Humphrey's last political act sparks controversy

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — In the afternoon of Jan. 9 — the last Monday of his life — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, in pajamas and robe, was sitting in the sunny den of his Waverly, Minn., home when the telephone rang. President Carter was on the line.
As Humphrey's cancer had weakened him in the five months since his final operation, Carter had been especially solicitous of the much-loved senior Democrat.
Now Carter telephoned to talk about his just-completed overseas trip, the most important part of which was a meeting with President Anwar Sadat in Aswan.

In discussing the Middle East, Carter expressed frustration. Sadat had rejected an Israeli plan for keeping Jewish settlements in the Sinai, yet the government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin was strengthening and expanding these settlements, even while peace talks were under way. This was certain to cause trouble.
Humphrey was also deeply concerned that the peace initiative set in motion by Sadat not slip away without results. According to David Gartner, his administrative assistant who was sitting with him at the time, Humphrey asked Carter, "Is there anything I can do to help?"

The President replied that if Humphrey wished to take a hand, he might communicate his views to Begin. "I'll do it," was the reply — and he made it clear that he would do it with his own ideas and in his own way.
This was the beginning of the last of a lifetime of public business for Hubert Humphrey — a personal plea to Israel, which he long had supported, for tenacity and restraint in the search for peace.

His letter to Begin, completed and dispatched before he died, lived on in controversy after his death. Charges have arisen and were debated in Washington again in the past few weeks that the dying senator was "pressured" into a statement that did not convey his views by an administration at odds with Israel.
Interviews with Humphrey aides and friends produced consistent denials that the president or other officials exerted pressure to obtain the letter.

"It was Humphrey's idea to do it, and he did it himself. Any implication that it was initiated by the Carter administration is just not accurate," Gartner said.
"This was Hubert Humphrey's letter, and he was very careful about its phraseology," said Richard McCall, the legislative aide who assisted in the drafting.
Muriel Humphrey, who said she was "fully aware of the events" concerning her husband's final letter, said that "I find it very disturbing that efforts are being made by some to infer that the letter was drafted by others, did not fully represent his views or that he was not alert at the time. These charges simply are not true and do Hubert a great disservice."

Immediately after his conversation with Carter, Humphrey telephoned McCall, who was in Washington, and instructed him to draft a letter. Humphrey gave an outline of his view that if there was going to be a Mideast settlement, Israel as well as the Arab states would have to show some "give."
He explained, according to Gartner, (Continued on Page 8A)

Commissioners pick Hansen county judge

By LINDA HILL
Democratic candidate Blake Hansen, 28, this morning became Midland County judge, filling the vacancy left by now-District Judge Barbara Culver.
The appointment is effective until Jan. 1, 1979.
Hansen's appointment came during a public hearing before county commissioners this morning after two motions to appoint others to the post died for lack of a second.
For the first half hour of the hour-and-a-quarter meeting, the commissioners debated whether to delay the hearing because of the absence of Republican candidate William B. Ahders. Ahders is in Helena, Mont., to attend his father-in-law's funeral. He sent a resume to the commissioners.
Win Brown, the only Republican on the Commissioners Court, reiterated his position that the commissioners should not use the public hearing method to select an interim judge. But he said he saw no reason not to go ahead.
The purpose of the meeting this morning, Brown said, was to "give a whitewash to the appointment and make the commissioners look good."
Commissioner Durward Wright, who presided at the meeting, said he thought the best course would be to delay until both declared candidates for the job could appear in person.
A motion by Jack Leonard to postpone the hearing died for lack of a second.
Republican official Bob Monaghan attacked the method of selection and accused the commissioners of trying "to embarrass Judge Ahders."
"What other information do you need to get in order to make a decision you've already made?" Monaghan asked the commissioners.
Wright defended the process, saying it was designed to be fair to all candidates.
Postponement also was requested by Hansen "in all fairness to Judge Ahders." After the meeting, Hansen said he thought the proceeding was fair because the commissioners primarily considered the resumes of the two candidates.

After a half-hour of consideration and a five-minute recess, Wright said, "We seem to be getting nowhere fast." He said the group would "do our best to hold a public hearing" since no motion to postpone could be considered.
Brown asked Hansen whether he had been told before he filed for the post of county judge that he would be recommended for an interim appointment, should one be necessary.
"There was no promise ever made," Hansen replied. "I was told I would be considered as would every other candidate."
Wright said he had decided to set aside his prepared questions because Ahders was not present, but asked Hansen several questions about his familiarity with county government and his philosophy of county government.
"You will be doing less and less bench work and more and more paper work," Wright told Hansen.
Several persons in the audience requested that the commissioners appoint someone other than the two declared candidates. Wright pointed out that the hearing had received a good deal of publicity and that no one had been excluded from consideration.

Brown first asked attorney Ron Teffeller if he would be interested in the job.
"I should point out that I am actively working as campaign manager and treasurer for Blake Hansen," Teffeller replied. Brown said he knew that and repeated the question.
Teffeller said he was not interested because he saw "some conflict" of interests.
Brown then asked Henry Bettis, who had urged the commissioners to appoint a third party, if he was an attorney.
When Bettis answered yes, Brown said, "Would you consider the job?" Bettis said he wasn't interested, either.
When J. H. "Timber" Floyd asked if the commissioners had no one else to consider other than the two declared candidates, Brown said, "Mr. Floyd, I did not want to exclude you. Would you consider being the county judge?"
Floyd said he would consider it "if it would help the county."
Brown at that point moved to appoint Floyd, but, in spite of support from two persons in the audience, the motion died for lack of a second.
At the end of the public hearing, Brown moved to appoint Ahders to the job. That motion, too, died for lack of a second.
Commissioner Charlie Welch then moved to appoint Hansen, saying "the people who have aspired for offices in county government have traditionally been young people."
The motion passed, with Welch and Leonard, who seconded the motion, voting for and Brown abstaining.
"Blake, welcome to the court. You can expect full cooperation from me," Brown said after the vote.

False statement charges dropped

As part of a plea bargain arrangement, charges of making a false statement before a grand jury are to be dropped against Andrew Allen, earlier convicted in San Antonio of killing golden eagles.
In federal court in Midland Monday, South Texas Helicopter Inc. pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor charges of taking and killing golden eagles. Alvin Dale Barnes, vice president and manager of the company, pleaded guilty to one count of aiding and abetting the corporation in taking the eagles.

The U.S. clerk's office in Midland said the charge against Allen will be dropped when South Texas Helicopter and Barnes are sentenced in San Antonio in April by U.S. District Judge John H. Wood.
The corporation faces a maximum sentence of a $5,000 fine on each count. Barnes faces a maximum sentence of one year imprisonment or a $5,000 fine.
Barnes was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

The charges grew from an investigation that resulted in the conviction last year of three men for conspiring to hunt the golden eagles from a helicopter over Real County.
Federal prosecutors said in court Monday they were prepared to show that South Texas Helicopter, acting through its pilot, had illegally hunted and killed eagles Dec. 10 and 11, 1975. They said Barnes, as an officer of the company, had given orders to the pilot.

The charge against Allen resulted from his testimony before a federal grand jury in San Antonio last year.
He was one of three men convicted in December of conspiring to hunt golden eagles. He also was convicted of illegally hunting and killing the eagles from the air. Wood sentenced him to a year's probation and fined him $2,000 for those convictions.
Ranchers claim the eagles prey on their newborn lambs.

Alpine harbors nature lovers

ALPINE — Are there no causes left in a world fraught with cynicism and civilization, steel and concrete, progress and pollution?
"Darn tootin'!"
And down here in Alpine, at the foothills of the mountainous Big Bend Country, are some dreamers, some idealists, whose cause is that of saving nature.
Their premise is simple: The wonders in nature are to be found, explored, studied and understood.
And it is those wonders that man has exploited. Man has become the supreme conqueror and, at the same time, the ultimate destroyer.
Here, in deep southwestern Texas, are a rare species of men and women who respect wildlife and who understand it. They perceive the marvels in nature.
They're intellectuals who shed the robe, tassel and mortarboard. They pack up their hiking gear. And they set off for the wilds called Chihuahuan

Desert.
This desert takes in much of Mexico — between the two coastal mountain ranges — and encompasses much of West Texas and parts of New Mexico and Arizona.
The expanse is largely unexplored and is passively waiting for exploitation... intelligent and caring (for nature's sake) exploitation.
The official medium of this exhaustive study is the Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute.
Some, in their fervor to promote the institute and its cause, have supposed that CDRI will evolve into something similar to the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, or "outdoor zoo," Tucson.

But that is not CDRI's real purpose. Predictably, something akin to that well-established and well-endowed Arizona museum will come to pass around here.
Just recently, the institute acquired a 240-acre tract on a rocky and rugged ranch between Alpine and Fort Davis. And that land is to be converted into a mini-Chihuahuan Desert within sight of the Davis Mountains. The acreage may be doubled.
True, such a showplace, replete with a visitor center, nature trails and research laboratories, may become popular and may gain public support for CDRI's original purpose — to explore and research the desert.
Dr. Dwight Deal, a geologist and CDRI's director of education, has (Continued on Page 2A)

Juan Galaviz grand jury begins deliberations

BIG SPRING — A Howard County grand jury probing into the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old Mexican-American youth by a police sergeant last Dec. 8 began its deliberations today.
The jurors are expected to issue a report later this week.
Big Spring police Sgt. Leroy Spires fatally wounded Juan Galaviz following a high-speed chase here on the night of Dec. 8, a Thursday.

Police were in pursuit of a man who had taken the car of Martha Poss, wife of Midland College Athletic Director Delnor Poss, on a parking lot at Howard College about 10 p.m.
The man apparently had tried to abduct Poss' wife following a basketball game between Midland College and Howard College.
The assailant reportedly pulled a knife on the woman and then fled in her car after she cried out for assistance.
Mrs. Poss was cut slightly on the hand in the incident.
Police pursued the car, which traveled up to 100 mph, and ultimately stopped it with a road block.
According to police reports, Sgt. Leroy Spires then ran up to side of the car and told the driver not to move.

Spires fired the fatal shot after Galaviz reached into his pocket, police said.
Later, law enforcement officials said a knife was found in Galaviz' pocket.
Recently, Spires resigned from the police force. He said he had been "unduly harassed" following the Dec. 8 incident.
Prior to that, the Galaviz family in late January filed a $2 million wrongful death suit against Spires and the city of Big Spring. The petition claimed the city was negligent in the training of its police officers and in failing to investigate previous acts of alleged misconduct by Spires and his fellow officers.
The sergeant's resignation was accepted "with regret" by Big Spring Police Chief Stanley Bogard. He said Spires was not pressured into leaving the police force.

Lamesa firemen seek Carter to stop in Venezuela same pay as police

LAMESA — A spokesman for Lamesa's paid firefighters said Monday he is "hopeful" the City Council will raise firefighters' salaries to equal those of city police.

The council is to take up the proposal at its regular meeting next Monday.

The spokesman for the paid firefighters was Cecil Levacy.

The paid firefighters here, 11 in number, have received strong support in their bid for equal pay with police from the 22 volunteer firefighters.

Almost all the volunteers showed up at the last city council meeting to lend support to the cause of the professionals.

A spokesman for the volunteers, J. D. McAmis, told Mayor Lloyd Cline and councilmen then that it might not be possible to retain an outstanding fire department if wages are not raised.

He lauded the paid firefighters for their "dedication to their work, their professionalism, and their spirit of cooperation."

"If we didn't get along with them and if they were not outstanding firefighters, we volunteers would not be here tonight," he said.

McAmis reminded the mayor and councilmen of the low insurance rates the city enjoys, which he said were now 15 percent below regular rates. He said he thinks the reduction rate can be brought to 25 percent by 1980.

"We were very pleased with what he said, and it had to be helpful to us," Levacy said Monday.

Levacy said police and fire salaries had been equal until sometime in the late 1950s when police wages went ahead.

At the last council meeting, the mayor and council deferred the pay raise to give the matter more study.

Levacy said Monday that he did not feel that this delay represented opposition to the raise.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, embarking on the first of at least three overseas trips planned this year, today began a week-long trip to Latin America and Africa by flying to Venezuela.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, minding the store in Carter's absence, headed a delegation of presidential advisers who said farewell at an early-morning White House departure ceremony that was televised nationally.

Carter said his journey "reflects our own nation's ability to deal in a constructive way" with a changing and diverse world.

He said South America and Africa share a common heritage with the United States in overcoming colonialism and he noted that many Americans trace their roots to the two continents.

He said he hopes to work for economic justice, human rights and international peace during his trip.

Carter said that by the end of the century, 80 percent of the world's population will live in Africa, Asia and Latin America. "In this world of change we will maintain our greatness only if we are able to change" while maintaining our principles, he declared.

Accompanying the president on the 14,575-mile trek to Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria and Liberia were wife Rosalynn and Secretary of State and Mrs. Cyrus R. Vance. Ten-year-old Amy Carter also is in the travel party.

On the first stop in Caracas, Venezuela, Carter will consult with President Carlos Andres Perez on energy, human rights, nuclear non-proliferation, economic development and Latin American political issues.

Carter, who made an after-Christmas trip to Europe, Asia and the Near East, has long been scheduled to attend a mid-July economic summit in Bonn, West Germany, that will bring him together with leaders of Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Canada.

In Venezuela, Carter's host has a reputation as a staunch friend of the United States. "In the area of human rights and (nuclear) non-proliferation, Venezuela has often been in the front of our policies and has given us wise and useful counsel on the next steps that we can take," an administration official said, predicting those issues would be central in the talks between Carter and Perez.

Venezuela sends the United States a million barrels of crude and refined oil each day, placing it behind Saudi Arabia and Nigeria as the major American supplier. During the 1973-74 oil embargo, Venezuela increased its exports to the United States.

Joint energy cooperation and the U.S. desire to see oil prices held down are likely topics, U.S. officials said.

Officials also reported that three accords will be signed during Carter's visit to Caracas. One will deal with maritime boundaries and another will pledge joint efforts to curb illegal traffic in narcotics.

Community funds ceiling hiked

By LINDA HILL

Midland County commissioners got good news and bad news Monday about 1979 federal Community Development funds.

The good news is that they can apply for up to $500,000, instead of the less than $25,000 previous formulas allowed the county. But the bad news is they must compete for the first time with every other area of Texas not included in the "entitlement city" Community Development program.

The first of two public hearings on needs for which commissioners might apply for the funding was held at Monday's meeting, but the only person to appear was Jerry Tschawner of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

The second public hearing will be held at the April 10 commissioners meeting.

Tschawner answered questions from the commissioners about how the money could be used.

Asked if the county could apply for funds to be used to pave roads within the city limits, Tschawner said it "sounds kind of irregular" since Midland is an "entitlement city" and was turned down because of failure to provide rental subsidy.

He reminded the commissioners that they are obligated "somewhere down the road" to do something about housing themselves.

The commissioners discussed ways to survey need and availability of rental units which would qualify for federal subsidy.

They agreed the biggest problem in finding such houses will be that the ones which would qualify currently are bringing in more rent than the program allows.

Also Monday, the commissioners voted to reduce the speed limit on County Road 1216, which is less than one-fourth mile long, to 25 mph.

Action was postponed on a proposal to close the alley into which county roads 1212, 1213, 1214, 1215 and 1216 enter, and a public hearing was called for the next meeting on reducing the speed limit on County Road 118 West.

The commissioners also delayed approval of a plat for the North Ranch Manor Subdivision. Commissioner Durward Wright asked County Surveyor Max Schumann to find out how right-of-way, which will be needed for the North Loop around Midland, can be obtained.

Also at Monday's meeting, the Commissioners Court approved spending $4,300 to keep the Midland County Elderly Nutrition Program going another year.

Pat Wallis, director of the program, told the commissioners participants in the program have voted to contribute donations for meals received to help defray the cost.

The money approved Monday represents the local share in the program, which receives 90 percent of the total cost from the federal government.

Voters to decide interest rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Democrats cleared up one point Monday but have one more hurdle to clear Thursday before they can start printing the May 6 primary ballots.

District Judge Herman Jones refused Monday to issue a court order stopping the State Democratic Executive Committee from printing a nonbinding referendum question on the primary ballot that would ask voters if they approve increasing the interest rates on loans under $5,000.

Whether the Democrats will be able to take a straw poll on horse race betting comes before another district court judge on Thursday.

"The court should approach any action of a political party with utmost caution," Jones said after a two-hour hearing. "It seems to me that the State Democratic Executive Committee has determined it wants to submit this matter to the voters and I do not find any basis for the court to inject itself."

Both referendum questions were placed on the May 6 Democratic primary ballot at a meeting of the SDEC in Waco on March 13.

The horse race betting question also will appear on the Republican primary ballot. There have been no legal questions raised on the GOP ballot.

Carrin Patman, wife of Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, an opponent of higher interest rates, said she proposed the referendum in the SDEC's legal affairs subcommittee on March 13. It was adopted later by the full committee without dissent.

Mrs. Patman contends that interest rate increases are sought mostly by out-of-state small loan companies who do not want Texas voters to have a say in the decision.

Robert Mansker, SDEC member from Greenville, said he opposed the referendum in the subcommittee because it was "lopsided" and "unfairly presented."

Lloyd Hawkins, Austin, registered lobbyist for Beneficial Finance Co., said it would be "a waste of time" to ask the 1979 Legislature for an interest rate increase if voters approved the referendum.

"It will hurt us immediately if it is even put on the ballot," he said.

Soviets impressed

Not long ago a group of foreign newsmen called on the head Buddhist lama in the Soviet Union at his monastery in Siberia. The lama made sure the visitors knew that he was upset about the possibility America might decide to manufacture a "neutron bomb."

The Soviet Union seems to be wired from one end to the other for its propaganda campaign against a new tactical nuclear weapon that may be deployed for the defense of Western Europe. The head of the Soviet publishing industry opened a British book fair recently by blasting "certain American politicians" who support the neutron weapon.

Thirty-one Soviet scientists have signed a letter to President Carter urging him to abandon this "serious threat to the whole of mankind." The Soviet delegation at the Geneva disarmament conference has proposed a treaty which would ban the weapon as "inhumane and barbarous."

This campaign has been picking up intensity ever since Mr. Carter, obviously hoping to avoid responsibility for ordering production of a new kind of nuclear weapon, invited leaders of Western Europe to decide whether they wanted it as part of their tactical defenses under the North Atlantic Treaty. Not unexpectedly, the Europeans have been reluctant to say yes. Considering their vulnerability to attack from the East, they also have been reluctant to say no.

If Mr. Carter and other Western statesmen are troubled by the charges that deployment of the neutron weapon would menace mankind, we urge them to consider the source. These complaints are coming from a nation which is arming itself to the teeth, both with conventional weapons and with strategic missiles carrying the most inhumane and barbarous weapons known to man — hydrogen warheads.

If the subject were not so grim, it would be laughable that the Kremlin is raising such a furor over a weapon of limited battlefield application. The neutron bomb, in spite of its ominous name, is simply a tactical nuclear warhead designed to limit blast and fire damage to a relatively small area while its radiation would kill troops in a larger area. It is no more or no less humane than any weapon designed to kill people, especially nuclear weapons.

It was great that Adrian Fischer, the U.S. ambassador to the Geneva talks, promptly challenged the Soviet delegate to justify the "inhumanity and barbarity" of the SS-20 missiles which the Soviet Union is deploying to threaten the cities and countryside of Western Europe with a hail of nuclear warheads, some of which have a destructive power 20,000 times greater than that of the proposed neutron bomb.

The Russians are rejecting a suggestion that the U.S. decision on the neutron weapon be linked with an agreement on their part to abandon one of their own new weapons systems. That's not surprising either since they know the so-called bomb is actually an artillery shell of no comparison with the missiles they are adding to their arsenal.

For the West, the issue is whether the deployment of this new battlefield weapon would help redress the imbalance between NATO forces and those of the Warsaw Pact.

If military considerations justify its deployment, it should be deployed.

Mr. Carter and his counterparts in Western Europe want to be associated with arms control and the cause of peace rather than the advent of a new "enhanced radiation" weapon.

But a balance of power between NATO and the East has kept the peace on that continent for a generation.

It will keep the peace for another, so long as the Soviet Union sees the inevitability of disaster for its Warsaw Pact armies should they launch an attack on the West.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

My, how Mr. Carter has changed

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The metamorphosis of Jimmy Carter, as chronicled in the confidential minutes of his Cabinet meetings, has sometimes been a painful process.

He came to the White House fresh from the peanut fields, a born-again Baptist bringing salvation to the Washington politicians. He disdained the political roistering and log-rolling so dear to their hearts; he looked on their foibles and follies with a shepherding eye.

The incoming president was more inclined to consult the Holy Spirit than the powers on Capitol Hill. He regarded party patronage and pork-barrel projects with ill-concealed distaste.

Carter campaigned to restore the moral authority of the government and to transform the federal monster into a force for public good through reduced spending and better management. Merit rather than politics was to be his watchword.

But in the Oval Office, the rookie president soon encountered the realities of Washington power and politics. His political rebirth has been as complete, if less dramatic, than his spiritual conversion.

Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, for example, taught him that legislation could be expedited through the House by awarding political jobs to the Speaker's friends. Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., the baronial Senate Judiciary chairman, taught him that U.S. attorneys and district judges will have trouble clearing through the Judiciary Committee if they are appointed for merit, with no regard for politics.

The new president also discovered the importance of flood control construction throughout the country. However marginal the benefits may be to the landscape, it is essential to political development.

As late as Jan. 9 of this year, Carter was determined to close down or consolidate a number of outmoded military bases across the country. He told his Cabinet bravely that he "will back (Defense Secretary) Harold Brown fully on this" and wants "the Cabinet to cooperate wholeheartedly."

But in February, he sought the votes of a number of senators with outmoded military bases in their states. Two who heeded his appeal to vote for the Panama Canal treaties were the senators from Maine, Edmund Muskie and William Hathaway.

By an interesting coincidence, Carter made a February trip to Maine, which had a base on the expendable list, Loring Air Force Base in Limestone, Me., having been marked for mothballs.

But the same Carter, who had promised in January to back Brown fully, told a Maine audience in February that he had asked Brown to "reassess" the decision to close Loring. "There is a much better chance now to keep Loring Air Force Base open," he declared solemnly, "because of the interest of your senators, your governor and others."

The change of heart over Loring is not unique. It looks as if other senators, who have cooperated with Carter, will keep their outmoded bases. A top Pentagon official put it bluntly. "The whole idea of closing military bases," he told us, "has gone to hell in a handbasket."

No longer does Jimmy Carter

CHARLEY REESE: Israelis have learned the lessons of history

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Vengeance is just another word for justice.

The Israeli reprisal raid into Lebanon to pay back the PLO terrorists for their murderous raid into Israel has already set off the clatter of clucking tongues.

Let them cluck. Hooray for the Israelis. What a magnificent little country to put the world's goon squads on notice that they cannot kill innocent people with impunity.

Outgunned, outmanned, surrounded by 137 million Arabs and all the arms and influence their petrobillions can buy, little Israel with 3.5 million people remains defiant.

How can any American fail to admire such a courageous group of people? I only wish our own leaders had half their brains and one quarter of their courage.

Contrast their response with our response to the North Korean capture of the Pueblo and the senseless murder of two unarmed American soldiers. We send notes. The Israelis send soldiers.

But to put the situation in perspective, in anticipation of an outbreak of leftist and pro-Arab indignation, the Israelis are fighting against overwhelming odds for survival, not for borders, but for the survival of three and a half million Jews.

Jews have been the world's doormat and punching bag for nearly 2,000 years. Nobody ever looked out for them. Even when the Nazi's set out systematically to wipe them out, nobody came to their rescue.

I think it will help you to understand their attitude if we clear away some misconceptions. Many Americans are under the impression that Israel is sort of an American creation and couldn't exist without us. That is not true.

The U.S. State Department, which is a sub-office of the multi-national corporations, has been hostile and negative toward Israel since 1948.

You may be surprised to learn that from 1948, when Israel began its modern existence, until 1962, the U.S. not only did not give them any military aid, it refused to allow them to buy U.S. arms. From 1962 to 1973, the U.S. agreed to sell them arms, but only after the Yom Kippur War did we make them a military grant despite the fact that during the same period we have literally showered the world with weaponry.

In fact, during the fiscal years from 1946 to 1975, the U.S. government gave the nations of the Arab League $6.4 billion in military and economic aid.

Furthermore, in 1957, in 1967, and in 1973, it was our government which pressured Israel into stopping short of destroying the Arab armies.

Today, instead of President Carter pressuring the Arabs to come to terms as he ought to be doing, he is pressuring Israel to make concessions. Israel finds itself in the unique position of being the only nation in the world being asked to let the losers of four wars dictate the peace terms.

What support Israel has had in this country has always been from the American people and the Congress, not from the administrations, which are always dominated by Wall Street and the multi-national corporations.

As for Carter's buddy, Anwar Sadat, he is nothing more than a con man. What concession did he make? He agreed to talk. For that, he is asking total surrender of Israel. Sadat, by the way, spent World War II in a British prison for his role in a Nazi espionage ring. If he gets the Nobel Peace Prize, which has become nothing more than a symbol of Western insanity, he will be the first Nazi collaborator to be so honored.

The generation that is leading Israel are survivors of the Nazi death camps and ghettos. To them and to millions of other Jews, Israel, aside from its religious significance, is seen as a refuge, a place where Jews might go to be free of persecution.

Their motto is, "Never Again," meaning that never again will unarmed Jews be slaughtered as they were all over Europe. To not strike back is unthinkable. They, unlike many Americans, have learned the lessons of history.

The way things are going, if a child says in geography class that Cuba is in Africa, the teacher can't really mark him wrong.

The Cuban Air Force's presence in Ethiopia has a direct bearing on the United States. It means they are breathing easier in Florida.

What can Mr. Carter do about the Horn of Africa? Do we dare intervene? Is this the next Vietnam? If so, we'll need asbestos draft cards.

INSIDE REPORT:

'Life' in Chicago without Mayor Richard J. Daley

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

CHICAGO — Two recent exercises by Chicago Democrats, the St. Patrick's Day parade and the primary election four days later, help explain the vague but deepening sense of unease in this city's second year of life without Richard J. Daley.

According to longtime marchers and watchers, this year's parade sadly lacked the verve displayed when Mayor Daley marched in front. The primary election exposed a multitude of petty rivalries within the Democratic organization, many along ethnic lines, in stark contrast to the old Daley machine's solidarity.

To Democrats here, the palpable decline of the party organization is far more alarming than listlessness on St. Patrick's Day. The party's breakdown, they fear, may precede similar deterioration of the entire power structure here. But in the long run, less obvious post-Daley decline in morale poses the greater danger to Chicago's famed vitality.

Unmistakably, Daley is missed — more than friends or foes thought possible when he died late in 1976. "I never thought I'd say this," one anti-Daley reformer told us, "but something very vital is missing." It is that attitude which spawns doubts whether Chicago can remain uniquely dynamic among the lassitude of the nation's decaying big cities.

Although no mere mortal could have duplicated Daley's dominance here, dilution of his authority was accelerated by dividing his two roles: mayor and party chairman. Mayor Michael Bilandic steers clear of party problems; Cook County Democratic chairman George W. Dunne (also president of the county board) keeps arm's length from the mayor's office. "A guy in the organization who wants something done finds out there's nobody to go to who can get it done," a disgruntled ward committeeman complained to us.

Evans

This state of affairs is blamed for proliferation of intraorganization fights for state legislative seats in Tuesday's (March 21) primary (with chairman Dunne even withholding support from an organization candidate in one district). As was widely forecast before Daley's death, ethnic rivalries which he held in check have broken out — particularly Polish vs. Irish.

A classic case: the dispute over party endorsement for a state senate vacancy between rival Polish and Irish candidates backed by two leading Daley lieutenants, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski and Chicago Park District superintendent Ed Kelly. "There is just no way this would have happened under Richard J. — just no way," Kelly told us.

There is also no way that Kelly's open criticism of Dunne as party chairman would have occurred under Richard J. The prospect of Kelly challenging Dunne for the party leadership adds a note of party uncertainty unknown during Daley's long reign.

Actually, Mayor Bilandic's isolation from Democratic politics pleases Chicago's tightly knit captains of business and industry — mostly Republicans who live and vote outside the city in the suburbs. "Bilandic is really easier for us to work with than Daley, less partisan and less political," one prominent State Street merchant told us.

But that begs the question of whether Bilandic provides adequate leadership. The judgment is mixed, but some businessmen believe he has not pushed hard enough for development of the Loop (Chicago's famed downtown business district). And this comes during cautious, whispered worries by politicians and businessmen that the Loop is showing early signs of becoming largely populated by blacks; the warning signal elsewhere for economic decay. Indeed, the Loop's sidewalks are largely filled by blacks after dark.

This process was well underway before Daley died, and there is doubt that even a reincarnated Daley wearing his two hats in the city hall could reverse it. Nevertheless, there are Chicagoans who think he could, and therein lies the danger.

Complaints that difficulty in clearing the past winter's heavy snowfall from Chicago's streets would never have happened under Daley probably have no basis in fact. But the mere thought that the slogan "The City That Works" is outmoded could begin the numbing paralysis of will which afflicts New York City.

"The city wasn't functioning all that well under Daley, but he provided the facade," contends one unreconstructed anti-Daley Democrat. Yet, facade can be essential. Not until New Yorkers lost self-confidence under John V. Lindsay did the city's decline enter the disaster stage. That is why the spiritless St. Patrick's Day parade, even more than the Democratic party's internal troubles, shows why Daley is missed.

Small appliance junkies go camping with machines

By ERMA BOMBECK

For a country that is facing a crisis in energy, we've certainly become small appliance junkies.

I ran across a couple last summer who had an electric coffee maker, blankets that plugged in, can openers, ice makers, mixers, hair dryers, doughnut maker, hamburger fryer, crepe maker, food slicer, knife sharpener, slow cooker, electric toothbrush, electric broom, hot curlers, and an electric Wok.

And they were camping.

A friend of mine bought one of those machines that dices, slices, purees, chops, silvers mixes, and matches and does everything but open mail. She's worried. Her husband is beginning to have feelings for it.

To attend a party given by a small appliance junkie is almost more than the human body can stand. The other night, a hostess mesmerized us with her electric ice machine while her small oven toasted hot hors d'oeuvres, and her rotisserie whirled around little hot dogs. To further astound and amaze us, she threw all the ingredients for our drinks into her magic electric blender. Then she panicked.

"Fred, the electric stirrer that plays 'How Dry I Am', where did you put it?"

"I think it's on the top shelf behind the popcorn popper and the electric ice cream maker."

"You buried our electric stirrer!" she gasped.

When he got it down, she thrusts it into our drinks. Mine immediately frothed over into my hand causing every handshake thereafter to become permanent.

At this point it boggles the mind to predict what is in the future to satisfy the needs of appliance junkies. It's my guess you should look for ELECTRIC DENTAL FLOSS for people who can be putting on their socks and saving time.

AUTOMATIC PAGE TURNER for people who read in bed and their arms get cold when they're outside the covers.

ELECTRIC CAR JACK with an extension cord you won't believe.

AUTOMATIC DEFROSTER FOR GLASSES when you're cooking and steam escapes when you take the lid off the pan.

AN ELECTRIC COOLER TO BLOW YOUR SOUP while you engage in conversation with your dinner partner.

And don't laugh...I'll bet it's only a matter of time before someone has a digital sign over their stove that lights up and tells you how many kilowatts you're using a second.

Sorority chapters here to host benefit dance

The Beta Omega and Beta Eta Chapters of Epsilon Sigma Alpha will host a Western Dance Friday in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

The dance will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight. The proceeds will be given to St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

St. Jude's was chosen as the ESA international project in 1972, and since that time, the ESA members have raised more than $2 million. The hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and completely free of charge to patients admitted by physicians, referrals and whose disease is under study at the institution, which includes most catastrophic diseases.

Concoct a fantastic grilled sandwich

Sandwiches are an American tradition once reserved for lunchtime, but now an important part of the on-the-go breakfasts or suppers. Golden grills are super sandwiches that fill the bill for anytime eating. They're quick to fix, savory and substantial. Hard-cooked eggs, ham and Swiss cheese are the base of the filling. Pickle relish, a dab of mayo and a little onion add the zip. And you can keep the filling on hand in the fridge for spur of the moment spreading on rye bread and grilling.

Why not hard cook a dozen eggs right now, so you can stir up Golden Grills, and still have some on hand for snacking or deviling.

GOLDEN GRILLS

- 6 sandwiches
  - 6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
  - 1/2 cup chopped cooked ham
  - 1/3 cup finely chopped onion or 1 1/2 tablespoons instant minced onion
  - 1/4 cup shredded Swiss cheese
  - 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
  - 2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 12 slices rye bread
  - Butter
- Thoroughly combine all ingredients

Ingredients except bread and butter. Butter 1 side of each bread slice. Place 6 slices on griddle, baking sheet or in skillet buttered side down; spread each with approx. 1/4 cup filling. Top with remaining bread slices buttered side up. Grill on griddle or in skillet until toasted on both sides or bake in preheated 400 degree oven about 5 to 8 minutes or until golden brown. Turn; bake an additional 5 to 8 minutes.

HARD-COOKED EGGS

Cover eggs in pan with enough water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover, bring rapidly just to boiling. Turn off heat; if necessary remove pan from heated unit to prevent further boiling. Let stand covered in hot water 15 minutes for large eggs—adjust time up or down by about approx. 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller. Cool eggs immediately and thoroughly in cold water—shells are easier to remove and it is less likely you will have a dark surface on yolks. To remove shell: Crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell; then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Tower of London her home sweet home

NEW YORK (AP) — What's home life like in the Tower of London? Does all that bloody history cast a pall?

"I've never felt spooky in that house at all," declares Adeline Raeburn, wife of the Tower's governor, "not even when I'm entirely alone there in the dead of winter."

This comes with cheerful matter-of-factness after she has regaled a visitor to her New York hotel room with lively anecdotes about the ghosts which share her home, the 450-year-old Queen's House, inside the Tower complex.

Mrs. Raeburn was on a visit to this country with her husband, Maj. Gen. Digby Raeburn, in connection with the Tower's 900th birthday this year — the central White Tower was built for William the Conqueror in 1078.

For all the matter-of-factness, keeping house in Britain's most famous tourist attraction and most notorious monument is clearly something out of the ordinary. The Queen's House, the governor's official residence, is considered London's finest example of Tudor architecture.

"It was built by Henry VIII for Anne Boleyn, but by the time it was finished they had moved to Hampton Court," explains Mrs. Raeburn. "The only time Anne used the house was as a prisoner, for 18 days before she was beheaded" — on the scaffold site a few steps away from Mrs. Raeburn's front door.

The Gray Lady, her home's best-known ghost, hasn't been seen for about four years, says Mrs. Raeburn. "When she walked down the passage behind my niece." The haunting of the spare bedroom is of a "quite common kind" by Tower standards — a suffocating sensation felt by occupants of the room. "I never put children or women on their own in the spare bedrooms," Mrs. Raeburn is quick to add.

A clinic to learn how to worry? Family Services of Midland and the Junior League of Midland are co-sponsoring a Women's Worry Clinic to offer women a chance to get together—not to worry because women already know how to do this—but to discuss the aspects of everyday stress which causes them to worry.

The seminar will be held from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church.

Linda George, executive director of Family Services, will present the introduction to the clinic.

"Confessions of a Carefree Worrier" will be the keynote address by Joan Baskin.

Dr. Ray Bristol, director of Pastoral Counseling Center, will conduct a workshop on "Getting What You Want—Time, Space and Strokes."

executive director of the United Way, and Gloria Lambert, director of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

"Finance and Debt Management" workshop will be held by Bill Lentner, assistant vice president of the consumer loans department of The First National Bank.

A film entitled "Divorce and Living Single" will be discussed by Robert B. Evans, Family Services counselor.

"Personal Development" will be led by Sandra Ray, wife of a Midland attorney and a community leader.

Marion Kimberly, career counselor and consultant, will lead a workshop on "Assertiveness."

"Passages, Stages in Women's Lives" will be the theme of a discussion led by Susan Edwards, executive director of Human Relations Council.

"Dealing With Aging Parents" will be another workshop to be offered by Marion Fisher, director of Midland Senior Services, Inc.

The clinic is open to women of all ages who feel the need to focus their attention on the power of creative worry, according to Sue Greer, spokeswoman for the group. Reservations, limited to 100 registrants, will be accepted immediately on a first-come, first-served basis. Reservations can be made by dialing Family Services at 983-4241 or by writing the organization at 2101 W. Wall Ave., Room 9. Fee for enrolling is $3 for the entire clinic.

Feelings for HUD secretary see noticeable change for better

By SUSANNA McBEE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Two months ago, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris was reading news reports describing her as aggressive, abrasive, irascible and generally impossible to get along with.

"As you can see," she told some friends at the time, "having a high office hasn't changed me a bit."

What has changed, however, is the kind of comment you hear about her today. The reports then suggested she was on her way out of the Cabinet. No one knowledgeable about her or her agency thinks that now.

"She's the best HUD secretary ever," asserts Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee.

"She's done an excellent job fighting for a department that has long been neglected," says a key White House aide.

"We were strongly opposed to her at first, but now we grade her extremely high," adds Leon M. Weiner, president of the National Housing Conference, which lobbies for builders, bankers and housing authorities.

And Bernard Hillenbrand, who as executive director of the National Association of Counties, is staunchly fighting her urban policies, has a kind word: "She has a fine intellect and towering integrity. She's one of the bright spots in the administration."

The generally favorable reaction does not mean that all critics of the 53-year-old HUD secretary have suddenly changed their minds. Hillenbrand, for example, can still manage a deft barb:

"If she has an open mind, she would not give you that impression. She has a singleness of purpose that is awesome to behold."

One high official who has survived some fierce interagency scraps with her says, "She's not the most temperate, politic person in the world. She's very defensive of her turf, more so than most Cabinet secretaries."

Yet interviews with more than 30 persons in government and in HUD's constituencies outside government show agreement with the assessment of John Gunther, director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors:

"There's no evidence she's in any trouble at all. She's probably got broader support today than she had a year ago."

Some Harris backers suggest that, with President Carter's popularity dipping and with criticism coming from black leaders over high minority unemployment, the White House may have quietly passed the word to cool the insiders' rhetoric against the administration's highest-ranking black woman.

Several White House aides said they know of no such instructions, and one official noted that the anti-Harris attacks came just after the administration's bruising, internecine battle over the fiscal 1979 budget. "She's a hard-edged person, and people get angry with her," he said. "Now time has passed, and they're not so angry any more."

Probably her most striking achievement has been to redefine HUD as an urban agency. "There's been a major turnaround in its attitude toward the cities," says Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young.

In its relatively short life, the department, as its name implies, has been the battleground for constituencies whose interests do not always coincide — the housing industry and the cities, the suburban middle-class and the downtown poor, the developers who get housing subsidies and the people who live in subsidized housing.

Harris may be getting good marks around town because she seems to be balancing the constituencies — the trick being to help the "housy" while stressing the "urbans." She has gone up and down the country preaching the plight of the cities, especially those in danger of falling apart and those with large numbers of poor — and at the same time she has increased subsidized housing production almost four times.

For most of its history HUD has tilted toward the industry.

The agency's first secretary, Robert C. Weaver, launched Lyndon B. Johnson's ill-fated "model-cities" program to funnel federal money into inner-city areas when he ran HUD from 1966 to 1968. But the fledgling department failed to shake its roots in the old Housing and Home Finance Agency, which Weaver had headed.

After Richard M. Nixon came to office, HUD's subsidized housing production shot up as a result of Secretary George Romney's go-go implementation of an LBJ legacy, the 1968 Housing Act, which created several subsidy programs to stimulate building.

Then came scandals involving some of the programs, and Nixon gave his next secretary, James T. Lynn, the task of shutting down the subsidies and, in effect, dismantling the agency.

Lynn's successor, Carla Hills, began reversing those policies, but with little money from Congress; she was unable to do much. During the Nixon-Ford years, the industry continued to see the agency as its champion.

Harris changed that, despite the increases in assisted housing production. "She's clearly re-emphasized the primary mission of HUD as the advocate of urban areas," says Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

No one could have been more surprised than Proxmire, who cast the only vote against her in the Senate but who now says that, as a HUD secretary, "overall, she's a great improvement."

During her confirmation hearing, Proxmire kept referring to her previous seven years as a fancy corporate lawyer for an affluent firm here and as a director of such industrial giants as the Chase Manhattan Bank and International Business Machines.

Implant restores lost arm

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Aileen Cecil is using her arm again to screw down caps on canned pickles — her specialty — and to sew and to garden and to do just about everything else she did before the arm was blown off by a shotgun blast.

The shotgun blast had left a dirty wound, shattering the elbow joint and destroying bone. It would take considerable surgical skill to give Aileen her own arm back.

And her age (now 52) was against her. Most successful limb implants involve young patients who have the advantage of good recuperative tissue.

But Dr. Gary Manchester thought it could be done and he did it and the reattachment took.

From time to time rattlesnakes slither into the yard where Glenn and Aileen Cecil live and Aileen keeps her own 410 shotgun handy just in case.

After the Poway rattlesnakes had all curled up for the winter that year she put her shotgun away without removing the single shell.

One day in February 1973 Cecil heard what she thought was a prowler and got out her shotgun, dropped it and shot off her arm.

The lead pellets ripped into Cecil's right arm, shredding it horribly and leaving the forearm hanging by a small strip of skin.

Manchester, a San Diego plastic surgeon, had done three previous limb implants and was in training at Massachusetts General Hospital when the first successful one was done there in 1962.

The blast had shattered Cecil's elbow and adjacent bone into more than 20 fragments. The elbow would have to be replaced by a stainless steel plate.

The bone, too, would have to be cut back to good tissue, leaving the arm about one and one-half inches short.

Working under a surgical microscope, Manchester reattached two major nerves, a small sensory nerve, three veins and an artery.

He used skin from Cecil's stomach, opening a flap there like a book and attaching the arm to it for three weeks before cutting it loose to be sure the graft was good.

The graft is good, but skin from the stomach remains skin from the stomach, and when Aileen Cecil puts on pounds on her tummy, the back of her elbow gets fat, too.

Manchester wants to trim down the fat and, at the same time, provide her arm with even more mobility. But Cecil doesn't want any more surgery.

Manchester said that nerves regenerate at the rate of about one millimeter a day. Regularly he tested her arm to see if the nerves were beginning to show any spark of life.

The arm had been sewn back on and the nerves and vessels rejoined, but recovery can be slow and it can be a failure.

Both physician and patient began to take heart when Aileen finally was able to bend her fingers. Further encouragement came when she was able to extend her wrist.

She still can't quite make a fist with her born again hand and arm, but she comes close.

She doesn't need a fist to can fruits and vegetables, and has won more than 100 blue ribbons for that since her accident. She was the top ribbon winner at last summer's county fair.

"I'm as good as I ever was. I can even talk with my hands again," she said, waving them.

Carpets on walls a luxury

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. We're converting a basement area into a family room in the spring. The room, like most basements, isn't very inviting right now and will have to undergo major remodeling to make it warm and pleasant. We want to have the room comfortable and are planning lots of lounging furniture.

Please give us some ideas on formulating a color scheme and for decorating to change a cold, gray room into an appealing place with personality.—N.C.

A. You might be interested in a room created by designer Lloyd Henson who used a conversation pit in a room that he generously carpeted. Henson carpeted one wall, platform steps and the floor in an Anso nylon carpeting to maximize the luxurious atmosphere of the room and to provide acoustical and energy-efficient insulation. To provide a feeling of depth on one wall, he added a trompe l'oeil window painting designed to appear as a desert garden.

More desert flora added to the natural look on the interior and an Indian rug provided interesting color and design. Gray-beige tones of the carpeting combined with deep sand tones and traces of terra cotta and red ochre for a warmly appealing yet relaxing environment.

Q. We're living in Florida and have a great view of our living room of flowers and trees. I am planning to redecorate the room which now contains furniture from our home in Michigan where we formerly lived and raised a family. Now that we're retired I want a more carefree decorating scheme appropriate to our new lifestyle.

What sort of furniture style you suggest? I like rattan but it seems so common here. I need ideas for window treatment for our large wall of glass overlooking the garden, too. Here we need light control more than privacy although I would like some night-time privacy. We have white vinyl floors now and I'd like to incorporate them into a decorating scheme. We like natural colors and yet want plenty of life and vitality.—B.B.L.

A. Starting with white vinyl floors, I think I'd consider wooden louvers at the windows. This could give a casual, country look to the room when combined with natural reed or wicker furniture.

What about a beige, pumpkin and white fabric for puffy pillows for a pair of wicker chairs, the same fabric on a sofa, the pumpkin shade on the louvred windows and perhaps two or three-toned beige and brown rya (or other shaggy style) rug for the floor?

Wicker, rattan and reed furniture certainly isn't designed to withstand heavy wear, but it is particularly adaptable to retirement living where you entertain some and like to be able to move furniture around the room.

Of course, because it is light, it is easy to clean under and around. Don't, however, part with all your treasures from previous homes until you are sure you don't want to incorporate them.

MR. AND MRS. ENNIS OTIS are among models at a style show given for the Ector-Midland Counties Elderly Nutrition Program in the Parish Hall of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Fashions for the show were provided by J. C. Penney Co. The program provides hot meals at noon five days a week for persons 60 years of age and older. Individual donations are encouraged to defray the cost. In Midland, the meals are served weekdays in the Parish Hall. Other services include recreation, shopping assistance, transportation, counseling information and referrals and assistance with Social Security problems. (Staff Photo)

The Anything Omelet is a versatile dish

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Eggs are easygoing. They'll match up with just about any other food for a happy combination. They'll split in two, to serve as thickener (yolks) or to add airy lightness (whites). They leave no mess.

And they'll stand alone, hardcooked, poached or fried, as a meal in themselves.

They're a relatively inexpensive source of high-quality protein (about 52 cents a pound).

If you're cutting down a recipe that calls for one egg, figure that one large egg is almost three tablespoons. Beat the egg slightly and measure about 1½ tablespoons for half an egg.

Armed with all this information, here are recipes using eggs.

THE ANYTHING OMELET

2 eggs
2 tbsps. water
¼ tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1 tsp. butter
Mix eggs, water, salt and pepper with a fork, beating well. Heat butter in pan until just hot enough to sizzle drop of water. Pour in egg mixture.

The mixture should begin to set at the edges as soon as it hits the pan, and should bubble. Using a pancake turner or spatula, lift the edges and push the cooked portions at the edges toward the center so uncooked portions flow to the bottom. Tilt and slide the pan so the eggs move freely without sticking.

I talked to my teacher about this and she said boys are like that.

How should I act in front of him? I really want him to notice me.—SERIOUS IN CHICAGO

DEAR SERIOUS: Pretend that you don't notice him. And when he realizes that you aren't noticing HIM, he will wonder why, and will probably begin to notice YOU. Boys are like that.

While the top is still moist and creamy-looking, fill with whatever mixture you choose. With pancake turner, fold in half or roll. (Some cooks tilt the pan away from them and hit the handle with their fist to force the omelet to roll on its own. I use a turner after having once whacked the handle too hard, resulting in omelet all over the stove.)

Slice the omelet into a warmed plate, flipping the pan so the seam side is down. Makes one serving.

If you want to serve more than one omelet, make them one at a time.

POLONAISE SAUCE

¼ cup butter
3 tbsps. snipped fresh parsley (or 1 tsp. dried)
1 tsp. lemon juice
1½ tps. instant minced onion
Dash salt
Dash pepper
2 tbsps. fine dry bread crumbs
2 hard-cooked egg yolks, finely chopped or sieved

In a small saucepan, melt butter over medium heat. Stir in parsley, lemon juice, onion, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, about one minute. Stir in bread crumbs and yolks. Serve over hot cooked vegetables, such as Brussels sprouts, broccoli or cauliflower. Makes ½ cup.

FLUFFY FRUIT DRESSING

½ cup sugar
3 tbsps. water
2 egg whites
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tsp. lemon juice

In small saucepan combine sugar and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Bring to a boil and cook, without stirring, to soft ball stage (238 on candy thermometer). While mixture is boiling, beat egg whites, salt and cream of tartar in mixing bowl until stiff but not dry.

Pour hot syrup slowly in a thin stream into whites while beating constantly at high speed. Continue beating until stiff and glossy (about five minutes). In a small bowl, blend mayonnaise and lemon juice. Gently fold into egg white mixture. Cover and chill thoroughly.

Serve as a dressing for fruit salads. Refrigerate leftovers and use within a few days.

DEAR ABBY

Accept kissless marriage, or kiss off Fred

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband hasn't kissed me since Nov. 10, 1975. That's the day we got married. When we went together, Fred was always kind of stingy with his kisses, but he did kiss me occasionally.

Everybody in our family knows how Fred feels about kissing, and they think he's weird.

Yesterday at a family gathering when I went to kiss him (he never kisses ME, but sometimes I kiss HIM), he turned his head away and said, "You know I don't kiss anybody."

His mother said, "Fred, your wife isn't just anybody." He just shrugged his shoulders and said, "I don't like to kiss. So sue me," and that was the end of it.

Abby, I keep myself immaculate, and my mouth is always clean so that can't be it. It doesn't seem natural for a man not to want to kiss his own wife. Believe it or not, we have a good sex life, but he just skips the kissing part and gets right down to business. Outside of that he treats me great and is a terrific guy and I really love him, but should a married woman have to live without kisses? Please help me.—NO KISSES IN CONN.

DEAR NO: Your husband is the who needs the help. He needs professional help to resolve his hang-up about kissing. If he vetoes that, your alternatives are obvious: either resign yourself to a kissless marriage, or kiss off Fred.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had five children from a previous marriage. Some of them are married with children of their own, and some still live with their mother.

I am responsible for buying, wrapping and sending all the gifts for their birthdays, Christmas, etc. (He pays for them, and I must say he is not cheap.)

The problem: I am filled up to the gills with his ungrateful children, who never bother calling him to say, "Thank you," "Kiss my foot," or anything else. For all we know, the gifts weren't even received. I know he's hurt, but he insists on sending them presents year after year for every occasion.

Should I continue to buy for my husband's children, should I tell him to do it, or should I buy them all a book on manners?—TIRED OF IT

DEAR TIRED: I agree, your husband is foolish to continue sending gifts to ingrates, and I don't blame you for faking. But look at it this way—you are doing it for him, not them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 9-year-old girl and I have a crush on a 10-year-old boy. Almost all the girls like him, but he doesn't like girls. He doesn't even know they are girls. He thinks girls are just people.

I talked to my teacher about this and she said boys are like that.

How should I act in front of him? I really want him to notice me.—SERIOUS IN CHICAGO

DEAR SERIOUS: Pretend that you don't notice him. And when he realizes that you aren't noticing HIM, he will wonder why, and will probably begin to notice YOU. Boys are like that.

Violence again halts Tokyo airport opening

TOKYO (AP) — Violence has again forced postponement of the opening of Tokyo's new international airport, throwing airlines and government officials into confusion.

The billion-dollar airport at Narita, 41 miles northeast of Tokyo, was scheduled to open Thursday after six years of delays, with flights in and out beginning Monday. But Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda decided at a special cabinet meeting that the destruction of the control tower Sunday by militant foes and threats of more violence necessitated another postponement.

Transport Minister Kenji Fukunaga said it would take until mid-April to repair the damage to the control tower's radar, communications and weather equipment.

Promising to take "forcefully drastic measures" to protect the airport against future violence, Fukuda said the cabinet would meet again on Friday to set a new opening date. The Kyodo news service said it was told the date would be sometime in May.

Takekuni Kato, chairman of the Public Safety Commission, told reporters it would be difficult to extend the mobilization period for the 14,000 policemen whose presence at the airport for nearly a week failed to prevent the destruction Sunday.

Lee High band members will be ringing doorbells beginning at 5:30 p.m. Thursday to collect soft-drink bottles as part of their fund-raising efforts.

Money earned from the bottle drive will help pay the students' traveling expenses to the music contest in April in Kansas City, Mo.

Persons not visited by band members may bring their bottle donations to the soft-drink trucks on the Lee High parking lot during the drive, or they may call 683-4419.

In addition, band students are planning to raise money for their spring trip through a door-to-door light bulb sale scheduled for Monday.

that this message should be delivered "very tactfully." Begin had called on Humphrey in his apartment during the Israeli leader's Washington trip in mid-December, and the senator, according to friends, was concerned that a blunt approach would not work.

McCall, who had worked on many documents for Humphrey, wrote the draft of the letter in Washington and telephoned it to the Minneapolis office Tuesday morning — the day after Carter's call — for delivery to Waverly.

Food prices up 1.2 percent in February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices increased 1.2 percent in February for the second consecutive month, pushing overall consumer prices up 0.6 percent during the month, the government reported today.

Beef prices led the upward march in food costs, rising 4.1 percent during the month, while higher prices also were reported for pork, poultry and cereal and bakery products. Prices of foods sold in grocery stores increased 1.3 percent.

The steep rise in food prices, which started late last year, has caught the Carter administration by surprise. It is the major factor in what appears to be a worsening inflation rate in the economy, even though the overall 0.6 percent increase in consumer prices in February was down slightly from the 0.8 percent gain in January.

If continued for 12 months, the February increase in consumer prices would result in price inflation of slightly more than 7.2 percent, compared with the administration's inflation target for the year of 6.1 percent.

Administration officials say food prices may rise as much as 8 percent this year, up from the 6 percent increase projected just a few months ago.

In addition to food, consumers also faced sharply higher prices in February for fuel and utilities, up 0.8 percent; medical care, up 1.3 percent, and new and used cars, ahead 0.7 percent and 2.1 percent, respectively.

The only significant decline in prices during the month was for clothing, down 1 percent following a small gain in January. However, apparel services such as laundry and dry cleaning services increased 1 percent.

Transportation costs increased 0.6 percent and entertainment prices advanced 0.7 percent.

The Labor Department said its consumer price index for all urban consumers in February stood at 188.4 percent, the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods costing $100 11 years ago had risen in price to $188.40 last month.

The department also said the buying power of workers' paychecks declined in February for the third consecutive month, although the drop of 0.2 percent was not nearly so bad as the record monthly 3.1 percent fall in purchasing power in January.

Gartner, who was with the senator, said Humphrey went over the draft three times sitting in his living room. He felt the points were well taken, but that it was "a little too strong" and should be toned down for greater effectiveness. McCall was instructed by telephone to revise the letter along lines specified by Humphrey.

Wednesday morning Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance telephoned Humphrey. Vance had just briefed a group of senators on the Middle East, a group that would have been led by Humphrey under other circumstances.

Humphrey told Vance he was drafting a letter to Begin and explained the gist of it. Vance told aides later that he could tell from his voice and speech that Humphrey was fading.

A short time later McCall called to read the revised letter to the senator. Humphrey approved it and said it was just what he wanted to say. He instructed the aide to have the letter signed and delivered to the Israeli embassy for transmission to Begin. A copy was also to go to Vance for his information.

In Washington Wednesday afternoon the letter was sent to the Israeli embassy. About two hours later, according to McCall, he heard from Max Kampelman, a Washington attorney long close to Humphrey and one of his contact points with Israel and the American Jewish community.

According to McCall and Gartner, Kampelman questioned whether Humphrey wanted to take the position of the letter, prodding Israel in gentle but unmistakable terms to greater "give" on the Sinai settlements and West Bank. Kampelman also had some suggestions on wording of several points in the letter. The aides assumed that Kampelman had been in contact with the Israeli embassy.

Candidate withdraws from race

ODESSA — Odessa mayoral candidate Arthur "Leo" Leal Jr. announced Monday he is withdrawing from the race in Saturday's city election.

The announcement leaves "M. R. "Dick" McManigle Jr. the only remaining candidate for mayor.

Leal, 27, said his decision was based on the fact that he did not receive support he had anticipated. Incumbent Mayor Dan Hemphill did not file for re-election.

Kampelman later said that he had discussed the letter with Ambassador Simcha Dinitz, who was described as not particularly happy about it, and Kampelman confirmed that he had some suggestions on wording. He recalled, however, that he had heard about the letter earlier and had seen an early draft, and that Humphrey told him by telephone to communicate his views to McCall.

When Kampelman's suggestions were received Wednesday afternoon, it was too late to transact business with Hubert Humphrey. About midday Wednesday, he had begun visibly to sink and was now in long periods of sleep with only intermittent minutes of consciousness.

McCall and Gartner accepted two of Kampelman's suggestions, which did not change the meaning and would in their minds have been accepted by Humphrey. They declined to accept one suggestion, also of a minor nature, which they were not sure about. The letter was retyped, signed by a mechanical pen in Humphrey's office and sent in revised form to the Israeli embassy.

Two days later, on Jan. 13, Hubert Humphrey died. More than a week after that someone, generally believed to be a Carter administration official, passed along the news of the letter to The New York Times.

The Times published a brief account on Jan. 25 under the headline, "Humphrey Urged Israeli Flexibility." The following day the Israeli embassy protested that "The Times' account did not reflect the 'essence' and 'spirit' of Humphrey's letter to Begin."

Over the week the controversy grew from differences about the meaning of Humphrey's final political act to charges that Humphrey didn't write it, and that the Carter administration had manipulated a dying man in a battle with the country he had usually supported.

Urban policy spending expected to draw criticism

By J. WOLMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's urban policy: what's in it for you?
Potentially, city parks, neighborhood health clinics, outdoor art fairs and job programs.
Those are some of the goals of President Carter's urban policy revealed Monday — an $8.3 billion strategy relying heavily on financial incentives for business investment in distressed cities.

But before the Carter policy has any effect, the spending programs must pass Congress. Most will be debated as part of the fiscal 1979 budget, which will be considered this spring to take effect Oct. 1.

Much of the new spending expected to draw criticism on Capitol Hill. Of the $8.3 billion, $4.4 billion is in new spending requiring congressional approval. Key members of both the House and Senate have previously indicated they will study carefully a proposal to create a national development bank to provide subsidies for businesses building or expanding in distressed areas. There also is concern on the Senate Banking Committee over a $150 million housing rehabilitation loan program.

The urban policy's various job programs, some of which would require congressional appropriations, are aimed at the hard-core unemployed and at youths aged 18 to 24. Carter would also make $150 million available for parks, community basketball courts and swimming pools. "There are too few parks and recreation areas in the cities," says White House domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat. "And those that exist are in an advanced state of decay."

Eizenstat, a former high school basketball star, says new facilities such as basketball courts "will break up the tedium and give kids a useful outlet" for their energy. Under Carter's $20 million Liveable Cities proposal, grants from the National Endowment for the Arts could finance neighborhood arts groups and underwrite projects such as outdoor art fairs.

In Atlanta, Liveable Cities money already is paying for a program to paint murals on city buildings. Such efforts are relatively inexpensive — compared with the billion-dollar public works program or $1.5 billion in business-stimulating tax credits Carter proposed Monday — but they are integral parts of his effort to make cities "a more attractive place to live and work."

Carter also expressed hope that the federal government can help "marshal the thousands of Americans who want to contribute their time and energy" to neighborhood improvements. ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, wants $40 million to match the needs of neighborhood groups and volunteers with special skills, an attorney or a carpenter, for example. The agency also would provide grants averaging about $5,000 to neighborhood groups for "dress up" projects. The money would pay for equipment such as paint and brushes, or trees and sidewalk flower beds.

A $15 million HUD program would directly aid neighborhood rehabilitation groups in addition to the proposed $150 million for housing rehabilitation loans. A $50 million Community Health Center proposal would finance clinics in poor urban neighborhoods lacking adequate medical care.

A $150 million proposal would provide the first spending increase since 1974 for social service programs — such as day care for working mothers and Meals on Wheels for the elderly.

Dairy products may cost more

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk, butter and cheese may soon cost consumers more as the federal government, bowing to rising production costs, raises the prices guaranteed farmers for their dairy goods.

Milk prices are likely to rise 2 cents a half-gallon in the next several months, while butter may go up 6 cents a pound and cheese 5 cents a pound.

The new federal price guarantees, approved Monday, take effect Saturday. They raise the prices the government pays for milk, butter or cheese when the market price drops.

Officials said the increases "will provide greater assurance that the U.S. average price received by farmers will be at least equal to the announced support price" for milk by forcing wholesalers to match the government price.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland told Congress of the impending increase March 1. But the vote by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. board was delayed until Monday from March 16, the day striking farmers took over the department's administration building.

On Saturday the floor price for milk will rise from the current $9 per 100 pounds to $9.43 per 100 pounds.

The basic federal purchase price for butter will be slightly less than $1.09 a pound, against the current $1.03 a pound, and cheese slightly more than $1.03 a pound, against 98 cents. Nonfat dry milk, which the government now buys when the price dips to 68 cents a pound, will be purchased at 71 cents a pound after Saturday.

J. Wayne undergoing pneumonia treatment

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — Actor John Wayne said Monday he is undergoing treatment for bronchial pneumonia, spending his nights at Hoag Memorial Hospital here but returning home each day.

In a brief telephone interview, the 70-year-old actor said he began treatment at the hospital "last Friday or Saturday" and should windup the treatment by Wednesday of this week. "I'm feeling fine," he said.

Wayne had been scheduled to appear with former Treasury Secretary John Connolly Monday at a luncheon at the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association convention in San Antonio, Tex., but said he was forced to cancel.

Carter cancels talks with NATO on neutron weapons

By WALTER PINCUS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Carter Administration abruptly changed course last week and called off negotiations in Brussels with its European NATO allies specifically designed to court their public support to U.S. production of neutron artillery shells and missile warheads.

Allied governments, on whose soil the neutron weapons would be deployed, have been skittish about giving open backing to the controversial new generation of tactical nuclear weapons because of political opposition to them that has developed within their countries.

President Carter has made it clear up to now that he would not order production unless he could count on public NATO government support of his decision.

Although some administration sources maintained Monday that the president has not yet made his final go-ahead decision, the talks which had been underway for several weeks were based on a preliminary White House determination that a production order would be made by mid-April.

"That decision had been made some time ago," one source said, "but now we are in a holding pattern."

A few government officials interpreted the talks cancellation last week as a sign the president has reversed himself and is now leaning against a neutron go-ahead. Others, however, said Carter has made only "a decision to delay the decision," in the words of one.

Nuclear shells and warheads now deployed in Europe destroy targets such as tanks and fortifications primarily through heat and blast.

Proposed neutron 8-inch artillery shells and Lance missile warheads, on the other hand, were designed to kill or incapacitate enemy troops primarily by radiation.

Proponents of the weapons say they would be more credible deterrents in Europe than those now deployed because they would cause less collateral damage to towns and cities adjacent to battlefields.

Opponents argue the new weapons would lower the nuclear threshold since battlefield commanders would be able to employ them earlier than they would the more destructive nuclear artillery and missiles.

The ultimate decision to use any nuclear weapons rests with the president.

There was some consternation at the State Department because of the sudden White House decision last week to pull back from the neutron production discussions.

A great deal of diplomatic effort had British Prime Minister James Callaghan closer to speaking out in support of Helmut Schmidt and of production.

According to one source, a high-level Carter aide soon will go to Europe to explain the president's new course.

To date, no Western European country has approved the neutron weapons. The Netherlands, the only country whose parliament voted on the issue, recently turned them down.

The Soviet Union has tried to make the proposed building of neutron weapons by the United States an international issue.

meetings within the government will take up "other options. We may go ahead with production without the allies' support."

Up to now that course has been avoided for several reasons.

One is that Congress by law has 45 days to vote by joint resolution to overturn a Carter decision to build the weapons.

Carter is said to want NATO support because of the upcoming United Nations debate on disarmament where the Soviets are bound to criticize a move to make shells. The president reportedly does not want to stand alone among world leaders in favor of building neutron weapons.

Because of the international political controversy that has developed around neutron weapons and the president's seven-month delay in making his promised production decision, White House and other government officials are extremely sensitive about discussing the matter.

Monday, for example, officials repeatedly requested during interviews that they not be quoted by name or even agency.

The 25 buses now in port are part of 400 buses built in West Germany for delivery to Houston and other cities. They were financed through an 80 percent Department of Transportation grant.

Representatives of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) said they would go into federal court today seeking an injunction to stop the pickets, which have prevented longshoremen from unloading the ship.

About 50 persons carrying signs and small American flags marched peacefully at the Goodpasture Terminal gates Monday night when the Russian vessel arrived.

Kirby McDowell, Houston port

Union pickets stall unloading of buses

HOUSTON (AP) — Pickets by the National Maritime Union (NMU) kept 25 buses bound for U.S. cities stalled aboard the Russian cargo ship Skulptor Golubkina today.

The NMU threw up the picket lines Monday night in a protest over using U.S. tax dollars to transport the West German-made buses on a Soviet flag ship.

Representatives of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) said they would go into federal court today seeking an injunction to stop the pickets, which have prevented longshoremen from unloading the ship.

About 50 persons carrying signs and small American flags marched peacefully at the Goodpasture Terminal gates Monday night when the Russian vessel arrived.

According to one source, a high-level Carter aide soon will go to Europe to explain the president's new course.

To date, no Western European country has approved the neutron weapons. The Netherlands, the only country whose parliament voted on the issue, recently turned them down.

The Soviet Union has tried to make the proposed building of neutron weapons by the United States an international issue.

Because of the international political controversy that has developed around neutron weapons and the president's seven-month delay in making his promised production decision, White House and other government officials are extremely sensitive about discussing the matter.

Monday, for example, officials repeatedly requested during interviews that they not be quoted by name or even agency.

Another Russian ship, the Magnitogorsk, arrived here last month and unloaded a similar shipment without incident. It was the first time a Soviet flag vessel was used to transport cargo paid for by the U.S. government between two free world nations.

The 25 buses now in port are part of 400 buses built in West Germany for delivery to Houston and other cities. They were financed through an 80 percent Department of Transportation grant.

U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie walked the picket lines with the union Monday night.

MAYOR

All candidates for Mayor were asked the following questions:
1. What issues prompted you to run for Mayor and in your view, what should be a top priority for the Mayor in the next two years?
2. Do you support the expenditure of $500,000 for the expansion of the Hogan Park Golf Course? Why or why not?
3. If efforts to bring new industries to Midland are successful, what steps could the Mayor take to insure housing for low and moderate income families?

NAME: Ernest Angelo, Jr.

3106 Stanolind ..... Age: 44
Midland, Texas 79701
Occupation: Self employed Petroleum Engineer

1. I first ran for Mayor in 1972 because I believed there was a need for strong, fiscally responsible leadership. Midland's fast growth increases the challenge to provide that leadership. Top priority items are: Stable taxes, Local solution to housing needs, Street improvements, Downtown cleanup, and Terminal remodeling.

2. I support the proposed bond issue to provide for an additional 9 holes at Hogan Park. A good municipal course is a great asset for a community which benefits everyone, golfer or not. The present course is inadequate for all of those who want to play. The course is the only City supported recreational facility which pays its own way. In fact, it generates a profit. A substantial part of the $500,000 can be retired from golf course net revenues. It is very unlikely that any tax increase would be required. No higher priority project will suffer.

3. City government must function in a manner that encourages the private sector to uphold its responsibilities to provide jobs, to make available adequate housing at affordable prices for everyone willing and able to earn it and to support charitable projects to provide housing for those who cannot help themselves. This requires that the City maintain reasonable taxes, excellent police and fire protection, safe and clean streets, and an absolute minimum of government "red tape."

NAME: Darryl Kersey

2517 Emerson ..... Age: 23
Midland, Texas
Occupation: College student/Sales Clerk

1. The issues that prompted me to run and the top priorities for Midland are about the same. Changes in the way of good street repair and better housing are of great concern to me. Also a change is needed in the way government is conducted, it should be more responsive.

2. I support the expenditure, but not the bond issue. The reason being is that if Hogan Park is a profitable revenue producer, that it should be able to pay for the improvements itself. If this is not the case, however, I think the city could improve the golf course with surplus funds. Surely the golfers of Midland should have a good golf course to use and the City should take proper care and maintain this golf course at the best level. But the bond issue is not the answer.

HOSPITAL DISTRICT DIRECTORS

All candidates for Hospital Board were asked the following questions:
1. What issues prompted you to run for the Hospital Board?

NAME: Frank Cowden, Jr.

3202 Racquet Club ..... Age: 58
Occupation: Rancher

1. After serving a four-year term on the Midland Hospital Board it became very apparent to me the urgent need to begin the second phase of construction. Midland County Hospital District was formed as the most feasible way to accomplish this. I wish to continue serving as a District Director.

NAME: Nada Baulch (Mrs. J. W.)

3109 Humble ..... Age: 53

1. As a volunteer I have watched Midland Memorial Hospital grow from barely adequate to good. Now that we have an opportunity to have a superior hospital I would like to be a part of that effort. A woman's viewpoint could be very beneficial to the future planning for the hospital.

It was one fine night for Jack "Goose" Givens, the Kentucky All-American who closed out his collegiate career with a 41-point performance against Duke Monday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Blue Devils a team with a bright future

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As the seconds ticked away and Kentucky's lead loomed ever larger, Duke fans began to look ahead to next year and chanted, "We'll be back. We'll be back." "We have a future," said Coach Bill Foster of the young Duke team that came from nowhere to Monday night's NCAA basketball finals before bowing to Kentucky 94-88. "I'm not discouraged by the way we played, but we can play better." Duke was unable to put together an effective fast break and was not hitting from outside, allowing Kentucky's defense to collapse on 6-foot-11 center Mike Givens. "They kept the pressure on us real well," Foster said. "We didn't shoot well. We needed to shoot better to offset some of our ills. "We missed quite a few shots underneath the basket early and again in the second half. They probably look bigger now than they actually were." Duke fell behind 66-50 midway through the second half, then came roaring back to pull within four in the closing minutes. Kentucky forward Jack Givens, voted the series' most valuable player, was probably a bigger factor in the game than Duke's cold shooting. He scored 41 points, the

Wildcats win the big one

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The injustice of winning 29 games and hearing only cries of "More! More!" from demanding Kentucky fans evaporated into the biggest smile Joe Hall had smiled all week... maybe all year. "This is what it's all about," the visibly relieved and very happy Kentucky coach told a couple of hundred sports writers squeezed into a makeshift interview room. With Jack Givens putting on an awesome display of offensive prowess, firing in 41 points, including his team's last 16 in the first half, the Wildcats subdued a youthful Duke squad Monday night 94-88 in the NCAA championship game in St. Louis' CheckerDome. "I'm more proud of them as people than as basketball players," Hall said. For Kentucky, ranked No. 1 virtually the entire season, victory was a must. It had to happen, Hall indicated in a Sunday news conference, or in the minds of Kentucky followers the entire season would be a failure. So, too, presumably, would have been the careers of four seniors who made up the heart of this Wildcat squad... Givens, forward Rick Robey, center Mike Phillips and super-sub James Lee.

THOSE FOUR were freshmen when Hall's team lost to UCLA in the 1975 NCAA finals. The next year they won the National Invitation Tournament, and last season bowed to North Carolina in the East Regional finals. In between they had won three Southeastern Conference championships and averaged more than 22 victories per year. "This is what we've been aiming for," Hall said in the flush of victory. "This is what our fans have been wanting." After venting his frustrations the day before the game, Hall was asked if he might retire to his beloved farm with the title in hand. "I can't answer that right now," he said of the possibility that the pressures of Kentucky basketball might drive him out of Lexington. But it all seemed academic as the packed house of 18,721 watched Givens perform his magic. The final score was actually deceptive. Duke, which started two freshmen, two sophomores and a junior, led only once, when Mike Givens scored the game's first basket. Everybody seemed nervous at the outset. Each team started with a turnover and with less than three minutes gone Phillips had collected his third foul. BUT ONLY about six minutes had elapsed when the bigger, stronger more experienced Wildcats began taking charge. "We junked our game plan," Hall said. "Hank Iba once told me never to spread your defense from baseline to midcourt; that you would leave a big gap in there around the foul line. Duke was coming out and attacking our guards. We flashed Jack in on the post and they had to guard Jack one-on-one in that area." Givens, an articulate 6-foot-4 forward, tossed in shots from all over the court. He was unstoppable. His 16-point salvo in the final 3:52 of the first half sent the Wildcats into intermission with a 45-38 lead. With 28 seconds left in the game, riding the crest of an eight-point lead, Hall poured his little-used reserves onto the court and let the starters retire to the bench in glory. BUT DUKE kept coming, and 14 seconds later baskets by Givens and Ken Dennard sliced the margin to four. Back onto the court came Kentucky's starters. Eight seconds later Lee soared in for a stuff that destroyed whatever slim hopes Duke still had. "When it got scary I took 'em out and put the kids back in who had done it for us," said Hall with a wide grin. For Givens, the No. 2 scorer in Kentucky's storied basketball history, it was the highest point total in an illustrious career. "Give credit to the other guys," he said with a modesty that sounded genuine. "They gave me some great feeds. I took one shot that hit the backboard and went in. That was the kind of night I had." "We came very close to playing the total game," said Hall. "We came very close to breaking it open. We just held back a little bit because of the foul problem."

Numbers don't lie. CHAMPIONSHIP GAME. DUKES (M) ... KENTUCKY (M) ... CONSOLATION GAME. ARKANSAS (T) ... NOTRE DAME (M)

Winners welcomed home

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's national basketball champions, fresh from a 94-88 victory over Duke, returned home today in predawn darkness to find thousands of fans shouting their acclaim at Blue Grass Field. One by one, the players fought their way through a narrow police cordon in the passenger terminal as a sea of humanity hooted, hollered, hoisted makeshift banners and pierced the air with cries of "We're No. 1." Former Gov. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler worked his way through the crowd and allowed as how he hadn't seen anything like it since the 1958 Wildcats captured Kentucky's fourth NCAA championship. "You know, I was governor then and (former Coach Adolph) Rupp called me down from the stands and I accepted the cup for the university at Freedom Hall in Louisville," Chandler said. "And, of course, I was scared to death of this one until my boy James Lee ran in from the left side and dunked it and that was the last gasp for the boys from Duke."

Lee was one of the first players to reach a mezzanine overlooking the throng in the terminal. He raised a forefinger to signify "No. 1" and brought a deafening roar by waving the championship trophy. Coach Joe B. Hall, in his sixth year as Rupp's successor, was amazed at the crowd size. "That's unreal that they would be out here at a quarter to four in the morning," Hall said, "but that's what Kentucky basketball is all about. They continue to demonstrate it in new ways every day. We're just as appreciative as we can be of our fans and thankful we could win the championship and restore their faith in Kentucky basketball."

the moment. Countless times in his tenure as Wildcat coach, he spoke of the pressures of succeeding Rupp, college basketball's all-time winningest coach. Chandler said, "I told Joe the other day that I succeeded a legend (Kenesaw Mountain Landis) as baseball commissioner and he succeeded a legend in the coaching business. "And I said if the good Lord above had succeeded Rupp, he would have had a hard time," Chandler added. "Whenever you succeed a legend, it's a hard job. I'm just delighted Joe has weathered the storm. He's had a hard time and a lot of people have wanted to make trouble for him. He doesn't deserve that. He deserves great credit for this and they'll give it to him now. He's not on probation anymore."

LEE, WHO became a crowd favorite in his role as the team's sixth man and foremost dunk shot artist, sealed the victory with a resounding stuffed shot as time ran out. "It was a dunk I can enjoy for the rest of my life," Lee said. "I wouldn't take that one back for anybody in the world. That was for auld lang syne."

Houdek wins tennis title

Fourteen-year-old Richey Houdek, playing in the 16 and 18 singles, swept to one title and reached the quarterfinals in another division during the Abilene Easter Tournament. Houdek beat Cliff Bil, Wichita Falls, 6-2, 6-2 in the 16-Singles finals. En route he beat Kenny Berry, Abilene, 6-1, David Weltman, Abilene, 6-3, 6-1; Mike Ketterman, Brownwood, 6-2, 6-1; and Michael Castelo, Fort Stockton, 6-3, 6-1, in the semis. In the 18-Singles, Houdek beat Mike Redwine, Abilene, 6-2, 7-6; and Tommy Harris, Santa Anna, 6-1, 6-2, before losing to Brownwood's Victor Baker, 7-5, 3-6, 6-0 in the quarterfinals.

Chap pair eliminated

HOUSTON — Reg Luttrell and Jose Rivera's quest for a title came to an end here Monday afternoon, when the Midland College pair was beaten by the third-seeded team of Dan Courson and Tim Heckler, 6-4, 6-4, in the semifinals of the Houston Open Tennis Tournament. Luttrell and Rivera were the last two of Coach Brian Gilley's netters still alive in the tournament, but they found the going a little too tough against the two Houston playing pros. The Chaps drove back to Midland late Monday, but will be back on the road Wednesday, when they travel to Amarillo for a Western Junior College Conference match. From there, the team will head into Oklahoma for a quadrangular match with Oklahoma City, Oklahoma State and Wichita State. They will also play a series of dual matches during their visit north.

JIM MURRAY

Joe Louis: Winner and still champeen

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate I always thought the saddest sight I ever saw in sports was Joe Louis hitting the ring apron with his head the night he fought Rocky Marciano. Until I saw Joe Louis in a wheelchair the other day. There are some things you should never see. A great stage beauty in the morning without her makeup. A stag dying in the sunset. A great ship sinking. A great warrior succumbing to great odds. A lion wounded and at bay to the jackals. And Joe Louis in a wheelchair. THE GREAT left hand, the one that demoralized a generation of fighters, the one that broke Schmeling's spleen and a dozen jaws, could not now pick up a Kleenex to wipe the dribble off the chin. The feared right lay trembling in a lap. Joe Louis should be standing in the ring lights over a fallen foe, the heavy-lidded eyes blinking as his hand is raised, murmuring into an outthrust microphone. "Another lucky night." Joe Louis should be riding on somebody's shoulders through the marketplace. In an open car down Broadway, The Conqueror, The Brown Bomber, The Dark Destroyer, Joe Louis should be shuffling into a panicky pugilist whose eyes are darting around wildly looking for an escape hatch. Joe Louis shouldn't need someone to wipe his chin. Joe Louis shouldn't be sitting there, his spindly legs in carpet slippers, struggling to answer a TV man's questions. Joe Louis should be standing there with his hand raised, and a guy sweating and screaming "Winner and still Champeen!" while a crowd goes wild. DO YOU remember Joe Louis 30 years ago? Two hundred pounds of tawny fury, the hands so fast they were a blur on cameras that would stop milliseconds of action. Joe was the most awesome thing you ever saw in human form. Freddy Sommers was on the phone. "Would you like to come up and see the champ?" he asked. "He has had this heart operation down in Houston." The "champ," of course, was only one man. There's never been another who so deserved the title. It's like looking into your own lost youth. All of a sudden, it's 1935 again and you're listening to the recreation of the Louis-Carnera fight. The announcer is awed. He has watched fights for a generation. He has never seen anything like this young panther out of Detroit. Carnera weighs 270 pounds and is 6-6 or 6-7. He is stomped like a butterfly. Joe Louis was the greatest. It's really that simple.

But it's not what Joe Louis did in the ring that mattered. It was the devastating effect he had on society. NO ONE ministered to group esteem the way Joe Louis did. A whole generation of kids who learned on their daddy's knees that the white race was superior, learned to recognize the lie because of Joe Louis. Jackie Robinson would not have been possible without Joe Louis. Neither would Sugar Ray. Neither would Muhammad Ali. Joe laid waste to the "master race" theory long before the 8th Air Force did. Joe Louis was a simple, uneducated man. But he uttered the plain fantastic truths of the most learned scholar, because he was a plain, uneducated man as devoid of guile as a kitten with a ball of yarn. I don't think Joe Louis ever did an unworthy thing. He was poorly advised, poorly managed, poorly treated. But America loved him. If you can find a man with a bad word to say about Joe Louis, put him on tour. He's one of a kind. JOE LOUIS stands for something in this country. Joe stands for a lot in this country. In the world, Joe came along at a time when a black man couldn't play baseball in this country, or football, or basketball. With white people, that is. Joe knocked white champions out of the way with a yawn. Without malice, without a helluva lot of interest. Joe pitied anybody who got in the ring with him — white or black. Joe liked people. White or black. The fight was nothing personal. I know the term has come under considerable intellectual obloquy, so it's probably an infelicitous comparison, but the only person in history I can think of who did more for harmonious relationships between the races is Uncle Tom.

The militants can sneer all they want. But I think the hand in history will linger longer over the names of these two than it will over the haters. BUT NEVER mind. Joe is in a wheelchair now. The eyes are sad, and the fingers tremble. But Joe Louis always got up. Joe lost with the same shrug he won with. When people wept when Marciano knocked him out, Joe Louis looked at them in amazement. "I knocked lots of guys out!" he reprimanded them. He expects to knock this guy out, too, to be "Winner and still Champeen!" again. He looks with wry amusement at a world where guys win heavyweight championships lying in bed. "In my day," he grins, "you had to knock somebody out to win the championship." It may not have been a better day. But it produced a better man.

Midland, Lee nines take on Key City teams today

By BOB DILLON

Coach Ernie Johnson's Robert E. Lee Rebels can really get back into the thick of things today when they entertain the league-leading Abilene Cooper Cougars at the Lee diamond.

While the Rebels take on the Cougars in the Tall City, Midland High's Bulldogs try the Abilene Eagles in Abilene in another District 5-4A baseball encounter.

Lee pounded out 22 hits Saturday in waltzing past San Angelo Central's Bobcats, 20-9 on the road yet and the Purple Pack polished off the Big Spring Steers, 4-3.

Cooper shares first place with surprising Odessa Permian with 2-0 readings while Lee and Midland stand 1-1, the same as Abilene High.

LEE TAKES an 11-5 record into today's game which is set for 4 p.m. while Cooper sports a 7-2 season mark and is the defending 5-4A champion.

Midland stands 7-8 on the year and Abilene is 5-7 and the loser in this one will be hard pressed to stay in the race for the first half championship.

In other games today, Permian plays Big Spring in Big Spring and Odessa High entertains San Angelo in Odessa. The Panthers are (6-6) and (2-0) while Big Spring is (7-7) and (0-2). OHS is (7-4) and (1-1) while San Angelo's records are (7-7) and (0-2).

Mark Denny (4-0) or Craig Van Horn (2-0) may be Lee's pitcher to face Cooper today.

Clay Calhoun, who catches and hits in the designated hitter slot, leads the Rebel hitting attack on the year with a robust .422 average while outfielders Todd Clements, Tyler Alcorn and Pat Moore follow with .385, .379 and .341 averages, respectively.

Collins wins

Houston crown

HOUSTON (AP) — John Burmann, Conroe, defeated Tom Abercrombie, Forney, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, Monday in the championship men's finals of the Houston Open Tennis Tournament.

Sandy Collins, Odessa, defeated Barbara Hambridge, 6-1, 6-1, Sunday for the women's championship.

The Rebels are hitting .334 as a team with a total of 37 hits in their last two games against Waco University High and San Angelo.

In district play, Terry Willis is hitting .556. The junior plays third base and pitches. On the year, he owns a .295 average. Moore and Don Rasure are hitting .500 in loop play for the Tall City team.

Midland High's hit parade is led by the likes of Jimmy Zachry, Tommy Munoz, James Allen and Tracy Gann. Zachry is hitting .438 on the year and has knocked in 18 runs for the Bulldogs while Munoz is hitting .417, Allen .341 and Gann .327.

Allen is right behind Zachry in RBIs with 17.

COACH LARRY PEEL will call upon either Gann (2-2) or Archie

Booth (3-1), to try and keep the Pack in the race against the Wair Warbirds at Blacky Blackburn Field in Abilene.

Cox still looking for MHS coach

No, Sam Cox hasn't stopped looking.

The Midland Schools Athletic Director is still searching for a football coach to fill the shoes of Jerry Hopkins, who resigned to return to Sonora as head coach, but his task has been compounded by a busy spring sports schedule and the fact that several coaches who were interested in the Midland Lee job earlier, are no longer in the market.

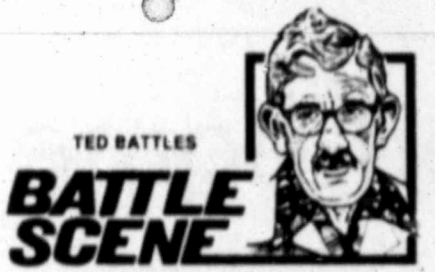

"It's a lot easier to find a coach in the two months after the season," Sam explains. "They have time and you have time to look over the prospects without feeling rushed."

AS THE year wears on, "Coaches are less inclined to pull up stakes and move, as I discovered when I started contacting coaches who had expressed an interest in the Midland Lee vacancy."

There are prospects, but as Sam puts it, "We could pick someone and make an announcement, but we want to be sure he's the best man available for the Midland job and the school system."

Cavs aid playoff hopes

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Second-year swingman Terry Furrow nodded toward the corner of the Cleveland Cavaliers' dressing room where veterans Jim Chones and Austin Carr slowly dressed.

"Those guys are really something else," Furrow said as he basked in the glow of an important 98-88 National Basketball Association victory over the Golden State Warriors Monday night.

"I read the stats and saw 'Sweets' (Chones) had 20 rebounds and I couldn't help it; I went over and gave him a hug. What an effort in a game like this. And Austin, what can you say about a guy like that? His last name should be Class, instead of Carr."

FURLOW, WHO spent his rookie year as a little-used member of the star-studded Philadelphia 76ers, came up with 16 points himself. But he noted, "These guys play as a team and everybody picks the other guy up. It's really enjoyable."

The 6-foot-11 Chones, who switched over from center to power forward with the emergence midway through the season of Elmore Smith as the team's top center, grabbed his 20 rebounds in 30 minutes of action.

"I've been rebounding well the last month and a half," Chones explained happily. "There's no need being out there unless I rebound, being 6-11. Rebounding and setting picks, that's the part of the game we really need at this time of the year from me."

Carr, playing with a heavy chest cold, led five Cavaliers in double figures with 20 points while playing 39 minutes.

THE VICTORY, Cleveland's second in a row, kept the Cavaliers in sole possession of third place in the NBA Central Division. They head into tonight's game here with Seattle one game ahead of New Orleans and a 1½ games ahead of Atlanta in the race for the last two Eastern Conference playoff berths.

The triumph ended Golden State's three-game winning string and put a crimp in the Warriors' already slim Western Conference playoff hopes.

"I hate to put effort out like that and not get a win," said Golden State Coach Al Attles. "That seven-minute stretch (at the start of the fourth quarter) that we went without a field goal really hurt us. You can't keep coming down the floor and doing the same thing if it isn't working. You have to drive, get the ball inside or try to do something else."

The Warriors slipped behind 84-74 during that stretch, then charged back to trail only 86-84 with 3:38 remaining. However, the Cavaliers ran off six straight points with Smith hitting a pair of baskets and blocking a shot to set up the other one.

JONES ALLOWED Williams to work out with the Wheatley team until March 1 when the UIL ruled she could not participate on the boy's team. She filed suit to seek reinstatement to the team.

Seals stressed his ruling involved only one girl at one school and was in no way to be considered a class action for all high school girls to try out for boy's teams.

But the ruling could have a far-reaching impact on future efforts by female athletes who want to try out for a male team.

"We hope this is a signal to the league that if they don't examine their policies, this could be the basis for future cases," said Matthew Horowitz, Williams' attorney. "In terms of other cases, what we hope this does, if others come to us, we can work things out more informally."

Robert Gauss, who represented the UIL at the hearing, said he doubts Seals' ruling will be appealed since Wheatley's baseball season would be over before an appeal could be heard. No date has been set to hear the suit.

THE UIL remains very concerned, however, Gauss said, "that the blade will cut both ways." He said, "It could lead to the boys dominating all sports."

The UIL, which governs high school athletics in Texas, now sanctions separate programs for girls and boys. As for Williams, she's just happy to have the matter settled.

"I'm just happy that I've got a chance to play baseball," she said. "I guess I'll be at practice tomorrow..."

And, based on Jones' observations of her performance in pre-season drills, she has an excellent chance of getting to play.

"When she had to quit practicing because of the UIL ruling, we had seven outfielders on the team and she was about my fourth outfielder," Jones said.

Spinks to file suit against WBC today

DETROIT (AP) — Attorneys for Leon Spinks, recently stripped of his heavyweight title by the World Boxing Council, said Monday they will file suit against the WBC on Tuesday.

The suit, to be filed in U.S. District Court in Las Vegas, Nev., contends the council's "acts thus far are contrary to provisions contained in their constitution," said Detroit lawyer Lester D. Hudson.

Hudson, Spinks' attorney along with Edward F. Bell, said the WBC violated its own Article 12, which says that the boxer recognized as champion in his weight division is required to defend his title against a boxer ranked in the top 10 within six months after he gains the title.

SPINKS, 24, won the title Feb. 15 in a 15-round bout with the champion Muhammad Ali. The WBC decided during a meeting in Madrid that Spinks must fight No. 2-ranked Ken Norton next. Spinks' suit will take aim at the so-called "Madrid Edict," Hudson said.

Spinks was stripped of his title after vowing to give Ali a rematch before fighting anyone else.

"For two years, Ali did not fight the No.1 contender," said Hudson. According to Hudson, Bell flew to Las Vegas Monday to file the suit Tuesday morning.

The World Boxing Association has sanctioned a match between Ali and Spinks and still recognizes the ex-Marine as champion.

MEANWHILE, in New York, a spokesman for Top Rank, Inc., which promoted the Ali-Spinks fight, said that in view of the action taken by Spinks attorneys, it planned no suit against the WBC at this time. "We feel that when Judge Bell finishes, there won't be much left of the WBC to sue," the Top Rank spokesman said.

At the same time, former heavyweight champion Joe Walcott, boxing commissioner of the state of New Jersey, wired Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, endorsing Spinks as champion.

Trampoline facing severe dilemma

By PETE JACOBS
Associated Press Writer

Charles Locati, a high school student in San Francisco, bounced off a trampoline in an attempt to jump over a sidehorse, but crashed instead. Today he is a quadriplegic.

Locati's case was settled with the Tamalpais Union High School for $340,000 in 1965.

With a growing number of lawsuits over trampoline accidents, an Associated Press survey discovered the bouncing devices are increasingly being removed from schools in California, New York, Nevada and Nebraska, as well as others. Illinois dropped trampolining from its 1977-78 state gymnastics tournament.

Medical authorities and insurance executives argue that trampolining is more likely to result in crippling spinal injuries than other athletics.

"I'm told the insurance industry calls them the paraplegic machine," said Ron Smith of the California Department of Education. Smith said he knows of only one school district among the 1,047 in the state that still uses the trampoline.

EXECUTIVES SAY the trampoline is only "the tip of an iceberg" that is sending shivers through those involved more broadly with sports, insurance and the manufacturing of sports equipment.

Insurance executives say the price of trampoline coverage for schools can top $15,000 a year. Increasingly, even the most bold companies are refusing to supply it. Damages which might have been in the hundreds of thousands of dollars a decade ago can now run into millions.

"We're still writing a substantial volume of product liability insurance, but we are frankly avoiding products involving sports," said Maurice Saval, president of the Canadian Universal Insurance Co., in Boston. Saval said while he considers Canadian Universal an adventuresome company, trampoline coverage is out.

"The verdicts have been going so tremendously high, exaggerated, and the theory of punitive damages has entered into the scheme of things. So much so, that to the extent possible, many insurance companies have decided they cannot afford to cope with it. They just can't do it."

MANUFACTURERS HAVE another problem.

"Sales are naturally depressed," said Robert Bevenour, vice president of Nissen Inc. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a major manufacturer of trampolines and other sports equipment. Bevenour suggested insurance costs and the fear of catastrophic injuries are behind the drop in trampoline sales.

"What we've got here is a self-fulfilling prophecy in the United States," Bevenour said. "The more people see these large awards, the more they vote on the jury on these large awards and the more they believe someone should pay. We're just like any other sporting goods manufacturer — any time there's a suit we wind up a co-defendant."

Michael Strial of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America said in Washington that while awards have become more generous in recent years, it is largely the result of inflation and the courts' desire to protect the consumer.

Some observers feel other sports have yet to feel the crunch being experienced by the trampoline. Still others say the suits over trampolining stem from its natural risks.

Martina, Goolagong tabbed girls to beat

OAKLAND (AP) — Martina Navratilova, the season-long pacesetter on the women's professional tennis tour, is favored to make it to the final of the tour's $150,000 championship starting Wednesday.

Navratilova and points-runner Evonne Goolagong are top-seeded in the two groups of four players who will compete in a round-robin format through Saturday.

The two players with the best records in the round-robin section of the tournament will meet in the championship next Sunday with $50,000 going to the winner.

Navratilova was put into what at first blush seems to be an easier group with Betty Stove, Kerry Reid and Wendy Turnbull. Goolagong will have to battle past Billie Jean King, Virginia Wade and Rosie Casals to reach the finals.

In Wednesday's opening round matches, Navratilova meets Reid, Goolagong plays Casals and Stove goes against Turnbull.

Navratilova won seven of the tour's 11 tournaments, including six in a row.

Player's future up in the air

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Everyone has goals and usually in an effort to achieve them, elaborate and carefully laid plans are made, yet it's the little unplanned, spur-of-the-moment incidents that can change a life.

"The best laid plans of mice and men..." quote from John Steinbeck summarizes such uncharted milestones best.

Returning to the motel the other night from a shopping center, Carlos Lezcano, destined to be the Midland Cubs' centerfielder in 1978, leaped up to touch an overhead sign. How many times have you found yourself doing the same thing? Why did you do it? Like the mountain climber, "because it was there."

When Lezcano leaped up, his ring caught on an edge and the finger was severed.

AFTER TWO operations, doctors still aren't sure if the finger can be saved. And even so, Carlos' baseball future hangs in the balance. Since it was his right hand, there's some question as to whether he'll be able to throw the ball.

A 6-2, 185-pounder, Lezcano joined the Midland Cubs off the Florida State University campus last year where he helped lead the Seminoles to the College World Series in 1975 and the Metro Seven title in 1977.

The Puerto Rican-born outfielder batted 231 in 71 games last year and hit six homers. It wasn't a big year, but Carlos and the Cubs were expecting a bigger year this year, only his second in pro ball.

Now his baseball future is in jeopardy, all because of a leap, which he probably never gave a second thought to, but now is something he'll remember the rest of his life.

CUBS FARM Director C. V. Davis announced the signing of righthanded pitcher David Overstreet, a free agent from Indianapolis, who is trying to make the club. Only pitcher Dave Wood remains unsigned....

One of the most impressive pitchers in early workouts for Manager Jim Saul has been Herman "Rocket" Segelke, a 6-4, 215-pound righthander from South San Francisco, Calif. Segelke was 13-8 at Pompano Beach, Fla., last year....

Former Midland Cubs George Riley and Dave Geisel, both lefthanders, have pitched well for the Chicago Cubs in Lezcano... his future is in doubt exhibitions this spring and are hopeful of landing berths as relievers.

However, the competition will be tough. Manager Herman Franks tentatively planned to carry nine pitchers on the roster that heads north and Chicago has 17 on its spring roster. Some cuts were expected early this week.

Bruce Sutter, last year's relief sensation in the National League, has been taking his lumps, but Dennis Lamp, who helped pitch Midland to a pennant in 1975, has been among the most impressive pitchers and looms as the successor to Bill Bonham in the Cubs' starting rotation.

Finley stuck with A's

NEW YORK (AP) — The A's are still in Oakland, the Giants are still in San Francisco and that means both teams are still in trouble.

After months of wheeling and dealing in an attempt to sell his A's to Denver oilman Marvin Davis, Oakland owner Charles O. Finley is stuck with his team for at least one more season and the Bay Area is stuck with two clubs where apparently only one can survive.

"We are terminating our efforts to work out a solution to move Oakland to Denver," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday, citing Finley's refusal to accept certain non-financial terms for selling the club.

ALTHOUGH FINLEY had balked at paying more than $1 million of the $3.25 million required to settle the A's lease with the Oakland Coliseum, which has 10 years to run, Kuhn said money was no longer the issue.

Instead, the main problem is that Finley was asked to waive any future litigation rights against baseball.

"He (Kuhn) is asking me to waive all my rights and I'm not willing to do that," said the A's controversial owner. "This is a provision they are trying to slip in on me and it should not be part of the deal whatsoever."

Said Kuhn: "We've told him that if the other matters could be worked out, the money would not be a problem."

He said those matters include a formal sales agreement transferring ownership of the club from Finley to Davis. In addition, Finley was asked to place a large sum of money in escrow to protect against possible lawsuits.

"They want me to carry the whole legal burden," he said. "They want to tie up my money until 1983."

Finley, of course, is suing Kuhn for vetoing the sale of pitcher Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds earlier this year for $1.75 million. And still pending is the appeal of Finley's suit against the commissioner for blocking the 1976 sales of Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece.

"That's the reason they want me to sign this document," Finley said. "But there's no way I'll do it. I refuse to be coerced into waiving my constitutional rights."

"Even if they told me now that it wouldn't cost me a penny and that they'd pay me $10 million in the bargain, I wouldn't agree to this. I want to sell, but I won't give up my constitutional rights. There is no way any red-blooded American would agree to sign such an idiotic agreement that they are trying to force down my throat."

Ryan, Seaver have one of those days

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Every once in a while, the New York Mets probably wish they still had Tom Seaver and Nolan Ryan on their pitching staff. Monday, however, wasn't one of those days.

While Seaver had to leave with a stiff lower back after one inning of the Cincinnati Reds' 2-1 exhibition loss to the Chicago White Sox and Ryan was bombed for eight runs in the second inning of the California Angels' 11-6 loss to the Cleveland Indians. The Mets got six shutout innings from Craig Swan and edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2.

In his next-to-last spring appearance before an opening day assignment on April 6, Seaver yielded a first-inning run on Jorge Orta's double and Lamar Johnson's single and then came out.

"I just couldn't get loose," said Seaver, who explained that he woke up with stiffness in his back. "It's serious in that I didn't get any work in today, but I don't believe it puts me behind schedule. I'll throw three more times before opening day, twice on the sidelines."

MEANWHILE, the Indians sent 12 men to the plate in their big inning against Ryan and bombed the fireballer for the second time this spring. Willie Horton was the main culprit with two doubles and four RBI in the inning.

"I had no idea where the plate was," said Ryan, who was a teammate of Seaver's with the Mets from 1968-71. "That's about my par for spring training. My ERA for the spring is usually around 5.00. One year it was 12.00."

This year, it's 8.04. Ryan has been tagged for 15 runs in 152 3-innings.

"I know what my problem is," he said. "I have to slow down my delivery a bit."

American League batters wouldn't object to that at all.

Meanwhile, Swan, who is trying to become the Mets' fourth starter behind Jerry Koosman, Nino Espinosa and Pat Zachry, blanked the Pirates on four hits over the first six innings and even singled home the game's first run.

"I'm no longer fighting my weight," saw Swan, "which is progress because I once gained 60 pounds in high school. I even decided to drop Ron Hodges as my roommate this season because he snores too much. I'm at peace with myself, even though I may not be with Hodges."

ELSEWHERE: —Cliff Johnson, who entered the game in the sixth inning, drove in six runs with a homer and two singles and rallied the New York Yankees to an 11-7 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

—Eddie Murray had a long home run and an RBI single, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

—The Los Angeles Dodgers' four-game winning string was ended 5-1 by the Philadelphia Phillies, their victims in last year's NL playoffs. Garry Maddox paced the Phils with two doubles, a single and three RBI.

—Jim Rice drove in four runs with a homer and single, leading the Boston Red Sox to a 9-4 triumph over the Toronto Blue Jays.

—Seattle's opening day hurler, Glenn Abbott, was rocked for eight runs and 10 hits in four innings as the San Diego Padres trounced the MILAN, Italy (AP) — Unseeded American Peter Fleming, serving masterfully, dined third-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-2, 4-6, 7-5 in the first round of a $175,000 World Championship Tennis tournament Monday.

The tall, blond American uncorked eight aces in ousting the veteran Mexican in a threehour marathon. A lethargic Ramirez rallied in the final set — from a 1-4 deficit to 5-5 — but then succumbed to Fleming's volleys and smashes.

In other first-round matches, eighth-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland dined American Billy Scanlon 6-2, 6-3; Australian Kim Warwick defeated countryman John Alexander 6-7, 7-6, 6-1; Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Chris Lewis of New Zealand 5-7, 7-6, 6-2; Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia beat Englishman John Lloyd 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, and Gianni Ocleppo of Italy upset Australian Phil Dent 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Cowboys just too happy

Drew Pearson was fielding questions from an admiring audience at the Andrews Boys Club banquet a couple of weeks ago, and his replies sounded strikingly familiar. They were the words to an old song that you'd heard over and over and over again the past nine months or so. Only the singer was different.

What about the Dallas Cowboy organization, asked one man.

The finest in the NFL to be sure, said Drew.

What about Tom Landry, asked another.

One of the finest men alive... was how the second verse began.

And what about your teammates, inquired yet another voice.

They're just fine people, man. Real fine people, came the chant with a little bit of soul.

They were pat answers. Familiar words, Pearson spoke them that

CBS selects new president

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank M. Smith Jr., a longtime network executive, has been named president of CBS Sports, it was announced Monday.

Smith replaces Robert Wussler, who announced his resignation, effective April 15.

Smith has been with CBS since 1951 and served as vice president of sales for the CBS television network from 1966-1977. Since last October, he has served as vice president of operational resources for the CBS Broadcast Group.

Wussler's resignation comes at a time when the Federal Communications Commission is pondering what action, if any, to take against the network in the wake of its "winner-take-all" tennis challenge matches. The network had billed the matches, all of which involved Jimmy Connors, as "winner-take-all" but, in fact, both players in each match had sizable guarantees prior to the matches.

night, but Staubach, Martin, White, Fitzgerald, Dennison and all the rest have taken their turn at one time or another. They all know the lyrics. And they all sing them with such feeling, because they're singing from the heart.

IN THIS age of sporting unrest, where athletes spend more time bitching and moaning than they do earning their pay, and where kids now dream of growing up and becoming free agents, the Dallas Cowboys are an oddity. They don't bitch and moan, they don't beat up on each other regularly (or irregularly), they don't ask to be traded every other hour, they don't do any of that juicy stuff like wife-swap, and with the exception of freespirted Anthony Dorsett, who's still sowing his oats, they don't spend very much time behind bars.

See what I mean? A bunch of real oddballs. Non-conformists.

FOR THE moment at least, they're overcoming these serious disadvantages somehow and managing to win. But face it. How long can you succeed on talent alone? How long will it be before the Cowboys' lack of dissension and greed really begins to tell? They don't need a top offensive lineman in the May draft. They need an All-American troublemaker.

Somebody who could come right out of college in his first season and make the big play. Somebody who could take a poke at Roger Staubach because he doesn't curse, or tell Tom Landry he has lousy taste in hats.

Somebody who could light a fire under bench warmers like Danny White and Doug Dennison, and persuade them to toss "play me or trade me" ultimatums at the Cowboy brass.

So, it's back to the drawing board again, and back to waiting for the first signs of unrest on this football team that is so disgustingly happy with everybody and everything, they put the Walton's to shame.

Floor debate remarks never make Record

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — This may shock faithful readers of the Congressional Record: your favorite publication doesn't always report everything said during floor debates. Rarely has there been a more graphic example of the judicious editing of congressional rhetoric than the recent outburst by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., during the Panama Canal debate. Moynihan rose to denounce an amendment offered by Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., and some of the New Yorker's unkindest cuts never made the printed record. Two days later, the Congressional Record dutifully recorded Moynihan's apology, even though the worst of what he had said never made the record in the first place. Not that Moynihan's reported words were mild. The Record reported him as denouncing the Wallop amendment as "devoid of intellectual content or even rhetorical merit." Deleted was his description of the amendment as "inane."

chamber." "If a five-year-old tried to do things like this in fantasies of potency which we are all familiar with, those of us who have raised children. But the United States Senate is not a study for children." He returned later and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, after arguing against adoption of the amendment, said, "I move to lay the amendment on the table." Hold it, said Dole. "I took the amendment with me when I went to lunch." It wasn't pending, so it couldn't be tabled. And then there is the story of the Panama treaty amendment that went to lunch. Offered by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the amendment would have prohibited granting military bases to any countries other than the United States or Panama. Treaty supporters have killed most amendments offered to the canal treaties by moving to table them, a strategy that cuts off debate and forces a quick vote. But treaty opponents and some other senators dislike the tabling strategy. They claim it forces a vote on a procedural question rather than the substantive issue of the merits of the amendment. During the debate, Dole grew hungry and decided to go to lunch. He was

Public radio awaiting weekly comedy pilot

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National Public Radio offers many things, but not a resident humorist. Mac Calhoun, award-winning surreal vendor at WRFK-FM in Richmond, Va., may soon remedy that. He's putting together the pilot of what could be a weekly halfhour comedy show for NPR's 192 non-commercial stations, according to Peter Darg, WRFK's program director. He says the project began shortly after Calhoun's nightly "Nightlife" series of jazz and gently daft satire was twice honored at public radio's eighth annual conference in San Francisco this month program for 1977 and picked as public radio's outstanding local program for 1977 and also won NPR's cultural drama award. Which tends to bemuse Calhoun, 28, a slow-talking, deadpan native of Charlotte, N.C. He's only been in radio five years and says before that "I'd been donating blood, mostly" to earn a living. Mac's "Nightlife," which began on WRFK four years ago, used to feature such cultural events as "The Blue Danube Barn Dance," catering simultaneously to classic and country music fans alike. "That's no longer on, by popular demand," he said by phone from Richmond. "But we have been premiering operatic works, like 'Der Flying Buttress' by Porter Wagner. I also like to drop in a public affairs feature now and then, like 'Legums and the Law.'" He was asked to elucidate, if possible. "Well, it deals with what you can and cannot do with a consenting vegetable," Calhoun explained. He also said "Nightlife" has informed the folks in Richmond that the plays for which Shakespeare got credit actually were written by a distant relative, Sir Toby Barfly. Sports fans aren't neglected, he added with pride: "Right after the last Super Bowl, we had a pre-game Super Bowl report." In the opinion of program director Darg, it's high time public radio in America featured a homegrown humorist instead of imports. "Public broadcasting, for comedy and satire, has been depending almost exclusively on the BBC," he contends. "They dredge out of their archives things like 'The Goon Show.'"

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK Peveto still jousts for tax reform plan

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Dress him up in the sheet-metal haberdashery popular in the 18th century, and Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange wouldn't be a bad choice to play Don Quixote. That's certainly the role that the Southeast Texas lawmaker appeared to be playing several years ago when he began jousting with property tax reform — which involves vested interests with a capital "V." But from being a man who seemed to be dreaming impossible dreams, Peveto has grown to be a major force in the push for property tax reform — and has inspired a few nightmares for his opponents. Peveto has yet to achieve final victory, of course. In 1977, and in 1975, he won approval for his bills on tax reform in the House, only to see them caught up in the machinery — which could be uncharitably described as wind-powered — in the Senate. Peveto has moved a little nearer his goal (the first time the bill was offered it succumbed in committee). On this last go-round, Peveto even had a majority of the Senate on his side. Unfortunately for his legislation, however, it required a two-thirds majority to get the bill up for consideration in the Senate, and that Peveto didn't have. So, after some bitter bickering with Senate Economic Committee Chairman Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, and some remarks about the lack of support by the state's top leadership, Peveto watched his pet project — which involved hundreds of man-hours of preparation and labor — fail to win consideration due to parliamentary problems. Still, Peveto has been gaining ground, and support, each session. Property tax reform is tied to public school finance — and this last session, which saw the school finance issue becoming even more urgent, did take some action in the direction of tax reform. For example, there is now the School Tax Assessment Practices Board, which is working on guidelines on how property taxes are assessed — an area

Some add meditation to stop hypertension

Dear Dr. Solomon: What do you think about transcendental meditation as a method of dealing with hypertension? Is this something that actually does help? —Helena D.
Dear Helena: There have been some reports of transcendental meditation reducing blood pressure, but a new study by Dr. Albert A. Pollack and others at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center does not support this view. Twenty hypertensive patients followed a supervised meditation program for six months—using the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi method. At the start, there was a slight fall in their systolic pressure (the higher of the two figures) and pulse rate, but these changes vanished by the end of the six-month period. At no time did diastolic pressure change significantly. However, most of the patients felt better with the meditation program, and the New York researchers think it may be useful as a supplement to conventional treatments. But the main thing is to be in touch with your doctor about your hypertension, and to follow whatever advice he gives you. Most hypertension can be controlled very well with diet, exercise and, if necessary, drugs. If you would like to add transcendental meditation to the usual therapy, I am sure your doctor will find that fine. But do not rely on it as a substitute for a regular anti-hypertension program.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've started a jogging program, and I find that the most practical place for me to jog is an asphalt road near where we live. Is this kind of surface all right as a long-range position? I'm 42 and in fairly good shape, but I did have some trouble with one knee a while ago, so I don't want to take too many chances. —Fred Y.
Dear Fred: Trainers and bone specialists caution against jogging on hard surfaces because of the punishment joints and tendons take. A surface that has give and, at the same time, provides support is ideal—grass, for example. A regular track or a wood surface are also fine. And no matter what the surface, don't stint on footwear. If you haven't already, go to a sports shoe shop and get a really good pair of shoes, with a solid sole and cushioned inner soles. I assume, of course, that you have had a physical check-up and that your doctor has okayed your exercise program. Be sure to warm up five minutes or so before jogging. And do some easy stretching exercises afterwards—to avoid the tightening up that can cause misery the following day. (If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

The opening lead was a troublemaker. Any other lead would permit declarer to cash the three side aces and then crossruff to make nine trump tricks. The trump lead limited declarer to eight trump tricks. South won in his hand, cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in dummy. He next cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club in his hand. Declarer continued until he had ruffed three diamonds in dummy and three clubs in his own hand. BOTH SUITS By this time both suits were set up, and South led the ace of hearts, hoping to capture both of the missing trumps. No such luck. South was out of trumps, and west still had a trump, but there was no danger. South led the queen of diamonds and discarded the jack of spades from dummy. (He had discarded the low spade on the ace of trumps.) West could ruff, but then dummy's ace of spades was there to absorb all shocks. West had only two spades, and dummy had the ace of spades and a good club to give South his slam. DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S72; HAQJ105; DAQ1074; C4. What do you say? ANSWER: Bid one heart. With two 4-card suits, respond in the cheaper suit, but with two 5-card suits respond in the higher suit.

Pat Nixon, always an intense listener and reluctant campaigner, sits by as her senator husband speaks in Bridgewater, N.J.

THE LONELY LADY OF SAN CLEMENTE: Part III

In politics, Pat feels, 'even wins are losses'

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpt is adapted from the book, "The Lonely Lady of San Clemente: The Story of Pat Nixon," (c) 1978 by Lester David. Reprinted by permission of Thomas Y. Crowell Co. The full-length book will be published by Crowell in late summer. By LESTER DAVID

She fooled everybody who did not know her intimately, never letting on that she hated the whole thing.

Her closest friends knew: But the voters who watched her on a platform, her brown eyes fixed adoringly upon him, her head nodding approval as he spoke, never suspected. Ourwardly she put on a wonderful show.

Her true feelings were summoned up in a profoundly sad remark she made to a close friend in February 1960, a few months before her husband was nominated for presidency: "I've given up everything I've ever loved."

Tears filled her eyes. She could not speak for a moment and she turned away. When she had once again regained control, she said: "The people who lose out are the children. Any of the glamour or reward in it comes to the grownups. It's the children who really suffer."

It was conventional wisdom in Washington all through Nixon's political career to hold up Pat as the paradigm of the uncomplaining wife. Wives who were becoming restive in their roles, like Mieke Tunney, Phyllis Dole and Ellen Proxmire, each of whom divorced their senator husbands, were compared with her.

"There are no more Pat Nixons around in the wives division," wrote one Washington correspondent. Little did he know.

But Earl Mazo knew. "She didn't want politics ever," Nixon's biographer told me. "Her friends were never political friends. She hated the idea of ever facing another campaign. Every time Nixon entered one, she was in despair. In 1962, when he decided to run for governor of California, Christ, she could have just gone through the floor."

She had been happy that year, out of politics for good, she thought. "Look at this," Nixon told Mazo and other friends one day on the terrace of his California home, following his defeat by Kennedy in 1960. "I'm earning more money the first year out of politics than I made in 14 years in it." Pat threw her hands in the air and exclaimed joyfully: "Hallelujah!"

Professor Flora Rheta Schreiber knew. Pat told Professor Schreiber, her husband's mother's friend, that she never wanted Nixon to run for the presidency in 1968, confiding that she had been through a great deal of "horror" and did not want to go back into what she called the "whirlwind."

William P. Rogers and his wife, Adele, knew. In 1963, after the disastrous defeat for the California governorship, the Nixons and the Rogerses went to dinner at New York's "21" restaurant. They discussed Nixon's political career and even Nixon agreed that, after 17 years, it had ended once and for all. Reports William Safire, a Nixon insider who later was to join his White House staff—as Rogers was later to become his secretary of State: "They all got a little high, and the happiest was Pat—glad to be rid of politics where not even the victories were sweet."

And Richard Nixon himself knew only too well. In 1954, only eight years after they had come to Washington, her loathing for politics had become so intense that she had a long talk with her husband about what it was doing to them and the children. He was then vice president, but despite the high office and the promise of a higher one, she wanted no more. She pleaded with him to leave, and he yielded to her wishes.

Near the end of his term two years hence, he would, once and for all time, he promised, divorce himself from politics. He even offered to put the pledge in writing. On a sheet of paper she brought to him one evening in their Washington home, he wrote: "I promise to Patricia Ryan Nixon that I will not again seek public office." He added the date, folded the paper, and placed the pledge in his wallet. It was, of course, broken.

Once, in 1948, in the middle of the Hiss case, he had come home triumphantly with two tickets—reservations aboard the S.S. Panama. This one, he told her, would be nothing like their honeymoon on a freighter: this would be a first-class trip. Pat was excited but said she'd withhold her enthusiasm until she was safely aboard.

On December 2, they ascended the gangplank, unpacked in their cabin, and, as the vessel got under way, she watched the disappearing shoreline with a sigh of relief. Two days later, a Coast Guard amphibian landed in the Caribbean. The Nixons climbed into a lifeboat and winched lowered them to the water. Crewmen took them to the plane, which roared off to Miami. A few hours later, he was back in Washington, working on a new "bombshell" in the Hiss case, and Pat was back in her apartment.

By 1950, Alger Hiss had been convicted of perjury and Nixon set his sights on a seat in the U.S. Senate, opposing Helen Gahagan Douglas in a memorably bitter campaign. He won, and with their savings and increased salary, then $12,500, they were finally able to move into a modest two-story white brick house with blue-green shutters in the northwest corner of Washington.

There was no acreage, just a small backyard and a screened porch in front, but it was the first home with real space they had since they were married 12 years before. As usual, Pat made all the curtains, draperies and slipcovers. Somehow she found time to attend a sewing class in the community, where she learned quilting. So she made a blue quilted spread for the double bed she shared with Dick.

She looked after the children, did her own housework, pressed her husband's pants, cooked the meals, sprinkled the grass in the yard, made hats, and answered the phone, which seemed to ring almost constantly. Once in a while she went to Richard's office and helped the secretarial staff.

Her wardrobe was skimpy. She had four evening dresses to wear at official functions, several light summer ones, some sweaters and skirts. At receptions, her "respectable Republican cloth coat" was usually the only one among a forest of furs in the cloakrooms. She also owned three suits, thanks to a half-dozen ladies in Whittier, friends from her teaching days, who decided during the 1950 campaign that Pat did not have enough clothes. They knitted the three suits for her and presented them when Pat came to Los Angeles. She accepted them gratefully.

Pat Nixon had been feeling the weight of guilt ever since Tricia was born because she had to be away from her while she campaigned; when Julie arrived she wanted even more to stay home. But there were some appearances she could not avoid, so she hired babysitters, left precise instructions and rushed off, rushing back as quickly as she could.

Both girls grew up knowing about their mother's feeling of guilt. Pat told them, Tricia says.

When Julie and Tricia were small, they would both start to cry as they watched their parents pack and what they knew would be a long trip. Pat would hug them as she said goodbye. They would still be crying as she shut the door and left.

Once, when Tricia was 5, she came into her parents' bedroom in the middle of the night. She woke them, saying she was afraid. Pat put her into bed beside her and her husband, feeling more guilty than ever. And things were not about to improve.

In the fall of 1953, when the Nixons were about to leave as President Eisenhower's emissaries on a 10-week, 45,000-mile goodwill tour of the Far East, 5-year-old Julie threw herself on the floor, screaming uncontrollably. Hannah Nixon, who was to stay with the children, watched helplessly. Nixon begged her: "Mother, take her in your arms, or something." Hannah picked up Julie and Pat left with her husband.

When the girls were older, Pat took them with her on some campaign trips. They were adorable, and adorable children win as many votes for politicians as dogs do. The Nixons, like some other politicians, had both.

Pat liked taking them along even less than leaving them at home. Once, during the 1968 campaign, she was in a corridor of high school just before the family was scheduled to appear at a rally in the gym. She tried to fix their clothing so they would look their best. "These girls simply have no clothes," she said to nobody in particular, "because there's so little time to buy them any."

Another time, in San Antonio, Julie, then almost out of her teens, came down with a throat infection and a 102-degree fever. Pat led her into the airport's VIP lounge, where she took her in her arms. Pat sat there motionless, not saying anything. On her face was a look of great sadness.

(NEXT: The Campaigner)

Pat's hometown retains character of small town, despite changes

The little city of Whittier, Calif., where Pat Ryan met and married Richard Nixon and began the climb with him to the highest station in the country is still essentially small-town America, though its population has swelled to 70,000.

Its mushroom farm is gone now, along with most of the other agricultural lands. In their places are hundreds of manufacturing plants producing sewer pipes, swimming pool equipment, drilling tools, knitwear, bullets. There are 10 banks and four savings-and-loan associations, three major shopping centers, two community swimming pools, two colleges, two major hospitals, 168 physicians, 83 dentists, and a zoo.

The passing years have brought many new things to Whittier, including some of the hoodlumism the old Chamber of Commerce would not tolerate. Teen-agers drag-race their souped-up cars on broad Whittier

Boulevard at night. One youngster was killed in a horrible smashup the day I arrived. It is not the only "American Graffiti" touch. Rock music blares from the music stores on Philadelphia, one of Whittier's main streets. Taco and other fast-food places have sprouted on the streets close to town center.

The high school was (and still is) located on Whittier Avenue, a few blocks from the heart of town. Once the only secondary school in the district—there are now seven—it had a student body of 1,000. It is a complex of 13 beige stucco buildings in one of which, called Commercial, Pat Ryan began her teaching career.

I visited the building to see, at first hand, what it had been like for her. Almost nothing has been changed in 40 years.

The massive doors were perhaps a little more battered than they had been then, but not much. The dark-brown linoleum tiles on the floor of the broad corridor were the same ones. And in Room 120, where Pat had taught, one wall had been removed to enlarge it, but everything else was the same as the day she walked in on that September morning, shortly before 8 a.m., to meet her students. She would teach typing, shorthand and book-keeping.

She saw a classroom 30 feet square. Across the room, opposite the door, four tall windows faced a large well-kept lawn. To her left as she entered were the blackboards, which stretched along the entire wall. In front of them, in a corner, was her green-painted steel desk, and behind it a closet for her supplies. Near the door was a small sink, above it a clock. And in the room were rows of tables with typewriters on them.

The students adored her at once. She was young, snappy, modern, a welcome relief from other teachers, most of whom were older, more dour and far stricter.

Ellen Holt Waer—one of her first students, who still lives in Whittier—was 16 when she sat in Pat's class. She says today: "She looked so young to us. She was very attractive, red hair, a very slim face. We were fascinated with her. She was soft-spoken, firm, and quite a good teacher." Mrs. Waer, who now edits a weekly shopping guide for the Whittier Quad Shopping Center, says: "I am using now what she taught me then."

Psychiatrist digs into geography

WASHINGTON — The latest field to find itself with a "psycho" prefix is geography. Self-styled creator and only disciple of psychogeography is Dr. William G. Niederland, a bona fide psychiatrist.

As a refugee from Hitler, Niederland served as ship's doctor for two trips around the world on a British freighter. This developed his interest in geography, he explained in a recent interview at his home in Englewood, N.J.

But none of the biographies of the great explorers were satisfying. Typically, historians like Samuel Eliot Morison brushed off Columbus as having sometimes reached "weird conclusions," without going further, the elderly psychiatrist complained.

"I wanted to know what those conclusions were, and what the motives were of those explorers who set out on usually hopeless voyages," he said.

Scientists turning to cancer prevention

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Excessive drinking, excessive smoking, asbestos, radiation, vinyl chloride — these are the things scientists believe almost with certainty can cause cancer.

It is all the other elements in our environment that remain the unknown, says Dr. Arthur Upton, director of the National Cancer Institute.

Researchers suspect, Upton asserts, that 80 to 90 per cent of cancers may be environmentally caused.

Acceptance of this has meant a "revolution" in scientists' attitudes and has led to an increasing focus on the prevention as well as the cure of cancer.

Although scientists have made "dramatic" advances in the war on cancer, Upton characterizes the overall understanding of its cause and effect as still being "primitive."

Some of the general areas in cancer prevention being studied include: —Radiation. "In the 1950s virtually no one thought a small dose of radiation could increase the risk of cancer," Upton recalls. "Now they do." —Smoking. "A 100,000 cancer deaths a year are related to smoking," Upton asserts. "Although some researchers say this cannot be proven," Upton argues there appears to be a clear relationship between cancer and smoking.

—Diet. "We don't know enough yet to prescribe a definite cancer-preventing diet, but a high fat intake tends to increase the risk of cancer in animals, as does obesity."

So far scientists have identified three possible sources of cancer in the diet: naturally occurring materials, food additives, and how foods are prepared.

In natural foods, researchers suspect certain yeast toxins and flavinoids as agents which could be converted in the body into carcinogens, Upton said. For instance, some citrus fruits may have carcinogenic flavinoids, Upton said, adding, "but I am not suggesting that people not eat citrus fruits."

Charcoaling or broiling certain foods may also increase their potentiality to being carcinogens, Upton said.

"Broiling foods is not as safe as poaching, boiling or baking them," he asserted. Yet when asked how he cooked steaks, Upton answered: "Sure, sometimes I broil my steaks."

Outpost set; test shows in Scurry

A pair of Morrow outposts have been staked in Eddy County, N. M., and a wildcat in Scurry county has developed oil on a drillstem test.

Southland Royalty Co. No. 1-18 State Communitized will be drilled 1 1/4 mile northwest of production in the Millman South (Morrow) field of Eddy County.

Scheduled for an 11,200-foot bottom, it is 1,810 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 18-19S-28E. It is 17 miles southwest of Loco Hills. Ground Level elevation is 3,509 feet.

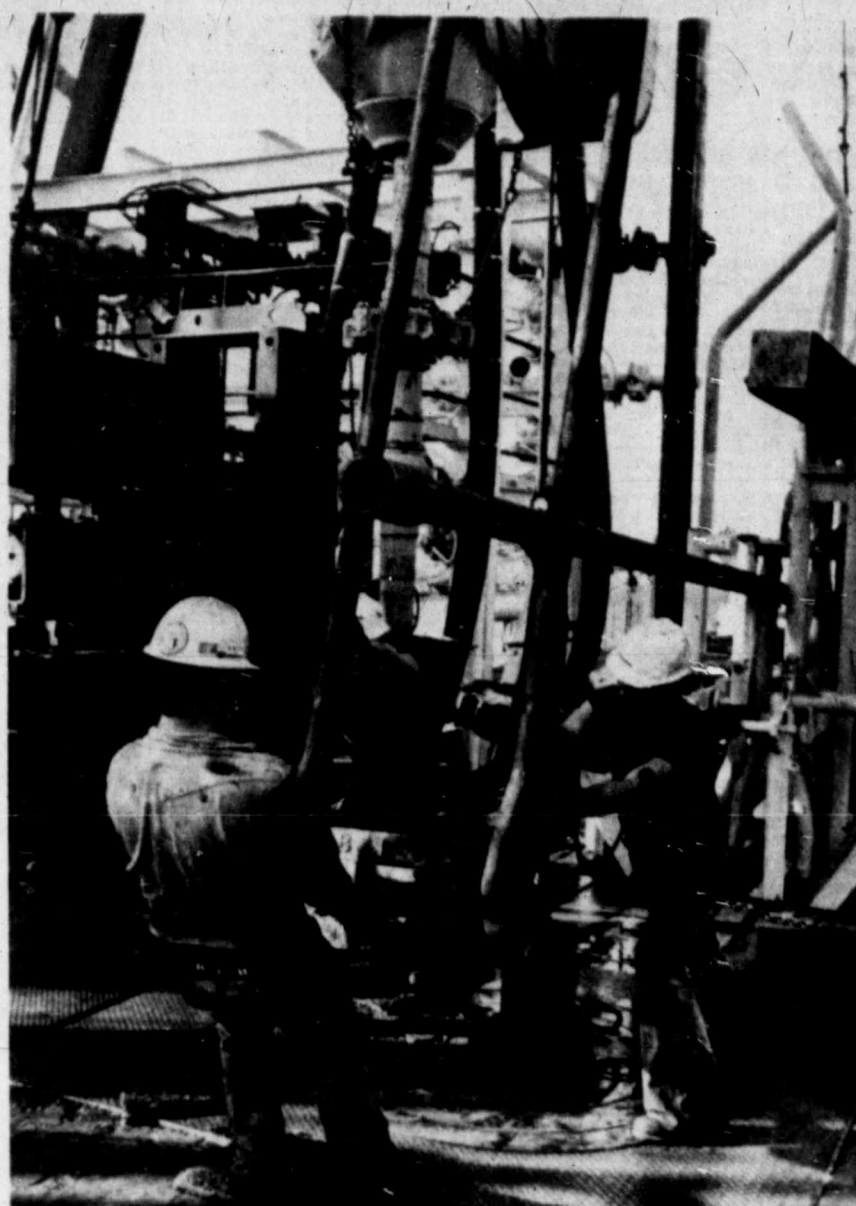

GULF PROJECT Gulf Oil Corp., operating from Hobbs, N. M., staked No. 1-GN Eddy State Communitized with a 12,000-foot Morrow project one mile west of production in the south side of the Carlsbad, South (Morrow) field.

Drillsite is 1,880 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 28-23S-26E and 11 miles west of Loving.

DRILLSTEM TEST Gas surrled and oil was recovered on a drillstem test in the Pennsylvanian at F. W. Holbrook of Midland No. 1 Winston, wildcat one mile southwest of Snyder in Scurry County.

Operator tested the zone from 8,825 to 8,865 feet, with tool open two hours. Gas surfaced in 12 minutes at an unestimated rate. There was a good blow throughout the test.

Recovery was 1,280 feet of oil and no water. Logs were being run. Location is 2,425 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 12, block 1, J. P. Smith survey.

CREWMEN HANDLE DRILLPIPE on rig floor of the Glomar Pacific, the vessel which Exxon Co., U.S.A. will anchor to the Atlantic Ocean floor today. The company has been delayed in spudding the first Atlantic well because of high seas, with swells as high as 20-feet. A company spokesman in Houston said this morning the anchoring of the ship should get underway this afternoon. (Photo Courtesy of Exxon)

Methane slates Canyon tester

The Methane Gas Co. of Dallas No. 3-H Seahorn has been spotted one mile northeast of the Adams-Baggett Ranch (Canyon gas) field of Crockett County, 30 miles south of Ozona.

Slated for a 5,600-foot bottom it is 793 feet from the most easterly south line and 1,181 feet from the most easterly east line of D. Y. Jackson survey No. 8½, abstract 4635.

Three projects staked NM tests scheduled

J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas plans to re-enter and clean out to 9,200 feet the former Dan J. Harrison of Houston No. 1 R. A. Harrell, 9,311-foot wildcat failure in Crockett County, seven miles northeast of Ozona.

The project will be operated as No. 2 R. A. Harrell. Drillsite is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 47, block GH, GC&SF survey.

It was drilled and abandoned in 1975. The site is 1 1/4 miles northwest of a long southwest extension to 7800 Canyon production in the Ozona, Northeast field.

SHALLOW TEST Cedar Oil Co. of Iran will drill its No. 1-A-H. M. Half as a one location northwest offset to the four-well 880-foot gas area of the Noelke, West multiphase field of Crockett County, two miles southeast of Iran.

Location is 1,617 feet from south and 7,956 feet from east lines of section 70, block 1, I&GN survey. Contract depth is 1,270 feet.

Journal says 1977-78 winter just a 'breeze'

TULSA, Okla. — Compared with the winter of 1976-77, this winter has been a breeze for U.S. fuel-oil and natural-gas suppliers and customers, even though the weather has been almost as cold and a prolonged coal-miners' strike strained supplies.

The nation was better prepared for an extremely cold winter this time, the Oil and Gas Journal reports. As a result, the late-season cold blast didn't snuff out home heaters and business activity like the 1976-77 freeze.

Wintertime preparations took several forms, the weekly business magazine says. For one thing, suppliers had more fuel in storage at the beginning of this heating season than they did at the beginning of the previous season.

Natural-gas pipeline companies had 8.3 percent more working gas in underground storage last October than they did a year earlier, Department of Energy statistics show. And the American Petroleum Institute says fuel-oil stocks were 22 percent higher at the beginning of this winter than they were the previous year.

And industrial fuel users stockpiled primary and alternate fuels to avoid shortages. There is no way to determine exactly how much fuel industries and utilities had in storage at the beginning of the winter, but the effects of their stockpiling show up in demand levels, the Journal reports.

Fuel-oil demand during October through March is expected to average 7.3 million barrels a day, compared with 7.6 million barrels a day during the same period a year earlier. This comes as a surprise to many industry analysts, who had expected demand to increase slightly as industrial and utility gas users, anticipating shortages in their primary fuels, switched to fuel oil. But demand during the four months prior to the October-March heating season was 12.7 percent higher in 1977 than in 1976. And combining the demand levels of June through September with the winter months produces an average 10-month demand during 1977-78 of 6.7 million barrels a day.

Election ends fight

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A spokesman for Farah Manufacturing Co. says a costly inter-company proxy fight has been avoided with the election of William F. Farah as the clothing firm's board chairman.

Cole and Baskin to be in 'Boys'

By ROGER SOUTHWALL

Midland Community Theatre's move in early May from Theatre Centre to its new $2 million home now approaching completion on West Wadley Avenue may well be sentimental, emotion-filled time, but it won't be a gloomy one — "The Sunshine Boys" will see to that.

"The Sunshine Boys," one of playwright Neil Simon's newest and most hilarious comedy hits, will be presented April 22 through May 6 as the final attraction in Theatre Centre, which has been MCT's home for the last 20 years.

In making the announcement of the special production (which will not be a part of MCT's regular six-play membership season) at a press conference this morning, MCT spokesmen promised not only one of playwright Simon's most engaging and fun-filled comedies, but also Midland Community Theatre executive director Art Cole as one of the stars of the production, in one of his extremely rare stage appearances.

Joining Cole as the other half of a pair of retired vaudevillians will be Pat Baskin, longtime MCT performer and theater supporter.

Cole has not made an appearance on stage at Theatre Centre since he played the part of Elwood P. Dowd in MCT's 1969 revival of the famous comedy, "Harvey."

Baskin has performed in some 18

Farah replaces Chairman Gordon W. Foster, who resigned from the board. Richard N. Azar and Dr. Arleigh B. Templeton were also elected as directors. Robert L. Jaynes and Dr. Judson F. Williams resigned.

MCT productions through the years, including "Camelot," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and "Mary, Mary." He has had parts in such past Neil Simon comedy productions at MCT as "The Odd Couple" and "Come Blow Your Horn."

Other cast members in the show include Jim Sainers, Susie Hitchcock, Henry Goulet and Gary Askins. Bill Pomeroy, who first performed with MCT 32 years ago, will direct the show.

"The Sunshine Boys will have its opening performance on Friday, April 21, with additional performances announced for April 22, 27, 28, 29, 30 and May 4, 5 and 6.

The comedy is being planned as a benefit, with proceeds to go toward retiring the $600,000 debt outstanding at this time on MCT's new theater plant, which has been under construction for more than a year.

Tickets for performances of the benefit production will be priced at $7.50. The box office will open April 10.

An extra-special performance of "The Sunshine Boys" will be offered on May 11, with seating to be $125 per couple. The event will be highlighted with "The Grand Finale" at the present Theatre Centre, to include closing remarks by Cole, after which the audience will go to the new theater structure to attend an opening reception there. Persons wishing to receive an invitation to the black tie event may telephone MCT at 682-2544.

Concern with cancer affects most everyone

Concern about cancer strikes a familiar chord with just about everyone.

There is in Midland, however, a group of women doing something about that concern—they make bandages for cancer patients.

Louise Galyardt, chairman of the bandage group for the Grace Guild of Grace Lutheran Church, said her church "was one of several to volunteer to do cancer bandages starting about 1964." For the past 10 years, it has been the only group to make the dressings, she said.

Mrs. Galyardt said the Grace Guild turns the bandages over to the American Cancer Society which, in turn, makes them available to patients over an 18-county area in West Texas.

The Cancer Society, which this week is conducting its annual crusade, includes those dressings in its supply of equipment for loan and expendable items offered at no cost to cancer victims.

Mrs. Galyardt said about 20 volunteers usually participate in the semi-annual bandage workshop. The women cut filter and tear sheets in a variety of sizes, fold them together and fasten them with paper clips until they can be sewn. Many take the partially made bandages home with them for that final step.

The group's chairman estimated that the two hours' work is required per dozen bandages. "We make at least 40 to 50 when we do meet," Mrs. Galyardt said.

The bandages completed dressings are wrapped two dozen to a package. They are used by cancer outpatients who are responsible for sterilizing them at home in their ovens.

The dressings, she noted, can be used for any kind of open sore.

"I know our ladies feel this is a way to help our local (and area) cancer patients," Mrs. Galyardt said. "We'll continue to make the dressings as long as there is a demand."

Trial begins on sheriff

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Jury selection begins today in the trial of a removal suit against Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker, who faces several allegations including the alleged granting of special favors last fall to millionaire murder defendant Cullen Davis.

State District Judge George W. Miller of Floydada denied Monday a defense motion seeking dismissal of the civil suit and refused to grant a change of venue.

The Davis-related allegations stemmed from Davis' celebrated trial here last fall. Davis was acquitted of capital murder charges.

Peace Justice Harold Sliger said he is withholding a ruling on the death of Horace Davis pending an autopsy. Sliger said Davis, 57, may have been overcome by gas at the site.

Davis fell from a platform before he died.

Rep. Bill Archer

Archer to speak at GOP rally

The Midland County Republican Party will have a county-wide "Ideas of Taxes" fund raising rally at 7 p.m. Wednesday at American Legion Hall.

Rep. Bill Archer, U. S. congressman from Houston's 7th District, will be the keynote speaker.

The charge will be $7.50 for adults and $5 for students. Tickets are available at Republican headquarters, A Street and Texas Avenue, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and will be sold at the door Wednesday night.

A "poor man's stew," tea and cornbread, will be served. Beer will be available and a band will play. All Republican candidates in the county will appear.

Archer, 50, was first elected to the U. S. House in 1970. Prior to that, he served four years in the Texas House of Representatives.

He holds BBA and LLB degrees with honors from the University of Texas. He was a captain in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean war.

Archer is a member of the House-Senate committee working on the energy bill compromise.
