

Houston Studies Closing Of Park, Site Of Riot

HOUSTON (AP) — After two nights of violence in a predominantly Mexican-American neighborhood, the streets were quiet Tuesday as a group passed out leaflets at two schools calling for a march and advocating rebellion.

About 50 policemen, many wearing riot gear, patrolled the area in the early morning hours Tuesday and were assigned to the area Tuesday night.

Mayor Jim McConn said that the city is considering closing Moody Park, site of the Sunday night riot, through the weekend. The mayor said the park would be closed if city officials agree such a step would be necessary to prevent additional disturbances.

More than 40 persons, many of them teen-agers, have been arrested during the past two days. Several persons, including four policemen and two newsmen, were injured.

Authorities said the situation on the north side of this booming city was still tense, although they hoped there would be no more outbreaks of violence.

Five members of the Houston Council on Human Relations met with Mayor Jim McConn Tuesday to discuss the need for improving police-community relations.

Hector Garcia, director of community relations for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Galveston-Houston, said, "There are things that can be done by the administration. They need the kind of guidance and pressure to get some of the things going."

Garcia said it was "obvious that elements outside the community sparked the riot. But, there also was hot muggy weather and several eyewitnesses have told us that young people were being given beer and saturated with anti-police propaganda. Given these elements and the recent Sterling sentences it was ripe for an incident."

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling sentenced three former policemen, convicted civil rights violators in the death of a young Mexican-American prisoner, to one year in prison and 10 years probation.

During the day, a group of adults handed out leaflets on two high school campuses reminding the students of the sentences handed down for the death of Joe Campos Torres, 23, who drowned in Buffalo Bayou while in police custody.

Les Burton, chief of security for the Houston School District, said the leaflets were calling on the pupils to support a march and were advocating revolution.

A city juvenile officer said five persons were taken into custody for trespassing on the school campuses.

About 100 teen-agers threw rocks and bricks at officers Monday night and tossed several firebombs at a department store. Officer E.H. Moore was hit with a brick and taken to a Houston hospital.

Police Chief Harry Caldwell was at the scene and said, "Tonight we had a bunch of youngsters throwing rocks and other things, but it wasn't a large group. We are not going to overreact."

During a Sunday celebration of a Mexican holiday, a riot erupted, with 15 persons injured, several cars and buildings damaged by fire and 26 arrests reported.

Fourteen others were taken into police custody during the Monday night disturbance.

Travis Morales, leader of an organization called People United To Fight Police Brutality, has denied his group provoked the crowd to riot. But, he said, the riot "was a glorious and proud day in the history of the American people. The police got a little bit of justice they deserve. The people will never forget nor forgive what happened to Joe Campos Torres."

Morales said of the riot, "I don't think this will be the last time."

And, he called for a march Saturday to demand the release of those arrested Sunday.

Garcia said a march "at this time can only be interpreted as further incitement."

I-27 Route Proposals Narrowed

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff

PROPOSED routes for the extension of I-27 through Lubbock were presented to about 120 Lubbockites Tuesday night by Department of Highways and Public Transportation engineers.

A list of 13 routes which had been suggested at public hearings last year have been narrowed to "three or four" routes in a corridor between Avenues A and H, the group was told.

C.W. Nall, assistant district engineer for the highway department, said the routes eliminated had problems because some did not serve north-south traffic, some did not serve the central business district, some crossed public parkland and others exceeded the 6.6 miles allocated to construct the interstate between north Loop 289 and south Loop 289.

Of the routes in the corridor between Avenues A and H, one would follow Ave. A and would take right of way from the westside of Ave. A.

$122 Million Cost Seen

The Ave. A route could be built at an estimated cost of $122 million, Nall said, adding the route would have the least noise problems since it passes through an industrial area.

Nall said the route is also one of the shortest and one which would serve north-south traffic needs as well as serve the central business district.

However, the Ave. A route would cross the Sanders Elementary School grounds. An alternate route along Ave. A would bypass Sanders on the west but would cost $1.9 million more.

Another route would follow U.S. 87 then fall between Ave. C and D before crossing the east end of the Santa Fe Railroad Depot, swing behind the post office and follow a path between Avenues F and G then swing west and pass over the traffic circle.

Relocations Necessary

This route also would cross Sanders school property and would require a large number of relocations by residences. But, Nall said it was one of the shorter routes and one of the cheapest at $119.3 million.

A variation on that route would swing west of Sanders and parallel the first route until it swung west of Ave. H, thus eliminating the displacement of so many residents.

The route would cost an estimated $120.7 million.

Yet another route would fall between

EX-ITALIAN LEADER'S BODY FOUND—The body of former Premier Aldo Moro is being taken to an ambulance after it was found in a car parked in downtown Rome Tuesday. Thousands of police have been searching for Moro since he was kidnapped March 16 by Red Brigade terrorists. (AP Laserphoto)

Italians Mourn Death Of Moro

ROME (AP) — The bloody, bullet-riddled body of Aldo Moro was found chained and stuffed in the back of a parked car in downtown Rome Tuesday, climaxing a 55-day ordeal of terror that stunned Italy and the world.

Red Brigades terrorists, flaunting to the end their attack on the "heart of the state," pumped 11 bullets into the chest of the former premier. They left the body in a stolen maroon Renault at the very center of Italian political power — on a cobblestoned sidewalk between the party headquarters of the Communists and Moro's Christian Democrats.

The discovery left the nation grief-stricken and fearful. Millions of Italians poured into streets and piazzas in a massive display of unity.

Demand Refused

The ruling Christian Democrats, with staunch backing from the Communists, steadfastly refused the kidnapers' demand that 13 imprisoned terrorists be freed in exchange for Moro's life.

Moro's embittered family, which had pleaded with the Christian Democrats to bargain for his freedom, issued a statement opposing a state funeral and official mourning ceremonies.

"The family locks itself up in silence and demands silence," it said. "History will pass judgment on the life and death of Aldo Moro."

Appeal By Moro

From captivity, Moro appealed in handwritten letters for his Christian Democrats to deal with the ultra-leftist terrorists. Facing death, he requested in a letter two weeks ago that no government or party official attend his funeral.

World leaders from President Carter to Queen Elizabeth II condemned the murder of the man considered Italy's most influential politician, the leading candidate for president and architect of a historic agreement between the Vatican-backed Christian Democrats and the largest Communist Party in the West.

Carter called it a "contemptible and cowardly act." He sent a letter of sympathy to Moro's widow.

Premier Giulio Andreotti called an emergency Cabinet meeting. It lasted 30 minutes, received a report from the Interior Ministry and adjourned without issue.

ing a statement, noting the family's request for silence.

President Giovanni Leone, in an emotional television address to the nation, said: "Aldo Moro has been pitilessly and horrifyingly slain. The beast who tried to give the kidnapping... an ideological and political mantle failed to listen to the cry that the whole of mankind gave out in order that this man could be spared."

Communist Party chief Enrico Berlinguer called Moro "a great democratic leader who fell murdered by an organization of terrorist animals."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass carried a two-paragraph announcement of the murder. It did not mention the Red Brigades, but said Moro "was

Botulism Poisoning Fatal For Clovis Area Rancher

A PROMINENT Clovis, N.M., area farmer-rancher died Tuesday in Methodist Hospital from complications arising from botulism poisoning suffered last month.

John Garrett Jr., 65, of Clovis was the first person to die from the botulism outbreak that at one time hospitalized 33 persons who ate at the Colonial Park Country Club restaurant in Clovis the week of April 9.

Garrett, who had been hospitalized in Methodist's Coronary Care Unit since April 14, died at 12:50 p.m. Tuesday. His condition had remained critical since his admission to the hospital, and a hospital spokesman said the rancher had been on a respirator much of the time.

New Mexico state epidemiologist Dr. Jonathan Mann, one of the chief investigators of the Clovis botulism outbreak, said that apparently Garrett had developed an infection while on the respirator but that "clearly, botulism was the underlying problem; he died of complications from botulism."

Attending physician Dr. Lloyd Garland officially attributed the cause of death to "complications attendant to the diagnosis of botulism."

Compromise Seen On Mideast Jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Tuesday the Carter administration is suggesting the eventual sale of additional jet fighters to Israel as a compromise to head off congressional opposition to the pending Middle East arms sale.

However, committee members said no firm offer has been made by administration officials.

"I don't think one can say there is an offer," said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. "There has been discussion."

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., speaking at the conclusion of a closed committee session, said the possibility of selling additional planes to Israel was discussed at a breakfast meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Saudi Assurances

Javits, Case and other senators said Defense Secretary Harold Brown sent the committee a draft letter spelling out assurances that the F-15 warplanes earmarked for Saudi Arabia will not be used offensively against Israel.

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., said the Brown letter contains a series of assurances involving the makeup, armament and basing of the F-15s targeted for Saudi Arabia.

Biden, however, took issue with contentions by administration officials that they have the votes to defeat a resolution of disapproval on the Senate floor.

"I'm ready to go to the floor and I believe there are enough votes to prevail and to disapprove all three sales," Biden said.

Sale Outlined

President Carter wants to sell $4.8 billion worth of jet fighters to three Middle East countries. The sales plan calls for delivering 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s to Israel, 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia and 50 less sophisticated F-5Es to Egypt.

The administration had insisted earlier Tuesday that the basic terms of its sale of jet fighters to the three Mideast countries will not be changed.

Vance told the House International Relations Committee that private negotiations are continuing with House and Senate members and "some members on both sides" have suggested such a compromise.

Vance said the negotiations are still underway "to see if there is something that could be done that would be helpful" to provide assurances that aircraft sold to Arab states will not be used against Israel.

"We're having discussions with members on both sides of the hill and those discussions are continuing," Vance said. "That's the state of play."

When Vance was asked whether such assurances might include selling Israel 20 additional F-15 jet fighters at a later date he replied, "some members on both sides have suggested that. That's all I can say."

He repeated several times that as far as the administration is concerned, the main components of the sale package "stand on their own two feet" and will not be changed.

"The proposals are as they are," Vance said.

The suggestion of selling an additional 20 F-15s to Israel is aimed at equalizing the Israeli and Saudi F-15 forces at 60 each.

In response to questions by members of the House committee, Vance repeated Saudi assurances that the F-15s sold Saudi Arabia will not be based at fields adjacent to Israel. He offered these other assurances as well:

— Despite "loose talk" to the contrary, the government of Saudi Arabia has given "every assurance" that it will not retaliate by raising the price of oil or by undermining the stability of the dollar.

"They've never indicated in any way whatever that they are linking the supply of oil, the stability of the dollar or the price of oil to the sale," Vance said. "Indeed, they've said quite the contrary."

— The planes sold to any Middle Eastern nation, including Israel, will not carry the equipment needed to enable them to drop nuclear bombs.

— The Saudi Arabian government has given assurances that it does not intend to buy additional combat planes from other suppliers, including France, while it is obtaining and receiving F-15s. The last F-15s are not scheduled to be delivered in Saudi Arabia until 1984.

Vance repeated the administration position that the sales are "necessary and

Hard-To-Wake Teacher Fired For Lateness

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Three windup alarm clocks, two clock radios and two electric alarms — all set at staggered times — aren't enough to budge social studies teacher Tom Carpenter from bed.

After teaching in Juneau 13 years, Carpenter was fired last month for being late to school 20 times in the past year. But he's appealing his dismissal on grounds he has a "sleeping disorder."

The school board met until 3 a.m. one night last week to hear Carpenter's appeal. A decision is expected this week.

Carpenter says he has had the problem all his life. When he was in college, his roommates used to awaken him with squirt guns.

But he says he didn't start coming to work late until 1972, when he was divorced.

His former wife explained to the school board in an affidavit:

"We were married for three years, and every day of that time I would spend an hour and a half trying to wake him up."

School officials say Carpenter has been late a total of 41 times since 1972, and 20 times during the past year while teaching at Marie Drake Junior High.

Carpenter told the school board he has an appointment for tests at a sleep disorder clinic at Stanford University. But board member Gary Jenkins said Carpenter should not have waited so long.

And Carpenter maintains he is puzzled about the whole thing:

"I've tried going to bed earlier, and different hours. It doesn't seem to matter, going to bed early or going to bed late or sleeping right at school. Sometimes I wake up early and sometimes late. There doesn't seem to be a time when I wake up. It's strange."

Funds Loss Threatens Integrated Schools

By JEFF SOUTH, Avalanche-Journal Staff

BECAUSE of federal regulations, when eastside children change schools next year under a court-ordered integration plan, they may lose out on special academic services that have been available at their neighborhood campuses.

"I sincerely hope that doesn't happen. We are doing our best to work out a solution to this," Superintendent Ed Irons said Tuesday.

The problem concerns the federal Title I program, which provides Lubbock $1.7 million a year to hire extra teachers at elementary schools in low-income areas. Six of these heavily minority Title I campuses this fall will be sending half their students across town to predominantly white non-Title I schools for integration purposes.

Federal Regulations Vague

Existing federal regulations are vague on whether Title I monies and personnel can be used to serve children who reside in Title I areas but who, due to an integration order, are assigned to a "sister school" in a more affluent neighborhood.

"We are still hoping that the Title I program will be able to 'follow' Title I children to their newly assigned school," Irons said. "But right now, we don't know whether that will be allowed."

He said his staff will confer with the Texas Education Agency, which channels the federal funds to local school systems, about the matter. "We are already in touch with TEA about it," Irons said.

A TEA spokesman Tuesday said the agency is well aware of the Lubbock Independent School District's predicament. "I can sympathize with Lubbock's problem. I can assure you, we'll give the Lubbock school system all the help we can, within the limits of the regulations," he said.

The spokesman said the answer may lie in legislation pending before Congress. That legislation, expected to be passed in July, will renew funding for Title I and may include a "follow-the-child" provision, he said.

Questions about federal programs for next year came up Tuesday at a public hearing on the Lubbock school district's consolidated application for Title I and

Wreck Kills City Man

A 41-YEAR-OLD Lubbock man died Tuesday about 8:20 p.m. after the vehicle in which he was riding shot over the crest of a railroad track at E. 50th Street and Southeast Drive and was struck broadside by a southbound car.

Pronounced dead at the scene was Samuel Alvarado of 217-B 44th St. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy has temporarily withheld a ruling.

The car in which Alvarado was riding reportedly was westbound on E. 50th Street as it approached the railroad crossing.

The vehicle, a 1967 Ford Falcon, reportedly crested the slight embankment, was airborne several feet, then was struck broadside by a southbound 1972 Pontiac sedan.

The driver of the Falcon, Allen Edward Lawrence, 31, of 1514 46th St., and the driver of the Pontiac, John Wesley Plumley, 40 of Slaton, suffered minor injuries and were taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment.

Services for Alvarado are pending with Henderson Funeral Directors. Alvarado's death marked the city's 12th fatality of the year.

Spacecraft To Study Venus' Atmosphere; Weather Hints Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is about to conduct an ambitious detailed study of another planet's atmosphere with unmanned spacecraft that may provide some clues about the earth's complex weather machine.

U.S. space officials said Tuesday that the first of two Pioneer Venus spacecraft is set for launch next week on a slow, looping swing toward earth's cloud-encapsulated neighbor.

The two spacecraft, one to orbit the planet for long-term studies and the other to break apart into five probes to penetrate the atmosphere, are the first designed primarily to study the atmosphere of another planet.

Scientists say the atmosphere of Venus appears to represent a relatively simple weather mechanism when compared with the Earth's.

Studies of the interaction of clouds, temperatures, pressures and other factors on Venus may help man better understand his planet's more complex atmosphere, they said at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientific briefing.

Venus, the second planet from the Sun, is almost identical to Earth in size and mass, but has a much denser atmosphere composed mostly of carbon dioxide. Atmospheric pressure at the planet's surface is 100 times that of Earth and temperatures are about 900 degrees Fahrenheit, hotter than the melting point of lead.

The United States has flown three Mariner spacecraft by the planet, but none landed or orbited. The Soviet Union sent 10 unmanned craft to Venus, including eight that dropped landers to the harsh surface.

U.S. officials say they have heard reports that the Russians will launch two spacecraft to Venus this August and that these vehicles will probably arrive several weeks after the American Pioneers.

A. Thomas Young, NASA's director of lunar and planetary programs, said U.S. and Soviet space officials will meet next month in Innsbruck, Austria, to discuss future cooperation. Young said American officials hope to get details of the upcoming Soviet mission at that time.

The first spacecraft that will fly in the new $200 million U.S. effort is the Pioneer Venus 1 orbiter, set for launch May 20 or shortly afterwards. The second spacecraft, Pioneer Venus 2, with its probes that will spread like shotgun pellets over the planet's entire Earth-facing hemisphere, is set to fly three months later.

The first spacecraft, with 100 pounds of scientific equipment contributing to its 1,280-pound launch weight, will fly more than halfway around the sun on its seven-month journey to Earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

Scientists say this wide-swinging flight path allows a slower approach and makes it easier to orbit the craft around Venus.

Pioneer Venus 1 is scheduled to reach the planet on Dec. 4, just five days before Pioneer Venus 2. The second craft will take a faster, more direct route because it will shoot directly into Venus' atmosphere without orbiting.

The orbiter, jammed with 12 of the 30 experiments on the dual mission, has a primary mission life of eight months. This will allow scanning of the planet for more than an entire Venusian year, about 225 earth days, and will cover one complete rotation of Venus on its axis, which takes 243 earth days.

The multi-probe second ship will split into five craft when it is 20 days from the planet. These sections will separate and enter the planet's atmosphere about 6,000 miles apart.

The main part of the spacecraft is to transmit data on the upper atmosphere before burning up. The other four probes, equipped with heat shields, are to measure the atmosphere before crashing on the surface of the planet. The probes are not designed to survive impact.

Social Security Card Procedure Overhauled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting Monday, persons under 18 will have to produce a birth or baptismal certificate and other proof of identity to obtain a Social Security card.

Also, adults will have to go in person to a Social Security office to apply for a card or to seek a replacement for a lost card, the agency announced Tuesday.

The youths can mail in their documents — not photocopies — and they will be returned, the agency said.

Previously, youths did not have to submit any proof of identity to get a Social Security number, and adults could get their number or replacement cards by mail.

At least 150 million Americans have Social Security numbers and seven million new numbers are issued each year. Eighty percent go to persons under 18. About 4.4 million replacement cards also are issued annually.

The Social Security Administration keeps computerized records of a worker's lifetime wages and uses the information to figure benefits upon retirement.

Congress ordered the agency in 1972 to tighten up its card-issuing procedures because of concerns about the fraudulent use of Social Security numbers by illegal aliens and others. In 1973 the agency began requiring adults, resident aliens and welfare recipients to furnish proof of identity when they applied for a number.

Don I. Wortman, acting commissioner of Social Security, said the new rules are designed to assure that a person's record is "complete and accurate. These procedures will help prevent another person from misusing a Social Security number, either knowingly or unknowingly."

If a person does not have a birth or baptismal certificate, he can use another document "if it is at least one year old and shows information such as the applicant's name, address, age, signature or photograph," the agency said.

"They must submit a second record, such as a vaccination record, a school record, or a driver's license, to establish identity."

Fight Brews On No-Fault Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A divided Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday approved legislation setting minimum federal standards to guide states in establishing no-fault automobile insurance plans.

The bill passed 9-7, but there were indications it may face a serious challenge once it reaches the Senate floor.

Not only is there traditional opposition from trial lawyers who stand to lose business by provisions that will cut off most lawsuits suits by accident victims, but a new strain of opposition has surfaced attacking the bill as anti-consumer.

Some supporters vowed a fight for changes to lower the rates that can be charged by the insurance companies. Unless the final bill addresses the rate structure, Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., said he would move to recommit and kill the bill for the session.

Durkin, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., and Sen. Don Riegel, D-Mich., said the bill would result in windfall profits for the big insurance companies, most of which have come out in support of the minimum federal no-fault standards.

Hollings said senators refused to touch the rate structure in committee because they knew if a change were made, insurance companies would withdraw their support and kill the bill.

Riegel said the bill's consumer protections are "inadequate." "That is the bill's basic flaw, and that's the reason the insurance companies are supporting it. They're going to make more money with less effort under the new system," he said.

The committee approved an amendment giving the states four years to meet the minimum federal no-fault standards on their own before the federal plan was put into place for them. States could make their no-fault plan stricter.

The bill removes the concept of "fault" in insurance claims, and ensures that accident victims get needed medical care. But the major change is a virtual end to the "tort" system that allowed accident victims to file lawsuits to recover general damages. The federal standards would prohibit a suit for non-economic damages — commonly known as "pain and suffering" actions — unless a person died, was continuously disabled for more than 180 days, suffered serious and permanent injury, the permanent loss of an important bodily function or permanent scarring or disfigurement.

Tech Slates Seminar For Municipal Judges

Municipal court judges from across Texas will attend a seminar at the Texas Tech University School of Law, room 109, May 16-18.

The seminar is co-sponsored by the Texas Tech University's School of Law, Division of Continuing Education and Office of Traffic Safety, and the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Instructors for the session include Drs. Charles P. Bubany, Daniel H. Benson and Bruce M. Kramer, all of the Texas Tech Law School faculty.

Coordinator for the seminar is Bubany. More information can be obtained from him at the Tech School of Law.

Energy Bill Strategy Shifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, in a major shift of strategy, disclosed Tuesday he is "actively considering" a procedure that would remove President Carter's controversial energy tax proposal from the remainder of his energy legislation.

O'Neill indicated that while he still supports the president's proposal for a tax on U.S. crude oil, splitting the long-stalled energy program may be the only way to get it moving again.

Under such action, the president would be sent only four pieces of the five-part energy bill he submitted to Congress in April 1977, while resolution of the tax issues might be left to a later time.

In the past, the White House and the House leadership have insisted that the entire energy program be kept intact, fearful that splitting it might doom the unpopular crude oil tax.

O'Neill's apparent reversal in strategy came after mounting pressure within Congress to break up the energy bill so that parts already agreed upon by House-Senate conferees can be enacted.

He said his statement, read to reporters at his daily news conference, "should in no respect be construed as abandonment" of the crude oil tax.

O'Neill indicated he probably would name a new set of House conferees to deal with the tax aspects of the energy bill, however.

Disagreement of negotiators over two parts of the package — natural gas pricing and the oil tax — has blocked action on the remainder of the program since late last year.

Conferees have agreed tentatively to the other three parts, on energy conservation, industrial coal conversion and electric rates.

O'Neill's switch in strategy could result in the crude oil tax, which Carter has called the centerpiece of his energy plan, "going right down the tubes," said an administration energy lobbyist who asked not to be identified.

But it also may have made it easier for Congress to end the long debate on natural gas pricing.

O'Neill's announcement appeared to pick up the support of Rep. Henry M. Reuss, D-Wis., for a proposed compromise — negotiated with White House blessings — calling for natural gas deregulation in 1985.

Before Tuesday, House conferees were at least one vote short of approving the measure and Reuss's support could provide the winning margin. A majority of Senate conferees have indicated support.

Reuss, an opponent of the crude oil tax, told reporters that if O'Neill is serious about splitting off the tax, "then I could vote for natural gas deregulation."

O'Neill said that once the natural gas pricing issue is resolved, then it should be sent to the Senate — which must act before the House on all the energy compromise measures — along with the three relatively uncontroversial bills agreed to earlier by the conferees.

O'Neill commented several hours after a House subcommittee which had been delaying the Department of Energy's $13 billion authorization bill to protest congressional handling of Carter's energy program reversed itself and voted 9 to 1 to allow the measure to proceed through the House.

The reversal came after those leading the protest indicated they had won some key concessions from House leaders.

Heart Theory Fails Test Of Jogger Pigs

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — At least for pigs, jogging 25 miles a week does not reduce the risk of heart attack, even when it trims body fat, a University of California study indicated Tuesday.

The results of two years of experiments are disappointing to those who feel jogging helps humans avoid heart attacks, said researcher Max Sanders.

"The findings caused a great deal of anguish" among his colleagues who are dedicated joggers, he said.

In a paper to be published this summer, Sanders and several colleagues said a specialized breed of miniature pigs called Yucatan miniswine ran on treadmills — about 25 miles a week — for a year.

They were conditioned earlier on a small track on a private farm northeast of San Diego and in all, lost up to 20 percent of their body weight.

The scientists injected tiny radioactive beads into major blood vessels and plotted in detail the circulation that supplies oxygen to the heart. The pigs' circulation pattern proved to be no better than that of research pigs permitted to be sedentary, Sanders said in an interview Tuesday.

In humans and pigs, clogged arteries that inhibit circulation can result in damage to the heart's muscle tissue and perhaps cause death. It had been widely believed that jogging cut down on the possibility of clogged arteries. In a related exercise, researchers blocked arteries that supply the heart in 18 animals. The resulting dead tissue is called a myocardial infarction, representing permanent damage to the heart muscle.

After blocking arteries in the pigs, the scientists found the pigs did develop alternative pathways that allowed the blood supply to bypass the dead tissue if they survived the heart-attacks. One of the 18 pigs died after surgery.

Sanders said many exercise therapists believe that such alternative pathways can be developed through exercise in normal animals, thus reducing the risk of heart attacks. But that was untrue in the pigs.

However, the heart efficiency of the pigs, weighing about 150 pounds when the workouts began, was improved by the regimen, he said.

A more strenuous program, similar to the kind done by long-distance runners, might result in development of alternative blood pathways in pigs but that is too difficult an experiment to carry out, Sanders added.

CUTTING UP A WHALE — Eskimos from the village of Wainwright, Alaska, are marking up this 53-foot-long bowhead whale for cutting. The whale, the ninth taken by Alaskan Eskimos this season, was killed early Saturday in the Arctic Ocean near Wainwright. The federal government announced Monday that it would not prosecute whalers from Barrow, 100 miles east of here, for taking one more whale than they were allowed under the new quota system. (AP Laserphoto)

Public Hearing Slated On Solid Waste Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Five public hearings will be held next week on a state industrial solid waste management program, the Texas Department of Water Resources said Tuesday.

In accordance with federal law the department is developing a program for federal grant assistance to develop an approved state hazardous waste program. The hearings will be concerned only with the disposal of industrial wastes which can be liquid or semi-liquid as well as solid form.

The hearings do not concern municipal dump sites which are under jurisdiction of the State Health Department.

The first hearing will be Monday, May 15, in Houston and Corpus Christi, followed by hearings on succeeding days in Midland, Arlington, and Austin.

San Angelo Roping Match To Benefit Area Boys Ranch

SAN ANGELO (Special) — A special roping match pitting two of the nation's top ropers will cap a day's benefit for West Texas Boys Ranch here May 20.

Barrel racing and jackpot calf roping also are on tap for the day's events, which get underway at 10 a.m. at the ranch, 17 miles west of San Angelo.

Roy Cooper of Monument, N.M., 1977 Rodeo Cowboys Association calf roping champion, and Barry Burk of Duncan, Okla., who has been runnerup to the champion more times than any other calf roper, will swing their loops for lowest totals on 10 calves each.

At the National Finals Rodeo Cooper placed third and Burk fourth. Cooper came out champion with his year's combined earnings while Burk finished sixth.

Jackpot roping will be a two-calf event with barrel racing two go-rounds.

Barbecue with all the trimmings will be served for a $2.50 a plate donation and admission to the rodeo session is any donation, according to Bill Price of Lubbock, a member of the board of directors.

The roping is held in conjunction with the annual board of directors meeting.

Service Stations Get Protection In New Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Tuesday to protect gasoline dealers from arbitrary cancellation of their contracts by fuel suppliers.

The bill, approved 95-0, also requires that the octane rating of gasoline be posted on the pump. A conference committee will work out differences between the Senate bill and a similar measure approved by the House.

The legislation prohibits an oil company from ending or failing to renew a franchise agreement with a service station, except when reasonable grounds exist, such as poor customer relations.

In most cases, a 90-day notice would be required before a cancellation for good cause could take effect.

Station operators have claimed that many stations have been forced out of business because they lost their gasoline supplies after rejecting distributors' demands for longer or shorter station hours, increased shares of profits or other operating policy changes.

The bill would establish a uniform octane-rating system to allow motorists to select the proper gasoline for their cars. The Senate scrapped a provision added by the Senate Energy Committee that would have barred the big oil-producing or oil-refining companies from subsidizing company-owned stations.

AN EDITORIAL:

Energy--Still A Dirty Word?

IN A RECENT nationwide tour, a top newsman for one of the major wire services said that the energy crisis was not one of the subjects he heard discussed the most in his travels.

As a matter of fact, when it did come up at all, it was a way down on the list of worries now plaguing the American people.

What is bugging millions today is the continued rise in living costs, continued government interference in almost every facet of daily living and the frustration of not being able to do anything about any of it.

WE HAVE HEARD the same complaints from others who have made soundings the past few weeks and months. And the feeling is growing.

Many persons, for whatever reason—and they are quite obvious in some instances—still do not honestly feel that the nation will ever face a situation where there might not be enough fuel of some kind to run the autos, factories and planes to get us from here to there, or that natural gas or heating oil may actually be in short supply.

PART OF THE reason for this Pollyanna type thinking can be laid at the government's door step itself.

As far back as the Arab Oil Embargo in the Fall of 1973 and the months that followed, the American people were prepared to make whatever sacrifices necessary to get alternate energy programs going.

Then, the government, and oil industry, once the embargo ended, started encouraging people to "take the normal vacation, use what is needed, but no more." At the same time, the price of all petroleum products shot up sharply. Many persons got the distinct feeling that they "had been had."

The feeling, to a degree, has not changed to this day.

SO, WHEN THE government, belatedly comes up with energy programs—in President Carter's case more a tax on energy—then the skepticism grows.

Somehow, responsible leaders must get it across to the American people that the nation indeed does face, not far down the road, the specter of long lines at the gas station, and perhaps cold winters.

As things now stand, we are getting ample supplies of oil—from the OPEC nations, from Alaska, the North Sea and hopefully later from the Atlantic coastline.

But, at the rate we are using and paying for it, the nation's economy will be wrecked by continued balance of payments deficits, a weak dollar and high inflation.

We need a viable, workable, energy program which the people can buy and for which they will sacrifice. It is up to the nation's leaders—in government and the energy field—to come up with something in that vein. Window dressing, particularly on the part of the government, won't do it.

'Okay--Let's Tack On A Couple Of Solar Panels Just For Appearances'

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Freedom Is Relative

WASHINGTON—What is in danger of becoming a frivolous public debate over the appointment of a Marxist to head the University of Maryland's department of politics and government has so far ignored this unspoken concern within the academic community: the avowed desire to many political activists to use higher education for indoctrination.

The proposal to name Bertell Ollman, professor at New York University, as department head has generated wrong-headed debate.

Politicians who jumped in to oppose Ollman simply for his Marxist philosophy have received a justifiable going-over from defenders of academic freedom in the press and the university. Academic Prince Valiants seem arrayed against McCarthyite know-nothings.

But neither side approaches the central question: not Ollman's beliefs, but his intentions. His candid writings avow his desire to use the classroom as an instrument for preparing what he calls "the revolution."

WHETHER THIS IS a form of indoctrination that could transform the real function of a university and transcend limits of academic freedom is a concern to academicians who are neither McCarthyite nor know-nothing.

To protect academic freedom, that question should be posed not by politicians but by professors.

But professors throughout the country troubled by the Ollman nomination, clearly a minority, dare not say a word in today's campus climate. This fact alone suggests that freedom is relative in academia.

While Ollman is repeatedly described in news accounts as a "respected Marxist scholar," he is widely viewed in his profession as a political activist.

Amid the increasingly popular Marxist movement in university life, he is distinct from philosophical Marxists. Rather, he is an outspoken proponent of "political Marxism."

Ollman's intentions become evident in "On Teaching Marxism and Building the Movement," his article in the winter 1978 issue of New Political Science. Most students, he claims, conclude his course with a "Marxist outlook."

Ollman concedes that will be seen "as an admission that the purpose of my course is to convert students to socialism."

That bothers him not at all because "a correct understanding of Marxism (as indeed of any body of scientific truths) leads automatically to its acceptance." Non-Marxist students are defined as those "who do not yet understand Marxism."

THE "CLASSROOM" is a place where the students' "bourgeois ideology is being dismantled." "Our prior task" before the revolution, he writes, "is to make more revolutionaries. The revolution will only occur when there are enough of us to make it."

He concludes by stressing the importance to "the Movement" of "radical professors." If approved for his new post at Maryland, Ollman will have a major voice in filling a new professorship promised him.

A leading prospect is fellow Marxist Alan Wolfe; he is notorious for his book, "The Seamy Side of Democracy," whose celebration of Communist China extols the beneficial nature of "brainwashing."

Ollman's principal scholarly work, "Alienation: Marx's Conception of Man in Capitalist Society," is a ponderous tome in adoration of the master (Marxism "is like a magnificently rich tapestry"). Published in 1971, it does not abandon hope for the revolution forecast by Karl Marx in 1848.

"The present youth rebellion," he writes, "helping to change the workers of tomorrow" will, along with other factors, make possible "a socialist revolution."

SUCH PAMPHLETEERING is hooted at by one political scientist in a major Eastern university, whose scholarship and reputation as a liberal are well known.

"Ollman has no status within the profession, but is a pure and simple activist," he said. Would he say this publicly? "No chance of it. Our academic culture does not permit the raising of such questions."

"Such questions" would include these: what is the true measurement of Ollman's scholarship? Does he intend to use the classroom for indoctrination? Will he indeed be followed by other Marxist professors? Could the department in time be closed to non-Marxists, following the tendency at several English universities?

Even if "such questions" cannot be raised by the faculty, they certainly should not be raised by politicians.

Here are the makings of an internal crisis which, to protect its integrity and true academic freedom, academia itself must resolve.

Loud And Clear...

HOO BOY! THEY are going to be talking about this one for a long time.

"This one" in this case is the election, local, area and state. There were enough surprises to go around, and they just about did...

State Atty. Gen. John Hill's upset of Gov. Dolph Briscoe...Sen. Kent Hance's lopsided win over the Rev. Morris Sheats in the Demo race for Cong. George Mahon's job...

E. L. Short's late surge for a runoff spot against Don Workman, who ran strong in the 28th District Senate contest. And that "message" the voters sent in John Montford's resounding defeat of Dist. Atty. Alton Griffin.

In fact, about the only race which went according to expectation, was George Bush winding up in a runoff against Jim Reese in the 19th District Congressional tussle.

WHAT DOES IT all mean? Well, this is the week for second guessing. And since anybody can get into the act, we have a few opinions.

First, we would have to say we don't understand the voters, particularly in regards to the Governor's race. And that includes those in Lubbock County as well as across the state.

Repeatedly we have listened to the citizens complain about the high cost of government, about how politicians promise special interest groups the moon to get elected, and how most of them feel things are pretty good in Texas.

So, what happens? The voters opted for a candidate whose campaign pledges, if enacted, can't help but cost millions more, whose appeal in part was directed at the teachers' lobby and whose main pitch was you shouldn't trust a man who has done a good job for six years to try to keep doing it for four more.

There is no question but that Hill's "subtle" needling on the 10-year term issue hurt Briscoe. That and Hill's ability to escape being pined with the "extra tax" tag. It will be interesting to see how Hill handles GOP nominee Bill Clements. It won't be as easy as he seems to think.

THE FACT that Hance was able to dispose of the Rev. Sheats' bid for a jump into politics was not a surprise. But, the margin of victory was.

One could offer all sorts of reasons. However, basically, as a friend said, half in jest, "It all goes to prove people still don't think you should mix religion and politics."

That was a point, of course, as was the talk that "other denominations" would vote against Sheats. But, the main factor was that Hance was able to avoid making some of the mistakes that the novice Sheats inadvertently fell into. Plus the fact Sheats' campaign peaked way back there and then went downhill.

George Bush's impressive showing in the three-man GOP showdown for the right to meet Hance was no fluke. He had come on strong and will give Jim Reese a run for his money. In this case, we think those controversial letters hurt Reese, and will continue to do so.

THE HOTTEST RACE, of course, other than the Governor's donnybrook, was that cliff-hanger for the State Senate in the 28th District.

Don Workman's strong showing as the leader in the five-man field was not unexpected, although his lead was somewhat of a surprise.

His runoff foe, if you watched the local moon picture machines, apparently was going to be Delwin Jones. But, late in the night, the hand-counted ballots from down south, in E. L. Short Country, came in and both Delwin's and Moe Turner's dreams turned to ashes just after midnight.

That one will be chewed over for a long time.

Workman, who eschewed a race for Congress to run for the State Senate, came off as the knight in shining armor to a lot of people. Significantly, it was he and Short who did not get embroiled in the name-calling and bitter charges which marked the fading stages of the campaign for the other three.

ONE CAN MAKE a case for the attitude of many voters of "a plague on all three houses."

But, it isn't that simple. Actually, Workman has built a strong base which cuts across all lines, conservative, middle of the road and moderate.

Short has a strong farm following. Delwin Jones came off as a man who had sought office too many times. Jesse George was pointed as a man who loved his district so much he had stayed away 10 years. And although Moe Turner came off as a knowledgeable, tough man in the clinches, he found himself embroiled in controversy, not of his making, similar to that which had marked his tenure as Lubbock mayor.

It all came down to what we regarded as a late "cheap shot" by Jones at Turner, with George looking on. As a person who has always felt both sides should have their say, we felt Delwin made a mistake, a point with which he now agrees.

As we told Delwin, one could have needed him with a remark that he woke up for two years in Austin thinking GM meant Gus Mutscher instead of General Motors! For whatever it's worth, he agreed and was able to laugh about it.

WHAT HAPPENED in that District Attorney's race was no laughing matter.

The best way to sum up John Montford's second-try effort against incumbent Alton Griffin was "it was murder." And there ain't gonna be no charges in this case.

Seriously, as we interpret that one, the voters were voicing their extreme displeasure with Lubbock's high crime rate. Whether fair or not, Griffin was the handy guy to "lay it on." And that the voters did.

But Alton doesn't deserve "the whole load."

We hope the judges who had no opposition, the Police Chief who isn't elected and any and all others who are involved in fighting crime got "the message..."

It was there—loud and clear!

Berkowitz Awaits Multiple Sentencing

DAVID BERKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Confessed Son of Sam killer David Berkowitz was back in an 8-by-12-foot psychiatric cell Tuesday awaiting multiple sentencing for six .44-caliber slayings that could cost him no more than 30 years in prison, or five years per victim.

"I direct that he be remanded to Kings County Hospital," said Justice Joseph Coros of Brooklyn's Supreme Court as he accepted the first of Berkowitz's six guilty pleas Monday.

Since shortly after his arrest last Aug. 10, the 24-year-old ex-infantryman and postal clerk has been lodged on the sixth floor of the hospital's psychiatric ward.

In November, when he asked for a "change of view," he was moved to his current room. Its doors and windows are covered by steel mesh. The pudgy Berkowitz is taken out of his cell to watch television in a recreation room three times a day, one hour at a time, with only guards as companions.

He is said to eat well and sleep well, and one corrections officer reported: "He gets thousands of letters. They send him sweaters, candy, even money."

Justice Corso and justices from Queens and the Bronx who took part in Berkowitz's three-plea to the Son of Sam murders in the three counties scheduled sentencing for May 22.

The maximum penalty for murder is 25 years to life. Assuming he gets six such terms and one or more of them are consecutive, the most he would serve before becoming eligible for parole is 30 years.

New insight into Berkowitz's mental state was presented in psychiatric testimony released Monday by Corso. It was transcribed during a final competency hearing last month.

On the basis of that testimony, Corso held Berkowitz capable of understanding the charges against him and of assisting his attorneys in a trial. His sanity at the time of the shootings was not an issue.

Berkowitz made no mention Monday of the demons which he said tormented his soul and drove him out in the night at the command of a reincarnated 6,000-year-old man called "Sam" to take the lives of one long-haired young man and five women. Injured in the various attacks also were seven other persons.

In the competency hearing transcript, a defense psychiatrist, Dr. Martin Lubin, said Berkowitz hoped to exorcise his demons by preaching the gospel to fellow prisoners when he goes to prison. He now feels, the psychiatrist added, that he is "inhabited by Christ."

A court-appointed psychiatrist, Dr. Richard Weidenbacher, testified at the hearing that Berkowitz's born-again

Christianity was a step away from his obsession with demons and an evidence of growing sensitivity to the feelings and wishes of others.

Meanwhile, Fire Commissioner Augustus Beekman pledged an inquiry into revelation at Monday's court session that Berkowitz kept a diary in which meticulously recorded 1,441 fires he claimed to have set from 1974 to shortly before his arrest last year.

Court Okays Extradition Of Joan Little

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York's highest court Tuesday refused to block the extradition of Joan Little, a black fugitive who says she would rather die than return to North Carolina to finish a sentence for burglary.

Miss Little contends her life would be in jeopardy if she were sent back to North Carolina, where she attracted national attention two years ago when she was acquitted of murdering a white jailer who, she said, sexually abused her in her cell.

The state Court of Appeals delayed the effective date of the order until May 19, and a spokesman for her attorney, civil rights activist William Kunstler, said further appeals would be pursued through the federal courts.

After her acquittal on the murder charge, Miss Little escaped Oct. 15 from a North Carolina prison where she was serving seven years for breaking and entering. She was arrested in New York City Dec. 17.

Gov. Hugh Carey, at the request of the North Carolina Gov. James Hunt, signed extradition orders in March, but Kunstler went to court, arguing that if Miss Little were forced to return to North Carolina her constitutional rights would be violated and "she will be subjected to cruel and inhuman treatment by correctional officials of that state."

"Unless ready to interfere with the constitutional mandate and to disregard the applicable federal and state statutes, the courts of this state may not routinely sit in judgment over acts performed by officials in our sister states," the Court of Appeals said in a unanimous opinion.

"Nor may they give sanctuary to a fugitive of another state without compelling cause," the high court said.

In Raleigh, Michael Carmichael, a spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Justice, said the attorney general and the staff attorneys at the department "are very pleased that the Court of Appeals has unanimously upheld the earlier decision of a lower court."

A spokesman for Hunt said the state was not anticipating her immediate return because of the possibility of further appeal.

An aide to Kunstler said possible action could include asking the U.S. District Court in North Carolina or New York to block that state's effort to extradite Miss Little on the same grounds used in the New York court challenge.

Panel Studies Student Loan Default Rate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' guaranteed student loan program faces several alternatives to curb a serious 20-percent default rate, Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said Tuesday.

Mauzy chairs an interim committee which Tuesday heard a progress report on outside study of the problem.

"It's a program that can be handled jointly by the state and federal government and we're trying to find the most economical way," he said.

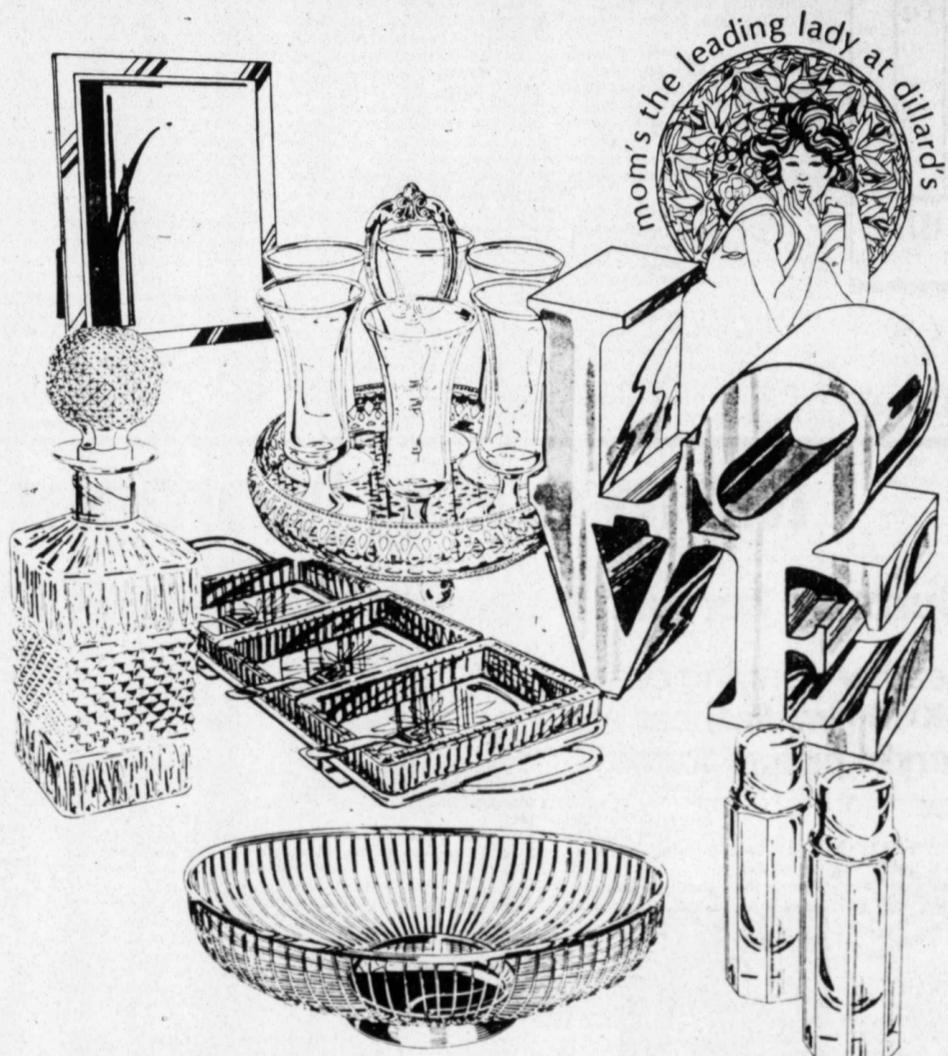

Texas currently has a federally guaranteed student loan program, in which state funds from revenue bonds are loaned at up to 7 percent interest rates to state residents enrolled in state colleges and universities. The federal government guarantees the loan and pays the state when a student fails to repay a loan.

The federal government also offers financial incentives for states to establish their own guaranteed loan program, Bob Campbell, an outside consultant, told the committee.

However, Texas would have to change its loan policies to take advantage of the program, he said.

The state's federally insured Hinson-Hazelwood program would have to begin granting loans to Texas residents attending proprietary and out-of-state schools. Out-of-state residents enrolled in Texas colleges, who also are not eligible currently, would have to be brought into the program.

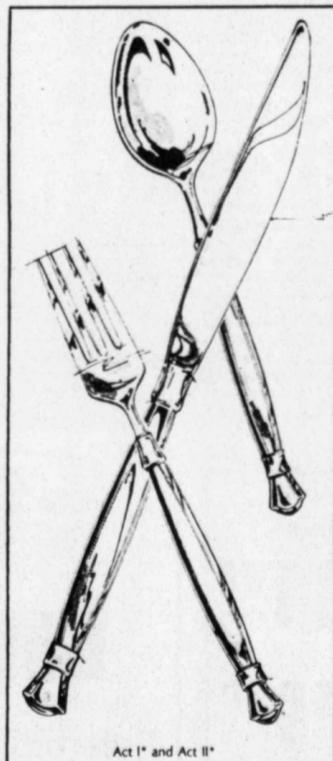

Campbell did not detail how changing the current loan program would help reduce the default rate. He said he would have a final report by July 14.

Nationwide Railroad Expenditures

Rail Failures Plague Carriers

By The Associated Press
A recent rash of serious derailments and other train incidents has prompted federal inspectors to take a harder line toward railroads that have allowed their track to deteriorate.

Defective track has become the most rapidly growing cause of train accidents in the past decade. In some of the accidents, tank cars broke open and deadly gas spread through trackside neighborhoods.

Latest federal statistics show that defective or missing cross-ties, worn or poorly aligned rails and other track-related problems account for 43 percent of train mishaps.

John M. Sullivan, head of the Federal Railroad Administration, told the Senate recently that his agency increasingly has found it must use orders and other legal tools to get railroads to repair tracks.

"Among many railroads, compliance with the regulations is poor," Sullivan said.

Derailments this year in Waverly, Tenn., and Youngstown, Fla., in which 20 persons were killed, have drawn attention to the deterioration of the nation's 200,000 miles of track. And last month, the mayor of Selma, Ala., barred train traffic through his town, claiming rail conditions presented a deadly hazard to his citizens.

Interviews with federal track inspectors reveal an apparent crackdown on prosperous, mostly well-maintained western railroads, as well as bankrupt, deteriorating lines in the Midwest and Northeast.

Railroad spokesmen say they are voluntarily spending hundreds of millions of dollars on repairs, ordering trains to slow down on hazardous stretches, or closing badly deteriorated lines. Some of the voluntary steps are at the insistence of federal inspectors, however.

In recent weeks, FRA inspectors have notified the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad that because of track conditions the government intends to shut down 70 miles of track carrying potentially hazardous freight between Springfield, Ill., and Indianapolis.

On April 27, the FRA issued an order banning hazardous cargo on all northern New Jersey lines of the bankrupt New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad Co. The FRA had found the railroad had done nothing to maintain the tracks since it was declared bankrupt in 1976.

Harold Keeler, an FRA regional track engineer who inspects 49,000 miles of track in California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Colorado, says the Southern Pacific Railroad recently agreed to lower speed limits from 60 to 45 mph between Oakland, Calif., and Ogden, Utah, and between Oakland and Seattle.

Philadelphia's regional track inspector, Joe Zebrowski, says Conrail has voluntarily agreed to post a 10-mph "go-slow" order on a 6½-mile stretch between Camden and Woodbury, N.J., because of "a variety of defects."

Just north of Philadelphia, an 11-mile run of the Amtrak metroliner passenger service has a 10-mph limit. And Amtrak, which is spending $1.75 billion to upgrade its northeast passenger service, has lowered the speed limit from 105 to 60 mph in the vicinity of Odenton, Md., due to track conditions.

Bob Johnson, head of the FRA regional office for Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, New Mexico and Arkansas, says the approximately 30,000 miles of track in his area generally is in good condition compared with other parts of the country.

But Johnson says his office is getting more complaints from local officials worried about hazardous track passing through their towns, and he says his inspections are "getting stricter."

The railroads in Johnson's region and in the West generally are more prosperous and in better repair than those in the East and Midwest. Western railroads also have an economic edge over eastern lines because longer freight hauls are more profitable than the short hauls typical in the East.

But that hasn't necessarily meant eastern trains are more hazardous than western ones. Rail experts say poorer track conditions in the East mean slower runs. Thus, while accidents tend to be more frequent in the East and Midwest, they also tend to be less serious than in the West and South where accidents often occur at higher speeds.

The FRA says there were 4,260 train accidents due to track defects out of a total of 10,248 accidents from all causes in 1976, the latest year for which figures are available. Roughly 500 accidents involved shipments of hazardous materials. Over a nine-year period from 1967 to 1976, track-related accidents increased 100 percent.

Railroads' track problems reflect 25 years of dwindling profits. A draft study on rail safety by the congressional Office of Technology and Assessment estimates the industry has deferred $6.6 billion in track maintenance in that period and needs $14.5 billion "to make necessary capital and track improvement over the next 10 years."

Stan Erickson, a spokesman for the Association of American Railroads, notes a vicious economic circle where, especially for ailing northeastern lines, tracks aged and trains had to slow down, business and industry moved to the South and West, railroads had less freight, made less profit, and had less money to repair track.

The association maintains the industry is spending all it can to repair track, given its poor profits in the 1970s. It says the industry spent $3.47 billion on track and roadbed in 1977, $3.04 billion in 1976, $2.4 billion in 1975, $2.35 billion in 1974, and $2.03 billion in 1973.

Among the more drastic solutions in the industry is that of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad Co., which had losses of $11 million in the first quarter of 1978. It asked for federal permission to abandon 2,000 of its 9,000 miles of track, a total of 31 routes in seven states, because of the high cost of track repair.

The Latin grammarian Terentianus Maurus wrote his treatise "De Litteris, de Syllabis et de Metris," ("On Letters, Syllables and Meters") in the second or third century A.D. The volume, written entirely in verse, was discovered in 1453 at Bobbio and was first printed in 1497.

Interest Rate Hikes Upset Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is displeased with recent moves by the Federal Reserve Board to increase interest rates, President Carter's top domestic adviser indicated Tuesday.

"We haven't asked him to do it and we haven't cheered him on," said Carter aide Stuart Eizenstat about efforts by Chairman G. William Miller to boost interest rates to help control inflation.

The board acted twice in late April to push up short-term interest rates, boosting the so-called federal funds rate from 6½ percent to 7¼ percent.

That is a relatively high level for the federal funds rate and it has put upward pressure on interest rates generally throughout the economy, including interest on home mortgages.

Administration economists fear the increase in home mortgage costs will discourage homebuilding and hurt the overall economy.

Although Eizenstat did not say specifically that the new interest rates were too high, his statements were the strongest indication of unhappiness yet from the administration.

"I share your concern that continued rises in the interest rates threaten the recovery," he told a questioner at a meeting of the finance council of the Democratic National Committee.

Miller was named by Carter as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board earlier this year. It is an independent position, however, and Miller is not a member of the administration.

Eizenstat acknowledged Miller's right to take actions independently of the administration, adding, "I'm not entering into any public battle with Miller or the Fed."

Meanwhile, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, Henry C. Wallich, said in a speech in Switzerland on Monday the nation may be near its full employment level with the 6 percent unemployment rate in April.

"Although it is too early to be sure, the latest data suggest that we are approaching the full employment zone, which I would place in the 5 to 6 percent unemployment rate," said Wallich, who was appointed to the reserve board by former President Richard M. Nixon.

Chicago-Texas Amtrak Route May Shut Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising costs and low ridership have prompted Transportation Secretary Brock Adams to recommend cancellation of Amtrak's Inter-American route from Chicago to Laredo along with six other lines being operated by the federally-subsidized railroad.

The Inter-American connects Chicago with South Texas via Marshall, Longview, Dallas, Fort Worth, Cleburne, McGregor, Temple, Taylor, Austin, San Marcos, San Antonio and Laredo.

Adams's sentiments regarding the Inter-American were echoed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

"In the past I've given strong support to efforts to rejuvenate long-distance passenger train service but we've given it a fair test now and it just isn't working," said Bentsen. "It's time that Congress quits trying to perpetuate a mode of travel that doesn't get much use anymore."

Texas will still have a train to ride, providing, of course, they don't mind boarding at Cleburne, McGregor, Temple, Brenham, Rosenberg, Fort Worth or Houston.

Beverly Silverberg, a transportation department spokesman, said the Lone Star route from Chicago to Houston "is definitely included in the system and we do expect greater ridership on that because there won't be too many alternatives."

Air Force Band Changes Format

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — People shouldn't expect to hear brassy marches or classical music when the Air Force Band of the West comes to their town this year.

Instead, the band stationed at Lackland Air Force Base has split into smaller groups which will be belting out Willie Nelson's foot-stomping country-western sounds and Elton John's rock-and-roll tunes in their recruiting efforts.

The Air Force has abandoned John Philip Sousa's soul-stirring marches played by the entire band and has formed groups called the Country Critters and Dimensions in Blue which have more appeal to the musical tastes of today's teenagers, the object of intense recruiting by all branches of the military under the all-volunteer concept.

"If we were going to stay in business and support Air Force recruiting, we had to adjust to what our audiences wanted," said Maj. Duane Hoff, band commander and director.

Hoff said the adjustment was well calculated, because in 1977, the band gave 896 performances averaging 74.7 a month, 16.4 more than its nearest military band competitor, and topped its 1976 figure by nearly 20 a month.

"This year, I'm shooting for 1,000 performances and in 1979 as many as 1,500," Hoff said. "That we're able to set our goals so high is the result of two things — specialized groups playing specialized music and tremendous support from Lackland and the Air Training Command."

The Air Force Band of the West now is split into specialized groups which play rock, country, middle-of-the-road and classical music.

"Air Force bands had always used all their musicians at once to play music that the audience probably wasn't very interested in," Hoff admits.

The first specialized group, called the Country Critters, was formed in 1972.

"We're located in the heartland of country music and we had some very talented country musicians in the band," Hoff recalls. "It was accepted immediately by our audiences, and we knew we had hit on the way to increase our productivity and exposure without increasing our costs."

The Country Critters' reputation spread quickly in the music world and they soon found themselves playing major events throughout the South and performing with such entertainers as Freddy Fender, Ferlin Husky, Roy Clark and Johnny Rodriguez.

Hoff said performances on local and national radio and television shows, Opryland and major music events such as the Georgia Stone Mountain Fair added to the Critters' exposure and in one year the group played to 2.5 million in live audiences and an estimated radio and television audience of more than 14 million.

Air Force recruiters say the band has been an invaluable aid to recruiting.

"I'm not sure how it works," Hoff said. "Maybe it's this simple: when you've been going wild applauding the Air Force's musicians, it's hard to have an unfavorable impression of the service they're in."

JUAN CORONA

Corona, Lawyers Plan Meeting To Eye Future Legal Strategy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Corona faced an uncertain future Tuesday after a state Court of Appeal upset his 1973 mass murder conviction, assailing his lawyer as more interested in profits from a book than in Corona's welfare.

Alan Exelrod, Corona's present court-appointed lawyer, said his client was "very happy" about the ruling, which had been handed down Monday.

Exelrod said he or his law partner, Michael Mendelson, would meet with Corona within a day or two to plan further legal strategy.

Mendelson said it was premature to discuss the possibility of bail for Corona, who is serving a life sentence at Soledad state prison for his 1973 conviction of the hacking deaths of 25 transient farm workers. Technically, the court's ruling will not be implemented until the court issues a writ to that effect.

In a 71-page opinion, a unanimous three-judge panel reversed the conviction, arguing that attorney Richard Hawk, who then represented Corona, had ignored an insanity defense and "rendered the trial a farce and mockery."

Corona, a labor contractor who recruited transients for the growers in the Feather and Yuba River valleys 100 miles north of San Francisco, had signed over literary rights to his life story and trial to Hawk in lieu of attorney fees.

The court said the evidence of Corona's guilt was "overwhelming" and suggested the only viable defense would have been insanity.

Hawk replied that there was no psychiatric basis for an insanity plea and all profits from the book were used to pay for Corona's defense.

"That case cost me a minimum of $150,000 of my own money," Hawk said, describing the appellate court's opinion as a personal attack that "hurts."

He said Corona, now 41, "insisted he didn't do it, and I believed him, and I still believe him."

In his appeal, Corona accused Hawk of a conflict of interest. The appellate court said Hawk was more interested in "his own pocketbook" than his client's legal rights.

The state attorney general office's now has the option of appealing the reversal to the California Supreme Court. Otherwise, the case goes back to Sutter County, where the bodies were unearthed, for a new trial.

Sutter County District Attorney Ted Hansen and state attorneys declined to discuss their course of action until they have read the unusually long ruling.

Dollar Improves Showing Against Mark

By The Associated Press
The dollar rose against most major currencies in foreign exchange trading in New York and abroad Tuesday and staged a mid-afternoon rally against the West German mark in heavy trading.

The dollar closed in New York at 2.0945 marks, up from 2.0906 on Monday. In Frankfurt the dollar's late rate was 2.0962 marks, down from earlier highs of 2.10075 but up from Monday's 2.0910.

The president of the West German central bank, Otmar Emminger, said Tuesday that strong currency nation's should increase their growth rates to help pull the world out of its economic slump and stabilize the dollar. Some dealers said that may have contributed to the dollar's improved showing against the mark.

The dollar firmest against other major currencies, except the Swiss franc. It closed slightly lower against that currency in both Zurich and New York.

The price of gold rose by exactly $1 in both London and Zurich to close at $173.25 an ounce in London and $173.125 an ounce in Zurich.

In New York, rates for the dollar compared with Monday's close included: 1.9750 Swiss francs, down from 1.9758; 4.6333 French francs, up from 4.6315; 225.20 Japanese yen, up from 225.18. The British pound sterling cost $1.8123, less than its price of $1.8165 on Monday. The Canadian dollar cost 89.03 U.S. cents, more than Monday's price of 88.89.

Dealers in London said Monday night's defeat of a crucial tax bill in the House of Commons weighed on the British currency. The pound finished the regular trading day at $1.81275 Tuesday, down from $1.81765 in the previous session.

Other late dollar rates in trading abroad Tuesday included: Paris—4.64525

French francs, up from 4.6290; Amsterdam—2.2460 guilders, up from 2.23; Milan—870.70 lire, up from 868.95; and Tokyo—225.755 yen from 224.30.

Tech Senior Wins Architectural Prize

David M. Farrell, senior architecture student at Texas Tech University, has been named regional winner of the annually awarded Reynolds Aluminum Prize for architectural students.

The American Institute of Architects (AIA) administers the competition for the "best original architectural design in which creative use of aluminum is an important contributing factor."

Farrell designed an alternative energy source for underwater use. His design incorporated a chemical process within a modular unit for two aluminum power cells.

The first man to use an airplane over Antarctica was Hubert Wilkins in 1928.

The dollar has been falling in value for more than a year, losing about 26 percent in the past year against Japan's currency and about 20 percent against West Germany's. But the U.S. currency had been on the rebound in recent weeks.

As the dollar drops in value in comparison with other currencies, American travelers abroad are able to buy less with their U.S. money. And the cost of foreign goods in the United States is greater.

Civiletti Wins Okay To Justice Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Benjamin R. Civiletti won Senate confirmation as deputy attorney general Tuesday after being urged by his chief opponent to help remove politics from the Justice Department.

The vote was 72-22. The opponents were all Republicans.

Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., led the opposition to President Carter's nomination of Civiletti, a former Baltimore lawyer who joined the Justice Department last year as head of its criminal division.

Wallop said Civiletti, 42, had a "very disappointing" record as an administrator, had not shown a commitment to equal justice and had given testimony at his confirmation hearings that raised questions about his credibility.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, defended both Civiletti and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell.

Eastland said Civiletti was "eminently qualified" and was "the type of man we need in this government." He said the nominee testified "truthfully and factually" before the committee.

Wallop expressed disappointment that Civiletti did not acknowledge shortcomings during his testimony.

Addressing Civiletti rhetorically, he said, "It is not too late to admit you are a human being and to implement changes in the Department of Justice to take politics out and restore the trust of the American people."

The 17 days of hearings on the nomination focused largely on the Carter administration's replacement of David W. Marston, a Republican holdover, as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia. Republicans charged that Marston was fired in response to pressure from Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., who telephoned Carter about the matter last November. They said Eilberg was under investigation by Marston's office at the time.

Eastland told the Senate his committee's hearings showed that "there was no investigation of Eilberg during the time in question."

Wallop said he questioned Civiletti's credibility because of a conflict between his testimony and that of Russell Baker, his former deputy in the criminal division. Baker said in an affidavit that Civiletti told him in November the Eilberg case was "alive." Civiletti said he didn't recall such a meeting.

50-Year-Ago Tech Grads Due Honors

Texas Tech's Class of '28 will "graduate" again after being out of college 50 years when the Ex-Students Association presents each member with a special Golden Anniversary Diploma during its reunion Thursday and Friday.

Highlighting the event will be the introduction of a new honorary organization, The Order of the Golden Double T, for graduates of the classes of '27 and '28 during the Friday luncheon.

The order, an honorary society for those who graduated from Tech 50 or more years ago, will meet annually at the time of Texas Tech's Spring Commencement. Its function will be to initiate the Golden Anniversary Class into membership each year.

Reunion activities will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday with a golf tournament at Meadowbrook Municipal Golf Course in Mackenzie State Park. The Museum at Texas Tech will remain open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. for the ex-students to visit. At 3 p.m., members of the honored classes and their guests will be taken on a guided tour of the Ranching Heritage Center.

W.W. "Windy" Nicklaus of Amarillo, captain of Tech's first football team in 1925, will present three football letter sweaters to the Museum at a 4 p.m. Thursday ceremony in the Main Gallery of the Museum.

Space Age Gadgets Put On Display

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A couple of neat spinoffs from the space program were on display here today — a pocket-size X-ray machine powered by a pen-light battery, and a doctor's miracle bag.

"A nice little gadget," said Dr. Lo I Yin, who stumbled upon his X-ray idea while trying to find a way to make a scientific portrait of the elusive glimmer of gamma rays from the sky.

Dr. Yin, who is from NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., calls it a Lixscope.

It's about the size of a .38 caliber pistol — an apt comparison, since part of the machine is a night scope developed to enable Army sharpshooters to see in the dark.

"It is very simple stuff," he said. "This end contains a radioactive source, Iodine 125. When an object is placed in front of it the rays pass through the object and make an image on a phosphor screen. Then the night-vision intensifier (scope) boosts that image, making it about 100,000 times brighter, and it shows up on the viewing screen as a picture."

Simple, indeed.

The gadget is under examination at Harvard and the National Institute of Health to develop it for practical commercial uses.

Dr. C. K. LaPinta, who was physician to the astronauts at NASA's Space Center in Houston, compiled the space age version of the physician's old black bag, one that will be stowed aboard the space shuttle in case of a medical emergency in orbit.

"They needed an emergency medical bag packed into three cubic feet and 40 pounds," he said.

Civil Service Revision Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Senate committee leaders told President Carter Tuesday that they support the general principles of his civil service revision package and will begin acting on it around May 18.

"We should have civil service reform. It's long overdue," said Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., head of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

"Some of these ideas have been kicking around for 30 years," Ribicoff said. "Generally, I think the committee is sympathetic with trying to work this out."

Ribicoff and other committee members spoke to Carter for half an hour at the White House. Later they gave reporters an optimistic prediction of the civil service legislation's fate.

"I think it's clear the people of this country want reform of the civil service system and reform of the bureaucracy to make it more responsive," Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., head of the civil service subcommittee.

He said his panel will begin taking action May 18, "and I would say it will be reported out within two days of when we begin."

Last month the president met with members of the House civil service committee, generally considered to be less receptive to the legislation, and received assurances that an effort would be made to begin action on the plan by the end of May.

The president says civil service revision is one of his top domestic legislative priorities. His proposals, among other things, would make it easier for bosses to fire federal workers for inefficiency, and would end automatic pay raises for middle-level managers and top federal executives.

Sasser said it is possible the subcommittee will want to modify the president's proposal to end lifetime preference in federal hiring and retention for military veterans, and also may want to give more power to the president's proposed agency to police the civil service system against political firings.

"The veterans preference provision is very much up in the air at this point," Sasser said.

Ribicoff said that "the committee as a whole is very interested in civil service reform" and that the president wants it pushed through as rapidly as possible.

But he also indicated that modifying veterans preference would be "the stickiest part" of the package for the administration to win.

Sen. Charles Percy, ranking Republican on the full governmental affairs committee, said civil service revision "is our highest priority right now."

"I don't think there is any chance of resurrecting it," he said.

"I think we're trying to work this out in a way that is non-partisan, and I think we'll be generally supportive of the efforts of the administration in this regard."

Percy said he sees no serious obstacle to the president's program but stopped short of predicting passage this year. "I don't think anyone can predict what the Congress will do," he said.

War Veteran Surrenders After Siege

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A Vietnam veteran who told police his "mind was messed up" by an explosion held nine persons hostage, wounded one and fired more than 100 shots during a 13 1/2-hour siege that began with a jewelry store robbery, police said.

After it ended at sunrise Tuesday, William John Dwyer Jr., 28, who as recently as January was a patient in a Miami mental hospital, was booked for investigation of robbery, assault with intent to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon, said police Lt. James W. Papst.

Dwyer, carrying his 2-year-old daughter in his arms, walked meekly from a bullet-riddled jewelry store and surrendered to officers who had surrounded the building since 6 p.m. Monday.

Detective Rolo Green said Dwyer told investigators he was unemployed and was on a 100 percent disability military pension because of injuries he suffered when a grenade or bomb exploded near him in Vietnam.

"He said his mind was messed up by the explosion," Green added.

Officers said Dwyer's wife, Sharon, reported he had been in the psychiatric ward of a Miami hospital until January, but the nature of his illness was not disclosed.

Throughout the night, Mrs. Dwyer went between police and her husband, carrying messages and demands.

Dwyer had demanded the police bring him his two children, guarantee him safe passage out of the country and provide him a helicopter, Papst said.

Papst said Mrs. Dwyer took the child, Jessica, to the gunman after the woman assured police that he would not harm the girl.

The drama began when Dwyer allegedly tried to rob the jewelry store. He was trapped when police responded to a silent alarm.

Adoptees Sue Colorado In Roots Quest

DENVER (AP) — Seven adopted persons seeking their natural parents have filed suit challenging as unconstitutional Colorado statutes barring them from access to their original birth certificates, records of their adoptions and other information.

The chief judge of the U.S. District Court, Fred M. Winner, allowed them to use fictitious names in the suit filed Monday.

The action contends that state laws governing the keeping of records in adoption cases violated the rights of the seven persons by denying them equal protection under the law and freedom of choice of association.

It was filed as a class-action suit for all persons in similar situations.

There was no comment from Colorado officials named as defendants. They include Attorney General J.D. MacFarlane, the clerks of several state district courts and various officials of the state departments of social services, health and institutions.

Bridge Jam Catches Motorists Napping

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Rainy days are great for taking naps or sleeping late, but police at the Greater New Orleans Mississippi River Bridge say they'd appreciate it if drivers stuck in traffic would do their snoozing elsewhere.

The long wait to cross the bridge during morning rush hour Tuesday apparently proved just too long for three drivers — they fell asleep.

"One of them, I had to shake him for about 30 seconds to wake him up," said Alan Sparkman, head of the bridge police. "We've had two (fall asleep) once before, but this was the first time we ever had a three-bagger."

"They tell us all sorts of different things, like they were out late last night. Of course, one of the fellows we woke this morning, we're sending him out to take a little test (for driving while intoxicated)," Sparkman said.

Police halt traffic on each entrance to the bridge for several minutes during rush hours to smooth out the flow.

Police Arrest Kiss-Blowing Man After Assault

Lubbock police Tuesday were investigating a wide variety of crimes, ranging from aggravated assault to a bicycle theft.

A 55-year-old woman reported that shortly after she left a drugstore in the 6400 block of University Avenue, a man she had seen in the store followed her to her car.

As she was unlocking her car, the personnel department worker said the man approached her from behind and reached up her dress. She told police she confronted the man, who, after blowing her a kiss, walked toward a 1967 Dodge parked in the store lot.

The woman then went to the office in the same block where she worked and she and a co-worker recorded the license plate number of the Dodge as it was leaving the lot.

A 20-year-old man later was arrested at a business near 17th Street and Avenue K on suspicion of aggravated assault.

Car thieves made off with three rifles Monday night after breaking into two vehicles.

Russell Williams of 3303 60th St. reported that the thieves broke the left window of his pickup truck and took a .22 caliber lever-action rifle and a .20-gauge shotgun from the vehicle. He estimated that the value of the guns and the damage to the truck at $300.

Leigh Burham also reported that thieves took a .12-gauge shotgun and a citizens' band radio from his 1975 Mazda sometime Monday night. The car was parked at Burham's 3306 53rd St. residence.

Entry to the Burham vehicle also was gained by breaking out the left rear window of the car, and the loss and damage was estimated at $319.

Car thieves also hit at Margie Merrell's 1109 E. Kent residence. Mrs. Merrell told police that when her car refused to start Monday morning, she called a neighbor for assistance. They then discovered that the thieves had taken a $35 battery from Mrs. Merrell's 1965 Chevrolet.

Buddy Gibson reported that thieves made take the citizens' band radio and antenna from his car while it was parked at 1334 E. 19th St. Monday night. The loss was valued at $150.

Burglars took several items from Ovaldo Cavacos' purse that she left in the living room of her 1602 Ave. C apartment Monday night.

Missing items included a ladies' digital watch, $50 in cash and $24 in food stamps. Mrs. Cavacos told police she had been home, but heard nothing during the night.

Matthew Blaylock's $125 bicycle was taken from in front of his 3208 55th St. residence Monday night.

Investigations of a rash of various other property crimes also kept police busy Tuesday.

Barbara Joyce Fortenberry of 3605-D Paris Ave. complained that whoever pried her front door Monday made off with $670 worth of goods, including a television set and stereo.

Officers who were told a stereo was found in an eastside alley Monday, later learned the property had been taken from a nearby residence in a break-in.

John Seaborn Crowley said the stereo, as well as a .38-caliber revolver, was stolen from his 1701 E. Cornell St. home earlier that same day. Reports indicated the firearm still was missing.

David Lowell Standlee, owner of South Plains International Trucks, reported the recent loss of three camshalls, together valued at $748.50, from a warehouse near the main building at 301 E. 34th St. Reportedly, there was no sign of forced entry.

According to Kenneth Ray Miller of 602 38th St., someone stole $450 worth of tools from his locked pickup late Sunday or early Monday.

Rosa Garcia of 3112 Auburn St. told police someone entered through an unlocked door and took a stereo system from her home about 11 a.m. Monday.

Television sets reportedly were taken from the homes of Maria Davis of 107 N.

Detroit Ave. between 7:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Monday and of Jewell Morrow of 408 Ave. Q between the middle of April and Monday.

Dorothy Allison Collins of 2618 28th St. told officers someone removed a lawn tiller from a locked storage shed in her yard sometime between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday.

Officers may be closer to catching a burglar who entered Marva Garwood's apartment complex, though. She told police she watched a man enter the Wilshire Apartments at 1922 5th St. about midnight Sunday and remove a $100 double bed.

Hunt Elementary School principal Dennis Hargrove reported the theft of calculators and headphones valued at $219.50 from the school at 415 N. Ivory Ave. between 5 p.m. Friday and 6:30 a.m. Monday.

H.M. Bourgeois of Executive Parks at 3108 Vicksburg told police someone made off with about $100 worth of wood from a construction site there about 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Leonard O'Neal Jordan, 46, of 1709 E. 13th St., received an eight-year probation sentence after pleading guilty to an involuntary manslaughter charge.

Jordan had been charged as the result of a Sept. 4, 1976, accident which killed pedestrian Amelita Botello. Mrs. Botello, 43, of 1512 E. 13th St. was struck and killed by a car southbound on Quirt Avenue as she was crossing the street between East 13th and East 14th Streets.

The defendant said in a statement that he was intoxicated and that his car struck the victim through accident and mistake.

Man Sentenced In Truck Theft

A man accused of stealing a tractor-trailer from a Texas Avenue parking lot and taking it on a wild ride across West Texas was assessed a six-year prison term Tuesday after pleading guilty to theft.

The punishment was meted out to Charles Edward Gibbs, 19, who formerly resided at 2910 Ave. H.

The guilty plea was among 33 Tuesday 1917 after graduating from Baylor University. She taught and also coached the first girls basketball team in Tulia High School. She also taught in Plainview before marrying Bun Hale Aug. 20, 1925 in Granger and then moved to Tulia. He died Nov. 14, 1975.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church and the Sorosis Study Club.

Survivors include several nephews and nieces.

rig negotiated a roadblock and finally was halted when it crashed into a roadblock formed by a line of trucks near Abilene.

Gibbs sustained minor injuries in the smashup and his companion was hospitalized with a fractured wrist and multiple lacerations.

A statement was introduced into evidence Tuesday in which Gibbs admitted being the driver of the truck.

Also Tuesday, Dwight Shaw, 22, of Amarillo, was assessed a seven-year penalty term after pleading guilty to aggravated robbery.

Shaw admitted guilt in connection with the May 14, 1977, holdup of a convenience store at 704 E. Broadway.

The defendant said in a statement that he did not actually enter the store with a companion, but that he did receive $5 of the loot.

ed $150 was taken by a bandit who wore a red scarf over his face.

Leonard O'Neal Jordan, 46, of 1709 E. 13th St., received an eight-year probation sentence after pleading guilty to an involuntary manslaughter charge.

Jordan had been charged as the result of a Sept. 4, 1976, accident which killed pedestrian Amelita Botello. Mrs. Botello, 43, of 1512 E. 13th St. was struck and killed by a car southbound on Quirt Avenue as she was crossing the street between East 13th and East 14th Streets.

Nathan Collie Wins Tech Biology Award

Nathan Collie, recent graduate of Texas Tech University and native of Abilene, has been presented the Earl D. Camp Award for outstanding achievement in the field of biology.

The award, based on scholarship and faculty evaluation, was established in 1971 when Earl D. Camp retired as chairman of the department of biology to resume a professorship in the department.

A cash award of $100 also was presented to Collie.

Collie graduated in December 1977, with a Bachelor of Science in zoology and an overall grade point average of 4.0. Throughout his college career Collie has conducted research in comparative endocrinology, the study of hormones.

His study has taken him to the University of California, Berkeley in the summer of 1971, and to the Columbia University of Medicine, in the summer of 1977, to do research in comparative endocrinology.

News Brief

Janice Dyer, 24, of 3708 32nd St. was in serious critical condition this morning in St. Mary's Hospital, and her four-year-old twin sons, Heath and Keith, remained in serious condition from burns and smoke inhalation. The three were rescued by firemen Monday morning from a bedroom of their burning home. Fire Marshal A.C. Black said the blaze apparently started when a cigarette ignited a couch in the living room.

Gulf Oil Accused Of Uranium Price Conspiracy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The government accused Gulf Oil Corp. on Tuesday of conspiring to fix uranium prices, and the oil company in turn sued a nuclear power competitor for allegedly trying to monopolize the industry.

Gulf's suit, filed in federal court in Chicago, said Westinghouse Electric Corp. made false claims about its ability to deliver uranium in order to increase power plant sales and monopolize its uranium business.

Gulf's action is a countersuit to one filed earlier by Westinghouse against Gulf and other uranium producers.

The Justice Department charged that Gulf violated antitrust laws as a member of an international uranium producers' cartel that operated between 1971 and 1974.

Gulf had previously acknowledged participation in the Uranium Marketing Research Organization, but denied any wrongdoing.

U.S. Attorney Blair Griffith said the complaint, which was filed in Pittsburgh, was the result of an 18-month federal grand jury investigation in Washington, D.C.

It did not name individual defendants or Gulf subsidiaries. If convicted, Gulf faces up to $50,000 in fines, Griffith said. Among the alleged misdemeanor acts was the cartel's refusal to sell uranium to Westinghouse as a middleman for U.S. and foreign utilities.

The government charged that the cartel agreed to charge all middlemen "discriminatorily high prices," but refused to sell to Westinghouse "to eliminate it as a competitor."

Westinghouse filed suit against Gulf and 28 other U.S. and foreign uranium producers in 1976 for allegedly conspiring to fix prices and boycott Westinghouse.

The government action supported its claim, Westinghouse said, but Gulf charged the misdemeanor allegation was "completely unfounded."

Gulf said its Gulf Minerals Canada Ltd. subsidiary joined the cartel at the Canadian government's instruction. Canada was seeking to protect its uranium industry from a world price decline.

Gulf's suit charged Westinghouse "made commercially unmatchable offers of uranium" to sell nuclear power facilities.

The suit claimed Westinghouse's actions destroyed competition in the industry. Gulf said it is seeking damages "believed to be in the hundreds of millions of dollars."

A Westinghouse spokesman said his company considers the Gulf claim "merely an effort to divert attention from its initial lawsuit."

Women In Services Higher In Absences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enlisted women in the Army and Air Force missed about three times as many hours from duty as enlisted men during a six-month period last year, according to a Pentagon sample released Tuesday.

However, the Pentagon study found that Navy enlisted men lost more time than women during the same period from July to December 1977, partly because more men were confined after returning from desertions.

The study did not include Marine Corps figures, but officials said the Marines found no apparent major differences between "lost time" for men and women.

A summary of the study showed that Army women lost an average of 9.5 hours a month compared with 3.31 hours for men in the sample. Air Force women lost 4.66 hours a month while airmen lost 1.3 hours.

In the Navy, men were reported to have lost 4.96 hours a month compared to 3.85 for the women studied.

The chief reasons given for absences by women were illness, injury and pregnancy. The chief reasons for men were illness, injury and, in the Navy, confinement after return from desertion.

The Navy has experienced rising desertion rates among crewmen assigned to ships. However, the desertion rate is less among women, apparently because they are barred from combat vessels.

The study was ordered by the Pentagon's manpower office a year ago and stipulated that it should be based on "a representative sample of men and women."

However, in releasing the results in response to a request, the Pentagon appeared to downgrade their significance, saying the results "are based on samples which were not scientifically selected."

"Thus, the results do not necessarily represent statistically valid average lost times for all men and women in each service," the Defense Department said.

The Pentagon statement added that the Army sample amounted to four percent, the Air Force seven percent, and the Navy "variable" percentages which it did not provide.

There was no explanation as to why the samples were not scientifically selected in view of the order last May for a "representative sample."

In another seeming effort to downplay the results, officials stressed that the lost time represented only a small part of the 168 duty hours in a working month.

Taos Reports Great Skiing Conditions

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — Taos Ski Valley officials say skiing at the resort is as good or better than it was all winter.

Resort operator Ernie Blake said the ski area is preparing for the Taos "Racing In The Sun" ski and racing school planned to start Saturday.

Blake said there is well over 100 inches of snow at Kachina Basin. He said more than 30 inches was received during last week's storm. He said the ski valley is not open to the public but will open for the one-week ski and racing school if enough people register by Wednesday.

The school is for very advanced skiers only.

OFF TO JAIL — A Jefferson County sheriff's deputy escorts ex-Pentagon Analyst Daniel Ellsberg off to jail, and other anti-nuclear demonstrators follow, after the protestors allegedly blocked the path of a train into the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant. ## Ellsberg, Protestors Freed After Jail Stay GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg and eight other protestors, arrested for the second time for demonstrating at the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant, were released from jail Tuesday.

The nine were among 28 persons arrested in two separate incidents Monday when they sat on railroad tracks leading into the facility, which manufactures components for nuclear weapons. All 28 were charged with criminal trespass and obstruction of a right-of-way.

Seventeen of those arrested were released without bond, but 11 were jailed overnight because they had been arrested on similar charges last Friday. One of those jailed was a juvenile and one of the adults refused to appear at a bond hearing, the Jefferson County sheriff's office said.

At the bond hearing Tuesday, a personal recognizance bond of $200 each was set and the nine adults were released. The tenth protestor, whom officers were trying to identify, was jailed in lieu of $200 cash or surety bond.

The protest began April 29, following a rally at Rocky Flats which drew about 5,000 persons. The demonstrators called for conversion of the plant to a non-weapons manufacturing facility.

One group camped out along railroad tracks leading to the plant six days last week and was removed by deputies Friday. About 35 demonstrators returned to the plant Sunday.

The protestors have said they want to halt any rail shipments of radioactive material to the plant. A spokesman for Rockwell International, which operates the facility, has said that radioactive shipments come to the plant by truck rather than train.

About 20 sheriff's deputies rode on a train that entered the plant Monday and arrested the protestors when they sat down on the tracks. When the train left the plant, four hours later, deputies arrested another group of demonstrators.

Chileans Mar Mondale Visit To New Zealand

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (UPI) — Chilean refugees Tuesday screamed insults at Vice President Walter Mondale on the last stop of his Asian diplomatic tour.

Mondale, arriving from Canberra, Australia, met for two hours with New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon and reaffirmed the Carter administration's commitment to the security of the region.

He was confronted by Chilean demonstrators on his way into Wellington City Hall for talks with Mayor Michael Fowler.

"What about Allende?" they screamed. Some shouted insults in Spanish and a few of the Chileans — unchecked by police — pushed to within a few yards of the vice president.

New Zealand reporters said the refugees had been admitted to the country following the 1973 coup in Chile that overthrew the late Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Demonstrators also greeted Mondale, his wife Joan and other members of his party on their arrival in Wellington.

ence in New Zealand.

Police at City Hall said they at first thought the protestors were members of New Zealand's opposition Labor Party that was holding a conference in the building's auditorium and for that reason did not attempt to eject them.

Calling themselves the "July 4 Movement," they yelled "Mondale go home!" and passed out pamphlets proclaiming their opposition to any foreign interfer-

NARROW ESCAPE—Alice Arney of Tacoma, Wash., and her cousin, Les Van Dyke, left, a missionary from Portland, Ore., stand next to shattered windows of the luxurious Montclair hotel, 80 miles from Salisbury, Tuesday. ## Guerrillas Kill Two Whites In Rhodesia JULIASDALE, Rhodesia (AP) — Two black guerrillas burst into the dining room of a luxurious mountain hotel and sprayed guests with automatic rifle fire, killing two white Rhodesian women and wounding three other whites, including an American.

One guest at the Montclair Hotel was slain in the Monday night attack while eating supper. The second victim, a hotel employee, was killed near the door, officials say.

The wounded American was identified as Minnie Bolin, 77, of Apache Junction, Ariz. She suffered superficial head injuries from flying glass when a grenade exploded outside the hotel's terrace windows, and was reported in good condition at a hospital in Umtali.

Les Dyke, 63, his wife Marjorie, 56, missionaries from Portland, Ore., and a cousin, Alice Arney, 64, Tacoma, Wash., had stopped briefly to talk with a staff member and missed the worst of the raid.

"If we hadn't stopped to talk we'd have been the ones shot," Dyke said. "It was chaos," said Dyke, who has spent 14 years in Rhodesia with the Church of Christ. "All of us were trying to get under the same tables. I heard another woman crying out under another table. I crawled over. She was shot in the shoulder, but wasn't bleeding drastically."

I-27 Route Proposals Narrowed

Avenues C and D, swing behind the post office and would follow Avenue H one block to the east.

The route is one of the shorter routes at 6.3 miles and is the cheapest route at $118.7 million.

A variation on this route would swing west of Sanders Elementary, then south behind the Santa Fe depot, then follow Avenue H on the west. The route would cost $123.5 million.

Although the routes bypassing Sanders are more costly, such routes could save approximately a year in additional study time.

District Engineer George C. Wall Jr. estimated another six months would be required "to make a full investigation of the corridor and write an environmental statement" as well as another six months to receive approval of the statement.

At that time, Wall said, another public hearing will be held on two or three routes and then the route will be chosen.

"It probably will be three years or a little better before the acquisition of any right of way," Wall said.

Resolutions endorsing the corridor between Ave A and H were presented by city councilman Alan Henry on behalf of the city council, county commissioner Edgar Chance on behalf of the commissioner's court and Kenneth May on behalf of the Highway, Streets and Roads Committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

School Chief Gets $90,000 Settlement

SUNDOWN (Special) — Controversial schools superintendent Dean King resigned his position here late Tuesday in an emergency school board session after trustees agreed to pay him $90,000 for the remaining three years of his contract.

King, a target of criticism from some Sundown residents because of his stance on several personnel issues, sat calmly while Lubbock attorney Travis Shelton read a prepared statement on behalf of King and the board that outlined terms of the agreement.

After meeting for almost an hour in an executive session, trustees unanimously approved the resolution giving King $90,000 in 36 payments along with retirement benefits. King's resignation was effective immediately.

Board president Jim Hogue said the payment was for three years of a contract approved by the board in March. He said the current high school principal would serve in the superintendent's capacity until a replacement is secured.

In Shelton's prepared statement, he told about 100 persons present that the board found "no evidence of any dishonesty, wrongdoing, mismanagement of funds or anything that would reflect upon the character and integrity of Dean King."

Homosexuals Lose In Kansas Election

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A city ordinance prohibiting discrimination against homosexuals was repealed overwhelmingly Tuesday, following a pattern of similar referendums in St. Paul, Minn., and Miami.

With 121 of 170 precincts counted, 29,402 votes were in favor of repeal and 6,153 supported retaining the 7-month-old ordinance.

The outcome came as no surprise to leaders on both sides of the issue. A group headed by local ministers that vigorously fought the ordinance had predicted the law would be repealed by a 2-1 margin.

Leaders of the city's gay community planned victory celebrations Tuesday night — regardless of the vote — believing their campaign and the publicity surrounding it enhanced the self-image of homosexuals in Wichita.

The law in question was Ordinance No. 35-242, which prohibits discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations based on "sexual or affectional preference."

Amnesty Opposed For Illegal Aliens

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Portions of the administration-backed illegal alien bill drew fire from a Texas congressman, conservationists, farmers and farmworkers Tuesday during testimony before a Senate subcommittee.

Rep. Richard C. White, a Democrat from El Paso whose district shares a 352-mile border with Mexico, voiced "total opposition to the so-called amnesty provisions" of the bill.

The administration bill, sponsored in the Senate by James Eastland, D-Miss., Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., calls for amnesty to illegals in this country since 1970 and up to Jan. 1, 1977.

Procedure Questioned
"How is it logically going to be possible to sort out from the millions of illegal entries we all agree are among us those who have been here since 1970, and those who have been here since before January of 1977?" asked White.

"There is a basic unfairness and poor principle to reward the lawbreaker while flaunting the law abider. The promise of amnesty has brought a flood of would-be entrants to the border, overburdening the border facilities."

White said he agreed with the bill's provision to penalize employers who hire illegal aliens but added, "I think, however, that a tough administrative fining procedure would be preferable to civil penalties."

Recalling the situation that developed last summer in Presidio, Tex., when the president intervened to allow Texas farmers to hire laborers from across the border, White stressed that a "Bracero-like program" should be included in any illegal alien legislation. The Bracero program allowed Mexican laborers to work in this country legally and return to Mexico after their job was finished.

"We are already going through the same traumatic experience again this year in Presidio," continued White. "Domestic labor is not available, and President Carter clearly indicated last year that he would not intervene again, so we are frantically trying to devise another miracle solution."

Presidio "Situation"
The Presidio "situation" was used as an example of American farmers who "would welcome an excuse not to hire U.S. farmworkers" by Thomas Jones, a spokesman for the National Association of Farmworker Organizations.

"Last year in Presidio, over 800 foreign workers were imported to pick onions while domestic workers who had already been recruited and given contracts were refused the right to work in these jobs," added Jones.

As to instituting another Bracero-like program, Jones said such laborers "offer the same advantage of being easily exploited as do undocumented workers, but they are hired with federal approval."

Farmers employ illegals, however, because "they are willing to work and have the motivation to improve themselves and their families and because farmers need workers as nature dictates — not when some bureaucrat in Washington decides that workers are not available some place in the country to do the work," countered C.H. Fields, a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Fields said his group favored the amnesty proposal but added: "It seems to us that it should be the responsibility of the Social Security Administration to make sure that social security cards are valid."

"We realize that it will be expensive to initiate a new and responsible procedure for the issuance of social security cards, but if HEW could manage to reduce the $7 billion in fraudulent benefits now paid out under various public assistance programs, perhaps some of the savings could

Secret Vote Held Invalid By Hill

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General John Hill said Tuesday the Texas Open Meetings Law prohibits secret ballots at public government meetings.

Hill said Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, had raised the question by indicating that school trustees had met recently in an open session and elected one of its officers by secret ballot.

be devoted to carrying out the law with regard to the proper issuance of social security cards."

Fields also said the bill's provision calling for civil penalties against employers who hire illegals should be clarified. But Anthony Wayne Smith, president of the National Parks and Conservation Association, said that portion of the bill should be strengthened to include penalties calling for imprisonment, not "merely fines."

Conservationists wish to stem the flow of illegal aliens, expressed Smith, because "it is the illegal alien who may well defeat all our efforts at the solution of our environmental problems in America."

Funds Loss Threatens Integrated Schools

State Compensatory Education funds for the 1978-79 term.

Warner Sims, the district's director of special projects, was asked at the hearing how Title I services would be affected by the integration plan approved Monday by federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

"We don't know at this point," Sims said. "We'll go in with an application just like there hasn't been an integration plan."

He said the district then will consult with TEA about adjusting the Title I program to correspond to court-ordered changes in the school system.

The Title I program this year is serving 18 elementary schools — Arnett, Bean, Bozeman, Dupre, Harwell, Hunt, Iles, Jackson, McWhorter, Mahon, Martin, Parkway, Posey, Sanders, Tubbs, Wheatley, Wolffarth and Wright. The program involves 47 reading teachers, 29 math teachers and various support personnel, all "above and beyond the local effort," Sims said.

Proposing Expansion

In next year's application, the district proposes expanding the program to Southeast and Guadalupe elementaries and adding two reading teachers, he said.

The problem is that with the implementation of the district's integration plan, Southeast and Sanders schools would be closed. Also, Iles, Guadalupe, Mahon, Martin, Posey and Wheatley will be sending half the ir students to non-Title I schools, and receiving substantial numbers of non-Title I students.

Except for Southeast and Sanders, the Title I program still will be available at the designated schools even though some campuses won't have as many Title I students as before.

This is because "a school qualifies as a Title I school on the basis of the students living in the school's attendance area" — not simply according to the students assigned to that campus, Irons said.

He said students from non-Title I areas who are assigned to a Title I school for integration reasons will be eligible for Title I services. Like the students actually living in the school's attendance zone, they must demonstrate a need for extra academic help before the services are available to them.

Shift Permission Sought

Irons wants to get permission to move Title I teachers to "sister schools" along with their Title I students so that the children can continue to benefit from the program.

The State Compensatory Education program, which is similar to Title I at the secondary level, also is faced with a problem.

The district's grant application under that program next year seeks $317,000 for 28 extra teachers at Lubbock, Dunbar and Estacado high schools and Struggs.

essential" and that rejection of the Saudi Arabian deal would have a long-term adverse effect on the stability of the area and prospects for peace.

"I think its bound to have an effect even though they will not take it out in the form of blackmail or anything like that," he said.

There have been widespread complaints in Congress that the timing of the sales creates a roadblock to progress in peace negotiations.

O.L. Slaton, Alderson, Thompson and Matthews junior highs.

Under the integration plan, however, Struggs would be discontinued as a junior high, with its students dispersed to O.L. Slaton, Atkins and Hutchinson junior high schools.

School officials don't know whether the State Compensatory Education funds can be used at Atkins and Hutchinson to serve Struggs students assigned there.

Both the Title I and State Compensatory Education programs have proved to be extremely successful in raising the achievement levels of students who had slipped behind academically, school officials say.

New Manhunt Opens For Moro Killers

kidnapped nearly two months ago by a gang of armed extremists."

Thousands of police mounted a massive new manhunt for the killers who abducted Moro on March 16, slaying his five police bodyguards. The terrorists later issued a statement, saying he had been sentenced to death by a "people's court" for the "anti-proletarian" policies of the Christian Democrats — rulers of Italy for three decades.

The body, clad in the pin-striped shirt, dark blue suit, blue socks and black shoes Moro wore when abducted, was wrapped in a blue overcoat and red blanket.

It was hunched over in the luggage space behind the rear seat of the Renault hatchback abandoned on Via Michelangelo Caetani, a 200-yard-long street in one of Rome's busiest districts.

Moro's hands and feet were chained, his eyes half closed. The head rested on a spare tire. His watch and a bracelet were in a plastic bag beside the body.

Police said 11 bullets had been fired in a 5-inch-wide circle into Moro's chest, apparently within 24 hours before the body was found. They said the killers possibly used a submachine pistol with a silencer. Earlier reports had said the victim had been shot in the head.

An infected wound of the buttocks indicated Moro was wounded at the time he was kidnapped, police reported.

There were bullet holes in Moro's shirt and undershirt but not in his jacket. Police said the jacket apparently was put on and the hands chained after the murder.

They theorized Moro may have been shot in the gang's hideout and the body then dragged to the car. Sand and bits of grass were found in his trouser cuffs and on his socks. The shoes were dusted clean.

Police found the body after a bugging device monitored an anonymous call to Moro's office saying it was in a red car on Via Michelangelo Caetani. At about the same time, another call to a police emergency number said a bomb had been placed in a car on a nearby street.

Explosives experts examined the Renault, ripping out the ignition cables before opening the rear hatch and finding the body.

Firemen who saw the body said the face was extremely pale with several days' growth of beard, and the 5-foot-11 frame had lost considerable weight.

A Roman Catholic priest administered last rites and hundreds of persons, sullen and weeping, gathered at the scene of the grim discovery, many with memorial bouquets of spring flowers.

Sobbing Crowds Ask Death For Moro Killers

ROME (AP) — "Madonna Mia," wept a housewife when she learned of Aldo Moro's death at the hands of terrorist kidnapers. "They are assassins, assassins. They should all be shot to death."

Sirens screamed, sobbing crowds gathered on street corners and others sought solace in nearby churches Tuesday when word spread throughout Italy that Moro's bullet-ridden body, his feet chained, had been found on the floor of a stolen Renault parked in the heart of Rome.

"Bastards, bastards," a woman cried. "He suffered so much."

Pope Paul VI went to pray in his private chapel. Italy's major labor unions called an eight-hour work stoppage Tuesday. In Milan, workers planned a massive rally in Cathedral Square.

Premier Giulio Andreotti called an emergency Cabinet session and President Giovanni Leone scheduled an address to the nation. Leaders of the Italian Communist Party met in the afternoon.

"This is a crime of sadist ferocity," declared Giancarlo Pajetta, a top Communist official as he entered the meeting.

Italian and party flags were immediately lowered to half staff at Christian Democrat headquarters.

The groundswell of feeling surrounding Moro's tragic death recalled the American reaction to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. As president of the ruling Christian Democrat Party and five-time premier, Moro was one of Italy's best known public figures.

"We need to bring back the death sentence," said one emotionally wrought man. Capital punishment was abolished after World War II.

Silent and sullen crowds milled around the narrow cobblestoned Via Michelangelo Caetani where the maroon car bearing Rome license plates N57686 was abandoned between Communist Party headquarters and Christian Democrat headquarters with Moro's body slumped in back.

"Maybe it's not him," said one onlooker, remembering the previous hoaxes surrounding the Red Brigades' threat to carry out a death sentence against Moro after his conviction at a "people's trial."

"I can't believe they have killed him."

But the blue-jacketed, machine-gun-toting Carabinieri, Italy's national policemen, had the answer on their silent, stonelike faces.

Agents blocked off the area and held back journalists and mourners. Police cars with sirens blaring sped through the streets.

Workers abruptly left their lunches, most not bothering to return to work. Old and young, men and women, filed into neighborhood churches for prayer. They made no attempt to hide their tears.

Thousands gathered on the tree-shaded street outside Moro's apartment in the Monte Mario section of Rome near where the politician was kidnapped on March 16 and his five bodyguards were killed.

to negotiate for Moro's release, to avoid any "public demonstration or ceremony or speech" to mourn his assassination.

Eleanora Moro and her three daughters and son viewed the body for five minutes at the morgue of the university where Moro had taught law.

Benigno Zaccagnini, who now assumes leadership of Italy's ruling party, called on Italians to sponsor "absolutely silent marches" to war monuments and lay wreaths of flowers bearing Moro's name.

Before it was clear that Moro had been killed, the kidnapping itself united Italians more than at any time since the end of World War II.

Throughout the 54-day ordeal, support was divided between sympathy for Moro's family and agreement with the government's hard-line stand as well as demands for harsher penalties against extremists. But the real test of the government's policy will come May 16 when almost 4 million voters go to the polls for local elections.

Moro Led Quiet, Religious Life

ROME (AP) — A deeply religious man once described as "almost oriental in character," Aldo Moro was a distant figure to most Italians but a formidable vote-getter when he stumped the small towns he knew so well as a boy growing up in southeastern Italy.

His insight and a quiet gift for compromise catapulted the 61-year-old law professor into a dominant, highly visible role in Italian governments for more than 20 years.

To the terrorist Red Brigades, Moro was the "political godfather" of a repressive regime ruled by the centrist Christian Democrat Party.

To his party members, he was a leading strategist who helped engineer two of the most significant political deals in postwar Italy.

Moro served as premier of Italy five times from 1963 to 1976 and was president of the ruling Christian Democrat Party, the Vatican-backed power base that has led all Italian governments since the war. The devout Roman Catholic had a close friend in Pope Paul VI.

A dashing 5-foot-11 in his youth, Moro became thin and stooped in his later years, though he was famous for his stamina during grueling backroom bargaining sessions and 10-hour cabinet meetings.

Moro was a frequent target of political cartoons in Italian newspapers, who pictured him as a sphinx with thoughts understandable only to a select few. Some cartoons showed scientists engaged in a new field of research — Morology — trying to interpret Moro's lofty speeches.

The influential politician was a familiar sight in Rome, shuttling between his home and parliamentary office wearing a navy blue or gray double-breasted suit, a stack of newspapers folded under his arm and a streak of silver slicing across his dark close-cropped hair.

The morning of March 16 was the start of a typical day for Moro. He had just returned from Mass and was on his way to work when gunmen ambushed him near his downtown home and killed his five bodyguards.

Moro was whisked away by the kidnapers, who later claimed to be members of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist group.

He was never seen alive again. The urban guerrillas attacked on the same day that the Italian parliament was to seal a landmark political deal that Moro had helped to accomplish in two months of negotiations — an agreement giving the Communist Party a greater voice in government policy for the first time in 31 years but denying them a role in the administration itself.

It was the second political achievement of Moro's career. The first, in 1963, brought Italy's small Socialist Party into the government.

His ability to sense shifting political winds and adapt to them made Moro a logical choice to take over from fellow Christian Democrat Giovanni Leone when the largely ceremonial post of president of Italy became vacant in December. That chance never came.

During his 54 days of captivity, Moro wrote at least a dozen emotional appeals to his fellow Christian Democrats begging them to bargain with his Red Brigade kidnapers for his safe release.

The government's refusal to negotiate, a decision which the Communists firmly supported, led many supporters to accuse the Christian Democrats of sentencing Moro to death. Even Moro's family appealed to the party leaders for a change of heart, but the officials stood firm.

It was an unthinkable end for Moro, always the "party man."

The son of schoolteachers, Moro was born in the sun-baked small town of Maglie in the heel of the Italian boot on Sept. 23, 1916.

He earned a law degree from the University of Bari, served as a captain in the Italian marines in World War II and received a law professorship at age 24. But it was his post as head of the Roman Catholic graduates association, often a party steppingstone, that launched Moro's political career.

He was taken into the Christian Democrat fold by Italy's postwar premier Alcide De Gasperi and was elected to the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of parliament, in every election since 1946.

Even after gaining his first cabinet post, the Justice Ministry, in 1955, Moro never forgot his roots. He would return to the barren hills of southeastern Italy, stopping off at small towns along the way to stump for votes and make small talk with the populace. He also continued teaching law at Rome University.

Unlike most of his flamboyant contemporaries, Moro was a private man. He eschewed the pomp surrounding his office and jealously guarded the privacy of his wife, three daughters and son, who were forced into the limelight during the long ordeal of his kidnaping.

In his personal dealings Moro was cautious. He never learned to drive a car, limited himself to five cigarettes a day and only overcame his fear of flying when it became a necessity to him as foreign minister.

For recreation Moro liked going to Western movies, tending his rose garden and staying at home with his family. When he visited the White House as premier, he left a formal dinner early while then President Lyndon B. Johnson danced into the morning hours.

U.S. Senate Resolution Decries Murder Of Italy's Ex-Premier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate condemned the murder of Aldo Moro on Tuesday and praised the Italian government for its handling of the long effort to secure his release.

Moro's bullet-riddled body was found in Rome Tuesday, 54 days after he was kidnaped by Red Brigade terrorists.

A Senate resolution, adopted by voice vote, called on President Carter to instruct the U.S. delegate to the United Nations "to press for consideration of the subject of terrorism in all appropriate forums and to sponsor proposals aimed at finding a solution to this very urgent problem."

The full text of the resolution reads: "Whereas, the cowardly acts of international terrorist groups have culminated in the murder of Aldo Moro, former prime minister of Italy and head of the Christian Democratic Party;

"Whereas, the Red Brigade has engaged in continuous acts of violence, inflicting death and injury on innocent persons in an attempt to disrupt and destroy the democratic process of the Italian government;

"Whereas, the late prime minister was an example of commitment to humanistic and democratic values during his life;

"Whereas, the late prime minister exhibited great courage during the captivity that led to his death; and

"Whereas, the Italian government has continued to adhere to its democratic principles in the face of the terrorist onslaught and has staunchly upheld the ideals of reasoned justice in the trials of those accused of terrorist acts; be it

"Resolved, that the Senate expresses its sorrow to the family of Aldo Moro and the Italian people, and its deepest condemnation of this heinous murder by the Red Brigade.

"Sec. 2. It is the sense of the Senate that the government of Italy deserves the highest praise and support of the United States and of all democratic and free nations for its valiant efforts to prevent the death of Aldo Moro and continue the trials of those accused of acts of terrorism without resorting to totalitarian measures.

"Sec. 3. It is further the sense of the Senate that the president should instruct the permanent United States representative to the United Nations to press for consideration of the subject of terrorism in all appropriate forums and to sponsor proposals aimed at finding solutions to this very urgent problem.

"Sec. 4. The secretary of the Senate is directed to forward a copy of this resolution to the president and the ambassador of the government of Italy to the United States."

World Leaders Condemn Slaying

By The Associated Press

Government leaders around the world Tuesday condemned the murder of kidnaped Italian politician Aldo Moro, expressing grief at news of his death and compassion for his family.

"This contemptible and cowardly act offends the conscience of all Americans," said U.S. State Department spokesman Charles Shapiro.

"We condemn the brutal murder of Aldo Moro by a small band of criminals," he said. "We share the grief of the Italian people at the loss of one of their most distinguished citizens."

Moro, 61, was kidnaped March 16 after being ambushed on a Rome street. His bloodied body was found Tuesday afternoon in a parked car near one of Rome's busiest intersections. Moro, president of the Christian Democrat Party, had been shot in the head.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who had made three public pleas for Moro's life, said Moro's death "cut short the life of a distinguished public servant who devoted his career to his country and who made outstanding contributions to the cause of international peace and understanding."

West German government spokesman Klaus Boelling said his colleagues were "deeply moved about the cowardly murder of Aldo Moro."

Boelling said the death should serve as an appeal to all governments of civilized states to cooperate in the fight against international terrorism. The West Germans worked closely with the Italians in the search for Moro's terrorist kidnapers, members of the Red Brigades.

In mourning, the French National Assembly suspended its session for 10 minutes after receiving word of Moro's death.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II said she was "shocked and saddened" by the death. In a message of sympathy sent to the President of Italy, Giovanni Leone, the queen asked the president "to accept, and to convey to the bereaved family, my deepest sympathy."

At The Hague, Netherlands, the Dutch government expressed "horror" at news of the murder.

A spokesman said "feelings of sympathy" go to Moro's family and the Italian government, and he said the Dutch "completely back the Italian policy in this case, where it refused to give in to terrorist blackmail."

Austrian Vice Chancellor Hannes Androsch, representing Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, said he was "distressed that such a thing should happen in these days."

President Extends Sympathy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter sent messages of sympathy to the widow of the slain Aldo Moro on Tuesday, and issued a public statement denouncing his death as "a contemptible and cowardly act."

White House spokesman Jody Powell said Carter also sent messages of sympathy to the prime minister and president of Italy.

Carter's public statement said:

Winners Revealed In Pony Club's Spring Competition

South Plains Pony Club members rode at the Pony Club Stables and the Lubbock Equestrian Meadows at Yellowhouse Canyon, south of Mackenzie Park, Saturday and Sunday for awards in the annual Spring Competitive Combined Training Rally.

Riders competed in D and 5C divisions rated in dressage, stadium jumping, written tests, grooming inspection and cross country jumping.

D level winners were Janet Hale, Merry Lynch, Tara Self and Rhonda Lasserre.

C competition winners were Katherine Ewalt, Kathy Lindsey and David Hagler. Skill ratings earned during the rally went to Tara Self and Tamri Self, D1 level; Leslie Davis, D; and Kathy Lindsey, C2.

Previously awarded D ratings went to Gary Brewer, Merry Lynch, and Rhonda Lasserre, while C ratings went to Jami Gilbert, Kim Mainz and Jan Marvin.

"My sympathies and the sympathies of all Americans go out to Aldo Moro's bereaved family and nation.

"His murder is a contemptible and cowardly act.

"His death advances no cause but that of mindless anarchy.

"But his life was devoted to building his nation, and his political skills were forever at the service of justice.

"He stood for civilization and the rule of law, principles which will always outlive the terrorism that seeks to destroy them."

Commencement Set At Midland College

MIDLAND (Special) — The fifth annual commencement ceremonies for Midland College are slated to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Midland Lee High School auditorium.

Principal speaker for the event will be Dr. Jack K. Williams, chancellor of the Texas A&M University system.

A reception in the courtyard following the ceremony will honor graduates, parents, friends and faculty members.

Hyacinth Functions As Water Purifier

RIO HONDO (AP) — The plant that treats the sewage in this little Rio Grande Valley town has leaves and blooms instead of pipes and valves.

The plant is a water hyacinth and there are thousands of them floating in a lagoon where wastewater is treated before it flows into a river.

Three years ago state water officials and the Environmental Protection Agency told officials here that sewage running into the Arroyo Colorado was not sufficiently treated.

The city of 1,607 citizens was faced with building a treatment plant for $250,000 — about five times the annual ad valorem tax take.

But mayor Juanita Brodecky got hold of a NASA report on the possibility of using hyacinths to treat water.

"We just got a tubful from a drainage ditch and threw them in," John Brodecky, the mayor's wife, recalled. "They started multiplying and I couldn't figure out just how they did it."

The floating plant has a root system that filters water. City administrator Bob Cornelison said tests have shown the hyacinth to be effective in reducing bacteria and absorbing other wastes.

"We feel it can be used for primary treatment with domestic sewage. But in large cities the industrial waste would kill the plants," Cornelison said.

State officials were somewhat skeptical but agreed to let Rio Hondo try out the plants for a few years.

Joe Mayhew, chief of investigations for the wastewater division of Texas Department of Water Resources, said the hyacinths seemed to work in test situations.

"But we've never really had one to the scale of Rio Hondo. We're not sure how it will work in the long run," Mayhew said.

Mayor Brodecky said the state officials were somewhat upset at the plant plan.

"They would've rather we stuck with a conventional plan," she said. So now the city has, at least temporarily, a virtually cost-free system that also produces a potentially valuable by-product.

The hyacinths are high in nitrogen content and make good fertilizer or feed when their junk-eating days are over.

Bias Against Women In Education Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential advisory council charged Tuesday that many federal agencies are doing little to thwart the subtle forms of discrimination that confront women in education.

None of 24 agencies spending nearly $10 billion on education has attempted to enforce a 1972 law barring sex discrimination in the federally financed programs, and most did not even know the law applied to them, according to the report by the National Advisory Council on Women's Educational Programs.

"For many people in the federal government, sex discrimination is not seen as real. It is seen as something frivolous, because it involves women and girls," declared Bernice Sandler, a council member and official of the Association of American Colleges.

"I don't think it's a plot. It's simply not seen as a problem," she added.

The agencies with programs covered by the law, called Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, include the Veterans Administration, the Agriculture Department and the Labor Department. Some, including Labor, are covered by other statutes barring sex discrimination.

Mrs. Sandler said that while many overt forms of discrimination against women in education have been stopped, subtle forms remain in such areas as admission to schools that are traditionally male preserves.

"Admission to many agriculture schools is still biased," she said. "It's still very difficult for women to get into the craft apprenticeship programs."

The numbers of women entering medical and law schools has soared in recent years, but has lagged in veterinary and dental schools, she said.

Mrs. Sandler and Nancy J. Balles, a lawyer who wrote the report, said they could not cite specific instances in which women were discriminated against.

"But we would be very surprised if all of these programs were sex fair," said Mrs. Sandler. Several agencies have begun reviewing their responsibilities under Title IX since the council raised the issue last year, she added.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare issued regulations to enforce the law against sex discrimination in 1975, but its enforcement has been spotty, by its own admission. HEW officials say the Carter admission is stepping up enforcement.

The 17-member council, created by Congress in 1974 to give advice on education matters affecting women, called upon President Carter to designate the Justice Department as the lead agency to coordinate enforcement of the law.

'We Were Where The Lord Put Us'

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "We were where the Lord put us," says Glenn McDonald, a tugboat pilot whose quick action saved dozens of lives after an airliner pancaked into the foggy waters of Escambia Bay.

A shy hero, McDonald grinned self-consciously as he told of bringing his tug, "Little Mac," and its barge up to the ditched National Airlines 727 jet late Monday night and helping people scramble from the choppy water.

McDonald, 41, and his mate, Bill Kenney, 28, said they had heard other planes going over in the foggy darkness — then the hulk of the 727 swept down past them.

McDonald said he was off course and virtually lost when the plane came down.

"If we hadn't by chance been there, many people would have died. They couldn't have made it. After they got on the barge, I know it was an hour before the boats found us," said McDonald.

The plane skipped into the 10-foot-deep bay waters just 300 yards from McDonald's tug.

"I just felt, 'My God, look at that,' and then it just landed, as if it meant to," said McDonald. "It bounced and skidded a little. It made this enormous hissing sound."

The two men guided their tug and the barge it was pushing to the sinking plane.

Cries pierced the darkness.

"People were screaming, 'Help me! Save me!' when we came over. About half a dozen were atop the fuselage scrambling, crawling, sliding. The others were in the water," said McDonald.

Many passengers still clutched at life jackets. They had leaped from the downed airliner without time to put them on.

"There would be three people over here, 10 over there. I had to tell Bill to leave the three and get the 10. I had to glide the barge between people drifting in the bay and I worried that some had drifted away and would be missed when we came back around," said McDonald.

McDonald maneuvered the barge. Kenney tossed out ropes, then began diving into the fuel-slick water to help shivering survivors board the barge.

Kenney said that the mother of a boy lifted from the fuselage apparently drowned and that he heard someone shouting, "Where's the mother of the child? Where's the mother of the child?"

In all, 55 passengers and crewmen were rescued. Three people drowned.

Sgt. William D. Clenny of the Florida Marine Patrol agreed.

"If that barge hadn't been there, there's no telling how many would have drowned," Clenny said.

An independent seaman of rugged good looks, McDonald caught a couple hours sleep after the rescue and was back at work with his tug and barge when a reporter found him Tuesday morning.

He laughed off his own bravery.

"It was reward enough," he said, "that we were where we were — that we were able to save those people."

Landing Almost Normal; Then Water Poured In

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The landing seemed almost normal. National Airlines Flight 193 nosed down gently toward Pensacola Airport, and a flight attendant announced the Boeing 727 was about to land. Even the jolt as it snacked into Escambia Bay was not the best clue that something was wrong.

"I thought we were on land," said passenger Tom Holmes. "It wasn't until the water poured in up to my knees that I realized we were in the bay."

But three persons were killed Monday night in the belly-flop landing, three miles short of the runway.

Holmes, 37, of Pensacola, was among the 55 passengers and crew members who survived, most of them rescued by a cool-headed tugboat pilot and mate who rushed their tug and barge to the plane.

Hospital officials identified the dead as Paul V. Wilkes of Virginia Beach, Va., and two Pensacola women, Frances Lane and S. J. Fantuzzi, 29.

The National Transportation Safety Board set up a base in this north Florida city, and said a preliminary report on a possible cause for the crash and the deaths might be ready in a few days.

In the bay on Tuesday, waves slapped the shiny tail and upper fuselage of the aircraft. It sat in the muddy floor and about 10 feet of water.

Several passengers said the plane's descent seemed normal.

John Snodgrass, a pharmaceutical representative from New Orleans, said the pilot announced after the plane left Mobile, Ala., that there was fog in Pensacola but said "there were 12 mile-per-hour winds and as long as the winds kept up there wouldn't be any trouble with the fog."

"It was not a bad flight," he said. "There was no announcement we were going to crash. Without any warning it went into the water. I thought it was a real bad landing until things started rushing by me. Then I realized we were in the water."

Jet fuel covered the water. "It burned everyone's eyes," said Snodgrass from his Pensacola hotel room. "It was horrendous."

He said he and some other passengers floated for several minutes before reaching a wing of the plane. Several people stood neck-deep on the wing, but as the plane settled deeper into the water, they had to swim.

B METRO
Lubbock Avplanche-Journal
Wednesday, May 10, 1978

"The co-pilot was swimming around and he had some life jackets," said Snodgrass. "One or two people had gotten on top of the plane by then and they started helping others up there. A half an hour later, a barge showed up ... if it hadn't been for that barge, things would have been a lot worse."

Officials credited the tugboat captain, Glenn E. McDonald, with rescuing dozens of passengers by plucking them from the fuel-covered waters and helping them aboard a construction barge he hurriedly pushed up against the plane.

"We'd probably have lost a lot more people without him," said Bob Smith, director of West Florida Civil Defense.

McDonald said he, crewman Bill Kenney and their tug, "Little Mac," "were where the Lord put us," about 300 yards from where the plane hissed into the water.

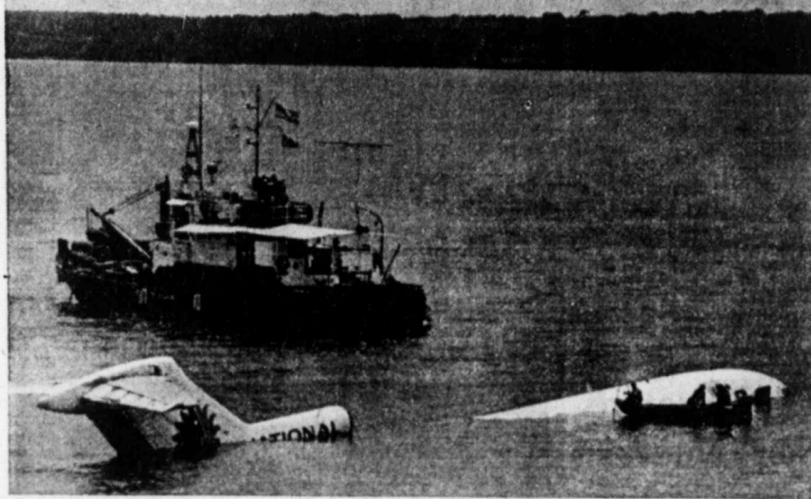

"People were screaming, 'Help me! Save me!' when we came over," he said. "About a half-dozen were atop the fuselage, scrambling, crawling, sliding. The others were in the water."

Escambia County Civil Defense officials estimated that 350 to 500 professional and amateur rescuers showed up on the sparsely settled eastern side of the bay to help the fuel-drenched victims when the barge reached shore. Almost all of the survivors were taken to five local hospitals where they were treated for bumps and bruises as well as for a few more serious injuries.

The airport's longest runway had been closed since January for upgrading, but Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker would not say whether that might have contributed to the crash. Fog and rain had reduced visibility to four miles and the ceiling to 400 feet, but both factors were within standards for keeping the airport open, he said.

Harland Lore, the flight controller at Pensacola tower, said, "Everything was normal. There was no verbal indication of any problem."

The pilot of Flight 193, Capt. George Kunz of Miami, is a 22-year veteran with National Guard, 54, served with the Navy in World War II and in the Korean conflict.

Lions Club To Sponsor Music, Comedy Festival

The South Plains Lions Club will sponsor a Festival of Country Music and Comedy in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theater at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The two-hour show will feature Justin Tubb, oldest son of Ernest Tubb. The younger Tubb has been a member of WSM's Grand Ole Opry for more than 20 years as a singer and songwriter.

Sylvia Harney will perform her brand of country comedy at the festival. She recently performed with Floyd Cramer, Jim Ed Brown, Barbara Mandrell and Granpa Jones. Her most memorable character is Aggie Mae. "Miss Soybean of 1938." Aggie Mae's most vivid recollection of a thrill is putting on a cold corset last November.

Bobby Waler, also of Nashville, will present a combination of comedy and music.

Local artists scheduled to perform at the Lions' benefit include the Bluegrass Revue of the South Plains College Bluegrass Music Department; Vida Hoffman, a senior at Monterey High School; and Joe and Joy Roper, a musical duo from Lubbock.

An Eddy Nicholson production, the Festival of Country Music and Comedy will benefit the youth activities of the South Plains Lions Club.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 15-year-old girl with an ulcer which I've known about for six months. It is in my upper stomach. My doctor has me on a special diet that consists mostly of foods I hate. My problem is I can't stay on the diet. I am always being tempted to eat things that aren't my diet. And when I do, which is most of the time, I vomit. Is there any other way out? My nerves caused my ulcer, and I'll never get better the way I'm going. — M.L.H.

I think you need a strong dose of positive thinking about this matter. And there's much about which to be positive. For one thing, your ulcer was discovered surprisingly early and you can be thankful to your parents and doctors for that. Many adult ulcer sufferers are found to have had the problem as youngsters. In fact, ulcers are being found in young people more frequently these days.

The distress you have after eating your forbidden foods should be sufficient punishment to steer you away from them, but I know how difficult it is for a young woman to turn down the cola drink everyone else is having. Again, positive thinking. You will cure your ulcer by avoiding the no-no's.

I suggest a more mature attitude on your part. Nerves certainly do play a role in ulcer formation. No doubt about that. Your tendency toward ulcer formation is what you have to live with all your life (not the ulcers).

Your ulcer diet needn't be as grim as you portray it. I can send you material on that if you need it. The idea is to reduce stomach acid formation, as you probably know. Besides diet, there are medicines other than the antacid tablets you can use. One of them is cimetidine (Tagamet).

See if you can't get yourself back on the ball and cure this ulcer of yours while your youth is in your favor. If not, you may end up without a stomach.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is "bottle mouth?" I have been told that this can result from letting an infant nurse a bottle too long. What is too long? — Mrs. O.M.

There has been an increase in this reported, especially in one-to-five year olds. The bottle mouth syndrome is another term for it. Overlong nursing on bottles can prompt over-production of certain body chemicals that attack tooth enamel.

According to those concerned with this it is not a problem with milk alone. Fruit juice when sucked for long periods can be harmful. The tongue and nipple tend to protect the lower teeth, so the damage is usually noted in the upper ones.

Parents shouldn't allow a nursing bottle to become a pacifier long after an infant has satisfied its needs. It's best to arrange a schedule for bottle use and remove it from the scene afterward. If the bottle-as-pacifier habit has become ingrained, use plain water. A pacifier, even thumbsucking itself, may be preferable to the sugared bottle.

CONFIDENTIAL TO H.H. — The child should yield on this. Restricting the puppy to a couple of rooms in the house is impractical. Besides, it is quite possible the child himself is allergic to the danger since both parents are. Not worth the risk. Get him a bicycle instead.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.G. — Removal of the prostate is a matter between you and your doctor. Nodules on the gland raise suspicions of malignancy. This can be confirmed by an acid-phosphatase blood test, which should be done.

To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

PRINCE MICHAEL AND DUDLEY — Dudley, played by Duncan Joys, gets a lift from Prince Michael, played by Jerry Cantrell. The play is filled with exciting music, and laughter as the weavers attempt to make the clothes demanded by their unreasonable emperor. Musical director is Charlotte Greeson.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

President Carter and I are the only two people in this country I know who work from our home.

He's got the best of it. Surrounded by all that security, having a desk that locks, and no one ringing his chimes in the middle of the day to tell him pastry brushes and lip gloss.

Oh sure, he has his share of interruptions, but does he ever lift his phone and discover someone has entwined a popsicle stick in the cord? Does he ever get involved in a high-level phone conversation and have to excuse himself to turn the timer off on the ham? Is he ever in the midst of drafting a piece of legislation that will change the history of the world and hear a yell from the other end of the house, "We're out of toilet paper!"

The big problem with working from your home is no one treats you like a professional. Pest control men shuffle in and out spraying insecticide on my feet, children draw faces on my calendar and color my roll of stamps yellow, and at least once a day my husband calls with instructions to, "Go to the garage. Turn the power mower over on its back. On the bottom, just under the right rotary blade, is a serial number. Copy it down and call it into the repair shop so they'll know what they're dealing with. When you're out picking up my cleaning, you can pick up the part."

As a humor writer I can only reflect on the flashes of wit that might have been had I only had a typewriter with set margins, paperclips that weren't strung into a "necklace," a dictionary with all the vowels, and a pen and pencil by the phone for messages.

Sometimes, I torture myself by wondering what it must be like to fill a wastebasket you don't have to empty, and the peace of not having to let a dog in and out 175 times a day.

But the real kicker is convincing your friends and family you are really working. The telephone calls that begin, "You busy? So, what's happening? Still working for that crazy lady who won't let her fire you. Ha. Ha."

Like President Carter, I too have my Camp David. It's calm, serene, and private. I tell no one I'm going there. I just slip off with my work and sometimes just a few hours makes all the difference in the world. When I return, things are in perspective, and I am once again ready to do battle with the steady stream of interruptions.

The IRS is questioning my expenditure of a new shower curtain for my office, but what do they know?

CRAB CAKES

7-ounce can tendon-free king crab
1 large egg
1 scallion, finely chopped
4 water chestnuts (from an 8-ounce can), finely chopped
1/4 cup flour
1/4 tsp (generous) salt
Vegetable oil for deep frying
Chinese Plum Sauce, home made or bought
Drain and flake the crab. Beat the egg slightly; add the crab, scallion, water chestnuts, flour and salt and stir together well. Heat the oil to 350 degrees; drop the crab mixture, by heaping teaspoonfuls and a small number at a time, into the oil. Fry, turning to brown on all sides, until golden brown and crisp. Drain on brown paper and keep the batches hot until all the cakes are fried. Serve with the Plum Sauce. Makes 16.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter from a woman whose husband can't read. It was signed, "In A Dither." That letter brought back some childhood memories.

My father couldn't read either but Mom covered up for him to keep us kids from finding out. She used to say, "Don't you kids mess up the paper. Your father hasn't read it yet."

Mom would often get out our favorite nursery rhymes and ask Dad to "read" them to us. She knew he had them all memorized.

Once we saw Mom sign Dad's salary check. (He couldn't even write his name!) When she spotted us watching, she said, "Your father hurt his hand and can't write very well today."

By the time I was a teenager I caught on. I asked Mom one day, "Mom, Dad can't read, can he?" Her answer was, "No, he can't. But don't tell the other kids. And don't let your father know you know." She then explained that Dad could do a lot of other things—like carve wood. (Oh, how I remember the beautiful table and chairs he made, and the cabinets, and the little doll house with tiny dishes and dolls with shoes—all carved out of wood!)

Mom told me, "Your dad is the best mechanic in the country. He can fix the smallest wristwatch or the largest piece of construction equipment there is. And there is no one better at math. He can figure numbers in his head faster than any adding machine."

Mom then told me how she had tried to teach Dad to read when they were first married. He just couldn't learn, and he cried with shame. I was unable to hold the tears back when she was telling me the story. I kept thinking of my dad, that big, strong man, crying over a little book.

He has been dead more than 20 years, but I remember so well how he always said, "Time will show we have a genius in the family." I can't help but think Dad knew he was married to one. — Name Withheld By Request

Dear Name: I'm sure your poignant letter brought tears to many eyes. Mine included. Thank you so much for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I just learned I am pregnant after three years of trying. This will be our first child as well as the first grandchild in my husband's family.

Unfortunately, my husband's sister-in-law (his brother's wife) has been trying to get pregnant for five years that I know of. I'm sure she is going to feel just terrible when she hears I finally made it.

Can you think of something I might say to soften the blow? I dread telling her the news, yet I know I must. If she hears it from someone else it will be worse. Any suggestions? — Infanticipating In Tuscaloosa

Dear Tusc: Just tell your sister-in-law

the news and skip the garbage about how "sorry" you are that she didn't beat you to it. Such comments will only make you look like a hypocrite. Keep your "announcement" short and sweet—then change the subject.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (13 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Contact bridge was invented around 1925, and all true bridge players are richer from the experience of being able to say, "Hey, alot of the guys who started this devilish game are still around, and they still win important tournaments."

It's true. Bridge is still a young game, and the early innovators and pioneers are still competing in major tournaments.

The list includes such titans as B. Jay Becker, Dick Fery, Sam Fry, Mike Gottlieb, Sam Stayman, Charles Goren, Easley Blackwood, George Rapee and Waldemar von Zedwitz.

The diagrammed hand played many years ago by the late Harry Fishbein—"Fishy" to his many friends—is a tribute to his aggressive bidding style and timeless card play.

Fishy, sitting South at a high-stakes rubber bridge game, won the heart lead with his singleton ace.

Fishbein immediately saw that the problem was his trump suit. If Fishbein could afford to lose no trump tricks, his proper play in the trump suit would be the ace. This picks up a singleton king in either the East or West hand.

If, however, Fishbein could afford to lose a trump trick, there was an absolutely safe way to make the contract. First Harry had to discover whether he had any losers outside the trump suit.

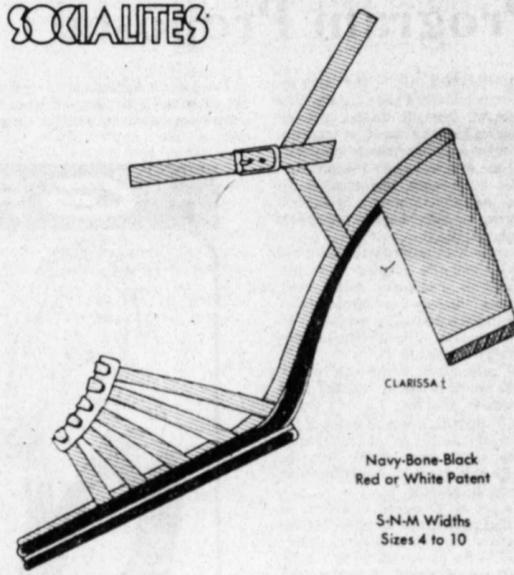

He crossed to dummy's ace of diamonds and took a club finesse which won. The contract was now safe.

Fishbein led a low spade from dummy and covered East's three with the four. This won. However, even if it had not won, Harry's ace of spades would have drawn the remaining trump.

ON THE STREETS OF BROADWAY? — These members of the Cooper High School ULL One-Act play may feel that they've already seen the bright lights of show business since accumulating 19 individual awards on their way to claiming the position of first runner-up in the State AA ULL One-Act Play contest held Thursday. Play members are bottom row, left to right, Coni Beadle, Julie Robertson and Bryce Daniel; middle row, Clay Kennedy, James Gallagher, Karee Graves, David Collins, Derek Kitten and Holly Vardeman; and top row, Stacy Fredenburg, Jody Deatherage, Jeff Pinkerton and Suzy Smith.

Flu Immunization Program Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration outlined plans Tuesday for a permanent, federally backed, state-administered program aimed at immunizing citizens most vulnerable to influenza.

But the idea was given a skeptical reception by a Senate subcommittee because the administration's spokesmen could not say who would be responsible for liability claims.

The plan is successor to a massive, nationwide swine-flu program which had the goal of immunizing nearly every American citizen against a menace which never materialized. The program was canceled because of health complications resulting from the vaccine.

The government is disposing of $700 million worth of claims resulting from the swine flu program.

Dr. William H. Foege, director of the Center for Disease Control, told a Senate appropriations subcommittee that the new flu program is less ambitious than the swine flu program.

We are not proposing a massive, ad hoc effort to immunize the entire population against the current influenza virus," he said to the panel responsible for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's budget.

A larger effort might be a worthwhile idea, but "it is very unlikely that the influenza vaccine production and distribution system can respond to such a large-scale program at this time," he said. "It is also unlikely that the general public would find it valuable."

The vaccine would be purchased under a consolidated system. The federal and state governments would be responsible for warning of the risks involved with the vaccines, but would not assume liability.

The federal government assumed liability in the swine flu program because insurance companies refused to cover the manufacturers of the vaccine.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., asked who would be liable for claims resulting from the program if the government would not.

"This puts the Congress in a very difficult dilemma," Schweiker said when he learned that the liability question was unclear.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FRIENDS:

Ever run out of cream rinse or get tired of the expense of buying it?

I will tell you in a little secret that I think you will find great for your hair and easy on the pocketbook, too.

Try using fabric softener. It is absolutely great on my hair. I add a capful, or a little less, to a glass of water and then rinse my hair in this after washing it.

After rinsing it well with water, my hair is so soft and smooth and shiny, and boy! does it smell good...

I have long, almost waist-length hair so you can imagine how difficult it is to comb out and, believe me, this works wonders for me.

One point I would like to mention. I didn't use to put cream rinse on my hair because it seemed to make it so gummy or it would stay clean only one day no matter how much I would rinse the cream rinse out.

But I did find that if I put the cream rinse on just the bottom half of my hair it would turn out much nicer.

For me, the part that is difficult to comb out is not the hair around my face, but the bottom part of my hair and this way it seemed to stay cleaner longer.

I think you will like this. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a suggestion that seems to be the best yet...

Every so often we had been having a power failure and resulting blackout. Always seem to hit when it would create the most pain-in-the-neck problem.

Hunt for matches...where did I put those candles, etc., etc. I got fed up!

I went out and found a store with an old-fashioned kerosene lamp. Bought one and the oil to go with it and put the lamp in a handy place at home.

Strange...months have since gone by with no blackouts at all! Try it! — Vic Beverford

DEAR HELOISE:

Try this simple way to hang wall groupings...

Trace each picture to be hung on newspaper, etc. Mark the spot for the hook and cut out.

Now, tape each piece of paper in place on the wall. You can clearly see how your grouping will look when hung and can be rearranged if desired.

When the grouping is to your liking, put the picture hangers into the wall on the spot marked right through the newspaper.

Your grouping is hung easily and correctly the very first time and you don't have all the fuss of measuring and hoping to get the nails or hangers in the right place. — K. Wolff

Sure saves nail holes, too! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

With summer coming, I just have to share my life-saving (or sanity saving) idea with you.

You know how thirsty the kids get playing outside, and when they stand with the refrigerator open getting a drink of ice water, Mother goes bananas.

I've solved that problem...

Every morning, first thing, when I'm clearing the breakfast table I get out the old picnic jug and fill it with a tray or two of ice and fill the jug with cold water. Then I set it out on the counter.

Each child has his glass for the day, and if a friend is there who is likely to be there all day, he has his glass.

This way, everyone is happy — the children have ice water, and I don't yell all day for them to shut the refrigerator door. — Millie

Police Seek; Groom Leaps; Duo Released

DETROIT (AP) — Marvin Bowie's wedding day got off to a flying start as he sailed through a stained-glass window, leaving his bride and the minister behind.

Also left at the church were several police officers, uninvited guests at the weekend wedding.

Bowie wound up in a hospital with 40 stitches. He and his bride-to-be, Cassandra Smith, 22, were free Monday on personal bond after both were arraigned in Recorder's Court on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property.

Bowie's ill-fated day began when police traced a car, stolen in Flint, to the Detroit area.

Police got a telephone tip alleging that Bowie had stolen the car and changed its identification number. A second tip said he would be at the Anderson Memorial Church on Saturday.

Police hurried there and spotted Bowie, wearing a maroon tuxedo, standing in front of the church waiting for the wedding to begin.

When Bowie saw the officers, he rushed inside the church. Police told Rev. Leon Humphrey of the situation and sought his help in persuading the bridegroom to come out of the church kitchen where he was hiding.

When police approached, they said Bowie shouted, "I've got a gun. Don't come in here."

Bowie jumped through the kitchen window a moment later, but was captured by police.

Miss Smith said Monday that the wedding had been postponed indefinitely.

Area Banks Show 10 Percent Rise In Deposits During Year

Area bank deposits grew about 10 percent during the past year, and homebuilding and business expansion throughout the South Plains is tempered somewhat by this having become a crucial year for agriculture.

Deposits at 71 area banks increased from $2,014,497,205 on March 31, 1977, to $2,224,726,415 at the end of the past quarter.

A typical agrarian bank, Security State in Littlefield, grew from $26,978,804 to $32,092,621 with the new presence of the American Cotton Growers denim plant there and an overall good economy.

But Senior Vice President Deryl Bennett said Tuesday that farmers especially need a good year.

"We have just had a nice rain, and that has stimulated a little interest in planting," Bennett said. "We still need a good rain to get enough moisture to carry them for a while.

"Just like we've been for the past several years, we need a good year with yields and a price for the products."

City National Bank in Plainview grew from $39,317,703 to $48,380,098, but Executive Vice President John Skaggs said some of that growth was caused by inflation.

"It was just an overall healthy economy in the area as well as inflation, which is one of the principle causes in gains in bank deposits everywhere," Skaggs said. "It's really hard to compare present-day dollars with past dollars because inflation has caused everything to go up. It has certainly affected bank dollars like everything else."

Skaggs said a particular boon to Plainview was the addition of 400 new jobs with the advent of the MVPXL meat packing plant.

He called this "a crucial year" and said, "We've got to put it all together this year because last year was a bad year. The best farmers we had didn't make a lot of money. The farmers who owe a lot of money on their land and equipment are in a particularly hazardous position. And with the cost of equipment going up like it has, just about all of them owe some on equipment nowadays."

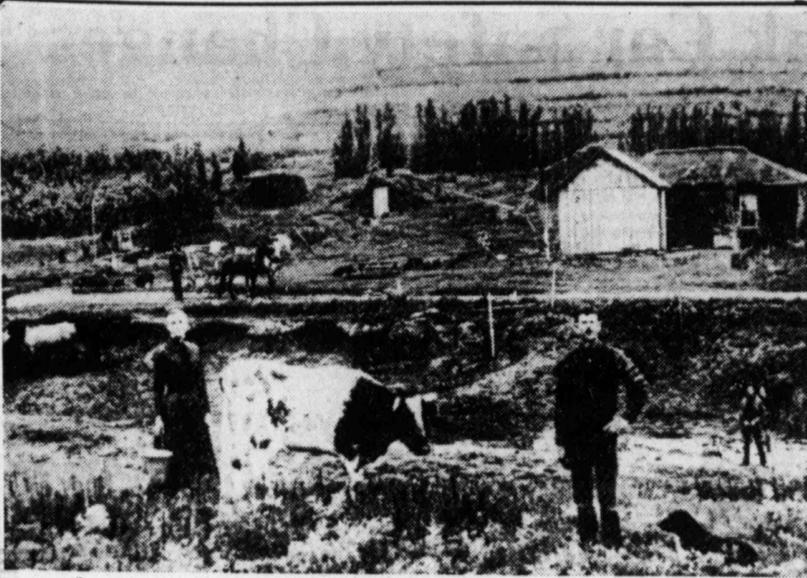

Skaggs said High Plains wheat farmers are in even worse condition than Hale County cotton farmers.

In Lamesa, First National Bank President Lloyd Cline attributed a decline in deposits from $49,638,749 to $48,183,698 to the poor price cotton drew last fall.

"It's not a figure that's alarming to me at all," Cline said. "I would expect it to be down because of the lower price of cotton."

He added that bank loans are up in Lamesa primarily for interim financing of commercial and residential construction.

Building permits in the past nine months there have been issued at triple the rate they have averaged in recent years. Cline, also the mayor of Lamesa, said, and 12 to 15 homes in the range of $50,000 to $125,000 are under construction.

NOT AS SPECIALIZED — This Nebraska farm family of the 1880s produced nearly all its own food and clothing. Farming today is more specialized, efficient and productive. Most modern farmers, however, like their counterparts of a century ago, remain hard-working, individualistic and down-to-earth. (AP Laserphoto)

THE CHANGING AMERICAN FARM

Farmers Still Individuals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three excerpts from "The American Farm," which appeared in the February-March issue of American Heritage.)

By RICHARD RHODES
Newspaper Enterprise Assoc.

The farmers I know are not much different from the farmers I knew when I was a child in rural Missouri. They are better educated; they are more professional; they are more efficient. And, of course, they produce more food.

They are still, most of them, hard-working, individualistic and down-to-earth.

One elderly acquaintance, a wheat farmer in central Kansas, works more than 2,000 acres with the help of his two partner-sons.

He's built a new brick house, suburban and air-conditioned, across the yard from the old white frame house he once occupied. It now serves as bunkhouse for the summer hired men.

Massive white tanks for storing the pressure-liquefied fertilizing gas called anhydrous ammonia line his lane.

He uses older combines because, he says, it takes several years to get to know all their chains, gears and lubrication points, to break them in as once he broke in horses.

Two thousand acres is a monumental load of wheat. At, say, 35 bushels to the acre, that's 70,000 bushels to combine, truck, dry and store. When it's ripe, it has to be combined out within two weeks, because rain won't hold off longer than that. Rain will ruin the grain.

Those two weeks are bone-grinding, 18-hour days. My friend's wife drives out to the field twice a day with a church supper of meats, salads and casseroles laid on in the capacious trunk of her Cadillac. Father, sons and hired help chow down in shifts.

They truck the wheat in to a five-binned, three-storied complex of storage buildings near the family house, test its moisture content, auger it into the bins and dry it to quality. Then it is trucked on to town or stored at home, depending on the fluctuations of the market.

In the winter, man and wife take cruises, visit Japan or fly around the world.

A farmer I met in southeastern Nebraska, a young man of 32, works 800 acres on his own, with occasional help from his father.

His land is scattered across the country, 40 acres here, 80 acres there. One man couldn't farm it if tractors hadn't been designed with higher road speeds.

He grows corn and soybeans. He works long days. He lives in an old farmhouse with his wife and two children. Despite his heavy investment in land and equipment, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, he earned only $6,000 last year — and that only by not counting the value of his labor.

He'd like to farm more acres and increase his income. But even with heavy machinery to help him, it isn't physically possible. And hired hands are scarce as hen's teeth so close to Omaha.

A southern Kansas farmer-rancher illustrates another extreme of modern farming.

His father was so cash poor that he never in his life paid any income tax. And when the rancher started out on his own, he wasn't, at first, much better off.

He heard somewhere that New York florists craved a certain kind of New Mexican wood for "dritwood" arrangements.

For years, whenever he was short on cash, he would drive his pickup truck down to New Mexico, gather a load of the wood, haul it to Manhattan's wholesale florist district and sell it out of the back of his truck.

In the meantime, he was building a purebred breeding herd of white French Charolais cattle, the first of the profitable new breeds of exotic cattle to reach the U.S. in any numbers in the late 1960s.

Then some Canadian ranchers began importing the Swiss Simmental, and the rancher went into Simmental trading on the side.

At one time or another, in the early 1970s, more than 25,000 head of Simmental passed through his ranch. Those animals were worth, in the inflated market of those best years in the history of American farming, anywhere from $2,000 to $25,000 apiece.

Now the rancher owns 1,200 acres of good Kansas prairie, and spends his spare time wildcatting for oil. He is perhaps more entrepreneur than farmer; the business of breeding cattle has been so notoriously unprofitable since 1975 that only the entrepreneurs have survived.

I could mention other changes in farming, which transfers embryos from a prize cow to lesser common cows, who bear the genetically superior calves as their own, enabling the prize cow to produce as many as 40 or 50 calves a year; fields arranged by watersheds with a distantly European look; hens confined in crowded cages, their eggs rolling on conveyor belts into automatic crating machines; the search for the featherless chicken.

Optimists may call such changes miracles. Romantics call them heartless and degenerate.

They are stages in the evolution of American farming, and they promise the human possibility of feeding a populous world.

Marshall Asks Court For Another Hearing

James Marshall has asked the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo for a new hearing on his lawsuit to void $26.4 million in City of Lubbock municipal bonds.

Marshall's request, predicted by city observers last month after the appellate court upheld the bonds' validity, is expected to be rejected by the court. City attorneys said the justices almost routinely deny such requests.

If the rehearing request is dismissed, Marshall then could apply for a hearing before the state Supreme Court. However, that court is very selective about cases it hears, city attorneys noted.

Marshall, a longtime City Hall critic who only recently withdrew another lawsuit against city bonds, had warned that he would pursue his case in the appellate court as far as he can. He may even try to enter the federal court system with his claims, he said.

Marshall is seeking to have the 1970 election in which voters approved $26.4 million in general obligation bonds declared null on the grounds the ordinance authorizing it was legally defective.

A 99th District Court judge last year upheld the ordinance's and election's validity. However, Marshall appealed Judge Thomas Clinton's decision to the Amarillo court, which subsequently upheld the ruling.

Marshall says in his petitions that he wants more specificity on how bond money will be spent and on the maintenance of bookkeeping records.

Capital projects that would be financed with bond funds include water system, sewer, street sewer, street and fire protection improvements.

Marshall last week voluntarily dropped his lawsuit against municipal airport revenue bonds, proceeds of which will be used to finance a parking lot expansion. As in his appealed suit, Marshall demanded greater specificity in how money will be spent.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible

Matthew 24:36-51, 25:1-9, The Living Bible

36 But no one knows the date and hour when the end will be—not even the angels. No, nor even God's Son. Only the Father knows.

37.38 The world will be at ease—banquets and parties and weddings—just as it was in Noah's time before the sudden coming of the flood;

39 People wouldn't believe what was going to happen until the flood actually arrived and took them all away. So shall My coming be.

40 Two men will be working together in the fields, and one will be taken, the other left.

41 Two women will be going about their household tasks; one will be taken, the other left.

42 So be prepared, for you don't know what day your Lord is coming.

43 Just as a man can prevent trouble from thieves by keeping watch for them, 44 So you can avoid trouble by always being ready for My unannounced return.

45 Are you a wise and faithful servant of the Lord? Have I given you the task of managing My household, to feed My children day by day?

46 Blessings on you if I return and find you faithfully doing your work.

47 I will put such faithful ones in charge of everything I own!

48 But if you are evil and say to yourself, "My Lord won't be coming for a while,"

49 And begin oppressing your fellow servants, partying and getting drunk,

50 Your Lord will arrive unannounced and unexpected,

51 And severely whup you and send you off to the judgment of the hypocrites; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

1 The Kingdom of Heaven can be illustrated by the story of ten bridesmaids who took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom.

2,3,4 But only five of them were wise enough to fill their lamps with oil, while the other five were foolish and forgot.

5,6 So, when the bridegroom was delayed, they lay down to rest until midnight, when they were roused by the shout, "The bridegroom is coming! Come out and welcome him!"

7,8 All the girls jumped up and trimmed their lamps. Then the five who hadn't any oil begged the others to share with them, for their lamps were going out.

9 But the others replied, "We haven't enough. Go instead to the shops and buy some for yourselves."

SMART COCKROACHES

Cockroaches are intelligent enough to figure out mazes in laboratory experiments and to solve problems. The insects can also distinguish between dark and light when their five eyes are covered, says National Geographic.

A spokesman said the figure should be even higher before this year's McMurry fund drive closes May 31.

The gifts are from Methodists in the Lubbock District. The final figure for 1976-77 was $56,709, a record total.

Honored were J.C. Chambers, Lubbock insurance executive, who served as Lubbock district chairman of the fund; Bill Vardeman, superintendent of schools at Levelland and district co-chairman of the fund; and Clayton Ross, Lubbock businessman, who was advance gifts chairman.

The occasion was a noon luncheon at the Lubbock Country Club.

Dr. Thomas K. Kim, McMurry president, shared the platform with the Rev. William K. Wilkinson, Lubbock district superintendent of the United Methodist Church.

Also representing McMurry were Charles Hogsett Jr., director of planned giving at McMurry, and Johnnie Ray, assistant director of public relations.

Dr. Kim announced that the annual fund campaign for 1977-78 already has exceeded $300,000 and is approaching the $322,603 raised in 1976-77.

"The continuing growth of the Annual Fund for McMurry College over the last five years in the Lubbock area has contributed significantly to the financial strength of the college," Dr. Kim said. "We are grateful to the leadership of all our friends in the Lubbock area."

Speedup Proposed In Tank Car Safety Changes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Transportation Secretary Brock Adams proposed a speedup Tuesday in the installation of new safety equipment on railroad tank cars that carry dangerous chemicals.

"The safeguards would reduce the chances of these chemicals' being released when freight trains derail. The recommendations follow recent hearings conducted by the Federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board. These were prompted by a rash of derailments early this year, including fatal accidents involving chemicals at Waverly, Tenn., and Youngstown, Fla.

Adams recommended that the devices be installed from six months to two years earlier than required by present regulations. He set the following schedule:

— Install new safety couplers on all of the nation's 20,000 jumbo tank cars by next Dec. 31. The present deadline is July 1, 1979.

— Attach front and back crash shields on 3,500 cars that carry anhydrous ammonia and on 4,000 cars that carry liquified flammable gas and install steel-jacketed thermal insulation on 7,900 liquified gas cars by Dec. 31, 1979. The present deadline is Dec. 31, 1981. — Apply thermal spray-on coating to all flammable gas tank cars and steel-jacketed insulation to the remaining liquified gas cars by Dec. 31, 1980, a year earlier than called for in the present rules.

The new couplers and shields would reduce the possibility of a coupler's separating the next tank car during a derailment.

That is the major cause of the release of hazardous materials in such accidents. The two types of insulation also would protect chemicals from fire-generated heat and the steel jacket also would guard against punctures.

"The revised compliance schedule is a tight one, but it represents our best judgment on the extent to which the work can be accelerated," Adams said. "An order for a quick fix of all tank cars could disrupt the flow of fuels to homes and industry and the distribution of fertilizer to farmers."

The secretary said the public will have until June 26 to comment on the proposals. After that a final rule will be published.

The rules would apply to the jumbo tank cars, which have a capacity of 33,000 gallons and haul most of the dangerous substances. The American Railroad Association estimated the cost of retrofitting each car at $10,000.

Contract For New Post Office Let

Furr's Construction Co. has been awarded a $517,900 contract to build the new George W. Singer Post Office near the South Plains Mall at 69th Street and Loop 289.

Postmaster Elmer J. Reed said the bid was the lowest of five received.

The 9,300-square-foot building will be constructed on a two-acre site and is expected to be finished in February next year.

Passenger Airplane Industry Suddenly Booming

NEW YORK (AP) — For the passenger airplane industry, which was foundering just a few years ago, things are suddenly looking up.

"The industry is just on the verge of going through a situation like that which occurred in the last decade," when airlines bought aircraft in large numbers, said John Simon, an analyst at Crowell, Weedon Co. in Los Angeles. "We're looking at a market over the next 10 years which could exceed $70 billion — not including inflation." Aircraft sales last year were about $3 billion.

Airplane manufacturers have made three huge deals in little over a month for close to $2.3 billion of equipment, including a $900 million arrangement disclosed yesterday by Singapore International Airlines to buy 19 aircraft from Boeing Co. The sale, to be announced formally Wednesday, is the largest in aviation history.

And Boeing is expected to gain even further sales late next month, when the Seattle-based firm introduces its 200-passenger, wide-bodied 767 and 777 models.

The SIA-Boeing sale follows closely two deals announced in April, which represented the first large-scale purchases since the mid-1960s, when airlines began assembling fleets of jumbo jets.

Pan American World Airways gave Lockheed Aircraft Corp. a much-needed stimulus April 4, when it decided to buy 12 Lockheed L-1011 jumbo jets for $505 million. A few days later, Eastern Airlines said it would spend $780 million to lease or purchase 23 A300 Airbus from Airbus Industrie, a West German-French consortium, with an option to buy 34 more of the aircraft eventually.

One factor in the boom being enjoyed by the aircraft manufacturers is the desire by the airlines to update their fleets from the 707s, DC-8s and early jumbo jets bought during the last boom. "There are so many airplanes to replace that the numbers are staggering," says Simon.

For Boeing, the recipient of the latest order, it was the latest step in an already very successful aircraft program. While others in the industry came close to financial disaster earlier in the decade, Boeing, riding the crest of popularity of the 747, remained stable. The 747, introduced in 1970, has achieved an impressive record of safety and is the most widely used plane on international routes.

Although some insiders suggest that Singapore International, a small but fast-growing airline, might have trouble paying for the huge order, others point out that the line is government-owned and could also receive help from the U.S. Export-Import Bank.

SIA also will make some money by selling its existing fleet of 747s, which the new aircraft will replace.

Some observers also question Eastern's ability to pay for its Airbus purchase, but the airline hopes that the money the new jets save over the older, less-efficient models they replace will reduce in the nearly $1 billion debt the airline already is carrying.

The purchase gave Airbus Industrie some credibility in the industry by serving as a tacit endorsement of the European manufacturer's program. The company had been having a great deal of trouble selling the A300, and Eastern's order — the first by a major American airline from an overseas manufacturer — represents a third of the Airbus sold.

Lawsuit Filed Against Railway Firm

Relatives of a woman fatally injured during a car-train collision have filed suit against The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, claiming the company did not maintain proper safeguards at a crossing.

Simona H. Lopez, 66, of 109 South Ave. N died Jan. 9 as the result of injuries received in the Dec. 31, 1977, wreck.

Relatives ask in the suit filed Tuesday in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court for a judgement in excess of the minimum jurisdiction of the court and other relief to which they may show themselves entitled.

The accident reportedly occurred about 7 p.m. in the 1200-block of First Street.

The suit the railway company should have known the crossing was hazardous because of alleged conditions including a heavy volume of traffic, previous collisions at the crossing and obstructions to the view at the crossing.

At the time of the collision, the suit says, view of oncoming trains would be by darkness, telephone poles, trees and shrubbery and other obstructions.

According to the suit, the crossing was not lighted or protected by mechanical warning devices or a flag man.

In addition, the suit claims, no bell was rung or whi crossing.

Plaintiffs contend company employees or agents were negligent failing to have mechanical at the crossing, in failing to provide a flag man, in failing to sound a warning signal within 1,320 feet of the crossing and in other alleged actions.

Clements Seeking Help From Briscoe Backers

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Bill Clements said Tuesday he will have plenty of help from supporters of Gov. Dolph Briscoe when he tangles with Democrat John Hill in the general election.

A special statewide campaign organization will be set up to accommodate unhappy Democrats and independents.

Hill staged a surprising upset over Briscoe last Saturday in the Democratic primary, taking 51.23 percent of the vote.

"My opponent is in for a real fracas," Clements told a Capitol news conference. "Some of his (Briscoe's) strongest supporters in the past are already committed to me both politically and financially."

He said he planned to visit with Briscoe in a few days and expected to be welcome. "One thing, I want to measure his chair to see if it fits."

When asked if he expected a Briscoe endorsement, Clements replied: "Well, sometimes a blind hog picks up an acorn."

He said he also planned to visit with former Gov. Preston Smith, who ran third.

Clements said the new organization, Texans and Independents for Clements, would have co-chairmen, one of them Omar Harvey, who was his primary campaign director.

He said he was moving his state campaign headquarters from Dallas to Austin and it would be directed by Nola Haerle, who was campaign manager for Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, in 1972.

Clements admitted he felt "like the cat that caught the mouse . . . never in my wildest expectations did I expect to end up with a victory like we did (75 percent)."

He warned "that plaintiff's lawyer" Hill to expect an aggressive campaign. "I come from a very competitive business and I have been competing all my life," he said. "I have lots of experience dealing with bureaucracy and budgets much, much larger than any in Texas. I don't think my opponent has had that experience. I want to bring discipline and orderliness to state government." Clements said he spent $1.6 million in the primary campaign and probably would increase that to $3.5 million by November. He said he had loaned the campaign about $1 million from his own funds.

State GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart, Houston, told the news conference that Republicans would put forth "a team effort unprecedented in the history of Texas politics" with Tower, Clements and Jim Baker, GOP nominee for attorney general.

CLAIMS ADDITIONAL SUPPORT — Bill Clements, Republican candidate for governor, said Tuesday he is already getting strong support from those who backed Gov. Dolph Briscoe against Attorney General John Hill. (AP Laserphoto)

Texas Firm Seeks China Rig Contract

HOUSTON (AP) — Marathon Manufacturing Co. reported Tuesday it is close to contracting with China for the construction of two offshore drilling units.

Gene M. Woodfin, board chairman, would give no contract details, but said the combined cost of the two rigs would be about $46 million.

"I don't want to be premature, but we are very, very hopeful we will have a contract," he said.

If a contract is completed, the rigs would be constructed in the Houston firm's Singapore yards.

Woodfin made the announcement at Marathon's annual shareholders' meeting, which coincided with the four-day Offshore Technology Conference that is expected to attract about 70,000 oilmen and scientists.

China is among about 95 foreign countries with delegates at the conference and exposition, which will continue through Thursday.

In a panel discussion at the conference, R.H. Nanz, a Shell Oil Co. vice president, said he is tired of hearing charges that the federal government is not obtaining sufficient revenues from oil and gas production from federal offshore leases.

Nanz said that through 1976 the federal government had received 83 percent of the revenues derived from offshore production and that the industry still is "in the hole $15 billion or so."

"That's not a rip-off," he said.

Nanz, who said he has been in offshore explorations and production 30 years, called for federal cooperation in opening offshore frontier areas to petroleum exploration.

"American technology has led the way in developing offshore production around the world, but we are the ones who are not developing our own offshore areas," he said.

Stuart Mut, an Atlantic Richfield vice president, said government and industry face offshore development problems because the environment has become a political football.

As a result, Mut said, the industry faces a proliferation of excessive rules.

Betting Vote Mixups Found

AUSTIN (AP) — Some of Texas' election judges may have stumbled in reporting Saturday's results on the pari-mutuel referendum on the Democratic and Republican ballots.

County canvasses held Tuesday showed some discrepancies, including some in favor of the horse race betting issue.

"In some cases the results were telephoned from precinct judges to county chairmen and reported only as Proposition One or Proposition Two," said Douglas McCrary, president of the Texas Horseracing Association. "But in some cases, the pari-mutuel referendum was first on the ballot and the interest rate referendum was second while the order was reversed in other counties."

McCrary said that in Robertson County the unofficial results reported to the Texas Election Bureau showed 32 percent favoring legalized pari-mutuels on a local option basis. However, the official canvass Tuesday showed 48 percent favoring it, a difference of 539 votes.

Unofficial returns from 239 of 254 counties, before the county canvasses, showed that 739,560 voted against the referendum in the Democratic primary, while 676,126 voted for it.

Republicans approved the question 56-893 to 53,883, unofficially.

Man Suspected Of Bank Holdup

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 34-year-old California man was jailed in lieu of $50,000 bond Tuesday following arraignment on charges he robbed the downtown branch of Alamo Savings Association.

Henry Guzman Villalobos Jr., 1836 East 14th Street, Oakland, was lodged in the Bexar County Jail following an appearance before U.S. Magistrate Joseph F. Leonard.

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for May 16.

Efforts To Halt Drug Traffic Fail, Solons Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal efforts to halt the entry of illegal drug shipments into the United States have been stunningly unsuccessful, a Senate subcommittee was told Tuesday.

G. R. Dickerson, deputy commissioner of the U.S. Customs Service, said more than $924 million in illegal drugs — including 1.6 million pounds of marijuana — were seized by federal officials last year.

But in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on international relations, Dickerson added that "we believe that we have merely scratched the surface of drug smuggling."

William J. Anderson, a deputy director of the General Accounting Office, said the federal effort to halt smuggling at the Southwest border "is achieving only a limited measurable impact on the drug problem." He added that the available supply of drugs "attests to the fact that it (the federal effort) has not been a serious impediment to illegal entry."

New Mexico Attorney General Toney Anaya told the subcommittee that "we are almost powerless to stop the estimated 4,000 to 6,000 smuggling flights a year" that occur in southwestern states.

"We have to depend almost entirely on snitches and accidents involving the smugglers' aircraft," he said.

Anaya, who has been seeking to get southwestern states to act together to halt drug smuggling, said smugglers make such high profits on their sales that they can afford far better equipment than the federal and state agencies seeking to stop them.

"Our state police in New Mexico, along with the U.S. Customs Service, recently effected the seizure in a marijuana case of a Mitsubishi twin jet turbine-powered aircraft, the Rolls-Royce of small planes," he said.

In contrast, Anaya noted that New Mexico police have no airplanes for pursuit or surveillance of drug smugglers and the Customs Service has only one airplane with radar that can perform night surveillance. He said the plane is based in El Paso.

Anaya noted that in another case, smugglers gave up without a battle when a National Guard helicopter landed at their landing strip, even though "their landing strip was guarded by two M-60 machine gun emplacements, giving them more than enough firepower to have knocked the chopper and its passengers out of the air with ease."

Anderson estimated that federal seizures of illegal drugs coming from Mexico amounted to about 6 percent of the total heroin believed to have crossed the border in fiscal 1976. He said total seizures amounted to about 3 percent of the cocaine and 13 percent of the marijuana.

In addition, Anderson said, border apprehensions "seldom involve high-level traffickers."

"The overwhelming majority of persons crossing the border in possession of drugs who are apprehended by Customs and the Immigration and Naturalization Service are drug users, small-time operators, couriers or low-level members of drug trafficking organizations," he said.

Senate Confirms Top Attorney For Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday confirmed President Carter's nomination of Lynn R. Coleman, a lawyer whose firm does extensive work for the oil and gas industry, to be the Department of Energy's top attorney.

By a 75 to 20 vote, the Senate rejected an attempt by Coleman opponents to kill the eight-month-old nomination. It was then approved by voice vote.

Coleman, a member of the law firm of former Treasury Secretary John Connally, becomes the department's general counsel at a salary of $50,000 a year.

Coleman, 39, leaves his position as a Washington representative for the Houston-based law firm of Vinson and Elkins, which has 240 partners and members. Both Connally and Coleman are partners.

The firm lists some of the nation's largest oil and gas companies among its clients. Coleman himself has represented energy firms and has been a registered lobbyist for the Houston Natural Gas Co.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, defended the nomination, claiming Coleman's experience representing industry cases gave him an expertise in energy that would be valuable to the country.

As to any potential conflicts of interest, Bentsen said, "The evidence isn't there and it doesn't exist."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who led the opposition against Coleman, said the nominee "comes directly out of the gas industry through a revolving door to become a regulator of that very interest which he is representing at this very moment."

Coleman has said he would disqualify himself from any case involving his former law firm. The firm has 17 clients which currently have cases pending before the energy agency.

HEARTLINE: I have read recently where many Congressmen are trying to cut back on some of the Social Security tax increases that were enacted into law in December of 1977. I have not really formulated any opinions yet, but I am interested in knowing more about it. Can you give me some information on this? — N.C.

There have been many influential people trying to have the new Social Security tax increases rolled back. However, in April, two authorities on Social Security urged Congressmen not to be panicked into rolling back the Social Security tax increases enacted last year.

They told the Senate finance subcommittee on Social Security that — taken as a whole — the benefit changes and tax increases voted in December were a great step forward.

Noting that an effort to roll back some of the tax increases is gathering them steam in Congress, Robert M. Ball, who headed Social Security during the Kennedy, Johnson, and Nixon administrations, said, "It would be the wiser course not to legislate on this matter at all this year."

He and Robert J. Myers, who was the nation's chief Social Security actuary for 23 years, agreed that the public has zeroed in on last year's tax increases and ignored the benefits.

The high-income workers in their early 40s, who seem to be complaining loudest about the tax increases, apparently do not realize that when they retire, their Social Security benefits will be about $21,000 a year — or more than $30,000 for a couple, Ball said.

Ball and Myers testified before the Senate panel only a day after House Democrats — claiming strong reaction from voters — went on record in favor of reducing last year's Social Security tax increase. In order to avoid cutting Social Security benefits, the House Democrats proposed making up the difference from income tax revenue.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee repeated his opposition to the proposal, and said opposition from President Carter and from senators may help block the move.

"I have a good chance of holding the line this year on that package," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said.

Nevertheless, Ullman has said the committee he heads will consider the plan.

Myers told the committee that "at the present time, there is an undue and misleading cry of crisis — even panic — about the financial effects of the 1977 amendments."

He and Ball said too many Americans think their Social Security taxes will triple during the next 10 years.

In fact, they noted, the Social Security tax will triple only for those persons who now earn more than $25,000 a year and who will be making $42,600 a year or more by 1987. Such workers paid $965 in tax in 1977; the new law would raise the maximum tax in 1987 to $3,046.

Even without the new law, Ball noted, inflation and changes mandated by an earlier law would have raised that high-income earner's Social Security tax to $2,747 in 1987. Thus, the net effect of the new law on that worker is a $299 increase.

HEARTLINE: I have a chance to start on a group health insurance policy where I am working. I have always had my insurance by myself. Can you tell me what advantages there would be in group health insurance? — N.S.

There are many advantages to having group health insurance through your employer. Here are four:

1. Premiums are lower because insurance companies can administer group plans more economically.
2. The employer or other group policyholder often pays part or all of the premium.
3. Payroll deduction is usually available for paying out a portion of the premium, in the case of an employer-employee relationship.
4. Individuals are eligible for group protection regardless of physical condition. (Normally there must be 10 or more people involved before this is true.)

Three Tech Architect

Students Win Awards

The American Iron and Steel Institute has awarded three $100 prizes to Texas Tech University architecture students for the design and execution of special projects using steel.
Winners are James Carruthers, Rick J. Denzer and Johnny White.
Carruthers designed a draftsman's chair which swings on a pedestal, making it more comfortable than the stool usually used. Denzer's designed chaise lounge of painted steel tubing with an upholstered seat and back. He upholstered it in gold velvet. White designed and executed a sculptured lamp of polished square tubing steel.
Carruthers and White are students of Robert G. Venn. Denzer is a student of Robert R. Bruno. The work was done in a course in architectural sculpture.
White, who will receive his degree this month is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. White of Corpus Christi.
Carruthers, for whom this is the second sculpture award in the "Hands-on Steel Program," expects to be graduated in August. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Carruthers, 4513 77th St. He is a graduate of Richardson Pearce High School.
Denzer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Denzer who live near Slaton, is a junior.

Errant Balloon Hurts Hobbs Man

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 29-year-old Hobbs, N.M., man remained in serious condition at Methodist Hospital here Tuesday after he nearly was suffocated by a helium-filled balloon in an incredible freak accident near Levelland this weekend.

Michael Garner reportedly became entangled in the huge double-nylon fabric balloon after it was shot down in a wild chase starting at Hobbs, N.M., Saturday.

According to lawmen, the promotional balloon was moored at a Hobbs automobile dealership when it broke loose about noon Saturday.

Garner, truck sales manager for the firm, reportedly went home, got a rifle and told his wife to call a friend, Zip Franklin, who is a rancher-pilot.

As the balloon drifted northeast toward Denver City it reportedly had reached a height of about 15,000 feet. According to Dr. Bill McCollough, a Levelland physician-pilot who was one of Garner's rescuers, this is what happened:

Franklin, a veteran pilot, had a .22-caliber rifle and began firing from the air as he pursued the balloon in his small private plane. About eight miles west of Levelland, however, after firing 200 rounds, he ran out of ammunition.

By that time, the balloon had descended a bit and ascended again as the gasses compressed within the two layers of nylon.

"He (Franklin) called the Levelland airport and told them to call me," McCollough recalled. "He said to bring a shotgun and a .22 and ammunition. I'm a friend of Zip's, and when he calls you go."

The balloon had no lights, and because it had no transponder it did not show up on aircraft radar.

"It was about 60 feet long and about 30 feet across, and it was getting close to dark," McCollough explained. "After dark it would have been a disaster. Zip was in contact with air traffic control at Lubbock, but the balloon wasn't, and it was right up there in the traffic. If a plane had come in contact with it, there would have been a disaster."

Meanwhile, McCollough's 20-year-old son Kevin, a Texas Tech University student, was circling the balloon in another light aircraft.

"We caught up with it at about 11,000 feet and it was still going up," the elder McCollough explained. "We made nine or 10 passes at it, fired six shots, and on the sixth shot, we got close enough to finally penetrate it."

"It was a frightening experience. It rotated and started down."

After falling for about six minutes, however, it still had not collapsed and about two miles south of Whitharral, it began bouncing over the ground.

Meanwhile Garner, who also had been following the balloon on the ground, had stopped in the area where it had descended.

"We saw a pickup in the turnout, and my son saw him (Garner) reach up to the balloon," McCollough explained. "I couldn't see as we turned, but Franklin recognized him (Garner)."

According to the physician, Garner, who is a rodeo performer, removed the balloon's plastic cap filler and instinctively put it in his mouth. He then apparently choked, and as his attention was drawn from the deflating balloon, he was encircled by the material.

"He was standing on part of it (the balloon), and it went around him twice. It's zero porosity nylon, which means there's no air at all going through it."

As the fliers came back around the downed balloon a second time, they lost sight of Garner.

"The balloon had quit bouncing, so we knew it was anchored on something,"

McCullough noted. "I said, 'I think he's rolled up in that thing,' because we could no longer see him."

Franklin and McCollough managed to land in a wet turnout, and then "ran as hard as we could" to the balloon about a half-mile away. Although the balloon was largely deflated, they said it still rose about 15 feet into the air.

"It pinned his arms down, just as tight as a mummy," McCollough recounted. "I was just petrified. I've never seen such a freak accident."

"When we got there he had all the appearances of a man who had been buried in a cave-in."

The physician said he managed to make an airway for the unconscious victim by using a piece of cotton stalk. Garner reportedly suffered a cardiac arrest twice, but as McCollough worked with him, his son, who had tried to call for an ambulance, went to the nearby airport and grabbed an oxygen bottle.

As the young flier drove back to the field, Franklin contacted a man by CB radio. However, the man apparently did not get to a phone to call for help.

Fortunately, another pilot, Dr. N.L. Dubberly of Morton, heard a subsequent emergency broadcast as he headed toward Lubbock. Dubberly contacted the Levelland airport, which dispatched an ambulance to the field.

While waiting for the emergency vehicle, Franklin made a track through the field by driving the pickup over the rough, muddy area.

Less than 30 minutes after Garner was loaded into the ambulance he was in Methodist's emergency room.

"The balloon had a lot of holes in it, but it was still bouncing along and we thought it was going to get on the highway," said McCollough of the time just before they spotted Garner. "We just nearly didn't stay there. We were convinced it was going to deflate and lay flat."

"The only thing that saved him was Zip going back. If he just hadn't turned back, I don't know what would have happened."

"I think Zip felt bad about it, like there should have been more we could have done," McCollough said today. "But I really don't know what else there was."

Fog, Waves Delay Hunt For Crewmen

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Thick fog and rough seas stymied Coast Guard efforts to search for two crewmen believed trapped in the wreckage of an 82-foot clam boat that capsized Tuesday off Ocean City.

The captain of the vessel, the Patti-B, and a crewman were rescued shortly after the boat sank in 28 feet of water about 4:20 a.m., said Fred Maldonado, a Coast Guard spokesman in Portsmouth, Va.

Divers from the Atlantic Strike Force were slated to search for the crewmen, who were lost when the vessel capsized near the Ocean City Inlet. They would not go out, however, until the weather improved, Maldonado said.

Visibility in the vicinity of the wreck was down to 50 feet with waves of 6-8 feet, the spokesman said. A strong undertow was also reported in the area, he added.

Chief William Thornton, of the Coast Guard here, said the anchored boat sank in stormy seas, with 7-9 foot swells and 35-knot winds.

The missing crewmen were identified as Jerry Smith and Terry Conway, both of Berlin. One of those rescued told authorities he thought the men were trapped in the wreckage.

Ray Brady, of Berlin, the Patti-B's owner and operator, was rescued from the 55-degree water by a fishing vessel.

Benjamin Tate, one of his crew, was pulled from the water by a 44-foot Coast Guard life boat and taken to a local hospital, where he was treated for shock, Maldonado said.

Both are reported in good condition, Thornton said.

The Coast Guard said Brady radioed at 1:38 a.m. that his vessel was aground just beyond the inlet. The 44-footer was dispatched and the vessel was refloated less than an hour later, the spokesman said.

The Patti-B was towed out to sea, about 1,500 yards off the beach, where it anchored, awaiting calmer seas before re-entering the inlet, Maldonado said.

"At 4:15 the captain radioed that everything was under control. At 4:20, he radioed the 44-footer and said he was capsizing," he said.

Within 13 minutes, the boat was submerged, Maldonado said.

Cambodian Refugees Subject Of Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of prominent Americans who recently visited refugee camps throughout Asia appealed Tuesday to President Carter to allow virtually all of the 15,000 Cambodian refugees in Thailand to come to the United States.

The petition applauded Carter's description of the Cambodian government as the worst violator of human rights in the world, and also praised him for his recent proposal to allow 25,000 other Southeast Asian refugees into the United States.

However, it expressed regret that "the Cambodian refugees who have suffered most and have stagnated in Thai camps for the last three years do not fit the criteria" laid out by the president for immigration paroles.

Carter proposed that Indochinese refugees from Communist takeovers in Southeast Asia be allowed to come to the United States on a priority system that would first consider family ties in America, then whether they once worked for the U.S. government, and last, whether they had to flee their homeland because of an "association" with U.S. interests.

Most of the Cambodian refugees in Thailand do not fulfill any of those criteria, said the Citizen's Commission on Indochinese Refugees, an arm of the International Rescue Committee.

The commission's members include former State Department officials William J. Casey and John Richardson, civil rights leaders Bayard Rustin and Thelma Richardson, author James Michener and a number of religious leaders. It is headed by Leo Cherne, a co-chairman of the parent committee.

Judge Asked To Order Boycott End

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge was asked Tuesday to order the National Organization for Women, Inc., to end a "blackmail boycott" of states which refuse to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

State Rep. Lane A. Carson filed a class action suit against NOW which said the organization's effort to keep conventions away from anti-ERA states threatens New Orleans with an $80 million loss.

Carson said more than 60 associations or trade organizations have either cancelled conventions plans for New Orleans, threatened cancellations, or refused to consider the city as a convention site.

He calls that an illegal secondary boycott in restraint of interstate trade and commerce.

"The suit is an attempt to halt an unfair economic war on tourism in Louisiana, commanded by militant supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment who can't victory on the merits and who have now resorted to blackmail and extortion," he said.

Carson, an ardent foe of the equal rights movement, said he sued on behalf of the Action Committee for Tourism, Inc.

The class to which the judge's ruling would apply include Louisiana hotel, motel, inn and guest house operators, retail food and beverage vendors and festival promoters.

Their letter to Carter said "We urgently and unanimously request a special parole for the 15,000 Cambodian refugees now concentrated in camps next to the Cambodian border, where they are in constant danger of Khmer Rouge killings, kidnappings and other deprivations."

"The United States does have a special responsibility to these people which flows from our role in the invasion into and bombing of Cambodia," the letter said. It went on to say that more than a million persons already have been executed by the Cambodian government, and Cherne independently told reporters he believes the figure to be more like 2 million.

Rustin said he had obtained virtually unanimous support from civil rights leaders in America for the proposal, even though the immigration of the Cambodians could aggravate the U.S. unemployment problem.

"We do not put a price tag on freedom," said Rustin. "It is our feeling that if the United States does not have the charity to deal with these people (the Cambodians), it will never have the charity to deal with unemployment in our ghettos."

Commissioners Table 1979 Howard Budget

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING — Howard County Commissioners listened to lengthy discussion Monday from Jack Watkins and Howard County tax appraiser Earl Dean, then decided to table any action on Dean's proposed $140,000 budget for 1979.

Both Watkins and Clay Reid, a Howard County farmer, protested what they called a re-evaluation of tax values, despite Dean's reassurances that there was no re-evaluation going on in his office.

Watkins attacked the financial policies of the city and school district, claiming that they are now "crying for more money," and intend to raise part of it through updated appraisal.

Replied Dean, "We don't know if all the acreage in Howard County is accounted for. I'm not advocating re-appraisal and this budget has nothing to do with re-appraisal. We are just renewing old records."

Commissioner Bill Crooker summed up the court's position. "We believe the board was formed to save money, and it still merits that. I believe that re-mapping is necessary, but others have threatened to break the board if we don't go along with it."

The commissioners also appointed R.E. McClure of Trans Regional Airlines temporary manager of the Howard County Airport.

McClure will have responsibility for the airport lights and the emergency vehicle until the county airport is shut down about July 1 in favor of the municipal airport.

WTSU Exercises Set

To be honored are more than 695 May graduates and 240 December graduates.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I am writing you in reference to my application for a hardship discharge from the Army, which was turned down because of not enough justification. I feel this application was not reviewed and judged adequately.

Army life is causing very bad marital problems between my wife and me which could result in a divorce. This problem is causing my wife's mental and physical condition to seriously deteriorate. It is also causing our eight month old baby to become very nervous and unstable.

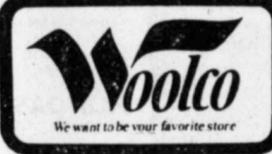

I know that if I remain in the Army any longer it will ruin my marriage and probably my wife's health, but if I am released to civilian life I am confident I can work out these problems. All I care about right now is my wife and my baby boy's health. I am asking for your help. — R.M., Augsburg, Germany

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — You should be home and out of the Army by the time you read this. I contacted officials at Fort Sam Houston in response to your request and was advised that they needed more information on two of the documents supporting your application for a hardship discharge. The documents dealt with the severity of your wife's medical condition and the way that was affecting her ability to care for your child. The additional information has now been provided and your discharge approved by the appropriate officials at Fort Sam Houston.

MESSAGE — There is a three-year waiting period for a resident alien before he can become an American citizen. I have worked for the past 13 years in the British merchant marine as a radio and radar operator, but I need a license from the Federal Communications Commission to maintain and operate shore-side radio equipment in this country. However, one is required to be an American citizen to get an FCC license. In my case, that will not be before January of 1981. Is there anything you can do to help me, as a resident alien, obtain the proper license? — C.B., Nederland

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — The FCC advised me they may issue licenses to aliens in only two cases: when the alien is an aircraft pilot and needs the license to operate aircraft radios and when the alien owns a small boat and needs a license to operate the radio on the boat. You do not need a license to operate a shortwave radio receiver, only transmitting equipment.

Do you have a problem with government? MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON cuts through the red tape to get answers to your questions about Social Security, veterans benefits, immigration matters and other problems you may have run into in your dealings with the Federal Government in Washington. Write MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON c/o Senator Lloyd Bentsen, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20519. Inquiries to MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON are sometimes edited before publication, but the intent and substance of the inquiries are maintained.

Chaparrals Down Dallas Baptist 5-2

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
ARLINGTON—Darius Copley showed why he reaped All-American recognition a year ago as he sparked Lubbock Christian into the finals of the District 8 NAIA Baseball Tournament Tuesday.

And, if history holds, the Chaparrals will defeat the survivor of today's 10 a.m. contest between Dallas Baptist College and Texas Wesleyan for a berth in the Area II tournament, to be held in Lubbock next week.

Here Wednesday, Copley rapped a 2-run homer in the third inning off loser Joe Perez and slapped a 2-run single off reliever Robert Gainte in the fifth as the Chaparrals dumped DBC 5-2.

TWC, ranked No. 1 in the district coming this double-elimination meet, ousted Midwestern 9-3 earlier Tuesday as Keith Spreckles led the way with a grand-slam homer which broke the tie wide open.

LCC, ranked tenth in the nation and No. 2 in this tournament, got a complete game from John Ross, who had lost a two-hitter to DBC a month ago. Ross was touched for eight hits, but a pair of double plays got him out of hot water and enabled him to post his eighth win in 12 decisions.

The Chaps, now 44-22, started quick. After DBC catcher Frank Delagarza dropped Tommy Inman's pop foul, Inman tripled up the alley in right center—scored on Steve Brigante's single—and DBC was behind 1-0 after Perez had faced only two batters.

In the third, Inman walked, was sacrificed to second and took third when shortstop Danny Villalobos misplayed Perez' pickoff try. But, it was all academic, as Copley unleashed his fourth homer of the year, a shot over the right-field wall.

The Chaps, who have defeated DBC in six of nine meetings this year, got their final runs in the fifth. Inman walked with one out and Brigante blooped a single to right and took second on the play at third. Copley then slapped the first pitch to right center for two runs.

Randy Blanchard led off DBC's fifth with a homer to left. The Indians, now 27-30, tallied in the sixth as Delagarza, Stan Baker and Billy Walker opened the frame with singles. But Ross got Villalobos to pop to the catcher and enticed Gene Parks and Blanchard to bounce to short.

The Chaps had a runner tossed out at the plate in the sixth. Richard Bowles reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Glen Wilken picked that time to end an 0-for-17 skid with a single to center, before Bowles was out at the plate on a bang-bang play.

Pinch-hitter Ted Howell led off the ninth with a single and Midwestern's hopes grew. But Parks forced the runner at second, Blanchard skied to right, and Eddie Saliz bounced to short. Brigante dropped the throw at second which would have ended the game. The Albuquerque sophomore got his redemption.

MHS, AHS Set Playoffs

District 4-AAAA baseball champion Monterey (26-4) will travel to Amarillo next Tuesday for the opening game in the best-of-three bidistrict playoff series with Amarillo High (17-4).

The first meeting will begin on the AHS field at 4 p.m. The teams will play the second game Friday in Lowrey Field at 2:30 p.m. A doubleheader will be played that afternoon, if necessary.

Arrangements for the series were settled Tuesday afternoon in Plainview by the Amarillo and Lubbock coaches and athletic directors. Officials flipped a coin to determine the days and sites of the games. Officials also agreed to play make-up games, if necessary, on Wednesday and Saturday.

Meanwhile, District 5-AAAA champ Midland Lee (21-8) will host the opener of its three-game bidistrict series next Tuesday at 4 p.m. against Wichita Falls High (17-5). The last games (if necessary) will be played Friday in Wichita Falls at 4 p.m.

Other bidistrict playoffs in the region remain uncertain as playoffs are played this week to determine winners in districts 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Class AAAA.

Don Henry Not Many Surprises

VIOLATIONS? WELL, EVIDENTLY there were none to speak of—or act upon. So, when there are no violations-type fireworks, interest in the meetings kinda fizzles.

Over the years, when the Southwest Conference board of governors would meet, rumors would usually form bigger clouds outside than a spring storm. The story was that everyone—except the coach doing the talking—was guilty of something.

Or, at least that was his contention. The SWC would hold its spring business meeting in conjunction with the spring athletic meets (tennis, golf, track). And usually this gathering of coaches-athletic directors-faculty reps would lead to corner discussions, and these corner discussions would spawn the rumors about who had cheated to get some blue-chip athlete.

And, just as regularly, the charges were either shown to be false or blown out of proportion. There have been stormy sessions, however—such as the one here in 1964—when more than wrists were slapped—and slapped hard, too.

But, this year, the rumors of recruiting violations within the conference seemed to be as light as at any time in several seasons. And when the faculty reps

Lots of energy was needed to keep up with the food requirements of pioneer South Plains families. Before meal preparation could begin, there was milk to separate, butter to churn, bread to bake, vegetables to can, hams to smoke, sausage to grind...all this and more, with only the most primitive of kitchen appliances. But this picture was destined for a gradual change when electricity came to Lubbock in 1902. Clifford Hunt started the first putt-putt gasoline engine that provided enough electric current for about thirty homes.

Twins' VP Working On Carew Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew, the six-time American League batting champion who says he wants to be traded to a contending team, won't be leaving the Minnesota Twins if Clark Griffith, the club's vice president, has his way.

"We're going to make every effort to make a deal with him and sign him to a new contract," said Griffith, son of Twins owner Calvin Griffith. "I'm confident we'll be able to sign him, hopefully in the near future. I don't like to go ahead with things unsettled. I'd like to get it settled earlier rather than later and it won't be a trade."

Carew, the AL's leading batter again this season with a .378 average through Monday's games, has this year plus next season's option year remaining on the three-year, $200,000-a-year contract he signed in 1976.

He reportedly wants a long-term contract in the free-agent market for an estimated $2.5 million.

Should the Twins fail to sign him by the end of the 1979 season, Carew would become a free agent, and Minnesota possibly could lose him without receiving any compensation.

His remarks that he wanted to go to a team that had a good chance of reaching the World Series before he retires and that he had a feeling he would be traded by June 15 — the major league trading deadline — were frowned upon by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and AL President Lee MacPhail.

Both suggested that Carew might be tampering with other clubs by expressing the desire to be dealt to a winner.

"They told me I am under contract and I'd better just play ball and shut up," Carew said. "Now I'm not negotiating anything. I just play. I can't negotiate during a season."

The California Angels and Texas Rangers have reportedly made trade offers for the talented hitter, who has a .335 career batting average, tops among active major leaguers.

"Somebody asked me who I'd like to go to and I said I didn't care if it was New York, Boston or California, but as it stands right now, I'm a member of the Twins and I will be until it changes," said the veteran first baseman.

He added he was somewhat upset by a letter he had received from Kuhn about his comments "because I didn't think I said anything detrimental about my condition. I just said how I felt. I wasn't saying anything to any clubs about signing."

Borg Slams Stockton In WCT Net Tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Steady Bjorn Borg, seeking his second World Championship of Tennis title, diffused Dick Stockton's powerful serve-and-volley game with an array of rumbling shots from the baseline Tuesday night for an easy 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 quarterfinal victory.

The 21-year-old Swede totally dominated the mistake-ridden Stockton after the first set, breaking Stockton's service eight of nine times and winning 12 straight games at one point.

Borg won the WCT crown in 1976 after two consecutive years as runner-up. He sat out the WCT tour last year, however, because of a contract dispute.

The home-town favorite Stockton, who lives in nearby Carrollton, overpowered Borg in the first set, winning 20 of 24 points he served and breaking Borg in the 10th game.

Don Henry

emerged Saturday from behind the closed doors of decision, their announcements of action contained no mention of infractions or reprimands.

THE FACT THAT the reps didn't announce any such moves is not unexpected; many of their guilty verdicts go unreported publicly. The major violations, the ones which have received wide advance publicity, bring public sentences. But, quite often, the consequences come in the form of private reprimands, which leak out only when the violators admit to it.

But, this year, the rumors were even louder and sporadic. This, as much as the public sentences, told of a quieter year.

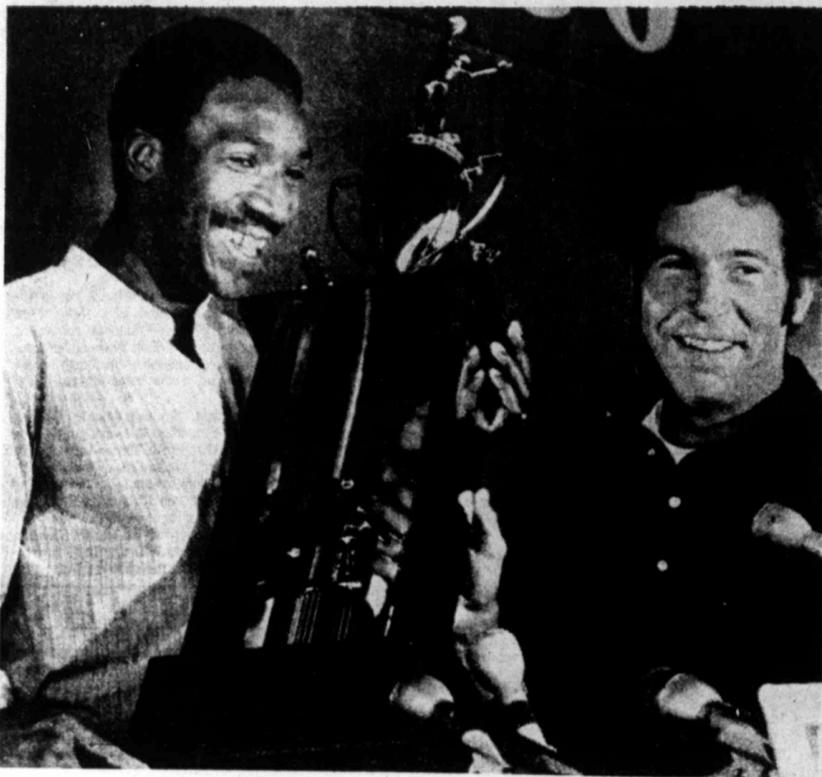

BUT, WHILE THE violations committees were getting a rest, the basketball overseers had plenty of business. The changes seemed to be met with general approval.

One of the moves was to change the format for the post-season tournament. For three years, the SWC followed the same plan: The conference winner got a bye to the finals, where it met the tourney leader.

Twice, that SWC winner lost to one of the others, and this year, with co-champs where one team had to struggle back to the finals—or tried to get there—there was discontent.

Naturally, much of the discontent came from Arkansas, which had to go through the tournament proper, while Texas waited and watched and saved its all for the Saturday-night finals.

So, last week, the SWC amended its bracket, to allow the top two teams to get byes to the semifinals and the third-pla-

Suns' Walter Davis Receives Award As NBA's Top Rookie

PHOENIX (AP) — Walter Davis, a Pineville, N.C., forward picked No. 1 last year by the Phoenix Suns, was named Rookie of the Year in the National Basketball Association on Tuesday.

"I'm very happy to receive this award," the 6-6, 195-pounder from the University of North Carolina said at a news conference as he was handed a tall trophy by Suns' General Manager Jerry Colangelo.

"I'm sort of sad, too, because I really think a lot of Marques Johnson and Bernard King," said Davis, 23.

Johnson, of the Milwaukee Bucks, received 10 1/4 votes to 49 1/4 for Davis. King of the New Jersey Nets polled 5 1/4; Jack Sikma of the Seattle SuperSonics drew one vote; and Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers finished with one-quarter of a vote.

One of the association's 66 sportswriters and broadcasters split his post-season vote four ways.

"I can't really take all the credit," said Davis, praising Suns' Coach John McLeod and his teammates.

Colangelo said the award will mean a financial bonus for Davis, but cited Suns policy in declining to give a figure.

"It's gratifying to do so well in the draft," Colangelo added, noting that Suns center Alan Adams was named Rookie of the Year in 1975-76 and Suns guard Ron Lee finished second to Adrian Dantley, then of Buffalo, in last year's balloting.

Davis said being drafted by the Suns was "a blessing in disguise because Phoenix is one of the teams I knew the least about."

Helping the Suns to a 49-33 record, he averaged 24.2 points per game, set a franchise-record .526 field-goal percentage, and led the Suns in free-throw accuracy with .830.

Davis, who was named to the NBA All-Star squad in February, scored in double figures in 80 straight games, making 10 points in the fourth quarters of 25 contests.

"I had no personal goals for myself," Davis said, recalling his entry into the NBA. "I just wanted to make the team and contribute."

"I still want to be part of an NBA championship team."

Westerners' Bats Explode

HEREFORD (Special) — Lubbock High batters shelled both Hereford starters in the first inning and the Westerners coasted to 20-6 and 8-2 wins over the Herd Tuesday.

The sweep ended Lubbock High's season at 18-13 overall, 7-9 in district and the Westerners tied Plainview for third place in the 4-AAAA loop standings behind Monterey and Coronado. Last-place Hereford finished 7-20 for the year and 1-15 in league play.

The Westerners bombed Hereford starter Kevin Bunch for 6 runs in the first inning of the opener and added 3 more in the second inning and 7 in the third off relief pitcher Chris Hill.

Two Pro Cage Games Slated

By The Associated Press

Mutiny on the Bounty was a picnic compared to the Philadelphia 76ers.

Players miss practices. They growl at each other on the floor. Occasionally, they scream at the coach.

Even the captain of the good ship 76ers, George McGinnis, recently came unglued. He bitterly complained about his playing time.

The bottom line now is that this team of great talent is one game away from ignominy.

The 76ers trail the Washington Bullets 3-1 in their best-of-seven game National Basketball Association Eastern playoff finals. The fifth game is in Philadelphia tonight.

The 76ers held a secret practice Monday. In fact, all practices since coach Billy Cunningham took over early this season, have been private. The best guess is that Cunningham doesn't want the public to know how his team practices.

Substitute Joe Bryant missed the practice in Washington Saturday before Sunday's blowout by the Bullets in Game 4. He said he missed connecting on a telephone call with the trainer and arrived 30 minutes late.

On Sunday, Bryant played just four minutes in a game in which his excellent defensive ability was needed. He certainly could have helped.

Why didn't he play much? Bryant figures that was his punishment.

Two players didn't make Monday's practice. Doug Collins went to see his critically ill father in St. Louis.

Lloyd Free also was a no-show. Cunningham said Free was attending to some business. Free arrived late and said he had to go to a funeral.

"It was the hardest workout of the year," said Bryant of Monday's practice session.

Bryant said of the 90-minute workout, "They all should have been like that. We would have been a better, crisper team with practice. We would have known the individual plays better."

What a time to start learning the plays, one game away from a possible long vacation.

The Bullets, led by the "Big E." Elvin Hayes, Bob Dandridge and Kevin Grevey, have to be favored to end the series either Wednesday night or Friday at home.

Coach Dick Motta's team has consistently outperformed and outthumbed Philadelphia. There are many who believe the Sixers are being outcoached.

Washington has sagged into the middle, forcing the 76ers to take perimeter shots. And those shots haven't been dropping.

Ironically, Philadelphia's best outside shooters are Collins and Free.

Denver-Seattle

Larry Brown is over his foul mood about fouls. Or maybe only almost over.

"I don't want our players to use this (fouls) as an excuse, or the officials to think we're bad-mouthing them," said Brown, coach of the Denver Nuggets, as his team approached the first of two playoff games here tonight against the Seattle SuperSonics.

"I looked at the films today, and I think we fouled. But I think they did too."

The films Brown watched were of the Nuggets' 121-111 loss Sunday to Seattle in Denver. The Sonic win squared the National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff series at a game apiece.

Almost in chorus, Brown and his players denounced the officials after the Sunday game. Seattle hit 35 of 49 foul shots in the Sunday game, while Denver had only 26 chances, hitting 21.

In Friday's series opener at Denver, the Sonics went to the line 62 times and hit a record 47 free throws.

Brown and his Nuggets think it a bit unfair, somehow.

"I just wish the officials would be more consistent," he said. "It's disconcerting to a team to know what's called and what's not called."

But Brown acknowledged there was another big factor in Denver's Sunday loss — a defense that didn't perform during the decisive closing minutes of the game.

"Our guards got killed defensively," he said.

Sonic sub guard Fred Brown tossed in 15 points in the final quarter.

Still, it comes back to those fouls. Brown said one reason the Sonic guards did so well was that David Thompson, Denver's backcourt scoring ace, was forced to defense Brown. Normally, Bobby Wilkerson would draw that assignment, but Wilkerson was handicapped — five fouls.

"We just have to continue to play aggressively," said Denver forward Bobby Jones, who is something of a medical miracle. Jones before each game takes medication for an irregular heartbeat, and another to ward off seizures.

Says Nugget center Dan Issel: "It's stupid to dwell on the fouls."

Issel may instead have to dwell on his health. He sat out Monday's practice with a painful right arch, and Brown said the big man "is pretty hurt right now."

Issel, though, is expected to play Wednesday in a matchup with Sonic center Marvin Webster, a former Nugget.

So far, the competition between centers is relatively even. Webster has scored 42 points and collected 23 rebounds in the two games while blocking 11 shots. Issel has scored 54 points and pulled in 25 rebounds.

Seattle has three players at less than top form. Sparkplug guard Dennis Johnson is hampered by a dislocated finger, but that injury is reported improving.

Pact Concerns Committee, LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The International Olympic Committee and the city of Los Angeles have each proposed contracts for the 1984 Summer Games, but the two are currently far apart.

Mayor Tom Bradley and Los Angeles' Olympic delegation will meet with IOC officials in Greece Saturday, hoping to sign a contract that will secure the Games. But the differences between the city and the IOC over a contract will have to be ironed out if the agreement is to be signed.

The most prominent point of contention is over control of finances. Essentially, Los Angeles' contract draft contains proposals giving the city veto power over any IOC requirements that would increase the cost of hosting the Olympics. But the IOC, in its contract, contains no mention of any cost-control veto for the local committee.

Monday, city officials received a telegram from IOC Executive Director Monique Berlioux, who said the IOC would not consider the city's contract until the city replies to the IOC's standard contract. That was given to Los Angeles officials at a meeting with IOC representatives in Mexico City last month.

Anton Calleia, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley's Olympics liaison, said IOC President Lord Killanin was "very concerned" about the city's proposed contract.

Despite the telegram, the city's Ad Hoc Committee for the Games approved the city contract by a 3-2 vote and said it found the April 11 IOC contract unacceptable.

The committee also voted to extend Los Angeles' bid for 30 days, to June 17, nearly a month after the IOC meeting in Athens concludes.

Columbus Eyes Second AA Title

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staffs

When the Class AA State meet opens in Memorial Stadium Friday night, Columbus will be seeking its second title in the last three years. And from all indications, the Cardinals might just grab it.

Columbus, led by quarter-miler Charles Love (48.2), brings two relay teams to the meet, as well as some top performers in the long jump and pole vault.

However, Slaton, a team which also sports a pair of relay squads and some top runners of its own, could challenge for the AA crown.

In the 440 relay, the Cardinals posted the best time of any of the eight teams entered, running a 42.4 at the regional competition. Slaton, which placed second behind Dimmitt, garnered a 43.4, fifth among the group of teams.

The Tigers could pick up valuable points in the 800-yard dash where Steve White trails only Charles Pruitt of Panhandle. Pruitt had a 1:56.8 to win the Region 1 title, while White was second with a 1:57.9.

Columbus is almost assured of an easy 10 points in the 440. Love, tied for fifth in the state with three others, holds a narrow .2-second lead over Jerry Wallace of Boys Ranch. Wallace, the Region 1 champ, rocketed to a surprising 48.3 two weeks ago.

Besides Wallace and Love, two others, Anthony Goudsby of Hooks and Harry Woodson of Weimar, have also broken the 49-second barrier.

The Cards own one distinct advantage over the Tigers, and it's an important one.

Led by Love, Columbus reeled off a 3:19.3 in the mile relay. The time is the quickest in the bunch. Slaton's regional time was a 3:21.0, nearly two full seconds in front of second-place Boys Ranch.

Slaton also finds itself with many a competitor in any of the five field events, while Columbus has two capable of bringing home first-place points.

In the pole vault, Jimmy Jordin cleared 13-6, a height which ties the Columbus vaulter for second place with two other leapers. Brady Pursley of Merkel brings the top vault to the meet, 14-0.

One of the top events of the AA competition could come in the long jump where Ronnie Porcey of Luling and LaRay Perkins of Columbus are set to vie.

The duo squared off in a classic jump-off at regionals as Porcey went 24-4 and Perkins 23-7½.

Red Sox Edge Kansas City 4-3

By The Associated Press

Boston slugger Jim Rice gave Kansas City's Jim Colborn a verbal warning after being hit with a pitch in the fifth inning, then belted a two-run homer in the seventh Tuesday night as the Red Sox extended their winning streak to seven games with a 4-3 victory over the Royals.

Rice was hit on the left arm by a pitch from Colborn with one out in the fifth. He took to the mound and warned Colborn, but no punches were thrown, even though both dugouts emptied.

High School Pitcher Hot Item

SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — Rip Rollins may do something no baseball player has done since David Clyde was drafted by the Texas Rangers in June 1973 — go straight from high school to the major leagues.

Allegheny High's Collins has drawn rapt observers from every big-league team this year. They've all come to see the husky senior who has pitched and batted his way in storybook fashion.

The Trojans lead the Blue Ridge 2-A Conference with a 10-0 record, and Rollins has picked up eight of the wins. His blistering fast ball, clocked at 89 mph by a Los Angeles Dodgers timing gun, is about the average speed that major league pitchers throw at age 24.

Rollins has performed outstanding feats in his senior year. He struck out 18 of 21 North Wilkes batters he faced last Tuesday in the Trojans' 8-1 win. The other three outs were two bounders back to the box. He didn't complete the game.

Not only a good pitcher, Rollins has lashed Blue Ridge Conference pitching for a team-leading .615 average and six homers. In Friday's win over Avery County, he fled to deep center in the first inning before being walked twice. "Intentionally walked," insists coach Bill Jarrett.

He was a star quarterback on the Trojans championship football team that went to the first round of the state playoffs.

In a 16-13 win over Beaver Creek, Rollins scored both touchdowns on short runs, rushed for 109 yards and passed for 103. That brought the college football scouts begging for his signature.

Rollins has signed a football letter-of-intent to attend South Carolina, but Jarrett says the June 16 baseball draft may alter his decision.

Boxing Writers Name Robinson Top Fighter

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, the man for whom the "pound for pound" cliché was coined, was voted the best boxer who ever lived in balloting of the Boxing Writers of America announced Tuesday.

In the category of best over-all boxer, Robinson, who held the world middleweight and welterweight titles, out-pollied former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali by a 4-1 margin. Exact tabulation of votes was not released.

Joe Louis, also a former heavyweight champion, was third in the balloting, which was conducted by the boxing writers in conjunction with Home Box Office pay-television's six-part series, "Boxing's Greatest Champions." The final segment in the series will premier Thursday, May 11, on the cable television network at 7 p.m. CDT.

"I couldn't be more grateful," Robinson said in a telephone hookup from his home in Los Angeles to the New York offices of HBO — subsidiary of Time-Life — where a special screening of the series was held Tuesday for newsmen.

"It's a great boost from you fellas," Robinson, who came six minutes from also becoming the world light heavyweight champion when he failed to answer the bell for the 14th round against Joey Maxim in 1952, also was selected the top middleweight and welterweight boxer.

Robinson called Ali "the best around today. He's got a lot on the ball." However, Robinson added: "The smaller fellas generally are the better boxers. Boxing is an art of self defense, and it's always the smaller, lighter fellows who learn to box for defense — and offense."

Oddly enough, after finishing second to Ali in the over-all balloting, Louis was voted the top heavyweight over Ali. Rocky Marciano was voted third with Jack Dempsey and Jack Johnson tied for fourth.

The best light heavyweight was Archie Moore, followed by Billy Conn and Bob Fitzsimmons.

Following Robinson in the middleights was Carlos Monzon of Argentina, who recently retired as world champion, and Mickey Walker, nicknamed "The Toy Bulldog."

Henry Armstrong — who held three titles at the same time, featherweight, lightweight and welterweight — was second in the welterweight balloting, ahead of Barney Ross.

World lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama was the only contemporary fighter to win his category. In fact, he and Ali were the only active fighters picked in the top five of their categories. Benny Leonard was second in the lightweight division, followed by Armstrong.

There was no balloting in the bantamweight, featherweight or junior divisions, and each writer cast one ballot per category.

Brownfield Tops Golden Tors 8-3

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Brownfield scored four runs in the fifth inning to break up a close game and defeat Lamesa 8-3 Tuesday.

The victory sets up a second-half championship battle Friday in Snyder between Brownfield and Snyder. Each team now stands 3-2 for the second half in the District 3-AAA race and Snyder won the first half outright.

Kelly Reid and David Harrell drove in two runs each for Brownfield (12-12). Reid, Harrell and Raul Romero each went 2-for-3 for the winners.

The loss ended Lamesa's season at 4-7 in district and 9-15 overall.

Aeros' Owner Says Club After NHL Spot

HOUSTON (AP) — The majority owner of the Houston Aeros says efforts to obtain a National Hockey League franchise will continue despite failure of the World Hockey Association team's campaign to sell 7,000 season tickets.

"We will continue our merger discussions with existing NHL teams," Kenneth Schnitzer said.

Schnitzer mentioned no specific NHL teams but speculation has centered on the Cleveland and Colorado franchises.

"I wish to emphasize that success is not guaranteed, only that we will continue to use our best efforts," he said.

Schnitzer earlier had acknowledged having had discussions with owners of the Cleveland team.

A prepared statement was released in Schnitzer's behalf after a Monday tabulation revealed a 30-day campaign that ended last Thursday night brought in 6,391 orders for season tickets but with only 4,987 being accompanied by a 10 percent down payment.

A preliminary Friday count had indicated 6,800 orders had been received. A spokesman said duplications discovered Monday reduced the number.

In announcing the 30-day campaign, Schnitzer had said the current owners would not operate an Aeros' team next season if the 7,000 goal failed.

His new statement, however, indicates the response was sufficient.

"Even though the numbers fall short of our goal, the present ownership group has decided to continue its best efforts to gain admission to the National Hockey League and thus keep the Aeros in Houston," Schnitzer said.

He said he expects the Houston application to be submitted in time for the NHL annual meeting on June 12.

The application, he said, will include "certain conditions that the present owners consider essential to the success of the franchise, including the right on our part to protect certain key players, some of whom have strong followings among Houston fans, from a dispersal draft."

"There also will be a requirement that no economic conditions be imposed upon acceptance of our application which would make the continued investment in the franchise an unrealistic business proposition for our ownership group," he said.

"Naturally, the same conditions which will be contained in our NHL application must be acceptable to any NHL team with which we have merger discussions."

When the Schnitzer group gained ownership of the Aeros earlier this year it was announced the WHA had authorized the group to seek NHL membership.

NEW YORK (AP) — Talks involving a proposed series of exhibition bouts at Madison Square Garden between former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and Teofilo Stevenson, the two-time Olympic heavyweight champ from Cuba, have been broken off.

"There is no chance that it will happen in Madison Square Garden," Mike Burke, president of the Garden, said Tuesday.

The series was to be held in June and would have consisted of three-round bouts to be fought on five consecutive nights. Amateur rules were to be used in the match.

The fabled "Home Run" Baker led the American League in four-baggers in 1914 with eight.

Teams Put On Shift For Bosox' Jim Rice

TOO LATE — Boston catcher Carlton Fisk reaches out to tag Kansas City's Fred Patek, but the Royals' shortstop slid into home plate to score before Fisk tagged him. The action took place in the third inning Tuesday night of the teams' game in Boston's Fenway Park. (AP Laserphoto)

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams' slugging started the trend and now Jim Rice's power hitting for the Boston Red Sox is forcing opposing managers to put fielders in odd places.

The Jim Rice shift — four outfielders, three infielders — was created Monday night by Kansas City Royals' Manager Whitey Herzog, who sought to cool off the American League's top slugger.

Rice had doubled in his first at bat in the game won by Boston 8-4. When he came to bat in the third inning, the big outfielder was temporarily baffled.

"I turned to the umpire (Mike Reilly) and asked if they had too many men on the field," said Rice. "He said, 'No, they just have four outfielders'. I figured I better get up there and swing."

He rapped the first pitch from Dennis Leonard to deep center field where Amos Otis hauled it in.

Later, Rice lifted a towering pop that fell for an infield hit when White and shortstop Fred Patek got their signals crossed in the makeshift infield alignment.

Herzog's maneuver recalled the move by Cleveland Indians Manager Lou Boudreau against Williams, 22 years ago in the second game of a doubleheader.

Williams had hit three home runs in the first game, and Boudreau installed three infielders on the right side as a challenge to the future Hall of Famer's pull hitting.

Herzog said he's tried the Rice version before, in 1973 as Texas Ranger Manager

Delay Helps

Yarborough

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Cale Yarborough said Tuesday he could be helped by the weeklong delay of the $252,775 Winston 500 stock car race at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

He said his Oldsmobile blew an engine on the last lap of practice last Saturday, the day before rain forced a delay in the race until next Sunday.

"We would have started the race on a new engine that we didn't know that much about," said Yarborough, who has never won here. "We put the new engine in late Saturday afternoon and finished hooking everything up Sunday morning so we would have been starting the race on an untested engine."

His crew chief, Junior Johnson, said the team will install a new engine Saturday for practice runs that afternoon.

against Minnesota Twins slugger Harmon Killebrew.

"I've been looking at the box scores," said Herzog. "I've been watching the way he's hitting the ball. After that double, I said, 'It's time.'"

"I tried to hit the ball like any other time," said Rice, who leads the major leagues in RBI with 32. "I guess they were trying to psyche me out."

Rice leads the AL in home runs—nine—RBI, slugging percentage, runs total bases and triples. He's hitting .369.

"It's a tribute to the power of Jimmy Rice," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "It made common sense. It was a sound move. But when Rice hits it, no one will catch it."

In the seventh inning Monday night, Herzog took no chances, ordering an intentional walk for Rice with two outs and Boston leading 5-4. Boston veteran Carl Yastrzemski then hit the second pitch from ace reliever Al Hrabosky for a three-run home run that clinched the Red Sox victory.

Lineup Slated For 1980 Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — England will return to the fray with France, Australia and Sweden in 1980 when the New York Yacht Club puts the America's Cup on the line for the 23rd time since 1870.

The club's America's Cup Committee announced Tuesday the receipt of challenges from six foreign yacht clubs — the largest number of challenges in the prestigious sailing trophy's history.

Henry H. Anderson Jr., commodore of the New York Yacht Club, said England will be back in the competition for the first time since 1964, when the Royal Thames Yacht Club dispatched Sovereign to Newport.

In 1980, the Royal Southern Yacht Club of England and the Societe des Regats Rochelaises of France will be newcomers to the century-old sailing event, Anderson said.

"Obviously we've got a lot to learn about who some of these people are," Anderson, a Newport resident, said. "But we're pleased. This will be the most (challenged) ever."

Foreign yacht clubs that have been to Newport before and are mounting challenges again in 1980 are the Yacht Club D'Huyeres of France, the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron of Australia, the Royal Perth Yacht Squadron of Western Australia, and the Royal Yacht Club of Gothenburg, Sweden.

All but Royal Southern, Societe des Regats and Royal Perth, sponsor of Southern Cross in 1974, were entered in the 1977 races, in which Courageous swept Australia in four straight races.

Baron Marcel Bich, the ballpoint pen magnate and owner of more 12-meter yachts than anyone in the world, sailed under the banner of Yacht Club D'Huyeres last summer.

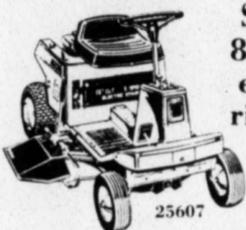

In 1977, Gordon Ingate skippered Gretel II for Royal Sydney. Alan Bond provided most of the backing for the Sun City Yacht Club's Australia and Pelle Pettersson was at the helm of Sweden's Sverige.

Pettersson, who designed Sverige for Sweden's first-ever challenge, has said he will return with the same yacht. However, it won't be known for some time which other yachts will be competing.

The Societe des Regats has purchased 1958 American defender Columbia from the Sverige syndicate.

Pele Favors Brazilians, W. Germans

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele, who knows a thing or two about soccer, thinks his native Brazil and defending champion West Germany will be at war June 25 in the finals of the World Cup, the most fervently nationalistic event in sports today.

The legendary Brazilian, who led his country to world titles in 1958, 1962 and 1970, wouldn't hazard a guess as to the June 25 survivor. But he did admit either of these two favored teams could be upset before the expected showdown.

Pele mentioned Argentina, a strong but undisciplined team, as a prime upset possibility. The Argentinians, said to be the best team never to win the World Cup, are like pro basketball's Philadelphia 76ers — the best pickup players in the world, but not the best team.

The Argentinians will be playing before their home fans, which could be a major advantage or disadvantage in the emotional setting of World Cup soccer.

"If it's like Brazil, the Argentinians will not be allowed to lose a game at home," Pele said Tuesday at a luncheon at Madison Square Garden. "If they do lose, the pressure on them will be very tough."

"But I would prefer to play against Germany in Argentina than Argentina."

Pele was here because he will be part of the broadcasting team that will bring the June extravaganza to a world-wide audience. MagnaVerde has the U.S. broadcasting rights and plans to air matches on closed-circuit television at more than 55 locations in over 40 cities.

"We just signed up Raleigh (N.C.) and Monterey, (Calif.), and these cities didn't even know soccer existed four years ago," said Fred Landman, vice president of MagnaVerde.

Pele, universally accepted as the most gifted player to ever wear a pair of knee socks, is the man most responsible for this new soccer interest in the U.S. Pele last played World Cup soccer in 1970.

The Cosmos of the North American Soccer League lured him out of retirement in 1975, and he retired again in 1977 after leading the Cosmos to the NASL title.

The U.S. national squad did not make the final 16 teams that will begin play in Argentina June 1. The U.S. team competed in the CONCACAF Zone, which was comprised of teams from Canada, Central America and the Caribbean. Only one team from the CONCACAF Zone, Mexico, qualified.

In contrast, because of the higher quality of play in other parts of the world, the European Zone got nine teams into the final 16 and the South American Zone had three berths.

The final 16 has four groups, and Pele predicted that Italy and Argentina would qualify from Group I; Poland and West Germany from Group II; Spain and Brazil from Group III, and The Netherlands and Scotland from Group IV.

He said Italy, West Germany, Brazil and Argentina would then move on to the semifinals, with West Germany and Brazil meeting in the final.

The nationalism of this event is so fierce that violence and death threats are often a part of the World Cup scene.

Pele, who constantly traveled with a bodyguard, laughed about receiving numerous death threats during his 14 years on the Brazilian national team.

"Many times they told me they would kill me, and I'm very much alive."

Colonial Invites SWC Champion

FORT WORTH (AP) — Officials of the Colonial National Invitation Tournament said Tuesday that the Southwest Conference golf champion will be invited to play in next year's $300,000 tournament.

Tournament chairman Bill Spears made the announcement at a news conference in which he formally disclosed the 1979 purse was being hiked by $100,000 from its current $200,000 figure.

"We want the best of everything here," Spears said, noting that "the increase guarantees a first-class tournament and puts us on a level with other major tournaments."

Spears said on the eve of Colonial's 30th anniversary that the board of governors decided to invite the SWC individual titlist as an incentive to collegiate golf.

He also confirmed the so-called "Texas tour" will begin the first week in May with the Houston Open and will be followed on consecutive weeks by the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas and Colonial.

The tour this year moved from Houston to New Orleans before returning last week to Dallas for the Nelson.

"Frankly, we like it," Spears said when asked about the back-to-back Dallas and Fort Worth shootouts. "It's good for the players and good for the tour."

"It hasn't hurt Dallas and it hasn't hurt us. I think the Texas tour is a good thing. I wish we could get San Antonio in there."

Portions of this year's Colonial, which begins Thursday, will be televised nationally by CBS Saturday and Sunday.

Roswell's Farley Signs With Tech

Rhonda Farley, basketball-volleyball player from Roswell, N.M., has signed a letter-of-intent with Texas Tech.

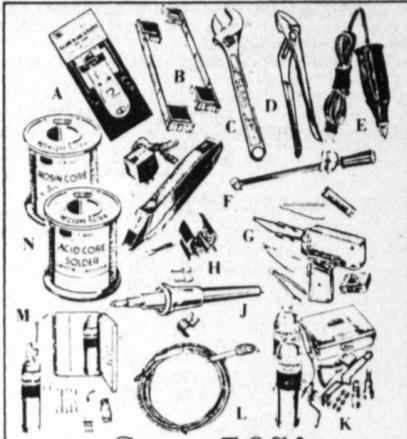

The 6-1 Farley will play both sports at Tech, also. She was highly recruited by Navy and Utah State, as well as Tech.

She is the second basketball player to ink with Tech. Earlier, Rose Penkulis of Schertz-Clemens became the Raiders' first signee.

Stain Musial played in 3,026 games for the St. Louis Cardinals and made 3,630 hits.

Coach Uses Yoga To Train Trackmen

SAN MARCOS, Calif. (AP)—The United States is going to try stretching its athletes' muscles and their training time—with yoga.

At least 30 athletes hoping to compete in the 1984 Olympics will be involved, and their special coach, Meridith Lloyd, says the program will be a demanding one.

The yoga-styled exercises and special diets at Palomar College, where she is assistant men's track coach, are credited with helping the team win every dual meet last year, as well as the California state junior college baseball championship.

"We know how taxing and strenuous it can be," Meridith said.

"Those of us who know how far we can extend our bodies know how much effort it takes to do certain yoga exercises. The Olympic contenders, like my athletes at Palomar, may cry for mercy."

A 35-year-old recognized as a yoga expert, she recently was appointed by the U. S. Olympic Committee to a coaching committee assigned to develop high jumpers and pole vaulters for the Games, still six years off.

Such a long-range program "is a marvelous idea," said Coach Lloyd, who plans to begin her first season with 15 high jumpers and 15 pole vaulters at a clinic next month at Cal State Hayward.

She expects to work with world-class athletes in such four-day camps twice a year and keep in touch by telephone and mail.

A special nutrition class at Palomar, also Lloyd's idea, will be introduced to the Olympians.

"We wanted to get to these athletes early in the year so they could get themselves out of the habit of a bad diet, so they'd stop eating junk food," she said of Palomar jumpers.

To replace some of the electrolytes lost in exercise, Lloyd recommends sea foods as well as foods with sodium, saying "Athletes need the carbohydrates and minerals that are washed out of the body."

The track and field men are encouraged to take a heavy dose of Vitamin B and a variety of minerals, fruits and vegetables with several small meals daily instead of a few heavy ones.

"I try to encourage the athletes to spread out their food intake so they are constantly getting a supply of energy," Lloyd said.

Among her exercises is one used after the first jump in a track meet, a shoulder stand with feet elevated above the head "so the legs are fresher on the second and third jumps."

Muscle flexibility will be emphasized with the Olympians.

"When a muscle is made more flexible, there is much less chance for injury," said Lloyd. "There is also a better chance for strength and power. These Olympic athletes are competing at such a high level that an injury can make a big difference."

Group Begins New Golf Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—The World Golf Association, offering weekend golfers a chance to play in a tournament for a hoped-for $3 million in prizes, was launched Tuesday.

The WGA was unveiled by Wes Parker, former Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman and commissioner of the golf group headquartered in Newport Beach, Calif.

Parker said the amateurs and non-touring pros would pay a $25 entry fee, from which the purses would come. Parker said he's counting on 200,000 entries.

The WGA's annual Classic will be a 72-hole medal-play tournament, according to Parker, who retired from baseball after the 1972 season. The tourney would have a first prize of $150,000 and a total purse of more than $1 million.

In addition, another $2 million could be won during the five 18-hole qualifying rounds that lead to the Classic. The first Classic is scheduled to take place in November 1979 at the El Prado course in Chino, Calif.

"The top prizes will be bigger than any on the pro circuit," he said. "In effect, the Classic will provide the setting for the 'Horatio Alger' story of golf."

Parker, an avid golfer who has a 12-handicap at the Los Angeles Country Club, said the 200 who advance to the Classic will have earned $2.125 in purses while capturing their five rounds of regional qualifying.

In addition to the $150,000 Classic first prize, second place will be worth $100,000, third $75,000, fourth $60,000, fifth $50,000 and sixth $35,000.

The WGA commissioner added that all other Classic competitors will earn cash ranging from $14,000 down to $2,000 even if they fail to make the 36-hole cut.

WGA membership is open to any non-pro, man or woman, 21 or older, with the $25 fee going up to $35 after July 31.

Blackwood's Entry Wins Pigeon Race

Joe Blackwood's entry won the 520-mile race staged by the Lubbock Racing Pigeon Club. The club flew its birds from Beaumont over the weekend.

Tom Noble owned the second-place finisher, and Sam Smith's entries finished third, fourth and fifth. The winning entry was timed at 36.6 miles per hour.

The club will fly from Beaumont again this week.

SOCCER PLAN

MONTREAL (AP)—World soccer's ruling body, FIFA, has dismissed as preposterous a plan by Montreal's Olympic installations board to send a two-man delegation to Argentina next month to bid for the 1990 World Cup.

Winter Wheat Crop Estimated 16 Percent Less Than In 1977

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Tuesday estimated the 1978 winter wheat crop at 1.284 billion bushels, down 16 percent from last year and three percent below a previous forecast issued last December.

The new forecast, based on May 1 conditions, showed farmers were taking part in a government production control program that was put into effect to help curb a mounting, price-depressing surplus of the bread grain.

Under the program, wheat farmers who want to qualify for government price support on this year's crop are required to idle one acre of cropland for every five acres they plant to wheat. Officials say later reports could show further cutbacks if growers take advantage of a government offer of subsidy payments on wheat acreage used for grazing or hay instead of grain production.

The department's crop reporting board said prospects declined from the December forecast mainly because of dry conditions in the southern plains and excess moisture and winter damage in the Midwest soft red winter wheat area.

The forecast indicated that total 1978 wheat production — including both winter and spring wheat — may fall below two billion bushels for the first time since 1974.

The 1978 winter wheat estimate was 243 million bushels below last year's crop of 1.527 billion bushels, and was the smallest crop since the 1.272 billion harvest of 1973. The record winter wheat crop, 1.651 billion bushels, was harvested in 1975.

No production forecasts have been made yet for spring-planted wheat, although planting estimates for those grains indicate farmers intended to seed 17.3 million acres, down eight percent from 1977.

Agriculture Department experts, however, believe the spring crop could reach about 500 million bushels with good weather or 400 million bushels if the weather is poor. That could push the overall 1978 wheat harvest to a roughly projected range of between 1.7 billion bushels and 1.8 billion bushels, depending on weather conditions.

Last year's total crop was 2.026 billion bushels following the record 1976 harvest of 2.142 billion and the 1975 crop of 2.134 billion bushels.

The May 1 report estimated that 39,558,000 acres of winter wheat will be harvested compared with 48,419,000 acres last year. Officials estimated per acre yields this year at 32.5 bushels compared with 31.5 bushels last year.

The crop reporting board said per acre yields appear to be more than those of years ago in the central and northern plains but less than those of a year ago in the drought-plagued southern plains and in soft red winter areas. Moisture, which began falling in the dry southern regions about May 1, may have been too late for some farmers but should improve the crop in parts of western Oklahoma and Kansas and eastern Colorado.

In Kansas, the nation's leading winter wheat state, the report estimated winter wheat production at 325.5 million bushels compared with 344.9 million last year and 339 million two years ago.

Wheat prices, buoyed by a combination of strong farmer demand and heavy deposits in a government-sponsored grain reserve program, have improved sharply since reaching a low of $2.04 a bushel last summer. By mid-April, prices had recovered to $2.83 a bushel compared with $2.37 a year ago and $3.50 two years ago.

Congress, responding to insistent complaints by farmers, last week completed action on legislation authorizing the administration to raise income support payments to producers of wheat and several other crops. Administration officials were expected to use the new authority to raise the $3 a bushel wheat "target" price to $3.40 a bushel.

If actual market average prices from June through October are below the support "target," the government must make up the difference with direct payments to farmers. The higher subsidies, however, are not expected to affect government forecasts that retail food prices this year will be six to eight percent above 1977.

Ford Follows GM, Chrysler Price Increase Actions

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. Tuesday increased prices on all new cars by an average of $91 or 1.3 percent following similar increases during the past two weeks by General Motors and Chrysler.

"We believe this increase is modest," said Gordon B. MacKenzie, Ford vice president for sales.

In a statement echoing those of the other two members of the Big Three automakers, MacKenzie said the higher prices still would not recover higher costs for labor and material.

The increases by the three companies were the first applying across all model lines since the new models were introduced last fall.

GM's increase averaged $100 per car or 1.4 percent. Chrysler prices went up 1.4 percent or $90 per car.

MacKenzie said Ford discussed the price increase with presidential inflation adviser Robert Strauss. The other two companies had said the same thing.

Ford "assured him that we will meet or beat President Carter's inflation-deceleration goals on an annual basis," MacKenzie said.

Ford's $91 increase includes $60 on the suggested retail price per car and $31 on the average load of options, the company said.

The increase does not apply to cars ordered before Tuesday.

Wheat supplies will be heavy in the coming year, even with a reduced crop. Agriculture Department economists estimate that when the marketing year for 1978 wheat begins on June 1, carryover reserve stocks of the grain will be 1.205 billion bushels, up 93 million from a year earlier and the biggest surplus since 1963.

Prospects for cutting the surplus in the coming year depend on what weather does to 1978 production here and abroad, officials said. A recent forecast said that with bad global weather, demand could outrun the 1978 crop and pull the stockpile down as low as 833 million bushels by mid-1979. With good weather, on the other hand, the surplus could rise by as much as 125 million bushels.

PLANS PROGRAM — Reagan Brown, Texas commissioner of agriculture, said Tuesday he will go to Washington to meet with Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and try to work out a long-range farm program for Texas. (AP Laserphoto)

Ag Secretary, Brown To Meet

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday he will talk with Secretary Bob Bergland shortly about a long-range farm program.

Brown also told a news conference he had talked with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton about legislation in the 1979 Legislature to provide state financing of farms for qualified young farmers.

Brown won the Democratic nomination for a full four-year term last Saturday with 52.16 percent of the vote. He has no Republican opponent.

Brown said legislation he will recommend to the next legislature would include: — Tax agricultural lands on their productivity rather than speculative values.

— Test imports for pesticides and according to quality standards.

— Seek labeling of agricultural imports.

— Ask for more stringent penalties for violation of the weights and measure laws.

— Finance farms for qualified young farmers through existing lending institutions a long-term basis with low interest rates.

Brown, a close personal friend of Gov. Dolph Briscoe, said he would work for the election of Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor, and for Mark White, the attorney general nominee.

Cotton Futures
NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.35 to $2.00 a bale higher Tuesday.
Concern that recent heavy rains in parts of the central cotton belt may delay planting and in some cases cause replanting of acreage prompted buying of contracts, brokers said.
The average price for strict low midling 11-16 inch spot cotton advanced 64 points to 56.75 cents a pound Monday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

ABC Claims Five Of Top Ten TV Spots

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC scored with the first chapter of "Wheels," a miniseries based on the novel by Arthur Hailey, but it was the network's only entry among the week's 20 most-watched shows, A.C. Nielsen Co. figures show.

ABC, meanwhile, was first again in the standings.

NBC won the ratings race two weeks ago with its "Holocaust" miniseries, but "Wheels" — the first episode Sunday night was No. 6 for the week ending May 7 — was far less controversial.

ABC's "Three's Company" was the week's most-watched show, as it had been often during the fall and winter, followed by two CBS programs, "M*A*S*H" and "One Day at a Time."

Another ABC program, "Laverne and Shirley," ranked first by Nielsen for the fall-winter season, had the same rating as "One Day at a Time" but claimed a smaller share of the audience watching at the time it was shown.

The rating for "Three's Company" was 28.7. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 28.7 percent saw at least part of the program.

ABC claimed five of the week's 10 top-rated shows — and 12 of the first 20. CBS had seven of the top 20. The configuration contributed to a rating for the week for ABC of 18.4. CBS was second at 17.3 and NBC third at 15.5.

CBS and ABC each had two shows at the bottom of the list of 66. ABC's "Mel and Susan Show" was No. 62. NBC's "Hanna-Barbara Happy Hour" No. 63. "Sugar Time" on ABC No. 64 and two CBS programs, "The Rita Moreno Show" and "CBS Reports" 65th and 66th.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Three's Company," with a 28.7 rating representing 20.9 million homes, ABC; "M*A*S*H," 28.4 or 20.7 million, CBS; "One Day at a Time," CBS, and "Laverne and Shirley," ABC, both 26.7 or 19.5 million; "Happy Days," 23.8 or 17.4 million, ABC; Big Event, "Wheels," Part I, 23.2 or 16.9 million, NBC; "60 Minutes," 22.6 or 16.5 million, CBS; "Charlie's Angels," 22.5 or 16.3 million, and "Love Boat," 22.3 or 16.3 million, both ABC, and "Lou Grant," 22.1 or 16.1 million, CBS.

Cheesy Eddie Makes Big Hit With Goopy, Creamy Cheesecakes

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Would you like a rum raisin cheesecake? How about the kalua variety? Marble almond? Banana? Smoked salmon?

See Rochester's Eddie "Cheesy Eddie" David, 25, who moved here several years ago from the Bronx armed with his mother's cheesecake recipe and a $3 Sunbeam Miamaster he bought from the Salvation Army.

David came to Rochester as a college student but, remembering New York City as "the cheesecake capital of the world," he set to work baking in his apartment.

"One of my roommates' fathers, who was a gourmet chef, insisted that I sell my cheesecakes," David said. "I decided to go around and bring some samples to restaurants and I got a few accounts."

A few months later, he was filling orders for about 50 cheesecakes a week and turning customers away. Today, more than 50 accounts later, David has the making of a cheesecake empire.

"People got my phone number and ladies would call me at 8:30 on Sunday mornings because they wanted cheesecake for their bridge club. It was getting to be too much."

So David borrowed about $20,000 from his parents, friends and relatives and searched for a suitable place to set up shop. It wasn't easy. It was the year of the natural gas crunch and Rochester Gas and Electric Corp. wasn't awarding any new gas accounts.

After a six-month search, David moved his mixing bowls, pie plates and blenders into a cozy hole-in-the-wall atop a travel agency, about a mile from downtown Rochester. "The place was a wreck. The kitchen was coated with grease," he says. "I spent a week just cleaning the floor."

"I spent about six months accumulating equipment. I went to auctions and got some incredible deals. I had equipment stashed all over the city at friends' houses, in backyards and garages."

With his sister Marjory as manager, he hired six workers and Cheesy Eddie's Inc. was open for business. A year later, it had grossed $100,000, a figure David expects to double this year.

The product — one of the gooiest, creamiest and richest cheesecakes — sells for $3.99 a pound. "I only get the best ingredients" and comes in 10 basic varieties.

He's made over 30 kinds of cheesecake. Some have bombed.

"I tried a pistachio cheesecake and I added too much green food coloring. It looked absolutely disgusting."

Among the regular flavors are honey, mint chocolate chip, marble almond, banana and coffee walnut. And, of course, there's just plain cheesecake.

Man Plans To Row To Britain

FORT WORTH (AP) — Someone once asked the famed New Zealand mountaineer, Sir Edmund Hillary, why a man climbed a mountain. Hillary's simple reply, "Because it's there," is best understood by dreamers like Steve Kurachi.

In early June or July, Kurachi plans to leave St. John's, Nfld., in a 15-foot rowboat for Europe more than 2,000 miles away.

"It's a matter of pride," he said.

"When I was 16, I made a statement that I wanted to row across the Atlantic. If you say something like that and don't do it, you wind up just thinking and wondering about it all the rest of your life."

Kurachi, now 27, has grown accustomed to the snickers and wild-eyed looks when people learn of his plans. The fact that, before last year, he had never been on the open sea did not lend itself to his credibility.

However, the laughing stopped in April of last year when the young Mormon left Wilmington, Del. in a 16-foot boat. For 48 days, Kurachi battled seven storms, two bouts with botulism poisoning and contaminated water before radioing for help. He was picked up 360 miles north of Bermuda.

"I want to do it this time because I know it's possible," he said. "I know all the mistakes I made the last time. I want to be the first American to row the Atlantic."

During his first voyage, Kurachi said, he was scared only once. Sheets of water seemed to leap up from the surface and rush the tiny craft on 50 mile-per-hour winds. The boat capsized in 30-foot waves but righted itself moments later.

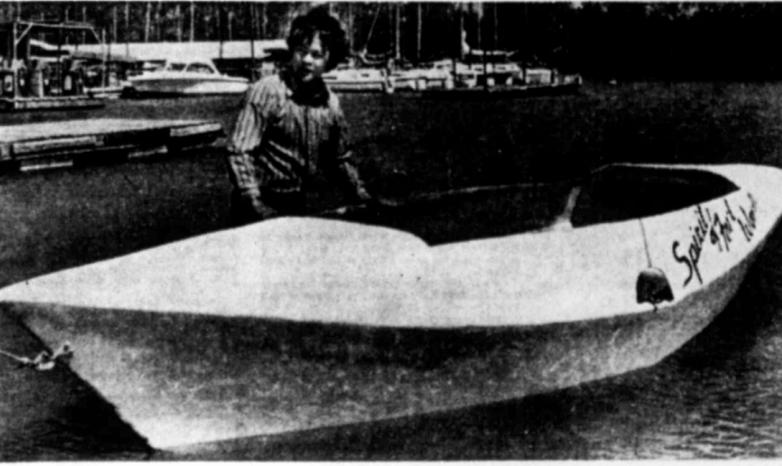

"You can only be afraid so long," he said. "When you're out there all alone and you know there's no chance of being rescued by anybody, things reach a point where it does no good to be frightened so you just ride it out."

The coming voyage is being financed through donations. Kurachi said he is selling picture postcards of himself and his boat. The cards will be mailed back to contributors when he reaches Europe.

A romantic, Kurachi identifies with men like Hillary and Charles Lindbergh. His latest creation, a sleek, fiberglass and wood dinghy, was christened the "Spirit of Fort Worth."

Kurachi said he expects to row first to Ireland, then on to England, if his strength holds up. He said his parents plan to fly from their Austin home to meet him.

"My father knows I'm putting together another expedition," he said. "He knows this is something I've got to do. Because when I'm 50, I won't have to look back and say 'oh, well.'"

BIG JOB AHEAD — Steve Kurachi, 27, of Fort Worth poses with the rowboat in which he hopes to cross the Atlantic this summer. He'll leave Newfoundland in the 15-foot fibreglass creation in early June or July. (AP Laserphoto)

Actress Writes Own Part In Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The desire to expand her career and the idea for the movie came about the same time to Karen Grassie.

She had been in the role of Caroline Ingalls, the mother on NBC's "Little House on the Prairie," for four years.

"I was personally frustrated because I had never played the same part over a long period," she said. "I had a need."

It was her first role in prime time television, although she had appeared briefly in three soap operas in New York between stage work. The role is also one with which she does not personally identify.

She thought once she was established in a successful series other roles would come her way. But nothing did. "I felt I was hiding my light under a sunbonnet," she said. "Fortunately, I had a good role in the series in Michael Landon. He makes his own opportunities."

It was about that time she and Cynthia Lovelace Sears decided to work together writing a movie. And it was then that she went to Houston on a tour to promote the series and met activist journalist Katie Jerrod.

"She's the one who told me about battered wives," said Miss Grassie. "I suffered from the same stereotypes about wife beating as anyone else. I thought it happened only to blue collar workers who stopped off at the bar before cashing their paychecks. I knew it didn't happen to people I knew. Katie straightened me out."

Miss Grassie knew she had the makings of a TV movie. The result is "Battered," an NBC movie she co-wrote and starred in with Mike Farrell, Howard Duff, Joan Blondell, LeVar Burton and Chip Fields. She had just finished filming the day before on time movie, which tells the story of three couples involved in wife beating.

Miss Grassie said she admired the way Landon and Alan Alda were into writing and directing. "That's the thing to do," she said. "Take responsibility for your own opportunities."

"Cynthia and I had never written before. We'd never even tried to write. We thought we'd just write a treatment and I'd play a part. But we were encouraged to take this baby and develop it ourselves. That's what we did."

She said she is disturbed by the way women are brutalized on television. "Women are raped, beaten up and murdered," she said. "Then a man comes along on white horse and solves the problem."

"There is a taboo in our society, however, against interfering in anything between married couples. One of the most important questions we wanted to answer was why the wives stay. We felt if we didn't answer that question, we hadn't done our job."

The answer, she felt, lay in sexism. She said, "Girls are given dolls, taught to be gentle, but they're not taught to defend themselves. They're taught that their identity depends on success as a wife-mother. The worst failure is to be a failure as a woman, identified as a wife-mother."

STOCK MARKET SAGS AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sagged for the second straight session Tuesday in the market's quietest day since the start of last month's explosive rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 4.51 on Monday, dropped another 2.51 to 822.07.

New York Stock Exchange volume came to 30.86 million shares, down from 34.68 million Monday and the lightest total since 26.21 million were traded on April 12.

Over the past three weeks turnover has averaged 40 million shares-plus, establishing daily, weekly and monthly volume records on the Big Board.

Analysts said the market's less energetic behavior in recent days had prompted a number of traders to conclude that stock prices were due for a pause after their sharp run-up last month.

They also noted continuing concern about the interest-rate outlook. The Federal Reserve has twice tightened credit in the last few weeks, and many Wall Streeters have predicted more moves soon in that direction by the central bank.

Those expectations seemed to outweigh the favorable effects of continued strength in the dollar against leading foreign currencies.

“Wish I'd Tried One Sooner.”

Low tar MERIT proven major alternative for high tar smokers—see results below.

Can low tar MERIT packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco measure up to the taste expectations of current smokers of high tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a new, nationwide research effort involving smokers who actually tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Confirm Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers?

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an “easy switch” from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.
