industrial arts, teaches wood-working and drafting.

Beller has his 30 young mechanics well lined out. These boys are in the auto mechanics shop for half-day periods. Many are already showing signs of being fine mechanics. The auto mechanics shop has a complete line of new tools with which to work and overhaul automobiles. This course will give students sufficient background and practical experience to qualify as apprentice mechanics. Their main need after completing this course will simply be to get a job and a few year's experience in working with automobiles and dealing with the public.

Their experience in now being provided by working on their own autos, or those of teachers. So far these boys have done approximately 18 valve jobs, 22 minor tune-ups, 23 major tune-ups, 12 minor overhauls, and 8 major overhauls. Beller will assign one or two boys to take a job; they will stay with that particular job until it is completely finished. By working this way, the students receive the same benefit and learning that they would receive if working in a professional garage. The shop can accommodate six cars. Thanks to many local people, the shop is sufficiently filled at all times.

Of course, the vocational agriculture, headed by Bill Eickel and Keith Bray, is nothing new to this area. We are acquainted with this course and these teachers, and we have for some time been seeing results of their labors. Terry Kendal, a junior student in Muleshoe High, won high honors by showing the grand champion hamshire boar at the state fair of Texas. Clifford Black placed third in the state as star greenhand, or the equivalent to third outstanding freshman. Five boys received the Lone Star Farmer degree — the highest degree possible.

Vocational agriculture is offered for four years. Any student taking four years will be well prepared to take a place in agriculture, or go to college and further his studies. These boys become acquainted with feeds, the feeding of livestock, all kinds of soils, seeds, planting, harvesting, and marketing many different local crops. In the time span of one year, the seventy boys taking agriculture will be introduced to many things other than the ones named above. In addition, they are taught the techniques of farm welding, wiring, small motor mechanics, and farm carpentry.

The agriculture shop is equipped with two classrooms so that more boys can be accommodated in a single day. The shop equipment consists of ten welders of varying brands and makes, welding booths, and a good supply of hand and power tools with learning aids.

The woodworking classes are primarily set up to give students a practical working knowledge of the basic woodworking tools and machines used in industry today. These students will have an advantage in seeking employment in any wood using industry. Perry has sixty-three boys enrolled in woodworking classes. These students have turned out some fine examples of furniture and various projects. They work on projects ranging from lamps to tables and beds. During the first year the students will become proficient with the many hand and power tools. Also, these students will be thoroughly familiar with many different types of woods, the characteristics of the different types, and the uses of them. The various finishes of different types, and the uses of them. The various finishes of different woods and their applications are thoroughly stressed and presented for the student. The woodwork shop is equipped with some of the most up-to-date woodworking machines and equipment available.

In the drafting class, composed of twelve boys, the students become acquainted first with the basic drafting tools and methods. This course is designed to prepare students to become apprentice draftsmen, or they may go into advanced training in that field in college. This course is a college preparatory course that certainly can be used by the non-college-bound student. Presently, these students are studying the construction, design, planning, and drawing of home buildings.

The vocational building is located by the city swimming pool and will be open for vi-

Parmer county has 10 feed lots with a capacity of 36,300 and 31,558 now on feed.

In New Mexico, neighboring county of Curry has 17 feedlots with capacity of 39,600 and 33,700 now on feed.

Feed lot business is really big business, however, in Chaves county 23 lots in that county have a total capacity of 84,150 head. On hand at present are 62,800 in that county.

Thomas' report showed that more than 50 percent of the 526,000 cattle on feed in Texas on Jan. 1 were in the Panhandle, and the major portion of those were in 161 feedlots in 33 counties. Thomas said that California is the High Plains' biggest competitor and the area's biggest opportunity.

"I don't feel it will be this way too much longer," Thomas said. "The major thing holding up more expansion in this area is the lack of packing plants. These will come." He explained situation during public education week. "A cordial invitation is extended to you to come out and look over the facilities and see first-hand what is now being done, and what is planned for preparing youngsters for a place in society," school officials said.

that cattlemen can "ship a 600-pound frozen carcass out to California at considerably less expense."

13 Involved In 2-Car Crash

A Sunday afternoon automobile crash 2 miles southeast of Muleshoe on U. S. 84 sent several persons to the hospital for treatment of injuries, but no one was hurt seriously.

Highway Patrolman James Freeman said the accident involved a 1963 Thunderbird driven by Jimmy Doyle Base, Oildale, Calif., and a 1961 Buick Station wagon driven by Enfonso P. Segovia, Muleshoe. Six were riding in the Thunderbird and seven in the Buick.

Treated at West Plains hospital and released were Janie Segovia, 7, Robert, 6 and Esmeralda, 4.

Taken to Lubbock by car were Peggy Base, 27, wife of the driver, Kimberly Ann Base, 8, and Timothy Base, 6.

Freeman said the Buick was a total loss and damage to the California car would run $800 to $900.

HOUSING

such farming operations, and thus to housing needs.

A detailed study of the housing situation was made early this year when Louis D. Malotky, Washington, national director of Farmers Home Administration, visited Muleshoe and met with a group here to discuss the federal labor housing program.

Following the meeting with Malotky, it was suggested that the Chamber of commerce, on behalf of all community interests, might want to take up investigation of various avenues of obtaining farm labor housing. The new chamber committee, headed by Black, is an outgrowth of that suggestion.

It also was pointed out that Hereford has a relatively abundant supply of labor, due to the fact that the area is considered a farm labor housing center. Muleshoe Area Industrial Foundation (MAIF) had pointed out that way back last summer that this area's biggest problem is farm labor.

The high FHA official told a cross-section of farm employers, merchants and professional folk the steps which can be taken to make adequate family-type housing available for farm workers.

It was explained that Uncle Sam has become much more particular about the type of house farm workers, even domestics, live in these days. But to offset the stepped-up requirements, Uncle Sam, through FHIA, is making long-term loans available.

ans available to groups, individuals or even municipalities to provide year-round housing for farm families.

Western Texas Farm Labor Association has been considering applying for such a loan with possibly a 100-family project as the starter. Speaking for the association were its president, Virgil Nowell and its manager, Elvon deVaney.

In addition to the long-term loans (Malotky spoke in terms of 33-years) the FHA now makes grants for as much as half the cost of such a project, but restrictions and terms are considerably more strict.

Malotky explained that the relatively new farm housing project is authorized by Title V of the Housing Act. The loans may be used to "construct, improve or repair farm labor housing, including facilities for kitchens, dining halls and appropriate health and recreational facilities."

He said the facilities also may provide funds for water, sewage disposal, heat and lighting systems, but the funds may not be used to buy land or refinance debts.

Malotky, asked who may borrow under the housing act, pointed out these four requirements:

To be eligible, an applicant must:

1. Be a farm owner, association of farmers, state or political subdivision or non-profit organization.
2. Be unable to finance the needed improvements with his own resources or with credit from other sources.
3. Have authority to obtain, give security for and raise revenue to repay the loan and to maintain and operate the housing financed with the loan.
4. If acting through an authorized representative, be represented by one who has no pecuniary interest in the award of the architectural or construction contracts, the purchase of equipment, or the purchase of the land for the housing site.

letter this week reveals.

Of Law and Love

Peeking Into Your Mail

Tipped off by a suspicious mailman, postal agents opened a packet which a woman mailed — first class — to her husband.

Sure enough, the packet contained illicit heroin. But when the woman was brought to trial on a narcotics charge, evidence of the find was thrown out of court and she went free.

The court was not being "soft" on narcotics. What troubled the court was the government's violation of the privacy of first class mail. Such an intrusion was held to be an "unreasonable search and seizure" — forbidden by the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution.

This Amendment grew out of colonial bitterness against the infamous "writs of assistance," under which British officials had free rein in searching private homes.

And, almost a century ago, the Supreme Court made it clear that the Amendment protects not only your residence but your first class mail as well. In the Court's words:

"The right of the people to be secure against unreasonable searches and seizures extends to their papers, thus closed against inspection, wherever they may be."

On the other hand, there is no such protection for mail other than first class. Furthermore, in the interest of combating crime, even first class mail may be searched if authorities first obtain a warrant.

Then the search would not be "unreasonable," because the warrant would be issued only if there was reasonable ground to believe the law had been violated.

Moreover, the government may impose what is called a "mail watch" to help in tracking down wrongdoers. In this procedure, a record is kept of the name and return address of everyone who sends mail to the person under surveillance.

Not long ago the mail watch was challenged in court as at least a partial invasion of the privacy of first class mail. But the court upheld the government, saying:

"It was not prying into their secrets to note what the senders had made public on the face of the letters."

And there, generally speaking, is where the law draws the line today. The government may gather the information you place on the outside of an envelope, but must not peek within. That dab of mucilage on the flap, buttressed by the constitutional commandment, is one of the mightiest barriers on earth.

A public service feature of the American Bar Association and the State Bar of Texas. Written by Will Bernard.

Dear editor: According to a newspaper which once more I had to go to town and buy, this makes twice this year and proves for sure these are uncertain times we're living in, the newest suggestion out of Washington is that everybody ought to have a guaranteed income.

While it's still only in the planning and talking stage, as I understand it the Federal government would guarantee that everybody has an annual income of at least $3,000. I don't know how the figure of $3,000 was decided on, but I wouldn't quarrel with it, it's a good round sum, although actually you can print $4,000 or $5,000 in the same space, doesn't cost anymore from a printing standpoint and would produce a lot more buying power.

The article I read said the details haven't been worked out yet, and this is what worries me.

What I mean is, say they settle on $3,000. I won't argue about that, I not only never did like to look a gift horse in the mouth, I've never been very fond of looking any horse in the mouth, in fact I've never even been fascinated by looking under the hood of a car. No use worrying about the figure, if one man can get elected Congressman promising $3,000, another can beat him promising $4,000, the idea is to get the program going, when we need the figure increased somebody will be around to run on it, everybody knows dependability is supposed to be rewarded with a raise. But it's the details that I'm interested in.

For example, how do I know some smart alec in Washington isn't going to say, Look, if we're going to guarantee him an annual income, why shouldn't we make him work for it? Why not a minimum of 40 hours of work a week?

That's what I'm talking about. A guaranteed minimum income is one thing, but requiring so many hours of work a year to get it is none of the government's business. Haven't we still got free enterprise in this country? Why should the long arm of Federal intervention be reaching out to check on how I spend my time? Hasn't Washington got something else to do: I tell you, Federal encroachment on the individual has got to stop.

After we get that work angle eliminated, you reckon there's any chance of getting a guaranteed free subscription to a newspaper included in the bill?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Rogers' Aid Bill Gets Broad Backing

By Cong. Walter Rogers

Two weeks ago I introduced legislation in the House of Representatives to cut off U. S. foreign aid to countries maintaining diplomatic or trade relations with the Communist regime in North Viet Nam. Since then, I have been encouraged by many expressions of support not only from citizens of the Texas Panhandle but also from Members of Congress and Americans from other sections of the country. I am continuing to press for early adoption of this measure.

My resolution states "that it is the sense of Congress that all United States military and economic assistance should be suspended to every country which maintains diplomatic relations with North Viet Nam or is itself directly engaged in trade or commerce with North Viet Nam or permits ships or aircraft under its registry to engage in trade or commerce with North Viet Nam."

We are battling in South Viet Nam as elsewhere in the world to contain Communism. Any assistance given Communist-dominated countries is a direct blow at the United States — which is in too many instances providing help to countries which in turn help Communist countries.

By law, the United States prohibits virtually all trade, shipping, and financial transactions with Communist China, North Korea, North Viet Nam, and Cuba. Yet these Communist countries as others, are the recipients of assistance through commercial relations with countries who are themselves receiving direct U. S. foreign aid.

During 1965, the U. S. Government made diplomatic approaches to Free World countries with ships in the North Vietnamese trade asking their cooperation in stopping this trade. Free World shipping did decline. For example, Japanese flag vessels were withdrawn as of April 1, 1965. There is still progress to be made. I am advised that Free World imports to North Viet Nam consist mainly of chemicals (primarily fertilizers), machines, and industrial raw materials — and these, indeed, may be considered strategic, although any and all articles helping Communism to survive are strategic.

Standing behind the North Vietnamese regime is the world's leading outlaw nation, Communist China. It is discouraging to note that trade by Free World countries with Communist China increased during 1964, when the Viet Nam war was growing hotter, rather than decreased. Latest reports show that imports to Communist China from the Free World rose by 22 percent to $977 million — while the exports of the Chinese Reds for the first time exceeded one billion dollars. In 1964, seven countries, which sold $50 million or more each to mainland China, provided nearly three-quarters of that country's imports. — See BACKING, Page 4 — their production may certainly be regarded as strategic; without Free World help in supplying wheat, the failures of Soviet agriculture would have forced a severe slackening in the entire U.S.S.R. economy.
