TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel has informed the United Nations it will begin pulling troops out of southern Lebanon next week, a U.N. spokesman said Thursday.

The partial, phased withdrawal will affect only troops along the eastern half of the front and will take place in two stages, on April 11 and April 14, the U.N. spokesman said in a statement.

Israel's withdrawal plan was given to Lt. Gen. Ensis Silasvuo, chief of U.N. operations in the Middle East, by Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, Israel's chief of staff, at a meeting in Jerusalem, the spokesman said.

Israel invaded southern Lebanon March 15 to clear Palestinian guerrilla bases from the region.

Message To Begin

The U.N. announcement came only a few hours after U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim sent a message to Prime Minister Menachem Begin urging a "speedy" withdrawal of Israeli troops.

Diplomatic sources at the United Nations said the 21-nation Arab bloc will call for a Security Council meeting to consider possible sanctions against Israel for refusing to remove all its troops from Lebanon. The council ordered Israel's immediate withdrawal from the area last month.

The U.N. statement said the first stage of the pullout will affect an area east of Marjayoun, a Christian-held town three miles north of the Israeli border town of Metullah. It said Israeli troops also will pull back from the Khardali Bridge over the Litani River.

Norwegian Troops

Some 700 Norwegian U.N. troops moved into the area in the past week. Israel has occupied all of south Lebanon up to the Litani, except for a belt around the guerrilla-held port city of Tyre.

The Israeli military command said three soldiers were killed Wednesday while on an unauthorized sightseeing trip in southern Lebanon. A spokesman said two soldiers were missing, and two men, including a civilian, escaped. They were the first reported Israeli casualties since Israel declared a unilateral cease-fire March 21.

The Palestine Liberation Organization said in Beirut four Israeli soldiers were killed and one captured "unharmful" when they tried to infiltrate guerrilla-held positions in southern Lebanon. The United Nations said its reports indicated five soldiers were killed.

West Sightseeing

The Israeli spokesman said two soldiers entered Lebanon in a small truck looking for a tractor left near the town of Bint Jbeil. He said they picked up four soldiers and a civilian and went sightseeing. They passed an Israeli army roadblock and drove into Palestinian-held territory, the spokesman said.

While picking fruit near the town of Ras el-Ain, the soldiers and the civilian met and began arguing with a group of armed Palestinians, he said. The Israelis got in the truck and were fired on when they tried to leave, the spokesman added.

He said the four survivors of the initial clash, all of them wounded, abandoned the truck, leaving the three bodies inside. They split up and two, a soldier and the civilian, reached Israeli lines.

The United Nations asked the International Red Cross to arrange the return of the Israeli victims. The Israeli chief of staff ordered an investigation, and officials said the two survivors were arrested.

Palestinian guerrillas said they were holding the bodies of the dead Israelis and the one survivor, and sources said they would try to bargain for the body of a female terrorist, Dalal Mograbi, 22, who led the March 11 highway attack near Tel Aviv that touched off the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

In other developments, the Israeli Foreign Ministry said it does not believe its use of U.S.-supplied arms in the invasion of southern Lebanon was a violation of a 1952 U.S.-Israeli arms pact.

On that matter, U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told Congress he believed Israel had acted in self-defense after the terrorist raid that killed 35 Israelis and would not recommend action against Israel.

The 1952 arms pact allows the United States to suspend military aid to Israel if it determines that U.S.-supplied arms were used illegally.

But Vance said Israel, while acting in self-defense, may have violated U.S. law by using excessive force against Palestinian strongholds and going beyond the six-mile strip it had initially planned to invade.

Despite reports of rifts between the Israeli government and the Carter administration, the Israeli prime minister toured an American nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Thursday when it docked at Haifa and he received warm praise from U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis.

Lewis told the crowd that Israel was "blessed with a strong, proud, wise and very impressive prime minister." He described U.S.-Israeli relations as "the kind See ISRAEL Page 14

Horse Race Betting Cleared For Ballot In Democratic Vote

AUSTIN (AP) — Backers of horse race betting got a clear track Thursday for their pari-mutuel referendum on the May 6 Democratic ballot.

A similar straw poll also is slated for the Republican primary ballot.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused Thursday to give opponents to the non-binding referendum an injunction that would have kept Texas Democratic officials from printing the ballots until a full-scale court hearing had been held on the protests.

The three-man court issued the denial without comment but said an opinion would be issued later.

The decision, in effect, upheld the decision last week of State District Judge Jim Dear that his court did not have the right to interfere with an election process that was under way.

Loan Referendum

Already cleared for the Democratic ballot, after a court test before District Judge Herman Jones, was a referendum that will ask voters what they think about an increase in interest rates for loans under $5,000. Jones also said the court did not have a right to interfere with actions of a political party as long as all actions were legal.

Austin attorney Buck Wood, representing the opponents, argued that the SDEC approved the referendum on March 13 only because it had been presented a petition with more than the required 76,000 signatures of qualified voters. Wood claimed he could show in court, if given a chance, that the petition was signed by less than 76,000 qualified voters.

Judge Questions

Presiding Judge John Phillips asked: "What do you want us to do, count them?"

Wood replied that the case should be sent back to Dear for a trial on the merits so the exact number of qualified signatures could be determined.

"Don't you think it is up to the committee to decide if there are enough signatures and if they are valid?" Phillips asked.

Wood said that the state Democratic committee has "spent time and money to put something on the ballot that is a legal issue . . . members of the party have a right not to have an inflammatory illegal referendum on the ballot."

"The plaintiffs in this cannot show they

Jury To Get Kim Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jury in the Hanchu Kim case will hear final arguments today and then retire to consider its verdict in the first criminal trial resulting from the Korean influence-buying scandal.

Kim's lawyer rested his case Thursday after calling only three witnesses, including millionaire Tongsun Park. The lawyer, David Povich, had promised the jury in his opening statement three weeks earlier that prosecution witnesses would prove his client's innocence.

Kim is charged with conspiring to defraud the United States by corrupting congressmen in order to curry favor "for the benefit of the government of the Republic of Korea."

He is also charged with lying when he told a grand jury he never received $600,000 for the scheme from an agent of the Korean CIA.

If the jury of six men and six women convicts Kim on both charges he could face a maximum 10 years in prison and $20,000 in fines.

The 56-year-old Kim was born in Korea. He became a United States citizen after attending college in this country.

U.S. Delays Gold Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department has postponed a decision on whether to sell some of its gold to help bolster the dollar and reduce U.S. dependence on imported commercial gold.

A decision to go ahead with gold sales, which would be the first since 1975, "was on the imminent side" until recently, it was learned from Treasury sources Thursday.

But it was first delayed because of the French elections, and now has been delayed again. The reason for the new delay was not clear, but a Treasury source said a decision might be made within weeks.

Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon told reporters Wednesday that the department is "continually reassessing" whether to sell more of its gold. But he said it was not planning a sale "right now."

The amount of gold that would be sold, almost certainly through an auction to the highest bidder, probably would not exceed the 500,000 ounces sold at the last Treasury gold auction in June of 1975, a source said.

More Action Due Today

Cowboys and cowgirls from all over the nation head into the home stretch at 7:30 p.m. today, attempting to topple scores and set marks to be beaten at the Saturday finale when champions are named.

Fans were primed and ready to whistle a West Texas welcome to Jody Miller and her raunchy fiddle start to and country and western music a little modern a little traditional, a little soft and a little rafter rattling. The former rodeo queen rates high in the rodeo entertainment circle whether she woos her audience with a little heart song or rears back and belts out a fan favorite.

Ike Sankey of Rose Hill, Kan., took the lead in bareback competition with a crowd-pleasing exhibition of top notch rodeo skill on a spinning high kicking bronc named Rogue to win a high 75 score from the judges.

Other scores went to Rusty Riddle of Weatherford who posted a 65, Paul Mayo of Farmers Branch a 63 and Mike Todd of Rock Springs a 43.

Two saddle bronc contestants—Jess Knight of Justiceburg and Craig McMillan of Brownwood—were granted rerides with other scores already up for Thursday competition being a 64 for Monty Henson of Mesquite, 63 for Paul Mayo, 61 for Ike Sankey and 41 for Doug Carrington of Cherokee, Iowa.

Ropers Snare Calves

Ten of 12 calf ropers roped and wrapped their calves to top Wednesday's hardluck round, but one of the calves kicked free of its wrapping job in the allotted six seconds.

Low time was a 9.4 seconds by Barry Burk of uncan, Okla., followed by Jerry Light of Amarillo with 11.6, Bobby Davidson of Lubbock with 11.8 and Mike Webb of Bridgeport with 12.1.

Two jackrabbits lived up to the arena with some fancy footwork, then, as one went to the finish line in the clutches of a Lions Club member, the other hopped into the pen of steers ready for bulldog

Girl Scout Slayings Suspect Arrested

STILWELL, Okla. (AP) — Gene Leroy Hart, accused of murdering three Girl Scouts at a camp near Locust Grove last summer, was arrested at a small home deep in the rugged Cookson Hills of northeastern Oklahoma on Thursday, authorities said.

State Bureau of Investigation Director Tom Kennedy said Hart, 34, was unarmed and offered little resistance when he was taken into custody by eight bureau agents.

Sam Pigeon Jr., owner of the hilly brush country home where Hart was apprehended, also was arrested and will be charged with harboring a fugitive, Kennedy said.

Hart, a convicted rapist and escapee from the Mayes County Jail in Pryor, is accused in the slayings of Lorie Lee Farmer, 8; Doris Denise Milner, 10; and Michelle Guse, 9, all of the Tulsa area.

FIRST IN LEATHERNECK HISTORY

Marines Get Woman General

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Thursday nominated Col. Margaret Brewer, a spit and polish officer who helped break down Marine Corps sex discrimination barriers, to be the first female general in Leatherneck history.

The nomination of Col. Brewer, 47, a 26-year Marine veteran, to one-star brigadier rank is subject to Senate approval.

The Marines are the last of the services to elevate a woman to general's or admiral's rank. The Army, Navy and Air Force have had two such officers each for several years.

The proposed promotion accompanies plans to make Col. Brewer the Marines' director of information — chief spokesperson — at corps headquarters in Washington.

She has served as deputy information chief since last year.

A selection board also considered three other female colonels for the promotion, but Col. Brewer had been considered the front runner under a regulation requiring the choice of a woman "best qualified to perform the duties" in a post requiring general officer rank.

Pentagon sources said the colonel, a trim, picture book Marine officer right down to the ramrod-straight posture, was instrumental in helping to open up the Marine Corps to equal assignment opportunities for women.

Now, females may serve in any Marine assignment except combat posts, from which they are banned by law.

As a result, recruitment of women has increased sharply over recent years to the present level more than 4,400 out of the total Marine strength of around 193,000. In addition the post of director of woman marines, which Col. Brewer held in 1973, has been abolished and women have been integrated into the regular personnel structure.

"She literally worked herself out of a job," one Marine source said. "I wouldn't classify her as a militant, but she knows how to work within the system."

A native of Durand, Mich., Col. Brewer joined the Marines as a 2nd lieutenant immediately after graduation from the University of Michigan in 1952.

In her early years she served as commander of female Marine companies at various Leatherneck bases and did a stint as platoon leader for female officer trainees.

Col. Brewer, who is single, will have both public affairs and internal information responsibilities for the Marines.

"I welcome the honor of telling their story," she said in a statement issued when the White House announced her nomination.

Med School May Hike Enrollment

By CANDY SAGON
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE TEXAS Tech University School of Medicine may be allowed to increase its freshman class to 100 students in 1979, pending approval of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education (LCME).

If approved, it would mean the medical school would be a year ahead of schedule in achieving its goal of 120 students per entering class.

Currently the school accepts 40 freshmen annually and plans were to increase the class size by 20 freshmen per year, reaching 120 per class or a total enrollment of 480, by 1981.

The LCME plans a site visit to the school on Jan. 29-Feb. 2, 1979. A decision permitting the Tech medical school to enlarge its entering class will come at the LCME's April meeting.

(Higher Tech Dorm Rates Faced, Page 15, Sec. C)

Medical school Dean George S. Tyner met earlier this week with LCME secretary Dr. James R. Schofield. According to Tyner, Schofield expressed approval of the med school's quality of clinical training, which he said has exceeded the LCME's projected timetable.

Schofield also said the early opening of the Health Sciences Center Hospital and its high patient occupancy rate has contributed to the acceleration of the medical school's schedule.

The LCME secretary said he thought the Tech School of Medicine has progressed to the status of other established American medical schools and may be reviewed on a 5-to-7 year basis rather than every two years, Tyner reported.

The medical school also has instituted two committees to review the current education program, and to suggest more interaction between the Department of Family Practice and those of Medicine, Obstetrics-Gynecology, Pediatrics, Psychiatry and Surgery, Tyner told Schofield.

Rural Practice Encouraged

The committees also will study means of encouraging medical students to enter primary care practice in rural areas. Establishment of model primary care projects, such as one now being started in Crosbyton, will assist in this process, Tyner said.

The LCME has asked Tyner to join the accreditation team for the medical school at the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks. Tyner was asked to participate because of the similarities between the North Dakota school and Texas Tech. North Dakota, like Tech, serves a large rural population.

Tyner will report on his visit with Schofield to the Tech Board of Regents this morning during its regularly scheduled meeting.

Area Slated Sunny, Windy Day

Sun lovers should enjoy warm temperatures reaching into the middle 80s today and Saturday, if they can endure high, southerly winds blowing 15 to 25 mph and gusting under partly cloudy skies.

The overnight low today is expected to be in the upper 50s.

Wind warnings will be in effect on area lakes today and Saturday.

Widely scattered thundershowers are expected to invade the Panhandle Sunday through Tuesday. Otherwise, partly cloudy skies and warm afternoons in the 70s and 80s and mild nights in the 40s and 50s should prevail over West Texas.

Thursday, blowing dust returned to the South Plains as southerly winds swept across the state blowing 10 to 20 mph with higher gusts near the Panhandle and the Gulf coast.

Lubbock temperatures soared near 90, reaching 87 following an early morning low of 40 Thursday. No precipitation existed as relative humidity dipped to 7 percent.

As partly cloudy skies prevail over West Texas through the weekend, the southern regions of the state are expected to remain under cloudy skies, but eastern Texas only should see cloudy skies during morning hours.

Across the state, temperature highs at 4 p.m. ranged Thursday from the 90s in southwest Texas with the coolest temperature at 70 in Galveston.

Across the nation, rains are expected in northeasterly sections, showers and snow are expected over westerly mountains and partly cloudy skies with mild temperatures should continue over the rest of the nation.

Thursday heavy thunderstorms pounded over the northern Midwest as snow fell over the western mountains and the rest of the nation generally experienced mild temperatures and little precipitation.

Jurist Hopeful Visits Lubbock

By BOB CAMPBELL, Avalanche-Journal Staff

Running hard to turn his 1977 appointment to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals into election, Judge Jim Vollers Thursday afternoon hit hard at his Democratic primary opponent, Sam Houston Clinton of Austin, and said Texans "cannot allow statewide judicial races to be decided merely on the ring of a common-sounding name."

Interviewed by The Avalanche-Journal, the Beaumont native and former longtime state prosecuting attorney said there is a sharp distinction between his legal philosophy and that of Clinton.

Vollers said in effect that he and Clinton are at opposite ends of the political spectrum with him a strict constructionist who is proud of his support from Texas district attorneys and Clinton a long-time leading Texas labor lawyer and occasional attorney in cases for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

He noted that Clinton has his law office "in the same building with the Texas Observer and the ACLU" in Austin.

Asked if he is campaigning harder than did Judge Charles Barrow, who lost a controversial Supreme Court primary race to Don Yarbrough two years ago, Vollers said he is campaigning full-time over all the state but is handicapped by a lack of funds.

He said his contributions totaled only $16,000 as of March 27 while a statewide newspaper advertising campaign would cost a minimum of $30,000.

"The money just isn't there for a statewide judicial race," he said.

But he said he is trying to avoid the mistake Barrow made in not going after his opponent, Yarbrough, who was helped by the similarity of his name to former gubernatorial candidate Don Yarbrough and who was later forced to resign from the Texas Supreme Court for perjury in a grand jury investigation into a murder conspiracy.

"We found out that two years ago that the lawyers don't elect the judges," he said. "The people do."

Vollers compared Clinton to Yarbrough only in that they both have easily recognizable names and did not criticize Clinton on ethical or moral grounds.

Vollers is a 1954 graduate of the University of Texas Law School who was appointed last year to fill one of four new appellate court seats created by the legislature.

He lost a criminal appeals court primary race two years ago to W.C. Phillips of Waco.

In the announcement of his candidacy this time, Vollers said state law has "technicalities which do not serve to protect individual rights nor to protect the rights of society, and these technicalities should be done away with."

He said Thursday that one such technicality is in the specificity of indictments. He added that the concern of an appellate court should be with whether or not the defendant got a fair trial and less with whether or not all the technicalities have been observed.

A technicality should be vital only if the failure to satisfy it results in the defendant not getting a fair trial, he said.

Incumbent Views Post

In the race for Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 3, voters must choose between a criminal lawyer and a man who has 23 years experience as a judge, said one of the candidates.

W.C. DAVIS

Davis termed Teague's role as a defense lawyer "getting people out of jail."

"On the contrary," Davis said, "I've served as a municipal judge for four years, county judge for nine years, and judge of the 85th District Court for 10 years."

Davis, 55, said the issues in a judicial race are limited to the qualifications of those running for office and said the Code of Judicial Conduct prohibits incumbent judges from promising what action they will take on certain cases.

"All I can say is I'll do my best to faithfully carry out the duties of the office," he said.

But Davis did offer some of his views on recent trends in criminal law.

Davis said the U.S. Supreme Court is protecting the criminal more than the victim, a trend Davis wants reversed. He queried decisions allowing defendants to go free when evidence is seized on a faulty affidavit for a search warrant.

"The court means well," he said. "I don't criticize them, I question them."

But Davis said there should be "something that overwhelmingly prevented a defendant from getting a fair trial" other wise the case should be affirmed.

Davis predicted the "speedy trial act" passed by the last legislature is "not going to do that much" because defendants don't want a speedy trial.

They think the longer they're out, the better chance they have, he said.

Davis said bonds "should be high enough so the defendant will show up for trial, but low enough so he can make it."

In capital murder cases where "guilt is self-evident" there should be no bond at all, he said.

Marshall Files New Bond Suit

For the second time within a year, James Marshall has sued the City of Lubbock over bond matters, this time seeking to block the sale of $1.73 million in airport revenue bonds.

Marshall, defeated Saturday in his bid for mayor, filed the suit Thursday afternoon in Judge John McFall's 237th District Court.

The petition, which asks for an injunction on the bond sale that was approved by the city council Wednesday, claims the ordinance authorizing the bond sale and another ordinance passed last year to raise sewer charges were not handled properly.

The suit says the ordinances were not passed at "properly held hearings," the purpose of the bonds is not specified and is "vague, indefinite and unfettered."

Furthermore, the suit claims, the bond sale should be blocked because the bonds were "not sold in open council meeting," the bonds are not "pure revenue bonds," proper sinking funds are not created, the bond interest rate exceeds 6 percent and the airport is not debt-free.

Remedies, the petition says, should include public hearings, detailed accounting of money and creation of sinking funds, voter approval of the proposed bond sale and an airport operation free from debt.

The petition names as defendants Mayor Dirk West, city council members Alan Henry, Carolyn Jordan and Bill McAtister; City Secretary Treva Phillips; City Attorney Fred Senter; City Manager Larry Cunningham and Finance Director Sterling Miller.

Miller said the city staff would confer with its bond attorneys today. The high bidder in the bond sale, Rowles and Winston Division of Cowen and Company, already had been notified of the bid award, he added.

"There's a strong likelihood we will have to pull out" of the bond sale, Miller said, adding the city already has mailed papers outlining the proposed sale to the attorney general's office for review.

All bond sales by Texas municipalities must be reviewed by the attorney general.

Miller also said that it "hurts the city" to cancel a sale, explaining that "if it happens frequently, bidders will back off."

Bidding for the airport revenue bonds, which are to finance airport parking lot expansion, probably will have to be repeated because the bid is good only for about 30 days, Miller said.

Last summer Marshall blocked the first of several planned sales of $26.4 million in general obligation bonds approved by voters to finance water, sewer, street and fire fighting system improvements.

That suit is pending before the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

Drought Officially Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — With water supplies rapidly improving, U.S. Reclamation Commissioner R. Keith Higginson announced Thursday that the 1976-77 drought is officially over in most areas of the 17 western states.

His announcement set in motion schedules for the repayment of many loans made under the Emergency Drought Act of 1977; most of those who obtained emergency loans or deferred loan payments now must begin repayment in 1979, the first year after the drought officially ends.

But Higginson's announcement said water supplies were still short, because of below-normal precipitation, in northern New Mexico, southeastern Colorado, and the western regions of Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

"Unless above normal precipitation occurs in the next few months the water supply outlook in those areas will remain below normal," he said.

"Because of the slower return to normal conditions a date to begin repayment of drought assistance loans in those areas has not been set."

Tech Law School Schedules Honors Day Program

Judge Robert W. Calvert of Austin, former chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, will deliver the principal address at the Texas Tech University School of Law Honors Day program at 3:45 p.m.

Several other high court justices and officials of the State Bar of Texas will attend and participate in the program to be held in the Forum of the Law School.

Among them will be Travis Shelton of Lubbock, president of the State Bar of Texas, and Cullen Smith of Waco, president-elect.

Texas Tech Law Dean Frank W. Elliott will preside over the honors and awards program.

A new award will be presented this year, Dean Elliott announced, in honor of the late James P. Alexander, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas from 1940-1948. His widow, Mrs. Alexander of Austin and their two daughters, Miss Betty Alexander of Huntsville and Mrs. William Blaney of Houston, will attend the ceremonies. The award will be for excellence in Texas Procedure.

Mrs. Meade Griffin of Austin and formerly of Plainview also will attend. She is the widow of the former associate justice of the Supreme Court of Texas.

Other guests will include donors of awards and scholarships, trustees of the School of Law Foundation, members of the Texas Tech Board of Regents who will meet in regular session Friday, and other special friends of the law school.

Winners of the school's Moot Court competition conducted this week will be announced at the honors day program.

Board of Barristers awards for recognition of service in the appellate advocacy program will go to David Hamilton, chairman Randall R. Moore, vice chairmen of appellate advocacy; Ronald G. Felty, vice chairman of mock trial; N. Keith Williams, vice chairman of general programs; and Kerwin Stephens, secretary, and board members Michael A.

Chovanec, Michael D. Deegan, Nathan Griffin, David M. Hammer, Carol S. Leach, Donald W. Mills, Roger Joseph Pipes, James R. Raup, A. Risher Smith, Susan Stedman and James M. Stewart.

An award of law books presented by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York will go to members of the Texas Tech Law School National Moot Court team of Hamilton, Moore and Stephens. They also will receive a traveling trophy given by Levelland Attorney Alvin R. Allison, member of the Foundation Board of Trustees and longtime supporter of the Law School.

Special recognition will go to Hamilton,

Moore and Kelly Utsinger, members of the State Junior Bar Moot Court Team, Kathleen Billingsley, W. Michael Greene, Jonathan G. Kerr and Utsinger of the Jessup International Law Moot Court Team, and Shelly J. Cashion, Robert D. Lybrand, Raup, James O. Collins, James L. Gorsuch and Hamilton of the National Mock Trial Teams.

Law Review awards will be presented to Raup, editor-in-chief; Donald W. Mills, managing editor; Pamela Hobgood Wiese, Fifth Circuit symposium editor; Cashion and Alex F. Sears, case notes editors; Kenric R. Hevron and Frank Weathered, comments editor; Rodney Patterson and Glenn D. West, articles and topics editors; David W. Hammer, research editor; Michael D. Parsons, book review editor; Collins, business manager; and associate editors Cooper G. Members of the Honors and Awards Committee for 1977-78 are Profs. Annette Marple, Robert A. Weninger and Robert E. Wood and students Anderson Carter, Deane Glenn, George Shaffer and Steven Watkins.

Judge Hits Speedy Trial Act

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The presiding judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Thursday called for the next session of the legislature to "repeal or drastically overhaul" the state's new speedy trial act which goes into effect July 1.

Speaking to a group of about 40 state district judges here in Lubbock, Judge John Onion indicated he feels the provision will not effectively accomplish the purposes for which it was enacted.

Onion was the first program speaker at the West Texas Judicial Conference concluding today at the Holiday Inn here.

Officials from an area stretching from Amarillo to El Paso and from the New Mexico line to Wichita Falls are in attendance at the conference, which is expected to become an annual event.

The speedy trial act, drafted by the last legislature, says courts must grant a motion to dismiss felony cases against defendants if the state is not ready to prosecute the cases in 120 days.

According to the new law, prosecutors must be ready to try misdemeanor cases even more quickly.

A 90-day period is the time limit for misdemeanors punishable by more than 180 days in jail, while 60 days is the cut-off limit for offenses with jail time of less than six months.

For misdemeanors punishable by fine only, the limit is 30 days.

The law is designed to give top priority to defendants who are incarcerated.

Local courts have been working hard in an effort to cut down on the criminal docket in preparation for the July 1 date when the law goes into effect.

Onion said he was aware that judges throughout the state have feared the new requirements would drastically reduce the amount of time which could be spent on civil matters.

The judge said in his speech that the countdown for the state's announcement of "ready" begins, according to statute interpretations, when the accused is arrested, not when he is charged or indicted.

Onion indicated that, in effect, he does not anticipate a major problem for trial judges on account of the new statute.

"This basically means the state must announce ready," Onion said, pointing out that the state in the overwhelming majority of cases does announce it is ready for trial during pre-trial proceedings.

Onion told the judges he feels there is broad "safety valve" included in the statute.

The section to which he referred allows a judge to invoke a "reasonable period of delay" if justified by "exceptional circumstances." "It does not specify what can be considered exceptional circumstances," Onion said.

Onion said some state prosecutors are particularly worried about one provision which, if the state does not answer ready to try a certain offense, would bar further prosecution for any offenses resulting from "the same transaction."

According to Onion, some prosecutors feel there could be a danger involved in cases where a person is accused of both felony and misdemeanor offenses, because of the differing time limits.

Basically, Onion seemed to indicate he expects prosecutors to continue announcing ready, and indicated that it would then be up to the defendant to ask for a trial before any case is dismissed under the measure.

Onion said most federal district judges he has communicated with do not seem happy with similar federal requirements already in effect.

He said members of a special governor's task force on the speedy trial act have made inquiries of officials in other states which have such measures.

"In nearly every instance, the persons responding have said such acts have not been effective and also pointed out that almost all the acts have some sort of loophole," Onion said.

The judge did indicate he felt the law could have one beneficial side-effect, that of prompting prosecutors to dismiss dormant cases in which there is little evidence.

But on the whole, he indicated the act would not have that much beneficial impact and closed his speech by making the call for the next legislature to repeal or overhaul it.

AN EDITORIAL:

A 'New' Regime At City Hall

ALTHOUGH THE full City Council make-up must wait on a runoff election for one council seat, the "new team" which took over at City Hall Thursday is in effect an "old team" from the standpoint of experience.

In that sense, the problems—and hopefully the solutions—will come as no surprise to those who must cope with them.

The changes at City Hall involve positions on the City Council itself, with the exception of the one remaining seat to be filled in a runoff election. Whether there will be changes in thought and direction remains to be seen.

OBVIOUSLY, FROM the recent vote, Mayor Dirk West and Mayor Pro-Tem Alan Henry take over their new duties with the well wishes and support of a large number of the Lubbock citizenry.

They join holdover Council members Bill McAlister and Carolyn Jordan.

For outgoing Mayor Roy Bass, "hizzoner" leaves office of his own accord after serving through two terms and four years of challenging and at times hectic sessions.

Mr. Bass, we feel, has been a dedicated public servant. He has worked long and diligently at the job, including the long and tedious hours associated with the actual decision making, plus many more on the "peas and potato" circuit, handling the ceremonial functions of the position.

AN EDITORIAL:

Metric: Liter Or Lot Better?

THE NATIONAL Weather Service's proposed changeover to relating national temperature readings in Celsius degrees by mid-1979 could be our broadest and most meaningful exposure yet to the metric system—toward which the U.S. has been progressing for the past few years by very slow millimeters.

Subsequent tentative steps toward fully metric weather reporting include snowfall predictions in centimeters instead of inches, windspeed in kilometers instead of miles per hour and, by June of 1980, barometric pressure in kilopascals (whatever that is) instead of inches of mercury.

BY THEN, the march to metric should be more apparent in several other areas of public note. Standardized metric sizes—six in all, starting with 1.75 liters—will replace pints, fifths and the like in liquor packaging as of Jan. 1, 1980 by Treasury regulation.

With the 1980 model year, the Transportation Department has decreed that auto speedometers must show both miles and kilometers.

An earlier effort to convert highway sign distances to kilometers has been shelved.

COMING UP this July will be a first step

M. STANTON EVANS:

Author Concludes Hiss 'Victim Of The Facts'

WASHINGTON—Few episodes in American legal history are more heavily freighted with political and cultural meaning than the battle between Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers.

From the time it surfaced 30 years ago, the significance of the case has been plainly grasped by all concerned.

Chambers' charges that Ivy League-patrician Hiss had been a secret Communist, involved in espionage, shook the "establishment" to its roots and prompted a bitter counterattack on Chamber and those who sided with him—most notably, Richard Nixon—that continues to this day.

IT IS NOT TOO much to say, in fact, that the case marked out the battle lines on a host of issues for the next three decades: Not only on such questions as internal security and domestic Communism but also on the larger question of the cold war generally and on a good deal of domestic policy stemming from the New Deal era.

Most of all, the case was a prototype for the continuing battle between elite opinion-molders in Washington and New York and the down-home anti-Communism of grass-roots America.

It is because of this symbolic value that Allen Weinstein's "Perjury: The Hiss-Chambers Case," is such a vitally important book.

IT ARRIVES precisely at a time when a brand-new campaign is being waged to exonerate Hiss, an effort that has made considerable headway as cold war memories dim, people such as Lillian Hellman are presented to us as martyrs and the fall of Nixon is skillfully used to discredit the anti-Communist themes with which he was associated early in his career.

Weinstein's book itself is largely a result of the leftward revisionist impulse.

It had its genesis in a suit by the American Civil Liberties Union against the FBI to obtain some 30,000 pages-plus of records pertaining to the Hiss-Chambers case.

Weinstein, a professor of history at Smith College, believed that Hiss was innocent of the Communist-espionage charges, and thought that exploration of the files would support him in this

His good humor has been a leavening force at times when things seemed to be coming apart at the seams, to mix one of the past mayor's metaphors.

MAYOR DIRK WEST is neither a newcomer to Lubbock politics, nor to the citizens of the city and area. Also known for his sense of humor, Mr. West may on occasion in the future find need for a helping of it.

But, he, and his fellow Council members also will need to dip down deep for other resources to meet the tasks they will face as public servants. The next City Council faces some old problems, which are growing, and some new ones which could also multiply.

There isn't a person in Lubbock who isn't looking to City Hall, the County and State, and the various proper law enforcement agencies and courts to "do something" about Lubbock's soaring crime rate.

THE CITY'S clogged traffic arteries present a nightmare of a different sort.

And such "routine" challenges of finding new sources of water, completing the Canyon Lakes project and keeping up with a fantastic physical growth—in homes and businesses—as well as a burgeoning economy will more than test the mettle of everyone at City Hall.

The public knows what the problems and challenges are. What they are looking for is leadership and sound solutions. Good Luck, Lady and Gentlemen!

BUT THAT board is just now in the process of being selected by President Carter and confirmed by the Senate.

Once in being, the board will coordinate the multitude of specialized conversion plans now blossoming. One of its first evaluations is likely to be of the NWS plans for phasing in metric measurements.

Quick, you're about to leave the house when you realize it's 21 degrees (Celsius) outside. What kind of weather is it—shirt-sleeve or bundle-up? (Hint: forget your long johns).

Imagine the shock to all and sundry, therefore, when Weinstein emerged from his researches with just the opposite conclusion.

AFTER A painstaking survey of the evidence that included not only the FBI records but countless interviews with major figures in the case—including half a dozen with Hiss himself—minute examination of the court and hearing records and voluminous other data, Weinstein asserts:

"The body of available evidence proves that he did in fact perjure himself when describing his secret dealings with Chambers, so that the jurors in the second trial made no mistake in finding Alger Hiss guilty as charged."

Such a verdict from such a source will not sit well with those who had been expecting historian Weinstein to come out on the other side of the question.

Nor will it go down easily with those intent on rescussitating Hiss as a method of showing the cold war was and is a myth, and that what the people have to fear is not the global Communist enterprise but the connivings of anti-Communist agencies (what few we have remaining) within our new American government.

HISS AND HIS supporters have known the blow was coming for some time. As Weinstein recounts it, he informed Hiss in March 1976:

"When I began working on this book four years ago, I thought I would be able to demonstrate your innocence, but unfortunately I have to tell you that I cannot, that my assumption was wrong."

As Weinstein put it to an interviewer: "In the end, Chambers' version turned out to be truthful, and Hiss' version did not. Alger Hiss is a victim of the facts."

Weinstein's book will have an impact and a credibility that a volume coming at the case from the other direction would not be able to achieve.

The book is a cold war landmark and should be read by those who want to learn not only about Hiss and Chambers but about the nature of the times in which we live.

'Betty, Remember All Those Jokes About My WIN Button?'

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

The Big Good Wolf

WASHINGTON—Unease among President Carter's men, not relieved by the advent of spring or badly needed presidential victories, can be traced to the conduct of disparate personalities: a freshman senator, some anonymous bureaucrats and several cabinet members.

What do all these standard Washington types have in common? They do not fear Jimmy Carter. Nor does anybody else, either here or in the national political community.

Among his youthful aides who have had to reinvent the political wheel, the truth is coming home that, to govern properly, a President must generate a respect bordering on fear.

There is, consequently, a new ingredient in prescriptions for presidential revival privately voiced

Flip Flop It Again

WASHINGTON—As Congress reconvened after its annual, week-long Easter goof-off, Jimmy Carter must be telling himself, sadly, that he was right the first time about financing Social Security.

The President, through his point man, Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, proposed last year that some of the cost of keeping Social Security solvent be borne out of general revenues—meaning raised by other taxes.

But this is a President who can change his mind 180 degrees. Consider his flip-flop on deregulation of natural gas. So when members of Congress, almost all of them Democrats, demanded that Social Security taxes be raised, Carter went along. Signing the rip-off bill last December, he even praised Congress for its statesmanship.

NOW, THERE HAS been a change of mind on Capitol Hill. Having heard from angry constituents, a majority are determined to roll back those payroll tax increases.

More than 150 Democrats who voted for the tax boosts signed a petition for a party caucus to finance a substantial part of the Social Security burden from general revenues.

And Jimmy Carter will go along, again. "We figure a rollback is inevitable, this year," says a White House spokesman for such matters.

"We're now in a holding pattern. We hope we can limit the tax cut, perhaps by getting an agreement to stall the increases at the 1978 figure to give everybody a chance to decide what to do long-term."

THERE ARE THOSE who oppose what Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., calls "such adventurism." Although he opposed the payroll boosts last year, he says it's dangerous to "borrow" to pay for Social Security.

What he means is that the dough advanced by the Treasury will add to the national deficit.

He's right, of course. But Uncle Sam borrows for practically everything else, from appropriations for more tanks and planes for the military to boondoggles like grants for finding out what makes people fall in love.

In any case, there has been a massive outpouring of protests from the hinterlands over last year's legislation, which will rip-off the citizenry for $227 billion in payroll taxes over the next 10 years.

AND IT IS NOT only the lower-income folks who will suffer. The whole economy will be adversely affected.

As Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., has pointed out, higher payroll tax payments by employers will raise labor costs and force them to raise prices, resulting in a loss of sales, production and jobs.

Meanwhile, Republicans in the House are wild with euphoria. Led by Rep. Barber Conable, N.Y., they almost unanimously opposed last December's increases.

Besides familiar recommendations for a return to populistic distrust of government which he sounded in the 1976 campaign plus better staffing at the White House, it is now suggested that Carter stop turning his other cheek and start using his big stick.

WHETHER THIS advice will be followed is doubtful. But the mere fact it is offered reflects concern over the President's low esteem—deeper concern, ironically, following recent Carter successes.

Ratification of the first Panama Canal treaty and settlement of the coal strike have not produced the spring-like rebirth of Carter's popularity that had been expected at the White House.

Nobody is unrealistic enough to hope for help from his current wanderings in the Third World.

Rather, the President today is without ardent supporters anywhere in the country.

Advisers admit that there has been no improvement in his political condition, despite the absence of serious crisis. Such political anemia in fair weather makes Carter fatally vulnerable when foul winds blow.

His condition is shown by consistent behavior toward the President that ranges from oblivious to contemptuous:

* FEW DEMOCRATS in Congress hesitate at tweaking the President's nose—even freshmen such as Sen. Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska.

Carter aides were angered, not because he finally voted against the Panama Canal treaty, but because he laid out for Time magazine the details of Carter's supplications for his vote.

Cabinet members play their own game. Joseph Califano, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), has run an autonomous sawtooth from the start.

Patricia Roberts Harris, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), serves as the inner-city envoy to the President rather than the other way around.

Most recently, Carter aides grumble that Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal makes points with the business community at the President's expense.

Nameless bureaucrats, both presidential appointees and civil servants, are hard at work on Carter's reorganization plans—working to "defeat" them, that is.

Their anti-Carter lobbying on Capitol Hill is open, without apology or subterfuge.

"THE PROBLEM," A Carterite told us, "is that nobody is afraid he's going to get smashed if he messes with the President."

Thus, important as staff and policy changes may be, there is a new strain of thought on the Carter team that the President's top priority is to win a little respect.

First of all is the need to impress members of Congress that opposition to the President carries a price tag, and Ed Zorinsky is thought to be a classic example.

Carter ran badly in Nebraska in 1976, can hope for little improvement in 1980 and so cannot make matters worse.

JAY HARRIS:

So, Dig, Dig, D..

"WHEN THE outgo exceeds the income, something's gotta give..."

That paraphrase of an economic axiom perhaps touches the lives of more Americans, if not people worldwide, than any other factor today.

The latest opinion polls emphasize that what is happening to the pocketbook—what goes in and what comes out—tops all "worries" of U.S. citizens by a good margin.

And when President Carter this week said: "We must do something about inflation," it was the understatement of his administration thus far.

What he hopes to do is to be revealed next week. In the meantime, the "cost of living" and doing business is going up faster than a hot air balloon in the middle of Congress.

IN A BROAD sense, the President touched on the causes and effects of inflation when he said: "Unless we all stand firm, cut out waste and have a sound economy, stabilize the dollar, have an energy package passed, cut out unnecessary spending and hold down the budget deficit, we are all going to be robbed of the improvements (in higher employment) we made..."

In view of the record, one could make a case for giving up after reading that.

To be honest about it, the best we can hope for is a slowing down of the spiraling wage-price cycle, although many are beginning to grumble that the former no longer is keeping pace with the latter.

Just for the record, inflation isn't something which happened just recently. For the past 40 years—since Uncle Sam got into the economic act—things have been on a roller coaster, with the ride mostly up.

ACTUALLY, THE insidious effects of inflation take hold in ways that most people aren't aware of until it is too late.

Congressional Quarterly puts it this way: "Every year at tax time, Americans are forced to examine their economic lives in a way that leaves most of them baffled, weary and depressed. Tax-paying citizens not only discover what they're worth, but also the debt they owe to the rate of inflation..."

The truth of the matter is that although wages have been rising steadily in recent years, there has been little or no financial gain for most wage earners, since inflated salary increases only push them into higher tax brackets. And price boosts, to pay higher wages, eat up the rest.

Just as an example, according to CQ, someone who made $8,000 in 1967 and whose salary had gone up to $18,000 by 1976 experienced a 125 percent jump in earned income. However, inflation and accompanying moves up the tax scale held that person's real earning increase to a mere 25 percent!

IN A RECENT item in The St. Petersburg Times, even a more graphic example of what inflation can do was given.

If you had hidden a new $100 bill in a desk 10 years ago and found it only yesterday, you would need to add $80 more to match its original purchasing power.

Economist Milton Friedman has defined inflation as "a hidden tax that at first appears painless or even pleasant." But because it is a tax that can be imposed "without specific legislation," he writes, "it is truly taxation without representation."

Friedman and others have suggested that tax indexing, keying tax deductions and exemptions to the rate of inflation offers the best remedy for the problem.

While some foreign nations use indexing, the U.S. does not. The reason, index backers claim, is that the government actually profits from inflation. Backers also see indexing at the tax level as a way of holding down federal spending. The last bill on the subject, in 1976, was defeated handily.

IT IS THE rate of inflation in the U.S., plus the heavy use of—and spending of American dollars—for foreign oil, plus lack of confidence in the Dollar and yes, Mr. Carter himself, that has the rest of the world, particularly Europe, watching Washington warily.

But, at least one European nation, Switzerland, claims it is possible to combat the deadly disease.

All you have to do, the Swiss say, is: 1. Assign the inflation battle at least equal priority with job creation; 2. Maintain a strong currency; 3. Hold a tight rein on government spending; 4. Keep firm control of the country's money supply, and 5. See to it that wages do not race ahead of productivity.

Sounds simple. For the Swiss, it has worked. From a 12 percent inflation rate at the end of 1973, the rate dropped to 7.5 percent a year later, 3.5 percent in 1975, 1.3 percent in 1976 and 1.1 percent in 1977. Revaluation of the franc, upward against most currencies, of course has helped. It also is notable that Switzerland's jobless rate is half of one percent of the labor force.

ON THE OTHER side of the coin, Italy chocked up a vicious 22 percent inflation rise in 1976 and 14 percent last year.

Britain had 15.1 and 12.1 percent respectively. Japan 9.9 and 9 percent. The U.S. had 5.1 in 1976, 6.8 percent last year and 1978 thus far is up for grabs.

What can an individual or a family or a business do to combat inflation? It all depends. If one has any "extra" left after the necessities, not to mention luxuries, then some long-range planning is possible. But, for the most part, individuals and businesses alike are at the mercy of rising prices.

The problem is obvious. Mr. Carter hit the multiple-headed Dragon on the head. But he didn't do so much as raise a bump and most likely won't. Indexing, wage and price curbs, strikes, boycotts—none hold the answer. Unfortunately, neither Big Brother nor the people are willing to swallow the medicine "for what ails us." It's called Fiscal Restraint.

...Pass It On

THE OLD TESTAMENT had a thing or two to say about how to protect yourself from too much cholesterol, too. Take Proverbs XV: 17: "Better a dish of vegetables, if love go with it, than a fat ox eaten in hatred." And Proverbs IV: 23: "Guard your heart more than any other treasure for it is the source of all life."

Q. "Is it true that the infamous London killer known as Jack the Ripper actually ate a kidney from one of his victims?"
 A. That's what he claimed in a note to police.

Carter Okays Retirement Age Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "it is time for smiles and congratulations," President Carter signed legislation Thursday extending the mandatory retirement age for most private employees from 65 to 70, effective next Jan. 1.
 It also prohibits the federal government, starting Sept. 30, from requiring otherwise qualified civilian employees to retire at any age. Those workers now must retire at 70.

"We hope this will be a good example for the rest of the nation to emulate," Carter said at a bill-signing ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.
 The new law, which won final congressional approval two weeks ago by a Senate vote of 62 to 10, was sponsored chiefly by Rep. Claude Pepper, 77. The Florida Democrat took the microphone from Carter and proclaimed "a day of elation for millions of our fellow citizens."

Pepper said a person's 65th birthday no longer will be a "death day." He said he will soon introduce a bill to eliminate mandatory retirement at any age.

The legislation comes at a time when more and more Americans are electing to retire early. The University of Michigan reported recently that half of all working Americans — about twice as many as in 1963 — are planning early retirements.

The Labor Department estimates that only about 200,000 older people might remain in the private work force as a result of the new law.

The law, which broadens a 1967 statute prohibiting age discrimination in employment, says that starting next year, a private employer with 20 or more workers on the payroll cannot force them to retire before age 70, except for cause.

An estimated 70 percent of the civilian work force is covered, including state and local governments workers.

Exempted are members of the armed forces and such special groups of federal employees as law enforcement personnel, fire fighters, air traffic controllers and foreign service officers.

As a result of heavy business lobbying, the law says certain high-level business executives can be forced to retire between 65 and 70 if they have held high policy-making positions for at least two years and are eligible for pensions of $27,000 or more annually.

Police Approach Full Strength

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — Police Chief Alvis "Tuffy" Maddox said Thursday that staffing the resignation-depleted Childress Police Department is almost complete and that newly hired policemen are on duty.

Maddox said the department is short only two officers.

The restaffing became necessary after the entire force, except for three dispatchers, resigned following Maddox's swearing-in ceremonies Tuesday night.

Former Police Chief Odus Burrows said the men submitted their resignations to him just before Maddox took his oath of office. Burrows remained on duty throughout the swearing-in ceremonies, then shook hands with his successor and offered his assistance in any way.

Childress is one of only a few Texas cities where the office of police chief is an elected position.

The chief has full authority for hiring and firing personnel. Maddox was elected to the post Saturday, defeating former chief Burrows and Assistant Police Chief Don McKinney at the polls.

"Maddox ran a clean race and I have no hard feelings whatsoever. I offered him my assistance again today," Burrows said this morning.

The new police force faced a rash of burglary reports Thursday. There were break-ins at the Greenbelt Farmers Co-Op, Childress Veterinary Clinic and A&B Builders Supply during the night.

"We're working on those break-ins right now," Maddox said Thursday. "And we're being assisted by the Childress County Sheriff's Department and a Texas Ranger."

Maddox emphasized that the Department of Public Safety and Texas Rangers offered assistance if needed, but that the police department had ample manpower and has not had to ask for help from other law enforcement agencies.

Maddox, a former Childress police chief who served 18 years, said he offered at least two of the resigned officers jobs in his department, but apparently both men refused. The officers refused to comment after the ceremony where Maddox, in his 70s, was sworn in Tuesday night.

Ag, Energy Top Issues — Hance

The major issues in the Democratic race for George Mahon's seat in Congress are those involving natural resources, Kent Hance said Thursday.

Speaking before a small group of law students at Texas Tech, Hance said agriculture is the primary concern in the central and northern part of the 19th Congressional District, while residents of the southern part of the district feel more strongly about energy issues.

"I feel I'm the only candidate with a good background in agriculture since I was raised on a farm and own a farm," Hance said.

"To represent the district, you have to take a hard-line stand on both agriculture and energy," the state senator said.

Hance repeated his support for immediate deregulation of natural gas as opposed to his opponent, Morris Sheats, who supports a phased deregulation over three years.

"At Levelland Sheats said eight years," Hance said referring to a forum where the two candidates appeared.

"Now I've got him down to three years."

Hance said some candidates weren't being realistic about what one freshman congressman could do in Washington.

"Some candidates say vote for me, I'm going to abolish OSHA," Hance said. Republican candidate Jim Reese often has mentioned OSHA should be abolished.

"There are 435 members in Congress. As one out of 435, you just can't say I'm going to pass a bill no matter what," Hance said.

The Lubbock attorney also said a lawmaker needs to know how to get along with people and "how to disagree."

"There's ways to disagree without being disagreeable," Hance said.

He said he might have an edge on other candidates because he had worked with members of the Texas congressional delegation while in the state senate and because they decide what committee assignments you get.

With six, possibly seven or eight, new congressmen from Texas, the representative from Texas will have an advantage, Hance said.

He said residents of the 19th District "are going to have to give them (the new congressmen) an opportunity to adjust and an opportunity to have power."

That's going to take some time and not going to happen on the first day the new representative is up there, Hance cautioned.

Hance said there were two options for a lawmaker when the people he represents feel overwhelmingly about a particular issue.

"If you know something they don't," Hance said, the lawmaker has the obligation to explain why he disagrees with the residents of the district.

The other option, he said, is "vote your district" as he said he did on the issue of pari-mutuel betting.

Hance said the "horse racing people would like you for about two weeks" if you voted for pari-mutuel betting.

However, the "Baptists and Church of Christ people would be praying to defeat you every Wednesday night" if you voted for it.

Bicycle Wheel-A-Thon Slated

The West Texas Wheelers, local chapter of the National Paraplegia Foundation, is sponsoring a bicycle wheel-a-thon Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the lower parking level of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Cherry Moncrief, local spokesman for the group, said sponsors are still needed and are asked to donate prizes or a $25 fee for the riders.

Prizes will be given for the bicyclist who rides the longest, and for the one who raises the most money. Mrs. Moncrief added that bike riders are still needed, too.

Half of the proceeds from the wheel-a-thon will go towards the national chapter's spinal cord research program while the other half will remain with the local chapter.

"We hope to raise enough this year to get a building in which to hold our regular meetings and other activities," Mrs. Moncrief said.

Persons desiring more information may call Mrs. Moncrief at 828-3935.

Some Taxpayers Get Deadline Extension

Persons who earned more than $3,000 and who draw Social Security benefits must report their earnings to the Social Security Administration by May 16.

Normally the reports must be filed by April 15, but a delay in the printing of forms led to an extended deadline, according to Jim Latimer, Social Security field representative.

Latimer added that a penalty may be applied when reports are filed after May 16 and he also noted that filing an income tax report does not meet the requirement for reporting income to the Social Security Administration.

Forms for the reports are available at the Lubbock Social Security Office, 1205 Texas Ave., Room 102.

Girl Eludes Captor At Mall

A young woman barely escaped injury recently when an armed assailant accosted her as she waited for a ride at the South Plains Mall.

The 15-year-old girl said she was waiting just inside the mall doors about 9:4 p.m. Wednesday, when a tall man with light brown hair walked inside and looked around momentarily.

Then, apparently without provocation, the stranger reportedly moved stealthily up behind his intended victim and placed a 14-inch knife with an eight-inch blade near the front of her body.

The attacker told her to come along and said nothing would happen as long as she was quiet.

However, the teenager told police she screamed and tried to break away, felt the weapon fall away and to the floor then turned to find the man gone.

Police recovered the weapon. It was the third time in recent days that a young Lubbock woman has been able to elude a would-be assailant.

Meanwhile, police were investigating the city's latest armed robbery, after a clerk waved an officer down early Thursday.

John Cowell, an attendant at the 7-Eleven Store at 2522 Parkway Drive, stopped the officer about 2:35 a.m. and said he had been in a rear storeroom 20 minutes earlier when a man closed the door and told him if he came out, he would be shot.

The clerk said he obeyed the holdupman and heard the cash register open. When he heard the bell on the front door, Cowell said he came out of the vault in time to see a dark-colored car leave the scene.

About $80 reportedly was taken in the holdup.

The latest robbery occurred less than four hours after a 58-year-old woman attendant at the Preston Milk Store at 1101 34th St. was confronted by another hold-up artist.

The lone bandit reportedly got away with about $38 in that robbery.

Meanwhile, Lubbock thieves showed a predictable streak recently by making off with bicycles and stealing license plates following the deadline for renewal stickers.

Robbie C. Crawford of 2439 28th St., David Bailey of 4605 Jarvis St. and Wylie Dykes Jr. of 4511 62nd St. all reported stolen bicycles recently.

Likewise, three Lubbockites told police they were the latest victims of stolen license plates.

James Reddell of Idalou said his tags were taken Thursday while he was in the 2400-block of Broadway and both Estevan Delacera of 3708 24th St. and Ruth Moore of 401 N. University Ave. said their plates were stolen while their vehicles were parked at home.

Beer bottles apparently hurled from a passing car early Thursday caused $125 damage each to the vehicles of Ralph Mabry of 3012 68th St. and his neighbor, John Shropshire Jr. of 3014 68th St.

In other incidents, Ollie Pearl Burnett of 2905 Parkway Drive said someone stole her $120 stereo set Thursday, and Don Balch said someone removed $420 worth of appliances from an apartment in the past few days.

Jesus Castaneda of 5214 Oak Ave. said someone broke into his residence recently and took $20 worth of quarters, sound equipment and two Spanish guitars.

April Finley of 5302 11th St. said someone took her $600 television set Wednesday, and Jay Upton of 1513 32nd St. reported the Thursday theft of a toolbox and tools and a sewer machine, all valued at $675.

R. C. Strong of Lubbock said someone stole four tires and wheel covers from his 1977 Cadillac while it was parked in the 2200-block of Clovis Road Wednesday or Thursday. Strong estimated his loss at $1,200, while Herb Childs of 4710 29th St. said he would be out about $140 after someone stole his hubcaps Wednesday while his vehicle was at the South Plains Mall.

Joe Ramos of 6302 Elgin Ave. said someone stole his $230 CB radio out of his pickup truck recently.

Three Named In Rape Case

Three men were charged Thursday in connection with the alleged gang rape of a 14-year-old girl.

Charged with rape of a child were Armando Pena Flores, 21, of 2110 Ave. L; Jerry Don Thomas, 18, of 917 E. Kent St. and Crespin Orozco, 17, of 109 Uvalde Ave.

Three juvenile males, youths 16 or under, are also alleged to have taken part in the reported March 26 incident.

The eighth grade girl told police she accepted an invitation to ride around with one of the juveniles late March 25, and that two other juveniles were also in the vehicle, a pickup truck.

She said three other males were eventually picked up to join the group and that the group switched to another vehicle, a car.

The car was reportedly driven to a dirt road in Northeast Lubbock.

The girl said that her clothes were pulled off her and that five of the six males had intercourse with her inside the car.

The girl indicated she was then driven to a garage apartment. She told police some of the males again had intercourse with her there.

The girl reportedly walked home about 3 a.m. March 26 and told her family of the incident.

City Man Charged In-Store Holdup

A 21-year-old Lubbock man was charged Thursday with robbing a 34th Street convenience store.

Named in the robbery charge is Freddy Anderson of 2213 7th St. The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $2,500 bond.

Anderson is accused of the Monday robbery of the Preston Milk Store at 1101 34th St.

Cameron Tyler, 17, clerk at the store, said a man entered the store about 11:55 p.m. and grabbed him. He told police the robber took him to a rear stockroom and ordered him to lie down on the floor or be shot.

A witness who was going into the store to pay for some gas said the bandit ran east on 34th Street.

Officer Daniel Villegas spotted a suspect shortly thereafter. Villegas said the suspect was eventually apprehended after hiding behind some machinery inside the Plains Co-op Oil Mill on Avenue A.

Reports indicate Tyler and another witness identified the suspect.

About $40 was reported taken in the robbery.

School Districts Clash

MORTON (Special)—The Cochran County School Board has called a special meeting today to decide again whether to annex a strip of land, owned by the Morton Independent School District, to the Whiteface ISD.

The meeting is set for 1:30 p.m. in the Cochran County Courthouse here.

In March, the Cochran County School Board had voted 4-1 to allow the annexation of the land, a necessary step in order for the Pep and Whiteface schools to consolidate.

Voters in the Pep and Whiteface districts Saturday overwhelmingly approved the consolidation.

Since state law requires the two districts to be contiguous, the Morton schools had been asked by Whiteface to relinquish a strip of land to make the districts adjacent to one another.

But, Morton schools Supt. Marlin Dadds estimates that approximately $2,500 in school taxes each year will be forfeited if the strip is annexed to Whiteface.

Thus, the Morton ISD has filed an appeal of the county school board's March decision to the Commissioner of Education in Austin.

Cochran County Judge Glenn Thompson, secretary for the county school board, said that today's meeting was called because the attorney for the Morton ISD had questioned the legality of their last meeting since they didn't post a meeting agenda with the county clerk.

Farmers Union Sets Meeting

VFW Auxiliary To Meet In Levelland Post

LEVELLAND (Special)—Texas VFW Auxiliary President Ethel Boehm of Alice will head District 7 auxiliary meetings this weekend at the Levelland VFW Post Home.

A formal district meeting will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Sunday and be followed by a covered dish luncheon.

Billie Chadwick, president of the Levelland auxiliary, is program chairman.

Inez Silbernagel of Lubbock is president of the district, which includes VFW auxiliaries in Lubbock, Brownfield, Levelland, Spur, Post, Seminole and Slaton.

Man Survives 23-Story Fall

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A 24-year-old man was in stable condition Thursday after falling 23 stories from an apartment window ledge into a swimming pool, police said.

Police said Patrick Kouchnire was on the ledge either trying to scare or impress his girlfriend Wednesday night when he slipped and fell 208 feet into about 3 feet of water at the pool's shallow end. Police said his girlfriend, who was not identified, was trying to get him off the ledge when Kouchnire fell.

"He must have kicked against the building when he fell," a police spokesman said. "He landed in the pool, which is eight feet from the building."

Hospital officials said Kouchnire suffered internal injuries but no broken bones.

President Receives Japanese Royalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter received Prince and Princess Hitachi of Japan in the White House Thursday, praising their work against cancer.

The president said the couple's work "in this very humanitarian effort" is typical of the public service of the Japanese royal family.

Attorney Sees Suit Win Uniting Farm Strikers

A Lubbock attorney and legal adviser for striking farmers in Texas said winning a $14.7 million civil rights suit would be a big boost for the American Agricultural Movement.

Bill Wischkaemper, who said he probably would be representing the farmers if he had not been present at the Hidalgo bridge blockade, said a victory in the federal suit, in addition to the obvious financial benefits, would help unify the movement.

The suit claims the farmers' civil rights were violated when they clashed with law officers and city officials on an international bridge near Hidalgo.

The farmers were protesting the import of agriculture products from Mexico by blockading the bridge last month when they allegedly were attacked by police wielding nightsticks and tear gas.

Wischkaemper said the complainants in the suit have lost their faith in the American system and their right to a peaceful demonstration.

"They feel very strongly that their rights were violated," said Wischkaemper, adding that a victory by the farmers in U.S. District Court at Brownsville would renew their confidence in the American way.

The attorney said winning the suit also would help the movement financially because he thought the farmers would put the settlements back into strike activities.

The farmers are asking for damages totaling $14.7 million—$70,000 each. However, if the court's ruling is in favor of the defendants—McAllen and Hidalgo city officials, Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department and the Texas Department of Public Safety — "they would be real disappointed, but I don't think it would hurt the movement," Wischkaemper said.

Wischkaemper said legal fees for the farmers would run a minimum of $10,000.

Wischkaemper said he was on the bridge when Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo gave the order to clear the bridge.

The demonstrators were not breaking any laws and were complying with the sheriff's order when they were attacked with tear gas, and law officers were "clubbing people and knocking people down," according to Wischkaemper.

Wischkaemper said he was talking to the sheriff after the order to clear the bridge was given when "he turned his back and here came the tear gas."

Thrills Replace Sky Diver's Fears

A-J Picture Editor

The phone rang, and a voice (sounding like a character from Mission Impossible) said "We're set to go this afternoon. It's up to you, once you're out, you're on your own. There'll be no one there to help you."

I thought for a moment, then decided now was the time to put our plans into action. The assignment called for a quick briefing, then a flight over the airport, parachuting onto a small circle in the center of the airfield. Our mission: the first lesson in the increasingly popular sport of sky diving.

A few weeks earlier three hours of extensive ground training were completed by a comrade, Steve Fishman, and this agent. During the indoctrination we were constantly schooled in the procedures which alone would mean the difference in the success of our jump.

The commands, "On jump run... get in the door and get ready... GO!" rattled in our heads even as we slept. The practice of parachute landing falls became second nature. In the dead of night we would catch ourselves in a dream world prepared to land from a jump. The essence of the training is to make emergency procedures and falls seem as natural as breathing.

As we journeyed to the airport, the comments of a friend resounded in my mind. "Anyone that would jump out of a perfectly good airplane is a darn fool!" The statement seemed to carry more weight as each approaching mile drew us closer to sky diving.

We arrived just in time to see the day's first sky diver land into a pole supporting the wind sock. He hit the ground with a loud thud; his agonized face slowly rose from between the weeds to reflect the pain in his leg. As first impressions go, it was exceedingly dramatic; our confidence was shaken, but finally renewed when seven other jumpers made the drop safely.

"I bear the weight of the world on my shoulders," surely is an expression coined by someone as a parachute was strapped to his back. The reserve chute is attached in front after the main one is buckled on, to give the impression that you are solidly anchored to the ground with no hope of being able to raise yourself high enough to crawl through the tiny door of the plane.

At last the small single engine plane sputtered down the runway carrying three jumpers, a pilot and a photographer, Gordon Gardner. As the plane prepared to leave the ground we were instructed to lean forward to give the struggling engine more weight over the wings instead of resting most of it on the tail. The plane seemed to pound its heart out and still we were on the ground, but at last with one final surge the plane slowly lifted and began the long climb to 3,000 feet.

The instructor slowly grasped the handle of the door, gave it a slight turn, and let go. The door flew open, letting in a burst of heart-shattering air. As we regained our composure, the course was set to put us out of the plane at the point which would let us drift down closest to the target.

I would be the first to go; looking out the door I found myself thinking, "I'm really gonna do this?" But I wasn't about to show any fear in the presence of my companions. I didn't have to, the grave expressions showed through on everyone's countenance. It was dead serious business, putting out two first-timers.

A firm but kind voice shouted over the noise of the open door, "On jump run." I began to wonder how I would crawl over everyone's legs and get to the door without falling out head first. The instructor snapped my static line into place. The line would automatically open the chute, or I would have to use the emergency procedures we'd been taught, but this time there could be no mistakes.

Discovery

IT'S "GO!" FOR JUMPER

"Get in the door and get ready..." I thought my heart would jump out of my mouth, but out I went, carefully grabbing the wing support as the wind blasted against me. Once I had established my footing I began to feel a little more confident. The plane was there beside me, I hadn't fallen or been blown off, and as I looked around I could see everyone inside the plane watching me.

In a split second the instructor tapped me on the shoulder and shouted, "GO!" Immediately I let go of the plane and fell into a wide spread-eagle type arch as we had been instructed. I couldn't see the plane after that. I only knew I was dropping like a rock, but couldn't care less. The beauty of soaring through the air like a bird was worth every tense moment before.

Soon I felt a tug, like the hand of God slowing my fall... it was only the parachute spreading its wide canopy to ease my descent. Suspended high above the world, it provided a panoramic view of the farmlands as I drifted toward earth. The scene was awe inspiring.

Once the initial excitement passed, I began to take a close look at what was going on around me. The plane made a distant pass to be sure I was okay. Far below, photographer Lee Downing was running at break-neck speed to be close at hand when I landed. Unfortunately the wind changed direction just after I exited the plane and despite my desperate efforts I kept going farther and farther from the target. I could imagine what Lee was thinking, but didn't dwell on the matter too long; the ground was coming up fast.

Floating to earth there seemed to be a highway which stayed under me no matter which direction I tried to turn. I could picture myself landing in front of a tractor-trailer and being little more than a splat on the windshield. However, as the ground reached up to grasp me, I found that I had passed the highway and was over the center of the airfield.

The grassy center between runways seemed the best place to attempt a landing. The long, soft grass reaching up to me seemed an anxiously awaited invitation and so I planned my landing there. Any hopes of landing even near the target set up for us had long since been dashed with the wind change.

In choosing my contact point, I overlooked one little detail - a very large ditch which criss-crossed my grassy landing area. By this time the ground was eager for my arrival and seemed to be pulling me with all its force.

I made one last turn and abruptly landed just short of the ditch. One leg ached a little, and I immediately thought of the day's first jumper lying painfully on the ground. But I sprang back up like a weed and collapsed my parachute to prevent being blown to the other end of the county. Looking up as I gathered the chute together, I could see Steve descending on his first jump.

The wind had victimized him also, blown him off course, and he was without a target as I had been. Steve, however, resourcefully picked me as the target and headed directly for me. He might have scored a bulls-eye but the fickle wind again changed and he landed on the other side of the ditch.

By this time the third jumper was out and free falling toward his target. Our instructor having had two previous jumpers to judge winds from, found it quite easy to score the target, narrowly missing Lee, who had abandoned Steve and me and had gone back to the target to get whatever last picture he could.

Once Steve joined me on my side of the ditch, we embarked on the half mile walk back to the hanger from which we had started. The smirks we saw as we dragged back from the far side of the field gnawed at our pride, but there aren't many people who can speak as an actual participant about the feat we had experienced.

A successful first-time jump is always cause for celebration, and when five guys are involved, it's a sure bet they'll drop in on a tavern after the jump. As we sipped our cool drinks, the conversation turned to recounting those first-time jumps.

There is a personal confidence which accompanies a successful jump. There will never be a fear of flying emergencies, because you have conquered not only the plane but the air in which it flies, as well. The most exciting sport in the world is awaiting anyone who is willing to give it a try. And with a qualified instructor to train you, you will be safer in the air than getting into the shower.

Oh, by the way, none of us yelled, "Geronimo!"

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. We are 65, planning to retire to a warmer climate but have delayed any move because of the heavy tax we will face upon the sale of our old home. Is there any way we can defer paying that tax?

A. If you buy a retirement home, all or part of the tax on the profit on the sale of your old home may be deferred, depending upon the size of the profit and whether the new home costs more or less than the one you sold.

However, this is not a simple problem and therefore should be gone into in detail and with professional help before you allow it to thwart your retirement plans. If one could make a general statement it would be that the fear generated by this potential tax are generally far greater than they prove to be when the details are all worked out.

The IRS offers detailed information on how to handle this problem, both in the '1978 Edition of Your Federal Income Tax for Individuals' and in Publication 523 labeled "Tax Information on Selling or Purchasing Your Home." Both publications may be obtained from the local IRS office. I would strongly urge anyone contemplating the sale of his home and fearful of the tax obligation to get these publications. (I'm almost tempted to say: "Don't leave your home without 'em.") Ignore any half-baked advice from well-meaning friends which often confuses and blows up the problem to the point where many people delay what they want to do merely because of unrealistic and exaggerated tax fears.

Q. We are a young family, both employed and have three children. I fear inflation and therefore wonder whether we should take up a friend's offer to invest money with him in West Coast real estate.

A. Any reply to this question would depend 1,000 percent on how skillful your friend is in real estate investment.

Q. We are in our mid-50s with combined income of $30,000 and with two children still at home. Our home, worth $95,000, has a $21,000 mortgage. Our investments consist of $5,000 in a 4-year savings certificate and $15,000 in day-to-day savings, plus about $5,000 in some sound stocks. I'm disturbed by our low $20,000 total savings, especially with the inflation problem. Neither one of us works for a company with a pension plan. Thus we will have only Social Security to look forward to. Should we sell our home and buy a smaller one? Would this be a wise move, what with the tax?

A. Your present home doesn't seem out of line with your income. I can't discuss a move to a smaller home without knowing your family needs and preferences. But if you fear inflation you certainly should be trying to do more about it. And $15,000 in the bank at day-to-day interest rates is hardly an answer. With, I assume, 10 years ahead of you to retirement, much of this money should be in equities seeking capital gain.

Also, with no pensions at your place of employment, why aren't you both investigating some form of Individual Retirement Account program?

Q. How would I go about setting up a trust fund for a new grandson to gain maximum tax benefits?

A. By consulting a tax attorney or tax accountant who can advise you on how best to meet your specific goals.

Q. I have owned General Electric common several years, but didn't sell when it got up to 75. Why would people buy an electronics stock (GE) at around 46 when they would have to get it below 30 in order to equal the 7.5 percent return they can get from savings certificates?

A. Because people don't buy General Electric for 7.5 percent income. (Its yield range over the last dozen years has been about 2.1 percent to a recent 4 1/2 percent.) They buy it in hopes of growth resulting from its leading position in the production of electrical and electronic equipment.

Social Security Tax Rollback Cautioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two authorities on Social Security urged Congress Thursday not to be panicked into rolling back the Social Security tax increases enacted last year.

They told the Senate Finance subcommittee on Social Security that — taken as a whole — the benefit changes and tax increases voted in December were a great step forward.

Noting that an effort to roll back some of the tax increases is gathering steam in Congress, Robert M. Ball, who headed Social Security during the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon administrations, said "it would be the wiser course not to legislate on this matter at all this year."

He and Robert J. Myers, who was the nation's chief Social Security actuary for 23 years, agreed that the public has zeroed in on last year's tax increases and ignored the improved benefits.

The high-income workers in their early 40s who seem to be complaining loudest about the tax increases apparently do not realize that when they retire, their Social Security benefits will be about $21,000 a year — or more than $30,000 for a couple, Ball said.

Once a worker is retired, he added, his or her Social Security pension will be shielded forever against inflation. "Fifteen years after retirement, the Social Security beneficiary will still be able to buy the same level of living as at the time of retirement," Ball said.

Postal Subsidy Boost Voted By House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursday to increase postal subsidies in an effort to finance continued Saturday delivery and other services threatened by the agency's financial problems.

The bill, passed 384-11 and sent to the Senate, goes against the goal embodied in the 1970 postal reorganization law of eliminating deficits financed by taxpayers.

Rep. James M. Hanley, a leading sponsor of the bill, said the 1970 law "has caused an erosion in the principles of service."

The bill would restore some of the congressional and White House authority over the mail agency that was eliminated by the 1970 law.

Solons Could Veto

Congress would be able to veto any proposed change in service, such as the elimination of Saturday delivery now contemplated by the Postal Service. If the bill does not become law, the Postal Service could make such changes on its own authority.

The bill would allow the president once again to name the postmaster general, a power given to a Postal Service board created by the 1970 law. The board would be abolished under the bill.

The taxpayer subsidy, now $920 million per year, would be increased by the amount "needed to maintain Postal Service functions." The additional subsidies would have to be justified by information from the Postal Service on what the money would be used for.

Rural Service

The "public service" subsidy is used for such postal operations as maintaining thousands of post offices in sparsely populated areas for the convenience of rural residents.

The bill, if approved by the Senate in similar form, may face a veto by President Carter on budgetary grounds. Carter opposed an earlier House version containing more money.

A provision would require the Postal Service to spend one percent of its budget for research and development by 1982, far more than it is now spending. The section reflects displeasure with the level of research into sophisticated electronic mail concepts.

The bill faces an uncertain fate in the Senate, which has been less critical of the Postal Service than the House has.

Some members of Congress say complaints about mail service constitute one of the leading kinds of constituent mail.

Israel Plans Withdrawal In Lebanon

of family relationship which permits one to love and disagree at the same time."

An official announcement in Jordan said King Hussein will send emissaries to all the Arab capitals with a proposed agenda for an Arab summit conference on the current Middle East situation.

The Arab world came under verbal fire from the PLO's No. 2 man, deputy chief Salah Chalef, in a Swiss interview published Thursday. Chalef criticized the lack of hardline Arab support for Palestinians fighting to repel the Israeli forces in southern Lebanon.

In Washington, the Pentagon announced that U.S. Air Force transport planes will fly 642 Nepalese troops to Israel beginning next Tuesday to serve with the U.N. peacekeeping force. A total of 11 C141 transport flights will be required from Katmandu to Tel Aviv. The United States also will fly 65 trucks from bases in the United States to Tel Aviv for use by the Nepalese. U.S. planes have been carrying Norwegian troops and U.N. supplies to Lebanon.

Panama Complains Of Treaty Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Panamanian government has complained to the United Nations about a Panama Canal treaty amendment approved by the Senate allowing the United States to keep the canal open even if its operations are threatened by internal problems in Panama.

The complaint, in a letter from U.N. Panamanian Delegate Jorge Ernesto Illueca dated March 28 and addressed to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, stops short of saying that Panama will refuse to accept the amendment.

But government sources in Panama said Thursday that Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos was forwarding a confidential protest to the State Department, saying he found the amendment unacceptable.

Statement Planned

The sources said the Panamanian Foreign Ministry planned to issue a public statement on the amendment, which was reluctantly accepted by President Carter the day before the Senate narrowly approved the first of the two Panama treaties March 16.

Late Thursday, State Department officials said no protest had been received from Panama.

The author of the treaty amendment, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Thursday, he believes the Panamanians are "laying the groundwork for rejection" of the amendment.

The first treaty establishes perpetual neutrality of the canal after the year 2000. The Senate has since moved on to debate the second treaty, which actually turns over the canal to Panama and is to be voted on April 18.

Treaty Ruled Legal

Meanwhile, the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington ruled that it is legal for the United States to dispose of the Panama Canal by treaty and that a vote of the House of Representatives is not needed.

Some treaty opponents have argued that the Constitution requires both houses of Congress to approve the disposal of U.S. property.

In another development, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd indicated that an administration-backed provision on a possible new sea-level canal might be deleted from the second treaty.

That provision states that the United States would need Panama's permission to build a new sea-level canal anywhere else in Central America and that Panama could not negotiate a sea-level canal deal with any country except the United States.

Permits Force

The DeConcini amendment would permit the United States to use military force to keep the canal open whether it was threatened by other nations or internal problems like labor strikes in Panama.

In an interview, DeConcini said he has asked the State Department to find out if the U.N. letter means the Panamanians do not consider themselves bound by the amendment.

Before he would vote for the second treaty, DeConcini said, "I want to be convinced that the amendment is binding."

The Panamanian letter said the amendment, as described by DeConcini, "is intended to give the United States of America the unilateral and perpetual right to take military action on Panamanian soil without the consent of the Panamanian government."

"Not only does the amendment make no reference to the regime of neutrality," the letter continues, but, quoting a speech by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-

Mass., an opponent of the amendment, "now Panama is asked ... to accept an amendment which has the ring of military interventionism — not just during this century but for all time."

Attached to the Panamanian letter were texts of the DeConcini amendment and his floor arguments plus floor arguments against the amendment by Kennedy.

Also attached to the bundle, which Waldheim was asked to distribute to all U.N. General Assembly members, was a letter from the Panamanian foreign ministry. The letter notes that the Panamanian government had agreed not to issue statements on the treaties until after the second Senate vote.

However, the Panamanian foreign minister's letter said, "The liberation process is a national undertaking ... and each citizen must have full knowledge, (so) ... the minister of foreign affairs has seen fit to publish the text of the Senate resolution concerning the neutrality treaty ... without waiting for the official text to be delivered to us through official channels."

The letter also notes that "we have the decisive support of the peoples of the whole world" and cites a U.N. Security Council session in Panama five years ago in which "the world ... vetoed the United States for not removing the causes of conflict engendered by the presence of a foreign government within Panamanian territory."

Woman Finds Politics ... Fighting Chickens

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — For Sheila Bass, politics isn't just shaking hands and kissing babies — it's fighting chickens.

Miss Bass, 39, a candidate for Republican state committeewoman, was recently making her rounds signing up voters for the GOP party in Northampton Township when the chicken struck as she walked along semi-rural Langhorne Avenue.

"I was walking towards the house and this chicken flew in my face. I wasn't afraid because I had been around chickens before," Miss Bass said. "But this one kept coming."

The chicken, Miss Bass said, drove her into ankle deep mud "which just sucked my open-topped denim wedgies off."

The chicken's owners told Miss Bass the bird was a "watch chicken" — a feathered version of a guard dog.

"They said they didn't have a guard dog so they used the chicken," said Miss Bass, who has also had to contend with dogs during her campaign drive.

The story had a happy ending, however, because Miss Bass was able to sign the lady of the house to the Republican cause.

Apartment Project Okayed By Zoners

Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday approved a Lubbock developer's request to change zoning on lands in southwest Lubbock from residential to commercial, in spite of opposition from area homeowners.

After a three hour debate between members of the Melonie Park South Homeowner's Association and the Quaker Heights Homeowner's Association and Burl Masters' commission approved Masters' request and then to satisfy homeowners, voted to tie his developments to a site plan.

Chairman James Ratliff explained to the group that that stipulation would mean the commission could consider their desire for no more than 200 apartments to be built in the requested A-1 zoned lands when Masters decides what exactly will be built.

Masters was requesting a tract of land south of Loop 289 and between Memphis and Quaker Avenues be changed from single-family residential zoned property to family-apartment-zoned districts, general retail and restricted local retail districts.

Homeowners mailed 21 letters of protest against Masters' request to the commission, and several members of both groups voiced their opposition by claiming that the request would increase traffic problems and would lower property values.

Their concern, however, was over the apartment zoning rather than the commercial district zoning.

The board's decision to tie their approval to a site plan means Masters will have to reapproach the board before developments go into construction. That would ensure that the commission could reconsider the number of apartments it would allow to be built on the proposed 7-acre, A-1 zoned tract.

Second Night Of Rodeo Features Good Contests

American Business Club chasers. Straw dumped out of the box with the rabbits caused a problem with barrel racers which resulted in one bad fall and a called contest until the arena was cleared. Five cowgirls will ride the cloverleaf later.

Ann Bateson of Texarkana took a spill as her mount rounded the third barrel, but she refused a stretcher to make it on her own from the arena.

Top scoring (at those who did round the barrels went to Doty Thompson of Jacksonville with 14.5, Donna Moody of Wynnewood, Okla., with 14.7, Karen Farris of Elmore, Okla., and Debbie Hennigan of Raton, N.M., with 15.3.

Bulls and cowboys tied it up for their round with a rousing 82 score by Jack Ward of Springdale, Ark., taking the lead in the week's scoring. The crowd roared to its feet, stomping and screaming as Ward stuck to a twisting, spinning, bucking bull.

Top Bullriders

A high 72 went to Eddie Rawdon of Cedar Hill, a 68 to Mike Cathey of Big Spring, a 59 to Bo Asborn of Houston and a 58 to Tom Stout of Amarillo.

Bullfighters came down to the wire with split-seconds separating top marks.

Roy Burger of Cat Spring wrestled his steer down in pegged 4 seconds. Phil Sublett his in 4.4. Jim Cade of Sonora did it in 4.6 and Tommy Puryear in 4.8.

John Mann of Amarillo kept the chatter going, feeding the crowd all the facts about the events as they unfolded and letting the crowd in on a contestants prowess in the ranks of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

The Lubbock show is sanctioned by PRCA and annually draws about 300 top rodeo cowboys from around the nation.

usual for ABC Rodeos, by Jiggs Beutler of Elk City, Okla.

Bunky Boger again amazed the crowd with his buffalo, Cody, and Appaloosa, Kalija, and then joined Rick Young, the Ragin Cajun, to lure bucking bulls off the cowboys tossed into the dust.

Proceeds from the rodeo benefit the building fund of the Lubbock Boys Clubs. Tickets are $3, $5, $6 and $6.50.

Navy Leaders Urge Bigger Ship Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of the Navy and the chief of naval operations endorsed on Tuesday a far bigger shipbuilding budget than that proposed by President Carter.

Navy Secretary W. Graham Clayton and Adm. James L. Holloway, the Navy's highest ranking officer, said they considered a five-year, $32-billion shipbuilding program proposed by Carter to be inadequate.

Both endorsed far higher spending and ship production levels in an appearance before the seapower subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee.

They won immediate allies in Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., and other subcommittee members who said they will support efforts to increase the shipbuilding budget.

Carter Proposal

The Carter proposal calls for building or converting 83 ships over five years at a cost of about $32 billion.

Clayton and Holloway endorsed the two higher options of a Navy study entitled Sea Plan 2000 which sets forth the number of ships it says is needed to offset a growing Soviet naval force.

The highest option of Sea Plan 2000 calls for a 585-ship Navy by the year 2000 with a balanced force of aircraft carriers, submarines, transports and other ships to meet all foreseeable situations.

Holloway, who retires later this year, said a Navy of 439 ships as sketched in one of the plan's options "will cause us to lose the Navy's ability to support the current strategy... it will lose us the ability to support a forward strategy."

"The party's position is that we are battered by both sides," Slagle said. "I think we would be sued if we decertified the petition just as we are now being sued because we certified it."

"The matter is a moot subject," he said. "I think we should be allowed to print our ballots and get on our way."

HEARTLINE: I am 68 years old and I am living by myself. I recently read something about a benefit called S.S.I. Can you tell me what this is and who is eligible for it? S.T.

A: Supplemental Security Income (S.S.I.) is a federal income maintenance program for the aged, blind, and disabled. To be eligible a person must be 65 or over, or have vision no better than 20/200 even with glasses or have tunnel vision (limited visual field of 20 degrees or less), or have a physical or mental impairment which prevents a person from doing any substantial work and which is expected to last at least 12 months or result in death.

Another eligibility factor is the amount of resources a person may have. A single person can have assets up to $1,500 and still receive S.S.I. The amount for a couple is $2,250. Assets include savings accounts, bonds, jewelry, the cash value of an insurance policy, and other valuables a person or couple owns. Person effects, household goods, and a car do not count in most cases. A home does not count and the federal government does not ask for liens on homes of people who receive S.S.I.

The final eligibility standard is a person's or couple's income. The income level for a single person is $177.80 per month and $266.70 per month for a couple. However, when determining eligibility, the first $20 per month of unearned income (Social Security, V.A. benefits, pensions, worker's compensation, gifts, etc.) is not counted. Also, the first $65 in earned income (income from working) is not counted and then only half of the income over the first $65 is counted.

One important fact to remember is that many states supplement the federal portion of S.S.I. Even if your income is over the above amounts, you still may be eligible for benefits if you live in such a state. Applications and more details for S.S.I. are available at any Social Security office.

HEARTLINE: I am 67 years old and I am still working. I plan to continue to work for another couple of years — I am not really sure yet. I know that a person could have any amount of earnings after he reaches age 72 and still be able to draw full Social Security benefits. Does the new Social Security law change anything concerning this? R.A.

A: Yes, the new Social Security law did have a change in the age at which no earning requirements applies. It will reduce the age at which the retirement test no longer applies from 72 to 70. However, it will not take effect until taxable years ending after 1981. Therefore, this means that anyone who is 70 years or older during 1982 can have unlimited earned income and still draw their full Social Security benefit. For people who do not understand Social Security, Heartline has a simplified book explaining it. To order, send $2.00 to: Heartline, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please allow 6 weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I saw where President Carter signed the new Black Lung Amendment. My husband worked his whole life in the coal mines and he died four years ago. I applied for survivor's benefits, but my claim was rejected. Is there any provision in this for widows? K.J.

A: Yes, the survivor of a miner who died before the date of enactment of the 1977 amendments and has at least 25 years in coal mines prior to June 30, 1971 is to be entitled to benefits, unless it is established that, at the time of his death, the miner was not partially or totally disabled due to pneumoconiosis.

Abernathy Standouts Honored

By DEAN GLAZE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ABERNATHY — 92-year-old Robert Lutrick, who with his family lived in a partial dugout after moving to the South Plains in 1892, was selected as recipient of the Pioneer Citizen Award at the Abernathy Chamber of Commerce Banquet Thursday night.

Some 300 persons were on hand for the event, styled "Abernathy, Goin' and Growin' in the Palm of the Plains," to honor Lutrick and other outstanding residents.

The Lutrick family purchased land in Hale County, paying a dollar an acre for a section, Robert walked two miles to school, which was held in a dugout abandoned by an early dweller.

The family helped establish a neighborhood telephone system in 1905, and dug one of the first irrigation wells in West Texas in 1938.

In other awards ceremonies, Dr. Delwin Webb, superintendent of schools, was honored as citizen of the year.

Since moving to Abernathy in 1963, Dr. Webb has helped initiate programs in bilingual, adult and migrant education. He also helped start the special education program and cooperative here. Dr. Webb was instrumental in construction of the elementary library and independent learning center.

On June 1, he will assume duties as president of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

The A.L. Stone family was chosen as the farm family of the year. The family is active in civic work, including Future Farmers of America and the Boy Scouts, and in church functions.

Missy Webb was honored as outstanding girl student. A senior at Abernathy High School, she is a member of six clubs at school. She has participated in golf, basketball and band and has been a cheerleader for four years.

She is editor of the school annual and newspaper and has held various class offices. She is active in speech, drama and writing competition on the University Interscholastic League level and finished second in poetry interpretation and third in persuasive speaking in state competition. She has been selected as a Lions Club Sweetheart.

Miss Webb is listed in the Who's Who of American High School Students.

Scott Cunningham, a senior at Abernathy High School, was cited as outstanding boy student. He is active in FFA, drama, golf, track and football, has qualified for regional UIL golf competition three years and was elected sophomore class president.

New chamber officers are Don Heath, president, and Randy Peoples, vice president. Linda Scott is the chamber secretary.

Incoming directors are Billy Gist, Jacky Newton, Hoppy Tolar, Ray Sanders, Y.F. Snodgrass, Morris Stevens and Rudolph Struve. Rounding out the new board are Al Jennings, Larry Fields, Lewis Patterson, Jim Thomas and Clayton Enger.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Wynon Mayes, humorist and county demonstration agent from Plainview. City hostess was Mrs. Leland Phillips and Snodgrass was master of ceremonies.

Gypsy Band Resembling Group Detained Here Held On Coast

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eleven gypsies charged in a series of local burglaries have been arrested more than 500 times in various parts of the country — but authorities always let them go because they were too much trouble to prosecute, a law enforcement official says.

"No one wants them," Deputy District Attorney Thomas Hardy declared. "They create so much havoc in jails when they're arrested that they've always been let go after they pay their bail and fines and return the stolen property."

The gypsies, who wear the colorful skirts and shirts of central Europe, face preliminary hearings next Wednesday in connection with thefts in nearby Borrego Springs.

Several children traveling with them — including a 12-year-old girl who authorities believe cracked a safe — have been placed in a county home or in Juvenile Hall, Hardy said.

Hardy said police from Chicago to California report at least 500 prior arrests for the same group of Gypsies, but as far as he knew they had not been prosecuted until now.

(A group fitting the same general description was arrested in Lubbock March 23 after its members allegedly stole more than $400 from an Idalou Dairy Queen.)

(Three carloads of gypsies were detained after leading lawmen on a hectic chase. The 25-member group, which included several children, was released after restitution was made to the Idalou business.)

(The colorfully-attired band last was seen headed toward Brownfield.)

Deputy Sheriff Sam Bove said the women make a habit of tormenting their jailers by such acts as throwing excrement at them.

"If we keep them in custody and convict them, the penal system will have done a tremendous chore," Hardy said. "Breaking a 3,000-year-old habit — stealing."

Hardy said the seven women and four men jailed here are thought to be among an estimated 100 gypsies who migrated to Mexico from Europe a few years ago and crossed into Arizona. The gypsies, who apparently do not speak English, have no lawyer. An 18-year-old exchange student from Yugoslavia entered an innocent plea at their hearing this week.

Hardy said immigration officials have declined to take action against the gypsies, who are considered stateless.

One of the jailed men, George Ivan Konovalov, 41, is described by Bove as "king" of the roving band. Bove said that usually when the gypsies run afoul of the law, a "king" flies out from Chicago to post bail. This time, no bail has been proffered.

Officials say in a typical burglary the gypsies sweep through a store and while some of the women create a diversion the rest loot the till or stuff merchandise under their skirts.

Charges against the gypsies include three counts each of burglary, one of conspiracy to commit burglary and one of receiving stolen property. Maximum sentence is three years in prison on each count.

Medical Personnel Polish Lifesaving Skills

More than 50 physicians and nurses from throughout West Texas are polishing their emergency medicine skills at an Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS) course at Texas Tech.

Sponsors of the course are the American Heart Association, and the Texas Tech University School of Medicine department of family practice and office of continuing medical education. The course is being conducted in the Texas Tech University Center. The course includes lectures and "hands on" performance sessions. Using medical mannequins, participants will develop proficiency in techniques including emergency access to airways and breathing, intravenous techniques, sustaining artificial circulation, correction of irregularities of heartbeat and stabilization and transportation of the injured. The course has been certified by Texas

Tech University School of Medicine to meet the criteria for 20 credit hours in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association. Application has been made for 20 prescribed credit hours by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

City Voting Costs Cut, District To Pay More

Although all bills incurred in the April 1 joint city council-school board election are not in, preliminary figures indicate the city probably achieved its goal of cutting election costs, while the school district may end up paying more than it did for the 1976 races.

Total election costs probably will add up to about $13,155, a check with the city secretary's office shows.

The school district and the city will split the costs evenly, except that the city will pick up about $75 extra to pay for voting machines used in four precincts in which school board votes were not taken, said Treva Phillips, city secretary.

When the expenses are divided, the school district probably will find itself paying about $6,577 for its share in the first joint election between the two governmental entities. The cost probably will add up to about $1,261 more spent this year than in the 1976 school election, when bills totaled $5,316.

Even with the additional $75 for the four precincts' voting machines, the city may come out ahead of its 1976 expenses. The city's costs this year will be about $6,652, which is about $344 less than the 1976 bill of $6,308.

When the city council and school board decided to combine election forces and to use voting punch-card machines rented from the county, economics was cited as a major factor. Both sides figured that they could share the costs of election officials, who get $2.50 per hour, and that the electronic ballot counter would cut time spent hand-counting votes.

The cost of paying election officials probably will be cut by about $1,200. But the difference is more than made up by additional advertising costs — more than $2,000 this year compared to about $1,000 for the city election in 1976.

Mrs. Phillips said the election was advertised heavily this year to make sure all registered voters were aware of the combined election.

And while the city's file shows $520 spent on ballots in 1976, costs this year totaled $3,320. Set-up charges for the punch-card system, as well as for the official election cards, added another $864 to the bill.

The county charged the school district and city $3 rent for the 330 boxes used in 35 precincts. About 25 of those boxes were used in four precincts in which school board ballots were not cast, which means the city will pay an additional $75.

Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg said the punch-card system was adopted to save money, make it easier for citizens to vote and to reduce counting time.

"I think it will save money in the long run," he added.

He said the system during the April 1 election probably will be reviewed after the April 25 run-off for the council's Place 3 position.

"We'll get all the information together to see how it went," Blagg said. Even if costs were the same, he said, he predicts

Skrehart To Head Tech Paper

Gary Skrehart, Texas Tech University senior journalism finance major from Fort Worth, has been named editor of the University Daily for the 1978-79 school term.

Skrehart was a reporter and news editor for the student newspaper, The Reflector, at Tarrant County Junior College-South Campus, Fort Worth. He transferred to Texas Tech in 1976 and received a UD scholarship. After serving as reporter, he joined the sports staff and is now sports editor.

The editorial policy of the UD should reflect the thoughts, ideas and philosophies of students on campus, according to Skrehart. "Every view should be aired in a paper," he said.

Changes proposed by the new editor will be in the layout and headline style of the paper and possibly in the national columns and cartoon. Proofreading of the copy will be double-checked to minimize errors, according to Skrehart.

Skrehart was selected from among five candidates by the Student Publications Committee, made up of both students and faculty. He will begin his term with the first summer session beginning June 5.

CORONADO ART SALE. The Coronado High School Band Boosters will sponsor an art sale Saturday at the school cafeteria from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. There will be art on display and art for sale. All works are by area artists and proceeds will go to the Coronado Band.

that the system will be used in the future because it is "faster and easier for the voters to use."

Marguerite Kay, who handles the school district's election proceedings, said school officials are "very pleased" with the new system and predicted it would be used again "unless it gets too expensive."

The school district has not received the final bill from the city, Mrs. Kay noted, so the school trustees have not yet reviewed the costs.

She added she would "hate to second guess" the board members about weighing the system's value against its cost.

Skrehart is the son of Eileen D. Skrehart of Fort Worth and attended Nolan High School there.

CHOLERA SPREADS

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Zambia faces serious outbreaks of cholera and typhoid because it cannot afford water purification chemicals, its local government and housing minister warned Thursday. Nephas Temboe said more than 100 cases of cholera have been reported in neighboring Tanzania in recent months.

Stamp Honors Papanicolaou

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer
Emphasizing the theme "Early Detection of Cancer," a new U.S. commemorative stamp will honor Dr. George Papanicolaou on May 18. The 13-center will feature a sketched portrait of the noted cancer researcher.

The portrait of Papanicolaou was executed in pencil by Paul Calle, who is credited with several previous U.S. stamp designs such as the First Man on the Moon airmail commemorative of 1969 and the 1976 issue dedicated to Nurse Clara Maass.

The stamp depicts Papanicolaou using a microscope. The phrase "Early Cancer Detection" appears in block lettering across the top and down the right side of the design. To the left of the microscope are the words "Pap test." In the lower right corner is "USA 13-cents." A facsimile of the doctor's signature is seen in one line across the bottom of the stamp.

Special first-day ceremonies will take place May 18 at the White House with Mrs. Rosalynn Carter participating as the stamp world will honor Papanicolaou for his development of the "Pap test" for cancer detection in women.

To obtain first-day cancellations you may either affix your own stamp purchased at your local post office or mail your own cover to the postmaster in the first-day city.

If you affix your own stamps, send the cover to: "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20113" for cancellation no later than June 2. No remittance is required. However, if you prefer to send addressed covers, send your request to: "Papanicolaou Stamp, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20113." Include a money order of 12 cents per stamp (not cash) before June 2.

The U.S. Postal Service also has announced the design of the souvenir card being issued in honor of ROCPEX '78, the international philatelic exhibition in Taipei, Taiwan, held in March. The theme of ROCPEX '78 is the observance of the issuance of the first Chinese stamps in 1878.

The souvenir card design features four U.S. stamps and two Chinese stamps. In the center of the card is a reproduction of the block of four 13-cent commemoratives featuring Pueblo Indian Pottery issued April 13, 1977. The U.S. stamps are flanked by reproductions of the 1973 Republic of China stamps showing porcelain masterworks of the Ming dynasty.

The card has Chinese printing which translates into "Postage stamps speak a universal language which conveys a nation's ideals, its cultures, its achievements. This souvenir card issued to complement ROCPEX '78 features stamp reproductions which portray artistic achievements honored by the Republic of China and by the United States."

There will be no exhibition cancellation, but the U.S. Postal Service will sell the uncanceled cards for $1.25 each at post offices throughout the country and by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Branch in Washington, D.C. There is a 50-cent handling charge per mail order.

Send your orders with proper remittance to: "ROCPEX Card, Philatelic Sales Branch, Washington, D.C. 20265." In your order from the Sales Branch, the minimum sale, says the Postal Service, is $5.

The Falkland Islands has issued 15 stamps in its new definitive series illustrating mail ships that have visited these islands since 1842. The Falkland Islands were discovered in 1502 by Amerigo Vesputri and were later reported on maps by Sebastian Cabot, Sir Francis Drake, Sir Thomas Cavendish and Sir Richard Hawkins. The stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or store.

Daylight Saving Time Proposed By Franklin

By The Associated Press

Shortly after Benjamin Franklin arrived in Paris in 1776 to serve as America's first diplomat, he learned that attending large receptions at the court of King Louis XVI and fun-loving Queen Marie Antoinette was one of his most important duties.

But getting up the next day, he also discovered, was difficult, particularly during the summer months when nights were short and dawn came very early.

So Ben, who was a member of the French Academy of Sciences, proposed — for purely scientific reasons — that during the summer months the king "save an hour of daylight" by pushing forward the hour hand. On Sunday, April 30, more than 200 million Americans will be taking Ben's advice as Daylight Saving Time returns at 2 a.m. — when the hour hand should officially move forward to 3 o'clock.

But for many decades nobody took Ben Franklin's proposal seriously even though he explained that DST "postponed nightfall," permitting people big savings on candles, according to researchers at the Bulova Co.

The problem apparently was that despite his towering reputation as a scientist, both in America and in Europe — Ben also enjoyed a solid reputation as a party-lover and a ladies' man. King Louis knew that and so did his many other French friends. Too few people treated his proposal, therefore, as a strictly scientific one.

In fact, it was not until World War I that the French government finally accepted DST, but only as an emergency war measure — designed to save on electric power consumption and facilitate anti-air raid blackouts.

The British then also accepted the idea, and the United States followed in 1917, after our entry into the war. But DST was repealed when peace returned.

Daylight Saving Time was again adopted by the United States during World War II, and then was repealed, though some states and communities retained DST after the war — because Ben's idea obviously made sense.

By 1966, there were 18 states that observed DST on a statewide basis and 18 other states that observed it in some way. Of the 130 U.S. cities with more than 100,000 population, 71 observed DST and 59 didn't. In addition, there were communities in isolated areas, notably in Alaska, that observed "wildcat DST" without any formal legal sanction. Indiana was the only state with no official time standard at all, while Pennsylvania ignored DST, although 600 Pennsylvania communities moved to DST on their

Counted Cross Stitch Makes Bright Invitation To Spring

Counted cross stitch makes a bright invitation to springtime in the down-to-earth Gardener's Sampler pictured above. Long-stemmed poppies shade red with oranges and are detailed with a black outline stitch for a uniquely rich floral accent. You can work your thread into the mesh of the finely woven Aida cloth that will show your hand at its loveliest — in a delicate display of one of your favorite embroidery stitches. Cross-stitch is easy to catch onto and has a look all its own that graces the canvas. Stitches cross on the diagonal to form tiny X's that should always be crossed in the same direction. And following a pattern chart gives you a clean canvas to start out on so that you can add your own touch. When it comes to embroidery, there's just nothing to beat the tranquil enjoyment of cross-stitch.

At the turn of the eighteenth century, prudent American mothers realized that sewing was something every daughter should learn. Samplers became eye-catching displays of domestic can-do, using a wide array of stitches. And the cross-stitch was always one of them. A well-known sampler by Elizabeth Finney when she was 16 was worked in silk thread on muslin and today, with its pastel rose and garland motifs, it stands out as a beautiful achievement of folk art.

The Gardener's Sampler is available in a kit containing cotton Aida cloth, cotton embroidery thread, a needle, and instructions, with a design chart (design not printed). The 6" x 14" metal frame shown here also is available.

Order Gardener's Sampler No. 00254 for $4.99 plus 95 cent for postage and handling. Order Kit and Frame No. 00255 for $9.99 plus $1.35 postage and handling.

Columnist Says No To Painting

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q — I am adding an extension to my garage so that two cars can be put in it. The existing shingles are black and I can't seem to get black asphalt shingles. Do I have to completely reroof the old garage or should I put up new shingles on the addition and paint them?

A — Roofing manufacturers now advise against painting asphalt shingles. Painting can invalidate a manufacturer's guarantees and cause other problems — especially if the paint is not compatible with the shingles. Ask your dealer if he can get black shingles and, if he seems reluctant, get the manufacturer's address and write to him yourself. However, even if you are able to get new black shingles, some color variation will be visible because the shingles already there have been exposed to the sun's rays. Later, color variations between the old and the new will be less noticeable. It also is well to remember that different planes of a roof reflect light differently, making it even less likely that anyone will notice color variations.

Q — I intend to make a new counter top for our kitchen, using laminated plastic sheets to cover the present wood surface. What is the best way to cut the plastic to fit the area around the sink?

A — Make a paper or cardboard template or model. When cutting the laminate to the pattern, keep the decorative side of the plastic up, using a fine-toothed saw and cutting only on the downstroke. Allow one-eighth of an inch overhang, which can be filed off later. When making curved cuts, use a keyhole saw.

Q — We will be finishing our basement this summer and are not sure about the lighting requirements, since we expect to use the downstairs area mainly for games for our teen-age children. We have some lighting recommendations, but these seem to be for an ordinary finished basement and we want to know if they will hold up for a basement to be used for recreational activities.

A — You did not say what the recommendations are, so it is impossible to tell you whether they are sufficient. However, if the area is to be designed just for games, you should provide a recessed box, minimum 10 inches by 10 inches, with a maximum 100-watt bulb for every 40 square feet or a lowered downlight for an R-40, 150-watt floodlamp for every 30 square feet. For an even higher level of general lighting, use a recessed or surface-mounted fluorescent fixture with two 40-watt home-line tubes for every 40 square feet. A ceiling fixture also should be placed over a specific game area — such as a table tennis top — in addition to the general lighting.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Computer Sharpens Pictures

By GRANT LAMOS
Associated Press Writer

Can you imagine dividing a photograph into more than 2 million tiny mosaic-like bits, treating the bits to improve the picture, and then reassembling the lot into a finished 8x10 print?

Well that is what happens these days in one of the most dramatic developments to hit the news picture transmission business in decades.

The device that does all this is The Associated Press' Electronic Darkroom. In every sense of the word, it takes the dark out of darkroom by asking a computer to perform the magic once relegated to the dim recesses of the photographer's domain.

The Associated Press daily transmits hundreds of news pictures on its incredibly complex picture network. That's how this newspaper gets pictures in minutes, from the news spots of the world.

In the transmission of these pictures some photographic damage can be done, however. Electronic scratches, loss of density, loss of sharpness, loss of photographic saturation or perhaps oversaturation are just a few.

Now comes the Electronic Darkroom. The picture AP transmits is transferred into a series of numbers each representing a specific shade of gray in the original. This is called digital information.

The digits representing 2 million squares from the picture are entered into a computer. The computer will hold some 100 pictures in this form.

An editor then calls up the picture on a TV screen and orders the computer, or the Electronic Darkroom, to sharpen the picture, or crop it a different way, or improve the photo saturation, or whatever. The editor can even rewrite the caption.

Working with each of the 2 million mosaics, the computer quickly handles its assigned task and then, at the editor's direction, sends the picture on its way. That may be to your newspaper, or to a paper in Tokyo, or in Istanbul, or anywhere on the AP's far-flung picture circuit.

Still in the development stage is another device which will scan a photographer's original 35mm or 120 negative, record the picture information digitally and then send the picture on its way to its destination in print form. All of this happens in minutes, with excellent photographic quality and without the benefit of darkroom handling.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS: Did you know that most cooking stoves have drip trays? About a fourth of the people I have asked recently didn't!

If you will look on the front of your stove you may see two knobs. Pull them out and they will look like shallow drawers which perhaps you have never noticed before.

When you pull them out, you'll get the surprise of your life perhaps. You'll find leftover gunk, the likes of which you have never seen before.

Soak them in hot sudsy water and use a scouring pad on 'em. Let's get them clean and keep them that way.

Cockroaches just love heat and grease! Did ja know that? This is also a good, safe place to put that roach poison too.

Before replacing them, line with foil and you can just change the foil next time you clean. Saves a dirty job that was quite unnecessary in the first place.

So straighten up and fly right and pull those drawers out today. Love — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I always save my butter or margarine wrappers, fold them and set them aside in the refrigerator.

When I am ready to grease a cookie sheet or cake pan, I rub the pan with a butter wrapper.

Saves fingers from getting messy and the butter on the wrapper usually is enough to do a good job of greasing the pan. — Mrs. S. Schneberger

DEAR HELOISE: Please pass this along to the mothers of children in diapers — disposable diapers that have tape tabs.

Put them on backwards — yes, backwards! Put the tape tabs in front and pull them to the back to stick them.

City To Tackle Park Traffic

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city will test a plan this weekend to reduce excessive traffic around Tech Terrace Park and will continue to study a possible ordinance change to control littering in the park, the city council decided Thursday.

The plan to re-route traffic around the park at Flint Avenue and 24th Street was approved informally by the council today before a brief ceremony to swear-in Mayor Dirk West and Place 1 Councilman Alan Henry.

If the traffic measure proves successful, the plan will be presented to the Citizens Traffic Commission at its Monday meeting. The commission could recommend to the city council that the plan be adopted, said Vaughn Hendrie, public information officer.

As proposed, the plan, which is in response to demands from angry park area residents for better policing, would restrict traffic flow on the park's west side to a one-way direction.

A policeman will be stationed on Gary Avenue just north of 24th Street and another north of 25th Street to direct traffic away from the park's west side and onto Indiana Avenue, Hendrie said.

The idea is to make it impossible to drive completely around the park, he said. And if the plan works, he added, the city could have fixed barricades built on Gary at 24th and 25th streets by next weekend.

The barricades would not restrict residents' access to their driveways, Hendrie said, but hopefully would force park sightseers to stop clogging streets. Much of the congestion reportedly has been caused by young people just "cruising" around the park area.

The officers will be on duty from about 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Hendrie said.

In addition, five other officers will patrol the park, he said, two motorcycle officers will circle the streets adjacent to the park to keep traffic flowing, two will enforce no parking zone rules for cars parked along the streets' residential sides and the other will patrol the park grounds to enforce littering and alcoholic beverage restrictions, he added.

Those cars parked in the restricted zones will be towed at the owners' expense, Hendrie added.

He also said the city legal department is studying the constitutionality of broadening the city's alcoholic beverage ordinance to include a provision that such beverages could not be consumed in streets adjacent to parks.

As currently written, no alcoholic beverages can be consumed in the parks. The ordinance does not address on-street consumption, Hendrie said, noting that most of the littering problem occurs on the streets adjacent to the park.

The plan is designed to provide immediate relief to traffic problems but to not restrict park use, Hendrie said.

Angry residents of the park area have complained repeatedly to City Hall about the littering and traffic problems. The group met with the Citizens Traffic Commission Tuesday to request a solution.

The commission voted to continue discussion of the problem Monday.

Favorite Recipes from Contadina

Old World Spaghetti Sauce

Brown ½ pound ground chuck and ¼ cup chopped onion in large skillet. Drain off excess fat. Stir ½ cup (6-ounce can) Contadina Tomato Paste, 2 cups water, 1 crushed large garlic clove, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon oregano leaves, and ½ teaspoon basil leaves. Boil gently, uncovered, 20 minutes, stir occasionally. Serve over hot, cooked spaghetti. Makes 3 cups sauce.

Pizza Burgers

Combine ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk, 1½ pounds lean ground beef, ½ cup fine cracker meal, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon garlic salt, ½ teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese in large bowl. Mix well. Toast 8 hamburger bun halves. Divide meat mixture into 8 parts. Spread one part meat mixture evenly over top of each bun half. Place on cookie sheet. Make wells in centers of meat, using back of spoon. Combine 8-ounce can Contadina Tomato Sauce and ¾ teaspoon crushed oregano leaves; spoon 2 tablespoons into each well. Bake in hot oven (425°F) 20 minutes. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons shredded mozzarella cheese over each burger; melt cheese. Serves 8.

Easy Vegetable Bake

Saute ¼ cup chopped onion and ¼ cup chopped green pepper in 2 tablespoons butter. Stir in 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon seasoned salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Stir in 14½-ounce can Contadina Stewed Tomatoes, 1½ cups cooked, drained cut green beans, and 2 cups cooked, drained cauliflower. Toss lightly but thoroughly. Pour into buttered 1-quart casserole. Sprinkle ½ cup shredded process American cheese around edge. Bake in moderate oven (350°F) 15 minutes. Makes 4 cups.

Spanish Rice

Combine 3 tablespoons oil, 1½ cups uncooked long grain converted white rice, ½ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup finely chopped celery, and ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper in 12-inch skillet. Cook over medium heat until vegetables are tender; stir constantly. Stir in 14½-ounce can Contadina Whole Peeled Tomatoes and juice, 10½-ounce can chicken broth, 1½ cups water, 1 crushed garlic clove, ½ teaspoon salt, and ½ teaspoon oregano leaves. Break tomatoes into small pieces. Cover; boil gently 25 to 35 minutes or until liquid is absorbed and rice is tender. Makes about 6 cups.

Ruling Upsets Child Abuse Law

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' child abuse caseworkers face a "real problem situation" while the U.S. Supreme Court reviews a decision striking down parts of the Texas Family Code, says a state official.

"We're telling them that if they don't have a solid or effective order, they can't hold a child regardless of whether the child needs protection from a life-threatening situation," said Assistant Attorney General Colin Carl.

A three-judge federal court in Houston recently held unconstitutional parts of the Texas law dealing with custody hearings and computerized records of child abuse.

Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell last week refused to postpone effects of the Houston decision.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sims of Houston challenged the child abuse law in federal court after their children were taken from them in 1976.

Teachers began to suspect the oldest child, 9-year-old Paul Sims, was a victim of severe child abuse and beatings.

A caseworker for the Harris County Child Welfare Unit investigated, took custody of all three children and filed a complaint against the parents in juvenile court.

Judge Robert L. Lowry signed an order removing the children from their parents' custody for 10 days. Under state law, a judge must return children to their parents after 10 days or order additional court proceedings on permanent custody.

The Sims couple sued the state, charging that state procedures for alleged child abuse cases violate parental rights. The federal court agreed.

"We're going to appeal portions of the decision to the Supreme Court," Carl said.

He said he doubted the high court would reach the case until this fall.

The federal court said a hearing should be held within 24 hours after a child is taken from his parents.

"We're not going to appeal the necessity of having the 24-hour period, but the court apparently said the hearing has to be within 24 hours, not excluding weekends," Carl said. "We've talked to prosecuting attorneys and judges and they either can't or won't do that on weekends. The next scheduled work day seems appropriate."

Only court-handled cases may be filed in the Texas Department of Human Resources computer system, the court said.

Until the decision was handed down, the department put all caseworker reports of child abuse into its computer bank, regardless of whether they received court action.

"Some cases may never have ended in judicial determination, but from the department's point of view there was some substance to them," Carl said. Having background on a case might help a caseworker choose which cases should get the highest priority, he added.

The 1979 Legislature will need to change the law, since the state already has agreed some portions of the code need revision, Carl said.

VIETS KEEP 'EM FLYING

BANGKOK (AP) — Vietnam is manufacturing spare parts to keep captured American-made aircraft flying, and has trained about 400 technicians to do the repairs, the Vietnam News Agency said Thursday.

Only court-handled cases may be filed in the Texas Department of Human Resources computer system, the court said.

Until the decision was handed down, the department put all caseworker reports of child abuse into its computer bank, regardless of whether they received court action.

"Some cases may never have ended in judicial determination, but from the department's point of view there was some substance to them," Carl said. Having background on a case might help a caseworker choose which cases should get the highest priority, he added.

Fall Kills Five In Coal Mine

DUEREN, West Germany (AP) — Five workmen plunged 100 feet to their deaths Thursday when a scaffolding broke at what is expected to become Europe's largest lignite coal mine, local authorities said.

The five were building a bucket-wheel excavator when part of the scaffolding broke, the local district attorney's office reported.

Four of the victims were pronounced dead at the scene and the fifth died in a local hospital.

The accident occurred at the site of the Hambach Forest mine, scheduled to begin operation by the end of this year. It is expected to yield 2.4 billion tons of lignite, also known as brown coal, by the year 2030.

Philippine Underdogs Make Gains

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Sympathy for the underdog, a notion prevalent in every sector of Philippine society, is threatening the powerful 5½ year rule of President Ferdinand Marcos.

The principal beneficiary of this traditional Filipino compassion is Benigno S. Aquino, Jr., the chief political rival of Marcos. Aquino is running a campaign from his jail cell for the April 7 elections to an interim national legislature.

Aquino almost certainly would have been the opposition Liberal Party candidate for the 1973 presidential elections had not Marcos imposed martial law a year before the balloting and imprisoned the young heir apparent.

Now 45 years old, Aquino was sentenced to death by firing squad last November by a military tribunal on charges of subversion and murder. An unexpected wave of criticism from abroad forced Marcos to reopen the trial, but Aquino chose instead to pursue motions seeking his freedom now pending before the Supreme Court.

With his conviction by the tribunal virtually set aside, Aquino entered the campaign for the first elections held by the martial law government in a direct challenge to the Marcos regime by opposing the president's wife, Imelda, in the metropolitan Manila area. He heads a 21-man slate of anti-martial law candidates.

The high point of the campaign to date has been a 1½ hour televised interview with Aquino at the grounds of his detention quarters in suburban Fort Bonifacio.

Alternating between rapid fire responses in English to questions from representatives of the strongly pro-government media and eloquent pleas in the Tagalog language to the Filipino people, Aquino showed that he had lost none of the political prowess that made him the youngest man ever to be elected to the Philippine senate in 1967.

The performance earned the former Manila Times reporter a decided edge in the campaign, although Marcos — officially the campaign manager for his wife — certainly scored points for being magnanimous enough to allow the interview to take place.

But the Philippine president and his wife did not expect the mushrooming effect Aquino's television appearance has had on the campaign.

Numerous privately conducted polls, including several government surveys, have shown that Aquino is near the top of most voters' choices and is virtually assured of a seat in the assembly in a fair and free election.

Almost immediately, Marcos swung his huge government bureaucracy into action, while denying that the government ticket was running scared and insisting that not one opposition candidate will win a seat in the assembly.

The leadership of the Iglesia Ni Kristo Protestant sect, a highly disciplined religious group with an estimated membership of 150,000, was quietly persuaded to endorse a straight government ticket. The church membership voted as a bloc in pre-martial law days.

Persistent rumors meanwhile, have spread through Manila that the president has ordered some 45,000 government-paid "flying" voters brought in from nearby provinces to toe his line in the election.

"President Marcos means to fight fair or foul to win the election for Imelda," said Francisco "Soc" Rodrigo, a former senator and one of the opposition candidates.

Rodrigo claimed the president would resort to "massive fraud or create a situation which will mean cancellation or postponement" of the election.

Several grenade-throwing incidents were reported in the last two weeks, including an attempt to set off explosives at the president's residence in the northern resort city of Baguio.

Opera Singer Encouraged By Starring Roles

NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do if you're a tall, broad-shouldered, full-of-life guy, age 31, with an all-American smile and charm, who's an operatic bass-baritone?

So many bass-baritone parts have you being the high priest or king or father, solemn in dignified robes and gray beard and proclaiming your lines with a quaver to show you're really old.

If you're James Morris, you like it when an opera company will transpose a juicy baritone role lower for you. You jump at the chance to sing "Don Giovanni" — and you make him as sexy as you can.

The first step was when the Vancouver Opera hired Morris for Renato, the baritone in the love triangle in Verdi's "A Masked Ball" and transposed arias down for him. Morris says, "I wish I could talk some more opera companies into doing that."

Then Morris was hired to sing Mozart's licentious Don Giovanni at New York's Metropolitan Opera this season, including a performance telecast live on the Public Broadcasting Service last month.

"There are so many different approaches to this part," Morris says of Don Giovanni, "but I think he has to be as sexy as possible."

"To me, Don Giovanni is a libertine womanizer. He has this joie de vivre; he loves everything about life. He is laughing and happy. One time he smells the night and says, 'Oh, what a beautiful night. Just the kind of night for tracking down a woman.'"

"He doesn't really have to do anything.

He just stands there and radiates sex and he will draw a woman to him like a magnet. He's every man's fantasy. That's one reason I enjoy playing him," says Morris, who is married with a 2 1/2 year-old daughter.

"Some people see him as a failure because he never completes any of his seductions during the opera. And some people think he's a woman-hater because of the way he treats women."

"He isn't a failure. For instance, at the beginning of the last scene he is surrounded by women and it's obvious what has gone on just before the curtain went up."

"The heavens turn against him with the death of the Commendatore. When the Commendatore comes back and tells him to repent, Giovanni refuses. He feels he doesn't have anything to repent for; he has been true to himself."

Morris, who is 6-foot-4 and weighs 225 pounds, likes doing a lot of moving around on stage — even though he knows from experience the dangers it entails. In South America, he jumped off tables in high style and sprained an ankle running into the wings in the dark.

Last summer in Cincinnati, in a production in which Don Giovanni ends the first act by swinging into the wings from a chandelier, it was suggested that the robust Morris not try it. The same production, used in Houston, had swung its Don short of the wings, making him hang there, in public unsophistication, until the curtain could be pulled.

Morris was sure that he could make a swashbuckling swing all the way offstage. He did. The audience gasped and cheered. But Morris dropped onto a pile of mattresses feet first instead of on his back or stomach, and sprained his ankle again.

The blue-eyed singer was born in Baltimore and started studying music after teachers noticed how loud he sang as one of the three kings in a junior high school Christmas pageant. He got a Met contract, at 23, in 1971, after a private audition, and made his debut as the king in Verdi's "Aida."

He was the cover for Don Giovanni in 1975, when the scheduled Don withdrew. He sang it — that's what a cover is for. It was his first big part and the turning point in his career.

His first big part in a major European opera house will be next year, Don Giovanni again, in Salzburg. Morris has also sung the title role in Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunov" in Miami and will be all the villains in Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann," in Baltimore in April.

NEW ROLE, NEW THREADS — Operatic bass-baritone James Morris smiles as New York Metropolitan Opera costume fitter Dick Wagner checks the fit of a new suit. New horizons have opened for Morris as more opera companies have begun transposing baritone roles down to his bass-baritone range. (AP Laserphoto)

Administration To Oppose Aid Bill To Cotton, Grain Farmers

By BRIAN B. KING
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Thursday he will work to bypass a parliamentary problem that could bottle up a controversial aid package for grain and cotton farmers even though he opposes the legislation.

"This would be an easy one to bottle up," the Massachusetts Democrat told reporters.

The measure, forged earlier this week by House and Senate conferees despite strong veto threats from the White House, violates the House budget-making laws because it would affect spending next fiscal year even though the House Budget Committee has not yet decided how much can be spent in that period.

Thus, it can be killed on the House floor by a parliamentary maneuver unless it first gets the approval of the Rules Committee and the House to waive the budget act or unless it is brought up under special procedures that require a two-thirds vote for approval.

O'Neill, who has considerable formal and informal influence over the Rules Committee, said, "I am going to insist on its clearance for floor action."

He said that he hoped an ultimate House vote would defeat the Republican-engineered measure, which has the backing of hundreds of farmers who have been lobbying here since mid-January for relief.

The Senate is expected to act this week on the conferees' proposal. House action will come sometime after next Tuesday.

Preliminary estimates indicate that food prices, which already are expected to rise by 6 to 8 percent this year because of inflation, likely would rise another 2 to 3 percent if the bill is passed. The legislation also could add $2.3 to $3.4 billion to the federal budget.

O'Neill said his constituents in Boston, where "there is very little grass ... and no farms," seem to be on the farmers' side, but "they don't realize what this will do" to the price of bread, hamburger and other foods.

"The consumer would get bludgeoned" by this bill, O'Neill said, adding that he hoped that urban House members would defeat it. If the bill passes, "I hope the President would have the moral courage to take care of it (veto it)," he added.

Meanwhile, supporters and opponents of the measure held breakfast strategy meetings and then fanned out to lobby House members to vote for the bill.

The bill would raise basic grain and cotton price supports. It also would allow growers of those crops to secure even higher federally guaranteed prices this year if they agree to idle one acre for every two planted. This provision is intended to raise farm prices next year by limiting supplies.

Computerized Marketing Advocated

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Meat Price Investigators Association is advocating a computerized teletype marketing system for cattle in the United States to head off market juggling of beef prices.

Details of the proposal are contained in a 130-page MPIA report called Price Fixing in the U.S. Beef Industry and Alternative Marketing Solutions.

"An electronic computerized marketing system is a very feasible marketing alternative which would solve the two main problems of the existing beef marketing system" says the report.

"Electronic trading equalizes bargaining power among producers and processors and enables easy access to accurate market information."

"Another major advantage to electronic trading is its overall total cost savings," continues the report.

"It increases pricing efficiency, pricing accuracy, physical efficiency, and producers' profits while decreasing processors' buying costs."

"If electronic marketing was adopted in the U.S. cattle industry," says the report, "it would result in yearly industry savings of tens of millions of dollars."

The MPIA book documents a system devised by NCR Corp. It would consist of 27 national beef selling centers; a central data processing system in Des Moines; and electronic buying stations at each of the 423 beef packing houses across the nation that purchase more than 10,000 head of cattle per year.

Producers would pay for operation of the system, except for the buyers machine rental fees.

"Whatever group or agency monitors the electronic computerized systems operation," says the MPIA report, "it should be subject to government involvement, if necessary."

Cattle Futures Soar To New Peaks

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 30 to 135 points higher, led by June, to reach new highs in more than one week Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Sales totaled 21,231 cars. Prices climbed 285 points above recent lows and held gains throughout.

Demand carried over on the three-cent jump in beef this week along with moderating slaughter and continued strength in cash cattle. Futures are still discounted to cash.

Deliveries thus far total 43. Wholesale beef was up one to two cents at 78 1/2 to 79 1/2 cents a pound, a one-week high. The six markets expect 5,300 head today.

Cash cattle were steady to up $1, with the best top at $53.50 per hundredweight. The Omaha top was $52.50. Slaughter was 139,000 head.

Hog futures rose 20 to 127 points, led by August, and posted new season's highs in that contract through April. Sales were 9,260 cars.

The market was higher except for five-point losses early as traders noted light hog runs and higher prices coupled with a firmer tone to pork. The technical situation was strong, with some analysts projecting 56 cents for the June contract.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 3/4 cents at 68 to 71 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. The six markets expect 21,500 head today.

Cash hogs were steady to up $1.50, with the best top at $47.75 per hundredweight at Peoria. Slaughter was 287,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures rose 32 to 200 points with February through July at the limit. Sales were 9,308 cars.

The limit advance was the second in a row after two limit downings and was the 16th limit move in a row.

The market rallied on spillover buying from hog and cattle pits after May slumped 97 points early on heavy storings. However, slaughter was light and cash bellies were firmer.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1 1/2 cents at 73 to 75 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

June and July posted limit gains, with those months along with September climbing to new season's highs.

Prices rose to the highest since November on spillover buying from the meat pits and traders also noted the possibility of firm prices in government egg-mix buying. A lack of deliveries tended to offset an unsettled trend to cash and Army prices.

Favorable Weather Helps Area Crop Planting

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Favorable weather has helped producers remain on schedule as they plant 1978 sugar beets and potatoes here, but a puzzling shortage of field help has caused onion settings to lag behind in Deaf Smith and Castro counties.

Beet planting was 30 percent complete last week, and the figure zoomed to 60 percent near the first of this week, according to Calvin Jones, agriculture manager of the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant.

"The pretty weather last helped us to get a lot of our acreage planted, and we are running right on schedule," Jones reported.

"We have beets coming out of the ground over at Clovis, and north and south of Hereford, and hopefully they will be well-up and far enough along so that any spring winds which come later won't harm them," he added.

Sugar beet acreage is concentrated in Deaf Smith and Castro counties, and the local Holly plant has contracted for the full 30,000 acre capacity of the factory this year.

Jones estimated that beet planting could be completed as nearly as mid-April if favorable planting conditions continue.

"We received word from the Environmental Protection Agency the other day that Norton, a pre-plant herbicide, has been cleared for us on beets."

"We had a few growers waiting to plant until they received word. The product has finally been cleared, and looks promising as a weed control for local growers," Jones pointed out.

Growers are continuing their policy of applying the pesticide Thimet at planting, after being burned by a devastating attack of curly top here in 1975.

The disease, borne by fleahoppers, severely reduced beet yields in 1975, after many local growers neglected to put down a systemic pesticide at planting.

"We are keeping an eye out for leafhoppers, even at this early date. A survey has already shown that there are some leafhoppers around in Deaf Smith and Castro counties."

"Although they are in the wheat fields right now, they will move into greener fields, such as beets, when the weather warms up and the wheat starts to dry out. That's when we can start to have problems with the virus they carry," said Jones.

Albert Maxwell of La Mantia-Cullum-Collier & Co. reported that his firm is already halfway through its potato planting operation.

"We are exactly 50 percent through and running right on schedule with our potato planting," said Maxwell. "Our onion setting is running behind schedule though, and we are only about 35 or 40 percent through with that operation when we would like to have 60-70 percent of the setting completed," he added.

According to Maxwell, most local packing sheds are running on the same planting schedule, and the delay in onion setting stems primarily from a lack of field help.

"We have been short of help since setting began, and the help situation isn't improving a bit, so it doesn't look like we'll pick up any speed. We always run into a shortage of help at setting time here, but it is worse this year than I have ever seen it."

"I don't know if there just aren't enough people here, they just don't want to work, or what, but we haven't solved the problem yet. As it is, we like to get those potatoes in the ground as early as we can."

High-Stakes Poker Game 'Just Fight For Life'

By STEPHEN LONGSTREET

Poker bears out Talleyrand's remark: "Language was given us to conceal thoughts..."

Poker, where conversation shields the handful of cards, has become the rich man's high-stake game, played with men of his own position in a military-industrial society in control of the big money, including professional gamblers as partners.

There are various schools of thought about poker. Is it a game of chance or skill? Or is it a study in character, in which a player can influence another to play the right or wrong card? How much depends on the human factor and how much is pure gambling?

Some claim psychological forces enter into the game. The shift of a chair, the blink of an eye, the throb of a vein in the neck — all have been cited as making it less a game of chance than one might suppose.

What of possible hands and possible odds? Someone with a computer has calculated that there are 2,598,960 possible dealt hands in draw poker, using the 52-card deck, as follows:

- Straight flush — 40 (or once in 64,974 hands).
  - Four of a kind — 624 (or once in 4,165 hands).
  - Full house — 3,744 (or once in 694 hands).
  - Flush 5,108 — (or once in 509 hands).
  - Straight — 10,200 (or once in 255 hands).
  - Three of a kind — 54,912 (or once in 47 hands).
  - Two pairs — 123,552 (or once in 21 hands).
  - One pair — 1,098,240 (or almost once in two hands).
  - Other hands — 1,302,540 (or once in 2 hands).
- In poker you hope to get a certain combination of cards. To win you have to come up with the highest hand in the game, each player being dealt five cards. In draw poker, you can throw out cards that don't make winning combinations and call for others. You bet on the value of your hand against the other players' cards.

Since 1970, America's professional poker players have gathered each year in Las Vegas for what can be called the Professional Poker Players' Olympics. The press has played up the event and glorified the winner. There is only one winner each year, and he can carry off close to $300,000.

Of course, the matches have to be listed as "social events." There is a federal law that makes it a crime to cross a state line for illegal gambling.

Years ago professional gamblers traveled from state to state, and if local authorities winked at the law, the game was played. Federal law now prohibits such interstate poker movement, professional or not. Any meeting of poker pros must be held in a state like Nevada, where the game is legal. Hold'em (a center-table game akin to seven-card stud) is the poker played.

In Hold'em, each player gets two cards face down; then five cards are dealt face up on the table. A player's hand consists of the best five-card holding he can make from all seven.

In 1976, Adrian Doyle "Texas Dolly" Brunson won $220,000 as world champion of poker in a 32-hour session at Binion's Horseshoe Club. "Texas Dolly" Brunson is no wall-eyed, high-heeled Texas redneck off a steer ranch. Unlike most of the great poker players, he holds a master's degree in education administration and was a star college basketball player and mile runner. He is bald, wears glasses and, unlike oldtime gamblers in their lace shirts and diamonds, he dresses informally, without jacket or tie.

Nothing much to winning the championship, he says. "You just sit down at a table once a year with a few of your best friends — and fight for your life."

Major Powers Draw Criticism

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An African journalist predicted Wednesday that his continent will become a huge battlefield if no changes are made in the policies of the "big powers" — the United States and the Soviet Union.

Mike Pitso, a political correspondent in Lesotho, is participating in the International Visitor Program under auspices of the U.S. Department of State. His Lubbock stop is part of a 10-city tour of the United States. While here, Pitso also visited with two of his countrymen who are studying agriculture at Texas Tech University.

"The Soviet Union and the United States give us aid," he said. "But, I'm afraid many times that aid has strings attached. It's not that we don't want the aid, but we want the type of aid that will later make us self-supporting."

He pointed out that Russia's activities in Africa are beginning to create suspicions in the minds of the people. "But, I'm hopeful that the activities of the Cubans won't be used to topple the governments of independent Africa," Pitso, a journalist for more than 10 years, said.

"We are much concerned with democracy in Africa," he asserted. "but we're quite committed to having peaceful change in governments, not a revolutionary change. The life of those in Africa is much too precious — too many have already lost their lives in the fight for human rights," he said.

Pitso explained that in his nation, a tiny, mountainous country which is completely surrounded by the Republic of South Africa, relations are good between blacks and whites.

However, he was quick to point out that relations between his nation and South Africa are poor. "We don't believe in the racist policy of that nation," he said, adding that many of his countrymen have complained of their ill treatment by white South Africans, especially at the border posts.

But, he said that talks to normalize relations between the two nations have recently taken place. "I'm quite hopeful that South Africa will change its race policies," he said. "And once they change, relations between other nations in Southern Africa will be normalized."

Pitso, also a news correspondent for the Rand Daily Mail in Johannesburg, is very hopeful that some day all people in Africa will enjoy freedom. "We're just beginning and hoping for the best for all concerned," he said.

However, he hoped that the African way of life would not be lost in the process of changes for his continent.

"There is a great deal we can take from the Eastern and Western way of life. But, there is a great quality in African life which we can't disinherit. The moment we disinherit it, we'll regret it and we can't reverse the clock," he said.

The spokesman also spoke of efforts by the African nations to form a Pan African News Agency.

"We feel that such an agency is extremely necessary because the international news agencies have not presented the Africans in a way that the African community wants to be presented to the world," he said.

"The major international news agencies don't know our real interests. They haven't lived here. For example, an agency will send a person from their home country to cover an event in Africa, and that person probably knows little about our land," he maintained.

"But, don't misunderstand me, we don't want such an agency to stop others who may be trying to cover events in Africa," Pitso added.

He hoped that with the formation of the Pan African agency that a spirit of unity would be brought to the continent.

Concerning press freedom, Pitso said radioactive decay is a spontaneous process in which an atom, similar to a parent figure, loses particles from its nucleus to form its offspring, which is an atom of a different element.

that the majority of the African press is controlled by the government, but he added that his nation's press is only partially government-controlled.

"I'm highly impressed by the freedom of the press in the United States," he said. "Apparently Americans have nothing to hide."

His visit to the United States marks the first time that he has left his homeland, and he described the experience as "very rewarding."

Padre Island Sand Dollars

1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
1/2 cup Imperial 10X Powdered Sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
Imperial Granulated Sugar

Beat butter or margarine and Imperial 10X Powdered Sugar until creamy and fluffy. Gradually mix in flour. Stir in vanilla and salt and mix well. Using level tablespoonful of dough, shape into balls, press one side of each ball into Imperial Granulated Sugar and place sugar sides up on ungreased cookie sheet. Cookies can be rather close together because they do not spread when cooking. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven about 10 minutes or until done but not browned. Remove from cookie sheets and cool completely on wire racks. Makes 3-1/2 dozen cookies.

Retail Food Price Hike Slow According To March Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices slowed their rise in March, helping to hold the month's increase in wholesale prices to 0.6 percent, the government said Thursday.

Although the March wholesale price increase was substantially lower than the February hike of 1.1 percent, it still would mean an annual inflation rate on the wholesale level of near 7 1/2 percent.

Meanwhile, in a separate report, the Carter administration's wage and price agency said overall inflation "seems hopelessly stuck" in the 6 percent to 7 percent range, and that the threat of it getting worse is greater than chances of improvement.

Consumer foods, which rose 2.9 percent on the wholesale level in February, were up only 0.8 percent in March as prices of pork, poultry, sugar and fruit dropped.

But even with the March improvement, wholesale prices have increased 2.4 percent since the first of the year.

Most of the increases at the wholesale level eventually find their way into higher prices to shoppers and so the wholesale price report serves as a kind of early-warning system for inflation.

The administration officially is forecasting an overall increase in consumer prices this year of 6.1 percent, although recent sharp increases in farm prices will push them up at least 6.5 percent, officials now concede.

The Labor Department said improvement in the weather in March contributed to the slowdown in food price increases. It said its overall producer price index for finished goods stood in March at 189 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods priced at $100 then were priced at $189 last month.

Prices of finished goods other than foods increased 0.5 percent in March, up from a 0.4 percent increase in February.

Prices of household appliances rose much faster in March than in February, while increases in auto prices were about the same. There were smaller hikes in March for home electronic equipment and household furniture.

In a special report on inflation in the economy, the administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability said there has been little indication of any improvement in the nation's inflation rate since the middle of 1975.

After discounting the volatile swings in some prices such as food, the agency said the underlying inflation rate remains at between 6 percent and 7 percent, meaning that prices of all goods increase that much on the average each year.

The panel said it sees little prospect for improvement without a successful anti-inflation program that will break the current annual cycle of 8 percent wage increases and 6 percent price increases.

"In the absence of specific corrective actions, an extension of the current inflation rate into the future seems virtually inevitable. While the actual inflation rate may fluctuate from month to month in response to volatile movement in individual prices, the underlying rate seems hopelessly stuck within the range of 6 percent to 7 percent," the report said.

When considering the possibility of something unexpected further pushing up prices, joined with the government's continued push to meet its employment goals, "it is quickly apparent that even a forecast of 6 percent to 7 percent inflation is in jeopardy," the council said.

It also warned that once a 6 percent inflation rate is accepted as normal, the same pressures that drove it to 6 percent, likely would push it to 10 percent or higher in the future.

The council, whose director is Barry Bosworth, said the best hope for "reducing inflation is to do so gradually, and it expressed support for Carter's new anti-inflation plan of trimming 0.5 percent from the inflation rate each year by getting labor and management to voluntarily accept smaller wage and price hikes.

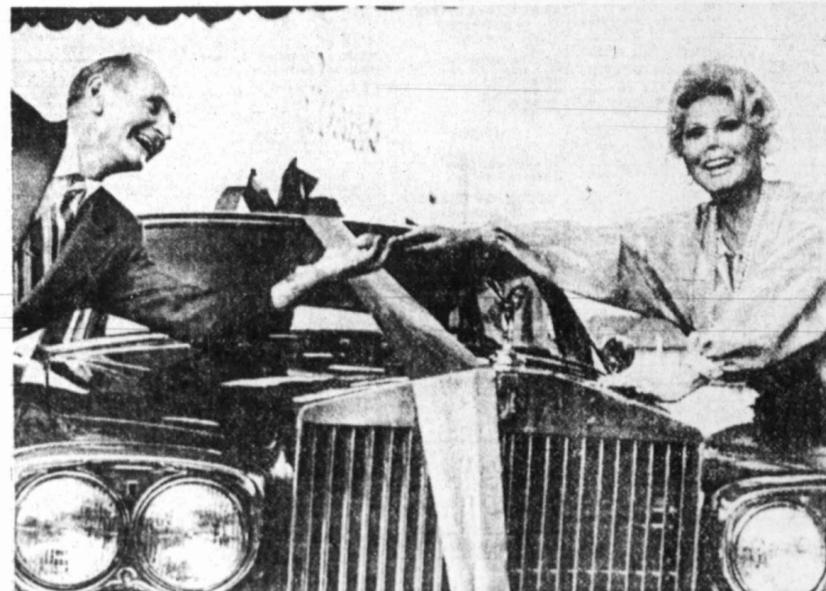

But it observed that a fundamental criticism of all voluntary programs is that they may be ineffective because "they lack a means of assuring compliance."

The report warned that while wage and price controls should be avoided, it may be a mistake not to do other things for fear they would lead to controls. President Carter has appeared to have hesitated to do some things, such as require prenotification of price increases by big business, because it didn't want to give the appearance that they could be a forerunner to controls.

"Earlier episodes of controls evolved out of a prior policy of doing nothing and not from a gradual evolution of voluntary measures," the council said. "If this nation should again be forced into price and wage controls, they are more likely to result from a failure to attend the problem by more appropriate means."

It urged that study be given to various proposals that would encourage anti-inflationary wage and price behavior by offering tax incentives as a kind of carrot.

While such proposals may be difficult to administer, especially for prices, it suggested that incentives for wage restraint "might have to be combined with other measures aimed at obtaining restraint on price increases."

President To Postpone Production Of N-Bomb

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to postpone — but not cancel — production of the controversial neutron bomb. U.S. officials said late Thursday.

The presidential decision will be conveyed to North Atlantic Treaty Organization representatives in Brussels today, these officials said.

Neutron weapons are designed to inflict battlefield casualties with radiation while limiting blast damage. Although sometimes referred to as a bomb, the weapon is designed for use as a warhead for the 81-mile range Lance missile and for howitzer shells that can be fired a distance of 10-12 miles.

The U.S. military wants the weapon as an equalizer against the possibility of a tank attack in central Europe, where the Russians have an estimated 3-to-1 tank advantage. The weapon would kill invading tank crews with radiation while saving civilian lives and property on the periphery of the battlefield, its supporters say.

Opponents of the weapon contend it could make it easier to use nuclear arms in a European conflict.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, emphasized that Carter's decision did not mean the neutron bomb would never be produced by the United States.

Possible production, they said, depended on future weapons negotiations with the Soviet Union. Presumably, if the Russians made certain unspecified concessions, the United States would forego further work on the neutron bomb.

Without revealing any details, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance touched on the immediacy of the decision in testifying earlier Thursday before the House International Relations Committee.

He said Carter would act soon and "when I say soon, I mean very soon."

West Germany and Britain had been encouraged to support the deployment of neutron bombs on the expectation that the United States would go ahead with production. Carter's decision may cause some embarrassment in those countries.

West Germany's Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher made a hurried visit to Washington earlier in the week to hold a last round of consultations with Carter and Vance about the weapon.

Carter is making his decision as Vance prepares for a critical visit to Moscow in two weeks to try to complete a U.S.-Soviet treaty limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

Carter had been reported on the verge of postponing production of neutron weapons, but official White House statements denied that the president had reached a decision.

Former President Gerald R. Ford said in a speech Thursday night that the controversy over the neutron bomb, "coming as it does after cancellation of the B-1 bomber and after reports that the Navy is being gutted, arouses profound concern among us all."

"As Americans, we must stand with our president on policies that strengthen or enhance our security," Ford said. "But we must and we will resist those policies that weaken or cripple our security."

Congressional supporters of neutron warhead development are urging Carter not to scrap the weapon unless the Soviet Union makes a comparable arms concession.

"Our feeling is this is a very valuable asset to us and it should not be scrapped by us without a quid pro quo from the Soviets," said Rep. Melvin Price, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. "I don't think we should give it away."

Price and other key members of the armed services panel are drafting a letter to Carter in opposition to any decision that would stop production. Rep. Bob Wilson of California, ranking Republican on the committee, said the letter "protests and urges the president not to make that decision."

Although Carter says he has not made up his mind, 60 House members sent him a letter in support of his earlier reported decision to scrap the neutron bomb.

"We strongly support your decision and urge you to withstand the efforts to reverse it that you will encounter in the coming days," said the letter, organized by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y.

Reliable government sources had said Tuesday that Carter had decided tentatively against producing neutron warheads.

In another development, opponents of the Panama Canal treaties said they were exploring prospects for killing the accords by appealing to senators who would be angry about cancellation of the neutron warhead.

Bridling Balky Bison Beats Bean Boogie

By GERRY BURTON

"You can show a buffalo something 10,000 times and he'll forget it in a minute."

It doesn't look much that way when Bunky Boger puts Cody through his paces at the 36th annual ABC Rodeo in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum through Saturday.

Cody, 1,100 pounds of original home on the range, seems docile as he goes through the routine, even leaping through a ring of fire with Boger on his back, to the cheers of South Plains rodeo fans.

The buffalo rodeo goes on behind the scenes, every time Boger puts the halter on. After the tussle for the bridle, Cody will do anything, be as gentle as he looks.

"I must have put that bridle on him 40,000 times and every time he figures this is the time he'll get away," Boger said.

Getting away is a thing Cody would rather do than perform, even if it's just walking down the street causing instant panic.

He once ambled downtown in Sioux City, with Boger scared to death the riot squad called out would shoot Cody before he could get to him.

Boger is onto most of Cody's tricks now and the getting away is rare today. At the coliseum, he stays in the holding pens.

Anybody who knows the buffalo's tricks can ride him now, if he's bridled and saddled. The "little gimmicks" are some more of the excitement behind the scenes.

Cody is the only buffalo act going now. There was another in South Dakota, but the buffalo died and the trainer swore off having another.

"A buffalo is like a lion or a tiger — trainable but not tameable," Boger emphasized.

There always is the little bit of free spirit resisting each contact with man. Boger obtained Cody when the buffalo was "just wild, but small enough to be out-toughed."

There were no books on buffalo training, so Boger — who had trained a dog, a mule, a horse or two and a goat — barreled ahead. What failed, failed, and what worked sent them to other tricks.

The teeter-totter act started with a big seesaw four feet wide and 16 feet long. Hours of driving Cody forward while a friend spooked him back got it done.

While not performing, Cody is home on a Hindsville, Ark., farm, one of nine Boger owns for turkey and cattle raising along with crops.

"Rodeo's been good to me," the rodeo performer turned clown and trainer said.

First thing rodeo did was show him that "double-shoveling beans for 50 cents a day" couldn't compare with rodeo money.

The Fourth of July when he was 15, he walked in cold on a bull ride and won $11, a real take for a few bruises.

He was doing pretty good riding bulls when one rodeo didn't have a clown and he didn't have any money.

"I got run over a couple of times and that brought the crowds back, so they kept hiring me." From then on clowning was mixed with bull riding.

Today's cowboy — "not a real cowboy, an athlete" — can compete in several rodeos in one week, making all his events in one day, especially when he competes in slack time.

For Boger, there's more money in a few rodeos as a clown and specialty act with Cody, a dog and an Appaloosa named Kalija "who can do more than about any trained horse."

It's a lot better than double-shoveling beans for 50 cents a day.

Voters Kill Bid To Salvage Cleveland School System

CLEVELAND (AP) — Voters in Cleveland turned down an attempt to bail out their delict-ridden school system by a 5-3 margin Thursday night, refusing to approve a measure to raise their property taxes an average of $87 a year.

With 600 of the city's 649 precincts reporting, unofficial returns showed 61,955 votes against the emergency tax measure and 37,387 in favor. About 27 percent of Cleveland's 290,000 registered voters went to the polls, election officials said.

James O'Meara, executive secretary of the Cleveland Teachers Union, said earlier in the evening that if the levy failed the union would ask the state Supreme Court on Monday to force the schools to close.

A group seeking to remove Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich from office, largely because of his March 24 dismissal of popular Police Chief Richard D. Hongisto, canvassed polling places to collect signatures on recall petitions.

Cleveland schools would be forced to close for lack of funds if the 9.9-mill, five-year tax increase failed, school officials argued during the campaign.

But no date was ever mentioned for closing school buildings in the 113,000-pupil district, the largest public school system in Ohio.

The embattled school system could not meet its $5 million biweekly payroll for 11,000 full-time employees last week and has a growing pile of unpaid bills, many dating back to last year.

It has ended six of the last eight years with a deficit, and banks have refused to loan any more money to the schools.

Passage of the tax hike would allow the school board to borrow against the anticipated $30 million in annual collections.

Success in the campaign had been viewed as a long-shot proposition from the start, despite the documented difficulties of the Cleveland schools — one of 130 school systems in the state facing financial troubles this year, according to the Ohio superintendent of public instruction.

Even before the election, the school board had arranged for a second election in June, in case the measure failed Thursday.

Arnold R. Pinkney, president of the school board, said major opposition

'Borrowed-Time' Man Not Taking Debt Into Grave

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — A 64-year-old cardiac patient who figures he's "living on borrowed time" doesn't want to go to the grave as a deadbeat.

So he paid his toll in advance — even though he doubts it will open the Pearly Gates.

Robert H. Lashbrook, a retired printer now living on his third heart pacemaker, mailed his check in early to pay a $3 tax on burials proposed by Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken.

In an accompanying letter, Lashbrook "congratulated" Milliken on the proposed death tax and said it should raise enough revenue "to defray part of the cost of the junkets and office furniture for the legislature."

He said that after several heart attacks, "I am living on borrowed time," with disability Social Security payments the only source of income for he and his wife.

"With inflation skyrocketing the way it is and if I live a little longer than expected, I am not sure I'll have the $3 for dying so, in all sincerity, please accept my advance check," Lashbrook wrote.

"I have no chance of going to heaven so I would love to meet you someday."

Tech Dorm Dwellers' Rents May Climb

Texas Tech dorm residents may be paying more to live on campus next fall if the university's Board of Regents approves a residence hall rate hike today during its regular meeting.

Tech administrators say more than $616,000 in additional funds will be needed to operate the dorms during 1978-79 due to soaring utility rates and rising wage and food costs.

Housing officials also have increased their beginning occupancy estimates for the next year's budget from 6,700 to 7,000 students.

The most recent dorm rate increase came in May, 1977, when the board voted to increase the cost for rooms in dorms without air-conditioning by $30 a year, and prices for air-conditioned dorms by $40 a year.

The regents also will consider awarding a construction contract for a $5.5 million recreation center, authorize the receipt of bids for fire alarm systems and the renovation of Sneed Hall and Junction Center.

Acting as regents for the School of Medicine, the board will consider affiliation agreements between the med school and two health agencies, the High Plains Nursing Home of Amarillo and Vista Heights Hospital in El Paso.

An agreement with the Amarillo Hospital District to consolidate its medical library with that of the Tech Regional Academic Health Center in that city also will be considered.

The board will discuss the awarding of a construction contract for Phase II of the Regional Academic Health Center at El Paso, and amendments to the architect's and construction manager's contracts for Phase IIB of the med school here.

In other university business, the regents will consider candidates for the designation of Horn Professor and acknowledge the establishment of the Elio J. and Olga Urbanovsky Fellowship Endowment Trust in the department of park administration and landscape architecture.

Judge Warned On Term Change

HOUSTON (AP) — A Mexican-American leader said Thursday that it would be "very disruptive, very divisive" if a federal judge does not change the probated sentences given three former policemen for their civil rights conviction in the slaying of a Mexican-American prisoner.

In an unprecedented motion filed Wednesday with federal Judge Ross N. Sterling, the Justice Department said the convictions punishable by death or life imprisonment.

There was no comment from Sterling and no hearing date had been set in the matter.

Reuben Bonilla, a Corpus Christi lawyer and state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said, "If the judge denies the Wednesday motion he is essentially admitting violating a federal law but is stating he is not going to correct the illegal actions which would be very disruptive, very divisive, in the community."

Bonilla added that a denial by the judge would "reinforce the sentiment in the Mexican-American community that he is a dis-compassionate fellow and that he has no interest in protecting the rights and privileges of Mexican-Americans."

Lawyers for the defendants said they would fight the motion and there was indication any ruling by Sterling might be appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The body of Joe Campos Torres, 21, a karate expert, was found in a Houston bayou May 8, 1977, three days after he had been arrested in a bar disturbance.

The former policemen, Terry W. Denson, 27, Stephen Orlando, 22, and Joseph Janish, 24, were convicted Feb. 8 by a federal court jury and Sterling sentenced them to one year in prison on a misdemeanor count for beating Campos Torres.

Sterling also assessed a 10-year suspended sentence probated for five years on a felony count that the former officers conspired to violate Campos Torres' rights with resulting death. He could have sentenced them to life in prison.

The Wednesday motion did not challenge the one-year prison sentences but said the probated sentences were "illegal and not within the scope of the court's discretion."

Bonilla said Sterling should assess a sentence in keeping with a previous civil rights case involving the death of Richard Morales, a Mexican-American shot to death in police custody.

Schlee On Top Of Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—John Schlee, a 38-year-old veteran whose erratic career is studded by a single victory and twice has been interrupted by injuries, was surprised only that anyone else was surprised he had fired a four-under-par 68 and taken the first-round lead Thursday in the 42nd Masters Golf Tournament.

"Surprised?" the longshot Schlee said in repeating a question.
 "Surprised to be in the lead?"
 "To be honest with you, no I'm not.
 "I've prepared myself.
 "Every practice shot I've hit, I've played Augusta in my mind.

"Every time I hit a driver, I'm thinking I'm at Augusta on No. 1, or No. 2. Every practice shot I hit, I was playing somewhere at Augusta. I've played thousands of rounds over Augusta National."

But the one that counted for the talkative Schlee, the real round played in gusty, tricky, shifty winds, was built around a decisive string of four consecutive birdies and an overwhelming domination of the par five holes by the supremely confident player who is now a part-time tourist and an infrequent performer on the regular pro tour.

"If, at the age of 38, I'm destined to come back and become a great player, well, other people have done it," said Schlee, a self-proclaimed disciple and pupil of Ben Hogan and one who delights in tales of his association of the all-but-unapproachable Texas Hawk.

The graying, curly-haired Schlee — winner of only one title in 13 years on the PGA Tour and now a club pro in Texas' lower Rio Grande Valley — unabashedly called himself "a heckuva putter and a great striker of the ball."

He also referred to his "great strength" which was much in evidence in the gusty, tricky, shifting gales that swept the flowered, forested hills of the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course and had most of the rest of the star-studded field of internationalists muttering about what might have been.

Journeyman Joe Inman, the last man on the course, had a share of the lead until he bogeyed the 17th in the gathering gloom of late afternoon. Inman, who habitually handles the club with a nervous, constant squeezing of his hands, carved out a 69 that put him in second place.

"I could have been a couple of shots better on the back nine," said Lee Trevino, who conquered his personal nemesis with a 38-32-70 and tied for third with soft-spoken, 25-year-old Bill Kratzert, considered by his peers one of the finest of the young tourists.

"I'm kind of disappointed in a 72," said

Jack Nicklaus, who only matched par in his role as favorite for a record sixth victory in this annual spring sports classic. He was one of many at that figure.

"It could have been about four shots better," Nicklaus said. "I certainly played and putted better than a round of par. I actually played well when the conditions allowed me to play well."

"I had a miserable day on the greens," said defending champion Tom Watson, who three-putted twice and missed at least four putts in the three-four foot range while shooting a one-over-par 73. "I've got to get the ball in the hole a lot faster if I'm going to do anything."

In addition to Schlee — who dominated the par five holes — Inman, Trevino and Kratzert, the only others under par were three golfers at 71: Tom Kite, the third-place finisher last year, Jerry McGee and Steve Melnyk.

Tied with Nicklaus at 72 was a group that included U.S. Open titleholder Hubert Green, Jerry Pate, four-time Masters runner-up Tom Weiskopf, veterans Gene Littler and Don January, Lyn Lott, Wally Armstrong, Dave Hill, Mac McLendon, Leonard Thompson and South African Gary Player, twice a Masters champion.

"Under the conditions, par isn't a bad round, and there's a long way to go in the golf tournament," said Green, a two-time winner this season and a leading candidate for his second major title. "Nobody wins the tournament on Thursday."

Arnold Palmer, the 48-year-old great who won his fourth Masters championship in 1964, bogeyed the final hole for a 73. Hale Irwin also had a 73.

Reds Stop Astros 11-9 In Opener

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan drove in five runs and keyed a five-run fifth-inning rally with a two-run double as the Cincinnati Reds rocked J.R. Richard in a 11-9 victory over the Houston

Astros in the National League opener Thursday.
 The game, which included three rain delays totaling 1 hour, 42 minutes, was highlighted by a rare triple-play in the seventh inning when a double steal by Cincinnati backfired after Dan Driessen struck out and both runners — Morgan at third and George Foster at first — were caught trying to advance.

Morgan, who led Cincinnati's 16-hit attack with a solo homer and two doubles, ignited a Reds' comeback after Houston staggered Tom Seaver for five runs.

Trailing 5-2 in the fifth, the Reds tagged Richard for five straight hits, three of them doubles. Pinch-hitter Dave Collins beat out a grounder to second and moved to third on a double by Pete Rose. Ken Griffey singled toward shortstop, but the ball hit Rose for an automatic out, preventing Collins from scoring. Both runners did score when Morgan

Morgan advanced to third as Richard uncocked a wild pitch, and scored on a ball, tying the score 5-5. After Foster doubled to left, Richard walked Driessen and Dave Concepcion, loading the bases. Cesar Geronimo hit a hard smash back to the box, Richard slipping on the mound, watched helplessly as the ball trickled out of his glove, allowing the go-ahead run to score.

Gene Pentz relieved and walked Collins, forcing in Driessen and giving Cincinnati a 7-5 lead. The Reds added two

WHEN TIME AND space run short... It depends on the speaker, but Paul Galvan is rated among the best or worst basketball official working in the Southwest Conference. But, he won't be working in the league next season. After the past season concluded, Galvan turned in his whistle and resignation, said he was tired of all the hassle. Although not the favorite—but who is?—of all coaches in the league, Galvan worked games all the way to the NCAA finals. Cincinnati Moeller High, the subject of a TV special program last fall because of its all-winning ways, has scheduled a game next fall with Dallas Jesuit High. The Sept. 22 contest will be played in the University of Cincinnati's Nippert Stadium, with a crowd of about 40,000 expected to be on hand. Moeller had been fishing around for a Texas foe, reviving the old Texas vs. the World schoolboy football theme. Such schools as Plano and Odessa Permian were among the first Texas teams under consideration.

BY WINNING THE football and cross-country championships last fall, West Texas State has taken the lead in the Missouri Valley all-sports trophy race. Second but without a championship in the battle for overall supremacy is Southern Illinois. Georgia Tech's linkup with the Atlantic-Coast-Conference this week is just another argument that it's difficult to go it alone. The advantages (television pacts, bowls tie-ups, patsy teams you can beat perennially) greatly outweigh the bads, and these plusses are why more and more colleges are seeking circuits to accept them.

It was in the early days of the club when then New York Mets manager Casey Stengel asked, on a very trying afternoon, "Can anybody here play this game?" then later the late Case commented on the abilities of one of his outfielders: "He only has trouble with balls hit in the air." Maybe there's something about the club and its ineptness. A recent comment by current manager Joe Torre: "We're getting better. Last year, we'd collide and nobody would catch the ball. This year, we'll collide and somebody catches the ball."

Monteary's James Odum is being considered as coach of the Texas squad for this summer's Oil Bowl high school all-star grid game at Wichita Falls. It annually matches the best in the state against the guys from north of the Red River. Rex Dockery isn't concerned so much about the injuries sustained at full speed so much as those which occur in times of relaxation. Brian Nelson, the only serious Tech football casualty thus far into spring training, was hit from behind while not involved in an actual play. "When you're running, your knees, especially, are in motion and you're tense and prepared for contact. But just like Jimmy Williams a couple of years ago in the Colorado game, he was over the goal, had relaxed and stowed down and got hit from behind. You're not prepared for that. These freaky accidents are what worry you," said the Raiders' new head man.

THE BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT fever is spreading. Now, the SEC has okayed such a post-season bash for next year, the 11th league to hold such an affair. Eddie Feigner, The King of the softball barnstormers who will be playing here Sunday, shows that the touring groups are popular. Last summer, he played to 7,000 in Midland, Mich., and another 3,000 were turned away.

DOESN'T SEEM POSSIBLE, but in the 12 Super Bowls, only 11 teams have participated. Can you name 'em? ... One old pro has told Tech officials he feels Billy Taylor will go in the first three rounds of the upcoming football draft. Size and speed the 's good enough to run on Tech's sprint relay and clock 9.7 in the 100 last week) are on his side. And those are two of the top assets the pros seek in runningbacks.

Dockery on Bill Adams, the Raiders' field-goal man who had surgery after being hurt against Arkansas: "I'm amazed that he's back kicking already. I'm afraid he would have had to miss next season if it had been his right (kicking) knee had been hurt. But he's really kicking good already this spring."

Texas University's holding its gigantic and prestigious Texas Relays on Sunday this year has drawn at least one blast from coaches. Baylor's Clyde Hart said he was against it, because it would be dif-

Blame Braves For Green Men

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
If you bump into a little green man who asks directions to the ballpark, just point him toward Atlanta and blame the Braves.

The baseball club decided that opening the National League season against the champion Los Angeles Dodgers wasn't enough. They wanted to make tonight's opener really memorable and needed something more than mere mortals to do it.

So, the Braves, working in conjunction with the Atlanta Radio Club, have invited beings from outer space to land at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium and participate in the pre-game ceremonies. For the last three weeks, Atlanta's community of 5,000 HAM radio operators has been broadcasting an invitation to whoever might be listening out there.

It reads this way:
"Living beings who travel throughout the universe from galaxy to galaxy are invited to make a peaceful landing on earth at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium in Atlanta, Georgia, of the United States of America—latitude 84 degrees 25 minutes north and longitude 33 degrees 44 minutes west. The landing should be made at 1920 hours Eastern Standard Time on April 7, 1978."

At 7:20, the opening night ceremonies will be halted and, ostensibly, everybody in the ballpark will look up to the skies in expectation.

"If there are space ships capable of landing on earth, there should be no way that they will not be aware of the invitation," said Carl Nichols, president of the Atlanta Radio Club.

Asked about the language barrier, Nichols shrugged off that problem.

"Any being capable of space travel surely would be capable of understanding the message," he said.

Bob Hope, who serves as a vice president of the Braves when he is not busy explaining that, no, he is not that other Bob Hope, admits that he has his doubts about this production.

"Frankly," said Vice President Hope, "I don't expect a space ship to land. However, if one does, it will certainly be one of the biggest events in the history of baseball."

You can't argue with that. Last year, the Braves' Opening Night attraction was the first ball ceremony handled by Bert Lance, who, at the time, worked in Washington. "That started a bad year for him and the Braves," the club points out.

Just in case the outer space people ignore the message, the Braves plan a flyover by a phony saucer, an idea that is frowned upon by the Federal Aviation Administration.

"It is against FAA regulations to have a flyover," explained FAA official George Bergmark. "However, we have no jurisdiction if a real space ship should land."

Oh. Hope has a theory about all of this. He thinks the reason baseball has had to get along all these years without visitors from other galaxies is that nobody ever bothered asking the little guys in before.

"Since no one has ever invited UFO's to land," reasoned Hope, "maybe that's why they only come down on deserts and in other remote areas. We promise them a friendly environment."

The little guys would probably be better off with a compass and a map, if you ask astronomers at New York's Hayden Planetarium.

The problem, you see, is the Braves got their latitudes and longitudes confused in the original message and flashed the wrong directions into outer space for awhile until somebody noticed the mistake and corrected it.

To get to Atlanta, the visitors would need to head on a longitude of 84 degrees, 25 minutes west and a latitude of 33 degrees 45 minutes north. The HAM operators corrected their directions as soon as the mistake was pointed out, but no one knows if the space travelers received the revised numbers.

And suppose the outer space travelers got the original message and not the corrected one. Where would the first directions lead them?

"Oh, somewhere in the northern reaches of Greenland, very near the North Pole," the man from Hayden said.

Nichols, the No. 1 HAM operator, isn't concerned about the mix-up.

"Frankly," he said, "if they made it this far, I don't think they will have any trouble finding the stadium."

INDY REPEATER—Janet Guthrie, the only woman driver to qualify for the Indianapolis 500, poses at a press conference in New York Thursday with a toy race car. ## Guthrie To Compete Again At Indy 500

NEW YORK (AP) — Janet Guthrie, the best antidote to those awful lady driver jokes, has received the necessary financial backing to make a second assault on the famed concrete oval in Indianapolis.

Texaco, which sponsored Milton Berle and his televised imitations of a woman years ago, has gotten a real, live woman in Miss Guthrie, the first member of her sex to drive in the Indianapolis 500.

"Our motto has been 'Trust your car to the man who wears the star,'" said Paul Hicks, vice president in charge of public relations for the oil company which is sponsoring its first driver for the Memorial Day classic. "Now, we may have to change it to 'the gal who wears the star.'" measure of acceptance "when they started kidding me. But real belonging is a difficult thing. I'm never gonna be a guy."

One of her biggest thrills was qualifying ahead of Richard Petty in the Talladega 500 last year. "Richard's been one of the very last to change his tune," Miss Guthrie said.

Miss Guthrie's talents have caused lots of tune changes in the industry, including last year's Indy introduction: "In the company of the first lady to ever race at Indianapolis, gentlemen start your engines," was the call.

Miss Guthrie, who says she expects to finish in the top five at Indy this year, prefers a different introduction. "Shakespeare had a word 400 years ago, 'gentle-folk,'" she said. "I would suggest that."

'King' Brings Softball Court To Lubbock

In his 33rd successive season on the road, Eddie Feigner still still firing a softball at speeds of up to 105 miles per hour, and he will be firing the white pellets at Lubbock batters Sunday afternoon.

Feigner will lead his four-man King and His Court softball team against the nine-man Lubbock All-Stars Sunday at Mackenzie baseball park at 3:30 p.m., in a game sponsored by the City Parks & Recreation Department.

Tickets to the contest are now on sale at the Parks & Recreation office, 1010 9th. Prices at the office are $2 for adults and $1.50 for students. At the game Sunday afternoon, however, the prices will be $2.50 for adults, $2 for students.

Feigner takes the mound and stations one of his court behind the plate, another at first base and the other at shortstop. With his variety of pitches, including the high-speed offering which has been timed at 105 mph, Feigner feels three others is all he needs to win. And a winning record over the years substantiates his theory.

Feigner uses an assortment of 30 pitches in striking out batters, and his pitching repertoire includes tosses from second base, while-blind-folded, and while kneeling.

Speed is the main item, however, even after 33 years of barnstorming.

"I may have lost a few inches off my legst ball," Feigner said, "but the rest of my repertoire seems to improve with each season."

Feigner's team includes his son, Eddie Jr., who usually works behind the plate; Al Jackson at first base and comic Gary West at shortstop. John Bateman, a former player with the Houston Astros, fills in at times at catcher and as designated hitter.

The four-man barnstorming team will play a local group which will include Darrell Rosenow and LOC baseball coach Larry Hays, two members of the Midland Stockton Packer group which played in several national softball tournaments last year.

Houston Blisters Tech Netters 9-0

Harrison Bowers took the opening set from the University of Houston's No. 1 player, Nduka Odior, but the Nigerian bounced back to take the next two sets, and UH swamped the Raider tennis team 9-0 in a Southwest Conference dual match.

That 6-4 winning set by Bowers was the only one Tech was to win all afternoon against the nationally ranked Cougars.

The loss dropped Tech to 9-6 in SWC dual-match play.

Today, the Raiders will be in Abilene to compete in the two-day Hardin-Simmons Invitational Tennis Tourney.

HOUSTON'S TECHS

Long Beach Tabs Winter

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Tex Winter, who resigned as head basketball coach at Northwestern earlier in the day, was appointed to a similar position at Long Beach State Thursday afternoon, succeeding Dwight Jones, who was fired last month. Winter is a native of Lubbock and Lubbock High School graduate.

Winter, 54, who coached eight Big Eight championships at Kansas State in 15 seasons; was unable to duplicate that success at Northwestern, where his teams were 42-89 over the past five years.

Winter coached at Kansas State from 1953 through 1968 and won two Midwest NCAA championships. His overall record there was 262-117. He was named college Coach of the Year in the 1958-59 season.

Winter also coached the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association for two years before coming to Northwestern for the 1974-75 season. He was replaced at Northwestern by assistant Rich Falk.

Prior to coaching the Rockets, he was head coach at Washington for three seasons where his teams compiled a 45-35 record.

Winter's overall college coaching record is 374-266. He is the ninth-winningest active college basketball coach.

Winter began as a head coach at Marquette in 1951. His teams there were 25-25 for two seasons. He then moved to Kansas State.

Jones was fired after four seasons as the Long Beach head coach. His teams were 70-40. The 49ers, a member of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, were 16-13 during the recently completed season.

"I look at the opportunity here at Long Beach as an excellent one for me personally," said Winter. "It's an equal chance

Junior World Mat Crown On Line

The World Junior Heavyweight Championship bout will highlight wrestling action that begins tonight at 8 at Fair Park Coliseum.

Chavo Guerrero, the current champion, will defend his title against Jonathan Boyd.

Also on the card will be a tag-team match between Roger Kirby and The Viking, and Carlos Matta and Ricky Romero.

Other matches slated are Hans Schroeder vs. Rip Hawk, Dennis Stamp vs. Hermes and Alex Perez vs. Tonga.

District Golfers To Tee-Off Today

District 4-AAAA golfers converge on two South Plains courses for more league action.

The boys will tee-off this morning on the Plainview Country Club at 9 a.m. Kelly Kitchens of Hereford hopes to lead the pack as he did last week at Meadowbrook.

Meanwhile, the girls will tee-off this morning on Pine Hills golf course at 9 a.m.

Tech Secondary Ranks Meager

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When Jim Baies became secondary coach at Texas Tech early in the year, he inherited no easy task. And the fact has become even clearer to him one week deep into spring training.

Several Tech defensive backs completed their eligibility following the 1977 campaign and one returnee—cornerback Mike Patterson—was a scholastic casualty, leaving the Raiders' secondary ranks perilously thin this spring.

Safety Larry Flowers and cornerback Willie Stephens, both of whom started several games in 1977, are the only performers in this area with significant varsity experience.

"We sure don't have much experience back there," Bates said with a faint shake of his head. "We must develop some depth this spring."

The Tech staff will move a number of players around this spring in an effort to find the best combination of players in the secondary. There is a possibility that players could be moved from other positions to the defensive backfield, too.

"We told them before the spring that there would be movement of players to find what our best group is," Bates said.

"Right now, we're just trying to find out who our four best players are."

Flowers, a free safety for two seasons, is currently at strong safety. Sophomore-to-be Greg Tyler is No. 1 at free safety now, while Stephens and Taylor are the cornerbacks.

The current second team is almost void of varsity experience. Walkons Leonard Duncan and Larry Toon—a Coronado product—are the cornerbacks, while red-shirt sophomore Russell Kellner is at free safety and junior-to-be Johnny Quinney at strong safety.

Quinney lettered last season, but much of his playing time came on the special teams.

Patterson, who has seen considerable action the past two seasons, possibly will regain his eligibility in the summer and be able to play next fall. Bates said he might have to swing between the two cornerback spots.

Some incoming players in the fall will have excellent chances to play in 1978 because of the poor depth situation. Incoming freshmen Tate Randle and Greg Iseral (of Monterey) are safety types, while junior-college transfer Ted Watts is expected to be used at cornerback.

Obviously, there is much teaching to be done this spring.

"We've changed some ideas and concepts," Bates said. "This is to fit our personnel and to fit our overall defensive scheme, too." Tech has switched from an even front to an odd front this spring.

"We've got to do a lot of work on our run-pass keys," Bates added. "And we're working to get the proper drops in our coverages."

"One of the biggest things we need to do is get a good concept and a feeling for the position of the receivers at all times and for the quarterback when he's throwing the ball. This is something we're not too good at now."

"As a group, we're not getting a good break on the ball now. One or two guys will get good breaks, but the others won't, for example."

NOTES: Starting split end Brian Nelson was examined Thursday and underwent surgery on his right knee later in the day. Nelson suffered a torn ligament on the inside of his knee in a freak accident Tuesday. He was standing watching a play, and another player's momentum carried him into Nelson's knee. Nelson should be ready to go by fall practice.

Tech will work out about an hour and a half today in preparation for Saturday's two-hour scrimmage in Jones Stadium. That will take place Saturday morning.

Chaps, Texas Wesleyan To Collide In Twin Bill

FORT WORTH (Special) — It was here a year ago that Tjm Leslie enjoyed the best series of his collegiate career. And Lubbock Christian needed each of his four homers and 11 RBIs to beat Texas Wesleyan three of four games.

It was that spree which started the Chapparrals toward their first appearance in the NAIA World Series.

Today, LCC and TWC, ranked No. 4 and 7, respectively, in the nation, collide for the first of four doubleheaders that will decide the pairings for the District VIII Tournament at Arlington in May and also determine the Texas championship of the Texoma Conference, a crown LCC has worn for the past five years.

Both squads are 6-2 in league play. LCC stands 30-9 on the year and has won 27 straight. TWC is 30-14-2 and has dropped three in a row.

Still, Leslie feels today and Saturday's twin bills will be "real close games." And the first sacker, who has equalled his 1977 total of 13 homers and is only 12 RBIs behind his freshman total of 66 despite the fact 22 games remain in the regular season, said, "I don't think we'll be only about beating Texas Wesleyan."

But the Rams have a surprise in store for Leslie and his left-handed hitting teammates Darius Copley, Tommy Hinn, Mark Lisle and Bobby Doe.

Ab Adams Field has acquired a 45-foot screen atop its right field fence, which sits only 300 feet away from home plate. Fly balls hit that way must carry over that barrier or they remain in play. How will that affect Leslie and his mates?

"It really depends on the situation. If we need a run I think we'll be concentrating more in getting the ball up in the air. I know I won't swing up, but I still try to hit it in the air. Last year two of my homers were to left center and the other two to right field."

Leslie has enjoyed a banner year at the plate. As a freshman he hit .299 with 69 hits, 9 doubles, 4 triples and 13 homers. Already this year he has collected 63 hits, 10 doubles, 3 triples and 13 homers. What has changed the clean-up man from a .299 hitter into a .467 swinger?

"Last year I'd swing at the first strike I saw. Now, I'm not afraid to take two strikes. And even then I'm waiting for my pitch. And I'll go to the opposite field if that's what the pitcher is giving me."

Leslie also feels the plane trip down for today's 1 p.m. game will help the Chaps. "We'll get to spend an extra night at home, plus there's always an aura of excitement about flying, even though we do have to get up early (to catch a 6:45 a.m. flight out of Lubbock International this morning)."

"We haven't really been bothered about playing on the road, because for the first month it seemed like that's where all our games were. And, too, there's a special excitement about playing Texas Wesleyan, no matter where it is."

LCC's predominately left-handed hitting lineup will face only one southpaw in this series. That will be in today's opener with Jon Henke (6-0) faces Dick Battle (3-2). Today's second game will find LCC's John Ross (4-1) going against David Whisonant (5-1).

Saturday, LCC will go with Oscar Acosta (8-0) and either Richard Nixon (2-1) or Gary Swann (1-2) and the Rams will counter with Andy Tam (5-2) and Steve Daniels (4-4).

And Hays will be hoping the Saturday twin bill, which also starts at 1 p.m., doesn't run too long, because the Chaps, who lead this series 15-8, are booked on a 7:30 p.m. flight out of Dallas' Love Field.

Blind Fan 'Sees' Masters No. 20

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "Beautiful! Beautiful!" Charley Boswell exclaimed after Hubert Green ran in his birdie putt on the second hole.

As he moved toward the third tee, the husky fan from Birmingham, Ala., turned to his close friend, Hayden Wood, and remarked in a low voice: "Isn't this weather great? This may be the best Masters I have ever seen."

It's Masters No. 20 for Charley but he's actually seen none of them. You see, Charley is totally blind.

He troops every hole and follows the action through the eyes of his friend, his super sense of hearing and remarkable imagination.

"I know almost every bush, mound and sand trap on the course," he said. "I can visualize every shot as if I were seeing it with my eyes."

Charley's eyes were snuffed out more than 30 years ago when, as a tank commander in World War II, he ran back to his stricken vehicle to save a sergeant. The sergeant died—so did Charley's ability to see.

Once an outstanding football player at the University of Alabama and a baseball player who attracted the attention of the New York Yankees, Boswell took up golf at the army hospital in Valley Forge, Pa.

He went on to become the world's best blind golfer, winner of 11 national titles and 17 international events.

He set up an insurance business in Birmingham, became the Commissioner of Revenue in Alabama and joined Bob Hope as co-chairman of a tournament that has raised $160,000 for the blind.

He has been coming to the Masters since 1958.

"I guess I've walked the course 100 times," Charley said. "I can tell you the key shots Arnie Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus have made down through the years."

Charley stands at the tee and listens to the clack of clubhead meeting the ball, then follows the gallery down the fairway. Wood explains the location of the ball and the club being used. He describes the putts.

Raider Tracksters Enter Two Events

Texas Tech track teams will be competing on two fronts this weekend, as both the women's team and a small group of the men will be in Austin for start of the annual Texas Relays, and the remainder of the men's team will compete in the Indian Relays at McMurry.

The Texas Relays will have only a smattering of events today, as the main show begins Saturday and winds up Sunday afternoon.

But, today, beginning at 1:30 p.m., most of the Raider track team will be competing at Abilene.

"I think we have an excellent shot at winning at Abilene," reported Tech track coach Corky Oglesby. "We had 73 points in the field events last week, and the only ones we will be missing will be the 10 Jim MacAndrew won."

MacAndrew leaped 25-7 to win the long jump with a school record-setting effort. But, the senior from Toronto will be at Austin preparing for Sunday's Texas Relays competition.

Also heading for Austin will be the two-mile and distance medley relays. This will leave Tech without sprinter Charles Green, a former Abilene High athlete; James Mays, Robert Leppard, Ricky McCormick and Greg Lautenslager.

Green will be the only absent member of Tech's sprint relay unit which ran 41.1 last week in the Tech Invitational.

On the team will be Cody Bradford, Kenneth Elder, Duncan Thompson and Billy Taylor.

Billy Stone, a freshman from Abilene Cooper, will be one of the athletes who helped Tech amass the 73 points in field events. Stone has cleared 6-8 in the high jump this year and has been flirting for two weeks with the 6-10 plateau.

Bobby Moeck was a winner in the shot put last week and will be heading Tech's weight corps. Harold Ledet, a freshman, will be throwing both the shot and discus.

Joining Tech in the Indian Relays today will be McMurry, Tarleton State, Wayland Baptist College, Sul Ross, West Texas State, Texas A&I and Abilene Christian. However, most of the schools will be sending top athletes to Austin for the Texas Relays.

Tech women will send a full group to Austin for the big meet, first major outdoor relay meet of the season. After this weekend's meet, the Tech women will host their relays meet on April 15.

runs in the sixth and seventh, with Morgan belting a two-run double in the seventh.

Seaver, making his 11th consecutive opening day start, was rudely greeted by a home run by leadoff hitter Terry Puhl. Cesar Cedeno triggered a four-run fourth inning for Houston with a solo homer off Seaver, who never has lost an opener in six decisions.

The heavy rain, which caused interruptions of 33, 31 and 38 minutes, thinned the sellout crowd of 52,378.

Joe Ferguson had a two-run homer off Seaver after the last delay in the fourth. Jose Cruz doubled and scored on Bob Watson's single before Ferguson followed with a two-run shot over the left field fence that knocked out the Reds' ace right-hander.

LCHS, MHS JV Advance In Meet

Monterey's junior varsity and the Lubbock Christian High team advanced into the winner's bracket of the Lubbock junior varsity baseball tournament Thursday at Hodges Park.

MHS downed Lubbock High 5-3 while LCHS topped Coronado 13-10 in the first round of the double-elimination event. In other Thursday games, LHS beat Plainview's JV 8-4 and CHS downed Levelland's JV 6-1.

In today's schedule, Levelland and Plainview collide at 10 a.m. Coronado meets Lubbock High at noon and MHS faces LCHS at 2 p.m. The winners of the first two Thursday games meet at 4 p.m.

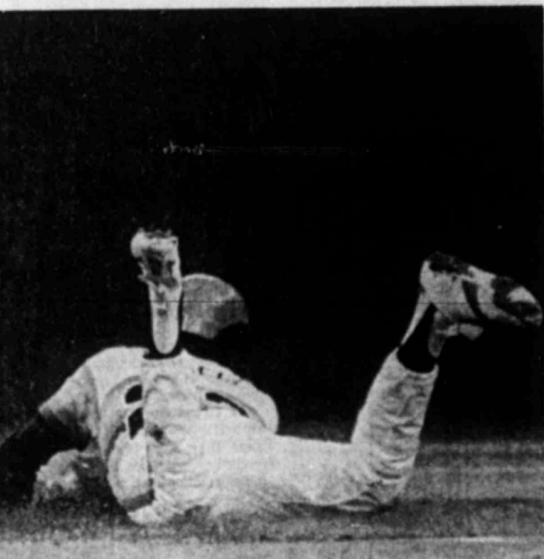

The championship and third-place games will follow on Saturday.

Red Raiders Open Series With Hogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special)—After splitting two mid-week games with Oral Roberts, Texas Tech will take a 21-16 record into a three-game series with Arkansas that begins with a single game today at 3 p.m.

The Razorbacks lead the Southwest Conference race with a 12-3 mark. Tech is 6-6 in league action and in fifth place, four and one-half games behind Arkansas.

Tech swept a four-game set from North Texas State last weekend, but dropped an 8-3 decision to Oral Roberts Tuesday before downing the Titans 3-1 Wednesday.

This series begins the Raiders' tough 12-game stretch that will close their season. Following this series are ones with conference rivals Houston, Texas A&M and Texas.

Tech's chances of finishing at least fourth in the league race and thereby gaining a spot in the conference's post-season tournament obviously depend on how well it does in these final 12 contests.

The Raiders are batting .249 in league play, while their opponents are hitting .264. Larry Selby, a sophomore left fielder, is hitting .372 in SWC games to lead the club's regulars. Shortstop Brooks Wallace is batting .310 in conference action, and designated hitter Mike Farmer has a .282 SWC mark.

Freshman Gary Moyer, 4-1 for the season, has a 2-0 record and 2.25 earned-run average in league action, while Rick Hall and David Bolton are both 2-1 in conference games and have respective ERAs of 2.66 and 2.86.

Bolton is expected to be the Raiders' starting pitcher today.

Three Meets Set Today

After an almost mind-boggling weekend of track action last week, a relatively slack two days of competition opens today on the South Plains.

Meets starting today include Olton Relays, Dawson Relays and San Angelo Relays.

At Olton, 20 boys teams and 23 girls teams will vie for the team crown. The Olton meet will be an all-day affair with field events set for 9 a.m., running prelims at 1:30 p.m. and the finals at 7:30 p.m.

Dawson will host a Class B meet with 13 teams fighting it out in the boys category and 12 in the girls competition. Action starts at 9:30 with the running prelims and field events, with the finals set for 2:30 p.m.

One of the area's largest events, the San Angelo Relays, starts a two-day run today with the 65 teams competing in four different divisions, AAAA, AAA, AA, and A & B.

Action starts at 1 p.m. today with the prelims in the 440 relay. Although most of the day will be spent determining which teams will go to Saturday's finals, there are some final field event finals on tap.

Program Drops Hayes

DALLAS (AP) — Olympic gold-medalist and former Dallas Cowboy wide receiver Bob Hayes' arrest Thursday morning on drug charges has cost him an association with a national youth athletic program.

Mitch Head, a spokesman for Hershey Foods Corporation in Pennsylvania, called Hayes' arrest an "unfortunate" incident. "Due to this incident, however, we do not feel that it is appropriate that he continue his association with our national track and field youth program," he said.

Hayes and a business associate, Bob Adler, were arrested in a north Dallas suburb and charged with drug-related offenses. Hayes, 35, a vice president of Dycen International, Inc., was charged with delivering cocaine and quaaludes to undercover officers. Adler, 29, co-owner of the firm, was charged with delivery of cocaine. Both men were released Thursday morning after posting bonds of $30,000 for Hayes and $15,000 for Adler. Officers said the arrests followed three months of undercover investigation.

Leaving the Dallas County Jail Thursday, Hayes called the incident "a mistake. I never dealt with it. I've never dealt in cocaine. I don't know what they found (in the apartment). I'll have a statement to make in the future, not today, but soon," he said, his voice quivering.

Hayes set a still-unbroken 400-meter relay record and won two gold medals at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. He has been involved with the youth program as a coach and consultant.

As a pro football player, Hayes spent 10 years as a wide receiver for the Dallas Cowboys, and still holds the title of the team's all-time leading scorer with 75 touchdowns. He also has yet to be topped as a receiver, with 358 catches for 7,177 yards, or as a punt returner, with 102 for 1,147 yards.

A recent press release from the National Track and Field Hall of Fame said Hayes expected the nation's youth to produce a successor to his title as "the world's fastest human."

"Running, jumping and throwing are all activities which come naturally to children," Hayes said in the release. "Today there are more programs, facilities and better coaching for youngsters than when I was growing up in Jacksonville," he said.

HORSLIPS MAKES IT BIG FROM IRELAND — Horslips, Ireland's most popular rock band, has refused to move from their Irish homes like most other groups do to crack the American and British markets. The band, shown in a Dublin airport, currently is touring the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

Group Weds Folk, Rock

NEW YORK (AP) — The stream of rock artists — from Van Morrison to Thin Lizzy — who left Ireland and their Celtic roots for fame in bigger British and American music markets, has ended with Horslips.

The five-man band, Ireland's top rock group for years, continues to call Dublin home while releasing albums and touring to good notices abroad.

And while they use a flute, fiddle and traditional Irish instruments like the Bodhrani drummer Eamon Carr warns fans not to expect Chieftains or Irish Rovers-type tunes.

"Basically what we've tried to do since we started is to wed the excitement of rock and roll with the excitement of traditional Irish music," Carr said in a telephone interview.

"We've always had image problems. People in Ireland first associated us with the Chieftains, a folk group, and started using strange critical yardsticks. They would go away from a concert deaf. They came in for folk, and went away horrified. It took a couple of tours to pick up our audience."

"There is no way we could achieve our music living in a London suburb — actually we find London boring," Carr said. "We're the first band to face up to the reality of trying to make it (from) out of Ireland. Leaving our homes would affect our music, too."

The band, whose name is a contraction of Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, takes much of its lyrics from Irish folklore, weaving tales of medieval fighting men, grotesque monsters and the various groups that have controlled Ireland through the centuries.

The current Horslips release, "Aliens," is a "dual-purpose album," Carr said. "It chronicles the flight of the Irish people to America during the potato famine and, on a more personal level, deals with our being taken from a country environment and dumped into the heady world of America."

On its current American tour, a grueling five-month stint of primarily one-night stands, the band stresses hard rock at the expense of Celtic folk songs. The music falls into the British art-rock category — an Irish-tinged Jethro Tull or Caravan.

"We, of course, love the traditional Irish tunes, but we have to keep the pace of the set going," Carr said. "We do feature the tin whistle and electric fiddle, but primarily we're a rock and roll band."

Carr said he met bassist Barry Devlin and fiddler Charles O'Connor in Dublin in 1972 while working in an advertising office.

"We had to pose for a disco advertisement and decided that was the life — play music, drink stout and get away from the typewriter. We dragged Jim (Lockhart, keyboards) in, went through a few guitarists in the early days and then John (Fean) came."

"We knew we'd be in America for St. Patrick's Day this year, so we decided to try to play somewhere special. The only place with brewers we know of was Milwaukee." So Milwaukee it was.

Miami Beach In Conflict With County

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Beach commissioners, angry over a Dade County school board busing proposal, have voted unanimously to consider secession from the county.

All seven commissioners voted Wednesday to ask staff members to report by May 3 on how the city could secede from Dade County and form its own county with other communities sharing the same spit of land that divides northern Biscayne Bay from the Atlantic Ocean.

Other communities on the peninsula are Surfside, Bal Harbour, Bay Harbor Islands and Golden Beach.

The secession move was spurred by a recent Dade County Board of Education proposal to bus Miami Beach children to mainland schools in predominantly black areas.

Miami Beach officials, saying that city schools are superior to county schools, suggested that black pupils be bused to Miami Beach. However, the school board rejected that proposal.

Commissioner Michael Friedman walked out of Wednesday's meeting, saying he didn't want to "be a party to a racist discussion." But Friedman returned later and voted to secede.

Commissioner Philip Saul said the issue was education. "I do not want to see my grandchildren bused from a superior school to an inferior school," Saul said.

Meanwhile, Assistant Attorney General Jerry Price said Wednesday that new counties can be created or county boundaries can be changed by the Legislature, which opened its 1978 session this week.

GAYS SUFFER SETBACK
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The city council has rescinded a resolution scheduling Gay Human Rights Week June 18-25 after angry residents threatened to recall some council members.

Poet Seeking Nashville Music To Match Words

SEEKING MUSIC FOR HIS POEM — Loy Bunnell of El Paso holds a Nashville, Tenn., newspaper in which he took an ad begging for a songwriter to set his poem "Prairie Dog" to music. (AP Laserphoto)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "Songwriter, songwriter, make me a song!" This plea was the headline in a large ad that appeared in a Nashville newspaper Feb. 26. The ad contained a poem, "Prairie Dog," that Loy Bunnell of El Paso, wanted made into a country-western song.

"Since desperation is my God-child, and since I have been operating on a shoe-string since 1911, your compassion and interest in this matter is deeply appreciated," the ad said.

But Nashville — the country music capital of the world — produced no nibbles. Bunnell got no reaction from the ad until a reporter called him about it a month later.

"I got took like Grant took Richmond," Bunnell said good-naturedly in a telephone interview. "I got skunked. I'm bating nothing."

Bunnell, 66, a retired government clerk, said he spent $423.36 for the ad. He offered to split costs and profits from the song 50-50.

"I got my income tax return for $503 and figured I should spend it on something useful," he recalled. "But it looks like you've got to get a crowbar and pry these songwriters out from underneath the rocks."

Songwriters and song publishers here are deluged with material from would-be writers, but it's highly unusual for someone to take out such a large ad trying to sell a song.

The poem, an abstract work reflecting an optimistic view of life and nature, is from a book of poetry Bunnell published in 1969, "A Hat Full of Flowers."

"I've seen the ads in magazines where they say send us your poem and we'll turn it into a song," he said. "But they end up wanting $1,200 to use it and I'm not sure they're on the level. I thought if anything would pop open it would be in Nashville. I considered the Los Angeles Times but the ad would have cost too much."

He's still hopeful the ad will pay off. "I liked the ad. The people at the paper who helped me write it did a good job and told me the music business is a real rat race. I think something will happen sooner or later. Something will bust open. This yahoo got took but I'm still kickin'."

Montezuma's Revenge Cure Found

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors report that regular doses of a seldom-used antibiotic can prevent Montezuma's Revenge, the perennial intestinal affliction of tourists in underdeveloped lands.

The researchers said the drug can give most people at least one month's protection against the unpleasant malady, also known as Delhi Belly, or simply traveler's diarrhea.

They predicted that the drug, called doxycycline, will be routinely prescribed for Americans who travel to underdeveloped parts of the Middle East, South America, Africa and Asia.

The drug was tested on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya by doctors from Baltimore City Hospitals. Their findings were published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Dr. R. Bradley Sack, one of the researchers, said Americans have a 50 percent to 60 percent chance of getting travelers' diarrhea if they go to countries where it is prevalent.

"This is the first drug that has really been shown to be highly effective," Sack said in an interview. Several drugs currently in use are said to help ease the symptoms of diarrhea once it strikes.

The doctors gave doxycycline to 18 American volunteers for three weeks, and only one of them contracted the illness. Twenty-one others got inactive pills, called placebos, and nine of them became sick.

The protection lasted for one week after the medication stopped, but then it wore off, they said.

The volunteers took one pill a day, and the researchers cautioned doctors against prescribing the drug for longer than three weeks until more tests are done.

Doxycycline is a form of tetracycline, a commonly used drug. It is sometimes used to treat cholera and Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Sack said the medicine fights a disease-causing variety of the common microscopic organism called Escherichia coli.

Indians Due Grant For Self Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny and isolated Indian tribe will receive a federal grant of $90,058 to help preserve its ancient language. The money has been allocated to the 1,500 members of the Makah tribe, who make their home on Washington State's Olympic Peninsula.

Only about 25 Makahs remain who speak their native language fluently. The youngest of those who remember the native tongue is about 60, and most of the others are in their 70s, which lends a certain urgency to the project.

Joseph D. Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, plans to visit the Makah reservation Saturday to present the agency's grant.

"Because of their location, on a promontory flanked by the Juan de Fuca Strait on the north and the Pacific Ocean on the west, the Makahs developed into skillful and courageous fishermen," the announcement of the grant said, adding:

"There are still older tribe members who can describe from first-hand knowledge how the Makah braves used to hunt whales from canoes, a practice that continued into the 1920s.

"Using harpoons secured to air-filled sealskin floats, the whalers would weaken their prey with repeated harpoon thrusts, then disable it by cutting the tail and flipper tendons. Finally, one man would swim out and sew the whale's mouth shut, allowing the canoes to tow the beast safely to shore, where it was butchered."

The Makahs learned English when their homeland became a mecca for commercial and sport fishermen in search of salmon, bass and halibut. It was this annual influx of visitors that led tribal elders to fear for the survival of their ancient language. In appealing to have their language and culture preserved, the elders were joined by some younger Makahs interested in preserving tribal customs.

The 43-square-mile Makah reservation is 150 miles northwest of Seattle and is accessible by boat, helicopter or primitive rocky roads.

The two-year program to preserve the Makah language will include tape recording of fluent Makah speakers for development of a dictionary, a written grammar and other aids that can be used to teach future generations their original language. The grant also will support a compilation of the informal oral history of the Makahs' tribal legends and customs.

Asian Compositions Showcased

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Filipino composer, trying to capture Asian ritual, had 250 performers bang bamboo sticks together while simple flutes and voices wailed. Traditional Thai and modern Western instruments engaged in dialogue against a backdrop of a children's choir singing "The Kiss of a Serpent."

There were but two of the sounds of Expo '78, a major musical festival designed by its organizers to explore new directions in Asian music, confront the issue of Western influence and "freak people out," thus getting them to realize a lot is happening on the contemporary music scene in Asia.

Somtow Sucharitkul, a 25-year-old Thai composer and the artistic director of the festival, says the real crisis in Asian music is the traditional idea of the composer as not quite an individual.

he used both Western and Asian instruments to indicate that the boundaries between the two traditions have become less defined. The composition featured the choir and a boy's voice repeating, "I do not care what comes after, I have seen the dragons on the wind of morning."

Last month's nine-day Expo '78, formally known as the Fifth Asian Composers League Conference, drew more than 150 participants from both East and West. They have come from Australia, Britain, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Turkey and the United States.

Most of the Asians, for better or worse, acknowledged the influence of Western music and the need to shake off at least some of it.

"Now we are confronting Asian sentiment by using European techniques," Japanese composer Yoshiro Irino notes. "We are not abandoning European techniques totally, but we must cooperate to relate Asian music by using European techniques."

Filipino Jose Maceda says that like other Asian composers, he started out as an

"imitator." He adds: "I have overcome this conflict between the East and West through studies and time. We need more Asian composers who reflect upon the wisdom of Asia. We Asians don't understand our own culture yet because of the influence of modern technology."

His composition "Udlot Udlot," which employs bamboo sticks and simple village flutes, is designed for performance outdoors. Maceda says it reflects central motifs of Asian music — participation, simplicity and ritual orientation.

Somtow says he wasn't upset that most of the people who attended the "Gonggala III" performance turned out to be delegates, parents of the children in the choir and personal friends.

"After all the music is weird and weirdness can only be appreciated by a few," he says. "I'd rather have the attention of 200 people who know what I'm doing than 2,000 who have no idea what is going on."

Food Program Boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actor Eddie Albert and Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., joined forces Thursday to boost a federal nutritional program for infants and expectant mothers.

"My body is my merchandise; my inventory, and I take care of it," the gray-haired, muscular actor told a Senate hearing. "Like most actors and actresses, I believe in good nutrition and exercise."

He noted that protein is important in the development of the brain of fetuses and toddlers.

Shortages of protein and other nutrients in infants and the unborn could handicap them from the beginning, said Albert.

"It could deprive them of the right to become leaders in all professions," he said.

Mrs. Humphrey, the grandmother of 10, said she has introduced a bill to extend the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

WIC provides low income pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children under age five supplemental foods.

Her bill would authorize $650 million for the upcoming fiscal year, compared to $440 million this year. The administration has requested $535 million.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET INDEX

Market Shows Modest Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled to its third straight gain Thursday as traders looked ahead to next week's message from President Carter on the nation's economic problems.

The market value index at the American Stock Exchange passed a milestone of sorts during the day, punching through the 130 level for the first time since it was established in 1900 in August 1973.

The Dow Jones average of 30 big-name industrials settled for a more modest showing with a .87 advance to 763.95. That brought the average's rise for the past three days to 12.91 points.

Gainers outnumbered losers by slightly more than a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big volume remained very active at 27.36 million shares, against 27.26 million the day before.

Analysts said there wasn't any single striking news development to account for the market's strength.

But they said some traders seemed to be anticipating some significant policy developments when President Carter makes his speech on inflation and other economic problems next Tuesday.

Hunt Heir Runs Tight, Modest Energy Empire

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Hunt, son of eccentric Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt, lacks the flamboyance for which the Hunt family is famous. But he seems to have its instinct for making money.

RAY HUNT

Hunt runs about half the fortune left when his father died in November 1974, including the flag-ship of the Hunt financial empire, Hunt Oil Co. He won a reputation for being lucky in 1976 when Hunt Oil jumped at a chance to get in on drilling in the North Sea off Scotland and promptly struck a major pool.

"Given the choice between luck and intelligence, always take luck," Hunt said with a boyish grin.

He has large investments in cattle ranches at a time when beef prices are climbing because demand for meat has outstripped supply.

"The last several years have seen the liquidation of many breeding herds," he said in an interview. "We feel the next several years will be good for cattle-men."

He's also trying to drum up interest in his 1,000-room Hyatt Regency Hotel with a spherical revolving bar and restaurant atop a 50-story stem in downtown Dallas, part of a 50-acre urban renewal project called Reunion Park that Hunt and the city own. The hotel and restaurant open this month and Hunt says advance bookings are running higher than he had been hoping.

Unlike his father, who railed against government interference with business and ignored civic projects, Ray Hunt is boosting Dallas and the city's cooperation in redevelopment. But dollars and cents are not far below the surface when he talks about the hotel complex, which was expected to cost him $75 million but came to something less than that.

"We went into it to make money. It was a good economic investment," he said while in New York to promote the project.

Ray Hunt is quiet and unassuming. His father was renowned for his outspoken conservative politics and for pinch-penny habits that included carrying his lunch in a brown paper bag, walking several blocks to his office to avoid a 50-cent parking fee and turning off unneeded lights in his Dallas mansion—an outsized copy of George Washington's Mount Vernon.

The younger Hunt is not flashy either in the way he spends his money or tries to avoid spending it. He has said he wants to keep his family life "average despite the peculiar spelling of my last name."

He is known as earnest and unpretentious, living in an upper-middle-class house in North Dallas. He recently bought an Oldsmobile to replace his five-year-old Buick.

"It finally fell apart," he said. "It was like losing an old friend."

He also is a contrast to three older half-brothers, H.L.'s sons from his first marriage. Lamar Hunt is a key figure in professional sports, owning the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League and Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League. He is credited with naming the Super Bowl.

Herbert and Bunker Hunt are involved in the turbulent world of commodities speculation. Last year they got into a well-publicized court fight with the federal government over heavy speculation in soybean futures.

But Ray was H.L. Hunt's choice to administer his estate, a fortune once estimated at about $2 billion that sprang from a $5,000 inheritance. The heirs squabbled, and three years ago agreed to split the estate roughly in half. Ray kept Hunt Oil Co. while Lamar, Bunker and Herbert created a new company, Hunt Energy Corp.

Ray spent a year surveying his inherited empire, then hired top executives and streamlined it into a three-pronged enterprise controlled by Hunt Oil Co. His key operations are based on finding and pumping oil, as under his father. But they also have branched into real estate and agriculture—400,000 acres of ranch land in Texas, Montana and Wyoming, and, in the Rio Grande Valley, cotton, sugar cane and vegetable crops.

His real estate holdings include the hotel complex and 2,000 acres of industrial parkland near the Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

The size of the family fortune and exactly how it is deployed are closely guarded secrets. Hunt won't say how much his part of the Reunion project cost, revealing only that it was "significantly under" the $75 million that was budgeted. He won't say how many people work for his several companies, or the extent of his agricultural ventures. When pressed by a reporter, he replied: "More than modest but less than grand."

But Hunt does say his operation is small enough to have quick reflexes.

"The most important element we have going in any phase of our business, real-estate included, is the ability to act fast," he said. One example of that was the North Sea drilling, which was begun a week after Hunt bought up another company's share of the venture. Another instance was a fast handshake, which sealed a deal the same day it was offered, enabling Hunt to explore for oil on promising virgin rangeland in West Texas.

The key to being able to seize opportunity, Hunt said, is having managers good enough to make decisions without having to consult with several other people.

"If someone is available, then they check with him. But if he's not, they go ahead and make the decision. I hope to have competent enough people so the right decision will be made."

Now Gibraltar Savings is the largest in Texas.

A strong savings and loan is one of the safest places to keep your money.

Gibraltar is financial stability.

Gibraltar is America's first insured.

In 1934 Congress, under Franklin D. Roosevelt, agreed that savings plans should be insured against loss. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was formed and Gibraltar Savings was selected to become the first savings association in America to offer insured savings plans.

Gibraltar is only in Texas.

Gibraltar now has offices in and around Midland, Lubbock, Amarillo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and Corpus Christi. No other savings and loan serves so many Texans in so many areas of the state. Gibraltar is the largest in Texas.

Gibraltar is investing in Texas.

Gibraltar is supplying the necessary funds to construct new homes across the state. After construction, Gibraltar supplies the necessary funds to finance the purchase of these new homes. Gibraltar is investing over $1.75 billion in loans, creating jobs and improving the economy for all Texans. At Gibraltar, we're investing more into Texas than any other savings and loan in the state.

Leaders Gather To Okay Plan To Save Dollar

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Leaders of the nine Common market nations meet here Friday to endorse a plan by Britain, the United States and West Germany aimed at averting a new worldwide money and trade crisis.

Delegate sources said the five-point program calls for combined European action to strengthen the dollar and for richer nations to increase spending.

It also recommends energy conservation and research, fighting trade protectionism and the expansion of economies by an average of at least 4.5 percent a year. Economic expansion averaged 4.8 percent in the Common Market in 1976 but slipped to 1.9 percent last year.

Attending will be the heads of state or heads of government of the members, Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Denmark, Ireland, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

On the eve of the two-day conference U.S. envoy Robert Strauss, in charge of American efforts to promote world trade, outlined Washington's views to Danish Foreign Minister Knud B. Andersen. Denmark currently is the presiding country of the Common Market. The United States is not participating in the talks.

Subjects to be discussed informally include fighting terrorism and forming a united policy on problems in the Middle East, the Horn of Africa and white-ruled Rhodesia and South Africa.

The French want to discuss stiffer controls to prevent oil spills of the type that fouled the Brittany coast last month after the wreck of the tanker Amoco-Cadiz.

But money, trade and social matters will dominate the meeting. The leaders hope to agree on proposals to be placed before a summit conference in Bonn, West Germany, in mid-July when leaders of the seven leading industrial nations meet.

Participants in Bonn are to be President Carter, British Prime Minister James Callaghan, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, and Canadian, Italian and Japanese prime ministers Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Giulio Andreotti and Takeo Fukuda.

METEOR BELIEVED SEEN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials in Southern California communities received thousands of telephone calls Wednesday night from persons saying they had seen a meteor. The calls began about 7 p.m., authorities said. Witnesses from Lancaster, about 50 miles north of here, to San Diego, about 120 miles south of Los Angeles, reported seeing a bright object in the sky. There were some reports that the meteor had hit the ground near the Palos Verdes Peninsula just south of here, but no evidence of a meteor was found by police.
