Dissension Causes Miners To Sell Thriving Business

HYDE PARK, Vt. (AP) — Three years after the employees took over a failing asbestos mine it is a thriving business. But with prosperity came dissension and the miners are moving to turn it back to private ownership.

The Vermont Asbestos Group has been touted as a model employee-owned business since workers took over the Lowell mine three years ago.

MANOSH Average hourly wages jumped from $3.26 to $4.96 and the worker's stock rose in book value from $50 to $2,103 a share during a period when the stock market on the whole was listless.

Manosh had himself elected chairman of the board and president, removing David Winer, president for only six weeks and a strong supporter of employee ownership.

"It's the end — or soon will be — of employee ownership," said ousted director Richard Hamilton.

But many of the miners celebrated the election at a local tavern, convinced better working conditions will result.

It was a battle of personalities as well as philosophies, pitting Manosh against Winer. Despite his position, Winer was seen by many miners as the outsider. Winer arrived in 1976 as a consultant, leaving behind the presidency of Infrared Industries of Waltham, Mass. Manosh, a local man who seems more at home on a construction site than behind a desk, makes his living digging wells and pouring foundations.

"Howard's one of us — he's worked with dirt, with his hands, up from the bottom just like all of us," said miner Marcel Faucher.

But Duane Brown, who was on the board that guided the mine to worker ownership, disagreed. "I look around and I see a pack of vultures — vultures waiting to pick us apart," Brown said.

Winer argued for continued worker control.

"We've been very successful with worker ownership," Winer said at the annual meeting. "Maybe we've been too successful, and that's why we're in the position we're in today."

The employees and their friends took over the mine from GAF Corp. three years ago by buying between one and a hundred shares each for $50 a share. GAF wanted to close the mine because it did not think the venture was worth spending $1.3 million for federally required pollution control equipment.

After the employees bought the company, asbestos prices began to climb and the mine earned about $1 million a year. And the stock originally valued at $50 has since paid dividends totalling $144.

But Manosh appealed to the miners' growing sense of isolation from management. "The issue here is not employee ownership, but management and how well the company is run," he told the approximately 300 shareholders.

Manosh's earlier bid to buy the worker's stock was sidetracked by the company's board of directors. About 60 percent of the stock had been tendered to Manosh at $1,834 a share by a federal court halted the sale at the request of the board, which claimed that offer was too low.

Manosh dropped the offer two weeks ago, but began lobbying immediately to oust the board. At the meeting, Manosh succeeded in winning election — along with 13 supporters — to the 15-member board.

He said one of his first actions would be to clear the way for stock sales without board approval.

LETTER FROM MORO? — This is the latest letter, purportedly from former premier Aldo Moro, received in Rome, Milan and Turin this evening along with a message from his kidnappers. The message is typed and on the first page is displayed the Insignia of the Red Brigades. (AP Laserphoto)

Terrorists Release Message From Kidnapped Politician

ROME (AP) — Italian newspapers received on Monday an apparently authentic message from kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro calling on authorities again to trade jailed terrorists for his freedom.

The message also suggested that the United States and West Germany could be behind the government's tough "no deal" stance.

With a photo-copied message was a communique from the Red Brigades kidnapers in which they ruled out any secret negotiations and declared, "Nothing must be hidden from the people."

The notes were found in Rome, Milan, Turin and Genoa after anonymous calls to newspapers and a news agency. The kidnapers used the same technique in releasing four other messages since the 31-year-old political leader was seized March 16 by gunmen who killed his five bodyguards.

After a preliminary examination, experts said the eight-page statement appeared to be in Moro's handwriting.

It called for "reasonable flexibility" to consider a deal under which he would gain freedom in an "exchange of political prisoners." Members of the Marxist Red Brigades consider themselves "political prisoners" when arrested.

The message attributed to Moro asked: "Is there maybe an American and German indication in holding fast against me?"

A preceding phrase said, "In my observations there is nothing personal but I am driven by the state of necessity."

Moro had suggested an exchange for jailed terrorists in an earlier message, but Premier Giulio Andreotti's Christian Democrat government has pledged not to make any deal with kidnapers. Moro, a Christian Democrat, served as premier five times.

Christian Democrat Party leaders met to discuss the latest messages and issued a statement saying Moro was undergoing "a test physically and psychologically unbearable." It added: "The so-called testimony written in the inhuman conditions which we have often underlined ... is more painful evidence of this situation."

The Red Brigades three-page typewritten communique said Moro's statement was written under questioning at a "people's trial."

Moro's wife, Eleonora, was reported to have received a letter from her husband Saturday night, touching off speculation the family was engaged in secret negotiations to win his release. But the Red Brigades communique denied this, saying: "The position of our organization has always been and remains: No secret negotiations. Nothing must be hidden from the people."

The communique was entitled "The Trial of Aldo Moro" and also said the questioning of the ex-premier "helps us to clarify the anti-proletarian lines, the bloody and terrorist plots that have unfolded in our country ... to identify precisely the responsibilities of the various Christian Democrat bosses, their complexities and their international protectors."

A massive nationwide manhunt for Moro and his abductors has failed to achieve any significant breakthrough in the case.

Guilty Plea Solves Carter Threat Case

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A man accused of threatening to kill President Carter pleaded guilty in federal court Monday to a misdemeanor charge of interfering with Secret Service agents.

Hugh E. Nevins, 38, of Tonawanda, entered the plea on the reduced charge in U.S. District Court and was freed on $25,000 bail for sentencing April 24.

The prosecution said Nevins remarked in a restaurant Feb. 7 that he would kill Carter or have him killed if he didn't change the way he was running the country.

Murder Plea Brings 20 Years

A Lubbock man received a 20-year prison term Monday after pleading guilty to murder.

The homicide stemmed from an argument over the rules of a pool game. Pleading guilty to murder was Kirby Vance Jones, 32, of 1506 E. 24th St. He was assessed the prison term by Dist. Judge Denizl Bevers on the recommendation of the Criminal District Attorney's office.

Jones admitted murdering Terry Ray Sanders, 24, of 1320 E. Stanford St., Sept. 27, 1975.

The victim was shot at 2309 Elm Ave. about 7:55 a.m. and died later that morning at a local hospital.

According to stipulated testimony from witness Gary Lee Neal, Sanders and another man got into an argument over the rules of a pool game. Neal said in the testimony that the man left the place and returned a short time later with a shotgun.

Other stipulated testimony introduced into evidence by Asst. Dist. Atty. Cindy Miller identified Jones as the man with the shotgun.

Panel Receives Earful On Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent panel starting a major review of Social Security got an earful of complaints when it asked for public comments about the system.

"I think it stinks. I have no choice in the matter whatsoever. I gotta pay you all my working life — then I gotta take what you say I can have for what few years, if any, that I live after I'm no longer able to work," wrote one man.

Georgia City Besieged By Strangler

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Homeowners are changing their locks, putting up burglar bars and installing alarm systems, but there has been no marked increase in houses for sale in the area where six elderly women have been strangled since last fall, a realtor says. "Sometimes the locksmiths would have 30 calls a day out here," realtor Murray Calhoun said Monday. "There are a lot of fine homes here, but there are a lot of modest ones, too," Calhoun said of the 15-square block area in the core of the old city. Most of the houses range in the $30,000 range, and those that do go up for sale — including the houses of some of the victims — are being purchased by young couples, he said.

It has been 58 days — Feb. 12 — since the body of the latest victim was found. The first of the six stranglings was found Sept. 16 and the other slayings occurred on Sept. 25, Oct. 21, Oct. 25 and Dec. 28.

"The fear here is very real," said Horace Waters, an agent of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation. "No one is looking for sympathy or pity."

Taking a piece of paper, Waters drew a large circle and a smaller one inside it. "Now here, we have where the strangler works," he said, pointing to the smaller circle, "and the people inside it are genuinely scared to death."

"Now, out here is the rest of Columbus," he said, pointing to the larger circle. "They're scared, too, you understand, but there's some fascination and curiosity mixed in with it. That's just the way it is when a psychopath is on the loose. Everybody wants to watch the show."

Investigators have talked with behavioral scientists, and have come up with a possible profile of the killer.

But what is missing from everyone's description is a motive — and why the strangler's operations are limited to the Wynnton Road section.

"That's the key," said Waters. "You give us a motive, and we'll make an arrest within two weeks."

Southern Firefighting Efforts Aided By Rains

By The Associated Press Southern firefighters pitted against arson, dry weather and high winds got a break Monday as scattered showers dampened dry timber. But officials agreed that "a good, solid" rain was needed to prevent new fire outbreaks. "One good rain, one really good rain, would probably clear everything up for us," said Max Young, a Tennessee forester.

In South Carolina, a blaze that blackened 2,600 acres in Sumter National Forest was "for all intents and purposes" under control Monday, but forestry officials warned that the fire would not be officially under control until after a cold front accompanied by lightning passed through the area.

"If lightning were to strike one of those pine trees right now — one that fire has already killed the needles on — it would throw fire a quarter of a mile," said John Connell of the U.S. Forest Service.

The South Carolina fire, which caused an estimated $5.4 million in damage, began six days ago.

In Alabama, where more than 119,000 acres of timberland has burned since March 29, state foresters said they were breathing a little easier Monday after rain in some parts of the state caused a "noticeable drop" in the number of blazes.

But Frank Sego, an Alabama forestry commission spokesman, warned that it would take "a good, solid, continuing rain, an inch or inch and a half" to minimize the possibility of a new outbreak of fires.

Dry conditions have plagued the South for about a month.

mentioned the possibility of showers and thundershowers, but weather officials were not predicting the kind of continuous rain that foresters say is needed.

Jim Sorenson of the U.S. Forest Service said scattered showers Sunday helped fire crews "even if they provided little real help in a way of long-time hazard reduction."

But, Sorenson warned, "there is still enough fire danger in most places to require continued caution."

Reporter Subpoenaed In Ector County Jail Death Probe

ODESSA (AP) — A San Angelo Standard-Times reporter was subpoenaed Monday to appear before a grand jury and reveal his sources on stories he wrote about the death of Mexican-American prisoner in the Ector County Jail.

Reporter Richard Orr was served with a subpoena Monday for the grand jury session later that day. The grand jury was called to investigate events surrounding the death of Larry Lozano last Jan. 22.

Ector County District Attorney John Green said if Orr refused to reveal his sources he will seek to have him jailed for contempt of court.

Lawyers for the newspaper sought to have the subpoena quashed.

Orr already was ordered to appear before a justice of the peace inquest into the Lozano death when he received a subpoena for the grand jury.

Green said the grand jury, which was called last week, would discuss attending the inquest to prevent a possible repetition of testimony.

In an unusual closed door session Monday, Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpee refused to quash a subpoena ordering Orr to produce notes and tape recordings he used to write stories on the death of Lozano.

Lawyers for the newspaper had asked Lumpee to quash the subpoena, challenging Lumpee's jurisdiction and contending Orr's notes amounted to "hearsay" since none of the inmates interviewed was in the jail when Lozano died.

COMPLETE STOCKS LIST BY SECTOR, BY EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) — A late surge of buying pushed stock prices ahead for the fifth straight session Monday as Wall Street awaited President Carter's message on inflation and other economic problems.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which showed little change for the day as late afternoon, was up 4.07 at 773.65 by the close.

That extended the average's gain for the past five trading days to 22.61 points.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Charles Jensen at Merkin Co. said hopes for a steeper showing by the dollar seemed to be working in the market's favor.

There also seems to be some feeling of confidence, growing out of last week's performance by the market, that carried through the weekend," Jensen said.

Wall Street meanwhile continued to look ahead to President Carter's scheduled speech Tuesday on inflation and other economic problems.

Houston Restaurant-Goers Take To Taco Queen

HOUSTON (AP) — Not many gamblers in this oil-rich city of high rollers would have put their money on a widow with five children to support on the earnings of a tortilla and pizza dough factory in Houston's eastside Mexican-American barrio.

And when Ninfa Laurenzo opened a 10-table restaurant in front of her tortilla factory on Navigation Street in 1973, she did it because she "just couldn't make ends meet any other way."

In four years, the ends have met, the original restaurant has expanded and three more have opened at other locations in the city.

Black billboards with brilliantly colored guacamayas and two words — Gracias, Ninfa's — decorate streets and freeways. They are Mrs. Laurenzo's way of combining thanks and advertising for her multi-million dollar business.

If Ninfa Rodriguez — born and raised among 11 brothers and sisters in the South Texas town of Harlingen — had been able to stand the cold in Providence, R.I., Houstonians may never have sunk their teeth into a taco al carbon, the house specialty consisting of a soft flour tortilla wrapped around pieces of charcoal barbecued pork and beef.

She met and married Dominick T. Laurenzo, a MIT engineering graduate of Italian background, while visiting her twin sister in Providence. But one day she fainted from the cold.

"We saw an article in the paper — this was in 1948 — saying that Houston was the fastest growing city in the country. So even though we had no idea what we would do there, we said 'let's go,'" she said.

Although both Laurenzos had professional degrees — hers is in teaching — they decided to open a tortilla and pizza dough factory in the barrio.

"My husband was a beautiful human being who could have gone into engineering. But he preferred to stay in the barrio and help the kids," Mrs. Laurenzo said.

Laurenzo died suddenly in 1969. The tortilla and pizza dough business became very competitive and profits shrank. After struggling on a few more years and putting several children through college, Ninfa opened her restaurant as a last resort.

Ninfa's Tacos Al Carbon is now a family-owned and operated corporation. Twin sister Pilar Di Meo works in the main office while her son, Steve, is personnel manager for the 500 employees. Ninfa's four sons and daughter all manage parts of the business.

"My son Jack is a great cook. We hold cooking classes once a week for the 60 people who work in our kitchens," she said. "Although we've expanded, we make everything in small quantities so it will be fresh and good."

Daughter Phyllis Mandola runs the catering side of the business which has served as many as 2,000 people and as few as two. They were a pleasantly surprised Houston couple returning from a honeymoon in New Orleans.

The mainstays of Ninfa's menu are nachos (tortillas with refried beans, melted cheese and jalapeno peppers), chalupas (corn tortillas with beans, cheese and beef), assorted enchiladas and chili con queso (chili with cheese). Tacos al carbon — a Mexico City specialty — are the piece de resistance.

"We were the first to serve tacos al carbon in Texas and also the first to use cilantro (coriander leaves) which is so important in Mexican sauces," Mrs. Laurenzo said.

Phyllis said Ninfa's food is "Mexico City style" — not Tex-Mex, the term used to describe the cuisine that has resulted from the long simmering of Anglo-Mexican cultures in the Lone Star State.

In a city rapidly filling with franchise formula restaurants, Ninfa's stands out for its authenticity, red tile floors, painted straw-bottom chairs and potent Margaritas.

"When we first thought to move over to the West Side, people told us we wouldn't make it," Mrs. Laurenzo said.

TAX SUPPORTED SEX CHANGES

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Medicaid program has paid for sex change operations of two men who met requirements that are "fair, equitable and that protect the public dollar," says the director of the program.

(The West Side is the new, expanding area of town full of apartment complexes and town houses.) They thought we couldn't make it out of the barrio."

Mrs. Laurenzo, who was recently named to the interim Houston Metropolitan Transit Authority Board charged with formulating a transit plan for the metropolitan area, paused when asked about plans for expansion.

"This is a family operation. The family's all here in Houston. God has been good to me and helped me keep my family intact. Will we expand? Si Dios quiere."

City Commissioners View Jail Plans, Computer System

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock County Commissioners Monday approved plans for a new county jail and accepted lease-purchase bids for a county computer system costing $519,605 over five years.
The architectural-engineering firm of Maeker and Stephens will take the blueprints to Austin for consideration Friday by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.
"I really don't expect any problems with them, but I would be a little surprised if they didn't ask us to do something," Arnold Maeker told the commissioners at the end of his 2 1/2-hour afternoon presentation.
Estimates prior to the letting of bids, which is expected to take place in May, have been that the jail complex may cost about $4 million.
The plans are for it to house 270 inmates in three cellblock-like areas with a 90-prisoner capacity in each area.
Covering about 58,000 square feet in a one-level complex east of the existing county jail, it will be further broken down into 45-man units of 16 single cells, two six-man cells and two eight-man cells with six day rooms for the unit.
Maeker and Edwin Stephens offered the basic plans along with bidding alternatives including the deletion of building the jail to make possible the addition of a second floor in the future.
The alternatives are included to give the commissioners options to hold down the cost if the overall cost is more than they think the county can afford.
Sheriff C.H. Blanchard and Criminal Dist. Atty. Alton Griffin attended the meeting with County Judge Rod Shaw and Commissioners Coy Biggs, Alton Brazell, Jim Lancaster and Edgar Chance.
Monday morning, the commissioners awarded the computer system contracts to IteI Corp. to install an IBM 370/125 256K system and to IBM for maintenance and software.
Work already has begun on the county data processing department on the courthouse fourth floor, and the "hardware" part of the system is scheduled to be installed between July 15 and Aug. 15 to be used by the tax assessor-collector this fall.
"We've been talking about this for 20 years," County Judge Rod Shaw said in a conversation after the unanimous vote for approval. "But we didn't see the need for an in-house system."
John Ryan, development coordinator at the Texas Tech University Medical School, chaired a nine-member advisory committee the commissioners appointed last year when they decided an in-house system was needed.
William McCullough, county data processing director and ex-officio member of the committee, read a report and recommendation for the IteI and IBM bids.
County Auditor Dale Gallimore, the other ex-officio member, said in a cost analysis of the project that a lease-purchase would be $40,550 more expensive than a straight cash purchase in cash outlay over the five years it will take to pay off the system. But he said a lease-purchase arrangement will save $50,000 in interest.
Ryan and committee member Norman Lyons of the Tech business administration department said after the morning session of the commissioners that one consideration was to hold down conversion cost of the county ad valorem "tax package" as it has been being handled by outside computer firms.
With the new system, they explained, it will not be necessary to convert the package into a completely different computer "language."
Bids were considered from 10 corporations, McCullough said.
The other finalist was Computer Marketers International (CMI) with an IBM System/370 Model 135 240K, which would have offered more expansion capability but would have cost $603,650.
In other business, the commissioners approved the purchase of three downtown lots for $15,000 each to be converted into parking lots.
The lots on the east side of the 1200-block of Avenue H were owned by Lubbock attorney Bill Wischkaemper.
Budget amendments approved this morning included $90,000 to purchase land now and in the future for parking lots.

Tech Terrace Solutions Okayed

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Members of the Citizens Traffic Commission will try two temporary solutions to the traffic problem at Tech Terrace Park on weekends before deciding on a permanent solution during their regular May meeting.

Commission members, city staff personnel, and representatives of the neighborhood agreed Monday that several temporary solutions must be tried before the commission can arrive at a permanent decision on the traffic problem. The action came during a special commission meeting.

Representatives of the Tech Terrace Park neighborhood appeared before the commission last week requesting the commission's help on traffic problems in their neighborhood during the spring and fall weekends.

The commission voted to place temporary cul-de-sacs at 23rd and 25th streets intersecting Gary Avenue for the next two weekends.

Another temporary solution proposed by Dr. Martin Gundersen will be tried the following two weekends. He proposed no turns off Flint Avenue into the park area on 23rd, 24th and 25th streets, and making 23rd, 24th and 25th streets one-way thoroughfares west of the park area.

Gundersen and Tom Sawyer, representatives of the neighborhood, said they felt the residents would not object to waiting another month for a permanent decision on the traffic problem, as long as the commission shows that it is trying to find a permanent solution.

Staff members will mail results of the two temporary solutions to the commission members to study before the regular May meeting, at which time a decision will be recommended to the City Council.
City information officer Vaughn Hendrie and Maj. Carroll Bartley of the Lubbock Police Department both agreed that the temporary solution tried last weekend did not remedy the problem.

During that period, traffic flow was restricted on the park's west side to a one-way direction. A policeman was stationed on Gary Avenue north of 24th Street and north of 25th Street to direct traffic away from the park's west side and onto Indiana Avenue.

Hendrie said most of the cars simply pulled into driveways along the thoroughfares, backed up and went around the same route again. He added that many cars attempted to make U-turns in front of the policemen stationed at the barriers last weekend.

Bill McDaniel of the city's traffic and engineering department said law enforcement and education of the public on a traffic flow plan must be included in a permanent solution.

During the meeting Monday, the commission also voted to recommend to the city council installation of a four-way stop sign at 55th Street and Wayne Avenue. Western Hills Baptist Academy requested the sign because more than 260 children cross the intersection a day at its facilities.

Makeup Date Established For Schools

May 26 has been designated a day of instruction for the Lubbock Independent School District. It will serve as the makeup date for classes that were dismissed Feb. 17 because of inclement weather. It will also be the new date for the final day of instruction this school year.

Elementary school students will pick up their grade reports on Saturday, May 27 as previously scheduled.

Quarter examinations for students in grades seven through eleven are rescheduled for May 25 and 26.

Seniors will have their graduation exercise the same dates as originally planned, but there are some changes of their end-of-year activities. Final examinations for seniors will now be May 22, and check-out activities are changed to May 23. A new date of May 24 is reserved for individual school graduation rehearsals.

Commencement exercises are set for Estacado and Monterey on May 25, for Coronado and Dunbar on May 26, and for Lubbock High on May 27. A combined commencement sermon for the five schools will be Sunday, May 21.

The end-of-year schedule for adult classes will be the same as originally planned.

Candidate Pays Own Expenses

John Thomas Henderson is running an unusual campaign in this year of big money elections — he's paying his own expenses in his campaign for Railroad Commissioner.

When he told some friends he was thinking of running for the commission, he was told he'd have to raise about $300,000. He decided to pay the $1,500 filing fee and campaign from his car, driving around the state and meeting people. HENDERSON

There are to be no Henderson media blitzes.
"I can't possibly think of high-priced radio or TV or billboards," he said.

The 71-year-old former businessman has been a volunteer worker for the last two years in Austin, at the adult probation department there.

He said that while working there he received and overheard many complaints about the performance of the commission, and decided to run for office.

The only promise he's making is to keep "the door open" if he's elected, he said.
If he gets elected, Henderson said, he will try to gather around him "the best minds available for the subjects at hand."

Henderson said the only expenses he's incurring are the expenses of driving around the state; he says his wife is his secretary and his home is his office.

He's strongly against candidates for the commission taking large contributions from the people the commission is supposed to regulate, he said. Using his own money makes him "free," he added.

Doctors Point Out Need For Proper Ventilation

CHICAGO (AP) — Home insulation and other fuel-saving measures may have contributed to an increasing number of cases of carbon monoxide poisoning, two Baltimore physicians say.

Twelve persons suffered poisoning and three died in three instances of carbon monoxide poisoning during two winter seasons, the doctors report in the April 14 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Drs. James S. Kelley and Gregory J. Sophocleus of the Department of Ophthalmology at the Greater Baltimore Medical Center said, "While there is a natural tendency toward 'air-tight' insulation of homes, it is clear that adequate flow of air must be provided for complete ventilation of the heating element."

Lebanese Set Refugee Return

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese government announced a mass repatriation of refugees to south Lebanon will begin Tuesday timed to coincide with the first stage of a partial pullback by the Israeli invaders.

The plan to send Lebanese refugees back is a "test of Israel's real intentions on how serious the withdrawal will be," official Lebanese radio said Monday.

It added that Lebanon was sticking to its position, outlined over the weekend by Prime Minister Selim el Hoss, that it "will settle for nothing short of a quick, total withdrawal."

About 220,000 Palestinians and Lebanese fled their homes after Israeli troops occupied 500 square miles of south Lebanon in their drive against Palestinian guerrilla positions that began March 15. An estimated 14,000 Lebanese and 40,000 Palestinian civilians have returned on their own, despite a lack of electricity and water.

Refugees remaining in Beirut and the coastal town of Sidon are to be given a month's supply of food to encourage their return to the south. The Lebanese government regards their presence in those overcrowded cities as a potential source of serious unrest.

The broadcast said the first convoy of returning refugees would leave Sidon, 25 miles south of this capital, Tuesday morning in 20 buses and trucks each accompanied by an International Red Cross representative and a Lebanese civil defense corpsman.

The convoy will carry 14 families back to the port city of Tyre and five to the nearby village of Bourj el Chemali, both policed by French troops of the U.N. peacekeeping force. A Lebanese government spokesman reported that another convoy would set out from Beirut, possibly to the central sector of the invaded salient. He said the Lebanese had held no prior consultations with Israel on the resettlement.

Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut and 12 miles north of the Israeli frontier, is the only enclave south of the Litani River held by guerrillas and their Lebanese Moslem allies. The river, which zigzags between 12 and 18 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border, marks the limit of the Israeli advance.

Israel has announced plans to withdraw its troops from almost one-fourth of the occupied zone in a two-stage operation, Tuesday and Friday, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim reportedly told Prime Minister Menachem Begin over the weekend that the United Nations wanted more — a fast, full pullout.

U.N. sources in Beirut said all fronts were quiet Monday in south Lebanon, but intermittent gunfire broke out on the southeastern outskirts of Beirut for the second straight day.

Reporters said leftist Moslem and right-wing Christian militiamen exchanged sniper fire between the poor residential quarters of Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh. Police sources said two persons were killed.

The previous evening, fighting between rival militiamen in the same area reportedly killed five persons and wounded five. The clashes apparently arose from a dispute that led to a Christian youth's death.

The sectarian gun battle was reminiscent of the 1975-76 civil war. Syrian-dominated Arab peacekeeping forces, who entered Lebanon to end the war, quelled Sunday's clashes and announced Monday that they would "shoot to kill" any armed person in the embattled neighborhoods.

In Cairo, meanwhile, Jordan submitted to Egypt a "working paper" to coordinate Arab political and military action in view of Israel's occupation of south Lebanon and the deadlock in peace negotiations.

The paper, intended to mend the intra-Arab split over Egypt's direct negotiations with Israel, also calls for an Arab summit, Jordanian Foreign Minister Hassan Ibrahim said after presenting the document. He said copies of the plan are being sent to all Arab governments.

Daniel Campaigns For Lubbock Votes

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Atty. Gen. John Hill is "on the spot" because of a suit challenging the constitutionality of the state's property tax system, Democratic attorney general candidate Daniel Jr. said here Monday.

However, Daniel said he doesn't know what he would do if he were in Hill's shoes now.

Daniel, 36, acknowledged there are times that the state's chief lawyer must uphold state law regardless of his philosophical feelings about it.

For example, the three-term state representative said he would have upheld the state's death penalty law in court as Hill did.

But Daniel, a former Speaker of the Texas house, said he was unsure what his position would be regarding the property tax suit.

The suit, filed by state Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange, challenges the "inequitable" manner property taxes are collected in Texas.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has said he supports the aims of the suit and has urged Hill not to fight the litigation.

Daniel said he also supports Peveto's aims in filing suit and supports property tax reform efforts in Texas.

"It puts Hill on the spot," Daniel said. "I hope he comes up with a way to constitutionally bring about property tax reform."

Daniel said he could not say what his position on the suit would be because "I haven't reviewed the alternatives the attorney general has."

The Liberty attorney said polls show he is leading his Democratic opponent, former Texas Secretary of State Mark White, by 12-16 percent.

He said the apparent lead has made it difficult to arouse any interest in the race for attorney general, even though the officeholder is responsible for "interpreting, upholding and enforcing" the laws of the state 365 days a year.

Daniel pledged, if elected, to take action to protect consumers and the environment, to set an example in civil rights and to "see the taxes owed in the Hughes case come into the state."

The next attorney general will be called upon to "advise the legislature on public school finance," Daniel said.

While in Lubbock Monday, Daniel announced a list of 32 supporters who will serve on his Lubbock County Steering committee.

Included on the list are City Council members Carolyn Jordan and Bill McAlister.

"I am proud to have such a distinguished group of community leaders serving on my Lubbock County campaign steering committee," he said.

Daniel also named Harold Phelan, Hockley county attorney, the campaign chairman in that county, and Jimmy Pigg, a John Deere employee, the campaign chairman for Terry County while campaigning in those counties Monday.

Following a public reception Monday afternoon, Daniel met with Mexican-American leaders at a reception and visited leaders of Black church leaders Monday night.

Groups Disclose Endorsements

State Sen. Kent Hance has received the endorsement of the Texas Educators Political Action Committee in his race for U.S. Congress.

Russell Owen Jr. of Dallas, chairman of the 37-member TEPAC board of trustees, said the endorsement list is an indicator of "friends of education" candidates.

The committee, the political arm of the Texas State Teachers Association, endorsed 115 candidates, including Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill.

Tired Backpackers Steal Greyhound

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities said eight men, apparently weary of walking with packs on their backs, stole a $60,000 Greyhound Bus line vehicle but didn't get far because they forgot to release the emergency brakes.

After a drive of the few blocks, the emergency brake began to spark and the bus caught fire and the driver and passengers raced off into the darkness.

John Sheffield, assistant district manager for the buslines, said the vehicle can be started by turning a series of switches and that a key is not needed.

Owen said TEPAC plans to make a $10,000 contribution to the Hill campaign fund but emphasized the money comes from voluntary contributions of individual teachers.

No TEPAC endorsements were made in the race for state senate from the 28th District or in either of the Lubbock races for state house of representatives.

The Texans in Nursing Coalition for Action in Politics (TexN-CAP) also endorsed candidates recently and threw their support behind state Rep. Froy Salinas' bid for re-election from District 75-B and the campaign effort of Democrat Xen Oden to become the District 75-A state representative.

TexN-CAP is the political action arm of the Texas Nurses Association.

Top Soviet Citizen Avoiding U.N. Job

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arkady N. Shevchenko, the highest ranking Soviet citizen employed by the United Nations, is staying away from his job because of "differences with his government," a U.N. spokesman said Monday.

Shevchenko, a Ukrainian, is undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs. There was speculation he had asked for asylum in the United States.

Shevchenko is a salaried employee of the United Nations and is not a member of the Soviet government's U.N. mission.

An official at the U.S. mission said Shevchenko had not called there.

The U.N. spokesman, Francois Giuliani, gave reporters the following statement and refused to accept questions:

"Mr. Shevchenko has informed the secretary-general that he is absenting himself from the office and in this connection he mentioned differences with his government."

Spokesperson Views Wilderness Bill

Pam Rich, a spokesperson for the national Alaska Coalition in Washington, D.C., will speak during a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Mahon Library Community Room on the Alaska National Interests Lands Bill.

The bill, currently pending before Congress, concerns the preservation of some of the last wilderness lands in Alaska and the United States. The bill is opposed by oil and gas companies, land developers, mining concerns, the timber industry, and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce who do not wish any environmental restrictions on the federally owned lands.

The bill would designate land already owned by the federal government into national parks, monuments, wildlife refuges and wild and scenic rivers areas.

The meeting will include a one-hour slide show, a speech by Miss Rich and a question-and-answers session.
