BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian peacekeeping troops traded sniper fire with Christian militiamen today in the same Beirut suburb where the Lebanese civil war broke out exactly three years ago. A top government official warned that the situation could degenerate to "total sectarian strife."

In south Lebanon, residents reported a Palestinian buildup in some southwest refugee camps and a brief Israeli machine gun barrage in the area. The reported shooting came a day before Israel was to implement stage two of a withdrawal operation with a limited retreat in the area.

Residents of the southeast Christian enclave of Ain Rummaneh reported sniper, rocket and mortar fire broke out before dawn, shattering the 13th cease-fire in the area in five days.

Sniper exchanges continued sporadically through the day, with firing reportedly much heavier on the Syrian side. Residents said there were scattered casualties, but not as many as Wednesday when hospital sources said at least 15 persons died.

The official radio of the mainstream Christian Phalange Party said Syrian rifle and shell fire had stopped about 5 p.m. (9 a.m. CST) but the Christians were "waiting to see" if daylong peace talks between Christian officials and Syrian representatives had taken effect.

The flare-up came three years to the day after Lebanon's 19-month civil war began in Ain Rummaneh.

Hospital and police sources said the minimum casualty toll for the past five days now stood at 35 dead and 135 wounded.

The flare-up signaled the collapse of the 13th truce agreement since the clashes erupted Sunday between the Christians and neighboring Moslem militiamen.

Syrian troops of the 30,000-man Arab peacekeeping force that ended the civil war 17 months ago stepped in Tuesday in a bid to break up the fighting, and unleashed heavy barrages on Christian positions.

One resident said the truce agreed on Wednesday by Lebanese and Christian officials "lasted through midnight, but before dawn things started again."

President Elias Sarkis conferred late Wednesday with the commander of the peacekeeping force and Syrian and Christian officials in an effort to end the violence, political sources said.

Former Lebanese President Camille Chamoun, head of the Christian rightist coalition known as the Lebanese Front, told a television interviewer the fighting was "clear revenge" by the Syrians for a clash with Christian militiamen last February.

Some estimates put casualties much higher than the official figures. The newspaper An Nahar, for example, said 240 people have been wounded so far. Police and hospital sources said that was an exaggeration.

Mahon Calls Farm Vote 'Surprise'

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock this morning called the thundering defeat of an emergency farm aid bill Wednesday "the greatest surprise of my congressional career."

Mahon thinks the farmers have increased the awareness among non-farm members of Congress about agricultural problems, however, and said the farmers have gained "more support and more friends."

The House Appropriations Committee chairman and congressman since 1935 said it is unclear now what other action might be attempted this year to help financially troubled farmers.

"It's impossible to predict at the moment," Mahon said in a telephone interview. "I think nearly everyone is in a state of shock over the outcome of the vote yesterday."

"I thought the conference report would be adopted by the House. It was the greatest surprise of my congressional career that the conference bill was defeated by over 100 votes. I thought it might be close, but I don't know of anybody in the House who wasn't greatly surprised at that top-sided vote."

The one-year emergency bill to supplement a year of the four-year farm bill passed in 1977 was approved by 49 to 41 votes in the Senate Monday, but failed 268 to 150 in the House.

Mahon said he thought the promise by President Carter to veto the bill if it passed would make the vote closer by allowing some congressmen who really didn't want it to become law to vote for it and please the farmers.

To a large extent, he said, the vote divided along urban-agricultural lines.

"The urban members of Congress had seemingly expressed their concern over the plight of the farmer," he said. "They hadn't necessarily pledged themselves to support farm legislation, but they seemed to have some understanding of the plight of the farmers who have been in Washington to present their problems to the members of Congress."

"What to do at this juncture is what everybody is occupied with now. It's not clear yet where Congress will go from here. I'm sure we will make further efforts to take some meaningful action in regard to agricultural prices, but a decision as to procedure has not been made by the House and Senate committees on agriculture."

Asked if the farmers have improved themselves politically despite the Wednesday setback, Mahon said, "I think the farmers have increased the awareness among non-farm members of Congress about the problems of agriculture. "I must agree that this was not demonstrated in the vote yesterday, but the non-farm members have agreed with the necessity for some sort of remedial action."

"The farmers have more support and more friends who are somewhat aware of their problems. But with the threat of the presidential veto and the charge that the bill would bring about such unacceptable consequences, members from urban areas shied away from voting for it."

CDC Funds For Patrols Authorized

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council this morning allocated $49,319 in fourth-year Community Development Funds to finance daily security patrols of Hub Homes and Green Fair Manor.

The patrols, which will be from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. each weekday, will begin in July, when construction projects at the two housing projects get underway.

Cathy Morton, Housing Authority board chairman, requested as a first proposal $65,422 for patrols that would last from 3 p.m. to 7 a.m. each day.

But council members authorized the lesser amount of money and fewer patrol hours, explaining that enough people would be around the construction sites during the daylight hours not to warrant extra patrol visibility.

The council also passed an emergency ordinance authorizing two 20 mph school zone signs near Nat Williams Elementary School.

The signs, which probably will be installed this week, will be placed on Uteca Avenue near 56th Street and on 58th Street near Wayne Avenue.

Representatives from the Parent-Teacher Association at the school had asked the Citizens Traffic Commission to recommend that school zones be outlined in the area. They requested flashing signals to alert drivers to the school's presence, but the commission recommended only speed limit signs.

The council, minus a Place 3 member, unanimously accepted the commission's recommendation.

Farmers Map Drive Against Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting farmers who massed thousands strong outside the White House to decry House rejection of an emergency farm-aid bill say they're heading home to work for the defeat of those they regard as their enemies on Capitol Hill.

Gathered again outside the White House today, protest leaders said they were leaving Washington to discuss Wednesday's 268-150 vote with their neighbors, then will meet again outside the capital in about two weeks.

"We will be back again, and again, and again. We say to the Congress and the president: watch out, this is only the beginning!"

Gregg Suhler, an American Agriculture protest organizer from Springfield, Colo., shouted through a bullhorn.

Tommy Fulford of Alamo, Ga., said American Agriculture would not try to defeat all those who voted against the bill, but would especially go after Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas S. Foley, who voted for the bill but had opposed it during the drafting process.

"He's No. 1 on our list," Fulford said of the Washington Democrat.

The farmers jammed the House gallery for the vote, then lined the White House fence 3,500 strong Wednesday night to demand in vain to talk to President Carter.

Now they are leaving the city they've lobbied so heavily for almost four months, determined, says one, to "cook" the 193 Democrats who voted against the bill.

"In two years' time, the American people will regret this day ever happened," Bobby Jackson of Levelland said outside the White House.

"It will be amazing what this will do for the Democrats in the next election. This'll cook 'em," he said.

"Come on out, Jimmy, we want to talk to you," yelled fellow Georgian Oliver Odom, pressing his bullhorn against the White House fence.

Carter, who was inside entertaining visiting Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu at a state dinner, said later he had not been aware of the protest.

Carter had repeatedly threatened to veto the bill if it had reached his desk. He said it would have sent the country's inflation rate skyrocketing while raising farmers' feed grain costs.

He said the defeat of the bill, which had narrowly passed the Senate earlier this week, was "good for the farmers of the United States and ... very bad for consumers."

The dissident farmers didn't agree. "This is going to cause a lot of bankruptcies this year in rural America," said Texan Gerald McCathern.

While Foley said he doubted Carter's veto threat was the key to defeat of the bill, the measure's Republican authors charged that the president's "heavy-handed pressure" and "scare tactics" had been responsible.

Opponents said enactment would have See ANGRY FARMERS Page 14

City, Area Men Irked By Defeat

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Walking around the Capitol, they appear to be the classic "Odd Couple."

One is a banker, clad in a three-piece pin-stripe suit. The other, a small-town farmer ambling along in khakis, western shirt and baseball cap adorned with American Agriculture slogans.

The farmer and the banker came to the nation's capital for the first time this week to lobby for the emergency one-year farm-aid bill, see the sights and get a first-hand look at the way Congress runs their nation.

Despite their contrasting appearance, the two have identical viewpoints: American agriculture is in the midst of an economic depression spawned by farm prices that have failed to keep pace with production costs. Towns built upon agriculture economies are beginning to crumble much like urban areas that lose a military installation or industrial plants.

Thus, the farmer and the banker joined thousands of agribusinessmen already in Washington hoping to impress Congress and the Carter administration with the plight of the agriculture community.

"Our bank gets about 25 percent of its business directly from farmers and about 90 percent indirectly," said Johnny Lutrick, assistant vice president at Lubbock National Bank. "We need the farmer as bad as the farmer needs us."

"And the American public doesn't realize it, but we are going broke and once agriculture goes, everything goes," added Ernest Trull, the 44-year-old farmer from Bledsoe. "The congressmen we talk to say they're for us, but you get the feeling that you really can't trust some of them."

India Seeks U.S. Probe Of Alleged CIA Project

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India demanded today that the United States promptly check out reports of a CIA nuclear device lost in the Himalayas 13 years ago and inform it of the potential hazards.

U.S. Ambassador Robert G. Goheen was summoned to India's Foreign Ministry and told that news stories of lost nuclear material that could poison the Ganges River had caused "great concern to the Indian government, the Indian Parliament and the Indian people," a ministry spokesman said.

He said Foreign Secretary Jagat Mehta asked Goheen "to ascertain the truth as early as possible" about the report in Outside, a publication of the American magazine Rolling Stone. The report was carried today in Indian newspapers.

The magazine story said the device was lost by a CIA expedition trying to set up a tracking station to monitor nuclear test explosions in neighboring China.

Goheen told Mehta the State Department was looking into the matter and would inform Goheen as soon as it ascertained the facts, the Indian government spokesman said. He said the American ambassador conveyed India's demand to Washington and promised to provide further information as it becomes available.

In Washington, there was no immediate comment from the State Department, and the CIA refused to comment on the story both today and Wednesday.

The magazine said a Central Intelligence Agency group tried in 1965 to plant a nuclear-powered device atop 25,645-foot Nanda Devi, one of India's highest mountains, to monitor nuclear blasts at nearby Chinese testing areas.

The magazine said bad weather forced the climbers to give up 2,000 feet short of the summit. The nuclear device, left behind in some rocks, was buried in an avalanche before the climbers returned the following year, it said.

The story said the abandoned material contained plutonium 238 that remains dangerously radioactive for up to 500 years. Once its outer covering corroded, the material could contaminate the Ganges watershed with cancer-causing poisons, the story said.

Two years later, the CIA was able to place a similar device on a neighboring mountain, according to the magazine, but the development of spy satellites made the project obsolete.

Some Indians were skeptical of the story. A Foreign Ministry official said an expedition by foreigners "must have been known to the government," but he could not say immediately what the 1965 records showed.

But the Outside story said the CIA's Indian counterpart, the Central Bureau of Investigation, was aware of the expedition but was asked not to inform the government of then-Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Milsap Celebrates Gold Album

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Ronnie Milsap has celebrated awarding of the "gold" designation for his album, "It Was Almost Like a Song."

MILSAP

The album earned gold status after having reached the half million mark in sales. A party on Wednesday commemorated the event.

"I want to thank everybody who made this possible. There's so many and I can never remember a face," joked the blind singer.

Milsap was chosen entertainer of the year and male vocalist of the year by the Country Music Association in 1977. The title song from the album, although it was Milsap's biggest hit last year, lost out to Kenny Rogers' "Lucille" for the single of the year title.

'Chicago' Plans Tour, Album

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The rock band Chicago, idle since January due to the shocking death of lead guitarist Terry Kath, is planning to record another album and perform in Russia.

Kath, 31, died Jan. 26 when he pointed what he said was an unloaded gun at his head and fired.

After his death, the group, with $160 million in record sales since 1969, considered disbanding.

"They decided to carry on because 'we're still here ... We have to do something,'" said drummer Danny Seraphine.

Singer Bobby Lamm said the group was preparing its 12th album and plans for a one-night stand in Moscow were being completed, with no date for the Russian visit set.

Lamm said Donnie Dacus has joined the band as its eighth member to replace Kath. Dacus, 26, known as "Hot Licks Dacus," has performed with musicians including Stephen Stills and Boz Scaggs. Dacus has a part in the film version of "Hair."

Jack Lemmon Ready For Broadway

BOSTON (AP) — Jack Lemmon says it took a year to arrange enough free time to star in "Tribute" — Bernard Slade's new play that began its pre-Broadway run in Boston this week.

But the Oscar-winner figured he could wait that long to make his return to Broadway. He's stayed away since 1961.

"Tribute," which opened Sunday, is being presented at the Colonial Theater through April 29. It's the story of a man dying of cancer trying to make peace with his son, described by a Boston Globe reviewer as a "warm funny, likable comedy."

Lemmon plays Scottie Templeton, a 51-year-old screenwriter, an endless joker who says he has "laughed his way out of a career and two wives" — a man with three months to live.

The two-act play is Slade's first Broadway offering since the smash hit comedy "Same Time, Next Year."

Bette Midler Wants Pay In Gold

LONDON (AP) — Fluctuating values of the world's currencies have led singer Bette Midler to ask for payment in gold — an apparent first in the entertainment business.

MISS MIDLER

Miss Midler's London publicity agents said Wednesday that she would be paid in gold bullion for a planned British concert tour this fall.

The "Divine Miss M" is believed to be the first major performer to be paid in bullion, according to the agents, Rogers and Cowan, who declined to describe Miss Midler's fee.

"This isn't a publicity stunt," the spokesman said. "It's just a way of protecting her fees negotiated for the tour against fluctuating exchange rates."

"Her manager believes all currencies are suspect these days and wants to make sure she doesn't take a loss six months from now," the spokesman said.

He added that Miss Midler is also demanding payment in gold from promoters in other European countries she will tour after Britain.

Sweetening The Tune

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first beneficiary of a new singing telegram service inaugurated here was a horse.

The founder of the service promoted an expansion of his operation to several cities by donning a bellhop suit Wednesday and singing an original tune to the horse.

"Deception," a handsome black thoroughbred, first looked puzzled, then pensive, then whinnied with what onlookers interpreted as happiness once the event was seasoned with a few sugar cubes.

"It's spring, and after a hard winter, we're celebrating," explained Joy Sullivan, who ordered the specially written melody delivered to her horse at its stable.

Donald Currie, founder of the service, said his Western Union firm has expanded and changed its name to National Union and he calls his melodious telegrams "oniongrams."

Little Hope Seen For Conference

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is flying to Africa with little immediate hope of bringing black guerrilla leaders into a conference on Rhodesia's future.

But the alternative of the uphill U.S. diplomatic effort is civil war between the militant Patriotic Front and the followers of moderate black leaders who have come to terms with Prime Minister Ian Smith.

"That is the assessment of American policy makers who are convinced that the interim government installed in Salisbury is little more than a sham to perpetuate white-minority rule."

They said the odds are enormous against Vance succeeding in setting up an all-parties conference involving Smith, guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, and the three moderates, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau.

Vance is determined to "go the last mile" in trying. He and British Foreign Secretary David Owen will meet in Tanzania Friday with Nkomo and Mugabe, and also with representatives of Tanzania, Angola, Mozambique, Botswana and Zambia, the five black countries that support the demand by Nkomo and Mugabe that they take over the Rhodesian government.

If it can be arranged, the conference will be held in Geneva or Malta before the end of the month, after Vance holds nuclear arms negotiations in Moscow with President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

But U.S. officials said privately the secretary probably will return to Washington on April 23, at the end of the Moscow talks, since a Rhodesian conference is highly unlikely.

Vance's schedule was expanded to include a stop in South Africa, where he hoped to promote black rule in the territory of South-West Africa, or Namibia, in talks with Foreign Minister R. F. Botha.

Vance will also go to Salisbury to see Smith, whom U.S. officials consider the biggest obstacle to negotiations with Nkomo and Mugabe.

Traveling with Vance is Andrew Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and a key figure in formulating the administration's African policy.

Smaller Tax Cut Urged By Panel

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Budget Committee, rejecting efforts to slash Social Security taxes, is recommending a federal budget for next year that carries slightly less spending and a smaller income tax cut than proposed by President Carter.

Wrapping up work Wednesday on spending and taxing targets for the 12 months that begin next Oct. 1, the committee also agreed to make room in the budget for a college tuition credit.

The committee proposed that federal spending during the year be limited to $498.9 billion, compared to the $500.2 billion proposed by the president. The House Budget Committee settled on $501.4 billion.

However, because of differing projections of tax revenues and economic performance during the year, each committee agreed separately on smaller deficits than would result from Carter's budget.

The Senate panel forecast a $55.6 billion deficit, the House committee $58.1 billion and Carter $60.2 billion.

On taxes, in addition to opposing a Social Security tax reduction, the Senate committee:

— Agreed that any income tax reduction approved this year should not become effective until next Jan. 1. Carter has proposed a $25 billion net reduction in individual and business taxes, with most cuts effective on Oct. 1. Such a delay would cut the first-year size of Carter's tax cut to $19.4 billion.

— Rejected a Republican effort to sharply expand the size of the income tax cut in future years. While Carter's plan would cost the Treasury $44 billion in 1983, the GOP version would cost $129.8 billion. But the committee stopped short of endorsing the specific tax cut proposed by Carter.

— Assumed that none of the revenue-raising "tax reforms" recommended by the president will be approved by Congress. These include scaling back or eliminating individual medical expense deductions and various state and local taxes, as well as a series of tax breaks now available to businesses.

— Left room in the budget for a tax credit to help offset the cost of college tuition for full-time undergraduate students. The credit envisioned by the panel eventually would be $500 a year, about double that recommended by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Senate Finance Committee is backing the same size credit for parents of students in elementary and secondary schools that charge tuition. The budget panel rejected such a plan after Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said that would damage public schools and amount to "a segregation subsidy in the Southland where I come from."

Schmidt Backs Carter On Bomb

By DAVID MINTHORN

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt rallied behind President Carter's announcement to delay a decision on U.S. production of the neutron bomb.

"It is a signal for the other side to show their readiness for reduction or limitation of their growing potential," Schmidt told Parliament today.

He said Carter's move last week "can create new starting points" for stabilizing the East-West arms race and underlined U.S. readiness to negotiate a new strategic arms limitation pact with Moscow.

Carter's initial indication that he would scrap the neutron bomb provoked consternation in Schmidt's government, which had privately endorsed the weapon but refused to take a public stand in favor of it.

Schmidt said the final decision to build the weapon must remain with Carter but that West Germany was ready to allow the bomb to be stationed on its soil on two conditions:

— That NATO as a whole approves the weapon.

— That the device is stationed in another NATO nation as well.

This is the position Bonn previously conveyed privately to the Carter administration but it was the first time Schmidt said so publicly.

Schmidt stressed in his speech that Bonn-Washington ties were as strong as ever.

"German-American friendship is so strongly anchored that daily political differences of opinion, which can come up even in the best cooperation, can't affect it," he said.

U.S. and German officials have conceded that bilateral relations have been strained over the neutron bomb, the weakened dollar and what Bonn should do to improve the international economic climate.

Schmidt singled out the dollar in his speech and said Western European nations are concerned about the dollar's weakness and "the resulting dangers for stimulation of business."

"We are united (in the opinion) that we cannot accept such instability over the long run," the chancellor said.

Schmidt expressed concern about the Warsaw Pact's growing numerical advantage over NATO in improved tanks and middle range missiles and aircraft.

"The Warsaw Pact must realize that an excessive growth of their own security (measures) can lead to insecurity on our side. The West cannot be prepared to accept a continuation of this unsatisfactory situation," he warned.

East-West disarmament will be a topic of his talks with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev May 14-16 in Bonn, Schmidt said.

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

The warhead is designed to replace the approximately 7,000 nuclear warheads now deployed in Europe.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Officials say anti-abortionists are to blame for the vandalism that has succeeded in closing three area offices of Planned Parenthood of Minnesota.

The organization said employees have come to work several mornings in the past few months and discovered that the doors had been glued shut. Executive Director Thomas Webber said someone also has been pouring glue into locks on the doors. He said the three offices in the Minneapolis area would close while police investigate.

Hill, Briscoe Focus On Fuel, Prices

By The Associated Press

Inflation and energy were key words as Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Attorney General John Hill carried their Democratic campaigns to the gulf coast.

"Inflation is the cruelest, most devastating tax of all — and it strikes hardest at retired people and others on fixed income," Briscoe said Wednesday in Corpus Christi. "It jeopardizes for them the security and peace which they worked hard for many years to achieve."

"Billion-dollar spending schemes designed to collect votes from special interest groups cannot be financed without additional taxes. They would give an added boost to the inflationary spiral, thus taking a double dip out of the taxpayers' pockets."

Hill told the Houston Retail Merchants Association that Texas must take the offensive against Washington over national energy policies which seek to exploit Texas' resources.

"We need a governor and other political leaders who are willing to stand up and articulate the issue in Washington," Hill said. "We cannot sugarcoat the energy issue any longer. It's time for us to slug it out with Washington on the national energy policy."

Joe Christie extended his Democratic campaign for the U.S. Senate to Washington.

He told newsmen he would turn over to the House Committee on Administration a list of employees of Rep. Bob Krueger, another Democratic candidate for Senate, who Christie said had received campaign expenses in addition to their congressional staff salaries.

"I'm saying that if this is not a violation, then it should be," Christie said.

and a $75 tool box from the bed of his pickup parked in his driveway during the past two days.

Jean Daniels of 2400 44th St., No. 104, told officers a $75 barbecue grill was taken from in front of her apartment and Celeste Swayze, who lives in the same complex, had a similar complaint — this one involving a $60 grill.

Lubbock County Sheriff's Department deputies still were probing a recent house burglary near Slaton.

According to Walter Carl Denzer, whoever broke through a front door made off with $3,225 worth of property including kitchen appliances, household goods, tools and two hot water heaters.

In other crime-related activity, Drug Enforcement Administration agents, assisted by Department of Public Safety narcotics officers, arrested three Mexican-American men Tuesday afternoon and seized about 67 pounds of suspected marijuana at the Lubbock International Airport.

After they received confidential information from Cameron County in far South Texas, officers drove to the airport, where they watched a 25-year-old man deplane from a Brownsville flight, then meet two other men near the baggage area.

Minutes later, police said, the trio left the terminal carrying four suitcases.

At that point, two of the men placed the bags in a brown 1965 Mustang, while the passenger from Brownsville climbed into a 4-door 1950 Chevrolet.

The three men were arrested, the suitcases were seized and agents later weighed the suspected marijuana. The 30,266.2 grams (66.7 pounds) confiscated reportedly would be worth about $7,000 on the street.

George Hobbs of Route 10, Lubbock, said someone broke into his trailer house Tuesday and stole his television set valued at $700.

A grandfather clock, valued at $900, was reported stolen from L. D. Reeves' Shallowater residence Tuesday. Reeves said thieves also took a $250 television and a $75 radio.

Robert Stumbaugh said burglars broke into his drug store at 4218 Boston Ave. Tuesday and took an undetermined amount of drugs and narcotics. Police theorized the burglars entered the store through a hole they had broken through a wall from an adjacent store.

Hubert Weaver, whose building is next door at 4217 Boston Ave., said thieves took a roll of quarters and some loose change from his cash register during the same time period. Weaver estimated his loss at $20.

Burglars also apparently were busy at the Fee Pharmacy, 1615 34th St., Wednesday.

Police responding to an alarm at first found no sign of entry, but subsequent investigation revealed a hole in the wall of an adjacent building.

An officer and his patrol dog entered the building and found the manager of the building asleep. The man apparently had been undisturbed by the break-in. Nothing was missing, reports indicate.

Speakers Promote Alaska Lands Bill

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"What will be left when the oil and gas pipelines run dry?"

Saying they want to preserve portions of the last frontier for future generations, members of conservation, wildlife, and environmental groups have banded together to form the national Alaska Coalition and to seek answers to that question.

Members of the national Alaska Coalition, Pam Rich and Paul Peyton, presented a program Wednesday at the Mahon Library on the controversial Alaska National Interests Lands Bill, which is now pending in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

Mrs. Rich and Peyton were in Lubbock during a tour of several Texas cities, informing citizens of the nation's second largest state about the bill.

The national Alaska Coalition has pinpointed Texas as a key state vital to the success of passage of the controversial bill.

During their program Wednesday night, they showed slides of the nation's largest state and discussed the bill with members of the audience.

The bill concerns the designation of some 110 million acres of Alaska land already owned by the federal government. The act would designate areas of the federally owned land as national parks and monuments, forests, national wildlife refuges, and wild and scenic rivers systems.

Peyton pointed out that the 110 million acres of federally owned land is only about one-third of the state of Alaska. The other two-thirds is owned by the state or by private citizens.

He added that the bill would preserve whole ecological systems within the state for future generations of Americans.

Miss Rich said that "Americans will never have a chance to go back again" and preserve the areas once they are open to big business and industry. She added, "If we don't designate these areas now, it will be a lot harder to get the land areas designated later."

She noted the problem recently encountered when the federal government had to buy back lands surrounding the Redwood National Forest in California. She added that there are many problems with the land acquisition which are still not solved.

Miss Rich said the controversial bill would ensure that two-thirds of the state will be open for development, with only one-third saved for wilderness preservation.

She added that many opponents of the bill are trying to use a job issue-development idea as a smokescreen. Miss Rich said the real issue is economics, with the opponents realizing that any environmental restrictions on the federally owned land would make rapid development economically unfeasible.

The national Alaska Coalition spokesman said that part of the economic problems for rapid development are the distance from Alaska to the lower 48 states' marketplaces, and prohibitive transportation costs.

Peyton, a native Alaskan, said he became involved in the national group because he saw his home state hurtling down the road toward rapid development with no thought to the destruction of the land and its people as they once were.

He pointed out that only one-half of Alaska's population has lived in the state more than three years and they have never seen the state's environment as it once was.

The native Alaskan said every industry that has moved into the state is a consumptive one.

The bill is being opposed by the oil and gas industries, land developers, mining companies, timber industry, the AFL-CIO, and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Rich and Peyton both added that Alaska is the last frontier in the nation and the bill is the last chance to preserve portions of the state for the enjoyment of future Americans.

Mamie Assists In Dedication

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower helped dedicate an $11 million addition to the Eisenhower Memorial Hospital named for her late husband, former president Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Eisenhower was one of about 1,000 people at Wednesday's ceremonies.

"This hospital was built by people who did not ask a cent from the government, and, boy, are we proud of that," Mrs. Eisenhower said. She noted that the addition was paid for entirely by private donations and funds raised by the Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

Completed last month, the hospital addition has 79 beds, a cafeteria and three private dining rooms. It increases the facility's bed capacity to 185, officials said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

It's Lonely In The Rear

ORIGINALLY RATED as slim to none, Republican chances for recapturing the governorships of the two biggest states appear to be picking up of late.

GOP contenders appear to be gaining ground despite the fact California's Jerry Brown and New York's Hugh Carey remain solid favorites for re-election.

In New York, GOP Assembly Leader Percy Duryea now looks like a sure bet to capture the Republican gubernatorial nomination with a minimum of intra-party feuding to worry about heading into the November general election.

DURYEA LACKS the strong name identification Carey enjoys as an incumbent and faces the usual Republican difficulty in cracking the overwhelmingly Democratic vote of NYC and environs.

But he is putting together a thoroughly professional campaign organization that includes the usual Republican aides of his old nemesis, Nelson Rockefeller—who is no longer around to torment him.

In California, meanwhile, Brown continues to hold a comfortable lead over all five Republicans vying for the right to oppose him in November, but his margin has been cut significantly since last fall, according to the latest field poll.

State Assemblyman Ken Maddy of Fresno, virtually unknown six months ago, is now rated as the man to watch in the GOP primary contest.

MADDY STILL trails Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger and former Los Angeles police chief Ed Davis in poll match-up, but Maddy is gaining while Younger and Davis lose ground.

Maddy's major assets? Plenty of money, mostly from agri-business interests desperate to beat Brown, and a massive media campaign devised by Bailey, Deardourff and Associates—most recently seen masterminding the near-miss campaign of former President Gerald Ford.

If Maddy wins the June 6 primary, he could give Brown enough trouble in November to put a crimp in the governor's 1980 presidential ambitions.

But as long as it is content to play catch up from behind, the GOP will never have to worry about protecting its rear flanks from any competition. The competition went that way.

Chipping Away

Right-To-Lifers Never Say Die

WASHINGTON—The stage is being set in the Senate for a legal-political determination of when life begins and whether anyone, including the mother, has a right to continue to destroy that life.

The historic drama will be an integral part of the big "human rights" show that is being scheduled for later this year when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee holds hearings on the American Convention on Human Rights negotiated by the Organization of American States (OAS) and signed by President Carter on June 1, 1977.

THE FAR-REACHING OAS treaty is one of four dealing with "human rights" forwarded to the Senate in late February by the President for ratification. The other three are treaties negotiated within the framework of the United Nations.

What is unique about that OAS treaty is that it contains a provision protecting the right to life from the moment of conception, which is ratified without reservations by the Senate, would obligate the Congress to pass legislation to implement that provision.

Titled simply "Right To Life," paragraph one of article four reads:

"Every person has the right to have his life respected. This right shall be protected by law and, in general, from the moment of conception. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life."

While supporting the OAS treaty in general, the Senate Department with the President's full backing has proposed that the Senate include two "reservations" that would wipe out the protection that article four provides for the unborn.

AS OUTLINED IN A letter forwarded to the Senate by the White House and signed by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, the proposed "reservations" of the Carter administration and reasoning for them are:

"The following is a summary of the provisions of the convention, with the reservations, understandings and declarations to them recommended to the Senate by the Department of State.

"The convention begins with a general provision on non-discrimination (Article 1), and follows with an obligation to adopt legislative or other measures as may be necessary to give effect to the rights and freedoms protected by the Convention (Article 2).

"THE U.S. DECLARES that the provisions of Article 1 through 32 of this convention are not self-executing."

"Article 4 deals with the right to life generally... Many of the provisions of Article 4 are not in accord with U.S. law and policy, or deal with matters in which the law is unsettled.

With the Supreme Court ruling of 1973, which legalized the massive killing of the unborn, now the law of the land, the "reservations" would keep article four of the treaty from superseding the High Courts's pro-abortion decision.

IN EFFECT, THE Carter administration is asking the Senate to eliminate the "human rights" protection that the treaty would obligate the administration and Congress to establish by law for the unborn from the moment of conception.

Since action on the administration's request to write these "reservations" into the treaty will require floor votes, pro-life lawmakers headed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., see this as a golden opportunity to force a historic debate and showdown on protecting the unborn's right to life.

By defeating the "reservations" and approving article four as contained in the OAS treaty, the Helms group stresses, that the U.S. government would then be obligated to take the necessary steps to stop the slaughter of the unborn in the country which now numbers more than 1.2 million each year.

Legislation to implement article four of the treaty would need only a majority vote and not the two-thirds majority needed to pass a constitutional amendment to protect the right to life of the unborn and overturn the 1973 Supreme Court decision.

IN THE VIEW OF pro-life leaders, the treaty offers the U.S. a unique opportunity to express its support for the cause of human rights in the Americas and to recognize God's supreme role in creating life.

The American Convention on Human Rights was negotiated at San Jose, Costa Rica in 1969 by members of the Organization of American States with the active participation of the U.S.

It has been ratified or adhered to by Colombia, Costa Rica, Haiti, Honduras, and Venezuela. Entry into force of the convention requires 11 ratifications or adherences by members of the OAS.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

'Better Late Than...'

PRESIDENT Carter officially recognized inflation this week as the nation's biggest domestic threat.

One theory as to how he heard about it was that, on his recent trip to Africa, the President was given one of former President Ford's "Whip Inflation Now" buttons and he thought it was a new idea.

Mr. Carter also said he will "resist" efforts to increase the federal budget above the enormous increases he's already recommended.

My Neighbor Twice Removed says he takes no comfort in that promise. Carter used much stronger language during the 1976 campaign, he recalls, to promise that he'd "never" be a party to giving away the Panama Canal.

The President did make a flat promise, though, that he "will not impose wage and price controls."

Let us hope that his use of the word "and" instead of "or" doesn't give him a loophole for imposing the one without the other.

TWO KEY MEMBERS of the Texas House of Representatives have sided with Gov. Dolph Briscoe on the matter of public school financing.

Speaker pro tem Jim Nugent of Kerrville and Public Education Committee Chairman Tom Massey of San Angelo take issue with Atty. Gen. John Hill's campaign statements.

Hill is running against Briscoe in the May 6 Democratic primary and has heavily courted the teacher vote.

Holmes Alexander:

Meek Nations Need Not Apply

WASHINGTON—One thing's for sure—the meek aren't going to inherit the Nuclear Age earth.

The side with the stronger set of nerves to wait out its enemies, the social system that produces the scariest atomic hair trigger bull's-eye aim and, if need be, the deadliest bang—these will be the visitors who write the history books.

These thoughts are pertinent because, by July, President Carter hopes to have agreement with the Soviet Union on the second Arms limitation (SALT II).

The President's men, as well as the gutless peacemongers, are already counting Senate noses to see if the two-thirds majority is there, or isn't, for ratification. There are two criteria for this countdown:

* THE PLUS-ONE ratification of the Panama Canal Neutrality is considered a guideline. Those who sided with the administration, and two or three who would have given votes if needed, are counted on to follow their leader, if only to protect the presidency from shame before the world.

It may not be the best reason for accepting concessions, but it could be the only one to persuade the skeptics.

* The Soviets will want to get Jimmy Carter in a summit meeting and twist his arm—because, says a Kremlinologist, the most important items in the arms treaty will be decided in the last 30 minutes before the signing.

If the final offer by the Russians is too raw a deal for us, senators like Scoop Jackson will balk.

WHAT ARE SOME OF the sticking points in SALT II, now in negotiation? Each side is currently permitted 2400 nuclear "vehicles" (1320 of which are multiple warhead). The argument is over how much, how soon, these numbers can be reduced or "limited."

The Soviets have a new bomber, the Backfire, which they refuse to count as a strategic "vehicle." America has cancelled production of its own new bomber, the B-1, but has a quiverful of air-sea-land-launchable Cruise missiles. The Russians want us to limit its range—it's a killer.

Thus SALT II but, in fact, SALT I is still unfinished business. The Interim Agreement which President Nixon finagled should have expired October 1977. SALT II, a three-year protocol, should by our preference begin when SALT I is supposedly ended, last October 77.

But the wily Reds contend that SALT II won't begin until the new terms are ratified, say this summer, '78, at the earliest. This gives them additional months to test weapons and concoct schemes.

After SALT I and SALT II, there's SALT III,

"While some pay lip service to making education a top priority," the two representatives say, "Dolph Briscoe has demonstrated such a commitment. During his administration, state funding for public schools has more than doubled.

"Average teaching salaries have gone up 53 per cent. Retirement benefits have been substantially increased, with special attention last year to retired teachers hit by inflation. The pupil-teacher ratio has been reduced."

All this has come about, Nugent and Massey add, "without any new or increased state taxes... Most other states are strapped for money for the public schools and are looking at increases in their income tax or other tax sources..."

They conclude: "Campaign promises are a dime a dozen, but actual achievements tell the real story."

Seven other members of the Texas House are stumping the state for Hill.

"The governor's office is not an active participant in our legislative sessions," they charge, "because Gov. Briscoe will not do his job."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe was booed when he threw out the first baseball to open the Texas Rangers' season in Arlington Stadium.

Briscoe need not be discouraged, though. Texas Ranger fans haven't backed a winner yet.

In San Antonio, meanwhile, State Comptroller Bob Bullock was blasted for using gutter language to describe his old enemy and Briscoe's opponent, Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Those who blasted him were a couple of school teachers. They checked first to make sure Bullock hadn't picked up those words on the school grounds.

From the Quote Wrack: "It is irresponsible and highly inflationary and sure to further add to the government's inability to properly manage its budget."—The American Farm Bureau, describing the emergency farm measure passed by the Senate this week.

SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN at least recognizes the problem. He is conducting hearings "on the extent to which excessive government regulation has destroyed jobs, driven up prices and damaged the ability of U.S. firms to compete in the world market."

Says Bentsen: "Federal intrusion into the lives of American citizens has exploded over the past decade to the point that federal regulation is America's number one growth industry."

"There are currently over 4,400 different types of federal forms to be filled out—excluding tax and banking forms..."

"The galloping growth of federal regulation is the source of serious economic problems for this country... We want to find out what it's going to take to call a halt to this alarming tendency toward government by regulatory decree."

which is concurrently being discussed. In SALT III, the U.S. hopes for an agreement to:

* Reduce the number of nuclear "vehicles" still further, as well as shorten the allowable range of MIRVs.

* Cut down on the testing and deployment of all vehicles.

* Restrict air defenses, thus holding civilian populations as hostages, and strengthen verification on all agreements.

Much of this, as both sides know, isn't going to wash. The Russians want bigger and better nukes because they believe nuclear blackmail, or actual terrorism, is the "fulcrum" on which to hoist every Communist objective—military, social, economic.

America needs even bigger, even better nukes, in order to force, or blackmail, the Russians into coming to terms.

It's a game that the meek are not likely to win.

Eco Indicators Are M-m-m Good Or Bad

ITEM: EVERY Thursday shortly after 4 p.m. (New York time), financiers in private and government policymaking positions in money centers all over the globe stop whatever they are doing to crowd around their ticker tapes and listen to the tickers clatter out the latest news on M1 and M2 from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York's powerful trading desk.

These weekly reports have assumed enormous significance throughout the world as direct clues to the monetary policy of the Federal Reserve System.

Whether the U.S. central bank is tightening credit to fight inflation and support the dollar more vigorously; or whether it is easing credit to spur the economy and reduce joblessness more vigorously; or whether it is just standing pat.

"M1?" "M2?" Countless millions of you must have heard of the bafflegab. How many of you honestly can define it?

ITEM: AT A business luncheon of 10 men and women from widely varied fields recently, a Midwestern banker next to me said he thought the growth in M1 in the past few months had been far too rapid and it was contributing to the speedup in inflation.

I answered that M1's growth had slowed down substantially, that its weekly gyrations were getting too much attention anyway and that the concentration on the monetary aggregates from week to week was out of hand.

As we argued, my eyes went around the table. The others listening to us—prominent business leaders, professors in fields outside economics, the like—seemed glassy-eyed.

"M1?" "M2?" What part do they play in your life and in mine?

ITEM: "WHEN IT comes to definitions, money is a little bit like sex appeal," said an analysis in the economic review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond some time ago.

"Everyone has a fairly clear intuitive idea of what it is, but defining it in precise language is difficult.

"Economists have been arguing about the best way to define money for centuries.

Okay, then, I'll rise to the challenge, too. Here with the accepted definitions of the various "M's" in my simplest language.

* M0. THAT'S JUST U.S. currency, the dollar bills (of any denomination) and coins in our possession. There's lots of currency circulating in our country today, some for completely legitimate reasons of business and commerce, some for "dirty" deals where tax evasion is a goal.

* M1. That's the total of all U.S. currency in circulation plus the demand deposits all of us—as individuals and organizations—have at commercial banks from coast to coast.

This is also known as the "narrowly defined money supply," for it covers a minimum of the money supply affecting our economy and others.

* M2. That's M1 (defined above) plus all our time deposits at commercial banks, but not including large negotiable certificates of deposit (which usually are bought and sold by very big investors, individuals and institutions).

Time deposits include any savings accounts or savings certificates or savings shares you have—but only at commercial banks. The narrowly defined money supply now has been substantially broadened.

* M3. This is M2 (defined directly above) with the additions of all mutual savings bank deposits, savings & loan association shares, and credit union shares. Now the money supply total is truly being broadened.

* M4. THIS IS M2 (look back) plus large negotiable certificates of deposit.

* M5. This is M3 (look back) with the addition of large negotiable certificates of deposit.

* M6. This is M5 plus all short-term marketable U.S. government securities and savings bonds outstanding (both so marketable or easily turned into cash that they can be treated as "money").

That's enough of the "M's." While there are more, M1 and M2 are the week-to-week figures most closely watched.

In all of '77, M1 grew at an annual rate of 7.8 per cent—and during the early months of 1978, its rate of rise has continued far too high.

But Federal Reserve Policy is openly geared now toward curbing the expansion. If anything, the money supply trend should shift to slowing—not accelerating—inflation.

U.N. Chooses Artists For 'Year Of Child' Project

By CYNTHIA STEVENS
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Folk artists from minority groups in the United States and from developing countries have been chosen by the United Nations for a 1979 "International Year of the Child" project to make the world aware of children's needs.

Cecile Guidote, director of the Child-year Culture Corps Project, said she hopes "to raise the consciousness of the general public" by guiding the artists toward issues concerning children, using art forms and media of their native communities.

The U.N. General Assembly gave 1979 the special designation more than two years ago to provide enough time to plan programs to benefit youngsters.

Thirty artists from the Third World, 25 ethnic Americans and five minority Europeans will take part in the eight-month course here, starting next September. They will then return to their homelands to work with children in the arts and educate adults.

"The arts have to bring governments to understand that nation-building is not limited to economic growth," Miss Guidote, who is from the Philippines, said in an interview.

She said history, which tied most Third World countries to a Western educational system, resulted in "disorientation" and "a lack of real perception about conditions in one's own country."

In the indigenous arts, Miss Guidote said she sees "an effective, powerful forum to see yourself." By integrating the traditional art forms with the mass media, she said, people can understand their own cultures and "develop the will to transform society."

Using the American Indian and Australian aborigine as examples, she explained representatives of Western minorities were chosen to parallel the Third World artists to create "an intercultural partnership."

Miss Guidote, founding director of the Philippine Educational Theater Association, said a comparative study could be made on the black Americans and Africans, or Hispanics and Latin Americans, who also will participate in the project.

Educators Experiment With Economics Program

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer
Boys and girls 9 to 13 will tell you "economics" is not on their list of most-loved subjects. Rather, it's classed with castor oil, or a week without television, or braces.

Some of the best brains in economics education know that. For the last four years they have been putting their heads together to make the subject appealing. They think they have succeeded, according to S. Stowell Symmes, Director of Curriculum at the Joint Council on Economic Education.

The result will be available for classrooms in America and Canada in September.

In an animated sequence, after lots of class discussion, the film reinforces the viewer's understanding of concepts involved.

The series on the many economic situations children 9 to 13 can expect to encounter build skills for using economic concepts. Among them are:

—Choice-making, Personal Decision-Making, Trade Offs Among Goals, Productivity, Learning and Earning, Buying and Selling and the ultimate question: Why Money?

Trade Offs' chief consultant, Phillip Saunders, is Professor of Economics at Indiana University. It was produced under the direction of AIT by the Educational Film Center in North Springfield, V.A., THE Ontario Educational Communications Authority, and public television station KERA, Dallas.

A sampling of program themes and problems:

—Choice (opportunity cost): Gordon's big choice is how to use his time, a scarce resource on an afternoon when he is invited to both a ballgame and the amusement park.

—We Decide (social decision-making): A scarcity of bicycle racks prompts a fifth grade class to think of several ways the problem might be solved and then to analyze each alternative.

—Working Together (specialization): Maury, Eddie and Diane realize they can save valuable time on Saturdays if they specialize and work together to wash their fathers' cars. They also discover some disadvantages of specialization.

—Why Money? (voluntary exchange): After a day of trading that involves such diverse items as Aunt Matilda's antique lamp and two large pumpkins, Christina finally gets her skateboard. She learns that using money is much more convenient than trading.

—How Could this Happen? (interdependence of market prices): How could a rock music craze lead to an increase in the supply of hamburgers and a shortage of football helmets?

The answer to the riddle posed just then is in lesson 13 of Trade Offs. It wouldn't be fair to give it away here, would it?

DR. LAMB

Burning Up Muscles

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I just read in the paper an article about the protein diet. It said that if a person starves himself to lose weight the body begins to burn up fat for its energy and it also burns up muscles and vital organs. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Yes. If you are on a complete starvation diet you will lose about a half pound of muscle and a half pound of fat daily. You can lose protein from your heart (your heart is a muscle) and other body organs. If you have any doubt about it look at the war prisoners from World War II or concentration camp victims and you will see the enormous muscle loss that occurs.

A lot of people think you don't lose protein from muscles until after all the excess body fat is lost, but that is wrong. No one should be on a starvation diet except patients in the hospital under a doctor's supervision.

And if you go on a reducing diet and it is too restricted in calories, causing too rapid a weight loss, you also will lose important protein from muscles. It pays to know what you are doing when you go on a diet to lose body fat if you want to protect your body and stay healthy. That is why just going on every fad diet that is promoted to sell a book or a new product can be dangerous for many people.

Since you are interested in losing weight I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Losing Diet. It will give you a safe and sensible plan you can follow. Others who want this plan can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have just read The Hite Report on female sexuality. I also read Playboy.

Some time ago Playboy came out with a big headline "Are men becoming obsolete?" Well, 95 cent of the women interviewed in The Hite Report admitted it.

My question: If women engage in such sexual activities, don't they always go insane when menopause strikes? Isn't that the reason our mental institutions are so full of crazy old women? Especially the county institutions? Are they ever full. I'm a nurse's aid.

DEAR NURSE'S AID — I realize that a nurse's aid has little responsibility other than personal care of patients, but I do hope that everyone responsible for the care of people can become a little more tolerant and better informed on the basics of life.

First, sexual activity of any kind does not cause mental illness. Your premise that this is the cause of mental illness after the menopause is completely without basis. On the contrary, various mental illness and emotional disturbances may affect or cause various forms of sexual behavior. You have things just backward.

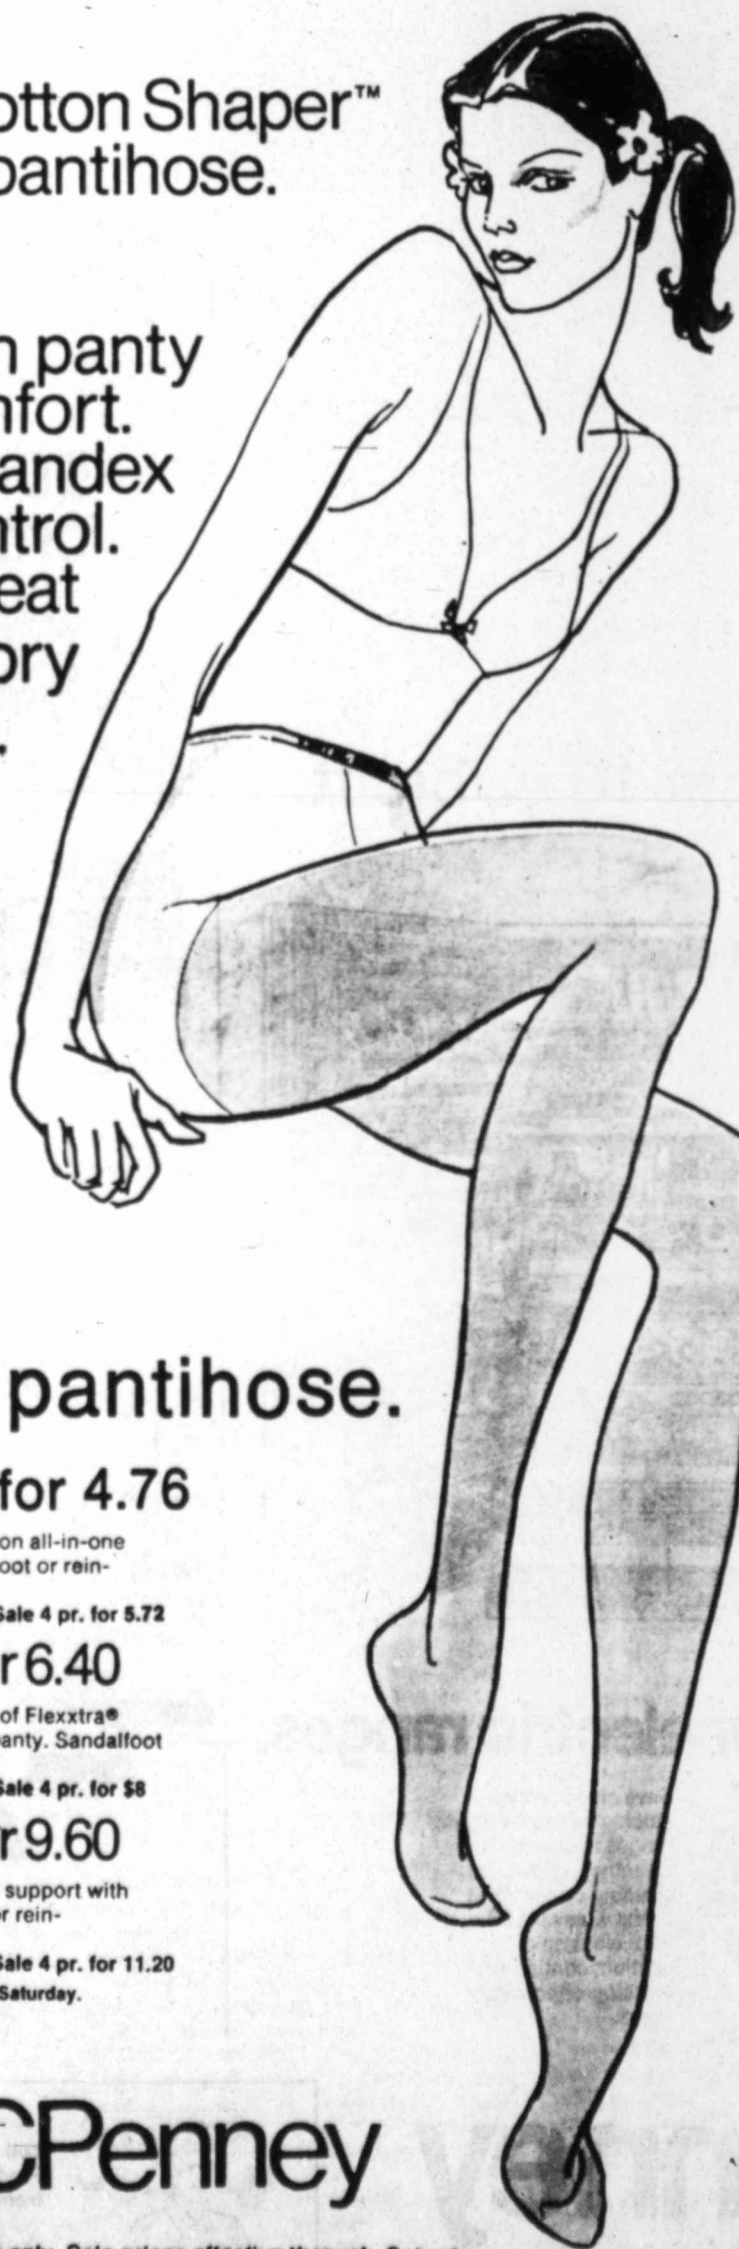

Second, don't believe every report that is published. The Hite Report is based only on 3,000 questionnaires returned from 100,000 women who received them. Most women did not return the questionnaires, so from a statistical point of view the report is worthless. It is just a collection of what some women wanted to reply anonymously to someone writing a book. And lest anyone misunderstand my remarks, let me emphasize that self-stimulation by either males or females does not cause mental illness, acne, knock knees, blindness or any other forms of illness. Those old ideas have long since been disproved.

Arizona Man Wants White House Mice

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — An Arizona man has come up with a unique plan to recover some of the federal taxes he pays, if President Carter will just cooperate.

Unfortunately, a Carter assistant's only reaction to the scheme was to laugh appreciatively at what assuredly is an imaginative proposal.

Here's how it all began:
A few weeks ago, Saul Pett of The Associated Press wrote a gripping and detailed account of the president's strenuous efforts to rid his White House offices of mice.

A resident of Mayer, Ariz., read Pett's account and wired the writer, perhaps in jest.
"We would be interested in knowing if a citizen could acquire a pair of live mice from the White House. We feel that by breeding and selling them we could get back some of our tax dollars. We would only be interested if they carried a certified certificate with the president's signature."

A few hours before Carter delivered his fight-inflation speech Tuesday, the White House received a call from an aide to a congressman who asked if the president planned to hand out "WIN" buttons to his audience.

The White House secretary who took the call was not amused and quickly hung up.

The buttons were popularized, very briefly, by former President Gerald R. Ford in 1974, when he decided the nation's top economic priority was to "Whip Inflation Now" by raising taxes, among other things.

Within weeks, Ford about-faced and called for tax cuts to combat the worst recession since the 1930s.

Carter may have been bitten by the wanderlust bug following trips to all the major continents during his first 15 months in office.

In mid-July he'll be off again, to West Germany for a state visit and a new seven-power economic summit like one he attended in London last May.

Germany may be only the beginning, however. Rumor has it that the president is considering an expansion of the summer journey to include possible visits to Yugoslavia, Italy and Spain.

Carter may not hit all these countries, but few around the White House would be surprised if he decides to add one or more nations to his itinerary.

Even after Carter's return from his most recent overseas trip, to Latin America and Africa, folks here were reading about fallout in Rio de Janeiro from his overnight stop. The Washington Post reported the president's after-dark cruise on Rio's Guanabara Bay was "making unexpected waves" in that spectacularly picturesque city.

Which raises the question: were the waves necessary?

As soon as traveling White House reporters were told that Carter was cruising aboard the yacht of real estate developer Sergio Dourado, a Rio-based American reporter threw up his hands in evident horror and exclaimed:

"Why Dourado's yacht? He's the most controversial man in Rio!"

It seems a lot of local residents vehemently oppose the high-rise buildings Dourado has built, and continues to build, along the city's shoreline.

Carter presumably knew nothing about local sentiment toward his yachting host. He also presumably wanted to avoid

Woman Improving After Taking Acid

MOSCOW (AP) — Antonina Agapova, the 69-year-old grandmother who swallowed acid at the Moscow passport office when officials again refused to let her family emigrate to Sweden, is reported improving.

Hospital officials said Mrs. Agapova, who swallowed the acid Monday, is now in "medium-serious condition and will live." They said she was being transferred from intensive care to a ward and her temperature was normal.

Mrs. Agapova, her 39-year-old daughter-in-law, Ludmila, and a grandchild, 14-year-old Lidya, have been trying for three years to join Ludmila's husband, Valentin, who jumped ship in Sweden in 1974.

making unnecessary waves.
It just goes to prove that a president can't be too careful about walking up a gangplank for a bit of relaxation.

INS Official Cites Need For More Border Police

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — More officers are employed to guard the federal buildings in the nation's capital than to patrol the U.S. borders, says Immigration and Naturalization Commissioner Leonel Castillo.

When asked by a Dallas city councilwoman how the INS expects to halt the flow of illegal aliens to this country, the INS commissioner replied:

"You have more policemen in Dallas than we have on the Canadian and Mexican borders... we have 2,200 border patrolmen and there are more officers guarding the federal buildings here than we have on the borders."

Castillo's comments came after he and San Diego Deputy Mayor Jesse Haro had participated in a panel discussion entitled "Illegal Aliens and Your City Budget" during Monday meetings of the National League of Cities.

Both Castillo and Haro agreed the illegal alien dilemma was more of a social problem than an economic one.

Dallas city councilwoman Juanita Craft told Castillo that "485 illegal aliens worked on building the Dallas-Fort Worth airport and (after being apprehended and deported) they would be back on the job by Monday."

STRANGE TIMBER — Sherwood Forest is one of the most fascinating sights nature has provided in Natural Bridge Caverns near San Antonio. One of the columns, only 2 inches in diameter, is believed to be among the longest for its narrow diameter to be found anywhere.

MAJESTIC CHAMBER — The Queen's Room at Texas Longhorn Cavern features a "throne" formed by the fusion of stalactite and stalagmite. This cavern between Burnet and Marble Falls is unique among the great caves of the world because no two rooms are remotely similar.

New Cave Gives Feeling Of Early-Day Exploring

If weather that is too hot or too cold keeps your travels to a minimum, why not consider a journey to the underground? Visitors to caves need not be concerned with outdoor weather since most caverns maintain a constant year-round temperature. There are caverns located in all sections of the country, and operators of a few were contacted by the American Automobile Association to find out just what a visitor can expect to find.

Lubbock and South Plains residents are fortunate to have several caverns to choose from within a reasonable driving distance. One cave in particular offers a very unique experience.

"I was very impressed with New Cave," recalled Roberta Ogle, manager of AAA Travel in Lubbock. "It was like being one of the first people ever to have been there. You feel as if you are an explorer or a discoverer. It is that primitive."

For people that have only visited caves that have been improved for the general tourist such as Carlsbad Caverns, New Cave is a memorable experience. Located some 41 miles southwest of the city of Carlsbad, N.M., on Highway 62-180, the primitive cave is without lights, paved walks, and other comforts. Visitors are advised to wear comfortable walking shoes and casual clothes.

Mrs. Ogle warned, "The ascent to the mouth of the cave is quite steep. The rangers recommend arriving in the area in plenty of time to allow a full hour to make the climb before the tour is scheduled to enter the cave."

9-A — Lubbock, Texas

The Lubbockite explained that the name "New Cave" is misleading. The cave is of the same general age as Carlsbad Caverns, and its existence has been known for quite some time. Mrs. Ogle that some scenes of the 1950 movie "King Solomon's Mines" were filmed inside New Cave. Only recently has the cave been opened for public tours.

Some years ago, the cave was mined for its bat guano. In order to help with the mining, a jeep vehicle was taken apart on the floor of the nearby canyon, and then reassembled inside the cave. Today, visitors can still see the vehicle's tire tracks inside the cave. When the mining was shutdown, the vehicle was again taken apart and removed from the cave.

Reservations for touring New Cave may be made by writing Carlsbad National Park, or by telephone at 505-785-2234. A visit to New Cave and nearby attractions makes for a perfect one outing for South Plains residents. The 300-acre Living Desert State Park near Carlsbad has a cactus collection and native animals in open exhibits. The attractive Presidents Park is a perfect place for a picnic lunch.

Roberta Ogle was told the primitive state of New Cave will remain without modern improvements. Carlsbad Caverns will be for visitors who appreciate modern conveniences, and New Cave will appeal to those who want a touch of adventure. "That's good," said the Lubbock travel agent. "I hope it stays that way."

BIG AREA — The Main Room at Texas Longhorn Cavern is 183 feet long and its ceiling towers above the crowds of annual sight-seers. Third largest cave in the world, it is located in Longhorn Cavern State Park between Burnet and Marble Falls.

Each tour is limited to 20 persons. Consequently, it is wise to write or phone for reservations to assure entry to New Cave. The Lubbockite noted that several persons waiting at the entrance to the cave were not admitted because the limit of 20 persons had made reservations for that particular tour. There are plans this summer to expand the number of tours to include weekday tours.

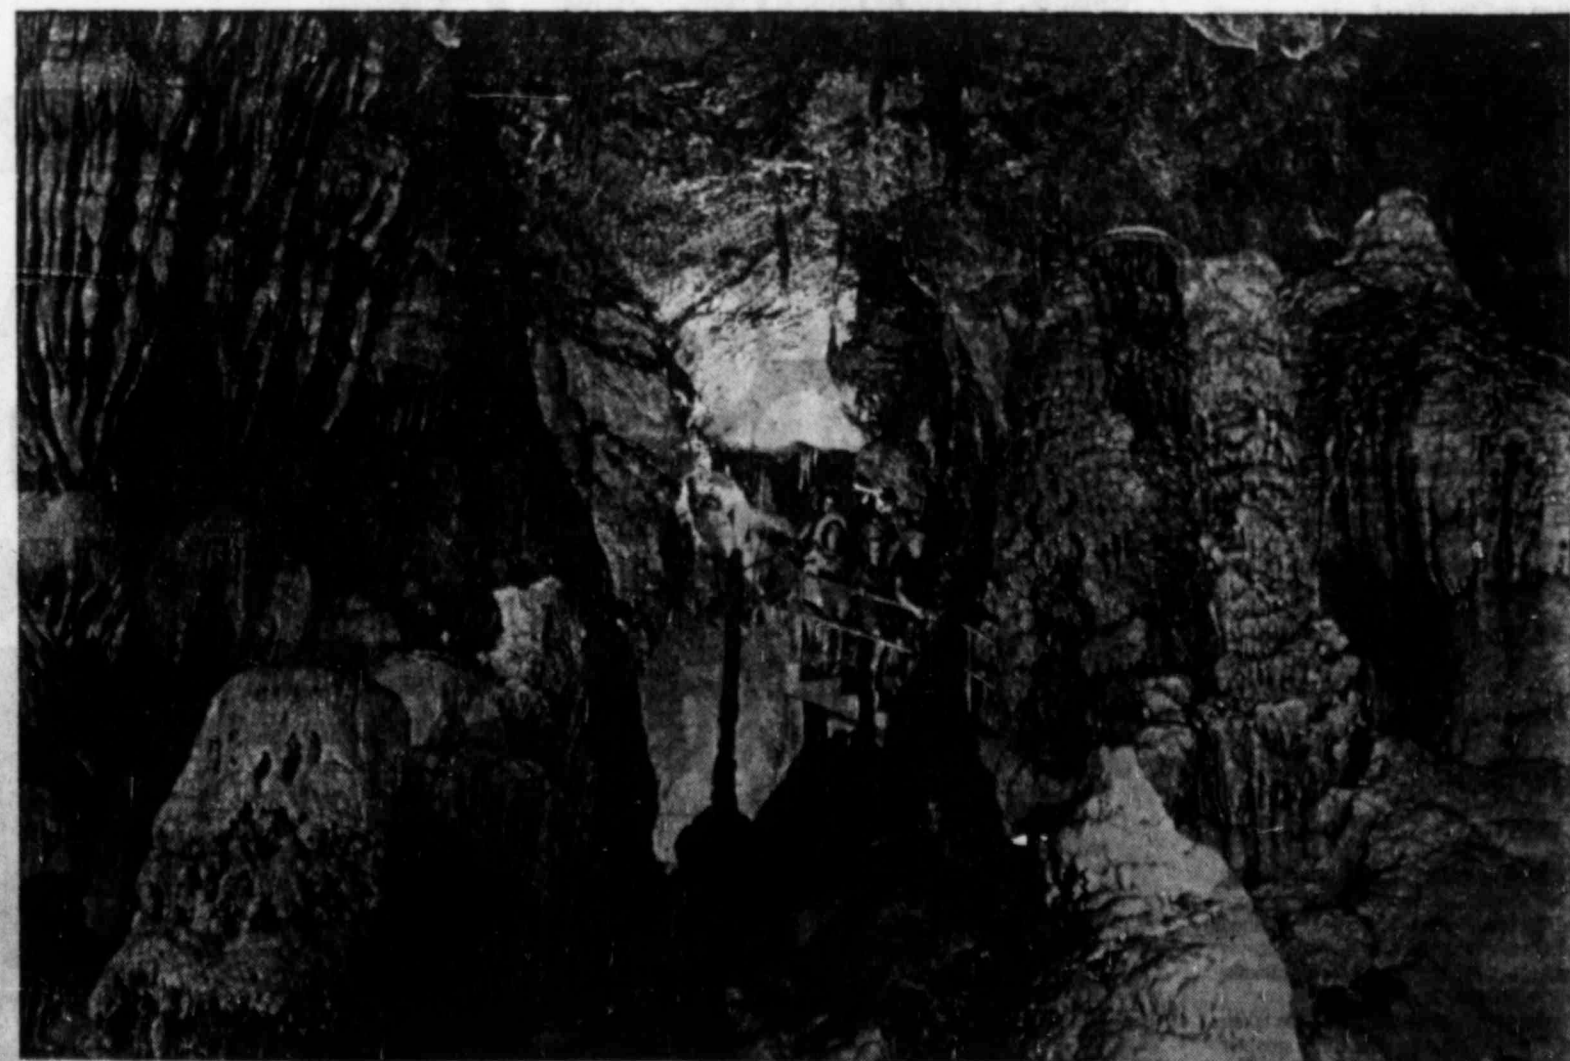

Carlsbad Caverns continues to be a popular attraction in the Southwest. It is one of the world's largest caves and its enormity is breathtaking. Tours begin at a natural arch 90 feet wide and 40 feet high. From the entrance, the Main Corridor begins an 830-foot, mile long descent to the Green Lake Room — named for a small green pool. The tour then proceeds to King's Palace, a circular room separated from other chambers by curtains and partitions of cave onyx.

Admission is $3 per carload and $1 per person for those arriving by bus. Further information is available from Carlsbad Caverns National Park, 3225 National Parks Highway, Carlsbad, N.M., 88220, or telephone 505-785-2233.

UNDERWORLD FANTASYLAND — Colors like many flavors of ice cream, rocks nearly as translucent as china, rooms the size of football fields highlight Natural Bridge Caverns.

SOUNDS TOO! — Sometimes, after a heavy rain, visitors to Natural Bridge Caverns can hear the rushing of a river far below — the same river that began carving the caverns millions of years ago. Experienced caverns and first-timers find the caverns educational and fun and worthy of many repeat visits.

Museums Have Difficulty In Fighting Vandalism

EDITOR'S NOTE — Art vandals — how do you guard against them? Two important paintings were vandalized last week in Europe. In this first of two articles, a rash of attacks on major European works is surveyed along with the question: Can museums show great art to the public and at the same time keep it safe from harm?

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
LONDON (AP) — Kitchen knives, hammers and saws, acid, paint and ink, coins and stones, feet and fists — all have come down in recent years upon the fragile and defenseless arts of mankind.

Attacks last week on two great European paintings are new evidence of the everyday dangers to exhibited masterpieces.

"Everything is at risk when the public is let in and only barbed wire might keep maniacs at bay," said security officer Trevor Williams at the National Gallery in London.

The gallery has just experienced the worst attack since it was founded in 1824. Last Monday a man stepped over the knee-high rope between the public and the pictures and carved slices off of Nicolas Poussin's "The Adoration of the Golden Calf." The picture was valued at nearly a million dollars.

Two days later in the Netherlands, Vincent Van Gogh's "La Berceuse" (The Lullaby) was slashed in Amsterdam's municipal museum. That painting had been valued at around $425,000.

"I'm conscious of the risk all the time but it is a risk that has to be taken for the benefit of the entire community," said Williams.

"Paintings could be better protected by glazing, like the Victorians used to do, but then they cannot be seen so well. Vandalism is harder to guard against than theft because there is no real protection against an attack that takes only seconds."

Williams said vandals "usually turn out to be lunatics and, thank goodness, there are not too many of them wandering about who want to do this sort of thing."

There was no immediate word on the mental state of the attackers last week. An Italian is in custody for shredding the Poussin. Amsterdam police said their man is a jobless Dutchman who sliced the Van Gogh to protest denial of municipal relief.

Both paintings will be repaired. The Poussin "can never again be regarded as a complete and well-preserved example of his work at its greatest," said Phyllis Rowlands of the National Gallery.

Vandals in well-staffed galleries usually are caught. But whoever ran the edge of a coin over Rubens' "Adoration of the Magi" in 1974 in King's College Chapel at Cambridge, England, never was found.

Art vandals arrested in Britain in the last 15 years included an ink-splatterer, a book-thrower, a stone-thrower and a man who knocked over Italian antique busts in the Birmingham City Art Gallery. They either received small fines or were put under supervision by mental inspectors or probation officers.

An Iranian doctor, said to be in a psychotic state, was jailed in 1974 for 18 months for kicking and breaking a 16th-century Italian vase in the British Museum. He said he was sorry and that he did know why he had done it.

The worst art vandalism in the Netherlands occurred in 1975 when a former schoolteacher slashed Rembrandt's largest painting, "The Night Watch," a dozen times with a bread knife in Amsterdam's Rijksmuseum. The man, Wilhelmus De Rijk, 38, said God told him to do it and committed suicide in a mental home six months later. Repair of the painting took six months.

The most notorious vandalism in recent Italian history was a hammer attack on Michelangelo's Pieta in St. Peter's Basilica in May 1972. A bulletproof glass case now protects the restored sculpture of the Madonna holding the dead Christ.

The assailant, a Hungarian immigrant, was placed under psychiatric care for two years and then deported to Australia, his adopted home.

Somebody sawed the head off the Little Mermaid, a famous bronze sculpture in the open air in Copenhagen, in 1964. The present head is a replica and the statue still is a frequent target for vandals with paint brushes.

After the Van Gogh slashing, Tijmen Van Grootheest spokesman for Amsterdam's municipal museum, said it has no plan for additional security.

"Attacks such as these are a great problem, but one must not forget that they happen very rarely," he commented.

He said closed-circuit television had been considered, "but what do you do if the monitors shows someone slashing a painting? By the time you get there the damage already is done."

Charles Davis, editor of the British monthly "Security Gazette," said, "There is no answer to vandal attacks except impregnable barriers which defeat the purpose of a museum."

of vandalism in European museums presents museums with the problem of making art available to the public but protected from lunatics. (AP Laserphoto)

Thieves Plague Oilfields

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — A skilled oilfield thief can shut down a producing well and make off with $500,000 worth of valves in about 30 minutes.

Some oil industry thieves work the docks in coastal towns, stealing equipment unloaded onto the docks from boats that service offshore rigs. Others will strip an unguarded warehouse bare.

It all adds up to a major headache for oil field contractors and higher costs for consumers.

Oilfield theft from Brownsville to Pensacola, Fla., is a $10 million a year business, according to Baker Littlefield, vice president of the Southeast Coast Region of the International Association of Drilling Contractors.

"You have the greatest ring of oilfield theft operating in the world right now," he said.

Littlefield is a salty-tongued, 71-year-old oilman who recently embarked on his second crusade against the oilfield thieves. Two years ago he headed a drive to put up $30,000 worth of reward money that led to the conviction of five men.

"That reduced it to zero, but it's jumped back up again," he said. "It's a shortage of material."

He said the energy shortage has touched of a drilling and production boom and the oilfield suppliers cannot meet the demand. The thieves take up the slack.

Expensive valves are stolen by men who know what they are doing — ex-roughnecks, drillers, tool pushers and truck drivers familiar with the oilfields. They are sold to dealers who grind the serial numbers off, repaint them and find markets.

"Sometimes I would be surprised if we don't buy back our own merchandise," Littlefield said.

There is a ready market for the stolen merchandise because drilling contractors are forced to wait on orders for 90 days to a year. Littlefield said the industry is faced with the biggest shortage since World War II.

Littlefield held a meeting in Houma two weeks ago with sheriffs, state police, FBI agents and security men to kick off his new crusade against the thieves. This time he is building an investigation fund of $100,000.

A second meeting is scheduled in Lafayette Monday night. The meetings center on discussion of techniques for protecting valuable oilfield supplies and catching thieves.

Trucker Survives Crash In Canada

TORONTO (AP) — Dennis Daniels, 28, of Millsboro, Del., was recovering from bruises today after his truck smashed through a guard rail and he was thrown from the cab down a 50-foot embankment.

Daniels landed in a ditch and was taken to a Toronto hospital. His truck stopped hanging over the edge of a concrete abutment on the Queen Elizabeth Way.

The accident occurred Tuesday.

Two Companies Seek Means Of Obtaining Oil From Shale

By JAMES L. OVERTON
HOUSTON (UPI) — Two oil industry giants pioneering techniques to obtain shale oil from sedimentary rock laid down eons ago in freshwater lakes hope to know in the next 18 months if the project is economically feasible.

In the western states of Colorado, Wyoming and Utah the talk about oil shale goes back 70 years, but it has only been since the energy crisis that engineers and industry leaders have begun to explore the possibilities.

Rio Blanco Oil Shale Co. — a partnership of Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil Co. of Indiana — hopes to complete a 976-foot-deep mine shaft near Meeker, Colo., this year as the first step in developing a 5,100-acre lease shared with the federal government.

Tom W. Ten Eyck, Rio Blanco's community, government and public affairs vice president in Denver, said current estimates indicate about 600 billion recoverable barrels of oil exist in shale in the three states.

"That's about the equivalent of Middle East reserves; it's a bundle of oil," Ten Eyck told UPI in Houston. "There are some tasks in getting the oil out, but there is a resource there."

Ten Eyck, an engineer who formerly headed Colorado's department of natural resources, said experts will know by 1981 or 1982 if the project is commercially possible.

It won't be cheap.

In an overall project approaching a quarter of a billion dollars, the current model calls for development of 140,000 barrels of oil from the layered, grey-brown sedimentary rock. This four-year project will cost $93 million, making each barrel of oil cost about $665, Ten Eyck said. Current Middle East market price for new oil is $12.71.

"We believe it is in the national interest to see if it is viable to recover it in the current economy," he said.

The Rio Blanco operation plans to produce the basic product by breaking up the shale while it is still in the ground and heating it in place, a process which releases a liquid hydrocarbon mixture, some combustible gases, and a coke-like residue.

It is the liquid hydrocarbon mixture — the shale oil — that is most valuable.

"The shale runs in grade less than 10 gallons of oil per ton of shale, up to 60 gallons — or a barrel of oil," Ten Eyck said. "A ton is about the size of an office desk."

Ten Eyck said it will take a year of drilling to get down 1,000 feet in the projected shaft. By August, 1979, engineers hope to have enough retort available to ignite.

The retort is essentially a large kiln with a feeder hopper, a mechanism to introduce the heat and pipes to collect the oil and gas products, and a grate to discharge the shale residue that remains after the oil is released, Ten Eyck said.

In open pit mining, by contrast, the overburden atop the shale is blasted loose and carried to a disposal area away from the mine. Then the exposed shale is reduced to rubble by explosives and taken to a crushing plant by trucks and processed.

The problem with that method is chiefly environmental — satisfying the air and water standards set by Congress, Ten Eyck said.

Latest Novelty Hot Item

SAN ANGELO (UPI) — John Lewis has enjoyed a measure of local fame selling T-shirts commemorating such things as his own Cross-Eyed Mule Chili Cooking Team, John Wayne, the armadillo and his clown act at Shrine hospitals and homes for the elderly.

Lewis, who calls himself a lifetime promoter and speciality advertising man, shows up with his paraphernalia at occasions like the World Championship Chili Cookoff at Terlingua, the upcoming first world championship lamb cookoff in San Angelo on April 21 and the world championship armadillo races June 24 at the local Fiesta Del Concho.

But Lewis, 55, said never in his life has an item taken off as fast as his latest novelty — the jalapeno lollipop.

Sales of the suckers, flavored with the ground-up Mexican peppers that clear the sinuses, have reached 800,000 since last October. He said sales likely will better those of his top-line T-shirts — "God Bless John Wayne" and "Kiss My Grits."

A reputation like Lewis' is hard to uphold. He said he came up with jalapeno lollipops as something that would outdo the other bizarre ideas brought to the 1977 World Championship Chili cookoff last year at Terlingua in the middle of the West Texas desert.

Lewis explained:

"We had an old boy down here we call Tomcat, Ben Keel, who used to make jalapeno jelly, so I got to thinking, how about a jalapeno lollipop cause we have a lollipop manufacturer here, old Straton Crawle."

"And old Tomcat said, 'Well, Sam, I don't know, but we'll try it. If you'll ground the jalapenos, I'll make some,' and they were an immediate success."

Tom Griffin, the Houston stockbroker who became the 1977 world champion chili cook, ordered 2,000 jalapeno suckers inscribed "World Champion Buzzard Breath Chili."

Since then, Lewis' flavorful personalized suckers have begun cropping up at such places as Luckenbach, the Hill Country ghost town, "Yeller Dog" March's chili parlor outside of San Antonio and at the recent Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association Convention.

"They're not too, too hot," Lewis said. "Even children love them. I've only found one person who didn't like them, but he also called and ordered 3,000 more."

Lewis outlined his "marketing" concept:

"If a person just wants to buy one, we sell them for a nickel apiece, or 20 for a dollar, or $5 a hundred. But if you want your name on it, we'll put your name on it for $41 a thousand, and no hidden charge in there. They use them at fairs and things. You can't hardly put anything out for less than 10 or 15 cents anymore."

Musical Queen Takes Over Production

By WILLIAM GLOVER
NEW YORK (AP) — "The King and I" now belongs, radiantly though briefly, to that Broadway musical queen, Angela Lansbury.

With lilting charm and folksy ease, Miss Lansbury premiered this week at the Uris Theater in a long-running production of the lushly melodic Rodgers-Hammerstein opus.

Her appearance is the top trump in a shrewdly diplomatic ploy by the management to keep public interest high during a three-week vacation of the show's stars, Yul Brynner and Constance Towers.

Brynner's regular understudy, Michael Kermoyan, takes over, and stellar attention is shifted to the plot's heroine.

Miss Lansbury, the winner of three Tony Awards for "Mame," "Gypsy," and "Dear World," simply by her presence alters some of the relationships between the imperious ruler of Siam and the English schoolmarm he has hired to teach his three-score offspring. But the essential story remains undamaged.

Miss Lansbury's most endearing talent is contagious warmth, and that quality shines out triumphantly in all her half dozen songs, even in the gentle sarcasm of "Shall I Tell You What I Think Of You?"

For his part, Kermoyan avoids carbon replica of Brynner, displays a lusty, sonorous baritone in "Puzlement" and after some apparent early nervousness became a convincing oriental despot. The couple's big number, "Shall We Dance?" could improve with a bit more practice and finer timing.

CB Convac

By INK DIPPER

The manufacture and sale of linear amplifiers between 24 and 35 megahertz officially has been banned by the Federal Communications Commission. The official Report and Order — which will contain all the provisions, cans and canots — is expected any day now.

The vote on the issue was five commissioners for and one in dissent. It was based upon the three hours of oral arguments at a hearing on dockets 2116 and 2117. Arguing against the ban was the Amateur Radio Relay League, which represents about 160,000 ham operators, while the EIA (Electronic Industry Association) wanted a ruling that would stem the flow of linears to CB operators who use the black boxes illegally.

Dave Sumner, a vice-president of the ARRL, refused to comment on the report that the FCC had decided on the ban.

"Certainly its going to affect amateur radio broadcasters," he said. "But until we know the specifics of the order there is nothing we can say. A lot of hams build their own amplifiers because most of them have the knowledge for this sort of radio electronics. They are relatively simple to build.

It's just that it takes time and it was much simpler to go to a store and buy one."

Linear amplifiers operating with CB units cause nothing but trouble. That's why EIA has gone on the line against them, worked vigorously to have them outlawed and spent money for legal action to achieve this ban.

"We don't think of ourselves as being adversarial to the ARRL," John Soldowski, vice-president of EIA explained. "It's just that the FCC must have the authority and be able to enforce the restrictions on linears. Stopping the manufacture and the retail sale of them is a great step."

It may be. The opinion of this writer is that they'll wind up being bootlegged, at exorbitant prices. They'll be made in basement and garage shops by electronic cats who don't necessarily know what they're doing and the quality would make the operator of a bucket shop shudder.

There is no question that linears are the bane of CB's existence. They cause terrible interference problems. It isn't possible to estimate how many of the complaints about TV interference are caused by linears alone. The television set owner who puts a low pass filter on his receiver to eliminate the RFI from some of the old CB units that are still in operation will find no relief against the linear amplifier someone is operating illegally.

When asked about enforcement, a FCC executive said it would be handled in the same manner as the stop-sale date for 23-channel units was policed. Yet we all know that that was an even greater burden on an already over worked and understaffed division.

The answer to illegal amplifiers must necessarily fall back on the CB operators themselves. Through their own discipline and organization they must render the kind of supervision that ham operators perform within their nationwide organization.

It must come to that. The guy driving at 55 can get killed by the madman who tears along at 80. That is somewhat analogous to the black box operator who scoffs at everyone else and goes merrily on his way.

Anyone who wants to expand his sphere of operation should enter other areas like ham radio where the world is the limit, not try to be the bully on the block in CB.

Quake Registered In Alaskan Gulf

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A strong earthquake was recorded off the southeast coast of Kodiak Island in the Gulf of Alaska, but it was not strong enough to create a tidal wave and there were no reports of damage or injuries.

A spokesman at the Tsunami Warning Center said today that the quake struck 80 miles south of Kodiak city Tuesday night and registered 6.3 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number represents a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1908, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9 on the scale.

Sun Tanning Lotions, Cancer Linked

CHICAGO (AP) — Two brands of commercial suntan lotion cause changes in cells and therefore could cause cancer, two Illinois State University researchers say.

The maker of the products has denied the charge.

Three different tests using Sudden Tan and QT (Quick Tan) show genetic changes in salmonella, a bacteriological organism commonly used in tests for mutations, said Dr. Herman E. Brockman, professor of genetics at Illinois State University.

But a spokesman for Plough, Inc., in Memphis, Tenn., which manufactures the products, said extensive tests showed no cancer in laboratory animals.

Brockman and two students, Hugh Pham and David DeMarini, found the active ingredient in the two lotions — dihydroxyacetone, or DHA — causes changes in the genetic makeup of the bacteria cells. Mutation of cells often are shown to be the cause of cancer, he said.

"Our tests indicate there is a good chance these two tanning lotions could cause skin cancer in users," Brockman said in a telephone interview this week.

In laboratory tests, researchers used 10th the normal amount of DHA found in the lotions. Findings of the three researchers were presented last month at the annual meeting of the Environmental Mutagen Society in San Francisco.

Brockman said the tests warrant only an early warning to users of the products, which provide the appearance of a suntan without exposure to sunlight.

An attorney for Plough, Inc., who did not want to be identified, said DHA has been tested by the federal Food and Drug Administration and found safe for external use in drugs and cosmetics.

He said the company has gone farther than just mutation studies. The attorney said he has not seen the Brockman study and could not respond to the researchers' conclusions.

Gas Price Plan Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate energy conferees reported making some progress today in deliberations at the White House on energy legislation, but they said many issues still remain to be settled.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, a top House negotiator, said conferees have tentatively agreed to a proposal that would lift the price controls from newly discovered natural gas on Jan. 1, 1985.

Also informally agreed to, he told reporters, was a formula to allow for a steady increase in the regulated price between now and 1985.

Conferees said they reached the agreements — the first sign of real progress in more than four months — after President Carter temporarily joined the negotiations.

"The president came in and provided substantial encouragement," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

But Jackson and Ashley said there are still more than 10 major areas of disagreement between the sides.

Ashley said although conferees planned to meet all day today and into the night, he doubted a final compromise could be reached until next week.

The conferees met in their third such private session at the White House as Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., prepared to ask the House to force the sessions to be open to the public and press.

Both sides in the talks agreed to try to limit deliberations to a proposed list of remaining unresolved issues, but they disagreed on even which topics should be included on the list.

Senators proposed a list of eight topics that need to be resolved; House negotiators added another four items.

"As the list grows, the prospect of success diminishes," Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., told reporters.

Congressional sources said the conferees informally rejected a proposal by three Republican senators involved in the talks that the conferees return to public sessions.

Although both sides have agreed to lifting price controls from newly found natural gas in 1985, they are in disagreement over how to do it and who should pay for the higher cost of this deregulated gas.

These are among the topics on both the House and Senate lists of issues needing to be worked out.

President Carter called the negotiators to the White House earlier this week when it appeared that the talks were on the verge of collapsing completely. They have been negotiating there ever since.

If prospects for reaching agreement fade, sources said, there seems a good chance that the White House will lower its sights in an effort to produce a compromise that can be supported by House Republicans.

House Republicans, long left out of efforts to frame a compromise, think Carter may turn to them in hopes of salvaging his plan.

One House negotiator, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said the sentiment has arisen in the "last few days."

Archer's fellow Republicans generally are more sympathetic to the kind of compromise backed by Senate negotiators than are Democratic House conferees, who are holding out for tighter federal controls over the price of natural gas.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, said on Wednesday that the president told the Republicans he'd like their support, and that to break the deadlock he might even go with a GOP-backed plan for deregulation by 1983.

Rex Granum, a White House spokesman, said later in the day that Carter was flexible on a deregulation date. "Continued inaction on energy will cause far more serious damage to the nation's economy than the kinds of compromises that are under consideration," he said.

House Republicans point to past Democratic failures to break the deadlock among themselves and say they think Carter will come to them as a last resort — even if it means angering some liberal House Democrats on the conference committee.

House Republicans have been excluded from the sessions, even though three GOP senators have attended.

Carter's intervention came in the form of instructions to Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger to work up a compromise plan. The Schlesinger proposal calls for an end to price controls on newly discovered gas by April 30, 1985.

But Carter told a group of excluded Republican House conferees on Wednesday that he wasn't wedded to any particular scheme and would accept nearly any compromise just to get a bill, several participants at the meeting said.

Meanwhile, Brown and Moffett, who has refused to attend recent closed sessions, are challenging the White House meetings as illegal.

They told a news conference Wednesday that the private deliberations appear to violate a House rule requiring conference committees to be open to the press and public when legislation is handled.

Canadian Inflation Takes Big Leap

OTTAWA (AP) — The cost of living in Canada took its biggest jump last month since the introduction of wage and price controls in the fall of 1975.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien said the 1.1 percent rise was "a little bit" higher than expected, but he predicted the 1978 inflation rate would still meet the government's target of 7 percent.

Giant Solar Flare Disrupts Some U.S. Communications

By United Press International

Listeners to radio station WHDH in Boston heard some "weird" traffic reports today, believed to be the result of the solar flare predicted by a Pittsburgh star-gazer.

Paul Oles, of Pittsburgh's Buhl planetarium, said Wednesday that atomic particles from a huge solar flare would hit earth this morning and trigger a series of electric disturbances.

"I have nothing to report at the moment," Oles said, adding that the predicted distortion may not be evident in the Pittsburgh area until this evening.

In Boston, newsman Doug Limerick said "we had a weird situation with our two-way reports on traffic. For about two hours beginning about 6:20 a.m. we heard some transmissions, and we answered traffic reports from Philadelphia."

At the same time, he said, "WPEN in Philadelphia got our traffic reports. Continually we had to alternate so they wouldn't feed over our air. The solar flare has to be responsible for that."

Oles said he based his prediction on information received from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration office in Boulder, Colo., and noted this information was available to planetariums around the country.

Officials said atomic particles from the most violent solar flare in nearly four years would produce shortwave radio blackouts, telephone circuit outages and displays of the Northern Lights.

The explosion on the sun occurred at 9:40 a.m. Tuesday and was detected by earth satellites, according to Oles.

Classified as a very energetic "X-2" type flare, its particles likely will disrupt the earth's magnetic field and ionosphere, causing certain radio signals to be absorbed rather than reflected. They also will excite the rarified gases in the earth's upper atmosphere, producing displays of the Northern Lights in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia today and possibly Friday night.

The Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights, are extremely unpredictable and can occur at any time following a large flare on the sun.

If the weather is clear, Oles suggested observers look toward the north after darkness sets in. The display may range from a faint greenish glow on the northern sky to pulsating arch rays and shimmering curtains of multicolored light that fill most of the sky.

"There's absolutely no danger associated with this at all," Oles said. "No precautions are necessary. None whatsoever."

Oles said the Northern Lights are visible in Canada several times a year, but have to be extremely bright to be seen in cities at this latitude.

The last major viewing of the Northern Lights in this area, he said, was in September 1957.

"The sky literally turned into a shimmering curtain of light," Oles said.

Shevchenko Chamber Backs Hikes Price For Ouster Baseball Meet

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce board of directors today voted to underwrite a regional NALA baseball tournament at Lubbock Christian College's new field next week.

John Cardinal, chairman of the chamber's athletic affairs committee, requested the board's approval to underwrite the cost of the regional NALA tournament, which he estimated at $5,000.

He added that the committee will sell tickets and programs, as well as have concessions at the baseball games at LCC's new field.

The athletic affairs committee chairman said the committee feels the chamber would make, rather than lose, money from the tournament's tickets, programs and concessions.

He added that the tournament winner will go directly to the national NALA tournament later this summer.

The board also voted to go on record as opposing the Humphrey-Hawkins Act and a bill revising the Hatch Act, which are now pending in the U.S. Congress.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill concerns guaranteed full employment and the bill revising the Hatch Act would allow federal governmental employees to participate actively in political elections.

The board also voted to approve an additional $1,000 budget request for the Lubbock Awareness Committee. The additional $1,000 request will be used for a program promoting Lubbock to its citizens.

Dr. Dudley Strain, chairman of the awareness committee, said the program would be presented before civic clubs and organizations, PTAs and other meetings of citizens in Lubbock.

The board also voted to endorse two resolutions presented at the meeting by the chamber's highway committee.

George Gilkerson, chairman of the highway committee, made the presentation.

One of the resolutions calls for the chamber to get written statements by current political candidates on the diversion of highway funds for maintenance and construction. The other resolution calls for support of the public meetings scheduled in May on the extension of Interstate 27 from North Loop 289 to South Loop 289 through Lubbock.

Members of the highway committee said they felt candidates for the state and national legislatures were not aware of the need for more major highways to and from Lubbock. Gilkerson said the group felt the public needed to be informed about the candidates' lack of awareness on the need for new highways.

The committee chairman said the group also felt now was the time for the West Texas and South Plains area to voice their belief in the urgent need for more highways in the area and the need for the Interstate 27 extension through Lubbock. Interstate 27 currently does not go through Lubbock, but ends at the northern edge of the city.

A bill to fund more highways is currently being written in the U.S. Congress.

The board also approved or recommended the appointment of two men to fill vacancies.

Burl D. Greaves, president of State Savings and Loan Association, was recommended to fill a vacancy on the Convention and Tourism Bureau board of directors. The vacancy occurred when B.C. "Peck" McMinn, resigned from the bureau's board. He was recently elected to the chamber's board of directors.

Jose Silva, a vice president of Texas Commerce Bank, was appointed to the chamber's board of directors. The board recently voted to increase its membership to nine members in a move to have representatives of minorities on the board.

Silva was nominated for one of the two two-year board terms by Comerciantes Organizados Mexico Americanos, a local group of Mexican-American businessmen.

added between 58 cents and $2.14 to what a three-person urban family spends on food a week.

The bill would have raised basic support prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton, while giving growers of those crops higher federally guaranteed prices this year in exchange for idling one acre for every two they planted.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of the measure's authors, said that grain farmers, following two years of falling prices and rising costs, face financial disaster unless they get more federal aid.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said today he was "greatly surprised" by the margin by which the farm bill was defeated.

"I talked to Vice President Mondale right before the vote and said we might win it (the defeat) by one or two votes," O'Neill said. "He called back afterward and said: 'You didn't tell me you meant one or two hundred votes.'" O'Neill told reporters.

The speaker said House members had acted in a "stable and statesman-like manner" in defeating the bill and realized it would be "terribly inflationary."

"I think we responded to the president's call that inflation is the No. 1 problem."

Trull and other farmers were ready to replace the majority of Congress with cabbies and secretaries following Wednesday's 268-150 vote in the House that killed the legislation for which they had lobbied.

"All the debate seemed so favorable," Trull said. "Those congressmen built our hopes up and then crushed us."

"I've had all of it I want to see ... I won't be back," he said. "Watching Congress is like watching a high school play — you get the feeling everything's worked out beforehand and they just play their parts."

Weekend Showers Possible

A-J News Services

With spring still young, the South Plains weather has already dimmed recollections of blustering winter and dropped hints that summer may, in time, find a home here.

Forecasts called for temperatures in the upper 70s today and mid-80s Friday, and placed a chance for showers and thunderstorms in the weekend outlook.

The weather tailored for sun-lovers was expected to continue through much of the weekend in spite of possible interruptions by rumbling skies.

South and southeasterly winds of 15-20 mph tonight were expected to diminish before morning, then shift to 15-20 mph southwesterly Friday.

Local forecasts placed the Hub City in the state's milder temperature category this afternoon. Some regions of Texas will climb to the 80s, and some Big Bend areas may hit the 90s, forecasters reported.

Clear skies dominated National Weather Service reports this morning as fog cleared from the Texas Coast where visibility had been cut to near zero. Fog, some of it described as "light," covered much of an expanse from Cotulla to Victoria to as far west and south as San Antonio and Brownsville.

Early morning temperatures mostly registered in the 40s and 50s, with extremes ranging from 41 degrees at Dalhart to 57 at El Paso.

Some morning readings across the state included 44 degrees at Amarillo; 46 at Wichita Falls; 48 at Texarkana; 51 at Dallas-Fort Worth; 49 at Austin; 48 at Lufkin; 49 at Houston; 52 at Corpus Christi; 56 at McAllen; 52 at Del Rio; 48 at San Angelo and 49 at Lubbock.

Wednesday's average wind speed was 11 mph, but the peak speed — recorded for one minute — was gauged at 17 mph.

Record temperatures for April 13 are 91 degrees in 1932, and 26 in 1967.

Mahon Cites Farm Gains

Carter said the bill would have hurt livestock farmers by raising the prices they pay for feed grain, would have been impossible for the Agriculture Department to administer and would have caused food prices to inflate from the 6 to 7 percent expected this year to at least 10 percent.

"We are in a period where there is inflation all the way across the lines, but there has been no adequate disposition on the part of Congress nor the president to cut down very markedly on federal spending," Mahon said. "It's hard in a democracy, when everyone wants somebody else to sacrifice, to have the restraint that's needed."

"If you destroy the backbone of agriculture, that would be very inflationary in the long run," he added.

Mahon said there is an old argument that low feed prices help the cattle industry but that he does not subscribe to it.

"My contact with farmers and livestock people indicates that there are people interested in the livestock business who are also interested in agricultural production and favor an adequate price for feed grains," he said.

The bill would have raised basic support prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton and would have provided substantially higher, federally guaranteed prices for those crops if growers idled one acre for every two they planted.

The higher prices would have been near parity for those three crops.

April 25 in a run-off between M.J. Ader-ton and Bob Schmidt. The men were top vote-getters for the Place 3 spot in the April 1 election.

Mayor Dirk West and Place 1 Councilman Alan Henry served in their new official capacities for the first time today.

The council on a split vote approved installation of two-hour parking limits along the west side of Vicksburg Avenue adjacent to an apartment complex north of 34th Street.

Councilman Bill McAllister voted against the proposal, saying he believes one-hour limits would be better. He explained that a two-hour limit may invite drivers to leave their cars in place for a half day.

The Citizens Traffic Commission, which had recommended one-hour limits at the request of apartment owner H.M. Bourgeois, also was instructed by the council to study parking time limits around all city high schools.

Council members also proclaimed April 16-22 as Private Property Week. The annual observance is held to recognize the role of Realtors in the community.

Presidents Seek Renewed Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu called jointly today for renewed Middle Eastern peace talks, including "appropriate representation of the Palestinian people."

Ceausescu met with Carter at the White House for the second day, and the two signed a joint declaration that included the reference to Palestinian representation.

The Romanian president, a frequent go-between in Middle Eastern diplomatic moves, had urged Carter to ease his opposition to dealing with the Palestine Liberation Organization, administration officials reported.

The Romanian president is reported to have told Carter on Wednesday the PLO is moving toward accepting Israel's right to exist.

But the officials, who declined to be identified, said Ceausescu offered "nothing concrete to back up the claim" and Carter was not persuaded to alter U.S. opposition to the PLO.

After today's meeting, the White House issued copies of the joint declaration.

It said in part that the two agreed "to encourage efforts aimed at a just, comprehensive and lasting peaceful settlement in the Middle East," based in Israeli withdrawal from occupied territory, assurances of security for all states in the region and "respect for legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

"To this end, they expressed themselves in favor of negotiations among all the interested parties for solving the Middle East situation, with appropriate representation of the Palestinian people," the declaration said.

The declaration also said the two presidents agreed that expanding relations between the United States and Romania's communist government would be based in part on "observance of and promotion of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms," and also on "the right of each state freely to choose and develop its political, social, economic and cultural system."

Carter had been reported ready to press Ceausescu on human rights within his own country.

The declaration said the two nations would continue high-level contacts aimed at expanding trade and promoting reductions of tariff and non-tariff barriers. And it said they would work to cooperate in settlement of humanitarian issues including reunification of families "in the spirit of mutual understanding and good will," and to promote cultural exchanges and tourism.

The presidents agreed they are determined "to act resolutely" for controlling arms.

They pledged to support "the legitimate aspirations of the African peoples" and expressed "deep concern about the South African policy of apartheid and racial discrimination."

Briefing papers prepared for Carter describe Romania as one of the more authoritarian regimes in Eastern Europe.

Romania is the only Warsaw Pact nation with ties to Israel. But it also considers Israel's arch-enemy, the PLO, the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

Israel refuses to negotiate with the PLO because the Israelis say it is committed to the Jewish state's destruction.

Ceausescu won the confidence of Israel and the Arabs last year when he helped arrange the historic meeting between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Ceausescu told Carter at Wednesday's White House welcoming ceremony that he considered establishment of an independent Palestinian state as one of three preconditions for a lasting peace.

He also wants Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories and guarantees for the independence and sovereignty of all Mideast nations.

Wrong Song Played For Romanian

WASHINGTON (AP) — How would you feel, Jimmy Carter, if another nation's official band thought "Dixie" was your national anthem? And played it during welcoming ceremonies in your honor?

The thought may have crossed Carter's mind when he realized that the U.S. Army Band played the wrong national anthem Wednesday for visiting President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania.

When Ceausescu arrived at the White House, he was greeted with strains of "We Praise Thee, Fatherland Rumania." That was the national anthem of the communist nation — until it adopted a new one last fall.

The new anthem is really an old tune known to Romanians for a century as "Three Colors," referring to the red, gold and blue of the country's flag. But new words were written last year to reflect the development of Romanian society, a press spokesman for the Romanian Embassy said Wednesday night.

"We were surprised they didn't know about the change," the spokesman said. "There have been a lot of press clippings on this in the United States."

Few if any of the Americans at the ceremony on the White House South Lawn noticed the mistake, but Mary Ann Bader, a State Department spokeswoman, said, "I think it would be fair to say that the Romanians noticed it. It was definitely a regrettable mistake."

By Wednesday night, Carter was joking about the incident and using it for belly laughs at a state dinner for Ceausescu.

Referring to the faux pas in his toast, Carter noted that the correct anthem was played at the dinner.

"We paid him a special honor today, perhaps unprecedented in the history of our nation," Carter said. "We played two different national anthems to Romania — the incorrect one this morning and the correct one tonight."

Radio City Music Hall Saved In Final Hour

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
NEW YORK (AP) — It was just after midnight — 36 Rockettes had turned in their sequined slippers and were preparing to move from chorus line to unemployment line.

But there were no pumpkins. "We're in business," announced ballet captain Rosemary Novello. "Radio City Music Hall has been saved."

In eleventh hour bargaining between Rockefeller Center Inc., owners of the 6,000-seat showplace, and the state's Urban Development Corp., New York state agreed to foot the bill for one year of operation.

The art deco palace, which had been scheduled to close after its final Easter show Wednesday night, has lost millions of dollars in recent years because of declining attendance. Rockefeller Center predicted the theater will be $3.5 million in the red this year.

Under the agreement, Radio City Music Hall is open today. The Easter show, featuring the high-kicking Rockettes, and the film "Crossed Swords," will run until a new stage show is ready.

"It's a relief of tension," said Kila Bouroff, a music hall singer for six years. She stood quietly weeping after the agreement was announced at a party held for the Rockettes one floor below the famed Rainbow Room in the adjacent RCA Building.

"We've been since January fighting against all odds. We stood out in the cold getting signatures on petitions. Everybody did everything together — cashiers, ushers, projectionists, they all pulled together."

One dancer recalled the crowd on what was to have been the final performance. "All those faces," said DeeDee Knapp, 29. "I don't think we ever had the third mezzanine full before. And they were yelling 'Bravo' and 'We love you.' And they were saying, 'We won't let you go.'"

The terms of the agreement provide for Rockefeller Center to manage the facility during the next year. The state has allocated $500,000 to help cover operating costs during the interim period, and another $2 million in stand-by money.

The state put up an additional $300,000 to fund a non-profit UDC subsidiary, to be headed by Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupsak, which will study ways to provide revenue for the music hall. One proposal calls for a 20-story office tower to be built

Comatose Girl Dies At 15

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) — Andra Rubinelli, 15, whose existence on life-support equipment for nearly three weeks sparked a court struggle over a definition of death, died Wednesday night in Walters Hospital.

Doctors said her heart stopped beating. She had been hospitalized for a disease which resulted in severe bleeding in her brain.

Her death apparently will end the court action on her parent's request to have life-support equipment disconnected. They said she was already dead and was being kept alive artificially. The hospital brought the case to court because administrators wanted an outside determination on the request.

Andra slipped into a coma shortly after she entered the hospital on March 26. Testing had showed she suffered a disease called ITP, a deficiency of platelets in the blood which leads to bleeding inside the head.

Physicians had said her brain had ceased functioning. The family agreed and asked the hospital to disconnect all apparatus keeping the girl's natural functions going.

The hospital balked, went to court and as late as Tuesday LaPorte Superior Court Judge Raymond Fox named an attorney to act as a guardian and said he would not rule on the question of "brain death" for two weeks.

Hospital administrators said the problem could have been resolved more than a year ago had the Indiana Legislature passed a law for the definition of death.

Peter and Joan Rubinelli, who have five other children — ages 3 through 21 — had made funeral arrangements last week.

Andrus Urges Change In Water Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus today urged Congress to amend the Reclamation Act of 1902 in order to boost the number of family farms in arid western states.

He told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee that Congress should increase the size allowed for single-ownership farms which can qualify for supplies of government-subsidized irrigation water.

Acres limitation for a family farm, he said, should be increased from the present 320 acres to a maximum of 640 acres of owned land and up to 320 additional acres of leased land in order to get government water.

A single owner would be limited to a total of 480 acres of owned and leased land.

Andrus told the committee the recommendation is intended to preserve the original intent of the 76-year-old law — the promotion of family farming on arid western lands.

He said the law had been "distorted" over the years to provide cheap federally subsidized water to big, corporate-type land holders — most of them in California.

Andrus also proposed that so-called "excess" lands — those now receiving water in violation of the acreage limitations — be supplied with water for only five more years. After that, he said, the land would have to be sold to eligible individuals or families.

The secretary said the restrictions would also be applied to leased lands because leasing had been the principal means "for frustrating the intent" of the 1902 law.

Local Woman Named To Tower Post

WASHINGTON (Special) — Naomi C. Moore of Lubbock will serve as one of two senior citizen interns in U.S. Sen. John Tower's Washington office May 8-19.

Mrs. Moore and Charles R. Johnson of Beaumont were selected from a large field of statewide applicants to serve as part of the senior citizen intern program funded by Congress.

After "retiring" she began work in the Small Business Administration's Service Corps of Retired Executives office, where she is presently employed as secretary.

Mrs. Moore authored a booklet now in its fifth printing "How Do You Know You're Old" and is a frequent speaker on the subject of how to age gracefully.

During the two weeks in Washington the two interns will observe the legislative process, attend committee hearings and sessions of Congress and assist Tower on projects relating to senior citizens.

This year 92 senators and Congressmen are bringing two interns each to Washington.

Tower was the first member of the Texas delegation to participate in the first such program held in 1977.

Sentence Set In Robbery

A $10 robbery has netted seven years in prison for a Lubbock man.

Defendant Gary Berry, 19, was assessed the seven-year term by 137th District Judge Robert C. Wright after pleading guilty to robbery.

Berry, of 508 E. Broadway St., admitted taking a wallet from a Texas Tech University student last Oct. 7.

According to stipulated testimony introduced by Asst. Dist. Atty. Phil Gamble, the student, traveling on Parkway Drive about 1 a.m., was stopped by a group of nine or 10 persons on the street.

The people reportedly requested a ride and jumped into the complainant's car.

The complainant, reports indicated, obligingly drove the group to an East Lubbock address and was en route to another location with some of the group when his wallet containing the $10 was seized.

Berry took the witness stand to admit taking the wallet.

Compean Predicts Demo Vote Split

By FRANK COATS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Mario Compean today said his bid for the governorship on La Raza Unida ticket may draw enough traditionally Democratic votes to elect a Republican governor and bring about a change in state government.

Saying that the votes of the Mexican-American community are "being taken for granted," he said a Republican governor might bring "the kind of recognition (received) when the dominant party is voted out."

He said a Republican governor would be "in general, a good thing for us," but did not view his campaign as any type of "sacrifice" to elect one.

The co-founder of the eight-year-old party said his campaign, which he expects to draw 250,000 votes, was "a way of expanding our base."

Compean, 37, is a social service consultant in San Antonio and previously ran unsuccessfully for the city council in San Antonio.

He is on a three-day visit to the South Plains, and will speak at a fund-raising dinner at 7:30 tonight at the Casa Jimenez Restaurant at 105 Ave. P, at a cost of $3 per person.

He said the Raza Unida campaign was part of "a general effort to change the political temperament of the state," and make Texas more than "a one-party state."

He said his campaign offers an "alternative choice," and not "one Briscoe for another."

The candidate said a lot of issues were being ignored in the campaign — "what consumers are worried about" — citing inflation and "common relief for the high cost of utilities."

He said La Raza Unida was trying to broaden its base.

"In the past we've been concerned with low income groups and Mexican-Americans," Compean said, but added that now the party was "broad enough for lower and middle income groups."

He said his candidacy will have an impact on the election, though he cited several problems of the party.

Compean said he had been called the "a-nonymous candidate," and that the "San Antonio media have a habit of leaving me out of reports."

He also said the party had a lack of resources, and that many people who would like to support the party would not because of possible "repercussions."

He did not list specific repercussions.

He said he hoped his campaign would "prove that certain voting sections of the community cannot be taken for granted any more."

Land Developers Opposed To Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Land developers say they would be put out of business by legislation aimed at curbing deceptive interstate land sales. But the Federal Trade Commission is endorsing the legislation.

The contrasting views were presented Wednesday before a House Banking subcommittee studying proposals to stiffen the 1968 Interstate Land Sales disclosure act. The bill would require developers promising such basic services as water and sewage disposal to create an escrow account for the money to assure the services are provided.

Israeli Vets Press For Peace

By ALLEN ALTER
JERUSALEM (UPI) — Leaders of a group of army veterans who organized the first grass roots protest against Prime Minister Menachem Begin's policies plan to press their campaign for peace with the Arabs.

The group was behind the April 1 rally in the plaza fronting Tel Aviv's city hall that drew a surprising 30,000 people — an unusual turnout in a country whose people generally are too busy with the press of daily life to campaign for causes.

"There will be a follow-up," promised Amir Bar-Or, at 29 a captain in the army reserves and a graduate student in political science at Hebrew University.

The reservists linked up with an organization calling itself "Peace Now" in order to get more support for the rally. On April 8, they merged in an organization known simply as the "Peace Movement" to strengthen their hand.

The group urged Begin in a letter March 7 to soften his hardline stance on an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories captured in the 1967 Middle East war, saying it preferred peace to land. Begin has insisted in the now-deadlocked negotiations with Egypt on retaining the occupied West Bank of Jordan in a peace agreement. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat wants a near-total Israeli withdrawal from the region as a prelude to giving the 1.2 million Palestinians there and in the Gaza strip the right to self-determination.

Begin's stance has angered the United States. It led to unsuccessful talks between Begin and President Carter in Washington in March and the worst strain in Israeli-American relations in more than 20 years.

The grass roots campaign as yet has had no effect on Begin. The prime minister's office has refused to make an appointment for several officers in the movement who want to see him.

Since the rally, the group has begun a petition campaign aimed at drumming up popular support for peace. Thousands of signatures have been collected in Israel's three major cities of Tel Aviv, Jerusalem and Haifa.

Cabinet secretary Arye Naor said the movement has the backing of the opposition political parties. But the group denies any political affiliation or backing.

One of the army officers said thousands of Israeli pounds have been contributed to the movement since the rally and in response to newspaper advertisements. But already the infant movement is under attack from an opposing group.

A counter-movement expressing support for Begin's policies and calling itself the "Movement for Secure Peace" sprang up almost overnight following the rally. Its organizers claim 6,000 supporters.

The peace movement at this stage certainly bears no resemblance to the widespread clamor in the United States in the late 1960s and early 1970s for America to pull out of Vietnam. It is still wallowing in confusion about where to go from the rally and the petition drive.

One unforeseen event which may have hurt the movement was the journalists' strike at Israeli radio and television that shut down the country's major broadcast media. It meant little or no publicity for the peace seekers.

Youth's Suicide Stuns Citizens In Linden

LINDEN (AP) — There's one in every small town, the big, good-looking kid who excels at everything but still knows how to say "please" and "thank you."

Monte "Kip" Currie was such a youngster — but with one troubling difference. It was that difference that apparently drove him to a field 100 yards behind his house Sunday.

A single shotgun blast and the 17-year-old football hero, the National Merit Scholarship finalist who was voted "most likely to succeed" by student admirers, was dead.

Why? What was so terrible to one so young?

The questions being asked by stunned citizens of this East Texas town remain unanswered.

"He had everything going for him," said high school principal Jack Heathington. "It's hard to imagine he had that much of a burden."

But there was a burden, a demon if you will, that had lurked deep in the recesses of Kip's mind for almost five years.

Alemeta Currie said her son told her he had "two or three experiences where he felt something literally took over his mind."

Unknown to his teachers, the townspeople, and even his friends, young Kip had been under a doctor's care for more than a year.

"Part of his trouble stemmed from his intelligence," his mother said. "Kip told us he was so afraid he was going to lose control of his conscience — that he might do something to hurt someone else. He said he simply could not allow that to happen."

"He was one in a million. You would just have to know our boy. He was a Christian and he was being tempted," said Dwain Currie. "He was under terrible temptation to turn away from God. He was afraid if he ever allowed himself to turn away he could never return to God."

Dwain and Alemeta take comfort in the fact that their son had been able to share his problem with them.

Family communication was never lacking in the Currie home.

Kip was buried Tuesday — and with him the demon.

Death Probe Causes Officers' Suspension

HOUSTON (AP) — Three police officers have been relieved of duty with pay in connection with the police and U.S. attorney's office investigation of the 1975 police shooting death of a youth.

Police Chief Harry Caldwell also announced Wednesday he had fired a police jailer who used brass knuckles during a March 11 fight with a robbery detective.

The announcement came only hours after Caldwell had predicted "a bright new day" for the department once the investigations are completed of the deaths of Billy Keith Joyvies and Randall Webster of Shreveport and the obstruction of justice case against Assistant Police Chief Carroll M. Lynn.

The three officers relieved of duty were identified as Sgt. Walter Earl Plaster, 53, and officers John Stephen White, 27, and Clarence Murrell Burkett, 27. The action was taken in connection with the Joyvies case.

The jailer who was fired was identified as Roscoe Stephen Edwards, 29.

"If there is no evidence of wrongdoing, I intend to exonerate these officers (those relieved in the Joyvies case)," Caldwell said. "I'm not throwing these officers as sacrificial lambs. There is not going to be an open season on officers in this department."

Caldwell refused to comment on his reasons for the action, saying only that he did not want to jeopardize the investigation.

However, in a written statement about his decision to relieve the officers of duty, he confirmed for the first time that police were investigating the death of Joyvies, 18, who was shot by police at the

In response to criticism by federal officials, the Lubbock Independent School District will survey all Spanish-surnamed students next year and provide extra help at every level for children of limited English-speaking ability.

Those and other efforts are detailed in the district's new "plan for bilingual education," a document Superintendent Ed Irons hopes will satisfy alleged inadequacies cited by the U.S. Office for Civil Rights.

In the plan, the school system proposes to improve procedures for identifying pupils deficient in English language skills and for determining the amount and kind of help they need.

Also, the district would make sure that necessary services are available in every school — not just those schools with formal bilingual programs.

"Really and truly, we've been doing these things all along. But we haven't had them down on paper in the form that the federal people wanted," said Mary Gryder, the school district's bilingual specialist.

Irons said the most important changes in the bilingual plan are the new screening procedures and the designation of specific teachers in junior and senior high schools to assist secondary students who are limited in English.

The district has been screening children for enrollment in bilingual programs largely on the basis of observation and conversation with teachers, parents and students. The new plan provides for additional measures.

A state-approved "parental survey of home languages" will be sent home with every student in kindergarten through grade 12 "who, by reason of surname or other information, may possibly have a language problem in school. This survey will first be done in August of 1978 and thereafter when a child registers," the plan says.

"The child will be tentatively identified as limited English speaking ability if the survey reveals that the child either hears a language other than English some or most of the time, or understands some or most of a language other than English."

Students identified as such will be given an "oral language proficiency test" to determine whether they do indeed have problems with English, the plan said.

Those children who actually are deficient in English will be administered additional tests and provided appropriate services, the plan continues.

Lubbock has formal bilingual programs in only 16 schools, all elementaries located in largely Mexican-American neighborhoods. However, the plan says provisions will be made in other schools as well — the remaining elementaries and secondary schools as needed — to meet the needs of limited English-speaking students.

School officials here maintain they have been providing such services all along through resource teachers, informal bilingual programs and special classes in "English as a second language."

But the Office for Civil Rights came down hard on the district in January for not spelling out precisely what is being done.

The federal office told Irons Lubbock schools fail to meet its interpretation of See BILINGUAL Page 12

Court Decision Favors Renters

AUSTIN (AP) — A renters' rights decision handed down by the Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday was a major victory for consumers, the head of the attorney general's consumer protection division says.

But the executive director of the Texas Apartment Association says it might dry up the supply of housing for low income persons.

The high court, in a major decision setting a precedent in Texas law, said landlords owe their tenants liveable housing.

It also said courts may no longer enforce rent on apartments, duplexes, rooms or houses that are unsafe, unsanitary or otherwise unfit to live in.

"It's a major decision for consumers. It creates new rights for consumers that have been previously unrecognized in Texas and definitely follows the national trend," said David Bragg, chief of the attorney general's consumer protection division.

Lyle Johansen, director of the apartment association, said the owner of the 75-year-old building whose defects led to the landmark court case, simply tore down the structure.

"He decided it would be cheaper for him to get out than make those repairs. I'm sure there are going to be a lot of owners who feel the same way," he said.

This could reduce the amount of housing available for families and individuals without the money for better quarters, he said.

Johansen said the association, which had filed a brief urging the court not to deviate from existing common law, had not decided whether to request a rehearing.

He predicted the decision would "create a lot of confusion" and many more court cases.

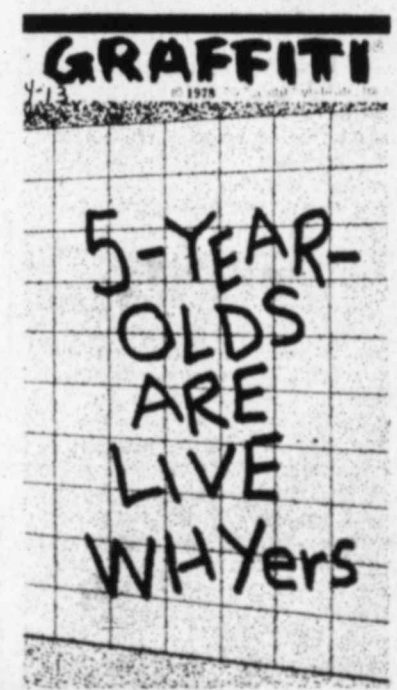

"It may take years to determine what makes a place habitable and what doesn't," Johansen said.

Bragg explained in laymen's terms the court's decision that landlord-tenant relationships include "an implied warranty of habitability."

"With this decision, the tenants have a right to demand that the landlord get the premises in liveable condition if he expects them to pay the rent," he said.

"You don't have the right to unilaterally stop paying your rent. But if he tries to collect the rent, you could say, 'Not until you make it liveable.' . . . It means that if you are paying $400 in rent, but the place is only worth $100 a month because of roaches and no heating, the tenant will pay only $100 if it goes to a lawsuit," Bragg said.

The suit was brought by Wilford Kammarath of Dallas against C.C. Bennett, from whom he and his family rented a $110-a-month apartment in 1975.

He decided it would be cheaper for him to get out than make those repairs. I'm sure there are going to be a lot of owners who feel the same way," he said.

This could reduce the amount of housing available for families and individuals without the money for better quarters, he said.

Johansen said the association, which had filed a brief urging the court not to deviate from existing common law, had

The Properties of Contract Bridge state that you may draw an inference from the actions of an opponent at the table, but that you do so at your own risk. To an expert, anything you do could be a dead giveaway. Consider this hand from the Sunday Times Pair Championship, held in London at the end of January.

Several pairs reached seven spades on this hand, and almost everyone went down after relying on the club finesse for the thirteenth trick. The only player to score the grand slam was French ace, Henri Svarc.

Against Svarc's grand slam West led the king of hearts. Declarer ruffed, then cashed dummy's two high trumps. Now he came to his hand with the queen of diamonds. It was his intention to take the club finesse, but on the diamond trick East displayed some agitation and asked to inspect the trick.

Svarc decided that East could only be interested in the proceedings if he held the outstanding trump and the king of clubs. Therefore, he abandoned the club finesse in favor of another line.

Svarc started to run the diamonds. East realized that it would not help to ruff, so he discarded three hearts on the third, fourth and fifth diamonds. On these tricks Svarc discarded three clubs. Now Svarc carefully refrained from cashing the sixth diamond, for that would have allowed East to sluff his last heart and prevent declarer from ruffing another heart in dummy.

Instead, Svarc cashed the ace of clubs, then led the queen for a ruffing finesse. East covered and declarer ruffed. He entered dummy with a heart ruff, then discarded his last heart on the jack of clubs. The ace of trumps scored the thirteenth trick, and a brilliant piece of card-reading was suitably rewarded.

Food Chemicals Not Harmful

WASHINGTON (AP) — If we are what we eat, vegetable lovers are arsenic and bleach, fruit munchers are nickel and hydrogen cyanide, garlic fans are sulfur compounds, and holiday eggnog consumers are narcotics.

Cause for alarm? No, according to Julius M. Coon of the Committee on Food Protection of the National Research Council.

"Concentrations of toxic substances in any commonly accepted food are so low that grossly exaggerated quantities must be consumed before the toxicity of any substance becomes a hazard," he explains. "The human organism can readily tolerate small amounts of many different chemical substances taken simultaneously."

Coon's statement is good news for dieters, non-dieters and just plain snackers, since many of the most wholesome foods contain potentially dangerous chemicals.

Vegetables, for example, often contain minute quantities of arsenic and nickel and of oxalates, substances often used in bleaching and dyeing processes. However, proportions are so tiny that it would take 1,000 times the normal daily intake of leafy green vegetables to reach toxic levels.

For sheer chemical complexity, for example, George J. Levinskas, Director of Toxicology for a national company, points out that the common potato, no matter what its size, contains no fewer than 150 different chemicals — none of which is any more dangerous to health than the butter and sour cream so often used for garnishing spuds.

Should we give up eating entirely to avoid these chemicals? According to Frank M. Strong, also of the National Research Council, food chemicals, whether natural or artificial, should not be feared. He says, "this is a perfectly normal situation that mankind has always faced and inevitably always will."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon and I am making plans for a formal church wedding, dinner and reception.

My problem is that the young man who is marrying our daughter has too many parents.

His mother is presently married to her fifth husband! Worse yet, all four of her husbands have remarried and she's friendly with all of them. To make matters more sticky, the boy's real father has a wife and two ex-wives with whom he is on friendly terms. I have been instructed to send invitations to all of these ex's. Should I?

BRIDE'S BEFUDDLED MOM

Dear Befuddled: Invite the friendly "ex's" to the wedding but ask only the groom's biological parents and their present spouses to stand in the receiving line.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asks, "What does a deliberately childless couple say to the 'go forth and multiply' relatives and friends who harass them to be fruitful?"

Simple: Roll your eyes upward, look sad and sigh, "Oh, if we only could!"

Those few words are guaranteed to turn hostility and unwarranted nosiness into instant sympathy — and never again will you be bothered with that suggestion.

JACK B. IN TUSCON

Dear Jack: Why pretend you can't "multiply" when you can but choose not to for good and legitimate reasons?

mitted suicide. He was 28. I was 27 and left with two children.

My problem: When people find out that I am a widow, they invariably ask, "What happened to your husband?"

I'm not about to make up any lies, but I can't bring myself to tell anyone that my husband killed himself. My children are not yet old enough to understand what suicide is, so I am not faced with telling them yet. For the present I'm telling the children their Daddy got sick and died, which is true, and something I'll not have to retract when the time comes to tell them the whole story.

But what do I tell people who ask me now? I'd like to have a pat answer that would politely say, "It's none of your business." Any ideas?

NEW YORKER

Dear New Yorker: There is no polite way to say, "It's none of your business." Besides it will only arouse curiosity.

It will be easier for you in the long run if you realize that it is no reflection on you that your husband took his life. He was sick. The truth is always the best response, but you're not obligated to provide the details. Simply say your husband was ill and took his own life, and you'd rather not talk about it. That should put an end to any further questioning.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Vegetable Gardening On Rise In U.S.

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

A new survey shows 49 percent of all United States households intend to plant vegetables this summer. That's an eight percent increase over last year. Most home gardens still will be in rural areas, but 51 percent of America's suburban households are planning a vegetable garden this year, along with 40 percent of the city dwellers questioned in an annual opinion research poll on gardening and canning. The poll was prepared for Ball Corp., a Muncie, Ind. manufacturer of supplies for home food preservation.

Farm country also remains the leader in home canning activities, the study showed, but about 37 percent of suburban households and nearly 30 percent of city homes plan to put up some food this year.

Nationally, the poll indicated about 36 percent of American households plan to home can this year, an increase of only two percent over 1977.

These changes also are reflected in a strong trend toward gardening and food preservation books.

Among the latest is "The Complete Food Preservation Book" by Beverly Barbour (McKay $12.95 cloth, $6.95 paper).

In question and answer format, Mrs. Barbour discusses canning, freezing, preserving, pickling and curing food.

Unfortunately, some inaccuracies and incomplete information, some potentially dangerous, are interspersed with otherwise accurate, useful tips. For example:

— The author suggests removing air from freezer bags with a drinking straw, a practice that invites food contamination if the person using the straw accidentally exhales instead of inhales. A better method uses a metalrimmed cardboard vacuum pump that is widely available in retail and catalogue stores for about $2 or less.

— In pickling and preserving, she recommends calcium oxide as a substitute for alum in pickling and preserving. Calcium oxide is a caustic solid. Slaked lime, which generations of home picklers and preservers have used to firm up acid ingredients, is calcium hydroxide, a powdered alkali that pharmacists used to make medicine for colicky babies before the drug industry came up with alternatives. Lawn and garden stores sell one variety of calcium hydroxide to sweeten acid soil — but only the pharmaceutically pure variety sold by drugstores should be used to treat food.

— She recommends defrosting food before cooking, except vegetables and unbaked pies. But steaks, chops, burgers, fish fillets and fish steaks remain juicier if they are cooked while partly frozen. Freezing breaks down food cells. When that food defrosts, the liquid leaks out, taking flavor and juiciness with it. By cooking such foods partially frozen, the outside are seared and retain more of the liquids during cooking.

— Mrs. Barbour recommends a minimum of six weeks for storing pickles and relishes for flavor to develop. That's two to three weeks too long for some recipes. The minimum depends in each case on the recipe and the temperature of the storage area. Brined pickles, for instance, cure much faster in a warm kitchen than a cool cellar.

— She suggests "cool" storage for pickled eggs, fish and shrimp, all prepared by the open kettle method, but does not specify the refrigerator. Only short-term refrigerator storage is advisable for such highly perishable products prepared by the open kettle method, even when they are packed in salty and/or acid liquids.

— She blames floating fruit in pickling and preserving on unripe fruit or fruit not ground or crushed thoroughly and says there is no cure for it. But fruit at any stage of ripeness will not float in preserves and jams if, after cooking, you let the mixture stand 5 to 10 minutes and stir it occasionally before filling and sealing the jars.

Living Program To Aid Elderly

The Texas Department of Human Resources is establishing a project aimed at serving the housing and companionship needs of the elderly in Lubbock and the surrounding area.

The project is called the Alternate Living Project. Elderly clients will be given the opportunity to reside together, either sharing a home or possibly living separately within a cluster of apartments.

The desired situation will require that the persons involved be ambulatory, preferable without cane or walker. Also, it will be necessary that they be capable of eating, dressing and bathing independently or with little assistance.

A site for the project has not yet been chosen in order that input may be gained from those interested in participating.

Services should be available by May, but an actual starting date depends on the response to the project.

For more information call the department of Human Resources, 762-8922, ext. 271.

Lubbock Energy Agent Named

A special project to assist citizens in learning to conserve home energy is being implemented with the appointment of an Extension Agent - Home Energy Conservation for Lubbock County and surrounding areas.

Mrs. Jeannette Kay Hodges of Lubbock has been appointed to the newly created position.

Funded by a grant from the Energy Extension Service of the Department of Energy, the new position will serve in cooperation with the Texas Energy Extension Service.

Mrs. Hodges will be involved in planning and conducting seminars, workshops and special-interest meetings for the public on home energy conservation.

Barren Marriages Increasing

By JOAN I. DUFFY
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Doctors say it is happening in increasing numbers among the post-World War II babies, now in their 30s and ready to have their own children.
 Well-established in their careers, they decide to stop whatever birth control method they have been using and begin shopping for nursery furniture. But nothing happens.
 Doctors at the American Fertility Society conference in New Orleans said 10 percent of all marriages are barren and the numbers are increasing.
 They blame several factors of modern living for the increase in childless marriages of couples who now want children. "The problem in many ways is related to our present society," said Dr. Lawrence Durbin, chairman of New York University's Urology Department. "Because of the women's movement, many women want to have a career before getting married and having children. Therefore, (because the women are older) we need men with much better semen to get them pregnant."

 Chemical contamination of the environment, increasing exposure to radiation, even increased sexual promiscuity can be linked to rising infertility rates.
 Dr. Luigi Mastroianni, chairman of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School's Gynecology Department, said women once treated for venereal disease and cured may be sterile because of scar tissue in the Fallopian tubes.
 Mastroianni said the same problem — blockage of the tubes — can occur spontaneously in older women, he said.
 Although men can remain fertile into their 80s, Durbin said the quality of the sperm decreases with the man's age, making it more difficult for him to father a child.
 The most important thing necessary for a fertile man is his ability to produce "good, healthy, well-developed sperm capable of movement," Durbin said. "As a man gets older, his sperm quality gets worse and as time progresses, the chances of a disease entity affecting his sperm increases."

 Studies show infertility problems in husbands cause about 30 percent of the barren marriages, but more than half can be helped.
 "In our practice, over 70 percent of the men had improvement with a 55 percent pregnancy rate," Durbin said.
 Infertile men can be treated with hormones to improve sperm development and microsurgery to correct varicose veins that cause sperm blockage. Hormone treatment for egg or sperm production and microsurgery to correct blockage problems are used to correct fertility problems in both men and women.
 Another factor witnessed by the physicians is an increase in patients who underwent voluntary sterilization procedures and later want to reverse this "permanent" birth control method.
 Men losing custody of their children in a divorce, women wanting to have children with new husbands and couples experiencing the death of a child often seek sterilization reversals.
 "The divorce rate is high and so is tubal sterilization — the most common used of contraception methods among women over 30," Mastroianni said.
 Both doctors said the success rate of such reversal was higher for women.
 "But the success rate (for vasectomy reversal) is improving at the present," Durbin said. "Probably 85 percent will have some sperm rate and in general about a 50 percent pregnancy rate."
 A major problem in reversing vasectomies is caused by some men's tendency to develop antibodies to sperm production.
 Mastroianni said a significant number of requests for female sterilization reversals come from women who in the 1960s and early 1970s decided they never wanted children and underwent tubal ligation.
 "They'd say, 'I know what I want and I'm over 21 and it's my body,'" he said.
 Not only is the infertility rate increasing, but both doctors said more are refusing to accept childlessness as an act of God and more are seeking professional help at fertility clinics.
 "People are no longer willing to accept being infertile," Durbin said. "They know something can be done."
 The mere psychological stress of being barren can complicate a couple's infertility problems, the doctors said.
 "It is an emotionally damaging condition which must be handled with delicacy and understanding, especially for the woman," Mastroianni said. "It is difficult for an infertile couple if the woman is OK and the man is sterile, but they can still elect artificial insemination."
 "Changing attitudes aside, we are stuck with the fact that the woman has the uterus — she has to incubate the baby."
 But Durbin said the inability to father a child can lead to sexual and psychological problems in men that compound the infertility problem.
 "It is such a threat to his ego," Durbin said. "It's such a terrible psychological problem, the wife usually has a problem just getting her husband to come to the office."

 He said about 5 percent of the infertile men he treats also suffer from some form of sexual dysfunction as a psychological side effect.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Instead of dealing from your strengths tomorrow you will tend to dilute your position by emphasizing your weaknesses. Why cater to defeat when you could enjoy victory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Persons who resort to flattery will be able to write their own tickets tomorrow. You'd be better off paying more attention to those who level with you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In certain situations you'll manage your resources with considerable skill tomorrow. However, you're not likely to show a profit. Bad moves could offset your good ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will have trouble discerning your true motives tomorrow. For this reason, they may not support the causes you fervently espouse.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can feather your nest better tomorrow by being a booster rather than the person out front who is anxious to take the bows.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be shrewd enough to read the signs tomorrow if friends give indications they're not interested in what you have to offer. Persistence will strain relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will have the touch for personal acquisition tomorrow, but your methods could antagonize those with whom you deal. Do nothing to hurt your image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Self-doubt must not be permitted to erode your confidence tomorrow.

If you dwell too heavily upon the negatives your day will be a big zip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take chances tomorrow doing business with persons whose reputations are questionable. They won't treat you any better than they do others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your boss may be exceptionally difficult to get along with tomorrow, especially if it's felt you're not cooperating as you should.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep an eye open for the unexpected tomorrow. Something advantageous could pop up which will require a quick response if you're to benefit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Think twice before dumping additional funds into projects that have not yielded returns. Putting good money in after bad isn't the answer.

Your Birthday

Old Trader Knows Stock

By STRAT DOUTHAT
CHAPMANVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Tom P. Maynard was enjoying some spring sunshine last week, while getting his garden ready for another cycle of sowing and reaping.
 The old man was hauling a load of manure from his barn, which he built years ago, down to the garden in a rough, homemade sled. The young horse pulling the sled had a gunny sack over its head.
 "I always put a sack over their heads the first couple of times I use them in the spring," he said. "They're briggidy at first, you know."
 If anything, Tom Maynard knows about horses. He's been working them and trading them for most of his 76 years.
 "Yep, traded them all my life," he said, shoveling the manure onto the ground as he talked. "Why, at one time I used to rent a big barn that would hold 15 head. I'd go to Columbus and bring back six and seven at a time. They was gettin' rid of their horses back then, replacing them with machines, and you could buy 'em cheap. Bet I sold a thousand a year between 1920 and 1924."
 He emptied the sled and headed back to the barn.
 "First and last, I've sold a sight of horses," Maynard said as he stopped the horse beside a big pile of manure next to the barn. "But tradin' horses has always been a sideline with me. I worked in the mines back before the Depression and then opened a sawmill when there wasn't any work to be had. Sold timbers to what mines was working, and kept 15 men working regular. I could have had my pick for a dollar a day but I gave the good ones a dollar and a half."
 The old man sat down, took off his hat and wiped his forehead. He then pulled out his tobacco pouch and grabbed a chew.
 "Yep, I've always made my livin' the hard way," he said. "I've timbered and I've broke horses. I just fool around now, though. I just raise my garden and some corn for my horses. My old woman's been quarreling at me for three or four years to get rid of my horses but I just ain't satisfied unless I'm doing something."
 "I've lived on this place for 27 years now," he said. "I've had a garden every year. Don't even bother to plow it anymore. I just disc it real good. I can get the ground as fine as powder."
 He got up and went into the barn, emerging a few moments later leading a bay horse.
 "Now here's a champion," he said. "He can really saddle, buddy."
 Asked the price, Maynard pretended not to hear. When the question was repeated, he replied: "Well, I've got $500 in him but I'm gettin' old and I really don't care to sell him. Gentle? Why a woman can handle him."

 "No sir," he added. "I really don't want to sell him. By the way, you lookin' for a horse, buddy?"

Calcutta Termed Awesome

BY JOHN NEEDHAM

CALCUTTA, India (UPI) — Rudyard Kipling called it the "city of dreadful night" and Calcutta truly is awesome.

An Australian tourist, eyes glazed, fled into the hotel where he was paying $50 a day for his room. He stepped on the elevator and started babbling to two strangers.

"My God, have you ever seen anything like it — so many people, the beggars, those diseases, the noise? My God, it's incredible, isn't it?" The words were strung together and the man was still shaking his head in wonder, still babbling, when he got off the elevator.

Another tourist, this one American, had been driven from the airport to his hotel.

"It's not so bad yet," he said to two dazed women traveling with him. "I haven't seen anyone dying in the streets yet."

But that's only because he hadn't walked the streets at night. He would see some of the 100,000 Calcuttans who sleep on the pavements, completely wrapped in whatever they can find, looking like untidy sacks of mail wrapped in newspaper or burlap, motionless.

Some will still be motionless in the morning, too weak to have survived the night. The wrapped bundle will lie still for so long that eventually someone will investigate and find a corpse.

The traffic of Calcutta is as hazardous as that of Bangkok, Rome or New York. Cars battle buses, dodge trolleys, narrowly miss men pulling other men on rickshaws and wait for the inevitable religious processions.

People are everywhere, more than 3.2 million crammed into 65 square miles. Yet for many of those living here, it's the best city in India.

"People here are more natural, more friendly," a Calcutta journalist says. He affectionately calls the city "Cal," as do most residents who like it.

"In Cal they don't care how much money you have or what you do. They accept you for what you are."

"I have a choice of 40 plays or 30 movies per night in Calcutta," says Bacchu Roy, who has lived here all his life. "Where else can you find that?"

The capital of India until 1911, Calcutta was once the second city of the British Empire, ranking only behind London. It is still the most British of any city in the country.

In the Park Street Cemetery are buried William Thackeray's father, Fanny Burney's half-brother and sons of Charles Dickens and Captain Cook.

Much of the history of British India can be found in inscriptions on monuments in the cemetery and on the walls of St. Paul's Cathedral.

The beggars of Calcutta are more numerous and insistent than any in Bombay, New Delhi, or Dacca. Little boys grab hold of a tourist's wrist and shout: "No mama, no papa, food, money."

But they have their allotted turf, and anyone who can resist the pleas for 100 yards will find them turning away, often to have their places taken by another making the same demand.

Many of the beggars have been deliberately crippled, to enhance their earning power. Many are grotesque, but some of the elderly simply sit on a sidewalk, tin cup outstretched, eyes unseeing. They don't move or speak, but simply wait for the coin to drop.

Environmentally, Calcutta is foul. Pollution is as bad as the most smog-ridden day in Los Angeles or Mexico City. Breathing becomes difficult and by noon the eyes are stinging.

The water-filled eyes shed tears at dusk, when the smoky cooking fires are lighted all over the city.

"It is the easiest thing in the world to come close to despair in Calcutta," author Geoffrey Moorhouse writes in his book, "Calcutta."

"Every statistic that you tear out of the place reeks of doom. Every half-mile can produce something that is guaranteed to turn a newcomer's stomach with fear or disgust or a sense of hopelessness."

But Moorhouse notes that someone who can stick out "that first awful week when Calcutta is driving him away with shock, with nausea, with resentment and with plain gutrotting funk will discover a splendid truth."

"It is that although he will surely never before have encountered so much that is deadly in any one place, he has never been confronted with so much life, either. It pulsates and churns around him wherever he goes, it swirls in every direction."

Tuna Fishing Outlook Better

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tuna fishing was an industry in deep trouble a year ago because of government-imposed quotas on porpoise kills. Today, the catch is up and so is the outlook.

The government's quotas, set as a result of an outcry by conservationists, are being met easily. A surprisingly low total of 2,038 porpoises died, caught accidentally in fishing nets, in the first three months of 1978.

The year's quota is 51,946. "The fishermen are making a real effort out there," said Gerald Howard, regional director of the National Marine Fisheries Service.

As environmentalists pushed for strict enforcement of the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972, tuna fishermen refused for three months last year to go to sea. But, special care and improved nets which allow many trapped porpoises to escape are credited with the low mammal kill, along with government observers assigned to seiners.

Texas Poultry, Eggs Destroyed

AUSTIN (AP) — Thousands of Texas chickens and eggs have been destroyed because of contaminated feed, but the contaminated products probably never reached either the retail or industrial market, says an industry spokesman.

"It was considerable, but we don't know how much or how many," Bill Powers, executive director of the Texas Poultry Federation, said Wednesday of the destroyed products.

"To the best of our knowledge all of the poultry and eggs involved have been disposed of before it got into the retail or industrial trade. I'm positive of that."

He said Texas growers are looking to the feed firm for repayment.

The Food and Drug Administration said earlier in Washington that thousands of chickens have been destroyed because a Ralston Purina subsidiary has been distributing contaminated animal meal for the past year.

The feed was contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) during a warehouse fire in Puerto Rico a year ago, said Nancy Glick, a spokeswoman for the FDA. But the FDA learned of it only recently.

She said most of the contaminated feed appears to have been shipped to Texas, although at least some has turned up in Idaho and Arkansas.

FDA investigators learned from a poultry company in Texas on Jan. 6 that it had found excessive PCB contamination in the fat tissue of chickens.

Powers said the feed company apparently contacted all buyers of the contaminated feed by telephone as soon as it could.

"We don't know how many chickens or eggs were sold before it was discovered," Ms. Glick said. "We know several hundred thousand chickens containing excessive PCB levels have had to be destroyed, and eggs from contaminated laying hens are being destroyed daily."

Polychlorinated biphenyls are highly stable chemicals that were used extensively for many years in insulators and other electrical equipment. As a result of their heavy industrial use, they have become persistent environmental contaminants that get into the food chain and turn up in the fat tissues of many animals, especially fish.

Consumption of large doses by humans can cause acne-like skin eruptions, darkening of the skin and nails, excessive discharge from the eyes and swelling of the eyelids, the FDA spokeswoman said.

But such symptoms should not be experienced by people who have consumed the contaminants in the quantities found in poultry and eggs so far, she said.

The FDA says it is impossible to eliminate PCBs from all foods because they occur throughout the environment, but it has set maximum tolerance levels at various points in the food chain.

"Finished animal feed may not contain more than 0.2 parts per million of the contaminant, while animal feed components may contain up to two parts per million."

The FDA said that during the warehouse fire in April 1977, two electrical transformers exploded, spraying 2,000 pounds of coolant made with PCBs over 400 tons of tuna meal stored in bags in the warehouse.

City To Remove Outdated Laws
NEW YORK (UPI) — Some old-time City Hall reporters may object, but a city council subcommittee plans to do away with the portion of the city code requiring hitching posts be kept outside the seat of government for journalists' horses.

The move is part of a council attempt to revise the city administrative code which, besides requiring the hitching posts for the City Hall press room, also sets the pay for police and firemen at $3,000 a year.

City Councilman Peter Vallone said Wednesday it may take until the end of the year to remove 20,000 inaccurate, contradictory or nonsensical references still in the city code, which was enacted in 1898.

Agency Worker Fed Up With Bureaucracy

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bureaucracy got to Harry Cain this week, and he quit.

"I don't think I can say why I decided to do it now," the $42,000-a-year bureaucrat said after announcing his decision Wednesday to about 200 of the federal civil servants who worked for him. "I was flying home from Phoenix and decided, now."

Cain, 40, just decided he couldn't fight the bureaucratic rules any longer. He couldn't hire the people he wanted and couldn't fire those he didn't. But he didn't put it that way in his speech. Cain has a stutter and began slowly, deliberately, cough drops clicking against his teeth:

"I have been in the health programs of this department since 1962 and have been extremely fortunate in having had a wide range of exciting, worthwhile challenges. ..."

Cain's voice failed him. He pushed the microphone away, paused a few seconds, then gave up and sat down. His boss, Henry Foley, whom Cain brought into government years ago, stepped to the podium to "continue for my good friend."

Foley, now Cain's boss in the Health Resources Administration of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, read Cain's prepared remarks: "I have totally lost my tolerance for the bureaucratic swamp through which a bureau like this must wade," he read.

"The widest and deepest channel in the swamp, of course, is affectionately known as the personnel system."

"Lesser channels include procurement, reports clearance, regulations development, et cetera, in each of which good waders have been known to drown."

"In the last several years, I've waded through most of those channels, often with the water up to my nose. Too much of anything can ruin one's taste for it."

He urged support for President Carter's proposed overhaul of the civil service system to give managers more authority to fire and more responsibility to perform. But Cain clearly had had enough.

"I wish only that I could have made some progress in draining the swamp," he said. "Having failed at that, I wish (my colleagues) strength, stamina, hope, good humor, faith, a charitable spirit and whatever else they need to keep their heads above the still-rising water."

For two years, Cain ran HEW's Bureau of Health Planning and Resources Development, which was created by Congress to cure a problem it had created earlier.

When the nation needed hospitals after World War II, Congress passed the Hill-Burton Act and the government put together a bureaucracy to pass out millions of dollars to local communities for new hospitals, hospital expansion and other capital improvements.

After 25 years, federal planners realized they had overbuilt. Congress cut back on Hill-Burton funds and the Health Planning Act of 1972 directed the government to figure out what to do next.

Almost overnight, one bureaucracy was obsolete and another was needed. But the federal civil service system guarantees employees — whose jobs are abolished — that work will be found elsewhere in the system.

So people who had made their careers building hospitals suddenly were assigned to figure out what to do about such things as excess hospital beds, underuse, poor distribution of resources and the other problems that professional health planners like Harry Cain worry about.

"We end up with a host of very good people who haven't been hired for the kinds of work they now find themselves in, who've attained high rank through other work, and through no fault of their own have ended up in the wrong place at the wrong time," Cain said.

Cain decided he couldn't make it work and couldn't change it enough to make any difference. So he quit.

When the speech was over, several bureaucrats came up to say a few words to their departing boss.

The first one, a younger man whose lower lip was quivering, said simply, "You're a good man, Harry Cain," and turned away.

Shaver will assess punishment later after a pre-sentencing report is compiled.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Enough sludge to cover Washington, D.C., to a depth of one inch is now generated annually by America's wastewater treatment plants. According to Ecodyne Corporation, makers of water treatment equipment, the five million dry tons of sludge being produced each year could double or triple in five years because of environmental laws requiring better sewage treatment.

Jury Exonerates Doctor

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A federal jury has exonerated Dr. Raul E. Gaona of 35 counts of overcharging on Medicaid-Medicare payments, saying the doctor did not intentionally defraud the government.

U.S. District Judge Edwin Hunter of Lake Charles, La., had instructed the jurors they must find that Gaona intentionally committed fraud to find him guilty.

The 11-man, one-woman jury deliberated six hours over two days before finding him innocent on all counts Tuesday.

"What man in his right mind would risk the wrath, would risk the sentence of this court for $2,600 if he was a specialist in internal medicine?" Walter Bonner, Gaona's lead attorney, asked the jury. "My God, he can make that kind of money easily."

Gaona's patients had rallied to his support, contending the doctor practiced in an impoverished area of San Antonio and often donated his services to the poor.

Last year, Gaona pleaded no contest to one of the counts in a plea bargaining arrangement with government prosecutors, but withdrew the plea and demanded a trial after U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. sentenced him to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The issue of deliberate intent, the key point in closing arguments, revolved around the role played by the physician's

White House Staff To Undergo Major Reshuffling

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's White House staff is about to undergo a shake-up, with top assistants predicting that changes will be made over the next month to strengthen the ranks of overextended middle-level aides.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell says that any changes made will not directly involve the senior staff that has served Carter since Inauguration Day nearly 15 months ago, although several senior aides have been criticized by those outside the administration.

Carter, known for his reluctance to lavish praise on his workers as well as his reluctance to dismiss those whose work does not satisfy him, tells this self-deprecating story about the rookies on the White House payroll:

As he was leaving the White House for a trip to Georgia on St. Patrick's Day, Carter said, a reporter told him, "Mr. President, I think you have contributed more to St. Patrick's Day than any other president that has ever lived."

"I said, 'I really appreciate that.' He said, 'Yes, your whole administration is green.'"

The joke reflects some of the problems Carter has had in convincing members of Congress and others in Washington that he has the top-notch staff all presidents claim.

"There is a lot of negative feeling about the White House staff," conceded one Carter aide, suggesting that some of the criticism was actually meant for the president. "If you don't want to attack the president directly, you attack the staff," he said.

Powell refused to comment on any specifics of the plan being put together by Carter and Hamilton Jordan, the president's all-but-titled chief of staff. But there have been indications that by the time the reshuffling is completed, it will have touched many middle-level offices.

"We're trying to move people here around to square their talents with the needs of the administration," the press secretary said.

Powell has insisted that the changes would not reflect dissatisfaction with the way people are working, but there is a feeling that the staff is spread too thin and that it lacks multi-talented members. One official familiar with White House personnel matters put it this way: "If you've got a guy who can crack walnuts with the left side of his jaw and another guy can do that and change light bulbs, you take the light bulb changer."

The crunch of demanding issues that descended on the White House — the Panama Canal treaties, the coal strike, the neutron bomb, inflation — has kept the president from focusing on the realignment, Powell said.

Few of the senior staff members have been immune from criticism. Jordan, the president's chief political adviser, has been faulted for failure to return telephone calls, for sleighting Washington power centers outside the White House and for his chaotic operation of a key White House post.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, has recently been getting into tangles with Jewish leaders over Middle East policies. Frank Moore, chief of the congressional liaison staff, has survived an initially very difficult period, with House and Senate leaders questioning whether he had the competence to perform his politically sensitive duties.

Powell, generally well regarded by reporters, got himself caught in a flap by accepting rides on a corporate airplane. There have been no suggestions that any of the four will have their roles reduced. Indeed, it is likely that Jordan and Powell may find their roles expanded.

There has been criticism that Jack Watson, the Cabinet secretary; Margaret Costanza, Carter's assistant for public liaison, and counsel Robert J. Lipschutz either are holding ill-defined jobs or not performing them with any distinguishing skill.

Ledbetter Raps Harding's Performance As Treasurer

State treasurer candidate Harry Ledbetter charged Wednesday Treasurer Warren Harding's performance in office has been "pretty shaky" and said the state official has "not provided one iota of leadership."

Ledbetter, an Austin financial analyst, said Harding was in office four months before he took any action to invest additional state money in interest-bearing accounts.

In February the percentage of state money invested rose to close to 90 percent, Ledbetter said. However, "no other state allows it to get down that low," he charged, adding most states have 94-95 percent of state money in interest-bearing accounts.

Ledbetter said the action to invest the money came only because Harding felt the heat of the campaign and became worried about his election chances.

The former Texas A&M quarterback brought what he calls the "Texas Taxpayers Special" to Lubbock Wednesday — a pickup loaded with $500,000 imitation dollars to dramatize the amount of interest lost on State Treasury funds each week.

"This is how much more interest could be earned every week on your tax dollars if our famous name treasurer would do his job," he said.

Ledbetter, a former Deputy Comptroller, said the $500,000 is the amount of "hard-earned dollars citizens of the state have to pay each week in taxes because the state treasurer failed to properly manage the state's money."

He charged the bank holding companies in the state are "taking over the State Banking Board," of which the treasurer is a member.

"Two-thirds of all new charters issued last year went to holding companies," which Ledbetter labeled "monopolistic growth" and against constitutional prohibitions against branch banking.

Ledbetter said bank charters should be granted "not on political considerations, but on local needs."

He said the holding companies had contributed the majority of funding for Harding's campaign.

He predicted voters would not elect Harding simply because of his famous name because "voters have been stung once by a candidate with a famous name recently."

Ledbetter called Harding a product of the "big city banks in Dallas and of the big city machine in Dallas," Harding was Dallas County Treasurer 27 years.

Ledbetter noted a grand jury in Dallas is investigating allegations Harding's former campaign treasurer attempted to bribe a candidate for a county judgeship, but said the case would not be brought up before the May 6 primary.

Harding is a "big city ward politician," Ledbetter said.

The candidate said he favors returning any surplus in state funds to taxpayers through lower taxes and said he opposes any kind of income tax.

Ledbetter has nine years state government experience including budget analyst for the Legislative Budget Board and as administrative assistant to the Lieutenant Governor.

Workman Claims He Will Have 'Clout'

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Don Workman, candidate for the Democratic state senate nomination, said Wednesday he is the "man for the job" because he could be more effective in Austin than his four opponents.

Workman, a banker and Texas Tech regent, said during an interview by Avalanche-Journal editors that he has a "broader-based background than the other candidates and would have the 'clout to get me where you build power.'"

He noted he has an understanding of banking, higher education and public education and said he has the "best understanding of youth problems in the state and what it will take to solve the problems" as a result of his membership on the Texas Youth Council.

Workman said he has a master's degree in agriculture, as well as real-life farming experience and therefore understands farm problems.

Because of his friendship with Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Workman said, he will be able to work closely with Briscoe appointees on state boards.

"I am the only one with the persuasive argument that I should be on the Senate Finance Committee," Workman said, adding it is "most important for this area to have our member on the committee" in light of the vacancies left by the chairman and Sen. Kent Hance.

Workman said he also would have credentials to become a member of the Social Service, Education and Agriculture committees.

The former rodeo champion said his philosophy differed little from all of his opponents except one — former state Rep. Jesse George.

"Jesse has a different philosophy than the rest of us," Workman said. "He's projecting himself as a liberal."

Workman added the thought of George being elected state senator "scars me."

He conceded his opponents were better able to deal with the press because "window dressing is against my nature."

Workman admitted his refusal to vote on the location of a branch of the Texas Tech Medical School definitely had hurt him in Odessa, the eventual site chosen for the branch.

"I lost a ton of support and haven't gained it all back," Workman said.

But the abstention was "the only logical thing to do for the integrity of myself and Odessa," he said.

Another candidate, former state Rep. Delwin Jones, made political hay out of the site selection when he made an impassioned plea to the Tech regents in favor of Odessa as the location for the regional health center.

And Workman predicted Jones would not be as effective a senator because of the ploy.

He explained that three present senators favored other cities for the school's location and, as a result, would not help secure funding for the medical school if an Odessa site proponent were elected.

Workman predicted the next state senator faces a "big push for a state income tax and a big push for the redistribution of public education funds."

He said he opposed both moves.

Bilingual Plan

the U.S. Supreme Court's 1974 decision in Lau vs. Nichols. The government threatened to stop federal funds unless Lubbock remedies the "violations."

The 16 other Texas school systems reviewed by the civil rights bureau under the Lau standards were hit with similar charges. As it turned out, the criticisms were the result not of shortcomings by individual districts but of inadequacies in the state bilingual plan — under which all Texas schools operate.

The Texas Education Agency then stepped in and with help from Lubbock and other districts drafted a new state plan. On the basis of the new state document, Lubbock revised its own bilingual plan to meet the alleged deficiencies cited by the Office for Civil Rights.

Irons sent a copy of the new local plan last week to Gilberto L. Herrera of the agency's regional office in Dallas.

"We feel the proposed plan meets compliance status and is educationally sound in all respects," Irons said in a cover letter.

Alleged Nazi's Life Filled With Turmoil

By SANDRA BALMER
CHICAGO (AP) — Even if he wins, even if a judge finds that Frank Walus did not lie to immigration authorities about an alleged past as a Nazi terrorist, the victory may be empty.

Walus has already lost a great deal. His teen-age son, who wants to attend West Point, threatens to leave home. His lawyer is pressing for payment of $60,000 in legal fees. Strangers scrawl swastikas on his home. Some of his neighbors shout epithets at him. Others testify against him.

"I have lots of phone calls threaten me and also my tenants," said Walus in an interview in his neat living room. He rents out the second floor of his modest two-flat building. "They say they will blow up my house. They put lots of swastika on the sidewalk and throw eggs at my house."

Walus, 55, a small man who speaks with a heavy Polish accent, is accused of lying to immigration officials and covering his alleged Nazi background to become a citizen.

Eleven witnesses swore in U.S. District Court before Judge Julius Hoffman that they recognized Walus as the Gestapo agent who 35 years ago was sent to murder and beat Jews in the Polish cities of Kielce and Czestochowa. He would have been a teen-ager then.

Walus maintains he has never killed anyone: "I am innocent, clean like a blank sheet of paper."

Walus first visited the United States in 1939. In 1963 he returned, to reside quietly on Chicago's southwest side — until Jan. 26, 1977, when federal officials thrust a civil complaint into his hands.

Walus and his wife worry most about what conviction and possible deportation later would mean to their sons, Arthur, 16, and Paul, 13.

Walus and his wife renounced Polish citizenship when they became U.S. citizens. They do not know what country would accept them.

"No matter where we go they would have to learn a new language," Mrs. Walus said of her sons. But Arthur has warned his parents he will not leave the country. He threatens to run away.

"Arthur is a very good student at school. He wants to go to the military academy — West Point — and he's very worried about what's happening. He can't even sleep at night," Walus said.

Walus is deeply in debt. So far he owes $60,000 to defense attorney Robert Koronkiewicz. Costs could climb to $100,000. Because he cannot work, he has borrowed $20,000 from friends and relatives.

Walus has had five heart attacks and is retired on a permanent disability leave from his job as an assembly line worker. He says his income from Social Security and sick pay amounts to $445 a month; his wife works as a laboratory technician at a Chicago osteopathic hospital to help pay expenses.

Acquaintances are hesitant to talk about Walus. His boss at a General Motors plant said he was quiet and had a good work record. An official of United Auto Workers Local 719 declined to comment.

But some neighbors are not so reticent. "When I come out in the back yard — my own yard — they yell 'Hey, you Nazi! You murderer!' and we argue," said Walus.

"And the government goes to my neighbors for witnesses!" he added. Walus admitted he is tenacious. He said he will appeal if Hoffman rules against him.

"Of course I will fight," he said tersely. "I am innocent, why should I leave the country? What would you do?"

CHECKING PAPERS — Accused Nazi terrorist Frank Walus looks at papers during a recent interview at his home in Chicago. Walus' life has been irreversibly changed by his widely publicized citizenship trial. Even if a judge finds that he did not lie to immigration authorities about his past, he will have to bear the scar of widespread public belief that he is guilty of having been a Gestapo agent. # Quality Urged In Education

By CHRIS CONNELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-four federal agencies that deal with education are jointly issuing a series of 50 recommendations for charting government policy on education.

The recommendations in a 97-page report released Wednesday by the Federal Interagency Committee on Education contained no surprises. They echo the Carter administration's previous call in the fiscal 1979 budget for an emphasis on equal opportunity and high standards in education.

The agencies did not attempt to reach a consensus on one pressing issue that may affect them all: which ones will be included in the new, separate department of education that President Carter has promised to create.

Mary F. Berry, HEW's assistant secretary for education who chairs the committee, called it a "monumental achievement" to get 34 agencies to agree unanimously on a common set of goals. She said it would have been "unnecessarily divisive" for the panel to try to come up with recommendations for the new department.

Only half the government's $20 billion-plus spending on education is done through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

James McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget is slated to tell the Senate Governmental Affairs committee on Friday what the president wants in the new department.

A battle may ensue if Carter attempts to fold the Veteran's Administration's education programs into it, or if he suggests taking major job training programs out of the Labor Department. Miss Berry said the Carter budget reflects many of the interagency committee's priorities, such as continuing to target federal aid on poor children.

She said there was "very little coordination of efforts now" among government education agencies, and she suggested that the interagency committee be strengthened, even with a new department in the offing.

The interagency committee was first created by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964. It consists of assistant secretaries and bureau chiefs from the various agencies and meets monthly.

The panel set six overall goals:

- Assure quality of educational opportunity for all regardless of race, sex, age, ethnic heritage, poverty or handicap.

- Encourage high standards and "thoughtful responses to changing educational and social needs."

- Strengthen ties among education, training and work.

- Encourage growth of "lifelong learning opportunities."

- Meet national needs in such areas as science, arts and humanities, international affairs and agriculture.

- Provide leadership for research in education and assure widespread dissemination of the knowledge gained from research.

Mexican Official Calls Gas Stalemate 'Ironic'

By SUSAN LINNIE
HOUSTON (AP) — A high-ranking official in the Mexican petroleum industry says the present stalemate over the price of Mexican natural gas to U.S. importers is "ironic" but expressed hope an agreement can be reached soon.

Speaking at an international trade conference here Wednesday, Ignacio de Leon, assistant director general of Petroleos Mexicanos, or PEMEX, said the addition of Mexican gas to the world supply, rather than forcing energy prices up, would help hold world oil prices down.

He also implied that although Mexico would like to sell gas to the U.S., the country is fully prepared to use its gas and export oil instead.

"But let me assure you that PEMEX has already developed an alternative plan," de Leon said, "which will permit the complete absorption of all available gas supplies within the Mexican economy, substituting largely for oil."

Six U.S. interstate distribution companies reached a tentative agreement last August with PEMEX to purchase the gas at $2.60 per thousand cubic feet. Energy secretary James Schlesinger says that price, compared with the $2.16 now being paid for Canadian gas, is too high.

De Leon told the Fifth Annual International Trade Conference of the Southwest that Mexico was prepared to build the pipeline branches necessary to carry the gas to the border if the U.S. government approves the "reasonable" price.

The $2.60 figure is pegged to the price of No. 2 fuel oil Mexico would use for its domestic needs in place of the gas exports.

An 821-mile natural gas pipeline from southern Mexico to a point about 80 miles south of Brownsville is scheduled for completion early next year. The Mexicans say the extension they would make to the border towns of Reynosa, Mexico, and McAllen would eliminate costly shipping charges for the importers.

De Leon said after his speech that Mexico could convert from oil to natural gas for domestic energy needs "in a matter of days."

He said after the speech that Mexico will be increasing imports of energy-related goods and, referring to high U.S. prices, said when quality is roughly the same, lower prices will be the determining factor.

De Leon said Mexico expects to have a surplus of about one million barrels of oil and two billion cubic feet of natural gas daily by 1980. The Library of Congress predicts that Mexico will be the world's fourth-largest producer of hydrocarbons in 15 years.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is scheduled to visit Mexico next month where observers say he may discuss gas prices with President Jose Lopez Portillo.

CONTRACTS AUTHORIZED
AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Energy Advisory Council has authorized $227,010 in energy-related contracts for the University of Texas. One of the projects is to come up with a more exact estimate of lignite reserves in the state.

Five Indicted For Bribery

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has returned an indictment accusing the current manager and a former superintendent of the Port of Houston's public grain elevator of accepting bribes to allow the theft of grain through short loading and short weighing.

The indictment alleges the illegal activity occurred from 1969 to 1973.

Kenneth P. Roden, current manager, and Leo E. Rankin, a former superintendent, were accused of accepting $320,000 in bribes from the owners of two companies.

They were among five persons named in the grand jury indictments returned Wednesday.

Others named were James E. Bennett, operator of West Gulf Trading Co., and Ted and Nancy Reynolds, co-owners of Ted Reynolds Grain Co. Inc.

The indictment alleges Roden and Rankin used their official positions to benefit the Reynolds and Bennett by substituting lower priced grain for high priced grain, upgrading the quality of grain-causing it to be sold as higher grade grain—and falsely certifying grain weight certificates on nonexistent railway cars.

The indictment alleged the Reynolds formed the West Gulf company and had Bennett operate it as a means to channel the bribe payments to Roden and Rankin.

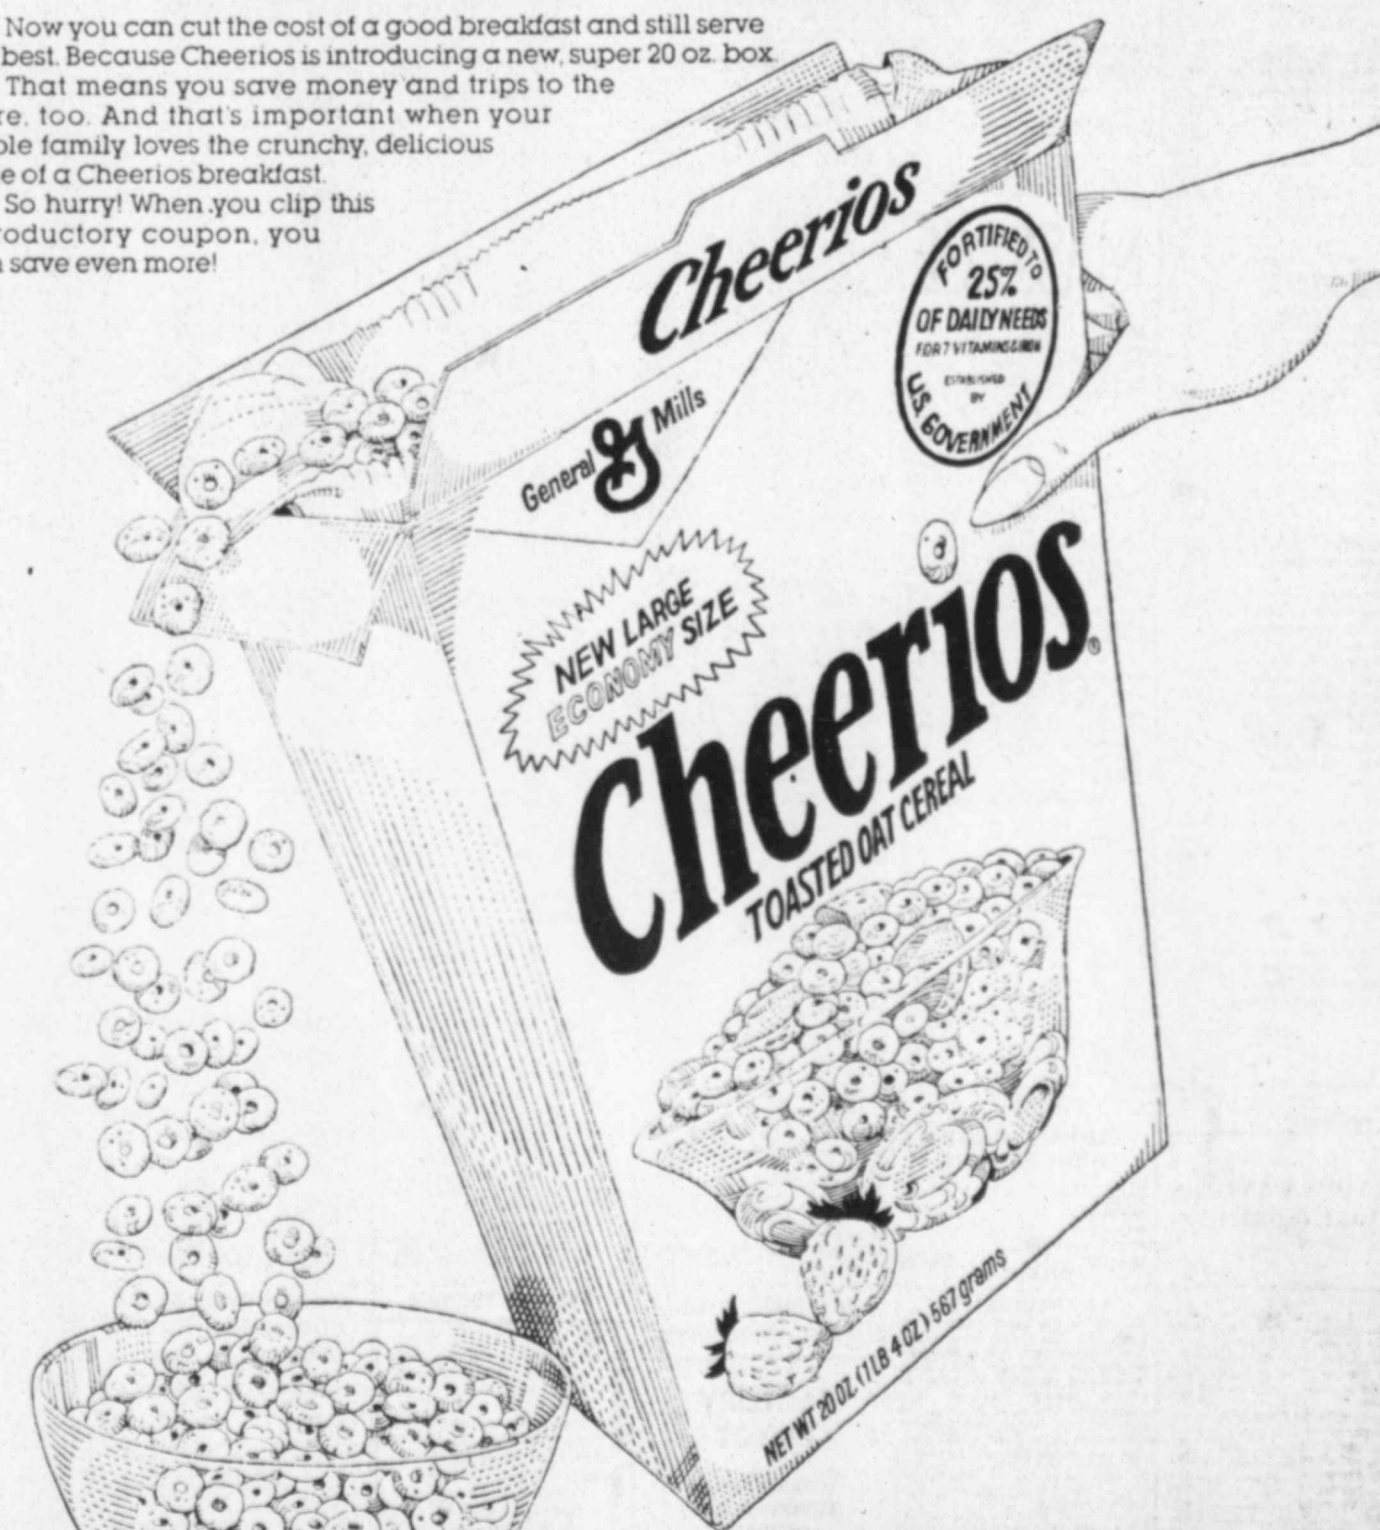

In addition, the indictment charges all five conspired to obstruct the Internal Revenue Service in the collection of taxes by falsifying tax returns.

Moret Hospitalized After Catatonic Seizure

ARLINGTON (AP) — It was shortly before 6 p.m. Wednesday night when visitors to the Texas Rangers locker room were startled by a strange and bizarre scene.

Relief pitcher Roger Moret stood frozen like a statue before his locker, holding a shower shoe in his extended right hand and not uttering a word.

He remained in that position almost an hour before he snapped out of the trance-like state. At 9:35 p.m., he walked to an ambulance and was taken to the Arlington Neuropsychiatric Hospital with Ranger Owner Brad Corbett and Executive Vice President Eddie Robinson holding up their coats to screen curious onlookers.

Team physician Dr. B.J. Mycoskie said Moret had gone into "a definite catatonic state. You don't see them very often," he said.

The 28-year-old Moret had threatened to jump the team last week because of arguments with several players.

He said last Friday, "I'll be gone in 24 hours."

However, Moret stayed and turned in four innings of brilliant relief Monday night when Texas defeated the New York Yankees. Moret gained a save in that game and said later, "I'm very happy."

He told a reporter Wednesday night before he climbed into the ambulance, "I want to be traded . . . you tell them that." Doctors gave Moret five shots of sedatives.

Psychiatrist Dr. Murray Skaggs was on hand, as was hospital administrator James Bingham.

Ranger players had stared in disbelief at Moret before the game began. Texas lost to Detroit 3-2 and Ranger Manager Bill Hunter said later, "It (the Moret incident) had to be very distracting."

Robinson said he thought Moret was possibly suffering a nervous breakdown.

At one point, Ranger General Manager Dan O'Brien tried to lead Moret into the training room, but the slender lefthander would not go.

Two police officers were nearby when Moret was transferred to the hospital, but weren't needed.

Corbett said after returning from the hospital that Moret "was a sick guy, but there were no drugs involved."

Corbett said doctors would begin thorough examinations after Moret rested overnight.

Moret was the only player remaining on the Ranger roster from the five acquired from Atlanta in 1976 for slugger Jeff Burroughs. Moret had a 3-3 record as a reliever last year after being shelved most of the season because of a circulatory problem in his left arm.

Moret previously pitched with Boston and had a brilliant 14-3 record in 1975. His place on the roster will likely be taken by a player called up from Tucson.

SWC Haul Impressive

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

It was a day for bragging, and Gerald Myers, Shelby Metcalf, Jim Haller, Eddie Sutton and Sonny Allen argued over which came out with the best.

On the first day of signing basketball players to national—and conference—letters-of-intent, all schools except Texas and Houston came away with signatures of athletes with credentials as high as all-America.

Tech landed a pair of shooters from Hobbs to start its year, and the start had Myers singing a happy song. Signed Wednesday morning by assistant coach Rob Evans were 6-3½ forward-guard Jeff Taylor, and 6-1½ guard Steve Smith. Smith was the object of recruiting battles involving such national powers as New Mexico, DePaul, Louisville and Notre Dame.

Both Smith and Taylor said that were impressed with Tech when they visited recently. "The players seemed real close," Taylor told the Avalanche-Journal. "I just thought it was the place I wanted to play."

"I never compare our Hobbs Eagles," admitted Hobbs coach Ralph Tasker, who has been turning out major-college prospects for two decades, "but both of them are exceptionally fine shooters. Both are guard-forwards, and our kids who are going to college, we prepare them to play both places."

"I guarantee both of them can shoot as well as any we've had at Hobbs."

Taylor was averaging 25 points and 12 rebounds before breaking an ankle in early January. He missed the rest of the season. Smith averaged 20 points and 10 rebounds.

"We're elated to get both players," Myers said. "And coming out of the Hobbs program, they're even more prepared for college basketball. We've had great success with players who have come out of Ralph Tasker's program and these two guys have great physical ability to go with the basketball sense they have learned at Hobbs."

"Jeff is an incredible basketball player. He has great leaping ability and excellent quickness and agility. He's exciting and can do a lot with the basketball. I think he has invented some dunk shots over there."

Myers classified Smith as a "good power-type guard. He's an excellent shooter, too, with a good natural touch and is a very aggressive player."

Myers gave no indication of where Tech would head next in its quest for talent, although it is known that Myers is seeking 6-6 David Little of Abilene High and 6-3 Matt Clark of Oklahoma City Southeast.

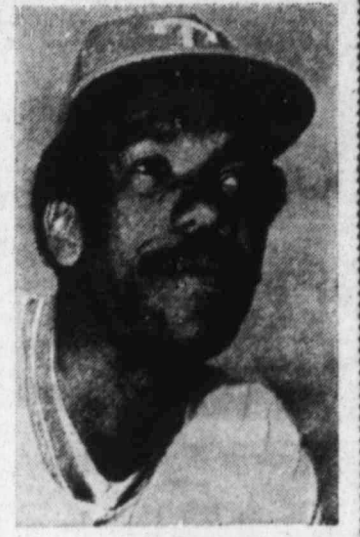

And, as Tech was winning a national battle for Taylor's signature, the Aggies were shouting over the signing of 6-11 all-America center Rudy Woods of Bryan, Woods, who averaged 22 points and 15 rebounds last year, signed with the Aggies on the hood of a car; he was in a hurry to get out of town for an all-star game in Philadelphia.

Arkansas, which whipped Notre Dame in an NCAA third-place game, went to South Bend, Ind., to sign 6-8 David Scott, practically in the shadow of the Golden Dome. Scott averaged 17 points and 15.2 rebounds last season. The Porkers also signed 6-6 Keith Peterson of Little Park View, the state's player of the year; Brad Friess, a highly regarded 6-5er from Austin Anderson, and 6-6 Tony Brown of Chicago.

SMU landed two players but will have to pay for only one. Signed by coach Sonny Allen was 6-8 Gary Buckland of Dover, Del. Also, Allen's son, 6-foot Billy, an all-

Tech Defense Again Sparkles

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Wednesday, for the second straight time, Rex Dockery had some kind words to say about the defense's performance in a scrimmage.

"The defense really did some good things," Texas Tech's head coach said Wednesday following the Raiders' one-hour scrimmage. "The defense, as a whole, did well, and the first unit, in particular, did an excellent job."

"The defense just got better and better as the scrimmage went on. There was some good gang-tackling and some more big plays by the defense."

Dockery mentioned in particular linebacker Jeff Copeland, cornerback Willie Stephens and strong safety Johnny Quinney for their performances.

Offensively, Dockery singled out quarterback Mark Johnson and fullback Sam Bailey. Johnson, strongly in the race for the No. 1 quarterback job, completed eight of 12 passes for 55 yards with one interception. He also rushed twice for 75 yards, 60 of those coming on a touchdown run.

Bailey rushed four times for 28 yards, while back Mark Olbert was 4-43 in the rushing department.

Wide receiver Godfrey Turner caught three passes for 31 yards.

"Johnson had a good day," Dockery said. "He handled the team well. And it looked like Bailey did some good things, too. I'll have to see the film before I know a lot more, though."

Tech will hold another, more lengthy, scrimmage Saturday morning. It will be more of a game-type scrimmage than the previous ones. Dockery said some of the kicking game will be employed Saturday. None was used last Saturday.

"We'll kick field goals and extra points and maybe cover some punts."

Offensive guard Larry Martin, a starter at quick guard, sprained an ankle Wednesday and will be out for "two or three days," according to Dockery.

Quarterback Tres Adams didn't practice Wednesday because of a bruised left shoulder he first injured Saturday. Dockery said he is expected to miss another day or two.

Cornerback Freddy Taylor, out with a sprained knee, could be back by Monday.

PERKINS

What's Story On Trapp?

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Is there some hidden reason why no NBA team picked up George Trapp when the Pistons, wallowing in coaching ineptitude, released him? He is one of the purest shooters I have ever seen. Is there some kind of knock not apparent from the stand?

—Tony Braceful, Detroit

A. The scouting report on Trapp, as provided by a 10-year pro observer, offers this hard assessment: "Has never played up to his ability. Has never been a hard worker. Difficult to relate to and has a problem off the floor."

"A first-round draft pick six years ago, Trapp is an example of how quickly talent turns over in the NBA. A total of 47 rookies won jobs this season, reflecting a lot of dead wood on the rosters. "Next year," predicts our source, "will see an even bigger sweep-out."

Q. Why is Notre Dame called "The Fighting Irish"? The school was founded by French Canadian priests and the words Notre Dame are French for Our Lady. The school's most famous coaches were not Irish or even Catholic. How many of the Four Horsemen were?

—Helen Sullivan, El Segundo, Calif.

A. Until the 1920s, Notre Dame's far-ranging teams were known as the Ramblers. When the Irish immigrants flowing into this country adopted the Catholic school as their own, the current nickname evolved from their support. Some say it was originally considered a term of derision.

Dan Devine, the coach of this year's national champions, is an Irish Catholic, in the tradition of Leahy and Brennan. Rockne and Parseghian were not. Of the Four Horsemen, only the late Harry Stuhldreher had no Irish or Catholic roots.

Q. College basketball uses the zone press. Please tell me why and how long it has been illegal in the NBA.

—Al Glassman, Culver City, Calif.

A. The zone defense has been illegal ever since the NBA wrote its first rule book in 1946. The owners felt that the zone would slow down the game and hold down the scoring, arguments long since offset by the 24-second clock.

Q. In the NBA this year Paul Westphal and Walter Davis of Phoenix each scored 40 or more points in the same game. Last year Pete Maravich and Nate Williams of the Jazz did the same. Is this unusual? If not, could you list the players, the teams and the dates when it has happened? Also, have five players for one team ever scored 20 or more points in one game?

—Joel Goldberg, Santa Barbara, Calif.

A. The NBA doesn't keep track of 40-point duos, but a check of the files turns up only the combinations you mentioned in the past two seasons. The five-man, 20-point breakthrough is more common, most recently accomplished in mid-March by the Philadelphia 76ers in a 141-127 wipeout of the Knicks. Lloyd Free led with 23 points, Darryl Dawkins and Julius Erving had 22, and George McGinnis and Doug Collins 20.

Q. What ethnic background is Billy Martin, the manager of the New York Yankees? I have heard he is Portuguese; some contend he is Italian.

—Joe A Gonsalves, Sacramento, Calif.

A. Alired Manuel Martin's father was Italian, his mother Portuguese. (A personal aside: On a hunch, is the letter writer the Joey Gonsalves who was a lightweight contender in the early 1950s?)

HOT LINE FEEDBACK: The record for fewest pitches in a nine-inning game is held by Dave "Boo" Ferriss of the 1946 Red Sox. He pitched a two-hitter against the White Sox using only 78 pitches, thus breaking the record of Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox (1916-1919). Ferriss' career was shortened because of asthma and a sore arm. —Gregory Indjian, Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

Fidrych Challenges Rangers—And Wins

By The Associated Press

Mark "the Bird" Fidrych doesn't back away from a challenge.

And did he ever have one Wednesday night.

The fidgety Detroit Tiger pitcher nursed a one-run lead into the bottom of the ninth inning when he faced Al Oliver, who had blasted a two-run homer off him in the first inning.

Fidrych promptly struck out Oliver and slugger Richie Zisk. Toby Harrah and Claudell Washington each singled but Fidrych forced Juan Beniquez to ground out to preserve a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

In the other American League games, Kansas City nipped Baltimore 5-2, the California Angels defeated Minnesota 9-5, the Boston Red Sox bested the Cleveland Indians 6-3, Milwaukee — helped by Moose Haas' 14-strikeout pitching — trimmed the New York Yankees 5-3 and the Chicago White Sox nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-4.

"Mark goes right after the hitters," said a pleased Detroit Manager Ralph Houk. "He challenges you... He doesn't care who you are."

Fidrych, now 2-0 for the year, was his animated self in the final inning. He flapped his arms and chattered to the ball.

Asked what he said, Fidrych explained, "I was telling myself don't overthrow... Let 'em hit it... Throw Strikes... Keep your rhythm."

Fidrych said he wasn't about to back down from Oliver.

"I threw him the same pitch he hit for a homer in the first inning — a fastball," said Fidrych. "It was do or die out there. When you have Oliver and Zisk coming at you... it's do or die. I was throwing my last ball... I was challenging them."

Fidrych said he didn't get discouraged when the Tigers fell behind on Oliver's two-run blast. "You lose in this game when you give up," he said. "We did it just right — We won."

Detroit belted 11 hits off Ranger starter and loser John Matlack, now 1-1.

Singles by Rodriguez, Mark Waggoner and Ron LeFlore gave Fidrych his winning margin in the seventh inning. LeFlore said, "When you get three or four runs for him you're going to win because he keeps the ball so low. You have to golf it to hit it."

It has been 13 years since the Baltimore Orioles had a poorer start than the 0-5 record that has dropped them to the bottom of the American League's East Division.

Royals 5, Orioles 2
The loss left the Orioles the only winless team in baseball (Seattle at least has won twice), and brought Baltimore within reach of the 0-6 start that marred the 1955 season.

"I'll keep making changes until I find a club that can go out and win," said Weaver. "One swing of the bat can change this game around."

Actually, it was two swings — on consecutive pitches — that doomed the Orioles.

Otis, who had spent the morning in the hospital with kidney stone troubles, cracked the three-run homer that wiped out a 1-0 lead Baltimore had taken on Eddie Murray's second-inning homer.

Then Porter, the lumbering catcher, sent Mike Flanagan's next serve down the right field line and past the Orioles' Ken Singleton.

While Singleton chased the ball, Porter chugged around the bases and slid into the plate just ahead of the relay.

"I was running out of gas as I came around second and was hoping they'd hold me at third," said Porter. "That wasn't a slide at home plate. I was collapsing."

Chief Noc-A-Homa Returns To Teepee

By The Associated Press

The important news out of Atlanta this week is that Chief Noc-A-Homa is back in his teepee.

The chief, who has been the club's mascot for nine years, had balked at contract terms for 1978 and it seemed that the Braves would have to face the new season without him. He wanted an increase from $50 per game to $100 and the club tried to ply him with other incentives.

They offered, in order, an Indian princess, a color television for his teepee, cleaning the teepee carpet, buying him two new Indian outfits and giving him a job as mascot for the NBA Atlanta Hawks next season.

Old Nok-A-Homa stood firm, however, until last week. When the Braves agreed to add a parking pass to the Omni, home of the Hawks and NHL Atlanta Flames, he began to bend. Then the club showed him the pictures of some of the applicants for the Indian princess job and he surrendered.

His salary remains $50 per game. But the fringe benefits have been greatly improved.

Chicken Stanley, who lost his regular job as shortstop for the New York Yankees last year when Bucky Dent was acquired from Chicago, isn't thrilled with his bench role.

Last year, he made it into 48 games, mostly in the late innings after Dent had been lifted for a hitter. This year, he has a plan to handle that problem, and it includes Cy Young award winner Sparky Lyle, the Yankees' bullpen ace.

"I think Sparky and I are going to car pool this year," Stanley said. "We can both get to the ballpark in time for the seventh inning, just when we're needed."

The Houston Astros can thank one of their fans, James W. Howie of El Paso, for helping to convince Cesar Cedeno to pass up the free-agent market.

When Cedeno was weighing his options, he received a letter from Howie, who took it upon himself to suggest the outfielder might be happier staying in Houston. And he explained why by listing some of the alternatives. Here are some excerpts:

"Giants—Candlestick Park is a nice place to not be in on cold windy nights.

"Padres—You might end up being paid off in quarter-pounds.

"Montreal—During your leisure hours, you can go walrus hunting."

"Oakland—No comment."

The arguments must have been persuasive. Cedeno signed a 10-year contract with the Astros.

California Angels coach Jimmie Reese, 72 years young, remembers one incident in his rookie season of 1930, when he batted .346 for the New York Yankees in a reserve role while rooming with Babe Ruth.

"I got up there with the bases loaded. We were behind Cleveland 6-3. Bob Shawkey was our manager. He told me to run like hell if I hit the ball on the ground. 'The big guy's up there next, so we don't want any double plays.'"

"I hit a grand slam off Wes Ferrell to win the game 7-6. The Babe was waiting for me at home plate. He slammed me on the back and said: 'Nice hitting, kid. Now you're only 59 behind.'"

A's 4, Mariners 3

Newman's ninth-inning swing won the game in Oakland, although just 1,742 people were there to watch it — the second consecutive sub-2,000 night for the A's at their Oakland Coliseum home.

The A's carried a team batting average of .199 into the game against Seattle, but their pitching has been so strong (an earned run average of 1.04 on seven earned runs in their first six games this season) no one seems to mind.

Angels 9, Twins 5

Rick Miller's first home run since 1974, a grand slam, highlighted a nine-run first inning and carried California to its victory over Minnesota.

Frank Tanana survived a home run and a triple by Rod Carew before getting help from the bullpen. Dan Ford also homered for Minnesota.

Brewers 5, Yankees 3

A two-run, tie-breaking double by Don Money backed the club record 14-stri-keout performance by Haas and carried Milwaukee to its fifth consecutive victory.

The Brewers continued their power barrage. Larry Hise cracked the team's 11th of the season — his third — to tie the score 3-3. Sal Bando had homered earlier for Milwaukee.

Haas fanned New York's Reggie Jackson four times. Graig Nettles homered for the Yankees.

Red Sox 6, Indians 3

Home runs by Jim Rice and Fred Lynn and a two-run single by Jerry Remy paced Boston's victory over Cleveland. Andre Thornton connected for the Indians.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 4

Jorge Orta slammed two home runs while Ralph Garr and Wayne Nordhagen hit one apiece to power Chicago past Toronto.

Texas Sports Briefs

Texas League

By The Associated Press
Dave Stewart and Larry Biggerstaff combined for a five-hit shutout performance and Mickey Hatcher and Marv Garrison provided the offensive punch Wednesday night as San Antonio defeated Midland 10-0 in a Texas League baseball game.

In other Texas League action, El Paso defeated Amarillo 6-3, Arkansas topped Shreveport 8-6 and the Tulsa-Jackson clash was postponed because of wet grounds.

Hatcher slammed a two-run homer in the second inning and a two-run double in the third inning. Garrison contributed a bases loaded triple in the seventh.

Bill Ewing collected three hits in four trips to the plate, including a two-run, tie-breaking homer for El Paso. Brian Greer had three hits in a losing cause for Amarillo.

Greg Wilkes was the loser in more ways than one. He argued that a home run hit off him in the sixth inning was foul and was ejected from the game.

Leon Durham had four hits for Arkansas. John Dean gave Shreveport an early 3-1 lead with a three-run homer in the third inning.

Dan O'Brien was credited with the victory and Ryan Kurosaki got a save. Bob Wiesmiller, one of five Shreveport pitchers, took the loss.

UI Recruits

FORT WORTH (AP)—A long-standing friendship between two coaches played a key role in the decision of two Texas prep basketball stars to attend the University of Illinois.

Despite competition from some of the big names in college basketball — Kentucky, UCLA, Texas — Illinois Coach Lou Henson signed All-American James Griffin and teammate Cetus Hubbard to national letters of intent Wednesday.

Their coach, Bob Hughes of Dunbar High School in Fort Worth, joined his players, their mothers and Henson at the ceremony.

"Our friendship dates back to the year one," said Hughes. "Lou was at Hardin-Simmons in Abilene then. He was recruiting a guard and a cornerman from my 1963 state championship team (at I.M. Terrell High School).

"Even when I had nothing (in player talent), Lou and Mrs. Henson would stop by when they came through here on vacation. We would just talk about things like coaching changes and players. Our paths crossed so many times."

Hughes said he is a father-figure to Griffin and Hubbard.

"I'm that to 15 varsity players and 25 JV players and 30 ninth graders too," he said. "This is the way it's always been done."

Hughes said Griffin had 200 college offers when they stopped counting.

"Obviously, there are a number of them you can automatically eliminate. That's when you get down to the heavyweights. Then you have to consider coaching style, personnel, section of the country, community commitment to basketball, the conference, exposure, curriculum and alumni groups.

"I lean toward Lou because I know him and my players he coached before rated him very high," said Hughes. "Some of my players have gone elsewhere and rated the coach low. We don't go back that way again."

Hughes said if he had a son, he would recommend that he play basketball for Henson.

"I trust the man as a coach and as a friend. But, on the other hand, I'd never follow a player to go anywhere."

Hughes said he would miss Griffin, named top player in the state by the Texas Sports Writers Association, and Hubbard.

"I'll probably cry a lot next season, but you can only use them four years and then you have to give them up," said Hughes.

However, he said he has three other players who may be as good as Griffin and Hubbard by graduation time.

Boxing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Augustin Estrada of El Paso upset favored Abraham Perez of Los Angeles, knocking him out at 2:33 of the third round of a scheduled 10-round junior welterweight fight Wednesday night.

The 135½ pound Estrada, 28, had lost his last four bouts. But he decked Perez once in the second round and three times in the third. The third knockdown is an automatic technical knockout under Nevada rules.

Perez, who weighed 141, had previously been knocked out just once, by junior welterweight contender Monroe Brooks.

Shelby's Woes

By The Associated Press
Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf had worked hard to recruit 6-foot-11 center Rudy Wood and he wasn't about to lose him to a hit-and-run driver Wednesday when Wood inked his national letter of intent — on the hood of a car alongside a busy highway.

So Metcalf stood at the shoulder of the highway between Bryan and College Station while the highly-sought All-American center from Bryan signed.

"Coaches are more expendable than All-American centers," joked Metcalf as he shielded Woods from the traffic. Woods, who was in a hurry to get out of town for an all-star game in Philadelphia, averaged 22 points and 15 rebounds per game for Bryan last season.

Elsewhere in the Southwest Conference on national signing day Wednesday, NCAA third-place finisher Arkansas raided South Bend, Ind., for a top prospect, NIT champion Texas drew a blank and Illinois swept away a big blue chip prospect from Fort Worth.

And Texas?

"Our recruiters eat and sleep in the best hotels, but we still don't have anybody," quipped Texas Coach Abe Lemons. The Longhorns were looking for a big post man to go with their talented returnees.

North Texas State signed 6-7 Victor Mitchell of Amarillo.

Texans Bow

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The Tulsa Oilers pulled even in their Central Hockey League playoff series by overpowering the Fort Worth Texans 4-1 Wednesday night.

The best-of-seven semifinal series will resume in Fort Worth Saturday night.

Red Laurence scored for Tulsa while the Texans were two men short, as a result of two brawls early in the first period. Brian Hill and Ralph Stewart padded the Oilers margin in the second.

Doug Rombough spoiled the shutout bid of Oilers goalie Mike Belhumeur at 2:45 of the final period, but Scott Garland came back with Tulsa's fourth goal.

Dallas Falls

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Salt Lake Golden Eagles, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven series with Dallas, out-shot the Black Hawks but needed a double overtime to clinch a 4-3 win in the Central Hockey League playoffs Wednesday night.

Dave Elenbaas of Dallas had a remarkable 55 saves for the evening as Salt Lake fired off 59 shots to the Black Hawks' 30.

The winning goal was by Rick Bourbonnais at 18:18 in the second overtime period. The Eagles and the Black Hawks square off again Friday in Salt Lake.

The Eagles began the evening's scoring with back-to-back goals 21 seconds apart.

SPC Slates Clinic

LEVELLAND (Special)—South Plains College will host a track coaching clinic Friday, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

On hand will be four-time Olympian George Young, who will speak on running the 800 and mile. Brownfield coach James Morris will speak on building a strong team around a distance program, and SPC athlete Larry Sims will talk on the relationship between runner and coach, and overcoming weather problems in this area.

Registration fee is $1, and the clinic is open to both men's and women's teams and coaches.

Knicks Pepper Cavs 132-114

By The Associated Press
The home-court advantage doesn't mean a thing if the visiting team is hitting 61 percent of its shots.

That's the formula the New York Knicks used Wednesday night to beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 132-114 at Richfield, Ohio, in the opener of their first-round National Basketball Association playoff series.

"That was a great ball game, one of the best this team has played all season long," said Coach Willis Reed after enjoying his team's explosive offensive display that featured 41 points by center Bob McAdoo and 16 apiece by Earl Monroe and Spencer Haywood.

"When the shots fall," added Reed, "a lot of things work. This is a great shooting ball club and when two or three guys get going . . ."

He didn't have to finish the sentence. Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch knew exactly what he was talking about.

"It was a long night at the OK Corral," he said. "They never did have a cold streak. What's impressive is they got up 12 points and just continued to take it easy and work on offense. If New York plays this well, they'll not only be tough for us, they'll be tough for everybody. That's a tough team to defeat."

Forward Campy Russell led Cleveland with 21 points and reserve guard Terry Furlow scored 20.

Bullets 103, Hawks 94
Washington built a 75-57 lead in the third period and hung on to beat Atlanta, getting 14 points from reserve guards Larry Wright and Charles Johnson in the fourth quarter to turn back a Hawks rally.

"They were coming at us pretty good," said Washington Coach Dick Motta, who saw the lead dwindle to six points in the fourth quarter. "With 7 minutes to go we slowed up too much, got a little cautious. It was a natural thing, but we shouldn't have played against the clock so soon."

Told that it had not been a pretty game, Motta said, "I don't think you'll see any Atlanta game that's pretty. If they played in a dark alley, they'd be arrested. It was hard-nosed basketball, no place for the timid or weak at heart."

Bob Dandridge led Washington with 20 points despite sitting out the final period because of a recurrence of a pinched nerve in his neck.

Sonics 102, Lakers 90
At Seattle, Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar picked up his fifth personal foul 30 seconds into the fourth quarter and the Sonics ahead 73-68.

He sat out the next five minutes, during which time the Sonics stretched the lead to nine points. The Lakers could come no closer than five after that as Sonics center Marvin Webster scored seven of his team's last 15 points.

Gus Williams led the Sonics with 23 points and Webster and Fred Brown added 19 points apiece. Abdul-Jabbar topped Los Angeles with 26.

City's Top Six

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
If anyone has doubts that this year's Estacado Matador track team has arrived, forget them.

The Matadors are alive, well and leading six events in this week's city's top six high school track standings.

Estacado, a little late in blossoming this year, took a two-event lead over Monterey in the chase for track supremacy in the Hub. And with only a couple of weeks left before the district meets get under way, it would appear Estacado may hold that lead.

Estacado, which coach Percy Hines says could be on its way to yet another District 3-AAA title, has an ever so slight lead in both relays, the 440 and mile. In the sprint relay, the lightning fast Matadors have posted a 42.9, while in the mile race a 3:26.0 is still their best showing this year.

Dunbar, a team stricken with every kind of illness except maybe wye flu, trails Estacado by a little more than half a second in the sprint race and one-tenth of a second in the mile relay. By district time, the two races could be quite interesting.

John Jrd, coach of the Panthers, said Dunbar's an excellent chance to catch Estacado in the mile relay on a "hot day" — and that doesn't mean weather-wise either.

"We got the potential to run in the low 2 if everyone puts it together on the same day," Ford said. "It's possible."

Hopfully, he said, that will be next week at the District meet here in Lubbock.

Until the Panthers do overtake rival Estacado — if indeed they can — they will have to be content with leading the city in two events, the discus and the shot put. Billy Don Hardaway, an all-purpose athlete, also surprised everyone by moving up to fourth in the long jump, leaping 5-8 1/4 on his first try ever in varsity competition.

Asked why Hardaway, who hasn't reached the 180-foot distance in the discus yet—his best is 166-7—has yet to reach longer distances this year, Ford replied: "He hasn't had any competition yet. Wait until he gets to Austin, then look out. That ring is suited to the way he throws."

Todd Parsons, another in the long line of Estacado sprinters, came within a shade of moving into the state's top times in the 120-yard hurdles by stepping off a 14.1 last week. Parsons, who also ranks third in the 330-hurdles among the city's high steppers with a 40.6, has also stepped in to run a leg on the EHS sprint relay.

In another surprise move last week, Estacado's Preston Davis moved past Monterey's Greg Iseral for the lead in the 440-yard dash. Davis, who Hines says will break the 50-second barrier in the next couple of weeks, ran a 50.4, while Iseral's top remains at 50.7.

However, the MHS quartermiler has been hampered with a leg injury since the city meet two weeks ago.

Just a tenth of a second behind Iseral is Joseph Moore of Estacado, another quarterman Hines predicts has the potential of a sub-50 outing.

Estacado's Freddie Ivory continues to lead the town in the long jump with a 23-1.

Matador Michael Sims, along with teammate Kenzie Burrell and Dunbar's Jerry Isaacs, lead the city in the 160-yard dash with identical 9.8s.

Monterey's assault on the city continues to come from high jumper Chuck Perry, halfmiler Dave Yates, pole vaulter David Campsey and miler Curtis Conaway.

Yates was the only Plainsman able to improve his time last week, running a 2:00.1 in his specialty. He dropped his previous best time by a second.

Perry remains at 60.9, eighth best in the state and Campsey's 14-foot vault is still his top performance so far.

Conaway, who has led the city's milers since the first gun was fired, won the 3,000 meter run at the Texas Relays last week in a time of 8:40.1.

ABC, As Usual, Holding All Baseball Cards

By HOWARD SMITH
AP TV Sports Writer

Baseball is back on the nation's TV screens and ABC, as usual, is holding all the cards.

This is the third year of baseball's four-year deal with ABC and NBC. ABC gets the Monday night games, the All-Star Game and the league playoffs. NBC gets Saturday afternoons and the World Series.

Plotting abounds for the next contract. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, eyeing the extraordinary deal the National Football League recently extracted from the three networks, is thinking up ways to get some of that money for baseball. And CBS, shut out of the current contract, plans to get its own into baseball next time around.

Meanwhile, both ABC and NBC have made some changes for this season's coverage. ABC has 18 regular-season dates, up from 16, and will be going to regionalization more than last year, televising three games on many occasions.

Howard Cosell, Keith Jackson and newcomer Don Drysdale, the former Dodger pitching ace, form the network's first team. Bob Uecker has been demoted to the second team along with Al Michaels and Bill White. When the three games, White and a play-by-play man to be named later will work the third one. Jim Lampley gets a tryout as the third play-by-play guy this Monday night. ABC will mix up the starting time for its games from the current 7:30 CT to 7 in June.

But the big things in ABC's favor are a couple of contract clauses which state that (a) no other games will be televised anywhere on Monday nights, and (b) the network may televise a team playing on the road back to its home market from three to five times a year.

Exclusivity on Monday nights and the "carry-back" rule both help ABC boost its ratings. Obviously, ratings will be better if there is no local competition and better still if the home team is being shown.

NBC has no such luxuries. The Saturday afternoon network game must compete in many markets with the local team. For example, last Saturday in New York local viewers had the Yankee game, the Met game and the Baltimore-Milwaukee game on NBC to choose from. There aren't many Brewer fans in New York.

NBC also cannot televise a team on the road back to its home market. The reasoning behind this rule is that teams want to protect their local TV deals. Unlike pro football, baseball gets roughly 50 percent of its TV revenue from contracts clubs sign with local stations, according to Tom Valante, baseball's television director.

Local stations are concerned with their own sponsors. "What they're selling is 'Hey, you're going to sponsor the Yankees,'" says Valante. "Sponsors are buying an identity." If "X" Beer is sponsoring the Dodgers, say, all year locally, it wouldn't do to have a dozen Dodger games on the network sponsored by "Y" Beer.

Also ABC can pick its games about one week in advance while NBC generally has to choose 10 days early.

If NBC is handcuffed by contract restrictions, the network at least can boast about its overall coverage, which is the best in the business. NBC doesn't miss a trick, especially when veteran director Harry Coyle is on hand.

Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek return as the top broadcasting team with a variety of backups including Dick En-berg and Maury Wills, Monte Moore, late of the Oakland A's, Charlie Jones, Wes Parker and, on a spot basis, Hank Aaron.

NBC has 25 dates this season, down one from last year. For the record, ratings on both networks were up slightly during the regular season last year. ABC averaged a 12.5 — meaning 12.5 percent of TV sets in the nation were tuned in — while NBC averaged a 6.7. Ratings always are higher in prime time when more people are at home.

Baseball, as part of its contract arrangement, gets two 30-second promotional spots on network games. This year they will be filled with two sets of promotions built around the theme "Baseball Fever — Catch It."

One set of spots will feature ballplayers giving unusual baseball tips, i.e. the best way to get an autograph, the right way to break in a glove, how to figure a batting average, etc. The second set will be scenes in a ballpark, action sequences, crowd shots, etc. The aim of both spots is to convince people how exciting baseball is and encourage them to get out to the ballpark as often as possible.

Larry Holmes' Trainer Torn By Mixed Emotions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Giachetti is torn by mixed emotions.

As trainer and manager of undefeated Larry Holmes, he has a good-looking young fighter whom he is pointing toward the heavyweight championship of the world. As a long-time idolizer of Muhammad Ali, he prays it won't be at the expense of the legendary two-time titleholder.

"It would be a blood bath — I don't think I could stand to watch it," he said, referring to a possible meeting of his protégé and the aging ex-champion.

"Ali is only 30 per cent of the fighter he used to be. He is like a worn-out punching bag. If he had to meet Ali, Larry would cut him to shreds with his flicking left and those lightning one-two punches.

"What a tragedy it would be for both Ali and boxing in general."

Divergent trails to the undisputed heavyweight crown followed a collision course during the past 48 hours with contract-signing ceremonies in New Orleans and New York.

In New Orleans, Ali signed for a return bout with Leon Spinks, the raw youngster who wrested the crown from him in Las Vegas two months ago, the fight Sept. 15 in New Orleans' Superdome to decide that portion of the heavyweight title recognized by the World Boxing Association and New York State Athletic Commission.

In New York, Ken Norton, recognized as champion by the World Boxing Council, signed to risk his title against Holmes under the promotional aegis of Don King in Las Vegas June 9.

It is presumed that the survivors of these two bouts — unless Ali should decide he has had enough — would meet in some bizarre setting for million of dollars and the universal heavyweight championship.

"If Ali wins, and I think he could, I hope he has enough sense to call it quits," said Giachetti, 38-year-old descendant of Italian immigrants, an Xavier Cugat look-alike from Cleveland who dabbled in big-time auto racing before turning his business talents to the boxing ring.

"You know how a punching bag wears out. You can get one made of finest leather for $200. Yet after continuous flogging, it begins to rip at the seams and the stuffing gets all wadded up inside, and it is useless.

"That's the way Ali has become." The squat, mustachioed manager insisted that Ali has been experiencing a deterioration of his skills since his "rope-a-dope" victory over George Foreman in Zaire Oct. 30, 1974.

"He should have hung up his gloves then," Giachetti said. "But his fierce pride and his need to always be in the limelight drove him on.

"He psyched himself up for 18 years and, when he started losing some of his speed, he refused to accept it. He thought he could stay young forever. His camp followers encouraged him to keep thinking it."

Giachetti said he had been a friend and admirer of Ali for years and, when he noticed the champion's speed and reflexes diminishing, had pleaded with him to quit.

"Ali's hangers-on once threw me out of his hotel room because of the advice I was giving him," the manager said. "I saw him working out in Miami before the Spinks fight. He looked awful — 243 pounds, too heavy, slow. But all the people around him were saying, 'You're looking great, champ. You'll kill him.' They were afraid to tell him differently. Ali was ill-advised."

Giachetti said Ali never had been more than a light hitter but possessed remarkable speed and knowledge.

"He had a way of pulling rabbits out of the hat — one of the most resourceful men I have ever seen," he said. "But over the years he took a terrible body beating from guys like (Joe) Frazier, Norton and Foreman.

"He always protected his face. I have seen him cut only once — by Bob Foster — but his insides must be busted up terribly. It's a miracle that he has any kidneys left. All the scars, bruises and blood are on the inside.

"It makes me sad in the heart to think of him fighting again."

stater from Highland Park, will be playing for the Mustangs. But, under school policy, staff members' children can attend SMU free of tuition charges, so, as one SMU official remarked Wednesday, "We signed one player and got a darn good walkon for free."

SMU plans Friday to sign 6-10 Brad Branson of Edison Junior College in Fort Myers, Fla.

TCU coach Tim Somerville termed his first signing, 6-3 guard Ed Wineinger of Indianapolis, Ind., "the first legitimate major college shooter to join our program since I came here (last spring). Somerville plans to sign at least five and possibly as many as eight players this spring.

Baylor invaded the D-FW Metroplex for a pair of standouts.

Coach Jim Haller signed 6-8 Mike Fennel of Fort Worth Poly (24 points, 18 rebounds). Fennel was the city's top scorer both last year and as a sophomore. A versatile athlete, Fennel has long jumped 23 feet this spring and was also highly recruited by major colleges as a football player.

Also, Baylor signed Andy Seas of Irving, a 6-5 guard (18.7 points, 12.8 rebounds, 63 percent shooting) who has been invited to tour five foreign countries this summer with a U.S. all-star squad.

Although Rice did not announce it, it was reported from Baytown that 6-9 Larry McCage of Baytown Sterling had signed with the Owls.

Houston coach Guy Lewis plans to sign six players before announcing any names, and Texas did not sign any players.

Jockey Ron Turcotte, who is only 5-1, once worked as a lumberjack in his native Canada.

Awaiting Decision Tough On Christian

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A touch of the jitters settled in just when Larry Christian heard the names of some of his possible competitors.

What Christian is "competing for" is the Coronado basketball coaching job vacated last week by Jimmy Fullerton. The assistant of Fullerton for the past three years, Christian knows his assets and his liabilities and only wishes the waiting game would end.

For assets, the 32-year-old Hub City native has worked in the local system 11 years and has earned his reputation in the very same CHS basketball program. Christian's sophomore and junior varsity teams won 99 of 128 games for an 839 percentage in three seasons. Only thing is, that's on the JV level and Christian knows it's his major liability.

"I haven't been a head coach in a Class AAAA school while a lot of the applicants probably have, but I feel confident in my coaching ability and my ability to work with kids," he said.

A quick check in the history books reveals that the local system usually promotes the CHS cage aide to the top spot. Fullerton filled Jerry Hogue's vacancy in 1975 while Hogue replaced Hal Rateliff a year earlier. Does that make Christian a shoo-in?

"I really couldn't say whether it's advantageous or not. I would guess it's nice to be in the system," he said.

Regardless of the school board's appointment, Christian says he plans to stay in the local system. For the Texas Tech grad, Lubbock is home and his goal always has been to teach in the local system. But the waiting period is the tough part. "You can really get apprehensive just sitting around. When Jimmy (Fullerton) arrived at his decision, I became a little nervous in hopes that I would get it. Anything you want something and it's a big opportunity, it's something you find yourself concentrating on," he said.

The Lubbock High grad might as well sit tight for awhile, though. Local schools athletic director Pete Ragus told The Avalanche-Journal Wednesday he didn't expect any announcement from the school board within the next "week or 10 days" but Ragus said it would be good if it could happen that quickly.

"The resumes and telephone calls are coming in over a longer period of time. We expect to receive a few more of them. Approximately 15 or 16 have applied with only two coming from within the system," Ragus said.

Christian knows his competition could toughen every time Ragus' phone rings. The names of Amarillo High coach Barry Arwine, Dimmitt coach Ken Cleveland and Morton boss Dan Smith have swirled through the rumor mill during the week-end.

Cleveland told the A-J the rumors are fallacious and the Dimmitt athletic director showed no intentions of applying for the post. Arwine said he didn't intend to apply but didn't shut the door on any possible discussions.

"I haven't applied, but I think Pete (Ragus) knows me well enough that he can get a hold of me. I'm not saying I wouldn't be interested but I'm not sure whether I would want the job. I don't intend to initiate the contact, but I'm not sure I wouldn't want to explore the possibilities," the Sandies' cage coach said.

Smith, who guided Morton to a Class

AA title in 1977, had not applied Wednesday but talked as if he intended to apply.

"I may phone over and see what it looks like. They have real good facilities at Coronado. Probably as good as anywhere in the state," he said.

Other local coaches who have applied

Astros Nudge Dodgers In Ninth 11-10

By The Associated Press
Despite the multiple personalities his team has shown since opening the season, Houston Manager Bill Virdon figures Wednesday night's exhaustive 11-10 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers comes closest to depicting the true nature of his team.

The Astros lost four in a row to Cincinnati and the first game of the series against the Dodgers. They beat the Dodgers Tuesday night on J.R. Richard's two-hitter and Wednesday finally won a 29-hit slugfest on Jesus Alou's infield grounder in the bottom of the ninth.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati walloped San Francisco and Vida Blue 12-03, St. Louis downed Pittsburgh 5-1, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 8-7 and the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 4-2. San Diego at Atlanta was rained out.

"We've got a pretty good club but it was just a matter of getting things together," Virdon said after the second Astros victory in as many nights against the defending National League champions.

"Now we have the feeling that we can play well with the good clubs," Virdon said.

After Houston relievers Gene Pentz and Ken Forsch allowed the Dodgers to erase a 10-6 Astros lead with a four-run seventh, Astros second baseman Art Howe, pinch-runner Jimmy Sexton and Alou finally combined forces to end it in the ninth.

Howe, who also had a three-run homer in the game, led off the ninth with a double down the leftfield line. Sexton was inserted as a pinch-runner and after he was moved to third on Willie Howard's ground out, scored on Alou's grounder to LA shortstop Bill Russell.

"We might still be playing if Sexton hadn't got such a good jump on the ball," Virdon said of the rookie runner.

"You have to make a decision to go or not to go and you never hesitate," said Sexton, who slid in well ahead of Russell's throw to the plate.

For Alou, who had been out of the major leagues two years until he signed as a free agent with the Astros, it was a comeback.

"I just didn't think at age 34 I was too bad to play in the major leagues," said

Alou, used primarily as a pinch-hitter. "I know now it's not necessary to play every day to be important to the team."

Houston broke from a 3-3 deadlock in the fourth inning on Howe's three-run home run and Bob Watson's two-run double. Los Angeles scored three runs in the fifth on doubles by Steve Garvey and Rick Monday and Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly.

The Astros added two in the fifth on a double by Cesar Cedeno and single by Jose Cruz.

Houston relievers Gene Pentz and Ken Forsch then combined to allow four Dodger runs for a 10-10 deadlock. Pentz loaded the bases by walking Monday and Jerry Grote and allowing a single to Baker.

Forsch then yielded a singles to pinch-hitter Lee Lacy, Davey Lopes and Russell to tie the game and force Houston's ninth inning heroics.

Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda, whose Dodgers opened with a three-game sweep of Atlanta, said "Maybe going home will help us. It was just one of those games."

Reds 12, Giants 3
"My team colors are orange and black, not red and white," said Vida Blue.

Wednesday night, however, his colors were more like black and blue.

Blue made his National League debut — finally — against Cincinnati, of all teams, and the Reds treated him rather rudely even though his picture, biography and pro baseball record are prominently displayed on page 23 of the team's 1978 media guide.

That, of course, was before Commissioner Bowie Kuhn blue-penciled the off-season deal in which the Reds thought they had acquired Blue from the Oakland A's for first baseman Dave Revering and $1.75 million.

The hard-throwing lefthander, who now toils across the bay from Oakland in San Francisco, was tagged for 10 hits and six runs — five earned — in five innings as the Reds pounded out 20 hits and walloped the Giants 12-3.

Joe Morgan, who lives on the same Oakland street as Blue during the off-season, led the Cincinnati attack with two of the Reds' eight doubles and four RBI while Ken Griffey added a triple and two doubles and scored four times. That was more than enough as Bill Bonham hurled a five-hitter for his second straight triumph.

Blue was annoyed when asked how he felt pitching in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium in the uniform of a visiting team rather than what might have been.

"For the last time, that's it," he said. "I'm a San Francisco Giant. No more of that crap, and don't come up with any more of that Bowie Kuhn stuff."

As far as his pitching was concerned, Blue said:

"I only had 10 innings of pitching in the spring (he was involved in a contract hassle with the Giants). My control was off and I was behind."

"That's a tough squad to get your work in against," said Giants Manager Joe Altobelli.

"Welcome to the National League," said Blue.

Cardinals 5, Pirates 1
Bob Forsch hurled a four-hitter, striking out nine, and Mike Tyson doubled home the tie-breaking run in the fourth inning as the Cardinals beat Pittsburgh ace John Candelaria. A two-out throwing error by shortstop Frank Taveras helped the Cardinals snap a 1-1 deadlock. Ken Reitz reached second base on the error and scored on Tyson's double.

Forsch used sliders and change-ups to accompany his fast ball and curve, but said: "The fast ball was still the best pitch. It's the one that sets up the others. If you don't have a good fast ball, nothing else works."

two-run homers and Larry Parrish added a ninth-inning run off Gene Garber on Pepe Frias' double and Andre Dawson's single to withstand a two-run Philadelphia rally in the bottom of the inning.

Cubs 4, Mets 2
Ray Burris' five-hit pitching and two-base errors by New York outfielders Steve Henderson and Bruce Boicclair helped Chicago to victory. The Mets got their runs off Burris in the first inning on Tim Lincecum's single, Henderson's triple and Willie Montanez's sacrifice fly.

But the Cubs got a run in the second on singles by Bobby Murcer, Dave Kingman and Manny Trillo and tied it in the fifth on Henderson's error, a sacrifice and Greg Gross' grounder. In the sixth, Boicclair dropped Murcer's fly ball and Kingman singled for the go-ahead run. Chicago added an insurance run in the eighth when Murcer doubled and Manny Trillo singled.

ABC Regains First Place In TV Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC regained first place in the networks' battle for the prime time television audience the week ending April 9.

At the top of the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings was the annual Academy Awards show, which ABC said drew an audience of more than 70 million.

ABC, thanks to the strong showing at the top, took over first place in the network standings from CBS, No. 1 the week before after 10 weeks in a row in first for ABC.

ABC's rating for the week was 20.8, followed by CBS at 18.7 and NBC at 17.9. NBC now has finished third the last six weeks. The networks calculate the overall ratings to mean in an average prime time minute, 20.8 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC.

Retruns of three of ABC's biggest hits, "Laverne and Shirley," "Three's Company" and "Happy Days" were No. 2, 3 and 4 for the week, and the network's "Cher... Special," a lead-in to the Oscars Monday evening, was fifth.

NBC's best was a Sunday night movie, "A Family Upside Down" starring Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes. It finished sixth. CBS' best was the debut episode of

"The Amazing Spider Man," No. 2 or 19.5 million, all ABC. Movie, "A Family Upside Down," 24.7 or 18 million, and "Project UFO," 23.3 or 17 million, both NBC. "Amazing Spider Man," 22.8 or 16.6 million, CBS, and "M-A-S-H," CBS, "Harvey Korman Show," ABC, and "Charlie's Angels."

Somalian Leader Says 20 Killed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Mohammed Siad Barre of Somalia says rebellious army officers who tried to overthrow him Sunday killed 20 persons and destroyed some vehicles and equipment.

Siad Barre said the loyal forces who quelled the rebellion in a few hours captured the majority of the plotters, and the others were on the run and being hunted down.

Siad Barre's remarks were in a message of congratulations Tuesday night to Somalia's army on its 18th anniversary. The text was broadcast by Mogadishu Radio today.

Critic Never Tires Of Watching Television Programs, Movies

By JERRY BUCK
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since I began writing about television 11 years ago the question I am most often asked is: "Don't you ever get tired of watching that stuff?"

Frankly, no. I am hooked on television, although that doesn't mean I like everything I see.

As part of my work I try to watch every series several times during the year. So I will look in on "Charlie's Angels," "Laverne and Shirley," "Happy Days" and others that are not really to my personal taste.

I must confess, however, I have never been able to sit all the way through "Star Trek and Hutch." Despite my resolve I always end up picking up a book or turning the set off.

I like the movies, particularly such gems this year as "Mary White," "Thaddeus Rose and Eddie," "When Every Day Was the Fourth of July" and "Verona, the USO Girl."

The miniseries have been rather disappointing, except for "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," "The Awakening Land" and "How the West Was Won."

Here are some of the shows I usually watch:

"Lou Grant" — The best newspaper series I've ever seen. Ed Asner's Lou Grant reminds me of a few bosses I've had, and in particular my old mentor in New York, Ed Dennehy, now retired. Incidentally, Ed's son, actor Brian Dennehy, has appeared in the series.

"Black Sheep Squadron" — A man's show, a rarity on TV. It's a part tailor-made for Robert Conrad. I like the male camaraderie among the pilots, but the show has suffered since NBC forced it to broaden its appeal to increase the ratings. And shame on you, NBC, for moving it up against "Hawaii Five-O."

"The Bob Newhart Show" — This series gets my vote as the most improved show of the year. It looked ready for the scrapheap last year. Suddenly, it's fresh and funny and better than ever. Too bad it's now come to an end.

"Hawaii Five-O" — The last of a breed, and still the classiest, most stylized crime show of them all. The stories are bizarre without being unbelievable. Jack Lord's square-jawed prickliness and James MacArthur's just-one-of-the-boys-air play well against each other.

"The Rockford Files" — The best of the tongue-in-cheek, off-the-wall detective shows. The stories have just the right amount of implausibility and James Garner is without peer as the private eye-cum-con man.

"M-A-S-H" — What more is there to say about this great show? Actors come and go, but it just keeps rolling along. Other shows I try to see as often as possible are "Barney Miller," "One Day at a Time," "All in the Family," "Alice," "Three's Company," and "Soap." I think "Little House on the Prairie" is a good show to watch with your children. And the one show I really hate to miss is "60 Minutes."

Business Unable To Aid Carter

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Shortly before President Carter asked business to hold price increases well below the average of the two preceding years it had already given its answer: We cannot.

That verdict was returned in a survey of business people conducted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Gallup organization. It was an overwhelming verdict: 85 percent of the respondents shared the view.

Analyzing the results, Jack Carlson, vice president and chief economist, offered what he believes to be the reason why: Government-caused inflation, such as from higher Social Security taxes.

"The President tended to look around at other people instead of at the government," said Carlson, who in some capacity has served in every administration since the Eisenhower days.

Under Lyndon Johnson he was assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget. He held a similar position under Richard Nixon. Now, appointed by Carter, he serves on a committee examining the accuracy of employment statistics.

Because of government's own actions, he said, 1.8 percent will be added to this year's inflation, bringing Carlson's estimate for the year to 6.6 percent. It could have had a 4.8 percent rate, he said, if it had not added to the problem through the higher minimum wage, farm price supports, the Social Security Tax, and increases in regulations from last year to this.

"If the President were serious he wouldn't propose huge increases in regulatory expenditures," said Carlson, singling out a proposed 26 percent increase in the Environmental Protection Agency budget.

With a budget of $40 billion, he said, such an increase would not just add more than $10 billion, but one-half of 1 percent to the Consumer Price Index.

and fear among businessmen over the possibility of rigid controls.

Ever since Carter said in his pre-election campaign that the president needed standby wage-price controls, some business people have been wary, even though Carter later tried to dispel that wariness.

To some extent, said Carlson, the president might be victimized by the action of Nixon, who publicly disdained controls until the moment he suddenly imposed them on the economy.

Nixon succumbed to extreme economic pressures, Carter, business people seem to fear, might find himself in a similar bind sometime over the next two years.

And as they have already reported in the survey to which Carlson referred, they are not sure they can help him very much. Business, they say, has problems of its own.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

* By United Press International
Today is Thursday, April 13, the 103rd day of 1978 with 262 to follow.
The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Mercury.
The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.

Frank Woolworth, founder of the five-and-dime stores, was born April 13, 1852.

On this day in history:
In 1865, Union Gen. William Sherman took Raleigh, N.C., ending his Civil War

"March to the Sea."
In 1934, in the depths of the Depression, 4.7 million American families were reported to be receiving welfare payments.

In 1941, Russia and Japan signed a five-year neutrality pact.

In 1964, Sidney Poitier became the first black man to win a motion picture "Oscar" as the best actor for the previous year.

A thought for the day:
President Thomas Jefferson said, "When angry, count to 10 before you speak; if very angry, 100."

Orange Firm Fined For Polluting Water

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge has ordered an industrial waste disposal company in Orange County to stop violating water pollution laws and to pay an $11,000 fine, says Attorney General John Hill.

Hill said in a statement Tuesday that he had requested the injunction against Browning Ferris Industries of Texas, Inc., doing business as Industrial Waste Control, Inc., on behalf of the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Hill said the company was enjoined from using pits near Farm 105 and Texas 62 in Bridge City as disposal sites for chemical waste.

Police Organizations, Mayor Oppose Poster

CLEVELAND (AP) — The goal was to combat claims of police brutality by recruiting good, honest officers. The method was a poster showing two policemen, billyclubs in their hands, kicking a prostrate man.

The slogan on the poster says, "Help Stop Police Brutality! Cleveland Police Department Minority Recruitment Unit."

But Mayor Dennis Kucinich and two police organizations believe the poster is offensive and say they will keep it from being used.

Sgt. Alfred Walton, head of the minority recruitment unit, said the poster, printed last week, was designed to entice college graduates and Cleveland school-teachers, unpaid because of budget problems, to join the force.

The heads of the two police organizations claim the posters will polarize the city and damage police morale.

"There have been no proven cases of it (police brutality)," said William McNea, president of the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association.

Business Unable To Aid Carter

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Shortly before President Carter asked business to hold price increases well below the average of the two preceding years it had already given its answer: We cannot.

That verdict was returned in a survey of business people conducted by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Gallup organization. It was an overwhelming verdict; 85 percent of the respondents shared the view.

Analyzing the results, Jack Carlson, vice president and chief economist, offered what he believes to be the reason why: Government-caused inflation, such as from higher Social Security taxes.

"The President tended to look around at other people instead of at the government," said Carlson, who in some capacity has served in every administration since the Eisenhower days.

Under Lyndon Johnson he was assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget.

He held a similar position under Richard Nixon. Now, appointed by Carter, he serves on a committee examining the accuracy of employment statistics.

Because of government's own actions, he said, 1.8 percent will be added to this year's inflation, bringing Carlson's estimate for the year to 6.6 percent. It could have had a 4.8 percent rate, he said, if...

If it had not added to the problem through the higher minimum wage, farm price supports, the Social Security Tax, and increases in regulations from last year to this.

"If the President were serious he wouldn't propose huge increases in regulatory expenditures," said Carlson, singling out a proposed 26 percent increase in the Environmental Protection Agency budget.

With a budget of $40 billion, he said, such an increase would not just add more than $10 billion, but one-half of 1 percent to the Consumer Price Index.

Carlson was not impressed by the implied suggestion that business might match Carter's promise of restricting wage increases of federal white collar workers to salary increases of 5.5 percent.

Federal workers, he said, receive more fringe benefits, distorting any comparison with scales in private enterprise. With fringes included, he said, such a federal increase would come to 9.4 percent.

Still, Carlson said of the president's dangers-of-inflation speech, "I think he was a little more forceful." But quickly following was the commentary: "I'm not sure I would have set him up that way."

That reference was to what other critics also noted: There was not a great deal new in the president's recommendations or proposals or requests, whichever they are to be called.

And yet, advance publicity — including the president's own promise of an important statement — had indicated to some that a firmer, more specific, and more encompassing program was to be announced.

Ironically, while the message did not live up to that promise, it perhaps did raise to some degree the consciousness and fear among businessmen over the possibility of rigid controls.

Ever since Carter said in his pre-election campaign that the president needed standby wage-price controls, some business people have been wary, even though Carter later tried to dispel that wariness.

To some extent, said Carlson, the president might be victimized by the action of Nixon, who publicly disdained controls until the moment he suddenly imposed them on the economy.

Nixon succumbed to extreme economic pressures. Carter, business people seem to fear, might find himself in a similar bind sometime over the next two years.

And as they have already reported in the survey to which Carlson referred, they are not sure they can help him very much. Business, they say, has problems of its own.

Orange Firm Fined For Polluting Water

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge has ordered an industrial waste disposal company in Orange County to stop violating water pollution laws and to pay an $11,000 fine, says Attorney General John Hill.

Hill said in a statement Tuesday that he had requested the injunction against Browning Ferris Industries of Texas, Inc., doing business as Industrial Waste Control, Inc., on behalf of the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Hill said the company was enjoined from using pits near Farm 105 and Texas 62 in Bridge City as disposal sites for chemical waste.

Police Organizations, Mayor Oppose Poster

CLEVELAND (AP) — The goal was to combat claims of police brutality by recruiting good, honest officers. The method was a poster showing two policemen, billyclubs in their hands, kicking a prostrate man.

The slogan on the poster says, "Help Stop Police Brutality! Cleveland Police Department Minority Recruitment Unit."

But Mayor Dennis Kucinich and two police organizations believe the poster is offensive and say they will keep it from being used.

Sgt. Alfred Walton, head of the minority recruitment unit, said the poster, printed last week, was designed to entice college graduates and Cleveland school-teachers, unpaid because of budget problems, to join the force.

The heads of the two police organizations claim the posters will polarize the city and damage police morale.

"There have been no proven cases of it (police brutality)," said William McNea, president of the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association.
