Outspoken general convinced to retire

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outspoken Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, who publicly called President Carter's decision to shelve the neutron warhead "ridiculous," agreed Friday to retire after a meeting with top Army officials.

The announcement of Singlaub's retirement came less than 24 hours after he criticized Carter's defense policies in a speech to military cadets at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Returning to Atlanta after meeting with Pentagon officials, Singlaub said, "I have no regrets for having spoken the truth as I perceived it... I do sincerely regret, however, any embarrassment that I may have caused the United States Army."

Meanwhile, in Newark, N.J., former President Gerald R. Ford termed

Singlaub's retirement "unfortunate."

"I feel it's extremely important for senior military officers to speak their own mind, to speak as their conscience tells them," Ford said.

For the blunt-speaking Singlaub, 56, it was a case of "two strikes and you're out." He escaped last year with only a transfer after publicly criticizing Carter's decision to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea, where Singlaub then was staff chief.

This time, Singlaub was summoned to the Pentagon and his retirement announced less than 24 hours after he sounded off Thursday before Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets at Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

In his speech to the cadets, Singlaub termed "ridiculous" Carter's decision not to produce the neutron bomb without gaining concessions from the Russians. He termed the decision militarily unsound.

Carter announced earlier this month that he would delay, at least temporarily, production of neutron weapons, which were designed to use radiation, rather than blast effect to stop a Soviet tank assault in Europe.

Although commonly referred to as a bomb, the weapons actually are designed as warheads for Lance missiles and artillery shells.

In his speech Thursday, Singlaub also publicly disagreed with the Panama Canal treaties, which will turn over control of the waterway to Panama at the end of this century. He said the treaties, ratified by the Senate last week after intense administration lobbying, were unnecessary.

Meanwhile, in Kansas City, the Veterans of Foreign Wars issued a statement criticizing the Carter administration for Singlaub's retirement.

Firm stops work on other towers; probes continue

By BOB ROBINSON

WILLOW ISLAND, W. Va. (AP) — The company building a tower here in which 51 men died in a scaffolding failure said Friday it has halted work on three similar projects in other states until the accident's cause can be found.

But work continued atop at least one other tower, in Alabama. And federal officials said it could be weeks before the cause of the West Virginia accident is found.

Meanwhile, federal inspectors on the scene said they would test the concrete in the tower as part of their search for the cause of the collapse.

The Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail said initial reports indicated that the concrete was not dry when the scaffolding was fastened to it.

The scaffolding peeled away Thursday from the highest completed level of a concrete cooling tower being built for a Monongahela Power Co. generating plant by Research Cottrell Inc., a Bound Brook, N.J., firm that builds environmental control structures.

The tower had reached 170 feet — about two-fifths of its planned height — when the scaffolding suddenly fell from the top.

Youth killed in collision

BIG SPRING — A 16-year-old Big Spring boy was killed Friday when the bicycle he was riding and a car driven by Sylvia Rodriguez of Big Spring collided at the intersection of Fifth and Bell Streets here.

Police said Gustavo Rios was pronounced dead at 8:22 p.m. in Malone-Hogan Hospital here. They said the car was traveling west on NW Fifth Street when it and the youngster's bicycle collided at 7:06 p.m. Friday.

Silence on Moro's fate 'encouraging'

ROME (AP) — Five days of silence on the fate of kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro encouraged hopes among Italian officials and police Friday that the Red Brigades may have spared the politician's life.

Moro's wife and children also interpreted the silence as a good sign, according to close family friend Sereno Freato.

"Aldo Moro's relatives are all hopeful," Freato said.

Observers said the kidnapping has focused such worldwide attention on the Red Brigades and their goal to overthrow the government that the urban guerrillas may want to exploit Moro's captivity and keep him alive as a bargaining chip for further propaganda purposes.

The terrorists also may want to keep tensions high in Italy as the nation moves toward the May 14th municipal and provincial elections.

The elections are widely seen as a major test of voter reaction to Italy's escalating terrorism. The Red Brigades have said that any shift toward a right-wing regime would suit them, contending it would help them gain more supporters for a violent Marxist revolution.

In recent days, the Socialists have been trying to soften Premier Giulio Andreotti's position about not negotiating with Moro's kidnapers. This prompted charges that the country's third largest party is using the Moro case as an issue in the election campaign.

Andreotti said Friday the government's refusal to bargain is "definitive."

In a national television interview, the premier said the no-bargaining stand is a "political and moral duty." He added that Italy is in contact with other nations to ascertain if the Red Brigades may have links with other similar organizations.

FBI agents apparently conducted 1974 break-ins without approval

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — FBI agents apparently acted without the approval of high-level officials in Washington headquarters when they conducted allegedly illegal break-ins late in 1974.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell referred cases against agents involved in these break-ins back to the FBI for disciplinary, rather than criminal, action, sources familiar with the investigation said Friday.

The 1974 break-ins were disclosed in Senate testimony by William L. Gardner, former head of the Justice Department's investigation of the so-called "black bag jobs."

Friday in a phone interview from Hurley, N.Y., Stewart Albert and Judy Clavir said the government admitted to them during proceedings in a civil suit that the FBI's New York office had conducted a "series" of burglaries on their home in 1974, including one in November to install a microphone.

Investigators have found no evidence tracing approval of these more recent break-ins back to high-level FBI officials in Washington, sources said.

The recent indictment of former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III and two top aides charges they did approve break-ins in 1972 and early 1973.

There are indications that the 1974 break-ins, including the ones against Albert and Clavir were ordered by officials in the New York office without such high-level approval, sources said.

Bell said the prosecuted were Gray, Edward S. Miller and W. Mark Felt because they were the officials most responsible. He said the agents who actually conducted the break-ins were just "following orders."

FBI officials expressed concern Friday when learning of the newly disclosed, unauthorized break-ins because it raises the possibility that there were "maverick" elements in the New York office.

The FBI prides itself on being a highly disciplined organization, whose members do not act without authority. But some officials familiar with the investigation said the later break-ins may have occurred without specific command because there was no clear order to stop the alleged illegal activity.

Terrence B. Adamson, Bell's spokesman, declined to say why these lower-level FBI officials were not prosecuted, as Gray, Miller and Felt were. "All I can say is that the attorney general stands on his decisions in the case. He used his prosecutorial discretion. He referred matters to Judge Webster (new FBI Director William H. Webster)."

Officials familiar with the investigation said Friday the 1974 break-ins against Albert and Clavir are part of Webster's potential disciplinary package because the existence of those burglaries was hidden from congressional investigators in 1975.

The FBI is conducting a separate internal probe into why its officials told the General Accounting Office and the Senate and House Intelligence Committees that no break-ins had occurred after 1968.

Investigator Gardner testified Thursday that the same FBI headquarters section involved in answering the Senate committee ran a program at the FBI school in Quantico, Va., in 1972 that included a course on how to conduct break-ins.

Bell declined to prosecute what has been described as a weak case against New York FBI official James Ingram. Gardner's task force had recommended Ingram be charged with making a false statement to the GAO investigators because he did not tell them about the Albert-Clavir break-ins when they picked that case as a sample during a 1975 audit.

The couple said Friday that they first learned of the FBI surveillance in late 1975 when they found that a homing device had been attached to their car, apparently so they could be followed.

They were given access to their FBI files during discovery proceedings in a civil suit they filed, and found the investigation dated back to December, 1973, they said.

Both had once been suspects in the 1971 bombing of the U.S. Capitol by members of the radical Weather Underground, they said. The break-ins by the FBI's New York office focused on that terrorist group, but Albert and Clavir said, "We didn't even know members of the Weathermen except in passing."

Judge yet to complete sentencing of women

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A Sydney judge is still to hand down his final comments on the sentencing of two Oregon women who admitted smuggling nearly two tons of hashish into Australia earlier this year, authorities said Friday.

Vera Todd Hays, 59, and Florine May Bessire, 61, both of La Pine, Ore., were sentenced April 21 to 14 years in prison each for smuggling two tons of hashish — worth an estimated $15 million — into Australia under the floorboards of a camper van. It was the largest drug seizure ever in Australia.

In sentencing the pair, Sydney District Court Judge James H. Staunton did not impose a non-parole period or minimum sentence, saying he would give his reasons at a later date.

Prosecution and defense sources said they expected the comments to be released during the past week and were uncertain what caused the delay.

Staunton used a provision in Australian immigration law that does not require setting a non-parole period for non-resident foreigners arrested for serious crimes in Australia.

Legal sources said the judge might set a non-parole period in his final comments.

The judge can recommend deportation but a final decision would rest with the minister of immigration. In previous such cases, immigration officials said, persons were required to serve at least part of their sentences before deportation would be considered by the minister.

Their files showed they were being investigated for harboring fugitives, but after almost a year of surveillance that also included checking their mail and bank records, Adamson declined to comment.

Soviets set to free pair

SEoul, South Korea (AP) — The pilot and navigator of a Korean Air Lines jet downed in Soviet territory last April 20 will be freed by Russian authorities Saturday, informed Korean government sources said.

Pilot Kim Chang-kyu and navigator Lee Kun-shik were detained for investigation last Sunday. The Russians released 106 passengers and crew and the bodies of two passengers killed when a Soviet interceptor fired on the Boeing 707 and forced it to crash-land on a frozen lake in northwest Russia.

Those freed were flown out of Murmansk in northwest Russia by a Pan American World Airways mercy flight and transferred to another KAL plane in Helsinki, Finland.

The sources said the two were likely to be freed via Copenhagen.

If South forces an opponent to lead diamonds, he can get all three tricks in the suit. Hence South must plan from the beginning to force a diamond lead by an opponent.

Declarer begins by finessing with dummy's queen of hearts. East wins and returns the ten of hearts to dummy's ace.

South ruffs a heart, draws trumps and ruffs dummy's last heart. He then leads a club. East takes two clubs but must then lead diamonds since a club continuation would let declarer discard a diamond while dummy ruffs.

SPLIT HONORS

South then plays for the diamond honors to be split. If East leads a low diamond, for example, South plays low to let dummy capture West's honor. Then South returns a low diamond from dummy for a finesse through East.

East might make matters harder by returning the jack of diamonds; or West might be allowed to win the second club in order to return the queen of diamonds. South still makes his contract if he knows his customers and reads their defense correctly.

Leftist groups abound in Italy

By RONALD KOVEN
The Washington Post

ROME — In 1977, communiques were issued by 120 different underground Italian leftist groups. Specialists say that more than half of the exotically named organizations were in fact nothing but tiny ad hoc groups of people trying to get their messages across by creating an impression of tremendous revolutionary ferment.

But the experts say there undoubtedly are about 30 real groups with about 1,000 members actively waging guerrilla war — with varying degrees of ardor and effectiveness — against the Italian state. Bolstering them are thought to be several thousand active supporters.

THE RED BRIGADES are apparently the largest and best organized part of the extremist underground that is itself only a fraction of a disaffected mass that found little general support until the Communist Party dropped its revolutionary rhetoric.

In the last parliamentary elections, in 1976, the far left won about 700,000 votes, or 1.5 percent of the total.

Its breeding ground is among the 1.2 million unemployed young people between 18 and 29 and among the nearly 1 million university students, especially in the drastically overcrowded universities of Rome, Milan, Turin, Genoa and Naples.

A large portion of the unemployed are migrants from southern Italy, a region that remains economically depressed despite major government efforts to stimulate its development.

IN 20 YEARS, 10 million people have left rural areas to crowd into the cities, which have tripled in population. Turin, the Fiat auto factory city, has doubled in population in a decade.

It is widely believed that the Red Brigades are primarily the children of the middle class with university educations. There is some of that. Alessandro Silj, a journalist who has studied the Red Brigades, tells of seeing students at violent demonstrations looking at their watches and rushing home for lunch because they were afraid their mothers would be angry if they did not show up. Even a couple of children of kidnaped former premier Aldo Moro are extreme leftists.

Yet, Silj found in his study of the Red Brigades leaders, "Never Again Without Guns," that while most have attended universities, about half are from worker families and many from the south. When people move north, he concluded, family units often break up and the traditional constraints of family, the Catholic church and even of the Mafia disappear.

THE EXTREME LEFTISTS are also part of a milieu that is in open rebellion. The Red Brigades get sympathy if not support in those groups. "Neither with the state nor with the Red Brigades" is a slogan that has gained wide currency among them.

The Communist Party, which has been losing its grip on youth, attacks the slogan as amounting in practical terms to support for the Red Brigades.

The youth wing of the Communist Party declined by 10 percent last year, according to the party's own figures. Maoist groups, once popular with extreme leftist youth, have virtually disappeared as a political force since the Chinese Communist leadership has charted a more moderate course.

Giuseppe Boffa, an editorial writer for the Communist Party newspaper l'Unita spoke in an interview of the indulgence the nonviolent extreme leftists have for the Red Brigades. "They cover the terrorists," he said. "They even serve as couriers for them sometimes. In any case, there is a certain omerta surrounding terrorism." Omerta is the law of silence that protects the Mafia.

FRANCO FERRAROTI, the head of the sociology faculty of the University of Rome, is in the eye of the hurricane. The 10,000 Roman sociology students provide the hard core of the hard core. He has told of being mugged and beaten by his own students.

Ferraroti blames the government for creating a large part of the conditions for discontent by giving in after the 1968 student revolt to demands to open the universities to anyone who wanted to enroll. As a result, he said, Rome University has 170,000 students in facilities built for 25,000.

There are no dormitories and the students lodge themselves as best they can around the city. Except for the Roman students, who live at home and are a minority, the student life is a rootless existence in which political activity is the easiest social outlet.

NEO-FASCISTS and extreme rightists have practically disappeared from the universities, according to Ferraroti. The student and intellectual milieu of Rome are almost exclusively leftist. So, Ferraroti said, the Red Brigades are not isolated like the Baader-Meinhof terrorist group in West Germany.

In a visit to the offices of Luta Continua, the leading organ of the legal extreme left, on a grubby back street of Rome, most of the staffers were clean-shaven, short-haired people in their early 20s. They looked like they could have been taken off a 1950s American campus.

PAOLO BROGI, in his mid-30's, appeared to be the oldest person on duty. He repeated a statement now common within the Italian extreme left: "Reading the communiques of the Red Brigades is like leafing through an old family album." He said that much of their Leninist rhetoric sounds outdated, but that it is recognizable as part of the history of the left.

The Red Brigades come out of the same experience as his own group. Brogi said the 1968 student-worker revolt that spread across Western Europe after the May-June riots in Paris. The movement was more spectacular in France, Brogi said, but in Italy it lasted longer, grew deeper roots and the students succeeded in creating permanent links with the workers.

"We don't condemn violence," he said, "because the order under which we live is very violent. But we don't condone murder. Unlike the Red Brigades, we see our struggle as being against institution. We don't consider our adversaries symbols to be personally destroyed."

NEVERTHELESS, HE SAID there are those in his amorphous movement who approved of the Moro kidnaping. There is a daily temptation, he said Brogi, "to deny the Red Brigades. We are being blackmailed into condemning anti-parliamentarism. But we know who the Red Brigades are. They are not mysterious objects. They were with us in 1968."

Retail beef prices said rising faster

WASHINGTON (AP)

Retail beef prices have gone up even more sharply than the latest government report indicates, a cattle industry leader said today.

The Labor Department announced this morning that beef prices rose 2.6 percent in March, a factor in an overall 0.8 percent rise in the consumer prices during the month.

"The next time they come out you're going to see an increase and probably the next time after that," said Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

McDougal said a "relatively non-scientific" survey by the Association of Supermarkets in 19 cities for April shows that retail beef prices climbed even more sharply this month. This will be reflected in the government's next consumer price report, he said.

Cattle prices have gone up sharply the past six months in response to a massive cutback of herds by ranchers and farmers who were burdened by depressed market prices for about four years following a record buildup in the U.S. cattle inventory.

McDougal said he thinks "we're probably reaching some sort of a plateau" in the current cattle price spiral and that it may level off soon for several months and possibly longer.

Teacher called school 'Daddy'

The kids often make a slip and call him "Daddy."

John Druary Jr. is one of only a few male kindergarten teachers in the Houston Independent School District.

Druary, 29, said he "fell into" the child development field while working toward his bachelor's degree in psychology at the University of Houston. He took a part-time job at a day school to help pay his way, and that convinced him that teaching kids was "the thing I was really meant to do."

Gihan Sadat has strength of God

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

CAIRO — Because God gave her the position of Egypt's first lady. He gives her the strength to meet its demands. And so, Mrs. Anwar Sadat declared, she's never weary to the point of collapse nor so drained emotionally that she must cry for respite.

Gihan Sadat talked of God as the source of her strength and of the heavy demands on her time as she sat in the living room of her Cairo home. She faced a large window opening on a garden beyond which flowed the Nile. Egypt's strength since before the beginning of recorded history.

A servant quietly offered refreshments, fruit and cola beverages in small, precious goblets; strong coffee in fragile cups.

The Egyptian president's wife is a beautiful woman; though she laughingly discounted the fact.

"My son just asked me, 'Mother, have you looked at yourself recently?'" she said. "He told me, 'You look terrible.'"

"So I looked in the mirror and discovered that I'd gained about 10 kilos."

"I like food, but I don't eat properly. I'm so busy that I sometimes eat only once a day, and then I eat more than I should."

"Soon after I finish my examinations at the university, I'll go on a holiday, and rest and lose some weight."

Ten kilos or not Mrs. Sadat has small, beautifully fashioned ankles which her soft, mocha-hued, leather boots couldn't hide. Her dress was of a soft, printed fabric subtly blending dark rose and bluish lavender. She wore pale nail polish and no jewelry except a wedding band.

She did, however, wear an air of warmth and calm which so permeated the room that it was hard to imagine her ever hysterical no matter what the provocation.

"I do seem to have a calming effect on people," she admitted. "During the war in 1973, when I sat in the hospital with wounded soldiers, they'd grow more calm."

"At night I'd hear my husband talking on the phone. I'd know that he had many problems."

"But each day, when I went to the hospital, I felt calm, and this wasn't all acting."

When young soldiers, grievously hurt, cried to her, "Why? Why me? Why?" she'd answer from firmest conviction:

"We each must do our duty until the end of life. If you think negatively and ask, 'Why?' you'll be a bitter person."

"Think instead that you did your duty. Be proud of that. This is a time to look forward."

"The soldiers accepted this," she said, "so that on the day my husband ordered a ceasefire, they were angry."

"They wanted to go back and fight some more."

"Finally I asked them, 'Don't you trust your president?'"

"Yes," they said.

"Then, I told them, 'you must trust him in this.'"

Wife of a president, a mother, a grandmother and a University of Cairo student who will graduate in June, Mrs. Sadat might be forgiven if private interests consumed her entire time.

But they don't.

The welfare of her country, especially of its women and children, concerns her deeply, and she works tirelessly in its behalf.

"In the past," she said, "retarded children were hidden away. Even some of my friends felt that retarded children should be kept out of sight."

"But now we have centers to help them, and starting this year we are putting classrooms for retarded children in most schools so that they can have the special education they need while, at the same time, they'll have opportunity to associate with other children."

An outspoken advocate of women's rights, Mrs. Sadat is wary of extremists in the movement who, she thinks, "do more harm than good."

And, while she favors career opportunities for women equal to career opportunities for men, she hopes that the women's lib movement will never weaken Egyptian family ties.

"When I'm with women who are asking for more rights, I always urge them to keep their family ties strong," she said. "I very much believe in family ties, and I've noticed that in some countries where women fight hard for rights the family unit suffers."

Shortly three measures to help women will go before the Egyptian Parliament, pushed by Mrs. Sadat.

"Egyptian women have already taken a lot of their rights, and now they are going to take the rest," she said. "The first law will make divorce not so easy as it is now. It will take divorce out of the man's hands and place it in a court before a judge."

"The second will change custody arrangements. Now in case of a divorce, the father can take the children when the boy is 7 and the girl is 9. Under the proposed law, the children would stay with their mother until they are 14, and then they could decide with which parent they'd rather live.

"The third law would make it impossible for a man to take more than one wife unless he had his first wife's consent."

"And," Mrs. Sadat laughed, "I don't think he'd get that very easily."

Sometime ago, when students got wind of these potential changes in Egypt's domestic relations code, they rioted. But now the first lady hopes, they can be enacted quietly.

Regarding her own domestic relations, Mrs. Sadat remembered that she met her husband while she was spending a holiday with her aunt near the Suez Canal.

"He was just out of jail," she said, "and was visiting my cousin. I had followed his trial and was waiting to see what kind of a man he was." The kind of man he turned out to be is a loving and a peace loving man, she continued; one who sometimes discusses problems with his wife but who doesn't necessarily take her advice.

"When people criticize my husband, that's their right," Mrs. Sadat said. "So I don't mind the criticism. But, when they lie, I get angry."

"Yet I always try to stay calm, because, if you're calm, you win. Otherwise, even if you're right, you lose."

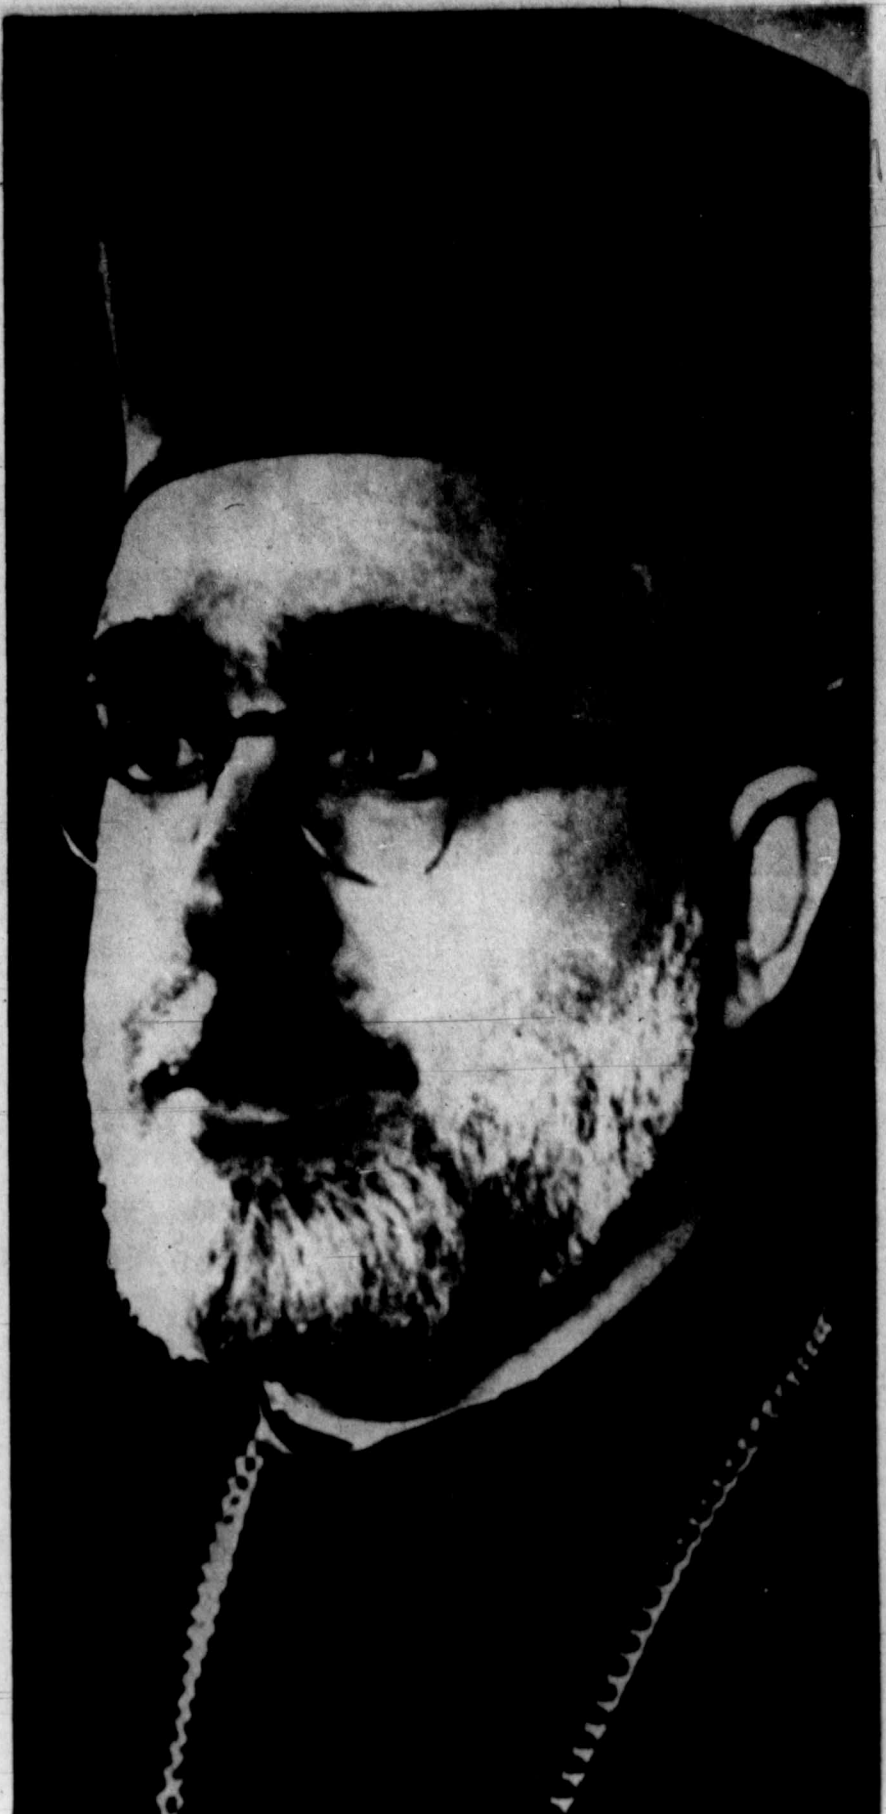

"I don't know how to hate. Still, I do sometimes get angry."

"During the '67 war while my husband was speaker of Parliament I was working in Sinai from seven every morning until late at night. I was helping refugees; helping old people onto buses; tending children; doing work of that kind."

"And I heard someone say, 'Look at Gihan doing all this for publicity to help her husband.'"

"The woman who said that killed me. I was furious — furious for maybe two minutes."

"Then I went directly to her and asked why she'd said such a thing. Now she is one of my best friends. Speaking to her directly was the best approach."

"THE LORD IS RISEN" will be the message of Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church, in tonight's midnight service. The ceremony will mark that religion's celebration of Easter. (AP Laserphoto)

Brother Andrew says 'go native'

By RITA GILLMON
Copley News Service

Brother Andrew likes to say that missionaries should go to foreign lands as servants of the Gospel, not of the Western culture.

"A missionary should have two countries. The one he is working in and heaven," Andrew said during an interview. "You have to forget all about bringing what you consider your superior culture to the primitives, and just bring them the knowledge of Jesus Christ."

Andrew is on a tour of the United States to promote his new book, "Battle for Africa."

A resident of Holland, he has dedicated the last 28 years of his life to taking Bibles and other "encouragement" to places where Christians are persecuted. At first he went on his own with the help of some Dutch congregations. After drawing considerable attention for smuggling Bibles into East European countries, he formed the Open Doors organization to enlist aid from new faces.

"Missionaries as well as civilian workers often run away from countries where their lives are in danger," Andrew said. "Open Doors moves into a country when others move out."

Open Doors is based in Holland, where it was founded in 1952.

"We have people going into Vietnam, Uganda and Ethiopia. We do not want to accept defeat or have the church accept defeat," he said. "If there is a law in a country that would limit the work of God, you must disobey and take the consequences. There are plenty of people to preach to in the jails."

Andrew said missionaries to any country today have to "go native" because they are the ones who don't get thrown out.

"I was in Vietnam before the war there ended, and I told the Christians there to stop worrying about buildings and concentrate on preaching to the people and making converts. They didn't listen. Today they are gone and there are not as many Christians left behind as there could have been," he said.

Andrew said letters from Christians left behind in those countries lament the lack of leadership training.

"They didn't have bad intentions," a Ugandan Christian said. "They just thought they would always be here to run things. When they left, we had to take over — and we are not ready."

Andrew said a young man who used to work as a missionary in Laos is now working with Open Doors in Africa.

"He says the missionaries' big mistake was not turning the church over to the people in time. When God starts a church, he has the leaders in that church," Andrew said.

He said he believes the South Africans have the ability to convert all of Africa and put a stop to revolution in that country.

"All you have to do is put the Bible in men's hands and you don't need arms, armies or military strategy. Their minds will turn to Christ and they will cease practicing the religion of the revolution, because that's what it is," he said.

What most people do not know is that the South African Bible Society distributed more Bibles last year than the American Bible Society, Andrew said.

"There are young people in South Africa who are ready to go anywhere to spread the Gospel, and that is what it takes," he said. "If I go anywhere in the knowledge that Jesus lives in me — in prison, Siberia or China — then Jesus is there. That means I don't need credit cards or traveler's checks. Jesus in me is enough to start a church anywhere."

Memorials given

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Public Library and the Juilliard School of Music recently received gifts totaling $450,000 from the Bruno Walter Memorial Foundation.

The Library, which received $200,000, will use the gift to improve and maintain the auditorium of its Library and Museum of the Performing Arts at Lincoln Center.

Visitor to lead services

The Rev. William Crossman, an evangelist from Whiting, Ind., is leading revival services through Sunday at the Northside Church of the Nazarene in Midland.

Services will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday and at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. Ralph Buffington is the church's pastor.

'Cancel out' your problems

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

An Arab loosely translated a phrase he had used as:

"The wise man learns to send one trouble after another and lets them fight it out."

The way I saw him put this bit of philosophy into practice was inviting all his wife's relatives to visit, so that his wife's mother would leave.

Opposing problems, like a double negative in an English sentence, cancel out each other.

A businessman, Ron Zonnars, had a nosy partner who interfered with the running of every department in the business. He cured this man's bad habit by directing the difficulties of the whole business to his partner's desk. The man could not stand it and after the blow-up he left all work but his own to the people responsible.

In a nutshell, the idea is to win by actions and protect by counteractions. When something is in your way, and it is not there because of someone blocking your way, direct methods are adequate.

Few people are permitted peaceful seas to sail on for long because people make waves. If you wish to be one jump ahead of the wave maker, here are a few rules:

Never frighten an egotist if you wish to win. You will have to put such a person in a position where he will make superhuman efforts to beat you. If you can be nonchalant and unmoved when someone insults you, you are the winner. If a person is trying to manipulate or use you, keep your head. The greater your trouble, the less of your strength should be apparent. Only scared cowards shout and threaten.

If you reveal your needs and weaknesses, rather than your strengths, the other person's arrogance often disappears. Someone else's strength will never show if yours is running rampant.

What I am saying is that there is nothing more powerful than innocent honesty. You can never measure your enemies when you're afraid of them.

Strangest, and yet the truest of all, is that the greatest protection against dishonesty is open simplicity. When a man is not honest, he becomes so complex in his calculations, he can't grasp your strength. Being natural and simple as a child puts him off. Why? Because treachery in the end destroys the wits of whomever uses it.

That is why a sly mind never knows good strategy. It can't see beyond its own sick design. Having no conscience, such a person cannot understand or grasp yours.

The first step in handling these situations lies within yourself. When you are upset about it, leave it alone until you can see the funny side. Remind yourself that the art of turning an enemy into a friend is in the fact that there is good and bad in all of us. Admit to yourself and your enemy the faults he sees in you. Then honestly discover the worth in him that you have ignored. Good sense and not emotions will guide you from here.

Mark down in your book of life that every situation in life is filled with invaluable lessons. Learn from each such occasion. You have paid the tuition to learn that lesson. Don't lose it for the failure to mark it down.

Last, never trust a man who hides his stupidity. The wiser a man, the more honest he is, and such a man will admit that he is able to learn and is not free from error. This is no admission of weakness, rather it is the best way to smooth out the certain waves of life's sea that I now know.

Five officers fired for involvement in 1977 shooting of Louisiana youth

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell Friday fired five officers for their involvement in the 1977 slaying of a Louisiana teenager.

Caldwell also requested and received the resignation of a sixth officer.

Those fired were William E. Byrd, 24; Danny H. Mays, 31; John T. Olin, 27; Norval W. Holloway Jr., 29, and Lt. Paul D. Dillon, 37.

A resignation was submitted by Officer James A. Estes, 28, who earlier had been suspended of duty with pay.

Byrd had pleaded guilty Thursday in federal court to a charge of concealing the commission of a crime.

Byrd said he provided a gun which officers left at the scene of the slaying of Randall Webster, 17, stopped by officers after a high-speed chase through the streets of Houston.

Three officers were fired Wednesday in the investigation of the 1975 death of Billy Keith Joyvies, 18, of Houston. Investigators have traced a .25-caliber automatic found in Joyvies' car to an officer who later was shot to death in a gunbattle with escaped convicts.

Caldwell said Byrd was relieved of duty the moment he entered a plea of guilty Thursday before U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton Jr. to a charge of willfully concealing an offense of providing a gun to be placed next to Webster's body.

Caldwell said he anticipates disciplinary action against all the principals in the Webster case.

"As soon as I establish the degree of culpability of any officers in any case, I'll take definitive action," he said.

He did not elaborate but said there may be "varying degrees" of disciplinary action.

The options range from letters of reprimand or days off without pay to indefinite suspensions, the city civil service term for being fired.

The .22-caliber revolver Byrd said he gave another officer at the scene of the Webster shooting has been traced to the police property room. Thursday's court proceedings did not reveal how Byrd obtained the gun after it was confiscated in a 1964 suicide investigation and was reported as having been destroyed in 1968.

The chase that ended with Webster's death began after a van was reported stolen from an automobile dealer.

In the Joyvies case, the chase began after sheriff's deputies reported seeing a tool kit being removed from a pickup truck.

Office-seekers become more vocal

By The Associated Press

Texas political candidates didn't say anything new Friday but they said it louder and faster as they approached the final week of campaigning before the May 6 primary balloting.

John Hill's campaign is faltering, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said in a news conference in San Antonio.

Governor Briscoe has spent over a million dollars in false advertising deliberately misrepresenting that I want a state income tax. This is a deliberate scare tactic," said Hill in San Antonio a few hours later.

"If John Hill's promises are kept, new taxes will be imposed on us in the near future and the only tax which would produce enough additional revenue to accommodate those Hill promises would be a state income tax. This would be a noose around the neck of every Texan and around the future of Texas," said Briscoe.

"Briscoe is trying to reverse the trend toward my victory with a last-minute, one-issue campaign. And that issue of taxes is a false issue," Hill said. Hill said he thought Briscoe's efforts would backfire by consolidating Hill's supporters with an increasing voter turnout.

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who has no opponent for re-election, took up for Briscoe saying that if Hill was elected "it will be turning the keys to the governor's office over to a Republican — John Connally."

Bullock reminded voters that Connally gave Hill his first taste of politics by appointing him secretary of state. "They've been close as stink on a skunk all these years," Bullock said.

Rep. Bob Krueger, candidate for U.S. Senate in the Democratic primary, challenged his opponent, Joe Christie, to discuss national issues. At an Amarillo news conference Krueger released an eight-page position paper on agriculture which calls for expansion of American export markets as well as higher farm prices and loan rates.

In Houston, Christie charged that Krueger was trying to limit a scheduled TV debate next Tuesday both as to subject matter and the viewing audience.

"They agreed to the debate, and now they want to censor it for politics reasons," Christie said. "It's not a debate if one candidate can dictate to the other what he can talk about."

Jim Baker, Republican candidate for attorney general, announced that former President Gerald Ford would visit Houston next Tuesday for a fundraising event in Baker's behalf, a tennis match. The main event will feature Ford and Baker in a doubles match joined by tennis professionals John Newcombe and Dick Stockton.

Mark White, Democratic candidate for attorney general, said in Levelland Friday that his proposed law suit against Montana for increased coal rates demonstrates the difference between White and his opponent, Price Daniel Jr. "While I am willing to dig in and fight for Texans, my opponent in typical fashion wants to avoid the really tough issues," he said.

run into levers which operate the canal and had been knocked unconscious and fallen into the canal and drowned.

But Dr. Ruben Santos, Bexar County medical examiner, ruled after an autopsy that Gamez had no water in his lungs. He also found contusions on the head and armpits, and concluded Gamez was strangled by a board or similar object placed against his throat, then was dragged or thrown into the canal.

"We're not completely discounting the possibility he was killed by aliens, but we're just not concentrating our investigation at the present time in that area," O'Connell said. He indicated the FBI would complete its investigation in about a week.

Gamez' personal .357-caliber Magnum revolver was found in the canal about 40 feet from where authorities believe his body entered it. It had been fired one time. O'Connell said the weapon would be sent to FBI laboratories for tests.

The FBI entered the case because of laws prohibiting assaults on federal officers. Jack Richardson, deputy chief of the Del Rio Border Patrol, said the death is the first involving a Del Rio sector Border Patrol Agent.

Richardson said 221 agents patrol an area which includes 205 miles of the Rio Grande from Langtry to Carrizo Springs. Gamez was found on the Moody Ranch, about eight miles northwest of Quemado in Maverick County.

After Gamez' body was found about a mile downstream in the irrigation canal, officers first theorized he had

Suspects still sought in weekend slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The FBI said Friday "we are looking at several suspects," not necessarily aliens, in last weekend's slaying of a Border Patrol agent on the Mexico border near Quemado.

"No charges were filed today, and I don't contemplate any, at least over the weekend," Joseph O'Connell, special agent in charge of the FBI at San Antonio, said after several persons were questioned. He said a lie detector test was administered.

The body of Jose T. Gamez, 31, of Laredo was pulled from a concrete-lined irrigation canal near the Rio Grande Saturday morning, about 10 hours after he was reported last seen by another Border Patrol agent, Frank Lugo.

Lugo said he and Gamez came across five aliens trying to cross the Rio Grande illegally about 11:30 p.m. Friday and that they split up trying to apprehend them. Lugo said he lost the aliens he was trying to catch and lost track of Gamez.

After Gamez' body was found about a mile downstream in the irrigation canal, officers first theorized he had

SAC head to ask study

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — President Jerome Weynand of San Antonio College says he will recommend that an outside agency investigate allegations of improprieties by officials of the junior college.

The investigation will center on charges made by eight maintenance men at the college who said they were told to perform work at the homes of four SAC officials, Weynand said.

The maintenance men told The Ranger, the SAC student newspaper, they did plumbing, air conditioning and carpentry work for the officials.

The maintenance men said they did the work on college time and using college district equipment and tools.

Weynand, following his own preliminary investigation, said Thursday he would recommend to the SAC board of trustees next Wednesday that an outside agency continue the probe.

Jaworki speaks in Houston

By BOB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP)—Leon Jaworski, special investigator in the Korean influence-buying scandal, said Friday if he could get testimony from former Korean ambassador Kim Don Jo, "We just might have this whole matter wrapped up."

Jaworski, principal speaker at a Houston Law Day, also told newsmen that he expected more indictments in the case on "possible perjury charges or other things."

Former Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., was the first congressional figure charged in the scandal and sentenced to serve six months to 30 months in a federal prison.

Also indicted was former Rep. Otto Passman, D-La.

Jaworski, the man who headed up the Watergate investigation, said, "This is a highly different ballgame. In Watergate I had the process of justice available to me."

"I had the people where I could subpoena them and take them before the grand jury. In Korea, I simply haven't had the people in the country to subpoena or to testify."

"We did get Tongsun Park under a situation with no limits, no restraints and that did help," he said.

Park, a South Korean businessman, testified before a congressional committee recently concerning payments made to certain U.S. congressmen.

Jaworski said Park has insisted he was not a foreign agent, "but the record shows that he was just that."

The Houston attorney also said the Korean investigation "is my last, and this is it for me. After Watergate and after this, the next time they (the government) calls, I will be so far in the Hill Country of Texas that the pony express can't find me."

In his speech to the Houston attorneys, Jaworski referred to Watergate, saying:

"Still fresh on my mind is the sadness of seeing one of the great tragedies of modern history — men who once had fame in their hands sinking to infamy — all because eventually their goals were of the wrong dreams and aspirations."

"The teaching of right and wrong had been forgotten and little evils were permitted to grow into great evils — small sins to escalate into big sins," he said.

Jaworski said that during the Watergate years, the U.S. Supreme Court left no doubt that "no one, absolutely no one, is above the law."

Manpower indictees surrender to officials

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — South Texas labor leaders Don and Clarence Gray surrendered Friday to the sheriff's office and posted bond of $10,000 each, following their indictment in a local probe of state job training programs.

The Grays were accompanied by two lawyers, and one, Buddy Wright, said he expects federal indictments against the two brothers in early May.

The Grays were indicted in January in Brownsville on multiple charges involving alleged abuses of job-training funds.

The Thursday indictment by the grand jury here charges the Grays with conspiring to steal more than $10,000 in state manpower funds.

The indictment indicates that between April 1 and Dec. 1, 1977, more than $137,496 in checks were made out by the Texas Department of Community Affairs to the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of Plumbing and Pipefitting Industry (Local 823).

Steve Brittain, head of the task force which conducted the local manpower probe, said the payments did not go to the Harlingen-based union, but went instead into private accounts of the Gray brothers.

Don Gray is the business manager and financial secretary of the South Texas union, and Clarence Gray headed South Texas Building Trades Education Services, Inc., the organization that allegedly received the money intended for the union.

Death causes determined

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — The Johnson County medical examiner ruled Friday that the four persons who perished in the GOEX munitions plant blasts April 20 died from "disembowelment due to explosion."

Raines said the identities of the four GOEX Industries employees could not be determined by laboratory analysis. However, based on family identification of clothing and body parts, statements by other employees at the plants and a small amount of physical evidence, Raines listed the four dead as Bobby Troba, 20; Rosemary Sauble, 23; Billy Gene Clanton, 24; and Elwin Brende, 62.

Israeli withdrawal not in sight

By H.D.S. GREENWAY
The Washington Post

JERUSALEM — Six weeks have passed since the United Nations Security Council met hurriedly to cope with Israel's invasion of southern Lebanon, calling for an immediate withdrawal of Israeli forces. Sunday Israel is staging its third partial pull-back in Lebanon, turning over positions in the eastern sector to the United Nations forces.

Despite the fact that virtually all Israeli leaders have said that Israel has no intention of keeping troops in Lebanon and would like to withdraw them quickly, however, a total withdrawal is not yet in sight.

Much of southern Lebanon lies in ruins, and there has been serious criticism in Israel itself both as to the wisdom of occupying Lebanese territory and the manner in which it was carried out.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and the Israeli army have all declared the operation a success. But there are other Israelis, some of them senior officials, who harbor grave doubts.

Supporters of the invasion say that the Palestine Liberation Organization has now been pushed north of the Litani River, that the PLO has suffered heavy losses and that the northern frontier of Israel is now safe from the threat that the PLO presence there presented.

"The damage caused to the terrorist organizations themselves, on the planes of morale, inter-Arab politics and military, is great," an official Israeli army summary of the operation said.

Detractors are not so sure. The Palestinians can boast that it took the Israeli army, with its vastly superior force, seven days to push them out of southern Lebanon — one day longer than it took Israel to defeat the armies of Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the 1967 war. The two operations cannot be legitimately compared, but the point being made is that PLO morale may have been enhanced, not reduced.

Politically, the PLO has been brought once more into center stage because of the Israeli invasion. When U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim conducted his recent investigation of the Lebanese situation, he consulted PLO leader Yasser Arafat on almost an equal footing as he consulted Menachem Begin.

Peace on the Litani depends as much on PLO observance of the cease-fire as it does on Israeli acquiescence.

As for the safety of Israel's northern settlements, many are still in range of PLO guns north of the Litani line at which the Israeli invasion halted.

Although the cease-fire has, on the whole, been respected, there have been exchanges of fire by both sides and, according to Lebanese Christians, their villages are still being occasionally shelled from PLO positions north of the Litani.

There has also been military criticism over the fact that the Israeli army put no blocking forces behind the PLO in order to stop their escape and that therefore the main PLO forces were allowed to withdraw while the Israelis pounded many undefended villages with artillery and air strikes. Of all the villages destroyed, there were comparatively few which the PLO actively defended.

As the military correspondent of the Jerusalem Post put it, the Israeli army abandoned the "Davidian" finesse for which it is famous in favor of stomping through southern Lebanon like a raging Goliath.

The amount of Israeli firepower employed is attested to by the ruins of solid stone houses throughout southern Lebanon. Everything from the new American F-15 fighters, which were employed in combat for the first time anywhere, to the tried-and-true and highly efficient killer known as the cluster bomb were brought into play.

That Defense Minister Weizman now says he was unaware of Israel's promise not to use cluster bombs on offensive operations does not inspire confidence in either Weizman or the Defense Ministry.

"It would have been foolish on our part had we acted like David while our strength was like that of Goliath," the recently retired chief of staff, Mordechai Gur, said of the operation he commanded.

"However, as political scientists Zeev Sternhai of Tel Aviv University recently wrote, 'The massive attack of a modern army on a guerrilla movement is not necessarily efficient and does not always achieve good results.'"

In a frank assessment that the Israel Defense Force made public as a preliminary summary of the Litani war, the Israeli army admitted to using tactics that would both increase civilian casualties and allow the main force PLO units to escape.

The summary says that the two main considerations were (1) to prevent the invasion from escalating into a war with Syria and (2) to carry out the task with a "minimum of losses to our forces."

"Every move and advance by our forces was preceded by an artillery softening up, bombing from the air and shelling from the sea," the report said. "It was clear that these bombings and shellings would cause suffering to the civilian population in southern Lebanon and would give the terrorists time to get out . . ."

"We took into consideration the suffering of our own residents, the destruction and damage to our settlements in the north in the course of recent years — the direct result of the collaboration, even if under compulsion, of the residents of southern Lebanon with the terrorists. We also took into consideration the large number of deaths in the terrorist raid on the coastal road (35 Israelis were killed in the March 11 attack near Tel Aviv). . . . We decided to carry out the operation with an advance softening up all along the front in order to reduce our losses to a minimum."

This remarkable document would seemingly hold the civilian population of southern Lebanon to account for collaborating with the PLO as a partial justification of the invasion, while at the same time admitting that this same collaboration may have been under compulsion.

However, informed observers here suggest that the holding down of Israeli military casualties was a political necessity. The relatively high losses of the 1973 war are still remembered here and the government might have lost considerable domestic support had the Israeli army suffered the casualties that would have been necessary to capture south Lebanon without largely destroying it first, let alone trying to block the retreat of the main force PLO units from the area.

As it was, the Israelis lost 19 men in combat and another 12 in accidents. The Israeli estimate of the number of PLO dead ranges between 250 and 300.

As for civilian dead, the Israelis admit to having buried 180 Lebanese civilians killed in the fighting and estimate that 100 more may have been buried by relatives or may yet lie under the rubble, according to the Jerusalem Post. The estimate does not include civilians who might have been killed in air raids and commando attacks north of Litani.

According to the British Broadcasting Corp., a reliable estimate of civilian dead from Lebanese and Red Cross sources put the number of civilian dead close to 1,000, with 250,000 refugees from the entire area, north and south of the Litani, having been generated by the invasion. The Israelis say about 60,000 civilians have returned to the area south of the Litani.

It is clear that the invasion had been planned for some time, and that the PLO raid on the Tel Aviv coast road merely provided the right psychological moment to attack.

Begin admitted as much when he told the Knesset foreign affairs and defense committee recently that sooner or later Israel might have had to strike into Lebanon even if there had been no "outrage" on the coast road.

Chief of Staff Gur admitted on television recently that he had long opposed an invasion of southern Lebanon, but that the PLO attack on the coast road changed the political circumstances both at home and abroad.

Higher meat, egg, fruit prices boost month's inflation index

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat, fruit and egg prices climbed sharply in March and helped boost consumer prices 0.8 percent during the month, signaling an annual inflation rate of more than nine percent, the government said Friday.

The latest figures, which government officials characterized as more bad news for the economy, likely will provide new pressure for the Carter administration to step up its anti-inflation campaign.

The Labor Department said overall food costs rose 1.3 percent in March on a seasonally adjusted basis. Beef prices increased 2.6 percent, pork prices rose 2.9 percent and fresh fruit costs jumped 4.7 percent.

Egg prices, which have dropped more than 10 percent during the past year, shot up 15 percent in March, largely because of problems delivering eggs to markets. Economists said the big increase was a one-month aberration since production usually picks up sharply during March and drives prices down.

Meat prices have been rising sharply all year because of reduced supplies and growing consumer demand. Agriculture Department economists and beef industry officials say shoppers haven't seen the end to those big price jumps.

Fresh fruit prices also have been advancing sharply since late 1977 — except for a decline in February — partially as a result of severe winter weather which reduced harvests.

The cost of buying or renting and maintaining a home rose 1 percent in March after climbing 0.6 percent in February and 0.8 percent in January.

The March consumer price increase, together with a 0.8 percent rise in January and a 0.6 percent increase in February, translates into a 9.3 percent annual inflation rate for the first quarter of the year.

That is well above the 6 to 7 percent inflation rate that the Carter administration has forecast for 1978.

Administration economists predict the inflation rate will moderate this year as it did in 1977. Last year, the inflation rate was over 9 percent during the first six months, but fell sharply during the second half to average 6.8 percent for the full year.

Prices for food and beverages were climbing at an annual rate of 15.4 percent during the first three months of the year, but the Agriculture Department predicts the rise for the full year will be half that rate. Food prices have risen about 8 percent in the past 12 months.

Housing prices have gone up at a 9.9 percent yearly rate during the quarter.

The Labor Department also reported Friday that despite the sharp rise in prices, average worker earnings more than kept pace in both March and in the past year.

The purchasing power of the average worker, after adjustments for higher prices, rose 0.2

percent in March due to a rise in both hourly earnings and the number of hours worked, the department said. Over the year, a worker's real spendable income, after taxes and Social Security deductions, rose 2.1 percent.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 189.8 in March, indicating that goods and services which cost $100 in a base period in 1967 cost $189.80 last month.

No new taxes. What has it meant for Texas?

The people of Texas like Dolph Briscoe's kind of government because they are getting more from state government now than ever before, but at the same time, they are keeping more of their hard-earned wages for their own use, rather than paying higher taxes for unneeded or ineffective programs.

But the people of Texas understand this, too: when something needs to be done, Dolph Briscoe gets it done.

- During the Briscoe Administration, we have put two and one-half billion additional state dollars into improving our public schools.
- During the Briscoe Administration, we have increased average teacher salaries 53 percent.

- During the Briscoe Administration, we have put new emphasis on vocational and technical education.
- During the Briscoe Administration, we have increased funding for medical education by 250 percent.
- During the Briscoe Administration, we have increased spending for mental health and mental retardation by 174 percent.
- During the Briscoe Administration, we have expanded programs for the aged by 200 percent.
- During the Briscoe Administration, we have protected our $35 billion investment in the best highway transportation system in the world by enacting the first comprehensive, long-range highway program since 1955 — and we did it without raising the gasoline tax.

The choice is clear. Do we want to continue with Dolph Briscoe's style of leadership that stands on a solid record of prosperity without big government and without new taxes? Or do we want the kind of John Hill leadership that will promise anything to gain votes? The kind of leadership that will surely result in more governmental interference in your life and a state income tax next year.

Free-fall photographers operate from sky downward

The Los Angeles Times

ELSINORE, Calif. — Look around long enough in any outdoor sport and you'll find a photographer who specializes in photographing it.

There are hunting photographers, fishing photographers, surfing photographers, yachting photographers, hang-glider photographer, scuba-diving photographers, mountain-climbing photographers, dirt-bike photographers, skiing photographers and bird-watching photographers.

But perhaps the most specialized of all are the guys who photograph skydivers. They call themselves free-fall photographers. They work not from the ground or from airplane windows. Rather, they operate movie and still cameras — simultaneously — while falling thousands of feet at 110 to 120 mph.

"It can get pretty scary," says Mike Jenkins, a free-fall photographer since 1965. "You get so intent on photographing other people sky diving that you don't have time to look out for people below you."

"If a guy pulls his chute right below you, all of a sudden he's doing 10 mph and you're doing 110 or 120. We worry about that — free-fall collision — more than anything."

That's why Jenkins wears a distinctive jump suit — tiger-orange, with black stripes.

"I want to be recognized instantly by other divers," he explained. "I want them to know I'm taking pictures, not looking where I'm falling."

"Our sport is visually powerful," Jenkins said. "And the reason is that it touches a chord or nerve ending that lies within all of us — that everlasting human fantasy to fly without wings."

Jenkins and two other full-time sky diving photographers, Carl Boenish and Rand Deluca, were at Elsinore recently to photograph attempts by 50 formation divers to link up in an unprecedented 50-man formation. The attempts have been going on since January.

For an official linkup, the divers must hold the formation for at least five seconds — time for only a few clicks of the shutter. Sometimes, photographers miss.

Jenkins: "If we blow a shot up there, formation divers can be unmerciful. I mean, I wonder sometimes if I'm going to get the only shots of a formation together. Then they love me. I'll charge $12 for 11-by-14 color prints to the participants and up to $35 for non-participants."

"And my movie footage becomes something I can work into a feature film."

Jenkins, 37, lives in Whittier, Calif. Boenish, 36, lives in Hawthorne, Calif. Deluca, 29, is from Whitefish, Mont. Attend a major sky-diving meet and chances are you'll see all three. They'll be the ones wearing cameras on their heads.

All are skilled drivers, with more than 1,000 jumps. Boenish: "I've had around 1,400 jumps, 1,050 of them camera jumps. My seconds in free fall add up to about 18 hours."

"Boenish and Deluca use two toggle switches in one hand, with the cable running through the sleeves of their jumpsuits to the still and movie cameras mounted on their helmets. A flick of one switch activates the movie camera. The still camera switch can snap pictures one at a time, or, if the camera is motorized, in series.

Jenkins operates his still camera with his tongue, the toggle switch gripped with his teeth.

"I just like the idea of having two free hands quickly in an emergency," he said.

"You can't sky dive with a hand-held camera," said Boenish. "The wind could blow it right out of your hands. Anyway, you need all four limbs to be stable in free fall. The camera has to be mounted on your helmet. You have to lock your aperture opening a hutter speed settings with tape — or the wind will blow them off."

Boenish owns eight helmets, each with different camera mounts. He owns 30 cameras, 27 of them movie cameras. His still cameras are two motorized Nikons and one small Rollei.

Oddly, the movie cameras preferred by free-fall photographers aren't the latest from Japan. They're small 16mm surplus cameras from World War II, made by Bell and Howell, Fairchild and Leitz. Many were once wired to machine gun triggers on P51 fighter planes.

"They're very rugged. Lightweight and versatile," said DeLuca. "They've been mounted on surfboards, skateboards, helicopters and motorcycles."

In January, Boenish snapped a picture of a near-miss attempt at a 50-man linkup that was published in the Los Angeles Times. Within a week, Boenish sold the photo to the Associated Press, United Press International, Time, the London Sunday Times, bunte magazine of West Germany, Manchette magazine of Brazil. He sold movie film of the attempt to CBS news and it was shown on the "Tonight" show. "To Tell the Truth" and "Wide World of Sports."

Boenish: "There's a fundamental reason why people enjoy looking at sky-diving movies and pictures — it's the sensation of human flight. And I really believe to photograph it well you have to be in love with the sport, just like you should be totally absorbed in skiing to be a good ski photographer."

Places you might visit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Old towns don't die or even fade away. Towns with such forgettable names as Frankenstein, Devils Elbow, Hayti Heights, Northwey, State Line and Wilderness have made a successful fight to get back on the map.

The 1978 Missouri map of highways, waterways and cities includes 58 towns left off previous editions of the map.

The battle began when the Kansas City Times noted that cities with only four residents were on the map, but towns with several hundred were left off.

After a number of calls and letters from residents of the unlisted communities, John Crews, assistant planning engineer of the State Highway Commission, drew up guidelines for putting a town on the map.

All incorporated towns are now listed and unincorporated towns with more than 50 residents are also included.

He said that towns that don't meet the requirements will remain on the map if previously listed. That insures a bit of ink for Bado, Arab, Nosser Mill and Vida.

Oil riches modernizing Sinbad's hometown in Iraq

The Los Angeles Times

BASRA, Iraq — Sinbad the Sailor of the "Arabian Nights" would not recognize his old storybook home town. But a retired British civil servant, returning years later, would find this historic old city little changed.

The Shatt Arab is still the best hotel in town, which is not say much. But he could order a pink gin and watch the sun set over the date palms, just as in the old days when Basra was an imperial outpost on the way to India.

But changes, however, are evident outside Basra. The surrounding flatland is a jumble of cranes, new factories and construction camps for workers of a dozen nationalities. Powerful arc lights burn through the night as a dozen major projects are rushed to completion.

With its oil revenues, socialist Iraq is building a Pittsburgh in this once deserted region where the Tigris and Euphrates rivers come together for the final journey into the Persian Gulf. Its most dramatic symbol is a new bridge sitting in the middle of the desert, miles from the nearest water.

Built by a French and Japanese consortium, the bridge eventually will span a deep-water canal designed to bypass the silt-filled Shatt al Arab waterway and permit navigation deep into the interior.

The city is still webbed by six canals that give it a Venetian air of sorts. So do the sharis, boats that look much like Venetian gondolas.

The visitor might be a bit confused by the babble of dialects and languages in the old souk or marketplace. The harsh guttural Arabic of southern Iraq is still heard, as if Parsi from nearby Iran.

But mixed in today is a softer, more mellifluous Arabic spoken by Egyptian fellahen, or farmers, brought in and settled by the thousands to try to solve Iraq's growing manpower crisis.

days, with sofas and chairs covered in garish cracked plastic. The linen in the restaurant is so worn that it must survive from the day of the British.

But the hotel has a certain gentility about it. The headwaiter and most of the help have been here since the hotel opened. They are friendly and courteous, a welcome change for a weary traveler from Bagdad, where socialism seems to mean only surly waiters.

The Shatt may be the last hotel in the world where you can get a room with breakfast for $10 a night. If you want to risk the other meals, you may be lucky enough to hit the hotel when it is serving something called potato curry, a dish that old-timers claim exists nowhere else. After tasting it, one quickly

The Shatt will soon have stiff competition for the traveler's dollar. The city is expanding with the economic boom, and both Sheraton and the French Novotel chains are building new hotels here. With them, undoubtedly, will come the $100-a-night rooms that are common around the Persian Gulf.

Basra's mayor, a government-appointed engineer named Mundher Abdel Jabbar Bakr, said the city has grown to half a million people since the oil boom started in 1973 with the quadrupling of oil prices.

The old population was 300,000, and the increase has caused many problems. The price of land skyrocketed, and the rent for European-type bungalows of the style that foreign engineers would find habitable has soared to $20,000 a year.

The government stepped in and decreed that owners should get only a 7 percent return on any houses more than three years old. Rents have gone down by almost half since then, the mayor said.

The government is also anxious that Basra not swell out of proportion with the influx of workers into the new industrial complex. By the year 2,000 Iraq expects to have 1 million people living in the greater Basra area. One solution to the problem of accommodating them, just beginning to sprout from the barren reaches, is a new industrial city to house 250,000 people.

The new city is to be called Bakr City, after Iraq's President Ahmed Hassan Bakr, not the mayor.

But he is fighting a losing battle. The era of socialist construction has arrived in Basra, helped along by a hefty dose of capitalist ingenuity and technology.

The streets are festooned with banners, proclaiming the virtues of Arab socialism. Political posters are plastered everywhere, a recent one showed Egyptian President Anwar Sadat wearing a Moshe Dayan eye Omar, and it is still patch and with an American flag as the down a date palm.

Mayor Bakr runs the city with the help of an 11-man council, including municipal officials and representatives of the professions, trade unions and the Baath Arab Socialist Party, which rules the country. There are no elections, but Bakr said his name was one of several submitted as prospective candidates to various public and political organizations, so it was not exactly as if Bagdad simply decreed him mayor without local consultation.

Bakr's father was one of the world's foremost experts on date cultivation and has written the definitive work on the subject. And the date palm is still part of the Basra legend.

The first date palms were planted here in the 7th century of the Caliph Omar, and it is still against the law to cut a date palm.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The work of art familiarly known as "Whistler's Mother" was the subject of the first Mother's Day stamp ever issued, but it infuriated art lovers because details of the portrait were missing, the shape was changed and a vase of carnations — the official Mother's Day flower — was added, according to Hallmark historian Sally Hopkins.

"Arrangement in Grey and Black," as the work of art is actually titled, was painted in 1871 by James Whistler. It was exhibited in the United States in 1934, the year the commemorative stamp was issued. The stamp has become a collector's item.

Pack netters finals in regi

By PAUL DOMOWITCH
R-T Sports Writer

LUBBOCK— No school in the history of Texas high school tennis has ever won all four state titles (boys' singles and doubles, and girls' singles and doubles) in the same year, and more than likely that situation won't change this year.

But Coach Larry Burgin's Midland High Bulldogs kept that ever so remote possibility alive here Friday when Jeff Bramlett, in singles, and Kirk Farquhar and Joe Love, in doubles, advanced to today's finals in the Region I Boys Tennis Tournament and earned berths in the state tourney in Austin in two weeks.

Last week in the girls regional event, the Pack's Vicki Vasicek won the singles title and Dinah Boyd and Cary Garton were runnerups in doubles. So that gives Midland an entry in every event at state.

Bramlett, the top-seed in the singles event, had little trouble making it to today's 10 a. m. final, where he'll face second-seeded Wayne Oppenheim of El Paso Eastwood. After an opening round bye, the MHS junior eliminated Oppenheim's teammate, Mark Thompson in the quarterfinals, 6-2, 6-1, and later defeated Dan Gordon of Waco Richfield in the semis, 6-0, 6-1.

FARQUAR AND LOVE, the top seeded tandem in doubles, got a scare in their quarterfinal match against El Paso Coronado's Bill Vickers and Brian Kavanaugh. The two Border City netters extended them to three sets, before the Midlanders won, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. In the semis they downed Richard Liles and Edgardo Quinonez of Killeen, 6-1, 6-1, and will face Robert Davis and Dale Anderson of Lubbock Coronado in today's final. Davis and Anderson upset second-seeded Mike Madden and Steve Ashley of Odessa Permian in the semis, 4-6, 7-6, 6-1.

The Bramlett-Oppenheim battle will be a rematch of the Tall Cit Classic final, where Oppenheim came out on top, and Bramlett has a great deal of respect for the El Paso youngster's ability.

"With his talent, it's a wonder he ever loses," Bramlett said after he disposed of Gordon with ease. Oppenheim struggled through his last few tournaments on the winter circuit, but as Bramlett emphasized, "When he really wants to win, he's tough to stop." And chances are he wants to win today.

Love and Farquhar were just thankful to still be in this tournament after the scare they got in the quarters. "I saw 1978 flash before my eyes," said a relieved Farquhar after they held off Vickers and Kavanaugh.

THE MIDLAND netters found it practically impossible to hold serve in the decisive final sets, and were it not for the fact that they broke their opponents four out of five times, they'd be watching from the stands today.

Davis and Anderson staged an impressive comeback to upset Permian's Madden and Ashley, who beat Love and Farquhar in the District 5-4A doubles final two weeks ago. After winning the first set, Madden and Ashley were up 5-3 and had double match point. But the Coronado pair

Amarillo Falls to Midland, 8-5

AMARILLO—The Midland Cubs ended up with a split of this six-game series with the Amarillo Gold Sox here after pouncing out an 8-5 victory Friday night.

The Cubs were in control of this one the entire game, and held an 8-1 lead after 7½ innings of play. The Gold Sox managed four runs in the bottom of the seventh to make a run at the game, but the Cubs managed to hold on.

Herman Segelke, now 2-1 on the year, pitched brilliant ball for seven innings. He had a four-hitter going through seven innings, but tired in the eighth. Segelke faced five batters in the eighth, but couldn't get anyone out. Tom Butler came on in relief to notch the save. Butler gave up a hit in the eighth, but set the Gold Sox down in the ninth. That was encouraging since Butler was touched for 11 earned runs in 2½ innings Wednesday night against the Gold Sox.

Midland scored two runs in the first inning when Kurt Seibert tripled and scored on a passed ball, and the other run came on a sacrifice fly by Kevin Drury.

The Cubs added four in the fourth as singles by Seibert, Steve Macko and a triple by Jimmy Buckner did the damage. That was all the Cubs needed.

Buckner extended his hitting streak to 14 games with a three-for-five night at the plate.

The Cubs open a six-game stand in El Paso today.

Cards name Ken Boyer as skipper

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Boyer, manager of the Rochester Red Wings of the International League and a former major league baseball player, was named manager of the St. Louis Cardinals Friday.

August A. Busch Jr., chairman of the board and president of the team, said in a brief statement that Boyer was chosen "after consideration of a number of candidates."

"We have come to the conclusion that Ken Boyer is the best choice available," Busch said. "We are confident that he will bring to the job the same skill and dedication that made him an outstanding player and successful minor league manager."

Boyer was reported to be with the Red Wings in Charleston, W. Va., preparing for a game.

Boyer takes over from Vern Rapp, who was fired as manager of the Cardinals Tuesday while the team was in Montreal.

Weibring leads in New Orleans despite Player

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — South African Gary Player, grimly seeking a fourth consecutive victory, fashioned a 5-under-par 67 that left him 3 strokes back of longshot leader D.A. Weibring in Friday's second round of the $200,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm can't say I'm even thinking about winning," said the bright, fresh faced Weibring, a 24-year-old rookie whose 8-under-par 64 ranked as his best round as a pro.

Weibring, fighting to retain his playing rights, looked over his shoulder at the menacing figures of Player and Lee Trevino, then grinned and commented: "There's no way in the world you can say I'm favored. Let's just say I'm honored to be in such company."

His spectacular score, which matched the record on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course, produced a 36-hole total of 133, 11 under par.

Player, 42 and playing the most spectacular golf of his career, could have been closer than his 136 total.

"I'm happy with a 67, certainly," said Player, the comeback winner of the Masters, Tournament of Champions and Houston Open in his last three starts and now seeking to become the first man in 26 years to win four consecutive titles. "I'm quite charged up. I know what I have to do to win. I have to take advantage of my opportunities and I really didn't do that today."

He said he failed on birdie chances on the 11th and 12th holes, missed a 10 foot eagle putt on the 15th, a five-foot birdie putt on the next hole and a four-foot par-saving putt on the next. "With a little better putting, I would have shot 63," Player said.

Pat McGowan, another rookie, trailed Weibring by a single shot at 134 after a 66 in the ideal playing conditions — warm, sunny weather with just the hint of a breeze stirring the moss dripping from the ancient oak and cypress that dot the course.

Trevino, the first-round pacesetter, was next at 135. He shot a 70 that, he said, "is like losing 2 shots to par. It was just one of those days when nothing happened. I played pretty well, didn't make a bogey, but just didn't get it close to the hole."

He was tied with Fuzzy Zoeller and Mike Shea, each of whom shot 65.

Player, who started the day in a tie for 18th and moved past 12 men, was tied at 136 with Phil Hancock, who had a 68.

Of the first seven players at the tournament's halfway point, only Player and Trevino have ever won.

Weibring, who must win $1,200 in the next six weeks to retain his tour playing rights, said his putting improved enormously today after he'd added some lead tape to the heel of his putter. "I'm sure it's all mental, but the putter felt good in my hands. I was very confident."

He dropped three putts in the 12-15 foot range to make the turn in 33 and got wedge shots to within 4 feet for birdies on the 11th and 12th.

He faded a 3-iron around some trees and watched it run on the green some

Texas League Bullets down Spurs, 103-100

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Reserve guards Larry Wright and Charles Johnson combined for 30 points, sparking Washington to a 103-100 victory over the San Antonio Spurs Friday night. The win advanced the Bullets into the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference finals.

Washington won the best-of-seven series 4-2 over the Central Division champions, who have never won in seven starts at the Capital Centre over a two-year period.

Washington will open the conference finals, another best-of-seven series, against the Eastern Division champion Philadelphia 76ers in Philadelphia Sunday.

Washington scored 8 of its 10 points in the final quarter, including four during an 8-point Washington streak which gave the Bullets a 96-88 lead. Elvin Hayes, who scored 25 points, added the other four, one basket on a fast break feed from Wright.

Johnson finished with 20 points, 14 in the second quarter which helped Washington to a 58-52 halftime lead.

Reserve forward Mark Olberding led San Antonio with 24 points, 16 in the first half when George Gervin, the NBA scoring champ, took only 5 shots.

Gervin rallied the Spurs in the second half and finished with 23 points, but his last two baskets came after Washington had gone ahead 99-90. Gervin sat out the last five minutes of the first half after picking up his third foul.

Hayes was charged with three fouls in the first quarter but managed to play 19 minutes of the first half. He hit 11 of 23 shots and pulled down 14 rebounds.

Washington center Wes Unseld had 16 rebounds and 12 assists.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The vice president of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission said Friday he is convinced the Rams will remain in Los Angeles, despite published reports the National Football League team would move to Anaheim.

"I'm predicting that the Los Angeles Rams are going to stay in the Coliseum and they are not going to move to Anaheim Stadium," said Kenneth Hahn, who talked with Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom earlier in the day.

"Rosenbloom told me he hasn't made up his mind yet and he's still willing to make a deal with Los Angeles," said Hahn, a Los Angeles County supervisor.

Hahn added that the Rams' owner indicated he did not agree with the Los Angeles newspaper report that he already had decided to move the team to Anaheim in 1980.

Rebs, Bulldogs in key 5-4A games today

By BOB DILLON
Robert E. Lee and Midland High have important baseball games on tap today.
Lee's Rebels entertain the Odessa Permian Panthers at 2 p.m. at the Lee diamond while the Bulldogs face the Odessa Bronchos at Fly Field in Odessa.
Lee, Abilene, Abilene Cooper and Big Spring are all tied for first place in the second half of the race with 3-1 record while the Purple Pack is one game behind with a 2-2 record.
Craig Van Horn (3-0) most likely will get the nod to pitch today for the Rebels while Tracy Gann or Archie Booth will go for the Pack in Odessa.
Lee's attack is led by outfielders Richard Josefy, Tyler Alcorn and Pat Moore. All three are hitting above .400 on the year with Josefy sporting a roubst .429 average. Next comes Alcorn with .410 and Moore with a .405 average.
The Rebels are hitting at a .331 clip on the year, but the usually potent bats were silent in Tuesday's 2-1 loss to Big Spring in 10 innings.
IN DISTRICT play, Josefy is hitting .467 while Moore follows with a .452 average. John White of Lee owns a .400 loop mark while Van Horn is hitting .378 and Todd Clements .368.

Midland's attack on the year is led by Jimmy Zachry with a .379 average and although the junior's average had has dropped in recent league games, he's still hitting .353 in 5-4A play.
Clements leads Lee with 20 runs-batted-in while Zachry and teammate James Allen lead the Pack with 24 and 23 RBIs respectively.
Gann has lifted his season batting average to .307 now.
In other 5-4A games today, Big Spring is at Cooper and Abilene is hapless San Angelo Central which stands 0-4.

Permian's Gary Hix continued to lead the 5-4A hit parade going into today's contests with a .471 average.
Josefy is the No. 2 and Moore the No. 3 hitter in the league.
MOORE HAS the most hits — 19, while he has also scored 14 runs to lead in that scored 14 runs to lead in that department too. He leads in another category with seven doubles.
Tony Mann of Big Spring led leads in home runs with five and the 230-pound catcher has knocked in 13 runs, but Terry Austin of Abilene is the top

RBI man with 15.
Clements leads in triples with three while Moore has been to bat the most times, 42.
Lee takes an 18-8 season record into the game with Permian while Mojo stands 9-12 on the year and 1-3 in league competition.
Big Spring is 11-15 while Cooper stands 11-7 and Abilene is 12-9.
Midland is 11-13 and OHS stands 9-10. San Angelo, meanwhile, is 11-11 on the year.
Brian Cantrell will throw for OHS today while it may be either Byron Taylor and Matt Lummus for Permian.

eight feet from the flag on the par 5 15th, then made the eagle putt that put him in a tie for the lead. A 12-1/2 foot birdie putt on the next hole gave him the top spot alone.

Player, whose dramatic comebacks have captured the imagination of the golfing world, wouldn't say so but was obviously annoyed he didn't shot a lower score than his 67.

"I'm trying to win four in a row, and if I make it, I'll be trying to win five in a row," he said. "To do that, you must take advantage of your opportunities. True, I made three long putts, but I'm not one to say, 'I made some long ones so I can afford to miss some short ones.' You must take advantage."

He birdied the second from three feet, flipped out a 20-foot eagle putt on the 6th and tapped in for birdie, holed from 35 and 50 feet on the ninth and 10th, then failed on putts he felt he should have made on six of the next seven holes before closing with a 25-footer for birdie on the 18th.

PGA champ Lanny Wadkins shot a 73 for 144, par for two rounds but not good enough to qualify for the final two rounds. Tom Watson was 70-143.

Wilkins sets new record

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Mac Wilkins delivered a meet record for Drake Relays officials Friday, but the mile run fizzled.

Wilkins, the discus world record holder, brought the Relays record into the modern era with a toss of 64.32 meters, or 211 feet. Parry O'Brien's mark of 180-2 had stood since 1968.

"I throw like it was the first competition of the year — it was," said Wilkins. "It was not an artful performance."

The opening day of the 69th running of the Midwest's oldest and largest spring track meet drew some 14,700 track and field buffs. Saturday's program has been a sellout at 18,000 for several weeks.

Many of the fans — not to mention the embarrassed Relays officials — hoped to see a sub-four minute mile, but that did not materialize.

Niall O'Shaughnessy successfully defended his title in a time of 4 minutes, 17.8 seconds.

He was expected to be pushed by Steve Scott, the California-Irvine flash who ran a 3:53.9 mile last month. But Scott withdrew because of illness.

"I'm really sorry I won't be able to run today," Scott told the crowd. "Regardless of what happens here today, I'll be back next year to beat the meet record."

Randy Wilson of Oklahoma bettered his own record in the special 800 meter run, beating veteran Mike Bolt, the NCAA record holder.

HOUSTON (AP) — Earl Campbell has a busy schedule for the month of May.

The Heisman trophy winner is to fly Monday to New York, where on Tuesday he is to appear on the Today Show before moving over to National Football League draft headquarters to be picked as No. 1 by the Houston Oilers.

Then he is to fly to Houston, where a helicopter will take him to Oiler headquarters for a mid-afternoon signing of a contract reportedly worth $1.3 to $1.5 million.

Details of the contract were hammered out during a 20-hour negotiations session that ended Thursday night.

Technically, Campbell cannot sign until after the draft but Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr. said the long negotiations session set a precedent.

"To my knowledge, no other draft choice in the NFL has been under agreement prior to the draft," Adams said.

Both Adams and Campbell said they were happy with the contract but the nearest they came to revealing details was to say it was for more years than four and less than seven.

There was indication, however, there is an extended payout period for the contract, perhaps from 20 to 25 years.

Mike Trope, Campbell's agent from Los Angeles, declined to compare with agreement with others he had negotiated in the past but earlier had said he would ask the Oilers to agree to terms similar to those he negotiated last year with the Dallas Cowboys for Tony Dorsett, the 1976 Heisman winner.

"We achieved what we set out to do," Trope said after the Oiler session.

"This is the style I like to deal in. No unnecessary gyrations."

After the Tuesday signing ceremonies, Campbell said he will return to Austin and attend classes Wednesday at the University of Texas.

"My last final is May 20," he said. "I'll split the rest of May between Austin and Tyler. I'll be back in Houston on June 1."

Campbell plans to have a new home under construction at Tyler for his widowed mother before the end of the month.

Adams said the contract agreement amounts to a national letter of intent. "We wanted to come forward and show we were prepared to sign Earl," he said.

Most of the negotiations were handled by Trope, Ladd Herzog, Oiler executive vice president, and Pat Pepler, assistant general manager.

"Earl and I didn't do much," Adams said. "We sat back and smoked Havana cigars."

Welling, New Deal set pace in region track

ODESSA—Welling and New Deal each scored 14 points to take the early first day lead in the Class A Region 1 boys track and field meet here Friday, but only five of the 14 events are complete.

The Class A run will end today with a 1 p.m. start in the running finals at W. T. Barrett Stadium. Qualifying was held in all other events Friday. The AAA meet will run in its entirety today since qualifying was not necessary.

In Friday's pole vault finals, Rankin's Richard Barrett narrowly missed a state berth with a third place 13-0 feet. Kyle Hinson of Clint had the same height, but had fewer misses to earn the state berth.

The top two winners in each event will move to Austin in two weeks for the state championships.

McCamey's Lenny Luna was another area thinclad to narrowly miss a state berth with a third place 20-8 in the long jump. Stanton's Oscar Perez was fourth in the same event with a 20-5 1/2. Rankin's Michael Dupriest managed a 6-0 1/2 in the high jump, but that was only good for a four-way tie for fifth place.

McCamey has no more shots at a state berth while Rankin's Randy Goslon posted a 42.0 second to qualify for the 330-yard intermediate hurdles today. His time, however, was the worst of the qualifiers.

Stanton, on the other hand, qualified four individuals and a relay team for today's finals.

STANTON, HOWEVER, failed to qualify its 440-yard relay team with a series of bad handoffs. The mile relay unit, however, posted the best time of the field in the prelims with a 3:27.6.

Marvin Jones qualified in the 100 with a 10.2 while Todd Smith made the 440 field with a 52.1. Mike Swin had a 15.4 qualifying time in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Mitch Elmore recorded a 2:08.0 to make the 880 field.

Lee, MHS thinclads star

LUBBOCK Midland High and Midland Lee neither missed a step in the running preliminaries as all hopefuls managed to gain today's finals at the Texas Tech oval in the Region 1 boys AAAA AA track meet.

Sophomore David Simmons failed to place in the top six of the discus finals Friday in the only major disappointment of the day.

Lee qualified both relay teams. The 440-yard relay team posted a 42.8 for the third best time of the day, but won their heat. Killeen set a new region record with a 40.9 while Address had a 42.7.

Lee's mile relay team posted a 3:21.5 for the second fastest time behind Killeen's super 3:18.8. The top two places in each event in today's finals advance to the state meet in Austin in two weeks.

Lee's Phil Carleton had his fastest time of the year in the 440 to qualify for today's finals with a 49.6, but it was second in his heat and third best on the day. Jesse Cavil of Temple, who beat Carleton Friday, had a 49.1 for the fastest time.

Midland High's Alvin Price qualified in both the 100 and 220. He had a fine 9.7 to win his heat in the 100, but William Owens had the day's best mark of 9.6.

Owens also had the fastest time in the 220 with a 21.7 while Price had the fourth best with a 22.6.

Aggies capture lead in SWC

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Texas A&M turned three Arkansas errors into four runs and beat the Razorbacks 6-1 Friday to take a one game lead in the Southwest Conference baseball race.

The Razorbacks got off to a 1-0 lead when Shaun Lacey cracked a home run in the bottom of the fourth inning against Aggie starter Mark Ross.

However, Arkansas' defense collapsed in the fifth.

Tim Feikert opened the Aggie fifth with a base hit and Buster Turner laid down a bunt, attempting to sacrifice. Razorback pitcher David Rhodes fielded the bunt and threw wildly to first, allowing Feikert to reach third.

Randy Woodruff then attempted a squeeze bunt and Rhodes threw home in time to get Feikert, but catcher Jeff Hemm dropped the ball.

Robert Bonner snapped the tie with a run-scoring single to right. First baseman Ed Wallace cut off the throw from the outfield and then threw wildly to the plate, allowing Woodruff and Bonner to take an extra base.

Two outs, Kyle Hawthorne looped a base hit to left that scored Woodruff and Bonner.

The Aggies added insurance runs in the seventh and ninth against Rhodes, who suffered his first defeat after five victories.

Ross was the winner, improving his record to 8-3. He scattered seven hits, struck out seven and walked only one during the nine innings. He was aided by four doubleplays.

A&M is 18-4 in SWC play and Arkansas is 17-5 going into Saturday's doubleheader. The Razorbacks must win both games to capture their first conference baseball title.

The Razorbacks were without leading hitter Tim Lollar, who bruised his right shoulder against Tulsa. Lollar, was scheduled to pitch the first game Saturday, but is doubtful.

AL boxes Giants take key

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gary Lavelle pitched the bottom of the ninth in relief of winner John Montefusco, 1-1.

The Giants took a 2-0 first-inning lead on solo home runs by Madlock and Clark. Dave Parker countered with a two-run homer in the Pirates' first, then singled home another run in the third to give Pittsburgh a 3-2 edge.

Gary Lavelle followed with an opposite-field bases-clearing double that was fair by a foot down the left-field line.

Randy Moffitt and Willie McCovey slammed a three-run double off John Cantelaria in the ninth inning, lifting the San Francisco Giants to a 5-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

The Pirates, who had won five in a row, led 3-2 entering the ninth but with one out Cantelaria, 1-3, walked Bill Madlock, Darrell Evans and Jack Clark. McCovey followed with an opposite-field bases-clearing double that was fair by a foot down the left-field line.

Riggins ready for good year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Running back John Riggins, coming off a knee injury that kept him from the Washington bench for most of 1977, said Friday he's healthy and would be prepared to start the new Redskins' National Football League season if it began in two weeks.

Riggins said: "I can't even tell I was injured last year. My right leg is a little weaker than the other one but I can barely tell the difference. I feel that if we had to play a game in two weeks, I'd be prepared."

Riggins, who signed a multiyear contract with the Redskins at an estimated $300,000 per year in 1976, was one of 51 free agents and injured reserve players named Coach Jack Pardee invited to a three-day minicamp at Redskins Park in suburban Virginia.

Riggins wondered why he had to be there.

"It's strange," he told a small group of reporters, "I'm the highest paid guy on the team and I'm working with the free agents."

He didn't work long. After the morning session, he met with Pardee and was given permission to return to his home in Kansas.

Pardee said he wanted to see the progress Riggins had made in his rehabilitation. "We just wanted to check on him," he said. "It's better to take a look at him under actual work-out conditions rather than call him in here and have him run a couple of laps."

"I'm pleased with Riggins," said Pardee. "We're going to put him on the best program we can and he'll be back with the veterans."

Pardee plans to bring in the veterans for a four-day camp beginning May 18.

He just held some classroom meetings and some basic drills Friday.

Expos defeat Houston, 6-3

HOUSTON (AP) — Tony Perez delivered a two-run double and the Montreal Expos scored twice on a pair of controversial run-scoring bunts by Houston reliever Tom Dixon in defeating the Astros 6-3 Friday night.

Ross Grimsley, 4-0, scattered nine hits and became the first pitcher in Montreal's 10-year major league history to win four games in the month of April.

Houston Manager Bill Virdon played the game under protest following the bunts.

Montreal led 4-1 in the fifth, having scored twice in the first inning on a bases-loaded hit by Astros starter Joe Niekro and a double play grounder by Perez, and Perez' two-run double in the third, when the balk calls occurred.

Dixon had yielded consecutive singles to Warren Cromartie and Dave Cash but retired the next two batters, one on a sacrifice that advanced the runners, when Perez again came to the plate.

First base umpire Joe West called balks on consecutive pitches by Dixon that allowed both runners to score and caused a heated five-minute discussion between Virdon and the umpire.

Martin's homer erased a 2-0 lead the Padres had taken in the top of the sixth on consecutive home runs by Dave Winfield, his fifth, and George Hendrick, his second.

The Padres wasted a chance in the seventh when they loaded the bases with one out on singles by pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble and Gene Richards and Jerry Turner's being hit by a pitch. But reliever Ron Reed, who picked up his first save of the season, got Winfield to bounce into an rally-killing double play.

Phillies post win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Right fielder Jerry Martin hit a three-run homer and threw out a runner at the plate to pace the Philadelphia Phillies over the San Diego Padres 3-2 Friday night.

Martin's shot over the left-center field wall, his first home run of the season, came in the sixth inning after Dave Johnson and pinch-hitter Barry Foote, batting for starting pitcher Larry Christenson, 2-1, had singled. The homer made a loser of San Diego starter Bob Owchinko, 1-2.

Martin's homer erased a 2-0 lead the Padres had taken in the top of the sixth on consecutive home runs by Dave Winfield, his fifth, and George Hendrick, his second.

The Padres wasted a chance in the seventh when they loaded the bases with one out on singles by pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble and Gene Richards and Jerry Turner's being hit by a pitch. But reliever Ron Reed, who picked up his first save of the season, got Winfield to bounce into an rally-killing double play.

KC wins

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pete LaCock's sacrifice fly scored Fred Patek with the winning run as the Kansas City Royals rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 7-6 Friday night.

Amos Otis singled to begin the winning uprising, stole second and scored when John Wathen lined a base hit off the glove of second baseman Lenn Sakata.

Jim Colborn, 1-0, who relieved Busby in the second, was the winner. Rodriguez, 0-2, took the loss.

Kuhn seeks $30,000

CINCINNATI (AP) — An arbitrator has postponed decision on whether former linebaker Ken Kuhn is entitled to $30,000 from the Cincinnati Bengals.

Kuhn and the Bengals went to arbitration after the former National Football League player claimed he was cut because of a knee injury. The Bengals contend he was not injured and just couldn't make the team.

"What happened to me was probably the best thing that could happen," Kuhn concluded afterwards. "As an athlete, you're forced to live a certain
