Roots of May Day found in cemetery

By F.N. D'ALESSIO

FOREST PARK, Ill. (AP) — Thousands of people massed in Moscow's Red Square and public celebrations were proclaimed around the world today to mark May Day, the workers' holiday. But the roots of the first International Labor Day lie in a cemetery in an old German neighborhood outside Chicago.

Waldheim Cemetery, nestled near the Des Plaines River in this unassuming, middle class suburb, is the burial place of five men condemned to death after the Haymarket Square riot and bombing, which occurred 92 years ago this Thursday.

In memory of the labor uprising about 150 people gathered Saturday about nine miles to the east at Haymarket Square, now divided by a giant expressway.

At the rally, sponsored by a coalition of labor organizations, speakers called for full employment, an end to unjust taxation and a six-hour work day.

The Haymarket Square bombing, which killed seven policemen and injured scores of officers and protesters, occurred during a demonstration against the killing of strikers by police outside the McCormick Harvester plant. Those strikers had been supporting the then radical idea of an eight-hour work day.

Although responsibility for the bombing never was determined, five of those arrested were sentenced to be hanged. Their plight stirred world-wide protests by labor unions, political radicals and civil libertarians.

When, on May 1, 1887, various radicals, liberals and trade unionists gathered in the major cities of the world, demanding that the Haymarket five be freed, it marked the first May Day.

Despite the outcries, four of the men — Albert Parsons, August Spies, Adolf Fischer and George Engel — were hanged in Chicago on Nov. 11 of that same year. The fifth, Louis Lingg, had earlier committed suicide by detonating a stick of dynamite in his mouth.

Their monument at Waldheim carries Spies' prediction from the gallows: "The day will come when our silence will be more powerful than the voices you are throttling today."

That day was slow in coming.

The Communist scare, sparked by the Haymarket riot, impeded the labor movement's progress for years. The eight-hour day, apparently within reach in 1886, did not become the general rule in the United States until the 1930s.

May Day demonstrations continued to grow, but in time they lost all but the most tenuous connection with events in the United States, where the bulk of the labor movement turned from socialism

American anarchist Emma Goldman, who sought to avenge the Haymarket defendants, and her lover, Alexander Berkman, were deported after World War I. Both, however, were buried at Waldheim, as were a number of other non-Communist radicals.

Waldheim has become crowded and somewhat neglected now, hemmed in by several other graveyards. But it has fared better than the monument erected to celebrate the role of police at Haymarket.

Officer Thomas Birmingham, who was not at the riot, posed for a 10-foot bronze of an unknown policeman shouting, "In the name of the People of Illinois, I command peace."

Several years later, Birmingham was thrown off the force for public drunkenness and shortly thereafter died a pauper.

In 1927, the statue was knocked over by a runaway trolley car and it was moved in the late 1950s when most of Haymarket was razed to make way for an expressway.

In 1969 and 1970, with a new form of radicalism in vogue, the statue was knocked down twice by terrorist bombs. It is now under constant guard in the lobby of the Chicago Police Department's headquarters.

Carter, Congress ready for foreign policy fight

By DONALD M. ROLIBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Congress are preparing for another foreign policy fight this time over the administration's plan to sell jet fighters to Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

The administration proposal, which includes fighters for Israel, is before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House International Relations Committee.

There is strong opposition in both houses to the Egyptian and Saudi sales, but whether the opponents have majorities in the committees, and then on the floor, is uncertain.

Carter wants to sell 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia, 50 F-15s to Egypt plus 70 F-16s and 15 F-15s to Israel, a proposal that carries a $4.8 billion price tag. Congress has 30 days from the president's formal submission of the proposal last Friday to disapprove it. Otherwise, he could proceed with the package.

The chairman of the House panel, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., says he is confident of getting enough votes to force a less unfavorable action by his committee.

Also in Congress this week, the Senate scheduled debate today on a farm credit bill to make available $4 billion in federally guaranteed loans to farmers facing bankruptcy.

Both houses also are scheduled to vote this week on a compromise bill providing emergency aid to grain and cotton farmers. An earlier version, faced with a veto threat from Carter, was killed in the House.

The House spends two days debating a bill to limit congressional spending for the federal budget to $50 billion.

The Senate passed a budget resolution last week that set a limit of $48.9 billion on federal spending for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The Senate votes this week on the nomination of Benjamin R. Civiletti as deputy attorney general.

The judiciary committee in April backed Civiletti, President Carter's choice for the No. 2 spot in the Justice Department.

The nomination had been stalled in the committee for weeks while Republicans used it as a vehicle for questioning Attorney General Griffin Bell and other officials about the firing of David R. Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia.

Republicans contend that Marston, a Republican now running for governor of Pennsylvania, was fired because he was investigating allegations against two Democratic congressmen.

The House votes Tuesday on a motion to instruct the Justice Department to prosecute Claude Powell Jr. of Atlanta for contempt of Congress.

Powell refused to testify before the Select Committee on Assassinations about statements he allegedly made that he was offered money to kill Martin Luther King Jr.

Begin's greeting includes party

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived in Washington today for a White House reception celebrating Israel's 30th birthday amid continuing differences with the Carter administration over the sale of warplanes to Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Begin was greeted at Andrews Air Force Base by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. They left together for several hours of meetings at the State Department and later with President Carter at the White House prior to a reception hosted by the president.

"We are very grateful to the president for the reception," said Begin. "We do hope the peacemaking process will continue."

Vance, in his remarks, said Israel's security was something Americans feel a deep commitment to, a commitment on which Israel can depend.

Carter has invited about 1,200 rabbis and other Jewish leaders to join him and Begin at the White House reception.

Just 24 hours earlier, however, Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan were taking opposing public viewpoints on the proposed sale of U.S. warplanes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia. The two men appeared on separate television interview shows.

"You would be preparing the Arab countries for the next war against Israel by supplying them with American warplanes," Dayan said.

"These are killing machines, not washing machines. And who are they going to use these killing machines, against?"

Vance called the proposed sales "an important part of the search for peace in the Middle East. They're important because they fill the needs, the requirements for each one of these countries."

Carter sent his $4.8 billion arms sales proposal to Congress on Friday, automatically establishing a timetable for a congressional decision.

Congress has until May 28, 30 days, to express its opposition. If it fails to do so within the time limit, the sale would go through.

Israel would receive 75 F-16s and 15 F-15s under the package, while Saudi Arabia would receive 60 F-15s and Egypt would get less sophisticated 50 F-16s.

Man arrested in stabbing

LAMESA — Police here today theorized that a family disturbance resulted in the Sunday night stabbing death of a 57-year-old Lamesa man.

A 22-year-old Lamesa man was arrested Sunday night in connection with the stabbing.

Police Chief Lee Bartlett said today that police arrived at 400 N.E. Second St., Gonzalo Ramirez' residence, shortly after 9 p.m. Ramirez was dead when officers arrived, police said.

Nixon: 'Inconsistent' accounts

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Who's telling it straight? Richard Nixon? Charles W. Colson? H.R. Haldeman?

Reading their Watergate books, it is often hard to tell.

Nixon says he was flying back from Florida when he learned that one of the Watergate burglars was on the payroll of his re-election committee.

But Colson recalled that Nixon phoned him from Key Biscayne, Fla., "furious that anyone connected with the campaign would be involved in anything so idiotic."

The news, said Colson, "plunged Nixon into such a fit of temper that he hurled an ashtray across his Key Biscayne living room."

And Haldeman, "My suspicion of an involvement of Chuck Colson and, therefore, Nixon in Watergate was dissolved completely when I spoke to Nixon. The president wasn't concerned at all by the break in."

Such inconsistencies run through "R.N. The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," Haldeman's "The Ends of Power" and Colson's "Born Again."

Nixon, on June 20, (three days after the break in) Colson suggested that the four Cuban-Americans arrested inside Watergate might have planned it "on their own."

Haldeman, Nixon suggested "raising money for the defendants and using a Cuban cover for the money."

Nixon writes that for nine months he assumed his major Watergate problem was determining who authorized the break in, but that on

Quotes sum up mood of memoir excerpts

NEW YORK (AP) — When Richard M. Nixon decided to terminate his presidency, he told two aides: "Well, I screwed it up for good, real good, didn't I?"

That one quotation sums up the tenor of the Watergate excerpts from Nixon's forthcoming memoirs.

Nixon admits that he treated Watergate at first as merely a public relations problem, that he did not tell the American people the truth and that he was involved in the cover-up.

He said he did not destroy the White House tapes when their existence became known because they "were my best insurance against the unforeseeable future."

The tapes, he said, "would give me at least some protection" in case other aides turned on him the way lawyer John Dean had. Dean was the first White House insider to tell federal prosecutors about the cover-up.

Ironically, the courts eventually forced Nixon to give up the recordings for evidence in the cover-up conspiracy trial of three men in his inner circle, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell — all of whom were convicted and put in prison.

The first segment of Nixon's memoirs, syndicated by a subsidiary of The New York Times to 30 domestic newspapers, began with word reached.

Haldeman: "It's just possible that there was something in that conversation which Nixon believed was so uniquely damaging that it had to be erased."

Nixon to Frost: "I didn't do it ... I never saw the tape or touched the machine or put the earphones on or anything."

Haldeman: "I believe Nixon had started trying to erase the tapes himself."

Haldeman: "Richard Nixon, himself, caused those burglars to break into (Larry) O'Brien's office. Haldeman reasoned that O'Brien, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, "became a symbol of hate" for both Colson and Nixon.

Nixon mentions two meetings on June 20 with Haldeman — but there is no word in the published excerpts about a telephone conversation during which, Haldeman asserts, the cover up started.

Haldeman: "In this telephone conversation, on our very first evening back in Washington, Nixon, himself, initiated the idea of raising funds for the Watergate burglars in an indirect manner."

Nixon writes that on June 20 he felt confident about Watergate because both Haldeman and Colson assured him no one at the White House had been involved.

Haldeman: "Even more surpris-

Rhodesian government threatened

The Washington Post
SALISBURY, Rhodesia — An escalating row over the firing of a black justice minister in Rhodesia is threatening the unity of the nation's multiracial interim government at a time when its solidarity is needed the most.

Supporters of Byron Hove, 31, who was fired Friday by the executive body of the government Sunday demanded his reinstatement saying they would call for the resignation of three top white officials if this was not done.

In addition, the United African National Council (UANC), led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, also said it was deferring until next Sunday a decision on whether to continue its participation in the government which it helped set up barely six weeks ago.

Formed by Prime Minister Ian Smith, Muzorewa, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, the multiracial government is meant to lead Rhodesia to full majority rule by the end of the year.

The UANC's action, in effect, is a challenge to the executive council, comprised of Muzorewa, Smith, Sithole and Chirau, to reverse their decision to dismiss Hove. UANC has asked for an emergency meeting of the council.

And UANC's postponing of a decision to withdraw from the government plunges the shaky experiment in multiracial rule here into a week of uncertainty about its political future as the government is in the midst preparing for a massive campaign to encourage an estimated 7,000 to 8,000 guerrillas fighting the Rhodesian army in the countryside to lay down their arms and support the Salisbury government.

The guerrillas belong to two armies led by black nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who oppose the so-called Salisbury agreement of March 3 because they say it leaves intact too many privileges for the country's white minority of 270,000.

The West has refused to recognize the transitional Salisbury government saying that it is doomed to failure without the participation of Nkomo or Mugabe. The young government was hoping to gain Western sympathy by attracting large numbers of the guerrillas to its side. That program will be sabotaged if the government's political unity is shattered by a withdrawal of Muzorewa and his UANC because the bishop is regarded as having the majority support of Rhodesia's 6.7 million blacks.

After a four-hour meeting of top UANC officials Sunday, Ernest Bulle, a black minister of finance and a UANC vice president, said his party is "reviewing the whole question of its continued participation in the transitional government." It has called a meeting next Sunday to discuss the matter.

About 1,500 demonstrators outside the UANC meeting in Salisbury Sunday waved placards urging their leaders to back out of the settlement if Hove was not returned to his post.

Meanwhile, in what appears to be a countermeasure by the three other participants in the Salisbury agreement, the Zimbabwe Times, the country's only black daily, was Sunday night served with a government order prohibiting it from publishing any information about Hove or about what is being called here the "Hove affair."

Sithole, one of the four signatories to the March 3 agreement, said Sunday that if Muzorewa and his UANC pull out from the transitional government, it will continue to carry out its duties without them.

Bulle also said the UANC backed the declarations of Hove which led to his dismissal. The controversial former minister had called for aggressive recruiting and promoting of blacks in the police department and for some changes in the judicial system to reflect the coming of majority rule.

Egyptians cool off after Carter remarks

CAIRO — A sudden chill developed in relations between Egypt and the United States Sunday as this country reacted with surprise and concern to remarks attributed to President Carter about the future of the occupied Arab territories and the Palestinians.

In the first such incident in many months, Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel summoned U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts to demand an explanation of what Carter reportedly said. Eilts acknowledged after the meeting that the foreign minister was "disturbed and concerned."

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram printed what it said was a "strange" interview with Carter distributed by the New York Times. The remarks attributed to Carter, which implied approval of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's plan for limited self-rule on the West Bank and indicated Israel would not be obliged to withdraw from all the occupied territories, were interpreted by the Egyptians as a sudden American shift toward the Israeli position on these crucial issues.

According to Egyptian officials and diplomatic sources, however, it was the timing as much as the substance of Carter's remarks that upset the Egyptians. Publication followed Carter's talks with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and what is seen here as a retreat by Carter on his all-or-nothing plan to sell warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia as well as Israel.

The interview, by Trude B. Feldman, quoted Carter as saying: "My belief is that a permanent settlement will not include an independent Palestinian nation on the West Bank. My belief is that a permanent settlement will not call for complete withdrawal of Israel from occupied territories. My belief is that a permanent settlement will be based substantially upon the home rule proposal that Prime Minister Begin has put forward."

(White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday that Carter's statements on the three issues represented no change in the president's position. "There's nothing new to it," he said, adding that he was surprised at the Egyptian reaction.)

Afghanistan leader thought a Communist

By SIMON WINCHESTER
 Special to The Washington Post

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A civilian politician widely believed to be a pro-Moscow Communist was appointed Sunday to head the new government in Afghanistan, four days after a bloody military coup toppled President Mohammed Daoud.

Radio Kabul, monitored here in Pakistan's capital, said that Mohammed Taraki, a former leader of the Moscow-oriented Khalq (masses) Party was declared "founder of the revolution," president of Afghanistan and prime minister of the new government.

The Soviet Union announced its recognition of the new government. Radio Kabul said. There has been no confirmation from Soviet sources.

Diplomatic sources in Washington said Taraki was named chairman of a united Communist Party when the various Communist factions merged in 1977. The sources said Taraki, who is about 61, once served in the Afghanistan Embassy in Washington and later worked as a translator in the U.S. embassy in Kabul.

The sources said that while the Afghan Communists are thought to lean toward Moscow their nationalism may be of more significant factor.

Noting that Taraki has taken both the position of chief of state and head of the Cabinet, the sources said it is unlikely he will be a mere figurehead.

Were a Communist government to be established in Afghanistan, observers say it would have major impact in other South Asian states and on nations along the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

Such a government would be expected to be an encouragement to separatist movements in neighboring Pakistan. Western diplomats in Islamabad said they regard the situation with what one described as "a cautious concern — but very real concern, indeed."

A State Income Tax. A Hangman's Noose For Texas.

If you think taxes are choking you now, consider the possibility of a State income tax. It would be a noose around your neck. Around the neck of every Texan. And around the future of Texas.

A vote for John Hill is a vote for:

- bigger government.
- more government spending.
- more inflation.

AND FOR A STATE INCOME TAX.

A vote for Dolph Briscoe is a vote for:

- fiscal responsibility
- less — not more — government.
- continued economic growth.

AND FOR NO NEW TAXES.

- We don't need New York-style government in Texas.
- We don't need Washington-style bureaucracy in Texas.
- And we don't need a big spending liberal activist as Governor of Texas.

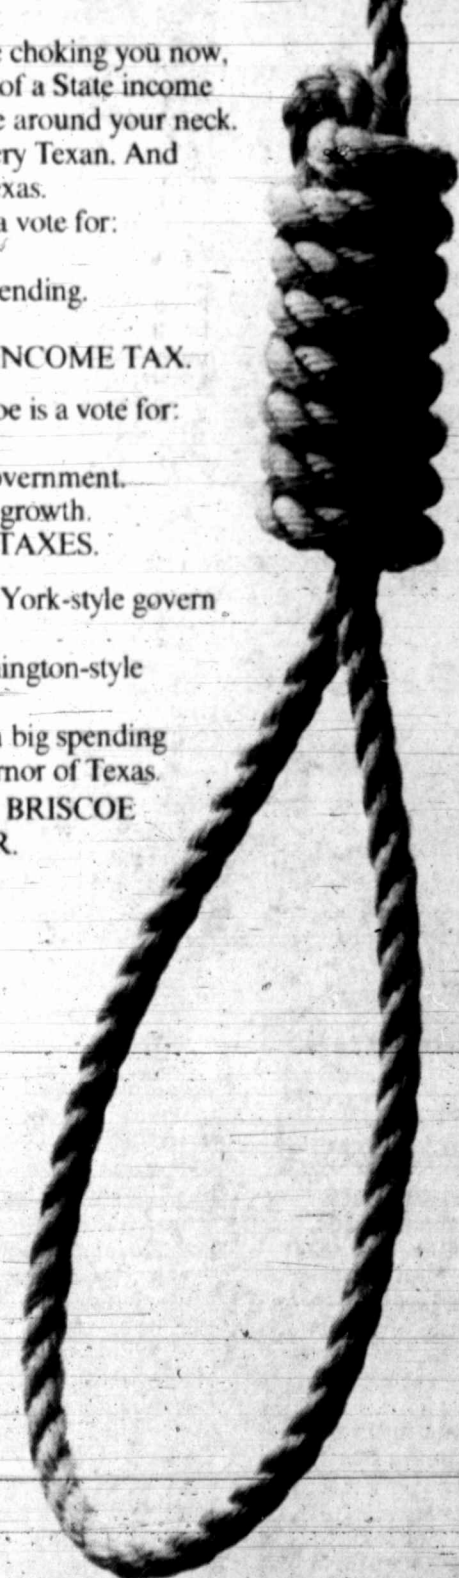

LET'S KEEP DOLPH BRISCOE AS OUR GOVERNOR.

"We are already footing the bill for run-away government in Washington. As Texans we should not have to foot the bill for run-away government in Austin."

"I don't think Texas should spend itself into a state income tax. That is exactly what will happen if Mr. Hill fulfills only some of his political promises."

'Law Day, USA'

"The Law, Your Access to Justice" is the fitting theme of "Law Day, USA," which today is being observed here and, hopefully, in every city and hamlet across the land.

It is an occasion which should have the attention of every American.

There is no set observance for "Law Day," but citizens should give serious consideration to what the day means to them. It is something we think so little about, yet law is a basic foundation on which this great nation is built.

The Midland County Bar Association staged its traditional "Law Day" luncheon at noon today.

In many countries around the world, the first day of May is celebrated in various ways: spring festivals, sports events, play days, parades, and displays of armed might.

Yes, May Day means different things to different people around the globe.

But in the United States of America, the observance has a deeper, more significant meaning, having to do with law and order, with special emphasis on loyalty to country.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower proclaimed the first "Law Day" in 1958 to emphasize the importance of law in the American way of life.

The American Bar Association

sponsors the national observance, in cooperation with state and local bar organizations.

The occasion also ushers in the observance of "Respect for Law Week," which also is tremendously important in our nation today.

We can't really have law, you know, unless there is widespread respect for law throughout the land. It particularly is true in a free country that law isn't at all effective unless it has the respect of the people. Yet, and unfortunately, a decline in respect for law has been noted in America in recent years. The why of it isn't too important. The important thing is for each and every loyal American to do his or her part in helping to restore respect for law to its rightful place in the life of this great nation.

Law and order are representative of the American way.

This particular day also is known in America as "Loyalty Day" — an occasion for reaffirming our loyalty to the United States of America.

Faith in and loyalty to country on the part of its individual citizens are essential to its continued well being. Yet, we are inclined to take it all for granted.

Let's all give serious thought today and during the coming week to "Law," "Respect for Law," and "Loyalty" — each of which mean so much to each of us every day of the year.

CHARLEY REESE: An interesting question beamed to all Americans

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — In the interest of helping a columnist reassure himself that he is not living in an open air insane asylum, how about asking yourself this question: what do you think the leaders of the Soviet Union would do to you and your family if they had the power?

I mean really, do you think they would kiss you on the cheek? Get you a better job? Give you a couple of free passes to the Bolshoi ballet?

You see what disturbs me is that so many people in this country speak and act as if the Soviet Union were ruled by a male version of Queen Victoria.

The president has said, you know, that we have gotten over our "inordinate fear of Communism." If that's the case, I don't know why he's asking for $110 billion in defense because we're darn sure in no danger from an Albanian invasion.

Of course I long ago gave up trying to make any connections between what Carter says, what he intends to do, and reality. Poor old Alexander Solzhenitsyn who being a Russian would presumably know something about the Soviet Union says we'd better be scared of Communism because they intend to destroy us.

Of course who is Solzhenitsyn? He can't even get an invitation to the White House. They're too busy entertaining the heads of Communist slave states to waste time talking to an old man who believes in freedom.

Well, I'll tell you what this old country boy thinks the leaders of the Soviet Union would do. I figure that if they have enslaved their own people, murdered multiple millions of them, packed other millions off to slave labor camps, and tortured them, that there is no sane reason to expect that they would treat me, who can't even speak Russian, any better.

I believe that if you will spend a little time reading and studying and talking to people who have lived there, you will come to the same conclusion.

And having come to that conclusion, you ought to start worrying. Seriously. Go outside and see if you can find an anti-ballistic missile system in your neighborhood. Then go see what the local civil defense plan is. Well, on second thought, save yourself the trouble: there aren't any.

You see the hot shots in Washington came up with the idea that you and your family would make a good hostage. They decided if you had absolutely no defense against a nuclear attack that the Soviets would then feel reassured that we wouldn't start a nuclear war.

And it worked. The Soviets are reassured. They know as well as we that if tomorrow, they fired their best shots and we fired ours, that 60 to 100 million Americans would die and about 10 million Soviets would die.

But if that's the case, I hope you are asking yourself, why are the Soviets spending two national fortunes a year building new strategic bombers, new nuclear submarines, new generations of missiles? Why are they spending so much on a civil defense program that includes shelters, special hardening of industrial plants, and elaborate plans for dispersion of their population?

And why, I also hope you are asking yourself, are we cancelling our strategic bomber, dismantling the North American Air Defense Command, avoiding any civil defense program, and delaying the production of nuclear submarines and new missiles?

You see what I want you to realize is that if we get much weaker, the Soviet Union can force us to surrender or face nuclear disaster. Now that means you will either fall under Soviet rule or you'll die from burning or radiation.

And you should know that if you fall under Soviet rule that they will no doubt follow their historical pattern and immediately execute the middle and upper classes. Soviet style, by the way, means the whole family — grandma and all the kids.

Now the current Soviet gangster boss recently told the Eastern European gang leaders that by 1982 the Soviet Union would be militarily powerful enough to accomplish its goals.

That's four years from now. Think about it.

The Mitre Peak Girl Scout Camp in the Davis Mountains today was saved from foreclosure, at least for the time being, thanks to the generosity of Midland and area residents and the willingness of an Alpine bank to advance about $7,000, on a short-term loan, W.A. Yeager, finance campaign chairman, said.

Sarah Lew Link will serve as master of ceremonies at Midland High School's annual Junior-Senior banquet at 7 p.m. Monday in the Crystal Ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer.

Midland counted $44,500 in building permits for the week to bring the 1948 total to $1,535,025.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND Park failed some detector tests

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Korean payoff man Xongsun Park flunked some of the Justice Department's lie detector tests. This is the report of sources who have had access to the confidential results.

A Justice Department spokesman put it more cautiously. He acknowledged that Park had shown "some sensitivity to certain questions." But the polygraph machine merely registered Park's nervous reactions; it would be stretching "to conclude that he lied," the spokesman said.

The Justice Department questioned Park for 17 days in Seoul. For 12 of those days he was strapped to a polygraph machine. He was questioned about 23 topics while the machine monitored his veracity.

Later, he was questioned for another week in Washington. Again he submitted to lie detector tests during most of the questioning.

The needles on the machine jumped when he denied any link with the Korean Central Intelligence Agency. This showed he was nervous about his answer. Our sources say he simply flunked this question.

In testimony before the House Park denied that he had ever been on the KCIA payroll. "I was (a) private person and doing (a) private thing," he swore. "I have never had anything to do with the Korean government."

This appears to conflict with the polygraph results. It could subject Park to perjury charges. The Justice Department spokesman emphasized that Park's immunity was "conditional" and that the charges against him have not been dismissed. These charges could be pressed, with new perjury charges added, if it can be proved he lied under oath.

But this would put the Justice Department in an awkward position. It is relying heavily on Park's testimony to make a case against congressmen who were on the take. It would be difficult for the Justice Department to take these cases to court if it impeached the key witness by indicting him for perjury.

Our sources admit that Park has made many conflicting statements out of court, that he exaggerated his influence on Capitol Hill and that he probably misled his own government. But the Justice Department has solid evidence contradicting his claim that he was merely a businessman acting on his own.

DETENTE DETERIORATES: President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, has reported secretly to the Cabinet that a "pattern of deterioration" is undermining Soviet-American relations. The president said he "shares Dr. Brzezinski's sense that the U.S.-U.S.S.R. relationship is not as good as it should be."

The biggest obstacle to detente is the Cuban-Soviet intervention in the African Horn. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned the Cabinet that the Soviets are threatening U.S. oil routes by shipping Cuban troops and billions worth of weaponry into this strategic corner of Africa.

Yet the Kremlin has ignored U.S. warnings to tread carefully in the African Horn. Soviet diplomats have refused to acknowledge the slightest misgivings over actions in Africa.

Carter has tried to save a nuclear arms pact, meanwhile, by delicately separating the SALT talks from the African issue. "The Administration is not linking the SALT negotiations to the Soviet presence in the African Horn," he informed the Cabinet.

He believes it will take a summit conference to settle the differences over SALT. "Ultimately," he told the closed-door session, he would have to sit down with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev "to resolve the last three or four issues" still holding up the arms pact.

The Soviets are equally adamant over human rights, which is also jeopardizing detente. According to confidential Cabinet minutes, Brzezinski reported on Soviet antagonism at the Belgrade conference on European cooperation. At one point, Soviet delegate Yuliy Vorontsov threatened "terrible consequences" if the United States continues to press the human rights issue.

But this did not deter American delegate Arthur Goldberg who had instructions from Washington "vigorously to pursue the cause of human rights."

Brzezinski also cited the Soviets' "sustained campaign against the neutron bomb" and "their efforts to expand naval bases in the Mediterranean" as deterrents to better relations.

Mark Russell says

I left some predictions in my pants pocket a few weeks ago and sent the pants to the cleaners. The pants are back and here are the predictions: Omar Torrijos is quite a decent fellow and will accept any Senate vote with grace.

The stock market won't do anything in April but just sit there stagnating.

Barbara Walters and Harry Reasoner are starting to grow on me. There seems to be a new chemistry between them that works.

Nobody is going to watch "Holocaust." People want programs with substance like the "Newlywed Game."

No showers, flowers

Here it is May 1, and somehow or other the Midland area missed out completely on the April showers which usually come our way, bringing a profusion of wildflowers blooming across the rangelands.

But April 1978 delivered neither showers or flowers — and the results are showing. Yes, it's dry, and the sand is beginning to move.

But a good, soaking rain or two in the early part of May would make all the difference in the world. Grass and weeds would come right on through and the flowers would blossom overnight, almost.

Anyway, this is what we are counting on, so, better keep your slicker handy, podner.

INSIDE REPORT:

Nebraska Democrats post 'Carter, Keep Out!' signs

By ROWLANDE EVANS
And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

LINCOLN, Neb. — In traditionally Republican Nebraska, where the Democratic party has achieved new heights and is reaching still higher in 1978, party leaders have posted a harsh sign for the Democrat in the White House: Jimmy Carter, keep out!

That reflects the mid-term election mood throughout the Great Plains, scene of dramatic Democratic gains in recent elections. Farmer unrest, intensified by what wheat belt politicians perceive as President Carter's general ineptitude, has raised the prospect of Republican resurgence in the Plains states.

Thus, most Carter administration officials — in some cases the President himself — will not be welcome as 1978 campaigners in much of this region. Not only Nebraska but Kansas, South Dakota, Iowa, Oklahoma and Wyoming are grain states where Democratic candidates for Senator and governor fear the Carter imprimatur.

Unencumbered by such political horrors as Vietnam or Watergate, which generated heavy out-of-power gains for the Republicans in 1966 and the Democrats in 1974, Mr. Carter nevertheless has become his own party's worst enemy for 1978.

The clearest case is Nebraska, where popular Democratic Gov. J. James Exon is running for the Senate seat of retiring conservative Republican Carl Curtis. With a general approval rating close to 80 per cent after eight years in office, Exon has one waking nightmare: the President.

"Take Carter and the Carter administration out of the equation, and Exon is a sure thing," a leading Republican told us. An Exon aide agreed: "Let Carter set foot in this state between now and November and it is conceivable we could lose." Hyperbole? The shrewdest politicians here do not think so.

Apart from the President's general decline, the White House has shown zealous insensitivity toward this region — as demonstrated April 12 when the House defeated the veto-threatened emergency farm bill. A few minutes after that vote, a leading Nebraska Democrat vainly implored Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to announce immediately the administration's support for a higher, $3.40 target price for hard-pressed wheat farmers, then claim credit for it in the fall campaign.

Bergland, never certain what course his orders from the White House will take, begged off. Anyway, he lamely explained, there will be a higher target price for wheat, and we will get credit for it in the fall.

Instead of hitting the headlines with a dramatic plea for higher wheat prices, Bergland waited a full week. He then sent an aide to the Senate Agriculture Committee where, in the routine ritual of a committee hearing room, the $3.40 target price was quietly endorsed by the Carter administration.

Such amateurism follows what is perceived here: as White House coolness toward Nebraska and the Great Plains. Bergland told NBC's "Meet the Press" last month that "it has been a long time since a Democratic candidate for the presidency carried Nebraska." That "long time" goes back only to 1964, when Lyndon B. Johnson easily won this state.

Bergland went on to say that "if (the voters) choose to reject" Carter farm policies, "so be it." This back-of-the-hand attitude explains Sen. Edward Zorinsky's public ridicule of Mr. Carter's efforts to win his support for the Panama Canal treaties. This, in turn, brought staff advice to Mr. Carter for a public spanking of the maverick Democratic Senator; that would not hurt the President, said the adviser, because he has no support in Nebraska anyway.

Indeed, Mr. Carter is looked upon as a foreigner, knowing little about Midwestern problems and caring less. Exon was "stuffed" at an Oval Office meeting with the President last July, with other farm state governors. Mr. Carter suddenly said "too much grain" is fed to livestock. Since the major source of income for feed-grain growers is feeding grain to livestock, the governors were dismayed.

Politicians and farmers here have the mistaken belief that Mr. Carter's international human rights campaign is a major factor in declining grain exports. Actually, delays in shipping grain abroad caused by human rights restrictions appear minimal — only $10 million in one shipment to Chile, according to the State Department. Nevertheless, the belief has taken hold and is hurting the President.

Thus the paradox of Mr. Carter's first off-year election campaign, while evident throughout the Great Plains, is particularly vivid in Nebraska. In a state poised for the first time to send a second Democrat to the Senate and make the Democrats the majority party, the Democrat in the White House is not wanted here between now and November.

ALLERGIES: your personal poisons

Home holds big allergy potential

By JOHN BARBOUR
The Associated Press
Chapter Eight

Dust is the bane of the housekeeper, but most especially it is the bane of allergy victims.

And the place where they encounter it most persistently is the home. They can see it in the air through the bands of sunlight coming in his window. They can see it collecting on the bookshelves. But most of all, they can feel it deep down inside, and it brings on sneezing, wheezing, runny noses and tearing eyes.

There is practically no place and no thing in the house that doesn't shed dust or other particles into the air we breathe. The carpet sheds, the painted walls shed, the furniture sheds, the bed clothes shed. Everything hangs in the air of the home, from cigarette smoke to cooking odors, from mildew to the horsehair stuffing of the easy chair, from the cheery fire in the fireplace to the car in the attached garage.

To most people, none of these things is a problem. But to the allergy sufferer, it can mean persistent allergic rhinitis or asthma, sinus trouble or bronchitis. When an allergy is with you all year around, the doctor is going to suspect house dust first of all, and those will be the first skin tests he tries.

But even if he finds out that house dust is the answer, there is virtually no way to avoid it, any more than you can avoid the air you breathe. A lot can be done, however, to reduce the dust and other allergens in the house, at some expense and a lot of work.

If an allergic person is occupying the bedroom, it should be clear-up of all unnecessary dust-catchers, upholstered chairs and other stuffed furniture, knick-knacks, venetian blinds, bookcases and pictures. If a child is the occupant, keep toys elsewhere. The bedroom should be reduced to sleeping quarters. Rugs and curtains should be washed often, and they should be of non-allergenic plastics, synthetics or glass fibers. Keep cosmetics, plants, flowers elsewhere.

Floors should be kept cleaned and waxed. Ceilings and walls should be dusted frequently. Radiators should be cleaned, and even the bedsprings, the bedspread and slats should be washed or wiped with a damp rag.

Clothes that aren't used often, or are used outside, should be kept in another closet. Bathrooms used by the allergic patient should be kept clear of everything but essentials.

The rules for the rest of the house are just as severe. Don't leave a bed of ashes in the fireplace, avoid furniture stuffed with horsehair or down or other animal products. The carpets, the drapes all contribute to the household inventory of dust. So does the kitchen. Cooking oils float through the entire house. So do spices and herbs,

So, for a number of reasons, it is wise to look at the bed you make, because you will have to sleep in it. Avoid feather pillows and some foam materials which disintegrate. A pillow should be washable and covered with a dust proof casing. That can be covered with an ordinary pillow slip. Woolen or fuzzy blankets or comforters should be zipped up in a washable blanket cover. The cover should be non-allergenic and tightly woven to keep dust inside. Chenille or quilted bedspreads can be a problem. So can silk.

Having taken care of all these things, we can now deal with the air we breathe. It is useless to clean a room, and then have the forced hot air furnace circulate all of the dust in the house through that room. If you have one, use a good air filter in the furnace and clean it frequently, at least once a month. You may also use a fiberglass filter on the register in the "clean" room. Space heaters are difficult to clean, and accumulate dust. The best heating system is hot water forced through heating pipes or radiators.

Actually, most of the rules for air and home cleanliness cited for the allergic patient will likely benefit other members of his family as well. The most important of these is the quality of the home air everyone breathes. It's a lot easier on your nose and eyes if there is less dust around whether you are allergic to it or not.

It is also better for the lungs and the entire respiratory tract if room temperatures are kept down to about 65° in winter and air temperatures are not lowered too much in summer by air conditioning. Excessive cooling of summer air also decreases humidity, and for the individual who insists on keeping the air conditioner at 70 all summer long, there can be persistent nasal stuffiness and sneezing. There is more to pay than your energy bill.

Potato has sex problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's number one potato has a sex problem. It is sterile, for the most part, says the Agriculture Department.

So USDA is providing scientists at Kansas State University, Manhattan, with a $50,000 grant to experiment with a form of cloning to improve the Russet Burbank potato so that it can be more resistant to disease and have higher yields.

"Efforts to genetically improve Russet Burbank potatoes have been hampered because the industry's number one potato is, for the most part, sterile," the department said Friday.

"Generally, geneticists rely on sexual cross-pollinations to produce new, improved plant varieties," it said.

University scientists will experiment with a form of cloning called "protoplast regeneration to create new Russet Burbank potato varieties, potato varieties."

"The process will involve taking a cell from a potato leaf and removing the cell walls, leaving only the cell's center known as protoplast," the department said.

"From the protoplast of each individual cell, the researchers know they can grow a new plant that exhibits characteristics different from the plant the cell was taken from," the department said. "No one knows why this happens, but the researchers hope to use the technique to obtain new, superior Russet Burbank varieties."

The $50,000 grant is provided by the department's Science and Education Administration and is for a three-year project.

AP board report reveals important gains in 1977

ATLANTA (AP) — New columns by four of The Associated Press' best-known correspondents, streamlined delivery of news at high speed and increased coverage of close-to-the-reader subjects highlighted improvements in AP service during 1977, the news cooperative's board of directors has reported.

The board report, to be presented to AP members at the annual meeting here today, also noted that the conversion of the photo network to Laserphoto was completed in 1977 and said impending changes will provide readers with pictures of higher quality and greater detail.

Both foreign and domestic coverage focused on reporting events of direct impact on readers. At home, AP investigative reporting looked at government and work and at the effect of government actions on individual lives. Overseas, AP reports were marked by emphasis on social and economic change of significance to Americans.

Discussing foreign coverage, the board said: "Although resourceful reporting circumvented most obstacles, a lengthening shadow lay over news gathering abroad by The Associated Press and other organizations — restrictions, censorship efforts and harassment of foreign correspondents in a growing number of countries."

The board said that the four new columns by Special Correspondents Hugh Mulligan, Jules Loh, Will Grimsley and Walter Mears "bring to the wire on a regular basis some of AP's best writers."

While continuing to improve the quality of the report, AP also took steps to improve the delivery of the news. As an example, the board said editors receiving AP stories at high speed "no longer have to labor over patchwork revisions of wire copy in bits and pieces." Instead of getting inserts, corrections and other changes, highspeed members now get completely revised versions of stories in takes of up to 1,200 words.

The highspeed wire is kept free of non-AP copy, the board said, adding that a separate circuit, called the DataFeature wire, was opened during 1977 to carry syndicated material and television listings to members.

The board said the AP gained a record 56 new photo members in 1977, bringing the number of photo stations in North America to 800. Coming soon, the board said, is a switch to Laserphoto's Phase II resolution standard. The photo department also increased distribution of color by Laserphoto and began testing its electronic darkroom.

In sports, AP named national editors for each major sport and the board noted that a number of seasonal columns on such subjects as college and professional basketball, skiing and auto racing are getting wide use on member pages.

The board said AP newspaper membership stands at more than 1,300. It also said DataStream has 226 members on line. DataFeature has orders from 31. DataSpeed has added eight and DigitalStocks has added four. APRadio, the news service in sound, had 537 stations under contractual commitment in 1977, a net gain of 102 over 1976. Radio and TV membership was 3,487, up 106, and a total of 247 CATV systems were in service or under commitment, up 74.

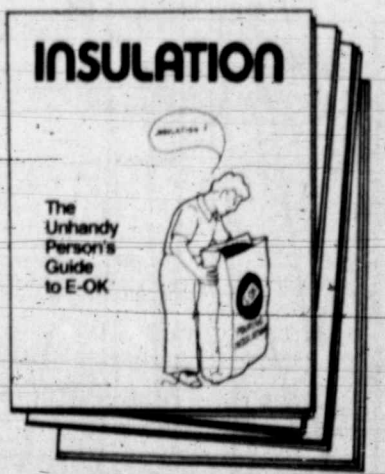

You can do it!

Proper insulation in your home could save you up to 50% on your energy bills.

And installing that insulation isn't all that hard. You can learn to do it yourself with Texas Electric's free booklet on insulation. It's one of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. Even unhandy people can make their ceilings and floors into effective barriers against summer heat and winter cold.

Other booklets in the series cover caulking, weatherstripping, storm windows, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

Expert warns against continuing use of saccharin

By LEWSCARR
Copley News Service

What do we do about saccharin while the federal government kicks around the on-again, off-again ban? For most of us, according to an expert: Stop using it.

Family rents hall to celebrate

NEWCASTLE, Calif. (AP) — What do you do when the family gets so big that a single house can't handle holiday get-togethers?

One local family hires a hall. Michael Matthews told his three sisters a couple of years ago, "We don't have enough room to take care of everybody." Ever since, the Community Hall here has been the location of family get-togethers arranged by Matthews, his wife, sisters and brothers-in-law.

announced a proposed ban on the popular artificial sweetener a year ago because of evidence supplied by a Canadian study that large amounts of saccharin caused bladder cancer in rats.

But so loud was the outcry against the ban that Congress imposed an 18-month hold on the ban so government scientists could gather more conclusive evidence from epidemiologic studies of humans.

Meanwhile, the general population understandably has been confused by the controversy, especially since the FDA's case suddenly became stronger with another Canadian study, this time of humans, showing men, but not women, faced a 60 percent more risk of bladder cancer when they used saccharin and cyclamates regularly.

Dr. Arnold L. Brown says flatly that he thinks saccharin should be banned. Brown is chairman of the department of pathology at Mayo Clinic and chairman of the National Cancer Institute's clearinghouse on carcinogens.

Brown said in an interview that diabetics do not need artificial sweeteners in their diets any more than non-diabetics do.

But, he said, the use of saccharin has been a special convenience for them and probably can be continued.

But for dieters: "There are much better ways to lose weight than through the use of saccharin," he said, "and I suggest that it not be used

(by persons wanting to lose weight). How about the rest of us? "I see no reason why all of the others should use saccharin either."

Brown was instrumental in recommending that cyclamates be banned in 1970 because of their link with cancer.

But, he said, cyclamates at worst are a very weak carcinogen, "and if I had to make a choice, I would take cyclamates over saccharin."

Both of the additives were ordered banned by the FDA under requirements of the Delaney clause, a 1957 amendment which prohibits any substance to be added to food if it is shown to cause cancer in humans or animals.

"It is a tough law," Brown said, "and I favor it."

But he said he thinks the time will come when scientists can better determine the degree of carcinogenicity in compounds and regulate them on a risk-benefit ratio.

"But we can't do this yet," he said, "and meanwhile we should continue to (be governed by the Delaney clause).

"Every time we identify a carcinogen, I think we should try to get rid of it if we can, even though it may mean a change in our lifestyle."

Brown said there are many impurities left in saccharin from its manufacturing process. "There is evidence that the impurities and not saccharin itself are causing the cancer."

"And it is conceivable that a safe saccharin can be developed."

DEAR ABBY

Girls must learn how not to multiply

DEAR ABBY: I am 9 and my sister is 15 and we live on a farm with our parents. My sister is going to have a baby and she isn't married.

I never knew you could get this kind of service without a husband.—SURPRISED IN IOWA

DEAR SURPRISED: Well, you can. And that's why it's just as important for girls your age to learn how NOT to multiply as it is to learn how to add.

DEAR ABBY: I once felt that being a good samaritan was a nice way to be. However, after reading that you discourage kindnesses such as helping to carry a stranger's luggage at airports, it opened my eyes. So I have written a few don'ts to follow:

1. Don't assist anyone having problems with their car. You are competing with two truck drivers, AAA and mechanics. They could be put out of work.
2. Don't drive the elderly, sick or handicapped to hospitals or senior citizen clubs. You are competing with public transportation and cab companies.
3. Don't do hospital volunteer work. You are competing with paid hospital personnel.
4. Don't offer to care for children of friends, family or neighbors. You are competing with public and private nursery schools.
5. Don't offer advice to anyone, regardless of how desperate they may be. You are competing with Dear Abby!

Sign me—NO MORE NICE GUY IN L.A.

DEAR NO MORE: Aw, c'mon, you know I don't discourage good samaritans or volunteers from doing their thing. I merely pointed out that people who make a practice of hanging around airports looking for folks to help may run into trouble with the professionals.

DEAR ABBY: You sure missed the boat with your response to the problem of the nery couple who always dropped in at mealtime.

I would have suggested that they meet them at the door with their coats on and say, "Oh, Jim is just taking me out to dinner. If Tom wants to treat you, we'd be glad to have you join us!"

Their decision will tell you a lot about your "friends"! Be tactful but firm, and beat them at their own game.—ANOTHER COUPLE

DEAR COUPLE: A couple who would consistently drop in around dinnertime in hopes of getting a free meal would not be the kind of people I would want to join me—even if they paid their own way.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a son (I'll call him Jason) who was born out of wedlock. He is 6 years old. About 4 months ago, my sister married a man who refuses to take Jason into his home, although he pays for his support. Jason now lives with our parents and he can't understand why his mommy "visits" him at Granny's but won't take him "home" with her.

My sister hasn't told Jason anything. I think he should be told something. But what? I have a right to ask this question because my mother is in poor health, and now my sister wants me to promise that I will look after Jason in case something happens to our mother.

I am 26, have been self-supporting since I was 17, and plan to be married in August. Please withhold my name.—CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Jason should be legally

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RICHTER

(Tue., May 2)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Much confusion can be in effect now which lifts in the near future. Be extra careful about getting into the specifics of any course of action so that you have the correct information to work with.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Finish up tasks you have been postponing, although boring, but need to be done. Spend extra time with closest kin.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Steer clear of a gossip who could waste your valuable time. A personal aim is best reached during evening hours. Don't be extravagant.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care you do not jeopardize your reputation in any way. Get work done in a precise way and your benefits will be greater.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) More preparation is necessary before you tackle a new venture and then full speed ahead. A hunch you have right now is not good, so don't follow it. Tomorrow you get the right slant.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care of responsibilities ahead of you so that you have free time for rest or whatever. Romantic tie can be difficult now if you permit. Be firm but kind.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Right now is the time to talk over a problem with partners, since you are thinking clearly. A situation arises that does not please you but after some concentrated thought you have the right solution.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get at your work early and don't expect help from others. Take needed health treatments. Wait until another day to talk over some fine points with a fellow worker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't indulge in pleasures that are too expensive for your pocketbook or you will later regret it. Work at your particular job intelligently and get ahead faster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to come to a better understanding with kin and have more harmony and happiness. A good time to entertain at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be tactful with neighbors and friends or there could be a severance of connections. Use care in motion and arrive on time for any appointments you make.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Wait until later in the day where financial matters are concerned, since your judgment is better then. A business adviser is not up to par right now. Wait a day before consulting.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are discontented right now so do not make important decisions until later. Contact good friends who can cheer you up.

Spotted fever infection grows

ATLANTA (AP) — Rocky Mountain spotted fever infected a record number of people in the United States last year, and federal health officials say they do not know what caused the increase.

The center for Disease Control said that 1,115 cases of the fever, which is carried by ticks, were reported in 1977, an increase of 19 percent over the 937 cases reported in 1976.

The center said 42 fatalities occurred in 856 cases last year.

Humans can contract the disease only from ticks and cannot infect one another.

The disease is known throughout the United States, but eight states stand out among those with the highest incidence.

North Carolina reported 223 cases. Other states with more than 50 cases were Virginia 154, Tennessee 107, Maryland 77, Oklahoma 76, Georgia 65, Arkansas 55 and South Carolina 53.

Let Pat Walker help create a new you.

S. Nelson is perhaps one of the more spectacular examples of the stunning results that may be attained through Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons International. Read what she has to say about the program that has benefited millions throughout the world over the past 26 years:

"I hated myself fat, and every new year I promised to really get with it and lose; however, it never happened. Finally my doctor advised me, tactfully, to stay out of his office until I decided to lose weight. He just couldn't help me. Out of desperation, not believing, I called for a courtesy treatment at Pat Walker's.

This was the turning point in my life. With a loss of 51 pounds and several inches, I began to enjoy my life with my friends and family, especially my three grandchildren. The Pat Walker program gave me a positive approach to everyday living."

How's your approach to life?

Now the national director for Pat Walker, Ms. Nelson firmly believes the program can upgrade the life outlook of the overweight as surely as it makes them slimmer, trimmer, more confident of their appearance—and themselves.

In the elegant atmosphere of a Pat Walker salon (where there's none of the noise and confusion you may have encountered at gyms and spas), you can reduce IN ABSOLUTE PRIVACY. Moreover, you have assistance from interested professional counselors (who also conduct their counseling, by the way, in complete privacy).

Another difference: SYMMETRICON

Symmetricon is the equipment, exclusive to Pat Walker's, providing passive exercise that gently shapes and firms your figure while it also improves your circulation and helps correct posture. You wear your regular street clothes during treatments. At Pat Walker's you can lose weight (and keep it off) ON YOUR OWN INDIVIDUALIZED PROGRAM—without strenuous physical exercise or stringent diets.

Q. We have converted our living room into a big family room, taking in a side porch to make the family room larger. My problem is the room is beautiful but I don't know what colors or accessories or curtains to put in. The carpet is sculptured in orange, burnt orange, gray, black, brown and a slight touch of green. Paneling is hand hewn, light gray with antiqued charcoal gray cut places with a slight touch of maple. I have one 70-inch-wide window in front, two 36-inch windows on either side of the fireplace and a 70-inch-wide sliding glass door.

What color curtains should I hang? What kind and color furniture should I use? What kind of pictures should I hang? In other words, what am I to do to make it really comfortable and downright family living? I don't even know what to put on the mantle. It's all new to me. — B.C.

A. It sounds like you need a super dose of confidence in your own ability to put together a pleasing room. In my opinion, a great room is one that has comfortable furniture, pleasant color and reflects the people who live there.

You can learn a great deal by perusing home magazines, library books on good design and taking any home tours offered in your city. Think about how a really lovely room is put together.

My advice to you is to go slowly and get organized. By this I mean first start out with a plan. Take into consideration what you want the room to do. You are going to give your family room fairly hard wear and life there is probably quite informal. You likely will want facilities for television and stereo, comfortable seating and tables for snacking and for lamps.

After you decide exactly what you want the room to accomplish, sketch it out on a layout of the room with the kind of furniture you want or can re-do to make useful. Do this before you go out shopping and take your drawings with you. With your multi-colored carpeting and so much antiqued gray wood, try for some warm tones to make the room inviting.

Maybe a pair of sofas in an orange, green and brown plaid or print and some basket chairs with bright orange cushions.

Repeat the sofa fabric in the curtains. Or choose a heavy nylon sofa fabric and do light orange curtains — perhaps an open weave with a trim of green or brown.

Use pictures and accessories you already have. You must have been given or accumulated treasures you are especially fond of — perhaps photographs you could enlarge of a wonderful trip or prints from a magazine you like. Even children's art is fascinating, fun and very personal. Choose what you really like. Look in magazines for ideas to borrow.

If you must go out and buy, a mantle clock is often a charming addition to a room or an arrangement of inexpensive baskets on the wall. Follow your own feelings and choose what you like.

Q. Recently we were given an old restored violin. No one in the family plans to play it. A. My thought would be to have a shadow box made for it at a frame like to display it in our shop. I think this would provide the best protection for the violin.

Many non-professional home decorators lack confidence in their own decorating abilities. If you categorize yourself this way you can solve your problem by borrowing ideas from home magazines, books on home design and home tours. This family room features a wall decoration consisting of baskets from around the world and colorfully upholstered sofas.

Poor nutrition leads to overweight, obesity

COLLEGE STATION — Poor nutrition practices—excess calorie consumption and excess alcohol (also high in calories)—lead to overweight and obesity in more than 40 percent of the U.S. population, says a foods and nutrition specialist. For this reason, the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs issued its second edition of Dietary Goals for the U.S. with the new goal "to avoid overweight, decrease energy intake and increase energy expenditure," Mrs. Sweeten explains.

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

By eating a balanced diet based on a selection of lower caloric foods from the four food groups, a person could strive to meet these goals with the following changes in food selection and preparation:

- Increase consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grains.
- Decrease consumption of refined sugars.
- Decrease consumption of foods high in total fat.
- Decrease the consumption of animal fat and choose lean meats, poultry and fish that will reduce saturated fat intake. Trim extra fat from the meat.
- Substitute low-fat and non-fat milk for whole milk.
- Decrease sources high in cholesterol such as butter fat, eggs and organ meats.
- Decrease consumption of salt.

Marge Caldwell

Former Midlander to speak at Mother-Daughter banquet

Marge Caldwell of Houston, formerly of Midland, will be the special guest speaker for a Mother-Daughter Banquet to be May 9 in the First Baptist Church. At the banquet, which begins at 7 p.m., she will speak on the theme, "I Like Being a Girl." Seventh graders and up can purchase tickets for the banquet at the church office.

Mrs. Caldwell was a professional charm and modeling teacher and a marriage counselor when she lived in Midland. Since moving to Houston, she has become a member of the Speaker's Bureau of Houston, hostess of a 30-minute radio show and a sought-after speaker for Christian seminars on such topics as "How to be Happy Though Married," "Drugs and Sex" and other areas of Christian living for women and girls.

The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the church parlor. Mrs. Caldwell will be signing autographs of copies of her books, "Speak Out with Marge," and "The Radiant You."

Pease PTA to meet

The Pease Elementary Parent-Teacher Association will have a brief business session and panel discussion on "Discipline in the Public Schools" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the cafeteria.

Panel members will be James Ramsoure, board of trustees of the Midland Independent School District; Manuel Carrasco, director of elementary education; Bob Watkins, principal of Crockett Elementary School; Wesley Washam, teacher, Crockett Elementary School, and Mrs. Booker Lott, a parent.

Girl's concern puts angel in brown shoes on Christmas Seals

DALLAS (AP) — Because a nine-year-old girl was concerned about angels and the possibility that they might get struck by "thunder," there's going to be an angel clad in brown shoes and a cocktail dress on the 1978 Christmas Seals.

"You can't have angels walking around all day barefoot. You might get struck by thunder. You know they have thunder, even in heaven," said little Rachel Ockels in explaining why the angel she drew for a contest at her elementary school is wearing any kind of shoes, let alone brown shoes.

Despite the fears of her art teacher at Lida Hooe Elementary School about the shoes detracting from Rachel's angel, the picture won top honors at the school. Later, it won the Dallas city contest and then won top honors in Texas, meaning that it will represent the state and appear on the 1978 Christmas Seals.

"I drew the angel wearing brown shoes. Everybody kept telling me angels don't wear brown shoes — particularly brown shoes," the third-grader said.

"But I was drawing the angel in a cocktail dress and if you wear a cocktail dress, you've got to have shoes," she is quick to explain, demonstrating her knowledge of fashion.

Mrs. Kay Giddens, Rachel's mother, said she was surprised when she was told that the picture took top honors in Texas.

"We were shocked. I had no idea what the picture even looked like. The original drawing is in New York, but they did send us a reproduction," Mrs. Giddens said.

"We are very proud of her," she said.

Convicted spy departs for 'home'

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaving a trail of cryptic clues and James Bond-ish allusions, convicted spy Robert Thompson left this country as part of a three-way international swap of prisoners.

"I was a spy for the U.S.S.R.," declared Thompson, 43, moments before he boarded a Pan American flight for the first leg of his journey to asylum in East Germany. But he refused to confirm reports that he is a major in the Soviet secret police.

Thompson was released from Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary in Pennsylvania Sunday after serving 13 years of a 30-year term for espionage.

Thompson was accompanied on the trip by East German attorney Wolfgang Vogel, who was instrumental in arranging the prisoner exchange. Vogel previously helped arrange the trade of downed U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel in 1962.

On his release, Thompson told waiting reporters that espionage is not "a game, it's a serious business. But if I had to do it over again, I'd have to do it again. This was my job... I wouldn't change a day in my life, but I'm glad to be out."

Thompson said the key to his own release was the release by Mozambique of Israeli flier Miron Marcus, 24, who was imprisoned 19 months. He was jailed after his light airplane made an emergency landing on a flight from Rhodesia to South Africa.

The third man in the trade, Alan Van Norman, 23, of Windom, Minn., was to be freed from an East Berlin prison upon Thompson's arrival.

Van Norman was sentenced to 2½ years by the East Germans for trying to smuggle a doctor, his wife and his son to the West. He has been in jail since February 1977.

Thompson was an Air Force clerk in 1965 when he was convicted of passing secrets to the Russians. At that time, he protested his innocence, but he later changed his story and even sold accounts of his exploits to such magazines as the Saturday Evening Post.

Thompson says he was born in Leipzig, in what is now East Germany, of a Russian father and a German mother. His real name is not Thompson and, he says, "My real name you will never learn."

He speaks with a Midwestern American accent. "When you are a spy, and your life depends on a perfect accent, you pick up the accent," he said Sunday.

During his years in prison, Thompson took up painting, and among the packages he carried Sunday were some of the 400 landscapes he painted during his years behind bars.

An informed source who did not want to be identified disclosed that Thompson wrote President Carter last December and asked for a pardon, claiming he was an East German citizen. He promised to leave this country if he were released, and never come back.

Thompson said he was going to "go home, eat a home-cooked meal and have my first beer in all these years and maybe see my first woman in all these years."

Thompson said he planned to live with his 28-year-old son, an electrical engineer in East Berlin. His wife died in 1973, he said.

"There is plenty of freedom in East Germany," he said. "Freedom is a state of mind. I still have freedom, although I was incarcerated for 13 years."

Espionage trial to begin today

By DONALD SANDERS

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The trial getting underway here of a Vietnamese national and an American who held a top security clearance raises constitutional questions that likely will wind up in the Supreme Court.

Charged with spying for communist Vietnam are Ronald L. Humphrey, 42, and David Truong, 32. Seven counts in a federal grand jury indictment accuse them of espionage, conspiracy and failure to register as foreign agents. The counts carry maximum penalties ranging from five years to life.

Attorneys have estimated that the jury trial, which begins today, will last about three weeks. U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. has denied a motion by federal prosecutors to sequester the jury, but said he might reconsider if circumstances warrant.

Humphrey and Truong were arrested Jan. 31. They were accused — largely on the basis of extensive electronic surveillance — of channeling sensitive or secret documents obtained by Humphrey at the U.S. Information Agency, where he was employed, through Truong and a woman courier to Vietnamese officials in New York City and Paris.

Humphrey was unable to raise bail of $150,000 and has remained in jail since his arrest. Truong was freed on April 14 on $250,000 bail raised when his sister put up the deed for a house in Los Angeles and other friends and organizations pledged securities and bank certificates.

Truong, indicted under his Vietnamese name, Truong Ding Hung, is the son of a man who ran for the presidency of South Vietnam in 1967. His father was defeated and sentenced to five years in prison under the Nguyen Van Thieu regime.

Truong has lived in this country for 13 years; his application for citizenship is pending. An antiwar activist, he was a warehouse manager and graduate student at the time of his arrest.

Fukuda to make official visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda arrives here tonight on an official visit, hoping to reinforce a sudden turn for the better in Japan's often contentious trade relationship with the United States.

But officials from both countries say that several problems remain despite a milestone trade agreement last January.

Fukuda will spend 48 hours here, meeting with President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and members of Congress.

Instability in the value of the dollar is one of Fukuda's concerns, and he also believes the U.S. appetite for imported oil has had a destabilizing impact on the world payments system.

Fukuda said last week that he will make a strong appeal for enactment of the Carter administration's energy program.

On the U.S. side, there has been disappointment in the size of the tariff reductions Japan has proposed in on-going multilateral trade negotiations.

Lavish Egyptian party defies scarcity hardships

The Washington Post

CAIRO—The manager of the Cairo Sheraton Hotel and his wife, the famous belly dancer Nagwa Fouad, recently threw a lavish early evening cocktail reception to mark the hotel's eighth birthday.

Every inch of wall space in the ballroom was lined with tables bearing limitless quantities of roast beef, smoked salmon, shrimp, and local delicacies like stuffed vine leaves and shawarma, marinated sliced lamb grilled on a spit and served on bread with sesame sauce.

The liquor supply, in a country where the retail price of a bottle of Scotch is nearly equal to a policeman's monthly salary, was unlimited.

that Egypt's delicately balanced system of distributing essentials to its 40 million people — a hard-to-manage mixture of private enterprise, state and cooperative markets and government subsidies — gave way at several points at once.

The oranges are said to have vanished because the government, all-ways on the lookout for hard currency, tried to take advantage of the scare in Europe over mercury poisoning in oranges from Israel and authorized excessive exports. Tomatoes and other vegetables, though plentiful in the villages, are hard to find in Cairo because wholesalers kept them off the market in protest over price controls.

As for the bread shortage and the soaring price of meat, they are linked in a bizarre economic chain that the government has not been able to break.

A staple of the Egyptian diet is a rough loaf of bread made with coarse flour that sells for a few pennies because it is heavily subsidized by the fixed by law.

Some bakers are cheating by shorting the weight without cutting prices and using the extra flour to make higher-profit items like pastries. In rural villages, according to newspaper reports, peasants who in the past baked their own bread are buying in markets because the subsidy makes it cheaper. But the real problem is that the subsidized bread is so cheap that cattle breeders are using it for fodder.

It's about a third the price of hay, which is so expensive it has been driving up the price of meat, and since the bread can be purchased in unrestricted amounts, it's going to the animals instead of to the people.

In a wry commentary on this situation, a newspaper cartoon depicted a group of barnyard cows eating round loaves of bread, with one of them observing, "This people food isn't any good unless it's washed down with 7-Up."

The government cannot cut the bread subsidy because that would drive the price up beyond the reach of many families, especially urban workers, who depend on it. But it is looking for ways to control abuses.

The Ministry of Supply authorized an increase in the flour allocations to government. Its weight and price are all provinces, and ordered surveillance teams to inspect the bakeries and make sure they produce authorized products at full capacity.

Meanwhile meat prices have enriched Cairo's butchers, who are regarded with disdain by the Egyptian bourgeoisie because they don't have the social standing or education to match their money.

At a recent luncheon sponsored by General Motors — also at the Sheraton — to introduce its new models, an Egyptian journalist who specializes in economics offered this list of the kinds of people who can afford air-conditioned Buicks and Chevrolets in such a poor country:

"First, thieves and smugglers. Second, butchers. Third, doctors. Every doctor in Egypt has a waiting list of patients. And fourth, anyone who owns an apartment."

The last was a reference to the acute housing shortage in Cairo, in which ownership of an apartment is like ownership of a gold mine. With the approach of summer, the city is witnessing the annual phenomenon of people moving out of their own flats to live with relatives or parents so they can let out their own places to hot-weather visitors from the Persian Gulf at vast markups.

Crates full of money from recycling boxes

The Los Angeles Times

When Steven J. Thompson was 11 years old he helped his friends' grandfather who owned a pig farm in a St. Paul, Minn., suburb. The boys collected cardboard boxes which once held pig feed and redeemed them for $10 a ton.

Twelve years later, Thompson at 23 is doing the same thing — recycling used corrugated boxes. Last year, he grossed $110,000.

Jesse Sims simply says he wants to be a millionaire as he shows off his red Jaguar that he bought from a junkyard for $1,500.

Three years ago, the 41-year-old Sims quit his job as a produce clerk at a Los Angeles grocery store and embarked full time collecting corrugated board and other waste paper. He grossed well over $65,000 in 1977.

The two men — a generation and miles apart — are rising stars in the cardboard world of recyclers. They are turning corrugated to gold.

The American Paper Institute, a New York-based trade group, often cites Thompson and Sims in its $300,000 program to encourage collection of waste paper — newspaper, corrugated cardboard and office paper.

"Used corrugated is the largest category for waste paper recycling," says Audrey P. Schwartz, manager of the institute's paper stock conservation committee. "We think it will grow more this year and it is harder to find. We depend on the individual citizen to make the effort and we believe there is a good opportunity to earn an income."

In 1977 some 6.6 million tons of used corrugated were recycled domestically or exported for recycling. That comprises about 40 percent of all waste paper recycled in the United States. Mrs. Schwartz estimated that about 5 percent to 10 percent of that was collected by individuals.

On most days, Sims is in his Jaguar by 6 a.m., leaving his rented, two-bedroom home in Watts. He heads for Watson Industrial Park, a couple of miles away, where he temporarily parks his five trucks — some of which he uses for storage.

Sims is a resourceful man. During his average 12-hour, 6-day work week, his mother-in-law takes his messages, his cousin is his sole helper and he buys almost nothing new.

"They nicknamed me Sanford and Son..." says the thin, wiry Sims as he jerks open the whitewashed door of a Ford truck which he bought used, revealing scrap metal, aluminum cans, and rags.

"I'm a collector. If I find a small piece of metal on the street, I pick it up and keep it."

Sims came upon the idea of collecting used corrugated boxes when he was a produce clerk.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES PROPOSED TITLE XX SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN Public Comment Invited May 1-June 14

The proposed 1979 social services program for Texas residents has been prepared by the Texas Department of Human Resources in cooperation with citizens throughout the state.

COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PROGRAM PLAN FOR TEXAS October 1, 1978 to September 30, 1979

The Texas social services program helps residents support and take care of themselves, adjust to independent living, and offers them protective care.

SERVICES OFFERED—The services include day care and protective services for children, services for adults (including homemaker and chore services, and family care for aged and disabled persons), family planning, and employment services.

Most of the services will be available throughout Texas, but some may be limited to pilot projects; and others may be limited by the amount of funds. Some of the services may be expanded as funds become available.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?—Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), and recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are eligible.

Some services will be provided people whose incomes are below 55 percent of the state's median income, adjusted for family size. (For example, the income of a family of four must be less than $798.42 monthly.)

Only protective services and information and referral will be provided people whose incomes exceed 55 percent of the state's median income.

STANDARDS FOR FACILITIES SERVING SSI RECIPIENTS—The plan gives information about standards for residential facilities (other than those certified for Medicare or Medicaid) which serve SSI recipients. It includes the names and addresses of the agencies which will answer requests for information about standards, their enforcement, and waivers. If requested, the agencies will identify deficient facilities.

SOURCES OF ESTIMATED FUNDS—Total budget for 1978-79: $203,843,667. Sources: Federal $155,249,734; Non-federal $48,593,933.

GETTING COPIES OF THE PLAN—The complete plan may be read or reviewed in the DHR offices listed below, or obtained free of charge by writing to the Title XX Information Center. (See address below.)

QUESTIONS AND COMMENTS—Questions about the plan can be directed to the DHR offices listed. Written comments are encouraged and should be sent to the Title XX Information Center, Texas Department of Human Resources, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701. Comments must be received no later than 5 p.m. June 14, 1978. A suggested format for comments is included in the plan.

Helpless family waits for kidnapper's voice

By CARL MANNING

MCKENZIE, Tenn. (AP) — The lights burned late Sunday night in the front room of the Ben Gaines home as family members anxiously awaited some word about their abducted daughter.

Jodie Elizabeth Gaines, 18, a senior at the Lausanne School in Memphis, has been missing since Friday night when she left her family at the Carroll Lake Golf Club to visit her cousin — an appointment she never kept.

The following morning, an unidentified caller told the mother, Ludie Gaines, that her youngest daughter had been abducted. A substantial ransom — reportedly $250,000 — was demanded.

The caller was a male who apparently was trying to disguise his voice during the short conversation, the girl's father said.

The family said further statements were forthcoming at a midday news conference today.

Gaines is president of Gaines Manufacturing Co., one of this small West Tennessee town's largest industries. The plant produces furniture for motels.

As reporters clustered Sunday on the front porch of the expansive two-story house, family members issued a tearful plea for the safe return of the daughter.

"We, the family, appeal to those who have Jodie to contact us immediately," said sister Patti Gaines, 31, in a choking, quivering voice.

"We are fully prepared to act as instructed with no interference on the part of anyone. The money is ready now and we are prepared to pay the ransom. All we care about is Jodie's safety," she said.

Standing beside Miss Gaines as she read the statement was her mother and a brother, Ben Gaines Jr., 20.

"Please, all we want is Jodie... Please bring our daughter home," Mrs. Gaines said through tears before ducking back into the house.

The family concluded the news conference by distributing color photographs of their smiling red-haired daughter and saying there would be nothing else said until today.

Inside, the father sat near the telephone waiting for it to ring.

"All I've done is sit by the phone praying the guy would call and say what to do," Gaines told a reporter in a Sunday night interview.

Gaines said the last time he saw his daughter she was driving away from the golf club in her blue 1976 Chevrolet Vega. She was to visit a cousin, Yvonne Montgomery, who lives about two miles from the country club.

But somewhere between the club, at the end of a narrow, winding tree-lined road, and the cousin's home, she disappeared.

Gaines said he became worried and called local police when his daughter failed to return home late Friday night. He said he feared a traffic accident.

The missing teenager was expected to graduate later this month from Lausanne, an exclusive coeducational college preparatory school in Memphis, about 110 miles to the southwest.

Baby murder trial resumes

SANTA ANA (AP) — After a day of rest, the jury in the Dr. William Waddill baby murder trial resumes its deliberations for a seventh day today.

On Sunday, the nine men and three women stayed at the hotel where they have been sequestered since their talks began last Monday. They were allowed to receive visitors and spend time outdoors.

The panel must decide whether Waddill, one of Orange County's most prominent obstetricians, murdered an infant shortly after it survived a saline abortion on March 2, 1977.

Geer rites produce folk songs; few tears

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Few of the mourners cried. Instead, many of the nearly 500 people who attended actor Will Geer's memorial service sang folk songs.

Sunday's service at Santa Monica's Civic Auditorium — announced on a marquee outside as the "Celebration of a Life" — was a final tribute by friends and family to the 76-year-old Geer, who died April 22 of respiratory arrest.

Some in the audience, munching hot dogs and popcorn, said the service was just as Geer would have wanted it — spontaneous and without tears.

The actor's ashes have been scattered over a San Bernardino Mountain park where "The Waltons," a television series he co-starred in, was filmed, said Geer's agent, Kaye Dyal.

For six years, Geer played the white-haired grandfather in the show about a family living in the Depression and during World War II. He won an Emmy for the 1974-75 season as best supporting actor in a dramatic series.

Other co-stars in the Waltons — including Ellen Corby, Ralph Waite, David Harper, Mary McDonough and Kami Cotler — were among those who took the stage Sunday in tribute to Geer.

Harper, who portrays Walton son Jim-Bob, sang songs he performed for the series. As the audience clapped and shouted, he twanged to the tunes of "Ironing Board Blues" and "Hoe Down."

Water with bubbles?

NEW YORK (AP) — Can the marketing whiz who put Hong Kong in Levi's turn America on to water?

Salesman Bruce Nevins believes he is on the way. He is promoting Perrier, a liquid that differs from river water mainly because it has natural bubbles, into the newest fad drink in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The soft drink industry, with $10 billion in annual sales, hardly feels threatened.

But Fred Sipper, president of Irvings Food Center on Manhattan's 9th Avenue, has 300 cases of Perrier stacked inside his store entrance for quick delivery. "In 28 years in this business I've never had an item that took off so quickly," he said.

Sipper said that in all of 1976, he sold 400 cases of the bottled water. Now he sells that much every two days.

Such sales have encouraged Perrier to spend $35 million in doubling production and seriously attacking the U.S. soft drink market.

No new taxes. What does it mean to you?

Dolph Briscoe understands that the surest way for a government to strangle its economy is to overburden its taxpayers. In contrast, his most active opponent in this year's Democratic Primary does not. That opponent — by nature and by his own admission — is an activist intent on becoming an activist governor. That means only one thing. It means government regulating our lives with bureaucratic red tape. And it means a governor whose reckless spending promises, if kept, would result in the imposition of a State income tax on you in 1979.

Governor Briscoe has pursued — and throughout his tenure as Governor will continue to pursue — a firm policy of no new taxes. This policy has served the people of Texas well. It has produced the strongest economy in the United States today. And in the process it has enabled the extension of more and better state services to our citizens than ever before in our history — without new or additional taxes.

When Dolph Briscoe became Governor, he set a course of making state government better without new taxes.

In 1972, the experts — as well as Dolph Briscoe's opponents in this year's Governor's race — said it couldn't be done.

Dolph Briscoe proved that it could. He proved that saying "no" to new taxes is saying "yes" to economic prosperity.

Since Governor Briscoe has been in office:

- 1,200 new industries, representing an annual economic impact of more than $11 billion, have moved to Texas.
- More than 850,000 new jobs have been created.
- Texas has been universally acclaimed as having the best political climate in the world for economic investment and growth.

To keep Texas on this course of prosperity without a State income tax, let's keep the candidate with a proven record. Let's keep Dolph Briscoe as our Governor.

Flying scribe gazes hard at what ever's down there

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

OVER ATLANTA (AP) — Facts a captive audience in a New Orleans-bound jet might never know if the pilot wasn't feeling the loneliness of command and had this compulsion to keep talking.

"Seventy-five miles off to the right there, you could see the Ohio River if it wasn't so hazy."

"Directly below us now is Monticello, the home of both Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe. Or was it Madison? Anyhow, they lived there at different times so it doesn't much matter."

"I'm putting the seat belt sign on because we always encounter a slight air chop over the Chesapeake Bay this time of year. Oyster mating season, you know. Hu-hu-ha."

"That's Andrews Air Base off to the right there, and the jumbo jet you see at the end of the runway is the communications plane the president uses to keep him abreast of what's going on in the world. Jimmy Carter often rides in it himself. This is also the home of Air Force One."

"Now you have a good view of the nation's Capitol, the Washington Monument and all those yellow school buses around the Lincoln Memorial. The Pentagon is that big octagonal-shaped building on the other side of the Potomac."

"Those of you on the left-hand side of the aircraft might just catch a glimpse of colonial Williamsburg.

as we vector inland here, and the girls will soon start serving a delicious lunch in both cabins."

"I'm going to have to revise my estimated arrival time at the gate in New Orleans. These head winds are much stronger than we anticipated and we're running about 20 minutes behind the schedule. Off to the right there is Spartanburg, South Carolina. They say in summer you can smell the peaches way up here from those warehouses."

"That snaky looking thing is the Savannah River. It forms the border between South Carolina and Georgia and has some mighty fine fishing. Number three engine is coughing a bit, so I'm going to shut her down. Nothing to be the least concerned about, a normal procedure; but I am going to have to make another revision in our arrival time at the gate in New Orleans. Right now, I'd say 28 minutes behind schedule, although the head winds have backed off a bit."

"You can just about see it through the cloud cover ... that's Stone Mountain almost directly below us, the largest chunk of exposed granite in the world ... looks like a big sandbank."

"Atlanta airport off to the right there, all those planes stacked up, waiting to land. Did you know Atlanta is now the second busiest airport in the world, after Chicago's O'Hare Field? Or is it London's Heathrow? Anyway, it's a busy place ..."

"Mobile and the Mississippi Gulf Coast stretching out below us now. A storm system is passing through New Orleans at the moment so we're going to go for a little ride around Lake Ponchartrain and a bit of the bayou country. On the banks of some of those winding little rivers you might catch sight of some of the fine old plantation homes and those live oaks draped with Spanish moss. Great fishing down there, they say."

"We're number nine in the landing order now, and I apologize for the delay in landing in New Orleans. Those flaming towers off to the left of the aircraft are offshore oil wells. Fishing is superb under those platforms they tell me, especially right after they dump the garbage ..."

"We're about 40 miles out now, and we've been cleared for landing, so please observe the no smoking sign when it goes up. That's Morgan City down there ... you can see all the shrimp boats they wrote the song about. We hoped you enjoyed flying with us today as much as we enjoyed having you and hope to have the pleasure of seeing you again aboard one of our flights ..."

"Better get off my lap now, Lula Mae, and prepare the cabin doors for arrival at the landing bay (sounds of static, whistling, stewardesses running up aisle, loudspeaker system abruptly cut off) ..."

Peace at last. Golden silence. Only the whine of the three remaining engines, revving up for landing. Then suddenly the intercom music fades in, "Shrimp Boats Are Coming." And somewhere in the back recesses of the mind, among the winding banks of Bayou Dri-martini, a voice from the flight deck is droning on and on ..."

"That's Kitty Hawk beach off to the left there ... you know it was named for a Chapel Hill co-ed named Kitty Hawk who first went topside on those white sands and began the topless craze before the sheriff of Dare County hauled her off in his dune buggy with the star on it ..."

Candidates to conclude their efforts this week

By The Associated Press

Texas politicians put it all together this week as they wrap up their efforts to win election in Saturday's primary elections.

"They'll all be campaigning clear down to the last dollar," remarked one campaign strategist.

There will be airport rallies, handshaking tours in downtown Dallas, helicopter tours of Houston, riding the polls in San Antonio and so-called news conferences anywhere a candidate can find a TV camera or a reporter with a pencil.

Republican Jim Baker, candidate for attorney general, even plans a tennis match with former President Gerald Ford to attract attention to his campaign.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who normally dines on white linen with candlelight, is inviting supporters to a lakeside noon picnic in Austin.

Attorney General John Hill will be carrying around a special rubber stamp with the word "VETO" in 4-inch letters to emphasize that he would not approve an income tax.

Rep. Bob Krueger, candidate for the Democratic nomination to U.S. Senate, expects to be called back to Washington for two of the final crucial days to vote on a budget bill and an emergency farm bill.

Black becomes mayor of New Orleans today

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The first black mayor of New Orleans will be sworn in today, braced to walk a fine line between the great expectations of blacks and the doubts of whites.

Ernest N. Morial has vowed that he will win the respect of voters of every hue with sheer efficiency. "I am going to have to be a hardnosed administrator," he said. "If we can do what we are setting out to do, some people will hate me but most of the people in this city are going to be crazy about me."

Morial is a stocky 48-year-old lawyer known for his gold-rimmed spectacles, sober suits and bright ties. His nickname is "Dutch," which he says his parents gave him, probably because he has "such a hard head" — stubborn.

Though he finds it irritating, Morial knows he is stuck with the complications raised by race and color.

"I have to walk a tight rope," he said. "I have to hire an even mix of blacks, whites and women. Especially women. That's all right. — I am a believer in equal rights."

His own complexion is best described as swarthy, not black or brown — a fact that figures in a new variation on the race issue.

It cropped up after Morial let it be known that among department heads who wouldn't keep their jobs when he took office was Andrew Sanchez, the black director of the Department of Property Management.

"The city's first black mayor has just fired the city's first black department head," said Sanchez — no political friend of Morial.

"Now they're going around saying Morial is only hiring light-skinned blacks, no dark skins," Morial complained a few days later. "Hell, I'm not going around looking at white skin, light skin or black skin, I am trying to find out what's inside."

Morial owns a series of political "firsts" in Louisiana: the first black to graduate from Louisiana State University Law School, first black elected to the Legislature since Reconstruction, first to win a state Court of Appeal seat.

Morial, a Democrat, was elected mayor way back on Nov. 12. The long delay before inauguration — almost six months — was tough on his finances.

At the height of the campaign, he had to resign his $47,500-a-year post as a judge because a federal appeals court upheld a state law that a judge must resign before making a political campaign.

There he was — no job, no income, and expenses that included two offspring away at college. He became a consultant to a television station, studied and taught at Harvard under a fellowship and taught a weekend class on politics at the University of New Orleans.

The delay, which came about when the Legislature imposed a new election date, had political impact, too. "... you have a legislative session that is two weeks under way when the new mayor takes office," Morial noted. "It is almost like having two lame duck mayors — a lame duck going and a lame duck coming."

Here generally, subject to frequent change, are the plans of top statewide candidates for the final week: Hill plans to be in Dallas and Canton Sunday, in Dallas and East Texas Monday, in Houston, San Antonio and the Valley Tuesday; in West Texas, Waco and back to Dallas Wednesday; hit the Panhandle, South Plains, El Paso and Midland-Odessa Thursday, and on Friday give a final fling at Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. The Hills will vote in Austin and there will be an election watch party at the Driskill Hotel.

Briscoe has a 14-hour schedule set Monday in Dallas, Tuesday it will be Austin, Houston and Baytown, Wednesday he will be in Houston and the Valley, Thursday, he is back to Dallas, and back to Houston, Thursday it's Houston, Galveston, Texas City and the area before returning to Austin. There will be an auto tour of South Central Texas Friday, ending with a rally in San Antonio and a final hometown rally in Uvalde. The Briscoes vote Saturday in Uvalde and will watch returns at the Uvalde headquarters.

Bill Clements, GOP candidate for governor, will be in Austin, San Antonio, Fort Worth and Amarillo on Monday; in Houston and Dallas on Tuesday; in Houston, San Antonio and Austin on Wednesday; back to Austin, Dallas and Houston on Thursday; in Midland, Amarillo, Lubbock, Fort Worth and Dallas on Friday. The Clements will vote in Dallas and watch returns at the Baker Hotel.

Ray Hutchison, the other GOP candidate for governor, called a news conference in Austin Sunday on the steps of the Capitol before starting off on his final trek across the state. From there he goes to San Antonio. The Hutchisons will vote in Dallas and will meet supporters election night at the Hilton Inn.

Krueger plans an East Texas swing Monday, ending up in Waco and Dallas. Tuesday he will be in Houston, Austin and Dallas. Wednesday and Thursday he expects to be in Washington for his congressional duties. Saturday he will work the polling places in San Antonio, an election day tradition in that city. He will spend part of the night in his hometown of New Braunfels, later going on to the Driskill Hotel in Austin.

Joe Christie, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, will be in Austin, Waco, Fort Worth, Houston and the Golden Triangle Monday. Tuesday he goes on to Houston, Corpus Christi, San Antonio and the Valley. Wednesday he will be in Corpus Christi, Austin, Waco and Dallas. Thursday he's back to the Golden Triangle, Houston, San Antonio and Austin. Friday he finishes his campaign with a trip to San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth. The Christies vote Saturday in El Paso. Then they will spend most of the day in Austin, before going on to Houston to watch election returns.

Baker, who has no opposition in the Republican primary, meets the former president in "A Star-Spangled Night of Tennis" on Tuesday in Houston. Ford and Baker will be joined in a doubles match with tennis professionals John Newcombe and Dick Stockton.

Mark White, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, plans to finish his last week of campaigning in time to fly to Houston to vote Saturday, then return to Austin to wait for returns.

New National Smoker Study:

Merit Taste Matches High Tar Competition!

High tar smokers report low tar MERIT delivers flavor of leading high tar brands.

Can low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco measure up to the flavor delivery of high tar cigarettes?

Read the research results of a new national smoker study conducted with high tar smokers — smokers like yourself — who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Endorse MERIT Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to — or better than — leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

Detailed interviews were also conducted with current MERIT smokers.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands — but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be:

The first major alternative to high tar smoking.

Player's streak stopped; Hinkle wins New Orleans

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Just as he'd predicted, the string ran out for Gary Player.

"With everybody and his grandmother asking Gary if he thought he could win four in a row, it put tremendous pressure on him, I don't know how he played as well as he did," said Lon Hinkle, who parlayed power and precision into a final round 66 to win the New Orleans Open Golf Tournament Sunday and snap Player's victory string at three.

"You can't go on winning every single week," Player said. "Winning three in a row, in this day and age and against this competition, it's something I'll remember all my life."

"I've won six of my last 10 tournaments (three in South Africa). You can't be too greedy."

THE LITTLE man whose spectacular comebacks had netted him the titles in the Masters, Tournament of Champions and Houston Opens, could muster only a scrambling round of par 72 Sunday. He failed in his drive to become only the third man in history to win the PGA Tour titles in a row. Player finished tied for fifth, six shots off the pace.

GILBERT AND Zoeller each shot 67 for a 272 total. Grier Jones was next at 67-274. Then came Player, Bob

"It's not the first time this sort of thing has happened to me," he said. "I won 11 (international) titles in 1974. I enjoyed trying to win four in a row. And if I'd won four, I'd have enjoyed trying to win five."

But it was not to be.

He dropped out of a five-way tie for the lead with a three-putt bogey on the first hole, missed a six-foot birdie putt on the fifth and bogeyed the ninth, his second shot hitting a cypress tree.

From that point on, it was a fight between the long-hitting Hinkle, Gibby Gilbert and Fuzzy Zoeller. Hinkle finally nailed down this first title of his six-year tour career with a magnificent wedge shot that set up the decisive birdie on the 72nd hole.

The ball stopped four to five feet from the flag.

"The sound from the crowd, it sent chills up my back and down my legs and through my arms and up my neck," bubbled the 28-year-old Hinkle. And it set up the putt that allowed him to break a tie with Zoeller and Gilbert and finish with a 271 total, a whopping 17 shots under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

"I thought I had a chance," he said. "I was playing good and I felt if I could keep on playing good I might be able to take it."

He did. Gary didn't.

"You can't keep on winning every single week," Player shrugged.

Murphy, Calvin Peete and rookie D.A. Weibring, tied at 277. Murphy shot a 67 in the hot, humid, hazy weather. Peete had a 68 and Weibring secured his playing rights for another year with a 71.

Homero Blancas, who entered the final round in a tie for the lead with Player, Zoeller, Gilbert and Hinkle, blew to a 78 and a 283 total.

Hinkle, recognized by his fellow pros as the biggest hitter on the tour, collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000. It boosted his earnings for the season to $101,208 — more than he'd won in his previous five seasons — and enabled him to join a starry crew of Jack Nicklaus, Player, Hubert Green, Tom Watson and Hale Irwin as the year's $100,000 winners.

"It was a goal this year, winning a tournament and winning $100,000," said Hinkle, one of the game's more promising players whose game took a decided turn for the better after his marriage last year.

"I thought I had a chance," he said. "I was playing good and I felt if I could keep on playing good I might be able to take it."

He did. Gary didn't.

"You can't keep on winning every single week," Player shrugged.

Solomon, bad food beat Barazzutti

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Corrado Barazzutti had to face a pair of tough opponents in the finals of the $250,000 Alan King Tennis Classic at Caesars Palace, and it was too much for the Italian to overcome.

Barazzutti was forced to quit during the second set of his nationally televised match with Harold Solomon on Sunday because of stomach pains. The score was 6-1, 3-0, retired.

"I'm sorry, I'm sick," Barazzutti told the crowd of about 3,000 on hand for the title match. "I cannot play anymore, I'm sorry."

"I ate bad food last night and was vomiting all night," Barazzutti explained later. "I tried to play but could not, Solomon is a tough player. He hit so many balls back."

Solomon was in complete control of the match after breaking Barazzutti's serve in the opening game when the Italian committed a number of unforced errors, the first indication that he was not feeling well.

Barazzutti held his service in the third game to pull to within 2-1, but Solomon closed out the set by winning four consecutive games. The American held service to start the second set, broke Barazzutti at love in the second game and then held service again before Barazzutti called it quits.

A legend shines in Legends tourney

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It was the stuff legends are made of — that is why Slammin' Sam Snead was playing in a tournament named The Legends of Golf.

But what Snead had to do Sunday on the final 18 holes of this unique $400,000 tournament would have turned a lot of legends into pillars of salt.

Snead, with partner Gardner Dickinson along for the ride over the tricky Onion Creek Golf Club, took on Australians Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle in a one-on-two duel for the $100,000 first prize.

Snead, highly visible because of his side-saddle style, shot a 1-under-par 34 on the frontside himself, then saved par with crucial putts on Nos. 13, 14, and 15. Then, he birdied 16, 17 and 18 and the Aussies wished Snead would go use his side-saddle to ride horses.

For the 54-hole tournament, Snead had 14 of his team's 18 birdies. It was a three-footer on the final hole that doomed Thomson and Nagle belly-up.

"If I miss my (nine-foot) putt at 16 then school is out," said Snead.

"Then I made that putt (an eight-footer) at 17 and they started to stir a little. Then I put the drawers on that wedge at 18 and I knew we had 'em."

Thomson made a 12-foot birdie putt at 16 but Snead covered it up.

"I thought we had it won after I held that putt on 16," said Thomson. "It was a big putt Sam made."

Snead set up his birdie at the 590-yard par-5 No. 18 hole with a driver, a one-iron and a pitch that hit eight feet above the hole and spun back near the cup.

"It sure looked like we had lost it," said Snead after his team had started the day with a three-shot lead that melted away when Nagle holed five birdie putts between the eighth and 13th holes.

"Sometimes it's better to be coming up than to be going down ... you have more charge," said Snead. "Gardner is a great little predator. He kept me pumped up. He kept saying 'come on Sam ... I know you can knock it in.'"

Dickinson volunteered, only so briefly to keep only $1 of his $50,000 share and give the rest to Snead.

It was the biggest payday ever for both the 51-year-old Dickinson and Snead, who has won 84 major golf championships.

Snead and Dickinson were 17-under-par 193 on the par-70 course that plays to a friendly 6,584 yards. They shot a final round 66 to the Aussies' 64. Nagle and Thomson split $65,000 for their second place finish a stroke back.

The tournament, brainchild of Fred Raphael, included 12 twosomes of golfers considered legends.

The prizes were so rich it paid last-place finishers Paul Runyan and Lew Worsham $10,000 each.

"I hope they keep having it," grinned Snead. "I've never putted this well side-saddle. You have to throw your fanny out of gear to use it. All I know is, it helped us when it looked like we were in the bag."

SWC tourney opens May 12

By The Associated Press

Texas A&M, Arkansas, Baylor and Houston will be vying for top honors when the Southwest Conference post-season tournament opens May 12. For the Aggies, however, a tournament crown would be icing on the cake because they are assured of a berth in the NCAA baseball playoffs.

Texas, a participant in the SWC tourney for the past 12 years, lost a bid for another try, finishing fifth in the loop for the season.

Texas A&M captured the regular season crown Saturday. The Razorbacks took the last game of a three-game Friday-Saturday series, 6-5, but the damage was already done. The Aggies won the first two outings, 6-1 Friday and 5-0 Saturday.

Dibbs wins net tourney

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Eddie Dibbs defeated Pat Dupre for the men's single title at the Bank of Oklahoma Colgate Grand Prix Tennis Tournament here Sunday.

Dibbs, of New York City, had to go three sets and came from a 4-1 deficit in the final set to defeat the second year pro from Stanford University 6-7, 6-2, 7-5.

Dibbs, currently ranked fifth on the Colgate Grand Prix tour, picked up $8,500. Dupre won $4,250.

Scorekeeping is a thankless job

By SHIRLEY POVICH Special To The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the certain league press boxes, there are certain inmates engaged in one of the world's oldest professions. They earn $50 a day and take abuse that sometimes could tempt them to ask, "What is a nice person like me doing in a place like this?"

made an impolite gesture toward the press box and yelled, "This goes for all of you (deleted) $40-a-week sportswriters."

In Cleveland's cozy old League Park, where the stands were close to the diamond, Chapman's diatribe amounted to a public address.

Scoring standards differed widely in different cities and still do. Boston was regarded as a city where the home-team players were most notably favored.

All PLAYERS do not know who the official scorer is. Joe Kuhel once took a punch at me after a game in which he was charged with an error on a ground ball.

Houston picks up another running back

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers are rounding out their 1978 team with a little help from Tampa Bay.

Last week, the Oilers obtained a draft pick from the Bucs that will net Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell. Saturday, the Oilers drafted full-back Don Hardeman for Bucs running back Anthony Davis.

and he'll give us a lot more speed," Phillips said.

Hardeman gained 648 yards and scored five touchdowns in his rookie season for the Oilers in 1973. He was one of two first-round draft choices for Houston and started most of the season, but since then has been used primarily on specialty teams and in short-yardage situations.
