.2 percent in fuel on its 737s.

The device employs a small digital computer and a television-style display unit in the cockpit. Indexes on the airspeed indicator and engine pressure ratio gauges provide the flight crew with optimum settings for maximum fuel efficiency during all phases of a flight — from takeoff to cruise to landing.

The system is not cheap but Boeing estimates it will pay for itself in one year. It

MEMORIAL TO HUMAN DIGNITY - Ruidoso, N.M., sculptor Will Fyk has proposed a 70-foot tall "Cathedral and Image" monument in the nation's capital as a memorial to human dignity. The monument would be inset with faceted colored glass on one side and translucent marble on the other. Sculpted of bronze-hued, polished granite, the memorial would be lighted from within. Solons Studying Gas Price Plan

Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House-Senate energy conference committee, joked that a proposed compromise on natural gas pricing probably would be greeted by 25 different opinions among the 25 House members.

He may be right. The conferees were calling it everything from a step in the right direction to a troublesome increase in prices.

The plan would let natural gas prices increase to approximately $3.75 per thousand cubic feet by 1985, from their current level of $1.48. In 1985, the controls would be lifted.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who engineered the compromise and got at least a temporary majority among the 17 Sen-ate conferees, explained the plan to House energy leaders in Speaker Thomas O'Neill's office Wednesday.

Then the key House chairmen explained it, in a separate closed-doors session, to House Democratic conferees. Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee, called the Jackson plan "a good basic proposal. A --of a good effort." Ashley said the briefing with Jackson was "upbeat" and called the spirit of the gathering "a step in the right direction."

But Rep. Anthony Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said natural gas prices would increase too far, too fast. He said all eight Republicans among the House conferees are against it, so it would take only five disgruntled Democrats to form a House majority that would defeat the plan in

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said, "I find deregulation upon a date certain, in a disorderly market, to be very troublesome. I have spent 22 years opposing der-

Three Republican senators, who oppose the compromise on the grounds the deregulation date is too far away, acknowledged they lack the votes to block it and urged House conferees to reject it. Sens. GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - The Soviet Union today proposed a treaty at the Geneva disarmament conference to ban the neutron bomb, and the United States immediately denounced the move as a "one-sided propaganda exercise" aimed at diverting attention from serious arms control efforts.

Soviet delegate Viktor I. Likhachev, introducing the draft treaty, said develop-would deal a "great blow" to detente and would "unavoidably trigger retaliatory measures" by the Soviet Union.

'Those who advocate the production and deployment of the neutron weapon should clearly realize that if that weapon is adopted ... our country will be confronted with the need of answering the challenge in order to ensure its security and the security of its allies. Consequently, the level of military confrontation will not decrease but will rise." he said. The draft was co-sponsored by seven Soviet allies.

In what amounted to one of the sharpest retorts in recent sessions of the 35-nation Geneva conference, U.S. chief delegate Adrian S. Fisher virtually accused the Soviet Union of hypocrisy.

"We have heard the Soviet representative and some other representatives speak of the inhumanity and barbarity of the "neutron bomb," Fisher said.

"But I fear that we would wait in vain to hear them speak of the inhumanity and barbarity in the Soviet arsenal, some of which are as much as 20,000 times - I repeat 20,000 times - more powerful.' The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than one-tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

President Carter has not yet decided whether to deploy the weapon.

Fisher said the Soviet draft required some plain talk which will not be pleasant talk" because it focused on only one aspect of a "dangerous confrontation of conventional forces and nuclear weapons deployed by both sides in Europe."

He said the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact forces in Central Europe had a three-toone tank advantage "without even taking into account the very large number of tanks that could be brought from the Soviet Union on short notice.

"It is natural that NATO should consider defenses against these forces. In this consideration, it has become evident that tacticl nuclear weapons offer one of the possible ways to halt a massive tank attack. Tanks and their crews are more vulnerable to neutron radiation than to blast and heat."

Likhachev said attempts to present the neutron bomb as a tactical weapon were "particularly dangerous" as they sought to make "transition to a nuclear war unnoticeable He said the neutron bomb "stands in the same row with such cruel and barbaric types of weapons" as bacteriological weapons, which have been banned by agreement at the Geneva conference.

Operation Planned On Flynt

ATLANTA (AP) - A bullet that struck Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt and lodged an inch or two from his spine has left him at least temporarily paralyzed from the waist down, doctors say

They said the bullet also broke bones and left debris in Flynt's body.

Flynt, 34, was to undergo surgery at Emory University Hospital today, three days after he and his lawyer were shot as they walked along a street in Lawrenceville, Ga., where Flynt was on trial on a charge of distributing obscenity in Gwinnett County.

"The operation hopefully will relieve pressure on the spinal column," said Andrew Jaffe, a spokesman for Flynt. Dr. George Tindall, a neurosurgeon, said he would perform a laminectomy -

Dr. John Galambos. Flynt was transferred Wednesday from Button Gwinnett Hospital to Emory under heavy security. Jaffe said the publisher's family felt "better equipment and better specialists" were available at Emory. He said Mrs. Flynt was staying at the hospital with her husband. Flynt has been reported in critical condition almost continuously since he and lawyer Gene Reeves were shot Monday.

council regulations. Wilborn made his pitch for lower licensing fees and no ban on massages by persons of the opposite sex just as Bass called for a vote on the ordinance. The council authorized him to address it, and he said that the ordinance is "no way to rid the town of prostitution."

Wilborn explained that he believes prostitution centers posing as massage parlors "would only reopen as something else," such as escort services.

The effect of the ordinance would be to "hurt" legitimate massage parlors. Wilborn, who said he represented the masseuses at his wife's business, supported the concept of an ordinance that does not prohibit massages by persons of the opposite sex. But he said that provision and the high licensing fees, were "too

Hawkins, 34, formerly worked as a trimmer at an Amarilio meat process Another witness today was Larry Clark, a superintendent at the plant, who identified Hawkins as a former employee. Clark said workers such as Hawkins, as part of their jobs, were required to maintain "skinners" knives and keep them sharp. He said trimmers customarily use knives with slightly curved blades. "At that time, knives were readily accessible to any person," Clark said. "Employees were supposed to sign for them and turn in an old one when they got new knives, but the policy was then enforced."

Southwestern Bell Makes Bid To Increase Telephone Rates

rates for long distance calls, nor for pay phones, directory assist-ance or WATS services," Hayes emphasized.

The proposed Lubbock rate hikes fall on the high side of basic residential increase ranges for small towns and larger cities, and in the low-to-middle range of business hikes.

Under the Bell plan, basic oneparty residential rates would increase in a range from 75 cents monthly in the smallest to $1.20 in the largest towns. Proposed basic monthly two-party residential rate hikes would range from 15 cents in smallest to 80 cents in largest Requested one-party business service increases would range from $1.60 to $3.80 per month in small to large towns Besides the outright rate hike.

Texas residential customers also would feel the pinch in another area that Hayes had to be drawn out on in questioning at an Austin press conference. About $33 million of the $214.3 million would come fro m separating out local gross receipts taxes collected by Bell and remitted to most of the 488 towns and cities in the Bell system Hayes' originial example of the effect on residential rates was an increase in Austin from $6.50 to $7.55, or a hike of $1.05 per month. But pressed, Hayes disclosed per cent gross receipts tax while the $7.55 does not. The tax totals about 25 cents per month.

Thus, the increase would be more in the range of $1.30 rather than $1.05, Hayes said. Other components of the increase are:

- $25 million for increases in connection charges and changes in connection - $36 million for multi-line

- $40 million for basic business

ness and offices. - $14 million for PBX sevice. - $10 million for Centrex services such as very large businesses and governments commonly use.

"key" such are used in small busi-

- $20 million for private line services - special business lines that connect two or more points but are not linked with Bell's ordinary lines. Hayes said Bell is asking the commission to break out the gross receipts taxes and have them shown as separate taxes on the customer's bill. While the taxes are levied by cities and are valid only within them, Hayes said Bell currently charges all customers within an exchange — even rural residents — for the tax. He said the breakout would end this alleged in-

Hayes said that while the 1976 rate increase allowed by the utility commission was supposed to give a 9.5 per cent return on the value of its investment, Bell revenues actually generated only a 7.74 per cent return.

"We are hurt by inflation just like any other citizen in the state," Haves said. He said the $214.3 million rate induce a 10.38 per cent rate of re-

Asked how this compared with returns normally realized by utilities, Hayes said the Federal Communications Commission allows Bell a return of 9.5 to 10 per cent on its interstate service. Bell and the utility commission are currently before the Texas Supreme Court in a legal dispute over the 1976 increase, which was some $240 million short of what Bell requested. The major issue before the court is the utility commission's use of the cost of original equipment as the base for computing Bell's rate of return. Bell wanted current replacement cost to be considered as well. But Hayes said the rate of return built into the new rate request is based the method used by the utility commission "because we doubt they would change it unless the Supreme Court requires them to."

The Supreme Court will hear the Bell case on April 5. Hayes said Bell realizes it takes months for a complicated case to be decided by the Supreme Court, "but our revenue needs are so great that we can't wait any longer.

Kidnapping Serves As Constant Fear Of Writers In Argentina

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — In the last four years, more than 35 journalists have been killed in Argentina, 30 have been arrested and scores more have left the country after receiving death threats.

Oscar Serrat, 43, an Argentine citizen who works for The Associated Press, was one of the lucky ones.

Men in civilian clothes picked him up as he left home for work last November. He was released 18 hours later after the U.S. State Department, the AP, other international news agencies and foreign newspapers, and a few other governments pressured the military regime to

He was freed near where he had been abducted. He could not identify his captors, who had put a black hood over his head

Most missing journalists, whose publications lack the clout of a worldwide agency, rate only a few lines, if anything, in the local press, and many are not heard from again.

Many of the kidnappings are presumed to be the work of government security forces. More than 700 persons died in political violence last year as the government stepped up its drive against leftists, and more than 2,000 people were reported missing.

There is no formal censorship. But local editors are mindful of the fate of their colleagues and often let that affect what they print or ignore.

Editorials and stories playing up patriotic speeches by military commanders are well displayed. So are pictures of troop maneuvers. Statements by antigovernment groups outside the country and news of disappearances are seldom printed.

"Lately I've been sitting down with my wife and discussing the possibility of selling everything and just saying 'the hell with journalism,' "a prominent publisher told a foreign acquaintance recently. Recently foreign journalists also have come under government pressure.

The foreign ministry called in Juan de Onis of the New York Times and told him the government didn't like what he was writing. De Onis and Karen de Young of the Washington Post have reported extensively on violation of human about relatives of missing persons.

The presentation, not the content, of the local press often tells readers what is important.

"Reading the Buenos Aires papers is like reading the wall posters in Peking," said a foreign diplomat.

Editorial comment on sensitive subjects which appears on front pages attributed to "reliable sources" or which the papers say "has been learned" nearly always has been planted by the government.

The Buenos Aires Herald, Argentina's only English-language paper, gets away with printing things that would close, a Spanish publication, possibly because few Argentines read English. Foreigners in Argentina raly heavily on it in Argentina rely heavily on it.

Even so, Robert Cox, the editor of the paper and a British citizen, was jailed for three days last year after he reported a news conference anti-government guer-

The Herald remains outspoken and recently printed a caustic editorial attacking a law requiring all non-Catholic religions to register with the government or

Satellite Leads Mining Scientists To Large Bodies Of Zinc, Lead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Color photographs of Kentucky and Tennessee taken by a Landsat satellite have led mining space agency briefing by Dr. LeRoy cause of the depressed state of metal prices.

Colo. The minerals are concentrated on large company scientists to at least seven promising bodies of lead and zinc more than 1,500 feet deep.

Each concentration of minerals was marked by a peculiar circular feature that clearly showed up as vegetation col-or variations in the view from space but which were nowhere to be seen to geologists on the ground.

Moreover, there are many more such circular features in the area that have not yet been examined. Drilling confirmed the presence of the other mineral depos-

He said in an interview that similar circular patterns have been spotted in an area with similar geological formations in New York state. But Scharon said the company is not saying where in New York those features are located.

The discoveries in Tennessee and Kentucky were made after NL and a partner in the venture, Comico America of Spokane, Wash., found a body of zinc near Burkesville, Ky., by conventional surface exploration. A recently completed 2,206-

DA Alleges Liquor Served To Jurors

AMARILLO (AP) - Allegations about len Davis capital murder trial will be included in a removal hearing for suspended Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker.

State District Court Judge George Miller Wednesday denied a defense motion to strike the allegations from an amended removal petition.

We all know intoxicating liquor was provided to the jury in the Cullen Davis trial," said defense lawyer Robert Wallis of Houston. "But the statute refers to providing liquor during deliberations." Baker has been under suspension by Miller since Jan. 12, and his removal trial has been scheduled for March 30. Miller also denied a defense motion to dismiss the removal suit because a signed affidavit by the person who brought the suit was missing in an amended petition.

Larry Kelley, an oyster bar operator, submitted a sworn affidavit Dec. 13 with However, Feb. 21 Miller ordered Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis to be "more specific" in his allegations and thus Curtis submitted an amended petition, which included the allegations involving the Davis trial.

The amended petition was submitted Under the EPA policy, the 15 Texas Feb. 27 without another sworn affidavit

Curtis maintained Wednesday another affidavit wasn't needed but the judge ordered him to get one. Curtis said he would talk to Kelley.

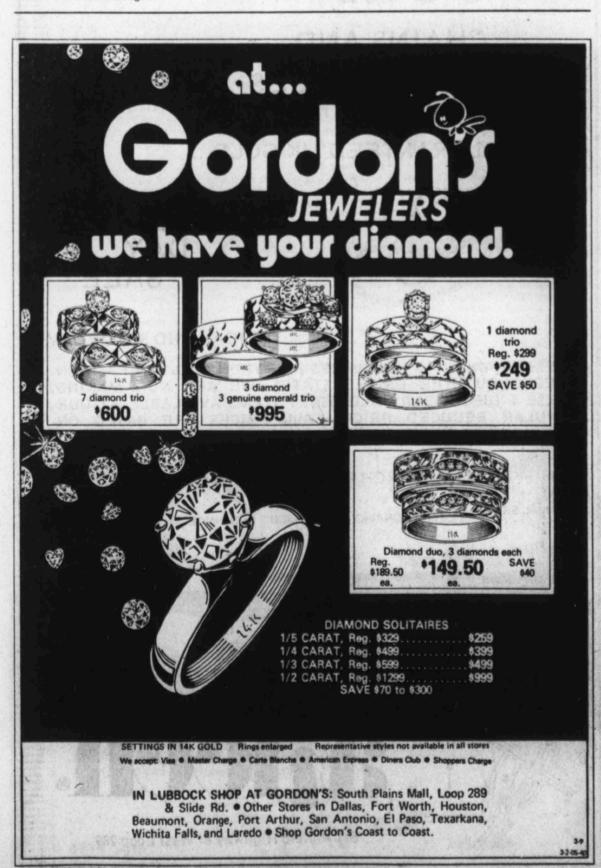

The original petition accused the sheriff of misconduct through misuse of a county-owned air compressor, of lying in a statement about the compressor and of authorizing an investigation in an effort to embarrass a local lawyer probing the sheriff's department for the 1977 Potter County court of inquiry.

The revised petition includes those allegations and also accuses the sheriff of gross negligence or gross carelessness in connection with repeated sexual abuse of a county prisoner, and the granting of special privileges to Davis, a Fort Worth millionaire who was acquitted after a four-month trial. Irons Reveals List Of Reassignments

A school-by-school listing of element tary student reassignments under Lub-bock's proposed integration plan was re-leased Wednesday by Superintendent Ed

Irons also disclosed other details of the preliminary plan, the topic of the school board's community meeting today at 7 p.m. in the Lubbock High auditorium,

He said, for example, that students still would report to their neighborhood elementary schools each morning — and then those being reassigned would ride a bus to their new destination.

And Irons said the district will have policies to stop families from escaping a emester's reassignment by moving within the city or putting a child in private school for a short period of time.

Federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward told the district Jan. 27 to draft a proposal to desegregate Dunbar High, Struggs Junior High and seven elementaries cited as "constitutional violations."

School trustees formally will adopt a plan Friday for immediate submission to Woodward. In his courtroom Monday, the judge will hear the proposal. The U.S. Justice Department is expected to say it's too limited.

Under the preliminary plan, Struggs would be closed. That facility would be combined with Dunbar as a "magnet complex" with special offerings to volun-tarily attract whites from other high

The district proposes a three-pronged approach to integrate the cited minority elementaries of Guadalupe, Sanders, Mahon, Martin, Posey, Wheatley and Iles.

First, Sanders and Iles would be closed. The 122 elementary pupils in the Sanders zone (the Hub Homes area) would be combined with Guadalupe. The 172 children in the Iles area would be rezoned into Wheatley.

Irons said the district will pick up Sanders and Iles children in their own neighborhoods and transport them to Guadalpermoods and transport them to Guadal-upe and Wheatley respectively.

The second part of the elementary plan involves reassigning students from Ma-hon, Martin, Posey, Guadalupe (plus its Sanders pupils) and Wheatley (plus its Iles pupils).

Mahon will send half of its fourth-graders, half of its fifth-graders and half of its sixth-graders to Hardwick each semester. The first semester, the reassignments may involve those Mahon students whose names are in the top half of the alphabet in the designated grades, Irons said. The second semester would involve the bottom half of the alphabet.

Thus, in any given semester, 40 of Mahon's fourth-through sixth-graders would attend Hardwick and 40 would stay at Mahon. Also, all of Mahon's kindergarteners through third-graders would remain

In the same way, Martin would send its third-through sixth-graders to Maedgen, again with each Martin student in the designated grades reassigned one semes-ter a year. In any semester, 58 Martin pupils would be attending Maedgen.

Posey would assign its third-through sixth-graders to Stubbs. That would involve busing 88 Posey students a semes-

The expanded Guadalupe zone each semester would assign 71 children, from grades three through six, to Stewart. And the enlarged Wheatley zone each semester would send 101 pupils from grades four through six to Overton. A different system would be used in assigning white students to the five minority schools at issue. Generally each predominantly white elementary school in the city would be required to send a designated grade to one of the minority campuses. Students in that grade would be divided, probably all the state of the control of the co phabetically, so half of them would be

For example, Overton would assign its third-graders (half the class — or 26 students — each semester) to Guadalupe. In the same way, Guadalupe would get Stubbs' fourth-graders (21 students a semester), Roscoe Wilson's fifth-graders (16 a semester), and Bowie's sixth-grad-

Assigned to Mahon each semester would be Maedgen's third-graders (35), Rush's fifth-graders (37), and Hardwick's sixth-graders (51). Three predominantly white elementa-ries — Parsons, Williams and Murfee — would be reassigning two grades. But when new elementary schools are built

Governmental Regulation Discussed By Expert

By PATRICIA McCORMACK UPI Health Editor

The first time I tried to reach Anna J. Harrison, first woman president of the American Chemical Society, she was at the South Pole in connection with her membership on the board of the National Science Foundation.

That was a little while back. The second time, she was in Bombay,

She was speaking at a worldwide meeting of chemists and government persons. The topic, of great concern to chemists and consumers everywhere these days, was government regulation. That is, rules saying you can or can't have artificial sweeteners in your beverages or, you can or cannot dye your hair once it starts turning silver or white. For two examples of government regulations.

When finally touching base with Dr. Harrison, a professor of chemistry at Mount Holyoke College in S. Hadley, Mass., the other day, I found a woman who said she's approaching retirement in her college position.

But her years in academia, beginning as a teacher in a oneroom schoolhouse in Benton City, Mo., have not robbed Dr. Harrison of youthful enthusiasm.

She's especially dedicated these days to bucking "excessive federal regulation of chemical substances.'

Dr. Harrison reminded that she felt this way long before becoming president of the 115,000-member American Chemical Society - "the world's largest organization devoted to a single science.'

Her short-cropped white hair has not been touched by chemically-made darkeners. That is by design. She just never felt the need to darken her hair once it started turning.

Would she be afraid to dye her hair? Keeping in mind the alleged cancer-causing potential in some hair dyes and the recent federal warning that hair dyes may be hazardous to one's health?

"I think I would probably dye my hair if I wanted to," Dr. Harrison said when "I don't think on many of these things we have sufficient information. There are risks and they are on many levels all kinds of risks.

"My personal philosophy is reason in all things. I think a question about hair dves is one of whether the substance itself causes cancer in laboratory animals or if something is formed in the metabolism process - and that is a matter of individual differences.

"My guess is using hair dyes is not a

We're pretty inconsistent," she said. "Take tobacco. The evidence seems strong (that it might be linked to cancer) and yet the public goes right ahead smoking.

"We become accustomed to living with "My personal philosophy is that one should be allowed to accept a personal risk, insofar as by so doing they do not pose a threat to someone else.

"Putting dye on your hair involves a personal risk. Putting artificial sweetener in your beverages is the same. People have a right to take risks." Dr. Harrison has a closet full of awards. including many from the Manufacturing Chemists Association, the American Ceramic Society and one from the University of Missouri. As a member of the National Science Board she helps to set policy for the National Science Foundation. Advances in chemistry have made life simpler for millions, according to Dr.

Harrison. Some samples she cited: washwear clothing, quick foods, paints that dry to the touch almost the instant you apply them, instant coffee, quickdrying waxes, plastic from furniture to packages, more efficient heating fuels and gasoline, anti-depressant medicines to antimotion pills.

But advances are not without risks. Dr. Harrison said it is important to consider the benefit-risk analysis - "or the risk-benefit ratio, if you are a pessimist."

"The evaluation of a ratio involving units such as dollars-lives becomes a value judgment that lies in neither the realm of economics nor the realm of the natural sciences in a democratic socie-

"Such value judgments in a democratic society can only be made by the public or by elected officials who are their surrogeneral public and our elected officials understand the nature of the benefits and risks involved."

On federal chemical industry regulation Dr. Harrison has no quarrel with the goals: to protect, to safeguard life.

"I am, however, critical of the details" of some acts and extremely apprehensive as to the manner in which these acts have been or may be implemented," she said.

"The conflict is a real and inescapable, and we should understand it. This conflict involves everyone.

"The individual expects to have the benefits of goods and services; the individual also expects to be protected from the negative impacts of goods and services and from negative impacts associated with their production.

"But all technological innovations, regardless of their positive impact on society, also have a negative impact.

'This is a characteristic of all change. Scientists escalate the conflict by accelerating the rate of change, the development of new goods and services."

'Increasing attention in years ahead will be given to research in toxicology and areas closely related, such as basic studies in metabolism in man and other species," according to Dr. Harrison.

"Cancer now is the second largest cause of death in the United States. There is growing acceptance that the incidence of many types of cancers is related to environmental exposure.

"Many chemicals are toxic. We are just now beginning to appreciate the magnitude of both acute and longterm chronic

Many federal departments are involved in regulation of toxic substances. These

The Department Of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, the Department of Energy, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Department of Interior, the Department of Labor, the Department of Transportation and the Department of State.

"Regulatory authority is centered in the Food and Drug Administration," Dr. Harrison said. "And the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. "To each of these has been delegated regulatory responsibilities by Congress.

"For example, the Environmental Protection Agency has the responsibility to implement and enforce the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act, the Clean Air Act, the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, the Marine Protection, Research and Sanctuaries Act. the Safe Drinking Water Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act and the Toxic Substances Control Act.'

Of all the matters of concern at the moment, Dr. Harrison said, one of considerable concern is the magnitude of the health effects of benzene in the work-

"It is now feasible to monitor benzene vapor concentration in the air in parts per billion and the regulation of benzene exposure in the work place is very proba-

"This poses some interesting problems. Gasoline filling stations may be exempted from the regulation and yet, the highest level of occupational exposure to ben zene vapor may soon be the gas pump op-

What does Dr. Harrison see when she gazes into the crystal ball? She answered:

"The overall distribution of the research effort will be modified as research in toxicology and related areas is intensi-

- "The total research effort may decrease as industrial companies adjust budgets to accommodate changes in plant facilities, operational practices and production schedules to meet regulatory requirements." "Industrial funding of basic research will be diverted in part to more immediate problems, including toxicological

- "Research and development to produce more acceptable substitutes for toxic substances will be intensified." - "The direction of technological innovation will be modified in response to the new restrictions and to the new consumer demands."

"The rate of introduction of new products will decrease.'

The bidding: South West 2NT Pass Pass 40 Pass

Pass Pass Opening lead: Four of . Don't put all your eggs in one basket. No matter how obvious a line of play may seem, look for a way to improve your chances. North-South bid well to fair small slam. Since North had shown no values up to the point where he bid four spades when in fact he held two working honor cards in his partner's suits, he judged that he had enough to accept South's slam invitation.

West led a low club and declarer ruffed. Since the contract was home if dia-monds broke 3-3, declarer decided to bank on that possibility or a defensive error. He ran all his trumps in the hope that a defender might sluff a diamond, but West had two clubs he could afford to let go with impunity. When the diamonds broke according to the probabilities. declarer stranded with two red-suit losers. Down one.

Declarer's plan was rather simplistic. He could have improved on it without any risk. Since he could afford to play three rounds of dia-monds without touching monds without touching trumps if the suit divided evenly, declarer might be able to overcome a 4-2 diamond break if East was the defender who was short in Correct technique after ruffing the opening lead is to cash the ace of diamonds, cross to dummy's queen and lead a diamond toward the closed hand. That puts East on the spot. If he discards, declarer wins the king, ruffs a diamond with the jack of trumps and then draws trumps. At the end, declarer concedes a heart, but makes his slam.

East, therefore, must ruff the third diamond, but declarer now has yet another string to his bow. He fol-lows with his low diamond and ruffs East's club return. Now declarer draws just one round of trumps, then tries to cash the king of diamonds, discarding a heart from dummy. If East started with a doubleton trump as well, he cannot ruff and declarer is home. He cashes the aceking of hearts and ruffs a heart in dummy, and the rest of his hand is high.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" REASSIGNMENTS — With this map, parents can see where their children would be reassigned under the integration proposal. Iles would be zoned into Wheatley: Sanders zoned into Guadalupe. Guadalupe would send students to Stewart and receive students from Overton, Stubbs, R. Wilson and Bowie; Mahon would send to Hardwick and get from Maedgen, Rush and Hardwick; Martin would send to Maedgen and get from Parsons, Stewart and Wheelock; Posey would send to Stubbs and get from Wester, Bayless, Brown and Williams; Wheatley would send to Overton and get from Haynes and Murfee. Students of the five minority schools would be reassigned for one semester of each of their intermediate-grade years. Students of predominantly white schools generally would be reassigned for one semester of just one grade. Overton, Maedgen, Parsons and Wester would send third-graders; Stubbs, Parsons, Bayless and Haynes, fourth-graders; Wilson, Rush, Stewart, Brown, Williams and Murfee, fifth-graders; and Bowie, Hardwick, Wheesouth of Loop 289, serving the southern halves of those three zones, one grade would come from each of the new schools, and one grade each from Parsons, Williams and Murfee.

Under the preliminary plan for next year, Parsons would send its third-graders (80 each semester) and fourth-graders (also 80) to Martin. Also going to Martin would be Stewart's fifth-graders (30) and Wheelock's sixth-graders (32).

Posey would receive each third-graders from Wester, 60 fourth graders from Bayless, 18 fifth-graders from Brown, 52 fifth-graders from Williams and 65 sixth-graders from Williams. Wheatley would get 59 fourth-graders a semester from Haynes, 68 fifth-graders from Murfee and 56 sixth-graders from Murfee.

In summary, Guadalupe would send 71 students to Stewart and get 91 students from Overton, Stubbs, Roscoe Wilson and Bowie. Mahon would send 40 students to Hardwick and get 123 pupils from Maedgen, Rush and Hardwick. Martin would send 58 students to Maedgen and get 222 children from Parsons, Stewart and Wheelock.

Posey would send 88 pupils to Stubbs and receive 231 students from Wester, Bayless, Brown and Williams.

And Wheatley would send 101 students to Overton and get 183 children from Haynes and Murfee.

The grades designated for reassignment would not change, Irons said. "Under this plan, parents will know precisely which grade will be reassigned year after year," he said.

"If you live in the attendance zone of Bayless Elementary — which is sending its fourth-graders to Posey - then you'll snow that when your child reaches the fourth-grade, he will be assigned one semester at Posey.

Irons said all students would continue to gather at their neighborhood elemen-tary school each morning. Then, at about

Students in that zone living north of 50th Street (about 53 children) would go to Wheelock next year; students south of 50th (about 52) would go to Brown. For the 1979-80 year, Southeast students would go to proposed new schools south of the loop.

Irons said the one-semester reassignment is only a "minimum requirement"; parents who opt to send their children longer would be provided district trans-

Students reassigned will be brought back to their neighborhood elementaries in the afternoon in time to walk home with their friends and any siblings that may be attending the neighborhood school, Irons said.

Also, parents may elect to "keep all school." For example, all Mahon students will go to a single school - Hardwick — so that brothers and sisters won't be separated. And parents in the Wester zone, whose third-graders will attend Posey, may choose to send their other children also to Posey.

this plan simply to avoid a 4 1/2-month reassignment," Irons said. But just in case, provisions will be made for parents who may try to put their children in private school or move from one neighborhood to another to escape a scheduled reassignment.

'We're going to have to build in something that says every child must experience at least a half year at a reassigned school in order to be promoted from elementary school." Irons said. Students who "naturally" miss out on reassignments under the plan will be exempt from that.

CHICAGO (AP) - Soybean and soybean product futures soared sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Wedne as officials in Brazil met to decide whether to continue restrictions on soybean oil exports. Both speculators and grain dealers were involved in the aggressive buying that boosted soybeans about 20 cents a bushel in months through the summer. Soybean oil finished just beneath daily limit gains of a cent a pound. Grain analysts said that although no fresh news was fueling the rise, the market has been ripe for the upswing after trading within a narrow range for

A variety of factors, including good demand from grain exporters and problems in transporting grain to Gulf ports, contributed to the gains, they said. A heavy snow in parts of the Midwest restricted country grain movement, although farm selling seemed to pick up later in the day.

Senators Introduce New $2.3 Billion Ag Program

E. Talmadge, D-Ga., has put his political muscle as a veteran of the "Old Guard" in the Senate on the line with a move to get emergency farm legislation to Presi-dent Carter by March 29.

The measure he and 15 other influential senators introduced Wednesday is a $2.3 billion program of mandatory payments to farmers who wish to take more cropland out of production than Carter says would be wise in the event of a major crop failure later.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland can make such payments now but has repeatedly said he won't, either for his own set-aside programs for wheat and feedgrains or the diversions Talmadge wants of land now slated to produce wheat, feedgrains, cotton or soybeans.

It does not come near the demands of the American Agriculture protest group, the Senate Agriculture Committee chairmen told reporters. Bills to substantially change federal farm policy or rework last fall's revisions of existing policy will be

Because of wide disagreements within Congress and among farmers on how to solve the predicted cost-price crunch and slump in farm income, he said, "I do not believe the problems can be resolved before laying-by time this year."

The committee's minority leader, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., joined in, while noting he has nine extensive measures awaiting action and more in his pocket. "But the laying-aside time has already come in the wheat belt," he said.

The Crop Reporting Board said later that corn planting in the southernmost areas is behind schedule this year because of either wet fields or cold soil temperatures.

All the senators involved urged speedy passage, with Talmadge saying he has alerted his House counterpart to be ready to move there. If his panel approves the

Solons Seek Probe Of Grain Delays

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thirty-five members of the House Agriculture Committee have joined Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., in asking the committee's chair-man, Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., for an investigation of delays in the shipment to Russia of U.S. grain the Soviets have bought.

A Russian delegation has been in the country since last week trying to find out why its grain hasn't been shipped in some cases, a problem officials attribute to bad weather, rail car shortages, elevator explosions and inspections.

The congressmen are worried about possible further cancellations that could trigger another price slump. "Something must be done to alleviate this logjam, and the sooner the better," Thone said.

bill Wednesday as expected, he said he will ask Senate leaders to hold up the Panama Canal treaty debate long enough to act on the emergency legislation.

The obstacles are clear: hostile budget committee chairmen in both chambers and traditionally rough going in the House for farm bills.

A veteran Midwest Republican repre sentative said privately, however, that such speed is possible if farm-belt mem-bers cut a deal with urbanites who need otes for New York City aid measures.

Talmadge said his approach has two prime advantages. First, it would put money in farmers' empty pockets quick-ly, by giving them half their payments of up to $75 an acre as soon as they sign the

Then, he said, "taxpayers may actually save money" since market prices would be forced up high enough by the restrict-ed production that the government would not have to make some $3 billion in so-called deficiency payments to com-pensate farmers for low returns.

Talmadge threw in a couple hookers for the administration: the raising of loan limits and special programs Bergland seeks for his rural-credit operations, which a House committee has been struggling with this week and the Senate panel has had pending since October, and a boost in USDA's borrowing authority.

Farmers also would have to already be participating in the Bergland set-aside programs to be eligible for the program designed to trim by 31 million acres the roughly 275 million acres growers say they intend to plant to major crops this

Wheat Reserve Plan Tops Halfway Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) - Last week alone, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says, wheat farmers signed up 50 million bushels for the reserves program he is pushing as the way out of the current grain price slump.

That finding, the 100.3 million bushels of 1976-crop wheat already committed and figures drawn from a telephone survey Monday mean 183.9 million bushels in the farmer-owned stockpile, Bergland said Wednesday.

That amount is more than 55 percent toward his goal of 330 million bushels of wheat by the end of the sign-up period May 1, he said.

A week before, only 95.3 million bushels of 1976-crop wheat had been committed to the reserve.

His announcement did not mention corn and other feedgrains, only 2.1 mil-lion bushels of which from the 1976 crop had been registered by the end of business March 1 when 1977 surpluses could start coming in. By then, 2.2 million bushels of other feedgrains also were in the reserves. Theoretically, on March 1, another 589.7 million bushels of wheat, 942.9 mil-

Russian Scientists Give U.S. Tissue From Baby Mammoth

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet scientists have given the United States a sample of tissue from a 40,000-year-old baby mammoth that was found frozen in permafrost in far northeastern Siberia.

The sample, weighing nine-tenths of an ounce, was handed over at a ceremony and then put on a plane bound for the University of California at Berkeley for detailed biochemical analysis.

The U.S. studies will supplement the findings of more than 100 Soviet scientists, who have been examining the rare Paleolithic-age find since the mammoth's body was discovered last sum-

On hand to accept the tissue specimen during the ceremony at the Soviet Academy of Sciences was Allen S. Greenberg, counselor for scientific and technical affairs at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

"The results of these analyses, performed both in the Soviet Union and the United States, will give us new interesting information about the evolution of life on earth," Greenberg told the gather-

Under the glare of television lights, Greenberg was then handed a foam-insulated picnic cooler containing the small mammoth sample, nestled amid chunks of dry ice to keep the ancient tissue frozen solid.

The specimen - a slice of muscle tissue taken from one of the animal's hind legs - will undergo analysis at a Berkeley laboratory headed by Dr. Allen C. Wilson, a biochemist who has specialized in studying the genetic evolution of elephants.

Mammoths were large elephants, now extinct, which existed at the time of the Ice Age. They were characterized by very long, upwardly curving tusks and a thick hairy coat.

Health Benefits Major Issue In Mine Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — "You can't mine coal with bayonets," said John L. Lewis, who helped establish the nucleus of today's powerful unions and who served as the dedicated and defiant head of the United Mine Workers.

Of this, President Carter is aware. He knows that presidential power is limited. It cannot force miners back to the job; were it able to do so, it could not make them dig coal nor maintain equipment.

Well, perhaps it could, but the devastating cost to the country, and the politi-cal cost to an administration that stresses human rights, would seem to make it tragic and foolhardy.

The miners, after all, are balking less about money than about the loss of health insurance benefits. Prone to black lung disease and other scourges, they see insurance as a right, not a benefit.

In fact, much of America shares this view. Benefits are hardly on the fringe today; they are at the center, and they are considered essential not only to health but to economic survival as well.

Experience has taught workers this. Forced by inflation to watch their dollars shrink, they have learned to take much of their pay in services, and let the company worry about inflated prices.

In 1959, fringe benefits - including vacations, retirement programs, insurance, unemployment programs and the like accounted for just 14.6 percent of a production worker's total compensation.

By 1974, the percentage had risen to 23.1, and the trend since then has cere tainly brought the benefit figure to about one-quarter of a worker's total compen-

High on the list has been health insurance. In 1959, Morgan Guaranty found in a study, life insurance and health benefits accounted for just 3 percent of total compensation; by 1974 the percentage had

Why? Because of increasing health care costs, but that is not all. Employers can deduct the cost from their taxes as a business expense. Business likes that.

But perhaps of more significance is the realization by the typical worker, whoever he and she might be, that health insur-ance benefits, taken as pay, are tax-free. And so the trend.

Whether or not this trend is justified is one matter; that it exists is undeniable. It is undeniable also that the miners, in giving up some health benefits, are worried that they are going into reverse.

In that context it is understandable they feel cheated. Progress has never come easy in the coalfields; to foresake what had been pioneered, while others benefit from their pioneering, rankles. In seeking an agreement, therefore, the president is asking a lot of the miners, at least from their point of view. That is, if it is expected that they will foresake benefits already won

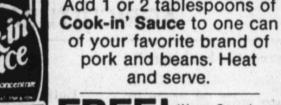

It would take a tremendous amount of force to get the miners back to the pits and tunnels, and then what would be accomplished? Little, perhaps, but ill will, low productivity and future problems.

The test is Jimmy Carter's. The pres tige, the leadership, the future of his presidency is on the line, and he is challenged to use all its mighty resources more effectively than he has to date. And

All the resources, perhaps, but raw power. John L. Lewis indicated a weapon is useless in mining coal. And no better, it would seem, at improving a miner's sense of security about his health.

Police Force Fired In Illinois Town

ROBBINS, Ill. (AP) — All 15 police officers in Robbins have been fired amid allegations some of them committed armed robbery, burglary and car theft.

It is not the first time the Chicago suburb of 9,600 people has had trouble with its police. Over the years there have been frequent allegations of assaults against citizens, shakedowns and thefts.

The entire force was suspended in 1970

The entire force was suspended in 1970 after two people were shot to death by Douglas Polsky, attorney for the village, has confirmed that village trustees voted 3-1 to fire the police force although the officers will be paid through April.

He said the predominantly black village has received a $1.5 million federal grant to upgrade its police department and build a new village hall. It will rely on sheriff's officers and those of nearby suburbs for protection until a new force is Polsky said the mass firing was prompted by a variety of wrongdoing and slipshod work.

Evidence was not inventoried, bond money and narcotics have disappeared, there have been a large number of brutality complaints, and police have been ac-cused of armed robbery, burglary and car theft," he said.

It was not clear, however, whether any specific criminal charges were outstanding against any of the ousted officers.

Polsky said police have neglected to respond to calls and have failed to testify in "Our jail had to be closed because it was not meeting the minimum standards, the men are not well trained, there have been fights between police and citizens," Polsky added.

"No files are being maintained, a gun shop in the village has declared itself off-limits to our police and four of our policemen don't even have driver's licenses."

A spokesman for Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey said that office has been investigating the Robbins police department for several months. Sheriff Richard Elrod also said he is investigating allegations of police misconduct in Robbins.

CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

Probably more than 150,000 CBers this year will expand their operating sphere from citizens band to short wave to gain the enjoyment of communicating with the whole world, just as they have learned the pleasure of yakking with a fellow CBer a few miles away.

"After using CB for a while, the fellow who begins to really wonder what is happening in that box he bought is potentially a ham operator," Jerry Freemen, a staffer in the Norfold office of the FCC says, claims. "It's just got to happen to him." By the way Jerry is a ham who holds license KFCC 1000.

There are two reason for this logic. A CBer who thinks he will enjoy that thrill of communicating long range and have the interference free aspects of short Communication is the name of any radio game. But there are many refinements available to those who are interested in going beyond that mobile CB unit, and they are not necessarily costly to enter. Last week we developed some aspects of single side band operation for the CBer which is gaining considerable momentum right now. Ham radio is a further extension of the radio medium.

The Amateur Radio Relay League, in Newington, Mass., is a membership organization that represents more than 165,000 licensed ham operators. It is in great part responsible for the great respect in which ham operators are held throughout the world. The organization is over 50 years old, having been in continuous operation since its founding in 1914. In 1977 more than 60,000 hams joined ARRL. And, since CB has become a household activity, the membership ranks have steadily grown.

Charlie Harris, one of ARRL's executives in Newington, literally bubbles when asked why someone should become a ham operator.

"How would you like to talk with 42 states, six continents, 42 countries, in just four hours of operation?" he asks. "I did it last week."

"Five watts will cover the world." he adds enthusiastically. "There is no way that someone who has had an introduction to amateur radio can resist its potential for maximum communication. No way. There are five classes of licenses available to the serious CBer who is interested in extending his experience in personal radio. CBers who now play the skip game, and enjoy it, can become amateur radio operators and legally enjoy what they are now doing illegally. CBers who have learned about linears and sliders will find that the FCC tests for hams are not as difficult as the widgets they've

Charlie Harris claims that a four-year-old boy passed the Novice test, the first in the series of five, after only hours of working at learning his International Morse Code (CW) and being able to transmit and receive 5 words per minute. Charlie says the theory part of the novice test is equally simple, and this license

The ARRL through its membership has about 3,000 clases going on throughout the country to help people learn about short wave radio and prepare for license tests. You don't have to work up the ladder of five licenses. In amateur you can apply and be tested for the coveted Extra Class License at the very beginning, but most hams start at Novice and progress through Tecnician, Gener-

Next week we'll explore more of amateur radio since many of you are on the brink of it. Also, because Charlie's has infected us.

Inland Trek Of Salmon Disturbs Biologists

SEATTLE (UPI) - Scientists who planted transmitters on two fish to track their meanderings were a little disturbed to find the aquatic scouts heading inland. But not as disturbed as the fish.

Fisheries biologists working for Seattle City Light tagged the chum salmon as part of a study to determine if a dam and powerhouse could be built at Copper Crook a tributary of the Sharit Blue Creek, a tributary of the Skagit River.

The biologists implanted radio transmitters in the salmon and kept track of the signal to learn more about their movement. Two of the fish carrying the $300 transmitters left the river and head-

Knowing chum salmon can't walk, the biologists suspected foul play. They took off in pursuit, equipped with radio tracking gear and a large rifle.

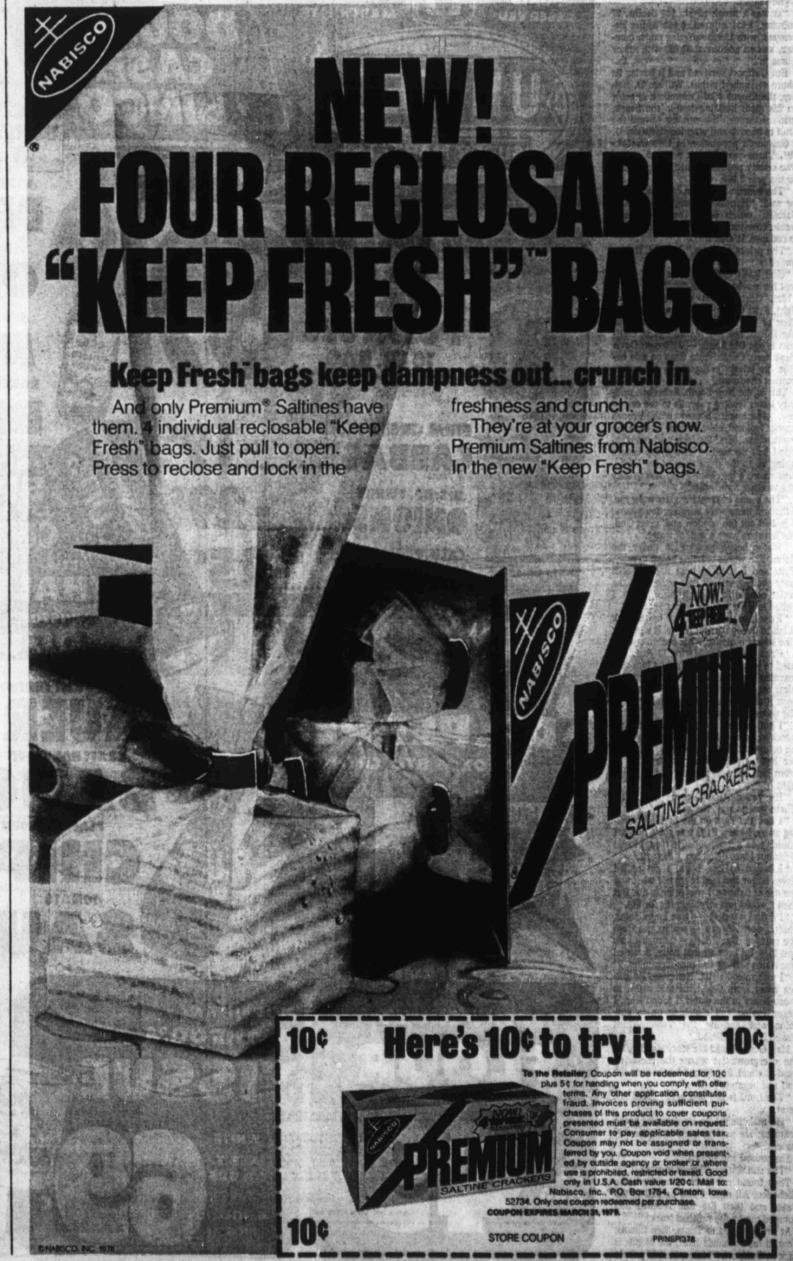

The island of Madagascar off the east coast of Africa is a little smaller than the state of Texas and has been an independent nation, the Malagasy Republic, since gaining independence from France in

They found the gear in the brush about 50 yards from the river bank. A bear, perhaps two bears, had picked the two salmon out of the river and carried them transmitters, identifying plastic tags and all - into the woods.

The bears apparently didn't care for the taste of the transmitters, though, and left them uneaten. The fish are no longer of any value to science, but scientists say they've learned a little more about the movement of salmon.

Storm's Scars Disappear In Mississippi Town

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI) - A coffee cup trembled in the hands of Wade Guice. "It was a booger bear," he said. "It was the big thing in my life. Before it came I had been married eight times," said Mrs. Mary Anne Gerlach. "After it, I've been married only three times." "I don't think it'll come again. God, I hope not," said Mrs. Leon Hines, Her husband shook his head.

"I don't know," he said. "Who on God's earth could have figured there ever would be a Hurricane Camille?"

The physical scars of Camille, the greatest hurricane ever to hit America, are healing or hidden under weeds and reconstruction along the 26-mile beach midway between New Orleans and Mobile, Ala. But the night of Aug. 17, 1969 lives in technicolor in the minds of all but elementary school children in Harrison County, Miss.

The healing shows in the newness of the Holiday Inn, the Best Western and the Thunderhead Motels, in the new Elks Lodge, the new Library, the new Chamber of Commerce headquarters and the other post-Camille constructions.

But, under the cedars and oaks facing the beach and the coastal highway, U.S. 90, are empty lots, vacant except for concrete steps leading to nowhere, lonely cement foundation blocks and a weedy swimming pool without a house.

Camille might have killed Gulfport. An extract from the report to the U.S. Senate subcommittee on Disaster Relief made by Guice, Harrison County's civil defense

"No single act of destruction in the history of the known world was so devastating, no storm, no tidal wave, no earthquake, not even the atomic bombing of Hiroshima which took 60,000 lives and had a total destruction radius of about three square miles. The total destruction area in Harrison County alone was 68

"It was a rough night...144 deaths, 27 missing, 8,931 injured, 5,662 homes destroyed, with 13,915 suffering major damage, and an additional 33,933 with minor

But Gulfport survived and is having its share of sunbelt riches. William D. Bailey, the Chamber of Commerce director in his glass building beside the beach, grinned through the window toward the Gulf of Mexico and waggled statistics.

Gulfport's population in 1970 was 40,-791. Three years ago it reached 43,126. The county population will be up a third by the year 2,000.

"The beachfront property is the glory," he said. "Experience might teach that Camille, which wiped out the coast, would have caused shore property prices to collapse. It didn't.

"The prices went up," he said. Bailey smiled "God loves Gulfport," he said. "Except for maybe that one day."

Mrs. Gerlach and husband number eight, Fritz Gerlach, lived on the second floor of the Richelieu Apartments. Unlike Biloxi, but like Miami Beach, Gulfport is not Old South - Jefferson Davis slept here, Confederate flags on sale beside the television digests by the supermarket checkouts. This is the New South. Suburban military bases feeding payrolls to the econonames and with chicken fried steak in the restaurants. Mrs. Gerlach and her husband had decided to take a nap before going up to the third floor of the Richelieu where a hurricane party was to defy the weather forecasters "The sound of breaking glass woke me. I thought there were burglars downstairs. I looked out the window and, great God, the burglars were a wall of water.

"Water began gushing in under the doors. The whole building began to sway. Fritz and I tried to hold the bedroom door shut against all that water. But the water poured in through the windows. I velled to Fritz that we better get out.

"Fritz said no. He said we better stick it out in the apartment house. It was a big fine strong building. Fritz couldn't'swim. "Fritz had been a Marine 13 years. He used to joke about how a pal let him skip learning to swim during basic training. I blew up an air mattress for Fritz and he took it and we dove out a window when the water got head high. "I got tangled up in wires and cables, knocked down with the poles. I felt like an octupus had me. I saw Fritz. The water had yanked the air mattress away from him. He was holding on to a flash-

'He yelled, 'Baby, come help me!' There was no way. No way.

"I saw the light on the flashlight sinking away. I knew Fritz was going down. I couldn't do a thing about it. God, I loved Fritz but I was dying too, I thought.

"I began to lose hope. I got pulled down under and said to myself what was the use of fighting. I was going to die. But then I would just start fighting for life.

"I'd find wreckage — tree limbs, sofas, chairs, doors, boxes - sealing me from the surface. But I'd claw through to air and then I'd hear all that noise. Sounded like trains roaring and pigs screaming.

"I was raised strict. Religious. I'd gotten away from God. But that night, in those hours in the water, I found Him. I began crying and clutching on to anything and reciting the Twenty-Third Psalm from childhood."

Mrs. Gerlach told her story standing on the overgrown lot where the Richelieu used to stand. She turned her back to the gulf and began to recite: "The Lord is my shepherd; Ishall not

"What did you come home for?" asked Barrett.

Evans shouted about cracking the windows. Barrett felt he too should do the

"No single act of destruction ... was so devastating... The total destruction area in Harrison County alone was 68 square miles."

It's so nice and friendly. And the people here know you went through it and you know they did and we're all stronger. I'd live nowhere else," she said.

Mrs. Gerlach turned and faced the gulf. "But my new house, it's three miles inland," she said.

Gene Evans, 49, investigator for the county district attorney, heard the Sunday morning hurricane warning and remembered how similar predictions of nasty wet things to come had come true in 1947 and 1965. He scrambled his wife and three children into the "vault," the legal record storage room at the court

He hurried back to his shore house, having forgotten to crack the windows; houses explode in hurricanes if shut windows make them a vacuum. He had just opened the front windows when Camille

A tree locked his car in the driveway. Like most of the trapped, he figured he could weather Camille by lying low. But city detective chief John Barrett, a friend, drove up through the winds and same at his shore home. They would drive there before going back to the court

At the corner of U.S. 90 a friend's auto was stuck by a tree. Would the friend come along with Evans and Barrett? No, thanks, said the friend, Fred Rose, he would stay in the nearby house of realtor Camille an hour later smashed the house, Rose, Owens and Owens' Wife.

It caught Evans and Barrett at the detective's house. "John had been worrying about water ruining the carpets his wife Marie had just bought. The water slammed in and we climbed atop furniture and had our noses at the ceiling and the wind came like banshees and cars went whirling like leaves.

"I heard people screaming for help. Then, suddenly, quiet. It's the ye of the hurricane, I thought. And then we went back on the rollercoaster.'

He and Barrett lived. Neighbors did not. Both decided to stay. "My family and I had a discussion.

"It's a nice neighborhood. Of course, we had to get a new roof.

"The wife and kids and I felt that no matter where you go you have hazards. Fire, or earthquakes or something. "Camille? Ah, now, not again. It'll be many years before there's another storm of that magnitude," he said. "You don't run away from home."

At the Chamber of Commerce, Director Bailey reached for a bumper sticker his office is distributing: "Together...We Build the Mississippi Gulf Coast."
A reception table held leaflets. One, titled "Make Gulfport, Miss., Your Home Port," aimed at tourists and contained a history and city fact sheet. It did not mention Camille. It told of "the natural beauty, a moderate climate and excellent recreation facilities.'

The leaflet quoted a University of Mississippi survey ranking Gulfport "first in providing the highest quality of life."

Bailey talked of what the leaflet did not. "We went through a phychological change. There's an awareness, more than before, of what it means when those red flags with black squares - the hurricane warning flags — go up at the yacht club. "Camille went. Life goes on. And this is a wonderful place; once you get the sand between your toes and the salt water up your noses, it's hard to leave."

Civil Defense Director Guice strolled through the glass, lucite, steel, plastic rooms filled with vacant desks and silent telephones and radioes that is Gulfport's hedge against having a daughter of Camille. He recalled the telephone calls from the weather bureau that kept upping the warning from 100 to 150 to 200 to 250 mile

"Some died unnecessarily. Some five per cent of the population stayed be-They'd been warned. We used radio, television, loudpeakers, door-knocking and telephone and begging to get them out."

Guice picked up a coffee cup. "Odd, but most of those who stayed were veterans of hurricanes. They'd see this one through. Newcomers are the easiest to move out. They're still scared."

He touched the emergency radio behind his desk. "There's no reason for fright. Just get out when warned. You can rebuild a house but you can't rebuild a life.'

Guice paused and leaned back in his

"I have a fishing camp on the river. I know very well it will be flooded. But flooding, disaster to property, is part of the price for living the grand gulf life.
"Most peeople now feel it's worth risking material things for the good life. Material things, not your life. .

"We've had three hurricane alerts since

Camille. The roads to the north were clogged. Thank God.'

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hines had built on the shore. A student of Frank Lloyd Wright designed their house of cedar and glass. Hines, now 71, suggested they leave when Camille was signalled.

His wife Jacqueline, now 67, said no. "It was the five lovely skylights. I had been gathering dishpans and pots to catch water if Camille dumped rain through the skylights," she said.

A Lifelong Gulfport resident, Mrs. Hines had seen water creep halfway across the highway toward her front lawn during the 1965 hurricane. "I had lived all my life here and I just didn't believe a hurricane was made that could touch First, the lights went out. Then, before dishpans were called for skylight use, the wall of water slapped down the front wall of the house. The Hines were slammed through rear windows onto the patio. They scrambled halfway up a 60-foot television antenna in the back yard. Hines said. "The tower collapsed and into the water we went. I went under." Mrs. Hines said, "I was swimming. I kicked my legs and felt something soft. I knew it was either a cushion or Leon. I hooked him with my legs." She struggled, her husband clutched in her legs, to her rooftop. It had floated free. They rode out the night and the hurricane on that roof.

"I waited 1,000 hours for daylight," Hines said. His wife laughed. "He spent most of that time telling me I should have listened to him and evacuated."

DR. LAMB

Fruits, Gout Not Related

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR LAMB — My mother, who is 87, is suffering terribly from gout, especially in her big toes. Could you please send me a proper diet for her? What kind of fruits can she have? What can she drink?

DEAR READER - Gout is caused from an overproduction of uric acid by a person's own cells. Uric acid crystals form in the joint causing the painful red hot big toes that people associate with the gout. Uric acid salts also deposit in joint spaces and cause gouty arthritis. And the uric ac-id itself is relatively insoluble which may lead to uric acid kidney stones.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid to give you more information about the nature of this disease. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I did not include a special diet to prevent formation of uric acid in this issue because the diet is no longer so important as it was once thought to be.

Since uric acid comes from the nu-clei of cells the old idea was to elimi-nate foods rich in cells that contained the uric acid. The catch is that you can be on a milk diet which contains no cells at all and hence no nuclei and still produce a lot of uric acid from your own cells.

The main idea of diets was to eliminate purines — a complex chemical in cell nuclei that is related to the formation of uric acid in people who have this disorder. This usually resulted in advising patients not to eat any organ meats, specifically kidneys, liver and sweetbreads. This was no great hardship for most people. Then the high purine foods had to be elimi-nated. These included anchovies, mature bean seeds, bouillon cubes, cauliflower, egg plant, gravies, lentils (the bean family again) mushrooms, oatmeal, sardines and spinach. And for good measure the foods rich in fat were forbidden.

As you can see such a list will not prevent your mother from eating what fruit she wants or drink any fruit juice she wants either.

It is true that beer, ale or wine will sometimes precipitate an attack of gout but hard liquor does not. That is not a recommendation for hard liquor for your mother, however.

Today most cases of high uric acid are controlled by medicines. There are new medicines that help to block the excess formatiom of uric acid at the cellular level. When a patient folerates this medicine well it is one of erates this medicine well it is one of the best choices. It stops the problem at it source. There are other medi-cines to increase the flushing out of uric acid through the urine and good old colchine for acute painful attacks such as the painful toe. Your mother may need this. She certainly needs to see a doctor and should be followed regularly by one who will treat her gout adequately to avoid acute gouty complications.

The diet today for gout is really di-rected toward avoiding obesity and heart and vascular disease complications. I would add one precat don't let her lose weight too rap or fast. Either one can mobilize acid from the break down of body executive will travel on company wings much as he uses a company car today. The business aircraft fleet now num-bers 50,000 and last year carried 50 million passengers. Half the nation's 1,000 largest corporations now use their own or chartered aircraft and the number is climbing steadily

The general aviation manufacturers who delivered $1.5 billion worth of aircraft last year are doing their best to keep the trend going.

To do so, they're working hard to dispel the notion business aircraft are an exercise in executive indulgence.

"In the past 20 years," says Harry B. Combs, president of Gates Learjet, "general aviation has progressed from an experimental company toy to an integral piece of machinery involved in plant expansion and the movement of key companion are the companion and the movement of key companion and the movement of key companion are the companion and the companion are the companion are the companion and the companion are the companion are the companion are the companion are the companion and the companion are the companion are

More companies, for example, are moving to out-of-the-way areas in a search for hospitable and economic operating conditions. Over 1,000 plants in the areas distant from major city airports.

Decentralization makes it tougher to keep tabs on operations without bloating the executive ranks. In addition, the airports with airline service are dwindling. Both conditions favor business planes, said Combs, who is chairman of the General Aviation Manufacturers Association.

"Higher productivity means more prosperity and then more jobs and that helps all of us," he said in an interview. "Business aircraft (benefits) may seem far away but they're not."

The benefits are clear to manufacturers, though competition has meant losses on business jets for at least two makers. The industry delivered almost 17,000 aircraft in 1977 - most of them single-engine - and expects 18,000 deliveries worth $1.7 billion this year, 4

A favorable wind for manufacturers is technology making their planes safer, quieter and more efficient — inducements for both first-time and current owners to buy new aircraft. Executives in the 30-to-40 age group with the time and income for pleasure flying will swell by an additional 1.2 million in the 1980s.

But there are clouds as well. Fuel supply and costs, a threat to general aviation during the Arab oil embargo, remain a concern, but the industry has converted some critics with statistics that private planes take up a tiny fraction of transport

Airports setting varying noise stand-ards present a bigger problem — one which manufacturers think should be dealt with on a national level. "You pass from one state to another too fast with an from one state to another too fast with an airplane," Combs says.

Who will fly the planes also worries manufacturers. The military no longer provides a steady stream of flyers.

"We're not satisfied with the results," said Edward W. Stimpson, GAMA president, noting the group last year launched its most ambitious flight training program, a three-year effort to develop new nilots.

"We could have a pilot shortage in the future but if our program is successful, we don't think we will," he said.

Jury Returns Six Indictments In Slaying Of William Young

Six persons were indicted here Wednesday for the gangland style, Christmas Eve slaying of William Drew Young's body was found stuffed inside the trunk of his burning auto about 10 p.m. Dec. 24.

The body was exhumed about a month after the 28-year-old victim was killed, and an autopsy performed at that time indicated Young had been shot.

The indictments were among 88 returned Wednesday by a county grand jury to Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court.

There were eight murder indictments in all. No persons were no-billed by the Indicted for murder in Young's death were local bar owner Jim Gordon, 42; Kenneth Wayne Herndon, 35; Kenneth Owen Jaycon, 31; Jan Payne, 26; Homer Lowrance, 36; and Tico Jean Ann Lowrance, 27.

Young's flaming auto, with his body inside, was discovered near FM 1585 and Avenue P.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy, who ruled homicide the night of the grisly discovery, originally said Young died from a stabbing, beating or suffocation.

Official complaints in the case say Young was found lying in a large amount of blood.

Complaints indicate investigators have a sworn statement from a former waitress at the Salt River Saloon, 2311 19th St., in which the waitress says she opened a side door to the club about 7:30 p.m. Dec. 24 to see two men standing behind Young.

The witness reportedly told investigators that Homer and Tico Lowrance, Gordon, Miss Payne and the two men took Young into the back office of the bar. The witness said she heard a gunshot from the office a few minutes later, complaints say.

Tower's Opponents Seek Hil Relationship Explanation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two Texas Democrats hoping to unseat Sen. John Tower called upon the Republican to explain his "relationship" with accused South Korean influence peddler Tongsun

"I expected to have to put up with this," Tower said Wednesday when asked to respond to charges leveled by Rep. Bob Krueger and former state insurance board chairman Joe Christie. "It means the focus is on me even though there are an awful lot of people involved. No one promised me a rose garden when I got in this business.

"My own conscience on this is very clear indeed so I have no regrets about

Krueger and Christie are entered in the May Democratic primary vying for the opportunity to challenge Tower in Nov-

During a Wednesday press conference held down the hall from the room were Park was testifying before a House committee investigating allegations of influence buying on Capitol Hill, Krueger said Texas stands embarrassed, for Texans do not expect the person who holds the highest office within the power of the people of the state of Texas to give to be standing with Tongsun Park.

"Tongsun Park is a man with a reputation for wine, women and money,"Krueger continued. "If there is a friendship between our state's senior senator and Mr. Park, the people of Texas are entitled to know what is the nature of that relationship.

Krueger also charged that Tower did not really remove himself from the Park investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee of which Tower is a member.

In Texas, Christie said: "Why did he (Tower) wait until the eve of Parks's testimony before the Senate Ethics Committee before disqualifying himself?

"If Tower indeed is on the 'master list' of a small number of senators being investigated, he owes it to Texans to explain why the Korean government thought he might be willing to accept a bribe in return for continuing aid to Ko-

"This is not an investigation," countered Tower. "This is an initial review. The records of a number of senators have been asked for. Letters went out to about 156 present and former senators. I have supplied certain records to the committee and will supply any they ask for."

Krueger charged that Tower "made a tactical error when he attempted to sell to the American people the concept that his disqualifying himself was a noble endeavor when he had no real choice in the matter. The people of Texas are fortunate that subsequent investigation by the media clearly shows that he would be in violation of committee rules had he remained

Tower repeated Wednesday that he had disclosed his "social acquaintance" of Park in the summer of 1975. "I have not seen him (Park) for 21/2 years," Tower

Citing confidentiality requirements, Tower refused to relate the nature of any documents he had turned over to the committee or to verify reports he will be called upon to testify before the commitwrote: "To the best of my knowledge, there has never been an attempt by anyone connected with the government of Korea, or otherwise, to improperly influence my legislative decisions.

The police have been cautious in releasing details, particularly on just how the victims were killed and whether they had been sexually assaulted. In some cases there were reports of no "molestation"

Drifting Of Land Suggested In Report

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - Did a huge block of mineral-rich land drift thousands of miles from near the equator to form part of Alaska, Canada and possibly the Pacific Northwest?

It may sound like science fiction, but a report from the U.S. Geological Survey suggests that is just what happened -

200 million years ago. Scientists have named the 40,000square-mile slab of land "Wrangellia" pecause much of the evidence for its exstence and movement was found in Alaska's Wrangell Mountains. They say its trip north may have taken 100 million

"So far, we've identified pieces of ancient Wrangellia on Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlotte Islands of Canada, as well as on Chichagof Island and the Wrangell Mountains of Alaska, and perhaps in Hells Canyon of Oregon, Washington and Idaho," said Dr. David Jones, senior author of one of two articles on Wrangellia printed in the Canadian Journal of Earth Sciences.

Jones said rocks from Wrangellia "form a distinct sequence or 'layer cake' of rocks that are quite different from the rocks they butt against. The sequence

Cajun Music Prevails At Lounge

MAMOU, La. (UPI) - Whining fiddles and nasal-sounding accordians belt out a Cajun two-step number, elderly couples take to the floor for a few spins and a pretty girl shouts over the din complaining about the cloud of cigarette smoke.

It's Saturday morning in Mamou. 'Saturday morning? What's wron with coming in here Saturday morning. asks Elizabeth Landrenau, 72, a 7 a.m. regular at Fred's Lounge on U.S. 167. "I can have just as much fun here then as I can any other time. Besides, you don't have to stay up so late.

Fred's has been the site of weekend morning "fais do-do's" since the late 1940s and in 1960 it became a regular Saturday morning live radio broadcast host-ed by retired school teacher Revon Reed.

"A lot of this started back in 1948 when another fellow and I got together to try to help get the cajun culture going again back here," he said, shouting over the

"I don't know so much about the rest of the country, but this has got to be the some in 'pillows' or mounds that apparently formed under water," he said.

That "layer cake" is capped with fossiliferous limestone and rests on limestone shale and other volcanic rocks, he said. "Fossils and physical features of the limestone rocks suggest they were deposited in warm, tropical climates. This is one of the reasons we think old Wrangellia originally existed much farther

Other evidence for the northward migration is based on magnetism that has remained in the rocks

Among other things, the Wrangellia theory could explain the presence in Alaska of one of the world's richest copper deposits in a type rock normally formed in arid, tropical climates.

'Today one can stand on the ancient rocks formed in that far-off arid climate and be surrounded by glaciers," said Dr. Augustus Armstrong, a USGS scientist studying the rocks.

Tom Miller, director of the Alaska USGS office, says the theory "is an idea that's been forming over the last several years. It's really a matter of accumulating evidence to support the theory."

The Wrangellia theory is a sort of spinoff from a larger new premise that the earth's land mass once was made up of a single supercontinent scientists call Pangea which broke up and drifted apart to form the present continents.

It once was believed that the interior of the earth was like an eggshell with a thin, stable crust, said Miller. "We now believe the crust consists of a dozen major plates, 60 to 100 kilometers thick, that

"New material from below the plates wells up along major fracture zones — called mid-oceanic ridges — and shoves apart the plates on either side of the ridge," he said.

"Around the boundaries you get such things as earthquakes and volcanoes, which occur when one plate is being shoved beneath another." Miller said

Officials say there are about 30,000 drunken drivers on Minnesota roads on any given Friday or Saturday night. Some 150 to 200 are arrested.

Because it costs about $550 to arrest and prosecute a drinking driver and ties up a patrolman with paperwork for hours, many cities and sheriff's offices do not put enough emphasis on sweeping up drunks in cars, Arlandson said.

He said his bill would put the cost of such police work on drinkers, rather than forcing all citizens to pay.

Yugoslavia Prepares For Day Tito Goes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Last year, his 85th, President Tito of Yugoslavia began using a small but significant phrase more often in his messages to the nation he built: "When I go." Only three words, but people noticed.

After 32 years of leadership - the longest term in power of any statesman now alive - Marshal Josip Broz Tito is preparing to leave Yugoslavia to survive on

According to Tito's thinking, and the official policy of his ruling Communist party, the president's passing will bring no upheaval. "I can leave at any time," Tito says, "and nothing will change."

But not everyone is so sure. "Tito is the glue that holds this country together," a veteran Western diplomat warns. "There are plenty of internal pressures below the surface. Tito has successfully kept them there, but can his successors do as well?"

"I'm a little bit afraid," a 30-year-old economist confesses in the privacy of a Belgrade coffee house. "When the old one goes, there will be changes. I just hope they don't come too fast.'

Like 55 percent of the population, he is too young to know any leader other than

Tito is one of the giants of the 20th century, the last of the generation spawned by World War II. He rallied Yugoslavs to fight a guerrilla war against the occupying Nazis, established a Communist state and - when the Soviet Union tried to treat him like a puppet — proclaimed his party's independence and created the first great split in the Communist world. He strengthened Yugoslavia's independence, improvising an imaginative system of decentralized Socialism and a neither-East-nor-West foreign policy of "nonalignment." Yugoslavia today is prosperous, fiercely independent and - while there are still secret police and some 550 political prisoners - more open than any other Communist country. But can the achievement last? Yugoslavia is strategically balanced between Eastern and Western Europe, with a long Mediterranean coastline and a border with troubled Italy. Yugoslav and Western strategists alike believe the Soviet part of its empire back into the fold.

Equally worrying to Tito's top aides is a domestic problem: nationalism. For Yugoslavia, which sprawls across the mountainous Balkan peninsula to cover an area about the size of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, is actually a federation of several distinct Slavic peoples: Eastern Orthodox Serbs, Roman Catholic Croats and Slovenes, plus Moslem, Macedonians, Montenegrins and even Albanians.

The word Yugoslav simply means "south Slav," a broad category that includes all these "nationalities;" Belgrade is the capital of a union of six "republics" and two provinces, each with its own government, Communist party - and special interests.

In a country as young and varied as this, those ethnic divisions and special interests can lead to serious conflicts. A tourist visiting sophisticated, Western Ljubljana in the North, with its affluent shops on wide, modern streets, would hardly believe he was in the same country if he visited the backward Kossovo region in the south, where 19th-century peasant life goes on. The disparity creates a built-in economic conflict: the per capita product of the Ljubljana area in,1975 was more than $2,-800, while the product of Kosovo was only $453. And those regional conflicts could provide a tempting pressure point for domestic factions or foreign meddlers to play on In 1971, Tito's own Croatian leadership brought the nation near a split when they called for a separate state. Next it was the turn of the Serbs, the largest ethnic group, who took advantage of a crackdown on the Croats to try to reassert their own primacy.

The Macedonians, Montenegrins and Albanians of the primitive, rural south are jealous of the industrial wealth of Croatia and Slovenia in the north. The affluent Slovenes and Croats resent the policies that force them to subsidize the underdeveloped south.

In Kosovo, the southern province on the Albanian border, rioting ethnic Albanians won the right in 1968 to fly Albania's red-and-black eagle flag alongside the blue, white and red of Yugoslavia - and they are still pressing for more au-

"Some people try to locate nationalism in only one or two of the republics," Party Secretary Stane Dolanc, a Slovene, warned in a recent interview with a Belgrade newspaper, "but the problem can be found virtually everywhere."

The problem is explained more tartly in a current saying: Yugoslavia has six republics, five main nationalities, four languages, three religions, two alphabets and only one man to hold it together -

Tito has worked hard to be the first 'real Yugoslav." He is renowned for his startling ability to speak with a Croatian accent in his native Croatia, and a perfect Serbian accent in Serbia. When he goes, it may be difficult to find a successor who is equally trusted by all the country's

On paper, the problem has already been solved: Yugoslavia after Tito will be ruled by a nine-man committee, "The Presidency," with one member from each of the republics and provinces plus the head of the Communist party. That way, power will be shared.

'But it is almost inevitable that some members will be more influential than others," a diplomat said. "And besides, a lot of the real power in this country isn't based in the institutions of the state, but in the party and the Army.'

Veteran Yugoslavia-watchers are keeping their eyes on three main figures:

- Edvard Kardelj (Cag-del'veh), 68, Tito's World War II deputy and closest confidant and the author of Yugoslavia's system of "self-management" in factories and offices. But Kardelj, a Slovene, is in shaky health and party insiders believe he wants to concentrate more on his theoretical work than on day-to-day politics. Still, he will almost surely be at the top of the post-Tito leadership - if only as a symbol of Tito's heritage.

Gen. Nikola Ljubicic (Lyoo'-bichich), 61, Minister of Defense. Ljubicic, who rose through the partisan ranks in World War II, has built the army into a pillar of national unity. A canny politician, close to Tito, he is also the country's most influential Serb. - Stane Dolanc (Stah'-nay Doe'- lahnts), 52, secretary of the party executive committee. Dolanc, who achieved his post only in 1972, has proved an indispensable, if colorless, administrator. A Slovene, he is the highest-ranking politician in the "second generation," those who were too young to march and fight with Tito from the start of World War II.

Other influential voices are those of Vladimir Bakaric, 65, a white-haired Croatian lawyer who fashioned the 1965 economic reforms which brought Yugoslavia into the Western economy; and Branko Mikulic, 49, the hard-line party chief in the central republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Whoever takes over will have more problems than just regional rivalries. The economy is still growing fast at 7 percent per year, but inflation is running at an official rate of 15 percent (down from 26 percent two years ago) and foreign currency controls have failed to solve the country's biggest foreign-trade deficit in history. Too many self-managed firms are operating at a loss, and unemployment has soared to almost 10 percent (including more than 6 percent of the Communist Party membership).

In international relations, the diplomats expect the Soviet Union to make new overtures to improve its present chilly relations with Belgrade - and thus improve its chances of enticing Yugoslavia back toward the east.

Fifteen months ago, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev tried to get his foot in the door by asking Tito to begin regular military coordination meetings with the Warsaw pact, increase economic ties with Eastern Europe's Comecon and grant the Soviet navy and air force use of Yugoslavia's seaports and airspace. Tito rejected the whole list.

Brezhnev then sought to soothe the Yugoslavs by joking publicly that "Yugoslavia is not Little Red Riding Hood and Russia is not the Big Bad Wolf" - but few of his listeners appeared to be Tito is clearly paving the way for his own passing — a luxury few statesmen are granted. Last year, he journeyed to Moscow and Peking to cement stable relations with the two Communist giants. This year it is Washington and London, the other side of the balancing act.

This June he will preside at a full scale congress of the Yugoslav Communist party, the first since 1974, where the accent will be on stability. "There will be no spectacular changes," Dolanc promised last month.

But no matter how complete the prepa rations, Yugoslavia is heading for a traumatic time: its first change of leaders in 32 years. The first 12 months after Tito goes are likely to be as eventful as China's first year after Mao Tse-tung or Spain's first year after Francisco Franco.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The temptation to overextend yourself financially should be suppressed tomorrow. Buy only what you can afford, or better yet, don't shop at ARIES (March 21-April 20) Freedom to function independently may be so important to you tomorrow that you could behave so as to alienate loyal allies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tomorrow's frustrations may not be entirely of your own making. You'll be squeezed into a corner by persons who mess things up, then point the finger at you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) As a politician you leave a lot to be desired tomorrow. Instead of complying with the will of the majority you're apt to stand out as the lone dissenter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Balance self-seeking with sharing tomorrow. It's equally as important to satisfy those you're associated with as to satisfy your own ambi-

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A surprise could be in store tomorrow when you learn that those you thought to be sympathetic to your position on an issue were really lined up with

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're conducting business tomorrow in an element where you do not feel comfortable, keep your guard up. It's possible you could be taken.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your mate won't be on your wave length tomorrow. A serious misunderstnding could arise if you make a major decision without first consulting him or her.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A responsibility that you failed to attend to properly may rear its ugly head again tomorrow. Take measures to resolve it once and for all.

SAGITTARIUS (NOv. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you mix well, but tomorrow at a social gathering you could run into someone who exhausts even your tolerance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For the sake of harmony at home tomorrow, keep buttinskis out of family matters. Enemies will be made if they take sides.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A domineering, strong-willed associate may try to force his ideas on you tomorrow. He's looking for a hassle. Just ignore him.

That averages out to $956 for each of the 120 lawmakers and seven top constitutional officers.

Besides trips, the gifts included season passes to UCLA and USC football games, tickets to Disneyland, theater tickets, free meals and lodging, clothing and expense-paid trips to the Academy Awards

The Political Reform Act of 1974 requires legislators and a number of other state officials to annually report gifts worth $25 or more from any one source, excluding family members.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and 11 legislators listed no gifts, while Attorney General Evelle Younger led the constitutional officers with gifts he valued at $5,096, including many free meals.

He also reported he received $800 in clothing, several rides in private planes, and USC and UCLA football tickets. Thirteen legislators visited Taiwan, 12 on a trade tour paid for by the Taipei City Council and the other on a trip paid for by the Pacific Cultural Foundation. Six legislators visited Alaska as guests of that state to inspect liquified natural gas facilities, and five traveled to Mexico to study agricultural problems. One went to India and Sri Lanka to study world food, population and development problems at the expense of the Overseas Development Council and two were guests of the West German government to study privacy legislation.

BY JAMES E. SMITH

ATLANTA (UPI)—Georgia legislator David Scott says it's time television quits portraying blacks as shallow ad-libbing Superflys who are fast with the jokes, but never use their minds.

"Until the television drama, 'Roots', there wasn't much for black youths to see on television that could acquaint them with their heritage," said Scott, one of Georgia's 25 black lawmakers.

"There is a void in pushing the black experience in America," he said. "There's an amazing lack of knowledge of the greatest story ev-er told—that of the struggles and achievements of black America."

Scott, 31, an advocate of black history in public schools and colleges, is trying to help fill that "void" with the airing of "Langston," a Georgia Public Television production.

Scott created and hosts the program that interprets 11 of Langs-ton Hughes' poems, including "Trouble In Mind,""I Too Sing America," "Mother To Son" and

"The Negro Speaks of Rivers."

The show — Scott calls it the first of its kind in America — already has been shown in Atlanta and will be aired statewide March

"Langston is a rousing, inspira-tional tribute to Langston Hughes and his works," Scott said. "He wrote most eloquently about the experiences of being black in America, yet his message is universal - that one should continue to struggle, to hope, to dream, and never give up."

Hughes' longtime secretary,

Raoul Abdul, now a music critic for the Amsterdam News in New York City, endorsed the production during a recent visit to Atlanta and is lobbying to have it telecast nationally over the Public Broad-cast System.

Dick Ottinger, executive director of Georgia's Educational Televi-sion Network, said a PBS official will be in Atlanta next week to take a first-hand look at the show, which has drawn praise from viewers despite being produced on a limited budget.

Thursday Mar. 9, 1978

"We hope Langston will lead to a grant from PBS that will enable us to produce a series of programs said Ottinger. "That was the fastest 30 minutes that I ever remember," said Faye Mcdonald Smith, the show's prod-

Critic Believes Brevity Saves 'Water Engine'

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Off-Broadway's sleeper success "The Water Engine" is a different kind of sleeper on Broadway. The yawn variety.

David Mamet's script takes a look at radio melodrama the way it was back in the 1930s, so the stage of the Plymouth Theater, where it arrived Monday, resembles a vintage broadcast studio: old-fashioned mikes, a sound-effects man and a general atmosphere of shirt-sleeve nonchalance for contrast with the vocal excitement.

The dilatory proceedings center mostly upon a thriller, supposedly being aired, about a young inventor who is done in by big business. His engine that runs on water for fuel would wreck corporate prof-

"The Strange Case of the End of Civilization as We Know It."

It runs an hour, is surreal, deadpan British humor at its wildest and sometimes blackest, and airs this week (check local listings) during public TVs national fund drive, "Festival '78."

Ex-Python John Cleese plays Holmes' bumbling grandson. He carries on the detective business in the worst tradition, aided by the bumbling grandson of Holmes' famed companion, Dr. Watson (Arthur Love). I can't say who plays Professor Moriarty, famed archvillain, because it'd give away the surprise ending to the body-littered plot written by Cleese, Jack Hobbs and Joseph McGrath.

But I can say the plot seems to begin with a U.S. secretary of state, a Kissinger-like chap named Dr. Gropinger, shuttling about the Middle East. He loses his datebook and moans:

Kids? Let em eat free, I always say." Of Doc Chumley

Now that Grand Opening time has arrived, Ol' Doc Chumley's become generous.

Because all kids will eat free during the Grand Opening cele-bration at Ol' Doc Chumley's restaurant at the Hilton Inn.

If that doesn't please all you parents, Doc's prescribing a hearty platter for your grown-up appetite. It's called "Down Home Cookin'." For only $4.95 you can get Texas-size portions of meaty ribs, hot links, red beans, potato salad and corn on the cob.

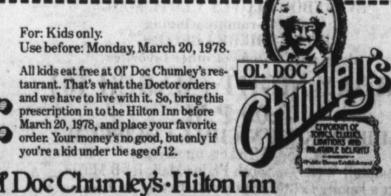

There are plenty of other plat-ters and entrées to choose from at Ol', Doc Chumley's. And it's all served in a fun-filled medicine show atmosphere.

For: Kids only. Use before: Monday, March 20, 1978.

All kids eat free at Ol' Doc Chumley's restaurant. That's what the Doctor orders and we have to live with it. So, bring this prescription in to the Hilton Inn before March 20, 1978, and place your favorite order. Your money's no good, but only if you're a kid under the age of 12.

FDR Portrait Disappears From White House

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sneak thief apparently has been at work in the White House. Gone without a trace is a 40-year-old autographed photo portrait of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This development, which has been re-ported to police, has east a cloud of suspi-cion over all members of the White House press corps as well as executive branch employees who pass in and out of the West Wing press center.

FDR inscribed the photo to the press corps in the mid-1930s and signed himself, "Your ever-devoted victim." It had een hanging on White House walls ever

The first "break" in the case came this week when a reporter found the empty frame for Roosevelt's likeness hidden behind a leather-uphoistered lounge chair. The protective backing had been cut

That FDR was the thief's target seems beyond question. Left untouched were autographed photos of former Presidents Hoover and Truman and framed letters signed by Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard Nixon.

Breast-Feeding Deters Disease

BOSTON (AP) - Hypothyroidism, the brain disease which in its extreme form is known as cretinism, can be fought with mother's milk, doctors say. A Massachu-setts General Hospital reports says breast-feeding can block development of the disease long enough to let treatments start before it does its worst damage.

Infants do not exhibit symptoms of the ilment, but if it is not caught within three months of birth, it can cause irreversible damage to the brain, the hospital reported. Hypothyroidism is the failure of the thyroid gland to produce enough of the hormones controlling body growth

President Carter's grandson and namesake, James Earl Carter IV, has become almost inseparable from a Snoopy baseball cap given to him at a belated White House birthday party last week.

The son of Chip and Caron Carter be-came 1 year old on Feb. 25, but the party was delayed because he was traveling with his parents at the time. Amy Carter was a catalyst for the festivities. She personally decorated the third floor solarium with crepe paper and balloons for the occasion. Young James Earl received mostly gifts of clothing from his assembled kin, but a baseball bat and ball were provided to go with the cap.

When Carter unveiled new education proposals last week, he said he thinks the government's education efforts should have greater visibility. Toward that end, he had Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and other key officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare join

So much for visibility.

When governors assembled here last week, a van loaded with barking guard dogs pulled up to a limousine in the White House yard. Hoods were opened, jumper cables were attached and the engine of the limousine roared back to life. A rear window of the revived vehicle opened and a thank-you was extended to the van's policeman-driver by Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace.

Orange Crop Forecast Unchanged

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Agriculture Department Wednesday said the 1977-78 orange crop is expected to total 221.5 million boxes on the basis of March 1 conditions, virtually unchanged from a February forecast but 9 percent below last year's record of 244.3 million boxes.

The report said most of Florida's groves were "in excellent condition for the next bloom period." The report showed that growers will get more frozen concentrated orange juice from each box of fresh oranges than they did last year. Price for the concentrate have risen sharply because juice output dropped last year, despite the record number of oranges harvested, after many Florida oranges were damaged by The department's crop reporting board estimated that each box of the 1977-78 orange erop will yield 1.24 gallons of standard trength juice compared with the February projection of 1.25 gallons and the freeze-reduced yield of 1.07 gallons per box produced last season. In early January, the board had predicted this season's crop would yield 1.28 gallons of juice concentrate per box. The board estimated the grapefruit crop at 73.8 million boxes, 3 percent below last month's forecast and 1 percent less than last season. Prospects in Florida declined two million boxes during February but the crop in Texas improved.

Officials said prospective production of all oranges in Florida was estimated on the basis of March 1 conditions at 166 million boxes. This was unchanged from a February forecast but was 11 percent, or 23 million boxes, below last season's record of 189 million boxes.

The report said early and mid-season Florida oranges were estimated at 88 million boxes compared with 88 million forecast last month and 115 million produced last year. Florida production of Valencia oranges was estimated at 78 million boxes compared with 78 million forecast last month and 71.8 million harvested last Other individual citrus fruit forecasts on the basis of March 1 conditions, with last season's harvest shown in parentheses, were: . Congressmen Hear Report On Smuggling

lice, gave the estimate to a House subcommittee Wednesday while other witnesses said organized crime is deeply involved in the smuggling operations. Rep. John Convers Jr., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee's crime subcommittee, quoted a cigarette businessman as saying he fears organized crime could take over the entire cigarette in-"I think that caution is well taken," replied Edgar N. Best, inspector and deputy assistant director in the FBI's organized crime and white collar crime sections. "Organized crime would like to control the cigarette industry from manufacturing to distribution." Best estimated that more than half of the smuggling involves organized crime. The smuggling results from differing state tax rates. The cigarettes are bought in low tax states such as North Carolina and shipped to states with higher taxes. The cigarettes are then sold on the black market. Tax rates range from 2 cents in North Carolina to 23 cents in New York City.

There are several proposals for dealing with the problem, including a bill to equalize state taxes on cigarettes. Marathon Paving & Utility Constructors New Meanings Inc., to L.E. Parsons and wife, Lot 14, Block 3, New Meanings

Carter's Signature Could Bring Wealth

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - If President Carter comes to your house one of these days, as he freeloads about the country saving tax dollars on fancy hotel suites, get him to sign the guest book even before he makes the bed. Presidential signatures are worth a bundle these days, and are bound to appreciate in years to come. Franklin D. Roosevelt's elegant Ivy League scrawl is now worth $475, according to a half-page ad placed in Sunday papers around here by a Fifth Avenue department store holding its annual autograph sale. Abraham Lincoln's scratchy signature, on a commission for a captain in the Union Army at the outbreak of the Civil War, goes for $1,250, and they're asking $2,000 for an autographed letter from Thomas Jefferson disposing of some flour and tobacco at Monticello eight years after he left the White House.

You can get James Monroe signing away some land in Indiana to a party hack for $225 and, for the same price, Martin Van Buren ratifying a treaty with the House of Hanover. For the rock bottom price of $200, the store will part with a White House letter from William Howard Taft, berating a supporter for not accepting a proffered appointment with the petulent line: "I am not likely to have the same control over the Common Court."

While the Carters are in residence, you might get First Lady Rosalynn to sign the guest book, too, or put her name at the bottom of the grocery list, even though the growth potential isn't as promising here. Women don't seem to be in great demand with the autograph hounds.

Eleanor Roosevelt's signature, "framed in gray and gilt with enchanting photograph," can be had for a measly $75, hardly in the presidential price range but still worth $10 more than the royal nib work of her nibs Queen Mary, the consort of George V, who once lent her name to the world's largest ocean liner.

Maybe feminine penpersonship will grow in value with the fortunes of the women's lib movement, even though at the moment suffragette Anna Howard Shaw can be had for $15 on a letter written 60 years ago on the stationery of the National Defense Woman's Committee.

Queen Victoria and Sarah Bernhardt, at $200 apiece, are about the best the women do on the sales list, with Napoleon's Empress Marie Louise right behind at $195. Bonaparte himself, however, commands $750, probably because he seldom took his hand out of his coat long enough to sign many letters. John James Audubon's rare signature can be yours for $150, but if there were a painting attached to it, the asking price would be a thousand times as much. Renoir without an accompanying painting is listed at $575, but with it, according to the ad, goes an "artistically framed wonderful photograph of him smoking his pipe.

For $795 you can get an Anvil Chorus of congratulations from your friends by showing off an invitation from the composer to the original opening night of "Il Trovatore." The letter, signed by Giuseppe Verdi, modestly suggests, "In case you would like to attend the first performance of 'Trovatore' I am enclosing two tickets." The ducats, however, were used or lost long ago.

Less expensive and also uncollectable is a bank draft on the House of Rothschild signed by Gioacchino Rossini, offered at $150. For $85 you can decorate your den and provoke a Grand Canyon of yawns with the calligraphy of H.G. Wells, the Duke of Wellington or comedian Harry Lauder, a real rarity, since the famous scot was almost a self-caricature of Highland thrift and unaccustomed to signing hecks. In the autography market, Douglas MacArthur at $135 is pegged at $10 above Gen. Phil Sheridan and William Makepeace Thackery, but $25 below Babe Ruth's "fine, clear signature in red and gilt with a remarkable photograph in uniform." But even the Babe, who was generous with autographs, was minor league stuff compared with Charles de Gaulle at $350, Enrico Caruso at $365 and Charles Dickens at $425. Still, to my mind, the best bargain on the list is George III at $250 for a document he penned in 1803, when he was certifiably madder than the royal hatter. The king who lost the American colonies had lost his intellect within 12 years after Yorktown and spent many hours in a "straight waistcoat" or tied to the regal bed at Windsor Castle. The King's surgeon diagnosed his ailment as "gout of the brain." Fanny Burney, the British novelist, who saw George about this time wrote that "his eyes were like black currant jelly, the veins of his face allred and swollen and the foam ran out of his mouth." Finally, those who are convinced the South is rising again can have a genuine $1,000 Confederate war bond for the knock down price of $35.

READY FOR ANY MISTAKE - Dr. James Boren, president of the International Association of Professional Bureaucrats, is pictured during an interview in Washington this week. He holds a pencil lettered with the words "when in doubt mumble." The pencil has an eraser at each end. (AP Laserphoto)

Boren Pokes Fun At Bureaucracy

By ANN BLACKMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — His pencils have erasers at both ends. His motto is "When in doubt, mumble." And he smokes twisted cigars he says resemble the economy — bent out of shape.

Jim Boren is a former bureaucrat who now makes a living spoofing the bureaucracy — in a town that breeds bureaucrats so quickly the rabbits are jealous.

Asked about President Carter's recently trumpeted plan to harness the civil service, Boren said he approves because the plan offers the bureaucracy a chance

"It offers new opportunities for a lateral shuffle," he said, as he twirled his diamond-studded pinky ring. "Every time we reorganize, we combine old offices and old jobs and put a new layer on top." Anyway, he said, it doesn't really matter if Carter's plan works.

'That's immaterial. It's the image, not the performance. It's the roar, not the message. There's always great difficulty in both Washington and Hollywood differentiating between reality and image." Boren is president of the International Association of Professional Bureaucrats which claims 1,100 members in 17 coun-

Its purpose?

"To give recognition to the world's fingertappers who keep things from happen-ing and prevent mistakes from being made," Boren said.

Boren is also publisher of a newsletter

he calls "Murnblepeg." Its first issue, which comes out this month, features an article about the "dynamic inaction" of the bureaucracy and offers a "Rejection Scroll" to Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, "for his subversive efforts to make the lawyers of the CAB write in simple language."

Boren, 51, who calls the State Department "the graduate school of mumbling arts," has been making fun of the bu-reaucracy ever since he became frustrated with its ways 10 years ago and quit his job as administrative aide to a Texas sen-

Today, the Wheatland, Okla., native spends much of his time on the lecture circuit, poking fun at what he called in one book, "The Bureaucratic Zoo."

"I try to use humor and satire to call attention to the tremendous waste of human talent that exists in all businesses, corporations and government," he explained in a rare serious moment. "There are a lot of dedicated people who want to do a job, but old rules and procedures have tied their hands."

Boren wants President Carter to proclaim a "Red Tape Week," which Boren explained would be a time for all organizations to take a look at their internal operating procedures.

It would be a time for organizations to ponder the phrase that Boren has blown up on a poster: "When a bureaucrat makes a mistake and continues to make it, it usually becomes the new policy.

GOP Follows Carter Example, Prepares For New Hampshire

By ANDREW SCHNEIDER CONCORD, N.H. (AP) - Following the successful example of once-unknown Jimmy Carter, Republican presidential aspirants are jockeying for the earliest start ever in New Hampshire's residential sweepstakes. The presidential primary may be two years away, but GOP strategists are following Carter's cue in the 1976 primary. An early start and persistent campaigning launched him toward the White

"Republicans are just doing what Cart-er did last time and it's hard to dispute the success of his early New Hampshire start because he's sitting in the White House today," GOP State Chairman Gerald Carmen said in a recent interview

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan. the former GOP vice-presidential candidate, recently spent a full day in the state "testing the waters" at a state party meeting, a news conference, a meeting with the American Legion, two receptions and a private meeting with "interested Republicans."

"It's no surprise that the six or eight Republicans that are considering running for the nomination plan to visit New Hampshire in the next few weeks." Dole said. "It makes sense, because this is the place to be."

Carmen insists that Dole is not starting that much earlier than Carter did, and many Democrats agree. Carter's first public appearance in the state was in Lebanon in March 1974.

A Republican function of some size occurs in the state about every two weeks and Carmen says he would have no problem getting top GOP speakers for every

For instance, Carmen says former Texas Gov. John Connally, a perennial political figure in presidential campaigns, would be making his third recent visit to the state March 14, when he will speak to a small gathering of Strafford County Re-

The list of Republicans contacting Carmen and other party leaders is expanding rapidly. "It started weeks ago when members of Lowell Weicker's staff came up to investigate his chances," said Car-

Five Seek New Deal School Board Posts

NEW DEAL (Special) — Five persons have filed as candidates for three-year terms on the New Deal school board.

Listed as at-large candidates for either of two positions to be filled are Edward L. Taylor and Jerry G. Parker, both employed by the Lubbock Police Department; Wendell Attebury and Fred Ford, both farmers; and Verlin Anglin, owner of Hi-Plains Oxygen Equipment Inc. in Lubbock.

Outgoing board member James Atte-bury did not seek re-election.

Vying for the two-year unexpired term vacated by Gary Rieken, who moved out of the district, are R.C. Bufe, a farmer: and Bob J. Durham, owner-manager of a trucking firm.

Absentee balloting has been set for March 13-28 at the New Deal Co-Op Gin. John McNew will serve as election

The regular school board election will be April 1 in the New Deal High School Jibrary. Jake Scharnburg will be elec-

Liberal Republicans also are expected to 40 minutes while state party officials disbe heard from soon, with Sens. Charles Mathias of Maryland and Charles H. Percy of Illinois scheduled for spring visits.

Party leaders say they think that either former president Ford or Ronald Reagan will speak at a GOP fund raiser in April. The very fact that most potential candidates feel they must appear in New Hampshire often leads to unusual treatment of the visiting dignitaries. Dole, a speaker much in demand, recently sat on the podium for an hour and cussed local races, fund-raising and reviewed a slide show.

An aide to Dole, who had worked on other presidential campaigns, nervously paced the hallway as Dole waited his turn. "God Himself could be running for president and these New Hampshirites would keep Him waiting until they were ready to hear what He had to say.

"They know the first-in-the-nation race is critical and they'll never let candidates forget it, because they're right."

Carter Cromwell Tech Pitching

Surprises Segrist

NO ONE HAD to inform Texas Tech baseball coach Kal Segrist prior to the 1978 baseball season that he would be facing a radically different task than that of one year earlier. A quick comparison of rosters had long before made him aware of the fact.

His 1977 team was a mostly veteran unit. This year, Segrist counts 23 freshmen and just seven lettermen on his 37-man squad. Obviously, the two clubs are quite contrasting, and the statistics bear this out.

After 13 games, Tech is 5-8, almost matching the 6-7 mark it posted after 13 games in 1977. But the records were accumulated in different fashion

The 1977 club belted the ball at a .311 clip through 49 games. It was Tech's second-best team batting average in history, falling just two percentage points shy of the .313 it hit in 1976.

However, very poor pitching plagued the Raiders most of the season and was the main reason they could climb but one game over the .500 mark. The 1977 Tech staff allowed well over a hit per inning, gave up nearly six runs and nine hits a game, and posted a horrendous 5.27 earned-run average. Raider Opponents batted .296.

Thus far in 1978, the opposite has been true. The Techsans are batting a meager .238 through 13 games, but the pitching staff is showing improvement in most categories and has a 3.47 ERA. That is certainly not great, but it looks microscopic compared to 5.27.

THE PERFORMANCE of the pitchers has surprised Segrist, primarily because of the staff's youth. Nine of the 13 hurlers on the roster are freshmen, one is a sophomore who hadn't played college ball before and another is a junior squadman.

'We felt in the fall that we had some pretty good arms," Segrist said, "but you don't know how the young guys will react to the pressure of a game. Overall, we've been pleased so far.

Of the five pitchers with more than 10 innings of work, four are freshmen -Gary Moyer, Larry Womble, Rick Hall and Robert Bryant. David Bolton, the junior squadman, is the fifth, while sophomore letterman Mark Johnston has hurled seven innings of relief.

One problem the Raiders have had occasionally in the early going has been an to hold narrow leads in the late stages or "We'd get a well-pitched game until then and then lose it," Segrist said. "In close games like that, one swing can tie the game up or beat you.' AT BAT, TECH has only one regular-centerfielder Randy Newton-hitting above .300. He is batting .405. Freshman catcher Dan Hejl is hitting .286, but things drop off from there. "I think our hitting will pick up, but it will take a while and some work," Segrist said. "Our poor hitting has been a result of having new people in there and not getting to work outside much. Before the season started, we had only been outside seven days, and it's a lot different hitting outside than hitting rubber balls in the gym.' Catcher Scott Leimgruber, a .289 hitter in 1977, is batting .200, while letterman John Keller is at .194 and second baseman Johnny Vestal—a two-year let-terman and .295 hitter a year ago—is at .163. Outfielder Larry Selby hit .262 as a freshman last season, but is now struggling at .205.

"Selby is capable of being a good hitter," Segrist said. "Vestal is a hot-and-cold hitter. He's liable to break out and hit .400 for a couple of weeks. But, so far, we've had several people that have had opportunities to win games for us and haven't done it."

TECH'S DEFENSIVE EFFORT has been the most suprising aspect of it's play to Segrist. The Raiders were spotty defensively last year and were very poor on the left side of the infield, but he has been pleased so far in 1978.

"Of course, we haven't played much of the season yet, but we've only had one game where we didn't play well overall on defense, and we won that one (the concluding game of last week's series with Rice).

"In several games, we've been outstanding. We've executed well most of the time and have exhibited good team play defensively."

Shortstop Brooks Wallace is by far the team leader in errors with nine, but Segrist said he's only had one bad game, that the second contest against Texas Lutheran. He committed four miscues then in a 4-1 Tech defeat.

NIT Opens With Thri

They've fired the first shots of the National Invitation Tournament - and not much separated the best from the rest.

In two down-to-the-wire games Wednesday night, Georgetown defeated Virginia 70-68 in an overtime thriller and Nebraska edged Utah State 67-66 as the far-flung NIT started first-round play in regional outposts.

At Charlottesville, Va., Mike Riley and Craig Shelton hit two free throws each in the final 10 seconds of overtime to lead Georgetown over Virginia.

With 47 seconds left in overtime, the Cavaliers took the lead 67-66 on a 15-foot jumper by Tommy Hicks before Riley and Shelton pulled out the game for Georgetown from the foul line. The score was tied twice and the lead changed hands six times in the overtime period.

"That's the way tournament basketball is supposed to be played," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson. "That was one heck of an exciting game."

Thompson was extremely pleased with the way his team played, even though the Hoyas were held to 19 points in the sec-

"Both teams were a little bit cautious," Thompson said. "We were playing a little bit of a chess game."

The Hoyas earned a spot in the quarterfinals against the winner of Friday night's Fairfield-Dayton game

At Lincoln, Neb., Carl McPipe's free throw with 1:52 left put Nebraska in front and the Cornhuskers held on to beat Utah State by a whisker. Freshmen Andre Smith and Mike Naderer sparked Nebraska in the second half as the Huskers were helped by Utah State's foul Naderer hit on six outside shots and played alert defense, and Smith, who alternated with McPipe at center, scored 18 points to lead the Huskers. Nebraska advanced to a quarter-final meeting against the winner of Friday night's Texas-Temple game.

Nebraska's "good discipline" and Naderer's outside shooting made the difference, said Utah State Coach Dutch Belnap. "A four-point lead is not much against a team like that."

'The breaks evened out," said Nebraska Coach Joe Cipriano, who praised the work of freshmen Naderer and Smith. "Our aggressive play hurt them." The Huskers "did a good job of holding the ball" after they took the lead, Cipri-

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) - South San Francisco High went down in defeat, but pitcher Robin Petrini won the distinction as California's — and perhaps the nation's — first female to compete in a high school varsity baseball game. "Everybody just accepted me. That's the way it should be," the 5foot-3 junior said after the game.

Sports

Thursday Mar. 9, 1978

"I could see them downcutting me at times, but if I compete as well as they do and don't blow it or anything, other teams should have no reason to downgrade me."

Miss Petrini pitched four innings in relief — including two scoreless — and she fanned one batter in Monday's 8-2 loss to Capuchino High of San Bruno. South San Francisco was trailing 3-1 when she got the call and five more runs crossed the plate after she came in.

But her coach, Bob Brian, said, "If you look at the stats and analyze the game carefully, there shouldn't have been a run scored off Robin. The defense let down a couple of plays and it cost."

All in all, he rated her varsity debut "a good job."

Capuchino High Coach Don LaClergue, who made no protest when he learned in advance his boys might face a girl hurler, agreed. "She's going to throw a lot of guys off-stride because she's slow. It's going to be tough for them to ad-just," he said.

The view wasn't unanimous, though. "I think she'd be good in girl's softball, but I don't think there's a place for her in a varsity league," said winning pitcher Gary Schen-

The 16-year-old's recent success culminated a long struggle against sex barriers in sports.

She got thumbs down when she tried in grammar school to play on a Midget League team in a junior baseball program. Later when she tried to get on with a Colt League team, she was rejected again.

"A guy got injured, and they only had eight people, so they finally let me play second base and then they had a big stink about it," she recalled.

With changes in eligibility regulations for American Le-gion junior baseball in 1975, Miss Petrini joined the South San Francisco Post team which Brian also coaches.

Baseball isn't her sole occupation. She was twice an All-San Mateo County basketball honoree, once as All-County girls' volleyball honoree, last season a member of the All-County girls' softball team.

Why did she make the big move this year? "I didn't want to go out again for girls' softball," she said. "I wanted more competition, I guess

Shockers Fire Miller

By The Associated Press Harry Miller, who led Wichita State to a Missouri Valley Conference title and a berth in the NCAA playoffs just two years ago, is among three college basketball coaches newly out of work.

Miller and Duquesne's John Cinicola were both fired Wednesday while Dick Edwards resigned from his post at the University of California.

Wichita State Athletic Director Ted Bredehoft cited sagging attendance for Miller's dismissal, which came by unani-mous decision of the school's Athletic Association Board of Directors. Bredehoft said the directors agreed at a meeting that it was in the "best inter-ests" of the university that Miller, who previously coached Eastrn New Mexico University to the NAIA championship, not be retained.

The athletic director refused to elaborate, except to say, "Our drop in attendance had a lot to do with it."

The Shockers finished the season with a 13-14 overall record and an 8-8 conference mark, drawing an average of 7,691 for each home game. Attendance was 9,-785 per game in 1976-77, while two years ago it was 9,766.

Miller, not present at the meeting but told of the decision afterward by Bre-

dehoft, was philosophical about the fir-

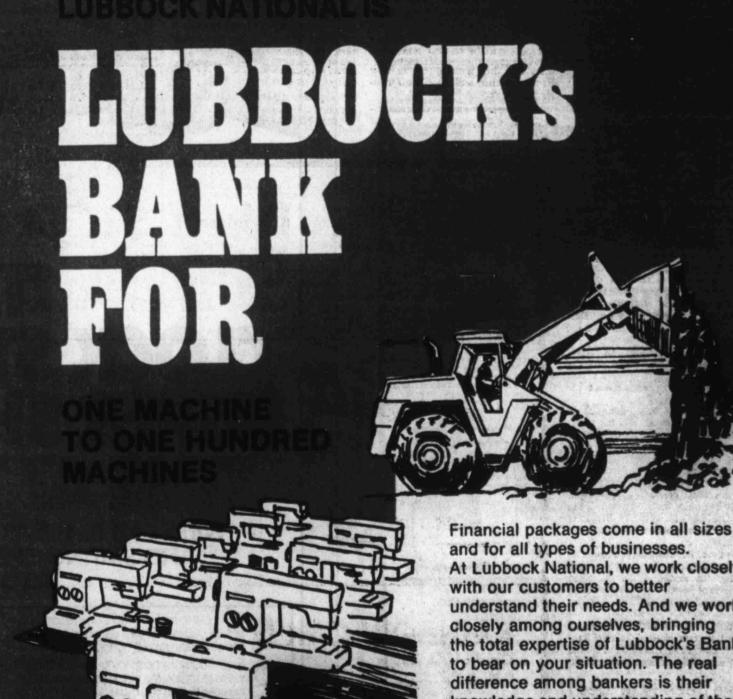

"It's the nature of the game," he said, explaining he had an inkling he might be fired after talking to Bredehoft Tuesday.

Miller came to Wichita State for the 1971-72 season after a year at North Texas State. The Shockers were 97-90 overall under his guidance and 49-46 in league find a replacement for Miller would be formed today and a successor announced

Nsofor Wins

FORT WORTH (Special)—Idike Nsofor of Lubbock knocked out Tyrone Cotton of Dallas Wednesday night in the lightwelterweight division action of the Golden Gloves Tournament.

Two Lubbock fighters were defeated. Joe Revilla of Corpus Christi stopped flyweight Domingo Amalla, while Leonard Frazier of Dallas defeated bantamweight Steve English. Both were by decisions. Late Wednesday night, Lubbock's Raymond Amalla fought Dallas' Leon Frazier in the light-middleweight division.

of miler Curtis Conaway. "Before he's through, Curtis will be the best miler this state has ever produced," the Monterey track coach said.

Take that-and that. And Gay has a few stats to back up that claim, too.

As a sophomore Conaway, who placed second in the state's cross country finals, shattered the District 4-AAAA mile record by ten seconds, running a 4:20.8. That time is also a school record.

Lubbock Boxer by about eight to ten seconds every "They say that a miler should improve year," Gay explained. "If that's right then you can see the possibilities of Curtis running some good times. This year we've set a goal of 4:10 and we think he can do it.'

Conaway is only one of many stellar performers returning to Gay's track stable this year. And that pleases the MHS

"If we lined up right now and raced Coronado (for the district championship) they would probably beat us," the coach of the defending loop champs explained. "But I think up the line we will catch up with them.

Gay believes it will come down between the Ponies and the Plainsmen for the district title this year, just like in '77. "Last year they (Coronado) had more talent and we turned around and beat them for it (the loop crown)," Gay said. "This year it looks like we have more talent, but they may turn around and do to us what we did to them a year ago.'

According to Gay, if the Plainsmen fail

Gay said the Plainsmen will nickle and dime people to death this year.

"There are some hard working kids on this team that won't win a race this year," Gay said. "But they will get a fourth or fifth and score some points. That helps."

However, Gay does have an individual who can garner those much needed big

Gay also predicted the MHS mile relay team will be strong this year since two of its legs, Iseral and Dave Yates (50.2) are returning. The coach said the other two spots would be filled by either Richard Hobbs, Bart Tarleton or Barry Stevens. All three are juniors.

"We may not have a lot but we are consistent and extremely hard workers,' Gay said. "That's what matters."

will. We've been on the top of our game lately and we hope to be highly competitive," Hood said.

The coach hasn't had any problem of enthusiasm this week. Workouts have been filled with plenty of excitement. Hood only wishes he knew more about the semifinal oppo-

"They have a girl named Barfield who averages more than 20 points a game. She's 5-4 and she plays outside. Then they have two 5-10 girls who play underneath for the rebounds and set screens. You can't really force Barfield to either side because she shoots so well. Defensively, they're 5-7, 5-8 and 5-9 and they're very quick but we don't know any of their names. That's about all I know. I tried to call the Victoria paper for some information but they wouldn't give me any,' the MHS coach said.

Victoria, coached by Jan Lahodny, sports a veteran girls

Monterey will start its same group of Margaret Grennell, Marilyn Beckner and Sherri Davis at forwards with Janet Mears, Jana Field and Rhonda Dunn at guards.

Regardless of the outcome, most of the Monterey players are pleased with their team's accomplishment of reaching the state tournament.

"Being our first year in UIL, it's a fantastic accomplishment," said Miss Field after last week's regional tourney. A 5-8 junior, Miss Field plans to major in architecture at Texas Tech and hopes to continue playing basketball in college. Like women's basketball, architecture is relatively new and challenging for women and Miss Field enjoys the chal-

"I've always liked sports. I like the competitive feeling. I've been in two or three classes where I was the only girl in the class. I like the arts and the challenge. I like to work with my hands and draw," she said.

Last Saturday in the closing minutes of the regional final, Miss Field used her hands to good advantage. Monterey led 52-50 and Miss Field controlled a jump ball with 20 seconds left on El Paso Parkland's offensive end of the court and teammate Barbara Ragus passed the ball to an offensive mate. Without that jump ball, Monterey might have allowed a last-second basket and the game could have gone into over-

I team in the nation. And the first-year Western Texas College boss has a chance at attaining that goal. All his Westerners have to do is defeat Navarrao College Friday night in the first-round of the National Junior College Tournament for that goal to come true.

The NJCAA has taken a page out of the NIT's book and all first-round games will be played at regional sites. For example, Friday's game will be at Stephenville, the home of Tarleton State.

Neither WTC nor Navarro have lengthy winning streaks. In fact, the Westerners have won four straight and Navarro's is a meager one.

However, Lewis Orr is extremely proud of the Bulldogs' present position. "This is the first time we've ever won conference, the region or played in the National Tournament," said the coach of the Corsicanna-based school.

"I know all this is old hat to Western Texas, but it's not for us and we're happy

Make that two, because Richardson is going through the playoff rigors for the first time despite the fact WTC is in the national tournament for the third time in the last four years.

"It's just a great feeling to know that we're back in the nationals," said Richardson. "When you come into a place where the tradition is established and you have a reputation for playing outstanding basketball, it's a little tough to keep all that going. "But I was fortunate to have 14 young men who were dedicated to keep it going and I'm gratified that we've accomplished so much this year. Navarro will bring a 30-6 mark into Friday's 8 p.m. contest and WTC is 27-7. The winner advances to Hutchinson, Kan., for a Tuesday night date with Casper, Wyo., the No. 1 junior college team in the na-

Navarro had to best perennial national tournament figure San Jacinto in a bestof-three series for its berth. The Bulldogs won the opener 88-87, but then lost 91-78 before winning 81-80 Tuesday night.

"They've got an extremely quick team," Richardson said, "perhaps the quickest in either of the conferences I've seen this year. I was very impressed by their quickness and shooting ability. They've got good height and by that I mean they're all in the 6-5, 6-6 range.

"We'll be a little taller than they are, but their quickness should balance things

Richardson emphasizes the "team" role. "I try to make sure the players give up all the self glory and go for a straight team effort and because of this I've changed the lineup several times this year. In fact, we're to the point where we don't even worry about the starting lineup, because I've got 10 young men who can play and they usually do.

"For example, I started three different lineups at the Regional Tournament. (6-8 sophomore Julio) Gallardo played only eight minutes in the final game and then (6-7 sophomore Robert) Brown came in and finished with 15 points, 15 rebounds and 7 blocked shots.

"Afterwards, people asked me where he'd been all year? Robert plays as much as (6-8 sophomore Jon) Morehead. I think Morehead had started 20 times and

A number of Westerners have reaped honors this year. Adam Beadle, a 6-6 freshman, reaped all-conference honors, then Beadle and Gallardo landed spots on the All-Region team and Gallardo and Morehead were All-Regional Tournament picks.

Beadle currently ranks among the nation's top five in free throw accuracy, having hit 70 of 75 and at one time led the national when his percentage was at the 95 level. With Morehead (58 per cent), Guallaro (53), Beadle (53) and (6-5 freshman) Joe Mendoza (51) leading the dead-eye shooting corps, the Westerners have hit 51 per cent of their field goals as a team in averaging 88 points a game this year.

gotten to the state tournament for only the second time in history, yet because the school won the crown before, people expect you to repeat.

So, what does a coach do? Well, in Cathy Wilson's case, it's worry.

And here's what she's worrying about: - A team that averages 83 points a game and limits the opposition to only 32. - A team that has compiled a 105-4 mark in its last three season, despite making its first appearance in the state

- A team that is led by a 6-2 sophomore and 5-11 seniors who will tower over her tallest starter.

- Keeping her own forwards out of foul trouble as she admits Slaton's bench is weakest on that end.

Miss Wilson, making her third straight state tournament apperance as a coach, will watch her Slaton Tigerettes take on Pfulgerville at 3:30 p.m. today in the opening round of the Class AA state meet at the Super Drum.

Prior to that, she'll get to watch as Granberry (34-4) take on Palacios (20-9) at 2 p.m.

Pfulgerville definitely has the credentials to back up its 36-2 mark that has established it as the team to beat here.

But, then, Slaton ousted defending state champion Spearman in the regional semifinals and overpowered Dimmitt in the finals as 5-91/2 Lynn Webb, 5-7 Cynthia Robinson and 5-6 Chris Kennedy accounted for 63 points each game.

The Tigerettes may need more than that today, as the high-scoring Pantherettes are led by 6-2 sophomore Karen Thompson (21.3) and 5-11 senior Jackie Weiss (16.4), plus first-year coach Terry Szafranski will use either 5-1 senior Janie Morehead (14.0) or 5-1 senior Suzette Smith (18.3) to round out the forwards.

Pfulgerville ended a 33-1 campaign at the bidistrict level in 1976 and lost in the regional finals a year later, finishing 36-1.

Texans Triumph

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The Fort Worth Texans fought back from a 2-0 deficit to a 3-2 Central Hockey League victo-ry Wednesday night over Salt Lake City's Golden Eagles.

John Smrke scored at 8:21 in the first period and teammate Mike Crombeen had a goal at 6:51 of the second period to give Salt Lake a 2-0 lead.

Forth Worth's Garth MacGuigan scored and 8:18 and 18:11 of the second period to tie it 2-2 and Bill Hogaboam scored the final tally at 6:50 off the third period. Salt Lake pulled goalie Jimmy Warden at 19:42 but to no avail.

The final period had 30 minutes in penalties, evenly divided between the teams.

Wheatley Cagers

HOUSTON (AP) - Principal A.C. Herald Jr. says four members of the state Class 4A champion Houston Wheatley High School basketball team have admit ted participating in a shoplifting incident in Austin last week during the state schoolboy basketball tournament.

Herald declined to identify the four, even to Houston Independent School District officials, but said there would be severe disciplinary measures. He said some of the seniors involved may not be allowed to graduate.

A shopkeeper in a north Austin shopping mall said necklaces valued at more than $150 were taken from her store last Thursday after it was visited by members of the Wheatley team. The manager of a cafeteria also said $150 in cash was missing from a cash register shortly after the cashier's attention was diverted by a Wheatley player.

The incidents occurred while Wheatley was in Austin to compete in the state schoolboy basketball tournament which they won Saturday by defeating San Antonio Fox Tech. Herald said Wednesday that one player has taken the responsibility for the incident at the cafeteria and three others admitted to taking jewelry.

"I'm so ashamed I don't know what to do," Herald said. "But at the same time I'm doggone proud of the very boys who walked into my office with tears in their eyes and said 'I'm sorry I did this to the

Spurs Fall

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - George Gervin's touch deserted him and Gus Williams found some luck Wednesday night as the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the San Antonio Spurs 95-94 in a National Basketball Association contest.

Williams hit a pair of late long-distance umpers after Gervin missed both ends of bonus free throw situation that could have iced the game for the Spurs.
"It was all ultra-luck," Williams said.
He finished with 17 points.

His first field goal came with 19 sec-nds left and brought Seattle to within me point at 94-93. He struck again with two seconds re-naining to seal the victory and overturn three-game road losing streak.

"They weren't good shots," Williams id. "But they turned out to be great

The Spurs had a chance to ice the game with 13 seconds left when Gervin, who ed with 41 points, was fouled by Se-

Schoolgirl Meet

AUSTIN (AP) - Undefeated and untested Canyon led 20 teams - including eight newcomers - into the 28th annual girls' high school basketball tournament today.

Three defending champions - Canyon high-scoring Dallas South Oak Cliff and Nazareth - won spots in the three-day tournament.

Semifinals were scheduled for Thursday and Friday, with the five state championship games set for Saturday.

Canyon, 36-0, has been to the tournament in 3A every year since 1969, which is a record. The Eaglettes won titles in 1969, 1972, 1974 and 1977 and were runners-up in 1970, 1971, 1973, 1975 and 1976. Merry Johnson, a two-time all-state tournament player, leads Canyon in scoring with a 28-point average. The Eagles' closest game this year has been a 10-point victory over Slaton, a AA semifinalist.

Canyon also has defeated four other tournament teams - Nazareth, Lubbock Monterey, Vega and South Oak Cliff.

South Oak Cliff has scored more than 100 points in eight games. Two 1977 alltournament players - Loretta Lister and 6-foot Anita Foster - have combined for 45 points a game. A third SOC all-tournament player, Pam Green, is a defensive specialist.

SOC's victories included a 143-30 triumph over Dallas Carter and 136-7 over North Dallas.

Pflugerville in AA had the two most convincing triumphs, however, 157-10 and 146-2 over Elgin.

Here is the tournament schedule, with team records: TODAY - Class B - 8:30 a.m., Graford (40-0)

TODAY — Class B — 8:30 a.m., Gratord (40-0) vs. Crawford, 33-5; 10 a.m., Nazareth (38-4) vs. Avinger (33-5). Class AA — Granbury (34-4) vs. Pa-lacios (20-9); Pflugerville (36-2) vs. Sieton (32-5); Class AAA — Canyon (35-6) vs. Georgetown (72-7); Carthage (33-2) vs. Corpus Christi Tuloso-Midway

Cliff (39-3) vs. League City Clear Creek (29-5); 4 p.m., Victoria (35-1) vs. Lubbock Monterey (23-7).

"It was an all right game," Owens said. "I rebounded okay. It was a good game because we won."

Portland overcame a sluggish first half and took a 12-point lead 66-54 late in the third quarter. The Blazers hit only 36 per cent of their field goal attempts in the first half, but managed to stay ahead of the cold-shooting Rockets, who connected only only 25 per cent from the field.

Calvin Murphy ignited a late Houston rally by scoring 24 of his game high 32 points in the second half. Houston pulled to within one point on two occasions late in the game, but Johnny Davis iced the victory for Portland with a pair of free throws with 39 seconds left in the game.

John Denver Celebrity Ski Tourney On Tap

AP TV Sports Writer

You start with your basic celebrity golf tournament, say, the Bob Hope Desert Classic. You replace the golfing celebrities with a more contemporary crowd, shift the scene from Palm Springs to Aspen, Colo. and put everyone on skis.

Bring in some pros, install a new host, haul in the inevitable television cameras and - Presto! - welcome to the inaugural John Denver Celebrity Pro-Am Ski Tournament.

"I've been working on this for about three years," says Denver, the affable singer and outdoors enthusiast. "Our hope is that it will do for skiing what the Hope and Crosby urnaments have done for golf.

The result of this latest mixture of the entertainment and sports worlds will be seen on ABC Sunday afternoon starting at 2:30 CST. The whole affair - which includes a pro-am race, a couple of pro skiing races and a brief tour of the Aspen ski scene — was filmed last weekend.

"I think skiing is the best sport there is," says Denver, who has been skiing for about 11 years. "It's healthy, exciting, great fun. It's something the whole family can enjoy together. Everyone just goes out to the mountain and has fun. There's something for eveyone."

Denver got the inspiration for one of his more popular recordings, "Annie's Song", dedicated to his wife, on the ski

"I wrote that when I was skiing one day," he says. "Skiing kind of gives me a free feeling, the fresh air, the wind, the colors of the outdoors and the bright outfits. There's a line in that song, 'You fill up my senses.' That's what skiing does

"In thinking of that I started thinking about my wife. She has the same effect on me. And that became the song." Denver's love for the sport has remained intact despite a couple of injuries, the last one about three years ago. "It was one of those beautiful days when all the crazies are out on the hill," he recalls. "I saw these guys all over the

"Then this turkey came flying at me out of control. I couldn't get out of the way. I broke both skis and dislocated my left shoulder.

No one was injured in the pro-am event although Annie Denver came close when she ran into a pole near the finish

The curious mixture of celebrities who took part in the races included Clint Eastwood, Tom Brokaw, Steve Martin and football stars Bert Jones and Lynn Swann. The sight of the latter duo plummeting down the slopes is likely to cause some consternation in the front offices of at least two National Football League teams.

Each team in the pro-am was made up of two pros and two celebs, none of whom were paid. Denver's team, which included Swann, came out on top.

"We were lucky," says Denver. "Three of the guys on my team won. I was the only one who didn't. I lost to Steve Martin. It was quite embarrassing.

sports fixtures we find that ABC's "Wide World of Sports" is down slightly from last year but still leading the pack, NBC's college basketball is up a bit and CBS's NBA games are down a bit.

Figures through Feb. 26 reveal that Sunday's "Wide World" is averaging a 13.8 rating, meaning 13.8 per cent of TV sets in the nation are tuned in, and a 32 share, meaning 32 per cent of the sets is use are turned to the show. That's a drop of one point from last year at this time.

College basketball is averaging 7.4 and a 19 share. That's up about one point and the probable cause is that most of the games are being shown later in the afternoon this year when more people are watching TV. The NBA is averaging a 7.0 and 19 share, down almost one point from last year.

What does it all mean? It means that "Wide World" continues to generate dollars for the ABC coffers at a higher rate than any other Sunday winter sports programming.

Graybeard Trio Nabs Spotlight

By The Associated Press

The flowers that bloom in the spring seem to include some hardy perennials. According to Mr. Webster, who never managed a baseball team, a hardy perennial is "something that lasts from year to year." And that pretty well sums up the careers of Gaylord Perry and Ron Fairly, both 39, and Mickey Lolich, 37.

All three graybeards were in the exhibition spotlight Wednesday. It was the first spring training Old Timers Day. Perry hurled three strong innings, allowing one unearned run, and Lolich, making a comeback after sitting out the 1977 season, worked a scoreless ninth as the San Diego Padres edged Japan's Yakult Swallows 3-2. Meanwhile, Fairly delivered a two-run double to help the California Angels defeat the Padres' 'B' squad 5-2.

Except for batting practice, Lolich, who last pitched for the New York Mets in 1976, hadn't faced a hitter in 17

"It felt strange," he said. "Without the batting cage I had no-depth perception." But Lolich has no doubts that he can

Most of the Padres' regulars were in Yuma, Ariz., to face the Japanese team and the Angels didn't take kindly to the depleted squad San Diego sent to Holtville, Calif.

"This is no insult to the players out there, but the people came to see Dave Winfield, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers and George Hendrick," said Angels General Manager Buzzie Bavasi. "This is a violation of the commissioner's ruling that teams should be well-represented and the manager should accompany the

Instead of filing a formal protest, Bavasi said he plans to send a 'B' team to play the Padres in Yuma next month.

"He's entitled to his opinion, but we did not intend to slight the Angels or anyone else," explained Bob Fontaine, who succeeded Bavasi as vice president and general manager of the Padres.

"We were trying to accommodate everyone, but from a promotional consideration we had to have many of our bestknown players here (Yuma) because the game was being taped for television in San Diego and in Japan.

Controversy seemed to be the order of

In the San Francisco Giants' camp, there was no indication that pitcher John Montefusco and infielder Bill Madlock had kissed and made up following Tuesday's clubhouse brawl.

'I'm not going to back away from a challenge. We fought," Montefusco said. "I was being interviewed. Madlock was interrupting. I told him to shut up. Words were exchanged and I got up."

Witnesses said Montefusco got swinging and it took several players pull them apart.

"It's over," Madlock insisted. "These things happen in clubhouses all the time. We both have 'GIANTS' printed on our uniforms. We're here for one purpose to get ready to win."

The battling Giants play their first exhibition game today against the Cleveland Indians. The rest of the schedule pairs the New York Yankees against the Texas Rangers, Houston Astros-Atlanta Braves. Detroit Tigers-Boston Red Sox, Chicago Cubs-Milwaukee Brewers, Seattle Mariners-San Diego Padres and Oakland A's-

California Angels. The Yankees apparently aren't the only New York team where all isn't sweetness and light. Outfielder Elliott Maddox has taken exception to remarks by Ed Kranepool, who wanted to know why Maddox apparently has been handed the right field job when he "hasn't hit .260 in the last two years." "I don't see anyone on this club who can say anything negative about another player on the club," replied Maddox, who missed most of the last two seasons because of knee surgery. "You don't start criticizing in the spring. The manager can criticize, not the players.

"It doesn't help when you come to a new team and the first thing you read are players' reaction to you and it's something like that."

Today, the Yankees are showcasing lefthander Ken Holtzman, who will be the starting pitcher against the

(From Page One) "Red" Manning said he made the decision to fire Cinicola, a longtime friend, "after many weeks of discussion and speculation." He acknowledged that he opted to dismiss Cinicola against the wishes of Duquesne's Athletic Committee, an advisory group which voted 8-1-1 the night before to extend Cinicola's contract by two more seasons.

"It's an advisory committee," said Manning. "They have input in the program. But they went in one direction; I went in another. Mike Rice, Cinicola's top assistant, was named to replace him. Duquesne had an 11-17 record under Cinicola this year, giving him a four-year mark at the Pittsburgh school of 52-56.

Cinicola was named head coach in 1974 after Manning retired from the position to become athletic director. Cinicola was an assistant under Manning for 14 years with the Dukes.

"Naturally, after working with a man for 20 years, it was a very tough decision, especially with the loyalty he had for Duquesne University," said Manning, whose own coaching record was 247-138 in 16 A former Duquesne co-captain in 1962,

Doral Open Begins

MIAMI (AP) - The kids are coming. observes veteran ChiChi Rodriguez, but Jack Nicklaus still ranks as "The Man."

'He is still the man to beat," said the 41-year-old Rodriguez, a great booster of some of the younger players in the game. And, said ChiChi, Nicklaus may be tougher than usual the next couple of years.

"I think Jack is going to make an extra effort to win as much as he can in the next few years," Rodriguez said before today's first round in the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament. It was an obvious reference to Nicklaus' age, 38, and his announced trimmed-down schedule.

"What's he won, 64 tournaments?" ChiChi asked. "Amazing. Really amaz-

Bean is the defending champion here. Pate has played well twice without winning this year. Kratzert lost in a playoff and Crenshaw challenged last week.

Farm Profits Explained

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The United States spends about $180 billion a year on food but farmers get only $56 billion of that, says a Department of Agriculture official.

"People should not have to work that hard and receive so low a return on their investment and la-bor," Barbara Lindemann Schlei, strator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said Wednesday.

Mrs. Schlei, in Kansas City for a series of meetings, said farmers-were caught in a cost price squeeze in which farm operating costs rose about five percent last year while the price of products the farmers sold dropped 1.7 percent.

Mrs. Schlei said a big part of the problem was the farmers' lack of marketing expertise.

"We have too much government regulation. I believe we should not be trying to do things for farmers, but provide them some of the marketing tools so they can do it for themselves ...," she said.

Young Hurls 'Insult' At England

LONDON (UPI) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen flew back from Washington abruptly today in the wake of a reported "insult" from Andrew Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

"I like Andrew... but he does some-times shoot from the hip," Owen said. Owen spent only 11 hours in Washington, 41/2 of them in discussions on Rhodesia with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

He had been expected to go on to New York for the U.N. Security Council debate on Rhodesia, and to try to arrange a meeting between opposing black Rhodesian leaders. Instead he raced back to report to a British cabinet meeting that there was complete accord "at the highest level" between Britain and the United States over what to do next.

But "the highest level" ruled out Young, who accused Britain Wednesday night of a possible "sell-out" in Rhode-

"What are the British going to do run and leave us with 30 years of trouble the way they did in 1948?" Young asked journalists in a reference to the Middle East crisis of that year. Peter Jay, Britain's Washington ambassador, made a midnight protest over Young's remarks. London reports said Young issued an "explanation" but withdrew it because "it added insult to an already unnecessary injury."

"He has made statements like this before," Owen said in a British Broadcasting Corp. interview. "But I'm very glad he withdrew it. "I like Andrew. He has great respect in Africa. But he does sometimes shoot from the hip." Owen said he returned to London "to inform my government" once he, Carter and Vance had "decided on a line of ac-

"Contrary to all these reports," he said, "there is total agreement between President Carter, Secretary of State Vance and myself" on what to do next in Rhodesia. Owen went to Washington to discuss the "internal" settlement Premier Ian Smith signed in Salisbury with three black Rhodesian leaders, providing for a handover to black majority rule by Dec.

The settlement is opposed by the Patriotic Front, which has vowed to continue its guerrilla war against Smith's white regime until a settlement to its liking is Owen said Britain and the United States "are neither opposing nor supporting" the "internal" settlement, but were 'urging all the parties to come together.

"We (the British) are not going to run out on this problem," Owen said. "We have stuck it through since 1965.'

Police Arrest 'Oh, Calcutta' Performers

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) - Nine performers were arrested after Wednesday's night's performance of the play "Oh, Calcutta" at the Municipal Auditorium.

About 30 persons who were gathered outside the stage door occasionally cheered as police led the cast members out and into a waiting police van. About 10 persons who described themselves as "all-Christian" handed out religious literature outside the theater.

Sebastian County Prosecuting Attorney Charles Karr said the nine performers would face misdemeanor obscenity charges. The performers were released on $2,- 500 bond each. They are to be arraigned in Fort Smith Municipal Court March 20. A performance by the group is sched-uled Saturday night at Lubbock's Municipal Auditorium. Before the play had begun, Fort Smith police served the company with a search warrant to allow them to videotape the performance. The warrant was issued by Municipal Judge Lawson Cloninger of Fort Smith on an affidavit signed by Cloninger said in the warrant that there was reason to believe that an obscene performance of a live public show would be performed at the auditorium, and that was reason for the search warrant to be Last week, Fort Smith city directors had decided not to go to court to try to halt the play.

The producer of the play, Dyke Spear of Broadway Productions Inc., had filed suit against city officials, alleging the city had rejected an application to lease the

Before a hearing on the suit the city directors decided there was no legal way to restrict the leasing of the auditorium.

Group To Perform At Trinity Church

A "Festival of Praise" will be presented at Lubbock's Trinity Church, 7002 Canton Ave., at 7:30 p.m. today. Featured will be the touring 50-voice Festival of Praise Choir, directed by Bob

Pickett, and the nationally-known musical group, The Spurrlows. Both units will be backed by a nine-piece concert band. A program of choral and solo music is scheduled, a church spokesman said. The program is divided into six sections: praising God for God, for Jesus Christ, for the Holy Spirit, for the Church, for the Word of God, and for the Second

Snake Handler Walks In Diamondback Sea

SWEETWATER (UPI) - Gaping spectators watching snake handler Bill Ransberger walk ankle deep in a pit with a few thousand slithering rattlesnakes might rank his courage a notch or two above remarkable.

But Ransberger is about as squeamish as the next person whose face turns eggshell white at the first flutter of a Western diamondback's calling card.

"Twenty years ago I was so deathly scared of snakes you wouldn't believe it," he said. "I'm still scared of them."

Ransberger, 52, will spend Friday through Sunday wading among the diamondbacks, milking their venom for scientific research and skinning them for their hides, heads, meat and rattlers at the annual Sweetwater Rattlesnake

He used to run at the sight of a harmless bull snake, but gradually became interested in snakes with his family. Snake snatchers from across the county will scour the cactus-covered hills around this West Texas city this weekend, poking in holes and peering under rocks for the sleepy rattlers awakening from a winter's hibernation.

The roundup is held to trim ranches of their rattlesnake populations to cut livestock losses.

'We just try and thin them out in this area where they've been biting horses and cows," he said. "You'll never be able to get rid of all of them. We're just trying to control the species."

Ransberger said the snake population is booming. A loss in interest among snake hunters in past years created a population of snakes gone unchecked. The bounty was jacked to $2 per pound last year and resulted in the capture of 7,-000 pounds of squirming rattlers. This year hunters collect $2.75 a pound.

"The reason we are doing this is that of the snakes are kind of gaining on us," he said. "In order to get the hunters out after them we have to offer a higher stake." Contestants, armed with burlap sacks and metal grapping poles, chase the slug-gish snakes out of caves and dens with a gasoline solution, then clamp their heads so they can't bite, toss them in a bag and ul them into town. 'They've got to be alive. The snakes got to be in good shape when they're brought in," said Ransberger.

Private Bank Preserves Name

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) - A local bank has no deposit insurance, no federal reserve membership, is not incorporated and is not audited or regulated by the federal government or the State of Texas.

It does not solicit accounts, has few modern conveniences and its senior partner admits it does not have much of a fu-

"Moribund," is the way he described his own institution. He also said it is trusted and respected.

"I guess you could take the money and go gamble it off in Las Vegas and there wouldn't be a law that could touch you," said Dan Oppenheimer, "pushing 70" and the last Oppenheimer who will head the 120-year-old D&A Oppenheimer, Bankers (unincorporated).

Oppenheimer, a 1929 graduate of Yale University, said three generations of his family operated the bank which is still run on the same personal basis that it was at the turn of the century. When he retires - and he has set no date - the bank will be liquidated because he said he would not trust the family name to someone else the private banks are in Texas, operating under a "grandfather clause" in the law which abolished formation of private banks in Texas after 1921.

The 10 private banks remaining in Iowa, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York, however, are regulated under state banking laws and the others in Texas voluntarily publish statements, although Texas law does not require it.

Integrity has been the only limitation on how much money the bank could loan through the years and Oppenheimer said he is proud of the institution's record. He does not remember a single involuntary foreclosure by the bank, although some customers during the Great Depression voluntarily turned in their collateral to the bank because they could not make ends meet.

"If we didn't trust a man, we wouldn't lend him our money," he said. But the bank still is financially sound and has depositors numbering "less than 2,000," most of whom allow the bank's nine employees to handle all their banking transactions and some of whom have more than $1 million in business. Most of the customers are longtime friends and acquaintances of the Oppenheimer fami-

Oppenheimer has sat in the same chair at the same desk since he joined the bank

47 years ago. He makes loan decisions without advice from a loan board or anyone else. He became senior partner when his uncle, Jesse D. Oppenheimer, died at age 94 in 1964 ater working in the bank since 1886

D&A Oppenheimer was founded at Rusk in 1858 by merchants Dan Oppenheimer, the current senior partner's grandfather, and his brother, Anton, German Jewish immigrants. The partnership moved to San Antonio after the brothers returned from the Civil War.

Since then the Oppenheimers continuously have helped finance ranching and other interests in South Texas, all in a very casual manner and mostly on trust between the banker and customer. They have survived panic, collapse of wool and cattle prices and the Great Depression.

"Just day before yesterday I loaned a guy a 100 percent loan to buy a piano because he loved music," Oppenheimer smiled, "and he impressed me as a good citizen-type. I once loaned a man money to buy an organ and its pleasure probably prolonged his life. Besides that, he paid But Oppenheimer said when he retires, there is no other Oppenheimer interested in picking up the mantle of the bank.

"I believe that the private banking system itself is outmoded, moribund, too personalized," he said. "Our loss ratio is very, very embarrassingly small. It has been said if you have no losses, you're not aggressive enough.

Oppenheimer said he had many offers to sell the bank for "a lot of money."

His answer: "You couldn't buy it without buying the name. I would be afraid of the misuse of the freedom of action. I want the name to finish as good as it started.'

Firestone Blocks Survey On Tires

CLEVELAND (AP) - Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has been granted a temporary restraining order to prevent the federal government from releasing a survey on the steel-belted radial tires used on

In asking for the order Monday in U.S. District Court, Firestone charged that the survey taken last year was "illegal, biased and unfair." Firestone's petition said the survey contains misinformation and that the tire company would suffer 'irreparable harm' if it is released. A hearing on a request for a permanent injunction is scheduled March 17.
