PITTSBURGH - For three hours workers tried to free Ralph Winner's shattered leg from collapsed bridge girders. Then as a light rain fell, a surgeon climbed to narrow beam high above the Monongahela River and cut off the screaming ironworker's right leg.

"I have never had to make a decision to do what we did today, said Dr. Ronald Stewart, head of the Presbyterian-University Hospital emergency crew who ordered the amputation Tuesday. "I hope I never have to make it again.

It was either take Winner's lee or risk collapse of the shaky bridge, officials said, which would have endangered the lives of Winner and a crew of paramedics.

Winner, although sedated with morphine and shock-stemming fluids, remained awake during the ordeal on the 126-foot-high bridge

Paramedics said it took less than five minutes for Dr. Joseph Young to cut off Winner's leg at the knee.

"We thought we were losing him. We were just running out of time," said Glenn Cannon, director of the city's medical emergency team.

Winner, 48, of suburban North Hills and employed by Martin's Explosive Corp. of Anchorage, Alaska, was listed in good condition late Tuesday at Presbyterian Hospital after more than two hours in the operating room there. The additional surgery completed the amputation of his right leg and repaired bone, muscle and tendon damage to his left leg.

Winner was listed in fair condition today.

Court Backs City, School Tax System

Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a case without precedent in Texas. the state Supreme Court today upheld the Lubbock city-school tax department's practice of re-evaluating property on a four-year cycle.

The Supreme Court affirmed lower court rulings that such a re-evaluation system, in which each quadrant of the city is reappraised on a rotating basis every four years, is legal.

We won," declared Jim Brewster, civil trial attorney for the City of Lubbock.

This is a landmark The case grew out of a tax lawsuit filed in Lubbock's 140th District Court in 1975 by Brunken Toyota, Pollard Friendly

Ford and Don Crow Chevrolet.

Among other things, they questioned the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District's "selective reevaluation of...certain segments of the mmunity" for individual tax years

In any given year, they said, when one quadrant of the city is reappraised "without a corresponding adjustment in the values of other segments of the community." property owners in the reappraised quadrant end up paying a disproportionate share of taxes.

Brewster had argued that the staggered re-evaluation system is "equal and uniform." In a brief to the Supreme Court, he said differences in assessments in any given year are not all that great from quadrant to quadrant. And the reappraisals average out for all properties over the four-year cycle, Brewster said.

Though most big cities re-evaluate property on a rotating basis, the Lubbock suit represented the first time a cyclical reappraisal program had been challed at the state level in Texas.

Without writing its own opinion, the ruling of the state's 11th District Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland. Like the 140th District Court, the Eastland justices had sided with the cityschool tax department.

The Eastland court had said that while a staggered re-evaluation system may have some flaws, it does not constitute 'intentional discrimination" against any particular taxpayers.

The court said the city-school tax office here is making an "honest effort to equalize all properties which time, ability the court added that "exact uniformity and equality in taxation is virtually im possible to achieve" anyway.

The car dealers contended that the cyclical re-evaluation process causes some taxpayers to pay higher taxes for a time than persons in other parts of the city that had not yet been reappraised.

Brewster argued that it would be great if the city-school tax office could reap praise all property every year. But nei

The next best thing. Brewster said, is to reappraise property on a rotating basis with all parts of the city treated lairly

The cyclical re-evaluation program is "practical, just and essential," Brewster said after the Supreme Court ruling.

Young Says Sadat Popular

LONDON (AP) - U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young says Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is the most popular man in the United States — more popular, even, than his boss, President Carter. Young, quoted today in the magazine The Middle East, published in London, said: "The Americans were so taken with the sincerity and courage of (Sadat's) peace initiative that he almost single-handedly balanced what had been an irrevocable 30-year commitment to Israel which did not consider what the Arab world wanted.

SADAT Sadat, Young said, is "the most popular man in the United States, bar none, including President Carter, unfortunately."

Young credited Sadat's peace initiative with helping to win congressional approval for the package sale of warplanes to Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Israel.

Young said the United States has not abandoned its commitment to Israel, but that it would now also consider "the needs, aspirations and expectations of the entire Arab world, and not only those of Egypt."

Teen-Ager Charged In Shooting Of Lost Visitor

CHICAGO (UPI) - An 18-year-old black youth has been charged with attempted murder in the shooting of a white youth from Ohio who got lost and wandered into a predominantly black neighborhood

"I was just walking, minding my own business, trying to find my way," said Ronald Schultz of Toledo, Ohio. "I lost my way. I became frightened. I didn't know where I was."

Police said Tuesday the shooting on Chicago's near North Side apparently was racially motivated and that the victim was surrounded and taunted by a group of 15-20 blacks when he was shot in the neck on Sunday. After he was shot, police said, several persons robbed him and fled.

"They went at him like piranhas," an Clifford Finley of Chicago was charged with attempted murder, aggravated battery, armed violence and attempted armed robery. Ordered held on $250,000 bond, Finley has been arrested 16 times since he was 9 years old.

Schultz was paralyzed from the waist down and was listed in fair condition at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

Schultz, a member of a bowling team in town for competition, left his teammates at a restaurant and was walking back to his hotel. His route took him near the Cabrini-Green housing project, a predomi-nantly black-area with a high-crime reputation

Police said Schultz met two men near Cabrini-Green and either asked for directions or was forced to accompany them.

At an intersection, they told him, "you owe us some more money." Schultz did not resist, but one man pulled a gun and shot him, authorities said. "He tried to rob me, but he never gave me a chance to give him the money, Schultz said. "The next thing I knew, this guy shot me."

TRAVEL ON A BUDGET

Cars Need Rest On Vacation

Next vacation, why not give your car a holiday too? Here are some economical alternatives to traveling via the family car:

If you will need a car at your vacation spot, consider renting one after reaching your destination by plane, train or bus. Investigate money-saving "fly-drive," "rail-drive" and "bus-drive" packages.

Compare the rates of several car rental companies. Some may offer discounts, depending on when you rent the car and how long you keep it.

Most rental companies offer "unlimited milage" options, which are usually more economical than plans that charge by the mile.

You'll save on both rental fees and gasoline by selecting a small, energy-efficient car. Place your request early, because economy models are in great de-Credit cards can make renting a car considerably easier. If you have none, you may have to go through a time-consuming credit check and put up a cash depos-

Inspect the car before driving off. Make sure the tank is full and the vehicle is in good condition, with any damage noted on your contract.

Turn in the car at the office where you rented it. Otherwise, you may have to pay a sizable "drop-off" fee. Return the car with a full tank of gas. It usually costs more if the car is filled at the company's own pump. "Drive-away" companies need drivers to transport their customer's cars. If your schedule is flexible, you can sign up with one of these firms to drive a car to your destination. All you pay for is gas and oil. Be patient if you want to get to Floriada in July, though. Heaviest traffic is to the North and East in summer and to the West and South in winter. Don't plan to do much sightseeing on the way; you must take the most direct route and cover at least 400 miles a day.

Before you can drive one of its client's cars, the company will check out several local references. You may also have to pay a deposit, which will be refunded by the company or owner when you reach your destination. (A typical deposit for a trip between Miami and New York is $50.)

Another cheap means of transportation is sharing expenses with somebody pairs, but it's no way for a family of eight to make a trip.

Colleges frequently have bulletin boards listing people seeking rides and ri-

Or you might wish to join Peoples Transhares, a nationwide non-profit organization that matches those needing rides with drivers and pilots.

After paying a $15 annual membership fee, you can call the organization's tollfree number for addresses and telephone numbers of those going your way. A Peoples Transhares spokeswoman claims a rider has an 85 percent cahnce of getting a lift if he or she calls at least a week before departure.

For more information, write to Peoples Transhares, P.O. Box 40303, Portland

Why not take a vacation from driving with a train or bus trip? You can admire the countryside or read a good book in climate-controlled comfort while somebody else does the driving.

You'll arrive at your destination more relaxed. And, unlike air travelers, you will disembark right in the center of town.

Amtrak, the nation's passenger rail corporation, and the two major bus companies offer special passes for unlimited travel.

The U.S. Rail Pass allows you to ride along the country's 27,000 miles of Amtrak and Southern rail lines for 14, 21 or 30 days.

Greyhound's Ameripass and Trailways' Eaglepass entitle you to travel by bus throughout the U.S. and Canada for 15, 30 or 60 days. If the bus company from which you bought the pass does not serve a city you want to visit, chances are your pass will be honored by a carrier that does.

But make sure you will save money by buying a pass instead of individual tickets. The rail pass costs more than the bus passes and increases the price during

Also inquire about the other discount train and bus fares. Under Amtrak's family plan, for example, the head of the household pays full fare, his or her spouse and children from age 12 to 21 pay 75 percent, children from age 2 to 11 pay 37.5 percent and those under two ride free. This plan does not apply to trips beginning on Friday or Sunday.

Federal Trade Commission reports. An FTC report noted that the nation's cigarette manufacturers sold 603.2 billion cigarettes in 1975, an increase of 9 billion

But a separate report said cigarettes now contains less tar and nicotine, substances which experts feel are harmful to

The 3-year-old cigarette production figure - the latest available - actually translated into a slight decrease in average consumption among adults. The adult population rose faster than cigarette production between 1974 and 1975.

The average American over 18 years of age consumed 4,095 cigarettes in 1975 compared to 4.110 the previous year. That's 11.2 cigarettes a day in 1975.

We do not figure young people into the statistics, even though we know that some of those 603 billion cigarettes were smoked by children," said FTC spokesman Russell Hatchl. 'You have to set an arbitrary cutoff rettes are smoked by adults. We divide the number of cigarettes sold by the number of Americans over 18, including those in that age group serving in the Armed Forces overseas.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano has started a full-scale campaign in schools to discourage smoking because the Department of Health, Education and Welfare believes smoking is increasing among young people.

"At the same time this report shows another increase in cigarettes sold," Hatchl said, "an accompanying report also notes tar and nicotine consumption are going down for two reasons:

"-Mainly because manufacturers are cutting back on tar and nicotine, even in their regular brands.

"-A lot of people are switching to lower tar and nicotine brands. A new table released by the FTC this week said the weighted average tar and nicotine value of all cigarettes sold domestically is declining.

The weighted average tar figures for all cigarettes was 21.55 milligrams in 1968 and 18.07 milligrams in 1976, a decline of 3.48 milligrams," the FTC said.

Slam At The Slums

A PAST-DUE crackdown on unsafe and unsanitary living conditions here may be undertaken in the wake of a Texas Supreme Court decision putting more of a legal obligation on landords, Mayor Dirk West says.

The justices ruled that tenants can sue a landlord who doesn't keep rental units fit for human habitation, but the mayor says the City might take an activist role on the side of the tenants.

If so, the City must also make an effort to protect the rights of landlords against malicious destruction of property by tenants.

A STAFF-PROPOSED ordinance, drafted last year at the request of Councilman Carolyn Jordan, would empower the City to investigate a tenant's complaints and, if necessary, set up an escrow account to finance needed improvements.

If a zoning inspector found that an apartment, for example, failed to meet minimum standards for heating, ventilation, weatherproofing, plumbing or electrical wiring, rent would be paid into the escrow account and the landlord would get nothing until the repairs were made.

Judge Gewin's opinion, rebuffing some ingen-

The regulations wouldn't exactly overturn Judge Gewin's opinion, but they would broaden

That is putting government deeply into the business of arbitrating disputes between landlords and tenants and it is a step which requires cool-headed debate before any move

There can be no question, however, but that the recent court ruling gives the City more clout to require landlords to keep housing units from deteriorating into slums.

TENANTS OF SUCH places historically have been at a distinct disadvantage. If they complained, slumlords could threaten them with eviction, a chilling prospect for someone who might not be able to find any better

Of course, landlords have their troubles. too. Not only do they sometimes lose rent owed by tenants, they also are victimized by vandalism and neglect of their properties by thoughtless and-or malicious tenants.

The City's role, whatever form it takes, must be one of protecting the innocent tenant from exploitation by ruthless landlords and at the same time of not letting destructive tenants take advantage of landlords who themselves are victimized by deliberate damage to their rental units.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA.-President Gene A. Budig, 38, of this institution is reputedly the youngest college head in the country, and of a comprehensive land grant college which has sent 18 Rhodes Scholars to Oxford, far more than any school its size.

The reason for West Virginia's good record is not Dr. Budig, who though a sharp and popular educator, has been here hardly more than a year. It is the peculiar aptitude of the 22,000-member student body and even more so of the community it draws upon.

Next to Montana, West Virginia has the largest percentage of farm families, yet their meager income is beneath the earth, in coal deposits, rather than in crops and cattle which are secondary

WHY THIS COMBINATION of low but not poverty income should produce aggressive ambition, and the intelligence to match it, is best left to the psychologists, but in 1807 a thoughtful former President, John Adams, had an idea. Adams wrote that the American Revolution would not be understood until the individual states had made their own history. By this time in the 20th century, we know of

West Virginia that in two world wars, its young men didn't wait to be drafted. That absentee ownership of its natural resources never sapped the mountaineer spirit of freedom-loving and that the desire for self-improvement is what one of the state historians, John A. Williams, calls "a particularly strident form of state patriotism."

THERE WAS AN outburst of this in 1974-75 when the rural fundamentalists took arms against proposed changes in the school textbooks which seemed to threaten the old-fashioned religion.

One important difference between the Appalachian Virginians and the plantation Virginians of the east is that the former did their own work and relished it.

Energy is still the watchword. The Rhodes scholars on whom I was able to check, have been football captains, high up in New York and Philadelphia law firms, university faculty scholars and committee chairmen. But postwar technology has been the most visible and nationally significant manifestation of energy.

Proposals Put Premium On Dependency Deducts

YOUR DEPENDENCY deductions, always valuable, could become even more so should the White House's tax proposals become law, for several itemized deductions would simply be wiped

This puts a premium on nailing down now every dependency deduction you can get-and there are ways to do this that may pleasantly surprise you. Some developments actually could save you extra taxes.

The basic rules: You're entitled to the $750 exemption for a dependent if he or she (1) has less than $750 income and (2) you provide more than one-half the support for the dependent.

THE EXCEPTIONS: The $750 test does not apply if (1) the dependent is under 19; or (2) is a full-time student. And (3) most important, taxfree income such as Social Security does not count for the income test.

In all three cases, though, you still must supply more than half the support before you get the deduction-and the good news here is that each year the IRS seems to make it easier to provide that support. . The IRS recently announced that capital out-If any such rules, regulations and laws had been lays-TV sets, autos, etc.-count as support for in effect in 1966, when treasure salvor Melvin dependents and can help you meet the more-than-half support needed to claim the deduction. Say your daughter, Sue, is a full-time college student. She will earn $2,100 in 1978 and you'll give her $1,900 in cash to cover the rest of her support. You also buy her a $300 TV set for her room. Until recently, you lost a dependency deduction on Sue; your $1,900 was less than 50 per cent of her support. luck, and his own initiative that put together a BUT UNDER THE new IRS ruling, the $300 gift counts as support you provide, which brings your contribution to $2,200, more than Sue's $1.-900. And although Sue earns more than $750, that income limit doesn't apply to a child under age 19 or a full-time student. Now suppose you buy and finance a $2,500 used car for Sue, put up only $500 of the total cost in '78. What counts for support, $500 or $2,-500? The answer is $2,500-another big break. For what you provide as support counts as soon as it is received, not when you actually pay for it. As long as Sue gets the car this year, the entire $2,500 cost counts as support. But whatever you do, don't make the costly error so many taxpayers already have. The cost of the car or TV set or whatever is not deductible. That's not the point here. The only point is that the cost of the item counts toward the more-thanhalf support test.

ALSO, WARNS Prentice-Hall, you must handle all this right!

Example 1: You give your mother, whose only income is Social Security, a TV set for her bed-

Result: The TV set counts as support you provide. But if your mother leaves the set in the famifamily item and its cost doesn't count for depend-

Example 2: You buy a car, title and register it in your name. But your son uses it about half the ency purposes. It's not for your mother's exclu-

Result: No part of the car's cost counts as support, for you own the car and merely permit your son to use it. What to do: Put the title and register the auto in your son's name, if he will be using it most of the time. This way, the car becomes a gift to your son, counts with your other support costs. EXAMPLE 3: Your student son, Bob, a freshman in college, also has a part-time job, wants to buy a $4,000 car this year. He has saved $1,000 for the downpayment. You provide $3,000 for his support. Wrong way: Bob buys the car in his name, puts the $1,000 down. You lose the dependency deduc-tion, because the full cost of the car is treated as support Bob provides for himself this year. Even though he puts down only $1,000 in '78, he gets credit for $4,000 of support. What to do: Put the $1,000 of your $3,000 in support toward the car, let Bob apply his $1,000 toward the other support. It hasn't cost you one cent more (you're still giving $3,000 cash) but you get the full dependency deduction. Bob gets his own dependency exemption too. Everyone is a winner. (Tomorrow: More vital tips on dependency de-

Dr. John Andrew Shea of the Lahey Clinic's gastroenterology department said EPT enables doctors to cut through the common bile ducts where gallstones are found, "widening it to allow the stones to pass through into the intes-

Shea, performing the EPT process with Dr. Frederick W. Heiss, said the new procedure does not require major surgery.

"If the gallstones do not pass spontaneously, they can be retrieved with a special basket device inserted through the endoscope," he said.

Gallstones are formed by crystallization of cholesterol in the bile. Previously if the gallstones did not pass through the bile duct spontaneously, a surgical procedure called a choledocholithotomy was

About 400,000 people per year undergo surgery for gallstones, the Lahey Clinic said. About 10 percent of those treated will later retain their stones in the bile duct, which connects the liver with the intestines, resulting in a second operation more complicated than the first.

The EPT procedure, devised by German and Japanese researchers, involves cutting into the distap muscular valve of the bile duct. The opening created is large enough for gallstones to pass into the intestine

Most of the stones pass spontaneously. Those that do not can be removed with a wire basket similar to that used to remove kidney stones through the bladder. "In Europe, EPT has been done in well over 2,000 patients," Heiss said. "The safety and efficiency of this procedure is Thats more than three times the normal turnout on a good summer day in this old seaside resort.

And police are worried, even ready to close off the highways if necessary.

"I don't think the sky will fall on Atlantic City, but there may come a time when you simply have to tell people there just isn't any room at the inn," said Col. Clinton Pagano, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police.

It's the "inn" that's giving the police headaches.

favors the regulation, which optometrists are expected to challenge in court.

The commission proposed the regulation in 1976 after surveys of eyeglass prices showed variations of up to 350 percent in the same city for identical glasses.

The New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs found that prices for an identical frame with single-vision lenses varied in the state from $16 to $55. Other studies showed variations of up to 250 percent in New York City and 300 per cent in Ohio.

The commission staff found that the price differences hurt the elderly most. More than 93 percent of the population over 65 wears eyelasses, it estimates.

Some 112 million Americans, or about half the population, wear either glasses or contact lenses. Consumers spend more than $4 billion per year on eyeglasses and examinations, the commission says.

President Carter Hopes Gary's Black Mayor Will Join Staff

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — President
Carter is losing some highly placed blacks from his executive office staff even as he continues his effort to recruit a promi-nent member of the race for his personal senior staff.

Against this backdrop, it seemed a bit strange last week that the White House passed up a chance to do some tub-thumping to promote a new presidential initiative on behalf of women and minori-

On May 15, at an hour when relatively few reporters were at the White House, the office of press secretary Jody Powell handed out, without explanation or elaboration, the text of an executive order dealing with panels Carter created to recommend nominees for vacant federal circuit court judgeships.

Only a line-by-line comparison of this document with a similar order Carter issued a month after taking office revealed that the only difference between them was the addition of the following sentence in the 1978 version:

"Each panel is encouraged to make special efforts to seek out and identify well qualified women and members of minority groups as potential nominees. As president, Carter has nominated 10 circuit judges. None was a woman but three were members of minorities - two

Jay Solomon, administrator of the General Services Administration, of which the National Archives is a part, said that the exhibition, "Taking the Measure of the Land," depicts the development of the nation from 1769 to the present. It is sponsored by the Olympus Corp. It includes a 13-foot square, 2,000 pound re-creation of the Gettysburg battlefield, produced over three years by 50 men and so detailed that even rocks and shrubs are identified.

The collection is curretnly at the IDS Tower in Minneapolis and will run through Sept. 4. Then it goes to the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin, to historical societies in Chicago, Dallas and other cities.

Organized into categories of exploration, science, survey and military map-ping, and focusing on westward expansion, the exhibition ranges in time from a Georgia plantation map drawn in 1769 to a 1974 space satellite photograph of the Chesapeake Bay. Among the highlights:

-A map by explorers Lewis and Clark of the new Louisiana Purchase Treaty lands before they began their explora-

-Small renderings of the California gold rush fields in 1848 by William Tecumseh Sherman, then a lieutenant;

-The map that accompanied the Army's report on the battle of Little Big Horn, with "Xs" marking where the bodies of Gen. George Custer's slain troopers

The Gettysburg map, in 20 sections and weighing a ton with its case, was compiled by the Army Engineers in 1868-69 and revised in 1873. The detailed color rendering shows contours, woods and drainage patterns, lists names of resi-dents and shows where military forces were positioned Acquired by the National Archives in 1946, this treasure has since been seen only by staff and researchers.

There are also photographs by Mat-thew Brady and others, a field notebook kept by John Wesley Powell during his western survey in 1871-78, a theodolite used for computing distance and eleva-tion and a 19th century dry-plate camera of the kind used in survey expeditions.

In response to a question, Carter's deputy press secretary, Rex Granum, sug-gested no special effort was made to call attention to the executive order because the president had made a one-sentence reference to it in his much-publicized May 4 Law Day address in Los Angeles.

But few headlines on that occasion dealt with the planned order. The big news was Carter's scolding lecture to the legal profession. Meanwhile, White House aides say the president remains hopeful that Richard G. Hatcher, the black mayor of Gary, Ind., will agree to join the White House on the senior staff but no blacks.

Coincidentally, five blacks holding staff positions within the Executive Office of the President have quit or are about the leave. At least two of them are known to be unhappy about life in the Carter administration, but some others are getting better jobs.

Lawrence A. Bailey, a deputy assistant to Carter who worked with Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson, quit to go with the First African-Arabian Corp. He was displeased about limited opportunity to influence policy.

Two other blacks lost their jobs as part of a staff reorganization.

ment, no matter how firmly held, may have to be revised in time.

That may not be much solace for Jimmy Carter, who seems to be coming in these days for an extraordinary quantity of criticism from his expected enemies and from his natural friends, too.

What they said against Lincoln is what they are saying against Carter, too. A new Lincoln biography — "With Malice To-ward None" by Stephen B. Oates makes this clear.

The president is indecisive, his critics

When Lincoln had been in office a month, Republicans were distressed by his inablity to reach a deciscon. Secretary of State William H. Seward wrote a memo to Lincoln: "We are at the end of a month's administration and yet without a policy either domestic or foreign."

The New York Times ran an editorial headlined, "Wanted: A Policy."

The president is inconsistent, his critics First Lincoln fought freedom for the slaves, arguing the Civil War was a battle to end an insurrection, not a regional institution. Then he favored a gradual emancipation with compensation for the slave owners. Then he freed most the slaves in the Emancipation Proclamation without owner compensation. The president is a political bunglar, his

By the end of 1861, Lincoln opposed using freed slaves as soldiers. Secretary of War Simon Cameron published a report declaring the slaves should be emancipattried to retrieve Cameron's report to delete the unauthorized statements. Both found their way into print - some papers printed both versions side by side - and Lincoln looked inept, out of his depths.

Lincoln was a Lincoln critic, too. Lincoln did not see himself in the majestic place history gives him. He doubted his chances of re-election. At one bad point in the war, he said, "We are now on the brink of destruction. It appears to me the Almighty is against us, and I can hardly see a ray of hope.

Late in his first term, he confessed, "I claim not to have controlled events but confess plainly that events have controlled me."

If Carter is critical of his own performance, he has managed to keep that secret. Nor can Carter's critics match Lincoln's for intensity or meanness.

Maritime Industry Sees Economic Pearl Harbor

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The nation's ailing maritime industry is seeking new federal help to avoid what it sees as an impending disaster threatening the "eco-nomic equivalent of a Pearl Harbor."

With business losses caused by rising costs and increasing competition, industry leaders foresee a loss of more than 45,000 jobs - mostly minorities in chronic unemployment areas - in the next 10

Thirty years ago, according to James M. Barker, chairman of the industrysponsored National Maritime Council board, 4,000 U.S. merchant ships carried nearly 60 percent of the nation's foreign trade. Today 557 American ships carry

"It's as if this nation were waiting for the economic equivalent of a Pearl Harbor before taking action," Barker said in a speech. The industry, which has had federal financial assistance for a number of years and in fiscal 1978 is ticketed for nearly $560 million in construction, operating and other subsidies, sees a glimmer of hope from both the White House and Capitol Hill.

President Carter recently ordered a sixmonth study of the industry, and several bills in Congress are aimed at easing some of the problems.

The industry sees its major problem as competition from foreign government-owned and sponsored carriers. They have been steadily strengthening their position on traditional American flag trade routes, especially in commerce with Third World countries.

Industry spokesmen express particular concern with the "Russian threat" a Soviet fleet with four times as many oceangoing vessels as its U.S. counterpart, ranking eighth in the world. The U.S. fleet is tenth.

Speaking of the Soviet fleet, a House committee spokesman said "It doesn't have to make a profit," and regularly cuts freight rates by as much as 40 per-

Barker, in an interview, predicted the United States "will be strategically de-pendent on the Russians for general cargo shipping services in five to 10 years."

Heavy competition also comes from flag of convenience ships, which some industry members refer to as "flags of necessity". These are ships owned by American interests, registered in foreign countries such as Liberia and Panama and sailing under their flags.

By registering ships abroad, American owners are not subject to U.S. taxes, pay nance and safety standards.

Under these conditions, spokesmen claim, they can compete betchant and tanker fleets, one-third Ameri-

But unlike U.S. flag ships, Americanowned flag of conven not always be subject to U.S. foreign policy mandates. This was shown during the 1973 Arab-Israeli Yom Kippur war when Liberia tried to ban ships flying its flag from serving the combatants. At the time, the United States was making strenuous efforts to resupply Israel.

President Carter's order for an interagency overview of the maritime industries' problems has been received with relief by industry members and federal departments with maritime interests.

"It's coming at an extremely important time in the history of merchant maritime affairs," Barker said, "and it's about time for a complete policy reorganization, not from the bottom in piecemeal fashion (but) from the executive branch.

The bills submitted in Congress include a House measure on "closed confer-ences," agreements which limit other flag fleets' participation in regular U.S.

The United States permits shipping companies worldwide to operate in its routes in a free competition atmosphere, Barker said, setting no limit on the tonnage - cargo carrying capability - other countries can inject into the U.S. market.

There has been rampant overbuilding in the shipping world, so we've become the dumping ground for all the world to put into our trades," he said.

"We will eventually have to reach closed conferences or establish more bilateral (country-to-country direct exchange shipping) agreements to put restrictions on third flag fleets - ships from countries not directly involved in the trade exchange - but the bill as now sented will receive opposition from the Justice Department.

A Justice Department spokesman confirmed the agency's opposition to the bill, saying closed conferences are tantamount to cartels, creating monopolistic

AT&T Supports Inflation Fight

NEW YORK (AP) - President Carter has won support from a third corporate giant for his strategy of urging business and labor leaders to voluntarily limit price and pay increases, but there were ill tidings in Washington on the cost of General Motors and Ford, which had pledged earlier to reduce raises for management personnel, were joined Tuesday by the nation's largest corporation, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which said it would adopt a limited program of price and salary restraints.

AT&T's announcement came as Robert Strauss, Carter's chief inflation fighter. warned that the April inflation rate would be "a great deal less than good." The annual rate based on increases in the first quarter of this year was 9.3 percent. In other economic news:

-Former Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns suggested a voluntary 10 percent pay cut for the president, all his appointees and members of Congress. He also wants a two-year pay freeze for top corporate executives.

-Agriculture Department sources reported that consumer food costs are rising faster than expected this year. Beef prices, which are rising by 16 percent to 18 percent, could push the overall food

USDA Release Termed Too Complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department news release asking for public help in putting government regulations into plain English the way President Carter wants was delayed this week because it was too hard to understand.

The news release finally was issued Tuesday, a day after the formal legal proposal appeared in the Federal Register, the official vehicle for announcing new government rules.

But, said Agriculture Department sources who declined to be named, the news release had to be cleared through several top department officials before it could be given reporters.

One official "made a correction in the draft which made it more complicated to read and that had to be straightened out before the final version could be issued." one source said.

On March 23, Carter directed that "regulations be written in plain English" and that other steps be followed to make federal rules more responsive to public

Death Probe Continuing

SEAGRAVES (Special) - A ruling remained pending this morning in the death of a Gaines County sheriff's deputy thought to be in his early 40s.

Deputy John Larry Cox Sr. was found dead at his Seagraves home about 9 p.m. Monday, according to Gaines County Justice of the Peace Fred Connally. Cox was discovered by his wife, Connally said, and had reportedly been shot. Gaines County Sheriff Ed Welch would not say whether authorities suspect foul play was involved in the death. "They just don't know yet," said Sgt. Jesse Priest of the Texas Rangers, who are also investgating the death. Welch said an autopsy had been performed Tuesday, but results had not come back this morning. He said the investigation would probably continue "for at least a week."

Murders, Fatalities Top Death Figures

Not counting suicides, 30 persons in Lubbock have died violently this year and right now traffic accidents and murders are vying for the killer title.

There have been an equal number of criminal homicides and traffic fatalities - 15 - in Lubbock in less than five months. Those figures represent almost twice as many murders as this time last year, and almost as many traffic fatalities for the same period of time during 1977's record-breaking year. The city's latest homicide occurred at 1:53 a.m. today when 17-year-old Javier Gutierrez died at Methodist Hospital. Gutierrez, who lived at 1831 San Jose Drive, was found in the 2100-block of Emory Street where he reportedly was shot about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

A woman at the scene told police the victim had fought with another man in front of the apartment just before the shooting. Other witnesses provided the same description of the suspect and of the vehicle which left the area after the

Highway Crew Finds Body Near Andrews

A-J Correspondent

ANDREWS — Highway construction workers Tuesday discovered the body of an unidentified man in a gravel pile alongside Texas 176, about 15 miles east

Workers resurfacing the desolate twolane road found the man lying face down at the base of a four-foot high gravel pile and immediately notified the Andrews County Sheriff's Department.

"We've got a body. We haven't identi-fied him. That's what we're working on now," Sheriff Bud Gregory said late Tuesday. The sherifi speculated that the man, who had been shot in the chest and right hand, had been dead for several hours and was partially covered by gravel used in road work. The sheriff said the man was white, in his early 30s, six feet tall, weighed 150 pounds and had short, light brown curly hair. He was wearing khaki trousers and a short-sleeved brown-checkered Western shirt. "He had socks on, but no shoes," the sheriff added.

"We found no physical evidence at the scene to help us in identifying him," Gregory said. "Right now, we're just waiting to see if anybody calls us on it."

Justice of the Peace Jay Williams pronounced the man dead, withholding a ruling pending the results of Tuesday night's autopsy. The body was taken to the Easterling Funeral Home in Odessa.

After Tuesday's autopsy, Odessa officials today will be fingerprinting the body and taking dental x-rays in efforts to identify the man.

Charge Filed In Shooting Of City Man

A San Angelo man was charged Tuesday with aggravated assault in connec tion with a weekend incident which left a gunshot victim in critical condition

Named in the charge was Herbert Lewis, 50. The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $2,500 bond.

Lewis is accused of shooting Jessie Coleman Jr., 45, of 1817 E. 1st St., late Saturday. Coleman, who reportedly was shot in the abdomen and chest, remained in serious condition today at Methodist

The shooting incident is alleged to have occurred about 11:15 p.m. Saturday in the 1600-block of Vanda Avenue.

A witness told police Coleman was standing, arguing with another man who was in a car. The witness said the other man reached out the car window and began shooting.

Reports say Lewis was arrested about 11:49 p.m. Saturday after his car was spotted traveling south in the 8600-block of U.S. 87. Officers reportedly confiscated a .38-caliber pistol from the car. In another case, Timothy Grady Farrell, 18, of 2021 37th St., and Shawn Lee Babel, 17, of 3702 Ave. U, have been charged with theft. The pair are accused of stealing tools valued at approximately $800 from a pickup truck parked at 5406 8th St. The alleged theft was discovered

Frank M. Lara, 18, of 2416 E. 6th St., and Oscar Torrez, 18, of 2003 E. 7th St., have been charged with burglary of a vehicle. The two are accused of illegally en-tering a vehicle parked at a club lot at 1800 E. Broadway May 19. The Texas Tech University student was killed instantly when the 1976 BMW sedan he was driving went out of control in the 1400-block of S. Loop 289 at 6: 10 p.m.

Tuesday. A passenger in the vehicle, 24-year-old David V. Collins of 319 Sherman Ave., was in serious condition in Methodist Hospital today.

Witnesses at the scene near the Tahoka Highway said the car was travelling in the westbound lane when the driver ap parently attempted to change lanes and lost control. Reports indicated the auto crossed the median, overturned and skidded on its top before coming to rest in a field near the access road.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled the death an accident. Services for Scott are pending with Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral

At this point in 1977, 18 persons had been killed in traffic accidents. A total of 51 persons died in such mishaps before the year ended.

For the same period of time, Lubbock had recorded only eight murders in 1977. and did not chalk up 15 until July 19.

Lubbock Man Named In Murder Case

A 23-year-old Lubbock man today was charged with murder in connection with the early Monday stabbing death of Dennis J. Piens. Named in the charge was Wenceslaus Cruz Perez of 1105 35th St. The criminal district attorney's office recommended a $2,500 bond. Perez had turned himself in to the Lubbock police about 11 a.m. Tuesday. Piens. 44, of 7502 Ave. H. No. 17, was found about 12:40 a.m. Monday in the 400 block of E. 34th St. He was pronounced dead at 2:50 a.m. Monday at Methodist Hospital.

Officers arriving at the scene said a large spot of blood was seen on the left side of Piens' abdomen. Officers also said a knife, with the blade in an open position was in Piens' right hand.

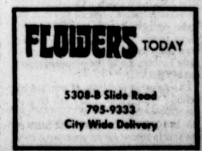

Reports indicated the knife was not bloody. Witnesses told police Piens had earlier been involved in an argument at a club at 400 E. 34th St. The witnesses said Piens had apparent ly been trying to get his wife to leave the club. After that, the witnesses, indicated Pens exchanged words with one of two men who had reportedly joined his wife

LONDON (UPI) - Even as the United Nations debates world disarmament. the United States and Soviet Union are developing new weapons like "satellite killers" that will make true arms control more elusive, an authoritative journal on strategic affairs reported today.

The International Institute for Strategic Studies warned that if Washington and Moscow fail to reach a second strategic arms limitation agreement, known as SALT II, or if the U.S. Senate fails to to ratify it, an all-out nuclear arms race

"More important," it added. "the political relationship between East and West in general and the United States and the Soviet Union in particular, would move backwards, and both arms control and the concept of detente would take a long time to recover

"As the central plank of superpower relations, strategic arms control is not an issue to gamble with."

The Institute's warnings were in its annual Strategic Survey, considered an authoritative source on what's happening in the field. The Institute is a nongovernmental center for research and information on world strategic issues.

"Beyond the horizon, new systems are emerging which will make arms control more complicated and call for a reassessment of the traditional methods," plan, which would lift controls on natural gas by 1985, on a 13-12 vote Tuesday. One negotiator called it "political hysteria" to get a bill completed.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said there was a "possibility" the plan will face a filibuster, and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said chances for a filibuster are "realistic" because "of the administration's willingness to pay any price to get a bill."

Abourezk said he learned "this monstrous sellout of the American consumer" is being described as a compromise.

But the South Dakota senator, who with Metzenbaum waged a long filibuster against deregulation, said there was no mutual concession because "the president, in the middle of the bargaining process, deserted the American consumers and joined the other side."

Abourezk said the inflationary aspect of this "legislation will devastate the economy, and the ripple effect of that increase in-the cost of goods manufactured with natural gas will only accelerate and further inflate the inflation.

the Congress seems intent on legalized forcible rape, supposedly in the name of national interest, but, in reality, for the sole benefit of the titans of the oil and gas industry, whose lust for profits has been unmatched in the annals of American business." Abourezk said. The plan would lift controls from newly produced natural gas by 1985 with price step-ups meanwhile. Carter opposed that in his energy message last year, but now has accepted it in order to get his full energy policy through Congress. This is an atmosphere of political hysteria." said Rep. Anthony Toby Moffett, D-Conn. He asked his colleagues to change the natural gas bill drastically and meantime speed congressional action on parts of the energy package they virtually settled long ago: conservation, industrial conversion to coal and utility rate re-

The House conferees turned Moffett down on all his amendments except one minor one, and rejected most other attempts to change the bill.

The one big change the conferees adopted, proposed by Rep. Bob Eck-hardt, D-Texas, was settled ahead of time: a compromise on the price for gas under contracts that can be renegotiated for higher prices.

That issue had tied up Eckhardt and fellow conferees Joe Waggonner, D-La. and Charles Wilson, D-Texas, whose votes were needed for a majority. When they reached accord last week, it cleared the way for House conferees' approval Tuesday.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Energy Committee, said the pricing plan will stimulate production and dampen consumption.

'It offers an incentive price to assure increased production, but protects consumers by continuing controls until 1985,-Ashley said. The bill is designed to give industry the initial brunt of higher prices, Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., said the compromise does not do enough to stimulate new production.

Recalling that Carter called the energy crisis the moral equivalent of war, Brown said, "If this plan is an answer to the moral equivalent of war, it has about the moral significance of a hush puppy."

The pricing plan would set up 23 different kinds of natural gas with somewhat different regulatory treatment for each.

With 70 percent of Zaire's revenue coming from copper and 75 percent of the copper coming through Kolwezi, the French say that because of the Belgian evacuation, Kolwezi has turned into a ghost town and the Zairean economy is being wrecked.

Another result of the "panic flight," the legionnaires charge, is that they have no exact figure of the population, the precise number of hostages or the total number of whites killed.

Two-Way Television Channel Winning Acclaim

By TIM MILLER COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — When the Warner Cable Corp. introduced "feedback televison" last fall it promised to revolutionize the industry. For the initial 14,000 customers the promise has come Warner's enterprise - called QUBE has many facets and has profoundly affected the viewing habits of its customers. It is a prototype for other systems.

The two-way television channels allow viewers to participate in shows in progress by pushing butttons on a small con-sole at home. The viewers can answer questions, cast votes on issues or simply select their programming as with conventional cable systems.

The premium or pay channels allow viewers to select first-run movies and programs specifically created for QUBE. The community service channels bring town meetings, cultural events and instruction programs.

And the system carries the traditional television channels.

A recent example of participatory television was the Academy Award presenta-tions. QUBE voters cast their ballots in the individual categories and the results were tabulated by Warner's computers. The results were immediately flashed on the screen and Warner later mailed awards to the winners. Live programming has also become a hallmark of the system. When the operation began, live programs ran only from 4 to 8 p.m. They have now been expanded to 1 to 8 p.m. five days a week. The live broadcasts include kid shows, games shows, community service programs, sporting events and cultural programs. And the response to the live programs has pleasantly surprised Warner officials. "We have been overwhelmed with the amount of letters and calls we have received," said Estelle Lehring, public re-lations manager for QUBE. "The response has been fantastic." A good example of responding to customer demand was the broadcast of Ohio State University basketball games. When the commercial stations failed to contract for the games, customers asked QUBE to pick them up, and it did.

Lehring also notes that, "We had a lot shows — Topper, Ozzie and Harriet, the Cisco Kid, shows like that. So what we did was create an entire channel with nothing but 'oldies.' It runs for 18 hours a

"We used to call the local stations and complain about preemptions, things like that," said John Wagner, one of the first viewers to sign up for QUBE. "Oh, they would listen and then just say, 'we're sorry.' "But the people QUBE did more than listen. They give viewers what they

One 5-year-old wrote in and said he wanted to have a movie party at home and wanted to know if QUBE would show some children's movies. QUBE acquired the rights for two firstrun Disney movies - Pete's Dragon and Candleshoe - and then called the youngster and invited him and his friends to have their party at the studio while the shows were aired.

Now, QUBE is planning to regularly air what it calls a "Disney package."

In a random sample of QUBE customers one of the few complaints heard was that QUBE charged twice if a premium movie was watched twice by the viewer. The company has changed that.

"We now air the movies about 8 times during a day. And if people watch it several times they are only charged once. So the kids can watch it at one time and the parents at another, if they desire," said

Warner officials are reluctant to discuss in detail the financial standing of the project but estimates are that Warner spent $10 million for programming and equip-

The 14,000 customers pay $10.95 each a month for the service. While the system has steadily expanded, Warner's hopes for QUBE lie with a nationwide cable system network. The company is already looking at other markets.

The big money the system can generate can only come from nationwide expansion and the customer reponse from Ohio indicates the system can "play in Peoria" and across the United States.

"Perhaps if they went nationwide they would become callous like the major networks. But, I doubt it. Because their ex-

Sen. Bill Patman. D-Ganado, told the commission Tuesday that it is the taxpayers who suffer because of the policy against mineral leases on highway right-

"The important thing for now is to obtain some return from this very valuable asset." Patman told the commission at its regular meeting. The panel took no action on the matter, which has been debated for at least 20 years.

Even if it only returns to the state five ents, that's five cents in tax money we won't have to raise." Patman said.

The 211,000 acres of right-of-way are in small, narrow strips that could only be reached by angular drilling from an adjoining field

The state grants mineral leases to similar, narrow strips of riverbed right-ofway, which last year yielded $3.4 million to the state, the senator said. Highway rights-of-way probably would bring in much more revenue, he predicted.

Hamilton said oil companies drilling on adjoining land already have equipment in

FAVORS TAX BREAKS

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House wants working parents to receive tax breaks for child care payments when they use grandma or grandpa as paid baby sitters. Before voting 363 to 44 Tuesday in favor of a bill setting out that principle, the House was told that using relatives as sitters strengthens family ties.

The highway commission often has considered changing the policy, but legal problems crop up, the commission chairman said.

We're not trying to turn our backs on possible funds for the highway department." Commission Chairman Reagan Houston said. "Our problem is a practical matter. Our titles are extremely questionable. We might have some right-ofway, but we don't even have a deed to it, which goes back to the old days."

In a November 15, 1977 interoffice memo prepared for the commission, the department said that "in a very substantial portion of the lands where we own minerals the landowners simply signed the deeds handed them by a county employ ee without considering that they might be passing title to underlying minerals.

Patman said after the hearing he was optimistic the highway commission rould revise its policy, which has been debated at least 20 years.

I think they know the people see all the potholes and the terrible shape some of our roads are in, and they want any kind of help to fix them," he said.

DALLAS (AP) - Mexican-Americans are asking President Carter to look at human rights violations in the American Southwest before being quick to take the campaign abroad. An unprecedented gathering was held here Tuesday of leaders from across the Mexican-American political spectrum, angered by lack of response to their complaints of police brutality and human rights violations.

The leaders, from La Raza Unida to the League of United Latin American Citizens, issued a joint resolution requesting a meeting with the president.

The meeting would be "to discuss the announcement of a White House Conference on domestic human rights and related police abuse issues and to demand that there be immediate Justice Department prosecution in the Santos Rodriguez case before July 24," the resolution

Rodriguez was a 12-year-old Dallas youth shot in police custody in 1973. Former Dallas patrolman Darrel Cain was convicted and sentenced to five years in connection with the shooting.

"They told us on Santos Rodriguez it's an old case," said San Antonio attorney Ruben Sandoval. He added the Justice Department recently prosecuted an even older case not involving a Spanish-surnamed person.

"I don't think the problem is just the police or the courts, I think it's also a problem with the Justice Department," he said.

Leaders threatened dire political consequences if their demands are met with indifference, and said a trip will be made to Mexico City to present information to the international press.

Ruben Bonilla, state director of LU-LAC, said, "I think it is necessary we make known the political ramifica-

Man Sentenced In Club Plot

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - A Fort Worth man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for masterminding a scheme to solicit nearly a quarter of a million dollars to finance a private Wichita Falls tennis club that was never built.

State District Judge Calvin Ashley sentenced Ron DiGiorno, 39, Tuesday. He will serve the 10 years concurrent with a 12-year federal sentence for securities violations.

DiGiorno, operator of RDG and Company, obtained money from 28 persons from throughout the country to invest in the club, Assistant District Attorney Tom Schrandt said.

He collected $240,000, including $7,500 each from eight Wichita Falls residents. Other contributors were from Minnesota, Georgia, Maryland, Idaho and Colorado.

California Gov. Jerry Brown and Mas-sachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy could benefit from Mexican-American votes in the 1980 Texas primary as easily as Carter did in 1976, Bonilla said.

Several references were made to a re-cent disturbance in a Houston park.

"You think Houston was something—there'll be other Houstons," Sandoval said. "We don't advocate that...That's a combination of people's frustration."

The Mexican American Legal Defense

Substandard housing, weed control and minors frequenting bars will be on the minds of city council members when they meet in regular session Thursday. At a 9 a.m. council work session in the city manager's conference room, council members will discuss the status of an substandard housing ordinance drafted last year at Councilwoman Carolyn Jor-

The council will also discuss at the work session legal remedies to keep minors from drinking in bars, possibly by barring minors from drinking establishments even if accompanied by an adult.

The discussion is in response to several complaints received by council members about the inability of police to prevent minors from drinking in bars.

How the city will fight the seasonal problem of weeds will be discussed by council members also. No changes in the weed control plan are expected.

Also at the work session, council members will consider legislation they want to support during the 1979 legislature, discuss procedures to be used to distribute funds to the arts from the city's hotel-motel tax and furnish comments to the Department of Housing and Urban Development on three proposed sites for Section 8 (subsidized-rent) housing projects. The city council is scheduled to convene its regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers to consider a $714,734 claim against the city stemming from a fire the night of Feb. 16 and the morning of Feb. 17 in the 1500 Block of 34th

Council approval could clear the way for the city's application for $10,960 from the Community Services Administration which would fund a recreation program for low-income youth. At a 10:30 a.m. public hearing, city council members will consider five zoning cases, including one appeal from the Planning and Zoning Commission.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Christopher Andersen has just written a book advancing a theory I've always believed — your name can make you a winner or a loser.

It's true. I never knew a "Ginger" who wasn't born with pomporn hands, a "Ruth" who didn't iron tennis shoe tongues, or an "Elvira" who didn't smile without a piece of spinach wrapped around her front tooth.

Sure enough, in Andersen's book, "The Name Game," Ginger means Ruth means "earth mother" and Elvira translates to "drab

Most people hate their names. They're always pronouncing them, spellthem. explaining them, defending them, or changing them. When you think of it, it makes good sense. Can you imagine a man tall in the saddle with a patch over one eye holding reins in his teeth and guns blazing from both hands by the name of Marion Morrison? Which is probably why Marion Morrison became John (trustworthy, very manly) Wayne. And there has to be something catchier than Salvatore Bono and Cherilyn La Piere who opted for Sonny (athletic) and Cher (a legendary one-word name).

I always felt Erma was a fat name and rated in popularity right under Popeye and Iodine. It probably shaped my desti-ny because with a name like Erma, you have to laugh first and loudest. Given a choice, I would have preferred to be named Astrid (Luscious). But I didn't have the thighs for it - not even at

How different things might have been if I had been named Astrid. I would never have dated Ellis (lackluster), Melvin (wilted), Rollo (mama's boy) or Lou

I would have hung out with Bart (very macho!), Kent (a big winner) and Hank (virile and active).

I would never have been intimidated by everyone else in my neighborhood with a nickname. Names like Wheezie, Bunny, Ducky, Happy and all those other cute dwarf's names. They could have called me...surely they would have thought of some better than what I got The Mound

It was with some reluctance that I turned to find what connotation my name really had in Andersen's book. On page 151, there it was: Erma: sexy, but listless.

I'm not sure, but I think one cancels out the other.

The Slim Gourmet

Can you be fat and happy? Perhaps. Can you be hungry and happy? Definitely not! If chronic hunger is the price you must pay for slimness, then it's definitely not worth it. There's nothing smart or sexy about a snappish, short-tempered

But, the choice, dear readers, is not betweer starvation and slimness, but between hunger-fighting, appetite-appeas-ing foods and those that simply fill you out, not up.

You say you've got an appetite that would give a longshoreman indigestion? Don't fight it; feed it. Let me tell you EAT BULK-PROVIDING FOODS: Lots of fresh fruits and vegetables, preferably raw, or very lightly cooked. Remember, 100 calories' worth of lettuce or green peppers takes up more stomach room than a 100-calorie bite of candy or sip of soda. What's more, lots of greenery helps slow down the rate of calorie absorption from the foods you eat.

DRINK (OR EAT) LOTS OF LIQ-UIDS: Quaff your hunger by slaking your thirst; lots of no-cal beverages like water, coffee or tea. "Eat" wet food, like soups and stews (fat-skimmed, of course). Top meats, poultry and vegetables with lean sauces (made without added fat). Favor "wet" desserts: ice milk, yogurt, lowsugar puddings, mousses, and moist fruit mixtures. Don't forget that most fruits and vegetables are essentially "wet" foods; many are 80 or 90 percent water.

EAT ONLY AT MEALTIMES - BUT MAKE MEALTIMES FREQUENT: Studies show you're better off with five smaller meals than "three squares. How about a nutritious breakfast, midmorning fruit snack, late light lunch, well-balanced dinner and before-bedtime snack? If your next meal is never more than two or three hours away, you're never so hungry that you can't resist snitching a junk-food snack

FAVOR PROTEIN FOODS, BUT -Only the lean ones: skim milks and lowfat cheeses, seafood, poultry and only the leanest meats, whole grain cereals, grains and beans. Keep in mind that most socalled "protein" foods are really fat foods: hard cheeses, nuts, most steaks, roasts and chops have more fat calories than protein calories

If you were to poll the experts about who they think is the finest technician in North America, Sammy Kehela of Toronto would be near the top of everyone's list. Here is an example of his skill, from the recent Sunday Times Pair Championships.

North's jump to two spades was, by arrangement, a cue-bid agreeing hearts as trumps. In view of that, North might have backpedaled later in the auction. but he continued to cuebid. As a result, Kehela found himself in a tenuous heart slam.

West led a spade, taken in dummy by the king. Kehela first tried to drop ueen of trumps by cashthe ace and the king. This failed, but the 3-2 trump division gave declarer solace. The second step was to prepare end play by trying to strip the hand that held the master trump of exit cards. To that end, declarer cashed the ace of spades and ruffed

The ten of diamonds was covered by the king and won by the ace. The queen and jack of diamonds cleared that suit from the defenders' hands, and the scene was set. Declarer exited with a trump, and West was in with the queen-a prospect he did

West was down to nothing but clubs, and he had to lead away from the king into declarer's combined tenace. As a result, declarer lost only one trump trick and the slam rolled home.

Burger Says Criticism Generates New Ideas

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) - Chief Justice Warren Burger says criticism of the legal profession generates ideas, and should be accepted calmly with the aim of improving the way disputes are set-

The chief justice apparently was responding to a recent speech by President Carter, who said, among other things, the poor are not provided with the legal services they need Some of Carter's suggestions for improvement have been advocated by Burger himself in the past. Speaking at a conference of the District of Columbia federal circuit, the chief justice said, "We should get away from the idea that a court is the only place in which to settle disputes."

People with claims are like people with pains," he said. "They want relief and results and they don't care whether it's in a courtroom with lawyers and judges or somewhere else.

Burger pointed out that before Griffin Bell became attorney general he headed an American Bar Association committee to pursue some alternatives to court proceedings and is now carrying these ideas forward as administration programs.

They include enlarging the jurisdiction of federal magistrates, development of neighborhood tribunals for minor disputes, and the proposed law calling for arbitration procedures bafore trial.

A tornado that hit the Birmingham, Ala., area April 4, 1977, killed 22 persons and caused $15 million in damage.

Handicapped Inmates Housed In Cellblock

By BRUCE ADAMS
VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Like the other cell blocks branching off the mainline cutting through the state prison here, GW1 houses murderers, rapists and thieves behind a thick, metal door.

But unlike the denim-clad, caged men who solemnly walk the mainline, the 35 inmates in GW1 make their way about in wheelchairs, with crutches or behind white canes.

Handicapped criminals and those requiring long-term medical care are housed here.

Some were crippled as they were arrested - from wounds in shootouts with police or injuries in crashes after high-

"There's nothing for the disabled," says Montova, who suffered from polio as a child and is confined to a wheelchair. When a man leaves here he has to bear the stigma of being an ex-convict as well as the stigma of being disabled."

Even though the staff is small - two doctors make rounds and a couple of flurses are available - few complain about the medical care. 'They're doing all they can for me, but my health just ain't no good," says John Miller, 58, of Modesto, a convicted murderer who hangs his artificial arm and cowboy hat on the same hook. Stretched out on a cot in his small cell, he ticks of his ailments: cancer, heart trouble and high blood pressure. He's had a colostomy and his left arm ends in a stub just below his shoulder.

But despite the hospital atmosphere, visitors can't forget they're in a prison.

Miller's room, like most of the others on the north side of the wing, is just large enough to accommodate a narrow cot, a shelf or two, a wash basin and an exposed toilet. Rooms on the south side of the wing are larger, housing four or five inmates each in small dormitories. Some inmates have their own television sets.

The walls are a dull cream color and the windows are barred. Doctors, aides and guards lock doors behind them as move about the wing.

The prison's chief nurse, Jack Downing, says Vacaville suffers from less violence than many other state prisons be-cause "the emphasis here is on therapy."

The disabled men in GW1 have access to a physical therapy center, with weight training equipment, whirlpool baths and a licensed physical therapist.

And Dr. R. Gene Prout, the prison's chief medical officer, says most inmates appreciate the medical care. "They wouldn't get it at any other prison."

HOUSTON (AP) - Late on a May night in 1977 on the banks of a muddy, trashfilled bayou, an incident occured, hidden from the eyes of thousands of Houstonians by darkness and isolation, that has brought turmoil to the nation's fifth largest city.

Six policeman and one young, drunk Mexican-American laborer were the characters in this first act of a drama that later brought convictions against three officers; charges against several others; a riot in a city park, and the city council granting emergency powers to the may-

The story that began that night at Buffalo Bayou near the Houston police station has not ended.

The leading roles were to be played by unlikely persons-a rookie coliceman, an officer with a file filled with citations for his exceptional service, a state court jury, a U.S. District Court judge and a former Army ranger, known by only by a few persons until he died.

It was the rookie officer - Carless Elliott, 20, son of a veteran policeman who wrote the first pages of the story when he told his superiors that a Mexican-American had been taken screaming. cursing, kicking and drunk from a bar in a tough section of Houston by officers following a call from the tavern owner.

Elliott said he and five other officers took the man to a deserted area, where the prisoner was beaten and either fell, jumped or was pushed into the bayou from a 16-foot high embankment. Elliott, who said he had no part in the beating. was never accused of any wrongdoing and is still on the force.

Three days later the body of Joe Campos Torres was found floating in the murky bayou, which flows through a section of downtown Houston.

Then the name of Joe Campos Torres, a self-styled karate expert, occasionally known for having a few beers and a few fights in his part of the city, became a symbol of police brutality against the minorities, especially the Hispanics

The death of Campos Torres, 23, resulted in state murder charges against two officers and later civil rights violations against four policemen.

It resulted in the creation of the first internal affairs division in Houston police department history - a unit to investigate citizen complaints against officers.

It resulted in several rallies calling for justice for Mexican-Americans, who comprise 13 percent of the city's some 1.7 million residents

Campos Torres' death on that May night - a night when Mexican-Americans celebrated a Mexican holiday called Cinco de Mayo-began to spread and flow like lava through the city.

Two officers, Terry Denson, 27, with several citations for his work in the past, and Stephen Orlando, 22, were convicted in state court of negligent homicide and given one-year probated sentences.

Later they, along with Joseph Janish, 22, were convicted of civil rights violation charges and sentenced to one year in prison and 10-year suspended terms. A fourth officer is to be tried later and a fifth pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in exchange for his testimony.

The light sentences brought cries of anger from the Mexican-American community and there were more rallies and protest marches.

cause of a letter threatening his life. The new internal affairs division, sensitive to the increasing number of complaints, dug deeper into police activities. The Mexican-Americans for years had complained of mistreatment by officers, but it was seldom more than grumblings among themselves. As one said recently, What good would it do for us to speak out, nobody to listen. With Campos Torres, who apparently has gained far more fame in death than he would have in life, now a symbol, ABOARD THE SS ARCO JUNEAU (AP) - The Gulf of Alaska is a meanly capricious tyrant.

Sure, man may drill deep into the earth to extract oil to serve his needs. Sure, he may build mighty ships to carry it to distant places.

But when those ships put out from Valdez, Alaska, and leave Prince William Sound, the tyrant Gulf calls the tune. It may be benevolent, a peaceful lake without shores. But from October through April, the Gulf turns savage, the roughest waters in the world.

"When the seas are running, you don't dare go out on deck," said second mate Justin Raymond of Somers, Mass. There is blue water over everything, four to six feet deep. All of the watertight doors are kept closed, right up to the captain's deck.

The captain's deck is 45 feet above the waterline. McGowen remembers seas that smashed windows on the bridge 57

"How do you rest? You get used to it, after a fashion says chief engineer Walt Olsen of Conroe, Texas. "I wedge myself into bed with pillows.

There is rarely talk of danger.

Oh, you hear someone say 'I'll be glad when this is over,' or something like that," says Olsen. "But that's primarily the inexperienced. Look at the size of this ship. It's hard not to feel

The ballast tanks are segregated; there is never oil in them. If ballast water is pumped into the cargo tanks, it is pumped ashore to remove all oil before it is returned to the sea.

And all of the ship's waste - from the galley garbage to the oil-streaked water of the bilges - goes into a slop tank which, when the ship is docked, is pumped into shoreside waste treatment facilities.

"Nothing is pumped over the side while we're at sea," McGowen said. "We want to see clean water just like everyone else, and we'd never do anything deliberate to pollute.

Even in calm seas the ship rolls and pitches slightly. The neophyte measures the motion by watching sunlight from a porthole dance up and down on the wall. But the stomach begins to dance too, and that's enough of that.

On the steel deck, there is always a sound like that of rushing wind. It's oil sloshing back and forth in the cargo tanks below - some $10 million worth of

The replacement value of this 4-yearold ship plus its cargo comes to about $70 million. Yet the crew numbers a mere 29. The seagulls play an endless game of king-of-the-hill for the right to the three prime fish-watching perches of the ship, atop the foremast and the two king posts amidship.

The beat of the engine and the vibration of the ship's huge propeller blots out all other sound in the deckhouse.

It takes only 81 revolutions per minute for the five-bladed prop - 271/2 feet in diameter - to drive the ship along at its cruising speed of 16 knots fully loaded. Dress is informal. The skipper wears slacks, a plaid shirt. Four hours on and eight hours off. Junior officers and the unlicensed crew have time to kill every trip.

Recreational opportunities are limited. Food takes up the slack. It is solid, varied and unlimited fare.

tatoes, buttered green peas; bread and butter; ice cream with topping, cookies; iced tea, fresh milk and coffee.

All baking, except bread and sandwich rolls, is done aboard ship.

The meat consumption is some indication of the appetites aboard - a little more than two pounds a day per man.

There is a television set, a shortwave radio receiver and a stereo in both the crew's lounge and the officers' lounge. There is an exercise room. There are

The television sets can play videotaped movies when the ship is too far off the coast to pick up commercial telecasts, which is most of the time.

The movies, a selection of eight to 10, are changed each voyage, but even the worst get three or four showings, including such cripples as "The Sailor Who Fell-From Grace With The Sea.

"Some of the ships have poker games" going all of the time, 24 hours a day. Itseems like everybody plays," says seaman Hines. "But on some trips, like this, one, there aren't enough poker players aboard to get a game going."

Why poker? "It's better than staring at bulkheads."

U.S. May Help Peru In Drug Crackdown which sells at $800 per kilogram A kilo of LIMA, Peru (UPI) - More than half of the cocaine sniffed, snorted or mainlined in the United States originates in Peru.

Small Peruvian farmers, most of them Indian peasants in the Andes mountains. grow between 50 and 70 percent of the coca plants from which cocaine is produced. Their neighbors over the border in Bolivia grow most of the rest.

So American drug enforcement officials were understandably jubilant when the military government of Peru, after years of according the cocaine trade a low priority, passed a sweeping drug control law in March.

Now diplomats of the two countries are quietly negotiating an expanded program of American assistance for Peru's drug control program. At present, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency has only four agents in Peru.

Without such assistance, Peru's new law will be only a statement of good intentions. The country is struggling through its worst financial crisis since the Great Depression of the 1930s. The last of more than 150 paragraphs of the drug control law states that no new monies will be added to this year's budget to im-

Penalities for drug trafficking, which formerly ranged between two and 10 years in prision, now go up to life imprisment. The law established a program of drug abuse treatment centers throughout Peru. It sets stiff regulations controll-

But most important, the law calls for the gradual substitution of other crops on the lands now growing coca plants. "The closer you get to the source, the easier it is to choke off the traffic," one drug enforcement official said.

Based on this approach, the drug control program in Mexico, with substantial U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency assistance, has achieved a dramatic reduction in heroin smuggling across the border.

The difficulties to this plan are formidable, however. More than 20,000 Peruvian farmers grow coca plants. Most are openly enthusiastic about its benefits as a cash crop, compared to tea, coffee, bananas, peanuts or grapes.

The plant itself is a hardy shrub which grows on near vertical hillsides, needs almost no care and produces six crops of leaves per year. Bombardment from the air with defoliants, used against the heroin poppy in Mexico, is ineffective against the coca plant.

The Peruvian government's National Coca Enterprise, which will control the crop substitution program, estimates that about 10,000 tons of coca leaves are produced legally each year. Illegal production is at least as great.

About 600 tons of coca leaves are legally exported for use in making anesthetics or non-drug flavoring of soft drinks. The rest of the leaves are ostensibly sold to Peruvian Indians, who for centuries have chewed the coca leaf as means of dulling pain, fatigue, cold and altitude sickness.

But drug enforcement officials say that a large portion of the legal crop, as well as all of the illegal crop, finds its way into the cocaine traffic.

The process begins when dried coca leaves are soaked in kerosene in crude cement-lined pits. They give off a scum or paste, of less than one percent of their weight. Most of the paste is smuggled to illicit laboratories in Colombia, Ecuador or Peru, where each two kilograms (4.4 pounds) of paste are converted to one kilo (2.2 pounds) of pure hydrochloride, or cocaine Coca farmers selling their leaves at the legal rate of about $3 per kilogram can make about $1000 per acre per year. But the farmer can make three times as much money by converting the leaves to paste,

Some 83 percent of manufacturing companies and 86 percent of non-manufacturing firms have a majority of outside directors, according to the survey. But if the definition of an outside director is limited to exclude former or retired employees of the companies, the percentage boards with a majority of outsiders drops to 60 percent among manufacturers and 80 percent among non-manufac-majority shareholders also declined on the Fortune 500 board while the number of non-businessmen more than doubled.

A Louis Harris survey of 752 outside directors of Fortune 500 companies found the median fee received for each directorship was $12,500. Their median family income was $200,000 a year but 41 percent made between $200,000 and $500,000. Another 8 percent topped $500,-000 in annual income, Harris said based on 1976 data.

In a Conference Board study, the 1977 median compensation for directors among large companies was put at $10,-500 for manufacturers, $15,500 for nonmanufacturers and $12,000 for financial firms. Among all 898 firms it surveyed, the median director salary ranged from $6,300 for financial firms to $9,300 for manufacturers.

The Harris survey also found 48 percent of the outside directors surveyed were chairmen, chief executives or presidents of their own companies. They sit on an average of 3.5 boards and 90 percent also serve on non-profit boards

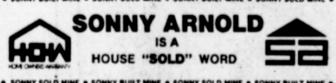

The fact that directors often sit on several boards was underscored by a recent Senate subcommittee study of 130 major U.S. companies. It found 530 cases where corporate boards were linked by having one director also sitting on the board of another major company Aside from these direct interlocks, the study reported 12,193 indirect interlocks of directors - instances where two companies each have a director on a third company's board. "These patterns of director interrelationships an overwhelming potential for antitrust abuse and possible conflicts of interest which could affect prices, supply and competition and impact on the shape of the American economy," the Senate study said.

Solar Energy Projects Aid Hawaii Residents

waii are soaking up the sun in more ways than one as solar energy projects sprout in increasing numbers across the islands Government and private sources spent

$2.5 million on solar demonstration projects in Hawaii last year, compared to $160,000 for 1975 and 1976, according to a state government report.

Nearly 2,000 solar-operated water heat-ers have been installed in homes and businesses across the state in the past three years, a Hawaiian Electric Company survey showed. Sales may jump if a federal tax credit for solar energy devices is approved. Local residents are waiting to determine the tax credit, said Tom Brennan, Pacific representative of the federal Department

Hawaii residents are already entitled to a state tax credit of 10 percent of the cost of a solar energy device. Solar energy is not a new concept here. Some families built homemade solar water heaters in the early 1900s, taking advantage of Hawaii's year-round sunshine.

The islands' position near the Equator allows them to receive intense radiation, since the sun is directly overhead for part of the year.

With government dollars and pleas for energy conservation adding incentive, the number of firms installing solar heating units has grown from eight to nearly 30 in one year, according to the State En-In using the sun's rays for energy, collectors placed on rooftops absorb the rays. They are used to heat water, to heat or cool indoor air, and to produce electricity. Of the various uses, solar waterheating is the most economically feasible now, according to federal and state offi-

Among the businesses adding solar collectors are four Waikiki hotels, which won Department of Energy grants totaling more than $1 million

"Hawaii was fortunate. We got almost one-third of the grant money." said Robert Stern. Hawaii liaison for the Department of Energy.

The federal government has also subsidized solar water-heaters for single family residences in low-income areas and for public housing projects. The solar water-heating system in-

collectors, each about three feet wide by six feet long. The sunlight is absorbed by the collectors, which heat water in copper tubes.

The system saves from $8 to $22 on tenants' monthly electric bills, said Banyan Manor manager Eleanor Lisenbee

Hawaii Electric Company estimates that hot water heating accounts for 40 percent of a household's electric bill, and that a solar heater will save a family up to $15 on its electric bill.

But the cost of repair and maintenance is an unknown factor, said Hawaiian Electric spokesman Van Beazlie

Although the dollar saving to consumers is significant, the energy saving is

Even if every possible household con-zlie, the saving would be only about three percent of the basic fuel needed to produce electricity on the island of Oahu. Stern estimates the saving at about 8

Solar heating devices for single-family homes cost an average of $2,500, but pay for themselves in utility bill savings in about seven years, said Michael Bean, solar division manager for the firm that des signed Bariyan Street Manor.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reported fin-ancial holdings of senators last week revealed a number of multi-millionaires, including the heirs to family fortunes such as Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., John Danforth, R-Mo., and John Heinz, R-Pa.

Among others identifying themselves as millionaires were Sens. Russell Long, D-La., Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Charles Percy, R-Ill.

The value of his "Preliminary results from this study suggest that sexual behavior may account for some but not all of the difference," home in Huntsville, Tenn., is listed be-tween $100,000 and $250,000. He also listed various assets which put him near the millionaire's mark.

The reports were based on holdings at the start of this year and the deadline for filing was May 15. Sens. # S Claims Troopers Earn Lower Salaries

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Department of Public Safety said Tuesday its average population per highway patrol trooper is much higher than in neighbor-

The department also said its salaries fall short of those in major states, its share of the state budget has declined and its criminal law enforcement manpower has not risen as fast as the crime

In a "Workload vs. Resources" booklet, the DPS said Texas' average popula tion per trooper is 9,504, compared with 6,749 in Louisiana, 5,869 in Oklahoma, 5,-785 in Arkansas and 4,453 in New Mexico. Salaries for uniformed personnel were compared with those of California, Flor-

York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Average minimum salary for a rankand-file trooper is $11,816 in Texas and $12,879 in the eight states with which it was compared. Average maximum is $14,148 in Texas and $17,010 in the other

At the top of the scale, captains in Texas make $19,668, while those in the eight comparison states averaged from a minimum of $21,155 to a maximum of $26,433,

The DPS said its current two-year appropriation is $169.3 million, or 1.089 percent of the total state budget. In 1976-77, its budget was 1.258 percent of the total biennial appropriation.

The drop in the DPS percentage share of the budget meant a loss of $26 million for the biennium in appropriations, it

"While we realize that many state agencies have valid needs for funds to serve the public, it is interesting to note that in the face of the rising problems shown in the preceeding charts, the DPS share of the state dollars actually declined," it said.

The charts included more crime, more motor vehicle thefts and more narcotics

The DPS said while the crime rate in 1977 was 32 percent higher than in 1973, the number of criminal law enforcement personnel authorized for the state police agency rose only 10 percent, from 264 to 290.

Closing Ceremonies Slated At School

Sanders Elementary School will hold its closing ceremonies, called "The Final Chapter," at 9 a.m. Thursday in the school library.

Keynote speaker will be J.C. Sanders, son of Liff Sanders, after whom the school is named. The ceremonies are sponsored by the Sanders student body, staff and Parent-Teacher Association.

Sanders is to be closed at the end of this school year as part of the Lubbock school system's court-ordered integration plan. Students in the Sanders area are being rezoned into Guadalupe Elementary.

Sanders will continue to be used for special school projects.

Big Hurricane Damages Seen

Schwartz, chairman of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, has told the State Insurance Board the next big hurricane will do $1 billion in damage and perhaps kill 10,000 persons

Schwartz, D-Galveston, testified Tuesday against a proposal to cut agent com-missions on windstorm policies written in the hurricane pool from 20 percent to

"I believe losses from the next hurricane will be $1 billion instead of $300 million (in previous ones) because of infla-tion and because of growth," he said.

Schwartz said a major hurricane, strik-ing a populated area with full force, could kill 10,000 persons because of difficulties in evacuating huge numbers of people in a short time.

Directors of the pool, called the Texas Property Catastrophe Insurance Associa-tion, voted last winter to cut agent commissions as a means of discouraging assignment of policyholders to the pool.

The insurance board suspended the cut and called for hearings that began Mon-

The pool was created to spread among all Texas property insurance companies the risk of insuring buildings along the coast. For property landward of the Intracoastal Waterway, rates are the same as elsewhere in the state. Seaward, windstorm rates are triple unless - as in Galveston - property is protected by seawalls.

"We do have to depopulate the winds-torm catastrophe pool. I just simply disagree you can accomplish the purpose by reducing commissions," he said.

Schwartz said agents in coastal areas earn their commissions when a hurricane strikes by serving as intermediaries between their customers and the insurance

They suffer the same losses, because they are living there, too. Their offices

Judge Vacates Zoning Law Injunction

Dist. Judge Robert C. Wright Tuesday vacated an earlier temporary restraining order he had issued barring the City of Lubbock from implementing a recently approved zoning ordinance.

Wright rejected a plaintiff bid for a temporary injunction against the city after hearing testimony indicating spokesmen for a local mobile home park had been given an opportunity to voice opposition to the ordinance before Lubbock's city council

Commanders Palace Mobile Home Park, in a suit filed last week, claimed city leaders did not give proper notice before approving the ordinance April 27. The business partnership objects to the ctange in zoning of an adjacent block of land from a commercial (C-4) restricted zone to a C-4 open designation. At Tuesday's hearing, a part-owner and manager of the mobile home park at 6801 W. 19th St. testified he was given an opportunity to voice objections to council members at a March 23 meeting.

The witness agreed there was no question that the city knew of his objections before making the zoning change.

He said losses in a hurricane could be reduced by imposing higher standards on construction than now exist. He blamed the real estate and builders' lobbies for defeating a bill to do that last session.

Sam Winters, the pool's lawyer, said in cross-examining Schwartz that the pool has no direct relationship with agents since it is not a company but a legislatively created consortium of companies.

"The catastrophe association can't hire them, it can't fire them, it can't do nothing. . . They (agents) have no contractual obligation to handle claims on its behalf," he said.

"The business dictates in honesty and good conscience that the agent has a reonsibility to the customer that exceeds that of the pool," Schwartz replied.

NASA Uses Soft-Sell On Doctors

HOUSTON (AP) - Space agency officials are taking a soft-sell approach in trying to convince doctors and scientists of the unique possibilites of medical experimentation in the zero gravity of

"We are, in a sense, like a business trying to develop new products," Richard S. Johnston, director of space and life sciences at the Johnson Space Center, said Tuesday.

Johnston spoke to a group of 350 doctors and scientists attending a two-day session on life sciences co-sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the University of Texas Health Science Center.

"We don't want this to be an oversell," Johnston said. "We're not talking about hospitals in space. But maybe we will talk to some people interested in studying such things as fracture healing and treatment of burn victims, which future generations may be able to consider.

Dr. Christopher Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Center, said NASA's space shuttle program would begin a se-ries of test flights next year leading to future shuttle laboratory experiments in

"We now know what man can do in space so we are taking the next logical step." Kraft said. "We have opened up a new environment and made it accessible for experimentation."

The shuttle lab will allow experiments not possible on Earth, such as the possible production of certain drugs that require painstaking and expensive procedures to produce in the gravity of Earth.

"We'll have the ability to look at such things as cell to cell interaction and we'll put more emphasis on the long-term aspects of weightlessness," said Dr. Stephen L. Armentrout, associate profes of medicine at the University of California-Irvine.

Space agency officials hope scientists will begin to test problems of muscle mass and calcium loss that are common to both astronauts and bed-ridden pa-

Panel Votes To Suggest Park Site

A West Lubbock park came one step closer to becoming a reality Tuesday when the Parks and Recreation Board voted to recommend the city accept a 23acre site northeast of 19th Street and Milwaukee Avenue for use as a park.

Although the board lacked one member having a quorum, the four members present recommended the acceptance of the site with a first option to purchase an adjacent 10 acres if the land is not sold to the Frenship schools.

Board chairman Henry Huneke said board members not present at the meeting would be polled on accepting the land and City Attorney Fred Senter said he had no objections to the voting method.

The city is acquiring the park land through the playa lake ordinance requiring developers to donate 70 percent of the land below the high water mark to the city from a development encompassing a playa lake.

In this instance, the playa lake will be moved from prime commercial property at the corner of Milwaukee Avenue and 19th Street to north of 18th Street.

Parks and Recreation Director John Alford estimated at least a year will pass before the land is transformed into a park.

The board postponed until its next monthly meeting any action on a request that the board purchase land adjacent to one of the Canyon Lakes in East Lub-

A petition signed by about 200 residents living adjacent to Lake 6 was delivered to parks staff members. Dr. Heenan Johnson was scheduled to present the petition request but did not appear at the meet-

Board members asked that the specifics of the request be studied before the June board meeting, and Alford suggested the request be included in a priority list for land acquisition for the entire Canyor. Lakes Project

However. Huneke was of the opinion other areas might be higher on the list of priorities. "We don't even have enough money to do what we want with what we have in ownership," he said.

Also at the meeting, board members approved the use of a public address system in Mackenzie Park June 18 by KLBK

Nitrogen Receives Fish Kill Blame

WARSAW, Mo. (AP) - Heavy nitrogen levels below the Truman Dam near Warsaw have killed about 78,000 fish.

The kill in the Osage River was discovered early last month. But the Conservation department said the cause of the fish deaths was just recently determined Tests found that water plunging over the partially completed dam causes a nitrogen concentration, which is lethal to fish. Fish vary in their susceptibility to the disease. It causes them to die over a period of two or three days.

Mackenzie To Get Pottery Center

A pottery center is slated to open this summer in Mackenzie Park. The exact date depends on supplies and the availability of city Parks and Recreation Department employees for renovation work at the old department offices - just east of Fair Park

Three kilns - reduction, salt glaze and raku - are under construction now by James C. Watkins, center supervisor, and Sara Waters, a ceramics instructor at Texas Tech, who will teach a class when the facility is open

Both obtained their master of fine arts degrees from Indiana University. Purpose of the center, Watkins noted in his project description, is "to enhance the students present school experiences as well as the quality of leisure time enjoyed by the citizens of Lubbock.

It will provide studio facilities for the experienced potter and classroom instruction for the interested beginners, Watkins said.

The new pottery center "will fill a void that has existed a long time." Jim Underwood, recreation supervisor for parks and recreation, noted.

We are putting more emphasis on the culture crafts," he added. "We have several in music and are moving into more.

All age groups will be able to use the facility which will provide professional and technical services to those involved with the ceramic arts

Activities will include class programs, workshops and ceramic art festivals. Classes will meet twice a week for three hours while workshops will center on

The board also voted to join the Retail Merchants Association.

The board had previously considered postponed final consideration because of a misunderstanding. The misunderstanding resulted from the board's wanting to join the association under a fixed rate, but the association does not have a fixed rate schedule.

The selling of the lot to Southern Sea. Inc., leaves only a few small lots left in the civic center redevelopment project. Other lots which have been sold since the project started in 1972 have been the land now occupied by the La Quinta Motor Inn, Denny's, West Texas Hospital,

Under the settlement, Coastal States Gas Corp., parent firm for Lo-Vaca, would spin off Lo-Vaca's pipeline activities into a new company; the commission would set new higher rates for the new company; there would be partial refunds to Lo-Vaca customers, realized mainly through the sale of new company securities, and Coastal States would undertake a gas search program for the new compa-

Rail Commissioner Calls Jerry Sadler 'Disgrace'

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Railroad Commissioner John Poerner Tuesday brought his runoff campaign to Lubbock and said his opponent, former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler. is an individual who disgraced the State Poerner, a former state representative from Hondo who was appointed to the commission last fall by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, referred to the 1969 censure of Sadler by the legislature because he refused to cooperate as land commissioner in an investigation of a sunken treasure operation he had supervised.

Poerner said he has been helped in the runoff by a primary campaign centering on improving his name identification across the state and by advice from fellow Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton. who defeated Sadler in a runoff two years

'He told me to go to the people to get out the vote and make them understand that your opponent is an individual who disgraced the State of Texas," he said.

Poerner, 46, was director of the Governor's Office of Educational Resources before he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the retiring Jim Langdon. Sadler, 70, was elected to the railroad commission in 1938, served four years resigned to enter military service and later was elected land commissioner. Poerner said in a news conference Tuesday that he also considers the age of his opponent an issue in the race.

"At age 46, it takes all of my strength. all of my stamina to keep going because it's not an 8-to-5 job." he said.

The winner will serve until 1980, when the Langdon term expires and a full sixvear term will be filled.

Poerner said the advertising campaign during the primary to spell and pronounce his name in television ads and to get "Poerner" into a 30-second spot nine times helped him a great deal.

He got 408,283 votes to the 656,069 Sadler got in the May 6 Democratic primary. Sadler also led Newton in the primary but lost in the runoff.

Poerner expects a much lighter turnout June 3 but is not sure which, if either, of the candidates it will favor.

"I think the people who go to the polls June 3 are going to be much better informed," he said. He spent about $250,000 for the primary and will spend about half that much for the runoff, he said.

The Poerner group appeared Tuesday in Brownfield, Levelland, Andrews and Odesså after leaving Lubbock. It is scheduled to be in Snyder and other cities and Thursday and in El Paso Friday.

Sadler, well-known in Texas after 40 years in politics, reported spending only $3,600 in the primary.

Poerner is concentrating his campaign now in areas like Lubbock, he said, where there are runoffs in local races and June 3 voting probably will be heaviest.

Sadler has accused Poerner of a conflict of interest in holding oil, gas and lignite interests, and Poerner said Tuesday that he owns only land with mineral rights but has no eil, gas or lignite inter-

NEW YORK (UPI) - Public expectations have placed greater demands on corporation directors and in turn have spawned a mini-industry of support services intended to help board members.

There is so much parallel activity going on now that affects the board that the trend toward change is irresistible. says Stepmen I. Cummings, president of the National Association of Corporate Directors, a Washington, D.C., group believed to be the first of its kind

Formed in July 1977, NACD charges annual dues of $120 for which members receive a monthly newsletter, special reports on board issues, reduced rates at NACD-sponsored seminars and conferences and other services.

NACD was set up as a profit-making corporation - which it's not yet - but with a potential market of 150,000 directors serving companies with sales over $500,000 a year. Cummings sees a damand for the group.

Further, he predicts a substantial increase in the number of board members. 'If boards want to do more and are expected to do more, the implication is that the size of boards will grow," he says.

NACD has two ambitious schemes it hopes will help lead to better prepared board members.

One is a directors' school, a one-week uations faced by board members. The first session, with a tuition of $1,000, tentatively is scheduled for the Washington area next fall.

The other NACD plan is to devise and administer an examination for current and potential board members. Successful candidates would be listed as "certified corporate directors," an accreditation that NACD hopes will carry weight in the board selection process. Cummings says an accreditation program is far better handled outside of government and a major aim of NACD is to demonstrate steps to remedy board prob-

The likely alternative, he says, is a new agency to bring corporations more under the thumb of the government than ever before.

In New York, two veteran corporation consultants have formed a company called Board Member Advisors with the idea of serving as a staff for the outside director trying to keep on top of what company management is doing.

"The chief executive officer has all the help in the world in preparing for board meetings," notes Stanley R. Grant, chairman of the firm, "but the director is expected to go it alone. We've got to change

Board Member Advisors, which still is hunting its first full-fledged client, would assemble a team knowledgable in business and finance to go over management material prepared for future board meetings. The team would highlight and analyze important points, raise questions not covered in the material and brief directors before the meeting.

"It would put some objective, analytical teamwork behind the directors that is non-editorial in character," says Grant. 'It would extend their preparation time at least five-fold.

Board Member Advisors builds on a suggestion of former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg who, when resigning from the TWA board in the early 1970s, called for staffs to aid outside corporate executives themselves, are "up to their eyeballs with activities" and routinely rely on staff help in their own companies to get ready for board meetings. This is a disguised version of what Board Member Adicsors would do on a formal basis, he says.

"The chief executive officer may not want a smarter bunch of directors and

Business Strain Causes Psychological Problems

By PHILIP GREER And MYRON KANDEL

The pressures of trying to succeed in business by really trying are leading an increasing number of corporate executives to become heavily dependent on

"Our research has found that business people habituated to large doses of seda-tive medication were often fearful of business or sales meetings or public speaking appearances — an understable tension that is not in itself a mal," Rabkin said.

To deal with this problem, the institute adopts a dual treatment strategy, Rabkin explained. One aspect involves "blind withdrawal," in which dosages are decreased without the patient knowing how much he or she is getting in a pill. The other technique is "exposure," getting the patient used to facing difficult meet-ings, public speaking and other tension-producing situations without chemical

What Rabkin calls the brief therapy op-tion involves the use of specific short-term strategies to deal with specific prob-lems. He says patients at the Manhattanbased institute average about 15 sessions (at roughly $50 a session). "That's a far cry from the days when psychoanalysis, often lasting years and costing on the average $25,000, was the only alternative,"

Rabkin is particularly interested in getting across the concept of specific therapy. "Just as the days are gone when such non-specific therapies as sunshine for tuberculosis were prescribed for physical illnesses," he says, "the time is past for treating Valium abuse, insomnia and alcoholism by biographical reminiscing on an analyst's couch."

Doctors Urge Evaluation Of Medical Practices

By AL ROSSITER JR. WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Harvard health specialists say many diagnostic and therapeutic medical practices in use today have not been properly evaluated and some may be unnecessarily risky.

Drs. Howard Frazier and Howard Hiatt said some once-innovative procedures such as dacron blood vessel grafts and antibiotics have saved thousands and even millions of lives, but others turned out to be worthless after widespread use.

"The history of medical practice is replete with descriptions of procedures that have been widely employed, only to be discarded when they have been shown to be seriously flawed," Krazier and Hiatt said in a report in this week's issue of Science magazine.

As an example of current practices not adequately evaluated, they cited the case of breast surgery for cancer. They said and underlying muscles are removed remains the most widely practiced opera-tion for breast cancer "but much evidence suggests that it is no more effective than simpler procedures."

Tonsillectomy was another example cited. The doctors said tonsil removal may be less common than it was in the past, "but one can question the justification for most of the almost 1 million operations still performed annually."

Frazier and Hiatt said there is widespread agreement that the coronary artery bypass procedure has not been adequately evaluated, yet it is estimated more than 80,000 such operations will be carried out in the United States this year.

While some people may derive major benefit from the operation, many others now operated on have characteristics that most experts agree should exclude them as candidates for the procedure."

The two Harvard officials said many factors contribute to the inadequacy of evaluation of medical practices.

"A popular conception of a venal physician willfully prescribing unnecessary in-terventions is clearly incorrect," the wrote. "Such people do exist, but undoubtedly account for only a small fraction of the problem.

And they suggested changes in reim-bursement procedures for health care which they said now often provide incentives that interfere with evaluation of medical practices such as insurance plans that pay for hospital care but not home "Although no single change will solve all the problems of evaluation, several of-fer promise of improving our ability to choose from among medical interven-tions those most likely to be useful," they of Public Health.

The annual study, conducted by the economics department of McGraw-Hill Publications Co. and released today, indicates that U.S. companies plan to spend $34.5 billion on research in 1978, com-pared with about $31 billion in 1977.

About one-third of the 1978 expenditure is earmarked for the development of new products, the study said. The re-

Scientist To Leave For Home

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) - Amandish Podinsh is going home early next month, returning to Daugavpils, Lativan SSR, where his odyssey began in 1977.

Podinsh has been away from his wife, 15-year-old twins and his chair as physics professor at the Pedagogical Institute in Daugavpils, for 10 months. His absence included one month in Washington, D.C., learning American English and nine at Oklahoma State University as a visiting scientist with Dr. Bill Sibley, director of the OU school of physical and earth sci-

Podinsh's reputation as a physicist is established in the USSR and Latvian SSR, particularly for his work in radiation defect formation in ionic crystals and for that reason he was sent to OSU by the pedagogical institute to study the medthods of unlocking the mysteries of radiation defect formation.

The graying, slightly-built scientist says he is not political but is simply a scientist and a member of a closely knit international community of scientists who work of mankind.

The institute, he says, trains Latvians to be teachers of physics, mathematics, biology, chemistry, Russian literature and langauge, and history. A person spends 41/2 years at the institute and six months practice teaching in Latvian

At Oklahoma State, Podinsh has virtually isolated himself in the laboratory with Sibley and graduate student Mark Iverson of Stevens Point, Wisc. Podinsh says he prefers the isolation of the laboratory to the public spotlight.

He has visited in the homes of professors and students who have helped take hs mind off the long nights without his family in his small rent house on South Duck Street in Stillwater.

"He's a good cook," say Sibley. "I know because I've been to his house for dinner." He offers guests wine, Vodka and balzams, a strong drink that is reported to be good for colds.

Mrs. Podinsh visited her husband in Oklahoma early this year, but the twins were studying and could not leave school. Podinsh says he is not very good in sports, although he occasionally plays volleyball. "Sometimes I play a little bit chess, but that's not athletics," he says. "In Stillwater, I have only played chess with Mark Iverson. I think we are equal.

Motorists Get Load Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Holidaybound motorists risk their hard-earned vacation money and even their lives by overloading their automobiles.

Malcolm Lovell Jr., chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council, said too much weight can damage tires, cause springs to fail and make shock absorbers ineffective.

"Serious accidents can be caused by an overloaded car," he said.

He suggested that vacationers check their car owner manuals for the recommended load capacity, and also look at the maximum load designations on the si-dewalls of tires before loading their au-

> But the bait business is tight. "It's pretty-well sewed up," said John Crane, Mrs. Crane's son, who recently opened his own shop in Polk City. "I've seen a lot of places open and close. You either can pull it off or you can't. A lot of it is within the same families."

Crane compared his parents' bait shop and his store to chain supermarkets.

"You know, you've got the corner small markets and the giant supermarkets. We're kind of like the Safeway," he said. "The established bait houses have their drawing power and they are known for their quality and service so people come back and are loyal."

ecology, is moving forward on another vital front: energy conservation. The legislature has provided incentive to homeowners in low-interest leans and tax relief. Officials say it's one alternative to mere power plants.)

By ROBERT LOCKE

SALEM, Ore. (AP) - Monty C. King is putting solar collectors on the roof to help meet hot water needs and is adding storm windows and some extra insulation to keep the warm air in and the winter wind out of his Salem home.

"I want to get out from under the electric company as soon as possible," King says. "They've got this new law and the money's available ... so that's how I'm getting it done. I wouldn't have had enough money otherwise."

King, a 28-year-old state employee and part-time college student, is financing the $3,000 project with a loan - at 5.9 percent interest - and should get back at least $125 in state tax credit. In addition, he says, "I'm expecting all this to pay for itself in less than 10 years" through reduced utility bills.

Institute this

King is one of thousands of Oregonians who are cashing in on what state officials call the most comprehensive energy conservation program in the country. The package of nearly a dozen laws was approved by the 1977 Legislature and became fully effective last Oct. 4.

No one is predicting how much energy the program might save. But officials note that conserving energy adds to the pool of available power just as effectively as building new power plants. The biggest difference: conservation is cheaper, quicker, easier on the environment and takes nothing from dwindling energy supplies. In addition to low-interest loans for residential energy projects, the laws also require utility companies to provide free home weatherization inspections, recommend insulation needs, estimate costs and help arrange contracting and financ-

The low-income elderly are given property tax or rent refunds to offset spriraling utility rates. Many also are being reimbursed for the full cost of insulating their homes.

Any homeowner may deduct from his state income tax bill 25 percent, up to $125, of the total cost of new insulation and other weatherization work.

And a half-dozen state agencies are linked into a Consumer Weatherization Protection Network to deal with consumer complaints, monitor advertising claims and oversee the insulation and solar energy industries.

Bill Sanderson of the Oregon Energy Department says about 25 tax credits were approved in the first six months for alternate energy systems, most of them solar.

A year ago, he says, "There were fewer than two dozen solar homes in the entire state.'

A homeowner, with approval of the Energy Department, receives a tax credit of 25 percent of an investment in al-

Rano Ellertson of Salem, a designer and distributor of solar equipment, says business is booming. "I can hardly be-lieve it. It's really been building momen-

Ellertson says most involves people who have been considering solar energy for years and "now that they're going to get some money back ... they're actually doing something about it."

The state revenue department says about 700 requests for weatherization tax credits were among the first batches of tax returns. The department says it has paid a total of $256,000 to 1,085 elderly residents who have taken advantage of the plan and almost 60,000 elderly have received a total of $3 million in refunds under the utility rate relief program. To qualify for the $50 refund, a resident must be 60 or older and have an annual household income of less than $5,000. The public utility commissioner's office is setting guidelines to govern electric and gas utilities' part in the conservation program. The PUC's Al Jasso says most utilities "have their own conser programs in operation right now and they're reacting positively to the whole

At Portland General Electric Co., its heat and energy analysis team inspects about eight homes a day, identifying insulation needs, recommending improvements and showing homeowners how they can save on energy - in dollars and

"After that," says B.R. Marlatt, head of PGE, "it's up to the customer."

Marlatt says conservation is having an impact. He says last winter's energy demands were slightly less than expected among residential customers.

"I don't have any accurate figures, but it's very definitely working." Pacific Power & Light Co. is developing a similar program and has been doing home inspections for about a year.

"A lot of people are doing ... those things that don't cost money," says C.P.

Daveport, Pacific's vice president. "But when someone needs to do something that requires dollars, I'm not sure they'doing that right now."

Davenport, like officials of other utili-ties, says such programs will increase ex-penses and may have an impact on rates. "But for every dollar we spend on con-"But for every dollar we spend on con-servation, we hope we'll save two. If peo-ple will conserve energy, that's a very cost-effective thing for us to do." He says Oregon and the rest of the country have two options — conserve en-ergy or build more power plants.
"Conservation won't avoid the need for new plants, but it may delay those new

Coldstream Guards Not

Just Toys

By LILLIAN O'CONNELL ited Press International Wri

United Press International Writer
When you ask Sir Julian Paget what he considers the high point of his career in the queen's Coldstream Guards, he answers without hesitation his command of the queen's birthday parade in 1962 — this despite a distinguished military carters in the field

Two months before that colorful ceremony the much-decorated baronet had been on operational duty with his battal-

Commissioned in 1940, he fought with the Guards Armored Division in Europe in World War II, including the battle at Arnheim, made famous by Cornelius Ryan in his book "A Bridge Too Far."

He served three years in Palestine when Israel was trying to set itself up, "being shot at by both the Jews and the Arabs;" in Aden, "being shot at by the Arabs;" and with the NATO forces in

This 56-year-old retired officer is living proof that the Guards are not just toy sol diers as so many people think.

Educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he obtained a degree in modern languages, Sir Julian was appointed a Gentleman Usher to the queen in 1972. He is deputy editor of the "Guards" magazine and author of "Counter Insurgency Campaigning" and "Last Post — Aden 1964-67."

His latest book, "The Story of the Guards," was first published in Britain two years ago and is now available in a full-color, profusely illustrated American edition (Presidio Press).

The history of the Guards dates from the time of King Charles II, in whose lifetime all the present regiments were formed with the exception of the Irish and Welsh Guards.

Actually the story of the original regi-ments begins in the troubled year 1642 during the reign of Charles I. England was on the verge of civil war and Ireland was in a state of rebellion. Parliament was reluctant to send English troops to quell the Irish rebels and so they raised 10 Scottish regiments, which were to act as a royal guard for the king, who planned to lead his troops into battle.

The king never went to Ireland, but the 10 regiments served there for seven years before returning to Scotland in 1649. They had been reduced to such low num-bers that they were formed into one unit known as the Irish Companies.

The book traces the Guards' history through many famous engagements, including the Seven Years War (1756-63), the American War of Independence (1775-83), the battle of Waterloo (1815), the Boer War (1899-1902), World Wars I and II, right down to the present action

The quiescent volcano that is Ireland has erupted again as it has at intervals over the last four centuries. Each regiment, with the exception of the Irish Guards, has carried out several fourmonth tours of duty in this grim warfare which began in 1969 and which involves

'our own kith and kin."

But the ceremonial is the bright side of the coin for the Guards units and Troop-ing the Color the highlight. In 1962 Sir Julian had over 1,000 troops working on his word of command — or his 113 words of command, for that is what it takes to get all the maneuvers

He was mounted and had to worry about what his horse was going to do. The sovereign, who is colonel-in-chief of the Guards regiments, also is mounted the company the company the Guards regiments, also is mounted during the ceremony.

At the end of the parade, "which fortunately went all right," Sir Julian rode back to Buckingham Palace alongside the queen and, while footmen served carrots on silver trays to the horses inside the palace grounds, Sir Julian and the queen shared a glass of champagne inside the palace.

Man Offers Painting For Exhibit

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - "I saw the painting and it was love at first sight," Duane Hillmer of Omaha says of Emanuel Leutze's "Washington Crossing the

"I love the painting so, naturally, I love to talk about it," he said. "My affection for the painting is identified with my affection for the country.

Hillmer, owner of an Omaha printing firm, was prepared to pay $600,000 for the 128-year-old painting when it was sold at an auction on Oct. 25, 1973. But the bidding stopped at $260,000.

"I couldn't believe it," Hillmer said. The painting, showing George Washington and a ragged army crossing the Delaware River on Christmas night 1776, had been displayed in the White House but was put up for auction by its owner, J. William Middendorf, who was Ambassador to the Netherlands at the time. Hillmer's painting is a smaller, but otherwise identical copy of a painting now hanging in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

The central feature of the painting is Washington, standing in the front of the boat, his eyes fixed on the shore where he was to surprise a force of British and Hessian soldiers and turn the war around in favor of the Americans

"The event was described in Washington's words as almost time to give up, Hillmer said. "Fortunes were low that Christmas night. When you study the people's faces the artist did a wonderful job of capturing the anxiety and hopes and spirit of the moment "Historians dispute who was the greatest American. Many were. But I'm a fellow who likes a guy that makes his own footprints, an innovator, pioneer, not afraid to be different," he said. When he bought the painting, Hillmer said his ambition was that as many young Americans as possible would see it.

Since 1974, the painting has been exhibited at the Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, the Spokane World's Fair, in Philadelphia during the Bicentennial and in an art museum in Dusseldorf, West Germany, for a special exhibit of American paintings in 1976. It currently hangs in the Kennedy Gallery in New York.

Hillmer says the painting will never hang in his home in Omaha because the security requirements would be too great. Besides, his home was struck twice by burglars six years ago.
"When I go to New York, I can go and

Man Charged With Assault

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) - Paul Livngston, who has sued the Museum of New Mexico to end its practice of allowing just Indians to sell jewelry outside the historic Palace of the Governors, has been charged with verbal assault against an Indian vendor.

Mary Anderson said Livingston assaulted her April 23 through the use of language impugning her honor, delicacy or reputation. Livington pleaded innocent to the charge Monday before Magistrate Eugene Romero

Livingston said he has been harassed by Indians selling their jewelry and crafts under the portal at the Palae of the Governors, the seat of the provincial Spanish government built in 1610. It is the oldest public building in continuous use in the United States and, as a museum, is a maior attraction for tourists.

Complaining of discrimination, Livingston has sued to overturn the museum's policy of allowing only Indians to sell their jewelry at the portal. He sells his jewlery at the portal and has accused museum officials of prompting Indians to

Patterns Of Speech Suggested For IDs

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - The head of the 126-nation International Criminal Police Organization has suggested that speech patterns be used to identify criminals and terrorists.

Jean Nepote, secretary-general of Interpol, also suggested that bank notes paid to kidnappers be covered with a slow-acting stain that would leave longlasting marks on people handling them. Nepote was speaking Monday to the eighth triennial meeting of the International Association of Forensic Sciences.

Indian Leader Gives Politicians Warning

laced an ad in the Napa Register, warnng local politicians:

"In your haste to become re-elected you may have driven a stake through the skull of one of our babies ... I'm sure you six campaign signs were desecrating an old Indian burial ground along Highway concerning your job, your home, your family, even the laws of physics." And you can make better guesses if you know some mathematics, says Polya, who is teaching math again at Stamford University. "By knowing the essence of math, you learn to look at things closely, and not to accept them too easily. Math provides a school in judgment. It can improve your critical judgment.'

Polya, white-haired, bushy-browed, slightly stooped but vigorous, talked about his favorite subject in his sunny home here on a recent weekend.

Internationally known, he is author of some 250 papers, some dealing with research in probability, number theory, and combinatories, and of "How To Solve It," a book giving advice to students that has sold 250,000 copies in 15 languages.

Polya started teaching math 60 years ago. Among other places, he taught for 26 years at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology and 11 at Stanford until his retirement in 1953 at age 65. When Sputnik put new emphasis on science and math, Polya began teaching high school teachers how to teach math.

Now he's back at Stanford, filling in for a colleague, teaching an introductory course to combinatories in the computer science department. This is a branch of science dealing with problems of choice and arrangement.

Born in Hungary, coming to America in 1940 "because Hitler was too close." and becoming a U.S. citizen, Polya finds the American public is not sufficiently critical. What they see on TV, they tend to accept right away.

Schools should teach math better. It tends to be the least popular subject. Math teachers should arouse the kids and make them like math. Give them problems that hold natural interest for them, something to do with baseball, for example. If they learn the essence of matn, their decisions would be more rational. What is the scientific method except Guess And Test?"

Students and colleagues compliment Polya's teaching skills - "He describes abstract concepts in concrete terms... He has a great love for explaining things to people... He has always been full of very clever examples and ways of looking at things.

Polya became a mathematician somewhat by default after early interests in literature, biology, physics, law and philosophy - "my way of study was to zig and zag.

He had three math teachers along the way, "one very good, the other two bad, in different ways." Finally he decided "I was not good enough for physics, and too good for philosophy, so math was in between.

He received his PhD. in mathematics in 1912, after earlier qualifying to teach Hungarian and Latin and starting to acquire speaking knowledge of four lan-

Polya thinks computers are "especially important for business decisions. The directors (of a company) don't understand it, but what the computer comes up with can be checked to some extent by their common sense.

Modern miniaturized calculators "can be good. But they are bad if you don't learn your math tables and have to rely on them. The machine itself can't make a mistake, but you can. If you know some math, you can know that some answers just can't be right. If you don't know simle math, they can be dangerous. For kids, they are educational if you use them the right way.

He was given a calculator on his 90th birthday last Dec. 13, "but I don't use it. I use the slide rule I got in Gottingen (Germany) 70 years ago.

Retirement at 65, he says, "is good for the young: otherwise they don't have jobs. But we need to have busy hands all our lives.

The funds also disposed of more than 400,000 shares of Exxon, valued at close to $18 million, thus dealing themselves out of more than $1 million of short-term gains, based on a $2.87 rise since March

The survey was conducted among 466 mutual funds by Vickers Associates, Inc., as part of its regular surveillance of fund including the funds themselves.

It found that by far the largest acquisitions, in dollar terms, were in Atlantic Richfield. More than 851,000 shares were acquired in the first quarter at a cost of more than $39 million.

On those transactions alone, the many funds involved showed a combined gain on paper of close to $4.5 million since the end of the first quarter. Windsor Fund, the biggest buyer, picked up 201,000 shares.

United Technologies, Motorola, Standard Oil-Indiana, Hewlett-Packard, J.P. Morgan, Sperry Rand, J.C. Penney, Citicorp and Morton Norwich made up the remainder of the list of top buys.

Hewlett-Packard registered the biggest gain on the list, rising from $62.37 on March 3l to $79.25 on May 19, thus adding close to $2.67 million to the assets of the funds involved.

Viewing the figures, some investors might believe the huge trading power of the funds - the 466 funds have total assets of $42 billion - creates the market. Thus, they assert, the heavy buying or selling of certain stocks produces gains or losses in those stocks.

The experience of Becton Dickinson, however, suggests this isn't always so. With close to $61 million of its shares disposed of, the company was the most heavily sold of all stocks in the Vickers From the end of the first quarter to last

Friday's close, however, shares of the health care products manufacturer rose $2.50 to $38.50, as individuals and other institutions viewed it as a good buy. Part of the rise undoubtedly resulted from an offer for Becton Dickinson by Sun Oil, but no such factor was involved in the sudden rise of IBM shares from $235.50 to $262.12, despite fund selling. Also confounding some of the funds was ATT, Denison Mines, Exxon, Tenneco. ITT and Digital Equipment, all heavily sold by the funds but which subsequently rose in price. On that list of the 10 most heavily sold shares, only General Motors and Connecticut General Insurance declined, the latter from $44.87 on March 31 to $37 on May 19. Most funds maintain they aren't in the market for short-term gains, but this survey suggests they might be excused for doing a bit of boasting about that record. But if they do, they must also accept blame in the short run for some poor choices of which stocks to sell

DR. LAMB

Aspirin Affects Stomach

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Please send your Health Letter on Aspirin and Related Medicines. My doctor has suggested that I take 12 Ascriptin each day. After one week my stomach began to give me trouble.

When I was younger I learned it was better to suffer out monthly cramps than to take aspirin because they affected my stomach. Until recently I have had no stomach problem for 10 years or more. I'm 63, unusually healthy except for some arthritis and take no other medications.

DEAR READER - Aspirin will irritate the stomach and it affects some people more than others. It seems to be particularly bad for people who are prone to acid stomach. You canavoid the problem to some extent by taking aspirin with food or crushing the pill and dissolving it in a half cup

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, on aspirin as you requested. It includes a list of commonly available medicines that also contain aspirin so you can identify them. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You might ask your doctor to put you on some other mild pain-relieving medicine that contains no aspirin. I presume he is giving you medicine to relieve some of the aches and pain from your arthritis.

DEAR DR. LAMB - How does one treat tennis elbow: I've recently taken up tennis which I enjoy at 60 years of age but don't want to aggravate the condition. I have been given advice that ranges from cutting out tennis for prolonged periods, using an elbow stretch bandage to getting cortisone shots and lifting weights. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER - There seems to be about as many treatments for tennis elbow as there are for the common cold and a lot of them are about as useless.

Tennis elbow is caused by an injury where a tendon inserts on a long knob at your elbow. The force of the blow and how you hit the ball are all important. And a good treatment that does work is to relieve the strain on the elbow.

How do you do that? First go see a pro tennis teacher who knows what he is doing and have him review your game with you. He may be able to help you improve your technique to backhand stroke. (Real pros sometimes have a different problem.) And you can minimize that problem by using the two-handed back stroke technique that has become popular in recent years. By using both hands you don't jar the injured area. This is a good example where the technique becomes important. If you are going to see a physician

Along these lines you should know that in amatuers - even 60 year olds

- the injury is usually caused by the

about it - and that is a good idea see a specialist in orthopedics. But if you have no major complications and improve your technique, the problem will go away in time while you continue to play.

The stretch bandage is a brace designed to help limit the blow when vou return the ball.

Cortisone injections should not be used except in severe cases and then no more than a couple of times. The proper treatment is to correct the underlying problem.

Strengthening your arms does help but again technique is everything. Many authorities recommend a good stretch and warm-up routine before beginning playing and again after playing to minimize tennis elbow

Man Offers Painting For Exhibit

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - "I saw the painting and it was love at first sight," Duane Hillmer of Omaha says of Emanuel Leutze's "Washington Crossing the

Hillmer, owner of an Omaha printing firm, was prepared to pay $600,000 for the 128-year-old painting when it was sold at an auction on Oct. 25, 1973. But the bidding stopped at $260,000.

"I couldn't believe it," Hillmer said. The painting, showing George Washngton and a ragged army crossing the Delaware River on Christmas night 1776. had been displayed in the White House but was put up for auction by its owner, J. William Middendorf, who was Ambassador to the Netherlands at the time.

Hillmer's painting is a smaller, but otherwise identical copy of a painting now hanging in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

The central feature of the painting is Washington, standing in the front of the boat, his eyes fixed on the shore where he was to surprise a force of British and Hessian soldiers and turn the war around in favor of the Americans.

"The event was described in Washington's words as almost time to give up,' Hillmer said. "Fortunes were low that Christmas night. When you study the people's faces the artist did a wonderful job of capturing the anxiety and hopes and spirit of the moment. "Historians dispute who was the greatest American. Many were. But I'm a fellow who likes a guy that makes his own footprints, an innovator, pioneer, not afraid to be different," he said.

When he bought the painting, Hillmer said his ambition was that as many young Americans as possible would see it.

Since 1974, the painting has been exhibited at the Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, the Spokane World's Fair, in Philadelphia during the Bicentennial and in an art museum in Dusseldorf, West Germany, for a special exhibit of American paintings in 1976. It currently hangs in the Kennedy Gallery in New York.

Hillmer says the painting will never hang in his home in Omaha because the security requirements would be too great. Besides, his home was struck twice by burglars six years ago.
"When I go to New York, I can go and

Man Charged With Assault

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) - Paul Livingston, who has sued the Museum of New Mexico to end its practice of allowing just Indians to sell jewelry outside the historic Palace of the Governors, has been charged with verbal assault against an Indian vendor.

Mary Anderson said Livingston assaulted her April 23 through the use of language impugning her honor, delicacy or reputation. Livington pleaded innocent to the charge Monday before Magistrate Eugene Romero.

Livingston said he has been harassed by Indians selling their jewelry and crafts under the portal at the Palae of the Governors, the seat of the provincial Spanish government built in 1610. It is the oldest ablic building in continuous use in the United States and, as a museum, is a major attraction for tourists.

Complaining of discrimination, Livingston has sued to overturn the museum's policy of allowing only Indians to sell their jewelry at the portal. He sells his jewlery at the portal and has accused museum officials of prompting Indians to

Born in Hungary, coming to America in 1940 "because Hitler was too close," and becoming a U.S. citizen, Polya finds the American public is not sufficiently critical. What they see on TV, they tend to accept right away.

The fifth summit meeting of France and black African nations instead agreed on forming a commission headed by Senegal to intensify military solidarity. It was the one concrete result of the summit, which ended Tuesday night.

Zaire President Mobutu Sese Soko found no support to his appeal for more military aid to save his regime from exiled rebels who invaded Zaire's Shaba province, formerly Katanga, last week for the second time in 14 months.

France also in effect turned down Mobutu's request that the Foreign Legion remain in Zaire for six months.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing told a news conference, "French forces which intervened in Kolwezi will be withdrawn as soon as they accomplish their task of liberating remaining Europeans in rebel hands."

"The Zaire government," Giscard added, "will be informed in time so it will be able to insure security of the area after our forces' departure.

Mobutu today met with Giscard for 40 minutes at the Elysee palace. There was no immediate word on the subject of their discussion.

A proposal by Gabon, backed by France, that African nations set up their own intervention force was not adopted by the 21 nations attending the two-day summit in suburban Versailles.

The leaders set up a committee to widen existing defense agreements between west African nations to include new members.

The African leaders indicated they have no qualms about leaning on French military strength to stabilize their regimes. France recently sent military aid to Chad and Mauritania in addition to last week's aid to Zaire.

"After all, European members of NA-TO make no bones about being dependent upon the United States and Eastern nations are dependent upon Moscow so why should we be ashamed of cooperating with France?" Felix Houphouet-Boigny, president of Ivory Coast, said to

The African summit delegates also voted to seek more aid from industrialized nations. Some members emphasized that stability can only come from economic

The K-9 Corps of the Lubbock police department is sponsoring a free, 10-day dog obedience school, beginning at 10 a.m. Monday.

The course, which lasts 90 minutes per day, will conclude on June 9, following two, 5-day sessions, a department spokesman said.

The sessions, scheduled on a Mondaythrough-Fridav basis, will be held on the baseball diamond at Hodges Community Center, 41st Street and University Ave-

Registration will be conducted during the first session, police said, and all dog handlers must be at least 10 years old. Children under 17 should be accompa-

Western reporters here had not heard before of a "Russian Liberation Army."

Hijackings and terrorist incidents ap-pear to be relatively rare in the Soviet Union, and police try to cover up any that do occur.

Recent hijacking cases have included one last July to Finland after which the two hijackers were returned to the Soviet Union and tried, and another in May 1977 in which a plane was forced to Sweden, where authorities refused to extradite the hijacker.

Governor Loses Bid

Former Oregon Gov. Tom McCall's attempt at a political comeback has been thwarted by state Sen. Victor Atiyeh, a soft-spoken veteran of 19 years in the state Legislature.

"I'm so excited I can hardly stand it," said Atiyeh, who also was the Republican nominee for governor four years ago.

In Eugene, the state's second largest city, voters rejected by a margin of almost 2-1 an ordinance to prohibit discrimination against homosexuals

Atiyeh's surprising victory over McCall, 65, sets up a rematch with incumbent Bob Straub, who defeated him in the last gubernatorial election.

Unofficial returns from 76 percent of the state's precincts showed Atiyeh with 46 percent of the votes, McCall with 33 percent and state Sen. Roger Martin with

When Atiyeh came to ask McCall's support, he got a cool reception.

"I'm not going to bicker," said McCall. "You've apparently got the ability to get enough votes to win the Republican nomination, but you've only got 8 percent of the votes in the state."

Although he did not get McCall's support at their midnight meeting. Atiyeh said, "I think I might get it after he calms

In other races, Republican U.S. Sen. Mark Hatfield and Democratic state Sen. Vern Cook of Gresham were chosen to compete for Hatfield's Senate seat and Jerry Lausmann of Medford won the Republican nomination to challenge Democrat Jim Weaver in his campaign for reelection to the U.S. House. Weaver easily took his party's nomination over two other candidates.

Oregon's other Democratic House members - Les AuCoin, Al Ullman and Bob Duncan - were unopposed in the primary. Among Democratic winners, Nick Bunick of Portland will oppose Au-Coin in the general election and Terry Hicks of Dallas will run against Ullman.

In Kentucky, state Sen. Tom Easterly, won the Democratic nomination for 6th District representative over three-term Congressman John Breckinridge.

Easterly's upset provided the only excitement in the state's lackluster congressional races and U.S. Senate contest, which was won easily by Democratic incumbent Walter "Dee" Huddleston over ning discrimination against homosexuals in jobs and housing.

Three of the state's seven congressmen were unopposed - Democrats Carroll Hubbard and William Natcher and Republican Gene Snyder.

About 250 disappointed supporters of gay rights held a candlelight march Tuesday night. The group formed a large circle in front of the courthouse and holding hands sang "We Shall Overcome."

"Gay people are not going to go away and we don't want anything less than our rights," said Douglas Huneke. "Keep your minds straight on that freedom or that peace, whether it is in the courts, in the streets or in the Legislature.

Another member of Eugene Citizens for Equal Rights said the group was discussing the possibility of seeking relief in

Homosexuals Face Voter Opposition

- The Richmond, Va., Human Rights Commission is expected to vote on June 6 on a proposal that would ban discrimination in the city on a number of grounds, including homosexuality. After the vote, it will be up to the city manager or one of the nine council members to ask that the matter be brought up before the full

- Earlier this month, a gay rights ordinance was approved in San Francisco, and no repeal effort has surfaced.

Homosexual leaders also were disappointed by the decision Monday by the United Presbyterian Church against the ordination of homosexuals, although celibate homosexuals or those seeking to become heterosexual may become minis-

The drive against homosexual rights gained national attention last June with singer Anita Bryant's "Save Our Children" drive in Dade County.

Voters struck the ordinance from city books. The day after the 202,319 to 89,562 vote, Florida Gov. Reubin Askew signed laws barring homosexuals from marrying members of the same sex or adopting

In April, St. Paul voters decided 54,096 to 31,694 to repeal a 4-year-old ordinance amendment that included homosexuals among those protected from discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations

Also last month, the Providence, R.I., City Council defeated a proposal that would have prohibited job discrimination against a number of minorities, including homosexuals. That measure has not been resubmitted to the council.

In Wichita on May 9, voters decided by a better than 4-to-1 margin to repeal a gay rights ordinance that had been in effect since September.

But four days earlier, in Alaska, the state Supreme Court overruled Anchorage Mayor George Sullivan's order that the names of homosexual groups not be included in the city-published "blue book," which lists service organizations.

which had added sexual orientation to the kinds of discrimination protected by the city's human rights ordinance. The City Council adopted the amendment last November, but it never took effect because signatures were quickly gathered to put it to a popular vote.

The anti-gay rights group shunned the Bible-quoting campaign styles of previous gay rights referendums. Instead, it argued that homosexuality was a choice and should not be protected by the same civil rights guarantees as race and reli-

Dean said his group was not gloating about the victory. He said he respects the sincerity of gay rights advocates and thinks people should have more compassion and understanding of homosexuals.

"My personal opinion is that people voted this way because they see a breakdown in our country of morals and finally they are saying enough, no more," he said. "This ordinance represented to the community an endorsement of homosexuality and they didn't want to have their families and children exposed to that. There needs to be more understanding of the gay lifestyle, but not legal approval.

WASHINGTON (AP) - With almost two weeks left to sign up, farmers have agreed to take about 22.3 million acres of cropland from production, slightly more than the administration's goal for cutting back on wheat, feed grains and cotton this year. The Agriculture Department said Tuesday the acreage signed up was reported by field offices as of May 18. As outlined earlier this spring, the administration's goal is to take at least 22 million acres from crops this year to help cut back on rising surpluses. Farmers will have until May 31 to enroll in the acreage set-aside and crop diversion program. Under federal rules, farmers must participate in the acreage programs to be eligible for government price supports and other benefits for their crops. The weekly progress report for May 18 showed that 1,116,117 farms were enrolled in the acreage programs, representing 48.7 percent of almost 2.3 million that are eligible. The department said the farms not rolled account for 70.4 percent of the U.S.

The 22.3 million acres idled as of May 18 included almost 9.4 million acres set aside under the wheat program and 6.4 million acres set aside under the feed Additional acreage to be diverted from production by the participating farms included almost 4.9 million acres by feed grains producers and 495,623 acres by cotton farmers. Wheat farmers plan to let livestock graze or use for hay almost 1.1 million acres of their crop. Unlike the basic set-aside requirement, the additional diverted acres and the wheat grazing plan qualify farmers for direct government payments on the acres

Science Center Leaflet Explains Food Business

Science in the Public Interest has what it . calls a midget encyclopedia about nutrition and foods. For example, one leaflet entitled "The Food Biz or Whatever Happened to Farmer Brown" explains how the American food system has developed from an earlier era of small farms and storekeepers to a vast network of processors, middlemen and supermarkets. "Even though food labels list all kinds of exotic chemicals, most of our food still comes from farms, ranches and the sea,' the leaflet said.

Soaring prices of land, machinery and other items "have forced family farmers in most parts of the country to sell out to larger farmers or to real estate developers," it said. Moreover, the government "has shown little interest in protecting small farmers" during this evolution, the leaflet "What we have done is trade away a way of life for millions of people for a few big farms and profits and some shiny equipment," it said. The center is a nonprofit, consumer-activist organization formed in 1971. It is headed by Michael Jacobson, a frequent spokesman on nutrition and an active opponent of many practices permitted the ood industry by federal regulations. The center says it is financially supported by donations, sales of publications and grants by foundations. Jacobson opposes use of nitrite in processing bacon and other meat products. He also organized a Food Day dinner at the White House last year which included no meat, an event which prompted protests from livestock and meat groups.

these tips on how to "outwit the food industry and save money" for the family budget: - Pack your own lunch.

It alo serves as refuge for such noxious insects as the sugar beet leashopper, which carries a virus that is detrimental to sugar beets, tomatoes, melons and other crops.

Consumers also are advised to buy food from farm stands or farmers' markets, plant a garden, grow bean sprouts indoors, buy store-brand products instead of nationally advertised brands, carry food along on drives or to the movies, use unit pricing of items in stores and save leftovers. In another leaflet called "What's Left to Eat, a Public Service Message for Bored Tongues," the center says that

Texas Cattlmen Given Approval To Plant Hay

WASHINGTON (AP) - Droughtstricken Texas cattlemen - searching for ways to feed their cattle - have received permission to plant and harvest hay on set-aside acreage.

But the problem besetting bureaucrats and ranchers over feeding cactus to cattle is as thorny as ever. The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service agreed to permit ranchers to plant hay on set-aside acreage

Prior to Tuesday's announcement, cattlemen could not harvest hay on set-aside Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, announced the change in ASCS policy and then attacked the agency's regulations concerning ranchers forced to feed cactus to their catttle. "Cattle feed is at a premium in Texas," said Bentsen. "We have experienced a severe and prolonged drought in parts of the state, particularly in South Texas, and it has been relieved only somewhat by recent rains. This new ruling, which I had requested, will help to ease the cri-

Early Sales Cost Mutual Funds

NEW YORK (AP) - The prices of all 10 stocks in which mutual funds invested most heavily during the first quarter of the year have risen in the seven weeks since then.

But so have eight of the 10 stocks they sold most heavily. One of them, General Motors, fell only 50 cents, from $61.50 on March 31 to $61 at the close of trading last Friday.

The experience demonstrates several things, perhaps nothing more strongly than the pervasive strength of the rally that began near the end of February, and

Do the funds have superior abilities in picking stocks?

In their defense is the selection of 10 winners out of 10 choices on the list of heaviest investments. But by far the greater dollar amount was involved in their sales, most of which subsequently

For example, more than $60.6 million IBM shares were sold by the funds in the first quarter, a survey shows, but through May 19 those same shares rose $26.62, for a total of more than $6.85 million. The funds also disposed of more than 400,000 shares of Exxon, valued at close to $18 million, thus dealing themselves out of more than $1 million of short-term gains, based on a $2.87 rise since March activities for other stock market analysts. including the funds themselves.

The survey was conducted among 466 mutual funds by Vickers Associates, Inc. as part of its regular surveillance of fund

It found that by far the largest acquisitions, in dollar terms, were in Atlantic Richfield. More than 851,000 shares were acquired in the first quarter at a cost of more than $39 million.

On those transactions alone, the many funds involved showed a combined gain on paper of close to $4.5 million since the end of the first quarter. Windsor Fund, the biggest buyer, picked up 201,000

United Technologies, Motorola, Standard Oil-Indiana, Hewlett-Packard, J.P. Morgan, Sperry Rand, J.C. Penney, Citicorp and Morton Norwich made up the remainder of the list of top buys.

Hewlett-Packard registered the biggest gain on the list, rising from $62.37 on March 3l to $79.25 on May 19, thus adding close to $2.67 million to the assets of the funds involved.

Viewing the figures, some investors might believe the huge trading power of the funds - the 466 funds have total assets of $42 billion - creates the market. Thus, they assert, the heavy buying or selling of certain stocks produces gains or losses in those stocks.

The experience of Becton Dickinson, however, suggests this isn't always so. With close to $61 million of its shares disposed of, the company was the most heavily sold of all stocks in the Vickers survey.

From the end of the first quarter to last Friday's close, however, shares of the health care products manufacturer rose $2.50 to $38.50, as individuals and other institutions viewed it as a good buy.

Part of the rise undoubtedly resulted from an offer for Becton Dickinson by Sun Oil, but no such factor was involved in the sudden rise of IBM shares from $235.50 to $262.12, despite fund selling. Also confounding some of the funds was ATT, Denison Mines, Exxon, Tenneco. ITT and Digital Equipment, all heavily sold by the funds but which subsequently rose in price. On that list of the 10 most heavily sold shares, only General Motors and Connecticut General Insurance declined, the latter from $44.87 on March 31 to $37 on May 19. Most funds maintain they aren't in the market for short-term gains, but this survey suggests they might be excused for doing a bit of boasting about that record. But if they do, they must also accept blame in the short run for some poor choices of which stocks to sell

Aspirin Affects Stomach

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - Please send your Health Letter on Aspirin and Related Medicines. My doctor has suggested that I take 12 Ascriptin each day. After one week my stomach began to give me trouble.

When I was younger I learned it was better to suffer out monthly cramps than to take aspirin because they affected my stomach. Until recently I have had no stomach problem for 10 years or more. I'm 63, unusually healthy except for some arthritis and take no other medications

DEAR READER - Aspirin will irritate the stomach and it affects some people more than others. It seems to be particularly bad for people who are prone to acid stomach. You can avoid the problem to some extent by taking aspirin with food or crushing the pill and dissolving it in a half cup

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, on aspirin as you requested. It includes a list of commonly available medicines that also contain aspirin so you can identify them. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long. stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You might ask your doctor to put you on some other mild pain-relieving medicine that contains no aspirin. I presume he is giving you medicine to relieve some of the aches and pain from your arthritis.

DEAR DR. LAMB - How does one treat tennis elbow: I've recently taken up tennis which I enjoy at 60 years of age but don't want to aggravate the condition. I have been given advice that ranges from cutting out tennis for prolonged periods, using an elbow stretch bandage to getting cortisone shots and lifting weights. What do vou suggest?

DEAR READER - There seems to be about as many treatments for tennis elbow as there are for the common cold and a lot of them are about as useless.

Tennis elbow is caused by an injury where a tendon inserts on a long knob at your elbow. The force of the blow and how you hit the ball are all important. And a good treatment that does work is to relieve the strain on the elbow.

How do you do that? First go see a pro tennis teacher who knows what he is doing and have him review your game with you. He may be able to help you improve your technique to that in amatuers - even 60 year olds - the injury is usually caused by the backhand stroke. (Real pros sometimes have a different problem.) And you can minimize that problem by using the two-handed back stroke technique that has become popular in recent years. By using both hands you don't jar the injured area. This is a good example where the technique becomes important. If you are going to see a physician about it - and that is a good idea see a specialist in orthopedics. But if you have no major complications and improve your technique, the problem will go away in time while you continue to play.

The stretch bandage is a brace designed to help limit the blow when vou return the ball.

Cortisone injections should not be used except in severe cases and then no more than a couple of times. The proper treatment is to correct the underlying problem.

Strengthening your arms does help but again technique is everything. Many authorities recommend a good stretch and warm-up routine before beginning playing and again after playing to minimize tennis elbow problems.

ev divorce. 'Marital discord is associated with more adverse outcomes for children than is divorce," she said, adding: "In the long run, it is not a good idea for parents a remain in a conflicted marriage for the sake of the children."

Dr. Hetherington and two associates sed their conclusions on the results of a Gro-year study of 96 white middleclass families with children who were 4 when the study began.

Half of the families had parents and child living together and half consisted of divorced parents in which custody of the mild was granted to the mother.

The behavior of the children at home and in school was measured by a variety of techniques.

In the first year following divorce, the deport noted, children in the divorced milies were functioning less well than those in high discord families. The children in the high discord families in turn showed more problems than those of families with less parental conflict.

But Dr. Hetherington said the differmces were reversed during the second for following divorce, with the effect fore pronounced in boys than girls.

aTwo years after a divorce, more aggresswe and less prosocial behavior was seen in boys from intact families with high conflicts than in divorced families.

The boys in the divorced families were still not functioning as well as those in low-stress intact families, although differences had largely disappeared in girls. The report was presented at the University of Virginia in a four-day symposium on families, sponsored by the John-

U.S., Russia Appear To Be Near SALT Climax

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly five ways" in which the two countries might on the merits of the agreement that we years after they started, the United States and the Soviet Union appear to be moving into the climactic stages of the search for a second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet in New York and then in Washington this weekend to discuss three stubborn issues that so far have defied solution — the Soviet Backfire bomber, qualitative restraints on new weapons and the definition of a heavy bomber that can carry cruise missiles

'We're not prepared to change our basic position on those issues," said Paul Warnke, the chief U.S. SALT negotiator, at a breakfast meeting with reporters on Tuesday. But, Warnke said, there are "parallel try to arrive at a compromise.

Apart from that oblique hint, Warnke would say nothing about the American negotiating strategy for the weekend. Nor would he disclose anything the Unit-ed States knows about possible Soviet

In a separate interview with The Associated Press, Warnke said "it's impossible to tell" whether there will be a breakthrough in the forthcoming crucial round of talks.

But Warnke said he was certain of one thing — that the proposed new treaty, "on the basis of its own merits, is a substantial contribution to American se-

Anticipating an intense domestic political fight over the treaty, Warnke said: "I think we can demonstrate conclusively are not making all of the concessions. The Soviet Union has made very, very substantial moves to accept our posi-

The new SALT treaty, if approved by the Senate, would replace the arms limitation agreement that U.S. and Soviet leaders signed in Moscow in 1972.

On the issue of qualitative restraints in the new treaty, the United States is proposing that neither side develop new and-based intercontinental ballistic missiles for three years.

The Soviets want to reserve the right to develop one additional ICBM for their arsenal. They are in the midst of replacing an old missile, the SS-11, with a new generation of more accurate missiles, each with multiple warheads. But the proposed SALT II agreement sets both a ceiling on the total number of strategic missiles allowed each side and a lower "sub-ceiling" on the number of missiles with multiple warheads.

The Russians want the right to build a new, single-warhead missile so they can completely modernize their missile arsenal without exceeding the multiple warhead ceiling. The United States has refused to agree.

Another problem centers around the definition of a "new missile."

"This is a complicated matter because the generation of new weapons by the two sides is of a different type. We tend to move from one system to another system. The Russians tend to tinker with existing systems," explained White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinksi in a recent briefing for reporters.

When does that Russian "tinkering" proved that they are in fact the equivalent of new missiles? What if they improved the guidance system to make their missiles more accurate?

With those questions comes the problem of verification. Can the array of satellites, radar and other U.S. electronic eavesdroppers detect such changes?

The Backfire bomber presents a different problem. It is the newest Soviet bomber which Warnke describes as "a very big, heavy medium-range bomber."

Everyone agrees the Backfire could reach the United States either by flying at relatively slow speed and landing in Cuba or by refueling in flight.

The Soviets insist that Backfire is not a 'strategic" weapon to be counted among the weapons limited by the treaty. Sen.

begin to produce missiles so vastly im- Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and other treaty critics insist that it is.

The administration is aiming for a compromise. It hopes to have a separate letter, signed by President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, spelling out limitations on the Backfire.

A final problem is the definition of the type of heavy bomber which can carry pilotless cruise missiles and therefore would be counted under the overall lim-

The United States wants to preserve the option of arming any of its big planes, including perhaps wide-bodied passe jets, with cruise missiles. The Soviets are not satisfied that they would be able to keep track of the jets carrying cruise missiles and detect whether the United States was cheating.

He cautioned against speculation but refused to discuss specific restrictions, and wouldn't rule out the possibility Carter would seek renewed authority to conduct secret military operations in Angola or elsewhere.

Rep. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said he based his remarks on recent public and private comments by the president about the congressional restraints on conduct of foreign policy.

Carter has ordered the State Department to review restrictions on secret op-To Show Disappointment erations, as well as restrictions on sending military and non-military aid.

On Thursday Carter cleared shipments of fuel, airplane parts, medical supplies and communications equipment to Zaire. He complied with a couple of congressional restraints with apparent ease. He got Zaire to agree to pay $400,000 in overdue bills for earlier military gear bought on credit, and signed a statement declaring additional aid to be "in the national security interests of the United States." On Friday there were no congressional objections when the White House announced that Carter had sent 18 C-141 transports to ferry French and Belgian equipment, fuel and men to within 140 miles of the combat zone.

Saturday the White House released a transcript of a talk Carter had the day beore with a number of newspaper and

UNITED NATIONS (AP) -The General Assembly special session on disarmament begins a two-week general debate today, searching for a common strategy to halt the nuclear weapons race and divert to peaceful purposes nearly $400 billion spent annually on arms.

Wood Possesses Flexibility

BROWNWOOD - IT WOULD perhaps evoke a roll of the eyes, a stare of disbelief or an outright laugh from some of his players, but Gordon Wood says he may have become less of a taskmaster as his career has continued.

"I'm not any tougher and I may possibly have gone the other way," said the 64-year-old Brownwood football coach, a legendary figure in Texas coaching circles. "Having a son play for me made me realize more the human relationships you have with the players and their parents.'

Flexibility. The ability to change to cope with different situations. Gordon Wood possesses it, and it has been one of the keys to his success in a coaching career that began in 1937 and progressed from Spur on through Rule, Roscoe, Seminole, Winters, Stamford, Victoria and Brownwood.

Wood has produced 328 victories against just 66 defeats and 10 ties during his career. And, at 64, he is hardly through, hardly a victim of age and the inflexibility that is ofter associated with it. In the last five seasons, Brownwood has won 51 of 57 games for an. 895 winning percentage.

"I think I'm old fashion about some things, but flexible in others," Wood said. "I think I can relate to almost any group. It's all a matter of communication.

SINCE THE MIDDLE-1960s, much has been made of how different the players are nowadays. The general thinking is that youngsters are more independent now, come from basically more affluent families and are more apt to require a reason when told to do something. There is truth in the hypothesis, but Wood feels that the players he deals with aren't a great deal different from those he worked with in the past.

"There are some changes, no doubt about it," he said. "It used to be that the kids would do exactly what you wanted them to do. Now, they need a reason. "Kids are maybe a little more sophisticated now and a little brighter, and they have so many more things to do now that it makes it tougher to keep them in the athletic programs." The increased use of drugs among high school students is the biggest change Wood has noted, and he admits to being old-fashioned in this regard.

"This confounded marijuana is the only real change I've seen. Other than that, there hasn't been a whole lot.

"I can't understand marijuana at all. I don't see why a boy would want to go that route. I don't think an athlete can smoke that stuff and be effective. If we find a kid with it, we'll eliminate him.

IN WOOD'S VIEW, football is still "a game of motivation." That hasn't changed. Considering his record, one would say that he obviously has found the motivational key.

"We don't have as many distractions here as they do in the big cities, and that

"Also, I have had good assistant coaches, and that's been a big key to my success. I give them lots of responsibility and recognition, and they perform. I think a lot of head coaches like to do it all and get all the glory for themselves. Wood's glory has come entirely at the high school level, never above. At first glance, one would assume that Wood would long ago have ascended to the collegiate ranks.

Two things, he believes, have been the primary obstacles-World War II and the teacher retirement program.

"THE LONGER YOU stay in high school, the more you get tied down because of what you have built up in the retirement system," he said. "And my time in the service (31/2 years) hurt me. I've always felt that some of my really good years in coaching were taken away by the war.

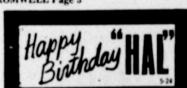

Following the war, he was head coach at Roscoe for two years, at Seminole for three seasons, at Winters for one campaign and at Stamford for seven, where he won two consecutive state championships before leaving for Class AAAA Victoria.

He spent two seasons in the Gulf Coast city without winning a district championship, although "we had a chance each year." Why leave? It was a different world there for him, sans the total commitment to football and the support at the gate that that he had known in his native West Texas.

"Financial support wasn't the problem. I was the highest-paid coach in Texas at the time. But there wasn't quite the same feeling there. Also, my father was See CARTER CROMWELL Page 3

Andress Hosts Monterey

By TOM HALLIBURTON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff EL PASO - Regardless of this week's outcome, the Andress Eagles survived the bidistrict round of the state baseball playoffs. And that's something the 17year-old school has never done in any sport before last weekend.

Now the ambitious Eagles (19-10) hope to soar to greater heights when they entertain the Monterey Plainsmen today in the first game of the best-of-three regional playoff series.

Since the scene shifts to Lubbock's Lowrey Field Friday and Saturday necessity of winning the opener on their border soil is a must. Meanwhile, a win for MHS moves the Hub City club into an enviable spot to reach the quarter-final round against the winner of the Midland Lee-Arlington Sam Houston regional series.

Today's game begins on the Andress High School field at 5 p.m. (CDT).

While Monterey opened its doors in 1955 and started enjoying immediate athletic success, Andress graduated its first class in 1961 and waited 13 years until the Eagles captured a district title in

New Name Surfaces In Tech AD Search

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff A decision on a replacement for retiring Texas Tech athletic director JT King is expected to come within the next two weeks, although an announcement will most likely not be made at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

"We'll probably have something within two weeks or so," said Frank Elliott, Athletic Council chairman and a member of the committee that is screening applicants for the post.

One source said that the matter "should be wrapped up by June 10 or so," unless complications develop.

Another added, "Unless it's a real surprise, the new AD will not be announced at the board meeting (Thursday)." The screening committee, comprised of Elliott and Tech president Dr. Cecil Mackey, is now concentrating on a list of five, possibly six, candidates. Sources indicated that John Cobb, a member of the Tech physicial education department staff and former chairman of the Athletic Council, is one of the final candidates.

Elliott visited Chicago and San Diego last week, and one source said that he was visiting with persons considered to be finalists in the race for job of replacing King, who will retire officially Aug. 31.

The screening committee is not bringing the final candidates to the campus to be interviewed. One new name surfaced Tuesday, that of San Diego State associate athletic director Gene Templeton, but it could not

ikles Gets Drop On Finley, Quits A's

OAKLAND (AP) — Charlie Finley has another recycled manager, Jack McKeon, who says, "At least I know what's expected of me."

Bobby Winkles walked out as manager Tuesday night with his team in first place, and third baseman Wayne Gross later called it, "Just another day in the life of the Oakland A's."

He added, using a line that's been said before by members of baseball's most unpredictable team, "As the clubhouse

McKeon is back as manager, moving into the dugout from the third base coaching spot he occupied, less than a year after Finley fired him as manager and named Winkles to the job. He's the third manager — along with Hank Bauer and Alvin Dark — who has been fired and rehired by the A's Winkles called Finley, who was home in Chicago, about three hours before Tuesday night's game against the Mil-waukee Brewers and told him he was resigning. McKeon and the other coaches, at Finley's request, tried to change his mind but Winkles stood firm and left the Oakland Coliseum more than hour before gametime.

"He didn't give us any concrete reasons why he was leaving, but he had his mind made up and we couldn't change it," said McKeon.

"He just pulled out and that was that," said rookie pitcher John Johnson who, like the rest of the players, learned of the managerial change through a printed statement of Finley's handed out 20 minutes before the game which Oakland

Brewers Manager George Bamberger, who met McKeon instead of Winkles in the pregame meeting at home plate, said, "Sure, I was surprised. It's a shame. Bobby was doing a good job, a real good job." Winkles could not be reached for comment. He reportedly left the Oakland area Tuesday night. "It is obviously something that doesn't meet the eye." Finley said in sizing up one of the strangest of the 15 managerial changes in his 18 years of operating the A's.

But he added, "My speculation on why he quit is that the team is on top and he wanted to get out while he was looking good. If the team took a nosedive, then he'd look bad." had many verbal bouts with Finley, said with a snort, "That sounds like something Charlie would say.

McKeon said, "As far as I know, Bobby didn't go through anything that other managers haven't gone through."

"I had no differences with him about who he was playing," Finley insisted. "If I wanted to make out the lineup, I The owner said the resignation came as "a complete surprise" and he concluded, "I'm sorry to see him go. I think he and part of 1974. When he was fired by the Angels in 1974, former A's manager Dick Williams took his place.

When Williams heard the latest A's news Tuesday night, he said, "No, I'm not surprised. I'm not surprised that the A's are in first place, either. I'm not surprised at anything Charlie does.

Finley said Winkles "gave as his reason for resigning that he did not think I was satisfied with the manner in which he Winkles became A's manager last June 10, after serving as a coach with the San Francisco Giants, and the team struggled to a last-place finish. But it got off to an amazing 19-5 start with a rookie-loaded roster this season and was 24-15 when Winkles walked out.

Finley said he believed the sale of pitcher Joe Coleman, who had a 3-0 record, to Toronto on Monday had nothing to do with Winkles' decision because Winkles told him he felt the owner made a good deal.

Coleman, before leaving the Oakland area, said, "No person would want to work for Finley. He thinks he's higher

The owner said that although Winkles resigned, he asked to be paid his 1978 salary or at least some severance pay. "I told him if he was quitting, I wouldn't give him a damn

Kangers, Sundberg Streak

The Oakland A's lost their manager

Tuesday night.
Not so unusual. Happens all the time out there in Charlie Finley Land. What was unusual was that Bobby Winkles left voluntarily - and with the A's in first place, no less. Winkles, perhaps unwilling to wait for the A's to plummet from first place in the American League West - or unwilling to wait for Finley to hand out yet another sheaf of walking papers, pulled the old "You can't fire me; I quit" routine.

Last June 10 he replaced Jack McKeon. And when Winkles bade the A's goodbye a few hours before Tuesday night's game, McKeon, the third base coach, assumed

And he came in the way he went out a loser. The A's literally kicked away their game against Milwaukee, falling 3-2 and slipping within a game of second-place California In other AL games, Minnesota trimmed Texas 5-2, New York shelled Cleveland 10-1, Baltimore blanked Detroit 2-0. Toronto beat Boston 2-1 in 12 innings, California shaded Chicago 5-4 and, in a twinbill in Seattle, the Mariners won the opener 4-3 and Kansas City came back to win the nightcap 5-3. The A's drew a typically tiny crowd to Tuesday night's game, 2,534 paying fans. They didn't get their money's worth unless they came to see the A's give the game away to the Brewers. In the fifth inning, Matt Keough walked Don Money. Buck Martinez bunted him to second and, with two away, Money raced home when first baseman Dave Revering let Cecil Cooper's grounder bounce past him into right field.

Twins 5, Rangers 2 While Oakland was losing a manager, Minnesota's Rod Carew was losing his coveted .400 batting average and Jim Sundberg of Texas was losing his hitting streak at 22 games

"What am I hitting .399? That's pretty close," Carew said after going 1-for-4 with a bunt single. Carew says he's not worrying about el-ther hitting .400 or dealing with the press, which nearly drove him up the wall last summer as he flirted with the elusive "Thinking about it won't do any good," says the six-time American League batting champion. "Besides, this is only "But if I do keep going this year I believe I will handle it much better," he says of the media pressure. "I can handle it better because I know what I have to His final 1977 average of .388, the high est in the major leagues since Ted Williams reached that figure in 1957, earned him the AL's Most Valuable Player award as well as a lot of attention from

And he's not so sure that what he accomplished last year wasn't comparable to what Williams did when he hit .406 in "A lot of people tell me that," says the 32-year old first baseman. "They say what I did was almost like hitting .400. I don't know. If I hit one point higher this year - .389, I'll be happy."

"Actually I think when someone hits .300 nowadays it's an accomplishment." But Rod Carew isn't just someone, as his .335 lifetime average and .358 mark in the last five seasons attests. He is generally considered the only active player with a decent chance at reaching .400. "If I'm hitting around .390 in September then it will become more visible," he says. "But I'm not worried about it and for now I'm just going up there swing-

And bunting.

Monday night against Texas Carew's only hit was a bunt single off Jon Matlack. Tuesday he got another bunt single against Jim Umbarger, who fielded the ball but slipped trying to make the pivot.

"That's the type of thing you need, though, to hit .400," notes Carew, who bunts for about 20 hits a year. Carew, who has had over 600 at bats in each of the last two season and who has played in every Twins game this year, concedes that it might be easier to reach 400 if he played less. "It probably would be easier, but I don't like to sit down," he says. "But we're winning, so it might be easier for Gene (Mauch, the Twins manager) to spot me and keep me fresher." After Tuesday's game, Carew had a 10game hitting streak with 18 hits in 37 atbats, a .486 clip, which, incidentally, is exactly what he hit for the month of June last year when he made his onslaught on the record books. Sundberg went 0-for-4. "I don't feel like the heat's off 'cause I never put any pressure on myself," he said, downplaying the loss of the streak. "The only night I really felt it was when I was going for 17, which tied the Ranger record.

"I'll tell you one thing, though. I'd have felt a bigger relief if I'd gotten a hit.' Glenn Borgmann got the Twins' big hits, driving in two runs with a homer and a single. And Dan Ford added a homer for Minnesota.

Serge Savard thought for a moment in assessing the game his Montreal Canadiens had played against the Boston Bruins. Referee Dave Newell called 106 minutes in penalties and ejected one Boston player from the contest, prompting Savard to admit, "That's not the type of hockey I

The type of hockey Savard likes is skating, playing strong defense and starting the plays that power Montreal's lethal offense. But while Newell was assessing all those penalties, Savard had time to play his brand of game — setting up three goals and bringing the Canadiens within a victory of their 20th National Hockey League title with a 4-1 triumph over the Bruins Tuesday night.

The losers were furious over Newell's work, though Montreal left wing Steve Shutt observed, "I really haven't seen a losing coach not complain about the refereeing. We lost in Boston Sunday night and we complained, too. They have a tough job. They're always a scapegoat."

Newell was one Tuesday night — especially in the minds of Boston Coach Don Cherry and defenseman Brad Park. What appeared to irk them most was that 10 times Newell penalized both teams simultaneously for minor infractions, leaving four skaters per side on the ice.

Those 4-on-4's kill our whole style of play," said Bruins left wing Don Marcotte. "We like to send two men deep into their zone, and when it's 4-on-4, we can only send one in on the puck."

"Everything was double," insisted Park. "We might as well turn our sticks around and play with the handles. I thought the only thing fixed was the horse races.

"If we can play 5-on-5 for a couple of minutes, we'll do all right, but if Scotty (Montreal Coach Bowman) gets the power plays he wants Thursday, the series is over." Cherry bellowed. "You can write anything you like, 'Cherry is a sorehead,' anything you like. I don't give a darn. An easy way out would be for me to accept it gracefully, but I'm not. I'm fighting this right to the end."

The Bruins fought right to the end, with three separate skirmishes breaking out with just 21 seconds to play. But the game had been decided long before, with Savard setting up a rink-length dash by Robinson and 20-foot goals by Pierre Mondou and Pierre Larouche.

Larouche and Jacques Lemaire scored in the second period, and Marcotte ru-ined Ken Dryden's shutout bid with 8:38

To that point, the Canadiens completely shut down the Bruins' attack, forcing Boston to shoot from the outer perimeter most of the contest until Marcotte tapped in the rebound of a Bobby Schmautz shot for the first Bruins power-play goal after 14 straight failures

Mondou's goal ended a string of 12 fruitless power plays for the Canadiens, who need a victory in Game Six in Boston Thursday to annex their third consecutive league title.

"We're ticked off," said Park, "and we'll be coming out strong Thursday night. You better believe it."

Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., 6-foot-7 and 220 pounds, stunned the $230,000 Italian Open tennis tournament Tuesday by ousting national hero Corrado Barazzutti 6-3, 7-6, overcoming the seventhseeded player as well as a screaming crowd of 7,000 at the Foro Italico clay compound.

The victory - his first over a seeded player in his three years on the international circuit - shocked even Amaya.

Inexperienced and embarassed, he reluctantly lunged to the winner's circle after the upset and heard questions that no tennis pro would have relished.

"Who are you?" he was asked. "We on-

Raiders Sign Fem Athletes

Texas Tech has signed one woman track performer and two basketball players to letters-of-intent

Cindy Luna of El Paso Andress, a discus thrower and shot-putter, has inked with the Raiders. She was regional champion in the discus and shot put in 1978 and finished first in the discus and fifth in the shot put at the state track and field

The two basketball players are Reina Keasler of Neptune Beach, Fla., and Ruth Fortune of Iraan.

Miss Keasler, a 5-8 guard, scored 16.5 points per game for Fletcher High School this past season and was voted the Girl High School Athlete of the Year in Flori-

Miss Fortune, 5-10, scored at a 25.0 clip last season and was an all-district choice. In 1977, she competed in the state track and field meet in the mile relay.

Tech Inks Diver

Richie O'Neill, an all-state diver from Midland Lee, has signed with the Texas Tech swimming team, according to coach Jim McNally.

O'Neill, who finished sixth at the state meet last year, is a three-time all-District peformer. He was coached by Jess Marsh, a former Tech all-SWC diver under McNally.

O'Neill is the first signee for McNally.

left-handedly. We know nothing more. Amaya, grandson of a Mexican and a political science graduate from the University of Michigan, has been in the Italian Open for the past three years, mostly enjoying his Roman holiday after losing in the early rounds.

This time, the towering figure of Amaya has been put in the spotlight for a second-round match against Ivan Molina of Colombia and, if he wins again, he might face another tennis giant, Australian veteran John Newcombe.

Newcombe, the Italian Open champion in 1969 and 10th-seeded this year, swept past American Tom Gullikson 7-6, 6-1

Tuesday. While Gullikson was losing, other Americans fared well, avenging the inglorious exit of second-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, a victim to Italy's Adriano Panatta 7-6, 7-5, in Monday's opening round.

Former Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, sidelined last year after foot surgery and now setting his sights on Wimbledon again, rallied from a first-set deficit and beat unheralded Italian Vincenzo Franchitti 3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

The 32-year-old Ashe is confident that the Rome and Paris tournaments before Wimbledon will aid his slow but steady comeback. So far this year, he has played in only one semifinal and two quarter-fi-

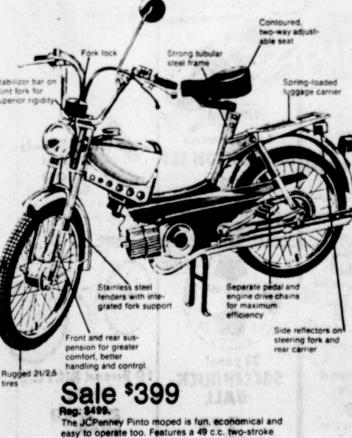

He said, "Physically I am in good shape. As far as confidence is concerned, I need two to three months to be in top shape. But I want to make the top 16 seedings for Wimbledon.

Other Americans winners Tuesday included Brian Gottfried and Harold Solomon. The third-seeded Gottfried outlasted Chile's Belus Prajoux 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, and Solomon, seeded eighth, ousted veteran Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-1

Two other seeded players were eliminated. Fifth-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain withdrew because of an ailing back and sixth-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico was upset by Dick Crealy of Australia 0-6,

In the women's division, the top two seeds, Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and Virginia Ruzici of Romania. advanced with easy victories. Jausovec, the No.1 seed, whipped Ann Casabianca of Argentina 6-3, 6-2, and Ruzici downed Sharon Walsh of the United States 6-3, 7-5.

Continue To Roll-But Wrong Way

By The Associated Press The St. Louis Cardinals continue to roll only they're rolling in the wrong direc-

"Things have a way of snowballing, I guess," says Manager Ken Boyer, bemoaning the major league's longest losing streak this year, and the longest for

The negative streak reached 11 Tuesday night with a 41 loss at home to the Montreal Expos.

"I'm trying to figure out some way to scattered seven hits, surrendering the get us hitting, primarily," said Boyer. lone St. Louis run in the fifth before de-parting in the seventh following one-out time we were home.

the Cardinals since 1929.

"You've got to keep putting your best people out there," he said. "But maybe it's got to the point psychologically where I'll have to stick a couple of new people in the lineup. (Montreal Manager) Dick Williams told me tonight when he handed in his lineup card that he'd been through it himself. He said, 'I don't have any answer other than just going through Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons didn't have an answer, either.

We could use a big inning, for sure, to take the pressure off everybody," he said. "We haven't had one for so long I can't remember when it was."

In the other National League games, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Houston Astros 3-2; the San Diego Padres turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2; the Atlanta Braves posted a 6-4 decision over the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Mets took a 7-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Rain postponed the Philadelphia-Chicago game.

Warren Cromartie's sacrifice fly capped a two-run rally in the sixth inning to help Montreal beat the spiraling Cardinals. The Cardinals' setback not only equaled the club's 11-game losing streak in 1929, but closed in on the all-time Cardinal record of 15 straight losses set in Montreal left-hander Rudy May singles by Jerry Mumphrey and Mike Tyson. Mike Garman finished for Montreal. recording his first save of he season.

Giants 3, Astros 2 Much has been said about pitching in the San Francisco Giants' rise to the top of the National League West, but the team's bench and its fans merit an assist for the latest dramatic chapter in the success story.

"It was tough to bat in that cold, but the fans kept yelling and got my adrena-line going," said pinch-batter Tom Heintzelman, whose single in the bottom of the ninth scored the second run in a three-run Giant rally that stunned the Houston Astros 3-2 Tuesday night.

Bill Madlock followed with a two-out single to deep right-center, scoring pinch-runner Mike Sadek from second base for the Giants' 10th victory in the past 12

With the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds both losing, the Giants increased their lead to one game over

Jack Clark and Larry Herndon started the winning rally with one-out walks off reliever Joe Sambito, 2-2. Marc Hill then belted a run-scoring single to center and was replaced by Sadek at first base.

With two down, Heintzelman batted for winner Randy Moffitt, 3-1, and lined a run-scoring single to left. Madlock's game-winning hit followed.

"I was just up there looking for the ball," said Madlock, who was mobbed by teammates at first base. "We knew the Dodgers and the Reds had lost, but we were down 2-0 entering the ninth and we weren't that pumped up.

"But then Marc got his hit, and the fans were going crazy," Madlock added. "This team just won't quit. Vida Blue was leading the cheering on the bench."

"It's going to be this way all year," said Hill. "It's still early in the season, but this really was a big win for us after dropping the last two in LA."

Blue, bidding to become the league first seven-game winner, worked the first seven innings, allowing a run in the fourth and another in the fifth.

Cesar Cedeno singled, stole two bases and scored on Jose Cruz' grounder in the fourth. Roger Metzger singled, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Enos Cabell's double for 2-0 in the fifth. Rookie right-hander Tom Dixon was replaced by Sambito in the eighth. It was Dixon's first start of the season. "Dixon hadn't pitched that many innings," said Astros' Manager Bill Virdon, explaining why his starter was lifted. "I stayed with Sambito because I wanted to find out if he's our short man or not." Tuesday night, at least, he wasn't.

Padres 3, Dodgers 2 Tucker Ashford's two-run single in the eighth inning sparked San Diego over Los Angeles. After Dave Winfield singled and Gene Tenace walked, Rick Sweet grounded out to first base before Ashford drilled his single to right field off loser Tommy John. Rollie Fingers was the winner in relief of Randy Jones.

ond and fourth innings and Steve Garvey had two doubles to pace the Dodgers. The loss was only the second for the Dodgers in their last eight games.

and Danny Ozark sat back in the visiting manager's office answering the question, How predictable is baseball?

His answer: "About as predictable as the weather

At about 11 a.m., 21/2 hours before the Philadelphia Phillies' scheduled game with Chicago Tuesday, the Cubs postponed it amid forecasts of rain throughout the afternoon. But no substantial rain fell between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

You cannot predict anything." Ozark said, his attention now turned to the developing race in the National League East. "I can say if everybody on our team plays as well as they did last year, we'll win it walking away

The Phillies captured the Eastern crown by five games after the Cubs had held first place for 67 days last season. But Los Angeles beat Philadelphia for the National League pennant.

On his first trip into Chicago this season, Ozark found the Cubs just one victory away from displacing the Phillies atop

The Phillies have a 19-16 record, the Cubs 19-17

"I thought we should have won a couple more ballgames on this trip and it wouldn't have been so close," he added. "Hitting hasn't been that bad. Our biggest problem has been to get the run across the plate. We've left a lot of men

"Maybe one guy is trying to do more than he's capable of doing and feels the burden is on his shoulders and he doesn't do that good," said Ozark. "Maybe they're trying a little bit too hard."

But he said he has no plans to juggle his

"It's not that critical where any one individual is not getting the run in. Maybe one game it's Bake McBride, the next game it's Mike Schmidt, the next maybe it's Greg Luzinski," Ozark said.

If they and their teammates come around, Ozark concedes, the Phillies should have a strong chance to repeat as division champions. And even though three Western teams have better records than Philadelphia, Ozark thinks he's in a stronger division.

Greek Called Derby Right

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Jimmy The Greek said Matt Cavanaugh would be picked in the first round of the draft. He went deep in the second. One, is there something wrong with Cavanaugh? Two, when was the last time Jimmy The Greek was right about anything?

- Eddie Costanzo, Altoona, Pa.

A. The knock on Cavanaugh is that he's injury prone and missed most of his junior and senior seasons at Pittsburgh. Furthermore, the word was out that Cavanaugh injured a knee in a touch football game on campus since the season ended. The quarterback helped this rumor along by not allowing any pro scout to have the knee examined prior to the draft.

Now, the PLUS on Cavanaugh is that he's another Billy Kilmer, a guy who will somehow, someway get the ball in the end zone. A leader.

Jimmy The Greek has his percentage of misses, because CBS asks him to make far-out predictions. But he called Affirmed and Alydar one-two in the Derby, six days before the race.

Q. I was wondering how a youth can try out to play professional baseball if he isn't spotted by any major league scout.

- T.T., Grosse Pte. City, Mich.

A. Major league teams hold open tryout camps annually, and sometimes semi-annually, for just such young hopefuls. Write to the individual clubs (even if you don't have the exact address) and request the date. The club will file your name, then send you an invitation two weeks before the camp is held. For instance, the Texas Rangers will have their tryout camp in September, somewhere in the Fort Worth-Arlington area. Good luck.

Q. I saw a note in the sports section that Torn Watson joined the Preston Trail Golf Club in Dallas as a member and that this is an exculsive, expensive club. Did Watson get in for nothing? If not, why did he join, since he doesn't live

- Andy Watley, Kansas City

A. Watson paid $3,000 for a non-resident membership at Preston Trail before be won the Byron Nelson Classic there. About 75 per cent of the members are millionaires (as is Watson). The story is he joined because he makes frequent visits there for counseling from his pro guru, Byron Nelson, and Nelson always had to sign the dining room tab. Now Watson can sign.

Also, he said: "If we have another winter in Kansas City (his home) like the last one, I'll need some place to practice." The Preston Trail GC is for men on-

"They (the federal government) are paying $60 million to $70 million for security at the Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1980." Hahn said, "so we ought to be able to get at least $50 million.

However, Rep. Matthew McHugh, D-N.Y., who represents the Lake Placid area, said Tuesday no money has been appropriated by Congress to pay for security at the Winter Games.

He said the 1977 federal budget includes only $58 million for the construction of housing for the athletes and a fence around the Lake Placid sports com-

Hahn, who attended recent negotiations with the IOC in Athens, Greece, said federal money, along with ticket revenues and $100 million in television rights, "should make it certain that the Games wouldn't cost taxpayers a dime" if existing facilities for athletic events and housing were used.

Mayor Tom Bradley and city and county officials have said the city may have to withdraw its bid for the Olympics if it cannot receive assurances that local taxpayers will not be faced with a hefty bill for the Games.

City Council President John Ferraro placed his hopes on a possible new round of negotiations with the IOC and the hope that the IOC might be willing to compromise on its Rule 4, which places complete financial responsibility for the Games on the city and the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Critical of Mayor Bradley's negotiating committee at the IOC meeting. Ferraro said if negotiations do resume, he will work to see that they are conducted on a more professional basis.

'I Deserved It', Ali Says Of Latest Honor

Associated Press Special Correspondent
NEW YORK — The magic of Ma Bell's long distance lines caught up with Muhammad Ali in Montreal just he was preparing to catch the next flight for his home in Chicago. "Hello, Muhammad," bellowed the speaker at this end. 'Guess what. You have just been chosen as the 'Athlete of the Decade.

'What's a decade?" asked the former heavyweight cham-

"Ten years," the caller replied, while a room of blue ribbon luncheon guests hung on every word. "A special panel of sports writers and broadcasters has voted you the world's outstanding athlete for the period 1968 to 1978.

"Tell us, what is your reaction?" 'Well," Muhammad replied, pausing to collect his thoughts. "You were smart. I deserve it."

So, in a twist of ironic justice, the wheel turns full cycle for the one-time round-cheeked, wide-eyed kid from Louisville, Ky., who reached boxing's highest pinnacle — first an Olympic gold medal, then the heavyweight championship of the world - only to be stripped of his crown and dignity by the ugly mood of the 1960s.

Ali still must remember with bitterness that day, April 29, 1967, when a cordon of officers led him into the Court House on San Jacinto Street in Houston.

The crowd outside was surly. "Slacker," spat some. "Traitor," said others. "If you don't want to fight, go to another country," came other taunts.

Ali, his usually puckish, pleasant face a grim mask, was ordered to take the first step for military service. He refused. "It's against my religious beliefs," he argued. "I am 90 per cent preacher, 10 per cent fighter.

The authorities were not so easily convinced. Subsequently, he was fined $10,000 and sentenced to five years in prison - a verdict he fought through the courts and ultimately remarkable career. He was stripped of his title. He was jailed for an hour in Miami on a traffic charge. His sources of income dried up. He couldn't get a license to fight. His good-time friends deserted him.

By January 1968, he was almost broke. He and his pregnant wife holed up in a modest brick bungalow in Chicago, making ends meet on speaking fees that the ex-champion picked up on college campuses.

The doorbell rarely rang.

Then came the dramatic turnaround of public sentiment on the Vietnamese War. Ali's conviction was reversed in the higher courts. After 31/2 years of rusting idleness, Ali donned gloves again. The tarnished decade turned golden.

The rest is history. Ali launched his comeback Oct. 26, 1970 in Atlanta, knocking out Jerry Quarry. He waged three titanic struggles with Smokin' Joe Frazier, winning two. In a bizarre, pre-dawn fight in Africa's Congo, he wrested the title from George Foreman. He became sport's most magnetic omen," said Jones in an interview Tuesday before leaving on his trip. 'If we get them playing golf instead of doing what they've been doing, it will be great. Actually, they had figured that golf in other countries of the world primarily was for the affluent, and I think it is a great break for golf and it will be a great break for them to get the public playing."

The election was reduced to 13 candidates by a blue ribbon panel headed by Dave Anderson of the New York Times and Dick Schaap of NBC-TV. Ali received 47 first-place votes, almost half of the 107 cast. Jack Nicklaus, the winningest golfer in history, was runner-up with 20.

Jones said the 7,000-yard course will be built about six miles from Moscow in a rolling, timbered, greenbelt area with a swamp that has been made into a lake and can be used for water holes. He said plans are for completion by the 1980 Olympics in Moscow. He hopes a triple-decker driving range also can be "Visiting businessmen and the diplomatic corps will be using the course the most at first. We hope to wean the Russians into the game by awarding a cup for the longest hitter and best putter. Once they get on to the game, we think they'll go at it in a big way."

Jones said the closest the Russians have come to golf lately was through Soviet diplomat Vladamir Kuznetzov and the one-time U.S. ambassador to Russia, Llewellyn Thompson. "We met Kuznetzov in our first trip to Moscow in 1974 to talk about a golf course," he said.

"The trip was sponsored by Armand Hammer, president of Occidental Petroleum, who stimulated the idea for the course. Kuznetzov kept his golf bags in his office closet and read every golf book in the world. He had learned to play on assignments outside the country and had

"On our 1974 trip . . . we rowed to a sandy island in the Volga River and on an open space we saw the remnants of an old golf green. Thompson had used it for practice shots. That was the closest thing to a golf course in Russia existing."

Robert Trent Jones Jr., who accompanied his father to Moscow, said Kuznet-zov was given a United States Golf Association book of rules.

"He shrugged and said, 'We make our own rules over here. The golf course will be for all the people if they can get starting times," said Jones Jr. "Someday I hope to see Jack Nicklaus on the new course playing with the first Nicholas.

The 80-year-old Hammer, who is building a world trade center in Moscow, approached the Joneses to design the course. son, Robert Jr., discuss golf trophies in Chicago Tuesday. Robert Sr., the golf course archietect, is going to Moscow on a golf

His Seattle counterpart, Lenny Wilkens, made the first move on Sunday bringing 34-year-old Paul Silas off the bench in the second half to play against Washington's Elvin Hayes after the Big E had outplayed Seattle rookie Jack Sikma in the early going The move paid off as Silas effectively neutralized the Bullets' high scorer, limiting Haves to just two baskets in the second half. Meanwhile, Silas grabbed 12 rebounds as Seattle dominated the boards. enabling the Sonics to rally from a 19point third quarter deficit to a 106-102 victory in the opening game of the National Basketball Association champion-

With the second game of the best-ofseven playoff finals to be played here Thursday night, it is now up to Motta to counter Wilkens' move.

"Silas was a big factor in the opener, no question about it," said Motta. "We were worried about him, and I guess it was with good reason."

Motta does not expect Hayes to fade from view on Thursday We can correct the things we did wrong," he said, without delving into specifics. "We have adjustments we can

One would be to make sure Washington's playmakers are more conscious of getting the ball into Hayes, something that rarely happened when the Sonics were making their comeback on Sunday Haves complained about that on Tues-

"Some people are saying I didn't work hard enough to get the basketball, but that is wrong," he said. "I was open and if I get the ball, I'm going to score. The guards can't take all the shots."

Miss Farley will also compete on the eyball team. Iso inking with Tech was Rose Ann eitler, a transfer student from Texas you get it inside, you have to put up the shots," he said. As for Hayes' comments, Motta warned, "We can't start bickering and having words."

The Sonics preferred not to blame Hayes for his ineffectiveness, but to credit Silas, who fronted the 6-foot-9 forward and discouraged the Washington players from passing him the ball.

"I've played Elvin many times," said Silas, "and I know you can't play behind him and be successful. I was fronting him, and he wasn't getting the ball. That's the only way to stop him.

Silas' success against Hayes kept Wilkens from having to make another move, one which he has been trying very hard to avoid. That would be switching his 7-foot-1 shot-blocking center, Marvin Webster, onto Haves man-to-man.

One of the keys to Seattle's success has been its team defense, where Webster clogs the middle and keeps opponents from driving to the basket. If Wilkens has to put him on Hayes, Webster won't be able to help out as much as he did Sunday while guarding Wes Unseld, who is not as "I kinda like having Marvin inside," conceded Wilkens. "He helps us the most when he's closer to the boards and helping close down the middle."

In any case, Motta knows that for his team to win it must get more production from forwards Hayes and Bobby Dandridge, who scored just 6 points in the se-Before the series, Motta said that pair

Fred Brown 'Ready'

SEATTLE (AP) - Fred Brown, the Seattle SuperSonics' trigger-happy reserve guard who ambushed Washington in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series, says he'll open fire on the Bullets again - if "I just go in and see what the situation is," explained Brown, whose 16 fourthquarter points Sunday highlighted a spectacular rally in Seattle's 106-102 victory that left the Bullets wondering what hit "I'll be shooting if it's needed because I do it very well," continued Brown, who unloaded the ball 30 times in Game 1 and wound up with 30 points to lead all scor-

"If it's defense, I'll do that. I give game leadership. It just depends on what the

The loss was a disheartening blow to Washington, which dominated Seattle through the first 21/2 quarters but saw a ngly insurmountable 19-point thirdquarter lead slip away in the final 141/2 minutes, when they fell victim to complacency, Brown's shooting and a tough Se-

"We had some games like that, too, this year," admitted Brown. "Even though you're playing so well and you get such a big lead, when a team makes a run at you, sometimes you relax your senses so much that you can't respond. "When it gets close and you have to skets, that hoop can look a lot smaller. You begin pressing and making fouls and turnovers. It happened to them

When the teams square off in Game 2 at Landover, Md., on Thursday night,

Brown says he doesn't expect a repeat performance from either side. 'The main thing is that we don't wait until the fourth quarter (to get untracked)," Brown said. "We've got to get going right away, get on the boards right away. Then we'll be all right."

One of the league's premier backcourt players who has been at his best in the playoffs, Brown doesn't put much stock in the opinion Sunday's loss may have a lingering psychological effect on the Bul-lets. It was Washington's ninth consecutive setback in three championship series over the past eight years.

"They're pros. Every one of these guys are pros. They've come a long way, regardless of what anyone says," said Brown. "Each game is played differently. You're making new adjustments and seeing how things are developing on the court. Sunday's game is history.

Depsite holding the homecourt advantage in the best-of-seven title series, Seattle had only one game at home instead of the customary two before moving to Washington. That isn't a big factor, Brown said.

"We don't get excited when we're in the hole," the Sonics' captain said. "(Coach) Lenny (Wilkens) gets us settled down and out of it in a hurry. "The way I see it there are six games left in the season," Brown said. "We know we have to win three; they have to win four. So we have to win three as fast as we can.

"Heck, we're almost in June. The Fourth of July is coming up. We've been going since September. We want this over as soon as we can."

Gehlhausen Reaches For Indy Goal Again

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Spike Gehlhausen, the youngest driver in the 1978 Indianapolis 500, said Tuesday that his whole year would have been a loss had he not qualified for the race.

"Being in this race is something I've thought about ever since I can remember," said Gehlhausen, 23, one of two natives of Indiana to qualify for the race.

This is the second time Gehlhausen has made the race lineup. However, he still hasn't completed a lap. In 1976, Gehlhausen qualified but dropped out at the start of the race when his gauge showed no oil

Last year, he had a series of mechanical problems and missed the race when he crashed during his third qualifying at-

This year, he will start in the sixth row, alongside John Mahler who will be driving the second Eagle-Offenhauser owned by Spike's father, Carl.

"I'm a little disappointed in my quali-fying speed," said Spike, who qualified at 190.325 miles per hour. "We felt the car could go 195 or 196, but since the weather was such a problem in qualifying this year we decided to take anything over

"Our race plan will be to try and stay on the same lap as the leaders for the

OU Coach Would Like SWC Spot

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Barry Switzer, head football coach at the Oklahoma University, says he wishes the University of Arkansas would drop out of the Southwest Conference so Oklahoma could join it. Switzer added, however, that he doubts Arkansas will leave the SWC.

He said Tuesday that membership in the SWC would give Oklahoma a shot in the arm in recruiting Texas high school players.

"We've built a great tradition at Oklahoma with Texas players," Switzer said. "We can recruit Texas better than Arkansas can.

- Switzer was in Russellville on a fish-first 250 miles " said Gehlhausen.

"Then we'll try and get up with the first two, three cars and stay with them," he said. "And then, hopefully, we'll turn up the boost, catch them and pass them."

If the plan works, it would produce Gehlhausen's best championship car fin-ish. The best he's done since making his debut in 1975 was a pair of sevenths last

"We turned our operation around 360 degrees this year," said Gehlhausen, who has had finishes of 20th, 23rd, 16th and 18th in USAC championship races this

"I feel things are really starting to peak here. We came here hoping we might get both cars in the show and we did. I'm looking for good things Sunday

Like the other 32 drivers in the race, Gehlhausen spent most of Monday and Tuesday relaxing as the mechanics worked on their cars.

"We need the break," he explained. "We spend a lot of time and tension heading toward the qualifications and need the break from the car as the race Pecos Tops Borger

Gehlhausen is competing in a field that averages 35.8 years when Mario Andretti Thursday and will be taking over the car Mike Hiss last Saturday when the 1969 Indy winner was preparing for his Formula One victory in Belgium.

The oldest driver is Jim McElreath, 50, who is in the race for the 13th time. A.J. Foyt, a four-time winner and the defending champion, holds the record for the most appearances in the race, 21. Foyt will be starting on the same row as the two Gehlhausen cars when the lineup is revised to include Andretti.

"At least I won't have to go looking for A.J.," remarked Gehlhausen. "Now, if I can stay up with him . . . "

He never finished the sentence. DOUG JONES SIGNS

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) - Doug Jones, the starting strong safety for the Buffalo Bills for two years, has signed a series of one-year contracts, according to a Buffalo newspaper. Jones, who was en-tering the option year of his contract, is the third experienced defensive back to

Although Guthrie won't admit it, the race may be critical to the woman who failed to qualify in 1976 and finished 29th last year.

"I was surprised I had so much trouble getting a sponsor," she said. "A lot of people listened to my proposals, but most said they had planned their budget and to come back some other time. I'd been working on getting a sponsor since December. And Texaco came through at the 12th hour on March 31.

We had to get going then in order to be ready for this race."

Guthrie's deal with her sponsor is for this race only. She said the company would own the car after the race.

'That was part of our deal, which was my idea. However, if we remain happy with each other we could work something out," she said. The University of Michigan physics graduate, who started competitive racing in 1963 and has been involved in it at many levels since, also is looking for a sponsor in the NASCAR circuit.

"My stock sponsor said it is cutting its budget," she said. "But unless I win this race here, I don't feel I have anything to prove. My record speaks for itself." Sunday, Guthrie will be driving a Wildcat-SGD, built by George Bignotti, who has built four cars that have won the Indy "The car is a good predictable one. I believe it will be easy to drive fast for 500 miles. I believe it will be much easier to drive fast for 500 miles than some of the Lightnings in the race," she said. "The car really talks to you. It tells you what it is going to do. It gives you plenty of time to take appropriate steps if it is going to do something you don't like.' This month has been much quieter than were the previous two Mays for

She praised Bignotti for his help. "He did a lot more than sell me the car," she said. "He helped me sort it out and then he gave me one of his garages to get it ready.

"I look for his cars to do well. I look for a lot of the eight-cylinder Cosworths to break down and wouldn't be surprised if a four-cylinder like mine or the ones he has Gordon Johncock and Steve Krisiloff driving wins the race."

Thursday's Child In Sunday Best

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) - Well, they've made it. The gates of hell have not prevailed against them.

The seven little hellions who pushed open my gate every Thursday to prepare for their first Holy Communion are born-again Christians, ready to take up the struggle against the powers of darkness.

And I miss them. I miss the disputatious torrent that raged in our kitchen every Thursday afternoon over cookies and juice, the thunder of theological debate and lightning flashes of insight and innocence as these mini-divines pondered mysteries

Will God make me a little brother next time? What does the Holy Spirit do on Halloween'

Why do the girls always get to take the cookies first?

If we were sent there to help others, what were the others sent for? (I always suspected this one was a put-up job by an older brother or a doubting Thomas

Are we having a party next week for the last class?

Holy Spirit, completely confounded them, as it has learned doctors of the church down through the ages. Each Thursday the tiny delegation was polled and, despite heavy lobbying from the chair for the eqipotent nature of the triumvirate, God The Father always emerged "more all-powerful" than the others - or what's a father for? - and sometimes got confused with an Italian heavy played by Marlon Brando.

For their final examination, my wife, asked each to compose a prayer, Six beseeched the Lord to bless Mommy, Daddy, brothers and sisters and a long litany of relatives, schoolmates, babysitters, dogs, cats, hamsters, and one snake - even an occasional teacher.

Seven-year-old John, making his debut as a Little League outfielder, sought help from on high for a more immediate goal:

Dere God.

"I want our teme to win agait the Yankes. 'Thy will be done.

Alas, the Angels (of course), John's team, were destined to be fallen angels, 9-1, agait the Yankes, to use his prayerful prose, and it took mighty act of faith to get him beyond this first slough of despair and disappointment. John had to learn very early in life why Truman Capote has entitled his latest book "Answered Prayers." taking his text from the Spanish mystic St. Teresa of Avila: "More tears are shed over answered prayers than prayers Heaven forgot

But the sun came out on First Communion morning, and God delivered a 7-2 victory to the Angels over the Dragons (symbolic of the evil St. George slew?) to start off right the first day of a life reborn.

Although no one required them to, all the boys at the Mass that evening wore their Sunday best suits and the girls were all in white, with white veils, maintaining a custom that supposedly is passing from the religious scene. Kelly, the cop's daughter across the road, wore a dress that had gone to the altar rail for six generations of First Communions in her family. Little girls and their Mums on First Holy Communion day are the last stronghold of tradition left in this world of rapidly vanishing ecstasies.

Since the bread they were taking was the Bread of Life, the pastor charmingly came down to their age level and built his sermon around the unselfish little boy who provided the five loaves of bread and the two fishes for Jesus to feed the mulititude in the desert with the miracle of the loaves and fishes

They were five thousand waiting to be fed, but the little boy did not hesitate in giving away all that he had. When all had eaten their fill, the disciples went around and filled twelve baskets with the left-overs.

It was a simple tale, simply told, but hours afterward the wonder and mystery of it remained with the reborn lambs gathered into the fold and now swept up in the living embrace of family and friends.

"Was it rye bread?" Well, the Bible specifies barley loaves, but after all it was a Jewish neighborhood, and if the priest could descend to their level, a little variation in the menu

'What did they put on the bread? I hope it was peanut butter

Oh well, as Malcolm Muggerridge recently reminded us, St. Thomas Aquinas in his old age grew weary of explaining the faith in his "Summa Theologica." So he hung his harp on the willows down by the river and caught a glimpse of heav-

When it's fully developed, the system will provide a network of instant communication that will allow, say, an ambulance attendant to converse with a doctor at any hospital or put every trucking or bus company in touch with its vehicles anywhere in the nation.

While the limitations vary, it's generally true that conventional moile radio systems cannot be used reliably past line-ofsight range - seldom more than 100

But with satellites stationed above the equator relaying hundreds of broadcasts simultaneously, vehicles equipped with relatively low-power radios can talk to a ground receiving station connected by phone line to anywhere on the earth. "What we're trying to do is develop ways to apply satellites to find solutions to real human problems," Anderson said. The latest experiments involve a very human, life-or-death situation - emergency medical care. In the last 10 years, ambulance paramedics in urban areas have increasingly been equipped with radios for transmit-instructions on the use of life-saving drugs and apparatus. But on the winding highways of New York's Adirondack Mountains, in boats on the Gulf of Mexico and in other remote areas, the victims of accidents often receive no help because radio communi-

In one recent demonstration, Anderson and Lewis in their hilltop radio shack served as the link between a specially equipped ambulance in Speculator, N.Y., and state health officials in Albany.

It could just as easily have been a link to a hospital emergency room, with a doctor reading an electrocardiogram from a patient on a mountainside and sending back treatment instructions during the crucial first minutes of a heart at-

In another experiment, a Coast Guard helicopter carried a paramedic from Mississippi 30 miles out over the Gulf of Mexico to bring help to a simulated patient. On the other end of the satellite link was the paramedic's regular hospital in Hattiesburg, Miss.

A third experiment involved a federal Drug Enforcement Administration car that roamed the United States, sending signals to Crawford Hill by satellite. To damonstrate the system's pinpoint tracking capability, Anderson's people found the car's location on a map and then radioed the agents what they would see if they looked to the left.

Holocaust Papers Displayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - There is a datebook from a Nazi concentration camp that lists causes of death: "suicide by hanging ... suicide from effect of hightension electricity."

It is one item in a small but dramatic exhibition that just opened at the Nation-

All the records shown were entered as evidence in the war crimes trials held at Nuremberg and elsewhere after World War II. As the repository of federal documents, the Archives received Nazi war crimes trial records and a vast body of captured German documents.

The captured documents were later returned to West Germany, but copies have been retained by the Archives.

The ones in the exhibition cover the years 1938-45 and provide documentation of what the Nazis called "the final solution" - near extermination of the Jews in much of Europe.

Archivist James B. Rhoads said the exhibition was created "because of the unusual amount of interest." stemming from the recent "Holocaust" television series. He cited "telephone calls and visits by people seeking further information.'

It occurred to us ... that it would be a public service to show, in a small way, that documentary proof of the persecution of Jews does exist." Rhoads said.

The deathbook from the Mauthausen concentration camp lists the national or ethnic origin of the victims, name, date and place of birth, cause and time of death.

There is also a report from a mobile command unit operating in German-occupied Russia that recorded the mass shooting on Sept. 29-30, 1941, of 33,371 Jews at Babi Yar, a ravine near the city of Kiev.

An invoice from the German Corporation for Pest Control recorded the shipment of 390 cannisters of Zyklon B cyanide gas to be used for "disinfection and extermination" at the Auschwitz concentration camp. Cyanide was used in execution chambers at such camps.

There are minutes of a meeting on Jan. 20, 1942, chaired by security chief Reinhard Heydrich, at which the mass killing of Jews was approved.

Objects on display include a depleted one-kilo cannister of cyanide gas, used at war crimes trials of industrialists, and a wax recording given by SS chief Heinrich Himmler during which he speaks of the extermination of Jews."

The exhibition, which is free to the public, will continue throughout the sum-

Edvard Munch Exhibition Set In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) -The National Gallery of Art will mount next Nov. 11 a major display of works by Edvard Munch, a major 20th century Norwegian impressionist, Director J. Carter Brown announced Tuesday.

It will be the most comprehensive Munch exhibition ever held in the United States," the gallery said. "Very few paintings exist in American collections, and over 90 percent of Munch's work remains in Norway. Many of the works to be shown have never before been permitted to leave Norway.

The exhibition will be shown, through next Feb. 19. in the gallery's new East Building, a $94.4 million structure scheduled to open on June 1. It was arranged with the cooperation of major Norwegian museums which house much of Munch's

Crown Prince Harald and Crown Princess Sonja will be honorary patrons of the exhibition, the inaugural show of the first art season in the National's special exhibition galleries. There was no immediate word on whether they would come for the opening.

Lenders include the Munch Museum, Oslo; the National Gallery, Oslo; the Billedgalleri and Rasmus Meyers Samlinger in Bergen, and private collections around the world.

'Many of Munch's finest paintings, color woodcuts, drawings and etchings will be covered, including themes of love, despair and social progress," the gallery

"The main section will consist of approximately 40 paintings, including Night in St. Cloud, 'The Kiss' and 'The Dance of Life,' documenting Munch's prolific career and reconstructing almost in its entirety 'The Frieze of Life,' an important group of pictures comprising the themes central to the development of his

Another section will focus on Munch as a printmaker, and a third on rare impressions of major prints arranged on themes of love, despair, sickness and death. There also will be 20 major watercolors, never before exhibited outside Norway. as well as 20 self-portraits of Munch, who lived from 1863-1944.

The exhibition will be accompanied by a catalogue written by Norwegian and American scholars. In addition, the gallery plans to publish a facsimile edition of Munch's holograph book, "Tree of Knowledge," that has never before been exhibited, even in Norway, and is known to only a few scholars.

Nun Noted For Work In Slums

By JOHN NEEDHAM

CALCUTTA, India (UPI) - The pale green walls are covered with pictures of saints, looking down on men who at the moment of death have finally found dignity in their lives.

Outside, the streets of this slum-filled city swarm with buses, trams and millions of jostling people. But here it is qui-et, with just the murmuring of nursing sisters working with the Roman Catholic nun known worldwide as the living saint of the slums of Calcutta -Mother Tere-

Mother Teresa runs homes for lepers, unwanted children, the insane, the sick and this one, for the destitute dying.

It is called Nirmal Hriday — "Pure Heart" — and is next to Kalighat, temple to Kali, Hindu goddess of death and namesake of the city of Calcutta.

The institute was once a rest home for pilgrims to Kalighat. Next door, Hindu brahmin priests slit the throats of goats to provide a live animal sacrifice to the goddess, whose black statue shows her with tongue protruding and wearing a necklace of human skulls.

Inside the quiet Nirmal Hriday, Sister Paula Marie, from Long Island, N.Y., moves among the men lying on metal cots, giving injections.

"I give you my word, huh?" says the nurse, who flew from a hospital in Chicago to Calcutta and Mother Teresa 15 months ago. "I will not give you any pain, huh? I promise." The man, too feeble to do more than moan weakly, turns on his side, accepts the needle.

"Man, you got the best injection-giver in the world here," Sister Paula Marie says to another patient. He grasps her hand, pleads with her not to leave, but refuses the injection.

"He's scared," Sister Paula Marie tells two other nuns, one handing out glasses of water, the other orange juice. "I don't blame him, when he's so cl e. He's real

The law of averages says one of these men will die tonight. The nuns believe it will be the man who rejects the needle. In another building in Calcutta works the woman responsible for alleviating some of the suffering of this city - Moth-"The greatest development of human life is to die in peace with God," she says in an interview. She is 67 now, her face deeply lined. But when she smiles, she gives off a serenity and radiance, her whole face light-

We have to be bridges. We don't understand what the poor give us, understanding and love. They give us that great chance to do something for God." Born in Yugoslavia to Albanian parents, Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu was 12 when she decided to become a nun. Six years later she joined the Irish Loreto nuns in Calcutta, teaching geography and later becoming principal of a school for upper-class girls On Sept. 10, 1946, on a train taking her north to Darjeeling, the nun who had taken the name Mother Teresa heard a "call within a call," telling her to work with the poorest of the poor, who are to be found in Calcutta in numbers exceeded nowhere else on earth. In 1948 she received permission to leave teaching and work in the slums. Two years later the Vatican approved her new congregation, the Missionaries of Charity.

Soon after, Mother Teresa found a dying woman on a Calcutta sidewalk. Maggots roamed all over the woman and rats had chewed away her feet. The nun finally persuaded a hospital to accept the woman and then convinced authorities to give her space to run her own home, which became Nirmal Hriday

In the years since, some 30,000 men, women and children have entered. Half have died there.

The nuns search the streets of Calcutta. which are home at night for 100,000 people, looking for those who need their help. They find babies thrown onto garbage heaps, men and women lying helplessly while dogs, rats and other rodents

Others bring in derelicts who have nowhere else to go - no family, no money, no person in the world who cares what happens to them.

The home for the destitute dying, like nearly all Mother Teresa's projects, draws a number of volunteer workers, many of them wives of foreigners working in India as diplomats, businessmen or

Volunteers say the work offers an opportunity to do something concrete, to cut through the numbness that often overtakes the foreigner exposed to the staggering breadth and diversity of India's poverty and ills

The institute for destitute dying accepts men, women and children of all religions and, when they die, buries or cre-mates them in keeping with their faiths. Sister Luke, who has been a member of Mother Teresa's order for 13 years - five of them spent working in the home for dying - says: "The majority are just destitutes, but even more than their sicknesses, they suffer from unwantedness." The nuns in blue-bordered saris of white coarse cotton, a metal crucifix pinned to the left shoulder, move slowly mong the dying men who wear blue pajama bottoms and white tops.

Next door is the kitchen and beyond that the room for dying women and child-ren. The heads are shaven, because most patients have lice.

"Some of them come in, get built up nutritionally and they want to go out on the streets again," Sister Paula Marie said. "We let them go, of course. Some will come back two or three times. On the average, one dies each night."

Sister Paula Marie is a novice in the order, which now has 1,400 nuns and brothers worldwide.

Refugees Threaten Stability

By PAUL WEDEL
BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Born of war and instability, the nearly 400,000 refugees in Southeast Asia threaten to disrupt shaky international relations, causing yet more war and instability.

Nearly every country in the region has refugees — either coming in or going out and sometimes both. Nearly everywhere they put strains on international relareturn and overthrow the anti-Vietnamese regime in Phnom Penh.

Western journalists who visited the makeshift refugee camps near Vietnam's long-troubled border with Cambodia have reported that many young Cambodians are being indoctrinated against the present rulers of Cambodia and given weapons training.

On Vietnam's northern border, tension caused by strained relations between the two countries and new economic measures taken by the Hanoi government has sent thousands of ethnic Chinese fleeing to China.

to China.

A communist Chinese newspaper in Hong Kong estimated the numbers at "tens of thousands" and Chinese officials in Peking have expressed concern about the "sudden return of a large number of Chinese" from Vietnam.

Refugees also have exacerbated Thailand's border conflicts with both Cambodia and Laos.

More than 86,000 Laotians are registered in Thai camps, with another 30,000 living in Thailand unregistered. Laos has charged, with some reason, that some of these refugees are bent on overthrowing the communist government in Vietiane.

Laotian efforts to stop the refugees from escaping have resulted in clashes with Thailand. On several occasions in the past two months Lao soldiers firing at fleeing refugees damaged Thai villages. Thai police sometimes fired back at the Lao soldiers, but so far none of the clashes has escalated.

Fighting on the border with Cambodia is more frequent and more deadly.

Although no one factor is clearly the cause of the border clashes, Cambodian anger at suspected Thai support for anti-communist Cambodian resistance forces, sometimes raised among refugees, is a strong possibility.

Despite efforts at negotiations the clashes continue. And they threaten to break out into larger-scale fighting.

The more than 100,000 refugees from Burma who have fled into Bangladesh in the past several weeks have severely strained relations between the two countries.

The refugees claim Burmese troops forced them from their homes because of religious and racial hatred. Most of the refugees are Moslems of Bengali origin while the state religion of Burma is Buddhism.

Buddhism.

The Burmese government says only that it is cracking down on illegal immigrants.

Burma said Bangladesh border troops opened fire on Burmese soldiers three times in the last week of April.

Already hard-pressed to feed its own population, Bangladesh insists the refugees must return to Burma and refuses to allow the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees to accept them as legal refugees.

Well aware of the problems caused by the Palestinians who fled Israel, the governments of Southeast Asia wish the refugees would just go away — preferably to resettlement in Western countries.

But as long as the area is in political turmoil that is unlikely to happen. The irony is that the problems caused by refugees threaten to create still more.

Copper Boom Predicted In 1980s

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Import protection for the U.S. copper industry is not necessary because a copper boom is seen for the 1980s, a federal economist says.

In a report to the U.S. International Trade Commission, Justice Department economist Peter R. Greenhalgh said recently that import quotas or higher tariffs would lead to artificially high copper prices, increasing the costs of copper-using products, including automobiles and appliances.

Greenhalgh, who works in the antitrust division of the Justice Department, was to present the report at the commission's hearing on a petition by the copper industry for relief from low-priced imported copper.

In a 27-page analysis of the domestic industry, Greenhalgh concluded that the industry's year-old slump is not due to imports as the industry has claimed.

"Whatever problems the domestic industry currently faces, the basic cause is the domestic industry's higher costs of production relative to those of foreign competitors," he said. "Increased imports of refined copper are a result of these cost disparities."

He also pointed out that part of the increase in copper imports over the last crease in copper imports over the last two years is due to domestic copper companies themselves because several of them have "substantial interests in foreign copper production."

Officials of a dosen U.S. copper companies were expected to argue their side lat-

nies were expected er in the hearing through Thursday. ## Special On Crosby Slated Thursday

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There have been few men in public life as successful, as beloved - and as complex - as Bing Crosby Hiding behind the easygoing, nonchalant facade of the pipe-smoking crooner who swung a golf club or tossed an ad lib with facile skill was a man who found affection difficult and physical displays of it impossible. ABC's "Bing Crosby: His Life and Legend," makes a stab at getting beneath the image that America's most successful singer built up over a lifetime. The show will be broadcast Thursday at 8 p.m., Central time. Bing Crosby died Oct. 14, 1977, after completing 18 holes of golf on a Spanish course, ending a career in which he sang more than 1.500 songs, from "Mississippi Mud" to "I'm an Old Cowhand" to 'White Christmas," with which he completed the holiday special that was shown only weeks after his death.

It must be tempting when trying to cover a subject such as Bing Crosby to put together a show that consists almost entirely of, "and in his next picture...

There is some of that here, including a few delightful clips from the "Road" pictures with Bob Hope, who this year is celebrating his own 75th birthday. It is delightful to watch and the viewer may go away wishing there had been more old Crosby. Anyone who tunes in a Bing Crosby retrospective is going to delight in endless Crosby crooning.

Marshall Flaum, who wrote, produced and directed this look at the Crosby life and career, decided to leave out a few songs and introduce people who would talk about Bing's personality instead.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Do you object to the junk food commercials your kids watch on Saturday mornings? Should the Federal Communications Commission

If so, the Saturday morning kids ghetto would revert to ancient movies and reruns of reruns of defunct prime time se-

That is the conviction of the men who run Filmation Studios, one of the largest producers of children's programming. Filmation and animated cartoon specialists Hanna-Barbera and DePattie-Freeling provide a sizable portion of the three networks' 18 hours of Saturday morning television.

Norman Prescott and Lou Scheimer, who head Filmation, say flatly that if current commercials are banned, kids shows will disappear.

Naturally they have a vested interest. Prescott and Scheimer think they are doing the best job possible under the circumstances. They know there is tremendous room for improvement in children's programming.

But what goes on the air is not up to Filmation, Hanna-Barbera or any other producers. Decisions are made by network bigwigs who buy shows. Ratings dictate their choices. Given free rein, the producers might do better.

"We're not saying children's shows are all they should be," Prescott said. "We do say there isn't enough children's programming. But if parents use TV as a babysitter, then the shows aren't going to

"As for the commercials, parents control what foods are brought into the home. Not the kids. If parents don't approve of the products being advertised, they shouldn't buy them.'

The business of producing TV shows for kids is touchy and controversial. Prescott and Scheimer currently have eight half-hour shows running on Saturday mornings and they are in the thick of the controversy.

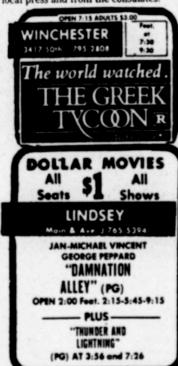

They produce "Fat Albert & The Cosby Kids," "The Batman and Target Advisor Kids," "The Batman and Tarzan Adven-ture Hour," "Isis," "Space Academy," "Ark II," "Ghost Busters" and "The Space Sentinels." Prescott and Scheimer, with the undivided attention of your youngsters eight hours a week, might wield as much influence on young children as their school teachers. They are aware of their respon-

"Producers have the duty and the responsibility of leaving a child with some kind of learning experience," Prescott said. "When you take a young, pliable mind and introduce it to any form of en-lack of reality in their everyday world."

Partner Scheimer added, "There's so much mindless material on TV the child is bombarded with meaningless movement. He sits, transfixed, watching action and color without content.

"There's nothing wrong with showing right from wrong or where to go for help or how to solve a problem, along with entertainment

"But it must be remembered that aside from our shows and Hanna-Barbera, most of the cartoons on Saturday morning were done for theaters as family entertainment long ago. Some of them go back to the 30s, 40s and 50s.

"What's needed is more rounded programming for children. TV should be a mixed bag of live action as well as car-

"We're the guys who innovated the educational content in action-adventure and comedy shows for kids," Prescott said. "Overall the quality of Saturday mornings shows is bad, but I think we're a shining example.

'No one had tried to educate through commercial entertainment TV," Prescott said. "Fat Albert' is about a contemporary 'Dead End' gang of ghetto kids. We've handled subjects like divorce, alcoholism, death, drugs, junk food and even the problem of watching too much TV.

"One of the real problems in children's programming is the difference in the ages of viewers. The kid audience, estimated at 35 million, is broken down into two major groups, those from 2 years old to 6 and 7-year-olds to 11.

and 50 percent are in school. The little ones enjoy animated cartoons the most. "Cartoons, because of the nature of the medium, involve action, fast cuts and very little dialogue. The 2-6-year-olds can follow and enjoy the shows visually, but their attention span is too short to follow

"The 7-11-year-olds like a good story and dialogue as well as the visual action. Live shows don't mesmerize the younger group, which is one of the reasons comedy fails in live action."

According to Scheimer, the No. 1 rated

Saturday morning show is their "Tarzan" series, an animated series based on the Edgar Rice Burroughs hero.

"It's at the top because it is fantasy and Tarzan is a superhero who is perceivable as a human being they can copy," Schel-mer said. "And there are a lot of animals.

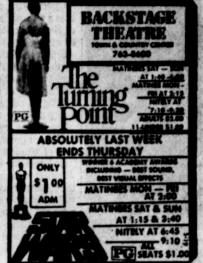

Each espisode involves a moral question and resolution. "Eventually, cable TV or pay TV of ome kind will provide the right kind of

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market sold off sharply again to-day in the aftermath of Tuesday's

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 10.13 on Tuesday, fell another 8.32 to 836.97 by noontime today.

Losers swamped gainers by more than a 6-1 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues

Brokers said the setback suffered by the market Tuesday had jolted investors' confidence, prompting a further rush of selling by traders looking to salvage gains from the spring rally.

The selling appeared initially to have been prompted by a new flareup of inflation worries.

Government officials have issued warnings in the past two days that the consumer price index for April will contain some unpleasant news. The figures are due out a week from today.

Losses showed up in virtually every sector of the market.

Among issues which had posted strong gains of late, Eastman Kowas off 1/2 at 541/2; Polaroid lost % to 36%, and Playboy Enterprises gave up 1/2 to 161/6.

The NYSE's composite index fell 54 to 54.36, and the American Stock Exchange market value index tumbled 1.15 to 144.14.

Volume on the Big Board totaled | 14.90 million shares by noontime against 13.89 million at the same point Tuesday

Break-Ins Continue To Mount

Lubbock's steady stream of break-ins continued to cause misery for residents and businessmen throughout the city.

Larry D. Johnson said $1,200 worth of property was stolen sometime since Friday from a house under construction in the 5500-block of Grinnell Street. Reportedly taken were light fixtures and a dishwasher.

Whoever broke through a window at Sterling Miller's 610-B N. Elkhart Ave. residence Tuesday reportedly made off with $1,000 worth of stereo equipment.

Gerry Lynn Averett of 5209 72nd St. told police a $500 television was taken from that house Tuesday. Reports indicated entry was made through an unlocked back door.

A burglar got through a door at Kim Cronk's 1919 Ave. M home Tuesday and got away with a stereo, sewing machine and camera, altogether valued at $1,050. Food and soft drinks, reportedly worth

$100, was stolen from a concession stand at Mae Simmons Park Monday or Tuesday. According to reports entry was gained by breaking through a door. A Lubbock woman scared off a wouldbe rapist late Monday night when, during a struggle with the man, she lifted the nylon stocking he wore over his head and got a glimpse of his face. The victim told police that when she returned home about 11:20 p.m. Monday, the man grabbed her around the neck and tried to force her into the bedroom. The suspect, a white man in his mid-20s, was wearing only the stocking and a pair of pants, according to reports. The woman said he also was carrying a small caliber pistol. About $500 in goods was taken from Bene Herra Prado's home at 2824 Fordham St. Prado told officers that after tearing a screen and forcing open a window to the residence, burglars made off with property including two televisions and a pistol.

Burglars used a blow torch on the soda machine at Western Ag Sales Co. Inc. to get to the $15 in change inside the machine. Leonard Lee Norman of 7805-A Memphis Ave., manager of the business, told police nothing else in the business was disturbed.

Hubcap thieves also were busy Monday night, with several persons across the city reporting missing wheel covers.

Hong Lee told officers someone took the wheel covers from his vehicle, parked at his 4301 57th St. home, and he set his loss at $240.

Bequita Mileur told police someone took her husband's 10-speed bicycle sometime Monday night from in front of the couple's 1802 6th St. apartment. The bike is valued at $150

Alamo Meters Hit Snag

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Another Battle of the Alamo, this one over parking meters, ended Tuesday when city workmen removed 13 parking meter poles they had installed in front of the old mission last week in violation of city conservation laws.

The removal, ordered by embarrassed city officials, was opposed by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, the custodians of the state-owned shrine. The Daughters had asked for the parking meters to provide inexpensive parking for Alamo visitors. Mayor Lila Cockrell called the affair "a friendly mistake."

The city began installing the meters last Thursday. The work was stopped, however, when a local conservation society objected. City officials then discovered a 1975 ordinance - agreed to by the Daughters prohibiting the installation of meters before Jan. 1, 1979. Parking meters were once located in front of the Alamo, but were removed in 1975 during the renovation of the Alamo

Plaza. Alamo visitors must now pay to park in nearby lots. We want the children of Texas to be able to visit the Alamo without their parents paying exorbitant parking fees," said Peggy Dibrell, chairman of the Daughters' Alamo Committee. "When the city took away our parking places three years ago, the city fathers promised us nearby parking at reasonable prices so everyone can afford it. She said the controversy is "no laughing matter.'

Threats Made To Vietnamese

NEW ORLEA,S (UPI) - Several Vietnamese families have received letters telling them they are "marked for death," and ordering them to leave the city or face the consequences.
Crudely drawn skulls and crossbones were scrawled on some of the death threat letter received by the families, sta-tion WVUE-TV reported Tuesday. The station said the FBI has begun an investigation into possible extortion.

"Be ready to leave. You are marked for death," the letter read in part.

"I hate to see this happening in the United States," said Rawlien Sobrano, a Vietnamese resident, "and I think it's about time the community should realize we are an open society. If they want their deas to be known they should come out in the public and not resort to tactics like

The letters were received in the wake of dissatisfation by black groups over a relief program sponsored by Associated Catholic Charities that provides funds for resettlement of the refugees.

Black groups had claimed Vietnamese workers were accepting lower wages and forcing blacks out of jobs.

TONY NOMINEES - Actor Hume Cronyn, left, his wife, Jessica Tandy, and author D.L. Coburn, right, posed recently after it was announced they are among the nominees to receive 1978 Antoinette Perry (Tony) Awards. Cronyn and his wife were nominated as outstanding actor and actress for their roles in "The Gin Game," and Coburn for his authorship of the play.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I heard that the great Helen Hayes, known as an untouchable when she was a young actress, once fell for Clark Gable. Was that really a romance? If so what happened to it? — Mrs. Lettie McG., Pittsburgh.

A: In a recent interview in "Modern Maturity," a magazine published by the American Association of Retired Persons, the very human actress smilingly nodded when interviewer Joan Wixen brought up the Gable gossip.

"Whether you believe this or not," Miss Hayes said, "this holier-than-thou image I have gets me, too . . . And it's particularly hard to tolerate in this age where tough is supposed to be beautiful and there are a lot of people who think, 'Oh, for heaven's sake, why in the world don't you come down from that ivory tower and join the throng?' But the truth is I've never climbed into an ivory tower, because inside I know I'm just not

Asked if her late husband, playwright-journalist Charles MacArthur, ever worried when she said she never wanted any other man but him, she said he had nothing to worry about. Was that confession that Clark Gable once tried to seduce her true? Although she was flattered, she said, that under no circumstances could she have been unfaithful to Charlie or even have considered marrying again after his death 22 years ago.

"Clark said the trouble was I was just too shy. But I think there was a kind of purity and an innocence about me that protected me." Miss Hayes laughed and continued.

"O.K., you know whom I could have had a hard time with? Gary Cooper. It's possible if Gary had put his finger out I would have followed him to the end of the earth. But Gary would have none of that because I wasn't the type . . . It's that everyone has always protected me all my life. Everyone thought dear little Helen was too pure and good to be played around with.

Asked about whether she felt 77, the young-at-heart actress came up with this response: "Somehow I expected 77 to be decrepit, enfeebled age that happened only to other people. But this age isn't that way at all. Inside I still feel like a kid . . Sometimes when I get up in the morning and look in the mirror I say, 'Who is she?' Maybe what's the matter with me is I'm terribly vain. I know I look better with my natural color hair and I don't wear makeup because I don't feel I need to make any attempt to cover up my years. I've gotten to love my lines. They tell a story. And I hope it's a good story, because it's all there.

(Footnote: Some years ago we were fortunate enough to have both Mr. and Mrs. MacArthur on our NBC-TV show. Charles, a transcript of the kinescope recalls, related how he first met Helen. It was at a party - and handing a bag of peanuts to her he commented "I wish they were emeralds." In 1944 he gifted her with emeralds, accompanied by a card that read "I wish they

Q: I read Garson Kanin's book, ("It Takes a Long Time to Be Young") and go along with his sentiments about mandatory retirement. I know that the retirement age has gone up from 65 to 70 since he wrote the book - but will you please repeat what he said for posterity? - Cynthia Adams, Omaha, Neb.

A: "It's asinine, idiotic, cruel, unpatriotic and illegal," Kanin complained. His wife, 81-year-old star, Ruth Gordon, chimed in and added her philosophy: "If I had retired at 65 I never would have been in the movies; I would have never written books and I never would have enjoyed life the way I do now.

Elderly Woman Claims Censorship Necessary

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The 67-year-old woman settled back in her executive swivel chair and got ready to put in another work day - watching a dirty mov-

But the filthy film wasn't the first for Mary Avara. She's been watching hardcore and soft-core porn - and other films as well -for 18 years as a member of the Maryland Censor Board, the oldest such body in the nation.

Mrs. Avara, who talks nonstop about her neighbors, her family including nine grandchildren, her native "Baltimer" (Baltimore) and her work, isn't defensive about deciding what other people should watch in theaters.

She regards censorship as a popular and necessary function of the state

"It's the people who want an end to all this filth and garbage in the movies, and, if they do, the government should do it," she said in an interview.

"The films debase every profession doctors, barbers, postmen, you name it. It gives America, which my parents loved so much and is so beautiful, a bad

Mrs. Avara said she first took the job which pays $4,500 a year - on the threemember board because it was a political "plum" position. Over the years, however, "Letters from friends all over the country have made me a crusader.

"The drunk driver has to get drunk before he kills someone on the road," she said. "Well, a rapist has to be aroused somehow before he finds a victim. These movies show them how - whether it's to rape or do anything else violent.

Acting Gov. Blair Lee III described Mrs. Avara as the "linchpin" of the board in supporting legislation that would extend its life another year.

But she said she is more liberal than the two male members who, if they had their way would snip more scenes. All decisions must be unanimous

A Baltimore native, Mrs. Avara grew up in a Catholic family of 12 and was made street-wise by a bail-bond business that she began after she was widowed with four infants.

"I have strong convictions and have been around enough that looking at all these movies has not changed me or my joke around.

"I think everybody wants to see a dirty film at least once. But enough is enough. They are trash and, if everybody had to see what I see, they would feel just as strongly. It's perverted and unhealthy

She doesn't see pornography as exploiting women because, "Men are the weaker sex. It's the women who are exploiting men in pornography. I don't feel sorry for the women

She said the pornography industry began to grow in the 1960s with "nudist" films. Now she said parts of some films distributed to "family" movie houses are too sexually explicit for her tastes.

"I get calls every day from people complaining about this movie or that," she said. "They are not always talking about sex scenes, too. They are often talking

But under state law, the censors cannot delete any part of a film that is not sexually explicit, which means silhouettes of sex acts and verbal or imagistic references to sex cannot be censored.

The board has purview over all movies that are distributed in the state. Any appeals of its decisions are determined in

Mrs. Avara said that several other states have had censor boards but no state has had one continuously as long as Maryland. She said she gets letters every day from persons wanting to establish a movie review board in their state.

While she said it would have been a fulltime job for her to help start censor boards in other states, she does accept speaking engagements as often as she

"I'm a hit because I tell it like it is

Bourbon Firm Searching For Beautiful Iowa Hog

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) - The from the fact that I think Iowa is a misun search soon will begin for the most beautiful hog in Iowa.

Glennon Walsh, an official of a Kentucky distillery, said the winning hog will be immortalized au a bourbon decanter. which he hopes will be sold to the state liquor stores in Iowa.

Walsh said his idea calls for the bottle to show a hog perched on his haunches with his snoot up.

Rather than pick any old hog, "we wanted something very special, so I am going to be looking," he said. "I will be doing the checking myself next month. just to be sure we get the right one.

He declined to call his efforts a beauty contest "because we can't do that kind of thing and have any lottery or the like. It is more of intensive research. There's no way to really find out about a subject until you get into the field.

Walsh is not new to this kind of research. He worked on a decanter featuring the Iowa farmer last year and spent time checking around the state "to find the best way to characterize him.

The whole idea of the decanters stems

derstood state. I think people don't real ize how important it is

'And when you think about Iowa you think about its important crops - including hogs. I helped make a decanter of the Iowa farmer last year and I think the hogs deserve the same honor." Walsh

He said he will be traveling around Iowa in a van with large photos of hogs taped to the side and signs saying "Pigs are really pretty.

"I feel like now I really don't know just how pretty the pigs are. I have seen a few, but I want to get out - in the big cities and in the little towns, along the highway and the byways to take a good look. he said.

After he has taken ample time to look at the quality of pigs. Walsh said he will return to select a winner.

"Then I hope to buy the animal from its owner and give it to a 4-H group

"But first, it will get to sit for the bottle. we might give it a couple of ears of corn and help it get the proper curl for
