

Warm Weather Exhumes Dead From River Grave

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as warmer weather was bringing green leaves to Central Park and summer clothing to shoppers on Fifth Avenue, so too were the Hudson, Harlem and East rivers performing their own rites of spring: They were giving up the dead.

It happens every year as the waters warm up. The bodies float up from the once-icy depths where they remained from winter, when they plunged voluntarily into the water, entered accidentally or were deliberately thrown in.

It is a phenomenon peculiar to New York, as least in volume, yet another In San Francisco, bodies surface right away because the water temperature is more consistent. In Chicago, police say, their patrols prevent many suicides in Lake Michigan. Bodies do surface around Detroit — in small numbers — and most are found out of town where the swift-flowing Detroit River deposits them.

In New York, the bodies fished from the rivers — these "floaters" as the police wryly call them — find their way to the province of Detective Jack Hackett.

Hackett, glancing across the row of shroud-covered figures in the Manhattan morgue, said to a recent visitor, half in explanation, half defensively, "Someone has to do this job, don't they?"

Then the grey haired cop consulted his work book, running his eye over the brief notations:

East River and Dover Street, white male.

East River and 108th Street, black male.

Hudson River and 100th Street, black male.

South Street Seaport and East River, unknown.

Hudson River and West 55th Street, white female.

South Street Seaport and East River, black male.

Harlem River and 151st Street, black male.

Hudson River and 125th Street, white male.

Detective Hackett sighed audibly, turning a page for more details. As a licensed undertaker with New York's Bureau of Missing Persons, the evidence was obvious enough to him.

These eight had been found floating in the water in the previous 60 hours. As many as five bodies a day have been known to surface this time of year.

"I've watched it happen for the 26 years I've served here," said Detective Hackett. "It's a spring phenomenon."

"Why so many in the rivers?" Sgt. Max Sanders, a supervisor at the Bureau of Missing Persons, repeated the question. "Straight people don't buy guns if they want to take their lives. Many just go into the river."

Lt. Earl J. Campazi, chief of the bureau, said, "New York is a magnet for pleasure. People come here from all over the East Coast. And it is also a magnet for the suicidal."

Death by drowning is a small percentage of the average of 25 who die each day in Manhattan and the Bronx from other than natural causes. The difficulties of identifying the bodies of the drowned lead, however, to a far higher percentage being buried anonymously in Potter's Fields.

Detective Hackett at the Manhattan Morgue is an expert in identification. He developed a technique to fingerprint the inner skin of drown victims. When those are not available, as so often is the case this time of year, the skeletal remains are X-rayed in an attempt to recognize healed fractures.

"Fingerprints are the key," said Hackett. "We get nearly 100 percent identification from male prints. The percentage is far lower for females."

The poorer identification rate for women results because there are far fewer fingerprint records for them, Hackett explained.

The floater phenomenon is known to relatives of missing persons, and this is the time of the year when the phones ring constantly at the Missing Persons Bureau and the morgue. Around 26,000 missing persons cases are accepted by the New York bureau each year, and while a very high percentage are solved, hundreds of people remain lost.

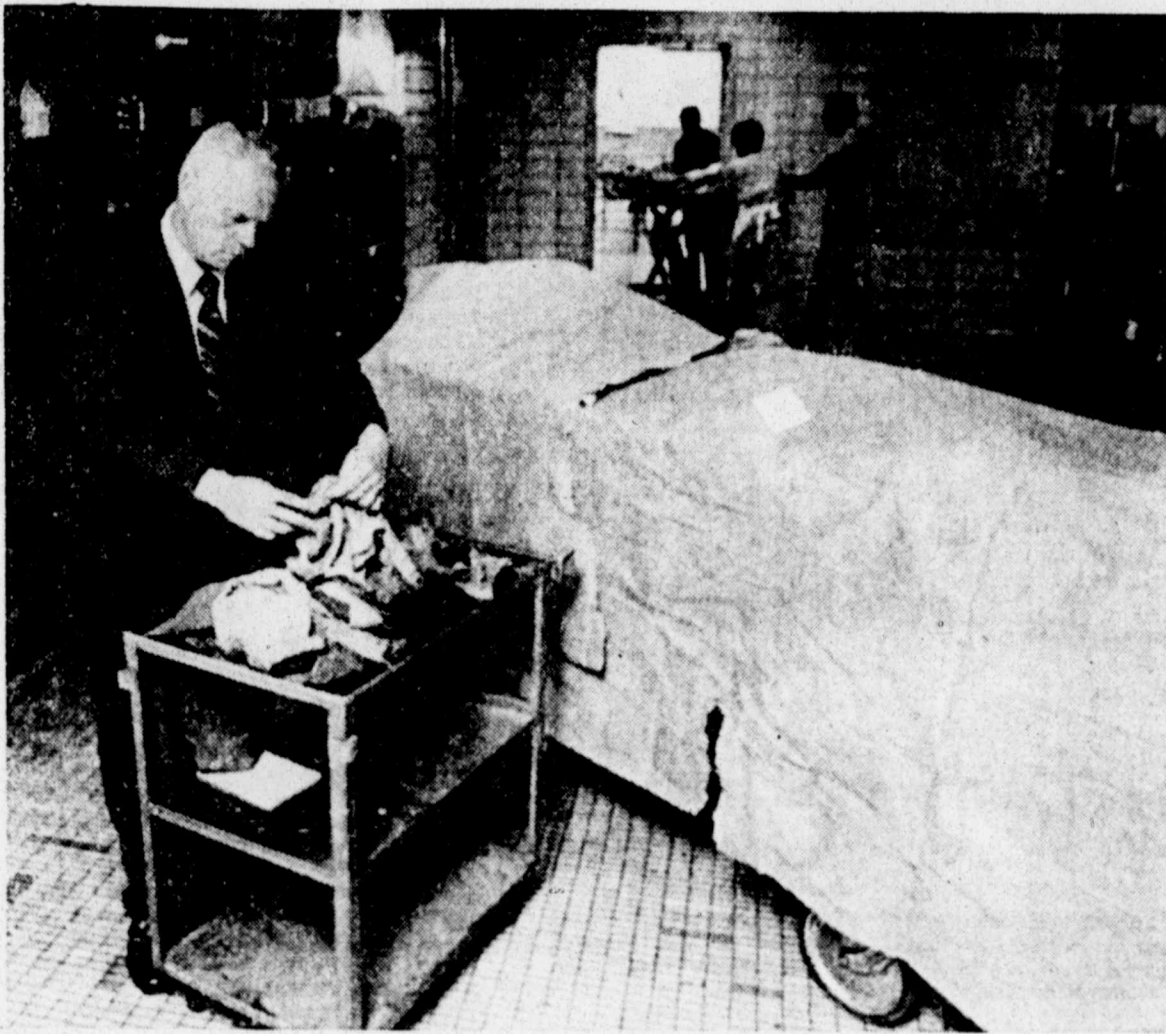

"Particularly families who have lost young daughters, they call us for years and years anytime they hear we have a floater," said Lt. Campazi.

The police list known suicides and wait for the bodies to surface. A woman executive of a computer company in Westchester County was thought to have jumped off the George Washington bridge six weeks ago after her car was found nearby. Her body was among the eight checked by Detective Hackett.

He is still watching for the body of the daughter of a South Asian ambassador reported seen leaping into the Hudson River from the West Side Highway in mid-winter.

"Someone has to do this job, don't they?" said Detective Hackett.

SEARCHING FOR CLUES — Detective Jack Hackett of the Missing Persons Bureau in New York City searches through the remaining articles of clothing of a "floater" — a 19-year-old boy found in the Hudson River. In the background of the morgue of the Chief Medical Examiners' a body is being wheeled into the main autopsy room by attendants. (AP Laserphoto)

Embargo On Israel Proposed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A bloc of Third World countries, in a direct challenge to U.S.-Israeli arms deals, proposed Monday that the Security Council impose a mandatory arms embargo against Israel.

The proposal could interrupt the General Assembly's consideration of disarmament, sole subject of its current special session, with a debate on the Middle East.

The resolution, sponsored by 25 nations, was submitted for consideration in an assembly committee of the whole charged with drawing up a document outlining a program of action on disarmament.

The resolution expressed "serious concern that the United States ... continues to provide Israel with massive amounts of advanced military weapons, thus encouraging Israel to persist in its policy of expansion and military occupation."

It would have the assembly request the council "to call upon all states under Chapter Seven of the (U.N.) charter ... to refrain from any supply of arms, ammunition, military equipment or vehicles, or spare parts therefore, to Israel, without any exception."

Chapter Seven empowers the Security Council, on finding that there is a threat to or breach of international peace, to order U.N. members to cut off diplomatic relations or trade with the country held responsible.

A veteran Middle East observer who asked not to be named said he was sure the resolution would get through the assembly but expected that the United States, Britain and France would veto any proposal for an arms embargo that might be put before the 15-nation council.

The resolution called on all countries, "in particular the United States of America," to cooperate in Chapter Seven action to avert a "grave menace to international peace" that it pictured as coming from Israeli armament and military collaboration with South Africa.

The council last year ordered a worldwide arms embargo against the South African government because of its repression of racial dissent in that white-ruled nation.

The resolution had the announced backing of the nonaligned movement, which includes 83 of the 145 U.N. members and can count on support from many others.

The sponsor list included several Arab nations, including Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and Iraq, but not Egypt, Israel's partner in currently suspended peace talks. Other sponsors included Cuba, Vietnam and pro-Soviet South Yemen, and some U.S. friends — among them Morocco, Somalia and Sudan.

Students Set To See Europe

Fifteen Lubbock and Idalou high school students are leaving June 13 on a six-country, 38-day tour sponsored by the People to People Student Ambassador Program.

The students were invited to apply for the program through teachers and all will pay their own way. Pam Brown, a teacher at Lubbock Cooper High School, said.

Mrs. Brown and her husband, Jay C. Brown, also a Cooper teacher, will lead the group.

The tour is sponsored by the Eisenhower Foundation of Spokane, Wash.

The students are Kenna Davies of Monterey High School; Tommy Jackson and Sharla Ross of Idalou High School; Wayne Bonner, Coni Beadie, David Collins, Clay Kennedy and Holly Vardeman, all of Cooper High School; and Jim Finley, Mike Higgins Jr., Jeff Johnson, Lisa Mayes, Jay Norton, Jan Powell and Lix Victory, all of Coronado High School.

The group will return July 21 after touring The Netherlands, France, Germany, Denmark, England and the Soviet Union.

The students are scheduled to stay with families in Denmark, England and Germany as part of the international program.

Canadian Magazine Ejected From Fair

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Officials of the Bologna Art Fair removed the Canadian magazine Strike from the exhibition because it expressed approval of the Red Brigades, the urban guerrilla group that kidnapped and killed former Premier Aldo Moro, an official of the fair said.

McKinney To Attend Journalism Session

Richard W. McKinney, instructor in the department of mass communications at Texas Tech University, has received a Gannett teaching fellowship to attend a workshop at Indiana University on July 21-30.

The workshop is sponsored by the Association for Education in Journalism.

McKinney, in addition to duties as instructor, supervises the reporting laboratory for the Texas Tech student newspaper, "The University Daily."

He has been associated with radio stations in Brownwood and newspapers in Hurst, Grand Prairie, Commerce and Lubbock.

Grisly Discovery Shocks Authorities

MIAMI (AP) — Neighbors say 73-year-old Homer Floyd and his 67-year-old wife, Perlina, were always together, kept to themselves and never had any visitors.

They were still together when a horrified policeman peered through a window of their small cottage and saw Floyd silently sitting in a chair next to the decomposed body of his wife as she lay in a blue dress on the bed.

Police said she may have been dead for as long as a week.

"They stayed to themselves," one neighbor said. "We saw him going to the store almost every day. She used to sit on the porch, but she hasn't been seen in a week."

Police said they had to beg Floyd to open the door. He refused until they threatened to force it open.

"Maybe he was in shock," Miami Police Sgt. George Mischel said. "He didn't seem to know what was going on."

Floyd was taken to a Miami hospital. Doctors said he was disoriented.

Police had gone to the neighborhood Saturday to investigate a burglary when neighbors mentioned the foul odor coming from the cottage. Police looked inside and saw Homer smoking a cigarette beside the bed where his wife lay.

Police said the cottage windows were shut tight and there was no air conditioning. Because of the body's decomposed condition, no immediate cause of death could be determined, police said.

"It's amazing that he could have remained there in the room with her for as long as he did," said Dr. Charles Diggs, assistant Dade County medical examiner.

Locusts Plague Horn Of Africa

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The worst locust plague to hit the Horn of Africa in 11 years has spread into a region of northwestern Ethiopia where up to 1 million people already face starvation from a drought, Radio Ethiopia said Monday.

The radio made the announcement in broadcasting an appeal by the head of East Africa's Desert Locust Control Organization for international help in battling the hordes of voracious grasshoppers.

Locust Control Chairman John Malecela, Tanzania's agriculture minister, arrived Sunday for talks at the Addis Ababa headquarters of the organization, made up of seven East African nations.

The radio said Malecela will "examine ways ... of obtaining international aid to counter the problem. International aid was required as the problem was of concern not only to East African countries but also to the whole world."

The radio said the locusts, already reported in northern Somalia and northern Kenya as well as the northern Ethiopian regions of Tigre, Harar, Wollo and Shoa, had spread to the northwest region of Gadar on the border with Sudan.

The locust could prove to be a disaster for Wollo, where Ethiopia says between 600,000 and 1 million people already face starvation because of drought. Six years ago, some 250,000 people died in Wollo after a sustained drought.

Addis Ababa radio said emergency landing strips were being set up in Wollo and airplanes, helicopters and trucks were ferrying in food, but 47 people died and scores were crippled after eating grain contaminated by fungus.

Officials of the Locust Control Organization say the swarms are the worst to hit the Horn of Africa since 1967.

In addition, they fear the locusts have spread to Eritrea in northern Ethiopia but the ongoing war there against secessionist guerrillas has prevented them from flying over the region to search for locusts.

Another war — the Somali invasion of Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden desert, crushed last March — heightened political tensions in the Horn and is hampering the movement of the Locust Control Organization's nine airplanes.

"Our mobility is hampered," one official said. "Locusts don't know boundaries. We have to be as free as the locusts in order to kill them. This is impossible at the present time."

The locusts originated in breeding grounds in Saudi Arabia and both Yemen. Prevailing desert winds wafted them across the Red Sea and into the Horn of Africa, where recent heavy rains allowed them to breed freely.

Organizations Institute Award

The Ranching Heritage Association has joined with five other organizations to institute a National Golden Spur Award to honor an individual who has brought distinction to the livestock and ranching industry.

A bronze replica of the award was presented Monday to Lubbock city and chamber of commerce officials for display in the host city for the sponsors' Sept. 22 Prairie Party in the Memorial Civic Center. The spur will be displayed for a month at the chamber of commerce offices.

Cooperating in the award are the American Quarter Horse Association, the National Cattlemen's Association, the National Wool Growers Association, Ranching Heritage Association, the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

The award is to be presented annually at a Prairie Party the night before the annual Ranch Day of the Ranching Heritage Association. Ranch Day takes place each year on the next to the last Saturday in September on the grounds of the 12-acre outdoor living exhibit, the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

More than 1,000 are expected to attend the 1978 Prairie Party, which will feature historic ranch entertainment, frontier fashions and dancing. Tickets available from the Ranching Heritage Association are $15 each. Tables of eight are available. Any proceeds will benefit the Ranching Heritage Center, a unique, authentic collection of ranch structures, furnishings and paraphernalia depicting the history of ranching in America.

Although golden spurs were known to have existed as early as the eighth century in Europe and had symbolic value among 12th century knights in England, these were ornamental. The concept of a golden working spur as an award originated with the Ranching Heritage Center, dedicated to the pioneer spirit which dominated America's ranching past.

Nominations for the award will be judged by representatives from each of the sponsoring organizations, and anyone may make a nomination. Each nomination must be accompanied, however, by supporting documentation.

The award honors and recognizes one person who has brought distinction to and made contributions of at least national significance to the livestock or ranching industry. It also spotlights the humanistic and scientific contributions of the livestock and ranching industries to society. Eligible are any persons associated with the industry who have distinguished themselves. Nominations are due May 1 of each year. Extensions were granted for 1978 only.

The award is a gold-plated historic working spur. A bronze casting is on display in the headquarters of each sponsoring organization as well as the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

In order that an historic spur may be gold-plated for each year's recipient, the Ranching Heritage Association has asked that ranchers, whose ranches were established before 1900, donate a vintage spur for a collection at the center. Each spur should be accompanied by a brief history of the ranch and of the spur, if known. The collection will be numbered and displayed with the histories at the Ranching Heritage Center. An annual drawing will determine which ranch's spur will become the Golden Spur for that year.

In addition, an OK Spur, commonly favored by early day cowboys, has been donated by Watt Matthews of the Lambhead Ranch in Texas. This has been gold-plated and will remain at the Ranching Heritage Center. A plate on the base will list winners as they are announced each year.

Nominations can be made through any of the sponsoring organizations.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. Please explain what you mean by being old enough to switch funds to a life-time annuity.

A. A lifetime annuity is a contract to provide you with an income for so long as you live. The amount it will pay you — per $1,000 paid in — will depend upon the age at which you begin receiving the payments and also upon whether you are male or female. (If the contract covers both husband and wife, the wife's age will have the most weight in determining benefits.)

What I mean by "old enough" is simply this:

One handy (but by no means all-embracing) benefit table I've received says a woman of 60 would pay $14,368 for an annuity contract which would pay her $100 a month for so long as she lives. I do not question the safety of such a contract. If you stick to a reputable company supervised by a strong state insurance department, there isn't too much risk.

BUT — I do question such a person putting down $14,368 (and please don't tell me you can get it for $14,268 or $13,998 — that's not the point) to get $1,200 a year — a "return" of 8.35 percent when she can, today, put the $14,368 into 8 1/2 percent good quality bonds and preferreds, get a couple of dollars more each month and keep her principal intact.

ARTS APPOINTMENTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three major staff appointments have been made by the National Endowment for the Arts. Named to fill the posts are: Phillip M. Kadis, director, policy development; Donald A. Moore, director, congressional relations; and Darrell K. Stephens, director, office of budget.

Now, if this same lady delays shopping for an annuity until she is 75 years old, my table says she will have to pay only $9,671 for an income of 1,200 a year. That's getting 12.4 percent on her money, which is an entirely different matter.

A few caveats (there always are):

1. A lifetime annuity will leave no estate; a "refund" type annuity (which yields less) MAY leave no estate. If your heart is set on leaving money for children or other heirs, you can't use an annuity.

2. The above "return" figures of 8.35 percent or 12.4 percent are not honest yield figures, since they include not only interest on the money you paid to buy the contract, but part of your principal as well. (However, since you won't run out of this principal no matter how you live, this needn't worry you.)

3. Once you buy a lifetime annuity and begin receiving benefits you have only a contract — no "investment."

Recent mail has brought criticism from some readers who feel the annuity contract terms are slanted in favor of the company. Could be. It should be obvious that if every annuity buyer got back more than he paid in plus the interest his money earned while in the hands of the insurance company, life companies would go broke. These letters give examples of elderly folk putting down $50,000 for a lifetime annuity and then living long enough to collect only $10,000. It's possible. The solution: buy a refund-type annuity which will repay at least as much money as was paid in — if not to you, then to your heirs. Or pass up annuities and invest on the basis of your own life span "odds."

Record Tally Of U.S. Bombings Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were a record 1,058 bombings in the United States last year, and labor strife was behind more of them than any other cause, the Treasury Department reported Monday.

Thirty-eight people were killed, some of them when their cars were rigged to explode when they used some device in the vehicle.

"The total disregard for the effect on the possessions and lives of members of our society by persons who use explosive and incendiary materials in their criminal activity is appalling," said Rex D. Davis, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Davis, in a foreword to the bureau's annual report on explosive incidents, said he is making the investigation of explosive incidents the number-one priority of the bureau's criminal enforcement activities.

Incidents listed in the report included: — Jan. 12, a woman was killed when a bomb destroyed her auto in Winston-Salem, N.C.

— April 14 a woman had both feet blown off in an explosion when she turned on her auto headlights in Newport, Tenn.

— Aug. 7 a man and wife and one son were killed and another son injured when an explosion destroyed their Evanston, Wyo., home.

— Oct. 31, a Schenectady, N.Y., woman found a fragmentation grenade inside a beer can in her auto.

The 1,058 explosive bombings last year compared with 870 in 1976.

There was a slight decrease in incendiary bombings, not included with explosive bombings, from 352 to 339.

Combining both explosive and incendiary bombs, as well as those which did not go off, there were 1,797 incidents last year, up from 1,642 in 1976.

Residences remained the top target for bombs with 465 incidents, according to ATF figures, followed by commercial establishments, 453; vehicles, 281; educational institutions; 132 and mail boxes, 60.

Deaths from criminal bombings declined from 46 in 1976 to 38 in 1977.

Property damage in all bombings dropped from $12.1 million to $11.3 million. The largest number of deaths by bombings took place in residences.

The number-one motive of the bombings last year — in 78 of them, 31.8 percent — was labor-related, the report said, while the year before the leading motive, 33 percent, was vandalism.

Movie Adds Member To Clan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you've wondered what Bret Maverick and his brother Bart have been up to for the past 16 years, be assured they have not reformed.

Bret and Bart are still roaming the West, a deck of cards in hand, a con job in the making and a fast getaway horse stashed nearby.

They're up to the same old tricks in "The New Maverick," an ABC movie designed to launch the newest member of the clan, Ben Maverick, into a series of his own.

James Garner is back as Bret and Jack Kelly is Bart once more. Charles Franks stars as Ben, the son of English cousin Beau Maverick, played by Roger Moore in the original series seen 1956-62.

"I play a kid brought up on the East Coast who was kicked out of Harvard for running a card game," said Franks. "He feels so much a part of the clan he heads west to join Bret and Bart."

In the two-hour movie, which ABC has not scheduled, Ben proves as adept a con artist as his cousins. In fact, more so.

"Jim Garner said I'd probably seen the old 'Maverick' and I said I hadn't," Franks said. "I was too busy playing too many sports and running around."

"So I tuned in to the reruns one afternoon. I found it dated, four-walled and without any vistas. It was all done on the backlot. I found it not very exciting except for the characters. Jim agreed that it is outdated, but at the time it was very exciting."

"The New Maverick" was filmed entirely on location in Arizona near Tucson and Nogales, and it adds tremendously to the appeal. Some scenes were filmed on the Sharp Ranch, only 300 yards from the Mexican border. Wood for the ranch house was shipped down the Colorado River, then brought overland by mule train.

It's at the ranch that Franks meets his love interest and future companion in deception — if the show becomes a series. She is Nell, played by Susan Blanchard, who is also Franks' wife.

"I'm thrilled she's in it," he said.

"She's the best actress I've ever worked with. The last time we worked together was four years ago in a soap in New York."

"Allan Shayne, president of Warner Bros. Television, hired her. I wasn't going to say anything. I hate this business of 'I'm not going to do this film unless so-and-so's in it.'"

Franks laughed and added, "And let me tell you, being on location with your wife is a lot more fun than being at home with your wife."

This is Franks' third pilot. He was previously in "Panache," a swashbuckler, and "Riding High," from the movie "Hearts of the West."

"I think the first two were as good as 'Maverick,'" he said. "When you come out here you start counting your eggs before they hatch. You say this is 13 weeks steady employment and you start making plans. People talk about how good it is, then finally say it's good for television."

Police Win Medals In Austin Contest

Several Lubbock policemen won medals at the Second Annual Texas Police Olympics in Austin last week.

The three-day competition, consisting of 15 events, was scored in age categories and was open to all sworn peace officers in local, state, federal and military police positions in Texas.

Officer Kenneth Matney scored first-place wins in shotput and in discus. David Dudley won second-place awards in the same two events in a different age category. Cpl. Ronnie Sowell placed third, behind Dudley, in the shotput competition.

Capt. Frank Wiley won second place in the 4th-flight golf competition.

Officer Roy Green won a second-place award in the rifle competition in his class.

Other LPD entries included: Ralph Bowen, who placed 4th in shotput and 5th in discus; and Darrell Crump and Tom Robison, who finished 5th in racquetball doubles. Robison also placed 6th in the 50-meter freestyle swimming competition.

Officer Ernie Rendleman injured an elbow and was unable to place in the javelin competition.

Donnie Pitts, a Texas Tech University policeman, placed third in the rifle competition.

Curbs On Pollution Tackled By Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, one of the world's biggest polluters, announced Monday it has adopted a new state standard to "cut to the minimum" the amount of harmful wastes industry can discharge into the atmosphere.

Soviet sources said at the same time that the government is becoming increasingly aware of the need for a single, centralized agency like the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. At present there is no such office here, a fact Soviet sources say hampers attempts to combat pollution.

The announcement also called for the establishment of individual agencies in large industrial cities to monitor and control pollution. The sources, who asked not to be identified, said eventually one central agency would be in overall control.

It was not specified what the minimum acceptable level for air pollution would be under the new standard, which goes into effect in January 1980.

The campaign to clean up industrial pollution began in the early 1970s. In 1976, the 25th Communist Party Congress allocated about $15 billion for a five-year program to protect the environment. The new standard is the latest in "The new state standard of purity of the atmosphere takes into account modern hygienic, economic and ecological demands," said V. Tkachenko, deputy chairman of the U.S.S.R. Committee on State Standards, who was quoted by the Communist Party newspaper Pravda in an article Monday.

Pollution in the Soviet capital has abated considerably in the past 10 years because of the installation of control devices and a continuing program to relocate major industries outside the capital. A decade ago, one Muscovite noted, the Moscow River was so polluted that no one would venture to swim in it except on the outskirts of the city. But now groups of young people swimming in the river are a common sight in summer-time.

The recent increased interest in fighting pollution does not appear to have had a significant impact on many other cities, however.

Factories Pour Smoke

In the eastern Siberian industrial city of Ulan Ude, for example, a visitor recently found the sun diffused by an acrid gray pall hovering low over the ground as a dozen or more factory stacks poured dense smoke into the air.

One Soviet source said he saw advantages and disadvantages to the government's practice of policing itself.

"It is easier to impose national standards on Soviet industry than in a capitalist society where you have to deal with private industries, unions and state governments," he said.

There has been concern, however, over whether Soviet industry is following previous government regulations to the letter and whether there has been proper enforcement of the standards. There has been considerable debate of the subject in the press, some letter-writers complaining about insufficient monitoring of compliance of existing guidelines.

Clean-Up Long Overdue

While Western diplomats here do not believe the Soviets have a worse pollution problem than the West, they contend the clean-up effort is long overdue.

Mobile air pollution sensors are being used on the streets, water treatment stations have been built, and officials have been taking steps to prevent soil erosion or overuse.

Yet, as in the West, the constant push to industrialize conflicts with the desire to protect natural resources.

"The question arises," Pravda wrote Monday, "who should determine, and in what way, the degree of pollution in the atmosphere and establish maximum admissible standards of harmful discharges."

The Kremlin, Soviet sources are quick to admit, is still working on an answer.

Hill Expects Impact From Taxpayer Vote

AUSTIN (UPI) — Approval of a California proposal limiting property taxes could encourage efforts for a similar tax ceiling in Texas, Attorney General John Hill said Monday.

Hill said that if the California initiative is approved by voters Tuesday, he will schedule meetings with Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton to discuss implications of the vote on Texas.

"I expect the vote in California to have an impact on property tax systems everywhere in the nation, including Texas, if the Jarvis initiative passes," Hill said.

"Even though property taxes in Texas have not been abused to the extent they have in California, the dramatic increases in school property taxes in the last several years have begun to pinch our farmers and ranchers and persons living on fixed incomes in many areas of the state."

"If the California initiative is adopted by the voters, I foresee efforts to impose a limit on property tax increases similar to the limit of 2 percent annually in the Jarvis initiative."

Hill said that in order to be prepared to address the issue during the 1979 legislative session, city and county governments, as well as school districts and other taxing authorities, will need to advise state leaders of the potential impact of any type of property tax limitations.

Meeting Planned

"I will meet with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton, if the initiative passes Tuesday, to coordinate our evaluation of the California proposal in preparation for the 1979 legislative session," said Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor.

Efforts in past legislative sessions to impose such tax ceilings have failed. Texas Republicans in the May 6 primary overwhelmingly approved the idea of tax limits, but the issue was not on the Democratic primary ballot.

Save-Whales Group Arrives In Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Rainbow Warrior, a vessel crewed by Greenpeace environmentalists seeking to save whales from extinction, sailed into Iceland's whaling grounds Monday to stop whalers from killing the giant mammals.

The vessel's skipper reported by radio off Iceland's southwest coast: "We plan to rest up for a couple of days and test our equipment before we take any action."

Greenpeace plans to position the Rainbow Warrior between whalers and their quarry, hoping to draw world attention to demands for a 10-year moratorium against commercial killing whales in the North Atlantic.

The organization's London headquarters said in a statement earlier Monday it had asked President Kristjan Eidejarn of Iceland to impose the moratorium off his North Atlantic island.

"Our crew, with 10 different nationalities on board, intend to represent international opposition to the continued killing of great whales," the statement said.

Icelandic authorities stress that whaling has been conducted since 1948, when it resumed after World War II, under the auspices of the International Whaling Commission.

California Tops Eight Primaries

Mississippi — For 30 years James Eastland has dominated Mississippi politics. Now he is retiring from the Senate and seven Democrats — including Gov. Cliff Finch — and two Republicans are battling for his seat.

Montana — Hatfield was appointed to fill out the term of the late Sen. Lee Metcalf and has run a lackluster campaign against Baucus who claims to have more experience from his years in Washington as the state's congressman. Tippy Huntley, widow of newsmen Chet Huntley, could win the Republican nomination for Congress.

Republican Battle

Iowa — Conservative former Lt. Gov. Robert Jepsen and moderate state Commerce Commission chairman Maurice Van Nostrand are battling for the Republican Senate nomination and the right to take on Sen. Dick Clark this fall. Republican Gov. Robert Ray faced only token opposition.

South Dakota — The retirement of Sen. James Abourezk and the resignation of Gov. Richard Kneip has sparked 10 politicians to seek two of the state's top jobs.

New Mexico — Sen. Pete Domenici is unopposed, as is his Democratic opponent, this fall. Attorney General Toney Anaya. The battle is for governor, with former Gov. Bruce King favored in the Democratic race and former State Sen. Joe Skeen ahead in the Republican contest.

Storms Again Roll Across South Plains

Storms move eastward out of the area. Skies will be partly cloudy today and Wednesday, with only four hours of sunshine expected this afternoon.

Temperatures will reach the upper 70s today, dipping to the upper 50s tonight. Wednesday should bring a return to warmer weather with a predicted high in the lower 80s.

Winds will be southeasterly at 10 to 15 mph today becoming light and variable tonight and Wednesday.

The Thursday-through-Saturday outlook for West Texas is calling for a chance of thunderstorms in the eastern portions Thursday and for most sections Friday and Saturday.

Temperatures should warm considerably across most of West Texas by Thursday, with the highs expected in the 80s and 90s.

In other parts of the state Monday, funnel clouds swirled on-and off-shore on the upper Gulf coast.

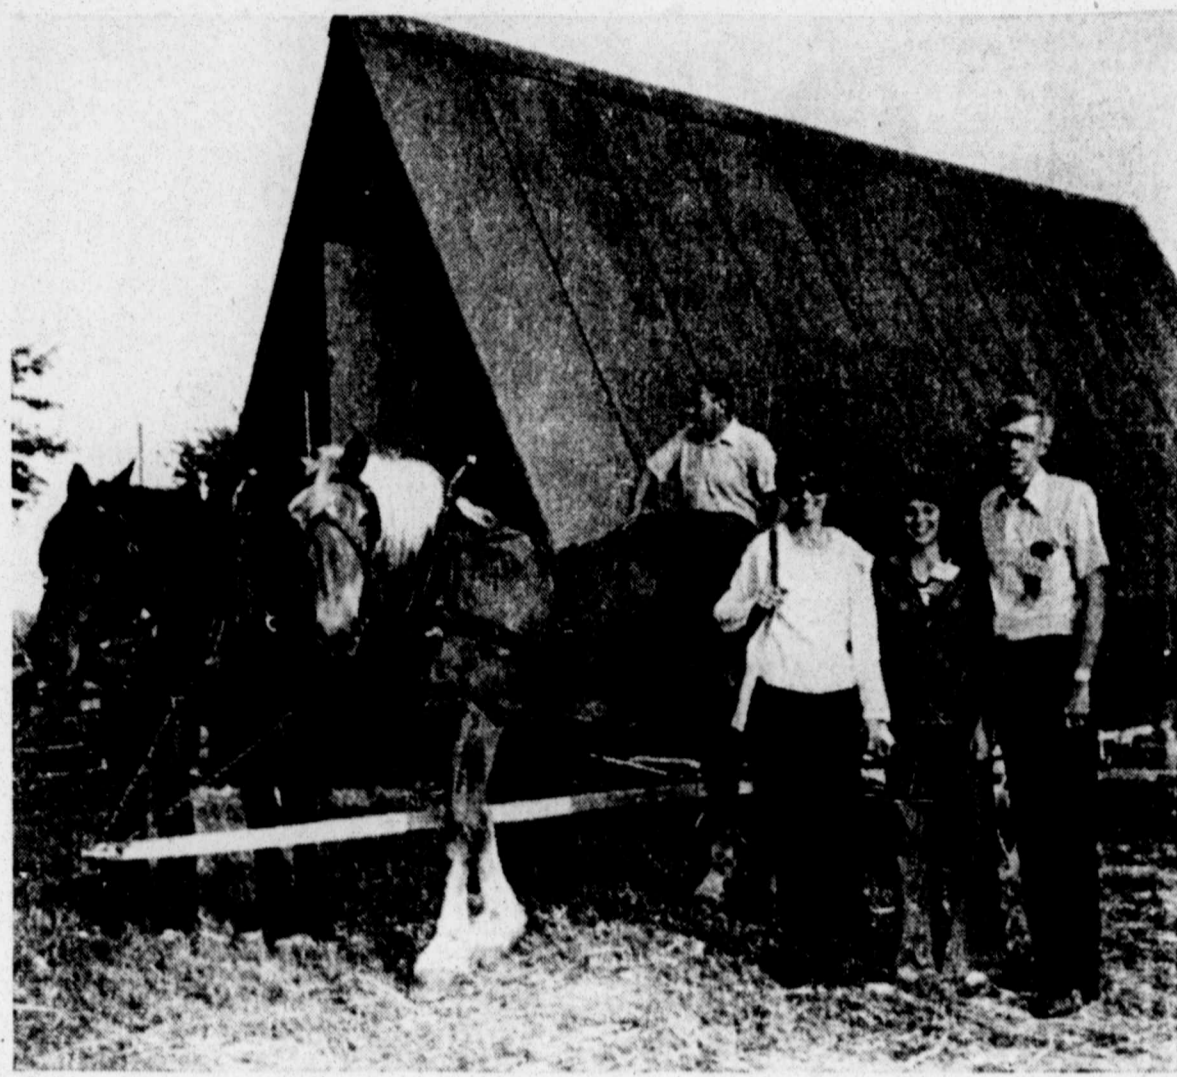

A funnel cloud was reported about two miles east of Surfside, near Freeport, shortly before noon. A waterspout — a funnel over water — was sighted two miles southeast of Texas City over Galveston Bay about 11:30 a.m., and several reports of funnel clouds were received in the Kemah, Seabrook and Baycliff areas around the bay.

Fog In East Texas

East Texas had hazy and foggy skies, reducing visibility to two to five miles.

Other portions of the Lone Star State, mostly west and northwest of a line from San Angelo to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, were either under a tornado watch or a severe thunderstorm warning Monday.

Severe thunderstorms were indicated by weather radar near the Denton and Sherman areas, near Midland and northwest of Del Rio. Reportedly, large hail, high winds and heavy rain were accompanying these storms.

Conference In Paris Ponders Africa Aid

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and four European allies with high stakes in Africa met Monday to consider stepping up financial and military aid for moderate African regimes to counter growing Soviet influence on the continent.

High government officials from the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium and West Germany attended the first Western effort to coordinate policies on dealing with Africa.

High on the agenda was the recent guerrilla invasion of Zaire's mineral-rich Shaba province, which President Carter has said was supported by both Cuba and the Soviet Union.

Two French Plans

Conference sources said France put before the meeting two plans sponsored by President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. One, calling for the creation of a $1 billion development plan, would help boost Africa's stability through faster economic growth.

The other would provide Western material and training for a pan-African peace force.

The meeting coincided with reports in French diplomatic circles that China will second the Western effort with its own aid program for Zaire.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua arrived in Kinshasa Saturday for strategy talks with Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko and accused Moscow of trying to gain control of Zaire.

Debt Rescheduling

Diplomatic sources said the conference will urge Western allies to agree to Zaire's demand for rescheduling of its huge foreign debt, estimated at $2.6 billion. They said several other meetings will be necessary to work out concrete proposals on what the West is prepared to do for moderate African regimes.

Some diplomatic analysts said the African peace force plan may harden the division of Africa into two blocs. Acclaimed by some countries, such as Togo, Morocco and Gabon, it has been violently condemned by radical anti-Western regimes, including Libya and Algeria.

In a comment that Western diplomats studiously ignored, the South African radio network said no African peacekeeping force could be effective without the presence of South Africa.

Kansas Man Charged In Death Of Texan

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — A 30-year-old Liberal man was charged with second-degree murder Monday in the weekend death of a Perryton, Texas, man.

James R. Mansfield was charged at an appearance in Seward County District Court Judge Leroy Rose set bond at $15,000 and a preliminary hearing for June 14.

Mansfield was taken into custody shortly after 27-year-old Paul Terry was shot. Terry was pronounced dead at the scene from bullet wounds to the head.

Police say Terry's parents are from Hooker, Okla., but his hometown was in Texas. The shooting apparently followed an argument between the two men at Mansfield's home.

Terry, Mrs. Mansfield's ex-husband, was at the residence visiting his three small children.

Laser Power Used To Test Civil War's USS Monitor

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — With a 10,000-watt jolt of laser power, a research team brought the nation's most advanced technology into the effort to help salvage a Civil War fighting ship, the ironclad USS Monitor, from its watery grave.

The North's Monitor fought a famous standoff battle on March 9, 1862, with the South's CSS Virginia, another ironclad which had been known as the USS Merrimack before it was captured. Nine months later, the Monitor went down in a storm and in 1973 it was found under 220 feet of ocean water about 12 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The research center of United Technologies Corp. agreed to use its laser, usually consigned to industrial research, to slice through a thin, rusty plate raised from the wreck last year.

Samples from the plate will be examined to determine the strength of the Monitor's hull before beginning salvage operations.

Gordon P. Watts, head of the underwater archeological research unit of the Department of Cultural Resources in North Carolina, said the laser was used to cut out the samples because heat buildup from lasers is highly localized. That means the metal which is cut by laser is altered less than it might be from conventional cutting.

Conrad M. Banas, chief of industrial laser applications for United Technologies, said the infrared laser beam often is used to slice half-inch steel. Invisible rays, focused by a steel mirror into a thin beam, quietly and precisely cut half a dozen strips from the crumbling iron section of the Monitor's hull Monday.

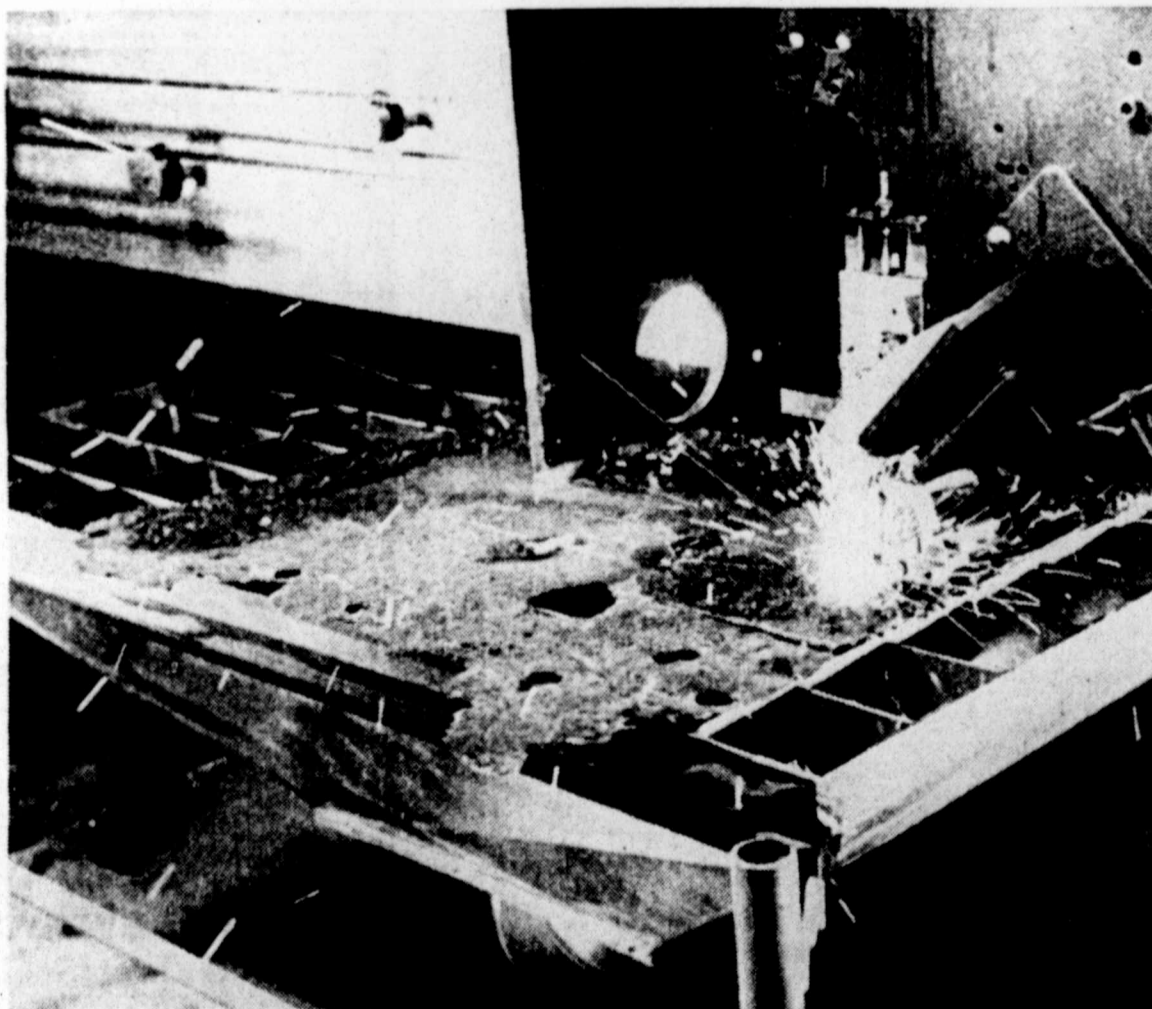

Watts said he did not know when examination of the samples would be completed or when the Monitor might be raised.

The iron plate which was cut up Monday became detached from the ship when a remote camera got tangled while photographing the inside of the Monitor, Watts said. When divers finally reached the wreck last summer they carried away the square yard or so of sheet iron.

Watts said the degree of preservation was surprising in light of the strong currents off Cape Hatteras.

He said about 10 percent of the ship is clearly unrecoverable, while 30 percent has changed radically. The rest may be in good condition, however, and portions may be almost perfect, he said.

The Monitor was one of the nation's first iron-covered vessels and also was considered innovative for its rotating turret, screw propeller and flush toilets.

LASER CUTTING—A laser beam in the infrared range cuts into an iron plate from the Civil War era ironclad USS Monitor in Hartford, Conn., Monday. Pieces from the Union warship's plate will be sent to several different laboratories for analysis in an effort to determine the condition of the ship which lies in over 200 feet of water off Cape Hatteras where it sank in 1862 during a storm. # Robbins Pledges To Introduce Tax Limitation Amendment

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Republican state senate candidate Joe Robbins said Monday that, if elected, he will introduce a constitutional amendment limiting the amount of taxes which could be collected by state and local governments and the amount governments could spend.

Less than two days into the general election campaign, Robbins proclaimed tax limitation "the most important issue of the campaign."

Robbins, currently District 75-A state representative, did not have a Democratic opponent until E.L. Short won Saturday's runoff election.

Calling high property taxes "the number one concern of every Texan," Robbins said his candidacy "will give voters a chance to put limits on the size of government."

He said his proposal is based on a proposition passed overwhelmingly by Republicans in the May primary.

Robbins proposed limits both on state and local spending, creation of a capital reserve fund for revenue in excess of the limits and "protection for local governments from state mandated costs."

He said all could be achieved in Texas "without a cut in services."

"There have been attempts to control the size of government before, but they always fail because on a program-by-program basis each separate program has the illusion of being 'cheap' and because powerful special interests are able to defend their programs," he said.

Robbins said his proposal would affect both state and local governments because "the tax spending patterns cannot be changed at one level without affecting other levels."

The amendment Robbins favors is similar to a controversial initiative to be voted on by California voters today. However, Robbins said the California initiative would roll back spending and taxes to 1975 levels while he favors maintaining current levels.

State expenditures would be "limited to the current ratio of state revenue to personal income" and would be adjusted annually for changes in the cost of living, Robbins said.

"The economic effect of this approach will be to provide an automatic 'rollback' of the fraction of the people's income taken by government each year," Robbins said, because "per capita expenditures are adjusted only for the cost of living, therefore government does not share in real economic growth."

The constitutional amendment proposed by Robbins would include "a control over property increases" and a spending limitation on all units of local government.

He said a lid on property taxes would be achieved by "indexing the property tax rate" so that property tax rates will "automatically decrease" when assessed valuations increase above the rate of inflation.

"There is no increase in the total real amount of revenue produced by taxing property, unless the people vote to change the property tax rates," Robbins said.

Revenues received by governments which exceed the amount which can be spent will be placed in a capital reserve fund, "with local government having first call on the income earned from the investment of the reserve funds," he said.

"Excess local reserves must be used to reduce the real property tax burden," Robbins said.

"Local governments have suffered greatly when the state mandates program costs or reduces the proportion of state revenues it shares with them — creating a significant source for an ever-increasing local tax burden."

Robbins said the "amendment will prohibit any further reduction in the proportion of state revenues to local government and will prohibit the state from imposing new programs or increased levels of service under existing programs unless the costs are paid for by the state."

"Bringing the cost and size of state and local government under control is an idea whose time has come," Robbins said, adding his proposal would "give citizens control over expenditures by returning a measure of self-government to the people."

On other matters, Robbins said the state Republican Party and the Associated Republicans of Texas have targeted the 28th Senatorial District as the best opportunity for Republicans to pick up an additional seat in the senate.

Robbins said he has unsuccessfully urged Gov. Dolph Briscoe to call a special session on property taxes since a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the taxes has been filed.

"However, it appears he's going to be a do-nothing governor through the rest of his term," Robbins said of Briscoe.

Robbins predicted the general election campaign for Kent Hance's state senate seat will be "clean and issue-oriented."

Change Suggested For Judicial Appointments

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Judicial Planning Committee has voted unanimously to recommend to the 1979 Legislature that the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court make appointments of administrative judges in the state's nine judicial districts.

Such appointments are now made by the governor. And according to Presiding Judge Clarence Guittard of the Dallas Court of Civil Appeals, who chaired a committee task force on ways to streamline judicial administration, the "current governor... is not receptive to this proposal."

"Maybe the next governor will be," Guittard told a meeting of the Judicial Planning Committee. Gov. Dolph Briscoe leaves office in January.

In presenting the task force report, Guittard said allowing the chief justice of the Supreme Court, now Joe Greenhill, to appoint administrative judges "would enhance the administrative structure of the Texas court system."

Greenhill is not necessarily lobbying for such authority, but voted for the recommendation.

Other recommendations for the Legislature, as presented by Guittard and his task force, and adopted by the committee, are:

- The state's nine administrative judges need to form their own council to better handle the court caseload;

- The Supreme Court needs to have the power to develop rules for court administration; and

- More statewide uniformity is needed in preparing court budgets for submission to the legislature. The committee agreed such budget preparation at the local, appellate and state levels should be coordinated by the Office of Court Administration.

Guittard said it was generally agreed that the nine judicial districts do not need any boundary re-alignments.

Atlanta Opens Pro Baseball Draft Today

NEW YORK (AP) — The last-place Atlanta Braves, looking for immediate help, have the first choice in today's annual summer free agent draft of amateur talent and have narrowed the field to four collegians.

"In our situation, we need players who can help us more quickly and we feel a college kid will get to the majors faster than a high school kid," said a spokesman for the Braves.

One of the four candidates, Kirk Gibson of Michigan State, would be unquestionably the top pick, only he's such a phenomenal athlete that the pro football scouts are also swallowing their whistles.

"Gibson stands out. The rest are a box entry," said Paul Snyder, the Braves' minor league administrator.

That box entry for Atlanta includes senior Bob Horner, an infielder at Arizona State who has set the all-time NCAA career record for homers with 56. Hubie Brooks, a shortstop who slammed 13 homers and batted .435 for Arizona State this season, and Rod Boxberger, a right-handed pitcher from Southern California.

But the premier athlete, according to nearly all the scouts who have seen him, is Gibson, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound senior who hits balls over walls and catches them behind defensive backs.

"I definitely want to play my senior year in football for Michigan State," says Gibson. "If I get drafted, I will consider that opportunity when the time comes. There's no way I'm gonna spend 4 or 5 years in the minors."

"I'm not ready to leave Michigan State. Being an athlete and student here have been the best experience of my life, and I want it to last as long as possible."

Gibson came to MSU on a football scholarship and wandered over to the baseball diamond for the first time this spring, in his junior year. He says he even surprised himself with his statistics: 16 home runs, a .390 batting average, 52 runs batted in and 21 stolen bases in 22 attempts.

His 4.3 speed for 40 yards made him the fastest player on the football team, for which he already holds the career record of 17 touchdown catches. "At 6-2, 220, he could be playing tight end, but he's so fast, they have him at flanker," says one admiring baseball scout.

And don't think he only excels in team sports. "He went out and played golf this spring for the first time in awhile and shot a 74," said Frank Pellerin, longtime assistant baseball coach at MSU. "The tennis coach told me he could make the team if he wanted to, and a basketball player told me he could have made our basketball team."

Pellerin has watched Big-10 baseball for 25 years, and he's seen Steve Garvey at Michigan State at Frank Howard at Ohio State.

"I feel he's probably the best physical prospect I've ever seen," said Pellerin. "He's a bigger version of Steve Garvey. He can run as fast as anybody we've ever had. He hits ground balls to second base and beats them out."

"And he hit balls out of sight. He hit several balls over 500 feet this season. He has as much or more power than Frank Howard. Howard didn't hit the ball as hard as Kirk does. When Kirk hits a baseball, it takes off like a golf ball."

The Braves have the first pick in the regular phase because they finished with the worst record in the National League last year. Under a rotating system, NL clubs will select ahead of American League teams in this draft.

The regular phase is for players not drafted before. If the Braves drafted Gibson and he didn't sign by the winter draft next January, then he would be thrown back into the pool and be eligible for the secondary phase.

The Braves also have the first pick in this summer's secondary phase, players drafted before but who were not signed. The draft will be conducted by a telephone conference call connecting the 26 major league teams with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office in New York. It is expected to begin at noon EDT.

Sonics Confident, Despite Loss

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics are confident they can erase the memory of the worst loss in the history of the National Basketball Association championship series and bounce back to win the title by beating the Washington Bullets Wednesday night.

"There's no question I'll get another championship ring on Wednesday," predicted Sonics forward Paul Silas, who won two of those baubles of basketball supremacy as a member of the Boston Celtics.

What about the lopsided nature of Washington's 117-82 victory Sunday, the first blowout of the best-of-seven series which is now tied at three victories apiece?

"The Bullets wanted to win so badly they came out smoking," said Silas. "With us, we knew even if we lost, we would have another chance."

That chance comes Wednesday night before a sellout crowd of 14,098 at the cozy Seattle Center Coliseum where the Sonics have won 22 in a row.

"We'll have the advantage playing at home," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens. "And you can be sure we'll play better than we played Sunday. That was the worst game we've played in a long time and it's not going to happen again. We had nothing, but we were so bad, it's easy to snap out of a game like that."

"We'll be back. We'll be up for Wednesday's game. We'll go out and play our game, execute on defense — and win."

Sonics' Captain Fred Brown also was not discouraged by the 35-point loss in which Seattle shot 33.7 percent and was outrebounded 83-59.

"It's one of those things that happens in basketball," he said with a shrug. "All our shots bounced out. Rebounds bounced the other way. Everything went their way. If (Washington assistant coach) Bernie Bickerstaff had gotten in, he'd have done well, too."

"What about Game 7 on Wednesday?" "We'll be the smart money," replied Brown. "I'm not a betting man, though I'm a Sonics' man."

Waiting Game

AS THE DAYS ease by, J T King finds more time to relax. The multiple duties of athletic director remain, but in the terms of the military, King is a short-timer.

For the remainder of the summer, with vacation time due him, it's golf practically every day if he chooses. He can sleep late in the mornings (if possible, after years of early getaways). He gets fewer phone calls (at least from irate fans). There's relief from headaches caused by recruiting violations and scheduling conflicts.

King found it in his schedule to be in Dallas this week, attending the annual college football coaches session, a get-together where the prime agenda items are settled on the golf course.

Naturally, King is not out of touch with home base, and he is still calling the shots. It's just that, right now, back at home, while King goes his work, and his final days at Jones Stadium wind down, folks are scanning the horizon for a new shadow, one to follow his.

IT WAS BACK in the winter, at a time when Steve Sloan's name was being tossed back and forth between here and Oxford, Miss., that it came to light that King would be retiring at the end of the summer. The search for an athletic director replacement began shortly thereafter, or about the time that Sloan announced he was leaving here as head football coach.

Almost immediately, the names began to pop up, out of authenticity or hope or speculation—or just plain wild imagination. And the names came from places reaching from one ocean to another.

Off the campus came reports of such names as Marvin Tate (Texas A&M), Hootie Ingram (SEC office), Burl Bartlett and Merrill Green (former Tech assistants), Andy Everest (North Texas State), Floyd Gass (Oklahoma State), and Gene Templeton (San Diego State).

Someone out there probably dreamed of Bud Wilkinson and Darrell Royal, well, it was just a wild thought.

But, generally, the word from the ones who know—the men at Tech charged with screening and selecting an AD—has been no word. As one of the actual candidates admitted Monday, "Tech has to be commended; there hasn't been a lot of wild talk about the position. They have kept their screening and considerations very quiet."

The considerations which were conducted appear now to be nearing a climax.

THE BOARD OF Regents, the group with the final say in such selection matters, has a meeting scheduled Wednesday afternoon (2 p.m.), and as one Regent commented Monday, "It's a good bet that something will be done."

Further, the meeting is called strictly for talking about "Athletic Affairs. Consideration of matters of personnel (director of intercollegiate athletics for men)."

It'll be an executive session, which means it's behind shuttered windows, and that means the Regents can throw around names without fear of them echoing past the surrounding four walls.

The list of names to be considered appears to have dwindled to three. The Avalanche-Journal has learned that interviews were held over the weekend, involving both school administrators, members of the athletic council and five Regents.

Interviewed (and in no special order) were an associate AD at the University of Illinois, probably Dick Tamburo, Dr. John Cobb, the Tech PE professor and former chairman of the athletic council, and Charley Thornton, assistant AD at the University of Alabama.

COBB, CONTACTED MONDAY, offered a polite, "No comment," to all questions concerning the interviews which were conducted in Dallas.

Thornton confirmed he had been interviewed. "I'm very impressed (with the position here) and feel it would be a good opportunity for anyone," he commented.

Tamburo did not return calls left at his office and residence at Champaign, Ill., Monday afternoon.

Although Tech president Cecil Mackey attended Alabama, he and Thornton were not there at the same time and were not acquainted until brought together by the AD search. Thornton, who attended college at Arkansas State University, has been at Alabama since 1964 and has held the assistant AD's title for ten years.

Thornton has not been on the Tech campus since attending a Coaches All-America game here in 1972. Whether this figures in the Regents' final decision remains to be seen, and it may not be a major factor in the decision. What does remain, however, will be an interesting meeting Wednesday—and possibly only one name.

NY Inks Pair To 'Swede' Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — For Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson, the hard part was over.

The two Swedish hockey stars were presented to New York Monday by their new team, the National Hockey League Rangers. And, according to the pair, meeting the media was the most difficult job of all.

"When we were with Winnipeg, we let Bobby Hull do the talking," said Hedberg, formerly of the World Hockey Association Jets, whom the Swedes led to two league titles in four years. "We just stood in the background and looked good."

The Rangers are counting on the 27-year-old Hedberg, a right wing, and Nilsson, 28, a center, to look good enough on the ice to justify the multi-million dollar contracts they each received. Hedberg and Nilsson, the most highly-sought players in the WHA, came as part of a package deal after whirlwind negotiations between their agent and 14 NHL clubs finally led to their signing with the Rangers.

"We came to North America for the challenge of playing against the best," said Hedberg. "The NHL is the place for that and New York is the place for the biggest challenge in the NHL."

The Swedes certainly will be put to the test with the Rangers, whom Madison Square Garden President Sonny Werblin has determined to improve quickly from a last-place team to a Stanley Cup contender. In addition to Hedberg and Nilsson, Werblin brought in Fred Shero as coach and general manager of the Rangers last week.

"One of the reasons we considered playing in Philadelphia before signing with the Rangers was Fred Shero," said Nilsson. "We respected the way he coaches, how he uses many European things in his system. He seems like a nice man to play for."

Shero, who has never seen either Hedberg or Nilsson play, still was impressed by their credentials.

"I haven't heard one bad word about them," he said. "There's not a doubt they're good."

"They're coming into a better league but talent will adjust to a better league. And if they don't adjust well?"

"If they're not good enough to play for the New York Rangers, they won't play," said Shero. "But they're good enough."

Nilsson scored 140 goals and 484 points in his four years with Winnipeg, while Hedberg had 236 goals and 458 points. Both were first team All-Stars in 1976 and 1978. The Rangers expect similar production.

Americans Fare Well In Britian

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Jim Gabrielsen of Atlanta reached the second round of the British amateur golf championship Monday with an 8 and 3 victory over Ed Anglage of Miami, but only one other American — Gerard Kenny of Highland Park, Ill. — was a first round winner in the morning rounds on Troon's 7,064-yard, par 72 course.

Gabrielsen, losing finalist to Trevor Homer in the British amateur four years ago, is probably the most dangerous of the low key United States contingent of 79 players, reduced by last minute scratchings from the original 86. No Americans are among the eight seeds-four Scots, three English and South African champion Gavin Levenson.

Gabrielsen started slowly against Anglage who is vacationing here and was one up on the sixth. Then he picked up three more holes to go four up on the 12th, halved the next two, and finally clinched the match when winning at the 15th 5 and 3.

Kenny, one of two brothers from Highland Park's Bob O'Link club, defeated Charles Cobb 3 and 1, and Larry Watts of Corona, Calif., nearly made it a third U.S. win when he took Roger Chapman, who plays for a London suburban club, to the 22nd before losing in match that lasted 4½ hours.

Joe Faison of Huntsville, Ala., ran up against defending champion Peter McEvoy, the Anglo-Scott and top seed won 6 and 5.

Faison, who came in as a last minute replacement when McEvoy's original opponent scratched, played solid golf and turned in a two over par 38 — good shooting on a day when wind and heavy overnight rain made low scoring difficult. But McEvoy reached the turn in a 1-under-par 35, 3-up, and Faison never recovered.

"It took me about a half-year to learn the North-American style and adjust to the smaller links here," said Nilsson. "We were tested by players when we first came over, just like everybody is. And we expect to be tested in the NHL."

"Because of the smaller links, the game is rougher here. We learned pretty quickly, though, who the tough guys are and who is just trying to be tough against us. And we learned to cope with it."

Just how well the Rangers cope with the rest of the NHL may depend on the contributions of Hedberg and Nilsson.

"Actually," said Hedberg, "the pressure isn't on us. We're just two of 20 players. The pressure is on Fred Shero. He's just one man who has to worry about all of us."

One of Shero's primary worries will be finding a linemate for the Swedes, who figure to remain on the same line. Hedberg knows exactly what kind of left wing he'd like to have.

"Someone who skates fast, works hard, shoots hard, backchecks, forechecks, passes, scores," he joked. "But I don't think Fred will find one of those."

Other early American losers were Randolph Russell of Roswell, Ga., who lost 4 and 5 to David Mackie of Scotland; Bill Cosgrove of Sutton, Maine., defeated 1 and 2 by John Glover of England; Al Clarke of Atlanta, who lost 1 and 2 to Harry Hopkinson of England and Dr. Harry Gunn of Olympia Fields, Ill., defeated 1 and 2 by D.A. Roxburgh of Scotland.

FIFA, U.S. Plan Meeting

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Emisaries of the International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA) will soon meet with soccer officials in the United States to try and resolve differences over how the game should be played, a FIFA official said Monday.

"The meeting will take place after the World Cup and I hope we can reach an agreement," said Rene Courte, FIFA's press secretary. "FIFA will not accept any rules other than those it dictates."

He warned that the North American Soccer League could be dropped from the international federation unless it conformed to the rules of soccer as played in the 145 other countries affiliated with FIFA.

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Former Kent State University sprint star Orin Richburg and veteran coach Allen Bashian were named Monday to share coaching chores for KSU's track and field program.

Noble won the club's overall average speed competition.

Drug Case Mars Play

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A doping scandal hit the World Cup soccer tournament Monday as Willie Johnston, 21-year-old Scottish star, was sent home and banned from his country's team for life.

The Scottish Football Association took the drastic action to save Scotland from possible disqualification from the competition.

Helmut Kaeser, Secretary General of the International Soccer Federation (FIFA), said it might come to that if the doping charge against Johnston was proved. A urine sample taken after the Scotland-Peru game at Cordoba last week showed traces of the banned drug fenclafamine.

The Scots did not wait for further developments. They announced Johnston had admitted taking two stimulant tablets before the game.

Ernest Walker, secretary of the SFA, said Johnston was going home immediately and further disciplinary action against him would be considered.

"The SFA has never before been involved in such a matter, and the officials concerned here are determined that the good name of our country must be protected. Whatever Scotland's results on the football field, they will be achieved fairly," Walker said.

Walker added that an investigation proved conclusively that no other Scottish players had been involved.

Only one other player has been found guilty of taking drugs in the World Cup. In the 1974 tournament in Germany, Jean Joseph of Haiti was banned from the competition and suspended from international soccer for a year. Haiti was not disqualified.

The Scots, who came to Argentina with high hopes, were already in a state of depression after being upset 3-1 by Peru in Group 4. The Johnston affair turned their World Cup adventure into a disaster.

Meanwhile it was a cat-and-mouse day among the eight teams scheduled to play in Groups 1 and 2 Tuesday.

Helmut Schoen, veteran coach of defending champions West Germany, was secretive about his lineup to face Mexico in Group 2.

"I want to give the Mexicans as little time as possible to adjust to our tactics," Schoen said.

Argentina and Italy, joint leaders in Group 1, would make certain of advancing to the second round by winning their games Tuesday. Argentina plays France at Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium, and Italy faces a Hungary at Mar del Plata.

Two Hungarian stars, midfielder Tibor Nyilasi and center forward Andras Torosick, are under a one-game suspension after being sent off the field in a match against Argentina last week.

Laszlo Baroti, Hungarian manager, pledged all-out attacking tactics. It is his team's only hope of staying in the tournament.

The surprising team from Tunisia, which stunned Mexico 3-1 last week, faces Poland in the other Group 2 game.

Nolan Views New QBs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — All four quarterbacks are young, all showed strong arms and quick feet, and all four gained another step toward their dream of a National Football League career during a three-day off season training camp with the New Orleans Saints.

"We'll know more about them when they get the pads on in Vero Beach and work under fire, but they all showed me enough to warrant a shot in camp," said Saints Coach Dick Nolan. "Basically, they all have strong arms."

"There's very little separating them right now. They all ran either a 5.0 or a 5.1 in the 40-yard dash; they all showed a pretty good grasp of the game; they all seemed pretty intelligent."

The four are sixth-round draft choice Mike Rieker of LeHigh and free agents Jimmy Dan Elzner of Texas Christian, Ed Burns of Nebraska and Jack Henderson of Oregon.

Rieker has the most impressive statistics. He led LeHigh to the NCAA Division II championship, hitting 60 percent of his passes for 23 touchdowns and 2,431 yards.

In the playoffs, he set four Division II records, throwing for eight touchdowns in the march to the title.

He feels that the pro scouts' description of him as a passer who "throws dirt in the middle ranges," is inadequate.

"I'm accurate in the short distances, but I can throw the ball 70 yards, given the opportunity," he said.

Cincy Eyes Key Series

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager Sparky Anderson wants the injury-plagued Cincinnati Reds hale and hearty by June 20. That's the target date for a series of skirmishes that could determine who is best in the National League West.

"All our people gotta be healthy by June 20," said Anderson. "For 19 days after that, we play 21 games with San Francisco, Los Angeles and Houston. Having all our guys healthy then is a key thing."

The Reds are far from healthy, but they are winning.

Despite injuries that sidelined regulars Johnny Bench, Joe Morgan, Dan Driessen, Dave Concepcion and Cesar Geronimo, Cincinnati has won 12 of 17 games.

The streak has kept the Reds in hot pursuit of the pitching-rich Giants, who lead the NL West by a half-game over Cincinnati.

"What's good right now is that we're able to mark time. Despite our injuries, we're not getting hurt in the standings. That's the greatest thing going for us right now. We're hanging right in there with first place San Francisco — and we've gained ground on the Dodgers."

Over the weekend, Anderson said Los Angeles couldn't afford to fall more than 4½ games behind the division leaders. The Dodgers now trail San Francisco by 5½ games.

"They could be in trouble. And, if we give San Francisco enough room, they'll get real brave. That's what happened last year when we gave the Dodgers too much room and they got away from us," he said.

Though they trail, the Reds are running ahead of the pace they set in 1975 and 1976 when they won 108 and 102 games on the way to consecutive world championships.

"We're showing signs of the Reds of yesteryear," said slugger George Foster, who is off to another strong start.

The Reds have come from behind in 16 of their 32 victories and have won 13 of 20 one-run games.

"That's how we did it in 1975 and 1976, but last year teams were doing it to us. Now we have quality arms, both as starters and in the bullpen. Bill Bonham and Tom Seaver keep it close for seven or eight innings, then we find a way to win it," said Foster, who won the National League Most Valuable Player award in 1977 after leading the majors with 52 homers and 149 RBIs.

Seaver, 34, has emerged from the worst start of his career and sought his fifth straight victory Monday night at St. Louis.

Bench, who has not started in a week after injuring his lower back, gives the bench credit.
