As if pangamate hasn't promised enough, the hard-charging Soviets are investigating what mankind so far has sought in vain - eternal youth. The substance purportedly holds back the erosion of time by sending in reinforcements against "free radicals," nasty high-energy fragments of cell molecules that gerontologists accuse of hastening old age. "Although the mechanism of action of calcium pangamate cannot be considered absolutely clear," Professor Shpirt wrote in a 1968 paper, "the available data allow us to believe that calcium pangamate is a potent stimulant in the control of aging." And then there's the cancer angle: One Russian experiment tantalizingly recorded that B-15 significantly reduced both incidence and onset of induced mammary tumors in young rats.

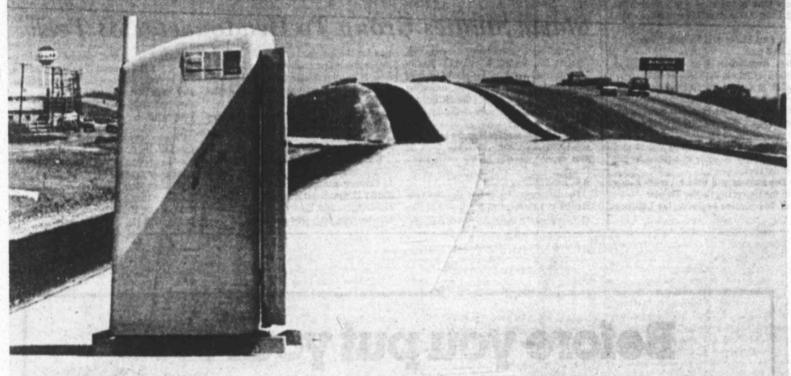

Obviously, the company that corners the pangamate market sits on a potential gold mine. Despite losing large sums on the other prodigy of Krebs' apricot pit, Dom Orlandi, the president of a Vermont drug company has invested heavily in B-15 over the past 10 years. Krebs and the Orlandi family were once united on Laetrile, but B-15 has made them enemies. Krebs calls their Aangamik 15 "half-baked." Dom Orlandi retorts that Krebs' formula, unavailable to the public, may have very severe side effects, possibly death, to those who cannot endure its fast dilation of the blood vessels.

The Orlandis made money in construction and real estate in the '50s. After Laetrile appeared to dissolve a pre-cancerous tumor in the breast of the family matriarch, a breast that doctors advised removing, the Orlandis sank $3.5 million into Laetrile research. Eventually, they acquired majority stock in Biozymes Limited International, the Canadian company that bought Krebs* patent for Laetrile. The man behind Biozymes was Andrew McNaughton, later convicted of fraud in a mining venture, whom Dom Orlandi says mismanaged his money. Searching for a way out of his financial hole, young Orlandi figured he would look into vitamin B-15, whose patent Biozymes had also been purchased from Krebs. He first tried it on friends' race horses, and it seemed to have a Silky Sullivan effect. Fast but fading horses would bolt down the backstretch like never before.

While Orlandi pressed on with research into B-15 he was astonished to see the Soviet version of the same thing at Expo '67 in Canada. "We were wondering what the hell was going on. B-15 is supposed to belong to Biozymes. Now don't Krebs is putting out the story that he gave the formula to Russia. Well, I believe him. I think McNaughton sold it to the Russians. And Russians hold a

Brown Reveals Pentagon Plan briefed by Pentagon teams earlier this

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Harold Brown today proposed closing, reducing or consolidating 107 mili-tary bases in 30 states and said $337 million a year in savings could be used to strengthen U.S. combat readiness.

The move, already drawing fire in Congress, would result in a net reduction of 23,200 jobs - 14,600 of them military and 8,600 civilian. While some bases would lose personnel, others would gain in the proposed shuffle.

(Goodfellow Air Force Base near San Angelo also will feel the pinch.

(Today's action carried no mention of Reese Air Force Base.)

It was the Carter administration's first attempt to streamline the military base structure, and Brown said the actions would "insure the greatest possible efficiency in defense spending for the tax-

Under the law, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines will have to conduct extensive studies and prepare environmental impact statements in each case before making final decisions. That will take many months.

The new effort to pare bases comes two ears after the Ford administration acted to realign and close 160 bases to save an estimated $248 million annually.

The Carter administration apparently delayed announcement of the politically sensitive base cutbacks until after the Panama Canal treaty ratification by the Senate a week ago, to avoid losing votes.

Congressmen began protesting the projected base reductions when they were

Brzezinski Plans Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's senior national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzeziński, will visit the People's Republic of China next month, Carter's chief spokesman announced today.

However, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell added: "There are no plans I know of for the president to go to Chin-

Brzezinski also will stop in Tokyo and Seoul after his visit to Peking, scheduled for May 20 through May 23.

The visit is the second by a senior member of the Carter administration. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance visited China last summer. Powell, announcing Brzezinski's plans during a White House news briefing, said the national security assistant would be prepared to reaffirm Carter's goal of normalizing diplomatic relations with Peking. But he said the journey "is not a negotiating trip" to work out the problems blocking diplomatic recognition.

Powell said the visit is in accordance with the Shanghai communique, signed by then-President Richard M. Nixon in February 1972, that said senior officials of the United States and China "will stay in contact through various channels."

Unlike the Vance trip to the Communist nation, no reporters are expected to accompany the White House aide.

Michael Armacost, a member of the staff of the National Security Council, which Brzezinski heads, said Brzezinski will consult with the leaders of Japan and South Korea after the Peking stop.

Richard Holbrook, assistant secretary of state for Asian affairs, noted that ever since former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger failed to consult with Japanese leaders after his first trip to Peking, U.S. officials have been careful to include Tokyo on their post-Peking itineraries.

Powell said the Shanghai communique, the document which outlines the course U.S. and Chinese leaders hope relations between the two countries will follow, 'calls for this sort of exchange or consultations and communications.'

Although Nixon and former President Gerald R. Ford both visited China, there have been no reciprocal visits to the United States by the upper echelon of the Chinese leadership.

Avalanche-Journal Staff Lubbock and South Plains farmlands are desert-dry, and farmers are to the point of forgetting science and breaking out the tom-toms and skyrockets.

There is a 20 percent chance of rain today and tonight and a 30 percent chance Thursday, but no more than a half-inch, far less than what is needed, is expected if it does rain.

"A shower is not going to help," said Lubbock County Agent Ken Cook this morning. "We need a good, general rain. A shower would just postpone the drought."

Compounding the problem and making irrigation almost futile under present conditions, Cook said, is the strong south wind, which weathermen say will blow at 20 to 30 miles per hour this afternoon and

Before you put your 1977 Form 1040 out of your mind, take a moment to be thankful you live in Texas.

"All of the other major industrial states have both a corporate and a personal income tax. Texas has neither. Texas needs neither. And as long as I'm Governor, Texas will have neither."

April 15th could have been a lot worse. Because in every other major industrial state, taxpayers face a second tax form painfully similar to 1040 - a Tax bill for around 5% right off the top of their annual gross income. People living in these states are paying the price of a state government that spends beyond its means, creating budgetary havoc that can only be resolved by placing an added tax burden on every citizen.

Other states - and the Federal government - would do well to follow the example Governor Briscoe has set in Texas. Under his leadership, Texas has had a government of fiscal responsibility. With firmly established policies of restraint in state spending. Coupled with encouraging new industries to move to Texas' outstanding climate for investment. The resulting economic expansion has helped create greater economic prosperity and improved state services – without new taxes. For the last five years, Governor Briscoe has worked hard to restrict governmental spending. And he has kept our budget in the black.

In contrast, his most active opponent in this year's Democratic Primary has said "yes" to the demands of virtually every spending lobby in Texas. And in the process this opponent has made one overriding promise to the people of Texas: If he is elected and his spending promises are kept, there will be new taxes - most likely a state income tax - imposed on Texans in the near future. This would be bad for the state, burdensome to our taxpayers, stifling to our economy and a direct contributor to inflation.

Instead Governor Briscoe wants to give our taxpayers an additional break. He will propose to the next session of the legislature that we use at least half of our current revenue surplus to repeal the State Sales Tax on utility bills and to provide meaningful tax relief for the homeowner and the family farmer.

A vote for Governor Briscoe on May 6th is a vote for fiscal responsibility. economic prosperity and April 15ths without a state income tax.

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than onefourth of the first students applying for federal grants to cover college costs this. year are being rejected by a computer programmed to catch cheating.

The new computer check for inconsistencies or omissions has resulted in turning back more than 200,000 of the first 800,000 applicants for so-called basic educational opportunity grants, according to Leo Kornfeld, who is HEW's student aid

Kornfeld called the figures "amazing." The rejected students are given a chance to submit corrected applications, he said in an interview, but these will be submitted to extra scrutiny.

By a "conservative" estimate, Kornfeld said, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been paying out $100 million to $150 million annually to students who were ineligible for the grants or who got too much.

The bulk of the money goes to students who underestimated their families' income, he says.

The student is required to list on the application the family's income and taxes paid. The computer compares those figures, and if there are apparent discrepen cies between the two, the computer kicks the application out.

There is no cross-checking with legally confidential Internal Revenue Service records of income and taxes paid.

Kornfeld said information is still being gathered on what types of mistakes the students are making. It is possible that some are honest mistakes and that the application form "is more formidable than we think," he said.

In those cases, students will need more help from their counselors or financial aid officers in filling out the form, he

But Kornfeld believes computer rejections will weed out mostly students who don't deserve an award at all.

Kornfeld said HEW began "computer auditing" the applications because "too many kids were submitting corrected applications to get a higher grant."

Out of 4.5 million students who applied for the grants in 1977, nearly two million divided $1.7 billion in federal aid. The average award was $850 and the maximum was $1,400. Ninety percent less than $14,-

The grants for the current year range up $1,600. President Carter has proposed raising the ceiling to $1,800 next year and adding $1 billion to the program to make grants of $250 available to students from families with income up to $25,000.

Carter is pushing for expansion of this program as an alternative to tax credits for college tuition, a proposal Carter opposes as inflationary but which has substantial support in Congress.

Kornfeld said that as an added precaution, his office will audit 10 percent of the applications from students who appear eligible for grants, concentrating on those who submitted corrected applications. They will be asked to provide additional information, such as a copy of their parents' income tax return.

A person who poured out the drinks in a manner "calculated to cause flies or insects" to gather could be declared a public nuisance, the proposal says.

The city staff suggested the amendment after irate homeowners living near Tech Terrace Park carried their complaints about littering and traffic congestion to the Citizens Traffic Commission. Most of the littering problem in the park at Flint Avenue and 24th Street occurs on the adjacent streets, a city spokesman said.

And, he added, often a passerby will spot a friend parked at the recreational area and stop for a chat and beer. The result can be backed-up traffic, he said.

Residents in an area bounded by 34th and 41st streets and Quaker Avenue and Slide Road may find themselves living within a designated slum and blight area. City council members will consider assigning that title to the area in order to make residents eligible for low-interest home improvement loans. No urban renewal activity would be done in the area, but minor housing rehabilitation would be encouraged.

Last month the council singled out the area bounded by 34th and 41st streets and by Slide Road to Utica Avenue. If passed Thursday, the council resolution would expand the area.

Loyd Sanders, Cemetery Board chairman, will ask the council to increase lot prices in order to increase cemetery revenue by about $6,000 a year.

Most spaces would be increased $25, with infant lots to be upped $10. The changes would make adult spaces in the city cemetery cost from $275 to $100, and graves in the infant section $35.

During its work session, to begin at 8:30 a.m. in the manager's conference room, the council will review the progress of its gas rate case against Pioneer Natural Gas Company. The council also will set hearing dates for budget sessions.

Reese Riders Show Slated For Weekend

At six, Michael DeRosa learned to ride - bareback - on the Onondaga Indian Reservation near Syracruse, N.Y.

tion as a member of the last military equestrian team to represent this country in Europe.

This weekend, Friday through Sunday, the retired Air Force master sergeant will be manager and steward as the Reese Riders Scholarship Show unwinds to benefit the college scholarship fund of the New Mexico Horse Show Association.

Horses and riders from a wide area of Texas and New Mexico will compete in 70 classes at the DeRosa stables on West 4th Street with hours 1 p.m. to dark on Friday and 8 a.m. to dark Saturday and

All proceeds will go toward beefing up the association's scholarship to help it go further toward meeting the rising costs of education, DeRosa said.

The event is free of charge to the observer, but participants pay a small entry fee for each class entered.

Western competition plays out Friday with the English style of riding, hunting and jumping, filling the other two days. Lisa Russell of San Antonio will judge dressage with Ron Millier of Alamogordo, N.M., judging other classes. High point awards will go to top riders in each age group with an overall hunterjumper award, the By George Memorial Trophy, going to the overall high point

Among the weekend contestants will be many introduced to the English way of riding by the DeRosas who came to Lubbock before the English style show had become well known.

Bareback was the only style back when DeRosa "rode the bus to the end of the line and then walked five more miles" for the opportunity of riding a horse.

At 11, he began taking lessons, and the next year got his first horse. He did all the training himself, then started making the local then the bigger horse shows, riding both western and English saddles.

In Germany with the Air Force, he met the leader of the Army equestrian team and was back in the saddle. Temporary duty assignments allowed him to compete with the Army team all over Europe. He was with the group in Ireland when the team was disbanded.

"The Army had horses then and they showed," DeRosa explai ned the participation of the military in local and international invitational horse shows.

Horse lovers, he found, are the same the world over. Competition continued in this country wherever he and the German equestrienne he married were stationed. When the children - a boy and two girls - got old enough to compete, the DeRosas left the show ring to the youngsters but continued with training and tions in the new location weren't known. We always lived in the country, but never with stables to rent like here," De-Rosa, who retired in Lubbock with 24 years service rather than sell the family horses one more time, said.

Reese Riders came into being so 'mostly Reese and retired military" could have activities - trail rides, shows and training sessions. The group, begun before DeRosa's retirement, now includes many civilian riders.

A break-in at Tommie Bradshaw's 2930 E. Colgate St. residence Tuesday reportedly resulted in a $2,249 loss for the com-plainant.

According to the woman, whoever broke through a door at the house made off with nine antique coins, valued at $1,000, a $600 television and a $149 camera. Also, she said, a $500 clock was damaged beyond repair.

A 61-year-old retiree, reportedly in a drunken condition when he arrived at West Texas Hospital Monday with a gunshot wound in his right side, said he was not sure whether he would file charges against his wife or not.

The woman reportedly told police the shooting had grown out of a domestic argument and what she perceived as a threat to her well-being.

The victim was not believed to have been wounded seriously

Meanwhile, Gregg Boyd, service manager at a local car dealership, said as he was going through lease records recently he realized that a car leased in January had never been returned. The vehicle, a 1977 Chevrolet Nova valued at $5,000, had been leased to a man who listed a South Lubbock address

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Red Sails In The Sunset

Russia and East European Communist nations have agreed to boost their economic subsidies for Cuba's economy as a reward for Havana's increased involvement in Afri-

This latest development in the export of Communism from the Western world to Africa was revealed this week even as the U.S. State Department continued to play into the hands of the Russians on Rhodesia.

COMMENTING ON the latest Moscow "aid" program for Cuba, one high-ranking analyst said: "In effect, the Soviet Union is paying Cuba for doing its work in Africa."

Last week, the State Department estimated that the number of Cuban soldiers and civilians throughout Africa has climbed by 18,-000 since November to a total of about 45,-

For those who felt this number of men could never be "exported" from Cuba, an intelligence appraisal last month said that provided the Russians continue to underwrite it, Cuba probably could increase significantly its commitment in Africa without seriously damaging its economy and military capability."

TT SHOULD have come as no surprise that be 10 percent greater this year than in 1977, and about triple the level in 1975, the year Cuba started sending troops into Angola.

The latest report indicates that Russia and East European Communist nations are paying Cuba anywhere from two to four times the going world price for sugar, for instance.

Russia also reportedly has pledged Cuba needed oil at a fixed price of $7.25 a barrel, about half the world market price.

THE LOGICAL question which should be raised by not only the average man in the street, but certainly the White House, is "Why?" The answer is just as obvious.

Armed Cuban soldiers are fighting Russia's battles "by proxy" in such a way that the U.S. and other Free World nations seem to find it hard to challenge. U.S. Ambassador to the UN Andrew Young has even termed the presence of Cuban soldiers in Angola as "stabilizing.

President Carter on his latest trip to Africa watered down criticism of the Russians and Cubans at the reported insistence of young firebrands in the State Department.

It all boils down to the President and Andy Young and others in the administration ignoring the facts of life as practiced by Inter-TOP-LEVEL U.S. intelligence specialists national Communism. It is a lesson which say Soviet support for Cuba's economy will will come closer and closer to home

Last month they voted to abolish their student overnment altogether. On April 7, the Board of Regents voted to approve their action.

Some other encouraging developments are taking place here in Austin. The Young Republicans and Young Americans for Freedom rank among the most active groups on a lively campus.

One of the YAF'ers is making a name for himself by persistently suing to prevent the Daily Texan from endorsing candidates for political off-

CAMPUS CONSERVATIVES began working toward overthrow of the student government two years ago. A couple of drama majors, Jay Adkins and Skip Slyfield, announced their candidacies for president and vice president on the Arts and sages ticket. Their platform had a beautiful purity at its ore: Student government is a farce, they said. So why not elect a couple of clowns? Attired in neglers' costumes, the two frolicked their way to splendid victory.

Thus inspired, leaders of the revolution (includ-ng many students of a liberal bent as well) set about obtaining signatures on a petition to abole student government root and branch. By February of this year, the effort had suc-

AUSTIN, TEXAS-At a time when the Carter the campaign. The Constructive Abolition Movement, headed by a student who withdrew as a presidential candidate, played a role.

In a burst of zeal, the abolitionists pasted together what might have been the largest political poster ever contrived-a paper streamer that dropped ten floors down the Texas Tower. Alas, the wind swept it away.

AS IT TURNED out, the winds of anarchy swept away the student government also. The vote was 2,644 to abolish, 2,458 to preserve. In a student body of 40,000, the turnout was pathetic, but this is the way with student elections general-

Next year, or the year after, a revival movement can be expected. Meanwhile, the charade is over. No government is better than sham govern-

The effort by law student Howard Hickman stems from an equally vigorous defense of princi-

In common with most student newspapers, the Daily Texan is mildly subsidized by the parent university. An excellent paper, professionally produced, the Texan operates from a publicly owned building in the heart of the campus.

Under the mandatory fee system, every student is required to pay roughly 75 cents a semester toward production costs.

BACK IN 1976, when a moderate liberal had won election as editor, the Daily Texan endorsed Jimmy Carter for President. Young Hickman is a Republican who had backed Ronald Reagan. He brought suit to enjoin the paper from endorsing candidates for any political office. Thus far, his petition has been rejected by a series of courts, but he is still in there fighting.

The present editor, a moderate conservative who also likes Reagan, is urging a rational solution: Give the dissenting students their money

University authorities have objected that it would take $1 in accounting costs to refund every 75 cents, and there the matter rests. Let's hear it for Hickman!

It would be pleasant to report that most of the Texas students are wrought up about matters of political philosophy, but they seem to be far nore disturbed by some stuff known as paraquat.

IT APPEARS THAT the Mexican government, under a grant from the United States government, has been spraying fields of marijuana with this poisonous defoliant, and the residue has contaminated the pot the students smoke.

Everywhere a visitor went on campus last week, he was asked for an opinion on this indefensible and abominable trick.

Paraquat-contaminated marijuana had been found on campus; its existence had been chemi-cally confirmed by the Middle Earth Crisis Center: students were learning to test their grass with kits containing vinegar, methyl alcohol and sodium hydroxide.

It is one way of learning chemical reactions. All this arouses envy in the breast of an aging ournalist. Forty years ago at the University of souri, we found our fun and games in swallowing goldfish. Things are livelier now.

Mayor Dirk West's new weed control program has been eminently more successful to date than was that of the previous administration. It's called Drought.

Texas Tech President Cecil Mackey says that he and his wife have had a "long-standing" understanding that she won't try to influence his job

My Neighbor Twice Removed says that he tried that with his own wife of long-standing but she wasn't very understanding about it.

Today's May Bouquet: To the Lubbock United Way, for a tasteful and easily visible identification sign on its building at 2201 19th St. Sets a good example.

On the negative side of the sign jungle, the Zoning Board of Adjustment has granted Winchester Square permission to erect one that could ruin the view of the graceful old tree at 50th St. and Indiana Ave.

BERNIE HOWELL was truly an "institution" in Lubbock and his death will be marked as a personal loss by thousands of people who didn't now him personally but thought they did. Through his radio and television programs, his public appearances and his renditions of The Star Spangled Banner at such events as Texas Tech basketball games, Howell became one of Lubbock's most popular citizens. He'll be missed.

IT MUST BE nice to be able to applaud or to condemn the indictment of three former FBI officials without any doubts or second thoughts. Those on the radical left are jumping with glee over the indictments, which allege the FBI broke the law in its campaign against the Weather Underground and other extremists in the early

From the right come howls of protest that the indictments are a "stab in the back" of those who sought merely to defend the nation from terrorists and anarchists

As for me, I'd like to find some rational middle ground.

The defendants, former FBI acting director L. Patrick Gray, former assistant director Edward S. Miller and former acting associate director Mark Felt, naturally protest their innocence.

"I was trying to stop bombings," Felt said of the accusation he ordered illegal break-ins.

THE ENDS WON'T justify the means, however, especially if it involves the illegal use of the awesome power of the federal government.

Breaking into a private home without a warrant, even in search of fugitive terrorists, is an unconstitutional threat to the freedom and security of every American.

No such charges have been proved against any of the defendants, of course, but it is the principle which must be addressed.

It is entirely possible that, as the evidence unfolds, the defendants' actions will appear far less sinister than they have been made to appear by Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and others.

Most certainly, public sympathy will come down on the side of those who were out to nail terrorists rather than on the side of the urban guerrillas who think nothing of blowing up innocent victims at random.

GIVEN A CHOICE between (1) FBI agents battering down the door of a stranger and (2) mad bombers placing dynamite in a crowded public building, Americans will take Choice 1 every

But what if the door is yours, a law-abiding church-going hard-working taxpayer? And if the FBI can batter down the one, why not the other?

Who decides? It is precisely this dilemma, of course, which can lead to an over-reaction that tragically ties the hands of law-enforcement agencies. Can it be realistically maintained, for example, that tapping the telephones of, or electronically eavesdropping on, criminal suspects violates their constitutional rights?

Is a federal judge any more qualified to grant permission for otherwise illegal surveillance than is the President?

The question comes down to how do you protect members of a free society without impinging on their freedom and if there were any easy answers to that question it wouldn't be worth de-

Atta Way To Go, Bill, But...

WASHINGTON, D.C .- Of Bill Buckley (William F. Jr.), columnist, editor, debater, television maestro, light novelist, we begin to ask, "What next?" It was said of Lincoln that he never stopped growing, and I have a notion that the same seed is in Buckley, but I want to wait and

His wit and erudition, his unconcealed self-confidence, magnetic personality are landmarks of our generation by this time. One of his early autobiographies was "Up From Liberalism," and he has long since surmounted earthbound Conservatism, somewhat to the dismay of his rightwing disciples and imitators.

He has found a wide public, and tamed some wild critics. His recent and effortless transfiguration from journalist to fictioneer has left the literary world agape.

BUT WHEN I ASK "What next?" for Bill, I am wondering if he can go the extra mile from being a clever spoofer and red-blooded patriot into a serious searcher of the human soul

Somewhere between the lines of his previous novel, "Saving The Queen," I thought I detected a yen to quit the repetitious commentary on national politics and the public aspects of the governmental world.

The strange, tragi-comedy of life is a far greater challenge to a man with the creative talent to explore it, humorously as Thackeray did, grandly as Tolstoy did, and I suspect that Buckley's mind tugs him in that direction when he thinks of new worlds to conquer.

I hope to be proved correct in this wishful guesswork.

HIS PLOTS ARE the pursuit and punishment of treachery and treason, with a nice distinction of where chivalry sometimes has to give way to necessity. He is a brilliant symbolist, as the title of this book "Stained Glass" (Doubleday) expresses by mixing the colors of an ancient chapel's windows with that of heroic blood.

The question of what's next for Buckley seems churlish at this point. He spins a terrific yarn. Blackford Oakes, late of the Yale, is a CIA agent, and his cover this time is that of a skilled and aesthetic architect who is using Marshall Plan funds to restore war-wrecked St. Anselm's Chapel on the estate of the Countess Wintergrin and her son Axel who is one of those British-German royal mixes, and cousin to Queen Caroline of England.

Axel, still in his mid-thirties, had defected from Hitler during the war, and he is now in the 1950s forming a new nationalist party for Reunification of East and West Germany

All he has to do is to defeat Konrad Adenauer and a minor candidate, become Chancellor and ing an atom bomb secretly developed by his country's scientists. He pledges to fight any ally who tries to help in this Pan German restoration. It sounds fine, and the American policy under

'Rip Torn' Not Just A Performer's Name

*Last Of Two Related Columns

A COUPLE OF years back, I'bought what was for me an extremely expensive designer dinner dress for a very special literary occasion. It was off-white and when it needed cleaning I sent it, on a knowledgeable friend's recommendation, to an expensive cleaner I did not regularly use because I wanted this dress to come back looking

Instead, when it was returned, the material had stiffened and the dress had shrunk disgracefully. wore it only a few times thereafter, finally gave it away because it hurt me even to see it whenever I opened the closet holding my evening dress-

Just last summer, I bought another fairly costly daytime dress in two colors appropriate for the TV shows on which I have been appearing from time to time. This dress carried a label "washable," so when it became necessary, my housekeeper washed it with great care.

THE COLORS "BLED" into each other, making the dress inappropriate even for a night of play at one of New York's far-out places. I've removed the sleeves, made it into a workdress to use when I type at home.

These are just two of the bitter and costly experiences I have had with clothes care labels as they exist today-labels which are disgracefully sketchy, often misleading, or completely inaccurate-and millions of you could easily duplicate my horror stories.

As a result of widespread complaints from us, the customers, and the trade group representing the launderers and drycleaners (the International Fabricare Institute), back in January 1976 the Federal Trade Commission began proceedings to revise its care labeling rules.

Finally, after many phases of hearings, studies analyses, proposals and counterproposals, the new rules are at the last major stage before they are placed on the public record, reviewed once more, and then put into effect.

MUCH STIFFER regulation of clothes care labeling will be in the new regulations and a giant step forward in our protection in this area should have been taken long before 1978 ends.

At least these two key changes are probable: Manufacturers will be required to state on their clothes care labels alternative ways of cleaning. Though FTC rules now say items labeled "washamust be drycleanable unless a warning against drycleaning is added, most of you aren't aware of this artificial definition and wash "washables" even though drycleaning actually may be more convenient.

CLOTHES MAKERS WILL be liable for much tougher penalties if they violate the FTC regulations. Though the FTC would have to take each violator to court, fines of up to $10,000 per violation could be imposed on manufacturers not complying with the rules.

* In the meantime (and also after the new rules are in effect) keep care labels attached to your clothes. If you take a multi-piece outfit to the clothes, ask for care labels you can sew in when you've finished. Fabric manufacturers are required to provide these labels. If your clothes are damaged after you follow the label's instructions, return the clothes and sales receipt to the store. A reputable store to the manufacturer. CLOTHES MANUFACTURERS may label their garments more accurately if you besiege them with returns-and they certainly will be more careful in their labeling when the new FTC should refund your money and return your outfit

* Look for details on the label if you're buying a stretch fabric (comfort stretch for everyday use, action stretch for exercise clothes, etc.). The label won't tell you how much stretch to expect in a stretch fabric, and while a test at the store will help, it can't guarantee that changes won't occur later.

Your best safeguard is to buy from a reputable retailer and clothing manufacturer, both of whom will heed your complaints and, if justified, will give you a refund or offer you an exchange.

Patterns/Needlework Travel Improved For Disab

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Millions of Americans with temporary or permanent disabilities face special problems when they travel on vacation or business, but advance planning and ex-planations can eliminate much of the

The U.S. Travel Service of the Department of Commerce reports that new federal regulations and a growing awareness of the special needs of handicapped travelers have opened previously closed doors for people who are blind, deaf, in wheelchairs or have other physical disa-

The service also says, however, that accessibility or ease of entrance remains a barrier. A building listed as accessible for the handicapped because it has a ramp may not be accessible at all if the ramp is so steep that a person in a wheelchair cannot go up or down without help.

Several government publications to travel facilities for the handicapped are available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. They include: "Travel Tips for the Handicapped," No. 627F, no charge; "Access Travel," No. 619F, describing facilities at 220 airports around the world, no charge; and "Access Guide to the National Parks," No. 102F, $3.50.

but local conditions and personnel vary widely. Many airlines, for example, permit guide dogs to accompany blind or deaf people, but local airport authorities may ban animals from terminals.

Here is a look at some transportation specifics:

The U.S. Travel Service notes that the Federal Aviation Administration reguires each U.S. airline to have a national company policy, approved by the FAA, applying to handicapped travelers.

When possible, make reservations in advance. Describe the exact nature of your disability to avoid misunderstandings later. Louise Weiss, author of "Access to the World - A Travel Guide for the Handicapped," published late last year, notes that an airline attendant may tell a person in a wheelchair that he or she only has to walk a few steps. Someone recovering from a heart attack may be able to manage; a person who is per-manently paralyzed may find a few steps as impossible to manage as a mile-long

Choose a departure time when traffic is light and airports are less busy. Ask which flights are likely to be least crowded. Arrive at the airport early so you can board ahead of other passengers.

If you have your own wheelchair, be sure your name and address are firmly attached. Once you are on board the plane - via a ramp or a special lift - the chair will be put in the baggage compart-ment for transport. It can be picked up at the baggage claim area or at plane side when you get to your destination; ask which system will be used. Canes and crutches also must be relinquished once you are on board. Safety regulations require that these items be securely stowed.

If you have special equipment - oxygen, a respirator or any mechanical device - warn the airline ahead of time. Mrs. Weiss notes that the carriage of oxygen, for example, is subject to strict FAA regulations and batteries for battery-operated wheelchairs may not be allowed on a plane unless they are of a special

Amtrak has ordered new cars with special facilities for the handicapped, but they generally will not be in service until later this year and will not solve the problems of stations and trains with steps impossible for someone in a wheelchair to manage. For detailed information, call Amtrak's toll-free telephone number, 800-523-5720 and ask for the Special Movements Desk. Pennsylvania residents should call 800-562-6960.

Blind passengers traveling with an attendant can get a 25 percent discount off the regular one-way fare by presenting a certificate issued by the American Foundation for the Blind. The discount applies Greyhound's "Helping Hand" program and Trailways' "Good Samaritan" plan allow a handicapped person and his or her attendant to travel together for the price of one ticket. To qualify, you must provide a doctor's certificate saying you are disabled to the extent of requiring the help of an attendant.

For further information, contact local bus offices or Director of Customer Relations, Greyhound Lines, Greyhound Tower, Phoenix, Ariz., 85077 (602-248-2920) and Continental Trailways, 1512 Commerce St., Dallas, Texas, 75201 (214-655-

All inter-city carriers are required by law to provide help in boarding. Drivers usually try to put the handicapped as close to the front of the bus as possible because bus aisles are very narrow. Most bus terminals are on one level, but you should ask in advance if the station has accessible restrooms, low telephones and special ramps.

U.S. Relations Suffer In Philippine Voting

By VICENTE MALIWANAG

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Philippine-American relations suffered a black eye in the torrid political infighting during the Philippine legislative elections this month.

The repercussions could be far-reaching. Primarily, it might adversely affect treaty negotiations on the future of America's last two big military bases in Southeast Asia located in the Philippines.

At the windup of a free-wheeling cam-paign in the first Philippine elections held in the more than five years of martial law, President Ferdinand E. Marcos raised foreign intervention as a major election issue.

Marcos made it clear he was referring to the Carter Administration when he accused foreigners of meddling in his country's domestic affairs and said the opposition encouraged such intervention. He singled out Patricia Derian, U.S. assistant secretary of state for human rights who visited Manila last December, and who, according to Marcos, lectured Filipino officials "on how the government should be run, how there should be opposition parties."

Miss Derian, he said, also requested the release of imprisoned opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr., Marcos' arch political foe, and went further by tying it up with the military bases negotiations and the question of American aid.

"I replied that this is plain foul. This is Marcos said in recalling the encounter. Even before this incident was disclosed, official relations were already soured by a U.S. State Department report released earlier this year naming the Philippines as violator of one of President Carter's most-publicized cause human rights. The Marcos government vehemently denied this.

In the aftermath of the elections, Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo accused foreign correspondents, most of them Americans, of helping plan an anti-government demonstration that resulted in a roundup of more than 500 protesters. It was difficult to ascertain how the Marcos-generated issue of foreign intervention affected the results of the elections, if at all. But the outcome - a nearsweep of all

Airline Plans Extension Of Reduced Fares

MIAMI (AP) — Raising the ante in sky-high price war, National Airlines says it plans to extend the reduced-fare plan between New York and southern Florida to its entire system.

Under the new "Super No-Frills" plan, which is subject to Civil Aeronautics Board approval, approximately half the seats on each National jet would be available for travelers using the 30 to 50 percent discounts.

The fares between south Florida and the New York area would be $58 one-way on night coach flights Monday through Thursday. A day flight on those days and night flights Friday through Sunday would cost $69. Day flights Friday through Sunday would cost $81. The proposal brings National into line with Eastern and other airlines.

The new reduced fares would be available to those flying either one-way or round-trip, but passengers would have to buy tickets seven days in advance on the heavily-traveled East Coast routes. There'd be no advance purchase or reservation rule on east-west flights.

Haig Needed Carter's Urging To Keep Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top U.S. general in Europe decided to keep his post only after the Carter administration urged him to stay on, defense officials say.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., chief of staff to former President Richard M. Nixon, reportedly felt uncomfortable with the Carter administration, the officials said.

He considered leaving his position as commander of U.S. and NATO forces in Europe, but reversed himself after Defense Secretary Harold Brown assured him that he was valuable to this country and its allies, the sources commented.

The officials said Haig told Brown about a month ago that he was less involved in policy matters now than during the administration of former President Gerald R. Ford. Ford appointed Haig to his current job.

The officials, who declined to be identified, said Haig never formally threatened to resign but added the general wanted to leave at the expiration of his term in October.

There were reports at the outset of the Carter administration that members of the White House staff wanted Haig removed because of his service to Nixon.

Haig, 54, began his White House career in 1969 as deputy to Henry A. Kissinger, who then was national security adviser. He left that position in September, 1972 to become Army vice chief of staff. But when Nixon's trusted chief of White House staff, H.R. Haldeman, resigned in May, 1973, Haig was named his replacement.

During the final months of Nixon's term, Haig often served as chief presidential spokesman on the unfolding Watergate drama.

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Discussion of America's long-range energy problems usually ignores this nation's second largest fossil fuel resource — peat.

Many European countries have burned peat for centuries because it is cheap. Americans never have had to make use of it because the country has so much petroleum and coal.

The peat reserves of the United States amount to 140 billion tons, second only to the nation's coal reserves. Ninety percent of the peat is concentrated in Alaska, Minnesota, Michigan, Florida, Wisconsin, Louisiana and North Carolina. Other states also have supplies. Most of the states that are rich in peat have no significant amounts of other solid fuels.

Peat is geologically young coal and, as found in nature, it contains about nine times its weight in water. For use as solid fuel, it must be dried mechanically or with solar energy since drying with fossil energy would mean the loss of much of the energy in peat.

Peat has 25 percent less heating value than lignite, the poorest form of coal, which is why it never has been used in the United States the United States.

But in the past year, the Institute of Gas Technology and the Minnesota Gas Co., have made some surprising discoveries about peat. They have begun to believe that peat may be a more promising source than coal for manufactured gas. Growing shortages of natural gas are the country's most imminent energy threat.

A study prepared by D. V. Punwani, W.

"The unique feature of peat is that up to 55 percent of the heavy hydrocarbons produced during pyrolysis can be hydrogenated into hydrocarbon gases with yields of 10 to 27 percent of the feed carbon ... By comparison, the gas yield from lignite and soft coal is only 6 to 10 percent."

We should try to deal with glaring violations only — like attempts by some government leaders to place relatives and friends in U.N. posts or the substitution of political favoritism for merit in promotions."

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The recent defection of Arkady N. Shevchenko, a top Soviet U.N. employee, has brought to the surface a question that has troubled the world organization since its inception: Can members of the international civil service conduct themselves independently of their governments?

Shevchenko, the undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs, refused a Soviet order to return home and took an indefinite leave of absence. He cited "differences" with his government. Both Shevchenko's statement and the subsequent Soviet demand for his dismissal indicate that neither paid much attention to the neutral character of the U.N. Secretariat as laid down in the U.N. Charter.

Article 100 states that the U.N. staff "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government" or from any other outside authority. It also requires each member state "to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities." Although the charter principle applies to all U.N. civil servants, the question of whether U.N. employees can subordinate

Some officials make no secret of their close association with their governments. For example, China's Tang Ming-chao, undersecretary-general for political af-fairs and decolonization, lives in the Chinese Mission building where all Chinese diplomats stay in New York. Shevchenko also called frequently at the Soviet Mission on his way to and from work and followed the Moscow policy line strictly.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A New York doctor says some of the finest rock paintings of early North American Indians may have been produced by shamans high on halluciogenic plants.

"The weird objects of the fertile imagination of these Indians combine a decidedly whimsical quality with a dream-like sense of the supernatural and the mysterious," said Dr. Klaus Wellmann. He said aboriginal peoples in many parts of the world discovered the psychedelic and narcotic properties of certain plants "and have used them since time immemorial for both medicinal and

The North American Indian was no exeption, he said.

Wellmann, a pathologist at the Beek-

Chumash and Yokuts Indians in southern California and those who lived in the lower Pecos River region of Texas before the birth of Christ appear to depict multi-co-lored designs similar to those visualized during a drug-induced trance. While difficult to verify directly, Wellmann said in a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, such a concept does receive support from some archaeological discoveries and anthropological studies.

He said jimsonweed plants grow near the sites of the Chumash and Yokuts and the Indians concocted a brew by grinding the roots, stems and leaves of the plants and them soaking them in water. Jimsonweed contains the alkaloids scopolamine jimsonweed species was regarded by the Chumash as the source of all supernatural power "and was relied on in their quest for a dream helper or guardian to gain some control over the threatening forces of the unseen world.

"The pictographic designs combine just the right touch of the bizarre and a feeling of the remote and awesome to be plausible even as records of visions actually experienced."

In the lower Pecos River region of Texas, Wellmann said more than 40 shelters

Man Rides Rails In Style Aboard Lavish Pullman

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) -When the whistle blows at the railroad station, a proper, aging lady of 90 tons dressed in mahogany and solid brass may be off on another nostaglic ride through the night.

She's the Wayside 905, personal property and beloved mistress of automobile dealer J. S. McClinton Jr.

When McClinton travels, he calls Amtrak officials and summons his cook from Cincinnati. Wayside 905 is hooked to the first Amtrak passenger train going his way and McClinton takes off in Victorian er. It was converted in 1945 and served in the late 1940s and '50s as the personal office car of the general manager of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's western lines. "It's not a car to be taken lightly," says

He saved Wayside 905 from foreign

SOCIAL SECURITY

In 1976, 56.5 percent of retired Americans began collecting Social Security benefits before age 65, compared with 1962, when 16.3 percent retired early, the American Council of Life Insurance re-investors 11 years ago and restored her to her former elegance.

The mahogany is spotless and the brass fixtures gleam. Guests drink from bluebanded B&O glasses and eat from authentic blue B&O china. All the linen aboard is standard B&O, including the cook's uniform. Stateroom water bottles and fixtures are either B&O or Pullman. Even the cook, Joe Brooks, is authentic B&O. He retired after 48 years of cooking for B&O passengers on the National Limited. And the Wayside 905 once rolled through Parkersburg as part of that elite passenger train.

McClinton maintains Wayside 905 as an office car and all the ingredients are still there. It has three staterooms, a dining room, a kitchen and cook's quarters.

The senior railroad official aboard sat on the left where he could see the track and right-of-way. At night, he could turn on brillant outside lights to examine the right-of-way. A front-view mirror allowed him to see the entire train ahead of him. Above him were a spedometer and weather indicators.

Beside him in a brass console were switches to summon the secretary, the servant or the cook, or stop the train.

McClinton and his wife entertain as many as 25 guests aboard the car, which serves them as a second home. On trips, it sleeps six plus Brooks.

times a year. Last October, there was a 19-day ride through 14 states.

But McClinton insists he is not interested in nostalgia, only in railroads. "Who McClinton takes the car out several wants to re-create the gas light era," he muses, mixing a drink in a B&O highball glass. "I'm not trying to ape J.P. Morgan. I'm just a Chevrolet dealer that loves railroads."

Hobby Admits Thinking Of Bid For Governor

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has considered running for governor but has been and will continue to be happy as lieutenant governor, he said in a press conference here this morning.

"Sure, I've thought about it," he said in the session at Lubbock International Airport. "But let's take one race at a time. I'm running for lieutenant governor right

He was in Lubbock to address a Rotary Club luncheon and meet with Avalanche Journal executives about the May 6 Democratic primary election.

His opponents for re-election, none of whom has had a strong campaign, are Troy Skates, John H. Westbrook and and James L. McNees Jr.

Asked if he has campaigned seriously this year, he said, "I travel 80,000 to 100,-000 miles every year in Texas whether it's an election year or not. I can't tell the difference between holding office and campaigning for it. You're doing the same thing anyway. Hobby said former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock might well get enough votes to put the gubernatorial race into a runoff between Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill, but he said he does not expect the bitter contest between Briscoe and Hill to do serious damage to the Texas Democratic Party.

'That's what party primaries are all about." he said

Asked if Bill Clements or Ray Hutchison, the Republican nominees, might have a chance this fall, Hobby said, "It would be the first time in modern history, so I would have to say the chances are pretty small."

He mentioned that no Republican has been governor of Texas since Civil War Reconstruction.

Hobby has been lieutenant governor since Ben Barnes was ousted in the Sharpstown Bank scandal fallout in 1972. He said this morning he is still happy with the job of presiding over the State Senate and filling in for Briscoe in the absence of the governor from the state.

He said the office is comparable constitutionally to that of the vice president but is much more important in state government than the vice presidential office in national government. He appoints committees and set the calendar when the legislature goes into session and enjoys being heavily involved in the legislative process. "The lieutenant governor has considerable opportunity for input into the legislative process," he said.

The Lubbock candidate, a two-term state representative from Brownfield in the 1960s, said during an interview with Avalanche-Journal executives that he would support state legislation "to prohibit and prosecute" silent partnerships in businesses like nightclubs. "I think we need some state laws to hit it in the head," George said. The other Democrats in the race are Delwin Jones, Morris Turner and Don into a run-off after the May 6 primary. He considers Turner his strongest opponent, he said. In the wide-ranging, hour-long interview, George said he has the support of labor groups and supports the Equal Rights Amendment nationally but is not liberal politically as he has been portrayed by some of his opponents.

He also supports pay raises for teachers "to the national average," he said, but is against pari-mutuel horseracing and the repeal of the state right-to-work law.

George said he made "no promises" to get the endorsement of the Central Labor Council of Lubbock. "The only reason they support me is that they feel I will listen to them whereas with the others they wouldn't even get a chance to be heard." he said. He emphasized that he also has support from small businessmen, farmers, nurses and others in the medical profession.

George told the newspaper panel he would vote against a state income tax. He said he would oppose the rescission of ERA passage in the Texas Legislature.

Dr. Willard F. "Doc" Williams, Horn rofessor of agricultural economics at Tech and president of Texas Agricultural Research Associates (TARA), will be the moderator.

The public is invited.

One goal of his is to bring zero-based budgeting - having each agency start from zero and justify every expenditure in every new budget - to Texas state

Asked if he, like House Speaker Bill Clayton, thinks elected officials should have more control over state expenditures between legislative sessions, he said he agrees with Clayton in principle but that in practice the elected officials exercise informal control over many between-session expenditures.

Agencies often consult budget commit tee members when a question arises between sessions as to the intent of legislation, he said, adding, "In fact, a lot more of that kind of supervision goes on than either the statutes or the constitution

Hobby said school financing probably will be the main issue in the next session as it was in the last.

"It's half the money," he said. "It seems like more than half the hassle."

DPS Chemist Gives Testimony In Trial

Department of Public Safety chemist Pat Johnson testified today that metal fragments were found in a cinder block taken from the wall of a local bar and said, in his opinion, an indentation in the block could have come from a bullet.

The chemist also said he feels metal fragments taken from the body of William Drew Young III could have come from a lead bullet.

The testimony came in the second day of the murder trial of Kenneth Owen Jaycon being conducted in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court.

The dark-haired Jaycon, 31, is one of six persons who was charged in connection with Young's brutal slaying last Christmas Eve. The 28-year-old Young was found in the

A comparison of the first quarter of 1978 with the first quarter of 1977 showed that average total employment increased by 6.2 percent in the past year. Manufacturing employment showed the largest margin of increase over the same quarter in 1977 with a gain of 15 percent. In the non-manufacturing areas, contract construction alone showed the only deficit compared to year-ago levels. In March 1977, construction workers numbered 4,750 and last March the force totaled 4.650. Government workers a year ago numbered 17,190, and last month the total was 18,050, an increase of 860 workers.

Trade added an estimated 1,110 jobs, and other categories contributed another 700 new jobs.

Contract construction is expected to reverse the deficit during the spring and summer months. The TEC said new building permits which were approved during the first calendar quarter are ahead of last year, and will increase the work force once building gets under way.

"Obviously CB is an everyday necessity and a tool for many persons," McCormack said, "and antennas are an important part of CBs, particularly in areas where they must be craised to be operated properly.

The court ruled the ordinance is not a matter of federal jurisdiction. 'This is the first action by the court on CBs," McCormack said, "and if they're

March Deficit Shows Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United for February but were close to the Janu-States recorded a $2.8-billion trade deficit in March, an improvement over February but still worse than the average for last year, the government said today.

A trade deficit means more dollars are leaving the country for foreign goods and services than the United States is taking in from overseas. It contributes to inflation and can damage U.S. business and job prospects.

The March deficit was well below the record $4.5 billion deficit in February, but it provided little encouragement for economists. Last year, the U.S. trade deficit totaled $26.7 billion, an average of $2.2 billion a month.

The Carter administration says nearly all of the trade imbalance can be attributed to oil imports, which totaled $3.1 billion last month. These imports were down from the $3.5 billion in oil imports

Health officials say potluck can bring bad luck, such as food poisoning.

When a senior citizens' group recently advertised a potluck affair, the health department called to warn them not to hold a bring-your-own meals dinner. The seniors recently stormed a City Council meeting and demanded the law be changed, said City Manager Richard

As a result, a revised ordinance is being prepared for council approval, and potluck dinners probably will be legal again in Brooklyn Park.

"What happened was what happens frequently when councils adopt laws and have to depend on professional people for advice," said Henneberger. Sometimes they go a little too far.

Tom Heenan, director of the health department for the suburbs of Brooklyn Park, Brooklyn Center and Crystal, said the anti-potluck ordinance has been in ef-fect for years in Brooklyn Park but usually was not enforced unless the dinners were widely advertised.

The report did not indicate any substantial improvement in the U.S. trade picture, which has been aggravated by oil imports.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said March 10, "If we were not successful in reducing the deficit, as I expect us to be as the year progresses, then, indeed, the problems for the economy would become serious."

Analysts who have been watching the falling value of the dollar against foreign currencies have said the trade deficit and oil imports have been the main reason for the dollar's troubles. The administration estimates that the trade deficit and the dollar's decline have contributed 0.3 percent to the growing U.S. inflation strong pleas for a delay, President Carter informed the Senate Foreign Relations committee today he will send his controversial Mideast jet fighter package to Congress Friday. The message was delivered by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance at the State Department. Committee member Frank Church, D-Idaho, told reporters he and other members expressed strong opposition to the timing.

The most controversial part of the three-way package involving 200 jets would be the sale of 60 highly sophisticated F-15s to Saudi Arabia. Egypt would get 50 F-5s and Israel would get 90 F-15s and F-16s. Despite warnings from many lawmakers that the sale could escalate tensions in the Middle East. Carter has warned he will kill the whole package if Congress voids any part of it. Israel said Tuesday it is willing to give up its jets to keep the others out of Arab hands.

To turn down the sale, both houses of Congress would have to come up with a majority "no" vote within 30 days. Carter told a news conference Tuesday the package is in the national interest.

WASHINGTON (AP) - "Yup," agreed Willie Nelson, with a grin that'd stop a truck. "Big beer joint." Classiest one in his 30-odd years of beer joints, he figured. The White House. Not bad for Willie Nelson. He'll bring his guitar, a scarred-up old Martin with musicians' names etched in the wood, and he'll probably do "Amazing Grace," just so the boss can catch up on choir practice. Jimmy Carter, known as the country boy who brought Vladimir Horowitz to the White House, is playing host to Willie Nelson, live and in concert, next September.

Not to knock Horowitz, the classical pianist, but some of the 12,000 folks who heard Nelson, the country picker, and two top Carter aides do "Amazing Grace" on stage Monday night at the Capital Centre auditorium probably think Willie at the White House is a step in the right direction.

The aides were Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, and Frank Moore, the Carter's chief Capitol Hill lobbyist. Seems they had a beer or two. And Moore missed his 8:15 a.m.

evator managers to "understand and

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer Fear of reprisals against witnesses may force a state legislative committee behind closed doors in its efforts to determine the cause and prevention of grain elevator explosions in Texas, the group's chairman said at a public hearing here Tuesday.

Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, head of the Committee on Agriculture and Livestock, said witnesses at three previous hearings were reluctant to testify publicly because of pending lawsuits stemming from a rash of Christmastime elevator explosions and fear that insurance companies would refuse to pay claims.

The committee, meeting at the First National Bank, has an Oct. 1 deadline to submit a report of its findings to the state legislature. A total of six hearings will be conducted.

"Witnesses have come up off the cuff to give information," noted Hubenak, "but they are afraid to do it on the record." Concerning the legality of private hearings, the state agriculture commissioner candidate said special permission might be required. Relatively few advisory services to deal with potential problems, along with conflicting regulations at the federal level, were offered as critical factors in the prevention of grain elevator explosions. With 482 applications for state aid from the Texas Occupational Safety Board to meet requirements to comply with federal elevator dust standards, the state agency has been without funds for 2 1/2 years.

Hubenak said.

Kenneth Hubbell, assistant area director of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Lubbock, said the federal act which created OSHA in 1970 has no provisions for consultation with elevator operators.

"We can advise at any locations other than the workplace," he said. "But when we come out it must be in the capacity of an official inspection.'

Hubbell suggested a state-takeover of inspection duties from OSHA. He noted that such a move would require legislation and the state plan would have to be at least as strict as federal standards.

"Anytime a state is interested in developing a plan, OSHA is more than willing to work with it, and also to get it approved by the assistant secretary of labor." he said.

About 22 states now have inspections programs in effect.

British Auto Boss Plans To Revitalize Company

in Britain notch up record sales and chuckle all the way to the bank about British car makers' inability to meet domestic demand

They may soon stop laughing if Michael Edwardes has his way.

Edwardes is the new chairman of British Leyland, the state-owned automotive giant that in the decade since it absorbed most of the famous names on the British road has steadily lost money on passen-

Edwardes pulled no punches in announcirg his plans for revitalizing the company the Daily Mirror tagged "the ailing monster' of British industry.

"Nothing is more damning than our steady decline in market share against a rising market," Edwardes told Leyland managers and union leaders.

"People are literally walking past our showrooms without a second look. Is it any wonder our dealers are worried and some are defecting to our competitors and strengthening the hold of imported cars in this country?"

Britons went on a surpise car buying spree in January, traditionally a slow month. Sales were up 33.5 percent on January, 1977, and new British car sales increased 18 percent.

But import sales jumped 53 percent to capture 50 percent of the British home market. Ford sales went up 55 percent to give it almost a 30 percent market slice. British Levland's sales only held even and its market share slid from 28.6 to 21.4 percent. During 1977, British Leyland's car division made an estimated $29 million before-tax profit. But industry sources said the company's successful parts division alone made four times that much, so the assembly and sale of new cars lost at least $87 million.

British Leyland lost 250,000 cars through strikes in 1977, which alone reduced its pretax profit by at last $244 mil-

The crisis touches the entire British car industry, although British Leyland domi-

The industry's decline began in the early 1950s when it stood fast while foreign competitors were streamlining, modernizing and pouring heavy investments into their products. Britain had too many individual firms producing too many models. Machinery was old, bosses were unimaginative.

Department of Industry figures showed British car output in 1977 was virtually unchanged from 1976 levels.

Car importers reckon overall sales in

By PETER J. SHAW

Britain this year could surpass the 1.6

LONDON (UPI) — Foreign car dealers million record of 1973. They think the Britain this year could surpass the 1.6 proportion of import sales could rise from last year's unprecedented 45 percent to an average 55 percent.

"During 1977, production was consistently below target as a result of all-toofrequent strikes, layoffs and general industrial disruptions," said David Plastow, president of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders.

"All companies are affected by such troubles because of the industry's highly integrated nature. A dispute at one plant has a domino effect on both the suppliers and customers of that plant.

Car output in Britain last year totalled 1.3 million and "fell far below demand from our customers in Britain and around the world," Plastow said.

Overmanning and outdated models are two problems that plague British car manufacturers. A third is that each car worker on the Continent turns out twice as many vehicles as his British counter-

Leyland has one of Britain's worst strike records. Although 75 percent of all its strikes and layoffs in 1977 were triggered by disputes outside the firm, a February strike by Leyland's 3,000 toolmakers nearly toppled dhe company. It was instrumental in robbing Leyland of one-quarter of its 1 million car production target.

There were three times as many working days lost because of strikes in Britain's motor vehicles industry in 1977 than in 1976. Department of Employment figures showed 2,593,000 working days lost last year compared to only 785,000 in

The British car industry has a capacity to build more than 2 million cars annually. Britain has the world's leading independent component parts supply industry. It should be able to satisfy more than 70 percent of its home market de-

Yet although British Leyland currently has cars to spare, few seem inclined to buy them. Ford, the biggest importer of cars into Britain last year, has had to increase its shipments of popular Cortinas made in Belgium and Escorts made in West Germany because its plants in Britain cannot fulfill British buyers' needs.

A decade ago, British Leyland held over 40 percent of the home market. Its steady decline has been helped by differences in pay scales throughout the 36 Leyland car factories.

These could be reduced by a recent agreement to start centralized pay bargaining aimed at standardizing wages.

Edwardes, a 47-year-old South African, hopes to rescue British Leyland by dividing the overly centralized company into three independently run profit units: Austin-Morris for volume cars, Jaguar-Rover-Triumph for luxury and specialist cars, plus a components company. A new umbrella company called BL cars will own all the assets and be responsible for employment and pay talks.

Edwards tapped an American with considerable marketing experience in the United States and Japan, 44-year-old William Pratt Thompson, to head Jaguar-Rover-Triumph.

Unions have given Edwards qualified support for his vow to eliminate 12,500 jobs this year "by natural wastage, redundancy programs, by plant closures or by some combination of these.

Although Leyland's car division employs 130,000 workers, the current output of 750,000 cars justifies only 90,000. Even without industrial disruptions in 1978, Leyland's loss of world market share means it could sell only 820,000 cars at

A-J Recognizes Newspaper Carriers At Banquet

Steve Reis, model railroad buff who likes electronics as well as being his own small business boss, was named The Avalanche-Journal's 1977 Carrier of the Year at the 20th annual carrier banquet Tuesday.

Eight star carriers also were announced at the banquet in El Toreador Room in Town and Country Shopping Center at which A-J editor Jay Harris was speaker.

"The newspaper carrier always has been one of the most important links in helping keep the world informed, Harris told the 120 carriers and parents gathered for the annual event.

"When all the reporters and through with the final product, it is the carrier who sees that it reaches the person for whom it was all done in the first place

-the reader." Harris praised the carriers' prowess as young businessmen earning good money while they learn about the world in which they must become a part.

"If you can make it as a carrier, the odds are you can make it in anything."

The carrier of the year title goes to the person who does the best job on his route, buying newspapers from The A-J and then selling them to his customers, paying papers in a conscientious way.

Reis, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Reis of 5403 15th St., has had a paper route for three years and five months, delivering to about 110 customers in an area from Bangor Avenue to Slide Road and from 19th Street to 15th Street.

At Mackenzie Junior High School, the ninth grade student is a member of the National Junior Honor Society.

He received $200 in savings bonds, a trophy, an engraved wrist watch and an orchid corsage for his mother. His name will be engraved on a plaque with the 19 previous title holders.

Runners-up for the top honor were Carolyn Douglas of 3116 31st St., Terry Driscoll of 2816 67th St., Tom Ashley of 3603 58th St., Mark Rose of 4302 56th St., Freddy Gilbreth of 1924 68th St. and Doug Hamman of 6004 Vernon Ave. They received $25 bonds.

Star carriers received a certificate of award for carrier achievement, an A-J collection bag, a pair of Star Carrier paper bags and a star carrier jacket.

Star carriers named Tuesday included David Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stone of 3603 32nd St.: David Neil, son of Mrs. Margaret Watkins of 3255-A 62nd St.;

Steve Chapman, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James W. Chapman of 4005 69th St.; Scott Wilkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilkes of 3111 81st St.; Ronald Keneda, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Keneda of 4902 44th St.; Jeff Walling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walling of 5417 14th St.; Yang Chin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chin Chen-an of 1927 67th St.; and Blake Smith. son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerre B. Smith of 3505 43rd St.

Runners-up, two for each carrier, were Tommy Speed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rainey Speed of 3409 30th St.; Terina Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stone of 3603 32nd St.: Mike Cagle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ca-gle of 6911-A Fremont Ave.; Diana Landreth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Landreth of 2728 68th St.; Greg Haltom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Haltom of 3807 64th Drive; Kenny Yates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Yates of 4826 52nd St. Briger Beard, son of 4826 52nd St.; Brian Beard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beard of 7705 Knoxville Ave.; John Fricks, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Martin Fricks of 3601 Knoxville Drive.

Also, Kim Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bolin Wilson of 4815 35th St.; Kyle Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Allison of 5436 32nd St.; Joel Laird, son of Mr. and

M.J. "Bud" Aderton will be sworn in Thursday as the winner in the race for Place 3 city councilman if a vote canvass shows no major tally discrepancies.

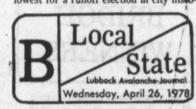

The swearing-in ceremony will be at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers. The 70-year-old Aderton apparently defeated opponent Bob Schmidt by 699 votes in Tuesday's runoff election. Uncanvassed but complete returns show Aderton carried 22 precincts and garnered 55.7 percent of the 6,191 votes cast during 12 hours of balloting. Schmidt unofficially took 12 precincts and secured 44.3 percent, or 2,723 votes.

The men tied in the Southeast Elementary School precinct, with each receiving 12 votes. The small voter turnout, which had been predicted by observers, is one of the lowest for a runoff election in city histo-

A jubilant Aderton, who had gathered the most Place 3 votes in the April 1 elecfion, said he thanks from "the bottom of my heart people who have supported me and worked for me."

He said his first goal is to "pursue the Jimmy Marshall affair a little further and see if we can resolve it," apparently referring to Marshall's three lawsuits against the City of Lubbock and its winning 32.5 percent of the April 1 Place 3 votes, carried most of the minority polls, evidently supporting a rumor that surfaced late in the campaign that the minority communities were throwing their support behind him.

In fact, the only non-minority polls he won were Slide Road Clubhouse and Stewart School in Southwest Lubbock, Texas Tech and Mackenzie Junior High - his home precinct - in the city's northwest sector.

The Slim Gourmet SPOTLIGHT ON... At Wit's

If you like roast beef, lamb, pork, chicken, turkey, but never know what to do with the leftovers, today's trio of make-overs is for you. Especially if you hate excess calories. Our recipes for recycling leftovers into new-again main courses are not only short on time and energy, they're calorie-careful as well!

You don't need a big family or a lot of guests to justify enjoying a big roast now and then. Simply cut the leftovers into meal-size quantities, then wrap and freeze for later use. Here are three ways to reclaim the leftovers into non-fattening quick and easy meals in minutes.

One of the nicest things about these recipes is their flexibility: you could substitute pork for beef, or turkey for lamb, and create another set of variations. The important thing is to be sure that the leftovers are lean and well-trimmed of fat.)

FRUITED LAMB CURRY (Lean pork or turkey could be used.) 3/4 cup tomato juice

12 oz. can unsweetened apricot-pineapple nectar

1/4 cup currants or raisins 4 small onions, peeled and quartered

1 small green bell pepper, seeded and

3 tbsp. soy sauce optional: pinch of garlic powder

11/4 tsp. curry powder 1 lb. lean roast boneless leg of lamb, in bite-size chunks

I red unpeeled apple, cored and diced Combine all ingredients, except meat and apple, in a large non-stick skillet. Simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally, only until onions and pepper are crunchy-tender and liquid is reduced to a thick sauce (about 10 minutes). Break up onions as you stir.

Meanwhile, trim the roast meat from the bone and discard all fat. Cut the meat into bite-size chunks. Dice the unpeeled

Stir the meat and apple into the skillet at the last minute and cook only till heated through. (Serve with a dash of hot sauce, if desired.) Makes four servings, 265 calories each.

CHINESE BEEF AND PEPPERS FOR 2 (or 4) (Double the recipe for four servings.) 1/2 lb. leftover rare roast beef (top round) 1 onion, peeled, halved, thinly sliced 1 large (or 2 small) bell pepper, seeded, cut in 1-inch squares 1 small clove garlic, minced (or pinch of instant) 3/4 cup tomato juice

pinch of powdered ginger Slice beef against the grain into very thin strips, and put aside.

Combine remaining ingredients in nonstick skillet over moderate heat. Cover and simmer 2 minutes. Uncover and continue to simmer 4 to 5 minutes, stirring frequently, only until vegetables are tender-crisp. Stir in sliced beef at the last minute. Cook and stir until heated through. Makes two servings, about 210

meat chicken (or turkey)

11/4 cups fat-skimmed chicken or turkey broth (canned or homemade) 1/4 cup white wine (or water)

1 cup water 6 oz. can tomato paste

1 small bell pepper, seeded and diced 1 small onion, minced (or 2 tbsp. dried) 11/2 tsp. oregano or mixed Italian seasonings

6 oz. dry ruffled-edge egg noodles

Combine all ingredients, except noodles, in a covered pot. Heat to boiling. Stir in noodles a little at a time. Cover and simmer 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Uncover and continue to simmer until most of the liquid is evaporated. Makes four servings, 340 calories

The exhibit, which will run from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, features 106 frames (9 normal size album pages per frame) of stamps representing 40 different exhibits. The exhibits, in both the adult and junior classifications, will be judged by three American Philatelic Socity accredited judges. The education of the viewer is the main objective of stamp illustration, according to James Harris, show chairman.

'Stamp collectors usually stay in one specific area of collection such as first day issue covers or stamps or those that collect New Mexico territorial covers (envelopes) prior to statehood," he said

STRAWBERRY-BANANA PIE 1 pt. fresh strawberries

1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened

2 tbsps, honey 1/2 tsp. vanilla 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped

2 bananas 2 tbsps. lemon juice

Reserve about 4 strawberries for garnish. Slice and sweeten remainder. Blend together cream cheese, honey and vanilla. Fold in whipped cream. Spread in bottom of pie and chill 1 hour. Cut bananas and coat with lemon juice. Reserve about 10 slices and arrange remainder in pie shell. Top with sliced strawberries. Garslices and whole or halved strawberries.

"Stamp collecting doesn't take a lot of room, and it isn't strenuous. It can be done at home by ones self," said Harris of the hobby's popularity.

Another important aspect of the hobby is that trading can be conducted by mail, thus creating world wide contacts. Harris also credited the U.S. Post Office's Postique program for help in generating interest in the hobby.

"Most collectors, when they are bitten by the bug, really are avid about the hobby and will go to great lengths to acquire one particular stamp or cover," he said. Harris said a collector's interest can change with the completion of his area of concentration or if the completion of an area becomes too expensive. Harris said the Post Office will man a special Postique sub station that will provide a special commerative cancella-

Another "trick" shot that is a perennial is the state line shot, in which the subject is shown pointing to the sign that says, "WELCOME TO INDIANA" (IL-LÍNOIS, COLORADO, NEW YORK, FLORIDA, TEXAS, and 44 more.)

For humor, there is nothing that rivals my husband's restroom shots. These are little "candids" of the family coming out of the restroom, frowning, pulling down apparel, checking zippers - and there is one wonderful one of me with toilet tissue dragging on my shoe that I would kill for the negative.

The shots at the zoo are always fun. Especially if you're a rump man. My husband feels that it's an artistic side of the animal that points out his muscular mobility.

The Neophyte sees no problem. He draws trumps and plays ace-king and another club. West cashes two club tricks and, in the fullness of time, the defenders must get two spade tricks for down one. Declarer feels he was a little unlucky.

The Average Player finds a better line. He draws only two rounds of trumps before playing three rounds of clubs. But when West wins the third club, he returns a trump, extracting the last trump from dummy. Eventually, declarer must give up two spades and another club for down one.

The Unlucky Expert makes a valiant try. He does not draw a second round of trumps, but immediately plays three rounds of clubs. Unfortunately, West's defense is up to par. He immediately returns his last club, and East can overruff dummy. (It doesn't help declarer to sluff a spade on the fourth club in the hope of ruffing a spade in dummy.) When the defenders get their two spade tricks, that too is

The Technician gets the best of all worlds. He manages to combine the elements of all these lines to give himself the maximum chance. He realizes that, while the contract is secure if clubs break 3-3, the odds favor a 4-2 split. To circumvent this, he does not draw a second round of trumps.

Instead, at trick two he leads a low club from his hand and plays low from dummy, surrendering a trick immediately to the defenders. The best defense is to return a trump, but declarer is firmly in control.

He continues by cashing the ace and king of clubs. While East does not have a third club, neither does he have a third trump. Declarer can now ruff his remaining club as West follows helplessly, return to his hand with the ace of diamonds, draw the last trump and claim his contract, surrendering two spade tricks at the end.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate. My husband refuses to wear his dentures. He sings with a country western band on Saturday nights, and that's the only time he'll wear them. He looks 20 years older without his dentures, and I've told him I'm ashamed to be seen with him looking that way. But he just ignores me.

Someone asked me once if he was my father! It seems that he couldn't care less how he looks for me. His only concern is looking good for people on Saturday night.

He went back to his dentist several times and was told the dentures fit all right, he'll just have to get used to them.

How do I get him to wear them? It's ru-

The information about the digestion of lecithin is available to anyone who has the technical background to read any good textbook on human physiology or biochemistry. People seem to forget there is such a thing as digestion. Foods we swallow are digested before they can be absorbed through the intestinal wall into the circulation.

Digestion breaks down the protein you swallow — whether it is a powder, a beef steak or protein in a glass of milk — into the basic amino acids that are used to form all protein. Double sugars and starch are all broken down into simple sugars, and fat is broken down by the action of lipase enzyme from your pancreas along with the action of bile salts.

Lecithin is a special type of fat and the lipase breaks it down into the fatty acids and glycerol that form it, just as lipase does with all other triglycerides. Yes, lecithin is a triglyceride or fat (three fatty acids connected to glycerol) and one end of a fatty acid chain is attached to choline. So the lipase and bile salts digest it. You absorb the component parts along with other digested fats - specifically the individual fatty acids, glycerol and the choline. It is no longer lecithin, any more than the individual amino acids in a piece of meat are still meat. You don't absorb meat without digesting it, you don't absorb fat without digesting it and you don't absorb lecithin without digesting it.

The bottom line reads that swallowing lecithin pills won't help you unless you need choline and you can get choline from any good well-balanced diet. Or if you still needed choline you should use choline, not lecithin with its fatty acids.

Now Atromid-S is a medicine, not a food so it is not a fat, protein or carbohydrate. It is not digested after you swallow it, but is absorbed in its original state. That is true of all effective medicines that you swallow. It acts on the liver to decrease the production of cholesterol and particularly the larger fatty-cholersterol particles (called very low density lipoproteins — VLDL).

To give you more information about the triglycerides and blood fats I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station New York, N.Y., 10019.

I believe the best idea is to rearrange your life style. Markedly reduce your total fat intake from all sources and get as lean as possible. Limit your saturated fat and cholesterol. The differences in saturated fat, cholesterol and unsaturated fat are discussed in the issue of The Health Letter I am sending you. Develop and maintain a good regular exercise program and don't smoke. If a person still needs medicine to lower fatty-cholesterol particles or blood pressure that can be added. Limiting salt is also a good idea.

More Consumers Expect Bad Times

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — For the first time since the 1974-75 recession, more consumers expect bad times than good over the next 12 months, according to a national survey released today.

The University of Michigan survey found that 46 percent of the 793 persons interviewed were pessimistic about business conditions in the next 12 months, and only 37 percent were optimistic.

Consumers are still in the mood to buy

Consumers are still in the mood to buy big-ticket items such as cars and appliances, the survey concluded, but those open wallets could slam shut.

Economists Richard T. Curtin and George Katona, who conduct the monthly survey, said much of the buying spree of the past year was triggered by anticipation of higher prices.

"Although favorable buying attitudes have acted to hold up consumer confidence during the past year," the report said, "this represents a weak and volatile foundation.

Robot Maker Says Film Exaggerated

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — The head of a company that makes automated machinery says exotic fictional robots like R2-D2 and C-3PO of the film "Star Wars" are giving real robots a bad name simply because they give people an exaggerated idea of a robot's abilities.

John J. Wallace, president of Prab Conveyor Co., which makes mechanical devices for industry, said the word robot has become "a buzz-word throughout American society."

"It is important that we expected out

"It is important that we separate ourselves from the razzle-dazzle aspects of robotics and make it clear to the industrial community that we are offering practical, down-to-earth products," said Wallace, who also heads the Robot Institute of America.

Wallace, whose company has been manufacturing about a dozen robots a month since 1970, said the basic industrial robot doesn't walk or talk, but can take orders and transmit information.

"Favorable buying attitudes may decline rapidly if inflationary pressures continue to build and consumers shift their concern from buying in advance of rising prices to saving in response to rising uncertainty."

The economists attributed buying of household durables, like washing machines and larger appliances, to that "increasing buy-in-advance sentiment."

Fifty-five percent of those surveyed thought it was a good time to buy a car, a higher proportion than at any time in the current busines cycle.

The survey's Index of Consumer Sentiment, which measures public sentiment about the economy, stood at 78.8 in March, its lowest point in two years. That's down by 5.5 points from last month and 10 points from a year ago. The base-100 month is February 1966.

Consumer confidence in the Carter administration's fiscal and monetary policies ebbed to a new low with a mere 10 percent of the respondents rating the government as doing a good job. That's a decline of 2 percentage points from last month and 12 points from February 1977.

"Continued concern over inflation and unemployment, together with declining confidence in government economic policy, have led consumers during the past year to adopt a more pessimistic view of future business prospects," Curtin said in the report.

NEW YORK (AP) - Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.45 to $5.35 a bale higher

A smaller than expected number of delivery intention notices against the May 1978 contract influenced buying of futures contracts, brokers said. The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton declined 10 points to 55.04 cents a pound Monday for the ten leading markets, acccording to the New York Cotton Exchange.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The top echelons of the American Agriculture movement stripped itself of dissenters Tuesday as one official was removed from his position and two others were threatened with removal.

The Monday session of some 2,000 delegates and supporters of the organizationpromoted farm strike at the state fairgrounds dwindled to a motel gathering of about 150 Tuesday as the meeting continued for an unscheduled second day. The leaders approved a plan to remove dissenters from American Agriculture top committees, and immediately voted to remove Utah delegate Randy Marble from the organization's Senate legislative lobbying committe. Marble, who was not present, was ac-

AUSTIN (AP) — An apartment manager who won an award for being kind to her tenants is refusing to press charges against a tenant who ran her down with a bicycle. However, she says, she'll make sure he moves out soon.

Zelma Howell was treated at Brackenridge Hospital Monday for a broken thumb and back bruises. According to police reports, the manager had com-plained to the tenant that his stereo was annoying other residents. The man told her he would turn it down, and she left. Later he got on his bike and charged into her from behind.

Greece Reluctant To Permit Mass Repatriation Of Refugees

By PHILIP DOPOULOS ATHENS, Greece (AP) - Despite growing demands from relatives and the Greek Communist Party, the government is showing reluctance to permit the mass repatriation of thousands of political refugees living in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union for the past 30 years. The refugees fled in the aftermath of the communist uprising 1946-49. At that -time about 60,000 persons went to communist states on Greece's northern frontiers. Others found their way to as far away as Tashkent in the Soviet Union.

About 36,000 political refugees are listed by the government as still living outside of Greece.

Those who were involved in the bloody conflict and left the country had their property confiscated and were stripped of their citizenship.

Alekos Papageorgiou, president of the Panhellenic Union of Repatriated Greek Political Refugees, an organization designed to pressure the government to close out what he describes as the "burning issue," says the political refugees "have not lost their desire to return to their native Greece despite all the years they have been kept away.'

The government claims it is doing everthing possible to expedite repatriation for those who apply.

Papageorgiou said, "The refugees wait almost three years before their applications for repatriation are approved. Once here, they are only given temporary residence permits which bars their right to work. Many never have their citizenship reinstated leaving them in limbo."

Says the undersecretary of the interior, George Souflias: "The government's position on the issue is firm and clear. The return of the political refugees will be made on examination of individual applications. These applications are being examined with leniency and humanitarian

But there appear to be sensitive family problems created when many of the applications for repatriation are approved.

Papageorgiou said that although 28,557 applications were approved out of a total of 34,071 within the past 31/2 years, about 12,500 persons have not exercised the right to return "because the government may often approve the return of the offspring but not their parents."

Papageorgiou said that every government since 1949, "has rejected outright, demands for a general amnesty or a mass repatriation similar to what occurred in Spain after Franco's death." He claimed no official reason has ever been given.

Government officials have been reported reluctant to speed up the process on the grounds that many refugees are security risks or could upset the political balance in some areas of Greece.

Papageorgiou's committee - whose members include Lady Amalia Fleming, widow of the discoverer of penicillin; actress Melina Mercouri and officials of the Greek Orthodox Church - rejects the government's arguments. The committee has said that most of the political refu-

Land, Senators Both Cheaper In 1803

WASHINGTON (AP) - Land was a lot cheaper in 1803. Senators cost a lot less, too. And therein lies a flaw in Sen. John H. Chafee's argument. The Rhode Island Republican recently planted his feet firmly on the edge of a giant hole in the ground and called for a halt in construction of a new Senate office building.

Chafee may have had a perfectly valid point when he said that there was no real need for the Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building which eventually would cover the hole by which the senator stood.

He may have been absolutely right when he recommended converting the area into a public park.

But Chafee's rhetoric got the best of his logic when he noted that the Hart Building now is expected to cost $122 million, making it ten times as costly as the Louisiana Purchase." The Louisiana Purchase was one of history's great land deals. Under it, the United States paid France $11.25 million for a huge swath of territory between the Canadian and Mexican borders. The area now contains all of eight states and most of five others.

But $11.25 million was a lot more money in 1803 than it is now.

For example, in 1803 senators were paid $6 a day. Congress met 97 days in 1803, entitling its members to $592 for

For his service in 1978, Chafee will receive $57,500, making him nearly 100 times costlier than his 1803 counterpart.

Organization May Die the international oil companies are working against the interest of the OPEC members, but that the producing nations

ki, a founder of the oil-exporting cartel that brought the concept of energy shortages home to Americans with the 1973-74 Arab oil boycott, says differences are weakening OPEC and may kill it.

OPEC — the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries - was organized when Tariki was a Saudi Arabian oil minister. He now serves as an oil consultant to Kuwait, and was interviewed here while taking part in a five-city U.S. tour by 100 Arab businessmen.

OPEC was born in September 1960 because of frustration over unilateral cuts in oil prices by international oil companies and the resultant drop in income for producing countries.

But Tariki, a 58-year-old who was exiled from his country in 1963 for views that were considered radical, believes OPEC has hit upon hard times.

He noted that OPEC grew out of a realization that the international oil companies enjoyed control over the oil markets and were thus able to play Venezuela off against the Mideast producers.

When the companies in 1960 reduced the price of a barrel of oil from $2 to $1.84, the first official action of the new organization was to refuse the price reduction. It didn't work. "The companies were too strong. But since then they never dared lower the price again," Tariki said, talking glowingly of OPEC's heyday. The organization soon realized it had the power to raise the price of oil exported to such energy-hungry nations as the United States and other industrialized nations in the West.

Tariki said he remains convinced that aren't doing enough about it.

Founder Of OPEC Says

He said consuming nations, such as the United States, are using their own reservoir estimates to justify the current high rate of production needed to satisfy the thirst for oil in the West.

Trouble is, Tariki said, the OPEC members are not unified in determining the best response to these challenges.

The OPEC members want production quotas, while only Saudi Arabia among them is opposed, he said. Tariki added that Saudi Arabia, by maintaining its freedom to produce as much or as little as it wants, can control the price of oil. Saudi Arabian oil production has ensured a comfortable supply for the West and kept price increases to 10 percent in the past two years, Tariki noted.

Georgians To Hold Vigil

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) - Residents of this west Georgia community planned a 24-hour vigil today to pray for an end to a series of stranglings terrorizing the city's

The latest victim, Janet Cofer, 61, was found strangled in her home Thursday. Six earlier victims also were elderly or middle-aged women who lived alone.

The Rev. William Hinson, pastor of Wynnton United Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Cofer was a member, announced the prayer vigil Tuesday at a memorial service for the seven strangling victims and a 7-year-old child killed in a separate incident.

The child. Dawn Worth, was found Monday in a pond, her hands tied behind her with a sash from her dress. Police said she had drowned.

Hinson asked those attending the service to take 15-minute blocks of time today

"We certainly don't think this will catch the strangler, but Christian people getting together will help give support to each other," said a woman attending the memorial service who asked not to be

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: We heard and enjoyed Muhammad Ali's doctor, Ferdie Pacheco, do the CBS color commentary on the Spinks-Ali fight.

Now that the two champs have signed for a rematch early in September, will Pacheco be in Ali's corner? And does he think Ali can regain the title? - Mr. and Mrs. D.W., Phoenix, Ariz.

A: Dr. Pacheco tells us that he was very thrilled at the response he received from the press, CBS and the fans for his commentary on the Ali fight. He expects to continue his work behind the mike instead of in Ali's corner. Further, he expects his man to be the first heavyweight to regain the title a second time (Ali and Floyd Patterson are the only heavyweights to have lost the title and won it back). One more prediction from the Doc: Muhammad Ali will definitely retire following this fight, regardless of the outcome.

A footnote: Pacheco was in Ali-s corner when he won the heavyweight champship from Sonny Liston in Miami Beach in 1964 and from George Foreman in 1974 in Zaire. But he was on the air during the Ali-Spinks fight and hopes to be there again during the rematch.

Q: I remember some years ago when singing star Sophie Tucker, "The Last of the Red Hot Mamas," summed up what a woma needed as age crept up on her. Could you search your files to tell us what she said? — Vera L., Fulton, Mo.

A: This was Sophie's sassy saying: "From birth to age 18 a girl needs good parents. From 18 to 35, she needs good looks. From 35 to 55, she needs good cash!"

Q: How old is that amusing and talented writer-comedienne Joan Rivers? - Dr. Abe Friedman, Miami Beach, Fla. A: "I won't tell you how old I am," Joan moans, "but the candles on my last birthday cake set off our smoke detector!'

Q: Why did Woody Allen plan not to attend the Academy Awards ceremony even though he was in contention in several categories? Was he pulling a George Scott or a Brando? — Mrs. R.K.D., Knoxville, Tenn.

A: No. Knock on wood, that's not Allen's style. He previously explained that while he wouldn't refuse an Oscar, he personally wouldn't accept one. At least he didn't ask Diane Keaton to be his emissary or have some little Indian girl speak for him. He made perfectly clear where he was that night - playing his clarinet at Michael's Pub, his favorite hangout in New York.

Hollywood: Even before Candice Bergen, Ali McGraw and Faye Dunaway read where Cybill Shepherd said, "There isn't a decent breast or bottom among them!" — Candice was telling Rex Reed: "It's impossible to be more flat-chested than I am."

Philadelphia: Robert Blake of "Baretta," who openly admits he was once an addict, had this advice to offer on a Mike Douglas talk session: "I once said that I would rather people drink than use dope. At least if a kid drinks, you can tell he's drunk and do something about it. A kid can take dope for 10 years without anyone even knowing about it!" . . . Las Vegas: Douglas's autobiography, "For the Love of Mike," rolls off the pressure in a four weeks. Les Angeles: And Phil Donabus claims he es in a few weeks . . . Los Angeles: And Phil Donahue claims he saw this road sign on the freeway to Long Beach: "Speed limit 55 mph. Those obeying, please move to the right and don't

Those who have patience, however, of-ten find their stocks grow as the economy expands, and often at a much faster pace. And the sole obligation of the investor is to ride along with that growth.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Up 5.03 At 838.62

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market overcame some early resistance and pushed ahead again to-day, with blue chip issues leading the way.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials, off a fraction in early trading, sported a 5.03-point gain at 838.62 by noontime. Gainers took a small lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading remained extremely active, although well off the pace set Tuesday, when 55.80 million shares changed hands for the second largest total in NYSE history. Today's volume on the Big Board came to 20.21 million shares as of

The government reported this morning that the nation had a $2.8 billion trade deficit in March.

While that wasn't exactly heartening news, analysts noted that it represented an improvement over February's record deficit, when imports exceeded exports by $4.5

Brokers also said it appeared that investors anxious to move money into the market after its recent upsurge apparently saw today's early weakness as an opportune time to buy.

U.S. Steel, the most active NYSE issue, was unchanged at 27% in trading that included a 100,000share block at 273/4. On Tuesday the company reported a $58.7 million loss for the first quarter.

The Big Board's composite index rose .13 to 53.94. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .04 at 136.64.

City Awaits Marshall's Decision

By PAULA TILKER

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Before they study further a Lubbock man's recent offer to settle out of court on his lawsuit against municipal airport revenue bonds, council members and city staffers want to know whether he will withdraw his two other outstanding law-

"We would be delighted to negotiate the settlement of all of Mr. (James) Marshall's lawsuits against the city to avoid the time and expense to all our citizens in winning these cases in court," the council and staff said in a joint statement issued Tuesday afternoon.

"We're saying that further consideration of his offer will await his decision on all lawsuits," City Manager Larry Cunningham added.

When informed of the counterproposal. Marshall said he is "ready to settle on all lawsuits." He added there is no question of his "good faith" in offering to settle on the airport revenue bonds.

Acting through a mediator, Marshall proposed Monday to withdraw the suit blocking the sale of $1.73 million in airport revenue bonds, proceeds of which would finance an airport parking lot facil-

In exchange, Marshall is demanding that the city meet certain conditions, including giving assurance the parking building will be built.

He also is asking in the proposed settlement that specific funds and bookkeeping records be maintained, that construction begin within nine months of the signing of the settlement and that all Airport Board and city council meetings meet requirements in the state Open Meetings

Marshall's two pending lawsuits include one to stop the sale of $26.4 million in general obligation bonds and one to reopen a suit settled out of court several years ago.

If Marshall is "negotiating in good faith" on the airport bond suit, the council and staff statement said, "This would be a great opportunity for him to dismiss his other lawsuit that is seriously delaying development and curtailing vital services to our citizens, such as a new fire station, expanding our water system and many critical areas of our city's growth.'

Marshall purports to be the taxpayers' spokesman, the statement said, and "assuming he has the interests of our citizens at heart," then settlements can be reached

For his part, Marshall said he will negotiate if the city government provides him specifics on planned water supply projects that would be financed with the general obligation bonds. The bonds were approved by voters last year, and Marshall's case is pending before the 7th Court of Civil Appeals.

Marshall said he wants construction contracts to be let before the bonds are sold and that he would include that stipulation in an agreed judgment. The problem with that, according to the city legal staff, is that under state law a city cannot let a contract until it has the revenue to pay for it.

Marshall is seeking to re-open a case settled by an agreed judgment several years ago. In it, the city agreed to maintain certain funds and bookkeeping records of the proceeds from $4.4 million in Lubbock Power and Light bonds.

Marshall now claims the judgment has been violated. He said he is not sure now what his next step will be.

Zodiac Killer Ends Silence With Letter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - "This is the Zodiac speaking," the letter said. "I am back with you.'

With those words, Zodiac, who bragged of 37 slayings during the late 1960s, ended a 51-month silence. Police say Zodiac "positively" killed six persons and wounded two. The letter, addressed to the editor of marked in San Francisco Monday, was received by police Tuesday. It was the 16th in a series of symbolism-filled messages that boasted of murders and ridiculed the police. San Francisco homicide inspector David Toschi said at a news conference that he was confident the message, printed with a blue felt-tip pen, was from Zodiac. He said experts are still checking it. The letter claimed no new killings and threatened none.

the San Francisco Chronicle and post-

"It doesn't appear to be threatening," said Deputy Chief Clem DeAmicis, "but just the receipt of the letter is threatening enough. The tone is very different from letters received in the past." Here is the full text of the letter, including capitalization and punctuation errors, as released by police:

"This is Zodiac speaking. I am back with you. Tell herb caen I am here. I have always been here. That city pig toschi is good but I am smarter and better he will get tired then leave me alone. I am waiting for a good movie about me. who will play me. I am now in control of all things.

Caen, a Chronicle columnist, frequently mentioned Zodiac in stories. Toschi has been trying to catch Zodiac for nine years and has estimated that he has talked to "a minimum of 5,000 people" during the hunt.

Local Hospital May Be Near Break-Even Point

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Health Sciences Center Hospital, requiring a subsidy of about $200,000 a month since it opened in February, may get "close to breaking even" early next year, budgetmakers said Tuesday.

They made that disclosure after presenting to the finance committee of the Lubbock County Hospital District board of managers proposed revisions in the 1978 budget for the new medical facility. Revisions are necessary because the original budget was predicated on various hypotheses and conditions that have since drastically changed - mostly in taxpayers' favor.

The proposed rewritten fiscal document is "much more favorable than the original budget," said Ben Robinson, the poorest showing — 19 voters each. Returns from the Texas Tech box remained a mystery for two hours after polls closed. Election officials who waited for the box found out about 9 p.m. why it was not turned in earlier - its election judge had a Tech class to attend.

The judge reportedly was traced to his class after city officials became concerned about the missing box.

After the two-hour wait, 19 votes cast at the poll were added to make the re-said the revisions show that the 1978 opcrating expenses of the district and its hospital will be about $4.5 million above amounts originally budgeted, but revenues will be up an estimated $6 million.

The Avalanche-Journal was unable to confirm that statement, however, because hospital officials would not release the full text of budget materials circulated at the committee's public meeting.

"This stuff is still working paper documents," Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the district and hospital, said. He said the figures are subject to committee and board action and that "all the numbers in here are going to change" with further refinement that the district's consolidated budget for 1978 will be revised from $12 million to a new total of $18 million. The major increase is reflected in the budget for the hospital alone: it would jump from an original $9 million to more than $16 mil-

Part of the change is cosmetic. For example, the revised hospital budget will include some items - notably $1.5 million for medical indigency services previously carried elsewhere in the district's fiscal plan.

But most of the jump in the hospital budget can be attributed to a higherthan-expected volume of business at the medical facility, district officials said. They noted far more patients than expected are using the hospital, and the vast majority of those patients are paying

Another contributor is that the district is running many support services that originally would have been managed jointly by the district and its partner, the Texas Tech University School of Medi-tients have helped prevent the hospital from being overstaffed during its start-up period. And Robinson noted that the hospital's "bad debt" ratio - the percentage of unpaid bills - is being revised from an original 21 percent to a low 11 percent.

"We can get to a break-even point much quicker than we projected," Rickman said after reviewing the revised budget figures.

Bosworth gave the committee a monthby-month projection of hospital finances. "By January (of 1979) we're getting close to breaking even," he said.

"It's our favorable patient mix (the high percentage of paying patients) that's really keeping us in that ballpark," Bos-

After the meeting, he said projections show that during its early start-up period, the hospital's expenditures will be found to exceed patient revenues by about $200,000 a month.

But by January, that monthly loss is expected to be cut to only $24,300, Bosworth said. "Our projections are optimistic, but we feel realistic about them."

Information gleaned from the committee's discussion indicated that:

-The revised budget does not anticipate using any of the hospital district's reserve funds. Originally the district was to pump about $800,000 this year from its reserves into the hospital's operation.

-In addition to the $18 million budget, Bosworth wants the board to spend $1 million more this year on equipment for hospital and maintenance departments. Those purchases may have to come out of district reserves.

-Like the original budget, the revised plan for this year calls for spending the first of two $4 million state appropriations for the hospital. The hospital district hasn't touched that money yet but plans to use it to defray start-up costs.

-The district will pay Texas Tech for staffing the hospital's emergency room and for other services. This payment to Tech will total about $198,000 for the remainder of 1978 and about $340,000 in future years.

The revised budget will be considered Friday by the hospital board and finance committee.

By PHILIP GREER

And MYRON KANDEL For a onetime Brooklyn boy who now makes his living producing Dean Martin television specials in Hollywood, Greg Garrison has an unusual sideline business. He's the leading American breeder of Spanish Andalusians, the high-stepping, flowing-maned white horses that once carried conquering Roman legions across Europe and whose bloodlines go back thousands of years before that.

Garrison's business started as a labor of love six years ago. But last year, he proudly told us, his ranch on a rocky hillside in Thousand Oaks, Calif., not far from Los Angeles, broke into the black for the first time, making a modest profit on the $200,000 it grossed from the sale of 14 purebred Andalusians, plus some stud

News Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday, April 26, 1978

The 52 horses now on the Garrison Ranch amount to nearly one-quarter of all the purebred Andalusians in the U.S. today. Anyone wanting to buy one of the majestic-looking animals has little choice but to beat a path to his door.

Some of the best-known names in Hollywood have done just that. Gene Kelly, Jimmy Stewart, Orson Welles and Angie Dickinson have all bought Andalusians from Garrison; film director Martin Scorese has ordered one of next year's foals, and horses have been shipped as far as Tokyo and Manila.

The Andalusian, which for centuries carried the royalty and nobility of Europe, are definitely not a poor man's pet. Garrison's current prices range from $100,000 for a six-month-old "weanling" to $25,000 for a three-year-old maiden mare. The top price tag on the ranch is carried by a five-year-old stallion. He's selling for $35,000, but he can help pay for himself by standing in stud.

"I sell my horses to trainers around the country and to very rich men who want to buy their daughters something spe-

The 52-year-old TV producer's original interest in Andalusians resulted from a case of love at first sight. Visiting Madrid on business eight years ago, he attended the bull fights. When a procession of the stately white horses made a dazzling entrance and he learned a little about their history, he decided that he had to own some of them.

It wasn't that simple, however. Back in 1832, an equine epidemic that swept through Spain left untouched only one isolated band of purebred Andalusians owned by a group of monks in Cartuja, near the sherry wine center of Jerez de la Frontera. In 1926, to maintain the purity of the surviving line, the Spanish government imposed a selective breeding program and banned exports. The ban was lifted in 1926, but the breeding farms of Andalusia were still reluctant to sell to

The stallion, Legionario III, is still the mainstay of the Garrison operation, having sired most of the horses now on the ranch as well as others now scattered all over the country. In addition to his breeding duties at home, he's also available for stud - at $2,000 for each close en-

The American demand for Andalusians really developed after the horses were included in a 1975 TV special called "Dean Martin's California Christmas," during which the singer was shown riding Legionario II and later gave a voice-over description of the breed. The show had one of the biggest audiences of the season and requestions to buy the horses flooded in. Garrison, who had just put his first four colts on the market, recalls that he doubled their prices and sold them immediately. For Hollywood celebrities,

But for genuine horse-lovers every-where, the Andalusian may be the rarest and most sought after horse in the world, Garrison contends, citing their beauty,

Agent Gives Advice On Retirement

By CONNIE GRZELKA

NEW YORK (AP) - Choosing a retirement home is one of the most important decisions a couple can make, says an expert in the field.

A happy retirement isn't something that just happens. If you want to make a go of it, you've got to plan. And if you don't have a plan by the time you're 45, it may be too late, according to Peter A. Dickinson, a former special investigator for the U.S. Senate Committee on Aging.

A couple should first know what they want to do and how much it will cost, he explains. In most instances, they will find that they can't afford the same things they had before retirement.

Dickinson, 51, of Larchmont, N.Y., is the editor of "The Retirement Letter." He recently published "Sunbelt Retirement," a state-by-state guide to retiring in the Southern and Western parts of the United States.

He calls the sunbelt area "the new frontier - for people, places, politics and retirement. Whether you're looking for lower cost-of-living, opportunities, climate or better housing, you can find it more readily down there.'

Regardless of the area, Dickinson offers some tips for couples who are looking ahead to retirement. On housing, he recommends this approach: Try to pinpoint the area you'd like to settle in: write to the state departments of aging located in the state capital; write to the chamber of commerce; subscribe to the local paper; vacation there; rent a home in your preferred community before buying one.

To size up a community, he suggests investigating these areas: Climate and environment; health facilities; housing costs and availability; cost of living; leisure time activities; special services for senior citizens

Dickinson emphasizes the importance of renting a home in a new community first: "Don't buy before you try. Swap your own house, rent it out, but don't sell and move right off.

"A house," he continues, "is as personal as your dreams and as practical as your pocketbook. It should satisfy both before you commit yourself."

If you decide to move to another area, Dickinson recommends selling some of your furniture to help cut down moving costs. "If the furniture is ordinary, have a tag sale. If there are any suspected heirlooms, have the items appraised," he ad-

Dickinson also provides a checklist of economic considerations. "For a comfortable retirement, you need an income of about $10,000, depending on the area, and a nest egg of about the same amount. Most of your major obligations should be paid off, such as mortgages. Plus, you need some study in advance, so you'll know what to expect."

Although he concedes that emotional adjustments will have to be made, Dickinson asserts "I've found that you won't miss the folks at home as much as you think you will."

It is his feeling that "if you want to commit yourself to the future, you have to break with the past."

If you belong to a group or club, transfer your membership when you move to your retirement community, he suggests.

American Educators Travel To China

HONG KONG (AP) - Twenty-one Americans led by educator Clark Kerr and former diplomat John Stewart Service entered China today for a three-week study of the relationship between work and education there.

Kerr, head of the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education, told reporters: "We're concerned that in the United States we might have built Chinese Great Walls between education and work. So we are very interested in looking at the interaction of work and education in China.'

Zaire Betting On Wealth Of Untapped Resources

KINHASA, Zaire (UPI) - Zaire is bankrupt. The nation staggers along a financial precipice, saved from collapse only by the willingness of governments and banks to gamble on its untapped wealth.

Inflation is running at 75 percent a year, the nation's foreign currency reserves were exhausted three years ago and the government is saddled with an estimated $2.5 billion in debt it cannot

"The economic situation is really drastic," a Zairean intellectual laments. "We are in despair.

In this sultry capital city on the Congo river, lines begin forming at supermarkets at 3 a.m. Motorists pay $2.70 for a gallon of gasoline, when it is available.

Along Kinshasa's broad, tree-lined boulevard, the Trent Juin, a Belgian-owned store sells a pair of shoes for the equivalent of $260. Nearby, a shop sells small refrigerators for $2,475.

In recent months, the manufacturing facilities of General Motors and Goodyear Tire have closed for weeks at a time because there were no raw materials or spare parts.

When unpaid bills at the Midema flour mill, largely owned by the Continental Grain Corp., reached $14 million last year, the company cut production to a third of capacity and announced that all future sales would be for cash only. All night breadlines were common in front of bakeries.

Telephone callers to the United States are politely asked to phone collect. On Jan. 15, the American Telephone and Telegraph Corp., owed $500,000, pulled the plug on Zaire.

Like a disease of the nervous system, the economic paralysis has spread throughout the body politic. The result has been mounting corruption, crime and unrest against the government of President Mobutu Sese Seko.

With prices soaring and wage increases limited by law to 25 percent, government workers staged a series of strikes in January. Teachers walked off the job complaining that they had not been paid in six months.

A former minister of justice is on trial for involuntary manslaughter. The court charges that his wife was given the concession for supplying food to a prison. embezzled most of the money, and at least 60 inmates starved to death in their

"Corruption has reached the point where the normal functioning of the economy cannot take place," a Western diplomat said.

Under pressure from its creditors, the Mobuto government has broken with recent African history and invited foreigners to virtually take over management of the economy. New projects have been cancelled.

The need for cash is so desperate, the governemnt has leased for $350 million a province the size of France to a West German firm, Otrag, which says it wants to test rockets.

"There is no question that the economic crisis is deeper and more prolonged than anyone realized," noted one diplomat, whose government has lent heavily to Zaire

The country is propped by a word potential. A nation the size of the United States east of the Mississippi River, Zaire has existed by mortgaging its immense natural resources against the future. So far, it has defied its economic destiny. Before independence from Belgium in 1960, the former Belgian Congo derived two-thirds of its income by exporting Missionaries in Kinshasa now report that kwashiorkor, a disease of severe protein deficiency in children, is spreading at alarming proportions.

Each week, a Pan American cargo plane carries canned goods to Kinshasa from South Africa under liberal credit terms from the Pretoria government.

Added to its problems, a drought has settled on the populous southern portion of the country, threatening to wipe out the staple manioc crop within six

A relief worker from a United Nations camp for Angola refugees in southern Zaire reported that the disaster victims were so much better off than the local people that they have begun to sell their food parcels in the market.

Zaire possesses 13 percent of the world's hydroelectric generating capacity. The Inga dam on the lower Congo riv er is not working at full capacity, yet the government is building another one.

Zaire has half of Africa's commercial timber land, largely untouched. The International Road Transport Federation reported that the country has only 44,000 miles of serviceable roads, 60,000 less than at independence.

"Zaire has everything - natural resources, abundant energy, an industrial base and a labor force," noted one diplo-mat. "It just can't get it all together."

While the economy was sagging under the weight of these structures, Mobutu pulled the rug out. He decreed a sweeping nationalization plan under which 90 percent of the nation's industry and agriculture was seized from foreign owners. Zaireans moved into the firms and many were stripped of their assets overnight. Luxury goods flooded the country on the tail of the newfound wealth and Zaire had the dubious distinction of being the largest importer of Mercedes Benz automobiles. The following year, Mobutu took the program one step further, seizing the nationalized firms from their local owners and placing them under state control in the hope they could work on a non-profit basis. They didn't.

In 1976, Zaire alized that it couldn't pay its debts, which amounted to $400 million a year. The help of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) was urgently sought and a series of austerity measures were implemented.

The Club of Paris, the seven nations from which Zaire borrowed heavily, agreed in a series of steps to reschedule loan payments for 1975, 1976 and 1977. Zaire has between three-and four-year grace periods to recover.

The commercial banks, which delayed part of the repayment in a London agreement, have now also agreed to advance Zaire another $220 million. The money will not be paid in cash, but in letters of credit under strict supervision so that the country can begin importing raw materials and spare parts again to prime the economy.

In order to meet the IMF conditions for a standby credit, Zaire devalued its currency by 40 percent three years ago and set up an office of debt management. It has now asked the IMF to appoint a director-general of the Central Bank, in essence putting a foreigner in overall centrol of the economy.

Bo

Perhaps the most dramatic move by Mobutu was to admit the failure of his nationalization program. Beginning in 1976, foreign firms whose local assets were seized were invited to come back under Zaire's "retrocession." Most have returned.

The state-owned railway and river transport system, for example, was placed under Belgian control. In the first year, efficiency improved by 50 percent.

'There is a feeling that things are not so bad now," a western banker said. "This country, after all, has a very great potential."

Boat Owners Deny Fortunes Made Fishing For Crabs

By SUSAN CHADWICK

SEATTLE (UPI) — The young man had been waiting anxiously on the dock all morning and he intended to keep waiting. He wanted to ask the skipper of the Alaska crab boat to give him a chance to pick a fortune out of the treacherous Bering Sea.

"It's either Reno or crab fishing," he said.

Much of the Alaska crab fleet was tied up in Seattle and Taeoma, undergoing hurried maintenance and repairs after a season of meeting the demands of a world-wide appetite for the giant, purple-shelled King crab.

With the boats came tales of the huge sums of money to be made fishing up north for the big, spidery crab: the cook who made $70,000 in a few months, the men who started out as deckhands and are now millionaire boat owners.

Such stories are common in Alaska. With luck, it is believed, a man (rarely a woman) can hire onto a good boat, with a good crew, and hit the jackpot.

But boat owners and crewmen in the highly competitive and increasingly more crowded Alaska crab industry say that kind of talk is exaggerated, and they certainly don't want it reported.

"Maybe some guy makes $25,000 or $30,000 - don't write that down," said Einar Pedersen, as he stood on the dock next to one of his 100-foot crab boats. 'But that isn't the average. You can't go by that.

"Some boats are better equipped than others. Some can carry more crab pots. There's always an if. Some guys like to brag a little bit. It isn't all true." Pedersen, a big, blue-eyed native Norwegian, tanned from an end-of-the-season vacation in Hawaii, started out in Alaska in 1928 fishing for cod outside Queen Charlotte Sound He was 17 then. "I'd been there one month and they put me in the bow of a

Now he owns two big Bering Sea boats, each valued at over $1 million, part interest in several others, and plans to build yet another. His sons are taking over, pushing him off the boats, he said.

"Fishing has been very good to me. I've made a living. I'm not rich.

"My gold mine is down on the bottom of the ocean," he said, pointing down at the smooth dark green water beneath the busy docks.

"It's a gamble," said Ryder Tynes, another native Norwegian. After 15 years of fishing in Alaska, Tynes (he wouldn't spell his name) has earned enough to buy his own boat, the American Eagle, a well-kept, black-and-white stern picker with an imposing gold eagle painted on the bow and a reputation for being one of the best on the sea one of the best on the sea.

"Fishing's always been a gamble. There's guys that don't make anything. The crew are paid shares that are dependent only upon the catch. There is no minimum wage," said Tynes, who no longer goes out himself.

Some boats never find the crab. "It's just a matter of being in the right; in the right time," he said.

The King crab season runs from fall through mid-winter; the less lucrative Tanor or Snow crab season from mid-winter to early summer. The skipper, engineer, cook, and deckhand that make up the average crew can expect to work for 36 and 72 hours at a time on an ice-covered boat under a constant howling

But a hired hand can expect some comfort inside. Most of the more than 100 boats that make up the Alaska crab fleet are equipped like a spacious motor home. And some carry stereo and television equ

The Alaska crab industry has much improved in the last three to five years, fishermen say. The 200-mile limit has reserved the fishing grounds to American fishermen, who now supply Russia and Japan with crab once caught by Japanese and Russians. In addition, the world has become accustomed to eating crab, caught mainly in Alaskan waters.

Battle In Court Waged For Custody Of Snake

OLATHE, Kan. (UPI) - Sadie, the subject of a confusing custody battle, failed to appear in court last week, but the judge declined to find the 18-foot Indian python in contempt of court.

The battle over who owns how much of Sadie began last December with the filing of a petition by William Hickok and his son, Timothy, against Robert Clark Jr., charging that William Hickok has an undivided two-thirds interest -12 feet - in Sadie and Timothy Hickok has an undivided interest in 3 additional feet, with Clark owning the remaining 3 feet.

Clark responded that when Hickok accepted payment from him for an interest in Sadie they "waived and are stopped from asseting any interest in said personal property beyond the extent of 50 percent."

Thus, according to Clark, he and the Hickoks each own 9 feet of the big snake.

"I've heard everything on the bench, but never this," said District Court Judge Lewis C. Smith. A trial date remains to be set and Smith has refused to name a temporary gaurdian for Sadie until ownership is determined. In the meantime, Sadie will stay with the Hickoks. "I told them (the attorneys) to bring in pictures, but leave Sadie at home," Smith said.

Carter Requests Hike In Cutting Of Timber

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter wants to increase the amount of federally owned timber that is cut but is asking Congress to reduce the amount of money spent on reforestation, Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., said today.

Carter said last week that the cutting of federal timber needs to be increased in order to hold down the price of wood used for housing.

But Carter's 1978-79 proposed budget calls for a $9 million reduction in spending for the planting of new trees, thinning out trees, anti-erosion efforts and pesticide spraying, Melcher said.

The Forest Service is authorized to spend $77 million this year on such works, and Carter proposes spending $68 million next year. The Forest Service needs $114 million for that work next year, Melcher told the agriculture appropriations subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The 1978-79 Carter budget would allow for reforestation of only 151,000 acres, compared to 206,000 this fiscal year and timber-stand improvement on 169,000 acres, compared to 287,000 acres this year, Melcher said.

The 1976 Forest Management Act, which Melcher helped write, requires annual reports on what lands need reforestation or other work and the estimated

The Carter administration has not submitted either of the first two reports required by that law, Melcher said.

Catfish Kitchens Prove Successful

By BRUCE NICHOLS

BEAUMONT (UPI) - In 1953, Wayne Jones packed his mama, brothers and sisters into an old pickup and drove to California to pick fruit. Today, Jones is back in Texas, drives a Continental and owns a $14 million business.

Blame it on hard work and Brazilian

Jones, 47, owns and operates 11 Catfish Kitchen restaurants. He also owns two Fisherman's Reef restaurants and a Branding Iron steakhouse. But catfish is

"It's the largest chain of catfish restaurants in the United States," he says, adjusting his $5,500 watch and stretching in his comfortable, mostly red office in the rear of the first Catfish Kitchen.

The business he runs with his wife of 25 years and sons and daughters is growing

"We'll open two more in the Houston area this year and we're thinking about going into Corpus Christi," he says.

"We're talking about selling some franchises. We've had so many people ask."

It hasn't been easy. Jones was 8 years old when his father died. He quit school in the 6th grade and went to work to help support his family. A low point was the year his family became migrant workers.

"I bought a pickup truck and took the whole family and went and picked apples, grapes on the West Coast. We had $200 when we left. We got back to Texarkana after five months with $300."

Not long afterward he began a long apprenticeship in the restaurant business. "The first job I had was jerking sodas at 14 in a grocery store making $15 a

That was in 1970, the year he decided on catfish after an acquaintance suggested it and he and his wife, looking for an alternative, recalled the success of a catfish restaurant in Shreveport, La.

"We closed on a Sunday as a hamburger restaurant, remodeled, went to Arkansas and picked up 2,000 pounds of catfish. The sign said Burger Kitchen. We didn't have enough money to change both names so we just changed Burger to Cat-

At the time, Jones owed nearly $100,-000, but the first month he sold 15,000 pounds of catfish and 10,000 of hamburgers. Solvency was at least in sight. "It took us a year to work out of debt.

Then we built another and another.' A few years later, however, he started to run out of catfish, a continuing problem for catfish restaurants because American streams never supplied enough. And catfish farming hadn't caught on as he hoped it would.

Discovery of the Brazilian connection - a company called Atlantica Pesca in Belem - saved his business. The company catches Amazon River catfish in the mouth of the giant stream, freezes it and ships it to the United States.

The entire production of Atlantica Pesca turned out to be more than Jones expected, forcing him to become a catfish broker on the side. He sold $2 million worth of his catfish, mostly to grocery stores, last year.

His secret for success?

"It's just a lot of darned hard work and trying to take advantage of every opportunity, being able and willing to change as times change and the product and the way we present it."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Today's debate question is a beauty: Does the United States have a government as good as its

It is raised by the Republican National Committee, which says the answer is no, and counts that as a promise President Carter has not kept.

This judgment turns up in a newly published Republican box score on Carter's campaign promises and his performance in office. Predictably, the Republicans do not think he is doing very well at keeping his commitments.

The 240-page second edition of the Republican effort to keep book on Carter concludes that he has broken about 20 percent of his campaign commitments, kept about 20 percent and that action is still pending on the issues covered by the

The GOP scorekeepers said they set out to produce an objective assessment of Carter's delivery on campaign commitments. He made a lot - 665, according to a White House list issued at the start of the administration.

Even if he had not made any more, he would have had to keep a campaign promise every 2.2 days, seven days a week, in order to get through the list in a four-year term.

The Republicans are keeping book on 636, of which they say 111 have been kept and 113 broken. That is handy political shorthand for them, and while the volume is sure to be widely unread, the conclusions probably will turn up in the campaign speechmaking in the congressional election season just ahead. Not that an assortment of numbers and percentages purporting to show that Carter has not kept his commitments will be all that persuasive in a congressional or, for that matter, a presidential cam-opinion polls that some people are starting to doubt Carter can handle all the problems he said he would. In a CBS News-New York Times poll, for example, people were asked whether they believe Carter has made progress on several major issues he addressed during the campaign. Sixty percent said they did not think Carter had made progress toward han-dling energy problems effectively; 58 percent saw no progress on significantly reducing unemployment; 53 percent saw none toward making the income tax system more fair.

Judgments like that contribute to the declining poll ratings of the way Carter is handling his job. And that is a political

Carter described himself from the beginning of the campaign as a man who could bring competence to government, and who would set clear, attainable national goals.

The problem persists.

The Republicans did not try to grade Carter on that broad commitment, al-though it might have been easier than one they did choose, the president's statement that "we could have, and must have, a government as good as its peo-

The GOP solemnly lists that as "not kept," without suggesting how anyone would know if it had been kept. Presumably, in order to determine whether the government is as good as the people, somebody would have to figure out how good the people are.

It was more a campaign slogan than a campaign promise, but Republican analysts do not give up easily.

"While not as easily submitted to objective tests as most promises contained in this listing, "Mr. Carter's failure to keep this commitment is suggested" by an assortment of items, they reported.

Among them, the Republicans list the firing of U.S. Attorney David Marston, the case of former budget director Bert Lance, "the failure to move toward balanced budgets," the increase in Social Semantic Control of the curity taxes, inflation and farm income

There may be no way to me cess on such an elusive goal, but they have got a standard for failure.

Kennedy's Wife Denies Rumors

BOSTON (AP) - Joan Kennedy has branded as "stupid" and "ridiculous" reports that she and Sen. Edward Kennedy are separated and said rumors of romance between the senator and freestyle skier Suzy Chaffee are "boring," The Boston Herald American reported today.

In a copyright story, the newspaper quoted Mrs. Kennedy as saying: "Separated? Oh, no. Oh, God, everybody knows I'm staying in Boston. I always

"I decided to study music up here. Ted understands that. I haven't even thought about reports we've broken up. It's so stupid. It's ridiculous '

She told the newspaper Tuesday night just before attending a performance of the Metropolitan Opera here that rumors about her husband and Miss Chaffee have sprung up because she and her husband are celebrities, adding, "It's such trash. It's too bad."

When asked by the newspaper what Kennedy thought of the stories, Mrs. Kennedy said, "I don't know, I haven't asked him. It's so boring we don't talk about it. Do you understand? It's not worth talking about. It's ridiculous."

Earlier, the Washington office of the Massachusetts Democrat denied reports in two New York newspapers that his wife moved out on him.

The Post and The Daily News suggested Mrs. Kennedy, 41, and married to the senator since 1958, had decided to set up her own household in an apartment overlooking the Charles River after reports circulated Kennedy was dating Miss Chaffee, a former Olympic skier who now makes television commercials.

'They have not separated," Kennedy's Washington spokesman, Tom Southwick,

Southwick said, however, that he could not characterize the marriage. "I'm not in a position to judge," he said.

"It's the senator's apartment," Southwick said. "That's where he stays when he's in Boston." Southwick said Kennedy stays with his wife on these visits. He said Kennedy stayed at the apartment April 13 but has no plans to return before May Denying reports that she is seen more and more at functions around Boston without her husband, Mrs. Kennedy said, 'Oh, no. We've been seen more around town than ever before. It's just that we haven't been to political events. You just ask the head waiter at the Ritz.

"I'm a music lover and I told Ted I wanted to study in Boston and he told me, 'Go on. Go out, have a good time.' I'm not going to sit at home," she said.

"I'm going out and having a good time and Ted knows about it," she added. "He's encouraging me."

Miss Chaffee, 32, has acknowledged meeting with Kennedy in Washington and Los Angeles and that they ski together at Aspen, Colo.

"They're just friends. There's no romance to it. They do ski together," said Miss Chaffee's father, Keen, who lives in Rutland, Vt.

Kennedy and his wife have three children: Kara Ann, Patrick Joseph and Edward Jr.

Eunice Shriver, Kennedy's sister, denied any marital trouble and said the couple's children visit their mother on weekends in Boston.

presidential decree. Although half of all civilian federal employes outside the Postal Service are today represented by unions, any president theoretically could wipe out their bargaining authority with the stroke of a pen.

By agreeing to turn this power over to Congress, the president strengthens his chances for passage of his proposals to reshape the federal personnel system, which he says is essential to making government work more efficiently.

New TV Show

Studies Life On Plains "Livin'," a new program dedicated to the people, environment and unique qualities of the South Plains, will premiere at 9:30 p.m. today on Channel 5. "What we're going to do is produce a sensitive, yet aware series that will portray people as unique, while remembering our interrelationships with one another," said Jeff Santlofer, producer of the series. "Being a public television station, we are in a very good position to present this type of program in the middle of what is usually the networks' very profitable prime time." According to a recent analysis by Columbia University, the commercial networks devote less than three hours a week, on the average, to public affairs or documentary programing. The Public Broadcasting Service and its affiliates present more than six hours a week.

"Livin'," through its magazine format of presenting two to three stories in each of its half hours, will try to live up to public television's reputation of helping viewers relate to the world around them in an entertaining and informative manner, Santlofer added. On the premiere half-hour, "Livin" will look at the world of stage hypnosis, examining the act of a performer in Lubbock with commentary from clinical experts. In addition, it will give the viewers a chance to meet the owner of a new type late-night gathering spot and get to know about a different kind of person with a different idea.

In the coming weeks viewers will see what a night in an emergency room is like, find out about some of the dos and don'ts of buying used cars, see the works of local craftsmen and learn that "Livheads of key committees of the House and Senate, Campbell and Budget Director James McIntyre said Carter had decided to support the statutory base for federal union bargaining. Campbell said later that because of the letter, the AFL-CIO and the American Federation of Government Employees are expected to remain "generally supportive of the president's program.' At his news conference a few hours earlier, Carter said he would support congressional changes in his plan "when criticism and debate in Congress lead to a stronger plan." But he warned that, "I will object very strenuously to weakening our proposal. Carter's plan would make it easier to fire federal workers for incompetence, would eliminate job tenure and set up salary bonuses for 9,000 top federal executives and would force middle-level managers to work for pay raises that they now receive almost automatically. It also would create an independent agency to guard against political firings and other personnel abuses. When Carter presented his civil service package on March 2, he won the conditional backing of the AFL-CIO and the AFGE. He promised then to propose a new, independent Federal Labor Relations Authority governing federal unions. He also vowed to support use of traditional arbitration proceedings to settle grievances of unionized federal employees, which are now handled by lengthy and cumbersome legal appeals.

Selby Enjoys New Role

TO SOME, THE reasons behind a player increasing his batting average from .262 to .338 from one season to the next might seem complex and more than a bit vague. But Larry Selby takes a quite simplistic view of matters.

.262 to .338 from one season to the next might seem complex and more than a bit vague. But Larry Selby takes a quite simplistic view of matters.

The key, the Texas Tech leftfielder believes, is that he has played regularly this year after seeing just spot action in 1977. Thus, the 58-point average differential.

"I didn't play on a regular basis last year," Selby said of his freshman campaign. "A lot of times I played as a pinch-hitter. It's hard to step right in and be loose when you haven't played regularly.

"This year, I'm playing regularly, and it's given me more confidence, relaxed me more. Coach (Kal) Segrist told me to relax more at the plate. When you're tense at the plate, it's hard to react as quickly and smoothly as you should."

As a freshman, Selby played in 25 games and batted 65 times. With three games remaining in the 1978 season, he's played in 45 contests and batted 154 times. He leads the team in games played, at-bats, hits (42) and batting average. He's third on the club in RBI with 25. He has emerged a key performer and leader on a very young Raider team.

HIS PERFORMANCE HAS not surprised his bosses. Assistant coach James Keller remarked, "He had a real solid fall practice period. He really came through for us then, so we weren't surprised when he continued to play that well during the regular season."

Selby's consistent showing at the plate has not been his sole contribution to the Tech cause. He's also played a solid left field after being moved from the infield. He was a shortstop throughout his high school career and a third baseman last year.

"I like the outfield a lot better than the infield. I'm more relaxed out there. I was real uncomfortable at third base. I never got used to it. Everything comes

Tommy Inman led off with a double, then stopped at third when Darius Copley reached on an error. That duo then worked the double steal to perfection, with Inman scoring. It remained 1-0 until the third when Inman singled, stole second and stopped at third on Copley's bunt single. After Copley stole second, Tim Leslie rifled a single to right, scoring Inman before Copley was gunned down at the plate by Ed

Ross, who walked two and fanned seven, allowed a leadoff single to Alan Lakatta in the fourth and a leadoff single to Rusty Hamrick in the sixth. ## FCC Criticizes ABC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its second harsh network admonition, the Federal Communications Commission has criticized ABC's "negligence and careless conduct" in its made-for-television boxing championship series.

made-for-television boxing championship series.

The commission said Tuesday ABC failed to thoroughly investigate charges the boxing tournament, canceled after six telecasts, was marred by conflict of interest and padding of the records of some boxers to pique viewer interest.

The FCC recently slapped the wrist of CBS for describing a Las Vegas tennis tournament as "winner-take-all," when losers shared the prize money.

ABC contracted with Don King Productions in 1976 for a television elimination tournament to determine the U.S. boxing champions in eight weight categories. But after six telecasts in early 1977, ABC suspended the series, acknowledging "tournament irregularities."

The series was canceled amidst allegations that won-lost records were doctored to entice viewers, some top boxers were not invited to participate, and two of King's partners also managed fighters in the tournament.

The FCC gave ABC 30 days to advise what steps the network has taken to prevent a recurrence. An ABC spokesman in New York said the network "will respond directly to the FCC."

The FCC said the contract between King and ABC provided that "the best possible fighters" — as determined by Ring magazine rankings — would participate. But the commission said that when ABC "the covered some boxers' records were inaccurate, it failed "to thoroughly investigate."

"Licensees have an obligation to reasonably ensure that no matter is broadcast which will deceive or mislead the public, and that when allegations of tournament irregularites came to the attention of ABC, it had an obligation to inquire promptly and diligently," the FCC said in its unanimous de-

Confronted with allegations of irregularities, the FCC said, an ABC official told a reporter fighters who felt they should have been included could apply for entry.

But the chairman of the rules committee said contractual obligations to tournament fighters precluded late entries, and the FCC said ABC failed in its "responsibility to advise the public" of that decision — thus misleading viewers.

Hatfield's Gem Sparks MHS Sweep

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Derek Hatfield discarded several pitches from his repertorie Tuesday at Lowrey Field-the one which sails to the screen, the one which hits the batter in the back and the one which issues a free pass to first base, to name a few.

On this cloudy day, the senior righthander of Monterey threw a five-hit shutout without his usual accompanied wildness. The five-hit shutout wasn't the unusual part. Hatfield threw a no-hitter last year. Albeit the batters hit Hatfield seldom, Hatfield hits the batters frequently.

But in the opener of the doubleheader with Hereford, Hatfield's control never failed him as the Plainsmen edged the Herd 2-0. Monterey supported sophomore Ricky Pinkerton a little better in the nightcap, whipping the Herd 10-2.

"That's the first game I've ever seen Derek throw without any walks or wild pitches and I've seen him pitch since he was 11," said MHS coach Bobby Moegle.

The Monterey coach watched his pitcher in Monday's workout and advised Hatfield to throw overhanded and avoid using his customary sidearm delivery. Hatfield complied with his coach's request and pitched the distance, tossing 105 pitches and fanning 8 Hereford hitters with a minimum amount of wildness.

of the first inning. Ernie Suarez grounded the pitcher's first pitch to the right of MHS second baseman Pinkerton. Hereford runners reached second base twice but Hatfield suppressed the Herd's most dangerous stampedes with his wicked curve ball. In the final inning, Kevin Bunch lined a single to left to begin Hereford's last chance. Hatfield ran the count full to the next batter, John Wagner, who watched the curve fall in for the third strike. Then Mike Culp bounced a high hopper back to the mound which the pitcher tossed to first baseman Eric Voyles. Ricky Matchett struck out swinging for the game's final

In the third inning, two Hereford errors combined for a MHS run. Mike Wooten reached first on a grounder bobbled by Herd third sacker John Wagner. Wooten stole second and circled the bases as Hereford catcher Larry McNutt's throw faded away from the infielders and the centerfielder and rolled near the rightcenter field fence.

In the second game, Pinkerton allowed 6 hits and struck out 6 with a tricky curve ball that baffled Hereford batters. The visitors committed three errors in the first inning and four more in the third.

Andy Barron opened the first inning with a base on balls before Wooten tripled off the right field fence, scoring Barron. Wooten crossed the plate moments later on a wild pitch.

After Dana Rieger singled to left, Reeves pounded a grounder which escaped Hereford's shortstop. The Hereford second baseman retrieved the ball and tossed a wild throw toward third base attempting to nab Rieger. When the throw sailed near the MHS dugout, Rieger headed home and Reeves raced toward third. The Hereford catcher retrieved the second baseman's errant throw and tossed another wild throw into center field allowing Reeves to score.

It had been that kind of day for Hereford but it was a very tame one from Derek Hatfield

Texas Tech drilled for two hours Tuesday afternoon, the last workout the team will have together prior to Thursday's Red-White spring game.

The Red and White teams will practice separately today and then battle in the annual spring game at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Jones Stadium.

The Raiders concentrated on Tuesday primarily on correcting errors made in last Saturday's scrimmage, head coach Rex Dockery said.

By The Associated Press
It will be listed simply in the chronicles of Stanley Cup play: Montreal Canadiens 4. Detroit Red Wings 2; Montreal wins quarter-final series 4-1.

There won't be enough room to say the loss to the defending National Hockey League champions meant only a bitter ending to an extremely sweet season for Detroit. This year saw the Red Wings win 16 more games than the last, lose 21 fewer, improve offensively and defensively, and - of course - make the playoffs for the first time in eight seasons.

The record book doesn't have time for such things, but Detroit Coach Bobby Kromm had time to tell anyone who'd

"We accomplished a lot of things this season which people did not think we would do," he said Tuesday night. "We surprised a lot of people around the NHL and probably ourselves. We gave the Canadiens everything they could handle and I think they would be the first to admit

"We certainly had our hands full right to the end," said Montreal's Doug Jarvis, whose third-period goals paced the Canadiens' triumph

"That team gave us a heckuva battle, which we really didn't expect," added Montreal defenseman Serge Savard. "We knew they were better than last year but we didn't think they would give us that much resistance.

They resisted enough to win Game 2 of the series in the Canadiens' Montreal Forum sanctuary and rally twice Tuesday night to earn a 2-2 tie after two periods.

Jarvis' second goal of the contest, at 1:37 of the third period, broke Detroit's final tie of the season. But it didn't break their spirit.

'We could have won the game as well as the Canadiens," claimed Kromm. "We had as much right to win the game as Montreal did. We had the chances and it just wasn't there.

"And they," he continued, "are the Canadiens. They're explosive and they are an excellent hockey team. I was proud to be here playing them.'

The Philadelphia Flyers also wrapped up their quarter-final with Buffalo, besting the Sabres 4-2 and winning the series 4-1. In the other quarter-final game Tuesday night, Bob Nystrom's goal at 8:02 of overtime gave the New York Islanders a 2-1 triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs and a 3-2 lead in their series.

It took Montreal just 20 seconds to open the scoring. Rejean Houle took a pass from Bob Gainey and sent a 20-foot shot between the legpads of Detroit goalie Ron Low. Vaclav Nedomansky brought the Red Wings even with his third goal of the playoffs at 9:40, but Guy Lapointe potted the rebound of a Steve Shutt shot 1:29 later for a 2-1 Montreal

Dennis Polonich rallied Detroit to a tie at 6:40 of the second period and that's the way it stayed until Jarvis scored his third-period goals.

Flyers 4, Sabres 2

Just 14 seconds after making a mistake that resulted in a Buffalo goal, Philadelphia right wing Paul Holmgren snapped a tie and sent the Flyers to their seriesclinching victory over the Sabres. Holmgren's flip pass from behind the net hit the stick of Buffalo's Gil Perreault and deflected to the Sabres' Terry Martin, who scored from 10 feet.

"I was mad at myself," said Holmgren, who atoned with a shot that beat Buffalo goalie Don Edwards at 11:07. "It sure made me feel better.'

The goal made it 3-2 Philadelphia and Don Saleski added a third-period tally for the Flyers' second series triumph in two post-season meetings with the Sabres. The other time the teams met, the Flyers won in six games to take the 1975 Stanley

Buffalo, meanwhile, suffered its third consecutive quarter-final elimination since losing the final to the Flyers. They have lost 12 of their last 13 quarter-final

Derek Smith had the other goal for the Sabres while Ross Lonsberry and Bobby Clarke also tallied for Philadelphia.

Islanders 2, Maple Leafs 1 Nystrom, who had four goals in his 42 playoff games prior to the series against Toronto, capped a long dash by potting his third of the set to give New York its second overtime triumph of the series.

He picked up the puck at the faceoff circle in his own end, rushed up ice, faked past defenseman Brian Glennie at the Toronto blue line and blasted a 20foot shot past Mike Palmateer.

The goal could not blemish the phenomenal performance Palmateer had turned in. The Islanders took 10 shots more than half from five feet or less during a 3:14 power play in the closing seconds of the third period, and Palmateer flipped, dived, lunged and kicked to stop them all.

After three straight bogeys, Cindy Lincoln was not quite as confident as she was when the round began. But, a friend of the family put in a word of encouragement, and the magic returned.

As a result, Miss Lincoln recovered for a par-birdie-par finish and the state AIAW golf championship. And while the University of Texas senior was wrapping up the medalist honors, the SMU golf team, ranked among the best in the nation, claimed the state championship by 7 strokes over Lamar University.

Despite the three-hole lapse, Miss Lincoln finished with a 3-over-par 75 and a 36-hole total of 151, 2 strokes better than the Aggies' Kim Bauer who had the day's -and tournament's-best round of 75.

But, for Miss Lincoln, the cup "looked big as a bathtub all day." Putting, then, was not a problem. "The only three holes I didn't putt well were the three I bogeyed," the Texas senior said.

When I walked up to tee off on 16, I had lost my confidence, but my father (Norman Lincoln of Boca Raton, Fla.) went to school at Tech and one of his friends here came up to me and told me I could do it, just forget about the last three. He said I could birdie all three. "I parred 16, got a birdie on 17 and

She smiled. "This is my fourth year at Texas, and it's everybody's dream to win the state championship. I did it on my last try.' With the individual attention of Miss Lincoln and the charging Miss Bauer, SMU was methodically barging to the team championship. SMU fired a 315 Tuesday, following a 312 Monday for a

LSC Tennis

ABILENE (AP) — Team honors as well as individual honors went to East Texas State Tuesday in the Lone Star Conference tennis tournament.

The team title was already wrapped up when Australian Jeff Gibson, an ETSU senior, downed Stephen F. Austin's Andres Dupre 6-3, 7-6 to take the singles

Gibson then teamed with his brother, Bruce, to capture the doubles finals from Mark Rose and John Berryhill of Angelo State 6-2, 6-3.

The Lions finished the competition with 44 points followed by SFA with 36. Angelo State had 25, Abilene Christian 20, Southwest Texas 10 and Sam Houston

LSC Golf

ABILENE (AP) - All things good came to Sam Houston State Tuesday the Lone Star Conference Golf title and medalist honors for Robert Singletary.

The Bearkats shot a two-under 282 on the final 18 holes of play and overtook charging Stephen F. Austin, winning the tournament by 10 strokes.

Sam Houston finished the 144-hole marathon with 2.360 stokes to SFA's 2.-370. Southwest Texas was third with 2,-

In the medalist competition, Singletary birdied the first hole of a playoff, beating his brother, Lee, and SFA's Carl Baker. All three players finished regular play at

LSC Track

ABILENE (AP) - The Abilene Christian University Wildcats claimed the crown in the 45th Lone Star Conference track and field championships Tuesday with a two-day score of 165 - more than double their nearest competition.

The Wildcats were chased somewhat distantly by defending champion Angelo State with 80 points. East Texas edged Southwest Texas State for third 68-66.

The host Wildcats' Bill Cork and Kenyan John Kebiro proved the undoing of the challengers, combining for 54 points.

Cork won the high jump on Monday at 6-10, was fourth in the long jump, finished fourth in the 400 meter dash, third in the 200, ran on a third place 400 meter relay team and anchored the winning mile relay team in 3:16.27.

Kebiro won the 1500-meter run in a stadium record 3:55.90 and was second in the 800 and 5000-meter. He came from 30 yards back to nearly catch Southwest Texas State's Ken Smith in the 5000. ACU's Carl Williams added to the Wildcats' bulge with victories of 48-101/2 in the triple jump and 26-3% in the long jump.

Freshman Billy Olson of ACU set a meet record in the pole vault at 17-1 and won the Oscar Strahan Award as the outstanding field event performer.

Angelo State's Wylie Turner took Cap Shelton Award as the top runner of the meet, winning the 100 in 10.4, the 200 in 21.13 (a stadium record) and anchoring the winning 440 relay team to a 41.64

A stadium record in the 400 was set by Ed Price of Southwest Texas with a 47.78. Robert Klein of Angelo State got his own stadium mark in the 400 meter hurdles with a time of 53.16.

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Sam Worthen, a 6-foot-5 guard from McLennan Community College in Waco, Texas, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Marquette University in the fall, the school announced Tuesday.

Worthen, chosen this year as a first team junior college all-American, averaged 22 points and 11 assists a game this year, his second at McLennan and was chosen the most valuable player in the junior college all-America game at San Antonio this year.

'We are very fortunate to have a player like Sam Worthen come to Marquette since he was one of the most sought after players in the country," coach Hank Raymonds said. "He's a complete player and we feel he can make an immediate contribution to our program.'

The Brooklyn, N.Y., native becomes the third player to sign with Marquette, and the first from outside of Milwaukee.

Pan Am-Trinity Tennis

EDINBURG (AP) - The tennis coaches at Trinity and Pan American say there are areas they have given up on for recruiting purposes. Trinity Coach Bob McKinley says there's an entire state he avoids during the recruiting season. "I basically just forget about kids in California," he said, citing the bevy of top collegiate tennis programs on the But Pan Am Coach A. G. Longoria has

50 states he doesn't bother with. "If we went after the top American kids we wouldn't get them," Longoria

Both recipes have worked well. McKin-ley's 49-state all-stars are 22-3 on the year and ranked third in a national coaches'

Longoria's foreign legion (there's only one statesider) is 17-6 and ranked in the Top 10. Tuesday, Trinity's flock of athletes proved too much for Pan Am. The Tigers swamped the homestanding Broncs 8-1. Trinity went big time in tennis in the late 1950s. In 1972 the Tigers copped the national crown-the only non-California school to do that in the past 18 years. McKinley's top man this year is Florid-ian Larry Gottfried. In Tuesay's match the sophomore slept through a 6-0 first set pasting from Irishman Sean Sorensen.

But Gottfried woke up enough to take the final two sets in tight tiebreakers. Gottfried is the type of young player that makes tennis talent hunting somewhat unique. You recruit with the understanding that they may not stay for four years," McKinley said, admitting that Gottfried and others of his caliber could be making money on the pro tour. "But the trend now is for kids not to turn pro as early as they did three or four years ago. On Trinity's comparatively small San Antonio campus, tennis is talked about in the same hallowed terms reserved for football at South Bend. The Tigers made it to the NCAA finals last year before losing to Stanford. The California school has beaten Trinity twice his year.

Gottfried is backed by a talented cast including Eric Iskerskey, Ben McKown, Tony Giammalva and a cat from through-

McKinley is confident his squad will again be invited to the championship in Georgia this year. He also thinks Pan Am has earned a shot at the title.

"It's harder for Pan Am to get going now than it was for Trinity. Back then people didn't pay much attention to ten-McKinley said.

But the Broncs have gone a long way with their foreign smorgasbord. Rob Huabbard, a senior from Baltimore, is United States player on the squad. The rest of the team is dotted with visa-wielders from Canada, Ireland, Mexico and South Africa.

"Recruiting them is not as difficult as you might think," Longoria said. "We do them a favor by giving them a chance to improve. The kids do most of the recruiting. I give them 15-minute campus tour but the players tell them what the food in the cafeteria is like and what the girl situ-

The Bronc coach believes his team played the toughest schedule in the country this year. Pan Am has played six of the Top 10 teams and 12 of the Top 20.

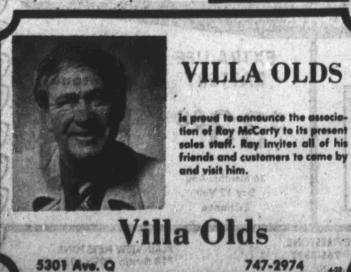

"I think we've established a reputation. We've gone some places and beaten some people.

Sorensen leads the cast of internationals. His smooth game helped make him the first Irishman to win the Irish Open in 32 years.

The trio of Canadian Davis Cuppers includes Robert Bettauer, John Picken and Josef Brabenec.

Longoria is also confident of an NCAA bid. He sees SMU, Houston and Trinity as sure shots for the championships. The coach feels his team is competing with Texas and TCU for a final slot from the Lone Star State.

edged Arkansas 5-4, Amarillo defeated Midland 10-5 and Tulsa edged Shreveport legiate honor.

The score was tied at 4-4 when Whitehead doubled. San Antonio was able to pull within a run at 6-5 in the bottom of the 12th when El Paso pitching gave up a walk with the bases loaded. Reliever Rob Millsop then got Bobby Mitchell to ground out, ending the rally and the game. Dan Boone, now 1-1, got the victory. Mike Martin, now 0-1, took the loss. In a contest matching the two top teams in the Eastern Division, Bob Bryant hit a two-run double and scored on an error to help Jackson beat Arkansas and move to within half of a game of first place. Jeff Reardon, appearing in relief, got the victory to boost his season record to 2-1. John Littlefield, now 1-1, took the loss for Arkansas.

Brian Greer provided much of the offensive punch as Amarillo defeated Midland. Greer had a homer, a double, a stolen base and four RBIs. The homer allowed Amarillo to grab a 4-0 lead.

A single by Joe Russell, two Shreveport errors and bases-loaded walk in the eighth inning proved to be the difference as Tulsa edged Shreveport. But Tulsa reliever Steve Bianchi still had to pull the game out in the bottom of the ninth.

Campbell

HOUSTON (AP) - Earl Campbell was sitting in a training room at the University of Texas nursing an injured knee in 1976 when word came down that Tony Dorsett had won the Heisman Trophy. "I told myself 'I'm going to win it," Campbell recalled later.

True to his word, Campbell led the nation in rushing and came within one game of taking Texas to the national championship last year to follow in Dorsett's footsteps and earn the coveted col-

Campbell apparently will continue to parallel Dorsett's career by becoming an instant millionaire when the Houston Oilers make him the No. 1 pick in next Tuesday's National Football League draft.

Dorsett, who also toils on Texas soil as a member of the Dallas Cowboys, last season became only the eighth rookie in NFL history to rush over 1,000 yards.

Now it's Campbell's turn to prove himself in the pros and he says he's already benefitted from Dorsett's experiences.

"He's told me that it's not a very easy transition," Campbell said Tuesday as he visited Houston for the first time since the Oilers made a deal with Tampa Bay for the No. 1 pick. "He said the pace is faster, but I think I can make it."

Campbell stiff-arms all discussion of his contract. "I've hired someone to talk about that for me," Campbell said, referring to agent Mike Trope, who expects the Oilers to pay somewhere in the $1.2 million range for a multi-year package.

Asked what he would do with his newfound wealth, Campbell said "All I ever really wanted to do was someday make it big in the pros and build a big house for my mother. She's picking it out right now and I'm going to get to pay for it.'

Oiler strong safety Bill Currier now wears the No. 20 Campbell has used throughout his career but Campbell said Tuesday Currier can keep the number. 'That's not what slips you through the hole anyway," Campbell said.

Frank Elliott, dean of Tech's law school and chairman of the athletic council, said Tuesday that, "I can't give a date to aim for (in naming an AD), but work is progressing."

Elliott indicated that the current HEW investigation of Tech's student recruitment program in relation to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 has temporarily delayed any search for an athletic director.

It is not a case of the AD job search alone being slowed but all activities where the Tech administrators are involved.

crushed the Washington Bullets 116-105 Tuesday night to stay alive in their bestof-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Bullets loss left them still ahead 3-2 in the series and needing to win only one of the two remaining games. The next contest is Friday night at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., where the Spurs have never won in two NBA sea-

Elsewhere Tuesday night, Denver beat Milwaukee 118-104 at Milwaukee. The Nuggets lead that series 3-1 and can clost it out at home Friday night. Tonight, the Seattle SuperSonics, leading 2-1, host the defending champion Portland Trail Blazers. San Antonio refused to end its season at home Tuesday night.

"We have to keep running to win," said George Gervin, who tossed in 27 points for San Antonio. "If we have an 11-man effort in Washington on Friday like we had tonight, the Bullets are in trouble.

The Spurs running attack, which had stalled in the previous three San Antonio series losses, lurched to life in the opening minutes of Game 5 and never slowed. With 8:56 left, San Antonio was comfortably ahead by 17 points 95-78, and still

The Bullets, who ran away from the Spurs in winning Games 2, 3 and 4, cut the lead to nine, but could get no closer as the Spurs' Mike Green slammed home two shots and tipped in another in the waning minutes.

Green, starting his second game of the series at foward, hit for 10 points in the final period and finished with 18 to trail only Gervin in San Antonio's balanced scoring parade. Larry Kenon added 17 points for the Spurs, followed by Billy Paultz' 14 and Mike Gale's 12. The running and passing attack that led the Spurs to the Central Diviion title reemerged, and with it Gervin's teammates found themselves getting open shots. The Spurs, who hit less than 50 percent from the field in the three losses, hit 52 percent Tuesday night.

We played excellent offensively, defensively and off the boards," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "We had the movement tonight on offense which we haven't had since the first game.

"The important thing was the way we won tonight." Moe added, referring to 'We have to run to win," added Green.

McGinnis Apologizes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Harmony has returned to the Philadelphia 76ers camp as they prepare for the next round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Star forward George McGinnis apologized Tuesday for his criticism over lack of playing time in the Sixers' four-game weep of the New York Knicks.

"It's an emotional time, the playoffs, the 6-foot-8, 235-pound forward said following the Sixers' first workout since Sunday's 112-107 victory in the NBA

"That's all, just frustration," McGinnis said of his complaints that he felt like a yo-yo after playing only 21 minutes, none in the final quarter when the game was on the line

"I think I'm mature enough if I was wrong to admit it," the Sixers' captain "added

McGinnis' comments had burst the pastoral bubble that had been afloat since coach Billy Cunningham took over for Gene Shue six games into the season. "I think it's more emotions in the playoffs," Cunningham said. "I'm sure George right now is very happy we won that series in four games.

"I feel I had a good year and I want to have a good playoff, and that's why I got emotional, not because I was angry at Billy or anybody else on the team. I was angry more at myself," McGinnis said.

"I want to do better than anyone else for obvious reasons," he said, referring to his awful slump against Portland in ·last year's finals.

"I spoke to George a little yesterday and today, just for a few minutes, and everything's squared away," Cunningham

"I'm glad I got it out; I'm sorry that anyone's feelings were hurt, but I had to release it." McGinnis said.

"Although I didn't score a lot of points in that series (averaging 16 points, four below his season average), I really felt good about the job I did on Lonnie Shelton (Knicks' forward)," McGinnis said. McGinnis said he was "absolutely" happy as a Sixer.

"Everybody's fine," Cunningham said of his charges. "I have no plans of any trades; that's the furthest thing from my

"Especially now, it seems like we're meshing together, playing well as a unit; everybody's contributing," Cunningham

Spurs Stay Alive, Run Past Bullets Dick Motta, the Washington coach, said Tuesday's was "the best game San Antonio has played in this series. "At the half (trailing 57-55), I thought we were in great shape. This loss puts a great deal of pressure on us," Motta said.

If the Bullets do not end the series Friday night at home, they will have to re-

Reserve guard Charles Johnson led the Bullets' scoring Tuesday with 21 points, followed by Tom Henderson's 19 and Elvin Hayes' 17. Mitch Kupchak and Bob Dandridge had 16 each for Washington.

Nuggets 118, Bucks 104 We all watched the film of Sunday's game and it was tough," said Denver coach Larry Brown, referring to the 143-112 pasting the Nuggets suffered in Mil-waukee, "We head the commentary and we saw the expressions on the Milwaukee players' faces when they were introduced and how the crowd got them all hyped up. I heard Marques (Johnson, Milwaukee's rookie forward) say the word

'pride' before Sunday's game and we appealed to that tonight.
"It was a lot of pride and execution."

David Thompson scored 34 points and Dan Issel 24 to lead the Nuggets to an easy victory over the cold-shooting Bucks. Denver jumped in front 21-14 and stretched the margin to 57-39 at the half and 90-61 after three periods before the

"What happened was what I had hope wouldn't happen," said Bucks Coach Do Nelson. "We were not hitting from ou side at all. When you can't hit outside, your inside game is non-existent. You've got to make them respect your ou

MANAGER RESIGNS

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) - Hillman Lyons, who took over six months ago as general manager of the Evansville Triplets in the American Association, resigned today, citing health reasons.

Clark Langdon doubled home the fifth. H-SU, which finished its most productive season ever with a 35-18 mark, scored unearned runs in the fifth and sixth innings. But Langdon, after Glenn Wilken reached on an error, iced things away in the sixth with a two-run homer to left, his seventh of the year. And that was the only blast of the day that the

Leslie's four hits gave him 85 for the season, 17 away from John Harris' singleseason mark and pushed him past Buddy Davis to seventh on the all-time list with 152 hits in two seasons. And those hits have accounted for 139 RBIs, including 73 this year.

at you real quick there. It's mostly reaction there." He is still learning about outfield play, however. The biggest adjustment he's had to make regards throwing. "In the infield, you use a quicker throw, more of a snap throw. In the outfield, the throws are longer, and you have more follow through.

GETTING A GOOD jump on a hit is one of the toughest things for an outfielder to master. Judging whether a ball will drop in front of one or be hit over his head must become instinctive.

If an outfielder does not master this, he will not remain an outfielder long. It is particularly rough at the Tech field because the outfielders face the sun and because the poor background behind home plate makes a ball seem to outfielders as if it is literally coming out of the crowd. This slows their reaction time to

"You almost have to know before the ball is hit," Selby said. "You have to watch a batter's swing and try to get a hint from that. I've really got to work this summer on getting a better jump on the ball."

Selby has committed five errors and has a .936 fielding percentage. However, most of the miscues came during the early part of the season.

THE SAN ANTONIO MacArthur product had a fine senior year in high school, hitting .465, but was not drafted, although some teams-particularly Cincinnati-kept close tabs on his progress.

Selby received a combination football-basketball scholarship offer from Sam Houston State, but spurned that in favor of a football grant-in-aid from Tech. However, he gave up football after his freshman campaign.

"I just didn't enjoy football anymore, and I've always liked baseball better anyway," said Selby, a wishbone quarterback and a defensive back in high school. "After the season, I talked to coach (Steve) Sloan and told him how I

Tech football players are allowed to participate in spring sports following their freshman years, but are required to go through spring training their first years here. By quitting football, Selby was able to play baseball as a freshman.

NOW, A QUESTION is whether he will be drafted by the pros in the future. He will not be 21 until October, and rules prevent a collegiate player from being drafted until he reaches that age. That takes care of the upcoming June draft. But after that?

"Sure. I'd love to play pro ball if I got the chance," Selby said. "I guess any player would. But you just can't worry about it. You have to take things as they

Reeves Among Six QBs Picked By North Stars

Reeves, one of six quarterbacks selected, heads a list of five South Plains gridders selected to play for the North in the annual Texas High School Coaches Association's All-Star game the last of July.

Others selected to the squad, which will be coached by Don Beck of Perryton, include running back Clarence Davis of Seagraves, who like Reeves has signed with Texas Tech; guard Koty Kothmann of Friona, guard Tommy Sager of Odessa Permian and guard Lonnie Williams of Three area cagers were also tabbed for the All-Star game, 5-10 Rocky Rawls of Dimmitt, 6-7 Jackie Vaughn of Silverton and 6-10 Eddie Kerr of Lamesa.

This year the coaching school will be held in Houston, with the Basketball All-Star game set for 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 28 at Hofheinz Pavilion and the grid contest Saturday, July 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Astrodome.

PLAINVIEW (Special) - Lubbock High pitchers Abel Cardenas and David Rush blanked Plainview for 14 innings as the Westerners swept a District 4-AAAA baseball doubleheader by 9-0 and 5-0

The wins lifted LHS to 2-0 for the second half and 16-9 while Plainview fell to 2-2 and 17-6. The wins also set up a key doubleheader Saturday in Mackenzie Park with league-leading Monterey at 1

Cardenas fanned 10 and walked none while hurling a two-hit shutout in the opener. The senior returned in the sixth inning of the nightcap and quelled a bases-loaded rally after Rush worked 52/3 innings and also stifled a bases-loaded threat in the third frame.

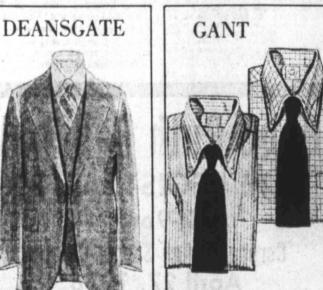

Lubbock scored twice in the first inning as Terry Brady's 2-run double to rightcenter chased home Noel Jaime, who singled and Ernest Day who was hit by a pitched ball. The winners added a lone run in the second when Ernest Rodriguez walked and advanced when Jaime also drew a walk. Rodriguez reached third when Day grounded into a fielder's choice and scored when Andy Vasquez grounded to shortstop.

Lubbock's biggest uprising, a 4-run third inning, was highlighted by Bobby

Ducks Unlimited Banquet Tonight

More than $10,000 is expected to be raised through ticket sales and auction of outdoor gear at tonight's annual Ducks Unlimited banauet. The program, beginning at 6:30 p.m., will be held at KoKo Palace, 5210 Ave.

The program is the main fund-raising project of the year for Ducks Unlimited, an organization whose objective is continuing protection of waterfowl.

Over the 40 years of its existence, Ducks Unlimited has raised more than $70 million, with more than $58 million of this being spent on wetlands improvement and management. Most of the monies have been spent in Canada and northern nesting grounds, but since a large percentage of the waterfowl winter in Mexico, some of the newer projects have been set up to preserve and furnish new nesting areas for the birds' winter protection. A part of tonight's program will be an auction where various outdoors items

Player Must NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gary Player goes after a fourth consecutive victory — a feat that hasn't been accomplished in Strangely enough, the last two men who had a shot at a fourth consecutive timore than a quarter-century — this week in the $200,000 New Orleans Open Golf The odds are heavily against him. Only two men have ever done it. Player has never won more than three tournaments in a single year in this country. His magic must disappear sometime. "He can't keep on winning forever," said Jerry McGee, who let a muddled expression cross his face and asked, "Can

As usual, Player declined a prediction about the test that begins Thursday on the 7,480-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course where Gary won in 1972.

"All you can do is try your very best on every shot in every round," the little South African said.

That constant effort, a trademark of Player's 22-year career on the American tour, has produced spectacular come-from-behind victories in his last three starts - the Masters, Tournament of Champions and Houston Open. He has made up a total of 17 strokes in the last rounds of those three.

And now he is in position to become only the third man in history to win four in a row. Jack Burke was the last to do it, in 1952. Byron Nelson, who won an incredible 11 in a row in 1945, is the only man to win more than four consecutive tle, declined to make the effort: Johnny Miller in 1974 and Hubert Green in 1976. Each won three in a row and then took the next week off

Although the pressure is building, the attention from public and press increasing, Player is adhering to his schedule. It calls for 10 consecutive American tourna

It is a much heavier playing schedule than that followed by the vast majority of

"It isn't easy," Player said. "But no-thing worthwhile ever is. I'll tell you this. It's much easier playing 10 tourpaments in a row than commuting from South Af-rica as I've done for more than 20 years." Another benefit, he said, is the pres-

kins' Four-Hitter Stymies Royals

When the wind is blowing right and the pitchers are throwing right, Arlington Stadium in Texas can be a wasteland for

No wonder that Ferguson Jenkins is happy to be home on the range again. 'It's nice being back and pitching in this park," the right-hander said Tuesday night after his four-hitter led the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The victory was Jenkins' first for Texas since the Rangers reacquired him from the Boston Red Sox this year - and a sweet one it was, too, considering that he had been used strictly as a relief pitcher up until Tuesday night.

"I think I proved tonight I can still pitch," said the 35-year-old Jenkins, back with a team for which he won 25 games in 1974. "Boston didn't score very many runs for me last year." The resilient Jenkins was absolutely untouchable for six innings. He had a perfect game until Willie Wilson lined a clean single to center leading off the seventh inning.

"I've been around long enough to know you have to be awfully lucky to pitch a no-hitter," said Jenkins, a 14-year veteran in the major leagues. "Wilson hit an inside slider on me.

Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, for one, is happy to see Jenkins back in a Ranger "He threw the ball like he did in '74," noted Sundberg. "He had tremendous velocity and his slider was really breaking. Added Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog: "Jenkins just did a hell of a job, and as far as I'm concerned, he is still a master craftsman:

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's swept a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins, 5-3 and 4-3 in 14 innings; the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-3: the Boston Red Sox edged he Milwaukee Brewers 4-3: the Cleveland Indians turned back the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5; the Detroit Tigers stopped the Chicago White Sox 8-4 in 10 innings and the California Angels blanked the Seattle Mariners 3-0.

After Wilson's base hit broke Jenkins spell, the rangy Texas right-hander yielded a single to Tom Poquette in the eighth inning before being tagged for a double by Wilson and a run-scoring single by Hal

South Plains Inks Levelland Trackmen

LEVELLAND (Special)-Levelland High School trackmen Kelly Spurlock and Robert McGuire have signed lettersof-intent with South Plains College.

Spurlock, a 6-0, 185-pound senior, will participate in the shot put, discus and the long jump.

At Levelland, Spurlock was a threeyear letterman in football, basketball and track. During the 1976-77 season, he was a state finalist in the discus, an alldistrict basketball player and captain of the track team.

McGuire, a 6-31/2, 220-pounder, will New York ticipate in the shot put and discus a SPC. He lettered three years in track and field and two in football while a Levelland High.

He was captain of the Lobo track team

Jenkins got all the help he needed in the first inning. Dennis Leonard served up a fat pitch and Mike Hargrove drilled it into the right field seats. John Lowenstein then singled and Richie Zisk lashed his fifth homer of the season over the 370foot mark in left field, giving the Rangers scored three first-inning runs.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3 Mickey Rivers and Chris Chambliss drove in fifth-inning New York runs and Jim Spencer blasted a homer in the ninth as the Yankees whipped the Orioles. Rookie Jim Beattie allowed five hits before being relieved in the seventh by Sparky Lyle. Beattie's victory came in his major league debut.

By WILL GRIMSLEY

The dramatic story of Pete Gray is resurrected in William B. Mead's lively book on "the zany, true story of baseball in the Early Forties," the World War II years, entitled "Even the Browns."

Nearly a full chapter is devoted to the gritty, determined Gray, and it brought back memories of the handicapped athlete's struggle in the minors before he graduated to the remarkable, pennant-winning St. Louis Browns. Gray, whose real name was Peter J. Wyshner, was born in Nanticoke, Pa., a grim, scruffy coal-mining town near Wilkes-Barre. Pete's father was a miner of Lithuanian descent who changed the family name to "Gray." We are indebted to author Mead for these early details of the ball player's

be amputated above the elbow. Gray was intent on playing professional baseball. Although right-handed, he learned to bat from the left side. While

He had a superb batting eye. Lean and quick, he mixed line drives with well-executed bunts, mostly down the third base line. He dragged others past the pitcher.

With keen eyesight and a powerful left arm, he also managed to hit for distance. He rapped out doubles, triples and even

An even greater miracle, however, was Gray's ability to field. Through perseverence and disciplined training, the miner's son found an answer even to this handi-

He removed almost all the padding from his glove and wore it on his fingertips, with his little finger exposed. He would catch the ball, quickly stick the glove under the stump of his right arm, draw the ball clear with his left hand and throw it to the infield.

He hardly lost a second. Spurned by organized baseball, Gray played semi-pro ball with Three Rivers, Quebec, and the Brooklyn Bushwicks before he finally caught the eye of Toronto of the Class AA International League, which cut him, and then the Memphis Chicks of the Class A Southern Associa-

It was at Memphis that Gray began receiving nationwide publicity. In 1944 he batted .333, stole 63 bases and was voted the league's Most Valuable Player. In two seasons, he struck out only 15 times. The War Department made movies of his play to be shown wounded soldiers in army hospitals.

The Browns, 1944 American League champions, bought Gray for $20,000. The one-armed outfielder, swinging a 35ounce bat, had his dramatic moments in 1945 but wound up batting .218 with six doubles and two triples, mostly as a pinch hitter.

Our memory of Pete Gray goes back to his days at Memphis

While he was there, the Memphis club received a poignant letter from a man in Los Angeles. His 6-year-old son, Gary, had suffered a similar accident and had lost his right arm. Gray had become the boy's hero and inspiration. A meeting

The father and boy flew to Memph The youngster, attired in a Memphis ut form bearing Gray's number, was bu eyed. They silently shook hands — wi their lefts.

They had no rights. Gray was sullen but nice. "If the kid falls down, don't pick him up," Pete told the father. "Don't let him ever feel sorry for himself. That's the way my fat

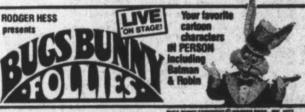

The game that night was dedicated to little Gary. Pete Gray hit a home run, a double and a single, stole two bases and won the game. He looked over at the box seat. Gary was asleep in his father's

litters Not Laughing At Kaat, Neikro

Philadelphia's Jim Kaat and Atlanta's Phil Niekro have reached the age that comedian Jack Benny made famous, but they're no laughing matter to National League batters.

The 39-year-old veterans were in fine fettle Tuesday night. Kaat, making his first start of the season, hurled a threehitter as the Phillies trimmed the Chicago Cubs 7-0 and Niekro knuckled the Braves past the San Francisco Giants 3-1 with a six-hitter.

It was a pitcher's day - old and young - in the National League.

Don Robinson, a 20-year-old Pittsburgh roekie, posted his first big league triumph with a five-hit 2-1 decision over the New York Mets. Tommy John, who will turn 35 next month, threw a six-hitter and ran his career record against Cincinnati to 11-2 as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Reds 4-2.

St. Louis' John Urrea, 23, scattered seven hits and struck out 10 in Cardinals' 7-2 victory - both runs were unearned over the Montreal Expos and Houston's Mark Lemongello, 22, checked the San Diego Padres 4-3 on six hits.

It wasn't a managers' day. Even though St. Louis snapped a six-game losing streak, the Cardinals fired Manager Vern Rapp and replaced him with third base coach Jack Krol.

Kaat's triumph over Chicago was the 254th for the 18-year veteran, moving him into a tie with Urban Faber for 23rd place on the all-time victory list. The shutout was the 30th of the left-hander's run Kaat needed in the first inning, Greg Luzinski homered and Garry Maddox delivered a two-run single.

"I just happened to have uncanny control of my fast ball early in the game. I may never have it like that the rest of the year," said Kaat, who threw only 94 pitches, 67 for strikes, after some pregame apprehension. After all, he lost his spot in the starting rotation last year, winning only six games.

"I really was amazed at the way the ball was popping with relatively easy effort," he said. "If you had a job to do and you hadn't done it for eight months there's bound to be anxiety. Things just fell into place. My rhythm, timing and tempo just went together."

Braves 3, Giants 1 Jeff Burroughs backed Niekro's pitching with a pair of doubles and scored twice as the Braves broke a four-game losing streak. Before he was stopped, Burroughs piled up six consecutive hits over two games, including three doubles and a home run.

The victory tied Niekro with Lew Burdette with 179 career triumphs, most among Braves right-handers in the history of the franchise.

'I wasn't chasing that," the knuckleballer said. "I don't chase anything but nine batters.'

Bums Party—Before

CINCINNATI (AP) - It might have been a first in pro baseball - a cork-popping party BEFORE the game? Los Angeles Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda had the red carpet out.

On his office desk sat a couple bottles of chilled wine and a hunk of cheese, on the house. "We paid good money for this. Not a lot of it, but good ' said Lasorda, who decided to wine and dine reporters prior to Tuesday night's game with the Cincinnati Reds. The occasion? Lasorda, who never passes up a chance to needle Reds Manager Sparky Anderson, was at it again. The shindig, which drew more than 20 members of the media and created a World Series-like atmcsphere, was an obvious jab at Anderson, who recently banned reporters from the Cincinnati clubhouse 35 minutes before gametime.

Anderson said he was "sick and tired" of having reporters in the clubhouse when the players should be preparing to

The action brought a storm of protests from Cincinnatiarea writers, who have had few restrictions over the years. "The guys are more than welcome here if they don't have a place to go," said Lasorda After the crowd assembled in his office and moved to the players lounge, Lasorda said he was holding the get-together to honor members of the Dodgers press crew. After handing out personalized Dodgers jackets to the Los Angeles area writers, he turned to the group and said, grinning widely: "Nice of you other guys to attend. I'm honored."

A member of the Reds press corps arrived wearing his own Dodgers jacket, delighting Lasorda.

"If you finish second this year, are you going to close the locker area," asked a Cincinnati writer.

Lasorda winced. "Now don't give me those tough questions." he said. LsSorda denied that he threw the party to get under Anderson's skin.

"Sparky's my friend. We don't have anything going. He and I were teammates for two years and he made three spectacular plays for me when I won my 18th game. Sparky hit Dodgers won the National League baseball game 4-2 behind the pitching of Reds-killer Tommy John. Anderson said he's bowing out of the verbal battle.

"I'm not going to run with him anymore. He can take the football and run with it. I'm not even going to discuss it anymore," he said.

The cheery, inviting solarium with its blue and yellow patterned rug, octagonal glass table, and brass coffee tables draws the Carters when they want to relax.

Along the walls of the ramp leading up to the solarium are original prints and en-gravings of the White House and the Capitol in the 19th Century. Next door is the former green dab billiard room, which Mrs. Carter now calls the "pool room." It has been spruced up with teal blue walls, a ping-pong table that fits over the billiard table, and a chess set on a table, for Jack, who is an expert, and for Amy and son Jeff, 25, who play occasionally

Painter Discovers New World In Art After Losing Hearing

Arthur Chambers, "it's almost a blessing, going deaf. Not quite, but almost."

Surrounded by beauty and color in the new world he discovered after losing his hearing, Chambers is comfortable in his role as artist, interpreting Florida's mysterious swamps and tree-lined ham-

It took a while to find any joy at all in life after losing his hearing five years ago. "There was no radio, no television, no telephone — and no music," says Chambers, 57. "And that was my life."

Trapped in a soundless world, he was cut off from the organ music he had loved since learning to play as a boy in Mendham, N.J.

The organ was also a livelihood; Chambers had worked as an organ technician and repairman for 25 years.

The hearing trouble began when Chambers' eardrum was punctured in an unpressurized airplane cabin high over Brazil while serving with the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II.

About five years ago Chambers entered a hospital for repair surgery, but something went wrong. Only hours after the operation hearing in his right ear failed. Two weeks later the left ear failed.

Despondent and bitter, Chambers began dabbling with a paint set his wife, Catherine, brought him in the hospital. And he discovered he could once again communicate - this time with form, style and color instead of notes.

Chambers eventually concentrated on landscapes in Florida's wilderness. A backyard studio at the Chambers home in Hialeah is lined with haunting portrayals of swamp and forest scenes.

A note on his drawing board tells onlookers that the artist is deaf, and that a tap on the shoulder will get his attention. Chambers enjoys chatting with observers, aided by a special vibration sensor

Chambers exhibits his work each month at a mall in nearby Hollywood." The artist has prepared his own blo-graphical sketch. "Mr. Chambers' pastor-al scenes," it says, "reveal a man at peace with himself."

Aquaculture Chief Cites Better Fish Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has named to coordinate Aquaculture says that catfish production could be increased sharply through improved manement techniques. H.R. Schmittou of Auburn University, Auburn, Ala., has been named by Bergland as the Agriculture Department's first aquaculture coordinator.

The department has had a "work group" on aquaculture but Schmittou is the first person to be put in charge for coordinating the various programs.

"Aquaculture is rapidly becoming a significant component of Department of Agriculture programs in food production, land and water conservation and rural development," Bergland said in a recent memorandum.

Schmittou, 41, is a native of Waverly, Tenn., and received a doctorate in aquaculture from Auburn in 1969. He was later the first Texas state extension specialist in catfish culture and in 1971, moved to Auburn University.

After that, Schmittou led a university team financed by the U.S. Agency for International Development in the Philippines for five years where he worked in planning and implementing aquaculture

Schmittou said that efficient catfish farmers now produce 3,000 pounds of catfish annually per acre but that with ad-quate market outlets and improve managment, the annual yield can be increased by at least 50 to 100 percent.

Bergland has directed all employees in his department to to take note of President Carter's proclamation that Wednesday, May 3, will be Sun Day. "Although this is the first Sun Day for the Department of Agriculture, everyday is sun day for the farmer," Bergland said. "Sun makes photosynthesis possible," he said. "It is the process that forms all plant food, all animal food and even the fossil fuel resources on which we are now overly dependent." Therefore, Bergland directed, all US-DA employees working on solar research projects at locations across the country should hold open houses for the public.

"Sun Day provides an opportunity for all of us to help demonstrate agriculture's use of solar energy by taking an active part in this nationwide observance,"

"I personally dislike being cinched up with a tie," says Jacobs. Generally, he conforms to the House code. But Jacobs may prefer shirt sleeves at meetings of the House Ways and Means Committee while other male members are in jackets. Jacobs once tested the dress code by wearing a sweater and open-necked shirt to the floor.

One member shook his cane at Jacobs that day. But Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, who has the power to remove members wearing unacceptable attire, instead opted to take the matter up with Jacobs' wife, Rep. Martha Keys, D-Kan.

Mrs. Keys, who often wears pants suits to the floor, replied that she doesn't audit her husband's wardrobe.

Seminary Dropouts Cause New Problem

By United Press International
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Sixty percent of all seminary students desert their studies before becoming priests, creating a new problem for the Roman Catholic church.

The rector of the conciliar seminary in Mexico City, Jose Jorge Martinez, blames the growing number of priestly dropouts on the church's failure to stimulate interest among the young in Catholic studies.

Martinez argues that the church sorely needs more priests to cover Mexico's exploding population. There are now only 10,000 priests to serve the spiritual needs of an estimated 40 million practicing Catholics, he said.

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) - Chile's military regime named a new cabinet April 14 with a majority of civilian ministers, but no startling changes are expected in the way the government is run.

Made up of 16 ministers, the new cabinet has 11 civilian and five military ministers. It is the first time since the armed forces assumed power in 1973 that there are more civilians than military officers.

Military President Augusto Pinochet said although the government has taken a turn, "the military regime has not changed. There is no opening for politicians, they are finished.

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) - Leftists are working to unite their followers behind a single candidate for the June 6 presidential election but, even if successful, chances are their efforts will have little impact on the outcome of the ballot-

Gabriel Garcia Marquez, the wellknown author of "One Hundred Years of Solitude," is leading a movement to get 500,000 signatures on a petition urging the 12 main leftist groups to unite.

The left-wing groups have managed to consolidate their forces behind three major candidates, but Garcia Marquez wants to narrow the number to one.

Despite the effort at unity by the leftists, the campaign has narrowed down to a race between the candidates of Colombia's two traditional political parties, the Liberal and Conservative.

BRASILIA (UPI) - Brazil's sevenyear-old aviation industry, the sixth largest in the world, is gearing up to enter the fucrative U.S. government certification for its 19-passenger Bandeirante sometime in 1978, putting it in a good position to close deals with a number of American nunter carriers The two-engine turboprop is already in service throughout Latin America and recently was approved for operation in Great Britain and France. Brazil's 1977 production hit 600 airmanes, including the Bandeirante, the Xavante military trainer and the Ipanema crop duster.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) -A breach has been opened between the nation's two main labor groups as Labor Minister Horacio T. Liendo prepares to select the labor representatives who will travel to the International Labor Organization meeting in Switzerland. The Commission of 25, a group of independent labor leaders, and the Management and Labor Commission, a group of ns intervened by the military governbroke into disagreement in mid-

FTC Hits Pepsico, Coca-Cola

By JEFFREY MILLS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soft drink prices may come down as a result of a Federal Trade Commission finding that long-standing practices of the Coca-Cola Co. and Pepsico Inc. violate federal antitrust law.

The commission, in a 2-1 decision this week, said the two giant soft drink companies violate antitrust law by restricting their bottlers to certain territories.

Since 1900, Coca-Cola has forbidden its bottlers from selling their soft drinks outside specified territories. Pepsico has had similar restrictions since the 1930s.

However, both companies promised appeals through the federal courts, which would delay the effect of the decision. Coca-Cola said, "Our bottler contracts for over 77 years have been on the basis

desirable business system.' Pepsico called the decision "another example of the government attempting to impose theoretical economic concepts and alter a structure which has been proven in the marketplace.

Both companies sell the syrup and concentrates used to make their soft drinks to independent bottlers. The companies have enforced contracts keeping the bottlers from competing with each other by giving each a specified territory.

The commission majority said this curtails "intrabrand competition," or that between the various Coca-Cola brands and between the Pepsico brands. The Coca-Cola brands include Coca-Cola, Sprite, Fresca, Fanta, Tab and Mr. Pibb, and Pepsico's brands include Pepsi-Cola, Teem, Mountain Dew and Patio.

Eliminating the intrabrand competition also hurts competition with outside brands, the commission said.

"Lower prices for Coca-Cola would, in turn, exert enormous downward pressure on the price of interbrand flavored carbonated beverages and, to a lesser degree, on Kool Aid, Funny Face, fruit juices and all other soft drink products which, according to the bottlers, compete with Coca-Cola," the FTC said.

The commission said the Coca-Cola practices are 'depriving retailers and consumers of the opportunity to purchase Coca-Cola and the allied products in bottles and cans in unrestricted markets at openly competitive prices."

Carter On Docket With Anita Bryant

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter and singer Anita Bryant will share top billing at the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention in Atlanta in mid-June.

ng about Pepsico.

Coca-Cola, which has its headquarters in Atlanta, had net sales during a recent year in excess of $1.1 billion and Pepsico, based in Purchase, N.Y., had sales of $848 million, the commission said.

The decision overturns a 1975 ruling by FTC Administrative Law Judge Joseph P. Defresne that ordering an end of the territorial competition "because it would lead to the business failure of many small and some large bottlers as well as to the accelerated growth of large bottlers.'

ple, it is trying to find enough time to do your job here.

Q. Which senator would you call the most powerful?

A. Today? When I came here there were a lot of powerful men here. In the early years, when Dick Russell (D-Ga.) was here and Bob Kerr (D-Okla.) was here and Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) had just left and Everett Dirksen (R-III.) was here, there were people with a great deal of power - the kind of guy who would speak and change your vote. They simply aren't down here any more.

Q. Why is that? A. There are some capable men but we've become so institutionalized and we've been so fragmented and the work-

one of the plainest looking. He has a bulbous nose, beady eyes, a hefty frame, a suggestion of W. C. Fields about him.

There's a liquor store in Washington called Plain Old Pearson's. Somehow the name applies to the senior senator from Kansas. There is something comfortably old shoe about him. A visitor senses a wryness, an absence of self-importance. The son of a Methodist minister, Pearson was born in Tennessee and raised in Virginia.

As a Navy transport pilot in World War II stationed in Olathe, Kan., he met and married a Kansan and settled down to practice law in Kansas and serve in a long list of local and state offices. He eventually became one of the most popular politicians in the state's history, winning a third Senate term in 1972 with 72 percent

Pearson, at 57, surprised Kansas by announcing he will retire from the Senate at the end of this year, ending a 16-year career in Congress.

He says he wants to teach politics and law at the University of Kansas, practice law, sit on the boards of some corporations, finish building a new home on his farm and read what he wants to read, not what has to read.

In an interview, he said he would like to see George Bush, former U.S. envoy to China, or Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker as the GOP's 1980 nominee for president.

He did not mention his fellow Kansan, Sen. Robert Dole, the party's vice presidential nominee of 1976. Dole is believed eager to win the presidential nomination in 1980.

Dole is more conservative than Pearson. Americans for Democratic Action rated Dole's 1977 voting record at 5, Pearson's at 45 - and the Senate as a whole at 45.6.

Here are excerpts from the tape-recorded interview: Q. If 100 citizens were plucked at random from the streets and farms of America and put in the Senate, would they serve the country as well as the present

Senate? A. I can't see how they could do as well because this is a political job and you have to want to be involved in a political job to do it. The people here are all people who wanted to be here very badly. I can't conceive of a random group coming in without all the desires and appetites that senators have and enduring the damn thing, for one thing. Q. I was thinking more of the purity of their motives and decisions.

A. You'd get that, yeah. You'd get some real puritans in here and they'd stay that way about a year and they'd turn out to be just the way we are now.

Q. Would the country be better served if the capital were moved out to middle America? A. No. If you moved Washington to Kansas City, the same sort of attitudes that developed here would develop again. Q. How about moving the Congress around from time to time? A. No. Most of us spend half our time were the strong people and we don't have them anymore. I can't name powerful them anymore. I can't name powerful people in the Senate anymore. Q. You seem rarely to make speeches on the floor.

A. Who am I going to talk to? I'm not A. Who am I going to talk to? I'm not comfortable in the charade of trudging down there and making a speech to an empty chamber and to an audience (in empty chamber and to an audience the hell I'm talking to anyway. Nowadays, you' talk at home, or if you decide to go national on an issue, you talk on the TV Sunday talk shows or on the evening news or in a speech in New York or Los Angeles. If you are trying to persuade your colleagues of your position, speeches don't do it either. No one makes speeches any more. And there are no debates, no real debates. It's been years since we've had a good debate. Even this Panama Canal treaty debate is a peculiar

Q. What is the most distasteful aspect of being a senator?

A. The multitude of trivia you've got to involve yourself in. The social schedule is an enormous strain, and I don't do much of it. There's a lot of trivia - people you of it. There's a lot of trivia — people you have to see, delegations you have to meet. That sounds awful because it sounds like somebody who doesn't want to rub shoulders and acquire a feeling of what's going on. But there's almost no time to work. I've cynically said that when this government falls it might not when this government falls it might not be because of any exterior pressure but because those assigned responsibilities to make decisions never had any time to read or think or contemplate.

Q. What have you done that you're most proud of? A. I've shown that a Republican from Kansas doesn't have to be a right-wing nut to get the Republican nomination and you can be a moderate to a liberal in your thoughts and action and performance and still command the respect and support of the people of Kansas, an en-omously conservative state. Q. As a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, are you carrying some secrets you'll take to your grave? A. I'm carrying around some secrets but I imagine before I go to my grave evervone will know them. Q. Are they secrets which would bother the American people if theh knew them?

A. Some of them. Q. Do you think the country is well served by its intelligence apparatus?

A. I do. And the more you learn about it, the greater and deeper your respect gets. I think the product of their work is just very good. But that's not to say they don't make mistakes and misjudgments. In many cases around the world, no matter how good we are - and I think we're the best in the world - we just don't know what's going on.

Q. Let's talk about the Republican par-What are the chances the next president will be a Republican?

A. It depends entirely on how badly the president goofs up. The Republican party s going to continue to elect senators and governors but for the party at this stage to become a national force, I just don't see it. We'll elect presidents every so of-

Dairy Farmer Wins Battle With Bureaucrats

By RICHARd H. GROWALD BEDFORD, Mich. (UPI) - Michigan

Frederic L. Halbert said he felt hysteria back home when his dairy herd's milk production fell by half in a month for no obvious reason.

was like living in Heartbreak Hotel.

Halbert noticed his cows were not eating much of the feed bought from Farm Bureau Services. Someone suggested it might be something in the water. Maybe ment of Agriculture, the Michigan De- it was the goldfish someone had put in the tank.

"We looked. The goldfish was still

...finally, he jumped for joy when a Maryland scientist proved he had been right all along.

Halbert wept when he had to send to laughter his daughters' pet cow, Flopsy, along with hundreds of his other affiliated milk producers.

And, finally, he jumped for joy - up and down, up and down, up and down when a Maryland scientist proved he had been right all along

"It's been a bit like having our own nu-clear disaster," said Halbert, amateur mountain climber, professional scientist, career farmer and the man who unearthed Michigan's PBB nightmare. Mares of the Michigan night include:

-The state suing the firms for $119 million that supplied Halbert's and others' dairy herds with feed containing polybrominated biphenyl, PBB, a toxic fire retardant.

-The finding that PBB does not go away. Fresh herds, living on land cleared of PBB-inflicted cows, are suffering. The damage has spread to sheep, goats, chickens, pigeons and even wild deer.

-Well water near the burial pits of more than 35,000 PBB-doomed cows has been found to have toxic levels of PBB. -Gov. William G. Milliken is finding his efforts for a new term shadowed by foes blaming him for PBB woes. -Grocers advertise that the beef they sell comes from lowa or anywhere out-of-state and not from slaughtered cattle from Michigan's PBB fields. -When 44 persons claimed health damage due to PBB intake, the Michigan

Health Department said in February it cannot recommend any treatment. "Treatments for these conditions are not known at this time," it said in a form let--Michiganders claim humor as a heritage and a defense. In East Lansing, Michigan State University students wear t-shirts bearing the words,"I survived The Blizzard of '78." More widespread are the jokes about PBB. For example, Michigan is the only state with fire-resistant steaks. Or, a variation referring to hamburger made of the state's over-age milk cows: Michigan is the state where you cannot cook a hamburger past medium rare.

It all started with red-haired Fred Halbert. Just under 6-foot-1 and weighing 190 pounds, he looks like a mountain climber. He sits at the bare desk of his dairy farm office, bare of all decor except a calendar picture of a snowy peak to be conquered.

Through an open door is seen milking machinery. Beyond are dozens of cows, munching and contentedly ignorant of the drama the past five years on this bumpy plain north of Battle Creek. Halbert paid no attention to the acid perfume of the barnyard filling the narrow office like background music

"I spell my first name with no 'k.' Just Frederic Grandfather was Frederick with a 'k' and mother thought he was too cantankerous and said she didn't want another Frederick named Halbert. The farmer shrugged. "I guess my ancestors chased the Indians out of here. Not much interested in bistory. Today's too fascinating." He almost missed the PBB drama of today. He earned two university degrees in chemical engineering, worked for Eastman Kodak and then for Dow Chemical.

Halbert smiled. "I worked for Dow in Midland, Mich. A few years ago the demonstrators called Midland the napalm capital of the world.

Actually, it was made elsewhere." Halbert is not emotionally given to protest. "I'm a practical man. Somebody had to make napalm. Nobody protested about what we made in Midland." He smiled again. He said his plant produced a kitchen wrap. "At the plant we had a name for material that could be dangerous. Like vinyl chloride, which could cause cancer 'Bad actors,' these materials. We called them 'critters. "Some days, when I would leave the plant, my shoes smelled so strong, I had to leave them at the door of my house." Halbert began to feel he ought to return to farming. It had not to do with dangerous chemicals.

"I'd think of my father's farm. The barns. The lake. And working for somebody else gives you that I-wonder-what-the boss-wants-me-to-do-today feeling. You felt vulnerable, not your own man.

'So I came back to the farm. Felt pretty guilty. The company had just given me a $1,200 bonus like they give up-and-comers. And mother wasn't happy.

"My coming back was anathema to her. She felt farming was, well, lacking in so-cial status. Anyway, I went into partner-ship with my father and brother."

He nodded at the thought of the family effort. "It's been a real partnership, all three of us holding hands through all of Halbert had bought 260 acres near his after's farm. He had married and setled into a farmhouse with his wife and hree daughlers. By early 1973 his herd was producing 13,000 pounds of milk a lay. The partners had expanded. The saris sit on the plain like a small factory.

"And then in 20 days, production irropped in half. Every day I chart milk production in my office. Every day then, watching the chart curve nose dive, it

"It would be fair to say, what with you losing $8,000 to $10,000 a month, one swimming around cheerfully.

The hay was checked. Halbert read each word of the three volumes of animal toxicology on his office shelf. No answer. He stopped giving the herd the purchased feed. The production drop levelled off at 7,000 pounds of milk a day but did not im-

The cows began weeping. That usually means the animals have pink eye. A veterinarian's check showed no, not pink eye. Halbert began checking with the Farm Bureau's feed-selling agency. He began writing and telephoning federal and state farm officials.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture expert drove up to the farm. "He filled his trunk with samples. We were mightily impressed. He said we'd be hearing from

'We never heard from him. Finally, after one of my calls to their Michigan offices, the U.S.D.A. bureaucrat told me not to worry. He said that since I hadn't heard, I had no problem. "But I had my herd collapsing."

He sent animals and feed samples to federal agricultural offices in Iowa and elsewhere for testing. "They were helpful in Iowa, until they told me they had no more money for testing.'

Halbert stared at the calendar picture of the peak. "The bureaucrats. They told me I was one man with a problem and they had no time for one man's problems. You know what one U.S.D.A. man said? "He said that if my mother-in-law drank a glass of something and dropped dead, well, it's my mother-in-law and he said I didn't like her anyway.' Halbert paused. He spread his palms on the desk

"I cannot think of anything the U.S.D.A. did right. And the Michigan Department of Agriculture? Well, I had sent them samples and they fed it to mice and the mice died right there in their own department and they said, well, it may not be good for mice and they did nothing more. Nothing.

The Farm Bureau Services, the feed supplier, said nothing helpful to Halbert about its own tests. Down on the farm the cattle were erupting in sores. Milk herds reproduce themselves, but Halbert's cows failed. The usually washtubsized udders of pregnant cows did not appear. Calves died before birth. Cows began "looking like scarecrows."

'By March 1974 I was desperate." With Its of tests he paid for in p laboratories, Halbert decided to bypass regional federal and state agencies. He called the U.S. Department of Agriculture's laboratory in Beltsville, Md.

He did not reach the scientist he called for, a man suggested by a friend. But he talked to George F. Fries.

"Mr. Fries is no bureaucrat," said Halbert. "He is a scientist. He did what the bureaucrats did not do. He went to

On April 26, 1974 - Halbert's personal D-Day - he talked with Fries. The scientist said Halbert's woe appeared to be the "Fries said the feed contained a poison. He said it seemed to be a fire retardant. In fact, he said, it appeared to be a fire retardant manufactured in Michigan by the Michigan Chemical Co. "I said, 'Oh, oh."

Halbert said he knew Michigan Chemical supplied an ingredient for the Farm Bureau Service's feed. "And, somehow, for most a year, the Farm Bureau Service's feed had been mixed with not the proper ingredient, but with Michigan Chemical's fire retardant.

'My God, I was relieved. I still had my problems. But now I had the answer. I jumped and jumped and jumped, right there by the phone. Lord, I jumped for joy. I'd lost more than $100,000, but a weight had been lifted."

Halbert telephoned the Farm Bureau. Word spread. Something of a panic picnic struck Michigan. Canada barred Michigan beef for almost a year. Lines formed outside shops offering non-Michigan beef. Farmers dumped PBB-struck animals on the State House lawn in Lansing. PBB became an issue in Congressional

The press, the politicians and Michigan health authorities began citing Halbert as the man who triumphed. But Halbert was not laughing.

Like hundreds of other farmers he was sending his herd for slaughter to Kalkaska, the northern Michigan town where the state bulldozed graves for its PBB

Halbert ran a hand through his red hair. "It's funny about pets. You don't pick for a pet the animal that is the prettiest. It's the animal with physical characteristics. Flopsy had big ears and the girls loved that cow. And Scar Face, the calf with the scars on its face."

Stephanie had spoken to Halbert on behalf of the three sisters: "Daddy, please don't send Flopsy up north."

"The kids planned to hide Flopsy in the woods. But I had to tell them that Flopsy had a problem and would be going north. With Scar Face and all the rest.

"The girls weren't here when Flopsy went. The kids were over at Dad's. But I was here. And I guess I probably cried for them.'

Next came "the second most memorable phone call." On Oct. 28, 1974, he was expecting to hear from his lawyers. Like other farmers, they asked payment from Farm Bureau Services and Michigan

"That day my phone like went out of order. So I walked down to the road, and, on a public phone, called. My attorney said a deal had been reached. We'd got virtually all the money we asked for,' Halbert grinned.

"It was great news. I rushed out of the phone booth to tell the good news. There was no one there.

It was not the end of Halbert's PBB story. The new herd he bought raised milk production. But the animals have PBB in varying amounts.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - For a labor mediator, Wayne Yorvitz takes what sounds like a cusual attitude toward

He doesn't necessarily believe in strikes, but he believes in the strike weapon as indispensable He believes the damage strikes cause is usually overstated.

And he believes no one can settle differences better than those who have them - and those who must live with the settlement.

Horvitz, 57, is director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Last spring, when he was trying to decide whether to accept the post, a senior mediator urged him to. After all, he said, outside of coal, it's going to be a light

Horvitz consented - and was hit by iron ore and aerospace strikes and the longest longshoremen's and coal strikes in history.

Now he jokes that when his colleague spoke of a light year he must have been thinking of the kind astronomers talk

But he knew what he was getting into. Son of a pioneer arbitrator, he has spent most of his life in industrial relations. Some of the mediators who work under him were guests in his father's house when he was young.

He has been an arbitrator, an executive with the Matson shipping line, an Arizona State University professor of industrial relations and chairman of a joint labormanagement committee for the supermarket industry.

In that role he tried to work out, away from the pressure of negotiations, some of the industry's problems such as local butchers' resentment over "boxed precut meat," carcasses carved up in the slaughterhouses.

He also negotiated an agreement with fiery dock union leader Harry Bridges which sintroduced automation to the docks in exchange for pension protection for longshoremen.

He likes that sort of "problem solving" to come out of negotiations - removal of problems containing the seeds of future disputes. He mourns the failure of the 110-day coal strike to make much of a dent in long-term problems. Mediating can be a stomach-grinding process. Horvitz finds release by coaxing jazz from a piano. He also can forget his troubles on a tennis court. During the coal strike, he had time for neither tennis nor music.

Horvitz doesn't like strikes, but he argues no workable alternative has been

"I believe in letting this voluntary system work," he says. "I view the collective bargaining system as working best when we (mediators) work least."

He says of the strike weapon what Winston Churchill said of democracy as a form of government - it is the worst, except for all other known forms. And he scoffs at most claims that the economy cannot tolerate the effect of a strike (except, sometimes, for strikes by public servants such as hospital staffs). Most claims of economic damage to the public prove illusory, he says. He notes that eight weeks into the coal strike, people were saying the national interest could not tolerate the strike. Yet no one said anything the previous year when little-publicized coal wildcat strikes had lasted 10 weeks. Horvitz says mediators don't run to a single personality type.

Some are calm, philosphical, above-itall; others are heavy-handed and grind bargainers down or push them around to get a settlement. "I tend not to be that way," he says. "I"ve never seen the value of going 72 hours without a break and getting everybody so damn tired they have to live with a lousy contract for the next three

the issues. The work "takes shoe leather, a lot of time on the telephone, a lot of

Above all, he must listen well, Horvitz says: "You can hear a lot by listening." In a speech to the 500 mediators in his agency. Horvitz warned that the day of the nickel settlement was over, when "the unions demanded six cents and the company offered four so the mediator could come in and get a warned that the day of the nickel settlement was over, when "the unions demanded six cents and the company offered four - and to

at a rate of over 10 percent.

In prosperous times, employers tend to be generous: they don't want the gravy train derailed by a strike.

But in these times of high inflation and slow growth, employers are less open handed. They look on labor as one their few controllable costs.

"Management certainly has a concept these days of it's their turn to get a little bit back," Horvitz says. "That was very much part of the coal strike."

National Obsession Saves Listless Day

RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) - Lists and records seem to be a national obsession these days when almost everyone you meet is fiddling with a pocket calculator or computing the sands of time on a digital wristwatch.

But then I met Gladys Zonk the other day coming out of Elizabeth Arden's on Fifth Avenue. I hadn't seen her since she held up the rear end of the school bus one day while the driver put on snow tries and the change was amazing. She confessed to having had a face lift. non-existent services, such as a business directory that was never published, are costing businesses about $25 million a year, the Postal Service said Tuesday.

Labor unions and other non-profit organizations also are victimized, witnesses told a Governmental Affairs subcommittee considering legislation that the Postal Service says would help it clear up the problem.

Sen. John H. Glenn, D-Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee, is the sponsor of one of the pieces of legislation. He said the Postal Service estimates that phony billing schemes cost businesses $25 million a year.

Many businesses do not check out the billings; especially if the amount is small, said Kenneth Fletcher, chief postal

'Prince, Pauper' Theme Lost In Special With Ringo Starr

NEW YORK (UPI) - In Mark Twain's day they horse-whipped offending newspaper editors - the mind boggles at what Twain would have done to the scriptwriter responsible for the latest assault on his "The Prince and the Pauper.

To say that "Ringo" is loosely based on the Twain story is like saying that the Beatles were loosely based on the London Philharmonic, but that's what NBC claims for the show that goes on tonight at 8 p.m. CST.

Ringo Starr (the Beatles' drummer for those too young to remember or too old to care) plays himself, and also plays the role of his identical lookalike, Ognir Rrats, a "nerd" who sells maps of the stars' homes in Hollywood.

Ringo, bored with a life of superstardom, switches places with Ognir.

If Ringo - and Ford - offer a certain nostalgia, NBC's limited series "Operation Runaway" gives a clue to what the audience may expect in the future.

Motion Denied Hughes Aides

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - U.S. District Judge Roger Foley ruled Monday that Dr. Norman Crane and John Holmes, longtime employees of the late Howard Hughes, are not entitled to see the specifics of the drug-related charges against them.

Crane, 72, was Hughes' personal physician. Holmes, 62, was a personal aide to the industrialist for almost 20 years. Both men were indicted by a federal

by Whipple and Borth Directors Get More Pay In Movies Than On TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The caste system separating television directors from feature movie directors is slowly but inevitably disappearing as long-form TV films provide bigger budgets and extended shooting schedules.

Some recent TV movie budgets have surpassed all but the biggest theatrical features and the number of shooting days has increased proportionately.

All the same, in prestige and pay the movie director is a prince while his television counterpart, anything but a pauper, falls considerably shy monetarily and in public esteem.

The only means for TV directors to gain parity is to jump to movies. And the best way to do that is with such super TV projects as "Holocaust" and "Wheels." Both "Holocaust," from Gerald Green's novel, and "Wheels," Arthur Hailey's best-seller, are break-through projects for young and able video directors challenging the fat cats of the big screen.

The nine-hour, $6 million "Holocaust" was the work of Marvin Chomsky who spent five months producing his epic in Germany and Austria.

"Wheels" - airing in five episodes beginning May 7 - is the 10-hour, $8 million triumph of Jerry London, a bright and articulate former film editor who ranks among the most highly regarded directors in television.

London, who has long aspired to direct feature films, is confident that movie directing is a snap compared with the work and technical demands of "Wheels."

"There are 150 speaking roles in Wheels," he said. "The stars are Rock Hudson, Lee Remick and Tony Franciosa, and with a budget of $8 million and a 500-page script, you aren't going to find

"On most TV movies the director tries to shoot as many pages of the script a day as he can, averaging about 10 pages a day. Some movie directors get through only three or four pages. I averaged seven pages a day on 'Wheels.

"I feel as if I directed the equivalent of three $3 million features.

'Wheels' is the biggest television assignment ever given to one director at Universal. 'Roots' had four directors and both 'Rich Man, Poor Man' and 'Captains and the Kings' had two directors each.

"This time the studio wanted one director because we had to shoot out of continuity on locations. It would have been almost impossible to have two or more directors trying to intercut their individual scenes "The day I completed 'Wheels' I got 10 offers for other television movies. And while it's always been my ambition to direct features. I'd much prefer to make a major project like 'Wheels' for TV than a low budget film for theaters. "The movie-TV difference lies in the amount of time allotted for movies and the big budgets. Established movie directors get a percentage of their films' boxoffice profits which is, of course, impossible for television projects.'

London, whose name is well known in Hollywood production circles, learned his trade meticulously as a film editor, directing commercials, documentaries, half-hour situation comedies, hour dra-

He polished his craft in a variety of dramatic forms, westerns, science-fiction, cops and robbers and medical epics.

I've been under the gun for 10 years, he said, grinning. "I've had to deal with all possible situations. I figure I've done the equivalent of 50 features. Movie directors today don't turn out that much product in their entire careers.

'It's true the prime consideration in hiring a TV director is the demand to 'bring it in on time and on budget.' But the key separating one director from another is how well you can bring a project in within the time and budget span.

"If I get more production values on the screen than the next guy it's due to planning. My editing background helps because I don't shoot anything I don't need. plan so thoroughly I never miss a shot I "On 'Wheels' I requested and got rehearsals with the actors, three days of readings with the principals before I started to shoot - a real TV luxury. "I still want to do a big feature. There's 50 percent more creativity involved without the time pressure. That's the real luxury of directing."

London brought "Wheels" in on budget and one day under schedule.

Now he's working on "Evening in Byzantium." It's not a theatrical feature, but London is not concerned. It's just a matter of time.
