Hill Defeats Briscoe In Unofficial Tally

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe was defeated by Attorney General John Hill for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and three-term Congressman Dale Milford lost his re-nomination bid in Democratic primaries in Texas.

Incumbent Rep. John Young faces a runoff election for the Democratic nomination in his district.

In Republican primaries, Bill Clements, a wealthy Dallas businessman and deputy defense secretary under former Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, won the GOP gubernatorial nomination over Ray Hutchison, a Dallas lawyer and former state GOP chairman.

Hill, 54, collected slightly more than 50 percent of the vote in the five-way Democratic gubernatorial primary contest Saturday. Briscoe, now in his second term, garnered just over 42 percent of the vote.

Former Gov. Preston Smith, who had been considered by many the man to force Hill and Briscoe into a runoff, finished a poor third. Briscoe defeated Smith six years ago.

Rep. Bob Krueger won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat now held by John Tower, defeating former state Insurance Commissioner Joe Christie. Tower was unopposed in the GOP contest.

Attorney Upsets Milford

Milford was the only incumbent member of Congress to lose his re-nomination bid. Martin Frost, a Dallas attorney, upset Milford in the 24th District, winning 56 percent of the vote, to mark the first Democratic primary defeat of an incumbent in Texas in almost 25 years.

Young, who received 38 percent of the vote in his 14th District primary, will face state Rep. Joe Wyatt in a runoff next month. Wyatt picked up 41 percent of the 14th District Democratic primary vote.

In the 18th District, where Rep. Barbara Jordan did not stand for re-election, a runoff will be held between two state representatives — Mickey Leland, who won 48 percent of the vote, and Anthony Hall, who polled 22 percent. Both candidates in the predominantly black district are black.

In a statewide non-binding referendum, a pari-mutuel measure to test support on horse race betting failed for the 10th time in three decades. Allen Maley, director of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas, said he hoped "the gambling promoters get the message... that the voters of Texas are getting sick and tired of being forced to vote on this issue every four to six years."

Hobby Renominated With Easy Margin

DALLAS (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby breezed into the Democratic nomination for his two-term post in Saturday's primary by an almost 4-1 margin over his closest opponent, and veteran politician Jerry Sadler was headed for a runoff with John Poerner for an unexpired term on the Texas Railroad Commission.

69.59 Percent Of Vote
With 246 of 254 counties reporting (198 complete) in statewide races Sunday night, Hobby had 69.59 percent of the vote.

Hobby had been a strong favorite and maintained a wide margin over John Westbrook throughout the tabulations. James McNees rode out the count in third place, followed by Troy Skates. Republican Gaylord Marshall ran unopposed in his bid to face Hobby in the November general election.

A predicted runoff materialized in the race between Sadler and John Poerner for the unexpired term on the railroad commission. Poerner received 28.62 percent of the vote in the four-man race. Sadler claimed 45.55 percent.

Poerner was recently appointed to the post by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to fill an unexpired term created by Jim Ligdon's retirement.

Unopposed Republican James W. Lacy of Midland will face Poerner or Sadler in the November election.

U.S. Dollar Backed By Oil Ministers As Pricing Currency

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — OPEC oil ministers ended a two-day conference Sunday agreeing to keep the dollar as their pricing currency and set up a "super commission" to map long-term strategy.

Iraq failed to convince the other 12 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to drop the American currency after the battering it took on world money markets over the past year.

Many of the ministers defended the dollar and expressed satisfaction with what they called as its growing strength in the last month.

"Strong Currency, Strong Economy"
"The dollar is a strong currency based on a strong economy," Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto told The Associated Press.

Qatar Minister Abdul Aziz Bin-Khalifa al-Thani said he believed the dollar would recover to last year's levels by the time of the next OPEC price-setting meeting, scheduled June 17 in Geneva, Switzerland.

But Iraq's oil minister, Tayeh Abdul Karim, said he felt the recent recovery of the dollar was a "temporary phenomenon" and that OPEC should shift to another currency or "basket" of currencies.

Shift Plans Prepared

OPEC's economic commission had prepared three different ways to shift away from the dollar and raise oil prices from between five and 19 percent depending on which was used.

But several ministers said there was little interest in the proposals among participants at the meeting, held in a luxury hotel of this mountain resort town with a view of the Red Sea.

There was some pressure, notably from Libya and Iraq, to raise oil prices to recover the losses OPEC members suffered because of the dollar's fluctuation. But the meeting ended without a price increase.

OPEC's basic oil price of $12.70 for a 42-gallon barrel has remained unchanged since last July, while inflation has forced up the prices of goods that OPEC members import from industrialized countries.

JOHN HILL
Victory Smile Of Nominee

Members buying goods from nations with strong currencies, such as West Germany or Japan, have seen the dollar's buying power reduced even further.

The new OPEC commission will include the six largest producing members — Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Venezuela. The other OPEC members are Ecuador, Gabon, Indonesia, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

OPEC Secretary-General Ali M. Jaidah

refused to say what issues the panel would take up. He said it would not be ready to recommend policies in time for the June meeting.

Breaking tradition by speaking in Arabic without translation into English, OPEC's official language, Jaidah dodged questions about the substance of the talks.

"We talked about every issue," said the minister from the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Qatar.

Farewell Letter Written By Moro

ROME (UPI) — Kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro, apparently resigned to death at the hands of the Red Brigades, has written a farewell letter to his wife Eleonora and their children, it was disclosed Sunday. Police arrested three more suspects in their search for Moro, alive or dead.

State radio, television and newspaper reporters all said Moro's Red Brigades kidnapers allowed him to write a final note before their ominous, but ambiguous, announcement Friday that "we are concluding the battle begun March 16 by executing the sentence passed on Aldo Moro."

Earlier in Moro's 52 days of captivity his captors said he would be put to death unless 13 of their jailed comrades were released.

Kiss The Children

Milan's Corriere della Sera newspaper reported that friends of the family who saw his farewell message described it as "heart-rending." Rome's conservative Il Tempo said it began: "Dear Norina (his affectionate name for his wife), they have told me they are going to kill me shortly. I kiss you for the last time. Kiss the children."

Il Tempo said another phrase in the brief, handwritten note said: "If the government had wanted to it could have," a reference to the flat rejection of the terrorists' demands.

Il Tempo said the farewell letter, unlike earlier bitter messages begging or demanding that he be saved, no longer mentioned an exchange, as if he were resigned to his fate.

Daughter Picks Up Letter

It said his 28-year-old daughter Anna, a doctor, picked up the letter in a public telephone booth and brought it to her mother.

The leftist Rome newspaper La Repubblica said the Moro letter, received Friday just before the kidnappers' announcement they were executing their victim, caused Mrs. Moro to telephone Italian President Giovanni Leone, vainly entreating him to release one of the 13 prisoners.

Early Sunday Mrs. Moro, white-haired and bespectacled, was driven head bowed in heavy rain 150 feet from her north Rome home to say mass at a nearby convent.

The three new arrests in the continuing hunt for Moro by 50,000 police and troops came Sunday after hundreds of law officers descended on north Rome and outlying homes.

23 Now In Prison

The woman and two men seized Sunday join 23 others arrested Saturday in a wide sweep in central Italy and are now in prison awaiting interrogation by an examining magistrate.

Police said they were on a list of people wanted as sympathizers with the Red Brigades. Politicians, relatives and police are pinning their hopes that Moro may still be alive on the terrorists' use of the gerund "by executing," just stopping short of saying they had already killed Moro.

Two Men Missing In Chopper Crash

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two men were missing and three injured Sunday when a helicopter flying workmen to an offshore oil rig fell into the water 45 miles east of this city, the Coast Guard said.

Three men were rushed to Atlantic City Medical Center in Pomona and one of the missing men was being pulled from the cockpit of the helicopter that went down about 12:30 p.m., said Coast Guard Petty Officer Joseph Vega in New York.

"There's one in the cockpit and we're trying to get to him," said Vega, adding he did not know the man's condition. Three scuba divers were being taken to the crash scene.

A missing co-pilot was identified as Paul Perrino of Ludlow, Vt. The identity of the other missing person was not known. The craft carried a pilot, co-pilot and three workmen.

Rockets Hit Jerusalem In PLO Raid

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility Sunday for the first rocket attack on Jerusalem since 1976, and said it was timed to coincide with this week's 30th anniversary of Israeli independence.

Authorities here said one woman was injured in the explosion of a single Soviet-made Katyusha rocket. The Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut, Lebanon, said several persons were killed or injured in a "heavy rocket attack" and Israeli government buildings were damaged.

First Attack In Two Years

It was the first time in two years that Arab guerrillas had fired a Katyusha rocket into the holy city.

Israeli authorities said the woman was cut by flying glass when the rocket exploded in the courtyard of an apartment house Saturday night, smashing windows and pocking the stone walls of the building.

"We heard the whistle, then this tremendous crash in our courtyard," said Vahid Danilov, the injured woman.

A spokesman for the PLO command claimed an underground squad launched "the heavy rocket attack on government buildings in Jerusalem Saturday (which) commemorated the 30th anniversary of the Israeli occupation of our Palestine."

Hill Defeats Briscoe In Unofficial Tally

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe was defeated by Attorney General John Hill for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and three-term Congressman Dale Milford lost his re-nomination bid in Democratic primaries in Texas.

In Republican primaries, Bill Clements, a wealthy Dallas businessman and deputy defense secretary under former Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, won the GOP gubernatorial nomination over Ray Hutchison, a Dallas lawyer and former state GOP chairman.

Hill, 54, collected slightly more than 50 percent of the vote in the five-way Democratic gubernatorial primary contest Saturday. Briscoe, now in his second term, garnered just over 42 percent of the vote.

Former Gov. Preston Smith, who had been considered by many the man to force Hill and Briscoe into a runoff, finished a poor third. Briscoe defeated Smith six years ago.

Rep. Bob Krueger won the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat now held by John Tower, defeating former state Insurance Commissioner Joe Christie. Tower was unopposed in the GOP contest.

Attorney Upsets Milford
Milford was the only incumbent member of Congress to lose his re-nomination bid. Martin Frost, a Dallas attorney, upset Milford in the 24th District, winning 56 percent of the vote, to mark the first Democratic primary defeat of an incumbent in Texas in almost 25 years.

Young, who received 35 percent of the vote in his 14th District primary, will face state Rep. Joe Wyatt in a runoff next month. Wyatt picked up 41 percent of the 14th District Democratic primary vote.

In the 18th District, where Rep. Barbara Jordan did not stand for re-election, a runoff will be held between two state representatives — Mickey Leland, who won 48 percent of the vote, and Anthony Hall, who polled 22 percent. Both candidates in the predominantly black district are black.

In a statewide non-binding referendum, a pari-mutuel measure to test support on horse race betting failed for the 10th time in three decades. Allen Maley, director of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas, said he hoped "the gambling promoters get the message... that the voters of Texas are getting sick and tired of being forced to vote on this issue every four to six years."

U.S. Dollar Backed By Oil Ministers As Pricing Currency

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — OPEC oil ministers ended a two-day conference Sunday agreeing to keep the dollar as their pricing currency and set up a "super commission" to map long-term strategy.

Iraq failed to convince the other 12 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to drop the American currency after the battering it took on world money markets over the past year.

Many of the ministers defended the dollar and expressed satisfaction with what they called as its growing strength in the last month.

"Strong Currency, Strong Economy"
"The dollar is a strong currency based on a strong economy," Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto told The Associated Press.

Qatar Minister Abdul Aziz Bin-Khalifa al-Thani said he believed the dollar would recover to last year's levels by the time of the next OPEC price-setting meeting, scheduled June 17 in Geneva, Switzerland.

But Iraq's oil minister, Tayeh Abdul Karim, said he felt the recent recovery of the dollar was a "temporary phenomenon" and that OPEC should shift to another currency or "basket" of currencies.

Shift Plans Prepared

OPEC's economic commission had prepared three different ways to shift away from the dollar and raise oil prices from between five and 19 percent depending on which was used.

But several ministers said there was little interest in the proposals among participants at the meeting, held in a luxury hotel of this mountain resort town with a view of the Red Sea.

There was some pressure, notably from Libya and Iraq, to raise oil prices to recover the losses OPEC members suffered because of the dollar's fluctuation. But the meeting ended without a price increase.

OPEC's basic oil price of $12.70 for a 42-gallon barrel has remained unchanged since last July while inflation has forced up the prices of goods that OPEC members import from industrialized countries.

Hobby Renominated With Easy Margin

DALLAS (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby breezed into the Democratic nomination for his two-term post in Saturday's primary by an almost 4-1 margin over his closest opponent, and veteran politician Jerry Sadler was headed for a runoff with John Poerner for an unexpired term on the Texas Railroad Commission.

69.59 Percent Of Vote
With 246 of 254 counties reporting (198 complete) in statewide races Sunday night, Hobby had 69.59 percent of the vote.

Hobby had been a strong favorite and maintained a wide margin over John Westbrook throughout the tabulations. James McNees rode out the count in third place, followed by Troy Skates. Republican Gaylord Marshall ran unopposed in his bid to face Hobby in the November general election.

A predicted runoff materialized in the race between Sadler and John Poerner for the unexpired term on the railroad commission. Poerner received 28.62 percent of the vote in the four-man race. Sadler claimed 45.55 percent.

Poerner was recently appointed to the post by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to fill an unexpired term created by Jim Langdon's retirement.

Unopposed Republican James W. Lacy of Midland will face Poerner or Sadler in the November election.
Reagan Brown kept an early lead in his race to remain in the agriculture commissioner's office and staked himself to the job with 52.55 percent of the vote.

Brown was a Briscoe appointee to the agriculture office after former commissioner John White took a post as assistant to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

In the race for state treasurer, recently appointed Warren Harding won the nomination for a full term, defeating challenger Harry Ledbetter by a nearly 2-1 margin. Harding received 53.36 percent to Ledbetter's 32.79.

Democrat Mack Wallace was nominated for a full term on the railroad commission. In late returns, his tally was 61.26 percent, far ahead of challenger John Henderson's 38.74 percent.

In races to fill Texas judgeships, Franklin Spears moved ahead to take the nomination in the Democratic race for Place 1 on the Texas Supreme Court with 73.45 percent of the vote, and Democrat Robert Campbell widened his lead over Supreme Court Associate Justice T.C. Chadick to take the Place 4 nomination with 60.01 percent to Chadick's 39.99.

In races to fill seats on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, Sam Houston Clinton won over Briscoe-appointed Judge Jim Vollers to take the Place 2 Democratic nomination with 58.20 percent of the vote, and W.C. Davis defeated Marvin Teague for Place 3 with 55.12 percent.

Members buying goods from nations with strong currencies, such as West Germany or Japan, have seen the dollar's buying power reduced even further.

The new OPEC commission will include the six largest producing members — Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Venezuela. The other OPEC members are Ecuador, Gabon, Indonesia, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

OPEC Secretary-General Ali M. Jaidah

refused to say what issues the panel would take up. He said it would not be ready to recommend policies in time for the June meeting.

Breaking tradition by speaking in Arabic without translation into English, OPEC's official language, Jaidah dodged questions about the substance of the talks.

"We talked about every issue," said the minister from the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Qatar.

Farewell Letter Written By Moro

ROME (UPI) — Kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro, apparently resigned to death at the hands of the Red Brigades, has written a farewell letter to his wife Eleonora and their children, it was disclosed Sunday. Police arrested three more suspects in their search for Moro, alive or dead.

State radio, television and newspaper reporters all said Moro's Red Brigades kidnapers allowed him to write a final note before their ominous, but ambiguous, announcement Friday that "we are concluding the battle begun March 16 by executing the sentence passed on Aldo Moro."

Earlier in Moro's 52 days of captivity his captors said he would be put to death unless 13 of their jailed comrades were released.

Kiss The Children
Milan's Corriere della Sera newspaper reported that friends of the family who saw his farewell message described it as "heart-rending." Rome's conservative Il Tempo said it began: "Dear Norina (his affectionate name for his wife), they have told me they are going to kill me shortly. I kiss you for the last time. Kiss the children."

Il Tempo said another phrase in the brief, handwritten note said: "If the government had wanted to it could have," a reference to the flat rejection of the terrorists' demands.

Il Tempo said the farewell letter, unlike earlier bitter messages begging or demanding that he be saved, no longer mentioned an exchange, as if he were resigned to his fate.

Daughter Picks Up Letter

It said his 28-year-old daughter Anna, a doctor, picked up the letter in a public telephone booth and brought it to her mother.

The leftist Rome newspaper La Repubblica said the Moro letter, received Friday just before the kidnapers' announcement they were executing their victim, caused Mrs. Moro to telephone Italian President Giovanni Leone, vainly entreating him to release one of the 13 prisoners.

Early Sunday Mrs. Moro, white-haired and bespectacled, was driven head bowed in heavy rain 150 feet from her north Rome home to say mass at a nearby convent.

The three new arrests in the continuing hunt for Moro by 50,000 police and troops came Sunday after hundreds of law officers descended on north Rome and outlying homes.

23 Now In Prison

The woman and two men seized Sunday join 23 others arrested Saturday in a wide sweep in central Italy and are now in prison awaiting interrogation by an examining magistrate.

Police said they were on a list of people wanted as sympathizers with the Red Brigades.

Politicians, relatives and police are pinning their hopes that Moro may still be alive on the terrorists' use of the gerund "by executing," just stopping short of saying they had already killed Moro.

Two Men Missing In Chopper Crash

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two men were missing and three injured Sunday when a helicopter flying workmen to an offshore oil rig fell into the water 45 miles east of this city, the Coast Guard said.

Three men were rushed to Atlantic City Medical Center in Pomona and one of the missing men was being pulled from the cockpit of the helicopter that went down about 12:30 p.m., said Coast Guard Petty Officer Joseph Vega in New York.

"There's one in the cockpit and we're trying to get to him," said Vega, adding he did not know the man's condition. Three scuba divers were being taken to the crash scene.

A missing co-pilot was identified as Paul Perrino of Ludlow, Vt. The identity of the other missing person was not known. The craft carried a pilot, co-pilot and three workmen.

Rockets Hit Jerusalem In PLO Raid

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility Sunday for the first rocket attack on Jerusalem since 1976, and said it was timed to coincide with this week's 30th anniversary of Israeli independence.

Authorities here said one woman was injured in the explosion of a single Soviet-made Katyusha rocket. The Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut, Lebanon, said several persons were killed or injured in a "heavy rocket attack" and Israeli government buildings were damaged.

First Attack In Two Years
It was the first time in two years that Arab guerrillas had fired a Katyusha rocket into the holy city.

Israeli authorities said the woman was cut by flying glass when the rocket exploded in the courtyard of an apartment house Saturday night, smashing windows and pocking the stone walls of the building.

"We heard the whistle, then this tremendous crash in our courtyard," said Yehuda Danilov, the injured woman.

A spokesman for the PLO command claimed an underground squad launched "the heavy rocket attack on government buildings in Jerusalem Saturday (which) commemorated the 30th anniversary of the Israeli occupation of our Palestine."

Guilty Pleas Seen Possible From Berkowitz

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's criminal court system plans to accept possible guilty pleas from David R. Berkowitz, accused of being the Son of Sam killer who terrorized the city for a year.

The year-long orgy of random murder gripped New York City with a terror reminiscent of that which shook Jack the Ripper's 19th-century London, prior to Berkowitz's arrest at his suburban Yonkers home last summer.

The pudgy, 24-year-old ex-postal clerk has admitted all six murders. His lawyers want him to plead innocent to each by reason of insanity.

Today he goes before state Supreme Court Justice Joseph R. Corso in Brooklyn. If Berkowitz pleads guilty, as expected, an unusual plan will take effect. Judges from the three jurisdictions where Son of Sam is accused of striking will appear in the courtroom prepared to accept guilty pleas to all charges against Berkowitz.

Under the plan, Berkowitz could first offer Corso a guilty plea to the fatal shooting last July 31 in Brooklyn of Stacy Moskowitz, 20, the last of the Son of Sam victims.

Guilty pleas to all six murders would make Berkowitz liable to a maximum sentence on all six counts of 25 years to life, with parole possible, but unlikely, after the minimum term.

Whether Berkowitz had firmly decided to plead guilty was unknown Sunday. His attorneys and representatives of Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold refused comment, citing a court gag order.

Since he has twice been ruled competent to stand trial, Berkowitz has the legal right to change his plea from innocent by reason of insanity to guilty in the slaying of Miss Moskowitz.

Miss Moskowitz, fatally wounded under a full summer's moon near the Brooklyn waterfront, was said to have been a last-minute target of opportunity, after the killer's first-choice victim unwittingly moved out of the range of his deadly, snub-nosed .44-caliber revolver.

Berkowitz said Stacy was among six young persons he was driven to kill because of demonic possession by a man he called Sam.

"I shot those people and that's all that matters to them, you know," Berkowitz told psychiatrists later. "The explanations are of no value. It's swift and simple you know. I shot those people."

In excerpts purportedly from his diary, Berkowitz said, "I guess I am addicted to killing since Sam has me working like a clock at regular intervals. I just hope people can see my torment and lock me away some place and throw away the key so that I become a useless tool for Sam ..."

"I fought the demons with all my strength ... I don't want to hurt anybody but I will for Sam."

Sam has been described by Berkowitz as Sam Carr, a 64-year-old neighbor in Yonkers, just north of the city. Berkowitz said Carr "is a man who lived 6,000 years ago."

Through The Dog

"I got the messages through his dog," Berkowitz was quoted as telling detectives. "He told me to kill. Sam is the devil ..."

Unbeknownst to a slumbering city of 7.5 million, the tortuous saga of Son of Sam began at 1:10 a.m. on July 29, 1976. Outside her Bronx apartment building, 18-year-old Donna Laurie sat in a car, engaged in girlish chatter with a friend, Judy Valenti, 19.

Sudden, sharp repeated cracks of a gun echoed through the residential neighborhood. Donna collapsed in death. Judy was wounded but recovered.

The killer struck again Oct. 23, 1976, wounding a young couple parked in a car in Queens. A month and four days later, his bullets struck two girls sitting on a porch in Queens. Both of the teen-agers survived, but one of them, Joanne Lomino, 18, was left paralyzed from the waist down.

On Jan. 3, 1977, the gunman took the life of Christine Freund, 26, while she sat in a parked car in Queens.

On March 8, 1977, the deadly .44-caliber pistol barked again, its target Virginia Voskerichian, 19, on her way home from school to her Queens home. She died half a block from where Miss Freund had been slain.

For the first time, police connected the series of shootings through the identical, lead-nosed, .44-caliber bullets.

Fear began to engulf the city. The man-hunt grew. The shadowy object of the police search became known as "The .44-Caliber Killer."

The next victims were Valentina Suriani, 19, and Alexander Esau, 20, shot to death April 17 in a parked car near her Bronx home.

Left behind was a letter from the killer, a rambling semi-coherent litany of hate, taunting police. In it, the writer referred to a relationship with a mysterious Sam.

Police Gave Him Name

In a public reply, police addressed the killer as "Son of Sam." The title met with the gunman's favor and henceforth he adopted it.

On June 26, 1977, a young couple who had just left a Queens discotheque were shot and wounded as they sat nearby in a parked car.

He cruised in his car at night, police said, looking for a sign to kill. He was quoted as saying, "The situation would be perfect. I would find a parking space for my car right away."

Shortly before 2:50 a.m. on Sunday, July 31, Cecilia Davis was walking her dog when she noted a man skulking behind a tree. She also noticed a uniformed cop ticketing illegally parked cars in her quiet

Brooklyn neighborhood.

Meanwhile, Son of Sam was zeroing in on a car owned by a man police have identified only as Tommy Z. He was seated with a girl ahead of the car occupied by Stacy Moskowitz and her date, Robert Violante.

Police said Berkowitz later told them Tommy Z's date was his first choice as a target but that the man moved his car to a darker area of the road. Thus, Stacy died, a stand-in victim.

Mrs. Davis heard the shots. But she was afraid, and only under persuasion of friends did she finally call the police. She reported the figure near the murder scene, and mentioned the ticketing cop.

The police department issues 670,000 traffic tickets a month. Nevertheless, officers were able to trace a $35 parking ticket hung that night on Berkowitz's cream-colored Ford Galaxie.

Ten days later, at 10:30 p.m. Aug. 10, 1977, David Berkowitz emerged from his Yonkers apartment, into the arms of a 300-man posse of police.

Asked to identify himself, Berkowitz was reported to have replied: "I'm the Son of Sam. OK, you've got me."

Mondale To Hear Australian Complaints About Beef Quotas

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale arrived in Australia Sunday to reaffirm close U.S.-Australian cooperation in the Pacific and Indian Oceans and to sort out a handful of differences including beef exports and Vietnamese refugees.

Deputy Prime Minister Douglas Anthony is reportedly "dying to have a crack" at Mondale following U.S. legislation that provides for beef imports to be cut as U.S. local production rises and for imports to be raised when U.S. production falls.

Anthony said in parliament last week it was incredible that the U.S. Congress was thinking of restraining imports when beef prices in the U.S. have risen sharply since the start of this year.

Fraser and the Australian government also will be anxious to hear Mondale's explanation of President Carter's human rights policies in easing the plight of Indochina refugees.

Minister for Immigration Michael MacKellar told Parliament 10 days ago Vietnamese refugees who are not genuine political refugees may be jailed and deported.

Australia has accepted 1,245 refugees in 35 boats compared with 6,000 who have flown in on official flights. Another 17 boats are believed heading for Darwin.

Australian and U.S. authorities last week reached agreement for the Royal Australian Air Force to use Diego Garcia Island base in the Indian Ocean for improving allied naval and air surveillance of the vast ocean stretch west of Australia.

Defense authorities in Canberra feel this move further strengthens the surveillance of a reported Russian naval buildup in the area.

The Russian buildup in the Indian and Pacific Oceans reportedly is high on the list of discussions.

Mondale and his wife, Joan, arrived at the Royal Australian Air Force base at Fairbairn aboard Air Force II from Jakarta, Indonesia on the next-to-last leg of his 10-day, five-nation tour of Asia and the Pacific.

During the trip, he has vowed that America's commitment to its Asian allies will remain strong despite plans to reduce U.S. combat forces in South Korea.

Emperor, Lensman End Photo Dispute

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Police said Sunday they had to settle a $25 dispute between Emperor Bokassa I of the Central African Empire and a press photographer whose camera was damaged by Bokassa's bodyguards.

Police said Bokassa, who was visiting the $1 million villa he recently bought in a suburb of this capital, was shopping downtown Saturday when a photographer spotted his Rolls Royce.

Bodyguards closed in on the photographer after he took a few pictures and his camera was damaged in the ensuing scuffle, police said.

The photographer alerted police, who said they explained to Bokassa that the Swiss citizen had been within his rights in taking pictures. After some arguing, one of the emperor's aides agreed to pay for the repair of the camera, estimated to cost $25, the authorities said.

The embassy of the Central African Empire refused comment.

Monday, Mondale will be welcomed officially by Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser to Australia's national capital, which was designed by American Burley Griffin.

He will be given a ceremonial welcome on the steps of Parliament House and will then move into the cabinet room for a two-and-a-half hour session with senior Australian leaders.

The contribution Australia can make to the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons is expected to be discussed, particularly an assurance by Australia of increased nuclear material reprocessing safeguards.

Kiss Record Set: 130 Hours Plus

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Performing pushups, dancing and talking with supporters — but without parting lips — a Pittsburgh couple set a new world record for continuous kissing of 130 hours, 2 minutes and 17 seconds Saturday.

"My lips are fine," said Bobbi Sherlock, 18, after the old mark of 124 hours and 51 minutes in the Guinness Book of World Records fell at 2:52 p.m. Saturday.

But her partner, Ray Blazina, 25, admitted, "Mine hurt a bit."

The couple continued smooching until 9 p.m. Saturday and then attended a dance until 12:10 a.m. Sunday, when their energy apparently gave up.

After the old record fell, Miss Sherlock, a home remodeling saleswoman, giggled.

"Happiness, that's my feeling. We did it! I can't even talk now. I'm just so happy to help the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's cause."

The kissing stunt was sponsored by the foundation's western Pennsylvania chapter in an effort to educate the public about the genetic disease that causes complications primarily in the lungs and digestive system.

At one point Saturday, Blazina, an architectural and drafting student, demonstrated his physical condition by performing several pushups, lifting Bobbi while they still kissed.

The "kissathon" was part of the foundation's annual "Kiss Your Baby" campaign.

Because cystic fibrosis victims have excess salt in their sweat, parents who detect a pronounced saltiness when they kiss their children should consult a physician.

Blazina and Miss Sherlock dated several years ago, but they were not romantically involved at the time of the kissathon.

"Ray called me at the last minute to ask me to be his partner," Miss Sherlock said. My boyfriend and mother didn't even know I was going to do it."

The couple's lips first touched at 11 a.m., May 1. During the smooch of more than five days, they broke for only five minutes each hour in accordance with the Guinness Book of World Record rules.

They took turns sleeping for an hour at a time while the other stayed awake — kissing, of course.

Weather forecast for Monday, May 8, 1978. Includes a map of the United States showing high and low pressure systems, and a table of temperatures for various cities.

Clear Skies Dominate In West Texas

Skies were mostly clear across the South Plains Sunday, and the late winter storm that gripped many portions of the nation last week finally loosened its hold.

Lubbock's high temperature Sunday was 76 degrees, and the spring day was marred only slightly by wind gusts up to 28 mph during mid-afternoon.

National Weather Service forecasters say area readings should climb even higher today, with the high temperature expected to be near 80. Tonight's low should be in the upper 40s.

But winds are once again expected to plague the area, with westerly gusts between 15 and 20 mph.

A high pressure ridge that built up over northwest Texas Sunday was credited with the fair and warm weather. A few showers, however, continued to crop up in the northern Panhandle.

A few heavy thunderstorms also were reported early Sunday in Cottle County, but the storms moved out of the area without causing any damage. In the South Plains region, only Jayton reported any measurable precipitation, .05 of an inch.

Ahead of the high pressure ridge, a cold front settled over north central Texas and produced cloudy skies, some rain and a tornado watch for the extreme northeastern portion of that region.

The watch expired at 9 p.m. Sunday, and no funnel clouds were sighted in the area.

Across the rest of the nation, travelers' advisories that had been issued for parts of New Mexico because of possible heavy snowfall were cancelled. Only Farmington, N.M., reported any snow, with two hours of light snowfall early Sunday.

In Colorado, the avalanche warning that had been issued for the mountainous areas of that state Friday also were cancelled.

The NWS reported that, though 17 avalanches were reported Friday and Saturday, none were reported Sunday, despite efforts by Artillery Avalanche Control personnel to loosen any dangerous snow banks.

Stockmen and travelers' advisories, however, remained in effect for western portions of Nebraska and South Dakota as the slowly subsiding storm system made its way eastward.

The storm left in its wake from six to 40 inches of snow in the front range section of northeast Colorado and southeast Wy-

New York Demonstrators Fail To Annoy Begin

NEW YORK (AP) — While demonstrators waved picket signs demanding peace in the Middle East, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin stood Sunday with New York dignitaries half a block away reviewing a parade up Fifth Avenue.

Begin spent one hour on the reviewing stand before he and his wife, Aliza, and Israel's ambassador to the United States, Simcha Dinitz, left in a limousine flanked by six Secret Service agents trotting alongside.

About two hours after Begin left the stand, a van burst into flames off Fifth Avenue a dozen blocks north. An anonymous caller who said he was from the Palestine Liberation Organization told The Associated Press his group was responsible for it and that it was a sign that Begin's life was "in danger today."

There were no injuries reported.

Honorary grand marshals of the parade — held to celebrate Israel's 30th anniversary this Thursday — marched behind the lead band to the theme from "Exodus."

The reviewing stand was ringed by police officers. Assistant Police Chief Harold Schryber said he had "more than the usual number covering the rooftops" of the 12-to 18-story-high apartment buildings on the east side of the avenue. Secret Service and police officials were stationed in Central Park behind the reviewing stand.

Along the parade route youngsters with the Socialist Zionist Youth Movement handed out pamphlets calling for peace in the Middle East based on ending settlement activities. Begin's government has supported Israeli settlements on the west bank of the Jordan River.

About 10 blocks away, some 300 members of the Palestine Action Coalition staged a demonstration calling for an independent Palestinian state and an end to United States support of Israel.

Among those in the parade was Mrs. David Marcus whose husband, the first commander of the Israeli Army, was killed in 1948 during the war for Israeli independence.

Earlier Sunday, Begin said he wasn't troubled by protesters.

"There should be demonstrations in a democratic country. I accept it with complete calm," Begin said during an early-morning taping for NBC's "Meet the Press" program.

Asked about peace protesters in Israel who want Begin to be more "flexible" in negotiating with Egypt and some prominent American Jews who have voiced support for the Israeli peace group, Begin said demonstrations are "only an expression of democracy."

During the television interview, Begin said he has "great hope" that peace talks between Israel and Egypt, broken off nearly four months ago, will be renewed.

"There is always hope because both of us want peace," Begin said. If Egyptian President Anwar Sadat were present, he said, "I would tell him, 'Let us renew the spirit. This is the real basis for the negotiations.'"

The "obstacle" to continued talks, Begin said, is that "Egypt demands that we should withdraw totally to the lines preceding the Six Day War ... and have a Palestinian state."

He said those positions "are completely unacceptable to Israel."

"This is now the obstacle to continued negotiations about a declaration of principle. We try to find a different avenue and to speak about essentials," he said.

Begin Displays Many Facets During Eight-Day U.S. Tour

By MICHAEL R. GROSS

NEW YORK (AP) — Menachem Begin, like a diamond forged in fire, is a man of many facets, and the Israeli prime minister has displayed most of them in an eight-day transcontinental tour.

Diplomat in Washington. Skilled politician, fund-raiser and watchdog of the Jewish conscience in Los Angeles, Chicago and New York — where he capped his tour Sunday at a birthday party and parade marking the 30th anniversary of Israel's independence.

The Israeli prime minister said Sunday, in a taping of NBC's "Meet the Press," that he accepted "with complete calm" protests against his policy by some Israelis and their American supporters.

Begin, 65, appeared weary after a week of official functions. He delivered the major policy speech of his visit Thursday night before the Economic Club here, where he ended the evening with a spirited political sparring match with George W. Ball, undersecretary of state in the administrations of presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

Shunning the holocaust images he called up repeatedly in speeches aimed at soliciting funds from Jews, Begin called on his youthful training as a lawyer and biblical scholar in Poland before World War II to place, in a moral perspective, President Carter's proposed three-way Mideast plane sale.

Ball ticked off the underlying economic and political facts of life behind the sale of 60 sophisticated F-15 jets to Saudi Arabia.

Rejection, he said, might imperil the dollar as the keystone of the oil cartel; undermine the Riyadh government's ability to arbitrate between Arab moderates and militants; and anyway, the Saudis would shop elsewhere, probably in France, if Congress turns them down.

Begin, who says the Saudi jets could be used against his nation in a future Mideast war, summed it up as a problem of conscience. In such matters, he said, "morality should play a role — in my opinion — a decisive role."

Apparently unmoved by the plea, Ball said he would testify on behalf of the sale to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a promise he kept Friday.

In speeches to Jewish groups, the prime minister evoked the stern image of a family patriarch, demanding virtually unquestioned fealty to his government's policy.

Calling on the Soviet Union to allow Russian Jews to emigrate to Israel, he recounted his own bleak imprisonment in a Siberian labor camp for preaching Zionism in an area of pre-World War II Poland then ruled by Russia.

Ex-Patient Held For Hospital Blaze

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A former patient was being held on $100,000 bail Sunday after three Molotov cocktails were lobbed into the visitors' lounge of Hoag Memorial Hospital's mental health ward just minutes after visiting hours ended, police said.

More than 100 persons — many of them children — were forced to evacuate as dense, acrid smoke drifted down a hall to the hospital's pediatric section.

No injuries of patients were reported, but one police officer suffered severe smoke inhalation and was hospitalized, said Newport Beach Police Detective Bob Hardy. The explosion Saturday caused minor damage to the concrete-wall building, but smoke damage to the entire wing of the hospital was extensive, he said.

Shortly after the bombing, security guards detained 29-year-old David Eckberg in a hospital parking lot after witnesses reported seeing him flee from the scene of the fire.

Professional Associations Feel Beginning Of Federal Onslaught

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deeply entrenched professional groups such as doctors and lawyers are under fire from federal forces in a campaign to hold down their fees and improve services.

President Carter joined the battle with a speech last week denouncing the nation's legal profession for failing to serve the cause of social justice. He followed up by calling the American Medical Association "the major obstacle to progress in our country" toward having a better health-care system.

Carter's attacks on professionals come in an area that has a major impact on consumers but, until recently, has largely escaped the scrutiny of the federal government.

Professions are largely self-regulated through the American Bar Association, American Medical Association and various other groups. Many professions have state organizations that set ethical standards under guidelines suggested by the national groups.

Whatever government regulation there has been generally came at the state level. However, state regulatory boards that determine rules of practice frequently are made up of members of the profession regulated.

Critics, such as consumer advocate Ralph Nader, say professional groups often adopt rules of practice that are designed to keep outsiders out and prices high. Advertising of prices and cut-rate methods of delivering services are discouraged, the critics say.

Chairman Michael Pertschuk of the Federal Trade Commission says professional groups all too often "act like medieval guilds, whose purpose nakedly was to prevent competition."

In recent years, the federal government has filed suits against such groups as the ABA and AMA. The lawsuits, which may begin to be decided by the end of the year, claim the organizations try to prevent competition and thus protect a favored economic position.

Until about 1975, the FTC avoided regulating professional groups, but now it is one of the most active federal agencies in this regard.

The commission is expected to vote soon on issuing a rule removing professional restrictions on ophthalmologists' and optometrists' advertising their prices. Such a rule would aid in shopping for eyeglasses at the best possible price.

Other FTC investigations or legal steps involve associations of real estate brokers, accountants, veterinarians, dentists and public relations agents.

Pertschuk, speaking of the FTC campaign against professional groups, said in an interview, "For my money, it is about the best thing that the commission is doing because it really goes directly to the kinds of marketplace abuses that in some ways the commission is best equipped to deal with."

In the FTC case against the AMA, the government accused the association and some of its affiliated local medical societies with unduly restricting their members from advertising and soliciting patients. A trial recently ended and an initial decision by an FTC judge is expected by this fall.

The Justice Department has a similar case pending against the ABA. It contends the ABA's restrictions on advertising violate antitrust laws.

Advertising by professionals is already increasing under the impetus of a Supreme Court decision last year that lawyers have a right to advertise their fees for such routine services as drawing up wills and handling uncontested divorces. A ruling on advertising of other legal services will have to await another case.

In the latest case of bars to professionals' being lowered, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants lifted its decades-old ban on advertising.

Another confrontation between federal power and established professional groups is likely over inflation in fees. The director of Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability, Barry Bosworth, has promised that the administration would call in leaders of such professional groups as doctors, dentists and lawyers to urge that they hold down their fees.

Carter said during his West Coast trip that lawyers care deeply about their clients and doctors care deeply about their patients. But when they organize into bar associations and medical societies they tend to be concerned only with their own welfare, the President said.

Carter Remarks Sting Noted Legal Figures

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The chief justice of the Tennessee Supreme Court and the lawyer who headed the Watergate investigation have taken issue with President Carter's criticism of the American legal profession.

"I really felt like I was being bit by my own dog," Chief Justice Joseph Henry told 100 Memphis State University law school graduates Saturday.

"The president said American people are over-lawyered and under-represented," said Leon Jaworski, the Texas lawyer who headed the investigation which led to Richard Nixon's resignation from the presidency.

"The president must be concerned with problems of the Middle East ... he would not be able to give a fair appraisal of American lawyers."

Jaworski's remarks were made to about 600 lawyers and guests at a dinner honoring Memphis lawyer S. Shepherd Tate, president-elect of the American Bar Association.

Both Henry and Jaworski were critical of the president's Thursday speech in Los Angeles where Carter blamed the legal profession for much of America's "unequal justice."

The president blamed Southern lawyers, who helped fight desegregation orders, for the delay in school integration and he said lawyers were busy defending "big shot crooks" instead of representing poor people.

Henry, a Democrat like the president, said there would be no justice at all in America without the right to counsel.

"I regard our profession as the noblest of all pursuits," Henry said.

The chief justice said lawyers have always been found on both sides of great causes. The strength of the legal system, he said, depends upon lawyers being able to "defend those who are right as well as those who are wrong."

Jaworski, a former ABA president, said he believed Carter's remarks were written by an uninformal speechwriter. He said whoever wrote the speech "wronged lawyers and misled the American people."

Navy Men's Wives Oppose Women At Sea Proposal

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Pentagon recently proposed sending women to sea, but many female Navy personnel and the wives of men in the Navy say they don't think it's a very good idea.

"I don't want to know that when my husband's gone, he's got somebody on the ship to take up the slack and console him if he's upset," said Kathy Morris, the wife of a Navy chief petty officer. "From friendship, sexual attraction and love can develop."

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot reported Sunday that most Navy wives and female sailors interviewed by the newspaper and polled by Soundings, the Norfolk Naval Station newspaper, oppose the women-at-sea plan.

Most wives said they fear fraternization, even if it is only on a conversational rather than a sexual basis.

Judy Campbell, the wife of a first-class radioman, said the government is just looking for trouble.

"These guys are going to be out six or eight months with ladies on their ship? No way," she said. "There would be much difficulty between the men and their wives. No matter how good the husbands are, it can't be helped."

The Soundings survey said 25 women said they wanted to go to sea, but 58 said they did not. Many female sailors expressed a dislike for cramped shipboard living conditions.

The newspaper reported, however, that some Navy women expressed a longing for the adventure of sea duty and have demanded equal opportunities.

"Why else would one join the Navy but to go to sea, see the world and do the best job possible," one woman said.

Men in the Navy said they have no objections to women shipmates, but only if the women are capable of performing their duties, the newspaper reported.

"I don't care if a woman is Raquel Welch, I don't want her around if she can't do the work," said personnel man Lawsey Thomas.

Federal law currently prohibits the Navy from assigning women to serve on ships other than hospital and transport vessels, but the Pentagon has asked Congress to give it permission to assign females permanently to noncombat ships and temporarily to ships not expected to face combat while they are aboard.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the request last week, but it still must be approved by the full House and Senate.

Chad students held Embassy Of Nation Hostage In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Forty students from Chad ended a 36-hour occupation of the Chad Embassy in Moscow and freed its diplomatic staff after they were promised their educational stipends would be paid, sources said Sunday.

The Chad sources said the protest, which began Friday, came to a peaceful halt Saturday night after the students communicated with officials in N'Djamena, capital of the central African country.

In earlier telephone conversations with Western reporters here, the students demanded withdrawal of 1,700 French troops battling Libyan-backed rebel guerrillas in Chad as well as the reopening of several closed schools and universities. The government promised to open the schools on Monday but the students still refused to withdraw.

None of the students mentioned the stipend issue to reporters. But the Chad sources said the students had been having trouble getting the money from their government, which finances the studies of many Chad students in the Soviet Union each year.

AN EDITORIAL:

Saying It Too Loud, Clear

PRESIDENT CARTER, who obviously has his troubles on the public relations front, just as obviously isn't going to let it affect his outspoken style of speaking.

On a swing through the West the past weekend, the President unburdened himself of what he thought of the job the legal profession is doing in aiding the less affluent, and followed that with similar criticism of the medical profession.

As has been the case with the administration, in everything from domestic affairs to foreign policy, Mr. Carter threw a pretty wide loop.

THE PRESIDENT set off a minor furor with a ringing denunciation of the legal profession and declared the vast majority of Americans don't get adequate legal representation while those with means get all the help they need.

Expounding on that thesis the next day, Mr. Carter said he felt that "lawyers care deeply about their clients and doctors care deeply about their patients...But, when they organize into bar associations and medical societies they tend to be concerned only with their own welfare."

The problem with such a statement is that it is a blanket indictment, which when applied to any profession usually is far off the mark.

THERE IS NO question but that the legal profession has been under fire for what some assert is "selective" justice.

AN EDITORIAL:

Doc Picks No Bones With Fat

JACK SPRAT should have listened to his wife. Dr. James S. Arnold says from the standpoint of your bones, it's better to be fat than skinny.

Dr. Arnold, a physician at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Hines, Ill., came to that conclusion after studying vertebrae from 1,000 patients.

"Stocky or overweight people have larger diameter bones relative to their heights than tall and thin people," he told counterparts at a meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology in Atlantic City, N.J.

"And fat people," he said, "lose less bone tissue as they grow old."

DR. ARNOLD, a member of the American Association of Pathologists, presented findings that indicate throughout adult life two processes are progressively occurring in all bones of the body.

One process is the slow deposition of new bone on the outer surfaces, increasing the width and diameter of the bones.

The second process is the loss of bone from the inside. This loss takes place at the surfaces of the lining of the bone marrow cavities.

This second process reduces the spongy

Any man can get a fair and equal trial, goes a recent criticism, but a rich man can get a more fair and equal trial.

In the sense that the more affluent can afford a better and more experienced legal staff, perhaps there is a degree of validity to the remark.

But, we are not among those who are ready to lump the entire legal fraternity or medical profession into one sack and toss them into the river, weighted down with generalized criticism.

THERE ARE many thousands of good lawyers, young and old, who go far out of their way at their own expense and time—a lawyer's stock in trade along with his expertise—to help those who can not afford help otherwise.

And there are equally thousands of the best doctors who do likewise, the latter primarily because of their concern for human suffering.

By the same token, it is true that, as in many other lines of work, there are those in the legal and medical fraternity who also charge all the traffic will bear and measure their success by the material gains they pile up rather than the people genuinely helped.

The problem with Mr. Carter's sweeping bombast is that he only adds to a malady far too prevalent in the nation today—self destruction. Admittedly, we all have room for improvement. Perhaps in our criticism we should offer some constructive suggestions. Even the President could use some of that medicine.

bone to a half or less, and the thickness of the cortical bone (near the surface) by a third of more by the time we reach age 60.

When the decrease in bone is extreme, fractures can occur spontaneously.

Dr. Arnold studied the vertebrae of 1,000 individuals dying from a variety of causes to see how bone is deposited and lost and how the vertebrae change with age.

THE RESULTS indicated that stocky or overweight people have larger diameter vertebrae relative to their height than tall and thin people. "Spongy bone concentration did not seem to be related to weight or height," Dr. Arnold wrote.

"But the rate of bone loss did appear to be slower in overweight people than in normal weight or tall individuals."

Osteoporosis (the state of spontaneous fractures due to bone loss) as a result of aging was more common in people of normal weight and height than in heavy people, he said.

"It would appear," deduced Dr. Arnold, "that the increased strain that a heavy person's skeleton is subjected to is compensated for by the bone being of larger diameter and containing a proportionate increase in bone tissue."

Fat's all, folks. Bon appetit!

ART BUCHWALD:

Forget Gusto, I Want A Ration Of Overdraft

WASHINGTON—Among the charges the SEC made against Bert Lance was that he was involved in a series of banking and securities violations jeopardizing a Georgia bank he headed.

Lance, the federal complaint charged, authorized and prolonged overdrafts to his family to the tune of $800,000—70 percent of all the overdrafts at his bank.

If these charges are true, there must have been some funny conversations going on at the dinner table in Lance's palatial dining room in Calhoun at the time.

I wasn't there, so I'm just imagining how one went.

DAVID, THE Lance's teen-age son, says, "Hey, Dad, my checking account has been overdrawn by $11,000. I only wrote one check this month for a Frisbee which cost $1.50."

"Shut up and drink your soda," Bert says.
 "But gosh, Dad, there must be a mistake at the bank."

"There was no mistake at the bank, I had to write a check for your Uncle Clyde, who owed the First National Bank of Flatire $11,000 in interest for a loan we got from them to pay for some work on our farm."

"Why is Uncle Clyde paying for work done on our farm?"
 "Because I didn't want to write any more checks on your mother's account."

"SHE HAS AN overdraft of $110,000 and most of that went to the Coyote Savings Bank, which gave us the money to pay the interest on the loan we obtained from the Catfish Trust Company."

"Belle says, 'Bert, I don't mind having overdrafts, but does the bank have to send me nasty notes saying I'm getting to be a bad risk? It makes me nervous.'"
 "Don't pay attention to the notices, LaBelle. They're just routine."

"How much of an overdraft do I have?" asks Beverly, the Lances' other teen-ager.
 "Just $10,000," Bert replies.
 "That's not fair. David always gets a bigger overdraft than I do."
 "David's older. He's entitled to owe the bank more than you."

"HA, HA, HA," David says. "I'm overdrawn $1,000 more than you."
 "Stop it, children," LaBelle says. "I'm sure when you get to be 18, Beverly, you'll be in as much debt as your brother."
 "Maybe more," Bert says.
 "What did you do with your overdraft, Daddy?"
 "I used it to cut down on Uncle Willy's overdraft. He was complaining that he couldn't get an American Express card because he was so much in hock to our bank."
 "Aunt Martha called," David says. "She wanted to know if she could write a check for $7,000 to buy a new car. She said she only had $49 in her account."
 "Sure, call her back and say it's fine."
 "On second thought, I better call her. She may be surprised when she gets a statement next month that she has an overdraft of $20,000."
 "What for?" LaBelle asks.

"I HAD TO START paying on the principal of the money we borrowed from the General Lee Savings and Loan Assn., which I needed to cover the loan Grandma Harkins made on the Okra State Federal Insurance Co., which guaranteed Cousin Efreem's interest payments from the Peahnt Assn. Credit Union."
 "Can't we have just one dinner without talking about business?"
 "Dad, can I have $5 to take my girl to the movies tonight?" David asks.
 "I gave you $5 last Friday. Can't you people learn that money doesn't grow on trees?"

 Van den Bergh told reporters that Primov proposed the brothel study "and it was done with complete propriety...I gave him the red (oops!) green light to do it on his own time."
 One of the results of Primov's socializing with whores was an article he wrote called "The Peruvian Brothel, a Sexual Dispensary and Social Arena," published last year in the Archives of Sexual Behavior.

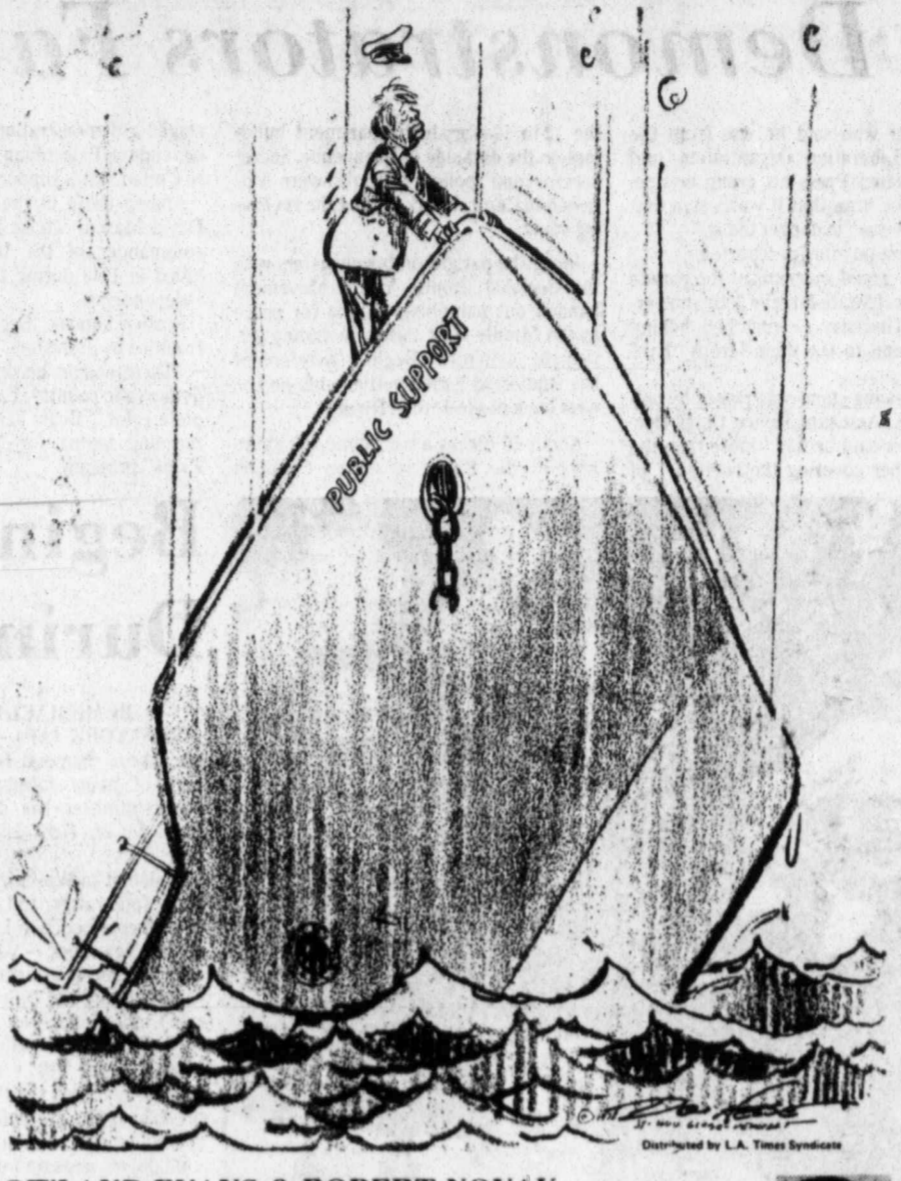

BUT VAN DEN Bergh and Primov deliberately missed the point. It is that the study of "the ethnic and class relationships" of Peruvian mountain society has no business on the research agenda of a bureaucracy financed by tax funds.

The NIMH might, with a dollop of propriety, study a whorehouse in Gary, Ind., or living conditions in our big-city ghettos.

But the van den Bergh-Primov project contributed nothing either to Peru or international understanding of anything. Peruvian peons need better food and better housing and better schools, not a Peeping Tom's look at their sex industry.

Van den Bergh and Primov may not be nasty men, but they are pure hustlers.

The Saga Of Captain Jimmy

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Behind The F-15

WASHINGTON—A high Saudi Arabian defense official has arrived in Geneva, ready to start negotiations with the French government for the Mirage F-1 fighter-bomber—showing why President Carter is risking so much to push his sale of 60 F-15s to the oil-rich monarchy.

If the sale is vetoed by a vote of both Senate and House, Saudi Arabia will begin to unwind an intricate network of economic and military arrangements with the United States.

Switching from Washington to Paris for modern fighter aircraft would be only the start.

What makes this so ironic is that if Israel does succeed in imposing the congressional veto, the assured supply of the Mirage F-1 gives the Saudis at least an equivalent number of modern aircraft.

Defense Department experts here are warning that the new Saudi-French connection could erode the U.S. role as long-time military supplier to the Saudi monarchy.

ANDREW TULLY: Research Is Taxing

WASHINGTON—With thousands of Americans going bughouse every year, one would think the federal National Institute for Mental Health would spend every available penny to research what has become a national problem.

Not so. That indefatigable scourge of bureaucracy's fools, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., reports that the NIMH shelled out $97,000 to a couple of American sociologists so they could look into "the ethnic and class relationships" of Peruvian mountain society.

Moreover, part of your income tax went to "research the functions" of a brothel in the Andean village of Tuti as a male gathering place for drinking and story telling and as an attraction for "gringo tourists."

PROXMIRE FINDS it "unbelievable that the institute would give this project such priority and fund the field trip to Peru." But Proxmire is forced to believe it.

After all, he is well aware that the country is continually harassed by a horde of self-styled "scholars" bent on stealing the Treasury blind.

I'd dispatch the NIMH grant managers to the rack. Proxmire is more humane. He merely railed at the institute for "a record of mismanagement and lack of control of taxpayer funds..."

Perhaps charlatans would be a description of the two men who made the Peruvian study—Dr. Pierre van den Bergh of the University of Washington and Seattle, and Dr. George Primov, an assistant professor of sociology at the University of Missouri.

According to van den Bergh, they not only are not unashamed, they are "flattered" and delighted by the publicity they've received.

THAT FIGURES. Van den Bergh is a guy who knows the ropes. He had scored points as the author of a cunning book entitled "Academic Gamesmanship." The book tells his colleagues how to mug assorted bureaucracies into financing their various "research" projects.

Van den Bergh told reporters that Primov proposed the brothel study "and it was done with complete propriety...I gave him the red (oops!) green light to do it on his own time."
 One of the results of Primov's socializing with whores was an article he wrote called "The Peruvian Brothel, a Sexual Dispensary and Social Arena," published last year in the Archives of Sexual Behavior.

BUT VAN DEN Bergh and Primov deliberately missed the point. It is that the study of "the ethnic and class relationships" of Peruvian mountain society has no business on the research agenda of a bureaucracy financed by tax funds.

The NIMH might, with a dollop of propriety, study a whorehouse in Gary, Ind., or living conditions in our big-city ghettos.

But the van den Bergh-Primov project contributed nothing either to Peru or international understanding of anything. Peruvian peons need better food and better housing and better schools, not a Peeping Tom's look at their sex industry.

Van den Bergh and Primov may not be nasty men, but they are pure hustlers.

ALTHOUGH PUTTING French instead of American aircraft in Saudi hands would seem to undermine Israeli security, the Israeli government takes a different view.

To break up the U.S.-Saudi alliance is worth the risk, in Israel's opinion.

A confidential Pentagon memorandum, written for the State Department, says that the Saudis could immediately start buying the Mirage F-1, a highly sophisticated aircraft only marginally less dangerous to Israel than the F-15.

Yet Israel publicly bases opposition to the F-15 sale on the menace to its security.

If the Saudis are forced to turn to Paris, Israel would lose the benefit of U.S. controls over Saudi use of American weapons.

There is no reason for France to impose restrictions on the Saudis such as the U.S. ban on transferring weapons to a third country.

Worse yet for Israel's security requirements, there would be no limit on the quantity of Mirages the Saudis might buy.

U.S. OFFICIALS BELIEVE the French want to set up a French-Saudi consortium to build more advanced fighters—the Saudis providing the money, the French the technology.

Israel is flooding Congress with security arguments against the F-15 sale.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan last week used his own great prestige here in private sessions with Senators, hammering home Israel's vulnerability to the F-15.

Given the immediate availability of the French Mirage, administration officials suspect that Israel's real purpose in trying to block the sale is not its security but its desire to split the intimate U.S.-Saudi connection.

Defeat of the F-15 deal would certainly erode that connection. In addition to advanced aircraft, driving the Saudis into French arms would jeopardize up to $15 billion worth of other military supplies either in the U.S. pipeline or under U.S. Saudi negotiations.

Government officials say that many of these arms can be obtained from France and other European countries; they undoubtedly would be if Congress vetoed the F-15 sale.

THAT WOULD BE welcome news for the Israelis. Beleaguered in the Arab world, Israel has long feared the deepening economic and military ties between the U.S. and Saudi Arabia.

A recent unleashing of the pro-Israel lobby to damage this relationship came in the battle to end the anti-Israel Arab boycott (though in fact the new anti-boycott law was moderate and acceptable to the Saudis).

The battle has now shifted to the F-15s, with Jimmy Carter himself on the ramparts to prevent Israel from disrupting the Saudi connection.

The intensity of the lobbying campaign—probably the most intense of any Israeli effort—has surprised and angered top Carter aides.

FOR EXAMPLE, the April 19 issue of Near East Report, tone setter for the pro-Israel lobby, said that "in terms of political recompense for security and assistance provided (to Saudi Arabia), the United States has hardly received fair value."

In short, despite Saudi Arabia's heavy financial support for Egypt and other moderate Arab states and its restraint on oil prices, the U.S. owes nothing to the Saudis.

Carter disagrees. His financial advisers have warned him that erosion of the Saudi connection might well result in shifting some of the multi-billion dollars invested in U.S. government securities and U.S. banks elsewhere and reduce the $5 billion in non-military U.S. purchases programmed for 1978.

The President sees this unfolding picture clearly. That explains his singular political risk of a head-on confrontation with the organized American-Jewish community in a battle that dwarfs the Panama Canal struggle in real importance.

JAY HARRIS:

A Vision Blurred

FEW PRESIDENTS in recent times have watched their political popularity plummet in so spectacular fashion as has President Carter.

From one of the highest "confidence" ratings on record, Mr. Carter's most recent "reading" finds him in deep trouble with the American people.

Of four recent nationwide surveys, only one gives him an edge in the "approval" column. The other three are Down, Down, Down...

The latest Gallup poll shows 39 percent approval for the job the President is doing, 46 percent disapproval and 15 percent with no opinion. The Harris survey shows 34 percent either rating him pretty good or excellent with 64.2 percent giving him "only fair to poor," with 2.3 percent not sure.

The Associated Press-NBC poll has it 33 percent good to excellent, 65 percent fair to poor and 3 percent not sure.

IN THE WAKE of such news, one would think that the President might consider doing something different.

From all indications, that is not part of the game plan. Mr. Carter has signaled he intends to plow ahead with his current foreign policy—arms sales in the Mideast, pressure on Rhodesia and South Africa, no real challenge to Russian Communism.

At home, the President continues to paint a picture of "brighter days ahead," despite rising inflation and a growing mood of dissatisfaction across the land.

Probably U.S. News & World Report summed it up best in a recent "Springtime Mood of America" study: "It's a split-level temper that grips the country: Souness in the cities, more optimism in suburbs and rural areas. But everywhere, people are fed up with high prices, disgusted by government—and they feel powerless..."

IN KEEPING with this, a maintenance man in Philadelphia added his two cents worth: "People have a tremendous lack of confidence in government. They see government as a problem creator..."

How much of the "mood of America" is President Carter responsible for, and what can be done about it?

No less than James Reston, widely known New York Times columnist has taken note of the fact that Mr. Carter has been more heavily criticized by the press recently, at home and abroad, than at any time since he took office. Reston notes that the President got no applause in his recent appearance before the nation's editors, and asks: "Is there something about Carter personally that creates doubt about his capacity for leadership? Are his policies wrong or poorly presented, or merely misunderstood?"

Or, he asks, "is the press underestimating the magnitude and complexity of the problems before him, and blaming him for problems that also involve the Congress and public opinion beyond his control?"

RESTON IN some ways defends the President on the last count, but also concludes that "even his most enthusiastic supporters complain that he does the right thing many times but does it in the worst possible way."

In a similar vein, The Wall Street Journal recently ran an editorial entitled, "Lay Off Jimmy Carter."

The gist of The WSJ's treatise was that in some circles people think it's time to ease up on the criticism on the White House occupant, that all the problems aren't his fault. Then, The WSJ proceeds to spend some 20 inches or so of space detailing all the things the President, and his inept aides have done to merit criticism.

The paper makes the point that Mr. Carter really is a product and in a way an exponent of political policies and popular liberal ideas which have permeated, and all but bankrupted, almost every facet of our social, moral and political life.

THE WRITER notes that it has been fashionable for years to jump on political parties and cheer on any reform "that promises to open the parties up to outside influences."

"So now as a reward we've finally got ourselves a government of genuine outsiders. We shouldn't complain; we deserve it."

And the paper continues its searing indictment of an idea that got lost...
 "We have seen American liberalism degenerate from a coherent vision, one which tried to improve individual lives by increasing federal power, into a gangle of contradictory and competing claims from consumerism to the rights of the obese; we've finally got an administration that begins to reflect this incoherence..."

"We've seen the same liberalism turn on itself in self-contempt for the loss of Vietnam and begin to argue that we should get out of the way of the march of history..."

"IN SHORT, behind this administration's troubles stands not some failure of personal capacities but the bankruptcy of an idea...Maybe it really is time of lay off Jimmy Carter—and start examining the kind of political thinking that produced him."

This thesis is an intriguing one, and to a point valid. But, while it is four decades of a "giveaway society" that produced the likes of the Georgia gangbusters, our contention is if Mr. Carter is the leader he should be, and had surrounded himself with the men he should have, and he would recognize the problem—and, most importantly, do something to change things.

Leaders, great statesmen of the past—the Jeffersons, Lincolns, Churchills—were not only able to perceive the perils of history and their own and their people's faults, but inspire those same people and those about them to change the course of history, often at great sacrifice.

This, to us, is the great failing of Jimmy Carter. He has been unable to rise to the great challenge he faces as the nominal leader of a great nation searching for leadership and a Free World crying for statesmanship.

THE CHANGING AMERICAN FARM

Specialization Characterizes Modern Farming

(Editors Note: This is the first of three excerpts from "The American Farm", which appeared in the February/March issue of American Heritage.)

By RICHARD RHODES
Newspaper Enterprise Association

The fences have come down on farms all across Missouri. Fields in Iowa are no longer necessarily rectangular; within their Jeffersonian boundaries, many follow the land. In flat western Kansas, they are often circular to accommodate the center-pivot self-propelled pipes that irrigate them.

Where cotton reigned in the South, cattle now are fed. Soybeans, which once were spurned as useless everywhere in rural America or were plowed under for green manure, darken the fields of summer.

First In A Series

Corn, wheat, cattle and hogs change shape and variety, go hybrid with vigor. Poultry are hardly farmed any more; one might say they are factory-farmed.

In the nearly two decades since I marked the beginning of adolescence by moving from Kansas City streets to the Drumm Institute, a 360-acre farm and boys' home outside Independence, American farming has changed radically and permanently.

It has not been swallowed by corporations, has not become "agribusiness." Not yet. The overwhelming majority of profitable farms today are father-son partnerships or family corporations.

But it has become lean and specialized, capital-intensive and cost-effective, the work of fewer men and women than ever before, the work of scientific and of massive machines.

And proudly, without exaggeration, it is the wonder of the world, a blessing we need not blush to count.

The Drumm Institute was a thriving, diversified farm when I arrived there in the summer of 1949. With 40 boys to preserve from mischievous leisure, it was also deliberately labor-intensive and, therefore, persistent with practices already becoming antique.

We milked our cows by hand, having so many hands available. With oak-handled, copper-plated hoes, we hoed our field crops as few farmers any longer can afford to do.

I take it now as a model, somewhat enlarged, for the old family farm—a model against which to compare the high technologies of today.

The Drumm Institute is surrounded by suburbs now, and not much farming gets done there any more. But farming has changed everywhere in America. It has changed in responses to economic necessity.

A long-standing policy of government-supported over-production has meant that supply has frequently exceeded demand. The results of that imbalance have been cheap food for American consumers and marginal profits for farmers.

In 1971, before inflation boosted the figure, Americans spent only an average 15.7 percent of their disposable income for food. Compare the U.S.S.R. at 30 percent, Europe at 26 percent and the developing countries at 65 percent.

Somehow, in the public mind, the cheap food never reaches the supermarket. Farmers are forever defending themselves against charges of profiteering.

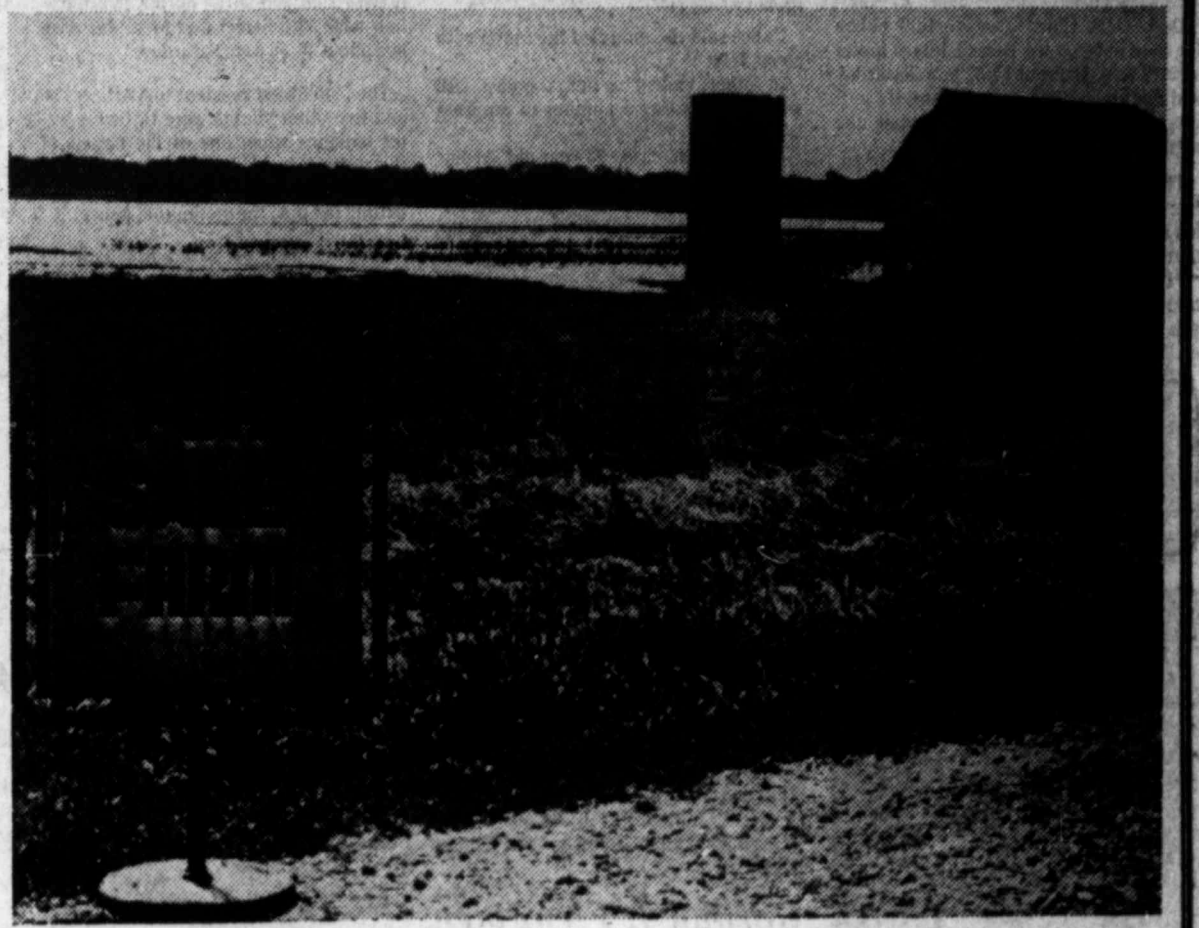

Retail food prices are high because the cost of processing raw farm products is high, not because the farmers of America are getting rich. Profits from farming over the long haul have averaged no more than 3 or 4 percent.

That is why corporate farming hasn't dominated agriculture in the United States except in certain specialized industries such as citrus fruits and broiler and egg production.

Low and frequently nonexistent profits and the rising cost of labor demanded increased efficiency and productivity of American farmers. With the help of intense scientific research—a legacy of the land-grant college system established after the Civil War—they delivered both.

The number of farms has declined; their average size has gone up.

The U.S. had 6.4 million farms in 1920. By the mid-1970s, only 2.8 million were left. Between 1959 and 1974 the average acreage per farm increased from 288 to 385, and the most successful farms were far larger.

"FOR SALE, FARM" — Signs like this one have been a frequent sight across rural America in the last half-century. The U.S. had 6.4 million farms in 1920. By the mid-1970s, only 2.8 million were left. (NEA Photo)

Wage Shift Aids Black Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Affirmative action programs have helped to nearly equalize wages earned by black and white women, but there is little indication the programs have done much for black men in that respect, according to studies released Sunday by two Rand Corp. economists.

The studies by James P. Smith and Finis Welch show that black men now earn about three-fourths as much as white men while black women have just about achieved parity with white women.

"Because hiring a black woman met both race and sex quotas for employers, the affirmative action thrust may have given black women the advantage in the job market," the economists said.

They noted that in 1947, wages for black men were about half those for white men and wages for black women were about one-third as much as wages for white women.

Most of the gains for blacks came during the 1960s, partly because of improved education among blacks, they said. Improved education was responsible for 47 percent of the gains for black men and 33 percent of the gains for black women, Smith and Welch said.

In 1930, the average black entering the labor market had 3.7 fewer years of formal education than the average white. Eighty percent of the blacks entering the labor market at that time had a grade school diploma or less, and three percent had gone to college.

By 1970, the economists found, blacks and whites entering the labor market were separated by just 1.2 years of education, with only 10 percent of the blacks having less than nine years of formal education and 20 percent having gone to college.

Smith and Welch also found a dramatic decrease in the percentage of black women doing domestic work in the South. In 1960, half of all employed Southern black women were domestics. In 1970, 20 percent of South black women were doing that type of work, the studies found. Among younger workers, the rate fell from 50 percent to 5 percent.

The studies — "Race Differences in Earnings: A Survey and New Evidence," and "The Convergence to Racial Equality in Women's Wages" — concluded that the wage gap between blacks and whites has been narrowed since the end of World War II, but it may be 30 or 40 years more before the gap is closed.

The studies, prepared under a grant from the National Science Foundation, were based on analyses of population surveys by the U.S. Census Bureau involving 320,000 persons between 1968 and 1975.

The Rand Corp., based in Santa Monica, is a private, nonprofit research center that studies domestic and national security issues.

ACTOR DETAINED

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A black actor from South Africa said Saturday that he was detained at Nairobi International Airport for nine hours because he had no acceptable currency to pay his visa fee. Winston Ntshona said he arrived here Thursday night to play a feature role in the U.S.-produced movie "Ashanti" being filmed in Kenya. But he was carrying only Botswana money and airport officials refused to change it into Kenyan currency.

OVERLOADED — A large elm branch lies in ruin at the base of a tree Saturday, the victim of an unseasonable snowstorm that dumped at least five inches of snow on the Denver area between early Friday and Saturday. Another six inches is forecast through Sunday. Throughout the state, the National Weather Service reported between one and two feet of new, unwelcome snow from the storm. (AP Laserphoto)

Famed Circus Fat Woman Dies At 57

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Frances Josephine Voges, an 800-pound woman known in sideshows and carnivals as Baby Frances, died at University Community Hospital Saturday of pneumonia and heart disease. She was 57.

Miss Voges was born in Tampa and had worked most of her life in carnivals and sideshows.

Her sister, Olivia Kyle, said the woman was hospitalized three weeks ago. She said the family ordered a special casket at that time but said it had not arrived and probably would delay the funeral.

"She was in pretty bad shape and we didn't expect her to live," Mrs. Kyle said. "So we ordered a special casket because of her size."

Mrs. Kyle said her sister weighed 826 pounds when well, but said her weight had dropped to about 800 pounds during her illness.

Anti-Nuclear Group Visits U.S. Cities

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — A delegation of Japanese, including two survivors of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima 32 years ago, gathered at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory here, home of the atomic bomb.

"In Japan, 300,000 persons are still suffering the aftereffects of the radiation," said Nagashida Wada, leader of the 22-member delegation which held a memorial service Saturday at Ashley Pond for those who died at Hiroshima. "We are fighting against nuclear weapons because so many are still suffering even after 30 years."

Funded with $41,000 raised by Japanese labor unions, the anti-nuclear group is spending three weeks visiting nine U.S. cities.

Ex-CIA Official Blames Agency For Red Intervention In Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA official said Sunday that "blundering stupidity" by the intelligence agency paved the way for massive intervention in Angola later by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

John Stockwell, a 12-year CIA veteran who said he commanded the CIA's Angola task force in agency headquarters at Langley, Va., made the allegations in an interview on the CBS television program "60 Minutes."

Stockwell said the CIA embarked on what amounted to a "secret war" in the torn country, but withheld information about its activities from the congressional committees set up to oversee covert CIA operations.

A CIA spokesman, Lavon Strong, said the agency had no immediate comment on Stockwell's allegations.

In the interview, Stockwell said: — The CIA had advisers and trainers on the ground inside Angola, in violation of the orders of its operations advisory group.

Former CIA Director William Colby, also interviewed on the program, said of Stockwell's allegation: "We did our training, we did our advising from neighboring countries, not from Angola."

— The CIA offered bounties for stolen aircraft, then used the planes to fly arms to Angola.

— The CIA recruited and delivered European mercenaries and played a role in sending U.S. mercenaries to the country.

— The CIA and the U.S. government encouraged South Africa to intervene in Angola and had close contact with them once they were there.

"The CIA kept itself totally separate from South Africa in that whole operation," Colby said.

The interview was broadcast the day before publication of a book by Stockwell about the CIA operation called "In Search of Enemies." Stockwell said intervention by the CIA and the South Africans provoked Cuba and the Soviet Union to enter the conflict.

"Had the CIA option, the violent option, not existed in Angola, we wouldn't have had the escalation of war and we wouldn't have had Cuban soldiers ... looked upon as heroes of the people of Africa," Stockwell said. "And this is because of the blundering stupidity, if you will, of the CIA's paramilitary operation."

Stockwell said Henry Kissinger had the original idea of a CIA operation in Angola, but intended it as a bluff aimed at the Soviets.

But "it was certainly clear, I believe, to 98 percent of the world at that point, that the CIA could not go in with another Vietnam-sized operation," Stockwell said. "The public, the press, the Congress would not put up with it. So it was Kissinger's desire to bluff the Soviets when he couldn't follow through, and they knew it."

Stockwell said the CIA effort included "a small air force of stolen planes" to ferry arms into Angola. "We even put a bounty out of $30,000 for anyone who would skyjack a plane that had some weapons on it," he added.

He also said the CIA actively recruited mercenaries to fight in Angola. "We had one program which we called the French Hoods," which cost about half a million dollars to send 20 Frenchmen in as advisers," Stockwell said. "Their con-

Congress Considers Torture Device Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has taken steps to prohibit the export of thumb screws, leg irons, shackles and electric shock batons to governments that engage in gross violations of human rights.

Thumb screws are tiny torture instruments that, when twisted, apply painful pressure on fingers. According to literature, thumb screws were once in favor in China where high-born out-of-sorts householders supposedly felt better after affixing them to their servants.

"I find it incredible that these torture instruments from the Dark Ages are still being manufactured — let alone exported abroad," said Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn.

An amendment, proposed by Fraser and adopted last Wednesday by the House International Relations Committee, prohibits the sale of so-called "crime control equipment" to "the police, domestic intelligence and other law enforcement forces of governments engaged in gross violations of human rights," Fraser aide John Salzberg said.

Crime control equipment includes thumb screws, leg irons, shackles, shock batons, dart guns and psychological stress analysis equipment, said Salzberg.

"The regulations now governing the export of these police devices are exceedingly lax," Fraser said in a statement. "Exporters need only a general commercial license from the U.S. Commerce Department."

The amendment, attached to the 1978 foreign assistance bill, would permit such sales only if the president certified in writing extraordinary circumstances were involved.

Fraser's amendment also would require quarterly reports to Congress on such sales valued at more than $100,000 and place crime control equipment under the State Department's Office of Munitions Control.

Rauer Meyer of the Bureau of Export Control in the Commerce Department confirmed his bureau had "validated license control" for crime control equipment to communist countries plus South Africa and Namibia. That means, he said, special application for the exports would have to be made and they could be rejected.

But, Meyer said, such items as thumb screws and leg irons can be exported under a routine general license to other countries.

"This is not to say the United States is shipping thousands of thumb screws to imperil the enemies of Idi Amin in Uganda or others accused of human rights violations."

Meyer said he has "no recollection" of any thumb screw exports. "They aren't listed in the yellow pages and there are no figures to suggest thumb screws are a hot export item."

Lone Bandit 'Cases' Motel, Returns For Holdup

After "casing the joint," a lone bandit returned to an Avenue H motel late Saturday to finish the holdup he apparently had planned earlier.

Desk clerk Linda Jackson told police the man entered the Brass Lantern Motel at 5912 Ave. H about 11:35 p.m. Saturday and inquired about a room there. He left, though, after she told him what the night's stay would cost.

The woman told police he was back five minutes later, but this time hiding his arm under a jacket to make it appear that he had a weapon.

"I don't want any trouble," she said he told her. "I don't want any trouble, but if you have a cash register, I want the money."

The clerk told police she was so astonished at hearing the demands that she didn't move. She said the man then repeated his statements, adding, "this is a robbery."

Police said the man fled the motel with about $130.

In other violent activity, police still were investigating a number of reported assaults.

In one such case, 23-year-old Arthur Hicks Jr., of Route 7, Box 845, told police he was at a 13th Street and Avenue F club about 1:40 a.m. Sunday assisting the manager in searching patrons for weapons.

Hicks said one customer apparently did not want to be searched, and, after telling him so, stabbed Hicks in the arm and shoulder. He was treated at West Texas Hospital and later released.

Police still were checking an 18-year-old youth's report that he was cut severely with a broken bottle during an altercation near 58th Street and Memphis Avenue about 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

The 50th Street resident told officers he and five other youths were throwing water balloons when one of the targets of their attack became angry. The man got out of his car, broke the bottle and began cutting the boy, the victim told police.

Burglars made off with a $330 tape recorder, a $375 television set and a $575 ring from the Vincent Felimon Jimenez residence at 716 3rd St., he told police Sunday.

Tommy Lee Graves of Tahoka told officers someone removed a briefcase and a citizens band radio from his car, parked outside a residence in the 1600 block of Quirt Avenue about 10 p.m. Saturday.

Two rings valued at $850 and a $400 television set were reported missing from the home of Pam Shawford of 709 Ave. R No. 4. She said the items apparently were taken about 4 p.m. Saturday.

Vandals made their way into coin-operated machines at the Double L Laundromat at 2837 Clovis Road between 8 a.m. Friday and 5 p.m. Saturday, taking more than $100 from the coin boxes on the machines.

Steve Arthur Hill of 1501 Vanda Ave. told officers someone took a 1948 pickup truck valued at $150 and a car engine valued at $300 from a fenced area at his business at that address between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday.

Debra Caudle told police someone took an $85 tape deck from her 4520-A 35th St. home between 7 p.m. Friday and 61 a.m. Saturday.

Apollinar Prez of 2003 Ave. K told police he went to bed about 10:15 p.m. Friday and laid his wallet on a stereo near his bedroom. When his wife returned home at 1:35 a.m. Saturday, she found the door to the residence open and his wallet missing. It contained about $135, he told police.

Eddie J. Hooks of 1312 16th St. told officers someone took $225 in tools from the back of his pickup, parked outside his home between 9 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday.

Gayle Reed of Reed Motors at 804 4th St. told officers someone took $200 in tires from the firm about 11 p.m. Saturday. Officers arrested a 30-year-old black man in connection with that incident.

A $250 lawnmower reportedly was taken from Gordon Ray Sim's backyard at his 2515 Bates St. home between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 6:22 p.m. Saturday.

A Lubbock resident told Super "M" Warehouse manager David Polly he watched a man drive off from the 5000 Gary Ave. store with two of the firm's shopping carts in the back of his pickup. Polly told police the carts were valued at $110 each.

Obituaries

Two Suspects Held In Slayings Here

Lubbock-area lawmen Saturday had suspects in custody less than 2 1/2 hours after the city's 12th slaying of the year and Lubbock County's fourth murder of 1978.

A 49-year-old black woman remained in Lubbock County Jail late Sunday for the death of 49-year-old Elgin Sylvester Widemon of 2407-D Weber Drive.

Also jailed was a 67-year-old man following the 6:25 p.m. shooting of 50-year-old Virgie Mae Stokes of 4310 E. 63rd St.

Officers arriving at a 2129 E. 30th St. residence about 4:06 p.m. Saturday found Widemon's body sprawled in a hallway of the home and a bloody butcher knife lying on a coffee table nearby.

Widemon had been stabbed in the chest, shoulder and under the chin, police said.

Witnesses at the residence told police an argument had broken out about a half hour before police were notified. The victim and a 49-year-old woman reportedly had struggled when the man allegedly threatened her with a chair and the knife.

When the woman's son heard the scuffle, he reportedly ran into the house to find her lying on the floor holding her right hand. He reportedly shoved Widemon, who fell to the floor face down in the hallway.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack ruled the death homicide, and services for the man are pending with South Plains Funeral Home.

Services for Mrs. Stokes also are pending with South Plains Funeral Home.

Sheriff's deputies said they found the woman dead after arriving at 4310 E. 63rd St. about 6:25 p.m. Saturday.

She was lying face up just outside the kitchen and had been shot twice in the chest with a .38-caliber weapon, deputies said.

A man was arrested a short time later and booked into Lubbock County Jail for murder.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled her death homicide and ordered an autopsy.

Chinese Red Demands U.S. Quit Korea

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng denounced the United States at a mass rally in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang Sunday and demanded the withdrawal of all U.S. "aggressor" troops from South Korea.

Hua, on his first trip abroad since becoming party chief in 1976, also said the Communist North Korean government is "the sole legitimate sovereign Korean state — we do not recognize the South Korean authorities."

The speech was transmitted by the official New China News Agency. It said more than 100,000 people attended the rally.

Hua said the root cause of the "artificial division" of the Korean peninsula is that the United States "occupies South Korea and pursues a policy of dividing Korea."

"The Chinese government and people denounce the U.S. government's policy of aggression and division, and we denounce the crimes of the (South Korean President) Park Chung-hee clique for betraying the Korean people and splitting the country," he said. Hua said the United States and South Korea are trying to perpetuate the division, but "any scheme to create 'two Koreas' is doomed to utter failure."

"The U.S. government must withdraw all its aggressor troops and military equipment from South Korea," Hua said.

"The Korean question should be settled by the Korean people themselves, free from any foreign interference."

Hua said the Chinese people will "stand unswervingly" by the Korean people in their struggle against "imperialist aggression and interference and for the independent and peaceful reunification of their country."

"They will unite, fight and advance together with the Korean people no matter what storms may rise in this world," he said.

The official North Korean Central News Agency reported that North Korea criticized Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda for urging President Carter in their recent Washington meeting not to withdraw American ground troops from Korea in haste.

Hua arrived in North Korea by train Friday.

Ouster Brings Pullout Threat In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A key black nationalist organization Sunday threatened to pull out of Rhodesia's shaky transition government unless a black minister fired for demanding affirmative action is "immediately reinstated."

Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council put off a final decision for a week to give the biracial leadership time to reconsider its dismissal of co-Minister of Justice and Law and Order Byron Hove.

But UANC second Vice President Ernest Bulle warned that unless Hove is given his post back, "I think it is quite clear that they (the UANC) will not stay in the government."

A UANC statement also warned the other members of the Executive Council that is trying to guide Rhodesia to full majority rule by Dec. 31 to stop ganging up on the highly popular Muzorewa.

Muzorewa says he was not party to the decision to fire Hove — although the other two blacks on the council dispute this — and a special committee was formed to investigate the dispute.

It released its findings Saturday. They were not made public but Bulle said the panel found "flaws" in the process by which Hove was fired for refusing to retract statements urging affirmative action for blacks in the police force and bureaucracy.

The UANC national executive council held a daylong meeting to consider the committee's report and issued a statement saying "Hove must be immediately and unconditionally reinstated since his dismissal was unconstitutional."

It said it was postponing final action pending a decision by the ruling executive council but it set a meeting for next Sunday.

The UANC statement "particularly and specifically condemned the ganging up against Bishop Muzorewa" by the other members of the executive council — rival black leaders Ndabaningi Sithole and Jeremiah Chimau and Prime Minister Smith.

Muzorewa Saturday said the possibility of his group's quitting government remains "very much on the cards," but several black nationalists said they doubted he would leave.

"If he pulled out, where would he go?" a rival politician asked.

Soviet Union Rejects Charge Of Assisting Coup In Afghanistan

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Sunday rejected suggestions it had a hand in the left-wing coup in neighboring Afghanistan and said it was actually the United States that most often meddled in the affairs of other countries.

Official Tass news agency commentator Yuri Kornilov said Western reactionaries circles had wrongly linked the bloody April 27 seizure of power in Afghanistan to Moscow.

"All these are deliberate lies intended on the one hand to discredit the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan and its leadership and on the other hand to cast aspersions on Soviet policy," Kornilov said.

"If some people in Washington are really worried by instances of rude interference in the affairs of other states, they could discover numerous such facts in the policy of the United States itself."

Kornilov charged the United States has "implanted and maintained the anti-popular puppet regimes in South Korea and several Latin American countries."

Trial Begins In Cable TV Antitrust Suit

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — An antitrust trial which could yield a landmark decision in cable television law begins Monday in U.S. District Court here.

The suit was brought against Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. and American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in 1970 by an Aberdeen cable television station.

TV Signal Co. of Aberdeen claimed the telephone company was violating the Sherman and Clayton antitrust acts by refusing to let the cable company string its coaxial cable on telephone poles.

The company's claims were rejected twice by U.S. District Judge Axel Beck, who wrote the case did not fit legal requirements for an antitrust suit.

However, the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals decided TV Signal could make an antitrust case. Almost six years after the appeals court decision, the case is going to trial.

The suit is unique because few if any court decisions have addressed a situation involving competing cable television companies and their rights to use telephone company poles.

Another major element is the question of monopoly impact on several other potential users of broadband cable in transmitting information.

TV Signal claims Bell allowed its competitor in Aberdeen to string its cable. It also charges the company said it had a policy allowing only one cable company to use the poles.

The effect of the policy and the refusal, TV Signal said in its complaint, was restriction and threatened destruction of competition; delay in TV signal's cable service; loss of cable company competition and an extension of the telephone monopoly into the cable television business.

The cable company also claimed Bell's policy forced it to bury its coaxial cable at a cost much higher than stringing it on the telephone company's poles.

Sale Of Equipment To China Blocked

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The federal government, citing national security concerns, has blocked an Ann Arbor firm from selling $2.8 million worth of earth-scanning equipment to the People's Republic of China.

The order placed by the Chinese government with Daedalus Enterprises was for equipment which would aid China in detecting potential earthquakes and oil fields.

Fearing that the Chinese would adapt the equipment to intercept U.S. military signals, the Commerce Department's Office of Export Administration has denied Daedalus an export license, the Detroit Free Press reported Sunday.

The $2.8 million order is more than the company's total sales for 1977.

The Carter administration reportedly was concerned about the proposed sale because of a scheduled visit to Peking on May 20 by Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser.

The situation was called too "sensitive" to discuss by an administration official who said Daedalus had received advance warning from Washington that the export license would be denied.

The government's national security concerns were labeled "absurd" by Mark Rollinson, an attorney with a Detroit law firm that is representing Daedalus in its dealings with the administration.

Music Instructor To Serve On Board

MIDLAND (Special) — Robert LaFontaine, music instructor at Midland College, has been named to the Commission for Music in General Education, one of several working committees of the Texas Association of Music Schools.

LaFontaine, who came to Midland College in 1976 to begin the school's music program, will serve a three year term as the junior college representative on the TAMS committee.

Prison Guard Unions Hit By Federal Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-financed study released Sunday says the union movement among prison guards is damaging penal reform.

A two-volume report by the American Justice Institute of Sacramento, Calif., said prison employee groups have opposed work-release and community-based programs. The author of one volume, John M. Wynne Jr., a researcher with the institute, said the guards regard community correction programs as a threat to their jobs because they could close institutions and have opposed work-release because they contend it leads to a greater amount of contraband smuggled into prisons.

The study also concludes that correctional officers "have resisted efforts to give prisoners adequate due-process rights in disciplinary matters."

The study was financed by a $335,770 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The report also stated that unionism has brought much-needed improvements in economic benefits and working conditions to prison employees. However, the report said, collective bargaining has had some harmful side effects, particularly in reducing the authority of prison wardens and managers.

The second volume in the report, written by another institute researcher, M. Robert Montilla, said prison managers have contributed to the problem by failing to realize the complexities of collective bargaining.

"They think it's simple and go into it without adequate staff work and without any management demands," he said.

Snyder Votes Today On Sale Of Liquor

SNYDER (Special) — Snyder voters will make another trip to the polls today to decide a local option liquor election.

Residents here will be deciding whether to approve the legal sale of all alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption only.

If voters okay the measure, it will mean that package stores may operate in the city.

County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth predicted a large voter turnout since more than 400 absentee ballots had been cast in the election.

Rollinson said the technology the government is challenging is more than 20 years old. He said the Chinese could have obtained cheaper and simpler methods of intercepting U.S. military signals from sources other than Daedalus. Denial of the license may change the status of six Chinese scientists who have been in Ann Arbor since April 11 learning to use the equipment. Daedalus president Alan K. Parker said he would notify the head of the visiting team of scientists on Monday that the license has been denied. Among the equipment the Chinese had hoped to buy were geological scanning devices that can be mounted on aircraft to detect heat and light impulses from the ground. After the impulses are transmitted into a magnetic tape recorder, they are fed into a computer, which outlines a geological image of the land.

THE ROMAN POLANSKI STORY

French Law Shields Director From Prosecution

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Since his escape from American justice, the name of Roman Polanski has been almost unrelentingly and defended. In this final part of a three-part series by John T. Davis about his life, Polanski's career and future are analyzed by legal fees and professional friends.)

(c) 1978, Universal Press Syndicate

When Roman Polanski fled early this year to the country where he was born 44 years ago, he knew his flight was a nearly impregnable shield against punishment—more time in an American prison—for the crime of illegal sexual intercourse with a 13-year-old girl.

Yet, by his decision to flee, he has probably destroyed his career. A State Department expert on extradition said recently that the chances of Polanski being returned to this country are nil. "The French are barred from extraditing their own citizens," he said. "He is a French citizen."

The offense is a crime in France as well, and is punishable by 5 to 20 years in prison. An agreement between the U.S. and France would allow Polanski to be charged in a French court, a spokesman in the French embassy in Washington said, but it seems likely that would occur. The girl and other witnesses probably would have to testify in France, the spokesman said.

Douglas Dalton, Polanski's California attorney, reportedly traveled to France in an effort to persuade the fugitive director to return to the U.S. to face sentencing for the offense committed in Los Angeles on March 10, 1977. The attorney now refuses to comment on the case.

Since Polanski fled the country, Judge Laurence Rittenband, the judge who apparently intended to send him back to prison for additional psychiatric examination, has removed himself from the case. Since Judge Rittenband disqualified himself, the Polanski case has become the responsibility of Judge Paul Breckenridge, presiding judge of the criminal division of the Los Angeles Superior Court. Breckenridge said last week that, as presiding judge, he may hear the case himself or assign it to one of his colleagues.

'I think that if he could work this out and could get back in the states he could find plenty of work...'

Judge Breckenridge said he could not comment on whether he would treat Polanski more leniently than Judge Rittenband did.

"It would be completely inappropriate for me to indicate that I have any attitude toward the case at this time," Judge Breckenridge said. "If he, Polan-ski, were to return, I would be responsible for hearing the case or assigning it to another judge. As far as I'm concerned, it's just another case."

The judge said the case has been removed from the judicial calendar and he has no information about Polanski's activities other than what he reads in the newspaper.

"I don't know if he will ever come back," Judge Breckenridge said. "The Los Angeles County district attorney's office is continuing to study the possibility of extradition, officials there said. They would not elaborate."

As for Hollywood, the community remains ambivalent toward Polanski. "There were a lot of people who were outraged," said Hollywood columnist Marilyn Beck. "There were a lot of people who felt he was a victim of a situation; that he probably didn't know how old she was and that she came on

Yet, at least one friend said the playboy images is a facade. "A non-smoker and virtually a teetotaler," wrote one London associate, "he, I believe, secretly enjoys the reputation of a swinging, drug-oriented libertine, when in truth, as I had many opportunities to observe, a couple of aspirins are just about his limit."

Even the girl and her mother have appeared to be more than anxious to end the case with an admission of guilt by Polanski and seek his rehabilitation rather than his imprisonment. Polanski told his probation officer that he felt greater pity and compassion for the girl, but not for her mother.

'There were a lot of people who felt he was a victim of a situation...'

According to the probation report, a psychiatrist found that Polanski was not a sexual deviate or pedophile (one who prefers children as sexual objects). Another doctor recommended treatment for unresolved depression.

Throughout the case, Polanski has reportedly been concerned about the impact it would have on his career. Last month he lost his job as director of the Dino De Laurentiis remake of "The Hurricane" being filmed in Tahiti when he was sent to prison for 42 days beginning in mid-December.

Yet Hollywood insiders don't regard the Polanski affair as a major industry scandal. "I think they have forgotten about it," one insider said. "I don't think they felt that much embarrassment. I think they felt it was an individual act."

Despite a personality that has sparked some degrees of animosity (he has been called "the 5-foot Pole you wouldn't want to touch with anyone with"), Polanski has maintained many strong friendships over the years and many feel he could count on those friends if he wanted to resume his career in the U.S.

"I think that if he could work this out and could get back in the states he could find plenty of work," Mrs. Beck said. "He has a lot of friends here."

Reportedly, Polanski is pursuing his film career in France. According to some reports, he plans to produce a movie called "Escape" in which a politician is seduced by a young girl, nearly ruining his career.

It could provide the most accurate epilogue to what remains of the Roman Polanski story.

Last In A Series

strong and that her mother came on strong. So you can ask different people and get different opinions."

Polanski's friends seem to agree with those who feel that he made a momentary error in judgement, that the act was not premeditated and that the girl encouraged him or at least willingly submitted. Witnesses and others who are acquainted with the girl have noted that she looks older than 13, or mature in fact that one witness thought they were lovers.

"She appeared to be one of those kinds of little chicks between...any age up to 25...she did not look like a 13-year-old scared little thing..." one witness told Polanski's probation officer. "She seemed quite tall to me...She seemed to be a pretty well-developed girl. I would not have thought that she was 13."

The probation officer concluded that the girl probably was a willing participant. "There was some indication," he said in his report, "that circumstances were provocative, that there was permissiveness by the mother, that the victim was not only physically mature, but willing; as one doctor had additionally suggested, there was a lack of coercion by the defendant who was, additionally, solicitous regarding the possibility of pregnancy."

Polanski has long had a reputation as a playboy. His London townhouse has often been described as a kind of bachelor haven replete with a sculpture of a nude woman.

Kennedy Tops Democratic Voter Poll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is a clear first choice for president among Democrats in the latest Gallup Poll published Sunday, but the Massachusetts lawmaker insists he is not going to be a candidate.

Fifty-three percent of the Democrats polled by the Gallup organization preferred Kennedy to just 40 percent for President Carter, the candidate whom Kennedy has pledged to support in 1980.

Seven percent of those questioned in the Kennedy versus Carter scenario were undecided about their choice two years from now. The poll was taken between March 31 and April 3.

"I'm heartened by the response," Kennedy told the New York Times, "but I'm not going to be a candidate. "Polls go up and go down, and do so quickly," he added.

In a larger field which included Kennedy, Carter, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Kennedy again finished first with 36 percent. Carter came in second with 29 percent, Brown was third with 12 percent and was followed in order by Mondale, Jackson and Udall.

The Gallup Poll noted that only once before in the 43-year history of the survey has an incumbent president eligible for re-election run second in a showdown test of strength.

It occurred in September 1967 when Robert Kennedy was preferred by 51 percent of the Democrats polled to 39 percent for then President Lyndon Johnson.

Houston Builders Urged To Act On Urban Blight

HOUSTON (AP) — Inside the concrete loop better known as Interstate 610 lies the Houston that once called itself the Bayou or Magnolia City. And although the area is well within the fabled Sun Belt, it has more in common with older cities in the Northeast and Midwest than with the boom town attracting 1,000 new residents a week.

The plight and fate of Houston's inner city — an area including spectacular skyscrapers and neighborhoods that look as though they had gone through the Blitz — was the subject of a two-day conference this weekend during which participants criticized corporate developers, exchanged ideas on how to get organized and heard Mayor Jim McConn. pledge support for revitalization efforts.

"It's a beginning. It's the first time a group including people interested in historic preservation, in community development, in problems of displacement of low-income residents and in real estate and development has gotten together," Janet K. Wagner, a landscape architect said.

During the conference it became evident key terms like revitalization, planning and historic preservation meant different things to different people. There was also a question whether the inner city was limited to the downtown area or whether it took in old neighborhoods further out.

"Although we're using the same words, we're meaning different things," said Rev. Prentiss Moore, a black minister and community leader. "We're not talking about preserving a segregated society. If we're going to revitalize this community, the brown, black and poor communities have to be involved."

Together blacks and Mexican-Americans make up about 40 percent of Houston's 1.2 million population, and most live in the inner city.

McConn, who campaigned last year on an anti-displacement platform, announced the creation of an urban policy task force to pinpoint priorities.

One priority agreed on by nearly all participants is the need to bring people back to the downtown area, not just from 9 to 5 but to live.

"People on the streets at night, living in the area, that's what makes the inner city live," said Gerald Hines, whose investment development firm is responsible for much of the commercial development that has changed the face of downtown Houston.

Municipal and federal urban renewal programs that swept through blighted areas of many other cities did not touch Houston. There are no public housing projects built on the sites of old, ramshackle houses. The dilapidated structures are still there — or they have been bulldozed away to make room for office buildings or light industries.

Roscoe Jones, head of the city planning department, said the free marketplace has been responsible for the development of Houston, a city without zoning restrictions.

"Developers have essentially determined how they will use the land they have bought and the buildings on it," he said.

A recurring theme during the conference was the fate of the Fourth Ward, an old neighborhood just west of downtown. Real estate developers have expressed interest in replacing run-down warehouses and residences with townhouses.

But critics of that plan say the people who now live in the neighborhood could not afford to live in the new houses. Others say banks refuse to lend money to individuals or groups who want to rehabilitate existing structures. No one seems to know where displaced residents will go.

"It may be too late to save the Fourth Ward," Janet Wagner said. "This has to be an effort of public awareness. Urban decay isn't just limited to the inner city. It has a ripple effect. But preservation has a ripple effect, too. People have got to know what they can do to save their city."

Irreplaceable Papers Stolen From Attic

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — A collection of priceless historic papers and antiques, some of which belonged to colonial Gov. Samuel Cranston, has been stolen from the attic of a private home, police said Sunday.

Among the items stolen was a Revolutionary War general's personal written account of the burning of the British schooner Gaspee in Narragansett Bay in 1772.

Police say they are baffled by the theft because only a few people knew about the importance of the documents and where they were kept.

Lt. William E. Walsh declined to disclose the name of the owner of the home, a 60-year-old woman who worked for the Cranston family and inherited the articles.

He said the theft occurred sometime during the winter but was not reported until a few weeks ago. Police decided to withhold news of the theft until after a preliminary investigation was made, he said.

"They had to know when the people were away," Walsh said of the thieves. "They had to know what papers were important because they passed over some that weren't valuable."

Walsh said it would be difficult for the thieves to sell the documents. "They're too hot to unload. It's worthless to them unless they've got some multimillionaire who wants to collect them privately."

In addition to the papers, many of them owned by Cranston, governor from 1698 to 1727 and in whose honor the city was named, about $10,000 worth of antique silverware and pewter was stolen, he said.

Indians Protest Jackson Era Pact

TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — Four Indians have started out on a month-long horseback ride from the Creek reservation near Cairo to Washington as part of a protest by Creeks in the Southeast against treaties they say the government "railroaded" past the Indians.

One of the treaties is an 1825 pact deeding all Creek land east of the Chattahoochee River to the United States. The treaty was signed by President Andrew Jackson in Washington 23 days after it was signed by Indians in Georgia, and the Indians say it could not have been delivered from south Georgia to Washington in that amount of time.

Peggy McCormick, wife of Cate Neal McCormick, said the Creeks want compensation for that land and title to a 1-square-mile tract in Carroll County — the old McIntosh Reservation. She said there are 7,228 Creeks in the Southeast, most in Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have always prided myself on the ability to live with my mistakes.

The list is rather extensive and includes an underachiever dog, white carpet in the living room which the underachiever dog thinks is snow, amber lamps in the bathroom that make me look sick when I am well, lawn furniture for which the canvas replacement is sold only in a country under siege, bed pillows that smell like a wet dog on a register, and a feathered wig that the saleswoman promised me was going to come into style next week. (That was in '74).

Call it loyalty. Call it courage. Call it strength. Call it cheap. Whatever, I tough out what I buy. That includes a pair of tan play shoes.

They cost $24 ($5 more than I paid for my husband's wedding ring) and more than I ever paid for a pair of play shoes in my entire life. They had no heel, two straps of leather and a thin sole.

In the store they felt terrific. It's what I imagined heaven felt like when you ran barefoot through a cumulus cloud.

The first hour I had them on at home, my right toe turned red, then purple, and a blister appeared.

The second hour, the blister broke, became infected, and caused pain to shoot all the way to my hip.

We all know shoes are like horses that throw you. You get right back on them to let them know who is in command. I mounted those shoes every day for three months. Finally, one day my husband said, "Do your feet hurt?"

"Why do you ask?"

"You walk like Quasimodo. I've never seen your right shoulder touch the floor before when you walked."

"It's the shoes. I'm breaking them in."

"They don't look new."

"That's because I've been wearing them for three months."

"If they hurt your feet, why don't you throw them away?"

"And leave all that good sole? Don't worry. I'll know when it's time to throw them away. I'll get a sign."

"Why don't you ask Shirley how she stands 'em? She has a pair just like them."

I staidied myself against the wall. "Shirley has a pair of shoes just like these? In the same color?" I slipped them off and threw them in the back of the closet.

You don't have to strike me with lightning!

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Only recently I discovered my 23-year-old son is a homosexual. What causes a young man to turn to this way of life? Can you shed any helpful light on the subject? — Mrs. H.V.

There are many theories. A common one involves environment in the home. For what it's worth, this theory states that the mother is overprotective and over-indulgent, while the father may be a brusque character who terrifies his son with demands on the youngster's masculinity. The child, unable to cope, turns more and more to the mother for understanding and protection. The male self-image recedes.

Another theory involves an interruption in the process of sensing gender. The child begins to sense this at about three or four years. There is a phase in growing up during which homosexual relationships of a non-sexual nature are the norm. In pre-puberty or early puberty boys associate with boys and girls stick together, neither having much to do with the opposite sexes. This theory of adult homosexuality suggests that the youngster's attitude toward sex becomes fixed or arrested at this age.

There may be homosexual acts in these years that appeal to the youngster and come to be regarded by him as the norm. Actual seduction of a child is not regarded as a common cause, however.

If a child is seen to have homosexual tendencies, efforts to correct it can be made. Such signs include the tendency to be a loner, to avoid socializing with the opposite sex, and shunning activities considered usual for age and sex.

I'm asked by some parents about transvestitism — a desire to wear clothes of the opposite sex. This can be normal in young children, but if it persists past a certain age, suspicion should be aroused.

Figures I've seen indicate that 30 to 50 percent of young homosexuals can be converted by psychotherapy. Treatment is usually not effective past adolescence. Some homosexuals may be actually bisexual, consort with both sexes, marry and become parents.

This subject is charged with great emotion, especially and understandably, in homosexual circles. So one always runs a risk when discussing it clinically of appearing to be on the side of condemnation. It is estimated that there are between two million and six million homosexuals in this country, and they are found in all walks of life. Many do tend to be neurotic, yet most have contributed greatly to society in all professions.

In any event, once an individual is recognized as a homosexual or admits to these leanings, he or she should not be condemned or rejected.

I have been asked my "views" on this subject with some frequency in recent years. "Views" is not the precise word. These are my observations, or what I consider pertinent observations of experts in the field.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am going to college soon and need a pair of comfortable shoes because I know I'll be doing a lot of walking. When I went shopping the saleslady recommended shoes that are constructed so that the heels are lower than the rest of the foot. She said they were very comfortable and were supposed to be good for one's back. Later I heard a doctor on television say they could cause back problems. What is your opinion? — P.L.

Take the advice of the doctor you saw on television. The shoes you describe might be comfortable for lounging in a chair, but not for walking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to go to my doctor and talk this over with him, but I am too embarrassed. I turn to you, hoping you can help me out.

I'm a 17-year-old girl, and am very small on top (29 is my measurement). But what worries me is that about two or three months ago I was 31, and it seems like I'm shrinking. My mother doesn't know why. Could you tell me what you think of this situation? I want to know before it's too late to do something. — Worried.

Is it possible your first measurement was made at the time of menstruation or just before it, when the breasts normally enlarge? Confine your measuring to mid-cycle and see if you are not "holding steady."

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Couple Enjoys Antarctic Trip

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — John and Donna Mitchell Oliver are back from a full year in Antarctica — the first husband-wife team ever to spend a winter at a government research station on the frozen continent.

"I think we're going to see a lot more women working down there soon," said Mrs. Oliver, a 29-year-old laboratory technician at Scripps Institution of Oceanography where her husband is a graduate student in biological oceanography.

The only woman among 87 men at McMurdo Base, she helped her 31-year-old husband collect animal types and studied the effects of winter isolation on 43 of the men.

The companionship "makes the winter a lot more bearable," Oliver said in an interview after their return. But he said selection of government explorers "should be based solely on an individual's work qualifications and personality — without regard to sex."

Mrs. Oliver returned with 800 pages of notes and 43 taped interviews.

The American explorers, she said, "suffer from lower motivation levels, shorter attention spans, lower energy levels and a sort of dullness which is hard to describe." But generally, said Mrs. Oliver, "I saw no serious psychological problems develop among the men."

Dr. Edward P. Todd, director of the National Science Foundation's division of polar problems, praised the Olivers in a statement from Washington as "a new breed of biological problem solvers."

"The success of the Olivers' effort may encourage other research couples to participate in winter Antarctic programs funded through the National Science Foundation," Todd said.

Only two other women have spent a winter at the South Pole with the government's blessing. Dr. Mary Alice McWhinnie and Sister Mary Odile Cahoon lived and worked together at McMurdo in 1974.

In 1947, as part of a small private expedition with their husbands, Jennie Darlington and Edith Ronne wintered in Antarctica.

Oswald: "The right time to draw trumps is as soon as you can afford it."

Alan: "Here is a hand that really illustrates this. South finds himself in an apparently easy four-spade contract. South plays dummy's jack of hearts at trick one and East wins with the queen. Back comes the jack of diamonds. South wins in dummy and should cash just two trumps before going after clubs. If he draws three rounds he can be beaten."

Oswald: "He not only can be beaten but he probably will be if he does draw that third round. His next play will be a club and if West hedges right up with his ace and leads a second heart the defense will have three tricks in. South will ruff a third heart with his last trump and won't be able to discard dummy's two losing diamonds on long clubs."

Alan: "Just two rounds of trumps and South is in full command. He will have a trump entry to his hand to cash the last two clubs and discard dummy's two small diamonds."

Junior League Delegates Attend Meeting

Mrs. Wayne Culp, Mrs. Charles Key and Mrs. John Blakey will represent the Junior League of Lubbock as delegates to the 1978 Annual Conference of the Association of Junior Leagues, Inc. today through Thursday in the Crown Center Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri.

Over 650 delegates from the United States, Canada and Mexico will participate in the five-day conference and explore through speakers, panel discussions and workshops the conference theme "The Responsibilities of Power: Authority, Accountability and Advocacy."

Delegates will be trained in organizational self-assessment, a program designed to aid Leagues in determining what aspects of Junior League structure bring the most membership satisfaction.

An international voluntary organization, the Association of Junior Leagues, Inc., is comprised of 234 autonomous Junior Leagues representing over 120,000 individual members.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mad I have to unload my anger or bust. You are elected to serve as my safety valve.

I read recently in the Wall Street Journal where the Dolphin Dolls of Miami, those adorable, sweet-looking cheerleaders (from 12 to 18 years of age), have been run off the field by the competition — mainly Dallas. The Dolphins' manager, Bill Allen, said cheerleading has become "a battle of bellybuttons, boobs and bottoms. There's no room for wholesome girls with long-sleeved blouses and scarves at their necks. The public wants bumps and grinds and plunging necklines on TV."

One of the Dolls said it was just as well. The fans have become increasingly hostile. Shouts of "shut up" and "sit down, you're blocking the view" are not uncommon. The girls have been splattered with mustard, ketchup and pickle relish — as well as coffee and soda pop.

It seems the public wants older, sexier and more naked cheerleaders. Talented baton-twirlers and really good dancing ability doesn't mean a thing.

Isn't this sickening, Ann? What do you have to say about this appalling commentary on American taste? — Rome And Greece, Here We Come

Dear R and G: Last gasps of a dying civilization. Exit long-sleeved baton-twirlers. Make way for the naked but far from dead.

It looks like we're playing on one string — and a G-string at that! How sad. Shed a tear for decency. Like chivalry, it may not be dead but it's not in very good health.

Dear Ann Landers: Why are parents always the No. 1 breakers of their own rules?

For example: My mother's favorite rule is, "No yelling from one person to another if that person is in another room." Whenever any of us kids do it we get holy heck, but Mom does it all the time.

Another one of her pet rules is, "No talking with food in your mouth." We can't do it, but she can — and she does — at every meal. My list could go on forever.

I know parents should have some special privileges, but it sure is tough to have to stick to rules when the person who made them up breaks them left and right. What can we do about it? — Children Of A Mother Who Needs To Shape Up

Dear Children: Sorry, I can't do anything to shape up your mother and neither can you. So why don't you just love her the way she is? And it might help if you kids try to remember that your mom wants you to go out into the world with really good manners. What she is trying to do is teach her children some of the finer points that her mother never taught her. A mom who works at that sort of thing can't be all bad.

CONFIDENTIAL to If I'm Crazy Tell Me: No — you are not crazy. I have often thought it quite remarkable the way pets in families look like the people who own them. Or — to put it another way — people often select pets who resemble themselves. Why? I've heard some wild theories, but none that I buy.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I often wonder how mothers of infants bathe their babies. Well, if some are still taking them to the kitchen sink, I may have a lifesaver for them.

The plastic infant seats are very helpful when bathing the baby. Take the seat, remove the pad and drape a small towel over the back of the seat.

Put the infant seat in the bathtub. Then run water in the tub (temperature and depth for baby's safety). Set baby in seat and strap in.

You can kneel or sit by the tub and play and wash the baby. Brothers and sisters can enjoy baby's company while in the tub too!

Baby won't be afraid of water and it's all such a pleasant time, instead of the rush-rush you have in the kitchen.

Just don't go off and leave baby unattended! — Mrs. Cindy Shoaf

Safety for baby, pleasure for the whole family.

Mothers will love you for this one. Me too! — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

One day I was waiting in my car in a grocery store parking lot. As I watched, people maneuvered their cars around grocery carts into parking places, got out and walked toward the store, dodging more carts.

They would take a cart from the line in front of the store, and later return with their groceries, load their cars and leave the cart in the lot.

Granted, the lots these days are often pretty big and it's a long way to return the cart to the store. (Most of us could use the exercise, however, instead of paying for exercise classes!)

At least, couldn't we each take a cart from the lot into the store with us, especially if we're walking right past one? — Barbara Klingsporn

DEAR HELOISE:

I wanted to remove boiled eggs from boiling water, and boil the remainder until hard.

When I reached for a tablespoon, I saw my ice cream scoop, which worked beautifully to remove the eggs. — Millie

DEAR HELOISE:

For years I have had a cardboard tube from paper towels slipped over the exposed phone cords in my house, to prevent tripping over them. My heater cord has a tube from bathroom tissue over it.

Slit the tube to get it over the cord, then a piece of masking tape or cellophane tape closes the slit.

The tube can be slid to wherever wanted in the open space on the floor. No need to stoop over, running a risk of tripping. The tube can be slid along the cord with the foot!

A breeze cannot blow this from its appointed spot, will stay when placed and is very neat. — Great-Grandma Es

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband works at a service depot, and many things are discarded that may be put to good use. Two dishwasher trays now grace my closet floor as shoe racks.

With the casters they are great, slide out easily to remove dust and lint, and I find shoes fit properly in the dish areas. (This is the lower rack, of course.) — Mrs. P.D.

DEAR HELOISE:

Bring that beautiful birthday, Valentine or Mother's Day card out of its hiding place and frame it!

They make a very beautiful and different picture for your bedroom. — D.O.

Roosts Ruled By Female Birds

By JOE WING
 For AP Newsfeatures

The female liberation movement is old hat in the kingdom of the birds.

All around the world, some female birds not only prove themselves equal to the males, but dominate them and even practice polyandry, as they have for ages. Or they find other ways of evading household chores.

Take the tinamous. This is a family of more than 40 fowl-like varieties living in South America. Ornithologists regard them as primitive species, but the hens have their moments in that land of the macho human male.

The female variegated tinamou, for one, is bigger and brighter than the male. She does the courting, in as frantic a manner as any swain. This is rather odd in more than one way because she is outnumbered by males, four to one.

The male who happens to be the object of her affection at the moment scratches out a rudimentary nest on the ground but plays hard to get, thinking perhaps of duties to come. The product of their brief encounter is a shiny egg, one of the prettiest laid by any bird. He incubates it and cares for the chick when it hatches.

Having done this once, he may find himself doing it again and again as the female lays repeatedly. Freed from household duties, she has time and inclination to court other males and to find plenty of food for herself, thus gaining strength to lay more eggs than she might otherwise.

The same economy of labor factor probably enables the female pheasant-tailed jacana in southeastern Asia to produce each year seven to 10 clutches of four eggs each, after calling on various males for cooperation.

The female painted snipe of Australia even maintains an exclusive territory from year to year and fights off rivals just as males of other species do. She pays court vigorously to males that enter her territory and leaves to them the tasks of hatching eggs and raising hatchlings.

In America, the female Wilson's phalarope, a widely traveled shore bird, also makes love to the male, lays eggs in a nest he prepares and shows the chores off on him. She is larger and handsomer than her drab mate, who may have several females chasing him. Polyandry is suspected here too.

It is routine for most male birds to give some help on incubating the eggs and feeding the young. Even nest building is by no means an exclusive prerogative of the female. And if the intricate hanging nest fashioned by one of the African weaver birds does not pass his mate's inspection, she tears it to pieces and he tries again.

One ingenious way to evade domestic tasks, employed by the megapodes of Indonesia, New Guinea and other lands in that area is to bury the eggs in a sort of hotbed made up of rotting vegetation. This is a mound as large as 35 feet in diameter, scratched together laboriously by the male.

He is the one, moreover, who watches over the eggs, removing some of the vegetative material if the temperature gets too hot for them, and, in cool weather, arranging it to take advantage of the sun's rays. Not even he has anything to do with the chicks, however; able to run about as soon as hatched, they take off without seeing either parent.

Diving For Treasure 'Extremely Frustrating'

CHICAGO (UPI) — World renowned treasure hunter Robert Marx says diving for sunken millions isn't all it's splashed up to be. "I've been on my most recent dive for three months now that's costing us $10,000 a day, and all I've got is a pile of old cannonballs to show for it," Marx said Saturday at a national deep-sea diving seminar.

Marx, who has successfully hunted for American Civil War vessels and remnants of Spanish galleons, is a leading authority in his field. "Sure, I get to travel a lot and I love it," said Marx, the author of 25 books on buried treasure. "But this is not like what you get in Hollywood. It's often unproductive, is always expensive and at times, extremely frustrating.

Marx, 45, said most gems, gold ingots and other artifacts are discovered by amateur divers, or fishermen who find more than fish in their nets. "Many a gold watch, ingot or coin have been found by accident," he said. The finds of those accidents, he said, if sold before being confiscated by authorities, often reap thousands of dollars for finders. Marx said the federal government is threatening to take both the fun and the profit out of treasure hunting by imposing a tough new regulation that will hinge on the word "antiquity." He said that definition — which says numerous artifacts older than 100 years are antiquities — is only one part of federal Undersecretary Charles McKinney's legal proceedings to ban or severely restrict all wreck diving. The definition is contained in an administrative ruling, which is scheduled for final approval in Washington May 26. Marx said McKinney believes treasure hunters should be banned from the site of a shipwreck because wrecks are the property of the people and should be left to the expertise of the archaeological community. McKinney said in a speech to divers last month in Florida he supports a plan to fine divers up to $50,000 per day plus loss of boat and gear for anchoring over a federally-protected wreck site.

Few State Lawmakers Defeated In Primary

House Speaker Bill Clayton said Sunday he is now ready to name many representatives who have pledged to vote for him for an unprecedented third term as speaker.

Clayton said he would hold a news conference this morning to lay out the names of House nominees from 76 to 100 districts. Seventy-six votes are required for election.

Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, the only other speaker candidate, is not ready to give up, an aide said. He said Temple still believes he has a chance, despite Clayton's plans to reveal his hitherto secret pledges.

Many of the 89 incumbents who had no opposition in the primary and are home free in November owe committee chairmanships or key assignments to Clayton. Only 19 representatives did not seek reelection.

Incumbents Face Fights
The November general election could result in defeat for a few incumbents, but traditionally, the damage is done in the primaries.

Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, was the sole casualty in the Senate. The chunky ex-policeman, who has been a legislator more than 11 years, polled 13,612 votes to 19,471 for Rep. Bob Vale and 15,836 for lawyer Phil Hardeberger.

Vale and Hardeberger, who got quite a bit of local publicity with a San Antonio to Paris (France) flight in a single-engine plane last year, will meet in a runoff June 3.

Lombardino, a 50-year-old New York native, received a lot of political heat for his sponsorship of a 1975 bill giving retiring firemen and policemen virtually unlimited reimbursement for unused sick leave. It was repealed last year after cities that were affected screamed about the high cost. Other lawmakers whose legislative careers were interrupted Saturday were Reps. John Bigham, D-Belton; Abe Ribak, D-San Antonio; and Chris Miller, D-Fort Worth.

Bigham lost to William Messer of Belton. Bigham had failed to get the Texas Supreme Court to knock Messer off the ballot on the ground that he was simultaneously a municipal judge and a House candidate.

Bigham, a nine-year House member, was known for his environmental interests and his membership in the "Dirty 30" group of dissidents in the 1973 Legislature.

Ribak, first elected in 1974, was one of the House's more outspoken liberals. He was defeated by George Pierce, who had twice lost House races to Ribak.

Miss Miller was a casualty of a court-ordered redistricting plan. She was paired with Rep. Gib Lewis, who beat her almost three-to-one. Lewis is chairman of the House Intergovernmental Relations Committee.

Race Doubts Persist
State Rep. Mickey Leland had 48.15 percent of the vote in Miss Jordan's 18th District, but a big field and a slow count also threw that race into the less-than-positive category. State Rep. Anthony Hall was in second with 21.94 percent.

While those races drew the most attention, others had aspects that made them less than routine. And in the Houston-Galveston area District 22, incumbent Bob Gammage worked his way through Democratic challengers toward another face-off with Republican Ron Paul.

Rep. Jack Brooks won his primary battle and took another step toward becoming the Democratic dean of the Texas delegation in District 9. Brooks received 69.37 percent of the votes.

Walter Stuart of the credit union administration predicted that the nation's 12,600 federal credit unions will be cautious about getting into the program at first.

He anticipates that about 300 to 500 will be offering mortgages by 1980, and by 1983 he expects 1,500 credit unions to be lending $9 billion to $12 billion a year as mortgages.

Mortgage lending from all sources nationwide was $110 billion in 1976, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

New Mortgage Money Source Available
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new source of mortgage money becomes available today and it could grow to substantial proportions in a few years, according to government experts.

It is federal credit unions, long a popular savings institution and loan source for many low- and moderate-income Americans.

The National Credit Union Administration will now allow its members to make mortgage loans for terms of up to 30 years.

In the past, credit unions have been limited to loans of 10 to 12 years duration.

Walter Stuart of the credit union administration predicted that the nation's 12,600 federal credit unions will be cautious about getting into the program at first.

He anticipates that about 300 to 500 will be offering mortgages by 1980, and by 1983 he expects 1,500 credit unions to be lending $9 billion to $12 billion a year as mortgages.

Mortgage lending from all sources nationwide was $110 billion in 1976, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Compromise Seen On Sale Of Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and his opponents in Congress may be ready to compromise this week on his proposal to sell jet fighters to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

An administration source, who asked not to be identified, said Carter is willing to compromise, and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., says he thinks congressional opponents are also.

"My guess is that when the proposal comes (from Carter) there will be acceptance," Javits said.

The terms of a possible compromise are unclear. The administration source said Carter is willing only to add a commitment to give Israel more planes in the future.

No Offer Made
Javits said Carter's aides have not made that or any other offer to him and did not say what he and other opponents would be willing to accept such a proposal.

Most of the congressional opposition is to Carter's plan to sell 60 sophisticated F-15 jets to Saudi Arabia that Israel fears may be used against it.

Israel would get 90 jet fighters — 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s — and Egypt would get 50 less sophisticated F-5s.

Congress has 30 days, until May 28, to veto all or part of the sale, and administration officials who presented their case for the planes in Senate testimony last week go before House members this week.

Rejection Predicted
Sen. Frank Church, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, predicted Sunday that the committee will reject the sales unless Carter agrees to make a substantial compromise.

"Unless assurances are given to the committee that pertain to this sale and to future sales, I think the majority, a clear majority, on the committee will vote to disapprove all three sales," said Church, D-Idaho.

He suggested that Carter might have to promise more fighters for Israel or fewer for Saudi Arabia. Deployment of the Saudi fighters, assurances by the Saudis that they will not seek French Mirage fighters as well and a promise that only defensive ordnance would be sold with the fighters also would be important elements of a compromise, Church said. He made the comments on the CBS-TV interview program "Face the Nation."

Elsewhere in Congress, Senate-House conferees may try again this week to approve an energy bill compromise and the House is to act on a $3.7 billion foreign aid bill.

Conference leaders have agreed to a compromise on natural gas pricing that they hope will unseat Carter's energy package in Congress.

But two other compromise attempts have fallen apart when put to the conferees, and the leaders want to be sure not to put this one to a vote until they know it will be approved.

The $3.7 billion foreign aid bill is for U.S. economic development assistance. The House may act on a $2.9 billion military aid bill later in the month.

The House also hopes to complete action Tuesday on a resolution that would set $500.5 billion as Congress' target for federal spending for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Carter proposed $499.4 billion. Congress' federal spending budget last year was $458.3 billion.

SAD DAY—Mrs. Elenora Moro, seated in her car, is caught in this sad expression Sunday as she leaves a church in Rome where she attended mass and prayed for the life of her kidnapped husband. ## Krueger, Christie Pledge Campaign To Unseat Tower

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Bob Krueger and Joe Christie shook hands Sunday as winner and loser in the hot U.S. Senate race and pledged a joint campaign to unseat Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, in November.

"My political itch has been cured," Christie added, saying he plans to open a law office in Austin, specializing in oil and gas business.

With 242 of 254 counties reporting Sunday (163 complete), Krueger had 56 percent of the vote to Christie's 46 percent.

Krueger appeared at Christie's apartment Sunday morning for coffee and rolls at Christie's invitation. The two sat side-by-side on sofa, exchanging friendly remarks, as reporters and cameramen crowded around them.

"Well-Deserved Victory"
"First, I want to congratulate Bob on a tremendous win and well-deserved victory," Christie said. "Second, I want call on my supporters to unite behind the Democratic nominee and retire a man (Tower) who has needed retiring for 17 years."

Christie said one of his first jobs would be to convince Texas AFL-CIO leaders, who had endorsed Christie, to support Krueger, "and I don't think I will have any problem there."

Wants Christie's Help
Krueger called Christie "a courageous and generous man . . . a solid Democrat, and I will be calling on him."

Krueger said he hoped his campaign people would learn to spend money in the November campaign the way Christie's organization did. Christie's finances were considerably behind Krueger throughout the campaign.

Krueger, who left Austin in mid-afternoon to return to Washington, said the November campaign would take money but "I think we will be able to get it. John Tower has a record he has to live with and we will be running against that record. We are going to point out that he has never stood for anything."

He said he thought the Senate race, which was overshadowed in the Democratic by the close gubernatorial contest, would be Texas' No. 1 campaign in the November campaign. "We now have a race against an incumbent and it will be one of the most important in the union," he said.

Christie was asked about the repeated charges he made against Krueger, including claims that federal money was used by campaign workers.

"I think that was fully explored in the campaign and the voters have given their decision," Christie said. "That's all behind us now."

Parimutuel Option Fails In Voting

By The Associated Press
Texas racing fans will continue to bet on the horses, but they won't be doing it in Texas — at least not legally.

About half the Republicans who voted on the parimutuel referendum Saturday favored legalized betting, but the Democrats agreed with most state church groups that said the legalization of parimutuel betting would serve only to bring in the underworld.

With 246 of 254 counties reporting, 198 complete, the Democrats turned thumbs down on the non-binding parimutuel referendum 52.20 to 47.80 percent. The Republican vote was 50.39 against, 49.61 for.

It was the 10th time in 30 years that pro-bettors have attempted to get a measure across that at least would have put legalized race betting on a local option ballot. It's failed every time.

Allen Maley, director of the Anti-crime Council of Texas, said Saturday's vote "meant that the voters of Texas are getting sick and tired of being forced to vote on this issue every four to six years."

"We hope the gamblers get the message," he said.

But Doug McCrary, president of the Texas Horseracing Association, said, "We're not ready to throw in the towel yet."

"Having lost on previous occasions, we knew this would be an uphill fight," he said.

Both sides reportedly spent thousands of dollars to promote their causes. The Horseracing Assn., said the state was losing $30 million annually by not having racing.

TOP OF THE TOWN — Most senior prom-goers from Grand Island Senior High School probably took their dates to some fashionable restaurant in town. But Tony Roe went all the way to the top. Flynt To Begin Therapy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt may begin physical therapy in a week to 10 days, says his doctor, Larry Carey, chairman of the Ohio State University Department of Surgery.

Flynt, paralyzed from the waist down, was shot March 6 outside a courthouse in Lawrenceville, Ga., where he was being tried on obscenity charges. A mistrial was declared after the shooting.

Flynt was in satisfactory condition Sunday at University Hospital in a private $106-a-day room protected by university police and Franklin County sheriff's deputies. Carey said Flynt, 35, "is healing well and, nutritionally, he looks good."

Dr. Ernest Johnson, who will direct Flynt's rehabilitation program, said therapy will include whirlpool baths for exercise and electrical shock to stimulate leg muscles.

Joann Fairchild, spokeswoman for Flynt Publications — publishers of Hustler, Chic and Ohio magazines — said Althea Flynt is running the company for her husband. Flynt is "working very little" on corporate affairs, Fairchild said.

Times Changing At Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Lindsay Spiller, who describes himself as a "Republican at heart," has been elected president of the 29,000-member student body at the University of California at Berkeley, where college radicalism of the 1960s was born.

Spiller, a 21-year-old political economics senior who used to foot a horn on street corners with a Salvation Army band, was the candidate of a group of campus moderates called the Common Sense Party.

The group pledged cooperation with the administration, a virtually unthinkable campaign platform for previous winners on the campus from whence the Free Speech Movement and its left-leaning spinoffs sprang.

"People think the only way we work here is through demonstrations," Spiller said. "I think the majority of students are willing to work with instead of against the university."

In a departure from traditional campus politics of recent years, Spiller said he advocated less emphasis on social issues and more on student problems "which we can do something about."

Senior Still Barnstorming

BRainerd, Minn. (AP) — When he was 50 years old, Oscar Hanft decided to fulfill a dream he'd had as a youth. He learned to fly.

Today, at 80, he may be America's oldest barnstormer. His business is hauling passengers around northern Minnesota lakes. But to Hanft it's more than a job. Flying, he says, beats working for a living.

Barnstormers are flyers who travel from place to place selling airplane rides. The airplane is no longer a novelty, but Hanft says people still enjoy a short ride. He keeps busy from Memorial Day through Labor Day on a route that covers resorts from Mille Lacs to Detroit Lakes, Minn., including the Brainerd area.

Group Buys California Island

SANTA CRUZ ISLAND, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Carey Stanton is selling his beautiful, unspoiled island off the Southern California coast for only $50 an acre.

The buyer, the Nature Conservancy, says the purchase of Santa Cruz Island for $2.5 million is "perhaps the best land buy since the United States bought Alaska."

Frank Boren, of the Nature Conservancy, said the group will maintain the island as a wilderness.

more to developers, but the Stanton family has been rejecting lucrative offers for 42 years. Stanton owns about 90 percent of the island, 75 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The remaining 10 percent is owned by other individuals.

"My father bought this island in 1936 and loved it to the day he died," said Stanton. "I love this island, too, and I think the best thing that could happen to Santa Cruz Island would be to leave it the way it is. At all cost."

Stanton gave up his medical practice 20 years ago when his father died and took over the family cattle ranch. The cattle are raised on the island and sold on the mainland.

"I moved out here in the 1950s because my father had no other living children and I felt I had a family responsibility to protect the island against developers," Stanton said.

Stanton, 55, is a bachelor and has no direct heirs. "When I realized I wasn't immortal, I began to worry about what might happen to the island after I died."

So he arranged to sell the island to the Nature Conservancy, a national conservation group, which has until July 5 to come up with the money or secure pledges.

A number of rare birds, animals and plants exist on the island, including at least 75 endangered species. At night wild razorback hogs roam, and Stanton never goes for a drive without a high-powered rifle mounted on the dashboard of his Jeep.

The island's rugged topography is virtually unchanged from the way it appeared to the Spanish explorers who set foot on Santa Cruz four centuries ago. The beaches are littered with driftwood and abalone shells, and the lush island valley is fragrant with sweet grass and wild licorice plants.

Stanton will continue managing the affairs of the thriving cattle ranch from his island compound after the sale.

"I couldn't live fulltime in the city," Stanton said. "I never could get used to all that concrete. And the air. Well, once you breathe the air of Santa Cruz Island, there's nothing to compare."

Stanton's ranch is a world of its own. A small housekeeping staff and a dozen laborers live in cabins. Mail and groceries are flown in to a small landing strip. Underground springs provide fresh water. A diesel generator provides the power.

He says he doesn't feel isolated by his offshore lifestyle.

"I don't own a boat, plane or helicopter, but there's nothing that prevents me from chartering a plane if, say, I want to attend a party in Santa Barbara or a concert in Los Angeles. And I do that quite often."

"I give them a good ride for their money," Hanft says. He charges $5 for adults who weigh more than 100 pounds, $4 for those who weigh less, for a 20-mile flight in his piston-equipped Aerona around a circle of lakes.

Jungle Birds Trek To Chimney

NORTHVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — The gathering of swifts took place in Hubbell's chimney in this small Adirondack Mountain community — right on schedule, as it has for the past 20 years.

As dusk settled in over the village Saturday, about 2,000 bird watchers looked up at the chimney of the old Hubbell Glove Co. Two scout birds eyed the crowd nervously, then led about 100 chimney swifts into the brick chimney for the night.

The swifts, which make the annual trip from the Amazon jungle, have been spotted entering the chimney every May 6 since at least 1957, according to Walker LaRowe, who began a study of the birds in 1956.

The chimney stands alone on the site of the old factory which burned down earlier this century.

Later in the season, the birds pair off and nest in nearby trees until gathering again at the chimney in the fall for their return flight south.

Restaurant Roach Rodeo Held

RIVERVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Tom Guthery promoted his new restaurant here Sunday by throwing a BYOB party. Not BYOB, mind you, BYOR. The acronym stands for "Bring Your Own Roach."

Guthery planned races for the cockroaches, providing trophies for the winners. For the losers: cans of insect spray.

Area residents were invited to bring their pet cockroaches for free races — running four at a time from the center of a circular track, the first to reach the perimeter three feet away declared the winner.

Beer Can Bungalow Ready

WILLOW SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — Haywood Dupree hasn't decided exactly what to do with the utility house he is building, but one thing is certain: He won't need to worry about termites. Unless, of course, there are termites out there who like beer.

The walls of 12-by-20-foot structure are made of empty beer and soft drink cans — about 9,000 in all, by Dupree's estimate.

The house is next to Dupree's mobile home in this town 10 miles south of Raleigh. Dupree, who is retired, said it cost him $200 for sand and cement. The cans were free.

"We drank some and saved the cans," said his wife. "Then neighbors found out about the building and started saving cans."

Aluminum cans were put into the walls with bottoms pointed out on the two sides of the building that can be seen from the road. Regular metal cans were used for the two walls not visible from the road, but because the metal will rust out, Dupree plastered them with cement.

Voters Eye Gay Rights Repeal

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Bombarded by television propaganda, door-to-door canvassing and newspaper letters, the voters of Wichita will finally have their say Tuesday on whether to repeal the city's homosexual rights ordinance.

The 8-month old ordinance, an amendment to the city's civil rights code, prohibits discrimination in housing, public accommodations and employment because of sexual preference.

Convict Collects Degrees In Prison

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Richard Lee Speakman earned his high school diploma in a Pennsylvania reform school and his college degree as an inmate of the Chillicothe Correctional Institute.

And the 34-year-old convicted burglar and former drug addict says he's had enough of education behind bars.

"I want to go out of here and I don't want to be a thief anymore. If I don't want to steal, I'm not going to steal," Speakman said.

On Friday, he became the first inmate in the history of the Ohio penal system to earn a four-year college diploma while behind bars. He will be paroled near the end of the month.

In three years he earned a 3.4 academic record on a 4.0 scale from Ohio University without ever setting foot on the Athens campus.

"My aspirations are reasonable, my goals are attainable," he said in a recent interview.

He said he plans to pursue a master's degree at Ohio University and eventually become a teacher and writer.

Senate Panel Orders Study Of Recruiting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing concern about the all-volunteer military, the Senate Armed Services Committee has ordered the Pentagon to study alternatives for mobilizing new recruits.

The committee, in a mandate disclosed Sunday, said it is "concerned over the ability of the active military to attract sufficient numbers of high quality recruits."

It said about 40 percent of new recruits do not complete their first enlistment, chiefly because they fail to meet minimum behavior or performance standards. In addition, it said, the reserve forces are more than 47,000 persons below authorized strength.

The Pentagon has acknowledged problems with reserve recruitment, but has said the all-volunteer force has successfully provided the numbers and quality of personnel needed to fill the active forces.

The committee, in a report being prepared on a weapons authorization bill, said:

"Given the strain necessary to attract the current numbers of recruits and the larger incremental costs of increasing force levels, it should be clear that the all-volunteer force is a peacetime concept that is not now providing sufficient numbers of reserve personnel and would be hard-pressed to provide additional numbers of active recruits should the national security require an expansion of current active force levels."

The committee directed the Pentagon to explore the costs and consequences of options such as mandatory or standby Selective Service registration at age 18.

Iron Food Content Called Dangerous In Medical Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Men may be in danger of iron overdose because of excess fortification of foods with iron, the American Medical Association says.

Americans may already have too much iron in their daily diet, a condition that can trigger a hereditary illness called hemochromatosis, according to an editorial in the May 12 Journal of the American Medical Association.

The symptoms of hemochromatosis are changes in skin color, diabetes, liver problems and heart failure, the journal said.

Men are in more danger of iron excess than women because women's bodies excrete substantial quantities of iron during menstruation, the journal reported. Most iron additives in food are aimed at restoring iron lost by women in monthly bleeding.

About 25 percent of the iron in the average U.S. diet comes from food additives or "fortification," the journal said. The editorial cites a Swedish research study also published in the May 12 journal that found that 5 percent of the members of a mixed study group — all men — had too much iron in their bodies, with 2 percent suffering from the early stages of hemochromatosis.

No women had "iron overload," the researchers found.

Britain Excludes Ugandan Agents

LONDON (AP) — Two of Idi Amin's Ugandan security men were refused entry to Britain when they arrived to escort home a Ugandan Air Line official who feared for his life, the British government said Sunday.

The two Ugandans arrived at London's Stansted Airport last Wednesday but were questioned, refused entry and sent home on a flight the next day, a spokesman for the Home Office said.

"They didn't give a legitimate and believable reason for wanting to come into the country," the spokesman said.

The Home Office said Ugandan Air Line's senior representative in Britain, Enoka Bainomugisha, had contacted British authorities for help a few days earlier, saying he had been dismissed from his job and ordered to return home.

"He has been in touch with us because he felt his life was in danger," the spokesman said.

The London Sunday Observer newspaper identified the two Ugandans sent home as Muhammad Hussein, chief of security at Uganda's Entebbe Airport, and Suleiman Fajar, "a security man in Kampala."

A third Ugandan with them, Peter Matovu, was allowed to enter the country, the Home Office said. He was described officially as Ugandan Air Line's sales manager. The Observer said he was a member of President Amin's feared State Research Bureau, or secret police.

Diplomatic relations between Britain and Uganda were severed after the July 1976 Israeli commando raid on a hijacked Air France jetliner at Entebbe.

Democrats Show Strong Lead In Harris Survey

By LOUIS HARRIS

The first Harris Survey soundings of the 1978 political season show that Democrats have moved to a substantial 49-29 percent lead in the race for seats in the House of Representatives.

In off-year congressional elections, the party in power usually loses their seats, but this year promises to be no exception. But these early readings on the 1978 race suggests that, at least initially in this election year, Democratic losses could well be relatively modest. In turn, this will put the burden of making gains on the Republican.

The main reason for this are not hard to find. Traditionally, normal party preferences take over on that line on the ballot where the candidates for the House for Representatives are listed. On this basis, the Democrats hold a 43-20 percent margin over the Republicans, with another 27 percent of the electorate classifying themselves as independents. Although independents favor Democrats over Republicans in their district by a relatively narrow 38-26 percent, the 2 to 1 margin that the Democrats begin with gives them a substantial advantage.

However, there is one other finding in this recent Harris Survey of 1,882 Americans that might well mean trouble for the Democrats. In 1977, when people were asked to rate the job being done by their own congressman, in contrast to the performance of Congress as a whole, a 40-22 percent plurality gave their representative positive marks. In 1978, this appears to have changed. By 43-39 percent, a plurality now gives their own congressman a negative job rating. In this year's race, the Democrats will have twice as many incumbents running for re-election to the House as the Republicans have. This means that the negative reactions to incumbents could hurt the Democrats twice as much as the Republicans.

At this time, the heart of the Democratic vote is drawn from those voting segments which have given that party its majorities in the past:

- Those who view themselves as Democrats go 75-8 percent for their party's candidate for Congress.
- Blacks register a thumping 77-9 percent preference for the Democrats.
- Union members are 57-21 percent Democratic in this early stage of the campaign.

—Catholics are running 50-25 percent pro-Democratic.

—Big-city voters express a 56-24 percent preference for Democratic candidates.

—Those in the $5,000-$10,000 income brackets are 58-25 percent Democratic. By the same token, the Republicans have some pockets of strength, although they are almost uniformly trailing the Democrats:

- In the Midwest, the Democratic lead is only 46-35 percent, indicating that this section is the most promising for the GOP candidates for Congress.
- In the suburbs, the Democrats hold a 46-30 percent edge, but in rural areas it is a relatively close 42-36 percent.
- Among business executives, these first results show a 39-39 percent standoff between the two parties.
- Among white Protestants, the Democrats hold a tenuous 38-37 percent lead.
- Among the 20 percent of the electorate who view themselves as Republicans, the GOP holds a solid 79-8 percent edge.

Ellsberg Discusses Hidden War Plans

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg, the man who released the Pentagon Papers, said Sunday that the Defense Department's top brass concealed nuclear war plans from Presidents Dwight Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

Ellsberg, interviewed at a demonstration against the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant, said the Strategic Integrated Operational Plan, or SIOP, called for dropping hydrogen bombs on every major city and military installation in the Soviet Union, China and other Communist nations.

Ellsberg revealed the information as part of his campaign. "I live in the reality that every president has considered using nuclear bombs," he said. "I was in a unique place with unique information and it revealed to me that humans are not to be trusted with nuclear weapons."

The SIOP was drawn up by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the Eisenhower administration and, in typically grisly Pentagonese, was called "wargasm."

"It set up one operation for all circumstances of war involving the Soviet Union," said Ellsberg. "If the SIOP were activated, we would have hit every city in the Soviet Union and China in addition to all the military targets."

"The nuclear bombs were already prepared and were on a 10-minute alert status," Kennedy and Defense Secretary Robert McNamara assigned Ellsberg to study the SIOP, and Defense Secretary Robert McNamara assigned Ellsberg to study U.S. war plans. "I, having read the SIOP, spoke to Kennedy and told him and the secretary of defense to read it. It had never been read outside the Pentagon. The very name was made to make sure people were not interested."

Ellsberg was ordered to rewrite the SIOP. "Kennedy and McNamara were horrified," he said. "The real danger of the 1961 SIOP was that the president would assume that it was just Russia we were bombing in general war. The JCS had no other plan..."

Ellsberg said he drew up a new plan, giving the president "options" like deciding not to bomb China or Eastern European countries. His arguments were used by aides to Defense Secretary James Schlesinger in 1975 as justification for a new targeting plan called "counterforce."

The Joint Chiefs of Staff accepted Ellsberg's revisions, he said, because he had coached McNamara to ask if Eisenhower had seen the SIOP. The answer was no, he said, and rather than admit that, the brass accepted the plan.

Every president between Harry Truman and Richard Nixon considered using nuclear weapons, Ellsberg said.

He said Truman and Eisenhower both discussed use of nuclear warheads to end the Korean War. Eisenhower, Johnson and Nixon each weighed use of nuclear bombs during the Vietnam war.

He said Kennedy was opposed to the use of nuclear devices. "The Vietnamese received direct threats from Nixon that we were ready to drop nuclear bombs on them," he said. "The December 1972 B-52 bombings were a demonstration that the election was over and Nixon was ready to carry out the threat."

Nixon has said those bombings led Hanoi to be more serious in peace talks.

Ellsberg and 27 other demonstrators were removed from the Rocky Flats tracks Friday, but planned to return Sunday. He said the activists known as the Rocky Flats Truth Force, will return regardless of arrests until May 27, the date of a nationwide demonstration before a United Nations conference on disarmament.

SAY FIGHT WILL CONTINUE — Braving the rain, a throng of radicals with banners and helmets marches down a Tokyo street following a protest rally at a park Sunday. They held the rally to oppose the much-delayed opening of the new Tokyo international airport at Narita 40 kilometers northeast of Tokyo. ## Japanese Leftists Vow Airport Protest

TOKYO (UPI) — Leaders of ultra-leftist groups vowed Sunday to block with "unlimited guerrilla warfare" the scheduled opening of Tokyo's new $2.6 billion airport at Narita. Six persons were injured by rocks thrown by radicals at a protest demonstration and rally in Tokyo.

Leaders of ultra-leftist groups, including one responsible for the destruction of the airport's control tower March 26, pledged to "blast the inauguration with unlimited guerrilla warfare" and "take all means to occupy the airport and block its opening" on May 20.

Police said an estimated 7,000 protesters gathered from across the nation and demonstrated through Tokyo streets despite a drizzle and cold temperatures. About 3,000 riot police were deployed as a precaution against violence but police said helmeted radicals hurled stones at the security forces near the end of the march, injuring five policemen and a newsman.

Violence has long prevented the opening of the new international airport, about 40 miles east of Tokyo, which was completed six years ago. Authorities finally set April 1 for the opening but were forced to cancel the inauguration of services after firebomb-throwing radicals broke into the control tower and destroyed millions of dollars worth of sensitive instruments during clashes with riot police March 21.

At Narita, an alliance of radical groups led by former farmer Isfaku Tomuca said it will stage anti-airport operations beginning May 18 to prevent the airport from opening.

The airport, built by the Japanese government to help ease congestion at the present international airport in downtown Tokyo, has been the target of persistent attacks by opponents since its construction began 12 years ago.

Police said about 13,000 riot police have been placed on round-the-clock guard at the airport since the March 26 attack. They said security will be bolstered before the May 20 inauguration with the deployment of more riot police supported by armored vehicles and police dogs.

'A GIFTING KIND OF STORE'—Mrs. Mary Alderson of Meinecke Bros. at 1633 Broadway, calls attention to a host of new arrivals, with the cookware, glassware and so much more that is really ideal for Mother's Day and Graduation preferences.

Meinecke Bros. Deemed Single-Stop Shopping Bonanza For Special Gifts

Down every aisle, delightful discoveries of new items "so right" for Mother's Day remembrance beckon at Meinecke Bros., 1633 Broadway.

Appropriate gift items for mother, for the graduate and for other special situations are in abundance.

Even with all that is so pretty there, in every season, some new arrivals could be singled out for great Mother's Day gifts:

See the new satin glass creations including decorative ware from Fenton and the antique blue line in Westmoreland.

There are gorgeous new pieces in Fenton crystal, too, with many new patterns and colors.

Or the handcrafted stoneware sets from Chatham Pottery, including the Anthony and Mimosa as two strikingly beautiful patterns. (This is dishwasher, freezer and microwave oven safe.)

This stoneware is handcrafted in a small American pottery by American craftsmen, and is the only freehand pointed stoneware. The Early American techniques have been combined by the potters with the best of contemporary technology to give this quality lead-free stoneware.

Be sure and see the beautiful Poppy-trail-dinnerware, too, that also is safe in freezer, oven and dishwasher.

Cake Domes
 Early American goblets reproduced from original antiques is stocked, together with the new pink carnival glass by Imperial, and gorgeous glass cake domes.

And the unique "stick figure" sculptures fashioned from molten Plexiglass, made in western Colorado.

There are beautiful candles and candle rings, new place mats, napkins and breadbaskets, table cloths, small kitchen appliances, microwave cookware, cutlery and so very much more... all suitable as a gift "sure to be wanted and appreciated."

For Outdoors
 It also is noted that "outdoor time" has arrived, and Meinecke has needs including Sunbeam and Jacobsen mowers, the new Flymo cushionaire, edgers, smokers and grills for outdoor cooking, 3-speed Essick evaporative air conditioners, and air conditioner pads.

"For complete satisfaction, who could go wrong in selecting at this time-honored store with its many departments including housewares, hardware, small electric appliances and hundreds of general items?"

"May we assist you in your Mother's Day and Graduation shopping this year at Meinecke Bros., in the same Lubbock location, 1633 Broadway, since 1938, a store dating its founding back to 54 years ago? We would deem it a pleasure to assist you.

"Remember, to list the many quality items would be impossible, but we hope this report has hinted of the bonanza in gift items stocked by Meinecke where the rule is 'name line' merchandise, prices that are right, and where service and appreciation are clearly visible."

Chic, New-Season Fashions Dominating At Charlene's

So much could and should be said for Charlene's, fashion mecca in Town South and in Monterey Center, but concisely, the word today is that exciting fashions for Mother's Day, graduation, summer travel and related events have arrived!

The feminine look was never more evident than in the discriminating selection of dresses (long and short alike) made available by Charlene... and in all the pretty summer hues.

And there are satin jogging shorts. Plus accessories for every ensemble.

Some possibly might not realize the accessory selection at Charlene's making for ease in gifting, whether for mother, sister, friend, or in many instances for the man in one's life. There are convenient bags for so many uses and occasions.

Select from tote bags, cases and more, each designed attractively for essentials, dainties, etc.

The costume jewelry choices were never more tastefully selected, even at Charlene's, and these, too, would make great gifts.

Preference conceivably could be the 14 kt and 12 kt gold chains and bracelets, and the sterling silver chains.

What better showroom for summer could there be than Charlene's of Town South, really a beautiful store regardless of the exquisite merchandise.

Yes, Charlene's is the veritable epitome of the "summer look" with the wardrobe there reflecting what is right and desired for the season.

Grand opening of the Town South

Charlene's was held in August of last year, and the response to this special type of store has been most gratifying.

A most pleasing decor, together with carefully planned merchandise display and other customer conveniences enhance the image of the new Charlene's as a business completely designed with customer consideration foremost.

It would correctly seem that Charlene, serving for more than a decade on the Lubbock fashion scene, has exerted every effort to show appreciation of her excellent patronage, at the same time staying foremost in modern innovations, trends, and fashion.

"So... isn't a pre Mother's Day, Graduation and travel trip to Charlene's in order? We think so."

ART GALORE—Melba Mabry (pictured) joins with another artist, Shirley Graham, and with the Bowman management and staff in inviting inspection of the large art display there, together with special events and savings in the Bowman 89th Anniversary Sale.

Art Showing, 89th Anniversary Sale Merit Visit To Bowman's

A lot of significant situations presently mean exceptional service and lowest prices at Bowman, 8301 S. University Ave. in Lubbock.

It is the 89th Anniversary Sale underway, continuing until May 25. That's right, Bowman has been in Lubbock for 89 years and is holding a very special sale to celebrate.

Special art showings at Bowman's make news this month, too. Meet The Artists. Come in and see the selection of framed and unframed oils by well known area artists Melba Mabry and Shirley Graham.

And come on each Saturday this month to meet the artists in person. Displayed are landscapes, seascapes, still life, Indian scenes, barns/windmills and character studies. Also inquire about the classes conducted at Bowman's by Melba Mabry.

Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions Tells New Summer Items, Special Prices

"For infants through students size 20, Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions meets every spring and summer apparel desire!" Truly, selection has never been better at Gray's, 50th Street at Salem Avenue (in Sunshine Square); and summer with its outdoor activities is very much in evidence...in the newness and fashion of merchandise, in the decorations and everything within the beautiful store.

It is fun to shop at Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions (where a great pre-teen selection is noted.) Whether the need is for the really dressy apparel or for casual numbers, Gray's has it all, sensibly priced.

Special On Jeans
 At this time there is a tremendous special price on all denim jeans, including those for girls, at 20 percent off! Select from boys and student sizes and in girls, 4 to junior 11. And all men's jeans (waist 32-38) are marked at 30 percent off at a close-out price.

Swim Wear
 So much is new for the outdoor season at Gray's...such as the cute shorts and swim suits for the little tots, girls and boys.

And sun dresses that are the prettiest and most desirable ever. Plus short sleeve tee shirts for boys. And more.

(Owners of the store have just returned from market and have bought extensively and selectively for fall, too, it can be reported.)

Gray's stocks just about everything in apparel for the age range it serves, with exception of shoes.

Pretty prom and banquet dresses are stocked, of course, with a gorgeous selection evident.

Sleepwear is available, with this assortment probably the most beautiful yet presented by this store noted for its beauty in every item.

Savings Cited
 The Anniversary Event means that there are extra savings throughout the big Bowman center.

For example:
For Landscape Needs
 In the Garden Department, all trees, shrubs, roses, ground cover, fruit trees and ornamentals are marked at a giant 20 per cent off as "our birthday gift to you." Select from red oaks, mulberry trees, golden locust, crepe myrtle, Arizona cypress, roses, holly and grapes.

Springtime savings on beautiful tropicals and house plants involve a 10 per cent saving.

And who doesn't appreciate a lawn mower value here at beginning of the season! Bowman has marked its Lawn Boy mowers down (while they last) with actually many to choose from, including the 21-in. deluxe with catcher, regular $209.95, now at $188.46.

(The Garden Shop is open from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays for customer convenience.)

Another key value is the Needle Weeder at $44.88, with super savings similarly arranged on other models.

Check throughout Bowman's for the 89th Anniversary Sale savings, whether the need is bath accessories, building materials, carpet, doors, electrical supplies; Gifts, hand tools, insulation, kitchens, lawn and garden needs; Lumber, paint, paneling, roofing, shelves, shutters, tile, windows, etc.

Many, many items are on sale, with others at regular low prices, all subject to stock on hand. Delivery service is available.

"So hurry, come on out to 8301 S. University and likely be amazed at the selection and prices offered by Bowman; it will be a tremendous eye-opener if you have failed in the past to come to Bowman who makes it possible to fix your home the way you want it!"

DENIM SPECIAL—Kay Gray (right) and Frances Smith call attention to denim values that join with seeds of new summer arrivals to make a visit to Gray's Boys & Girls Wear most advisable.

Business & Industrial Review

GRAPHIC PROOF—Jim Worley of Gnu Tubs Southwest demonstrates what Gnu can do, witness the 1926, the 1922, the 1928 bathtubs and a typical home bath (at foreground) but with Gnu refinishing.

Gnu Bathtub Refinishing Said Revolutionary In Looks, Ease

"Imagine... bathtub refinishing in your home, without removal!" This is made possible in the area by Gnu Tubs Southwest, located at the corner of Broadway and Avenue Q in Lubbock, phone 765-8017. Gnu Tub bathtub refinishing is a revolutionary process that completely replaces a deteriorated surface with a new, shiny one that is easy-to-clean. (An estimated one-half of America's bathtubs have lost some or all of their glossy, bright, attractive finish through age, damage or staining. Once this surface is gone, tub scrubbers spend hours scouring or scraping. With each session, more gloss is lost and the deterioration process is accelerated.) "Until now the only alternative has been for the tub owner to remove the fixture and replace it, a costly process." Gnu Tub has changed all that with the development of an exclusive process of completely refinishing the old bathtub surface, replacing the surface with a durable, shiny one. And the tub is not removed! "No longer need your tub be an object of shame... something to hide with a shower curtain!" The complete Gnu Tub process begins with preparing the bathtub to receive the Gnu coat, insuring a proper bond to the old tub surface. This is done by etching or roughening with a special compound. The etching process will not harm pipes, fittings or the rest of the bathroom. After the etching is properly completed, a newly developed industrial urethane coating is bonded to the old tub surface.

Mothers To Be Feted Tuesday At Mickie's Beauty Academy

Two announcements from Mickie's Beauty Academy should be of special interest at this time: Mothers of all ages are being honored by Mickie and staff in conjunction with the impending Mother's Day observance. On this Tuesday, mothers, with a special invitation extended those of senior citizen status, are invited to come to the Academy in Monterey Center, for cake and coffee in their honor. Hours will be 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. "We will look forward to seeing you Tuesday!" (Business as usual will be conducted Tuesday. Some may remember that every Tuesday is Senior Citizens Day at the school, with discount prices even lower than regular school prices) effective on haircuts, shampoo and sets for senior citizens. Of course, other customers are welcomed on the same day, but at regular low prices. Patrons are welcomed Tuesdays through Saturdays, and one is advised to call for appointment.

range for those wishing to work elsewhere some hours of the day. (5) Enrollment is enabled any day the school is open. (6) The academy is nationally accredited. Its certificate of accreditation points out how after examination of its educational practices and achievements by the Cosmetology Accrediting Commission (national) the school has been awarded its certificate. High professional standards also are noted. (7) Several vocational students are among those at the Academy, with area school vocational contracts honored. (8) A waiting list is reported for the graduates of the Academy. The school's curriculum is most comprehensive, even including the skin care program with latest machines, men's hair styling, and sculptured nails, as well as use of the new facial machines for the skin care program, with treatment of hands and feet as well as face. Customers and students alike profit from this modern program. Students at Mickie's are encouraged to reach greatest proficiency and are recognized accordingly, with plaques and other honors.

Note To Seniors The other item of special interest at this time is reminder that graduating seniors might well consider training at Mickie's Beauty Academy for a rewarding career that likely can begin "sooner than you think." Interested vocational students are invited to check with Mickie's, too. "If you welcome the opportunity for an interesting, financially rewarding career, Mickie's Beauty Academy would like to talk to you. Outstanding in every phase of its operation, it has several benefits that should be considered. (1) Its enrollment has steadily climbed, and there must be a reason! (2) Mickie's Beauty Academy graduates are reported most successful in their achievements after graduation. Grants Available (3) Assistance grants, including BEOG, VA, etc., are available to help in the schooling costs. (4) Full-time schooling is available, of course, with part-time schedules ar-

Hair Jammer, In Southwest Lubbock, Relates Special, Multiple Benefits

Some people may not have realized the expert unisex hair cutting in which the Hair Jammer specializes.

Others may not have realized that they are served at the Hair Jammer by a highly trained staff under direction of Roger Thompson, long appreciated on the Lubbock beauty and hairstyling scene.

And some may have recognized all this but just couldn't find the Hair Jammer!

The Hair Jammer, offering complete beauty service, is located at 5601 Aberdeen, phone 793-3134. This location means that the Hair Jammer is just north of South Plains Mall, one block west of Slide Road. It is really easy to find and easy to reach, once one realizes that it fronts Aberdeen, and where Aberdeen is located! There is lots of off-street parking, and everything is arranged for the customer's convenience.

The Hair Jammer opened late last year under co-ownership and management of Roger Thompson.

Roger is known by many through his former ownership of the Mademoiselle Hair Fashions in Briercroft Center, his former staff capacity with Jessie Lee's, and through his present service on the state board for the Texas Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

He emphasizes that a hand-picked staff is on duty at the Hair Jammer, with all trained extensively in Dallas by the Hair Jammer organization specialists before assuming their duties. Also Hair Jammer authorities periodically visit the Lubbock facility to bring the staff up to date on newest trends, etc.

Mothers, dads, brothers, sisters, kids and all are invited to the Hair Jammer where finest haircutting and all beauty services are available.

Discount Offer
In fact, upon mention of this story, a 20 per cent discount will be given for a limited time! What a way to get acquainted!

Thompson points out the precision cutting and really economical prices as two of the key advantages one can expect at the Hair Jammer, where no appointment is necessary.

Long Hours
Hours are from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, with longer 9 to 9 hours on Tuesday and Thursday, and Saturday hours of 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Visa and Master Charge are honored.

For coloring, perms, styling and all that goes with complete beauty service, Hair Jammer is said by many to be well ahead of the field. Won't you come in and find out for yourself? Roger Thompson and staff would consider it an honor.

Steve's Flowers Excels

"It would seem that Steve's Flowers, 3833 50th St., has been purposely established just for Mother's Day, graduation, party, business and home floral needs and for special-occasion service throughout the year!"

Yes, Steve's Flowers, phone 793-2721, in Turner Square is a delightful and ready source for needs of the reason.

Select just now for Mother's Day... beautiful roses and bouquets, lots of tropicals, mixed pots and other blooming plants, for example.

Steve's Flowers is new... it is different... it is pretty... and the service and stock prove the customer is appreciated! The firm has been opened only since Jan. 1, but the owners and founders are veterans in the field.

"Meet Mr. and Mrs. Steve Dearth (Steve and Tommie) who are your kind of folks."

Tommie Dearth is a Lubbock native and is a 1952 graduate of Lubbock High School and a '56 graduate of Texas Tech. She is the former Tommie Wynn.

Steve is a 24-year Texas resident and has been in the floral business "most of his life". The couple owned a retail florist business in Amarillo some seven years before coming to Lubbock 10 years ago, with Steve associated with another Lubbock florist firm during this period.

The Dearths have two daughters: Becca, a junior at Coronado High School; and Melissa, in the 4th grade at Hardwick.

Steve's Flowers is a member of Teleflorist and the American Floral Service as a customer consideration.

Both Steve and Tommie are on the job to lend their expertise and to personally assure the service that one can appreciate; the friendly and informal atmosphere is most evident, yet professionalism is equally noted.

Prompt delivery is another "plus" for the firm.

Everything is new, and Steve personally did all the decorations that have drawn acclaim from early customers.

"Won't you too, come in and let's get acquainted? We are open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and until 12 noon on Saturdays."

Comfort, Style, Selection Foremost At Holt's Shoes

Happy feet for all the activities ahead! This is made possible at Holt's Shoes, 4519 50th St., in Sunshine Square, most folks likely recognize.

And with the prestigious lines (Schohl and more), and the greatly expanded stock of women's fashion shoes, it would seem most appropriate to bring mother in for selection before Mother's Day!

Won't this be thoughtful?

New Fashion Lines
Among the new fashion lines drawing acclaim at Holt's Shoes are Garolini, Jack Rogers, Cherokee and Carrissa, as example. They are gorgeous, with many just received, and what a wide selection!

Then there are shoes by Miss America Footworks, Bass, Socialite and Cobbles by Red Cross, and others.

And the standbys such as Revelation Exclusive, "the most comfortable shoe in the world," the famous Schol lines, and more, with casual wear fully stocked just as is the fashion wear.

Schohl Values
Schohl Sandalettes are featured. Schohl believes that to make the best, one must start with the best... and this Schohl does.

Schohl Sandalettes are crafted of the finest full-grain leathers on lasts that are calibrated to fit the arch, the single most important factor to any good-fitting shoe.

For comfort and style, come to Holt's and try a pair of Schohl Sandalettes.

Beautiful Bags

As further welcome to Mother's Day and to summer, Holt's has received an expanded stock of beautiful bags to accent any costume. See the Miss Erica, Carnivale, Carpet Bags and other lines sure to appeal.

Not only is the shoe presentation the most complete in Holt's history, but experienced shoe fitters round out the picture of service, a tradition at the firm; owners-operators Mr. and Mrs. Joe Haire would have it no other way. Expert fitting is assured, and this can be extremely important for the demands of the season's activities.

Both Visa and Master Charge transactions are welcomed.

"Won't you pay us a visit... soon... and share in our pride of the type establishment afforded, including the expanded fashion stock and the modern facilities at 4519 50th St.? We think you'll like what you find... a Holt's with the same friendliness and consideration but with even greater capacity for service."

WHERE ELSE BUT WONG'S?—Niki Wong calls attention to a display of open stock porcelain that is among the truly beautiful and quality gift selections for Mother's Day or other impending occasions. The invite is to check Wong's, in South Plains Mall, for the unique and different, from the four corners of the globe.

Wong's, In South Plains Mall
Lauded For Uniqueness, Value

"Surely you must know that so-appropriate Mother's Day gifts are stocked by the hundreds at the same fantastic store that brings you gourmet and Oriental groceries in a convenient South Plains Mall location!"

Yes, Wong's Imports is a one-stop solution for gifting and for selecting for one's own desires.

Jewelry, decor pieces and unique gift choices from throughout the world are brought right here to the Lubbock store.

Beautiful music boxes, with Swiss movements and many hand-carved, from Taiwan.

And really beautiful and functional furniture pieces such as elaborately la-quered chests from the Orient. Some are antique, and all are interesting and beautiful.

Silk Jackets

See the new silk and brocade jackets for both men and women, suitable for day and evening wear alike, new in Lubbock from Hong Kong.

Of course there are woks and Oriental cooking utensils and groceries.

Plus plaques, vases, ginger jars; Metal sculpture by area artists, too.

Thimble Collection

And thimbles from all over the world... really a "find" for the collector.

Some are of leather, others are petit point, pewter, etc.

Probably nothing in the entire store, however, is prettier or more desired than the gorgeous Oriental Cloisonne in the cases near the front of the attractive store.

The entire staff is knowledgeable regarding the hundreds of items, some merchandise with most unique history; and the owners and staff welcome the opportunity of assisting in selection of quality gifts that are unique and different, always in good taste.

"Doesn't mother deserve and want a gift from Wong's Imports? We think so!"

Wong's is open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m., every weekday, and Visa, Master Charge and layaway purchases are welcomed.

Linda G's, In Sunshine Square, Seen Superior In New-Season Fashion Wear

Linda G's is ready for Mother's Day and for all the events of summer in a most delightful and considerate manner...with the store "in great shape" in every department...with so much that is new and wanted!

Sure recognition of fashion rightness for the new season is reflected in the fantastic stock at Linda G's, the 4515 50th Street store where a galaxy of pretty, practical and so-fashionable apparel is the rule.

What a selection of both long and short dresses!

Feminine Look Dominates

"Truly, a woman can feel like a woman

again, with the wardrobe selection including dresses in the modish feminine look with founces, ruffles, laces, etc.

It is at Linda G's, remember, in Sunshine Square!

Coordinates To Enjoy

See the coordinates, the soft and lovely materials, patterns and colors.

Plus lingerie and so many accessories.

Personalized Bags

Of special note are the personalized bags, really a work of art, for mom and the graduate.

Select at Linda G's from today's materials, including polyester, poly/cotton, prints, soft quina and all.

Not only is the summer selection much in evidence, but there is a nice selection of year-around wear (such as ultra suedes).

The owners and every staffmember are understandably enthusiastic about the Mother's Day, graduation and new-season presentations.

"You, too, will thrill at the selection upon a visit here."

"Shopping at one's leisure in the relaxed atmosphere of this beautiful and elegant shop is an experience to be enjoyed for a certainty; discover for yourself how Linda G's is extraordinary!"

APPLIANCES, AT LOW WOOLCO PRICES, MAKE GREAT GIFTS

Woolco's Small Appliances Solving Search For 'Right' Gift For Mother

"What could better convey appreciation and love of mom than remembering her on Mother's Day with kitchen appliances?"

At Woolco, whether one selects from small appliances or the larger household units, quality and "low Woolco prices" are assured.

Woolco celebrates Mother's Day with a great assortment of "giftable" fashions in the Ladies' Wear departments for moms of all ages and sizes. "Visit our carpet area and see the large selection in sun dresses, camisole top two-piece skirt sets, peasant dresses, skirt sets and many more of the latest fashions for today."

Mr. Coffee, Dazey, Presto, Hamilton Beach, Toastmaster and Proctor Silex for example.

And the kitchen appliance selection also includes the Dazey Donut Factory, Mr. Coffee, Dazey Seal-A-Meal, Presto Fry Daddy, Wee Fry skillets, Hamilton Beach mixers, Proctor Silex toasters, the Regal Poly Perk coffeemaker, and Hamilton Beach irons, and blenders from the same manufacturer. The household appliance list includes Happy Home appliances, General Electric and Van Wyck lines. "May we have the pleasure of assisting you in your consideration of mother? Now would be a great time for you to fully realize that Woolco wants to be your favorite store!"

Peace Drive Dismantling Party Of Israeli Idealists

By ARTHUR MAX
JERUSALEM (AP) — One year ago, archeologist Yigal Yadin shaped an idealistic alliance of political novices into a new Israeli party — the Democratic Movement for Change. Its formation helped put Prime Minister Menachem Begin in office, and its leaders hoped to exert a moderating influence on the government.

Yadin and three fellow DMC ministers exert behind the locked doors of the cabinet room, where discussions are secret and leakers are threatened with punishment.

But the shifting of his party's fortunes is known to have shaken Yadin, who led the DMC to a surprisingly strong showing in Israeli national elections last May 17 to help end the Labor party's 29-year grip on Israel's government and install Begin's Likud bloc.

Analysis

Now Yadin is Begin's deputy prime minister. But his DMC appears to be dying, a victim of the rising "Peace Now" movement within Israel that wants to soften Begin's negotiating position with the Arabs.

The DMC became a party to be reckoned with, winning 15 of the 120 seats in the Knesset and sapping strength from the Laborites.

Spanish Feminists Rap Mother's Day

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Feminists protested Mother's Day Sunday by painting a seven-foot-long mural on a downtown house wall and handing out leaflets saying it was no good honoring women one day of the year and discriminating against them the rest of the time.

Bergland Begins Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland departed Sunday for the Soviet Union, Great Britain, Norway and a number of eastern bloc nations on a mission to sell U.S. farm products.

After five months of bartering, the DMC joined a coalition with the Likud. Now that relationship appears more a liability than an asset.

WHALING UNDER MIDNIGHT SUN — The sun finally dips into the Arctic Ocean a few minutes after midnight as the last whaling crew from Barrow, Alaska, watches for the bowhead whales. The rest of the more than 20 crews had towed their skin boats home after their senior captains pleaded with them to avoid a confrontation with federal agents. The agents had accused the Eskimos of violating the bowhead killing quota. (AP Laserphoto)

Captains' Radio Message Eases Crisis Of Eskimo Whale Hunt

ON THE ARCTIC OCEAN ICE (AP) — Come home! The crews huddled on the ice several miles from shore heard the plea throughout the afternoon on the local public radio station.

leader — not a commission member — went on the radio to urge the crews to continue. He contended only two of the four whales taken were bowheads, and thus the village was entitled to one more. But Adams prevailed.

The message was sent by the senior whaling captains of Barrow, the nation's northernmost village. Both the Alaska Eskimo Whaling Commission and the Barrow Whalers Association urged the crews to avoid a confrontation with federal agents, who had accused Barrow crews of taking too many bowhead whales.

Some whalers had contended two of the whales were right whales, and thus not subject to the bowhead quota. The issue apparently arose partly because the Eskimo language has two words for bowheads, depending on their size and shape. Zahn, however, said bowheads are a type of right whale.

The issue was the first quota on the 2,000-year-old subsistence hunt. The quota was set by the International Whaling Commission, which feared the bowhead was nearing extinction. No commercial hunting of the bowhead has been allowed for more than 35 years.

Federal biologists also said bowheads were the only type of right whale in the area, and their examinations of the four whales indicated all were bowheads.

In the broadcast message, chairman Jacob Adams of the Eskimo commission told the whalers to cooperate in hopes the U.S. government would support Eskimo efforts to have the quota lifted.

Adams, speaking softly but deliberately, said there was a genuine belief among his people that two of the whales should not be counted as bowheads.

Shortly after the broadcast, several of the more than 20 crews passed by, towing home their umiaks, 30-foot-long wood-frame ships covered with seal skin. The boats hold a crew of up to six men.

Adams, wearing a whale button from the anti-whale hunting Greenpeace Foundation, added, "We want to cooperate. We're hoping that if we do, the federal government will try to get the IWC to lift the quota." Adams and other Eskimo commission members had decided to ask the crews to come back after several meetings with federal agents.

By the time the sun finally dipped into the placid water early Sunday only one crew remained on the ice.

The fourth whale had been taken Wednesday evening, and a few hours later a fifth whale was struck and lost. But despite government orders to stop, the crews had continued hunting until the commission broadcast its appeal Friday.

Billy Neakok and his crew vowed to hunt until they got a whale, despite threats of federal prosecution and of ostracism by their own people.

The voices of several senior whalers were taped for the broadcast: one spoke from his sick bed.

They had moved their camp, camouflaged with chunks of ice, to within a few feet of the remains of the controversial fourth whale taken by the villagers. Under the quota, Barrow was entitled to three whales.

Eskimos had fought the quota, saying the whale — which provides a ton of meat per foot — was crucial to their diet, and the whale hunt was an irreplaceable part of their culture.

Mil Zahn, chief of enforcement for the National Marine Fisheries Service, said quota violations would be prosecuted, but he said agents weren't likely to go out on the ice and force a confrontation. He noted it was the first quota, and that Barrow has taken more than 20 whales in some years. He said, "We want to be reasonable."

Eddie Hopson, a veteran whaler and president of the Eskimo-owned Arctic Slope Regional Corp., said that, because of the quota, most of the villagers would be able to get by with less whale meat, but some poor families would suffer because they have little money to buy food. All villagers get a share of each whale.

"I was impressed by Jacob Adams' message (to stop hunting) ... they're setting the tone for the future," Zahn said.

Barrow was given the largest quota because, with about 2,000 residents, it is several times larger than any of the other whaling villages.

There were some anxious moments, however, after the senior captains made their appeal because another Eskimo used the Eskimos of taking one more whale than they were allowed under a newly established quota system. The remains of that whale are in the foreground. (AP Laserphoto)

Cyprus Fears Attack By Terrorists

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Security forces went on maximum alert Sunday when the government received a tip that an attempt might be made by Arab terrorists to free two Palestinians under sentence of death for killing an Egyptian diplomat.

The pair, Samir Mohamed Khadar, 28, holder of a Jordanian passport, and Zayed Husein Al-Ali, 26, who came to the island on a Kuwaiti travel document, were sentenced to death last month for the premeditated murder of Youssef el-Sebai, a close personal friend of President Anwar Sadat, in February.

Following the killing of Sebai in a hotel corridor, the two gunmen took 11 Arab dignitaries as hostages and were given a Cyprus Airways jetliner, which flew to Djibouti but came back to Cyprus after a number of Arab countries refused them sanctuary.

Official sources said all Arab men and women entering Cyprus at Larnaca airport and at the seaports of Limassol, Larnaca and Paphos were being carefully screened.

An Egyptian commando attempt to capture the two Palestinians and free the hostages touched off a gunbattle with Cypriot security forces at the airfield.

According to "most reliable information" received during the past two or three days, a group of "Palestinians and other Arab anarchists" was planning terrorist acts on Cyprus in order to force the government into releasing the two convicted Palestinian gunmen, the sources said.

Sebai, editor of the influential Cairo daily newspaper Al-Ahram, was killed during a meeting in the Nicosia Hilton hotel of the Moscow-oriented Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization.

These attacks would be directed against top-ranking Cypriot officials and Israeli visitors, and would include the kidnapping of tourist buses.

Chaps Open Series

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ARLINGTON — There's always the urge to finesse, especially in this type of tournament.

But Larry Hays was adamant Sunday when discussing his starting pitcher today. "Good Night, No!" exclaimed the Lubbock Christian College mentor when that subject (finesse) was brought up.

"We'll throw (freshman Oscar) Acosta in the first game," Hays said after watching Midwestern eliminate the University of Dallas 2-1 Sunday.

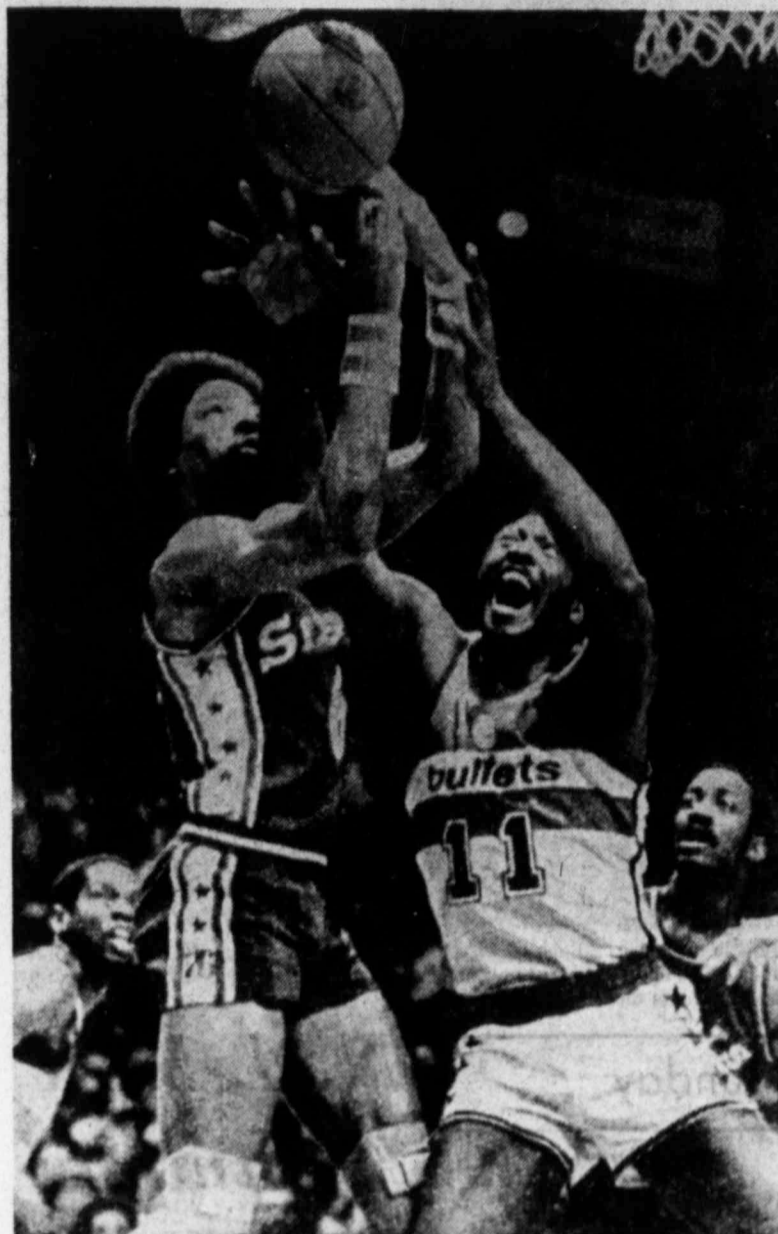

The Chaps will make their first tournament appearance at 3:30 p.m. today, after Texas Wesleyan (48-22-2) takes on Dallas Baptist (26-29), a 4-1 victor over Jarvis Christian Sunday.

When asked to explain his reasoning, Hays responded, "We going to throw our best pitcher at the time. I've seen Midwestern play—they've beaten us three times—so I know what they can do and I saw UD play two outstanding games against Pan American last Sunday, and they scare me to death. I've seen a lot of teams try to finesse in this situation and the pitcher they've been saving for 'tomorrow' never gets to throw.

"You've got to win that first one. It's extremely hard to come back through the loser's bracket and we want to avoid that at all costs.

LCC brings a five-game losing streak into the meet, having lost a pair of warm-up doubleheaders against SWC champion Texas A&M. Twice before this year

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Elvin Hayes scored 11 of his 35 points during an incredible 17-point streak by Washington which closed the first half and led the Bullets to a 121-105 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Sunday.

The underdog Bullets took a 3-1 lead in the National Basketball Association Eastern Conference finals, with the fifth game of the best-of-seven series to be played in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

Bob Dandridge scored 27 points for Washington, 12 in the last quarter, as he again outscored Philadelphia's Julius Erving who finished with 24.

Philadelphia's Eastern Division champions had taken a 48-37 lead following a Guard Fred Brown came off the bench to score 26 points and center Marvin Webster made key blocks and baskets down the stretch, sparking the visiting Seattle SuperSonics to a victory over the Denver Nuggets.

The Sonics' victory squared the best-of-seven Western Conference final series at 1-1. Games three and four are scheduled in Seattle on Wednesday and Friday.

Seattle starting guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams scored 22 and 21 points, respectively, as the Sonics benefitted from exceptional fire power in their backcourt. Brown scored on a three-point play to open the fourth quarter, giving the Sonics an 86-81 lead.

Denver battled back to make it close, but Brown hit four free throws to pad Seattle's lead to 104-100 with 4:49 remaining.

Webster, the Sonics' intimidating 7-footer, then blocked Nugget shots on two trips down the court, and the Sonics countered with two baskets. Brown fed Johnson at the end of a fast break, and Webster followed with a basket to put the Sonics ahead by eight.

Brown connected on two more field goals in the final two minutes, and Webster's hook shot gave the Sonics a 116-109 bulge with about a minute left.

Tom's Tough At Nelson, Holds Off Trevino Rally

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson had to negotiate a very difficult, delicate chip shot on the final hole to salvage the par he needed to turn back Lee Trevino and score his third victory of the season in the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

He made it, throwing the ball up and over a yawning sand trap and sending it within a couple of feet of the flag. Watson tapped it in for a 4-under-par 66 and a one-shot triumph.

And his wife, Linda, breathed a sigh of relief.

"I sure wish he'd give me a break," the perky brunette said. "These dramatic finishes are killing me."

Byron Nelson, Tom's close friend, a Hall of Famer whose name adorns this event, was standing beside Linda. "What about me?" he added. "I'm about to have a heart attack."

They were far more worried about the situation than Watson, who came to the final hole needing a par to win the tournament, take over the leading money-winning spot and become a golfing millionaire.

He jerked his six-iron approach far to the left of the green and appeared to be in deep trouble.

"I thought I could get the ball up and down because I've been chipping well all week," Watson said. "I was lucky it wasn't in the bunker or 20 feet further down the hill.

"It was just my week. Lee hit the ball better than I did — but I putted better than he did."

Trevino, who had finished off a 66 and was watching Watson's troubles from a scoring tent by the 18th green, also expected Tom to salvage par.

"I thought he'd get it up and down," Trevino said, echoing Watson's observation. "He wouldn't be the leading money winner if he couldn't chip and putt. He doesn't hit all the greens."

The dynamic red-haired Watson finished off the 4-under-par 66 with a fantastic chip shot from deep trouble on the 18th, saving par there and the $40,000 first prize that made him the season's leading money winner and the game's 17th $1-million winner.

Watson acquired his ninth American title — not including his two British Open triumphs — by a single stroke over the onrushing Trevino with a 72-hole total of 272, eight shots under par on the 6,993-yard Preston Trail Golf Club course.

Trevino, now a two-time runner-up this season, also shot a 66 in the hot, muggy weather and finished at 273.

It was another 3 shots back to the group of four tied for third at 276. Veteran Don January and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton shot 67s. Ed Sneed had a closing 68 and nervous Joe Inman a 69.

Defending champion Ray Floyd was alone at 277 after a 67.

South African Gary Player, whose three-tournament winning streak was broken last week, closed with a par-70 and a 285.

Current PGA champ Lanny Wadkins shot 69-293. Arnold Palmer was 74-291 and Johnny Miller 69-288.

Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year and winner of the Tucson Open and Bing Crosby Pro-Am earlier this season, opened the final round with a 1-stroke lead and maintained that margin until the 14th hole.

It was there that Trevino appeared to open the gate for him. Lee took 4 strokes to reach the green on the long par-4, but

Chambliss' Homer Thwarts Texas 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Chambliss hit his first home run of the season with one out in the 12th inning Sunday, giving the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers behind Rick Gossage's hitless relief pitching.

Chambliss slammed a 2-2 pitch off reliever Len Barker, 1-2, against the bleachers in right-center after 11 New York batters in a row had been retired by starter Dock Ellis and Barker.

Gossage, 2-3, pitched four innings, walking four but striking out five.

Ellis breezed through the first four New York batters but second baseman Bump Wills booted Chambliss' easy grounder and Graig Nettles followed with his third home run of the season for a 2-0 Yankee lead.

After being held to a pair of singles by rookie Jim Beattie over the first five innings, the Rangers chased him in the sixth with a game-tying, two-run rally.

With one out, Beattie hit Wills on the right leg with a pitch and he scored on Al Oliver's hit-and-run double. Richie Zisk brought Oliver home with single on a 3-0 pitch and Beattie was replaced by Sparky Lyle.

second and scored on a single by Robinson. In the second inning, Phil Garner doubled home a run, stole third and scored on pitcher Jim Rooker's single.

CARDS 8, PADRES 4

Garry Templeton's two-run single capped a 4-run fifth inning that carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 8-4 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

Three of St. Louis' runs in the decisive burst were unearned. Ken Reitz singled home a run to produce a 3-3 tie, then San Diego catcher Rick Sweet dropped the ball at home plate on an attempted force play, allowing the Cards to score the go-ahead run. Templeton then gave St. Louis a 6-3 lead with his single.

ROYALS 8, BREWERS 6

Fred Patek lashed three hits, scored twice and doubled in the go-ahead run in Kansas City's 3-run sixth inning, rallying the Royals to an 8-6 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Joe Zdeb, Al Cowens, and Frank White knocked in two runs apiece for the Royals, who snapped a five-game losing streak with a 16-hit attack.

Cabbage collected two singles, a double and triple and knocked in four runs. Carew had two singles and a sacrifice fly for three RBI. Wynegar socked four singles and a sacrifice fly to drive in three runs.

Minnesota scored four runs in the top of the first off Jim Palmer, 3-2, on four walks, an RBI single by Cabbage, a sacrifice fly by Wynegar and three Oriole errors.

In the second, Minnesota made it 6-0 on Willie Norwood's double, Carew's sacrifice fly and a triple by Cabbage that knocked out Palmer.

TIGERS 4, A's 0

Milt Wilcox pitched a 4-hitter and Jason Thompson and Alan Trammell blasted home runs as the Detroit Tigers beat the Oakland A's 4-0.

Wilcox struck out seven and walked only one in winning his second game in three decisions.

Trammell hit his first major league home run leading off the third inning and Thompson got his seventh of the year following a walk to Rusty Staub in the sixth.

BOSOX 5, CHISOX 0

Mike Torrez fashioned his first complete-game victory with Boston and Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski belted two home runs, leading the Red Sox to a 5-0 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Torrez, who signed for $2.5 million as a free agent after pitching the New York Yankees to the World Series championship last fall, allowed six hits and struck out four without issuing a walk in boosting his record to 4-1.

Rice, the 1977 American League home run champion, gave Torrez all the cushion he needed by drilling his ninth homer off Chicago starter Pablo Torrealba, 1-4, in the first inning.

Rice, extending his hitting streak to seven games, lined a single to left in the third and scored after Yastrzemski hit his first homer of the season and No. 367 of his career.

Boston added another run in the third on a single by Carlton Fisk, an infield out and a single by Butch Hobson.

EXPOS 19-2, REDS 4-4

An error by Larry Parrish on a double steal enabled Cincinnati to score two runs in the sixth inning and hand Ross Grimsley his first loss as the Reds gained a split of their doubleheader with a 4-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Montreal won the opener, tying a club scoring record by scoring 19 runs and routing the Reds 19-5. It was Cincinnati's worst defeat in 10 years.

Grimsley, making his first start against his former teammates, suffered his first loss in six decisions.

With runners at first and third and the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Junior Kennedy broke towards second and Dave Concepcion edged off third. Catcher Gary Carter threw to third to try and nail Concepcion, but the ball got by Parrish and went into left field, allowing both runners to score.

PIRATES 6, DODGERS 4

Omar Moreno, Frank Taveras and Bill Robinson stole two bases apiece as the Pittsburgh Pirates swept eight bases in eight tries and defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4.

It was the first loss this season for Los Angeles starting pitcher Tommy John, 4-1, who yielded six runs on nine hits over the first six innings and was on the mound for all the Pirate thefts, which raised Pittsburgh's National League-leading team total to 41.

Moreno, the league leader with 14 stolen bases, walked in the first inning, stole

MARINERS 9, JAYS 6

Bruce Bochte's 2-out, 2-run triple broke a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning and Leon Roberts followed with a two-run homer that gave him a club record six RBI as the Seattle Mariners won the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7.

Rick Bosetti's grand-slam homer off reliever Enrique Romo with two out in the eighth had tied the game at 5.

Romo came in after Seattle starter Dick Pole had allowed one-out singles to Tommy Hutton and Alan Ashby and a two-out walk to pinch-hitter Roy Howell that loaded the bases.

PHILS 8, METS 5

Greg Luzinski belted two home runs and Bob Boone and Richie Hebner hit one apiece as the Philadelphia Phillies survived a 16-hit New York attack and defeated the Mets 8-5.

After Luzinski's second homer of the game pulled the Phillies into a 5-5 tie in the fifth, Boone drove New York starter Craig Swan's first pitch of the sixth inning over the left-field wall.

ANGELS 16, INDIANS 3

Ron Jackson smashed four singles and drove in four runs and Don Baylor knocked in three with his eighth home run and added three singles to pace a 21-hit attack as the California Angels buried the Cleveland Indians 16-3.

It was the first loss this season for Cleveland starting pitcher Tommy John, 4-1, who yielded six runs on nine hits over the first six innings and was on the mound for all the Pirate thefts, which raised Pittsburgh's National League-leading team total to 41.

Moreno, the league leader with 14 stolen bases, walked in the first inning, stole

Fans Fit Suit Against Agency

DENVER (AP) — Members of the Denver Broncos Quarterback Club are suing a travel agency for $63,000 because of poor service they say they received while attending the Super Bowl in New Orleans in January.

The suit, filed in Denver District Court, claims that 97 of the club's 235 members had to take flights the day before the game instead of game day as the contract with Travel Ventures provided.

Also, hotel rooms weren't available as promised, and 20 of the early arrivals had to stay in a partially-heated condominium with only two bathrooms. The other 77 were divided up among 19 motel rooms, the suit claims.

The club members want their money back for those hotel accommodations, about $4,850, plus $50,000 in damages. The club also wants the $17 commission the agency promised it for each club member, which totals $3,995.

Rogers Hornsby, while playing for the St. Louis Cardinals, batted over 400 three times. He hit .401 in 1922, .424 in 1924, .424 in 1924, and .403 in 1925.

Mideast Battles Center In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The Middle East battlefield is not in the Golan Heights or the Sinai Desert. Whether you like it or not, it is here in Washington," Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., told a group of visiting Arabs recently.

The targets are congressional votes and American public opinion. The high-stakes battle is joined over a Carter administration proposal to sell advanced jet fighters as a package to Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Israel, and its effort to force Israel to make significant concessions in Mideast peace negotiations.

The aircraft sale being contested in Congress is the first major test of Israeli strength in the United States since former President Gerald R. Ford tried to "reassess" U.S. Mideast policy in 1975.

The Israeli lobby quickly persuaded 76 senators to sign a letter to Ford. It supported Israel and effectively blocked the "reassessment," which reflected both a growing national awareness of U.S. interests in the Arab world and a desire to force Israel out of its hard line on Mideast peace terms.

The sale of advanced jets to Arab countries is a return to Ford's reassessment policy. This time, however, Carter is in a stronger position than Ford was three years ago. Israelis say the Saudis will use their 60 promised F-15 warplanes against them in a new war. The Saudis deny this, saying that they need the American planes for defensive purposes only. In reality, the planes are almost incidental to larger Mideast issues.

Some U.S. analysts say Israel actually is not worried about the planes, which would not be used for service for another five years and would be replaced by French jets anyway if the deal falls through. In this view, the Israelis' real intention is to stop the development of a "special relationship" between Saudi Arabia and the United States by blocking the plane sale and creating bad feelings.

For the Saudis, acquiring the planes would be a big step toward cementing that special relationship, bringing about a major shift in U.S. Mideast policy and confirming that they can exercise their emerging political influence to good effect.

On one side is the so-called Israeli Lobby, which includes the Israeli embassy, visiting Israeli leaders, groups representing a majority of the six million American Jews and a loyal clique in Congress. It is now apparent that the powerful Jewish pressure groups no longer command automatic, overwhelming support here. Opinion polls show a significant erosion in American public support for Israel's Mideast policies.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's dramatic peace mission to Jerusalem in November made him the first Arab leader to gain popularity in the United States. A new poll shows 40 percent of Americans believe Sadat is doing a good job in Mideast peace initiatives. The figure for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is 28 percent.

Some members of Congress are grumbling. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., a long-time Israeli supporter, recently complained that aggressive pressure tactics by the most active Jewish lobbyists — the American Israel Public Affairs Committee — "do a disservice to the U.S., to Israel and to the Jewish community."

The administration has a new ally in the Arab Lobby. It is a fresh new team, though somewhat disorganized, with strong players: the Arab ambassadors, served by highly paid American lawyers and former government officials as advisers; aircraft manufacturers; oil companies; pro-Arab intellectuals; and groups representing an estimated two million Arab-Americans.

Saudi Arabia has emerged as the leading member of the Arab Lobby. With unlimited petrodollars at their disposal, the Saudis have borrowed the tactics of the more experienced Israeli lobby. Last week, the Saudis bought full-page ads in New York and Washington newspapers marking observance of Sun Day. The ads, which matched newspaper space bought to plug the Israeli position, told how Saudi Arabia was acting "in the interest of the human community" in helping finance solar power experiments in the United States.

The Saudis also countered a detailed fact sheet published by the Jewish committee which argued against aircraft sales to Saudi Arabia. Saudi lobbyist Frederick G. Dutton, a prominent Washington lawyer and former official in the Kennedy administration, issued a brochure last week stating his client's case for the jet sale.

Saudi princes, by nature a retiring group, have taken a cue from Israeli officials and set up unpublicized meetings here with members of Congress. Several senators said they were impressed with the recent presentation by Prince Turki, a son of the late King Faisal and chief of Saudi intelligence services. With delicate politeness, the Saudi visitors avoid making threats. They don't have to, for their arguments carry the implication of dire consequences for their listeners.

—To meet demands for oil in the West, Saudi Arabia is producing three million barrels a day more than it needs to finance its economic development. If it cuts back production, serious shortages would result and the price of oil would skyrocket.

—The Saudis have opposed switching from the dollar to another currency in quoting oil prices. They keep most of their estimated $65 billion dollars in foreign reserves in dollars. A switch could set off a monetary crisis.

—Saudi Arabia wants U.S. arms because it considers them superior and because it wants the U.S. military connection to enhance its security. If they don't get the arms, the Saudis will shop elsewhere — in France, they say — and thus increase the U.S. trade deficit and threaten further loss of U.S. jobs.

—Saudi Arabia says it must be able to defend itself as a bulwark against communism in the Arabian Peninsula. If a radical regime were to take over from the conservative Saudi kingdom, it would control 25 percent of the world's known crude oil reserves, a source of oil that will be critical to the United States in the 1980s.

Some Discreet Reminders: Members of Congress who vote against the jet sale are being discreetly reminded that they may be called some day to account for higher petroleum prices, lost jobs and monetary convulsions.

Israeli lobbying sanctions are more immediate, particularly in an election year. They include loss of campaign funds from generous Jewish political contributors, and loss of votes from the Jewish bloc, which is relatively larger than any other ethnic or religious group in the United States.

The Israeli Lobby has put out what one congressional aide calls a "full court press" to kill jet sales to Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Every member of Congress received from the Jewish committee a free copy of the novel "Holocaust" in case they missed the recent network television series about the Nazi extermination of Jews in World War II.

A committee official said the book is a powerful weapon in dramatizing Israel's need for security against hostile Arab neighbors, and most likely will sway votes on the jet sale. Journalists and congressmen are deluged with handouts. One entitled "Petro-Impact" warns against destabilization of the U.S. economy by Arab holdings, and the lure of big Arab money influencing U.S. policy, distorting school programs and leading to anti-Semitism in employment.

A column from a magazine for blacks is being circulated by the Black-Jewish Information Center. It blames Arabs for trade in black slaves.

"I have seen unmistakable clues of late," it said, "that some of our foremost black wheels have taken to playing lovey-dovey games with well-heeled Mideast sheiks ... who hold the threat of oil embargo against the throat of the world's economy."

The lobby is fighting dissent among members of the U.S. Jewish community who want Israel to take a moderate stance in peace talks.

Prime Minister Begin, whose U.S. tour neatly coincides with the jet sales debate, ends every speech with this declaration: "Let us stand together, Jews in Israel and Jews in America. And then we shall all make sure that little Israel lives forever."

Preston Smith Oil Slick Threatens British Beaches

Remains Calm Despite Loss

AUSTIN—Former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock watched the elections returns come in Saturday night at his headquarters at the Stephen F. Austin Hotel with the air of a man who is mildly disappointed but hardly surprised.

Smith's wife, Ima, went to bed before midnight, while Smith and a small group of supporters watched a television set and chatted with friends, who stopped by to sample the fried chicken and homemade cookies set up on tables in the suite.

"We got out and worked for you, governor," one man told Smith. "Well, I appreciate that," Smith replied.

"Well, we haven't forgotten what you did for us," the supporter assured Smith. Asked if he was surprised by the showing by Attorney General John Hill, Smith answered, "I predicted all along that Hill would lead the ticket."

"I did think I would run a closer race than I did with Briscoe. Would he have done anything differently?"

"The only thing that would have any difference would have been for my original backers to have supported me more than they did—all my financial support went to Briscoe."

"I really think there would be some sort of limitation on the amount of money a state-wide candidate can spend. That (unlimited spending) is one thing that is disturbing—a lot of potential candidates for governor might be discouraged from running."

"The governor's office belongs to the people—I sure don't think it ought to be bought. What are his plans now? I have no plans, other than to continue my business activities...I don't plan to burn any bridges; you never know when you might need them..."

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (AP) — A fleet of small ships chartered by Britain's Department of Trade sailed Sunday into a goosy oil slick from a Greek tanker in an attempt to disperse it with detergents.

The white sands of some of eastern England's finest holiday beaches were threatened by an estimated 294,000 gallons of oil, released when the fogbound tanker was sliced in half in a North Sea collision Saturday with a French ore carrier.

The people of Great Yarmouth, about 100 miles northeast of London, prepared to defend their beaches if spraying the detergents fails to halt the mass. Authorities reported the divided slick ranged from 1 1/2 to 10 miles away from the resort coast Sunday evening. Pollution experts said a northeasterly wind was helping keep the oil at sea.

"If it (the wind) changes we will have problems," said Cecil Creber, Department of Trade officer in charge of spraying operations that included five tugs, a trawler and a supply vessel. The oil spilled from the 18,879-ton Eleni V that collided with the carrier Roseline six miles off the Norfolk coast.

It came from the severed bow section of the tanker that sank after the collision. A tug managed to attach lines to the sunken bow and it was being towed to ward the Norfolk coast where owners and salvage experts said they hoped to beach it and pump out any remaining oil. The stern half, carrying two-thirds of Eleni V's cargo of 4.7 million gallons, was in tow to Rotterdam for cargo transfer. The ship was sailing from Rotterdam to Grangemouth, Scotland.

LONDON DOCKS GOING DOWN LONDON (AP) — The port authority that runs London's docks says it is losing money and facing bankruptcy because of several crippling strikes, an overmanned workforce and sagging business. In a document published with the annual accounts, Chairman John Cuckney said the authority lost $14.8 million last year and $2.3 million in the first 12 weeks of 1978.

Negotiators Believe Mexico Bluffing About Natural Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two days of talks in Mexico, high-ranking State Department officials say they do not believe Mexico can make good on its threat to find other customers for its natural gas if the United States does not meet its asking price.

A senior American official in the traveling party of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the administration feels Mexico has little choice but to sell its gas to the United States. The administration will be "tough but fair," when it finally begins to negotiate price with the Mexicans, said the official, who asked not to be identified.

The official reiterated the administration position that there will be no bargaining until Congress has acted on President Carter's energy legislation. The official said no bargaining was done during Vance's trip. Carter is asking Congress to approve a controlled gas price for domestic producers of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet, although there are indications he will agree to a compromise allowing prices to rise somewhat higher than that.

But Mexico is asking for about $2.70 per thousand cubic feet, a price the administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo has said he will stick to. The price is pegged to the world price of an equivalent amount of fuel oil.

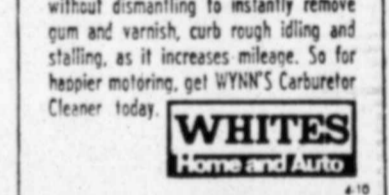

Mexican officials have said they can use the gas in Mexico if the United States will not meet their price. But the American officials say that would require expensive conversion of oil-burning utilities and industries. They do not feel it is feasible for Mexico to make the conversion.

The American officials say the only other option for Mexico would be to sell the gas in a liquefied state abroad. But that would require expensive cooling plants and special tankers, lowering the potential profits.

Mexican officials say privately that it will be politically impossible for the Lopez Portillo administration to settle for less than the asking price because it would appear to be giving in to the type of American economic muscle that Mexicans have long resented. Administration experts say the outcome will depend on the energy legislation finally approved by Congress. Since the Mexican gas could not be coming into the United States until the early 1980s, it is possible that the domestic price by that time will be comparable to the price the Mexicans are asking, they said.

Eyesight Test On TV May Help Multitudes

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A quick, convenient eyesight test may be as close as the living room television set, three Stanford researchers say.

Dr. Milton Flocks, a professor of ophthalmology at Stanford Medical School, said a televised eye test may be a year away if pilot projects work out.

As he sees it, the electronic box is a natural for the job. TV is more accessible for many than the eye doctor's office. TV testing could reach untold numbers of people who are not aware they have eye problems or do not know about proper eye care.

"TV is marvelous for this sort of thing — teaching and communicating with large numbers of people," Flocks said in an interview. "After all, television is a visual thing and this is a test of visual ability."

Flocks said he and two Stanford colleagues got $30,000 from the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness to develop the idea.

The proposed screening, about 30 minutes long, would include a test with the familiar "eye chart" letters and a test of peripheral vision. Flocks said the two tests "would uncover about 90 percent of those people with something really wrong with their eyes."

The first tests will be handled by Stanford's closed-circuit educational network, a two-way system piped to nearby major firms.

The tests are designed to alert people to possible eye problems, not to diagnose them, Flocks said.

"If a person fails, he'll be instructed to go to the doctor," he said. "It's just the same as testing your own weight or the self-examination of the breast by women for cancer. It's useful, but it doesn't mean the person shouldn't see a doctor."

As the doctor explained the pass-fail tests, they would go something like this:

—Visual Acuity: The viewer, standing about 12 feet from his TV set with one eye covered, reads an eye chart on the screen with three rows of letters, each row smaller than the one above. After each letter, the TV voice tells what he should have seen.

—Visual Field: The viewer measures his television screen diagonally, then sits at a distance from the set equal to that measurement. Testing one eye at a time, he stares at a fixed dot at the center of the screen while more dots flash on other parts of the screen. Eight different dot patterns will be shown, with the TV announcer telling the correct total of dots after each pattern.

Those who wear glasses will take the tests with them. Those who pass the test are presumed to have 20-40 vision or better.

Flocks said more study is needed before mass televising of the eye tests. Researchers will try to find out if the tests will indicate eye problems that do not really exist and miss some that do, he said.

Then there is the problem of those who ignore instructions not to take the test if the set is on the blink. In that case, Flocks said with a chuckle, "You should, either see your ophthalmologist or see your TV repairman."

Red China Opens Up For Tourists But Hotel Space Limits Numbers

TOKYO (UPI) — Food in China is wonderful, beer is good, there are bargains in clothing stores. Foreign women in low cut blouses and miniskirts are frowned on.

Chit-chat like this about China is being brought back to Japan by Americans and other Westerners who have found recently that China now is accepting private tourists who do no more than sign up and pay for group tours.

It is a new switch. Before the present Premier Hua Ku-Feng and his associates consolidated their power in 1976, most Westerners visited China by invitation only.

"I'd recommend the trip to anybody," says Terry Hull, of the Mellon Bank in Tokyo. Hull recently returned from a tour of four major Chinese cities — Peking, Nanking, Wushih and Shanghai.

The 14-day vacation cost the equivalent of $1,455 from Tokyo, but included everything, including meals, hotels and plane fares.

"I'm already trying to go back," says Hull. "I can hardly wait until they open up Tibet."

Tours of China increasingly will be available in the United States, as well as for Westerners living overseas. However, there still is no advertising here. China's hotel accommodations are limited. The tours are sold in Japan by a small number of travel agents trusted by the government-run China Travel Service. The agents recruit their customers by word of mouth, and report that they have long waiting lists.

One of Hull's American companions on the journey was the Rev. David McDowell of Tokyo Union Church. Besides a crowded schedule of daytime sightseeing, the Chinese offered the tourists evenings of movies, Chinese operas and sports events, McDowell said.

"I felt they were accommodating," McDowell said. "If you were tired, you weren't forced to go through the whole schedule. You could drop out at any time and rest."

McDowell saw three Chinese operas. Simultaneous translation was provided for the foreigners, who were given headphones at each opera house.

McDowell said there were no restrictions on cameras. The Chinese merely asked their guests not to photograph people without getting permission in advance.

Between scheduled events, the Americans and other foreigners were free to walk the streets of Shanghai, Peking and other cities, leaving their guides behind if they chose.

"I wandered around an awful lot. I liked exploring the stores," McDowell said. "There is no difficulty in shopping. Clothing is very reasonable."

College Eases High Fees For Families

(EDITOR'S NOTE: While parents groan about the high cost of a college education and Washington argues whether some of it should be tax deductible, one private college has done something about it: reduced rates for families.)

By CAROLE FELDMAN

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Education is a family affair at Fairleigh Dickinson University.

A child, his parents, grandparents can attend undergraduate classes at any of the private college's campuses — all for the price of tuition for one. If more than one child attends, the first pays full tuition, the others half.

Robert Chonko, coordinator of financial aid, says the program was developed in 1974 to help families cope with the high cost of a college education, but other benefits are by-products.

"It seems to bridge a lot of communication gaps," he says. "Parents are able to understand their children a lot better, and the children feel proud that their parents are able to do the work. It brings families closer together."

Barbara Fishbein, daughter Linda and son Jonathan all attended Fairleigh Dickinson's Madison campus last semester. Mrs. Fishbein, who was graduated in December with a degree in psychology, and Jonathan commuted from their Westfield, N.J., home. Linda lived on campus.

Both Jonathan, a junior in accounting, and Linda, a senior majoring in political science, liked having their mother on campus.

"It was rather neat," says Jonathan. "It was an experience not too many people had ... I thought it was really good because it was one more common interest we had to share."

Says Linda: "We didn't see each other every day, but we would make plans to meet and I would see her a lot more."

Mrs. Fishbein says there was no academic competition among the three. "Professors were aware of the family relationship, but I don't think anyone ever abused it."

Under the plan, what would have cost the Fishbein family $255 a credit hour, actually cost $127.50 — one full tuition, one half tuition and one free.

The plan was the idea of Dr. Jerome Pollack, school president, who sought a financially feasible way "to get parents to begin thinking about the educational needs of the entire family."

Parents who attend classes with their children are required to meet all university entrance requirements and may enroll in any course so long as space is available.

Chonko says there were 268 dual enrollments in 1974-75, the first year of the plan. The number grew to 369 the following year and to 396 in 1976-77.

"For the present," he says, "we're projecting 400 each year. We realize that after about a four-year period there will be a leveling off of participation ... There is just a limited number of eligible families attending college at the same time."

Chonko says while parents are taking advantage of the program, he knows of no grandparents who have enrolled.

Taking part in the family plan doesn't exclude students from other forms of financial aid, Chonko says. "Many students do get other forms of aid to pay for dormitory costs and the difference in tuition."

He says university trustees are considering expanding the program to the graduate division. But for now, "we're going to stick with a good thing."

Missile Launch Rescheduled

NELLIS AIR FORCE BASE, Nev. (AP) — The Ave Frit missile — its first two scheduled launches delayed by bad weather — was rescheduled to lift off Monday morning, a U.S. Department of Energy spokesman said.

Sunday's 4:45 a.m. launch was called off because of heavy clouds, said David Jackson, department information officer. The first scheduled launch, on Saturday, was cancelled due to high winds.

Studies conducted on the mission will focus on irregularities in the ionosphere and their effects on radio communications. During the studies, a colorful cloud of barium gas several miles wide will be visible in Nevada, California, Arizona and Utah, said Jackson.

A second launch is scheduled for later this month.

Actor Tries Motor Mayhem In Upcoming Film

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Joe Don Baker says his movie career has gone through two stages so far. He's hoping for a third. "I used to play the bad guy who went around beating heads," he said. "Now I play the good guy who goes around beating heads."

Baker, who was the club-wielding sheriff in "Walking Tall," says he would like nothing better than to break the mold.

Lions Sponsor Country Music Festival

The South Plains Lions Club will sponsor a Festival of Country Music and Comedy in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theater, Friday at 7 p.m.

The two-hour show will feature a combination of Nashville stars and local talent, for a superb night of family entertainment.

Headlining the show will be Justin Tubb, oldest son of Ernest Tubb. Justin has been a member of WSM's Grand Ole Opry for more than 20 years, and is a talented singer and songwriter in his own right.

Sylvia Harney, Nashville's new Minnie Pearl, will perform her country antics at the festival. Sylvia has recently performed with Floyd Gramer, Jim Ed Brown, Barbara Mandrell and Grandpa Jones. Harney's most memorable character is Aggie Mae, "Miss Soybean of 1938." According to Harney, Aggie Mae's most vivid recollection of a thrill is putting on a cold corset last November.

Bobby Walker, also of Nashville, presents a unique combination of comedy and music. A keyboard musician, Walker's down-home humor provides a refreshing talent and combo in comparison to the average "stand-up" comedian.

Local artists scheduled to perform at the Lion's benefit include the Bluegrass Revue from the South Plains College Bluegrass Music Department; Vida Hoffman, a promising talent now a senior at Monterey High School; and Joe and Joy Roper, a dynamic musical duo from Lubbock.

An Eddy Nicholson production, the Festival of Country Music and Comedy will benefit the youth's activities of the South Plains Lions Club.

Tickets for the all-reserved seat show are priced $4 and $5, and may be purchased at the Civic Center Box Office or from any South Plains Lions Club member. Tickets will be available through the day of the performance.

Does he beat on anybody? Is Pat O'Brien Irish?

"They've got me pegged as a gentle man who gets involved in violent situations," said Baker. "I don't like it. I'd really like to play a human being for a change. They shove you into a pigeon hole out here. They say, 'Oh yeah, that's what he does.' I didn't study acting all those years in New York to be typecast."

Baker said he has a romantic tragedy he is hoping NBC will make into a movie. "I've known about this script for four years," he said. "But everybody's afraid of it because it has a bumper ending."

If he's trying to change his roles, why did he do "Speedtrap?" He shrugged and said his soft Texas drawl, "I was hanging around the house and had nothing to do. They asked me if I'd like to go to Arizona."

More seriously, he said, "I did this as a sort of favor to First Artists. I want them to remember me when they make some big movies."

"Speedtrap," financed by Dutch investors and already doing well in the Netherlands, Sweden and New Zealand, is one of the first films released by First Artists. The company was founded by Paul Newman, Barbra Streisand, Steve McQueen and Sidney Poitier to produce their films.

The movie, which also stars Tyne Daly, Richard Jaeckel, Robert Loggia and Morgan Woodward, is sort of an uptown version of those drive-in movies of motor mayhem.

The crashes are nothing short of spectacular. In a few cases they seem to be staged only for eye appeal, as when a novice driver, twice caught in the middle of police chases, wipes out a fleet of cars. Paul Nuckles is in charge of the stunt work, all done on the streets of Phoenix.

In all, 23 automobiles were sent to an early grave. Actually, it was less, because crews worked all night to bang out the dents and get the cars running again the next morning.

"I don't think this is the greatest thing in the world, but it'll make money," said Baker. "I saw a movie a few years ago and whenever a cop crashed the audience cheered. I wondered if I was missing something. Then I realized they were cheering the cops crashing."

Fifteen police cars are totaled in "Speedtrap." To say nothing of Mercedes, Cadillacs, a Datsun Z, a Jensen Interceptor and the Dodge Charger Baker tools around in.

"Speedtrap" also involves a crooked police captain, a gangster who loses a $1 million heroin shipment to the car thief, and a policewoman who's assigned to help Baker track down the thief, who uses a mysterious black box to open car doors and start engines.

"Tyne and I didn't like the ending, so we rewrote it," said Baker. It involves a budding romance between the two, but for the sake of preserving the suspense that's all that can be said.

Baker was recently seen on NBC in the two-part movie "To Kill a Cop," in which he played the chief of detectives. He's also starring in another movie, "The Pack." He said, "Those dogs were some of the best actors I've ever worked with." It was a TV movie called "Mongo's Back in Town" that changed his roles from the bad guy heavy to the good guy heavy. It also landed him the role in "Walking Tall."

But after "Walking Tall" he didn't work for a while. He said, "I laid out for a year and nothing came my way except copies of 'Walking Tall.'"

"Hollywood only recognizes big successes and big failures. The greatest thing for your career is a well-publicized flop.

HEARTLINE: I have read in your column and other places about the possibility of a national health insurance plan being initiated by the Carter Administration. I have not seen anything written about this lately. Can you tell me what is happening? — N.R.

President Carter has decided to submit a national health insurance plan to Congress this year rather than wait until 1979.

The administration is considering four types of national health insurance costing a minimum of $15.5 billion in additional federal spending, the Health, Education and Welfare Department said recently.

And the White House and congressional leaders "have agreement on the general principles for national health insurance," Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) said after a meeting with President Carter.

President Carter will announce his health insurance policy this spring, said HEW Secretary Joseph Califano.

Administration health planners have sent to the White House a memo laying out four possible national health insurance plans, and implicitly supporting one that would cover the entire population under a mix of public and private insurance with federal control over financing.

This plan would require everyone to purchase a federal insurance plan unless employment groups chose to be exempted to a government. Federal revenues would finance coverage of the poor, the elderly and the disabled.

Employers would be required to pay at least 75 per cent of the premiums of their employees, although the proposal raises the possibility of federal tax credits "to minimize potentially adverse effects on employment and inflation."

The other three proposals include:

• A "target plan" to provide coverage for the poor and protection against "catastrophic" medical expenses — those above 25 percent of annual income. This proposal would cost the least in new money, about $15.5 billion, but would also give the least coverage.

• A consumer choice plan, using tax credits and vouchers for the poor to stimulate competition among health providers. Additional cost: $21 billion.

• A public corporation supplanting private insurance companies that would be used only to administer benefits, but not to underwrite risks. Additional costs: $25.5 billion.

HEARTLINE: I have seen you mention CHAMPVA in your column. Can you give some information about this program as to who is eligible and for what? — W.B.

The CHAMPVA program is similar to the health care program called CHAMPUS which is offered by the Defense Department to eligible active duty servicemen, retirees and their families.

Spouses and children of veterans who are totally and permanently disabled from service-connected causes are eligible for CHAMPVA. Also eligible are surviving spouse and children of veterans who died as a result of a service-connected disability or who are totally and permanently disabled from service-connected causes at the time of death.

However, dependents and survivors who are eligible for CHAMPUS program or for Medicare are not eligible for CHAMPVA.

The CHAMPVA program pays 75 percent of the reasonable hospital and professional charges for authorized inpatient care.

For outpatient care, the beneficiary is responsible for the first $50 of the reasonable costs or charges for covered services obtained this year. If, however, outpatient services are provided to more than one beneficiary member of a family during the same fiscal year, the total outpatient deductible will not exceed $100 for the family. After the deductible is met, CHAMPVA will pay 75 percent of the covered expenses which are in excess of the fiscal year deductible.

Dependents and survivors of veterans may apply for CHAMPVA benefits at any VA hospital or outpatient clinic. And further information may be obtained at the nearest VA regional office or from representatives of national veterans organizations.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. We're in our middle 50s, and with the children educated can now begin to think seriously of building a retirement stake. Stocks have not proved the answer, at least, not so far. We've made a little, lost a little and accumulated a lot of confirmation slips as a result of frequent trading but haven't succeeded in having anything "stick to the ribs." Is it too late to think of buying an annuity?

A. Annuities — to take your last query first — may be bought at any time and, since the amount of benefits depend on your age at the time you begin receive them, it is really never too late to buy such a contract. I assume you are thinking of an annuity bought via annual payments over a period of years. That is one way to buy an annuity. Another is to accumulate money elsewhere and then buy the annuity with a lump sum purchase when you want to begin receiving benefits. It's never too late for the latter method, which has some advantages, at least from the point of view of reducing the effects of inflation over the years.

As to building an estate via stocks: The last dozen years have been rough on traders — both professional and non-professional. The majority of readers who report their financial score admit to losses. And the record of many professional money managers hasn't been "too hot," either.

What the stock market will do over the next decade to your retirement I don't know. That it will continue to "fluctuate" goes without saying. But will it "fluctuate" up, or "fluctuate" down?

But even without knowing the answer to that one, I think you will build a stock portfolio. Not trade. Build. And as in the case with anything you build and which you hope will last, build with the best "bricks" you can find — the leaders in energy, foods, oils, communications, and transportation. And then hope for the best.

Q. Is it true that a man who has been under Social Security for 40 years could have done far better for himself by buying an annuity with that money?

A. I can't imagine where those figures came from.

A person who has paid the maximum into Social Security ever since it has begun in 1937 will, by mid-year 1978, have contributed a total of $9,454. (His employer, the same.)

For that he and his wife will now receive upward of $8,400 a year — tax free. I can't imagine any private annuity plan that would generate that much income.

Q. We are both employed, earning about $20,000. How can we cut taxes on income which also includes about $4,000 in interest on savings accounts?

A. You can't do anything about the taxes on your salaries, but if you have anywhere from $50,000 to $80,000 earning savings interest, you could shift some of that to tax-exempt bonds.

Q. We plan on retiring with maximum Social Security benefits and just under $100,000 (present value) in common shares. How much should we count on from securities?

A. If you go all out for maximum income from $100,000 today you can figure on somewhere between $8,500 and $9,000 from top to good quality bonds, and preferreds. If you want to retain some hopes of capital growth, you'd have to drop that income by anywhere from $2,000 to $4,000 depending upon the glamour qualities of the common shares you selected.

Tomorrow: When do we quit working?

The diving scap duck is so named because it makes its meals of scap, or broken shellfish, particularly oysters and mussels.

What... heats, broils, roasts; simmers, sizzles, broasts; grills, bakes, stews; pantries, and even barbecues? GAS COOKING... OUTDOORS!

Gas cooking outdoors sure makes sense in the summertime. It keeps the heat out, so your house stays cool. You save on air conditioning. Plus there's no charcoal or lighter fluid to buy, and no wait. Gas reaches cooking temperature fast and cooks full family dinners, everything your inside range and oven can cook, with that great outdoor flavor.

Take the heat out of the kitchen. Install a gas grill on the patio. It sure makes sense in the summertime, or anytime!
