

Rockettes Kick High In Possibly Final Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rockettes high-kicked for a packed house of 6,200 Radio City Music Hall supporters Wednesday on what could be their last day unless state and music hall officials seal an agreement to save the showplace.

Closing notices were still up for the financially ailing theater, but state officials were optimistic that Wednesday night's performance of the Easter stage show would not be the last.

"Within hours or certainly a couple days, we will announce our plan to save Radio City Music Hall, and make it a permanent and increased tourist attraction in the city," Gov. Hugh Carey told Chamber of Commerce members at a Wednesday luncheon.

The leggy Rockettes performed all day Wednesday to packed houses that gave them standing ovations for their precision kicking — a 45-year tradition at the art deco theater.

The final curtain fell at 10:30 p.m. and the troupe planned an after-hours party either to celebrate or mourn.

An agreement in principle to save the hall reportedly had been reached with Rockefeller Center Inc., which owns the theater, but a formal announcement was delayed because officials feared it might fall through during the contract and lease-writing stage.

"Everybody's pretty sanguine about an early agreement," said a Carey spokesman. "The general structure's there. But the lease and contracts have yet to be signed and there could be problems."

The state Urban Development Corp. Wednesday was to consider a plan under which it would run the theater as a non-profit subsidiary.

Under the plan, a 20-story office tower would be built over the theater, and rents would be used to subsidize entertainment operations. An unsalaried consortium of top entertainment people would take over management of the musical stage shows, the Music Hall Symphony Orchestra and the family fare movies.

Even if an agreement is reached, officials warned that the theater — the world's largest indoor facility — could go dark for a period of time during a reorganization.

Rockette Center President Alton G. Marshall announced earlier this year that the music hall would be closed because it suffered a $2.3 million loss in 1977 and expects to lose $3.5 million this year.

House Rejects Farm Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House killed a one-year emergency aid bill for grain and cotton growers Wednesday despite the presence of protesting farmers who packed the gallery.

The vote was 268-150. (Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock voted for the bill.)

President Carter had promised to veto the measure as an unwarranted and substantial increase in food prices and the federal budget deficit.

Carter, speaking at the White House shortly after the House vote, applauded the death of the legislation. He said the defeat "is good for the farmers of the United States and it is very good for consumers."

Heavily indebted grain farmers, crunched by two years of falling prices and rising costs until this past fall, face financial disaster this season if more aid is not forthcoming quickly, he said.

Carter maintains that his actions under new farm policy enacted six months ago and pending special credit legislation are enough to pull them through.

Dole said the cost estimates of the bill from the White House and the Congressional Budget Office were "vague and unreasonable... scare stories."

Carter's anti-inflation stance "is a smoke screen... being used to hide the president's lack of concern about the

Bilingual Education Plans To Be Hiked

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IN RESPONSE to criticism by federal officials, the Lubbock Independent School District will survey all Spanish-surnamed students next year and provide extra help at every level for children of limited English-speaking ability.

Those and other efforts are detailed in the district's new "plan for bilingual education," a document Superintendent Ed Irons hopes will satisfy alleged inadequacies cited by the U.S. Office for Civil Rights.

In the plan, the school system proposes to improve procedures for identifying pupils deficient in English language skills and for determining the amount and kind of help they need.

All Schools Included

Also, the district would make sure that necessary services are available in every school — not just those schools with formal bilingual programs.

"Really and truly, we've been doing these things all along. But we haven't had them down on paper in the form that the federal people wanted," said Mary Greder, the school district's bilingual specialist.

New Screening Procedures

Irons said the most important changes in the bilingual plan are the new screening procedures and the designation of specific teachers in junior, and senior

Soviet U.N. Diplomat May Quit

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arkady N. Shevchenko, top Soviet U.N. employee in hiding for a week, has said he will quit his job under certain conditions, a U.N. spokesman said Wednesday.

Sources said he was seeking assurances he could stay in the United States.

The spokesman, Francois Giuliani, said Shevchenko indicated he would resign "once a number of points have been clarified."

The Russian last Wednesday disappeared from his $86,000-a-year post as undersecretary general for political and Security Council affairs. His government says it wants him fired, and wants him back.

International civil servants are entitled to remain in a host country as long as they maintain their employment. There have been conflicting reports whether Shevchenko plans to seek political asylum.

The U.N. sources said he also wanted to get back the money he has paid toward a U.N. pension, for which he is not yet eligible.

A U.N. statement Monday said the 47-year-old Russian left his job because of

More Rain, Winds Pound Flood Area

A-J News Services

NEAR GALE-force winds, more rain and up to three inches of snow hampered rescue and cleanup efforts in North Dakota's water-logged Red River Valley Wednesday, forcing even more families outside flooded areas to move on rather than wait for the rising waters.

A Grand Forks evacuation official said moving families out of the danger area now would be "very difficult" because of four-foot waves, ice and snow whipped by 65-mph winds.

Dikes Threatened

The National Weather Service warned that such waves could weaken dikes along the river, and late Wednesday volunteers already were reinforcing one dam already sagging from the overflow.

Some residents of Grand Forks and its sister city of East Grand Forks, Minn., had gone days without power and telephone service, officials said. Military units were evacuating some families near those towns Wednesday, but others could not be reached.

Cold winds accompanied by snow blasted parts of the Northern Plains, and nearly two inches of snow fell in New Hampshire.

Coastal Rainfall Heavy

Rainfall along the Texas coast left some cities there with almost two inches of moisture, but amounts generally were closer to one inch. The Rio Grande City reported 2.05 inches at 6 p.m.

There was plenty of sunshine in some parts of the nation, though, with sunny to mostly sunny skies stretching from parts of Northern California through the Great Basin to the Central Rockies.

Sunshine on the South Plains sent temperatures warming back to 80 degrees for

Compromise Seen On Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration kept the pressure on Congress Wednesday to accept a proposed White House compromise on natural gas pricing. But Republican energy conferees said the president told them he'll take anything he can get.

Key House-Senate energy negotiators left a three-hour White House bargaining session with Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger without reaching agreement on an administration plan designed to rescue Carter's energy bill.

But they expressed optimism that one eventually would be reached as a result of the administration's direct intervention — although possibly not this week.

Another White House negotiating session was set for early today on the new compromise proposal, which includes a provision to lift price controls from newly found natural gas by April 30, 1985.

This is a middle ground between dates advocated previously by bargainers for each side.

The administration plan would go along with a Senate-proposed formula for increasing the regulated price of gas between now and the date of deregulation — allowing yearly price boosts equal to the rate of inflation plus between 3.5 percent and 4.5 percent.

In exchange for that concession, the White House is asking the Senate to accept the House proposal on "incremental pricing," a system designed to make industries and not homeowners bear the initial burden of higher gas costs under deregulation.

"We're going to stay right with it," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., leader of the Senate conferees. However, he added: "Even in the White House, things don't move much faster than in the Capitol." Conferees have been at loggerheads on the gas-pricing issue since early December.

In a separate session, Carter met Wednesday with Republican House members of the energy conference com-

Panama Treaty Change Refused By DeConcini

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Dennis DeConcini, suddenly the key figure in the Panama Canal debate, said Wednesday he could not accept a proposed administration formula for modifying his controversial amendment to the first canal treaty.

The Arizona Democrat said during a one-hour meeting with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher the administration suggested the Senate could pass a separate resolution, applicable to both Panama Canal treaties, in which the United States would promise not to intervene in Panama.

DeConcini's amendment to the first treaty grants the United States the right to use military force to keep the Panama Canal running in the face of a strike or work slowdown.

Panama has interpreted the amendment as giving the United States unlimited rights to intervene in Panama's domestic affairs. Leaders have said it infringes on Panamanian sovereignty and is unacceptable.

DeConcini is expected to meet with President Carter to discuss his position, but an aide said no time had been scheduled in order to give the senator a chance to consider his talks with Christopher.

Despite the amendment crisis, bipartisan leaders predicted the pacts would survive and win final ratification next Tuesday.

DeConcini said his amendment does not use the word "intervention" and he sees need to change it.

He countered administration arguments, he said, by suggesting the president might issue a presidential declaration forswearing intervention.

But Christopher said it was important to Panama to get the Senate to adopt a modification.

DeConcini said he would have to see some "overpowering evidence" for him to change his mind.

He said he preferred the Senate to pass the second treaty with his proposed amendment "and let the Panamanians react according to their constitutional manner."

DeConcini said administration officials had explained to him that he might go down in history as the man who killed the Panama canal treaties. He added: "I like to think that I am a reasonable man who does not have a closed mind" — leaving open the slight possibility he might compromise later.

The former Arizona prosecutor said he having no trouble standing up to pressure from the administration and Senate colleagues. "A first degree murder charge is

Bar Siege Ended At Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — An apparent robbery attempt that turned into a 4½-hour siege at a Las Vegas bar ended with the surrender of a man after he released the eight persons he had held hostage.

The man, who was not identified, gave up after lengthy negotiations with police and the Rev. Jesse Wesley of Bethel Baptist Church.

"We told him that we love him, that God loves him and that the people here weren't going to hurt him," Wesley said.

The first sign of a break came about 2½ hours after the incident began at the bar near Las Vegas's famed Strip when the man released his first two hostages — a woman about 50 years old and a young man.

The released man was frisked and led away by police. The sobbing woman was treated by ambulance attendants, but refused their suggestion that she be taken to a hospital. She told them, "I want to wait for my husband," who apparently was still inside the bar.

Officer Tom McQuade said the young man was "not a suspect as of yet." He said the man told officers the man inside was armed with a .357 Magnum.

Shortly after 11:30, three more men came out of the bar. The bartender and the driver of a beer truck who had been making a delivery to the bar followed about noon.

An eighth man was led from the bar behind the suspect following the surrender.

The drama began at about 7:30 a.m. when police answered a report of a robbery in progress at the Nut Hut bar.

"Police cars were at the scene in less than a minute," McQuade said. "One man walked out, saw two police cars, and ran back inside."

Within moments, more than a dozen police cars had surrounded the building.

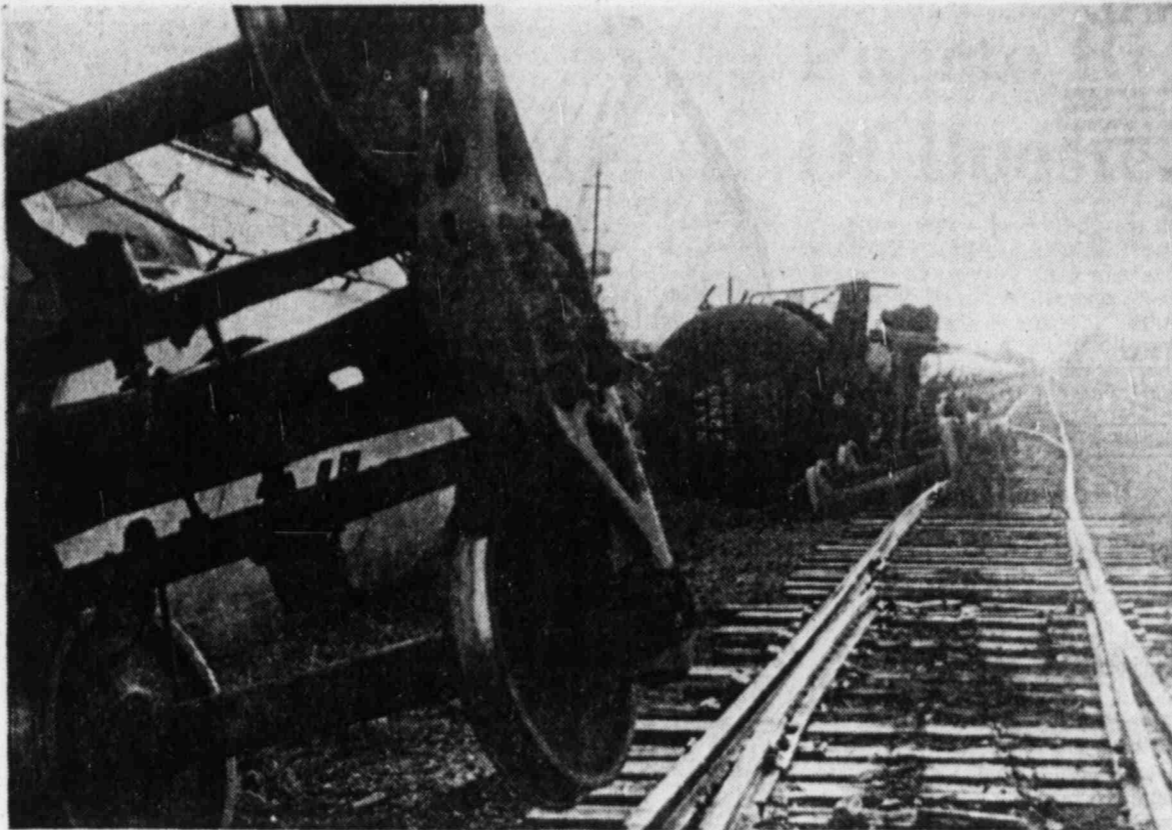

As officers crouched behind their cars — handguns and shotguns poised — a sergeant talked to the suspects by loudspeaker, urging them to give themselves up.

A priest spoke with the men through a window in the front of the bar.

"I talked to him just briefly. He was asking if they could have a black Protestant clergyman rather than a Roman Catholic priest," Father Caslier Kickmaid said.

A short time later, Wesley arrived. He and a white minister, the Rev. Irving Phillips of the First Presbyterian Church, began negotiating with the men inside, talking with them through a window in the yellow concrete block building.

"He was tired when he came into the place. He was despondent. He really didn't hate anyone — he just feared for his life," Wesley said.

TANKERS DERAILED—Three tank cars lay on their sides along the Rock Island Railroad tracks at West Memphis, Ark., Wednesday. One of the cars contained 29,400 gallons of liquid propane and authorities evacuated about 500 residents of the area until the car could be uprighted. Railroad officials said a broken rail may have caused the accident. (AP Laserphoto)

Derailment Site Evacuated Due To Propane Leak

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (UPI) — About 400 residents of this Mississippi River town were evacuated Wednesday because of danger of explosion from a leaking tank of liquid propane, one of three cars of a Rock Island train that derailed near a petroleum plant.

Gerald Bozich, a Rock Island divisional officer, said he did not believe there was any danger of explosion "but you never know what's going to happen."

"In their (railroad officials) terminology, there appears to be no great danger at this time," Police Chief Bobby Keen said, "but to me personally, there is."

Near the derailment site is a ditch that leads directly to the city sewer system. Larry Cummings, district field inspector of the state Department of Pollution Control and Ecology, said, "If that propane gets down in the sewer system and mixes with the methane (found in sewers), it could cause an explosion."

Bozich said the train was backing into the switching yard at the Phillips Petroleum plant at "walking speed" when the cars toppled off the track. He said cause of the derailment has not been determined and no one was injured. He said the tracks in the area were scheduled for maintenance April 19.

Bozich said there was no damage to the outer shell of the propane tank but there was a small leak around the pressure relief valve.

"The propane is coming out of the valve but the winds have been dissipating it as soon as it hits the air," Bozich said.

There were 30,000 gallons of propane in the tank and the two other derailed tankers contained 20,000 gallons each of diesel fuel oil.

"The fuel oil is leaking but it's being dammed up and hopefully will be kept out of the sewer system," Bozich said.

He said it would take about five hours to lift the cars back onto the track and clean up the mess once those efforts begin.

He said the evacuated residents will be allowed to return to their homes as soon as the cars are set upright on the tracks because once they are, the propane leak will stop.

The derailment occurred inside the city limits, about five miles from downtown and about 300 yards from a storage tank at the Phillips Petroleum plant, which also has a natural gas burnoff flame. Between the petroleum plant and the derailment is the NU-Way Bleach Co.

A half-mile radius around the site was evacuated. About 400 persons were asked to leave but Keen said a handful refused to go even though they were warned of the danger of possible explosion.

Fire Chief Tom Burkhardt said those who decided not to leave would be forced to while the cars were being lifted onto the tracks. Classes at a nearby elementary school also were cancelled for the day.

"Police came banging on our door before dawn," said John Pitman, a machinist who was evacuated. "I took one look at those tankers and that was enough for me to leave."

The derailment occurred two weeks after one on March 29 at Lewisville in Southwest Arkansas, where the entire town of 1,700 was evacuated when a derailed tank of vinyl chloride exploded.

There were two other train derailments in the state Tuesday — one near the Oklahoma border in Northwest Arkansas involving a Kansas City Southern train and the other at Marion, which is about 10 miles from West Memphis, involving a Frisco train — but there were no hazardous chemicals involved in those.

Syrian Troops Blast Christians In Effort To Stifle Fighting

BEIRUT (AP) — Syrian troops pounded Christian neighborhoods here Wednesday, trying to quell fighting between Christians and Moslems that has claimed 35 lives in four days.

The Syrians were trying to blast Christian militiamen out of sniper nests and machine gun positions in the neighborhood of Ein Rummaneh in east Beirut.

Residents of the adjacent Moslem district of Chiyah said the Syrians were not firing their way, but said they were receiving some fire from the Christian sector.

The flare-up came on the eve of the third anniversary of the outbreak of the 19-month civil war between Moslems and Christians that claimed 37,000 lives in 1975-76. The predominantly Syrian Arab League peacekeepers were sent to end the fighting and police the truce.

Shooting from Chiyah eased up as the Syrians concentrated fire on Ein Rummaneh. Thousands of Christian civilians there were trapped in their apartments or hid in basement shelters.

Hospitals issued appeals for blood, and ambulances and fire engines braved heavy fire in the embattled area.

Christian leaders said they ordered their militias not to fire "except in extreme cases of self-defense." Calm returned to the area by nightfall, although there was no official cease-fire.

Former President Camille Chamoun, leader of the ultra-rightist National Liberal Party, accused Syria of "taking revenge," apparently referring to the year's first major Christian-Syrian clash that claimed more than 150 lives last February.

A Syrian Army captain, whose unit was firing a Russian-made rocket per minute into the rightist strongholds, told The Associated Press his orders were to "show no favoritism. We are only shooting at the sources of fire."

The Beirut fighting drew attention from south Lebanon, where half of a 4,000-man United Nations force was firming up positions between Palestinian guerrillas and Israeli forces.

The other half is to arrive by the end of this month to oversee the withdrawal of Israeli troops from the region and turn it back to Lebanese control.

There was a partial Israeli pullback Tuesday, and another is scheduled Friday, but that will leave most of the territory still under Israeli control.

In Washington Wednesday a State Department press officer said the United States expects Israel to accelerate its withdrawal, but Israel has announced no withdrawal or pullback plans beyond Friday.

Some Lebanese linked the Beirut trouble and the Israeli invasion March 15 that pushed guerrillas north toward Beirut.

Rightist militia leaders Danny Chamoun and Bashir Gemayel insisted at a press conference that Palestinians stirred up the Beirut battles "to cover up their miserable efforts in the south." The Palestinians have emphatically denied any involvement in the Beirut fighting, and there was no independent evidence they were taking part.

On the other hand, Interior Minister Salah Salaman hinted to reporters that Israel was behind the Beirut flareup. Alluding vaguely to "a plot" Salaman said, "Israel is at the top of the list of conspirators." He did not elaborate.

Lower Priced London Fares Available Here

New low advance-purchase excursion fares to London on Braniff International flights from the Lubbock International Airport went into effect Wednesday.

Braniff officials said the $450 roundtrip Apex fare will be available throughout the year, except during the June through August peak season when prices will rise to $594.

Officials also announced a new one-way standby fare from the Dallas-Fort Worth airport to London offering a confirmed seat reservation for $199 one-way or $349 roundtrip for passengers who purchase tickets 21 days in advance and select only the week in which they would like to travel.

Fares from the Dallas-Fort Worth airport previously were $250, but with the new fare system, Braniff officials will only notify the passenger at least seven days in advance of the specific date of departure during the week requested.

The Apex fare of $450 roundtrip is a midweek fare requiring a 30-day advance purchase with a minimum stay of 14 days and a maximum stay of 45 days.

Braniff's London flight is a daily 747 service.

IBM Trade Secret Thefts Suspected

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A former employee at an International Business Machine Corp. research laboratory here has been freed on $3,000 personal recognizance bond pending the filing of formal charges in connection with the alleged theft of IBM trade secrets.

Authorities said John Salvati, 24, accompanied by his attorney, turned himself in to police last weekend and was arraigned in Boulder District Court on Monday.

District Court Judge Rex Scott had issued an arrest warrant for Salvati last week in connection with the alleged theft of 15 highly confidential documents concerning IBM computer technology.

Police said the documents had been offered for sale to an unnamed competitor for $50,000. The documents have been recovered.

Salvati, a student at the University of Colorado here, is scheduled to return to court later this month.

The IBM operation in Boulder includes development laboratories for the company's general products division. An IBM spokesman, Bill Newman, said work done there includes research on computer tape drives and storage devices.

Death Toll Revealed In Failed Coup

MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI) — President Siad Barre said 20 persons were killed and 34 others wounded during last weekend's unsuccessful "two hour coup" by rebel army units, Mogadishu radio reported Wednesday.

The broadcast quoted a speech by Barre as saying that most of the army plotters were arrested immediately, "save a few who are on the run and being hunted."

"The traitors killed 20 and wounded another 34 persons and destroyed a limited number of vehicles, equipment and arms," Barre said.

"The objective of the traitors in this critical stage through which the country is passing, was to hand over the country to colonialism and blow the nation's stability sky high."

Barre did not identify the foreign country the plotters supported but a coup attempt by hardline supporters of the Soviet Union had been expected for some time.

Somalia was considered Moscow's closest ally in Africa until the Soviets began sending arms to neighboring Ethiopia during the Ogaden desert war, which led to the expulsion of Russian advisers from Somalia last November.

Barre made his remarks in celebrations Tuesday night marking the 18th anniversary of the Somali army. Joining him was Lt. Gen. Muhammed Ali Samatar, the first vice president.

Samatar denied reports that 80 army officers had been shot in the northern city of Hargeisa but said six officers had been tried for treason because "they had been given the responsibility of defending the country in a war situation."

Samatar was sharply critical of the Soviet Union's role in the dispute between Ethiopia and Somalia and attacked western nations for "siding" with the Soviet position on the Ogaden war.

"The first vice president said that it was amazing that western countries agreed with the Russians and that the West and East agreed to defend Abyssinian colonialism and oppose the liberation fronts," the radio said.

Both the United States and Britain refused Somali requests for military aid during the Ogaden war.

Samatar predicted that liberation groups in the Ogaden would continue to fight "until they have freed themselves from colonialism."

Puerto Rico Feeling Pinch Of Boosted Tax Exemptions

BOSTON (AP) — Since World War II, Puerto Rico has lured international business with its supply of cheap labor and promise of 100 percent tax exemptions for periods of up to 30 years.

Puerto Rico's Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo has introduced a new package before his Legislature that would provide for only a partial tax exemption. However, the governor came to Boston to tell potential investors that the bill does not mean the end of a good thing.

The island is experiencing serious financial problems including an eroding tax base that now sees 52 percent of the island's base exempt. That figure was just 24 percent 1973 and is projected to rise to 75 percent by 1980.

The cost of living in Puerto Rico is 15 percent higher than in any mainland city and average per capita income is half that of Mississippi, the poorest state in the nation.

"Our bottom line and the bottom line of our investors is the same," Romero Barcelo told about 200 Boston businessmen at a luncheon Tuesday. "We don't think that profit is a dirty word, but any relationship that is one way is not durable."

Under the new law scheduled for public hearing next week, a company would get 90 percent tax exempt status for the first five years and would gradually move to 50 percent exemption in four steps over a 20-year period.

The governor said the 100 percent tax exemption program where companies would go from paying no taxes to paying full taxes was "almost an open invitation to companies to pack up and leave Puerto Rico."

Most of the companies that have left have been apparel manufacturers. Other more technological industries such as electronics, pharmaceuticals and computers have stayed.

Currently, several local companies have subsidiaries in Puerto Rico. Gillette founded the Coqui Lighter Co. in Guayama in 1973 to manufacture its Cricket Lighter line.

Muse Seeks To Buy Airline

DALLAS (AP) — M. Lamar Muse, who lost control of Southwest Airlines in an attempted power play, says he has offered to buy a wholly owned subsidiary he created to start a Midwest commuter line based in Chicago.

Muse modeled the new commuter line after his high-volume, no-frills, low fare operation at Southwest, an intrastate carrier, and it has been his pet project for years.

Called Midway Airway, the airline would serve Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. It would fly out of Chicago's Midway airport.

One reason for Southwest's success in Texas is that it flies out of Dallas' and Houston's close-in airports.

Muse said Wednesday Southwest officials are willing to sell Midway Airway to him, but did not agree on his terms.

"One way to salvage Midway is to just sell the damned company to me and then maybe I can pull it back out of the fire," Muse said.

The fate of the subsidiary has been in doubt since Muse's resignation earlier this month.

Muse admitted he had submitted his resignation in an attempt to get the board to back him instead of company vice president Rollin King. The board, however, quickly and unexpectedly accepted the resignation.

He said he offered Southwest a "six-figure" purchase price for 100 percent of Midway Airway, but that the company rejected this and offered him 51 percent of the subsidiary.

"Why should I work to pull the thing out of the fire and then see the Southwest shareholders get half of it?" Muse said. "To hell with that."

Muse claimed he has obtained the capital commitments necessary to finance the start-up of the project if it wins Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

"You can be assured I've got it financed," Muse said. "I've got the financing to do Midway if I've got 100 percent of the company."

He declined to reveal the sources of such financing, needed to pay for aircraft and other equipment.

San Antonio lawyer Herert Kelleher, a Southwest co-founder who temporarily succeeded Muse at the helm of the airline, at first denied knowledge of any discussions over the possible sale of Midway to Muse.

However, he later said he had had various conversations with Muse and declined to rule out the possibility that Southwest might eventually sell Muse 100 percent interest in Midway.

School Board Head Criticizes Profiles

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the Houston School Board says he is convinced that the 650 administrators in the district are the main reasons that the educational system in the nation's fifth largest city is sagging and failing to meet the needs of the pupils.

William Harwell said Wednesday the profiles of the administrators are prepared each year by "their immediate supervisor and it has become a fraternal loyalty. They are reluctant to properly assess performance or make proper recommendations for change. Administrators have allowed the system to run them and their fraternal loyalty to override the interests of children."

District School Supt. Bill Reagan disagreed.

He said in an interview that Harwell may have misunderstood the meanings of the profiles which "overall indicate that most of our schools are being managed efficiently and effectively. The majority of the criticism is unfounded and unjust."

The profiles grade the efficiency of administrators in such areas as administration of federally funded programs, athletic programs, staff development and special services.

Harwell said, "The school board is determined that the buck-passing is going to stop. The board is no longer interested in excuses. We either want the finished product children are entitled to or we want to know who is responsible and why it didn't happen."

Richard Strahan, attorney for the Houston Principals Association, said the profiles are in "such a raw form that conclusions are not accurate."

"For instance, the profiles lists the teacher turnover at each school but does not say why the teacher has left. Teacher absenteeism also is listed in each profile, but this has nothing to do with a principal's poor performance. The profiles are faulty assessments," he said.

Fang Hints Of Hoof Creatures In Asia

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet archaeologists have discovered "a huge fang" that points to the existence of hoofed animals, some 60 million years ago near the Issyk Kul Lake in central Asia, Tass reported.

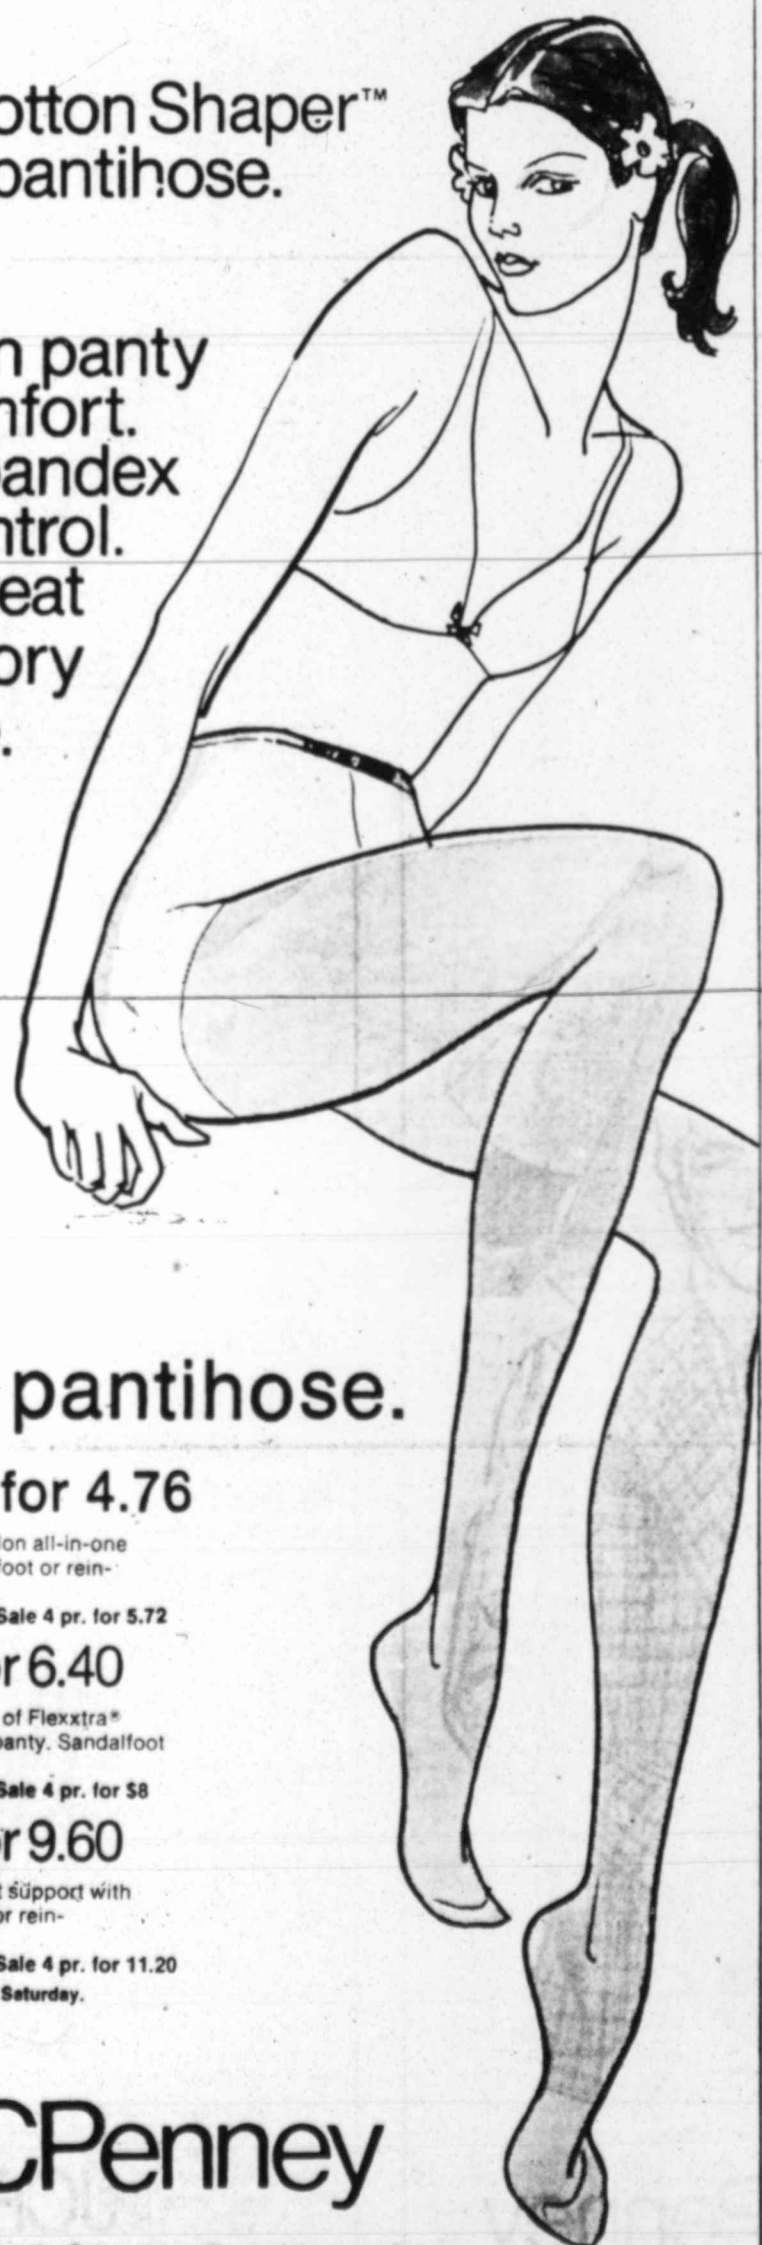

The Soviet news agency said that hoofed animals, or unitaria, had previously been discovered only in parts of North America and "this warrants a new look at the problem of intercommunication between the Asian and American continents."

Plan Proposed To Fight Inflation In Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. announced administrative steps Wednesday that he claimed would combat inflation in the health care industry while the administration's health cost-control measure remains stalled in Congress.

The secretary of health, education and welfare said he was acting in response to President Carter's directive to find means of holding down inflation. Califano said in response to questions that he could not estimate how much his plan would save.

The actions Califano said he would take include:

—Limiting Medicare payments for lab tests and equipment such as wheelchairs and hospital-type beds to the lowest price available in a community, rather than the government's present policy of paying up to the prevailing rate.

Similar regulations have been proposed since 1975 but have never been implemented. One objection to them is that there is no way HEW can prevent physicians, when they order lab tests, or medical and surgical equipment houses from charging elderly patients the difference between what Medicare will pay and their standard fee.

Califano told a news conference he believes "doctors are increasingly ready to respond" to the need to limit increased health care costs and will go along with the administration in seeking out the laboratories that charge the least for common diagnostic tests.

—The department will conduct a "major consumer information campaign" including radio spots and disseminating information through Social Security and welfare offices to encourage Medicare and Medicaid patients to seek the opinion of a second doctor before agreeing to surgery.

Califano said he wants people to know the federal health care programs for the poor and the elderly will pay for such second opinions, although Medicare for the elderly only pays 80 percent, leaving the patient to pay the other 20 percent.

—Federally sponsored peer review organizations will be asked to set national standards for the ideal length of hospital stays and use of tests in an effort to "reduce excessive hospitalization and unnecessary procedures."

Califano said at least $1 billion could be saved if hospital patients in the East were discharged as early as those in the Midwest or West.

—The secretary said he is urging governors to "take all necessary action to promote the substitution of generic prescription drugs for more expensive brand-name drugs."

Most states already have drug substitution laws, but Califano said the Food and Drug Administration would offer them technical assistance and HEW's general counsel will work with FDA to develop a model generic drug law for states that don't have one.

Costs in the health care industry are rising faster than in any other major sector in the economy and at more than twice the national rate of inflation. The Carter administration has proposed to put a 9 percent cap on increases in hospital fees.

Backers Detail Land Bill Data

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"What will be left when the oil and gas pipelines run dry?"

In order to preserve portions of the last frontier for future generations, members of conservation, wildlife, and environmental groups have banded together to form the national Alaska Coalition and to seek answers to that question.

Members of the national Alaska Coalition, Pam Rich and Paul Peyton, presented a program Wednesday at the Mahon Library on the controversial Alaska National Interests Lands Bill, which is now pending in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

Mrs. Rich and Peyton were in Lubbock during a tour of several Texas cities, informing citizens of the nation's second largest state about the bill.

The national Alaska Coalition has pinpointed Texas as a key state vital to the success of passage of the controversial bill.

During their program Wednesday night, they showed slides of the nation's largest state and discussed the bill with members of the audience.

The bill concerns the designation of some 110 million acres of Alaska land already owned by the federal government. The act would designate areas of the federally owned land as national parks and monuments, forests, national wildlife refuges, and wild and scenic rivers systems.

Peyton pointed out that the 110 million acres of federally owned land is only about one-third of the state of Alaska. The other two-thirds is owned by the state or by private citizens.

He added that the bill would preserve whole ecological systems within the state for future generations of Americans.

Miss Rich pointed out that "Americans will never have a chance to go back again" and preserve the areas once they are open to big business and industry. She added, "If we don't designate these areas now, it will be a lot harder to get the land areas designated later."

She noted the problem recently encountered when the federal government had to buy back lands surrounding the Redwood National Forest in California. She added that there are many problems with the land acquisition which are still all not solved.

Miss Rich said the controversial bill would ensure that two-thirds of the state will be open for development, with only one-third saved for wilderness preservation.

She added that many opponents of the bill are trying to use a job issue-development idea as a smokescreen. Miss Rich said the real issue is economics, with the opponents realizing that any environmental restrictions on the federally owned land would make rapid development economically unfeasible.

The national Alaska Coalition spokesman said that part of the economic problems for rapid development are the distance from Alaska to the lower 48 states' marketplaces, and prohibitive transportation costs.

Peyton, a native Alaskan, said he became involved in the national group because he saw his home state hurtling down the road toward rapid development with no thought to the destruction of the land and its people as they once were.

He pointed out that only one-half of Alaska's population has lived in the state more than three years and they have never seen the state's environment as it once was.

The native Alaskan said every industry that has moved into the state is a consumptive one.

The bill is being opposed by the oil and gas industries, land developers, mining companies, timber industry, the AFL-CIO, and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Rich and Peyton both added that Alaska is the last frontier in the nation and the bill is the last chance to preserve portions of the state for the enjoyment of future Americans.

SCENE OF SLAYING — Authorities Wednesday remove one victim of an apparent murder/suicide from the scene in Clifton, N.J. Authorities stated that Paul Kovach shot and killed his wife and two teen-aged children before turning his gun on himself. (AP Laserphoto)

New Jersey Family Dies In Shooting

CLIFTON, N.J. (UPI) — Neighbors said Wednesday a man who apparently shot his estranged wife and two teenage children and then turned the gun on himself had been forced to give up his job last December because of a heart ailment.

Police Wednesday declined to offer a possible motive for the quadruple killing of the Paul Kovach family, saying they would await the result of autopsies before trying to piece together the events that led up to Monday's shooting.

But neighbors and friends said Kovach, 52, and his 49-year-old wife Edna had been having marital problems and Kovach was no longer living at their modest woodframe home. Mrs. Kovach had planned to file for a divorce, another family friend said.

Kovach, neighbors said, also suffered from ill health, having been forced to quit his office job on the advice of his doctor.

The bodies of Kovaches, their 19-year-old daughter Sandra and their 17-year-old son Mark were found in the kitchen area of the home Tuesday night. Police said Kovach had a 9mm pistol in his hand.

Police Lt. Frank Spheriazzi said the shootings apparently occurred late Monday night. The Kovaches had lived in the home 15 years.

The bodies were discovered Tuesday, when Sandra's boyfriend, James Sontamani, told police he could not get into the house.

Janette Sprick, a neighbor, said she had been out with Mrs. Kovach on Monday night.

"The last time I saw her was 10:30 p.m. Monday when we returned home from a fashion show," Mrs. Sprick said.

Bell Tells Editors Of New Press Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Griffin Bell Wednesday told newspaper editors he will respond in writing to "any substantial inaccuracy" in stories about the Justice Department.

Bell said he does not seek to change the "war and sometimes hostile" adversary relationship between the press and government, but declared "the media must be held responsible if it prints false or inaccurate information."

"I am today adopting a new policy," Bell said. "Henceforth, you will be advised by me in writing of any substantial inaccuracy in any story or column about the Justice Department carried in your newspapers."

Addressing the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Bell said erroneous stories often can be avoided if reporters check facts beforehand with government officials. He singled out a UPI series about the family of Panama's Gen. Omar Torrijos.

"UPI recently carried a story that I had placed certain documents concerning the Torrijos family in my office safe to keep them from the Senate," Bell said. "That was a blatant lie."

"UPI was so advised and the story was released after being run over the night wire. The point was that I was not asked if the story was true. Most reporters and all of our regulars have learned to ask before carrying the sensational."

Grant Dillman, UPI vice president and Washington manager, said: "Contrary to Judge Bell's information, our reporters tried several times without success to obtain the Justice Department's version of how the Torrijos files were handled in anticipation of a secret Senate session on the matter."

"The White House finally intervened after the UPI series moved on a hold-for-release basis and the result was a four-hour session with Press Secretary Jody Powell — a session he later said might not have been necessary if the administration had been more forthcoming."

"As a result of that meeting, we led the first piece in our series to incorporate new information, the second story required no changes and we moved a substitute for the third story to include the administration's views. The information brought out by the Senate fully supported our findings on the drug traffic."

Bell also said editors should give more coverage to his proposals to "refurbish the (federal) courts" by providing arbitration, trying of minor cases before magistrates, and narrowing federal jurisdiction over some cases.

Bell also has set up experimental "neighborhood justice centers" in three cities for handling small disputes.

"The story is being told in bits and pieces but it has failed to attract the in-depth treatment in major newspapers," Bell said. "I still hope that accessibility to justice is a significant story waiting to be written."

Less Powerful Warheads Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon faces a squeeze in supplies of nuclear material that has caused it to consider less powerful warheads for Minutemen intercontinental missiles, a senior defense official said Wednesday.

The official said while enough plutonium and enriched uranium are available for present needs, expected increased demands for nuclear material for peaceful uses have caused a more "cautious" approach by the Pentagon because of forecasts of production shortages by the mid-1980s and beyond.

The situation was brought to President Carter's attention by Defense Secretary Harold Brown in a recent secret memo outlining budgetary and defense issues for 1980, according to Pentagon sources.

The nuclear squeeze caused a bureau-cratrap earlier this month Secretary of State Cyrus Vance wrote Carter endorsing an arms control proposal seeking an international ban on production of nuclear weapons material without consulting Brown.

When he learned of the move, Brown registered strong opposition in the White House.

The defense official said a new weapon known as the Mark 12A was planned to double explosive yields of each of the three warheads of Minuteman III ICBMs from 170 kilotons to about 350 kilotons each.

The Minuteman III is now the nation's most capable ICBM and the modification was intended to overcome "hardening" of Soviet targets. A kiloton, the standard measure for nuclear blasts, is equal to 1, 000 tons of TNT.

While work on Mark 12As for installation beginning in 1980 continues, the official said, a decision whether to include the full-strength nuclear devices has been delayed because their design calls for relatively large amounts of plutonium.

He said greater consideration is being given to different warhead designs for various types of weapons in the arsenal that would require smaller amounts of fissionable material.

Pentagon planners also are rationing available resources carefully because of demands for a number of weapons systems in the next few years, he said.

There are about 680,000 tons of identified raw uranium reserves in the United States.

Workman Certain He's Best Senatorial Choice

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Don Workman, candidate for the Democratic state senate nomination, said Wednesday he is the "man for the job" because he could be more effective in Austin than his four opponents.

Workman, a banker and Texas Tech regent, said during an interview by Avalanche-Journal editors that he has a "broader-based background than the other candidates and would have the 'clout to get me where you build power.'"

He noted he has an understanding of banking, higher education and public education and said he has the "best understanding of youth problems in the state and what it will take to solve the problems" as a result of his membership on the Texas Youth Council.

Workman said he has a master's degree in agriculture, as well as real-life farming experience and therefore understands farm problems.

"Because of his friendship with Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Workman said, he will be able to work closely with Briscoe appointees on state boards.

"I am the only one with the persuasive argument that I should be on the Senate Finance Committee," Workman said, adding it is "most important for this area to have our member on the committee" in light of the vacancies left by the chairman and Sen. Kent Hance.

Workman said he also would have credentials to become a member of the Social Service, Education and Agriculture committees.

The former rodeo champion said his philosophy differed little from all of his opponents except one — former state Rep. Jesse George.

"Jesse has a different philosophy than the rest of us," Workman said. "He's projecting himself as a liberal."

Workman added the thought of George being elected state senator "scared me."

He conceded his opponents were better able to deal with the press because "window dressing is against my nature."

Workman admitted his refusal to vote on the location of a branch of the Texas Tech Medical School definitely had hurt him in Odessa, the eventual site chosen for the branch.

"I lost a ton of support and haven't gained it all back," Workman said.

But the abstention was "the only logical thing to do for the integrity of myself and Odessa," he said.

Another candidate, former state Rep. Delwin Jones, made political hay out of the site selection when he made an impassioned plea to the Tech regents in favor of Odessa as the location for the regional health center.

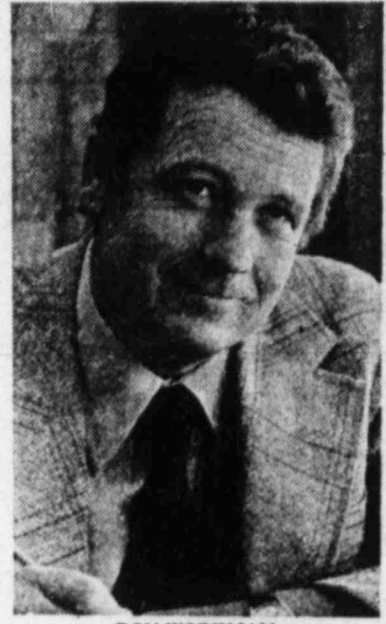

And Workman predicted Jones would not be as effective a senator because of the ploy.

He explained that three present senators favored other cities for the school's location and, as a result, would not help secure funding for the medical school if an Odessa site proponent were elected.

Workman predicted the next state senator faces a "big push for a state income tax and a big push for the redistribution of public education funds."

He said he opposed both moves.

Workman said he also would fight moves to place a voting student member on university boards of regents. But, he added, "I wouldn't oppose having two students as resource persons" to advise the regents.

Carter Aides Suggest Reasons For Boss' Dip In Popularity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hamilton Jordan donned a necktie, Jody Powell a three-piece suit and Margaret Costanza a dress to tell newspaper editors Wednesday why the image of their boss is sinking.

The three White House aides, known for casual dress, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that Jimmy Carter disappointed some people because he had raised hopes so high.

And he had raised those hopes high because he was a compassionate man.

"We are not capable of doing everything we'd like to do and in a very real sense, should be done," Powell confessed.

When the Republicans occupied 1600

Pennsylvania Avenue, "There was a tendency to think, 'Well, you know, the damn Republicans — they wouldn't do it if they could,'" he said.

"Now we have a president who I think few people doubt deeply feels and cares," Powell said. "He's not a rascal, he's not callous, he's not indifferent."

"And yet, for this man to say, 'No. Not now. Not as much. Not yet' is a difficult thing for the country (to accept) and a difficult thing for the Congress, particularly in an election year."

Jordan's message was: All the government's resources and all the wonders of "our great American ingenuity" do not assure every problem tackled can be solved.

Additionally, Carter's popularity has tumbled because "We have a passive mood in the country and a very active Democratic president."

"Is the president out of sync with the mood of the country? Possibly he is. What is he to do?"

Miss Costanza, who usually wears slacks in the White House, said another problem was that disadvantaged groups hear Carter's talk of a balanced budget and interpret it to mean he is going to jettison special programs that benefit them.

He merely means to make the government trimmer, more efficient, through reorganization, she said.

Jordan said he had discovered it was "more difficult to implement decisions than make them."

For that reason, he said, there would be a "slight adjustment" in the White House staff, but not the major shakeup that has been anticipated.

Miss Costanza, the outspoken former vice mayor of Rochester who has been pictured as being in disfavor with Jordan and Powell, said she represented the Eastern establishment in a White House staff of Georgians. She said she had done some things wrong and would do better.

Jordan indicated she would not be fired.

"The Eastern establishment is alive and kicking in the White House — and will be," he said.

'Taxpayers Special' Arrives In Lubbock

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

State treasurer candidate Harry Ledbetter charged Wednesday Treasurer Warren Harding's performance in office has been "pretty shaky" and said the state official has "not provided one iota of leadership."

Ledbetter, an Austin financial analyst, said Harding was in office four months before he took any action to invest additional state money in interest-bearing accounts.

In February the percentage of state money invested rose to close to 90 percent, Ledbetter said. However, "no other state allows it to get down that low," he charged, adding most states have 84-95 percent of state money in interest-bearing accounts.

Ledbetter said the action to invest the money came only because Harding felt the heat of the campaign and became worried about his election chances.

The former Texas A&M quarterback brought what he calls the "Texas Taxpayers Special" to Lubbock Wednesday — a pickup loaded with $500,000 imitation dollars to dramatize the amount of interest lost on State Treasury funds each week.

"This is how much more interest could be earned every week on your tax dollars if our famous name treasurer would do his job," he said.

Ledbetter, a former Deputy Comptroller, said the $500,000 is the amount of "hard-earned dollars citizens of the state have to pay each week in taxes because the state treasurer failed to properly manage the state's money."

He charged the bank holding companies in the state are "taking over the State Banking Board," of which the treasurer is a member.

"Two-thirds of all new charters issued last year went to holding companies," which Ledbetter labeled "monopolistic growth" and against constitutional prohibitions against branch banking.

Ledbetter said bank charters should be granted "not on political considerations, but on local needs."

He said the holding companies had contributed the majority of funding for Harding's campaign.

He predicted voters would not elect Harding simply because of his famous name because "voters have been stung once by a candidate with a famous name recently."

Ledbetter called Harding a product of the "big city banks in Dallas and of the big city machine in Dallas." Harding was Dallas County Treasurer 27 years.

Ledbetter noted a grand jury in Dallas is investigating allegations Harding's former campaign treasurer attempted to bribe a candidate for a county judgeship, but said the case would not be brought up before the May 6 primary.

Harding is a "big city ward politician," Ledbetter said.

Ex-Senator Slates Wedding In June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington and Ann "Nancy" Hemingway Watson, the widow of a founder of IBM, are to be married June 14 in New Canaan, Conn.

Symington, who served 24 years in the Senate before retiring in December 1976, will be 77 years old 12 days after the wedding. He met Mrs. Watson, 59, last year in California, where both were visiting Bob Hope during a golf tournament.

Mrs. Watson is the widow of Arthur Watson, a founder of IBM and former chairman of one of its subsidiaries. Watson, who died in 1974, had been appointed ambassador to France by President Richard Nixon in 1970 and served two years.

Symington's first wife, Evelyn Wadsworth Symington, died in December 1972.

After their marriage, the Symingtons plan to divide their time between her home in New Canaan, her summer home in Camden, Maine, and his residence at the Watergate apartments in Washington.

Jury Convicts Man On Drug Charge

A 21-year-old Lubbock man was convicted of possession of marijuana by a jury here Wednesday.

It took jurors in Judge William R. Shaver's 140th Dist. Court approximately two hours to find Gary Lynn Dunlap, of 1312 E. Ursuline St., guilty of the felony charge.

Water Authority To Study Area Treatment Methods

A-J Correspondent
PLAINVIEW — Responding to proposed new Environmental Protection Agency regulations, the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority Wednesday announced plans to study changing treatment methods at its four chlorination plants in the Panhandle and South Plains.

John C. Williams, general manager for the Sanford-based authority, told the 17 board members at the meeting that a substitute chemical for chlorine might be considered.

He explained that the EPA has determined that otherwise harmless organic chemicals in surface water supply reservoirs for cities interact with chlorine to produce trihalomethanes, which have been found to cause cancer in rats, and a number of cities are faced with expensive modifications.

A substitute such as chlorine dioxide or copper citrate might be used, Williams said, because the problem is considered to increase with the time the chlorine is in the water.

He said the EPA wants the cities to continue using chlorine rather than a substitute in their plants but to install substantially more expensive granular activated carbon filters to remove the trihalomethanes.

In protests of the proposed regulations, Amarillo, Lubbock and other cities have suggested using a chlorine substitute or a filter that would be less expensive because, they claim, the changes proposed now would cause water use rates to go up 30 to 50 percent.

"It is a substantial problem," Williams said. "The major problem is going to fall on the cities, and there's not a thing we can do to help them."

The regulations would affect only cities of more than 75,000 population at first, he noted.

Chlorine is added to authority system water now at stations at the Lake Meredith Dam at Sanford and at Amarillo, Borger and Borger.

Amarillo, Borger, Pampa, Plainview, Lubbock, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland are supplied water by the Canadian River authority.

The last EPA hearing into the regulations will be held May 5 in Washington, and they would become effective 18 months after they gained approval.

In other business, Williams reported that Lake Meredith now is 82 feet deep and is at its lowest point since 1969 and four inches lower than the low point last year before August and September rains.

"It is hoped that spring and early summer will produce some significant inflow," he said.

Bill Dyer of the National Park Service reported visits down 50 percent to the Meredith area in January and February but up enough in March to bring first-quarter visits to 170,668.

Soviet Rese Sought For

PARIS (AP) — A French professor said Wednesday he had been approached by Soviet President Brezhnev to allow a research mathematician teaching post in France.

Prof. Jean-Pierre Antheaume, a specialist in decision mathematics, was appointed to a fellowship at Paris Dauphine University more than a year ago, but he has not yet been invited by Soviet authorities to accept the post.

Council To Study Phone Rate Hike Plea Today

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city council today will consider taking action against a proposed Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate increase.

The requested increase is pending before the Public Utilities Commission. As proposed, the changes would up Lubbock's basic monthly residential rate from $6 to $7 for a one-party line. A two-party line would cost $4.25 per month instead of $3.75, and a business line would cost $16.30 monthly instead of the current $14.

According to city staffers, the council could vote to join other municipalities fighting the increase under the sponsorship of the Texas Municipal League.

The staff also suggests the city could band with other municipalities in this area to challenge the concept of statewide rather than regional rates.

During the last increase in December, 1976, the staff notes said, basic rates were increased a dime in Lubbock but not in other larger cities because they were figured on a statewide basis instead of on a regional formula.

Staffers also suggest the city council could combine options to oppose the telephone company request.

Council members, who will meet at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers, also will consider authorizing a 1978 population estimate for the city.

The last estimate was in 1973, when the city staff speculated that city population this year would reach about 173,400. That figure since has been revised to about 175,250.

A change in the 1978 Community Development Program will be looked at by the council. Final federal figures show the city will receive about $4.83 million, which is $38,000 less than expected.

But because three traffic signals that were to be included in the program have been funded with other money, $90,000 will be freed. The result is a net increase of $357,723 in the program.

Cathy Morton of the Housing Authority to pay the guards for patrolling from 3 p.m. to 7 a.m. each weekday. As an alternative, the board suggests the patrol could be from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. each weekday for a cost of $49,319.

The city staff will propose that the council authorize routine audits of Community Development grants and federal grants for the transit system. A complete audit of American Transit Company records also will be suggested.

The ATC audit, estimated to cost about $6,000, would be the first of its kind. The audit would be made at the firm's St. Louis, Mo., headquarters.

The city traditionally pays the company from computer printout billings for its management of Lubbock Transit Company.

This year, however, the city's inde-

Lynn Arrest Increases Plight For Department

HOUSTON (AP) — When Chief Harry Caldwell told a police awards luncheon this week that difficult times lay ahead for the beleaguered department in the nation's fifth-largest city, one of those listening was Assistant Chief Carrol Lynn.

A few hours later Lynn was arrested by FBI agents and arraigned before a federal magistrate on charges of obstructing justice in connection with an alleged $45,000 bribery scheme.

The arrest was the latest problem of a department already under fire from the city's black and Mexican-American communities over alleged brutality — most prominently in the death of a Mexican-American prisoner nearly a year ago.

The combination has left the department's reputation and the morale of its 2,800 officers at its lowest ebb since 1947, when then-Mayor Oscar Holcombe told the city council the police department was "woefully inefficient ... honeycombed with feuds ... without discipline ... and worse than a South American army."

Chief Caldwell, 47, a doctoral candidate who recently created a hue and cry when he told his officers they could no longer wear cowboy boots on duty, has been in the middle of controversy since he became chief in June 1977.

He inherited a largely white, male force that is charged with keeping the peace in a city where the blacks and Mexican-Americans make up about 40 percent of the 1.2 million population — which is growing at the rate of 1,000 a week.

At the time Caldwell took over, a scandal was just breaking surrounding the death of Mexican-American prisoner Joe Campos Torres, who had been arrested following a disturbance at a bar and drowned in a bayou that runs through downtown Houston.

Three former police officers were recently convicted by a federal jury of a misdemeanor beating charge and a felony civil rights violation charge in connection with Torres' death.

But U.S. District Court Judge Ross Sterling, saying that the real problem lay not with the defendants but within the Houston police department, sentenced them to one year on the misdemeanor and five years suspended on the felony charge. The suspended terms have drawn fire from the Justice Department, which asked Sterling to stiffen the sentences.

Meanwhile, federal investigators are looking into the shooting death of a 17-year-old Louisiana youth who officers said pulled a gun on them. The gun found at the scene of the shooting was later traced to the police property room.

And the department's own recently established Internal Affairs Division is looking into another shooting incident involving a teenager who police said had a gun.

Lynn, who served as chief of the force from January 1974 to June 1975, was freed on $50,000 bond after being charged with soliciting a bribe to stop the prosecution of John Vincent Holden, a one-time Houston oilman accused of securities violations and mail fraud. Federal authorities say they have one of the alleged payoff transactions on tape.

Lynn and two other officers were suspended with pay until completion of the investigation. He is the highest-ranking, but not the first, Houston police official to be charged with a crime. Last year Deputy Chief Wallace Williams, who ran a private security agency on the side, was convicted of making false statements on his income tax returns. Williams, who scored highest in a civil service examination that advanced Lynn and Caldwell and two other officers to assistant chief positions in 1976, is appealing the case.

David Sheetz, head of the Houston Police Officers Association, said that although the rank-and-file is dismayed by what is going on in the department, the policemen on the beat is at least satisfied that "the big fish" are not immune from prosecution.

The majority of cases of alleged police misconduct since the 1960s involved patrolmen or low-ranking officers and charges of brutality against minorities. Prior to a state civil service law in the early 1950s and the abolition of the spoils system, charges of vice and gambling shakedowns plagued the department.

Frog's Rain Song May Aid Forecast

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — A tiny frog that sings loudly in the rain to attract a mate has been discovered in western Australia by a joint team of zoologists from Australia and the University of Kansas.

The zoologists hope the species, known as Litoria microbelos and smaller than a one-cent coin, will help shed light on the earth's past weather cycles because of its adaptation to rain forest climates.

A REAL FISH STORY — Israel Horowitz thinks enough of fish to write a play about one, a quarter-million-pound mackerel that is the object of his new play titled "Mackerel." Technical director Kerry Comerford took on the job of transforming Horowitz' fish into fins and scales, a one-ton construction of foam, wood and rubber. For its first public appearance, the mackerel was wheeled recently from the shop where it was built, down a street near the Capitol, to the Folger Theatre in Washington. (AP Laserphoto)

Tony Wayland was promoted to senior vice president and cashier, and Greg Root was appointed loan officer at the April board of directors meeting of Texas Commerce Bank.

The announcement was made by C.B. Carter, chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Wayland, a native of Plainview, received his B.A. degree from Texas Tech in 1961. He joined the bank staff in 1964.

He is a member of the Caprock American Business Club, vice president of the Lubbock Association of Credit Managers and serves on the board of directors of Family Service Association. He also is treasurer of St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

Wayland and his wife Sue and daughters Cynthia, 7, and Melissa, 6, reside at 4528 77th St.

Root, a native of El Paso, graduated from El Paso High School and received his B.B.A. in finance from Texas Tech in 1977.

His past business experience includes working in the trust department of a local bank.

Root and his wife Judy are members of Trinity Church and reside at 4206 38th St.

Jury Decides Inmate Death Accidental

ODESSA (UPI) — A special six-member inquest jury investigating the death of a Mexican-American prisoner Jan. 22 in Ector County jail Wednesday ruled Larry Ortega Lozano had died accidentally.

The three-woman, three-man jury took only 30 minutes in their deliberation. Jury foreman C.M. Riggs said it took only one vote.

"It was pretty harmonious. We discussed a little. The testimony of all of them (witnesses) was important," he said.

Justice of the peace Virgil Lumpee, who presided over the three-day inquest, said his final ruling in the jailhouse death would comply with the jury's findings.

Ector County deputies testified at the inquest that the 27-year-old inmate died while officers tried to subdue him and after he battered his head against a wall and jail cell window.

But, Mexican-Americans claimed Lozano died of beatings and other brutality while in the custody of deputies.

District Attorney John Green said a county grand jury would probably review the case. But he said could not say when the jury would do so. Members of the grand jury were present in the courtroom during the testimony.

Members of the Mexican-American community, under Lumpee's order to refrain from emotional outbreaks, remained silent when the verdict was announced. The only semblance of a demonstration was one man who walking out holding a raised fist.

Dan Maseo, an assistant for attorney general John Hill, said the results of the inquest would be used in Hill's investigation of possible civil rights violations against Lozano.

Green, asked whether the verdict would affect the state's investigation, replied: "The attorney general's (representative) is here. It should affect his decision. If it doesn't, he's nuttier than I thought he was."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR CUTE CHICKENS:
This is especially for those of you whose fortune it is to have one of those wonderful refrigerators that makes its own ice cubes and drops them into a plastic tray.
I happen to be fortunate enough to have one and always had the unfortunate experience of having all that ice fall into that "plastic" tray.
It sticks to the plastic tray and there ain't no doubt about it. Last week I decided to try something else so the dang ice wouldn't stick.
I lined the bottom of the plastic catch-all-for-the-ice-cubes with a piece off of my roll of foil.
Dad gum if it doesn't work? Isn't that something really fruitful?
The ice does not stick to the plastic tray in which it drops, and neither do we have to hot-wet it (That means to hold the tray under the hot water faucet until all that melted goop pops out.)
Now all I do is pick up the piece of foil, take it with all that melted ice, "fog" and "glaciers" on it, to the sink and dump...
Hooraay!
Try it, honeybuns. I know, I tried, I tested — and I never have told you a lie or story yet. Have I? Bless all you angels. — Heloise

Write a letter — make a phone call — visit a friend or sick person — or just smile when you're in the grocery store (even if you do feel like crying).
You'll sleep better at night, believe me! — Your Friend

DEAR HELOISE:
When you want to put trash in a paper bag make about a one-inch cuff at the top of the bag (turning it down).
This keeps it opened out better and is less likely to fall over. I even do my lunch bags this way. Lots less trouble putting the lunch in. — L.H.

DEAR HELOISE:
To make some tasty pancakes try adding some vanilla extract. I use a teaspoon to two cups mix.
You'll be surprised what a taste change this makes. My family loves 'em! — A.H.

DEAR HELOISE:
Lots of new homemakers might like to know this:
When you are cooking rice or pasta product, it will not boil over if you put just about one teaspoon of cooking oil or even some margarine in the boiling water before or after you put in the rice or pasta. — Jean McIlvanie hem ripping, try this timely hint:

After you have ripped the seam or hem, spread that part out flat on a smooth surface, take a single-edge razor blade and scrape across those little pieces of thread that are so hard to pick out of the material.
They will come out in a little ball, and you then can pick them up and throw away. Be careful not to rough the material or cut it. — Nell

DEAR HELOISE:
Take brightly colored construction paper and cut out big bright shapes. Hang them over the crib for the baby to look at.
The mobile I made of construction paper turns constantly, and I don't have to wind it up. — A New Mother

DEAR HELOISE:
I have a good tip I stumbled onto last week while ironing.
I dampened my linen lunch cloths, and when I ironed them the next morning, I used spray starch on them as I ironed. They ironed much faster and nicer. — W.J.R.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:
Just a little thought you might want to pass on to your many readers.
Have you done a good deed lately? A day should not end without you putting forth a little effort to be kind to someone else.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED
NEW YORK — The commotion from rehearsal hall number one at CBS studios in Manhattan did not arise from the conflicts and heated passions of the residents of the "As The World Turns" town of Oakdale, U.S.A. The ruckus was in honor of the show's 22nd anniversary.
Eileen Fulton (Lisa) was acting like Tony Perkins in "Psycho" as she hefted a carving knife and slashed into the birthday cake. She gleefully informed us that she'll jet in mid-May to Gurney, Ill., where she'll participate in a Mother's Day Soap Opera Festival at the Great America Theme Park in the suburbs of Chicago.
Judith McConnell (Valerie Conway) bemoaned the fact that she has no time to commute to the West Coast where her fiancé lives. Judy's storyline is getting thicker by the day, so her heavy schedule puts a cramp in the transcontinental romance. However, she's looking forward to finding a summer house in New York's Hampton's beach area to share with other "ATWT" regulars.
"We're a very incestuous cast," joked Dennis Cooney (Jay Stallings) who caught a plane the next day with Marie Masters (Susan Stewart) to Tallahassee, Fla., where Marie was the celebrity guest during the city's annual springtime festival.
"Marie and I have been friends since we played lovers on 'Love of Life' in 1966. We're both afflicted with wanderlust. But her steady guy, John Reilly (ex-Dan Stewart) recently gave her an engagement ring, so don't imply anything romantic between Marie and me," said bachelor Dennis.
The anniversary bash was not all cheer and merriment. Ethel Remy (Alma Miller) suffered an off-screen stroke a few weeks ago. We're sure it would help Miss Remy's spirits if get-well cards are sent to her at the show, in care of CBS-TV, New York. Meanwhile, Dorothy Blackburn is filling in for Remy as Alma.
Another ailing cast member is Michael Nader (Kevin Thompson) who has been in and out of the hospital during the past few months for corrective surgery for disjuncted bones that have afflicted him since childhood.
"No more twisting and stomping as I did in all those beach blanket movies," sighed Kevin, who was featured in "three years' worth of those 'Gidget' and 'Frankie and Annette' series of flicks" during his teenage years. During Michael's last recuperative spell, John Cunningham (ex-Wade Collins on "Search For Tomorrow") subbed as Kevin.
Despite the off-screen drama, "As the World Turns," like old man river, keeps rollin' along as it enters its 23rd year of broadcasting.

Lie to Live') Deidre Hall and Jed Allan (Marlene and Don on "Days of Our Lives") and Tom Hallick (Brad on "The Young and the Restless") appear in the amusement park amphitheatre.
Unfortunately, the appearance will mark Hallick's last official soap opera duty since he declined to sign another year's contract for "Y & R". Hallick's career head has been turned since co-starring on nighttime TV's "Captain Nemo" series. Brad has been a pivotal "Y & R" character ever since the 1973 opening episode focused on the mysterious stranger to Geona City. But the role will not be recast in the foreseeable future, and Hallick's exit leaves only four remaining original castmembers, Robert Cobert (Stuart), Brenda Dickson (Jill), Juliana McCarthy (Liz) and Jaime Lynn Bauer (Laurie). And since the birth of Jaime's first child, the actress' future on the show remains questionable.
Get out your scratch pads and alter the names of Candice Earley (Donna Tyler on "All My Children") and David Reilly (Richard Abbott on "One Live to Live"). Candice is using her recently-married name and is now known as Candice Manera. Reilly is now billed as D. Will Reilly. William is the actor's real name but there was a conflict since another actor of the same name had been registered in the actor's union. To circumvent any confusion between the two actors, "OLTL's" Reilly devised the new moniker.

Eileen Herlie has returned to her role of Myrtle Lum on "All My Children" after a year's absence. Myrtle claims she has seen her dearly loved but dear departed Kitty Tyler alive and walking the streets.
Tune in "Tomorrow" to see if Myrtle's going bonkers or whether "AMC" has a ghost up its story sleeve.
Send your questions about soap operas to "Tune In Tomorrow," 230 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10017. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.

OSHA Grants For Safety Anticipated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is offering $2.7 million in grants to labor unions, trade groups and universities to set up programs for improving health and safety conditions in workplaces, it was announced Wednesday.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration grants are intended to heighten worker and employer awareness of hazards and to encourage changes aimed at eliminating those dangers, said OSHA's deputy administrator, Basil J. Whiting.

Whiting said OSHA will offer $8 million in grants in 1979 if its budget request is approved by Congress. "Inspections alone are not the way to improve health and safety," Whiting said, acknowledging that many businesses have felt antagonized by OSHA on-site inspections.

"We must have better tools to train employers and employees," he said. A program planning grant, with funding for no more than one year, will be available in amounts up to $50,000. After that, an operational grant of up to $250,000 a year will be available to fund a project for up to five years, Whiting said.

Among the activities the grants will support are training programs for identifying hazards, workplace risk assessments and medical screening and record keeping.

Court Backs Tenants' Right To Sue For Repairs

AUSTIN (AP) — Landlords owe their tenants liveable housing, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday. It said courts may no longer enforce rent on unsafe or unsanitary quarters.

The decision gave tenants the right to sue to force repairs of uninhabitable apartments, duplexes and rent houses as well as a defense against suits for non-payment of rent.

The 7-2 opinion was a precedent-making decision of major importance.

"I love it," said David Bragg, head of the Texas attorney general's consumer protection division.

In lawyer's language, the court said there is "an implied warranty of habitability" whenever a landlord rents living quarters to a tenant.

Bragg, whose division was not a party to the suit, said this is what the decision means in laymen's terms:

"The hundreds of complaints we have had from tenants in roach-infested apartments and apartments without heating — previous to this opinion, they had to keep paying that rent."

"Now, with this decision, the tenants have a right to demand that the landlord get the premises in liveable condition if he expects them to pay the rent."

"You don't have the right to unilaterally stop paying your rent. But if he tries to collect the rent, you could say, 'Not until you make it liveable.'"

Bragg said the importance of the decision is not so much in giving tenants the right to sue — which it does — but in establishing a defense in suits by landlords to collect rent on substandard quarters.

"It means that if you are paying $400 in rent, but the place is only worth $100 a month because of roaches and no heating, the tenant will pay only $100 if it goes to a lawsuit," he said.

"Hopefully, this will encourage landlords who do not maintain liveable quarters for their tenants to get them in good shape," he said.

The court ruled in a suit filed by Wilford Kamarath of Dallas against C. C. Bennett, from whom he and his family rented a $110-a-month apartment in March 1975.

Kamarath said hidden defects included ancient plumbing that burst, faulty wiring and structural defects that caused bricks to fall from the building. City building inspectors ordered Bennett in June 1975 to fix the place or vacate it.

Bennett notified Kamarath to pack up and leave. Kamarath stopped paying rent in July 1975, but stayed in the building for two months more.

The high court, in ruling for Kamarath, said landlords know best the defects of their buildings and have an advantage over tenants.

"In the present day housing market, the landlord is usually in a much better bargaining position than the tenant, which could result in the rental of poor housing and violation of public policies," it said.

The court made it clear the implied warranty did not apply to such things as carpeting or wall colors.

"In order to constitute a breach of implied warranty of habitability the defect must be of a nature which will render the premises unsafe or unsanitary or otherwise unfit for living therein," the court said.

It sent Kamarath's suit against Bennett back to a district court in Dallas for retrial in accordance with the new legal precedents established in the case.

In other action, the court:

— Upheld the validity of a sales tax imposed on leases of movies by motion picture theaters between October 1975 and

Right Of Way Cost Dispute Goes To Court

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court said Wednesday it will hear oral arguments May 10 over the State Department of Highway and Public Transportation's objection to paying over $80,000 for five acres of right-of-way in Lubbock County.

The state is appealing a ruling originally handed down by Lubbock County Court at Law Judge E.N. Boedeker in favor of Mary Stephenson Baker and other owners of the land being condemned for highway construction.

Under terms of the judgment, which was affirmed by the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals, the state was required to pay the Baker landowners $51,562 for the property and $30,000 in damages.

The state's main contention, according to court briefs, is the compensation is too great, specifically concerning the Bakers' use and benefit from several irrigation wells.

Oral arguments were set for 9 a.m. on May 3.

In another Lubbock County case, the Supreme Court let stand the decision that Raymond B. Pacheco had suffered only temporary incapacity from an on-the-job accident.

Pacheco sued Texas Employers' Insurance Association for worker compensation benefits, alleging he became totally disabled from a back injury while employed at Lubbock Manufacturing Company.

The Supreme Court had refused comment on the case, upholding the Amarillo appeals court and Lubbock District Judge Denzil Bevers, who awarded Pacheco $3,822 for his injuries. The insurance firm already had agreed to pay $4,340 damages.

Judge Halts Berkowitz Competency Testimony

NEW YORK (AP) — The second competency hearing of David R. Berkowitz was recessed unexpectedly after about two hours Wednesday so a new psychiatric interview with the Son of Sam suspect could be transcribed.

The hearing in Kings County Hospital prison ward took place behind closed doors. After the hearing, reporters were briefed by Justice Joseph R. Corso of the state Supreme Court.

Corso said the hearing on Berkowitz's ability to comprehend the charges against him and on whether he is able to assist in his defense might take longer than first estimated, perhaps as long as four days.

Corso said the time was needed because he was going to give both sides "a full and complete opportunity to expound their respective views. I will not rush them."

Berkowitz has been housed in the hospital since his arrest last August. He is accused in the Son of Sam slayings that took six lives and wounded seven persons over a 12-month period in Brooklyn, The Bronx and Queens.

Corso recessed the hearing until 10 a.m. Thursday to allow transcription of an interview that Dr. Daniel W. Schwartz, head of forensic psychiatry at the hospital, and his associate, Dr. Richard Weidenbacher, held with Berkowitz prior to the start of the day's hearing.

Corso said Dr. Schwartz would continue his testimony on Thursday. An extensive cross-examination was expected to follow.

Schwartz and Weidenbacher, acting as court-appointed psychiatrists, found the defendant incompetent to stand trial last October, but a state Supreme Court judge rejected their finding. They have since changed their minds, according to a source.

Stock Mart View Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices were mixed Wednesday in a session marked by pressure on two big-name glamor issues—International Business Machines and Digital Equipment.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials eased 2.77 to 767.41 after a 3.47-point decline Tuesday.

But gamers managed to outperform losers by about a 7-6 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

IBM showed a 3 1/2% loss at 236 3/4 as of the 4 p.m. close on the NYSE. At mid-day the computer giant reported that its first quarter earnings were up just 2.7 percent from the like period last year.

Digital Equipment, meanwhile, dropped 1 1/2% in active trading on a U.S. Patent and Trademark Office ruling that the company failed to disclose some pertinent information when it obtained a patent for computer tape in 1964.

Given IBM's status as the single most prominent holding of investing institutions, analysts said, disappointment over the company's earnings tended to weigh down the market generally.

New York (AP)—Wednesday's national price of New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close prices and volume reported. Securities also traded on other markets.

A Baseball Brouhaha?

JIM BOUTON

Are some high-salaried, long term baseball players dogging it? That's the question currently posed by Sport Magazine to some baseball experts. Earl Weaver, Baltimore Orioles manager, says: "Of course. But that's not because of high salaries. There are players making $40,000 who dog it. It's just that some players are more concerned about improving their talents than others. But that's human nature not high salaries." But ex-big league pitcher, author and sportscaster Jim Bouton backs the boys of summer: "Do you think John D. Rockefeller dogged it after he made his first million? Of course not. Why do people always say that about an athlete once he gets rich I never heard people say a businessman dogs it. Or a lawyer. Or a doctor. Look at the money they make. Professional athletes make it to the big leagues by being fiercely competitive all their lives, and to suggest a paltry million dollars is in their way is absurd." (NEA)

Diet, Exercise Tips Given

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swimsuit weather is nearing and millions of Americans are facing the need to shed a little excess weight picked up over the winter.

The Agriculture Department has prepared a booklet that may help. It tells how food and exercise affect your weight and offers some tips and suggested menus for taking off that surplus.

As with any good diet or exercise plan, the booklet urges a visit to your doctor before embarking on a program. He can help you decide what combination of diet and exercise will suit your special needs.

If you want to drop weight just by cutting down on food, you'll have to reduce your eating by about 1,000 calories per day to lose two pounds a week, the booklet says.

But if you add exercise to burn up, say 500 calories a day, you could cut down on food by only 500 calories and still lose those two pounds.

Sedentary activities like reading or watching television burn up 80 to 100 calories an hour, but moderate action, such as making beds or brisk walking, boosts this to 170 to 240 calories consumed.

And really strenuous activities such as bicycling, swimming or tennis burn 350 calories or more an hour.

A few tips from the booklet include:

- Plan your snacks. Snacks are all right as long as you figure them into your daily food total. Try fruit or a desert saved from dinner.

- Avoid high calorie nibbling. Just five potato chips can add 50 calories to your consumption.

- Avoid hidden calories. Adding fat or sugar during cooking sometimes can double the amount of calories in a food itself.

"Food and Your Weight" sells for $1 and can be obtained by writing to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 028F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Frampton Stages Fanfare

Peter Frampton is upstaging his own film debut in the boffo-budgeted "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Heart's Club Band" by first losing his screen virginity to video. It seems rock music's own Goldilocks is the number one fan of NBC's Black Sheep Squadron, and after meeting the series' star, Robert Conrad, at the recent People's Choice awards, the two made a deal. He'll debut on the airborne adventure in an episode set for April 13.

One of the show's producers said Frampton wanted to do the show so badly he even offered cut his hair. Fortunately, for his fans, Frampton's long locks will be right in character with his role as an island castaway.

"Sgt. Pepper's producer, Robert Stigwood, is supposedly seething over his star's apparent betrayal, and the fact that Frampton is donating his salary from Black Sheep to UNICEF has done nothing to put him back in Stigwood's good graces.

Air Force To Reduce Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force announced plans Wednesday to trim its headquarters staff by about 1,500 military and civilian jobs and decentralize some administrative and other functions.

The reorganization will involve transfers of 1,730 personnel, about two-thirds of them military, to bases in New Mexico, Texas and elsewhere.

The announcement said the objective is to "increase management cohesiveness and effectiveness."

When the actions are completed, by October 1979, the Air Force staff will total 18,950 in the Washington, D.C., area.

The Air Force said most of the staff reductions are expected to come about through attrition, transfer and early retirement but that some civilians will have to be fired. It did not say how many but indicated the number will be small.

The biggest personnel transfers will be made to Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., and Kelly AFB, Texas.

The Air Force said 400 military personnel and 100 civilian jobs will be shifted to Kirtland, where the Air Force plans to establish an Inspector General Activities Center. Parts of the Office of Special Investigations and all Security Police functions will be moved from the Washington area to Kirtland.

A total of 275 military and 145 civilian personnel positions will be shifted to Kelly Air Force Base, where the Air Force intends to set up an intelligence center and some information offices.

Rubin Has New Cause

Jerry Rubin, famed student radical and Chicago 7 co-defendant, is now 39 but his opinions are still going strong. Currently speaking up on behalf of women, Rubin told Form Magazine:

"Most men act so strong and tough on the outside, putting on a big show of masculinity. Why? Because on the inside we are scared, weak, fragile. Men, not women, are the weaker sex." If you told Rubin he was weak back in the sixties you'd probably have gotten a peace sign poked in your eye. (NEA)

Stars Hit Big Time

There comes that magic moment in a performer's life when he realizes that he's found the handle, cut the mustard — done the trick. Among the prized instants recalled in April's Crawdaddy are:

Stevie Nicks: "I hesitate before believing that first moment. It was hard for me to accept that I had something special..."

And Stevie Nicks' lead female singer with Fleetwood Mac, rock's current hot-cha combo: "I knew that I could get to people when I wrote my first song. I was 16 years old, really upset about my long lost love, and I realized that I could communicate that pain through the song..."

Crawdaddy also takes a look at classic survivors, who've bucked the odds to the top. Clint Eastwood says he almost buckled under the weight of being panned so often. "One critic wrote that I did nothing better than anyone who ever was on screen... I said to my wife 'I'm going to quit. I'm really going to quit. What am I doing — spinning my wheels? I gotta start doing something with my life.' I was 27." So he stopped feeling glum, and found his handle — a gun. (NEA)

New Postage Rate Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service is asking for comments from the public on its plan to offer a special mail rate to private citizens and charge more to businesses.

Under the proposal the first-class postage charge would remain at 13 cents for individuals, but would probably rise to 16 cents for businesses later this summer.

To get the special rate you would have to use the zip code in both the address and return address, but a requirement that the address or return address be handwritten has been dropped at the request of handicapped-rights groups.

If you want to express an opinion on this proposal the deadline is May 15. Write to the director, Office of Mail Classification, Rules and Classification Department, U.S. Postal Service, Room 1610, 475 L'Enfant Plaza SW, Washington, D.C., 20269.

IRS Seeks Public's Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has issued a plea that you remaining taxpayers send your returns in the special pre-addressed envelopes supplied with your tax forms.

IRS officials say use of the envelopes will speed up handling of the returns. Officials said they have received many incorrectly addressed forms, primarily because taxpayers used their own envelopes and copied an incorrect address from an old list.

Each tax center has its own postal zip code now and returns can be sent to them at "Internal Revenue Service Center."

High Price Payroll Reported

AUSTIN — After just more than two months in office, State Sen. Bob Price of Pampa has hired a staff whose monthly payroll is the third highest in the Texas Senate.

At $4,797, the salary paid to the five members of Price's staff is exceeded only by that paid to staff members on the payroll of Sen. Walter Mengden, a Houston Republican, and Sen. Frank Lombardino, a San Antonio Democrat.

Senators are authorized to spend up to $4,900 a month on staff salaries.

Price, a Republican, defeated Amarillo Democrat Bob Simpson, a member of the Texas House, in a neck-and-neck race to fill the senate seat vacated last fall when Amarillo Sen. Max Sherman resigned last fall to assume the presidency of West

'STREAK CAMERAS' USED
Energy researchers in California are focusing incredibly fast "streak cameras" on targets of nuclear fuel too tiny to see. National Geographic reports. They want to see what happens when the targets — tiny capsules of deuterium-are hit with a laser pulse that lasts a fraction of a billionth of a second and carries for that moment more wattage than all the power plants in the United States.

Solar Flare Particles To Bombard Earth

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Atomic particles from the most violent solar flare in nearly four years should begin bombarding the earth at approximately 10 a.m. Thursday, producing shortwave radio blackouts, telephone circuit outages and displays of the Northern Lights, a spokesman for Buhl Planetarium said Wednesday.

The explosion on the sun occurred at 9:40 a.m. Tuesday and shortly thereafter was detected by earth satellites, spokesman Paul Oles said.

Classified as a very energetic "X-2" type flare, it's particles likely will disrupt the earth's magnetic field and ionosphere causing certain radio signals to be absorbed rather than reflected. It will also excite the rarified gases in the earth's upper atmosphere, producing displays of the Northern Lights in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia on Thursday and, possibly, Friday night.

The Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights, are extremely unpredictable and can occur at any time following a large flare on the sun. If the weather is clear, Oles suggested observers look toward the north after darkness sets in. The display may range from a lake greenish glow on the northern sky to pulsating arch rays and shimmering curtains of multicolored light that fill most of the sky.

'Dumb Blonde' Role Revived

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The legendary Dumb Blonde of show business is alive and well and currently on display in television's "Operation Petticoat."

She is Lt. Dolores Crandall, blonde, buxom and bone-headed as played by Melinda (Mindy) Naud, who is blonde, buxom and bright.

As has been the case with most dumb blondes in vaudeville and burlesque on up through the Hollywood variety, from Thelma Todd to Marilyn Monroe, it takes a lot of gray matter to convincingly play it beautiful and brainless.

"Our producer doesn't think of Lieutenant Crandall as dumb," Mindy said the other day. "He calls her naive and clumsy. I say she is a well-meaning, good-natured klutz. And, yeah, well, dumb in a way."

Although Mindy is blessed with plenty of smarts, one question her IQ when it comes to doing stunts on the show.

In a recent episode of the ABC-TV sitcom, Mindy was locked in a glass chamber which slowly filled up with soap bubbles. At a given voice cue from outside the glass booth she was supposed to holler for help.

"They asked if I wanted a stunt girl to do it," Mindy said, "but I told them it would be a snap. As it turned out it almost killed me."

"I couldn't hear the cue outside the glass room. The bubbles got up to my chin and then over my head. When I took a deep breath to yell for help, I inhaled all the bubbles. They burned my throat and lungs and they took me to the hospital."

"In another segment I was supposed to open up one of those inflatable rafts and almost broke an arm in the process. When we did the pilot episode, I jumped into the ocean in mid-winter when the water temperature was 54 degrees."

"I take a lot of falls because Crandall is supposed to be awkward, so I end up with some black-and-blue marks. Once I cut myself and John Astin when I knocked him down and broke some cups

I was carrying. "The way the cast and crew looked at me I think they believe that on television's "Operation Petticoat."

"They might have a point. Sometimes things seem to go right over my head because I've so programmed myself to being Crandall. Even my parents have commented on that."

Mindy, 23, is unmarried and very close to her family. She lives at home with her parents and brothers and sisters in the San Fernando Valley.

The eldest of six, Mindy says she can afford to buy her own home but prefers to live with the family because it helps her maintain "a sense of reality."

Her father, Tom Naud, is a television-movie producer and her mother, Lillian, is an actress.

"They are wonderfully supportive," Mindy said. "And my mother and father can use my help at home. My youngest brother is 7 and my youngest sister is 10."

Nobody who knows Mindy personally questions her IQ. She had straight As in high school while holding down a full-time job in her senior year. She attended UCLA — earning top grades — while working as a model on a daytime television game show.

She speaks fluent Spanish and is as articulate as any young actress in show business.

Nor is Mindy content with her costarring role in "Operation Petticoat." She has composed more than a dozen songs and plans to accept one of several offers to record an album of her own work later this year.

She also plans to put to use her extensive training in drama by accepting guest roles in other TV shows during the hiatus of her situation comedy.

Jobs Insufficient To Meet High Demand

By PAUL ROSENSTIEL
Pacific News Service

The high unemployment that, despite a recent dip, continues to plague the American economy often is blamed by economists on workers who are able but unwilling to accept menial, low-paying jobs. But a Pacific News Service survey of state employment agencies throughout the country reveals just the opposite may be the case: the economy today is unable to generate enough jobs for the tens of thousands of unskilled workers eager for employment, no matter what the job or pay.

Typical of the view of employment officials is that of Joe Wooddall, chief of Labor Information Systems for the Georgia Employment Security Agency. Because of a "chronic shortage of jobs for the unskilled," he said, "unskilled workers generally take any job they can get."

Colleen Shearer, director of the Iowa Department of Job Service, agreed. "In Iowa," she said, "there exists a shortage of unskilled jobs and a demand for skilled workers."

Raymond Thorne, administrator of the employment division of the Oregon Department of Human Resources, said, "I don't feel that applicants who refuse to accept work, especially in the unskilled ranks, are a significant cause of unemployment." Although according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the economy has generated a large number of new jobs — more than four million in 1977 — competition for those jobs has grown nearly as fast.

According to Eli Ginzberg, chairman of the National Commission for Manpower Policy and an economics professor at Columbia University, the new positions were an attraction for many. "A lot of people who've been out of the labor market or who've never been in have come in," he said.

The three million new job seekers who entered the labor market in 1977 nearly offset the increase in employment. As a result, unemployment declined by only about one million.

Also, according to U.S. Employment Service figures, the fastest job growth was concentrated in highly skilled occupations. In the first eleven months of 1977 job listings at Employment Service offices rose fastest for such occupations as engineering, computer programming, carpentry, concrete finishing and plumbing. In contrast, low growth or declines characterized such low-skill occupations as cashiering, sales, food processing, dentistry, garment pressing and machine sewing.

Fred Barrett, administrator of the Employment Security Division of the Montana Department of Labor and Industry, said, "Generally those jobs which require a high degree of education or skill are most difficult to fill."

The mountains of data churned out by the U.S. Employment Service tend to confirm this. In a sample of their offices around the country in February 1977, only 14 percent of service jobs such as dishwasher, janitor and waitress had been unfilled 30 days or longer, compared to 19 percent for all jobs. This lower rate of unfilled listings in the service category occurred despite the $2.76 an hour average wage, lowest of any category of jobs.

And low pay doesn't appear to be the reason: even those 14 percent went unfilled. A new series of statistics published by the federal service shows that almost without exception jobs of all types open 30 days or longer pay better than the ones that were filled. Last September, for example, the average pay for service jobs available in California was $3.03 an hour. But for the 11 percent of those jobs that had remained unfilled at least a month the average pay was $3.40 an hour.

"That surprised us," said U.S. Department of Labor economist Alan Moss, who handles those statistics. "The assumption has always been that those jobs are staying open because they're lousy jobs, but these figures sort of destroy that assumption."

William O'Toole of the New York Department of Labor likewise concluded that "low pay, in and of itself, has not been major obstacle to filling jobs." He quoted New York Employment Service records that over a recent 12-month period 36 percent of all jobs filled paid less than $3 an hour and such jobs were more easily filled than better paying jobs.

Moss and others suggest that jobs remain open for such reasons as high skill and experience requirements or geographical inaccessibility. "There's a lot of demand in the Sun Belt and suburban areas, but a lot of the unemployed are in the inner cities or in the Northeast," said Moss. Robert David, executive director of the South Carolina Employment Security Commission, said, "Most hard-to-fill openings go unfilled because of a lack of qualified applicants."

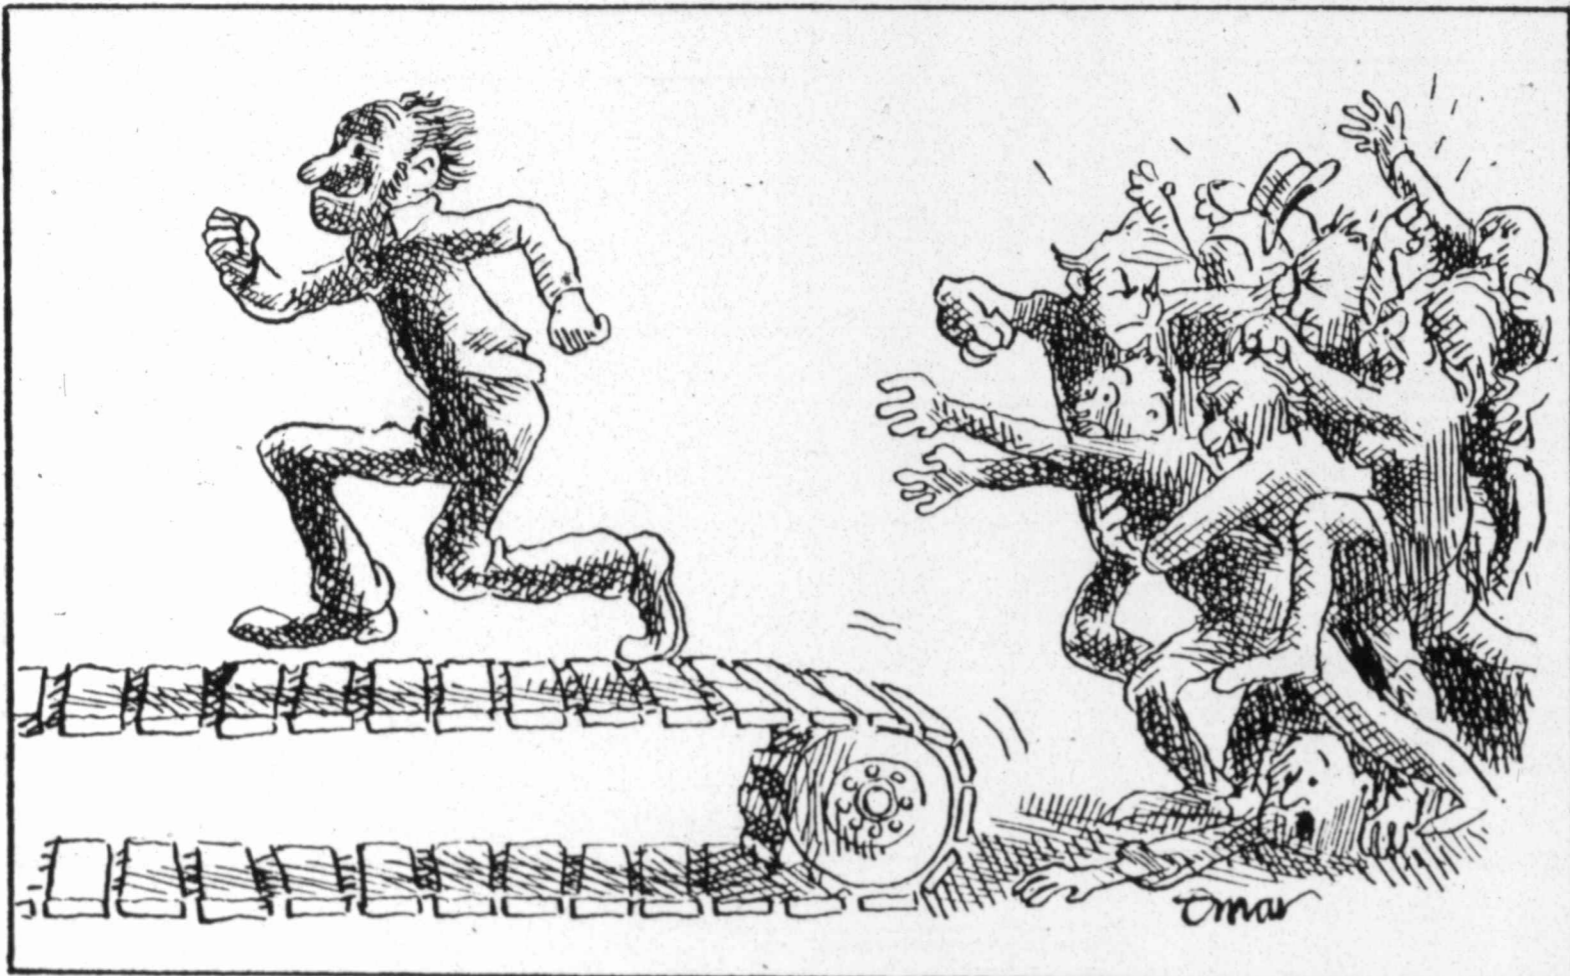

If anything, the refusal of people to take jobs is less a factor contributing to unemployment now when unemployment is high than in times of lower unemployment.

The fiercer competition for jobs deprives job seekers of the luxury of being picky. "It appears that as the unemployment rate edges up, the percentage of jobs unfilled edges down," said Moss. "In other words, people are accepting jobs that they might not normally accept."

Instead, it is employers who can be picky. "Sometimes it feels like when you fill out an application, as soon as you walk out they throw it in the garbage can," said Rudy Del Sol, 34, a San Francisco job seeker.

Mario Martinez, 39, another San Franciscan, said he visits the local employment office every day in an unsuccessful search for a job. Several times a week, he said, officials there direct him to an interview for a low-skilled, low-paying job of the type for which he is qualified. But each time he arrives, Martinez said, he finds at least 20 other job seekers sent by the same agency because they, too, desperately need and want work.

The problem, he said, is not that too many people don't want to work. It's that too many people do want to work.

High Turnover Believed Major Factor In Unemployment Rise

Pacific News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Like tens of millions of other Americans, 21-year-old San Franciscan Donald Jacob thought he understood the unemployment problem. It was, he thought, the difference between the number of jobs available and number of people who want to work.

But in the last few years Donald Jacob's strategy for finding work has demonstrated that another factor — a continuing sharp decline in job quality — may be offsetting the recent national growth in the number of jobs.

"I once had a job paying $2.30 an hour, and I quit it for the simple reason that it wasn't paying enough," he said. "Eventually I found something better." Now unemployed again, Jacob is broke and ready to take any job he can get. But if it pays poorly, he insisted, "I'll keep looking for something better at the same time."

When workers such as Jacob move constantly from one low-paying, dead-end position to another, many economists and employment counselors warn, and increase in such jobs may merely substitute bad work for no work.

Lawrence McCracken, executive director of the Nevada Employment Security Department, said, "The situation in Nevada is not one of unskilled workers refusing to take low-paying jobs, but rather not staying with the job for very long. As such, high turnover is a contributing factor to unemployment."

The same is true throughout the country. The South Carolina Employment Security Commission, for example, reports high turnover in the state's many low-paying sewing machine operator jobs.

"High unemployment rates have forced some workers to take jobs at a lower pay skill level than they previously held," said Raymond Thorne, administrator of the Employment Division of the Oregon Department of Human Resources.

Another exacerbating factor has been the concentration of new job growth in the lowest paying industries. Between 1970 and the end of 1977, according to U.S. Labor Department figures, 89 percent of private sector new-job growth occurred in three industries — trade, service, and finance, insurance and real estate. The average weekly wages in these areas run about 20 percent below the average for all jobs in the nation. In those years, for every job created in higher paying industries, 13 people entered the labor force.

"The solution, of course, is to make the jobs more attractive," said William Papier, research chief for the Ohio bureau of Employment Services, many other economists and employment experts agree that the creation of good jobs is necessary to combat unemployment, especially among unskilled, minority, young and women workers.

Much of the job turnover is dictated by financial necessity. "A lot of times someone will take a low paying job just to see if they can make it," explains a job placement official with California's Employment Development Department, "but often they don't last because they cannot support themselves or their families."

The growth of low paying jobs is also central to the mushrooming welfare rolls, according to Joseph Califano, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "We have this image of somebody on welfare sitting back in a rocking chair, not working," he said in a recent interview. "Most work, but they don't earn enough to keep themselves above the subsistence level, and so they need to supplement their income with welfare."

Job growth in the higher paying industries did accelerate in 1977 but much of the improvement was due to a sharp upturn in the construction industry, where skill requirements and large numbers of jobless union members barred most lesser skilled workers from competing for the jobs.

Throughout the 1970s the need to find better paying jobs grew more urgent as average earnings in the lower paying industries failed to keep pace with inflation. From 1972, when inflation began accelerating, until the end of 1977, the purchasing power of wages in low-paying industries grew 12 percent slower than the consumer price index, while wages in higher paying industries grew 5 percent faster. By 1975, 3.9 million workers in the prime working ages of 20 to 64 worked full-time and earned under $5,000 — below the poverty line for a family of four.

Many families have tried to beat inflation by having two members work while many others struggle on as before, but against greater odds. "There's no question that many people who are working at minimum wage jobs are the sole wage earners in the family," said Jack Karlin, research director for the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration.

Wages, alone, seem to be only part of the problem. "There are always jobs at the lower end of the wage scale," said Eli Ginzberg, an economics professor at Columbia University and chairman of the National Commission for Manpower Policy. "What may be new," he said, "is the tremendous amount of growth in the service sector with many small employers. This creates 'difficulties in piecing together a sequence for upward mobility and therefore a lot of these people really get trapped in these lousy jobs.'"

If, for example, there's a union among waiters, Ginzberg says, that places its members in better and better jobs on the basis of seniority and experience, a waiter starting out at a small luncheonette can eventually expect something better. But such arrangements rarely exist in the service industries.

As a result the only place for thousands of service workers to go is to the unemployment line.

Ginzberg predicted the problem of job quality will develop by 1990 into an important one the nation must address. By that time, he said, youth — who normally expect only low-paying, unskilled jobs — will decline as a proportion of the work force because of declining birth rates in the 1960s and 1970s. But the proportion of women will increase, and as they become more permanent participants in the world of work, they "will be seeking good jobs and a career, not just any job." He wrote in a recent issue of Scientific American. "If this forecast proves to be correct, the availability of good jobs will become a central issue of public policy."

Luncheon Set To Honor Four Tech Alumni

Four alumni of Texas Tech University's College of Engineering have been designated as 1978 "Distinguished Engineers" and will be recognized at noon, Friday, in the University Center Ballroom.

Recipients for 1978 are Richard W. Hurn, research supervisor, Fuels/Engine Systems, Bartlesville Energy Research Center, U.S. Department of Energy; T.A. Rogers, board chairman of Lubbock Manufacturing Co. and president of General Steel Warehouse, Inc.; California-based diversified advanced technology company which he founded, and Horace L. Smith, director of the Water Pollution Control The public is invited to the awards luncheon and may make reservations by person. A reception in room 100, Engineering Center.

In addition to awarding "Distinguished Engineer" awards, the Continental Oil Co. and the Hemphill-Wells Foundation will be presented certificates of citation, recognizing their long-time support of the College of Engineering programs.

Former Wife Believes In Mutscher's Innocence

AUSTIN (AP) — Donna Axum says the anger is gone, but she remains convinced her former husband Gus Mutscher was innocent of charges that toppled him from power as Texas House Speaker in the Sharpstown scandal.

"I don't think he did anything legally wrong," the blue-eyed Miss America of 1944 said. "I think he used poor judgment, and that certainly is a human fallacy."

In the six years since his conviction, she went through divorce and a difficult child custody decision and resumed life as a single, working woman.

Until now, she has said little about those years. In a book published recently, "The Outer You, The Inner You," she explains her side of Sharpstown.

Miss Axum, who has taken her maiden name, discussed Sharpstown, the disintegration of her marriage to Mutscher and her new book in an interview at KTBC-TV, where she hosts a noon television show.

Although she divorced Mutscher two years after his conviction on charges of conspiring to accept a bribe, she said the marriage would have crumbled even without the strain of Sharpstown.

"The basic problem within our marriage was communication. Lack of communication before the marriage as to what was expected of the other individual," she said.

"Gus was a 37-year-old bachelor when we met in September of 1968," she wrote. "Our dates that followed always took place in large social and political gatherings — seldom on a personal, one-to-one basis. We really never got to know one another as individuals."

Only six pages of the book deal with her life with Mutscher and later divorce. Personal grooming and personality development, subjects Miss Axum became familiar with during beauty pageants, take up most of the book.

"The point of the book was not a vehicle from which to talk about Sharpstown," she said. "But (without including Sharpstown) I could not tell the whole story, or use it as a point of reference in making a point."

"I could not have written this book, the part about Sharpstown just after I experienced it," she said. "One, because it was too painful. And secondly, because I could not be as objective about it at that point. You're not beaten, kicked and spit on you know, for a year-and-a-half without feeling some anger. Time does a lot. It heals wounds."

She learned of her husband's involvement when the Securities and Exchange Commission announced an investigation of the Sharpstown State Bank, owned by Houston financier Frank Sharp.

"I learned that, without discussing it with me, he had borrowed these large sums of money (from Sharpstown State Bank) to buy the stock — a community liability," she wrote of a January 1971, conversation with Mutscher.

"I felt very frustrated because I found myself as an innocent party in all of this," she said of the discovery.

Mutscher later was indicted on charges of selling political influence in 1969 to assure passage of two controversial banking bills.

Media coverage of the Mutschers turned from stories of a glamorous courtship and marriage to hard questioning about the loans and Mutscher's relationship with Sharp.

Miss Axum writes of being "harassed from all sides on a daily basis." During Mutscher's trial, one reporter said she struck him with her purse, which she denies.

"They're (reporters) expected to get the story or else they won't be at their job too long. I can appreciate that," she said.

"However, I felt that both sides of the story, as it was coming out of the trial were not being told. Most of the stories were from a prosecution standpoint only," she said.

Mutscher received a five-year probated sentence. The family, including Donna's 6-year-old daughter Lisa, from a previous marriage, and 3-year-old Gus Hurley, moved to Mutscher's hometown of Bren-

Gus ran for his old House seat, against his wife's advice, and lost in a runoff.

The year after that defeat, it became clear, she said, that basic differences between them began unraveling the marriage.

She moved back to Austin and in 1974 sued for divorce. They later agreed Gus would take custody of their son. The decision was the hardest Miss Axum said she had to go through.

"Gus had gone through a great deal. The speakership, he was forced to resign from that, obviously, the humiliation of a trial. All of those things can terribly undermine the self-confidence of any individual. For both Gus' sake and for Gus Hurley's sake, I thought this was the best arrangement for us as a family because Gus was not working at an 8 to 5 job and he could be with Gus more than I could, working at an 8 to 5 job."

"And the grandparents were there, and I thought he would have a lot of family around them and that was important. And most of all I felt that Gus needed Gus Hurley a great deal," she said. "I could not take the last thing from him that meant so much to him. And it worked."

She sees Mutscher, now a Washington County judge, "every week or two," and her son visits on weekends.

"I think the people who are closest to me have understood it was the only workable way," she reflected.

The future looks good, Miss Axum, 36, says.

"After feeling almost dead for a few years," she writes, "I know that alive is the greatest word to apply to my life now."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q — I have been advised to sell out some AT&T common at a profit, offset that gain by taking a loss in some low-yield growth stocks, and then put all the proceeds into some 8-8 1/2 percent bonds in order to boost income. I'm retired.

A — If you are retired and seeking additional income, low-yield growth stocks are not your dish, whether they show you a profit or a loss. They should be sold and the proceeds put to work earning around 8 1/2 percent in higher yielding securities.

However, I don't see the necessity of taking an offsetting profit in AT&T common which, on the day your letter arrived, was yielding 7 1/2 percent. You can use the growth stock losses to reduce other taxable income, and if they are too large to deduct in one year, they can be spread over several years.

Q — I brought some Commonwealth Edison 8 1/4s of 2007 at 99 5/8 before they began trading on the exchange, expecting them to trade at par when listed. I saved commissions by buying them prior to listing but still have a loss. Furthermore I was told they were rated AAA but find Standard & Poor's lists them as AA.

A — I assume you mean you bought them on the original offering, thus saving commissions. I don't understand your assumption that they would trade at par on the exchange. I don't know where you got the AAA rating, but the guide book does show AA, which is a good rating. The fact that you have a loss on your purchase stems primarily from the fact that interest rates have turned up since the bond was originally sold. There's nothing wrong with saving brokerage commission by buying a security on the original public offering. But that guarantees nothing as to subsequent profit or loss.

Q — I paid $10,000 into a mutual fund from 1962 to 1972 and now hold shares with a current price of $6,900. I maintain I have a loss of $3,100 for income tax purposes but my accountant says no.

A — You have a loss of $3,100 plus any dividends and/or capital gains reinvested in acquiring additional shares.

Q — I'm a married woman, 55, who has just resigned from a position and will soon receive $18,000 from the profit-sharing fund. How can I reduce the taxes? My husband is still at work.

A — I suggest you discuss this matter with a tax advisor who can help you determine what options are open to you. You may be able to "roll over" the money into a tax-deferred IRA account. Or he may suggest different methods of withdrawing the money. Once free of restrictions, the money can earn tax-exempt income if reinvested in municipal bonds.

Q — I think you have scared some elderly people who need income from cashing in their E bonds because income taxes on past accumulated interest then become due. You neglect to point out that many old people in this country retire on modest incomes which fall well below even lowest tax bracket.

A — You are obviously correct. I have pointed out many times that certain incomes and interest is taxable. But that doesn't mean everyone pays the same tax on it, or in fact, necessarily pays any tax.

Q — You frequently mention high rates of income from savings certificates. Is there a clearing house for such information?

A — Not that I know of. You must check your local bank advertisements.

SHULSKY welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For information on mutual funds, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, 235 East 45th St., New York, N.Y., 10017.

Drug Convicted Overt

AUSTIN (AP) — Criminal Appeals Court today affirmed the conviction of a man sentenced to life or cause jury selection.

The court sent the man, Hernandez, back to trial. Hernandez was charged with a crime involving a police officer.

The defense lawyer argued that the conviction was unjust because the police officer was not a police officer.

The judge, however, used one of his challenges. After a lengthy trial, the judge found the defendant guilty.

The appeals court should have allowed to dismiss the prosecution because the conviction was unjust.

In other cases, the court has found that a conviction is unjust because the defendant was not a police officer.

Drug Case Conviction Overturned

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday overturned the conviction of a Bexar County man sentenced to life on a heroin charge because jury selection was handled improperly.

The court sent the case of Fidel Lozano Hernandez back for a possible new trial. Hernandez was convicted of delivering heroin to a San Antonio undercover policeman.

The defense lawyer wanted to dismiss a prospective juror, Jean Abel, for cause because she said she could not believe a police officer would lie from the witness stand.

The judge, however, forced the lawyer to use one of his limited peremptory challenges. After using all of his peremptory challenges, the lawyer said he would have dismissed another prospective juror if he had another challenge remaining.

The appeals court said the trial judge should have allowed the defense lawyer to dismiss the prospective woman juror on cause because "there is no doubt that venireman Abel's attitude toward police officers constituted a bias against the appellant."

In other cases, the appeals court: —Upheld the murder conviction of John Lewis Sullivan, who was sentenced to 75 years in the shotgun slaying of his stepfather.

Sullivan was arrested on a South Dallas street near a parked car. He denied contact with the car, where officers later found a sawed-off shotgun.

Sullivan objected to the car's search, but the court said he had no grounds to object since he disclaimed ownership of the vehicle.

—Overturned the robbery conviction of David Travis Cleland, who was sentenced to 15 years. He was charged with spraying mace at a Houston service station operator and taking money from the station's cash register.

The appeals court said the trial judge improperly instructed the jury that it could return a guilty verdict if the panel found Cleland had either caused bodily injury or threatened to harm the operator.

The court said the indictment against Cleland only alleged he caused bodily injury, and returned the case for new trial.

—Reversed the driving while intoxicated conviction of Freddie Lee Eason of Brazoria County because his attorney was not present during jury selection.

—Returned to Corpus Christi for a possible new trial the case of Vernon Kelleys, who pleaded no contest to charges of possession of heroin and was sentenced to seven years. The court said the trial judge did not advise Kelleys on the range of punishment and also did not make sure the plea was voluntarily entered.

Five Accused In Grain Indictment

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury handed down a single indictment here Wednesday for conspiracy, racketeering and income tax violations against five persons connected with local grain companies and the Port of Houston public grain elevator.

Named in the 13-count indictment were Kenneth Roden, manager of the Port of Houston public grain elevator; Leo Rankin, former elevator superintendent; James Bennett, owner of Bennett-Evans Grain Co. of Alvin; and Ted Reynolds, owner of Ted Reynolds Grain Co. of Houston, and his wife, Nancy Reynolds.

The first count of the indictment alleges the five took part in a scheme to defraud grain purchasers by shortweighing, shortloading and diverting grain.

The second count alleges the defendants conspired to conduct the enterprise through racketeering.

Reynolds and his wife are accused of setting up the West Gulf Trading Co. as a part of the racketeering count. Roden and Rankin are accused of substituting lower quality for purchased higher quality grain. Rankin is charged with receiving $165,912 in bribes while Roden is charged with taking $154,332.

The indictment alleges the illegal activity occurred from 1969 to 1973.

The remaining 11 counts deal with specific allegations of income tax violations.

Singer To Be Paid In Gold Bullion

LONDON (AP) — Singer Bette Midler, the "Divine Miss M," will be paid in gold bullion for a planned British concert tour this fall, a spokesman for her London publicity agents said Wednesday.

"Her manager believes all currencies are suspect these days and wants to make sure she doesn't take a loss six months from now," the spokesman said.

The agents, Rogers and Cowan, declined to say what Miss Midler's fee was for the shows.

"This isn't a publicity stunt," the spokesman said. "It's just a way of protecting her fees negotiated for the tour against fluctuating exchange rates."

He added that Miss Midler is also demanding payment in gold from promoters in other European countries she will tour after Britain.

A spokesman for the Bank of England, which has to approve any payments in bullion, said there was no objection to a non-Briton buying gold on the London bullion market for another non-resident, providing he paid in foreign currency.

U.S., Mexico Confer On Pipelines

HOUSTON (AP) — A top official of Mexico's government-owned oil industry said Wednesday the Mexican government is prepared to build the additional pipelines necessary to ship natural gas to the United States, if the U.S. government approves the asking price.

"The United States needs this energy, and Mexico has it. Therefore we feel confident that a mutually beneficial agreement will be reached in the near future," Ignacio de Leon, assistant director general for purchasing of Petroleos Mexicanos, told a group of American businessmen attending an international trade conference here.

De Leon said after his speech that the reasonable figure was $2.60 per thousand cubic feet, a price energy secretary James Schlesinger says is too high. The U.S. now pays $2.16 for Canadian gas. Six U.S. interstate distribution companies have offered to buy two billion cubic feet of natural gas daily at Mexico's quoted price, but they need government approval before going ahead with the arrangement.

De Leon told the meeting of the Fifth Annual International Trade Conference of the Southwest that the U.S. has been the source of 70 percent of Mexican imports.

"Yet Mexico has never asked the U.S. to discount the price of its goods," he said, adding that Mexico "is being forced to turn increasingly to countries other than the United States for its needed imports."

The Mexican price is pegged to the cost of No. 2 fuel oil which would be used in Mexico to substitute natural gas being exported.

An 821-mile natural gas pipeline from southern Mexico to San Fernando, about 80 miles south of Brownsville, will be completed in February of next year.

The Mexicans are prepared, according to De Leon, to extend the pipeline to the border cities of Reynosa, Mexico, and McAllen, Texas, if an agreement is reached on the price. The Mexicans also say the extension would eliminate costly shipping charges for the importing country.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is scheduled to visit Mexico next month, and observers there say he may discuss gas prices with President Jose Lopez Portillo.

De Leon said Mexico expects to have a surplus of about one million barrels of oil a day and two billion cubic feet of natural gas by 1980. The Library of Congress has predicted Mexico will rank fourth as a hydrocarbon-producing nation in 15 years.

The Mexican official also said after his speech that if American importers cannot pay the asking price for Mexican gas, it will be used in Mexico for fuel and the oil not used will be exported. "We are set up to switch over from fuel oil to gas from one day to the next, so that is no problem," de Leon said.

Texas Student Awaits Ruling

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The supreme court will rule soon on an appeal by a 23-year-old Texas student against a five-year jail term she received for running a scouting mission for Arab guerrillas, her attorney said Wednesday.

Attorney Felicia Langer said no date has been set for the continuation of the supreme court hearing in the case of Terry Fleener, a student at the University of Texas at San Antonio, and one-time stewardess for Kuwaiti Airlines.

During the first hearing Tuesday, the court ruled to lift a security blackout on the proceedings. Miss Fleener's conviction

January 9 by the Tel Aviv district court came after a secret trial.

Mrs. Langer said she expected the supreme court to announce its decision "very shortly."

During Tuesday's hearing, she said, she appealed for reduction of Miss Fleener's sentence and immediate deportation because of the "marginal case" against her client. Prosecutor Sara Sirota said Miss Fleener should be "happy" that she got away with such a light sentence.

Miss Fleener, dressed in dark prison clothes, was brought to court handcuffed in a police van.

Ohio Schools Facing Financial Crisis

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Financial problems which have plagued Ohio schools for months approached crisis levels Wednesday in Cleveland and Toledo, two of the state's largest systems.

In Cleveland, teachers have not been paid since March 17 and there is no money to meet the next $5 million bi-weekly payroll due Friday. The teachers are voting this week whether to strike, and the Ohio Supreme Court is considering a request to order Cleveland's schools closed so teachers can qualify for unemployment compensation.

On Wednesday, the court ordered state school officials to file their side of the argument by Monday, and scheduled a hearing for Tuesday.

The system serves 113,000 students. Some teachers have already begun signing up for food stamps.

In Toledo, a strike over the size of a pay raise has already begun — and has been disrupting classes for 52,000 students since Monday.

On Wednesday, school officials asked a judge to order teachers and other school workers back to their jobs.

The problems are only the latest symptoms of a chronic dilemma for many Ohio school districts: Voters have become reluctant to approve new taxes which educators say they need to keep the schools going. At the same time, state law strictly limits a school district's ability to engage in deficit financing.

Last November, most of Cleveland's teachers stayed away from classes for a week when the system was unable to meet a payroll. That problem was temporarily solved with special legislation allowing the school district to carry a $20 million debt over into 1978 — a practice normally forbidden by state law.

But the incident apparently did not impress Cleveland's voters. Just last week, even though budgeted school funds for spring were already exhausted, they rejected a new school tax.

Last November, banks went along with the carryover arrangement because new tax monies were assured after Jan. 1. But they are more reluctant to extend credit now because the fiscal problems have mounted, particularly after the vote on new taxes.

So the school officials, saying they need $32 million to finish the school year and noting that some utility bills haven't been paid since November, have gone to the legislature. Leaders there are considering a $30 million advance to the system — but saying they first want an accounting of how it will be spent.

School officials have rescheduled the tax plan for a June 6 ballot, but the effects are already being felt. Most of the 1,700 students at Cleveland's Lincoln West High School walked out of classes Wednesday to protest the failure to pay employees. Classes continued at the school, but smaller walkouts were reported at two other schools.

Toledo's problems are also related to events last November — when schools ran out of money and shut down for a week. But, in contrast to events in Cleveland, a plea to voters was successful.

The campaign for passage of a new levy mentioned a raise needed by teachers, and schools reopened Nov. 9, the day after it passed.

Now, however, the 3,900 employees are on strike about the size of their raise. They were granted a 7 percent across-the-board pay hike March 28; a spokesman has said teachers feel that is not enough.

Meanwhile, two other Ohio districts also have problems:

—U.S. District Court Judge Leroy J. Contie Jr. dismissed a National Association for the Advancement of Colored People complaint against public schools in Youngstown Wednesday, finding that the school board did not intentionally segregate schools. But he said it had disproportionately assigned black teachers and administrators to mostly black schools, and gave the board 60 days to file a plan for reassignments. NAACP lawyer Tom Adkins said the NAACP would appeal.

—The board of education in the small Brunswick school district told the Ohio Supreme Court some of its striking teachers should remain in jail — where they have been since Saturday — until they agree to obey a court order and go back to work.

Town Hit Hard By Suicide

LINDEN (AP) — They buried the boy voted "most likely to succeed" Tuesday and the residents of this small East Texas town wonder why.

Monte "Kip" Currie was a 17-year-old high school football star, National Merit Scholarship finalist, and one of five candidates in the running for class valedictorian.

His parents say he was also a troubled young man who apparently used a shotgun to take his own life in a field 100 yards behind his home Sunday.

"He had everything going for him. It was hard to imagine he had that much of a burden," said high school principal Jack Heathington.

Most people in this town of 2,000 are shocked and stunned by the death.

He suffered some type of mental breakdown, said his mother, Almeta Currie. "He said he had two or three experiences where he felt something literally took over his mind."

The parents said their son had been troubled for four or five years and had been under a doctor's care for more than a year.

"Part of his trouble stemmed from his intelligence," his mother said. "Kip told us he was so afraid he was going to lose control of his conscience. That he might do something to hurt someone else. He said he simply could not allow that to happen."

The parents say they don't feel guilty nor do they "feel any guilt" toward Kip's friends or teachers.

"He was one in a million. You would just have to know our boy. He was a Christian and he was being tempted," said Dwain Currie. "He was under terrible temptation to turn away from God. He was afraid if he ever allowed himself to turn away he could never return to God."

His parents say there is a lesson to be learned and perhaps by discussing their son they can prevent a similar tragedy in another family.

"Through it all they said their son was able to talk to them. His classmates never knew he was troubled, but he could always talk to us. Perhaps if more parents and teachers could open similar lines of communication with their children, some other child may be prevented from taking his life."

Union Head Suffers Mild Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller suffered a mild heart attack Wednesday at a Miami Beach, Fla., hospital where he'd been treated for a stroke. It was announced by the union's headquarters here.

UMW spokesman Joe Jurczak said Miller, 55, was stricken Wednesday morning at Mount Sinai Medical Center "and his plans to leave the medical center have thus been postponed while he is recovering."

Miller, who was listed in stable condition, has been in the hospital since March 29, when he suffered a slight stroke just two days after 160,000 UMW members ended a 111-day strike.

The union president was ordered by his physician to take sick leave to recuperate from the grueling coal strike, and was resting in Miami when he suffered his stroke.

Dr. Joel Dokson, a neurologist treating Miller, said last week that the UMW chief was undergoing physical therapy to regain control of some functions weakened by the stroke. Dokson said Miller had an "excellent" chance for a full recovery.

The union president, who also suffers from high blood pressure, arthritis and a respiratory ailment, had been scheduled to be released from Mount Sinai on Wednesday, according to hospital spokeswoman Judy Stanton.

Lance Calls Reporting Sloppy, Biased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bert Lance told newspaper editors Wednesday he has been mistreated by sloppy and biased reporting that could threaten America's press with censorship.

Lance, who resigned as President Carter's budget director last year during a Senate investigation of his personal bank-

Extra Funds Sought For Nutrition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration Wednesday asked Congress to approve a more than 100 percent increase in funding of a special feeding program for pregnant women and for children and infants.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman made the request in an appearance before a subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee. The proposed upgrading of the feeding program had been disclosed in President Carter's fiscal 1979 budget message.

The administration also asked that the school breakfast program, now operated by 20,000 schools serving less than 3 million children, be required in all schools where more than half the pupils are eligible for free or reduced-price lunches. And it requested lawmakers to hold the line off the basic federal subsidy for school lunches.

The special feeding program for pregnant and breast-feeding women, newborn infants and children, known as the WIC program, would cost $555 million under Mrs. Foreman's proposal instead of the presently authorized $255 million a year.

The cut-off age for the children in the program would be three years instead of the present five, she said. Outside studies of the program have indicated that the nutritional health of the children has been raised to satisfactory levels by that time.

Mrs. Foreman said the extra money would allow expansion of the program to serve some 1.5 million persons a year instead of approximately 1.25 million now. The WIC program provides specially tailored food packages to women and children who have been certified as being "at nutritional risk" by a local health clinic. Regular medical check-ups are a requirement for receiving the aid.

The aim of the 5-year-old program is to reduce anemia and low birth weights that are associated with later physical and mental problems, especially among poor infants.

Cut-rate lunches, subsidized by federal funds, are available to children from families whose incomes fall below the federal poverty line, about $11,000 a year for a four-person household, for example.

Schools in rural areas with less than 100 pupils would be exempt from the breakfast requirement, which would take effect with the 1979-80 school year.

The Agriculture Department pays schools 27.5 cents in cash or commodities for every lunch served, including those for which pupils are charged "full price" before reimbursements for the cut-rate meals served.

The proposal would maintain but not increase that basic subsidy, which has been boosted 141.7 percent since May 1971 while restaurant food prices have risen only 72.8 percent.

Rhodesians Set Release Date For Detainees

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia's new integrated government said Wednesday it will start releasing political detainees Thursday as part of the internal settlement in the breakaway British colony.

But black nationalists affiliated with the Patriotic Front guerrillas fighting a war in the chrome-rich African nation said it is unlikely their colleagues would be freed.

Secretary For Law and Order Peter Claypole told a news conference the first of 461 prisoners — nearly half of all political detainees — will leave jail Thursday.

The release is part of the multiracial interim government established as part of the "internal" majority rule accord between Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith and three black leaders but not the Patriotic Front.

The United States and Britain have called the internal settlement "illegal" and are trying to organize a peace conference that will include the Front guerrillas. The guerrillas have waged a five-year war against Smith that has taken 10,000 lives.

Claypole said those being freed would not be barred from politics but had to sign an undertaking not to engage in unlawful activity.

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the members of the ruling executive council, is himself a former detainee.

Claypole said restrictions on the movement of 254 former detainees have been lifted and there are no longer any "restrictions" in Rhodesia, which declared itself independent from Britain in 1965 rather than take steps to majority rule. Rhodesia has 273,000 whites and 6.7 million blacks.

Claypole said the Executive Council issued the broad guidelines on the release and security was the main criterion.

Political affiliation was not a factor in deciding which of the nationalists held without trial as suspected security risks go free, Claypole said.

ing practices, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors he could spend hours reciting examples "of careless, erroneous or biased reporting" about him during the investigation and since he returned to Atlanta.

Presidential aides Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell, speaking later to the same audience, said Lance would remain their friend no matter what happened to him.

Lance's banking practices still are under scrutiny by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Justice Department.

James Mann, an SEC lawyer, said the agency had no intention of changing the wording of a consent order to which Lance objected in his speech. He complained it was "demonstrably false," but the SEC lawyer said if that was true, Lance should not have signed the consent order.

Lance said the SEC document became the basis of a story showing "the editorial bias and media mind set that underlies much of the Bert Lance coverage."

Such reporting, Lance said, gave the public the idea he was "a shady operator" who's been caught with his hand in more than one cookie jar, "who cut corners and exploited his government job and his friendship with Carter."

He hoped censorship would never come, but such reporting can bring it on, Lance said, declaring:

"In the absence of self-discipline and internal reform, other groups may find it necessary to step in and subject the press to the same rigorous standards of ethics and truthfulness that the press applies to the rest of us."

"That threat is called censorship and I may be mistaken but I think it is a conceivable outcome of what appears to be a headstrong refusal to get your own house in order."

Although this was the strongest press criticism the editors had heard at their convention, Lance spoke in his customary calm manner. He was received with applause and banter.

"You're among friends, sort of," said Thomas Winship, editor of the Boston Globe, introducing him. "Tell us how you love us, sort of."

Later, Jordan and Powell said Lance had not abused his friendship with Carter.

"Bert Lance is my friend," Jordan said. "He will always be my friend. If he has done something wrong — as has been alleged but not proven — he will still be my friend." Said Powell: "I don't think there is any reason to believe that Bert Lance is getting a break because of his relationship with the president."

Lance complained of editorials in The New York Times, the Washington Post and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Without checking, he said, those papers said he had discussed with banker J. William Middelendorf at lunch in the spring of 1977 buying control of Financial General Bankshares, Inc.

Lance said the lunch occurred, but all three participants have sworn the bank deal was not discussed.

Lance objected to a "total fabrication" in Time magazine which said Jordan had ordered him to stay away from Carter. Jordan said he was in Florida when that session was supposed to have occurred.

Christie Says Krueger Funds Misused

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Christie brought his Senate campaign to the nation's capital Wednesday, armed with documents he claims prove his Democratic primary opponent has "possibly misused federal funds."

The former Texas state insurance board chairman said he would turn over to the House Committee on Administration a list of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger's employees who had received campaign expenses in addition to their congressional staff salaries.

"I'm saying that if this is not a violation, then it should be," Christie began. "I want the committee to investigate it and tell the people from Texas and everybody else if this is a misuse of federal funds."

The document, which list 11 Krueger congressional staffers, their regular salaries and "travel expenses" was compiled by Christie's staff from Federal Election Commission and House records.

The salaries of Krueger's staff members "for the period in which they received campaign funds for travel expenses" totaled $73,952.59. The total campaign expenses amounted to $6,416.18, according to Christie's documents.

The request for a House investigation brought a quick response from Krueger.

"I have no objection to any investigation he calls for because my campaign and my congressional office not only adhere to the most stringent guidelines of propriety but go beyond what is traditional or what is required by law," Krueger responded.

"Even as Mr. Christie makes these false charges, he has yet to fully disclose his full financial holdings or to release his income tax returns, something I have voluntarily done since entering public office.

"Once again I call upon him to do that," Krueger said and added, "I call upon him to curtail these misleading attacks which have no basis in fact."

Krueger press secretary Robert Mann, one of the names on Christie's list, said campaign travel expenses were reimbursed campaign funds but "that travel is done all on our own time."

"He should be quite familiar with what is legal and illegal since he was publicly cited in 1971 for having his campaign material for lieutenant governor printed by employees of the Texas Senate," added Mann. Christie was a state senator at the time.

Christie, whose news conference was held in the sunlit, open-air patio of a Washington hotel, had to shout over a noisy garbage truck in the adjacent alley to continue his berating of Krueger.

"Krueger has the worst absentee record of any healthy member of Congress," Christie continued. "During one period he had an 87 percent record," which included Krueger's absence from several crucial committee sessions.

"John Tower nearly lost one election because of absenteeism," said Christie, referring to Texas' senior senator.

In citing what he believed another Krueger minus, Christie said a reception for Krueger in Midland last July was hosted by 20 persons, "and 18 of them are card-carrying Republicans. If Krueger gets the Democratic nomination, they've got the best of both worlds."

Christie said his trip to Washington was based on the document he had to turn over to the House committee but admitted that fund-raising receptions were scheduled for New York and Washing-

When asked why he had to go outside the state to obtain financing, Christie said, "This simply indicates that the concern for good government doesn't stop in Texas. I am concerned that the Democratic nomination will be decided the same way voters decide what toothpaste and underarm deodorant they use," he said in reference to an expected Krueger media blitz shortly before the May 6 primary.

As for why he couldn't raise money in Texas, Christie replied, "The big players in Texas are waiting to see who wins the Democratic nomination and if Krueger wins, that money will go to Tower."

Christie acknowledged that his campaign was "in the red" but would not put a dollar figure on the deficit.

Schedule For Subs Revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — The contractor building the Trident missile submarines now says all five are 19 months behind schedule, Rep. Les Aspin said Wednesday.

Aspin, a Wisconsin Democrat and member of the House Armed Services Committee, released newly revised estimates about the submarines which the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics Corp. furnished Congress.

He said the contractor also revealed lengthening delays on delivery of 17 nuclear attack submarines which do not carry missiles.

Not only are the delays seriously impairing the country's national security, Aspin said, but "until the shipyards are in order, we will simply be adding to the backlogs if we fund more submarines."

The Navy said last November that the average delay on the Trident submarines would be six months. It also predicted that, although the first Trident would be a year late in delivery, the lag time would be cut to two months by the time the fifth was finished.

Aspin said the contractor is more pessimistic.

"Not even Pollyanna would assume that a construction schedule would improve over time but that's what the Navy predicted," Aspin said, adding that "the undying optimism of the Navy's planners is astounding."

"Shipyard delays have gone from bad to horrendous," he said in a statement.

The Trident is a missile-carrying, nuclear-powered submarine that will replace the Polaris and Poseidon missile subs.

Aspin said the Electric Boat estimates also show serious delays on the SSN-688 nuclear attack submarines, which do not carry missiles. He said the 17 submarines under construction are more than 34 months late on the average.

"Slippage ranges from 28 to 40 months per ship, with delays for all 17 subs totaling more than 48 years," he said.

He said the contractor has traditionally understated the actual delays.

The contractor's estimates went to the Navy Feb. 17 but only recently were given Congress, Aspin said, and the schedule changes contained no back-up data. He said the Navy is requesting more documentation in order to evaluate the schedules.

Social Security Plan Called Poor Investment

BY DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON (UPI) — For a substantial proportion of young middle and upper income Americans just entering the labor force, Social Security's retirement program will be a poor investment.

Social Security remains a huge bargain for workers who are approaching retirement, but not for those just starting work.

Young, low income families will still be getting a good investment even under higher Social Security taxes, but many with middle to upper incomes will pay more in taxes than they can expect to receive in pensions.

Many new middle income earners — particularly singles and working couples — will barely break even in a comparison of taxes to benefits. In a few cases, even low-income singles will lose.

Package Unmatched

Most experts agree that no private plan can match the Social Security benefit package: retirement income, protection for widows and children, disability, and health care for the aged.

But a growing number of economists are concluding that the retirement plan alone is a bad investment for a large number of workers under the sharply increased payroll tax.

Since 1950, the Social Security tax rate has increased more than 500 percent. By 1987 it will be nearly 14 percent of all payrolls, compared to less than 2 percent in 1940. Today, only the federal income tax is higher than Social Security. The maximum payroll tax will rise from $965 last year to $1,975 by 1981. Taxes for workers earning the maximum taxable income will triple in the next decade.

A huge sum is involved: Social Security trust fund will receive an estimated $111.5 billion from 110 million workers this year. That will increase substantially with the new tax rates.

Every month Social Security sends out $4.8 billion in checks to 21.5 million retirees, $1.5 billion to 7.6 million widows and children, and $900 million to 4.8 million disabled. It also pays out an average of $1.4 billion per month in Medicare payments for 9.5 million recipients.

Since Congress raised tax rates late last year to prevent the fund's bankruptcy, numerous proposals have been made to ease their impact on workers.

Income Tax Cut Studied

President Carter is proposing a $25 billion income tax cut to partially offset the Social Security increases for low and average income workers. (Low, by Social Security definitions, is the minimum wage, $5.512; average income would be around $10,000.)

Others are suggesting that disability benefits and Medicare be paid out of general revenues, cutting future tax rates significantly.

Some are urging even deeper changes as an increasing number of economists and students of Social Security are beginning to question its value for moderate and upper income Americans in the years ahead.

For Jodie Allen, an economic research analyst, "Social Security is no longer as good a buy as it once was for the average, relatively well-paid worker."

Private System Urged

"Anyone who can legally do so," she said, "will do well to opt for his own private system of retirement benefits."

But that option is reserved only for federal employees such as members of Congress and civil service workers.

State and local governments may withdraw from Social Security and since 1970 more than 477 groups have done so. Another 284 municipalities have given withdrawal notice.

Participation Growing

Even so, participation in Social Security is growing: since 1967 more than 10,000 groups of state or local government employees have joined, totaling 459,693 workers.

To show the tax increase, Mrs. Allen, now a special assistant to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, cites the heavy impact on married working couples. For a couple each earning $17,700, the total Social Security tax this year will be $2,141. Adding their employers' matching payments pushes it to $4,283.

With salary increases of 6 percent, the couple's tax in three years will climb to $2,803; total employer-employee tax to $5,607.

For those now getting benefits or soon retiring, however, Social Security represents an enormous bargain.

This is because payroll taxes have, until recent times, been relatively low. A 25-year-old man who began work in 1937 when the program began had upon retirement last year paid a maximum employer share of only $8,728.

Benefits Have Boomed

Meantime, benefits have boomed. Today this worker is receiving a monthly benefit check of $459.80, or $5,517.60 a year, and will recover his taxes paid into the fund within 19 months. If married, his check is $689.70 and it will take only 13 months to recoup his taxes.

Judging the Social Security retirement program as an investment depends largely on whether the employer's matching tax share is used in computing overall return.

Robert Myers, former chief actuary for Social Security, says it is "dead wrong" to include the employer's tax share. That money "should be considered as being pooled for the general benefit of all covered workers in the system."

Most economists disagree. Rudolph Jenner of the American Enterprise Institute says the employer's share is paid in lieu of wages, and must be included.

With the higher taxes and lower birth rates resulting in fewer workers to support a larger pool of retirees, economic studies reveal that Social Security's "bargain investment" is dwindling for many relatively well paid workers just beginning their careers.

Preliminary figures by Social Security actuaries suggest the program is not a good buy for a single man, 22, who enters the labor force this year and always earns the maximum wage on which the payroll tax is levied. The figures are based on combined employee-employer tax.

46 Percent Of Total

The value of his benefits at retirement — assuming 15 years of life expectancy — will be 46 percent of total taxes. For a single female worker, it would be 62 percent.

A 22-year-old "low earner" ($4,300 a year) who stays single would get back 96 percent of benefits, while a 22-year-old single male starting out at $12,000 would get back 160 percent on his taxes.

"For the population as a whole it's a pretty good buy," says Frank Crowley, of the Congressional Research Service. "But for the well paid single worker, it is not a good deal."

Social Security retirement benefits are adjusted each year for the cost of living — one of the program's major selling points. Moreover, that portion of taxes which pays for retirement also buys insurance for widows and dependent children.

Enormous Sums Invested

Still, few Americans figure out how much money they will be paying into the retirement system or what that money could earn if invested over their working life. The sums can be enormous.

Consider two wage earners, both age 21, beginning work this year. The first begins at $20,000 a year, the second at $30,000. They receive 6 percent increases a year.

Myers made the computations for UPI, based on the tax share that funds retirement benefits but not disability and health care benefits.

He compared the benefits a retiree is expected to receive from Social Security with those he would get if the same amount of money was put into a savings account paying 7.75 percent interest. Both cases are also based on the assumption the interest would be tax free, as it is on some individual retirement plans now.

In 2022, the $20,000 earner will get $6,029 monthly from Social Security, but if the $209,255 in taxes he paid had gone into a savings plan, it would provide a fund of $891,229. Assuming another 15 years of life, the present value of benefits will be 98.8 percent of taxes paid — just about break even.

The second man, eligible for monthly benefit of $6,905, would have seen his $244,145 in taxes swell to over $1,036 million in savings. The benefits-to-taxes ratio is 94.4 percent. But when the employers' tax share is included, the values plunge to 49.4 percent and 47.2 percent — a very bad buy.

If the $20,000 worker were to use the savings to buy an annuity, which leaves no money after death, he could get a yearly income of $90,030 for life, $15,522 more than his annual Social Security income would provide. If the $30,000 worker bought the same annuity with his invested payments at retirement, he could get an annual income of $104,714, or $21,854 more a year than Social Security.

Other studies measuring "net Social Security wealth" — the present value of benefits retirees will receive at age 65 — conclude that it will be negative for most young wage earners.

Harvard economists Martin Feldstein and Anthony Pellechio say that net Social security wealth is negative for families with wage earners aged 25-34. They can expect to pay more in taxes than they will get back in benefits.

"If the current relation between benefits and taxes were to remain unchanged," they said, "each new generation would find that its initial net Social Security wealth was negative."

They said about 50 million of 150 million Americans 18 or older have negative net Social Security wealth. Older people have a positive figure "because they are closer to receiving benefits and have fewer tax-paying years left."

John Brittain of the Brookings Institution, talking about the average middle income worker of the future, says the real rate of return on Social Security retirement taxes — which he once placed at around 4 percent — is not as good as can be obtained from the private sector.

FCC Head Eyes Local Broadcasts

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Chairman Charles Ferris of the Federal Communications urged broadcasters Wednesday to offer viewers and listeners a diversity of programming and not to fear technological advances.

In his first speech since taking office, Ferris said station owners should provide special services unavailable at other stations or through new types of broadcast systems.

"If... you put a major portion of your profits into strong local programming, or you provide your community with access to a multiplicity of program sources, then you have a reasonable basis for seeking tenure as an individual licensee and as an entire industry," he said in a prepared speech to the National Association of Broadcasters.

"But if you are only flipping a network switch or replaying an occasional movie package, then you have not made the case that you are essential to your community — or to the national communications system."

He also said increased program options will ease public pressure to regulate the program content.

"Commercial broadcasting can and must represent more than the survival of the fittest, the timid and the imitative," Ferris said. "And as you increase the options you offer to the public, you will relieve the public's pressure to regulate the content of a limited number of programs."

Ferris urged broadcasters to experiment with new broadcast technology as a means of diversifying programming.

"The Chicken Littles who always think that the antennae are about to fall, predict that satellite delivery of multiple program services, fiber optics and translators will make your industry obsolete," he said. "That could happen if you regard change as an adversary and resist the chance for experimentation."

He said there is no need to wait for cable or fiber optics to provide American viewers with weather, sports and news on demand.

Ferris also said stations can make wider use of satellites to choose from a wider number of programs, and should support the development of improved television sets to bring better UHF reception to more people.

"In short, your medium can provide a richer diversity with more convenience than any other," he said.

Pair Charged In Harboring Of Fugitive

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP) — Two men were charged Wednesday with harboring fugitive Gene Leroy Hart while authorities hunted for him in the murder of three Girl Scouts.

Cherokee County District Attorney John W. Russell Jr. said Sam Pigeon Jr., in whose home Hart was seized last week, was arrested Wednesday morning. Russell said there was "no trouble at all" in making the arrest.

Russell and the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation said the other man charged, William Lee Smith of Vian, who allegedly introduced Hart to Pigeon, was out of the state.

Hart, who maintains he is innocent of the murders, was apprehended in Pigeon's isolated northeast Oklahoma cabin last Thursday after the largest manhunt in the state's history.

"We allege that during the period of August 1977 until April 6, 1978, Sam Pigeon harbored him (Hart) at his home and provided for him in his home in Cherokee County," Russell said.

He added it also was alleged that Smith had brought Hart to Pigeon's home and provided him with food and care sometime in August.

After Hart's arrest, Pigeon said he had kept Hart at his home and described Hart as "a good boy" and "a pretty good cook."

Asked by a newsman why he had let Hart live with him, Pigeon, 60, replied, "Cause he didn't do it."

Hart, 34, is charged with three counts of murder in the deaths in June 1977 of Doris Denise Milner, 10; Lori Lee Farmer, 8; and Michelle Guse, 9. Two of the girls were apparently bludgeoned to death while they slept while the third was strangled, police have said. Officers say all three were sexually molested.

Hart has been ordered held without bail pending a hearing on defense motions April 18. A preliminary hearing has been set for June 6.

Houston Man Builds Shrine To Oranges

HOUSTON (UPI) — Retired postman Jeff McKissack has spent $40,000 and more than 10 years converting a small lot across the street from his home into a personal tribute to a fruit.

"They've been writing it up as odd," said McKissack, 76, complaining mildly about unnamed newspaper and magazine articles. "To me it's the world's first orange show and it's beautiful."

McKissack, a bachelor who lives on a pension, has worked since the middle 1960s on the colorful pile of blocks, ornamental iron, antiques, novelties and castoff junk which he calls "The Orange Show."

"The main purpose of The Orange Show is to encourage people to eat oranges, drink orange juice and be highly amused," McKissack said. "This here will run circles around Anita Bryant."

Miss Bryant, of course, promotes oranges for the Florida Citrus Commission.

McKissack's message is repeated in various forms throughout the tangle of structures that, in another setting, might be mistaken for a tiny Mexican village where residents have a penchant for sitting on old metal tractor seats.

"Be Smart. Drink Fresh Orange Juice," reads an inlaid tile wall. "The Orange — A Great Gift to Mankind by America's Orange Growers," says another. "Go Orange. Be Strong. Oranges for Energy."

The caption above the Indian scene, for example, says, "Orange Make Indian Heap Big Strong." The caption above the frog says, simply, "A Happy Frog."

About the tractor seats. There are 80 of them "picked up along the highway over the years." They are arranged in rows around two arenas or amphitheatres.

In the center of one amphitheater is a 25-foot-diameter concrete pool in which sits a miniature riverboat McKissack built. The boat will be steam-powered when the show opens. McKissack is pushing steam, too.

"I associate oranges, the energy food, with energy," he said. "I was born in the steam age. I'm bringing back the steam age."

At the back of the amphitheater, a sign reads, "Sit Down and Enjoy the Show," which apparently will be largely inanimate except for the sunny presence of McKissack.

"The whole thing's a show, the walls, all of it," he laughed.

But the second arena, to be called "A Side Show," is an afterthought on the subject of live entertainment and will feature an organ player on a turntable playing happy music.

"And I'll give a little spiel on oranges," McKissack said.

Although he has received no support from the Florida citrus growers, he hasn't invested his time and money simply because he admires oranges and once trucked them from Florida to Atlanta.

"I figure this will make $100,000 to $200,000 a year," he said. "I have to charge $1 admission. I've got everything I've got in it. I need a car, clothes, everything." He hopes to finish the project for a grand opening June 15.

How do his neighbors on Munger Street, a quiet avenue just off the Gulf Freeway in South Houston, feel about the combination pop-art object, orange tribute and show?

"We're artists ourselves," said Ginty Eckley, 24, who lives across the street. "It doesn't bother us."

DREARY AREA CHANGED

The area along the Potomac River where the Japanese flowering cherry trees now stand once was one of the least desirable locations in Washington. It was a dreary swamp where weeds flourished and mosquitoes bred, causing health hazards, the National Geographic Society says.

Gubernatorial Race Battle Lines Drawn

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Ten House members, including John Hoestenbach of Odessa, have taken no active stand in the gubernatorial race between Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill, and some political observers believe these battle lines in the governor's campaign will carry through to the start of the next legislative session.

Seven of those House members have undertaken a three-day campaign swing through 12 Texas cities on Hill's behalf, charging Briscoe is ignorant or uncaring of their legislative programs.

However, three House members, powerful on issues of public school education, have rallied behind the Governor, alleging Hill's spending proposals will lead to a tax bill.

Traveling around the state in a plane chartered by Hill are Reps. John Bryant, Dallas; Ron Coleman, El Paso; John Hoestenbach, Odessa; Luther Jones, El Paso; Bill Keese, Somerville; Wayne Peveto, Orange; and Bill Sullivan, Gainesville.

Their accounts of Briscoe ignoring legislative issues they believe to be important sparked a quick response from three of the governor's top allies in the House Reps. Hamp Atkinson, New Boston; Tom Massey, San Angelo; and Jim Nugent, Kerrville.

All three say the governor is sympathetic to their cause and have found him to be accessible when necessary.

The seven lawmakers who endorsed Hill are traveling at their candidate's expense to San Antonio, Waco, Dallas, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Lubbock, Abilene, Texarkana, Beaumont, Houston and Corpus Christi.

Massey, who is chairman of the House Public Education Committee says he, Atkinson and Nugent saw no need to spend Briscoe's campaign funds traveling the state.

The seven working on Hill's behalf call themselves "legislators for a Working Governor."

Perhaps a quote from Hoestenbach, who incidentally is not seeking re-election, typifies their feelings: "Dealing with Briscoe's office was like trying to deal with Howard Hughes — you were never sure whether there was a Dolph Briscoe, he was so inaccessible."

Atkinson has dubbed the pro-Briscoe panel, "The Truth Squad for Briscoe."

ROME (AP) — A gunman wounded in a fatal attack on a prison guard in Turin may be a member of the Red Brigades terrorist gang that kidnapped Premier Aldo Moro on March 16, police said Wednesday.

Police said the gunman, wounded in the attack by the fatally wounded guard, was abandoned by two accomplices — a man and a woman — outside a hospital 15 minutes after the guard, Lorenzo Cotugno, was shot in Turin on Tuesday.

The gunman was identified by police as Cristoforo Piancone, 28. Police said that as Piancone lost consciousness he told doctors: "I was wounded in combat. I consider myself a political prisoner."

Cotugno was ambushed as he left for work at the jail where 15 Red Brigades terrorists on trial in Turin are being held.

A group of intellectuals and bishops appealed publicly to the government

Wednesday to negotiate with Moro's Red Brigades kidnapers. The 61-year-old five-time Italian premier, seized in a Rome street ambush nearly a month ago by gunmen who killed his five bodyguards, has asked for the release of the jailed Red Brigades members in Turin, who are charged with plotting to overthrow the state.

Moro's ruling Christian Democrat Party and the government have said they would not negotiate with the Red Brigades for Moro's release.

A leading Italian neurologist has said Moro's handwriting in the appeals indicated the kidnapers probably were giving him psychic drugs.

The Vatican has backed the government position, but both church and state have not ruled out private negotiations by Moro's family.

Signatories to the new appeal to negotiate included two bishops, Michele Minuzzi and Renato Luisi, and the rectors of the universities of Bari and Bologna.

They said bargaining with the terrorists would not show weakness or belittle the state because "the basic value in our constitutional system is the human person." A newspaper said it will publish daily the names of new signatories to the appeal.

Piancone, the son of a middle class family, dropped out of sight in Turin two years after being dismissed for absenteeism from his job at the Fiat car factory.

Police said they also want to question Piancone about a series of armed assaults on Fiat executives during the past two years.

An anonymous male caller to a Turin news agency said Wednesday the Red Brigades killed the prison guard. The caller threatened that "hospital staff will be held responsible" for the welfare of the wounded Red Brigades member.

Piancone has undergone surgery and officials described his condition as "serious."

However, Red Brigade leader Renato Curcio, on trial in Turin with 14 other members of Italy's most feared terrorist group, said in court his movement had nothing to do with killing the guard.

Police said the disclaimer may have been prompted by Piancone's capture. The terrorists have previously managed to escape unscathed before claiming responsibility for killings.

Fourteen persons, of whom 11 are still missing, have been kidnapped so far this year in Italy. Two victims, the teen-aged daughter of a builder and a construction man, were released separately Tuesday night.

Rome. The man was released after a shoot-out at a road block.

The search for Moro dragged on Wednesday as police made house-to-house searches across a group of resort islands about 100 miles from Rome.

U.S. Ambassador Richard Gardner, addressing a conference on hunger Wednesday in Turin, expressed the solidarity of the American people with Italians in the state of emergency. He said "millions" of Americans had joined President Carter on the day of the kidnap in praying for Moro's safe return.

SWC Hauls In Impressive Cage Stars

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

It was a day for bragging, and Gerald Myers, Shelby Metcalf, Jim Haller, Eddie Sutton and Sonny Allen argued over which came out with the best.

On the first day of signing basketball players to national—and conference—letters-of-intent, all schools except Texas and Houston came away with signatures of athletes with credentials as high as all-America.

Tech landed a pair of shooters from Hobbs to start its year, and the start had Myers singing a happy song. Signed Wednesday morning by assistant coach Rob Evans were 6-3½ forward-guard Jeff Taylor, and 6-1½ guard Steve Smith. Smith was the object of recruiting battles involving such national powers as New Mexico, DePaul, Louisville and Notre Dame.

Both Smith and Taylor said that were impressed with Tech when they visited recently. "The players seemed real close," Taylor told the Avalanche-Journal. "I just thought it was the place I wanted to play."

"I never compare our Hobbs Eagles," admitted Hobbs coach Ralph Tasker, who has been turning out major-college prospects for two decades, "but both of them are exceptionally fine shooters. Both are guard-forwards, and our kids who are going to college, we prepare them to play both places."

"I guarantee both of them can shoot as well as any we've had at Hobbs."

Taylor was averaging 25 points and 12 rebounds before breaking an ankle in early January. He missed the rest of the season. Smith averaged 20 points and 10 rebounds.

"We're elated to get both players," Myers said. "And coming out of the Hobbs program, they're even more prepared for college basketball. We've had great success with players who have come out of Ralph Tasker's program and these two guys have great physical ability to go with the basketball sense they have learned at Hobbs."

"Jeff is an incredible basketball player. He has great leaping ability and excellent quickness and agility. He's exciting and can do a lot with the basketball. I think he has invented some dunk shots over there."

Myers classified Smith as a "good power-type guard. He's an excellent shooter, too, with a good natural touch and is a very aggressive player."

Myers gave no indication of where Tech would head next in its quest for talent, although it is known that Myers is seeking 6-6 David Little of Abilene High and 6-3 Matt Clark of Oklahoma City Southeast.

And, as Tech was winning a national battle for Taylor's signature, the Aggies were shooting over the signing of 6-11 all-America center Rudy Woods of Bryan. Woods, who averaged 22 points and 15 rebounds last year, signed with the Aggies on the hood of a car; he was in a hurry to get out of town for an all-star game in Philadelphia.

Arkansas, which whipped Notre Dame in an NCAA third-place game, went to South Bend, Ind., to sign 6-8 David Scott, practically in the shadow of the Golden Dome. Scott averaged 17 points and 15.2 rebounds last season. The Porkers also signed 6-6 Keith Peterson of Little Park View, the state's player of the year; Brad Fries, a highly regarded 6-5er from Austin Anderson, and 6-6 Tony Brown of Chicago.

SMU landed two players but will have to pay for only one. Signed by coach Sonny Allen were 6-8 Gary Buckland of Dover, Del. Also, Allen's son, 6-foot Billy, an all-stater from Highland Park, will be playing for the Mustangs. But under school policy, staff members' children can attend SMU free of tuition charges, so, as one SMU official remarked Wednesday, "We signed one player and got a darn good walk-on for free."

SMU plans Friday to sign 6-10 Brad Branson of Edison Junior College in Fort Myers, Fla.

TCU coach Tim Somerville termed his first signee, 6-3 guard Ed Wineinger of Indianapolis, Ind., "the first legitimate major college shooter to join our program since I came here (last spring). Somerville plans to sign at least five and possibly as many as eight players" this spring.

Baylor invaded the D-FW Metroplex for a pair of standouts.

Coach Jim Haller signed 6-8 Mike Fennel of Fort Worth Poly (24 points, 18 rebounds). Fennel was the city's top scorer both last year and as a sophomore. A versatile athlete, Fennel has long jumped 23 feet this spring and was also highly recruited by major colleges as a football player.

Also, Baylor signed Andy Seas of Irving, a 6-5 guard (18.7 points, 12.8 rebounds, 63 percent shooting) who has been invited to four five foreign countries this summer with a U.S. all-star squad.

Although Rice did not announce it, it was reported from Baytown that 6-9 Larry McCage of Baytown Sterling had signed with the Owls.

Houston coach Guy Lewis plans to sign six players before announcing any names, and Texas did not sign any players.

ON THE DOTTED LINE—As Mrs. Annie Taylor watches, son Jeff signs a Texas Tech basketball letter of intent. Taylor, from Hobbs, was the object of a nationwide talent search by such powers as Notre Dame and Louisville before Tech signed him Wednesday. (See Related Photo, Page 3, Sec. # Christian Faces Tough Rivals

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A touch of the jitters settled in just when Larry Christian heard the names of some of his possible competitors.

What Christian is "competing for" is the Coronado basketball coaching job vacated last week by Jimmy Fullerton. The assistant of Fullerton for the past three years, Christian knows his assets and his liabilities and only wishes the waiting game would end.

For assets, the 32-year-old Hub City native has worked in the local system 11 years and has earned his reputation in the very same CHS basketball program. Christian's sophomore and junior varsity teams won 99 of 128 games for an 839 percentage in three seasons. Only thing is, that's on the JV level and Christian knows it's his major liability.

"I haven't been a head coach in a Class AAAA school while a lot of the applicants probably have, but I feel confident in my coaching ability and my ability to work with kids," he said.

A quick check in the history books reveals that the local system usually promotes the CHS cage aide to the top spot. Fullerton filled Jerry Hogue's vacancy in 1975 while Hogue replaced Hal Ratcliff a year earlier. Does that make Christian a shoo-in?

"I really couldn't say whether it's advantageous or not. I would guess it's nice to be in the system," he said.

Regardless of the school board's appointment, Christian says he plans to stay in the local system. For the Texas Tech grad, Lubbock is home and his goal always has been to teach in the local system. But the waiting period is the tough part. "You can really get apprehensive just sitting around. When Jimmy (Fullerton) arrived at his decision, I became a little nervous in hopes that I would get it. Anytime you want something and it's a big opportunity, it's something you find yourself concentrating on," he said.

The Lubbock High grad might as well sit tight for awhile, though. Local schools athletic director Pete Ragus told The Avalanche-Journal Wednesday he didn't expect any announcement from the school board within the next "week or 10 days" but Ragus said it would be good if it could happen that quickly.

"The resumes and telephone calls are coming in over a longer period of time. We expect to receive a few more of them. Approximately 15 or 16 have applied with only two coming from within the system," Ragus said.

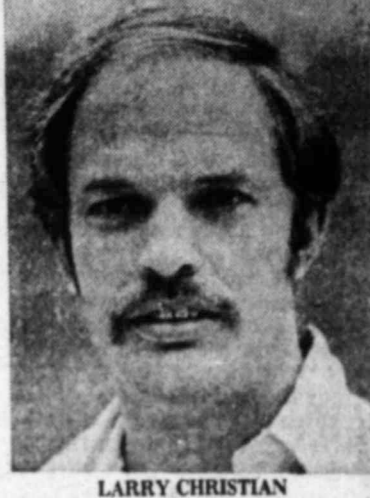

Christian knows his competition could toughen every time Ragus phone rings. The names of Amarillo High coach Barry Armwine, Dimmitt coach Ken Cleveland and Morton boss Dan Smith have swirled through the rumor mill during the week-end.

Cleveland told the A-J the rumors are fallacious and the Dimmitt athletic director showed no intentions of applying for the post. Armwine said he didn't intend to apply but didn't shut the door on any possible discussions.

"I haven't applied, but I think Pete (Ragus) knows me well enough that he can get a hold of me. I'm not saying I wouldn't be interested but I'm not sure whether I would want the job. I don't intend to initiate the contact, but I'm not sure I wouldn't want to explore the possibilities," the Sandies' cage coach said.

Smith, who guided Morton to a Class AA title in 1977, had not applied Wednesday but talked as if he intended to apply.

"I may phone over and see what it looks like. They have real good facilities at Coronado. Probably as good as anywhere in the state," he said.

Don Henry The Spoils Of War

"WERE YOU IN the war, daddy?" young Damon asked, as he climbed up in his father's lap. Rob Evans thought back over his years, then recalled one battle he had. Yeah, the Battle of Hobbs.

It's not listed with the Battle of the Bulge, Iwo Jima, Inchon, the Ardennes, and Hue. Fact is, a battered and weary Rob Evans was almost to Wolforth on his way home from the battle site Wednesday before the impact of it all settled in on him.

"This was like fighting the Japs," Rob related later Wednesday. Now, that might be stretching it a bit, and Evans was facetious when he said it. But, a battle it was, and the Raider basketball aide was the only recruiter to come out unscathed.

ROB EVANS

As he staggered out of the dust and fog and shambles of battle, clutched in his hand were two pieces of paper, bearing the signatures of Hobbs athletes Steve Smith and Jeff Taylor. These were the victory spoils, and the papers signified that Tech had the rights to the players' talents for the next four years. Evans felt the result was worth the troubles.

WHEN THE PAIR signed, Evans had not classified it as a battle, only that "I felt an anvil had been lifted off my back." For the Raider aide, the recruiting quest for Taylor had come to be a personal thing.

Rob was raised in Hobbs, he played there for Ralph Tasker before coming to Lubbock Christian College to make juco all-America and then going to New Mexico State to become one of its alltime aces.

Evans calls Hobbs good recruiting territory. Upon landing the Tech job, he returned immediately to Hobbs to sign Mike Russell from nearby New Mexico JC. Two springs ago, he helped land Kent Williams from Hobbs High.

Then, along came Taylor. Another prospect, another challenge, more pressure.

Only Wednesday afternoon could Rob talk about it. Until then, it was no joking matter.

"I THINK I worked harder on Jeff than anyone in my life (ten years of recruiting)," Rob said. "I put the pressure on myself, because I felt he was one of the keys to our program at Tech. I've watched Tech since 1962, and I would say he's the best prospect I've seen at Tech or I've been involved with. He's a better prospect than (all-America) Jimmy Collins (of New Mexico State)."

For a former athlete such as Evans, recruiting creates the competitive situation. Could be that Evans felt his homeland being invaded by other recruiters from all over the nation... from Notre Dame... DePaul... Minnesota... Louisville... New Mexico...

"I started watching him when he was a sophomore, when he started on the same team with Kent. When his junior year ended, I started to recruit recruit him."

Evans imagines he saw probably 20 Hobbs games last winter, head man Gerald Myers at least twice, Raider aide George Davidson at least once and student assistant Kelly Kitchens a couple of times. "So we didn't miss many games."

"But, I'd go over there, Jeff and Steve would see that I was there. I didn't harass them; they wanted to enjoy their senior year, and I knew they didn't want to be hounded. But, they knew we were interested."

ACCORDING TO THE rules, an NCAA school is allowed three official visits with a prospect. However, a recruiter can come into a dressing room after a game, shake hands with the coach, then speak to a prospect, and this is counted only as a "bump" and not one of the official visits.

"Tasker's kids are used to this; they can handle all the attention. Even at workouts, there was someone there just about every day," Evans commented.

Evans felt his plan to be seen but stay in the background helped. Then, when the players visited the campus recently, "I think that did it," says Evans. "They really enjoyed the students who showed them around."

"Then Monday night, they told me they were ready to sign on Wednesday. It made me feel good, but I knew a lot of people would continue to harass them. They're solid people and I knew they wouldn't back out, but I knew people would ring the phones off the hook, trying to confuse them. It almost drove their mothers crazy, governors, state senators—people like that—calling."

It had come down to Tech or New Mexico, but when Taylor committed, he canceled a visit to Colorado; he previously had turned down trips to Notre Dame and DePaul.

Tuesday night, the figurative shells were still bursting, but further and further away. The battle was just about won. Wednesday's signings brought a stillness which Rob only now is able to appreciate it.

And in a few years, he can relax and tell young son Damon all about it.

New Beanball Rule Called 'Just Plain Dumb'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK—Only the American League has the designated hitter, but both leagues have a new beanball rule that many people are designating as just plain dumb.

The new rule, 8.02 (d), says that after the first beanball, the umpire may warn both managers. The next beanball by either team's pitcher can result in immediate expulsion of the offending pitcher and his manager.

This means the retaliating pitcher can't even the score without facing ejection. Until last year he could get his "one shot" back — and perhaps get fined but still stay in the game.

"The purpose of the new rule was to cut down on the beanball activity," Johnny Johnson, chairman of the Playing Rules Committee, said Wednesday. "There was just too much of it and we wanted it stopped."

The controversy over new rule 8.02 (d) surfaced Tuesday during the New York Mets-Chicago Cubs game. What became apparent from the actions and statements of the pitchers involved was that the rule, although idealistic in its intent to stop beanball wars, does no such thing.

Instead, the rule serves to punish the retaliating pitcher while allowing the first beanball thrower to get off scot-free.

Cubs pitcher Rick Reuschel, unhappy that Mets batter Steve Henderson was stalling and crowding the plate, tried to brush him back with a hard fastball. The ball, according to Reuschel, sailed too far inside and conked Henderson on the left elbow.

Umpire Jerry Dale immediately cited 8.02 (d), warning both managers. Mets Manager Joe Torre never talked to his pitcher, Jerry Koosman, but the veteran left-hander knew what to do. And even if he didn't, he knew Torre's philosophy.

"A pitcher has to know the guys who knock in runs for him," Torre said. "He's got to protect them. It's like a family."

Koosman is tickled to have Henderson's big bat on his side, so he retaliated against Reuschel in the next inning, knocking him on his butt with a high, hard one.

Dale immediately ran to the mound, thumbed Koosman out of the game, then turned to Torre and ejected him, too.

But what about Reuschel, the instigator? He got off.

"I think the rule is a bad rule," said Koosman. "It lets the man who starts it get away with it."

"It's a loophole, but we're looking for a better way," said Johnson. So in terms of justice, the new rule is patently unfair. But the real crux of the matter is that 8.02 (d) doesn't do what it's supposed to do. It doesn't stop retaliatory beanballs.

"Any time I think anyone is throwing at one of my players, I'm going to get him," said Dale. "That's one of the reasons I think the new rule is a bad rule."

Did you hear that, Bowie Kuhn? Reuschel said he would violate the rule "any time."

So much for deterrents.

And if Reuschel didn't get him on Tuesday, he'd get him some other day. Baseball players don't forget.

"Let's give the rule a chance to work," said Johnson. "When the players get better educated on the punishment, the rule will work."

Is there a better rule?

There seems to be, and baseball had it last year. "If last year's rule was in force," said Dale. "I would have given Koosman a warning (after he threw at Reuschel) and ejected Torre."

Did the old rule, tacitly allowing retaliation, condone beanball violence in baseball?

Not really. It just didn't attempt to legislate an area it couldn't adequately control. Instead of laying down a mostly ineffective, hypocritical rule — namely 8.02 (d) — that punishes only the second wrongdoer, baseball kept its hands off in previous seasons. But outcries against violence forced baseball to act at last year's winter meetings.

It is apparent that baseball made a mistake in going halfway, which in this case was worse than none of the way and much worse than all the way. If baseball wants to stop the first beanball throw, it should give umpires the power to eject any pitcher — including the first one — who throws a beanball.

"That's a tough one for the umpire to call the first time," said Johnson. "It's much easier to see retaliation."

But even this rule wouldn't stop a long-time practice of the pitching profession — the beanball. It would only serve to make the punishment more even-handed.

Beanballs will be a part of the national pastime as long as hitters continue to embarrass pitchers.

Of course, they really shouldn't be around. After all, if a batter strikes out, he isn't given a license to chop down a pitcher with his bat. Next time, he tries to hit a homer instead of striking out. Sometimes he does; sometimes he doesn't. But never is he allowed to commit mayhem.

One would hope that a pitcher victimized by a hitter would try to strike him out the next time, not strike him.

But turning that ideal into reality is about as likely as voluntary wage and price controls stopping inflation.

Why?

Because beanballs — even though dangerous to life and limb — are an accepted part of the game.

"Yeah, I was thinking he might throw at me. And if I hadn't ducked it would have hit me in the head," Reuschel said of Koosman. "But this is all part of baseball."

Strong Field Enters Prestigious Meet

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Golf's strongest field, an elite cadre of winners only behind by Masters champion Gary Player and defending titleholder Jack Nicklaus, has gathered for the prestigious $25,000 Tournament of Champions that gets started today.

All 29 men — who have combined for more than 50 international titles in the last 12 months — in the $225,000 Tournament of Champions competed in last week's Masters and most are attempting to pull themselves out of the letdown that naturally follows one of the game's great events.

Player, Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Hubert Green — all involved in the title chase at Augusta, Ga., a weekend ago — were quite possibly more greatly affected than any others. All, however, still rank among the top candidates for the $45,000 first prize in this event.

"I'll be all right on Thursday," Player said. "But I'm drained. It was such an emotional thing, I was exhausted."

Green and Watson, who tied for second 1 shot back of the South African in one of the Masters' most dramatic finishes, were late arrivals at the posh La Costa Country Club, as was Nicklaus.

"You build yourself, your game and your emotions, to a peak for one event and then, when it's over, you let down," Nicklaus said. "It takes a little while to get ready again."

"But the Masters is over. There's nothing that can be done about it now. It's just a matter of playing this one. Once the tournament gets started it's not difficult to give it your best."

Although he had difficulties with short putts at the Masters and failed to fulfill his role as favorite, Nicklaus still rates as the No. 1 candidate in this event. He's won twice this season, finished second twice and has an unmatched history of success — a record five T of C victories — in this event that brings together only the winners of regular PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months.

Green, the U.S. Open champion; Watson, the British Open titleholder, each a two-time winner in 1978; and Player are the other leaders.

In addition to Nicklaus, Watson and Green, the other multiple-winners in the 12-month eligibility period are Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin, Tom Weiskopf, PGA champion Larry Wadkins, veteran Miller Barber and Dr. Gil Morgan.

Others in the field include Ed Sneed, Jim Simons, Ben Crenshaw, Al Geiberger, Lee Trevino, Dave Eichelberger, Mike Morley, Bill Kratzert, Andy North,

Amateur Goes Against Tallahassee Open Foes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Kenny Knox, the lone amateur in the field of 150, isn't intimidated by the heavy hitters in the 10th Tallahassee Open.

In fact, he feels quite confident.

"If I can have a good first round and make the cut, who knows what can happen," the 21-year-old Florida State senior said Wednesday. "If I can remain relaxed during the first round I can play with the best of 'em. However, if I'm nervous, well, that's a different story. I believe I'll be relaxed."

Knox has won six amateur championships, including the Southeastern this season. He shot a 6-under-par 66 practice round here Sunday. It's the first time, though, he's played in a tournament where the pros outnumber the amateurs.

Young Knox has his work cut out for him in the $80,000 tournament that starts today over the 7,124-yard, par 72 Killdeer Golf and Country Club course. The field contains some of the best young pros who have not won a tournament in the past year.

Dockery Lauds Defense

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Wednesday, for the second straight time, Rex Dockery had some kind words to say about the defense's performance in a scrimmage.

"The defense really did some good things," Texas Tech's head coach said Wednesday following the Raiders' one-hour scrimmage. "The defense, as a whole, did well, and the first unit, in particular, did an excellent job."

"The defense just got better and better as the scrimmage went on. There was some good gang-tackling and some more big plays by the defense."

Dockery mentioned in particular linebacker Jeff Copeland, cornerback Willie Stephens and strong safety Johnny Quinney for their performances.

Offensively, Dockery singled out quarterback Mark Johnson and fullback Sam Bailey. Johnson, strongly in the race for the No. 1 quarterback job, completed eight of 12 passes for 55 yards with one interception. He also rushed twice for 75 yards, 60 of those coming on a touchdown run.

Bailey rushed four times for 28 yards, while back Mark Olbert was 4-43 in the rushing department.

Wide receiver Godfrey Turner caught three passes for 31 yards.

"Johnson had a good day," Dockery said. "He handled the team well. And it looked like Bailey did some good things, too. I'll have to see the film before I know a lot more, though."

Tech will hold another, more lengthy, scrimmage Saturday morning. It will be more of a game-type scrimmage than the previous ones. Dockery said some of the kicking game will be employed Saturday. None was used last Saturday.

"We'll kick field goals and extra points and maybe cover some punts."

Offensive guard Larry Martin, a starter at quick guard, sprained an ankle Wednesday and will be out for "two or three days," according to Dockery.

Quarterback Tres Adams didn't practice Wednesday because of a bruised left shoulder he first injured Saturday. Dockery said he is expected to miss another day or two.

Cornerback Freddy Taylor, out with a sprained knee, could be back by Monday.

Mall Display Feature Racers

Race cars that will be in competition at Lubbock tracks beginning late this month have been placed on display at the South Plains Mall and will remain there through Saturday.

Most are new or have been refurbished for the upcoming season, said Jack Halpain, director of Lubbock Speed Bowl, who arranged the display.

The lineup includes all types of cars which will race here, including sprint and late model stock cars set up for pavement competition at Lubbock Speedway to modified stock cars, street stocks and Volkswagens.

The latter classes may be seen in action at both tracks, although the modified and street stocks perform best on dirt surfaces such as that of the Speed Bowl.

Racing at the dirt oval east of Idalou will get underway Saturday night, April 22, and at Lubbock Speedway on South U.S. 87 on Sunday, April 30. The paved track, though, will sponsor a no-admission-charge "prevue" practice session Sunday, April 23.

Ali, Spinks To Draw Reported $12 Million

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Already guaranteed a record gate, the firm that holds the rights to the Leon Spinks-Muhammad Ali rematch is now looking toward a record television package as well—a total payday of at least $12 million.

Top Rank Inc., a New York-based promotions firm, holds exclusive rights to the rematch. A group of local businessmen, entrepreneurs and politicians guaranteed Top Rank $3 million against an anticipated live gate of $5 million to land the fight at the Superdome here Feb. 15.

Promoters are hoping to have two other championship bouts in lighter weight classes as two of the preliminaries.

The biggest previous gate guarantee was $2.5 million put up by the Philippine government to get the Ali-Joe Frazier bout in that country, said Bob Arum, president of Top Rank.

Arum said CBS has the right of first refusal on the television package.

"I'm going to CBS this week," said Arum. "The deal will be this: the network will have to absorb the fighters' purses, training expenses, and $200,000 for each of the two supporting title fights."

He said that means about $7 million for home television rights.

There is a report that CBS balked at the figure, which is in excess of the $4.1 million CBS paid for the rights to the Ali-Spinks fight in Las Vegas in February.

Should one of the networks meet Arum's terms, and should he get the $2 million for foreign rights that he anticipates, he's guaranteed a total package of $12 million for the fight.

"The network aspect should be solved within two weeks," said Arum. "My hope card, provided a network wouldn't bid high enough, is to put the fight on closed circuit. But I don't anticipate this happening."

Arum said the record live gate is $2.3 million for the Ali-Ken Norton fight in Yankee Stadium. Norton, recognized as heavyweight champion by the World Boxing Council, signed Tuesday to fight unbeaten Larry Holmes in his first defense of the WBC crown.

Arum said the ticket scale for the Ali-Norton bout was $25-$200, the same as planned for the Superdome match between Ali and Spinks, the WBA champion.

"The supporting card should help," said Arum. "I'm looking for a light-heavyweight title fight with Victor Galindez and a middleweight title fight with Rodrigo Valdez. It's going to be a dynamite show."

In addition to the three 15-round fights, promoters plan two 10-rounders featuring contenders—a total of 65 rounds of boxing, should every fight go the distance.

Matadors On Top In Six Events

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
If anyone has doubts that this year's Estacado Matador track team has arrived, forget them. The Matadors are alive, well and leading six events in this week's city's top six high school track standings. Estacado, a little late in blossoming this year, took a two-event lead over Monterey in the chase for track supremacy in the Hub. And with only a couple of weeks left before the district meets get under way, it would appear Estacado may hold that lead. Estacado, which coach Percy Hines says could be on its way to yet another District 3-AAA title, has an ever so slight lead in both relays, the 400 and mile. In the sprint relay, the lightning fast Matadors have posted a 42.9, while in the mile race a 3:26.0 is still their best showing this year. Dunbar, a team stricken with every kind of illness except maybe swine flu, trails Estacado by a little more than half a second in the sprint race and one-tenth of a second in the mile relay. By district time, those two races could be quite interesting. John Ford, coach of the Panthers, said Dunbar has an excellent chance to catch Estacado in the mile relay on a "hot day" — and that doesn't mean weather-wise either. "We've got the potential to run in the low 20s if everyone puts it together on the same day," Ford said. "It's possible." Hopefully, he said, that will be next week at the District meet here in Lubbock. But until the Panthers do overtake rival Estacado — if indeed they can — they will have to be content with leading the city in two events, the discus and the shot put. Billy Don Hardaway, an all-purpose athlete, also surprised everyone by moving up to fourth in the long jump, leaping 21-8 1/2 on his first try ever in varsity competition.

Asked why Hardaway, who hasn't reached the 180-foot distance in the discus yet — his best is 166-7 — has yet to reach longer distances this year, Ford replied: "He hasn't had any competition yet. Wait until he gets to Austin, then look out. That ring is suited to the way he throws." Todd Parsons, another in the long line of Estacado sprinters, came within a shade of moving into the state's top times in the 120-yard hurdles by stepping off a 14.1 last week. Parsons, who also ranks third in the 330-hurdles among the city's high jumpers with a 40.6, has also stepped in to run a leg on the EHS sprint relay. In another surprise move last week, Estacado's Preston Davis moved past Monterey's Greg Iseral for the lead in the 440-yard dash. Davis, who Hines says will break the 50-second barrier in the next couple of weeks, ran a 50.4, while Iseral's top remains at 50.7.

However, the MHS quartermiler has been hampered with a leg injury since the city meet two weeks ago. Just a tenth of a second behind Iseral is Joseph Moore of Estacado, another quarterman Hines predicts has the potential of a sub-50 outing. Estacado's Freddie Ivory continues to lead the town in the long jump with a 23-1. Matador Michael Sims, along with teammate Kenzie Burrell and Dunbar's Jerry Isaacs, lead the city in the 100-yard dash with identical 9.8s. Monterey's assault on the city continues to come from high jumper Chuck Perry, halfmiler Dave Yates, pole vaulter David Cayman and miler Curtis Conway.

Yates was the only Plainsman able to improve his time last week, running a 2:00.1 in his specialty. He dropped his previous best time by a second. Perry remains at 60-9, eighth best in the state and Campsey's 14-foot vault is still his top performance so far. Conway, who has led the city's milers since the first gun was fired, won the 3,000 meter run at the Texas Relays last week in a time of 8:40.1. Johnny Pisenso and Archie Moore of Coronado continue to lead the 330 hurdles and 220-yard dash, respectively. Moore's 21.7 sprint still ranks him among the best in the Lone Star State. Pisenso was the first Lubbock high school hurdler to break a 40 in the 330s when he posted a 39.8.

In action this week, Monterey and Coronado visit the two-day Amarillo Relays, Dunbar heads to Levelland, and Estacado and Lubbock High journey to Lamesa. The Amarillo event starts on Friday, the others on Saturday.

second in the sprint race and one-tenth of a second in the mile relay. By district time, those two races could be quite interesting. John Ford, coach of the Panthers, said Dunbar has an excellent chance to catch Estacado in the mile relay on a "hot day" — and that doesn't mean weather-wise either. "We've got the potential to run in the low 20s if everyone puts it together on the same day," Ford said. "It's possible." Hopefully, he said, that will be next week at the District meet here in Lubbock. But until the Panthers do overtake rival Estacado — if indeed they can — they will have to be content with leading the city in two events, the discus and the shot put. Billy Don Hardaway, an all-purpose athlete, also surprised everyone by moving up to fourth in the long jump, leaping 21-8 1/2 on his first try ever in varsity competition.

Asked why Hardaway, who hasn't reached the 180-foot distance in the discus yet — his best is 166-7 — has yet to reach longer distances this year, Ford replied: "He hasn't had any competition yet. Wait until he gets to Austin, then look out. That ring is suited to the way he throws." Todd Parsons, another in the long line of Estacado sprinters, came within a shade of moving into the state's top times in the 120-yard hurdles by stepping off a 14.1 last week. Parsons, who also ranks third in the 330-hurdles among the city's high jumpers with a 40.6, has also stepped in to run a leg on the EHS sprint relay. In another surprise move last week, Estacado's Preston Davis moved past Monterey's Greg Iseral for the lead in the 440-yard dash. Davis, who Hines says will break the 50-second barrier in the next couple of weeks, ran a 50.4, while Iseral's top remains at 50.7.

However, the MHS quartermiler has been hampered with a leg injury since the city meet two weeks ago. Just a tenth of a second behind Iseral is Joseph Moore of Estacado, another quarterman Hines predicts has the potential of a sub-50 outing. Estacado's Freddie Ivory continues to lead the town in the long jump with a 23-1. Matador Michael Sims, along with teammate Kenzie Burrell and Dunbar's Jerry Isaacs, lead the city in the 100-yard dash with identical 9.8s. Monterey's assault on the city continues to come from high jumper Chuck Perry, halfmiler Dave Yates, pole vaulter David Cayman and miler Curtis Conway.

Yates was the only Plainsman able to improve his time last week, running a 2:00.1 in his specialty. He dropped his previous best time by a second. Perry remains at 60-9, eighth best in the state and Campsey's 14-foot vault is still his top performance so far. Conway, who has led the city's milers since the first gun was fired, won the 3,000 meter run at the Texas Relays last week in a time of 8:40.1. Johnny Pisenso and Archie Moore of Coronado continue to lead the 330 hurdles and 220-yard dash, respectively. Moore's 21.7 sprint still ranks him among the best in the Lone Star State. Pisenso was the first Lubbock high school hurdler to break a 40 in the 330s when he posted a 39.8.

In action this week, Monterey and Coronado visit the two-day Amarillo Relays, Dunbar heads to Levelland, and Estacado and Lubbock High journey to Lamesa. The Amarillo event starts on Friday, the others on Saturday.

The winning team in the Super Bowl each year receives the Vince Lombardi Trophy.

Jefferson Shot Putter Pulls Down State Lead

The shot put ring at the Texas Relays in Austin last week turned out to be some kind of launching pad for Michael Carter. Carter, a junior from Dallas Jefferson, tossed the shot 71-1 1/2 at the Texas meet and now leads the state's schoolboys by almost five full feet. The 6-2, 230-pounder, who has had hand trouble much of the season, also holds down one of the top throws in the discus, 182-1.

While Carter was doing his thing in the shot, Fort Worth Eastern Hills pulled off a major upset, rocketing to a 3:14.9 in the mile relay. The showing by Eastern Hills overtook Longview, a team that had led the event all year. Longview and Houston Madison now share second place with identical 3:14.9s. The state's only two-event leader is Efelerence Murphy of Texarkana. Murphy heads the 440-yard dash with a 48.2 and the 220-yard dash with a 21.2. Murphy has also run a 9.5 100-yard dash, joining a long list knotted at that time. Monterey's Chuck Perry and Coronado's Archie Moore continue to hold down spots among the state's top performers. Moore, a CHS junior, is in at 21.7 in the 220. Perry's 6-9 high jump puts him in a tie for eighth in that event.

Fidrych Holds Off Rangers 3-2

By The Associated Press
Detroit pitcher Mark Fidrych survived a two-run, first-inning home run by Al Oliver to finish with a six-hitter Wednesday night and helped the Tigers to a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Consecutive singles by Aurelio Rodriguez, Mark Wagner and Ron LeFlore, LeFlore's third single of the game, delivered the winning run off Texas starter Jon Matlack, 1-1, in the seventh inning. Oliver ripped his first homer of the season after Bert Campaneris walked in the first inning, but Detroit tied it with a run in the second on Rodriguez' RBI double and a solo home run by Lance Parrish in the fifth.

REDS 12, GIANTS 3—The Cincinnati Reds ruined Vida Blue's National League debut with a 20-hit attack and crushed the San Francisco Giants, as Joe Morgan drove in four runs and Bill Bonham won his second straight start.

son, a high wind-blown drive to left off Wayne Garland, 1-1.

ASTROS 11, DODGERS 10—Pinch-hitter Jesus Alou's infield grounder scored Jimmy Sexton from third base in the bottom of the ninth inning to end a 29-hit slugfest and give the Houston Astros a victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Art Howe opened the inning with a looping double down the left field line. Pinch-runner Sexton moved to third on Wilbur Howard's grounder and scored when Alou's grounder was fielded by shortstop Bill Russell too late for a play at the plate.

BREWERS 5, YANKEES 3—Don Money's tie-breaking two-run double in the seventh inning and Moose Haas' 14-strikeout pitching swept the unbeaten Brewers to their fifth straight victory.

CUBS 4, METS 2—Ray Burris' five-hitter and two-base errors by New York outfielders Steve Henderson and Bruce Boichair helped the Chicago Cubs rally for a victory over the Mets.

The Mets got their runs off Burris, 1-0, in the first inning on Tim Foli's single. Henderson's triple and Willie Montanez sacrificed fly.

WHITE SOX 5, BLUE JAYS 4—Jorge Orta blasted two home runs and Wayne Nordhagen and Ralph Garr hit one apiece Wednesday to power the Chicago White Sox to a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Toronto built a 2-0 lead in the first inning, and Orta erased it with solo homers in the first and fourth innings, his second and third of the season.

Nordhagen hit his first of the season off Toronto starter Dave Lemanczyk, 0-2, in the fourth with a man aboard to break the tie. Garr followed with his second of the year four pitches later.

Toronto took its lead in the first on doubles by Bob Bailor and Roy Howell and a single by John Mayberry.

Norton To Fight Holmes

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Norton signed Wednesday to fight unbeaten Larry Holmes and said he intended to rip apart charges that he was a "paper champion."

Norton's reference was to critics, including Leon Spinks, who term him a "paper champion" since he gained heavyweight title recognition from the World Boxing Council after that group withdrew recognition from Spinks on the grounds Spinks violated an agreement to fight Norton.

"You're always a champion on paper," said Norton. "It's what you do after you get it that counts."

Norton will try to make it start counting in a scheduled 15-rounder against Holmes, 27-0, the night of June 9 at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. It will be nationally televised by ABC.

The fight was formally announced by promoter Don King at a news conference one day after Spinks, still recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association, and Muhammad Ali agreed to a rematch in the New Orleans Superdome Sept. 15. Spinks upset Ali for the universal title last Feb. 15.

King said Norton will get "somewhere around $3 million and that's not a bad neighborhood." Holmes' purse will be about $500,000 "and that ain't a bad neighborhood, either," said King.

ABC is paying $3.2 million for the entire package, which also includes a bantamweight championship fight and a 10-rounder involving heavyweight Jimmy Young, rated No. 1 by the WBC and No. 2 by WBA, the promoter said.

King added that financial arrangements still are being worked out with Caesars Palace.

Before the news conference started, photographers asked Holmes to pose with Norton. Holmes moved next to Norton, but Norton turned his back. There were some words and Holmes moved away.

Holmes said later that he asked Norton, "Mr. Norton can we have our picture taken together?" He said, "Yes man, when I'm ready."

"People think there's something bad between Norton and me," continued Holmes. "We just don't see eye to eye. But you have to respect the man. He is the champion."

Norton expressed himself in stronger terms.

"I just don't like the man," said Norton. "That's all. He's trying to emulate a man (Ali) he can't. His wit isn't as quick and he can't fight as well. Some people just rub me the wrong way. I haven't liked him since the first time I met him."

Holmes, who earned his title shot with a one-sided 12-round decision over Earnie Shavers March 25, gave a sample of his "Ali" wit:

"They call me the Easton Assassin," said the 26-year-old from Easton, Pa., who is six years younger than the champion, "but after I get done with Ken Norton, they'll be calling me the Easton Can Opener."

It drew laughs from the audience. Norton didn't crack a smile.

Young also appeared at the news conference and was talking to a young man, when he found out the man was Ossie "Jaws" Ocasio, a Puerto Rican heavyweight who will be Young's opponent June 9.

"I must be the janitor of boxing," said Young. "Everybody nobody else wants, they throw my way."

And just for added measure, former heavyweight champion George Foreman, who has said he is coming out of retirement, appeared like the Ghost of Boxing Past. Don King was holding forth at the microphone, when suddenly there was Foreman at the foot of the dais posing for a picture with Young. King gave Foreman an acknowledgment, and Foreman disappeared.

The other champion on the card will be Carlos Zarate of Mexico, the WBC bantamweight king who has won all 51 of his fights, 50 by knockout.

"Zarate will fight a Koreaq," said King. "I cannot pronounce his name. It's some San Yan Kee."

It turned out Zarate's opponent will be Yung Shik Kim, the Orient bantamweight champion.

Los Angeles, IOC Iron Out Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The International Olympic Committee gave Los Angeles veto power over any decision which could increase the cost of the 1984 Games, Mayor Tom Bradley said Wednesday.

The mayor expressed confidence at a news conference that any differences between local officials and the IOC were hammered out during secret meetings earlier this week in Mexico City. IOC officials had previously indicated contingency plans were being developed to hold the Games elsewhere because of a reported challenge by Los Angeles officials to the IOC's power to control the Games.

"The city recognizes the supremacy of IOC rules in the organization and conduct of the Olympic Games," said a summary of the Mexico City agreement released by Bradley. "But the city and/or the Los Angeles Organizing Committee retain(s) veto power over any and all decisions which may increase the cost of the Games."

"I'm very pleased with the results of the meeting in Mexico City," said City Council President John Ferraro, who attended Bradley's news conference after returning from the Mexico meeting earlier Wednesday.

The agreement includes a change of wording permitting Los Angeles to negotiate U.S. television rights for the games and retain all money except for a one-third share the IOC traditionally claims as its due.

The IOC, in a letter signed by IOC President Lord Killanin, agreed that except for the television money, "the IOC will not request any other proceeds from the Games."

revenue to the IOC.

The IOC, Killanin's letter said, agrees to waive a rule which requires that television revenues be sent directly to the IOC and then distributed. The IOC agreed that television revenues will be distributed by Los Angeles.

Lubbock New Location For Area II Tourney?

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Area II NAAIA baseball tournament, which has bounced back-and-forth from Phoenix, Ariz., to Huntsville the past decade, may have found a home in Lubbock.

The Avalanche-Journal has learned that the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, at its meeting today, will take an official vote on underwriting any expenses that may develop from that tournament, which Lubbock Christian College will host May 17-19. And all indications point to approval.

At a breakfast meeting of the Chamber's Athletic Affairs Committee Wednesday morning, chairman John Cardinal announced that the Chamber's Executive Committee had given its permission Tuesday for underwriting the event.

Chamber manager John Logan confirmed this but said the full board had to vote on the matter before it would be official and that he "never tried to guess what a board of directors would do."

Ray Katt of Texas Lutheran College, who has served as chairman of the Area II Tournament for four years, was elated with the news.

"The big problem every year is finding a team that's willing to host this. If the host team is not involved, then normally it's a money-losing proposition for the school that gets the bid."

"Plus, our area is so spread out (taking in schools from Arizona, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi) that's its hard to find a central location."

"This year, we only had three bids — from LCC, Grand Canyon (Phoenix) and Sam Houston State (Huntsville)—and the main reason Sam Houston bid was to avoid the trip to Phoenix, which, if you fly, can run into money, too.

"Normally, it takes about $5,000 to run this tournament. Every team gets $300 (for travel), plus the host is required to house and feed the teams (which are limited to an 18-player roster and two coaches), supply three umpires per game, supply the baseball and house the area chairman."

With that in mind, Cardinal this morning presented his committee with a $5,175 budget, which covers May 16-19 with this breakdown: $300 per team for travel, $1,200; area chairman expenses, $200; meals and lodging (four players to a room) for four teams for three days, $3,000; umpires $525, and baseballs $250.

"Naturally, if LCC is involved, those expenses will be less," Cardinal pointed out. "But we think we can show a profit on this, even though we're kinda rushed right now since we're getting a late start."

"The first tournament would be the key. We've already sold more than $1,000 of advertising for our program and we've only had one man working part-time for two days on that. So with gate ticket sales, concessions and the remainder of the program, we don't think it will cost the Chamber anything."

"Plus, we've got a guarantee that our profit we show will be put into a special account to hold this tournament in future years."

Cardinal appointed four committee chairmen to work in various areas, including one to contact local civic clubs about sponsoring one of the four teams that will be here.

Area II is divided into four districts—4, 7, 8 and 30 under the NAAIA's numbering system.

District 4 contains the Lone Star and Big State Conferences of Texas, whose winners have a best-of-three playoff for the title. District 7 encompasses Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah and normally involves a three-or-four team tournament.

District 8 takes in the other 14 NAAIA schools in Texas, which selects its victor through a tournament in Arlington each year, and District 30 covers Louisiana and Mississippi leagues, whose winners have a best-of-three playoff.
