

Trio Flees In Plane After Nebraska Jailbreak

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Three maximum security inmates, including two convicted murderers in a gangland-style slaying, sawed their way out of jail Monday, overpowered an airport attendant and escaped in a twin-engine plane.

Two of the men were said to have had some flying experience.

The red and white Piper Comanche was capable of flying 800 to 1,000 miles without refueling. The Federal Aviation Administration issued a nationwide alert for the craft.

Authorities said the escapees had nearly a three-hour head start before the breakout was discovered.

Chief Douglas County Sheriff's Deputy Joe Thornton said it was uncertain how C. Michael Anderson, 26; Peter Hochstein, 24, and Dan Sheppard, 22, all of Omaha, got out of their individual cells and obtained a saw blade to remove two bars on a window in the jail's recreation unit.

Anderson and Hochstein, in custody a year this month, were convicted of first degree murder by a jury in May for the 1975 slaying of Omaha realtor Ronald Abboud. Sheppard was being held for a probation violation and on a federal misdemeanor warrant.

Anderson and Lon Reams of Omaha, who turned state's evidence, formed a corporation to pay Hochstein $1,500 to kill Abboud.

Dennis Whelan, an Omaha private investigator extensively involved in cracking the Abboud case, described Anderson as "clever and a manipulator of people" and Hochstein as an "animal who will do anything Anderson tells him."

Anderson and Hochstein were scheduled to appear June 23 before a three-judge panel for a hearing on whether they should receive life imprisonment or death.

Thornton said the escape occurred between 1 p.m. Sunday, when the three were last observed in their cells, and 4 a.m. Monday. He said the men used a tightly braided rope more than 100 feet long fashioned from bed sheets to make their escape from the top of the six-story Douglas County Courthouse in downtown Omaha.

Once on the ground, Thornton said, they stole a car that was parked several blocks away and drove to Millard Airport where they forced Craig Rader, a night attendant for Husker Aviation, to fuel the plane. Then they bound Rader with the rope used in the escape and took off in a southerly direction in the airplane.

A Husker spokesman said the plane, leased to the firm from a private party, was capable of flying five hours without refueling.

In Washington, an FAA spokesman said the alert for the aircraft, which has a tail number N7803Y, was sent to all FAA Flight Service Stations and relayed to all towers and other FAA installations. It asked that anyone spotting the plane notify the Douglas County sheriff.

Berkowitz Sentenced For Killing Six In 'Son of Sam' Spree

NEW YORK (AP) — A zombie-like David Berkowitz was sentenced Monday to a series of consecutive 25-year-to-life prison terms for the "Son of Sam" shootings that terrorized the city for a year. His judges urged that he never be freed, but state law makes him eligible for parole in 30 years.

"It is my earnest wish that this defendant be imprisoned for the rest of his natural life and until he shall die," said Justice William Kapelman of the Bronx Supreme Court.

Kapelman was one of three sentencing judges joining in a fervent plea that the man who killed six young persons and wounded seven with a .44-caliber revolver never know freedom again.

Reported Heavily Sedated

A court source who asked not to be identified said the 25-year-old Berkowitz was heavily sedated to guard against repetition of the uproar he caused three weeks ago. At that time he forced postponement of sentencing by kicking and biting his guards and chanting obscenities in court.

At one point Monday, Daniel Carrique, a friend of the family of 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz, Berkowitz's last victim, left a spectator's seat to lunge down the aisle toward the well of the courtroom, growling: "You're gonna burn in hell, Berkowitz — I'll get you!"

Israelis Repel West Bank PLO Attack

MEKHOLA, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli farmers, blasted from their beds by gunfire and explosions at 2 a.m., fought off an attack Monday on this occupied West Bank settlement by four Palestinian guerrillas and killed one of the invaders.

No casualties were reported among the 30 families of this moshav, a collective farm run by the National Religious Party.

In Beirut, a spokesman for Al Fatah — largest guerrilla army in Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization — said its raiders attacked the settlement and left Fatah flags flying from its barbed wire fence.

The army said the three guerrillas who escaped probably forced the Jordan River. See FARMERS Page 14

Questions Raised In War On Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war on cancer, officially declared in 1970 and lavishly funded since then, has hunted unsuccessfully for cures while virtually ignoring prevention, researchers told a Senate panel Monday.

The witnesses noted that the National Cancer Institute budget has increased fourfold during this decade to more than $800 million in the last fiscal year, with further increases slated for next year.

Dr. George L. Blackburn of Harvard Medical School, a leading cancer researcher, said there is a traditional emphasis on treating diseases rather than preventing them. He noted that in 1976 only 19 of the country's 114 medical schools required courses in nutrition.

"The decision-making forums at NIH, where allocation of research dollars occurs, are dominated by graduates of these medical schools; that is, physicians who have little if any formal training in nutrition and, consequently, small appreciation for recent advances in clinical nutrition," Blackburn said.

is consciously ignored by NCI," she said.

NCI Director Arthur Upton is scheduled to testify to the subcommittee today.

Dr. George L. Blackburn of Harvard Medical School, a leading cancer researcher, said there is a traditional emphasis on treating diseases rather than preventing them. He noted that in 1976 only 19 of the country's 114 medical schools required courses in nutrition.

"The decision-making forums at NIH, where allocation of research dollars occurs, are dominated by graduates of these medical schools; that is, physicians who have little if any formal training in nutrition and, consequently, small appreciation for recent advances in clinical nutrition," Blackburn said.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said that since passage of the 1971 act, "we have determined that 80 to 90 percent of cancers are apparently environmentally caused. More striking is the discovery that 40 percent of the cancers in men and 60 percent in women are nutrition-related. These include cancer of the breast, colon and rectum, liver, kidney, stomach and prostate."

He said he was distressed at "the persistence of putting all our marbles in the 'cure' basket when the only viable long-term solution is the prevention of cancer and our other killer diseases."

Nutritionists have long urged Americans to prevent diseases, including cancer. See CANCER Page 14

Anti-Busing Stand Pledged By Hance

By JEFF SOUTH
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

AS A FATHER, Kent Hance won't say anything bad about "forced busing" to his children. But as a politician, Hance strongly opposes that tool of school integration — and he promises to work to outlaw it.

The Democratic nominee for U.S. Congress explained his personal and political feelings on the issue Monday night at a meeting of We the People, a local anti-busing group.

During the Hodges Community Center session, the organization called on local public officials to go on record in favor of federal legislation prohibiting court-ordered busing of school children.

Stronger Effort Urged

Also, one of the original organizers of We the People complained that his colleagues have not taken a strong enough stand against busing. He suggested that group members should do more than write letters and lobby to get the law changed.

Leaders of We the People are urging Congress to act on HJ Resolution 456, a proposed anti-busing amendment to the Constitution; or HR 4479, a bill that would override the authority of courts to order busing.

Both pieces of legislation are tied up in the House Judiciary Committee. The committee has yet to schedule hearings on the proposals.

Backs Neighborhood Concept

Hance said he is a "strong supporter of the neighborhood school concept. I am opposed to busing."

He said he favors HR 4479, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Larry McDonald of Georgia, over the proposed constitutional amendment. Hance said a constitutional amendment could take years because states must ratify it, and he objects to changing the Constitution "each and every time something comes along."

On the other hand, Hance said, the "McDonald School Bill" would require approval of just the House and Senate.

"If a constitutional amendment were the only way, I'd vote for it," Hance said. But he believes the McDonald bill is a "better alternative."

To get the McDonald bill out of committee and directly before Congress, Hance said he would sign a "discharge petition" now pending with the House Judiciary Committee. Even if the petition can't get enough signatures of House members, the committee may be pressured to hold hearings, Hance said.

If there are hearings, he said, the antibusing bill would get "nationwide attention" — and nationwide support.

Has Personal Experience

Hance noted he has personal experience with busing. The state senator said that during the last legislative session, his son had been bused to a sixth-grade center under the Austin school desegregation plan.

Hance's fourth-grade daughter in August will be bused from Parsons Elementary, three blocks from the Hance home, to Martin Elementary on the city's east side, under Lubbock's school integration plan.

Hance urged the approximately 70 parents at Monday's meeting to instill a "positive attitude with your child while you're trying to change the law. It tears at you as a parent, but you can't tear down this country over one issue."

He said he does not want his political objections to busing to affect his daughter's education next year. "If my child is See ANTI-BUSING Page 14

Riot Defendants Refuse Pleas

HOUSTON (AP) — Travis Morales refused Monday to enter a plea to a charge of inciting the May 7 Moody Park riot that left 15 injured and an estimated $250,000 in property damage.

"If they put us in jail, there will be others to take our place," Morales, 25, said after appearing before visiting State District Judge William Brown of Texarkana.

Morales and two others named on similar charges, Mara Youngdahl, 30, and Thomas Robert Hirschi, 24, refused to enter pleas on grounds the indictments against them were returned illegally.

Brown then entered pleas of innocence for each defendant.

The indictments allege the three were responsible for nine specific acts of violence alleged to have been committed during the riot that saw a police car and a television crew's automobile burned.

Quake Kills 21 In Japan; 340 Injured

TOKYO (AP) — A powerful undersea earthquake, Japan's deadliest in 14 years, crumbled buildings, toppled utility poles and triggered landslides along the densely populated northeast coast Monday. Police reported at least 21 persons killed and 340 others injured.

The late afternoon quake was the strongest recorded anywhere in the world this year, registering 7.5 or 8 on the Richter scale. Thousands of panicked office workers and apartment dwellers had to flee down swaying staircases and dodge tumbling walls to reach the safety of city streets.

Hardest hit was Miyagi Prefecture, 180 miles north of Tokyo. In Tokyo, where at least three persons were reported slightly injured, buildings shook, bottles and cans were knocked from shelves, telephone service and commuter transportation were disrupted, and it was believed some water mains may have been broken.

Falling Poles Kill Pair

In Miyagi, two persons were reported killed by falling telephone poles and two others were crushed to death in a house under construction in the prefectural capital of Sendai.

An elderly man being treated in a hospital in Iwate, near Miyagi, died of shock resulting from the quake. There were no immediate details on the other deaths. One person was reported missing.

It was the worst death toll since a 1964 quake killed 27 persons in Niigata on the northwest coast.

Power Failure Results

A power failure knocked out street signals and snarled traffic in Sendai, a city of 554,000. At least two house fires, later brought under control, were reported in the city.

Throughout the affected region, police reported a total of 140 houses destroyed, nine bridges wrecked, roads cut at 53 locations, 17 landslides, two dikes destroyed and telephone links cut in 27 places.

A tidal wave warning was lifted about three hours after the quake.

Abzug Appointment Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is expected to name Bella Abzug co-director of a new federal advisory committee on women, despite objections from his wife and daughter-in-law.

Judy Carter, wife of the president's son Jack, said her objection was based partly on a belief that Abzug would be a hindrance in the South, a major battleground over ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

President Carter, his wife and daughter-in-law have strongly supported passage of the ERA. Carter created the National Advisory Committee for Women in April to report to him on initiatives needed "to promote full equality for women."

senior White House official who asked not to be identified said:

"Some people say the Equal Rights Amendment wouldn't be near (ratification) without Bella, but on the other hand, others say because of Bella they can't get it ratified She's alienated from the regular housewife."

He added: "The women's movement hasn't gotten itself together to see what's in its best interest."

Abzug said she expects her appointment to be announced soon and that she presumes it is being held up by FBI background checks on the 40 committee members who will be named at the same time.

Abzug said she finds it hard to believe that either Rosalynn or Judy Carter opposed her nomination to the advisory committee because "both have been very complimentary to me."

She said she would not be a hindrance to ERA efforts in the South and that she was well-received in meetings she attended in such southern states as South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

"The right wing is going to attack anyone who is effective," she said in a telephone interview.

Anne Saunier of Dayton, Ohio, who presided over the most explosive sessions at the Houston conference, says she turned down the advisory committee post.

"It was an offer no self-respecting feminist activist could accept," she said in an interview. "The support from the White House was not there."

She says she was told she would have to spend two to four weeks here, at her own expense, persuading federal agencies to loan the committee funds and staff. She was told there would be no money to pay travel or expenses for the 40 committee members. And she says she found the lines of authority for the committee fuzzy.

"But I think Bella knows the ERA is my absolutely No. 1 priority." She contended that "establishment politicians and feminists have not understood what the problem is in getting Southern states to ratify the ERA."

She said that is why she opposed Abzug or any other East Coast feminist.

A source close to Rosalynn Carter said the president's wife probably would not actively support the committee because of Abzug's selection.

Hamilton Jordan, the president's top political adviser, also opposed Abzug's selection, according to another source.

Mary Hoyt, the first lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Carter describes the report as 'simply untrue,' and that she did support Abzug for the job. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Jordan also supported Abzug as co-director of the committee.

In explaining the objections to Abzug, a

It was Anne Wexler, a recently named assistant to Carter, who was influential in his decision to name Abzug.

"I think she is an important political ally," Wexler said in an interview. "She was and is a strong supporter of President Carter. The fact is that on a number of issues she can rally women and does — and I don't think that is insignificant."

"There is no question that Bella is a red flag to any number of people, but I'm not sure she should be. It may very well be that is because of her style or her personality."

Abzug has become a controversial figure among those who favor the proposed amendment. Many see her as having little influence after losing three straight political contests in New York, two for Congress and one for mayor.

The former Democratic congresswoman from New York was chairwoman of the federal commission that put on the National Women's Conference last November in Houston.

But Abzug contended there is solid White House support for the advisory committee although the job carries no pay. She will spend much of her time during the first six months attempting to get staff and funds loaned from other federal agencies.

Carmen Votaw, head of a federation of Puerto Rican women, is expected to be named co-director.

Committee Urges NY Bankers To Aid City's Failing Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate Banking Committee today pressed some leading New York City bankers to increase their investments in the near-bankrupt city or jeopardize long-term federal financial assistance.

man of the committee, questioned what he said was the bankers' reluctance to expand investments in the city while taking what he characterized as "very shaky risks" by investing in developing countries.

Rockefeller of Chase Manhattan, told the panel that a plan for federal guarantees of $2 billion over 15 years was preferable to a mere extension of the current short-term loan program.

Sen. Donald Riegel, D-Mich., a supporter of aid for the city, said New York's major commercial banks would have to increase their financial commitment to the city in order for the city to gain more support on the committee for federal assistance.

"Why can't you do better by your own city?" Proxmire asked, adding: "I can't understand why you can't dig up a few billion dollars for your own city."

Rockefeller characterized the long-term financing plan as the "cheapest and best way for the federal government to help the city."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chair-

Proxmire said his panel will take final action Thursday on a bill intended to keep New York City from going bankrupt.

Ellmore Patterson of Morgan Guaranty Trust said the $500 million the city's 11 major commercial banks have pledged to invest is a substantial commitment. And Edward Palmer of Citibank added: "If we were able to raise $500 million then we probably could have raised $550 million, but if you're saying we could have raised $2 billion, the answer is most certainly no."

Castillo Testifies In Extortion Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Leonel Castillo, director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, testified Monday before a federal grand jury investigating an alleged extortion scheme involving a former Houston police chief.

The Carter administration, which is backing the city's bid for long-term bond guarantees, has called the committee's vote "the major test" facing the legislation.

Tourists lured to Charleston, S.C. (AP) — A Georgia hotel has erected a billboard here, proclaiming, "If you loved the unique charm of Charleston, you'll love Savannah, Georgia." Ted Kleisner, the hotel's general manager, said the strategy is logical.

Carroll M. Lynn, police chief in 1974-75, was charged in April with obstruction of justice as the FBI filed an affidavit alleging he accepted $25,000 from John V. Holden, a former oil company sales manager, in exchange for a promise to seek to have a federal securities violation indictment against Holden dismissed.

Proxmire said that despite his stated opposition to the bill, he will support some form of legislation being sent to the floor so it can be considered by the full Senate.

That is the day the federal government's current short-term loan program to the city expires. Unless it is replaced by a new aid program, Mayor Edward Koch and others have said New York could go bankrupt next month.

Lynn was alleged to have told Holden he could persuade Castillo to urge U.S. Attorney J.A. Canales to drop the case.

Both Castillo and Canales have denied any knowledge of the scheme.

While Proxmire and other committee members urged the city's leading bankers to explain their reluctance to invest further in the city without federal guarantees, the bankers, including David

Legislation To Settle Services Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed legislation Monday authorizing the appropriation of $543 million to settle $1.5 billion worth of disputed social services claims that arose between the states and the federal government before Oct. 1, 1975.

attention to provision of essential social services to needy persons," Carter said.

The disputes involved federal and state payments for such social services as day care for children, homemaker services for the aged and disabled and community programs for the disabled.

The long-standing claims against the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have already been negotiated with the states. They arose under cost-sharing arrangements between the states and the department.

Carter said in a statement released by the White House that the claims "have been tied up in court so long it sometimes seemed they would never get out. The states and the federal government have spent vast sums of money during these legal tangles," he said.

"Now the states and the federal government will be able to refocus their at-

Califano Says HEW Can Handle Big Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who last week implored Congress not to take a meat axe to his budget in a drive against waste, says the huge department can absorb a $1 billion cut without reducing any services.

The House voted overwhelmingly last Thursday to cut $1 billion from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's $182 billion budget for fiscal 1979, with the funds to come out of the $6 billion that HEW itself estimates it wastes each year.

A week ago, Califano sent every member of Congress a letter warning that "meat axe cuts will reduce the funds available for the millions of Americans who benefit properly from HEW programs."

He also sent the lawmakers a lengthy directive to his department chiefs setting targets to reduce waste next year by $1.1 billion and by twice that amount in 1981.

In a 100-word written comment on the House vote obtained from a department spokesman Monday, Califano raised no objections to the cut. The secretary said:

"The House vote recognizes, as this department itself has also done, the demand of the American people for more efficient government."

"HEW had previously identified that $1 billion as its own target for reducing fraud, abuse and waste during 1979 through a series of vigorous and systematic management actions. We intend to meet or exceed that goal."

"We will not cut programs that properly benefit millions of Americans. But we will work to stop the leakage of program funds."

Rep. Bob Michel, R-Ill., who proposed the budget-cutting amendment that the House approved 290-87, said Monday, "It sounds like old Joe is doing the Jerry Brown shuffle on that one."

Michel was referring to California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who was an outspoken critic of that state's tax-cutting constitutional amendment. Since the amendment passed, some critics contend, Brown has virtually adopted the proposal as his own.

Some congressmen said the passage of California's Proposition 13, the tax-cutting amendment, prompted the strong vote in the House on the amendment.

Michel, the ranking Republican on a House subcommittee that handles HEW appropriations, said Califano's statement "sure doesn't square with that 20-page letter they sent trying to get members to vote against us."

Michel had cited HEW's targets for reducing waste in urging approval of the cut. "I'm taking them at their word. How could we do any less?" he asked.

In his report on waste, fraud and abuse last March, the HEW inspector general said only about one-seventh of the $6.3 billion to $7.37 billion the department wasted was lost to outright fraud and ripples. The bulk of the waste was money that HEW paid for excessive medical services under Medicare and Medicaid.

Califano revised the overall estimate of HEW's waste by $838 million last week, putting the new range at between $5.5 billion to $6.5 billion.

Auto Safety Studies Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three new auto safety investigations involving alleged problems of fuel leakage, steering and vehicle control were announced Monday by the Department of Transportation.

The alleged problems concern fuel leakage in Ford Granadas and Mercury Monarchs, steering mechanisms in Ford Pinto and Mustang II vehicles and Mercury Bobcats and front wheel bearings on Fiats.

Ford Motor Co. had no immediate comment. A Fiat spokesman said the company was confident the investigation would not find a safety-related problem with the bearings.

Ford agreed last Friday to recall 1.5 million Pintos and 30,000 Bobcats to correct fuel tank defects that safety officials said could lead to fires in rear-end collisions.

The new investigations are being made by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration after allegations about the safety of the products. After more information is collected the agency may call for a public hearing before determining whether recalls should be made.

One investigation concerns an alleged leakage problem in the fuel line of 1975 and 1976 Ford Granadas and Mercury Monarchs equipped with V8 engines. The department said the leaks could result in engine compartment fires.

Some 568,000 vehicles are involved. The department said fuel leakage can occur at the point where a small rubber hose connects the metal fuel line to the fuel filter which is attached to the carburetor. It asked drivers to check the rubber hose and its clamps for signs of fuel leakage and to have repairs made promptly.

The steering case involves 1973, 1974 and 1975 Pinto, Mustang II and Bobcat vehicles without power steering, totaling 1,266,000 cars. The department said the problem involves the steering coupling flange. It said drivers who notice a sudden abnormality in their steering, such as slippage when the steering wheel is turned, should have repairs made promptly.

The third investigation involves Fiat 128 and X-1-9 vehicles sold from 1973 through 1977. The department said the failure of front wheel bearings on these cars, totaling some 221,000 vehicles, can result in the loss of vehicle control because of wheel loosening, lockup or separation.

Frans Donck, vice president of engineering and service for Fiat Motors of North America, Inc., with offices in Montvale, N.J., said Fiat has conducted exhaustive tests and investigations of complaints about the bearings.

"We have found no instance of dangerous bearing failure nor substantiated complaints of loss of control, wheel looseness, wheel lockup or wheel separation. We are confident the NHTSA investigation, with which we have cooperated fully, will not find a safety related problem with these bearings," Donck said in a statement.

Big Postal Wage Hike Prospect Irks Strauss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Strauss, President Carter's chief inflation fighter, said Monday that if the nation's 540,000 postal workers win a big new wage hike it will seriously damage efforts to restrain increases in many other industries.

"If we don't get a reasonable agreement in the postal negotiation, it's an outrage," Strauss told a meeting of Massachusetts municipal officials here.

"If we lose this particular negotiation, if it goes through the roof, it will have a bad impact on every other negotiation we have coming up in the future," Strauss said.

"Therefore, I hope the postal officials will be as tough as they can be."

The negotiations between the U.S. Postal Service and the postal workers are the first major national wage talks since Carter announced his anti-inflation effort in April.

Strauss said he intends to use "all my strength" and influence in seeking restraint in the current negotiations, which are to be completed by mid-July.

So far neither management or the union have made specific money proposals.

But the Carter administration has been anxious to press home its anti-inflation arguments so the postal talks do not set a bad example for the other industries in which contract settlements are to be negotiated in the next several months.

Strauss said that he does not want to be portrayed as anti-union or anti-labor because of his remarks.

Court Clears Way For Nazis' March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court cleared the way Monday for a demonstration by American Nazis in the Chicago suburb of Skokie where 7,000 survivors of World War II Nazi concentration camps live.

request by Skokie officials that the planned rally on June 25 be postponed pending consideration of the village's formal appeal.

The court's denial of the request, which had been submitted to Justice John Paul Stevens last week, was announced without comment by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

Skokie, a largely Jewish community of about 70,000 residents, has fought legal battles for more than a year attempting to block any type of demonstration by a small group of Nazis called the National Socialist Party of America.

State and federal courts have all ruled against the village. Community officials claim the demonstration would cause particular harm to the 7,000 residents who were in concentration camps during World War II.

In Monday's vote, Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist voted in the minority and said the June 25 rally should be postponed pending consideration of the village's appeal.

Both justices said they wanted to study the Skokie case in light of a 1952 Supreme Court decision involving free-speech and free-expression limits. But they were overruled.

The Supreme Court's action did not affect the lower court rulings against the village's attempt to halt the demonstration which is to be held in front of the Skokie village hall.

The lower courts had struck down as unconstitutional village ordinances which barred marches in paramilitary uniforms and the distribution of "hate literature" and required a $350,000 insurance bond for public demonstrations.

The village filed a formal appeal to the Supreme Court, but that case is not expected to be decided until after the demonstration takes place. Therefore, village lawyers submitted their request to Stevens last week.

Lawyers for the village had told Stevens, "Unless a stay order is granted, the Nazis will conduct their demonstration and the issues raised in this case will have been largely rendered moot."

"The national attention this case engendered, the intensity of passion which it has aroused and previous experiences of the village of Skokie have made it certain that a massive confrontation will occur on June 25," the lawyers argued.

But the American Civil Liberties Union, representing the Nazis, argued that the village's contention that their case would be rendered moot if the demonstration is held before the justices consider the village's formal appeal is "completely unfounded."

"The presence or absence of a single assembly cannot moot any judicial decision invalidating the ordinances in question and preventing their future enforcement," ACLU lawyers argued.

State courts, a federal trial judge and the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals all have ruled that the Nazis have a constitutional right to demonstrate in Skokie.

The Nazis, led by Frank Collins of Chicago, plan to hold a "White Power" rally in front of the Skokie village hall. They members are to be dressed in full Nazi uniform and will display swastikas.

In clearing the way for the rally, the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of appeals on May 22 ruled:

"If these civil rights (of freedom of speech, expression and assembly) are to remain vital for all, they must protect not only those society deems acceptable but also those whose ideas it quite justifiably rejects and despises."

Board To Try School Bond Election Again

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — The Childress Independent School District board of trustees has announced an upcoming bond issue election that would pave the way for construction projects carrying a price tag of almost $2 million.

The action, which was approved in a recent special session of the board, came on the heels of a resounding defeat at the polls of an earlier school bond issue.

In April, voters turned down two proposals which would have provided a new kindergarten through eighth grade school plus improvement at the high school. One of those plans required about $2.5 million in funds while the second proposal would have needed about $3 million.

Superintendent Glen Lowrance said board members "burned the midnight oil" in a lengthy session that resulted in the new bond issue proposal which would build a new school for kindergarten through fifth grade. The plan also would provide for improvements at Junior High School. The election has been set for July 11, and voters will be asked to approve a bond issue of $1,995,000.

"We feel it will meet our needs, although, not necessarily our total needs," Lowrance said. "But it's something that's going to have to be done."

In other action, the board unanimously appointed Mrs. Judy Johnson to the school board office recently vacated by the resignation of Clint Crawford. Lowrance said Crawford's resignation was to allow a member of his family to accept a position with the school district. Regulations prohibit new employees of the school system from being closely related to board members.

Nobody Biting In Fish War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fish war between the United States and Canada is not a whale of a story.

No patriots on either side have inspired the masses with stirring slogans such as:
— Give me haddock or give me death.
— I have not yet begun to fish.
— Praise the lord and pass the bait.

The war celebrated its birthday Monday. It is 60-fish-ally one week old — one week since Canada, angered at U.S. reluctance to enter into a provisional bait

The United States, properly net-tied and never one to coddle an antagonist, promptly told all Canadians to reel in their lines from U.S. waters.

Seinity has not yet returned. Neither nation has determined what effects the war has had on its purses.

Asked about the progress of the war, a Coast Guard spokesman reported Monday, in droll fashion: "We've had no incidents on either coast."

No anglers are crossing the bar jack and fishing in each other's waters. And Coast Guardsmen are still on their perch, waiting for diplomats to mullet over.

But the diplomats are as silent as scallops. Neither side is crabbing about the other. Neither side is trolling any red herrings.

In other words, for more news, tuna in tomorrow.

And if you think this story is bad, holy mackerel, you should have seen the one that got away!

Soil, Water Issues To Be Discussed

CROSBYTON (Special) — Views will be exchanged on soil and water conservation programs Monday in a public meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Crosbyton Pioneer Memorial Building.

R.H. Farris Jr., director of the Rio Blanco Soil and Water Conservation Board, and Silas Flournoy, district conservationist, will co-chair the meeting.

The meeting is being held as a result of the Resources Conservation Act of 1977, signed by President Carter in November. The act recognizes the need for public participation to insure that conservation programs are effective and responsive to public needs.

Written statements may be presented at the meeting. If for some reason, a person is not able to attend, a statement will be accepted at the Soil Conservation Service office, here, or by any director of the Rio Blanco SWCD. Joe Darden of Lorenzo is secretary.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET INDEX

Market Has Erratic Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices advanced slightly in an erratic session today following a Bethlehem Steel pricing move that the White House hailed as a "major breakthrough" in the fight against inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 4 points at its mid-day peak, showed a 7.8 gain at 860.01 an hour before the close.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 7-6 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was moderate. Big Board volume came to 22.24 million shares as of 3 p.m.

Early in the day Bethlehem Steel announced a 3 percent price increase on steel mill products and said it didn't expect any further "boost" this year.

Robert Strauss, who heads the White House's anti-inflation campaign, said it was "probably the most significant step" to date since the Carter administration began its intensive effort to persuade corporations and labor unions to hold down wage and price increases.

TV Series Boon To Kentucky Village

AUGUSTA, Ky. (AP) — In 1937, the Great Ohio River Flood almost removed Augusta from the map. After two weeks as the filming location for a major television special, townspeople are convinced this tobacco-rich community of 1,500 has reached a new high water mark.

"Augusta began turning around about seven or eight years ago, and this has to help. It's the biggest thing that ever happened in this city," said Mayor Tom Appelman.

Augusta went Hollywood for its role in the NBC's 25-hour miniseries "Centennial." The $32 million special, adapted from James Michener's best-selling novel on the settling of the West, is scheduled for airing in November. It will be the longest miniseries ever shown.

Set designers have turned the clock back almost two centuries, transforming Augusta into St. Louis from the years 1796 to 1844, when it served as the stepping off point for westward-bound pioneers.

An old row house, in disrepair since the flood, was remodeled — at a cost of $100,000 — by Universal Studios, into a series of early-day taverns, hotels and shops.

The set faces the riverfront and will be the scene of barroom brawls and bustling nightlife. Storefronts carry prop signs advertising for muleskinners, river rats and bargain booze.

A ferry boat, converted into a paddle-wheel steamboat, is anchored near flatboats laden with whiskey barrels, cotton bales and furdies.

To achieve the proper effect, 84 truckloads of dirt were dumped on the paved streets, prompting some citizens to grumble when a downpour left "a sea of mud."

"A couple old-timers say they can remember when Augusta looked like that, with the dirt streets and all," said Appelman.

Ten miles upriver, outside of Ripley, Ohio, an Indian fight was filmed on Eagle Creek, out of view of a nearby boat marina.

Eleven days of filming included appearances by such stars as Clint Walker, Richard Chamberlain, Raymond Burr, Robert Conrad, Chad Everett, Sally Kellerman, Robert Walden, Richard Jaeckel and Stephanie Zimbalist.

The Augusta portion will make up two hours of the series and will feature about 90 extras from the Kentucky-Ohio area.

Augusta, described by Appelman as "a peaceful little village and a great place to live," was selected because of its esthetic values and the lack of telephone lines along the riverbank.

Once a great wise capital, Augusta was partially destroyed by cannon fire in 1862 when Morgan's Raiders, a Confederate band, attacked the Union-sympathizing town.

The filming was a boon to the community's economy, the mayor said.

"The restaurants, grocery stores, filling stations and lumber mills have all benefited," said Appelman. "It's got to help our tourism and community pride."

Dentist's Receptionist Gives Testimony At Sex Abuse Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A receptionist in the office of Dr. Marvin Teicher testified Monday that the dentist embraced some patients as a means of reviving them from sedation.

Carmen Hernandez said she did not know how many times she saw the dentist wrap his arms around patients and hug them.

"But he does put his arms around the patient and hold them by the back," defense attorney Henry Rothblatt asked.

"Yes," Mrs. Hernandez replied through an interpreter.

Teicher is accused in state court of three counts of sexually abusing female

Soviets Level Spying Charges

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, carrying out a threat to divulge details of American spy activities, accused the CIA Monday of an elaborate undercover operation here involving caches of gold, secret dropoffs of instructions and an American woman spy purveying poison.

The government newspaper Izvestia leveled the charges in response to U.S. accusations that the Soviets are spying on the American Embassy in Moscow and to an espionage trial now under way in New Jersey.

It said the details of the U.S. activities had been kept quiet at Washington's request, but that the United States was now trying to build up a "scandal" over alleged Soviet spying and the time had come to respond.

The U.S.S.R. last July, was in fact expelled for espionage and that American Ambassador Malcolm Toon had requested at the time that the matter be kept quiet.

The newspaper charged that poison supplied to a spy by Miss Peterson was used to kill an "innocent" who stood in the way of the CIA.

Neither the embassy nor the State Department in Washington had any comment Monday. But informed sources in Washington who asked not to be identified said Miss Peterson was a CIA employee who had been working in a cover job in the embassy's consular section.

The Izvestia article appeared just over a week after the United States reported the discovery in its Moscow Embassy of secret Soviet electronic equipment believed to be listening devices.

On Monday, a ranking Western diplomatic source here said the equipment was of a kind never before seen by security specialists and that it needed further analysis.

In response to these allegations of eavesdropping on the embassy, the Soviets had warned they might reveal documentary proof of U.S. espionage here.

Izvestia described in detail the case of Miss Peterson and said it was just one of a network of cases "uncovered by the Soviet counter-intelligence service."

On the evening of July 15, it said, Miss Peterson parked her car in a poorly lit place, changed her dress and took a series of buses to a bridge over the Moscow River, where she put "an ordinary-looking stone" into an archway.

She was detained there, the "stone" was opened, and it "proved to be a cache containing cameras, gold, money and instructions, as well as ampules with a poison," Izvestia said.

"The Soviet counter-intelligence service established beyond a doubt that the poisons taken from the cache had been sent to Moscow by the Central Intelligence Agency not for the first time," it said.

"It was discovered in the process of investigation that the poison that was given to the spy earlier was used by him against an innocent person who stood in his way," Izvestia said. By "the spy," Izvestia apparently was referring to the intended recipient of Miss Peterson's material.

After she was seized, Izvestia said, Ambassador Toon was summoned to the Foreign Ministry and told she must leave the country, the paper said. Western sources said, however, that Miss Peterson was declared "persona non grata" only after her departure last summer.

The Izvestia account, headlined "Who Needs It?" included two photographs, one showing a table covered with alleged evidence of espionage, the other showing Miss Peterson sitting at a table with U.S. Consul Clifford Gross.

"Also implicated in this espionage," Izvestia said, were Robert Fulton, first secretary in the embassy political section from mid-1975 to mid-1977, and two men who visited briefly in 1975 from Washington, S. Karpovich and J. Gruener.

Izvestia described the Newark, N.J., espionage trial of Soviet United Nations employees Valdik Enger, 39, and Rudolf Chernyayev, 43, as "theatrical buffoonery."

Aerospace Workers Approve Contract

DETROIT (AP) — More than 18,000 aerospace workers ratified labor contracts in the United States and Canada over the weekend, the United Auto Workers said Monday.

The pacts with Rockwell International Corp., Bell Helicopter Textron and McDonnell Douglas Corp. provide for major gains in retirement and early retirement programs and other improvements, the UAW said.

UAW Vice President Ken Bannon said the agreements are comparable to those reached earlier this year after a three-month strike against McDonnell Douglas in the United States.

The settlements brings the 1977-78 round of aerospace bargaining closer to conclusion but negotiations covering several thousand more workers are under way or scheduled.

About 1,600 Canadian workers for McDonnell Douglas approved settlements by 80 percent or more. The pacts cover Locals 673 and 1967 in Walton, Ont.

Commissioners Split Over JP Secretary

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy got another secretary Monday on a split vote of the Lubbock County Commissioners Court.

LeCroy, who has complained recently with other Lubbock J.P.'s of being overburdened, left the meeting room with a polite "Thank you" after a motion by Commissioner Jim Lancaster of Dalou to authorize hiring the secretary failed to get a second.

Then, after a few minutes of random discussion about city automobile tax case filings, Commissioner Coy Biggs of Stanton it was "hard to deny him" the $246 a month a half-time secretary would cost and that he would second the motion.

Commissioners Alton Brazell and Edgar Chance voted no, and County Judge

Rod Shaw voted for the motion to break the tie.

Chance explained that he felt a standing request from J.P. L.J. Blalack for another secretary should be considered equally. Shaw said the court could still consider more help for Blalack, the Precinct 1, Place 1 J.P.

Judge Charles E. Smith of Precinct 1, Place 2 also has complained of overwork but has not formally asked for another secretary.

Smith and LeCroy both will have 4 1/2 now, counting the CETA or trainee secretary Smith employs, while Blalack has two.

Each has said he may need an additional secretary when the city begins filing its tax cases at 400 a month July 1.

LeCroy said Monday afternoon that he will need no more than one more to handle the tax case load.

Shaw said in breaking the tie that he could approve another secretary because each time a secretary has been added the revenue of the office has increased sufficiently to pay her salary.

Monday morning, the commissioners were told 24 bidders are taking part in bidding for construction of the new Lubbock County jail.

County architect Arnold Maeker said seven general contractors, 13 mechanical and electrical contractors and four detention equipment manufacturers are preparing bids, which means theoretically that the bids will be more competitive and the commissioners will have a better choice when equipment bids are opened June 22 and the rest June 29.

Maeker said he had expected no more than three bids for detention equipment including cells, laundry equipment and other items.

Identity Of Americans Lost In Blur Of Cards

By 208 027 49
Associated Press Writer

Who are you?
How do you know?
How would you prove it?
Silly questions, you say. But stop and think. What would your answers be?

In today's computerized society, we are, largely, a collection of numbers and symbols. We start with a numbered birth certificate and end with a numbered death certificate. In between there are numbered licenses, numbered bank accounts, numbered permits and numbered cards. Millions of them.

Once upon a time it was the people behind bars who were known by their numbers; today, it is the people on the outside.

The identity of many Americans is circumscribed by plastic cards. Cards that let you cash a check. Cards that let you buy on credit. Cards that let you take money from your bank account, day or night.

Spencer Nilson, publisher of a newsletter about credit cards, estimates that there are more than 586 million credit-type cards outstanding in the United States today.

Do you have your share? Cardholders today carry an average of 5.2 pieces of plastic each, Nilson said. By 1985, the average will be up to 8.4 per cardholder.

If you doubt that your identity belongs to a pocketful of plastic and paper, think about losing your wallet. Try proving who you are without a driver's license or a credit card.

A federal task force considered requiring every American to carry a national identity card similar to those in some other countries. The idea was dropped, however, partly because of concern over individual privacy. They stopped issuing draft cards with the end of the draft.

The need to identify ourselves remains, however. In some cases, identification is a matter of personal convenience — cashing a check, for example. In others, it is a matter of public policy — the photographing and fingerprinting of itinerant workers in Louisiana because of worries over crime.

The most common card is probably the Social Security card. More than 190 million people have them. You can't use a Social Security number to identify yourself, but the government uses it to identify you for everything from taxes to Medicare.

Drivers' licenses are nearly as prevalent. The American Automobile Association estimates that by the end of 1977, 135 million people — 80 percent of those eligible — had them.

Less prevalent, although much older, is the passport. The U.S. Passport Office says 13.4 million passports had been issued domestically through last year.

The first request for that kind of identification came, according to the Passport Office, in 450 B.C., when the King of Persia appointed the Babylonian, Nehemiah, as the new governor of Palestine. Nehemiah asked for — and got — a letter of safe conduct, the precursor of today's passport.

The great proliferation of identification accompanied the explosive growth of credit and credit-type cards. The card companies even advertise it, making the holder "somebody." One card gives you "clout," the ads say. Another boasts that it helps identify celebrities, like former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin and tennis champ Virginia Wade, whose names are known, but whose faces are not.

Some worry about the growth. Legislation is pending in Congress, for example, to protect people who use debit cards to withdraw money from their bank accounts via machine.

There are 14 million debit cards, but they represent only a tiny fraction of the plastic money in circulation. According to Nilson, there are 298 million retail store cards; 133 million oil company cards; almost 93 million bank cards like Visa and Master Charge; 14 million check cashing cards and 10.3 million "travel and entertainment" cards like American Express and Diner's Club.

"The trend is to more cards, not less," said Nilson. "People want a lot of cards," he said, adding that they don't want to be limited to a single line of credit.

Nilson, of Santa Monica, Calif., is trying to start a club for credit card collectors. One candidate for membership might be Walter Cavanagh, a drug store manager from Santa Clara, Calif., who has made the Guinness Book of World Records with his collection of 897 cards. His total credit limit on all the cards is $1 million.

Museum Officials Meet In New Mexico

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — Museum enthusiasts will meet here Wednesday through Friday at Eastern New Mexico University as the Roosevelt County Museum hosts the annual meeting of the New Mexico Association of Museums.

Practical methods of preserving and mounting textiles for exhibition will be demonstrated by Nora Fisher and Nora Pickens of the Museum of International Folk Art in Santa Fe. Wendell Ott and Wesley Rusnell of the Roswell Museum and Art Center will present demonstrations on preparing and caring for two-dimensional materials.

Cleaning of prints, drawings and manuscripts, matting and framing and framing and unframing paintings also will be included.

The three-day meeting also will include visits to the Roosevelt County Museum, Miles Museum, Natural History Museum, Blackwater Draw Museum, Paleo-Indian Institute and the Art Gallery of the Golden Library. All of the museums are operated by ENMU.

Yvonne Lane, director of the International Folk Museum of Santa Fe, will preside over the meeting. William Mettenet, associate professor in geography at ENMU, and director of the Roosevelt County Museum, is the program chairman.

LIVE FROM THE HOUSE — Associated Press newsman Charles Van Dyke watches a monitor at the Capitol Monday as he broadcasts live the proceedings on the floor of the House of Representatives. House members voted last October to allow the coverage. (AP Laserphoto)

House Proceedings Broadcast

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in the history of the House of Representatives, the sound of a session's opening gavel was heard live Monday by radio audiences throughout the United States.

As Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said in a floor speech minutes later, "We are giving the American people a chance to hear exactly what is said in this chamber." About a dozen congressmen were in the chamber for the first historic moments.

Although only Associated Press Radio broadcast the proceedings live, with a five-minute feed to radio stations, most major networks and other broadcast outlets taped selected portions of the day's events for airing later in the day.

NBC's Peter Hackes had planned to combine a live broadcast of the proceedings with a few seconds of the speech made by Gore a short time earlier.

But to Hackes' dismay, there was a routine roll call at the time he was to go on the air, and no sound came over the chamber microphones. Hackes was forced to use tape exclusively.

"The highlight was getting off the air," laughed Hackes.

The happenings in the House chamber were piped to the House Radio-Television Gallery, and a monitor screen visually enabled correspondents to identify speakers.

Correspondents can broadcast live from the gallery but not from the chamber itself.

The Coalition for Professional Broadcast Coverage of the House Floor, which consists of the three major networks and other news organizations, has been pressuring congressional leaders for the right to use their electronic systems in recording floor proceedings.

Now, technicians employed by Congress sit inside the chamber and man the equipment which feeds into the radio-television gallery. The technicians decide what to give the radio reporters in the gallery.

Len Allen, a spokesman for the coalition, said a letter will be sent to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill asking for the right to have private technicians on the floor.

Hackes and other broadcast reporters said chances of day-by-day live coverage is slim. They said only very momentous events are apt to be carried live.

FLORENCE SUTTON LOST OVER 124 POUNDS AND 143 INCHES

Since I started Pat Walker's I have lost 124 lbs. and 143 inches.

A lot has happened since my first picture appeared in the paper. I have lost more weight and I have even lost a 1/2 size in my shoe size.

Needless to say, I feel and look like a different person. On one occasion a person both my husband and I know wasn't going to speak because they thought my husband was with somebody else. This person is amazed at the change I have made.

I made a New Year's Resolution to do something about my weight problem. I think I have kept that resolution. I have tried a number of diets but the Pat Walker routine is one I could live with the rest of my life.

The biggest thrill I get is shopping for clothes and being able to pick and choose. When you wear a size 24 you don't have much choice, but size 8 you have a better selection.

If you have a weight problem this is the place to come.

Green Shoots For Open Title

DENVER (AP) — Hubert Green takes a low-key, rather cautious approach into the defense of his U.S. Open golf championship.

"I like to think I'm playing well enough to win it again," he said, "but the world won't end, I won't slash my wrists if I don't."

A successful defense of the title he won with such a courageous display last year is, of course, his prime concern this week. In the over-view of his career and his goals, it is of less importance.

"The goal in every tournament is to win," Green said. "You try to go your very best every week, every time you tee it up. You try as hard as you can. So, if you're trying as hard as you can every week, how can you try harder in the U.S. Open?"

While he wants to win — and his credentials say he's a prime candidate to repeat — he has more far-reaching plans.

"I want to be a better player. I want to improve, continue to improve," he said in his peculiar, rapid-fire manner of speaking. "Every man wants to be a success in his field. I want to be a success in mine."

Does that mean winning in the major events?

"The press makes the majors," he replied.

"A tournament is a major just because the press says so, because so many reporters show up and write about it. The press made the Masters. The baseball writers were down south on spring training and it made a nice stop on the way back up north and they started writing about the Masters and made it a major."

"The others, the Open and PGA and the British Open, have been around long. But they're majors just because the press says so. If the press doesn't write about them, they aren't."

But his goals are in those accepted majors, the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

"Now that I've won the Open, if you asked me to name one tournament I'd like to win, it's the Masters," he said. "That's the one I'm really pointing for and then, hopefully, go on to the Slam (a career sweep of all four)."

"Being the Open champion has been a great experience for me. It's made me more visible, more recognizable to a lot of people. I've been particularly noticeable when I'm playing overseas. As the Open champion, I'm considered a representative of the United States, not just another player."

"It's been very enjoyable. But it's a learning experience, too. You learn that as the Open champion, you're considered an expert on all things involving this country, politics, whatever. You have to learn to be careful in what you say."

It's a role he enjoys — and one he wants to extend.

"Nobody can say he's going to win such and so tournament," Green said. "You can know when you're playing well enough to win. But that doesn't mean it will happen."

"I think I'm playing well enough to win. And I think it will be a veteran, experienced player who wins it."

Green, who has skipped a couple of tournaments to concentrate on preparations for this one, comes in with two victories for the season and an impressive 14 for his career. He ranks sixth on the season's money-winning list with $147,491.

TRADE VICTIM?—Minnesota Twins slugger Rod Carew takes a cut at the ball last year, when he led the major leagues with a .388 batting average. Twins May Deal Batting Champ

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith said Monday there's a "good chance" six-time American League batting champion Rod Carew will be traded before Thursday midnight — the major league trading deadline.

Griffith said he is negotiating with a number of American League teams, including five that Carew said he would be willing to play for. Those five teams are the New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox, California Angels, Texas Rangers and Kansas City Royals.

"Some of the teams that weren't included (on the list submitted by Carew) are interested," Griffith said in an interview.

"We haven't decided anything. We are talking," said Griffith. "There's nothing definite about anything. We are trying to find out what is available for Rod Carew."

Griffith indicated that Carew asked to be traded. "Rod Carew told us what he would like," said Griffith. As an 11-year major league veteran, Carew has veto power over any trade.

The Twins official said it would take a deal similar to what Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley got for pitcher Vida Blue to land the Twins superstar. Griffith noted that Finley sent Blue to San Francisco for seven players and $400,000 in cash.

"We feel we should get something similar for Rod Carew," said Griffith.

Asked what the chances were of the Twins arranging a deal before the trading deadline, Griffith said: "There is a good chance of it, yes..."

Griffith, however, declined to single out the team which might land Carew. "Your guess is as good as mine," he said.

The 32-year-old Carew set the stage for a trade by rejecting a contract offer from the Twins last week. Carew, who won the 1977 batting title with a lofty .388 average, currently is paid about $190,000 in the final year of a three-year contract, which also binds him to the Twins for an option year in 1979.

Griffith reportedly offered Carew a five-year contract for around $2 million but neither party would confirm that figure.

Buffalo Owner Meets With Dallas Group

DALLAS (AP)—John Y. Brown, the majority owner of the Buffalo Braves, met with Dallas Mayor Bob Folsom again Monday about moving the National Basketball Association franchise but fell short of giving Dallas his blessing.

Brown, admitting he was "worn out" shopping for a new location for the Braves, said "I can't say in good faith a move to Dallas is imminent."

With that Brown boarded a late afternoon jet for California. He will attend a meeting of the NBA Advisory Board Committee in San Diego Tuesday.

"I would say it's 50-50 we will make a recommendation to the committee," said Brown after another long session with a smiling Folsom.

Once the committee gets a recommendation then it will pass on the facts to the NBA Board of Governors.

It could be 10 days to possibly two weeks before the Board of Governors' See FRANCHISE Page 2

Don Henry
 Young At Heart

IT WAS A milestone in the father's life, although he didn't realize it at the time.

In came one of his kids from school grumping and grumbling about this English teacher in junior high. She was too rough on him, was inconsiderate, wouldn't listen to his explanations-alibis, the usual bit. One of his older brothers immediately asked who was his teacher.

"Old Mrs. (Blank)!"

Well, at the next junior high open house, "Old Mrs. (Blank) was there. One look shattered the image: Mrs. (Blank) was (1) attractive, (2) shapely, and beholder.

And, last weekend proved that the world and its outstanding citizens are getting younger every year.

the great races in finish and stretch run wasn't for without history. Surely, the tight expertise and plenty of adrenaline.

And what makes the Triple Crown feat even more unique is that this time the jockey, not the horse, was the center of attention.

Secretariat turned the triple trick five years ago, and the horse immediately became a folk hero. He even drew the sexy label. Then, last year, it was Seattle Slew pulling the triple, but, although folks remember the horse, who remembers the name of the jockey?

But, this time, Cauthen will be remembered as the Triple Crown winner, not Affirmed.

AT THE SAME time that Willie McCovey, Arnold Palmer, Gordie Howe and—yes, Muhammad Ali are still powering away at their respective professions, their places are slowly being taken by youngsters, some even in their teens.

It was a weekend for the young. Definitely.

Here was Steve Cauthen, his cheeks seemingly unmarred by "Gotcha," belting home Affirmed for the Triple Crown, about the closest thing to racing's ultimate as one can get. Here was Nancy Lopez playing the part of the veteran in brushing aside all competition en route to the top women's golf championship. And although not a youngster in the class with these two, Larry Holmes was edging past another member of the 30s club, Ken Norton, for a piece of the world heavyweight boxing championship.

FEW HAVE BEEN the success stories to match Cauthen's. At an age when most youngsters are finishing high school and worrying more about acne than AT&T, Cauthen can stack his dollars against any adult industrialist's.

He's still in his teens, and, already, they've written a book about him. No jockey has accumulated the early track record of him; few can claim in a lifetime what he has done in only a couple of years.

But, here he was, last Saturday, taking the challenge of veteran jockey Jorge Velasquez and Alydar to win the Belmont Stakes in what many considered one of

JUST AS WITH Cauthen, Miss Lopez hasn't been on the national circuit long. She came out of Roswell, N.M., with a reputation as a good amateur golfer, but she quickly dropped that local as well as the amateur tag.

Now, with four straight LPGA tournament victo on the women's pro circuit, Miss Lopez has won about $119,000 this year and has a shot at the all-time winning rookie golfer record of $153,000.

That record, however, is held by Jerry Pate, and—women's lib aside—if she reaches that level, it will greatly exceed Pate's accomplishment, since the women's tour doesn't have anywhere near the money purses of the PGA.

WHEN HOLMES DEFEATED Norton for one of those heavyweight boxing titles, it just added another name to the list of claimees. Norton held the title; he was only 31. But, Holmes now has it; he's 28. Leon Spinks, who holds one of those world titles is another kid, a graduate of the last Olympics.

And age, to a boxer, possibly as much so as in any sport, is a key factor. The more you have to fight, to dance and stumble and charge across the ring, the more punishment the legs take. Finally, the legs start to sag.

For the youngsters, however, this is something only to read about in the newspapers and game accounts.

To them, respectively, it's Old Mr. Shoemaker, Old Mr. Ali and the like. For sure, it wasn't Father's Day Weekend.
