

Colombian Skyjacker Captured

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (AP) — Pilots and police overpowered a gunman Thursday night five hours after he hijacked a Colombian airliner and took it on a Caribbean island-hopping trip to Aruba and then Curacao. He was shot in the face during a flurry of gunfire.

The 119 persons aboard the plane included at least two Americans.

Authorities said one policeman was shot in the hand during the melee. Neither his nor the hijacker's wound was described as serious.

Police said the man was captured after he had ordered everybody but five passengers and two pilots to leave the plane. The pilots jumped the man and the five passengers fled through a side door.

Police immediately rushed the plane, and entered to find the pilots struggling with the hijacker. Several shots were fired.

Passengers told police they saw a hijacker wearing a white shirt, but that the captured man wore a flowered shirt. It apparently was the same shirt, white aboard the plane but spattered with blood after his capture.

The plane was commandeered on a domestic flight from Santa Marta to Bogota, Colombia.

Aruba authorities said the hijacker shot the flight engineer in the leg before the takeoff from Aruba, 65 miles from here, and the wounded man was removed by ambulance there. Both islands are in the Netherlands Antilles off Venezuela.

The plane arrived here at 5:30 p.m. CDT and parked in front of the freight terminal.

Airport officials said the Avianca Boeing 727 landed at 3:30 p.m. CDT. It left for Curacao after the hijacker demanded and got food and 6,600 gallons of gasoline.

Early reports from Aruba said the hijacker freed 24 women and children there.

But a passenger, Colombian lawyer Pedro de la Vega, told a Colombian radio. See COLOMBIAN Page 16

MOTORCYCLE MISHAP — Ray Louis Allwein, bottom, of Rt. 5, Box 227, Lubbock, was undergoing surgery in St. Mary's Hospital Thursday night for injuries he received in a motorcycle-car collision at 3rd Street and Avenue Q Thursday afternoon. Clarence Raymond Jones of Lamesa, driver of the car, was uninjured. Allwein, 23, was thrown from his motorcycle over the top of the car. Allwein suffered broken wrists, a broken right arm, a broken left leg, and possible chest, neck, and head injuries, a spokesman said. Passengers in the Jones' car, Karen Jones, above left, of 5312 43rd St., and Mrs. Jones of Lamesa, second from left, were uninjured. Health Department Expansion Planned

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff THE new director of the City of Lubbock health department says she will seek a substantial budget increase for next year to expand the city's maternity clinic, provide pediatric care and initiate other services.

Dr. Marjorie Orr also said she plans to beef up existing efforts by the department. Since recently taking over as director, she said she has found the agency to be lax in some areas — especially in the inspection of food service operations at local child-care institutions and private schools.

Dr. Orr made her statements in a presentation Thursday to the League of Women Voters. Also addressing the league's general meeting was Dr. Richard Lockwood, Texas Tech University vice president for Health Sciences Centers.

Budget Hike Proposed The city health department has an annual budget of about $800,000. "For a city the size of Lubbock, it should be $2 million to $2.5 million," Dr. Orr said.

She said she plans to work toward a full-fledged department by "asking for a 60 percent increase for next year."

That proposed increase would be used to expand or initiate services in several areas, Dr. Orr said.

Lengthy Waiting Periods She said the department's maternity clinic now is open only three days a week — and there is a six-to-eight-week waiting period for the clinic to see new patients. Dr. Orr hopes to remedy that by keeping the clinic open five days a week.

In fact, she plans to begin the five-day schedule in July by shifting funds within this year's budget. Dr. Orr also said medical residents in obstetrical care will be gin working with the maternity clinic in July.

For the next fiscal year, Dr. Orr said she hopes to set up a specialized child-health clinic, to complement the work of the local Well Baby Clinic.

Another idea in the mill is to have the city assume responsibility for family planning services now administered by the regional office of the Texas Department of Health.

"I would like to bring family planning back into the (city) health department so we can refer clients directly from the maternity clinic to family planning," Dr. Orr said. She said bringing the three services together — the maternity clinic, pediatric

Panel Backs Turk Arms Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's request that Congress lift its 3-year-old embargo on U.S. military aid to Turkey was rejected Thursday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In a major foreign policy setback for Carter, the panel voted 8-4 against lifting the embargo that was imposed when Turkey used American-supplied weapons to invade Cyprus in 1974.

The House International Relations Committee, by a one-vote margin, had recommended lifting the embargo earlier this month.

The administration has argued that the embargo is failing to bring about a Cyprus peace settlement.

"I'm persuaded the policy hasn't worked," said Sen. Frank Church, one of only three Democrats voting to lift the Panel Votes Partial Benefits Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Thursday for a partial rollback of Social Security payroll tax increases that could save some workers as much as $123 next year.

The biggest savings would go to higher paid employees, but the change, if it becomes law, would result in some savings for all employees and their employers.

The proposal approved Thursday is to be incorporated into tax legislation and is expected to face a stiff fight ahead. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., committee chairman, told reporters he thinks the House would pass the rollback but that he expects considerable opposition in the Senate.

Carter Favors Tax

President Carter has said he favors leaving the Social Security increases intact. Congress just enacted the hikes last December.

The committee-approved plan would involve using general tax funds from the U.S. Treasury — an estimated $14.5 billion over two years.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has expressed strong opposition to any use of general tax funds to keep the troubled Social Security system out of deficit, and there is other opposition in Congress as well.

The committee approved the rollback provision on a 19-18 vote, with Ullman casting the tie-breaking ballot. The panel previously had discussed and discarded a series of other proposals, most of them also involving some use of general funds.

Cut Medicare Fund

The rollback proposal, offered by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., would involve reducing the trust fund for Medicare hospitalization, now financed from the Social Security payroll tax, and replenishing it with general revenues.

Under the law approved by Congress last December, the Social Security tax rate paid both by employers and employees would go to 6.13 percent next January and the maximum wage base on which the tax would be levied would go to $22,900. In 1980 the tax rate would remain the same but the wage base would jump to $25,900.

The committee proposal would cut the tax rate back to 5.85 percent, the 1977 level, and would set the maximum wage base at $21,900 for 1979 and $23,900 for 1980.

This would mean the maximum tax any worker would pay in 1979 would be $1,231, instead of $1,404 under present law.

$100 Million Excess Seen In Fuel Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency electric power that was moved into areas hardest hit by the winter coal strike may have cost consumers $100 million too much in fuel adjustment charges, a federal energy official said Thursday.

William W. Lindsay, director of electric power regulation for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, said utilities may be ordered to refund some of this money.

This will depend on the outcome of a full-scale commission investigation, announced Wednesday, into wholesale electric power sales during the 110-day strike. Lindsay told a Senate energy subcommittee.

"The rates were clearly in excess of costs of providing the service," Lindsay testified.

When coal stockpiles dwindled, huge amounts of electricity were transferred to utilities in 10 east-central states from neighboring systems as far away as Kansas and Oklahoma.

"If more than one intervening system were involved, each would add at least 10 percent to whatever price it had to pay for the energy," Lindsay said.

He said these add-on charges got — a reduction of $123 for workers paying the maximum. In 1980, the maximum would be $1,398 instead of $1,588.

Because of the tax rate reduction, there would be savings also for those earning less than the maximum amounts. For example, a worker earning $10,000 would save $28 in tax during each year.

Many of the complaints congressmen have been hearing about the tax increases approved last year have come from higher paid employees, because much of the tax increase was brought about by substantially raising the maximum wage on which taxes were levied.

Ullman emphasized that the committee's action was not to be interpreted as a permanent decision to use general Treasury revenues to help finance Social Security.

He said the tax-writing panel was trying to buy time during which a thorough review of the Social Security system could be carried out. The proposal is for two years only. A special commission created by the 1977 law is working on basic proposals, both short and long-range, for revising Social Security and its financing.

This is how the House Ways and Means Committee divided, 19 to 18, in favor of the partial rollback of Social Security payroll tax increases.

Democrats for the proposal were Gibbons; Fortney H. Stark, Calif.; Charles B. Rangel, N.Y.; Abner J. Mikva, Ill.; Martha Keys, Kan.; Ken Holland, S.C.;

Lubbock-San Angelo 'Connector' Highway Project Supported

By BOB CAMPBELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff A 370-MILE interstate-type "connector" highway to run from Lubbock to Interstate 10 south of San Angelo Thursday was approved by the U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who proposed the highway bill amendment, said the highway probably would follow U.S. 87.

It would also connect with Interstate 27, which is under construction now between Amarillo and Lubbock.

A second facet of the amendment is a similar highway to lead 485 miles southwest from Amarillo along U.S. 60 and 70 to connect with Interstate 10 at Las Cruces, N.M.

Funding would be on a 90-10 basis with the federal government paying 90 percent of the cost and the state picking up the rest.

Cost Estimate Unavailable Bentsen said no cost estimates are presently available, but the Lubbock-to-San Angelo road would cost about $440 million if built to current interstate highway standards.

The House already has passed its version of a highway bill, and a compromise will have to be developed by joint conferees of the House and Senate.

Final passage of a two-year highway bill is considered possible in August or September.

"We are talking about a limited-access, four-lane highway very similar to the roads on the national interstate system," Bentsen said. "These two highways will be demonstration projects for a new 'connector primary' highway program I have proposed which would allow individual states to use their primary highway funds at a 90-10 matching ratio to build highways connecting with the interstate system."

The program would provide an extra incentive to the states to augment their interstate systems.

The amendment came to the environment and public works committee out of the Senate transportation subcommittee Bentsen chairs.

With the highway bill, it was ordered to be reported to the full Senate Thursday afternoon.

Inflation Restraints Predicted

By ESTHER LONGORIA

Avalanche-Journal Staff HOBBS — In six months, the American public may see a program to hold down the inflation spiral, Robert S. Strauss, President Carter's special counsel on inflation, said here Thursday.

"In this program, I think prices can be held to the prices of the past two years, and it will be the same concerning wages," Strauss, also the president's special representative for trade negotiations, told reporters during an afternoon press conference.

He added that the Carter administration didn't expect to reach zero inflation and that the public should not expect any miracles.

Hard Work Foreseen

"It's going to be darn hard work for me, the president and the American public," he said. "But, I think we can show the American public a fair, equitable program that they'll respond to."

Strauss, formerly chairman of the Democratic national committee, said he felt the U.S. was not in a typical inflationary period, but more in a "price-wage push," adding "We've just got to cool it down a bit."

Concerning trade between the U.S. and Japan, Strauss said that earlier this year the Japanese had agreed to remove some of their barriers to U.S. exports to Japan.

"I think that's a good first step on their part," Strauss said, adding that he hoped they would live up to what they said.

"I think the Japanese are trying hard to hold down their exports to this country."

However, Strauss said that American businessmen must also learn how to export to Japan to balance the trade situation between the two countries.

On energy, Strauss said the Carter administration should have an energy bill ready for the public in 60 days.

Stampede In Mexico Hurts 150 Students

VERACRUZ, Mexico (UPI) — Some 150 high school students were injured when a crowd of 25,000 people stampeded toward locked exit doors at a Mother's Day festival in the Luis Fuste Stadium in this Gulf port city, police said.

Authorities said the students began to run toward one of the exits at the close of the program and continued to shove against the closed door.

Terrorist Pair Attacks, Wounds Manager Of U.S. Bank In Italy

ROME (AP) — Terrorists struck at an American "multinational" target Thursday, wounding the Italian manager of the Chemical Bank of New York in a street ambush in Milan. The government's parliamentary allies demanded stronger police measures to deal with the violence climaxed by the murder of Aldo Moro.

In the sixth "kneecapping" attack in six days, a man and a woman fired three bullets into the legs and one into the groin of Marzio Astarita, 37, manager of the Milan and Rome offices of the bank.

In the capital, sources said foreign governments were told they could send three-member delegations to Saturday's state memorial service for Moro, the former premier found here Tuesday slain by his Red Brigades terrorist kidnapers. But the sources said the Italian government was worried about security if top foreign officials came.

Also mindful of security, two of the five parties supporting the government called for a meeting to discuss stronger anti-terror measures in the light of the failure of the massive police hunt to find Moro's abductors and prevent his death.

In the northern industrial city of Turin, police said they had found a Red Brigades hideout, but there was no indication that this brought a break in the Moro case.

Police in Milan, the north's largest city, said Astarita was leaving home for work when he was shot. Leg shootings are a favorite tactic of the Brigades and other leftist extremists to show their power to strike at the establishment whenever they choose.

Various Communist splinter organizations claimed responsibility for the attack, which a Chemical Bank spokesman in New York called a "vicious and lawless assault" promoting "no honorable cause."

One message taking responsibility said that elements of the ruling class against which a "decisive" confrontation was to be waged included "the International Monetary Fund, the multinational American holdings, American banks, the Bank of Italy, credit institutions, Confindustria (the association of private Italian industrialists)."

Sections of the message were identical to one issued after the leg shooting Wednesday, also in Milan, of an executive of the state-run Montedison chemical company. Four persons have been kneecapped there in five days — seven persons this year. Across Italy, there have been an estimated 15 such shootings in 1978. Victims have included a prison doctor in Novara, officials of the ruling Christian Democratic Party in Rome and Turin and a Fiat automobile executive in Turin.

Police there said they had discovered a Red Brigades hideout that appeared from seized documents to have been the local headquarters of the feared urban guerrilla gang. Attacks launched from the base included the killing in April of a prison guard and the fatal wounding of newspaper editor Carlo Casalegno last year, police said.

Investigators said they were led to the hideout by a bunch of keys found in a car abandoned by the Brigades after the attack on the guard.

But there appeared to be no progress in finding the assassins of Moro, whose bullet-riddled body was buried in private ceremonies Wednesday in a cemetery at the village of Torrita Tiberina, 30 miles north of Rome, where the 61-year-old politician had a vacation home. His family, embittered by the government's refusal to bargain with the terrorists for his life, had asked that a public ceremony be omitted.

The tiny cemetery received a steady stream of visitors Thursday, from villagers to Moro's political science students at the University of Rome and those Christian Democrats who were his personal friends.

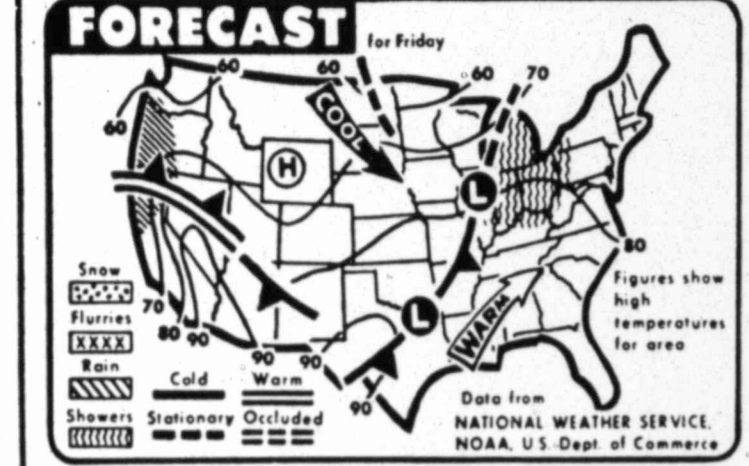

Local grade-schoolers left flowers with this inscription to Moro:

"We children of the elementary school of Torrita Tiberina give you this simple bunch of flowers in memory of the love you have for our little village and in recognition of your political and civil work."

Meanwhile in Rome, Premier Giulio Andreotti met with top Christian Democrats but refused to say whether he would call the anti-terror summit requested by the Republican and Social Democratic parties.

Parliament continued debate on anti-terrorist measures adopted by decree after Moro's kidnapping March 16. The decree called for mandatory life imprisonment for kidnapers who kill their hostages, increased use of telephone taps and permission for police to question suspects without a lawyer present.

Parliament must approve the decree-law by May 20 for it to stay in effect. Small leftist parties have proposed 2,150 amendments, mostly reflecting concerns with civil liberties.

Front Brings Reasoner Quits ABC More Sand For Documentaries

As a cool front that swept across the central region of the nation Thursday only brought more sand to the Lubbock area, the front created severe thunderstorms and tornadoes in areas further east in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

Fair skies left over the South Plains in the front's path Thursday are expected to keep temperatures in the mid 80s today through Saturday with mild overnight temperatures in the mid 50s.

Severe thunderstorms threatened a large area of the Lone Star state Thursday, prompting the National Weather Service to post tornado watches in a large number of counties.

At 6:25 p.m. Thursday the National Weather Service posted a tornado warning for Hill County when a tornado was sighted moving to the southeast at 35 mph near Hillsboro.

By late Thursday, the line of thunderstorms covering much of the state had dumped heavy rains in many cities between Brownwood and the Dallas Fort Worth area. Marble-sized hail also was reported along the line of heavy clouds.

The extensive front also created heavy showers in areas of Kansas and Oklahoma and two funnel clouds reportedly dipped from clouds near Kansas City, but no injuries or damages were reported.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harry Reasoner announced Thursday that he would leave ABC in July to work full-time on documentaries.

Reasoner, who has worked in uneasy harness with Barbara Walters on the ABC Evening News, for two years, had been sought by CBS to replace Bill Moyers as chief correspondent on the network's CBS Reports documentaries. Moyers has resigned to return to PBS.

While Reasoner in his announcement did not mention CBS, it was assumed that was his destination. News executives at CBS were not immediately available, as they had been attending a network affiliates conference in Los Angeles and were en route to New York Thursday afternoon.

Reasoner said that "well more than a year ago, I firmly decided I would like to leave the ABC Evening News and turn to a different kind of news programming."

He said he would be leaving ABC in July and added:

"I expect to give up daily programming and for the first time in my 22 years in New York to work full time and in full participation on documentaries."

He had been negotiating with CBS for the Moyers job when ABC warned CBS off, maintaining that Reasoner had two more years to go in his $500,000 a year contract. Reasoner maintained that Bill Sheehan, former head of ABC news, had orally promised to release him from his contract in June 1978, if he so desired.

Roone Arledge, when he took over as president of ABC News and Sports, about a year ago, said he knew of no such arrangement. Last month Arledge announced a new format for the ABC Evening News, in which Barbara Walters would no longer be a co-anchor — and in which Reasoner figures not at all. ABC confirmed the basic Reasoner statement but gave no details about possible strings attached to his contract release, or about financial arrangements.

Retirement Tea Set For Teacher

Liquor Store Hit By Bandit Pair

A pair of Mexican-American suspects entered a Slaton liquor store on the city's south side Thursday, roughed up an elderly clerk and escaped with more than $100 in receipts.

J. L. Miller, 66, said the men apparently parked their vehicle, believed to be a black-and-white, 4-door Buick or Oldsmobile, behind the liquor store and entered through the front door about 5:30 p.m.

After asking for a six pack of beer, the men began tussling with the cashier. No weapon was shown, a Slaton police sergeant said.

The assailants reportedly fled west in the vehicle toward Lubbock and lawmen here were notified.

However, no arrests had been made late Thursday.

Electioneering Dispute Ends In Lubbock

Lubbock School Superintendent Ed Irons gave a brief outline of the proposed integration plan and board of trustees President Charles Waters spoke to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Madison Sowder, head of the party in Lubbock County, said he met with election judge Roger Settler this week in his law office.

"We have gone over the matter complained of and I believe we have a complete understanding of his role as election judge," Sowder said. "We do not expect any repeat of this problem."

Jerry Lane, a voter who said he was privately interested in election laws being observed, and Settler disagreed over the placement of signs and the handing out of campaign materials within 100 feet of the outside doors of the school.

Lane contended that election laws prohibit electioneering within 100 feet of the doors, and Settler said his understanding was that electioneering was not illegal unless it took place inside the doors and the sign.

Article 8.27 of the Texas Election Laws says it is "unlawful for any person to do any electioneering or loitering while the polls are open within 100 feet of any outside door through which a voter may enter the building" and gives the election judge the responsibility for preventing violations.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Canon Mary Michael Simpson, the first American Episcopal nun to be ordained a priest, said Thursday many priests oppose women in the priesthood because they feel their masculinity is threatened.

"Many things of a feminine nature are involved in the priesthood, such as consoling and nursing the sick," she said in an interview at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine.

"If you have any doubt about your maleness, these women are a threat. It is an underlying problem, an emotion threat. I think many find their manhood in the priesthood."

She admits her theory can't be proved, but then "neither can you prove the theological statements being thrown around by the other point of view (those opposing the ordination of women)," she argued.

The canon, a 52-year-old native of Texas City, also said she believes the issue of ordaining women as priests could split the Church of England.

"Some people will leave. If they don't pass it, there will be illegal ordinations and illegal celebrations, much the same as happened here (in the United States)," she said.

"All the threats to leave the church have been from the side of those opposed to the ordination of women. It's never heard from those who want it."

She said she learned a great deal about the situation during a recent five-week visit to England when she became the first woman priest to preach at Westminster Abbey, London, the symbolic center of the Anglican Church.

There are no women priests in England although the United States, Canada, New Zealand and Hong Kong have one.

She said there was "no fundamental objection to women priests."

Reign Falls Mainly On Plane?

FAR BE IT from us to suggest that foreign diplomacy be carried on behind the scenes. But, the "wash our linen in public" spectacle over President Carter's push for sale of sophisticated U.S. fighter planes to the leading Mideast antagonists isn't exactly the way to handle such matters either.

As the touchy Mideast arms sale has developed, the whole world—including Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia—are privy to a family argument and discussion which in effect leaves American motives as well as its policies and policies somewhat bare.

IT WILL BE recalled that the President had been advised by close friends not to force the issue over the plane sale at this point.

It was feared that it not only would jeopardize the tenuous Mideast peace talks, but would leave Washington vulnerable to future pressure on U.S. oil needs.

While the administration's hard-headed approach on the plane deal may not have served to also harden Israel's stance on peace negotiations, there is no question but that to refuse some sort of face-saving arrangement with Saudi Arabia at this point would strain an alignment which the U.S. needs for political purposes as much as economic. Even Israel can understand this.

THE "FIX" FOR the dilemma seemingly will be to go ahead with the sale of the planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Happiness Is...A Warm Mom

WITH THE exception of Grendel's mother in Beowulf, the most evil mom ever, mothers enjoy universal affection.

Motherhood by its very nature is dear to the human heart. However, formal recognition of that fact is a relatively recent phenomenon.

The 64th annual Mother's Day will be celebrated on Sunday. The first Mother's Day observance was held on May 10, 1908, in Grafton, W. Va.

"The idea was born," according to one local historian, "in the heart and mind of Miss Anna Jarvis in honor of her mother and all mothers of the day who were struggling to restore high standards of family and community life."

AT A TIME before there was a designated day for nearly everything, it was Miss Jarvis' idea that "with the arrival of the first spring blossoms" each year people of the community should pause to pay their respects to their mothers.

The notion had widespread appeal. And on May 8, 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed a proclamation setting aside the second Sunday in May to be observed annually in the nation as Mother's Day. William Jennings Bryan, Wilson's secretary of state, declared the day a fitting tribute to the mothers of the world.

Now after nearly a decade of falling birth rates and generally low home-front morale, motherhood is making a comeback.

DESPITE THE much remarked upon self-centeredness of the present age, having babies seems to be in style once again.

The National Center for Health Statistics recently reported that the fertility rate for 1977 hit 67.4 per 1,000 women of childbearing years. It was 65.8 in 1976.

Some social scientists have speculated that because there are now more women of childbearing age—15 to 44—than ever before we may be in for another baby boom.

If that's true, it could be a hopeful sign of confidence in the future of society. Certainly it is a reassertion of the fundamental urge of men and women to become fathers and mothers.

Otherwise, there couldn't have been a Grendel.

Goofy Grant Isn't Name Of A Crazy City Editor

WASHINGTON—For many years now, slow news days in the nation's capital have been enlivened by the ever-popular "goofy grant."

A goofy grant is a use of public money by the National Science Foundation or other public agency to study such esoteric matters as the mating habits of the tse-tse fly or the sweat glands of the three-toed sloth, often at costs that range into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

These things keep getting ridiculed in congressional speeches and newspaper stories, but somehow the money for them keeps flowing from the federal Treasury.

HOW AND WHY the goofy grants survive was revealed the other day in a set-to in the House of Representatives. Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, decided it was time to do more than regale the public with hilarious stories and actually moved to cut some goofy grants out of the federal budget.

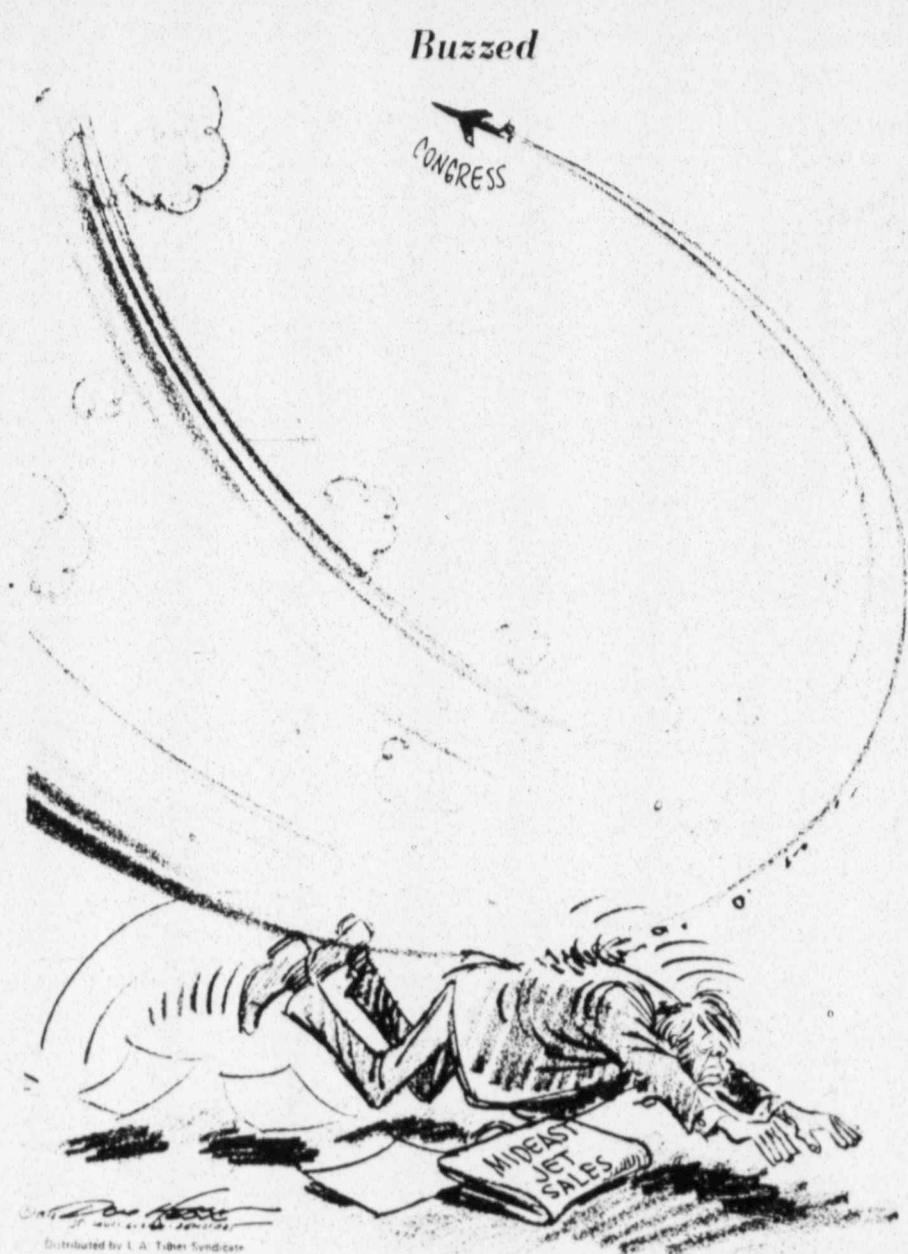

His effort was beaten back quite handsily—all in the interest of "science," you understand, which means the coterie of intellectuals who know how to work the grantsmanship machinery.

Among the goofy grant proposals noted by Ashbrook this time around were "Social Behavior of Prairie Dogs," "The Socio-Sexual Behavior of the Dabbling African Black Duck" and "Epiphytic Vegetation of Brazilian Amazonia."

ALSO INCLUDED IN recent NSF-funded projects are "Interpersonal Attraction in the Laboratory and in Educational Settings" ($40,700), "Evolution of Songlearning and Consequences in Parasitic Finches" ($36,500); also "Factors of Non-Breeding Habitat in Shorebird Social Systems" ($33,439) and "A series of experiments including one to gauge people's reactions when shown a picture of an octopus in a barnyard" ($25,000).

Planners are trying to slow down the flight to the suburbs. The first step was to place chuckholes in outboard streets.

The other planets may not be able to support life, but it isn't easy on this one either.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Out Behind The Coup

WASHINGTON—Private warnings to presidential aides last month that the neutralist regime in Afghanistan was "ripe like a red apple" for a pro-Soviet Communist takeover met official silence here, a non-response highlighting the administration's dangerous inertia in meeting the current Soviet worldwide offensive.

That warning was quietly passed to top Carter foreign policy officials three weeks ago. The source was a trusted, Tehran-based emissary of the Shah of Iran.

Even if the U.S. were not tied into a straitjacket imposed by Congress as a result of post-Vietnam politics, it probably would have been impossible for President Carter—or any other President—to prevent the pro-Soviet takeover or influence its timing.

But the warning from the Shah, and similar warnings from Pakistan, had no impact at all on the Carter administration.

MURMURING SOFT sympathies for the Shah, administration officials lost a particularly timely occasion to notify Moscow sharply that Soviet support for a Communist takeover in previously neutral Afghanistan (which borders the Soviet Union) would have disquieting repercussions in Washington.

This ostrich-like, see-no-evil posture of Carter foreign policy planners led doubts among U.S. allies—doubts now reaching agonizing proportions—that the Soviet offensive in Africa and Asia is incapable of engaging Jimmy Carter's interest.

Instead, these allies believe, Carter's current policy has a single aim: do nothing that might offend Moscow and put at risk the planned summer summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to sign a new strategic arms limitation agreement (SALT).

But that may be too benign a view, a conclusion that is shared by observant diplomats here and high defense officials. "I'm not sure that Jimmy Carter has a global perspective," one told us. "He tends to see things that happen abroad as isolated incidents, not linked together."

AN EVEN MORE melancholy reaction, widely held by experts here, is this: presidential worry that a tough warning to Moscow not to push the U.S. too far might well require an equally tough U.S. follow-up, one for which the Carter administration is unprepared.

But, in fact, installation of a pro-Soviet regime in faraway Afghanistan sets the stage for a series of new Communist probes which will confront Jimmy Carter with even more difficult choices. These future events, spawned in the bloody Kabul takeover, are what caused the Shah to sound his alarm here three weeks ago.

It is highly probable that the new rules in Kabul soon will exploit ancient territorial disputes about tribal lands adjoining both Pakistan and Iran. The most important of these would establish an independent state in what is known as Baluchistan, a slice of prime strategic territory along Pakistan's western border with Iran which runs to the Indian Ocean.

ACCESS TO THE Indian Ocean has always been a Russian dream. In the glory days of the British empire, wars were repeatedly fought to prevent Russian penetration south through what was British India to warm water ports on the Indian Ocean.

No immediate move like that is expected from the new Communist regime in Kabul, but agitating these ancient tribal rivalries across its borders would foster Afghan nationalism.

That is a proven method of building political support for any new regime, particularly useful for a Communist regime trying to consolidate its power in the orthodox Moslem state of Afghanistan.

But even without such provocative politics, installation of the pro-Soviet government has already compelled Iran to reinforce its eastern frontiers with both Afghanistan and Pakistan.

The takeover is a second giant step toward what the Shah has always warned against: encirclement of the oil-rich Persian Gulf region, including Iran and Saudi Arabia, by Moscow and its satellites. The first was Soviet penetration of the Horn of Africa.

FOR AN ADMINISTRATION seemingly so preoccupied with SALT, the question of when or how to come to grips with disconcerting issues like faraway Afghanistan and the Horn of Africa goes to the back burner.

Indeed, when Air Force Secretary John C. Stetson said on April 21 that the U.S. had a "tactic obligation to back up" Iran in the event of a hostile Soviet move, he was publicly rebuked by the State Department for using overly strong language.

That was just before Moscow laid claim to Communist power in Kabul. Since then, there has been no visible change in Carter's policy. Quite the opposite: the change has been one more demonstration of Soviet disdain for U.S. will and one notch tighter in the psychological fear campaign against U.S. allies.

Doing It His Way

WASHINGTON—"Listen man, if it wasn't for ROTC I'd be pumping gas in North Carolina," said the black student at the University of Detroit. "Thanks to the military, I'm getting an education."

The young man, who ranks scholastically in the upper third of his class, was commenting on the revival of the Reserve Officers Training Corps on many college campuses.

Enrollments have been up every year since 1975, in sharp contrast to the 1960's when the anti-war movement drove the ROTC from many campuses, and its ranks thinned at others.

"I'm lucky," said the Detroit student. "Ten years ago, all those do-gooders kept saying they were trying to help blacks. Hell, one way they helped us was by telling us to do without a college education if we had to get it by joining the ROTC."

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Pentagon commented that there is now "a bigger percentage than ever of blacks in our program. We're primarily interested in training officers, of course, but in a sense ROTC is also a social program. It takes bright young men out of the ghetto and puts them on college campuses."

The ROTC offers enough help to make a college education possible for youths who might otherwise be "pumping gas."

But there is another aspect to the ROTC's mini comeback. It might be called the revival of civil rights.

During the lunatic Sixties, what bothered many fundamental libertarians was the infringement of those rights by crazed demonstrators and academic reformers. A military establishment charged with building the national defense was banned from college campuses. Worse, college students were deprived of the right voluntarily to join a military training program.

"I CAN'T UNDERSTAND the thinking of some colleges," the late Dwight Eisenhower told me in commenting on the situation. "Those demonstrators are just as wrong as if they were denying the students' right to freedom of speech or telling them they couldn't join a fraternity."

Fortunately for the young poor, with whose welfare the bleeders purported to be so preoccupied, a measure of sanity has returned to the campuses. Whether they make armed service a career, those poor again are getting an opportunity to better their intellectual lot so they can qualify for better jobs once they win a degree.

Femibbers also might take note. More than 20 per cent of students in the ROTC are now women.

I'LL LEAVE IT to Bella Abzug and Gloria Steinem to figure out how many of those women would have made it to college without ROTC help.

Meanwhile, a salute to one segment of the Ivy League. Although the ROTC was hounded out by some members of that storied elite, the training program survived the slings and arrows of the demonstrators at Princeton, Cornell, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Obviously, civil rights is more than a phrase at those institutions.

And, as my young Detroit friend put it, "I'm no politician. All I know is that by being in ROTC I'm not doing anything I don't want to do. Nobody drafted me. I volunteered so I could escape that gas station."

JAY HARRIS:

Built On Faith...

EIGHT YEARS ago today, the sun was shining over Lubbock.

About dawn, we drove a battered A-J pickup truck, with shattered windows, to our home out on Slide Road for a quick breakfast and a change of shirts.

We fixed toast and boiled an egg—in water from the commode tank—then reheated the same water to shave. Then it was back to work...

Back to work that Tuesday morning, May 12, was no small task. As we came down the Tech Freeway, tree limbs and pieces of debris could be seen on the Texas Tech campus and all around the apartment complexes to the north.

Nearing Fourth and University, the destruction became overpowering. The huge light standards on the east side of Jones Stadium hung limp, the steel towers bent like matchsticks.

FOURTH STREET was a shambles, demolished buildings everywhere.

The scene at Fourth and Avenue Q was really "out of this world." Cars and trucks were piled like so many battered toys, chunks of business buildings, roofs of homes, furniture—name it, it was all there, water-soaked and entangled in utility lines. Even the water supply was cut.

The huge Fields Living Center, a home furnishing showplace in the round, looked as though a giant fist had flattened it. Nearby, motels, a lumber yard, cafes, homes were stripped to their skeleton framework.

Downtown, the scene, especially from about the First National Bank-Pioneer Gas building northward, was a nightmare. Daylight had done little to erase the Dante's Inferno look which we had gazed upon a few hours earlier.

The Lubbock Tornado of Monday, May 11, had done its best to cripple one of the Southwest's most thriving cities. The City momentarily staggered from the massive onslaught which struck seconds before 9:45 p.m. But, the City and its people reeled to their knees only momentarily, then came back in a story which today ranks with any in the land for sheer fortitude and belief in a City's future.

HAVING GONE through the actual tornado and the wreckage it wreaked on The Avalanche-Journal building, we have a healthy respect for such things.

The unbelievable noise, the eerie quiet just before you know the building is going to explode or the roof cave...None of it you ever forget.

In our mind's eye even today, we can reel off as though it were a graphic instant rerun, the scene we faced and the thoughts that struck us as we waded water around the corner of The AJ minutes after the blow and looked southwest toward the Great Plains and FNB-Pioneer buildings.

The 20-story GP building had a gaping gash in its side and in the eerie movement of low, scudding clouds and flickers of lightning, the city's tallest structure appeared to be falling! The new, $15 million FNB-Pioneer structure, which still reminds us of the UN headquarters building, was pockmarked as though it had been shelled. Emergency power had been restored there and curtains flapped in the breeze. Its upper structure appeared as a ghost ship lost at sea. Thunder and screaming sirens echoed the devastation below.

THE TRUE METTLE of hundreds of persons then came to the fore.

In the first place, Lubbock had long lived in the shadow of such storms. Most citizens had an innate respect of what could happen and a "survival" sense of what to do when one hit.

In most instances, people who did not have storm shelters went to the center rooms of their homes, hid under mattresses or such and lived to tell about it.

The procedures established in the Lubbock Tornado helped change some ideas of how to live through one. Until then, much ado had been made of going to the southwest corner of a house or building or whatever direction the storm was moving from. Too, as a result of lessons learned here and research by a group at Texas Tech, much progress has been made on how to construct better wind-resistant buildings, not only in the U.S. but in other parts of the world.

Aside from these somewhat material aspects of the disaster, the unbelievable calm and quick response of those who survived in seeking the dead and injured is something which all who played a part will forever remember.

AND THEN, of course, there was Lubbock's comeback in the weeks, months and years ahead.

Barely a month before the tornado, Lubbock citizens had just voted a multi-million dollar capital improvement project for the new Lubbock Regional Airport Terminal. Hardly had the debris of the storm settled than City officials and citizens alike started talking of and making plans to rebuild what had been destroyed, and make it better.

A committee was named for that specific purpose and in the weeks ahead it and city officials met with hundreds of citizens, and state and federal authorities, to plan what should be done. The result was the clearing of hundreds of damaged homes, mounds of rat-infested debris and trees, utility poles—you name it—from a 36-block area in and adjacent to the Downtown sector.

Today, one of the most functional and beautiful Civic Centers in the nation stands as a memorial to the 26 persons who lost their lives in the tornado, to the hundreds who were injured and to the thousands who had faith.

Today, the City's tax base in the area is far in excess of what it was before the disaster. The Downtown area has a new breath of life. Lubbock serves as a model for other cities which have suffered tragedy. But, most of all, a City and its citizens have become living examples of what Faith in themselves, one another and God can do.

Today, to a City we have long loved and for which we hold high hopes, we Salute You!

...Pass It On

Q. "IT IS TRUE a wolf in the wilds won't cross a man scent?"

A. Not true anymore. Such once was thought to be the case. But rare is the place even in the wilderness now that isn't criss-crossed completely by man scent. A wolf that won't cross same can't go anywhere.

Q. "How do you account for the fact that there's never any fat on a shark steak?"

A. A shark stores all its fat in its liver. And speaking of sharks, did you know the white shark never gets sick? And it's immune to cancer.

Interest Rate Hike Supported Despite Slow Economy Fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board, reflecting its concern over inflation, continued Thursday to support higher interest rates despite fears by the administration that they could slow the nation's economy.

The board raised its discount rate on loans to banks to 7 percent, up from 6½ percent previously and the highest since early 1975 when the country was in a deep recession.

The action was one of a series taken by the board in recent weeks to push up interest rates throughout the economy in an effort to cool inflationary pressures.

For the first three months of this year prices rose at an annual rate of 9 percent. The administration predicts inflation for all of 1978 will be 7 percent.

The new chairman of the Fed, G. William Miller, said Thursday that inflation is not checked it could go above 10 percent within a few years and that such an increase could bring on a serious recession.

He said recent rapid growth of the money supply has contributed to inflationary forces and has made it necessary for the Federal Reserve to tighten up on the money supply, meaning a boost in interest rates.

A reduction in the federal budget deficit for next year would help relieve the upward pressure on interest rates, he said in a speech to the American Retail Federation.

While the Fed believes that increased interest rates can help control inflation, the higher rates also can slow the economy by raising borrowing costs to both business and consumers. The Carter administration has been particularly worried that rising costs of home mortgages will slow home buying and building.

The administration already has trimmed its forecast for economic growth once this year, blaming an expected slowdown in home building because of higher interest rates as one cause.

There was no immediate public reaction by the White House to the latest increase in the discount rate, the second this year. However, one administration economist said it seems to be a consolidation of past actions by the board, rather than anything new.

Earlier this week, Carter's top domestic adviser, Stuart Eizenstat, expressed displeasure over interest trends, saying he joins others in feeling "concern that continued rises in the interest rate could threaten the recovery" from the 1974-1975 recession.

However, the Federal Reserve Board acted in financial markets later Thursday to blunt at least temporarily the impact of its increase in the interest rate by supplying new money to the markets.

But it could just as easily withdraw money from the markets in coming days. The discount rate, along with the federal funds rate, is considered a key barometer of the trend of interest rates generally.

In its announcement, the board said the increase in the discount rate "was taken in recognition of increases that have already occurred in other short-term interest rates and will bring the discount rate into closer alignment with short-term rates generally."

But it was the board that began the original upward push of interest rates by increasing the federal funds rate, the interest charged by banks on overnight loans of surplus funds, to its current level of 7.25 percent.

The Fed chairman, in his speech Thursday, said the latest increase in the discount rate is "merely an interest rate alignment...of no market significance," meaning it does not signal another round of interest rate increases.

The last time the discount rate was at the 7 percent level was early in 1975. The discount rate is the interest the Federal Reserve system charges on loans to its approximately 5,700 member banks.

One administration economist said the increase in interest rates so far has not had a damaging effect on the economy.

"I don't think there has been any damage done at this point. It depends on the path of interest rates in the next year or so, and I don't think we know that yet," he said.

The Federal Reserve Board and two other banking agencies Thursday also announced that to help keep an adequate supply of money available for the housing industry, they have created two new high-interest savings deposits.

One is a savings certificate that will be sold in minimum denominations of $10,000 with a six-month maturity. The interest would be the same as the interest paid on six-month government securities, recently just under 7 percent.

The second is a long-term certificate sold in minimum denominations of $1,000 with an eight-year maturity and paying an interest of 8 percent by savings and loan associations and 7.75 percent by banks.

An joint announcement by the board and by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation said the new certificates "will provide more flexibility for financial institutions to expand to meet other borrowing needs."

Both would be available beginning June 1.

Tax Benefits For Americans Abroad Tabled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday to delay until next January a reduction in tax benefits for 150,000 Americans who work abroad. The delay was approved by voice vote and sent to a conference with the House.

The bill, if enacted, would result in tax savings totaling $614 million over a two-year period for Americans employed in foreign countries.

When a new system of tax benefits for these Americans takes effect next year, their tax savings will be cut to about $166 million a year.

According to the congressional Joint Committee on Taxation, 29 percent of the benefits of the Senate bill would go to persons earning under $20,000 a year, while 22 percent would go to those earning more than $50,000.

The Senate bill seeks to overturn one of the major tax changes approved in the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

Before the 1976 law was enacted, an American working abroad could escape U.S. income tax on the first $20,000 earned each year. The exemption was $25,000 for a person who had worked abroad for three consecutive years.

Congress agreed in 1976 to cut the exemption in most cases to $15,000, but later voted to delay the change until 1977. That would have meant that the higher tax load would appear in tax returns filed before a June 15 deadline by Americans employed abroad.

The Senate action would keep the pre-1976 law in effect until next Jan. 1.

Starting on that date, the blanket exemption would be replaced by three new deductions:

—One for the amount that overall living costs in the foreign country exceeds the average in major American cities.

—A second deduction to reflect higher education costs.

—A third to compensate for increased housing costs abroad.

However, passage of those changes did not end debate on the equity of such tax benefits for Americans who work abroad.

Dollar Rises Against Most Major Currencies

The dollar rose against nearly all major world currencies in international foreign exchange trading Thursday. Dealers said trading was active in New York but fairly quiet in European markets.

The price of gold, meanwhile, rose to $175.375 an ounce in both London and Zurich, Europe's two major bullion trading centers. Those prices were up from $174 in London and $174.12 in Zurich on Wednesday.

The prospect of higher interest rates in the United States helped provide support for the dollar, dealers said. The Federal Reserve System announced an increase to 7 percent from 6½ in its discount rate, the interest charged to banks who borrow from the Fed.

Near the close of New York trading, the Fed's weekly report on money supply showed a very large jump, fueling speculation that the U.S. central bank would soon begin another round of credit-tightening in a move to control inflation, dealers said.

In New York, the dollar slipped against the Canadian dollar but gained against all other major currencies. The Canadian dollar cost 89.57 U.S. cents, up from Wednesday's price of 89.31 U.S. cents.

Other dollar rates in New York included: 2.1022 West German marks, up from 2.0910; 4.6510 French francs, up from 4.6438; 1.9770 Swiss francs, up from 1.9703; 225.22 Japanese yen, up from 224.90. The British pound cost $1.8165, less than Wednesday's price of $1.8215.

In markets abroad, the dollar eased slightly against the Japanese yen in Tokyo and the Dutch guilder in Amsterdam but gained against other major currencies.

In Tokyo the dollar closed at 225.372 yen from 225.475 yen Wednesday. In Amsterdam the dollar dropped to 2.2435 Dutch guilders, down from 2.3335.

Other late dollar rates in Europe Thursday: Frankfurt—2.1000 West German marks, up from 2.0896 Wednesday; Paris—4.6480 French francs, up from 4.6322; Zurich—1.97325 Swiss francs, up from 1.9667; and Milan—870.30 Italian lire, up from 869.50.

In London, the British pound sank to $1.82135 late Thursday from $1.8219 late Wednesday.

The dollar has been falling in value for more than a year, losing about 26 percent in the past year against Japan's currency and about 20 percent against West Germany's. But the U.S. currency had been on the rebound in recent weeks.

The reason for the long decline is the United States' economic problems—inflation, high unemployment and a trade deficit of $26.7 billion last year.

'Adventures' Unites People, Rivers

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

We sat there on the dusty porch steps, Ben Brown, his dog named Gandalf, and this writer. We sat and looked across the dirt road at what is called Terlingua.

A few buildings remain useable among the crumbling adobe walls and fallen timbers of other structures. Our porch steps were part of one of the useable buildings. Near us, on the building's veranda, a group of people gathered around an iced beverage cooler.

Sounds from northern states blended with western draws and were highlighted by accents from Canada and England. Why had so many miles been traveled to reach the wilderness community? Because the former ghost town is where Far Flung Adventures is in the business of putting people and rivers together.

Brown, an employee of Far Flung Adventures, talked for awhile about the town of Terlingua and then about the river. Across the road a lizard scurried for the shade of a broken adobe brick.

"One of the best books on the history of the town is by Kenneth Baxter Ragsdale," said Brown. "It's an accurate history of Terlingua and the Chisos Mining Company." He poured Gandalf a large pan of water. The lab lapped up half of the water in less than a minute.

The conversation changed to the Rio Grande as Brown explained. "It's difficult to say what kind of a trip you'll have on the river tomorrow. So much depends on the amount of water that is released at El Paso. But one thing is for sure, the raft trip will be interesting."

Whether a raft trip is interesting or not depends in part on the river and in part on the trip organizer. Far Flung Adventures doesn't have any control over the amount of water in the Rio Grande, but the high adventure company makes sure their part of the trip is well organized.

Mike Davidson and Steve Harris of the river-running expedition service stepped off the veranda to look at some distant clouds they hoped would bring some much needed rain.

I asked Davidson why Terlingua had been selected as the "home office" for the raft service. He replied, "Being based here near the river means we're fresh for each trip and our equipment is ready to go. We don't have to drive a long distance before we begin a trip." He added, "And because we're based here, we can afford to take smaller groups down the river. We've never canceled a trip because we had too few persons."

Far Flung Adventures is only a year old, but the guides are experienced and all of the equipment is top quality. Both Davidson and Harris are Texas certified Emergency Medical Technicians. Last year the organization made more than 50 commercial trips and its safety record is spotless.

Ever expanding, this year the river outfit purchased additional rafts that are large enough for 8 or 10 people but small enough to negotiate the narrow chutes of the Rio Grande. Needless to say, all rafts are paddle or oar powered. There's no motor noise, so can hear the sound of a falcon overhead, and there are no petrol fumes, so you can smell the flowers along the way.

On the following day when our group got ready to float the Rio Grande, we were issued life jackets. And, before climbing into the rubber rafts, there was a quick course in the use of the paddles.

After we got the rafts out in the river, the guides patiently gave more instruction on the use of the paddles. In just a few minutes, some of the landlubbers were handling the paddles like seasoned river rats. A small stretch of minor rapids helped to provide the confidence needed for future rapids that would be a bit faster and a lot more exciting.

The guides proved to be much more than just guides. They are naturalists, geologists and historians — if not in university degree, at least in ability to pass on their knowledge of the river and the country.

Kitchen, sanitation and safety factors always receive the attention of the guides. Speaking of the kitchen duties, a passenger last year wrote: "The meals were cooked better than most restaurants I have eaten in." Well, lest restaurants everywhere resent that statement, it should be noted that the clean air and outdoor activity can give a person an appetite unknown back in civilization.

Far Flung Adventures float stretches of the river that include Santa Elena, Colorado Canyon, Mariscal and Boquillas plus the Lower Canyons. The area of the Lower Canyons has become a subject of debate in Washington, D.C. The Rio Grande Wild and Scenic River proposal pending before the House Interior Committee would preserve 191 miles of canyons downstream from Big Bend National Park. The river guides said that the area's congressman, Rep. Robert Krueger, is opposed to the wilderness proposal because it would limit road building, additional mobile home and cabin construction.

Specialized equipment and a relatively mild climate enables Far Flung Adventures to float the Rio Grande almost the year around. The river guides have worked with individuals, families, YMCA, scout, church and university groups. At this writing the rate per person is $32 for a one-day river trip. Children age 7 through 12 travel at three-fourths the adult fare. Charter rates are available for groups, and a 10 per cent discount applies to any group of eight or more on any trip. Plans are being made for river journeys in Canada and Mexico.

It's estimated that more than a million people will run a river somewhere in the United States this year. If you're thinking of going down a river in another part of the country, you may have questions about guides, prices and equipment. The April-May issue of Mariah magazine has an excellent article on river services. "How to Pick a River Outfitter" will tell you what questions to ask and what you should expect.

For more information pertaining to raft trips down the Rio Grande, write Far Flung Adventures, Box 31, Terlingua, Tex., 79852, or telephone 915/364-2489.

The Rio Grande in the Big Bend Country is a geological showcase, a great place for naturalists and a "must do" experience for adventurers.

Exciting Trips Source Book Now Available

A source book of exciting trips, outdoor challenges and thrilling vacations in North America has been published by Thomas Y. Crowell Company.

Adventure Travel by Pat Dickerman tells you who, what, where, when and how much for high adventure trips from the ocean floor to sun-filled skies.

The table of contents gives you an idea of the many subjects covered in this fact-filled book by Miss Dickerman. Headings include: On Foot, By Horse, On Wheels, By Boat, On or in Water, In Snow, In the Air. The wheels category covers vacations by bicycle, covered wagon or jeep.

The dust jacket states: Anyone with a yen for adventure — as mild as a day's hike with a naturalist or as daring as scaling an ice encrusted mountain face — will find this source book indispensable. But be warned — These trips are habit-forming!

Ben Brown (below, left) gave up a banking career in New York for the life of a Rio Grande river rat. He explained his change of life style. "You might say I'm 28 going on 12." His companion, Gandalf, was named for a J.R. Tolkien character. Rod Ponton shows how he brushes his teeth with a "blood root" twig. River guides explain the flora and fauna of the Rio Grande and Big Bend country in layman terms. Making another desert discovery is Sandra Sheehy of Houston, who examines the blossoms of a "tobacco tree" in a side canyon. Guides for Far Flung Adventures, operating out of Terlingua, lead hiking trips on both sides of the Rio Grande, direct raft trips as well for parties of almost any size. (Staff Photos by Ted J. # Powers Agree On Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed for the first time to begin negotiations to limit conventional arms sales.

In a joint communique issued Thursday, the two countries said, "The problem of limiting international transfers of conventional arms is urgent," and agreed to hold talks. But that was all they agreed on.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter acknowledged that both countries have in the past called for restraints on the transfer of conventional arms, a category which covers all military equipment except nuclear explosives. Nothing has come of those statements.

But Carter noted that "this is the first time the United States has agreed to a continuing set of concrete negotiations." He called that development "promising."

The announcement came on the same day the Senate Foreign Relations Committee considered one of the biggest conventional arms sales proposals in American history, the $4.8 billion package of jets for Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia. But Carter said the timing was coincidental. On an 8-8 vote, the panel refused to approve a resolution aimed at blocking the arms sales.

Carter said the first meeting in the series will take place early this summer, at a date and place as yet undetermined. In the meantime, the world will get an idea of how far apart the two countries are when they present their positions on the subject to the United Nations General Assembly's Special Session on Disarmament later this month.

Carter indicated that the United States plans to maintain its special arms sales relationship with the NATO countries, Australia, New Zealand and Japan. Those nations have already been placed in a special, exempt category in the administration's unilateral efforts to reduce its arms sales.

"We will not let these talks jeopardize shipments of necessary arms to our allies and friends," he said.

Carter also said that before any agreement was reached, the United States would consult with all its allies and invite the participation of the rest of the world's major arms exporters.

Carter refused to discuss details of the United States or Soviet proposals. He said that neither side presented detailed plans for limiting arms sales at the initial session, which was held in Helsinki last week.

Earlier this year, President Carter announced a new policy that put a ceiling on conventional arms transfers, and by his calculations, reduced fiscal sales by $700 million. He arrived at that figure by throwing out the sales to the "exempt"

NATO and Pacific allies and figuring in a discount for inflation. But in total actual dollars, the administration conceded, it had not only failed to reduce the level of sales, but had allowed them to increase by nearly $2 billion.

Optimistic View Of Economy Seen

A Sears, Roebuck & Co. official from Dallas said Thursday the national economy has basis for optimism for the remainder of 1978 despite trade deficits and the weakness of the dollar on world money markets.

W. C. Lochmoeller, executive vice president in charge of the 11-state Southwestern territory for Sears, said the plus side of the economy includes the fact that more people have jobs than ever before in the country's history.

Lochmoeller was in Lubbock Thursday to inspect the company's store at South Plains Mall. The store, which opened in February, 1977, currently is logging a rate of sales which indicate that by the end of its second year, the volume will have almost doubled that at its former downtown location, according to Lochmoeller.

The Sears official said the Southwest region, and in particular Texas, is the fastest growing area in the nation with the possible exception of Florida.

"A lot of people are abandoning the East and Midwest because of the cold winters and heavy snowfalls. They have discovered there are places like Houston, Dallas and Lubbock, and other parts of the country that are more desirable to live in," he said.

Many industries are moving their headquarters from some city in the Midwest or East to the Southwest, according to Lochmoeller. Other companies are building factories or branch offices in the Southwest because the population is increasing to the point that distribution centers or factories are needed, he said.

Lochmoeller said Sears currently orders most of its merchandise by computer and relies heavily on data processing throughout its business.

"The mail order business is still very important," he said. "We do a tremendous volume out of the catalog by telephone. Shopping by phone has increased in popularity during the past 5-7 years," he said. "About 20 percent of our total business is still mail order (from the catalog), and probably about 65 percent of that is phone business."

Sears finds it a never ending challenge, he said, to keep abreast of what customers are buying and what they will be buying in three, six or nine months.

Jetliner Crew Praised For Deeds After Crash

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The crew of the National Airlines jetliner that crashed into Estambia Bay "behaved very well" in evacuating passengers from the downed jet and helped prevent more deaths, a National Transportation Safety Board spokesman said Thursday.

Three passengers drowned after Monday night's crash, but there might have been more fatalities if the crew had not conducted a smooth, efficient evacuation operation, said NTSB spokesman Bob Buckhorn.

"They turned in a very good performance from what we're told," he said. "They distributed life jackets; one stewardess got a megaphone and gave instructions to the passengers; one had a microphone."

He said the plane's captain, George Kunz, kept a running head count to account for the 52 passengers and six crew members at all times.

Flight attendant Debbie Verplank of Miami helped evacuate passengers from the plane and then found herself pinned into a seat, he said.

"The water was rising around her and she said she was sure she was going to drown. Then she gave one last mighty effort and freed herself."

Miss Verplank, 28, suffered spleen damage and was in satisfactory condition Thursday at a Pensacola hospital. Another flight attendant, C.C. Crawford of Miami, was treated and released from a hospital.

A third flight attendant, Carl Greenwood Jr. of Miami, "has no recollection of the crash or what happened after it," Buckhorn said. "Doctors tell us this is not unusual for this type of situation."

He said the NTSB has heard "some weird stories" about the crash.

"One of the passengers climbed into the tugboat. He was soaked with fuel oil from the plane, and the first thing he asked the tugboat captain was if he could have a cigarette." Buckhorn said a spark would have "turned the whole area into a holocaust."

Most of the investigators have returned to Washington to analyze data from the plane's recording devices.

Deaf Smith Keeps Fed Cattle Status

A-J Correspondent

FEEDER CATTLE WEIGH-IN — A group of stocker cattle fresh from a Deaf Smith County wheat field is weighed in at Champion Feeders in Hereford. Handling large numbers of cattle is an everyday event in an area which holds the top position in the Texas cattle feeding industry. (Correspondent's Photo)

HEREFORD—Drought and insects severely damaged area feed grain crops last year and put a bind on the agriculture economy.

Cattlemen continued to send their livestock through feedyards, however, and Deaf Smith County maintained its dominant position in the Texas cattle feeding industry.

The 1978 fed cattle survey by the Agriculture Development Department of Southwestern Public Service Co. (SPS), revealed that Deaf Smith County remained the leading cattle feeding county in Texas by a considerable margin, and the "Magic Triangle" counties of Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro retained their top three positions in state.

The SPS survey indicated that a total of 664,800 cattle were fed in Deaf Smith County feedlots, an increase of 151,989 head over the 1976 figure.

The survey covers about 45,000 square miles served by the electric firm, including 30 counties on the High Plains of Texas, four in eastern New Mexico, three in Oklahoma Panhandle and one in southwestern Kansas.

According to Sam Thomas, agriculture department manager in Amarillo, 4,373,850 fat cattle were produced in the SPS service area for 1977.

"During the period, the feedlot capacity came to 2,734,740 head and is barely 10,000 head under the peak year of 1974, when a capacity of 2,742,250 was registered. This dropped to a low of 2.6 million in 1976, and present indications are that 1978 will see a new peak in feedlot capacity use," Thomas said.

Parmer County, which finished fourth among Texas cattle feeding counties in last year's survey, replaced Castro County in the No. 2 position in this year's SPS survey, while Castro County was No. 3.

A total of 336,545 cattle were fed in Parmer county in 1977, compared with 282,000 head in 1976, an increase of 54,545 head.

Castro county ranked second among cattle feeding counties in 1974, 1975 and 1976.

The total number of cattle fed in Castro County for 1977 was 328,220 head, a decline of 35,180 head from the 364,000 head figure of 1976.

The three counties of the Magic Triangle also held down the top three slots in the state in feedlot capacity.

Deaf Smith County was No. 1 with a capacity of 280,500. Parmer County was second with a 274,500 head capacity, and Castro County was third at a capacity of 228,400 head.

The survey revealed that the number of feedyards doing custom feeding in 1978 was one less than the preceding year, but this represented the consolidation of reporting yards," Thomas pointed out.

"The total number of yards surveyed continued to fall with a reduction of six from last year. This, too, reflects a consolidation, but is the eleventh year it has occurred. There were 274 yards counted in 1967, compared with 153 in 1978," he added.

Thomas emphasized the considerable economic impact which the cattle feeding industry has on the area's economy.

"The total impact of the feedyard industry on the business community reached $8 billion in 1977, and the farm sale value exceeded $2 billion," he said.

The SPS survey showed that packing plant annual slaughter capacity jumped from 4,990,680 head to 5.4 million head, and the number of plants increased from 17 to 20.

According to Thomas, 589,000 head of this capacity is not in use, but the cattle slaughtering industry has made an estimated $8 billion contribution to area business.

"The future of the feedlot industry appears to be the brightest of any period in its history, but this may not be good," Thomas warned.

"Too many people believe the industry is at a bright stage, and with a great majority acting together, adverse reactions can occur. The price being paid for feeder cattle is a case in point," Thomas emphasized.

"Eventually, the customer must be considered as to what he will do, and we could have poor profits along with good prices if the customer refuses to go along with all this enthusiasm," he said.

"Fat cattle prices in the area climbed to their highest level in nearly three years this spring, after a long dry spell for High Plains cattle feeders that stretched back to 1973.

Feeders made no mad rush to put more cattle in the feedpens this spring, however, electing to carefully weigh their options and eye the market outlook before putting more money in cattle.

"The price of replacement cattle jumped right along with the price of fat cattle this spring. In fact, it jumped more," a spokesman for a feedyard pointed out.

The acceleration in the price of replacement cattle slowed placements in feedyards here during the early portion of the spring, according to the spokesman.

Many feeders who had been "burned" before have been looking long and hard at whether they can pay the current high prices for feeder cattle and still expect to realize a profit at the end of the feeding period.

A cycle in the cattle industry was recently completed and cattlemen worked hard to pare down their inventories of cattle and bring about an upswing in the marketplace.

Dr. Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, reports that the long-run outlook for cattle points toward an improved price picture for the next few years, provided consumer backlashes or other misfortunes don't befall the industry.

"The cow herd has been severely reduced and the over-supply situation which plagued the industry from 1973-76 may be about over," he said. "Reduced beef production and improved demand for meat should provide cattlemen with much more favorable prices.

"The year's expected use of feeder cattle may be much more important to price levels than the relatively small change in available supplies. If cattle feeders continue to expand their output, the greater demand for feeder animals during the year should assure some sustained price strength," said Uvacek.

Foreign Investors' Land Dealings Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics of tax treaties with other countries say that foreign investors in U.S. farmland get such good breaks they often can afford to out-bid American farmers who want to expand their holdings.

An unpublished analysis by the Agriculture Department says that under certain conditions an investor from a country which has a tax treaty with the United States can legally dodge income withholding taxes. And it said that in some cases, the investor does not have to pay taxes on capital gains on the value of his U.S. land investment.

"The implication is that the foreign investor would be willing to pay 12 to 15 percent more for farmland as a result of the capital gains exemption," the report said.

A basic assumption is that U.S. farmland has been appreciating in value and will continue to do so.

"For a large investor whose capital gains would place him in a 50 percent tax bracket for ordinary U.S. income and a 30 percent effective bracket on capital gains, the incentive would range from about 12 to 15 percent if he expects farmland to appreciate at the rate of eight percent a year," the report said.

How a foreign investor is treated depends partly on whether he "is determined for tax purposes to be engaged in the conduct of a U.S. trade or business or acting merely as a passive investor," it said.

If a foreigner buys U.S. farmland as an investment, not as a business, and is in the United States less than 183 days a year, no capital gains tax will be assessed by the federal government. But if the land is operated as business the capital gains tax would apply.

The analysis was prepared by the USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Service as an internal working paper. However, copies of the report have been circulated among certain members of Congress and others, including major farm groups.

Although tax treaty benefits can also apply to other countries, the analysis uses West Germany as an example.

It said the treaty "provides the opportunity for a German investor in real estate to produce higher after-tax rates or return than a U.S. investor faced with an identical pre-tax rate of return."

Further, a West German investor in U.S. farmland has options available which enable him to be free of capital gains taxes by his homeland.

"Therefore, the German investor often possesses the advantage of escaping from all capital gains taxes and does not relinquish the privilege of being treated identically with U.S. taxpayers in other respects," the report said.

Investors from countries which have no tax treaties with the United States also have options of using such shelters by going through third countries which do have such arrangements.

The Senate is expected to take up soon a new tax treaty with the United Kingdom which farm critics say will speed up the foreign investment in U.S. farmland and serve as a model for similar treaties with other countries.

Reuben L. Johnson of the National Farmers Union says that the treaty, which was approved March 15 by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "contains a provision which 'would invite large-scale state income tax avoidance by foreign interests dealing in oil, grain, other commodities or investing in U.S. farmland'."

Johnson recently testified before the Senate Commerce Committee that "one source has indicated that the foreign investment in U.S. farmland in 1977 alone may have been on the order of $800 million" and that the International Real Estate Institute in Brussels, Belgium, puts the total at $1 billion.

Further, Johnson said, "this may be just the tip of the iceberg."

Ohio Officer To Be Speaker At FFA Meet

Rob Hovis of Helena, Ohio, will speak at the annual Area I Future Farmers of America (FFA) convention here Saturday at Coronado High School.

Registration for approximately 300 FFA members, advisers and parents from 96 area schools will begin at 8:30 a.m. Morning session will start at 9:30.

Hovis, eastern region vice president of the FFA, is a student at Ohio State University where he studies agricultural economics and agricultural education.

Area officers will be elected along with a sweetheart and FFA degrees will be presented at the afternoon session which begins at 1:30.

Winners of various awards and agricultural programs also will be announced.

Current Area I FFA officers are Bebo Terry of White Deer, president; Paul Hermesmeier of Clarendon, Kirk Lewis of Muleshoe, Mike Anthony of Borger, Joe Whitfield of Levelland, and Jim Bob Sims of Happy, vice presidents.

Elvin Caraway of Spur is state FFA president.

Walter Labay, with the Texas Education Agency in Plainview, is adviser.

Soviet Union's 1978 Grain Goal Unrealistic, USDA Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department expert says the Soviet Union's 1978 grain production goal appears unrealistic but that livestock production has rebounded well.

Fletcher Pope Jr., project leader for Soviet agricultural situation and outlook, said Russia's cattle and poultry inventories were at a record high on Jan. 1 but that hog numbers had not regained their peak of three years ago prior to a 1975 drought.

"Soviet livestock product goals probably can be met," Pope said in a report. "Meat production in 1978 is expected to easily exceed the 1975 record of 15 million (metric) tons, but may fall short of the 15.6 million ton goal in 1978."

The Soviet Union's grain target this year is 220 million tons, up from 195.5 million harvested in 1977.

Pope, as he has before, said the goal "seems to be optimistic unless favorable weather boosts yields" throughout the Soviet grain area.

European Market Seen As Top U.S. Customer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite problems with its protectionist trade policies, Europe and particularly the Common Market countries which form its trade nucleus will continue to be the prime foreign outlet for American farmers, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

Japan and other Asian markets, as a region, have shown the greatest growth over the years as importers of U.S. farm products, but a new USDA report clearly defines Europe as the larger customer and one with future promise for expansion if world trade can be liberalized.

The report is in a current issue of FATS — Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States — published by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service. It was written by Robert L. Tontz, a foreign trade analyst in the agency.

Farm exports have been a well-known factor in U.S. agriculture, highlighted at times by sudden, new purchases of grain and other commodities by the Soviet Union and China. Arrangements have been made with the Soviets in an attempt to put their buying on a more regular basis through a five-year grain-purchase agreement.

China still is an enigma in terms of buying U.S. products, preferring to buy wheat and other grain from traditional suppliers such as Canada, Australia and Argentina, and turning to the United States — as it has done recently — when those sources run into delivery problems.

Tontz pointed to the "phenomenal growth" in the value of U.S. farm exports in recent years, a record of more than $24 billion in the fiscal year which ended last Sept. 30. Higher prices have contributed much to the record values set since 1972 but the volume of farm exports also has set records.

For example, in 1977 it took the production of about one in every four acres harvested by farmers to supply the export demand. A decade ago the ratio was one in five acres, he said.

Tontz used 1972 as a beginning because that was when massive grain sales — including those to the Soviets — triggered an unparalleled drain on U.S. reserves and cause commodity prices to soar.

Looking from a general perspective, all regions of the world shared in the growth of U.S. export markets since 1972, Tontz said. The biggest grains were in Europe and Asia.

"Except for the North American region (Canada), Europe and Asia were the only major world regions with which the United States had a favorable balance of agricultural trade in 1977," he said.

Further, Europe and Asia accounted for four-fifths of the gain in total U.S. farm exports from 1972 to 1977.

Taking the 1976-77 fiscal year by itself, when total farm exports rose to a record of nearly $10.5 billion and Asia more than $8 billion.

From 1972 through 1977, Europe accounted for nearly three-fifths of the U.S. export increase for oilseeds, oilseed products and feed grains; nearly one-third of the gain in animals and animal products; and more than one-fourth of the increase for wheat sold to foreign countries.

The Common Market countries represent "the mainstay of the European market, taking over two-thirds of the U.S. farm exports to Europe in 1977," Tontz said.

Those include the European Community's original six members: France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy, the Netherlands and West Germany plus three added in 1973, Denmark, Ireland and the United Kingdom.

As included in Tontz's analysis, Europe also includes the Soviet Union and the Eastern European nations; and other West European countries which are not part of the European Community. Altogether, those bought about $3.36 billion worth of U.S. farm products last year, including $1.06 billion by the Soviet Union.

Last year's exports to Asia of more than $8 billion included $3.8 billion to Japan, the single largest buyer of U.S. farm products. But Asia as a region — which includes more than 40 countries as customers — was the leading growth market from 1972 to 1977, Tontz said.

Sales included increases for soybeans and other oilseeds, feed grains, animal products and wheat, he said. Large gains were reported also in the Asian market for cotton, tobacco and fruits and vegetables.

"The Japanese market has been one of the major growth areas for U.S. agricultural exports," Tontz said. "These exports totaled less than $865 million in 1967, set a then $1 billion record in 1970, and accelerated dramatically from $1.2 billion in 1972 to $2.3 billion in 1973. The expansion pattern has been most pronounced since 1972, generally paralleling that of the U.S. export expansion pattern of the world."

Looking at future prospects, Tontz said that "per capita consumption of livestock and livestock products, which is relatively high, continues to expand" in the European Community.

"With further economic development but with a possible slowing of already high (European Community) crop yield gains in the future, a favorable potential for an expanded (European Community) demand for feed grains and oilseeds and products would exist," he said.

Although "progress has been made" in getting larger access to Japan's market, a number of impediments remain, Tontz said.

"In general, these include such items as the continuation of residual quotas under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the use by the Japanese of state trading practices, import quotas on beef and veal, tariffs on poultry and pork, and their interpretation and application of certain health and sanitary restrictions," he said.

Talks in Geneva, Switzerland, are aimed at trade liberalization through multilateral negotiations, including requests for reducing agricultural tariffs and non-tariff barriers to trade expansion.

Live Cattle Market Climbs Back From Early Trade Loss

By REUTERS
CHICAGO — After recovering from an early loss of 22 points, live cattle futures ended 45 to 120 higher Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Distast August led the advance on a total volume estimated at 26,966 contracts. Most contracts set new highs for the season, with December up to $55.20 per hundredweight, highest since 1973.

Agriculture Production Slash Seen

HEREFORD (UPI) — A spokesman for dissident farmers Thursday said efforts by growers to cut back production to drive farm prices higher are reflected in state and federal government wheat forecasts.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture this week estimated the 1978 winter wheat crop at 1.284 billion bushels, down 16 percent from last year.

Mike McCathern of the American Agriculture Movement's state strike office said a report issued by the Texas crop reporting service estimated the state's wheat production down 50 percent because of drought conditions in the Panhandle.

Claims Share Of Credit
We in the American Agriculture Movement are not saying that it has not been extremely dry in the Panhandle, but our 50 percent plow down and graze out coupled with the low prices for the finished product has had an even greater effect on production than the government is willing to give us credit for," said McCathern.

The maverick farm movement has urged farmers to roll back production by half to drive crop prices to 100 percent parity, which would give them break-even prices.

Costs Wipe Out Gain
Despite a slight rise in the parity price of wheat, McCathern said, during the past year costs of production have risen 6 percent which balances out any gain.

"The simple fact of truth behind the reduction in wheat production is that the farmers themselves have awakened to the fact that for the past three years they have been the ones who have been paying for the privilege of growing wheat for the rest of the world and that price for that privilege has gotten too high," he said.

"It is no longer economically prudent to grow a crop for which there is no return."

Increase Noted In Wire Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and ranchers who bale hay may be faced with higher prices and possible shortages in some areas later this year, according to the Agriculture Department.

Retail prices of baled twine averaged $14.50 per 40-pound bale in February, up 30 cents from last fall. Wire prices are around $25 to $27 per 100-pound box, depending on quality, up $2 to $3 from a year ago.

"With imports tapering off and inventories down, prices could even strengthen slightly later in the season," the department said Wednesday in a new outlook report.

Above-normal hay baling last fall in some areas reduced twine and wire inventories, the report said. Imports have been down since last October.

If late cuttings of hay were fairly heavy again this year, these low inventories of twine could cause farmers some difficulty in finding baled twine supplies, the report said.

No Hog Cholera Found In U.S.

MISSION (UPI) — A U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarian in charge of the hog cholera surveillance team in the Lower Rio Grande Valley said Wednesday no case of the disease had been found on this side of the Rio Grande despite an outbreak at Miguel Aleman, Mexico.

Dr. Joseph Morse said his survey team had made regular checks since the April 25 incident in which 25 swine at Miguel Aleman, across from Roma, Texas, was diagnosed as having cholera. He said 19 of the Mexican swine died and a veterinarian killed the other six infected hogs and imposed a quarantine on the area.

The United States was declared free of hog cholera in January, 1978, following a 15-year eradication campaign and Morse said no case of cholera had been recorded in the Valley in the past five years.

"We have come up with nothing, but we don't sit back and become complacent about this," Morse said. He said spot checks of Valley hogs would continue at least the rest of this week.

Chicago Schools Set Reading Requirement

CHICAGO (AP) — About 15,000 of Chicago's 40,000 eighth-graders will be required to attend summer school to improve their reading if they want to go on to high school.

"For the first time, we will now have an elementary school diploma that will mean something," said school board member Catherine Rohrer, a longtime critic of automatic promotion in the public school system.

The seven-week summer program is part of a crackdown on laggard readers being instituted by the school district. It comes at a time when school officials throughout the nation are voicing similar concerns about basic skills.

Chicago officials want to make sure the city's children reach average national reading levels. The national norm for eighth graders on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills is 8.5. The Chicago average is 6.8.

The officials said Thursday that 15,000 eighth-graders could not read at the level of a beginning eighth-grader.

Overall, 25,000 students at all levels will be taking remedial courses in Chicago schools this summer, up from 2,000 last year.

In the past, Chicago schools operated on the basis of "social promotion," a belief that "children should stay with their age group, no matter what," said Angelina Caruso, associate superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

"During the social revolution, there was the feeling that anything but 'social promotion' was discrimination. But now, we've had a whole generation move through high schools without the skills to survive."

The tougher promotion policy was approved by the Board of Education last summer. The summer sessions will cost the board $11.7 million.

Pupils attending the summer session who will not be 15 by Dec. 1 must bring their test scores up to par by the end of the summer or repeat eighth grade.

Those who will turn 15 before Dec. 1 — mostly pupils who have already spent an extra year in grade school — will be allowed to enter high school after completing the summer session even if their reading ability still lags. But these students then must enroll in a special reading laboratory course in high school.

In New York City, the Board of Education is considering denying high school diplomas to students deficient in reading and math.

NO SALE — Senator Frank Church, D-Idaho, left, looks at a copy of the resolution disapproving the sale of jet fighters to Israel, Saudi Arabia and Egypt, as Senator Claiborne Pell, R-R.I., gives a thumbs down. Both Church and Pell voted to oppose the sale. ## Senate Panel Rejects Move To Block Mideast Jet Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee on Thursday turned down a resolution aimed at blocking President Carter's Mideast jet fighter sales, giving Carter a victory in the first round of his battle to keep Congress from scuttling the deal.

On an 8-8 vote, the Senate Foreign Relations committee rejected a resolution aimed at blocking the $4.8 billion arms sales package, in which the United States would sell jet fighters to Israel and two of its Arab neighbors, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

After the tie vote, committee members agreed to send a report on the arms proposal to the Senate without any recommendation.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said the arms proposal will be debated on the Senate floor on Monday.

Byrd said part of the debate may occur in secret session at the request of one senator, whom he refused to identify.

The majority leader did not say what specific aspect of the debate might be held in closed session. Byrd, who supports the sales, said he believes the resolution to block them would be rejected.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said the president "deeply appreciates the courage and statesmanship of the eight members of the committee who supported his position."

And Powell said Carter expressed confidence that when the issue is debated on the Senate floor the Senate will "act in a courageous and responsible manner."

Under parliamentary procedure, Congress may reject an administration's planned arms sale within 30 days of its formal submission to Capitol Hill. But the administration does not need express approval from Congress. To halt such a deal, both the House and Senate must approve resolutions blocking it.

The key vote was the 8-8 tie that blocked approval of the anti-sales resolution. The Senate panel was considered the forum most hostile to the Carter's plan, which involves the sale of 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia and 50 F-5Es to Egypt as well as 75 F-16s and 15 F-16s for Israel.

Congressional opposition to the Carter plan has centered on the Saudi deal, with opponents saying that Israel's security would be imperiled by the sale of F-15s to Saudi Arabia.

The Senate committee vote came one day after Carter gave assurances he would offer an additional 20 F-15s to Israel for delivery in 1983-84.

The House International Relations Committee, which had been scheduled to vote Thursday, rescheduled its action for next Tuesday.

A White House aide deeply involved in the lobbying, who asked not to be identified, said he thought the administration had a two-vote margin of support in the House committee.

After the vote, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who supported the arms package in committee, said, "There's no question the president won a victory today."

However, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a leader of the opposition to the arms sales, said he was encouraged that the committee report has the effect of linking the three sales in a package subject to a single Senate vote.

Church said that by treating the sales as a package on the floor "we are subject to less risk of offending individual countries." The senator added that he thought the package format improves prospects for defeating the proposals.

In an effort to win support for the sales, Carter notified the Senate and House committees that he will offer Israel another 20 F-15s for delivery in the mid 1980s and said the administration would give sympathetic consideration to Israeli requests for more modern warplanes after that date.

The committee also received written assurances from Defense Secretary Harold Brown that the Saudis would not base the F-15s near the Israeli border and would not buy additional combat planes from other countries.

Senate committee members supporting the sale were John Sparkman, D-Ala.; McGovern, John Glenn, D-Ohio; Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn.; James Pearson, R-Kan.; Charles Percy, R-Ill.; Robert Griffin, R-Mich.; and Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

Opposing the sale were Church; Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.; Dick Clark, D-Iowa; Joseph Biden, D-Del.; Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.; Clifford Case, R-N.J.; Richard Stone, D-Fla.; and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

In discussion of the sales, Pearson said the committee was facing "nothing less than a series of disagreeable options." And Glenn described them as "the lesser of two evil choices."

Arguing for rejection of the sales, Stone said they "do a disservice to the first chance for peace we've seen in the Middle East in 30 years."

Sarbanes called the administration "totally unwilling to take an approach which decreases, decreases the amount of armaments being introduced into this troubled area."

While the administration offer to sell additional planes to Israel may have swayed some votes, Clark said that rather than improve the package, "it only makes it worse."

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Bob Dole, R-Kan., had said they would call for action on motions to discharge the Foreign Relations Committee from consideration of the sales if the committee did not act within the 10 days prescribed by the arms sales law.

That deadline was midnight Thursday. Members of the committee expressed concern that if it did not act to send a report to the full Senate, the Dole or Proxmire motions could be called up one by one, removing from the panel and the Senate leadership, any control over the floor debate.

Funds Sought For Training Of Paramedics

If the money can be found, Lubbock County's emergency medical technicians will be trained to the level of paramedics — a status that will enable them to administer drugs and perform other advanced life-saving services.

The administrative committee of the Lubbock County Hospital District board of managers Thursday discussed that proposal for the district's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) system.

"Officials agreed that the district doesn't have the money to initiate such a paramedic program immediately, but they said they hope to find the funds in the future — possibly through a source other than the district."

Committee members mentioned the City of Lubbock and the Lubbock-Crosby-Garza Medical Society as possible contributors toward a paramedic program.

Stuart Haggard, EMS coordinator, said initial cost of the program would be about $50,000, which would pay for the necessary training and basic equipment. After the first-time costs, he said, the program would run about an $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

As paramedics, the emergency medical technicians could provide ambulance patients with higher-level care at the scene of an accident or enroute to a hospital, Haggard said.

Also at its meeting Thursday, the administrative committee voted to recommend that the full hospital board renew a lease for an EMS station at 48th Street and Avenue Q.

The committee also discussed, but tabled, a proposal to replace the chassis on three EMS ambulances. The committee asked the EMS staff to investigate cost alternatives.

U.S. To Fund Work Of Church Council

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Governing Board of the National Council of Churches has voted to accept federal funds for a program to help Vietnam veterans who are in jail.

The proposed program would channel funds to veterans' self-help groups that provide job training, detoxification services and assistance in obtaining upgraded discharges and veterans' benefits. The amount of money involved in the Wednesday action was not known, but the board said "$500,000 appears to be available for this purpose" from the U.S. Labor Department.

Black Panther Leader Arrested After Brawl

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton was arrested in a barroom brawl Thursday near his coastal university city where he was living while awaiting trial on a murder charge.

Newton, 36, and two other men were booked for investigation of assault with intent to commit murder following a melee at a bar in nearby Aptos, the Santa Cruz County sheriff's office said. Also booked were Robert Heard, 29, and William Moore, 43, officers said.

All three were held under $25,000 bail. Meanwhile, the Alameda County district attorney's office in Oakland, where Newton faces trial in the murder charge, asked Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich to revoke Newton's bail. Pulich scheduled a hearing on the request for Friday afternoon.

Deputies said at least two shots were fired in the barroom incident, about 100 miles south of San Francisco.

A 26-year-old Aptos man, Kenny Hall, was treated and released at a local hospital for a minor head wound, officers said.

Bob Noonan, Santa Cruz County assistant district attorney, said Newton would probably be brought to court Friday for arraignment.

The slender Newton, a lightning rod of controversy since he co-founded the Black Panther Party in 1966, has been living here for several months and taking postgraduate courses at the University of California at Santa Cruz.

He ended a 2½-year self-imposed exile in Cuba last July to return to the United States to face trial on charges of shooting a 17-year-old Oakland prostitute who died after he fled the country. He also was accused of assault in the pistol-whipping of his tailor in a separate incident.

Newton had been free on $80,000 bail and resumed his active leadership of the party. Elaine Brown, who administered party affairs while he was gone, left Oakland a few weeks later amid reports of a rift between her and Newton.

Party headquarters declined comment on the arrest of Newton, who is the undisputed leader of the party.

Analyst Catches Heat From Solar Energy Fans

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Bearing a message of good will, the government energy man flew 2,500 miles into Sun Country only to find himself catching more solar heat than a Death Valley lizard.

Somewhere between Washington and Palm Springs, policy analyst Barry Gale slipped out of the familiar world of oil, gas and nuclear power, into a close encounter with "Alternate Energy" enthusiasts bombarding him with their intense vision of a solar and geothermal future.

Gale's experience gave the Carter administration a taste of the grilling it can expect from a new energy constituency that dawned spectacularly in the May 3 "Sun Day" celebrations.

Gale told them the administration supports solar energy; they jeered.

He told them the Energy Department was thinking "very, very tentatively" of public "town meetings" on future energy policy; they put Gale through his first town meeting then and there.

Why, they demanded, doesn't the nation switch — now, immediately — from petroleum, coal and uranium to the clean, endless energy of sun, wind, water and the earth's natural heat?

Why doesn't the government credit the social and environmental benefits of these alternate energy sources while it counts their costs?

Why does the government still spend more on nuclear development than on solar?

Where are the government's incentives for solar energy to match those given conventional fuels?

Where, they asked, is its sense of values?

Gale didn't have all the answers. Nobody does.

As director of data analysis in the Energy Department's policy office, Gale plays a supporting role in policy development at least four echelons below cabinet level.

But he became a lightning rod for challenges from his audience and fellow panel members at the Palm Springs conference.

Panelist Ronald Doctor, California energy commissioner, indirectly attacked the foundation of Carter's solar policy, based on driving solar equipment costs low enough to compete commercially against petroleum, coal and the atom.

"The fundamental question is not the cost of solar energy," said Doctor, "but the desirability of this means of supplying energy compared to the alternatives."

"It may be," Doctor continued, "that solar energy should be developed by massive state programs. ... We don't have free markets in this country today. ... We have to deal with managed — some would say manipulated — markets that do not always perform in the public interest."

Dr. Jan Hamrin of the University of California's Energy Extension Service, raised a deeper issue.

"To many people, the whole energy question is one of technology," she said. "In my opinion, the issues are social and value questions. ... Where are we, where are we going, how are we going to get there, and is that really where we want to be?"

Gale was asked what the government can do about these value questions of energy development and who is responsible for working out such plans.

"We don't know, to tell you the truth," Gale said. "You're dipping into a (philosophical) problem when you talk about social values. ... I have a tough time defining what they are, and if you have a tough time defining what they are, you have a very tough time figuring out how to change them."

That was too much for Doctor, who burst out, "This is absolute nonsense. You're talking about social values every time you throw money into a nuclear power plant or into a nuclear research project."

"You have implicitly made the social decision that nuclear is good and you're going all out to promote nuclear. Why don't you put that money into solar instead? Why don't you put it in biomass (fuel crops)?"

"Well," replied Gale, "all I can say is I think we are doing that, and maybe you perception is different from our perception in Washington."

"What's the ratio of expenditure for nuclear versus expenditure for solar?" challenged Doctor.

Gale agreed federal nuclear spending is higher, but said the administration is "trying to rectify that problem" in its next round of energy policy decisions.

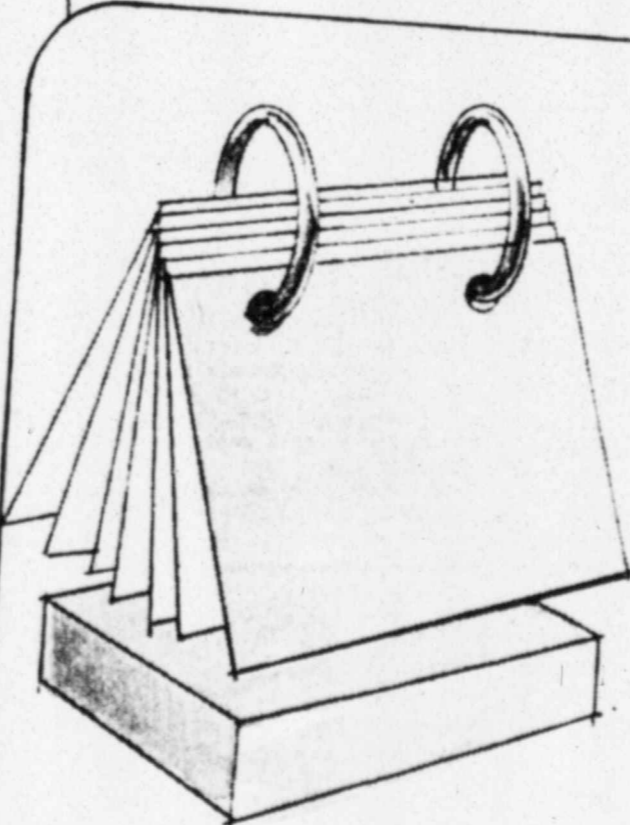

A man in the audience stood up and said, "If you look at the people ... who have been involved in solar energy or alternate energy for some time, you'll find lots of them are starving. ... No government programs ... are addressing that problem."

New Clash With Housing Agency Seen

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city council Thursday bowed to a federal mandate on housing assistance, but one city official predicts compliance will lead to another confrontation next year.

David Kitten, Community Development coordinator, predicts the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development next year will order the city to adjust the proportion of housing assistance to renters and homeowners.

If that happens, Kitten said, it will be because HUD demanded this week that the city alter its ratio of assistance to the elderly and to small and large families.

"In our desperate attempt to meet the overall goals in total numbers, we will have to use Section 8 (program funds), which will throw the owner and rental proportion out of whack," he said.

He explained that when HUD evaluates housing assistance plans it considers the ratio of funds spent on two major categories: the type of family such as large, small or elderly, and the type of occupancy such as homeowner or renter.

The regional HUD office thus far has not officially complained about Lubbock's disproportionate plan of spending more on renters, Kitten said. But the federal officials have "mentioned" it, he said.

And the new emphasis on helping small and large families as opposed to the elderly will disrupt the ratio even further, which may attract HUD's attention, Kitten said.

He explained that the Section 8 program upon which the city had been relying to help the elderly also applies mostly to renters. "So we're automatically going against the proportion of owners to renters," he said. "And the owners are not going to get their fair share, so to speak."

Despite Kitten's predictions, city council members said Thursday they have no choice but to comply with HUD's demands.

Planning Director Jim Bertram told the council that the city's chances of successfully winning a rule reversal against HUD are "slim and none."

Faced with no options other than losing the fourth-year Community Development (CD) block grants, the council, which had until noon today to agree to HUD's demands for an amended housing goal plan, voted to comply.

However, the council decided to footnote its compliance letter with the opinion that the city probably will not be able to meet the goals because they are unrealistic.

City Manager Larry Cunningham also noted in a memorandum to the council that because litigation against general obligation bonds has delayed their sale, "we will not be able to complete all the anticipated projects included in the May, 1977, bond election with the bond funds authorized."

James Marshall's recent appeal to the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo for a rehearing on his suit to block the sale of $26.4 million in general obligation bonds will delay their sale until at least early 1979, Cunningham said in his memo. And if court action further ties up the bonds, it could be late next year before funding is available, he said.

In the meantime, he noted, fire protection and water delivery in far Southwest Lubbock continue to be "two critical service deficiencies."

tion costs have increased about 7 percent, he said.

To combat the problems, he said, CD funds are being used to build a new central fire station and firefighting equipment and personnel have been shifted to problem areas.

Also, he said, water and sewer service revenues are being used to fund engineering for a pump station on 82nd Street.

However, Cunningham noted, "At this point it appears that the delays will mean the pump station will not be in use to improve water pressure before the summer of 1981." Originally the station was scheduled for operation by next year.

The city's problems with HUD originated when the federal department decided housing ratio goals were not outlined properly in Lubbock's fourth-year CD application.

CD coordinator Kitten said the city received a letter Tuesday saying the city had until today to agree to an amended housing assistance plan.

Under HUD's demand, the city will have to cut back planned housing assistance to the elderly and handicapped and beef up plans to aid small and large families, Kitten said.

If the city did not comply, HUD threatened, its application for $4.48 million in CD funds would be rejected.

The trouble is that HUD's demands are unrealistic, Kitten said. They were made in order to comply with a bureaucrat's rules that are not practical, he added.

If the city cannot meet the new criteria by June, 1979, what happens to the city's funding? Kitten said he posed that question to HUD officials in Dallas.

"They hemmed and hawed around," he said, and finally answered that they don't "think you'll be penalized."

Orville Alderson, Urban Renewal Agency director, said the situation probably is one of "over-regulation."

The federal department apparently has boxed itself in with rules. "HUD is asking us to comply with what's in the regulations even though they know it's unrealistic," Alderson said.

And, he added, he believes every city will be faced with the same situation across the nation.

According to HUD, the city has spent too much money on housing rehabilitation for the elderly. "Proportion is the god we're now serving," Kitten said, explaining why HUD now demands "equal time" for the small and larger families in need.

But, Kitten said, the problem originated because HUD itself, through various programs, emphasized the need to aid the elderly.

The city has no control over arrangements HUD works out with private developers for some programs such as Section 8, Kitten explained. Now, he added, "Our feet are being held to the fire" for a situation the city had no part in creating.

He also added that the city's CD application began the specified review process in January, and the new rules were not published in the Federal Register until early March.

Council members also designated about 100 acres in the Yellowhouse Canyon Lakes as the Buddy Holly recreational area. Rotarians plan to build a playground in the area for handicapped children.

The area will extend from the Bicentennial Trail to the first dam in the canyon. The designation is in conjunction with activities honoring Holly, a Lubbock native known as one of the early innovators of rock 'n roll.

At 10 a.m., June 22, the council will hold a public hearing to consider closing East 29th Street between the alley east of Juniper Avenue and Southeast Drive. The closure would be to alter a Coronado Urban Renewal Plan.

As of January, he said, more than 2,800 Lubbockites lived outside a five-minute fire response area. And the problem of low water pressure "presents both a hazard and a nuisance to property owners in Southwest Lubbock," he wrote.

When the bonds are freed, they will not be adequate for the planned projects, he said, explaining architects and city staffers estimate construction costs for the fire station have risen about 10 percent since the date of the original bond sale last August. And public works construction costs have increased about 7 percent, he said.

School District's Architects Get Delayed Facilities Go-Ahead

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Independent School District has instructed its architects to resume designing proposed new southside facilities and other capital improvements included in Phase I of the building program authorized by voters 15 months ago.

But school trustees and administrators say they cannot sell bonds to generate money for actual construction for at least two months.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward Monday approved the building program as part of the district's new integration plan. However, the U.S. Justice Department has 60 days to appeal Woodward's ruling.

During that time, school board president Charles Waters said, the case still is considered to be "in litigation. The bond people wouldn't dare touch us" for fear that the bond program once again may be indefinitely suspended.

Nevertheless, the district's architects have been authorized to pick up where they left off last year in designing the various construction projects, including four new schools south of Loop 289.

That way, Waters said, the school system will be prepared to carry out the building program as soon as possible after the appeal deadline expires.

The deadline is July 7. Waters said the district may make arrangements to have its bond rating reviewed within days after that date and to hold a bond sale perhaps the same month. He noted that unless the sale is held soon and construction begins, the projects won't be ready on time.

The district hopes to get three new elementary schools south of Loop 289 open by the start of the 1979-80 school year, and the proposed southside junior high school open by the 1980-81 school year.

To meet that schedule, school officials say work on the facilities must begin in August.

By a 3-1 margin on Feb. 22, 1977, the city's voters approved an $11.9 million capital improvements program. The school board has divided the program into two phases — the first involving $6 million worth of projects.

When the district applied to Woodward for his permission on the initial phase, as required by Lubbock's 1970 school desegregation order, the Justice Department intervened. The resulting court fight was what produced the district's new integration plan.

The school board already has appointed architects for the immediate projects. The projects include not only new schools but also additions and improvements to existing facilities throughout Lubbock.

Monte Hasie, board vice president, said that although the building program still will be done in two phases, some of the projects may be changed. For example, he noted, the original program called for an electronics laboratory to be built at Monterey High, but that facility is being relocated at the Dunbar Magnet Complex.

Another integration-related change involves moving the site of the new junior high school from Farrar Estates to 80th Street and Avenue N.

School trustees and administrators briefly discussed the integration-construction plan after an executive session on the naming of new basketball coaches.

Hasie said the cost of projects in the building program no doubt has been affected by inflation. He also said interest rates on the school bonds probably will be higher than they would have been last year.

An appeal of Woodward's ruling by the Justice Department would result in further postponement of the bond sale and construction.

Pair Seeking Funds To Attend Tourney

Craig Haynes and Mark Lanier have qualified for the nation's toughest debate tournament. But before they go, the two Coronado High students must pass another test of fast-talking — this time, to raise money for the trip.

Because of school district policies, the pair is ineligible for district-paid travel to the National Forensic League's annual competition at Northwestern University, outside Chicago, set June 18-25.

So Haynes, Lanier and other local speech students are soliciting donations and planning various fundraising activities for Saturday to pay the duo's way.

The Saturday activities include a garage sale on the parking lot of the Gibson Discount Center, 5025 50th St.; a carwash at Monterey High, 3211 47th St.; and bake sales at the Redbud Square, 13th Street and Slide Road, and at Furr's Family Center, 4426 34th St.

The activities will last from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Lanier said several merchants have donated items for the sales, and members of debate teams of other Lubbock high schools are contributing. He said the effort is aimed at raising about $1,500 — enough to cover entry fees, travel, and room and board for the two students and their sponsor, Coronado speech teacher Jacquelyn Jarrett.

The National Forensic League divides the nation into 100 debate districts. The team of Haynes and Lanier is representing the West Texas district, which includes such cities as San Angelo, San Antonio, Abilene, Midland, Odessa, Amarillo, El Paso and Plainview, Lanier said.

The two Coronado students won their district competition in Abilene in March. They are the first team from Lubbock to qualify for the national tournament in debate.

At the national contest, the Lubbock pair will debate other participating teams on the issue, "Resolved: that the federal government should guarantee comprehensive medical care to all citizens. Besides debate, contestants will compete as individuals in one other speech category — oral interpretation, extemporaneous speaking or original oratory.

Both Lanier and Haynes have picked the third event, which consists of delivering an original persuasive speech.

The school district policies prohibit paying the students' way because the tournament is scheduled after the school year and because it involves an organization that is not officially a part of the district's curriculum.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: A few years ago we moved my husband's mother and grandmother in with us. They were both ill at the time. They are no longer ill, but I am going to be sick if we don't get something settled. We had an apartment built off our kitchen for Mama and Grandma — with complete cooking facilities. They prepare their own breakfast and lunch. I cook dinner for all of us and we eat together. The problem is this: I work all day and am surrounded by people. When I get home I need peace and quiet — time to be alone. Mama and Grandma insist on having the door between our home and their apartment open at all times so they can "feel like part of the household." It drives me crazy to have the two of them sit there and watch me prepare dinner every night. (They ask a million questions and it's impossible to keep my mind on what I'm doing.) Am I being selfish to want this private time? My poor husband is caught in the middle. Please settle it — once and for all. — No Garbo But Need To Be Alone

Dear No Garbo: What has your "poor husband" got to do with this? Explain to Mama and Grandma that cooking is your best form of relaxation and you need to prepare dinner in the peace and quiet of your kitchen — alone. Tell them the door will be closed from now on until dinner is served. Then close it. This has nothing to do with being selfish but it has a lot to do with your own survival. A woman who cooks dinner every night for her husband's mother and his grandmother is entitled to this small consideration.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Born in 1962" regarding the "nutty lyrics" of the tunes of her grandparents' day was incomplete, to say the least.

The tunes under fire were strictly novelty songs written to take people's minds off the Depression and World War II. For every piece of nonsense there were ten beautiful songs such as "Stardust," "Deep Purple," "My Reverie," "Moonlight Serenade" and "Sentimental Journey," to name just a few.

Today's nutty tunes, such as "My Ding-A-Ling," "Disco Duck," "Alley Oop," "Purple Dreck" and "Chic-A-Boom" are nothing to brag about. The music sounds like a load of pots and pans falling out of the cupboard. The words are insane.

As for the so-called "ballads" of today, a great many of them deal with sex, suicide and depression. You call that entertainment?

Music is a faithful reflection of the times and the people. The chaotic state of our nation, with all the violence, rape, dope and VD, is so nervous-making it's not reasonable to expect our music to be uplifting and beautiful. — The Best Is Behind Us

Dear Best: If people can't look ahead to something better, life isn't worth living. Sorry, I don't share your pessimism. I think we're going to come out of this abyss and rise to greater heights than ever. And what makes me think so? Faith.

CONFIDENTIAL: Your Frank Opinion Is Wanted: OK, you asked for it. The "quaint" custom of "money showers," which began in Europe, should have been left in Europe.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
If you don't have a cedar chest to store woollens in during the summer, use heavy-duty aluminum foil to make a moth-proof storage compartment out of one of your dresser drawers.
Tear off sheets of foil and line the drawer, joining the strips at the sides with a tight, double fold. Have the strips long enough to come together at the top.
After making sure the foil is sealed tightly all around into a complete lining, stack your clean woollens into the drawer, scatter some moth crystals or moth balls through the layers and seal the foil with a double fold at the top. — Mrs. R.M.

This is a surefire way to fool the moths if you don't own or have room for a cedar chest. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
If you have burned-on food on non-metal ovenproof dishes, the next time you clean your oven, put the oven cleaner on the dishes.
Leave the dishes in the oven overnight and they'll come out clean as new after washing them thoroughly with hot soapy water. — Florence Haitach

DEAR HELOISE:
Recently I had the job of stuffing about one hundred mushrooms and after slowly and painstakingly taking out half the stems I hit on the idea of using my melon baller to get the stems out.
Using the small end of the melon baller the stems came out easily and perfectly. They looked like miniature mushrooms which I later used in an omelette. — Mrs. L. Hunt

HINTS FROM HIM
DEAR HELOISE:
I put my can or tube of shaving cream in the hot water in the bathroom sink while I wash my hands and face.
When I am finished washing, my shaving cream is just the right temperature for shaving.
I have been doing this for years and I have found it to be a convenient energy, money-saving idea. No need to buy the so-called hot-lather machines. — R.J.S., Sr.

A pretty sharp idea for a smoother, more comfortable shave, and saving money, too. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When popping corn at home for the children, give each child his own brown paper bag of popcorn.
Each child has an equal amount of popcorn, no argument over who ate the most and no dishes to wash.

By ERMA BOMBECK

My son came home from college last week and gave me his usual greeting, "Hi, Mom."
I gave him mine: "Get a haircut."
He dropped in a chair and said, "Okay."
"Whatya mean, 'Okay'?"
"I mean I've been meaning to get one."
My hair is too long and hangs in my eyes and I'm always having to flip it back. Besides, it looks sleazy."
"And another thing," I said. "I hope you're going to shave off that ridiculous-looking beard. You look like Abe Lincoln with a case of the frizzies."
"You're right. Besides, it always smells like pizza. Tomorrow it goes."
"Don't fight me, but if your suitcase has those jeans with the hole in the crotch that is mended with white thread and the zipper has a pin connecting it, you can toss them out."
"I did that already. Bought a couple pair of new slacks."
"To wear with those diseased-looking tennis shoes, I suppose."
"Nah. Threw those out too. No one wears dirty gym shoes with a sports coat."
"A sports coat? The last time you wore a sports coat you dribbled milk on it from your Yogi Berra cup. I'm giving you fair warning, you aren't going to sleep every day until the crack of noon."
"No problem. I'm into jogging now and I go about five miles before breakfast."
"You are into jogging? You, who never took out the garbage until I organized a car pool?"
"I know, but it's really good for you."
"And stay out of my refrigerator and all my junk food. You're not having a chip dip orgy with the stuff I'm saving for Saturday night."
"All that rich stuff breaks out your face. I'm into milk and yogurt now."
The next morning, I opened his door and peeked into the room. He was at his desk studying.
"I didn't know you were here," I said. "I didn't hear the stereo."
"I keep it low. After all, why should I inflict my taste in music on everyone else?"
As I started to leave I saw a gum wrapper on the floor.
"Let it be."
He was going to be home three more days and we had to leave something to talk about.

Three notrump is a wrap up since North would be sure of at least nine tricks, but South's steamroller bidding got right past three notrump and into four hearts.

Four hearts should make also after the diamond opening but South wasn't equal to the occasion. He didn't find the winning play.

At trick one East took his ace of diamonds and led back the jack. South drew trumps, led the three of clubs and played dummy's nine. East took his 10 and led back the queen. Because clubs broke 4-2, South finally had to lead a spade trick.

Here is the winning line of play. After drawing trumps South cashes his ace and dummy's king of clubs and leads the nine of diamonds. East takes the trick and South discards his last club. East is caught in an end play and South will only lose one spade.

Suppose East held three clubs? He could lead a third club. South would ruff, lead a trump to dummy, and get one spade discard on the last club.

Suppose East held four clubs? South would have been doomed to defeat on any line of play.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem in trying to reduce is that I apparently am one of those persons who eats even when she is not hungry — or when she shouldn't be hungry. I mean right after a meal is finished. I am up from the table, then back to the refrigerator five or ten minutes later for a snack. What can I do to overcome this? — J.S.

The post-meal hunger is not at all uncommon. Eating sets off the digestive machinery and the smells and tastes activate appetite centers in the brain. All of this does not just "shut down" the instant one gets up from the table. Thus we have the post-meal snackers.

Realizing this, you can take practical steps to overcome it. Instead of a snack, take a glass of water or low-calorie beverage. The "hunger" should disappear in 15 or 20 minutes. The successful non-smoker has learned to deny himself at those moments when the urge is greatest. The same system works for the dieter. Not succumbing to snack cravings can itself become a habit.

Could be the thyroid (overactivity), but let's not lay everything to that poor little gland. There are other possible causes of the quick pulse, such as high blood pressure. Has your blood pressure been checked recently? If you are overly tense, the tranquilizers can be appropriate. If not, you had best be checked for thyroid or other disturbances.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 18-year-old daughter has had trouble with a cracking sound in the hinge of her jaws for some time now. When she chews it cracks. What can be done? — A.T.

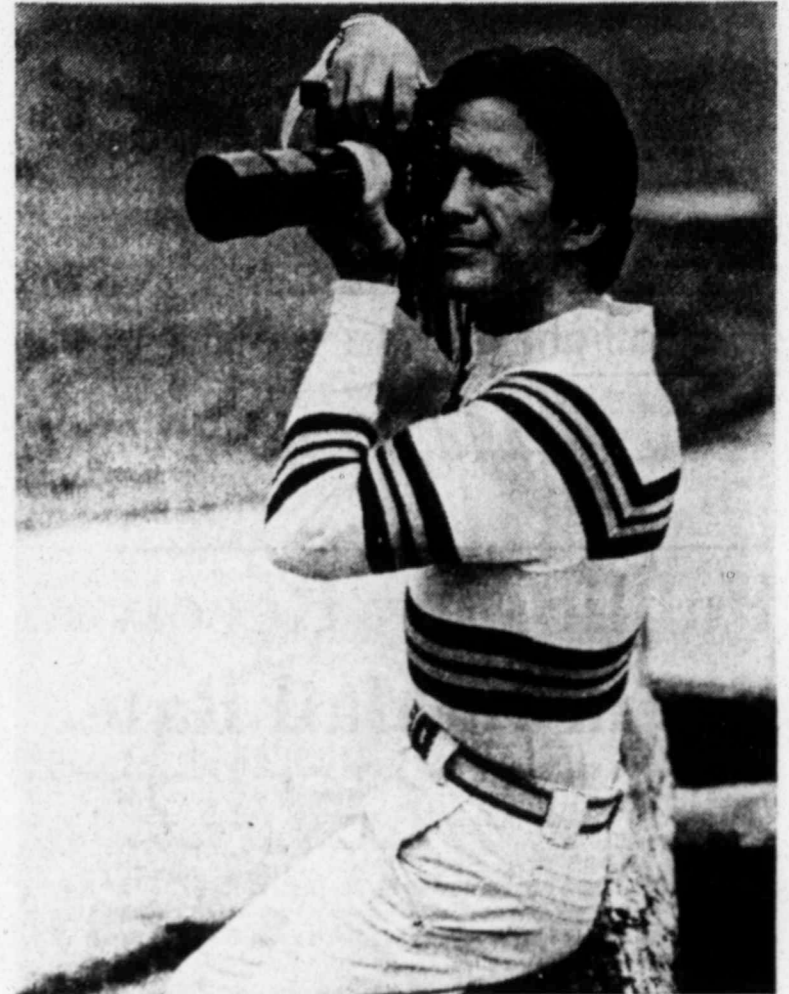

This could be caused by the temporomandibular joint (the jaw hinge, as you put it) being slightly maladjusted from poor teeth alignment. Your dentist or an orthodontist should evaluate the situation.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes readers mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Piano Cover Uses Easy Hook Design

The Piano Bench Cover pictured here uses easy latch hook design in a family project that will save you the best seat in the house. Your cover can double for a wall hanging or accent rug, as well, to add a special kind of harmony to your interior decor. A symmetrical rose and violin guitar motif is worked in a whole symphony of romantic coloring — lime on evergreen, russet with mahogany and beige shades, and blossom pink and bright red — up against a smashing white background. And you can easily achieve a sculpted effect by planning your canvas in various lengths of rug yarn. Music lovers and rug fanciers will find some common ground in this piece of carpeting that brings together the very best in comfort and graceful knotting.

Rug making is as old as the Orient and materials have ranged from the finest silks of Persia to the dyed rags of Colonial America. Latch hook represents the very latest development in an industry that is based upon an array of manufacturing techniques. And latch hook, more than any other method, is made for at-home enjoyment. Knotting goes quickly and a deep, plush pile is attained with yarns that are economical to use.

Piano Bench Cover is available in a kit containing a 4-mesh cotton canvas, precut acrylic yarn, a color design chart, and complete directions for completing the rug measuring 19" x 36".

Order Piano Bench Cover No. 00550 for $29.99 plus $2.00 postage and handling. You can also order a latch hook No. 03029 for $1.29.

Public May Receive Break In Mail Rate

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer
John Q. Public may get a break in the rates for first class mail.

It is only a possibility — but the U.S. Postal Service is contemplating holding the 13-cent rate (per ounce) for individuals while increasing the rate to 16 cents for business firms.

The proposed regulations for the new "citizens' rate" would include: The correct ZIP Code must be included in both the address and the return address; standard-size envelopes compatible with mail-handling machinery must be used for one ounce or less; postage must be with gummed stamps.

The "Carnival" in Dominica is an exciting event with colorful costumes, parades, dancing in the streets and much music. To honor this year's Carnival, Dominica has issued a set of six new stamps featuring various aspects of the "History of Carnival."

The lowest value depicts "Soussouelle Souris," a colorful costume worn by small boys. It is covered with bells and mirrors. The next stamp shows a "Sensay Costume" worn by men only. This costume indicates a strong African influence. The third illustrates a group of street musicians playing drums, accordions, maracas, flutes and other instruments. The fourth has a scene of the "Doulette Band". The Doulette is the national costume of Dominica. The highest value portrays the "Pappy Show Wedding," one of the major comic aspects of the Carnival as it mocks society weddings with funny costumes.

Each stamp bears the Queen Elizabeth II emblem in the upper right corner and the inscription "History of Carnival" at the bottom left.

A new U.S. commemorative postal card hailing the heroism of Molly Pitcher, who won fame and glory at the Battle of Monmouth, N.J., during the Revolutionary War, will be issued in September. The design of the new card will be displayed on June 25 during the bicentennial activities of the Battle of Monmouth.

Molly Pitcher was the popular name of Mary Ludwig Hays, who delivered water to the American troops in the battle until her husband fell wounded and she took his place in the cannon crew and kept the gun in action. The Battle of Monmouth, a bitterly fought engagement, was a significant victory for the American Army under George Washington.

Previously a 2-cent stamp honoring Molly Pitcher was issued in 1928 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Monmouth.

The 10-day international stamp show, "ROCAPEX-TAIBEI 78," just concluded in Taiwan, proved a huge success — despite continuous rain during eight of 10 days. According to a note received from Jacques Minkus of Minkus Publications, who attended the philatelic event, thousands crowded the building to see the displays of stamp material from countries all over the world. Minkus was delighted that many of his own publications received medals of merit, including the Minkus New World Wide Stamp Catalog, The Complete Guide To Stamp Collecting, Medicine on Stamps, New American Stamp Catalog, China Stamp Album and several others.

Meanwhile in this country, at Stamp Expo '78, the theme was the 75th anniversary of aviation in America. The International Stamp Collectors Society issued a set of two covers with an unusual Postal Service pictorial postmark to honor the occasion. The cachet on one cover is a full-color reproduction of a painting showing a space capsule with an astronaut in front, heading toward the universe via the moon. On the right side Orville Wright points up to his first airplane above them is the Spirit of St. Louis, a Boeing 727 and the Supersonic Concorde. Collectors may send $3.95 for the set of two covers to Aviation International Stamp Collectors Society, Equitable Building, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

FESTIVALS GALORE

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Nepal has more festival days than days of the year. The major festival, Bada Dasain, takes 15 days to celebrate. Others include Gai Jatra, an eight-day Cow Festival; Indra Jatra, also eight days long, featuring three parades with the living Goddess in Katmandu; Tihar, when all homes are illuminated; and Teej, a special festival for women.

Photo Contest Becomes Book

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Just two years ago, early in 1976, a deceptively simple photo contest originated in Taiwan, proved a huge success — to interest the country's amateur photographers. The idea was to invite all Americans with a camera to submit snapshots — not formal portraits — of friends, relatives, or even strangers, in 12 different categories from babies to grandparents. A panel of judges would then select the most representative face in each category to form a symbolic photographic "great American family."

No one at that time visualized the national enthusiasm that the Great American Face Photo Contest would generate. Who could have predicted that it would become an official Bicentennial project of the U.S. government and that it would be lauded by Senator Hubert Humphrey in the Congressional Record?

No originator foresaw that the 12 national winners — ordinary people like you and me — would wind up as subjects for professional portrait assignments by Arnold Newman, renowned photographer of the world's leading personalities.

Or that an estimated ten million viewers would see the Great American Faces Exhibition from coast to coast, at the United Nations in New York, at the National Visitors Center in Washington, D.C., as well as at museums, galleries, libraries, schools, state fairs and shopping centers.

Or that major cities would proclaim Great American Face Days to promote the project. And that it would inspire a popular song and lyrics.

Or that, two years later, "FACES USA" would still be exhibited under the auspices of the United States Information agency in 125 countries on six continents.

And finally, that its complete story would make a compelling book.

Now that, too, has taken place with the current publication by AMPHOTO, Garden City, N.Y., of "FACES USA" by Arnold Newman, with a foreword by Thomas Thompson (paperbound, $5.95).

It's all on record. We realize now that it was a unique contest, ingeniously attuned to the spirit of the nation as it celebrated its 200th birthday. Its appeal was at the grassroots level, asking people to get involved with their neighbors and themselves. The contest sought a mirror image of Americans with a rich variety of ethnic cultures and an individual emphasis on qualities of character, personality, strength, warmth and humanity. The country was taking its own family portrait with a self-timer.

As the contest gathered momentum with its mass appeal and public spirit, its continued success was assured by the low-key profile maintained by its sponsor, Kinney Shoe Corp., and the integrity and professionalism of Ruder & Finn, its guiding hand in the communications area. Their awareness of the larger purposes of the Great American Family concept, as it evolved, produced a contest that became a remarkable achievement for both photography and the American people.

Is it strange that a collection of amateur photos of ordinary Americans should capture the public's imagination? That interest became evident from the very first simultaneous exhibitions of "Faces" at New Jersey's Morris Museum of Arts & Sciences and at the California Museum of Science & Industry in Los Angeles. And audiences in other countries who have seen the USIA-sponsored exhibits also reacted, and are reacting, with similar fervor.

The key may well be in the high degree of self-identification that these photos stimulate. The faces are of ordinary people, like "you and me." We see in these photo families the parents and grandparents we were familiar with, the children we knew, the boy and girl down the street. We see ourselves. The response is different when we look at photos of famous personalities, however. There is an invisible barrier or gulf because we are separated by the differences of wealth, position, talent and distance. We can't identify with them personally. But "FACES" can be part of our own family albums.

When Arnold Newman — who photographed seven U.S. presidents, kings, celebrities, Nobel prize-winners and headline personalities — photographed the dozen "ordinary" Americans, he found they were not ordinary at all. Their achievements have a special yardstick. Their accomplishments are in living their own full, rich lives with integrity and dignity. And that is in itself a memorable accomplishment.

Hot Tar Roof Requires Skill, Special Tools

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q — During the next couple of months, I will be putting up another building near our house. It will be a small, one-story cottage. Since I have done some work of this sort before, I don't anticipate any trouble except for one thing — I have never covered a roof. Since this will be a fairly flat roof, I would like to cover it with hot tar and gravel. Any suggestions?

A — Have that part of the structure done professionally — or consider a different type of roof. Putting on hot tar and gravel not only requires special skill, it requires special equipment.

Q — I have a considerable amount of wood that has to be sanded. I do not have a power sander and prefer, in any case, to use steel wool. My wife has a large quantity of steel wool on hand that she uses for cleaning pots and pans. Can this steel wool be used on wood?

A — Not unless it is a type that does not contain soap, as most do. You're better off using the type of steel wool that you can purchase in a hardware store. It does not contain soap or water, which can raise the grain of the wood and, in some cases, warp it. And you can purchase it in various grades of coarseness.

In addition, Newman achieved just as great a sense of personal satisfaction with the photographic results as any attained when photographing the most famous celebrity.

Today, the 1976 Bicentennial and its celebrations have faded from the American scene, but some rewards remain. Among them we count the Great American Faces project and its exhibitions. And one of its dividends is the book, "FACES USA."

enabling you to choose the proper kind for the job that has to be done.

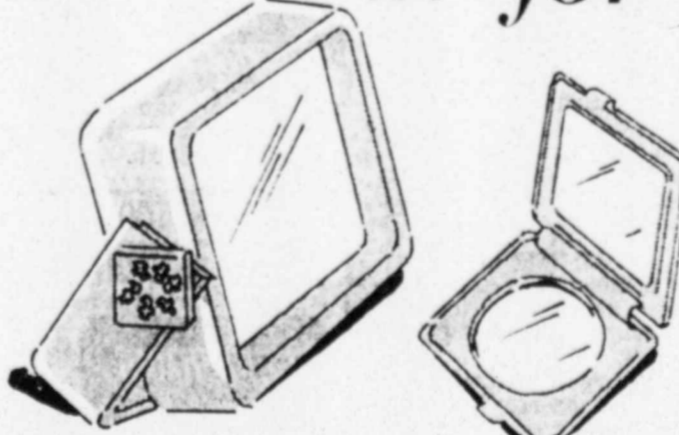

Q — In some wood finishing that I expect to do this summer please give me some advice about the use of a sealer. After removing all the old finish from furniture, I intend to apply a stain and then varnish. At which point during the operation is the sealer applied?

A — The sealer usually is applied over the stain and before the final finish is put on. However, some wood finishers use a sealer both before and after the application of stain, a procedure which I also have utilized. When the sealer is put on before the stain, it helps the stain to "take" more evenly. However, there is a school of thought which feels this is an unnecessary step in most applications.

The techniques of applying varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.

MEN, WOMEN IN SERVICE

Staff Sergeant Rafael Velasquez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rafael Velasquez Sr. of Wilson, has reenlisted in the U.S. Air Force at Pease Air Force Base, N.H.

Velasquez, whose Air Force career began in 1968, is a security and law enforcement supervisor at Pease.

Velasquez is a 1966 graduate of Wilson High School.

Marine Second Lieutenant Howell G. McClesky, son of Mr. and Mrs. G.P. McClesky of Midland, recently participated in an exercise called "Palm Tree 5-78" in the California desert.

"Palm Tree" is an exercise designed to test the capability of a battalion landing team to deploy by strategic airlift and provide realistic live fire training.

McClesky is a 1972 graduate of Midland High School and a 1976 graduate of Texas A&M University. He entered the Marine Corps in August 1976.

Midshipman Kenneth A. Holder, son of

Mr. and Mrs. Ray K. Holder of Kermit, was selected for the Dean's List at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

The list recognizes midshipmen who have excelled in academic studies at the academy.

Holder is undergoing four years of study in the fields of engineering, mathematics, and physical and marine sciences.

Holder is a 1975 graduate of Kermit High School.

Marine Private First Class Willard J. Norman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Norman of Muleshoe, recently participated in a training exercise known as "Palm Tree 5-78" in the California desert.

Norman is assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 5th Marines, based at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

After graduating from Muleshoe High School, Norman joined the Marines in September 1977.

Airman First Class George G. Gilliam, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilliam of Wolforth, is representing his wing in the 1978 Strategic Air Command missile combat competition at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Gilliam is a nuclear weapons specialist, matching his skills and knowledge against selected crews from SAC's nine Minuteman and Titan wings.

Gilliam is a 1968 graduate of Wolforth High School.

Navy Gunner's Mate Second Class Joe B. Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Johnson of Muleshoe, has returned from an extended tour of the Western Pacific.

He is currently assigned to the dock landing ship USS Mount Vernon, homeported in San Diego.

During the training exercise in the Pacific, the ship participated in activities with other Seventh Fleet units, including projects like "Fortress Lightning" in the Philippines and "Team Spiti Spirit" in Korea.

Sims entered the Navy in February of 1970.

Marine Private Gary W. Mahoney, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Mahoney of Hobbs, N.M., recently completed the Marine Field Artillery course.

The course provides basic technical instruction on map reading, artillery survey and cannon fire direction.

The study centered on tactics and gunnery procedures.

Mahoney joined the Marines in 1977.

Marine Private Gary L. Erwin, son of Mrs. Mildred M. Erwin of Farwell, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine base at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

During the six-week course, Erwin was instructed in subjects from infantry tactics to mine placement. His specialized training centered on rifleman duties, with emphasis on squad tactics and the techniques of squad weapon fire.

Marine Second Lieutenant Phillip E. Gambell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Gambell, of Odessa, has completed the Field Artillery Basic course.

The 10-week course provides students with a background on artillery systems, including manual fire direction and communications.

Gambell graduated from Odessa High School in 1973, entering the Marine Corps in 1972.

Navy Aviation Support Equipment Technician Third Class Donald K. Gage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Gage of Morton, recently participated in the exercise "Rimpac '78."

Involving over 21,000 men, "Rimpac" tested and evaluated the combat readiness of participating units. Forces from Canada, Australia and New Zealand also took part in the maneuvers.

Gage joined the Navy in 1974.

Marine Private First Class Diane B. Schnaubert, daughter of Mrs. Thomas B. Schnaubert of Hobbs, N.M., has been promoted to her present rank while serving at the Marine Corps base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Schnaubert entered the Marine Corps in 1977.

'Cousin Beedie' Claims Book Meant As Tribute To Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hugh Carter Sr. said Thursday his book about President Carter's family was meant as a tribute, not an embarrassment.

He emphatically denied he wrote "Cousin Beedie and Cousin Hot" for the estimated $250,000 he will net from its sale in hardcover and paperback, but said he set out to write a "best seller" about the Carter family.

A state senator in Georgia, he said the book tells the truth about the family.

"No one could know it any better. I grew up with Jimmy Carter and I have been with him throughout his career."

He called it "the most intimate book ever written about a president and his family while he's in office."

Hugh Carter freely admitted that Miss Lillian, the president's mother, receives unflattering treatment for her outspoken manner, and that Rosalynn Carter, the first lady, is the "heroine."

Hugh Carter, who owns a worm farm in Plains, held a news conference at the National Press Club to promote his book.

He said he met with the President in the Oval Office earlier Thursday, and he tried to quash rumors that the first family was upset by the book.

He said the President greeted him with a "bear hug," promised to read the book this weekend, but made no mention of several excerpts that already have been publicized.

"I asked him not to speed read it, but to read every word," Hugh Carter said.

He also said he asked Carter to help him end his feud with Miss Lillian, who told Hugh he was the "scum of the earth" for writing such things.

"I want to make up with her," Hugh Carter said. He said he asked the President to act as a mediator, but Carter laughed and replied:

"I could never do that. You can do about as much with her as I can."

The name of the book comes from nicknames Hugh Carter and the President had while growing up. Hugh Carter was known as Cousin Beedie, from a lullaby sung to him when he was an infant, and the President was called Cousin Hot, a diminution of his father's nickname for him, "Hotshot."

During the news conference, Hugh Carter pointed to the back of the room where his son, Hugh Carter Jr., was standing.

"That's Cousin Cheap back there, but I love him and he loves his daddy," he said.

Hugh Carter Jr., the President's special assistant for administration, earned his nickname when he removed television sets and canceled magazine subscriptions at the White House in an effort to save money.

Vote Switch May Save 'Superdonut'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The fight to remove "superdonuts" and other fortified snack foods from the federally supported school breakfast program has been jeopardized by the surprise vote of two congressional committees, a consumer group said Thursday.

Esther Peterson, President Carter's consumer adviser, said the committees showed a "thoughtless disregard," both for children and for their parents, in two separate votes Wednesday.

At issue is an Agriculture Department proposal to do away with vitamin-sprayed doughnuts and other fortified snack-type foods in the school breakfast program. USDA made the proposal months ago but has been under heavy pressure from the food manufacturing industry to scrap the idea.

On Wednesday the Senate Agriculture Committee, on a motion from Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., amended a pending child nutrition bill to prohibit USDA from banning superdonuts until two current studies are finished. One is 18 months away from completion.

Then a House appropriations subcommittee added language to another piece of legislation that would require any decision on the use of superdonuts to be left to local officials.

"The whole thing is really in trouble," said Kathleen Sheekey, spokeswoman for the Consumer Federation of America, the nation's largest organized consumer group. If the Senate measure goes through, she said, the issue will be shelved for another two school years.

"This is clearly an effort to use a study to delay implementation of responsible public policy," Mrs. Peterson said.

Earlier this year the CFA and other consumer groups, joined by several members of Congress, mounted a campaign against the doughnuts.

"The use of fortified dessertlike products in the school breakfast program places a priority on convenience instead of food quality," Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., said at the time.

"If the food served children during this meal is in the form of a sweet cake, how then are they expected to eat for the rest of the day or for the rest of their lives?"

Singer Accepts Liability For Product Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Pat Boone, in an action that may discourage advertising that features show business personalities, agreed Thursday to be financially accountable for advertising claims for a product he endorsed.

The Federal Trade Commission announced the agreement, saying it was the first time it had ever got a product endorser to be personally accountable for advertising claims.

At the same time, the FTC charged that the product, an acne preparation, will not cure acne as claimed in the television and magazine advertisements featuring Boone and his daughter, Debbie Boone, also a popular singer.

The agreement means that Boone must pay a share of any restitution that is ordered by the commission or a court in the case.

Albert H. Kramer, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection, said the agreement negotiated with Boone, while not a binding legal precedent, stands for the principle that an endorser must verify the claims made about the advertised product before the first commercial goes on the air or appears in print, or else risk FTC action.

Unless the endorser is an expert on the subject, the endorser must look to independent reliable sources to validate claims, tests or studies supplied by the advertiser. Failure to make a reasonable effort at independent evaluation could result in personal liability for the endorser, Kramer said.

The use of celebrities, such as sports figures and movie stars, to tout products is increasing, and the celebrities usually are highly paid for their endorsement.

"The endorser may profit from a false advertisement just as much as the manufacturer and thus it is not unreasonable to obligate him to ascertain the truthfulness of the claims he is being paid to make," Kramer said.

He called the agreement with Boone a step forward in regulating deceptive advertising and said other celebrities "would be well-advised to follow"

Boone's obligation to check the truth of claims for a product before endorsing it.

The complaint against the manufacturer of "Acne-Statim" says that an action may be brought in a district court for restitution to consumers.

Television commercials for the product feature Pat Boone saying he has four daughters and "We've tried a lot of skin cleansers and medications around our house."

As the camera angle widens to show Debbie Boone next to him, he continues, "And nothing ever really seemed to work, did it, Deb?"

Debbie Boone then shows pictures showing how the product "keeps on killing the bacteria hours after each application." Pat Boone then tells viewers how to buy a four-ounce container for $9.50 through the mail.

However, the FTC complaint said, "There was no reasonable basis for claims that Acne-Statim will cure acne and result in skin free of acne blemishes or for various other performance claims."

The product is made by Karr Preventive Medical Products, Inc. of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Public Aid Sought In Replacing Toys Lost Through Fire

Almost a month ago, the Texas Migrant Council's child development center at 600 Ave. D was gutted by fire.

The center, serving 72 three, four and five-year-old children, lost the majority of its contents to the blaze, which erupted the night of April 17.

"We're really in a bad spot right now because we had no insurance on the contents," Mrs. Constancio, area supervisor for the Headstart program, said. "Right now, we have to depend on the public to support us at this time."

Mrs. Constancio said that they were able to salvage a few items from the center but "we could use puzzles, books, toys, blocks, tables and chairs for the children."

Besides items for the children, she said the facility also could use lumber to build shelves and that a filing cabinet and desk for the office were needed.

Since the fire, we have been trying to redo our files on the children, but we can't do much without filing cabinets to store them in," Mrs. Constancio added.

Used items are welcomed, she said. Persons interested in donating items to the school may take them to Our Lady of Grace Parish Hall at 3118 Erskine St. or may call 762-4441 for someone to pick up the items. The program is being conducted at the Parish Hall.

"We did not stop the operation of the school after the fire because I know the needs of these children," Mrs. Constancio said. "If we stopped, they would be the ones that would suffer."

Sharpstown Ghost Haunts House Subcommittee

AUSTIN (AP) — Slightly haunted by the ghost of Sharpstown, a House subcommittee failed to get any testimony from bankers Thursday on the feasibility of state deposit insurance.

There was some confusion, too, over just what the subcommittee was supposed to be looking into.

Mention state deposit insurance in Austin and you immediately conjure up memories of the Sharpstown State Bank scandal of 1971.

The core of the scandal was an allegation that Frank Sharp arranged profitable stock deals to induce House leaders to push through two state deposit insurance

Gov. Preston Smith vetoed the bills, which the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission interpreted as giving Sharp a way out of Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. scrutiny of his Sharpstown bank.

Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, chairman of the subcommittee studying the feasibility of state deposit insurance, called for testimony Wednesday but none of the bankers and bank lobbyists in the room responded.

"Don't everybody rush up here at once," Maloney said. He then asked State Credit Union Commissioner John P. Parsons to describe the state deposit insurance system created by his agency.

Parsons said credit unions, given the choice between state and federal deposit insurance in 1975, overwhelmingly favored a state system.

He said they wanted "a measure of control over how the guaranty fund acts and reacts."

Maloney told reporters any bill on deposit insurance would have to be "super legislation because the taint of Sharpstown would be there."

Asked what good such coverage might be, he said, "There may be a financial advantage to state banks in using state experience rather than national" as the basis for deposit insurance rates.

Rep. Nub Donaldson, D-Gatesville, chairman of the House Financial Institutions Committee, gave Maloney his charge.

"If we had an SDIC (State Deposit Insurance Corp.) it could relieve the dual (state and federal) layer of regulation. People have expressed to me some dissatisfaction with the regulations of the FDIC," Donaldson said in a telephone interview.

He said Speaker Bill Clayton charged the committee to look into the feasibility of state deposit insurance. Clayton said his intent was not to offer an alternative to the FDIC for state banks but to provide coverage in excess of the $40,000 given by the FDIC.

"This would be no substitute for the FDIC. . . I think we want additional coverage. I might not have made that clear in the charge. . . I don't think we can get out of federal regulation anyway. . . I'll pull that charge this afternoon and make sure it is clear. . . I sure don't want people running around saying it is another Sharpstown," Clayton said.

AMA President Blasts Carter Criticism

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The president of the American Medical Association said Thursday his organization resented President Carter's speech last week accusing the AMA of being an obstacle to better health care.

Dr. John H. Budd of Cleveland told a news conference Carter's remarks were "inaccurate, unfounded and unfair," and listed the AMA's efforts to improve overall health care and hold down costs.

"His talk was not productive in helping the problems that exist," Budd said. "There are probably people who over-charge or who are incompetent in many walks of life, including the Congress. I think their salaries are a bit overinflated," he added.

Budd said the AMA had been active in setting up licensing requirements for doctors to upgrade the profession, and had sponsored legislation for better health care for migrant workers, senior citizens, rural dwellers, persons in jail and for improving the environment by requiring clean air and pure water, and to control alcoholism, drug abuse and venereal disease.

He said the organization set up a Commission on Costs of Health Care comprising physicians, hospital administrators, insurers, labor unions, industry consumers and government that made several recommendations for Congress, and also offered a national health insurance bill as an alternative to an "extremely expensive" national health care system proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Budd said Carter should be "a little more agreeable and cooperative to our side. I think it doesn't help to criticize publicly. We could be very critical of the government in many ways, and sometimes we are. They have problems, of course, in taxation, inflation, crime, operation of AMTRAK and the post office. But of course they're doing the best they can and we'll try to help where we can and not always just be criticizing."

Budd said that although American doctors provided the best medical care in the world and that it was becoming more available to more people, they were "a ball in a ping pong game." While the Health, Education and Welfare Department demands lower costs, the Federal Trade Commission rules that attempts to set ceiling prices on medical care stifled competition.

In his speech later at the Texas Medical Association's 111th convention, Budd said, "in addition to costs themselves, the AMA is apprehensive over some of the measures proposed to control the increases. So, while ready to do all we can to moderate the rising costs of care, we will resist — sensibly and reasonably — all unreasonable federal interference with the system of providing care, and we will oppose cost cutting which might jeopardize quality or restrict availability."

Outlaw's Gravemarker Found In Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — Thirty years ago in the western section of this city that outlaws Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker once called home, the favorite game for local children was cops and robbers. The robbers usually won.

And James Sarratt, who was reared in that neighborhood, said the favorite play area was around the gray marble gravestone of two members of the infamous Barrow gang — Clyde and brother Buck.

"When I was a kid, we used to play 'Bonnie and Clyde' around it," the 38-year-old paperhanger said. "But I never liked to do that much — I always had to play Bonnie."

It came as quite a surprise Wednesday when Sarratt and two fellow workers took a break from construction work at a far North Dallas apartment complex and stumbled on a marble slab nestled in a thickly forested area near the project.

"I knew that stone even before I saw the markings," Sarratt said. The tombstone lay about 100 feet from a nearby dirt road and bore the names of Clyde and Marvin I. "Buck" Barrow. Buck was killed almost a year before Bonnie and Clyde were gunned down a few miles outside of Gibsland, La. on May 23, 1934.

Police said they had no report of the gravestone being stolen. The stone was taken to the police property room temporarily.

"I'd like to see it put back where it belongs," Sarratt said. "People just shouldn't do this."

A few years ago the gravemarker for Bonnie Parker was also stolen from a nearby cemetery. It was never recovered.

Sarratt said it had been several years since he visited the cemetery where Clyde was buried.

"The grave used to be covered with weeds. Nobody took care of it," he said. "But that changed after the movie 'Bonnie and Clyde.' Since then it's always been looked after."

Protest Leader Says His Life Threatened

HOUSTON (AP) — The leader of a small group called People United Against Police Brutality said Thursday his life had been threatened if a planned protest march is conducted Saturday in Houston and some of the threats "came from Mayor Jim McConn."

Travis Morales, a former medical school student, said in an interview the mayor and the Houston City Council are resorting to "fascist" tactics and McConn has proven the "capitalists are drowning the people's fight for justice in blood."

More than 40 persons were arrested Sunday and Monday night during outbreaks of violence near a park in a predominantly Mexican-American neighborhood. Several persons were injured, including four policemen and two newsmen.

Morales said the Saturday march was planned to demand the release of those arrested. When questioned if the protest march was definite, Morales said, "Well, after the mayor's statements, we have to wait and see. Maybe we will have only a rally."

The City Council has granted McConn authority to declare curfews and take other emergency powers if he thinks such action is needed.

McConn, serving his first term in office, said those who incite riots are going to be stopped. He said the "restraint that has been shown by the Houston Police Department is going to be removed. This is not a get-tough stand. It is an enforce-law-and-order stand."

"We are not going to stand by and let those outside people go over and burn down business establishments and we are not going to stand for attacks on citizens, press or the police department," he said.

The Morales group has been protesting the death of Joe Campos Torres, 23, who drowned in Buffalo Bayou last May while the young laborer was in police custody.

Three officers were convicted in federal court of violating the civil rights of Campos Torres and sentenced to one year in prison and 10-year probated terms.

Morales, 25, said he was at the scene of the Sunday night, using a bullhorn, but only calling for justice for Campos Torres and not urging any destruction of property.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Matthew 25: 10-29A, The Living Bible

10 But while they were gone, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the marriage feast, and the door was locked.

11 Later, when the other five returned, they stood outside, calling, "Sir, open the door for us!"

12 But he called back, "Go away! It is too late!"

13 So stay awake and be prepared, for you do not know the date or moment of My return.

14 Again, the kingdom of Heaven can be illustrated by the story of a man going into another country, who called together his servants and loaned them money to invest for him while he was gone.

15 He gave $5,000 to one, $2,000 to another, and $1,000 to the last—dividing it in proportion to their abilities—and then left on his trip.

16 The man who received the $5,000 began immediately to buy and sell with it and soon earned another $5,000.

17 The man with $2,000 went right to work, too, and earned another $2,000.

18 But the man who received the $1,000 dug a hole in the ground and hid the money for safekeeping.

19 After a long time their master returned from his trip and called them to him to account for his money.

20 The man to whom he had entrusted the $5,000 brought him $10,000.

21 His master praised him for good work. "You have been faithful in handling this small amount," he told him, "so now I will give you many more responsibilities. Begin the joyous tasks I have assigned to you."

22 Next came the man who had received the $2,000, with the report, "Sir, you gave me $2,000 to use, and I have doubled it."

23 "Good work," his master said, "You are a good and faithful servant. You have been faithful over this small amount, so now I will give you much more."

24,25 Then the man with the $1,000 came and said, "Sir, I knew you were a hard man, and I was afraid you would rob me of what I earned, so I hid your money in the earth and here it is!"

26 But his master replied, "Wicked man! Lazy slave! Since you knew I would demand your profit, why didn't you put my money in the bank so I could have some interest?"

27 You should at least have put my money into the bank so I could have some interest.

28 Take the money from this man and give it to the man with the $10,000.

29 For the man who uses well what he is given shall be given more, and he shall have abundance.

Liquor Enforcement Problems Bring Criticism

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Ignorance of the law and the question of responsibility for enforcement are the main elements of what some lawmen say is a "buck-passing" dilemma here regarding state liquor laws.

In recent months, law enforcement agencies have leveled criticism at the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission for possible laxity in enforcing state statutes. Tom Wilson, ABC district supervisor, replies that it is other agencies who are being remiss in their duty to also do something about suspected violations of the code.

Although an unusually high number of actions recently have been taken against club areas, Wilson spurned the question of a "crackdown," and instead said the suspensions and fines should be taken as proof the agency is doing its routine job of enforcement.

"We're well aware the other agencies have other laws besides liquor laws to enforce," explained Wilson, "but they're still charged with the responsibility of enforcing these laws."

The State of Texas provides: "All peace officers in the state including those of cities, counties and state shall enforce the provisions of this code and cooperate with and assist the commission in detecting violations and apprehending offenders."

Easier said than done is a common attitude within other agencies.

The Lubbock Police Department seldom makes such arrests because, as its officers freely admit, they are ill-equipped to keep up with the laws concerning liquor violations.

It's no secret that few persons other than ABC inspectors have been well-versed in the provisions, and this, according to Wilson, is the source of whatever problem exists.

"We've volunteered our services whenever a group of lawmen gets together," he explained. "We are doing everything we can to familiarize other agencies with the law, but they have to come to us and request it."

But are other agencies interested in enforcing these particular laws, or is the effort even worth their time?

Police say it is difficult to get such cases prosecuted, even when infrequent arrests are made. Most reportedly pass word of the suspected violations to the state agency, not to circumvent an investigation, but rather to put the matter in the most capable hands.

"As a rule, we try to stay out on the street, and don't go into clubs, unless there's a fight or something similar," said Maj. C.G. Bartley, head of LPD's Uniformed Services Division. "If we're called, at our prerogative, we can go in, but normally we don't."

According to Bartley, members of rookie classes are instructed for about three or four hours in liquor law regulations, so, as a result, "as a practical matter, we don't do much."

ABC inspectors say they object to an attitude of some persons that their agency is more administrative, than enforcement, oriented. A high school newspaper, for example, earlier this year lashed out at ABC, especially in the area regarding sale of alcohol to minors.

"Until laws become more strictly enforced, they might as well be nonexistent, because it would appear that few people pay attention to them today," the article concluded.

"We are doing something," Wilson maintained, pointing to numerous cases filed by the Lubbock office during the past month. The overwhelming hangup on the particular issue of sales to minors, he says, is the issue of "knowingly" violating the law, and there is no way around that provision for his agency.

Possibly there can be no resolution to the problem of liquor laws enforcement in Lubbock. ABC has a record of strenuous attention to suspected violators, including numerous clubs as well as individuals. And, at the same time, as one police detective admits:

"We don't know that much about it. It has to do with knowing what to do. We don't go out and probe suspected violators, but we don't turn our heads, but a lot of times we just don't understand the law."

Liver Infection Adds To Many Trials Of Princess Margaret

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret, already afflicted with stomach ills and facing divorce and a mini-scandal over her love life, now has a liver infection, royal officials announced Thursday.

In the first bit of positive news in a gloomy week, doctors released the ailing princess after an eight-day hospital stay. "She has not recovered from her illness, but the doctors have decided she is fit enough to be allowed home and it does release her hospital bed for another patient," said a spokesman at her home, Kensington Palace.

"She will now be looked after at the palace until she has completely recovered."

She was driven home in her own car from London's exclusive King Edward VII Hospital for Officers, which she had entered May 3 for treatment of gastroenteritis, an inflammation of the stomach and intestines.

A palace statement earlier Thursday said a week of medical tests at the hospital found that the 47-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth II also was suffering from a "mild" hepatitis.

"The doctors say the princess is responding to treatment, but they have advised her not to resume official engagements for about a month," it said.

Hepatitis is an inflammation that hampers the liver's functioning as a cleanser of impurities from the blood. In severe cases it can cause death. Sometimes called jaundice, the disease causes weakness and depression in its victims.

Margaret was alone, receiving treatment in isolation, through what must have been one of the most emotional periods of her stormy life.

"The princess hasn't been seeing anyone in hospital. But she does have access to a telephone," the palace spokesman had said.

On Wednesday it was announced Margaret would seek a divorce from the Earl of Snowdon, her husband of 18 years. The marriage had long been foundering.

They will obtain one of Britain's "quickie" divorces on the grounds of irrevocable breakdown of their marriage, the same as some 300 other couples do in London each week, from dukes to door-men.

The princess has been plagued with illness since returning from a winter Caribbean vacation with steady companion Roddy Llewellyn, a brewery heir and socialist 17 years her junior. That trip stirred a weeks-long national debate over the lifestyle of the princess, a mother of two who has been separated from Lord Snowdon for two years.

Margaret caught a heavy cold and flu, at one point was confined to her quarters at Windsor Castle for several days and finally was hospitalized.

London newspapers Thursday were full of speculation that the globe-trotting, 48-year-old Lord Snowdon, an award-winning photographer, was the one who pressed for the divorce.

Newspapers reported that Snowdon wants to marry willowy brunette Lucy Lindsay-Hogg, a 33-year-old divorcee and daughter of an Irish dress designer. She works as a television film researcher.

The tabloid Sun newspaper, Britain's biggest-selling daily, said Snowdon made a "heart-to-heart" plea to the queen for her consent to the divorce so that he could re-marry.

Wednesday's official announcement said, nevertheless, it is Margaret who is suing for divorce. Proceedings will begin "within days," it said.

Snowdon worked with Mrs. Lindsay-Hogg, who has no children, on a film documentary in Australia two years ago. She has been described as a frequent visitor to his country cottage in Handcross, Sussex.

"I expect Lord Snowdon to be free to marry his sweetheart ... by September," said columnist Compton Miller in Thursday's London Evening News. "It is now clear that this love affair prompted Kensington Palace's announcement yesterday that his 18-year marriage should be dissolved."

A spokesman for the princess said Wednesday she has no plans to remarry, cooling speculation she might wed Llewellyn.

The British royal family historically has frowned on the idea of divorce within its ranks. The Church of England, whose temporal head is the queen, forbids second marriages in church for divorced people. But the church is expected to lift this prohibition soon.

Israelis Celebrate Independence Day

JERUSALEM (AP) — Superheroic warplanes roared overhead, rattling cannons of Israel's first war trundled by below, and thousands of parading battle veterans bombarded the nation's leaders with flowers on Israel's 30th Independence Day on Thursday.

The colorful parade in a Jerusalem sports stadium highlighted 24 hours of street dancing, fireworks displays and outdoor concerts in a Jewish equivalent of the Fourth of July that briefly pushed aside Israel's economic and diplomatic worries.

Israel's vulnerability to terrorist attack, dramatized by the March 11 highway massacre of 35 Jews, prompted police and troops to throw a massive security net around the hundreds of thousands of Israelis at the parade and at beaches and picnic grounds throughout the country.

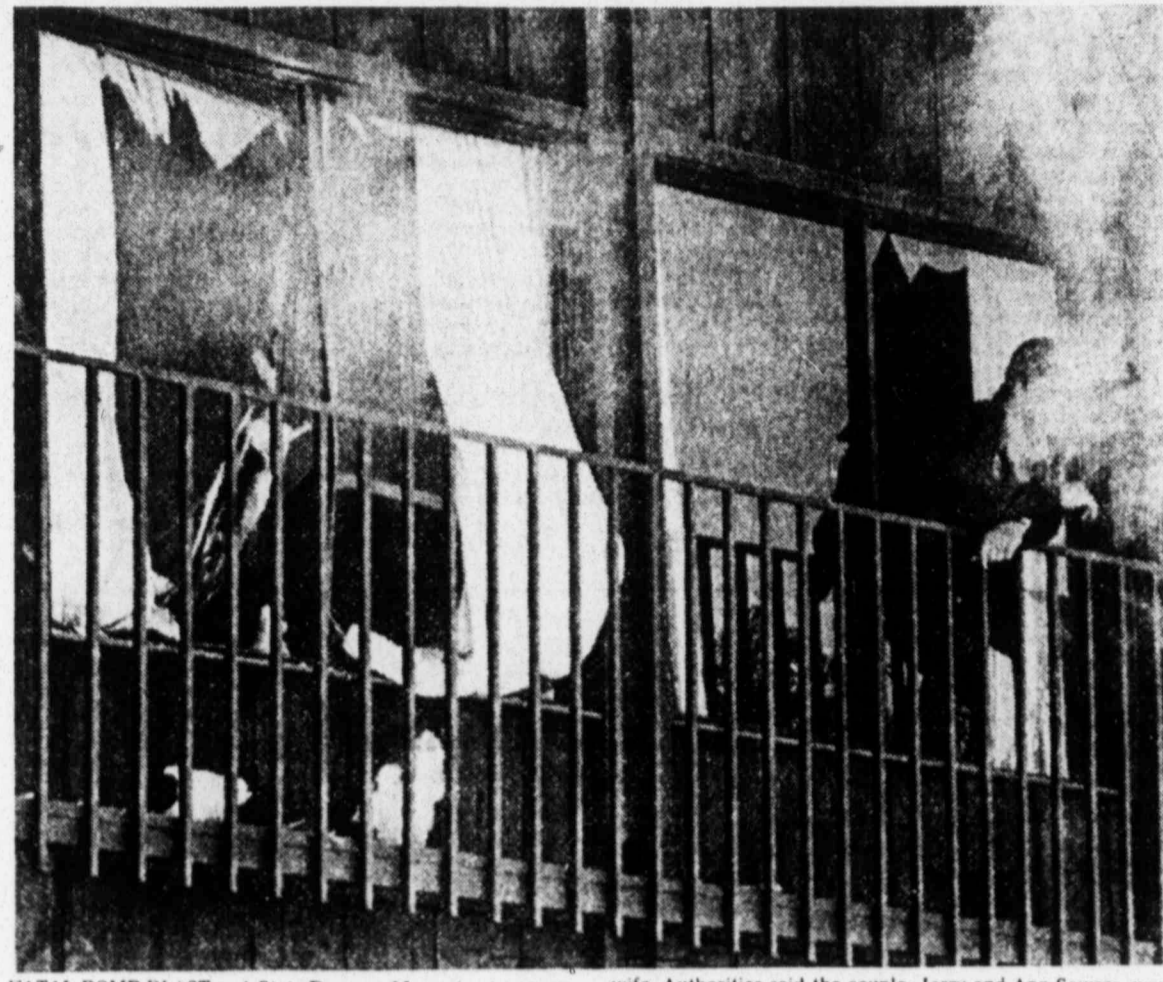

Although far less spectacular than past Israeli military parades, the march managed to blend the past and the present and draw together 10,000 spectators into what looked like a big family event.

Past parades, in 1968 and 1973, wound through Arab East Jerusalem as demonstrations of military might and provoked international protest. This one was confined to the stadium in Jewish Jerusalem and concentrated mainly on 1948, the year of Israel's independence and first war to preserve it.

Israel apparently felt old enough at 30 to get nostalgic for its past, and put on a procession of museum-piece weapons that won the 1948 war.

Today's problems were not forgotten, however. Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, stirred new controversy by reportedly saying his army "cannot guarantee Israel's independent existence" unless Israel holds on to the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Israeli occupation of the area is one of the key obstacles to a final peace. Eytan's remark in an interview reported by Israel Radio immediately drew adverse reaction from the Israeli left. Aryeh Eliav, a FATAL BOMB BLAST — A State Bureau of Investigation agent looks through a window shattered moments earlier when a man exploded a bomb in a lawyer's office, killing himself and his wife. Authorities said the couple, Jerry and Ann Sowers, were discussing their separation. No other injuries were reported (AP Laserphoto).

Couple Killed By Bomb In Law Offices

CARY, N.C. (UPI) — Garry Sowers met his wife in a lawyer's office Thursday to sign a separation agreement, took her into a conference room and set off a bomb rigged to his body, destroying the room and killing both of them.

Sowers threatened to set off the bomb with lawyer Tom Earls in the room if Earls would not let them talk. Earls called police, who left Sowers alone with his wife Anne after the ex-Marine promised to hand over the bomb in an hour.

But 15 minutes later the six-by-six-inch bomb went off with the force of several sticks of dynamite.

Police said Sowers and his wife, a nurse, had been married a year and had gone to the Earls' office to sign a separation agreement.

Earls said he was talking with Mrs. Sowers when her husband came into the office, "pulled his coat back and revealed a square-shaped device that was taped to his body. I could not see the device itself. All I saw was a huge mass of tape around him."

"He indicated to both of us he wanted to spend at least one hour completely alone with his wife and that if he was not allowed to spend the one hour alone with his wife — if that request was refused — he was then prepared to detonate the device, kill himself, kill the two of us in the office and kill anyone else that might be in the office area," said Earls.

He said he and Mrs. Sowers spent about an hour "trying to have him back down" and Sowers agreed to talk alone with his wife in a separate conference room.

After the couple went to the conference room, Earls called police who helped him evacuate the building and began negotiating with Sowers again.

Police Chief John Boles said Sowers promised to hand over the bomb if he would have an hour alone with his wife.

leftist leader in Parliament, demanded a debate on the "astonishing statement."

Three vintage Piper Cubs from which the pilots of 1948 dropped bombs by hand opened the fly-past and won louder cheers than the four U.S.-supplied F-15 fighter-bombers that followed, making their first public appearance in Israeli markings.

On the ground, jeeps towed bizarre pieces like the homemade "Davidka," a cantankerous old cannon with a bang much worse than its nails-and-grapeshot bite, and the "Sandwich," an armored truck with a set of huge steel teeth for chewing through barricades.

On display for the first time was the Merkava — "Chariot" — a recently built Israeli tank touted as one of the best in modern armor.

Parked next to the 58-ton Merkava was a tiny French Hotchkiss tank, a hand-me-down from World War II.

The Israelis driving the mothballed vehicles around the stadium wore outmoded ritzy Tommy helmets and woolen caps a la 1948.

Overhead swooped 30 Israeli-made Kfir fighter-bombers, followed at a more stately pace by a formation of Dakota transports, still in service after 30 years, and a Spitfire left over from the Battle of Britain.

In the stadium, armed units formed neat blocks and paraded back and forth like a complex, flawless machine.

The march climaxed when several thousand veterans of the 1948 fighting forces and the underground armies that preceded them exuberantly accepted an invitation to climb down from the bleachers and tag along behind the troops.

Wives and children in tow, the veterans — businessmen, civil servants and pensioners — proudly marched past the viewing stand, tossing carnations to Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other dignitaries.

Begin, 64, beamed and waved. For him it was a personal triumph. Many of the veterans belonged to the underground he commanded in the 1940s, the Irgun Zvai Leumi, whose extremist tactics against the British mandate rulers of Palestine made them pariahs of the moderate leadership in the embryonic Jewish state.

Their presence among the veterans of the more moderate and accepted underground armies amounted to a final legitimization after 30 years in the political wilderness.

The late David Ben-Gurion, the nation's first prime minister, proclaimed Israel's independence when Britain's U.N. mandate over the land expired May 14, 1948. Arab armies attacked the same day and the fighting lasted until early 1949.

Louisiana Governor Backs Superports

HOUSTON (UPI) — The East Coast can save an additional $8 million a day in fuel transportation costs if it put in offshore terminals for crude oil, according to Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Edwards, speaking Wednesday at the annual Offshore Technology Conference, said his state would save $1.5 million a day when the Louisiana Offshore Oil Port goes into operation in two or three years.

Edwards said the Gulf Coast can support two superports and the rest of the United States needs about four more. He said offshore terminals were much safer than bringing tankers into busy harbors for unloading.

He also criticized federal policies toward gas pricing which he said hasten the days when there will be no more gas.

"About 33 major transmission lines export about 70 percent of the gas (out of Louisiana to Northeast U.S. markets) where it is sold for about 30 percent of its value," Edwards said.

Transit Strikes Paralyze Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bus drivers and mechanics walked off their jobs in St. Louis Thursday and a Milwaukee transit strike entered its fourth day with no sign of a settlement in sight.

More than 29,000 persons who regularly ride the bus in the two cities were forced to seek alternate means of transportation.

In Peoria, Ill., tentative agreement was reached to end a 1 1/2 week strike by bus drivers and other transit workers serving 40,000 commuters each week. Members of Almagamat Transit Union 416 scheduled a ratification meeting Thursday night.

The wildcat walkout by bus drivers and mechanics at the Bi-State Transit System halted bus service for an estimated 100,000 daily commuters in St. Louis and the Metro East area of Illinois.

The strikers, without a contract since the end of February, posted picket lines at the system's garage and maintenance facilities at 2 a.m. despite orders from union officials to remain on the job. Bi-State countered the walkout with threats of mass firings.

Barry M. Locke, executive director of the Bi-State Development Agency, parent agency for the system, said the strike by 1,400 drivers and 400 mechanics was illegal and attorneys would seek an injunction to end the walkout.

He said drivers refusing to return to work would be fired but expressed hope that any court order calling drivers to return to work would be followed by union members.

"This illegal action initiated by some irresponsible members of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Division 788, can not and will not be tolerated by the riding public," Locke said in a statement.

Two tentative contract agreements were rejected by the St. Louis transit workers. The last pact would have brought drivers' salaries to $8.20 per hour in three years. The drivers now earn $7.78 an hour.

In Milwaukee, parking garages were doing a booming business and rush hour traffic was picking up as the strike by Milwaukee County Transit System bus drivers forced more than 100,000 bus riders to seek other transportation.

Operations Manager Galen Larson said the Milwaukee County Transit System probably has lost about 1,000 regular riders.

"The rule of thumb is that you lose about 1 percent of your ridership for every three days of a strike," he said. "Once you lose them, it's awful hard to get them back. People get out of the habit and develop other forms of transportation."

Tower Sees Benefits For Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Senate Armed Services Committee has its way, Texas will benefit from more than $6 billion in Department of Defense expenditures, Sen. John Tower announced Thursday.

The Texas Republican also noted that nearly five percent of the entire defense budget for next year would be spent in Texas.

"Manpower expenditures now represent over 55 percent of the defense budget and will probably exceed $3 billion in Texas for active military and civilian payrolls plus payments to Texas members of the National Guard and Reserve and military retirees," said Tower. "For defense contracts, I expect that well over $3 billion of the spending authorized by the committee would eventually go to Texas contractors during fiscal 1979."

Tower said he was pleased that the committee had approved more than $1.3 billion for 145 F-16 fighters manufactured by General Dynamics in Fort Worth and $194.6 million for 21 TA-7D training aircraft for the Air National Guard that, if Tower has his way, will be built in Grand Prairie by the Vought Corporation.

Texas Instruments also received committee approval, Tower added, for $43.4 million for continued development of a high-speed anti-radiation missile program.

Tower said he anticipated no difficulty in obtaining Senate approval of the committee's recommendations.

Briscoe Plans To Fill 202 State Posts

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe can make over 200 state appointments before his successor takes over Jan. 17, 1979, and Briscoe said Thursday he plans to do just that.

The governor was asked at a news conference if he planned to appoint members of the University of Texas and Texas A&M boards. Three appointments on each board expire Jan. 8, 1979.

"I plan to make the appointments for Texas and A&M, and I plan to make the appointments that are due to be made," he said.

According to a list compiled by the Senate subcommittee on nominations, 202 posts on state boards and commissions will come up for appointment before Briscoe leaves the Governor's Mansion.

Attorney General John Hill beat Briscoe in the Democratic primary and takes on Republican Bill Clements of Dallas in November.

All gubernatorial appointments listed must be confirmed by the Senate when the Texas Legislature convenes in January.

University of Texas regents who are up for re-appointment in January are Dr. James Bauere of San Antonio, former Gov. Allan Shivers of Austin and Ed Clark of Austin, former U.S. ambassador to Australia.

A&M regents whose terms end in January are Clyde Wells of Granbury, Mrs. Wilmer Smith of Wilson and Richard A. Goodson of Dallas.

Other major state boards with appointments either pending or almost expired include the Texas Aeronautics Commission, Board of Pardons and Paroles, State Highway Commission, State Securities Board and the Water Development Board.

Some appointments listed by the committee expired as much as five years ago. Clyde Whiteside's term on the board of pardons and paroles expired last year, but he continues to serve until he is reappointed or a successor is named.

Mother's Day Toll Expected

Southwestern Bell is gearing up to handle a record volume of long distance calls on Mother's Day, the busiest single calling day of the year, say phone company officials here.

"The heaviest calling periods on Mother's Day are between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and 11 p.m.," said Bob Dunbar, Southwestern Bell division manager for Lubbock.

"Because telephone people and equipment are busiest then, some slight delays may result," Dunbar warned. He advised customers to call at off-peak times to make sure calls go through.

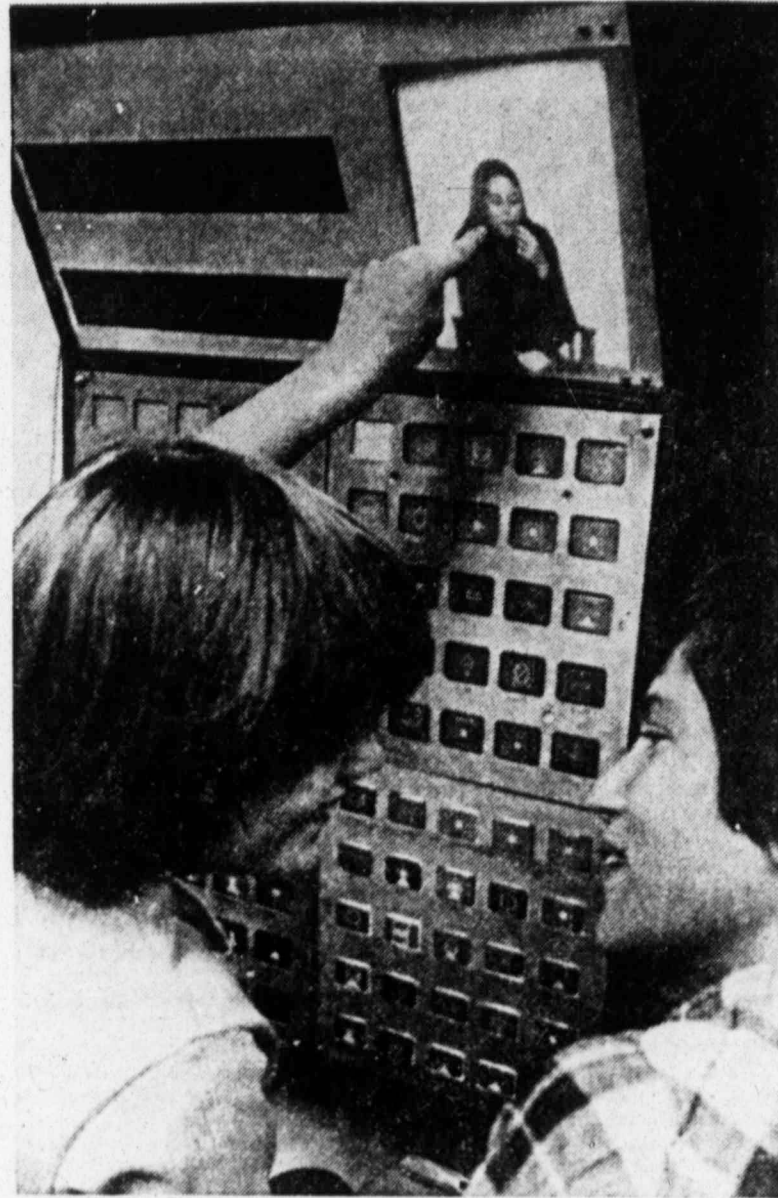

Dunbar said extra operators will be on duty to handle the expected calling load. "But people should remember that customer-dialed calls cost less than operator-assisted calls regardless of the hour."

The division manager said the lowest long distance rates will apply all day Sunday until 5 p.m., when evening rates go into effect.

Last Mother's Day, Lubbock area residents completed 45,000 long distance calls.

"Nearly 1.7 million long distance calls will be placed in Texas this Mother's Day," Dunbar said.

The Romania city of Radauti, once the seat of a Greek bishopric, has a cathedral that was constructed in 1402 which contains the tombs of Moldavian princes.

RETARDATION RESEARCH—Cissy, an 18-year-old, who is severely retarded, points to a slide projected on a display unit connected to the computer keyboard immediately below it in Atlanta. Georgia Retardation Center speech pathologist Royce White, right, acknowledges her response in the learning process borrowed from the Yerkes Regional Primate Center. (AP Laserphoto)

Language Computer Aids Retarded In Learning

ATLANTA (AP) — Using a computer that was devised to teach language skills to a chimpanzee, a profoundly retarded 18-year-old girl is rapidly expanding her vocabulary.

Looking at a slide showing her mother at the dinner table, Cissy laughs loudly and punches on a computer keyboard three symbols that mean, "White plate empty."

She is barely able to speak, and the keyboard vocabulary she has mastered is a startling improvement over the 11 words she knew two years ago, researchers say.

Cissy and five other Georgia Retardation Center residents with mental development levels measured as equivalent to those of 18-to 30-month-old children are part of a program first devised at the Yerkes Regional Primate Center near here for a chimpanzee named Lana.

In two years working with a speech pathologist and the computer system, Cissy's progress has amazed the counselors in the dormitory where she lives. She has improved her vocabulary on the machine to 100 words. Her behavior has improved as well.

"Before, Cissy didn't want to get out of bed in the morning. She would mope, complain and whine. Now, she gets up, dresses and is ready for breakfast. It definitely has enhanced her life, because of her increased ability to do things," said Dr. Dorothy Parkel, coordinator of research at the retardation center.

Miss Parkel said the director of the Lana project, Dr. Duane Rumbaugh, wanted to try teaching symbolic language to non-verbal humans and offered Lana's old computer to the center.

The system, used to show language ability among higher primates, has been altered slightly at the center where researchers are trying to help retarded persons express themselves, Miss Parkel said. Behavioral changes have been a bonus in the program.

"A student working since last fall had torn up her clothes or had tantrums every day. She was very antisocial and withdrawn. But when she started to work with us and learned elementary skills, she calmed down," Miss Parkel said.

"Another subject has made an unusual problem for us. He is a real inquisitive kid and this has just made him more interested in his environment. Now he is throwing tantrums because he wants to keep working with us after his session is over," Miss Parkel said.

Each morning, Cissy and Royce White, a speech pathologist, sit in front of a brightly lit computer. Slides showing Cissy's mother, teachers or friends are projected above the keyboard and, by punching up a series of geometric figures, Miss White questions her pupil.

Cissy responds by punching buttons, making statements such as "Boy Wash Hands" then "Eat Lunch" when she sees a male resident at the center rinsing his hands at a sink.

Cissy "has almost reached the limit of this equipment. She knows more words than those on her keyboard," says Miss Parkel.

Although computer language training has been successful with Cissy and five other GRC residents, Miss Parkel said researchers gave up on two students who showed no improvement.

"I don't want people to get their hopes up falsely. It may not work with all kids," she said.

Murder Cases Prove Expensive For County

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Murder costs not only the victim and defendant and their families and friends, it costs also in social upset and great amounts of tax money for jailing the defendant and trying him.

For trying two out-of-county capital murder cases this year, Lubbock County has paid out more than $57,000 and probably will pay $15,000 to $20,000 more.

Figures compiled by the county auditor show $36,082 for attorney and physician fees and $21,075 for other expenses in trying Philip Carey Brasfield March 7 through March 17 in Wichita Falls and Clarence Allen Lackey Jan. 30 through Feb. 20 in San Angelo.

Complete case transcripts for use in the automatic appeals are expected to cost $15,000 to $20,000.

The costs include lodging and food for jurors, attorneys, judges, court reporters, pathologists, psychiatrists and other witnesses, fees of the doctors and lawyers and payments to jurors and bailiffs.

The court reporters now must dictate the trial part of the transcripts, which also include a record of arrest, arraignment, pre-trial motions and other facts of the cases.

Typists then put them on paper at $1.50 a page, and the transcripts of both cases are expected to run something around 10,000 pages.

Appeals were automatic in both cases after Brasfield and Lackey were found guilty and sentenced to death.

The cases were moved from Lubbock on changes of venue. Brasfield, 28, was convicted of kidnaping and killing a 6-year-old Lubbock boy, Johnny Turner Jr.

Lackey, 23, was convicted of killing a 23-year-old Texas Tech medical school secretary, Toni Dianne Kumpf.

deaths of his wife and an unborn child, and the wounding of his 5-year-old daughter and his grandmother in his home. (AP Laserphoto)

Victim's Family Files $1 Million-Plus Suit

By IRA PERRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The family of a 33-year-old Lubbockite killed in a two-car collision earlier this year Thursday filed suit against the 16-year-old driver of one car and its owner, seeking $1,323,669 in damages.

The suit, filed in 237th District Court, alleges 16-year-old Cayle Mark Womack of 4312 56th St. "negligently and carelessly" struck the automobile driven by James Robert Thorson, a Texas Instruments employee who died at the scene of the accident March 6.

Thorson was pronounced dead about 5:50 p.m. at the scene of the collision near the intersection of 63rd Street and Toledo Avenue by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

Thorson and his 10-year-old son Bruce Keener were thrown more than 20 feet from the car when the crash occurred, police said.

Police said the boy's life may have been saved by the actions of an Air Force medic who opened the child's air passage when he suffered respiratory difficulty just before ambulance attendants arrived.

The suit, filed by Thorson's wife, Lois Jean Thorson, seeks damages on behalf of her and Thorson's children, Bruce Keener, Jeanna Keener, Bryan Thorson, Denise Thorson and Robert Thorson, all minors.

Three of the children were injured in the collision, according to the suit.

The driver of the second vehicle was uninjured even though the Womack car spun about 20 feet into the front yard of a corner residence, plowing up a portion of the lawn.

The suit names Womack and the owner of the car, Bill M. Womack, as defendants. The owner, the suit alleges, entrusted his car to "a reckless, unsafe driver and unfit to be trusted with the custody of an automobile."

The driver, according to the petition, was negligent in failing to keep a proper lookout, in using greater speed than necessary, in failing to apply his brakes to avoid the collision and in generally failing to avoid the accident.

Of the $1 million-plus damages sought, $800,000 is for the care and support of the children and the loss of Thorson, $500,000 is for injuries Bruce Keener reportedly suffered, $20,000 for his medical expenses past and future, and $200 each for medical expenses of Jeanna Keener and Bryan Thorson.

Police said the Thorson vehicle was southbound on Toledo Avenue, while the Womack automobile was eastbound in the 4700-block of 63rd Street when the collision occurred.

Raza Unida Says 'Hot Summer' Lies Ahead

AUSTIN (AP) — Explosive situations between Mexican-Americans and police in Houston, Odessa and other areas of Texas will cause a "hot summer," the Raza Unida Party candidate for U.S. Senate predicted Thursday.

"I am very concerned," Luis Dias de Leon, Austin, told a news conference. "The situation can generate a lot more problems than up to now."

The Raza Unida candidate, a native of Laredo, said he did not agree with some explanations that violence between Mexican-Americans and police in Houston was caused by "outsiders."

"It's internal. It's in the police department. There are some individuals in that department definitely of the Gestapo type and should be weeded out."

De Leon, 52, an educational consultant who provides technical assistance to school districts with desegregation problems, the situation in West Texas "is very explosive, around Odessa and that area. We are not going to deal with the situation by curfew or by strengthening the police force. The real answer is to humanize the environment, to increase our community understanding. It is a question of lack of humanistic feeling."

He said another part of his campaign issues would be a "demand" that President Carter free Ramsey Muniz on a presidential pardon.

Brass Knuckles Prompt Firing

HOUSTON (UPI) — The police jailer fired for using brass knuckles against a fellow officer has testified he carried them because he feared an irate citizen might attack him in the jail.

"I began carrying them in my pocket only after I got transferred to the jail last November and then only after several altercations with citizens. It was to protect myself," Roscoe Edwards, 29, told the City Civil Service Commission. Edwards is appealing his firing last month to the city body. A decision by the commission is expected Friday.

Edwards was fired for fighting with Detective Medwin Beale. Beale received a letter of reprimand. Edwards, a black, claims the firing was racially motivated.

"I personally believe the suspension (firing) by Chief Caldwell was racist," said Edwards.

Caldwell denied the charge and said he fired Edwards for possessing a prohibited weapon.

In his testimony, Edwards said, according to his own interpretation, the Texas Penal code allowed him to carry brass knuckles to protect himself on duty. Other officers who were called as witnesses agreed.

Edwards is under a grand jury indictment for assaulting a police officer in the incident.

Fear Hampers Probe Of Slaying By Gang

GREELEY, Colo. (UPI) — Attempts to arrest members of a motorcycle gang who stomped and beat to death a parachutist who landed near them have been hampered because of a delayed report of the incident and the fears of witnesses, Weld County officials said Thursday.

The victim, David Armour, 32, of Denver, died Tuesday at Denver General Hospital of injuries suffered April 29 after winds carried him to a site near the Colorado National Speedway, 20 miles north of Denver.

The 130-pound parachutist was held at gunpoint and kicked and beaten by seven to 12 gang members when he complained because one of them had snipped a "souvenir" from his parachute, officials said.

Weld County sheriff's officers said they did not receive a report of the incident until after Armour was taken to Denver General Hospital. He initially entered St. Anthony Hospital, but no police report was made at that time.

Weld County investigators began looking into the incident after they were notified of what happened. Detective Ed Jordan said witnesses were very frightened. Armour was jumping with a friend when both landed off course near the speedway. An estimated 600 cyclists were at the speedway, which is a popular area both for parachutists and cyclists.

Sheriff's Sgt. Rick Dill said the other parachutist, whose name is being withheld, landed first and drank a beer with members of one club. But Armour landed some distance away near another motorcycle group and became involved in the argument.

Dill said one man pointed a "very large" automatic handgun at Armour while 7 to 12 others beat and kicked him. Armour's companion and his brother, Dennis, who was waiting to pick up his brother after he landed, also were beaten.

Denver police said the incident could mean some serious problems this summer with motorcycle gangs. Detective Jim Wattles, who heads the police department's motorcycle gang detail, said there had been reports about a possible gang fight later this year near Longmont.

"They plan to get away fast with their dead if the cops come," he said.

Rail Crossing Crash Kills Retired Farmer

VALERA, Texas (AP) — A westbound Santa Fe express train collided with a car at a private crossing Thursday, killing a 77-year-old retired farmer.

W.T. Gassiot, who lived only a few hundred yards south of the crossing, was the only occupant of the vehicle, officers said.

Export-Import Banker Battling Trade Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like most Americans, John L. Moore is troubled by the U.S.' massive trade deficit, which hit a record $26.7 billion last year. But unlike other citizens, Moore has the power to try to do something about it.

Moore, the 48-year-old Atlanta lawyer who is chairman of the U.S. Export-Import Bank, plans to

"There are two ways the Ex-Im Bank can help the country's trade-deficit problems," the soft-spoken Moore said in an interview in his office. "The more important one is to make loans for the critical industries that are important to the country ... capital goods, for instance. The other is to jawbone."

Moore's vehicle for trimming the deficit is the bank, which is a federal agency created in 1934 to help facilitate U.S. exports. It does so by granting loans to foreign countries so that they can purchase U.S. goods or commodities.

In recent years, however, the Ex-Im Bank's contributions have been fairly small. In fiscal 1977, direct loans granted by the bank totaled $700 million, down sharply from $2.2 billion a year earlier.

Because of the sharp falloff in lending, many American businessmen lost confidence in the bank. As a result, some firms attempted to fill overseas contracts through their foreign subsidiaries, which were able to negotiate financing easily from those countries.

"I think most of the criticism of the bank relates back to the Ford administration," Moore said, not trying to disguise his partisan remark, which was accentuated by his Georgia accent. "The Republicans made a mistake in believing they could serve the lending needs with floating rates on the loans. But as you can see, that policy had a disastrous effect on lending activity."

"Because of that policy, many large U.S. corporations had all but given up on Ex-Im when I came here last year," Moore said. "But I'm going to try and show them that we can fill the needs."

So far, at least, he has been successful. In the first half of fiscal 1978, under Moore's direction, the bank has made direct loans totaling $1.1 billion, or $400 million more than in all of last year.

Moore's quick success isn't surprising, considering his background.

The gray-haired, conservatively dressed father of five is the son of a West Palm Beach, Fla., judge, who also served as a state senator. The younger Moore attended Harvard University for both his undergraduate work and law school, and graduated both magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. He then was a Rhodes Scholar in England.

When tapped last year for the $52,500-a-year job by his close friend President Carter — whose wife Rosalynn describes Moore and his wife Hope as "kissing cousins" — to head the bank, Moore was a senior partner at the prestigious Atlanta law firm of Alston, Miller & Gaines.

Washington insiders say Moore enjoys a much closer and more personal relationship with Carter than any of the bank's previous heads. He was an early supporter of Carter's presidential bid and was a special counsel to the transition team after his election. In addition, he turned down an offer to become Internal Revenue Commissioner to head the bank.

That close relationship gives Moore a great deal of prestige in this prestige-conscious town. The relationship also is being counted on by Carter to help him alleviate the nation's economic problems.

Moore is taking the job seriously. Already, he has made several trips abroad to spread the word that the Ex-Im Bank "is back in business."

"Since I became president of the bank, I and other directors and senior staffers have met with U.S. exporters, foreign purchasers, bankers and others to rekindle an interest in U.S. exports," Moore said. "In addition, our authorization is being increased, and that also will help to push up exports."

Earlier this month, the House Banking Committee approved a bill increasing the agency's financing authority by $15 billion to $40 billion a year. The Senate Banking Committee has yet to vote on the legislation.

One of the early problems he has encountered is opposition by the AFL-CIO to Ex-Im financing of plants abroad, such as steel mills, that could hurt the job situation in the United States.

"We have been criticized by the unions on that. But it has moderated somewhat recently," he said, a small smile appearing.

"They (the union) were pushing to prohibit lending that would hurt labor. But we did a survey that showed that since 1945 steel production abroad has had little impact on employment in the U.S."

Moore says he is enjoying both the job and the Washington area very much. But he concedes that he expects to return to Atlanta once President Carter's stay in the White House ends.

"But after eight years on this job, I think that will be enough," he said, smiling at the Carteresque remark.

Death Penalty Not Viewed As Deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Restoration of federal death penalty laws would do nothing to deter assassination and terrorism, the American Civil Liberties Union told Congress Thursday.

"They are acts of political desperation or political insanity, always committed by people who are at least willing, if not eager, to be martyrs to their cause," said Henry Schwarzschild, director of the ACLU's capital punishment project.

Schwarzschild testified before the subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure of the Senate Judiciary Committee, on a bill reinstating capital punishment for 13 crimes, including assassinations and aircraft hijackings resulting in death.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., chairman of the subcommittee, called for testimony from opponents of capital punishment because he said a previous hearing held April 27 was "far too narrow."

That hearing was presided over by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, one of 19 Senate sponsors of the legislation. A representative of the Justice Department testified that the bill would be constitutional, but did not discuss whether it would be advisable.

"The Judiciary Committee now has the solemn duty to decide whether or not capital punishment is good public policy," Abourezk said.

Previous federal death penalty laws were wiped out in 1972 when the Supreme Court ruled that they, along with state laws, gave unconstitutionally broad discretion to judges and jurors.

Most states passed new laws. In 1976, the high court upheld some of these laws and ruled that the death penalty is not inherently unconstitutional. Thirty-five states now have death penalty laws on their books.

Hospital Releases Prince Bernhard

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, 66-year-old husband of Queen Juliana, was released on Thursday from the Utrecht University clinic which he entered nine days ago for a minor operation on his back, the government information service said.

Rabbi Enters Guilty Plea In Solon's Bribery Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn rabbi pleaded guilty Thursday to paying $5,000 in bribes to Rep. Daniel Flood for help in obtaining federal money for a multimillion-dollar poverty agency and aid for a proposed school in Israel.

"I made payments to Congressman Flood to use his influence in his official capacity as a Congressman," Rabbi Leib Pinter said in the Manhattan federal court where he pleaded guilty to a bribery charge.

"I asked him and a member of his staff to use their official capacity to intercede with various government agencies on behalf of myself and my organization."

Flood, a Pennsylvania Democrat, was unavailable for comment on Pinter's statements.

Pinter, 34, told U.S. District Judge John Cannella he made five separate $1,000 payments to Flood between 1974 and 1976 on behalf of his B'Nai Torah Institute, an umbrella poverty agency, "so that my organization would have a better chance of obtaining funding."

Pinter said he also wanted Flood to use his influence on behalf of the proposed school in Israel, which was not further identified in court.

Asst. U.S. Atty. John Flannery told the court Pinter had agreed also to plead guilty to felony charges involving income-tax evasion in federal courts in Brooklyn and the eastern district of Pennsylvania.

Pinter could get a maximum overall sentence totalling 15 years on all three counts. But as part of a plea-bargaining deal, he is expected to be treated less harshly in return for his cooperation with a federal grand jury investigation of Flood.

Last year, three top B'Nai Torah officials — including the rabbi's brother, Sidney Pinter — fled the country after three of their aides were convicted of perjury. Officers of affiliated organizations who ran summer lunch programs were convicted of serving inadequate meals and charging the government for meals never served.

Flood is a flamboyant 73-year-old former Shakespearean actor who wears a pencil-thin mustache waxed to fine points on each end. He represents a hard-core congressional district centered in Wilkes-Barre and, as head of the House Labor, Health, Education and Welfare Committee, is influential in distribution of billions of federal dollars to schools and hospitals.

A federal grand jury in Philadelphia is investigating a charge by a former Flood aide that the congressman amassed more than $100,000 in influence payoffs in recent years. Another congressman, Rep.

Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., also is involved in the inquiry.

U.S. Attorney David Marston's investigation into the awarding of a lucrative hospital legal contract to Eilberg's law firm was followed by the Philadelphia prosecutor's ouster by the Carter administration. But Carter and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell have said they decided to fire Marston without knowledge that Eilberg figured in any investigation Marston was directing.

Both Flood and Eilberg have denied any wrongdoing.

The government charged in the case here that Pinter also bribed Flood to write a member-to-member request to former Rep. Otto Passman D-La., on behalf of B'Nai Torah. At the time, Passman was a member of the House Appropriations Committee and chairman of the subcommittee for foreign operations.

Earlier this year, it was reported that the FBI was investigating $16 million in State Department contracts granted to a conference center in a deal in which Flood and Passman allegedly received $89,000 in influence payments.

Truckers Offered Massage Cushion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A truck convention under way here is showing off the latest in rear end suspension — a cushion that pulsates and massages the driver's posterior while he rolls along the highway.

The manufacturers, H. Koch & Sons, of Anaheim, Calif., claim the Koch Komfort cushion delivers such a great massage that driver fatigue is reduced and accidents are avoided.

Essentially, the seat is an inflatable cushion that sends air pressure through a series of passages. The air is regulated in such a way that it massages the muscles, which aids in "circulation of blood through the lower extremities."

It has its own mini-compressor and provides not only massage but a sort of air conditioning for the driver's seat, according to the manufacturer.

The seat was one of hundreds of devices being shown at the Civic Auditorium along with the latest in 18-wheelers.

State Track Meet Opens

By JIM FERGUSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
AUSTIN — Carl Williams will be trying to follow a difficult act during the Class AAA state track meet tonight — namely himself.

Williams, who lighted up the track scene last year by running the state's fastest ever 100-yard dash (9.2), has one last chance to better that mark as a schoolboy.

Last year, if you remember, Williams teamed with Mark Mosley of Humble to set the 12,000 or so fans on their ear at the elite meet.

Williams, using a meager breeze to his back, blazed to a 9.2-second century, then turned around to post a 20.9 in the 220, wiping out the state record set three years before by Galveston's Gregory Edmond.

But things have been going so well for the Columbia burner this year. Although he qualified for the state meet in the hundred with a 9.7, a place in the 220 field eluded him this time around.

In fact, Williams is not listed in the state's top times in either event.

Now Mitchell Bennett of Bonham is the man to beat. Bennett, who leads a swift group of BHS sprinters, has the state's fastest century this year, a 9.2. But like Williams, he did not garner a spot in the 220.

Columbia, along with Bonham and Odessa Ector, are considered the three teams to beat for the Class AAA title, mainly because of their strengths in the relay events.

It will be a five-division show before the weekend has expired, but tonight, it's the Class AAA and AA performers that will battle for state titles. Competition will begin this morning at 9 o'clock with the Class B long jump. A few field events will be staged this afternoon, but the big show will start at 7:30 p.m.

Columbus will shooting for its second state crown in three years in Class AA, with Slaton is one of the hottest challengers. The Tigers, winners of the regional title two weeks ago, with two relays, and individual competitors in the 880 and 100-yard dash.

Also among the leaders in the sprint relay could be Estacado, however. The Matadors, paced by 100-yard dash qualifier Michael Sims and quarter-miler Joseph Moore, ran a 41.8 at regionals, a time good enough for a state ranking.

Ector's strength is built around its two relay teams, plus a large group of individual qualifiers.

The Eagles posted a 42.0 in the sprint relay, 3:18.8 (second fastest among the teams entered) in the mile relay, and also have five individuals in the competition.

One of Lubbock's best hopes of winning an individual crown is Billy Don Hardaway of Dunbar. The 6-6 senior is entered in both the discus and the shot put. The discus will be held this afternoon, the shot tonight just prior to start of the running events.

This will be Hardaway's third trek to the state meet, as he placed second as a junior and fifth as a sophomore in the shot put. It will be the first time he has ever doubled, competing in two events.

Hardaway, also an all-state basketball player, leads the AAA discus throwers by more than 12 feet. At the regional competition in Odessa, the all-round athlete won first with a 184.4, currently fifth best in the state.

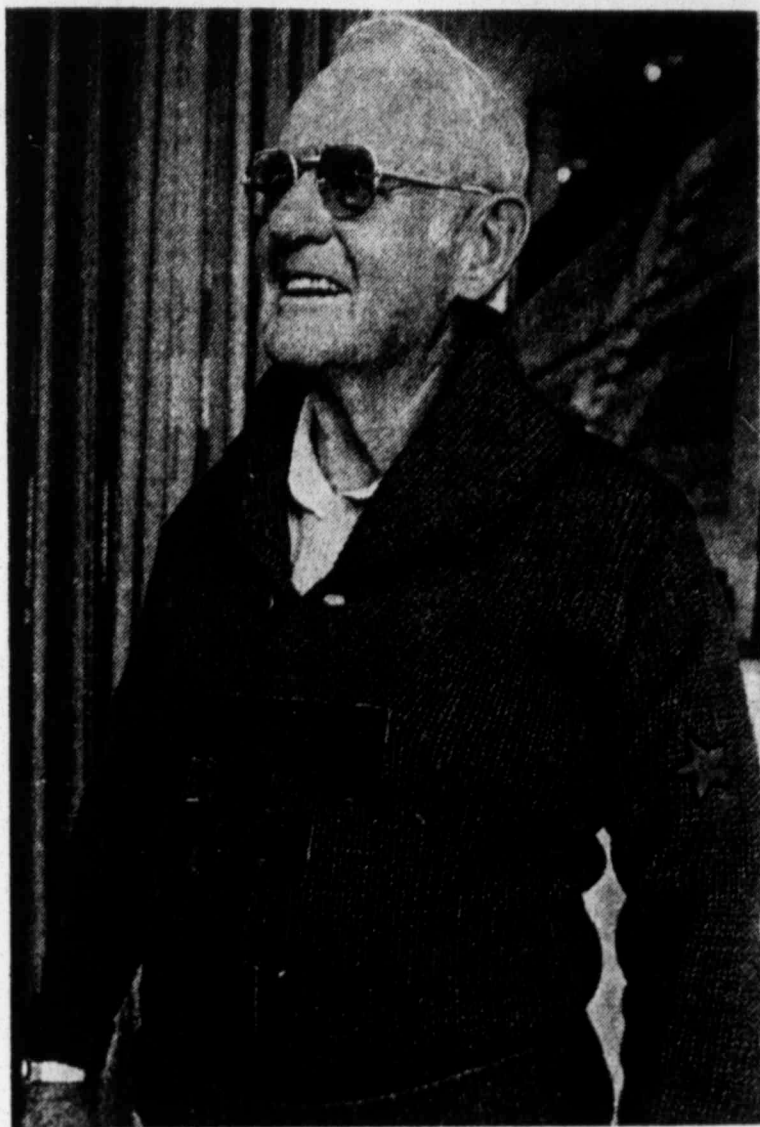

In the shot, Hardaway placed second behind Vince Price of Canyon. Price toss the ball 55-9, Hardaway 53-8 1/2.

Tech's First Letter Sweater Returns Home

Broyles Claims SWC Biased

AUSTIN (AP) — Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles told the Austin American-Statesman associate sports editor Lou Maysel in a telephone interview published in Thursday editions that "there's no sympathy for us (Arkansas)," in the Southwest Conference.

Broyles was replying to an article in the Arkansas Gazette suggesting that University of Arkansas alumni and supporters consider membership in another conference as an alternative to staying in the SWC.

Broyles said, "It has been the topic of conversation in many quarters around the state, I've been told. . . I think the Southwest Conference would be glad to get rid of us."

Broyles told Maysel, "The Southwest Conference is a very strange wedlock of contradictory opposites with unparalleled goals, and we negotiate to help the weak. Everything is to help the weak."

Broyles said one example of helping the weak is the new football broadcast plan that has been sold to the Mutual network for five years. Arkansas will have to give up its lucrative independent network when its contract runs out after three more seasons. Broyles said he is "very bitter" about this.

Broyles also is unhappy about the SWC's 50-50 football split of gate receipts. He believes visiting teams should receive a substantial guarantee instead.

"We're drawing at Austin and the Aggies draw, but we're getting checks for $40,000 and $50,000 from most of the people down there," said Broyles. "It's hard for any school that wants to have a complete program for all sports to survive with that amount of money."

Broyles added, "We feel the Southwest Conference office is football oriented. They make an effort, but they just don't know how to promote basketball."

Maysel also said Broyles was rebuffed on a plan to import officials for all Arkansas conference games from some other state than Texas. He said other conferences use officials from neutral states and he feels the officials from Texas are unconsciously biased against Arkansas.

"After looking at films of the three big games we played with Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, we found calls the officials didn't make at very critical times that were very, very damaging."

...Of Retirements And Recollections

WHEN TIME AND space run short . . . Don't make plans to stay up late to listen to the Tech-Southern Cal game next fall. The season-opening grid contest is in the afternoon, 3:30 p.m. by our clocks. In the past, the Trojans have played most of their early-season games at night. . . At times, the Yanks' Reggie Jackson has been accused of less than full speed defensively, which evidently led teammate Graig Nettles to opine, concerning Jackson's candy bar: "They ought to name it loaf, not bar."

Rating with Raider Jim MacAndrew as favorite for the SWC long jumping medal is SMU's D.K. Perry, who has competed in only one intercollegiate meet this year. Seems that SMU coach Jim Parr discovered Perry in an intramural meet. He saw Perry jump three times: First, he went 23-5 wearing football shoes, followed with a 23-10 effort barefooted. Someone handed him a pair of real track shoes and he leaped 24-5. Last week, in the meet at Waco, he leaped 25-5 1/2. Which might lead Parr to check those intramurals a bit closer. . . Ex-Monterey athlete Lane McNamara has been named the top athlete on the Tarleton State track team.

EVER HEAR OF an athletic number being retired twice? Well, a few years ago, Arkansas retired the No. 12 worn by all-America footballer and Olympic trackster Clyde Scott. Only thing it was unretired when Steve Little Little came along. And with Little's kicking success, all-America and NCAA kicking records included, the number is being put to rest again. But, what pops into the mind is this, in who's name? . . . Reports are that Texas has signed a pole vaulter who has cleared 17-11—that's 14 inches higher than the conference record—and awarded him less than a full scholarship. . .

Wendell Brown, who played football at Coronado, has been named the outstanding athlete of the year at Austin College.

Brown played football and also set a school record in the long jump. . . The draft will not come until the first few days of June, but Raider coach Gerald Myers keeps hearing rumors that Mike Russell will go in the second round "or maybe the last part of the first" in professional basketball pool. "I've really had a lot of people asking about him," Myers said.

TEXAS AND SMU fought over 6-10 Brad Branson, the 6-10 juco all-America from Edison JC in Fort Myers, Fla. Branson's mother told folks later that it was the interest shown by the head coach, Sonny Allen, that made the final difference. . . Later this month, a TV show will be devoted to the wide world of spring football. Featured will be Arkansas, Alabama and Notre Dame. . .

At least nine radio stations will be broadcasting Saturday night's SWC track meet from Austin. . . The investigation by Buffalo Braves officials of Dallas' pro basketball facilities brought to mind his coaching days with the old ABA Chaparrals. And, remembers North Texas State's Bill Blakeley, "They (the old ABA Chaparrals) traded some good players and missed the chance to get some good players. I remember when they sold the draft rights to Dan Issel for $25,000."

DID YOU REALIZE that, even before ever stepping on the field that Raider boss Rex Dockery has lost his spot at the bottom of the SWC coaching ladder in terms of seniority? That position has been taken by Rice's Ray Alborn, who a couple of weeks ago replaced Homer Rice. . . Arkansas basketballer Sidney Moncrief will participate in a series of TV "spots" aimed by the NCAA at fighting drug abuse. Others involved in the spots will be LSU runningback Charles Alexander, Kentucky basketball guard Kyle Macy and OU defensive ace Reggie Kinlaw. . .

Ags, UT Get Nods in SWC Track Struggle

AUSTIN (Special) The University of Texas goes after its seventh straight Southwest Conference Track and Field Championship today and Saturday, and the major factor for the Longhorns is the health of Olympian Johnny "Lam" Jones.

Jones, who hasn't been the same burnt orange blur since he pulled a hamstring muscle while playing wide receiver against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl, has point potential in the 100, 200, and 400-meter dashes and 400 and 1,600-meter relays.

The Texas Aggies, with football sprinter Curtis Dickey, figure to be the toughest competition for the Longhorns and come into the meet as co-favorites at best.

Dickey has run a wind-aided, sub-10-second 100-meter and bested Jones the last time the two met.

Rice, Houston, and Baylor represent threats to nip the Longhorns. Rice is tough in the hurdles and distance races and the Owls return 71 of 92 points from last year's meet.

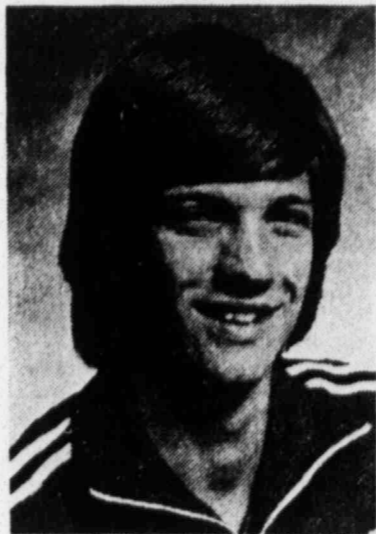

Houston has depth in the weights and pole vault and Baylor has a well-balanced squad. Tech will bid for points in the distances, the long jump and sprint relay.

Lam Jones was a double winner in the 100 and 220-yard dashes last year. The SWC is going to the meter races this time.

Texas has 66 of the 127 1/2 points it scored last year returning for the meet. Texas has won 37 of the last 62 SWC track and field championships.

The Longhorns have returning champions galore in the individual events. Fourteen individual champions from 1976 and 1977 are back.

The 1978 championships will have three holders or co-holders of SWC championship meet records.

MHS Golfer Stands Third

AUSTIN (Special)—Monterey's Bruce Northcutt jumped into third place among individual golfers in the state Class AAAA golf tournament being staged here.

Northcutt, MHS's only competitor, fired a 75 over the Morris Williams Municipal Course to grab the third spot. The first-day leader is Mark Hendrix of Austin Johnson, as he led his team to the lead.

Johnson turned in a team score of 300, with Clear Lake (League City) second at 307, Stafford (Dulles) and Corpus Christi King are tied for third at 312, followed by Fort Worth Arlington Heights 313, Odessa Permian 316, Denton 323, and El Paso Coronado 330.

Arnwine, Wells Named HS Basketball Coaches

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Barry Arnwine would like to thank the Lubbock public schools' screening committee for taking its own sweet time in selecting a Coronado basketball coach.

If the committee had acted quickly, Arnwine's name wouldn't have been among the applicants and he knows it. But today the 32-year-old west Texan is the newly appointed CHS coach, replacing Jimmy Fullerton who resigned April 5.

While the local schools' Board of Trustees met Thursday in executive session, they also appointed 28-year-old Hobbs native Craig Wells as head basketball coach at Lubbock High, replacing C. E. Carmichael, who resigned two weeks after Fullerton.

Both selections surprised various local sports enthusiasts and both selections developed a bit accidentally.

"I knew the Coronado situation was a strange one or they would have already hired a coach a few weeks ago. I had always wanted to work for (Lubbock public schools athletic director Pete) Mr. Ragus and the longer the thing went, the more attractive it got. For awhile, I had hoped someone would get it so I could forget about it," Arnwine said.

The West Texas State graduate, Arnwine compiled a 91-68 record in the past five years, winning two district championships and one bidistrict title, plus tying for two more district crowns. He guided the Amarillo Sandies to the class AAAA regionals this winter and knocked off Monterey in the opening round of the playoffs.

Before he accepted the AHS job last year, Arnwine had constructed Hereford's cage program into a winner during his four-year tenure. Arnwine took the head job in 1973 after three seasons as a Herd cage aide.

Meanwhile, the new Lubbock High coach was passing through town applying for the Coronado job when the LHS post opened. The son of Hobbs athletic director Gene Wells, Craig also spent one year at his previous job. The 6-6, 230-pounder guided Gallup, N.M., to a 15-11 record, its best in five seasons.

Before the Gallup job, Wells coached five years at Roswell Goddard, serving as head cage coach in the last two of those years. The Central State (Okla.) graduate plans to complete his masters degree this summer at Eastern New Mexico University.

"It's a tough decision to leave here. The money is not much different from here and these people have been a good group to work with," Wells said. "Every coach thinks he can be the direct result of starting something and Lubbock High gives me a chance to start a program which has achieved some success but hasn't been too successful."

Successful is something Barry Arnwine has been through most of his young coaching career. Four coach of the year awards in the past five seasons will attest to that. Arnwine accepted the Amarillo post because of the big enrollment (2,100) at the southwest Amarillo school.

When Fullerton resigned last month, the Sandies' mentor uttered very little intention to apply for the job.

"I'm not saying I wouldn't be interested but I'm not sure whether I would want the job," he had stated.

However as time lingered, the "curiosity" did too.

"I guess it was curiosity more than anything else," Arnwine said. "I called Mr. Ragus a little over a week ago and we discussed it and became interested in one another."

Meanwhile, Ragus and Wells became interested long ago, according to the new Westerner coach.

"Mr. Ragus and I had established a friendship several years ago. And I wanted to return to this general area," Wells said.

Both newcomers said they were excited about coming. Arnwine noted Coronado "has a lot of pluses in its program" while Wells dwelled on the Lubbock High tradition.

"I feel the school itself has a lot of tradition," he said. "With Texas Tech and Southwest Conference basketball on an upswing, Lubbock High can be as good at basketball as anybody else. It's a chance for us to get on the ground floor and move up but it's up to the kids."

Arnwine plans to visit CHS sometime next week while Wells hopes to come to Lubbock early in the summer.

Four-Team Baseball Meet Opens

AUSTIN (AP) — Arkansas will meet Baylor and Texas A&M plays Houston today in the opening round of the second Southwest Conference post-season double-elimination baseball tournament.

An NCAA regional tournament playoff berth is on the line for the four teams at Dusch-Falk Field on the University of Texas campus.

Texas A&M won the regular season SWC title with a 15-9 record and Arkansas was second with 18-6. Baylor finished third with a 15-9 record while Houston was five games back at 14-10.

Baylor is the defending SWC tournament champion.

The first round losers will vie in Saturday's first game with the two winners meeting Saturday night. The tournament could last until Monday night.

Baylor's Burl Coker, who has an 8-1 record, will duel Arkansas' Tim Lollar (7-1) in the 2 p.m. opener Friday. The Aggies can go with either Mark Thurmond (8-0) or Mark Ross (6-2) against Houston's Billy Blum (7-2) in the 8 p.m. nightcap.

The Aggies won 22 of their last 24 games and had an imposing 16-3 record on the road.

Gottfried Takes SIU Cage Job

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Joe Gottfried, a winning coach at Ashland College in Ohio, will become coach of the Southern Illinois basketball team June 1, Athlete Director Gale Sayers said Thursday.

"He came through the selection process with flying colors," said Sayers as he shepherded the 38-year-old Ohioan before reporters. There were four finalists for the job.

Gottfried pronounced the Saluki basketball program "in good shape. But it can be improved upon."

He said he met earlier in the day with his new team. "They are impressive young men. I'm eagerly looking forward to this new challenge," he said.

The 1977-78 Saluks had no seniors but posted a 17-10 record after a 24 start as members of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Gottfried had an 83-45 mark in his five years at Ashland, and a 19-7 record in 1977-78. He succeeds Paul Lambert, who accepted the coaching job at Auburn.

Gottfried declared that he is "not the kind of coach to gear the personnel to my philosophy."

"I like to run. Every time you get the basketball, you run," he said.

Letter-Winner

Tech president Cecil Mackey accepted the three sweaters and other materials Nicklaus presented to the Tech Museum.

Nicklaus is a member of the class of 1928, which is observing its golden anniversary this year. He was an outstanding high school football, basketball and baseball player in Amarillo and played varsity football and baseball at Bucknell University in 1924, the year before he entered Tech.

In 1927, he was awarded a scholarship over and above the football grant, for having made the highest academic average of any athlete in school.

Nicklaus was associated as a coach, teacher and administrator with school systems at Tahoka, Amarillo, Borger, Altus (Okla.) Junior College, Oklahoma Baptist University, and Amarillo College.

He was a member of the West Texas State football coaching staff under Gus Miller from 1942-47.

He is a member of the Tech Athletic Hall of Fame and the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

The jacket he wore during the presentation ceremonies Thursday is the first ever handed out by the school. He was the team captain, and as such, he was in line to be presented the very first letter and sweater when the awards were passed out for the initial school athletic team.

Decision Disappoints CHS Aide

Larry Christian was taking a tough defeat as well as humanly possible while David Thetford was also trying to.

Christian and Thetford were the losers Thursday when Barry Arnwine and Craig Wells were selected head basketball coaches at Coronado and Lubbock High, respectively.

A pair of Hub City youths who played basketball in the local system, Christian and Thetford are the assistant basketball coaches at CHS and LHS, respectively. Each young man hoped for a promotion to the head post. Each reacted a bit differently to the announcements.

The 32-year-old Christian sighed numerous deep breaths as he discussed the disappointment. Expectations of receiving the job surfaced around April 5, when Jimmy Fullerton announced his resignation. Then the LHS grad hoped for good news when the Lubbock school board met last Friday in executive session.

"Last Friday I was told by Mr. (Max) O'Bannon (CHS principal) that the board had met and had tabled its decision. When I wasn't chosen, I held out hope that I would still get the job," he said.

Christian held out until O'Bannon informed him Thursday morning. While most JV coaches with 839 winning percentages would express bitterness, Christian tried to remain calm.

"It's a big shock. It's what I've worked for, but there's no bitterness, just disappointment. I won't be vindictive and yell sour grapes. Whatever decision they made had to be in the best interests of the kids and Coronado High School."

"Barry (Arnwine) had two back-to-back good years, and he ought to do real well here. He's a proven coach. I'm thinking about getting out of coaching, but I haven't completely made a decision," Christian said.

A number of CHS faculty members felt Christian ranked at the top of the screening committee's list until last Friday's board meeting.

At that time, the committee submitted its candidates for the board's inspection. Rumors were that three of the supposed five finalists withdrew their applications before the board meeting, leaving only Christian and one other applicant for inspection.

Lubbock athletic director Pete Ragus declined to comment on the matter, saying he could not discuss matters handled in an executive session of the board. Assistant superintendent for administrative affairs E.C. Leslie told the AJ late Thursday that the school board discussed "a number of names" at last Friday's meeting.

Ragus praised both Christian and Thetford as "fine young men and very, very good applicants" but pointed out that the Class AAAA head-coaching experience which both Arnwine and Wells possessed. Neither Christian nor Thetford owned any head-coaching experience.

Ragus indicated that Arnwine applied for the position "this week." The Lubbock athletic director also implied that Arnwine had made the first contact in applying for the job.

The Amarillo High coach confirmed that Thursday night, although he had told the AJ last month that he didn't intend "to initiate the contact" in seeking the Lubbock position.

Though the selection process seemed too painfully obvious, Christian accepted the setback "like a true champion," as one CHS faculty member stated. Thetford isn't sure he did the same on the Lubbock High situation.

"I don't guess I'm a champion then," he said, "because I wanted that job more than anything. I thought I had more support than it turned out I had."

The 24-year-old Monterey and Texas Tech graduate was disappointed in the lack of communication which he received during the selection process. The second-year assistant at LHS said he never heard the name of Craig Wells before Lubbock

Buffalo Drug Probe Listens To Grid Star

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Lem Barney, star defensive back for the Detroit Lions of the National Football League, testified for about 40 minutes before a grand jury Thursday after authorities threatened to hold him as a material witness in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Barney testified in connection with an investigation of an international drug trafficking ring. The grand jury indicted a dozen persons Thursday, on a total of 162 counts. Authorities declined comment when asked if Barney was questioned about other football players.

The year-long investigation involved court-approved wiretaps, one of which allegedly included a conversation with Barney concerning cocaine and amphetamine purchases, court records show.

The athlete arrived from Detroit about 10 a.m., but balked at testifying, saying he wanted to review the taped conversation first.

Accompanied by lawyer Lester Hudson, Barney was handed a subpoena. Barney still appeared reluctant to testify, saying he wanted total immunity, including immunity from any perjury charges resulting from his testimony. But authorities then threatened to hold him as a material witness to insure his presence in the jurisdiction pending his testimony.

Joseph M. Mordino, an assistant Erie

County district attorney, declined to say whether Barney would be called back to testify again before the grand jury.

Mordino said between $3 million and $4 million worth of cocaine and speed was recovered in Miami, Toronto and Washington, D.C., during the investigation.

The man identified by authorities as the main target of the probe, Richard Burton, 27, of suburban Cheektowaga, pleaded innocent to 46 counts of conspiracy to sell drugs. Of the other persons indicted, four were from out-of-state.

Flight On Concorde Treats Passengers To Bumps, Luxury

EDITOR'S NOTE: On a recent trip from London to New York, Associated Press writer James Robins, himself a private pilot, flew aboard the supersonic Concorde. He records his experience.

By JAMES ROBINS
ABOARD THE CONCORDE (AP) — The supersonic Concorde jetliner seems to be bursting from unwanted earthly shackles as it bounds into the air from the runway.

The four Rolls-Royce turbojets roar beneath the drooping, delta wings, thrusting the slender aircraft into an abrupt climb, much steeper than the standard ascent of a subsonic jetliner.

Once airborne, the pilot sharply cuts the power to limit noise as the Concorde moves west over the sprawling suburbs of London, jerking nervously like a caged animal during the 330-mph climb.

Over the Bristol Channel and pointed toward the Atlantic at just under the speed of sound, about 630 mph, the co-pilot announces over the plane's intercom: "Supersonic acceleration commences in 2 1/2 minutes."

There is a restless anxiety among some of the 96 passengers aboard, many of whom are making their first supersonic flight. One can't help but wonder what it will feel like to break the sound barrier.

Two small shudders rock the plane as the pilot activates the afterburners, adding about 20 percent more power per engine. A terrific sense of acceleration follows. The back and shoulders press into the seat cushion.

"There we are ladies and gentlemen," the co-pilot announces. "We're supersonic now." It is exactly 16 minutes after takeoff. A digital display at the front of each of the two cabins reads, "M 1.00" — Mach 1. The speed of sound.

The plane continues its acceleration and reaches Mach 1.50 at 22 minutes after takeoff. It climbs through 14,000 feet at 1,000 mph and continues to pick up speed.

At this point, another facet of Concorde's luxury commences. Cabin stewards begin pouring French champagne and passing out dainty, dough shells shaped like canoes and filled with fresh Iranian caviar.

No reaching for the wallet on this flight. Either you or your company already has done that. The one-way fare is about $800, double the cost of an economy-class seat on a standard commercial jetliner.

Somewhere between the asparagus tips, vinaigrette and roast lamb — priced at 1 hour, 7 minutes after takeoff — Concorde, now well over the Atlantic, reaches Mach 2, about 1,320 mph.

Cruising between 50,000 and 65,000 feet, twice as high as subsonic craft, Concorde now is in its element. The ride has become smooth and steady. The engine noise, however, remains noticeably greater than on other jets.

There are no clouds to be seen directly outside the tiny 5-by-3-inch windows, only the seemingly infinite blue of the upper stratosphere, which teases the eyes into dizziness.

Except for the digital display on the bulkheads, there is no evidence of sensation of speed after Concorde reaches Mach 2.

On the four-man flight deck, the captain has elevated Concorde's hinged needle nose, streamlining the aircraft. He drops the speed to Mach 1.95 when the temperature at the tip approaches 300 degrees.

Lunch is over. The stewards and stewardesses pour coffee and aperitifs, then pass out individually tubed Jamaican cigars and cigarettes from a leather-covered box.

Just under three hours after takeoff, the co-pilot announces Nantucket Island is visible beneath the right side of the aircraft. The descent begins, and the passenger can monitor the deceleration on the digital displays.

As the Concorde descends for landing down the Atlantic beside eastern Long Island, the aircraft loses its supersonic grace and again seems stiff and bumpy at the lessened speed. Heat from the plane's outer skin makes the cabin stuffy.

The plane lurches into a steep turn, then levels out in a vertically tilted configuration, its tail section dropped and nose elevated. The captain drops the hinged snout so he can see the runway.

Exactly 3 hours and 22 minutes after takeoff from London, about half the time of a subsonic flight, Concorde touches down in New York, beating the sun by just over two hours in its race across the Atlantic.

TV APPEARANCE — Kelly Warren, recording artist from Lamesa, will be appearing on "The Midnight Special" tonight, marking her second appearance in three weeks. Kelly has had several records released and last month she was nominated by the Academy of Country Music as the "Top New Female Artist." ### Soviet Observers May Up Rest. Refueling Stops WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials said Thursday they expect some increase in rest and refueling stops by U.S. P-3 reconnaissance planes in Singapore.

These reconnaissance aircraft have stopped at Singapore for several years on flights between bases in the Philippines and the U.S. base on Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean, the officials said.

The aircraft observe Soviet naval movements in the Indian Ocean. There were indications that the number of flights through Singapore might increase from about four a month to 12 a month.

Defense officials said the United States contracts with local companies to service the aircraft and that the United States does not maintain a base or military personnel there.

"We are not a force there and we don't intend to be," said one official.

In a formal reply to inquiries, the Pentagon said that "U.S. aircraft occasionally stop in Singapore for fuel and crew rest" and that clearance "is always requested in advance from the government of Singapore, which has interposed no objection."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is no day to feel you have been posed upon. Look on the cheerful side of whatever faces you. Under the operating planetary influences you can overcome difficult problems.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show more appreciation at home or there could be unexpected trouble. Forget new projects and perfect present ones for best results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to use more care in motion to avoid trouble today. Speak carefully, too, or you could get in an argument.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be careful in spending your money or you could regret it later. Make plans to add to your abundance in the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be cheerful at this time, no matter what comes up, otherwise you could get little sympathy. Steer clear of group affairs.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Forget those petty worries and concentrate on important matters. Show increased devotion for your mate and get good results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you are wise and put your energies in the right direction you can accomplish a great deal today. Be logical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't jeopardize your position with higher-ups now. You can gain greater benefits by doing excellent work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Obtain the data you need from the right sources. Long talks with associates can bring about improved relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure to keep promises you have made to others. You can gain personal aims easily now provided you are direct with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to disturb an associate today, but render some courtesy instead. Take steps to establish more order around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You could feel overcome by all the work ahead of you, but if you work systematically, you can get much done.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to spend more time with loved one. Stay within your budget by engaging in inexpensive pleasures. Show that you have wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ...he or she will have a brilliant mind but will need proper direction in order to keep from scattering the forces, and much success will follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life. Sports are a natural here.

ANOTHER ONE OF THE BOYS MAKES GOOD — Perry King, who performed with such stars as Sylvester Stallone, Henry Winkler and Susan Blakely in "The Lords of Flatbush," now has his own turn for stardom in a new movie "A Different Story." The movie deals with a couple of gays, male and female, who share a house, fall in love, get married and have a baby. (AP Laserphoto)

Another Top Star May Arise From 'Lords Of Flatbush'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Five years ago Columbia Pictures released a modest street-gang movie, "The Lords of Flatbush." While the film made little dent on the market, its talent has: Martin Scorsese, Sylvester Stallone, Henry Winkler, Susan Blakely.

Now it's Perry King's turn. Not that he has been ignored; he is one of Hollywood's busiest actors. But he hasn't yet made the impact of his fellow workers from "Lords."

"A Different Story" could make the change. The title tells it: A couple of gays, male and female, share a house as a matter of convenience, meanwhile pursuing their own sexual desires. The two fall in love, get married and have a baby — but do they live happily ever after? That's the crux of the film.

The Avco Embassy release could have been aimed at the exploitation market. Fortunately, Henry Olek's script avoids cheap shots, and the work of first-time director Paul Aron is tasteful and touching. Gay or straight, the acting of Meg Foster and Perry King is totally convincing.

King, 29, has a blond, Arrow collar-ad handsomeness that may have been a drawback in a film world that favors off-beat looks. His striking appearance may have overshadowed his acting skill, developed at Yale, Juilliard and repertory. James Mason, with whom he appeared in "Mandragora," once told me, "Perry King is the best all-round actor to appear in years."

"A Different Story" does make it for King, it will be a triumph of perseverance. Alan Belkin, producer for Petersen Co., a TV commercial house, planned to star King and Susan Sarandon in the film two years ago.

"Alan had lined up financing from a Lebanese businessman," King recalled. "We had rehearsed the script, and two weeks before the start of filming, the Lebanese civil war broke out. Our banker headed for the hills and we never heard from him again."

"Next Alan lined up tax-shelter money. Two days before the picture was to start, Senator Long came out against tax-shelter financing of movies, claiming it helped the porno market. Our investors vanished, and the pornos went untouched."

Belkin then enlisted hundreds of investors to supply small amounts, adding up to the film's $1 million cost. King had already been paid his fee for the aborted film; the producer gave him a small percentage of the profits for sticking with the project. Miss Sarandon was not available, so Meg Foster ("Washington: Behind Closed Doors") was cast as the woman.

"A Different Story" seems certain to evoke attacks from the gay community, since the two characters turn to heterosexual love.

"I suppose the picture will be criticized by the radical gays who will argue that it should be radically pro-gay," observes King, who is married and who has a 7-year-old daughter. "But 'A Different Story' is not about homosexuality; it's about a couple of people who try to find a life together."

"I never thought of Albert as being no longer gay when he marries Stella. He's simply a gentle, loving person who doesn't judge anyone and doesn't want to be judged. The message of the picture is: Be true to yourself, be true to whatever you are."

King has appeared in "The Wild Party," "Lipstick," Andy Warhol's "Bad," "The Choirboys," as well as the TV miniseries "Captains and Kings" and "Aspen." He has mixed feelings about superstardom.

"If it doesn't happen, it doesn't matter," said the actor. "I'll still be able to find work. The big advantage would be having greater choice of roles; producer are always looking for names."

"On the other hand, I've seen what has happened to Henry (Winkler) and Sly (Stallone). When you have the success they've had something jumps on your back. Not only can you not go to the grocery store like other people, you find you have a lot of people depending on you. It's almost like stepping into a quagmire."

DR. GROVER E. MURRAY

Tech Professor To Head AGI

Dr. Grover E. Murray, former president and now University Professor at Texas Tech University, has been elected vice president and president-elect of the American Geological Institute (AGI).

He will assume the post in November of this year and the presidency in November of 1979.

This marks Dr. Murray's election to his 4th national association presidency. He is the sole American Geologist to have been accorded this honor.

AGI, an umbrella organization for all national earth science organizations, represents more than 100,000 scientists. The presidents of the various earth science organizations compose the AGI governing board. Murray, as president of the Association of Professional Geological Scientists, is a member of that board.

Murray also has served as president of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists. He also is a member of the National Science Board, which directs the activities of the National Science Foundation.

In 1966 Murray was named President of Texas Tech University and in 1969 became first president of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine. He resigned both positions in 1976.

"I am honored to be chosen by my colleagues for this position and pleased to represent Texas Tech. The stature of a university is marked, in part, by its provision of leadership to national professional scientific and other learned societies," Murray said.

Mexican Composers Eye Lucrative U.S. Markets

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Remember hit songs of the 1940s and '50s like "It's Impossible," "What a Difference a Day Makes." "Granada" and "Be Mine Tonight"? They were written by Mexicans. And Mexican composers are determined to get Americans whistling their tunes again through a $3 million promotion campaign this year supported by the Mexican government.

Two decades ago, Mexican music regularly made the U.S. hit parade, although Americans rarely knew many favorites were first sung in Spanish south of the border.

"Besame Mucho" was the first million-record seller, a 1943 bilingual version by Larry Russell, a Los Angeles-born singer who recently won an award here as "the American who has done the most for Mexican music."

Others, recorded by stars like Perry Como, Ray Conniff, Edy Gorme, Trini Lopez, Harry Belafonte, Shirley Bassy and Vicki Carr, helped make Mexican composers Agustin Lara, Maria Grever and Alberto Dominguez rich.

The songs included "Amor, Amor," "Vereda Tropical," "You Belong to My Heart," "Perfidia," "Frenesi" and "Magic is the Moonlight."

There were songs in Spanish that became familiar as well, including "Granada," "Alla en el Rancho Grande," "Titi Tipi Tin" and the mambo music made famous by Cuba's transplanted Perez Prado, who triumphed after he moved to Mexico.

The Mexican Composers Society, with 20,000 active members, has its eye on the record charts again — and the dollars.

The National Arboretum in Washington, D.C., established in 1927 for the study of trees and plants, occupies 415 acres of rolling land along the Anacostia River

The society recently opened a $2 million dollar, three-studio, 48-channel recording complex and will launch its own record label this year.

Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo attended the studio opening and promised support for the campaign, calling Mexican music "a message of the brotherhood of Mexico to the people of the world."

The government says it will encourage translation of Mexican popular songs and recordings by American singers.

The composers have assembled a "Voices of Mexico" team of 45 top Mexican artists who will promote throughout the country, the United States, Japan, Spain, Italy and Canada. And the society will give a $1,000 prize this year to the best new composition by a Mexican composer.

Composers will visit 18 U.S. cities, promoting Mexican music. Ramon Inelan, the society's public relations manager, said the cities include New York, Washington, Chicago, Miami, New Orleans, Las Vegas, Nev., Dallas and San Antonio.

Well-known Mexican singers like Lola Beltran, Tito Guizar, Gilberto Castro, Jose Jose, Los Gallos Reales, Los Panchos and Los Heramos Huerta will promote their native songs during concert note their native songs during concert

otes. The composers face a major obstacle: Mexican record companies are ignoring the campaign.

Inelan, of the composers society, admitted it's an uphill battle. He noted the majority of Mexico City's radio stations play imported music — mostly American — during prime listening hours.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Floating Balls Mystify L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles residents have become accustomed to seeing water in the normally dry Los Angeles River. But rubber balls?

Hundreds of basketballs, volleyballs, tetherballs and footballs have been floating down the cement channel in the last four days — and no one is quite sure why.

Bill Hardy of the Los Angeles Flood District guessed, "Maybe someone was testing out equipment or something. We have no idea."

Steve MacWilliams, 11, now the proud owner of more than 30 balls, said he had heard around the neighborhood that a truck "had dumped them out when it overturned."

The mystery may never be solved since by late Wednesday the flow seemed to have abated.

Most must have sunk or been collected before they reached the mouth of the river, because a Long Beach Harbor spokesman, after asking for the question to be repeated, said he hadn't seen any rubber balls in the bay.

Boat Blaze Nets Citation

SEATTLE (AP)—There are days when nothing goes right. Not only did Martin Luther lose the boat he lived on when it exploded and burned, the Coast Guard cited him for polluting Lake Washington.

The explosion Friday evening came shortly after Luther, 34, and a friend fueled the 60-foot wooden vessel Patricia. When he started the engine, the ship exploded with a blast that rocked nearby houses and burst into flames.

Police said oil and gasoline spilled over a "fairly large" area, prompting the Coast Guard citation.

There were no injuries.

The loss was estimated at $20,000, but police estimated it would cost more than $100,000 to replace the vessel, built in 1917.

Weed Fighting Time Nears

WASHINGTON (AP)—The glowing yellow forsythia blossoms are nearly gone in many areas now and garden experts say this is a warning that it's time to start fighting weeds in your lawn.

Dr. Charles A. Darnah of the University of Maryland says that in many parts of the nation herb and chickweed are now flowering and an application of herbicide will drastically reduce the seed supply of these pests.

He recommended herbicides containing silvex or MCPP, adding that the old standby 2, 4-D is the best for control of dandelions, broad and narrow-leaved plantain, wild garlic and wild onions.

If you started out cutting your lawn short this spring to remove dead grass, he says to be sure the mower blade is raised to 2½ to three inches by June 1 for bluegrass and at least three inches for tall fescue.

Mowing too closely drastically reduces root depth, he said, making grass more susceptible to damage by summer heat and drought.

Seat Belt Sign May Stay On

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Aviation Administration wants to require airplane passengers to keep their seat belts fastened throughout a flight.

The FAA said the regulation would help prevent injuries caused by unexpected air turbulence or sudden aircraft maneuvers.

The only exception would be when a passenger goes to the rest room or when a crew member authorizes a passenger to unbuckle the belt to move about the cabin for a specific reason.

Present rules require that seat belts be buckled only during takeoff or landing or at other times when the seat belt sign is on, usually when turbulence is present or expected.

The FAA also proposed a rule that would require passengers who expect to need oxygen for medical reason during a flight to keep the physician's statement to that effect in their possession.

The agency said there have been many instances in which passengers have surrendered the statement to the airline on the first leg of a trip and thus have not had it available to show to airlines on subsequent legs.

The public has until Aug. 11 to comment on the proposals, after which final rules will be written. Interested parties should write to: The Federal Aviation Administration, Office of the Chief Counsel, Docket No. 17897, 800 Independence Ave., Washington, D.C. 20591.

Label Seen Disease Curb

WASHINGTON (AP)—Starting on Monday, blood intended for transfusions will have to be labeled as coming either from a paid or a volunteer donor.

The Food and Drug Administration issued the rule in an attempt to reduce the risk of transmitting hepatitis through blood transfusions.

FDA officials say blood from paid donors and commercial blood banks has been shown to be three to 10 times more likely to cause hepatitis than blood from volunteer donors.

Hepatitis is a serious liver infection which FDA estimates occurs in 10,000 to 30,000 persons annually following blood transfusions.

"Hepatitis is a costly disease, not only in dollars but in human lives. At least 400 people die of hepatitis each year, and the cost to treat a single case runs as high as $30,000," said FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy.

He said that under the new rule blood labels will "provide physicians and their patients with important safety information. This regulation is designed to reduce the life-threatening risks associated with blood transfusions and is consistent with the goal of the government's national blood policy to move toward an all-volunteer blood donor system."

Under the rule a "paid donor" is defined as a person who receives money for donating blood. A "volunteer" is defined as a person who does not receive cash, although he may get time off from work or membership in a blood assurance program.

Besides whole blood, the regulation also covers red blood cells, antihemophilic factor, platelet concentrate and single donor plasma.

Promoter Sets Lawsuit In Radio City Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—A California promoter sued Rockefeller Center for $10 million Thursday, saying the center reneged on a handshake agreement to lease him Radio City Music Hall.

In the suit filed in federal court in Manhattan, William Sargent accused Rockefeller Center and several individuals, including former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupsak, of conspiring to keep the deal a secret.

He said the company he heads, Special Event Entertainment, was going to use the 6,000-seat showcase as the base of a worldwide chain of theaters with a potential combined audience of 500,000 for showing closed-circuit entertainment, cultural and sports events.

He described the deal as a $25,000-a-week lease for one year starting Oct. 1, with option to extend.

Sargent claimed that rather than live up to the deal, Rockefeller Center tried to convince the public there was no way Music Hall could be preserved and operated economically.

This would pave the way for tearing it down and putting up a profitable office tower, he claimed.

Rockefeller Center's director had no comment on the suit or Sargent's allegations.

Miss Krupsak led the effort that staved off Music Hall's closing last month, at least through the end of this year, the state Urban Development Corp., also named in Sargent's suit, agreed to pick up the theater's losses while rescue solutions were explored.

Sargent's suit alleges that his leasing deal was okayed by Rockefeller Center's executive committee in December and that the committee agreed to announce the theater's closing in January, followed by an announcement of the leasing plan.

"I have never signed a contract until after I've had the money," Sargent told a news conference Thursday. "It's a handshake business."

He said he'd had confidence in dealing that way with a Rockefeller enterprise, asserting, "If you can't take their word, whose can you take?"

The robin is actually a large North American thrush.

Actor Enjoys Interesting Villainous Roles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anthony Zerbe, one of the most versatile villains in movies and television, says he can usually spot the heavy just by looking at the character names in a script.

"On television you so often play a gratuitous heavy," he said. "Your only function is to make the hero a hero. I won't play those any more. It seemed my characters were always named Eric or Alex. Once I played a heavy named Ralph Speed."

"You can usually tell by the names. There're never Charlie or Bobby." In his latest characterization, the creators threw him a curve. He plays a disreputable tosspot named Amory Timmons, who is up to no good in "Child of Glass." The Disney movie for television airs on NBC at 7 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Zerbe has lent his dark presence to many films. In "Farewell, My Lovely," he was a slick gangster out to deceive Robert Mitchum. He rolled Paul Newman in a drunken brawl in "Judge Roy Bean." He attacked Charlton Heston in "Will Penny" and again in "The Omega Man." He was sent to kill John Wayne in "Rooster Cogburn," but saved Wayne's life instead and lost his own.

To demonstrate his versatility, however, he was an orchestra conductor who had a brief affair with Shirley MacLaine in "Turning Point."

He won an Emmy for his portrayal of Lt. Trench, David Janssen's antagonist in "Harry O." It was his only series, and although he says he hated to see the show die, he doesn't want to commit himself to another series.

"Child of Glass" is another neatly wrapped package from Walt Disney Productions. It has all the ingredients: Ghosts, cemeteries, a crystal ball, buried treasure and a riddle that is unraveled by two precocious youngsters.

It successfully weaves mystery and comedy, and its fine entertainment for youngsters — and anyone else who can be persuaded to watch.

It also stars Nina Foch, Biff McGuire and Barbara Barrie, with Steve Shaw and Katy Kurtzman as the youngsters and Olivia Barash as the young ghost.

It's the second Disney movie for Zerbe, who said he played a similar role in "The Secret of the Pond."

"The Disney people have it all very carefully mapped out," said Zerbe, 42, who was in his office where he directs his traveling theater companies.

"They know the range of this character and introduce comedic overtones. So you know he's not going to fry anybody in the barn fire or slice anybody up with a knife. He thinks he's bad, but he's really just silly."

He said, "My feeling is that you don't want to really frighten anyone. That's not the purpose. You frighten them with fun — like a haunted house."

Zerbe said there are no real villains in the theater. "Would you call Claudius a villain? Or Iago? Or stage you create a real human being."

He said, "They become more villainous in the movies. It's in television that you run into stereotypes. I think a villain should be a well-rounded person. They're really people who have reasons for doing what they're doing. If you were to talk to one, he could put up a good argument for himself."

Zerbe has his own company called Cameo Theater and regularly travels to stage special presentations. He and Roscoe Lee Browne appear in "Behind the Broken Words," a celebration of language. He and Valerie Harper of "Rhoda" appear on college campuses in "Dear Liar," based on letters between George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. And he appears solo in "It's All Done With Mirrors," based on the works of e. e. cummings.

Zerbe plays another villainous role in the upcoming "Dog Soldiers," with Nick Nolte, Tuesday Weld and Michael-Moriarty. He said, "I play a federal agent who has stuff set up so that he has an active life on the side — money and drug dealing."

He will play a more comical heavy in the NBC movie "The Kiss Meets the Phantom," which stars the decorated rock group. "He's a kind of crazed inventor," he said. "I'd say he's a little deranged."

Zerbe lives in Santa Barbara with his wife, actress Arnette Jens, and his children, Janet, 14, and Jared, 12. His wife recently completed a role in the movie "Cloud Dancer" with David Carradine and her sister, Salome Jens.

Janet is a ballerina with the California Festival Ballet Company and appeared briefly with her father in "Turning Point." She was in New York at the time on a scholarship to the American Ballet Theater.

"My knowledge of ballet that I picked up from her was instrumental in my getting the role," he said. "It was wonderful having her there. We went to the Russian Tea Room and the park."

Janet will dance the role of Swanilda in "Copellia" this fall in Los Angeles.

He said his son is "an inventor." He said, "He's developed a graph to show how much electricity can be generated in 24 hours by a wind-driven generator."

ANOTHER HEAVY ROLE — Anthony Zerbe, one of the most versatile villains in movies and television will do it again in an upcoming Disney movie which will air on NBC called "Child of Glass." Zerbe plays a disreputable tosspot named Amory Timmons who is up to no good. (AP Laserphoto)

Portuguese Set Opening For National Theater

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's 152-year-old national theater, a gold and crystal monument to the reign of royalty, reopened Thursday night after a $4.1 million renovation that took 14 years to complete.

In a nation where few events are free of political overtones, the opening of the theater destroyed by fire in 1964 drew criticism from leftists who described first-night festivities as a throwback to elitist days of royalty and to the 36-year dictatorship of Antonio Salazar.

The new theater features a low-price ticket policy intended to attract Portugal's socialist-ruled populace, but only 200 opening night seats went up for sale, while 500 others went out to invited guests.

The opening featured performances of Handwriting Expert Aids Mayor's Fight

CLEVELAND (AP) — A handwriting expert confirms he has been hired by Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich to examine questionable signatures on some of the recall petitions filed against the mayor.

John Tholl first denied being hired by Kucinich but then confirmed it. Kucinich is expected to challenge about 9,000 of the 34,217 signatures validated by City Council Clerk Mercedes Cotner. Recall supporters have until May 29 to collect the 37,552 signatures.

"The Creation of Man," a one-act play about Adam and Eve by 18th century Portuguese dramatist Gil Vicente and "The Armorer of Santarem" by 19th century playwright Joao Almeida Garrett.

Politics outranked performances in reviews in several leftwing newspapers. The critic for the leftist daily Diario Popular described the theater's classical sculptures and three-tiered balcony as "a lasting reminder of Antonio Salazar's taste."

The 1964 fire reduced the theater to its shell. Salazar rejected plans to modernize the building and insisted it be recreated with the original decor dating to the reign of Queen Maria II. Despite Salazar's death in 1970 and the democratic revolution that followed, renovations followed the dictator's plans.

Reconstruction — delayed by cash shortages and government shakeups — included the addition of a concrete shield around the foundation to ward off the damp that for decades had encouraged growth of plants in the basement, and had given the building its nickname of "Watercress Theater."

Columnists Tap Washington's Antics For Humorous Copy

WASHINGTON (AP) — To humorist Art Buchwald, Washington is "the only place in the world where a guy can be in charge of a billion dollar budget, and you know he can't cut his own lawn."

And because of that, said Buchwald, he has the easiest job in the world: "You don't have to make anything up. I have the whole United States government working for me."

Ellen Goodman, also a syndicated columnist, agreed.

"It's the only place in the world where people actually talk about the Panama Canal," she said.

Buchwald and Miss Goodman were speaking Thursday at the weekly National Town Meeting at the Kennedy Center. Their topic was, "Washington: Theater of the Absurd?"

Buchwald said he has great respect for President Carter and thinks he is doing a fine job: "I worship the very quicksand he walks on."

Miss Goodman described a recent cocktail party she attended:

"Going to a Washington cocktail party is like being in a singles' bar," she said. "Everyone is hustling. But here, you're being hustled with politics."

Miss Goodman, who lives in Boston, said people in Washington speak a different language. She said she went to a Washington dinner party recently and had trouble following the conversation.

"All they talked about was Title I and HR 294 and how I just came from the EOB," she said. "I didn't understand a thing."

Translated, Title I is the first part of any major law. HR is the code name for bills introduced in the House of Representatives, and the EOB is the Executive Office Building, across from the White House.

Buchwald said that government officials talk in dollar figures too big for most folks to understand.

"I have never seen a billion dollars," he said. "I don't know what it looks like."

But when I buy a shirt that cost $8 last week and it costs $10 this week, I know they're talking about real money."

Buchwald said there are too many complicated issues in the world today for one person to understand.

Mouth-Size Baby Rattles Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Thursday imposed a ban on baby rattles small enough to get stuck in the throat of an infant — something that has happened at least 10 times during the past four years with fatal results.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said in imposing the ban that no rattle may be sold if it fits into an opening approximately the size of a baby's mouth. The dimensions were adopted from a Canadian law designed to protect infants from choking on the toys.

Last year, Americans bought about 45 million rattles valued at $9.4 million. When the commission proposed its crackdown on rattles last November, it said that about 75 percent of the ones then on the market were dangerously small.

Since that time, the agency said, many American manufacturers have redesigned their products, making them larger.

The commission said it knows of 10 instances since 1974 in which infants choked to death on small rattles, and has had reports of 10 non-fatal accidents as well as 19 other cases "where suffocation was stopped by quick-thinking parents who pulled the rattle from the child's throat."

The rattles that prompted the ban are about four inches long and shaped like telephone receivers, barbells, clothespins and safety pins. But there also are other types that could be dangerous, the commission said.

It said the new rules also may result in price increases for rattles — from five to 30 cents each, depending on the model.

Under the commission's action, a rattle will be banned if it is small enough to slip into a cavity 35 by 50 millimeters wide and to a depth of 30 millimeters.

The ban will be published shortly in the Federal Register and will become effective 90 days thereafter.

Country Performer Returns To Career

TOMMY CASH

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Like his brother, Tommy Cash has overcome personal problems to regain his pride, find life fulfilling and rediscover the rewards of a country music career.

Cash went through an unsettling divorce in 1975 and lost interest in his career, much like his older brother Johnny, who battled pill addiction in the 1960s.

But Cash remarried in March and he's finding new spirit in life. It's just like his brother's 1968 marriage to June Carter, who helped the "Man in Black" immensely.

"I've matured as a man and an artist," Tommy Cash said in an interview in a Music Row office. "I'm happily married now. I'm proud of my new record, and there have been some I wasn't proud of. It's like a new lease on life."

"I went through a bad divorce in 1975 and went into a slump," he said. "I lost my confidence and interest in my stage show and my whole career. But time heals all wounds and you get over things."

I got interested in my career again. My wife has really helped; she helped me regain my confidence and encouraged me."

Cash, 38, has just released the 42nd single of his 13-year career, "A Lot of Catching Up to Do." His biggest hit was the million seller "Six White Horses."

Although he's forever fighting the shadow of his brother, Cash said he really didn't know Johnny well until 1976, when they toured together doing a Bicentennial show.

"We worked together, ate together, lived together," he recalled. "It was a marvelous experience and helped me get my head together. I learned a lot from him. He doesn't have any idea how big he really is. I don't think he's even tried to conceive how big he is."

"When he walks into a room, everybody in the room turns to him. He's got such magnetism it has to be seen to be believed. He appeals to such a wide range of people — young, old, the underdogs, prisoners, people with an unfortunate past, people who identify with him spiritually."

"He's a deep thinker, well read and naturally intelligent. I admire him and simply like to stand back and watch him. I still stand in awe of him. I'm just like a fan."

Recalling Johnny's pill problem, he said: "He wouldn't listen to anyone. I was afraid of what might happen. Frankly, all of us were concerned that he would end up dead."

Tommy Cash probably has answered more questions about his brother than about himself. He can quickly tick them off: age, time in prison (none), religion, wealth, his interest in trains, his black attire.

FAA Proposes Seat Belt Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration Thursday proposed a new rule that would require airline passengers to keep their seat belts buckled throughout a flight.

The only exception would be when a passenger goes to the rest room or receives permission from a crew member to move about the cabin for a specific reason.

The FAA said the rule would help prevent injuries caused by unexpected air turbulence or sudden aircraft maneuvers, such as those made to avoid a collision.

The action was triggered by incidents like that over Florida last month when 11 persons were hurt as an Eastern Airlines jet bounced around in a thunderstorm. Some of them did not have their seat belts buckled, even though the pilot had turned on the "Fasten Seat Belt" sign.

Present rules require that seat belts be fastened only during takeoff and landing or at other times when the seat belt sign is on, usually when turbulence is present or expected.

However, most pilots advise passengers as a precaution to keep their belts fastened when in their seats.

The requirement would apply to all domestic, flag, supplemental and air travel club carriers. They would have to post "Fasten Seat Belts While Seated" signs on the aircraft bulkheads and on the backs of passenger seats.

Ford Fights To Stay At Firm's Helm

DETROIT (AP) — An unflappable Henry Ford II said Thursday that he and Ford Motor Co. had paid no bribes and filched none of the shareholders' money.

At a stormy annual meeting, the chairman of the No. 2 automaker reiterated denials of a host of allegations stemming from a grand jury probe of suspected bribes to the Indonesian government and a shareholders' suit claiming he took a kickback and misused company funds.

Ford repeatedly drew applause from the crowd.

And when one shareholder asked whether he shouldn't "step aside" until the cases are resolved, Ford said, "I'm going to fight them. I'm not going to step aside."

A colleague from Ford's early days as head of the company founded by his grandfather made an impassioned defense of Henry II, prompting a standing ovation from the 1,510 shareholders on hand.

Ford risked his health on behalf of the company, routed out corrupt executives in the late 1940s and reversed Ford Motor's financial fortunes almost overnight. 78-year-old John S. Bugas told the audience.

Bugas has been credited with easing the turbulent transfer of control of Ford Motor Co. from the founding Henry to his 28-year-old grandson in 1945. Bugas retired from Ford Motor in 1968 as a vice president and director.

Thursday's confrontation was touched off by New York attorney Roy Cohn, who is suing the company and its boss.

The suit claims Ford accepted $750,000 in kickbacks from a supplier and squandered company funds on himself.

Cohn said he came to the meeting as proxy for shareholders who are plaintiffs in the suit. But most of his questions dealt with a recently disclosed federal grand jury investigation into whether Ford Motor Co. paid a $30 million bribe to get an Indonesian contract for a subsidiary.

Asked by Cohn whether Ford Motor paid the bribe, the chairman said, "No."

Asked whether he was saying the company made no payment, improper or otherwise, Ford said, "I am."

But he stopped short of denying a report that the company had admitted to the Justice Department it had back-dated documents in connection with the grand jury investigation.

"There isn't any yes or no answer to that," Ford replied to Cohn.

Asked whether he could not answer the questions, Ford replied, "I can but I'm not going to because I don't know the legal implications."

Ford then referred the question about back-dating documents to H.R. Nolte, vice president and general counsel, who sat beside him.

"You are now asking questions ... that require very detailed, very specific responses," Nolte said. "It would be absolutely inappropriate to get involved in the minute detail of this matter." He added that the company was cooperating "voluntarily" with the Justice Department in the Indonesian affair.

The subsidiary won the contract in 1975 to build satellite ground stations.

Ford at one point intervened in Cohn's behalf as other shareholders drowned out the lawyer with shouts of protests at his questions.

"Mr. Cohn is asking some questions that in my opinion should be answered," Ford said in gaveling the audience to silence.

Before Cohn took the floor, Ford reiterated his complete denial of the allegations in the stockholder suit.

By far the majority of the shareholders present were happy with Ford and his company, which earned record profits last year.

Ford told them 1978 profits would be more modest but still "strong."

He also called on the federal government to ease up on its "regulatory aggressiveness" or risk faster increase in car prices than buyers already face.

The company's profits leaped 70 percent to $1.67 billion in 1977. First-quarter 1978 profits, however, were down 3.4 percent from the previous year to $466 million or $3.93 per share.

It was the mention of the company's profit outlook that prompted the standing ovation by about two-thirds of the audience when retired executive Bugas dredged up some Ford history.

Bugas portrayed Henry II as a man who could have joined the idle rich but chose instead to dedicate himself to his grandfather's creation.

"He has brought this company to the point of minus $40 million to profits (of $1.7 billion)," he told the cheering shareholders.

Ford took over a company that was "near liquidation" and "spent the first two or three years rooting out the corruption that Mr. Cohn and the shareholders are claiming," Bugas said.

Referring to Ford's brief hospitalization with angina, a heart disorder, in 1976, Bugas said, "This man came within an ace of ruining his health (on behalf of the company)."

Red Cross Honors Work Of Lubbock Volunteers

The Lubbock Red Cross honored 31 volunteers, some of whom gave at least 100 hours of service during the year, at the chapter's annual meeting recently.

Twenty-five service pins were awarded to members for lengths of time ranging from five to 62 years. Mary Lacky, a volunteer at the Lubbock State School was the guest honoree, having given over 19,000 hours in a volunteer career which began in Roswell, N.M. in 1916 and continues in the Lubbock State School.

The chapter also elected 21 members to its board of directors and approved a new set of by-laws which establish that all outlying towns in Lubbock County are under the jurisdiction of the Lubbock Red Cross chapter.

Dr. Bill Dean, chapter chairman, said the revamped by-laws "along with a revitalization of safety programs, local disaster capability and an upcoming revision of personnel policy have been the major goals of the directors since December, 1977, when the chapter found itself beset with serious internal problems."

He added that election of the executive committee and orientation for new board members will take place at the next regular meeting at 8 p.m. May 24 at chapter headquarters.

'Slum Sharing' Legislation Decried

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal aimed at requiring cities getting federal housing money to accept low-income projects was attacked by the National Association of Realtors on Thursday as a "share the slum" program.

William D. North, an association spokesman, told a House panel his organization opposes adding "economic status" to existing bans on housing discrimination based on race, color, sex or national origin.

North's testimony centered on a proposed amendment to the Housing Act of 1968 that would set federal limits on state and local land use practices that have excluded low and moderate income housing.

Instead of supporting urban rehabilitation plans as a way to generate more moderately priced housing, North said, sponsors of this proposal appear to want "a nationwide 'Share the Slum' program. This is a non-solution to housing needs and is clearly unintended by Congress."

He told the House Judiciary's civil rights subcommittee that the association opposes the premise "that low income groups must be scattered among high income groups in order to be rendered harmless."

"But for the hidden minority bias inherent in this 'scatter concept,' there could be absolutely no reason for the federal government to mandate that rich and poor live side by side," North said.

A Toledo, Ohio, fair housing advocacy official disagreed with the realtors, saying economic discrimination has replaced blatant racial bias as the way to keep minorities out of white areas of cities.

Glenn G. Galbreath, managing attorney of Advocates for Basic Legal Equality, said cities are ignoring their promise to provide low-income housing as part of an overall federally subsidized community housing program.

Galbreath said affluent areas use zoning laws to block public housing projects for the poor but then bend those identical zoning laws to accommodate private, higher income housing projects.

A LITTLE SNOWY BLEACHES LIKE A LOT OF CLOROX 2

The people who make Snowy—America's first non-chlorine bleach—have some rather interesting information for those people who now use Clorox 2.

Snowy costs less to use per wash, and still cleans just as effectively.

Amazingly enough, it actually takes over 87 ounces of Clorox 2 to bleach as many washes as effectively as one 40 ounce box of Snowy.

Mart Posts Strong Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, despite economic developments that once would have been blamed for setbacks, Thursday posted a strong gain as it closed with a rush.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 12.04 to 834.20, despite a hike in the Federal Reserve's discount rate to 7 percent from 6 1/2 percent and the imminent release of money supply statistics.

Analysts said the market's showing Thursday extended a trend that began about a month ago.

"Once again, we have a situation—monetary tightening by the Federal Reserve—that used to be called an adverse development," said Larry Wachtel, an analyst for Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "But now you find that the market goes up."

He said investors, especially overseas traders, are viewing the Fed's actions as signs the government is determined to fight inflation. And such a fight, most investors believe, can only help stocks.

"When you hit the bullet, people applaud," said Wachtel. "The dollar is stronger overseas and that's another sign that people are applauding the Fed's actions."

New York (AP) — Thursday's national price for New York Stock Exchange futures contracts rose 1/8 point, as volume considered for securities also traded on other markets.
