Scientists Claim Plants Major Cause Of Smog

SAN FRANCISCO (UPC) — Scientists have reported new evidence indicating that plants - not machines - may be the biggest cause of smog, and rain may be the mechanism triggering the whole process.

Three meteorologists for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District compared summertime smog levels with rainfall during the previous winter and discovered a surprising association.

Pollution chief James Sandberg and his assistants, Michael J. Basso and Burton Okin, said their curiosity was triggered when smog levels dropped drastically during the 1976 and 1977 drought.

Using a rainfall average computed by the National Oceanics and Atmospheric Administration, they discovered the level of ozone - the standard measure of smog severity - was closely related to previous winter's rainfall and even clos-

"We think we can explain about 75 percent of the year-to-year variation on the basis of rain," Sandberg said Tuesday. The theory is that plants, as they process carbon dioxide, water and soil nutrients to grow, vent oxygen as well as complex hydrocarbons into the air. Hydrocarbons are considered a major factor in the chemical reactions leading to health-threatening ozone, the major component of smog. So, the theory goes, more rainfall produces more plants, which produce more hydrocarbons, thus increasing smog.

However, there is a dispute over whether plants actually produce enough hydrocarbons to contribute to the smog problem.

Paul Altshupler, director of the Environmental Protection Agency's Environmental Sciences Research Laboratory in North Carolina, said his agency's studies indicate plant hydrocarbons would "never produce sufficient ozone to exceed the .08 parts per million standard,"

However, Sandberg said his data, coupled with other studies, shows vegeta-tive hydrocarbon production in the nine Bay Area counties could exceed 1,000 metric tons per day. This compares to about 900 metric tons per day from all

Sandberg noted even if the implications of his study are correct, ind pollutants such as oxides of nitrogen might play a crucial role in coone it ion. But, he said, the study clearly indicates that current emphasis on eling human-produced hydrocarbons may be futile.

A summary of the study is in the June 2 issue of Science.

Doctor Says Programs Successful

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government programs to thwart infectious diseases are probably preventing nine million infections and 41,000 deaths a year, according to a federal scientist.

Dr. John V. Bennett, director of the bacterial diseases division of the Center for Disease Control, said Tuesday that federal, state and local health programs save as much, if not more, money as they cost for preventing infections.

Dr. Richard Dixon, another CDC scientist, also told a National Institutes of Health symposium that infections remain a national health problem even in this era of antibiotics and widely available health

Dixon said new figures he compiled indicate more than five million infections are treated in hospitals each year at a cost exceeding $3.7 billion.

Authorities said there was no way to estimate untreated or self-treated infections, which obviously number in the Bennett estimated from figures he compiled that 310,000 people die from infections and their complications each year in this country. This would be worse without prevention programs, he said.

For example, Bennett said, CDC estimates that 95 percent of the country's potential botulism cases are prevented through regulations governing food processing. Prevention costs $21 million a year, but saves $19,950,000 in hospital and treatment costs, he estimated.

Bennett said it costs about $3,000 to treat each of the 350 botulism poisoning cases that do occur each year.

Dixon said that there is surprisingly little reliable data on the consequences of infection upon hospital care. To get a general idea of the impact of infectious disease, he said he combined data from several sources to get his estimates.

"Even if these projections are incorrect - and they agree very closely with other data available - we cannot deny the impact of infectious diseases on hospitalized patients," he said.

The study estimated that patients contract 3,026,000 infections before entering a hospital for treatment.

The majority of these so-called community-acquired infections, 2,821,300, have a bacterial origin. Virus-related infections account for 175,700 cases, while fungus is responsible for 17,600 cases and parasites for 11,300.

The study said another 2,028,000 infections are acquired during hospitalization. These so-called nosocomial infections were neither present nor incubating at the time of patient admission.

Divided by cause, 1,825,800 come from bacteria: 196,100 from fungi; 5,800 from viruses and less than 500 from parasites.

Doctor say the high rate of nosocomial infections is explained in part by already sick patients being more susceptible to infection, and because surgery and other treatment can open new avenues for infection.

Stamp Set Displays Theory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To get an ly, Bartlett notes. Some of the stamps in dea of an America at one time proud of the set were printed with the picture upidea of an America at one time proud of its position at center stage of the world a good place to look is the Pan-American issue of the U.S. classic stamp set.
The stamps were first released on May

1, 1901, at the opening of the Pan-American fair in Buffalo, N.Y. Both the fair and the stamps were designed to show off the new technological might of the nation as it moved into the 20th century.

The gross national product had jumped from $9 billion to $40 billion in 30 years. Nearly a million immigrants were pouring annually into the nation, providing a ready-made labor Torce.

Trusts, combinations and new inventions were creating undreamed of personal fortunes as shown when J. P: Morgan's group bought Carnegie Steel for $400 million. Anything seemed possible.

The U.S. had announced its entrance into the ranks of first-class world powers by waging and winning a war with Spain, liquidating that nation's possessions in the Caribbean and forcing her to cede the Philippine Islands.

Secretary of State John Hay spoke of the Spanish struggle as "that splendid little war," and men like Theodore Roosevelt and Sen. Albert Beveridge discussed the nation's "manifest destiny" to spread its way of life and Christianity roughout the world.

As Beveridge told the Senate: "God has not been preparing the Englishspeaking and Teutonic people for a thousand years for nothing but vain and idle self-contemplation and self-admiration... He has marked the American people as His chosen nation to finally lead in the regeneration of the world."

The Pan-American set reflects this fierce pride.

The green and black 1-cent features a Great Lakes steamer; the red and black 2-cent, the Empire State Express roaring along at 60 m.p.h. The 4-cent brown and black shows one of the world's first autos, and the beautiful 5-cent blue and black portrays the bridge over Niagara, then the longest single-span steel bridge in the world. The purple and black 8-cent shows ships going through the Great Lake locks, and the brown and black 10cent has an ocean liner at sea.

San Francisco dealer Aubrey Bartlett says a set in superb condition can run more than $500 and a used set up to $200, but individual stamps, or stamps not in flawless condition (hinged or off-center), are within more collectors' price range. # No Hits, No Runs, No ERAs

WASHINGTON-A long-simmering fight over the Equal Rights Amendo ent boiled up anew on Capitol Hill the other day. In a desperate effort to salvage a lost cause, proponents of the amendment moved in both House and Senate for a seven-year extension of the ratification period.

The maneuver ought to be promptly and publicly labeled for what it is: dirty pool. The pendir reposal amounts to a brazen attempt by ERA artisans to change the rules in the middle of the game. The most elementary sense of fair play should cause the extension to be shouted down.

By way of background: In March of 1972, Congress gave the required two-thirds approval to a resolution submitting the Equal Rights Amendment to the states for ratification.

ays that "equality of rights" shall not be der or abridged on account of sex. The second delegales power to Congress to enforce the amendment. The third makes the amendment operative two years after ratification is completed.

FOLLOWING THE pattern fixed by every contitutional amendment for the past 45 years, Con-ress included a time limitation. Under the relving clause, the amendment would become rt of the Constitution "when ratified by the than seven years of the date of its submission the Congress."

The seven-year limitation might have been inindeed in the body of the amendment itself. This medica was followed in the 18th, 20th, 21st and life Amendments, but scholars objected that the qualitie tended to clutter up the Constitution with transitory language.

Since the 23d Amendment went out to the states in 1960, the custom has been to write the seven-year limitation into the resolving clause.

But if one looks beyond form to substance, it is apparent that it makes no difference where the deadline is inserted. The purpose is to define and to fix a reasonable period in which a contemporaneous consensus may be reached among the states. As in any other contractual instrument, the language is part of a total package.

MRS. PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY, head of the Stop ERA movement, and Ms. Eleanor Smeal, chair of the board of the National Organization of Women, were in town recently to fight the battle over extension. In my own unbiased and objective view, ho-ho, Mrs. Schlafly had the better of it. She made the point, which seems to me almost unanswerable, that in terms of defining a period of "contemporary" consensus, seven years are reasonable and fourteen years are not.

The great rush to ratify the ERA came in 1972 and 1973. The movement then ran out of steam and collapsed. Was this for want of information? For want of lobbying? Pfui!

So They Say.....

Overheard: "He raises the roof so much I suspect there is something wrong in his attic.'

An observer notes that he who hesitates will have to circle the block at least three more times to find a parking place.

It takes a straight face indeed for Ms. Smeal to contend that state legislators have not been made sufficiently aware of the arguments in favor of the amendment.

State legislators know precisely what the issues are. With complete understanding, one state after another has been saying "no."

The House Judiciary Committee, it is said, may surrender to its own militant feminists. Jordan of Texas and Holtzman of New York, and report an extension proposal. This will precipitate a first-rate constitutional debate: Would such a resolution require two-thirds majority or only a simply majority? My own answer is, two-thirds; the original resolution of 1972 required two-thirds. It is hard to understand how an amendment could get by with

THIS DEBATE would be only the beginning. The Senate leadership would be out of its mind to invite one more filibuster by bringing the proposed extension to the floor, but suppose an extension somehow is approved. What would the effect be on the 35 states that have already ratified? On the four states that have rescinded? The extension would take us to March, 1989. How can that date possibly be

"contemporaneous" with March of 1972? Put the legalism aside. The substantive purposes of "women's equality" are being achieved without the risks and uncertainties of this very

He Has No Policy, Just Luck

WASHINGTON-It's fine and dandy now that President Carter has a couple of wins under his belt—the Panama Treaty and the Mideast Arms Agreement. I'm in favor of wishing him well, but keeping my toes and fingers crossed. I think he has been more lucky than sapient and there's a long way to go.

On Panama, he had a game in which he reached a point where he could call in a sort of Sparky Lyle, the mop-up pitcher who is good for a few innings but not thereafter.

Carter took over when the canal was a settled issue, and at that he barely squeaked through, al-though he really couldn't lose since the Majority Floorleader had votes to spare if he needed them. Give the President credit for a win, but a

HE HAD TO WORK harder and longer to get the package agreement on Mideast military aviation past the Senate, although the score didn't indicate the closeness.

In order to squeak through this one, the President had to give up a lot of Jewish political support in order to assure the U.S. and the Western Allies of an oil supply.

Relatively speaking, he had to weaken Israel as a military power, and had to strengthen Saudi Arabia, though it'll be in the early 1980s before these facts are evident and important But it was a welcome victory for the President

all the same, and didn't lose any of his beautiful friendship with President Sadat of Egypt while making Israel weaker and the big Arab State of Saudi Arabia stronger.

IT'S CLEAR THAT Carter has changed the military balance in the Mideast-giving the Arabs more clout and Israel less-and I would be surprised if he regrets this by 1980 when Sen. Frank Church collects credits for being the Jewish pleader in Senate committees and on the floor.

But in changing the military balance, I have a shaky feeling that Carter has also changed its locale. He still hasn't tied up the SALT II agreements, and this means that the potential theater of war may be not the sands of Arabia but the vasty fields of Europe.

The disturbing theme in shifting emphasis from Mideast crisis to European crisis is that we have no know plans of transition. In a speech last year, June '77, there was this paragraph by Leslie Gleb which the editors of Parameters (War College trade journal) thought important enough to re-

"There is no Carter Doctrine, nor Vance Doctrine, nor Brown Doctrine, because of a belief that the environment we are looking at is far too complex to be reduced to a doctrine in the tradition of the post-World War II foreign policy. "Indeed, the Carter approach to foreign policy rests on the belief that not only is the world far too complex to be reduced in a doctrine, but that there is something inherently wrong with having a doctrine at all." Now, this makes me think of a Ring Lardner story, "Alibi Ike," whose middle initial was X. which (the author said) probably stood for

I'm a little rattled to think of our government going around the world without a guiding doctrine. This is all the more rattling when the major crisis shifts from one world area to another, from the Mideast to Europe.

The Tax Special For Senior Seller

(Last In A Series Of Seven Columns)

IF YOU ARE a taxpayer of any age and you sell your home, you may defer the tax on your gain if you replace it with a new home costing at least as much as you got for your old one. But if you are at least 65 years old, you get a special tax

You pay no tax if your "adjusted sales price" is at or below a certain amount (adjusted sales price is your selling price reduced by selling expenses, such as commissions, fix-up costs).

The tax-free amount is now $35,000 against $20,-000 up to 1977. If your adjusted sales price is more than $35,000, a pro rata part of your gain is tax-free, in the ratio that $35,000 bears to the adjusted sales price. (For instance, if the sales price is $70,000, half the gain is tax free or $35,000/$70,-

Q. MY FATHER will be 65 years old later in '78. He has a bid for his house now and wants to sell now. Will he get the break?

A. No. He gets the break only if he sells on or after the day he reaches 65. But there is a strategy which he should ponder now. He can enter into a contract of sale now, with the date for closing set after his 65th birthday. Since title will pass after he reaches 65, he's entitled to the

Q. I own a home jointly with my wife. I'm over 65 but my wife is only 60. If we sell, are we entitled to the tax break? A. Yes, the break is available if either spouse is

But, warns Prentice-Hall, to get it, you must file a joint return; you must elect to get it, for the break is not automatic; have used the property as your principal residence for at least five of the eight years before sale; get the break only once in a lifetime.

AN EXTRA TAX assist is that if your property is part-residence, part-business (say a two-family home), there's tax-free treatment on the part of the gain attributable to the residence. And the breaks apply to condominiums and co-op apartments, too. If you are planning to sell your home in '78, you may be unpleasantly surprised to find you may have to pay more tax than you anticipated due to the so-called minimum tax on tax preferences.

And this minimum tax-aimed at high-income individuals who pay puny tax bills-has been beefed up to hit countless numbers of homesellers at all income levels, low and middle as well

YOU EXPECT to pay a capital gain tax if you sell your house and don't buy a new one or buy another at less than the price you received from the sale. But you may get a second tax bite, be-cause one-half of your capital gain is a tax prefer-ence subject to the minimum tax.

And since 1976, exemptions from the minimum tax have been drastically cut back while the tax rate has been hiked from 10 to 15 per cent.

Now you're hit with a 15 per cent minimum tax to the extent that your yearly preferences top the reater of $10,000 or half your regular tax bill. This can hit even an "average" taxpayer. As an illustration, Mr. and Mrs. Brown bought their home many years ago for $15,000. In 1978, they sell it for $55,000 and move into a rental apartment. They also have $20,000 in other taxable income for the year. This leaves them with two tax liabil-

(1) INCOME TAX on home gain of $7,760. (2) Minimum tax. The Browns have a preference of $20,000 or one-half the gain on the sale of the bome. They subtract the $10,000 preference exemption and wind up with a taxable preference of $10,000. The Browns end up with an extra tax bill of $1,500 on top of $7,760.

Selling a home without buying another may. therefore, turn out more tax expensive than in the past and you may want to reconsider a decision not to buy another home. If you replace your home with one costing at least as much as your selling price, you pay no capital gains tax and no minimum tax. But you're not likely to change your mind about buying another home simply because of minimum tax!

BUT THE GOOD news in this area is that President Carter proposes eliminating this tax sleeper in his tax package-and if Congress goes along with this one, capital gains from the sale of a principal residence would not be subject to the minimum tax starting with sales after 1978.

Timing becomes of greater importance merely because of this. When you are considering sale of your home, include this tax aspect in your dollars-and-cents calculations-along with the 65and-over tax break.

In a nutshell, China has said Vietnam is "ostracizing and persecuting" the Chinese. Vietnamese officials have said the Chinese have spread rumors to encourage an exodus now approaching 100,-000 from Vietnam.

The bulk of the emigrants, to China's distress, has been Chinese laborers and farmers from the former North Vietnam. According to a Peking spokesman, more than 70,000 persons have fled Vietnam to China since March.

Vietnamese sources, backed by reports of travelers from Hanoi and Saigon, say the main exodus was sparked by two events: the war between Hanoi and Chinese-backed Cambodia, and a crackdown by Vietnam beginning last March

Relatives Press For Kin's Fate

By CHARLES E. PADILLA

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) - At a recent folklore festival in Santiago, four women took the stage to perform Chile's typical national dance, the "Cueca."

The modestly dressed women did the peculiar, strutting dance without male partners before a hushed crowd of several hundred persons who would have normally clapped their hands to accompany the happy melody.

The symbolism of the dance was painfully clear.

The husbands of the women are among more than 600 arrested Chilean leftists who have vanished since the 1973 military coup.

In recent days, a sense of urgency about the missing persons has gripped their relatives. They are afraid that with the general amnesty granted by the military government in March, the fates of the missing persons may never be known. The amnesty gave full pardons to all persons convicted of crimes against the national security from Sept. 11, 1973, the day of the coup, to March 10, 1978. And although the amnesty decree did not say, the relatives claim that the pardon will not apply to missing persons but it will to those responsible for making them disappear.

The relatives blame the military regime's DINA and CNI secret police for the arrests and subsequent disappear-

In a public press conference on May 11. several women charged that since the amnesty took effect, 18 cases of missing persons that had been presented in three different Santiago courts had been dismissed outright.

As a result, the relatives have sent messages to President Carter, the United Nations, the Organization of American States, Amnesty International, the World Council Of Churches and Pope Paul VI pleading for solidarity with their cause.

They have also sought an audience with the regime's new interior minister, Sergio Fernandez, written letters to all of the generals and admirals in Chile's armed forces and are seeking an interview with the president of the supreme Chile's Catholic Church this month expressed support for the relatives.

A document signed by two bishops and six priests said

We would like to echo the pain of several hundred persons who await a word promised several times by the supreme government - about the situation of their loved ones.

"We are referring to the relatives of the persons, who once arrested, nothing more was ever known of them.

In the letter to the generals and admirals, the relatives said "those who think that silence and time can heal this wound and that the fate of our disappeared family members will not concern the entire world are fooling themselves.

"We will never rest until they return to our homes. Our descendents will never rest nor will the clean conscience of any Chilean until this ominous episode in our history is cleared up once and for all. The relatives told the military officers that "in many cases the identification of the agents who carried out the arrests are known, as are the precise details of the arrests, with witnesses present.

The relatives have said that they will appeal to higher courts - and go all the way to the supreme court if necessary about the cases that have already been

of $5,000 will put you in line for a sporty Duesenberg II. When it rolls out of Richard Braund's automotive plant a few weeks later, the balance of the price tag will be about $50,000.

For that sum, a car buyer expects class, style, performance, endurance. Those were the things Braund, his son and business partners had in mind three years ago when they decided to market a replica of one of mankind's most ostentatious creations: the fabled 1933 Duesenberg SJ Speedster.

Designed by Gordon Buehrig, only one of the boat-tailed convertibles was ever made by the Duesenberg company which cars between 1921 and 1938 in Auburn,

Braund, an award-winning restorer of antique cars, visited Auburn recently to show off his home-made, 4,700-pound replica of the SJ, saying he intended to put it into production as the Duesenberg

"It is a very exclusive car," he said, citing his assembly crew's attention to detail. "The fact that it is a $55,000 car instead of a $25,000 one is that detail."

Unlike the usual restored car, Braund's article reflects up-to-date knowledge of weather resistance - particularly a steel-

"Many persons," he said, "have exotic autos they can't utilize. They are fairweather cars

His Elite Heritage Motors is an 11-man corporation with a 12-man assembly crew. It already has orders for a half-dozen replicas of the SJ. The first two are to emerge from the Elroy shop by summer.

Braund said he hopes to expand his work force to two dozen men and establish a production pace of three cars monthly.

Unlike a modernistic Duesenberg which an Indianapolis company offered in the 1960s, Braund's creation is a faithful visual recreation. Its frightfully long hood, tapered-tail deck, chrome-plated radiator and air ports, stainless steel wheels, 153 1/2-inch wheelbase and leather upholstery mirror Buehrig's orig-

Yet it should be no mechanical terror for the neighborhood service station, Braund said. It has an ordinary Ford twin I-beam front suspension, automatic transmission, power disc brakes in front and drum brakes astern, and a 460-cubicinch Lincoln Continental V-8 engine deigned to cruise at today's speed limit of 55 miles an hour.

In days gone by, Duesenberg owners spoke haughtily of speeds approaching 160 mph.

The original steel-bodied SJ had a straight-eight 420-cubic-inch engine, and probably could not have met the federal safety standards now demanded of Braund's plant. He said he hopes the government will approve pending legislation to exclude small companies from fuel efficiency standards.

Before the Depression killed the Indiana company founded by August and Fred Duesenberg, it had produced about 500 of its Model A at $8,500 each, and about 450 of the Model J which averaged $14,500 each and from which the SJ was an offshoot.

Several hundred Duesies survive, and are collectors items. A New York insurance man paid $205,000 for a 1929 car at an Atlanta auction in 1974.

Stock Exchange Considering Four Sites For Relocation

NEW YORK (AP) - The American Stock Exchange still is considering four sites for relocation, though "that does not mean a move is definite," chairman Arthur levitt Jr. says.

Victims Of Plane Crash Revealed

TOKYO (AP) - A U.S. military spokesman announced the names of two Americans killed and two injured in the crash of a small plane in the mountains 55 miles southwest of Tokyo Saturday.

The spokesman said Stephen J. Head. 29, the pilot, from Topeka, Kan., and Gerald J. MacDonald, 49, of Dorchester, Maine, were killed and J.W. Elrod, 44, of Piedmond, S.C., and Neil J. Gause, 31, Hatboro, Pa., were injured.

They were flying in a Cessna C-180 from a U.S. military flying club in Seoul, South Korea. The crash occurred during a flight from Hamamatsu, 130 miles west of Tokyo, to Atsugi, 28 miles west of the Tokyo. The wreckage was found Sunday

"Refining the New Jersey properties was more time consuming than expected," he said. The new Advisory Committee on Governance will "take a fundamental look at the exchange's system of governance at a time of revolutionary change in the nation's economic environment, in the securities industry and in the operations of the exchange," Levitt said.

William J. Casey, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission from April 1971 to February 1973, was named head of the committee.

The group will examine the role and structure of the 21-member Board of Governors and submit a report by June 1979 proposing changes.

Levitt also asked the group to evaluate the procedures for selecting members of the board and the committees and offio supervise exchange activities.

The American exchange decided upon its present system of a board of 10 public and 10 industry representatives and a paid chairman in 1972. Levitt said "changing times" make another review

He indicated that the appointment of the committee does not signal a total reorganization of the exchange's governing Other members of the committee are

Alan Greenspan, an economic consultant who headed the Council of Economic Advisers under President Ford; the Rev. James C. Finlay, president of Fordham University: David L. Goldring III, specialist on the Amex trading floor; Albert H. Gordon, chairman of Kidder, Peabody Co., an Amex member firm; Donald S. Continental's discount fare program has made regular Coach travel even more attractive to the man or woman traveling on business. Continental's regular Coach section now has only the choicest, quietest seats in its own part of the plane, away from the discount area. In Continental's Coach, discount and regular fare passengers are not mixed together.

And there's plenty of room in our DC-10's, plus fold-down middle seats in our 727's where you can just stretch out and relax. Or spread out your papers and get some work done without being bothered. It's a place where you can get away it all, while you're getting to it all.

2. Continental's service. With a little more room, a little less noise, you'll be in a lot better position to enjoy free stereo, hot meals, your favorite drinks and the service that made Continental famous. With flight attendants who still think flying is special. And who want you to get off their plane smiling.

To Los Angeles: 9:30 AM, 3:45 PM. All flights direct. Schedule effective June

3. A seat when you need it most.
If your meeting runs late or your plans change, you won't be out of luck on your way out of town. By keeping strict limits on the discount seat section, Continental is almost certain to have regular Coach seats available right up to the last minute. Which also means a good chance you'll get to sit in your favorite spot (on the aisle, by the window, wherever). For 40 years before discount fares, it was business travelers who made our airline a success. We're not about to fail them now. For information call your travel agent, company travel department or Continental Airlines at 763-8031.

UPI Newsman Experiences Race Ordeal

By JOHN D. MCMILLAN

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - I learned last March during my first 10,000 meter race - that's 6.2 miles for those of you who grew up in the United States - I learned one can run too fast at the beginning of a race, become exhausted, develop a side stitch and, while wheezing and gasping, watch women and small children trot past him.

I was determined there would be no repetition of that ignominy in Sunday's race of 10 kilometers, or 10 K's as those of us into running call it. I think that's what we call it.

Anyway, in case some of you aren't familiar with my last race, here's what happened: About two miles into the grinder I developed the most excruciating, piercing, agonizing side stitch since Brutus performed the first caesarean.

Ooow! Did it smart! In fact, so wrenching in its intensity was the pain that it can be understood only by certain women - those who during the height of labor pains, for one reason or another, have got up to run 10 K's.

I was forced to run four miles with a pain so bad ... well, let's put it like this: captured soldiers burting a lot less have spilled their guts to the enemy.

Did I want to experience that pain again? No, I did not. Did I learn anything from the experience? Yes, two things: (1) It's no wonder most women lie down while having a baby; (2) Get in

I wanted to get in better shape for another reason, also.

I had an old score to settle with Olympian Gary Bjorklund. Last March he took advantage of my side stitch to beat me over 10 K's. I didn't think he had the guts to show his face around these parts again after that, but I've got to give him credit. Sunday, there he was in running togs. Still cocky because he'd taken me in our last duel.

Cocky, but totally ignorant of the training methods and diet, which I have no intention of revealing here to every sucker with the price of a newspaper, other than to say! they involve running and eating.

My pre-race plan was to dog Bjorklund most of the race and wait for the Louisiana heat and humidity to take care of the Yankee.

My coach, Bill Elder, who moonlights as a television anchorman here, said if I lost myself in the pack and Bjorklund couldn't spot me, it would probably psyche him out. No telling how fast he would have run if I hadn't done this.

As the race started, I was disappointed in Bjorklund's total lack of strategy. He simply took the lead and held it all the way to the finish line.

I, on the other hand, started slowly and eased off. This strategy had me run-ning past the Cafe DuMonde in the French Quarter while Bjorklund was on the walking side of the finish line at the

But that's not the point. Because of the extreme heat and humidity, Bjorklund was about three minutes off his best time of the year. I was only around a minute slower than my best time of the 1978 season. So who really won?

Sure, Bjorklund got to drink the sponsor's beer about 20 minutes before me. Big deal. He ran all the way.

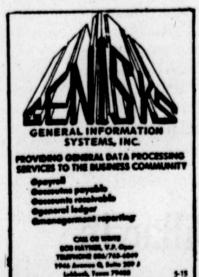

I walked a little in order to live. I wouldn't have done it if it hadn't seemed imporatant to me at the time. I promise you that.

And I learned a lesson Bjorklund never will. I learned one can start slow, still become exhausted, and while who and gasping, watch women and small children trot past him.

Makes Short Speech

When the big day finally arrived for the meeting of the full conference committee and endorsement of the compromise, nearly everyone wanted to say something to mark the occasion.

The meeting dragged on as committee members generated enough hot air to heat a fair-sized city. Well into the round of speeches, it came to be Sen. Wendell Ford's turn. "I'm about to give what may be my most important speech since coming to Congress," the Kentucky Democrat be-looked a little puzzled. The senator sat, waiting for the proceedings to begin, until Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the conference, told him the meeting was for House conferees only. The full committee, with both Senate and House mem-made off with an estimated $400,000 in paintings and valuables from the French Riviera mansion of Florence Gould, widow of American multimillionaire Frank J. Gould, police said today.

Police said the burglars entered the villa Sunday afternoon after scaling the wrought-iron garden gates and breaking a French window on the ground floor of the villa.

Among the valuables taken were three paintings by Renoir, Bonnard and Molineux from the fabulous Gould art collection, police said, but masterpieces by Rembrandt and Picasso were left behind.

Senators only had to list the value of specific holdings - their home, stocks, land and others - by category.

Local Schools To Broadcast Education Series

Avalanche-Journal Staff Adults in the Lubbock area are getting a chance to go back to high school without leaving home

Next week, Lubbock school officials will begin broadcasting an award-winning television series to prepare adults for a General Educational Development (GED) certificate, the equivalent of a high school diploma.

The series, consisting of 34 half-hour shows, will be aired over public television station KTXT, Channel 5.

"In the Lubbock area, I'd estimate there are thousands of men and women who have not finished high school. This TV series is designed to help them study for and pass the GED exam so they can receive a high school equivalency certificate," said Harvy Owen, adult education coordinator for the Lubbock Independent School District.

Owen said the televised course also will allow adults who have a high school diploma to brush up on academic skills.

The GED study program is being presented through the cooperation of the Texas Education Agency, the Lubbock school system and the Texas Tech University continuing education department.

"I believe there are some very motivated students who want to go back to school but for some reason or another can't — perhaps because they are unable to get babysitters," Fred McClung, the university's instructional TV coordina-

"This program is designed to reach those people." McClung added that some adults who want to pick up their diploma may be too shy to enroll in Lubbock Evening High School or prepare for the GED exam at the Lubbock Adult Learning Center.

'Nothing is more dreadful than the unknown. To the person who has been out of school, education can be a scary thing. Through this televised series, these people can be exposed to schooling in the privacy of their own home," he said.

The school district, through the university-operated TV station, will be using a program developed by the University of Kentucky. The program has been hailed by the Southern Educational Communications Association as "the most effective and sophisticated GED series in the country.

The series has been aired by the Kentucky Educational Television Network and in some other states, but is relatively new in Texas. The Texas Education Agency has purchased two copies of the series and loaned one for use in Lub-

A different segment of the 34-part series will be shown weekly over KTXT beginning June 6, Owen said. Each segment will be aired three times during its scheduled week - Tuesday at 5 p.m., Saturday at 1:30 p.m., and Sunday at 10

Enrollment and participation in the program are free. Adults may enroll by coming by the Adult Learning Center, 2013 13th St., or by a letter or telephone

Three textbooks or study guides accompany the televised lessons, Owen said. "Although the books are not required, the program will be much more effective if the student has them."

The books may be purchased for $3 each at the Adult Learning Center. "The student may return the first book at the end of the first unit and swap it for the second book, and the second book may be swapped for the third," Owen said.
"Under this arrangement, the student would keep the third book — and end up spending only $3 on the entire course," he said.

The Adult Learning Center will provide free assistance to students taking the course. The center is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and also from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

"A person taking the course can view one or more of the three showings during the week then come down here at their convenience for individual help."

"After watching a 30-minute segment, an hour or two of individual instruction probably would be of great benefit. It's not required, but I think it would help tremendously," he said

The series covers the five academic areas - math, science, literature, social studies and grammar — required by the GED exam.

At the end of the 34-week program, students may take the GED tests at the Adult Learning Center. The tests are given one Friday and one Saturday each month. The testing fee is $12. McClung said KTXT will be making cassettes of each segment and have them available at the Adult Learning Center. "That way, people who miss part of the series will be able to come down here and get caught up," he said. McClung said the series is both "educational and entertaining

The Lubbock school district's adult education department has been helping adults prepare for their GED exams the past 10 years, Owen said. More than 4,000 adults have earned GED certificates through the department, he said. This is the department's first televised effort.

Poerner Receives Support Of Salinas

Commissioners Set Hearing On Funds Use

Lubbock County commissioners will have a public hearing on the use of 1979 federal revenue sharing money at 1:30 p.m. June 26, they announced today.

The hearing is a formality, however, because all county revenue sharing funds through 1980 are committed to the construction of a new county jail and juvenile detention center.

"It's obvious that for the next two years we will have to put all of our revenue sharing funds into the detention facilities," Commissioner Alton Brazell said this morning.

After this calendar year, the county will have put $2,387,311 into the jail and detention center construction, Brazell said. County Auditor Dale Gallimore has told the commissioners to expect about $234,000 per quarter in 1979.

With interest on time deposits, revenue sharing income will come to $1,007,101 this year, Gallimore has reported.

Construction on the jail east of the existing jail is expected to begin this summer and be finished in early 1980.

Bids for the jail equipment and construction will be opened June 22 and June 29

Brazell said the commissioners expect to put about $500,000 into the detention center - about half its cost - and pay for the rest with a matching grant.

Boats Replace School Buses

DEER ISLE, Maine (UPI) - Four dozen stranded junior high and high school students rode lobster boats instead of school buses Tuesday when a suspension bridge from Deer Isle to the mainland was closed because it began to sway.

Two lobstermen, parents of Deer Isle-Stonington High School students, volunteered their boats to ferry about 25 students and six faculty members from the island to the Hancock County mainland, where they lived.

The boats also carried about 30 members of a junior high baseball team from the mainland to the island, located between Penobscot Bay and Mount Desert

State police closed the bridge on Route 15 and called in engineers from the state Department of Transportation to assess the situation after the bridge began to

Herrera said the group would picket on the sidewalks at federal buildings in about 20 Texas cities, including Lub-bock, Big Spring, Dallas, Houston, El Paso, McAllen, Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

In contrast, Sadler has not campaigned anywhere, Salinas charged, and is "just hiding, trying to use his name to get elected. Salinas said Texans probably remember Sadler's name because he "was the first and the only state official ever censured by the Texas Legislature because of his disgraceful conduct.

"He was censured for misleading a legislative committee that was investigating his role in the discovery of a sunken ship off the coast of Texas and the recovery of treasure from that ship."

By misleading the committee, Salinas said he meant Sadler "outright lied about what had been found and refused to turn over the treasure to proper authorities." Salinas noted current Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong campaigned successfully against Sadler on that issue, and the people of Texas "turned him (Sadler) out to pasture.

The legislator compared Sadler's possible election to the election of Don Yarbrough to the state Supreme Court.

"I knew about Yarbrough and I feel I was partly responsible for his election for not speaking out," he said.

Salinas said he'd take his chances on the endorsement hurting his re-election bid (Salinas faces Republican David Hester in November). However, he said "If I can help Poerpointment since late last year.

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the conviction and four-year sentence of Alvord Vincent Freeman, convicted in 1975 of burglary in Lubbock County.

The high court overruled Freeman's claims that prosecutors failed to prove he had entered Ruel Martin Elementary School with intent to commit theft.

However, the court said, records show Freeman was found at 1:19 a.m. in the boys' restroom of the school. A fulllength window pane on the north side of the building was found to have been broken out, and Freeman was found with his shoes off and with a cut on his foot.

Freeman testified he had "kicked the window in with his shoes as he needed access to a restroom so he could obtain possible relief from abdominal pain and he also needed a shelter from the rain." court records state

"It is well settled that the act of breaking and entering a building at nighttime raises the presumption that the act was done with the intent to commit theft," the court continued.

Freeman also claimed the court should not have instructed the jury to continue deliberating and to arrive at a verdict after they had reacdhed a 10-2 impasse. However, the high court said nothing in the records reflects Freeman had no opportunity to examine the written charge.

This occurred, he said, at the same time that there was a shift from western nuclear dominance to a new relationship of East-West equality. The proposed system seeks cooperation in times of conflict, while maintaining in peacetime the separate national defense forces of each of the 15 NATO countries.

For example, Britain and France would continue to manufacture their own fighter-bombers and maintain their own air forces, but the planes would be designed around bombs or shells that also can be carried by American warplanes.

The single largest project was to design an integrated allied air defense system, utilizing sophisticated and expensive airborne radar and computers.

The system would be paid for by all the NATO allies, and be tied into the national air defense systems.

The real test of the program, said one officcal, is whether the NATO countries will pay the price.

In terms of money, it will require about a 3 percent defense spending increase from those nations which can afford it. Britian's Prime Minister James Callaghan announced Tuesday his country's next budget will include the 3 percent in-

Judge Claims 14th Amendment Protects Dogs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Municipal Judge Mario Gonzales cited the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution in his ruling that dogs need not be licensed since there are no similar requirements for canaries, turtles, pigs or chipmunks.

Gonzales issued his finding last week, but its impact sank in slowly until the Los Angeles pound called to tell him his decision could affect 400,000 dogs in the city and probably that many more in the county.

And about 20 million dogs across the United States if the case goes to the Supreme Court!

The judge dismissed a charge against Mrs. Rebecca Hernandez of the city of Commerce when the city sought a bench warrant for her arrest because she had not bought a $15 annual license for her dog. In his ruling, Gonzales pointed out that licenses for cats were voluntary and, in any event, lasted a lifetime and cost only $2.50.

Then he went on to state: "Canaries, chinchillas, munks, finches, gopher snakes, guinea pigs, hamsters, hawks, king snakes. Marmoset monkeys, Mynah birds, parrots, parakeets, amazons, cocateels, cockatoos, lories, lorikeets, love birds, macaws, pigeons, ravens, squirrel monkeys, steep legal eagles, toucans, turtles, white doves, pigs, cows, horses, sheep do not have to be licensed."

That is in direct violation, Gonzales said, of the 14th Amendment which declared that no citizen of the United States would be denied 'equal protection of the law.

Gonzales was asked what practical ruling he thought his finding might have. "Well, as it stands now, it applies to only one case," he said.

"If the county counsel should challenge it, the case could go to the California Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court. But if the county counsel is smart, and I think he is, he will lie low and that will be the end of it unless dog owners bring a class action

Gonzales said he was being asked to have Mrs. Hernandez "hauled out of her home in her nightgown to this court because she didn't have a dog license. "I thought that was ridiculous," he said. The judge was asked if he had a

"Yes," he said. "I have a Weimaraner. But I didn't make this ruling to save myself 15 bucks.'

Justice Potter Stewart, in a dissent joined by Justice Thurgood Marshall, said it is "self-evident that police searches of newspaper offices burden the freedom of the press.

Not only do unannounced police searches interrupt a newspaper's newsgathering and editing process, Stewart said, they also raise the possibility of disclosure of information received from confidential sources.

"By contrast," he said "a subpeona would afford the newspaper itself an op-portunity to locate whatever material night be requested and produce it."

"We are approaching the negotiations on the limitations of the feverish arms race with maximum seriousness and honesty ... There does not exist such a type of weapon the Soviet Union would not be willing to limit and prohibit on the basis of agreement with other states.

"What is important is that the wish to stop the arms race be sincere and not only pretended.

The 71-year-old Soviet leader spoke just hours before Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were to resume negotiations in New York on a new treaty limiting strategic arms.

Brezhnev said the 1975 Helsinki conference on European security and cooperation created conditions for the development of good relations in Europe. But he said there were groups "that try to frustrate the process of relaxation of tension and to return if not to the cold war, then at least to a tepid war.

The Pravda article said that at the NA-TO meeting "a tone is being set by those who are trying to achieve different aims - to place new military obligations on the shoulders of the people, to increase the military budgets, to stuff Western Europe with bombs, rockets and different kinds of electronic and nuclear 'innovations," the party paper declared.

Krasikov said President Carter's decision to address the NATO meeting while staying away from the U.N. disarmament session demonstrated the American position. He said Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who addressed the General Assembly, made a declaration "couched in the spirit of cold war.

"This is understandable," the commentator wrote, "because the attention of Western leaders now is concentrated not of further intensifying the arms race and drawing new countries and even whole continents into it."

Much of the NATO meeting has focused on allegations of Soviet-Cuban intervention in Africa, particularly in the rebel invasion of Zaire's southern Shaba Province by Katangan exiles. Both the Soviet Union and Cuba have denied any involvement in the attack.

Vance said some of the leaders of the Western European nations -which included all the former colonial powers of Africa - urged caution, and "several pointed out that the problems are complex and the roots are deeper than East-West differences.

The Western Europeans urged the United States to proceed with caution and analyze the roots of the African problems, including tribal differences.

Earlier Tuesday, the State Department announced the United States would consider participation in an international peacekeeping force in Zaire. But at his news conference six hours later, Vance laid almost total emphasis on the economic recovery of Zaire and the military force was treated as incidental to the economic plans.

He said the United States - along with France, Belgium, Britain and the Federal Republic of Germany - will meet in Brussels June 13-14 to discuss the eco-

Vance said there was widespread agreement among the NATO allies on the need for a strong defense and the alliance expressed support for the progress made so far in the U.S.-USSR strategic arms limitation talks.

He repeated that the SALT negotiations should remain insulated from the strains that have developed between the two super-powers over Africa.

Gen. Liron said he had no idea when the French troops would be withdrawn completely from Shaba.

Scores of women and children and a handful of men have arrived in Lubumbashi from outlying towns, electing to take "early leave" in Europe because of the unsettled situation in Shaba.

Several women said they would never return to the area after the massacre of whites by rebels at the mining center of Kolwezi earlier this month, but the men said they would go back to their mining jobs after the summer break.

Foreign residents, almost to a man, said they would only stay at their jobs as long as the paratroops or another foreign force such as the Moroccans were in the area to assure their safety.

About 100 whites have been identified after the massacre and officials have said the final death toll for the nine days the mining center was in rebel hands could top 1,000, encluding about 200 whites.

(Mobutu also said in Rabat the rebels had killed European men, women and children they took with them when they retreated into the bush in the face of the Belgian-French paratroop operation June 20. Mobutu said he had received the information from his own security service, but he did not know yet how many hostages has been killed.)

The substantial increase of deaths on the nation's roads surprised the council. It had estimated that 400 to 500 people would die during The Associated Press count running from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, local time.

Vincent Tofany, council president, said the death toll "rivals those before the energy shortage and the 55 mph limit. But the number of day-by-day traffic deaths generally is staying about the same.

Stamp Customers Flood City's Main Post Office

Avalanche-Journal Staff

For customers Tuesday, the waiting lines at the main post office looked like a department store checkout line the night before Christmas.

Unfortunately, not much Christmaslike cheer abounded.

Grumbling, albeit good-naturedly, about the rising cost of mailing a letter, customers waited to buy stamps for the 15 cent first class letter rate that went into effect at midnight Monday.

"It's much worse than Christmas," Postmaster Elmer Reed said. "When we first opened the windows, you couldn't get in the lobby there was such a crowd." By mid-day most of the clerks at the seven windows had sold out of two-cent

Reed said there were no two-cent stamps in Lubbock this morning and that most, if not all, of the 515,000 two-centers in his 90 area post offices probably were gone also.

The Lubbock district ordered a million more when the Postal Service Board of Governors and the federal rate commission agreed on the new rate earlier this month, the postmaster said, and he expects them to arrive sometime this week.

'We do have several hundred one-cent stamps that we're putting on sale today to try to take the place of the two-cents,

The area post offices had 281,000 onecent stamps before the deluge of customers bearing soon-to-be-insufficient 13cent stamps began last week, he added.

The last postal rate increase was Dec. 31, 1975 when first-class letter rates changed from one coin - a dime - to four coins, a dime and three pennies. But the memories of some postal customers Tuesday went back even farther in the history of postal rates. A farmer dressed in work clothes said to no one in particular as he stood in line,

"I remember when I could mail it for

Two-cent postage was in effect from 1885 to 1917. It went to three cents during 1917-1919, the years of World War I, before Congress dropped the rate down to two cents again in 1919. It was 13 years before mail-users saw another increase, when in 1932 an added penny made it three cents once again.

A generation later, in 1958, rates were up to four cents. In 1963 first class letters cost the same as a good five-cent cigar. Rates went to six cents in 1968, to eight cents in 1971 and to a dime in 1974. Despite the rate increase, the filled-tocapacity parking lot, the over-loaded air conditioning, the crammed lobby and the cranky stamp vending machines which occasionally rebelled against the work load, employees reported that most customers were cordial if not enthusiastic about the rate change and the ensuing rush for one-and two-cent stamps.

When window clerk Don Nelson told an elderly woman he was out of one-cent you have a half-cent stamp?"

Nelson said he even gave up his regular lunch hour to serve customers. "You know you hate to close the line when people are waiting."

Postmaster Reed was proud of his troops when he said, "We're here to serve our customers. At about 2 o'clock some of those people (window clerks) still hadn't been to lunch because we

this week to "thousands of party members and followers throughout the nation." But he said he expects only 50 to 100 to demonstrate.

No more than 75 members of Collin's party ever have been reported together at one time. Collin refuses to disclose the party's size.

The party has gained widespread publ-ing it the right to march in Skokie, a predominantly Jewish Chicago suburb where several thousand survivors of World War II Nazi death camps reside.

Skokie is appealing a ruling by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that declared unconstitutional three ordinances barring the Nazi march.

However, Collin said the Skokie march may be scuttled if Chicago drops its requirement that the group post a $60,000 insurance bond before using Chicago parks to demonstrate.

The park district has refused to comment on Collin's demands, except to say that the bond is necessary to protect public property.

"The park district is under pressure now. I'm sure almost everyone, including us, would rather have Nazis marching in Marquette Park than Skokie," Collin said in the interview

"We've used Skokie as a club, and we've won. But the park district doesn't want to lose face. It doesn't want to deal with a pipsqueak upstart little Nazi. But I haven't given them any choice.'

World Chess Match Slated For July

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - The world chess title match between champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union and Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi will begin July 17, organizers said today.

The match in the Philippine mountain resort of Baguio City had been scheduled to begin July 16, but the Philippine Chess Federation said it was postponed at the request of President Ferdinand E. Mar-

The federation, an affiliation of the International Chess Federation, said the championship match will be played for the first time under new rules discounting draws in scoring.

Under the system, the first player to win six games, excluding drawn games, will be declared the winner. In previous matches, draws counted one-half point for each player.

Controlling Acne

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 25 and have a bad acne problem with my chin and the corners of my chin. Just recently the acne has flared up and it seems nothing I usé helps. I am not on birth control pills or any medication. Would you please send me some information on what to do or a Health Letter if you have one?

DEAR READER - In some instances birth control pills help control acne. It depends upon the mix of Acne is usually related to an overproduction of oily secretions called eburn. That forms the white heads and black heads. The fatty-sebum is broken down into fatty acids that irritate the tissues and start the formation of the pimple.

My best home remedy suggestion is to keep the areas involved as dry and free of oil as possible. You can do that by washing with warm water and mild soap - don't use a beauty soap that contains oils or creams in the soap - and wipe off the area regularly, either with plain rubbing alcohol or a half-alcohol half-water mixture. You can use the alcohol sponge technique as many times as needed a day to keep the area free of oil.

Then avoid using any oily preparations on the face. That simply aggravates the problem. If it doesn't clear up, go to the dermatologist. He can use a more aggressive treatment that may include agents to peel the abnormal skin surface and perhaps antibiotics to eliminate bacteria that split the fat into irritating fatty acids.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, that you requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, New York, N.Y., 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 61 and diabetic. Due to being a diabetic and having a hysterectomy my doctor put me on Premarin. I take them three weeks and skip one week. He said it would help retard hardening of the arteries. I've been taking it since

There is evidence that taking female hormones will otherwise improve a woman's longevity and health. Do you need female hormones? That depends Some women produce enough from their adrenal glands over the kidneys to get along just fine. These are the women who have few real menopause symptoms. If you are in that category you may not notice any symptoms if you stop the medicine. If you are not you may have menopause symptoms — partic-ularly hot flashes.

TEXAS CITY (AP) — The Texas City oil refinery disaster claimed its sixth victim today, as another worker died of burns suffered during a series of fiery explosions

Officials at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston said Monroe Huebner, 49, of Alta Loma, died just over 24 hours after the first of the still-unexplained explosions rocked the Gulf Coast refinery Tuesday.

One of five persons still hospitalized, Joyce Taylor, was in critical condition at John Sealy with burns over 80 percent of her body. Four others were treated for injuries and released.

The bodies of three employees were recovered from the plant. Two other workers died later from burns.

By late Tuesday firefighters had subdued the last small pockets of flames at the Texas City Refining Inc. plant after a fire that had lit the predawn sky like a noonday sun. A plant official said the burning storage tanks contained kerosene and fuel.

Some 1,400 people evacuated from their homes in an 80-block area were allowed to return Tuesday.

H.L. Coble, who fled his home about a mile from the plant, said after the first blast awoke him, "I got up and thought we had left all the lights in the house on, it was so bright from the fire. From where my house sits to looked like it covered the whole TRC plant."

The blasts were felt in a 20-mile radius and Houston police on patrol some 35 miles away said they saw an orange glow light up the sky.

F.D. Pennington, 44, a 16-year-veteran at the plant, said he had just closed some valves at 2 a.m. when "there was just fire everywhere ... then one explosion after another"

Pennington, who suffered burns and inch-thick blisters, said he and another employee ran out of the area and scaled an eight-foot fence. He said they could only watch, horrified, as two female coworkers ran from the site with their clothing ablaze.

"We couldn't get to them. If we'd have been on their side of the fence we'd have gone back and got them. It was so hot you couldn't do anything," Pennington said from his hospital bed.

Another employee, LaVernon Easterling, said he tried to close off the valves to the burning area and then tried to find Pennington.

"I was damned lucky," he said from the hospital where he was sent after inhaling acid fumes spewing from one of the tanks. "I could have been driving around up there in the units where it happened. I go up there two, three, four, five maybe six times a night."

Texas City lies on Galveston Bay in an area said to house the highest concentration of petrochemical industries in the world.

In April 1947 it was the scene of the nation's worst industrial accident when more than 500 people died after a ship carrying ammonium nitrate fertilizer blew up in the harbor. The blast set fire blew up in the harbor. The blast set fire to Texas City's industrial waterfront. Tuesday's fire was confined to the Texas City Refining plant, although there are other petroleum storage units nearby.

Plant industrial relations manager Rick Sherman said about 15 people were working at the plant when the explosions—numbering anywhere from 9 to 12—began early Tuesday.

He said it appeared a small explosion in a butane tank touched off other blasts in the area of one of the plant's refining towers.

Hospital To Support Cost Plan

By JEFF SOUTH

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Wary of federal intervention, the
pledged to support a "voluntary cost containment program" aimed at holding down the price of medical care in Texas and the rest of the nation.

In a resolution, the Lubbock County Hospital District board of managers vowed to keep expenditures of the local teaching institution as low as possible without sacrificing service.

Gerald Bosworth, executive director of the district and its hospital, off federal legislation that would impose an "arbitrary cap" on health-care expenditures.

The effort has been engineered by state and national hospital officials to "show the country that these things (rising hospital costs and hospital bills) can be handled in a voluntary way without mandates from Washington, D.C.." Bosworth

The Lubbock County hospital board adopted its resolution "in recognition of the need to restrain the rate of increase in health-care expenditures...

"It is our continued intent to contain the rate of increase in the Health Sciences Center Hospital expenditures and incur new capital investment at levels that provide for the delivery of quality medical and hospital services commensurate with the needs of the patient community served by our hospital."

Bosworth said Texas hospitals have been among the leaders in the nation in holding down hospital costs. Most hospitals are trying to keep their cost escalation rates at least two percentage points below those of previous years, he said.

That is, a hospital whose annual budget has been jumping at a rate of 13 percent is attempting to hold next year's increase to 11 percent, explained J.C. Rickman, chairman of the local hospital board.

Since the Health Sciences Center Hospital opened only in February and does not have such fiscal experience, "our pledge simply is that we will make every effort to maintain our costs at as economical a level as we can," Bosworth said.

Board member Joe Stanley said the Health Sciences Center Hospital already is "considerably lower" on its rates and various charges than some other hospitals in Lubbock.

The board's resolution supporting voluntary cost restraints will be presented for approval by the executive committee of the hospital's medical staff later this week.

On another matter Tuesday, hospital administrators presented to the board financial statements for the month of April. Those statements showed that the fledgling hospital is doing a greater volume of business, with a higher percentage of paying patients, than had been expected.

For example, for the month the hospital had projected a deficit of $324,000. But the actual loss for April was only $181,000 hospital officials said.

$181,000, hospital officials said.
"So we have a $143,000 positive variance, Rickman said.

So far this year, taxpayers have had to subsidize the hospital by about $502,000 — well below the $645,000 subsidy the hospital had predicted it would need for its initial three months.

Bosworth said the hospital — which now has only about half of its 245 beds available — desperately needs to open more accommodations, beginning with the west wing on the third floor.

"We were full several days last week, and we are full today," Bosworth said. "The only thing holding us back (from opening more beds) right now is registered nurses. If we had just a few more nurses, we could open some beds in (unit) three-west."

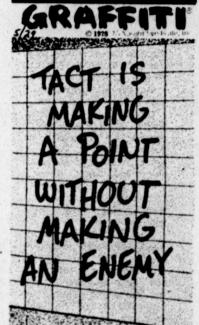

At Bosworth's suggestion, the board passed a policy offering a $100 savings bond to any Lubbock County Hospital District employee who recruits a nurse for the hospital. To be eligible, the nurse must come from outside Lubbock County or reside within the county but not be presently employed.

Bosworth said the hospital will be hiring about 20 recent nursing school graduates in the next month. After they officially pass their state exams to qualify as registered nurses, the hospital's staffing problems won't be as bad, he said.

He also said the hospital is providing some nurses with extra training so that four beds in the pediatric intensive care unit can be opened in July.

Also Tuesday the board:

Bridge would be such an easy game if partners simply could tell each other what to play. Yet, with proper carding, that is exactly what they can do in a number of cases. Observe how East and West managed to communicate with each other on this deal.

Despite his 14 points, North's hand is a doubtful opening bid because it is aceless. However, that did not affect the final contract. Even had North passed South would have opened one spade and four spades still have been reached.

West led his fourth best heart. The normal procedure would be for East to win with the king and then cash the ace. However, East wanted to communicate to his partner that he held the two high hearts and no other, so he reversed the procedure and won the first trick with the ace and then cashed the king.

West took note of his partner's departure from standard practice, and got the message that East was trying to convey. It was obvious to West that he had to get in quickly to return a heart. If declarer was allowed to obtain the lead he would draw trumps and the heart ruff would go away. Therefore, it was imperative to indicate to East that West's entry was in diamonds and not in clubs. He achieved this by following suit to the second trick with the nine of hearts. East knew that his partner had to have lower cards in the heart suit. West's play of a high heart had to have lead-directing implicationsit asked for a return of the higher-ranking side suit. (Had West wanted a club return, he would have followed with his lowest heart.)

Trusting his partner, East shifted to a diamond. West grabbed the ace and reverted to a heart, and East's ruff was the fourth trick for the defense. Declarer was down before he even started playing.

By ERMA BOMBECK Do you know what the basic difference is between youth and old age? Boxes

Youth has always believed that somewhere around the next bend, there is always a box when they need it. Old age never wants to take that chance I don't think I'll ever forget the first time I discovered my mother was a > box junkie. She had given me a birthday present and as I lifted the lid off the top to unfold a robe, Mother leaned over, snapped the lid back on the box and took it back.

Later, when I thought about it, I was always receiving a scarf in a stationery box, a blouse in a shoebox, and once I got a small pendant in a box marked. Rectal Thermometer.

At Christmas, there was no size too large or small, no form too ridiculous, no present too pithy to be matched up to one of Mother's famous boxes.

After awhile I came to recognize them. The box from Saks (Mother had never been to Saks in her life) that always caused the recipient's heart to beat a little faster until I found a floral ironing board cover in it one year), a Christmas box from Nieman-Marcus (she'd never been to Texas in her entire life) that she salvaged from the lost-and-found at the church, and her ace in the hole, a box from Tiffany's which I didn't get toochoked up about when she gave me a mood ring in it two years ago.

She had boxes stashed all over the house for transporting cakes, hamsters, laundry and picnic supplies. Boxes for mailing. Boxes for storing. Boxes for science themes, sleeping dogs, snapshots and memorabilia. Boxes for starting fires. Boxes for rainy-day projects. Boxes for boots by the door. And boxes to keep the baked beans from spilling over the car trunk. Boxes for a child's birthday present that you didn't know you had until you went through the catch-all drawer in the kitchen. She had boxes in

NICE, France (WNS) - Marie Louise Rocher, 12, and her brother Jean Luc, 9, threatened to leave home if their father Philippe didn't stay home from work instead of going to the office. Mother Francoise agreed to take over dad's clothing store for a one-month trial, and the result was better school marks for the kids and only minor trouble with the business. But three months later Dad is back at the store. "The kids got tired of eating steak every noon," he said. "We may try it

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker told me that a 23-year-old Philadelpia woman got such a wild crush on a 44-year-old guy who works as a guard at the Montgomery County Prison, that she called him on the phone 1,400 times in three months! She was supposed to have called him at his home 400 times in one week. Then he changed his phone number and she started calling him at the prison! Can you believe this. Abby?

This co-worker says that the guard actually filed a formal complaint against the woman. The judge fined her $300 and put her on probation for three months.

Will you please check this out and see if it's true, or is my co-worker just putting

PENNA. PUT-ON

Dear Penna : It's no put-on. It actually happened. The judge warned the lovesick young woman with telephonitis that if she didn't quit calling the guard, she'd be sent to prison - but NOT to the one where that guard was employed.

DEAR ABBY: The daughter of a friend of mine was planning a large August wedding. However, those plans were quickly changed when the bride-to-be discovered she was pregnant. So now the family has sent out announcements stating that their daughter was married in April - so the big wedding is off

Under these circumstances, is a wedding gift in order?

JUST ASKING Dear Just: If your wedding gift means, This is in repayment for your wedding invitation," then, of course, no gift is in order. But if it means, "Accept this gift along with our best wishes for your future happiness," then a gift is in order.

DEAR ABBY: BOILING MAD IN PA made me so mad I am seeing red, and I'm still "seeing red" (in debt) after paying for three daughters' weddings that ran over $2,000 each!

I say if the groom's family wants a part in the planning of the wedding, let them put up some cash; otherwise, it's the bride's day, and she and her family can have the full say over all the wedding

1 am now looking forward to my son's wedding, and I don't want a bloomin' thing to do with the plans as long as the bride's family foots the bill. SEEING RED IN SEATTLE

Dear Seeing Personally, I would like to see the wedding become a joint effort. shared equally by both sides:

The Slim Gourmet

Do you have any of these "Weight Problems?" The ones we're speaking of aren't medical afflictions but, people afflictions ... those seemingly well-meaning friends and relatives who do or say the wrong thing -usually in the guise of helping — thereby making your diet doubly difficult.

WEIGHT PROBLEM No. 1: THE CALORIE COP - knows the calorie count of everything and doesn't wait to be asked to tell it. Buys you diet books, tears out newspaper articles sticks inspirational cartoons on your refrigerator. Officiates at your weigh-in, phones the doctor to make your appointments, drives you to the diet clinic and leads you by hand through the supermarket diet foods.

The Weightwatchdog does such a good job of running your diet that there's nothing left for you to do except scheme a junkfood jailbreak. Your self-appointed conscience probably means well, but the message implicit in his or her methods is that you are a spineless softy who couldn't possibly cope alone.

Trouble is, you might begin to believe it! Or, if you have any spunk at all, you might put on a potato chip protest.

But that spites only you. Better to tell the Calorie Cop to turn in his or her

WEIGHT PROBLEM No. 2: THE LOVE SHYLOCK - quite literally, this one demands a "pound of flesh" as the price of respect or affection. Things are just peachy so long as you toe the caloric straight-and-narrow, but any dietary indiscretion on your part is interpreted by the Love Shylock as a personal affront. With or without so many words, the shylock's message is:

"You are unacceptable. So, if you want to be my friend (lover, mate, child, parent) you'd better shape up" Or: that piece of cake is evidence that you have no regard for feelings. You know how it distresses me to see you put on weight."

Love Shylocks are so self-centered that they cannot understand that your food problem is strictly personal, and nothing to do with them. Sometimes the Love Shylock's methods work, but the relationship is a sick one. The only person really to please with weight loss is your-

WEIGHT PROBLEM No. 3: THE AM-ATEUR SHRINK - without a fee, without a couch, license or degree - without even being asked - this person does volunteer casework among the hungry, sharing his or her remarkable insights into the Real Meaning of your meals.

Milkshakes are withheld Mother Love; hot dogs are phallic symbols, birthday rake is fear of aging, a cheese omelet is your repressed maternal instinct ... every food is fraught with Freudian flavor! Sign yourself out of Dr. Fraud's mental hospital before you begin to believe it. Ask him or her: "Why are you doing this? Why do you feel this need to turn other people into mental cases? Physician, heal

WEIGHT PROBLEM No. 4: THE

GLOATER - can stuff herself silly and never gain an ounce, but never without an audience, preferably a dieter whose stomach is rumbling with hunger. The Gloater never, never lets you forget your affliction and her good fortune, even though she sounds so sympathetic: "Listen, I KNOW exactly what you're going through. I have the SAME problem, only in reverse. That darling size 6 bikini I bought last week in the discount sample shop is slipping off my hips already! "I'll have to stuff all week on pizza to wear it this weekend. By the way, are you coming with us, or couldn't you find a bathing suit in the Stout Shoppe?" Believe it or not, that kind of "sympathy" is thinly veiled envy over some aspect of your life that's working better than hers. Or his. Gloaters can be both sexes.

WEIGHT PROBLEM NO. 5: THE GOODIE GODMOTHER (FATHER) also a sympathetic soul. By magic, manages to turn everything into a "special occasion" that takes the calories out of fattening foods. " "Just this once" is his or her charmed incantation, holding out that (calorie-poisoned apple strudel. He or she KNOWS how hard you've been trying, how well you've done with your diet, how close you are to your goal, and God knows one little banana split couldn't hurt, it's mostly fruit.

'And, besides, it's my birthday, and I ordered it just for you, and wouldn't it be shame to waste it what with all the starving children in India. You really wouldn't make me alone now, would you? My feelings will be hurt." Just as suspected, the GG is really the Wicked Witch, waiting to devour you with sympathy. This person is the worst of the lot . not at all sympathetic or interested in your welfare. Thet last thing he or she wants is your success. Here's how the Goodie Godmother father really sees your relationship: "I'm okay. But you're a poor fat slob who's lucky I bother with you at all. Now, don't go and change things.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

O: Talk-show hosts always seem to ask veteran movie stars if they watch their old movies on TV? What do most of them say? - J.R., Knoxville, Tenn.

A: Many wince when they see how young they looked. Others get a kick flashing back to high moments. Fred Astaire, for example, is not a late-show fan. "I've seen all my movies." he smiles. "So why see them again?" But he doesn't avoid an Astair feature. "I watch my own pictures on TV only long enough to identify certain routines," he says.

Q: Has any U.S. President ever attended horse races? - C. Strothers, Washington, Va.

A: Not while in office. Eisenhower, Truman and - about 100 years ago - Rutherford B. Haves made no secret of liking to go to a track. On the same subject, sports editor Russ Harris claims that George Washington was once a steward at old Williamsburg. And that Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson raced their own horses. Also that Woodrow Wilson was an amateur handicapper.

Q: My husband insists that, when he was a boy, he watched a Broadway ticker-tape parade for Howard Hughes. Could he have been dreaming? — C. Gunther, Quincy, Ill.

A: Probably not. Aviation pioneer Hughes was ticker-taped for flying around the world solo, an unheard-of feat in 1938. A year later he was awarded a Congressional Medal of Honor.

Q: When was the first regularly scheduled baseball game telecast in color? Also, what teams played in it? - Charley Morris, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

A: The date was Aug. 11, 1951. The ballpark was Ebbets Field, home of the then-Brooklyn Dodgers. Their opponents were the then-Boston (now Atlanta) Braves.

Q: Where, and to whom, do we write to ask how we can get into the Guinness record books with some interesting records? - Terry and Ann. Renton, Wash.

A: Our answer to you and other readers with a similar question is to address your note to Guinness Ltd., 2 Cecil Court, London Road, Enfield, Middlesex, England, Attention G. Howard Garrard, correspondence editor.

Q: I see where Buster Crabbe, the veteran Olympic swimming champion, will return to the screen to remake the Flash Gordon films. I know he is still handsome and muscular but don't you think that he is a little over-the-hill to play the Flash? - R M., Columbus, Ohio.

A: Buster will play his father. We will always remember an evening when, as a youthful Tarzan buff, we invited Buster and a singer named Mark Plant (who occasionally played Tarzan on the stage) to an informal after-theater party we threw at a New York City penthouse we subleased for the summer. After two or three drinks, the boys decided to determine which Tarzan could produce the loudest Tarzan yell. The contest provided great hilarity till the doorbell rang and a couple of cops informed us that everybody in the neighborhood was awakened by those blood-curdling yells and to "please shut up." The contest was declared a draw. (Johnny Weissmuller, whose name is synonymous with the call of the jungle, once told us that neither he nor any actor in that role ever recorded the yell alone. It took three or four men to do it simultaneously, after which the sound was dubbed into the film.)

Q: What do insiders in sports think of Phyllis George as a sportscaster? - J.T.L., Miami, Fla.

A: Sport magazine sort of summed it up when they included Phyllis in their "Spoilsports of 1977" list. They describe CBS-TV's beautiful sportscaster as being "as knowledgeable about sports as Gorgeous George was about nuclear physics.'

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported recently that the narrowly defined measure, known as M1, fell $100 million to a seasonally adjusted average of $346.2 billion in the week ended May

'It could be that after the big run-ups in the past few months that we're just in for some backsliding for a couple of weeks," said Bob Sinche, a money-supply specialist for Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtiss.

The money supply has been increasing in recent months, and many economists believe that foreshadows an increased rate of inflation. To counter that, the Federal Reserve has been tightening credit in an attempt to reduce the amount of money in circulation.

"I think the Fed would like to have a slowdown through May and June, but I don't know if they're going to be that lucky," said another money supply spe-

Smith and other operations executives note Wall Street decided to commit the necessary capital to technological improvements after the paperwork debacle 10 years ago. Many refinements, such as Depository Trust Co., a Fort Knox for storing securities, are fairly recent but were ready for the crunch.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

Matthew 27:47-66, The Living Bible

47 Some of the bystanders misunderstood and thought He was calling for Elijah.

48 One of them ran and filled a sponge with sour wine and put it on a stick and held it up to Him to

49 But the rest said, "Leave Him alone. Let's see whether Elijah will come and save Him." 50 Then Jesus shouted out again, dismissed His spirit, and died.

51 And look! The curtain secluding the Holiest Place in the Temple was split apart from top to bottom; and the earth shook, and rocks broke. 52 And tombs opened, and many godly men and women who had died came back to life again. 53 After Jesus' resurrection, they left the cemetery and went into Jerusalem, and appeared to many people there.

54 The soldiers at the crucifixion and their sergeant were terribly frightened by the earthquake and all that happened. They exclaimed, "Surely this was God's Son."

55 And many women who had come down from Galilee with Jesus to care for Him were watching from 56 Among them were Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of James and John (the sons of Zebedee).

57 When evening came, a rich man from Arimathea named Joseph, one of Jesus' followers,

58 Went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. And Pilate issued an order to release it to him. 59 Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And placed it in his own new rock-hewn tomb, and rolled a great stone across the entrance as he left. 61 Both Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were sitting nearby watching.

62 The next day-at the close of the first day of the Passover ceremonies -the chief priests and Pharisees went to Pilate, 63 And told him, "Sir, that liar once said, 'After three days I will come back to life again.'

64 So we request an order from you sealing the tomb until the third day, to prevent his disciples from coming and stealing his body and then telling everyone he came back to life! If that happens we'll be worse off than we were at first." 65 "Use your own Temple police," Pilate told them. "They can guard it safely enough. 66 So they sealed the stone and posted guards to protect it from intrusion:

Residents Of Sudan Display Civic Pride

SUDAN (Special) - There is a cash prize of $300 on the line in the regional judging of the Texas Community Improvement Program. But for the 976 citizens of this Lamb County community, what's at stake really is a matter of pride. Sudan already has reaped $100 as the top entry among 20 counties at the district level. It has advanced to the regional competition in which four small communities that have shown the most civic improvement during the 12 months which ended March 31 will be selected.

But the real prize has been the resurgence of civic spirit throughout the town. Hoyt Robertson, chairman of the Sudan Civic Improvement Association, de-

"The real benefit ... has been getting all our people involved," Robertson said. Not only the young people have wholeheartedly backed the program, but the adults, too, he said.

"And this will continue long after the contest is over," Robertson added.

The city boasts a proud heritage from its beginning in 1917 as a railroad way station and farming community carved out of the old 77 Ranch.

In the 1940s it gained worldwide attention with its Fall Festival and United Nations pageant, the envy of even large cities. The 1950 census recorded 1,330 residents and the town grew to 1,700.

But like many small towns. Sudan went into a dormant stage during the 1950s and 1960s. Young families moved away. Business growth leveled off. Then as the 1970s began, the trend started to change

The nation's bicentennial and a newly organized Lions Club stimulated a reawakening community pride. Under the Lions' leadership, many projects were initiated and Sudan qualified as a Bicentennial Community

-Appointed an arbitration committee to hear appeals from persons denied hospital indigency benefits. The committee will include the Rev. Robert Nicholson, a hospital chaplain: Ted Babain, who served on a similar panel when the indigency program was administered by Lubbock County government; Jack Strong, a hospital board member; and Willie Washington, director of the county general assistance agency

-Awarded bids for ambulance chassis ($32,763), a trash compactor ($9,985), a soft water system ($29,295) and x-ray film and chemicals (about $10,000 a month).

Passman Too Sick For Health Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ailing former Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., has an indefinite postponement of his hearing on whether he is well enough to stand trial on bribery charges in the Korean payoff scandal

Passman's lawyers filed papers Tuesday citing new medical complications that would prevent the 77-year-old Passman from appearing in court.

agents John Farris and Mrs. Dorothy Powell explained the community improvement program to community leaders. The Sudan Community Improvement Association was organized, officers were elected, and four committees were established. In addition to Robertson, ofticers are Cletis Holloman, vice chairman; Sara M. Woods, secretary-treasurer: and Billye Doty, reporter.

Every organization in Sudan, including the schools, all the churches and each civic, youth and ethnic group, has rallied behind the project.

All the groups are represented in the association, which has set up short and long range goals and has coordinated a; side range of projects.

The community improvement program started more than 20 years ago, when the investor-owned utility companies of Texas and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service joined forces to stimulate community improvement through organizational efforts.

The contest is a measurement of accomplishment which communities of 1.-000 or less population make toward specific goals during the year, explained Mrs. Powell

At the end of the year, a team of judges visits each community. The citizens are limited to two hours in which to explain and exhibit their achievements. In the district judging, Sudan edged out White face in Cochran County and West Camp in Bailey County for a chance at becoming one of the four state champions.

Sudan is in competition with Imperial, Wildorado and Truscott for the regional

In addition to the $300 and designation as "State Winner, Region I," the regional champion will receive a letter of commendation from Gov. Dolph Briscoe and an invitation to the Governor's Luncheon with the other three regional winners. The three runnersup in Region I each will receive $100.

The improvement boasted by Sudan's citizens are many. The Sudan Hotel, the oldest in the county, is being restored as the Lamb County Museum and has been designated a historical landmark.

Vacant lots have been cleaned and many dilapidated buildings have been torn down. Other buildings and homes have been renovated and remodeled. Each church has implemented a renovation program during the year. Trees and shrubs have been planted and a new park was created. The Civic Improvement Association led the successful campaign for passage of a $300,000 bond issue to improve the city's sewer and water system. The Volunteer Fire Department is implementing a free ambulance service and planning a new fire station and acquisition of additional equipment. The airport runway was repayed. New community activities for all ages have been started. A monthly music festival provides a variety of family entertainment. An art fair exhibited local arts and crafts, and an art contest for youth was sponsored. Suppers for senior citizens were sponsored by the churches. After high school ball games, the churches sponsor programs of entertainment and snacks for the youths. The Fourth of July celebration has been expanded and the entire town turned out at Christmas for the first Community Caroling and visit from Santa

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Closing arguments were to continue today in the seven-month trial to determine if the socalled Mormon will was actually penned by the late Howard Hughes.

Attorney Harold Rhoden, seeking to prove the document is valid, begins his fifth' day of summations. He will be followed by attorneys for Hughes' relatives who contend the will is a forgery.

On Tuesday, Rhoden said that the aides who surrounded Hughes as he lay dying in a resort hotel room had a duty to save him but would not call a doctor even when it was obvious Hughes was near

"They let him die when they had a duty to save his life," Rhoden declared. "There's a word for that - murder."

Hughes died April 5, 1976 while on an emergency flight from Acapulco, Mexico to a Houston hospital.

About a half-dozen of Hughes' former aides have testified during the trial in which Rhoden, the substitute executor of Hughes' vast estate, is seeking to have the will admitted to probate.

Rhoden represents Noah Dietrich, a long-time Hughes associate named executor of the estate in the handwritten. three-page document delivered to the headquarters of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City.

The will was taken to the Mormon headquarters by Melvin Dummar, named to receive one-sixteenth of Hughes' estate - conservatively estimated at nearly $169 million.

Dummar, a former Utah service station operator, has said he picked up a man in the Nevada desert in December 1967 and drove him to Las Vegas. The man told him he was Hughes, Dummar said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Heavy winter rains brought forth lush fields of mustard and rye grass in Southern California. Now, firefighters are watching the fields turn brown from hot dry winds and hoping against a rich harvest of summer

Fifty brush fires burned over 1,232 acres in Riverside County during record Memorial Day temperatures. Another fire at Santee near San Diego blackened

"That's a lot of fires for this early in the season," California Department of Forestry spokesman Will Donaldson said Tuesday. "There's 10 times more fire fuel in Southern California than last year during the drought.

"There's grass growing where there' was never any before. It's going to produce fuel equal to 200 or 300 gallons of gas per acre," he said.

Donaldson said the problem seems to be confined to Southern California, where rainfall was three times what it was during last year's drought.

More than 33 inches of rain has fallen in Los Angeles since July 1977, compared to 12.31 inches during the same period the year before. Normal rainfall is 14.02

Opponent Knocks Bush Campaigning

Republican Jim Reese, coming into the home stretch in his Saturday runoff bid against George Bush, Tuesday accused his opponent of "deliberately misleading" the public about his background.

Where he was born is not important. What is important is that he deliberately misled the people," Reese said, adding his opponent "allowed the misrepresentations to continue" in media reports.

Bush, contacted later, countered that he "never tried to mislead anybody." He noted that he ordered about 3,000 brochures destroyed after it was discovered they mistakenly stated that he was born in Midland

Foreign Subsidies

Noted By Treasury WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury

Department says Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, India, Taiwan, the Philippines and Uruguay illegally subsidize exports of textile mill products and men's and boy's clothing.

In a tentative ruling Tuesday, the Treasury acted in response to a petition by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers' Union. The law requires Treasury to charge a tariff that equals the amount of a subsidy that has been paid on imported merchandise. The department said imports of the products from the seven countries were estimated at about $700 million in 1977.

If energy supplies increase with de-mand, DRI says the unemployment rate should slip to just under 5 percent by 1985. If not, the percentage of workers looking for jobs would stick above 6 percent and climb to nearly 7 percent by the middle of the next decade. Largely, that's because the projection also calls for business investment to grow only about 2 percent a year if energy supplies fall off, instead of the more "normal" 6 percent.

The result of all this would be a sizable slowdown in the rate of growth in the

The Promenade Cafeteria now is Act I. The Gallery has been renamed Act II and La Grande Scene has become Act III, a toney establishment that has changed its menu from French cuisine to American and continental favorites. The switch was made to expedite service for theater and playgoers who can't spend several hours over a leisurely dinner.

Act I, redecorated with hanging batik banners, features sandwiches, salads, soups and desserts. It is open 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for lunch, and 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. for dinner

Act II diners now eat in a gardenlike atmosphere among hanging baskets and greenery. The menu, formerly American, now changes from week to week to reflect international specialties as well as such regional American favorites as Texas chili, New England boiled dinner, New Orleans shrimp creole, southern fried chicken. The cooking of Germany, Spain, France, China and Britain will follow. Prices range up to $5.

Act II is open from 11:30 a.m. until a half hour past the final curtain in the center's auditoriums.

Act III's dinner entrees range from $8.25 for fresh fish in season to $12.75 for roast rack of lamb between 6 p.m. and

The after-show supper menu in Act III features omelettes, quiches, steak tartare, pute, European-style cold meats and poached fresh salmon, at prices ranging from $3.25 to $5.50. Supper is served from 30 minutes past the final curtain.

While the renovations dealt mostly with the dining rooms, major repairs were made in the central kitchen that serves all three restaurants. Crews tore out 18 inches of the kitchen floor for repairs, rewiring and waterproofing. Act III is a bi-level dining room seating 215 persons on raised banquettes to offer diners a better view of the capital.

"It used to be everyone wanted a win-dow table," said Al Mandaro of Canteen Corp., the Chicago-based company that operates the Kennedy Center restaur-

"But now the raised platforms will allow more people to see outside. We think it is going to work beautifully."

Dire Economic Future Forecast For Nation

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL American economy — 6.6 percent below the,"normal" rate by 1985. Translated in-to jobs, that would mean 2.9 million few-While Congress and the Administration continue to be hung up on a national en-ergy policy, a new study warns of dire economic effects by the middle of the er job openings in an energy crunch. The DRI report says that a shortage of energy would hit industrial users hardest energy would hit industrial users hardest because available supplies would b di-rected towards residential and commer-cial users. Household supplies would drop by 11.1 percent, while industry would have to make do with 19.3 percent Electric Co. and made by Data Resources Inc., says that by 1985 unemployment will be up, inflation will be galloping at double-digit rates and business expansion will grind to a near-halt, unless fuel supplies keep in line with ever-in-

The impact of the shortfall wouldn't be felt right away. For the next couple of years, in fact, the projection says the U.S. economy would be only slightly hampered. The unemploymnt rate, too, would not show much change from what

By 1980, though, with energy supplies by then about 5 percent below needs, the effects would start becoming severe. At that time, DRI says, fuel prices would be about 50 percent higher than they are now, causing $ 2 percent jump in the wholesale price index. The country's gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced by Americans — would lag expected trends by 1.3 percent. Industrial production would show a 4.7 percent drag and consumption, after taking out the effects of inflation, would be down half a percentag

After 1980, the projection indicates, the economic slowdown would pick up in pace, apparently until new energy supplies become available.

Dr. Thomas A. Vanderslice, the GE senior vice president in charge of the power systems group, naturally favors a program that would increase the supply of energy, especially power genrated by coal and nuclear energy plants - both of them right up his company's alley. He says, though, that the study was ordered to show the need to develop a clear national policy, rather than to provide new ammunition against opponents of nuclear

According to Vanderslice, General Electric's estimates of the energy needs for the rest of this century actually are somewhat more conservative than many others, including the Department of Energy. Still, he says, the targets will be tough to meet without a comprehensive policy to develop the country's resources. In the meantime, he says, supply lines are vulnerable to strikes, embargoes, natural disasters and political upheavals.

Vanderslice also said that the estimate of the country's needs already includes anticipated savings of 25 percent through servation measures - either forced by government policy, encouraged by rising prices or purely voluntary.

Miller Remains Positive On Job

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) - He is thin and pale from the double jolt of a heart attack and a stroke, but United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller is as determined as ever to keep his job.

"Absolutely not," he snorted, puffing on a cigarette in clear disregard of his doctor's orders, when asked if he would resign. A movement to recall Miller had gained strength during the 110-day UMW

"I'll be at work in a couple of more weeks," he said.

Miller, talking with UPI while visiting the West Virginia capitol Monday, warned that politically minded persons motivated by personal ambitions are trying to keep his union divided.

'It's been very difficult to establish democratic principles in this union with a few ambitious politicians," Miller said. "But I don't thimk those politicians have been successful in destroying those democratic principles. I gave them (the membership) that and I'm rather proud

Black Panel Opposes Activity In Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) - Calling former U.S. involvement in Angola "ill con-ceived," the Congressional Black Caucus is urging President Carter not to resume covert activity in the African nation.

The caucus wrote Carter on Monday that the old policies were disastrous for U.S. relations with Africa and were taken "with callous disrespect for the lives of African people in southern West Virginia coalfields, Miller said: "I don't think there is that much of a problem. They're still here, but I don't think they got much of a fol-

At 166 pounds - four pounds below his normal weight - the jacketless Miller appeared tired, his collar open. But he seemed happy to be out of the hospital where he stayed following ratification of the new UMW pact in March.

"I'm not working all that hard now," said Miller, his movements somewhat mechanical. Miller used to work as late

"I never realized how much work I was doing till I was laid up in the hosptial bed, all wired up," he said. Other UMW problems identified by Miller included: —Continued instability. -A potential threat of the loss of Japanese export markets.

 Housing shortages. Miller has named Kenneth Dawes of Indiana, Lou Antal of Pennsylvania and Leon Alexander of Alabama to a special panel to work with coal operators on defining labor-related coal problems. Referring to the export situation, Miller said Alaska contains the third largest potential bituminous coalfield in the

"We've got to look at it realistically," Miller said. "In eight to 10 years, we may lose the Japanese market.'

Miller said it was vital for the UMW to organize Alaska, once opened. He said the rest of the nation must be prepared for a contract with much higher wages than elsewhere, due to Alaska's unique

Significant Changes Predicted In Soviet Society

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Soviet Union probably will be a profoundly different nation socially, economically, politically - even militarily - within the next ten years or so, says a secret NATO analysis under study by 15 world leaders meeting here.

The portrait, drawn by a special international task force, follows a proposal written by President Carter a year ago. The document is being scrutinized by the heads of state of the NATO countries meeting in a two-day summit that ends

Allied diplomats who are familiar with the document, but who would not be named, said it examines the transforming population makeup of the Soviet nation. uncertain energy supplies in the 1980s; a slowdown in economic growth: an everincreasing arms burden: complications posed by China's developing capabilities; and the nature of the leadership likely to succeed the country's present hierarchy. At one point, the analysis stresses, the Soviets are unlikely to unleash a major war of aggression despite a military spending program increasing at an annual rate of 5 percent. Soviet military spending now consumes between 11 percent and 13 percent of the gross national product, the nation's total annual output. The western officials disclosed some of the document's dramatic content.

-The birth rate of the 150 million Soviet citizens living in the Russian Republic has declined to 15 per 1,000, below the national average of 18.2 -In contrast, the birth rate in the

Asian and Transcaucasian republics has climbed rapidly to between 30 and 40 per

-The NATO analysts anticipate that political continuity will be preserved when the aging leadership in the Politburo vanishes. By CHARLES R. SMITH HONG KONG (UPI) - Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng has called for a purge of undesirable elements from China's armed forces to strengthen the party's control, a Peking Radio report said today.

"Politics is the commander, the soul of everything." Hua told an army political meeting in Peking Monday, the radio report monitored in Hong Kong said.

Speaking in his capacity as chairman of the Miltary Affairs Commission, Hua said the army's modernization program must not be carried out at the expense of political principles.

Through a process of rectification, we must build up the political departments and a powerful contingent of political cadres." he said in calling for a purge of undesirable elements

Hua said the work of the political commissars must not be downgraded, admitting that the political department had been disrupted, thrown into confusion and even paralyzed in the past.

"It is imperative to give full play to the political commissars," Hua said.

Hua's call was backed up by Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, the most powerful military figure in the country, who said, "There should be conscientious rectification in the army

Hua's remarks indicated the debate that has divided the armed forces - politics versus professionalism - is continu-

The debate involves a dispute between military professionals who want more emphasis on military training and more rapid modernization and officers who want greater stress on politics in troop training and military work.

Hua's speech summed up the "positive and negative experience" of the army's political work since he came to power in

He said party control and political principles laid down by his predecessor, the late Mao Tse-tung, must not be sacrificed in the process of military modernization. "The question of primary importance

Marriage Rumored For Prince

LONDON (AP) - Prince Michael of Kent, a first cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and 16th in line to the throne, is going to marry a Roman Catholic divorcee, the Press Association reports.

The British news agency's court correspondent, quoting "reliable sources," said the Duke of Kent's 35-year-old brother, an army major, and 33-year-old German-born Baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz will announce their engagement later this week and will marry in July in Austria, where her family has an estate. Buckingham Palace said an announcement concerning the prince will be made within a few days, but a spokesman declined to confirm or deny the PA

It is the second time this year that the royal family has been affected by divorce, a sensitive issue since the queen is head of the Church of England which does not sanction divorce. But the divorce last week of Princess Margaret, the queen's sister, and Lord Snowdon caused little adverse public reaction, and the admission of a divorced woman to the ranks of the royal cousins is not likely to upset many people.

Marriage to the baroness, a London interior designer, will force the prince to give up his right of succession because anyone in line for the throne is forbidden to marry a Catholic. They also cannot be married in the Church of England because it will not marry a divorced person as long as the other spouse is alive.

The baroness, a London interior designer, and merchant banker Tom Troubridge were divorced several months ago. The Catholic Church annulled the marriage three weeks ago, and the PA report said she has applied to the Vatican for permission to marry the Anglican prince in a Catholic church.

The Press Association said the Privy Council, the queen's advisory body, is expected to approve the marriage on behalf of the queen Wednesday night after months of consultations between the royal family and Church of England

An irony of the situation is that the Church of England was founded by King Henry VIII in the 16th Century in order to obtain a divorce from his first wife, Katherine of Aragon. The Roman Catholic Church refused to sanction his divorce, so he split with Rome to found the Anglican Church.

form in a roped-off suburban street on a swelteringly hot night, a heavy-set man with slicked-back hair and sagging jowls grips a microphone with one hand, waves the other hand in the air and bellows. It's either them or us, and we're for

This is the face of California's property tax revolt.

The speaker is Howard Jarvis, a 75-car-old former newspaper publisher. now head of a landlords' association and sponsor of a $7 billion property tax quit roposal, Proposition 13 on the June 6. tate ballot

Pollsters in California predict adoption of Jarvis' proposal, which would cut property taxes by an average of 57 perent. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. opposes the plan but is drafting plans to cut back overnment services

In the cheering crowd is a middle-aged woman whose husband is a city surveyor. Her home has just been reassessed from $32,000 to $63,000. She plans to express her anger by voting for Proposition 13. They're scaring the people by saying they'll cut back on the fire department and police," said the woman, who refused to give her name. "I don't believe it. Everybody has to do without something Now government will have to do without

Her husband said his department will be cut 30 percent if 13 passes, but he's voting for it anyway. "So I'll cut my throat," he said. "I'll get another job, go omewhere else

People like these are the backbone of Jarvis' movement. They live in suburbs, where property assessments, fueled by inflation and a tight housing market. have exploded. In Jarvis they have a leader who tells them their anger is not only justified, it is heroic

A campaign slogan in television commercials captures the spirit: "Show the politicians who's boss

But opponents say Proposition 13 would not hurt politicians, but the more. than 400,000 public and private employees who would lose their jobs, plus millions more who depend on local government services like schools, police and fire departments, libraries and parks - all funded partly by property taxes.

A rival measure on the ballot - Proposition 8, which would give homeowners a 32 percent tax cut but limit tax cuts for business, farm and apartment properties to only two-thirds of those in Jarvis' plan has better organized support and more money, but it has not been able to generate the emotional impact of Proposition

And what headway the anti-13 forces had made in opinion polls, which showed only a slim lead for the initiative in mid-April. has been wiped out by a decision of Los Angeles County supervisors to mail new higher property assessment notices ahead of schedule -- before the election.

Subsequent polls showed a sharp increase in support for Proposition 13 - so much so that Brown is all but conceding

From his early prediction that Proposition 13 would require a huge state tax increase or cuts in essential government services, Brown - who is seeking re-election in November - is now saying he will not approve higher taxes and thinks essential services will survive.

But in some local governments, the mood is one of impending catastrophe.

School districts have sent tentative layoff notices to 28,000 teachers, and some say they may double class size and fire half their teachers. Local fire districts predict cutbacks of 15 percent to 75 percent. Signs have been posted at San Francisco libraries and Oakland fire stations saying services will be curtailed or closed if Proposition 13 passes.

To Jarvis, these are scare tactics that have already backfired.

Nobody believes their campaign, not a word of it," he said in an interview The other day I was debating a school superintendent, and he said Proposition 13 was going to hurt the school system. The people stood up and clapped.

Teen Slayings Suspect Seen Across Nation

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) - The suspeet in the sex slayings of five teen-agers supposedly has been spotted in different parts of the country during the past week, authorities report

We've even had him going up the West Coast," agent Al Sims said Tuesday in New Orleans. "There are look-alikes all over the place.

We run these leads out whenever we can get something feasible, but so far we haven't come up with anything positive." The suspect was Robert Carl Hohenberger, 35, a Californian with two prison terms on his record who lived in Louisiana for several months and is accused of kidnapping, sexually abusing and killing five youths.

Hohenberger, described by his former boss as a knowledgeable and eager mechanic, left Louisiana before the killings were discovered. A nationwide notice for his arrest has been posted.

Sims said a bond of $1 million was recommended should Hohenberger be ar-

'He could be anywhere at this time,' Sims said. "He came in contact with a lot of people (in Morgan City) from time to time - just a wide range of people, just a lot of residents all through that area that for some reason had the opportunity to come in contact with him.

Sheriff's deputies refused to disclose their reason for holding another man as an accessory. Sims said it might have been because the other man told Hohen-

berger police were looking for him. The bodies of three victims, two girls and a boy, were found last week. Two other bodies were missing.

Flood Victim's Body Stirs Bad Memories

fast year's disastrous flood stirred dark memories for Johnstown residents, espetally the elderly ones prestaring to commemorate an even more tragic flood that has haunted them for 89 years

The lastest flood victim - 8-year-old Cynthia Louise Gibson - was identified Tuesday, on the eye of the 89th anniverary of the day when 2,209 people lost their lives under a wall of water that made this town's name sponymous with watery disaster.

The Gibson girl's body was found Monday by several men searching for salvageable flood debris. Eight others are still missing from last year's flood.

Daise Heslop, a 95-year-old survivor of the 1889 flood, called the deluge last July the most frightening of three floods she lived through.

In the 1889 disaster, residents were warned that the South Fork Dam might break 14 miles upstream. But they ignored the warning because minor spring floods were common.

School Appeals Government's Secrecy Order

MILWAUKEE (AP) - A University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee official says the school's protest of a government secrecy directive may be the first of its kind in defense of academic freedom.

William L. Walters, assistant chancellor, referred to an announcement last week that the school will appeal an order of the Commerce Department keep secret details of a research project on computer data security because it involves national security

Walters said the research itself was not classified, but I at the secrecy order arrived in April after a patent application was filed on techniques developed by the research.

He said the National Science Foundation has been asked to join UWM in appealing the order, which would prevent the techniques from being marketed.

Associate Professor George Davida conducted the research, saving the order allows him to describe the work as simply "a study of ways to prevent unauthorized disclosure of data.

The study was conducted under a National Science Poundation grant," he said. "It was not classified research. We don't do classified research at this uni-

We not only oppose the principle of the secrecy order, but it is also difficult to keep things secret around here," added Davida. "We don't lock our offices orour cabinets ... As a result, there are potential problems with compliance with the secrecy order.

TOKYO (UPI) - Six workmen were killed and 23 others injured in a fiery explosion that destroyed a 200-ton fishingvessel under construction, police said to-

Police in Matsue City, 500 miles west of Tokyo, said the explosion Tuesday at the Sakiminato Shipbuilding Co. may have been triggered by welding sparks that ignited vapors from paint thinner used on the ship.

Police said the explosion killed six workers and injured 23, three of them seriously. It also damaged several houses near the dockyard und completely destroyed the ship, which was to have been finished today.

The explosion sent a cloud of fire 165 feet into the sky. Two workmen were killed instantly and four others died later at nearby hospitals, police said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - When you have such diverse types as John Travolta and the Bee Gees of "Saturday Night Fever" sharing the bill with ex-CIA chief Richard Helms, it's likely David Frost is behind it all.

He is. And tonight. "Headliners with David Frost," a one-hour show he calls a 'topical mini-series," starts a six-week NBC tour, mixing pop and hot poop with a few jokes, gossip and a "song of the week. While the British interviewer-entertainer is hosting the effort live from the same New York studio whence "Saturday Night Live" comes, all of tonight's interviews are on tape.

Travolta spoke of his life, Frost said, while piloting the DC3 he owns above Southern California. The Bee Gees spoke and sang in New York. And Helms was interviewed last week in Washington.

The last chat may prove of interest to reporters, predicted Frost, who last year aroused similar interest with his exclusive interviews of former President Richard M. Nixon for five television shows. He said Helms, CIA boss during the Johnson and part of the Nixon administrations, will discuss such things as Watergate, assassination plots against Fidel

Castro, drug-testing and the CIA in Chile. Helms also offers opinions of the man eventually named to run the CIA during

Nixon's second term - William Colby, coincidentally the main interview in the July issue of Playboy magazine. Interestingly, while such Watergate folk as Nixon, John Dean and H.R. Haldeman got many bucks for their accounts of White House life, Helms is getting naught for tonight's show, not even union scale.

But it's at Helms' request, added Frost. who paid Nixon $600,000 plus 10 percent of net profits for the latter's TV inter-

Korean Talks Progress Slowly

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI) - For almost a year now, go-betweens cautiously have been sounding out the United States and North Korea on the chances for negotiations to settle the 1950-53 Korean War.

There have been no direct contacts between the Carter administration and the North Korean government headed by 66year-old President Kim II Sung. However, North Korea's views have been laid before Carter by people in a position to talk to both sides - Yugoslav President Tito and Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu.

So far the mediation effort appears fruitless.

"At present, the possibility of talks materializing is weak," says Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda, a man in a position to know. He told Japan's parliament April 28 that Japan has been getting regular reports on the situation from both the would-be mediators and the United States

The North Koreans appear to have reached the same conclusion. On March 28 North Korean news media dropped a policy of exempting Carter from personal attacks that had been effect since he took office in January 1977.

On that day, Rodong Simun, the official newspaper of North Korea's Communist party, published a three-page attack on both Carter and the United States under the headline: "Wolfish Nature of Imperialism Can't Change.

Cold War detente has never come to the divided Korean peninsula. Before World War II, Korea was ruled by Japan. When Japan collapsed in 1945, Soviet troops occupied the northern half of Korea and Americans the southern half.

As in Germany, the result was division of Korea into two countries, with Communist rule in the north and a private enterprise economy in the south.

troops, heavily armed by the Soviet Union, into South Korea in an effort to unify the nation by force. Fighting under the flag of the United Nations, the United States and its allies turned back that effort in the 1950-53 Korean War.

The fighting ended in an armistice, not a peace treaty. It left Korea divided, and in a permanent state of tension. Gunfire frequently crackles across the truce line along the 38th parallel. The United States has spent hundreds of millions of doplars to help South Korea build up an army, navy and air force capable of protecting the country. But 40,000 American troops still are stationed in Korea.

by incidents like the North Korean capture of the U.S. Navy spy ship USS Pueblo in 1968, and the killing of two U.S. Army officers by North Korean troops in the Panmunjom truce zone in 1976. Diplomatic sources in Tokyo differ on how the mediation effort got under way. One version is that North Korea launched it to get a respite from economic troubles. North Korea now is in default of an estimated $2 billion owed Japan, the Soviet Union and other countries that have supplied her with industrial machinery.

The presidential compound sprawls for well over a square block. To enter the grounds. Afghans walk by a burned-out tank used by Daoud's defenders. They peer at the rubble inside, remark on the charred helmets worn by the tank crew. But inside the palace grounds, it is surprising how little was damaged. The clock tower, a Kabul landmark for decades, has a gaping hole. A few buildings are without windows on the ground floors - bullet holes nearby tell why. But even these buildings show no bullet holes on upper stories.

Police loudspeakers inside the compound urge the people to view "the luxury of the tyrants.

But it would seem from what can be viewed that Daoud, who occasionally drove his Volkswagen through Kabul without any bodyguards, lived frugally, at least when compared to the monarchs of Europe, the emperors of China or the moghuls of India.

One or two of the buildings have marble floors and a few rooms have comfortable chairs in a 1940s style with what look like velvet cushions. But drapes and brica:brac are unremarkable.

On the grounds near the buildings hawkers sell American cigarettes, sweets, sodas, even the chance to step on a scale and be weighed.

It's the vulture instinct," an Asian diplomat in Kabul commented. "The people want to see where other people died." Others believe it's just curiosity, the desire to see buildings that were long off-limits.

Spread on grass that badly needs mowing are half a dozen carpets from inside the palace. The story goes that on the day after Daoud and his family were killed, spectators could see the blood on the carpets. Most of the oriental carpets are red and any blood has faded by now. Another rumor had it that Daoud's body was displayed, or maybe will be, for those who come to the palace. But no one has seen it and like most rumors in Kabul these days, it is false.

Senior Citizen Describes Life In Our Town, Ala.

By RICHARD H. GROWALD OUR TOWN, Ala. (UPI) - The green

nameposts south and east of the crossroads community announce "Ourtown." From his front porch, on a bluff overlooking the crossroads, the Rev. Paul Jones, 83, shook his head. "They got it wrong. It's not Ourtown. It's Our Town, two words," he said. The 83-year-old man flapped his gray felt hat on the right knee of his blue overalls. "I should know. I was here when my Daddy named the town.

"I suppose it's like many an American town. Had its good times and bad," said the senior citizen of Our Town, a locale

On the white porch above the green trees in the hills of Tallapoosa County 30 miles northeast of the state capital, Montgomery, the old man spoke of the grand dreams of Our Town's birth and of its reality today. Thornton Wilder might have been interested.

Below, at the crossroads store-service station-bait-and-tackle-shop. proprietor John Reynolds, whose christening and marriage Rev. Jones performed, told a

"It was before Rev. Jones became the best known country preacher in these parts. I was a boy of seven. We was all at hurch one Sunday and Daddy invited Mr. Bart Hawkins and his wife, Miss Ada, home for Sunday dinner. We Revnolds rode from church in our wagon.

"But Mr. Hawkins drove to our house in the first car, one of the first Model T Fords, around here. With Miss Ada beside him, he drove up the driveway, between the oaks, toward Daddy's wagon house where all the carts, wagons and tools were stored.

"Well, Mr. Hawkins wanted to stop But he just pulled on the steering wheel and velled 'Whoa, whoa.' The car, Mr. Hawkins and Miss Ada crashed right into the wagon house. Busted Daddy's best "And Miss Ada turned to her husband and said. Why, Mr. Hawkins, you still think you're driving a team of horses.

Up on the porch, the Rev. Jones told of his grandfather "coming from the Carolinas before the War Between the States. When my Daddy grew up he bought this land, 640 acres, for 50 cents an acre from the government. Now it's worth $1,000 an acre. To those that got it

'Well, in 1913 land developers bought 12 acres at $12 an acre from Daddy and divided it up into lots. They said the railroad was coming and here was going to be a town. I was 18 then and remember the developers gave the big party to drum up attendance for an auction of the lots They had barbecue. They had a band. They had a balloon, 25 feet across it was, but it got busted and there was no ascen-

Rising Inflation Hits Iowa Businesswoman

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) - Inflation has made it a rough year for Lillian Jean Jones, who runs a guess-the-weight-andage concession at the city's amusement

"Things are costing too much. It's going to drive a woman interested in making a dollar out of business," she said, pointing to her prizes, which she says have risen in cost by 20 percent again this year.

"I had to raise my prices to $1 last year and I didn't want to pass along the latest

"Heck, once you get over $1 it involves making change and people don't want to spend the money. It just becomes less attractive," Mrs. Jones, a 36-year concession veteran, said Mrs. Jones also is mad at the weather.

"It's rained almost every weekend so far. We might start out good and then the rains will come and everyone goes in or is less interested in spending money - and my average goes down," she said.

"You just can't do a good job when it's slow and there are no people around. I mave to keep in practice. I have been high (in her guesses) all day today because I don't do enough."

She said the booth requires some skill on her part, "but mostly it's luck."

"I used to read palms. I did it for most of my time as a concessionaire, but after my doctor said I had to give it up, my husband gave me this booth," Mrs. Jones

Channel Reopened For Mobile Traffic

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) - The Mobile River was reopened Monday to most traffic, except cargo ships, while crews continued to clean up the remnants of an 85,000-gallon oil spill that occurred when a ship rammed a dock facility. The Coast Guard allowed barges, tug boats and pleasure crafts to travel on the river, as long as they did not tie up in areas around the docks where pockets of oil had settled.

bright future - and it wasn't enough.

It was supposed Carrie was demonstrating youthful idealism and that she would soon tire of life in the country. But Carrie hung in there and stayed away

She was not, however, altogether alienated from show business. Young had been a member of the rock groups "Buffalo Springfield" and "Crosby, Stills and Nash". He was a multimillionaire who built a complete studio on his 1,000-acre ranch.

Carrie cooked and kept house - there are four houses on Young's property for rock musiccans and friends. She thrived on her new life for five years.

Now 32, the mother of a 6-year-old son, Zeke, and no longer living with Young, Carrie has returned to Hollywood to pick up her life as an actress.

Her new movie, "The Fury" with Kirk Douglas, is in theaters now.

Carrie took a break the other day from her role with Dick Shawn in "Fast Friends," a two-hour TV movie, to relax and have a sandwich. It was only natural to ask her why she gave up her career and why she has returned.

"I never wanted to be a movie star," she said, pushing an errant blonde lock from her forehead. "So the decision to leave Hollywood was easy for me.

"I worked hard to support myself and put myself through college. I came to Hollywood and got my first TV show in three months. Within four months I was signed at Universal. I worked very hard in TV and in two movies.

"But I wanted to be free and to get good roles at other studios. Not only that, I fell in love for the first time in my life. Neil and I needed one another at that "He wanted me to live with him on the ranch. That sounded better to me than what I was doing. So I left." In 1973 Warner Bros. gave Young $500,- 000 to make "Journey Through the Past." Carrie worked in a variety of jobs, helping where she could.

She appeared as an actress in only one scene. It involved pot smoking.

"I asked Universal if they would give me a release to appear in the scene," she recalled, grinning. "The Universal image wasn't compatible with pot-smoking. They not only gave me the release, they released me from my contract.

"After that I might have worked in Hollywood now and then, but I'd given birth to Zeke, who has cerebral papsy. I decided to forget everything to concentrate on spending my time and energies with my

"There is nothing in the world to replace a mother's love and attention for a child in that condition. And my dedication paid off. If he walked into this dresshad cerebral palsy. He's all boy.

"I needed the creative process of raising my son, giving him as much of myself as possible. There was no way I could come back to work.

"I didn't miss acting. I fed all the musicians who came to the ranch. The nearest grocery store was an hour's drive. Once there were 22 guys preparing for a tour and they needed three meals a day.

"Neil and the rest of them really gave me an education in music, sound systems, orchestration and all the rest. Remember I was born and raised in Chicago. I'm a real Midwest girl and have no ego thing about being a star. I was born and raised in Chicago.

Ocean Survey Satellite To Aid Fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. space officials say a new ocean survey satellite will circle the earth 14 times a day and sweep across 95 percent of the oceans' surface every 36 hours - helping fishermen find their catch and ships find smooth sailing.

The satellite, named Seasat-A, will be launched June 24 from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the spacecraft is the first satellite designed to study the oceans. From its orbit 500 miles up, the satellite will gather information on surface winds and temperatures, currents, wave heights, ice conditions, ocean topography and coastal storm activity.

It is primarily an experimental satellite, but within a few months after launch will be used in limited commercial appli-

Major areas of early Seasat data use will be in directing fishermen to more productive fishing areas and routing ships to save fuel and time.

Petroleum companies also will make early use of the information to obtain better weather and sea forecasts for offshore drilling operations.

The satellite's microwave and infrared instruments will be able to collect data day and night in any type of weather.

The satellite's work will be tested against information gathered by lowflying aircraft, ships and buoys.

If the satellite is successful, it may lead to a network of commercial satellites that could keep constant watch over the world's seas.

A micro-organism that is the only known biological substance other than chlorophyll capable of photosynthesis has been discovered in the Dead Sea, says National Geographic.

Artist Kendall's search for more information about her painter-heroine began with reading about her in a periodical. But she could find no biographies, books or other documentation. She spent four years tracing the legendary artist's life and has a book on her due in the spring. She also credits Lewis with her own art approach "metaphysical picturization"

Miss Kandall said Lewis was the first black woman to attend Oberlin College and there in her junior year was accused of the murder of her two best friends. She was acquitted in a famous trial in which John Mercer Langston, the first black Congressman, was her lawyer.

Artist Lewis became involved in sociopolitical activities including Harriet Tubman's "Underground Railroad," John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry, and the early feminist movement.

Residents Reject Entertainer's ERA

By ROSALIND ROSSI CHICAGO (UPI) — Entertainer Carol

Burnett has entered politics for the first time and found the reception is not always warm and inviting. Miss Burnett, who recently spent three days in Illinois at her own expense to lobby for the Equal Rights Amendment, said pushing the ERA is a lot tougher than promoting a movie - and perhaps a lot more disillusioning. "People have always been friendly to me before," Miss Burnett said. "I love people and I love people to love me. That's what people go into show business

But she found a different response during her three days and 20 media interviews in Illinois last week. "One woman — she had kind of a tight face and a frightened look - said 'I like you on television but I don't like you here. Why don't you go back to where you belong?

"I said I'm a citizen and I'm a mother of three daughters. What happens here will effect my life and my children's lives and the lives of many, many people around the country so I believe I have a right to be here."

Miss Burnett said while she was in Springfield for a news conference with legislators another woman called her a 'carpetbagger.'

"I met one legislator who didn't know as much about the issue as I did," added Miss Burnett, who studied the pros and cons of the ERA at a three-day workshop in California. "That's frightening."

She said she regrets not jumping into the ERA furor sooner and that she has decided to speak out politically for the first time for moral reasons.

"It is a moral issue to me," she said. "I feel I owe it to my daughters to come out for or against it.

"But the ERA has become a political football. I keep looking for 'Mr. Smith Goes to Washington' and thinking, 'Where's Jimmy Stewart?' I keep looking for these people who can get into power and represent the good issues."

The political football was tossed about when she met Governor James Thompson and asked him to offer stronger support to the amendment.

"I said 'Please do more,' and he said, 'I'll try, but it's kind of difficult - you know - politics."

Thompson may not have heard the last from celerities such as Miss Burnett. She says she is planning other media apppearances in California, where she will urge local residents to write Thompson, gover-

The move is the latest step in the Food and Drug Administration's campaign to warn you about the cancer causing potential of the artificial sweete-

Warnings that saccharin has been linked to cancer in laboratory animals have been required on the labels of foods containing the chemical since Feb.

The rule now going into effect also requires a notice in red and black, on white cardboard to be displayed in places where saccharin-containing products are sold. The exception is restaurants, which do not have to display the

When the sweetener was first linked to cancer, the FDA moved to ban its use, but Congress passed a law delaying such a ban for at least 18 months pending further tests. That law authorized the warning label requirements in the meantime,

The stores are required to display the posters in three locations; near the store entrance, in the aisle where saccharincontaining soft drinks are sold and where the largest amount of other saccharin-containing food is sold. Small stores may have to display only one or two posters, however.

The new posters are headlined "Saccharin Notice" and advise customers that the store sells foods and beverages containing saccharin and repeats the label warning required on those products. That label states:

"Use of this product may be hazardous to your health. This product contains saccharin which has been determined to cause cancer in laboratory animals."

Farm Income Rise Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rising prices d/ some commodities, including livestock and grain, have helped improve prospects for farm income this year, ac ling to the Agriculture Department

In a new outlook report Tuesday, the department said that 1978 net farm income could range between $25 billion and $26 billion, up from $20.4 billion in

The farm income projection was included in a report which showed that retail food prices are expected to increase an average of 8 percent to 10 percent this year, compared with an estimate of 6 percent to 8 percent the USDA announced in late March and a forecast of 4 percent to 6 percent it initially made

Officials said that the supply of red meat, mainly beef and pork, is smaller than had been anticipated and that bad weather has reduced production of some iresh vegetables

Other food price factors include a thriving export market for U.S. farm ommodities and brisk demand among American consumers, officials said

Farmers Commit Grain To Storage

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers con tinue to sign up some of their excess grain for storage under the government's three-year reserve

The Agriculutre, Department said Tuesday that as of May 26, more than 335.1 million bushels of wheat had been committed to the three-year reserve so, farmers had signed up to store about 64 million bushels of corn, 33.8 million bushels of oats, 23 million bushels of barley, and 6.5 million bushels of sorgh-

The grain will be stored by farmers for up to three years or until prices go up enough to trigger their release.

CHICAGO (AP) - Most soybean and grain tutures surged to record highs on the Chicago Board of Trade today, as worries about inflation prompted heavy speculative buying

The session was shorter than usual, due to a two-hour delay caused by computer

Warnings from government officials about the inflationary implications of April's consumer price index figures, due for release Wednesday, stimulated a strong demand in silver futures problems of late. Let's discuss Messersmith first. An excellent pitcher for several years for California and Los Angeles, he was said by many observers to have had the best "stuff" of any National League pitcher, which is one strongly worded statement.

After becoming a free agent and negotiating a lucrative contract with Atlanta, he was hit by injury and was able to give the Braves approximately .1 per cent return on their quite izable investment. The trouble was in his right elbow, he one on his throwing arm. With it, e struggled to a 5-4 record in 1977

. Back On Track being bought by the Yankees and enjoying a good spring training in 1978. But apparent tragedy soon followed. While covering first base in an exhibition game, he tripped over the bag, fell, and separated his shoulder.

THAT HINDERED HIS comeback, for a time. But he came back Monday to pitch one-hit ball for five innings against Cleveland and walk just one batter. He didn't get credit for the eventual Yankee win, but no matter. He'd proved to himself and many doubting fans that he could pitch again.

der 10 runs, you've done pretty well.' At the start of the game, it appeared as if Willis would have trouble holding Monterey under 10. The Plainsmen scored three runs in the first inning as Andy Barron opened the game with a walk, and Mike Wooten doubled home Barron by poking a high pitch over leftfielder Todd Clements' head. Dana Rieger followed by socking a 2-run homer beyond the 340-

Though a 25 mile-an-hour wind continued to blow toward that leftfield area the rest of the game, none of the other MHS sticks entered the home-run derby. An unlikely Rebel bat joined the long ball competition in the bottom of the second inning, though.

That's when the Rebels scored five times and gained the lead for keeps. Ground singles by Craig Van Horn and Don Rasure opened the rally before a walk to Richard Josefy loaded the bases. Doug Schmidt followed by reaching the leftfield fence with a sharp single to score Van Horn and keep the bases loaded. Eighth-place hitter Steve Pitts grounded into a short-to-second fielder's choice as Rasure scored Lee's second run.

Then ninth-place hitter, rightfielder John White, pounded a 3-run home run beyond the same vulnerable leftfield area. An alternate through much of the season, White's first home run of the season was a timely blow.

"I hadn't been starting him through much of the season but my centerfielder (Pat Moore) got hurt last week and White came in and went 4-for-4 in the third game of the series," Johnson said,

Monterey narrowed the 5-3 deficit in its half of the fourth with a run but the Plainsmen missed their chance to tie the game during the flurry. Dana Rieger and Reeves each singled to left and Eric Voyles loaded the bases when Lee shortstop Pitts booted Voyles' grounder. Then Phil Bruedigam grounded softly back to the mound and Willis threw to catcher Clay Calhoun, who fired to first and completed a double play. With two outs and runners on second and third, Mike Craig drilled a single up the middle. Reeves scored easily from third but Moore tossed a strike to the plate and gunned down the sliding Voyles.

Lee added its final run in the fifth with one out when leftfielder Todd Clements scored from third as base umpire Mel Neese called a balk on Reeves. Clements had singled, moved to second on a bunt single by Calhoun and raced to third on a fly ball to right by Van Horn.

Clements had bailed Lee out of danger in the top of the inning by leaping up against the fence to snag Jeff Harp's line

Monterey also tried to threaten in each of the last two innings. In the sixth, Reeves was hit by a pitched ball with one out but Willis forced Voyles to ground into an inning-ending second-to-first double play. In the seventh, Mike Craig stroked a one-out single to right and took second on a wild pitch. But Ricky Pinkerton flied to center on a full-count pitch and Barron fanned to end the game

"I didn't think Ron (Rees command of his pitches. He couldn't throw in spots at all," Moegle said afterwards. "We've won 20 some games in a row and you've going to have a game like

Leading Receiver To Play Again

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The Detroit Lions said Tuesday they have reobtained the services of veteran wide receiver Larry Walton. Walton, one of the top 10 all-time Lion receivers, sat out the last National Football League season after the Lions released him Sept. 12 in the final squad

The 6-foot, 185-pound Walton played in 95 games for Detroit from 1969 through 1976, catching 169 passes for 2,623 yards and 26 touchdowns. He averaged better than 15 yards per catch for his career.

During the 1976 season, he caught 20 casses for 293 yards and three touchowns while playing in every game.

His first appearance since the widely reported incident came Monday, when he pitched two innings of relief against Minnesota to save a game for Dock El-

His comeback wasn't as spectacular as Messersmith's, but it was encouraging to him and the Rangers. Moret allowed two hits and one run-a home run by Roy Smalley-but struck out three batters and walked none. When he went to the mound in the eighth inning, he received a standing ovation from 28,000 fans at Arlington Stadium, which "made me feel comfortable." And his performance did nothing to disturb the feeling. AND NOW TO Broberg, once the Rangers' No. 1 draft choice (in 1972) out of Dartmouth, but never the star they thought he'd be. He did win 14 games for Milwaukee in 1975, but his career has otherwise been quite undistinguished. Now, he's with Oakland, a team that evryone picked to finish in or near the bottom of the American League's West Division this year. However, the A's are eading the division by one game and Broberg has been one reason. He opened by winning his first four games, as Oakland got off to a fat start, but then lost his next four and persons were nodding and saying that he was through. But he at least postponed the sentence Monday by throwing a six-hitter and striking out five in Oakland's 6-2 victory over Milwaukee. He went the ance and walked just one batter. So it ws a good Memorial Day for at least three persons, Messersmith in particular. He's making more than $300,000 per season, and it must have gotten hat embarassing to collect his paychecks.

There were times that I backed up to the teller's window," he was quoted as g not long ago.

For the time being, at least, he can reverse the procedure.

"I thought we had it wen in regula-tion." said Motta, "but Seattle executed that play to Freddie very well, and then DJ (Dennis Johnson) came out of no-where, like he has all series, to block Bobby's shot."

Guard Charles Johnson, who had scored just eight points in regulation time, took command in overtime for the Bullets, scoring the first basket on a fastbreak layup, then beating Seattle's defense downcourt for a jumper that made it 110-106 with 3:35 to go. The Bullets led the rest of the way.

Overtime is only five minutes long. When you get up by four, you can almost call your shot," said Brown, who scored 18 points but just two in the second half.

We just weren't working our offense (in the fourth quarter)," Brown continued. "If we had been, it would have been much easier. This is just a minor setback. We're not out of it. We wanted to win it (the championship) here. We'll just have to postpone it a couple of days.

Charles Johnson said he wasn't specifically told to shoot the ball in overtime.

Baker, a 21-year-old right-hander pitching in only his second major league game - both against Baltimore - held the Orioles to three hits in seven innings Tesday night as the Tigers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory.

"I kinda like being a stopper;" said Baker. "It's a challenge to go in there and try to break a losing streak.

Meanwhile, Zahn and Mike Marshall combined to shut out Texas for the second time in nine days, both by 2-0 scores.

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox blanked the Toronto Blue Jays 4-0, the Cleveland Indians tripped the New York Yankees 5-1, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Oakland A's 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox downed the California Angels 6-2. Kansas City and Seattle were not scheduled.

Baker, called up last week from Evansville of the American Association where he had a 4-0 record and 1.88 earned run average, held Baltimore to one run in 61-3 innings in his debut last Thursday in a game eventually lost by reliever John Hiller. This time, Hiller came on in the eighth and retired all six batters he faced to preserve Baker's first big-league triumph.

"I don't like throwing to the same team two games in a row," Baker said. "I threw more breaking balls the last time and that made my fast ball more effective this time. But it doesn't really matter who you throw against if you're on.

"He looked good," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He looked good against us in Baltimore. The players seemed to think (catcher Milt) May called a good game for him, but he still had to get what May called over the plate. The kid got his curve over in jams. That's why some kids win here and some

Chaps Claim First Recruit

Abilene Cooper centerfielder Greg Watts became Lubbock Christian College's first baseball recruit of the summer Tuesday.

Watts batted .320 and stole 18 bases in 22 games this spring.

'He's got good speed and I think he'll give us some depth in the outfield position,3" Chaparral coach Larry Hays explained.

Senior-to-be Brady Brashear is due to step in to the centerfield shoes filled by All-American Darius Copley the last two years. Brashear will be flanked by juniors Tommy Inman and Richard Bowles. "That means we'll have Watts and Steve Cargil to fill in out there and we should have adequate depth," Hays explained.

Hays also announced that All-American first baseman Tim Leslie and second baseman Steve Brigante have been selected to the NAIA All-Star team that will tour Taiwan and Korea for a month

Zahn, who pitched 7 2-3 shutout innings in beating the Rangers in his last outing May 22, allowed five hits in eight innings in extending his shutout string against Texas to 15 2-3 innings.

"I really don't have any secret," he said. "I've been fortunate to have success against them. I've just been pitching well the last six or seven games. I feel one reason is I'm stronger than last year and I'm throwing my change-up over the plate.'

Asked about being relieved by Marshall at the start of the ninth, he said: "It was a combination of two things - I was tired. I had a blister on my finger - so pinch two-run single off Sparky Lyle in the eighth. Wise gave up singles to Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson in the first inning and then retired 18 consecutive batters until Chris Chambliss homered in the seventh. The loss dropped New York three games behind Boston in the AL East.

Brewers 2, A's 1

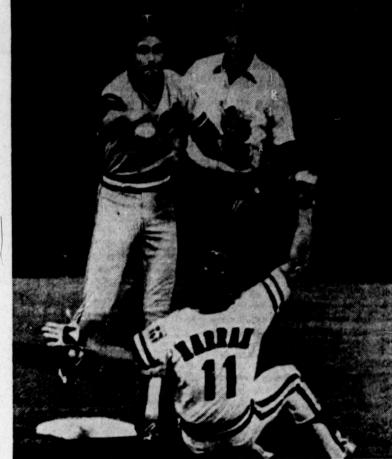

Mike Caldwell scattered eight hits and Don Money singled home Charlie Moore with the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning. It was Caldwell's fifth victory, matching his total for all last season, and his fifth complete game.

"A year ago, I knew nothing about Caldwell," said Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger, who was then the Orioles' pitching coach. "I saw him pitch against Baltimore and I didn't think he was this good. But I'll tell you what - he is this good.

White Sox 6, Angels 2

Chet Lemon and Lamar Johnson hit consecutive home runs in the third inning off Frank Tanana as the White Sox posted their fourth straight triumph while the Angels lost their fourth straight for the first time this season.

"You can't throw too many over the plate and get away with it," said Tanana, 8-2, who left in the fifth, his earliest departure of the season. "You have to have some control, and it wasn't there. If you don't have control, you're going to get hit. That's what happened.

If Silvio Martinez is looking for a pitcher to emulate, Juan Marichal is certainly a better choice than Bobo Holloman.

Silvio, a 22-year-old right-hander for the St. Louis Cardinals, making his first major league start Tuesday night, held the New York Mets hitless for six innings. Three more and he would have matched the feat Holloman achieved way back on the night of May 6, 1953 - a nohitter in his first big-league start. Hollovictory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

But in the seventh inning Tuesday night, New York Met leadoff batter Steve Henderson pounced on a Martinez pitch and sent it far over the left field wall.

End of no-hitter and end of shutout. Eventually the Cards won 8-2 - but Henderson's hit was the only one the Mets managed.

'Juan Marichal pitched a one-hitter. they tell me, in his first game," Martinez It could be a better one than if he'd pulled a Holloman. Marichal went on to become a consistent all-star, chalking up 243 career victories . . . which is to say 240 more than Holloman, who vanished after one year and a 3-7 record in the ma-

Not only was Martinez flirting with Holloman's achievement, he was toying with a sort of ersatz Johnny Vander Meer mark. He's the guy who pitched consecutive major league no-hitters, in 1938 against Boston and Brooklyn. Martinez came up to the majors last weekend after pitching a no-hitter on Friday night for Springfield of the American Associattion.

When I threw the fastball to Henderson down the middle. I wanted to cry,' Martinez admitted. And St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons recalled: "After Henderson hit the home run I told him, 'That's not important now. Don't worry about it.' And he said, 'I don't worry.

Bob Knepper did it all for the Giants, scattering five Houston hits for his seventh victory and second shutout of the season, and hitting a seventh-inning sacrifice fly for San Francisco's only run. It was the Giants' 15th victory in their last 18 games and widened their NL West lead to 21/2 games over Cincinnati. He and Vida Blue have teamed for a 13-4 record with the Giants this year - and Knepper notes that something he saw Blue do years ago has helped him to become a part of that 1-2 Bay Area punch.

"Before the game." Knepper said, "I decided to use something in my delivery which I saw Blue use in an Oakland A's game that I saw just before the last game I pitched in high school. I noticed that Vida brought his right elbow down inside his right knee in his delivery and that seemed to give him more speed on the Bucs Vetoed Ram Offer?

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Would you please find out for me what most people in the NFL think about the Tampa Bay deal with Houston for Earl Campbell? Did Tampa Bay get adequate return? Was that really the best offer they had for the rights to the first

- King Davis, Tallahassee, Fla.

A. Tampa needed a lot of things other tha one great runner. Wait until the returns are in from the three players Tampa picked up this year-Houston's young tight end Jim Giles, plus draftees Doug Williams (quarterback from Grambling) and 6-5, 248-pound guard Bret Moritz of Nebraska-and the two more it will get in the '79 draft.

However, there is an interesting rumor going around that Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse turned down a much better deal offered by the Los Angeles Rams, and that he did so out of animosity toward the Rams and their owner, Carroll Rosenbloom. At the time the Rams were up for sale, Culverhouse was assured he had the inside track, until Rosenbloom worked his colossal switch with Robert Irsay on the Baltimore franchise.

Q. It occassionally happens at my club that some out-of-town visitors want to have a friendly game for a few dollars, and the question of their golf handicaps comes up. I have been burned by this a couple of times, when a guy says he plays to a five and then shoots par. Do you know of any procedure that is followed in other golf clubs to avoid this situation?

- H.G. (name withheld), Louisville

A. At many country clubs, a phone call to the visitors' home pro is made for verification. But there is a simpler way prescribed by veteran players. Say you are going to have a $50 Nassau. Before teeing off set up a separate pot where each member of the foursome puts up $50 and predicts the score he will shoot, with the $200 going to the man who comes closest to his prediction.

The fellow who told you he has a five handicap will then say, "Well, I feel lucky today. Put me down for par." And everybody is honest.

Q. What has become of last year's starting basketball team from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas? And of the final four in the NCAA basketball finals in Atlanta last year, who was the favorite? - Quint Hensley, Stedman, N.C.

A. Three of the starters have just finished rookie seasons in the NBA - Robert Smith at Denver, Eddie Owens at Buffalo and Glen Gondrezick with the

New York Knicks. Larry Moffet, who failed to make the Houston Rockets, is living in Los Angeles. The fifth starter, Sam Smith, is still in Las Vegas, working for the Parks and Recreation Department. Of last year's NCAA final four, North Carolina was favored. STRICTLY PERSONAL - For H. Schroeder, Tequesta, Florida - Catcher Bobby Ramos, at West Palm Beach last season, was only one for five is spring

The Expos sent him down to their Denver Bears, club, where he is splitting time behind the plate and batting under .200. For Gene Wentworth, Carbondale, Illinois-Mt. Vernon high school is only one of three Illinois schools to win the state championship back to back (1949-50). The starters you can't remember were Bobby Lee in '49 and Bobby Brown in '50. Rockford (1955-56) and Thornridge (1971-72) are the other successive win-training with the Montreal Expos after a salary hassle and a late reporting date.

For Adrian White, Ft. Lauderdale, Florida - It's hard to keep up with Chris Evert's romancing, but her latest heartthrob is giant slugger Dave Kingman of the Chicago Cubs.

UT-El Paso Pick For NCAA Crown

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - James Munyala, a small, quiet, unspectacular Kenyan attending Texas-El Paso, can make NCAA track history this week in the national collegiate outdoor meet.

Munvala has won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in each of the last three NCAA meets, and if he wins again Saturday, the final day of the three-day meet beginning Thursday at the University of Oregon, he would equal the mark of four victories in the same event - or its equivalent - attained by only one other runner, the late Steve Prefontaine, in this annual outdoor extravaganza.

"I hope he can pull it off," said Jim Bowden, athletic director at Texas-El Pa-

Prefontaine, a former star at Oregon, won the three-mile in 1970, 1971 and 1973. and the 5,000 meters in 1972, an Olympic year, when all races in this meet were contested in meters in preparation for the Summer Games at Munich.

However, for Munyala to match Prefontaine's performance, he likely will have to beat the world record holder in the steeplechase, sophomore Henry Rono, a fellow Kenyan from Washington

Rono set the mark of 8 minutes, 05.4 seconds April 22 at Seattle.

However, Rono has been suffering from a slight heel injury recently, and running the obstacle-plagued steeplechase course might be too painful for him. Instead, he might double in the 5,-000, in which he also set the world record this year (13:08.4) and the 10,000, in which his Washington State teammate and fellow Kenyan, Samson Kimombwa, set the world record (27.30.5) last year.

Kimombwa, the defending NCAA champion, has been plagued by injuries this year and has not run up to his potential.

Munyala and Kimombwa are among 10 returning champions.

The others are: Texas-El Paso's Svein Walvik of Norway in the discus; Harvey Glance, Auburn, 100: William Snoddy Oklahoma, 200; Washington State's Joshua Kimeto of Kenya, 5,000; James Owens, UCLA, 110-meter hurdles; Ron Livers, San Jose State, triple jump; Washington's Scott Neilson of Canada, hammer throw, and Brigham Young's Tito Steiner of Argentina, decathlon,

The favorite for the team title is Texas-El Paso, which won 11 events and amassed a whopping 223 points in winning the Western Athletic Conference title for the third consecutive year.

In addition to Munyala and Walvik, the other potential point scorers for the interntionally-laden Miners are: Jerome Deal, 100; Peter Lemashon of Kenya, 800; Mike Musyoki, Kenya and Rodolfo Gomez, Mexico, 5,000; Kip Sirma, Kenya, 10,000; Tim Vahlstrom, pole vault; Jerome Hutchins and Joel Laniyan, Kenya. long jump; Steve Hanna, Barbados, and Hutchins, triple jump; Hans Almstrom, Sweden, shot put, and Emmitt Berry and Thom Sioholm, Sweden, hammer throw

"I think it will take a score in the high 50s or low 60s to win," said Coach Ted Banks, whose Miners won the title in 1975 and finished second each of the past two years.

Last year. Arizona State won the title for the first time in the meet's 56-year history, with 64 points. Texas-El Paso had 50 points and Southern California was third with 48

Southern Cal scares the heck out of me," said Banks. "But they have a lot of people who will have to run a lot of Those people are all runners, and all of them run 800 meters or less. All of them are first-class athletes, but the grind of running perhaps seven or eight races, including relays, in three days could prove too much of a burden.

Nevertheless, the fleet-footed Trojans should present a formidable challenge to Texas-El Paso.

They probably will use collegiate record holder Clancy Edwards in the 100 and 200, Joel Andrews in the 100, freshman James Sanford in the 200 and 400. Billy Mullins in the 400, Rayfield Beaton and David Omwansa in the 800, and Rich Greybehl in the 400-meter hurdles. And they will use a combination of those runners, along with Kevin Williams, in defending the quarter-mile and mile relay

The Trojans' chances of victory, however, were diminished earlier this season when 6-foot-8 Larry Doubley, the 1977 NCAA long jump champion, suffered an ankle injury that will prevent him from defending his title.

Mary Helen Wright of 2408 Auburn St. said she returned home from work Monday to find her mobile home door open and a window broken. Reports indicated whoever stole some jewelry and an air conditioner from the residence took time to have a glass of milk before departing.

Someone reportedly broke a $326 plate glass window to get to a $150 stereo at Smallwood's Vacuum Cleaner Repair at 3019 34th St. Tuesday. June Stidham of 5520 49th St., No. 70, told officers whoever got through an attic opening at her apartment Tuesday made off with some jewelry and $70 worth of Leonard O'Neal Jordon of 2304-A 9th

St. complained that someone pried a door at his home Tuesday and stole a $200 telephone recorder. A microphone and public-address system were taken from the press box at 42nd Street and Avenue U during the past two days, reports showed. Whoever kicked in the door of the building also reportedly swiped three baseballs. David E. Wilkins, a superintendent for a building firm here, told police that burglars broke into an apartment complex being constructed at 5401 54th St. and took about $4,300 worth of goods, including refrigerators, stoves, drapes and paint. Tires and tune-up equipment totaling $650 in value were taken from an automobile dealership at 4220 Ave. Q. according to James Andrew Meers of 3504 92nd St., a salesman for the firm.

Joe Garcia Tienda of 1501 21st St. told police someone broke into his home and took linens, a stereo system and a .22-caliber pistol, together valued at $500. Both John F. Fritz of 6302 Elgin Ave.

and Mary Martelle Dickerson of 2305-A 9th St. reported stolen televisions, each valued at $200. Burglars took Fritz' set from the office of his 6527 Ave. H business while Miss Dickerson's television was taken from her home. Burglars who broke into the Longhorn

Meat Market at 1706 34th St. made off with $50 in cash and about $50 worth of meat, according to Hiran Lopez of 2504 Ave. K, a butcher at the market. Royce Lee Ekdahl of 1208 Adrain told police burglars forced their way into a paint shop on the lot of a business at 701 N. Ave. P and took a $100 pneumatic wrench. Car burglars seemed to have their eyes on firearms, according to recent reports. for Frozen Food Express, told Lubbock police someone took his .44-caliber pistol from his vehicle while it was parked at the gun at $200. Sandra Johnson of 2212 60th St. said someone broke into her car while it was parked in the driveway of her residence and took a .22-caliber pistol, valued at

Cap Ceremony Set For LVNs

A traditional capping ceremony is scheduled Friday for the students of Class 65 of the Lubbock Vocational Nursing School.

The event will be at 2 p.m. in Trinity Baptist Church, 2707 34th St. A reception will follow in the Fellowship Hall. The capping marks the end of 16 weeks of pre-clinical instruction for the 36-member class. The students will continue their training in specialized areas in local cooperating hospitals. As Class 65 completes one phase of its instruction with the ceremony, Class 66, with approximately 38 students, prepares to begin classes Monday. Mary Ruth Forman, R.N., is director of the school.

Melanie Reid, all registered nurses.

Instructors are Lorene Dver. Barbara Evans, Ann Messall, Barbara Mott and

Council Votes For Prison

BIG SPRING (UPI) - The city council voted today to pursue the opening of a federal minimum security prison at the site of the former Webb Air Force Base. The U.S. Bureau of Prisons has requested that 33 acres and several buildings at the facility be operated as a federal security institution for white collar criminals. Bureau officials say they already have received verbal approval for various congressional subcommittees, the Justice Department and the White House and supplemental funding could be approved by this fall. The prison is projected to pump $2.5 million into the local economy, hold 500 inmates and have a staff of 100.

The council accepted the recommendations of a steering committee to allow the bureau to continue working toward the opening of a prison at the base site. Webb was closed last year after budget cuts.

TRAVEL ON A BUDGET

Camping Affords Cheap Vacation

Camping can be the cheapest vacation short of bedding down on Great Aunt Hattie's overstuffed sofa. As most of the nation's 58 million campers can attest, it can also be a lot more fun.

Many who have not yet joined that 58 million think camping still means pitching a pup tent (and, worse yet, digging a latrine) in the grizzly-infested wilds. That's no longer necessarily so.

Campgrounds are now located on the outskirts of most major cities, as well as in mountains and along seashores. So, even budget-minded city visitors can join in the camping craze.

Many campgrounds offer most of the comforts of home, such as hot showers and laundry rooms. Tents are more attractive and comfortable than ever. And recreational vehicles (RVs) — truck campers, trailers and self-propelled motor s present additional means of campi

The most scenic camping can be had in the state and national parks and forests that stretch from Alaska to the Virgin Islands.

You may be charged two fees if you camp on federal lands. One is for admission to the park. This fee usually ranges from $1 to $3 per vehicle

If you plan to do a great deal of camping during the year, consider buying a $10 Golden Eagle Passport. The pass admits your car and its passengers free for the calendar year to all federal outdoor recreation areas. If you are 62 or older, you can obtain the Golden Age Passport, a free lifetime version of the Golden

You can get both passes at most national parks and from National Park Service, Room 1013, Washington D.C., 20240. Make checks or money orders payable to the National Park Service.

Besides the entrance fee, you may have to pay from $1 to $4 a day for campsite use. Golden Age Passport holders receive 50 percent discounts on these use

Privately operated campgrounds are usually located closer to civilization than are government facilities. Though often less scenic, they offer more creature comforts. In 1977, the average nightly charge at a private campground was $6.

Most privately run campgrounds take reservations, while all but a handful of federal ones do not. At the latter, spots are occupied on a first come, first served basis. You have a better chance at the choice sites if you arrive mid-

For information on government and private campgrounds in the area you wish to visit, consult a recent edition of a comprehensive camground directory, such as "Woodall's Trailering Parks and Campgrounds" and "Rand McNally's Campground and Trailer Park Guide."

"Camping in the National Park System," a book listing all 100 National Park Service areas as well as campground regulations and safety tips, can be purchased for $1.40 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C., 20402. (Request GPO stock number 024-005-

The camping equipment you will need depends on your destination and your family's size and preferences. Basic gear carried by the average camper includes: tent, sleeping bag, camp stove, lantern, food cooler and insulated jug.

The cost of these items runs about $350 for a family of four. But hold off on buying equipment until you have made several camping trips. In the meantime, rent what you need from a sporting goods store.

When you are ready to buy, find out the sturdiest and most economical brands from consumer buying guides. Shop at discount stores and watch for end-ofsummer sales. Consider buying good used equipment.

Whether you rent or buy, test your equipment in the backyard before setting off. Don't wait until you are miles from civilization to learn your tent is missing

With RVs, too, rent before you buy. But first calculate the cost of an RV vaca-

Because towing a trailer cuts the average car's gas efficiency to 8-to-12 miles per gallon, you might actually save money by using economy motels instead of an RV. Also make sure your auto is able to tow a trailer. (NEXT: Health Hints)

Dangerous Drug Antidote Eyed

KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) - Pharmacist Christopher Rhodes envisions the day when a child who accidentally eats poison can drink a "milkshake" as the anti-

Rhodes, a professor of pharmacy at the University of Rhode Island, is testing a mixture of oil and water designed to trap dangerous drugs before they can be absorbed into the bloodstream. The milky-looking mixture, known to scientists as a "stable liquid mem-brane," consists of tiny droplets of water in blobs of oil suspended in turn in designed to latch onto specific drugs The oil stops them from leaking back out into the bloodstream, Rhodes said.

The system is patented by the Exach Corp., which is subsidizing the sparmacist's research.

He said the substance tastes like an oily milkshake, can be flavored and should certainly taste better than the gritty sol ution of activated charcoal in wate sometimes used to neutralize poisons.

'If you have a child come in, more likely to want to take a chocola flavored milkshake than drink a glass of activated charcoal," Rhodes said.

Men's Club Evokes Poet's Spirit

TARBOLTON, Scotland (UPI) -Bored with their harsh farming life, Robert Burns and a handful of cronies formed rural Scotland's first debauing society. Unsurprisingly, Burns made women the initial topic

Scotland's national poet wrote the Rules for the Tarbolton Bachelor's Club. whose upstairs meeting room in a thatched roof house survives and evokes as much as anything on the Burns Heritage Trail the spirit of raucous Rabbie and his time.

"Every man proper for a member of this society must have a frank, honest, open heart, above anything dirty or mean, and must be a professed lover of one or more of the female sex," Rule 10

"No haughty, self-conceited person, who looks upon himself as superior to the rest of the Club, and especially no meanspirited, worldly mortal whose only will is to heap up money, small upon any pretense whatever be admitted," Burns decreed.

"In short, the proper person for this society is a cheerful, honest-hearted lad, who if he has a friend that is true and a mistress that is kind, and as much wealth as genteelly to make both ends meet - is just as happy as this world can make

The rules tell much about their famous author, who also attended country dancing classes — against his father's wishes — and was initiated into F permasonry in the same cozy room. Here my little story was most eventful," Burns later wrote. The meeting room and the living quarters below have been handsomely restored by Scotland's National Trust and

Part of its charm is curator Sam Hay, who sketches the club's history in almost poetic descriptive.

"Trees don't grow very well around here," he said, neatly summing up the difficult farming conditions of Burns'

"The club gave Burns' intellectual development a tremendous boost. After their debates, they drank the treacle ale that was brewed downstairs. And there was blackfooting (circumspect introductions to young ladies) at the back door.

Late afternoon rain sheeted down the small windows

"Sometimes I sit up here and watch the sun setting behind the fields of Burns' Lochlea farm," Hay said. "The golden light spills across this very table around which Burns and his friends sat.

"It's very moving and strange things happen here. People often come in and are overcome with emotion.

But there are many that don't enter, for there is nothing special about the club's exterior

"They quickly look in the downstairs window and go away," Hay said. "I look back at them. I go outside and invite them in. It is their good fortune because the downstairs living quarters, a single, lowceilinged room, has been meticulously furnished as it would have been in the 1780s, when Rabbie Burns and his chums set the world straight overhead.

The feeling is that you could happily move right in "That rush lamp on the wall would have been burning dimly." Hay said. "And the larder beneath the window was probably never empty, because we like to crying for a cup of tea'."

Burns, his brother Gilbert and five friends started the Bachelor's Club in 1780 to provide "recourse to some amusement or diversion, to relieve the wearied man, worn down by the necessary labors of life.

Burns, then 21, in his rules stressed that "while we should forget our cares and labors in mirth and diversion, we might not transgress the bounds of innocence and decorum.

How well the rules were observed during the several years Burns led the club is lost to history. But at its first meeting. with Burns presiding, they debuted this topic

'Suppose a young man, bred a farmer. but without any fortune, had it in his power to marry either of two women, the one a girl of a large fortune, but neither handsome in person, nor agreeable in conversation, but who can manage the household affairs of a farm well enough. The other of them a girl every way agreeable, in person, conversation and behavior, but without any fortune: Which of them shall he choose?

Which side Burns took isn't known although one of his later letters to a friend indicated he might have opted for the

There are better known and more frequently visited Burns shrines, like the Alloway cottage where he was born and the Dumfries house where he died. But they and other stopping points, including the new Land o' Burns audio-visual center at Alloway, while interesting enough, fall short of engendering a real sense of Scotland's universal man.

It is at Tarbolton and at Dumfries' Globe Inn - Burns' favorite "howff" or of a man of paradoxes, who was bawdy, political, satiric, impudent, sentimental, humorous, charming, lusty... and who left a prodigious legacy of poetry, letters and songs upon his death at age 37. Burns was a sociable man in a confined world of southwestern Scotland where the chief amusements were lovemaking, debating, country dancing to fiddle music and drinking.

Down a narrow passage off the High Street in Dumfries, the Globe Inn's rooms that Burns frequented have changed little and are carefully looked after. The public drinking rooms today are the stables of Burns' time. But the ground floor snuggery where Burns drank and sang with friends until the wee hours retains its original wood panelling and center table and Burns' own chair remains at the right of the fireplace.

There is the upstairs bedroom in which Burns dallied with some of his "bonnie, sweet, sonsie lasses" and two of its window panes still bear inscriptions he wrote on them with a diamond, as was then fashionable.

Members of Dumfries' Burns Club often launch into an impromptu chorus of Flow Gently, Sweet Afton or a rousing delivery of what many consider Burns' best poem. Tam o' Shanter.

Why is Burns so admired around the world, including the Soviet Union? Why do Scots everywhere gather on Jan. 25 for Burns Night Suppers and lift their whisky glasses to his "immortal memory"

"He loved his fellow man," said architect Bobbie Scott of Dumfries' Burns Club. "He stood up for the lowly individual and spoke of the human condition of
