French Neutron

Bourges cast doubt today on reports that France has exploded a neutron bomb, but stopped short of a flat denial, parliamentary sources reported.

In response to a question during an ap-pearance before the French National Assembly's Defense Committee, Bourges said the reports "should not be taken seriously," according to the sources, who asked not to be identified.

The Foreign and Defense ministries declined official comment on the reports, which appeared in two French and two West German newspapers.

In a front-page story, Paris' France-Soir newspaper reported Wednesday that France had exploded a neutron weapon

PARIS (AP) - Defense Minister Yvon at its South Pacific test range, the Mururoa Atoll

It quoted a "senior military officer" as: saying France was still three or four years away from any deployable neutron weapons. It said he described the Mururoa test as a "full-scale laboratory experiment.

The story in France-Soir followed similar reports in the weekly news magazine Le Point.

Other sources expressed doubt that French weapons research had progressed enough for neutron tests and U.S. State Department officials said they were skeptical of the reports.

U.S. Defense Department officials said the United States has set off an undisclosed number of neutrom bombs in underground tests.

Observers noted that Bourges' comment fell short of an outright denial that France has detonated a neutron bomb, but it seemed to support doubts already expressed about the report in France-

The reports generated wide interest because of President Carter's decision to postpone deployment of the controversial weapon with NATO forces in Western Europe.

The Soviets contend the neutron bomb would escalate the arms race, and other critics say it is inhuman because it would kill people with massive doses of radiation with limited damage to buildings. Supporters claim it is needed because it would be a greater deterrent to Soviet invaders in Europe than current tactical

The Australian government said it had no knowledge of the reported French explosion in the South Pacific. A spokesman for the Foreign Affairs Department said today the Australian monitoring station at Alice Springs had not detected any explosion. He added the station is equipped to pick up only underground blasts, not those in the atmosphere.

In Tokyo, the Science and Technology Agency's radioactive supervisor said to-day that Japanese monitors also failed to detect any evidence that France detonated a neutron bomb in the South Pacific. He said his office receives whatever information Japanese agencies pick up on radioactive experiments, including data from the meteorological and maritime agencies, and defense forces.

Although Carter's decision to postpo deployment of neutron weapons drew some criticism in Europe, some Frence officials reacted only by underlining their own independent defense policy. France withdrew from the integrated NATO military command in 1966 and American neutron bombs would not have been stationed on its territory anyway.

"Between the ages of 5 and 15 there are 40 million potential buyers. Independent figures show that 82 percent to 92 percent of all children between the ages of 7 and 11 read comic books.

'And our estimates indicate that for every $1 spent on comic book ads, there are $3 in sales. That amounts to a $200 million product industry each year,"

He said the commission worries especially about a child's first contact with the "free enterprise system." "Children can become very disillusioned with the system and legitimate business should be very concerned," Erxleben said in a telephone interview.

He related a story told by a fellow worker whose daughter had saved for weeks to amass the 95 cents called for by a comic book ad. NBC Pleased With Ratings Of Miniseries

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC expressed pleasure Wednesday with preliminary ratings showing more than half the nation's viewing audience watching "Holocaust" - even though the audience for the show was far smaller than that for ABC's record-breaking "Roots" miniser-

NBC has resisted a comparison of "Roots" with "Holocaust," a four-part documentary drama about the Nazis' campaign against European Jews.

But network officials certainly were aware as they waited for reports on the final Wednesday night chapter of "Holocaust" that it was the last installment of "Roots" which drew the biggest TV audience ever.

In fact, a comparison of the two programs is not necessarily appropriate. Roots" was shown in January, when TV viewing generally is higher. But Paul Klein, NBC's executive vice president for programming, said "Holocaust" was timed to air "before the Passover, the period between Easter and Passover, in a time when Christians and Jews and come together in the spirit of good

A.C. Nielsen Co. figures showed more than half the nation's television audience watching the second chapter of "Holocaust" Monday night, and Tuesday night ratings for three big cities indicated NBC would hold onto that share through Part III.

NBC, quoting the Nielsen survey, said the audience share for "Holocaust" had increased from 43 Sunday to 51 Monday, and the rating from 27.1 to 32.7

"Roots" averaged a 66 share through its early-1977 run.

"Holocaust" got a 57 share in New York City Tuesday night, NBC said, and recorded 53 shares in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Nielsen measures a network's audience actually watching TV at the time in shares and the proportion of all TV sets. including those not in use at the time, in ratings. Thus a 51 share means of all the homes actually watching TV between 9 and 11 p.m. EST Monday, 51 percent were tuned to "Holocaust.

The first episode Sunday evening was the fourth most-watched show of the rating week ended April 16, behind reruns of three rival network shows.

The audience share in New York City Tuesday night was slightly lower than on Monday evening.

The network television broadcast of "Holocaust" this week is causing high school students and teachers to talk about the killing of an estimated 6 million Jews by the Nazis in Germany and other European countries during World War II.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews gave Spencer a $2,145 grant to help him get the new course started. Later, aid came from the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League.

The NEA said the biggest challenge teachers faced: how to develop the unit so ninth graders can analyze, interpret and eventually relate the material to their own lives and sensitivities.

Written materials by young persons during the Nazi era, such as "Anne Frank: Diary of a Young Girl," are used. Half the course materials are outside the holocaust experience, such as Susan Gregory's "Hey, White Girl" - about the on-

Class activities include a mock trial based on the Nuremberg Tribunal as a prelude to a discussion of law and morality and a discussion of student values how they would have behaved under holocaust circumstances.

The NEA-affiliated New Jersey Education Association is cooperating with the ADL in field testing a shorter 2-to 4-week version of the holocaust unit into 32 junior and senior high history and social studies courses in Vineland and Teaneck schools.

The Teaneck student body is 25 percent black and has an even percentage of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

It quoted a "senior military officer" as: saying France was still three or four years away from any deployable neutron weapons. It said he described the Mururoa test as a "full-scale laboratory experiment."

The story in France-Soir followed similar reports in the weekly news magazine Le Point.

Other sources expressed doubt that French weapons research had progressed enough for neutron tests and U.S. State Department officials said they were skeptical of the reports.

U.S. Defense Department officials said the United States has set off an undisclosed number of neutrom bombs in underground tests.

Observers noted that Bourges' comment fell short of an outright denial that France has detonated a neutron bomb. but it seemed to support doubts already expressed about the report in France-

The reports generated wide interest because of President Carter's decision to postpone deployment of the controversial weapon with NATO forces in Western Europe.

The Soviets contend the neutron bomb would escalate the arms race, and other critics say it is inhuman because it would kill people with massive doses of radiation with limited damage to buildings. Supporters claim it is needed because it would be a greater deterrent to Soviet invaders in Europe than current tactical

The Australian government said it had no knowledge of the reported French explosion in the South Pacific. A spokesman for the Foreign Affairs Department said today the Australian monitoring sta tion at Alice Springs had not detected any explosion. He added the station is equipped to pick up only underground blasts, not those in the atmosphe

In Tokyo, the Science and Technology Agency's radioactive supervisor said to day that Japanese monitors also failed to detect any evidence that France detonated a neutron bomb in the South Pacific He said his office receives whatever in formation Japanese agencies pick up on radioactive experiments, including data from the meteorological and maritime agencies, and defense forces.

Although Carter's decision to po deployment of neutron weapons drew some criticism in Europe, some Frence officials reacted only by underlining their own independent defense policy. France withdrew from the integrated NATO military command in 1966 and American neutron bombs would not have been stationed on its territory anyway.

A Secret Service agent asked what was wrong and the Star reported that this is what followed: "I want a trophy,' moaned Amy, whereupon the AMY CARTER agent trotted over to the table, sneaked the sparkly gilt first place trophy away in his jacket, then gallantly gave it to the First Daughter. Mary Hoyt, first lady Rosalynn Carter's press secretary, called the story "preposterous. It's totally false." Secret

House Readies Stiff Controls On Lobbyists

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House is preparing tougher legislation over groups which attempt to influence legislation by lobbying congressmen and executive branch officials.

A final vote was expected today on what could be the first revision of lobbying laws since 1946 - a bill that would tighten restrictions and reporting requirements for lobbyists.

As it began reviewing the bill Wednesday, the House endorsed rules which would force lobbying groups to reveal if they instigated mass mailings or other attempts to drum up "grass roots" support.

Any large-scale use of lobbying solicitations, even if undertaken by a separate organization, would be part of information reported quarterly under the proposed law.

John Shattuck, who heads the American Civil Liberties Union's Washington office said the plan would "significantly curtail the First Amendment right of citizens to communicate with their elected ntatives But supporters of the amendment cited tations which they said have collected thousands of names and addresses of persons who can be counted on to drum up support for particular issues. Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., offered

Burial Allowance May Be Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) - The burial allowance for wartime veterans would increase from $250 to $350 under legislation approved by the a House Veterans Affairs subcommittee.

But the committee action Wednesday was opposed by Carl T. Noll, the Veteran's director of memorial affairs and national cemetery system. He said the historical purpose of the allowance was to prevent burial of war veterans in a potter's field. He said federal assistance programs such as Social Security made that an unlikely possibility.

"They just did great this year at the state level," Superintendent Ed Irons said of the city's high school students. He said the list of youngsters qualifying for national competition is "more than quadruple that of past years."

Previously, students invited to national skill contests have had to pay their own way. Even though the school board has had a policy authorizing the district administration to use discretion in funding such trips, budgetary restraints generally have prevented the district from picking up the tab.

But this year will be different.

We certainly believe in rewarding students who receive the honor of qualifying for national-level competition," Irons

He recommended that the school board put up about $2,900 to send nine local high school students - chosen recently at various state-level contests - to national events sponsored by such groups as Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), the national Health Occupations Students Association (HOSA) and the national Office Education Association

Those leadership groups are considered "intracurricular" functions because of their close involvement in respective vocational programs.

However, Irons said the school system to national events of "extracurricular" clubs, such as foreign-language clubs and the National Forensic League.

While those are "very worthwhile or- way. ganizations," Irons said, "I'm afraid that when we start sending club groups to the national level, there'll be no stopping."

Seminar For Voters Scheduled Sunday

The Democratic Party will sponsor a voter participation seminar at 5 p.m. Sunday at New Hope Baptist Church, 2002 Birch St.

The meeting is designed to explain how to use voting machines and to encourage participation in precinct, county, state and national party conventions.

To Funding Of Trip

said the district should not fund trips that take place when school is not in session.

They emphasized, however, that students in extracurricular activities should be encouraged to attend national contests on their own.

We've got to draw the line somewhere," school trustee Brad Crawford said. "But we certainly ought to encourage them to raise the money themselves so they can go.

The school board's action will allow five students to attend the DECA Career Development Conference in Washington, D.C., on May 7-12. They are Ricky Pool and Steve West of Coronado High, and Brenda Brooks, Ray Foster and Brian Boswell of Monterey.

Also, the district will pay the way for Rhonda Spelce of Monterey to attend the HOSA national contest in Oklahoma City

The district also will be sending Maria Bursiaga of Dunbar and Leaha Morrison and Glenna Haynes of Coronado to the national OEA competition in Detroit April 27 to May 3. Teachers also will be sent to accompany those students. Some high school students have been invited to the national contest of the National Forensic League, to be held during the summer. They will be required to pay their own way. Irons said he expects more students in future years to qualify for national competition. He attributes the increase in such honors to the school board's decision two years ago to pay the way for students to compete at regional and state levels. In other business today, the board authorized the Monterey High School jazz ensemble to accept an invitation by the International Jazz Tour to participate in the fourth annual Hawaiian Christmas should not pay the way for students to go- Jazz Tour. The tour is scheduled from Dec. 26, 1978, to Jan. 1, 1979.

The school board also designated Sept. Panhandle South Plains Fair. Half of the city's schools will dismiss students at 2 p.m. on each of those days.

In addition, the board appointed Albert Perez and Beverly Parsley to the public responsibility committee of the Lubbock Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center.

Is There Life After 65?

DEPENDING UPON how you look at it, or who is doing the looking, a new delayed retirement bill sent to Congress by the White House either will ease the strain on the Social Security fund and enrich the economy, or, it will limit the advancement for younger workers, threaten job security of older employes and contribute to the unem-

A study by Sears, Roebuck is being cited in support of the latter. Suspending its mandatory retirement program for a year, Sears found that 45 percent of the 731 employes scheduled to retire in January of this year chose not to.

PROJECTING THE effect for a five-year period, the firm estimates that job openings would be reduced by almost 7,000 and promotion curtailed to an even greater extent. Something to think about, certainly.

But there are also some impressive statistics on the other side of the argument.

Social Security Administration tabulations suggest that the long-term trend is not toward later retirement but to earlier. In the 10-year period from 1965-75, 85 percent of retirements were taken before age 65.

IF EARLY RETIREMENT is indeed the in and continuing-thing, then why have the nation's older citizens, through a number of organizations, pressured so energetically for later retirement?

The answer, as indicated by the findings of a recent Roper poll, is freedom of choice.

Opposition to mandatory retirement "reflects more the desire to decide one's own retirement age rather than a wish to keep on working past 65," pollsters concluded.

AMERICANS TODAY at birth have an average life expectancy of 72.8 years. And among those who reach the age of 65, men can expect to live an additional 13.2 years and women 17.5 years.

Retiring the retirement age is certain to have a far-reaching effect on American society, far beyond the work force and working conditions as such. But it isn't likely to be as dire or dramatic as predictions currently would have it.

It's likely that the trend toward early retirement and the desire of a minority of older individuals to continue on the job will tend to balance each other.

Life may not begin at 65 these days, but it's certainly far from over.

WASHINGTON-One sighs. The word from New Haven is that the party planned by Alex Kwon, the son of a Korean steel magnate, has been called off. The spirit of Great Gatsby succumbs to stuffiness triumphant. Puritanism rides

Perhaps you saw the story. It seems that young Kwon, a senior at Yale, decided to throw a firstclass party.

He arranged for the use of the Yale Commons, the university's largest dining room, and planned to turn it into a gambling casino for the night. He had 10,000 fake French 500-franc notes printed up; he ordered blackjack and baccarat tables from New York.

His Very Important Guests were to be given 25,000 francs as they came in; others were to be anded 1,000 francs only.

Kwon let it be known that if any guest managed to win a million francs in play money, Kwon would give him a Mercedes or a Cadillac as a

THE YOUNG gentleman also arranged for a rodigious spread. His menu called for roast pig and broiled lobster, prepared by ten Japanese

A dozen bartenders were to preside at four bars, where two truckloads of liquor, imported beer and Chateau La Fitte Rothschild champagne would be provided. The party was to cost $40,000.

Alas, once the invitations had gone out to a thousand guests, gossip about this sumptuous could no longer be contained. Yale's esident-designate, A. Bartlett Giamatti, had the good sense to wash his hands of the matter completely:

"I have nothing to do with the party and I don't want to have anything to do with it.

Other authorities felt compelled to pontificate. Yale's Secretary Henry Chauncey found Kwon's party appalling.

"IT IS FROM the past, and there is no longer any place for it. It is silly and gaudy.

"If I'd known about this in advance, I would have asked him, 'Is this really the way you want to make your mark at Yale? All that money could have been used to help people less fortunate than These murmurs of disapproval proved too much for Kwon. He had wanted only "to do the extraordinary in an unusual fashion in an unlikely

Nothing of the sort could be condoned at Yale. He scrubbed the party and cancelled his truckloads of booze.

What about all this? The story provokes some melancholy reflections. Brother Chauncey's homiletic exposition is at least as old as Matthew 26:9. Whether one is dealing with precious ointment in an alabaster box or with a barrel of good German beer, some pietistic fellow is certain to object that it could have been sold for much and given to the poor.

IT SEEMS NEVER to occur to the critics that Kwon's $40,000 was not to vanish in thin air.

It would have gone, quite precisely, to persons less fortunate than he-to cooks, waiters, busboys, bartenders and musicians; to the suppliers of flowers, lobsters, suckling pigs and engraved invitations; to dozens of honest artisans and laborers who earn their living in ways that Brother Chauncey may not often think about.

Underlying our puritanical objection to extravagance is the Calvinistic notion that pleasure and sin are closely related. The notion is deep-rooted in the American psyche.

It dominates much of our public welfare system. Public housing projects are designed to be unspeakably dreary, lest the beauty of gardens corrupt the souls of the poor.

THERE ARE TIMES, honest to goodness, when the country loses its sense of humor and takes itself much too seriously.

We fall into spasms of morality and find a certain complacent pleasure of our own in going tuttut-tut at the good-time Gatsbys of this world. But it is the Gatsbys, or the Kwons, who provide the delicious seasoning of folly that sparks the humdrum world around us.

Doubtless there are better ways for a senior student to make his mark at Yale, but there is something to be said for the one superlative bash.

Memory works that way.

The mind returns to the single occasion—to the one flower, one butterfly, one kiss, one perfect day of field or stream, one forgettable explosion of fireworks on a summer night.

Remember Alex Kwon's casino back in '78? It might have been remembered longer, and more lovingly, than this year's Yalies will ever remember who served as president of the class.

The facts, however, are something else, and if it requires some subtlety to bring them forth, then the effort should not be avoided simply because it is a difficult one. It is unfortunate in a way that the President's

African jaunt coincided with the maudlin observance of the tenth anniversary of Martin Luther King's assassination. A STRANGER ON earth would think from reading the eastern press that King liberated his race from the white man, whereas a steady liberation for a hundred years prior to the Civil War has been the true story.

No other country shed brothers' blood in such a homeric struggle that resulted in the gradual upleveling of a minority and captive race. A worse disservice than denigrating what the Western World, under American leadership has accomplished for others, is the preachment and political enactment of the simplitude called majority rule. It never existed in the unalloyed forn: as Carter and Ambassador Young would make foreigners believe.

This country had to be convinced, and conditions had to be right, before it made sense to give votes to housewives who at first were not in professional or public life, or to 18-year-olds until we had proof of their maturity, or even to people so poor and illiterate that they would sell their votes for a basket of apples.

The contract has no delivery date, no number of bookstores, no geographic area, no minimum number of copies, no method for verifying delivery. You check with your friendly competitors, who also have received no sample catalog, no return call, no orders.

You call the local Better Business Bureau, learn your experience is typical. "A BBB survey of 100 colleges on the list turned up not one booksiore buyer who remembered receiving the catalog, despite the repeated mailings claimed by the company," says a BBB investigator.

"The promoter has been doing this for three years. The case was referred to law enforcement agencies but none have acted." Now you know you should have:

. Insisted that you mail the check. (Personal pick-up avoids the use of the mails and may evade the postal inspectors.)

Another phony promotion involves advertising discount cards. Most of these discount card plans are completely honest and good for the merchant and for us, the consumers. But some are crooked, smear a great theory by their execution of a program prompting participation by merchants (usually small ones) in a customer discount plan and then never following through on any promise. The usual gyp: you, a local businessman, pay several hundred dollars to be listed in a directory that is never published or on a discount card that is never printed and distributed * CHECK THE TRACK record of the company behind the promotion. In what cities has the firm recently operated? Get names, addresses and do inquire about their experiences.

. Don't rely completely on the credibility of the local sponsor. * Weigh the cash outlay in terms of probable results. How much more business will the promotion need to create in order to pay for itself? What other advertising costs this much? Have shops similar to yours found this promotion worthwhile?

A THIRD SWINDLER in this category is the ad space broker who not only lifts your classified ad from a general circulation newspaper but also then gives you a phony pitch on why you should advertise with his particular outfit.

Counselor Helps Dying Patient

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) - When doctors gave Sandy Spencer three to nine months to live, she knew they could do little to help her with cancer. But she found Marianne McElrath, a counselor for the dying, to aid her emotionally.

"They put a time limit on it," said Mrs. Spencer of her doctors. "I just bluntly gave up. Marianne pulled me through it. Deep inside, I hadn't given up, but I didn't realize it."

In her office in the psychiatric unit of Jamestown General Hospital, Miss McElrath described how the dying need help from other people.

"Here they are dying physically so they are feeling isolated," she said. "To feel socially isolated would be more than they could handle. What people have done historically to the dying patient is isolate them. Death has been literally a five-let-

But she does attach herself to her patients, offering help of all sorts. She has acted as a go-between for Mrs. Spencer when she was reluctant to ask for pain killers against the pain of her cancer.

Adviser, persuader, ready ear, buffer, advocate - the counselor takes on many roles. But they all might be impossible without friendship.

Mrs. Spencer noted, "I found it hard the first couple of times to open up to Marianne until I knew her as a person

"If the friendship comes out of it," Miss McElrath added, "that's a real fringe benefit." Mrs. Spencer confides easily with her husband, Bob. But still, she said, she needed a sounding board for those diffi-cult times: "With Marianne it was more or less a trial period. I worked out how I was going to say things to him through her. There were a lot of things I wanted to say to my husband but I didn't know

"Doctors are reluctant to talk about something they really don't have answers for," said her physician, who asked not to be identified. "We get frustrated by not having anything to do therapeutically. "It's not a lack of understanding or concern that causes some doctors to keep emotionally distant from a dying patient," the physician added. "It involves their egos."

A nurse who has worked with Mrs. Spencer explained that such counseling is a new idea and some of the older ductors have not adjusted to it.

rter's Economic Goals Evaluated By Experts

NEW YORK (AP) — Has President Carter promised too much, perhaps even been inconsistent, in saying he would work simultaneously for less inflation, ed growth and smaller oil im-

Nothing mutually exclusive about such goals, economists agree. But perhaps, said some of those questioned about the triad, the improper execution might make all three goals unattainable.

Questions concerning the goals were put to several prominent economists. Here are their answers:

Q. Would not limiting oil imports slow domestic economic growth?

A. By itself, yes, but we must consider the total energy-anti-inflation program rather than just one aspect of it. Some say, for example, that if inflation were re-strained growth might be spurred, regardless of the higher oil cost resulting port restrictions.

Jack Carlson doubts this. The chief nist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce claims passage of the House energy bill - preferred by the president would cut the 1981 economy by 1.2 per-

Carlson, who insists his figures have remained unchallenged by anyone in the House, maintains the loss in Gross National Product would be 2 percent, or $51 billion, by 1985. And continue in that then, he continues, it would also mean disposable income would be less than it might have been, and that the my would be producing 1 million jobs than otherwise would be cre-

Q. But what about those offsets?

A. We must consider them, we must consider the entire package. Walter Heller, former chief economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, believes industry might learn to be more energy-efficient.

Group Sure Of Ship's Location

AUSTIN (AP) - State archeologists are "95 percent" certain they know where two ships from LaSalle's 1695 expedition sank off the Texas coast and plan to spend $70,000 to find out. 'We're 95 percent sure they're in Mata-gorda Bay." state marine archeologist Barto Arnold said Tuesday.

Arnold will head a 12-member crew that will use two 17th Century maps and other period information to locate the historic sites, believed to be just off Matagorda Island near Port O'Connor ome archeologists believe the French explorer came ashore further south, near Port Aransas, but Arnold says there's no question one map describing the landing refers to Matagorda Bay.

"The Cardenas map was drawn by the engineer of the Spanish expedition sent to find LaSalle," the archeologist said. "It shows the site of Fort Saint Louis and there's no doubt it's Matagorda Bay. The Spanish recovered a fleur-de-lis from one LaSalle's settlement had been wiped out by Indians and disease before the Spanish, anxious about rival French set-tlements, arrived. LaSalle's venture led to stepped-up Spanish settlement north of the Rio Grande.

A second map of the site was sketched by LaSalle's engineer, Minet, and shows a shipwreck at the bay's entrance, Pass Cavallo.

"The captain apparently got lost and didn't know where the entrance was. He went aground on a sandbar and the ship broke up in a storm. This is a treacherous pass where many ships have gone down,' Arnold said.

"We first have to find the exact sites," Arnold said.

Using a device to measure magnetic fields, researchers will fly helicopters over the area to pick up indications of heavy metal under the surface. Later work will include underwater excava-

The project will cost about $70,000, including $28,000 from the Texas Historical Commission and $28,000 from the National Register.

Arnold believes the 300-ton ship sunk in the pass is under 80 feet of water and sand, while a smaller, 8-ton vessel lies under only 5 to 6 feet of water.

BOSTON (AP) - Fifty Peruvian textiles ranging from a complex triple cloth woven around 800 to 600 B.C. to fine tapestry weavings created after the 16th-century Spanish conquest will be on exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts here through June 11.

The intricately woven textiles, striking for their color and patterns, include ponchos, mantles, skirts, shirts and bags as well as larger ceremonial labrics used to lecorate temples and wrap mummies.

Q. Will the Carter energy-anti-inflation program work?

A. Weidenbaum: "It's an empty shell of a program. It will take more." He would like more involvement by the Federal Reserve, and a reduction of regulatory costs, among other things.

A. Heller: "We should

SEATTLE (UPI) - If you must hate something, pick on a troll.

Since he retired a decade ago, Arthur Stavig and his wife have been "crusading" for the trolls of Norwegian folklore. So far, he's reached more than 60,000 youngsters.

"Instead of telling kids stories which direct hatred, dislike or ill-feelings toward their fellow man, the stories direct all those venomous traits at the trolls, which are creatures of fantasy," Stavig,

'My grandfather told me these stories when I was a child in South Dakota," Stavig said. "Quietly delivered along with the stories are the lessons of good moral behavior, how to become a good citizen, remembering to brush your teeth and so

In his presentations to schoolchildren, Stavig is aided by about 40 troll mannequins he fashioned by hand to bring his tales to life. The mannequins were fashioned from scraps and discarded stuffed animals, along with glue and paint.

"I made them conform to the mental images I had of them when I listened to the stories as my grandfather told them long ago," Satavig said. "I made them to look like what I imagined they would." Stavig said that about the only troll story that has made its way into children's stories in the United States is the one about the evil creature in the tale of "Three Billy Goats Gruff." 'That one popped out of Norwegian folklore and made it into children's stories worldwide," he said. "The rest of the troll stories have been pretty much neg-

He likes to tell the story of the toothache troll.

"This little fellow is so small he can walk under the crack under your front door," Stavig said. "He enters the children's bedroom and looks into their mouths. If he finds neglected teeth, he's happy. Then he pulls out his little hammers and tiny picks and digs a cave in the tooth, then moves in and sets up house-

Stavig has told his stories in more than 300 presentations to schoolchildren throughout the Pacific Northwest and as far away as Montana and North Dakota. He's also written three books: "The Trolls of Norway,""Grandpa's Troll Stories," and "Trolls — the Whipping Boy of Norwegian Folklore.

A film strip of Stavig and his trolls is being produced in Seattle for nationwide distribution, he said.

"I guess my wife and I feel as if we're on a kind of crusade," Stavig said. "These are stories which should be known to kids everywhere because they don't direct hatred or venom at other people, but rather engender a dislike for bad habits and bad behavior.

Paper Company Plans Cutback

SPRINGHILL, La. (AP) - The International Paper Co. plant, the only major industry in this north Louisiana town, plans to cut production by one third and lay off 450 employees.

A company spokesman said Monday the cutback, which goes into effect July 3, is permanent.

Merchants feared it was just the first step in closing the 40-year-old paper mill. The spokesman said International has no plans to shut down the whole plant, just the big machine that makes stock for the manufacture of disposable cups.

However, James D. Wood of New York, the company director of communications, said further evaluations were being made and the "Springhill mill as a whole is a high cost operation and remains a source of continuing concern to the company."

The machine being shut down "is too costly to operate, relative to other capacity to produce similar products available in the company's manufacturing system"

International has 1,600 employees at Springhill, 5,000 statewide.

The company said it will try to place some of the 450 employees, both salaried and hourly, in some other International plants in Louisiana but many will simply

MEDICINAL LEECHES - Harvey Snitman holds a medicinal leech, one of many he offers for sale at his old-time drug store in Chicago. Bloodletting by attaching leeches died out as a medical treatment in the late 1800s, but not entirely according to Snitman. Store Does Lively Business Selling Medicinal Leeches

CHICAGO (AP) - They're wiggly, squiggly bloodsuckers with three razorsharp teeth.

They were important to physicians for thousands of years. And you might remember Humphry Bogart was covered with them in "African Queen."

They're leeches. Bloodletting — either by cutting or by attaching leeches to the body — nearly died out as a medical treatment in the late 1800s. But not entirely. Hirudo Medicinalis - medicinal leeches - are still sold by the hundreds at an old-time drugstore in Chicago's Loop.

"Nine out of 10 people who come in to get leeches are buying them to withdraw blood from black eyes. Monday morning is a good morning — after the weekend fights," said Harvey Snitman, manager of Sargent's Drugstore on Wabash Avenue. He said others, who come from as far

Snitman, wearing a white pharmacist's coat, took what looked like a big pickle jar from the store's front window, reached in and drew from the water a thin, blackish-brown worm that squiggled in his palm, trying to sink tiny teeth into his flesh.

"It attaches itself to whatever you want. It gets to look like a little sausage, and then it drops off. Then the swelling goes down; it's dead blood in there that causes the swelling," Snitman said.

Does it hurt? "No, he's got teeth sharp as a razor." "Years ago every drugstore had them; 50 cents apiece. Now they're $6," the pharmacist said He emphasized that the store does not prescribe the use of leeches and he will not recommend their use. But sales are legal and he's just passing along what his customers tell him, he said

The medicinal leeches, he said, come from a London supplier, who imports them from Russia, Poland and Hungary.

The leeches that covered Bogart's body as he pulled Katharine Hepburn in a disabled boat in the movie "African Queen" were unrefined cousins of Hirudo Medicalis, Singapan said.

"Those were ... just ... leeches," he said with disdain, as though you had called a plowhorse a throroughbred.

Dr. Lester S. King, a professor at the Center for the Study of the Illinois

Center for the Study of the History of Science and Medicine at the University Chicago, said in a separate interview that the use of one or two leeches does no harm at all. It doesn't do much good for most ills, but in some case, he said, it

State Board Has Questions About Midwife Clinic In Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE (AP) - Dr. James Clark believes low-income residents of this border city should have an alternative to the sometimes questionable services of a lay midwife and an expensive trip to the hospital for maternity care.

But the Brownsville obstetrician's answer to the dilemma has sparked questioning from a state agency.

Clark recently opened the private Brownsville Women's Clinic. The plan is to utilize a certified nurse midwife -- a specially trained registered nurse - to deliver babies.

An expectant mother will pay $400-500 for complete medical care through the clinic. Lay midwives charge about $200 here while a trip to the hospital runs to

Clark's problems, however, began last week with a phone call from John Sartore, chief investigator for the Texas Medical Examiners Board. The board had received a copy of the clinic's proposed procedures. Included was the possible use of prescription drugs in some

"He said if we opened up there was a possibility they'd take away my nurse's license and my license," Clark said.

While there is apparently nothing wrong with delivering babies at the clinic (a 1956 state court decision says the delivery of a child is not the practice of medicine), Sartore said the use of drugs not prescribed by a doctor "could" constitute improper practice.

"The problem in Brownsville is that more than three-fourths of the deliveries are performed by lay midwives who are completely untrained," Clark said.

But since the delivery of a baby is not the practice of medicine, the state has no control over the lay midwives, Clark said. The city of Brownsville does require lay midwives to register and take a test. And while the lay midwives are not supposed to use drugs, they can slip across the border and obtain medication without prescriptions, and clinic representatives were to meet in Austin Wednesday to discuss the situa-

The clinic has not delivered any babies yet, but Clark anticipates a brisk business. In two weeks an average of three new patients a day have come in.

Clark added that while untrained lay midwives do not seem to be the answer, costly hospital stays also do not meet the needs in the impoverished barrios.

"There are two main reasons why people go to midwives. One is financial. The other is cultural. Latin males don't want their wives going to a male doctor," he Sartore said no decisions were to be made at Wednesday's informal meeting. However, when and if a decision is reached it could have an effect on other midwife clinics in the state.

Dr. Stanley Fish, medical director of a federally funded clinic in the Rio Grande Valley, said rulings against Clark's clinic "could then be applied to us."

Su Clinica Familiar has been using certified nurse midwives since 1972. Many of Clark's proposed procedures are designed after Su Clinica's programs.

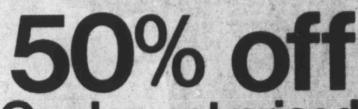

Clark and Fish agreed that new legislation aimed at keeping up with the chaning role of the nurse is needed.

"The whole tragedy about this," Clark said, "is that the nurse midwife is being bindered in what she's trained to do hindered in what she's trained to do while the lay midwife is being encouraged in what she's not trained to do."

Passing Of Bill Uplifts Retarded Lobbyist

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - The man smiled when the Connecticut House gave him a standing ovation and again when a legislator kissed him. But his happiest moment was when a bill banning discrimination against the mentally retarded was passed.

"It means I can sleep good now," Richard Sedor of Windsor Locks said Tuesday after the House gave final legislative approval to a bill he has fought for during the past two years.

Sedor, 28, is mentally retarded

"The first year I didn't get it but the second year I came back and got it all together," Sedor told reporters in an interview interrupted by a congratulatory kiss on the cheek from his state representative, Joyce Wojtas, D-Windsor Locks.

Sedor has been a familiar sight at the State Capitol. He doggedly pursued state and elected officials so he could tell his story and advance his bill.

Sedor said he will be back next year. That's because another bill he champions has not yet been approved. The bill would allow local or regional boards of education to provide special education for mentally retarded children over the age of 21 and be eligible for state reim-

"Once I get that, I'll leave everybody alone," said Sedor, who said he was at Mansfield Training School from age 6 to

Sedor, who said he lost one job because of of discrimination against his mental retardation, said he would like to work at the legislature, perhaps for a committee: "I'd like to be in politics someday."

The bill approved 147-1 by the House on Tuesday would prohibit employers from discriminating on the basis of mental retardation. It would also prohibit denial of full and equal public accommodations because of mental retardation.

Special High School Follows 'Old' Rules

DALLAS (AP) - Some of the rules at David W. Carter Fundamental High School would have many high school students across the country thinking their lives had dropped 30 years into the past. Imagine rules restricting dress and requiring large amounts of homework. But the dropout rate in the fundame tal school has been only one out of the 460 pupils who signed "contracts" last fall to attend the institution that is actually an entity within the 1,900-student Carter High.

In the fundamental school, grades are given for achievement, not effort, say school officials.

The school promises to "provide a quality education for every student in a safe and secure environment, respect the rights and responsibilities of all individuals...(and) keep parents informed of the academic progress and conduct of their sons and daughters."

Parents don't get off the hook either. They are required to confer with teachers and to spend at least two hours each quarter at the school in some kind of volunteer work.

"I thought that putting more work on the kids would make 'em run," said associate principal Leonard Trapp. "But since we began in September, only one has asked to get out.

"In the past, sometimes, if a student showed up and went through the motions he was given a grade." The fundamental school students must pass minimum requirements in each subject taken before moving on to the next level.

Courses at the school-within-a-school and no different but classes are except.

are no different, but classes are more structured and more tests are given.

The dress code prohibits going without proper "undergarments," unbuttoned shirts, hair rollers, sunglasses, thongs, see-through or tank tops, and "suggetive" patches on clothing.

Anyone from the Dallas Independent School District may apply to the school, and entrance is structured along racial and ethnic guidelines. Presently, the ratios are 44 percent black, 44 percent Anglo and 12 percent Mexican-American. Carter High's student body is approxi-mately 70 percent black.

Superintendent Nolan Estes said the fundamental school concept is good for those who need a rigid, more sequenced approach to education. "But others need

The group arrived in Hong Kong from

BY BERT OKULEY

HONG KONG (UPI) - Chinese university rectors readily admit the country's educational system was set back a generation by the so-called "Gang of Four" but are vigorously pursuing a new era of expansion, American educators and businessmen just back from China have said. The Chinese also are anxious to participate in a student exchange program with the United States but cannot do so until relations between Washington and Peking are normalized, the leaders of the group told a news conference.

The 24-member delegation was led by Dr. John Hubbard, President of the University of Southern California, and Herb Klein, former White House Director of Communications and now a Los Angeles media consultant. Also present at the news conference was Robert Wood, former President of the Columbia Broadcasting System television network.

"We were quite taken with the recep-tion we had," Hubbard said of the twoweek tour which took the delegation to schools and universities in Peking, Hangchow, Shanghai and Canton,

But wherever we went we heard a lot about the "Gang of Four" and their bale ful affect on education," Hubbard said. "They admit losing a generation of re-search; science and technology and will need external help."

USC, a private institution located in Los Angeles, has a student body of 25,-000. Its foreign enroliment of 3,500 is the largest in the United States, Hubbard Klein, a trustee of the university and the only member of the group who had previously visited China, said the delegation inspected all levels of China's educational system.

"We hope they did not doubt our sin-cerity," he said. "They are welcoming in increasing numbers visits by our educational establishments." Hubbard said the group was amazed at the teacher-student ratio in China, which he said apparently ranged from 4 to 1 to as low as 2 to 1. He said the best estimated ratio at USC was 1 to 10. "They have ample room for dramatic gains at the college level," Hubbard said. They want a wider exchange but realize this cannot occur until a normalization of Hubbard said the Americans didn't talk to any government officials but met with a number of university heads and "We assume what we heard was a reflection of the official view. He said educational standards in China

'are low in comparison with the United States (and) they admit they have a great deal to learn. They are anxious to learn." The USC president said he believed the California group was the first educational delegation to visit China since the purge of the Gang of Four, which included Chiang Ching, widow of Mao Tse-tung.

Oklahoma Kills Gas Tax Hike

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - State voters won't get a chance to express their sentiments on a proposed 2-cent gasoline tax increase for highway construction and maintenance because the Senate killed the proposal less than five hours after it was unveiled. Senate President Pro Tem Gene Howard unveiled the tax proposal this week, saying he felt it would be passed by the Senate because of the severe damage the winter inflicted on state highways.

But the Senate killed it by voting 23-17 not to suspend the rules to allow the measure to be introduced.

Supporters of the proposal needed a two-thirds majority, or 32 votes in the 48member Senate, to suspend the rules and allow it to be introduced. Instead, they couldn't even get a simple majority.

A two-thirds vote was needed to suspend the rules because the deadline for introduction of new legislation expired several weeks ago.

license plates. "Right now, that man is asking for a license to kill - because somebody took his fists and beat him," Darnell said, pointing at the defendant.

The prosecutor wondered aloud why Jordon, if he had acted in self-defense, had not remained on the premises to explain to police what had happened. Darnell said Booker had not been trying to kill Jordon. "If he had, he wouldn't have used his fists - he just wanted to teach Charlie Jordon a lesson. "Instead, Charlie Jordon taught him one," Darnell argued. Officers testified they arrived at the Zenith Avenue house to find Booker lying propped against the wall in a small back room. Testimony indicated there were three apparent bullet wounds on the left side of the chest, or upper abdomen and one in the back of the left thigh. In testimony Wednesday, witness Jimmy Wilson Jr. said Jordon tried to leave the small back room when Booker became angry, but indicated the defendant was unable to get away. Wilson said he tried to intercede, offering to pay Booker the money, but that Booker said he didn't want it The witness said Booker, who, he indicated, was much larger than Jordon, began hitting the defendant with his fists. On cross-examination, Wilson repeated that Jordan had first tried to walk away from Booker. He added that Jordan had again unsuccessfully tried to break away after he had been hit. Wilson indicated he and another man managed to restrain Booker temporarily.

but that the deceased broke loose and again went after the defendant. 'He came after him again like a mad dog, didn't he?" Thompson said. "He came after him again," Wilson said. The witness said Booker pushed Jordon down over a table, and that suddenly he saw a gun between the two men. They went down on the table and came up with a gun between them." Wil son testified. He said he saw the gun and heard firing and that he "hit the floor." Wilson indicated he did not know who had possession of the gun before it suddenly appeared.

Witness Sylvester Kilpatrick said he saw Booker beating Jordon and heard three or four shots fired. He said he did not see the gun until after the shots were fired.

Thompson criticized police investigation of the incident during cross-examination of various witnesses.

Testimony showed that a desk sergeant was asked to take photographs of the scene because of the absence of regular identification officers. The desk sergeant testified that he attempted to take pictures but later discovered there was no film in the camera. Thompson also pointed out through questioning that no autopsy was performed and that, consequently, no bullets were removed from the body. "When you get right down to it, he could have died from a heart attack from fright over having been shot, couldn't he? " the defense lawyer asked one officer.

Pimentos Probed By FDA

By JIM BUSBY Avalanche-Journal Staff

Health specialists believe they have located a case of pimentos in Albuquerque that may be implicated in the recent illness of more than 30 persons hospitalized after eating what investigators believe was botulism-contaminated food at a Clovis, N.M., restaurant.

The announcement followed a day when the investigators had searched for containers which had held the pimentos before being discarded at the Clovis "city

But attempts to find discarded containers holding traces of pimentos apparently proved futile.

A Dallas Food and Drug Administration spokesman said the sample pimentos would arrive in Dallas for testing about noon today. He said there there is "no question" that potato salad served at the Colonial Park Country Club restaurant in Clovis between April 9 and 13 carried the botulism toxin. However, he said the pimentos may be involved in some way.

So far 33 persons have been hospitalized following the suspected contamination incident, but no deaths have been reported in connection with it.

A Methodist Hospital spokesman here this morning said 28-year-old Pam Seiler, a Lubbock-area resident and Reese Air Ferce Base employee, was released from the hospital. Miss Seiler was one of seven patients admitted to Methodist following the Clovis "outbreak." Another of those patients, John Garrett, 65, a Clovis-area rancher-farmer, remained on the critical list this morning at Methodist. The remaining five patients here were listed in satisfactory condition, a hospital spokesman said.

Investigators have said they are uncertain how the potato salad may have been contaminated, but apparently have attempted to determine if cross-contamination from some other food source or food-related equipment might be in-

Budget Plans Begin For United Way

Goal for the 1978 United Way campaign will be set on June 21, but the budgeting process that leads to that finalized goal begins today, with a 4 p.m. organizational meeting at the United Way

This year's United Way budget division is chaired by Howard Yandell with Tom Locke as vice chairman. Composed of 24 volunteers, who will spend the time between April 21 and June 13 working with agency requests, the committees of the budget division are headed by Bob Greenhill, Reid Warner, Nolen Swain and Harold Jones.

First step, after the organizational meeting, according to Yandell, is for committees to meet with agency representatives for explanation of budget requests. Budget-study and recommendation of each agency allocation culminates on May 31, and on June 13, the budget division meets to hear agency appeals if necessary.

Each agency has the right, according to Yandell, to appeal the recommendation of the budget committee to the full budget division. If a mutual agreement is not reached, the agency then may appeal to the United Way board of directors on June 21. On that date, after all budget recommendations are heard and accepted by the board, the total amount of the combined budgets become the goal for the 1978 United way campaign.

Iles, Dunbar To Become Enrichment Schoo

At Iles Elementary next year, homework will be a family affair, renowned artists may be teaching classes and students will have a choice in the hours they attend school.

Those ideas are detailed in the Lubbock Independent School District's proposal to make Iles a magnet school for integration purposes.

In a document filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, school officials also elaborated on the magnet program proposed for Dunbar High. They said several more offerings, from jazz to golf to academic honors classes, will be added to Dunbar.

The school board's approach to Dunbar and Iles is to make those schools so attractive that students from throughout the city will transfer there voluntarily. In this way, the board hopes to increase the number of whites at Dunbar and Iles to meet court-ordered specifications without "forced busing."

The special programs disclosed Wednesday for the two eastside campuses are unlike anything Lubbock has seen. The school district's plan would make Iles an "exemplary enrichment school in cooperation with Texas Tech University's college of education." Besides regular teachers, many university professors and student teachers will be working at Iles, often on a one-to-one basis with students.

Iles will feature the city's only "extended" school day, with supervised activities offered from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Students still will be required to spend 61/2 hours in "regular school" programs at Iles. But they will have the option of participating in morning and afternoon sports and recreational activities, arts and crafts and accelerated academics.

Also, there will be before-and afterschool tutoring programs — in which students will both tutor and be tutored. School officials say this "peer tutoring" service at Iles may be opened to youngsters of other schools as well.

Cold Front Brings Rain, Snow, Low Readings Across Nation

A cold front across the northwestern corner of the country spread showers and isolated thunderstorms from Montana into Oregon and northern California.

Rainshowers also extended from the central Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley into the Tennessee Valley and along the northern Atlantic Seabord.

Thunderstorms also ranged over the northern Atlantic coast states, as well as portions of southern Florida and the central Gulf coast.

There was snow from the eastern Dakotas into Wisconsin, upper Michigan, parts of New England and in the northern Plateau. Four inches fell overnight at Stampede, Wash., 2 inches at Caribou, Maine, and 1 inch at Washington, N.H.

Skies were mostly clear from Southern California across the southern and central Rockies and the southern Plains through the southern Atlantic Coast states and over parts of the northern Plains.

Temperatures in the 30s and 40s prevailed over much of the country because of the cold Canadian air. A major exception was an area of 50s and 60s extending from California across the extreme southern portion of the country and along the south and middle Atlantic Coast. Southern Florida had temperatures in the 70s.

Below freezing readings were recorded in the southern Rockies, the central Plains, the middle Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes.

A powerful frontal system carried a violent storm and a trail of devastation in parts of Florida on Wednesday.

The system produced several tornadoes, 45-mph winds and lightning that killed a construction worker in Silver Springs Shores. Lightning also injured about two dozen people and caused widespread property damage An Eastern Airlines Boeing 727, severe-yone bow to the east everytime they went outside early this week, and temperatures will be in the low 70s today and the high 70s Friday.

Weathermen expect a low tonight in the upper 40s, which would feel much warmer than the 41-degree low recorded in Lubbock this morning

U.S. Developing Devices To Detect Narcotics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's war on drugs, a high-cost battle that has had only limited success, is taking a James Bond-like turn with some new equipment that "sniffs" people, measures radiation and records heat levels to detect hidden caches of narcotics.

The equipment is being developed by the U.S. Customs Service and represents what Customs Commissioner Ray Chasen calls the "ultimate solution" to the problem of stopping illegal drug shipments coming into the country at ports

Two of the exotic devices - a "neutron backscatter" that uses radiation to detect narcotics shipments in cars, boats, airplanes and cargo, and a thermal viewer that measures an object's heat to determine whether something is hidden inside - already have undergone initial field tests.

The third - a vapor detector that "sniffs" humans for a drug stash much as trained dogs sniff luggage - is one to three years away, depending on how much money the Customs Service gets for technology research.

Chasen revealed the new technology Wednesday at a Senate subcommittee hearing on U.S. efforts to stop illicit drug traffic. Ray Mintz, who heads the Customs Service research and development section, told reporters the neutron backscatter has detected narcotics in Customs laboratory tests. "It will detect narcotics. It will also tell us for sure that nothing is hidden so we don't have to open everything up," Mintz said.

The neutron backscatter, a hand-held unit that weighs about six pounds, shoots radiation at an object, then measures how much is absorbed and how much is sent back. Different substances reflect radiation differently, and drugs have a distinctive absorption rate.

Mintz said the Customs Service plans to use the backscatter on cars, airplanes and boats but "it won't be used on people. We can't radiate people." Neither will the device be used on luggage unless tests show there are no after-effects harmful to human beings, Mintz said.

The vapor detector "sniffs the air around people" for the "odor-vapor" of drugs. It is needed, Mintz said, because "you can't use dogs on people ... Technically you can, politically you can't."

Two hand-held thermal viewers also have been tested in the field by Customs agents. They may find drugs hidden in cargo, but Mintz said so far their real success is in locating "people who might be hidden in the brush.

Postal Union Blasts Carter's Wage Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) - Negotiations week to unions and industry to hold wage 554,000 postal workers, with union leaders denouncing White House pleas to hold down wage demands.

The postal pact is the biggest U.S. labor contract up for negotiation this year. The negotiations are the first national labor talks since President Carter's plea last began today on a new labor contract for and salary increases "significantly below the average rate for the last two years.'

With all due respect to our opposite members in postal management, the presence of Jimmy Carter hangs heavy over this table." Emmet Andrews, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said in his opening statement will ignore the president's call to scale down wage demands to help fight inflation, saying he will "insist upon adequate rewards for the increased productivity of our members without regard to unfair "We shall insist upon the job security and cost of living increases vital to the well-being of our postal families. And we shall insist upon better and safer and less tedious working conditions," Andrews Deputy postmaster James V. Conway, the head Postal Service negotiator, sought to reduce speculation that the administration would have a heavy role in the bargaining. "Postal management is in complete command to act for the Postal Service under the mandate of the Postal Reorganization Act in this collective bargaining process, irrespective of any speculation to the contrary." Conway said.

largest of four postal unions, indicated he

Lonnie L. Johnson, director of the 36,-000-member mail handlers division of Laborers International Union, made a statement similar to that of Andrews, "Postal workers can't be made into scapegoats,' Johnson said.

Joseph Vacca, president of the 181,000member National Association of Letter Carriers, made no opening statement, commenting only that "opening statements don't matter. It is closing statements that matter."

A fourth union, the 38,000-member National Rural Letter Carriers Association, opened bargaining with postal management at a separate location.

The negotiations are to replace a threeyear contract that expires July 20. Both union and management representatives have played down the chance of a strike, which would be illegal but not without

East Coast walkouts in 1970 helped lead to a law that established collective bargaining for postal workers. Previously, their pay had been set by Congress.

The executive council of the 181,000member National Association of Letter Carriers, in a resolution passed after Carter's speech, objected to his effort to limit the union's demands.

The resolution termed it "totally unlevel less than the economic needs of letter carriers

In another interview before the negotiations, Lonnie L. Johnson, director of the 36,000-member mail handlers division of the Laborers International Union. "We don't want to be the scape-

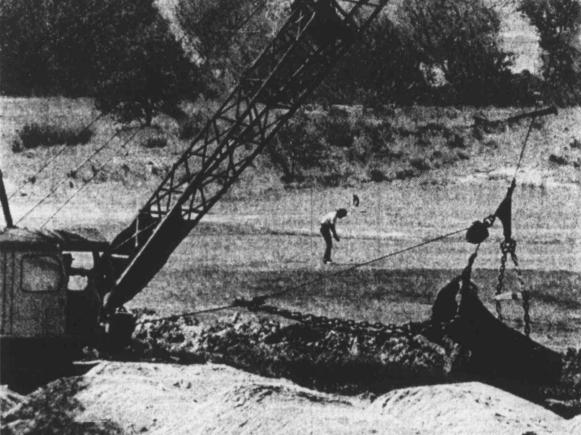

The White House is jawboning in an effort to moderate the eventual settlement. Barry P Rosworth director of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, met with the union leaders Tuesday.

Russians Given U.S. Proposals

MOSCOW (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko opened talks in the Kremlin today to try to ease differences blocking a new treaty to limit long-range nuclear arms. But U.S. officials expected night from London, expressed hope progress would be made, but warned that

Vance began the talks with a broad statement of U.S. views, then moved quickly to proposals to wrap up the treaty that has eluded the two superpowers since Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and former President Ford agreed in November 1974 on limits of 2,400 longrange bombers and intercontinental bal-

For the first time since that breakthrough in Vladivostok, the Russians brought in a high-ranking army officer to take part in the bargaining. The presence of Gen. Nikolai V. Ogarkov, chief of the general staff and first deputy minister of defense, indicated some tough technical decisions might be in the offing.

Some analysts believe Brezhnev is having trouble persuading the Soviet military to accept various arms restrictions. They speculated he might want Ogarkov at the table to allay any suspicions within the military that the president was being

She says she has been waiting four years for a visa.

Vance failed to budge the Soviets in his last trip here in March 1977, and U.S. officials said they did not expect this visit to yield solutions to remaining problems. They said the three-day stay would be considered a success if it narrowed gaps on three major issues:

1. Soviet reluctance to stop development of new intercontinental ballistic missiles and modernization of existing ones Washington would like missile restriction on both superpowers for three

2. The Soviet demand that the United States not share with its European allies the technology of cruise missiles, the low-flying drone bombers chosen by Carter as a key element in America's defense strategy. Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said no accord will be signed that bars this technology from other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

3. The U.S. demand for assurances that the Russians will limit production of their new Backfire bomber and will not base it within easy striking distance of the United States, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is reported willing to give these assurances in writing. But it is questionable whether this would satisfy such Senate hawks as Sen. Henry Jackson. D-Wash., who are skeptical of Soviet intentions.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Geneva reportedly have already agreed on most other provisions of a new nuclear arms limitation accord to run until 1985. Further talks are expected when Gromyko visits the United States next month for a U.N. General Assembly meeting on disarmament.

Vance is also scheduled to meet Brezhnev and discuss the possibility of a meeting between him and President Carter in the United States this summer or fall.

another step toward enactment. At least one of the bills approved Wednesday by the Senate Agriculture Committee - a simple 13 percent raise for 1978 only in the federally guaranteed return to wheat farmers - has been assured of President Carter's signature.

gram for heavily indebted farmers moves

"neither encouraged nor Carter couraged" a second bill slightly raising feed grain supports and the guaranteed return on cotton, said its sponsor, Sen. Dick Clark, D-Jowa.

The Clark raises would affect supports through 1981, however, while the wheat boost sponsored by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., would apply only to the 1978 crop.

Carter's almost-daily veto threats and intense behind-the-scenes efforts by the White House, the Chamber of Commerce and consumer lobbyists last week killed in the House a measure substantially raising grain and cotton price supports and tying them to the amount of acreage a farmer idled.

The House today scheduled debate and a final vote on a credit package that has already received the administration's blessing. Parts of it were initiated by Carter. A companion measure is pending before the Senate.

The House credit bill would establish a special 20-month program under which heavily indebted farmers - the core of the American Agriculture protest group could refinance up to $400,000 worth of farm-related debts. The debts refinanced would have to have been incurred after Jan. 1, 1973. Grain prices peaked in 1973 and 1974. pulling land prices up with them. Many farmers expanded their operations with more land and new equipment, but were hit hard in the last two years by slumping prices and rising production costs. The loans would carry federal guarantees or insurance and could be made for up to 30 years at prevailing interest rates.

The measure also would open USDA farm-credit programs to family corporations and partnerships and cooperatives, as well as the individual farmers presently covered.

It also would double in most cases the present maximum loan limits for the various operating and ownership programs and set up a special low-interest program for beginning or low-income farmers who can't meet ordinary Farmers Home Administration requirements.

House members from farming states have not yet decided what approach to take on a replacement for the support measure defeated last week.

The Red Brigades had Moro write letters from captivity in which he called on the government to free "political prisoners" in exchange for his release. But the government refused, even if it meant forfeiting the life of the former premier.

The body recovered today was found by frogmen in iced-over Lake Duchessa, 72 miles northeast of Rome, on the third day of searching after the message Tuesday said Moro was dumped there.

The body was identified as that of Antonio d'Angeli, 45, a shepherd from nearby Corvaro who had been suffering from a nervous breakdown and had been missing from his home for several days, police sources said. The identification was made by the man's nephew.

As the search continued without a trace of Moro, there had been growing speculation that the message Tuesday was a hoax, as today's communique said.

Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga said experts found it had the same features as six previous communiques from the kidnappers. But he said the delay in finding the body and a few other details prompted doubts about its authenticity.

The terrorists' latest victim was Francesco de Cataldo, 53, who was shot by three men as he was leaving for work at Milan's San Vittore Prison. The killers escaped in a car. A few minutes later, a telephone caller to an Italian news agency said he was speaking for the Red Brigades and announced: "We have executed officer Francesco de Cataldo, on duty at the San Vittore prison as a torturer of prisoners." During the night, extremists hurled bombs and fired shots at a Rome military compound that included the home of Gen. Alberto Della Chiesa, a top anti-terrorist expert. Two small bombs also were

John Hubbard, president of the University of Southern California, arrived Monday after spending two weeks in China, where he explored the possibility of establishing an exchange program for students and teachers. He was accompanied by a group of businessmen and educators, including Herb Klein of the U.S.C. board of trustees

Hubbard said Chinese educators are interested in obtaining external assistance, but they believe exchange programs between the United States and China are unlikely because of the lack of diplomatic ties. So they are looking to Western Europe and Australia for help.

But Hubbard said the academic standards of the universities seemed low.

'As far as chemistry, physics and other technologies are concerned, they have a lot to learn," he said. He said the equipment in laboratories was "primitive," but libraries are well stocked.

Klein, the Nixon administration's director of communications, said in one library he saw several copies of President Nixon's speeches and books written by friends of his. But he said the libraries lack foreign periodicals published in the last two years.

He said librarians told him they were anxious to obtain recent magazines and

Tests Engulfed By Controversy

By PATRICIA McCORMACK United Press International Writer Test is a four-letter word full of anxiety

Results of tests in the educational arena point a boy or girl into a slow, medium or fast learning track. As predictors of success or failure, tests often are attacked by parents claiming the results don't show a true picture of child's ability - or potential. When it comes to pulling apart the test scene, educators join in a lot of times. The professional critics think there may be too much reliance on tests.

Controversy and testing seem to hang around together. That's what Dr. Stanley D. Klein, of Boston, says. He is editor of 'The Exceptional Parent' - a magazine full of practical guidance for children with learning disabilities.

Psychological testing of such children and testing of many kinds, including I.Q. - intelligence quotient - tests, need the mystery taken out of them as the psychologist sees it.

"Professionals unwilling to share test results with parents or children help to create the mystery," Klein says in Chapter 1 of a new book, "Psychological Testing of Children: A Consumer's Guide" (The Exceptional Parent Press, Statler Office Bldg, Boston, Mass., $4.95).

"The mystery is enlarged by a lack of information about how psychologists construct tests, how they administer, score and interpret tests, what they claim different tests measure.

In the guide for parents, Klein dispels a lot of the mystery. This is to give parents inside information, equipping them to evaluate the tools of the professionals.

"I sing no incantations. Rather, I try to familiarize the reader with the logic involved in the design of testing tools," he said in an interview.

"This will help parents to be less dependent upon the opinion of so-called experts and more able to make careful judgments for themselves.

"I do not intend to make each parent into some sort of psychologist. Rather, I aim to help the parent to become a more sophisticated consumer.' Dr. Maxwell J. Schleifer, also editor of "The Exceptional Parent," said psychological tests are part of the educational records of all school-age children. "Properly utilized," he writes in the introduction to the testing guide, "the psychological assessment process can make a critical contribution to the develop-

Unfortunately, children (and their families) have suffered because psychological tests have been misused.

Tests have been used as if they were independent of the human beings who designed and administered the tests and independent of the uniqueness of the human beings subjected to the tests." Schleifer said the need for informed consumers is big today. This is due to the fact that many newly mandated federal programs for children with disabilities require frequent psychological evalua-

Dorothy Dean, director of the National Information Center for the Handicapped, in the new test guide for parents, writes:

"As equal status members of the educational planning team, parents need to take stock of the traditional tests used for evaluations and diagnosis. 'Psychological tests and intelligence tests are basic diagnostic equipment, but they are like predictions of the weather which may be inaccurate to start with and susceptible to change. There is no magic about testing that reveals all that needs to be known about a child's problems and potential. "At best, testing is only one part of a Parents need to cut through the fog of terminology and understand what tests can and cannot do.

Federal education law now sets down guidelines to protect children from the damaging effects of using test results to label children — thereby putting a lid on their future.

The law also requires that schools obtain parent consent before testing children and planning special programs for

The "Consumer's Guide" to testing can assure that parental consent is based on understanding

On that basis, a healthy exchange of ideas can take place between profesionals and parents - for the good of children, according Klein.

Tests covered in the in the guide nclude the psychological assessment ones and those measuring intelligence - the I.Q.,

Horticulturist Says Gasoline Tree Can Be Grown

ELSA (AP) — Filed among the clutter of papers on horticulturist C. T. Foerster's desk are tidbits of information about the wonders of the plant world.

There are notes about a tree that might provide a better chicken feed. A little deeper in the pile of paper are details about a plant that's a wonderous supplier

And then there are some facts on the

'There's no reason at all why we have to depend on the Arabs for it when we can grow it right here. We'd need an area about half the size of Texas," the 64-yearold former wildcatter said.

The Houston native has a few gasoline tree seedlings sprouting near his home in the Rio Grand Valley.

He got the seeds from a Nobel prizewinning California scientist who has been working with various strains of the Euphorbia plant for a few years.

"There's no reason why we can't use plants for energy. For hundreds of years all we had was wood," said Foerster, executive director of the non-profit Vitis

Research and Development Corp. The Euphorbia does not produce the same type of oil drilled from the ground.

But Melvin Calvin, the University of California researcher who coined the term gasoline tree, has reported that a mixture of hydrocarbons suited for fuel uses can be obtained from the plant.

John Otvos, a chemist in Calvin's campus lab, said no one is sure of the potential of the Euphorbia. "What we know is that on a very small scale we can produce about 10 barrels of crude oil per acre," he said. The plant grows wild in parts of California and Brazil. Foerster's plants are the first attempt at growing the greenery in South Texas. He said the plants could be grown in areas not now used in the Valley.

Foerster has a row of the seedlings that are just starting to come up. Several larger plants are also sprouting near his small home here. The bushes will grow to about five feet in height and when they are pricked or cut they ooze a pure white

It is that liquid - latex - that is the key to the plant's potential value. Otvos said the latex is mostly composed of hydrocarbons-"something we think is processable through a refinery.'

In September 1977 Calvin told a Tokyo meeting of the International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry about the

"It looks as though we could make this complex mixture of hydrocarbons at a price of about $10 to $15 per barrel of oil in the fields and another $10 would be required to take the oil from the plants and put it in the barrel. So we are talking about a price of crude oil ... on the order of $20 per barrel," he told the meeting.

The processing of the plant is still in the research stages, Otvos said. It involves crushing the stem and extracting the "oil" through a chemical process.

The Euphorbia has sparked some interest from commercial energy suppliers. Dr. Daniel Grafstein, an Exxon researcher in Linden, New Jersey, made a trek to California to see the UC plantation of Euphobia. But Grafstein was quick to say that the plant is just one of many things Exxon is looking into.

"I am trying to evaluate what, if anything, Exxon should do," he said.

Calvin has said the bushes are merely an extension of solar energy.

"It's the use of the best existing solar

The Euphorbia's potential value is not news to scientists. A New Jersey tinkerer by the name of Thomas Alva Edison did some work with the plant in his later years. But his research failed.

Edison managed to find the "oil" in the plant, Calvin said. The only problem was he was looking for rubber.

chief of the department, said after a twoday hearing this week it is a decision that should have been made some time

However, he declined to say when his decision might come.

Malcolm Dungan, a San Francisco lawyer for El Paso LNG Co., the project's sponsor, has asked for immediate action, Dungan said El Paso LNG would much prefer that any additional environmental impact statement be left to the Army Corps of Engineers, thus clearing the way for a quick decision by Bardin.

The attorney said this could avert possible cancellation of the gas supply by Al-

After the hearing was adjourned, Bardin left for Matagorda Bay to inspect the proposed site between Port O'Connor and Port Lavaca.

Bardin told Dungan he had not yet decided whether an additional environmental study is necessary.

However, Rod Gorman, an attorney for two environmental organizations and a group of individuals who intervened in the case, argued that the environmental statement is deficient.

"The people of Texas are being asked to trade off their bay, in my opinion, for lights in Las Vegas without adequate study," Gorman said.

There was some testimony in the session that some of the one billion cubic feet of gas to be imported daily would go to Las Vegas, although some 50 percent of it is destined for California customers.

Juanita McGinty of Houston, a Matagorda Bay property owner, said spinoff industries will inevitably follow the LNG terminal into the now largely undeveloped bay.

Transplant

By TERRY LEONARD DALLAS (AP) - When it comes to heart, one Texan has one more than any other, and he came to Dallas on Wednesday to greet the surgeon that gave it to South African heart surgeon Dr. Chris-tiaan Barnard, in the United States on a lecture tour and to promote his new novel, took time out for a brief reunion with Lindell Hill of Denison. "It's something to see someone who provided you with life," said Hill, 38, who received a second heart during a seven-hour "piggyback" transplant operation last Aug. 5 by a team trained and directed by Barnard.

During that procedure a second human heart is implanted to assist the patient's own failing organ.

Barnard stunned the world when he announced the world's first heart transplant in December 1967, and seven years later made headlines again when he performed the first "piggyback" transplant.

'We perform these transplants," said Barnard, "because there is no other alternative for these patients."

Hill was so seriously ill when he arrived in South Africa that Barnard doubted Hill would survive until a suitable donor could be found. However, it took just six days to find a donor and today Hill not only is alive, but he says he feels better than he has in 11

"That is the reward of doing this surgery," Barnard said.

"Lindell's recovery is good, but not ex-ceptional," he said. "We are having a lot of success in this procedure with patients who had open heart surgery before the transplant.

. Hill, who suffered his first massive coronary at 27, had open heart surgery twice before his transplant operation.

He said the transplant gave him another chance at life. "Doctors gave me only six months to live before I went to South Africa."

Texas Tech administrators received a letter this week from the Dallas Office of Civil Rights outlining six areas the HEW site team will be looking into during its week-long visit to the campus. According to Miles Schulze, branch chief for higher education with the Dallas civil rights office, two HEW representatives will arrive at Texas Tech Monday to look at student admissions procedures, student recruitment, student financial aid. athletics, counseling and tutoring, and faculty and staff employment.

HEW teams already have arrived at the University of Texas, Austin, Pan American University in Edinburg and San Antonio College.

Next week site teams will visit, in addition to Texas Tech, Texas A&I in Kings-be sent to the Texas Coordinating Board. Schulze estimated it will take through June for all 18 of the schools to be reviewed. Once the findings are compiled, should any "relatively significant problems" be found, a statewide compliance plan would have to be submitted to the government.

At Tech, the HEW site team of Richard Gonzalez and Rosa Gavtan will request written materials and talk with university administrators

Farmers Discuss Planting Cutback

Avalanche-Journal Staff Cutting production by 50 percent, raising money for a Washington newsletter and working to defeat unsympathetic politicians in the fall elections were discussed Wednesday afternoon in a statewide American Agriculture Movement meeting here attended by an estimated 2.000 farmers.

The farmers were not pressured by movement leaders to plant only half their acreage. Several farmers said planting that little would jeopardize the wellbeing of their families or cause them to lose their land.

"There's some of us that no matter how bad we want to do it, we just can't do it," said Garza County farmer Jim Gerald McCathern of Hereford, elected spokesman for the movement in Texas, indicated that 50 percent is a goal and not a strict demand.

McCathern said the Department of Agriculture has made cutting back on acreage more difficult this year by changing the basis for set-aside payments to acres planted rather than acres left unproductive.

He advised the farmers to consult with their Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices to minimize the damage they will do to themselves economically by cutting back.

'You're pretty smart people," he said, 'and I don't see any reason why you can't set your planter where you don't get a stand the same as you can to get a

Professor Arrested For Selling Drugs

ODESSA (UPI) - Police have arrested an Odessa College music professor for sale of LSD and were seeking 32 other persons in what was described as one of the largest drug raids in West Texas.

The arrest of Charles Edward Baxley, assistant professor of music and director of jazz studies, and 12 others by late Wednesday ended a three-month undercover investigation, police said. Baxley was being held in lieu of $300,- against the 33 defendants, all from Odessa and Midland.

The Wednesday meeting, which began at 1 p.m. and ran through the afternoon, was held in part as a prelude to McCathern and other AAM representatives from Texas attending a national movement meeting Monday in Oklahoma City.

In a frequently confusing succession of motions and statements from the floor, the group decided to have each of the 130 "strike offices" around the state choose a representative to take part in choosing a committee to work with McCathern in conducting AAM business.

It was also approved for Marvin Meek, an AAM activist from Plainview, and men working with him to continue their efforts to raise $150,000 to finance a Washington newsletter and possibly to pay for two persons chosen by the comfor the movement.

Meek reported that more than $30,000

Meek reported that more than $30,000 already had been raised.

Meek proposed that contributors be required to give $100 in order to have a voice in choosing the Washington representatives, but the idea apparently was dropped when a number of persons objected to the minimum because many farmers who went to Washington to lobby for a new farm aid hill now are finanby for a new farm aid bill now are finan-

We'll talk politics and encourage farmers to continue destroying their crops and probably talk a lot about what we will do next," said Hines, a Campo, Colo., farmer.

An estimated 15,000 farmers will make the trip to Oklahoma City, Hines said, with the participants also receiving an education lesson on how the Agri-Lateral Commission sets the world's food prices at the expense of American farmers. The commission has 1,700 representa-

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a clergyman, but I'm not disclosing the denomination because this is a small town. A few months ago, he started counseling a young woman in an effort to save her marriage. (I'll call her "Mrs.")

Last week he phoned to say he wouldn't be home for lunch as usual because Mrs. J. was coming in for counseling and it might take his entire lunch

I didn't think anything of it until a few days ago when he told me not to bother preparing lunch for the next few weeks because Mrs. J. needs a lot of counseling. and she always brings a nice lunch for both of them when she comes in. (She started with one session a week, now it's

Yesterday when my husband came home, I noticed liquor on his breath. I was shocked because he seldom drinks, and I asked him if he had been drinking. He didn't try to hide it. He said Mrs. J. had brought along a small bottle of wine to have with their lunch.

HIS WIFE

Dear Wife: I hope he's not a rabbi, because those lunches sound anything but 'kosher'' to me.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter called us last month and announced that it was official - she and her boyfriend are living together

We, her parents, are very unhappy about this arrangement. We like the young man very much. He is a college graduate (as is our daughter), attractive, successful and from a good family. (We are friendly with his parents.)

Our daughter and her boyfriend are both 28, and there is no reason why they should not get married, but she made it plain that they have no such plans for the

At her age, this dear woman probably doesn't receive much mail of her own. By now, most of her friends and probably many of her relatives have already passed on. And since she lives with her daughter, she probably doesn't even get bills of her own.

One threat to a crossruff is that a defender might overruff and return a trump. The way to prevent that is to ruff so high that you can't be overruffed. South's technique in negotiating his contract of four hearts is worthy of study.

South selected one heart as his opening bid to provide for an easy rebid should his partner respond in spades or no trump. Had the opening bid been in first- or second seat, North would probably have raised to four hearts. but he allowed some leeway for a possible light opening bid in third seat. South was better than minimum for his opening, so he had no hesitation about contracting for West led a low club, and declarer saw that he had a choice of attack plans. He could either play to establish dummy's spades, or go for a crossruff. Since entries to dummy were in short supply, a crossruff was the sounder line.

Declarer had three tricks in the side suits, so he had to score seven trump tricks to make his contract. That seemed no major feat provid ing that suits split normally and that he could prevent an overruff. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Ace of diamonds and a diamond ruff put declarer in dummy for another spade ruff.

Back to dummy with a diamond ruff for another spade lead. When East produced the last spade, de clarer had to take care to guard against an overruff. He achieved this by ruffing with the ace of trumps for his eighth trick.

The contract was now as sured regardless of which defender held the queen of trumps. Declarer simply led a diamond and ruffed with the king of trumps-his ninth trick. Now he led a spade and ruffed with the jack of trumps. He did not mind if East overruffed, for then the ten of trumps would be established as the game-going trick.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" European Pasta Dates From Renaissance Era

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Europeans have enjoyed pasta, that keystone of Italy's cuisine, dating as far back as the Renaissance, according to history books. But no one seems to know for sure just when this delightful food made its debut into Western society or where it came from.

Most accounts place the origins of pasta in the Far East, and thereby hang a number of tales.

One story says an Italian sailor was taught noodle-making by a Chinese girlfriend and later imparted the art to his countrymen. Another says Marco Polo brought noodles back from the court of the Great Khan, along with gunpowder and coal.

The earliest known documented mention of pasta comes from the eighth century lexicographer Hesychius, who reterred to it as "makaria thing. Hesychius suggested that this food should be eaten with a sauce, a bit of advice that has been faithfully followed

Typical examples of our 40 styles of Italian imports:

In the 14th century Boccaccio fantasized about these "blessed things." In his "Decameron" he described the imaginary land of Bengodi, where cooks stood on mounds of Parmesan cheese and ladled out pasta into pots of capon broth. Such a vision might readily occur to one born in Florence as Boccaccio was, since pasta is a standby in that region.

A popular pasta specialty today is Fettucini Florentine, a dish that calls to mind Boccaccio's fantasy, only in this case, cooks ladle the noodles into chafing dishes filled with a savory mixture of spinach, bacon, butter and cream.

The preliminary cooking for this dish is done on a stove, but the ingredients are blended in a chafing dish over canned heat to enhance the flavors. Keep the heat low and be careful to dole out the correct proportions and the result should be rewarding.

1 lb. fettucini noodles

3 tsp. salt, divided 12 cup butter

1 (10 oz.) package frozen, chopped spin-ach, thawed and drained

11/2 cups heavy cream 1 egg, slightly beaten

2 cups grated Parmesan cheese 14 tsp. pepper

Cook bacon in skillet till lightly browned, drain and crumble. Cook noodles in saucepan according to package directions, using 1 teaspoon salt in water. In large chafing dish over canned heat, melt butter. Add drained spinach and bacon, cook till heated through. Add cooked noodles to chafing dish and toss lightly. Proper Grooming, Care Important For Dogs

Family News Staff

"A dog's hair needs brushing often, just like a human's. They need to be bathed regularly also. After all, how would humans feel if they were only bathed and brushed once or twice a year?" said C.L. Eudy, professional dog groomer and han-

Eudy has been grooming and handling dogs for the past 20 years.

"I was a freshman art student in college and had never groomed a dog before. It all just sort of happened one day when I started to work" he said.

Dogs should be taught and trained when young so they understand and enjoy being groomed," he advised A dog needs to be brushed all the way to the skin. That will stimulate the skin oil which helps the hair to stay healthy. A comb can be used on the longer haired breeds to remove tangles and 'finish' the grooming.

Eudy said there isn't a big difference between the way a show dog is groomed and the way an ordinary dog should look. 'If it looks the way the particular breed is supposed to look, then there just isn't much difference. A dog that is often groomed differently for a show is the poodle," he said.

Eudy said it is important to keep the teeth and ears cleaned, (a dog should be given hard biscuits or a 'chew' bone for his teeth.), and should be taken to a veterinarian to have its teeth 'scaled' when a brownish substance forms, according to

As for bathing a dog, Eudy advises use of a special dog shampoo only, never a shampoo designed for humans. Even baby shampoo, he points out, although mild, contains a detergent which dries

Good skin care happens from the inside, according to Eudy. Dogs in this area tend to have dry skin, according to Eudy, because of the wind and dust. When feeding Eudy advises a mix of dry and canned dog food. "I really don't think a canned dog food alone gives a quite balanced meal," he said.

Eudy also said that a dog needs accessto water at all times.

"When we are traveling to or from shows, then we regulate the water, to avoid constant stopping to keep the dogs comfortable, but when we reach our destination the dogs have all the water they

Eudy said when buying grooming materials, an owner should shop around till he finds a pet store where he can find the correct materials for his breed of dog.

"Or, best of all, go to dog shows in your area and buy from the dealers there. There will be a dog show April 22 in Lubbock," he noted.

As a final precaution Eudy advises that every dog be taken to a veterinarian at least twice a year for a general check up and, most important, for the examination

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - Despite the stereotypes society has created about the old, older workers can contribute a great deal to businesses, believes Joseph J. Klos, professor of economics at Oklahoma State University.

"Older workers are actually less accident-prone, more careful and more patient," he said. "They have a lower absenteeism rate. Their total output may decline some, but that's not always true. On the whole, they are steady, loyal and dependable - more so than younger workers. "Combine this with increased experi-

Klos feels that it's important to realize that extra stress can cause additional physical problems in some situations.

"If you let the individual go just because he has a heart condition and cannot take the hard pressure, the company loses the individual's expertise and wisdom," he said. "If he continues to work under the stress, it may cause another heart attack or death - with the same result to the company.

the responsibility of personnel managers, Klos points out. "If they think that the older workers should be doing the same amount of high-pressure work as the younger executive, then they don't understand the process of aging," Klos said.

"If companies will take the aging worker into consideration, make small allowances for him - just as they do younger workers with families and individuals with handicaps — they will have much happier and more productive workers."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Evangelist Billy Graham says he plans a return engagement here this summer, the scene of a 1967 crusade he calls "the most outstanding crusade ever held in America."

The four communities served by the line - Sleepy Eye, Redwood Falls, Morgan and Evan - will have rail service for at least another year. During that period, crews will replace ties and shore up the railbed so trains can travel at 10 miles per hour - faster than they go now on many stretches of the line.

If the contract is extended next year the rails will be replaced to handle heavier traffic.

The railroad has federal permission to abandon service on the century-old line. Rails are too light to carry modern grain hopper cars and the original railbed has deteriorated. Trains run once a week.

The shippers hope rehabilitation will help the line make money again. And the railroad company says it will run trains on the line if shippers subsidize it.

The Minnesota Transportation Department says several other state branch lines are candidates for operating subsidies. But they must be approved by the Intertate Commerce Commission for abandonment before they become eligi-

Maine Governor Pitches Spuds

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) - "Tell them

Maine potato growers, locked in a spuds battle wih other states, try to boost their product. The people who put together the ad campaign say it has been very successful. It features the nation's only independent governor as a spokesman for one of his state's top industries. But Longley has received some very adverse comments and even some rotten potatoes - from about 100 disappointed buyers.

The Longley television ads ran for four weeks in New York and Boston earlier this year in a campaign that cost $65,000. Gordon Dunn, of Dunn, Theobald & Johnson Inc., said his firm received statistics showing a 122 percent increase in potato sales the first week of the campaign in New York compared to the same week one year ago. But Dunn said there was "no substantial gain" in Boston, because that city now has a "big competitive market

Even so, Dunn says "from every indication we get, we have to term this a successful advertising campaign." So successful that a $100,000 campaign using the same ad was recently launched in Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and New York.

Maine ships 10,000 railroad cars each carrying 55,000 pounds of potatoes from the state annually, meaning 550 million pounds of the product leave the state each year. Last season that meant a $138.3 million industry for Maine.

Figures aren't in for this year yet. Growers had been contemplating a tough season because of adverse weather, but Dunn says the governor's ads are helping Royals stadium, with a seating capacity improve that outlook. "The governor pulled off the message real well in a year of 40,600, was available only on the final when we needed it," he says.

The 30-second ads stress dollar value. nutritional value and taste of Maine potatoes. They finish with the governor gesturing with both thumbs up, and saying, "Tell them the governor sent you." The spots run about 50 times a week in each market, Dunn said.

Longley's office, his appearance and the fact that he was a successful insurance salesman before his election might have something to do with the success of the campaign, Dunn sald. "The governor has been doing a good job for Maine potatoes," he said. But Longley's office and the ease with which a person can mail something to the governor in care of the Statehouse has made him a more accessible potato spokesman than people who participated in the ads in the past, such as actress June Lockhart who promoted potatoes one year ago.

About 100 people who didn't think the potatoes lived up to the governor's billing responded with critical notes, letters and packages.

The governor's office received some mail containing a single spud. Other packages contained an entire box of pota-

Mrs. Marilyn Proulx, executive director of the commission, says there have been fewer negative comments this year than ever before, but the letters are all going to the same person - Longley. The ads are paid for by a state potato tax of two cents per hundred pounds. That covers costs of promotion, advertising and research for the potato industry. "Maine people say their potatoes are far superior to Idaho potatoes," Longley said. "I'm very proud of the potatoes we ship out." But he says the advertisements, which he did on the condition might be considered politicking, strengthened his resolve not to allow a decrease in penalties for people who ship poor quality potatoes from Maine.

During the journey tempers flared in the damp, cramped quarters where disease was rampant and food and provisions scarce. Shortly after departing, many valuable supplies were lost in a severe storm which immobilized the ships for six weeks. Afterwards, the vulnerable fleet proceeded along the circuitous route of the time through the Canary and Carribbean Islands.

Even by standards of the early 17th century, the vessels were small. The flagship Susan Constant

In anticipation of the 350th anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, the Virginia General Assembly in 1957 commissioned the rebuilding of these ships as fullscale, sea-worthy replicas, correct in every detail.

Tourists Flock To Crater Of Diamonds

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (UPI) - the clumps of dried black gumbo dirt belt and remembered the first diamonds he found 68 years ago.

Williams, revisiting a scene from his childhood, was again searching for riches at the site of the only diamond mine in North America. Around him were the people who paid their $2 admission to Crater of Diamonds State Park with the hope of making a strike.

Williams grew up in Murfreesboro and began loking for the gems only a few years after farmer John Huddleston found the first shiny pebbles in his field. "It's a thrill for people to come in here and look for diamonds," said Williams, surveying the barren 78-acre field. "Of course, they think they're going to be just lying all over the ground. 'Some even bring paper sacks in case they can't carry them all in their pockets. If there were as many diamonds in here as people want, they'd be like Confederate money, they wouldn't be worth anything."

However, enough diamonds are found by tourists - 378 last year - to keep them comung back.

John Williams tucked his trowel in his since 1952, when the owner of the unsuccessful diamond mine opened business with a finders-keepers field. The parks department, which took over in 1972, estimated last year one of every 248 prospectors discovered hsparkler.

Houston-London Fares Announced By Airline

WASHINGTON (AP) - British Caledonia Airways this week announced cut rate air fares between Houston and London. The fares are based on the class of ticket and when it is purchased rather than on the length of stay that some airlines use in determining discounts. The least expensive ticket is $159 oneway for passengers who buy thrift-class tickets two hours before departure. The top fare is $779 one-way for first class.

Alastair T. Pugh, managing director of British Caledonia, said a one-way executive class ticket is $413. An executive class ticket for as little as $375 is available to those who fly with no layovers, change of airlines or other ticketing complica-

A thrift section ticket costs $199 when bought 21 days in advance. There is a refund penalty of 25 percent of the ticket's cost when the reservation is canceled. Meals are optional at $6.

Travelers showing up at the airport two hours before flight time can buy thriftclass tickets and get a place in line for unreserved seats that are not sold at full price by takeoff time.

When it comes time to board, those passengers at the head of the thrift-section line get on until all the section seats are filled. The others get their money

Pugh said studies show that length of stay, the standard critria for bargain fares, "had abolutely nothing to do with the airplane's costs.'

The fisst flight from Houston with the new rates took off with 89 percent of the plane's seats filled, compared to an average of about 55 percent for the past two

Astroworld Unveils New Thrill Ride

By CONNIE SHERLEY

HOUSTON (Special) - If you visited one or more of this country's theme parks last season and wondered, "What will they think of next?" make plans to head for Astroworld where a thrill ride called "Greezed Lightnin" is being unveiled this season.

The newest scream machine at the Houston theme park is a loop coaster that ride experts say "offers more thrills per second than any ride in the world." That's quite a claim to spine-tingling fame, since "Greezed Lightnin" shares ground with Astroworld's world-renowned "Texas Cyclone," a devilish wooden roller coaster with high speed, curves and dips so daring Robert Cartmell, considered the world's thrill ride expert, last year ranked it as the number one thriller on his elite list of the top ten roller coasters.

"Greezed Lightnin" takes off like a rocket through the use of a catapulting drive mechanism that propels 28 riders from a standstill to 60 miles an hour in less than four seconds. The car orbits upside down, around a loop 80 feet high, then shoots up a 138-foot incline at a 70 degree angle. There's a momentary, breath-catching pause before the ride reverses and drops, repeating the spine-chilling experience, only this time - backwards. Time elapsed: 30 seconds.

During that half minute, riders experience the split-second thrill sensations of acceleration, near weightlessness, upside down and backward motion, plus a maximum force of 6 G's and an ear shattering number of E's that are the vocal measure of a thrill ride's success.

"The shuttle loop has more varied thrills than any other ride," says Rein-hold Spieldiener, creator of "Greezed Lightnin". As vice president of Intar a company headquartered in Zurich, Switzerland, Spieldiener has spent the last decade producing one-of-a-kind thrill rides for theme and amusement parks all over the world.

His criteria for a spine-tingling ride includes "a different movement, one which a human being can't experience otherwise. The stronger it is, the greater the thrill."

Since thrill rides range from $1.5 to $4 million to produce, Intamin doesn't build on speculation. Once an idea is marketed. work really begins, so when management of Astroworld gave the go-ahead, engi-neers did studies to see if the ride was technically and economically feasible. From there the ride concept underwent preliminary engineering, and when plans were ready for the construction stage, the work scene switched from Switzer-

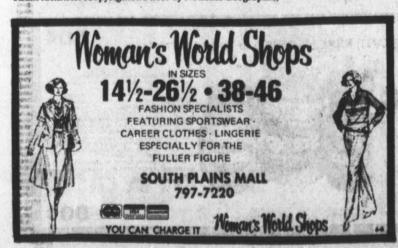

The country that gave the world Volk-swagens and Octoberfest also produces most of the roller coasters that traditionally lure thrill seekers to amusen parks. At Munsterhausen, 70 miles west of Munich, nearly one-fifth of the quiet, quaint village's population of 1,200 peo-ple work in the Schwartzkopf factory.

The Schwartzkopf company started in 1924 as a workshop that specialized in fabricating gypsy wagons. The founder's son and present plant owner, Anton Schwartzkopf, began working for his father as a wheelwright. In 1955 the com-pany built its first ride for an amusement park, a merry-go-round, and in 1964, the first roller coaster was completed. In 15 years, Schwartzkopf has become known as the largest European manufacturer of coasters, and each one is hand-made.

Sheats Opposes Canal Treaties

Avalanche-Journal Staff Speaking to a group of Texas Tech law students Wednesday, Morris Sheats found himself searching for answers to complex foreign policy questions.

The candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination had no trouble, though, expressing his sentiments about the ratification of the Panama Canal treaties - he opposed it.

Sheats said he had never been "convinced we would have strong military control over the canal" under the treat-

"I believe the object of worldwide communism is to control the waterlanes of the world," Sheats said, adding the Panama Canal could fit into that plan.

The Trinity Church pastor said, "It seems today we've moved into the age of appeasement (in foreign policy) and we need to look carefully at our attitude."

Sheats said since the Vietnam War American leaders are "trying not to get the country involved" in foreign entanglements. However, when asked how much the U.S. should interfere in the affairs of countries which want to be independent, Sheats replied he "struggles inside" over the answer. "We're playing big brother way too much and we're playing too much of a role in the internal affairs of other countries," he said. But he declined to specify what was too much interference in other countries. Sheats said he differs very little from his opponent, state Sen. Kent Hance, in philosophy, but said there is a gulf between the two in campaign styles.

Cutbacks Discussed By Farmers

(Continued From Page One) Texas wants to remain a loose-knit organization as it has been since its inception bout six months ago.

McCathern noted that the national group wants each state to keep two representatives in Washington.

In an opening statement, he reviewed the Washington initiative and said it was a success despite the failure of the bill last Wednesday in the House of Representatives. "Every one of you has been in one of the greatest grassroots movements that this country has ever seen," he said. "I don't think Washington will ever be the same again.

He said the farmers were never expect ed to get a farm aid bill out of the Senate Agriculture Committee or to get it passed in the Senate or onto the floor of the House without its being changed contrary to their wishes.

McCathern said the group had commitments for 220 favorable votes on the morning of the vote but that pressure from President Carter changed enough votes to alter the outcome to 268 votes against to only 150 in favor.

voted against the bill. 'We're going to have to go back to the fields," he said, "We're going to see a slack time in the movement. We'll be in a dormant stage. "We need to build our army, so to speak, and we need to build a war chest so that when we have to take up the banner again, go back to Washington, we'll be ready.

McCathern said farmers should consi der candidates for office on whether they supported the farm aid bill or whether they will support the movement after they are elected.

He declared "a vendetta" against U.S.

Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, the House majority leader, and said AAM members will interview the Republican opponent of Wright in the fall election to "If any one individual was instrumental in defeating our bill, it was him," McCathern said. "I hate to admit that someone from Texas could do that to us, but he did."

The meeting had statewide representation, with speakers announcing they were from such widely separated counties as Hall, Bell, Bosque, Terry, Johnson, Scurry, Hidalgo, Gaines, Garza and Haskell.

The auditorium was almost full through most of the afternoon, although people started leaving about 4:30 p.m. until no more than several hundred were left as the meeting went past 6 p.m.

Smith Calls Briscoe 'Absentee Governor'

By United Press International Attorney General John Hill today said Gov. Dolph Briscoe's refusal to help the property tax reform effort during the last Legislature left Houston homeowners open to selective revaluations.

"Back during the 1977 legislative session, when it really counted, Gov. Briscoe was holding out on the issue of property taxes," said Hill during a news conference at a Houston residence

"I testified in favor of the bill by Rep. Wayne Peveto to provide uniform appraisal standards and procedures while Gov. Briscoe was taking long weekends in Uvalde," said the attorney general. Hill said city tax assessed valuation in Houston had tripled this year.

Briscoe, seeking a third term, said his administration has greatly improved state services without the burden of new taxes. He said Wednesday that policy "would go out the window if (Attorney General) John Hill manages to promise his way in the Governor's office. Former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock, also seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination against Briscoe and Hill, was in Cuero and called the incumbent an "absentee governor." Smith also referred to a report by Sen.

Clements said he would not use the office to enhance his career.

"I'm not looking for clients or business," he said. Hill Wednesday charged Briscoe with borrowing almost $1 million to finance his campaign.

"No governor of Texas has ever asked for 10 years in office, and Dolph Briscoe is having to overcome this tradition by flooding the campaign with money he borrowed from seven banks totaling $900,000 to finance his media blitz," Hill said at Sherman. "Texas has rejected empire-building by governors in the past, and I predict even

NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.85 to $2.25 a bale lower Wednesday.

Commercial hedge selling overcame speculative demand for contracts and prices closed lower, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton advanced 50 points to 55.42 cents a pound Tuesday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Bergland Wants Office Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he wants to reduce the number of offices his depart-ment operates in individual counties around the country as part of an internal reorganization plan.

The Agriculture Department has about 16,000 offices representing various agencies and functions scattered among the nation's 3,000 counties, including regional and state offices.

al and state offices.

"Everyone knows that if you were going to re-invent the Department of Agriculture you wouldn't have three or four offices representing USDA in every county in the country," Bergland said.

"So we're looking at it from that standpoint," he said. "We don't intend to close down the counties, we simply respect these

Bergland's remarks were in an interview earlier this week in which he also was asked about President Carter's plan to transfer a number of programs from various departments into a new Department of Education.

One of the proposed transfers involves the annual $2.5 billion child nutrition program, including school lunches, operated by Bergland's department.

Bergland said that "we had recom-

Last fall, when it appeared that HEW Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. was seeking to take over some of Agriculture's programs, Bergland staunchly defended USDA's expertise and track record in administering food stamps, school lunches, food inspection and similar programs.

Bergland was not clear on the long-

Thus, some further streamlining at the national level — depending on how the Carter administration's over-all reorgani-zation blueprint evolves — can be expected within USDA.

Florida Butcher Makes House Calls

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - When David Bar- and quarters it with an electric saw. nett makes a housecall, it's not with a doctor's black bag but with a rifle and knives.

Barnett is a traveling butcher who kills cows, pigs or sheep and slaughters them in backyards, barnyards or pastures. He can have an animal shot, quartered and hung in his refrigerated truck in 30 minutes or less.

And Barnett says his method is easier on the animal and its owner's palate.

"When you get an animal excited, the adrenalin starts flowing, and that makes the meat tough," he said. "When you kill it in its own environment, it's a lot bet-

Barnett has been a traveling butcher in a 30-mile radius for the past six years and now slaughters about 30 animals each

He charges a $15-slaughter fee and $18 per 100 pounds for the butcher service. The investment results in a freezer full of meat at a total cost of less than 70 cents per pound, Barnett said.

Barnett says the grisly job often attracts an audience.

"When we do it near the road, there are a lot strained necks when people driving by turn to watch," he said. "A lot of people think meat comes out of some machine."

The process is simple. The 30-year-old tradesman loads his .22-caliber magnum rifle, crouches by the pen and fires once. The animal falls without a sound, a bullet between the eyes.

"It's like turning out a light," Barnett

As Barnett attaches a hook to the anitruck with the help of an electric winch, his assistant Tim Grinbille sharpens a long knife and slits the animal's throat.

Barnett cuts open the hide and skins the cow. The hide is later sold to a leather company. Barnett then guts the body,

Bank Trust Practices Questioned In Suit

and MYRON KANDEL

At the end of last year, the country's banks, through their trust departments, were managing about $486 billion of other people's investment money. Hopefully, they weren't all doing it like the 10 banks described in the Securities and Exchange Commission's suit against Sun Oil

The suit, filed early last month, charges that Sun, along with one of its subsidiaries, two Wall Street brokerage firms and other defendants, illegally gathered up 34 percent of the stock of Becton Dickinson Co., a New Jersey manufacturer of health products, in what amounted to an overnight raid last January. Almost 1.2 million of the shares were bough from banks that held the stock in trust for

Sun paid $45 a share for the stock, more than $12 a share above the stock's quotation at the time on the New York Stock Exchange - a premium of more than 36 percent. It seems, though, that although the banks are presumed to be looking out for their clients' interests, they went along instead with Sun's demand for secrecy and didn't tell a lot of people who pay good money for the banks to take care of their investments.

The only ones who had a shot at the offer were accounts where the banks themselves had the power to make all buy and sell decisions. If the banks had to check with anybody else - a co-trustee or the counts were never told about the prem-

As the court papers describe it, partners at Salomon Brothers and F. Eberstadt & Co. contacted banks aroud the country to find out if they would be interested in selling the Becton shares they held for clients. The decision had to be made fast and the offer kept secret.

Those that agreed were contacted later by an official of Sun's subsidiary - or its lawyer - and the purchases were made after the stock market closed on Jan. 16. The list of bank holders came from Salomon's computers. Salomon is the biggest handler of large blocks of stock in Wall Street and keeps detailed records of who owns what, so its traders will know whom to contct when there's a trade to

Some of the banks sold, some didn't, but only one bank apparently thought beyond a select group of its own customers. Morgan Guarantly Trust Co. told the brokers it wouldn't discuss the deal because it felt the offer should be made to all Becton holders and not limited to a chosen few. (Making the offer to everybody would have required reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission and would have given Becton's management a chance to fight back. As it was, the Becton people didn't know anything until a phone call from the NYSE telling them trading had been held up in their stock.)

Other banks didn't look at it the same way. American Security and Trust of Washington, D.C., for example, agreed to sell 180,700 shares that it held in 42 accounts over which it had sole decisionmaking power. (The bank was wrong about its digression over one of those accounts, but the stock was sold, anyway.) But American Security also held 6,500 shares of Becton stock in 16 other accounts where it had to get somebody else's approval. According to the SEC papers, none of those accounts was even told of the offer.

First National Bank of Boston sold 778:734 shares from 100 discretionary accounts. It also held 62,000 shares in 119 other accounts for which it couldn't act alone; it had 7,300 shares for which somebody else made the decisions, and it had about 25,000 shares held just for safekeeping. None of those clients was given a shot at the Sun offer.

Even the banks that didn't sell stock kept many of their own clients in the dark. U.S. Trust Co. of New York had 34,-930 shares in 48 discretionary accounts and decided not to sell. The bank also had 144 other accounts with 418,888 shares of Becton stock and didn't tell them about the offer.

DEAR READER - There is a great deal of confusion about what arthritis is. Osteoporosis is not arthritis, but most of the public calls it arthritis. It is degeneration of the bone because of actual loss of bone tissue, and it is most often present in women after the menopause. It is five times more common in women who have been on a calcium-deficient di-

Osteoarthritis is a wear and tear disease and is the result of wearing of the joint surfaces. It may be associated with formation of bony spines. Almost everyone gets some of this if he lives long enough.

So I am sending you both The Health Letter 4-10, Osteoarthritis and 6-10, Osteoporosis. You could very well have both at the same time. You will be able to sort out from the two issues what these two conditions are like. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for either of the two issues with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had some stomach and chest X-rays during my period. The next month I missed my period and it turned out I was pregnant. About a month later I started spotting and had a spontaneous abor-

I have accepted this and I am not bitter over what has happened. My question is to ease my conscience about having the X-rays. Could these have damaged the fetus and caused the abortion when I conceived two weeks later?

DEAR READER - Rest your conscience; they had nothing to do with it. Women in the child-bearing age in the United States have about 7.5 million conceptions a year and 3.75 million of these end in spontaneous abortion whether or not the motherto-be has any X-rays taken. Abortions occur then in over half of all preg-

MORE MONEY

MORE FUN

To this observation I should add that the risk of a birth defect from Xrays during pregnancy is so small that the major consideration is whether the mother-to-be needs an X-ray for her own medical problems or not. If she does she should have it. Birth defects occur in nearly as many births to mothers who have had no X-rays as those who have had such mostic X-rays. Yes, there is some slight increase in risk but it is small.

The question often comes up whether a mother-to-be should have a abortion if she has had X-rays and then finds out she is pregnant. The American College of Radiology researched the point and discovered that you would have to destroy 1000 normal pregnancies to prevent the birth of one child with some form — often minor — of birth defect.

And you should know that the danger period to the fetus is thought to begin about the time of conception. Since you were having your periods and tended to be regular that means you were still two weeks ahead of this time when you had your X-rays. Conception should not have occurred until two weeks before your next expected period.

Punishment In Schools Discussed

By PATRICIA McCORMACK NEW YORK (UPI) - Dr. Irwin A. Hyman, a Temple University psychology professor, said this week the "child abuse establishment" should crusade against corporal punishment in the nation's schools.

It was a year ago Thursday — last April 19 — that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the cruel and unusual punishment clause the cruel and unusual punishment clause of the Eighth Amendment did not apply to the use of corporal public schoolchildren.

Hyman, director of the National Center for the Study of Corporal Punishment and Alternatives in the School, put down his challenge at the National Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect.

The Center is supported by money from foundations, including the Playboy Foundation and the Randen Foundation, and help also comes from Temple and the National Institute of Education

Hyman said the Supreme Court's deci-sion on corporal punishment in schools reinforces "a horrible habit in the child-raising arena — slapping and hitting.

"Parents hitting children as an accepted form of changing behavior when they are raising children is part of the child are raising children is part of the child abuse picture," Hyman said at the con-ference attended by 2,000 child protec-tion workers from across the nation. "If the child abuse establishment is interested in prevention, it will also fight smacking one's children as a socially ac-smacking one's children as a socially acceptable parental right."

The Center has been studying the effects of the Supreme Court ruling on corporal punishment in the 46 states that are without state laws to protect schoolchildren. New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maine and Hawaii have such laws.

Hyman said research continues to show that corporal punishment doesn't work in the schools. He said it has been estabthe schools. He had it has been easilished that paddling and other forms of corporal punishment decreases learning, creates anxiety and humiliates the child.

"It also reinforces peer status of kids who can take the punishment," he said,

Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra issued a 30-page ruling this week sharply criticizing the boy's parents, Gerald and Diane Green of Scituate, Mass., who have waged a court fight since February to keep their son from undergoing the "poisonous" treatments.

Volterra said the Greens may stop the treatment only if Chad suffers a relapse and doctors determine there is no chance for a cure. The family lawyer, George Donovan, said he may appeal the decision to the Massachusetts Supreme Court. The ruling came nearly three weeks after Hingham District Judge Martha Ware ruled the child's parents had the right to treat the youngster on their own with natural foods and juices.

Massachusetts General Hospital, which sued to gain custody of Chad, appealed that ruling to Plymouth Superior Court. Chad has been undergoing chemotherapy since then while Volterra considered the

Dr. John Truman, the doctor administering the chemotherapy, has testified that Chad will die "within six months" without the treatment

But the Greens say their boy is "terrified" of chemotherapy and say they would rather see him "go to a better place than suffer with poisonous drugs and needles '

"I find that they (the Greens) have a fear of chemotherapy which is not supported by the evidence in the case." Volterra ruled. "I find that they have totally failed to show that an alternative treatment is available. I find that their intended course of a happy but short life for the minor (Chad) will only lead to the immediate and painful death of the minor.

"I find their course of conduct unreasonable and against the long-term best interest of the minor. I find that a rational, competent individual would unhesitantly choose to submit to chemotherapy and that this choice, if made by the minor, would be based on his actual interests and preferences."

Volterra said medical custody of Chad will remain with the state Public Welfare Department "to insure parental compli-

It is unlikely, even in days of in-out trading, for an institution to buy in and sell out within so short a time. More likely, it seems, the sellers were those who had owned their shares for much longer

By CHET CURRIER NEW YORK (AP) — Cash has been steadily piling up in the portfolios of the nation's mutual funds lately, with fundmanagers following a cautious approach And the accumulation of liquid re-serves has begun to stir some optimism among analysts who use the figures as a tool for forecasting the market.

The idea is that heavy buildups of cash, and holdings of short term money-market securities such as Treasury bills among the funds often precede market upturns. In late 1974, for example, the funds' ratio of such holdings to their total assets peaked at 13.5 percent, just before an explosive rally that ended a long bear.

"Over the years, the cash position of mutual funds has proven to be a valuable tool in forecasting market turns," the Securities Industry Association observed in a recent discussion of the subject.

The SIA noted that the latest figures as compiled by the Investment Company Institute, for February, showed the funds with 9.9 percent of their assets in cash.

While still well short of the 1974 record, that figure marked the highest level in three years. Excluding figures from corporate bond and municipal bond funds, which aren't involved with the stock market, the February cash percentage actually came to an estimated 10.3 percent, the SIA pointed out.

"Since mutual funds supposedly represent 'smart money' under professional administration, one might presume that they would be able to call market turns quite closely and adjust their portfolios accordingly," observed Norman Fos-back, president of the Institute for Econometric Research, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla -based investment advisory firm. "Just the opposite is the case. As a barometer of investor psychology, the mutual fund cash ratio acts as a contrary indicator. Professional money managers tend to be wrong at market extremes

Local Man Held For Robberies By PAT CARLSON Avalanche-Journal Staff

The man charged with robbing the Smuggler's Inn here earlier this month remained in Lubbock County Jail today in lieu of $100,000 bond after it was learned he has been accused of similar incidents in other Texas cities.

Danny Burtist Eoff, 23, of 2130 74th St. was arrested at his home late Tuesday on a felony warrant from El Paso. He has been charged with the aggravated robbery there earlier this year of the Nantucket Lobster Trap Restaurant in which he allegedly got over $1,900.

Ironically, Eoff was out of jail on an ap-peal bond after a Midland jury found him guilty of aggravated robbery last summer. The suspect had been accused of robbing the Sonic Drive-In Restaurant of $991 in that city on April 7, 1977.

He reportedly had been sentenced to 15 years following his conviction. Eoff was arrested here on April 2 of this year after a masked gunman made off with $999 from the 1915 50th St. Smuggler's Inn.

In that incident, the robber reportedly confronted an employee leaving the building about 3 a.m. and ordered her back inside the business. The witness said the masked man led her into the dining area where several employees were gathering after work and ordered them into a cold-storage vault.

Assistant manager Michael Earl Sandell said the man made him lead the way to the bar, where the bandit reportedly ordered seven more employees to lie face-down on the floor as he and Sandell went into the office and emptied the safe. After the man had put money in a sack, the robber ordered employees on the barroom floor into the vault, which he then Unknown to the bandit, two of the imprisoned workers had called authorities. Sheriff's Deputy Dean Bohannon was waiting outside and the suspect was arrested after a brief chase. After being charged with the crime, Eoff was released from jail April 12 after posting $5,000 bond.

Police Tuesday received information that the warrant for the suspect had been issued in El Paso.

According to reports, Cpl. Dale Holton knew the suspect had been working at a Lubbock club and when police went to the business Tuesday they learned the man still was employed there, but had called in sick.

Officers then went to the suspect's residence and after seeing his car in the driveway, went to the door. A woman at the house at first said the man was at work, but after her statement was challenged by police, the suspect walked into the room and was arrested.

Young Orators Win Contest

Rene Graham of Abernathy and Bekki Reyes of Ralls won the recent 1978 ora-Plains Electric Cooperative in Lubbock. They will receive expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C. in June for the Government-In-Action Youth Tour, sponsored by Texas Electric Cooperatives, according to Sam Owings of Lubbock, information and power use manager. Other finalists included Robin Reeves of Woodrow, Connie Boone of Shallowater, Cindy Henley of Smyer and Wesley Burres of Idalou.

Each finalist received a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

There's been a lot written about how citizens band radio is being used as a way of protecting against speeding tickets on the highway. This is often cited as the prime reason for its tremendous growth. Other reasons are mere window dressing, it is said.

One support of his theory is the widespread use of an instrument called the Fuzzbuster, a device its manufacturers say monitors police radar. It is reasonably small in size, sits on your dashboard, and sounds your attention when it receives the signal being transmitted by a radar. The idea is that as you are tooling down the highway at some speed in excess of 55 miles per hour you get a loud beep indicating Smokey is beaming in. You slow down to the legal limit and Smokey is left with a blank speeding ticket on his pad.

It backs up the old CB warning: "Put the hammer in your tool box - Smokey with camera ahead at I-XX." Or at least that's the way the story goes.

There are reportly several million radar monitors in operation on the highways. The biggest manufacturer of these units is Electrolert, the company that makes the Fuzzbuster. Located in Troyu, Ohio, it was founded by its inventer,

The use of the Fuzzbuster is sufficiently widespread that there are laws in some states aimed at outlawing them.

However, the market potential, according to manufacturers in the field, is eight million units. Truckers represent about 40 percent of the present owners, while the other buyers are classified as people who travel a great deal in business. The units are sold through the same retail outlets as citizens band radios.

"We don't look upon the Fuzzbuster as an important escape mechanism from speeding limits," said Inspector Hamp Sears, Florida State Highway Patrol. "By the time the pickup has been made by the Fuzzbuster, we've got it in the patrol car, too. Besides that, we also use six aircraft on the Florida Turnpike for enforcement.

But other states, like Virginia, Minnesota and Wisconsin, view the radar detector as something of a threat to law enforcement. As for the manufacturer it is stated as Electrolert company policy that their device tends to help maintain the speed limit.

"People have a right to know that radar is in use, and this knowledge helps maintain the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit," explained Fred Huntsman, vice president of Electrolert, when asked if this instrument was not sold for the express purpose of aiding people to break the law. "We think it has exactly the reverse effect and helps the police.

This column has repeatedly stated that it believes CB is a communications medium, and that those who bought units for the purpose of breaking the law were fadists. What you see in the Fuzzbuster and its use is your business. But CB and radar monitoring units are not to be confused.

120 Million View TV Docu-Drama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tragic story of Jewish genocide by Nazi Germany reached an estimated 120 million American TV viewers this week. It was the same story that Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal has told to thousands for 30 years.

NBC's four-part docu-drama, "Holocaust," told in terms of one fictitious family named Weiss, reached more peple in four nights than Wiesenthal has spoken to in his 69 years. The network made the estimate of how many people watched "Holocaust."

"I cannot say I am happy, because to say you are happy in connection with the Holocaust is wrong," said Wiesenthal, who saw much of the series. "But I say it is good that they made it."

Wiesenthal said he did not think the TV story overstated the brutality that occurred in the death camps of World War

"The human language is inadequate to express the terror; you cannot present all the cruel situations," he said.

The Nazi hunter spoke in an interview Tuesday at the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies, now under contention in West Lee Appeles struction in West Los Angeles.

The only one of its kind in the country.

J.M.Pinney Named To HEW Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's war on smoking today gained a general who was recruited from the battle against alcoholism.

John M. Pinney was named first director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's new Office on Smoking and Health by HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Pinney, 34, had worked for the National Council on Alcoholism, a private organization, for five years, and has directed its Washington office since 1975.

Like Califano, Pinney is an former smoker. He quit the habit early this year, before Califano launched his anti-smoking campaign and before Pinney knew he was being considered for the job, an HEW spokesman said.

Califano began his campaign Jan. 11, on the 14th anniversary of the first surgeon general's report that warned of the health hazards of smoking. Califano's $29.8 million program includes increased spending on smoking research and on disseminating anti-smoking materials to schools, the media and the public.

Pinney previously had managed programs to fight alcoholism in major corporations in nine U.S. cities under a $2.8 million federal grant.

Califano announced the appointment in Denver in a speech to the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials.

The HEW secretary said in a state.

The HEW secretary said in a statement: "As director of a major program to educate the citizens of this country to the dangers of alcohol, (Pinney) understands fully the equally urgent need for educating people — particularly teenagers and those who have not yet begun to smoke — to the dangers and problems associated with tobacco."

Pinney, a former Navy officer, worked as an HEW analyst from 1971 to 1973.

FBI Says Countries Exceed Activities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some countries "exceed the norm" in their diplomatic activities in this country but none of these actions approach the size of the Korean influence-buying scandal, the FBI director says.

William H. Webster said Wednes-

William H. Webster said Wednesday, "We've brought these problems to the attention of various security agencies. They are aware of the problems."

The FBI director told the Senate subcommittee on appropriations he would provide more details only in a closed sesthe center is dedicated to keeping alive the memory of the Holocaust, the name given to the systematic elimination of 11 million people by the Nazis in World War II. Six million of the victims were Jews like Wiesenthal. Wiesenthal, through his Vienna-based Documentation Center, has labored to Documentation Center, has labored to track down and secure the extradition and conviction of about 1,000 former Nazis responsible for genocide, including SS official Adolf Eichmann, who was hanged in Israel in 1962.

"I don't agree with a number of details (in the show) ... but these are little things," said Wiesenthal, who spent 4½ years in Nazi prison camps. He referred specifically to the portrayal of SS officers as having military-like ranks.

"These were not soldiers. Soldiers fight with a risk, but these people fight with no risk ... The German Army veterans didn't even want the SS included in their ranks. The SS was a criminal organization.

"Look, there were 10 million Nazi party members in Germany, but only 150,000 committed crimes ... This 30 years I'm not fighting against Nazi party members, only against these people who commit crimes ... We are not anti-German."

He said that portraying one family heightened the show's impact.

"The big impact of the diary of Anne Frank was not the story of a million children, it was the story of a young girl," he noted.

It was Wiesenthal who tracked down the Gestapo agent who arrested Anne Frank, a Dutch teen-ager who kept a journal while hiding from the Nazis, and sent her to the concentration camp where she died.

"I think this was good that they took a family, very good ... Eichmann himself said that 100 killed people is a catastrophe, but a million killed people is a statistic."

Wiesenthal is touring the United States to explain the atrocities and raise funds for his Nazi hunt.

Wiesenthal believes the United States should deport what he estimates are 100 former members of the SS — members and volunteers in units that helped kill civilians.

INDIAN LEADER CONGRATULATED — Indian leader Dennis Banks was congratulated with a hug by friend Louis Risling Wednesday shortly after Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced he would not extradite Banks to South Dakota where he faces sentencing for an assault and rioting conviction. Banks Extradition Bid Refused By California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Despite California's refusal to extradite American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks, South Dakota Attorney General William Janklow says his state will continue trying to bring Banks back for sentencing on riot and assault charges.

Banks, who says Janklow is using the case to win the gubernatorial election, adds that he's afraid Janklow would resort to kidnapping.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., on Wednesday refused to extradite Banks.

In a telelphone interview, Janklow said "there are other things (South Dakota can do), but they're not the kind of things I ought to be discussing publicly."

"I will increase my security now that this first hurdle is over, because I know the man will stoop to anything. I wouldn't rule out kidnapping," Banks said. Banks, 45, a Chippewa who now teaches at an Indian university near Sacramento, was convicted in 1975 on riot and assault charges stemming from a 1973 Custer County courthouse riot by Indians angered over the failure of authorities to charge a white man with the slaying of an Indian.

He fled South Dakota shortly after his conviction and refused to return for sent-encing, claiming that if he ever entered South Dakota prisons he would never leave them alive.

In a letter to South Dakota Gov. Richard Kneip, Brown said an investigation by his office concluded that Banks would be in physical danger if he returned to South Dakota and was sentenced to prison there. "I really wonder how many more of our felons you people want," Janklow said. "We have a lot of people in trouble in South Dakota who insist if they can live in California like Dennis Banks they'll be law-abiding out there.

Janklow's "whole career is based on the conviction of Dennis Banks," Banks said of Janklow, a Republican candidate for governor of South Dakota.

Singers Protest Nuclear Plants

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 40 entertainers, including John Denver, Linda Ronstadt, James Taylor and Carly Simon, have signed a petition to President Carter calling for a halt to the construction of nuclear power plants.

The petition, calling nuclear power "a grave threat to life on his planet," was also sent to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and members of Congress.

"I am usually cautious about lending my name to causes in general," Taylor said at a news conference Wednesday, "but I believe the future of the planet is at stake." Joining Taylor at the news conference were Miss Simon, who is his wife, and singers Bonnie Raitt and John Hall.

The petition warned against the failure of supposedly fail-safe methods at nuclear plants, the danger of nuclear accidents during transportation of radioactive materials and the "continuing rise in cancer, leukemia and genetic disease which are known to be nuclear related."

We're seeing red dots at Scoggin-Dickey and that means great values for you — it means we have many cars priced below comparable models of the so-called low priced makes. We've designated a select group of over 60 '78 Buicks as Red Dot Values. Save hundreds of dollars on these specially marked cars. Great values, too on quality used cars.

State Drug Officers Cite Interference From Feds

WASHINGTON (AP) - State and local law enforcement officers are suffering in their fight against drug smugglers because of interference from federal officials, says the head of the Colorado Organized Crime Strike Force's narcotics

Ron Pietrafeso joined three other state officials - including Floyd Hacker, the head of the Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics division - in asking a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Wednesday for more cooperation from federal dent he says supports his claims.

Last fall, Pietrafeso sent 16 men into the Big Bend area of Texas to follow a group of heroin traffickers and watch the group as they transported their illegal cargo from the Texas-Mexican border back to Colorado.

Pietrafeso said he wanted to seize the shipment in Colorado, thereby snaring not only the traffickers but also those financing the operation.

F-15 Manual Altered For Saudi Mechanics

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Air

Force, concerned over Saudi Arabia's ability to maintain the sophisticated F-15s President Carter wants to sell to that country, is trying to rewrite the plane's technical manuals into fifth-grade language, sources say.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the Air Force is concerned that Saudi ground crewmen might not understand the plane's maintenance pro-

Bill Limits Authority Of CAB

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate has taken a step toward relaxing government regulation of the nation's airlines by passing legislation to limit the Civil Aeronautics Board's power to decide where airlines fly and how much they

The legislation was sent to the House Wednesday by a vote 83-9. The bill would give airlines more freedom to decide what cities they will serve and to abandon services that are unprof-

Each airline would be allowed to begin flying one new route during 1979 and another in 1980 without getting the CAB's approval. Airlines could begin serving two new routes in each of the three following years.

Airlines also would be allowed to raise fares up to 5 percent or to lower them up to 35 percent cent a year without CAB approval.

While some airlines support the legislation, others do not. Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said the bill was "one of the most signiffcant pieces of legislation in the past 'It represents one of the only opporto vote for less government regulation and more free enterprise for a major United States industry," Cannon said.

The most controversial provision of the bill is one giving pilots and other airline workers income guarantees for up to three years in the event of massive layoffs resulting from tougher competition.

Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., argued that payments to airline workers could reach $1 billion if a major airline were to go bankrupt and termed the proposal a "raid on the treasury."

However, the Congressional Budget Office said in an earlier report there was little likelihood any payments would ever be made because the protective feature would apply only when at least 15 percent of an airline's employees are affected. Such massive airline layoffs have been "historically rare." the CBO said.

The legislation would also phase out a subsidy system under which 12 airlines currently get about $70 million a year. Cannon said it would be replaced by a new system costing about the same but aimed at helping smaller airlines. The legislation, he said, also would require the CAB to look more closely at the needs of small communities for improved air service.

"Let there be no doubt," he said, "there is an absolute guarantee of service to all communities now receiving it for at least 10 years.

Cannon said 175 communities have lost service over the past 15 years but that "no community will lose air service as a

Carter Submits Urban Aid Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Depressed cities would receive $1 billion annually under legislation submitted to Congress by the Carter administration as part of its urban aid program.

The plan submitted Wednesday would replace the anti-recession aid program, under which cities and state governments received a total of $600 million a year.

The new program would add about 9,-000 local governments to the 17,000 eligible this year for the anti-recession aid if current economic trends continue.

To qualify, a city or town must have an unemployment rate above 4.5 percent, a declining growth rate or declining income per resident Treasury officials said 24 percent of the money would go to the 10 cities suffering most from unemployment and declini growth. These are Boston, Buffalo, Chi cago, Cleveland, Detroit, New Orleans, New York, Newark, N.J., Pittsburgh and St. Louis. The Treasury gave no further breakdown by city.

Afterwards, Pietrafeso outlined an inci-

Pentagon officials acknowledge they foresee major problems in training the Saudi mechanics, largely because of the lower level of education in Saudi Arabia. "Maintenance personnel is our biggest problem," said a senior official. "There is a shortage of trained technical manpower in Saudi Arabia."

Officials say Saudi pilots will require about two years to become fully trained in flying the new fighter, triple the time required by U.S. Air Force pilots.

But the officials, who rate the F-15 one of the world's premier fighter planes, say they are confident that Saudi pilots with experience in flying older-type jets will be able to pilot the F-15s.

The Carter administration has proposed selling the 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia for about $2.5 billion as part of a package that includes the sale of 90 F-15s and F 16s to Israel for $1.9 billion and 50 shorter-range, less powerful F-5s to Egypt for

Whether the package deal will win congressional approval, however, is uncer-

With the ground maintenance problem in mind, U.S. officials said, about 600 U.S. civilian technicians will be sent to Saudi Arabia to support the F-15s for sev-

"We feel that the major part of this contractor effort will be over by 1984," the officials said.

A study by Pentagon analysts some time ago contended that the F-15 would be too complex a plane for Saudi pilots to handle, but Defense Department officials say this is a minority view.

'Saudi Arabian pilots should be selfsufficient in the F-15 within a two-year period after they start training," one senior official said in an interview. The U.S. Air Force turns out its own F-15 pilots in eight months, following basic flight train-

Under plans now taking shape, a total of 75 Saudi Arabian pilots who have experience in flying the British-made Lightning and the U.S. F-5 will be brought to the United States for training on the first 10 F-15s, which will be delivered in 1981 These pilots will be trained by U.S. Tactical Air Force instructors and other spe-

The remaining 50 F-15s will be delivered to Saudi Arabia in 1982 and 1983. The administration says the Saudi Ara-bians need the F-15 because it is a superior air-to-air combat fighter that would improve the Saudis' air defense. Administration officials say the F-15 will not constitute a threat against Israeli installations," but will give the Saudis a defense against possible attack by Iraq, a Soviet-backed neighbor with which Saudi Arabia has feuded over border and tribal issues for many years.

EEOC Creates Way To Handle Job Complaints

NEW YORK (AP) - The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has come up with a faster, more efficient way of handling job discrimination claims which should put an end to a 130,000-case backlog and allow the commission to deal with a broader spectrum of problems.

EEOC Chairwoman Eleanor Holmes Norton said Wednesday that the new procedures for handling complaints of women, blacks and other minorities had been tested for five months in Chicago, Baltimore and Dallas, and were based on systems she set up during her seven years as head of the New York City Human Rights Commission

Mrs. Norton said the Carter administration also has backed a proposal to increase the EEOC staff by 35 percent because of the success of the reform measures, and to expand the agencies jurisdiction to include discrimination complaints filed by federal employees and the aged.

The procedure utilizes professional counselors, rather than clerks, to take complaints. There are also face-to-face fact-finding conferences "instead of the usual paper shuffling," and more emphasis on negotiating settlements Mrs. Norton said 1,545 cases were handled during the test and 73 percent of those cases were resolved, with almost half resulting in negotiated settlements. Additionally, she said, compensation "more than doubled" to about $1.3 mil-

The program will be implemented nationwide Sept. 30, she said. If effective, the EEOC will find "a greater proportion of our resources going to pattern and practice systemic work aimed at discriminatory hiring, promotion and firing policies in corporations and government agencies.

turn, notified Customs.

An informant told Pietrafeso's men the group was not able to make a heroin purchase when originally planned. "He said the buy would take place a week later than we thought and we were in a position to wait for them.

Customs, however, did not, he said. As the would-be traffickers traveled from Presidio toward Marfa, Customs moved in and made arrests.

"Of course, we had given them the identity of all the persons and the type of vehicle they were driving," added Pietrafeso. "They searched for drugs and, of course, didn't find any.

Customs also overlooked $13,000 in cash hidden under a floorboard of one of the cars, Pietrafeso said. "And $13,000 in cash would have been a lot easier to find than dope," he added.

Customs did find two guns, however, and made a firearms arrest.

Customs officials told the San Angelo Standard-Times, which published a copyright article today on the incident, that they did not know the identities of the men they arrested and declined further comment.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd of San Antonio told the newspaper, "I think it was just a lack of coordination and communication.

Pietrafeso said Colorado had invested more than eight months and thousands of dollars in the ill-fated case. "I had eight men in Texas the week Customs picked everybody up. We also had eight vehicles and two airplanes involved in surviellance...all for nothing.

Pietrafeso said he and DPS officials 'raised hell with Customs" and a meeting with state and federal officers was arranged by the DPS.

"And when I stood up in the meeting and told what happened," Pietrafeso began, "a DEA (Drug Enforcement Administration) man said by us following narcotics from Texas to Colorado, we would have been in violation of federal narcotic conspiracy statutes and if he caught us doing it again, he'd have us thrown in jail. Can you believe that?"

Boyd confirmed that the statement was made and said later, "I can't keep him (the DEA agent) from arresting someone, but as far as I'm concerned, there would be no prosecution as long as the agents are operating in a legitimate fash-

The ten men arrested by Customs were convicted on drug trafficking charges, based on the information compiled by the Coloradoans and DPS. "But, naturally, we would have had a much stronger case and more arrests if we had completed what we set out to do," noted Pietra-

"But before the trial, we asked Customs for a report on the arrest and for them to return some scales (used in weighing heroin) and cutting material (to dilute the heroin before street sale) so we could use them during the trial," he added. "After about a week, they said we couldn't have the reports. They said it

Oregon Women Due Sentencing For Smuggling

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Two Oregon women will be sentenced by a Sydney court Friday on charges of smuggling $15 million worth of hashish into Australia under the floorboards of their camping

Vera Todd Hays, 59, and Florence May Bessire, 61, both of La Pine, pleaded guilty March 15th to smuggling nearly 2,-200 pounds of hashish. Police said the cache amounted to the biggest drug seizure in Australian history. The women face maximum penalties of 25 years in jail and $100,000 in fines.

During a court appearance last week, both women wept as they asked for len-Miss Bessire testified that Miss Hays' nephew, Vern Todd, had offered them an all-expenses paid world trip if they would drive the van from West Germany to Bombay, India. But once there, she said, Todd asked them to take the van on to Australia. Miss Bessire testified that "Todd mentioned grass" during their talks, but she was unaware the van carried such a large amount of hashish until they were arrested by narcotics agents near Sydney.

The district court judge had deferred sentencing in the case until a medical report was prepared on Miss Hays, who suffers from back ailments and fell five times since she was failed.

The medical examination took place this week at a Sydney prison and defense lawyers have expressed hope it would have some bearing on the sentence.

FACE RARE DISEASE - Robert Crall family poses at their Oak Grove, Mo., home recently. A rare blood vessel disease called hereditary hemorrhagic telangiectasis threatens the lives of Robert, 26, right; daughter Stephanie, 5, left, and Robert Jr., 3, held by his father. One-month-old Scott, held by his mother, Diane, may also have the disease, according to doctors. In background is eldest son, Richard, 10, who doctors say does not have

Unusual Hereditary Disease Threatens Family With Death

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - A rare blood vessel disease called hereditary hemorrhagic telangiectasis is more than Diane Crall can pronounce. But it is not more than she can comprehend.

It threatens the lives of her husband Robert, 26, their children, Stephanie, 5, and Robert Jr., 3, and possibly month-old Scott as well.

One of the family's doctors at the University of Kansas Medical Center says he had seen only one previous case of the disease during his career. Yet Crall, his youngsters and a niece apparently are afflicted with it. Crall's sister. Teresa, died three years ago at the age of 19, a month after giving birth to a daughter, Tracy. Doctors say Teresa's death may have been caused by the disease, and Tracy may have it. The disease surfaced last summer when Crall, an active, healthy man, began having problems with bleeding. Tests at the medical center diagnosed the rare

Splotches have appeared on the two Crall children's skin, and doctors say it may be a sign that they have the disease.

Crall cannot work, exert himself physically or tolerate heat. He has frequent broken blood vessels and the pain of massive headaches. Neighbors in the Kansas City suburb of Oak Grove have started fund-raising activities to assist the family, which has been on welfare the past several months.

A routine day of non-strenuous activity leaves Crall "almost incapacitated by evening," according to his wife.

The disease, said Dr. James Couch of the medical center's neurology department, "is like having the sword of Damocles hanging over your head."

He said the disease is a formation of small blood vessels that bleed easily, located up and down the digestive tract and also on the surface of the brain and around the spinal cord. Victims can bleed to death internally if the vessels rupture.

"The chances of having something catastrophic happen are pretty high," he Couch said because the rarity of the disease, little research is under way to find a cure.

"There's nothing any more dear to a mother than her children," said Mrs. Crall. "The possibility of losing them is ... you know ..." She chokes on the words. "And I love my husband so much I can't imagine life without him." Mrs. Crall says the family has received strength from God.

'Who are we to question His plan? Through Him we gain strength to face it, I don't think He'll put anything on us that

Facts Fail To Support Kuhn's Free Agency Contentions

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says the free agent system is dangerous because the strong are getting stronger. Only the facts don't seem to support his contention

Fact: Of the 14 players signed as free agents for the 1978 season, seven went to clubs with records above .500, six went to clubs with records below .500 and one went to a club with a .500 average.

Fact: Of those 14 top players, only two - Doc Medich and Bruce Bochte - left teams with sub-.500 records, meaning most of the weak teams weren't getting any weaker.

"In the past year, (free agency) has been used by the strongest teams to make themselves even stronger," Kuhn said Tuesday in Atlanta.

On Wednesday, through spokesman Art Berke, Kuhn attempted to elaborate on that position. He cited the recent improvements made by the Yankees, Texas, Boston and California as the best examples for his concern. He also pointed out that in the last two years, 28 of the 50 free agents chosen by more than two teams signed with the Yankees, California, Boston, Texas and the Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees picked up relievers Rich Gossage and Rawly Eastwick and Boston grabbed ex-Yankee Mike Torrez for 1978. These teams were strong before free agency began last year, but California, Texas and the White Sox only gained stature during the free-agency period of 1977 and 1978. Wasn't that one of the goals of free agency, to give clubs like Texas, California and Chicago a chance to build winners?

Of the 1977 division winners beside the Yankees, Kansas City picked up one free agent in two years, back-up infielder Jerry Terrell; Los Angeles took one, reliever Terry Forster, and Philadelphia has taken one, first baseman Richie Hebner. Cincinnati, the best team in baseball in recent years, has stood pat.

"I do not know why he chooses to ignore the fact that the record shows that, if anything, there is a better balance as a result of the free-agent system than existed before," Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said

It had been rumored for the last week that Carmichael. who plans to remain in the system as a teacher, had been considering resigning "Coach Carmichael just felt like a

"I'm playing very, very well," he said. "But I've played very well before and not won. In this country such a great emphasis is placed on winning. Many people do not realize that a man who finishes in the top 10 in a tournament probably played as well, maybe even better, than the man

FCC Now Prepared To Pass Judgment On CBS

AP TV Sports Writer

It is not the best of times at CBS. The chickens are about to come home to roost. The Federal Communications Commission has heard all the arguments, statements, misstatements, explanations, mitigating circumstances and "mea culpas.

Analysis deceiving public by billing a series of four tennis matches during 1975-77 as "winner-takeall" events when they weren't and network executives knew

In addition, the network has violated a couple of FCC regulations by plugging the sites of the events - there were 49 on-air video and audio plugs for Caesars Palace in the firstmatch alone - without disclosing that there were promotional considerations paid by the hotel. And Bob Wussler, until recently the president of CBS Sports, made some inaccurate statements during his testimony before the Commis-

Adding to the network's woes, the FCC is angry because CBS's Super Bowl telecast ran 11 minutes longer than it was supposed to. The FCC gave CBS a special waiver, as required by the complicated FCC regulations, to run 15 minutes late for a post-game show. But the network ran 11 minutes beyond that, filling the time with replays, a Frank Sinatra song and a Jack Whitaker commentary.

In addition, CBS has come under Congressional criticism for its exclusive contract with boxer Howard Davis, a contract that has been recently renegotiated.

The FCC has threatened to punish CBS for its tennis offenses by approving only a short-term renewal, perhaps six months instead of the customary three years, for its five fully-owned-and-operated stations. Applying for renewal is an enormous task, involving significant expense and time-consuming paperwork. To go through the whole process again after six months would be an enormous burden for the stations. But more importantly, it would be a black eye for the board, must be beside himself over these developments. It would be most embarrassing for CBS, the network of Edward R. Murrow, Walter Cronkite and "60 Minutes," to get punished by the government for deceiving the public

CBS has taken some action in hopes of heading off the FCC. The most notable involves Wussler. Wussler announced his resignation recently but there seems little doubt that he was forced out. His replacement is Frank Smith, a 27-year man at the network who came came out of the Sales Department and, according to one CBS source, "is cleaner than Peter Pan.

The general feeling in CBS Sports is that Wussler got a raw deal. He started work in the mail room at CBS the day after he graduated from Seton Hall 21 years ago and eventually rose to the position of president of the network. Along the way he made many friends. He made some careless - rather than calculated - mistakes, the thinking goes, and was ousted to appease the FCC. Some say Barry Frank, vice president of Sports and a man deeply involved in the promotion of the first tennis match when he was at Trans World International, should have gone instead and still may resign

Beyond that, the network has instituted a series of inhouse controls that supposedly will guarantee that such deception doesn't happen again. And, in an unprecedented move, Gene Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, went on the air during the network's sports programming the past two Sundays with a seven-minute public apol-

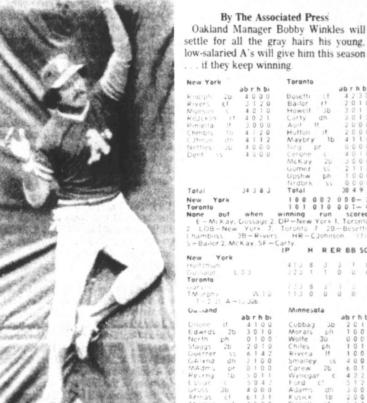

How did it all happen?

It happened because television was not satisfied with the customary run of sports events and began creating its own. It happened because the all-out pursuit of ratings has led to carelessness. It happened because some people have little regard for what they tell the public. It happened because TV people are concerned with packaging, with hype and hoopla, and if the truth gets trampled in the process that's okay as long as enough people tune in.

CBS freely acknowledges its errors but blames them on a failure in internal communications. They say they didn't do it on purpose. That's like saying, "I didn't know the gun was

"I'm sick, I'm almost ready to cry," said the downtrodden, dejected Gossage, loser of his third straight game since signing a reported $2.75 million, six-year free agent contract with the Yankees after the 1977 season.

"That's what happens when you get a big contract," said Yankees outfielder Reggie Jackson, another of New York's million dollar players. "You've got to pay your dues for a couple of months, then all of a sudden things will turn around. Poor guy, it's really rough on the kid."

in Texas League play Wednesday night. In other action, San Antonio defeated Amarillo 3-1, Jackson remained in first place in the East with a 5-2 victory over Shreveport and Midland trounced El Pa-SO 10-1

Lentine's hits helped Arkansas build an 8-5 lead by the end of the seventh inning, as the Travelers got off to a fast start with four runs in the first inning and three in the second.

The winning run was scored by Lentine in the seventh inning when he connected for a double, advanced to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

Both Keith Bodie and Juan Monasteriuo punched two singles a piece as Jackson downed Shreveport 5-2 in a game that saw no extra base hits.

The winner was Scott Holeman, who now is 2-0. Doug Nelson, the loser, is 0-2. Jimmy Buckner managed four hits, including a double, batted in two runs and stole three bases as Midland whipped El Paso. Winning pitcher Lee Smith, 1-1 went all the way, allowing only four hits.

Pitchers Ted Power and Dave Patterson combined for a three-hitter as San Antonio downed Amarillo. Power was the winning pitcher and Patterson, who came on in the ninth, got his second save. Amarillo's only score came on a runscoring single by Tim Derryberry.

Martin was some 25 pounds lighter than his playing weight of 245. He looked like a slim fashion model.

Some suggested Martin looked like a tight end, and Cowboy defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner said quickly, "Harvey likes to hit. He doesn't like five guys hitting him.'

HOUSTON (AP) - The San Jose Earthquakes got tiebreaker goals from Ilija Mitic and Dave Davidovic to defeat the Houston Hurricane 2-1 Wednesday night in a North American Soccer League

The victory was the first of the season for San Jose after four consecutive overtime losses, three on the tiebreaker shoo-

Earthquake goalie Mike Hewit staved off 31 of 32 Houston shots. But Mark Lindsay's eight-yard rebound at 32:25 of a shot by Eduardo Marasco tied the game at 1-1 after a similar rebound shot by Paul Child had given the Earthquake a brief lead at 29:53.

Tanara Recalls Plight Of '75

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff It's the spring of 1975 all over again for

Then, Tanara and the rest of Steve Sloan's staff were going through their first spring at Texas Tech, and the offensive line situation did not look promising. There existed a vast amount of inexperience, and the Raiders had considerable trouble moving the ball on the ground.

They haven't had that many problems running the ball this spring, but the overall inexperience in the line reminds Tanara of the situation three years ago.

"This group compares exactly with what we had three years ago," Tanara said. "You see two or three redshirts out there, along with several sophomores-tobe and juniors-to-be. We've got a good group, potentially, but we're young.

The group of three years ago turned out to be a very good one, and the Tech staff holds the same hope for the current one. There is a core of experience this time, and that has to make some difference. Quick tackle Ken Walter and quick guard Larry Martin started last year, and Joe Walstad started some at strong guard.

After those, the experience thins out considerably. Soph-to-be Robert Caughlin was starting at strong tackle until he injured a knee last week. Now, soph-tobe Mark Gesch is there, and soph-to-be Conway Wheat was alternating with Gesch until he sprained an ankle Tues-

At center is Kim Taliaferro, a senior who has gained a lot of playing time the previous two seasons-but at defensive tackle. He was a center upon coming to Tech. The second-team line includes four sophs-to-be in quick tackle L.M. Cummings, quick guard Jackie Ellis, strong guard Denny Harris and Wheat. Cummings and Ellis played defense last sea-Travis Mileur, who is currently alternating with Taliaferro on the first team, is a letterman, but hasn't had much game experience at center. 'We're just real inexperienced," Tan-sistent because of this. Those guys are still learning the offense and what we expect them to be able to do.

"Youth causes breakdowns in the offense. First, you may mess up an assignment on one side of the line and them maybe do the same thing on the other side. Things just aren't instinctive for them yet."

Right now, Walstad, Walter and Martin must carry the brunt of the burden. They are experienced and have good ability. Tanara said Walter "has had an exceptional spring." Martin has missed some work because of a sprained ankle, but is expected to play in Saturday's scrim-

Losing Caughlin has made a big difference. He is a very good prospect and was improving daily.

"He was coming on real well. He doesn't need to be in a cast," Tanara said. "He needs to be out there and get all the looks and experience he can get."

Taliaferro has just recently begun contact drills after off-season knee surgery. His return gives Tech more depth in the line by allowing Walstad to move to guard. And Walstad can still swing between center and guard, if necessary.

The first-team line has good overall size, perhaps the best in several seasons, Taliaferro is 6-2, 245; Walstad 6-4, 250; Walter 6-4, 230 with the potential to be 240 by the fall; and Caughlin 6-2, 255.

Gesch weighs 245 and Wheat 255. Martin is the smallest of the group at 5-11, Tanara called Mileur "a pleasant surprise. He's really come to the front this spring. His upper body strength had always been his biggest problem, but he's really worked hard on it and improved." NOTES: Tech held its regular scrimmage Wednesday, and head coach Rex Dockery was pleased with the play of the first-team defense. . The secondary was not at full strength because cornerbacks Willie Stephens (bruised hip) and Freddy Taylor (sprained knee) and free safetycornerback Greg Tyler (bruised leg) were

Nets, Islanders: Roy Boe's Prodigal Sons

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Special Correspondent NEW YORK - There was an ironic twist to a couple of stories that hit the newspapers this week from different directions.

Out of Piscataway, N.J., came a report that two paychecks made out to members of the New Jersey Nets had bounced because of insufficient funds. Prodded. the Nets made them good on Monday Just another in the miseries of the National Basketball Association's orphaned franchise.

Analysis

Across the river, in Uniondale, N.Y., fans crammed the Nassau Coliseum to watch the Islanders, rated the second best team in the National Hockey League, pursue their bid for the Stanley Cup.

The Islanders radiated confidence and class.

The Nets and Islanders: blood brothers, both owned by sports entrepreneur Roy Boe, yet as much alike as the brothers in the Biblical parable - the one who took his stake and squandered it on riotous living, the other who stayed home and faithfully performed his duties.

Does Boe have trouble reconciling himself with his "Prod-

'Not in the least," says the lean, 47-year-old Ivy Leaguer who sacrificed his own all-around athletic talents to pursue a business career. "The Nets gave us a lot of thrills as champions of the American Basketball Association. Now, in the NBA, we are undergoing some heartaches.

"We have lost money every year since 1969 (a reported $7 million). We have been beleaguered with law suits. We don't have a permanent home. Twice we have built a team from virtual scratch and we are in the process of doing so again.

"But I have no favortism, although the Islanders are making money and the Nets are losing it. During the season I think I saw as many Nets games as Islanders games."

While the Islanders have remained firm at their Nassau Coliseum base, playing almost every game before a sellout crowd of 15,317 for a season total of close to 700,000, the Nets have been roving, unloved and unappreciated gypsies.

They have moved from the ABA to the NBA, from Commack to Hempstead to Uniondale on Long Island to Picataway, where they have been playing in Rutgers University's cramped gym pending construction of a permanent home in the Meadowlands Complex in New Jersey.

They finished last in their NBA division with a 24-58 record, once losing 16 games in a row. Their average attendance for the 1977-78 campaign was 5,647 a game.

With pro basketball salaries averaging $100,000 a year, such an operation looks like a ticket to the poor house. Boe's business practices have come under attack from players, associates and rival owners, "I am impulsive — I make snap decisions," he says, "but I've paid off every contract. I've kept my word."

After building the Nets into a team that won ABA championships in 1974 and 1976, he became involved in salary disputes with Julius "Dr. J" Erving. He traded his star to the Philadelphia 76ers for $2.5 million and proceeded to discard other members of the successful team. Law suits resulted from a decision to desert Long Island for New Jersey.

Boe, a graduate of Yale University, joined his father in the food business, then branched out to promote a basement fabric shop into a dress enterprise which he sold for several million dollars.

In 1968, he paid $50,000 for the Westchester Bulls of the now defunct Atlantic Coast Football League, and moved the team to Long Island. In 1969, he and eight friends paid $1 million for the floundering Nets of the ABA. Three years later he headed a syndicate that bought the expansion Islander franchise of the NHL, paying $6 million to the league and $4 million to the Rangers for territorial rights.

"I am now a sports franchiser," he said. "It's a business, not a hobby with me. I get great satisfaction out of winning, out of artistic success. From a financial standpoint, with escalating salaries and problems, it is tough. I wouldn't recom-

It's not clear whether Dick Ruthven left his heart in San Francisco, but the San Francisco Giants probably wish he had left his arm in Atlanta. The 27-year-old right-hander went to high school in the East Bay town of Irwington, a few miles from San Francisco, and you can't blame him for calling Candestick Park home sweet home.

day and raised his career record to 8-2 against San Francisco. "I guess the Giants run into me when

I'm going good," said Ruthven, who is only 31-54 against the rest of the National League. "But I don't get especially jacked up for the Giants. I wasn't a fan when I was going to school. In fact, I only went to a couple of games at Candlestick Park.

Ruthven, who had a no-hitter for six innings until Larry Herndon beat out a high hopper to shortstop leading off the seventh, pitched his masterpiece one night after teammates Preston Hanna and Adrian Devine blanked the Giants on one hit. Before the shutouts, Atlanta pitchers had allowed 54 runs in eight games.

"I was disappointed over losing the nohitter," Ruthven said. "But I made up my mind to retain my composure and go for the shutout. I didn't want to fall apart and blow the game.'

The Braves scored the only run Ruthven needed in the fourth inning on singles by Brian Asselstine, Jeff Burroughs and Biff Pocoroba and Dale Murphy's sacrifice fly. In the seventh, Murphy doubled, advanced on a grounder and scored on Pat Rockett's sacrifice fly.

In his last appearance against the Giants, Ruthven pitched a three-hit 4-0 victory last Sept. 5.

"I'm not surprised by Ruthven's success against us," said slugger Willie McCovey. "He's had good stuff ever since he came up with Philadelphia. What surprises me is that so many other teams beat him." Elsewhere, the New York Mets and St. Louis Cardinals traded two-hitters, with the Mets winning 2-0 behind Pat Zachry: the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Cincinnati Reds 5-4, the Houston Astros nipped the San Diego Padres 2-1 and the Montreal Expos scored four times in the ninth inning to beat the Chicago Cubs 8-6. Mets 2, Cards 0

While Zachry was limiting St. Louis to second-inning singles by Keith Hernandez and Jerry Morales, Bruce Boisclair drove in both runs, with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and a single in the third as the Mets completed a sweep of a threegame series. Zachry called it "my best game in the majors. Dodgers 5, Reds 4

Rick Monday drove in four runs with a pair of homers and unbeaten Tommy John scattered nine hits for his third victory as Los Angeles salvaged the finale of an important early-season three-game series. The Reds' Joe Morgan tied a major league record for consecutive errorless games by a second baseman, completing his 89th flawless game. Morgan, who committed only five errors last season, matched the mark set by Baltimore's Jerry Adair in 1964-65. The Dodgers, humiliated the two previous nights by Cincinnati, broke on top against Tom Hume when Reggie Smith homered in the first inning. An inning later, Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker singled and Monday followed with a three-run homer. He connected again in the sixth for what turned out to be the winning Monterey's 6-4 senior Tony Hamby signed a letter of intent Wednesday to play basketball next season at Lubbock Christian College.

The leading scorer and rebounder for the District 4-AAAA champions, Hamby averaged 15 points a game and 8.4 rebounds a game as MHS posted a 19-11 season record. The cocaptain of the 1977-78 team. Hamby started in his final two seasons for the Plainsmen varsity.

'We feel he's one of the better kids in West Texas," said MHS coach Joe Michalka. "He can play guard in college and he could have played guard for us but we needed his height and jumping ability underneath the bucket."

The all-district and all-city selection in his senior season becomes the third cage recruit for LCC coach Larry Hays. Chicago played "the best they played against us in two years," said Boston Coach Don Cherry. But the Black Hawks' inability to hold a lead - they led 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 - contributed to their downfall.

"Maybe it was a better effort," said Chicago center Stan Mikita, "but we still have to play some way we can win." Terry O'Reilly lifted the rebound of Rick Smith's shot over Black Hawks goalie Tony Esposito at 1:50 of the extra session to give Boston a 2-0 lead in the quarter-final series.

Burkhalter Tops In Quarter

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
DENVER CITY — Everyone attending the District 5-AA track meet was just a might surprised when Denver City's Bobby Burkhalter rocketed to a 47.9 in the quarter-mile.

After all, that kind of time is reserved for tracksters from outlying areas like Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. But Denver City? Never.

But there were two folks at the meet that knew it could be done all along -Burkhalter and his coach Dale Underwood.

'It didn't surprise me at all," said Burkhalter, a senior at DC High. "I knew if there was nice weather (which there was) and a fast track (which there was) I could run pretty fast. All my relatives were there too, so that helped some. I wanted to do my best for them."

While the straight A student was pleasing Aunt Jenny and Uncle Frank, he was also taking over the top position in the quartermile among the state's schoolboy

Although Burkhalter is a 9.8 sprinter, his coach feels the 5-10. 150-pounder is destined to become a halfmiler when he reaches the college ranks.

"We discussed that (running the half) early in the season," Underwood explained. "But because this is his senior year there was no sense taking the chance something might happen. He knew what he could do in the quarter."

Underwood, sounding like any proud coach, said Burkhalter was a coach's dream. In other words, easy to coach. Coachable", they call it.

'He is the smoothest runner I've ever seen," the coach said. "He finishes a race just like he starts it, hard. I've never seen him struggle at all. His stride is so smooth, it's unbelieveable."

So far this year, Burkhalter has posted times of 50.6, 49.2, 48.5 and of course, the 47.9, during the meets he's attended. His coach feels the times could have been better, but a lengthy basketball season cut into Burkhalter's training time, some. The Mustangs were defeated in the

Fem Golfers Busy

A shotgun blast originating in Mackenzie Park this morning wasn't aimed at the nearby prairie dogs. It was used to send 110 high school golfers to the course to start the Region I girls tournament.

On hand will be entries from Class AAAA and AA teams, and the shotgun report at 9 a.m. started play for the first of two 18-hole rounds. The event kicks off a full weekend of regional action in the city, as track and tennis competition is also on tap.

The girls will compete over the first two nines at Meadowbrook, with trips to the state meet at Austin waiting for the winners and runners-up.

The Class AAAA field includes both Monterey and Coronado teams, along with Plainview, the 4-AAAA champion. And competing individually will be Barbara Scott of Herroford, the district model in bara Scott of Hereford, the district medalist.

Also in the field will be teams from El Paso Coronado, El Paso Irvin, Amarillo High, Amarillo Caprock, Midland Lee and Big Spring. Individual entries will be here from Odessa Permian and Temple. The favorites individually will be Jackie Diass of Odessa Permian, Carla

Pierce of El Paso and Jackie Harlan of Temple. Miss Diass comes in with a 76-stroke average, and Miss Pierce averaged 82 strokes. Crossing Dateline Confuses Traveler

RAROTONGA, COOK ISLANDS - Always wanted to cross the International Dateline on my birthday so I could skip the day and wipe out a year. Now I've done it, on my birthday, but apparently in the wrong direction.

The captain just came on the horn, interrupting the in-flight movie, to inform us that 570 miles due east of Fiji, we had just passed over the Dateline and will be having Thursday all over again. Which means I will be having two birthdays this year, instead of none, as would have been the case if the passage had happened in the west-bound leg. Not only that, but tonight we'll be eating yesterday's dinner - not that you could tell the difference on many airlines these days. The steak I had for funch should have had a "Cabin Baggage" tag on it, and if the potatoes had a date on them it would have been some time last month they left the cooking pot for the big freeze locker in the sky. Or maybe they had been over the International Dateline too often Anyhow, as you can see, I never really have understood the International Dateline, but I've always turned in expense for it, in either direction, leaving it up to the treasurer's office to figure out how I could eat meals on a day in which there was no night to spend in a hotel.

Apparently the auditors don't understand it either, because I never have been called on it, in all my trips out to Vietnam, the way I once was called on the carpet for putting in for a gallon of suntan lotion when sent to cover, so to speak, the International Nudists Convention on the Riviera a few years back. I had to explain to the chaps up there on the seventh floor that there was a lot of area to be covered, epidermal-wise since we were only allowed to wear our press credentials during the four-day flesh fest and a gallon didn't go very far under that hot Mediterranean sun.

Getting back to the International Dateline, the stewardass, who apparently is versed in such things even if the secrets of a dry martini have eluded her, tells me it is an imaginary line running down the middle of the Pacific Ocean along the 180th meridian. The line, however, doesn't exactly stay in line all the way around the globe. It jogs a couple hundred miles to the right (eastwards) in Fiji so as not to split the islands in that group in half so that people aren't receiving tomorrow's mail yesterday or speaking on the phone Wednesday to someone on another island who is listening on Tuesday.

Cricket is a big sport here, and since batsman often stay at bat for several days, the score keeper would never knon what day it was unless they had run the line out of town years ago. As it is, fishermen frequently catch day-old fish if their line extends beyond the line.

The same thing happens in Siberia and the Aleutian Islands, where the line also bobbles about a bit, so that every one on the North American side will be having a quiet Sunday, while those a few miles to the west in Asia will be having a busy Monday, although it baffles me what difference it can make in those northerly climes where half the year has no day and the other half no night.

The Dateline, the stu patientely explained, was out the window at the moment because we were halfway around the world from Greenwich, England, a suburb of London which has another imaginary line, called the prime meridian, which marks zero degrees longitude and thereby controls all the clocks through-

Now I have been in Greenwich, England, a town of some mean low pubs, besides its mean time, and I never have understood why it should ever have been accorded such power over our days and hours. Certainly if they can jump a line over Fiji, which is lovely, they could have avoided Greenwich the way British Rail mostly does and drew their imaginary lines in Bath or Cheddar or Holmeupon-Spalsing-Moor or Luton Hoom. I mean if you are going to draw a line at least draw it through a memorable place name, not a place that can't even pronounce its name as spelled but insists on Gren-nitch.

For each 15 degrees of longtitude east of Greenwich, the cabin person went on, clocks are advanced a hour until the International Dateline ends the day and resumes the previous one. I told her that on Polish lines they didn't bother with all that turning back the clocks nonsense, but just turned the ship around and sailed in the opposite direction for an hour. It really wasn't a very good Polish joke, because Joseph Conrad was a Pole and a sea captain and a greater writer, who certainly would have known better, unless, of course, that's the reason he had to give up the sea and take up the pen.

Anyhow, she didn't laugh. She took away my martini glass, told me to fasten my seat belt and get ready to land in the Cook Islands because it was now yesterday and the flight was on time. Understand?

'Sad-Funny' Little Drama Opens On Off-Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) - "The Twilight Dinner" is a sad-funny little drama about a couple of those college students who went on an idealistic rampage back in

By the time they meet again in the play, which opened this week at off-Broadway's St. Marks Playhouse, Jimmy has subsided into uneasy bourgeois respectability and Ray has become a cynical, rapacious politician.

Lennox Brown, author of the Negro Ensemble Company production, fills the pair's dialogue with the bitter irony of disenchantment and savage ethnic humor.

Reuben Green portrays the successful compromiser with less success than Leon Morenzie, the crafty, mocking manipulator of his native West Indian electorate. On stage with them is Karen Bernhard.

into an expressionistic interlude of isolated meditations during which Miss Bernhard is required to indulge in peculiar ritual with a crucifix.

In late April and early May a large mature apple tree will produce between 50,-000 and 100,000 blossoms, in clusters of five or six. LOS ANGELES (AP) - It begins with what seems a mind-numbing visit to an engine factory in Hanoi, where workers sing praises of labor in Vietnam now that the war is over and the Americans gone.

But stay with "Vietnam: Thirty Months After the Thirty Years War." Airing tonight on public TV in many cities, it's a good, surprisingly critical study of postwar life in Vietnams north and

A good example comes in the laments of two anonymous officials they quote about the respective effects of the communist mania for group discussion and Saigon's still-flourishing black market.

The first official, in Hanoi, complains: 'We discuss production so much we forget to produce. Official No. 2, in Saigon, grouses: "We have lost more cadre to corruption than makes the judgment final." We get a particularly hard look at the harsh life in new "economic zones" set up outside Saigon, to which 1.5 million Saigonese have been sent to ease pressure on the overcrowded city.

Echoes of America's antiwar movement also are heard, this time from a new source, as the journalists, visiting an army camp, note attitudes toward Vietnam's border war with Cambodia this "Reportedly, it's an unpopular war. And the morale of the Vietnamese troops is anything but good."

On the political front, they report all units of the South's Liberation Front the Viet Cong - now dissolved, raising a question of whether "South Vietnam is a country occupied by the north."

Officials sharply deny this, they add, but the impression isn't easily dispelled" and "not a single member ... of the front's provisional government is in" the government of the south.

The former Viet Cong are disillusioned," the Swiss journalists say, and end their one-hour study with this ironic conclusion:

"Now, Vietnam is reunited in name under the communist party. But for all its strict control, the party's hardest task ... will be, as it was for others, to win the hearts and minds of the people."

Big Hollywood Stars Eye Summer Stock Season

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Like runners stock season when they will fan out

DUCKS PHOTOGRAPHERS - Woody Allen, the triple Academy Award winning author, director and actor, covered up recently, top, when he spotted photographers as he and socialite Jean Van Den Heuvel arrived at the Whitney Museum in New York. At bottom, he drops back behind the lady in an effort to avoid cameras. The two were among guests at the SCM Corp. dinner at the Whitney, honoring artist Saul Steinberg

Movie production slackens during the summer months and television shows are on hiatus, leaving performers free to seek out live audiences and big bucks in the

Virtually scores of well-known names and faces hit the road in a variety of musicals, dramas and comedies, not counting such concert stars as Bob Hope, Helen Reddy, Cher Bono Allman and the rest.

They appear in proscenium theaters, dinner theaters, theaters in the round and college campus auditoriums.

The in-person celebrity appearances provide an opportunity for millions of Americans who live outside of New York and Hollywood to see their favorites in the flesh. They fill theater coffers and enrich the stars in the process.

Superstars, the likes of Jane Fonda, Robert Redford, Paul Newman and Barbra Streisand eschew stock theater. They don't need the additional revenue for one thing and they're too busy for another.

Only Burt Reynolds, among the biggies, hits the road, most recently starring in "The Rainmaker," doubtless to play roles he doesn't get in movies.

The "road" was once called summer stock and the straw hat circuit. The players were mostly Broadway actors who found themselves unemployed in the days before air conditioning when legitimate theaters in New York were closed because of the oppressive heat.

In the old days summer stock was pretty much limited to the outback towns of New England during July and August with many of the theaters little more than converted barns. Now magnificent theaters abound in almost all the major cities of the United States.

The theaters are air conditioned, modern in every way and they pay top names as much as $4,500 a week, which definiteain't hay and better by far than most Broadway production salaries.

Among the stars who do well in stock are Ginger Rogers, Dana Andrews, Zsa Zsa and Eva Gabor, Broderick Crawford, Van Johnson, Donald O'Connor, Hugh O'Brian, Gloria Swanson, Karen Valentine, Phyllis Diller, Don Knotts, Ann Sothern, Cloris Leachman and June Ally-

One of the most successful of the road runners is Pat O'Brien who, at 78, spends four or five months in the boondocks every year reaping a golden harvest.

The genial Irishman (is there any other kind?) brought his wife Eloise (Taylor) out of retirement 22 years ago to co-star with him on the road.

They have a wide-ranging repertoire which includes "Time Out for Ginger,""Our Town,""Dear Ruth,""Daddy, Dear Daddy,""Holiday For Lovers,""Hotline to Heaven, and "Father of the Bride". Once doubled up with another acting couple, Bill Bixby and his wife, in "Come Blow Your Horn."

"It's a great way to work and keep the family together," O'Brien said. "Dana Andrews and his wife work together, too.

"My daughter, Brigid, joined us in three plays over the years, making it an O'Brien family package. But Brigid is getting independent. She's just finished a movie, 'Born Again,' and would like to do things on her own.

"I love playing the road as much as I ever did the movies or TV. And I've played every state in the Union except the Dakotas, I guess

"It takes me back to the days when I was in my 20s and toured the country in one-night stands. So I've completed the cycle with the knowledge that I've never lost my love for the theater.

"Some theaters hold 5,000 people, so the pay is great. I understand one circuit paid Burt Reynolds $30,000 a week for The Rainmaker.'

"They give you a guarantee. I get $4,000 a week, plus $500 if we go over a certain point. And I always get the $500. Where are you going to get that kind of money? Not in TV or pictures.

We discovered that audiences in other parts of the country prefer light comedy to drama. The plays we do are not too sophisticated and the plots aren't too com-

"Most of the people want family entertainment, clean, wholesome plays. The plays that bomb on Broadway are a smash on the circuit. Don't ask me why.

"I run into all kinds of people from Hollywood and Broadway out there on the road: Don Ameche, Eve Arden, Cesar Romero, Dorothy Lamour, Maureen O'Sullivan and Bob Crane. I seem to follow Myrna Loy into a lot of cities.

in "The End," a new movie starring Burt Reynolds who also directed the film. "Myrna and I go back a long way," Pat concluded. "We worked together in 'Consolation Marriage' back in 1931 and this was our first movie reunion. But we see one another on the road all the time and it's a real treat."

Comedy Reruns Attract More TV Viewers Than 'Holocaust'

NEW YORK (AP) - Reruns of "Three's Company," "Laverne and Shirley" and "M-A-S-H" attracted bigger audiences than the first installment in NBC's drama-documentary, "Holoeaust," A.C. Nielsen Co. figures for the week ending April 16 show.

But the network estimated an audience of 65 million for the first chapter in the four-part miniseries, and said it was "pleased and gratified" with the result.

The rating for the first episode of "Holocaust" Sunday evening was 27.1. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 27.1 percent watched at least part of the three-hour telecast.

"Holocaust," which dramatizes the plight of Jews in Europe during World War II, has been compared, though not by NBC, with "Roots," ABC's highly successful eight-part miniseries aired in January 1977. "Roots" averaged a 44.9 rating for eight nights, far surpassing any other previous series.

In three big cities checked after Chapter 2 was aired Monday evening, "Holocaust" fared better than it had the previous night. Nielsen said 41 percent of the homes with TV in New York were tuned in Monday, compared with 32.6 percent the night before. It was 39.1 percent in Chicago, compared with 29.3 the first night, and 33.3 compared with 28.7 in Los

to the Federal Communications Commission, explaining how it happened to do wrong in promoting the tennis games, what it has done to correct public misinformation, and what it is doing to see that it won't all happen again.

The letter, signed by John D. Backe, president and chief executive officer of CBS, and Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast group, outlines a complicated plan of corporate responsibility to prevent the network sports promoters from lying to the public.

'We share the Commission's view that misrepresentations about televised sports events are wholly unacceptable," they said, and hoped the FCC would not spank CBS too hard since it promised never to do it again.

peated 13 more times, has five da works. Nureyev stars in four of them.

One is the pas de deux from "Le Corsaire," a dazzler which brought cries of astonishment when Nureyev first danced it here in the early 1960s. It is even more astonishing that Nureyev can do those jumps and leaps now, and has such speed at any 40. speed, at age 40.

But Nureyev does not carry the entire show. The Dutch dancers are remark ble; they have been given great and varied chunks of ballet to bite off - and none is more than they can chew.

"Four Schumann Pieces," choreo-graphed by Hans van Manen, had Nureyev as a loner with five couples dancing around him. The mood was peaceful and harmonious. Music was by a string quartet; the other ballets were danced to re-

"Four Last Songs," music by Richard Strauss, choreography by Rudi van Dantzig, without Nureyev, was an American premiere. The German lyrics talk about benevolent death, and a death figure in brown dances among four couples. The work is not depressing work; it can be seen as a series of pas de deux, the mood cool and calm.

Toer van Schayk turned "The Afternoon of a Faun" to humor - never camp - in "Faun."

In silence, Nureyev enters with janitor's supplies and polishes a railing. Nearby, two girls work on an assembly line. Then the familiar Debussy music begins and the three become graceful ballet dancers.

Comedy Reruns Attract More TV Viewers Than 'Holocaust'

NEW YORK (AP) - Reruns of "Three's Company," "Laverne and Shirley" and "M-A-S-H" attracted bigger audiences than the first installment in NBC's drama-documentary, "Holocaust," A.C. Nielsen Co. figures for the week ending April 16 show.

But the network estimated an audience of 65 million for the first chapter in the four-part miniseries, and said it was "pleased and gratified" with the result. The rating for the first episode of "Holocaust" Sunday evening was 27.1. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 27.1 percent watched at least part of the three-hour telecast.

SENTENCED FOR STEALING

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Twenty-five employees of a Polish meat processing plant in Radom - where food riots occurred two years ago - have been sentenced to prison for stealing meat, the official news agency PAP reported. The workers received sentences ranging from six months to seven years for stealing 41/2 tons of meat, PAP said. Poland has had meat shortages for the last four years due to poor harvests.

By JOAN HANAUER NEW YORK (UPI) - Yankee manager Billy Martin explains lack of discipline among some ballplayers today in terms of the size of their salaries. ABC's U.S. Boxing Championship turned out to have more ringers than a horseshoe tournament.

CBS' Heavyweight Championship of Tennis was billed as a winner take all tournament, only to have it turn out the loser also took home plenty. Now CBS has sent a 27-page response to the Federal Communications Commission, explaining how it happened to do wrong in promoting the tennis games, what it has done to correct public misinformation, and what it is doing to see that it won't all happen again. The letter, signed by John D. Backe, president and chief executive officer of CBS, and Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast group, outlines a complicated plan of corporate responsibility to prevent the network sports promoters from lying to the public.

'We share the Commission's view that misrepresentations about televised sports events are wholly unacceptable," they said, and hoped the FCC would not spank CBS too hard since it promised never to do it again.

Nobody mentions the real snake in the lush garden of televised sports - money. There is an enormous amount of it around, available to promote for television anything from martial arts to mumblety-peg. Maybe the term sports should be restricted to amateur events played only before live audiences, and the televised events could get a new name. How about greed? The network could handle both athletic events and game shows, since both work on the basis of greed-motivated competition. The title The Price is Right" covers a lot of

Gay Rights Opponents Hold Rally

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) - Anita Bryant's husband railed against the forces of "moral breakdown" while gay activists rallied for "people-freedom" in a night of demonstrations gearing up for Tuesday's referendum challenge to St. Paul's gay rights law.

"The devil is really working overtime," Miss Bryant's husband, Robert Green, told some 5,000 people who gathered Wednesday night at the Civic Center arena to support repeal of the 4-year-old anti-discrimination ordinance.

Green said he and his singerwife have been called bigots for their anti-gay crusade and he applauded rally sponsors "for your stand against the organized forces which contribute to the moral breakdown of this nation.

About 200 pro-gays held an opposing "People Love People-Freedom Rally" in the Civic Center theater next door. An attorney paid $175 in a raffle to push a chocolate cream pie in the face of Tom Higgins, who boasted he had hit Miss Bryant with a pie in Des Moines, Iowa.

Throwing the pie at Anita was one of the big experiences of my life," Higgins

Nearly 1,000 persons attended another pro-gay rights rally, sponsored by the St. Paul Citizens for Human Rights. They met on the state capitol steps, marched through downtown St. Paul and rallied again at the capitol for a speech by Mayor George Latimer.

It is the first major challenge of a gay rights law since the Dade County, Fla. (Miami) gay ordinance was repealed last June in a campaign led by Miss Bryant.

The referendum Tuesday is on a proposal to repeal the law that bans discrimination in housing, employment and other fields because of "sexual and affectional preference.

"If we as Christians are going to stand by and see this country destroyed, then we deserve it." Green told the antigay gathering. "If the people in this area are apathetic and let a small minority of militants dictate to the morally sound majority, we've got it coming.

In the rally at the state Capitol, demonstrators held several hundred balloons saying "Vote No." Several dozen carried signs saving. "Vote No To Bigotry In St. Paul,""Discrimination Against Us Hurts Everyone" and "God Loves Us. Too."

They marched through downtown St. Paul singing, "Great Day. The People are Marching. We're Going to Keep the People Strong

Statistics Indicate U.S. Using Less Imported Oil

NEW YORK (AP) - Exactly one year after President Carter called for approval of his National Energy Plan, a program that still hasn't been passed by Congress, new statistics indicate that Americans are using less imported oil and are slowing the rate of growth of all energy use.

On April 20, 1977, Carter — describing the developing energy crisis as 'the moral equivalent of war" — asked Congress to approve a variety of programs designed to conserve energy and develop re-

But action on most of his proposals still hasn't been completed, primarily because of a disagreement over natural gas

Statistics released Wednesday, however, show that the United States is altering its energy-use patterns even without congressional action:

Imports of crude oil and oil products. which jumped 18 percent in 1977 and 20 percent in 1976, are down a surprising 14 percent for the first three months of 1978 over the same period last year, according to statistics released Wednesday by the American Petroleum Institute.

In addition, preliminary data indicate the United States significantly reduced its growth of energy use last year, according to the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an independent study group.

The development is likely to help strengthen the U.S. dollar overseas. might help reduce the balance of payments deficit and should blunt some political criticism of the United States for not slacking its thirst for energy.

"Last year, each 1 percent increase in the gross national product was matched by a 0.5 percent increase in energy use. he said. "That is absolutely staggering.

The dollar has been losing value during the past year, and analysts have attribut ed much of the problem to the United States' $26.7 billion trade deficit last year. For foreign oil alone last year, the U.S. spent $44.3 billion

Although the level of oil imports is expected to rise slightly during the second half of the year, most analysts expect total imports at year-end to be below the 1977 level, perhaps as much as 5 percent lower. They expect imports to rise again in 1979 or 1980, but at a much slower rate than in recent years

WASHINGTON (AP) - Three decades after its six-month blitz across Europe's battlefields to link up with Soviet troops in Austria, America's first all-black tank battalion is being awarded the presidential citation its survivors have fought for ever since.

The 761st "Black Panther" Battalion battled its way from France across Belgium and Germany for a record six straight months spearheading the allied drive and inflicting thousands of casualties on the Nazi army.

Hovercraft May Be Used In Freight Transport

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) - The hovercraft, hardly more than an inventor's dream as recently as 20 years ago, soon may expand from high-speed seaferry service into containerized freight.

This prediction comes from Roy McLeavy, an editor of the authoritative Jáne's maritime yearbooks in London.

Noting in his foreword to Jane's Surface Skimmers 1978 that hovercraft ferries now have carried 10 million passengers and 1.5 million automobiles across te English channel, McLeavy predicted that freight hovercraft of up to 1,000 tons in size will be built in the not distant fu-

He said, however, the freight-carrying sea-skimmers may not be fully amphibious as ferries and military hovercraft are. Incidentally, McLeavy uses the term hovercraft generically, indicating that England's leading maker of the craft, technically known as either air cushion vehicles or ground effect machines, has about lost its fight to preserve hovercraft as a proprietary name Before the hovercraft starts replacing deep draft coastal freighters, McLeavy said he expects a great expansion of its use as a passenger and automobile ferry. He said the world's fleet of conventional ferryboats is aging and the operators are eager to replace them with hovercraft because of the sea skimmers' high speed, smaller crews, lower first cost and easy maneuverability. Years ago a wit described the skimmer sarcastically as "a solution looking for a problem." McLeavy cautioned that, while the hovercraft has proved completely reliable, it is no miracle vehicle for all kinds of sea transport.

He implied that the hovercraft is winning out over the hydrofoil for commercial uses. The difference is that, while the hovercraft rides close to the water on a cushion of air and is driven by air jets, the hydrofoil rides on pontoon legs and is driven by water propellers. Hydrofoils also are being used with great success as sea ferries.

McLeavy sees growing use of both hovercraft and hydrofoil ferries in the Americas and Asia as well as in northern Eu-

In his annual report, the Jane's editor said naval and military use of both hovercraft and hydrofoil ships is growing fast. He predicted hovercraft will largely replace displacement hull ships for minelaying and mine-sweeping, most patrol work and for amphibious assault opera-

He also said sales of hydrofoil craft in 1977 were the biggest in the industry's 25-

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAl—Thursday Evening, April 20, 1978—D-15

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might have to play the loner's role tomorrow because associates lack your perceptiveness and may not go along with your bright ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't broadcast your financial status at social gatherings tomorrow. You could find yourself in an embarrassing situation when a poor risk tries to put the bite on you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You must be very careful tomorrow if soliciting a favor from an influential friend. Should he feel he's being used, it could seriously impair the relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although you will be grateful of help from another in furthering your ambitions tomorrow, it's not likely you'll praise his efforts in front of your peers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Spreading your resources too thin is something you will have to guard against tomorrow. An unbalanced budget isn't worth a wild spending

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tomorrow will be one of those days when you're apt to feel you are doing far more for others than they are doing or you. Don't despair. Things will even out later.
