Ex-Italian premier Moro's body found

ROME (AP) — The blood-smeared body of former Premier Aldo Moro, shot in the head and his hands and feet chained was found in a parked car in the heart of Rome today, 55 days after he was kidnapped by the Red Brigades

Police said they found five spent cartridges in the car, a red Renault bearing Rome license plates and later determined to have been stolen.

The 61 year-old Moro also had several wounds in the body, police sources said

The body was clad in a blue overcoat, wrapped in a red blanket and dumped on the floor of the Renault's backseat. Firemen who saw it said the face was extremely pale and Moro's 5-foot 11 frame had lost considerable weight.

The discovery ended tragically an ordeal that traumatized Italy and transfixed the attention of the world.

In Washington, the State Depart ment condemned the killing as a "cowardly and contemptible act." The body was found at 1.30 p.m. 8: 30 a.m. EDT — on Via Michelangelo Caetani, a narrow cobblestoned street of 15th and 16th century palaces run ning alongside Communist party headquarters and just a stone's throw from Christian Democrat headquarters. It was just two blocks from the busiest intersection in Rome.

Officers went to the area and discovered the body after police headquarters received an anonymous telephone call saying a bomb had been placed in a car parked on Via Funari, a street adjacent to the 200-yard long

They found nothing on Via Funari but then checked Via Caetani.

The car apparently had been parked on the street for several hours, police said.

The body was loaded into an ambulance and taken away. Police cordoned off the area Crowds of weeping Romans congregated on the tiny

Police cars with sirens whining sped through the city, deserted as usual during the early afternoon

Weicker, Carter counselor clash

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen Lowell Weicker and the Carter administration are locked in a bitter feud over

United States policy toward Israel Weicker, R Conn and presidential counselor Robert Lipshutz squared off Monday night before a stunned audience celebrating Israel's 30th birthday at a Washington hotel

The senator had just finished a wide ranging attack on Carter's Middle East policies when Lipshutz, who was not scheduled to speak, told the audience of 1,000 that Weicker was "preying on the emotions of the Jew ish people

Shortly before Lipshutz' outburst. Weicker made an indirect comparison between administration policies and those of Nazi Germany. He said the United States is now attempting to disengage from its historic alliance with Israel

'We know from history that time again, when national leaders ran into difficulties, they found it convenient to blame their problems on the Jews. Weicker said

"If there is a meaningful distinction between those historical proclivities and the signals which (national security adviser Zbigniew) Brzezinski is sending today, I don't know what it is

"I can tell you that if I were president, and I had a national security adviser who singled out American Jews as an impediment to my policies, I would have his resignation before sundown and his reputation for

Weicker said the administration insisted that Israel accept the "absurd" Arab demand for Israeli withdrawal from all fronts before negotiations begin

"Our relationships with the Arab states carry the unmistakable odor of appeasement, and the arms package is only the latest evidence of it." he added, referring to President Carter's proposed sale of jet fighters to Israel and two Arab countries.

Lipshutz, who received boos and applause, said in his five-minute re-

"Any attempt to prey on the emotions of the Jewish people is a disservice to the United States, to the state of Israel and to the cause of peace.

The exchange overshadowed a later speech by the former chief of staff of the Israel defense forces, Mordechai Gur, who called on the U.S. Congress to reject the administration's proposed arms package for Israel, Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said today he is considering allowing President Carter's proposed crude oil tax to be split apart from the rest of his energy

O'Neill also disclosed he may name a new set of House conferees to meet with Senate negotiators to try to reach a compromise on the energy tax legislation.

It was the first time O'Neill has ever talked about splitting up the five-section energy measure.

The speaker and administration of ficials had hoped to keep the entire package intact, fearing that splitting it up - as the Senate has done might doom the unpopular tax in the

O'Neill indicated that it may now be time for House-Senate energy conferees to begin sending parts of the five-section energy legislation they have already agreed upon to the Senate, where the measures must be acted on first

Conferees have agreed on thre parts, dealing with energy conservation, industrial coal conversion and electric utility rates. The fourth section, natural gas pricing, is now being considered. "I am also seriously considering suggestions that if the four have cleared the Senate and the fifth (the tax part) is not ready, the House should go ahead and enact the first four into law," O'Neill said.

However, O'Neill, reading from a prepared statement, said "my consideration of these suggestions should in no respect be construed as abandonment of 'the crude oil tax.

The tax would make U.S. oil as expensive as imports over a threeyear period, adding about 7 cents a gallon to the retail price of gasoline and other petroleum products.

O'Neill also said that if the conference committee, made up of 25 House members and 17 Senate negotiators, does approve the four parts of the package, he would support naming a new set of conferees to complete work on the tax parts

After 50-year absence, woman earns diploma

After being absent from a classroom more than 50 years, 68-year-old Nellie Brown of Midland has earned her General Equivalency Diploma with the help of Midland College's

Mrs Brown dropped out of school when she was in the eighth grade to get married. After 52 years, she returned to the classroom and completed her high school education. Now, she is helping others who are trying to earn their GEDs.

Mrs. Brown heard about the GED classes through radio; television and newspaper announcements, but it took the encouragement of another 68-year old, William Wilkerson, to get her started. He furnished transportation, and they enrolled in classes which met at night twice a week.

Nellie came to her first class in January this year and in just three months was ready to take the five tests in English, science, social studies, literature and math. She passed all the tests in one week," Wanda Phillips, director of the basic education program, said

'The marvelous thing about Mrs. Brown is that she has continued to come to the GED classes to help others. Right now, she is tutoring a student who is just beginning to learn the alphabet and is unable to read, Mrs. Phillips said

Mrs Brown is one of about 30 students who attended GED classes which began in September and have earned their diplomas. More than 50 others have passed one or more parts

I never did work outside my home I just took care of my children and my husband, along with some babysit ting. I still do some babysitting at my house." Mrs. Brown said. A resident of Midland five years, she has raised 14 children and has 39 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren. She has been a widow seven years at the college this summer to study more history and English She also plans to continue as a volunteer tutor for a GED class next fall.

More than 400 persons in the Midland area have been enrolled in GED The courses, taught by certified teachers, are free and are offered at

MCAA extends aid deadline

The Midland Community Action Agency extended to May 20 the deadline for household heads to apply for relief through the agency's Emergen cy Energy Application Program, MCAA executive director Alex Morris said of action the MCAA board took Monday night

The program is "to help anyone who falls within 125 percent of the poverty guidelines" and who needs financial assistance in paying energy bills accumulated during the winter. she said

The program also helps those who may have paid the gas or electricity bills but in doing so fell behind in payments in other areas, such as rent or food, she said. Those needing assistance may call the Eastside Center at 682-2840, the Southeast Center at 682-4431, the Southside Center at 682-8679, or the MCAA central office at 682:2822.OMs. Morris said.

Rev. Carcich pleads guilty

Rev Guido John Carcich, former fund-raising chief of the Pallottine Fathers, pleaded guilty today to a single count of misappropriating funds donated to the Roman Catholic order for missionary work.

After accepting the plea, Criminal Court Judge David Ross placed the 59 year-old priest on 18 months probawith the stipulation that he spend on a full-time basis ministerhe needs of prisoners" in the fand penal system. "I am persuaded no useful purpose would be served by incarceration, the judge told Carcich, who refused to comment following the brief hearing. State prosecutor Roert C. Ozer said the count to which Carcich pleaded guilty had been slightly amended from the original charge. One change was the dropping of the word "embezzle" from the original. Prosecutors said the reason for the change would be explained at a press conference later today.

They said only that Carcich confessed to misappropriating "a portion" of $2.2 million donated to the Pallottines betweem Jan. 1, 1970, and

The commissioners discussed the problem during an informal Monday morning session. Commissioner Durward Wright said a HUD official told the Commissioners Court earlier this year that an advertising campaign to see if there are landlords willing to participate would "go a long way" toward convincing HUD that the county was making a bona fide effort to meet its rental subsidy obligation. "It's our feeling that the response (to the advertising campaign) would be minimal because of the restrictions," Wright said.

Also at the Monday morning session, the commissioners met with architects to discuss plans for expansion of the Midland County Library Commissioners told the architects that $750,000 to $1 million will be available for the project. Cost estimates given by architects ranged from $35 to $60 per square foot. In the regular afternoon session, the court approved bids for tubes and tires for the county through July. Low bidder Goodrich Tires received the contract for $18,277. At the end of July, the county is scheduled to begin purchasing tires and tubes under state bidding. The commissioners also heard a presentation from Southwestern Life Insurance Co. about life insurance for county employees. With an average age among county employees of 50 years, the representatives told the commissioners, cost of providing $10. 000 term life insurance to each county employee would total $15,068 the first The commissioners said they would consider the possibility of providing life insurance during a budget study period scheduled to begin next week. The court approved a request from District Attorney Vern Martin to provide his office with temporary secretarial help in order to assist Martin's staff in getting ready for the Speedy Trial Act, which goes into effect in Like so many others, Ms. Seay had come by to visit Grimes and to see what, if anything, she could do for a man who had befriended so many others. She came by as a friend.

"I always enjoy doing something for somebody who couldn't do it themselves." And that statement lent itself to this Grimes proverb: "Most people never try; they don't realize their potential. You only get better by trying, working.

Grimes, in words and in deeds, has done much for his fellows. He puts it this way: "If you can't be an asset, you have to be a damn detriment, and "You can pour anything from the mouth, but actions are louder."

Among Grimes' many deeds was the forging of wrought iron into things useful and decorative. (A skilled craftsman, Grimes was a machinist on submarines in the U.S. Navy during World War II and into the early 1950s.) "I do it for pleasure more than anything else," he said.

Increasingly, Bob Grimes is impressed with the inescapability of death.

"I don't know of any place where I can run and hide. You've just got to make peace with your Maker You've got to pay your debt," he said. "I've made my peace with God."

Though Grimes does have his "business in order" in preparing for death, "I don't think you're every really ready." Through it all, his humor survived with him: "This worrying," he said, "makes you skinny, and I'm skinny enough, anyway.' He knows death is inescapable.

New Costa Rican president bars Vesco's return

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) -President Rodrigo Carazo fulfilled a major campaign promise following his inauguration Monday and barred fugitive American financier Robert Vesco from returning to Costa Rica.

Vesco, wanted in the United States on charges of embezzling $224 million. left Costa Rica April 30 for a business trip around the Caribbean, his attorney said at the time. He is believed to be on the island of Grenada, off Vene-

Carazo made an election pledge to kick Vesco out and fulfilled it at a session of his Government Council of nine cabinet ministers immediately after he was sworn in as Costa Rica's 36th president

Wherever he is, let it be known that he cannot come back to Costa Rica," Presidency Minister Jose Rafael Cordero said in announcing the decision to reporters.

Although Vesco has a citizenship application pending before one Costa Rican tribunal and the government is appealing a court ruling in his favor in another case, the legal basis for the ban was not announced. But officials said it cannot be appealed. A presidential spokesman said all ports of entry have received instructions to refuse Vesco re-entry if he attempts

A local newspaper said Vesco's wife and the couple's three youngest chil-dren left the family's $500,000 home on the outskirts of San Jose three weeks ago and went to New Jersey, their former home.

Government sources would not say what might be done about Vesco's holdings in Costa Rica, estimated at $60 million. He is estimated to have another $50 million invested in the Bahamas.

The 43-year-old financier is accused in the United States of looting Investors Overseas Services, Bernard Cornfeld's bankrupt mutual fund which Vesco took over, and of illegally contributing $200,000 to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. The Internal Revenue Service is also seeking $1.1 million in taxes it says he

Vesco moved to Costa Rica in 1972, and successive U.S. requests for extradition were blocked by President Jose Figueres, to whom he loaned $2.15 million, and his successor, Daniel Oduber, to whose campaign Vesco contributed heavily. Figueres and Oduber were leaders of the National Liberation Party, which Carazo defeated in an upset Feb. 5. Vesco made a last-ditch effort to gain Costa Rican citizenship to avoid extradition, and it looked as if he might succeed when a fraud suit against him was dismissed last month on grounds of insufficient evidence.

In a major surprise announced to the heavily guarded 260-seat courtroom, Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola disclosed that Berkowitz has claimed responsibility for 2,000 fires in a four-year period under the alias of "The Phantom of the Bronx."

It was revealed that a diary detailing some 1,411 of the fires was among the materials seized when police arrested Berkowitz at his Yenkers apartment last August.

Authorities in the Bronx, where the overwhelming majority of the diary notations were from, promised a full investigation into whether Berkowitz was an arsonist or simply a fire buff.

As a result of the guilty pleas to the murder charges, state Supreme Court Justice Joseph Corso, one of three judges to accept the pleas, released the transcript of a closed competency hearing held in Brooklyn last month.

At that hearing court-appointed psychiatrist Daniel Schwartz outlined 19 reasons why Berkowitz felt he had to plead guilty.

The government appealed the verdict, however, and allowed Vesco to leave the country on a 75-day travel permit after he posted $34,000 bond. First-round voting

It is diffcult to pick or win 'em all in most any election, particularly in primary balloting but, anyway, the first-round voting is concluded and the field of candidates has been narrowed.

There are, however, a few most important contests to be settled in the primary process. The runoff elections in those races not completely settled are scheduled June 3.

Two of the races are of top interest and importance to Midland County voters.

Midland's George W. Bush led the field in Republican voting in the 19th Congressional District race, but is matched against Jim Reese of Odessa in the upcoming runoff election.

This has all the makings of one of the most hotly-contested races to be settled on June 3. The winner will face State Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock in the November general election. Hance defeated Morris Sheats, also of Lubbock, in Saturday's Democrat balloting. Another runoff race which will be of top interest here and throughout the oil patch will be the one to fill the unexpired term on the Texas Railroad Commission. Jerry Sadler, veteran Texas politician, led the four-man race Saturday and will face John Poerner, who now is holding the commission post by appointment. in the runoff. Sadler is a former railroad commissioner and land commissioner. Poerner is a former member of the state legislature from Hondo. The winner will face Republican James W. Lacy of Midland in the general election.

Poerner was the big winner in the Midland County voting. receiving 2,015. Sadler garnered 1,199; Jake Johnson 817, and Ray Lemmon 284.

Likewise. Bush received an overwhelming majority of the Midland County votes in the GOP primary for the congressional seat. His total was 4,129. Reese drew 1,614 and Joe Hickox, 450.

Midland County voters, both Republican and Democrat, went to the polls in fairly respectable numbers Saturday. The Democrats polled in excess of 5,000 votes, and the Republicans, more than 6,000.

It was a beautiful day for voting, or most anything else, and all those who took time out to do their duty at the polls are to be commended. It is hoped, however, that the numbers can and will be increased in the June 3 runoff elections.

Meanwhile, congratulations are extended to the winners in Saturday's primaries. At the same time, thanks go to those who didn't make it for offering themselves for elective office. giving the voters a choice. All best wishes to all concerned

MHS Band scores!

E.D. Sneed, president of the Midland High School Band Boosters, is as proud as can be of letter received by Clyde Wilson, MHS Band director. He has every reason to be proud.

The MHS Band made a trip recently to Durango, Colo., for a special appearance and the letter concerned the visit there.

We are delighted that Mr. Sneed has seen fit to share the letter with others, by making it available to The Reporter-Telegram for publication.

The letter, signed by James M. Blomstrom, resident manager of The Strater Hotel of Durango. reads as follows:

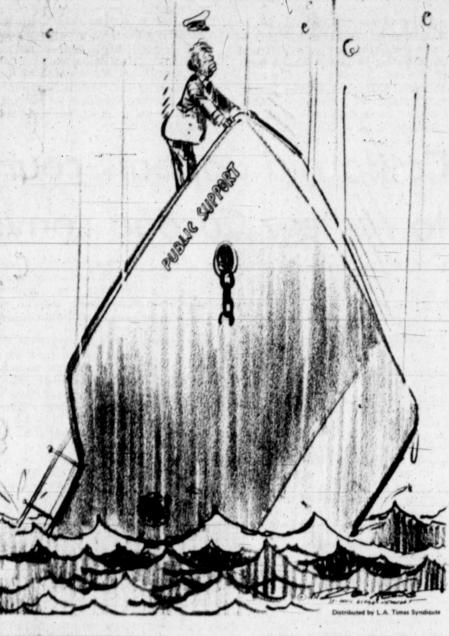

"Enclosed is our check in the amount of $500 as a refund of your entire damage deposit. The bed frame was easily repaired by our maintenance department, and, as anticipated, there was no report from housekeeping of any damaged or missing items.

"On behalf of the entire staff and management of The Strater Hotel, I would again like to thank you for giving us the privilege of hosting your band members and chaperones. Your students were unfailingly courteous, and your chaperones cooperative beyond our expectations.

"The Midland High School Band has set a standard of behavior that we will in the future expect from other groups, whatever their ages and numbers. The band is a credit to the high school, to the especially to its members and nothing. their director."

Mr. Sneed also made it clear that the band performed excellently in the Durango Fine Arts Festival.

Congratulations are due the MHS Band on all counts!

INSIDE REPORT:

Marxist professor's intentions (?)

WASHINGTON - What is in danger of becoming a frivolous public debate over the appointment of a Marxist to head the University of Maryland's department of politics and government has so far ignored this unspoken concern within the academic community: the avowed desire of many political activists to use higher education for indoctrination.

The proposal to name Bertell Ollman, professor at New York University, as department head has generated wrong-headed debate. Politicians who jumped in to oppose Ollman simply for his Marxist philosophy have received a justifiable going-over from defenders of academic freedom in the press and the university. Academic Prince Valiants seem arrayed aginst McCarthyite know-nothings

But neither side approaches the central question: not Ollman's beliefs, but his intentions. His candid writings avow his desire to use the classroom as an instrument for preparing what he calls "the revolution." Whether this is a form of indoctrination that could transform the real function of a university and transcend limits of academic freedom is a concern to academicians who are community of Midland, and most neither McCarthyite nor know-

> To protect academic freedom, that question should be posed not by politicians but by professors. But professors throughout the country troubled by the Ollman nomination, clearly a minority, dare not say a word in today's campus climate. This fact alone suggests that freedom is relative to academia.

While Ollman is repeatedly describ-Marxist scholar," he is widely viewed in his profession as a political activist. Amid the increasingly popular Marxist movement in university life, he is distinct from philosophical Marxists. Rather, he is an outspoken proponent of "political Marxism.

He twice sought election to the council of the American Political Science Assn. as a candidate of the "Caucus for a New Political Science." and finished last out of 16 candidates each time. Whether or not this represents a professional judgment by his colleagues, as some critics contend, the verdict clearly rejects his campaign pledge: "If elected ... I shall use every means at my disposal to promote the study of Marxism and Marxist approaches to politics throughout the profession.'

Ollman's intentions become explicit "On Teaching Marxism and

2. The matter of reducing "earned income disregard," a provision that allows a welfare recipient who takes a job to "disregard" a certain amount of his pay before monthly dependent children payments are reduced. In New York, it has been possible for a welfare recipient to earn close to $29,000 a year and still receive child aid welfare payments, plus all the other welfare fringe benefits medical, hospital and other care.

Regarding the need for two-party checks, Moynihan says, "One of the major causes of urban decay is housing abandonment, and one cause of this is the difficulty of those owning the buildings to collect rent from welfare recipients living in those buildings. ... The result of this has been a decline in maintenance and repairs. Needed capital improvements are forestalled and properties deteriorate.

'It is not speculative to suggest that buildings are abandoned because recipients failed to pay the rent and that as a result (when buildings are abandoned) real estate taxes are forever lost to the city.'

The House tried to do something about this and the two-party check system was adopted. However, the bill was overwhelmingly defeated in the Senate.

'What happened?'' Moynihan asked himself. "What happened," he says, "was that a professional welfare constituency began to spread the word that the Senate was about to do something illegal. Federally financed poverty attorneys, some members of the public welfare establishment and an assortment of HEW (Health, Education and Welfare Department) officials, began scurrying about whispering to senators that the concept of two-party checks contained the possibility of coercion of welfare recipients. ... For all the lobbyists seemed to care, an entire city could burn down or be abandoned so long as the Congress did not take a single step to revise the welfare system in directions that clashed with their sense of values."

The same frustrations met those who sought to reform the wasteful 'earned income disregard' system.

The system might have been one of good intentions at the start - to provide a work incentive that it is financially worth the while of welfare recipients to take jobs.

However, as Moynihan points out, when the earned income disregard is sizable, we can find ourselves in situations where persons with absurdly high earnings can still receive welfare benefits. It is possible though admittedly not likely - for a person to have a total annual income touching $29,000 before the last dollar of AFDC (aid to families with dependent children) payment disappears. And, of course, so long as there is even a single dollar of AFDC being paid, that person and his family retain full eligiblity for Medicaid.

Plainly, this is not the best use of limited resources. ... Also, we found little evidence that even the present earned income disregard creates much in the way of work incentive for AFDC recipients.

It was only by one vote, 43 to 42 that the Senate finally agreed to any kind of control over earned income offset reductions

This is a sad commentary on welfare abuses - and on how lobbyists can influence the U.S. Senate. Moynihan may put it in true focus when he says, "We must face the dismaying possibility that the professional constituency that purports to look after the interests of welfare recipients is more determined and more effective than any (other lobbies) that look after the interests of the farmers and factory workers and others whose taxes pay for public welfare programs."

Big Brother and TV industry's 'junk food' battle

WASHINGTON - The TV industry is so swollen with profit, arrogant with power and pandering to appetite that it is difficult to take the industry's part in the battle over whether the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) should try to ban TV ads designed to further addict children to sugar treats and junk foods.

The TV moguls hide behind thicknesses of lawyers and the First Amendment on this score, but they are no worse than their allies, the food industry hucksters.

Still, I must agree with Voltaire: I hate your damned junk food and the despicable way you unload it on kids -thus encouraging parents to become helpless wimps-but I will defend to the death your right to peddle

The FTC, trying to enlarge its role as the federal nag, wants to:

1-Ban as deceptive or unfair all TV ads addressed to chilren under age 8. 2-Ban as deceptive or unfair TV ads of highly sugared or cavity-producing snack food to children under 12 who presumably can't understand long-term health risks. 3—Require that TV ads for children under 12 for sugared products be balanced by nutritional and health messages paid for by ad-

I stand in the trenches with dooders like Bob Choate's Council on Children and the Media and the magazine Nutrition Action who deplore and denounce the hyped, Pied-Piper TV ads for such goodies as Hershey's Instant and Nestle's Quick, Bubble Yum Bubble Gum, Sugar Baby, Sugar Pops, Super Sugar Crisps, Cocoa Puffs and Corny Snaps, Cap 'n Crunch, Wrapples, Spaghetti O's, Burger King, McDonalds, Kool Aid ... oh, what's the use?

Nick Thimmesch

On Saturday morning, it is four hours of glop - Superfriends melding with Fruit Cremes melding with Bugs Bunny melding with Mr. Goodbar and Batman and Tarzan and Muhammad Ali and Magic Cow.

Nearly all the aforementioned edibles are of dubious nutritional value for kids or adults, are overpriced and are vastly overconsumed. If Americans live in a nation with the cheapest market basket in the industrialized world, they are also the worst eaters, due in no small way to our restlessness, our demand for instant gratification and TV commercials.

But for the federal government to tell the TV industry it can't advertise this stuff is too heavy-handed and probably unconstitutional. Allow the feds to do this, and next it will be clothing, toys and maybe comic books. The government's occasional duty to protect children by law should not be frittered away on junk food.

It is parents who should fight junk food and keep it out of their children's mouths. The FTC proposals are just another move by government, on all levels, to secularize parenthood and give parents an alibi to become even plains, the average child (age 2-11) sees 20,000 TV commercials a year and is seduced by frolicking elves, rabbits and wizards into whining and screaming for sugar-laden food. where are the parents? If Americans don't care that hucksters dominate our lives, our stomachs, the health of our teeth and jawbones, our children and even our political viewpoints (via Norman Lear and certain "news" programming), then, truly, Big Brother will take over.

Instead of the FTC becoming the nag, aren't there enough angry citizens to harangue with these questions: Why not turn off the tube when such kiddie programs come on? Why not say no at the supermarket?

Now the FTC and the do-gooders argue that restrictions on ads beamed at children are compatible with Supreme Court precedents, that children deserve special legal protection, and that TV advertising usurps the role of parents by "using sophisticated techniques to turn children into successful naggers.'

And Bob Choate claims that his personal appeal to the National Assn. of Broadcasters for self-regulation of the infamous junk food ads was rejected after being pondered by the moguls for six months. He also de-clares that the food industry - the sugar pushers - has collected a fat war chest to conduct a lobbying and public relations campaign against the FTC effort to ban the advertising in

Already there have been angry words and clever jockeying in Congress over the FTC proposal. Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr. (R-Conn.) told Michael Pertschuk, FTC chairman, that "preoccupation with what children eat involving extensive resources and staff is waste of taxpayers' money." Pertschuk snapped, "They'll have to break my arm to get me to stop this investigation. Weicker hinted he would try to cut FTC's appropriations, and Pertschuk

The FTC could put on quite a show here because funds are available to qualified persons and groups to take part in the hearings scheduled for next fall. There could be quite a pileup of candy wrappers, bubble gum and cereal boxes if the arguing gets hot and heavy.

But last week, a House appropriations subcommittee voted 5-4 to prohibit the FTC from spending money on any effort affecting food products already rated safe by yet another federal agency — the Food and Drug Administration. So FTC might be stymied for the moment.

Oh why, oh why can't parents be parents, and just turn off the TV set and not allow their children to eat this stuff? Why do we wind up with all the alphabet agencies swimming around in the alphabet soup?

reviewing Erma Bombeck's latest book, I think I have to make one thing perectly clear: I know the author personally. We even had a little thing going between us at a Holiday Inn on the outskirts of Gary, Ind., several years ago when we were both reading 'Passages" and having our midlife crises at the same time.

Every time I mention this to people they always ask, "What is Erma Bombeck really like?" Well, despite what you see on ABC television, which distorts the human face and figure, Erma is a tall, long-legged, beautiful natural blonde with Ivory soap skin, ruby red pouting lips, Maidenform body, a waist that could easily belong to Alicia Markova and hands that

Humor writing has always been a male-dominated industry. Until recently, women were discouraged from going into it because it was believed that the work was too dangerous and they couldn't stand the physical rigors of turning out three columns a week. There was also the problem of their getting pregnant and having to be funny while they were upchucking in the bathroom. Colette Hessler: she teaches male survival

By LUCRETIA STEIGER Copley News Service

Surviving as a man today, according to Colette Michelle Hessler who teaches a course on "Masculine Survival," definitely is more difficult than it was a few years ago.

'Men are confused today on how to treat women with the new feminist thing," she says. "There are a lot of shy men out there. And there are a lot of men who are afraid of the 'do-yourown-thing' psychology. They don't know how to treat women today.'

What she does in her nine-week course, said Hessler, at an adult school in San Diego, Calif., is to begin with a self-evaluation session, followed by classes on wardrobe and contemporary social manners.

Hessler, a petite blonde and a native of Bordeaux, France, believes, that men should take the lead in contemporary social situations, but that women will give them "the subconscious signs' they need to set the lead.

"If she's going in a door first, for instance, and seems to be about to open the door, let her open it." Hessler advised. "And if she insists on paying half when you go out to dinner, well, then, let her pay it."

The Frenchwoman was attending the University of Madrid when she met the American who became her first husband and brought her to this country. Now married to a retired naval officer who is working for his doctorate in psychology, she believes that "any man should let the woman in his life be free to follow her own interests.

In her classes, she advises men who are not traditionally handsome to 'really work on their personalities. The physical thing is most important at first, but then the personality takes over." She also advises the man "to give compliments to a woman; ther hair or eyes, whatever, you can be sincere about." Among the other ideas offered to the men at her classes:

'Use masses of candles, especially for late evening after you've been to a restaurant or a disco, and you're at your apartment for a nightcap, because maybe her makeup isn't perfect by then and she'll look better.

"Always have two glasses and a bottle of white Chablis or rose wine or sparkling champagne chilling in your refrigerator.

'Let the music help set the mood. Maybe soothing music, Sinatra or Streisand, because rock music is just not that relaxing.

"Give her a flower or trinket for no reason, just to show that you're thinking of her. Call her at the office.

'When you come in at night, don't say 'What's in the mail?' but talk to her and ask her how she is. If she's cooking dinner, stay there and share the events of the day with her, but don't bother her.

The beginning of an 'Old Girl' network?

Copley News Service

It was an evening I won't easily forget. The food was good. The mood was mellow and the wine flowed, but not too freely. It was, after all, a Monday night, and most of the women worked the next day.

At first the guests sat in a large circle, and talked as a group, telling stories, listening, and laughing, After dinner smaller clusters spontaneously formed, and lively, animated talk about business, art, movies and even politics and religion followed.

The idea struggled out of its cocoon after a business luncheon, where a man, in total sincerity, told me it was impossible for women to be friends with one another because "there's far too much jealousy and competition between females." No telling what sort of women he'd been trafficking with to reach that conclusion, but his words left me frustrated and angry. It's not that I deny feeling competitive or even jealous of other women. Obviously I have. We work together, live near one another, play Monopoly and tennis together. But the competition had never been the killing kind; the jealousy has been more flattering than malignant.

Perhaps it was to prove the man wrong, or to find out if he were right. But I decided then, to give the party. It would be a chance to make those introductions I'd so often promised to make yet seldom got around to. It would be an opportunity to say, "I often think of you." to friends I seldom saw. On that evening there was no formal discussion of women's rights, issues or status. Yet as far-ranging as the talk was, some points emerged. The guests, all women engaged in full, evolving lives, were more interested in living liberated existences than they were in the politics of liberation. They were full of hope and optimism, not only for themselves but for all women. Yet they felt that only baby steps had been taken toward equality in work life.

Most of these women had taken giant steps in their personal and family lives. For some, that had meant the end of marriage, for others, it had resulted in happier marriage. Regardless, none of the women looked back with regrets.

Later, I learned that some guests got along better than others. But jealousy, competition and pettiness. were not the issues. Human differences were. Not all people are expected to get along equally well.

Even the next morning, as I stumbled around in a sea of unwashed dishes, plans for my next women's dinner began to form. Some of the same women would be invited, and some new ones asked. Next time each guest will be encouraged to bring an interesting friend. Then I'd meet some new people in my own home. The experience made me hope, that without the excuse of selling plastic dishes or jewelry, women everywhere CALENDAR will begin informally meeting together. Much of the changes in our lives, whether we've chosen them or not, involved more internal struggle than external. Any closeness, encouragement, and advice we can inquiry was justified. DEAR ABBY: There is an older woman in our town who is a very strange character. She lives alone on some sort of pension. This weirdo likes to get all dressed up and go where people are.

Well, she must think her church membership entitles her to attend all the social functions that take place in the social hall of her church, because she never misses one. The fact that she's not invited doesn't seem to bother her.

She attends all the teas and receptions, mingles with the guests, helps herself to all the refreshments, and has a good time.

Isn't it the minister's place to tell her she should stay away? He sees her at all the gatherings and surely knows she hasn't been invited .- SMALL

DEAR SMALL TOWN: If anyone is to discourage an uninvited guest, it should be the hostess. The poor woman is probably lonely. And if she causes no harm and enjoys herself, what's another glass of punch and a few cookies amid the socializing?

Car invented by 'sleeper'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although the railway sleeper car is still known as a Pullman, it was actually originated by another "sleeper" in the field

Theodore T. Woodruff, of Watertown, N.Y., was granted patents for a special railway seat and couch in 1856. The next year - two years before George Pullman - Woodruff built a sleeping car with backing from friends, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc. (IPO), a nonprofit group dedicated to strengthening the patent system to encourage innovation and creativity.

At first, the railroads were not interested, says IPO. Then, the New York Central allowed him to try his car on the New York-Buffalo night express, charging 50 cents for each of the 12 sleeping sections. With orders from the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1858, Woodruff began his operation in Philadelphia. He obtained additional patents, but sold his interest in the business in 1862.

Tugboat captain hero in crash of airliner

By KENDAL WEAVER

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) - A tugboat captain said he was off course and virtually lost when he saw an airliner glide with thunderous hiss into the foggy bay.

His tug became a miraculous liferaft for survivors.

Glenn McDonald, 41, a cool, independent mariner, said it was only by chance that his tug, "Little Mac, was near enough to the downed National Airlines 727 jet so he could see it in the fog and reach the panic-stricken passengers.

'We were where the Lord put-us," said McDonald, who along with his mate, Bill Kenney, a husky 28-yearold, pulled all 55 survivors onto their construction barge in Escambia Bay. Three passsengers died.

"People were screaming, 'Help me! Save me!' when we came over. About half a dozen were atop the fuselage scaambling, crawling, sliding. The others were in the water,"

He said most apparently had no. time to prepare for the splashdown. because they didn't have their lifejackets on, they were clutching them around their necks.'

'There would be three people over here, 10 over there. I had to tell Bill to leave the three and get the 10. I had to glide the barge between people drifing in the bay and I worried that some had drifted away and would be missed when we came back around,'

While McDonald steered, Kenney threw ropes to the survivors, going into the water several times to help lift out victims traumatized by the

When all the survivors had been transferred to rescue boats, McDonald and Kenney moved on down the bay. They said they went straight home - "Only because the bars were closed," said McDonald with a laugh - and after two hours of sleep were up again heading to the construction

Court orders Little return

Miss Little, 24, became nationally known in 1975 when she was acquitted on charges she killed a North Carolina jailer who she said had attacked her Court of Appeals exhausts Miss Little's chances in New York courts. Her only remaining avenues of appeal would now be in federal courts or North Carolina courts.

The unaninomous, unsigned opinion said that Miss Little should press her case in the North Carolina courts, which have jurisdiction over that state's prison officials.

Miss Little's attorney, William Kunstler, had been reluctant to go to court in the South. He claimed to have evidence of a conspiracy to murder Miss Little if she were returned to prison in North Carolina.

'You're saying, 'Let her go down and be murdered while you're raising the issue down there," he had argued before the Court of Appeals last week.

Immunization effort asked

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - The secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Joseph A. Califano Jr. called today for a global effort to immunize all children against preventable diseases by 1990.

"We can, and we must, build a healthier world for all our children," Califano said in an address to the World Health Assembly sponsored by the World Health Organization.

"In the developing world, despite the fact that effective vaccines exist, less than 10 percent of children receive immunization against preventable diseases," he said

"Five million die each year as a result," he said. "Millions more are disabled by brain damage, paralysis, stunted growth, deafness and blindness.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has begun a campaign in the United States to raise from 65 percent to 90 percent the immunization rate against seven preventable childhood diseases.

Califano said the United States will add $200,000 to its support of WHO's immunization program. In addition, the Agency for International Development is exploring with WHO the possibility of undertaking a multiyear immunization program for the African region," he said. 'We must all join together to achieve this overriding objective: to immunize the children of the world by 1990. There could be no greater gift to the next

Committee seeks destruction of evidence probe

WASHINGTON (AP) - The ranking members of the Senate Banking Committee want the Justice Department to probe the destruction of evidence linking employees of a Textron Inc. subsidiary to a $300,000 kickback paid to sell helicopters to Ghana.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., committee chairman, and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., the ranking Republican member, said the committee wants to know if the destruction of an internal Bell Helicopter memo was intended to frustrate the committee's investigation of the qualifications of then-Textron chairman G. William Miller to head the Federal Reserve Board.

Proxmire was the only committee member to vote against the Miller confirmation.

Miller, who has since been confirmed, had no comment. Joseph Coyne, a Federal Reserve spokesman, said Miller knew nothing of the destruction of

Information about the memo was disclosed voluntarily by Textron in a submission to the Securities and Exchange Commission

Parts of the story of the 1971 sale of two helicopters by Bell to Ghana were part of the testimony at Miller's confirmation hearings early this year. Some senators said then they suspected an improper payment had been made

The Textron submission to the SEC said a high official of the Ghanaian armed forces had solicited a $300,000 payment in exchange for the sale.

It said that after some complications, Bell's African agent, Tropical Aircraft Services (Nigeria) Ltd. had given the official $297,000, including $25,000 in Miller was first asked about the sale of two helicopters to Ghana when he appeared before the committee on Jan. 24. He said he had no knowledge of the sale. At the request of the committee staff and the SEC, Textron began a search of its files for background docu-"As a result, it was discovered by Textron on May 2, 1978, that on Jan. 25, 1978, a Bell employee had removed the memorandum from the Bell files and destroyed it," Textron told the SEC Monday. Proxmire and Brooke both called on the Justice Department to determine whether any criminal violations are involved in the destruction of the memo. The department had no immediate response

Texan bound for Europe on rowboat this summer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Someone once asked the famed New Zealand mountaineer, Sir Edmund Hillary, why a man climbed a mountain. Hillary's simple reply "Because it's there" is best understood by dreamers like Steve Kurachi In early June or July, Kurachi plans to leave St. John's, Newfoundland in a 15-foot rowboat for Europe more than 2,- 000 miles away. "It's a matter of pride," he said. "When I was 16, I made a statement that I wanted to row across the Atlantic. If you say something like that and don't do it, you wind up just thinking and wondering about it all the rest of your life."

Kurachi, now 27, has grown accustomed to the snickers and wild-eyed looks when people learn of his plans. The fact that, before last year, he had never been on the open sea did not lend itself to his credibility.

However, the laughing stopped in April of last year when the young Mormon left Wilmington, Del. in a 16-foot boat. For 48 days, Kurachi battled seven storms, two bouts with ptomaine poisoning and contaminated water before radioing for help.

Carter claims his budgeting scheme worked

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Since budget reform was one of President Carter's keynote campaign promises, it is not surprising that the White House has declared the debut year of zero-base budgeting to be a suc-

But don't look for numbers to prove it. There aren't any, although the administration says the benefits will be more visible in the future.

So far, according to the Office of Management and Budget, the zerobase system has produced subtle but nonethe less real improvements in the management of the federal government.

In essence, the report says that Carter's $500 billion federal budget would have been higher if he had not ordered government officials to start from scratch in justifying spending requests, instead of building their cases on prior appropria-

It does not say how much higher. "Although it would be desirable to point to a single figure that represents the total ZBB savings, it is not possible to do so," the administration appraisal

For one thing, it says, new policies and new people, as well as the new system, accounted for budget decisions that saved money. For another, the administration reports that some spending proposals never got to budget draftsmen because the new system caught them at lower levels of the bureaucra-

The report also claims improvements in management and efficiency that can't be put into dollar terms, although it also acknowledges some bureaucratic difficulties in coping with the change, and an increase

The zero base system is built around program assessments called decision packages, which then are assigned priorities in spending proposals. There were about 25, 000 of them in the preparation of Carter's bud-get, and about 10,000 of them worked their way last stop in the process. The suspicion persists that some bureaucrats filled out the new forms guided by the old rules and simply recommend ed a little more money than they got the year before.

Others played a familiar game: since they had to recommend cuts, they proposed changes they knew would not be made. Or, as the Office of Management and Budget put it in bureaucratic jargon: "the minimum levels were arbitrarily developed below realistic levels.

For all that, the White House says the new system is good and is going to get better next year.

Carter said long ago that he wouldn't claim the new budgeting system would create instant miracles in the federal government.

It hasn't, and the White House report seems to strain a bit to cite benefits in the first year of zero-base budgeting.

Permian's Hix captures 5-4A batting crown

Odessa Permian third baseman Gary Hix has won the District 5-4A batting crown for 1978.

Hix edged out Robert E. Lee centerfielder Pat Moore for the title on the final day of the league season when the Rebels downed the Midland Bulldogs, 7-4, to win the championship and a state playoff berth with Wichita Falls.

Hix winds up hitting .512 while Moore finished with a .451 average in helping lead the Rebs to the title.

Richard Josefy of Lee finished third with a .417 average although he only went to bat 24 times compared to Hix' 41 and Moore's 51 trips to the plate in 14 loop games.

Byron Roberts of Abilene wound up hitting at a .415 clip while Midland's Ricky Goode and Mike Mearse of Cooper, both hit .405.

HIX IS THE ninth Panther player to win the batting crown since 1959. Roger Reid won it in 1960 with a .444 average followed by Gene Ross in 1961 with a .459 average.

Then came Greg Slape in 1964 with a robust .455 average while Permian's Charle sLacy won in 1966 with a .447 mean when the Panthers beat Arlington Heights for third place in the state tournament.

Larry Frymire won the crown in 1969 with a .458 average while the following year, Bobby Clark won it with a .454. Keith Dwinell won the title in 1972 followed by Mark Chelette in 1974 with .456.

Bobby Stevens of Lee had the highest average -- .553 in 1975, the last time the Rebels were in the state playoffs.

Lee's Sam Flourney won in it 1962 and teammate Bucky Kimble, as a sophomore the following year, won with a .524 average. Then Rusty Laughlin of Lee won in 1976 with a .478

While Hix wins the crown this time around, outfielder Terry Austin of Abilene led the league in runs-battedin with 15 followed by Lee's Craig Van Horn and Mann with 14 RBIs each.

MOORE AND HIX both had seven doubles each to lead that department while Mann slugged five homers for tops in the league. Josefy, Todd Clements and Don Rasure of the Rebels had three triples each and Moore, batting in the leadoff slot, scored the most runs --- 18.

Moore also led in hits with 23 and times at bat with 51. The gifted senior played well on defense and has a good

Goode finished strongly, going 10-for-14 in the final four games for the Bulldogs who only lost two district games at home, but had difficulties on

Doug Schmidt finished with a .400 average for the Rebs while teammates Van Horn, Terry Willis, Rasure, Clements, Steve Pitts and Calhoun, all hit over 313 in leading the Tall city team to the title.

Gustavson paces Cub win

BY TED BATTLES

Midland's Cubs rode a couple of strong throwing arms to their seventh win in a row, handing Amarillo's tarnished Gold Sox their 12th straight Texas League defeat at Cubs Stadium Monday night

One of the throwing arms belonged to Lee Smith, who pitched a five-hitter with relief help from lefty Bob Clark for the final two outs, to earn his third victory of the season.

The other belonged to catcher Duane Gustavson, who pounded out three base hits, to snap out of a prolonged batting slump and cele-brated by throwing out three wouldbe base thieves.

The Cubs broke open a 3-2 pitching duel between Smith and Amarillo southpaw Gary Pickert with a fourrun eighth, which looked like an unnecessary flourish at the time, but "It was my turn to get a couple of hits tonight," he said philosophically. "He made some good throws, Manager Jim Saul praised. "He really threw out four runners. One time the tagger lost the ball and he almost picked a man off third base.'

Dibbs seeking tennis crown

DALLAS (AP) - Eddie Dibbs says he'll be doing everything he can to ignore his first-round opponent in the World Championship of Tennis Finals—something he failed to do last year.

His opponent is volatile Ilie Nastase, who just happens to have been Dibbs' first-round opponent last year. They got into a shouting, shoving match before Dibbs won in four sets. 'We almost came to blows last year."

Dibbs admitted Monday. Nastase and Dibbs haven't faced each other since, but both qualified again for this year's WCT Finals, which opens tonight. The luck of the draw pitted them against each other Thursday night.

"I'm ready for anything with that guy," said Dibbs. "He does crazy stuff. You just try to ignore him."

Nastase's antics have caused headaches for tournament officials worldwide. The Romanian drew the wrath of WCT officials for his behavior in Hou8ston's River Oaks tournament last month.

"He can really tick you off some-times," said Dibbs. "I really ticked off last time. I guess he does it in all of his matches. He takes it overboard. Actually he's not a bad guy off the court. We're friends and everything, but when he gets on the court it's a different story."

Nastase said he didn't think Thursday's rematch would produce another altercation. Asked about last year's confrontation, he shrugged and said, "That's normal for me. It's nothing

The tournament gets under way tonight with 1976 champion Bjorn Borg meeting Dick Stockton. Raul Ramirez of Mexico takes on Vitas Gerulaitis on Wednesday night, while Italy's Corrado Barazzutti plays Brian Gottfried before the Dibbs-Nastase match Thursday night.

Defending champion Jimmy Connors and Sandy Mayer administered a pair of black eyes to the WCT by qualifying for the final eight and then refusing to play.

Connors' mother informed the WCT by cablegram April 13 that her son would not be back to defend his title. She said he was playing a May 7 exhibition in Michigan and did not have time to prepare for a match two days later. Connors has since con-tracted mononucleosis and couldn't have played anyway.

Mayer wanted to accept, but had to honor World Team Tennis commitments this week.
Connors and Mayer are the first qualifiers to refuse berths in the WCT Finals. Unlike previous years, neither is under contract to the WCT because of last year's compromise agreement between WCT and the Grand Prix

Stockton, who lost to Connors in last year's championship match, and Barazzutti benefitted from the withdrawals, moving up in the standings and earning a finals berth.

John Newcombe won in 1974, but refused to play the WCT tour the following year. Borg, runnerup in 1974 and 1975 and champion in 1976, didn't defend his title last year after sitting out the tour because of a contract spectively.

Robert E. Lee has a long wait for the Class AAAA state baseball playoffs.

Coach Ernie Johnson's team. newly-crowned District 5-4A champions have a full week to wait before facing the Wichita Falls Coyotes in the first game of the best-of-three bi-district series and that one will be at the Lee diamond a week from today

A lot of interested people called the R-T sports desk ask-ing why the Rebels are not going to play the Coyotes at beautiful Cubs Stadium. Two very good reasons why. No. 1, the Cubs will still be in town playing the San Antonio Dodgers in the windup of a six-game Texas League series, so the park won't be avaliable. No. 2 and most important, Johnson likes the home field advantage since the only game Lee lost at home this year was a narrow decision to Lubbock Monterey which is also in the state playoffs again this year.

In 1975, Lee played Wichita Falls Rider at Cubs Stadium when it was avaliable with the Cubs on the road, but then lost to eventual state champion Duncanville, 7-5 after blowing a 4-0 rains in the Duncanville area.

This time around, Lee starts at home and then travels to Wichita Falls on Friday, May 19 for the other games at Hoskins Field which is a lighted ball park so that of a third and deciding game is necessary, it too can be played Friday night.

THIS YEAR'S TITLE is the fifth for Johnson who has been at Lee since the school opened in the fall of 1961. His Rebel team went to the state tournament in 1964 and 1969. In 1964, the Rebs won third in the tourney after tying San Angelo Central's Bobcats with a 10-4 mark.

The Rebs won the best-ofthree playoff from the Concho Cats, winning 17-2 and then losing, 2-1 before winning, 3-0 in the deciding game.

Lee beat El Paso Austin, 12-2 and 9-1 in bi-district and then faced Monterey in the regional round, losing the opener, 4-3, but bounced back to down the Plainsmen, 10-5 and 10-6.

Brazosport was Lee's first round opponent and the Rebs dropped a tough 3-2 decision with Dick McFarland the losing pitcher: Bobby Weber, who finished with a mound record of 11-5 that season, beat San Antonio Lee, 1-0 for third place.

Grandy is no R&R for rival pitchers

Ordinarily, when a pitcher reaches the lower third of the batting order, he can look forward to a stretch of Rest and Recreation, a time to recuperate before again being called upon to face the woodwielding terrors above.

This spring opposing hurlers have been charging "foul" when they get down near the bottom of the Midland Cubs order. For one thing, there is Eric Grandy, who in no way qualifies as baseball's R&R version of Hawaii.

The 23-year-old Texas League rookie from Baltimore, is batting in the .333 range and has 17 RBI to go with his four doubles and three triples. With that kind of stick in the lower third of the order, Manager Jim Saul hasn't needed home runs. The Cubs have been winning with a steady and almost unceasing barrage of base hits.

At 6-4, 170 pounds, Grandy is a stringbean who looks more like a basketball player than a baseball player. As a matter of fact, he played a couple of years of basketball at Essex Community College in Baltimore after graduating from Baltimore City College High.

Eric was the Cubs' first selection in the Jan. 1974 free agent draft and was signed by Ralph DiLullo and sent to Chicago's Rookie League club at Bradenton, Fla., in the Gulf Coast League in 1974. That first year he was s second in triples and made the All-Star game.

HE PLAYED at both Key West and Bradenton in 1975 lthen hit .242 at Pompano Beach in 1976 leading the Florida State League in strikeouts.

Eric spent the spring of 1977 with Midland, but when the season started was once again back in Pompano where his statistics took a giant leap over 1976. Grandy hit .288, landed a berth on the league all-star team and was voted MVP of the Cubs' farm club by local fans. Last fall he played for the

Eric Grandy

Chicago Cubs in the Arizona Instructional League and this year when spring training rolled around he was ready to make the jump to the Texas League.

And now that he's here, Grandy has left little doubt that he belongs. In addition to giving Midland a couple of long. ground-devouring legs in cen-terfield, he has had three threehit games and one four-hit

When he isn't playing ball, Eric says his hobbies are reading, movies, basketball and shaving ... shaving? If Eric has one fault, it's his pro football allegiance. He's a Bert Jones, Lydell Mitchell Baltimore Colts fan, but as long as he gives the Cubs the kind of bat and glove he has been, that's a shortcoming that can be overlooked in Cowboys' country.

By The Associated Press Mark Bradley accounted for five runs in an eight run explosion by San Antonio in the ninth inning Monday night as the Dodgers came from behind to take a 10-8 Texas League baseball victory over El Entering the inning with San Antonio trailing, 5-2, Bradley singled to lead off the inning and scored a run. His team batted around, giving him a golden opportunity on his second trip to the plate in the ninth inning. With the bases loaded, he slammed a home run to give San Antonio a 10-5 lead. El Paso scored three in the bottom of the ninth, but couldn't catch up, thanks to the homer by Bradley.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa and Jackson split a doubleheader with Tulsa taking the first, 7-6, and Jackson winning the nightcap, 4-3. In another twin bill, Shreveport and Arkansas split. Arkansas won the opener, 9-4, and Shreveport took the second, 3-2. In a single game, Midland defeated Amarillo,

Two runs scored on an error late in the game provided the winning margin in Tulsa's 7-6 victory over Jackson. Bob Healy had a homer for Jackson. In the second game, Dan Duran homered for Tulsa, but it wasn't enough as Jackson took the 4-3 victory. Pitcher Jim Smith's solo home run in the fifth inning provided the winning margin as Shreveport took Arkansas, 3-2, in the second game of a doubleheader. Mike Calise had his seventh homer of the season as Arkansas took the first game, 9-4.

Midland and Amarillo kept their streaks alive Monday night as Midland took a 7-4 victory. It was the seventh straight victory for Midland and it was the 12th straight loss for Amarillo. Lee Smith, now 3-2, took the victory. Gary Pickert was the losing Defense has been the Leafs' biggest problem in the first three games of the series, Neilson says. "A third of their chances to score have been on two-on-one and three-on-one breaks. We have been too eager to forecheck and haven't played tight enough."

(Continued from 1-C) team hits as well as any he has coached in his 18 seasons at Lee, but the Rebs do lack a strong pitching staff in comparing it to the Griffin-Prince combo in "We have people throughout our lineup that can hit. There are one or two that could be hitting better, but the hitting has been great, " said Johnson. JOHNSON ISN'T that excited about trying to get a practice game with Class AAA Borger this week before the series with the Coyotes. "Borger is a long way, unless we might meet them half-way, but the pitching staff needs lots of work and if we have to, we will scrimmage a lot this week in order to get ready. Johnson tried to get the first game this Friday, but the UIL stated that the series was not to start until next Tuesday.

That will cause some problems for Rebel fans who were wanting to see the final Maroon-White spring football game that Friday that Lee's baseball team is in the Red River City for the playoffs, but officials from both schools agreed to the way the series is set up with the final two games, if needed, being played in Wichita Falls.

Lee will take a 21-8 record into the bi-district round which is one of the better marks that Johnson's team has taken into state play. In 1975, the Rebels wound up 18-13, but did win_15 out of their last 18 games after falling behind with a 3-9 mark early in the season. Lee doesn't have the sock that Stevens and shortstop Brett Blackwell gave the '75 Rebs, but a better balanced hitting attack throughout the lineup this time around.

Robert E. Lee

tries Coyotes

IN FACT, LEE is hitting .330 as a team going into the state playoffs with a total of 52 doubles, 20 triples and seven homers along with 176 runs-batted-in. While Stevens knocked in 40 runs in 1975 and Blackwell 19, this year's outfit has no less than eight players in the lineup that have knocked in 10 or more

Wichita Falls is 17-5 and has won seven straight games coming into the playoffs. The Coyotes usually play the two Abilene schools; but didn't this year, so it's hard to get a comparsion between the two teams.

Duncanville owns a 27-2 record while Monterey stands 26-4 and has won 17 staright games since losing to Pecos, 5-4 in 11 innings. Down south, San Antonio Roosevelt has a 27-2 mark while South San Antonio is 29-5. In the two El Paso districts, there is a four-team playoff in District 1-4A anda three-team playoff in 2-4A.

It looks like lots of exciting action for the next few weeks with Monterey and Duncanville favored to meet in the quarterfinal round to see who winds up in the state tourney from our region. Don't count Johnson's crew out yet, however, especially if they continue to hit the ball

And she loves every minute of it. "It has made my life a lot easier off the track," Guthrie said Monday between practice runs for the May 28 Indy 500.

While the constant pressure did not outwardly affect her driving, the 40year-old Guthrie admitted life in a fishbowl was no picnic. She still gets a lot of curious spectators, but gradually she is becoming regarded first as a race driver and then, incidentally, as a woman. Guthrie last year finished 29th in her first Indy start and is confident she can do better this time.

Her new car, purchased from George Bignotti and driven in three races last year by Wally Dallenbach, is still new to her. "This is the first time I've been in a championship car in eight months," she said. "I think it's inherently a faster chassis and a more predictable car (than last year's).

"Last year's car was a good, fast machine. Let's just say this one, we hope, has the potential to do a better

Guthrie turned a lap at 181 mph on Saturday's opening day of practice. Rain washed out all of Sunday's practice and most of Monday's session, but Guthrie was one of 22 drivers who took advantage of the few hours of late-afternoon practice after the 21/2mile track dried off.

Defending champion A.J. Foyt, who

There has been speculation that the Twins would trade Carew rather than let him play out his option, which would make him a free agent after the left the Speedway Monday to race his horses in Louisville, Ky., was expected to make his first practice run in his brand new Coyote today.

Four other former winners led a parade of drivers Monday. Two-time winner Johnny Rutherford was the quickest of the day, turning a lap at more than 191 mph after warming up in his backup racer. Brothers Al and Bobby Unser, both two-time Indy winners, and 1973 champ Gordon Johncock also got in some practice laps in the 180s. Johcock's teammate, Steve Krisiloff, was timed at 188.6.

Danny Ongais, who recorded the fastest practice lap of 196.164 on Saturday, was over 189.

The first of four days of qualifications is scheduled next Saturday. The fastest 33 cars will start the 62nd running of the $1 million race.

Forty-four cars had arrived at the track by the end of Monday's practice, and 25 of them had passed the U.S. Auto Club technical inspection. More than three dozen drivers also had been cleared for practice by the Speedway's medical staff.

Foyt, currently fourth in USAC point standings, will be seeking his 21st Indy start and his fifth victory.

Wilson Ranch defeats Retema

SAN ANTONIO - Midland's Wilson Ranch polo team defeated San Antonio's Retema, 8-7, here over the weekend as Tommy Wayman led the way with four goals.

Willie B. Wilson scored two goals in the victory while Fortunato Gomez and Dicky Cernadas each contributed

The San Antonio team had a fivegoal handicap, and got two goals from Roy Berry. Other members of the Retema team were Jim Gilstrap, Charles Smith and Ted McDermott.

Wilson Ranch also defeated Retema earlier this month in a Midland

Musial ranks areat stars

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) - Stan Musial ranks as one of the greatest performers in National League history, a seven-time batting champion and a Baseball Hall of Fame selection among other things.

Musial, who retired in 1963, credits fellow Hall of Famer Ty Cobb with giving him unusual advice on extending his career.

"Cobb told me he'd seen me play that day and said my legs looked pretty good. He asked me if I smoked or drank. I didn't smoke. But occasionally Lenjoyed a couple of drinks before and after dinner. "He told me to try wine. I did and darned if I didn't

NEW YORK (AP) Boeing Co. shares set the pace as the stock market scratched out a small gain today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .70 at 825.28.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchangelisted issues. Boeing stock led the active list and climbed 21s to 48%. reaching its highest price in more than 10 years, as Singapore Airlines said it planned to order almost $900 million worth of Boeing planes. The agreement, covering 13 Boeing 747s and six 727s. provides for the largest single sale in the aircraft industry's history.

Otherwise, analysts said traders were taking a cautious approach on the belief that the market was due for a pause after its sharp runup in April.

They also noted continuing wariness about the interestrate outlook. The Federal Reserve has twice tightened credit in the last few weeks. and many Wall Streeters have predicted more moves soon in that direction by the central bank

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks inched up .03 to 53.85. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .17 to 140.21.

Trading continued to taper off from its recent record levels. Volume on the Big Board came to 12.99 million shares by noontime against 16.12 million at the same point Monday

Springs keep tourism hopes warm, bubbling

By MORRIS D. ROSENBERG The Washington Post

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. - Florida's natural springs may not be eternal, but they're still keeping tourism hopes warm without consuming our vital energy resources.

Bubbling up daily by the millions of gallons of sparkling clean water (guaranteed to instill envy in the heart of any watcher of the polluted Potomac River), they provide residents and visitors alike with excellent opportunities for boating, fishing, swimming and sometimes scuba diving. Tennis and golfing facilities also are available in some areas, and anywhere in Florida one is never far from Atlantic or Gulf beaches.

A few springs have been commercially developed into important tourist attractions, featuring river cruises through fish-filled waterways lined with luxuriant foliage. The air is fresh and sweet-smelling; flowers radiate color; waterfowl fly unmolested or paddle along nonchalantly; the protected and very-much alive alligator - Florida's new "ambassador of tourism" - cleverly imitates a floating log or a stuffed museum exhibit as it takes the sun, and sometimes there's even an underwater theater or gallery where you can see mermaids pe-form a ballet or fish feed. All is green and quiet, and not one ill-mannered barking dog to fray a suburbanite's nerves.

I flew to Gainesville and then rented a car. (Competition is such in the Florida market that modest daily or weekly rates with unlimited mileage — you pay for gas and oil — is the rule. And often there's no "dropoff" charge, meaning you can pick up the car in one city and drop it off in another without additional payment.) As soon as I headed south on Route 41, I began to glimpse another Florida, a part of the state those who limit themselves to the Gold Coast - the Palm Beaches, Ft. Lauderdale, Miami - or the Tampa-St. Petersburg and southern Gulf Coast areas never see. It is a Florida of wide open pastureland, of sleek thoroughbred horses and stud farms, of well-fed cattle, tree farms, citrus groves, lakes, small towns, modest retirement homes, and slowerpaced development. But to the motorist, at times it seems mostly miles and miles of well-maintained highways winding past cool woods - pine, oak or cypress festooned with Spanish moss - and those streams and rivers and springs providing fresh water that spells beauty and life. Springs can be found in 46 of the 67 counties, according to the Florida Department of Commerce. The Sunshine State has 17 of the 75 "first-magnitude" springs in this country. In a frst-magnitude spring, water flows at a rate of atleast 100 cubic feet per second. The department notes that "the discharge of a single cubic foot of water per second is 646,000 gallons daily - enough to satisfy the requirements of a city with a population of

There are also 49 springs of second magnitude, and still other smaller springs. Water temperature generally ranges between 68 and 76 degrees fahrenheit. Some are privately owned, thus permission to swim or dive must be obtined Two first-magnitude springs typical of the major attractions are Silver Springs and Homosassa Springs. The first, estimated to be 100,000 years old, was listed by the state in 1976, based on attendance figures, as Florida's fifth most important attaction - behind Disney World, Busch Gardens, Sea World and Cyprus Gardens. Silver Springs draws about 1.5 million visitors a year, compared with more than 13 million at Disney's fantasyworld and 2.4 million

Located six miles east of Ocala on Route 40, Silver Springs (the name refers to the nature-entertainment complex and the small town, population around 900) has attracted tourists for more than a century. This is the 100th anniversary of the first glass bottom boat rides at the springs. Hart Line steamboats carried the famous and not-so-famous of the 19th century up the Ocklawaha River to Silver River from Palatka. With the advent of the railroads and the demise of the steambat, visitor totals declined, a trend that continued into the early 1900s.

Then interest picked up again. In "Eternal Springs," a history of the area, Richard A. Martin observes "the promoters of the Hart Line steamboats had proved one thing - that people like their beauty spiced with excitement even in a natural attraction. Hart Line steamboats had provided the excitement . . . "Rand McNally's "Guidebook to Florida" notes sagely that "Floridians have learned this lesson well."

The good-natured hokum and the whipped cream that tops off outdoor activities at Silver Springs. indicate that its owner and operator, ABC Leisure Attractions, Inc., belongs at the head of the class.

For an all-inclusive entrance fee ($5.25 for adults, $3.25 for children 3 to 11), visitors can take a jungle cruise - the brochure claims you will see "rhinoceros charging at your boat (stopping at the water line, of course)" — but the rhinos actually are safely separated from the waterway. Among other animals pointed out by the skipper-guide are giraffes, alligators, monkeys and birds. Despite the obvious commercialization, Silver Springs covers 4,500 acres with most of the land in its natural state and unchanged for centuries. Only about 100 acres are presently "developed" and in use, but a spokesman said "the next five-year plan" being completed will provide for "increased usage." The attraction is an official Florida fish and game preserve, protecting birds, reptiles and mammals that are members of endangered species. One member of the crocodile family, the gavial, which has long, needle-like jaws, is "already considered extinct," the park spokesman said, because there are less than 200 of them worldwide and that is an "insufficient number" to insure the survival of the There are also shows at the reptile institute, a deer-petting area, a museum featuring a collection of antique and classic cars, a garden of marigolds in memory of Sen. Everett Dirksen, and of course snack bars and the inevitable gift shop with the usual undistinguished merchandise. A new, $1.7-million attraction, Wild Waters, whose touristy gimmick revolves around a pool with man-made waves and a series of flume rides, has just made waves and a series of flume rides, has just opened next door. A separate park that charges additional admission, it's also owned by ABC Leisure Attractions. That corporation, a subsidiary of the American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., also owns and operates Weeki Wachee on U.S. Rtes. 19 and 50 about 60 miles north of Tampa, another springs and wildlife park.

Weeki Wachee ("even the name is fun") offers, along with varios animal performer and the requi-along with varios animal performer and the requisite boat rides down the Weeki Wachee River, an unusual show in its underwater auditorium with a cast of "mermaids" who cavort in a natural cavern with the help of compressed air hoses. The current 30-minute production, "Operation Mermaid," has "Waterwoman" battling "Sharkwoman."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Spartan diet key to longevity

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it true that you live longer if you stick to a very spartan diet?-Dana A.

Dear Dana: Let's say a moderate diet-after all, you have to get son.e fun out of life. It is true that groups in various parts of the world who are still young at 80 or 90 are noted for their dietary restraint. And there are some interesting laboratory experiments which point to the same conclusion.

For instance, Dr. Roy L. Walford of UCLA has found that by reducing the calories or the protein in the diet of mice he can make them live 15 to 40 percent longer. The abstemious mice have fewer tumors and they resist some viral infections better.

The good effect of the restricted diet is noticeable after the mice are a year old. Before that, mice that get more to eat have better immunological defenses against diseases- but from then on, the ones who eat less are better off. This is an important finding because normally the body's natural defenses decline with age.

But don't go on a crash diet and hope of living to be 100. Dr. Walford found that severe cutbacks in protein had an adverse effect on the mice.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine has told me that acidophilus milk is good for you, and I would like to know just exactly what it is. I have trouble with regular milk, so perhaps this might be a way around it .- Sally C.

Dear Sally: The old-fashioned acidophilus milk is a sour-testing product that is fermented with a culture of Lactobacillus acidophilus—a germ normally found in the intestines, where it helps maintain a healthy bacterial mix. But now there is a new. sweet acidophilus milk which tastes just like regular milk-the acidophilus in it doesn't become active until it is inside you.

The advocates of this new milk say that the natural level of acidophilus in the digestive tract has been cut down by antibiotics, food processing and preservatives, and that this can result in diarrhea, gas and other troubles. They believe that acidophilus milk helps restore a natural balance and may be helpful to the many Americans who, like you, find whole

Our Mighty Rebel hitters registered another victory as they mashed a Mutt Saturday to the tune of 7-4. This rousing win cinched the district championship. Follow these proud Rebels as they travel to Wichita Fallas to crunch a Coyote and bring back a bi-district title. Be watching for time and place for this contest.

Our Girl Golfers are really on the move this year, too, as they brought home a 4th place trophy with a score of 745 at the State Tourney in Austin. Way to GO girls... We are really proud of Wendy Goodwin for making All-State by placing in the top ten.

State is the destination of our trucking trackers this weekend as they run on down to Austin for a victory. Good Luck and Keep on Truckin'.

Rebellettes: All sophs and juniors be sure to come by the library this week to sign up for Rebelettes for next year. Be thinking of a squad because you'll be picking them May 18th. We still have four of the Rebellettes group pictures left. Come by the library with $6.50 and you can buy one; first come first served.

The Spring Sports banquet will be held tonight at 6:45 o'clock. Outstanding athletes for boys and girls will be announced, among other honors so be sure and attend.

Maple syrup business undergoing revolution

WEST CHAZY, N.Y. (AP) - The state's $3.5-million maple syrup industry has been undergoing a quiet revolution in modernization. Hundreds of New York producers, faced with rising fuel and labor costs, have gradually streamlined the way they get their product from the tree to the breakfast table. It has eliminated some of the old-fashioned aspects of the harvest, but producers say the taste and quality of the final product remain the same.

Earl R. Parker, for example, whose sugar house here in northeastern New York produces an estimated 2,000 gallons of syrup annually, now uses plas-tic pipelines exclusively to collect sap from about

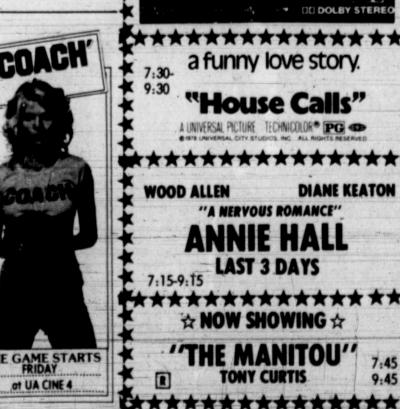

About 50 percent of the state's total flow is now handled by plastic lines. And 75 percent of the state's 1,500 producers have replaced galvanized metal buckets with a tube collection system in all or part of their sugar bush in recent years.

"I have about 20 buckets on trees to show school kids what they're like, but that's all," said Parker, one of the top 40 producers in the state.

Parker said that before he began experimenting with plastic tubing in 1965, he hung 2,200 buckets, which had to be hand-collected every day.

Exploration decline could hit thousands

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) - A Tenneco Oil Co. geologist said Monday continuation of the decline in Gulf of Mexico oil and gas reserves could jeopardize on a long-term basis the jobs of thousands of coastal area production and refining workers.

F. Carlton Sheffield said the situation may not be irreversible because significant reserves may lie in undrilled structures in what may now appear to be prohibitive, high-risk

"Because of the country's increasing need for energy, the known reserves in the Gulf are being produced at alarming rates," Sheffield said.

"Unless new reserves and new primary exploration objectives are defined, a significant reduction in activity level by industry and even a cessation of operations by some companies can be anticipated in the not too distant future.'

Speaking at the 10th Offshore Technology Conference, Sheffield said explorations along the Louisiana and upper Texas coast have discovered proven recoverable reserves approximating 69 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 8.1 billion barrels of oil.

"Of those proven reserves at least 55 percent of the known gas and 63 percent of the known oil have been produced to date," he said. "This is a

Sheffield said the industry needs to accelerate explorations in offshore areas of southwestern Florida, southeastern and southwestern Louisiana and southeastern area of the upper

He said potential reserves in southeastern Louisiana areas in water depths of from 1,000 to 3,000 feet have been estimated at 3.1 trillion cubic feet of gas and 1.1 billion barrels of oil. Similar deep water southwestern Louisiana and Texas areas were said to hold a potential of 1.1 trillion cubic feet of gas but only minor oil reserves. No reserves estimate was given for southwestern Florida. Sheffield said sea bottom conditions have prevented reliable seismic data recovery but exploration and geophysical companies are actively engaged in solving the

He said the industry as a whole should immediately and systematically explore the three frontier areas.

This evaluation will be expensive and is not the responsibility of a single company, or a small group of companies, but is a problem which should be approached by industry as a he said.

Such an approach for the drilling of stratigraphic tests in the areas, he said, would lead to'a better understanding of the Gulf's geologic development and its full potential as a producing area.

'If successful, it would also give industry the lead time required to develop and refine technologies needed to operate in these less than favorable environments," Sheffield said.

Congress of the department's Energy Information Administration. And, department analysts predicted, oil imports could increase to be-

according to the first annual report to tween 9.8 and 16.1 million barrels a day in 1990. The report said further that this increase in oil imports will take place while the national energy consumption increases at a slower rate between 2.6 percent to 3.2 percent annually through 1985 — than it has in

And U.S. energy production will increase at a slower rate than consumption, thus leading to the need for more substantial imports of foreign oil, the report said.

DOE predicts increasing

reliance on oil imports

However, Energy Information Administration director Lincoln E. Moses pointed out that these forecasts were based on the assumption of continued availability of foreign oil and also did not take into account future changes in federal energy legislation and policy - such as President Carter's proposed national energy

When Carter sent his energy bill to Congress last year, he said that its enactment would reduce oil imports to 6 million barrels a day by 1985. Carter's energy legislation now is stalled in a House-Senate energy conference committee.

Ironically, the report is likely to be used both by proponents of President Carter's national energy plan, which emphasizes conservation to minimize the current annual $45 billion bill for imported oil as well as by congressional opponents of the plan, who contend the country must develop new domestic energy supplies.

The report also forecast that:

-Despite increased Alaskan and off-shore oil and natural gas production, total domestic petroleum production will be "at best, sustained at about current levels." At worst, domestic oil and gas production could decline by as much as one-fourth by

-The growth rate of energy consumption will be about three-quarters the predicted growth rate for the gross national product (GNP). -Coal production will increase at an annual rate of about 5 percent almost doubling U.S. production, now

650 million tons - by 1990. -The growth rate of energy prices is likely to be significantly greater than in the decade prior to the Arab oil embargo in 1973 but less than in the years since the embargo. -Solar and other renewable energy sources are likely to provide for only a small portion of the nation's energy consumption by 1990.

-Nuclear power, which provided 3 percent of the nation's energy in 1975, will increase to about 8.5 percent in 1985 and nearly 13 percent by 1985.

Nigerians often running show

By LARRY HEINZERLING

ESCRAVOS, Nigeria (AP) - Eleven years ago, Adenrele A. Afolabi, who comes from the cocao-growing center of Oshogbo in southwest Nigeria, signed on with the Gulf Oil Co. as a petroleum-engineer trainee. Today at age 37 he is in charge of Gulf's largest oil facility on the coast of West

He is responsible for 602 employees, including 40 whites, turning out 175,-000 barrels of oil a day for Gulf from the fields here at Escravos, 150 miles southeast of Lagos, capital of Nigeria.

Adenrele Afolabi and the operations at Escravos are examples of how Nigerians are moving to the top of major foreign businesses in the country, replacing whites at all levels of

And because of this oil-rich Nigeria has become a leader in the struggle by black African nations to "Africanize" their once white-run economies.

It has forged ahead despite opposition from some foreign businessmen and sharp criticism of the sometimes chaotic results. Everyone, however, seems to profit.

"The militant Marxist states nationalize everything and are totally dependent on Cuban, East European or Soviet advisers to keep the country running," observed one Western diplomat in Lagos.

"The more politically conservative former French colonies are still run by the French from top to bottom on capitalist lines. Nigeria is different."

The trend in Nigeria is most symbolic, perhaps, here in the malarial swamps of Escravos, where the Portuguese in centuries past traded beads and gunpowder for slaves.

Escravos is famous now for its oil fields, which have helped make this nation of 80 million people the richest in sub-Saharan black Africa.

And increasingly, on the offshore oil rigs and drilling platforms, and at the front office here - and in major industries across the country - Nigerians are running the show. What is happening at Escravos is happening everywhere else as Nigerians, some poorly trained, move into key positions in all fields of banking, commerce and industry. They are helped by laws demanding 60 per cent Nigerian control of key businesses and stiff restrictions on "expatriates" foreign firms may bring into the country.

The idea is to force foreign companies to train Nigerians as fast as possible to take positions held by

"Look at the water and power failures, the traffic jams, not a traffic light in the country works, I mean they just don't have the know-how to run a modern economy," he added.

Nigeria admits these weaknesses and is moving to rectify them as quickly as possible. One way is by insisting on in-house training of Nigerians by foreign firms.

Also, some 15,000 Nigerians will be going to the United States in coming months under a recently negotiated major technical training program.

While foreigners complain, often in racial terms, there is no apparent mass exodus of foreign businesses. In fact, more and more investors are knocking on Nigeria's door while more and more Nigerians move into top level, decision-making positions of the companies attracted here.

"Nobody is going to turn in their key and say 'Forget it,'," said one diplomat. "This country is still very profitable, but why do the Nigerians have to be so difficult?'

The replacing of foreigners by Africans in key jobs and businesses has been a deep, emotional issue across the continent for a long time.

Despite almost two decades of independence from colonial rule, the aspirations of many states remain checked by continued "neo-colonial" foreign economic control.

In the Ivory Coast, for example, the French still own and run bakeries, record shops, hotels, restaurants, even "Africana" boutques, and French advisers are found at all levels of government.

It is regarded as France's show case in Africa, its modern capital, Abidjan, the "Oarus" of the conti-

The problem is the same elsewhere - in the white-run copper mines of Zambia or Zaire, the tourist industry in Senegal and Kenya, the rubber plantations of Liberia.

The Ivory Coast, one of the most efficiently run countries in Africa. defends its reliance on foreign expertise arguing that to push the whites out too quickly would result in the

Mideast battlefield 'really in Washington'

By NICK LUDINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) - "The Middle East battlefield is not in the Golan Heights or the Sinai Desert. Whether you like it or not, it is here in Washington," Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., told a group of visiting Arabs recent

The targets are congressional votes and American public opinion.

The high-stakes battle is joined over a Carter administration proposal to sell advanced jet fighters as a package to Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Israel, and its effort to force Israel to make significant concessions in Mideast peace negotiations.

The aircraft sale being contested in Congress is the first major test of Israeli strength in the United States since former President Gerald R. Ford tried to "reassess" U.S. Mideast policy in 1975.

The Israeli lobby quickly persuaded 76 senators to sign a letter to Ford. It supported Israel and effectively blocked the "reassessment," which reflected both a growing national awareness of U.S. interests in the Arab world and a desire to force Israel out of its hard line on Mideast peace terms.

The sale of advanced jets to Arab countries is a return to Ford's reassessment policy. But this time, Carter is in a stronger position than Ford was three years ago.

Israelis say the Saudis will use their 60 promised F-15 warplanes against them in a new war. The Saudis deny this, saying that they need the American planes for defensive purposes only. But in reality, the planes are almost incidental to larger Mideast Some U.S. analysts say Israel actually is not worried about the planes, which would not be ready for service for another five years and would be replaced by French jets anyway if the In this view, the Israelis' real intention is to stop the development of a "special relationship" between Saudi Arabia and the United States by blocking the plane sale and creating bad feelings.

For the Saudis, acquiring the planes would be a big step toward cementing that special relationship, bringing about a major shift in U.S. Mideast policy and confirming that they can exercise their emerging political influence to good effect. On one side is the so-called Israeli Lobby, which includes the Israeli embassy, visiting Israeli leaders, groups representing a majority of the six million American Jews and a loyal clique in Congress. It is now apparent that the powerful Jewish pressure groups no longer command automatic, overwhelming support here. Opinion polls show a significant erosion in American public support for Israel's Mideast poli-

in November made him the first Arab leader to gain popularity in the United States. A new poll shows 40 percent of Americans believe Sadat is doing a good job in Mideast peace initiatives. The figure for Iraeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is 28 percent.

Some members of Congress are grumbling. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., a longtime Israeli supporter, recently complained that aggressive pressure tactics by the most active Jewish lobbyists — the American Israel Public Affairs Committee "do a disservice to the U.S., to Israel and to the Jewish community." The administration has a new ally in the Arab Lobby. It is a fresh new team, though somewhat disorganized, with strong players: the Arab embassies, served by highly paid American lawyers and former government officials as advisers; aircraft manufacturers; oil companies; pro-Arab intellectuals; and groups representing an estimated two million Arab-Americans.

Saudi Arabia has emerged as the leading member of the Arab Lobby. With unlimited petrodollars at their disposal, the Saudis have borrowed the tactics of the more experienced Israeli lobby

Last week, the Saudis bought fullpage ads in New York and Washington newspapers marking observance of Sun Day. The ads, which matched newspaper space bought to plug the Israeli position, told how Saudi Arabia was acting "in the interest of the human community" in helping finance solar power experiments in the United States.

The Saudis also countered a detailed fact sheet published by the Jewish committee which argued against aircraft sales to Saudi Arabia. Saudi lobbyist Frederick G. Dutton, a prominent Washington lawyer and former official in the Kennedy administration, issued a brochure last week stating his client's case for Saudi princes, by nature a retiring group, have taken a cue from Israeli officials and set up unpublicized meetings here with members of Congress. Several senators said they were impressed with the recent presentation by Prince Turki, a son of the late King Faisal and chief of Saudi intelligence services.

With delicate politeness, the Saudi visitors avoid making threats. They don't have to, for their arguments carry the implication of dire consequences for their listeners.

-To meet demands for oil in the West, Saudi Arabia is producing three million barrels a day more than it needs to finance its economic development. If it cuts back production, serious shortages would result and the price of oil would skyrocket.

-The Saudis have opposed switching from the dollar to another currency in quoting oil prices. They keep most of their estimated $65 billion dollars in foreign reserves in dollars. A switch could set off a monetary

Gay rights repeal vote slated

By BILL CURRY The Washington Post

WICHITA, Kan. - Amazing, absolutely amazing, one gay activist thought when the Wichita City Commission adopted a gay rights ordinance last fall.

"It's an idea whose time has come," he added out loud, "but the fact that it comes from Wichita has surprised us all.'

The commission's action sent a rush of victory through the gay community of this conservative midwestern city, through its gay church, gay community groups and the half dozen or so gay night spots, be it western bar or noisy disco.

Rights for homosexuals, however, have yet to become a reality for just as it has in other cities - like Miami and St. Paul - the gay rights law here prompted a backlash. Now, because of a referendum sparked mostly by some religious leaders, voters will decide Tuesday whether to repeal the

Whatever the outcome, the repeal movement has prompted a widespread public debate on homosexuality, once a matter to be kept secret. Gay leaders and others predict that the result will eventually be new attitudes here and elsewhere both toward homosexuals and among them.

"People who wanted to ignore the issue have been forced to take a position," Mayor Connie Peters, one of the three commissioners who supported the ordinance, says of the individuals and organizations - including churches - that have endorsed

'Dracula' slated

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The vampire tale "Dracula" will be the University of Minnesota's 1978 Showboat

Charles Nolte, of the university's theater faculty and director, based his "Dracula" on Bram Stoker's 19thcentury novel. Two Dracula productions based on different adaptations are currently running on New York

This production will run from June 13 through Aug. 20 on the Showboat docked along the Mississippi River near the campus here.

the measure on civil or human rights grounds. That support will remain, the mayor said, "even if the law is repealed.'

'There is no way yo can go back to September 1977," Pat Kelso, a selfdescribed-lesbian and leader of one group supporting the law, said of the new openness and newly found activism and unity among the gays here.

In fact, national leaders in the gay movement, while disturbed that two U.S. cities have repealed gay rights laws and others have referendums pending, say the unprecedented public discussion of homosexuality is working to their long-term advantage as others, for the first time, learn of acknowledged homosexuals who do not fit the stereotypes of years past.

The ordinance was adopted 3 to 2 by the City Commission on Sept. 27 after a series of long public hearings. Opponents claimed, in part, that there was no discrimination against gays but as the hearings wore on, antigay statements by employers, landlords and others made it clear there was, Mayor Peters said.

Adrian and others expressed fears about the impact of gays on children. 'Homosexuals," one woman said, "can't reproduce so they have to re-

Peters says the commission may not reflect Wichita's overall thinking, because voter turnout is relatively low in commission elections. And whatever the city's image as a Bible Belt town, she said, the commission has been relatively progressive on such issues as civil rights.

"Kansans are conservative, but they're not bigots, not all of them,' one Jesbian said. "If 1/4 they were, we wouldn't be voting on a referendum."

The Concerned Citizens for Community Standards group has spent about $50,000 to urge repeal of the gay rights law, including $10,000 from a national antigay group headed by singer Anita Bryant, who appeared here several months ago.

In addition to the referendum here, voters in Eugene, Ore., will decide May 23 whether to repeal their homosexual rights ordinance. Other repeal efforts are under way among the 35 cities and counties in the country with similar ordinances.

'We don't like referendums," said Voeller, "but we think in the long run we win over people. They get to see the variety there is of us.

However much it is talked about, homosexuality still carries a price in Wichita, Gays talk of police harassment and abuse from heterosexuals. One gay describes life here as "better than Garden City but still not Kansas City" - this despite a new antigay bumper sticker in Wichita: "From Cowtown to Gaytown.

It is still, after all, somewhat of a small town, and you can't go anywhere without seeing someone you know. Hand-holding among gays in public is not yet accepted as it is in, say, San Francisco. And the ordinance has not affected day-to-day life yet - with repeal considered a good possibility, few gays have complained of discrimination for fear of being left unprotected if the law is repealed.

The subtle pressures that accompany "going public" also make many gays reluctant to be open about their sexuality. Kelso, for one, plans to leave town next month. So comfort for some gays is found in a western-style bar or in a beer-only. disco, where two women danced last week among the flashing coral and blue lights as a juke-box played "When Love Is Gone."
