TEXAS CITY — Three persons are known dead and 12 others injured early today in a series of explosions that rocked a Texas City refinery.

At least 15 persons were on duty when the first of about a dozen blasts occurred at 2 a.m., said Texas City Refinery, Inc., spokesman Rick Sherman.

One of those reported dead was a guard working under contract at the refinery. He had not been considered when company officials were trying to account for its personnel.

The two dead were first listed as being unaccounted for.

Two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks were among the first to explode. The first blast was followed by about 10 others in rapid succession over the next 35 minutes, and then by another explosion about 90 minutes later.

The heat was so intense that firefighters said they were unable to get close than within two blocks of the refinery. A huge, swirling black cloud drifted over the area at daybreak, and a fireball with flames reaching 200 feet in the air was visible from Houston 35 miles to the northwest.

Fire officials said about 100 families were evacuated from their Texas City homes as a precaution.

Sherman said the exact origin of the first explosion had not been determined.

Local hospitals reported a total of 12 persons admitted, three of them in critical condition.

Fred Gross, supervisor for the Texas City Ambulance Service, said he was in bed when the first explosion rocked the ambulance service building a mile from the refinery.

"I thought at first it might be a tornado, then I looked out the window and it was as if it were daylight. I thought I was engulfed in a fireball," Gross said.

Fire officials said there were so many oil tanks in the vicinity that they were not even trying to put out the fires, but were trying to keep other tanks from catching on fire or exploding.

Marathon Oil Refinery, across the street, also was reported on fire by some officials.

All fire departments in both Galveston and Harris counties were called to assist in fighting the fires.

The two refineries are among several located close together about three miles east of Interstate 45. Just west of the refineries a large grassy marsh had been burning for 36 hours, but there was no immediate indication of whether it had any connection to the explosions.

A main disaster relief center was set up at a baseball park three miles from the refineries. The injured were taken there first, then transported to hospitals.

Witnesses described the largest of the early morning explosions at the oil refinery as a huge bright mushroom-type fireball.

Ernie B. Cole, Coast Guard petty officer at Galveston, saw the explosions.

"It looked like a couple of blowouts," Cole said. "We looked over there a couple of minutes later and there was a small fire — larger than a blowout. A couple of minutes later there was one large explosion and then it looked like a series of four or five smaller ones. There was one huge one — at least twice as big as any of the other explosions. We couldn't see the flames for the smoke."

John Sealy Hospital in Houston and Danforth Hospital in Texas City reported their emergency facilities full, and other injured were being taken to Hermann Hospital in Houston, which supplied two helicopters that flew out some of the more seriously injured burn victims.

"The first major blast just shook the hell out of the house. Since then, there have been about 10," said Sherman Irish of Wharton, who was visiting a friend about two miles from the refineries.

"The sky is lit up. On about the fifth explosion, just a huge ball of fire went to the sky. When it explodes, everything looks like it's daylight. The south side of Texas City is lit right now, but with each explosion the whole sky is livid orange," Irish said.

"The fire is being contained in the refinery at this time. We've evacuated south of Texas Avenue, but I don't know how many people that is," Texas City police officer Hal Biery said.

Texas City is a major refinery center on the Gulf Coast and is ringed by major refinery operations of Amoco Chemical, Monsanto, Union Carbide, Gulf, and other companies.

One of the worst explosions in history occurred in Texas City on April 16, 1947, when a ship loaded with nitrate blew up, killing 561 people and destroying much of the port.

Justices Eye Search Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to study a request by Massachusetts authorities that it ease significantly the constitutional restrictions on police searches.

The justices said they will decide whether criminal suspects' statements ruled inadmissible as trial evidence under the so-called Miranda rule may be used to justify a search warrant.

Under the Supreme Court's Miranda decision in 1966, police must warn criminal suspects of their rights to remain silent and to be helped by a lawyer.

Any evidence gained in violation of the Miranda requirement is barred, under most circumstances, from use in a criminal trial.

A liberal Supreme Court ruled in Miranda that imposing such a procedural requirement on police was in line with the Constitution's Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination.

Massachusetts law enforcement officials told the Supreme Court, now generally more conservative in matters of individual rights than it was 12 years ago, that their state's highest court had unduly extended the Miranda requirement.

At issue is the Massachusetts court's overturning of the 1978 drug-possession conviction of Charles White.

White was arrested in 1975 after running his car off a road in Ashfield, Mass. Police suspected White of being drunk or under the influence of drugs and arrested him.

A breath analysis test showed that White had a high amount of alcohol in his blood system.

He was searched before being jailed, and a marijuana cigarette was found in one of his shirt pockets.

A state trooper asked White if he had more marijuana in his car, and White said yes. Using White's statement in a supporting affidavit to establish the necessary "probable cause," the trooper obtained a search warrant allowing him to check White's car.

Marijuana, amphetamines, cocaine and LSD were found in the car's trunk along with more than $3,000 in cash.

At White's trial, the presiding judge banned all use of statements White had made to police as evidence against the defendant. In his condition, White could not have "knowingly" waived his Miranda rights, the judge ruled.

But prosecutors were allowed to introduce evidence seized from White's car and he was convicted.

On appeal, the state Supreme Judicial Court ordered a new trial for White after ruling that his statements could not legally be used in support of a police request for a search warrant.

The state court ruled that if it hadn't been for White's statement about more drugs in his car, a search warrant prob-

President Warns NATO Of Soviet Arms Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the NATO alliance must bolster its military power to meet a communist buildup that "far exceeds their legitimate security needs."

Addressing the opening session of a two-day NATO summit meeting, Carter pledged that the United States "will play its part" in supplying conventional, tactical nuclear and strategic armed forces.

"The United States will maintain strategic nuclear equivalence with the Soviet Union," Carter said in his remarks, prepared for the gathering at the Kennedy Center.

Carter's appearance before the 14 heads of government or state followed a rapid acceleration in anti-Soviet rhetoric on the part of top administration officials.

His comments did not match the stridency of statements Sunday by his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, but they were a far cry from Carter's remarks a year ago that the United States no longer need have an "inordinate fear" of communism.

"The Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries pose a military threat to our alliance which far exceeds their legitimate security needs," Carter said.

"For more than a decade, the military power of the Soviet Union has steadily expanded, and it has grown consistently more sophisticated. In significant areas, the military lead we once enjoyed has been reduced."

He expressed confidence that NATO can meet the military challenge but "we cannot be sure of countering the future military threat unless our alliance modernizes its forces and adds additional military power."

Before his address, Carter held a breakfast meeting with West Germany's Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, the first in a series of individual private sessions he plans with western European leaders in Washington, for the NATO meeting, which continues through Wednesday.

The NATO meeting was convened to consider a long-range program to bolster the organization's defense structure, which now finds itself outmanned and, in some respects, outgunned by the Warsaw Pact nations.

"I am gratified that America's allies are joining with us in building up their military might," Carter said.

Carter said the vigilance of the alliance cannot be limited to Europe.

"As I speak today, the activities of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa are preventing individual nations from charting their own course. As members of the world's greatest alliance, we cannot be indifferent to these events — because of what they mean for Africa, and because of their effect on the long-term interests of the alliance."

This appeared to be a call for an expansion of NATO's responsibilities beyond the North Atlantic, but NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns of the Netherlands said in a news conference Monday night that no such step is contemplated.

In his remarks Sunday, Brzezinski said that Moscow, through "unilateral exploitation of the world's troubles," had violated "the code of detente."

Only last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said that Soviet development of the SS20 nuclear missile "is a new departure in destructive power and represents a substantial increase in the nuclear threat of the Soviet Union."

Luns said Monday that Soviet military expenditures have increased 5 percent a year over the last decade — 10 times the pace of the NATO increase.

"When one looks at the present situation, one cannot be overly optimistic," he said. Luns added, however, that he did not believe the Soviet buildup meant that Moscow is intent on waging aggression against the West.

The two-day NATO summit meeting has been preceded by intense, year-long preparations. The secret long-range program the delegates will consider calls on each member of the alliance to commit itself to a 3 percent increase in military spending yearly from 1979 to 1984.

Another key proposal calls for developing an integrated allied air defense over the next 15 years.

Officials estimate that it would cost NATO upwards of $80 billion over the next decade to follow through on the proposals. In addition to the proposal for an integrated air defense, the document also calls for increased expenditures for anti-tank weapons, chemical warfare defenses, deploying reinforcements more quickly and improvements in maritime defenses.

Cuban Official Labels Carter's Charge 'False'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, demonstrators' chants of "Cubans out of Africa" echoing in his ears, told the United Nations today that President Carter's charge that Cuba was involved in the rebel invasion of Zaire was "absolutely false."

But Rodriguez, without mentioning the continent by name, defended Cuban military presence in Africa as necessary "to safeguard the independence of other peoples faced with imperialist aggression."

The Cuban had surprisingly few harsh words for the United States, although he took a pot shot at the U.S. "military violence" that cost Mexico the territories of Texas and New Mexico. The likes of the Alamo, he said, have been "execrated by history."

Some 30 Cuban demonstrators paraded across from the U.N. General Assembly, chanting "Cubans out of Africa" and "Russians out of Cuba," even as Rodriguez went before the 140-nation body's special session on disarmament to counter U.S. claims that Cuba, armed and trained the rebels in Zaire.

The "imputations" in Carter's Chicago speech Thursday "are absolutely false," said Rodriguez. "... The government of the United States has sufficient reason to know that they are based on impudently repeated lies."

The vice president said, "I can reaffirm before this Assembly that Cuba has not participated directly or indirectly" in the Zaire fighting.

Without elaborating, he did say Cuban soldiers and military equipment are "outside our country today... (to) contribute modestly and to the extent possible for a small country, to safeguard the independence of other peoples faced with imperialist aggression."

In the same Assembly Monday, China left it clear it is unimpressed by Soviet-

"The truth is, I think I'm better off because of what I went through. I have a better understanding of myself and my fellow man. You learn how much you need other people to survive." — Air Force Lt. Col. DON ODELL, one of 300 Vietnam prisoners of war who attended a reunion last weekend.

Gleason Returns To Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — Entertainer Jackie Gleason has been hospitalized for the second time within a week, but his condition is described as excellent.

Gleason, who has been appearing in the comedy "Sly Fox" at the Blackstone Theater, was first admitted Saturday morning because of chest pains and was released later that day. He was readmitted Sunday — again because of chest pains.

Verna Baughman, an administrator for Michael Reese Hospital, said Gleason, 62, was undergoing tests Monday and that no diagnosis had been determined.

A spokesman for "Sly Fox," Dan Langan, said Gleason had suffered an attack of gastroenteritis. Monday's performance of the play was canceled.

Cernan Encourages Change

HOUSTON (AP) — Gene Cernan, the last man on the moon, has changed careers but has found out that some things never change.

"Whether you're abroad as a businessman or on a holiday, people don't look at you as anything but an American astronaut," Cernan said. "Once you've walked on the moon, you can never unwalk."

After commanding Apollo 17, the last manned flight to the moon in December 1972, Cernan remained in the space program and worked on the U.S.-Soviet Apollo-Soyuz linkup in space. He could have stayed on for the current space shuttle program but decided it was time to get out.

"I just didn't want to start all over again," he said. "And there were people just as capable as I in the program who had never flown before."

After 20 years in the Navy, Cernan became eligible for retirement and left the space program about two years ago to become executive vice president of Coral Petroleum Inc.

"Most people in this world need change," Cernan said. "Take a mediocre ballplayer. Trade him to another club, and he hits 40 home runs. It's not that I was getting stale, but I wanted to use my experience in something else."

Publication Opposes Anita Bryant

ATLANTA (AP) — Anita Bryant does not have enough experience in Baptist life to become first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention, says The Christian Index, a Georgia-based Baptist publication.

Baptist Press has reported that Miss Bryant has been approached by an unnamed group which wants to nominate her for first vice president of the 13 million member denomination when it meets in Atlanta June 13-15.

Editor Jack Harwell, wrote in an editorial in this week's Index, published by the Georgia Baptist Convention, "Anita Bryant seems to be a fine Christian woman. Her pastor in Miami says she is a loyal church leader, but she has never served in any association, state convention or Southern Baptist office we know about."

Miss Bryant, who will address the convention's Pastors Conference, told Baptist Press that she knows little about the vice presidential position and doesn't want to become part of anything in which she cannot be active.

Israel Gets New President

JERUSALEM (AP) — With Prime Minister Menachem Begin looking on, Yitzhak Navon, a native-born politician and playwright, became Israel's fifth president.

Navon took the oath of office Monday in a colorful ceremony at the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

He then appealed directly to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to reopen stalled Mideast peace talks.

Begin, looking pale and fatigued after running a high fever over the weekend, listened intently from his seat in the first row of the chamber.

"His temperature is down but he may rest another few days," said spokesman Schlomo Nakdimon. Begin skipped Sunday's Knesset meeting.

Begin has a history of heart trouble. The cause of his fever is not known.

Navon, 57, succeeded Ephraim Katzir in the largely ceremonial post of president. Katzir chose to step down after one five-year term and return to his biology laboratory at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

Navon is a new breed of leadership for Israel, fusing Eastern and Western cultures. He is the first president of Sephardic background, descended from the Jews of medieval Spain who were dispersed by religious persecution mainly to the Arab countries.

Cugat In Fair Condition

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bandleader Xavier Cugat, hospitalized for high blood pressure, is in fair condition and "doing well," says a spokeswoman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

Cugat's doctor had ordered him taken to the hospital Sunday when he said he was having difficulty breathing. Cugat, 78, suffered a stroke five years ago, spokeswoman Tess Griffin said Monday.

Cugat's dance orchestras specialized in Latin rhythms and were popular from the mid-1940s to the mid-1960s. His third wife, Abbe Lane, sang with his bands.

Cugat was recently separated from his fourth wife, entertainer Charo.

Bugged Into Surrendering

ISHPEMING, Mich. (AP) — It wasn't so much the long arm of the law as the short legs of the bugs that proved to be Gerald Senske's undoing, police say.

State Police Trooper David Cope said he was patrolling U.S. 41 Monday afternoon when he spotted a motorist doing more than 100 mph.

Cope said he chased the motorist to a wooded area near this Upper Michigan Peninsula town, where the speeding car screeched to a halt near Lake Michigan, and its driver and a passenger fled on foot.

After a brief chase, police said Cope captured Senske, 20, of Ishpeming, and his passenger.

But while the officer was preoccupied, Senske freed himself, got into Cope's patrol car, which had its keys in the ignition, and took off, police said.

A few minutes later, the car was spotted near the town of L'Anse. Another trooper gave chase and trailed the fleeing patrol car into the woods, where Senske allegedly jumped out and headed into the brush on foot.

Sgt. Darryl Prudom said police were just getting ready to bring in tracking dogs to hunt for the man when he walked out of the woods, complaining that he was being attacked by mosquitoes, and surrendered.

Prudom said Senske was being held at the Marquette County jail Monday on a charge of car theft. His companion was released.

Photographer In Spotlight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For 50 years John Egstead has photographed some of the most famous faces in the world. From Marlene Dietrich to Cher, he has never failed to make them look good.

Having dealt with most of the glamorous figures of the film world, Egstead is unaccustomed to the spotlight himself; he even dislikes having his own photograph taken.

But he's getting attention now, because of a handsome new book, "Star Shots," which includes 370 of his famous portraits.

Among those he has photographed are Eve Arden, Jane Wyatt, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Gail Patrick and Patricia Morrison. Egstead, a tall, spare, quiet-spoken Los Angeles native who inspires confidence, says the secret to success is proper perspective and lighting.

"I try to find the best angles," he explained in an interview. "Then I use the light that best suits the person ... I use the lights to accent their best features, perhaps cutting out a piece of cardboard to place over the spot. If a woman has a good bosom, I will spotlight that; if she has a big stomach, I'll put that in shadow."

Greece, Turkey Agree To Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a show of goodwill on the eve of the Washington NATO summit, Greece and Turkey are agreeing to renew their talks on the exploitation of the Aegean Sea and to try again to end the hostility in their relations.

NATO diplomats had been hoping for such a sign of accommodation by the two southeastern members of the Atlantic alliance, whose quarrels have long threatened the defense structure of the 15-nation pact.

NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns reiterated the danger Monday, telling a news conference that "I would be less than candid if I did not register my concern about the situation on NATO's southeastern flank that continues to weaken the alliance as a whole."

The new Greek-Turkish accord on re-summing the Aegean talks came at a two-hour meeting Monday night at Blair House, a U.S. government residence across the street from the White House.

Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit and Greek Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis agreed that the general secretaries of their foreign ministries would go back to the bargaining table July 4-5 to work on their dispute over air and mining rights in the oil-rich Aegean region.

The talks had last been set for April, but were called off. The newly scheduled session in the Turkish capital of Ankara is not expected to deal with Cyprus, another sticking point in Greek-Turkish relations.

Ecevit's government was angered by a vote two weeks ago by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee against lifting the three-year-old partial U.S. arms embargo against Turkey. The question of the embargo, slapped on Turkey after the 1974 Cyprus war, goes before the full Senate next month.

Ecevit, whose government restricted the activities of U.S. armed forces in Turkey in retaliation for the embargo, has warned that Turkey may reassess its role in NATO further if the embargo is not lifted this time by the Senate.

The Turkish leader warned again Monday night against linking an end to the embargo to Turkish concessions on Cyprus, telling reporters that "it has been seen on several occasions that linking the Cyprus issue with Turkish-American relations helps neither those relations, nor the Cyprus issue, nor Turkish-Greek relations as a whole."

President Carter is expected to talk with both Ecevit and Caramanlis before they leave Washington. The Greek and Turkish leaders last met in Montreux, Switzerland, in March.

Ecevit told reporters that he hoped Monday night's talks would aid in a "fruitful dialogue" between Athens and Ankara. Greece has been absent from many NATO military activities since 1974 because of its disputes with Turkey.

Turkey already receives substantial Soviet aid, and Ecevit will visit Moscow next month for talks that may include the signing of a new statement of principles between Ankara and the Soviet Union. But most diplomats expect Turkey to remain a member of the NATO alliance whatever the arms vote in the Senate, although Ankara may reduce its level of military participation.

HARRY CAIN

Ex-Bureaucrat To Receive Health Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Cain, the bureaucrat who got fed up with government and quit last month, has found a new job — watching whoever gets his old one.

Cain is expected to be named soon as the executive director of the American Health Planning Association, the Washington representative of local health services agencies and state planning boards.

A 16-year veteran of the government health bureaucracy, Cain resigned his $42,000 a year post last month saying he could no longer tolerate the "bureaucratic swamp."

As head of the 400-employee Bureau of Health Planning and Resources Development in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Cain was particularly frustrated by not being able to fire the people he did not like and hire those he did.

"Having failed at that, I wish (my colleagues) strength, stamina, hope, good humor, faith, a charitable spirit and whatever they need to keep their heads above the still rising water."

In his new post, he will have a staff of eight, not 400 and a salary between $45,000 and $55,000.

One of the organization's principal duties is to keep local health planning agencies informed about what Cain's old agency is doing.

Ironically, the American Health Planning Association has a $100,000 government contract to help find qualified personnel for the federally assisted local planning agency.

Accused Filipino Nurses Plan To File Lawsuit For Damages

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Two Filipino nurses convicted and then cleared of charges they poisoned patients at a veterans hospital in Michigan criticized American government prosecutors today of "doctoring evidence against us," but described American justice and the press as generally fair.

Filipina Narciso, 32, and Leonora Perez, 34, told a press conference they planned to sue for damages. "We're trying to look into the possibilities of recovering losses and back pay," Miss Narciso said. She refused to elaborate, saying their lawyers were in the "process of investigating."

The two nurses arrived here Monday, four months after the U.S. attorney in Michigan dismissed all accusations against them in connection with mysterious deaths and breathing failures at the Veterans Administration hospital in Ann Arbor in the summer of 1975.

They were indicted June 18, 1976, on charges of murdering five patients and poisoning 10 others. When they came to trial 10 months later, each was formally charged with two murders, seven poisonings and conspiracy.

South African Drops Seal Killing Grant

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The government has withdrawn about 27,000 seals scheduled to be killed in the next five years on Seal Island, in False Bay near Cape Town.

The seals are thinned out to keep them from depleting the fish supply. The government cancelled a four-year grant of the killing rights after claims by opponents of the killing that there was no good Seal Island was overpopulated.

More charges were dropped during the trial, and the jury ended up considering only a conspiracy count and three poisoning charges against each nurse, and a murder charge against Miss Narciso. Guilty verdicts were returned July 13, 1977, on the poisoning and conspiracy charges. Miss Narciso was acquitted of murder.

U.S. District Judge Phillip Pratt in December ordered a new trial because of "numerous improprieties" by the prosecution. Early this year, the U.S. attorney decided not to try the case again and all charges were dropped.

Asked what she thought of the trial, Mrs. Perez said: "I was not satisfied with the manner the prosecutors conducted the case." Miss Narciso added: "They doctored the evidence against us. At first the jury gave credence to circumstantial evidence — that we were always at the hospital bedside. We were granted a new trial because of the competence of our American lawyers."

Asked what she thought of American justice, Miss Narciso said: "The American system of justice is just as good as the people who run it." Asked about U.S. press coverage of the trial, she said "the American press was quite accurate."

Both nurses said their court victory restored American confidence in Filipino nurses working abroad. They thanked the Philippine Nurses Association and the Philippine government for supporting them during the trial.

Miss Narciso said $83,000 was raised by the Campaign for Justice Committee led by Dr. Pacifico Marcos, medical care commission head and elder brother of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, and the PNA to cover their legal expenses.

They spoke proudly of their countrymen's moral and financial support during their trial. "We were backed up by our country — an indication of the strength of the Filipino character," Miss Narciso said.

Mindaluz Quesada, first vice president of the PNA, said the experience of the two nurses in the United States has not discouraged Filipino nurses from seeking jobs in America. The majority of the 27,000 Filipino nurses abroad are in the United States, she said. There are about 81,000 Filipino nurses here and abroad and their number is increasing annually, Quesada said.

The two nurses will be here until June 23 during which time they will tell their countrymen their version of what happened at the Veterans hospital in Ann Arbor.

Ford Gives Impression Of Being Candidate

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford had some folks in for coffee the other morning.

About 50 reporters, cameras and crews from the television networks, radionews with a dozen microphones, and assorted members of the Cabinet and staff that served him in the White House.

And if he is not gearing up to run for president again in 1980, he gives a good imitation.

The affair was billed as a press coffee at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, the foundation that is Ford's current Washington base.

There was a lot more press than coffee. The former president did not have a sip. He was too busy answering questions. Politics, foreign policy, inflation, more politics.

Coincidentally, this was one day after the publication of a Louis Harris poll that showed Ford leading President Carter, 48 percent to 43 percent, if the 1980 presidential election were to be held now.

Would that impel him to run again? "I haven't really thought of that poll in that context," Ford said. "I've never thought polls were that critical."

"So we'll just wait and see." Besides, as Ford used to say when Carter was outdistancing him in the 1976 public opinion polls, the only one that counts is the one on election day. In that one, Democrat Carter beat Republican Ford by three percentage points.

There is a school of thought that holds Ford might not be inclined to give up the good life of Palm Springs, the celebrity golf circuit, part-time politics and lecturing to return to the rigors of running — unless Ronald Reagan is a 1980 candidate for the Republican nomination. Reagan is not saying either. The same Harris poll showed Reagan and Carter about even in a hypothetical 1980 contest.

Ford said he will make his decision about 1980 in a year, perhaps a year and a half. "I have not thought it out carefully," he said.

Whenever Reagan is asked, he says pretty much the same thing — it is too early to think about 1980.

But a good many people are, and it is hard to believe that Ford and Reagan are not among them. Ford, now 64, and Reagan, at 67, will have at best one more chance to run, and even now they may have trouble with the political generation gap. A younger crop of Republicans already is suggesting that both of them should stand aside for a new generation of GOP prospects.

Beyond that, there is the fact that a rematch between them would ignite again the GOP ideological strife that has been characteristic of the party for years.

In 1976, the relatively conservative Ford became the candidate of moderate and liberal Republicans because the alternative was Reagan.

John Deardourff, a campaign consultant who worked for Ford in 1976, suggests in the new magazine Public Opinion that the Republican Party machinery is in such conservative hands that there is only a remote possibility a moderate GOP candidate can be nominated in 1980.

He said there may not even be a major moderate candidate unless Ford, "now viewed as apostate by the leadership of the Republican right, decides to make the race."

In the same journal, Reagan campaigners David Keene and John Sears write that competence will be the key issue in the next campaign.

"The American people aren't going to send Jimmy Carter back to Plains for purely ideological reasons, but they will if he convinces enough of them that he isn't up to the job," Keene says.

"Lyndon Johnson and George Romney could speak volumes on what can happen to a politician once his competency is called into question," Sears writes. "For Mr. Carter, that issue could become devastating."

That would be ironic indeed, since it was precisely that issue that helped him oust Ford from the White House.

Students Learn Lesson In Buying, Paying

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Students at Jackson Elementary School are getting a lesson in the pleasure of buying and the pain of paying. It's all in a course that's set up like a game and the name is Consumer.

To play it, youngsters earn points by wisely using $120 monthly allotments while learning the awful truth that "everyone faces limited resources," said principal Dean Ringer, who designed the game.

Mock sales items offered to the students range from sewing machines to weekend vacations with points based on each item's satisfaction rating. Players compete for eight months to see who can accumulate the most points.

That is not easy. Ringer spikes the consumer trail with pitfalls. Some students turn up some joker cards that can charge $35 for unexpected doctor bills and $50 for auto repairs.

Having selected priority items to be purchased, players are notified of the availability of credit and borrowing. A few students serve as loan and credit peddlers. The borrowing charges are subtracted from the student's point total.

Players are not told "which credit agents had the lowest interest rates," Ringer said, "so that they would have to survey the situation and make their own decisions."

The options included six- and 12-month loans from the "Last National Bank" or the "Fort Knox Finance Co.," and department store credit accounts.

One student, Todd Stevenson, said he learned to avoid borrowing money from bankers and other lenders because "you can lose money paying them and putting up collateral."

He said he learned to address his capital resources to necessities, or as he put it, "It is more important to satisfy your needs than wants. You need food, shelter and water."

It is the sort of instruction which consumer advocates say ought to be required in all elementary schools. Parents are not likely to object after they have heard what Todd and his classmates have learned.

Todd said he will now find it more difficult to demand that his parents buy him such things as a bicycle "because you know it is necessary to be on a limited budget and harder to change the budget around."

Oil, Gas Reserves Eyed By Survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 673 million barrels of petroleum liquids and 1.45 trillion cubic feet of natural gas are estimated as "remaining recoverable reserves" in 11 of 12 federal fields of the Outer Continental Shelf off Southern California.

The U.S. Geological Survey makes the estimates as of Jan. 1, 1977, in a newly issued report.

OSHA Boosts Inflation

IT'S FRETTING about it but, for the nonce, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has been frustrated in efforts to impose one of its more wastefully extravagant rules on the American working place.

that, while the disease can lead to disability and even death, its dangers have been overstated and that more reasonable and yet effective means are available to cope with the problem.

Carter's economic advisers suggested, too, that revisions were possible to reduce the inflationary impact of cotton dust control "without sacrificing the health benefits."

It mentioned greater emphasis on masks for workers and periodic checkups for byssinosis as possibly effective and much less expensive measures.

LABOR SECRETARY Ray Marshall and OSHA's head, Dr. Eula Bingham, have been closed-mouthed about the White House order delaying the proposed regulation for further review.

One unidentified lesser bureaucrat fumed, though, that "the lid is on. The thing is sitting over there (at the review group) and there's nothing we can do about it."

We hope he or she is right. Workers' safety and health certainly should be protected by every practical means, but when the hazard is as unclear and the proposed solution is as inflationary as the cotton dust one is, it's time for the bureaucrats to be pulled up short.

ACCORDING TO the OSHA point of view, new equipment should be installed and other steps should be taken to prevent 284 byssinosis cases a year among cotton industry workers.

The latest OSHA plan would cost industry $625 million in start-up expenses and about $200 million per year after that. The White House Council on Wage and Price Stability did some fast calculating and decided OSHA wanted to require industry to spend $440,000 per case of the lung disease to prevent it.

OSHA's critics have complained all along

John D. Lofton:

Carter's Gotta Sync Or Swim

WASHINGTON—President Carter's de facto chief of staff, Hamilton Jordan, was asked the other day if his boss was worried about his steep decline in the public opinion polls?

Well, Jordan explained to U.S. News and World Report, his own reading of the political situation was that the problem is that Carter is an activist President, while the mood of the country is somewhat passive.

Faced with whether to adjust to the popular mood or go on and face some of the tough issues that should be faced, he said, the President chose the latter course.

"So, to that extent," Jordan observed, "it can be argued that maybe we're a little out of sync with the country."

WHEN ASKED WHAT he meant by "out of sync," Jordan replied by, ironically, giving an out-of-sync answer regarding a very important subject.

He said that Americans "want it both ways." For example, "they want us to have more weapons systems, but they want us to cut the defense budget."

But this is not so. In an interview, Pat Caddell, the pollster closest to Carter personally and head of Cambridge Research Associates, told me that his surveys show that over the last couple of years "there's been a switch from wanting to cut the defense budget to wanting to increase it."

Pointing out that this "important trend" started in late 1975 or early 1976, Caddell says that "a plurality" of the American people now favor adding to the Pentagon's budget rather than decreasing it.

Indeed, there is much evidence to back up what Caddell says.

EARLIER THIS month, the House rejected by the overwhelming margin of 313 to 98 an amendment that sought to reduce the defense budget by $4.8 billion in budget authority and $2.8 billion in outlays, and transfer this money to employment and economic development programs.

In late April, the Senate turned down by a vote of 77 to 14 an amendment by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., which would have transferred $4.6 billion in defense budget authority and $1.5 billion in outlays to certain domestic programs.

Also defeated, by a Senate vote of 70 to 21, was an amendment by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., which attempted to reduce the Pentagon's spending by $1.4 billion in budget authority.

In mid-May, the Senate Armed Services Committee voted to authorize $36.1 billion for weapons procurement and development for fiscal 1979, which is $613 million more than the Carter administration had requested.

IN A POLL OF 108,000 people, released in April, the American Security Council reported that 94 percent of those responding advocated U.S. military superiority over the Soviet Union, with 88 percent saying they were willing to spend an additional $20 billion annually to achieve this superiority.

In March of this year, a national survey by Opinion Research Corporation for the Institute of American Relations revealed that of the 48 percent of Americans who believe the United States should be militarily "superior" to the Soviets, 74 percent said they would be willing to pay higher taxes to provide up to an additional $10 billion annually to gain this "superiority."

In April 1977, the New York Times reported a national poll by Potomac Associates which showed a sharp drop—20 percent—in Ameri-

Why Prices Go Up

BANKERS RAISED their prime interest rates over the weekend. My Neighbor Twice Removed says it's funny to him that, every time interest rates are in their prime, the economy is sick and tired.

The U.S. Postal Service raised postage rates yesterday. Good timing. There was nobody around the Post Office either to hear complaints or sell stamps.

Maybe we should quit referring to the federal government as simply "the feds." Too many cities, like New York, and people are taking it literally and looking to Washington to be fed.

"I can say without fear of contradiction," says My Neighbor Twice Removed, "that in Saturday's runoff for the Democratic nomination to the state senate, it'll take a real Workman to keep the votes from coming up Short."

BESIDES THE Don Workman-E. L. Short runoff, local Democrats also will help choose Saturday between John Poerner and Jerry Sadler for a seat on the oil and gas-regulating Texas Railroad Commission.

That's pronounced "purner" as in burner and it's better than being saddled with Sadler.

Think the campaign pace is so grueling that candidates lose weight? Tain't necessarily so, says Don Workman. Despite 20-hour days, he's gained 20 pounds eating cakes and cookies baked for receptions in his honor.

Jim Reese and George Bush Jr. have the GOP ballot all to themselves Saturday to see who'll

Red Sails: Far East Shadow

TAIPEI, TAIWAN—From this vantage point in the Far East, one can see the growing red shadow being cast over the Western Pacific by the increasing military might of the Soviet Union.

In the China sea lanes between this island-nation of 17,000 and Japan, more Soviet warships than U.S. can now be seen plowing these waters—a clear sign of the changing balance of military power in the region.

The seriousness of the situation was highlighted recently in a speech given by Shin Kanemaru, Director General of Japan's Defense Agency, a position equivalent to that held by the U.S. Secretary of Defense.

Noting the continued Soviet military build-up in the Western Pacific and the continued pullback of U.S. forces, Kanemaru warned:

"Russian warships and other vessels make such frequent appearance in the Sea of Japan and the Sea of China these days that we might as well refer to these waters as the Sea of Russia."

KANEMARU STRESSED the huge disparity in Soviet and U.S.-Japanese military air strength point out that "The Soviet Union deploys more than 2,000 aircraft in the Far East while the Japan and the U.S. now have operational less than half that number."

As for the growing Soviet naval strength in the region, the information here is that the Russian's Pacific fleet is now made up of 450 warships or more than double the size of the U.S. fleet.

The Soviet fleet includes 10 cruisers (of which five carry missiles), 80 destroyers, 25 nuclear-powered submarines and 85 conventional submarines, and a wide range of other naval support vessels.

This changing balance of naval power has caused major newspapers in Tokyo and Taipei in recent days to headline articles stating leaders in both Japan and Taiwan are concerned that the U.S. now lacks the power to defend this region.

U.S. DIPLOMATS and military commanders here and in Tokyo deny this loss of U.S. power but they confirm that the Russians have been building up naval and air power in the Far East and that the U.S. has been reducing its military forces.

Should this trend continue, they agree the forecast could become a reality.

face Democrat Kent Hance for the 19th Congressional District seat in November.

Both are busy reminding independents that they can vote in the runoff if they didn't vote in either primary on May 6.

State Sen. Bill Patman proposes drilling for oil under Texas highways. This has exciting possibilities. A motorist would never have to worry about running low on oil.

At the 25th anniversary of his department, which now spends 36 cents out of every dollar in the federal budget, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr. was lavish in his praise of the department's programs.

But not nearly so lavish as the HEW budget itself.

Charles Stenholm, in the runoff for the Democratic nomination to Congress in the 17th District east of Lubbock, predicts President Carter will "come out swinging" at Big Labor like he has at lawyers and doctors.

Stenholm says that might be the one thing which could stop Carter's popularity nosedive in the 17th District.

"THE SPECIALS don't seem to be very special any more," My Sweet Wife said, laying the paper aside.

She is right. In groceries, for example, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says prices could go up "at least" 8 percent this year. Only two months ago, it predicted food price increases could be held to 6 percent in 1978.

Our house insurance premium has jumped 12 percent in the last year. Car insurance is up so dramatically that the company is too embarrassed to send a bill for more than six months at a time.

The City and School District are threatening a 50 percent boost in property taxes for those who live in Southwest Lubbock.

Social Security taxes for those who pay the maximum will go up $333 next year under current law.

YOU CAN'T BLAME inflation on the merchants. They're having a hard time making ends meet, too.

An earnings report taken at random from the Wall Street Journal shows a retailer with a net income of $284,000 on revenues of $30 million. That's a profit of less than a penny on each dollar of sales.

In the same issue, a major retailer showed quarterly sales of $142 million and a net income of $57,000. A food company did better: On sales of $108 million, it had a $3.2 million profit—3 cents on each dollar of sales.

NO, IF YOU WANT to fix the blame for inflation, you have to look to Congress and the White House.

Uncontrolled federal spending—about $9,000 a year for every family of four in America—has to be added to the price of everything we buy.

This is because the taxes we pay come out of our incomes—and our bosses have to increase prices to pay us our salaries and their own taxes. Thus, when government spending goes up, prices go up.

That's the major cause of inflation. And it is as simple as that.

Although none of the U.S. military officers stationed here will speak out publicly for fear of being fired, nearly all indicate their private disagreement with President Carter's plans for pulling out U.S. forces from South Korea.

The U.S. military is also strongly against breaking diplomatic and military ties with the Republic of Free China here, as is now being seriously considered by President Carter and his foreign policy advisers.

The new alliance between Communist China and the U.S. which Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security adviser, pushed during his visit to Peking is viewed as no answer to the growing Soviet military power, according to U.S. military officials here.

Their answer is for the U.S. to strengthen our military and diplomatic ties with Japan, Taiwan, and South Korea while gradually increasing both our naval and air power in the Western Pacific.

Sylvia Porter:

Do You Know What To Deduct In '78?

(Sixth In A Series Of Seven Columns) FOR MANY YEARS, the established rule has been that your charitable contributions are deductible in the year they are paid—and that's still the rule. But now, charging a contribution is considered payment. You can, for instance, use a bank credit card and get a deduction in the year you charge the contribution.

This means you can deduct now and pay later. You can take a deduction on your '78 return for charitable contributions you charge in '78, even if you don't pay the bank until 1979.

Caution: This is not the same as making a pledge to charity. You cannot take a deduction in the year you make the pledge, but only in the year your cash contribution redeems the pledge.

A COMPANION ruling also allows you to use your bank credit card to pay for medical expenses and receive a deduction in the year the charge is made.

Say you use a bank credit card to charge a hospital bill of $500 in December 1978, and pay the bank in February 1979. Assuming you qualify for a medical expense deduction, you must claim the $500 on your '78 return. If you don't, you will lose the deduction altogether. Keep this in mind as you pay future medical expenses.

It is vitally important from a tax strategy angle that you know now what to do about deductions for various taxes, for President Carter is proposing a crackdown on state and local tax deductions particularly.

But even if Congress accepts this, the deductions would not be eliminated until 1979. So, they're safe for '78.

TAX STRATEGY: Make 1978 a banner year for deductions for state and local taxes. If you are planning a big-ticket purchase in the near future, involving a hefty sales tax, close the deal before the end of 1978 and protect your deduction. You can only win!

Here's a quick rundown of what's deductible in '78—and Prentice-Hall's analysis to help you avoid being hurt by some of the White House's tax "reform" proposals:

(1) Taxes on your real estate (home, including co-ops and condominiums) would continue fully deductible. So would taxes on a vacation home and other real estate you own. You would not be hit.

(2) Taxes on what you earn. Any state or local income taxes you pay this year are deductible on your '78 federal tax return and these deductions would not be taken away.

ILLUSTRATIONS: state and local taxes withheld from your paycheck; estimated tax payments on your '78 income; additional taxes you paid this year when you filed your '77 state or local return.

(3) Taxes on your travel (auto, boat, plane).

You can deduct the state tax on gas (varying from 5 to 11 cents a gallon) used for personal travel. (Of course, the entire cost of gas used for business reasons is deductible.)

If you own a boat, you can deduct state gas taxes. And you get an added break: a tax credit, a direct reduction in your final tax bill of 2 cents a gallon for the federal excise tax on gas, 6 cents a gallon for the federal tax on lubricating oil.

Both the gas tax deduction and the excise tax credit may be killed. Carter would wipe out the gas tax deduction, and the energy bill in final form may wipe out the excise tax credit.

(4) TAXES ON your purchases. For '78, you can deduct state and local sales taxes. And you can either keep detailed records of the sales tax on each purchase, or you can use the easy audit-proof tables the IRS provides with your tax return instructions, spelling out the total you can deduct without question. The amount of the allowable deduction is determined by the family size and income on a state-by-state basis.

What's more, sales taxes on five specific large purchases (autos, boats, airplanes, mobile homes and construction materials for a new home) are deductible in addition to the table figures.

Most crucial to you now is the possibility that state and local tax deductions would be eliminated starting in '79, if Congress passes the White House's proposals in this area.

Tomorrow: Home sales if you are 65 or over.

Elementary Pupils' Books Added To Library

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Where can you curl up with the only edition of "The Duck Who Wanted To Go To Louisiana," or sample the latest spinoff on the childhood classic about Goldilocks?

Try the Bean Elementary School library. Listed in the card catalogue and featured on the shelves there are books written and illustrated by the students themselves.

The books were contributed by children in Bean's Title I reading program. The kids tell stories about everything from fast cars to family picnics.

Michael Tucker dedicated to his mom a book about the family dog, appropriately named "Shadow."

"Shadow is like my mother's shadow 'cause he's always following my mother around," Michael wrote. "He follows my mother all around the house, and he gets a little monotonous...for him, and my mother, too."

In a book dedicated to his teacher, second-grader Pete Garcia wrote "The Pig That Chased a Bug." As the title suggests, Pete's pig gets mad at a bug buzzing in its food and chases the insect out into the countryside. Fortunately for the pig's owner, the animal finally finds its way back to the farm.

Robert Perry picked up on the theme of "The Three Bears" and went a bit further — with a volume called "Pinkey and the Five Bears."

"One day Mother Bear cooked a steak, but it was too hot. So the Bear family went to see 'Jaws.' While they were out, a little girl named Pinkey came to their house. She was so pretty the doorknob popped right out of the door," Robert wrote.

The story line sounds familiar enough: Pinkey eats the steak, and the Bear family makes a surprise return. But in Robert's version, the bears get nasty and start attacking Pinkey — how else, but with bear hugs.

"They started hugging on her," Robert said. The happy ending comes when the Fonz appears on his motorcycle and sweeps Pinkey off her feet and away from the Bears.

A popular topic with the Bean students is football. Willie DeLaCruz was one of several children who reminisced over how their favorite team, the Dallas Cowboys, beat the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XII. Willie not only gave the play-by-play account, but illustrated nearly every formation the Cowboys used in that game.

Some of the books have deep messages. In "Tom Was Lost in the Woods," Lorenzo Gutierrez warned against kids taking the shortcut to town to run family errands.

Melissa Abriz dedicated to her brother Freddie a book about "Friends at the Movies," and how hard it is to get everybody to sit together during a double-feature.

In "My Piniata," Monica Valdez told about getting a surprise birthday present. "When I hit the piniata, I broke it and all the cupcakes and candies fell from the piniata."

Many children liked writing about animals. Angela Boling was the author of "Up In The Sky," about birds; Anthony Lopez, of "All About Whales"; and Wylie Fox, of "My Pets" — including pictures of his mice, pigeons, four cats, three dogs and turtle.

Cathy Powell dedicated to her Aunt Ruby a book titled, "The Duck Who Wanted To Go To Louisiana."

"Once upon a time, there was a duck who wanted to go to Louisiana. His name was Tim, and his mother's name was Linda. Tim wanted to go to Louisiana to see if his grandmother was hurt. They took a bus to Louisiana," Cathy wrote.

As it turned out, Tim's suspicions were right. His grandmother had hurt her arm — thanks to Tim and Linda — she got to the hospital just in time. "Tim's grandmother got well," author Cathy concluded her story.

Tim the duck might have found a faster way to Louisiana had he consulted some of the other Bean authors, like Ernest Vasquez or Jesse Cruz. Ernest (author of "About a Chopper") and Jesse ("The Hotrod Mechanic") wrote of race-car adventures. Jesse told of winning $100,000 in a race and buying a new house.

Several of the books were dedicated to the students' "publishers" — reading teachers Sandra Tappan and Jill Caldwell.

Alicia Gonzales even immortalized Mrs. Caldwell's service to Bean with "My Teacher and I." In that book, Alicia tells of Mrs. Caldwell's daily routine — how she teaches school and then feeds her dog, jugs, eats dinner and watches television with her husband.

The students' books were entered into the Bean Library last week after months in preparation. Even though school is out, children will have a chance to read them over the summer, courtesy of the school system's summer library program.

All elementary school libraries will be kept open for a few days a week from June 8 through Aug. 11. Students should contact their schools for specific schedules.

George Gives Short Support In State Senate Seat Runoff

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Jesse George, unsuccessful Democratic candidate in the 28th state senatorial district race, threw his support Monday to state senate candidate E.L. Short in his runoff bid against Don Workman.

Voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide whether Short or Workman will be the Democratic candidate to face Republican Joe Robbins in the November general election.

Workman, a Texas Tech regent and former Lubbock banker, led the original field of five state senate candidates in the May 6 primary, receiving slightly more than 17,000 votes or 31 percent of the total votes cast. Short, a 52-year-old farmer and rancher and former state representative from Tahoka, received almost 11,000 votes.

George, who came in fourth, said in a Monday morning press conference he was urging his near 7,000 supporters "to cast their votes and their influence to E.L. Short this Saturday."

George said he felt Short "possessed a high degree of honesty, decency and sense of fair play."

"I especially appreciate his experience in the legislative process and his willingness to listen to all people and all viewpoints," George said.

Although he did not mention Workman by name, George was sharply critical of the Tech regent, saying "I cannot support an individual who twice publicly made the statement that Texas Tech is currently over-funded."

"I have to ask myself what influence will a state senator have in securing funds for a medical school both in Lubbock and in Odessa who has publicly expressed his own feeling that Texas Tech is over-funded," George said.

He also censured Workman for his stand on tenure for Tech professors. "I cannot support a candidate for state senator who is so strongly opposed to tenure at Texas Tech and institutions of higher learning," George said.

"This position can only lead to a tremendous loss of qualified and dedicated professors and would provide absolutely no incentive for newer and younger faculty members."

"My candidate, E.L. Short, has sought the advice of faculty representatives and has shown a warm and compassionate feeling for all aspects and improvements of public education and higher education," George continued.

"I feel that E.L. Short with his eight years of legislative experience and his unquestionable sincerity deserves the support of the 28th district in the June 3 runoff."

George reiterated a charge he had made about Workman earlier in the campaign, saying Workman and his wife were trying to establish "a king and queen domination with a feudal hierarchy for a selected feudal lord system."

Citizens Chase Roaming Deer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A parade of police, children on bicycles and shouting neighborhood residents chased a lost deer Monday through the historic Heritage Hill section of town.

The deer finally was tranquilized and collapsed in a fire station. It died later at the humane society office after being given a second shot of tranquilizer.

Police said they had no idea where the animal came from. Residents of the neighborhood called police after the deer appeared in a backyard.

With about 100 people watching, a Kent County animal control officer fired one tranquilizer dart into the animal, which then bolted and ran in and out of the open doors of several homes.

Catholic Church Installs Flores As Bishop Of El Paso Diocese

EL PASO (AP) — The son of a Ganado farmworker who was the first Mexican-American bishop in the Roman Catholic Church was installed Monday night as bishop of the Diocese of El Paso.

Thousands packed the El Paso Civic Center as Bishop Patrick Fernandez Flores was installed as the spiritual leader of the 250,000 Catholics who live in the 50,000-square-mile diocese that includes 18 counties in Texas and New Mexico.

Flores was named auxiliary bishop to Archbishop Francis J. Furey of the San Antonio Diocese in 1970, making him the first Mexican-American to attain the post.

About two thousand persons attended ceremonies earlier Monday at St. Patrick's Cathedral where Flores presented his credentials to retiring Bishop Sidney M. Metzger and received the keys to the cathedral.

More than 30 other bishops from the U.S. and Mexico, as well as civic officials, leaders from other churches and representatives of the Diocese of El Paso also attended.

Flores, 48, attended St. Mary's Seminary in Houston and was ordained to the priesthood in the Diocese of Galveston-Houston in 1956. In Houston, he served as pastor and director of the Cursillo Movement and the Diocesan Committee for the Spanish-speaking.

He has been a strong supporter of projects of Mexican-American Catholics and has served as spokesman for all Spanish-speaking Catholics. In an address in the nation's capital last year, Flores urged Hispanic Catholics to unite in efforts to win representation in society and in the church.

Flores said he believes his appointment in El Paso has given Spanish-speaking Catholics confidence and hope.

"Before, I used to hear them say they wondered if the church really cared about them. I don't hear that anymore," he said.

"There are eight of us now," he said, referring to the number of Hispanic bishops appointed since 1970. "and the non-Hispanic bishops have given us outstanding support. I believe it was providential that I was appointed at that time."

In San Antonio, Flores stressed that he was "bishop for everyone, but especially those who need my service."

As the son of a farmworker, the bishop worked for justice for migrant workers and the compassionate treatment of undocumented Mexican workers.

"As teacher and mother, the church wants all of her children treated with justice and afforded the dignity befitting all sons of God," Flores has said. "The church should not be afraid to speak up in behalf of the poor and oppressed, no matter who they are."

"I think I have a special sensitivity to the poor because not only was I poor as a child, but I still am," he said.

"While the salvation of souls is our main concern," he said, "in the final analysis, it is not our exclusive concern."

Bell Hearings To Resume

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for a $220.3 million rate increase goes into its second week of hearings before the Texas Public Utility Commission today.

The hearings recessed last Friday until 2 p.m. today.

Gordon Price of St. Louis, the company's private-line witness, was placed on the stand Friday for his third session of cross examination on proposed pricing of private-line services.

The company said its next witness would be Warren Meyer, St. Louis, who did the cost study associated with Price's tariff proposal, and Jon Loehman, St. Louis, who did other cost studies.

The final company witness was scheduled to be Joe McDonald, Dallas, the Texas rate and tariff administrator, who will be cross examined on his rate design proposal.

After completion of cross examination of Southwestern Bell witnesses, the utility commission staff witnesses will begin taking the stand for cross examination.

The hearings are expected to last at least another week.

Former Strangler Suspect Has Troubled Life

By VIRGINIA L. TYSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since that morning in February when he was arrested for questioning in the Hillside Strangler murder case, actor Ned York says he has been shunned by a friend, dropped by his agent, and forced to go on unemployment.

He says he has been followed, stared at and whispered about. And he says he has been approached by people on the street who say, "Aren't you the nut who...?"

"Being an actor I always wanted to be famous," York, 33, said recently in the first interview since his arrest and release. "I never wanted to be infamous. God knows it wasn't a publicity stunt. Who the hell would want that kind of publicity?"

Police still have not caught the strangler, although they are questioning a former convict, now being held in a federal prison in San Diego, in two of the killings.

York said people believe he was released not because he was innocent, but because police did not have enough evidence to file charges.

"People look at me with hate," he said. "And it blows me away. Maybe if they catch the strangler, it will stop. There's one thing I really dread — what if they never catch the guy?"

York said that for the first time in eight years he is unemployed. He was earning about $900 a day for his acting jobs, but now must live on $104 weekly unemployment benefits. As a result, he will have to give up the $475-a-month Hollywood Hills home he has been renting for three years, and so far two apartment rental applications have been rejected.

He said one friend, a playwright whom he declined to identify, asked a mutual friend to deliver a message: "He told him to tell me to get out of town and get a farm in Peoria."

"The Lord will forgive you, but the public won't," was the warning he said he received from another friend, singer Pat Boone.

"Frankly I don't know what to do. I'm fighting for my life," York said. York's arrest came the day after Los Angeles police released part of a six-page handwritten letter purportedly sent by the Hillside Strangler in January to Mayor Tom Bradley, a letter police say York did not write.

The night before his arrest, York said, he was smoking PCP — angel dust — and talking with a friend who had been questioned by police after with the murder of Kristina Weckler, the strangler's seventh victim, because the friend's name had appeared in Miss Weckler's diary.

"I know it's my fault," York said. "You're sitting in your own living room smoking angel dust and you think the worst that could happen would be this stuff could kill you."

"The most important thing I can say is a warning about angel dust," he said, adding later, "I'll never smoke again, unless someone ties me down and forces me to."

According to York, his friend, whom he did not identify, told him of the questioning he had undergone about Miss Weckler's death.

At the time, the actor was depressed because his marriage of two years had broken up, by mutual agreement, three weeks earlier, York said.

He doesn't know exactly why he picked up the phone that morning, but he did and called the police.

"He made certain statements that provided investigators enough cause to make the arrest," Daryl F. Gates, then assistant police chief, told a news conference after the arrest.

"I don't know what I said to the police that morning," York says now.

"Those three days in jail were hell. There was a point where I was going to kill myself. I was trying to figure out how to do it. I was so freaked out," he said.

He said he was in a part of a cellblock where he could hear, but not see, the other prisoners. "There were people yelling foul things at me. I was the talk of the jail," he said.

He said the police took teeth impressions and other physical tests. "They cut hair off every part of my body. There were saliva tests, blood tests, fingernail samples."

York said he underwent a polygraph test during which he was shown police photos of each of the strangler victims and asked, "Did you do this?" As a result of his arrest, he was charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana. He pleaded guilty and was fined $105 last week.

The only jobs he has had since the arrest were an offscreen "looping" — putting his voice on film offscreen — and a part in "This Is The Life," a Lutheran Church program.

An album and musical called "Morningstar," which he has been working on for four years with Pat Boone, Debbie Boone and several others, is scheduled for next Christmas.

And actor Martin Sheen, a close friend, has cast him in a movie called "Clyde," which is to be filmed sometime next fall.

"But those things are six months away," York said. "If I can get through the next months..."

York says he is not at all angry with the police. "They were very nice to me. The (Hillside Strangler) task force treated me very well. If anything, they were overly kind to me," he recalled.

He is more upset about the news coverage of the arrest.

"The media really chewed me up and spit me out," he said. "I didn't strangle anyone."

"The reaction really hurts. I'm not a violent person. They made it look and sound like I'm a terrible weirdo," he said.

Mayor Blames Foes For Weakening City

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Dennis A. Kucinich, shrouding off the threat of a recall election, has lashed out at opponents for allegedly weakening the city and making Cleveland a national joke again.

"My administration has not hurt Cleveland," Kucinich said Monday. "It has consistently worked to improve the city and its neighborhoods, but the recall is hurting Cleveland and is returning Cleveland to a mockery it has known under other administrations."

The 31-year-old Democrat dismissed reporters to his office after the Recall Committee to Save Cleveland moved a step closer to forcing a recall election and Kucinich appointments ran into trouble with City Council President George Forbes.

Forbes said several appointments to key positions would not be stated "with the specter of the recall hanging over them."

The decision was revealed as leaders of the recall group filed an additional 7,000 signatures on petitions seeking to oust Kucinich.

The committee needed only 3,335 valid signatures to force either Kucinich's resignation or a recall election.

But Kucinich said even if all the new signatures were certified as valid, they would not be enough to overcome earlier certified signatures that he challenged for alleged irregularities.

The recall drive was sparked by Kucinich's dismissal of Police Chief Richard D. Hongisto on March 24 and allegations of mismanagement.

The recall group submitted its first petitions April 29, with 47,537 signatures.

But City Council Clerk Mercedes Cotner invalidated about one out of every four of the signatures, leaving the organization short of the required 37,552 valid signatures. The drive's backers were automatically given an additional 20 days to come up with the necessary signatures and filed the additional petitions Sunday night.

Mrs. Cotner has 10 days to check the final petitions. If she certifies there are enough valid signatures, the city charter provides that if the mayor does not step down, a recall election must be scheduled within 60 to 90 days.

Kucinich has said he will not resign. He also said he will appeal a May 13 ruling by Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge John L. Angelotta that any registered Cleveland voter could validly sign a recall petition. The mayor maintains a citizen must have voted in the last mayoral election to validly sign a recall petition.

Kucinich said it was wrong for Forbes to threaten to withhold important appointments because of the recall drive.

"To this point, I'm stating that there will be no recall, because it is illegal, it is fraudulent and it is morally wrong," Kucinich said. "Ninety-three thousand people voted for me to clean up City Hall... The recallers are attacking me for doing the very job people put me here to do."

Auto Lands Atop Eatery

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Roy's Restaurant was closed for the Memorial Day holiday when Jasper Harrington and his family dropped in.

Harrington, his wife Aretha, and their four children escaped serious injury Monday when their car plowed through the brick wall of a garage and landed on the roof of the restaurant.

Police said Harrington was backing out of the driveway of a friend's house when he hit a parked car across the street.

Panicking, he put the car in forward and drove back up the driveway into the garage and through its rear wall.

"Bricks flew 100 feet from the point of impact," a police spokesman said. "The car landed on the roof of Roy's Restaurant, just over the boiler room. He must have been moving pretty fast."

The officer said the garage is on an embankment and its floor is a couple feet higher than roof of the one-story restaurant.

The Harringtons were all treated and released at Jersey City Medical Center. No charges were immediately filed.

Enraged Parent Attacks School Superintendent

BUCHANAN, Ga. (AP) — Frank Lowman, charged with assaulting the county school superintendent at baccalaureate services, said he did what "any father would have done" when he found out his daughter would not graduate from high school.

Lowman, released on $40,000 bond from the Haralson County Jail on Monday, was accused of attacking County School Superintendent Bob Watson during graduation-related church ceremonies Sunday.

He said he had spent about $2,000 on cards, invitations, cap and gown, senior ring and graduation gifts for his 17-year-old daughter, Debra.

Wayne Brown of the sheriff's office said Lowman, head mechanic in a shop he owns in Buchanan, was charged with two counts of making terroristic threats, two counts of aggravated assault and one count of creating a public disturbance.

Lowman said he had made an agreement with the school principal that his daughter could sit with her class during the baccalaureate services and was trying to work out a way for her to graduate before the ceremonies Friday.

As the school superintendent walked past him Sunday, Lowman said: "I told him, 'Bob, I put Debbie a chair out there.' He said, 'Your damned youngin' is not sitting out there.' And I done what any other father would have done. I whupped him."

"We went round and round a few times, then the kids got in it and stopped it," he said.

Witnesses said Watson was speaking to seniors in the high school gym when Lowman, 38, began punching him. They said Watson, who declined to comment on the incident, apparently suffered facial cuts.

Debra Lowman failed her final civics examination by nine points and had been told she would be unable to graduate with the rest of her 122 classmates, according to her uncle, Mark Lowman.

He said the board had allowed re-examinations in the past, but changed the regulations about two years ago.

"I guess she could have gone to summer school, but her father had already spent two or three thousand dollars on presents for her," Mark Lowman said.

People who start each day from scratch might consider the merits of showering more often.

Zaire Conflict Shows Dependency By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The invasion of Zaire is serving as a reminder of the degree of U.S. dependence on fragile

Analysis

Third World governments for key mineral and other basic resources.

There had been concern in the West over recent reports of massive Soviet cobalt purchases and a reported link to the invasion of Zaire's mineral-rich Shaba province.

State Department officials said there was no relation between the two developments, noting that Western companies, including American firms, also were buying cobalt in anticipation of higher prices.

But the episode emphasized the degree to which economic problems and political turmoil in Third World nations such as Zaire, source for almost half of the U.S. imports of cobalt, have a direct effect on the American industrial machinery.

The United States imports 97 percent of its cobalt, which is used to make super-alloy metals in the manufacture of magnets.

Cobalt is included in a list of 18 key mineral and other basic materials which the United States must import.

In terms of its effect on U.S. foreign trade, however, the most dramatic case of American economic dependence on foreign sources is petroleum. The United States is now importing 42 percent of its oil.

According to a new State Department report on "The Trade Debate," the value of U.S. oil imports has risen from $4 billion in 1972 to $42 billion in 1977.

Thus, oil imports almost singlehandedly contributed the bulk of the $26.6 billion U.S. foreign trade in 1977, when the United States exported $120.2 billion worth of goods and imported $146.8 billion.

In 1977, the report showed, the United States' main trading partners were Canada, Japan, West Germany, the United Kingdom, Mexico, Saudi Arabia and Nigeria. The latter two countries are the nation's main foreign oil sources.

The other 16 minerals and basic resources that the United States must import are (percentage of dependence and main foreign sources in parenthesis):

Slain Escapee Burial Eyed

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Officials say they may go ahead and bury the body of one of the two state prison escapees killed along with three Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers last week if it is not claimed today.

The remains of Michael Lancaster, 25, were taken to a funeral home here, but state prison officials say the inmate's family members have not contacted them about burial arrangements.

Oklahoma State Penitentiary Deputy Warden Bill Arends said if Lancaster's body is not claimed by Tuesday, it will be given a simple state funeral and buried inside the walls of the prison in McAlester.

Lancaster's father reportedly lives in Oklahoma City. His mother, contacted at her home in Kansas, reportedly told officials she didn't want anything to do with her son.

Lancaster's fellow escapee, Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, was buried Sunday in his hometown of Bristow.

The men used an abandoned utility service tunnel to flee the penitentiary on April 23. They were suspects in a 1,000-mile crime spree that wound through Alabama and Texas before ending in Caddo on Friday.

They were blamed for the slaying of four persons in Texas and one in Alabama before they were gunned down in a shootout with officers in Caddo, Okla.

USDA Cites Slow Rise In Retail Bread Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail bread prices are edging up again, along with most other food costs, but as in the past most of the bread increase can be traced to rising middleman costs for making flour, baking and selling the familiar loaf.

The Agriculture Department says that in March, when a one-pound loaf of white bread cost an average of 36.2 cents in stores, the farm value of wheat used to make it was 3.1 cents.

According to department records, the March price of a loaf of bread was the highest for a single month in three years. A new report, being issued later this week by the Labor Department, will then be used by USDA to examine what happened to bread prices in April.

Wheat prices have risen appreciably since their low marks of last fall, but the history of bread prices shows that rising middleman costs for turning grain into the finished loaves have played a much more important role.

According to information provided by staff people in the office of Henry T. Badger, who is an expert on food marketing costs and prices in USDA, retail bread prices since 1971 have risen about 46 percent while the farm value of wheat used to make bread has gone up 19 percent.

Here are annual average figures provided by USDA illustrating what has happened:

In 1971, a one-pound loaf of white bread cost consumers an average of 24.8 cents a loaf. It contained 2.6 cents worth of wheat, based on its farm value. The national average price of all wheat — regardless of type or quality — was $1.34 a bushel in 1971.

The cost of bread in 1972 declined slightly as middlemen tightened their margins to 24.7 cents, while the farm value of wheat in a loaf rose to 2.9 cents. The average farm price of wheat that year was $1.76 a bushel.

It was in 1972 that grain exports, triggered by large sales to the Soviet Union and other countries, began soaring. This helped push wheat prices up rapidly, beginning an unprecedented three years of high prices for farmers.

Bread prices rose in 1973 to an average for the entire year to 27.6 cents, including 4.1 cents worth of wheat. The annual farm price of wheat soared to $3.95 a bushel.

Still superheated by demand and diminished U.S. reserves, wheat prices continued to climb for a while, reaching a monthly record high of $5.52 a bushel nationally in February 1974.

For all of 1974, bread prices rose further to an average of 34.5 cents a loaf containing about 5.4 cents worth of wheat. The farm price of wheat from the 1974 crop was $4.09 a bushel, a record that still stands.

Wheat prices, although rising and falling intermittently, began a downward trend after the peak was reached in early 1974. But the bread price spiral was not yet ended.

In 1975, retail bread prices rose to a record annual average of 36 cents a loaf, including 4.5 cents of wheat. The average farm price was $3.56 a bushel for that year's crop.

Bread prices began leveling off but in all of 1976 dropped only seven-tenths of a penny from the record of the previous year, averaging 35.3 cents. The wheat value, however, was 3.8 cents in each loaf and the average farm price was $2.73 a bushel.

Last year the retail price of bread rose slightly again to an average of 35.5 cents a loaf. But the wheat used to make the 1977 loaf of bread was worth only 2.7 cents as the farm price of wheat dropped to $2.31 a bushel.

The March loaf of bread costing 36.2 cents a loaf is the highest since it was the same price in May 1975. At that time, however, there was 4.1 cents worth of wheat in a loaf and farmers got $3.47 a bushel.

In March of this year, when there was 3.0 cents worth of wheat in a loaf of bread, the national average farm price of wheat was $2.67 a bushel, according to USDA records.

Whistleblowers Due Protection From Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bureaucrats who blow the whistle privately about non-criminal wrongdoing by their bosses would be given job protection under an expanded version of the Carter administration's civil service bill.

The pending civil service legislation, which President Carter proposed in March, has been criticized in Congress for failing to provide more protection to whistleblowers.

As a result, the administration has agreed to expand the protection in the bill now being studied in Congress. Carter's original proposal called for protections against firing, demotion or transfer for civil servants who go to the news media or Congress to allege criminal acts or rule violations by their colleagues or bosses.

The expanded protection for dissident bureaucrats would require that the beefs be made confidentially and within the government.

In another step, the Carter administration intends to push for the creation of strong inspector-general offices inside federal agencies to investigate the substance of complaints by whistleblowers and others. One version of the bill already has passed the House.

The new investigative arms would be in addition to a new special counsel proposed to investigate personnel grievances, including those by employees who say they are being punished for disclosing illegal activities.

The White House is continuing to negotiate with congressional critics of the plan, some of whom want to protect those who make allegations of non-criminal improprieties to Congress and to the press.

Senate aides, who asked not to be identified, continue to object to a provision in Carter's plan that would allow a president to lift whistleblower protections from any employees he determines are part of the intelligence community.

"We've heard that national security argument before," a Senate staffer said.

And the White House remains opposed to granting ironclad immunity against discipline for civil servants who campaign publicly against the policies of their superiors or who make public allegations about matters which they feel are improper but not necessarily illegal.

White House domestic policy aide Simon Lazarus III said an agreement might be reached this week that would avert a Senate fight over the whistleblower issue, which has emerged as one of the most controversial aspects of the civil service plan.

Apples May Be Aided By Calcium

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Calcium may be as good for apples as it is for teeth.

Washington's apple industry may be able to save $5 million to $7 million a year by increasing the calcium in Golden Delicious apples, say researchers at Washington State University.

In laboratory experiments, apples injected with calcium exhibited greatly increased storage and handling qualities, said Dr. B.W. Poovaiah, a plant physiologist in the College of Agriculture Research Center.

Poovaiah has also found that apples injected with calcium did not bruise as easily and did not develop bitter-pit, a disorder that makes apples unmarketable.

Ron Tukey, an extension horticulturist at the school, estimated that prolonging storage life by calcium infusion could add up to $7 million a year to the value of Washington's Golden Delicious crop.

He said consumers pay a premium price for Golden Delicious when they are marketed in an orderly manner over a long period, but when growers are forced to sell them rapidly to prevent softening in storage, prices fall.

Dr. Max E. Patterson, a WSU post-harvest physiologist working with Poovaiah on the project, said Golden Delicious apples have about 19 pounds of internal pressure per square inch when harvested. This pressure makes the apple firm and crisp.

Apples lose some of this pressure in storage, he said.

Tukey said consumers will accept apples until the pressure falls below 12 pounds per square inch. Then they are too mealy, he said.

Poovaiah more than doubled the calcium content of the apples and stored them for six months.

When he took them out of storage, they had lost less than a pound of pressure and were still crisp, he said.

Untreated apples dropped seven pounds of pressure during the six month period, he added.

Poovaiah said food safety would be no problem since all apples already contain calcium and it is approved by the government for food addition. It is also cheap, he noted.

"If we can hold apples to a drop of only three or four pounds pressure, it will be of great benefit to the industry," he said.

And, Poovaiah added, consumers will be able to eat fresher, crisper apples for about two months longer than they can now.

Experts Doubt Beef Boycott

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price of beef is continuing to soar, but experts don't believe there will be any organized national boycott in response because little was accomplished during a 1973 don't-buy-beef campaign.

The Agriculture Department predicts retail choice beef prices will increase 16 to 20 percent this year, and consumer leaders are telling shoppers to cut costs by changing their diets and shopping for specials.

Kathleen O'Reilly, executive director of Consumer Federation of America, says, "The lesson learned in 1973 was that a boycott hurt most the people who were not responsible — family farms and producers."

C.W. McMillan, vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association, agrees with her that most consumer advocates would say beef boycotts are counterproductive.

The basis of the cattle price cycle is simply that it takes cattle longer to mature than other animals, so decisions made by ranchers and farmers have long-term implications.

American Ship Rescues 13 Vietnamese

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The nuclear-powered American aircraft carrier Enterprise plucked 13 Vietnamese refugees off a sinking boat in what may be the first such rescue by a U.S. Navy vessel, a Navy spokesman said today.

The refugees — two women, five children and six men — were transferred at sea from the giant carrier to the escort destroyer Hull. The Hull is ferrying them to the Subic Naval Base, 50 miles northwest of Manila, base spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Michael Sherman said.

Sherman spotted the crew of an Enterprise helicopter spotted a signal fire Monday night about 700 miles west of Subic Bay. It had been set by the refugees on their 20-foot wooden boat.

"Their boat reportedly was taking on water rapidly and sinking" as the Vietnamese debarked and boarded the Enterprise, which had been brought alongside, Sherman said.

Sources in Hong Kong said it was the first rescue of refugees by an American naval vessel since Communist-led forces took over Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in the spring of 1975.

Thousands of refugees have fled the Communist-ruled nations in the three years since the war, many risking their lives in seaborne escapes on tiny vessels. Many have gone on to live in the United States.

Ten days ago, 35 Vietnamese refugees arrived at the Subic base aboard a U.S. flag oil tanker that picked them up while transporting oil to the base. They were turned over to the Philippine government and the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, which are coordinating care for the hundreds of refugees who have made it to the Philippines.

Sherman said the 13 new arrivals also would be turned over to local authorities.

Slowing Of Cattle Slaughter Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavy cattle slaughter in Australia and New Zealand because of drought forcing producers to liquidate herds has abated somewhat but the industry still is not on its way to full recovery, according to the Agriculture Department.

Beef exports to some "non-traditional markets" have not developed as had been anticipated "and this may cause price recovery to be delayed further," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a report today.

President Declares Major Disasters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has declared major disasters for Wyoming and Montana, which were hit by severe storms and flooding in mid-May, the White House announced today.

The declarations make federal funds available for a variety of relief efforts, including assistance to those temporarily unemployed because of the disaster.

Federal money also will be available for temporary housing, clearing debris, repairing streets, roads and bridges, and making low-interest loans to small businesses and homeowners hit by the disaster.

Brawl Erupts In Prison Workhouse

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two prisoners with knives triggered a brawl at the Metropolitan Workhouse that left 37 prisoners and two guards injured, a sheriff's deputy said.

The brawl erupted Monday evening in a television room when the two inmates started fighting over money, said Chief Deputy H.B. "Buck" McPherson of the Metropolitan Nashville sheriff's office. Another inmate attempting to break up the fight was stabbed, he said.

McPherson said one knife was stolen from the workhouse kitchen and the other was a pocket knife. He said he did not know how the inmates got the weapons.

An official at Metropolitan General Hospital said 20 people were treated and released, while three were admitted in satisfactory condition. Hubbard Hospital said 16 were treated there and none admitted.

Authorities said 210 inmates were in the brick two-story workhouse, which houses prisoners already tried and sentenced.

McPherson was unable to give details of the melee or how many guards were involved in quelling the disturbance. Police Chief Joe Casey said about 50 officers were summoned to help restore order.

Police blocked off surrounding streets in the residential east Nashville neighborhood as residents rushed to the lawns of nearby apartment buildings to watch.

After bottles were hurled onto the workhouse's front steps, helmeted police officers carrying riot sticks charged across the street to clear away the on-lookers.

Unemployment Forced To Take Back Seat To Inflation Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Which is the greater national problem: unemployment or inflation?

Several recent polls show the public now regards inflation as the foremost economic worry.

While not downgrading efforts to reduce unemployment, President Carter has increased the priority given to fighting inflation. In April he announced an anti-inflation program and named former Democratic Party Chairman Robert Strauss as special counselor to seek the cooperation of labor and business.

In May, the president scaled back his 1979 tax cut proposal to Congress from $25 billion to $19.4 billion because, as a White House statement put it, "the problem of inflation has worsened" while "unemployment has fallen more than anyone expected."

But Leon Keyserling, a Washington economist since 1933 and chairman of Harry Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, says it is a great mistake to shift the emphasis back and forth between these two problems.

"One month we say that unemployment is the top priority problem," he testified in a recent hearing of the Senate Banking Committee, "and the next month we say that it is inflation."

"The big issue," he said, "is not the relative weight to be attached to inflation and unemployment. I regard this as asking which is more important — for a man to keep his liver or to keep his heart."

Keyserling urged Congress not to jump to the conclusion that inflation is more important politically because it affects everyone, while only 6 million Americans are unemployed.

The unemployment rate hurts the whole nation, Keyserling argued, because it is "an index of the performance of the whole economy." Because of it, he said, the country has lost $5 trillion in production and more than $1 trillion in public revenues during the last quarter century.

Keyserling is one of the architects of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, recently passed by the House and pending in the Senate, which would set a national goal to reduce the unemployment rate from its recent 6 percent to 4 percent by 1983.

Many opponents of the bill, such as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, say economic policies to reach such a low unemployment would be highly inflationary.

Keyserling denies the nation faces such a "trade-off," arguing that in the past inflation has been lowest when the utilization of human and other production resources has been highest.

Administration economists say the 6-percent unemployment goal could be reached provided steps are taken to train the hard-core unemployed for jobs.

All these groups appear to agree, however, that unemployment and inflation are two sides of the same problem and must be attacked together.

Arkansas, NC To Conduct Primaries

By ELIZABETH WHARTON
United Press International Writer

It's a three-way liberal battle in today's Democratic primary in Arkansas, and in North Carolina two Democrats are in a hard-fought runoff for the right to challenge conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Three Arkansas voters with fairly liberal voting records — Gov. David Pryor and Reps. Jim Guy Tucker and Ray Thornton — are involved in a hot race for the Senate seat held for 35 years by the late conservative Sen. John McClellan.

A fourth candidate, political novice A.C. Grigson, is not considered a factor in the outcome, but there will be a runoff if there is no majority today.

The winner will face token Republican opposition in November.

A good weather forecast and considerable voter interest prompted election officials to predict an unusually high 60-percent voter turnout. Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. local time.

Arkansans also will be voting in the Democratic primary to replace Pryor as governor and Tucker and Thornton as congressmen.

Attorney General Bill Clinton, 31, who has raised more money than his four opponents combined, is seeking to become the youngest governor of Arkansas since 1849.

His opponents are lawyers Joe Woodward of Magnolia and Frank Lady of Jonesboro, former county judge Randall Mathis of Arkadelphia and retired turkey farmer Frank Schwarzklose of Kingsland.

The Democratic nominee will face Republican state chairman Lynn Lowe of Texarkana in November.

In North Carolina, Democrats Luther Hodges Jr. and John Ingram are in a runoff battle for the right to take on Helms in the fall.

In election-eve trips across the state

Hodges, a former banker and the son of the Kennedy administration's commerce secretary, and Ingram, the state's insurance commissioner for the past five years, claimed confidence of winning a majority of the state's 1.7 million Democrats.

Helms, who has emerged as a national conservative voice in his first term, had no primary opposition. Democrats have targeted Helms for removal but concede the fall race will be difficult.

About 38 percent of the Democrats voted May 2 in the eight-way primary that saw Hodges get 40 percent of the votes to Ingram's 26 percent.

No candidate in a major statewide race in North Carolina in the past 60 years has won a runoff after trailing by more than 10 points in the primary.

Ingram, whose campaign spent less than $50,000, compared to the nearly $1 million laid out by Hodges, predicted his victory margin would increase with a large turnout. Hodges also said he preferred a large turnout.

"The banks have their lobbyists in the U.S. Senate, the insurance companies have their lobbyists in the U.S. Senate, the oil companies have their lobbyists in the U.S. Senate," said Ingram. "The people need a people's man in the U.S. Senate."

Sadat Puts Limit On Peace Effort

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat declared today he is giving his peace initiative with Israel another two months to prove itself a success or failure.

If his overtures to Israel fail to bring a settlement, Sadat said, "it's not the end of the world. Let us try another way, let us try another system."

But, speaking at a news conference at his Nile-side villa, he hinted that if the peace process proves fruitless, he might not agree to renew the disengagement of forces pact with Israel in the Sinai Desert. The agreement expires in October.

He indicated he might reach a decision by the time Egypt celebrates the 26th anniversary of its revolution in July. "I hope on the next 23rd of July there will be a surprise," he said.

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, the Foreign Ministry said Washington has promised it will propose that the conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers in Washington adopt a statement on the Middle East "phrased in general terms."

The promise, passed on Tuesday by the U.S. charge d'affaires in Israel, Richard Veits, signaled a victory for Israeli diplomats who lobbied hard in Washington and other NATO capitals to soften an earlier strongly worded draft backing President Carter's Mideast policy.

Reliable reports said the new proposed statement would drop references to the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians and a call for Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab territory "on all three fronts."

Veits told the Foreign Ministry's director-general, Ephraim Evron, the U.S. draft would be "limited to a call on the parties to continue to negotiate for the achievement of a just and lasting peace," the statement said.

Veits said, however, the final version had not been drafted or presented to the NATO conference for approval.

Anticipating a tough stand, the ministry issued a statement Monday saying Israel would be "very surprised" by a one-sided declaration.

Vague as it was, Sadat's two-month limit was the first time he had set a deadline for the initiative he began six months ago with his dramatic visit to Jerusalem.

"The momentum of the peace process now is slackening," he told reporters. "But it has not stopped. For now there is a stalemate of sorts. It is not frozen but going in slow motion."

If Israel had new suggestions, he said, Egypt would listen to them and reciprocate with new elements. "We will be open-hearted and open-minded to receive these new elements and start direct negotiations," Sadat said.

But he added: "I think in those two months we shall reach a result — either the peace process gains momentum again, or it proves to be a failure."

He reminded reporters that October "is not only the renewal of the United Nations mandate (to maintain U.N. forces in the truce zone). It is much deeper than that. The second disengagement agreement with Israel expires in October. Do you get me? I have described this as the big test."

Africa Due American, French Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing have agreed to help African nations protect themselves against outside aggression if the African states enter into joint defense arrangements, French diplomatic sources said today.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, also said Carter has expressed interest in Giscard's proposal for a European conference on conventional disarmament.

The effect of the Carter-Giscard agreement is difficult to gauge because African nations thus far have shown little enthusiasm for entering into any joint defense arrangement. Such an arrangement was proposed at last week's meeting of French-speaking African leaders in Paris, but it died for lack of support.

French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud says the U.S.-French agreement would help African nations protect themselves against "destabilizing external forces."

Guiringaud was quoted by the Washington Post today as saying: "We agreed...that if the African states put together some operative arrangement to defend themselves against those destabilizing, external influences, we will help them and back them."

France has already shown its "willingness to back those African states who are willing to defend themselves," Guiringaud was quoted as saying, especially referring to the parachute drop by French legionnaires on the copper-mining center of Kolwezi in Zaire.

He said Carter "has shown a willingness to do the same — as much as present congressional legislation permits. He also has indicated his intention to get from Congress more flexibility."

Meanwhile, the French diplomatic sources said the good personal relations between Carter and Giscard, who dined privately here last week, have produced the best climate in U.S.-French relations in the past 10 years.

But they acknowledged that the United States is still not willing to consider two proposals put forward by Giscard at the United Nations last week.

One called for the establishment of a new world disarmament body which would replace the 18-nation Geneva group.

Another would directly link the cost of arms with the cost of financing development in the Third World, although Giscard chose not to mention the special "tax on over-armed nations" which he had proposed before the UN conference.

Another would directly link the cost of arms with the cost of financing development in the Third World, although Giscard chose not to mention the special "tax on over-armed nations" which he had proposed before the UN conference.

France has already shown its "willingness to back those African states who are willing to defend themselves," Guiringaud was quoted as saying, especially referring to the parachute drop by French legionnaires on the copper-mining center of Kolwezi in Zaire.

He said Carter "has shown a willingness to do the same — as much as present congressional legislation permits. He also has indicated his intention to get from Congress more flexibility."

Meanwhile, the French diplomatic sources said the good personal relations between Carter and Giscard, who dined privately here last week, have produced the best climate in U.S.-French relations in the past 10 years.

But they acknowledged that the United States is still not willing to consider two proposals put forward by Giscard at the United Nations last week.

One called for the establishment of a new world disarmament body which would replace the 18-nation Geneva group.

Judge Revokes Frank Walus' Citizenship

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge ruled today that Frank Walus lied to immigration officials by concealing a hidden past as a Gestapo killer during World War II.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman of U.S. District Court revoked Walus' citizenship, saying the evidence was "clear, convincing and unequivocal" that the retired Chicago laborer lied to authorities about his past.

Hoffman's ruling in the civil case opens the road for Walus' possible deportation.

The government argued during the civil trial that Walus was a Gestapo agent who killed at least 13 Jews during the war.

Walus, 55, insisted that he never had been a member of the Gestapo and had spent the war years working on farms in Germany.

During a three-week civil trial in March and April, 11 witnesses identified Walus as the man they saw help liquidate Jewish ghettos in Poland from 1939 to 1944.

Defense attorney Robert Korenkiewicz countered with four German citizens who testified that they employed Walus as a farm laborer during World War II. He also introduced into evidence certified German health insurance records listing a Franz Walus as a farm laborer who worked for the four German farmers during the war years.

Korenkiewicz noted that the government did not present one document showing that Walus was ever a member of the German armed forces.

Government attorneys claimed the health insurance documents were fakes, saying that many Gestapo agents forged documents at the end of the war to provide themselves with alibis.

They also challenged the credibility of the German farmers, saying they were relatives of people who were Nazi Party members during the war.

HEW Official Delays Trip To Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., announced today he is postponing a visit to the Soviet Union in a protest of Soviet treatment of physicist Uri F. Orlov and other dissidents.

Last Saturday it was learned that the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare had been asked by President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, to cancel the trip.

Califano had never announced that he would make the trip to Moscow.

In a statement issued by his office today, Califano said the visit had been planned in response to an invitation from Soviet health minister Boris V. Petrovsky to review U.S.-Soviet health research agreements.

Califano said he reached his decision to postpone the trip "largely out of concern over the recent trial and sentencing of the physicist Uri F. Orlov and the continuing detention of Alexander Ginsburg and Anatoly Shcharansky."

"By its treatment of Orlov, the Soviet government has created circumstances which would make communication about scientific cooperation strained at best," the secretary said. "Accordingly, I have decided to defer the trip."

Orlov was sentenced earlier this month to seven years at hard labor and five years of banishment from Moscow for "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda." He wrote documents on human rights and distributed them to Western correspondents and embassies.

High Interest Seen In GOP Runoff

The Republican runoff between congressional candidates Jim Reese and George Bush has maintained much of the public interest that race generated in the May 6 primary election, Lubbock County absentee voting indicates.

Almost as many voters, 115, had voted at noon today in the GOP runoff as had cast ballots before the primary, 199, for all the Republican races.

"There is a lot of interest in this Republican congressional race," County Clerk Frank Guess said.

Absentee voting began last Wednesday and runs through today.

Democratic and Republican runoffs will be decided Saturday.

Through this morning, 247 Democrats and 115 Republicans had cast absentee ballots in Lubbock County.

The total before the May 6 primary was 1,357, which included about two dozen mail-in ballots.

The only local Democratic race to be decided Saturday is the state Senate contest between Don Workman and E.L. Short.

No run-off absentee ballots had been received this morning, Guess said.

Postal Center Opening Set

The first of two self-service postal centers planned for Lubbock will open Thursday, Postmaster Elmer J. Reed said today.

The new facility, located on the Town and Country Shopping Center parking lot at 4th Street and University Avenue, is equipped with postage vending equipment, money changers, parcel post scales and rate charts.

The center, built at a cost of $7,000, will be open 24 hours a day.

Another unit of the same type is planned for the city, but its exact location — probably in southwest Lubbock — has not yet been determined.

IN DEMAND AT 83 — Carobeth Laird, 83, is shown with one of two books she has written since the age of 80. She is going to fly to New York at guest of sixth graders who raised the expenses. They want to meet her and hear about Indians. (AP Laser photo)

Sixth-Graders Pay For Writer's Trip

POWAY, Calif. (AP) — Carobeth Laird didn't start writing until she was 80, but her books on Indians and the Old West quickly won critical acclaim.

Now, nearing her 83rd birthday, Mrs. Laird is packing to go to New York where some inquisitive sixth-graders collected $500 to pay for her trip so they could talk to her firsthand.

As the 22-year-old bride of eccentric ethnologist John Peabody Harrington, she was sent alone, pregnant and frightened to study the Pueblo tribe in New Mexico.

The next year he sent her to study the Chemehuevi tribe near Parker, Ariz., and it was there she met George Laird, a half-Scott, half-Chemehuevi who was to become her second husband.

He followed her to her parents' home in San Diego and a year later she divorced Harrington and married Laird.

By the time Laird died in 1940, his wife had become an expert in Chemehuevi lore and language.

Mrs. Laird's first book, "The Chemehuevi," is in its second printing by Malki Museum Press, a white and Indian cooperative on the Morongo Reservation near Banning, Calif.

But it was her second book, "Encounter with an Angry God," published by Malki with paperback rights sold to Ballantine Books in New York City, that was a sensation in some circles.

Novelist Tom Wolfe read the page proofs and in a Harper's magazine article praised the story of her life with her two husbands. Reviewer Larry McMurtry wrote in the Washington Post that "if it were fiction, it would be a great, if not the greatest, American novel."

Dorothy Lamb's pupils at H.T. Herber Middle School at Malverne, Long Island, were studying the Old West and spotted a grave marker of Laird's father in a photograph of a historic cemetery near Ehrenberg, Ariz.

The class obtained Mrs. Laird's books, read them, began writing to the author and the trip was arranged.

Mrs. Laird, mother of five children and grandmother of 10, has completed a third book — "Limbo" — based on the two months she was in an Arizona nursing home "having to fight for my identity and sanity."

She is now working on other books.

"I have certain things I wish to accomplish," she said in an interview Monday. "But if the children are interested in history, I'll talk to them about history. If they're interested in Indians, I'll talk about that."

Nader Wants New Rules For Textile Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader is asking President Carter to ignore arguments about inflation from top White House economists and approve new safety standards that would protect thousands of textile workers against brown lung disease.

Nader hand-carried a letter to the White House Monday in an effort to dissuade the president from allowing his economic advisers to make an "extraordinary interference with a regulatory process."

The consumer advocate, who has fought since 1969 for the standards to reduce workers' exposure to cotton dust, said in an interview that two of Carter's top economic advisers are arguing the safety measures would cost $600 million and should be delayed "to restrain inflation."

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration had planned to implement the new standards for bysionosis, the term for the potentially deadly brown lung disease that has stricken hundreds of thousands of textile workers in the past century.

Nader estimated 100,000 of the half million industry workers today are regularly exposed to cotton dust.

But the New York Times reported last week that Charles Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, urged Carter to delay the effective date of the OSHA standards because of the cost of implementation.

"In my judgment it is improper for any president to interfere off the record into a proceeding to establish a worker health and safety standard," Nader told UPI.

"If he wants to petition OSHA, as any interested party can, of course it's his

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a newspaper clipping that appeared in a section of the paper that very few teenagers read.

I think it should be in YOUR column — or maybe in the comics, where teenagers would be sure to see it.

If you agree with me, please reprint it. Thank you.

MRS. E.B. CLINGNER, COVINGTON, KY.

Dear Mrs. C.: The piece appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer, in William Raspberry's column. It was written by Karen Rak, who teaches English to students at the Center Junior High School in Strongsville, Ohio.

Miss Rak composed a letter (ostensibly from an employer) designed to let her youthful job seekers see themselves as they are seen. With so many young people looking for jobs now, I think this piece deserves all the exposure it can get.

"DEAR KID: Today you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids your age can't find jobs.

"But I hired a teenager today. You saw him. What was so special about him? Not experience; neither of you had any. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He did his best to impress me. That is where he edged you out.

"He was smart, dressed like a Sunday, but then that wasn't necessary. His clothes were clean, and he had gotten a haircut. He filled out the application form neatly and completely. He did not ask to borrow a pen. He carried his Social Security card, had basic identification, and did not ask, 'What's a reference?'"

"He didn't have two friends waiting for him by the pop machine. He didn't start to chew gum or smoke while interviewing. He didn't keep looking at his watch, giving me the impression that he had something more important to do.

"He took the time to find out how we 'operate' here, and what his day-to-day tasks would be. I think he'll keep his eyes open and work for me like he'd work for himself.

"He was willing to start at that point where I could afford to pay. Someday, perhaps, he'll get to the point where he'll have more authority over others and a better paycheck.

"You know, kid, men have always had to get a job like you get a girl: Case the situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear reasonably willing.

"Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but there are jobs. You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men and women smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way.

"If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You will be head and shoulders above the rest.

"For both our sakes, get eager, will you? — THE BOSS"

DEAR ABBY: I just had a difference of opinion with my wife as to when it is proper for a man to start wearing white shoes.

I say that a man can start wearing white shoes on Easter Sunday. My wife insists that the well-dressed man does not wear white shoes until Memorial Day, or May 30.

Can you settle this for us?

J.A. IN BINGHAMTON, N.Y.

Dear J.A.: My fashion experts tell me that in your part of the country, the white shoes don't come out of the closet until Memorial Day, or May 30.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (c) 1978 by Chicago Tribune — N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEODORANT NOTE

It's not necessarily true that one becomes immune to deodorants and antiperspirants after long use, but all such products tend to fail some when we're under stress.

• Solid foods such as meat, poultry, or fish should be wrapped and sealed in moisture-vaporproof wrap in the following manner:

1. Center food on the sheet.

2. Bring opposite sides of sheet together.

3. Double fold.

4. Double fold ends.

5. Tightly press wrapping around food.

6. Snugly press ends to package. Secure with freezer tape, as necessary.

Essence Magazine Aimed At Black Women

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Edward Lewis eight years ago launched "Essence," a magazine to help black women feel good about themselves.

Out of the red now, "Essence" goes to 600,000 mostly college educated black women with a median income of around $11,000 a year.

Excellence in "Essence" is taken for granted. Among its recent awards is one in fiction from the National Society of Magazine Editors and another from the United Negro College Fund.

One clue to what goes on inside Lewis comes from the most prominent thing on his desk. His office is in a rather sedate executive suite in a glass tower overlooking Times Square.

The framed message on the desk makes these points: "The six most important words — 'I admit I made a mistake.'"

"The five most important words — 'You did a good job.'"

"The four most important words — 'What is your opinion?'"

"The three most important words — 'If you please...'"

"The two most important words — 'Thank you.'"

"The least important word — 'I...'"

During an interview the other day Lewis came across as a person who considers the words important.

Now 37, Lewis has achieved star quality in publishing. And it's been as tough but as rewarding as any football game, to hear the former fullback from Dewitt Clinton High in the South Bronx and the University of New Mexico tell it.

"We've been trying to make black women feel good about themselves," Lewis said. "Our aim is to have them consider 'essence' a necessity."

Other women's magazines, according to Lewis, don't address the needs of the black woman. The ads, stories and reports are aimed at a white audience.

In "Essence," however, black babies and black mothers are featured in the ads for infant products. Cosmetics for black women are special and "Essence" readers learn about "our cosmetic art."

But Lewis said the magazine is not just another women's magazine, specializing in reports on what used to be subjects for women only: fashion, cooking, cosmetics.

Between the covers also are bright reports on child-raising, travel, education, money management, love life, sexual problems, health matters.

There also are reports on black women who are making it in a career or others who have gained national prominence, such as Cong. Barbara Jordan (D-Texas).

The child-raising articles make note of the problems of single parents, including one who elects to raise a child, her own or adopted, without marrying.

Lewis was working for a bank and at a magic age — under 30 — when he got into publishing.

"Blacks were beginning to feel good about being black," he said. "I thought a magazine could help black women feel better about themselves, raise their self esteem."

"We thought of naming the magazine after a precious stone; a strong jewel would convey our feelings about black women."

"But black women told us that was a putdown. 'Essence was more on the mark, they told us.'"

To Lewis, the word essence means inner meaning, inner soul — "it's what makes this lady tick."

At a recent "Essence" seminar on careers for young black women, Editor Marvia Ann Gillespie said, "the black career woman should learn to love, treasure and give of herself to self."

"As black women in this country we come from a long legacy of service, of seeing our mothers and our grandmothers givin' and givin' and givin' to everybody."

"We have heard our men often talk about their mamas, and sure they did that."

"But we don't have to lead their lives. It's very important that you remember that."

The young black women heard Dr. Leota Tucker of the Welfare Department, New Haven, Conn., say, "I think we can do anything we set our minds to. I would like to encourage all of you to believe in yourselves and believe that you can do anything you set your minds to."

Success stories in "Essence" give readers plenty of role models, showing there is hope in the ambition to achieve upward mobility.

"A recent Rand report said black women are achieving success in earnings faster than black men are," Lewis recalled.

The report from the Rand Corporation, a "think tank," stated that the gap between earnings of white women and black women has narrowed so much that it's hardly perceptible.

The gap between earnings of white and black men, on the other hand, is still there, even if it isn't as wide as it was in the 60's.

"This shows how far black women have come," Lewis said.

That aside, Lewis said, it "always bothers me to hear people saying we've made it."

"As a country we have not come to grips with making investments in people the way we should," he said.

"We don't make the kinds of commitments to our own people that we made to people in other lands after World War II."

Lewis thinks the problems of the jobless and ill-trained black teenagers and young black adults is "social dynamite."

"We don't have any national training mechanisms to meet their needs," he said.

"They can't even learn the rudiments of business the way I did when I was a young boy working in a grocery store."

"They need real opportunities and can see through jobs that are dead ends. Make-work programs create more frustration than they relieve."

"This social dynamite could erupt at any time. Education is one of the keys to solving the problem, but even with an education one has problems with jobs if one is black or a woman."

The issues of today are not similar to the "burning ones of the Sixties," according to Lewis.

"But they are significant issues and they must be addressed."

"They are economic issues and they are issues over the environment. They are very much concerned with equal opportunities."

Lewis looks beyond "Essence" when he thinks of black media.

A magazine of the "Essence" quality for black men or a strong national black newspaper?

No announcements yet from Lewis. But he believes no medium can address blacks or discuss their problems better than a black medium. And he said he intends to keep it growing.

Don't double just for the sake of making yourself heard in the auction. It can help declarer in the play, as this hand from the semifinal of the Vanderbilt Knockout Team Championship, played recently in Houston, amply demonstrated.

When Ron Rubin and Mike Becker of New York held the North-South hands, their auction to get to six clubs differed drastically from the bidding shown because they play a complex artificial system. However, it did include a double of three spades, as above, and it proved to be the clue that declarer needed to make his slam. There does not seem to be much point to the double: East-West are unlikely to want to enter the auction; North-South are unlikely to play in three spades doubled; and East can't even be sure that a spade would be the best lead.

West dutifully led a spade, and declarer was not happy with his contract. It seemed that he was due to lose two diamond tricks. However, there was a chance that he could engineer an end play. To set the stage, Rubin, won the king of spades and cashed the ace of diamonds. It was his intention to draw trumps, cash the high hearts and spade and ruff a spade, then exit with the diamond. If either defender held a doubleton K-Q, K-J or Q-J of diamonds, or K-x and forgot to unblock under the ace, the slam would come home when that defender was forced to yield a ruff-and-sluff.

When the king of diamonds appeared under the ace, it seemed that declarer would have to bow the knee. However, he drew trumps in two rounds and cashed three heart tricks. When West showed out on the last heart, light dawned at the end of the tunnel. East was known to hold five hearts and two clubs, and it seemed likely that he held five spades for his double. Therefore, the king of diamonds was singleton!

Rubin continued with the ace of spades and the nine, on which he discarded a diamond. When East had to win this trick, the hand was over. He was down to nothing but major-suit cards, and whichever suit he led would allow declarer to discard his last diamond while ruffing in dummy. The defenders made only one spade trick.

SMILING NO LONGER

LONDON (WNS) — Moya Ann Church, 25, has had nothing but problems since she was named National Smile Princess for National Smile Week. Five minutes after she was crowned, she lost her crown. Some jaunty fellow spilled coffee over her $200 dress and National Smile sash. Next day she locked herself out of her house and had to call the police for help. "After that, my car broke down," Miss Church recalled. "When I returned from phoning a garage, there was a parking ticket on it." Then she missed the train home after posing for more photographs, "but it's all so crazy that I can't help laughing."

Traditional Medicine Gaining Acceptance

By EDWARD CODY

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — When Dr. Henri Collomb started taking advice from witch doctors 20 years ago, his colleagues told him he was too old to dabble in superstitions.

"And now everyone's interested in traditional medicine," chuckled the white-haired French psychiatrist, director of Fann Psychiatric Hospital at Dakar. "People are coming here from all around — from other African countries, Europe and the United States — to see what we are doing."

They find a well-known West African witch doctor cooperating with Collomb and his scientific staff in attempts to mix what's good in witchcraft with what's good in modern medicine to heal mental disorders.

The effort is part of a broadening trend by health authorities in Africa to investigate the healing power of traditional village witch doctors and herbal pharmacy, particularly for remote areas with few doctors.

"Modern medicine has a lot to learn from herb healers," Dr. Halidan Mahler, director of the World Health Organization, said recently. "Whatever the result of scientific tests, it is clear that judicious use of plants, mushrooms, flowers, fruit and roots in primary health care can largely contribute to cut costs of medicine and health services."

Collomb has been preaching a similar message for mental illness since he came to this West African country in 1959 with standard European psychiatric training from the University of Bordeaux in France.

"I realized quickly that all patients who came here had previously been cared for by witch doctors, would go to witch doctors when they left and were being treated by witch doctors, more or less secretly, even while they were here," he said. "When my patients spoke to me of devils, hexes and so on, I naturally got interested."

As a result, Collomb became convinced African healers, as a reflection of their cultures, had something to teach European psychiatry in the care of African mental illness.

"In the spirit of witch doctors, the mental patient is someone under attack," he explained. "So they don't defend society against the patients, isolate them. Instead, they defend the patients against the attack (by evil spirits) and this attitude makes healing much easier."

Collomb, now 64 and preparing to return to France, started by visiting witch doctors' "healing villages," such as that run by the late prophet Mamadou Sane at Marwa in Senegal and prophet Albert Hatcho's village at Bregbo in Ivory Coast.

In them, he found, members of patients' families remained to help in the cure, reassuring the patient and making day-to-day care easier. Even more important, the patients were allowed to roam freely about the villages under supervision of their families.

"If you close up the patient like in Europe, you can only make it more difficult to cure him," said Collomb, recalling the strong sense of family and community in traditional Africa.

So Collomb opened two psychiatric villages of his own, patterned after the healing villages of witch doctors. One is at Botou in eastern Senegal and the other near Ziguinchor in the Casamance region south of the Gambia River.

The Botou establishment for about 20 patients cost $18,000 compared to $900 million for a 120-patient hospital planned in a neighboring West African country. Collomb estimates it costs 10 to 20 times less than in a European-style hospital to care for patients there, under a team including visiting psychiatrists and psychologists and a full-time nurse.

Results in such villages are comparable to those obtained in modern psychiatric hospitals, he said, and developing countries in Africa can more easily afford and staff them.

Patients get scientific care with chemical medicine, as they would in a European-style institution, but with an African orientation supplied by study of village healers' lore.

Just as scientists are taking notice of the witch doctors' craft, however, it is losing its effectiveness because of a surge in the number of charlatans, Collomb said.

"The real witch doctor doesn't make people pay, or just a little," he added. "But there is now a wave of witch doctors who are just fakes in it for the money, particularly in the big cities such as Dakar."

'Sex Kitten' Fights Development Scheme

Brigitte Bardot, who can be said to have "discovered" the topless bathing resort of St. Tropez in France — is leading a campaign to stop a huge development scheme's being carried out.

Ex-sex kitten BB, 43, says she will sell her luxury home at "St. Trop" unless the scheme is abandoned. And that, she avers, will wreck the resort's special character.

She has written local mayor Bernard Blua: "I live here because it is a haven of peace, a place of beauty and freedom."

Medical Data On Computer

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Just as your financial history is probably on file with a credit bureau, your medical history — or part of it at least — may be on file with a different kind of fact-gathering organization.

The agency is the Medical Information Bureau, with headquarters in Greenwich, Conn. Founded in 1902, it is a non-profit membership organization of about 700 life insurance companies.

William R. Swarts III, the bureau's associate general counsel, said the group has computerized files on about 11 million persons.

Swarts said the files do not contain complete medical histories on the individuals involved.

"No one's interested in the flu you had last October," he explained. The only information entered is that "which is of underwriting significance," Swarts said. If you had a heart attack, for example, it might be listed under a code for cardiovascular diseases. Other codes cover gastrointestinal, nervous and respiratory illnesses, Swarts said, adding that he was "a little hesitant to talk about specific codes."

Nonmedical information that could affect your life span — a history of reckless driving, for example, or participation in a potentially hazardous sport like skydiving — also is included in the file.

The information is available only to companies which are members of the MIB and it cannot be provided without a signed authorization from the individual involved. Swarts said the bureau has files on "something less than" 10 percent of all people who apply for life insurance. The average file consists of less than three coded entries.

Where does the bureau get its information? From you.

Here's how it works: Suppose you take out a life insurance policy with Company A, an MIB member. You provide certain information and the company forwards it to the bureau. Later, you apply for another policy with Company B, also an MIB member. With your permission, Company B asks the bureau for your record.

Concerns over individual rights and privacy in the past decade have led the MIB to eliminate certain types of information from its files and to make changes in the way it operates. Codes for "sexual deviations" and "social maladjustment" were eliminated, for example, and bureau members were required to tell applicants about MIB and the possibility of a report being made to it.

You can, if you want, get a copy of your report by contacting the bureau's information office, Post Office Box 105, Essex Station, Boston, Mass., 02112. You will be given the nonmedical information — about 5 percent of the total in a typical file. Medical information will be disclosed only to your doctor and you will then have to get it from him or her. If you think there is an error, you can contact the bureau and, in accordance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the file will be corrected.

Note: Although the Medical Information Bureau is covered by the Fair Credit Reporting Act, it has nothing to do with credit. It is NOT a credit bureau. It does NOT collect financial information.

Among other things the MIB does and does not do:

- It does NOT make a decision about whether you will be granted a policy; that is still up to the individual insurance company.
- It DOES include favorable as well as unfavorable information in its records.
- It does NOT consist of documents such as physician's records or hospital reports.
- It DOES update information. Each separate report is automatically erased after seven years.
- It does NOT include information received in connection with health, life and disability claims.

Swarts said the information in the computers is "very" secure. "We have never, to our knowledge, had a leak," he said.

Search To Continue For Hikers

PINEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — State troopers say they will continue to search Pine Mountain State Park for an elderly Cincinnati couple described as avid mountain hikers.

State police Trooper Harold Bargo said that today two squads of troopers would retrace the steps of more than 150 police, National Guardsmen and rescue workers who spent the weekend combing the park for clues to the whereabouts of Charles L. Arnold, 78, and his 81-year-old wife, Winnifred.

The Arnolds checked in at the park lodge May 18 and were scheduled to leave Friday. When they failed to check out, police were called and found the couple's car and belongings.

Searchers concentrated their efforts Monday on a remote, 500-acre undeveloped section of the park rarely used by hikers.

Violent Weather Strikes Large Portion Of Nation's Midsection

A-J News Services

Violent weather including tornadoes, severe thunderstorms and flash floods plagued much of the nation's midsection today, but injuries and property damage were minimal.

Thunderstorms, many of them carrying hail and high winds, extended from New Mexico across the southern tier of states and up the eastern mountains to New England.

Much of the upper Midwest also was covered by showers and thunderstorms. Snow showers were scattered through the northern Rockies from Wyoming to Montana.

Lubbock and the South Plains are expected to be the sunny middle of the national weather sandwich today, however.

Temperatures should be near 90 today and Wednesday and near 60 tonight.

Southerly winds of 15 to 20 miles an hour and gusty today and 10 to 15 miles an hour tonight were predicted.

Skies will become partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, weathermen said.

Thunderstorms roiled up along the Texas Gulf Coast early Tuesday night but dissipated before midnight.

Showers roamed over portions of the South Plains on Monday, leaving amounts of rainfall ranging from .69 at Brownfield to .14 at Tahoka. Lamesa got .47, Snyder .32, Lockettville .25, Tulia .20 and Littlefield .18.

West Texas skies were mostly clear at dawn today, and the central and eastern parts of the state were fair to partly cloudy.

The extended area forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies and isolated thunderstorms in the Panhandle.

Daytime temperatures are expected to drop into the 60s later this week in the Panhandle as the rainy weather develops.

Five inches of rain fell late Monday at Whitebear Lake, Minn., a Twin Cities suburb. Water in the streets reportedly was up to the roofs of cars.

Nearly two inches of rain within 30 minutes prompted the National Weather Service to issue a flash flood warning for Hays County in central Texas. Torrential rains flooded lowlying streets and underpasses in many areas of the Midwest.

Tornadoes were reported throughout the Upper Midwest on Monday. Six funnels were spotted during the afternoon about 15 miles south of Mankato, Minn. A tornado touched down near Caledonia, Minn., causing minor damage to farm buildings. Other tornadoes, causing no damage or injuries, were reported near Welcome, Minn.; Spencer, Iowa, and Gillette, Wyo.

Dozens of cold air funnel clouds were reported in Nebraska and Iowa. The NWS said such funnels rarely hit the ground or do any damage. The funnels normally protrude a few hundred feet down from the parent cloud and rotate or spin like a top.

Golf ball size hail fell at Tusculumbia, Ala., causing minor property damage. Hail also pelted parts of southern Wisconsin as a band of severe thunderstorms moved through.

Elsewhere, skies were mostly cloudy over most of the nation. High pressure over the Pacific Northwest brought cooling temperatures to the Rockies and northwestern Plains.

Temperatures generally were hot from the Great Lakes region to the Northeast. Concord, N.H., broke a 49-year-old record with 94 degrees and Pellston, Maine, recorded a 93 to break a record set in 1970.

Former Marine's Voice Halts Subway Robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — A 6-foot man who allegedly used a knife to hold up passengers on a subway train was scolded into surrendering by the authoritative voice of an unarmed 5-foot-4 ex-Marine, police say.

Police said the man surrendered his knife when the unarmed passenger demanded it, and then was subdued by other riders in the car.

The incident happened Monday morning when the alleged robber got on the Eighth Avenue subway line at 125th Street in the Harlem section of Manhattan. Brandishing a knife, he demanded that the approximately 50 passengers in the car give up their money.

Some passengers threw money onto the floor, including one man who said he relinquished a wallet containing $95. The riders surrendered a total of about $200, police said.

But then James Harris, 30, of the Bronx, confronted the man. In a firm, clear voice he said: "Give the money back and give me the knife."

To the amazement of everyone except Harris, the bandit handed over the knife, police and witnesses said.

"I got tired of watching all those people sitting there, doing nothing," Harris said later. "I felt that if I said the right words, this guy might react."

"You knock the bully out of them" if you speak firmly, he said.

Some passengers began scooping up their money while others tied the bandit's hands and feet and turned him over to a Transit Authority policeman at the next stop.

Police identified the suspect as Robert Mangham, 32. He was charged with robbery, assault, reckless endangerment, illegal possession of a dangerous weapon and menacing.

Memorial Day Observed In Traditional Manner

By The Associated Press
 Many celebrated Memorial Day in the traditional manner, paying respect to the 700,000 Americans who died in wars. For some, it was a day to frolic outdoors or take advantage of a holiday sale. And for others, it meant sheer confusion.

While most of the nation followed the federal government's lead and observed Memorial Day on Monday, residents of seven states — Illinois, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Vermont and West Virginia — officially observed the holiday today.

In New York, the nation's financial center — Wall Street — seemed to be operating in slow motion Monday. The stock exchanges were closed, but banks were open.

One of today's scheduled marches, in Great Neck on New York's Long Island, has been the focus of a court suit.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein ruled Monday that the North Shore Right-to-Life Committee had a right to march in the parade, sponsored by American Legion Post 304. The Legion had said its march to honor war dead would be overshadowed by controversy if the anti-abortionists participated.

Elsewhere, traditional Memorial Day observances caused little stir Monday.

In Arlington, Va., Secretary of Defense Harold Brown presided over the laying of the wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery. He said the country should rededicate itself to preserving the strength of its armed forces "so that it need not be proved in combat."

In the Detroit suburb of Troy, 23 of the last survivors of the Army's "Polar Bear" unit staged a brief ceremony at a cemetery where 50 of their compatriots are buried.

After the World War I armistice was signed, about 4,000 "Polar Bears" were shipped to the Russian port of Archangel near the Arctic Circle, where, for nearly a year, they fought against the Bolsheviks.

The surviving "Polar Bears" say this year's reunion may have been their last.

Memorial services were held at the Babelas Bridge on the Rio Grande in Albuquerque, N.M. A wreath was tossed into the river in memory of those serving in the Navy who gave their lives at sea.

In Ohio, small American flags were placed at the graves of 206 Confederate soldiers, most of them officers, who died during their imprisonment on Johnson's Island on Lake Erie during the Civil War.

Not all of Monday's ceremonies honored the nation's war dead.

In Southgate, Ky., townspeople gathered for a service at the town's war memorial, a short distance from the site of the Beverly Hills Super Club fire that killed 165 people in May 1977.

And in Moore, Okla., an estimated 400 uniformed law officers joined about 2,000 other mourners for the funeral of a Highway Patrol Lt. Pat Grimes, one of three state troopers gunned down by two Oklahoma prison fugitives last week.

Traffic accidents killed 485 people during the three-day Memorial Day weekend, compared to 432 deaths over the holiday period last year.

The National Safety Council had estimated before the holiday began at 6 p.m. Friday that 400 to 500 people would lose their lives in traffic accidents over the long weekend that ended Monday night.

The worst toll for a comparable three-day holiday was 597 in 1969, and the lowest recent toll was 389 in 1974.

The highest Memorial Day total was 629 deaths in 1968, but that was during a four-day period.

President To Tour Art Gallery Wing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is scheduled to be the first official visitor Thursday when the National Gallery of Art opens its new East Building. He will be accompanied by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

The final touches were put on the structure Monday as a few influential visitors were given a preview. Tonight, the first of a series of dinners and luncheons will be held for those who worked on the project.

IN THE RIVER — The center span of the Brady St. Bridge in Pittsburgh splashed into the Monongahela River Monday night. The 67-year-old bridge was destroyed by demolition experts using explosives. The south span also fell, but the north span remained. (AP Laserphoto)

Demolition Of Bridge Cheered Small Town Recalls Club Fire Victims

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Thousands of spectators cheered as the rickety bridge where a screaming ironworker lost a leg last week plummeted 120 feet into the Monongahela River.

The blackened, twisted bridge created an afternoon of torture for Ralph Winner, whose trapped right leg was amputated atop the unstable span.

But the bridge's eventual demise provided a memorable holiday for the throng who waited hours before explosive charges sent it splashing into the river Monday evening.

"This is a lot more exciting than this morning's Memorial Day parade," one woman said.

In an orange flash from carefully placed explosives, the 67-year-old bridge rose slightly from its stone piers then fell in pieces, leaving only a cloud of green smoke above the water.

"It came down beautifully," said Don Stomaker, vice president of Martin's Explosive Co., one of two companies hired to drop the bridge.

Pleasure craft carrying other spectators dotted the Monongahela, usually busy with barges carrying industrial goods.

River traffic was banned beneath the bridge last week after Winner, 48, was pinned by a shifting girder. While paramedics tried to prevent shock and injected him with drugs to overcome pain, Winner used a torch to help cut steel away from his limbs.

His right leg was amputated after experts concluded the bridge would collapse if more steel was cut to get him free.

It took rescuers nearly three hours to extricate his crushed left leg, and doctors say it is likely that limb has been saved.

The Brady Street Bridge spanned the river only 26 feet from the new $30 million Birmingham Bridge, which connects the south side and the Oakland section.

The blast was to have left shorter sections at the end of the bridge in place, but the south section dropped into the water as well.

"This emphasizes what we have been saying all along, that nobody knew where the stresses were on that bridge," said David Spagnoli, an engineer for the state Department of Transportation.

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — Last year, this northern Kentucky town was too shocked and weary from a tragic fire the day before which killed 165 people to observe Memorial Day in the traditional way.

On Monday, the town's 3,200 residents resumed their annual Memorial Day parade, but also remembered those who died last May 28 in a fire at the Beverly Hills Supper Club.

"The nation may remember Southgate as signifying smoke and flame and death. But because of Beverly Hills, changes shook the nation which may prevent a future holocaust from happening again," Mayor Ken Paul said during ceremonies at the town memorial to its war dead.

"How many people read the papers and see one or two or three deaths because of fire and they'd throw the paper aside?" Paul said. "But because of the tragedy and the changes that have been brought about, how many lives will be saved because of a simple smoke detector or building codes which have been put into effect?"

The site of the memorial to the war dead is located only a short distance from the charred remains of the supper club.

The mayor was surrounded during the ceremony by the many of the same volunteer firefighters and policemen who a year and a day earlier had worked themselves into exhaustion fighting a fire which was beyond their comprehension.

"One never associates tragedy as happening in your own community," Paul said. "It did happen here and this city will never be the same again. Time has passed and the pain has passed. However, there will always be the emotional scars left. And that is the way it should be."

Paul asked prayers for the families who died and for the survivors.

"We also ask prayers for the Schilling family because a great toll has been taken on this family," the mayor said, referring to the club owners, who are defendants in most of the lawsuits stemming from the fire.

Many townspeople lined the tree-shaded streets of this small community and watched the fire department and mayor parade by in the memorial.

"These are the same people who a year and a day ago were coming up to me and saying 'What can I do?'" recalled Ernie Pretot, who was the first police officer on the scene the night of the fire. "All I could do was tell them to go home and pray."

Disease Probe Launched At Indiana College

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Medical investigators hope to find the source of an outbreak of Legionnaires' Disease that killed three visitors to the Indiana University campus and infected four more.

The first investigator from the federal Center for Disease Control was scheduled to arrive today to begin the search, requested by university officials once the Atlanta-based center could confirm the disease during the weekend.

The Indiana State board of Health and the I.U. School of Medicine also are helping in the cases, which were turned up through CDC's national research.

Six of the cases involved people who stayed at the Indiana Memorial Union, a combination hotel-student center that sprawls across the center of campus. The seventh victim stayed elsewhere.

The illness first came to light two years ago in Philadelphia at an American Legion convention at which more than two dozen legionnaires contracted the mysterious disease.

"In no instance has the illness been identified among faculty, students and staff at I.U. Bloomington, nor has it been found among residents of the Monroe County area," the school said in a statement.

"Six of the cases confirmed by the CDC are known to have had the common experience of being registered guests in the Indiana Memorial Union."

"There is no evidence that pinpoints any building or location on campus or in the Bloomington area as being a source of the disease," said Dr. Richard D. Telle, the state epidemiologist. "The investigation will no doubt reveal a number of other shared associations on the part of the individuals involved."

"We have to remember the disease occurs sporadically throughout the world," he added.

POW's Display Few Mental Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite predictions that the lives of Vietnam prisoners of war could be left in shambles by bad memories, bitterness and anguish, the 300 POWs who gathered over the weekend showed little evidence of psychological scars.

The only noticeable scars were physical — a limp, a twisted hand, a large blotch of scar tissue from a bad burn.

However, the POWs generally remain bitter about the way the war was fought — not vigorously enough, they contend — and about those who protested the war.

"We had all these forecasts from the doctors and the head shrinkers about how bad we'd turn out because of the deprivation, the isolation, the bad food, the malnutrition and so forth," said former Air Force Col. George Day, who won the Medal of Honor while in a prison camp. Day, 53, is now a lawyer in Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

"The truth is, I think I'm better off because of what I went through," said retired Air Force Lt. Col. Don Odell, 47. He wears a permanent collar brace because his neck was broken by his captors, who were trying to extract an anti-war testimonial from him. They did not get it.

"I have a better understanding of myself and my fellow man. You learn how much you need other people to survive," Odell said.

Most of the POWs — more than half of the 356 freed by Hanoi in May 1973 — talked freely and matter-of-factly to reporters during a two-day convention marking the fifth anniversary of their release. With many of them were wives and girlfriends.

Most were near middle age and graying. A few were paunchy, but most seemed in good shape physically. All had been fliers and officers.

Most still believed the war was right and had praise for former President Richard Nixon, whom they credited with forcing Hanoi to free them by deciding in 1972 to bomb North Vietnam by B-52s.

Highlight of the convention was a party given by Nixon at his Casa Pacifica villa in San Clemente on Saturday. Once before, shortly before resigning the presidency in 1974, Nixon held a similar party for the POWs.

Researchers at a San Diego Navy facility that has monitored the progress of former captives said that with few exceptions the Vietnam-era POWs had not suffered unduly serious problems.

"They're no different than anybody else," said Cmdr. William Ferris of the San Diego center. "There has been no pattern of psychological ailments."

Legislator Dies In Air Crash

LONGDALE, Okla. (UPI) — A twin-engine plane piloted by Rep. Mark Bradshaw, D-Arnett, plunged to a road near Canton Lake and burst into flames, killing the 29-year-old assistant majority floor leader Monday evening.

Authorities said Bradshaw, who was alone in the plane, had just returned from Cincinnati, Ohio, and immediately before the crash had circled low over the lake to let his wife, brother and uncle, who were fishing there, know he was back.

A sheriff's deputy said the plane hit some tall cottonwood trees, plunged to Thunder Road and burned.

"I was saddened to learn of the death of Rep. Bradshaw and extend to his family my sincerest sympathy and that of the others who have worked with him in the state government," Gov. David Boren said Monday night.

Bradshaw, a rancher, had served in the House four years, representing eight northwestern Oklahoma counties, and had been assistant majority floor leader the past two years.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Medical investigators hope to find the source of an outbreak of Legionnaires' Disease that killed three visitors to the Indiana University campus and infected four more.

The first investigator from the federal Center for Disease Control was scheduled to arrive today to begin the search, requested by university officials once the Atlanta-based center could confirm the disease during the weekend.

The Indiana State board of Health and the I.U. School of Medicine also are helping in the cases, which were turned up through CDC's national research.

Six of the cases involved people who stayed at the Indiana Memorial Union, a combination hotel-student center that sprawls across the center of campus. The seventh victim stayed elsewhere.

The illness first came to light two years ago in Philadelphia at an American Legion convention at which more than two dozen legionnaires contracted the mysterious disease.

"In no instance has the illness been identified among faculty, students and staff at I.U. Bloomington, nor has it been found among residents of the Monroe County area," the school said in a statement.

"Six of the cases confirmed by the CDC are known to have had the common experience of being registered guests in the Indiana Memorial Union."

"There is no evidence that pinpoints any building or location on campus or in the Bloomington area as being a source of the disease," said Dr. Richard D. Telle, the state epidemiologist. "The investigation will no doubt reveal a number of other shared associations on the part of the individuals involved."

"We have to remember the disease occurs sporadically throughout the world," he added.

POW's Display Few Mental Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite predictions that the lives of Vietnam prisoners of war could be left in shambles by bad memories, bitterness and anguish, the 300 POWs who gathered over the weekend showed little evidence of psychological scars.

The only noticeable scars were physical — a limp, a twisted hand, a large blotch of scar tissue from a bad burn.

However, the POWs generally remain bitter about the way the war was fought — not vigorously enough, they contend — and about those who protested the war.

"We had all these forecasts from the doctors and the head shrinkers about how bad we'd turn out because of the deprivation, the isolation, the bad food, the malnutrition and so forth," said former Air Force Col. George Day, who won the Medal of Honor while in a prison camp. Day, 53, is now a lawyer in Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

"The truth is, I think I'm better off because of what I went through," said retired Air Force Lt. Col. Don Odell, 47. He wears a permanent collar brace because his neck was broken by his captors, who were trying to extract an anti-war testimonial from him. They did not get it.

"I have a better understanding of myself and my fellow man. You learn how much you need other people to survive," Odell said.

Most of the POWs — more than half of the 356 freed by Hanoi in May 1973 — talked freely and matter-of-factly to reporters during a two-day convention marking the fifth anniversary of their release. With many of them were wives and girlfriends.

Most were near middle age and graying. A few were paunchy, but most seemed in good shape physically. All had been fliers and officers.

Most still believed the war was right and had praise for former President Richard Nixon, whom they credited with forcing Hanoi to free them by deciding in 1972 to bomb North Vietnam by B-52s.

Highlight of the convention was a party given by Nixon at his Casa Pacifica villa in San Clemente on Saturday. Once before, shortly before resigning the presidency in 1974, Nixon held a similar party for the POWs.

Researchers at a San Diego Navy facility that has monitored the progress of former captives said that with few exceptions the Vietnam-era POWs had not suffered unduly serious problems.

"They're no different than anybody else," said Cmdr. William Ferris of the San Diego center. "There has been no pattern of psychological ailments."

Legislator Dies In Air Crash

LONGDALE, Okla. (UPI) — A twin-engine plane piloted by Rep. Mark Bradshaw, D-Arnett, plunged to a road near Canton Lake and burst into flames, killing the 29-year-old assistant majority floor leader Monday evening.

Authorities said Bradshaw, who was alone in the plane, had just returned from Cincinnati, Ohio, and immediately before the crash had circled low over the lake to let his wife, brother and uncle, who were fishing there, know he was back.

A sheriff's deputy said the plane hit some tall cottonwood trees, plunged to Thunder Road and burned.

"I was saddened to learn of the death of Rep. Bradshaw and extend to his family my sincerest sympathy and that of the others who have worked with him in the state government," Gov. David Boren said Monday night.

Bradshaw, a rancher, had served in the House four years, representing eight northwestern Oklahoma counties, and had been assistant majority floor leader the past two years.

Thousands Protest New Firearm Regulations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A flood of 200,000 letters, mostly protesting — sometimes vehemently — proposals aimed at keeping guns away from criminals, is delaying the end of the comment period on new firearm regulations.

One angry citizen called the proposed regulations an "illegal action to control all guns." Another made some profane suggestions and concluded: "Don't make the mistake of coming for my guns — I would just as soon kill you as look at you."

The tide of letters is running 18-to-1 against the proposal.

Six to eight persons sort the mail at the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms each day, putting the letters in boxes marked "for," "against," "significant," "response" and "hate."

The proposal would require manufacturers to stamp a different serial number on each gun and require wholesalers and dealers to report commercial distribution.

Any thefts would have to be reported to ATF within 24 hours.

Although the file will not contain names of retail buyers, opponents assume it will be maintained in a giant computer and owners' names could easily be added during some future administration.

The National Rifle Association, which has more than 1 million members, claims the proposal amounts to "gun registration."

So strong has been the opposition that Treasury officials, contending the issue has been distorted by the gun lobby, extended their public comment period on the proposals until June 30.

In announcing the proposal in March, Assistant Treasury Secretary Richard J. Davis said its only purpose was to make it easier for police to trace firearms used in crimes through quick checks with a central sales record file.

But one opponent wrote: "History has proven that gun registration is generally followed by gun confiscation and the enslavement of free people."

James A. Hunt, project director, said most law enforcement organizations such as the International Association of Chiefs of Police and the Police Foundation favor the proposal, believing it would help solve crimes.

As for the "hate" letters, Hunt said he has not seen any threats against specific individuals, but if he does he will turn those letters over to ATF's enforcement agents for criminal prosecution.

He said he and two other "specialists" who do the official reading have read about 40,000 letters so far. Hunt, a speed reader, said he has read about 30,000 of them and now reads about 2,500 to 3,000 a day.

"As long as I'm project manager every letter will be read," Hunt said. "The significant letters I'm going to analyze in depth."

Asked if the heavy mail volume will affect the decision, Hunt said: "Do you think we can ignore 200,000 letters?"

President Of Zaire Reports Massacre

By The Associated Press

Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko claimed today that rebel tribesmen who fled the southern Zaire city of Kolwezi massacred white men, women and children hostages somewhere in the bush last weekend.

Mobutu's claim, made in Morocco, where he is seeking military assistance, could not be confirmed immediately elsewhere. Since the rebels were driven from Kolwezi almost two weeks ago by French paratroopers, there have been conflicting reports on whether they took European civilian hostages with them.

The Zairian leader was quoted in an official Moroccan news agency dispatch as saying information obtained by his special services indicated "the hostages were held by the rebels were all liquidated: men, women and children." He said he could not say where the killing took place or how many were killed.

A French Defense Ministry spokesman said in Paris. "We have no information or corroboration of any kind to give you on President Mobutu's statement."

The Defense Ministry spoke last week of paratroopers pursuing rebels with hostages but insisted it had no information on how many there were. Refugees and Zairian eyewitnesses were repeatedly quoted as having seen fleeing rebels with white hostages in their vehicles.

The rebels said they took no civilians hostage, only seven French military advisers, as they retreated back toward their bases in Angola.

Mobutu was in Morocco seeking troops from King Hassan to bolster his army. The intervention of 1,500 Moroccan troops 14 months ago drove back another Katangan invasion.

In Lubumbashi, Zaire, some foreign women and children have fled from the capital of rebel-threatened province, but others say they'll stay as long as Belgian troops are here to protect them.

Several dozen French women and children were flown out Sunday, a day after 500 Belgian paratroopers arrived from Kamina, 300 miles to the northwest.

Most of the estimated 4,000 whites in Lubumbashi went about their business calmly Monday, confident the Belgian army would prevent another massacre of whites like the one during the occupation of Kolwezi, 150 miles to the northwest.

Children went to school, their fathers went to work and their mothers went marketing.

Zairian soldiers stood guard at street corners and Belgian troops patrolled the city.

"Now that the Belgian soldiers have arrived we feel much safer," said Anita Davington, a Belgian housewife and mother of six. "We left in '60, '65 and '67 but we came back. We love this country and do not want to leave it."

Other whites said the same thing — as long as foreign forces remain, they will, too.

About 500 French Foreign Legionnaires moved from Kolwezi to Lubumbashi Sunday, but they were not in evidence Monday.

The Belgian troops spread out to the outlying towns of Likasi, Kabove, Kipushi and Fungurume, which have a combined European population of 1,757, and to the town of Mushoshi, where 180 Japanese civilians live.

The commander of the Belgian forces said the Japanese decided to remain in Mushoshi for the time being, but Zairian authorities prevented seven Britons at Fungurume from leaving.

Belgian military sources said although the Zaire government is allowing European women and children to leave, the men must stay behind to run the province's copper and cobalt mines, which supply the country's chief exports.

High Court

Since use of his statement was barred as trial evidence, it also should be barred from police use in establishing a "probable cause" for a search, the state court concluded.

In seeking Supreme Court review, state Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti argued:

"Where the alleged violation of Miranda is of such a non-egregious nature, to require a blanket application of the exclusionary rule is overkill and is not compelled by federal standards."

To bolster his contention, Bellotti cited a 1974 Supreme Court decision that allowed the testimony of a witness whom police had discovered as the result of a suspect's statement taken in violation of Miranda requirements.

White's lawyers, although noting that the present Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has "carved out exceptions to Miranda," argued that the state court's reasoning was sound.

EARLY SHOPPING — The new Furr's supermarket at Loop 289 and South Quaker Avenue accommodated early shoppers today when it opened its doors at 8 a.m. for its first day of business. Linda Stewart, checker at the store, provides check-

Almost 500 New Supermarket Perish On Highways

Despite an unprecedented effort to enforce the nation's 55 mph speed limit, highway deaths during the long Memorial Day Weekend soared near the 500 projected by federal safety experts.

Highway patrols in many of the states had joined in an effort to crack down on speeders in hopes of holding down holiday deaths. Similar efforts are planned for the July 4 and Labor Day weekends.

The National Safety Council had predicted between 400 and 500 persons would die on the highways during the holiday, which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

A United Press International count early today showed at least 476 persons had died in traffic accidents since Friday evening. More than 100 drowned during the three generally warm days of the long weekend.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic	476
Drownings	121
Planes	29
Total	617

California, the perennial leader in traffic fatalities, counted 70 highway deaths. Seven persons died in a fiery collision near Bakersfield Monday, making the 1978 death toll in California the second highest on record.

Indiana recorded 28 deaths followed by Alabama with 21, Michigan with 20, Illinois and Ohio with 18 each, South Carolina and Pennsylvania with 17 and Arizona with 16.

Indiana was a leader in organizing the speeder crackdown, but surpassed the projection for its own state by at least 13. Accidents included two four-fatality crashes and several multiple-death wrecks.

Indiana state police said most of the accidents occurred on secondary roads or city streets not involved in the speed limit enforcement campaign.

In one of many multiple fatality accidents during the weekend, four persons — three members of one family — were killed Sunday in a two-car collision near Walnut Cove, N.C.

New Supermarket Opens Near Loop

While primarily a grocery store, Furr's also will market cooking ware, CB radios, television sets and sporting goods in the new supermarket.

Checkout service will be handled by 10 stations plus two express lanes. Each station is equipped with electronic registers. The family kitchen section prepares food for carry out, such as meat loaf and fried chicken as well as hot vegetables and special desserts.

The in-store bakery produces an assortment of fresh breads, pies, cakes, cookies, sweet rolls and brownies.

The pharmacy is designed to provide service while the customer is shopping and will maintain records for tax purposes.

Darkroom supplies, including processing chemicals and print paper, will be available in the store's camera department. Enlarging equipment also will be marketed there.

In the grocery sector, a self-service meat counter is bolstered by a butcher behind the case for special orders.

In addition, the grocery facility will feature a fresh produce department, frozen foods and an elaborate cosmetic department.

The new supermarket will form the nucleus of a future shopping center at South Quaker Avenue and Loop 289. An additional 150,000 square feet of retail space is scheduled to be added adjacent to the building with construction expected to be underway in 60 days on that portion of the development.

The new Furr's store will employ approximately 125 persons in full and part-time positions. Joe Thompson is store manager, and Randy Green is assistant manager. Other personnel include: Irwin Cooper, market manager; Ronnie Brannum, produce manager; Ferrill Young, bakery manager; Elaine Johnson, family kitchen manager; and Joe Buchett, pharmacist.

The Furr's Inc. chain, based in Lubbock, is headed by Roy K. Furr, president, and Clem B. Boverie, chairman of the board.

Robert Green is vice president in charge of retail operations.

The supermarket chain operates in West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Lubbock division supervisors include: Frank Jackson, division manager; Bill Rhodes, market supervisor; R. T. Boyle, produce supervisor; and Glenn Clayton, general merchandise supervisor.

Norwegians Preparing For Fight

EL KHIAM, Lebanon (AP) — Norwegian peacekeeping troops are fortifying their base camp, expecting a new outbreak of fighting in explosive south Lebanon.

"We think something may happen soon," an officer said as squads of blond soldiers dug trenches in 88-degree heat Monday and roofed them with metal arches covered by layers of sandbags.

The U.N. troops feared they might be caught targets of the shells which generally fly over their heads when the Palestinians to the north and Christians to the south shoot at each other.

Three civilians were killed and three wounded Sunday night in the Palestinian town of Nabatiyeh. Reporters said the firing seemed to come from the Christian stronghold of Marjayoun, five miles north of the Israeli border and two miles east of the Norwegian base outside El Kham.

Three weeks ago Norwegians at one of their five outposts several miles from the base camp fired on Palestinian infiltrators and killed at least two. The Norwegians set up telephone links with the Palestinians to try to avoid misunderstandings.

"We have conversations with them two or three times a week," said Lt. Per Jenve, the press officer of the Norwegian battalion.

Israel is scheduled to withdraw the last of its forces from southern Lebanon on June 13. Israel invaded March 15 after a guerrilla raid in which 35 Israelis were killed, and Israeli soldiers still hold a six-mile-deep strip along the border.

After the Israelis withdraw, 4,600 U.N. troops will be responsible for peacekeeping in southern Lebanon, from the border to the Litani River, 15 to 20 miles north of the frontier.

"I can't believe the Palestine Liberation Organization will respect the U.N.," said Frances Rizak, a schoolteacher who acts as spokesman for the southern Lebanese Christians who continued to fight the Palestinians after the cease-fire in the Lebanese civil war in November 1976. "They came to destroy, to kill the peace. We have nothing against the U.N., but we can't agree to be separated from Israel."

A high-ranking Israeli source who refused to be identified said: "There is no reason why Israel can't continue to help the Christians after our pullout."

Cuban Official Blasts Carter

American efforts to reach a new strategic arms limitation agreement. Peking figures the two superpowers are headed for war anyway with western Europe the probable battlefield.

That was the startling message-cum-prediction that Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua brought to the United Nations. The Soviets, already having a bad time on the diplomatic front, were left stunned and angry.

Huang, keynoting the start of the second week of the session, predicted the United States and the Soviet Union will "fight it out" someday, the war will be fought in Western Europe and the Soviets will start it.

Although Washington came in for its share of criticism, Huang reserved his sharpest words for the Soviets, whom he accused of everything from stirring up new trouble in Zaire to planning "black-mail and eventual invasion of Western Europe."

Moscow is sensitive about Western Europe, and it was Huang's reference to Soviet plans for "an eventual invasion of Western Europe by means of its predominant conventional force" that particularly incensed the Russians.

The Soviets, as one observer put it,

Byrd Urges Production Of Warhead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said today President Carter should order production of the neutron warhead immediately unless the Soviet Union makes a matching concession.

The West Virginia Democrat said he believes the controversial weapon, shelved at least temporarily by Carter, should be a part of the U.S. arsenal because of a growing Soviet threat to NATO.

In a hard-hitting speech to the Delta Council in Cleveland, Miss., Byrd said Soviet involvement in Africa indicates "the Soviet Union has not swerved from its commitments to foment chaos wherever it believes it can benefit."

He urged strengthening of U.S. armed forces because of the growing Soviet military might.

"Not since the rearming of Germany under Adolf Hitler in the 1930s has any nation launched such an enormous military program in the absence of direct conflict," Byrd said of the Soviet arms buildup.

He cited reports that the Soviet Union had redesigned its army for a "blitzkrieg" attack on United States and allied forces in Europe.

"In a confrontation with NATO forces, the Soviets would hope through rapid tank and troop movements to overwhelm the Atlantic alliance before it could muster its full strength," he said.

"Against the United States, the Soviets maintain a 4-1 advantage in artillery, a 5-1 advantage in tanks, and a 6-1 advantage in infantry carriers."

Byrd said U.S. production of the neutron warhead — an enhanced radiation weapon that military experts see as a defense against a Soviet tank attack — was postponed by the president after "much distorted and emotional reaction."

"Since we are being tested in the Third World by the Soviets, and since we do have commitments to our NATO allies, I, personally, would like to see the neutron warhead in our arsenal," Byrd said.

"Moreover, our allies should state publicly their desire to have the neutron warhead, as so many of them have reportedly stated this desire to us privately. The neutron warhead has a potential to prevent the needless death of millions of civilians and the indiscriminate destruction of vital urban centers."

"were not amused." One Russian official said Huang's address "the same old slander, but perhaps even more anti-Soviet, more dangerous."

Soviet U.N. Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky kept a diplomatic straight face and sat quietly through the entire 31-page harangue. He said later Moscow planned "no protest."

It has been a tough few days for the Soviets, stemming in part from U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's recent trip to China — a visit the Russians feel may have helped precipitate Huang's tough attack, according to U.N. diplomatic sources.

There was the sharp clash Friday in Washington between Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko — whom Huang accused of "hollow talk" — and President Carter over the current Soviet-American negotiations for a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

And there was Vice President Walter Mondale's accusation in the United Nations last week that the Soviets were stepping up their nuclear threat against Western Europe with deployment of its nuclear, triple-warhead SS20 missile.

Huang told the 149-nation General Assembly the rest of the world should beware of "disarmament hoaxes" generated by the Americans and Soviets. "They preach disarmament but are actually carrying on arms expansion on a massive scale," he said.

"One superpower (the Soviet Union) is bent on expansion. The other (the United States) has its vested interests to protect."

Confrontation in Europe, turmoil in the Middle East and the "gathering storm" in Africa are the seeds of war, and "as the struggle intensifies," Huang predicted, the Russians and Americans "are bound to fight it out someday."

He described the Soviet Union as the "more aggressive and dangerous" of the two. "It is the most dangerous source of a new world war and is sure to be its chief instigator."

China sees itself in the camp of the developing Third World — "We eagerly desire to lift our country from economic backwardness" — and Huang said the smaller nations should pressure Moscow and Washington to do more than present "worthless proposals" for disarmament.

Although carrying no disarmament proposals of his own, Huang issued a five-point demand to the United States:

—Renounce the threat of the use of nuclear force against non-nuclear countries and nuclear-free zones.

—Withdraw all armed forces and dismantle all military bases stationed on foreign soil.

—Stop the nuclear and conventional arms race, destroy by stages their nuclear arsenals and "drastically reduce" conventional weapons.

—Cease stationing forces along the borders of other countries.

—Halt the export of weapons to other countries "for the purpose of bringing them under control or fomenting war or abetting threats of war."

Cleanup Starts Near Canyon

CANYON (UPI) — Officials have discontinued their search for the body of a 43-year-old woman presumed to have drowned in floodwaters that claimed three lives.

Clear skies and recessed waters Monday allowed residents in the area of the Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River to resume cleaning operations on their homes, many of which were damaged by the weekend flood.

The usually arid Panhandle region, which requires irrigation to grow crops, received over five inches of rain Friday and Saturday, producing a 12-foot wall of water that caused an estimated $8 to $10 million in damages.

At least three persons drowned in the floods and Mae Zachry, 43, of Canyon was still missing.

"We found Mrs. Zachry's car Sunday night, submerged in a creek about a half mile east of Canyon," said Randall County Deputy Crosby Hammons before the search was called off. "We have to presume she was drowned although that's not confirmed of course."

Campers, stranded in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park when the fork overflowed to about 300 feet and blocked every highway crossing in the park, were evacuated by helicopter during the weekend.

"We're in pretty good shape today," said Hammons Monday.

"The water is going down, the sun is out and the worst is past providing we don't get anymore rains like we've had for the past couple of days. Everybody that wants out as there is out and the rest will make it out as soon as things dry out a bit more."

A Red Cross spokesman said preliminary reports showed 12 homes and 13 trailers destroyed; 51 homes and two trailers with major damage and 47 homes with minor damage. He said Red Cross personnel were serving meals and helping flood victims.

Officials said after viewing the area that his preliminary estimate did not include hail damage to crops and livestock losses in the rural country.

The victims included Kenneth Joe Mar-

Lubbock Police Locate Large Marijuana Crop

Lubbock police harvested about 40 pounds of suspected marijuana Monday after getting a tip that more than 100 plants were growing at a 31st Street residence.

Detectives, who visited the property about 11:30 a.m., said the 3-foot-high plants were visible from a sidewalk in front of the house. After arresting two men, ages 19 and 22, and a 16-year-old youth, police reportedly also seized suspected narcotic paraphernalia.

In another incident, two Lubbock women were arrested about an hour later when they were seen unloading suspected stolen goods at a known drug addict's home. Police reportedly spotted the pair, ages 19 and 23, when they drove up to an Erskine Street house shortly before 1 p.m.

In recently reported break-ins, someone caused considerable damage while kicking in several doors at Ralston Purina during the holiday weekend.

Reports indicated burglars made their way through the 201 Municipal Drive business and took with them about $195 from a coin changer. Efforts to pry a soft drink machine reportedly failed.

Alvin Shambek told officers whoever broke through a back door and ransacked his 1707 33rd St. house this weekend made off with $634 worth of firearms, including a shotgun, rifle and two pistols.

Someone reportedly cut a window screen at 1906 28th St. during the same time period to get to Ivan Ruggles' $150 rifle.

The same mode of entry reportedly was used at Jessie T. Jones' 3217 38th St. residence Monday. According to the complainant, $1,355 worth of property, including a $400 coin collection, four watches and stereo equipment, was stolen.

Cleo Links of 2317 Auburn St., No. 58, told police a television and two radios were taken from that apartment during the past few days. Entry reportedly was gained through a window.

James Barry Knight of 4206 17th St., No. 3, said $400 worth of goods, consisting mostly of tools, was stolen by whoever broke into a pickup parked in the 100-block of Waco Avenue Monday.

According to Pat Tello of Georgetown, two suitcases filled with clothing were stolen from the back of a pickup parked in the 2100-block of 2nd Place late Sunday or early Monday.

A 20-year-old Lubbock woman flagged down police early Monday morning and told the officers she had been raped.

The victim said that she had decided to walk home from a restaurant about 1 a.m. Monday and had reached Clovis Road and University Avenue when a bearded Mexican-American man drove up beside her.

She told officers that the man ordered her into the car with a threatening tone of voice and then drove to Canyon Lake No. 1 and raped her.

She said after the rape, she suggested they get out of the man's small car and move nearer the lake. The man agreed, she said, and once they got out of the vehicle she tried to run.

Her assailant grabbed her by the arm, the woman told police, but she freed herself and threatened the man with a large rock and he ran.

In recently reported burglaries, James D. Townsend told police someone broke into his 2006 45th St. house and took four guns, jewelry and checks, together valued at $1,500.

Burglars who broke out a window at Robert Wade's 1310 E. Tulane St. home made off with about $500 worth of goods, including a television and antique flatware. Wade said the burglars also caused about $100 damage to the window and $50 damage to a china closet which housed the silverware.

A $450 television was taken from the home of Charles M. Cooper at 1707-A 9th St.

Cooper told police the burglars gained entry into his home through a kitchen window he had left open.

Mario E. Benitez of 1906 28th St., rear, told police burglars pried the door of his home and took a .38-caliber pistol, a television and a jewelry box, together valued at $350.

A .12-gauge shotgun was taken from Phillip L. Carroll's car that was parked at his 5313 49th St. residence. Carroll valued the gun at $160.

Coretta King Upset By Report Of FBI Plan To Oust Husband

ATLANTA (AP) — Reports that the FBI used a prominent black leader to try to oust Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. from the helm of the civil rights movement in the 1960s have raised the ire of King's widow, who says Americans should consider dismantling the FBI.

And the president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which King founded, said Monday that he would ask President Carter to have the FBI "substantiate the fantastic claim or withdraw it."

The Washington Post reported on Monday that a confidential FBI memo from 1963 indicated the bureau was working with an unidentified black leader in trying to replace King as a civil rights leader.

The memo from former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to his assistant, William C. Sullivan, reportedly alluded to a discussion between the unidentified black leader and FBI official Cartha DeLoach. Hoover and Sullivan are dead.

"While I am not going to comment specifically on this latest FBI revelation, it simply proves once again that the FBI treated the civil rights movement as if it were an alien enemy attack on the United States," Coretta Scott King said Monday.

"The personal innuendoes are beneath contempt and they establish once again the FBI's obsession for invading private lives and developing imaginative scenarios for their own purpose," she said.

"And all of this raises the real issue of today — since we can't do anything about yesterday — and that is: to question the purposes and the practices of the FBI, in whether we should as a nation consider dismantling it and replacing the FBI with a law enforcement agency with genuine and lawful objectives and procedures," said Mrs. King, president of the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change.

SCLC president Joseph Lowery said the FBI should identify the black leader whose name was deleted from the report.

"First of all, I think it is absolutely incredible that a prominent, reputable black leader would collaborate with the FBI to destroy or remove Dr. King, to use their words.

"While we suspected paid informants, they could have been at any level. But they said this was a top executive or prominent leader who was chosen by the FBI and could have replaced Dr. King," he said.

"I think they ought to drop the other shoe. I think it is unfair to cast shadows on the whole movement this way," Lowery said.

He said the FBI's action could be interpreted as an attempt to "shift blame for Dr. King's tragic death from the FBI and racists to blacks."

Helms Says Panama Rejected Treaty

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms told a Republican Party rally he has information that the Panamanian government has no intention of abiding by the Senate amendments to the Panama Canal treaties.

Helms told the rally Monday that the Panamanian government has rejected "all of the the amendments adopted by the Senate to make the treaties more palatable."

But a State Department spokeswoman said Panama notified the government last month that both treaties and all amendments were acceptable to Panama.

Helms later told WFMY-TV he had a copy of what he said was a communication from the Panamanian government to the United States in which, he said, the message is clear that "Panama will not respect the amendments."

Helms said he did not have the document with him and could not recall word-for-word what it said, but that he would unveil the information in a speech on the Senate floor on Monday.

State Department spokeswoman Kimberly King was quoted by WFMY-TV as saying the Panamanian Foreign Ministry notified the U.S. government in late April that both treaties and all amendments to them were acceptable to Panama.

She also said no communications had been received that would lead the State Department to believe the Panamanian position had changed.

The Senate amendments referred to by Helms were intended by their sponsors to give the United States the right to maintain the security of the canal in the interest of national security.

"So the question is," Helms said, "whether the president of the United States in full knowledge — and I'm going to make sure he knows it if he doesn't already — that the president of the United States will go down there and sign these treaties giving away our canal with no conditions whatsoever."

Blumenthal Opposes Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — No further cuts should be made in aid for international financial institutions, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says. He plans to ask the House to hold the aid figure at the $2.6 billion approved last week by the House Appropriations Committee.

Blumenthal said Monday the figure is $876 million less than the administration's request, "the absolute minimum amount which is consistent with the interests of the United States in the developing world...."

City Undergoes Spring Cleaning

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Teams of housing inspectors are poking through alleys and backyards in the final stages of a spring cleaning in which every one of the city's 98,409 houses was checked.

The annual rite combines the forces of 42 city inspectors with Boy Scouts and bird watchers in an attempt to make the city more clean and healthy.

Although many cities have spring clean-up campaigns, none is as intensive or sophisticated, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"Every year it improves immensely because the number of violators go down," field supervisor John Murphy said as he made spot checks of his district Thursday. "A couple of years ago, driving through here, it looked horrible."

A neighbor was glad to see Murphy walking around a boarded-up pink stucco house surrounded by tall weeds and marked by a large pile of rubbish in the carport.

"We've cleaned up our place," she said. "I think everyone should."

The city mailed 7,000 letters notifying the occupants that they were violating the housing code after initial checks two weeks ago and then rechecked those 7,000 locations this week.

The most common problem was garbage and rubbish, but complaints also included refrigerators in the yards, weeds and abandoned cars.

The 2,500 who failed to heed the first warning will get a sterner letter. If they still don't shape up they could be fined $25 to $50 or be billed for the city to do the clean-up.

Sun Can Cause Spots

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — What can a person do about gray or brownish spots on the face? They seem to come and go but don't get much larger. I protect my face from the sun as much as I can. Should a person see a dermatologist or could a regular physician prescribe something? I have been using creams and vaseline which seem to help some.

DEAR READER — You probably are describing keratosis spots. These are prone to develop from overexposure to sun and wind. Your family doctor can examine them for you and see if you require a specialist to see you.

I don't think they should be ignored. Some of these progress to skin cancer. At this early stage they can usually be removed by simple office procedures — often by using a salve.

Since summer is here again it is time to remind all my readers that the sun can cause spots, and is the greatest cause of skin cancer in the future. Also it ages the skin. That suntan everyone seems to want in the summer is really a reaction of injury of the skin. I suppose my saying this is not going to influence many young people who think youth with a beautiful skin is going to be theirs forever, but believe me it isn't.

At least try to limit your exposure to the sun. You can get some protection by limited exposure — no more than 15 minutes of sunlight a day — to gradually develop a tan and avoid a sunburn. But I must say even a suntan acquired that way still means skin injury.

Also some preparations are better to apply to the skin and protect it than others. To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What makes a person shy? Is shyness an emotional or mental illness of some type?

DEAR READER — I notice that you are so shy you failed to put your return address on your letter.

Shyness is a personality characteristic. We all have a personality, just as we have height, weight and physical characteristics. Your personality is just measured in different ways from the physical methods we usually employ to describe a person.

Your personality is a combination of what you are born with, such as your intellectual capacity, and your life experiences. If it is within the range of other people in your social sphere you are considered normal. But if you are sufficiently unusual that your personality causes problems for you or other people it is considered as being neurotic. That does not mean you are mentally ill, but simply that you are different, just as being unusually tall is different and can pose its own difficulties and rewards.

If your shyness is affecting your life or your happiness adversely then professional counseling may help you overcome or manage this personality characteristic. People don't seem to realize that professional counseling, including psychoanalysis, is often used to help people change their personality or attitudes to live more comfortably within their environment. If you are successful in life and comfortable then you may not need it. But if you want to change to be more comfortable or make a better person of yourself it may help you do that.

Dentists Work To Repair Dog's Tooth

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Omar, the German shepherd, is on the temporary inactive list at MacDill Air Force Base while dentists work to replace the bite behind his bark.

Omar, a 4-year-old dog trained by the Air Force both as a guard and as a narcotics detector, recently chipped a tooth and exposed the nerve.

"Like people, when a nerve is exposed, they're not about to bite on something because it hurts real bad," Dr. George Molnar said. "And, if a patrol dog can't bite, they are not too much use."

But Omar is considered so good at his work, officials decided to take special steps to get him back on the duty roster by providing him with a gold crown for the damaged tooth.

Last week, base veterinarian Christopher Bukala took Omar to the base dental clinic where Molnar performed a root canal and fellow dentist Dr. Evan Francis prepared a mold of the tooth.

"We'll make it (the crown) from hard gold and it will take about a week to complete the work," Francis said.

Meanwhile, Omar is recuperating from the surgery in his air-conditioned pen at the vet's office.

REBEL STARTER — Terry Willis of Midland Lee will face the Monterey Plainsmen in the opener of the best-of-three quarter-final series today on Lee's campus at 4 p.m. Willis fired a no-hitter in his last outing, a 1-0 regional victory over Arlington Sam Houston. Rebels Out To Continue Playoff Hex Over MHS

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
MIDLAND — There are all sorts of reasons to get superstitious about this Monterey-Midland Lee quarter-final playoff series, but MHS baseball boss Bobby Moegle tries to discount every one of them.

The battle for a trip to the state tournament (June 8-9 in Austin) begins its best-of-three series today in Midland Lee's field at 4 p.m. A possible doubleheader follows Friday in Lowrey Field at 2 p.m. Moegle downplays the fact that his team has downed the Rebels 5-0, 14-5 and 7-6 in the three regular-season encounters. He also dodges the fact that Lee coach Ernie Johnson owns a 2-0 lead in previous playoff series meetings.

"I think in a non-critical situation there's a tendency for one team to take the other lightly. When you've got a chance to go to the state tourney, it's a different story," Moegle said.

"I saw them (Thursday in the regional playoffs) against Sam Houston and I think they looked better in every phase of the game. And I feel we played better against them than they played against us."

As for the Johnson-Moegle previous confrontations, Lee eliminated Monterey in 1964 and 1969 in the two times the veteran coaches have collided in playoffs. In 1964, Moegle won the first game 4-3 before Johnson took 10-5 wins in each of the next two battles. In 1969, the same pattern existed with Monterey winning the opener 2-1 and losing the next two by 1-0 and 2-1 scores.

Albeit Moegle owns the home-field advantage for two of three meetings this week, the Monterey coach still accents the emphasis on today's game.

"I think the key to the whole thing is how we perform Tuesday," he said. "If they can beat us there, then we're really fighting for our lives. This is going to be a real good close series. Our kids are going to have to battle and play well."

Two Plainsmen played well when it counted in Friday's regional playoff win over El Paso Andres. Shortstop Mike Wooten's 3-run double in the fourth inning was the biggest offensive explosion of the windy day, while Ricky Pinkerton's pitching rescued a wild Derek Hatfield.

Moegle figured Wooten "has to be the hero" of both the Amarillo and El Paso series victories.

"In fact, he's been hitting the ball well since the second half of district play," he said.

As for Pinkerton, the Plainsmen coach felt the key centered around the sophomore's ability "to throw strikes."

A stout wind with gusts of up to 30 miles an hour would seemingly help the pitchers by blowing toward home plate. But Pinkerton noted that the wind created problems, too.

"I thought my curve ball would work, but I guess it didn't," he said. "I tried to throw about two curves and they wouldn't work because the wind was blowing across. I think that bothered Derek (Hatfield) too."

Moegle hopes Hatfield and Pinkerton get a rest from the mound today as Ron Reeves pitches for the Plainsmen against Terry Willis of Lee. Willis (9-2) tossed a no-hitter at Arlington in last Monday's regional playoff opener.

Willis, Doug Van Horn, Gary Gibson and Doug Schmidt have done the bulk of Lee's mound work down the stretch. Though the walk and strikeout ratios of the pitching staff are comparable, the Monterey's staff owns the lower earned-run average (2.43 to 3.38), while the Lee staff possesses the better proven depth.

Lee's team batting mark nips Monterey's .337 to .334, while the Plainsmen lead in home runs 25-9. Two of Lee's regulars, rightfielder Richard Josefy and pitcher-third baseman Van Horn bat in the 400 range, compared to Monterey's Eric Voyles (.424).

Heise-Kearney Shatter Reese Mark With 181

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
After shooting what link types refer to as "lights out golf" Saturday and Sunday, Kevin Heise and Jack Kearney came back down to earth Monday.

Well, almost anyway. The duo, which opened the first and second rounds of the Reese Air Force Base partnership tournament with a pair of 60s, cooled off during the final round, recording a so-so 61.

"I guess everything went well again today," Heise said, entering the clubhouse to turn in the team's scorecard.

The three-day total of 181 shattered the previous Reese mark, held by touring professional Jeff Mitchell and teammate Steve Long, by 17 shots. Mitchell and Long had posted a best of 198.

Heise and Kearney, a pair of Reese officers themselves, started the day with a five birdies, scoring a five-under par 31 on the front nine of the 6,332-yard, par 72 layout.

It was the first time the team, which held a 13-shot margin going into Monday's round, had shot higher than a 30 on any round of the event.

But they made up for lost time on the back nine, picking up four birdies and another eagle (their fourth of the tourney) to bring their score back down to the 30-stroke range.

"It's amazing," exclaimed Tournament Director Earl Hutchings. "I've never seen anyone score that well, that consistently, since I've been here."

No one has, Hutch. The only trouble the two slender lieutenants seemed to have Monday was when a par-3 hole came into sight. Of the five par 3s, the duo managed not to birdie a one of them. In fact, they were only two under for the entire tournament on the shorter holes. While Kearney and Heise were taking the Reese course apart and reassembling it, a battle for second place in the Championship Flight was brewing.

Steve Locke and Rex Robertson, a team which put on a phenomenal charge the final two days after opening with a two-under-par 70, had a chance to send the chase for second into a three-way tie with Dick Alexander and Chuck Noyes and Randy Hines and Gordon Butler.

But neither Locke nor Robertson could manage a par on the final hole, aborting their comeback try. The team ended play with a 201, shooting a 65 on the final day, the third-best score registered during the tournament.

"We just messed up," Locke said. "We had just birdied the three holes before that and then we couldn't get down on the last one."

Wanta Pitch In Majors? Contact White Sox

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

These have not been the best of times for Chicago White Sox fans. And that's putting it mildly. No team has won fewer games this season than the heroes of Chicago's south side and it took three straight over the last two days to reach 15 for the season. What makes that even tougher to take is the fact that across town, the north side Cubs are sitting in first place in their division.

Have the fates no mercy? If they are nothing else, White Sox fans are loyal. They remember the glory days of Jungle Jim Rivera, Barry Latman, Jim Landis, Dave Philley and the others who made rooting for the Pale Hose something of a religion. So it came to pass that during the current crisis last week one of the loyalists felt compelled to step forward and take action. The Sox were in the throes of one of their frequent throwing slumps when an anonymous fan decided the pitching staff needed immediate help. That was before shutouts Sunday and Monday by Francisco Barrios and Pablo Torrealba lent some respectability to Chicago mound situation.

The media message says it pays to advertise and the fan did just that — paid to advertise for pitchers.

Working through Shaker Advertising, an Oak Park, Ill. agency, he took out a classified ad in the Chicago Tribune. It read this way:

Baseball Pitchers
Lefties or Righties

Excellent career opportunities are now available for both experienced or inexperienced individuals with local American League team. Requirements entail ability to throw "Strikes". Salary commensurate with experience. Mail your resume in confidence.

The ad was careful to tread lightly over classified guidelines, including at the bottom, the standard disclaimer: "Equal Opportunity Employer M-F." This fan will take the help wherever he can get it and there are obviously no barriers, not even sex.

By the Memorial Day holiday, 67 replies had been received at the Tribune box number. Four of every five were serious responses from arms anxious to help the White Sox out of their pitching dilemma. One ex-batting practice pitcher offered his services and so did a youngster who pointed out that he had received a college pitching scholarship.

But sprinkled throughout the serious replies were some that offered comic relief. The White Sox, of course, can use any kind of relief they can get right now and if Bill Veck and Co. care for a few smiles to interrupt the frowns this season has produced, they might consider those other responses.

There was, for example, the one from "Leftie Go Mezz" who offered to pitch free of charge. Fracturing the language along the way, Leftie wrote: "U can have my serviceez for nuttings. Moneez doesz not apeet to me. I'd hurl for your team for the glorez and the t.v. commurshits I'd surelee gett."

Old Leftie signed the letter: "Your pennunt insurancz."

Speaking of old, another reply came from Ricardo Jorge Bourjalio who offered vast experience, saying he had pitched in Venezuela for 42 years. He started, explained Ricardo, when he was six.

Bourjalio's qualifications are unique. He claims to be something of an ironman, once having pitched 61 innings in a game which lasted 16 hours, 42 minutes. His team lost, he explained, but it wasn't a complete washout because the reliever was charged with the setback.

Luko "Country Boy" Stables sent along a detailed statistical rundown. It lists him as 5-foot-8, 215 pounds and 43 years old next month. His well-traveled career includes stops at "Lake Murky" in the "Big Muddy" league; "Biloxi" in the "Gulf & Western"; and one year with "Kung Fu" in, of course, "Japan." Country Boy has the added asset of throwing either left-handed or right-handed, depending on what the situation requires.

Assembling the replies is Joseph Shaker, Sr., who heads the agency through which the ad was placed. He will pass them along to Veck who, it should be remembered, once hired a midget for the old St. Louis Browns. Stay loose, Country Boy.

Messersmith One-Hits Indians In '78 Debut

By The Associated Press

Andy Messersmith could have taken the money and run. Instead, he took the long road back — and on Monday night, he arrived.

In his first regular-season pitching appearance since last July 3, when he suffered an elbow injury that required surgery, and his first appearance of any kind since March 16, when he suffered a separated shoulder in an exhibition game, Messersmith made believers out of a lot of people — including himself.

"If I had logically thought about what could happen in my first game back, the answer would be 'Not this,'" the New York Yankees' right-hander said after pitching five innings of one-hit ball in the Yankees' 2-0 victory in Cleveland. "If I saw somebody else go through what I did, I'd say I didn't expect something like this."

In other American League games, Boston beat Toronto 5-4, Baltimore downed Detroit 6-3, Chicago clobbered California 7-0, Oakland defeated Milwaukee 6-2, Kansas City trimmed Seattle 8-2 and, in a two-night twinbill, Texas tamed Minnesota 7-1 before the Twins came back for a 7-2 victory.

Messersmith, who makes something more than $300,000 a year, played for Atlanta when he suffered his elbow injury last season, a mediocre season in which he finished at 5-4, not the kind of showing for a man who had won his free agency and began haggling over seven-figure contracts a few years back.

When the Yanks bought that contract, a lot of eyebrows shot up. New York, after all, already had a lot of golden arms like Catfish Hunter, Mike Torrez and Don Gullett. And when Messersmith was hurt again in a spill at first base in spring training, heads began shaking. It was wasted money, the cynics said.

Well, Hunter and Gullett are on the disabled list and Torrez is in Boston, where he raised his record to 7-2 Monday.

And Messersmith can raise his head again when he goes to cash his checks at the bank. "There were times when I backed up to the teller's window," he recalled recently. "But I never played for an organization with a front office as understanding as this one. I told (Yankees President) Al Rosen I wanted to go back home to California and go on my own rehabilitation program instead of staying with the team in Fort Lauderdale. He said, 'Go ahead and do it. I trust you.'"

"I appreciate that. Now I want to give them a little bit of what they gave me."

He gave them five sensational innings, striking out three batters, walking one, yielding only a first-inning single by Jim Norris and retiring the last eight Indians he faced. The only reason he didn't get a victory is that Rick Waits blanked the Yanks in that stretch.

Rawly Eastwick was even better than Messersmith over the final four innings. He was perfect, setting down all 12 Cleveland batters, four of them on strikeouts. He got the victory when Graig Nettles followed Lou Piniella's seventh-inning single with his 11th home run of the season.

He gave them five sensational innings, striking out three batters, walking one, yielding only a first-inning single by Jim Norris and retiring the last eight Indians he faced.

"This is the way I programmed it," Messersmith said of his return. "I could have pitched more but I didn't want to. It would have been foolish for me when I have a guy like Rawly in the bullpen. . . . I told him I was sorry about Norris' single, that without it we'd have had a no-hitter."

"Five innings was my goal and I did it fairly easily. What do I do for an encore? Maybe six."

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 4
Just as Messersmith did his Hollywood script thing, Dwight Evans did his, hitting a game-winning homer in the eighth for his ailing son to keep the Red Sox two games ahead of the Yanks in the East Division.

"I was trying to hit it for my little boy," he said of 5-year-old Timothy, suffering from an eye ailment that has required several operations. "My son is in the hospital. It can be difficult to play with him in there. I think about it, but I've been through this before, so I just try to play the game."

Orioles 6, Tigers 3
Carlos Lopez started the shugging for Baltimore with a first-inning homer, then Lee May took over. He blasted a three-run homer in the third inning and a solo shot in the fifth.

Scott McGregor of the Orioles went the distance for the fourth straight time. He was tagged for a two-run homer by Rusty Staub of the Tigers in the ninth.

White Sox 7, Angels 0
Thad Angles, acquired by Chicago, from the Angels last winter and called up from the minors only last weekend, hit his first major league homer and also doubled and singled to lead in four runs in support of Pablo Torrealba's four-hit performance for the White Sox.

A's 6, Brewers 2
Pete Broberg's six-hit and Jeff Newman's homer enabled the A's to beat Milwaukee and regain a one-game lead over the Angels in the West. The triumph ended a four-game losing streak for Broberg, who had begun the season with four straight wins.

Rangers 7-2, Twins 1-7
Dock Ellis and Roger Moret checked Minnesota on three hits in the first game and Al Oliver drove in four runs with a pair of sacrifice flies, a homer and a single for Texas. It was Moret's first appearance for the Rangers since he lapsed into a catatonic state April 12 and spent several weeks under observation.

In the second game, the Twins settled matters with a four-run first, two scoring on Jose Morales' double.

Royals 8, Mariners 2
George Brett unloaded a 425-foot homer with two mates aboard in the first inning and added two other hits later as Kansas City routed Seattle and Dick Pole, who lasted only one inning and gave up four hits and five runs.

Ellis Pops Off Again

ARLINGTON (AP) — There was Dock Ellis, issuing a press release one moment, pitching a one-hitter the next and defying his manager again and again.

There was Roger Moret, last month locked in a catatonic state so severe he stood transfixed like a statue for an hour, buzzing his fastball past the Minnesota Twins in a triumphant comeback.

There was Texas Ranger Manager Billy Hunter telling the press never to talk to him again about the recalcitrant Ellis.

There was former Ranger Mike Marshall, accused by his old mates of using sandpaper under his fingernails, chopping Texas to pieces with his screwball.

It was a memorable Memorial Day doubleheader at Arlington Stadium Monday.

Ellis, who has clashed with Hunter over rules limiting when and where the team can drink, sent a handwritten notice to the press announcing his resignation as player representative and then took the mound.

Texas walked to a 7-1 victory, with Ellis going seven innings before he retired with a blister on his pitching hand. Moret made a dramatic entrance replete with a standing ovation from the 28,000 fans.

Roy Smalley touched Moret for a home run, but he went two innings. There had been predictions he would never pitch again for the Rangers.

The Twins took the nightcap 7-2 behind starter Roger Erickson and Marshall, who handcuffed the Rangers for the last four outs.

"Anything now is individual. . . . It is between Hunter and me," Ellis said. "I didn't want to put my teammates in the middle."

Ellis' "press release" said he will not change his "outspoken ways. . . . as long as I can breathe."

Ellis said the man issue between him and Hunter is the harsh tone Hunter used towards Ellis on a team bus.

The Ranger right-hander was referring to an incident on a bus during a recent road trip when Hunter told Ellis: "Shut up and sit down!"

Hunter was livid in the Ranger dressing room between games, telling writers in a breaking voice, "I've heard enough Dock Ellis stories."

After the second game, Hunter declared, "All I want Ellis to do is pitch. Don't come ask me about what he says."

Moret was chirping like a bird over his comeback. He had spent several weeks in a psychiatric hospital in Arlington before obtaining his release. He pitched batting practice on the Rangers' last road trip.

"The ovation made me feel comfortable," Moret said. "I knew I would come back. The team needed me. I just wanted to throw strikes. Smalley hit a high fastball. I didn't want to take a chance walking anyone with a six-run lead."

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch was impressed by Ellis, saying, "He knows an awful lot about pitching. I remember him as a power pitcher when he was in the National League. Now he knows it all."

Mauch asked Hunter before the game, "What do you plan to do about Ellis?" Hunter said "Nothing."

Mauch smiled and replied, "I love those groundball pitchers."

Hunter replied, "Yes, and I love those Panamanians."

Hunter, of course, was referring to the Twins' fabulous Rod Carew.

Al Oliver said he hopes the dispute between Ellis and Hunter can be resolved because "Dock really wants to stay in Texas. He was the first player I met in professional baseball at Daytona Beach in 1965. The man can pitch."

Oliver said the dispute over the rules had "become funny to the other players. I don't drink, so I'm not worried."

But Oliver added, "You have to give credit to Dock. He can handle the heat. He stands behind what he says."

The Rangers' new player rep is first baseman Mike Hargrove.

And where he is after the Rangers' mandatory 15-minute "cooling off period" following the second game? Gone.

DHS, EHS Get Bosses

Vince Bufamonte was officially named head baseball coach at Estacado High School this morning by Lubbock Athletic Director Pete Ragus.

Estacado and Dunbar high schools will move into District 1-AAA next year and both will field baseball teams for the first time since 1976.

Kelly Rogers was named the diamond mentor at Dunbar. Rogers was an aide at El Paso Riverside during the 1976-'77 school year and that school copped the district title this spring. Rogers was at Atkins Junior High this past year.

Bufamonte has been head baseball coach at Lubbock High for the past four years, winning the district and bidistrict championships in 1976.

Grimsley, Expos Halt Cub Win Streak

By The Associated Press
If Ross Grimsley cared to cast a quick glance at the paper this morning — which he probably didn't — he would have seen his name as the winning pitcher in the National League.

Grimsley hurled a four-hitter and became the NL's first eight-game winner Monday night as the Montreal Expos came from behind with three runs in the sixth inning and ended the Chicago Cubs' eight-game winning streak 4-2.

Ironically, the Cubs' longest winning streak of 1977 was eight games and that one also ended in Montreal.

Grimsley is more concerned with the Expos' status than his own, and if he had to have a newspaper with his breakfast coffee he'd be more concerned with the standings than his own record.

"It's not the first thing I do when I get up," he said. "I don't look at the papers to see if someone is ahead of me. What I'm concerned with is how the team is doing. In this series with the Cubs, if we can win two out of three, or if we take all three of these games, it'll really be outstanding and really get the team fired up. If we win all three we'll be just a half-game behind the Cubs."

In other NL action, the San Francisco Giants routed the Houston Astros 8-1, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Atlanta Braves 7-5, the Los Angeles Dodgers clubbed the San Diego Padres 9-6, the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 14 innings and the New York Mets beat St. Louis in the opener of a doubleheader before the Cardinals took the nightcap 6-2 in 10 innings.

The Cubs had taken a 2-0 lead against Grimsley before the Expos rallied against Woodie Fryman and loser Donnie Moore, the former Monterey High School fireballer who suffered his first setback of the season after posting two wins and two saves. The Expo three-run sixth included RBI singles by Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine and a run-scoring grounder by Andre Dawson.

"I've never had a start like this," said Grimsley, who was signed as a free agent after playing out his option with the Baltimore Orioles. "It just seems to have worked right. I've thrown the right pitches, and when I need them the guys get the runs for me."

Giants 8, Astros 1

Ed Halicki drove in two runs with a fourth-inning single—his first hit of the season—and scattered seven hits as he continued his mastery of Houston in the Astrodome. Halicki, who also got a bunt single, is 2-0 this season — he beat the Astros 9-1 with a six-hitter last Thursday in San Francisco — and his earned run average against the Astros in Houston over the past 43 innings is 0.63.

Bill Madlock slammed losing pitcher Floyd Bannister's third pitch of the game for a home run and Halicki delivered a tie-breaking single in the fourth following singles by Willie McCovey and Mike Ivie and a walk to Mike Sadek.

"It seems like every time I have faced them in the Astrodome I have had good stuff, and I feel that I can beat anybody when I have good stuff," said Halicki. "I gave up a lot of hard-hit balls, but the guys behind me came up with great plays when we needed it."

Reds 7, Braves 5

Mike Lum's tie-breaking three-run homer capped a four-run eighth-inning rally by the Reds, who tied the game 4-4 on Dave Concepcion's single following a walk to Pete Rose and a bad-hop double past third by Ken Griffey. Cincinnati's other three runs came in the fifth inning on George Foster's eighth homer following a walk to Griffey and a single by Concepcion, the Reds' first hit of the game off Atlanta starter Mickey Mahler.

Dodgers 9, Padres 6

Bill Russell doubled and singled twice and Lee Lacy homered to lead a 10-hit Los Angeles attack while Tommy John earned his seventh victory in nine decisions with relief help from Terry Forster. San Diego took a 2-0 lead in the fourth on a two-run homer by Gene Tenace... but the Dodgers jumped on Gaylord Perry for three runs in the bottom of the fourth.

Phillies 4, Pirates 3

Richie Hebner's bases-loaded single with two out in the 14th inning scored Bud Harrelson with the winning run. Harrelson opened the 14th against newly acquired reliever Dave Hamilton with a walk. Bake McBride sacrificed and Larry Bowa grounded out.

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner ordered an intentional walk to Mike Schmidt, who tied the game 4-4 on a 6-for-20 slump, but Hamilton also walked Jerry Martin, loading the bases. Hebner, a former Pirate, then lashed a single to right field.

Mets 7-2, Cardinals 4-2

Jerry Morales' tie-breaking two-run double in the 10th inning paced the Cardinals' victory in the nightcap, ending a five-game losing streak. It was only the second victory for the Cardinals in their last 18 games and the first time in 12 games they scored more than two runs. The Mets won the opener as Pat Zachry hurled a three-hitter and singled to start a five-run fifth inning, which included two-run homers by Bruce Boisclair and Willie Morales.

Brett Homers For Namesake

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett's devil-may-care image took a tumble Monday night when he slammed one of the longest home runs of his life and dedicated it to G. B. Peatrowsky of Fremont, Neb.

There were no homeplate ceremonies or post-game speeches. But the all-star third baseman, who collected three hits as the Kansas City Royals whipped the Seattle Mariners 8-2 simply said later he hit the home run for young Peatrowsky. He'd never heard of him until he arrived at the stadium Monday afternoon.

It was then he found a letter and a picture of a new-born baby boy waiting for him.

"Dear Mr. Brett," said the letter, "I don't know if you'll receive this, but..."

The note from Mrs. Peatrowsky went on to say that her husband was "such a big fan of yours" that when their son was born in January he insisted they name him George Brett Peatrowsky.

"We wanted you to enjoy our happiness," the note concluded, and inside was a picture of young George Brett Peatrowsky.

"Some people might laugh at that, but I'm not," said Brett, "I take that as a compliment. A heck of a compliment. What that means is somebody thinks enough of me to want their son to be like me. That's about as high a compliment as a man can pay another man, you know? I don't take it lightly."

George Brett Peatrowsky may grow up and watch a lot of baseball games before he sees a home run as long as the one that was hit for him in the first inning Monday night. Estimated at 425 feet, it splashed into upper tier of the water display behind the right field fence and gave the Royals a 3-0 lead.

Dick Pole, Mariners' starter, was chased in the second with nobody out. Al Cowens walked, then Fred Patek lashed a line drive double to left that Bruce Bochte let get past him, with both runs scoring.

Rookie right-handed Rich Gale notched his fifth victory in as many decisions, going all the way and scattering 11 hits. Pole, 4-5, was the loser.

It may be fitting that George Brett Peatrowsky is named after one of the most aggressive, hard-nosed players in the American League. In the snapshot, he's got his eyes squeezed shut and both hands balled up into tiny fists.

"Yeah," grinned Brett, "some of the guys noticed that, too."

Lipscomb Keeps NAIA Series Mark Perfect

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — David Lipscomb (Tenn.) scored six times in the fifth and withstood a wave of wildness in the sixth Monday night to hold on for an 11-5 victory over Point Park (Pa.) in a winner's bracket game in the 22nd Annual NAIA World Series.

The victory for David Lipscomb, 50-9, pushes the Bisons into a meeting tonight against Missouri Southern. Point Park, 31-3, faces Emporia State in a loser's elimination game this afternoon. Lewis-Clark goes into the loser's bracket against College of St. Francis (Ill.).

Singles by Frank Carter, Glenn Eddins, and Bob Hamilton, a triple by Reggie Whittemore, a wild pitch and a single by Steve Liddle produced the six-run inning for the Bisons.

Point Park scored five times in the sixth with the benefit of one hit.

Four Bison pitchers allowed seven walks before retiring Point Park.

David Lipscomb collected 15 hits with five pitchers getting two or more safeties.

Six Bison pitchers combined to allow Point Park just four hits, but surrendered eight walks.

Red O'Dell singled home the tie-breaking runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift Missouri Southern to a 6-4 victory over Lewis-Clark in a winner's bracket game.

Earlier, the College of St. Francis erupted for seven runs in the second inning and went on to defeat Coastal Carolina, 11-5, in a loser's elimination game.

It was Lewis-Clark's first loss against NAIA competition this season.

Sunday, Area II representative William Carey of Hattiesburg, Miss., the nation's No. 1 ranked team, fell twice and was eliminated. The Crusaders lost to Lewis-Clark and to Emporia State.

Missouri Southern, which rallied from a 3-0 deficit, put together a single and two walks before O'Dell's one-out game winning hit.

The Lions had scored twice in the sixth and seventh innings to tie the game at 4-4. Lewis-Clark collected 12 hits off four Missouri Southern pitchers but stranded 12 runners and committed two key fielding errors which enabled Missouri Southern to tie the game in the seventh.

Dennis Seibe, the fourth Missouri

Southern pitcher, received credit for the victory while John Christiansen took the loss for Lewis-Clark.

Monday afternoon's loss knocked Coastal Carolina (S.C.) out of the double-elimination tournament.

The Saints from Illinois used a pair of walks, four singles and an error as they quickly erased a Coastal Carolina 2-0 lead. Carolina had taken its lead in the first inning on Tom Romano's two-run homer.

Although Carolina cut the margin to 7-5 on Steve Billingsley's two-run double and a pair of singles, St. Francis came back with three runs in the seventh on two walks, an error and back-to-back doubles by Joe Koralik and Tony Cunningham.

Winner Bill Gimbel went the distance for St. Francis. Marshall Tesauro, who was knocked out in the second inning,

Drivers Feel Indy Speeds Must Be Reduced

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS — The cars that run in the Indianapolis 500 are torpedoes on wheels. Low-slung, high-powered, they travel at such phenomenal speeds that, seen from track side, they become only a blur to the naked eye.

As they roar and shriek deafeningly through the no longer impenetrable 200 miles per hour barrier, they threaten to become instruments of destruction — moving funeral pyres for the sacrifices to man's lust for speed.

At the same time, they are intricate, sophisticated machines put together with scientific precision and repeatedly tested at a cost of thousands of dollars.

Weakness of a 25-cent bolt can send them careening into a wall or somersaulting over the infield grass.

Escalating speed and threat of domination of the sport by a well-heeled cartel owning the fastest cars and best drivers emerged this week as the greatest threat to one of the biggest, wildest and most exciting spectacles in sports.

"We've got to slow 'em down — no doubt about it, we've got to slow 'em down."

This was the constant talk among drivers, men in the pits and around Gasline Alley during the 62nd running of the Indy 500 Sunday.

Yet out of the packed stands — 230,000 filled seats — and from the jammed infield — in excess of 100,000 — came the ominous echo:

"Faster, faster, faster."

Fortunately, it was a surprisingly safe race this year. With so many fast cars back in the pack — A.J. Foyt in the seventh row and Mario Andretti in the 10th — some feared the worst. The situation reeked of potential danger. Nothing happened.

There was concern that 1978 might duplicate or even exceed the horrors of 1973 when the machines of Salt Walther and Swede Savage disintegrated in crashes. Savage dying of injuries, and a crewman was killed when struck by an emergency truck racing to an accident scene.

Fifty-three lives have been snuffed out in the 67 years of this highly charged event.

While continuing safety measures have curtailed the incidence of casualties, the trend toward increased, blinding speed has concerned the gutsiest of drivers.

"I don't drive any more — I just aim," confesses Bobby Unser, older brother of the 1978 winner, Al. "I don't see four turns. I see only two."

Dan Gurney has argued so vigorously for a formula overhaul that he has legislated himself out of competition. Andy Granatelli is preaching a gospel of "a return to stock blocks, stock gasoline and standard tires."

Nobody's listening.

Both issues — speed and money — found a responsive chord in the garage of Spike Gehlhausen, at 23 the youngest driver in Sunday's race, and a member of a Jasper, Ind., family team that put a car on the tracks on a shoestring.

"We have about a $75,000 operation," said the slender youngster who avoided a serious accident when he rammed into a wall early in the race, sending rubber and debris flying. "That is nothing compared with what the top guys spend."

Roger Penske has three cars in the race (Tom Sneva, Rick Mears and Andretti). His setup is worth at least $1.5 million. Jim Gilmore and A.J. Foyt must spend more. They build cars and can spend thousands testing them until they're right. We can't afford it."

Spike's father, Carl, a former midget and dirt track driver, builds the cars. Mother Marge keeps the charts. An older brother works in the pits.

There's agreement around Indy that the race is confined to a half-dozen wealthy combines who control the fastest cars and best drivers, such as the Unseers, Foyt, Sneva, Gordon Johncock and Johnny Rutherford, and that everybody else is in just for the ride.

"I would like to see a limitation of the boost," Gehlhausen said. "That would cut down the speed somewhat and give some of the outsiders, like me, a chance. We don't have all the sophisticated equipment and money to experiment."

"But I don't think we should lose 30 miles an hour, or anything like that. After all, speed still is the name of the game."

Lopez Zooms Past Carner

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — On Sunday JoAnne Carner, holding a two-stroke lead over Nancy Lopez after three rounds, promised to "leave Nancy in the dust" in the final round of the $100,000 LPGA tournament to successfully defend her title.

But Miss Lopez changed all that Monday by simply outplaying Miss Carner. She shot a course record 7-under-par 65 for a four-day total of 11-under 277 to win the $15,000 first prize by three strokes over Miss Carner, her third straight victory and fifth this year.

"I can't believe the way I played today," said Miss Lopez. "I was really psyched up. After JoAnne said yesterday she'd leave me in the dust I was really pumped up and I was going to make her work real hard."

Miss Carner turned in a solid round, going 2-under 70 for a final total of 8-under 280.

But Miss Lopez was sensational. She recorded eight birdies, including four over the first six holes, and her only bogey came on a shot which hit the cup and inexplicably bounced out.

"I got her mad with my quotes," said Miss Carner. "I've got to be sure I don't do that again. She's tough when she's mad."

Pat Bradley finished third with 2-under 286, as she shot a 66 on the final 18 holes with seven birdies and a bogey. Sandra Post, the second-round leader, and Penny Pult tied for fourth at 1-under 287 and Amy Alcott finished at par-288. Jane Bialock and Kathy Postlewait were in 1-over 289 and Patty Hayes was 2-over 290.

In addition to setting a course record — her best round ever — Miss Lopez' 277 was the best score on the tour all year. She upped her leading official earnings to $96,448 and most likely will break the $100,000 mark earlier in the year than any woman ever. She is also in striking distance of Jerry Pate's record of $153,000, the most money won by a rookie, male or female, and surpassing that would also establish a new record for most money won in one year by a woman. Judy Rankin holds that record with $150,734.

"If I'm asleep I hope I never wake up," said Miss Lopez.

"She's one of the best competitors I've seen in a long time," said Miss Carner, who earned $9,750 for her second-place finish.

Miss Lopez will rest next week and miss the LPGA tournament at Toronto, then rejoin the tour for the LPGA Championship at Kings Island, Ohio, June 8.

Her absence will not make many players unhappy.

"I hear Nancy's taking time off next week," said Miss Carner. "So now the rest of us have a chance."

Texans Trevino, Rankin Have Same Speech Writer?

TORONTO (AP) — Golfers Lee Trevino and Judy Rankin weren't on the same platform Monday but they sounded as if they had the same speech writer.

Trevino, defending Canadian Open champ who calls El Paso home, was here to promote the June 22-25 event and told a press conference he'd like to see a better distribution of purse money on the pro tour, more tournaments to accommodate the growing number of good players and more pressure on the star players to appear at some of the smaller tournaments.

Mrs. Rankin, who hails from Midland and here to prepare for this week's Ladies Professional Golf Association event, said she'd also like to see a better distribution of purses on the LPGA tour.

"Previously there were only five or six $100,000 tournaments," said Mrs. Rankin. "This year there are more than 15. It's created a bit of a monster."

"It could hurt the smaller events. The average purse is between $75,000 and $80,000, with some tournaments down around $50,000. So it only stands to reason that if you're going to skip an event, you'll miss the small, 54-hole tournament."

"We need to bring up the average of the purses to even out the fields."

On the men's pro tour, Trevino suggested that sponsors should get together to force star players to appear in some of the smaller tournaments which they now skip.

"If those 40 different sponsors ever got together, they could get the players to do anything. Every three years a player should be required to play each of the tournaments at least once."

Trevino said it is unfair that there is only one big-money tournament each week when there are so many good golfers who want to compete, but he said he doubts a second major tour will be formed in the near future.

He also suggested fewer exemptions and more players forced to qualify. "My proposal, if the tour does not split or go world-wide, is that only the top 80 money-winners should have exemptions and everybody else should have to qualify."

Trevino doesn't like the way the money is split in each tournament with only 50 of the 70 players sharing the purse.

"The other guys have played four good days of golf and had to pay their caddies and travel expenses, but they don't get anything. I would favor that the winner should get less than the present 20 per cent of the purse and that more money be given to the lower finishers."

Although he played well in the first two rounds at Augusta this spring, Trevino still insists the Masters is overrated and should not be ranked as one of the sport's major events.

He claims the Augusta course favors long hitters and does not penalize inaccuracy. "Their fairways are 100 yards wide. Nowhere else do you find that. Until they get some rough, I won't consider it a major tournament."

Trevino said he's looking forward to the Canadian Open at Glen Abbey near Oakville, Ont. "It's as a golf course should be — it rewards the good shot and penalizes the bad one."

'Neutral' Site Puzzles Bullets

SEATTLE (AP) — Game 4 of the National Basketball Association championship series will be played in Seattle tonight, but it won't be on the SuperSonics' homecourt.

Instead, the Washington Bullets and the Sonics will meet in the Kingdom before what could be the largest crowd in NBA history.

Leading 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, the Sonics are talking confidently about winning the title. Three of the four remaining games will be played in Seattle.

The switch to the Kingdom was the result of a scheduling conflict at the Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 21 consecutive games.

There is no clearcut consensus on whether the Kingdom is a neutral court.

"The next game's (tonight's) really a neutral court, in the Kingdom, but we'll still have 40,000 fans rooting for us," said Sonics guard Gus Williams.

"I don't see how anything in Seattle can be considered neutral," said Washington Coach Dick Motta.

"Every court is the same, we'll actually be using the same floor as we normally use," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "But instead of 14,000 fans screaming for us, we'll have 40,000. Tell me that's not going to get a team up."

The Sonics move to the Kingdom on a permanent basis next season, but tonight's game will be the first basketball game ever in the domed stadium. Game 5 Friday night will be in the Coliseum.

Fans hungry for the first NBA title in the Sonics' 11-year history gobbled up the first 29,000 tickets for tonight's game. An additional 15,000 "distant viewing" seats are on sale for $3 apiece.

Present NBA attendance records are 21,564 for a playoff game in Cleveland.

35,077 for a regular season game in the Louisiana Superdome and 41,165 for a doubleheader at the Houston Astrodome in 1969.

The Bullets now are in the same position the Sonics were when they headed east — they need a split on the road.

Seattle managed the split with a 93-92 victory over the Bullets Sunday at Landover, Md.

"When we came back (to Washington) we wanted at least a split," said Wilkens.

"We did what we had to do, and now we have to feel very confident going home."

"The most important thing is we have to go out there (Seattle) and at least split," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes.

Bullets center Wes Unseld agreed. "They beat us here, we got to beat them out there."

Indy Grounds Trash Picker's Paradise

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It's a dirty, messy, smelly job — but somebody has to do it.

The herculean task of cleaning up the litter left behind by the 300,000 fans who attended Sunday's 62nd Indianapolis 500-mile race has fallen to 235 workers.

Monday, they went to work.

There was still a long way to go this morning. Bottles, coolers and cans covered the 700-acre complex. Mounds of trash dotted the grandstands like silent spectators staring out at the 2½-mile asphalt track.

Bear cans glistened in the bushes and banners of toilet paper flapped from the trees.

It was a trash picker's paradise.

Luther Ray, assistant superintendent for the Speedway, looked out over the littered fields Monday and shook his head.

"Every year, it's the same story. We know it's going to happen. We know people are going to make a mess."

"You can guard this place all you want — people are still going to do their damage."

Maintenance crews that spent months preparing for Sunday's race, returned to the fields to cope with its aftermath.

Some, like James Reconno of Frankfort, Ind., said he hoped to find some rich man's wallet. Instead, the cleanup crew found half-eaten sandwiches, empty soda bottles and discarded lawn chairs.

They extinguished fires set in decrepit cars, abandoned by their owners and destined for the Brownsburg dump. They chased overzealous scavengers hoping to find treasures amid the trash.

Janet Guthrie's Wish: Satisfied 500 Sponsor

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After fighting three years to prove herself behind the wheel, Janet Guthrie hopes her ninth-place finish in Sunday's Indianapolis 500 will leave her just another driver with a satisfied sponsor.

"I was shooting for the top five, but I got the top 10 — and I'll take it," Guthrie said, moments after easing out of her Wildcat racer and into the arms of her ecstatic crew.

Guthrie endured a hairline fracture in her right wrist — sustained Friday in a charity tennis match — and a cockpit too short for her lanky, 5-foot-9 frame. She pushed her four-cylinder car to an average speed of 152.965 miles per hour over the 475 miles she had driven when winner Al Unser took the checkered flag.

A year ago, she finished 29th in her first Indy start, spending more time in the pits than on the track.

She clearly-felt her performance had dealt a blow to any who still doubted her ability to race with the top drivers on the U.S. Auto Club circuit.

Has she proven anything?

"Probably in somebody's mind, but not mine," she said between sips of beer and Gatorade outside her Gasline Alley garage. "I'm glad if it meant something to people who think that a woman still couldn't do it — maybe this will be one more little bit of evidence against that."

Like any driver, sponsorship is the big question now in Guthrie's racing future.

"I really think that (retaining a sponsor) is the most difficult part of racing for a woman," she said, making it clear that she hopes to remain with Texaco, which opened its purses at the last minute and allowed her a free hand in directing her

Indy 500 effort.

She said she "had some feedback that Texaco is very pleased," but she wouldn't know for sure until meeting with company officials in the next two weeks.

Guthrie's harshest words were for the speedway management.

"I did feel they should have taken some steps to find a garage for a serious entrant with a major new sponsor," she said, referring to a dispute earlier in the week, when speedway officials did not assign her a garage. "But the speedway management was absolutely immovable."

George Bignotti, the first member of a rival crew to congratulate Guthrie — a huge kiss on the lips as she left the track apron — came to the rescue and allowed her to use one of the spaces assigned to his team.

Guthrie repaid his courtesy, attributing a large portion of her success not only to her stock car circuit-trained crew but also to Bignotti's early assistance in getting the racer properly set up. Bignotti had sold her the car, driven last year by Wally Dallenbach.

Is she now thinking of winning at Indy? "I think I have the capability to win," she said firmly, noting that success here is so closely tied to the quality of racing machinery and the crew that works on it. "You just have to get it all together — and then have a little bit of luck."

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Off 1.30 At 830.39

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, struggling against continued inflation and interest-rate worries, retreated slightly today in quiet post-holiday trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.30 at 830.39, after a loss of 15.16 points last week.

Declines held a 6-5 lead over advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The session was expected to be relatively slow with a number of institutions, including New York banks, closed in observance of Memorial Day.

Brokers said traders were waiting uneasily for Wednesday's report from the Labor Department on the consumer price index for April.

By this morning a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate, initiated last Thursday by Chicago's Continental Illinois bank, had been matched by most other leading banks across the country.

That put the basic charge on blue-chip loans at 8 1/2 percent, its highest level in more than three years.

Bentley Consolidated Mining class B stock led the active list, up 1/4 at 4 1/4. A 134,800-share block traded at 4 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .06 to 54.08. On the Market Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .09 at 144.21.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.18 million shares at noon, against 9.75 million at the same point Friday.

Use Of Calculators Increases In Classrooms

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT LOS ANGELES (AP) — In an increasing number of classrooms in the Los Angeles area — and across the country — calculators, and even more sophisticated computer systems, are becoming nearly as routine with students as slide rules and flash cards once were.

"Drab instruction is not good enough anymore in the days of color television," says Arthur Freier, math instruction supervisor in Los Angeles. "I haven't found anyone who can generate interest in having kids add columns of numbers every day."

So a growing number of Los Angeles grade-schoolers now use pocket calculators when they work on those multi-digit problems. Or they may phone a computer downtown and ask it to work out the problems. Or they can sit at TV-like display terminals and type out answers to problems posed and corrected by a computer.

They can even design their own computer math programs on a stack of coded cards, which are returned in the mail from downtown with printouts of solutions from the computer.

Not all teachers in the area have opened their classrooms to calculators and other methods for mechanizing mathematics. Many say they fear automation will interfere with thought development and students' mastery of fundamental skills.

"What do you do when the batteries run down?" asks Dave Booth, a teacher at Miller Elementary School in Escondido, near San Diego. "Competition is the key to getting kids involved in learning, not gadgets."

Others counter that the computer is not taking the place of old-fashioned arithmetic; it is used in addition to paper and pencils. And, they say, pocket calculators are becoming as commonplace in homes as TV sets — with youngsters bringing them from home.

"I'm not going to say there are no dangers," concedes Freier, who helped pioneer the use of calculators and computers in Los Angeles schools. "But I think if the teacher handles it right and the students use them correctly, the abuse won't happen."

Used properly, Freier and others say, the calculator merely enlivens the study of numbers and allows bright kids to explore more advanced concepts.

Not all students in the area are provided calculators, but thousands of dollars in city and federal money have been used to fully equip many classrooms. One grant was used recently to stock classes whose experiences will be the basis for future curriculum decisions on calculator use.

David A. Kay, vice president of the Los Angeles City Teachers Math Association and a teacher at Madison Junior High School, says he was one of the beneficiaries of that grant.

Kay, who devised a calculator program for students in the district, uses computers primarily in a class of non-achievers or low-achievers who have had little previous success with math.

"A lot of them have not even learned their basic mathematics tables," Kay says. "Most probably won't. So we put the calculator in the classroom and it takes the drudgery out of math for them."

"It also assures that if they press the right button, they will get the right answer," he says. "Then we can teach concepts we could never teach before because they weren't able to get past the arithmetic."

Kay says test results on the effectiveness of the calculator are inconclusive.

Dole Introduces Bill To Prevent 'Coursing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., didn't like what he saw when he watched a moving about "coursing" — the practice where greyhounds are allowed to chew rabbits to pieces as a public sport.

So he introduced legislation that would make public coursing illegal. The act has not made him friends, however, among animal lovers.

The Humane Society of the United States said the measure was not strong enough and a society spokeswoman, Patricia Forkan, called it a "whitewash."

"We hope a stronger bill is going to be introduced and we're working on it," she said. "And it's not going to sell out to a special interest group."

The Humane Society also wants private coursing to be banned. But such a move would be strongly opposed by the National Greyhound Association, which is based in Dole's home state of Abilene, Kan.

Dole said coursing is "outdated and inhumane" and that thousands of rabbits are brutally killed.

The senator said, however, he had reservations against prohibiting private coursing because of the enforcement problems it would raise.

R.E. Thomas, president of the greyhound association, said recently that with the prohibition aimed only at public coursing "it probably would not hurt anybody if it went through."

Greyhound trainers claim dogs trained on coursing are better competitors when they get to the race tracks. Pari-mutuel greyhound racing is legal in 12 states, the greyhound association said.

Loan Limits Hiked By Federal Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration has increased the maximum income limits for a family to be eligible for low-income real estate loans.

The rural housing program is for helping families purchase homes and the income limits are being increased to compensate for the effects of inflation, officials said.

Effective Friday the maximum adjusted income for a family to be eligible was increased from $10,000 to $11,200 in most of the country; from $15,000 to $16,800 in Alaska, and from $12,200 to $13,700 in Hawaii and Guam.

Researchers Study Repairing Of Skulls

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Researchers at the Northern California Transplant Bank are re-exploring an old and controversial technique to repair skull bone.

The Transplant Bank, a non-profit organization administered by the Institute for Medical Research, is the only one of its kind on the West Coast, supplying numerous body parts to physicians through the West.

The bank's technicians, supervised by physicians, collect hearts, kidneys, eye and ear parts, skin, bone parts, and brain membranes from deceased donors for use in the living and for medical research and training of new doctors.

Pete Pedrotti, a 36-year-old microbiologist and former Navy officer, is the head technician in the Bone and Duramater (the outer membrane of the brain) Unit. He is one of seven technicians in the transplant bank.

Working under a grant from the Navy, he and physicians associated with the bank are studying the repair of skulls with transplanted skull bones. They use dogs in their research.

Pedrotti has been at the Transplant Bank just 10 months but he reports:

"We're making considerable progress. We've done a few operations on humans and several dozen on dogs repairing skulls. It's called allograft, transplanting a bone from an unrelated member of the same species.

"The bone usually takes in the dogs and so far it seems to be doing so in the humans we've done it in, but its only been a few months now since we started so it's too early to tell."

Pedrotti says the last time a variation of the procedure was tried was in the 1700s by an English surgeon who grafted many layers of duck bone into a patient's head to repair a shattered skull.

"Amazingly, it worked," Pedrotti said, noting the duck bones must have dried out prior to the surgery or the body would have rejected them.

"It patched the guy's skull," he continued, "and it grew together and all that. But there was such an outcry of rage from religious groups and whatnot that the surgeon was forced to remove the duck bone from the patient and he died. Ever since then, everybody has been afraid to repair skull bone with bone from that kind of an outcry."

"We're the first ones doing what would seem like an obvious thing to have tried a long time ago and it looks like it's going to work."

Pedrotti's regular work involves collection of pelvic and other types of bone and duramater, which are sterilized and freeze dried.

Kay, who acknowledges many people fear the calculator will become a crutch, stresses it can help students learn as well as provide them with push-button answers.

Steel Inventory Poses Threat

By STEVEN PROKESCH
NEW YORK (UPI) — Big Steel leaders have been running their mills nearly full steam in recent weeks, but they are worried an inventory buildup may undermine second half operations.

Sources indicated as much as 2 million to 3 million tons of the 5.75 million tons of foreign steel that entered the United States in the first quarter may have gone to inventories.

U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar B. Speer said inventories have been growing at a rate 15 percent to 20 percent above that at the beginning of the year, when they were lower than normal.

"I am terribly concerned how much of the first-quarter imports are overhanging the market," admitted Bethlehem Steel Chairman Lewis W. Foy.

"We're not happy about it," echoed Inland Steel Chairman Frederick G. Jaicks. National Steel Chairman George A. Stinson said he believes most of the inventory is in the hands of sellers, not users, but he said he thinks the buildup is modest.

Foy said he believes those holding the inventory will place it on the market over a period of time and not all at once.

"Providing imports come down and providing the inventory is not dumped at one time, it won't hurt us much," Foy said.

He and other steel industry leaders say if the trigger price system — implemented by the Carter administration to speed antidumping action against foreign steelmakers — does not soon reduce imports, they will pursue antidumping complaints in the summer.

At the recent annual meeting of the industry's trade association, U.S. steelmakers claimed when the administration set the original trigger prices, it assumed the capacity utilization of Japanese mills was higher and their yield lower than is the case.

As a result, they said, the trigger prices — which are based on the production and transportation costs of the Japanese, the world's most efficient steelmakers — are too low and should be increased. The trigger prices on most products were raised 5.5 percent in early May.

A Treasury Department team currently is in Japan to check the industry's claims.

While an inventory buildup can signal a recession in an industry, Jaicks said. "We think users are going to work the inventory off by the end of the year. We think there's enough strength in the market that it won't kill the second half for us."

Industry leaders continue to predict shipments will total at least 95 million tons in 1978, compared with 91.1 million tons in 1977.

The third quarter, when automakers shut down to prepare for the new model year, is traditionally a slow one for the steel industry.

But Jaicks said: "We see the third quarter softer than the second, but not as soft as it has been in the past few years." Other steelmakers agreed.

Domestic industry shipments in the third quarter of 1977 were 22.4 million tons.

Not only has demand been strong from the auto and can industries, but steel executives say demand is picking up for heavier steel used in capital goods.

"We see the market strengthening in structurals and plates and we think that will continue," Jaicks said.

College Graduate Offers Help

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP) — The red-tape tangle in this town may run second only to the frustrating mess of Washington bureaucracy. That suits David Alwadish just fine.

David Alwadish, fresh out of college, has one of those strokes of brilliance that makes people say, "Why didn't I think of that?" and has opened a business.

It is based on an obvious premise: Dealing with a large city's institutions, the Motor Vehicle Bureau say, pushes a normal person's threshold of patience to its limit, induces trembling, age and fits, provokes thoughts of mayhem and self destruction and causes ulcers — and that's just for openers.

"Take the simple matter of registering your car," Alwadish said.

"You get there, puzzled. You stand in a line marked 'Information.' There you learn the other three lines you need to stand in and in what order. That's right.

You stand in line to find out what other lines to stand in. Are you getting the picture?"

"Then you discover you don't have the right forms. They aren't filled out correctly. The clerk makes you feel stupid. You've wasted half a day. You go back to your office snarling.

"Hasn't something like that happened to you?"

Of course. There must be at least 8 million such stories in the Naked City, which is why Alwadish's success is assured.

For a small fee, anywhere from one to five dollars, Alwadish will register your car for you, or get a duplicate of the driver's license you lost, or fight your battle with the parking ticket computer, or, in short, do all those wretched things that make your heart sink when the soulless telephone voice says, "You'll have to come in." Click.

"Right now I do all the work myself," Alwadish said, "but I envision supermarkets of services, offices all over town.

"The city ought to be promoting me. For every 100 customers I have, that's 100 fewer people in line. All my forms are in order. No aggravation. The bureaus would be happier places.

"The name of my business is Services Unlimited. I want it to be that, unlimited. I want to take care of birth certificates, fishing licenses, passports, everything people need but don't know how to handle conveniently themselves."

Alwadish, who is 22, got the idea for his business while helping out at his father's driver's school. It was his chore to handle the paperwork for graduates getting their driver's licenses.

"I was standing in line one day with a half dozen applications, chatting with the man next to me. I told him what I was doing and he said, 'Wow, I would gladly pay somebody to do this for me.' I thought, well, why not?"

'Why I choose to smoke'

"Why kid anyone? I smoke because I enjoy it. I'm the kind of guy who gets pleasure out of a cigarette. But I'm not deaf to what's being said about tar.

"So I searched out a cigarette that would give me taste with low tar. And two years ago I found it in Vantage. Vantage has all the taste I enjoy yet, surprisingly, much less tar than my old brand.

"Why did I choose Vantage? Because I like it."

Virginians To Select Senate Candidates

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Nearly 7,800 Virginia Republican delegates and alternates will turn out this weekend to choose a Senate candidate in what may be the largest political convention ever held in the United States.

However, the turnout will be modest, considering that the wife of one of the candidates alone could probably fill the Richmond Coliseum.

Screen star Elizabeth Taylor is helping her husband, former Navy Secretary John Warner, in a four-way race against former Gov. Linwood Holton, former GOP national co-chairman Richard Obenshain and state Sen. Nathan Miller.

The prize is the seat now held by Republican Sen. William Scott, who is retiring after one term. There are only 3,081 votes to cast, but they have been divided among an estimated 7,400 delegates, who state GOP officials believe might comprise the largest political convention of any sort ever held in the nation.

The Democrats will name their candidate the following week at a Williamsburg convention. Eight candidates, including a former attorney general, two state legislators, a brace of ambitious businessmen, an ERA activist, and a born-again auto dealer who said God told him to run, are in the field.

Obenshain is regarded as the leader in the June 24 GOP race. Holton and Warner are dueling for second place and Miller is hoping for a deadlock.

Among the Democrats, former state Attorney General Andrew Miller held the most pre-convention lead, followed by Sen. Clive L. DuVal II, D-Fairfax, a wealthy Northern Virginia landowner and new leader of the party's liberal wing.

Miller, lost last year's gubernatorial primary to populist Democrat Henry Howell, a DuVal backer. Howell in turn was defeated by Republican Gov. John Dalton in November.

Obenshain, whose last try for office was in 1969 (losing to Miller in the state attorney general's race) is a staunch conservative who rose through party ranks to become state and national co-chairman.

Warner, a Northern Virginia gentleman farmer previously married to a Mellon family heiress, has criss-crossed Virginia with his famous new wife at his side.

Holton, regarded as moderate to liberal as governor, mined his former strongholds in Tidewater and Southwest Virginia for delegate support.

Whoever wins the Republican nomination will probably be forced to defend Scott's record, including his penchant for taking overseas trips at taxpayer expense.

Scott has refrained from anointing a successor, but has praised Miller and Obenshain, who chaired his 1972 campaign. Scott has also complained that Miss Taylor is "not even a U.S. citizen," but has made Warner's candidacy viable.

In Northern Virginia, there is one contest for a GOP House nomination to challenge Democratic Rep. Herbert Harris. A primary will be held June 13 to choose among John F. Herrity, Fairfax County chairman, and legislators Robert E. Harris and Robert L. Thoburn.

Naval Station Gets New Training Chief
