Israelis Ignoring U.N. Resolution

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Armor-led Israeli forces, backed by warplanes and naval bombardment, pushed deeper into southern Lebanon today despite a U.N. resolution calling for immediate withdrawal, the Lebanese state radio reported.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command reported its troops swept past the Palestinian guerrilla stronghold of Tyre, the biblical port 12 miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border, and seized control of all southern Lebanon up to the Litani River along a 30-mile front.

The Israeli Cabinet issued a statement saying any settlement of the Lebanese crisis must ensure that guerrillas do not return to the area.

Apparently signaling that Israel had achieved its objectives, Israeli U.N. Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in New York that "to the best of my knowledge there is a cease-fire" in southern Lebanon.

But a Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman here declared the PLO "will never observe a cease-fire." He also denied the entire area south of the Litani had fallen.

"Scores of suicide squads are now counter-attacking the invaders in many embattled locations south of the river," he said.

Voice of Lebanon radio, an anti-Palestinian Christian station, said the entire region south of the Litani was "as good as fallen."

An Arab diplomatic source said an estimated 6,000 fresh guerrilla fighters had been sent south to reinforce their beleaguered comrades.

Reporters en route south along the coastal highway observed four dozen Iraqi and Syrian trucks moving inland toward the embattled area. A Lebanese security officer in Sidon said they were carrying weapons and ammunition for the guerrillas.

The Lebanese government reported 1,168 Lebanese and Palestinian soldiers and civilians had been killed in six days of fighting. The Israeli command reported two more of its soldiers killed, bringing the admitted toll to 20 dead.

The PLO said Saturday 144 of its fighters had been killed and 450 Israelis killed or wounded.

The Israeli advance to points some 15 miles north of the border indicated Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government wants to flush the guerrillas from the entire region south of the river before any withdrawal in favor of a U.N. peacekeeping force.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, acting on resolutions adopted Sunday by the Security Council, began raising a 4,000-man U.N. unit to patrol southern Lebanon.

Begin said Sunday he wanted assurances that guerrillas driven from southern Lebanon by his troops do not return to use the border area as a springboard for terrorist attacks into Israel.

"That must not happen," Begin said as he arrived in New York to confer with President Carter in Washington.

Israeli tanks and troops seized the guerrilla stronghold of Tibnine Sunday, in the central sector eight miles from the border, then moved on north.

The Israeli command said today its positions dominated the slopes of the Litani along a 30-mile front from the coast eastward. The Israelis reported no heavy fighting, but the Palestinians claimed they were inflicting "heavy casualties."

A Palestinian spokesman claimed the Israelis made several helicopter raids on guerrilla positions just north of the river. Beirut radio and the PLO said waves of Israeli jets roared across the border before daybreak to join navy missile boats in pounding guerrilla fallback positions and supply routes.

The Security Council adopted a U.S. resolution calling on Israel to withdraw its troops "forthwith" from Lebanon. See U.N. COUNCIL Page 14

Begin Talks To Kissinger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin today met with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger before leaving for Washington to resume summit talks with President Carter on the latest obstacles to peace in the Middle East.

"I see my picture is back on the front page again," Kissinger quipped as he greeted Begin during a brief picture-taking session outside the Prime Minister's suite at the Waldorf Towers. "I'll see you again on Thursday."

Begin was expected to confer with Kissinger on various aspects of the Middle East situation. Neither man was expected to discuss their meeting.

Begin hopes his talks with President Carter that start Tuesday will result in agreement on ways to halt further Palestinian guerrilla actions against Israel from southern Lebanon.

Begin, who travels to Washington today, said Sunday that Israel has no intention of removing its troops from occupied areas of Lebanon until Israeli security is assured.

The prime minister originally was scheduled to meet with Carter last week to discuss Middle East peace moves, but put off the visit after a Palestinian commando squad killed 34 persons in a terrorist raid near Tel Aviv.

Since then, Israeli forces have swept into southern Lebanon in retaliation and now occupy more than a tenth of Lebanon.

At an airport news conference on his arrival in New York Sunday, Begin defended Israel's invasion of Lebanon as "its inherent right of self-defense."

He said the purpose of the Israeli invasion was "to eradicate" bases from which terrorists "lame and again attacked Israel and her citizens."

Begin mentioned only briefly a U.N. Security Council resolution adopted Sunday demanding the immediate withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon. The U.S.-sponsored resolution authorized a 4,000-man U.N. peacekeeping force to be sent to southern Lebanon.

"I understand the Security Council today adopted a resolution," Begin said. "But to us, the main issue is — and we are going to discuss this in Washington as well — how to prevent those bands which were driven out of southern Lebanon from coming back to those bases so they can't attack Israel and her citizens."

"That must not happen again," he said. Begin said his U.S. originally trip was planned "to renew the support which was given to Israel's (Middle East) peace plan both by the government, Congress and public opinion in this country."

But the March 11 terrorist raid by Lebanese-based Palestinian guerrillas changed the situation. "Events took place which called for most serious consideration," he said. "There was a premeditated, deliberate attack on Israeli civilians — men, women and children — from the territory of Lebanon."

He said the Lebanese invasion "was not an act of so-called retribution or retaliation ... but it was an act of self-defense because those bands not only carried out that attack but also promised to continue with such attacks in the future."

Spring Set To Make Appearance

A-J News Services
The 1977-78 winter offered no respite during its last hours on the Texas balm season officially begins at 5:34 p.m. today, taking over from a winter that had plagued South Plains dwellers with record-breaking low temperatures and up to 9 inches of snow accumulation. Today's and Tuesday's highest readings were expected to be in the 70s, and overnight lows in the 40s also are expected to repeat. Today got off to an appropriately springlike start with a 45-degree early morning low after Sunday's top mark of 73.

The experts offered some hope for rainfall later in the week — along with continued mild temperatures in the 70s and 80s.

The South Plains generally conformed to the overall Texas weather picture for the weekend and forecasts varied little from the state outlook. The differences were mostly matters of degree rather than form.

A weak cool front left the state's lowest morning reading today north of a line from near Wichita Falls to the Lubbock area and Roswell, N.M., but most of the state reported temperatures in the 50s and 60s.

Possible rain showers and thunderstorms spawned by the front were expected to hit parts of North Texas today.

The turn to spring was more recalcitrant in parts of the United States. Snow flurries were reported in New England, the Dakotas and Minnesota. Gusty winds chilled northern New England, but the light snow there was expected to end today.

Warmer conditions in Midwestern and Plains states began to thaw streams and rivers, causing lowland flooding.

In contrast, the National Weather Service issued a statement citing a "critical grass fire danger in North Texas" through late Sunday due to dry conditions there. Little rain was reported in the Lone Star State, but light rain was noted in some areas of Lubbock Sunday.

Judge Names CASS 'Friend Of Court'

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal
U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward today made the Citizens' Alliance for Successful Schools (CASS) a "friend of the court" in Lubbock's school desegregation case.

But in granting the group's request for such status, Woodward stressed he will not necessarily follow CASS' suggestions for handling the case.

Those suggestions, filed today, ask Woodward to secure testimony from independent experts before he rules on the Lubbock Independent School District's proposed desegregation plan. The alliance hopes such testimony will discredit the plan.

Unless criticism of the plan is read into the official record of the case, CASS fears, there will be little hope of changing the school board's integration proposal even if the U.S. Justice Department appeals the case to a higher court.

"All we're asking for here is for the court to fully develop the facts," attorney Dr. Robert Davidow, Texas Tech University law professor who prepared and filed the CASS documents, told the alliance last week.

He emphasized that CASS is not becoming a "party plaintiff" in the case. And, Davidow said, the brief filed today does not necessarily denote opposition to the district's plan — but only a request that more information be sought.

"Right now, nothing in the record says this program (the district's integration proposal) won't work," Davidow said.

He said that when the school board last week presented the plan to Woodward and called its own witnesses to explain it, some "questionable" aspects of the proposal were not addressed.

Davidow said he talked last week with Steve Clark, counsel for the Justice Department. "The Justice Department does not — I repeat, does not — plan to call any witnesses with regard to the soundness or educational feasibility of the plan," Davidow said.

That's significant, the attorney added, because "if the case is appealed for any reason, the appeals court will be limited to the record. If it's not in the record, the appeals court can't say anything about it."

Woodward has set an April 1 deadline for the school board to present more details and the Justice Department to file possible objections to the integration proposal. The department has indicated it may oppose the district's interpretation of certain points of law — such as the exemption of grades kindergarten through two from integration — but not the basic plan.

The department also has indicated it may appeal Woodward's Jan. 27 finding that only nine schools — Dunbar High, Struggs Junior High and Iles, Wheatley, Posey, Martin, Guadalupe, Sanders and Mahon elementaries — are "constitutional violations" here.

The department contends segregation here has been "systemwide." And, like CASS, the department wants a systemwide remedy. In contrast, the school board's plan would leave many schools, including 11 elementaries, predominantly minority.

Friday, on behalf of CASS, Davidow filed with Woodward a motion seeking for the alliance "friend of the court" status — a prerequisite to filing a brief regarding the case.

Woodward today approved CASS' application for the special designation but said his "order shall not be construed as granting the requests and relief prayed for" by the alliance.

The "requests and relief" are contained in a CASS brief Davidow filed today.

"The feasibility of some major aspects of the school board's proposed plan is questionable," the brief says.

"CASS believes that several aspects of the school board's plan are of doubtful feasibility. These include the 'magnet'

County Acquires Site For Youth Facility

A nine-acre tract on the city's north side was purchased by the Lubbock County Commissioners Court today as the site for the county's proposed juvenile detention center.

Commissioners voted unanimously to pay businessman Robert R. Gunn, formerly of Lubbock and now living in Dallas, $119,000 for the land, located inside Loop 289 between University and Akron avenues.

"It is the opinion of the commissioners court, the Lubbock County Juvenile Board and our consultants that this site is ideally located to be easily accessible to the outlying counties, the youth on probation, as well as to the citizens of Lubbock who will be using the services of this new center," County Judge Rod Shaw said at a press conference following the court's action.

"Our next step will be to complete the design of the new facility," Shaw said. "We expect a $40,000 grant for this purpose will be received in April and that the design will be completed by August. Construction, which we estimate to be approximately $1 million, should begin later this year and it should be open in late 1979," he said.

Shaw said the northside tract was selected from 62 proposed sites for the juvenile center, which Lubbock County will operate and surrounding counties will use on a contract basis.

The regional facility, the first of its kind in Texas, will have accommodations for 36 youngsters. It will be designed for long- and short-term detention of "non-status offenders," youths involved in serious crimes or delinquent acts.

Funding of the center's operation will be shared between Lubbock and the

Taxman Cometh Not For Him

DENVER (UPI) — With help from the U.S. Constitution, former Minnesota attorney William E. Drexler hasn't paid taxes since 1968. And he says anyone can do it.

Drexler was tried in federal court for not filing returns from 1968 through 1970, but was acquitted by a jury which apparently agreed with his contention the Internal Revenue Service has no right to collect taxes.

The legal profession disapproved of his tax protest activities and subsequently disbarred him, but Drexler hasn't paid a cent in taxes in more than 10 years.

He said the 16th Amendment gave Congress the right to collect income taxes, but that right cannot be transferred to the IRS. He files an income tax return each year, but fills in all the blanks with the Fifth Amendment.

Each year, Drexler said 20 million Americans either fail to file, refuse to file or file a protest return. He said only a few get prison terms because of their resistance, but thorough knowledge of the laws involved can prevent prosecution.

"We've got it to the point where it's 100 percent safe for everybody," he said. "People who know their rights completely usually don't have any trouble."

In Denver for an Americans for Constitutional Taxation meeting, Drexler, 46, cited numerous moral and political objections to the IRS in addition to his constitutional objections.

"Our country got along for 142 years, became the richest and most powerful country in the world, without an income tax," he said. He said the average taxpayer now works 5 1/2 months of the year to pay taxes.

He said the government spends the money to assassinate foreign leaders, study the mating calls of frogs, determine why children fall off tricycles, pay for abortions and a host of other endeavors citizens cannot control.

"What's worse, the only person paying his tax is the little guy, the small businessman, the hard-working employee," he said, noting the tax shelters available to the wealthy.

New Federal Law Places Restrictions On Bill Collecting Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill collectors may no longer make harassing late-night phone calls, threaten violence or impersonate police officers, under a federal law taking effect today.

The law covers personal and family debts, including car purchases, charge accounts and loans for medical care.

Passed by Congress and signed by President Carter last year, it also gives consumers the right to a written notice within five days of being contacted by a debt collector.

That notice must state how much is owed and to whom plus give instructions on what the consumer can do if he believes he doesn't owe the money.

The law's enactment followed hearings conducted by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., that produced testimony about abusive practices used in the $3-billion-a-year debt collection industry.

"We found out about much abusive language used by debt collectors, phony documents mailed to consumers, many unwanted phone calls. One crippled woman had a debt collector who threatened to steal her crutches," Annunzio said in an interview.

"This is not a law that will protect the deadbeat. Most consumers are decent, honest people who want to pay their debts. But sometimes people are caught in a long illness or have a sickness in the family or for some other reason need more time to pay a debt," he said.

The law, which marks the first federal regulation of debt collectors, applies to agencies hired to recover another company's overdue debt. It does not apply to creditors collecting on their own, because Congress felt that abuses are less frequent among firms that have a stake in keeping customers' good will.

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act does nothing to change the consumer's obligation to pay his debts. But it bans these bill-collection practices:

— Harassment by threatening violence, calling between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m., publishing lists of purported "deadbeats," using obscene language, repeatedly calling about a debt or calling at work if an employer disapproves.

— Making false statements when collecting a debt, such as falsely implying that the debt collector represents a government agency or is an attorney.

— Using unfair methods in trying to collect a debt, including asking for more money than is owed, calling a consumer collect or depositing a postdated check before the date on the check.

He said ethical debt collection companies will have no problem in complying with the law. "This law is aimed at the dishonest debt collector. The companies that operate ethically will not have to change anything," he said.

The Federal Trade Commission is the main enforcer of the law. Consumers who believe their rights have been violated can also contact their state attorney general's office or local consumer protection agencies. Private lawsuits can also be brought against a debt collector who violates the law.

Singer Says Career Declining
 DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Claiming homosexualists have secured a victory, singer Anita Bryant says her show business career is apparently over.

Miss Bryant, a former Miss Oklahoma and first runner-up in the 1959 Miss America beauty pageant, appeared Sunday in this central Illinois city of 90,000 as part of the national "Revival Fires Crusade," an evangelical group organized by the Rev. Cecil Todd of Joplin, Mo.

She blamed her sagging concert schedule on an unfair national press coupled with what she called a conspiracy by gay activists to torpedo her singing career.

"I believe in human rights," Miss Bryant said in a news conference prior to her appearance at a local high school gymnasium. "But I don't believe in special rights for radical groups that would take away the constitutional rights of others."

About 4,000 people attended Sunday's performance.

Carter, HHH Quotes In Book
 LONDON (AP) — Now it's the sayings of Jimmy and Hubert.

President Carter and the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey join the ranks of Plato, Voltaire and 2,000 other thinkers in a new book of quotations about freedom.

"Bachman's Book of Freedom Quotations," to be published today by Bachman and Turner, is a collection of sayings spanning the past 20 centuries.

It is edited by Michael Ivens and Reginald Dunstan, leaders of the right-wing British organization "Aims of Freedom and Enterprise," who contacted Carter and Humphrey for contributions.

Carter selected lines from his inaugural speech of Jan. 20, 1977, including: "Because we are free we can never be indifferent to the fate of freedom elsewhere."

Humphrey chose this thought: "We cannot seek democracy and social justice at home and abandon these principles abroad."

Colson Critical Of Book
 SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Charles Colson, who became a born-again Christian after taking part in the Watergate scandal, has lashed out from the pulpit at H.R. Haldeman's book, calling it erroneous throughout and a disservice to the public.

On Sunday, he delivered a sermon at the First Baptist Church here, then added his critique of Haldeman's "The Ends of Power."

Colson told churchgoers he had found at least 25 major factual errors in Haldeman's book.

Byrd Says No Deals Made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd says he believes senators "would spit in your face" if offered something in exchange for their votes.

The West Virginia Democrat made the assertion Sunday when asked whether he felt the Carter administration won Sen. Herman Talmadge's vote in favor of the first of two Panama Canal treaties by remaining neutral on Talmadge's pending farm bill, which it initially opposed.

Byrd conceded he has heard speculation that the lobbying preceding last Thursday's vote on the neutrality treaty was characterized by deal-making and vote-trading. The pact was ratified 68-32, only one vote to spare.

No Tenants For Lighthouse
 LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (AP) — Car Haffenreffer is having little luck leasing some prime ocean-view property for $1 a year. The deal has some catches.

Haffenreffer's property is the Sakonnet Point Lighthouse, a 94-year-old tower sitting on a rock in often-turbulent waters at the mouth of the Sakonnet River.

The lessee would be responsible for both liability and upkeep, and Haffenreffer says it's a never-ending battle to protect the metal housing of the lighthouse from rust.

He said he's had the lighthouse painted twice since he bought it in 1961 and that the total cost was more than $5,000.

The other problem is the tower's location. Even a boat trip to the lighthouse is an adventure, according to Haffenreffer, who says "you are taking your life in your hands" if you try to reach it in rough seas.

The $1-a-year offer still stands.

Matthew 13:29-46, The Living Bible

29 "No," he replied. "You'll hurt the wheat if you do."
 30 Let both grow together until the harvest, and I will tell the reapers to sort out the tithes and burn them, and put the wheat in the barn."
 31,32 Here is another of His illustrations: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a tiny mustard seed planted in a field. It is the smallest of all seeds, but becomes the largest of plants, and grows into a tree where birds can come and find shelter."
 33 He also used this example: "The Kingdom of Heaven can be compared to a woman making bread. She takes a measure of flour and mixes in the yeast until it permeates every part of the dough."
 34,35 Jesus constantly used these illustrations when speaking to the crowds. In fact, because the prophets said that He would use so many, He never spoke to them without at least one illustration. For it had been prophesied, "I will talk in parables; I will explain mysteries hidden since the beginning of time."
 36 Then, leaving the crowds outside, He went into the house. His disciples asked Him to explain to them the illustration of the tithes and the wheat.
 37 "All right," He said, "I am the farmer who sows the choice seed."
 38 The field is the world, and the seed represents the people of the Kingdom; the tithes are the people belonging to Satan.
 39 The enemy who sowed the tithes among the wheat is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels.
 40 Just as in this story the tithes are separated and burned, so shall it be at the end of the world:
 41 I will send My angels and they will separate out of the Kingdom every temptation and all who are evil, 42 And throw them into the furnace and burn them. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
 43 Then the godly shall shine as the sun in their Father's Kingdom. Let those with ears, listen!
 44 The Kingdom of Heaven is like a treasure a man discovered in a field. In his excitement, he sold everything he owned to get enough money to buy the field—and get the treasure, too!
 45 Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is like a pearl merchant on the lookout for choice pearls.
 46 He discovered a real bargain—a pearl of great value—and sold everything he owned to purchase it!

Pollution Control Costs Listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local, state and federal governments spent nearly $18.2 billion in fiscal 1976 for pollution controls, the Bureau of Census reported Sunday.

The bureau said the total represented an increase of $1.3 billion over the previous year.

According to the study, the expenditures included $7 billion for water, $2.5 billion for "land quality control," $376 million for air, and $281 million for other forms of pollution such as noise.

Land quality control consists largely of solid waste disposal.

The federal government's share of the total $18.2 billion was $3.7 billion, three-fourths of which was given to state and local governments as grants in aid. State government expenditures totaled $1.3 billion.

French Voters Reject Power Bid By Leftists

PARIS (AP) — French voters decisively rejected the leftist bid for power in the National Assembly runoff elections Sunday and gave President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's center-right coalition a majority of at least 85 seats in the National Assembly.

With only four overseas races unreported, the pro-government coalition had won 288 seats to 199 for the leftists in the 491-seat National Assembly.

The government's total was only 10 less than in the last assembly. And Robert Fabre, whose tiny Leftist Radical Movement won 10 seats, said he no longer felt bound by the leftist pact of alliance, an indication that he might add his votes to Giscard's majority.

The election result was a clear rejection of the alliance of Socialists and Communists which pledged to make sweeping changes in French society, including more nationalization of business, greater social benefits for workers and higher taxes for the rich.

The vote belied pre-electoral opinion polls that for six months had consistently predicted a leftist victory. But the polls had already been discredited in the first round of voting March 12, when the left fell short of the majority it needed to insure victory in the runoffs.

The election result meant France could expect another five years of the government-directed capitalism and bullish foreign policy it has had since Charles de Gaulle returned to power in 1958.

There were fears, however, that the leftist defeat would prompt Communist and Socialist labor unions to wage a militant campaign for the wage raises and increased vacations the leftists promised during the campaign.

"This is a personal victory for the president," said a spokesman for Giscard d'Estaing. "The people of France have heard the president's call for the right choice."

Since Giscard's term has three more years to run, a leftist victory would have resulted in a Socialist-Communist cabinet and a centrist president almost certain to oppose the cabinet's chief policies. The result would probably have been a constitutional crisis that could have wrecked the Fifth Republic.

The outcome of the election was also a great relief to the U.S. government, which is strongly opposed to the presence of communists in the governments of its allies.

Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand, who would have been premier if the left had won, blamed the defeat on the Communists. He said their attempt to make the Socialists agree to a more sweeping nationalization program turned away potential supporters.

"History will judge, as it should, those who took the responsibility, without hesitation, of joining the right in their violent, incessant attacks against the Socialist Party," Mitterrand said in a clear allusion to Communist Party leader Georges Marchais.

Marchais, whom many observers think wanted the left to lose because the Communists would have been the junior partner, conceded that "the majority will remain in power; that is a fact." But he added: "It is a shrunken majority that is weakening."

Heeding Giscard d'Estaing's warning that France's economic future was at stake, Frenchmen streamed through polling places all day Sunday for a record 85 percent turnout of the 30 million eligible voters. In the first round of voting the week before, the turnout was 62.78 percent.

Of the government coalition's 288 seats, Jacques Chirac's Gaullist Rally for the Republic won 145, Giscard's Union for French Democracy got 137 and the Independents won six. The leftists elected 193 Socialists, 86 Communists, 30 Leftist Radicals and one extreme leftist.

Giscard and Premier Raymond Barre warned throughout the long campaign that leftist promises to hike the minimum monthly wage by 37 percent to $600 and those to increase welfare payments would ruin the French economy. But analysts said a key factor in the vote seemed to have been fears of seeing Communists in the government.

The popular vote was closer than the division of National Assembly seats indicated. Because of gerrymandering to make a leftist victory more difficult, many conservative rural districts have fewer voters than those in urban centers.

With most votes tabulated, the government candidates polled 50.6 percent of the vote while the leftists had 49.4 percent.

Lagging Mideast Talks Raise Questions

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — After four months, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's groundbreaking visit to Jerusalem has yet to lead the Mideast to the edge of peace. But predictions of disaster in the absence of a prompt settlement have not been borne out either.

As President Carter prepared for Tuesday's meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, an appraisal of the Egyptian peace with Israel.

Q. Is he getting help from Carter?

A. Quite a bit. Carter calls him the world's foremost peacemaker. The American president agrees with Egypt that the settlements are illegal. He supports a Palestinian "homeland" on land now held by Israel. And Carter is the first president to propose selling jet fighters to Egypt — 50 F-5E Tigers.

Q. What does Begin want?

A. Peace with Egypt, thereby taking the largest Arab state out of the Mideast conflict. Retention of about 1 per cent of the Sinai to serve as a security buffer along strategic points in the old border. Recognition of the right of Jews to live on the west bank of the Jordan river, which was part of Biblical Israel.

Q. Is he getting help from Carter?

A. Yes and no. The president is pledged to Israel's security and wants the Arabs to grant Israel peace and full recognition. But Carter also is pressing Israel to withdraw on all fronts and has halved Israel's military aid request while approving jet sales to Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Q. What is the U.S. stake in keeping Egypt and Israel on the negotiating track?

A. Promoting Mideast stability and keeping oil flowing westward from the Saudi and Persian Gulf states. A breakdown, on the other hand, would wipe out what veteran American diplomats say is the best hope for peace in the region in the 30 years of Israel's troubled existence.

Q. Had there been much progress before the direct talks between Egypt and Israel were interrupted in mid-January?

A. Yes. A good portion of a declaration of principles to guide a negotiated settlement had been worked out partly through Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's mediation in Jerusalem. He and the rest of the U.S. delegation were disappointed when Sadat abruptly suspended the talks.

Q. Has there been any progress since?

A. A little, according to the United States, which sent a special American mediator, Alfred L. Atherton Jr., to the Mideast to keep plugging away on the declaration. Atherton made side trips to Jordan and Saudi Arabia, seeking continued support from these "moderate" Arab kingdoms for a peace settlement.

Q. What about Syria and the other Arab countries?

A. Syria and most of the others condemned Sadat for going to Jerusalem and offering to negotiate peace with Israel. Some suggested he was doomed to fail and there were thinly veiled calls for his overthrow.

Q. Does Sadat remain in control of Egypt?

A. By all reports he is firmly in charge of the government and the military. The Egyptian people supported his drive for peace after four devastating wars and apparently are still behind him.

Q. Where do the Palestinians fit in?

A. Sadat is insisting that the declaration of principles recognize their right to have a say in determining their future. But the Palestine Liberation Organization, once crowned the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people, has lost ground. The United States, Egypt and Israel all agree the PLO has no role to play in the negotiations right now.

Q. What impact will Palestinian terrorism and Israel's incursion into Lebanon have on the chances for a settlement?

A. There is little doubt the PLO meant to undercut Sadat's initiative and to implicitly warn him, Israel and the United States that it does not intend to be left out of the picture. Begin, meanwhile, has said the terrorist attack will strengthen his government's resolve not to permit establishment of a Palestinian state.

Beyond that, the new cycle of violence complicates Carter's already difficult agenda for his meeting with Begin. He can be expected to follow up the U.S. public insistence on Israeli withdrawal while exploring with the prime minister the stationing of a U.N. contingent in southern Lebanon.

Analysis

Lagging negotiations and future prospects raised these questions and possible answers:

Q. Why did the direct Egyptian-Israeli peace talks break down?

A. There are two main reasons. Sadat's initiative did not produce the kind of Israeli concessions he expected. The atmosphere became clouded by vituperative exchanges between the two sides.

Q. What does Sadat want?

A. Return of the entire Sinai, dismantling of the Israeli settlements and air bases in the captured territory and the promise of an Israeli withdrawal on the Jordanian and Syrian fronts. He feels he needs that promise to show he is not selling out the other Arabs for a separate

Mexicans Evacuated By Officials

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — About 4,000 persons were forcibly removed from their homes Sunday as local authorities continued the evacuation of residents from an endangered flood area.

Officials said more than 25,000 persons had refused to abandon their homes but would be removed by local police and Mexican Army troops by next Friday. The evacuation of 18 small communities that have grown up on the flood plain of the Tia Juana River began a week ago.

The flood gates of the Rodriguez Dam will have to be opened if rain arrives Sunday night or Monday as expected, officials said. The flow would wash away many of the ramshackle huts.

"We are working against the clock," Enrique Luna, chief of public works for the state of Baja California, said.

The $30 million emergency program is designed, however, to resettle about 40,000 families over a 10-year period.

Many of the squatters said they were not given time to gather up their household goods before bulldozers flattened their small homes.

Luna said the capacity of the reservoir was 137 million cubic meters and it was at 97 million cubic meters and filling with runoff from a series of devastating storms that struck northern Mexico and Southern California in February and early-March.

"There's no danger at the moment," Luna said, "but a heavy rain would force us to open the flood gates and there may not be time to evacuate those people again."

Tijuana Mayor Xicotencatl Mortera said the city was in a state of economic crisis. More than 10,000 residents were made homeless by the earlier storms and three times in three months people have had to flee from floods and mudslides.

Consuelo Keros, 40, a widow and the mother of five children, said the rain has flowed many times down the streets and trickled into her house. "But last week it was running in the windows," she said. "We had to move."

She had lived in one of the communities for 19 years. "We are waiting for the government to make good on its promise to put us on land they say we will be settled on."

"We have been in this tent for eight days."

At Otai Mesa, a long, flat plain near the U.S.-Mexican border, a row of blue and brown tents stretched for more than a mile, housing an estimated 4,000 refugees.

Mrs. Keros said food, clothing and medicine have been distributed by the government. "But some days food has been very short. There's macaroni and soup for dinner and for breakfast, milk and bread. No meat at all."

She said her dream was to get into the United States. "Here, that is everyone's dream."

There was no panic in the tent city Sunday, but some uncertainty.

"I don't think the government's plan to resettle us is such a good idea," Herald Garcia, 40, said. He had lived in one of the communities for 20 years.

He said that at the beginning of the evacuations many people were cheated out of money by persons representing themselves as government officials.

"Then they couldn't pay rent in government housing. I hope that doesn't happen again," he said.

Klan Leader Pleased With Trip

LONDON (UPI) — Despite his troubles with British law, Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke is calling his trip a success and believes there soon may be more Klansmen in some parts of the United Kingdom than there are in some parts of the United States.

Duke, of Metairie, La., Sunday continued his well-publicized recruiting tour of the country despite a deportation order.

"Things have been going very well," he said. "I think Birmingham, England, may end up having more members than Birmingham, Alabama. And Liverpool's really hopping."

Duke said he had talked with more than 1,200 people since he entered the country two weeks ago.

Immigration authorities banned Duke's entry into the country but he managed to pass through an immigration checkpoint.

Police eventually found Duke and served him with a deportation order, which he said he will appeal in court this week.

Another Klan leader, Bill Wilkinson, of Denham Springs, La., was detained Sunday for defying an entry ban and slipping into Britain last week. No charges were filed, but Home Office officials in London said he would be "examined" before a decision was made on what action to take against him.

Special Branch detectives detained Wilkinson in Leeds, where he said he met with residents interested in joining the KKK.

The detectives stepped up their hunt for Wilkinson after a Sunday newspaper, The News of the World, ran pictures of him and six masked followers in front of a flaming cross at a ceremony near the Kent village of Harvel.

Wilkinson told the newspaper he entered Britain illegally on a private boat from France because he knew immigration officials would be watching the borders.

Disguised Policemen Fight Street Crime

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — See that nun? She may be a cop.

Providence police are using unusual modes of dress and transportation in a crackdown on street crime, Chief Angelo Ricci said in an interview broadcast Sunday.

"We have men out there in vans, taxicabs, on bicycles, even dressed as priests and nuns."

"You have to play their game to catch them," he said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Coal Eggs Not Hatched

CONTRARY TO popular impression that the increasingly bitter coal strike poses only short-term difficulties which eventually will be resolved, the fact is the intractable situation is symptomatic of a long-term dilemma that could haunt the nation well into the 1980s.

President Carter's energy plan, unveiled last spring, principally is designed to eliminate or sharply reduce this country's dependence on imported foreign oil by 1985.

BUT THE likelihood that Carter will fail to achieve that goal is clearly outlined in a study commissioned by the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Carter's energy program would increase coal production in Appalachia from 396 million tons in 1975 to 627 million tons in 1985, but the mines in that region have been plagued in recent years by increasingly frequent wildcat strikes.

The miners are heavily concentrated in two age groupings—under 32 and over 45. The younger group has the proclivity for wildcat strikes and efforts to increase production would only expand the number of miners in that age category.

THE ERDA-sponsored study offers this dire prediction: There will be "little or no net increase in the (central Appalachian) region coal production" until the mid-1980s—precisely the time when Carter expects a production increase of almost 60 per cent.

The situation will improve then, the study adds, only if the work force becomes more mature and a new, strong and charismatic leader, in the mold of the late John L. Lewis, emerges to head the miner's union.

The analysis is no more sanguine about the West, where Carter is expecting a huge four-fold increase in coal production, from 101 million tons in 1975 to 417 million tons in 1985.

THROUGHOUT THE Rockies—and in the East and Midwest as well—the social and economic dislocation produced when isolated rural communities are turned into energy "boom towns" threatens to seriously impede Carter's fast-paced timetable.

The study's somber conclusion: Until and unless the wide range of problems is resolved, the federal government will be making a serious mistake if it "abruptly increases demand or expectations for coal."

The Shape Of Things To Come?

James J. Kilpatrick:

Mr. Spelvin Goes To Sicily

TAORMINA, SICILY—Mr. J. Toliver Spelvin, one of the lesser pillars of Rappahannock County, Va., turned up recently in Sicily. He has been touring Europe, and he has come to certain political conclusions.

He has concluded, for example, that the Italians will survive and the French won't. Jaytee, as he is universally known, delivered himself of this opinion one day last week. I found my friend sitting in the sunshine of a sidewalk cafe, watching the girls go by.

He had then been a week in France and a week in Italy, which qualified him as an expert, and he was asking to unload his observations. I ordered a cup of coffee.

"THE WONDERFUL thing about the Italians," said Jaytee, "is that they don't take themselves too darned seriously. They haven't had a government for two months, and everything is falling right along."

"They're providing an example for the whole of the Western world, and I wish Congress and Carter would take it to heart. Do like the Italians do!"

"That Carter go up to Camp David. Send the Communists home, and we might be surprised at how well the country would make out."

"The French, on the other hand, have got themselves tied into knots over the Socialists and the Communists. They're determined to have a government, probably a worse government than they've ever had, and they'll deserve it."

"The French Communists are Communists first and Frenchmen second, while here in Italy it's the other way around. Vive La France," said Jay-tee, "in a pig's eye." I asked him why he was so down on the French, and he said it was mainly the way they treated strangers. That, and their language. It appeared that he had lost his way in Paris.

"SO I POKED my head in this little bistro, and I says to the bartender, 'oooh el la Eyeful Tower?' He looked at me like I was crazy. A few other guys in the bar started snickering, but it wasn't all that funny."

"The only way you can talk to the French is through your nose, preferably looking down it."

"They got an i-n, and an e-n, and an o-n, and one of them sounds like the horn on a Model T, one of them sounds like you stepped on the cat, and the third one is closer to a whinny, and if you don't get 'em straight, the Lord help you because the French won't."

"The Italians are just the opposite. We were driving down to Catania the other day and the missus wanted a Coca-Cola to go. We stopped at a place."

"I looked up the verb in my pocket Berlitz, and asked the feller for a Coke 'andare.' That's to go. He didn't quite get it, so I looked up the words for paper cup and said I wanted the Coke in oona tazza di carta."

"WELL, WE WERE working on the problem together. Three or four other fellers come up to me."

One sure sign of spring is when you can feel the warmth of the IRS breathing down your neck.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Strike Force

ON THE SAME day that the U.S. Senate ratified the first of two treaties giving away the Panama Canal, striking farmers forced their way into the Department of Agriculture building, injuring two security guards, and took control overnight. Well, at least we know who to send in to retake control of the canal if Panama ever tries to keep us out.

Kent Hance didn't take Morris Sheats' debate bait. At least, that shows he has more political savvy than Gerald Ford had in dealing with Jimmy Carter.

While Hance and Sheats are fighting it out for the Democratic nomination, the Republican race for the 19th District Congressional race also is heating up.

Right now, it appears that the badly split Republicans will divide along Ford-Ronald Reagan lines. The Ford supporters are gravitating to George Bush Jr. of Midland, the Reaganites to Jim Reese of Odessa and Joe Hickox of Lubbock.

Headline: "Gray Wolves No Longer Endangered." The Sweet Young Thing Downstairs says they are if they try anything with her.

"THE CITY OF Luckenbach," says a tongue-in-cheek news release, "announced its intention to annex Houston."

"We just can't cut it in Luckenbach no more with only three people paying taxes," a fictitious city official was quoted. "We need a new water pump and a washer for the spigot and the money has to come from somewhere." Farther down, the story said that when Luckenbach beer gets into production the profits will be used "to put in direct bus service" between downtown Luckenbach and its newly annexed Houston suburb. "The first pickup bus has been ordered," the official said, "(but) the order is on hold, pending receipt of down payment."

Today's May Bouquet: To city traffic engineers who, it is reliably reported, have at long last altered the timing cycle on the signal at 34th St. and Ave. L so that the traffic moves smoother and with less delay.

It was Gerry Burton who asked, "Did you ever notice how, when people are really thinking, they look so stupid?"

Texas led the nation with a gain of 234,200 manufacturing jobs between 1966 and 1976, according to the National Right to Work Committee.

The 20 states banning compulsory unionism gain 928,200 manufacturing jobs during the decade, it added, while net losses were posted by 19 of the 30 non-right-to-work law states.

Love is having a fleeting thought of thankfulness when his or her car turns safely into the driveway after a 10-minute shopping trip.

I think it's great that Rep. Jack Hightower has proposed naming the federal building here for Rep. George Mahon, but it'd be even better to name a crosstown expressway for the soon-to-retire congressman. We already have a federal building.

The left-leaning American Civil Liberties Union objects to a Taft-Hartley injunction ordering coal miners back to work during an 80-day cooling off period because, it says, "to strike is free speech."

It's not free when the miners' mouths are full of food taxpayers supplied them through food stamps.

Congress is considering a bill to allow each of us to brew up to 100 gallons of beer or wine at home each year, tax free.

That's about how much it'll take to drown our worries over everything that IS taxed.

EVEN THE Environmental Protection Agency gets off on the right track every now and then.

The EPA has proposed regulations to muffle the roar of motorcycles.

"Just about every survey of local communities puts motorcycle noise near the top of the list as a source of annoyance," EPA assistant administrator David Hawkins told newsmen.

Manufacturers of new motorcycles would be required to produce mufflers that would keep noise within new decibel limits. There'd still be a problem with owners removing the mufflers.

That would call for strict enforcement of muffler laws by local police—something Lubbock police periodically "forget" to enforce.

Some motorcycle riders have no respect for the rights of others. Unless they muffle down, they should be fined—and fined heavily.

Holmes Alexander:

There Is No Magic Legislation

WASHINGTON—The Senate subcommittee dolorously titled "Employment, Poverty and Migratory Labor" continues hearings and we'll be a fortunate country if the whole matter comes to naught.

For that matter is the remnants of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill which since 1977 has been boyishly called "full employment and balanced growth," or in classical language "If wishes were horses, beggars would ride."

Everybody wishes that there were easy jobs for all, and that our economy would turn big and strong without risking that malignant disease which economists call inflation. But private enterprise is one long struggle—with rewards of personal freedom that we have grown up to believe makes it all worthwhile.

SEN. HUMPHREY DIED bravely but with impossible promises on his lips. He may have been optimistic enough to believe that wishfulness conquers all.

In justice to this much-loved senator, it ought to be said that he was not the first to declare that plentiful jobs at negligible strain on a free society could be had by proclamation—or what is called government policy.

In 1946, President Truman was new and idealistic at the task. He made up his mind that this was going to be a postwar period very unlike the one he remembered from World War I, when the doughboys came home to depression and unemployment.

IT WAS TRUMAN'S leadership that gave us the Employment Act of 1946, which proclaimed—and this was to be national policy everafter—that the government would fix it so there would be "useful employment opportunities for all persons able, willing and seeking to work." That was more than 30 years ago.

In the 1970s, our men and women of government are still looking for ways to guarantee jobs for all, to maximize profit-making, high wage employment, and to organize last-resort jobs of government make-work. The Humphrey-Hawkins bill is only the last of a long line.

It has its proponents in the Black Caucus, labor unions, farm groups and women leaders who are sure that the last walls of discrimination soon will fall.

In the White House sits Carter, seemingly a soft touch after all his campaign vows.

But there have been subcommittee hearings in both houses, and the bill has been compromised rather than added to the leaping inflation and the entangling red tape of government regulation.

But under whatever name, and diluted by whatever amendments, this sort of bill, in order to work, would have to metamorphose our Melting Pot race into crypto-Japanese or para-Marxists.

The bill would function if the West Virginia and Kentucky miners became so docile that they went about their jobs with buttery smiles of satisfaction.

It would work if every means of production and transportation belonged to the federal government which had plans to build a workers' "paradise" without much consultation with the workers.

This is plainly not going to happen. We Americans don't pretend to have the faultless method of accomplishing our destiny. We have no Manifesto to say what our destiny is.

The Employment Act of 1946 is a toothless tiger, and the present Congress is not going to supply it with fangs.

Sylvia Porter:

To Stay Or To Play Is Now Up To You

IN A MATTER OF days, landmark legislation will go on our statute books raising the legal mandatory retirement age for most of us in the U.S. work force from the long-standing, artificially established age of 65 to a just as artificial but more realistic age of 70.

The new retirement age will become effective Jan. 1, 1979, for the tens of millions of us in private enterprise and state-local government jobs (with two limited exemptions for top business executives and tenured college professors).

Also, as of Oct. 1, 1978, the federal government's present retirement age of 70 for most civilian employees will be abolished with restricted exceptions.

NO LONGER WILL you be forced to leave your job at age 65, no matter how good your performance, your health and how eager you are to stay on. Nor will you be required to stay on after the discarded retirement age of 65, if you neither need nor want the job or pay.

The choice will be where it belongs—up to you. Even before this historic adjustment takes place, the pluses and minuses are being debated with seemingly endless anxiety.

Opponents are forecasting that shock waves will roll over the entire business, industrial and academic worlds:

Pension plans are being rewritten (or at least renegotiated);

Many giant firms are trying to work out systems and tests under which workers with inferior, or if not downright negative, records still can be compelled to retire at 65;

The extent to which the burden on the Social Security System will be eased is being calculated and recalculated, etc. etc.

ONE KEY CONCERN is how their own peers, who may be jealous, ambitious or whatever, can define and then accurately measure incompetence among fellow executives, and particularly professors.

Another is how to judge whether an employe is deteriorating physically or mentally to the point where he or she is slated to become a drag on the company.

What is "deadwood" really? What is "competence" among top executives or professors who may be extremely unpopular but still of undeniable value to their institutions?

How will younger workers respond when their promotions are delayed because those ahead of them in their categories are remaining on the job for longer periods?

What will be the impact on job opportunities for women and minorities, particularly, if the employment ranks are jammed?

Can workers truly keep performing at acceptable levels as they age?

AN ENCOURAGING report, privately circulated by Prentice-Hall, suggests that "for many companies, keeping workers on the job until age 70 would pose very few problems."

Only three problems emerge as serious, the most serious being (1) the "delicate problem of dealing with reduced job performance among people who are only a few years away from retirement"; (2) increased costs due to absenteeism, benefits, etc.; and (3) "dealing with advancement for younger go-getters."

On the challenge of dissatisfied younger workers, possible solutions include: offering incentives or alluring bonuses to older workers to retire before age 70; offering incentives to younger workers to stay with the company; revamping the company's compensation program to tie pay more closely to performance.

On the problem of jobs for women and minorities, few companies expect opportunities to shrink (only 4 per cent). Several corporations said, in fact, that they would make an extra effort to see that highly qualified minorities receive special advantages.

A FASCINATING finding of Prentice-Hall is that while the mandatory retirement age is rising, the number of employees choosing to take early retirement also is increasing. So many you would prefer to retire early if you can swing it financially.

No matter what your views as an individual, this historic discrimination on the basis of age alone is finally being eliminated from the law. Our society's attitude toward our elderly has been and is far more barbaric than the barbarians even dreamed of. I hail the step, although it is only one move forward. It has been so long in coming.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Steer clear of the serious-minded tomorrow because they may depress you. Conversely, people with youthful and carefree outlooks will bring you genuine pleasure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Dealing with older or mature individuals will provide the impetus for personal gain tomorrow. There could be more than one opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Early tomorrow you could take life too seriously, but as the day progresses, the bright spots will surface and a pleasant day should result.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will feel lucky in business situations tomorrow and you will be when you apply positive thinking to the transaction. Stick to your guns if you're negotiating.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you may meet tomorrow has a goal he or she has sought long and hard. You can help this person and yourself, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One in a high position will be looking out for your best interests tomorrow. This will involve a dream you previously thought was impossible to achieve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your enthusiasm for life will penetrate even the hardest hearts tomorrow. It will be a good time to pierce that inner social circle you've been eyeing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will have more luck going for tomorrow than you might be aware of. The necessary ingredient for completing the victory will be perseverance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you have a tough negotiation to handle, put it on tomorrow's agenda. You will be capable of eliminating obstacles and gaining the admiration of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When you unselfishly volunteer your services and skills tomorrow, you not only will help another, but can turn a healthy profit for yourself as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Get into the social whirl tomorrow. Go where you can be seen because you'll make a good impression on some valuable future contacts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Put yourself out a bit to please members of your family. Tomorrow will end on such a happy note, you'll wonder why you're sometimes selfish.

Soviet Action Denounced

PARIS (AP) — Cellist Mstislav Rostropovich and his wife have condemned the Kremlin's decision to strip them of their Soviet citizenship as an "inhuman and illegal act."

In a statement recently issued here, the world-famous musician and his wife, soprano Galina Vishnevskaya, also denied the Soviet government's allegation that they had engaged in "unpatriotic activity" while pursuing their careers.

Rostropovich is currently permanent conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C.

"The formal accusations made against us have no connection whatever with the real reasons behind this decision," the couple said.

"It is, in fact, only an act of revenge for the human solidarity we have shown those who are persecuted."

Dollar's Slump Hits Investors

By CHET CURRIER
NEW YORK (AP) — The recent slump of the dollar has spotlighted the important role foreign investors have come to play in the U.S. stock market.

In the last few months, the course of stock prices has often closely paralleled the dollar's ups and downs in foreign exchange.

Last Monday's session provides a case in point. The market seemed to have built up some strong momentum the previous Friday, and the Dow Jones industrial average jumped nearly 6 points in early trading.

But the rally stalled in the face of pressure on the dollar, and the Dow finished the day with a gain of only 1.38 points.

Analysts say economic and political factors account for some of the dollar's strong influence on the market. For one thing, they note, the dollar's decline tends to push up prices of imported goods, adding to inflationary pressures.

If it goes on much longer, investors seem particularly concerned that oil-exporting countries will be increasingly tempted to try to raise prices or peg them to some standard other than the dollar.

But perhaps the most direct connection between the dollar's decline and that of the market, Wall Streeters point out, is the "double whammy" situation it creates for foreign investors in U.S. stocks.

"You lose money in the market, and you also lose money at the same time in dollars that are going down," said Alan C. Poole at Laidlaw Adams & Peck, a New York-based brokerage firm that has first-hand dealings with overseas investors through its office in Brussels.

Until fairly recently, this situation might not have been regarded as especially important. But as a recent study by the Securities Industry Association, Wall Street's main trade group, points out, foreign investors have become a major force in the market in the last 10 years.

"Foreign investment in U.S. equities was virtually non-existent prior to 1968," wrote David Minor, the SIA's assistant director of research.

In that year, according to Treasury Department data, the influence of foreigners, primarily Europeans, began to rise with net purchases of $2.27 billion worth of American stocks.

By the 1975-76 period, foreigners accounted for net purchases of $7.45 billion.

"Unlike prior periods, the major source of net funds during this period was not the Europeans, but Middle East oil-producing countries," Minor said.

"The circumstances governing their decision to place massive amounts of funds into U.S. equities were quite clear: The strength in the U.S. dollar in 1975 and 1976; a recession in Europe and Japan; and low interest rates in U.S. government securities."

Since participation from these nations in the market was negligible until then, Minor observed, "there is no historical precedent to gauge the reaction of Middle Eastern investors to a sharp decline in the U.S. equities markets."

"The weakness of the dollar, rising interest rates and a trade deficit will be evaluated when the oil producers re-examine their investment objectives."

"U.S. Treasury bonds and notes are one area into which their funds have been funneled as interest rates rose. As of November 1977, Middle Eastern oil exporters held $10.9 billion of such issues against $2.0 billion at the end of 1975."

Danish Parliament Grants Reprieve To Free City

By OLE DUUS
COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Parliament has given a new lease on life to the 800-1,000 men, women and children who live their own kinds of lifestyles with hundreds of dogs, cats, goats, chickens and horses on 45 acres of government land in the heart of Copenhagen.

The reprieve to the so-called "free city" of Christiania was granted by the parliament (Folketing) at end of a daylong debate. A small majority adopted a motion ruling out any immediate attempt at eviction and demolition of the free city. The reprieve was supported by the governing Social Democrats and leftist parties and opposed by non-socialist parties.

Christiania came into being in 1971 when youthful squatters moved into an abandoned army complex to set up "a classless community" and search for "alternative ways of life."

Under the Folketing decision the free city will exist at least for two or three more years — the time it would take to prepare a detailed plan for another use of the area.

But jubilant Christiansians now are voicing hope that the life of their community, or at least parts of it, eventually will be extended even more and become an integral part of Copenhagen.

The Folketing decision gave a reprieve also to the government from a possible situation in which it would have to resort to the massive use of force to remove the people and their animals from Christiania.

Although Christiania has a stated policy of non-violence, it nevertheless published a defense and mobilization plan so elaborate that the Danish army's Gen. Eigel

Wolff, former head of NATO's defense college, said he found the plan "fully in line with military strategies of deterrence."

What the Folketing debate failed to achieve, however, was a universally acceptable definition of Christiania, named after the surrounding district of Christianshavn. In 1973 a Social Democratic government said it was a "social experiment." But a subsequent Liberal government reversed that and called it an example of lawlessness and subversion.

Sociologists and anthropologists from around the world came to study the free city, and many praised Denmark for tolerating what they said would not have been permitted in other countries. As a tourist attraction the free city ranks with Copenhagen's famed Tivoli Gardens.

But most visitors come out of Christiania with the same conclusion as a team of investigative reporters from a Copenhagen newspaper: "It is a mystery."

There are no unchallenged facts or figures about the free city except that it has about 90 buildings, some more than a century old. No one knows exactly how many people live there. The inhabitants are known only by their first names or, in some cases, by adopted family names used by members of the many communes.

It isn't the classless Utopia its founders sought. Many residents live at subsistence level; others work outside and live snugly in refurbished old houses.

Police claim Christiania is the capital's biggest single market for drugs and stolen goods. Spokesmen for the free city admit some 200 hashish peddlers operate in Christiania.

Then there are the real addicts — an inside estimate, 30 to 40 hardcore cases — along with alcoholics, the mentally disturbed, idlers and dropouts. One problem is the presence of several hundred non-Danes, chiefly Scandinavians, of no established identity or means of income.

"But Christiania itself does not breed criminals or addicts," claims Hans Loevstrand, chief spokesman for the free city. "Established society exports its criminals and dropouts to us. It is not so fantastic that we have all these problems, but it is fantastic that we survived with them."

"As it is," he added, "one half of us carry the other half. We managed to create the framework for a reasonable, tolerable and meaningful life for all of us — a life on new conditions removed from materialism, consumerism, profiteering and competition."

According to an unofficial survey, the free city provides jobs for at least 300 persons, mostly in "production communes" which include a flea market, a building material store and a blacksmith who recycles things, a bakery that uses no chemical additives, a biodynamic green grocery, a glass works turning old bottles into glasses, a general store, a health house with bathing facilities and a dozen restaurants and cafeterias offering the cheapest meals in town.

Two groups have turned old buildings into theaters, and one of their satirical shows drew more than 20,000 paying spectators last year. The free city even has its own recording studio, and one of its albums of beat and political songs was on last year's Danish top-tunes list.

There are several confirmed cases of drug addiction being cured in Christiania. The man who runs the green grocery is a former convict who agrees with a finding of University of Copenhagen criminologists that Christiania is the only place "where criminals or addicts can completely shed their past because no questions are asked and a man is judged by what he does, not what he did."

Pelle Jarmer, a Copenhagen city official in charge of social welfare, said many free city inhabitants are people whose problems could not be solved by established institutions.

One of the strongest cases against the free city is failure by most of the inhabitants to pay the agreed rent — the equivalent of less than $9 a month — to the Defense Ministry, owner of the area. Outside taxpayers also protest the leniency of tax authorities in collecting sales taxes and other taxes from restaurants and other free city enterprises.

Supporters of the free city argue, however, that it would cost society perhaps a hundred times more to provide for those who found a refuge in Christiania. On the other hand, the Defense Ministry now has to ask the Folketing for money — estimates range from $1 million to $6 million — to meet the demands of the city of Copenhagen that all buildings be made fit for human habitation according to the law.

But the free city will do its share of repairs, aided by an organization called "Support Christiania" and the national associations of architects and city planners who launched a joint campaign to raise money and collect building materials for a major repair effort.

"Man," said one Christiania citizen, "the whole thing is crazy, that is why we all try to act normal."

Burger Says Courts Need Innovations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger says that experimentation and innovation are needed in state courts to make them more efficient and ensure that "no monolithic, universal system of justice would blanket the country."

Burger recently told a group of judges and lawyers that over the past 40 years, expanded federal powers have encroached on state sovereignty. "Among the chief victims of this change were the state court systems," he said.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Monday, March 20, the 79th day of 1978 with 286 to follow. Spring arrives today at 5:34 p.m. CST.

The moon is approaching its full phase. There is no morning star.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus, Saturn and Jupiter. Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

Norwegian poet and dramatist Henrik Ibsen was born March 20, 1828.

On this day in history:
In 1852, Harriet Beecher Stowe's slavery-era book "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was published for the first time.

In 1963, a volcano on the island of Bali in the East Indies began erupting. The eventual death toll went over 1,000.

In 1976, San Francisco newspaper heiress Patty Hearst was found guilty of bank robbery.

In 1977, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her son lost their parliamentary races in India's general elections. The Congress party also was defeated and the state of emergency in India was lifted.

A thought for the day:
Norwegian writer Henrik Ibsen said, "The spirit of truth and the spirit of freedom — they are the pillars of society."

Study Finds New Test For Cancer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — A skin test like the one used to detect tuberculosis could replace the X-ray in diagnosing breast cancer and other forms of glandular carcinoma, according to a paper presented at a chemical convention.

In a report issued recently at the national convention of the American Chemical Society, Dr. G.F. Springer of Evanston (Ill.) Hospital at Northwestern University said the test detects the presence of a substance called T-antigen.

"T-antigen is produced by the body when there are cancer cells in the glands, where he said about 75 to 80 percent of all cancers originate.

"Springer said the test may reveal other forms of cancer, such as stomach and colon cancer.

"It's a delayed type of hypersensitivity such as in the tuberculin test," he said. "After about 24 to 50 hours you would get a redness and a hardening of the skin characteristic of the presence of the antigen."

A society spokesman said the T-antigen serum is placed directly under the skin. If there is already a tumor, the tumor releases its own T-antigen and there will be an irritation at the location of the test.

The spokesman said the test could eliminate the use of X-rays in diagnosing cancer of the breast and other parts of the body.

"Springer said that in a control study of 200 women, there were no false negative responses, meaning that if the test showed no tumors, tumors did not appear later.

However, four women showed positive responses when no tumors were actually found. But two of those four women later developed breast cancer tumors.

"If the system, still in the experimental stages, works consistently it would be the most effective early warning system ever discovered for cancer," said a spokesman for the American Chemical Society.

Settlement Reached In Film Suit

AUSTIN (AP) — Future showings of a television movie based on the 1966 University of Texas tower sniper incident will make clear it is not entirely factual, the lawyer for Texas Ranger Ramiro Martinez says.

Donato Ramos of Laredo disclosed that term of a settlement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the National Broadcasting Co., according to the Austin American-Statesman.

Martinez, one of three men who ambushed sniper Charles Whitman on Aug. 1, 1966, also will receive a cash payment, Ramos said.

Amount of the cash payment and details of the settlement cannot be revealed, Ramos added.

Martinez' $1,025,000 suit against MGM and NBC complained of the film, "The Deadly Tower."

"Any future showings will have a legend at the beginning explaining that it is not a documentary, that certain parts are not based on true fact. The initial movie said the show was based on fact," Ramos said.

He said there also would be changes made if the film is ever shown again.

Ramos said Martinez' major objections to the television movie were:

—He was portrayed as having been passed over for promotion on the Austin police force because he was a Mexican-American.

—His wife was portrayed as a Mexican-American although she is of German and Polish descent.

—The film showed a heated argument between Martinez and his wife which "was not based on fact."

DR. LAMB

Help For Vertigo

BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 73 years old, female, in reasonably good health. My problems is vertigo, with accompanying nausea. I have been bothered with this for a couple of years, but as time goes on it becomes more severe.

This week I attended a funeral when suddenly the vertigo hit me; I was on my feet at the time. I staggered to the back of the room to a sofa, the room and everyone reeling around me. After a little while I was helped to another room where I could lie down. Then the nausea started. An ambulance took me to the hospital where I stayed in the emergency room. My doctor was with me.

prescribed three different kinds of shots, one a tranquilizer. It took a half hour to take effect.

I asked my doctor if there was anything I could take when one of these attacks hit me. He said there wasn't since the only thing they knew about it was that the inner ear swelled, causing poor circulation — which caused the dizziness. I know of others who get these attacks so I am not alone.

I have been advised to cut back on my salt, which I have done. Do you know of anything that would be of help? I cannot tolerate most of the tranquilizers or Dramamine.

DEAR READER — You described vertigo correctly. True vertigo as opposed to simple dizziness is accompanied with the illusion of being in motion, or the illusion of things around you being in motion, as happened with the attack you described.

Your sense of position and balance are dependent upon what is happening inside the brain and its ability to integrate information from three bodily systems. These include the eyes, the ears and position sense.

The eyes give a visual reference to your body position. Small nerve fibers in the joints and muscles that respond to stretching and pressure relay information on position of the body and all its parts. The inner ear has three small canals that act like a balance system in a carpenter's level. When fluid in these canals shifts because of changes in position of the head it sends signals to the brain.

A defect in any of these systems can contribute to dizziness. Or you can have a defect in the brain that makes it difficult to integrate and respond to the signal from these three systems.

In people past 50 it is common for the difficulty to involve problems of circulation to the brain that involve the areas where all this information is integrated. In younger people the cause is more often an abnormality within the ear itself (labyrinthitis).

I think you should ask your doctor to arrange for you to see a neurologist (a specialist in brain function) so he can evaluate the circulation to the brain for you. If you get a clean bill of health in that area you can see a specialist in ear, nose and throat problems.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo to give you more information than I can include here. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, 78292.

Vertigo is a symptom and before anyone can decide how to treat it, other than providing emergency relief, it is important to know what really is causing it.

Spinks Now Enters Money Ring

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

What happens to a boxer who, in his eighth professional fight, surprises nearly everybody — probably including himself — by winning the richest prize in the sporting world? For Leon Spinks, who pulled it off by copping the world heavyweight crown from Muhammad Ali last month, it's meant not only an instant rise to the top of the ring world, but a sudden thrust into the heady world of big dollars. Spinks isn't rich yet, but he soon will be.

To say that Spinks was unprepared for his new status is an understatement. He didn't have a lawyer until January — and he apparently changed lawyers last week, he doesn't have a business manager (he isn't even certain he has a fight manager), and the money he earned from the fight — nearly $150,000 after taxes — is still sitting quietly in the bank.

That won't last long, though. Offers for endorsements, personal appearances — even a bid for the story of his 24-year life at better than $5,000 a year — have been pouring in at an increasing rate. ("At first, they didn't even know who to call," attorney Milton Chwasky told us. Chwasky was Spinks' lawyer at the time of the fight, but the champ later announced he was switching legal advisors.) By the time the escapee from the slums of St. Louis steps into a ring again, he could be guaranteed financial security for the rest of his life.

"He woke up the next morning (after winning the title on Feb. 15) to a pile of money," Robert Arum told us. "The question now is how big a pile."

Arum is the head of Top Rank, Inc., which promoted the Spinks-Ali fight and has a contract to promote Spinks' first three defenses (with an option for three more). There is a controversy over who the first challenger will be. Arum obviously favors Ali, with his huge drawing power, because it would mean more profit for Top Rank.

It would so mean more money for Spinks. Against Ali, each fighter would get 5 million, plus training expense. (For Norton, Spinks would get 1.5 million; the challenger $200,000) Arum figures that Spinks would have $2 million left after taxes from an Ali fight and he says, "The kind of kid he is, in a couple of years, if he had $2 million in the bank, you might not see him again."

While waiting to sign for what is likely to be the biggest payday he'll ever see, Spinks has the happy chore of culling through the commercial offers, a process that's hardly begun and could be stalled by the change of attorneys. "It took about a week for the realization to sink in and two weeks before we sat down to do any talking," Chwasky said. "So many offers have come out of the walls, some of them obviously irreputable and many of them honest and interesting, that we haven't signed anything yet."

"We've been trying to set up a plan so that he'll be taken care of when his day is over," Chwasky said. "We're not investing in anything yet."

Chwasky declined to predict how much money Spinks can make before he puts the gloves on again. "The William Morris Agency and International Creative Management (two of the country's biggest talent agencies) called and they projected into six figures, but that's only puffery for them. I told them to come back with solid figures and we'd look them over. A lot of people are making offers publicly who haven't spoken to us yet. I don't know how much he can make, but I guess it's safe to say he can at least match the ($300,000) purse he got from the fight."

How much Spinks can make on his championship obviously depends on how long he can keep it. Fight people agree that he won't have a firm claim on the title until he meets and defeats Ali again. Then, experts say, his commercial value will jump.

For now, Spinks can probably get about $15,000 for television commercial, while Ali can command $50,000 or more. No matter how long he stays on top, it's unlikely that he'll match Ali, whose personal showmanship brought him some $60 million in fight purses alone. And, of course, no future opponent can generate the purses of a rematch which Ali would draw. "It's very fortuitous for Spinks that there's an Ali around," Arum says.

such a hit, we decided to do it again!

NOT LIKE HE'D PLANNED — Rhode Island real estate developer Thomas Aquinas Malloy stood on the deck in front of one-time presidential yacht Sequoia at Washington Navy Yard last July, shortly after he had purchased the vessel in a public auction. Malloy had counted on an interested public wanting to

Visitors Not Impressed By Yacht

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Thomas Aquinas Malloy used to ask people touring the presidential yacht Sequoia if they got goosebumps thinking about the presidents who sailed aboard it.

"They would say: 'It's not like the White House, it's not like the Newport mansions,'" said Malloy. "I'd say, 'Yeah, but nine presidents went through here.'"

Then, said Malloy, came the response: "So what, it's just a boat."

Once the presidential yacht's owner, Malloy decided it did not "hold the aura we thought it would" so he sold it six months ago to a South Carolina investor.

The yacht was a retreat for presidents from Herbert Hoover to Gerald Ford. President Carter, however, decided it was an unjustified expense and ordered it sold by the Defense Department in May 1977.

Malloy, a Rhode Island real estate developer, bought the 104-foot yacht for $286,000 and had it outfitted as a floating museum. It was berthed at a Newport wharf most of last summer.

"I invested a lot of money... We didn't make anything — we didn't lose anything — but we didn't make anything," he said.

Malloy said he would not have sold the Sequoia if he had known his health would improve.

Malloy has now recovered from a serious automobile accident that almost severed his foot more than a year ago.

After doctors told him he could not travel, he sold the boat in September 1977 to Norman F. Pulliam, a Spartansburg, S.C., investor, for an amount Pulliam and Malloy refuse to disclose.

The Sequoia is now in Wilmington, N.C., and will be moved to Myrtle Beach, S.C., in May.

Judge's Order Defied By Terrorists

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Red Brigades ringleaders on trial for political terrorism stormed out of the courtroom in chains today after openly threatening kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro, himself facing a "people's trial" in the hands of the defendants' comrades.

Defying Judge Guido Barabro's orders to "be quiet," bearded Red Brigades chief Renato Curcio, 37, shouted: "There'll be a trial all right, and a very serious one, but in another place. We will try the whole Christian Democratic Party, Moro is in the hands of the proletariat."

Public Prosecutor Luigi Moschella shouted back: "We've got some people in prison, too."

The trail, 61-year-old Moro, five-time premier, president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party and Italian presidential hopeful, was seized by Red Brigades commandos in Rome Thursday and his five-man police guard slaughtered in a hall of bullets.

On Saturday newspapers received a Polaroid picture of a shirt-sleeved Moro in front of a Red Brigades emblem and a leaflet saying he was in a "people's jail" and would "undergo trial before a people's tribunal."

Although Moro's kidnapers have so far made no public demand for an exchange of the Turin defendants for Moro, investigators believe they may demand one after Moro has been "sentenced."

After the shouted exchange in the Turin court, 13 of the 15 prisoners facing charges of kidnapping and forming an armed band walked out to the cells behind the steel cages in which they are being tried, leaving Curcio and another prisoner as "observers."

Americans File For Tax Credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — So far this year, 200 American taxpayers have filed for a tax credit for the insulation and other energy-saving devices they have installed in their homes.

The trouble is that Congress hasn't passed an energy tax credit yet.

Those 200 optimistic taxpayers will receive notices from the Internal Revenue Service that they made an error and must pay the taxes they thought they saved by using a non-existent credit.

But their futile effort points up a problem as the April 15 tax filing deadline approaches.

Although both houses of Congress have passed a tax credit for insulation and other energy-saving devices installed after last April 20, the credit is bogged down with other energy legislation by a dispute over whether to continue price controls on natural gas.

And although the credit lost popularity on its way through Congress, it will be included in any final energy bill because it is in both the House and Senate versions.

Under normal rules, therefore, a conference committee could not delete it.

"Clearly it won't be passed by April 15," said a staff member of Congress' Joint Tax Committee. "So there'll be no advantage to holding up the filing of your return."

But how will those who bought insulation last year claim the credit?

The traditional method is to file an amended return on form 1040X, but according to staff members of the congressional tax-writing committees some method will be found to simplify the process, perhaps one simple form to claim a refund.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, there were a flurry of questions in January and February about the energy tax credit, some of them prompted by line 45 on this year's form 1040 which said simply, "See page 12 of instructions."

The instructions explained that line 45 was for energy tax credits in case Congress passed any.

But in recent weeks the number of questions tailed off.

"It's just not a very hot item now," said an IRS spokesman.

The IRS also noted that the public apparently is not holding back filing its returns to wait for the energy tax credit. The number of taxpayers filing returns is running less than 1 percent behind last year's rate.

The credit itself, whenever you get it, is almost certain to be 20 percent of the first $2,000 of home energy expenditures — a maximum tax saving of $400. Keep in mind that a credit is subtracted directly from taxes owed as opposed to a deduction which is subtracted from income before taxes are calculated.

Ag Leader Warns Of Price Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the Senate preparing to vote on two emergency aid bills for farmers, the administration has warned of possible disaster if Congress boosts farm prices by paying farmers to idle more land.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland warned of the danger Sunday and also said he believes most of the nation's farmers consider the administration's policies to be "prudent and sound — and effective."

"Farm prices are up from what they were a year ago," Bergland said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Bergland warned that if farmers are given opportunities to earn still higher prices if they set aside large amounts of acreage, and if wheat and corn yields are as low as they were in 1974, "the reserves we have on hand now will be consumed in a matter of weeks. We think this could be a disaster."

Meanwhile, Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., sponsor of one of the two aid bills due for a vote Tuesday, urged approval of his measure over the competing bill backed by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Talmadge said Congress may lose its best bet to provide quick aid for the farm economy if it settles for the "flexible parity" bill instead of his emergency plan to pay farmers for idling up to 38 million acres of land.

Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and chief sponsor of the land-idling bill, made the statement in remarks prepared for delivery on the Senate floor today.

Under his bill, the Agriculture Department would pay farmers about $4.2 billion to idle up to 38 million acres of surplus-producing wheat, feed-grain, soybean and cotton acreage.

The result, he said, would be an $8 billion boost in farm earnings because of the higher market prices that would result from reduced supplies. A department study indicated net costs to the government for farm subsidies would drop $90 million because the land rental payments would be more than offset by a decline in price support expenditures, Talmadge added.

The competing "flexible parity" bill sponsored by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and backed by the American Agriculture farm strike movement would allow individual grain farmers to pick their own level of support target prices by deciding how much acreage to idle.

A wheat farmer who retired acreage equal to 20 percent of his plantings, for example, would have a target price of $3 a bushel. A grower who idled 50 percent of his acreage would get a target of $5.04, or 100 percent of the federal parity standard.

Farmers say 100 percent parity would mean purchasing power for their commodities would be the same as it was before World War I.

Bergland said to guarantee full parity, the government would have to impose "a very tough control plan, because when food prices go up, some people in this country will be unable to eat as much as they would like."

"And that means demand will fall and controls would have to be put in place on strawberries, and oranges and cattle and other things."

USDA Seeks Label Plan For Meats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department wants a labeling system that will let consumers know if they are buying imported or domestic meats.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman, a former consumer activist, favors the labeling plan, but says aides are having some problems developing a workable, yet not-too-costly plan.

Administration approval may also be a problem. International trade officials in the White House are "not likely to support the idea" and the State Department views the plan with "great concern," Ms. Foreman told a recent meeting of farm strike movement delegates.

Requiring labels on items like imported canned hams that go to the consumer in the same package in which they arrive in the United States would not be difficult, the assistant secretary says.

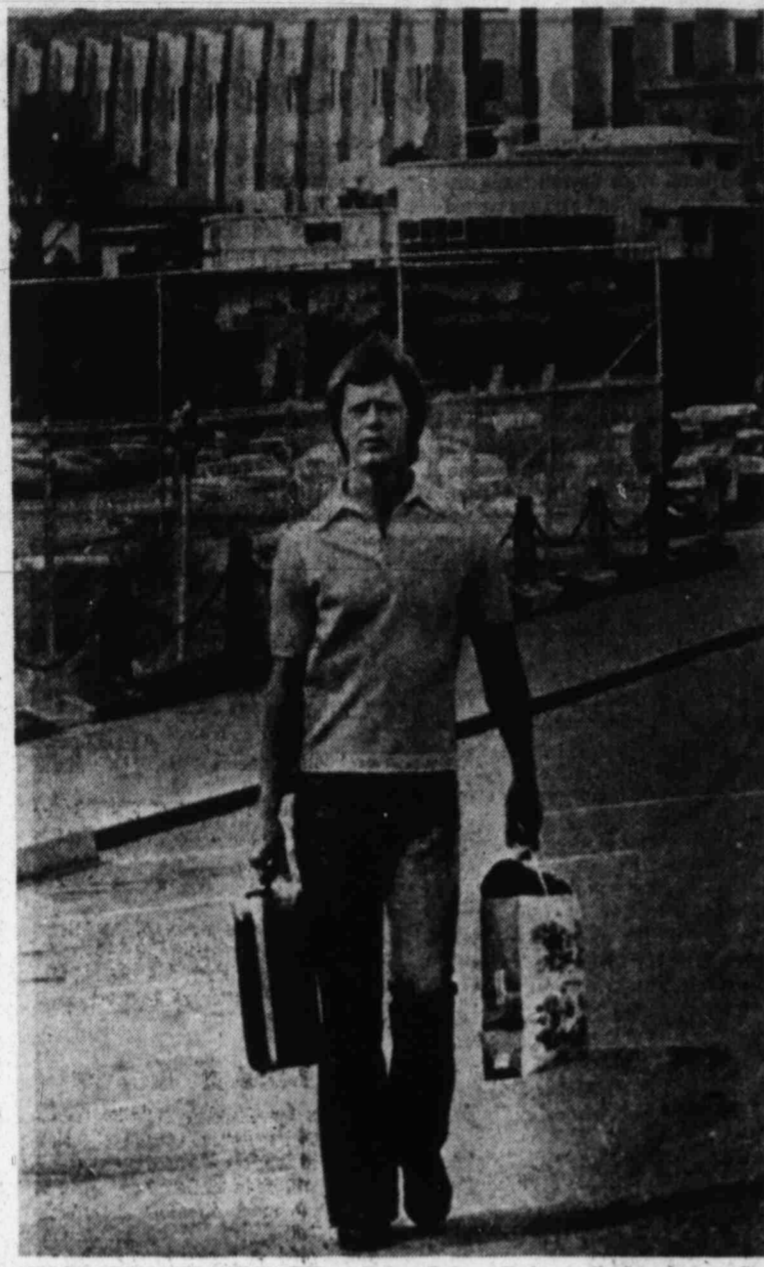

But the more than 1 billion pounds a year of boneless lean beef that enter from Australia and other countries is a different matter.

The imported lean beef frequently is mixed with fat trimmings from U.S. cattle to make hamburger, Ms. Foreman explained. The combined foreign-and-domestic product frequently is prepared in retail stores where state, rather than federal, officials, supervise operating practices.

Enforcing labeling rules under these circumstances and others where imported beef is processed into mixed American-and-foreign products would be difficult, she said.

Agriculture Department staff members recently came up with one proposed enforcement system that had to be discarded because of its potential cost of $30 million a year.

Ms. Foreman said there may be obstacles at other levels in the administration. White House and State Department trade officials fear a labeling rule would be regarded by other countries as a non-tariff trade barrier.

MODEL PRISONER RELEASED — Robert Lokey, 35, has walked away from San Quentin Prison near San Francisco. Lokey left the prison a free man, paroled after serving 15 years of a sentence for a conviction of murder and technical kidnapping charges. While serving his time, Lokey was a fireman, technician, poet, painter, sculptor, amateur lawyer and holder of patents on several inventions. (AP Laserphoto)

Prison Turns 'Fool Into Thinking Man'

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Robert Lokey — poet, painter, sculptor, amateur lawyer, inventor, fireman and ex-inmate of San Quentin — says the 15 years he spent behind bars for murder "turned a fool into a thinking man."

Lokey, 35, walked away from the big house a free man Saturday, his life sentence cut short by parole. He carried a shopping bag full of belongings in one hand, his portable typewriter in the other.

Standing outside the gates, Lokey took a deep breath, glanced up at a sunny sky and murmured, "Ah, free air."

San Quentin officials say he was one of the prison's most remarkable convicts. "If we had an institution full of guys like him we could lay off half the staff," said San Quentin program coordinator William Merkle.

In 1963, Lokey and his brother, Galen, were convicted of murder in the course of a robbery and kidnapping. Lokey's gun went off by accident in the struggle with his victim, who died. The court, noting the accidental nature of the death, sentenced the brothers to life imprisonment instead of death. Galen was paroled seven years ago.

After entering the prison, Lokey, a grade school dropout, earned a high school diploma and a degree in behavioral science from the College of Marin, graduating with high honors. After completing a course in office machine technology, he learned to paint and sculpt, wrote short stories, essays, poetry and a book about his life.

"When I went to prison, I was a fool," Lokey said outside the gates. "The changes I went through here turned a fool into a thinking man."

He said he plans to study law, but needs a job first.

Acting as his own lawyer, Lokey won a court suit against the state Department of Corrections and the state attorney general's office.

He successfully argued that he had been removed from minimum security and thrown into the main line lockup without due process. He drew an admission from officials that he had not been sent into the main line for any disciplinary reason, but because of a new departmental policy.

The court agreed with Lokey and all his privileges were restored, including the right to visits from his wife and two daughters.

He holds patents on several inventions, including a safety device for a rotary saw that causes the tool to stop when flesh comes near the spinning blade. He invented an improved braille writing machine and a soldering tool for repairing typewriters.

His good behavior earned him an assignment outside the walls as second in command of the prison fire department. He lived in the fire station and was permitted to travel outside to assist nearby fire departments in Marin County.

As he left the prison, Lokey was asked if he would have accomplished so much had he not been imprisoned. "I don't know the answer," he said.

Elderly Local Women Escape Burglary Tries

Two 80-year-old women at separate northside residences had close calls Sunday night after a burglar made his way onto their property.

One Erskine Street resident told police she detected the sound of barking dogs about 9:15 p.m. even though she is hard of hearing. After she discovered that two windows in her house had been broken, she said she got her gun and called police.

About 45 minutes later another elderly woman — this one a 1st Street resident — reportedly awoke to find a strange man standing in the doorway of her bedroom.

The victim, who also admitted being hard of hearing and having poor eyesight, called out to the intruder, who then walked out of the house carrying a small flashlight. Reports indicated entry into the home was gained through a window.

Police theorized the burglar in each case may have been the same man, because of similar shoe prints found beneath the windows. Reportedly, nothing was stolen in either incident.

William D. Gammill Jr. of 2005 Detroit Ave. told police this weekend that an electric piano and some speakers and microphones were stolen from his van parked in the 4600-block of 55th Drive. Sheriff's deputies, meanwhile, found the stolen goods at an irrigation well near Wolfthorpe after the owner of the land notified authorities.

Alvin Ryals of Route 4, Box 111, Lubbock, reportedly lost over $5,200 worth of goods to house burglars Friday night. However, deputies recovered about $1,500 worth of the stolen property from a 4-wheel-drive vehicle near Ropesville.

Reports indicated another farmer had blocked off the vehicle after he found its three occupants trying to break into his house.

Masego Mphathi of 2108 Main St., No. 1, told officers he lost over $400 worth of goods to a break-in artist at his apartment Sunday night. Reportedly stolen were a television set, stereo and .38-caliber revolver.

Police also were investigating a reported heavy theft at 122 Ave. T this weekend.

Brenda Bass said she saw someone wearing a sweat suit and sneakers grab 450 pounds of athletic weights from her front porch early Sunday. When she yelled at the thief, the stranger reportedly dropped 45 pounds of his haul and ran from the scene.

Donald Cave, owner of a laundromat at 315 Guava Ave., complained that whoever broke into his business this weekend caused $150 worth of damage to get to $2 in change from one of the machines.

Two out-of-town visitors possibly are regretting their decisions to stay in Lubbock this weekend.

Ralph Heinze, an engineering manager from Oklahoma City, told police someone stole $915 worth of luggage and jewelry from his family's room at an Avenue H motel. Lorene Nichols, a Seminole accountant, said her billfold, containing $132 cash, and a ring were taken from her purse while she and her husband were out of their Avenue Q motel room. Both incidents reportedly occurred Saturday.

Daniel Tovar said $260 worth of goods, including a television set, assorted clothing and a wall tapestry, were stolen by whoever broke into a rear residence at 1909 13th St. Sunday.

City Students Win Honors

Seven Monterey High School Latin students won honors over the weekend at the Texas Junior Classical League Convention held at Trinity University in San Antonio.

Elizabeth Drew took first place in first-year Latin grammar and the declension, a combination of all tests given at the convention. Mary Ruth Thurmond also took first place honors in first-year mythology. Miss Thurmond's score was the third highest of all contestants at the meet.

Andrea Hyslop won second place in first-year literature and Mark Solomon took second honors in Latin derivative competition, level one.

Todd Mayfield garnered second place honors in Greek history and Steve Whipple took third in reading comprehension, level two. David Luke won fifth place in Roman life competition, level one.

Dionel Coy, owner of El Nene's Restaurant in the 1900-block of Avenue H, told officers someone broke through a front door at the eatery this weekend and made off with $100 worth of food.

Reports indicated the burglar apparently was only hungry because some loose money lying in plain sight was not taken.

Coy said the remains of items eaten at the scene were found at the restaurant.

An 18-year-old Lubbock woman told police Saturday she was forced to strip and stand on a chair in front of windows facing a busy intersection late Saturday by a telephone caller who threatened her with a bomb.

Police heard the embarrassed woman's story late Saturday night after she realized the call obviously was a hoax, but not before she went on public display.

The service station attendant said she was working at the station about 10:30 p.m. Saturday when she was called by a man who said he was a policeman.

Her caller said the police department had just received word a man had left a bomb in the station earlier and would set it off if she did not remove her clothes, stand on a chair and have her boyfriend tie her up within 30 seconds.

Police reports indicate the woman stripped to her undergarments and stood on the chair for about 10 minutes before she and her friend realized the call was a hoax.

Police said the woman and her friend ran from the station to a nearby business and called officers to see if the first caller was actually a policeman. He wasn't.

In other activities, a 20-year-old Lubbock woman said she was attacked by a man who followed her home from a club about 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

Sylvia Duran of 2817 Bates St. said the man followed her home, got out of his car and threw her on the ground. The man kicked her several times, she said, after she explained that she did not wish to see him.

Another Lubbock man, apparently irritated over comments reportedly made by Gilbert Franco of 1106-B 53rd St., pulled a straight razor and threatened him at a 35th Street cafe about 3 a.m. Sunday, Franco told police.

Authorities late Sunday still were investigating a shooting incident that reportedly injured several persons late Saturday.

Jesus Fuentes of O'Donnell said he and friends were at a restaurant in the 2900 block of East 2nd Place about 9 p.m. Saturday when three men pulled their automobile up beside his own.

Fuentes said a fight ensued after comments by the men, and that shots were fired in the episode.

Fuentes was treated at Methodist Hospital for his injuries and later released, but another man police theorize was involved in the mishap was not as fortunate.

Steve Smith of 301-A Ave. X told officers he heard someone outside his door about 9:30 p.m. Saturday. When he checked on the noise, he found 23-year-old Francisco Solis of 306 37th, No. 2, lying on the concrete.

St. Mary's Hospital officials said Solis was shot once in the chest. He was in satisfactory condition there late Sunday.

Burglars continued their activities, taking an $89 pistol from the home of Raul Paderiz of 806 E. Erskine St. about 8 p.m. Saturday.

Manuel Guzman of 2135 Duke St. No. 51 told police he was missing a $720 television after burglars entered his residence about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Burglars who struck at a North Loop 289 storage building took a metal detector owned by Paul Mackey of 4701 Amberst, a tool chest and a case of motor oil owned by Mrs. Charles Pevery of Route 6, Lubbock, and a stove and two air conditioner compressors owned by Dale Tuttle of 4422 Vanda Ave.

At Tech, the Division of Continuing Education is co-sponsoring the Lubbock Regional Workshop in Folklife open to everyone.

Sessions April 7 will examine such things as the Texas Cowboy Reunion, the cowboy songs of Texas folklorist John Lomas, examples of Texas folklore on tapes and slides, instructions in constructing a regional profile of folk culture and a film on Mexican-American cultures.

One segment will be devoted to folk culture and related interests—education, history, fine arts, popular culture, ethnicity, performance and festivals.

Tech personnel will assist with the April 8 production—Dr. Evelyn Montgomery of the anthropology department and Dr. Warren Walker of the English department. Dr. T. Lindsay Baker of Tech will discuss Silesian Poles of Texas and Poland.

A film on Cajun Culture; the ethics and procedures of folklore projects; the techniques and methodology of collecting, preserving and presenting of folklore will take up most of the session.

A children's folklore performance will highlight the afternoon program which ends with a look at local, state and national folklore projects along with development of regional resources and the funding of such projects.

Congress May Reconsider Social Security Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sentiment is growing in Congress to give Americans at least a partial reprieve from rising Social Security taxes.

Proposals to roll back the increases voted in December are being pressed in both houses.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill has told the White House the feeling against the increases is now so strong that unless the administration comes up with a proposal it could live with, the House will write and pass one of its own.

What prompted all this was a near "taxpayers' revolt" which many congressmen say they found when they went home after passing a bill in December to finance Social Security into the next century.

The protest, they reported, comes mainly from relatively well-to-do taxpayers rather than poor ones.

Under the bill, a $10,000-a-year worker's Social Security tax will rise only $8 in 1979. But a $23,000 worker's tax will rise $332.92, or $260.32 more than it would have risen automatically under existing law.

"The letters aren't coming from the $8 people," said one congressional aide. "They're coming from doctors, lawyers and businessmen."

Most of the proposals now being discussed would reduce Social Security payroll taxes — borne equally by employers and employees — by financing part of the payouts from general revenues.

Proponents believe that would reduce inflation and increase employment, since payroll taxes discourage hiring and also are passed on to consumers as part of product cost.

They also believe it would be fairer, since the income tax burden is shifted to the wealthy more than are payroll taxes.

But Social Security pensions have been financed from employer-employee contributions since they began in 1935. Medicare and disability insurance, which became part of Social Security in later years, have been financed the same way.

Many argue that if these programs are financed from general revenues, subject to whims of the annual appropriations process, the benefits will be much less reliable.

Others, including the administration, House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman and Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long have argued that no hasty changes should be made this year, but that Congress next year should consider what to do about 1981, when Social Security taxes will begin to rise even more steeply.

Much of the outcome will depend on what those power centers decide.

House Republicans, meanwhile, say their plan which the House rejected last year could have solved the whole problem. It included putting federal employees under Social Security, shifting Medicare funds to other parts of the program, and eventually increasing the full retirement age from 65 to 68.

Justices Will Hear Libel Case Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether public officials suing for libel may force journalists to tell what their thoughts, opinions and conclusions were while preparing a news story.

The justices will review an unprecedented ruling handed down by a federal appeals court last November in a still-pending lawsuit by former Army Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert against CBS and others.

The lower court said reporters and editors sued for libel do not have to disclose such information. The justices' eventual decision could carry tremendous impact for all future libel suits filed by public officials or public figures.

In other major actions today, the Supreme Court:

— Cleared the way for a new trial in a $46-million lawsuit against Ohio officials over the deaths of four Kent State University students during a 1970 antiwar demonstration.

— Let stand a ruling by the Florida Supreme Court that news reporters are not allowed to secretly record interviews.

— Left intact airline policies that force pregnant stewardesses to take immediate, unpaid maternity leaves, turning aside arguments that such policies represent unlawful sex discrimination.

— Declined to hear an appeal by Carmine Galante, reputed kingpin of organized crime in the United States, that he was denied a fair trial on narcotics charges.

Herbert, eventually stripped of his command in the 173rd Airborne Brigade, was expelled to national prominence in 1971 when he formally charged his superior officers with covering up war crimes in South Vietnam.

He claimed in documents filed with the Army's Criminal Investigations Division that he had witnessed and reported numerous atrocities but that his superiors showed no interest in investigating the incidents.

Herbert, a 24-year service veteran, said he was relieved of his command after persisting in pressing his charges. Officially, his removal from command was attributed to a lack of "ambition, integrity, loyalty or will for self-improvement."

Press reports of Herbert's dispute with the Army made him a national personality. He appeared on television talk shows and eventually collaborated in the writing of a best-selling book, "Soldier."

Barry Lando, a producer of the CBS program "60 Minutes," decided to investigate the controversy. The ensuing research led to a Feb. 4, 1973 telecast called "The Selling of Colonel Herbert" in which the truth of Herbert's charges was called into question.

Lando also wrote an article for the Atlantic Monthly magazine about his findings in the matter.

Herbert filed a $44.7-million libel suit against Lando, CBS, "60 Minutes" correspondent Mike Wallace and the Atlantic Monthly, charging that the program and article "falsely and maliciously" depicted him as a liar "and as a person who used the war crimes charges as an excuse for his relief from command."

During lengthy pretrial discovery, Herbert's attorneys questioned Lando on 26 separate occasions and asked hundreds of questions.

Four Die In Truck Mishap

ALTAMONT, Tenn. (UPI) — A rental truck carrying six religious families from Arizona, New Mexico and Louisiana on a scenic trip through the Southeast Tennessee mountains careened off a highway Sunday night, killing four and injuring 18.

The two-ton U-Haul truck — modified for passenger use with a van-type enclosure — plunged about 100 feet down a cliff into a creek bed. The truck was ripped apart as it sheared trees down the mountainside, spilling its victims along the heavily wooded slopes of Burgess Mountain about 40 miles northwest of Chattanooga.

The families were returning from a trip to Florida and had detoured through the southern Appalachians.

"The truck was ripped apart so bad I couldn't tell what kind of seats it had in the back," said state trooper Jerry Millsaps who investigated the accident.

"As far as I can make out it was some kind of religious group," he said. "They had been up to Beersheba Springs Sunday and bathed in the water up there. They were on their way out when the accident occurred."

Bibles and other religious material were strewn around the wreckage. Many carried Bibles with them to hospital emergency rooms where they were treated.

"I believe they just didn't know the road well and maybe were going a little too fast. The truck ran off the road on a curve and down the mountain," Millsaps said. There was no safety barrier at the point where the truck left the road.

The dead victims were Mary Schmidt, age unknown, of Alamogordo, N.M.; Ryan Kollhoff, 1, of Tucson; Jansen Baker, 19, of Lutz, N.M., and an unidentified woman believed to be the mother of Jansen Baker.

Eight of those injured were reported in critical or serious condition at hospitals in Sewanee, McMinnville, Manchester and Nashville.

Millsaps said the accident occurred between 9 and 9:30 p.m. Sunday. Among the first at the scene was Butch Parks, a Grundy County ambulance attendant.

"They were laying all around," he said. "There were quite a few children. The vehicle was torn up pretty bad. It looked like the back part of it was completely torn off with just the flatbed left."

At least three doctors and a number of paramedics and other medical personnel rushed to the scene. The terrain was so rugged rescuers had to use ropes to climb down to the victims.

There were no witnesses to the accident, which occurred on a narrow, winding highway along the Beersheba Road.

"One of them crawled back up to the road and caught a ride to a house where he got a phone and reported the accident," Millsaps said.

Coffee County administrative assistant Judy Shelton said at least half of the 10 patients in the hospital emergency room were in serious condition. Most of those taken to the hospital were children.

County

Last year, the Lubbock County Commissioners Court set aside $500,000 for the project, anticipating that a matching amount would be awarded by the Governor's Criminal Justice Division through a federal-state grant.

Commissioners and many other local groups endorsing the project had hoped that a site would be donated, so that the entire project — land acquisition and construction — could stay within a $1 million budget.

However, possible donations fell through. Nevertheless, Shaw said he doesn't expect the project's cost to run much over $1 million. He said the county probably will consider picking up any cost overrun, perhaps on a matching basis with the governor's office.

The purchased tract is located just south of the north part of Loop 289. It is bounded by vacant land to the south and east, the Texas Instruments plant to the north and the Lubbock Lake Site to the west.

"Our special thanks is expressed to the South Plains Association of Governments who have greatly assisted us in the securing of federal grants for the project and to the 15-county SPAG region for their overwhelming support," Shaw said.

Twelve of the 14 outlying SPAG counties have agreed to assign to Lubbock County their Texas Youth Council annual allocations, totaling about $90,000.

Lubbock County will pick up the rest of the operation budget, estimated at $225,000 a year, using its own state-funded allocations and some special grants.

Presently, most counties use their county jails for the short-term detention of delinquent youths and commit them to state training schools for long-term detention.

Miners Review Coal Proposal

By The Associated Press

After scuttling one settlement and ignoring a government order to get back to work, the independent-minded rank and file of the United Mine Workers union got its first look today at a contract that could finally end their 105-day-old strike.

Local UMW leaders were briefed on the pact at district meetings throughout Appalachia Sunday.

Today, the local leaders began taking the pact to the membership in meetings at local union halls and civic buildings throughout the coalfields.

The meetings are being held through Wednesday, with voting scheduled Friday.

The district meetings were calmer than when the local leaders were briefed on the last proposal three weeks ago, and many local leaders emerged saying they thought this pact had a better chance of acceptance by the membership.

But many of those who were optimistic also said they had reservations about the terms in the pact — there were some who said they thought it was not acceptable.

One commonly heard comment was that the miners can live with this pact. But another was that if miners ratify it, it will be primarily because they are broke.

"If it's ratified, it'll be because of bill-folds," said George Thomas, president of Local 7224 in Lebanon, Va.

"If it's approved it won't be because it's a good contract, but it'll be because the men have been out so long they feel like they're beating their heads against the wall," added Thomas. "The men (union negotiators) in Washington have lost contact with the men here."

George Frampton, president of a 300-member local near Indiana, Pa., used almost the same words in predicting narrow ratification.

"I think it will be passed because the miners are hurting, not because it's a good contract," he said.

Two proposed contracts between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association already have been rejected. The first never got past the union's bargaining council and was not voted on by the rank and file.

The second proposal was approved by the bargaining council, but turned back by a 2-to-1 margin in the field.

One of the main sticking points in the second contract was a provision that the miners pay up to $700 a year per family toward medical expenses that have been free in previous contracts.

The third contract keeps the deductible provision, but lowers the maximum that a mine family would pay to $200 a year.

The miners also have complained about continuation of a gap between the pension benefits paid older retired miners and those who have retired more recently.

The gap remains in the third contract, but has been narrowed.

"The contract is quite a bit better than the last proposal," said Larry Smith, president of Local 2339 in Muhlenberg County, Ky. "There's still a few things in this one that I don't like, like paying for health deductibles, but it may be something we'll have to live with. I believe it will pass in this district. I think it will go 60-40."

U.N. Council Adopts Plan For Peacekeeping Force

(From Page One) territory and authorizing Waldheim to create a truce force to restore peace in southern Lebanon.

The council also approved Waldheim's plans for a 4,000-man force to serve for a minimum of six months at a cost of $68 million.

The vote was 12-0 on both resolutions, with the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstaining and China not voting.

Man Rents Bus For Birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry O. Dormann could have taken his wife out in any of his three Rolls-Royces to celebrate her birthday.

Instead, he rented a double-decker bus and a driver for $150 and had his wife, Alice, picked up in front of the Metropolitan Museum on Sunday, a short distance from their home.

The couple and their two teen-age children rode to a delicatessen in lower Manhattan for hot pastrami sandwiches. Then they boarded the English bus for a trip to an ice cream parlor at Madison Avenue and 79th Street where they had coconut cones.

"Every year I try to do something special for her," said Dormann. One birthday, he arranged for Emmett Kelly, the clown, to present a gold rose he had bought at Tiffany's to Alice during a circus performance.

Waldheim named Maj. Gen. Emmanuel Erskine of Ghana, the chief of staff of the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization in Lebanon, to command the new U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon.

An advance unit of several hundred Austrians and Swedes was being formed from U.N. buffer forces on the Golan Heights and in the Sinai Desert.

Erskine and Lt. Gen. Enso Silasvuo, the Finnish coordinator of U.N. peacekeeping missions in the Middle East, met with Israeli officials in Jerusalem to discuss putting the council's resolution into effect.

Before leaving Israel, Begin said he had "a great many doubts" about the value of U.N. peacekeeping troops in southern Lebanon and that he was carrying several counter-proposals to Carter. Sources in Jerusalem said Israel would not pull back unless Syrian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon agreed to prevent the Palestinian guerrillas from returning to the border area.

In the Syrian capital of Damascus today, foreign minister of four hard-line Arab states — Syrian, Libya, Algeria and South Yemen — met for a second day to discuss the southern Lebanon situation.

Syria's foreign minister, Abdul Halim Khaddam, opened the meeting Sunday urging the Arabs to "assume their responsibilities by sending troops through or across Syria to reinforce the armed struggle of the Arab nation." Syria has, however, expressed approval of the plan for a U.N. buffer force in the region.

LITTERED PARKING LOT — Beer bottles littering the Municipal Auditorium-Coliseum parking area made a lot of work for city cleanup crews this morning. The debris was left in the wake of a concert by the "Foghat" rock group here Sunday night. More than 9,000 people attended the concert. (Staff Photo)

Radioactive Cloud Passing Over U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — With little official attention or concern, a radioactive cloud from last week's nuclear bomb explosion in China is passing over Alaska and the Pacific Northwest.

Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Bob Jacobson said Sunday night that monitoring devices in Alaska, Washington, Oregon and Idaho were measuring radioactivity but measurements would not be read until today. "If it is measurable, it will be barely detectable and insignificant as far as health impact," he said.

Dallas' Justice Center Gets Special Request

DALLAS (UPI) — Architects designing Dallas county's new criminal justice center have been asked to make provisions for coverage by the electronic news media, says Dallas Bar Association Robert Thomas.

Thomas said he felt there should be some restrictions on the coverage, but he made the recommendation because of increased coverage by the electronic media.

Television cameramen and still photographers have been allowed to shoot silent film of several Dallas county trials in the past.

Judges involved in the trials have said technological advances have made it possible for the media to work without camera equipment or special lighting, thereby not interfering with the trials.

But on the same issue, the Dallas Criminal Bar Association's board of directors voted this week to urge jurors to adhere to a part of the state Code of Judicial Conduct that bars the filming, tape recording or photographing in courtrooms or in areas adjacent to the courtrooms while court is in session, without first securing the permission of those involved.

Criminal Bar President Ron Goranson said attorneys should know that unless their client agrees to the publicity, they should ask the court to abide by the code.

"I think it puts an awful lot of pressure on jurors, who need their anonymity so they can reach a fair verdict without pressure from neighbors or anybody else," Goranson said.

'People's Painter' Racing Against Time

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
HONG KONG (UPI) — She travels by jeep, boat, helicopter and on foot — her mission: to capture on canvas tribespeople in some of the most remote spots on earth before civilization catches up with them.

Her legal name now is Texana, taken from her native Texas (Abilene), and the blonde, middle-aged (she won't divulge the exact number of years) American artist calls herself "the people's painter."

Since 1963 she has been in 110 countries and most recently completed two works on Hong Kong street life — not the modern, skyscraper-dotted business district but colorful sidestreets where life has changed little over the decades.

Texana, whom critics have said has a style reminiscent of Van Gogh, has painted Tibetans in a border village, nomadic tribesmen in the Persian desert, Lapps in the Arctic Circle, Palestinian refugees, faces of the casbah in Algiers and the Mandingos of West Africa.

She traveled 10 hours by jeep to reach the Koochi tribesmen of Afghanistan, flew by helicopter to paint the Meos of Laos and hopped across the border to visit tribes of northern Thailand. To reach the island of Nias off Sumatra she signed on aboard a Dutch vessel as an art instructor.

She also has painted a beauty from Egypt's Siwa tribe, one from the Samburu in Kenya and a child carpet weaver in Khorrasan, Iran's holy city.

But her most difficult subjects, she says, were back home in America — the Hobi and Navajo Indians — most of whose communities have signs suggesting that "strangers keep out."

"When I showed up everyone disappeared except an old man," Texana recalled. "He noticed a necklace I was wearing from a tribe on another continent that had no relation to the Hobi. But he could relate to the craftsmanship and once he was willing to be painted, others slowly appeared."

She said a mother and her child similarly broke the barrier in a village among the Navajos, largest Indian tribe in the United States.

Texana keeps an apartment in Beverly Hills, Calif., but is away most of the time. Her works are displayed in galleries around the world, but she works on commission only when she needs money to finance her expensive expeditions.

"Curiosity usually motivates members of even the most remote tribes," Texana said, particularly when they are confronted by a woman in paint-spattered clothing with brushes and easel. "Despite language barriers, they understand my desire to paint because they also create things with their hands."

Putting it another way, she said, "The paint brush becomes an olive branch."

She says she's in a race to paint people as they are before they are uprooted by modern civilization. Each face has a name and, with it, a story and Texana keeps a journal on people who have not yet been caught up "in a modern homogenized world."

Most of her creations are destined for the "People of the World" museum, to be located in Geneva, Switzerland. She said it will display not only her art work but ethnic handicrafts of the tribes she has visited.

Texana began her career doing portraits (including the presidents of 20 Latin American countries), but 15 years ago decided to embark on the project which has since occupied her totally.

"After our environment and dreams have vanished," she said, "the paintings of the people of the world may survive as a testament to the spirit of man and art for people's sake."

Monkeys Being Used In Tooth Studies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent experiments on Rhesus monkeys may pave the way for greater success in tooth transplant operations, says Dr. James E. Yeager of the Naval Dental Research Center at Great Lakes, Ill.

Yeager told a group of dental researchers that experiments with 30 monkeys showed that transplanted teeth remain in position better when donors and recipients are fully matched for immune system compatibility.

U.S. Observatory In Arizona Open For All To See

By ARTHUR J. LINGLE
TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Tour guide Joe Underwood braces against the railing to avoid slipping on the ice patches.
 The dome interior of the world's second largest telescope — the 158-inch Mayall — is kept at about 35 degrees and that means having a refrigerated floor. Blasting heat waves would distort the view.
 "If we could flatten out the Earth a little, one of our medium-sized telescopes could pick up a man lighting a match on the Empire State Building 3,000 miles away," he says.

"But the 375-ton instrument behind me is so delicately balanced, like a fine watch, that it can be turned by a one-half horsepower motor — the equivalent of a vacuum cleaner motor."
 This is the world where fiction becomes science: the 20-year-old Kitt Peak National Observatory. It is the nation's research and development center for ground-based astronomy in the Northern Hemisphere and a must stop for anyone who has ever looked above and wondered about the universe.
 There are actually two Kitt Peak facilities:

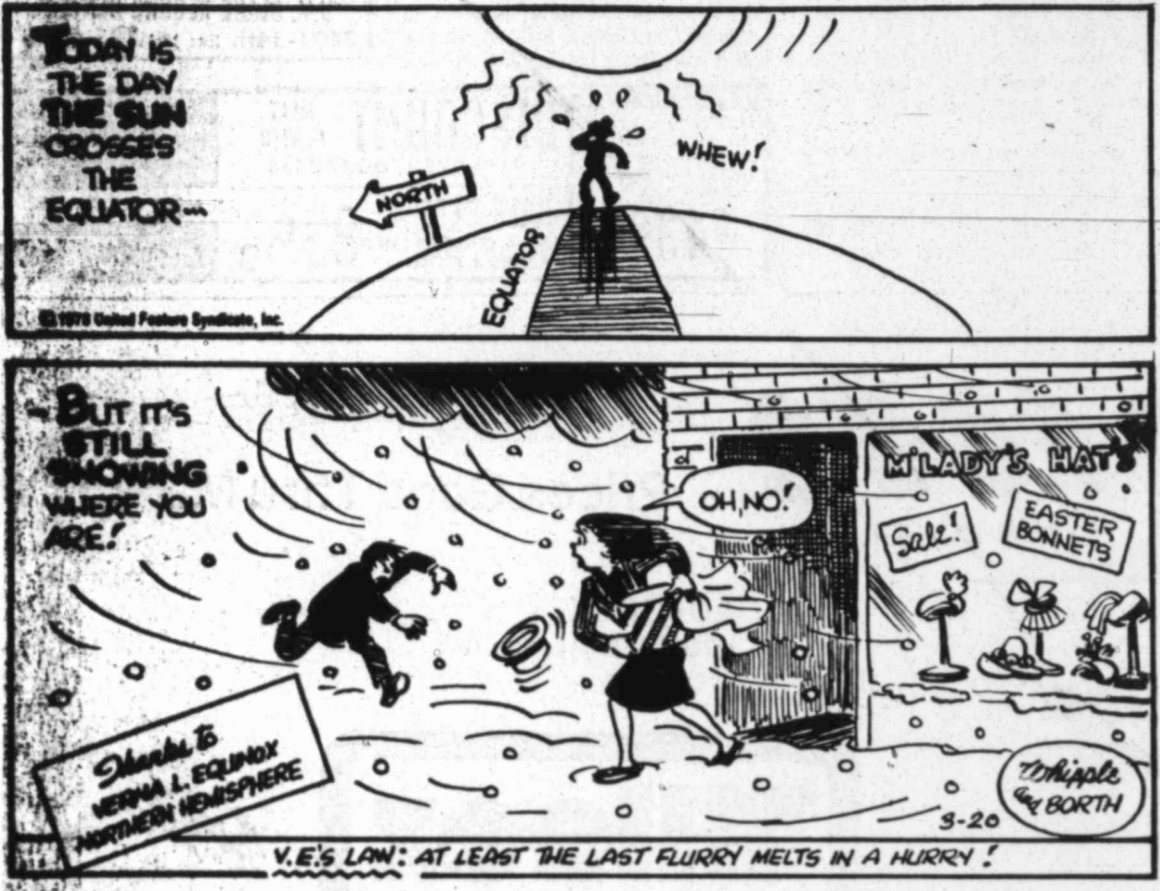

the main headquarters encompassing a city block in Tucson near the University of Arizona campus, and the mountain observatory, 50 miles to the southwest.
 The 15 massive white telescopes — the largest concentration anywhere in the world — can easily be seen from the desert valley road as you begin the winding 10-mile trek up the nearly 7,000-foot peak in the Quinlan Mountains.
 The 11,000-member Papago Indian tribe, the second largest in the country, owns 3 million acres here and Uncle Sam leases the 2,400-acre mountain site from them.

 The mountain observatory is virtually self-sufficient. A support crew of 50 workers, from auto mechanics to carpenters, keeps operations running smoothly for the 15 to 25 astronomers who live there anywhere from several days to several weeks.
 The visiting astronomers, more than 250 a year from throughout the world, are housed in one of four dormitories. There is a staff of nine cooks to prepare four meals a day; a midnight meal is a necessity for the stargazers.
 It is said astronomy is one of man's first basic sciences. It still has an esoteric look here with astronomers coming from places like Australia, France, Germany and the Soviet Union. Recently Kitt Peak's top administrators spent a month in China.
 "We're not like a military industry making offensive weapons," said Dave Moore, the observatory's spokesman. "Everything we have is open to all to see."
 Some 76,000 visitors took advantage of the invitation last year.
 The standout attractions on the mountain are the Mayall and McMath telescopes.

This four-meter reflector can record images at the outer fringes of the known universe 10 billion light years away.
 (A light year is the distance light travels in one year at 186,000 miles per second.)
 "One hour of viewing with such an instrument is equivalent to an entire night's work with the larger telescopes of an earlier generation," said Moore.
 The mammoth Mayall is a stellar telescope used by astronomers to determine the temperature, mass, distance, composition and velocity of stars. Every two to three years its aluminum-coated mirror has to be resurfaced because of oxidation. The resurfacing is done on the mountain.
 The 1.5-meter McMath solar telescope, the largest in the world, is focused on the sun. A 110-foot tower with a heliostat (tracking mirror) reflects light down a 500-foot path with the last 300 feet being a shaft cored into the mountain. The result is a 30-inch image of the sun.
 The first laser ever beamed off the moon originated here.
 "The first group of astronauts put a one-meter reflector on the moon," said Underwood. "Scientists simply reversed the telescope process and shot a laser to the moon which returned to the Earth 2.7 seconds later in California."
 "There are two groups of astronomers," said staff astronomer Donald Hall. "Theoreticians who think about and try to understand processes purely on the basis of mathematical tools. Then there's the fairly large group of astronomers who observe with existing instruments, define a problem and set out to solve it."
 "The sort of serendipity, dramatic discoveries are usually few and far between."
 Even in something this scientific, there is an element of chance. Mother nature doesn't allow telescope viewing for about 50 days of the year. For those unlucky astronomers booked on those dates:

 "Tough! Tough!" said Underwood. "It's gone. Down the drain. They'll have to reapply." It's a process that takes six to eight months.
 Most astronomers don't brave the cold working conditions. Instead they sit in heated control rooms within the domes — something akin to a television control room — and use 14 computers to keep their telescopes tracked on a star and record its light data.
 Spectrographs are used to split up the star light into the colors of the spectrum thus allowing scientists to determine chemical compositions.
 Most of the analytical work is done back at the Tucson headquarters which has a staff of 300 scientists, engineers, administrators and support personnel.
 The three-level facility features one of the largest optical shops in the world capable of polishing a 180-inch mirror blank. Currently, optical engineers are spending six months turning a 15-ton solid piece of fused quartz into the world's next three-meter telescope for the Manua Kea Observatory in Hawaii.

Money Serves As Main Factor In Abortions

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

For many women today, the decision whether to have an abortion is no longer one of morals. It's one of money.

Since Texas has no abortion statutes, legally there are no obstacles here to the procedure. But the drastic cutback in federal funds for Medicaid abortions in August, 1977, has made abortion available only to those women with the money to pay for it.

"It has put abortion back into the hands of those who can afford it," says Susan Olbekson, director of Lubbock's Planned Family Clinic, and clinic directors around the state agree with her.

"Money is making the decision as to whether a woman has the right to an abortion or not," Emerson Bell, head of San Antonio's Reproductive Services Inc., stated.

And Aralyn Cepeda, clinic administrator of the Austin Ladies' Center adds, "For poor women, the choice is almost totally taken away."

The guidelines put into effect last year, after more than a year of Congressional debate, ended federally funded abortions to "income eligible" women under the Title XX program, and limited federal Medicaid abortion support to only three specific situations:

•Cases when a physician determines the pregnancy would endanger the woman's life if continued to term.

•Cases of rape or incest reported to police or health authorities, and •Cases when, in the opinion of two physicians, the pregnancy would cause severe and long-lasting damage to the woman's physical health if continued to term. For women whose income falls below the poverty level, this means there are virtually no federal funds available to pay for abortions.

In Lubbock, Mrs. Olbekson said about 10 women a month had federally funded abortions at Planned Family Clinic before the federal guidelines were changed. Following the change, that number was cut to zero.

But at least once a week, she said, a woman — often with several children — calls the clinic, desperate because she is pregnant and cannot afford another child. But she also cannot afford to pay for an abortion.

"I have to tell them there is no federal money available, and it just kills me to do it," she said.

"We try and counsel the woman to talk to the man (about helping pay for the abortion) or help her find her own resources to pay for it."

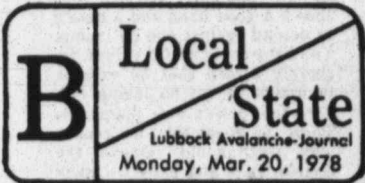

At Planned Family Clinic, an abortion costs $200 for women in the first 10 weeks of pregnancy and $375 between the 10th and 14th week. Fees at clinics in other major Texas cities range from $150 to $500.

Many clinics only provide abortions through the 12th week, and must refer other patients to other cities or other states.

"For poor women, when you're looking at a trip out of town and a stay overnight, and then paying $350 to $400 for an abortion, there's no way," said the head of an Austin clinic.

The director of San Antonio's Reproductive Services Inc., estimates some 90 women around the country have committed suicide or died during self-induced abortion attempts because their cases could

High Winds Drive Fires In Texas

By United Press International

Fires that in some places were so intense they moved through the air like whirlwinds of red flame charred thousands of acres of dry Texas brush and timber land during the weekend.

At least six major fires, all driven by winds up to 40 mph, were reported in northern and north eastern parts of the state but there were no reports of injuries.

"So far we have been lucky," said Graham fireman David Hooper. "We've had no injuries and no homes have been burned."

Hooper said the strong winds and low humidity kept fires in that area going from about noon Saturday to late Sunday before they could be brought under control.

"It's dropped down to about 25 or 26 percent humidity," Hooper said. "That brush out there is just like gasoline when it gets that low. They'll build up enough heat to generate their own wind."

"I watched one (Sunday) pick itself up and jump 100 feet and start again without burning anything in between. It looked like the air was on fire — like a whirlwind of fire, a flame. It just picked itself up 20 or 25 feet in the air, went over us and then dropped back down and started burning again."

In Graham and other areas all-night patrols were set up to watch for new outbreaks.

More than 2,100 acres of a Boy Scout camp near Athens burned Saturday and Sunday. Officials said Boy Scouts were cooking breakfast Saturday in cleared area when an unusually strong gust of wind blew sparks from the fire and into surrounding brush. About 2,180 acres of oak, pine and sagebrush was burned but the Boy Scout lodges were not damaged.

In Throckmorton County, about 75 miles southwest of Wichita Falls, 100 firemen were needed to control a major blaze. Smoke from the 16-mile long wall of flame could be seen in Weatherford, about 90 miles to the southeast.

Almost all city and volunteer fire units in Young, Throckmorton and Haskell counties were involved. Stockmen and farmers converted cattle sprayers into makeshift fire hoses and joined the embattled firemen.

Meanwhile, some ranchers reportedly cut their fences to release trapped cattle. No large loss of livestock was reported.

In Montague County near the Red River, firemen from Bowie and at least nine other communities fought four separate fires. A trailer home was burned near Bowie, but the family escaped. Otherwise, no occupied homes were damaged in the blazes.

Officials said about 25 firetrucks were needed to fight the largest fire, which burned an area at least eight miles long. All four fires were placed under control late Sunday.

U.S.-Mexican Treaty May Help Texan

BROWNSVILLE (UPI) — The U.S.-Mexico prisoner exchange treaty apparently is going to help a Texas shrimp diver avoid serving the bulk of a murder sentence pronounced by a Mexican court, even though the crime was committed in the United States.

In Brownsville on May 9, 1972, shrimp diver Gabriel Galvan allegedly murdered taxi driver Jose Adan Gutierrez, whose home was just across the border in Matamoros, Mexico. To avoid U.S. authorities, Galvan fled to Mexico, only to be arrested there and charged with killing a Mexican national.

Galvan was convicted there and in mid-1977 began serving his 14-year sentence for murder, but in December — having served only six months — he was transferred to a U.S. prison under provisions of the new treaty.

Now U.S. authorities say he cannot be tried again.

"He'll probably be released in a year and a half," said Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley, who had Galvan transported to Brownsville for trial before learning he was immune under the treaty.

"The treaty hasn't been published yet and we didn't know that provision was in there."

Connally Avoids Announcement Of Political Plans For Future

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally has decided to delay any declaration on his political plans, but is suggesting he might feel at home in a crowd of GOP presidential hopefuls.

"I frankly don't want to approach a decision time yet," Connally said Sunday on a television interview program.

"A year from now I suspect I will have made my decision. Right after the elections in November — the next two or three months after that — I'm going to seriously think about what I want to do."

"If I decide to run, and I might, then I'm going to announce."

Connally said at the moment the party should concentrate on electing Republican congressmen, governors and state legislators and he indicated he would make himself available to help in those campaigns.

After that, he said he would consider a bid for the presidency even though "there may be a dozen of us" seeking the GOP nomination. He said he was undaunted by the prospect of challenging either former President Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan, although conceding them to be tough opponents.

"I would certainly be an underdog," he said, "and many people might think I would be presumptuous to announce against either one of them."

Connally was governor of Texas as a Democrat, but switched to the Republican party after joining the Nixon administration as treasury secretary and adviser from 1971 to 1973.

Connally said if he was a presidential candidate he would not make votes on the Panama Canal treaties a central campaign issue — an apparent reference to another potential GOP challenger, Sen. Robert Baker, R-Tenn., who supports the treaties.

"I just think it's wrong to try to categorize individuals on the basis of one vote," he said. "And I certainly would not make the Panama Canal a test for any reason."

Connally said if he was in the Senate he would vote against the treaties because of what he said was national sentiment against them.

On other points, Connally said: —His "John Connally Citizens Forum Fund" has raised about $300,000 to help GOP candidates, and he hopes to raise as much as $1 million.

—The United Nations must move quickly to place a peacekeeping force in

Trull Faces Trial For Kidnapping

TYLER (AP) — A man authorities say "hasn't lied yet" faces trial here on aggravated kidnapping charges stemming from an incident in which he allegedly tried to force Tyler millionaire Billy Pyron, convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes and others to pay $1.6 million he says they owe him.

Estes is among 55 persons subpoenaed by attorneys for Mississippi promoter Don Trull.

Trull, 40, is charged with holding Pyron's assistant, Bill Mays, hostage in Pyron's office last Aug. 9, demanding restitution for the money he says was swindled from him.

Mays was released unharmed when Trull surrendered to police four hours after he splashed gasoline around the office and threatened to ignite it.

Following his arrest, a high-ranking law enforcement source told The Associated Press, Trull was given a lengthy polygraph examination and was asked several questions pertaining to his allegations against Estes.

"According to the polygraph, he hasn't lied to us yet," said the source.

Besides Estes, the witness list is expected to include several West Texas and Tyler businessmen, many of whom also claim they lost money in Estes-orchestrated promotions.

Estes is on parole after serving about half of a 15-year sentence following his conviction for a massive fraud scheme involving non-existent fertilizer tanks. Under the terms of his release eight years ago, he is barred from engaging in any promotional activities.

Trull claims part of his missing money went for a similar scheme involving non-existent portable steam cleaners. The Texas Attorney General's office, the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service are investigating the allegations.

Pyron has denied any involvement in the alleged steam cleaning scheme or subsequent land deals, which Trull claims were arranged by Estes using Pyron's financing. Estes has referred all comments to his attorney, Jack Bryant, who has branded Trull a "common felon."

Shortly after he was indicted last September, Trull called a news conference and turned over a huge stack of documents to Smith County District Attorney A.D. Clark III. The promoter said he took the ledgers, letters and financial statements from Estes' Abilene office in 1975 when the two men were still sharing an office. He said he left with the documents when he realized he had been "ripped off."

Trull made the same documents available to The AP and the three law enforcement agencies several months earlier before he moved here from the Abilene area.

Crash Puzzles Investigators

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators were still puzzled about what caused a twin-engine aircraft to crash and burn during what appeared to be a routine landing at Houston Intercontinental Airport early Sunday, killing the pilot and his passenger.

Killed in the crash were 25-year-old Terry William Lane, a corporate pilot for a restaurant chain, and Judith Nunery, 28, an air traffic controller at Houston's Hobby Airport.

Authorities said the plane was landing at the airport after a 10-minute flight from Hobby to the city's south side when the crash occurred about 1:30 a.m.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators were mystified by the fact that the plane hit the runway in a near-vertical, nose-down position.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

A waiter approached our table the other night with what has become one of the most predictable rituals of eating out. He said, "Are you familiar with our salad bar?"

Is he crazy? At my age, it's the only thing I am familiar with.

To date, I have built my salad out of such curiosities as a bathtub filled with ice, a hay wagon, a pushcart, and a ferris wheel.

Basically, they are the same...a mound of ice featuring half-buried bowls of lettuce, shrimp, chicken, tuna, cottage cheese, pickled beets, cole slaw, fruit, assorted dressings, croutons and black pepper.

Don't misunderstand me. I'm not knocking salad bars. I consider them one of the most adventurous bits of daring to hit restaurants since the no-pay toilets.

It takes a lot of guts to put serving spoons into the hands of patrons and say, "Help yourself." That is probably why a lot of thought has gone into the salad bar because they have to consider man's most basic force: greed!

Thus, we have the salad bar with a glass angled over it. Within easy reach toward the front is the lettuce (39 cents a pound). In the rear is the crabmeat ($8 a pound) that you can reach only by leaning under the glass and severing your throat from the rest of your body.

As a shrimp freak, I am always interested in how they disguise them. One night the shrimp were so small I had to summon a waitress to identify them. (I had blemishes bigger than those little devils.)

In keeping with the "high risk" factor of self-service, I have noted that the coveted Blue Cheese and Roquefort dressings have serving spoons in them that I have not seen since I told my babies, "Open up wide, here come the choo-choo trains."

After the waiter asked his basic salad question, he progressed to even more intimacy by introducing himself. He said, "I'm Brad and I'm your waiter this evening. When you go to the salad bar, I'll turn in your order for dinner."

"Thank you Brad," I said. "I'm Erma, this is my husband, Bill, and my sons, Jaws I and Jaws II."

I thought I saw him wince but my husband said they carry insurance for nights like this.

DEEP SOUTH — Ante-bellum flounces mark the rites of spring. The big ruffle hangs from the scooped neckline to the waist of a romantic dress. Contrasting shades of silky nylon are used to do the wide, three-tiered skirt.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AQJ95 ♥AKQ873 ♦93

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ 2♦ 2NT Pass 3♣ Pass 3NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid four spades. Even though it seems that most of partner's strength is in the minor suits, and that any club values he has could be wasted, you shouldn't yet give up hopes of slam. You can complete the picture of your hand by rebidding your spade suit now, showing a good 5-6 distribution.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKQ72 ♥85 ♦AS ♦Q1073

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♦ Dble. Rdble. 2♣ ?

What action do you take?

A.—You must bear in mind that partner's redouble could be based on short spades. Usually, it is correct to pass in this position to give partner the right of way. Here, however, in view of your holding in clubs, partner cannot possibly have sufficient length or strength in clubs to make a penalty double, and that might be your optimum spot. Therefore, you should help out and make the penalty double. Partner will then know that you are quite willing to defend unless he has a spade fit.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠6 ♥A108 ♦AQ762 ♣KQ83

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♦ 1♣ 2♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In the light of partner's bid, your hand has become very strong and slam is not out of the question. You should plan to bid out your distribution to highlight your singleton spade for partner. To do this we suggest you first bid three clubs, and then support hearts at the four-level at your next turn, with a jump if necessary.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠7 ♥A109652 ♦84 ♣KJ52

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner must have, extra values for his "free" rebid and, since you have working cards in both of his suits, a bid of three clubs would not do your hand full justice. It would sound to partner as if you were simply taking preference and he might pass. We suggest you give up all thoughts of a possible no trump game and jump to four clubs.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠J1073 ♥83 ♦Q65 ♣K984

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1♦ 1NT Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—By doubling, partner has shown a good hand and a desire to defend against one no trump. You have some useful values, including a card that he expects to find with the no trump bidder—the queen of diamonds. There is absolutely no reason why you should remove the double. Pass and expect a juicy profit.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your understanding reply to that 13-year-old girl who said she nearly died of embarrassment when taking gang showers after gym. I hope her mother follows your advice and goes to the principal to demand some privacy for her daughter.

GOLD RUSH PENOCHÉ

1 1/2 cups brown sugar, packed
1 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cup coffee beverage
3 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
1 1/2 cups California walnuts
Combine sugars, coffee and butter in deep 1 1/2 to 2-quart saucepan. Stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves. Cover and simmer 3 to 4 minutes, so steam will wash down any crystals that form on sides of pan. Uncover, place candy thermometer in mixture and boil without stirring to 238 degrees or soft ball stage. Remove from heat, add vanilla and let stand without stirring until barely warm to touch. Meanwhile, coarsely chop walnuts. When candy has cooled beat until mixture is creamy and begins to lose its gloss. Stir in walnuts. Turn into buttered loaf pan, 9 x 5 x 2 3/4 inches, or an 8-inch square pan. Let stand until set before cutting. Makes about 1 1/2 lbs. candy.

DEAR ABBY: Instead of sympathizing with that shy girl, you should have encouraged her to examine her reason for being ashamed of her body. Your answer was kind, but dumb. If she ever marries, she'll be the type who undresses in the closet and can't make love with the lights on.

NO HANG-UPS HOLYOKE

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly how that 13-year-old girl felt because I felt the same way, but it was worse for me because I was a boy.

Not only could I not gang shower, I couldn't even strip in front of other boys, so on gym days I wore my gym shorts under my pants.

I should have faced the fact that I had a problem and taken measure to overcome it in my youth. But I didn't, and it hung on for 15 years. You should have advised that shy girl to get counseling.

CHICKEN

DEAR ABBY: Good grief! Why did you give comfort to that young girl who was ashamed of her body? If she doesn't get over it, between her natural instincts and her inhibitions, she's sure to wind up on a psychiatrist's couch.

Our kids were brought up in a nudist park, and they all have healthy attitudes about nudity and sex.

BODIES ARE BEAUTIFUL

DEAR ABBY: I must disagree with your answer to the teenager who hated group showers. I, too, was terribly embarrassed when confronted with group showers in junior high. My mother wanted to go to school to defend my right to privacy, but I begged her not to because I was afraid the other kids would tease me if I got special treatment. Now I'm glad she didn't go, because by the end of high school I overcame my feeling of "shame" about my body.

NOT ASHAMED OF ME

DEAR NOT: Let's hear from a Miami reader who tells how the problem was solved at her school:

DEAR ABBY: There are always a few girls who are bashful about being seen naked in the shower, so our gym teacher lets as shower in our underwear. Then we change into dry underclothes in the toilet booth where there's complete privacy.

LILY

And one for the other side: DEAR ABBY: Nobody, boys or girls, should be forced to go naked in front of others. That's the trouble with this modern world. Everybody has become so bold and brazen they are letting it all hang out. It's disgusting!

PROTEIN BOOST

To improve their diets, foreign countries have been importing American breeding livestock. Record number of cattle, hogs, dairy cows, and other livestock are now exported to more than 50 countries. These countries want to boost protein in local diets, and see American livestock as the fastest, easiest way to do it. Because our livestock are superior in converting feed to meat, milk, and other animal-food products, foreign nations can increase their protein production quickly with little or no increase in feeding requirements or new facilities.

52 POUNDS! IN A SIZE 8 DRESS

BEFORE IN SIZE 20

I walked into Pat Walker's Figure Salon in Lubbock a few months ago, ready to try one more time to lose weight. I had tried everything else, even to having surgical staples put in my ears.

After my courtesy treatment, the counselor explained the Pat Walker figure correction program to me. When she assured me that the program was guaranteed, I felt I had finally found the solution to my figure problems.

When I began my program at Pat Walker's Figure Salon, I weighed 178 lbs. and wore a size 20 dress. Today I weigh 126 lbs. and wear a size 8 dress. My life style has changed completely because today I can do "skinny" things. I can't wait for summer so I can lounge around the pool in my new size 8 bikini!

Ms. Clifton starts a new career soon as Asst. Mgr. in Pat Walker Salon in Garland, Tex.

The Slim Gourmet

Mushrooms are such a marvelous indulgence for calorie-watchers... a treat that's especially welcome in the winter months when so many other fresh friends are missing from the produce stand. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture a whole pound of mushrooms is only 27 calories (a half-cup, sliced, is only 20!). Mushrooms may be expensive, but name another "luxury" food that costs you that little in calories!

With that in mind, it's time to answer some often-asked questions about mushrooms:

OPEN OR CLOSED? Many cookbooks advise readers to buy only closed mushrooms, not "open-veiled" mushrooms. (The "veil" is that fragile, feathery membrane under the cap that shows after the mushroom blossoms open.) Mushrooms open their veils long before they lose their freshness. In fact, some European epicures prefer open mushrooms and consider closed ones underripe. Mushrooms are usable as long as they're plump, firm and smooth, not wilted or wrinkled.

BROWN OR WHITE? Or golden? Or cream-colored? Like eggs, the color doesn't affect the flavor. Once upon a time white mushrooms were sold almost exclusively in the East, brown ones in the West, but now all shades can be found all over.

BIG OR SMALL? The ripeness and tenderness has nothing to do with size. So pick the size which suits the use you have in mind. Big ones for stuffing, small ones for dips.

PEELED OR UNPEELED? Peeled? Is there anybody left who still peels mushrooms? There are some old cookbooks around that advise it, but peeling mushrooms is unnecessary, a waste of time (and mushrooms!). You might like to take a thin slice off the end of the stem if it's less than fresh.

TO FREEZE OR NOT? Yes, mushrooms can be frozen. Some cooks simply pop them in the freezer without further ado, but they tend to lose quality that way. Best bet is to blanch them first. Drop them in boiling water and boil three minutes. Rinse in chilled water, then drain, blot and bag in plastic.

DRAINED OR UNDRAINED? Many recipes that use canned mushrooms call for the mushrooms to be drained. What a waste of lovely flavor! Why not add it to the dish you're making; simply cut down on other liquids. If you have no use for the mushroom "broth" in the recipe you're working on, save the liquid in the refrigerator for your next soup or stew. Or use it as the cooking liquid for other vegetables.

COOKED OR RAW? Yes, there are still some people who have never eaten mushrooms raw. If you haven't, by all means try it now. Slice raw mushrooms into a salad, or serve them as an appetizer with a tangy dip (or some bottled low-calorie salad dressing.) Or simply sprinkle with salt and pepper the next time you want a low-cal nibble. Raw mushrooms taste entirely different from cooked ones. Lots of mushroom fans like them even better raw (me included!).

MEAL-SIZE MUSHROOM SALADS
Here are some slim combinations to try: add sliced raw mushrooms to:

STEAK 'N' SPINACH — chilled leftover lean roast beef or steak, red onion and diet French or Bleu cheese dressing.

EGG 'N' SPINACH — hard-cooked eggs, raw spinach, onion and diet Italian dressing. Strew on some bacon bits.

TUNA 'N' TOMATO — drained water-packed white meat tuna, flaked over torn romaine lettuce, with onion rings and tomato wedges, topped with diet Italian dressing.

SHRIMP 'N' GREEN PEPPER — or cold cooked crab or lobster, on a bed of lettuce with scallions and low-calorie Thousand Island dressing.

CHICKEN AND CELERY — (or cold roast turkey) mixed with diet mayonnaise and minced onion, mounded on lettuce, garnished with sliced mushrooms. Or stuff the filling into super-size mushroom caps (chop the stems into the salad mixture).

3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
Salad greens
Drain and slice crab. Blend mayonnaise with lemon juice, mustard, anchovy paste and tarragon. Add gherkins, onion, green pepper, capers and eggs. Gently stir in crab. Serve chilled on individual salad plates lined with greens. Makes 4 servings.

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium bowl cream the butter, sugar and vanilla; one at a time, beat in the eggs well. Stir in the dry ingredients in 4 additions, alternately with the milk, just until smooth each time. Spoon 1/2 of the batter into a buttered 9 by 9 by 2-inch cake pan; add 1/2 of the Cocoa Mixture in small blobs — do not try to spread it. Repeat layers, ending with the Cocoa Mixture. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 35 minutes. Cool in pan on a wire rack. Cut in squares and remove from the pan.

Cocoa Mixture: Blend 3 tablespoons soft butter with 1/2 cup sweet chocolate-flavor beverage mix; stir in 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts.

SOME LIKE IT COLD
A constant diet of hot meals can dull family interest in dining. It's best to intersperse hot entrees with cold ones. Although hot beef dishes zoom in popularity in the colder months, an active family can yearn for a cold meat platter or for a salad or sandwich including cold roast beef. Remember, good well balanced meals, hot or cold, are important any season.

Tri-County Cinderella Miss Winners Picked At Pageant

About 450 persons attended the Tri-County Cinderella Miss Pageant at the Memorial Civic Center Theater Saturday night in which 39 young misses exhibited talent, poise and beauty.

Shannon Adams, 17, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. L.H. Adams of Lubbock was chosen as Cinderella Teen in the 13 to 17 year age group, while first runner-up honors went to Kanice Newton, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Newton of Abernathy. Second runner up was Michelle Timok, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Timok of Lubbock. Talent winner in that division was Marsha Dee Davis, 15, of Slaton. She performed a ballet dance.

Chosen as Cinderella Miss in the 10 to 12 year age division was Traci House, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David House of not be funded under the new guidelines.

"We're still hearing from women who tried to abort themselves with coat hangers," Mrs. Olbekson adds.

And there have been reports of illicit abortions performed in a small town near Lubbock for $50.

The Department of Human Resources (DHR) is the state agency that administers Medicaid programs and helps pay for abortions which fall under the federal restrictions.

According to Lewis Mondy, director of DHR's Family Planning Programs, even for cases where Medicaid money is available, the state has added its own regulations.

Any doctor seeking to perform a "therapeutic abortion" under HEW guidelines must receive written permission through the department, a procedure that usually takes about three days. If a question exists about the safety of the mother's life, the doctor must get a second opinion, which "could conceivably cause the abortion to go beyond the first trimester (22 weeks)," Mondy said.

The change in federal regulations has brought about a corresponding change in the number of abortion related services provided by the DHR.

From Sept. 1, 1976, to August 4, 1977 (the day before the guidelines changed), the state and federal government paid for 3,506 Medicaid abortions at $186 each, and 11,300 Title XX abortions at "income eligible" women at $212 each.

Under the new guidelines, DHR reports only 22 Medicaid, or therapeutic, abortions have been financed from Dec. 1, 1977, to Feb. 28, 1978.

However, Medicaid-funded births, costing $850 each, numbered 17,532 in fiscal year 1976, and 10,475 in fiscal year 1977. Beth Weber, section director with DHR's Family Planning Programs, said 80 percent of these deliveries were "unwanted or unplanned for." And she predicts the number of births for this fiscal year will increase by several thousand due to the curtailed abortion funding.

Texas continues to try to rewrite the century-old abortion law struck down as unconstitutional in the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 Wade v. Roe decision.

Jack Ogg, Senate co-sponsor of an unsuccessful 1977 bill says his measure to outlaw abortions after the 22nd week of pregnancy, except where the mother's life is in danger, is "about as moderate a bill as you can present."

Ogg reportedly plans to reintroduce the bill in the same basic form next year, along with measures outlawing saline abortions before the first trimester (22 weeks) when another form is acceptable, and requiring a medical team to provide life support systems for any fetus borne alive during a legal abortion.

Personally, he says, he opposes abortion, but adds, "I think we ought to deal with an issue in which the states and Congress must set out guidelines... I don't think we ought to deal with rich or poor people."

But as one clinic director put it, without government funding, the rich or poor people problem is the heart of the abortion issue — and for some women a life and death issue.

Scientists use two scales to date the various episodes involved in shaping the earth. The relative time scale is the method of examining the sequence of layering of the rocks and the progressive development of life seen in rocks with fossils. The atomic scale is based on the natural radioactivity of chemical elements within the rocks.

'Clovis Man' Artifacts Discovered

WINCHESTER, (UPI) — Archeologists say artifacts found on a Central Texas farm may reveal information about "Clovis man," the earliest known inhabitant of North America.

Some of the discoveries date 10,000 years before Christ and the site shows signs of continuous occupation since that time.

Dr. Joseph Wilson, a linguist at Rice University, first discovered surface artifacts on his farm near Winchester, northwest of La Grange, and began explorations. He was joined in excavating the area by Dr. Joel Shiner, an archeologist at Southern Methodist University.

"I have never seen a site that has so much potential in my life," said Shiner, whose 30-year archeological career includes work on three continents. "This site has more varieties of culture and a more complete sequence than any other in North America."

"Unlike so much evidence we have of Paleo-Indian hunters, who had to be continually on the move in search of game, the artifacts at this site promise to provide continuous record of occupation, toolmaking debris and data on associated flora, fauna and climate."

The professors have found stone tools, bones and other artifacts and Shiner says as many as 1 million items may be buried in a clay sand bar 50 yards wide and several hundred yards long near a tributary of the Colorado River on Wilson's farm.

Shiner says the site appears to have 15 distinct occupational levels and he predicts the lowest level will provide insight on the life of Clovis man.

"In the past, archeology has been concentrated on a rather narrow front and pursued in much the same way a physician might take a biopsy — going down through various layers to recover and establish the sequence of points," he said. "We have learned to take a humanistic approach that reveals what people were actually doing."

However, Medicaid-funded births, costing $850 each, numbered 17,532 in fiscal year 1976, and 10,475 in fiscal year 1977. Beth Weber, section director with DHR's Family Planning Programs, said 80 percent of these deliveries were "unwanted or unplanned for." And she predicts the number of births for this fiscal year will increase by several thousand due to the curtailed abortion funding.

Texas continues to try to rewrite the century-old abortion law struck down as unconstitutional in the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 Wade v. Roe decision.

Jack Ogg, Senate co-sponsor of an unsuccessful 1977 bill says his measure to outlaw abortions after the 22nd week of pregnancy, except where the mother's life is in danger, is "about as moderate a bill as you can present."

Ogg reportedly plans to reintroduce the bill in the same basic form next year, along with measures outlawing saline abortions before the first trimester (22 weeks) when another form is acceptable, and requiring a medical team to provide life support systems for any fetus borne alive during a legal abortion.

Personally, he says, he opposes abortion, but adds, "I think we ought to deal with an issue in which the states and Congress must set out guidelines... I don't think we ought to deal with rich or poor people."

But as one clinic director put it, without government funding, the rich or poor people problem is the heart of the abortion issue — and for some women a life and death issue.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Up 3.47 At 772.18

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved moderately higher today extending the rally begun late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.47 to 772.18 at noon today, slipping somewhat from the morning when it was up by nearly 6 points.

Overall gainers outnumbered losers by a margin of 5-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE composite index gained 24 to 50.49.

Analysts said the market appeared to be continuing the trend of late last week when the blue chip Dow index posted a net gain for the week of more than 10 points and closed Friday on the heaviest volume in four months.

The improvement of the dollar in foreign exchange trading both Friday and early today was seen as a factor in the market's mild rally.

Hercules, down 3/4 to 14, topped the noon NYSE active list.

Armstrong Cork, unchanged at 16 1/2; SCA Services, up 1/4 to 7 1/2; and K Mart, up 1/2 to 25 1/4; also were actively traded.

Among other issues, Hughes Tool Co. fell 2 1/4 to 31 1/4.

The company said over the weekend that it expected its first quarter earnings to decline from the 84 cents a share a year earlier.

It said, however, that per share earnings and revenue for the full year should exceed 1977.

Chrysler slipped 1/4 to 11 1/4. The company said it would ask stockholders next month to vote on proposals to authorize preferred shares for the first time and to expand the number of common shares outstanding.

Volume on the Big Board reached 12.13 million by noon, down from 14.29 million during the first two hours Friday.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 52 to 127.85.

Economic Panel Backs Jobs Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Joint Economic Committee of Congress today strongly endorsed the so-called Humphrey-Hawkins job bill as a weapon for fighting both unemployment and inflation.

The pending bill, which calls for reducing unemployment to 4 percent by 1983, was passed by the House last week. It was endorsed by the joint committee today in a report to Congress on President Carter's economic proposals.

The report was released by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., chairman of the joint committee, at the opening of hearings by the Senate Budget Committee.

"We strongly endorse the Humphrey-Hawkins bill and urge its swift enactment by the Congress," the report said.

The legislation — named for its chief sponsor, the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif. — was passed 257 to 152 by the House last week. The Senate has yet to act on it.

The committee said Congress should provide more economic stimulus than the president's budget called for in 1979, plus fiscal policies aimed at pushing interest rates back to 1977 levels.

The joint committee also urged Congress to take a new look at recently passed legislation to raise Social Security taxes and determine what its effect would be on the economy.

The U.S. economy made "substantial progress" in 1977, the report said, with

New Conditions Set For U.S.-Cuba Ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has imposed new conditions for improving U.S.-Cuban relations, in addition to the withdrawal of Cuban forces in Africa.

A foreign policy reference paper says Cuba also must improve the domestic climate for human rights, release political prisoners and compensate U.S. citizens and corporations for the $1.8 billion in property seized by the regime of Fidel Castro.

The new conditions came at a time of cool relations between Havana and Washington, in contrast to the rush of improvements following President Carter's inauguration.

"There cannot be any significant improvement in U.S.-Cuba relations until the level of these military adventures is sharply reduced," said the State Department in reference to the nearly 37,000 Cuban military advisers in nearly a score of African nations including Ethiopia.

"Normalization will take a long time and will depend on many factors, including Cuba's international behavior," the department paper noted.

But there seems little likelihood of quick Cuban withdrawal from Africa. Guerrillas battling Ian Smith's white regime in Rhodesia enjoy communist support. And many Marxist countries on the continent have helped from Cuban technicians, military advisers or medical personnel.

"What is disturbing is the suggestion that they (the Cubans) can or should move into other areas and in fact impose a military solution on others," said Assistant Secretary of State Terence Todman in a recent interview.

The additional American conditions for improvement may be more easily satisfied.

Claims for compensation could be negotiated. The State Department made clear the 1962 U.S. trade embargo on Cuba "will not end until these claims for losses suffered through expropriation are resolved."

The human rights issue probably could be papered over if Castro made some cosmetic gestures, officials concede. And the periodic release of political prisoners could ease the American demand. A year ago relations were steadily improving for the first time since the two nations ended diplomatic relations in 1961.

Carter Has Little Time To Celebrate Triumph

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has the triumph he needed most, but there's little time for the White House and its lobbyists to celebrate what they've won in the exhausting contest over the Panama Canal.

There are too many contests immediately ahead.

None is so emotionally charged, and few carry the political impact of the canal controversy — which, after all, is only half over.

But the administration agenda is crowded with items that make up in dollars and cents what they lack in symbolism.

There are foreign policy problems ahead, too, and Carter will need all the muscle he can exert in Congress to deal with the most intractable.

He needs congressional approval to go through with his $4.8 billion package of arms sales that would send jet fighters to Egypt and Saudi Arabia as well as Israel.

The sales to the two Arab nations face formidable opposition in a Congress that can veto the deal. The issue was tough enough before the renewed fighting in the Middle East, and the administration's call for Israeli withdrawal from southern Lebanon in favor of an international peacekeeping force. It is tougher now.

And Carter already has used the ultimate presidential argument in his personal lobbying for approval of the first of two Panama Canal treaties.

It was that Senate approval was crucial to his ability to credibly conduct the foreign policy of the United States. Indeed, he told one Democratic senator that victory on Panama might be crucial to his whole future in the White House.

That argument can't be used often. It wears out too easily.

Nor can the administration often deploy the high-powered lobbying team that labored to gain the Senate's narrow approval of the treaty designed to guarantee that the canal will be forever open to ships of all nations.

The effort sent Vice President Walter F. Mondale to the corridors of the Senate at breakfast-time and had Carter on the telephone far into the night. One senator, Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., got a call from Carter at a Washington restaurant, where it was so noisy he couldn't hear the presidential persuasion. He called back later. In the end, Zorinsky voted against the treaty.

The next vote up doesn't involve Congress, and it is one on which Carter's past efforts at persuasion have been a flop. That is Friday's vote by coal miners who have twice before rejected contracts, and who generally have ignored a federal court order to end their long strike.

Should they vote no again, Carter will face another crisis with his strike-ending weapons already spent, and might have to go to Congress seeking authority to have the government seize the mines in order to get coal production resumed. In the Senate, last Thursday's treaty ended one installment of the canal struggle and began another. Carter won with one vote to spare, and while the odds now heavily favor approval of the final treaty turning the canal over to Panama in the year 2000, the opposition is not conceding yet.

"The fight has only begun," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, urging the voters to lean on their senators in the weeks before the issue is settled.

And if that isn't enough for the weary White House lobbying team, Carter's energy bill still is stalled. One of its key features, a new tax on domestically produced oil, is in jeopardy in the Senate. His proposed overhaul of the welfare system is not likely to get through Congress this year. His proposal to put a ceiling on hospital rate increases is moving by inches, and may be in trouble.

There is congressional pressure to enlarge the $25 billion income tax cut Carter has proposed. And for good measure, there is a push in the House to cancel scheduled increases in Social Security taxes.

Scientists Still Uncertain About Xylitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists are still not sure whether the artificial sweetener xylitol, used in some chewing gum, inhibits tooth decay.

The sweetener is being looked upon as Cigarette Makers Use Less Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — American cigarette manufacturers are using less tobacco in their products by lengthening filters and making skinnier cigarettes, the government says.

"On the balance, these factors have enabled manufacturers to reduce tobacco requirements substantially per 1,000 cigarettes," the Agriculture Department says in a new report. "In 1977, U.S. cigarette manufacturers used an estimated 1.3 billion pounds of tobacco (based on the weight of the leaf at the farm), about six percent below 1976."

a possible substitute for saccharin, the widely-used sweetener that critics say may cause cancer.

Xylitol, a sugar alcohol found naturally in plants and animals, has been promoted in Europe as a sugar substitute for that unknown reason fights tooth decay.

Researchers from Emory University in Atlanta told the annual meeting of the International Association for Dental Research on Thursday that rats fed xylitol showed a lower incidence of tooth decay.

But they said the reduced tooth decay may be the result of the rats eating less food or other factors.

The Food and Drug Administration has approved xylitol as a sweetener only in chewing gum. It is used primarily in the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co.'s Orbit gum.

Preliminary findings of a British animal study released last year indicated xylitol caused bladder cancer in male mice fed large doses, but the FDA says the results are not definitive enough to indicate the substance should be banned.

Satellite To Alter Face Of Broadcasting In U.S.

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP)—It began on a limited basis this month, but in time the Public Broadcasting Service's new $39.5 million shows-by-satellite system will radically alter the face of broadcasting in America.

And it'll probably anger the commercial networks when permission is sought to let commercial TV stations, for a fee, share the use of PBS-bought satellite ground units at nearby public TV stations.

The predictions come from Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which oversees federal funding of non-commercial broadcasting in America.

Only 40 receive-only satellite ground stations now are installed at PBS stations, most in the Southeast, Loomis said in a phone interview from his office in Washington.

But by Dec. 31, he says, all 155 public TV licensees operating 270 PBS stations will have units that receive programs beamed down from Western Union's Westar 1 satellite 22,300 miles overhead.

"All the sections will be connected by satellite and the phone lines will be cut," he said, adding that this ends stations' dependence on costly land lines for receiving the programs they air.

But, program diversity, Loomis said, not transmission cost, is the main reason for the new system: The satellite can beam four shows simultaneously to stations. The old system sent one at a time.

Non-PBS channels also are available on the satellite, he said, and PBS stations, if they've bought rights to outside shows, "can pick up other people's programs if they wish."

"So it makes syndication very easy." PBS stations can't air advertising, he noted, but program syndicators whose sponsored shows are on commercial TV can and have sold the same shows — without advertising — to public TV stations.

He cited as an example producer Norman Lear's "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," which he said is aired by several PBS stations.

Commercial stations thinking about shows by satellite may not want the expense of building their own ground unit. What prevents them from sharing one installed at a nearby public TV station?

The Federal Communications Commission bars that, Loomis said: "Our FCC license at the moment permits the satellite ground station only to be used for public broadcasting." But that may change.

He said Western Union soon will ask the FCC to let PBS ground stations also be used by commercial broadcasters. And, he said, "we would concur in that."

"It'll mean dough to us," he said, explaining that commercial stations would pay PBS outlets for using the ground units. The impact of such a public-commercial alliance on the networks?

Checking Documents Can Save Money In Moving

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Moving day is coming soon for millions of Americans and families who want to avoid problems should start now to make sure their possessions are shipped promptly and safely.

The extra time you spend checking such things as shipment-weight and loading documents can pay off in savings when you get your bill.

One moving company estimates that nearly one-fifth of all Americans change their addresses each year; more than half the long-distance moves are made between May 15 and June 15.

The first step to success is a check of companies' performance reports, required by the Interstate Commerce Commission and dealing with such things as number of shipments delivered and number and type of complaints received. The mover must give you a copy of the report for his firm; he also should provide a copy of an ICC guide, BOP 103, telling you what you can and cannot expect.

Prices are based on weight and distance. Interstate movers must file tariffs with the ICC showing rates and charges. Copies are available at movers' offices and no interstate mover may charge more — or less — than his ICC rates.

The exact cost of a move cannot be determined until your goods are loaded into the van and weighed. If you ask, the mover must give you a written estimate in advance, but the estimates are not binding.

Note: Unless you arrange for credit ahead of time, the mover may insist on payment in full, in cash, traveler's check, money order or cashier's check, before your goods are unloaded. If the final charges exceed the estimate by more than 10 percent, however, the mover is required to deliver your shipment on payment of the amount estimated plus 10 percent. You have 15 days in which to pay the balance.

It is important to make sure you are not charged for more than you actually ship. The ICC, in announcing a crackdown last year, said some companies had been caught trying to boost weights — and prices — by adding everything from bricks to old engine parts to moving vans. Go to the weigh-in of your shipment. The mover must notify you in advance of the location of the scale.

The weight of a shipment is determined by weighing the van before and after loading. The driver should be in the van during the initial weighing; the crew should not. Fuel tanks must be full and the vehicle must contain all pads, claims, dollies, hand trucks, etc. that will be used.

There may be other shipments on the van during the initial weighing; you can be charged only for the difference in weight before and after your goods are added.

The driver must give you copies of two tickets, one showing the poundage before loading your shipment; the other showing the weight after. The tickets given to you must contain the same weights shown on the official tickets issued by the weighmaster and must include the bill of lading number for your shipment.

The bill of lading, which is the contract of transportation between you and the mover, will be given to you by the driver when he picks up your shipment. It must show the tare or preloading weight of the vehicle; compare it with the weight on the weight ticket and make sure the number on the bill of lading corresponds to the number listed for it on the weight ticket.

Each van driver is required to carry a vehicle-load manifest, listing each shipment transported in his truck. You are entitled to see it and should check the weight information and bill of lading number on the documents you have against the manifest. Insist that any inaccuracies are corrected on the spot. If you have trouble, contact the nearest ICC office.

You should get another weight ticket when your furniture is delivered. Ray Atherton, head of the ICC's Household Goods Branch, advises consumers to watch out for a ticket that has been altered, has no signature or is undated.

If you believe you are being billed for more than you shipped, you can request a reweighing. Again, the truck must be weighed with and without your shipment and you can watch. If there is a difference between the before and after-moving figures, the lower of the two net weights must be used for your bill.

You may have to pay for the reweighing — about $20 according to Atherton. Your money will be refunded, however, if the weight listed on the bill is 120 pounds or more over the actual weight, as determined by the reweighing.

Highway Administration Begins Probe Of Ford

DETROIT (AP) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has started an investigation of 5.3 million Ford vehicles assembled from 1973 to 1978 which may have automatic transmissions that shift on their own from park into reverse.

According to the agency's files, the apparent defect may have been responsible for at least 114 accidents in the past five years.

According to a Ford document supplied to the agency last month, the company knew of 171 accidents, 72 injuries and five deaths "allegedly attributable to inadvertent transmission shifting" in models containing C-6 transmissions since their 1966 introduction.

"Because there are deaths and accidents and injuries, and they all seem to have a relationship to the automatic transmission, it appears that there is an alleged defect," said Lynn Bradford, head of the safety agency's office of defects investigation.

The agency said Ford was not ordered to recall any of the vehicles because the apparent defect has not been precisely identified.

The investigation involves Ford Torino, Elites, Thunderbirds and LTD IIs; Mercury Montegos, Cougars and Lancolins; and F100, F150, F250, F350, Econoline and Bronco light trucks.

All the vehicles have engines with at least 351 cubic inches of displacement. Their transmissions are of the C-6 or FMX types.

The agency started an investigation of vehicles with C-6 transmissions in November after reports of the six deaths. When it was later determined that half the fatal accidents involved FMX transmissions, the investigation was expanded.

Ford faces several lawsuits concerning the allegedly faulty transmissions.

Ida Martin, 63, of Royal Oak, Mich., died Aug. 11, 1976, after being pinned against the garage by her 1973 Ford LTD. Matthew Quinn, an attorney representing her husband, said the car rolled into her as she stepped behind it to close the door.

In a second case, William Lightbody of Portsmouth, Va., contends he lost three fingers on his left hand because of the defect.

Lightbody's attorneys say he was 30 feet from his 1977 Thunderbird when it rolled backward down the street. When he tried to leap into the car to get control, his hand was smashed between the car door and a traffic sign.

In Palatine, Ill., Dr. Edward Peyser said his 1974 Mercury Marquis, which had been idling "for about five minutes," slipped backward and knocked him down. His injuries, he said, included a dislocated hip, a broken arm and broken pelvis.

His emergency brake had been engaged, Peyser said, but the brake in his car was designed to disengage once the gear is out of park. The design is typical on some Ford and Mercury models.

Bob Hope received an honorary Oscar in 1959 as the winner of the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian award.

Rising Nebraska River Forces Residents To Leave Homes

VALLEY, Neb. (AP) — Nearly 2,000 persons were forced out of their homes in small towns and residential areas outside Omaha and moved to temporary shelters, as floodwaters battered four counties today.

Gov. J.J. Exon said the overflowing waters of the Elkhorn, Big Blue and Missouri Rivers caused the worst flooding in four eastern Nebraska counties in 40 years. The Platte River overflowed its banks as the runoff from melting snow ran into clogs of ice.

"We've got a serious problem on our hands," Exon said, "and it's not going to go away for the next few days."

About half the 1,400 residents of North Bend were evacuated. The Dodge County Sheriff's office said the body of an elderly woman, apparently a victim of the flooding, was found this morning.

No other injuries were reported.

Some of all residents were evacuated in North Bend, Valley, Ashland, Ames, Waterloo, Kings Lake, Ginger Cove, Ginger Wood and Woodcliff. The areas have a total population of around 6,000 persons.

A number of state and federal highways in the flood area were closed when waters washed over them.

Ice jams were particularly serious near Ashland where private contractors in helicopters were hired to drop dynamite near Linoma Beach. Exon said the blasting had opened some channels, "but in places it's like dropping firecrackers."

The dynamiting could be heard in Omaha, nearly 10 miles away.

Some 175 people left their homes to rushing waters in Thomas Lake near Ashland and Big Island near Fremont. Other evacuations were reported near North Bend and Valley.

In the past year, raging floods killed dozens and destroyed untold millions in property in Kansas City, Mo., and near Toccoa Falls, Ga.

In Georgia, there was no warning for most when a break in a dam sent the contents of a 40-acre lake down on a small Bible college. There were repeated warnings in Kansas City, but still 26 died in flash flooding caused by incredibly heavy rains.

The flood at Toccoa Falls College last Nov. 6 left 39 dead, swept away mobile homes and destroyed several small buildings. The college reopened soon afterward, but the private dam has not been rebuilt.

Federal inspectors do not know exactly what caused the break, but they said the dam probably had been eroding for years and had not been properly inspected.

After the flood, President Carter stepped up a federal dam inspection program, releasing $15 million appropriated earlier. Since then, 316 non-federal dams have been looked at and 26 found unsafe, though none of these is regarded as an emergency situation.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers expects to inspect 9,000 non-federal dams in the next three years at a cost of $70 million. Federal dams are inspected regularly as part of their operation.

The Georgia Legislature also has passed, and Gov. George Busbee signed earlier this month, a state dam safety law requiring licensing and inspection of private dams whose collapse could cause loss of human life. There are an estimated 260 such dams in the state.

In the case of Kansas City, legislative solutions are not so easy to find. Authorities say the flood resulted from up to 16.5 inches of rain last Sept. 11 and 12 and that chances are this much rain will fall there in a two-day period only once in 1,000 years.

Warning of "very dangerous" flooding had been issued as early as 80 hours before the heaviest of it struck in the posh Country Club Plaza area. But many apparently did not hear or heed the warnings.

One family of four, for example, was killed in a car that was driven into what is normally a slight roadway dip but had become a raging river. Patrons in a bar watched and laughed as cars were swept along in a nearby creek. Then the creek rose, smashed the bar's windows and almost trapped the then less than amused imbibers.

Most businesses in the area have since reopened and repairs of roads and other public property are being done with help from a special federal grant. National Weather Service spokesmen here say the main lesson of the flood is the need to continually remind the public about the dangers of flash floods.

Johnstown Residents Still Fearful Of Rain

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Over seven months have passed since the flood, yet when it rains here at night the people still get restless.

"I wake up and I can hear the creek rising inch by inch," says Sam Felix, who almost died last summer when a filthy wave of water thundered down a mountain after midnight.

"When it rains at night we all wake up," she said. "All the lights on the hill go on. We lie awake and wonder if it will happen again."

"Sometimes I can hear the people screaming. I can still hear the house splitting up. I wake up in the middle of the night and I can see the wall of water."

Mrs. Felix, 33, spent the night of July 20 hugging her 3-year-old daughter in the pitch blackness of a second floor bedroom, screaming, "God, get my baby out" as the water rose. Her husband, Terry, was at work at a Bethlehem Steel mill. It was the next morning that he learned his wife and child were alive.

Several houses up the road from the Felixes, the raging water — unleashed when a dam atop the mountain broke — washed away the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pilot Sr. Both died.

Their grandson, Tommy Marsonik, 20, survived, although he almost lost a leg.

injured as he rode the roof down the mountain.

"They still haven't found my grandfather yet," Marsonik said the other day.

It was a little over a month after the flood that he moved into a government trailer, dragged to the spot where he had lived with his grandparents while attending college here.

At first he would not spend the night in the trailer alone. A friend bunked over until he mastered his fear.

"Sometimes when I think about it I get depressed, in a goofy mood," he said. "Sometimes I wish I died in the flood for all I had to go through."

LONGHORNS IN NIT FINALS Lemons Lauds UT, SWC After Victory

By MILLER BONNER
NEW YORK (AP) — Amid hoarse strains of "The Eyes of Texas" and "Turn Off the Lights, the Party's Over," Texas outclassed Rutgers for coach Abe Lemons' first National Invitational Tournament win and struck a blow for Southwest Conference basketball in the process.

With a small contingent of singing Texas followers joining the Madison Square Garden throng of 18,504 Sunday night, the Longhorns romped past Rutgers 96-76 to take a 25-3 mark into the NIT final against North Carolina State, 21-9, on Tuesday night.

And in so doing, Texas helped the SWC rise in stature from that of an oft-beaten stepchild to a respectable country cousin in the NCAA basketball family.

Texas' victory—combined with Arkansas' advance on Saturday to the semifinals of the NCAA championship—gave the SWC two representatives in the nation's most prestigious post-season collegiate tournaments. Two league teams reaching such lofty heights in the same decade—much less the same season—is a first in SWC annals.

And Lemons, who had lost opening NIT tilts in both 1969 and 1968 while coaching at Oklahoma City University, lost little time in preaching the positive aspects of SWC roundball during post-game interviews.

"It's always been a good conference—people just think all they play down there is football," he said. "If you think it's that poor, come on down and get on our schedule. We have eight teams down there that really hate each other."

Lemons, who joined Texas two seasons ago after stints at Pan American University and Oklahoma City University, quickly added: "It helps to play at home in front of 16,000 people. The last time I was here, we were used to playing before 3,000."

Lemons, noted for his quick wit and winning ways (his 402-215 career record ranks seventh best among active coaches), prophetically told New York reporters before Sunday night's game that Longhorn guard Jim Krivacs could shoot the basketball.

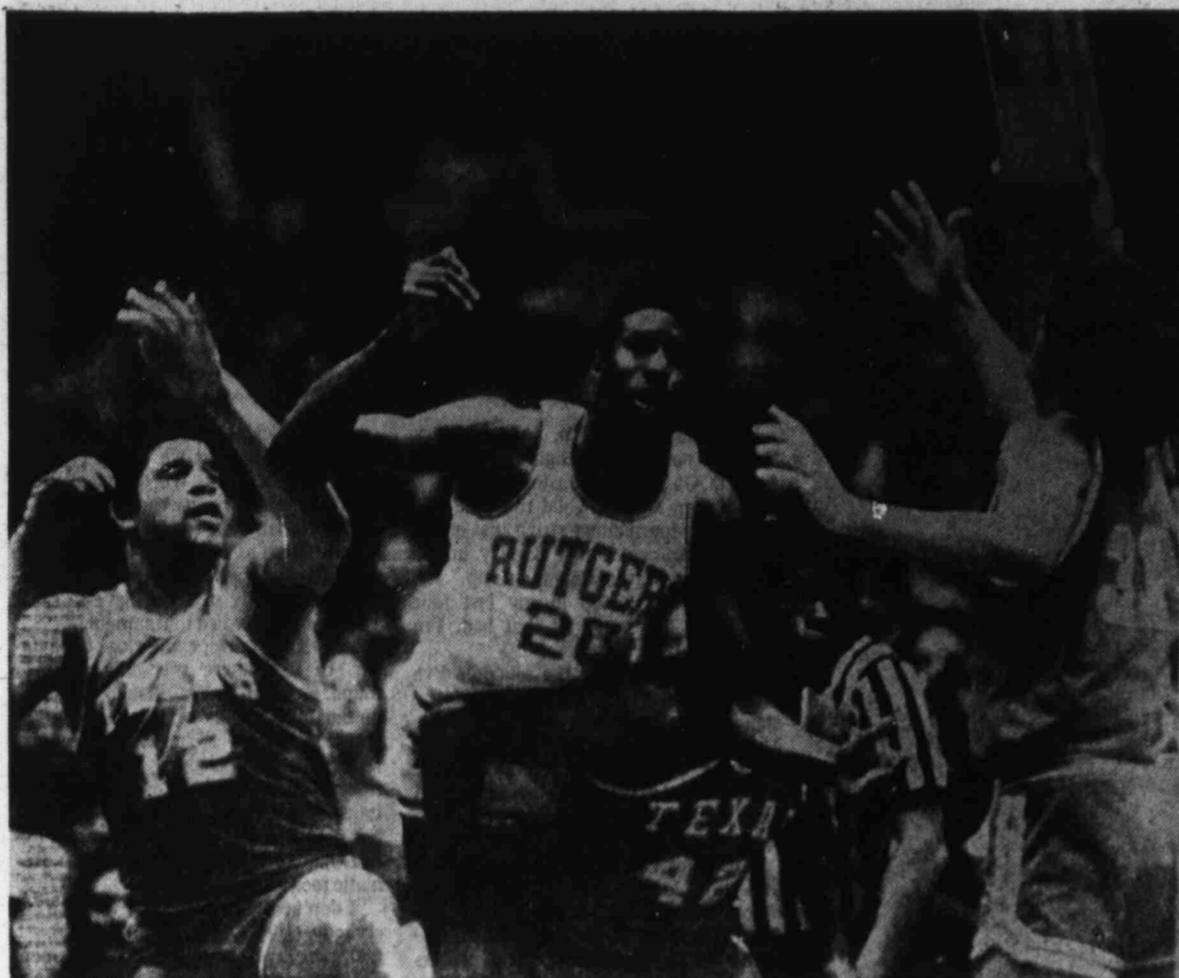

After Krivacs had passed up a shot from the 35-foot mark earlier this year, Lemons said he told him: "You can't dribble, you can't pass, you can't jump, you can't rebound, you can't play defense. So what do you think you're here for? If you're open when you cross the midcourt line, I don't want you to pass the ball. Shoot it!"

Sunday night, Krivacs obeyed orders. His long-range missiles fueled the Longhorns to an early lead they never relinquished and kept the Longhorn faithful singing Texas tunes to the partisan Rutgers crowd. Krivacs, a 6-foot-1 guard, finished with 25 points.

Lemons, when asked if he was surprised after the Longhorns held Rutgers star Jim Bailey to 14 points, replied: "I watch my team. I don't pay that much attention to the other guys. I don't know who to scout, not that I scout that much anyhow."

"Coaches don't play the game," he continued. "The kids do. This time of the year, you just send them in there."

By gaining the NIT finals, Texas became only the second SWC team to do so. Houston lost to St. Bonaventure in last year's NIT finals.

Duke, ND Advance In NCAA

By The Associated Press
Notre Dame has a chance to become the first school ever to win national championships in football and basketball in the same year, but basketball coach Digger Phelps says he's happy just to be in the semifinals.

"The rest is gravy," said Phelps, whose Fighting Irish earned their trip to St. Louis by beating DePaul 84-64 Sunday in the Midwest Regional final. "To make it to the final four is just unbelievable. All we've been living for is this moment."

Next in line for the Irish is Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke, a 90-72 winner over Villanova in the East Regional final. They'll meet in the opening game of the semifinal doubleheader in St. Louis on Saturday, with Kentucky taking on Arkansas in the nightcap.

The winners meet next Monday night for the NCAA championship.

On Saturday, Kentucky qualified for the final four by edging Michigan State 52-49 in the Midwest Regional while Arkansas trimmed California State-Fullerton 61-58 in the West Regional.

Top-ranked Kentucky has the best record of the four semifinalists at 28-2. Arkansas, rated No. 5, is 31-3; Notre Dame, No. 6, is 23-6, and Duke, No. 7, is 26-6.

Notre Dame is a perennial football power, having won seven national titles.

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS football Coach Fred Akers and his staff outrecruited their Southwest Conference foes by a wide margin and ranked No. 2 in the entire nation, according to an authority quoted by Sports Illustrated. That ought to bring some cheer to Longhorn fans mourning the departure of Earl Campbell.

The fellow with the detailed knowledge of the college recruiting wars is Joe Terranova, a marketing researcher for Ford Motor Co., according to SI. He keeps in touch with talent scouts across the country and watches more than 500 high school game films a year.

Southern California made the best haul this year, says Terranova, mainly because the Trojans got two of the best prep quarterbacks in the country. They also picked up a lot of big, agile interior linemen.

But Texas was a close second after signing A.J. Jones of Youngstown, Ohio, who Terranova says is the best runningback in the country. The Horns also grabbed another burner in Rod Tate, a super prospect out of Beggs, Okla., and two of the top three quarterbacks in the Lone Star state.

It's enough to turn the Big Red pale pink!

TONY DORSETT'S MOST recent escapade got a lot of ink, but it wasn't all that serious in the view of the Dallas Cowboy brass. It is the off-season, with no curfew to violate or rules to break.

Bad-mouthing a police officer never is very wise, but it is not a federal offense. Some guys even get smart with 'Smookey over a traffic ticket, I hear.

At the same time, the incident undoubtedly will be filed away somewhere in that computer mind of coach Tom Landry. If it is followed by other incidents along the way, then it might force Dallas to do something drastic. Landry and Tex Schramm have shipped out a number of players who had ability, but just didn't fit the Cowboy image. Coy Bacon and Lance Rentzel, to name two.

But, at this time, club officials seem to be taking the "boys will be boys" attitude toward Tony's antics. He's made the kind of mistakes that a lot of young fellows suddenly thrust into fame and fortune might make.

But Tony better not stretch Marse Tom's patience too far.

AN EYEFUL—Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States slams the tennis ball to his Davis Cup opponent in Sunday's singles match at Nashville. But the angle makes it look as if Gerulaitis is catching the smash in the eye. Gerulaitis won his match in straight sets as the U.S. won over South Africa 4-1. (AP Laserphoto)

Solomon, Gerulaitis Clinch Davis Cup

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — No matter the flagging fortunes of the Davis Cup in the United States, no matter that a total of only about 3,500 people watched this weekend's matches, the players say the old institution lives.
"Everybody loves it," Harold Solomon said after winning the pivotal match over South Africa's Bernie Mitton 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 Sunday. "Everybody dreams of playing the Davis Cup while they're growing up."
"it's very big now," he insisted. "But I think the prestige has slipped some. It hasn't been played very well. It's just that the Davis Cup hasn't been able to find a spot in pro tennis."

The U.S. team took a 4-1 victory over the beleaguered South Africans with two victories apiece by Solomon and Vitas Gerulaitis. The only U.S. loss came when Fred McNeil and Sherwood Stewart fell to the world's top-ranked doubles team, Frew McMillan and Bob Hewitt, on Saturday.
The Americans will face Chile in Santiago in the American zone final in September. Gerulaitis didn't suffer a single service break Sunday as he beat Byron Bertram 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.
Solomon didn't have quite so easy a time. Leading 5-4 in the first set, Mitton had four break points but squandered them with backhand errors. The errors continued in the next game off his forehand and backhand, and Solomon had an easy break.
Mitton recovered a bit in the final game of the set and Solomon had to fight three set points.

"He had a lot of opportunities there in the first set," said Solomon. "Anytime you've got that many break points, you've got a good chance."
"Once he'd lost the first set, though, I think he knew he'd have to stay out there four sets," said Solomon. "I think that got to him psychologically."
Mitton, who played much of the match from the baseline as he'd promised he would, didn't think he should have played it any differently. "Solomon hits his passing shots with a lot of topspin, so I wouldn't like to come in any more," Mitton said.

The matches were free until Sunday of any on-court scenes stemming from the anti-apartheid protests going on outside against the South African presence. A lone man slipped onto the court unnoticed by a cordon of police.
He stood in the center, holding up a paper and pronounced, "These tennis matches are disgusting. There's blood on the court."
HOLE-IN-ONE
Bill Houshins used a two iron to record a hole-in-one on the fourth hole at Pine Hill golf course Sunday. Looking on were Pat Richmond, Darrell Johnson and Lynn Cox. The hole is par 3, 182 yards long.

Nicklaus Looks To Masters After TPC Win

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus now has his sights trained on Augusta, Ga., and the Masters.
"It's been a pretty good run," he ended of the four-tournament string that ended with his strange victory Sunday in the Tournament Players Championship.
"I've won $155,000 in my last four starts and that's not all that bad. I'm playing well, obviously."
"I'm delighted with the schedule I've set for myself this spring. From the standpoint of confidence going into the Masters (his next start), things couldn't be better."

After a brief pause, he continued: "I can't remember a better start to a season."
It includes two victories and two seconds in his last four starts. It was capped by one of the most peculiar of all his 65 American golf triumphs, a no-birdie round of three-over-par 75 and a one-over-par 289 total that produced a one-shot victory in the annual championship of the touring players. It was the third time in the five-year history of the event he'd taken the title.
With the triumph came a $60,000 first prize, which boosted his season's earnings to $157,065 and put Nicklaus ahead of Tom Watson for the first time this year. Watson, who failed to make the cut for the second consecutive time, has $103,181.

Nicklaus recognized that the national television audience may have been less than thrilled by the extremely high scores produced by a frustrating, windswept, links-type course, the 7,174-yard Sawgrass layout.
"they don't need to watch someone shoot 80. They can do that themselves," he said. "There wasn't any excitement in my 75."
About the only excitement was generated by John Mahaffey's ace with a three-iron on the 201-yard 15th.
But Nicklaus defended the course that produced the highest scores of the year—including a final round 85 by Arnold Palmer—and some predictable muttering from other players.
"I see nothing wrong with this golf course," Nicklaus said. "You probably don't realize it, but we didn't play the back tees all week. We didn't play 300 yards of this golf course each day."
"I personally like to play on as difficult a golf course as possible. I couldn't care less if 300 wins. It doesn't make any difference. Nobody says you have to shoot 12 under par to win a tournament."

No one, of course, came close to 12 under. In fact, there was only a single round, 69 by Mike McCullough, under 70 in the four rounds of the tournament. Nicklaus needed 36 putts in the final round. He didn't make a birdie. But he finished one in front of Lou Graham, who thrashed his way to a 75 and second at 290. A routine par-five by Nicklaus on the final hole offered some of the more dramatic moments.

"I don't feel like I won it. I feel like everybody else lost it," Nicklaus said. "I feel more like a survivor than a winner. I'm fortunate that no one really made a run at me."
No one did. He was never headed and was staked to the victory when Graham got into the deep, clinging rough and bogged the 14th and 16th holes.
No one else really got in the title chase on the chilly, breezy day.
Lon Hinkle, with a closing 70, came on to take third at 291, three over par. Tied at 292 were Larry Nelson, John Schroeder, Andy North and Ben Crenshaw. Crenshaw and Nelson had 74s, North 73 and Schroeder 71.

U.S. Open champ Hubert Green was 71-295, Jerry Pate 70-297, Gary Player 76-300, defending champion Mark Hayes 79-300, Hala Irwin 77-302, Tom Weiskopf 79-306 and Palmer 85-313.
"There's no doubt about it," said Graham, "the golf course was the winner today."

UT, Wolfpack Gain NIT Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina State's Wolfpack had one longshot chance to win.

So what did they do? Why, they gave the ball to their hotshot, of course.

"We certainly picked the right guy to shoot," said North Carolina State coach Norm Sloan after watching Clyde Austin sink Georgetown with a miraculous 40-foot shot in the National Invitation Tournament Sunday night.

Austin's desperation heave came at the buzzer in overtime and provided the Atlantic Coast Conference team with a dramatic, 86-85 victory and a berth in Tuesday night's (7 p.m.) NIT finals. The Wolfpack will meet 17th-ranked Texas, an easy 96-76 conqueror of listless Rutgers in the other semifinal game at Madison Square Garden.

Austin's running, long-range shot capped a wild opening game in which the Hoyas had taken an 85-84 lead just six seconds earlier on Craig Shelton's three-point play.

"If Shelton had missed his foul shot and we had gotten the rebound," explained Sloan, "then we would have called a timeout to set up a play. But otherwise, I just thought it best for Austin to bring the ball down as fast as he could and shoot."

"He brings the ball up the floor for us all the time. He has the best speed and the best moves on the team, and he can dodge any defender in his way. Plus, he has a fine shot."

Austin, who says he once threw in an 80-foot shot in a high school game, didn't waste any time against Georgetown. Barrelling through the Hoyas defense while a seething crowd of 18,504 at the Garden raised the roof with its clamor, he let fly just after crossing the mid-court line.

"It was just luck, that's all," said Austin. "But I knew it was in all the way once I let it go. I didn't even have to look."

Austin, his two fists raised in the air to signal the winning basket, was immediately flooded by teammates.

"I started to cry when the ball went in," he said later.

Georgetown coach John Thompson could have cried too, but obviously for a different reason.

"I was hoping the shot wouldn't go in," said Thompson. "He took the shot we wanted him to take, though. He has good wrists and good quickness."

For a while there, it looked like an overtime wasn't needed to win in this game. With the help of John Duren's 17 points and 12 more by Shelton, Thompson's strong independent team from Washington, D.C., had built a 42-35 half-time lead over North Carolina State. Later, the Hoyas rolled it up to 49-37 early in the second half.

Then, something happened. North Carolina State switched from a zone defense to a man-to-man.

"That's where we missed Derrick Jackson," said Thompson about the Hoyas' all-time leading scorer who has been out action the past couple of weeks with a bleeding ulcer. "We just didn't have the quickness to match up with them."

Thompson, however, would not blame his defeat on the absence of the mercurial, high-scoring guard.

"We have no excuses. . . no alibis," Thompson said. "I don't want to take anything away from North Carolina State. Listen, we won two NIT games without Jackson. Now, we lost one. That's all there is to it."

Hawkeye Whitney led North Carolina State with 26 points while Kendall Pinder had 25. The Hoyas were led by Duren's 26 points and Shelton's 25.

The second game wasn't nearly as magnetic—especially after Texas turned on its marvelous outside shooting power early in the second half.

The co-champions of the Southwest Conference held a tenuous 54-49 lead with 16 minutes left, but then outscored the Scarlet Knights 21-8 behind Tyrone Branyan. The husky forward scored eight of his 24 points to power the Longhorns into a runaway 75-57 lead with 9:23 left.

Texas coach Abe Lemons said afterward he had "no scouting report on Rutgers," but obviously he didn't need one after his sharpshooters got through. The Longhorns, one of the best shooting teams in the country, made 57 percent of their field goal attempts.

"I'm surprised we won so easily," said Lemons. "But in that second half, Rutgers kind of overplayed us and we took advantage of their mistakes. We do what we have to do to win. If they let us run, we'll run."

The Scarlet Knights also let the Longhorns shoot.

"They gave us the outside jumper," said Texas' Ron Baxter, who scored 19 points, "and we took it."

Jim Krivacs, whom Baxter calls "the best shooter I've ever played with," and Branyan also showed good form from the outside. Krivacs scored 25 points and Branyan wound up with 24.

"Texas played just super," said Rutgers coach Tom Young. "Our first half was adequate. The rest of our game was lousy. We didn't shoot well at all in the second half. I can't say enough about Texas. We would have needed to shoot 80 percent to beat them tonight."

but the school's basketball program was never as strong until Phelps took over as coach in 1971. Since then the Irish have compiled a 137-64 record and made the NCAA's in each of the past five years.

Notre Dame trailed DePaul by eight points in the first half and led by just four at intermission. Kelly Tripucka's basket put the Irish ahead to stay 47-46 with 11:48 remaining and started a 22-8 burst that broke the game open.

"We felt we just had to go after them," said Phelps. "Then, after we got control and momentum, we were in a position to be patient and work."

Phelps took time in his post-game comments to praise Ray Meyer, the 64-year-old DePaul coach who captained Notre Dame in the late 1930s.

"Ray Meyer has done so much for college basketball," said Phelps. "As far as I'm concerned, Ray Meyer is the coach of the year."

Tripucka led Notre Dame with 18 points and four others scored in double figures.

DePaul center Dave Corzine, playing despite a dislocated finger, was limited to 17 points.

"This made it painful for him to catch the ball, but I thought he put on a courageous performance," said Meyer. "But the Notre Dame depth wears you down and I doubt if it would have made any difference."

Duke raced to a 21-point lead in the first half and went on to rout Villanova in the final of the East Regional as Jim Spanarkel scored 22 points and Mike Gminski had 21. Spanarkel called Duke's fast break its key to victory.

"We came out fired up, looking for the fast break, and that was the turning point," the junior guard said.

"We put everything together," said Duke Coach Bill Foster. "They missed some shots early and we were rebounding with a vengeance. We had four hands on the ball sometimes."

Duke outscored Villanova 40-30, and the Wildcats never did solve Duke's hustling zone defense. Duke shot 65 percent from the field to 42 percent for Villanova.

"We don't get behind too often and make a big game of it," said Villanova coach Rollie Massimino. "Everything Duke shot went in. We had to play catch-up."

Kentucky dropped behind Michigan State 29-22 at halftime before guard Kyle Macy rallied the Wildcats by hitting 10 free throws in the second half and scoring nine of his team's last 11 points.

"Macy was the difference," said Michigan State coach Jud Heathcote of the transfer student from Purdue who scored 18 points. "We just kept fouling the wrong player."

Guard Ron Brewer led Arkansas to a 39-24 halftime lead over Cal State-Fullerton, but the Titans' full-court press helped them rally for a 58-57 lead.

Brewer connected from the top of the key, giving him 22 points and Arkansas a one-point lead. Arkansas forward Jim Counce missed the first of a one-and-one foul situation with 13 seconds to play to give the Titans one last shot, but Keith Anderson of Cal State-Fullerton had the ball batted away as he drove down the lane. Counce hit a layup at the buzzer for the final margin.

That put an end to the Cinderella story of Cal State-Fullerton, which came into this tournament unranked and unheralded but won wide respect by upsetting nationally ranked New Mexico and San Francisco with great second-half rallies.

Coach Bob Dye was proud that his team put on another second-half surge against Arkansas, even if the Titans came out on the short end.

"They never quit and stayed in the ball game despite almost being blown out in the first half," said Dye. "If I coach a hundred years I could never be more proud of a group of kids than these guys."

Little Proves Too Much For Lopez

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It took the best round of seven-year pro Sally Little's career to keep rookie Nancy Lopez from winning her third straight LPGA tournament.

Little fired a seven-under-par 65 in the final round of the $165,000 Kathryn Crosby Classic to force a playoff with the Lopez. The two finished the 72-hole tournament with scores of 282.

On the first extra hole of the playoff, the 26-year-old Little made a two-foot putt to capture the $22,500 first prize. Lopez had just missed a 15-footer for par.

The 21-year-old Lopez, who carded a 68 Sunday, wasn't upset about losing the playoff.

"Two wins and a second place isn't bad," said Lopez, who turned professional last July. "Sally shot a 65, and if you're going to lose a tournament, that's the kind of score to lose it to. I'm pleased with how things have gone. I thank God I've done as well as I have."

Little, a native of South Africa who now lives in Dallas, had won only once before on the LPGA trail. Like Lopez, she had never been in a playoff before.

"I kept birdieing and birdieing and wasn't making up any ground until the final two holes," said Little. "I just couldn't believe my eyes when I'd see a leader board."

"I felt I had a chance to win Sunday morning because I'd had two straight 70s after starting with a 77," she added.

"Beating Nancy is really something since she's the longest hitter on the tour now."

Penny Pulz carded a 68 Sunday over the 6,212-yard Rancho Bernardo golf course but had to settle for third at 283. The Australian collected $10,510.

"I'm very disappointed and let down," said Pulz. "I feel like I played extremely well. And I learned a lot."

Pat Bradley carded her fourth 72 to finish at even-par 288, tying her for fourth with Jan Stephenson, who had a 70. Silvia Bertolacci was alone at 291. Louise Bruce and Joyce Kazmierki were at 292.

Goolagong Shocks Evert In Fem Finals

BOSTON (AP) — All week, tennis fans had been looking forward to a championship match between Chris Evert, the self-exiled queen of tennis, and Martina Navratilova, the royal pretender.

Instead, the second-seeded Evert found herself staring across the net at old foe Evonne Goolagong in the final Sunday of the $100,000 tournament at Boston University's Walter Brown Arena.

"I think if I had played Martina," mused Miss Evert, "maybe my adrenalin would have been a little higher, because that's what I heard all week."

Miss Evert's surprise, or lack of concentration, was evident, particularly in the error-filled second set as she lost 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 to Mrs. Goolagong. The smooth-stroking Australian had ousted the top-seeded Miss Navratilova by winning two tiebreakers in the semifinal round.

The title match marked the first meeting of the rivals since Miss Evert dined Mrs. Goolagong in the 1976 U.S. Open final. The 26-year-old Mrs. Goolagong was occupied last year by motherhood, while Miss Evert has just returned from a four-month vacation.

"We've had a strange sort of rivalry since we first played at Wimbledon six years ago," said Miss Evert. "I can never let up on her. I have to concentrate twice as hard. She's just a very loose player, and I have to work to be intense."

Mrs. Goolagong agreed that as often as they have played, they still have difficulty adjusting to one another's style.

ARE YOU LOSING HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS EACH MONTH?
If you are renting or leasing, each month's rent check is money down the drain. You receive absolutely no return on your money. With home ownership you not only receive the privacy and the amenities that come with owning your own home, but with each month you are building up an equity in your home. Your property is appreciating in value and you receive a valuable tax deduction, which in itself can save you hundreds of dollars each year.
Home ownership is not only one of today's greatest means to guard yourself against inflation, but is also an investment with potentially high return capabilities.

new National Football League rule against "baiting or taunting" an opponent. They think it is going to take some of the color and excitement out of the game.

Others who have been watching football for a lot of years disagree. They consider sportsmanship the foundation of the sport, despite the win-at-any-cost philosophy of the Bear Bryants and Vince Lombardis.

Even in the professional ranks, few individuals will be affected by this crackdown. But it should curb the showboat tactics of those who delight in humiliating an opponent.

The guy who first comes to mind in this category is Mel Gray, the St. Louis Cardinal speedster. Mel is highly unpopular with the Cowboys and their fans because of a whole string of incidents through the years.

Perhaps the most flagrant display occurred a couple of years ago, when Gray scored against Dallas and then spiked the ball close to the head of Cowboy safety Cliff Harris. Cliff was flat on the turf at the time, unable to defend himself in any way.

Gray's bullet dunk-slam just missed Harris, or they might still be trying to stop the fight.

There have been many other incidents, too. Bill Bradley, the former Texas great who played with Philadelphia, was prone to toss the ball into the faces of his foes in stress situations. And there are those who run into the end zone waving at their pursuers.

Soon or later, it is going to lead to bloodshed.

THE COWBOYS ARE NOT as pure as Snow White in this department, but most of their actions have been in retaliation to insults by the enemy.

Harris was a bit out of line in Super Bowl X, though, when he tapped the Steeler kicker on the helmet after a missed field goal and said "Thanks, we needed that!"

An official didn't throw the flag, but Steeler linebacker Jack Lambert threw Harris. Since Lambert is taller and 30 pounds heavier than Cliff, it didn't take a lot of courage on his part.

Most of the Cowboys on the field didn't see the assault and battery, because they were changing offensive and defensive teams after the missed field goal. But if they had, there would have been muck and gore all over the place.

Randy White, who could arm wrestle King Kong with a fair chance of success, has vowed that Mr. Lambert best keep his paws to himself in future encounters with the Pokes.

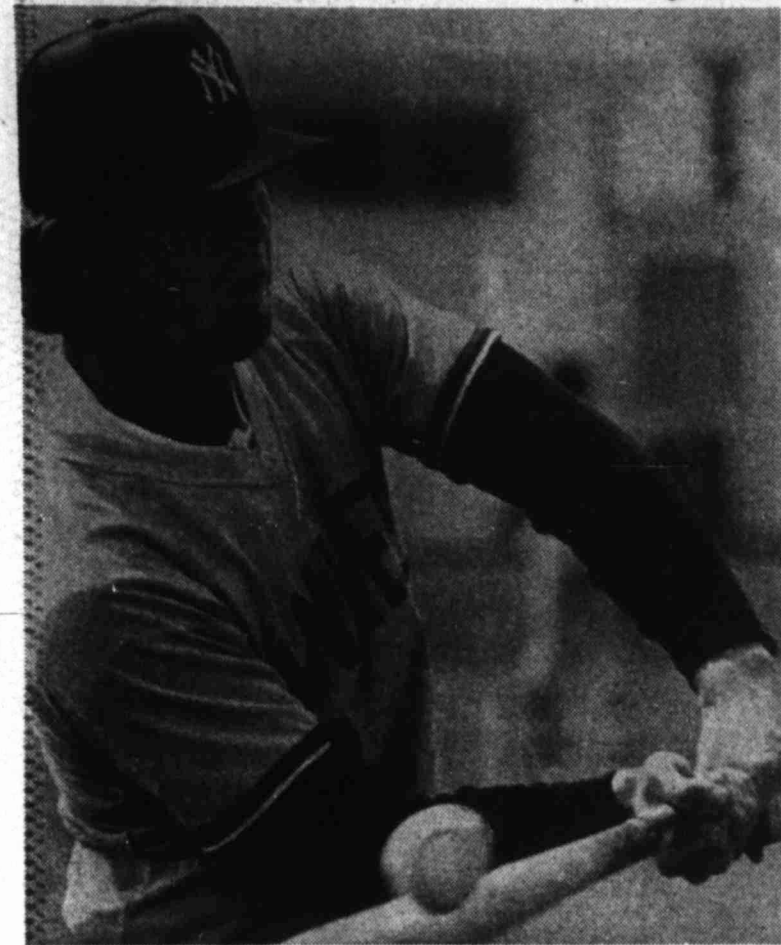

That's why we need that new rule against taunting opponents. To avert World War III!

Norton Wins Title Via WBC Edict

By The Associated Press
Ken Norton's quest for the heavy-weight title is over. He gained World Boxing Council championship recognition on Leon Spinks' lost weekend.

"Being that I'm a fighter and being that I'm very competitive, I would have liked to win it in the ring," Norton said in Los Angeles of the WBC withdrawing title recognition from Spinks, who still is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association.

"But being that the champion chose not to fight me and being that he signed a legal document to fight and violated it, I'll take it this way and get him later."

"The WBC executive committee decided Saturday that Spinks had no intention of obeying an edict that he make his first defense against the top-ranked Norton. Thus, it withdrew title recognition."

"But being that the champion chose not to fight me and being that he signed a legal document to fight and violated it, I'll take it this way and get him later."

"The WBC executive committee decided Saturday that Spinks had no intention of obeying an edict that he make his first defense against the top-ranked Norton. Thus, it withdrew title recognition."

"Spinks was unavailable for comment on the WBC action, which came one day after he was sued and one day before he was arrested."

"On Friday, a complaint was filed in court in Philadelphia to have Spinks and his wife evicted from their apartment there for not paying two months rent of $660. Early Sunday, he was arrested in his hometown of St. Louis for driving the wrong way on a one-way street and for driving without a license. He was released on $700 bail."

"Spinks also will be involved in litigation concerning his title loss."

"We are ready to face any lawsuit because we have a clean conscience," said Jose Sulaiman, WBC president, after announcing the action at his home in Mexico City. "We acted honestly, in good faith and in strict accordance with the rules and regulations."

"Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., said Saturday in Las Vegas the WBC still is facing legal action from Top Rank and from Spinks."

"Top Rank, which has the rights to promote Spinks next three fights, with an option of three more, will file suit against the WBC and Sulaiman in federal court in Las Vegas in a couple of weeks, Arum said. He added the papers will be served on James E. Deskin, a WBC vice president, who lives in Las Vegas."

"Arum admitted Spinks did agree in a letter to the WBC that he would obey an edict issued by the group last November that, should he beat Muhammad Ali, which he did Feb. 15, he would make his first defense against Norton."

But a memorandum prepared by counsel for Arum contends "... even if we should construe Mr. Spinks' letter as constituting an agreement to the edict it would be of no binding force. One cannot legalize an unconstitutional act by agreeing to it."

Arum claims the action of Sulaiman and the executive committee is an illegitimate and arbitrary assertion of power.

"I don't think the American public is going to accept the action of a Mexican dictator," said Arum.

"It always leaves a bitter taste in our mouth to dethrone a champion," said Sulaiman. "But boxing as a sport should be governed by laws and regulations over and above business interests."

Under the edict agreed to by both Spinks and Ali before their fight, Spinks had until last Friday to agree to a Norton fight with a promoter of his choice. Failing that, purse offers would be accepted and opened April 7, with the highest bidder getting the fight.

LCC's Acosta Gets Week's League Honor

For the second straight week, Lubbock Christian College hurler Oscar Acosta is the Texoma Conference pitcher of the week.

Actually, the freshman from Portales shared the mound honor with Midwestern sophomore Daryl Frazier, who reaped the first weekly award.

But it was the hitters who made the most noise last week and Chaparral Tim Leslie was among the leaders there, as his .605 batting average for 10 games attests.

Leslie, however, shared the hitting laurels with another sophomore, Rich Eberly of Texas Wesleyan.

All Leslie did in 10 games last week was go 23-for-38, improving his average 104 points to .471, the best in the league. He also had four doubles, six homers and 22 RBIs, plus stole three bases and walked four times.

Eberly, in eight games, went 12-for-23, upping his average from .229 to .324. Plus he had five doubles, a triple, four homers, 21 RBIs and drew 11 walks.

Acosta had only one mound appearance, but went 12 innings and threw 180 pitches in whipping Abilene Christian 10-4. Acosta allowed only one earned run, scattered nine hits, fanned nine and walked six in winning his fourth game without a loss.

Frazier, now 2-1, spun a one-hitter against Abilene Christian two days before Acosta showed up, winning 12-0 with the lone hit coming in the sixth frame. He also whiffed six.

Spikes Shines In Detroit Camp

By The Associated Press
In 1972, Charlie Spikes was one of the prize hitting prospects in the New York Yankees' farm system.

In 1973, he hit 23 home runs for Cleveland, most for an Indians rookie in 23 years.

In 1974, Spikes was on the verge of stardom with a .271 batting average, 22 homers and 80 RBIs.

Question: What has Charlie Spikes done lately?
Answer: Not much.

But the 27-year-old slugger may be ready to fulfill some of his early promise... with a new team.

On Friday, he drove in six runs to help Detroit defeat the Boston Red Sox. And on Sunday, his three-run homer off Lerrin LaGross in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Tigers a 5-4 exhibition victory over the Chicago White Sox.

After batting only .229, .237 and .232 for Cleveland the past three years and spending part of 1977 in the minors, Spikes is waging a torrid battle with Tim Corcoran for the Tigers' right field job. Spikes leads the team with 11 RBIs while Corcoran is second with 10.

"He's a proven hitter. Let's face it, you just gotta let him swing the bat," manager Ralph Houk said of Spikes. "I want him to quit worrying about hitting the ball. He'll strike out. Power hitters do that. But he's leading the club in RBIs. That's what a guy like that can do for you — break games open."

Spikes, acquired during the off-season from Cleveland for shortstop Tom Verzer, is beginning to feel at home.

"You hit the ball and you feel like you're part of the team. You don't feel left out," he said. "My goals are to stay healthy, do my duty and give 100 percent."

Another one-time wunderkind came through in fine fashion Sunday. Cleveland left-hander David Clyde had a shaky first inning, walking the first three batters he faced. But he squirmed out of that jam with just one run and gave up only one hit and no more runs in four innings.

Even though the Padres, with Gene Richards driving in five runs, trounced the Indians 8-3, Clyde's showing gave manager Jeff Torborg something to smile about. The 22-year-old former Texas Ranger and Texas high school phenom, who has become Torborg's personal renovation project, was coming off a solid, one-hit performance in his last outing and is given an outside shot at becoming Cleveland's fifth starter and long relief man.

"We've completely changed his mechanics," Torborg said. "David was throwing from a no-windup delivery, which he says the Texas people put him into to supposedly help his control."

"We put him back into his original full windup, then began making adjustments on that. It was an awful lot for the kid to absorb and you never know whether you're just trying to do too much in too short a time."

"You can ruin somebody that way, too. But we just don't have the luxury of time with 19 pitchers in camp. Fortunately, he's an open-minded kid and he listens to us. He has faith in us: You can't teach somebody unless they want to learn."

A Cleveland 'B' squad had better success, downing the University of Arizona 5-3 as Horace Speed homered.

Philadelphia reliever Warren Brusstar not only blanked St. Louis over the final three innings but also slammed a bases-loaded triple to highlight a five-run 10th inning that gave the Phillies a 7-2 victory over the Cardinals.

Bo Diaz tripled home the winning run in the 12th inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees while Gary Carter doubled twice and Ellis Valentine homered to lead the Montreal Expos over Los Angeles 7-5 despite three Dodger homers.

The Seattle Mariners ended San Francisco's eight-game winning streak, getting run-scoring hits from George Mitterwald and Julio Cruz in the fifth inning and nipping the Giants 3-2.

Dennis Leonard became the first Kansas City pitcher to go five innings — he yielded two runs and six hits — as the Royals downed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-3.

The Texas Rangers edged the Atlanta Braves 3-2 on rookie Pat Putnam's two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning for their ninth success in 10 spring games and George Foster's fourth exhibition homer — a two-run shot in the ninth inning — helped the Cincinnati Reds turn back the New York Mets 8-5.

The Pittsburgh Pirates suffered their ninth setback in 10 starts when Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, John Flynn and Tim Stoddard held them to three hits in the Orioles' 4-0 victory. Sam Perlozzo's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning lifted the Minnesota Twins over the Houston Astros 6-5.

Rance Mulliniks scored from second base on Milwaukee shortstop Robin Yount's two-out error as the California Angels defeated the Brewers 2-1 in a 14-inning game.

The Chicago Cubs got a two-run double from Steve Ontiveros and four scoreless relief innings from Dave Roberts and downed the Oakland A's 4-2.

Ref Arrives On Time For 'Worst First Half'

By The Associated Press
Abuse by fans and coaches is as familiar to a referee as his striped shirt and whistle. Travel complications are another story.

Referee Ed Rush was scheduled to work Sunday's National Basketball Association game at Detroit between the Pistons and Chicago Bulls. But his flight from Indianapolis was cancelled because of mechanical problems.

Not one to let that stop him, Rush drove to Cincinnati. He chartered a plane, landed at Detroit City Airport and got to Cobo Arena with the help of a police escort.

Rush had, however, missed the first half. He didn't miss much, if you ask Bulls coach Ed Badger.

"I've never seen us play a worse first half," said Badger after the Pistons blasted the Bulls 112-92. "Our movement was nonexistent."

Badger toyed with the idea of calling a practice for his Bulls Sunday night after their return to Chicago. "If I can find the gym."

The Pistons got 26 points from Eric Money and 25 from Chris Ford to remain in contention for a Western Conference playoff spot. The Bulls got 23 points from Artis Gilmore and 18 from Mickey Johnson, but never pulled closer than 14 points in the second half.

Ford made 12 of his 17 shots and Money 11 of his 17 before a crowd of just 4,546. "It's something we have to live with," said Money, aware of the underwhelming turnout. "I guess it's probably because we're going to move to Pontiac next season."

If they had been in Pontiac Sunday, Rush never would have made it. As it turned out, Bob Rakel worked the first half alone, then teamed with Rush after the intermission.

Celtics 122, Nuggets 95
Boston outscored Denver 39-20 in the second period and rode 27 points by John Havlicek and 18 by Kevin Stacom to victory over the Midwest Division leaders. Dave Bing and Tom Boswell added 15 each for the Celtics while Dan Issel topped the Nuggets with 23.

76ers 125, Knicks 118
Doug Collins scored 16 of his game-high 28 points in the third quarter, helping Philadelphia come back from a 10-point deficit to defeat New York and clinch the Atlantic Division crown.

Suns 123, Cavaliers 112
Paul Westphal and Alvan Adams combined for 40 second-half points; and Phoenix cruised to victory with some extra help from poor Cleveland shooting. The Cavaliers made just 42 percent of their field goal attempts including a 3 of 16 by Terry Furlow and seven of 17 by Austin Carr. Campy Russell had 22 to lead Cleveland.

Kings 122, Braves 108
Scott Wedman made 17 of 23 shots from the field and scored a season-high 35 points as Kansas City broke a three-game losing streak by beating Buffalo. Randy Smith scored 30 points for the Braves.

Sonics 116, Spurs 98
Seattle got 20 points from Fred Brown and 19 from Dennis Johnson to upend San Antonio. George Gervin and Billy Pault had 18 each for the Spurs.

Bucks 117, Bullets 106
Junior Bridgeman scored 19 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter to spark Milwaukee past Washington. Brian Winters added 22 points and 18 assists for the Bucks while Elvin Hayes had 32 points and 13 rebounds for Washington.

Lakers 101, Hawks 87
Adrian Dantley had 31 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 26 to help Los Angeles hand Atlanta its seventh consecutive road defeat. Veteran Lou Hudson added 18 for the Lakers, including the 17,000th of his 11-year career. Steve Hawes led Atlanta with 18.

PAGAHolds Tourney
Ramon Flores won the Pan American Golf Association tournament at Pine Hills golf course Saturday.

The next PAGA tournament will be held in Slaton, April 16. The tourney is for members and guests.

Sunday's results:
CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT — 1. Ramon Flores; 2. Junior Martinez; 3. Art Chavez; 4. Simon Chavez.
FIRST FLIGHT — 1. Ramon Castro; 2. Jesse Espinosa; 3. Frank Caro; 4. Fred Uribe.
SECOND FLIGHT — 1. Silberto Moreno; 2. Joe Sirocki; 3. Lope Gonzalez; 4. Andy Rice.
THIRD FLIGHT — 1. Marcel Anicia; 2. Cris Mejica; 3. Juan Deleon; 4. Joe Davila.

Raiders Begin Home Stand

Having won six of its last seven games and climbed over the .500 level for the first time this season, Texas Tech will begin a nine-game spring-break home stand today with a doubleheader against Wichita State.

"The Raiders and the Shockers will play twin bills Tuesday and Wednesday, also. Both will start at 1 p.m., too."

"The Raiders had won but five of their first 14 games prior to this hot streak. They are now 11-10 for the season and 5-4 in Southwest Conference play."

"They will return to SWC warfare this weekend by hosting a three-game series with SMU."

"Tech's most recent action came this past weekend when they took two of three games from TCU in Fort Worth."

"Wichita State is 5-4 for the season."

Arum admitted Spinks did agree in a letter to the WBC that he would obey an edict issued by the group last November that, should he beat Muhammad Ali, which he did Feb. 15, he would make his first defense against Norton."

But a memorandum prepared by counsel for Arum contends "... even if we should construe Mr. Spinks' letter as constituting an agreement to the edict it would be of no binding force. One cannot legalize an unconstitutional act by agreeing to it."

Arum claims the action of Sulaiman and the executive committee is an illegitimate and arbitrary assertion of power.

"I don't think the American public is going to accept the action of a Mexican dictator," said Arum.

"It always leaves a bitter taste in our mouth to dethrone a champion," said Sulaiman. "But boxing as a sport should be governed by laws and regulations over and above business interests."

Under the edict agreed to by both Spinks and Ali before their fight, Spinks had until last Friday to agree to a Norton fight with a promoter of his choice. Failing that, purse offers would be accepted and opened April 7, with the highest bidder getting the fight.

SUNNY SUNFLOWER SAYS:
"We're Number 2!"

"In 1960 Sunflowers ranked 4th in the world among sources of vegetable oils, following soybean, peanut, and cottonseed, with a production of 1,665,000 metric tons of oil. But, in 1977, Sunflower Oil moved into an undisputed claim on 2nd Place in the world with an estimated production of 5,750,000 metric tons of healthy, edible vegetable oil!"

Li'l Mam'selle Stock Reflecting Entry Into 'A Beautiful Spring'

All in all, the current selection is the most gorgeous presentation ever at Li'l Mam'selle, whatever the clothing need for the happy, active season ahead. And that is saying a lot, for Li'l Mam'selle Young Fashions, at 2147-A 50th St., traditionally presents the new and the fashionable. "We'd love to have you come in and browse; we think you'll love what you discover for Easter and for Spring," is the word from all at Li'l Mam'selle. There is a very nice selection of pretty, pretty long and short dresses, really cute sun dresses even, and smart coordinates by the scores. The colors are very beautiful this spring, as evidenced by the stock throughout Li'l Mam'selle, including pastels and navy among the leaders. Junior sizes 1 through 11 (with some 13s) are stocked, as are girls sizes 7 through 12. Now in its seventh year, Li'l Mam'selle not only specializes in up-to-the-minute fashion in quality lines, but prides in stocking the often hard-to-find sizes. New lines are added to the already-elite stock as need and fashion dictates. Gift wrapping is available, and Li'l Mam'selle, in Oakwood Center, welcomes Visa and Master Charge purchases. A trip to Li'l Mam'selle most certainly will put one in the Easter and vacation mood, as not only is the stock superb, but the skilled and friendly staff have a genuine welcome awaiting. They have selected the best of the new in fashion, all in good taste, and thoroughly enjoy seeing customers find "just the item for which they have wished" at Li'l Mam'selle. "Folks You Know" Ola Hamilton, longtime staffmember, is the very friendly and capable manager of the shop owned by her sister, Opal Jones. Monta Beasley, with the store throughout its present ownership, is on the job to further assist. The stock continually has been expanded and upgraded under this ownership, management and staff. And it is a friendly place in which to shop! "We may possibly not remember your name, but we won't forget your face, and your patronage is appreciated. Let us prove it!" Yes, one can enter into a new season with apparel that pleases; it has been made easy and economical at Li'l Mam'selle.

Pharr Recreational Vehicles Enable New Fun, Convenience
 "Do you envy those enjoying the fun and freedom that comes with ownership of a recreational vehicle (RV) that meets the needs and preferences of the owner? Then Pharr Trailer Sales should enter the picture! Pharr Trailer Sales, 1702 Clovis Road, has a wide selection to offer at this time. Whether the choice is from the Coachmen (No. 1 seller in the nation) mini-motor home, motor home, 5th wheel unit, travel trailers in all sizes, cab-over-camper or even pop-ups; the Apollo motor home or the prestigious Silver Streak travel trailer, value and new convenience and luxury is assured. Pharr also is a service center, together with sales; it is a "first stop must" in readying one's present RV unit for a trouble-free trip ahead. Harold Pharr calls special attention to the selection of parts and accessories stocked within the attractive showrooms. When planning a trip, or even when just completing one, a person could do well to check for needed accessories "while it is fresh on his or her mind", with Pharr most likely having the very item desired. Pharr knows recreational units, and this modern Lubbock firm can help immeasurably in correct selection that will give pleasure for years to come. Ask the man who owns a Pharr unit.

Production Heads Saluted In Rainbo Recognition Series

No matter how great the product, even with the quality assured by the Rainbo label, a key factor in its success and acceptance must be integrity, know-how and experience in production. It is in this light that Rainbo Baking Company of Lubbock this week salutes two valued employees, members of the Rainbo family contributing to its total image as a successful business serving area needs commercially and as good citizens. Meet Charlie Rowton, production superintendent, who has been with Rainbo for a full quarter century. Rowton began with the firm racking pans in a Wichita, Kans., facility. In Lubbock since 1975, he holds his present title after progressing through the ranks and personally performing, at one time or another, all the tasks involved in production of the fine Rainbo products. Serving with the armed forces in Korea in the early 50's, Charlie came back and joined Rainbo only 10 months afterward, thus enabling him to make the statement that "I just never worked for anyone but Rainbo, and I'll tell you for sure it is a good company, it is managed and staffed by good people, and you know about its good products." The Lubbock Rainbo production department, with its rigid product control for quality, quantity, sanitation, etc., is manned by 18 employees, and the production superintendent job actually can be a 24-hour-a-day challenge. Johnny Johnson Serving as right hand to Rowton is Johnny Johnson, assistant production superintendent. Johnny has been with Rainbo for nine years, the last two in his present position with its related responsibilities. Johnson, like so many others on the staff, came up through the ranks. After graduating from Dunbar High School in 1968, he came to Rainbo, starting as a bun racker. Johnny's attitude toward his employer firm can be cited as one of the reasons for his value and success.

"It is a good company to work for, and I like my job especially well because of its challenge," he emphasizes. "There is something new every day... new problems to be met and solved, and I feel that one must know every involved process to meet these challenges." All Rainbo bread and buns are produced locally, on an average during a 20-hour day, for area distribution. "See how important the production department and its heads can be to your eating pleasure?" Harry Hoopes, manager of the Lubbock firm, takes pride in the staff here and he invites the reader to watch for later articles regarding other staffmembers and facts of Rainbo's operation. It is a story you can appreciate and understand... because Rainbo is your kind or people, your kind of progressive enterprise, your kind of products. "We are Rainbo just will not take second place to anyone in promotion of good eating and good times for our West Texas friends."

IN THE NEW-SEASON MOOD — Staffmembers of Linda G's, expressing thrill at new arrivals for Easter and other occasions of the season, include Ruth Ann Crumpton wearing a Tuck polo and cotton, with shop owner Linda Givens in a new clay colored quiana, and Modean Clayton in a soft pleat and flounce number, all hinting of the femininity of today's fashions.

Spring, Easter Fashion Wear Prettiest Ever At Linda G's

Sure recognition of fashion rightness for Easter and the balmy days beyond is reflected in a fantastic stock at Linda G's, the 4515 50th St. store where a galaxy of pretty, practical and so-fashionable apparel is presented. "Truly, a woman can feel like a woman again... with wardrobe selection including dresses in the modish feminine look with ruffles, flounces, laces, etc., from Linda G's in Sunshine Square. Select from today's materials including polyesters, poly and cotton, prints, soft quiana and all. Of course, Easter wear is every much in abundance.

Ultra-Suedes
But there is more! Such as the ever-standby jacket dresses.

And new longs, in a tremendously beautiful choice. Also short "after-5" dresses with so many practical and desired uses, for the impending political parties, etc. A nice selection of year-around ultrasuedes is stocked. Select, too, from beautiful coordinates, gorgeous pignoir sets, and more... all with the unmistakable touch of Linda G's. Lingerie, too, is presented in a provocative selection. A very good choice in handbags to complete the ensemble is part of the Linda G's story, too.

Toiletries For Men
The men in the family are not neglected, believe it or not, at Linda G's, for a very exclusive and desired line of Andromeda cologne and after-shave items are stocked. It all adds to the truism that Linda G's is ready for Easter and Spring in a most delightful and considerate manner, with this "complete" store in great shape in every department. Linda Givens, owner, is understandably enthusiastic about the new-season presentations. She is joined by a most capable staff in welcoming opportunity to serve one's apparel needs for the season. "Shopping at one's leisure in the relaxed atmosphere of this beautiful and elegant shop is an experience to be enjoyed, for a certainty; discover for yourself how Linda G's is extraordinary!"

Plainview's Westridge Manor Said 'Most Unique Within Area'

"Yes, most emphatically, you can enjoy the privacy of 'at home' living with the security of a protected environment, at Westridge Manor, West Texas' most exclusive and unique retirement living facility, at 4304 West 2nd St., Westridge Park, Plainview (west of the Coca Cola plant on Interstate 27)."

Not a nursing home... and not an apartment complex but an "in-between" service, that is Westridge Manor in Plainview. At this "different" retirement home, the residents live in casual elegance as explained by owner Joe Turner, where they receive no regimentation, no institutionalism and no commercialism. Designed to be nice enough for his own mother, Turner planned Westridge Manor "for anybody's mom and dad." One simply cannot understand the difference that is Westridge Manor without a personal visit (which is invited) but the following thumbnail sketch of pertinent features is bound to hint of the special type facility that has been provided.

There is no buy-in, no deposit, just monthly rent. Westridge Manor is for retired ladies and gentlemen who may need minimum assistance. High-quality home-style living is enabled at minimal cost. There is the privacy of one's own living quarters. Residents may use their own furniture if preferred. Many Services Included The following services are included at no extra charge to the Manor's residents: Maid service on a regular basis; Meals prepared in a home-style manner, with special diets observed. Mail service to one's room if desired. Pick-up and delivery of pharmaceuticals, dry-cleaning, flowers, etc. Even van service to church, local activities, doctor, hospital, beauty and barber shops, shopping, etc.!

Other services, provided at a slight additional charge, include telephone in one's own room, cable TV, and more. Further Benefits Cited Special features due for consideration include:

ACTIVITIES ROOM — The tastefully appointed activities area is one of the popular rooms and considerations at Westridge Manor where casual elegance is provided in retirement living.

Large, private rooms, with private bath. Full-time live-in manager-nurse; Laundry room for personal items. A concessions room with beverages available.

Business & Industrial Review

Highland Beauty Salon Places Emphasis On Talents Of Staff

"Hairstyling — an Art"; likely this can best describe the desire and capabilities of the beauticians at Highland Beauty Salon, 4031 34th St. in Lubbock.

Ann Workman, Beth Young, Kay Tilley, Alice Gibson and Helen Ingraham all are experienced beauticians, and they do not need special praise as their talent speaks for itself!

Shop owners Royce and Barbara Lane are not beauticians themselves, and they firmly believe in letting the beauticians take care of their own clientele, each in her own personal way, creating an atmosphere of friendliness and goodwill.

"We feel the girls are really working for themselves and will do everything for the benefit of their customers. Our main job is to keep the shop clean for a pleasant atmosphere, and we try to buy a variety of products that will suit each individual's needs," Barbara explains. "If we don't have it, we will try and get it."

Quality Products

Featured are Zoto's Lanolin Bath, White Velvet; Climatress, Trichoperns and Creative Curl from Redken; Uniperns, Perfect Touch permanent waves, styling cuts, color tints and rinses, frostings, shampoo and sets (with or without back-combing) and blow styling or curling iron styling.

Wig Styling

Wig styling also is one of the services offered.

"Our prices are reasonable and the shop specializes in hair care for the entire family," Royce and Barbara Lane join with the beauticians in inviting you to come in and get acquainted at Highland Beauty Salon.

Special Offer

Kay Tilley and Alice Gibson recently have designated Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays as their "Senior Citizens Days", and will give a shampoo and set, with or without creme rinse, weekly colors and haircuts at one-half price for their clientele of 62 years of age or over . . . so senior citizens, ask for Kay or Alice for one of these days and take advantage of their offer!

Highland Beauty Salon is open Mondays through Saturdays from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day for calls for appointment. Phone 792-8823. Early or late appointments can be arranged at convenience of each beautician.

Bowman's Termed Supermarket For Contractor, Drop-In Trade

'Tis Spring activity time again . . . and Bowman's, the same firm that serves the contractor superbly, is on hand to help the handyman, the do-it-yourself trade and even the landscaping enthusiast.

Bowman, at 8301 S. University Ave., truly makes it possible to fix the home the way you want it, with the knowledgeable help and the products at its one-stop facility.

It is a building material supermarket. Contractors long have turned to Bowman's for quality and for expert service.

Walter Johnson, with 37 years experience in the Lubbock building trades, is in charge of contractor sales, and "he wants your business!"

Joe Swan, manager of the firm, relates that he believes Bowman's has the largest selection of materials in Lubbock to meet the contractor needs, whether it is lumber, hardware, carpet, lighting fixtures, plumbing supplies and more.

This same understanding of contractor needs, and the merchandise consequently stocked, pays off for every customer.

"no matter how large or small your remodeling or building needs may be."

Experienced staffers at Bowman's are on hand available for immediate quotation on all commercial and residential building products, and every inquiry is appreciated, just as is the "drop-in trade" for everyday needs.

Likely one is thinking at this season of remodeling, constructing a patio or den enclosure, even remodeling bedrooms, kitchen cabinets, etc. Bowman's carries a full selection of materials for such requirements.

Sale Nears End

It is further pointed out that this is the final week of a tremendous "Taking Aim At Spring Values" sale at Bowman's, with every department represented.

Thomas lighting fixtures are 35 per cent off, for example, and a truck load of picture frames is made available with frames at 25 per cent reduction.

There are studs, with pre-cut economy, for 59 cents; oak barrels for $9.99, and many comparable values.

Maybe the need is paneling; Bowman's has a fantastic selection, with sale prices starting at $2.59 for 4 ft. by 8 ft. sheets. There are over 60 patterns from which to choose.

Door units, mini-blinds, woven woods, Kirsch drapery hardware, all wall covering, all in-stock vinyl flooring, all in-stock carpet are among the items included in drastic sale price slashes. See the big Bowman 32-page sale catalog for further eye-opening specials.

Note that the sale involves such categories as bath accessories, building materials, carpet, doors, drapes, electrical, gifts, hand tools, insulation, kitchen needs, paint, roofing, shelving, tile, power tools, windows, and seeds of items from the garden and lawn section.

"The latchstring is out at Bowman's. Founded back in 1889, it has been located in Lubbock at the modern, spacious South University address since 1971. There is easy access and plenty of parking room; come out and see for yourself how Bowman's does more for you."

LUBBOCK FIRM CAN ASSIST IN THE BIG JOBS OR SMALL ONES ALIKE

Leaseway-Southwest Services Seen Advantageous To Region

Leaseway-Southwest, at 409 E. 50th St., in Lubbock, offers a complete transportation service to busy companies that simply cannot devote the time, space or money required to own and maintain a fleet of vehicles, or in some instances, just one or two units. This progressive leasing firm provides transportation vehicles to serve any size or type business.

Full Service

"Corporations as well as small operators find that full-service transportation package is more efficient from every standpoint."

"Full service" as provided by Leaseway-Southwest Transportation Corp., is exactly what the name implies. The firm provides the maintenance and inspection and even supplies the fuel and pays the taxes on the vehicle!

Personnel there are most adept, serving in a professional but considerate and friendly manner to meet the particular transportation needs of every customer.

"We'd like to count you, too, among our customers."

Upgrading and additions to its stock is a continuous operation at Leaseway-Southwest.

Leaseway-Southwest's understanding of the short-term, peak and long-term needs of area industry and business is well recognized, contributing to its own growth, too.

Half-a-hundred Lubbock businesses (and even more) depend on Leaseway-Southwest for transportation vehicle needs.

There must be a very good reason.

In Tune With Times

Keeping abreast with the needs of the area is one of the convincing reasons. Leaseway-Southwest continually adds new equipment for rental and for full-time customers of this service-oriented firm.

"Utilization of leased vehicles is the growing trend in transportation management" it is emphasized by Ken Wright, president.

Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions Exuding Readiness For Spring

"For infants through student size 20, Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions meets every Easter and new-season apparel need!"

Actually, selection has never been greater at Gray's, 50th Street at Salem Avenue (in Sunshine Square); and Easter and Spring are very much in evidence, in the newness of merchandise, the decorations, in everything within the beautifully appointed store.

It is fun to shop at Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions (where a great pre-teen selection is noted).

Whether the need is for the really dressy apparel or for casual numbers, Gray's has the fashionable, sensibly priced answer.

There are lots and lots of boys suits at this time, sizes 4 to 20.

Swim Wear

And swim wear and shorts are arriving, signaling that the outdoor season is upon us, and that proper wear can make it fun to the fullest.

Gray's stocks just about everything in apparel for the age range it serves, with exception of shoes.

Pretty prom and banquet dresses are stocked, of course, with a gorgeous selection evident.

Sleepwear is available in the gamut of size ranges, with this assortment probably the most beautiful yet presented by this store noted for its beauty.

There are few stores that carry such a selection in the affected size range, and Gray's must be commended for its continuing and successful efforts in correct stocking.

Uncrowded Look

Owners and founders Tom and Kay Gray want to express their sincere appreciation for the reception of the type store they provide, and for the growing trade accorded them. Without this patronage and confidence, the present large Easter and Spring stock would have been impossible.

For those who conceivably may not yet have become acquainted with the distinctive store, the Easter season affords a banner opportunity. Come in, browse, note the pleasing decor and convenient stock arrangement, and the quality of merchandise. Even with the huge stock, nothing seems "crowded" at Gray's.

Both Tom and Kay are on hand personally to assure fullest in customer service.

WHERE EASTER MOOD PREVAILS — Kay Gray of Gray's new fashion-wise apparel from the chic stock greeting Easter Boys & Girls Fashions, in Sunshine Square, calls attention to and Spring at the popular 50th Street store.

WOOLCO WITHOUT DOUBT AN EASTER CANDY HEADQUARTERS

Handbags For Easter, Spring Wardrobes Stocked At Woolco

A super selection and great prices... that is the story of Woolco's large handbag department! A purse for every need is stocked there, with a very large selection of white purses arrived just in time for Easter. There is a wide variety of linen and canvas purses. And great new spring colors: Kicky new styling! Straw and canvas totes... just right for the coming days by the pool. There is a great choice in dress purses to enhance any costume (and at low Woolco prices, remember). If the desire is a purse... for any occasion, casual to dress, then shop at Woolco, select and save!

CAMERAS, SUPPLIES — Milton Duty of the Woolco Camera Department emphasizes that not only is a complete selection stocked, but that low-cost photo developing, with fast service, is provided. Prints in by 6 p.m. are back after 6 p.m. the following day, he tells. Stocked is everything from instamatic to instant print cameras (including Kodak and Polaroid instant print cameras and Minolta SLR units), together with 33 mm and the new 110 SLR with telephoto lens. For Kodak and GAF quality, for film and accessories for every photo need, Woolco comes through handsomely! An extensive line of lenses is stocked.

JEWELRY FOR EVERY COSTUME — Toni Camden and Jackie Raines are shown within Woolco's Jewelry Department where new arrivals and newest styles are evident. A wide selection is the rule there, as are low Woolco prices.

Tallman Pools Now Scheduling For April Construction Dates

"There should be a Tallman Pool in your future . . . and soon!"
After all, Tallman Pools is one of America's oldest and most reliable swimming pool companies, and special pre-season savings are posted here until March 31.
"There still is time for extraordinary savings on a swimming pool of your own."
Call 797-6659 for a free estimate in your own situation.
The Tallman Pools story is quite a success story:
Back in 1962, Al and Jan Tallman, each in their early 20's, wanted a pool of their own . . . so what did they do? They started their own pool construction business, on a small scale, in their home area of Buffalo, N.Y.
Business expanded. Even after going into the Rochester area, they did all their own work, and really kept busy, for some 10 years.
At this time they had increasing difficulty in prompt material delivery from some factories, so what did they do? They began to manufacture the steel panels and vinyl liners, themselves!

The business prospered as the quality and integrity of their work became known.
In 1972 an additional facility was established to serve the south . . . at Atlanta, Ga. There are now two others, in Dallas and in Florida.
The Tallman Pools of Lubbock is a franchised operation owned by Lubbock residents Chuck and Kay Larson.
This husband-wife team previously lived in Fort Worth where they were co-owners of the Ft. Worth and Tarrant County franchise for Tallman.
Seeing the opportunities and desirability of Lubbock and area with its well-known business climate, and with the other apparent advantages of living on the South Plains, the Larsons have made Lubbock their home.
"We believe in what we sell", they emphasize, relating that there is a 10 year guarantee on their pool construction, with an even greater 20-year guarantee on materials by Tallman.
Larson is his own contractor, and of course is factory trained.
Custom designed pools, for the owner's particular need (landscape, budget, space, etc.) is a speciality. Some standard sizes also are available.

The pools are not pre-constructed . . . they are built especially for you and for your pleasure.
The quoted prices include everything, a ready-to-swim situation when the job is completed. Plumbing, electric units, even a deck is included in the turkey operation.
No Untimely Delays
Most usually, construction involves 14 working days or less for this quality construction!
One is encouraged to check the Tallman Pools ads weekly on these pages, noting the current savings, effective through March, on standard size pools. It is stressed that the Larsons are now scheduling for April starting dates, and early inquiry and arrangements are well advised.
"For quality, for lasting joy and satisfaction, may we give you the complete Tallman Pools story? Call 797-6659 and let us, your hometown dealer, start you on the path to new pool enjoyment. And don't forget . . . compare our guarantee!"

Like-Nu Shop Tells Savings On Both New, Consignment Merchandise Items

"Have you . . . and your budget . . . become acquainted with the unique Like-Nu Shop, 4716 Ave. Q?"
"If so, you know the resulting savings, the quality enabled without exorbitant price . . . in clothing, costume jewelry, some craft items and even more."
Used and New Apparel
The Like-Nu Shop since last June has been under the ownership and very capable management of Pat Webb.
Pat is a lifelong Lubbock resident and knows the needs and preferences here in the apparel field, also recognizing how folks appreciate genuine savings. Pat (the former Pat Wright) is a graduate of Lubbock High School, and has a wide acquaintance here. She delights in serving old friends and new customers alike in her "different" shop at 4716 Ave. Q, phone 765-8944.

Consignment items include infants, childrens and ladies clothing, with some men's wear stocked. Both new and used ladies apparel is included in the stock, some may not realize.
Currently there is some spring wear on the racks, including after-5 dresses.
There are new tank tops, shorts sets, halter blouses, etc.
And earrings and other jewelry (consignment jewelry is welcomed).
Pre-Washed, New Denims
There are new pants, blouses, dresses and Maverick pre-washed denim pants and skirts.
A present consignment need is for infants clothing and boys and girls wear to size 10, also size 16 and up in ladies wear. Call or come by regarding consignment items at the store.
There are some craft items in stock;

some beautiful macrame consignment pieces, and miscellaneous items.
Stocked is Get Slim diet powder in chocolate, vanilla, berry and banana, together with a vitamin stock.
The Like-Nu Shop is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, presently closing during the lunch hour. Pat is glad to keep the store open late on Mondays or Thursdays by appointment for the convenience of the working girl.
Thirty-day layaways are enabled.
Presently, all new items throughout the stock are marked down in a drastic price cut.
"Want to save a bunch, and we do mean a lot? Then turn to the Like-Nu Shop, 4716 Avenue Q, phone 765-8944, where Pat Webb is glad to befriend your wardrobe and budget!"

SAVINGS — FOR EASTER AND BEYOND — Pat Webb of the Like-Nu Shop, 4716 Ave. Q, displays some of the in-demand quality items traditional at the south Lubbock shop, all at prices she prides in providing.

New Marlboro Lights 100's

Lighter in taste. Lower in tar.
And still offers up the same quality that has made Marlboro famous.

The spirit of Marlboro in a low tar cigarette.
