

Beef Leads Food Costs Higher Than Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fueled by a 16 percent to 18 percent jump in beef prices, consumer food costs are rising faster than expected this year. Agriculture Department sources said Tuesday.

Beef prices could push overall food costs at least eight percent higher than last year, the sources said.

The sources said climbing prices are prompting the Agriculture Department to revise its forecast of March 28, which said food prices over all of 1978 would average six percent to eight percent higher than last year.

New Prediction Higher

In a report Tuesday, the department said retail prices of choice-grade beef, the kind mostly sold in supermarkets, may go up 16 percent to 18 percent this year. A similar report on April 3 said that price increases "may exceed 12 percent" this year.

According to the sources, none of whom wanted to be identified, the Agriculture Department will issue a new price forecast next week, which may show that food prices now will go up "near the upper range" of the six percent to eight percent prediction of late March.

One of the sources said that there is a possibility the new forecast may be even more ominous to shoppers and predict that 1978 prices may go up more than 10 percent — possibly as much as 10.

If the Agriculture Department predicts at least an eight percent increase, the department would be expecting food prices to increase by more in 1978 than they have in the last three years. Food prices rose 8.5 percent in 1975, 3.1 percent in 1976 and 6.2 percent in 1977.

No Record Expected

None of the sources, however, felt that food prices this year would soar as much as they did in 1973 and 1974 when they climbed an average of 14.5 percent annually.

The basic reason for this year's beef price spiral is that cattle producers reduced their herds sharply over the last three years because of unprofitable market prices, the department says. This produced abundant supplies of beef at relatively stable retail prices as the herds were trimmed.

Now, with the surplus reduced, cattle prices have climbed steadily for months, raising retail beef prices to near-record levels.

"Upward price movements will not end in 1978," Tuesday's report said. "Annual reductions in beef output are likely for the next two to three years as producers withhold heifers from slaughter to rebuild herds."

Not Enough Pork, Chicken

Although hog and poultry farmers are turning out more pork and broilers, those will not be in sufficient abundance "to offset the price impact of growth in consumer demand" and the reduction in the beef supply, the report said.

City School Transfer Plan Bared

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PARENTS now know exactly when their children will be assigned across town for public-school integration purposes. The next question is, will they try to beat the court-ordered system by strategically moving within the city or putting their kids in private school for a year or two?

Ed Irons doesn't think so.

In fact, the superintendent said Tuesday he has dropped the idea of trying to nab families who escape the semester or two that their children are scheduled to attend a "sister school" outside their neighborhood.

"We looked at that possibility but decided it would be very difficult to enforce," Irons said.

"Besides, I believe the overwhelming majority of parents have accepted the plan and will go along with it. I can't see many people trying to escape a semester's assignment. It just wouldn't be worth the trouble," he said.

"If some parents are determined to beat the system, that's their business."

Proposal Dropped

Irons earlier had suggested that every Lubbock public school student be required to spend at least one semester in a minority school as a prerequisite for elementary graduation. That proposal specifically was aimed at children who miss out on scheduled integration assignments because they enroll for a short time in private school or their family moves from one school zone to another.

But now Irons believes such a policy would be neither wise nor necessary.

School trustee Lynn Stafford applauded Irons' decision to discard the proposed policy.

She said it would be "next to impossible" to keep tabs on families determined to escape assignment to a sister school. The way to win parents over, Mrs. Stafford said, is to "show them how good the public schools are" so that they won't resort to escape tactics.

Letters Sent Home

On Tuesday, elementary principals sent home with their students letters from Irons outlining how children in designated grades will be selected for assignment to sister schools next year.

Briefly, students will be divided into two groups according to the alphabetical placement of their last names.

"In majority (white) schools, a student whose last name begins with the letters A through L will be transported the first 4 1/2 months (the first semester of the See ATTEMPTS Page 14

GENIUS AT REST — Twelve-year-old girl genius Mariel Aragon, center, takes a break from her second semester classes of pre-med/pre-law on the campus of the University of Southern California in Los Angeles to talk about what it's like to attend college. "Last semester they thought I was the daughter of a coming-back-to-school mother," Mariel says. "They (her professors) wouldn't call on me when I raised my hand to ask questions...so I figured I'd better go and tell them." (AP Laserphoto)

FRESHMAN AT U.S.C. SPORTS 180 I.Q.

12-Year-Old Studies Pre-Med, Pre-Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like many college freshmen, Mariel Aragon hasn't decided exactly what she wants to specialize in, but she has plenty of time. "I'm just getting my B.A., M.D., and Ph.D.," says Mariel, who is just 12 years old.

She was admitted to the University of Southern California conditionally last fall at age 11, when she enrolled in two courses. After she successfully completed them, USC permitted her to take a full load as a pre-law, pre-med student.

"I'm tickled pink to be here," she said, adding that she's not bothered by being younger than her classmates. "In fact, I enjoy it. You see, I'm an only child. And everybody here treats me like a younger sister — so, it's like having a lot of brothers and sisters."

Degree Expected By Age 15

She plans to take physics, biology, psychology and French next semester.

She'll finish undergraduate studies by age 15 and will complete medical school when she's 22.

Burt Wuttken, a university spokesman, said Mariel's IQ has been measured at about 180.

She says she doesn't mind being called a genius, but "I really like to be treated like a normal person. I'm one of you. I'm not from outer space."

She was born in Puerto Rico and lives in Los Angeles with her mother, dancer Mila Aragon, who is divorced from Mariel's father, Morris Yick, a Chinese-American mortuary owner. Mariel, who also acts professionally, took her mother's last name as her stage name and prefers to be known as Mariel Aragon.

Mariel speaks English, Spanish, Tagalog (the native Filipino dialect), and she says with a shrug, "a little French, a little Japanese, a little Chinese, that's all."

300 Feared Still Missing In Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — French paratroopers found the bodies of 18 more massacred whites in battle-torn Kolwezi, a European relief official here reported Tuesday. French and Zaire government forces in the southern Zaire city awaited word from Paris, meanwhile, on their next step in the war in Shaba Province.

French soldiers sweeping through the bush outside the city also found 20 terrified French women and children hiding from a rebel gang that had killed all their husbands and fathers, a Defense Ministry spokesman said in Paris.

Unaware Of Rescue

He said the women and children were unaware that a French and Belgian airborne force had driven the rebels from the area over the weekend.

The spokesman said the ministry also had received "unofficial information" that the French troops had discovered about 20 bodies, apparent victims of last week's rebel rampage in Kolwezi, at a new massacre site Monday.

The ministry spokesman said the number of foreigners murdered in Kolwezi during the rebel occupation may have exceeded 200, but a precise count could not yet be made.

"In the confusion, some bodies may have been counted twice, and others are still being found every day," he said.

Few details were available about the twin discoveries of survivors and dead. It was not known whether they were connected.

Some Feared Hostages

The European official here, who asked not to be identified, said that as many as 300 Europeans still may be not accounted for. It is believed that some might be hostages in the hands of the retreating rebels.

Streams of black refugees began returning from the bush to Kolwezi Tuesday. See 18 MORE Page 14

17 Seniors Graduate

SEVENTEEN seniors graduated from Christ the King High School during ceremonies conducted at 8 p.m. Sunday in Christ the King church.

Class members heard Dr. Charles L. Wood, assistant professor of history at Texas Tech, advise them on the benefits of parochial education and personal values.

Valedictorian Carol Ellen Nelson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Otto Nelson of 6004 Oxford Ave., who graduated with a 3.9 grade point average, and salutatorian Jane Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Thompson of 8012 Clinton Ave., who graduated with a 3.8 grade point average, addressed the class.

The class also participated in baccalaureate services during regular mass at 8 a.m. Sunday with the Rev. James Coniskey, pastor, officiating.

The class was honored at a breakfast following the services where Kenneth Jones, assistant city attorney, was guest speaker.

Absentee Vote Begins Today

ABSENTEE voting in the June 3 runoff will be cut short by a day because Memorial Day falls within the voting period.

Voters can cast absentee ballots at the county clerk's office in the county courthouse today, Thursday, Friday and Tuesday — but not Monday — from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Democrats will decide between Don Workman and E.L. Short for state senator from the 23rd District and between John Poerner and Jerry Sadler for an unexpired term on the Railroad Commission.

Republicans have only one race to settle — that for 19th District congressman. The contenders are George Bush and Jim Reese.

If a person did not vote in the May 9 primary, he may vote in either party's runoff. However, a voter may not switch parties between the primary and the runoff.

Statement Tells Of Death Plot

By IRA PERRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAINS — Two months before Whittarr High School's 31-year-old principal was gunned down just outside the school's front door, 18-year-old Ricardo Lopez was plotting his murder, jurors were told here Tuesday.

Claiming April 7, 1977, was "Omar Tripp's Judgement Day," special prosecutor John T. Montford read the three-man, nine-woman jury a statement signed by Lopez admitting it was he who shot the educator twice in the back just before 9 a.m. that day.

"A couple of months ago, I made a plot to kill the principal, Mr. Tripp, at Whittarr High School. I planned to take a gun and kill the principal," Montford read, after 121st Dist. Court Judge M.C. Ledbetter overruled objections from Lopez' defense attorneys that the statement may have been given while the youth was not mentally competent.

Ledbetter ruled the statement could be introduced into evidence after hearing arguments on a defense motion to suppress the statement earlier Monday and again Tuesday.

Testimony in the case will resume at 9 a.m. today. Lopez is being tried here on a charge of venue from Hockley County.

Sheriff's deputies testified Tuesday that less than an hour after Tripp died on the school steps, Lopez gave them a voluntary statement admitting he took a .32-caliber revolver from his father's dresser, rode a bus to school, and then hid behind the building until after the tardy bell rang.

The freshman student walked to the front of the facility and then waited for Tripp, according to the statement.

"Mr. Tripp was outside. I saw him coming up to me... He asked me what I was doing outside. I told him I was sick..."

"Lopez said in the statement.

"While he was talking to me, I had my hand on the gun. The gun was still inside my pocket," the statement continued.

"Mr. Tripp turned around and started walking inside the building. I took the gun out, and I shot him three times. I meant to kill him."

Dr. E.D. Barnes of Levelland testified Tripp died of two gunshot wounds to the back. The principal was dead on arrival at Cook Memorial Hospital in Levelland, Barnes said.

Tuesday, Lopez pleaded not guilty to the charge by reason of insanity. Defense attorneys have indicated they will seek probation even if the youth is convicted.

Hockley County District Attorney Bill Boedecker said the state will seek a life imprisonment sentence if Lopez is convicted.

Boedecker Tuesday brought out testimony from three teachers at the school who said they saw Tripp and Lopez talking just after the bell rang and minutes before they found Tripp lying on the sidewalk outside.

Deputies arrested Lopez a short time later after he reportedly ran to a nearby grocery store and asked for an ambulance.

The store's owner, Ray Caster, testified Lopez calmly entered the store, "put the gun on the counter and said to call the police."

"I've killed a man," the grocer said Lopez told him.

Caster said he took a .32-caliber revolver and several bullets from Lopez at that time. Department of Public Safety chemist Glen Johnson later testified that gun was the same weapon used to kill Tripp.

Lopez' attorneys, Patrick Abeyta and Willis Taylor centered on testimony reflecting Lopez' apparent emotional condition at the time he was arrested and questioned.

Sheriff's deputies testified Lopez was calm and cooperative throughout the proceedings, a mannerism a Lubbock psychologist testified earlier might be indicative of someone who had undergone a recent schizophrenic episode.

Dr. Richard Wall said he ran two tests on Lopez a year after the incident that indicated the defendant was sane at the time, but showed symptoms consistent with a recent psychotic episode.

Abeyta asked whether Lopez's condition would have been obvious to the layman if that condition (schizophrenic par-

Storms Prowl Area, Dumping Rain, Hail

SEVERE thunderstorms prowled the South Plains late Tuesday, dumping rain and hail on scattered sections of the region and causing some minor damage at Denver City.

By contrast, skies are expected to be partly cloudy today with afternoon high temperatures near 92 degrees and a low tonight near 65.

There is a 20 percent chance of rain for tonight, and winds are expected to be southerly today, 15 to 20 mph.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were issued in Yoakum, Gaines and Terry counties Tuesday evening, as weather disturbances were noted generally south and west of Lubbock.

Dark, ominous skies were visible west of the city, however, and a sheriff's deputy told his dispatcher at one point that "that severe weather warning is an understatement."

The weather service did report minor hail damage to windows and mobile homes in Denver City, following a storm which struck that city about 9 p.m.

A heavy thunderstorm also was reported in Dawson County, south of Lubbock, about 9:30 p.m.

The weather activity was limited to hail, winds and rain, however. No funnels were sighted or reported.

Largest hail precipitated by the passing storms was reported near Seminole and Denver City, where stones reached golf-ball-size proportions.

The expected warm, dry weather today will provide excellent drying conditions, the NWS says. Up to 40 of an inch of moisture could evaporate locally, forecasters say.

That's hardly good news to farmers.

For the year Lubbock has received 4.38 inches of rain, compared to 5.43 inches of moisture during a comparable period a year ago.

The area also lags behind its 3.17 inches of rainfall for May, with only 1.96 inches. Ironically, May's moisture has been the most substantial part of the year's total rainfall.

Though there is a slight chance of rain in the northern section of South Texas today, the state's forecast can be summed up, for the most part, in two words: hot and dry.

Nationwide, rain should be scattered along the mid-to upper Atlantic Coast and into southern New England today.

Few Bidders Appear For U.S. Gold Auction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first government gold sale in three years hardly set off a modern-day gold rush Tuesday. Only 59 bidders applied to buy the precious metal, compared with 700 at the last auction.

There would have been more Tuesday, but a courier for a European bullion firm couldn't seal his bid envelopes in time as he scurried to meet the 11 a.m. deadline.

Surrounded by camera crews, the unidentified courier hastily stuffed envelopes as a recorded voice sounded off, "10:58 and 20 seconds, 10:58 and 40 seconds ..."

Finally, he rushed forward to the basket with the bids and dropped some on the floor as the clock struck 11. These bids and some in the basket were not counted.

Then, in a General Services Administration auditorium, clerks protected by armed guards read off the bids for three hours.

The apparent high bidder was Morris Cannon of San Antonio, who submitted a bid of $182.35 for 800 ounces. A variety of European banks submitted bids of more than $180 per ounce that appeared to be successful. The awards will be announced on Thursday.

A Utah doctor bid "25 cents higher than the highest bidder" for all 300,000 ounces that were auctioned, but the GSA said his bid would not be accepted.

The sponsors of the sale said they were not disappointed by the low turnout. Readus Long, who runs the GSA stockpile disposals, said, "The novelty of the gold sales has worn off. The International Monetary Fund sells gold all the time."

They predicted smaller investors will take part in coming auctions. However, they will have to have at least $70,000, because the minimum bid is for 400 ounces.

The Treasury last month ordered six monthly sales of gold to help the nation's trade deficit and to de-emphasize the role of gold in the international money system.

Pickets outside the Treasury Department disagreed Tuesday, carrying signs protesting the gold sale. The 20-member group said it was wearing black arm bands to "mourn the death of the almighty dollar." They said the removal of gold as the backing for currency has led to increasing inflation.

Since 1971, the government has refused to exchange dollars for gold on request. In June 1975, the government held its first gold sale in 50 years to drive down the price of gold.

In its gold auction Tuesday, the government tried to demonstrate that it is intent on reducing its trade deficit. If foreigners buy the gold, they are spending more money in this country and easing the deficit. It could also help support the value of the dollar.

However, the 300,000 ounces of gold sold Tuesday would earn about $54 million, barely a dent in the $26.7 billion trade deficit the country ran up last year.

The gold will be transferred from a Treasury vault to any location the buyer pleases. After the last auction, one buyer carried a gold bar with him in his briefcase, GSA officials said.

Warnke Cites Strength Of U.S. Position In Arms Pact Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief U.S. arms negotiator Paul C. Warnke said Tuesday this country would win any strategic arms race with the Soviet Union should the arms limitation talks collapse.

But, Warnke said, U.S. security would be enhanced by a new accord to bring stability to the two superpowers' military relationship.

"That's the only reason we're in it," Warnke told The Associated Press on the eve of a new round of possibly climactic negotiations here and in New York. "It's not philanthropy."

If a strategic arms limitation treaty is signed and ratified, the United States is determined to keep the Russians from gaining any sort of strategic advantage, he said.

"We've got the will and the resources to do that," Warnke said firmly. "I just have no doubt that if there is going to be an unbridled competition, we can match them and we can outmatch them. That's one of the things that gives us a strong negotiating position."

"If the Soviet Union thought that in the absence of SALT they could gain strategic superiority they would have no interest, believe me, in negotiating SALT," he said, adding:

"One of the principal incentives is that they recognize we can keep up with any competition they can mount."

Three major issues remain unresolved as Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Warnke head into talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The negotiations will be held outside the special U.N. disarmament conference in New York and then, into the weekend, in Washington.

The three issues center on U.S. efforts to restrain the Russians in modernizing new missiles and in deploying the bomber known to the West as the Backfire, as well as on clarifying the permissible range of American pilotless cruise missiles.

All of the issues will be reviewed with Gromyko but, Warnke said, "it's impossible to tell" whether there will be a breakthrough.

While some details of the prospective new treaty could be left for President Carter to iron out with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, the main outline of the accord would have to be completed before there is a summit meeting, Warnke said.

And it is unlikely Congress will take up ratification before the end of the year, he added.

Anticipating an intense political fight, Warnke said the administration will have to deal with charges that "we're giving away the farm."

"I think we can demonstrate conclusively on the merits of the agreement that we are not making all of the concessions," Warnke said.

"The Soviet Union has made very, very substantial moves to accept our position. The treaty on the basis of its own merits is a substantial contribution to American security," he said.

However, the U.S. arms negotiator added, beyond arguments over the agreement's strategic merits the administration must face the tough issue of "atmospherics" — the spillover negative attitude caused by Soviet adventures in Africa, repression of dissidents and the fact the Russians are not helping in the drive for a Mideast settlement.

"This is going to be a problem," Warnke said. "There's no question about that."

Young Says Americans Prefer Sadat to Carter

LONDON (AP) — A British magazine Wednesday quoted U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young as saying Egypt's President Anwar Sadat is "the most popular man in the United States, bar none, including President Carter, unfortunately."

The American ambassador spoke in an interview with the magazine The Middle East, published in London.

He was quoted as saying the American warplane package for Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Israel "recognizes the needs of our true allies. Israel is not our only ally."

Young argued that the package could not have reached the U.S. Congress if it had not been for the impact on the American people of Sadat's peace trip to Jerusalem last November.

"I think that the one thing that President Sadat has accomplished is that he has created a new kind of relationship between the United States and the Arab world," Young said.

Commenting on Sadat's popularity in the United States, Young added: "The Americans were so taken with the sincerity and courage of the peace initiative that he almost single-handedly balanced what had been an irrevocable 30-year commitment to Israel which did not consider what the Arab world wanted."

He said he wanted to emphasize that the United States has not abandoned its commitment to the survival and territorial integrity of Israel, but that in every decision the United States must consider also "the needs, aspirations and expectations of the entire Arab world, and not only those of Egypt."

He cast doubt on whether the Palestine Liberation Organization truly represents the Palestinian people, and in reply to further questioning he said: "There is some recognition of legitimate rights of the Palestinians to self-determination. The question is in what context and under whose leadership."

On an Israeli withdrawal from South Lebanon, Young said he was not sure the Lebanese want the Israelis out.

"It is one thing for politicians in the United Nations to make statements, but I am not hearing those same statements from the Lebanese government, or even Syria. I am sure the Lebanese Christians do not want the Israelis to withdraw now."

"The big problem we have is re-establishing the sovereignty of the government of Lebanon, giving what assistance we can to the people, and restoring peace to the entire country."

Israel has announced it will pull all its troops out of South Lebanon by June 13 but that it will take undisclosed measures to ensure the security of its settlements near the Lebanese border and off its Christian allies in Lebanon.

Odessa Man Killed In Motorcycle Flip

ODESSA (Special) — An 18-year-old Odessa man died Tuesday night about two hours after he was injured in an off-the-road motorcycle crash.

Pronounced dead at Odessa Medical Center at 7:20 p.m. was Darrell Lee King. King was riding his motorcycle in a caliche pit near the city about 5:30 p.m. when his motorcycle flipped. King was thrown from the bike, which then struck him.

'New Mood' Fostered By Talks

TOKYO (AP) — Diplomats in Peking said Tuesday Zbigniew Brzezinski's talks with Chinese leaders fostered a new mood of Chinese-American cooperation after months of uncertainty and spurred chances for establishing full diplomatic ties, Japanese correspondents reported.

Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, briefed Japanese officials on the talk Tuesday after flying in from the Chinese capital. He told Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda the United States intends to strengthen its ties with China and pursue full diplomatic relations.

China and the United States opened liaison offices in Washington and Peking in 1973. The mainland government has balked at establishing full ties so long as Washington continues to recognize Taiwan, which Peking claims as part of China.

The American envoy flies to South Korea on Wednesday, the last stop on his Asian tour. President Park Chung-hee's government is expected to seek his as-essment of China's views on the Korean situation.

Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng visited North Korea earlier this month and angered South Korean officials by endorsing the government of Kim Il-sung as the only legitimate Korean government. Hua also backed Kim's demand that the United States pull out all its troops from the south.

Brzezinski has steered clear of reporters during his Asian tour and it was not known if he achieved any hard diplomatic breakthroughs in Peking.

Diplomats in Peking, quoted by Japanese correspondents, suggested the talks speeded the normalization process. But Tokyo Foreign Ministry officials told Japanese reporters they had the impression some things still had to be worked out before the United States and China could make a definite move toward full ties.

Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng, senior Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and Foreign Minister Huang Hua engaged Brzezinski in "frank and serious" discussions,

China's official Hsinhua news agency later described as "beneficial." Speaking at a farewell banquet Monday night, Brzezinski said the meetings were "useful, important and constructive."

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was the last American diplomat to visit Peking. After his talks in August, the Chinese said relations had been set back rather than advanced.

The Chinese appeared to respond more warmly to Brzezinski, who shares their anxiety over Soviet intentions.

Rhodes Scores Foe's No-Shows

ABILENE (Special) — A.L. "Dusty" Rhodes, Democratic candidate for the 17th Congressional seat lashed out at his runoff opponent Tuesday after the latter refused to appear on a pair of televised discussions.

Rhodes said his opponent Charles Stenholm lacks knowledge on the issues and lacks the ability to articulate the needs of the 17th District in the U.S. Congress.

Rhodes said, "The voters of this district are entitled to hear from the men under consideration to be sent to Washington to represent them. Stenholm has attempted to pit the rural areas of the district against the towns and that, because he is a farmer, he feels this will be to his advantage."

"I say that as important as the farm issue is, there are other issues that will have to be addressed by the next man the voters send to Congress. Problems such as Social Security, detente with Russia, defense, inflation, energy and problems in the Middle East and, in general, problems who will require someone who has a complete knowledge of the in-depth issues that face this nation."

Rhodes pointed out that he has very clearly approached the issues, suggesting his approach to solve many of these problems. He stated that the media has, in many ways, been very cooperative in bringing out the differences between the two candidates for the run-off primary.

Rhodes said Stenholm refused to appear on a live call-in talk show with Rhodes and told another television station that he would not appear with Rhodes unless the questions were prepared and submitted to the candidates in advance.

West Lubbock Park Step Nearer

A West Lubbock park came one step closer to becoming a reality Tuesday when the Parks and Recreation Board voted to recommend the city accept a 23-acre site northeast of 19th Street and Milwaukee Avenue for use as a park.

Although the board lacked one member having a quorum, the four members present recommended the acceptance of the site with a first option to purchase an adjacent 10 acres if the land is not sold to the Frenship schools.

Board chairman Henry Huneke said board members not present at the meeting would be polled on accepting the land and City Attorney Fred Senter said he had no objections to the voting method.

Requiring developers to donate 70 percent of the land below the high water mark to the city from a development encompassing a playa lake.

In this instance, the playa lake will be moved from prime commercial property at the corner of Milwaukee Avenue and 19th Street to north of 18th Street.

Parks and Recreation Director John

Alford estimated at least a year will pass before the land is transformed into a park.

The board postponed until its next monthly meeting any action on a request that the board purchase land adjacent to one of the Canyon Lakes in East Lubbock.

A petition signed by about 200 residents living adjacent to Lake 6 was delivered to parks staff members. Dr. Heenan Johnson was scheduled to present the petition request but did not appear at the meeting.

Board members asked that the specifics of the request be studied before the June board meeting, and Alford suggested the request be included in a priority list for land acquisition for the entire Canyon Lakes Project.

However, Huneke was of the opinion other areas might be higher on the list of priorities. "We don't even have enough money to do what we want with what we have in ownership," he said.

Also at the meeting, board members approved the use of a public address system in MacKenzie Park June 18 by KLBK Radio.

Travelers Checks Not Always Bargain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., is urging consumers to be wary of bargain offers in sales of travelers checks.

Some firms are advertising their checks at low fees months in advance of their use.

Reuss noted that the advertising claims savings of as much as $48 on a purchase of $5,000 in travelers checks in comparison with the usual charges for the checks.

Reuss noted that if the checks were not to be used for six months the consumer would be simply holding non-interest-bearing funds. If the same $5,000 had been put in a 5 percent savings account for six months, it would have earned $125 in interest. If the trip were three months off the interest would be $62.50 he said. This, Reuss said, is lost in order to save $48 in fees.

Agency Eyes Tulia Bank Application

A-J Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The State Department of Banking reports an application to acquire control of the First State Bank, Tulia, has been filed by Hiram Jordan of Tulia.

The application is required under a 1977 law providing for approval by State Banking Commissioner Robert Stewart of changes in control of state-chartered banks.

A hearing may be held if the application is denied.

Cave-In Kills Geologist; Companion Survives

SAN DIEGO (AP) — One of two geologists testing soil samples died Tuesday when the pair was buried under 16 feet of earth, police said.

Police officer D. L. Daugherty said that rescuers were able to talk to the surviving man, John Sayers, through a garden hose as operations went on.

As oxygen was forced through the hose, about 15 men with shovels dug through the earth. Backhoes were used to clear the dirt away.

Almost two hours after the cave-in, Daugherty said, rescuers knew where both men were.

The scene was a quarter-mile east of Interstate 15 in the Rancho Bernardo area of northern San Diego. Paramedics from nearby Poway and from downtown San Diego were on the scene.

The dead man was not identified. The geologists were employees of a firm called Geo-Soils in Santa Ana, Calif.

"How I make the most of every Long Distance day."

"I have a plan. I do something few businessmen think they have time for. I schedule a period of time every day just for calling Long Distance.

"Here's why it makes sense. Anyone can make Long Distance calls when absolutely necessary. My plan forces me to keep in touch, ask questions, handle problems, or just say hello—on a regular basis.

"It pays three ways. By taking time to learn my clients' needs early, I'm able to spot business opportunities. Also, I can straighten out problems or answer questions right there on the spot.

And of course the regular contact by Long Distance strengthens my relationship, personally, with every client.

"It's easy to do. I use an appointment calendar in conjunction with a card file. The calendar reminds me who to call when. And the file refreshes my memory about previous calls, follow-up action, as well as personal details like birthdays, anniversaries, and such.

"Try a plan of your own. Any period of time each day—even if it's just a few minutes—is time well invested.

Because in the long run, it will pay handsome dividends."

'Surprise' OSHA Inspections Banned By High Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court told the federal government Tuesday it must stop making unannounced safety inspections of the nation's workplaces unless first obtaining search warrants.

Voting 5-3, the justices struck down as unconstitutional a portion of 1970 law passed by Congress to provide government protection of workers against on-the-job safety hazards.

The law had authorized inspectors from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to make spot checks of some six million industry and business locations without proving to a judge or magistrate that such a search was justified.

The Constitution's protection against unreasonable searches "protects commercial buildings as well as private homes," Justice Byron R. White wrote for the court.

"We are unconvinced that requiring warrants to inspect will impose serious burdens on the inspection system or the courts, will prevent inspections necessary to enforce the statute or will make them less effective," White said.

Essentially, the justices' decision places a buffer — the courts — between the OSHA, a division of the Labor Department, and the businesses it inspects.

Now, if an OSHA inspector is denied access by a business owner, the inspector must obtain a court-ordered search warrant before gaining access.

White's opinion acknowledged that "the risk is that during the interval between the inspector's initial request to search a plant and his procuring a warrant ... violations ... could be corrected and thus escape the inspector's notice."

The court's decision does not preclude OSHA inspectors from trying to obtain a search warrant first — without the business owner's knowledge — to preserve the element of surprise.

But Labor Secretary Ray Marshall had voiced concern about the "administrative strain" the OSHA would experience if that procedure became standard practice.

"We conclude that the concerns expressed by the secretary do not suffice to justify warrantless inspections under OSHA or vitiate the general constitutional requirement that for a search to be reasonable a warrant must be obtained," the court said.

In criminal cases, the government must first prove "probable cause" before gaining a search warrant, but Tuesday's decision watered down that requirement for OSHA inspectors.

"Probable cause in a criminal sense is not required," White said.

"For purposes of an administrative search probable cause justifying the issuance of a warrant may be based not only on a specific evidence of an existing violation ... A warrant showing that a specific business has been chosen for an OSHA search on the basis of a general administrative plan ... would protect an employer's rights," he said.

OSHA inspections long have been controversial, and the issue has been used by some political conservatives as a rallying point against expansive government regulation.

Responding to criticism about arrogant or nit-picking inspectors, Marshall last May promised that the agency would concentrate on major occupational health and safety hazards.

But Marshall and other government officials argued that OSHA should be allowed to keep its authority for unannounced inspections without judges' approval.

That authority was challenged in 1975, when F.G. "Bill" Barlow, a Pocatello, Idaho, electrical and plumbing contractor, refused to let an OSHA inspector check his 35-employee establishment.

Barlow went to court to block the inspection without a search warrant, and in 1976 won when a three-judge federal panel in Idaho struck down the OSHA inspection provision as unconstitutional.

Tuesday's decision upheld the 1976 ruling.

Joining White were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Thurgood Marshall and Lewis F. Powell Jr.

Justices John Paul Stevens, William H. Rehnquist and Harry A. Blackmun dissented, and Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who missed arguments in the case last January because of illness, took no part in the decision.

Superiors Knew Of Activity, Former FBI Agent Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former FBI official says his superiors knew about a series of illegal break-ins five years before the government filed criminal charges against him and two others.

Edward S. Miller says the officials may even have known at the time, in the 1972-73 period, that FBI men were breaking into homes while investigating the radical Weather Underground.

And former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray claims the FBI had a policy of such "black bag jobs" and that the Justice Department knew about it and approved of the break-ins "up to and including the present time."

The Justice Department declined to comment.

Gray, former Acting Associate Director W. Mark Felt, and Miller, a former assistant director for the FBI's domestic intelligence division, are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of the break-in victims.

Gray and Miller both asked U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant to dismiss the charges. Miller asked for the dismissal "on the grounds that the pre-indictment delay by the government" prejudiced his rights.

"We believe the evidence will show that the Department of Justice had knowledge of these alleged offenses at least as early as 1974, probably as early as 1973, and conceivably contemporaneously with the acts now deemed to be unlawful," Miller said in a document filed with the court.

The documents said Miller testified to the grand jury in 1976 that in 1973 he told William Ruckelshaus, Gray's successor as acting director, that the FBI had conducted a program of surreptitious entries in the Gray regime.

"We cannot state why no investigation began until 1976, but we submit it was because either the Department of Justice did not consider the acts to be unlawful at that time, or that it was the department's policy not to prosecute such acts," Miller's motion said.

After Ruckelshaus became deputy attorney general Miller said he told the FBI's new director, Clarence Kelley, about the break-ins. Miller said government documents show that Ruckelshaus and Kelley talked about an inquiry into the break-ins and that there were meetings on the subject among other FBI and Justice Department officials.

Kelley has claimed he did not learn until 1976 that break-ins involved with investigation of the Weather Underground had taken place. In 1975, Kelley and other FBI officials testified the FBI had performed so-called "black bag jobs" involving national security but that the practice had ended in 1966 at the command of J.

Edgar Hoover, then the director of the FBI.

Flawed Beam Believed Cause Of Roof Collapse

GARLAND (AP) — A beam that may have been structurally deficient is now being considered as the cause of the roof collapse at the Walnut Village Church of Christ, city officials said Tuesday.

There is speculation that a beam that spanned the auditorium buckled and broke after water accumulated in a large pond caused by the sagging beam. Heavy rains fell the night before the Sunday disaster.

"After viewing the plans and inspecting the site, it is our conclusion that one of the beams collapsed, buckling approximately in the center," said city building inspector Bill Allen, "but we still don't know just why."

Splintering beams and torrents of water came crashing down upon the congregation Sunday morning during prayer, killing a 9-year-old girl and injuring 57 other persons.

Allen said the splintered beam will be tested by several engineering consultants to determine the beam's structural soundness.

City officials met at the church with structural engineers representing Sentry Insurance Co. and building contractor Hubert L. Hays of Fort Worth, and Ed Smith, a consulting engineer for the Koppers Co. Inc. of Pittsburgh, manufacturers of the laminated wooden beams.

Deacon Ted Smith, a builder, said there had been complaints about water accumulation on the roof before the collapse. Although the flat roof was designed to take care of drainage without conventional drains, drainage had become a problem, he said.

"From the last inspection of the roof, people said possibly we'd have to do something with that thing at some future date," said Smith.

"You spend $170,000 to $200,000 for a building and you feel it has been built by people who know their business," Smith said.

"All I can figure out is maybe the heavy snows this winter weakened the things. This is the first heavy rain since then and maybe it was too much."

Church officials learned Monday that their insurance policy did not cover the roof collapse.

It "covers about anything but what happened," said minister Verner Ulrich. "Nobody thinks it ever happens, I guess."

"It doesn't cover us in case of sleet, rain, hail, snow or any other natural disaster of the roof," Ulrich said. "It kind of what they would say is just the general policy. And they don't cover the roof in this kind of situation."

That leaves the homeless congregation with the task of raising about $200,000 to rebuild the structure.

Ulrich said the only exception would be if engineers prove there were some defect in the materials used to build the roof or the way they were put together.

That could take years, he said.

Not only is the congregation faced with raising money to repair the structure, it still will continue to pay for the $180,000, three-year-old auditorium that now lies in ruin.

The ancient Greek poet Pindar is believed to have died at the age of 79 Argos in 443 B.C.

Myers Tapped As Air Force's Top Doctor

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Maj. Gen. Paul W. Myers, commander of Willford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base here, has been nominated by President Carter to become Air Force Surgeon General.

Myers, a neurosurgeon, has been commander of Willford Hall since April 1971 and has been stationed there since June 1958.

As the Air Force's top medical officer, Myers will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant general on Aug. 1.

A native of Schenectady, N.Y., Myers served as an enlisted man in the U.S. Army from 1943-45 and graduated from Albany Medical College in 1946.

Myers, 55, is also a professor of neurosurgery at the University of Texas Medical School in San Antonio.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — We have no U.S. Customs Service in Austin. As a retailer of Scandinavian furniture I import in rather large volume via containerized freight, mainly through the Houston Port of Entry. Consequently, all entries must be inspected and released in Houston before I am allowed to handle the cargo.

The procedure involves one of two alternatives, both of which are time-consuming and costly. If the container has multiple invoices it must be completely unloaded at warehouse for inspection. If it has only one invoice the container is opened for inspection on the dock. When it is done on the dock the cargo is subject to breakage or pilferage. Either way, I must go to Houston to repack and reload the goods into my truck then bring the cargo to Austin.

Now, my request for assistance: I would like you to ask the Customs Service to provide for inspections here in Austin. In my opinion, Austin has become large enough to have its own Customs office. I will appreciate anything you can do to help. — G.B., Austin.

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — I have passed your letter along to the Regional Commissioner of Customs. He looks forward to working with you on your request and he offers several tips: be prepared to justify fully the need for an office; seek support and backing from other members of your community; and be ready for a long wait, a year or two, since the procedure takes time.

MESSAGE — I am having problems with the Railroad Retirement Board. They have advised me that I will not be able to draw my retirement from them until I am 62 and then I will be penalized $105 a month because I do not have 30 years of service.

I worked all my life for REA Express and, as you are probably aware, they took bankruptcy in November 1975. At that time, I was eight months short of creditable service to draw a full pension. I have applied for positions with every railroad in the vicinity. I get sympathy but no job. I would appreciate your looking into this matter to see if an exception can be made. — R.C., Dallas.

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Officials of the Railroad Retirement Board inform me that the Railroad Retirement Act specifically provides that an applicant can retire at age 60 only if the applicant has at least 354 creditable railroad service months. An individual can retire with less than 354 months at age 62, but with a 20 percent reduction in the gross annual rate. The only exception that can be allowed applies to disabled individuals.

Area Legislators' Votes Listed

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 11 through May 17.

HOUSE

TOBACCO — Rejected, 126 for and 189 against, an amendment to prevent U.S. tobacco and tobacco products from being sold abroad under the Food-for-Peace program. The amendment was proposed to a foreign aid bill (HR 12222), which was later passed. The Senate has not yet acted on a counterpart bill.

Rep. James Johnson, R-Colo., the sponsor, said that "one day this Congress and this U.S. have to face up to the inconsistency of promoting and supporting tobacco products at the same time we recognize that it is the most deadly poison we consume in this country."

Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., an opponent, said that "if we are going start banning potentially harmful farm commodities, we might as well take a look at sugar, too, and maybe at all those delectable foods which produce the 'killer' cholesterol."

Members voting "yea" favored halting overseas sales of tobacco.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-7, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, Jack Hightower, D-13, John Young, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Omar Burleson, D-17, Barbara Jordan, D-18, George Mahon, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Dale Milford, D-24, voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-6, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, W. R. Poage, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Robert Krueger, D-21, Bob Gammage, D-22, Manuel Lujan, R-1, Harold Runnels, D-2, and Abraham Kazen, D-23 did not vote.

FOREIGN AID — Adopted, 200 for and 172 against, an amendment cutting the fiscal 1979 non-military foreign aid bill by five percent. It is generally an across-the-board cut in the $3.736 billion bill, but exempts spending for food and nutrition programs in underdeveloped countries and for American schools and hospitals abroad. The Bill (HR 12222) was later passed.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., the sponsor, said: "If, indeed, we are ever to hold the line on spending anywhere, I would hope that this is one program ... with all the questions about mismanagement and waste, that could indeed be cut."

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wisc., an opponent, said "the bulk of this cut would come from the moneys for Israel and Egypt, both of whom need the help that we give them."

Members voting "yea" favor the cut.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan, and Milford voted "yea."

Wright, Jordan and Gonzales voted "nay."

Wilson, Teague, Eckhardt, Young, Krueger, and Runnels did not vote.

NEUTRON BOMB — Rejected, 90 for and 306 against, an amendment to knock funding for the neutron bomb out of the fiscal 1979 Department of Energy national security budget. The aftermath of the vote is that President Carter is free to order production of the bomb next year. Neutron bombs are tactical nuclear weapons that inflict most of their damage by enhanced radiation. The amendment was proposed to HR 11686, later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said that "after some 33 years of living on the edge of nuclear terror, we have become so careless or blasé or unconcerned about the future of humanity that we are willing to let nuclear weapons — neutron bombs — be used almost the same way hand grenades would be used."

Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va., an opponent, said: "The enhanced radiation weapon is a weapon of peace, not war. Its primary value is deterrent. It is well known that our adversary, the Soviet Union, can 'button up' against conventional nuclear fallout, against biological and chemical warfare agents. It has no defense against the neutron."

Members voting "yea" opposed production of the neutron bomb.

Eckhardt voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Kazen, Lujan and Milford voted "nay."

Wilson, Teague, Runnels, and Young did not vote.

F-15 SALE — Rejected, 44 for and 54 against, a resolution to cancel the $5 billion arms package that includes the sale of 60 F-15 fighter jets to Saudi Arabia. With this vote the Senate approved the transaction.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a supporter of the resolution and opponent of the sale, said: "I believe that the proposal represents a turning away by this country from our commitment to the security and the survival of Israel... (and) will hinder, rather than help, the prospects for peace in the Middle East."

Senators voting "nay" favored the arms sale.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D, John Tower, R and Harrison Schmitt, R, voted "nay."

Sen. Peter Domenici, R, voted "yea."

Complex Issue Snags Federal Privacy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's plan for a government-wide policy on privacy matters has been delayed because of the complexity of the subject matter, a House subcommittee was told Tuesday.

A special task force assigned to write a uniform policy had expected to produce final recommendations by May 31. But Charles Haslam, the Commerce Department's general counsel and coordinator of the task force, said an option paper on the subject won't be sent to the president for at least two months.

After the president reviews the proposal, a final draft must be developed and legislation to implement it must be written, he told a House government operations subcommittee.

"It sounds like we are talking about a year, or is that too optimistic?" asked Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., chairman of the subcommittee on government information and individual rights.

"I think it is too pessimistic," Haslam replied without offering a specific timetable.

Preyer pointed out that several bills to protect the privacy rights of individuals are already under consideration by Congress.

"Our concern is that legislation may be passed and, in effect, pre-empt you," he said.

AT&T To Adopt Price, Salary Restraint Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration's offensive against sharp increases in inflation gained ground Tuesday when American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the nation's largest corporation, announced it would adopt a limited program of price and salary restraints. But although AT&T's announcement followed salary-restraint pledges by such corporate giants as General Motors and Ford, there appeared to be no concerted effort by other major companies to fall in line. AT&T, whose Bell System services 121 million telephones in the United States, said it would freeze basic salaries for its top 430 executives for the rest of the year, although merit increases of less than 5 percent still would be allowed. The Bell System has some 946,000 workers, about 235,000 of them non-union management employees. The firm also said its Western Electric equipment manufacturing subsidiary would not increase prices for the rest of the year. "Clearly, this will help hold down the cost of telephone service to the public," AT&T Chairman John deButts said in a letter to President Carter. The firm said no estimates were available. In the letter, deButts reaffirmed his company's commitment to "an extraordinary and determined effort" to hold down price increases, "an effort that we shall intensify over the months ahead."

The announcement, although limited in scope, appeared to be an important achievement for the Carter administration and for Robert S. Strauss, the president's chief counselor on inflation. With inflation running at a 9.3 percent annual rate so far this year, Strauss has been trying to persuade corporations and labor unions to limit price increases and wage demands. So far, General Motors has pledged to hold executive pay hikes to less than 5 percent and Ford officials have promised to hold salary increases for executives "significantly below the rates for other company personnel and substantially below increases for (executive) employees over the past two years." In addition, after conferences with Strauss, Fieldcrest Mills, a North Carolina-based textile manufacturer, last week-end rescinded part of a 6 percent price increase it had announced for its towels. "This is a citizen's decision in trying to help," said William C. Battle, Fieldcrest president. "We couldn't sit idly by and watch as this inflation spiral goes on."

Fieldcrest was rewarded by Strauss with a statement praising it for showing "the kind of corporate citizenship of which we are proud and for which we will be looking to other American firms." Executives of many other firms, however, refused to commit themselves to specific actions such as those taken by AT&T, Fieldcrest, Ford and GM. "We, as a corporate entity, will do everything possible to hold down prices, but we'll have to operate in a practical, economical manner," said J. B. Fuqua, president of Fuqua Industries, an Atlanta-based conglomerate. "My guess is that it (AT&T's decision) will not get a great deal of attention in the business community."

"Decisions like that are up to our executive committee," said Irving Shapiro, chairman of the Du Pont Co. "I couldn't speculate on what they'll decide."

NEPAL NARROW

No more than 150 miles separate Nepal's northern and southern borders, yet the country has the widest altitude variation of any nation. Altitude ranges from 150 feet above sea level in the southern jungle to the world's tallest peak, Mt. Everest, at 29,028 feet.

Burns Calls For Top Rank Pay Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking federal officials should set an example in fighting inflation by cutting their own pay, former Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Tuesday.

In a written statement to the Senate Banking Committee, Burns advocated a voluntary 10 percent pay cut for the president, all his appointees and members of Congress. He also proposed a two-year pay freeze for top corporate executives and pay raises for federal employees of only half of what it would take for them to keep pace with pay in private industry.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the committee chairman, who is considering introducing pay-cut legislation, commented: "I wouldn't hold my breath until all those are implemented, especially Congress cutting its salary by 10 percent."

Burns, now associated with the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington research organization, had been asked for suggestions on how the government should fight inflation.

"When the federal government runs a deficit, it pumps more money into the pocketbooks of people than it takes out," Burns wrote. "That has always been a major cause of inflation, and this process has lately been speeded up."

Burns ticked off a list of recent government actions that he considers inflationary: an increased minimum wage, higher Social Security taxes, paying farmers to cut production, import restrictions on sensitive products, consumer-protection legislation and a tough environmental policy.

He praised Carter's decision to lower a proposed tax cut. But overall, Burns said, "the policies thus far announced by the administration fall short of being the strong and credible anti-inflation program that our country needs."

Rail Panelist Poerner Hits Sadler 'Disgrace'

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Railroad Commissioner John Poerner Tuesday brought his runoff campaign to Lubbock and said his opponent, former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler, "is an individual who disgraced the State of Texas."

Poerner, a former state representative from Hondo who was appointed to the commission last fall by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, referred to the 1969 censure of Sadler by the legislature because he refused to cooperate as land commissioner in an investigation of a sunken treasure operation he had supervised.

Poerner said he has been helped in the runoff by a primary campaign centering on improving his name identification across the state and by advice from fellow Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton, who defeated Sadler in a runoff two years ago.

"He told me to go to the people to get out the vote and make them understand that your opponent is an individual who disgraced the State of Texas," he said.

Poerner, 46, was director of the Governor's Office of Educational Resources before he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the retiring Jim Langdon.

Sadler, 70, was elected to the railroad commission in 1938, served four years, resigned to enter military service and later was elected land commissioner.

Poerner said in a news conference Tuesday that he also considers the age of his opponent an issue in the race.

"At age 46, it takes all of my strength, all of my stamina to keep going because it's not an 8-to-5 job," he said.

The winner will serve until 1980, when the Langdon term expires and a full six-year term will be filled.

Poerner said the advertising campaign during the primary to spell and pronounce his name in television ads and to get "Poerner" into a 30-second spot nine times helped him a great deal.

He got 408,283 votes to the 656,069 Sadler got in the May 6 Democratic primary. Sadler also led Newton in the primary but lost in the runoff.

Poerner expects a much lighter turnout June 3 but is not sure which, if either, of the candidates it will favor.

"I think the people who go to the polls June 3 are going to be much better informed," he said.

He spent about $250,000 for the primary and will spend about half that much for the runoff, he said.

The Poerner group appeared Tuesday in Brownfield, Levelland, Andrews and Odessa after leaving Lubbock. It is scheduled to be in Snyder and other cities and towns on the way back to Austin today and be in Texarkana and East Texas Thursday and in El Paso Friday.

Sadler, well-known in Texas after 40 years in politics, reported spending only $3,600 in the primary.

Poerner is concentrating his campaign now in areas like Lubbock, he said, where there are runoffs in local races and June 3 voting probably will be heaviest.

Sadler has accused Poerner of a conflict of interest in holding oil, gas and lignite interests, and Poerner said Tuesday that he owns only land with mineral rights but has no oil, gas or lignite interests.

"What I own is my land," he said. "I have never purchased an oil or gas lease in my life."

A KILN GROWS IN LUBBOCK — Three kilns will be built in this picturesque spot overlooking Mackenzie Park. They will serve to fire pottery constructed by hand or on wheels in a new pottery center to be located in the old city Parks and Recreation Department offices on East Broadway. (Staff Photo)

Pottery Center Set For Mackenzie Park

A pottery center is slated to open this summer in Mackenzie Park.

The exact date depends on supplies and the availability of city Parks and Recreation Department employees for renovation work at the old department offices — just east of Fair Park.

Three kilns — reduction, salt glaze and raku — are under construction now by James C. Watkins, center supervisor, and Sara Waters, a ceramics instructor at Texas Tech, who will teach a class when the facility is open.

Both obtained their master of fine arts degrees from Indiana University.

Purpose of the center, Watkins noted in his project description, is "to enhance the students present school experiences as well as the quality of leisure time enjoyed by the citizens of Lubbock."

It will provide studio facilities for the experienced potter and classroom instruction for the interested beginners, Watkins said.

The new pottery center "will fill a void that has existed a long time," Jim Underwood, recreation supervisor for parks and recreation, noted.

"We are putting more emphasis on the culture crafts," he added. "We have several in music and are moving into more."

All age groups will be able to use the facility which will provide professional and technical services to those involved with the ceramic arts.

Activities will include class programs, workshops and ceramic art festivals. Classes will meet twice a week for three hours while workshops will center on salt firing, raku firing, stoneware firing, smoke firing and clay forming demonstrations.

Festivals will include pottery sales, slide lectures and work in conjunction with the ceramic workshops.

Clays and other materials will be available at the center. This is the first expansion into visual arts for the parks program which in the past has had ceramic painting classes at some community centers.

OVERLOOK COMING UP—Vance Holliday, field director of the Lubbock Lake Project, watches as county commissioner Alton Brazell positions a last log in a culvert crossing the Lubbock Lake Site. The picturesque bridge is part of the walkway being prepared so visitors may view excavation at the site from above. It leads around the site from the interpretation center now awaiting exhibit displays before being ready for the public. (Staff Photo)

Lake Site Tours Set Saturday

An international crew is launching the summer's exploration into the layers of history preserved at the Lubbock Lake Site.

One member from Canada and one from Taiwan will be among 25 greeting visitors taking the first site tours Saturday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Only one area will be under investigation by Saturday, field director Vance Holliday stated.

The crew will be investigating a historic level, "probably Apache," in an area which in the past has yielded evidence of man back 12,000 years.

One of the most productive areas of the site, the "wall" was begun to show a complete sequence of the ages at the site, which has been placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Last summer, a projectile point from the Plainview culture was discovered in sands about 10,000 years old.

Previous research has turned up Folsom and Clovis level material and butchered bones of a small horse of about 15,000 years ago.

Summer research, conducted under the auspices of The Museum of Texas Tech, is funded by the Texas Historical Commission and the Center for Field Research (Earthwatch).

Four of the 25 crew members already on the site are from the Earthwatch program. The site is just north of the Clovis Highway at Loop 289.

State Lions Club Meet Set To Begin Thursday

More than 3,000 Lions Club members are expected to begin arriving in Lubbock Thursday for the opening of the four-day District 2-T2 and state convention scheduled in Memorial Civic Center.

A cabinet awards dinner is scheduled as the lid-lifter at 6 p.m. Thursday at Lake Ransom Canyon, according to Art Cook of Lubbock, district governor.

Eleven city Lions clubs will co-host the sessions.

"This will be the most fantastic convention we've ever put on," Cook said as plans were being completed. Cook is a member of the Lubbock Lions Club, largest in the nation.

One of the highlights will be a special tribute to retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock, also a member of Lubbock Lions Club.

Mahon, who is stepping down at the end of this year after more than 44 years in the House of Representatives, will be honored at the district governor's banquet at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the civic center.

A limited number of tickets will be made available to the public at $7.50 each. Tickets may be purchased at the Lubbock Lions Club office in Monterey Center through Thursday. On Friday and Saturday, they will be available at the civic center. Further information may be obtained by calling 797-4359.

District and state queen contests and a separate slate of ladies' activities, including a shopping trip to South Plains Mall and tour of the Ranching Heritage Center, are on tap. However, ladies are welcome at all of the Lions meetings and activities, Cook said.

Margaret's

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
Christopher Andersen has just written a book advancing a theory I've always believed — your name can make you a winner or a loser.
It's true. I never knew a "Ginger" who wasn't born with pom-pom hands, a "Ruth" who didn't iron tennis shoe tongues, or an "Elvira" who didn't smile without a piece of spinach wrapped around her front tooth.
Sure enough, in Andersen's book, "The Name Game," Ginger means "cute," Ruth means "earth mother" and Elvira translates to "drab and slow."
Most people hate their names. They're always pronouncing them, spelling them, explaining them, defending them, or changing them. When you think of it, it makes good sense. Can you imagine a man tall in the saddle with a patch over one eye holding reins in his teeth and guns blazing from both hands by the name of Marion Morrison? Which is probably why Marion Morrison became John (trustworthy, very many) Wayne.
And there has to be something catchier than Salvatore Bono and Cheryl Lynn La Piere who opted for Sonny (athletic) and Cher (a legendary one-word name).
I always felt Erma was a fat name and rated in popularity right under Popeye and Iodine. It probably shaped my destiny because with a name like Erma, you have to laugh first and loudest. Given a choice, I would have preferred to be named Astrid (Luscious). But I didn't have the thighs for it — not even at birth.
How different things might have been if I had been named Astrid. I would never have dated Ellis (lackluster), Melvin (wilted), Rollo (mama's boy) or Lou (gay).
I would have hung out with Bart (very macho), Kent (a big winner) and Hank (virile and active).
I would never have been intimidated by everyone else in my neighborhood with a nickname. Names like Wheezie, Bunny, Ducky, Happy and all those other cute dwarf's names. They could have called me...surely they would have thought of some better than what I got — "The Mound."
It was with some reluctance that I turned to find what connotation my name really had in Andersen's book. On page 151, there it was: Erma: sexy, but listless.
I'm not sure, but I think one cancels out the other.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just heard a fascinating program on the radio. Unfortunately, I tuned in too late to catch the identity of the person speaking, but he came up with some interesting facts that I'd like to pass along.
First: It is not true that women are worse drivers than men. Their safety record is better — up until the age of 65. Then they are about even.
Fifty percent of all fatal traffic accidents are alcohol-related.
The best drivers in the world are the Swedes. The Japanese come in second. Tied for third place are the Americans and the British. The booby prize goes to the Italians. They are the worst. The French are not much better.
In the United States, the poorest drivers are physicians — and among them, psychiatrists have 25 percent more crack-ups than surgeons. The best drivers are laborers. Why? Nobody seems to know. — I Never Ride If I Can Walk
Dear Never: Your signature was also good advice.
Walking is not only healthier than riding, it is also safer. And in the same vein, your chances for survival are greater if you travel by air than by car. (That last statement should be especially noted by the white-knuckle crowd.) Thanks for the fill-in.
Dear Ann Landers: May I unload my pet gripe on you? I speak for thousands of secretaries across the land. It's the telephone manners of people who call the boss.
Some of the callers phone several times a day. They start off with, "Is HE there?" or "Where is HE?" Or, "May I talk to HIM?"
Although they know us well they never ask, "How are you?" or call us by name. Of course we get no "Please" or "Thank you."
How do we deal with such people? — Hired Hands
Dear Hands: Nothing accentuates rudeness like courtesy. Put extra honey in your voice and pour it on.
When asked, "Is HE there?" reply, "Good morning. — Yes, Mr. J is here. I'll put you through right away. One moment, please."
Even the dullest clod will catch on eventually.
Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for "Frothing In Fresno," who objected to cards that include the names of family pets along with the children.
It is apparent that "Frothing" does not have a pet, doesn't like pets, and is envious of people who enjoy them.
Friends frequently send my cat, Minerva, cards and gifts on her birthday and on holidays. Relatives always inquire about her and extend greetings when they phone.
Minerva received a letter from the daughter of a former President of the United States, a note from the secretary of a U.S. Senator written on behalf of his own cat, and many cards from people of high station. Some days Minerva gets more mail than I do.
I hope "Frothing's" friends quit sending cards and letters. She doesn't deserve a word. — Minerva's Gramma
Dear Gramma: I hope Frothing sees your letter and is properly chastened. She's got some nerve knocking a family pet. Take that and that and that, you old meanie!

West's double of four spades was based on his expectation of two trump tricks plus at least two more to come from his partner who had bid at the three level.
East did produce his two when his ace and queen of diamonds went through. Then East led back the three of clubs just in case West held a possible trick in that suit.
South rose with his king and nonchalantly placed the four of spades on the table. He could tell from the bidding and the smirk on West's face that West held two trumps tricks and that low-spade play was designed as a swindle.
It did work. West thought and finally played low on the theory that East held the singleton ace.
When the eight of spades won, South claimed the doubled game contract.
"When you have the setting trick in your hand," said East reasonably, "You're a moron."

PAUL J. HILL'S TOMATO CHEESE PIE

1/3 cup margarine or butter, softened
¾ cup instant mashed potato flakes
¾ cup all-purpose or unbleached flour*
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup water

FILLING:
1 ½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar or American cheese
1 cup instant mashed potato flakes
1 medium tomato, coarsely chopped
5 eggs
1 ½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. chopped chives
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. corn flake crumbs, if desired

Heat oven to 350 degrees. (Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off.) Cut margarine into potato flakes, flour, cheese and salt; mix until crumbly. Add water; stir just until dough holds together. Press into ungreased 9 or 10-inch pie plate; flute edge. Prick crust generously with fork; bake 10 minutes.
Reserve ½ cup cheese; sprinkle remainder on partially baked crust. Sprinkle 1 ½ cup potato flakes over cheese. Spoon tomatoes onto flakes; top with reserved cheese. Beat eggs, sour cream, chives and salt until well blended; pour over cheese. Sprinkle with crumbs.
Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned and knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. 6 servings.

* Self-rising flour is not recommended.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

This is one for coffee lovers. We have one of the new large-mouthed quick-drip coffee makers. A plastic container to be used to fill the pot with water came with it, but I don't use it as I can pour water from the glass pot fast enough. Result: One less thing to bother with.

I also do not use the lid to the pot — as it has a hole in the center — for two reasons: (1) One more thing to bother with, and (2) Explained in the next paragraph:

After the coffee has finished dripping, the grounds basket is removed and the brewer turned off. I pour everyone a cup and reach for a cereal bowl.

The bowl is placed in the large-mouthed opening of the pot as soon as possible. It acts as a tight-fitting lid.

The regular lid allows the coffee to evaporate faster, resulting in rather bitter-tasting coffee, to me at least. Also it doesn't keep the coffee as hot as it should.

With the cereal bowl in place, the steam seems to be prevented from escaping so fast, thereby keeping the coffee hotter — and fresher.

Be sure to use an ovenproof bowl — don't use a plastic one. Using this method I find coffee made at 7 a.m. is still good at 11 a.m.

After that, the coffee begins to have an off-taste but, by that time, there's not enough left for another cup, anyway. — J. Ellis

I've tried everything from setting another pie pan in the crust, filling the crust with dried beans before baking, even baking the crust on the outside of the pie pan.

None of these has been foolproof. I don't believe it is the pie crust recipe either, as I have tried several different kinds.

Any suggestions would be appreciated as this is very frustrating. — M.W.

I couldn't agree more! One dear lady once suggested making the crust slightly larger than the pan — let it sit for an hour or so, adjust to fit the pan, then bake. This does seem to help, but perhaps someone might know a better way.

If so, be a sweetie and share your secret with the rest of us. I have this problem on occasion and have never known the real reason. Help! Love — Heloise

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why does acid come up from my stomach? It is bitter and burns my throat, choking me. It stops when I drink a glass of cold water. I am awakened from my sleep by this. While there is no pain, it is quite disconcerting. I feel fine and have no such problems during the day. Is it something I eat in the daytime that causes this? I am 60 years old, do not drink or smoke, and I am otherwise trouble-free. Can this be serious? — H.H.

This is called gastro-esophageal reflux, the splashing upward of stomach acid into the lower gullet. It often occurs when lying down, but also may be noticed when bending or stooping. The first possibility that comes to mind is, of course, a hiatal hernia — more specifically a sliding one. This is an abnormal gap at the point where the gullet passes through the diaphragm. A bit of the stomach can protrude and recede through this space. I said it could indicate that. Not necessarily. In fact, most patients with H.H. do not have reflux. And the reflux can occur without any such hernia. A weakened sphincter muscle in the lower gullet can be to blame, not performing its main task of closing off the pathway into the stomach. Some people have shorter gullets or narrower ones, and either condition can place extra pressure on the sphincter, leading to reflux.

If this occurs regularly, you should have a thorough examination that includes a barium-swallow X-ray. This will show up any irregularity in your gullet. Examination of the matter in the esophagus will also detect presence of stomach contents. The chief immediate threat is of esophagitis (inflammation of the gullet wall) which can occur with chronic irritation at all times. You can't stop the production of stomach acid, which goes on continuously, but you can minimize it, especially at night. Avoid substances such as coffee and tobacco. Fats, chocolate, and highly-spiced foods. System-wide diseases, specifically scleroderma, can be involved in such reflux, and should be investigated if physical abnormalities, like the hiatal hernia mentioned, are ruled out.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 75, a female. About 18 months ago I had a biopsy that showed I have idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis. I have never smoked. I had an attack of severe bronchitis once. Can this be involved? Please explain this condition for me and what can be done for it. — Mrs. J.R.S.

We should try to cut that medical term down to size. "Pulmonary" refers to the lungs, of course. "Fibrosis" is a scarring of tissue, and "idiopathic" means the cause of the lung scarring is not detectable. Your previous bronchitis attack might have caused it, especially if it was a prolonged one. Tuberculosis is a more common cause.

Dosages of steroid drugs have been used to dilate the obstructed lung tubes and help control symptoms. Your letter tells me very little except that you are told you have this. If you have severe shortness of breath, you should seek special treatment and advice. The goal is to keep the lungs as clear as possible. There may be special breathing exercises you can do, which your doctor can suggest.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long does it take for caffeine to affect my system after a cup of coffee? How long does it stay in the system to affect me?

Caffeine is a very mild stimulant and you may never really notice its effects. The effect, if there is one, should occur within an hour after drinking your cup of coffee, and it may last two or three hours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes black tongue? My son has it, and his doctor is baffled and says nothing can be done for it. — A.T.

It's usually caused by food debris collecting in the tiny crevices between the papillae, the projections you can see on the tongue if you look at the surface carefully. Common causes of discoloration are iron preparations and smoking. You can scrape the material off with the edge of a spoon or with a soft toothbrush. A dilute solution of hydrogen peroxide and water (half and half) can help.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Village Continues To Prosper

Zoar, Ohio (AP) — A Swiss medium once prophesied that the village of Zoar would "prosper, but would last only as many years as a man's age."

Indeed, the village went broke after 73 years.

But the medium did not see all of the future. The heart of this once-thriving religious community of German Separatists still exists on the banks of the Tuscarawas River.

White picket fences border the Garden of Happiness, a symbol of the religious life in Zoar, which was founded in 1817 and went broke in 1892.

A spruce tree at the center of the garden is said to represent everlasting life; a hedge around it signifies Heaven and 12 junipers stand for the Apostles. Twelve walks were put in to denote the ways to heaven and intersecting paths recall worldly wanderings of those not saved.

Thirty-six original village houses are still occupied, some by descendants of the Zoarites. Many of the structures have been restored by the Ohio Historical Society.

A restored greenhouse produces the same oranges and lemons that made the community famous over a century ago.

Several buildings on the 5,500-acre site are open to visitors. They include the home of Joseph Baumeler, the Zoarite leader who brought 300 religious refugees here from Wuertemberg, Germany, where they had been persecuted for opposing the official Lutheran Church.

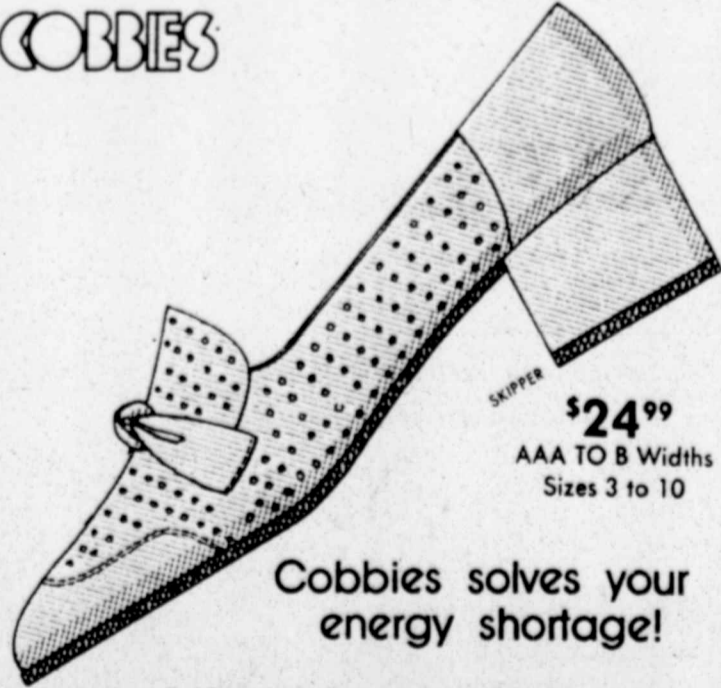

Bright white fences lining the shady streets, lawns, brick walks and gardens create a tranquil setting in this community 10 miles south of Canton.

At one time the community produced its own food, farm tools, stoves, wagons, pottery, tile, lumber and wools.

Advent of the railroad made many young Zoarites envious of the world outside their village, and so many left that the community failed.

It now exists largely as a historic site for visitors who roam the streets and view life as it was in another era.

Funds Set To Curb Domestic Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal funds to help curb what was called a national epidemic of family violence are authorized under legislation passed overwhelmingly by the House Tuesday.

The measure would authorize up to $15 million for the first year to supplement resources of local centers trying to prevent family violence and to help the victims. No more than $50,000 or 25 percent of a local center's budget, whichever is higher, could be provided from federal funds.

The bill would create a national clearinghouse on domestic violence information.

It also would create an Office on Domestic Violence within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and a Federal Council on Domestic Violence that would include at least five victims of family violence.

Shelters for battered wives and other victims of family violence have been opened in many cities in the last two years, patterned after emergency havens in Britain.

"During the 20 years I spent as a social worker, I saw women and children burnt, beaten and battered," said Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md. "This is a national problem that demands a national response."

Rep. Newton Steers Jr., R-Md., said violence between family members "has reached epidemic proportions. It knows no boundaries or social or economic barriers."

The bill passed by voice vote, with only a smattering of "no" votes heard. A similar bill is pending in the Senate.

Estimates of the number of battered wives range from three million to 25 million. Until recent years, victims seldom pressed charges or told their stories publicly and the problem was assumed to be isolated to the poor.

In 1975, one-fourth of all murder victims were killed by a family member and half of those were killed by a spouse. In addition, one-fifth of all police fatalities occur during intervention into family disputes.

Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, called the bill a candidate for the worst of the year. He said it would result in another encroachment of the federal government on local and state jurisdictions.

He blamed family violence on a "morally bankrupt educational system" that is prohibited from teaching children moral values or permitting prayers in school.

Lo-Vaca Settlement Gets Okay From Hill

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General John Hill recommended approval of the Lo-Vaca settlement Tuesday, provided the Texas Railroad Commission makes four important changes.

Hill said the risks of prolonged court fights that would follow rejection of the settlement persuaded him it would be in the best interest of customers of the financially troubled Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

"This is no glowing endorsement," Hill said in a long, written analysis filed with the commission.

He estimated Lo-Vaca customers would get about $200 million in refunds, compared with the $1.6 billion in refunds ordered by the commission last Dec. 12. Lo-Vaca and its parent firm, Coastal States Producing Co., have claimed the Dec. 12 order would bankrupt them.

"Because of the risks and delays of litigation, and the fact that it is unlikely the Coastal companies could come up with that much money, the settlement financial benefits are preferable, on balance (to the Dec. 12 order)," Hill said.

He added that the settlement had non-financial benefits in that "it would separate Lo-Vaca from those in Coastal who previously mismanaged it and would improve the odds on future gas supplies."

Tuesday was the deadline for Hill and Lo-Vaca's customers to make recommendations to the commission, which has a final say in the matter.

Several customers of Lo-Vaca had indicated they would not accept the settlement unless Hill approved it.

"Now is the time to put this matter to rest," Hill said.

Under the settlement, Coastal States Gas Corp., parent firm for Lo-Vaca, would spin off Lo-Vaca's pipeline activities into a new company controlled by the customers. The commission would set new and higher rates for the new company, to be called the Valero Corp. There would be partial refunds to Lo-Vaca customers, realized mainly through the sale of Valero securities. Coastal States would undertake a $180 million to $230 million gas search program for the new company and sell it the gas found at below market prices.

Hill recommended the commission order these changes before approving the settlement.

— Make the terms of the spin-off of Lo-Vaca more favorable to the customers by exchanging assets for Coastal preferred stock at fair market value instead of net book value.

Hill cited testimony that fair market value of a refinery that would be swapped for Coastal stock was $150 million, compared with a net book value of $120 million.

— Change the settlement's provision for a 100 percent pass-through of gas purchase costs plus a 10-cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf) "spread" to a smaller pass-through. Hill spoke in terms of 85 percent pass-through and a 12-cent spread but left the exact figures to the commission.

"This proposal conflicts directly with commission policy that 100 percent gas cost pass-throughs provide less economic incentives for pipelines to bargain down gas costs than lower pass-throughs," Hill said.

— Insist on flow-through of all financial benefits to ultimate consumers, rather than to major customers such as Lone Star Gas and Southern Union Gas, which bought gas from Lo-Vaca for resale.

The settlement would give Lone Star's stockholders the first $40 million in benefits coming to the company from the settlement. Southern Union's stockholders would receive $2.3 million before consumers benefited.

— Forbid any rate increase in the first year "in the interests of public confidence."

Dallas, Fort Worth and other cities have urged the commission to modify the settlement by keeping Lone Star's present 85 percent pass-through and requiring Lone Star to give its customers all financial benefits of the settlement.

All of Lo-Vaca's major customers, including San Antonio and Austin, have approved the settlement.

Under the settlement, Lo-Vaca and minor subsidiaries of Coastal would be the main components of Valero.

A settlement trust would be established from assets of Coastal Corp. and Valero for the benefit of customers. An Austin state district judge would appoint the trustees.

Heartline

(Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: My mother is 83 years old. She lives with my wife and I because she cannot take care of herself at all. We have recently purchased a bath lift for her to help her get in and out of the tub. Will this be covered under Medicare? — A. S.

A bath lift is not a covered service of the medical portion of Medicare. This would be considered a piece of durable medical equipment.

Under the law, payment may be made under the medical insurance part of the Medicare program for rental or purchase of durable medical equipment used in a patient's home. For purposes of this part of the program, durable medical equipment has been defined as equipment which can withstand repeated use, is primarily and customarily used to serve a medical purpose, and generally is not useful to a person in the absence of illness or injury.

Although a bath lift for use in a beneficiary's home may be useful in assisting a person to enter and exit a tub, it is primarily a convenience item of equipment. Accordingly, this equipment does not satisfy that part of the definition of durable medical equipment which requires that such items should primarily and customarily serve a therapeutic purpose.

For people who are now on the Medicare program or will soon be turning 65 and going on Medicare, Heartline now has available a new 1978 version of "Heartline's Guide to Medicare." This book is written in easy to understand question and answer form, but the 1978 issue has much more information. Included in the new issue are the new deductibles for part A medical insurance, more items and conditions that Medicare covers, a more concise explanation of reasonable charges and detailed instructions on how to fill out your Medicare claim form.

You can receive the 1978 edition by sending $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. This book is completely guaranteed and if you are not satisfied your money will be cheerfully refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: My wife and I are over 65. We are planning to travel to Europe this summer. We know that Medicare will not cover any medical attention we receive there, but we wonder if you could give us any information on medical care in foreign countries — C. M.

One of the main problems when traveling abroad is the need for medical care if it should occur. Even though Medicare will not pay medical bills while traveling abroad, it does add a measure of confidence if you know a doctor who speaks English. If you will write to the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travelers, Empire State Bldg., 350 Fifth Ave., Suite 5620, New York, N.Y. 10001, they will send you a booklet with names of doctors in foreign countries who speak English. They also enclose other pertinent information concerning foreign travel.

HEARTLINE: I am a veteran with a 60 per cent service-connected disability. I have a severely handicapped child who will be 18 years of age Oct. 1, 1978. What should I do to continue to receive an additional allowance for this child?—A. M.

Send a medical statement to your nearest VA office, between July and October, 1978, which describes the type of disability, giving the facts, symptoms, and diagnosis.

Carter Said Killing Merchant Marine

GALVESTON (AP) — The director of the Galveston Wharves says the Carter administration has put the U.S. merchant marine "up for sale to foreign interests."

"And, a couple of screwball agencies in Washington are killing off the merchant marine."

C.S. Devoy, speaking at a Monday night banquet, said confused merchant marine and port officers "don't know where the hell to go in Washington" to talk about their problems.

Devoy said the administration and its agencies "are selling Alaskan crude oil to Japan, forcing Americans to buy Persian Gulf crude at exorbitant prices, and Russian ships are in Galveston unloading bananas."

The Carter administration, he said, has defeated efforts to carry more American cargoes on U.S. ships and to subsidize construction of American ships, thus idling 40,000 shipyard workers.

Meanwhile, he said, the Environmental Protection Agency and Occupational Safety and Health Administration have taken over the Army Corps of Engineers, stymieing port improvements.

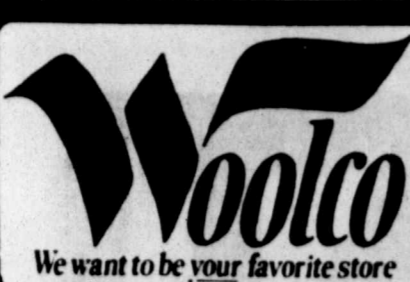

Funds For Library Sought With Sale

CROSBYTON (Special) — The Friends of the Library are collecting books from donors to be sold in the Pioneer Memorial Building at a Book Fair June 10.

The Fair is planned to help finance the construction of a new library on the southwest corner of the square.

Donors contributing fiction, non-fiction, cookbooks, posters, magazines, comic books and children's books with paper or hard backs, may bring the contributions to the Pioneer Memorial Building.

Those unable to transport the books, or volunteers to help price and sell the books, should call Gail Dupuy at 675-2717 or Verna Anne Wheeler at 675-2331.

Q. — I've heard about "flower bonds" but can't find out what they are. I've been told that they can help save on federal estate taxes.

A. — That's correct. The U.S. Treasury has certain bonds still outstanding which sell at a discount from face value but are acceptable at full face value when used to pay federal state taxes.

A recent study by Bache Halsey Stuart Shields lists those still outstanding. (As previous issues matured, they have not been replaced. In fact, the most recent issue was 18 years ago.)

Here is the latest list of Treasury issues still qualifying as "flower bonds":

The 4 percent issue maturing 2-15-80; 2 1/2%, maturing 4-1-80; the 3 1/2% due 11-15-80; 3 1/4% of 6-15-83; 3 1/4% of 5-15-85; 4 1/4% of 5-14-85; 3 1/4% of 2-15-90; 4 1/4% of 5-15-92; 4% of 2-15-93; 4 1/4% of 5-15-94; 3% of 2-15-95; 3 1/2% of 11-15-98.

Any decision concerning purchase of flower bonds for estate purposes should be made only after consultation with your attorney, the Bache study points out. As a rule, these bonds should be purchased when one has reached age 65 or older or "is seriously ill." (Flower bonds do not come under the "contemplation of death" provisions of the estate tax laws.)

It should be noted that these are not simple instruments. While there is a savings in getting $1,000 estate tax credit for a bond for which one paid say, $850, the appreciation is subject to estate tax. However, there is a net saving which you should take a few minutes to determine before you buy.

Incidental financial notes from all over: Runzheimer and Co., consultants on business travel expenses, reports that costs have advanced 12.4 percent in the last 12 months and 40 percent since 1974. Studying 100 cities, the company finds that a single lodging and three meals which cost $28.05 in 1974 rose steadily to $39.23 for 1977...The American Council of Life Insurance reports that an average 20-year-old single man in the work force today can expect to work 41.5 years, compared to 41.2 years for a 20-year-old single woman.

Q. — I am in my early 70s, a widow, with no need to leave an estate. I have $10,000 in securities, $15,000 in savings securities earning 7 1/2% and $4,000 in my checking account. I owe $9,000 at 6 1/2% percent on my home. The mortgage costs me $180 a month. Should I pay it off, even if it leaves me with only $6,000 in savings?

A. — Ordinarily, I would be in no rush to wipe out a 6 1/2% percent mortgage. It's a low rate. But if you have a current budget problem, that $180 a month payment could be a hardship since it represents more than 27 percent of our gross income.

The $9,000 you are keeping in savings at 7 1/2 percent is earning you $675 a year income. The $9,000 mortgage is costing you an outlay of $2,160 a year income. The $9,000 mortgage is costing you an outlay of $2,160 a year. It's as simple as that.

If you would feel better with that $15,000 remaining in savings, wipe out the mortgage with funds now in common shares.

And, finally, why are you making the bank a gift of about $300 a year on that $4,000 checking account? Or do you write so many checks that it's worth $25 a month for the service?

Q. — You recently wrote about a woman who paid $20,000 cash for a $84-a-month lifetime annuity. I think it was near-fraud to sell her 5.84 percent income for her lifetime only when banks are paying up to 7 1/2-7 3/4 percent with no diminution of assets.

A. — And so say I.

Reuters Resolves Shareholder Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Reuters, the international news organization, has reached an out-of-court settlement with a shareholder who filed a $30 million lawsuit alleging securities law violations by officers of its U.S. subsidiary, IDR Inc.

Reuters said Monday that Robert Nagel, a shareholder and former employee of IDR, had returned his 43,500 shares of IDR stock and received $180,000. Nagel brought the suit after IDR began arbitration to force him to finish certain patent obligations and assignments.

Nagel had claimed that he was not given the percentage of stock he requested when IDR, a producer of information retrieval systems and equipment in Farmingdale, N.Y., was set up in 1973. Nagel left IDR in 1975 after developing a high-speed data retrieval system.

Under the terms of the settlement, he fulfilled his patent obligations and withdrew all claims against Reuters and IDR.

Crane Chili Cook-Off Slated

CRANE (Special) — "Worst chili" is one of six categories open to contestants in the seventh annual National Fraternal Order of Eagles Chili Cook-off to be held June 3 at the Hilltop, six miles south of here. "From past experience, we know that there are lots of good chili cooks around this country and we urge all chili cooks to come to compete in the cook-off," Daryl Williams, cook-off chairman, said. "Last year we had 20 contestants and we hope we will have even more this year," Williams said. First, second and third place trophies will be awarded in the categories of Eagle (open to Eagle members only), Auxiliary (open only to Eagle Auxiliary members), Open (open to any contestants), and Showmanship. One trophy will be awarded for the Worst Chili and to the contestant who travels the farthest to enter the event which will be just off U.S. Highway 385.

Big Spring Council Rejects Plea For District Attorney Fund Aid

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING — The Big Spring City Council Tuesday acknowledged a need for additional help in the district attorney's office but turned down a request to aid in funding. District Attorney Rick Hamby appeared before the council to ask that the city pay 35 percent of the salary and car allowance for a special investigator for his office. An additional 35 percent would be paid by Howard County. The remaining 30 percent by Martin County. The proposed salary was $1,000 a month, with a $200 a month vehicle allowance. "With the advent of the 'speedy trial law,' the state has to be ready to present a case within 120 days; 90 days, if the suspect is in jail," Hamby said. "There is a definite need for a special investigator in our office. We'll get the job done whether we get the help or not, but the city would benefit from this proposal." Although the city council denied Hamby's request, it offered to support the district attorney in any way possible to find an alternate source of funding for more help. City manager Harry Nagel said it had never been a function of the city to support the district attorney's office. Councilmen did approve a motion to combine its tax office with that of Howard County. The consideration had been tabled for two council meetings after objections were raised to the merger by local abstractors. The merged offices will be under the direction of Zirah Bednar.

Hail Balloting Decision Due By Mid-June

AUSTIN — The long-standing request by Plains Weather Improvement Association Inc. of Plainview for a determination on the legal effect of an election held Nov. 8, 1977, on hail suppression work in Hale County may be settled June 12.

The Texas Water Commission has set a hearing for 1 p.m. that day on the question of whether the election prevents issuance of a new permit for weather modification work within areas which approved such activity.

No oral arguments are expected to be permitted at the hearing, sources in the TWC and Department of Water Resources indicate.

Opponents and proponents of the project have until May 31 to submit written briefs in the matter.

Bruce Bigelow, general counsel for the department, reports he has prepared two orders for consideration by the three-member commission — one order granting and one order denying the request.

Bigelow notes that some apparent conflict in language within the weather modification act has made it difficult to resolve the legal issues involved.

The three members of the commission have held up action on the matter in order to attempt to become familiar with the situation, commission spokesmen said.

Combine Aids Arab Arms Sale

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Arabs have gone into the arms business in the Middle East and the fledgling industry already is selling its Western-designed military hardware in a half-dozen countries.

The Cairo-based consortium is welding Egyptian manpower and factories, Western technology and Arab oil dollars in an effort to lessen Arab dependence on foreign arms makers.

Production and diversification of the four-nation Arab arms consortium still lags far behind that of Israel, which produces and sells jet fighters, tanks, missiles and a wide range of other weapons.

The Arabs see the gap narrowing significantly in the 1980s, and they view the project as making them less vulnerable to foreign embargo.

Egypt, the key producer of the consortium, is well versed in the effects of an embargo. The Kremlin cut back arms shipments to Egypt in 1972 after President Anwar Sadat ousted Soviet military advisers and shut the tap in 1975, because of mounting Egyptian arms debts.

Rockets, bombs, armored vehicles and automatic weapons are rolling off the assembly lines of factories run by the Arab Organization for Industrialization.

AOI, an independent, profit-making company, says it plans to produce under license American Motors Corp., Jeeps, British helicopters and anti-tank weapons and by early 1983 a French-designed jet fighter.

The Arab group started in August 1975 after Egypt and the oil-rich Persian Gulf nations of Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates kicked in equal shares totalling $1.04 billion. The oil exporting states put their share in petrodollars. Egypt paid its $260 million share in existing factories.

AOI board chairman Ashraf Marwan says, "We are trying to establish an industrial base and train our people to be less dependent. If we do this, we will have the momentum to do anything."

Marwan, a tall, cigar-smoking chemical engineer with a doctorate in explosives, was interviewed recently at his office atop the 13-story, ultramodern AOI headquarters in suburban Cairo.

Marwan, son-in-law of the late Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, developed wide-ranging political connections in the Arab world through his last job as a trouble-shooter for President Sadat.

He has used those political ties to mold AOI — and its 15,000 factory workers — into what Western experts say is an efficient operation, free of the bureaucracy that plagues many large Arab endeavors.

"The first thing we did was fire 1,600 workers and as a result we tripled production," Marwan said. He cites the move as an example of the free hand his management has after the four countries approved changes in their laws so the company could act independently.

He said profits at the end of 1977, the first full year of production, were $41 million on sales to countries including Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Somalia.

Prices and production figures are not available so it is difficult to tell if AOI is competitive with major foreign arms producers.

Northrop Corp., one of America's major arms producers, reported earnings of $66 million last year on sales of $1.6 billion. Information on Israeli arms production is tightly guarded by the government.

A gold-embossed, hardbound catalogue in three languages lists the hundreds of items being sold by AOI.

One of the largest items already in production is the Walid armored car. Made from a West German design, it can carry 10 fully equipped soldiers about 400 miles at a top speed of 50 miles an hour. The troop carrier already has been deployed with the Egyptian army.

Marwan says AOI's objective is to market most products regionally since technology-sharing agreements with Western companies limit sales of advanced weapons to the Mideast.

He says AOI now plans to push production of advanced weapons. By early next year, he hopes to build the Swingfire anti-tank missile in conjunction with the British Aircraft Corp., and a helicopter developed by Britain's Westland Co. and Rolls Royce.

AOI has a contract to build French Alpha jet trainers, which many arms analysts consider a good fighter in its own right. Marwan says the company will start making Mirage F-2000 interceptors in early 1983.

Stunt Driver 'Nuckles' Down To Risky Business

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In movie jargon, a gag can be anything from leaping out a tenth-floor window or jumping through a plate glass door.

But for 36-year old Paul Nuckles, it's crashing cars, and he says business is so good he's had only 10 days off in the past five years.

"The more expensive the car, the better," he says. "I finished a film in Mexico where I totaled two Rolls. On the last jump of the picture, one of them landed on its flat grill and stayed there, sticking straight up."

He grins as he talks, slumping against a plywood bench in an old garment district building, surrounded by artifacts of a television movie in progress.

He got into the business by accident, he says, learning the basics from some friendly stuntmen at a desert motorcycle race when he was 18.

In 1967, he worked on the chase scene in "Bullitt," the effects of which are still felt in the film industry.

"After 'Bullitt' came out, every director in town wanted to go out and shoot chase scenes. There weren't enough guys around that knew how to do them."

He credits two sources to perfecting his driving skills. "I guess you could say Hertz and Avis taught me how to drive. The director would give me a call and tell me what he wanted."

Then I'd go out and rent the same kind I would be using, take it out to Whitman Airport in the Valley and run the tires off it."

While rental cars serve as test vehicles for spin-outs and high-speed driving, crashes are trial-and-error for all but a few of the top coordinators, he says.

"It used to be you'd set up everything and hope it would turn out the way you planned. Now I know the techniques and have the equipment so it's almost scientific."

One of his favorite devices is "the cannon," a tube mounted in the trunk of the car and loaded with black powder and a short section of telephone pole. As the car starts its slide, the charge is electrically ignited and flips the auto into the air.

He's also designed a series of ramps which are handy in making a car become airborne.

Care is taken with each car used. If the crash is to be a real show-stopper, a roll-bar is welded inside. Harness-type seat belts are bolted in, and the gas tank is either replaced with a rubberized racing fuel cell or a one-gallon can under the hood.

His cars are usually bought from used car lot boneyards, although he prefers the newest and best the budget will allow.

"They make for better crashes if only because the audience doesn't expect it. They see an old junker coming down the road and they know it's going to crash."

His dedication to this concept is so complete, he once sacrificed his personal Jensen.

"Yup, there it is," he says, pointing to a movie still on the wall. "Bought that thing in England, shipped it over here and everything. Drove it on the set and the director decided it was just the car they needed."

"It made a good stunt," he shrugs. But personally, he prefers American cars.

"That's an interesting thing, but an American car will blow the doors off a foreign car any day. Sure, they bounce you around inside, but at least they're in one piece after the crash. Foreign cars just rip apart."

During one film, he says, the two cars were a 1966 Plymouth and a 1967 Mercedes. By the time it was all over, the Plymouth was still running, but six additional Mercedes were needed to complete the shooting.

"In one jump, the Plymouth flew over, landed and knocked a hole in the radiator. The Mercedes came over the same jump and both front wheels fell off."

Asked his opinion of the movies he works on, Nuckles smiles. "They're usually low-budget quickies with some dull dialogue to fill in the spaces between chase scenes. But they're good fun, nobody gets hurt, and people, especially kids, love them."

"I've worked on about 40 chase films, nothing to brag about, but with good believable action, and they've all made money."

His goal, he says, is to follow in the footsteps of colleague Hal Needham. Needham wrote his own chase script and talked friend Burt Reynolds into starring in it. "Smokey and the Bandit" cost $4 million and grossed $100 million at the box office.

"You never know what's going to take off. Working on 'Bullitt,' we never knew it would give stuntmen steady work for the next 10 years."

"I did a little work for an English producer in New York last summer about some kid who liked to dance. It was called 'Saturday Night Fever.' You just can't tell."

The average cost for one movie's worth of stunts runs about $100,000, including wages and cars. Television chase scenes are shorter and run about $20,000, although Nuckles was given $50,000 for his work on "Chips."

Like any other field, there's progress, and Nuckles likes challenges. "They always come to you and say 'The gags you did in the last movie were great, but I thought maybe we could do it a little different."

"I love it and I've always got some new ideas I want to try out."

Jimmy Durante Hospitalized

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Jimmy Durante, 85, has been admitted to St. John's Hospital for treatment of an upper respiratory infection, a hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The famed "Schnozzola" was reported in satisfactory condition.

Spokeswoman Peggy Frank Shaff said Durante was admitted Saturday and was expected to be hospitalized "for about a week."

Durante's wife, Marjorie, reached by telephone at the couple's Beverly Hills home, said she did not know how long her husband would be hospitalized. She said he was "in for some tests."

Mrs. Durante said she and their adopted daughter, Cece, two nephews and other family members have been visiting the comedian daily.

TV Series Enlivens Comic Book Character

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "I like you better as David Banner than as the Hulk," said the petite, aged woman in sneakers.

"Thank you, ma'am," answered a smiling Bill Bixby.

The actor was walking along the Santa Monica Palisades, which on a sunswept day offers an odd mixture of senior citizens and bikini-clad nymphs, muscular joggers and devout winos. Several citizens stopped Bixby to compliment him on his television series "The Incredible Hulk."

The company had been shooting a chase along Ocean Avenue, and Bixby retired to a work luncheon of Chinese delicacies in his luxurious land cruiser.

"I had the whole thing made over with microwave oven, stereo, and every possible convenience," he said. "Next I'm going to decorate it with African art, which I love. I figure if I'm going to work 16 hours a day for the next year, I damn well better be comfortable."

Bixby has his future plotted. "The Incredible Hulk," which had two incarnations as two-hour movies, was slipped into CBS' mid-season schedule and proved to be the network's sole new hit. The show was placed on the fall schedule and for a full season of 22 segments.

High art it is not. David Bruce Banner is a scientist whose radiation experiments went awry. As a result, anger turns him from a well-mannered, handsome man into a seven-foot raging beast.

"But unlike other monsters on the screen, the Hulk is not evil," Bixby observed. "He often breaks man-made objects, things that frustrate him like cars and telephones. He never kills and he never hurts people who can't hit him back.

"He takes on gangs and bullies and does things that people would like to do but don't have the strength or the courage for. It's a great catharsis. Carl Justav Jung would have loved this show."

Bixby admitted that he was overwhelmed when the project was first presented to him. Arriving by plane from Chicago, he was met by his agent with two TV scripts: A two-hour movie and a pilot for "The Incredible Hulk."

"You're kidding," said Bixby. "Me do a comic-book fantasy? After 'Rich Man, Poor Man' and 'Steam Bath,' is this the way my career is going?"

"Bill, read it, that's all I ask," the agent urged.

Bixby waited two days before opening the script. His reaction: "If the show is done honestly, it could be like the fantasy films I had loved when I was growing up in the 1940s."

He agreed to star as the Marvel Comic Book character — Lou Ferrigno plays the Hulk — because of the producer, Kenneth Johnson, who created and produced "The Six Million Dollar Man" and "The Bionic Woman."

"Kenneth Johnson is the hero of this series," said Bixby. "I had belief in him, and he has kept his word that we would strive for a quality show. I realized it would be an uphill climb because of the title, but we have overcome that. Both the ratings and the demographics have been fine; the series seems to appeal to all age groups."

LAKEWOOD, Ohio (UPI) — Rev. Richard Morris of St. Peter's Episcopal Church is giving away $10 bills.

He already has given away $1,800 in tens and has $700 more to unload.

But there's a catch. The 180 parish families already given the $10 bills at last Sunday's service were told they would be expected to make the money "grow tenfold or more" by Sept. 24.

It means everyone who went home with a $10 bill is supposed to bring back $100 or more on Ingathering Sunday — giving the church $25,000 in a little more than four months.

OPENING TODAY — Hal Ashby's new film called "Coming Home," dealing with the physical and mental scars administered by the Vietnam War, opens today at the South Plains Cinema in Lubbock. The film has received universal praise as an important and daring film. Performances have been well received, with special accolades going to Jane Fonda, left, and Jon Voight. Call the theater for show times and ticket prices. "Coming Home" is rated R.

Blind Indian Writer Guides TV Documentary's Production

BOSTON (AP) — There's irony when writer Ved Mehta complains of the frustrations of television. He's never seen a TV screen flicker, let alone viewed an entire program.

Since stricken at three with spinal meningitis, Mehta, 43, has been blind. But he has worked on his first film, for television, about his homeland, India.

The camera, guided by the blind writer, follows an 83-year-old poor relation, known affectionately in the Mehta family as "Chachaji," through a typical day in New Delhi.

"What I wanted to do," says Mehta, "was a very quiet, intense, even slow-moving film which would make people think of India something other than just images of poverty, confusion and chaos, but get them involved with somebody who is real."

He is not sure he has managed to get his idea across in his first brush with television production.

"There is utter frustration," he complained, "and this is what I realized as I helped make this film, that television, when it comes to documentary films, is a terribly miserable, unsatisfactory medium."

The film stayed with the externals, the rituals, the formal appearances. "What I would have loved to do is get under all that."

"But the camera takes over. The camera becomes the reality."

The hour-long documentary, "Chachaji," will be shown as part of the "World" series on public television stations across the country beginning June 15.

Mehta, novelist and writer for The New Yorker magazine, went over the footage the other day in an editing room at WGBH, the Boston public station where producer Bill Cran is putting it together.

"We'll talk about the film after we've seen it," Mehta said to Cran, 32, a Tasmanian-born producer who has made more than 80 documentaries for the British and Canadian broadcasting companies.

Mehta uses the words "see" and "watch" as casually as a sighted person.

"I think seeing movies or television is no different than living my life," he explained. "It is truly an act of imagination."

"A blind person functions in the world of the sighted. He has to imagine what traffic lights are like, what tall buildings are like, what clothes are like."

"I don't see. But the point is, there are many things that sighted people think they see which they actually pick up through other perceptions."

"A historian does not have to see Napoleon to write about him. I am able to re-create Chachaji in my mind from the way I hear people talking to him, the way they refer to his clothes, the sound of his footfall."

"These clues are bits of evidence transformed into a sort of picture by an act of imagination."

Cran quietly delivered a running description for Mehta as the film flickered past the viewer.

"If Bill hadn't said a thing," said Mehta after the viewing, "I would have known what was happening. I knew it partly because I was there in India at every moment of the filming. At each point, I was telling Bill what to bring out, what to show."

Chachaji is a cousin of Mehta's physician-father. At 83, he works as a caretaker and part-time pharmacy clerk, earning five rupees — about 70 cents — daily. In exchange for being the butt of jokes and family reminiscence, he lives off the Mehtas, scrounging meals and old razor blades with somber grace.

His day starts at dawn, and the film opens with the thunderous growl of an ancient pull-chain toilet, from a soundtrack that, partly because of Mehta's partiality to sound, is remarkably acute.

"I had a personal stake in his story," said Mehta, whose writing has made him well-to-do. "For I thought that, but for the Grace of God, I might be standing in Chachaji's shoes. Because if I hadn't gotten the education, I might be a poor relation."

Canine Soprano Succumbs To Age

MIAMI (UPI) — There's a bewildered chihuahua somewhere in Miami with a mink coat and a rhinestone-studded evening gown.

They used to be the property of a somewhat more celebrated member of the species — probably the only dog in the world to hold a singing contract with a symphony orchestra.

The original owner, Miss Pick, succumbed to a canine heart attack Sunday at the age of 12.

Miss Pick's lifelong companion, pianist Florence Pick, widow of hotel tycoon Albert Pick, discovered Miss Pick's singing talent when the chihuahua began to sing along at age two during Mrs. Pick's practice sessions.

Soon the dog prodigy was performing at dinner parties and, recalled University of Miami President Henry King Stanford, "endeared herself to all true lovers of music."

From there stardom was only a dog trot away.

In 1966, the Greater Miami Philharmonic performed an open air concert at Miami Marine Stadium. You know who was the guest soloist. And afterward, orchestra manager Henry Peletier offered Miss Pick a contract.

"To whom it may concern," said the document. "The Greater Miami Philharmonic Society Inc., having successfully launched Miss Pick, the singing chihuahua, in her maritime debut, now authorizes (sic) Miss Pick to personally promote publicity for the Miami Philharmonic by turning over all monies earned by her vocalizing to the Philharmonic Society."

Miss Pick accepted and signed with a paw print.

The disconsolate Mrs. Pick had lived with Miss Pick since the latter was three months old — "the happiest years of my life."

Mrs. Pick decided against holding funeral services for Miss Pick.

And Mrs. Pick decided to give Miss Pick's elaborate wardrobe to a security guard at the Miami Beach apartment where the two had lived.

The guard has a small dog who wears the same size as Miss Pick.

Scientists Optimistic About Life Elsewhere

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Imagine a planet circling some distant star, populated by a race that wonders if it is alone in the universe.

To search for cosmic neighbors, the distant civilization might build a powerful radio transmitter and send a signal into the heavens, a signal that might travel for thousands, or even millions, of years at the speed of light before reaching earth.

The signal might carry the story of their kind, the cure for cancer, the secret of peace. But mostly it might say: "You are not alone."

That's the scenario that drives earth-bound scientists, long fascinated by the thought of life on other worlds, to step up the search for such a signal. Many think the statistical odds are such that intelligent life should exist "out there."

"The numbers are very convincing," said Robert E. Edelson of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

There are about 200 billion stars in the Milky Way, the galaxy that includes our sun — one of maybe 100 billion galaxies in the universe.

Edelson said present theories suggest as many as 100 billion stars in the Milky Way alone might be circled by planets.

That fact, plus "what seems to be almost the inevitability of life coming into existence if the right environment is present, suggests that there are vast numbers of bodies on which life has been or is evolving," Edelson said.

But Edelson said that conclusion involves "an element of faith — based on scientific knowledge — because we have absolutely no evidence of the existence of anyone other than ourselves."

Edelson is heading mankind's most comprehensive search for intelligent life beyond earth. NASA's proposed 1978-79 budget includes $2 million for the project, which carries an expected total price of $16 million.

The first two years of the program will be used to develop sophisticated equipment to interpret radio signals received at three radio-telescopes near Goldstone, in the Southern California desert.

Computers must sort through the plethora of radio signals from earth, from orbiting satellites and from countless natural sources throughout the universe.

Then, beginning in 1980, the telescopes would spend five years searching the heavens for that special signal.

Edelson said his project would be "perhaps 10,000 times more comprehensive than (anything that) has ever been done in the past. So it's not just a shot in the dark in that sense."

"We might find a signal on the first day," he said. "Or we might never find one. We don't have any idea of the probability that such a signal exists."

Edelson said the search is based on several assumptions, "the most basic of which is that we're looking for signals that are intended for detection."

Given the state of earth's technology, he said, the only neighbors we are likely to find are those who are looking for someone like us.

"It's unlikely that we would be able to detect accidental broadcasts, their own TV and things like that," because the signals would be too weak, he said.

Nor are we likely to overhear "communications between two stars that have already established some kind of communications," he said.

A civilization capable of contacting earthlings would most likely be technologically more advanced than any on earth, "where we're only 40 or 50 years into the radio business," he said.

"The primary unknown is: how long can a technological society survive?"

"If the typical lifetime is a few hundred years or so... then it's very unlikely that we could achieve any contact because too few would exist in the galaxy at any given time."

"But if such a society can exist for thousands, or hundreds of thousands, of years, then there are vast numbers of them out there, and the chances of finding them go up accordingly," he said.

"If we detect a signal — a single signal — that would tell us that someone else knows how to maintain a civilization for a very long time. And that information alone would be of extreme interest."

"If such a signal is found, however, the immense distances between stars would make conversation difficult."

Sending a question might result in an answer two or three hundred years later," Edelson said.

Light and radio waves travel through empty space at the speed of light, 186,000 miles per second or 5.89 trillion miles a year. But that distance is minute within the vastness of the universe.

The closest star outside the solar system, Alpha Centauri, is more than four light-years away — a signal from the star wouldn't reach the earth for four years.

And Edelson said Alpha Centauri is not likely to hold a planet. Our closest neighbors might be a thousand times more distant.

He said the most powerful radio telescope on earth could communicate with a similar instrument across 4,000 light years, "and that's just earth technology. We don't have any idea what the other guy might have."

Interstellar conversation is not the immediate problem, however. For now, Edelson said, "We're simply trying to find a signal."

He said the signal would probably contain a codebook so what comes later can be deciphered.

They would probably start out with something that allows the party on the other end to acquire the key to understanding the message you really want to send," Edelson said. "So that's the kind of thing we're looking for... that information undoubtedly will be of some technical nature — frequencies or numbers or things of that nature."

Once the code is broken and the one-way conversation begins, "Who knows what they will want to tell us, what they will consider important?"

"Suppose you said, 'I want to tell somebody about earth.' What should I tell them?"

Border 'Rookies' Host Seasoned MHS

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

EL PASO — Regardless of this week's outcome, the Andress Eagles survived the bidistrict round of the state baseball playoffs. And that's something the 17-year-old school has never done in any sport before last weekend.

Now the ambitious Eagles (19-10) hope to soar to greater heights when they entertain the Monterey Plainsmen today in the first game of the best-of-three regional playoff series.

Since the scene shifts to Lubbock's Lorey Field Friday and Saturday necessity of winning the opener on their border soil. Meanwhile, a win for MHS moves the Hub City club into an enviable spot to reach the quarter-final round against the winner of the Midland Lee-Arlington Sam Houston regional series. The game begins on the Andress High School field at 5 p.m. (CDT).

While Monterey opened its doors in 1960 and started enjoying immediate athletic success, Andress graduated its first class in 1961 and waited 13 years until the Eagles captured a district title in any sport. Head baseball coach Gerald Antwine joined the Andress staff in 1973. Since then the Eagles have won District

1-AAAA twice in baseball, once in football, basketball and track. But the first bidistrict title of any kind came the hard way last weekend.

Andress dropped a 9-3 bidistrict opener to Riverside before it bounced back for a pair of one-run victories, 4-3 on Friday and 2-1 on Saturday.

"We played as well as we've played all year last weekend," Antwine said. "We went out there and stunk up the place in the first game. But we got good games from our two pitchers when we needed them."

Righthander Donnie Hunter (5-2) responded with a six-hitter and five strikeouts in pitching a complete game Friday. When the Eagles needed the third game, they relied on hard-throwing senior righthander Sam Cordero (7-3), who pitched out of bases-loaded jams in the second and fourth innings.

Cordero will start today's single game against Monterey senior righthander Ron Reeves (12-0). The Andress coach hopes his offense continues to supply enough runs.

"Offensively, we hit 16 home runs in district play. We have several kids who can hit for power. We don't have excellent team speed but we've got some pretty good individuals with speed," he said.

Antwine's top hitter in district play, rightfielder James Crisp, hit four home runs and carried a .511 average in 14 league games. The Andress leadoff man, second baseman Joe Saravo, led the team in home runs with five and hit .480.

Saravo is followed by leftfielder Melvin Cutter, shortstop Hunter, Crisp, first baseman Dale Swack, catcher Alan Eastman, designated hitter Mike Esquivel (for Cordero), centerfielder Ernie Burg and third baseman Steve Taylor.

Monterey will stay with its same batting order — centerfielder Andy Barron, shortstop Mike Wooten, catcher Jeff Harp, leftfielder Dana Rieger, Reeves, first baseman Eric Voyles, third baseman Phil Bruedigam, rightfielder Mike Craig and second baseman Ricky Pinkerton.

ERIC ALWAN KNOWS he's a cut out of the ordinary. Matter of fact, the odds are probably 8-to-5 that Eric likes life that way.

The 13-year-old son of Ruidoso Downs publicist, Dick Alwan, Eric has evolved into one of New Mexico's greatest folk heroes. A legend before he's old enough to vote, the kid better watch it or some greedy snitch will hijack Eric to Aqueeduct or Santa Anita when dad's not looking.

An eighth grader with close to a straight-A average (44 out of 48 classes), the young bespectacled freckle-face stands atop the roof at Ruidoso like a statue during most races. If they can make statues of horses, why can't they make statues of handicappers, too?

Of course, Eric isn't your average horse-race handicap brain. He doesn't carouse the way most horse-players do. The daily diet for this tip-sheet author is cereal and milk instead of bourbon and water. He doesn't even cuss and he's too young for serious dating. About the only woman he messes around with is the filly in the winner's circle.

Daddy Dick Alwan told his master that he's not at the track "to bet" the horses, so Eric goes one step beyond — he makes more than a thousand bucks a year selecting the horses which run at Ruidoso and at Sunland Park, just outside El Paso. If a race enthusiast sticks around either track a few days, he notices Alwan's Eager Beaver Selections usually predict the winning horse half the time. He's not just lucky, folks, Eric knows the Daily Racing Form better than his junior-high Civics book by two or three lengths.

HORSE RACING IS one sport where teenagers are getting an even break lately. Steve Cauthen was Sports Illustrated's Sportsman of the Year in 1977. Eric Alwan appear on countless television shows — Good Morning America, To Tell The Truth, and he was the first child appearing on The Tomorrow Show.

As for tomorrow, young Eric plans to enter medicine but for now he remains a foremost horse-racing authority.

"He has a tremendous sense of confidence. He really knows it, he knows it inside out," bragged his dad. "He won $16,000 on this game show (The $128,000 Question) when he tried for $32,000 on the show, they asked him to name a jockey who was suspended for life for rough riding. It turned out to be someone who rode shortly after the turn of the century. We've never heard of the guy's name anywhere."

Like most handicappers, the redhead clicks his stopwatch with split-second precision and knows the jockeys by memory. But while others are absent from

Decision On Tech AD Nears

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A decision on a replacement for retiring Texas Tech athletic director JT King is expected to come within the next two weeks, although an announcement will most likely not be made at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

"We'll probably have something within two weeks or so," said Frank Elliott, Athletic Council chairman and a member of the committee that is screening applicants for the post.

One source said that the matter "should be wrapped up by June 10 or so," unless complications develop.

Another added, "Unless it's a real surprise, the new AD will not be announced at the board meeting (Thursday)."

The screening committee, comprised of Elliott and Tech president Dr. Cecil Mackey, is now concentrating on a list of five, possibly six, candidates.

Sources indicated that John Cobb, a member of the Tech physical education department staff and former chairman of the Athletic Council, is one of the final candidates.

Elliott visited Chicago and San Diego last week, and one source said that he was visiting with persons considered to be finalists in the race for job of replacing King, who will retire officially Aug. 31.

The screening committee is not bringing the final candidates to the campus to be interviewed.

One new name surfaced Tuesday, that of San Diego State associate athletic director Gene Templeton, but it could not be determined if he is one of the finalists.

Contacted in Athens, Ga., where he is attending the NCAA National Tennis Tournament, Templeton acknowledged that he has applied for the job and has "talked with some people at the university (Tech)."

Asked if Elliott had visited with him in California, he repeated only that he has "talked with some people at the university."

An Odessa native and University of Texas graduate, Templeton has held his current position at San Diego State for eight years.

He was tennis coach at Corpus Christi Ray High School for five years before attending the University of New Mexico and receiving masters and Ph.D. degrees. He was tennis coach at Arizona for one year and then chairman of the University of New Mexico physical education department.

Other names that have been mentioned in regard to the position at Tech are Andy Everest, assistant AD at North Texas State; Marvin Tate, associate AD at Texas A&M; Burl Bartlett, former Tech assistant football coach; Merrill Green, former Tech assistant and now head coach and athletic director at Bryan High School; Hootie Ingram, former Arkansas assistant coach and now assistant commissioner of the Southeastern Conference; and Floyd Gass, currently athletic director at Oklahoma State.

Everest is considered by some to be a top candidate. Gass, however, is not one of the finalists.

Montreal Conquers Canadiens

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Serge Savard set up goals by Larry Robinson, Pierre Mondou and Pierre Larouche Tuesday night, powering Montreal to a 4-1 triumph over the Boston Bruins and bringing the Canadiens within a victory of their 20th National Hockey League championship.

Jacques Lemaire scored the other goal as the Canadiens confused, frustrated and outskated the Bruins. Montreal also scored the game's first goal for the first time in the series and took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven set which could conclude Thursday night at Boston Garden.

Don Marcotte ruined Ken Dryden's shutout bid with 8:38 remaining, tapping in the rebound of a Bobby Schmautz shot and giving the Bruins their first power-play tally after 15 consecutive failures.

The game was delayed continually by bickering over penalties called by referee Dave Newell, who assessed 56 minutes over the first two periods and 106 for the game.

Humbled by consecutive losses in Games 3 and 4 in Boston, the Canadiens sent their attack into overdrive with Savard setting up Robinson and Mondou for a 2-0 lead in the first period.

Robinson took the puck from Savard near his goal line and skated the length of the ice before sending a six-foot shot over the left shoulder of Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers at 7:46. Robinson breezed around Boston defenseman Mike Milbury before scoring his fourth goal of the playoffs on the Canadiens' second shot of the game.

Mondou made it 2-0 at 11:10, scoring Montreal's first power-play goal after 12 straight unsuccessful opportunities. His 20-foot shot seemed to surprise Cheevers during the only power play of the opening period.

Larouche, making his first appearance of the series, scored his second goal of the playoffs at 13:04 of the second period and 5:38 later, Lemaire made it 4-0.

Government Funds To Aid Olympics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The federal government may be able to insure Los Angeles' 1984 Olympic bid by picking up the tab for security measures, a member of the county's board of supervisors said Tuesday.

"They (the federal government) are paying $60 million to $70 million for security at the winter games in Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1980," Kenneth Hahn said, "so we ought to be able to get at least $50 million."

Washington's Hayes Takes Offensive

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Elvin Hayes, blamed for past playoff failures of the Washington Bullets, doesn't want any fingers pointed his way for Washington's latest postseason misadventure.

Hayes scored 21 points in the opener of the National Basketball Association's championship series Sunday, but took only one shot as the Seattle SuperSonics went on a 19-2 tear to overcome a 19-point deficit and win 106-102.

That was the ninth consecutive loss for Washington in three championship series over the past eight seasons. Hayes wasn't with the team when Milwaukee swept in 1970-71, but he was when Golden State swept in 1974-75 and for subsequent early-round exits.

But if the veteran forward was trotted in the stretch Sunday, he took the offense verbally as the Bullets prepared for game No. 2 of the best-of-seven series on their Capital Centre home court Thursday night.

"Some people are saying I didn't work hard enough to get the basketball," Hayes said. "But that is wrong. I was open and if I get the ball, I'm going to score."

Hayes contended the Bullets didn't get the ball inside enough to either himself or Bobby Dandridge, to take advantage of the sagging guarding of Paul Silas.

Washington's guards tried the team's final eight shots Sunday in Seattle, and 16 of its last 22. That also upset Hayes.

"The guards can't take all the shots," he said. "If they do, Fred Brown and their guards are going to take off and try for fast breaks."

some races, young Eric never misses one unless school gets in the way.

"That's the main thing he does different from a lot of handicappers, he watches every race," his dad said.

ERIC'S CAREER BEGAN about the time he got tired of crayons and paper dolls and diapers. At eight years of age, the boy became "bored silly" around the house and started noticing and learning the racing forms.

It took a couple of the years for all the inside dope to sink in but by the mature old age of 10, Eric was becoming an authority.

"He was invited to Los Alamitos race-track in Los Angeles during the winter for a promotional deal," the elder Alwan said. "They had a handicapping contest for the media and the L.A. papers came out and did features on him. He had six races for all the media members to handicap. If any of them did better than Eric, they would have received $250 but he beat every one of them."

Today is another special day for the young lad. The Alwans live in El Paso and school ends this afternoon. The real Eager Beaver has missed the first five racing days of the new Ruidoso season. Dick Alwan, alias Eager Beaver, will gladly relinquish the tip sheet to its original author.

"He keeps up with all the races he's missed. I'll go home to El Paso on weekends and he will ask how this horse or that horse is doing. He keeps up with all that stuff. He's engrossed in it and fascinated by it. It gives him a release from the tensions of classwork. But I believe he's got six A-pluses so far this semester," the elder Alwan added.

The younger Alwan was unavailable from comment Wednesday because he was detained by an eighth-grade English final. Care to wager on how he did in that one? Just stroll right up to the betting window, but be sure to consult the Eager Beaver first.

Pecos Tops Borger

PECOS (Special) — Pecos scored three unearned runs by taking advantage of four Borger errors to win the class AAA bidistrict baseball opener 3-0 Tuesday.

The best-of-three series resumes Friday in Borger with a doubleheader (if necessary) beginning at 4 p.m.

Pecos pitcher Alex Garcia walked none and fanned five Borger batters, raising his record to 10-1. Borger hurler Greg Fleming walked two and fanned two, while retiring nine consecutive batters during the middle innings.

Minor League Team To Sign Gilliam

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Wolf Pak of the new minor league Atlantic Football Conference said Tuesday it plans to sign former National Football League quarterback Joe Gilliam today.

Gilliam, a 27-year-old former Pittsburgh Steeler, fell from the NFL during a period of extended drug use. The one-time Tennessee State star played with the Steelers during 1972-75 before being waived. He later spent part of one pre-season with the New Orleans Saints.

The Wolf Pak, an amalgam of two former semi-pro teams here, is to open its season July 1 against the Scranton, Pa., Stars. Other teams in the new league are the Buffalo Gemins, Rochester Mustangs, Syracuse Bisons, Connecticut Sea Raiders and Binghamton Jets.

HART (Special)—Hart High School is searching for a new head football coach, following the resignation of coach Bill Taylor.

Walton Picked Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton of the Portland Trail Blazers has been selected the National Basketball Association's most valuable player for the 1977-78 season, it was announced Tuesday.

In a vote of NBA players, Walton received 96 votes to 80½ for scoring champion George Gervin of the San Antonio Spurs. David Thompson of the Denver Nuggets was third with 28½ followed by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers with 14. Abdul-Jabbar had won the award for each of the last two seasons.

Also receiving votes were Walter Davis of Phoenix, 4; Paul Westphal of Phoenix and Maurice Lucas of Portland, 3 each; Truck Robinson of New Orleans and Artis Gilmore of Chicago, 2 each; and 1 each for Marques Johnson of Milwaukee, Marvin Webster of Seattle, Julius Erving of Philadelphia, Bob Lanier of Detroit and Bob McAdoo of New York.

Walton helped the Trail Blazers win 50 of their first 60 games before being sidelined for the remainder of the season, first because of surgery on his right foot and then with an injury to his left foot. He played in two playoff games before breaking his left ankle.

For 58 games, Walton averaged 18.9 points and 13.2 rebounds per game.

Get 50¢ a quart for your old oil just for trying gasoline-saving Uniflo.*

And you could also get 16 extra miles per tank of gasoline.

To introduce you to gasoline-saving Uniflo motor oil, your participating Exxon dealer will pay you 50¢ for each quart of oil he drains out when you get this Uniflo Spring Changeover.

And Uniflo could save you much more by cutting your gasoline costs.

After conditioning with Uniflo, a fleet of cars averaged 16 extra miles per tank of gasoline—16 extra miles this same fleet of cars didn't get with a conventional multigrade oil like most people use.

Uniflo isn't a synthetic. It's a golden, natural oil—Exxon's best engine protection ever—with special friction-reducers developed by Exxon research.

By cutting friction between moving parts in the engine, Uniflo saves gasoline. And money.

The Spring oil-change offer at participating Exxon dealers gives you a chance to save even more money. Why not try Uniflo now. Every day you wait could be costing you money.

 With this Uniflo Spring Changeover you get:

5 quarts Uniflo, filter, chassis lubrication

Regular suggested price ... $15.42

Less 50¢ a quart for your old oil ... -2.50

Spring Changeover suggested price ... $12.92

Plus tube fittings if needed.

Suggested price is less if your car requires less than 5 quarts of Uniflo, more if your car takes more than 5 quarts.

Change over to radial tires and get extra gasoline savings.

Properly inflated, radial tires give better gasoline mileage than non-radials.

Amaya Nabs Upset Win In Italy

ROME (AP) — Led by heralded Victor Amaya, U.S. players avenged the inglorious exit of top American Vitas Gerulaitis as Arthur Ashe, Brian Gottfried and Harold Solomon rallied to victories in the $230,000 Italian Open tennis championships Tuesday.

Amaya, a massive 6-foot-7, 220-pounder from Holland, Mich., ousted seventh seed Corrado Barazzutti of Italy in straight sets 6-3, 7-6, for his first triumph over a top player in his three years on the international circuit.

The 23-year-old Amaya's victory stunned a partisan crowd of about 6,000 in Rome's Foro Italico clay compound and led to his sudden discovery.

Amaya fashioned his surprise victory on strong serves despite occasional double faults caused by strong gusts. He withstood the boos and jeers of the pro-Barazzutti throng.

An unranked American's triumph over a seeded Italian was the reverse of Monday's chief action when local idol Adriano Panatta emerged from a long slump and ousted second ranked Gerulaitis.

Ashe, still relegated to side courts after a long layoff with ankle and eye disorders, continued on his comeback trail by downing Italian Vincenzo Franchitti 3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

"I'm getting better ever day," said 14th ranked Ashe, who was out the entire last year after foot surgery. "I hope to be in the first 16 seeds in Wimbledon."

The 32-year-old Ashe, at times lethargic, conceded the first set, saving his guns. In the final set, Ashe was down 0-2, but did not cave in, broke Franchitti's serve to pull even and ran the score up to 5-2.

Gottfried, ranked third, survived scary moments against Chile's Belus Prajoux, but overcame his second set wildness to win 6-2, 5-7, 6-2.

Eighth-ranked Solomon breezed past Jan Kodeš of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-1.

The Rome tourney has not attracted the world's leading women players, most of whom are playing World Team Tennis in the United States.

The top seed here, Yugoslav Mima Jaušovec, swept past Ana Casabianca of Argentina 6-3, 6-2 while the second ranked, Virginia Ruzici of Romania, eliminated unranked Sharon Walsh of the United States 6-3, 7-5.

In other men's singles action, Australian veteran John Newcombe, seeded 10th, downed unranked American Tom Gullikson 7-6, 6-1.

Two other seeded players failed to make it to the second round.

Manuel Orantes of Spain, ranked fifth, pulled out of the tourney suffering from a bad back. Orantes, who only last year recovered from arm surgery, retired from a match in Germany last week with a pinched nerve in the back.

Sixth-ranked Raul Ramirez of Mexico fell to Australian Dick Crealy. The lanky Crealy broke a nervous Ramirez's serve three times in the final set to win 0-6, 7-6, 6-3.

Raiders Sign Fem Athletes

Texas Tech has signed one woman track performer and two basketball players to letters-of-intent.

Cindy Luna of El Paso Andress, a discus thrower and shot-putter, has inked with the Raiders. She was regional champion in the discus and shot put in 1978 and finished first in the discus and fifth in the shot put at the state track and field meet.

The two basketball players are Reina Keasler of Neptune Beach, Fla., and Ruth Fortune of Iran.

Miss Keasler, a 5-8 guard, scored 16.5 points per game for Fletcher High School this past season and was voted the Girl High School Athlete of the Year in Florida.

Miss Fortune, 5-10, scored at a 25.0 clip last season and was an all-district choice. In 1977, she competed in the state track and field meet in the mile relay.

Tulia Bowling Duo Stands In Second

DALLAS (Special) — Linda Bradley and Linda Dallage of Tulia share second place in the Novice Division doubles of the 41st annual Texas Women's Bowling Association's State Tournament.

That duo has a 935, some 70 pins behind the leaders.

The only other South Plains area woman state ranked is Lu Wolfe of Snyder, the leader in the 3-6-9 Bowlers Victory Legion Tournament with a 769.

A week ago, two Lubbockites were listed among the Top Three in the state: Sue West in Class A singles and Arvetta Lewis in Class E singles and all-events.

Vukovich To Regroup After Indy Failure

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Veteran race driver Billy Vukovich said Tuesday he feels very strange having nothing to do since he won't be driving in the Indianapolis 500 race for the first time in 11 years.

Vukovich, whose father won here twice and died after an accident when he was leading in a bid for a third victory here in 1955, failed to qualify for this year's race.

"I used to think I'd give up racing if I didn't make Indianapolis," said the 34-year-old Vukovich, who finished second here in 1973 and placed seventh or higher four other times.

"But, now I'm more determined than ever to pick up and go from here. I may get with a new operation, but I'm looking ahead to driving in the next championship car race."

That race will be in Milwaukee on June 18.

"It's hard to explain, but somehow I had a feeling I was going to miss the race this year," said Vukovich, who started competitive racing in 1963 driving a stock car.

Vukovich, who finished 17th here last year, practiced in two Eagle-Offenhauers owned by Bill Finley this month.

"We had problems with the engines. First we blew an engine in the No. 1 car and then we blew one in the backup car," he said.

"We'd gotten the backup car up near qualifying speed before it lost the engine."

Vukovich made a qualifying attempt in the backup car Saturday. He had a speed of 185.797 miles per hour on his first lap and went slower on the next two laps before his crew called off the attempt.

Since the slowest car in the race had an average speed of 187.266 mph, Vukovich would have been bumped from the field if he'd completed his first qualification run.

Sunday, Vukovich drove the car Bobby Jones had been working out all month. However, he was only able to hit a speed of 179 mph on the first lap and decided he'd miss the show this year.

"I rejected an offer from someone last month to drive for him on the championship circuit. I didn't see him here, but I'm going to see if we can work something out."

While Vukovich was thinking about future competition, most drivers visited their garages to discuss preparations of the car for Sunday. Throughout Gasoline Alley one saw cars taken into pieces as adjustments and cleaning prior to Thursday's last practice session before the race.

Rick Mears picked up a $1,500 check from the American Dairy Association in recognition of his having the best qualifying time by a rookie over the weekend.

American Owners Okay Boston Red Sox Sale

CHICAGO (AP) — Sale of the Boston Red Sox for $20.5 million — probably the most ever paid for a major league baseball team — was approved unanimously Tuesday by the American League owners.

The Red Sox will be headed by Executive Vice President Haywood Sullivan and Vice President Buddy LeRoux.

The package includes the Red Sox team, Fenway Park and related real estate.

The transfer of the sale is from the estate of the late Thomas A. Yawkey to the Sullivan-LeRoux group, which also includes Yawkey's widow, Jean.

The American League owners, who had rejected an earlier Sullivan-LeRoux group offer by an 11-3 vote in Hawaii last December, needed about five minutes to approve the new package.

The December refusal was based on questions about financing. This time, the group put up straight cash.

"I'm happy to announce that our presentation was approved unanimously,"

Sullivan said. "Only one vote was taken and it's needless to say how elated we are to have unanimous approval from the league to transfer the franchise."

Sullivan said the ball club was worth $15 million and the park and real estate $5.5 million.

LeRoux, a former trainer of the Red Sox, said, "It has taken 15 to 16 months but it's been a great education. There have been a few heartaches but the ultimate result speaks for itself."

"We are pleased to have the new ownership well accredited. Record sale? I don't know but it's the most I've ever heard of," said American League President Lee MacPhail. "I do feel now the new ownership is in a stronger position than the previous application, which was rejected because of its financial structure."

Sullivan, LeRoux and Mrs. Yawkey are the general partners in the new structure. There also are nine limited partners, including Al Curran, an attorney from Woodburn, Mass.; Dr. Arthur Pappas, Wellesley, Mass.; Rodgers Badgett, Madisonville, Ky.; H.M.S. Co. (Harry M. Stevens, concessionaire corporation with offices in New York City); Thomas Di-Benedetto, a New York investment banker; Sam Tamposi, a New Hampshire contractor; Harold Alford, a Dexter, Maine, shoe manufacturer; Mrs. Yawkey and LeRoux.

Yawkey was sole owner of the Red Sox from 1933 until his death in July 1976.

Cattle Futures Hit New Peaks

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Live cattle futures continued to forge ahead and were up 110 to 150 points to new highs across the board Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.
December and distant August were up the limit after most contracts also hit limit highs earlier in the session. Prices were highest since 1973.
Volume was estimated at 23,249 exchanges.
Short covering and other buying was touched off by continued advances in beef and cash cattle. The moderate pace of kill also sparked aggressive buying.
Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 1 1/2 cents at 88 3/4 to 91 1/2 cents per pound, highest since February 1974. Cash cattle were steady to up $1.25 per hundredweight on a top of $60.50.

Tuesday's slaughter was estimated at 139,000 head. The six markets expect receipts of 16,300 head today.
Feeder cattle futures continued to advance in the wake of sharply higher live cattle futures and fresh gains in cash cattle and carcass beef. Sales were 2,466 cars.
Final prices were up 122 points to the limit of 150 led by January and April after August also gained the limit. New season's highs were posted across the board on aggressive local and commission house buying.
Live hog futures were up all day except for an early setback in distant June. Futures ended 72 to 150 points higher. July through October posted limit gains with the latter at a new season's high.

Volume was estimated at 8,631 trades.
Much of the buying was generated by the sharply reduced hog kill and a light run along with higher prices and improved tone to pork products at noon.
Wholesale hams were unchanged to up three-fourths cent at 77 to 80 cents per pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were steady to up $1.50 per hundredweight with the top at a week's high of $52.50.
The major terminals expect 26,000 head to arrive today. Kill on Tuesday was estimated at 255,000 head.
Pork belly (bacon) futures surged 182 to the 200-point limit. Most contracts were at the daily limit advance on a turnover of about 4,783 cars.
JUD Sets Homecoming

JUD (Special) — Past and present residents of this community of about 40 people are invited to a homecoming starting at 9 a.m. Sunday.
A barbecue lunch will be served at 1 p.m. at the Jud Community House, and persons are asked to make donations to help finance the meal. Participants are also asked to bring a prepared dish.
A memorial service will be held for the war dead at the Rochester Cemetery about four miles east of Jud.
THE MARKET TURNED AROUND after four limit declines and a loss of 19.6 cents per pound. Sharp cutbacks in hog runs and slaughter, along with the advance in cash bellies after an 11-cent break, touched off aggressive short covering and other buying.
A commission house with cash hog connections was a prominent buyer.
Wholesale bacon was up one to 4 1/2 cents at 62 to 68 1/2 cents per pound, f.o.b. river.
Fewer Cattle Cause Of Higher Prices

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION this week formed a solid wall of opposition to all congressional plans to restrict meat imports.
Officials from the White House, USDA, State Department and Council of Wage and Price Stability urged the House Trade Subcommittee to dump all bills to limit meat imports.
They opposed some 27 bills introduced to help the U.S. cattle industry, particularly the Bentsen bill that quietly passed the Senate recently.
That measure, introduced by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, would institute a new system to curb imports when U.S. supplies are high and increase them when supplies are low.
THE NATIONAL CATTLEMEN'S ASSOCIATION recommended the counter-cyclical approach to quotas and urged that Congress adopt the Bentsen bill.
Richard A. McDougal, NCA president, said a counter-cyclical quota formula could provide more stable supplies and prices over a 10-year cattle cycle, benefiting both producers and consumers.
The quota formula in the present law, the NCA spokesman pointed out, is tied directly to U.S. production levels.
This compounds supply and price problems because imports are permitted to rise at the very time domestic supplies already are burdensome and are required to decrease at the very time domestic output is decreasing. The result is sharper price fluctuations, both up and down, than otherwise would be the case.
UNDER THE BENTSEN BILL, annual import quotas would be adjusted in relation to domestic cow beef supplies — the best indicator of stages in the cattle cycle.
Cow beef output expands when basic herds are being liquidated, and it decreases when herds are being rebuilt. Also, it is cow beef with which imported meat is most competitive.
Esther Peterson, President Carter's special assistant for consumer affairs, charged that meat import restrictions would add to inflationary pressures. This was echoed by Thomas Leonard of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.
Stephen Bosworth, a deputy assistant secretary of state, and Howard Hjort, director of economics policy analysis and budget of the USDA, both opposed the new system of regulating imports and also another part of the bill that would include preserved beef and veal, which are not included under the present import restraint program.
OTHER PROPOSED LEGISLATION ALSO came under fire from the administration, such as plans to require imported meat to carry labels from specific countries.
The NCA cautioned claims that the U.S. cattle industry is incapable of supplying enough ground beef to meet a growing demand and that increased imports of manufacturing-type beef are indispensable.
The industry already supplies most of the nation's ground beef needs — even during times of declining cow beef production. Furthermore, with proper incentive, U.S. cattlemen can produce — and already are producing — more manufacturing-type beef.
Most imported meat is used for hamburgers, fast-food dishes and other commercially prepared food products.

Ag Department Sets Symposium On Grain Elevator Explosions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An international symposium on grain elevator explosions will be held in the nation's capital July 11-12, the Agriculture Department has announced.
Concern about explosions was heightened last December when blasts in elevators at Westwego, La., and Galveston, Texas, killed 56 persons.
Assistant Agriculture Secretary P.R. Smith said the symposium's "objective is to develop a current, informed summary of existing knowledge of the causes of grain elevator explosions, and develop a coordinated research strategy."
Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, will give the keynote speech at the symposium.
Scientists from across the world, grain industry spokesmen, equipment manufacturers, government officials, employee unions and insurance companies have been invited to the symposium sponsored by the National Research Council and underwritten by the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Regulation Finally In Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sputtering along for months, an Agriculture Department regulation requiring the identification of breeding swine shipped across state lines to meat packing plants took effect this week.
F.J. Mulhern, head of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said that beginning Monday all sows and boars over six months of age will have to be identified as to their origin when shipped out of state for slaughter.

The identification program, which requires the hogs to have identity tags or tattoos, is aimed at tracing slaughtered animals infected with brucellosis back to their original herds and owners.
As announced last Dec. 28, the new regulation was supposed to have taken effect March 23. However, it was postponed at the final hour to give producers and market operators more time to make arrangements.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET, AMEX

Mart Suffers Sharp Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, suffering from a new outbreak of inflation jitters, dropped sharply Tuesday in selling that wiped out the gains of the previous session.

The decline reached into just about every sector of the market with the exception of the gold issues, which often thrive on inflation fears.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 8.57 on Monday, fell back 10.13 to 845.29. It was the biggest setback for the average since it gave up 11.35 points on May 3.

New York Stock Exchange volume totaled 33.23 million shares, up from 28.68 million Monday.

Wall Streeters began the day reading news accounts of a forecast from Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, that consumer price index readings for both April and May are likely to look "pretty bad."

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated securities also included.

Weight Loss Ads Inspire Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warm weather is at hand in most of the country now and millions of Americans have tried on their bathing suits only to discover the ravages of winter feasting.

So, they have decided to lose a few pounds.

Be careful, warn experts ranging from the government to the medical societies to the Better Business Bureau.

Those enticing advertisements promising quick weight loss through new diets or special breads or other foods may only thin your wallet, the BBB warns.

And some of the special diets may be hazardous to your health. The Food and Drug Administration urges close medical supervision, particularly for persons on special protein diets.

According to the experts the key to healthy and successful weight loss lies in burning up more energy than you take in. This means exercise and careful eating.

A medical checkup is a must before any exercise program, and Better Business Bureau experts suggest working with your doctor to design an exercise program that you will enjoy.

Popularity Of Sports Vehicles Soars

DETROIT (AP) — What gets lousy gas mileage and carries kids to school, the rich to the country club, hunters through fields and a major American corporation into the black?

A phenomenally popular plaything best described as half-truck, half-station wagon. It goes by the names of Jeep, Blazer, Bronco, Scout, Ramcharger, and Trail Duster. It crashes through snowbanks and scoots up steep hills.

It is called a sport utility vehicle. And it is making big money for auto and truck makers in this country.

Sales of the costly, four-wheel-drive rigs — from $5,000 to upwards of $11,000 apiece — have more than tripled since 1970 to 258,300 vehicles in 1977. In the same period, car sales have edged up a meager 28 percent.

"We can't make enough of them," says Chevrolet of its Blazer, in a universal lament that echoes through this specialized market.

Dr. Peter Schwab is one reason. A surgeon in Bluefield, W.Va., he has a pregnant wife and three children. They are a one-car family, except that it isn't a car.

It is an air-conditioned Jeep Cherokee that Jane Schwab uses for errands and Peter takes hunting for deer, grouse and turkey. The kids fit easily in back with groceries, luggage or camping gear.

"We wanted both a family car and something to go hunting with," says Schwab, 34. "We think it's great. Jane

Sudan Music Festival Scheduled Saturday

SUDAN (Special) — Country-and-western music, fiddling and gospel singing will highlight the Sudan Music Festival at 7 p.m. Saturday at the school cafeteria here.

The free festival is sponsored by the local fire department and Lions Club on the fourth Saturday each month.

loves it. It's really easy to drive."

The Schwabs are the sort of customer Dale Dawkins talks about. Dawkins is marketing vice president at American Motors Corp., which is the clear leader in the sports utility field with 34 percent of the market.

"We see an increasing trend to a slightly younger customer with a significantly increased education and income," Dawkins says.

The buyer of Jeep's top-line Wagoneer, which starts at $10,500 and is equipped like a luxury car, is "a college educated professional making over $25,000 a year," he says.

"He uses it at the country club. It's a statement of independence. He's saying, 'I'm my own person.'"

He's also saying he is not worried about fuel economy. The buyer is looking for power, and nearly always opts for big V-8 engines that might go 12 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The prime beneficiary of all this is

AMC, which bought the Jeep line in 1970 from Kaiser-Jeep Corp. Already a household word from World War II, Jeep vehicles in 1970 had 27 percent of the sport utility market. AMC has since pushed that figure to 34 percent of a much bigger market, with Chevrolet in second place at 30 percent.

Jeeps have kept AMC hovering just above the financial break-even mark as its passenger car sales plummet. In recent months, AMC has sold nearly as many Jeeps as passenger cars.

The only cloud over the market is poor fuel economy. Starting in 1980, the Transportation Department will require four-wheel-drive light trucks — including the sport utility vehicles — to average 14 mpg. The next year the requirement will be 15.5 mpg.

Corpus Christi Making World Tanker Port Bid

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The Port of Corpus Christi is making a bid to become a major world port by deepening its channel to handle large crude oil tankers.

By expanding the depth from 45 to 72 feet, the port hopes to become the United States' first deepwater harbor facility.

The project, named "DEEPORT," also entails construction of a turning and docking basin to accommodate the world's most modern ocean-going vessels.

The facility is planned to later provide for multi-purpose use. Thus it would be able to handle ore, minerals and agricultural products as well as oil.

The Nueces County Navigation District, which is sponsoring the project, has applied for the necessary permits from the U.S. Corps of Engineers. Once the corps has public hearings this summer and if approval is granted, it would take two to three years to finish it, a spokesman said.

DEEPORT, also known as the Harbor Island Project, is opposed by local and state environmental groups, who object to further dredging.

Ned Fritz of Dallas, spokesman for the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, said it objects to heavy dredging of any kind along the coast because it wipes out the habitat for water fowl.

Fritz said Tuesday that heavy dredging is the worst kind because it takes away land for wildlife and also ruins the area where the dredging spoils are dumped.

Fritz said his committee did not object to offshore terminals because no coastline was damaged.

Five companies with operations in the Corpus Christi area are participating in plans to guarantee the revenue bonds necessary to build DEEPORT in the vicinity of Harbor Island. They are Coastal States Gas Corp., Champlin Petroleum Co., American Petrofina Pipe Line Co., Southwestern Refining Co. and Sunde Refining Co.

Companies which supported an offshore unloading dock in the Houston area, formally known as SEADOCK, have expressed interest in the DEEPORT project, a spokesman said.

SEADOCK collapsed after the pullout by several members of the consortium which was to have built it. The state has since taken up the project and is in the process of obtaining the necessary federal licenses.

The present Port of Corpus Christi is the deepest on the Gulf and few U.S. ports have deeper channels. Its Harbor Island facility, across the inner basin from Port Aransas, routinely handles the world's most modern ocean-going vessels.

In comparison, Kharg Island in Iran has a port depth of 65 feet, the port of Meena Al Ahmedi in Kuwait has a port depth of 100 feet and Saudi Arabia's port of Ras Tanura maintains a port depth of more than 50 feet.

Japan and England also have large port facilities to handle the oil tankers coming from the Middle East.

Major countries are expanding their port facilities to accommodate the very large crude carriers.

Although the Port of Corpus Christi has been a major economic factor in South Texas since its opening in 1926, its business profile has changed in recent years.

One of its principal functions now is to handle the import of crude oil for local refineries in this city and inland.

It also has the reputation of being a clean port, and records show that of more than 668 million barrels of oil moved across its docks, only 44.5 barrels have been spilled.

DEEPORT backers claim this is the best argument for those who have opposed the proposal.

"If Texas is to maintain its current position in world commerce, we simply have to remain competitive," said Bill Carl, chairman of a five-man port commission. "DEEPORT will enable shipping costs to be reduced and open new windows of trade between Texas and world markets. It will have enormous economic benefit not only to South Texas but to the entire state and the nation, as well as foreign commerce."

Methodist Ministers Named At Meeting

GLORIETA, N.M. (Special) — Ministerial appointments by Bishop Alsie Carleton Tuesday night highlighted proceedings of the 89th session of the New Mexico Conference of the United Methodist Church here.

Of interest to eastern New Mexico residents were these appointments:

Robert M. Templeton will be new minister at Albuquerque St. Paul's UMC, after serving three years as Carlsbad District Superintendent. Templeton succeeds Charles R. Thigpen who served six years at St. Paul's. Thigpen is retiring from the ministry.

Clyde R. Stanfield will become new minister at Albuquerque St. Stephen's UMC after six years at Clovis Trinity UMC. He succeeds R. Cyril Stone, who served Trinity four years and has been appointed to Lovington UMC.

Hollis Shook is new Carlsbad District Superintendent after serving three years as Director of Council on Professional Ministries and New Mexico Foundation Director in the New Mexico Conference office at Albuquerque. He succeeds Robert M. Templeton.

George F. Ritter is new minister at Hillcrest-Loving UMC in Carlsbad after two years as associate pastor at Lovington UMC. He succeeds James R. Drake who was pastor there seven years and is retiring.

J. Robert Sawyer is new pastor at Clovis Trinity UMC, coming there from Eunice UMC where he served two years.

Lawrence E. Menefee becomes new pastor at Eunice UMC after three years at Santa Rosa UMC. He succeeds Carl A. J. Robert Sawyer who goes to Clovis Trinity after two years at Eunice.

Dick L. Clemmer will be new pastor at Hobbs First UMC after five years of service at El Paso St. Mark's UMC. Clemmer succeeds John L. Carpenter who served Hobbs First four years and now goes to El Paso First UMC as pastor.

R. Cyril Stone has been named pastor of Lovington UMC after four years as minister at Albuquerque St. Stephen's. He succeeds Kenneth E. Ford, who has five years at Lovington, and now goes to Las Cruces University UMC.

Duane Knowlton will become pastor at Texaco-Farwell following three years at Cimarron-Maxwell. He succeeds Russell T. Martin who served there as pastor a year. Martin is entering Austin Presbyterian Seminary.

John L. Carpenter was appointed new pastor of El Paso First UMC, coming from four years as pastor of Hobbs First UMC. He succeeds Phillip Royal who served El Paso First two years and will become associate at El Paso St. Paul.

Kenneth E. Ford is new pastor at Las Cruces University UMC after five years at Lovington UMC. He succeeds J. Douglas Wofford who was Ministries and New Mexico Foundation Director in Albuquerque.

City High Schools' Graduation Rites To Begin Thursday

Graduation exercises for 1,903 seniors in public high schools here will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, ceremonies will be held for graduating seniors of Estacado High School in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium and for Monterey High School in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

School in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Dunbar High School in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium and Lubbock Evening High School in Wilson Junior High School auditorium.

Lubbock High School's seniors will have their graduation program at 8 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Monterey High School will graduate the most students with 660. Class sizes of the other schools are 581 for Coronado High School, 324 for Lubbock High School, 196 for Estacado High School, 113 for Dunbar High School and 29 for Lubbock Evening High School. The numbers include some students who will finish diploma requirements in July.

Safety Reminder Urged For Holiday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas motorists are being asked to turn on their low beam headlights during daylight hours of the Memorial Day weekend, Col. Wilson E. Speir said Tuesday.

The director of the Department of Public Safety said this coming weekend marks the opening of the summer vacation season and is accompanied by increased traffic in many parts of the state and nation.

ACADEMY CEREMONIES

Five seniors are expected to graduate in ceremonies for Western Hill Baptist Academy to be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Western Hill Baptist Church. Friday, 67 seniors from Lubbock Christian High School will go through ceremonies at 8 p.m. in the Moody Auditorium on Lubbock Christian College campus. Nat Cooper, an instructor at Sunset Church of Christ, will speak at the event.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

High Time For Street Signs

POSEN, Mich. (AP) — Posen is a town 108 years old, with a population of 369 and an annual Potato Festival. Now it also has street signs.

The streets always had names, but the townfolk knew them and signs weren't considered necessary.

But the Potato Festival has been known to attract as many as 20,000 tourists on a summer weekend.

So this year, there are signs proclaiming County Road 634 as State Street, M-65 as Michigan Street and a dirt road leading to the local Veterans of Foreign Wars' hall as VFW Street.

Railroad Street — you guessed it — leads to the railroad tracks.

Reaction from residents has been mixed.

"It's about time," declared one State Street resident. "What do you think — that we're going to live in the dark ages forever?"

But another citizen grumbled: "They (the council) probably had some extra tax money left over and didn't know what to do with it."

Country Finalists Named

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Finalists for male artist of the year in the 12th annual awards competition of the Music City News are Larry Gatlin, Marty Robbins, Kenny Rogers, Conway Twitty and Don Williams.

The country music newspaper says the winner will be announced June 6 during a nationally televised show from the Grand Ole Opry.

Finalists for female artist of the year are Crystal Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell and Dolly Parton.

For top single of the year, nominees are "Don't Let Me Touch You," by Robbins; "Heaven's Just A Sin Away," by the Kendalls; "Luckenbach, Texas," by Waylon Jennings; "My Way" by Elvis Presley; and "You Light Up My Life" by Debby Boone.

Anita Bryant Defends Stand

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Singer Anita Bryant says her fight against gay rights legislation was worth the effort because of the number of homosexuals she said were led to change their ways.

"If I had to go through the whole hell of the past year again, I would do it because of the thousands of ex-homosexuals we've heard from who have been delivered," she said. "They've been liberated."

Miss Bryant sang and addressed about 10,000 persons Monday at a free event sponsored by the Greater Pittsburgh Charismatic Conference.

The 38-year-old mother of four became a controversial figure last year when she led a successful fight to overturn a gay rights ordinance in Dade County, Fla.

Violinist Zimbalist Treated

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Violinist Efreim Zimbalist Sr., 89, was listed in good condition Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital where he was undergoing treatment for pneumonia.

Zimbalist was hospitalized Friday, a hospital spokeswoman said. His son, actor Efreim Zimbalist Jr., flew here Sunday to be with him.

Zimbalist's health deteriorated shortly after an 89th birthday party April 30 at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He taught and served as director of the school before moving here in 1968 following his retirement.

Proper Marriage Made Legal

SEATTLE (AP) — In the eyes of God — if not of City Hall — Sam and Esther Funes have been properly married for more than a half-century.

Still, they returned to the altar for a second time.

"We were married quite religiously by quite proper rabbis in a quite proper synagogue," Funes said as the couple exchanged vows again Monday before Judge Charles M. Stokes.

"But the rabbis in 1924 were a bit more forgetful than today, and they forgot to register the marriage or obtain a civic license."

Actor Helps Make Arrest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terry Carter's scene was right out of one of his scripts, but he wasn't acting when he chased a man through Washington streets and helped make an arrest.

Carter, who for seven years portrayed a police detective on the "McCloud" television series, said he "got carried away" Monday night when he saw a man run from a restaurant followed by a woman yelling, "Stop, thief."

Police said Carter drove after the man and ran stop signs, cut off vehicles and jumped curbs before finally apprehending him.

The man, identified as Oscar Lee Johnson, 22, of Washington, was arrested and charged with robbery for stealing a purse. "I guess I'm still playing that role," Carter said of his "McCloud" days.

'Dirty Books' Bore Actress

NEW YORK (AP) — Jaclyn Smith, who stars in the upcoming TV movie "The Users," says she's not going to read the book the movie is based on because "I don't read dirty books."

"After 10 pages, they're all boring," said Miss Smith, a member of the "Charlie's Angels" cast.

The sexually explicit Joyce Haber novel is about a former prostitute who marries a movie star and becomes Hollywood's leading hostess.

"I won't be using the language that was in the book," Miss Smith says in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal. "I would never have taken the part if it were a feature film with all the language and the nude scenes that would have been required ... Sex is implied in this movie, but there are no sex scenes. No nude scenes."

"The Users" is scheduled to be broadcast in the fall.

Woody's Secret Revealed

NEW YORK (AP) — Academy Award-winner Woody Allen, who has kept the lid on information about his forthcoming movie, has had his veil of secrecy lifted.

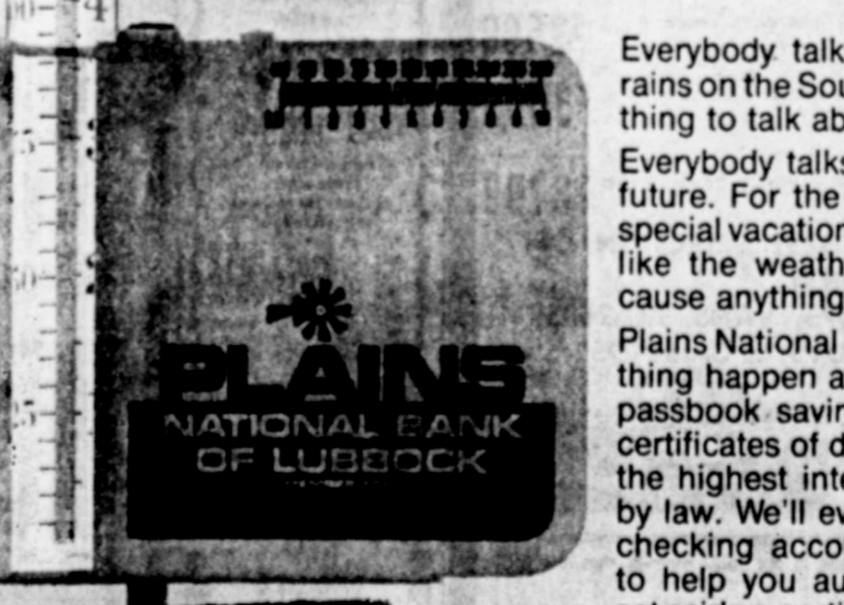

Cecce Wasserman of Larchmont, N.Y., owner of the house used in the movie as the home of actress Diane Keaton, says in the current issue of Ladies' Home Journal that the movie will be a drama in which Miss Keaton plays a self-searching writer, wife and mother. In the movie, she will play the wife of actor Richard Jordan.

According to Mrs. Wasserman, Allen WOODY ALLEN described his feelings about switching from comedy to drama as "apprehensive, insecure and totally out of my element. It's like taking a cold shower."

Savings for a rainy day makes good sense at Plains.

Everybody talks about the weather. And when it rains on the Southern High Plains that's really something to talk about.

Everybody talks about saving some money for the future. For the children's college expenses. For a special vacation. For emergencies. For security. But, like the weather, talking about savings doesn't cause anything to happen.

Plains National Bank can help you make something happen about your savings. With passbook savings accounts and certificates of deposit. Both pay the highest interest permitted by law. We'll even draft your checking account monthly to help you automatically set aside a portion of your earnings for that future need.

Next time you want to talk about the weather, talk to your rain maker. Next time you want to talk about savings, talk to Plains National Bank.
