0.9 percent in April, but the May figures are not available yet. In its report today, the department said wholesale prices turned down for fruit and vegetables, rice and coffee. The May prices rose less than in April for flourbased mixes, dairy products and most processed foods.

Wholesale prices continued to climb for beef, veal and pork, but no faster than they usually rise at this time of year.

More worrisome, the report indicated, were new increases for non-food items. These rose 0.8 percent in May after increasing 1 percent in April, particularly because of rising costs for heavy equipment and automobiles

Prices also accelerated for kerosene, alcoholic beverages and tobacco. Gasoline prices edged downward after increasing in April. Despite the slower rise in wholesale food prices, they began rising at an earlier stage of production - between the farm and the marketplace.

These intermediate food prices went up 2.6 percent, while other intermediate prices rose 0.6 percent.

Overall, the Producer Price Index for finished goods which measures wholesale prices was 193.0, meaning that wholesale prices were 93 percent higher than they were in 1967.

Tech Funds Withheld

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The freezing of an $18.6 million allocation earmarked for construction at Texas Tech University probably will not affect building plans, an administrator said to-

Tech is one of 17 universities in line for a total of $576.5 million over the next decade. State Comptroller Bob Bullock has made the allocations as required by law, but he said Thursday he will not distribute the money until a lawsuit is settled.

We would not have anticipated distribution for nearly a year under normal circumstances," said Kenneth W. Thompson, vice president for administration. 'So if the suit is decided in the next six months to a year, it won't delay anything here at Tech."

The court action was filed by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, challenging the state property tax which is the source of the funding.

Bullock earlier urged Attorney General John Hill not to contest the suit. He contends the tax system "is being unconstituionally applied in many ways. This is unquestionably the most inequitable and unpopular tax on the books.

Hill has asked a state district court in Austin to delay action on the suit until the 1979 Legislature has a chance to act on the matter. No date has been set for a set construction planning at the university, because the preliminary studies are just now underway.

"We are undertaking a look at the uses we would put those funds to," he said. "For those present commitments, funds have been identified."

Peveto said he hoped the effect of his suit would be to repeal the 10-cent state property tax and finance new college buildings out of the state's general revenue fund. He called the present allocations a waste of taxpayers' money.

Bullock said 85 percent of the money is allocated now and 15 percent will be allocated in 1983. That puts Tech in line for another $21 million in five years. The allocation of funds is according to a formula based on total square footage and projected full-time student enrollment at each campus. Thompson said Tech's projected enrollment shows an increase to about 25,000 students by 1983, then a decline to approximately 23,000.

"We're pretty fortunate," he said. 'Some of the universities are experiencing a high rate of growth, and it could really put a squeeze on them.

The allocations range from $1.7 million for Sul Ross State in Alpine to $67.6 million for Southwest Texas State in San Marcos. The allocation to West Texas State at Canyon was $6 million, and $7.5 million was allotted for Midwestern State

Carter Claims Report On Talks 'Inaccurate'

Carter, pledging to push aggressively for a new arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union, today denied a published report that he has placed a freeze on the arms negotiations.

Carter called the report damaging to the country and to his own credibility.

The president took the unusual step of summoning reporters on short notice to his Oval Office in the White House to deny the report in today's Washington Post. The report, quoting authoritative government sources, said the administration "has effectively frozen the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) for the time Carter said "this story is totally inaccurate," and added: "It damages our country; it damages my credibility; it damages the prospects for the continuation of the basic policy of our government, which has not changed since I came in office: that is to proceed aggressively with SALT discussion.

Carter said it is his objective "to conclude a (SALT) treaty as early as possible, without delay because of political considerations and to make sure that that treaty, when concluded, was in the best interests of our country.

Carter, who ignored attempts by reporters to ask questions, said the possibility of a freeze in SALT negotiations has never been discussed, "even informally." He said at the outset he understood

Terrorist Bomb Kills Six On Israeli Bus

JERUSALEM - A bomb made from a mortar shell today killed six Israelis and wounded more than 20 others on a bus carrying Sabbath eve shoppers home. The Palestine Liberation Organization said it had staged the attack.

Four persons were killed immediately and two more died in hospital. More than 20 were wounded, some of them critically, by the blast in a Jerusalem suburb.

The blast occurred shortly after 1 p.m. as the bus turned a corner into the affluent Bayit Vegan neighborhood of West Jerusalem, just opposite Yad Vashem, Israel's memorial to the six million Jewish victims of the Nazi Holocaust.

Explosives experts searched the remains to determine what kind of bomb was used. It was so powerful it blew off the rear of the vehicle, curled up the roof so that jagged edges stuck six feet into the air, and splintered the windshield of a bus following behind.

The first rescuers were drivers from a nearby taxi stand who radioed for assistance and transported most of the wound-

In Lubbock and across the state Billy Beer sales have gone flat since the new brew entered the competitive market early this year.

Mitchell's wife, Wanda, said sales of Billy's suds have dropped 70 percent since the initial order in February. That first and only order was for 1,100 cases and there are still about 250 cases of the beer sitting in the warehouse. She said the company probably will not

Billy Beer moved out fast the first couple of weeks, according to Mrs. Mitchell and several beer merchants, because it was a novelty and people wanted to save the cans. Hudman said it would be a wise investment to buy a case and they will be a collector's item.

"I don't foresee it as a long-term thing at all. The beer business is far too competitive for something like that to survive," Spinosa said. Sales of a popular beer, Coors, are even off 18.5 percent for the first quarter of this year, he added,

Financial Revelations Batter Brooke's Reputation

BY SHELLY COHEN

U.S. allies

BOSTON (AP) - Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts seemed to have it all going for him: A clean reputation influential in the Republican Party - apparently unbeatable.

But now investigators are coming at him from three directions, all the result of a series of newspaper stories alleging various improprieties in his personal and family finances.

What effect if any will it all have on his chances for re-election in November? The only sure answer is that it's too early to tell

The heavyweight Massachusetts politicans best qualified to make an informed guess are keeping a cautious silence.

Even his most vocal critic - state Rep. Elaine Noble, D-Boston - is hedging her call for Brooke's resignation with the disclaimer "if he can't clear up his fi-

Ms. Noble had announced her intentions to run against Brooke before the series of stories in the Boston Globe which sparked the three investigations.

One of them - by the Senate Ethics Committee - was requested by Brooke. obviously in hopes it would clear his name. The other two are being conducted by state officials. State Tax Commissioner Laurence D. Fitzmaurice said he told his Compliance Bureau Thursday "to see if Senator Brooke owes us anything" because of the questions involving Brooke's personal fi-And state welfare authorities say they will investigate the Globe's latest allegation - that Brooke's late mother-in-law, Theresa Ferrari-Scacco, received Medicaid benefits she was not entitled to because she had money of her own which was turned over to Brooke and other family members.

Brooke easily won a second term six years ago and appeared to be headed for another easy victory this fall despite indications that a number of Democrats would challenge him.

So far Brooke's response has generally been limited to saying the whole matter was a misunderstanding, asking his constitutents for understanding and requesting Senate colleagues to review his personal finances.

Upon returning to his Washington office Thursday. Brooke reiterated his determination to run for re-election and denied a rumor that he had asked Elliot Richardson to run instead.

The events of the past week were reflected in the greeting he received from his Washington staff: hugs, kisses and a bouquet of flowers. Under the glass top of his desk was a hand-lettered sign which said: "We Believe In You." It was signed by each member of his staff. The Globe report Thursday said Mrs. Ferrari-Scacco received an estimated $50,000 in Medicaid benefits for nursing home care from 1973 until her death in July 1977 at age 79.

Other records, supplied by Brooke's office, showed that in January of 1974, $49,000 of an insurance Mrs. Ferrari-

Scacto had received was placed under the control of Brooke and other family members.

The state places a $2,000 limit on cash assets or property readily convertible into cash for Medicaid recipients. Applicants who transfer property within a year of applying for Medicaid for the purpose of making them eligible can be disqualified, according to state law.

Another state law could come into play if the allegations are proven. Whether fraud is involved or not, the state has the right to file a claim against the estate of a deceased person who collected Medicaid in cases where there is no surviving spouse or minor children.

Although the direct connection to Brooke was not clear, he apparently would be liable for any portion of the $49,000 he received in the event the state eventually seeks to recover some or all of the Medicaid funds disbursed to mrs. Ferrari-Scacco.

Arthur Van Lanckton, general counsel to the Massachusetts Welfare Department, said he expects his department's investigation to take "a matter of days rather than weeks." He added: "I doubt that we'll be announcing the results. There is a restriction on giving out information awbout recipients.

Brooke's office released a statement earlier in the day saying the senator would present a "detailed financial statement" to Judge Lawrence Perrara in Middlesex Probate Court next Wednes-

In Washington, meanwhile, C. Braxton Valentine, staff director of the Senate Select Committee on Ethics, said the investigation of Brooke's finances would focus on the recent disclosures and any other allegations that come up.

Sun-Becton Hassle Expanding

By PHILIP GREER and MYRON KANDEL

The Sun Co.-Becton Dickinson story has slipped off the front pages, but it's popping up in more and more government offices. Almost everybody who has anything to do with banks, for instance, is mulling the possibility of investigations into how bank trust departments handled themselves and did or didn't look out for their clients' interests.

Last January, Sun Co. gobbled up 34 percent of Becton's stock in a raid that has since generated problems for Sun, a couple of Wall Street firms, several banks and a few mutual funds. First, Becton sued Sun, charging that the buying was done illegally. Then the Securities and Exchange Commission sued, and more recently, two Becton shareholders filed suit, for the first time including the banks and mutual funds that sold their Becton shares to Sun. The main point is that the shares were picked up at a big premium in a cloak-and-dagger operation that excluded most Becton shareholders.

The headaches don't end there. Several congressmen have gotten into the fray. for one reason or another. Sen. William Proxmire, D.-Wis., led the request for the SEC probe that prompted the court case. Sen. Edward Brooke, R.-Mass., asked the comptroller of the currency to look into the federally-chartered banks' role in the case. Rep. Banjamin Gilman, R.-N.Y., wrote to the New York state superintendant of banks, asking for an examination of the banks' part. Gilman is also considering requests to officials of tioned in the SEC suit. That includes California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Wisconsin. North Carolina and Minnesota, as well as Washington, D.C.

(We reported earlier that a number of banks contacted by Sun representatives looking for Becton shares and agreed to keep the big secret. They didn't even tell many of their own clients, who pay hefty fees for the banks to look after their in-

So far, the bank regulators and other agencies (except the SEC) don't seem turned on by the affair. They're raised questions of jurisdiction over the banks, which include both state-and federallychartered institutions. The pressure for probes is likely to continue, though, as long as the SEC suit works its way through legal channels.

Gilman especially seems wrapped up in the story, because it gets into two areas of his concern. First, Becton Dickinson, although based in New Jersey, has two plants in Gilman's upstate New York district. Second, Gilman has been raising questions - as we have - about the ways oil companies spend their money. other than for finding and developing new sources of energy.

"Warehousing" stocks - placing them with buyers who will sell them back, at a profit, whenever they're wanted - has been a common enough practice in Wall Street for years. Now, thanks to a recent change in New York Exchange rules, the idea is being applied to exchange memberships themselves.

Effective today, James F. Dalton is resigning as a partner of Paine, Webber, Mitchell Hutchins and selling his NYSE seat to Michael F. Johnston, president of the Paine, Webber, Inc., division. At the opening tomorrow, though, Johnston will rent the seat back to Dalton, who will continue to function on the exchange floor pretty much as he has for a number of years, except that he'll be on his own. The sale-leaseback (also a popular practice in the business world) is a first for the Big Board, because the rule permitting leases went into effect only last De-

Johnston told us it was done because

Dalton and Mitchell Hutchins "came to a parting of the ways." The firm doesn't need the seat now, but thinks it might in the future. Dalton, who owned the seat himself, doesn't want to be with the firm, but he does want to stay at the exchange. If the brokerage business picks up even more than it has in the last month or so. and Mitchell Hutchins (or Paine, Webber) needs more seats than the dozen it has now, the lease can be ended on 90 days notice. In the meantime, it's safely

The sale-leaseback opens some interesting doors. In the past, exchange memberships sometimes have been bought as investments (although probably not since the fixed commission system went out of existence in 1975), but such moves always had the drawback of requiring dues payments to the exchange. Now, it's possible to own a seat and receive a return. If exchange memberships ever have a bull market again, some of the high-priced plungers could start dabbling in seats long with stocks.

A Vote For Workman

have been raised as negative "issues" will be settled in Democratic and Republican runoff elections Saturday.

Your vote-or the lack of it-will count. positively if you go to the polls, negatively if you don't.

Two of the races are on the Democratic ballot here, one on the Republican.

The Avalanche-Journal recommends a vote for Don Workman to be the Democratic nominee for the state senate from the 28th

WORKMAN is seeking his first elective office after establishing his credentials on local boards and commissions plus such state offices as the Texas Youth Council and the Texas Tech Board of Regents.

It is significant that the major point of opposition to Workman has been that he and his wife, Skeet, have devoted too much time to unpaid public service.jobs.

On the contrary, The Avalanche-Journal believes Workman's record-plus his experience as a banker, farmer and teacher-qualifies him well to be our next state senator.

His opponent, E. L. Short of Tahoka, had eight years' service in the legislature before a good race in November.

THREE CAMPAIGNS in which a name, a he was defeated for re-election, but Workbirthplace and a dedication to public service man's qualifications make him the favorite in the race.

JOHN POERNER is far and away the best-qualified candidate in the only statewide race on either ballot. He seeks a full term on the Texas Railroad Commission, to which he was appointed.

Poerner's opponent is Jerry Sadler, whose major "qualification" is a name that has been on the Texas ballot since the 1930s.

The name became a household word when his antics and alleged evasiveness under questioning by the Legislature brought legislative censure and his defeat for re-election as state land commissioner.

GEORGE BUSH, finally, is The Avalanche-Journal's choice for the Republican nomination to succeed U.S. Rep. George

Bush's opponent, Jim Reese of Odessa, has made a big deal of the fact that Bush was not born in Texas but we really don't think that detracts one bit from Bush's qualifications

James J. Kilpatrick:

Marxist Shouldn't Be Teaching

WASHINGTON-Within the next few weeks, the board of regents of the University of Maryland will have to make up its collective mind on the matter of Bertell Ollman. The affair cries out for a few blunt observations.

Ollman is now a professor of political science at New York University. He has been nominated to head the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, the 42-year-old Ollman received his doctorate at Oxford. He has been teaching for 12 years. He has published a book that has won acclaim. A number of students and colleagues, interviewed by the Washington Star, speak well of him.

Ollman is a full-time, full-blown professional Marxist. Though he disclaims any intention willfully to indoctrinate his students, and says that "I give all points of view a chance," his disclaimer may be viewed with justifiable skepticism. In the latest edition of "New Political Science," Ollman gives his ideas "on teaching Marxism and buildng the movement."

THE MARXIST teacher has a vital role to play, Ollman says, in converting the United States into "American Soviet." The immediate task is "to ke more revolutionaries." This indispensable ask goes on apace. From his own teaching experiences, he knows het many students who were not Marxists at the beginning of the course "write at the end of my urse that they are now Marxists." In his essay on "building the movement," OII- man urges that the role of the socialist teacher be upgraded. He speaks proudly of gains in recent years: More than 30 socialist journals and newsletters now circulate in academia.

"In political science...we now have four widely used radical introductions to American government, where six years ago there were none," he Ollman believes that despite job cutbacks, "there are probably more socialists teaching in higher education today...than there were five and certainly ten years ago.

"FOR THE SOCIALIST teacher, recognition of such facts should lead to a renewed dedication to make the most effective use of the classroom situation, in full consciousness of its possibilities (and dangers) and without apologies to anyone else in the Movement," he says.

When word transpired of Ollman's nomination, Maryland's Gov. Blair Lee publicly questioned the wisdom and propriety of the appointment. For this demonstration of common sense, the governor was at once set upon by the Pavlovian hounds of the academic grove.

The American Association of University Professors delivered itself of a public letter that was remarkably fatuous, even by the fatuity standards

In this statement, the AAUP undertook to instruct the governor, hoity-toity, in the "fundamental principle that those who hold public office should not offer judgments on the merits of specific academic appointments."

THAT FUNDAMENTAL principle is, fundamentally, hogwash.

Public officials have every right to comment upon academic appointments, especially upon appointments as department heads of state-supported universities.

The pointy-headed notion that only professors can judge other professors ought to be junked. On the record of Ollman's own writing, it is evident that he views the role of the Marxist teacher as an opportunity to raise up a new generation of Marxists

"My students are going to hear socialist ideas from me," he told the Star. "No doubt about it."

WELL, WHAT IS the role of a board of regents? Is the Maryland board to accept the craven, contemptible notion that all ideas are somehow equal? That the activism of "dedicated" Marxist is a matter of indifference in a departmental chairmanship? The Maryland regents, it seems to me, have a glorious opportunity in this affair to demonstrate a little dedication of their own, to the values and traditions of a free marketplace in an essentially

Of course the nomination should be rejected! The regents are under no compulsion to put this rare bird on the payroll. Under the circumstances, howls of "academic freedom" are absurd; whatever rights Ollman may have, he has no right to this particular post. Politely but firmly, the regents ought to tell Oliman to go raise his Marxists somewhere else.

In its latest ruling based on harmless technicalities, I gather from news reports, the state's highest criminal tribunal reversed the life sentence of a man convicted as a three-time loser in 1976.

"This conviction must be reversed," the jurists solemnly intoned, "because there is no evidence to show that appellant's second previous conviction was for an offense committed after the first

The trial record showed a 1951 conviction for theft and a 1956 conviction for robbery.

WE IGNORAMUSES would think that, if it mattered, it'd be simple enough to look back through the records and see if "the second previous offense" was committed after the "first previous conviction" and act accordingly, but lawyers and the courts don't operate that way.

If the 1956 crime was committed after the 1951 conviction, then no harm was done the defendant. A check of the previous records, not a whole new trial, ought to suffice to correct the prosecuting attorney's "error" in not getting into the trial court record that 1951 came before 1956.

If the judicial system would devote itself to seeing that justice is done, instead of looking for > Inflation hit us at the rate of 10 percent a year during the last three months, the Guv'ment tells us. By the time it gets that new dollar coin minted, it won't be worth a dime.

It's an old story, but George Bush is making timely use of it: In answer to opponent Jim Reese's making so much of the fact the GOP congressional candidate was born in Connecticutt, Bush is saying "I really wanted to be born in Midland but I thought it was more important that I be near my mother ... IF SUPPORTERS of the Equal Rights Amendment had the capacity to laugh at themselves, they'd be rolling in the aisles over a study by The Heritage Foundation:

It reveals that no amendment to the U.S. Constitution ever has taken as long as four years to gain ratification. The ERA diehards are demanding 14 years for theirs.

It'll take that long for folks to understand it, they explain. On the contrary, folks apparently have been understanding it for more than five years already. The ERA was ratified by 30 states in the first year after Congress submitted it. Then, somebody suggested we whoa, now, and think about what we're doing.

Since March 22, 1973, only five other states have ratified it. Three have officially "unratified" it and another's Legislature voted to rescind its approval but the woman lieutenant governor, acting in the absence of the governor, vetoed the ac-

IN ITS STUDY, the Heritage Foundation found that six of the 26 amendments to the Constitution took less than one year to be ratified.

Sixteen, including the 10 in the Bill of Rights, took less than two years. One took just over two years; only three took longer than three years.

The shortest time was taken by the most recent amendment, the 26th, lowering the voting age to 18. It was ratified in just four months in 1971.

There are those who would say that if it had been studied longer, it might have wound up as the ERA has-on the basis that its obscured main purpose and impact "was to open up the bars to 18-20-year-olds."

Who Woulda Thought Of Us?

WASHINGTON-A bunch of the boys-all first timers, Moynihan, Hart, Abourezk-were whooping it up on one end of the Senate chamber; and on the other end two old timers-Case and Javits were catching their second wind.

Political parties don't mean much any more, but the new boys happened to be Democrats, and the codgers were Republicans. The point at issue -if you could find it-was President Carter's

Had he counted right? He was trying to balance the Mideast equation, and it was a puzzler. In dealing with fighter aircraft, you don't count tailpipes; you try to figure out the skull-busting calculus of speed, range and firepower. So the President had sent a "package" to the Senate. In it were fighterbombers named F-15, F-16 and F-5, and they were unequally divided for sale to Israel, Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Unequally divided by number and firepower, that is, divided up under the old Trotskyite formula which says, "To each, according to his need.

BUT THAT DIDN'T satisfy either the new boys or the old codgers of the Senate. The only thing they all apparently agreed upon was that Carter must be wrong for the simple reason that he was almost never right.

Well, to hear the old codgers, Case and Javits, tell it, Israel was like England of 1940. Give 'em the tools to do the job. The 3,000 Israeli "heroes" (never was so much owed by so many to so few) stood between Western civilization and the barbarian hordes.

Keep Israel strong (that is, relatively stronger than its neighboring powers) and the Mideast would remain relatively stable. But let a military imbalance take over, and it would take the UN. the USA and what's left of NATO to set it straight.

But unless the Carter question is reasonably right, to make Israel stronger should mean to make Saudi Arabia even stronger. Saudi territory is larger. It is rich and tempting. It is threatened on all flanks by the Soviet Union and Soviet satel-

Wasn't this proof enough that the Saudis had enough on their hands without deploying their American-made fighterbombers against Israel? Besides there were treaties.

But what are treaties except a scrap of paper, demanded Javits, where a nation's vital interest was concerned? The only way to keep Israel safe was to make Israel supreme in the area as it is

Saudi Arabia is holding down the price of oil, and holding up the value of the dollar, but for how long? Policies are made by governments and Comparatively little was said about Egypt, the party of the third part, except that President Sadat had made a peace move that came to nothing.

The argument went back and forth between senators who talked as if they represented states in the Mideast and not North America until a voice of the deep south broke through. The deep south is more American than any other part.

You don't often hear from Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., but he's chairman of Senate Armed Services, and when he gets his word in, it's likely to be the right word.

Home Health Care Job Field Booming

(Second Of Two Parts)

IF YOU ARE a middle-aged woman in good health, looking for part-time (or full-time) employment but without any special education background or skills, investigate the great opportunities you may find in the booming field of home

If you are a younger man or woman-in your 20s, say-and you also have few technical skills to offer but are seeking a job that will pay fairly well and could be unusually satisfying, you, too, should now look into the job of a home health care aide.

Home health care programs are sweeping across the nation, are being hailed as one solution to runaway hospital costs as well as a welcome alternative to institutional care for the countless numbers of Americans who do not require constant nursing or personal attention.

AS RECENTLY as 1958, there were only a few thousand home health care aides in the U.S. In 1975, the total was up to an estimated 60,000, according to the Labor Department's Occupational Outlook Quarterly.

Even now, the need for these aides is projected at a whopping 300,000 by Florence Moore, executive director of the National Council for Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services.

There is only one home health care aide in our country for every 4,709 persons, she says. Sweden, by contrast, has one for every 101 persons. The National Council sets national standards for aides and is supported by 109 agency members, 150 agency associates, 36 organizations, plus scores of foundations, corporations and volun-

WHAT'S MORE, the need will climb ever upward as home health care services become an entrenched part of our entire health care delivery system and our elderly population expands.

Also contributing to the need for this occupation is the prevalence of such chronic illnesses here as diabetes, hypertension, arteriosclerotic heart disease, cerebral-vascular disorders, arthritis, neurological problems, malignancies, and other long-term, partially disabling illnesses that can be treated at home-and treated far more cheapand often far more successfully than in traditional institutions.

Pay for home health care aides varies considerably, depending on the size of your city or town and its prevailing wage scale, whether you belong to a union, whether you work for an agency or organization with career ladders, etc.

GENERALLY, PAY is in a range well above the minimum wage, with the precise figure deter-mined by your qualifications and experience.

Benefits vary even more than wages. Some home health care agencies offer no benefits at all, while others offer a full package of holidays, vacation, sick leave, health and life insurance, retirement plans, etc.

While some agencies hire only "on call" hourly workers with no benefits, many agencies employ aides on a full-time or part-time basis with numerous benefits and a minimum number of hours guaranteed.

If you become a typical full-time home health care aide, you'll be guaranteed 36 hours of work a week; earn more than the minimum wage, depending on your length of employment and level of responsibility; have one to three weeks paid vacation each year, depending on the number of years service; one day of sick leave a month; be paid for major holidays and be eligible to participate in pension and health insurance plans.

IF YOU BECOME a typical part-time employe working a regular schedule, you'll be guaranteed 20 hours of work a week; receive the same hourly pay as full-time employes and get similar benefits allocated according to the number of hours

A few agencies also allocate vacation and sick leave to those of you who do not have a guaranteed minimum hours of work or a regular sched-

As an aide, your occupation will have superior status to jobs that do not require a high school You will be an important member of the health team since your regular reports on a client's condition will be the basic information used to reassess the services needed. You will have a desirable degree of independence and self-direction in carrying out your dayto-day duties. Some agencies require you to have a year's experience working as a nursing aide in a hospital or nursing home

United Press International Writer The most explosive issue on the education scene today is the competency move-

It calls for testing in certain grades before boys and girls can be put in a higher grade - ending the practice of social (automatic) promotion in those school districts or states where no such a testing rule is in effect.

In some states, the movement mandates that youths must take a test before being eligible for a diploma. The test, in its simplest form is structured to find out if this student who spent 12 years in the most expensive schooling in he nation's history can read, write, add; subtract, divide - survival skills in today's world.

The movement springs from dissatisfaction with what's happening in the nation's schools. Quite a few don't learn the survival skills but they get a high school diploma anyway.

The failing shows up in all kinds of school systems nationwide - city, suburban, rural.

The competency movement is taking root in every state as angry parents, legislators and taxpayers demand that schools do a better job in teaching the basics: reading, writing, arithmetic. The testing at various grades will help identify students badly in need of extra help. President Carter, in his 1978 education message to Congress, focused attention on the national need for a return to the basics. The President's concern added muscle to the movement.

The competency movement also gains strength from concern over a 10-year decline in scores on college entrance tests. Critics of education look on the decline as an early warning that the schools are failing many youths

The most obvious reason for survival skills in reading, writing and arithmetic is, of course, being equipped for a job. But there are other reasons. To wit:

- A person who can't read the instructions on a fire extinguisher may fail to put out a little fire, lose his life and contribute to the loss of other lives.

the poison, her child most likely will die. A Navy recruit who can't read well is liable to make mistakes that can cost a lot of money and take a lot of lives.

Vice Admiral J. D. Watkins, chief of Naval Personnel, recently drew attention to the problem in a speech before the San Diego, Calif., Chamber of Commerce. 'Recently on one of our ships, an engineman was rebuilding a diesel engine as part of a routine maintenance schedule. He could not read well.

"So he went about accomplishing the process by looking at the pictures in a technical manual. When he tried to install the cylinder liners, there was no pic-

"So he installed them the way he thought they should be. The result was that he installed them upside down. It cost $50,000 to repair the engine.

"A well meaning individual who cannot read can cause unnecessary and unwanted problems, to say nothing of the danger to his life and the life of his shipmates.

Watkins is concerned that declining trends in reading and other basic skills will interfere with the United States Navy's assigned mission and could short circuit the missions of other branches, as "We are finding more and more of even our high school graduates who cannot read adequately. The pool of truly qualified young men and women shrinks to an alarmingly low level," he said.

College students also are foundering in the reading, spelling and arithmetic gap. It's not happening at the tougher schools where nearly perfect SAT - Scholastic Aptitude Test - scores are required for schools with less stringent entrance requirements.

A sign of the problem on campus: a major publisher of college text books is cutting back on the reading level of new editions and new books. The books are being written to ninth and tenth grade reading levels!

Another sign of the problem on campus: remedial courses in reading, writing

The problem is more acute for high school graduates who don't go on to college. If the very poor readers, writers and dunces at arithmetic aren't helped as they pass through the public schools, the nation's pool of literary cripples will grow. An estimated 22 percent of the adult population is so handicapped today.

Not everyone greets the competency movement cheerfully. Most teachers' organizations fear the tests will unjustifiably label some teachers as deficient. Teachers, speaking through their organizations, say the purpose of competency tests should be simply to identify children who need remedial work.

Critics of education say social promotion is probably how the nation got into this strange situation: high school graduates who are functionally illiterate.

A high school diploma, say the critics, should stand for something more than recognition of attendance.

There is not agreement among the states, school districts or educators, generally about the modus operandi for minimal competency testing.

Some favor setting a level of minimum competency in reading, math, and language skills at a particular grade level say at grade 8 or grade 9.

Others lean to the direction of survival skills demonstrating ability to deal with application forms, driver's licenses, bank statements, and similar items.

And there are hybrids - systems combining both approaches.

In Florida newspaper readers got involved in the competency movement when 37 percent of high school juniors flunked the state's "functional literacy" test last October. The test was for eighth grade level performance.

Muny parents and some legislators put up a cry: the test is too hard, the test is

By state law, students get three chances to pass the Florida test. If they don't pass it before graduation they will be denied a diploma.

Since the many failures in the state's "functional literacy" test, Florida has begun a massive remedial program to helpstudents pass the next time, putting them in line for a diploma.

The state will distribute $10 million to fund remedial tutoring this spring and summer. The legislature also has promised $26.5 million for remedial education

The Miami National Association for The Advancement of Colored People, has threatened to file a discrimination suit against the state because of the large percentage of blacks who failed.

Florida Agency Watches For Insurance Fraud

By CINDY ROSE

MIAMI (AP) - At 47, Al Shears has a wife, two children, a job, a home and two family-size cars. He has never been in a wreck and never asked an auto insurance company for a dime.

But he got one speeding ticket a year ago for doing 12 miles over the limit. Now he pays $1,098 a year for auto insurance, and he only got it down that low by dropping personal injury protection to $2,000 deductible. Shears said he paid $450 before that.

"They're treating me like a criminal," Shears says.

His cry is familiar throughout the nation. In most urban areas, skyrocketing rates are making drivers gulp - or drive without insurance and hope for the best.

But Shears lives in Dade County, and everything that is worrisome about the every 200 people in Dade, and they all need clients," McKenna says.

McKenna's squad is focusing on those two areas - lawyers who use runners to solicit business from accident victims and collusion between doctors and lawyers to inflate bills.

"We don't want the claimant," McKenna says. "We think he's basically an honest citizen who's been led astray. He'll get approached by a runner, who tells him, 'It's just a slight accident and I know you're not hurt. But we'll get $5,-000 out of it."

"It's the runner who's the bum, and the lawyer who pays the runner and the doctor who gives unneeded treatments. The citizen is the weak link in the set-

Florida has helped McKenna's squad get tough by making it a third-degree felony for a runner even to hand out a lawyer's business card at an accident

"Runners listen to police car radios and sometimes get to the accident before police. They even use helicopters," says McKenna. "It's always been such a minor offense and the cop was busy with the accident case, so he would tell the runner just to get out. But now that it's a felony, we've got a better case

Another new law gives McKenna's office subpoena power with limited immunity, "That means we can go and get one of the runners, give him some immunity so he squeals, and we can get the lawyers behind him," McKenna says. Many accident claims never end in the courtroom. In fact, some Dade County lawyers actually hire another lawyer if the case goes to court, McKenna says.

The files of lawyer Anthony Capodilupo show he's one of Miami's big-volume, low settlement, no-trial specialists. Each year he makes 200 to 300 clients happy by settling about $1 million in claims, he says. He receives up to 40 percent in Capodilupo was indicted recently along with two doctors and four accused runners on charges of bilking insurance companies. A federal grand jury accused them of seeking out accident victims, advancing them "sums of money" to encourage them to sign up with Capodilupo and charging for medical treatments never received by the victims. Capodilupo has pleaded innocent. James A. Davis II received his office's golden goblet award each year he grossed more than $1 million in his rapid-fire processing of small bodily injury claims at an average of $1,000 to $4,000 each. Davis got the goblet in 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975. He was convicted in on 105 counts of mail fraud along with his office manager, his $150-a-head runner and Dr. M.S. statewide, McKenna says.

"There's no question the claims environment in Dade is worse than any other city of comparable size - anywhere. says Robert Pike, assistant general counsel for Allstate. In 1975, the latest year for which figures are available, 16 of every 1,000 Miami drivers filed a bodily injury claim against another driver or his insurance company, winning an average settlement of $5,365 each.

"Just because somebody gets a lawyer. I think it is un-American to scream fraud," says Richard C. McFarlain, lobbyist for the Florida Bar. "Let's just say that people in Miami are more sophisticated. It may be annoying to the insurance industry that people in a free society protect their rights.

I hope it spreads to other cities. That's what lawyers are for.

one on the streets," says Bob McKenna, a former FBI agent who heads the Florida Division of Fraudulent Claims. McKenna's files show this "typical" case: A 28-year-old male driver stopped at a red light and his car was hit in the rear, causing $100 in damage to both cars. The police report noted that neither driver reported pain or injury. The next week, though, the rear driver's insurance company got notice that the front driver had a lawyer who was suing for "pain and suffering." He was asking $120,000. The rear driver contacted McKenna's office, which opened an investigation. As soon as the attorney for the claimant learned that McKenna was involved, the claim was reduced to $3,500.

Padded claims and liberal damage awards invariably are reflected in premiums but even so, in some states, auto insurers have threatened to pull out altogether. One big firm. Nationwide Mutual Insurance Companies, quit writing policies in New Jersey last fall. Not everybody thinks that the insurers are bleeding financially. Last July, Michigan ordered rebates of more than $40 million on 688,000 auto insurance policies. The companies are challenging the order in the courts.

In Florida, insurance commissioner Bill Gunter ordered 47 insurance companies to refund $22 million in what he called excess profits. Again the companies are resisting, questioning both Gunter's authority to order the refund and the data on which he based it.

Florida has a no-fault insurance law but it hasn't greatly affected the claims deluge. A proposal to bar all suits for intangibles like "pain and suffering" failed in the state legislature.

For true success, cheating on insurance claims takes help from lawyers and doctors, those in both professions, that is, who lend themselves happily to claim inflation

More may be tempted in Miami because the town has an abundance of both - "too many," McKenna thinks. "Too many doctors and lawyers competing for the available business.

The Florida Bar Association lists 4.970 lawyers in Dade County — one for every 300 people. "By 1980, there'll be one for

Texans Plan Film About Carrasco

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The life of South Texas drug dealer Fred Gomez Carrasco, who allegedly "killed more men than Pancho Villa," may soon be depicted in a movie and may star actor Charles Bronson

Attorneys Ruben Montemayor, representing the Carrasco family's interests, and Anthony Nicholas, representing Car-rasco's widow, Rosa, Wednesday announced the deal for the rights to Carrasco's story.

Carrasco was 34 when he was killed in an escape attempt at the state prison at Huntsville Aug. 3, 1974. The shootout climaxed a 10-day seige — the longest in American history of prison break at-

Montemayor, now a member of the prison board, and Nicholas said they had negotiated a contract for the movie with Rogelio Agrasanchez of Mexico City, director general of Producciones Filmicas Agrasanchez; free lance writer Bill Starr, and Miguel and Hector Benitez, owners and operators of Benitez Grand Theaters, a Texas chain.

Nicholas said the contract with Agrasanchez, which has an office in Los Fresnos, was made, "without specific terms

The number of persons Carrasco killed or ordered killed is estimated from 40 to 57 in a 1970s heroin war that raged from San Antonio to Guadalajara, Mexico.

One veteran law officer said Carrasco killed more men than Pancho Villa" beginning with the fatal stabbing of a youth at a dance near the Alamo when he was a teenager. His life already is the object of corridas (ballads) sung in the barrios of Texas and Mexico, where he has become somewhat of a hero.

Carrasco's love for his wife, who witnessed the deaths of her husband, another inmate and two women hostages in the prison gunbattle, is frequently referred to in the corridas. Mrs. Carrasco was present at the announcement Wednesday.

Earlier brushes with the law include one in 1973 when Carrasco was shot three times with a machine gun in a shootout with San Antonio police. Officers contended he was systematically killing former associates whom he blamed for his arrest in Mexico a year earlier.

Bronson, head of Inernational Center Producers, reportedly has shown interest in producing the film and possibly taking the lead role, the attorneys said.

Montemayor said current plans call for the picture to be filmed in English in the United States, with another version being filmed in Spanish in Mexico.

Plans call for the movie script to be written by Starr and several associates. and Agrasanchez then would present the finished story to Bronson for his review.

Acts Of Violence Worry Abortion Groups

DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) - On Feb. 23, 1977, unknown persons broke into the Planned Parenthood offices in St. Paul, Minn., soaked the second floor with gasoline, and set it on fire.

Just about a year later, Feb. 15, 1978, St. Paul police found what they called a professionally-constructed bomb outside the same clinic - a bomb with an apparently faulty mechanism that did not go

Bracketed between those two incidents have been a year - and more - of violence and disruption directed against abortion clinics.

The National Abortion Rights Action League has documented at least six firebombings and attempted arson of clinics, the acid chemical bombing of another, the vandalism of yet another and, on Jan. 6. 1978, coordinated sit-ins and invasions at half a dozen other clinics from Anchorage, Alaska, to Omaha, Neb.

The violence at abortion clinics, including the terrorism of firebombings as well as more non-violent sit-ins, invasions and disruptions is causing providers of abortion services increasing concern.

We've been reluctant to make an issue of the violence," said Daniel E. Pellegrom, executive director of Planned Parenthood in Maryland.

"Some of the (Planned Parenthood) affiliates are on the verge of offering abortion services" he said, "and the violence. for good reason, could scare them away."

Karen Mulhauser, NARL's executive director, said that while there have been no firebombings or personal violence at abortion clinics since March, invasions and sit-ins have continued. "They have been looking for media attention," she said. "Often, however, it gets turned around and backfires on them. Instead of turning people against the clinic it advertises them - people in a town say, 'Oh, I didn't know that service was offered here." n

The disruption and violence at the clinics, along with intensified legislative and legal challenges to current abortion laws, have taken place in an atmosphere of sharpened debate and changing conditions in the abortion field.

A recent survey by the Alan Guttmacher Institute showed that Medicaid assistance for abortion - the area in which most recent legislative struggles have been fought - has been curtailed.

Now 21 states pay Medicaid for abortion only if the woman's life is threatened, while three states pay only if the woman's life is threatened and in cases of rape or incest. Nine states have policies similar to the federal law, permitting payment only when the woman's life is threatened, if the woman would suffer severe and long-lasting physical health damage or if the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.

The District of Columbia and 16 states pay for all or most Medicaid abortions and one state, Arizona, has no Medicaid

But Pellegrom says "I find it incredible that people call abortion the most divisive issue facing the country. I don't understand it to be that.

"The so-called silent majority is not as concerned about it as one would think" he said. "The anti-choice forces are really a relatively small, increbibly self-righteous group of really committed fanatics who have taken this issue on.'

They are a group that is not particularly broad in their support but their commitment is deep," he said.

Most polls and surveys seem to support Pellegrom's analysis. Last October, the New York Times-

CBS poll found that 74 percent of its sample agreed that "the right of a woman to have an abortion should be left entirely up to the woman and her doctor." And while some abortion is considered by some to be "a Catholic issue," a 1974 poll commissioned by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops found all religious communities, including the Roman Catholic, split on the issue.

Nevertheless, the increasing violence at abortion clinics has people like Pellegrom worried that a wave of repression is possible in which the theological and moral values of one segment of the population is enforced on all people.

'The alternative to choice, when it comes to the decision of whether to have an abortion or not, is repression." he said. "And in a free society, that's unac-

Pellegrom said some 20 to 25 of Planned Parenthood's 19 affiliates currently offer abortion services. Of those, he said, several have been attacked or invaded during operating hours.

"The intensity of the pressure varies from state to state. I'm fearful that at least for a time, there will be a continuation of the violence. But I think the public, is terribly opposed to terrorism. Many people in the anti-abortion participate in those kinds of things," he But the tone and the intensity of the debate creates a framework or umbrella in which a fringe who may not be con-movement would neither condone nor nected with the movement can act." The leadership of the anti-abortion movement has disassociated itself from the violent attacks on the clinics but has not denounced or condemned the sit-ins

Dr. Mildred Jefferson, president of the National Right to Life Committee, the nation's largest anti-abortion organization, says the group "opposes violence not just against the unborn but those who are born as well."

But she said it was unnecessary for the movement to specifically denounce the violence "because those who would strike out violently are not in touch with our organization.

Similarly, the nation's Roman Catholic bishops, who have been in the forefront of the struggle against legal access to abortion, have retrained from making any pronouncements on the violence.

Sources close to the bishops' conference say that at least part of the reason for the bishops' silence on the issue is that they do not believe there is a national pattern to the violent incidents, that the circumstances surrounding some of the incidents raise questions as to whether the violence was committed by antiabortionists and that, with regard to demonstrations, they have no intention of criticizing an "activist" stance by antiabortionist forces.

Other religious leaders, however, have

No sooner had the bulldozers started than archeologists had to be called in. It wasn't quite unexpected.

Some 2,500 years ago, the Tanagra region was, by ancient standards, densely populated and intensively farmed.

When we moved in to clear the site. the local villagers said there were ancient remains in the area. It was just a few days after breaking ground that a bulldozer exposed part of a burial area," said Ted Robinson, Austin construction man-

The Greek Archeological Service deployed a team of skilled excavators around the 450-acre site. They move in whenever topsoil stripping reveals remains and carry out rescue digs before construction goes ahead. "Sometimes we were literally following a pace or two behind the mechanicial excavator stripping the topsoil." said Effie Ligouri, a scientific assistant. "It is a huge cemetery, extending beyond the limits of the aerospace site in several directions." she said.

Some 400 graves have been unearthed in the last 16 months. They were arranged in clusters and dated from the sixth to the third centuries B.C.

cient Tanagra, a prosperous city on a low, fortified hill about three miles south of the necropolis and its surround

Angeliki Andreameinou, antiquities of-ficial for Boeotia, said the ancient people used a variety of burial practices ranging from simple earth pits to covering the bodies with a few clay tiles to using jars and more elaborate clay coffins and stone

"One family for example, perhaps wealthy farmers, were buried in a family plot of stone graves aligned along a spe-cially built wall adjoining the ancient road that ran through the necropolis,"

The excavators found quantities of fine pottery and a collection of small clay animals, but most graves had been looted by tomb robbers who systematically plun-dered ancient cemeteries in the area at the turn of the century in search of Tanagra figurines.

The delicate, naturalistic figurines of painted terracotta, found in fourth century B.C. graves, are especially prized by connoisseurs of ancient art.

One group of tombs, made of fine tufa (porous rock) blocks, was found beneath the site of a 91,500 square feet ware-house, the first major building to go up. "They were moved, stone by stone, and reconstructed in another part of the site. to be left on view when the factory is completed." Robinson said.

"In general, some parts of the project had to be rescheduled because of finding the archeological remains, but the completion date won't be affected," he said. In fact, the discoveries have added a lot of color to the project. Apart from the burial grounds, the excavators exposed the foundations of a large Hellenistic building, constructed for stability on a thick layer of millions of

Neither Marshall nor OSHA Administrator Eula Bingham would comment publicly on the dispute.

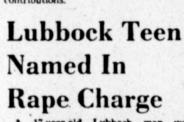

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said the rules would cost industry $625 million in start-up costs, and then about $200 million annually. It questioned whether cheaper measures could not be substituted, such as great use of masks and respirators on the job.

Marshall, in his memo, acknowledged the $625-million figure as accurate but said annual costs thereafter would be more like $84 million. And he told Carter that extensive testing already has shown that respirators and other alternatives would not be effective.

Moreover, he said, the OSHA standards as now formulated would cost one-fourth the amount as rules that were on the drawing board during the Ford adminis-

The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers union, the parent AFL-CIO, the Brown Lung Association and other groups, meanwhile, have already protested the delay directly to the White House. Some sources indicated Carter would try to decide the issue within the month.

Marshall told the president that such groups are extremely sensitive to the cot ton dust issue, since the battle goes back years and "there is documentation that the administration of President Richard M. Nixon held out a delay in the standard as an enticement to generate political

Local Chapter Growing Fast

The ranks of a group aiding noncommissioned officers, past and present, have swelled from nine members to 125 in the two months since the local chapter was formed.

The Robert B. Childers Chapter of the Noncommissioned Officers Association (NCOA) received its charter in April from the organization's national headquarters in San Antonio. Childers, a Lubbock resident prior to his death, was in the Army and was a member of the Veterans of Foreign We do all kinds of work for all branches of the service," said Army Sgt. Ron Clark. "Members can be active duty, prior service or retired, so long as they hold or held a rank of E-4 to E-9."

He said the NCOA sponsors several kinds of insurance programs, as well as a family dental plan, an automobile discount service and provides benefits counseling.

The local chapter, which meets the first and third Mondays of each month at the Army Reserve Recruiting Center, 4902 34th St., is stepping up its membership drive, according to Clark. Additional information may be obtained by calling 762-1231.

Police Holding Arson Suspect

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Police were holding a 14-year-old boy Friday in connection with the fire earlier this week that killed four sleeping children. Meanwhile, officers pressed their search for other teen-agers believed to have help set the blaze.

The youth was arrested Thursday ied. Assistant District Attorney Mike Peden said the youth cannot be certified as an adult and charged with arson because he is under 15. Investigators said someone, perhaps burglars, apparently poured gasoline in the downstairs portion of Mary Villarreal's housing project apartment about 2 a.m. Monday and ignited the blaze.

Four of Mrs. Villarreal's seven children were found suffocated in their upstairs bedrooms. Mrs. Villarreal and the three other children jumped to safety.

If the youth is found guilty of engaging in delinquent conduct, the maximum punishment he could receive would be confinement at a Texas Youth Council facility until his 18th birthday, Peden

Police theorized that the arsonists were attempting to cover up a burglary. Officers did not say how many other teen-agers were being sought.

San Antonio firefighters were among those serving as pallbearers Thursday for the victims: Edward Villarreal, 6; Mary Jeanette Villarreal, 13; Jesse Villarreal, 9, and Julia Ann Villarreal, 10. Mrs. Villarreal, who is still hospital-

Don't waste time looking at schools that don't work," Columbia University sociologist Robert K. Merton once told me. "Find one that does. You'll learn more from a single success story than from 1000 failures.

In light of recent reports about the breakdown of our public education system - financial chaos, lack of discipline, declining test scores and a spate of other problem - I decided to put Professor Merton's advice to the test. And instead of finding a single success story I found many, in cities, suburbs and rural areas all over the United States. Indeed, successful schools may be our best-kept educational secret.

Three of the schools I visited have met the challenges that others offer as excuses for failure:

Excuse No. 1: We don't have enough money. The notion that money buys good schools is a myth. Eastbrook Elementary School, in Seminole County near Orlando, Fla., is thriving, even though last year the state spent $95 less per child than the national average. What's more, Eastbrook's school district has less funds available than most others in the state. Of course, I'd welcome more money," Eastbrook's principal, Frances Walton. acknowledges. "But I won't use less money as an excuse for failing to teach."

What ingredients does Eastbrook substitute for money? "One, we know what our educational goals are, and why we've selected them," Walton explains. Another basic ingredient is planning, making certain that every step of our program links up with previous and future steps. Success doesn't just happen.'

Eastbrook, with 800 students, combines the best of traditional and progressive education, stressing the 3Rs while encouraging individual initiative. Four years ago, the school decided to give priority to individualized, independent learning. "Teacher instruction is essential, of course," Walton says, "but children lives. We must motivate them to learn on their own. To foster independent learning, the Eastbrook staff decided to equip the school with a number of "learning centers," stocked with calculators, film loops, recorders, listening stations, reading machines, and such. To pay for them, the faculty volunteered to teach on an austerity budget, buying a minimum of materials. In just two years, Eastbrook saved $78,000, and when school began in September 1976, the new learning centers were a reality

This kind of faculty commitment is a major factor in Eastbrook's success. Another illustration: the teachers' parking lot is known for filling up early and emptying late. Explains a staff member. "Our contract limits the number of hours teachers can be required to work, but not the number they choose to work.

And what are the results of all this? Standardized tests give a limited view, but it's important to note that in 1978 Eastbrook's students scored 94 percent in reading and math compared to the state average of 81 percent. Considering the school's modest budget this is a success of no small proportions. Another measure of Eastbrook's success: over 99 percent of the parents responding to a recent survey report they are satisfied with the entire program and staff, and that their children enjoy going to school!

Excuse No. 2: Schools in disadvantaged areas must accept lower academic standards. Captain Arthur Roth Elementary School in Cleveland, Ohio, is situated in one of the city's poverty areas. Fortyfour percent of the students' families receive public assistance; a high percentage are single-parent households. And standardized tests that purport to measure academic ability or potential show 42 percent of the students tested to be below average in scholastic aptitude. If accepted shibboleths were true, Roth would appear destined for failure. Instead, this black school is so successful that families have been known to falsify their address so that their children might qualify for admission.

It's no wonder. The most expensive independent school in the country couldn't show more care and concern for childrn than principal Barbara Eggleston and her faculty demonstrate toward their 805 students. When I asked one teacher if her students were reading on grade level, she replied, "Not yet, but they will be!" For her and other teachers at Roth, the classic, defeatist excuse, "They're doing as well as can be expected," is simply un-

Knowing that people tend to live up or down - to what others expect of them, Roth teachers expect success. And they get it. When Roth's "intellectually below average, economically deprived and socially disadvantaged" third graders were last scored on standardized tests of arithmetic skills, 93 percent demonstrated average or above ability! And 91 percent scored average or above on a reading test that is used by city schools throughout the country.

High expectations along didn't get the job done, of course. Roth teachers work very closely together, learning from each other's strengths, shoring up each other's weak spots and supporting one another during rough moments. And, under a land's George Gund Foundation, the teachers have become decision-makers, determining objectives and developing programs to meet them

Excuse No. 3: There's little that ordinary individuals - parents or teachers can do. In 1973 and 1974, Rios Elementary School, serving a widely scattered rural and suburban population outside of San Diego, was labeled the district's 'school of greatest need." Among its problems: Rios had the lowest reading and math scores among the 17 elementary schools in the district, the severest overcrowding, rough discipline problems, low staff morale, the poorest attendance record and nearly the lowest socioecon-

At Rios today, third-grade math scores, formerly in the 25th percentile, have risen by 60 percent and reading scores have more than doubled; children lend each other a hand, not a fist; and there isn't a trace of low staff morale.

What moved Rios from being the 'school of greatest need" to a showcase school - in just three years?

Certain preliminary measures were taken. To solve its overcrowding, for example, the school not only knocked down the walls that boxed off classrooms but adopted an innovative year-round program as well. Thus, only 600 children are in school while 200 are out on a rotating basis. To provide enrichment during such enticing out-of-school activities that three out of four children participate even when they're on vacation. (Their enthusiasm is understandable: I'd go on a whale watch, too, if I had the opportuni-

Another important change at Rios has been the school's adoption of California's Early Childhood Education (ECE) program which emphasizes individualization and a 10 to 1 adult/child ratio. The extra grant of $148 a child the ECE provides is certainly helpful, too. But the ultimate key to success is the program's insistence that parents and educators become planners and decision-makers in their own schools. They decide what their school needs; they plan its programs and staff them; they evaluate the results. Rios is their school, and its successes belong to them. As these improvements illustrate, when staff and parents "own" a school, it's well on the way to success. Reasons For Optimism

with below average funding both succeed there's reason for optimism about American education. And when a school that seeme deficient in almost every respect turns itself around in three years there's further proof that ordinary people can do extraordinary things. These schools, and hundreds like them. indicate that there is nothing basically wrong with our school system that can't be cured with intelligent planning. thoughful, committed teachers - and the involvement of informed, concerned parents. If you're not satisfied with the schools your children attend, why not do something about it? Schools can work but everyone has to help.

Cattleman Denies Beef Price Hikes Cause Of Inflation and consumers enjoyed low beef prices." he said. "Now tlemen's Association said Thursday record high beef prices should not be blamed for a rapid increase in the nation's inflation rate.

Richard A. McDougal defended the cattle industry in the wake of the latest Consumer Price Index report which said the increasing cost of meat was the major factor in a return to nearly double-digit inflation.

McDougal said government deficits and fiscal policy. not beef prices, were responsible for the increased infla-

"It is true that beef prices have increased sharply during the past few months," said McDougal "But what we tend to forget is that beef prices go down as well as up And most of the time during the past five years, beef prices were decreasing or only holding steady

He said large cattle numbers, low prices and escalating production costs created financial losses which forced many cattlemen to sell off or cut back their basic herds during the past 3-4 years.

Beef producers merely have followed economic laws of supply and demand by cutting back their herds while prices were low, the association president said. "During that period, beef production was very large with reduced cattle numbers, beef supplies are declining and prices finally are beginning to catch up with the prices of other products.

The Consumer Price Index said diminishing supply and high consumer demand were responsible for meat prices rising at an annual rate of nearly 80 percent in April.

McDougal said the average price of Choice beef in April was $1.61 per pound. He said that was 20 percent higher than in April of 1977, but also noted there was little or no increase between 1973 and 1977.

"In other words, until just recently, beef prices did not show a significant, sustained increase for about five years," he said. "In the meantime, average per capita disposable income has increased by 41 percent

Area 4-H Leaders Due onors At State Meet

High Plains 4-H adult leaders will be among 28 in Texas to be honored at the State 4-H Roundup here June 7 at Texas A&M University

Recognition as top volunteer leaders in District 2 of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be given Mrs. Bill Reed of Kress and John Trimmier of Hale Center Mrs. Margaret Berry of McAdoo and Ronald Lewis of Guthrie will be honored from District 3

Each adult leader will receive a plague from the Texas 4-H Foundation, the service organization of the 4-H program in the state, at a luncheon.

Mrs. Reed, a homemaker, has been an organization leader for the Kress 4-H Club and also has been responsible for horse method demonstrations. She has a keen interest in method demonstrations and has trained and coached many award-winning entries at the county, district and state level

She has served as chairman of the Swisher County 4-H Elimination Contests which involve more than 200 4-H members. She has produced several national 4-H program award winners.

One of her club members was selected as an International 4-H Youth Exchange to Italy and is now taking up a leadership role in the Kress 4-H Club

The 4-H leader has received numerous honors, including the Silver Spur presented by the Swisher County Electic Cooperative. Mrs. Reed is youth coordinator of the First United Methodist Church of Kress and teaches Sunday School Trimmier, a Hale County farmer, is involved as a horse and beef project leader for the Hale Center and County Wide 4-H Clubs. His tenure of leadership goes back 22 years, during which time his clubs have produced many outstanding horsemen, horse judges, beef producers and steer exhibitors.

Trimmier is a certified American Quarter Horse judge and has judged 4-H horse shows and play days on a community, county, district and state level. He has judged many of these shows at his own expense. The 4-H leader serves as superintendent of the Plainview Stock Show Beef Division and is active in the Hale Center Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture. Hale Center Lions Club and Hale Center Methodist Church. Among his 4-H honors have been the active in his family livestock and farming operation, has served for 13 years as leader of the Triangle and Lone Star 4-H Clubs in Dickens County. She is an organization leader and also provides leadership for method demonstrations and project in foods and nutrition, clothing, sheep, livestock, dress reveue, home environment and safety.

Mrs. Berry has made major contributions to 4-H in the area of method demonstations. She coached a first and a second place demonstration team at the 1977 State 4-H Roundup.

She has been active in the county and distict 4-H adult leaders associations and has participated in district and state 4-H

Consumer Awareness Doubted By Farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) - It came as no surprise that a sampling of farmers believes non-farm consumers fail to understand agriculture.

The Agriculture Council of America, a five-year-old organization with a self-described mission to bridge that information gap, held a call-in this week and found that 90 percent of the rural Americans who called their toll-free number in Washington feel misunderstood.

Some 90 percent said they felt nonfarm consumers are not well-informed about farm issues, and underlying most responses was growing concern that 'our future is in the consumers' hands, but city people just don't understand our prob-

No wonder. There are fewer and fewer farmers. They now make up about 3.5 percent of the American population. The consumers who do not live on farms are confronted with rising food prices about which they have little understanding.

About three times a year the council, a non-political group made up of farmers and agribusiness firms, invites farmers or farm-oriented persons to call Washington with their gripes and talk with agriculture policymakers. The council asks each caller to answer a questionnaire.

For the next call-in project in July, the council just might invite urban shoppers to call and discuss their knowledge of farm issues, said Jim Eskin, a spokesman for the council

In the meantime, he said a new information blitz will be developed based on what 300 persons had to say when they reached Washington on the toll-free line.

There are plans for fact sheets to tell urbanites such things as how much of their food bill actually goes to the farmer and how important farm exports are to the American balance of payments and the strength of the American dollar. Of those who participated in the talkin, 65 percent said consumers should understand the farm economy so they would be more willing to accept variation in farm prices. Another 73 percent advocated understanding so they would push their representatives in Congress to support farm programs.

AN ESTIMATED 220,000 ACRES OF COTTON on the High Plains have been heavily damaged since late last week by hail, washing rains, and blowing sand. Rains Wednesday night brought much needed moisture in the southern Plains, but left widely scattered damage in their wake.

Swisher County recorded 4 to 5 inches north of Tulia last Saturday and had another 3.5 to 4 inches Wednesday in the Kress area.

County Agent David Gibson of Tulia said 30,000 to 40,000 acres of cotton have been severely damaged or destroyed. Just before the signup in the federal farm program ended Wednesday, Swisher County growers had signed to plant 101,000 acres of cotton and were expected to have about 106,000 acres in the fiber crop.

That would have been up from about 80,000 acres last year and about 40,000 acres two years ago, but farmers there now are in a quandary about what to do about replanting.

SWISHER COUNTY FARMERS DON'T like to plant cotton in June, Gibson pointed out, because of the risk that it won't have time to mature before the first killing frost.

Some farmers, however, are considering replanting in a quick-maturing cotton variety, he said. Others, he said, are talking about applying for the federal disaster payment on cotton and replanting the irrigated land in soybeans and putting sunflowers on some of the dryland.

Weather may determine what many will do, he said. "If we get another rain right away, there'll probably be more soybeans and sunflowers planted," Gibson said. We have a lot of land that's washed real bad," the agricultural agent said.

Some farmers who have farmed here all their lives say they have never seen their land washed so bad.

BRISCOE COUNTY AGENT EARNEST KIKER of Silverton said hail and washing rains have wiped out about half the 30,000 to 40,000 acres of cotton that had been planted there. 'And it will be the latter part of next week, without more rain, before many farmers can get back in their fields," he said. He said the county received 1.6 to 3 inches of rain Wednesday night. "After last week, we didn't need any more rain," Kiker said. "What we need now is hot, dry weather." More rain, he said, could force farmers not to replant Hale County Agent Ollie Liner said hail fell "in all directions" from Plainview

'It's hard to arrive at an estimate on the acreage involved because the hail fell at four or five different places," he said. He added that it will be two or three days before farmers in many cases can determine whether some of the dam-

RAINFALL IN DAWSON COUNTY ranged from .6-inch in the driest western sections to 2.5 inches in the southern area where rains had been received earlier, said County Agent Joe Ed Wise of Lamesa.

Wise said about 140,000 to 145,000 acres had been planted. He said about half of this was in the area of heaviest rainfall and may have to be replanted as a result of washing-in on the seedbeds.

Cotton also has been damaged, among other places, in the Levelland-Brownfield area, near Plains, in the Anton area, in Gaines County, and around Olton. Assistant Gaines County Agent Bryan Crook said hail and heavy rains inflicted 80 percent damage to crops in the southwestern part of the county. He said that area was raked by four separate hailstorms and a deluge of more than 4 inches

Rains of about 1.5 inches were reported in the northeast portion of Gaines County, but Seminole got only .37-inch and Seagraves .50-inch. Soaring Chicken Prices Seen Along With Increase In Beef aged cotton will recover.

The Agriculture Department has predicted that chicken and egg prices will climb this summer and next fall.

The news came in the same week that the department predicted retail prices for choice beef may increase 16 to 18 percent this year and beef prices reached record highs at Midwest stock-

The department said wholesale prices for broiler chickens, about 42 cents a pound in March, are expected to climb by 3 to 5 cents a pound this spring and rise to as much as 49 cents a pound in late summer and early fall.

By then, agricultural economists say, the beef situation should work to push chicken prices down. As they envision it, the high beef prices will encourage chicken producers to increase their output by 10 percent by fall. That should push the wholesale price of broilers back down to 43 to 45 cents a pound. Turkey prices are expected to remain quite steady through the rest of the year and they might even fall below last year's price at Thanksgiving time, the department said

Very fast maturing, highly adapted for late planting; good micronaire, verticillium with tolerant. Surprise yourself with the results you get on your replanting. Glad to send you a brochure. GREGG SEED FARMS, INC.

(806) 296-7902

The price of eggs is expected to rise gradually.

The department predicted cartoned Grade A large eggs sold to volume buyers in New York will rise to just below last year's price of 58 cents in April through June.

This summer's volume prices are expected to hover at last summer's price of 61.5 cents a dozen and then rise above last year's price in the fall."

The department said in late April egg producers were receiving less for their eggs than it cost to produce and market them. The prices probably bottomed out in May, the department said.

Economists predicted that a cutback in egg production, higher consumer income and high food prices will push up egg prices early next year, but the farmer is unlikely to reap any benefits. His prices will go up, too.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Improved planting weather depressed grain and soybean futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

Farmers reportedly were making good progress planting corn as clear skies and warm weather prevailed throughout much of the Midwest.

Losses of about 6 cents a bushel in wheat futures stemmed from liquidation as winter wheat harvesting began in

NEW YORK (UPI) - People may in- eventually might lead to relatively simple ways to spot those who might be at risk of developing rheumatoid arthritis

Rheumatoid arthritis, believed to afflict 6.5 million Americans, is the most painful, most often crippling kind of arthritis. It usually attacks the joints but can also affect the lungs, skin, blood vessels, heart and even the eyes.

Gibofsky, a research associate at Rockefeller University and a physician at the Hospital for Special Surgery, reported the disvovery of a common genetic marker for rheumatoid arthritis on white blood cells called B-lymphocytes. These cells are a key part of the body's diseasefighting immune system and Gibofsky said the markers studied are genetic factors that help make up the "immunologic fingerprint" of an individual. He said a study of 50 patients with confirmed rheumatoid arthritis found that three-fourths had these markers.

"We feel that this marker identifies a population which is genetically at risk for development of arthritis," he said in an interview preceding his report to the national scientific meeting of the founda-

Gibofsky said scientists had long suspected an inherited link to arthritis, but it has only been in recent years that evidence of genetic control began to accumu-

He said he and his colleagues believe there are two inter-related factors involved in the development of rheumatoid arthritis. One is the inherited susceptibility and the other is exposure to some kind of infectious agent that in theory might trigger arthritis.

'We don't know yet what the offending organisms are, but certainly we think that by identifying those populations at risk we can then begin to assess their response to the common and uncommon ocganisms in the environment and see who develops what when."

In a report at the opening session of the meeting Wednesday, Dr. Stephen Malawista of Yale University added clues from human studies to the collection of mostly animal evidence gathered by scientists searching for a possible link between viruses or bacteria and arthritis.

Malawista said similarities between a peculiar kind of arthritis that apparently is carried by a tiny tick in Connecticut and with rheumatoid arthritis suggest that kind of arthritis may be caused by an infectious agent.

Dr. Claud Bennett, of the University of Alabama and chairman of a special panel on the possibilities of an infectious cause of rheumatoid arthritis said even if a virus or bacteria were found to be responsible, there is no reason to believe the disease could be transmitted between peo-

He said isolation of an event which causes rheumatoid arthritis would have far reaching implications for prevention

Hemorrhoid Variations

By LAWRENCE L. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My problem is hemorrhoids. I am embarrassed to discuss them with anybody. They bleed a great deal, at times. I have used local preparations for years but nothing seems to help. I am afraid to have an operation because of bad reports I have heard about it. My brother-in-law had his removed by a doctor who used rubber bands. No operation, not hospitalized; no anesthesia, no pain. He is still very happy with it two vears later.

My surgeon just passed it off with "Oh, that's an old-fashion method. We get too much scar tissue that way. "I'd rather have scar tissue than hemorrhoids. Do you recommend this method?

DEAR READER - Hemorrhoids are simply varicose veins of the rectum. They pop out because the veins are overstretched. Anything that exerts pressure on the veins around the rectum can cause this. An extreme example is the pressure of the fetal head as it passes through the pelvic area during birth. Constipation with straining at the stool is another major cause. Obesity contributes to the problem, as do other factors that inmen and prevent drainage of the veins from that area.

There are internal hemorrhoids which bleed - and external hemorrhoids which cause pain and itching. The pain fibers are in the external area, hence the internal hemorrhoids often do not produce any symptoms until one day a person bleeds.

You should never ignore rectal bleeding because even if it is from a hemorrhoid the pressure behind the vein causing the hemorrhoid may be a tumor. Let your doctor decide what is causing the bleeding. Cancer of the rectum is too common to ignore such an important sign.

Yes, rubber bands can be used to tie off hemorrhoids. It is a office procedure but cannot be used in all cases. It depends a lot on the extent of the hemorrhoids. And despite your brotherin-law's glowing report and equally misleading reports in popular lay magazines it is not always painless. The internal hemorrhoid is grasped by a pair of forceps and pulled into the instrument used. The tight rubber band is slipped over the hemorrhoid. It may cause pain for six to seven days, and you have to be on the lookout for bleeding for about two weeks afterward. Only one hemorrhoid at a time is operated upon

You might ask to see a proctologist. Your family doctor could send you to one. Your own case will have to be evaluated before it can be determined if it would be suitable to do this in your case or not.

Injections are also used in some cases to scar off the offending vein or veins.

You may get by with a change in habits. Improved bowel habits and the use of stool softeners often decrease the pressure and hence the bleeding and other problems that occur. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1. Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation, ot provide some tips on good bowel function This should be helpful with or without hemorrhoids.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long. stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper. P.O. Box 1551. Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. But remember before you can choose the right course your doctor will need to review exactly what your own problem is since there is a world of difference in hemorrhoids.

Cuban Official Raps Alamo

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) - A Cuban official agrees the American Revolution was all well and good, but as for the Alamo - well, that's a matter of perspec-

Addressing the U.N. special session on world disarmament Tuesday, Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez said the Revolutionary War of 1776 was an expression of the "peoples legitimate right to organize their own defense.

He added, however, Cuba doesn't share Crockett and Col. James Travis at the Alamo in 1836, the key delaying action that of a crow, the pigeons fled for their lives. led to Texas' victory over Santa Anna and independence from Mexico.

Rodriguez said Cuba regarded the Alamo as "military violence" which snatched from Mexico the rich territowhose history or what it had to do with disarmament

David Fassler, a Wesleyan Universitystudent majoring in biology and psychology, studied the birds in New York's Central Park to find out how they survive in a big city environment - and why they exhibit almost no fear of people.

He found pigeons flourish, in part, because they have learned to respond selectively to different sounds they identify with certain threats to their safety.

Fassler, of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., recorded 30 dikferent sounds, which were played on a tape recorder set in the center of a two-meter circle on a park sidewalk. He scattered bird seed im the circle and on the speaker.

When the circle was filled with pigeons, David activated the recorder and photographed their reactions.

The sounds elicited four different res-

When they heard the taped sound of a America's fondness for Jim Bowie, Davy pneumatic drill, fire engine, car skid and crash, car horn, police siren and the caw and earth removers made only some flee. The pigeons stayed in the circle, but stopped eating and looked around when they heard cows, hyenas, college cheers, ries of Texas and New Mexico" and it is barking dogs, hoot owls and the sounds of execrated by history." He did not say trains arriving and departing Grand Central Station

nored street vendors, background traffic, jet planes, tropical birds, an erupting volcano, chickens and turkeys

He said the pigeons caught on quickly. Those that fled on hearing a threatening sound would not flee when they heard the sound again. Also, they discovered that merely moving out of the circle stopped the strange noises.

Fassler found the birds also fled when hearing 10 of the 13 mechanical noises, but only on hearing two of the 10-animal or human noises he had recorded.

Those threatening noises, Fassler speculated, are connected to real dangers: horses ridden by police in Central Park, crows that sometimes eat pigeon eggs, horns and sirens on fast-moving vehicles.

The birds' indifference to people probably means people pose no real threat. People in Central Park do not often go around killing pigeons. They're too busy killing each other." Fassler said

Lest the casual reader take Fassler's experiments lightly, his presentation to the Wesleyan Chapter of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society, won him first prize in the chapter's annual student paper contest.

Fassler said he would someday like to observe the responses of pigeons in other great pigeon capitols of the world

In autumn he will have the opportunity to watch New Haven pigeons of the Ivy League variety. That's when Fassler begins his first year of study at the Yale School of Medicine.

Nuclear Test Ban Policing Sparks Controversy

By United Press International Following is a sample of what the nation's newspapers have been saying this

The Atlanta Journal:

President Carter's decision to seek an agreement with the Soviet Union which would, in effect, ban all nuclear testing is in keeping with his inaugural address and in line with his growing concern over nuclear escalation.

But the one vague aspect of that decision - how such a ban would be effectively policed or verified - will undoubtedly draw the focus of all those who view such an agreement with misgivings.

It is acknowledged that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, including the president's nominee for new chairman, have voiced doubts over the merits of an agreement. Those doubts are also shared by nuclear energy officials and by many members of

It is apparent that we're going to have a heated debate over this controversial issue before it is resolved. And it is probable that the debate will consist of facts. hypotheses, pronouncements and emotions - separately and mixed.

The Soviet Union has indicated that it is ready to join in such a test ban agreement and, further, that it is willing to Orlov is 53, a physicist and uncommonly brave. In 1976 he founded a group to check on whether Moscow was honoring the human rights promises it made in the Helsinki Declaration the year before.

The group's reports were not flattering. In February, 1977, Orlov was arrested by the secret police and held incommunicado for 15 months, a violation of Soviet law. This week he was put on trial. Only then was he told the speceifc charges against him, which gravely handicapped his defense.

The authorities went to great lengths to hide details of the trial. Western reporters, foreign diplomats and Orlov's friends were barred from the courtroom. It was packed by party activists who were bused in and jeered the defendant at their supervisor's signal.

Orlov's wife and two sons were admitted but were warned not to take notes. On one occasion, she was stripped and searched in view of three male policemen to insure that she was not smuggling notes from the courtroom.

Each day after the trial she spoke with reporters in the street. Police pushed, shoved, cursed, threatened, snatched at notebooks and tape recorders and tore at clothing, all in an effort to suppress

Sales Advice Ignored

Nashau (N.H.) Telegraph

The U.S. Senate, in failing to disapprove President Carter's Mideast arms sales package, has chosen to ignore the advice of career diplomat and Pulitzer Prize winning historian George Kennan.

Speaking at a recent news conference. Kennan termed the arms sales "absolute madness." He pointed out that selling arms to Saudi Arabia and Egypt doesn't decrease political tension and might make it worse. These are violent and emotional people," added Kennan. What we have in return for the sale of sophisticated, modern jet aircraft is the word of the Saudis and the Egyptians that these weapons won't be used against Isreal. If we remember correctly, diplomats returned from Munich with Hitler's word that he didn't want war either.

Naturally, we hope that Kennan and other opponents of arms proliferation are wrong concerning the Mideast arms sale. However, we can't help but remember the words of Freidrich Hegel: What experience and history teach is this - that people and governments never have learned anything from history, or acted on principles deduced from it."

Competing Values

Los Angeles Times

The U.S. Supreme Court had under consideration two important, competing values in a case involving spot safety checks

One was the Fourth Amendment's protection against unreasonable searches and seizures, and the other was the welfare of workers exposed to potentially hazardous working conditions.

Both requirements, it seems to us, were met in a 5-3 decision that nevertheless provoked a sharp rebuttal from the minority. The majority held that warrantless investigations violate the Fourth Amendment but, on the other hand, the court said the government, in obtaining warrants, would not have to meet strict criminal-law standards

Writing for the majority, Justice Byron R. White said that "probable cause in the criminal-law sense" is not necessary for such a warrant, thus doing away with the need to produce "specific evidence of an existing violation." He also suggested that warrants could be issued without notice to property owners, but he argued that employers' constitutional rights would be protected if OSHA obtained warrants based on "a general administrative plan for enforcement of the

The dissenting justices maintained that the Fourth Amendment did not prohibit the kind of warrantless search conducted by OSHA, and they called the "new-fangled inspection warrant" proposed by the majority "essentially a formality" without much worth. Yet this procedure will offer some protection, we think, against the casual invasion of an employer's privacy. As White noted, the privacy interest suffers whether the government's motivation is to investigate violations of criminal laws or breaches of other statutory or regulatory

The case arose when the owner of a Pocatello, Idaho, heating-and-plumbing shop refused to permit an inspector to enter the establishment. When the agent returned with a court order, the contractor, a John Birch Society member who keeps a copy of the Bill of Rights on a wall of his office, again refused, and sought an injunction against further at-

Bill 'No' Victory

The Birmingham (Ala.) Post-Herald

The compromise bill worked out on the future of natural gas in this country is no 'victory" for President Carter, nor for the gas industry, nor for the anti-indus-

But it is, to paraphrase Lyndon Johnson, the only bill we've got. It is demonstrably the only chance we'll have this year, perhaps for many years to come, to solve a problem this nation simply must address. Granted, the bill's "solution" is imperfect. Granted, it is a compromise which thoroughly pleases no one. But what else did one expect? .

There'll be a lot of regulatory headaches between now and 1985. Temporary controls on gas produced and sold within the same state. Thorny interpretations of what is "new" gas. Legislative language must yet be drafted to cover some very intricate details of the gas producing and distribution business.

Marijuana Growing In Police Garden

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - Police have uprooted a marijuana field in their own

A group of local journalists found budding marijuana plants growing Thursday in between the violets, rose bushes, daisies and gladioli in the gardens surrounding the Police and Traffic Administration headquarters in downtown Mexico City.

Police said that the origin of the plants is a mystery, though they suspect a group of children who often play in the gardens are responsible.

Eight empty shells were found nearby, the witnesses said, and one stray bullet broke a window of a nearby apartment building. Police said the Mercedes crashed into a parked car during the attack, but it was not clear whether the chauffeur had tried to take evasive action or had lost control when he was shot.

The ambassador's wife, Nekla, was dead on arrival at a Madrid hospital. The body of his brother-in-law, Basir G. Balcioglu, a former Turkish diplomat, lay across the back seat of the car for more than an hour before it was removed.

The murdered chauffeur was a Spanjard. Antonio Torres Olmedo. An hour after the shooting, the French news agency in Madrid said it got a call from a man saving the shooting was done by commandos of "The Justice of Armenian Genocide.

The agency reported that the anonymous caller, speaking accented Spanish, said the killings were "justice for Armenians exterminated in Turkey." Thousands of Armenians were killed during mass deportations in Turkey in the early part of this century, and exiled Armenians have made sporadic attacks against Turkish officials since then.

Spain's security director, Mariano Nicolas, said an all-out manhunt for the killers had been ordered in Madrid.

Diplomatic sources said Kuneralp walked with the aid of crutches and, had the assassins known this and seen Balcioglu enter the car, they could have told he was not the ambassador. The brotherin-law did not use crutches.

The Turkish Embassy, where Kuneralp has served since 1972, refused to discuss the shooting, saying police had advised it against talking.

In Ankara, the Turkish Foreign Ministry said Balcioglu was a former ambassador who retired from the foreign service in 1974.

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit, in New York to address the U.N. special session on disarmament, told Turkish radio and television that his government was considering extra security measures for its diplomats abroad in light of the Madrid attack.

King Juan Carlos sent a message to Turkish President Fahri Koruturk deploring "the criminal attack." It was the first against a diplomat in Spain since 1970, when Basque separatists kidnapped West Germany's honorary consul in San Sebastian but later freed him unharmed.

Armenian radicals were blamed for the slaving in Paris in 1975 of Turkish Ambassador Ismail Erez two days after Turkey's ambassador, Danis Tunaligil, was shot and killed in his office in Vienna.

The ancient Christian kingdom of Armenia came under Turkish sway during the 16th century. It was disputed among Russia, Persia and Turkey during the next 400 years and lost its independence in 1921 when the Soviet Union and Turkey signed a treaty dividing its territory between themselves.

BRUSSELS. Belgium (AP) - Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko has threatened to break diplomatic relations with Belgium over Belgian press reports of rebellions in northeastern Zaire, far from Shaba Province, the Zaire news agency AZAP said today.

The agency, in a dispatch from the Shaba capital of Lubumbashi, said Mobutu was discussing the matter with Zaire's only political party, the Popular Movement of the Revolution, this morning.

In addition to his troubles in northeastern Zaire, Mobutu may have a third revolt in the center of his country. This time there was no report of foreign involvement. A spokesman in Brussels for the Congo-

Some of the trees in the front yard were broken. Of course it didn't have the same intensity as a hurricane, but it (the storm) was familiar to us. The National Weather Service canceled a flash flood warning for Nueces and San Patrico counties when the thunderstorms moved into the Gulf of Mexico. Scattered showers also were reported

The rains kept high temperatures mostly in the 80s. None of the cities reporting to the NWS recorded a temperature in excess of the 97 at Junction.

ORDINANCE RECONSIDERED

WASHINGTON (AP) - The District of Columbia City Council is reconsidering an ordinance aimed at barring city agencies from spending money in the 15 states that have not approved the Equal Rights Amendment. The council this week recommitted the ordinance to a committee for further study. At the same time, the district leaders acknowledged that some members of Congress have been angered by the city's participation in a boycott of conventions held in states that have not approved the amendment.

TRAVEL ON A BUDGET

Writer's Tips Help Improve Vacations

By BARBARA McDOWELL

The major purpose of a vacation is to recharge your batteries for another 50 weeks of work. You certainly don't want to return home feeling more run-down than when you left

Though nothing can prevent the attack of a spoilsport germ or virus, you can increase your chances of having a health vacation by observing these tips: -Get your body into condition before departure, especially if you are planning an active outdoors vacation. Start your trip with a good night's sleep under your belt, and stay well rested throughout your travels. -If you have a major medical problem, check with your doctor before setting your plans. To avoid vacation toothache, schedule that long overdue dental ex-

-Pack a travel medical kit. Among the items you might include are: bandages, thermometer, tissues, tweezers, aspirin or a substitute, insect repellant, antiseptic ointment, foot powder and an anti-diarrheal medicine. -Don't pack all your medicines away in a suitcase. Keep several days' supply with you in case bags are lost.

-If you will be spending time in the sun, anti-glare sunglasses and a sunscreen preparation are musts. Avoid sunburn by gradually building up your exposure to the sun.

-Consider climate in planning your varietion wardrobe. Pack at least one pair of comfortable walking shoes. And don't forget a wrap - even if you're heading for the tropics.

-Avoid the temptation to overindulge in food and drink while traveling. Give yourself time to adjust to a different diet.

 Make sure lakes and streams are clean and safe for swimming before diving in. And see that each swimmer in your group knows his or her limitations. If you are leaving the country, you must be even more health-conscious:

-Find out well in advance if you will need shots. (Two-to-three months lead time is recommended. You can obtain that information from your doctor, travel agent or local health department. Keep your shot validation certificate with your passport. Don't pack it!

-Inquire about the safety of food and water at your destination. If the water is questionable, you might wish to take along purification tablets or an immersion heater. (Boiling water will kill most dangerous germs.)

-Drink only bottle beverages opened in your presence or drinks made with boiling water. Skip the ice cubes. Even brushing your teeth with contaminated water can be hazardous. -Depending on the area, you may also have to pass up fresh fruits and vegetables that you cannot peel, dairy products and raw or rare meats. -Make sure your health insurance is valid abroad. Take along application

-U.S. embassies and consulates maintain lists of English-speaking doctors for travelers taken ill abroad. Better still, join the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travelers (IAMAT), a non-profit organization that publishes a directory of English-speaking physicians in 120 countries who take emergency calls. Most doctors listed with IAMAT have received at least some of their training in the United IAMAT members can also receive free charts for recording personal health

Perhaps more fascinating is the study of time itself - the kicking about of the age-old question of whether what we call "measurement" of time is actually the "creation" of time. Take a minute, or two, to think about that.

About 3000 B.C. man began building Stonehenge, a rough-cut stone monument in Wiltshire, England, that archaeologists believe was used to map astronomical cycles by the position of the sun. It is the first evidence of man going out of his way to eatch the time of day.

Later, when St. Peter's Basilica was built, it was positioned so that exactly on the vernal equinox - the first day of spring when the length of the night is equal to the length of the day - the sun splashes the altar.

Sun dials were among the first timepieces. One was constructed so that a reflecting mirror could catch the sun's first rays, the heat igniting a charge of black powder in a brass cannon.

Killing Of Fingernail Clams In Rivers Baffles Aquatic Biologist killing the fingernail clams on the Illinois and Mississippi rivers and Richard Sparks wants to know what.

So far, it's a real-life whodunit tough enough to baffle Ellery Queen Some clues:

-Millions of fingernail clams mysteriously disappeared in the mid-1950s from the Illinois, where they once flourished and provided food for ducks, freshwater drum and largemouth bass.

The problem is that virtually nothing is known about the water quality requirements of the freshwater clam. So, we don't know what factor or combination of factors may be responsible for its demise," said Sparks, of the Illinois Natural History Survey

An aquatic biologist, Sparks is the main investigator for a $19,000, one-year study to isolate what is killing the clams, the bottom of the food chain in a delicate ecological system.

Developer S. Shami, represented by attorney Russell Daves, had requested duplex (R-2), family apartment (A-1) and general retail (C-2) zoning for a 120-acre tract north of 19th Street and east of Milwaukee Avenue. The tract is now zoned for single-family residential (R-1) use.

Daves said the change would allow for two tracts of apartment buildings, two, tracts of duplexes and two commercial

Acting on the advice of Planning Director Jim Bertram, commission members took issue with the general retail district and voted to continue the issue until their July meeting.

Commissioners approved a request for a change in zoning from restricted local retail (C-2A) and R-1 to a local retail district (C-2) made by J.C. Chamber on behalf of O.V. Scott. Chamber said the new zoning would allow a multi-story facility taller than 24 feet to be built north of 4th Street and east of Hartford Avenue.

Approval also went to a request by A.W. Salvars for Chris Munoz to allow Munoz to continue storing firewood on vacant lots north of East 48th Street and west of Southeast Drive Zoning Administrator Jerrel Northcutt said Munoz' current heavy commercial. (C-4) zoning would not allow wood storage. Munoz instead received light manufacturing (M-1) zoning.

Aubrey J. Fouts, acting on behalf of the Day Care Association of Lubbock, received approval for an R-1 to high density apartment (A-2) zoning change on lands south of 13th Street and west of Vanda Avenue. Fouts said a new day care center would be built at that site.

Rev. Dick McCreight of the Peace Tabernacle at 2102 5th St. received commission approval on a zoning change on lands where the church plans to relocate. McCreight sought and received a change from R-1 to A-2 zoning on land south of 69th Street and west of Frankford Avenue. A school, gym and church buildings will be built on the 20-acre site. Commissioners also gave approval to a zoning change request by Lloyd Croslin Jr., for Jack Schneider that would allow self-service gas pumps to be installed in a general retail (C-3) district north-of 4th Street and east of Frankford Avenue.

Though that request was approved, a similar request by the Southland Corporation for C-3 zoning south of 81st Street and east of Indiana Avenue for gas pumps was denied because the station would not be near a major thoroughfare.

Over the objections of a salvage operator in the area, members also voted to change industrial zoning for an area of land across from an elementary school near Baylor Street and North Avenue U to high density apartment zoning.

That change was initiated by the City of Lubbock to upgrade the neighborhood around the school.

Counties In Texas Will Receive Aid

The designation was asked because of physical damage caused by natural disorders, the governor's office said.

NEW GAME! - Tanner Laine, veteran reporter and folklorist his achievements, Mayor Dirk West proclaimed today as "Tanfor The Avalanche-Journal, retires today after 38 years of covering West Texas news and people of the South Plains. In honor of

Western Chronicler Rides Into Sunset

Avalanche-Journal Staff Whenever a new reporter walked into The Avalanche-Journal newsroom. one of his or her first sights would be a smiling, stocky man lumbering forward with a large hand outstretched in greeting

I'm Tanner Laine," he'd say, adding, "let me know if there's anything I can do to help voo.

Tanner Laine, a veteran A-J reporter who has written about everything from pioneers to pets to presidents, is retiring today.

Laine's been covering the West Texas news scene for 38 years, and has displayed a zeal and a penchant for West Texas folklore and off-the-beaten path human interest stories

Early in the morning, he would stroll in with his peculiar gait, something between the rolling walk of a ailor and the strutting of a rooster He'd put his hat and his checked coat on the rack, walk back to his desk and start to type

Laine's desk looks almost like a fortress with walls made of appointment books, boxes, file folders and letter baskets. Why, from the right angle, vou couldn't even see him. He wrote stories that were more than newspaper articles - they were

"I loved every minute of it. I'm saying this sincerely." he said. Laine came to the Avalanche-Journal in 1952, and has been here ever since except for a year's stint as editor of the Kerrville Times

"I moved there because my son was allergic to everything in West Texas. he said. "It turned out that he was allergic to everything there, too," so Laine came back.

He's held a number of positions on the paper, and for 12 years he handled the regional desk, traveling thousands of miles over the South Plains, West Texas and Eastern New Mexico wherever there was a story happening in the circulation area.

'Any area event in the circulation area of any importance...I was there,

During his travels Tanner collected tories and folklore from cowboys and other old-timers, putting much of the material into five books dealing with the legends, yarns and tales of the South Plains

He went to ranches, taking pictures that ran as a series, "Face of a Cowboy," for eight years. It stopped, he said. "when I ran out of pictures."

For the last two years he's been handling the A-J's church page, a job he says he's liked best of all.

Tve been happier doing the religion page than anything else I've ever done," he said. "It's changed the way I've looked at Jesus Christ," the man who wears a "Try God" pin on his coat lapel every day said.

One of the reasons Laine likes the church page is that, during a readership survey, the church page ranked high in reader's interest.

I like to see our readers get the top presentation of religious news.

Laine's own deep faith was always apparent in his work on the church section. "I used to be as wild and irresponsible as anybody," he said. "I did everything, but I've changed now.

"If I have any talent for writing He gave it to me, and I make no mistake about it " he said

Laine's talent for writing has won him several writing awards from the Associated Press. United Press International and the old Texas Railroad Association's contest for Texas newspapermen. He won the latter twice in a row, once beating a field of 1,400

'Just say I won my share of awards, both for photography and newswriting. I don't know how many I've won." he said. His award-winning stories dealt with a railroad crew's effort to save a man bitten by a rattlesnake, another railroad crew composed entirely of full-blooded Indians and other awards for stories he hardly remembers.

For five years he took three hours a day away from the A-J to teach feature writing at Texas Tech, where exears earlier he had received his journalism degree. "I didn't use a textbook, I taught it from my heart," Laine said. "I told them the secret of good feature writing is to write it for the readers, not for yourself or for your editor or teacher. Laine was part of a crew from the AJ that went out to talk to classrooms using the newspaper as a study guide. Someone represented each department: editorials, news, sports and

"I told them newspaper features were the dessert of the newspaper meal," he said, while the other representatives told the classes about their

When the crew went back a week or so later, the students were all saying they had been reading the editorials and the local news stories. None of them mentioned features. Laine squirmed a little in his chair and finally stood up.

"Haven't any of you kids read a story about a cat in Levelland who ate vegetables and fruit?" he asked. "We had a picture of him eating a cantal-

Fired Coach Sues School

Former Morton basketball coach Dan Smith Thursday filed a $465,000damage suit against the Morton school district and other defendants, claiming he was unjustly terminated from his posi-

School Superintendent Marlin Dodds, Dodds' wife and four members of the school board were cited as individual de-

Smith claims he was ousted from his job because he refused to show favoritism to the son of board member Dexter Nebhut and because he stood up for the rights of black athletes to log playing time in accordance with their abilities.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court here alleges Smith sustained actual damages of $225,000 through loss of income, reputation and suppression of free speech and academic freedom.

Smith also asks for punitive damages of $240,000, including $75,000 each from Nebhut, superintendent Marlin Dodds and from Dodds' wife Kathryn. He asks for $5,000 in punitive damages each from board members Herbert Greener, Robert

Yeary and Raymond Lewis. The Morton school board reportedly decided at an April 17 meeting not to renew Smith's contract, on a 4-3 split vote. The school administration reportedly had recommended that the contract not be renewed. Smith was hired in 1976. His Morton team won the state AA basketball title in his first year at the helm.

The coach says in the suit that the resouces available to Morton High School limit the number of athletes who can dress in uniforms for games. The plaintiff says his policy was to allow the best players to dress.

Smith alleges that Nebhut attempted to change the policy in February by telling an assistant coach to dress and play all athletes trying to make the junior varsity team. Smith says that he advised the assistant to maintain the usual policy.

Later, according to the plaintiff's petition, he received a telephone call from Nebhut criticizing him for playing a certain black student. Nebhut also criticized blacks and complained about the corresponding lack of playing time accorded his son, the suit alleges. Smith said in the suit that Dodds later instructed him to include Nebhut's son on a trip. According to Smith, Dodds said that he would support the coach if another student were involved.

The suit charges Smith was subsequently dismissed, with the action attributable to the alleged controversy surrounding the Nebhut youth and playing time alloted to black athletes.

Smith also charges in the suit that Mrs. Dodds, at her husband's instigation, later made slanderous statements about him to provide a false basis for the contract termination.

Smith contends he was punished for exercising his freedom in expressing the belief that a black youth deserves equal educational opportunity.

The suit asks for a declaratory judgment stating that Smith's employment was terminated unconstitutionally. It also seeks a permanent injunction ordering Smith's re-instatement under terms of his last contract without reduction of benefits, as well as award for alleged damages.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Basically, I am a person with a great deal of faith and literally put myself into the hands of the Deity.

I feel if God does not want me to make fattening yeast rolls, He will let the expiration date on my yeast expire.

If He does not want me to bake a three-layer chocolate cake from my favorite recipe, He will see that I do not have three squares of unsweetened chocolate on my shelves.

The other morning. I awoke and said, "Lord, if you do not want me to go on a diet and get sick, give me a sign."

The sign couldn't have been more obvious. It was posted over the lettuce in the produce section of the supermarket and read: LETTUCE 98 cents.

I don't need a bolt of thunder and a flash of lightning to fall on me. How could I possibly have a lettuce orgy at 98 cents a head?

The omen held true all up and down the produce aisle. The price of celery was exorbitant. Spinach was a luxury item. And when I viewed the price of tomatoes, I didn't know whether to buy three of them or make a house payment.

To some of you who never diet, you will fail to see the ramifications of this piece. In simple language, it means to me that God has taken a side — the side of the dieters. The thousands of men and women who face famine daily — who jog, sweat, groan, exercise, are pounded, patted, steamed, who count calories, pop pills, take shots and who lust...don't forget lust. Who wake up every morning knowing that they will never see gravy again.

The sticky little burs rolled in caramel and nuts hadn't gone up in price at the supermarket. Neither had German chocolate, French garlic bread, pasta, or sour cream dips.

When I told my friend, Mayva, she said, "That is the most ridiculous reason for falling off a diet you have come up with to date. I don't for a minute believe these orders came from that big spa in the sky."

I'm used to doubters. I took her to the supermarket and placed her hand on the head of lettuce marked 98 cents and said, "Now do you believe?"

At the checkout, I grabbed up a candy bar which had not gone up one penny in price. Wickedness never tasted so good! Copyright 1978 Field Enterprises, Inc.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Please reconsider your answer to DEBATING, who asked if she should tell the woman her ex-husband was about to marry that he had beaten her up. (You said, "On the chance that she'll bring out the best in him while you brought out the beast in him, keep mum."

My sweet young niece was married only three months. No one would have believed that the man she married was capable of such violence as he later evidenced. If only someone would have warned that gentle, unsuspecting girl, she might be alive today. She suffered such a beating at the hands of that monster, the undertaker was sickened at the condition of her bruised and battered body.

Wife-beaters sometimes kill. I hope you will change your advice, Abby, HEARTSICK AUNT IN CALIF.

Dear Aunt: Thank you for protesting my answer. You are right. My "give 'em another chance" philosophy should not have been applied to a matter as potentially dangerous as wife-beating. I should have emphatically recommended that wife No. 1 warn wife No. 2. I contritely stand corrected.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to LADY PREACHER IN IOWA, she needs to read First Corinthians, Chapter 14 (King James version):

Paul says, "Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law."

The 35th verse goes on to say, "And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church."

I am a fan of yours, Abby, and hope that even though you are all for women's rights, you will be fair and print this anyway. Sign me... 23-YEAR-OLD PREACHER, KINGS-PORT, TENN.

Dear Preacher: Although the printed word remains unchanged, over the years even Scripture has been interpreted in a variety of ways. It is no longer considered a "shame" for women to speak in many churches, temples and synagogues.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished crying my eyes out over something that is not my fault. A very nice boy from school started dating me and I was on cloud nine. I was never popular, and he was like an answer to my prayers.

Well, he just called me up and told me he couldn't date me anymore because his parents have forbidden him to. The reason was they heard that my older sister had a baby out of wedlock. (She did; but, Abby, I have never done one thing out of the way, so why should I have to suffer for something my sister did?) I have even had girlfriends tell me they couldn't go around with me anymore because of my sister's reputation.

I am not like my sister, and I don't see why people should hold this against me. How can I prove that I am a "nice" gitl when I have this against me?

NICE GIRL IN RHODE ISLAND

Dear Nice: Don't try to "prove" anything. People who aren't willing to judge you on your own record aren't worth having as friends. •

Palate Pleasure Leads Tourists

When modern travelers jet to far places for authentic dishes or superstar restaurants, they're following an urge set by prehistoric forebears. People have been traveling to please their stomachs since the dawn of mankind, reports travel specialist Lea Ann Van Houten.

Journeying for more or better fare, she says, goes back to the primeval hunt for food.

the diamond finesse worked.

Holding nine trumps, the percentage play is to try to drop the queen. However, declarer realized that possession of the ten of spades considerably increased his chances for the contract.

At trick two declarer cashed the king of clubs. Then he cashed a high heart, sluffing another diamond from dummy, and ruffed his remaining high heart! This provided a key entry to the table, for declarer could not afford to cross to the ace of spades if his play were to succeed.

Now declarer led a trump from dummy, and when East followed low, he finessed the jack. When West showed out, the slam was home, regardless of which defender held the king of diamonds.

Declarer's unusual line guaranteed his contract 'as long as East had two or three clubs. Assume that West held the queen doubleton of clubs and the trump finesse failed. The trumps would now be exhausted, and West would be on lead with an insoluble problem. If he led a heart, declarer would ruff in dummy and discard a diamond, then discard his remaining diamond loser on thể high spade. If West led a spade into declarer's K-10, declarer would now get two discards on dummy's spades because he could enter dummy with the eight of trumps. And a diamond would be into declarer's A Q tenace.

New Stamp Honors Hobby

By IRVING DESFOR Associated Press Writer

Photography is a universal language because a picture can be seen and under-stood in any country despite the normal barriers of speech and different customs

And now "Photography: the Universal Language" becomes the first commemorative stamp honoring photography itself by the U.S. Postal Service when it is isued June 26th

There were two U.S. stamps in the past which related to photography. One honored George Eastman and the other. talking pictures. But the new first class stamp shines an official spotlight of recognition on what has become a hobby, an art and a profession for millions every-

However, it isn't always possible to dis play a camera and take pictures everywhere with the same universal ease. The Fron Curtain countries come immediately to mind where a camera's innocent prying eyes might be construed as spying eyes by suspicious officials. In other nations, authorities frown on picture taking of any subject that may be considered unsympathetic ... like poverty in any form. Even in our own country, picture-taking can be restricted by some religious sects like the Amish, or in some places like museums or theaters

But now, with the vacation season at hand shortly. Americans will soon be offwith their cameras to bring back visual memories of people and places overseas and in some of the less familiar areas of our own nation. There are a variety of techniques and methods which photographers use to get pictures of interesting strangers they encounter everywhere

First, there is the straight, friendly smiling approach. With a few appropriate memorized phrases, you indicate your desire to take some pictures. Here are some helpful phrases in five foreign languages which can be tucked away inside your camera case for ready reference

"May I take your picture, please" (Spanish): Por favor, puedo fotografiarlo? (French): Est-ce que je peux faire une photo de vous? (Italian): Per favore posso farle una fotografia? (German) Darf ich Sie bitte photographieren? (Japanese). Sumimasen ga anatano shashin wo totte vouoshii desho ka?

"May I take a picture here" (Spanish). Puedo tomar una foto? (French) Est-ce que je peux faire une photo ici? (1talian): Posso fare una fotografia qui (German): Kann ich hier photographieren? (Japanese): Shashin o otori shitemo yoroshii desho ka".

"Thank you very much" (Spanish): Muchisimas gracias, (French): Merci beaucoup. (Italian): Molte grazie. (German): Danke vielmals. (Japanese): Taihen arigato gozaimasu.

Other photographers object to alerting subjects in advance. They feel that the honest, candid atmosphere is lost when the subject is aware of being photographed and the result looks posed.

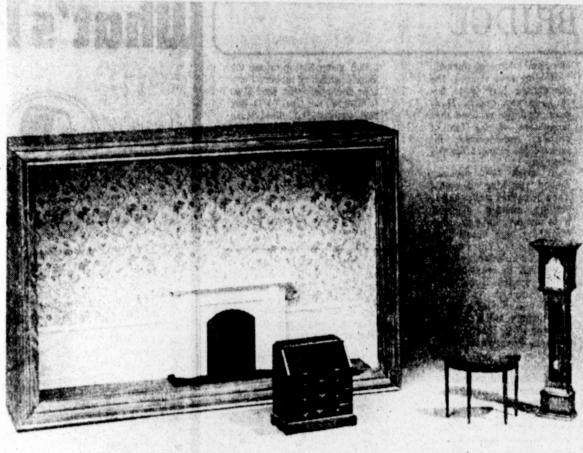

They study the scene they want from the corner of their eye, set the focus, shutter speed and lens aperture to suit looking apparently in another direction. At an appropriate instant, they turn, shoot and turn away again. The key to success here is to remain inconspicuous.

It is easier to remain inconspicuous by using a telephoto lens, and a popular one that I've used is 135mm. Then you can work from a distance without the subject being forcibly aware of being photographed. The photographer at the same time doesn't feel like he's sneaking a pic-

I recall one photographer whose picture-taking equipment included cartons of small chocolate bars and chewing gum and boxes of inexpensive ballpoint pens. When out looking for pictures, he filled his pockets with these accessories and rewarded his subjects, young and old, with an appropriate goodwill offering.

Still another technique was one I've used and other photographers have found of great value technically. That is to have a Polaroid camera along. The novelty of producing an instant picture to give to the subject is a sure way of getting instant cooperation from others in the vicinity. At the same time, it's a good way to check the exposure and improve the composition, i ecessary, when taking the picture again with transparency or negative film in other cameras.

While photography is a universal language, picture taking has its restrictions. There is no one method that's sure-fire in all places at all times. Even in our own environment and sometimes in our own family circles, a real diplomat of the camera may have to use a combination of all the approaches mentioned. One must gauge the subject's personality and know when to approach with a smile and the right phrase ... and when to remain inconspicuous behind the camera curtain.

Advice Given For Clearing Clogged Sinks

By ANDY LANG Associated Press Writer

Q. - We have a kitchen sink that gets clogged every few weeks. Sometimes it can be cleared with a suction cup and sometimes with a snake. We seldom use a chemical cleaner. I often see the advice to clean out the plug at the bottom of the trap under the sink. It doesn't seem to apply to our sink, because it does not have such a plug. How can the trap be cleaned?

snake or even a chemical cleaner, what you are trying to do is to remove whatever stoppage there is in the drainpipe, including the trap. When a trap has a cleanout plug, removing it and dislodging the obstruction is usually more effective thanby attacking the problem from the top of the drain. When it does not have a cleanout plug and you wish to get at the stoppage from under the sink, you must remove the trap itself. This is a bit more difficult than removing a cleanout plug. because you must detach the two ends of the trap, working very carefully so as not to damage the pipe or the trap.

- One of the doors in our house keeps binding and sticking. I remember reading some time ago that this is often caused by loose hirtges. Sure enough, when I inspected the hinges, I found that both of them were loose, but I have forgotten how to make the repair. When I retighten the screws, they come loose again in a few days. Can you help me?

A. - You didn't say which of the hinge leaves are loose - those on the door or the jamb? If the screws are loose on the jamb leaves, you usually can use longer screws to tighten the hinges. But if they are loose on the door, you must be careful that the screws are not so long that they go through the door. Therefore, the best way is to take out the screws and fill the holes with wood putty, plastic wood or pegs glued into place. When the repair material is dried (it's best to let it remain overnight), you can reuse the same screws or drive in new ones of the same size. There are some other ways of doing this. One is to fill the holes with wood putty or plastic wood and then, before the material has dried, put the screws into place carefully and allow to harden. Another is merely to fill the holes with steel wool. Usually the old screws then can be redriven so that they hold firmly.

polo, canoeing and rowing. Each stamp includes the official 1980 Olympic Emblem, year of issue and the inscription "Games of the XXII Olympiad, Moscow,

The U.S. Postal Service, which accepted subscription memberships for its 1978 Commemorative Stamp Panels Program through May-30, says individual panels will be available throughout the year by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Branch in Washington, D.C.

Membership in the USPS subscription rogram allowed people to receive all the ommemorative Stamp Panels of 1978 on an automatic basis. Each 81/2 by 11 1 4 inch panel features a specific new U.S. commorative stamp and bears a black of four mint stamp transparent mount

Cost of the complete set of 1978 Commemorative Panels is $64. If you missed the deadline and want to purchase only some of the panels, send your requests to the Philatelic Sales Branch, Washington, D.C., 20265. Remember, there is a minimum $5 order, plus a 50-cent handling charge, for mail orders at the Sales Branch. The cost of each panel is $4.

Many collectors specialize in one country, one region, or one continent. For those who save stamps of only one country, there are many albums specifically for each nation.

Minkus Publications, for example, produces albums for such countries as Afghanistan. Germany. Luxembourg. San Marino, Monaco, Ghana, Israel and Liechtenstein, plus the United Nations and Vatican City. Your dealer should have the entire list available.

A limited edition of a pair of cacheted covers honoring the "75th Year Powered Flight: Kitty Hawk to Concorde" has been prepared by the American Topical Association. The first cover includes the 6-cent Wright Brothers air mail stamp of 1949 and the second cover uses the 50th anniversary of powered flight stamp of 1953. The aircraft flown by the Wrights at Kitty Hawk, N.C., in 1903, the supersonic Anglo-French Concorde and the Space Shuttle Enterprise are superimposed on a large figure "75" on the cachet design.

Cloning Of Mice Near Reality

Retired Hostess-Manager Reminisces

PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) -Mary Wilroy learned to expect the unexpected during a 14-year career of making visiting kings and presidents comfortable at Blair House across the street from the White House.

There was always something that went wrong on every visit," said Mrs. Wilroy, the retired hostess-manager of the official residence for foreign heads of state visiting Washington. "Something happened in every visit which you couldn't anticipate,

There would be something they wanted, or something in the house would break." she said in an interview at her home here.

Mrs. Wilroy, who retired in July, 1975. said she personally greeted about 250 heads of state during her tenure as hostess of Blair House.

I probably have met more heads of state than has any one president," she

She served during the administrations of John Kennedy. Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, meeting all of the kings, presidents and other chiefs of state who made state visits to Washington during those turbulent years.

Mrs. Wilroy joined the State Department protocol office in 1943 and was named hostess-manager of Blair House in March, 1961. She retired after suffering a heart attack.

"It's just like running your own home." she.said. "You plan everything about the visit before the dignitary arrives. You find out what he likes or distikes. You plan the menus and setup of the rooms. I even did all of the flower arrangements. But even the best of plans can go astray and Mrs. Wilrov said she learned a big lesson early in her duty as hostess, when she greeted the president of the Ivory Coast in French.

"I'm not a linguist, but I had been exposed to French in high school and I thought that if at least I could greet him in French it would be nice." she said. That was a grave mistake. Since I greeted them in French they thought I was fluent in the language and they chattered at me all the time in French.

A petticoat crisis occurred during the same visit.

The president's wife "had purchased a new gown in Paris to wear to the first night state dinner out forgot the stiff pet-ticoat she needed," Mrs. Wilroy said. "I heard about it at 6:30 p.m. and the dinner was at 8. I called every bridal shop in suburban Washington and finally found one that delivered the petticoat in time.

Another crisis arose when Mrs. John Grey Gorton, wife of the prime minister of Australia, broke a tooth and faced the prospect of showing up at a White House function unable to smile for photogra-

I called my dentist at 8:30 a.m. and he fixed her tooth and she was at the White House affair on time," Mrs. Wilroy said. Another time one of the visitors broke his glasses and a nearby optometrist fixed them. One man lost all his shirts in transit and I made some calls around the area and by lunch time I had a half dozen shirts for him.

You have to have that kind of support," she said.

Keeping a cool head in the time of ap-said. "I didn't want to wake up everyone or cause a big sensation. So when we couldn't find the source I called a nearby fire station and told the captain to send one man down and not the whole unit. "He did and it was decided the smoke was from something outside the area and was coming in through the vents. But it was handled so that no one was alarmed."

The Russians were probably the most difficult visitors," Mrs. Wilroy said. One reason, she said, was because they were there for 12 days and the other because Nikita Khrushchev was gone for five of those days.

Whenever you are dealing with the lower echelon, they become more difficult. They can become much more demanding than the head of state." she Mrs. Wilroy also had many dealings with the wives of the presidents, han-dling many of their functions at Blair House.

Prison Term Set In Robbery

A Lubbock man Thursday was assessed a 10-year prison term after pleading guilty to a convenience store robbery.

It marked the second time defendant Ronnie Pegues had been accused of robbing the same store

Ironically, Pegues had been assessed the identical sentence - 10 years - by a jury after being found guilty of robbery in connection with the earlier case. That case is on appeal.

Pegues, 24, of 1913 E. Colgate St. pleaded guilty Thursday in Judge Denzil Bevers' 72nd District Court to the June 19. 1977, robbery of a Town & Country Food Store at 3910 Ave. A.

According to stipulated testimony from attendant Robbie Ray Panter, 22 at the time, a man entered the store around 5 a.m. and claimed to know the manager. Panter's testimony indicated the man

NY Woman Rents Felt Forum To Conduct Anti-Crime Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) - It cost Marianne Hofmann most of her life savings - more than $5,000 - for a few brief moments in the spotlight to speak out against crime, but she says it was worth every penny.

Mrs. Hofmann, who promised to stage the rally two years ago while praying for an elderly neighbor stabbed to death by an 18-year-old, plunked down $6,000 from her savings and a loan against her earnings to rent the 4,500-seat Felt Forum at Madison Square Garden.

Appropriations Panel Okays 'Abortion Bill' is the Labor-HEW appropriations bill, but on Capitol Hill it's known by another "the abortion bill."

four-line section of the massive bill that gets the most attention euch year and spurs the most debate. That provision relates to the availability of abortions for poor women under the government Medicaid program.

On Thursday, the House Appropriations Committee took up the Labor-HEW bill and approved, without any discussion of its merits, a provision denying federal funds for abortions unless the lives of the women are endangered.

The action sets the stage for another long battle with the Senate over abortion funding, a fight that took six months to resolve last year.

The House is tentatively scheduled to take up the measure late next week, and the first of many fights over the abortion language is expected then. The House has consistently cast antiabortion votes, while the Senate has pushed equally hard for more liberal abortion language.

But a ruling by an administrative law judge of the Food and Drug Administration released Thursday said that the drug is safe and effective for over-the-counter sale. The decision still could be overturned by Food and Drug Commissioner appropriations bill in committee last month, it was voted down with almost no

Congress has refused to grapple directly with the abortion issue since a 1973 Su-preme Court ruling that made the procedure available legally.

Vocal anti-abortion groups have failed to win congressional consideration of a constitutional amendment to reverse the Supreme Court decision, but their lobbying pressures have been felt.

To appease them, Congress has moved to place restrictions on abortions paid for with taxpayers' dollars.

Rep. Edward Patten, D-N.J., made the only reference to an anticipated battle with the Senate on the abortion amendment, predicting 100 extra hours of work before that issue is settled and the money bill approved.

"This is just the beginning of the ball game," Patten said.

The House language would allow federlife would be endangered by carrying the fetus to full term — a rare occurrence.

The compromise that settled last year's fight allowed Medicaid-financed abortions in cases of rape and incest, provided the victims reported the attacks. In addition, abortions were allowed if severe physical health damage might result from a full-term pregnancy.

Wheelchair-Bound Youth Robs Man On Crutches

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) - A 17-year-old youth in a wheelchair snatched $25 from an acquaintance on crutches and escaped with the money.

The youth, Jonathan Hope, gave himself up later. His lawyer told a magistrate Thursday Hope acted "on the spur of the moment." The youth was convicted but sentencing was delayed for a pro-

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

Matthew 28:1-18, The Living Bible

I Early the next morning, as the new day was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went out to the tomb.

2 Suddenly there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven and rolled aside the stone and sat on it. 3 His face shone like lightning and his clothing was a brilliant white

4 The guards shook with fear when they saw him, and fell into a dead faint. 5 Then the angel spoke to the women. "Don't be frightened!" he said, "I know you are looking for lesus, who was crucified, 6 But He isn't here! For He has come back to life again, just as He said He would. Come in and see where His body was lying....

7 And now, go quickly and tell
His disciples that He has risen from the dead, and that He is going to Galilee to meet them there. That is my message to them.

8 The women ran from the tomb badly frightened, but also filled with joy, and rushed to find the disciples to give them the angel's

9 And as they were running, suddenly Jesus was there in front of them! "Good morning!" He said. And they fell to the ground before Him, holding His feet and worshiping Him.

10 Then Jesus said to them, "Don't be frightened! Go tell My brothers to leave at once for Galilee, to meet Me there." 11 As the women were on the way into the city, some of the Temple police who had been guarding the tomb went to the chief priests and told them what had happened. 12,13 A meeting of all the Jewish leaders was called, and it was decided to bribe the police to say they had all been asleep when Jesus' disciples came during the night and stole His body. 14 "If the governor hears about it," the Council promised, "we'll stand up for you and everything will be all right."

15 So the police accepted the bribe and said what they were told to. Their story spread widely among the Jews, and is still believed by them to this very day.

16 Then the eleven disciples left for Galilee, going to the mountain where Jesus had said they would find Him.

17 There they met Him and worshiped Him-but some of them weren't sure it really was Jesus!

18 He told His disciples, "I have been given all authority in heaven

CHURCH OF THE FUTURE - Parishoners of St. hn Neumann Parish, formerly St. Elizabeth's, soon fill start construction of a $1.2 million worship and adnistration center at 22nd Street and Frankford Avenue. The church complex will be ultra-modern in every detail. It will utilize geostructure — earth covering — in order to maximize energy conservation. As the architect's drawing shows, St. John Neumann's complex architecturally will take a dramatic and innovative approach to church construction. The worship center will be earth-covered to the height of the roof line. The administration center, which adjoins the worship center, is 10 feet below grade and will feature a 2-foot earth covering. The planning committee took a long look at solar solar heating and cooling for inclusion in the plans. Along with the center, a parish hall already is under construction adjoining St. Elizabeth's School at the same address.

RELIGION ROUNDUP

Jewish Prayerbook

NEW YORK (AP) - "Blessed is She who in the beginning gave birth," reads a new Jewish prayerbook for the Sabbath, using female imagery for God.

The authors, Naomi Janowitz and Maggi Wenig, members of women's minyan (congregation) at Brown University in Providence, R.I., say the aim is to "sanctify our everyday lives as women."

Other excerpts from the prayerbook published by Lilith, a Jewish women's magazine, read: "Blessed is She whose womb produces all creatures ... Blessed is She who nourishes those who are in

New CMA Church Leader

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - The Christian and Missionary Alliance, led for 18 years by the Rev. Dr. Nathan Bailey, elected a new president, the Rev. Dr. Louis L. King, at its convention

He takes over July 31 on Bailey's retirement as head of the evangelical denomination with 8,000 churches in 46 countries, 1,461 of them in the United States. He has headed the denomination's overseas missions, including 938 American missionaries, since 1956

Gay Ordination Ban

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - Several regional units have petitioned the Southern branch of Presbyterianism, the Presbyterian Church U.S., to bar self-affirmed, practicing homosexuals from the ministry, as was done last month by the Northern branch, the United Presbyterian Church.

The Southern body, which holds its governing assembly June 9-16, also will choose a new moderator from two candidates, one of them a woman, Sara Bernice Mosley of Sherman. She would be the denomination's first woman moderator if she wins over the other candidate, the Rev. Dr. John McElroy Crowell of Mobile, Ala.

Lobbying Approved

NEW YORK (AP) - Jewish and other ethnic lobbying is "as legitimate as business lobbying, union lobbying, regional lobbying, veteran lobbying, aged lobbying and any other kind of lobbying," but keep it calm, says Bertram Gold, head of the American Jewish Committee.

He told the annual meeting of the community relations organization that "we won't make friends or keep them unless we moderate our public paranoia. Certainly we must stand firm on issues that are important to us. But everyone who disagrees with us is not automatically 'the enemy'.

Urges Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) - The president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops has urged delegates to the United Nations special session on disarmament to recognize "that the nuclear arms race is a danger, an injustice, a mistake, and an act of aggression against the poor of the world.

Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco said in a statement that the U.N. delegates should "demonstrate that humanity need not continue to suffer under this burden" of nuclear armed

Mental Health Head Selected

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Dr. Herbert Pardes of the University of Colorado Medical Center Thursday was named director of the National Institute of Mental Health. The announcement was made by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano.

Pardes, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the university, was selected because of his professional experience in the major mental health areas of services, training and research, Califano said. 'He joins us at a time when we have the unique opportunity to re-evaluate and reinvigorate our federal mental health efforts, based on recommendations of the President's Commission on Mental Health," Califano said.

Pardes is a gruduate of Rutgers and received his medical degree from New York University. He served his psychiatric residency at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn.

PARKINSON'S DRUGS ABUSED CHICAGO (AP) - Drugs used to treat Parkinson's disease are being abused by persons who do not have the disease, Dr. Jonathon S. Rubenstein of Sylmar, Calif., warns in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Rubenstein says drug abusers in the Los Angeles area try to obtain Artane (trihexyphenidyl hydrochloride) and Cogentin (benztropine mesylate) by pretending to be victims of the disease. Second Catholic Meeting Set On Women In Priesthood

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

The movement for ordination of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood has called a second international conference for this fall in Baltimore.

Women — and their men supporters attending the sessions will assess progress and setbacks since the unprecedented first meeting in Detroit in 1975 when the notion that some Roman Catholic women truly felt called to be priests was finally spoken aloud.

In anticipation of that meeting, Robert Hovda, a strong supporter of the movement and edctor of the Liturgical Conference's influential publication Living Worship, recently sought to give the movement some gentle advice

Hoyda is worried about the question of ends and means in the whole church but especially, because of his commitment, in the women's ordination movment.

He believes a "basically cynical carelessness about means-ends and qualityquanity tensions is rampant in church life. in every area" although he believe the carelessness is more prevalent among defenders of the status quo than on reformers in the church.

In addressing the question of ordination, however, Hovda fears the ordination movement may be falling into the same trap and accepting a version of the status quo that will, even if ordination of women is accomplished, not result in basic reform.

"Ever since the 12th century we have had bishops ordaining whom they please, forgetful that their ordaining right has its roots in their relation with the whole community, of faith ... and then looking acound later for something for the ordinands to do," he writes.

Before the 12th century, he adds, "the churches were wiser

Then, priests were only ordained when there was a need and a call to fill from a concrete community.

'The 'absolute ordinations' (those without any precise ministerial reference) which have become the standard method of operation were ... considered so repugnant to the life of the church that they were even labelled null and void,"

Hovda, who is concerned with the reform of the whole life of the church, is afraid that the advocates of women's ordination will accept without dismay the current practices of the church as long as it ultimately results in women priests.

"If we imagine that our problem, as advocates of women's ordination, is merely to persuade some bishop to ordain an apparently qualified women candidate, then it would seem to me we have ... either put on blinders to shut off the breadth of our renewal vision or settled much too quickly for much too little," he

"We haven't been concerned about means and quality and person, only about ends and quantity and cause," he said. Hovda said that while the movement must continue to press the bishops toward ordination of women

Seminary Study Shows Attitudes

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) - "Church people are hypocrites, phonies, fakers." "Going to church doesn't make any difference. "Churches are just looking for the almighty dollar." "They're always knocking each other." "They talk about love but then condemn you to hellfire." "Nuts with that." "I'm self-sufficient."

These are among reasons people give for not being church members as found in a study made by the Rev. Dr. J. Russell Hale of Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettsburg, Pa.

On a year-long sabbatical, he traveled from coast to coast, interviewing 165 people of various educational, social and economic strata, young and old, all of them outside the churches, exploring their motives for it.

The attitudes of the outsiders stem from church experiences "they have known or about which they have heard rumors," Hale says. "Their pictures may be distortions, but are drawn from their own perceptions, real for them.

His findings, a 97-page report entitled. 'Who are the Unchurched?" was issued by the Glenmary Research Center of Cincinnati, part of a Catholic domestic missions society which supported the researeh along with several agencies of the Lutheran Church in America.

In probing why 80 million Americans choose not to participate or be affiliated with organized churches. Hale notes that all but a tiny few affirm belief in God but cite various reasons for avoiding organizations teaching it, including flaws of churches or members.

Most of the outsiders once had been insiders, but had withdrawn.

In analyzing their views, Hale classifies them into several types, including:

-The "anti-institutionalists," people who see the church as preoccupied with its own self-preservation, who reject organizational structures as useless to "true religion" and who fault the church for its Own Ceremony leaders, for "meddling" in secular affairs and for their concern for finances or

"They just build buildings and take our money," the comments went. "I don't have to go to church to be a Christian It's between God and me.

-The "boxed-in." people who have quit the church, considering it too confining and restrictive, stifling their independence to do "it my way." "Nobody is going to pressure me," comments went, my own decisions. -The "burned out" people who feel wearied and drained by church work and want to travel light, relieved at dropping church work. "The church wanted all our time and too much money," one commented.

The "copouts," people never really involved in church life, apathetic to it, generally uninformed about it and indifferent. "I could care less.

-The "happy hedonists," people who find fulfillment in a succession of momentary pleasures. "It's either church or recreation, and recreation wins," comments went. "When it comes to priorities, I come first.

-The "locked out," including those who have felt rejected, neglected or discriminated against by churches, "The churches are places for 'in people,' not 'out people,"' one said.

-The "publicans," by far the largest group, who see church people as hypocrites and frauds, leading double lives. The church member thinks he is Jesus Christ himself, he is so good," one man said. "Outside you can't tell him from anybody else.

-The "scandalized," people disgusted with the church's disunity and denominational rivalry. "They're always fussing and feuding - backbiting each other, comments went. "Which one is right? Which wrong? ... That turned me off.

-The classifications also included "nomads," the mobile, wandering Americans with few ties; the "pilgrims" always on an ideological search, wanting to keep their options open; the "true unbelievers" such as atheists and agnostics, and the "uncertain" who say, "I just don't

Underground Economy Poses Threat, Economists Claim

NEW YORK (UPI) - A recent cartoon in The New Yorker shows a wealthy lady catching a burglar redhanded in the library of her sumptuous home.

Unabashed, the burglar tells her, 'Crippling local, state and federal rules and regulations have made criminals out of many a small businessman, Ma'am."

The burglar has become a member of the underground economy, the implications of which are being explored by a number of economists and tax consultants including Dr. Peter A. Gutmann of the City University of New York's Baruch College and Samuel J. Foosaner, a New Jersey tax accountant whose book

'The Frustrated American," (Olympic Press, Montclair, N.J.) contends that the economy of the United States now is drifting utterly out of control and something must be done about it.

Dr. Gutmann contended recently that 800,000 to 1.6 million Americans now are in the underground economy and that their activities may add $200 billion to the annual Gross National Product -$200 billion that goes untaxed.

A more alarmed view of this subterranean economy is taken by Arthur Milton, a New York insurance broker and author of the current book "Will In-

Milton told UPI that, unless present trends are halted soon and the entire U.S. economy reformed, about 50 percent of the economy may go underground in the future, leaving the government threatened with bankruptcy.

He said the alternative to swift ending of the present corruption, confusion, drift and gross inequities could be armed insurrection. He said such a revolt could result from unemployment rates of up to 40 percent in the black community and from the bitter frustrations being experienced by other Americans.

Milton said it is much too late to save the situation by piece meal tinkering and that neither Congress, the White House nor the bureaucrats can do the needed job. He believes President Carter should move to set up an organization similar to a constitutional convention to hold periodic hearings for perhaps four years looking toward a complete overhaul of the nation's economic system, particularly the tax system.

He said that although labor, industry and the academic community should be heard, the public, through elected members, should have a dominant place in the movements. He said he is convinced that the public is far ahead of the politicians, the unions or the scholars in knowing how serious the situation is and what should be done about it.

Although far from a radical, Milton is convinced the country needs a bigger shaking up than Franklin D. Roosevelt gave it in the early 1930s.

"But there's a big difference between then and now," he said. "It was noticeable that during the depression of the 1930s, crime rates dropped from those of the hectic 1920s. In spite of hard times, people still had their self-respect, they wanted to obey the law and do for themselves. But now people are too used to easy riding and corruption, both public and private. You can't make people law abiding when you make it so easy for them to be crooked and that drives ever more persons in the underground econo-

Tax accountant Fossaner takes much the same view. He says "control (in the U.S. economy) now is by selfish, selfseeking, often outside, influences." Among these he cited the big corporations, labor unions, professional lobbyists, and many types of institutions and individuals.

who have no selfish ax to grind don't unify their efforts and hang together, they're going to hang separately," he said. As an example of the frustration and him he owed the government $2,500 more and the other said he was entitled to a $7,300 refund. He said this kind of muddlement prevails all through the U.S. economy and social fabric and upsets people and makes them cyncial. The existence of the subterranean economy clearly casts doubts on the accuracy of government unemployment figures because so many persons are working and being paid "off the books," while registered as unemployed.

By going underground and paying "off the books." employers can avoid social security taxes and local employment taxes and a lot of paperwork. They also may be able to conceal the size of their businesses to reduce other taxes and save on other expenses.

Some of the people who work in the underground economy often have gross incomes of $25,000 a year or more, perhaps half of it in the regular economy, the rest underground, several studies indicate.

The attitudes of some of these persons expressed to interviewers who agree to preserve their anonymity tends to support Milton's concerned view. They say thay can't make out without cheating on taxes and when articles about the underground economy appear in the press, editors may get letters denouncing the articles as attacks on the poor.

U.S. Economy Attracts European Investors

NEW YORK (UPI) - Foreign investment in American manufacturing compa-nies is up and increasing. But the invasion of Arab petrodollars that had been expected, or feared, has not occurred.

No. It is the Old World of Western Europe that finds the New World's investment climate so attractive Latest estimates put direct foreign investment in U.S. business at more than $33 billion. The Commerce Department qualifies direct investment as being ownership of 10 percent or more of voting stock in a company.

But much of that investment is longstanding and sometimes surprising.

Who would think, for instance, that the fashion house of Anne Klein is wholly owned by a Japanese company, as it is?

The direct investment does not include the many foreign billions invested on the New York Stock Exchange and in Treas-

The overall total of private foreign investment, according to the Commerce Department, is about $98.1 billion.

The surplus petrodollars that came out of the quadrupling of crude oil prices in 1973 are here, but most of them are in passive investments.

David Toufic Mizrahi, editor of MidEast Report, told UPI that Middle East investment in the United States is exten-

"It is very large, running in the billions," he said. "According to recent estimates, investment in U.S. Treasury bonds and notes as well as stocks totals about $7 billion.

"In addition, bank deposits exceed $41 billion. These are all government investments. The extent of private investment is more difficult to determine, but it is quite large.

Mizrahi said the main investors are Saudi Arabia, Iran and Kuwait. But he discounted fears they might manipulate their investments to attain political goals. "It is possible, but unlikely," he said.

They can dump their stocks on the market, causing a chain reaction, but they have been pretty conservative economi-

In any case, Mizrahi said, the United States has an effective counter-weapon.

"Don't forget, the Arabs fear that the United States might impound - nationalize, if you will - their investment or seize their property," he said.

According to investigations by congressional subcommittees, foreign central banks currently hold more than $62 billion worth of Treasury notes and bonds. Of this, about $13 billion is being held by Mideast oil producing countries.

According to the Conference Board, a siness research organization, the number of announced foreign investments in the United States last year was a record 274, up from 254 in 1976 and 161 in 1975. Dollar figures were announced for 150 of the 1977 investments and totaled $2.9 bil-

West Germany accounted for 53 of the foreign investments with Canada a close second making 49 new investments. Britain accounted for 37 investments and Japan for 36.

Most of the investments involved acquisition of existing firms and plants. In recent years, for instance, France's Societe Imetal paid $210 million to acquire 67 percent of Copperweld Corp., a Pittsburgh-based specialty steel manufacturer. Sandvik AB of Sweden took over Disston, Inc., a manufacturer of garden tools and metal cutting products in Pittsburgh, for $25 million Sandoz Ltd., of Switzerland, acquired Northrup King and Co., an agricultural chemical producer in Minneapolis, for

$190 million

David Bauer, an economist at the Con-ference Board, explained: "The increase in foreign investment last year was or partially due to the weakness of the dollar and a soft stock market. "A more fundamental reason is the desire of foreign firms to acquire already existing marketing, technological and ad-ministrative expertise. This is reflected in the large number of 1977 takeovers in which U.S. management was retain

"There is another factor as well: many foreign firms believe economic growth in the United States will be more rapid than in other major countries over the next several years," Bauer said.

Another reason often cited by foreign investors is the businessmen's fear of socialist policies restricting their activities in such countries as West Germany, Britain and Italy.

A Bank of America survey pointed out advantages to the United States that arise from the foreign investments.

"Such investment expands the domes tic economic base," it said. "By year-end 1974 it had created 1.1 million jobs and $11.4 billion in wages within the domestic

"It can assist the U.S. balance of payments. Presently, about 25 percent of U.S. exports are attributable to subsidiaries and affiliates of foreign-owned companies," it said.

The foreign investment in America, extensive as it may seem, still does not compare with the more than $50 billion U.S. companies have invested overseas.

Colorado Man Kills Himself. Stepchildren

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) - Former neighbors of John and Luella Hitt said they were shocked, but not entirely surprised, at the brutal turn of events. The Hitt family did not seem to be a happy one, they said.

"I knew he was a violent man," said Hershel Miller, who lived next door to the Hitts until they moved a few blocks ray last February. "I had to call the police here at least three times to break up fights

Police said the violent streak surfaced Thursday when Hitt, 41, went to his estranged wife's apartment, kicked in the door and began firing a sawed-off, 16gauge shotgun.

When it was over four people were dead - three of his wife's children from a previous marriage and. Hitt, who apparently shot himself. The victims were identified as Brian Boling, 18; his brother Keith, 16; and his sister, Rhonda, 13. A fourth child, Clifford, 14. was listed in fair condition at Weld County Hospital with injuries to a leg and to an ear

Mrs. Hitt, who escaped from the apartment as her husband entered, was treated for shock at the hospital and released. According to court records, Mrs. Hitt filed for divorce on May 10. Hitt was served with the divorce papers Saturday. Miller and his wife, Audrey, said they often were disturbed by Hitt's rough language and threats against his stepchild-

"They were all good kids," said another neighbor. Ginny Evans. "I never really knew him that well. But they had their problems, I'll tell you that; you could hear them fighting every once in a

Residents Of Town Shocked By Arrest

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) - The town of Lumberton has been abuzz with shock and disbelief since the arrest March 14 of Velma Barfield, charged with first-degree murder in the arsenic poisoning of Stuart Taylor.

Taylor, a St. Pauls tobacco farmer, and Mrs. Barfield were to be married. Friends of the dead man say Mrs. Barfield had gotten him involved in church activities and made progress toward solving his drinking problem.

Since the arrest, the murder investigation has broadened to include other suspicioius deaths. Five other bodies have been exhumed - Mrs. Barfield's mother, two former husbands and two persons who employed Mrs. Barfield as a nurse.

You just don't expect to have a mass murderer in your town," reflected Sandra Lawson recently as she sat at her desk in the Robeson County Clerk of Court's office. "Now in Charlotte, you expect things like that.

Whether the town actually has a mass murderer remains to be seen. But so many people in this close-knit community have personal ties to the case that Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood has ordered the trial moved to neighboring Scotland County.

Mrs. Barfield has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the single murder charge against her. She is being held without bond in the Robeson County Jail. A trial date has not been set.

J. Yates Allen, whose family for decades has farmed tobacco with Taylor's at St. Pauls, said in a rercent interview that he was baffled by his friend's death and the murder charge.

Mrs. Barfield, he said, had appeared to be a good influence on Taylor.

That's the amazing thing to me Stuart, in all his life, he wouldn't go to church. This one got him going two or three times a week. She about got him stopped from so much of his drinking.

Mamie Warwick, who owns the house where Mrs. Bartield lived, said Mrs. Barheld taught religion classes-to children at First Pentecostal Holiness Church and worked as a volunteer in the church office one morning a week. She was "so lov-

Two Children Die In Highway Wreck

BORGER (AP) - Two young brothers were killed Thursday night in a head-on collision that took place in the ditch alongside a highway near this Panhandle

The Department of Public Safety said the accident killed Daniel Clay Hill, 6. and his 2-year-old brother, Theodore James. They were passengers in a car driven by their mother. Sharion Longston Hill 27, of Borger. She is hospitalized in critical condition.

Troopers said Mrs. Hill was trying to pass a pickup in her small foreign car when that truck tried to pass a semi--traetor-trailer rig.

At that moment, an oncoming car approached, and both Mrs. Hill's car and the other vehicle went off the same side of the road in a futile attempt to prevent

Carter, Congress Argue About War Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) - A dozen years ago, as President Lyndon B. Johnson. committed tens of thousands of American-troops to the Vietnam war, the administration went unchallenged by Congress as it defended the president's right

Now the tables have turned as Congress since has firmly asserted itself as a near equal partner in deciding issues of war

Citizens Ask Reinstatement Of Marshal

COLBERT, Okla (AP) - The town marshal, who was fired because he joined in a massive manhunt for two dangerous prison escapees, has drawn support from local residents who are circulating a petition seeking his rehifing.

Marshal Herman Hitchcock learned he was fired last Friday, as he was participating in the search for Oklahoma State Penitentiary escapees Claude Dennis and Michael Lancaster.

The escapees, believed by authorities to have killed four Texas men and an Alabama woman after fleeing prison April 23, died last Friday in a bloody shootout with state troopers in the Caddo area of southeast Oklahoma. The convicts killed three state troopers and wounded a fourth before they themselves were killed.

As Hitchcock manned a roadblock near the scene of Friday's carnage. Colbert Mayor W. A. Womack notified him by radio that he was fired

"If Hitchcock had been one of the officers killed, he would be a hero today. said Neil Irwin, who launched the petition drive to win Hitchcock back his job. "Instead he got fired. I just don't think the mayor's argument that the police car is insured only when it is in Colbert and it must stay here is reason enough to fire

Womack has said Hitchcock should have remained in Colbert to protect the Bryan County town, instead of joining in the manhunt further north in the coun-

Twenty copies of the petition seeking Hitchcock's reinstatement are being circulated. They are to be presented to the City Council Tuesday night. The petition says Hitchcock is the best qualified person to be marshal, and says he was acting in the best interests of the town when he joined the search for the Hitchcock said he would take his job to trouble spots in Africa or elsewhere. Carter complained last week that under congressional restraints he cannot "compete at all, even peacefully, with the Soviet and Cuban military action" in Africa.

'There's a trend in Congress that is building up that puts too much constraint on a president to deal with rapidly changing circumstances." Carter declared.

Arguments In Hughes Case End

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - The second week of final arguments in the sevenmonth trial to determine if Howard Hughes wrote the so-called Mormon Will comes to a close today - and court observers say the case probably won't go to the jury until the middle of next week.

Attorneys for Hughes' relatives not named in the three-page, handwritten document have been presenting their closing arguments to the jury of five men and three woman. After they finish, the attorney seeking to prove the will is valid has a chance at a final rebuttal. The lawyer for one of Hughes' relatives said Thursday that Melvin Dummar's story about pickfng up a man alongside a lonely desert highway was in "deep trouble" from the start. Dummar's desert story was in trouble in fact deep trouble - from the outset said attorney James Dilworth. "He had described a cow looking like a horse

Dilworth said the description Dummar gave of the man he picked up in December 1967 - and who he claims told him he was Hughes -bears no resemblance to descriptions of Hughes in that period given by his associates. "There's just no comparison between the type of descriptions that Dummar gave and these people gave," Dilworth said in his second day of closing argu-

Dummar, who delivered the will to the headquarters of the Mormon Church'in Salt Lake City shortly after Hughes death in April 1976, is bequeathed onesixteenth of Hughes' estate - conservatively estimated at nearly $169 million in the contested will. The rest of the estate is divided among the Mormon Church, four colleges and universities, medical research and charities. During his testimony, Dummar described the man who identified himself as Hughes as having a stubble of beard and wearing a shirt, slacks and tennis But Dilworth said that Hughes' aides described him as having a long beard, long hair and three-inch toenails that would have prevented him from wearing any shoes Further, the Houston attorney said.

Hughes could not have left the Desert Inn, where he was staying at the time, be cause he was involved in trying to solve monumental tax problems

He said tax attorney Milton "Mickey" West and former Hughes aide Robert Maheu had testified that Hughes called them on the telephone 15 or 20 times a day at the end of December and would not have had the time to be wandering in the desert.

not to enact any further constraints. The administration has especially been concerned about the so-called Clark amendment which prohibits any military aid going to rebel forces in Angola without prior congressional approval.

In setting his foreign policy or reacting to international emergencies, Carter also is subject to the War Powers Resolution passed over President Nixon's veto on Nov. 7, 1973.

Under the resolution. Carter could use U.S. forces overseas, but would be required to withdraw them after 60 days unless Congress gave its approval for whatever military action was underway. It also requires the president to consult with Congress before sending troops abroad

There are those on Capitol Hill who question the president's complaints about Congress meddling in his foreign

A memo prepared by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee points out that despite the restrictions Carter could have sent military aid during the recent crisis in Zaire or even U.S troops as long as Congress approved his action after 60 days.

The limit on aid to Zaire requires only that the president certify that any military aid "is important to the national security interests of the United States." the staff memo said.

Whatever the specific limits on U.S. policy toward each African nation. Carter clearly believes it is time to reverse the swing of the historical pendulum back toward giving the president more room to maneuver in a threatening world.

Three new roses have received All-America Selections honors as the top introductions for 1979 and all were the work of hybridists who are no strangers to the coveted citation.

The roses are: Friendship, a pink hybrid tea developed by Robert V. Lindquist Sr., of Hemet, Calif.; Paradise, a lavender and pink hybrid tea, by Ollie Weeks of Ontario, Calif.; and Sundowner, an orange grandiflora, by Sam McGredy IV., an Irishman now of New Zealand.

The three roses were selected by a panel of judges after rigorous nationwide tests for shape, hardiness, color, durability and other factors.

Friendship is a rugged, bushy, winterwithstanding tall bush that produces many large blooms all season on long stems. The flowers are very suitable for cutting. The 4-5 inch flower varies in color from coral rose, salmon red outer petals with flesh pink inner petals and in between. The buds are long ovoid and the flower has a definite sweet fragrance.

The plant, which seems to stand the heat well, has heavy, glossy foliage and often reaches six feet in height.

Hybridizer Lindquist, who began such work seriously in 1948, had previous All-America winners in Granada, Tiffany and Command Performance. He was a founder in 1951 of Hemet Wholesale Nursery, a major grower of ornamentals.

Paradise has a distinctive lavenderdpink combination, and results from a new avenue of rose breeding pursued by Weeks. It has long, pointed, ruby buds and double 4-inch, nicely formed blooms in shades ranging from lavender, purple, pink to ruby red. Each petal is described as brushed at the edges with a vivid pink. The color holds fast and the roses, produced on fairly long, strong canes, are classically tea shaped. For the first time in the 38-year history of AARS awards the entire jury elected it by acclamation liage deep glossy green. It came through the winter well.

Hybridizer Weeks has a long string of AARS winners. He won with Gypsy, Arizona and Delight in recent years. Before that he and a partner had five winners -Royal Highness, Mister Lincoln, Camelot, Comanche and Angel Face.

And finally Sundowner, the grandiflora winner, has medium to large orange blossoms on long stems. The flowers, with a spicy fragrance, have 40 petals.

The foliage is abundant, lustrous, moss green with coppery tints, tall and fine for a showy background or flowering hedge. It has indicated considerable resistance to rose diseases. It is Hybridizer McGredy's first grandiflora introuction into the United States. McGredy's family has

The increases reflect, in part, smaller supplies of beef and had been predicted by industry and government experts who watched cattlemen cutting the size of their herds last year.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the

- The average marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was 7.3 percent higher at the start of June than it was a year earlier; the bill was 5.3 percent higher than it was at the start of the year.

- During May, the marketbasket bill inescased at the checklist store in eight cities and declined in five. The average increase was 1.9 percent and the average dedine was 1.7 percent. On an overall basis the bill increased by half a percent

- Meat items were responsible for a disproportionate share of the price boosts. Meats represent 21 percent of the items in the survey; they accounted for 44 percent of the increases during May.

On the bright side, egg and coffee prices went down again. The average price of a dozen, medium Grade-A eggs at the start of June was 65 cents compared to 76 cents at the beginning of January. Coffee prices declined during May at the checklist store in nine cities.

The Agriculture Department had been estimating that food prices alone would rise 6 to 8 percent this year compared to a 6.2 percent boost in 1977. Now, however, the department has revised its forecast to predict an 8 to 10 percent boost. The Labor Department reported Wednesday that the price of food purchased at grocery stores went up 2.4 percent during April, contributing to a ninetenths of a percent increase in the Consumer Price Index.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed more increases during May than during April. Here are the percentages of increases and decreas-

density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a comparable substitute was selected. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the overall total.

The AP did not attempt to compare actual prices from city to city - to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another. The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It includes 65 retail items of U.S. farm-produced foods in amounts that theoretically could supply a household of 3.2 persons for one year. The department, which draws on information from 1.500 supermarkets in compiling its report, says the figures do not correspond to actual family food spending and are used mainly to illustrate changes in costs. The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee. paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated

The cities checked were: Albuquerque. N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Here is a city-by-city breakdown of what happened during May: ALBUQUERQUE: The total for 12 available items went from $13.32 to $13.45, up 1 percent. Big Business To Benefit Most By California Tax Proposition

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Backers are portraying an initiative to drastically cut California property taxes as a boon to middle-class homeowners. But an Associated Press survey shows the heralded relief for homeowners is dwarfed by the potential savings for big business and the possibility these savings might not be passed on to consumers.

Polls show the initiative has been gaining favor with voters steadily. The latest California Poll released Thursday by Mervin D. Field said 57 percent of those cent oppose it. The rest are undecided. Specifically, the measure would limit taxes on property to 1 percent of its market value, with an additional 1/4 percent allowed temporarily to pay off outstanding bonds

The AP survey of 13 of the state's biggest property owners found that the initiative, Proposition 13 on Tuesday's ballot, offers them a tax cut of at least $431 mil-

Most of the 13 companies are publicly neutral on Proposition 13 but Southern California Edison and Southern California Gas oppose it, saying they fear possible new state taxes and the initiative's potential effect on the overall state econ-

Howard Jarvis, sponsor of the initiative, cites the lack of big corporate support as proof his measure would not be a giveaway to big business. He contends business tax savings would be passed long to consumers.

But the AP survey indicated that a relatively small portion of the big companies' tax cuts would be reflected in lower prices and utility rates.

The survey showed that for utilities some of the property tax savings would be eaten up in lost federal income tax deductions while other utilities already have rate increases pending that are far larger than their projected tax savings.

Proposition 13 would cut property taxes by about $7 billion statewide but state officials say homeowners would get only 35 percent of that total, their share of overall tax payments. The rest would go to business property, including apart-

Candidates Make Odd Pledges

By HARRIET LEEDS

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The standard introduction line for the newly elected president and vice president of the University of Wisconsin Student Association is "send in the clowns."

As candidates, James Mallon and Leon Varjian promised to convert the student government's $70,000 budget into pennies, dump it on the library mall and let students attack the pile with pails and shovels.

Their burlesque campaign of daily rallies on the mall attracted hundreds of people and captured the interest of student voters. The two received 1,510 votes out of 4,529 cast — the largest turnout in five years and a near-record for the 39,000-member student body.

Members of the "Pail and Shovel Party" also won all of the 1979 senior class officer seats, rounded up five student senate spots and won posts on the boards of the student newspaper and yearbook.

Among the zany campaign pledges

 Buying the Statue of Liberty and moving it to Madison's Lake Mendota.
 Ordering all campus clocks to run backwards so classes would be over before they could begin.

 Putting dormitories on wheels so they could be moved to a different part of the campus each morning to provide stu-

Study Claims Minorities Have Inferior Education Programs

HOUSTON (AP) — Inferior programs offered to minority students produce low achievement scores, according to a study of the Houston Independent School District which the Houston Urban League will release next week.

"The educational programs-in minority schools are inherently inferior compared HOUSTON (AP) — Inferior programs to other schools," said J. Don Boney Jr., who heads the League's education department and did the 90-day study.

"We found the problems are much more critical than anyone imagined. Looking at the district statistically, we found too much positive correlation between race and the quality of education offered those students," he said.

Boney said the League was concerned over what he termed "the critical difference" between standard achievement test scores in predominantly white schools and those in minority schools Average results show white schools scoring in the top half in the nation while minority school results show up in the bottom half.

"The difference is evident in the teacher quality, teacher experience, facilities and programs," Boney said. "I feel the district is going to be upset by our study, but it is perpetuating educational inferiority."

A tri-ethnic commission assigned by a federal judge to monitor desegregation in the Houston Independent School District has indicated the proportion of minority students in district schools is growing each year. The judge has called on the HISD to make plans to redress the number of "one race" schools in the district.

A federal court-established ratio that sets the racial percentage of teachers in each school to reflect the racial balance districtwide comes in for specific criticism in the study.

Boney said the so-called Singleton ratio has resulted in the assigning of inexperienced, white teachers to black schools while veteran black teachers have been transferred to white schools.

He said the League plans to petition the HISD to ask that the court alter the ratio so it more closely reflects the racial makeup of schools.

built it in front of them on the mall with 1,000 popsicle sticks." Mallon and Varjian said they bought the election fair and square — and it cost them $35 million in play money distributed at campaign rallies to do it.

But not everyone is pleased with the election results.

Some students fear the antics of the Pail and Shovelers will jeopardize the WSA budget, ongoing projects and the credibility of student government with university and state officials.

Paul Rusk, former WSA president, said he and many others were upset at the prospect of the damage the "two professional clowns" could do.

"To give a year of my life for WSA and then have something like this happen is the ultimate insult," Rusk said.

Asked about his critics, Mallonnat first insisted he hadn't heard any negative comments. "My parents are alumni and they're very pleased (about his election)."

Then Mallon added in a teasing tone, "Whether they (the critics) like it or not they're involved, because we've got their money."

Will they continue WSA programs, such as student health insurance, tutoring and a printing office?

"Sure." Varjian said in mock seriousness. "We plan on continuing lots of programs — Baretta, The Gong Show, 60 Minutes. Bullwinkle, though, we want to expand to an hour."

Both students insist they are motivated solely by greed.

Varjian, 26, a graduate student in math, had been a student senator. "I felt there was a lot more WSA could offer me—payoffs, kickbacks, stationery allotments," Varjian said.

Mallon, 22, a communication arts major, describes himself as a "modern philosopher king," but a rookie in campus politics.

"I'm in it for as much as I can get. Wherever the money's the best, I'll be there. After this, I'm going to sell my memoirs for $25 a crack. Just think, if I get four people to buy, I'll have $100."

Man Returns To Memory Of Fire Loss

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — When Terry Prugh's mother, father and brother perished with 161 others in the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire near Cincinnati a year ago, he moved to Florida to forget.

But the former Dayton, Ohio, policeman says he found he can't run from the memory. Prugh, 34, is moving back north to face the memory head-on, and try to put his life together again.

The Prughs were celebrating, along with 1,300 other persons, that Saturday night when fire roared through the club at Southgate, Ky.

"How often do I think about it?" he asks. "How many hours are there in a day or days in a week?"

Ten months ago Terry and his wife,

Karen, moved to Florida to escape the torment of that night.
"There was a definite need to come here. But you can't solve a problem by running away from it," Prugh says he's learned.

His family was very close he says

His family was very close, he says. They vacationed together, played golf, cards and bowled together.

His father and brother also worked for the Dayton police. Sgt. L.J. Prugh retired after 27 years.

"It was just something that I wasn't able to face up to at the time," Prugh says. "My brother Gary was a police officer for only one month less than me. We worked together on some occasions, sitting in the same room, our desks close.

"We tried recuperating, but everything was so fresh and vivid — that sense of what we had lost. I didn't think I could ever walk in those halls again. The decision was to go ahead and move."

Prugh came here to central Florida's Gulf Coast and got a job on the Largo police force. His wife plans to stay behind and try to sell their house while he returns to Dayton and tries getting back on the police force there.

"The human mind will not let you forget certain things," he says. "The need has come to face up to what was there—the good times, the loss—because it is home. I think that after this time we can face it without running away."

Elected representatives would be more responsive to their constituents if their terms were limited, Republican congressional candidate Jim Reese said in an Avalanche-Journal interview.

Reese, 48, a former three-term Odessa mayor, is senior vice president of an investment banking firm in Odessa. He received 45.5 percent of the vote against George Mahon in 1976 and trailed runoff opponent George Bush in the May 1978, primary 41.5 percent to Bush's 47.5

Reese's support for limited terms for public officials is not new - he campaigned against 22-term representative Vahon on the issue and his views on the subject have not waivered.

He is fond of saying, "When a repre-sentative raises his hand to be sworn in, he's already thinking about how he's Reese has suggested a limit of eight years' service for U.S. Representatives, two six-year terms for U.S. Senators and. a single, six-year term for the president. He urged voters to "commit candi-

Bush received only 30 percent outside his home county, Reese said, and wouldn't have a base to work from. Reese also noted that Bush supporters attending the Republican conventions in Midland and Lubbock Counties "were vocal in support of resolutions favoring gay rights, federally-funded abortions and the Equal Rights Amendment. "I'm pleased to say the people sup-

Bush Responds To Attacks; Wants To Mend GOP Split

By SYLVIA TEAGUE Avalanche-Journal Staff

The split in the Republican Party over the Jim Reese-George Bush congressional race will be difficult to mend because of Reese's "desperation" tactics in the final days, Bush said recently during an Avalanche-Journal interview.

The 31-year-old independent oil and gas producer from Midland is a Connectcut native and received degrees from Yale and Harvard universities.

The son of the former Central Intelligence Agency director spent most of the interview responding to attacks from his Reese has accused Bush of misleading the public about his birthplace and has charged the Bush campaign is linked with supporters of liberal Republican David Rockefeller. Bush called those tactics "below the belt and the kind of politics which is not good for West Texas.

Noting his disagreement with politicians who participate in "mud throwing" and who "talk out of both sides of their mouths," Bush said he began his congressional campaign with a promise "to be above board - not only trying to win, but to bring dignity back to poli-

The Republican campaign for George Mahon's seat was "above board" until the final week, he said.

'Now in the final week my opponent has launched into a tremendous attack." Bush said and chalked Reese's statements up to "silly frustration" and to Reese's feeling that he is behind.

"I'm convinced voters are not going to buy it," Bush said, and predicted most voters "will say George Bush campaigned positively and never attacked Jim Reese." Voters will "resent" Reese for his tactics, Bush said. Bush said the voters would decide if he is a true West Texan. "I was brought up in Midland," Bush said, "but the experiences I had prior to the three years of my adult life in Midland are valua-He mentioned his graduate degree in business from Harvard University as advantageous, as well as his experience as a fighter pilot which would be helpful in understanding his military constituents in the district.

The West Texan issue is a "petty argument," Bush said.

"It didn't bother Jim Granberry," he noted. Granberry, a former Lubbock mayor and gubernatorial candidate endorsed Bush in the race. As for allegations that Bush is too young for the job, Bush noted he is close to the age of Mahon when Mahon was first elected to Congress. However, Bush said voters should concentrate on a candidate's abilities rather than his age. Bush said he could be successful against Democratic nominee Kent Hance because he has shown he "can get voters against a stong opponent (47.5 against Reese in the primary)," because he has attracted "new faces which are fresh and alive" to the Republican Party as well as party regulars and because he's brought "a new look to the party."

He said voters can support him because he started his own business, because of his "expertise" in the energy field and because he's "proven I can raise money.'

Reese's contention that Bush had a one-county strategy to win the primary is incorrect, Bush said.

GEORGE BUSH

in Midland, Lubbock and Plainview,' and said there was "not enough time to campaign in the rural counties" before the May election.

The runoff strategy is "to do well where we did well before and make foravs into the rural counties," Bush said. It is "silly" for Reese to claim broad-based support because of the rural county vote, Bush said, because so few votes were cast in many of the counties. Bush acknowledged his supporters "may have supported" liberal-leaning positions at the county conventions, but said his positions are clear.

"I'm not for the extension of the time to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. I feel the ERA is unnecessary. I'm not for the federal funding of abortions. I've done nothing to promote homosexuality in our society.

However, Bush said he opposes the pro-life amendment favored by Reese and favors leaving up to a woman and her doctor the abortion question.

"That does not mean I'm for abortion." he said.

Bush said there are no Rockefeller supporters in his campaign and charged Reese, rather than Bush, is bringing in outsiders to "influence the voters of West Texas.

Specifically, Bush mentioned the fundraising letters mailed all over the country by a Virginia firm for the Reese cam-

Saigon Trades Bright Lights For Austere Style

NEW YORK (AP) - The bright lights and life-style of once-wicked Saigon which flickered for three years despite the communist takeover in 1975 have been been turned off.

The first Americans to visit the former South Vietnamese capital since a major crackdown on capitalists in March discovered last week that a more austere. provincial city has emerged that is more in keeping with the ideology of the communist authorities who won the war.

Gone are the prostitutes who hung around the photo kiosks on the street of Flowers trying to pick up visiting Russians and Eastern Europeans. Gone too are the sidewalk blackmarkets that dispensed Japanese radios, electric razors and assorted rusted U.S. PX supplies often hawked by families trying to survive economically under the new regime.

"The good life is no more. The story in to the country to grow food. That's why the south now is hard work," said Dr. Robert Browne, an economist who is president of the Black Economic Research Center and a member of a Church World Services delegation that witnessed the arrival in Vietnam of 10,000 tons of wheat donated by Americans.

'Many people in the cities don't like that hard work requirement," said Browne. "They know that if they are not producing adequately they will have to go years to crack down hard on the remaining vestiges of capitalism in South Viet-"Finally, they had to deal with the economic situation," said Paul McCleary, executive director of Church World Services, and a delegation member. The intent of the economic reform was to bring the capitalistic system under control, to end the double standard, to bring the economy under the central planning process," he said. The crackdown started March 23 and known as Ho Chi Minh City until the arrival of the Americans last week. However, the repercussions had already been sensed. An estimated 100,000 Chinese reportedly have left Vietnam in the past two months and the Chinese government has protested vigorously about what it asserts is the economic persecu-

"The big Chinese businesses, and the large shops had been shuttered closed. Only a few restaurants were left open, and some vendors sold soup on the streets," said McCleary.

As in the rest of town, streets once wreathed in the blue haze of car and motorcycle exhaust fumes had become sedate thoroughfares for bicycle riders adopting the transportation method always common to Hanoi in the north.

Local authorities told the Americans that in one warehouse they found a hoard of 10,000 brand new Japanese motorscooters. Owners were reimbursed for goods confiscated in the crackdown, officials said, but the money was placed in savings accounts and invested in state projects. The end of capitalism was apparent in the center of the city, with all the stores on once-busy Tu Do Street closed. The street itself is now called Dong Hoi

Browne, who met his Vietnamese wife's relatives from Cambodia in a border refugee camp. His brother-in-law told him each person receives seven kilos (about 15 pounds) of rice a month. "It's not much but you won't starve on that diet," Browne said.

The Americans were told that the northern part of the county now feeds the south while awaiting increased production from the new economic zones. While the Americans noted that as the bustle of old Saigon had declined, the economy of Hanoi had picked up, with more goods in the stores and obviously increased productivity.

The delegation visited one new economic zone run for the state by Catholics from Ho Chi Minh City. They said they also met farmers and others who identified themselves as former Saigon army officers who had been released from the re-education camps.

The Americans said they were told many of the camps had been closed and that all but about four percent of the original several hundred thousand persons sent to them have been released.

By LeROY POPE NEW YORK (UPI) - Consumers can do their banking right along with the weekly marketing as small-and mediumsized banks all over the country establish minibranches in supermarkets.

Although banking terminals are a rather common sight in bank lobbies, airport terminals and on the sidewalks of large cities, smaller banks are finding the new less-expensive remote financial terminals enable them to compete with their larger counterparts. In fact smaller banks are becoming innovators in providing a variety of electronic funds transfer services to customers.

Entertainer Puts Teeth Into Act

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) - When Joe Ponder puts on a show he knows what it means to get his teeth into the act.

Even though Ponder, 54, has entertained audiences by lifting pumpkins, nude women and a mule with his teeth, he doesn't feel he's particularly ususual.

"You've got a lot of holding power in your teeth," said the 218-pounder who drives a tractor-trailer truck for a living. "I feel quite sure lots of people around could do what I do if they really wanted

Ponder is going to have a few weeks to think about his act. He fell recently while performing the "death slide" at Love Valley, about 60 miles north of Charlotte.

"A steel shank broke out of my mouthpiece," Ponder said in a telephone interview from Iredell County Memorial Hospital at Statesville. "I fell about 25 feet and broke both legs, both ankles and both

New Flights Start Despite Pilot Strike

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Northwest Airlines says it will begin flights from Chicago to Billings, Mont., and Seattle on Thursday, substituting management personnel for striking pilots A spokesman for the Air Line Pilots Association responded that Northwest should concentrate more of its efforts on resolving the month-long strike instead of on sustaining a "mini-airline." About 1,500 Northwest pilots have been on strike since April 29 over pensions, insurance, wages and working conditions. The two sides held about a week of negotiations in mid-May, but the talks broke off over the question of which issues would remain open to negotiation and there is no sign that they will resume. All but four daily Northwest flights from Chicago to Minneapolis-St. Paul have been halted by the strike. Tuesday, airline officials announced those flights would be extended to Billings and Seattle this week. More than 100,000 eagles were killed in Alaska before bounty hunting ended there in 1952, says National Geographic. The state now has perhaps 40,000.

Mart Posts Moderate

Increases

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices posted a moderate gain today with the help of money-supply statistics that hinted at a possible improvement in the outlook for inflation and interest rates.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.25 at 842.95. Gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the close on Thursday the Federal Reserve reported a $1 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply.

The Fed has been attempting to curb inflation by pushing up shortterm interest rates in order to discourage monetary growth.

Brokers said the latest figures heightened hopes that the effort was succeeding, and that the Fed might not feel the need to push interest rates much higher, at least for the time being.

Meanwhile, the government reported this morning that wholesale prices of finished goods rose 0.7 percent in May, compared with a 1.3 percent surge the month before. That also tended to reinforce hopes that recent inflationary pressures might soon subside.

Reliance Group was the most active NYSE issue, up 11/2 at 331/2. The company said 4.90 million of its warrants to buy the stock at $32.07 a share had been exercised by the close of business Thursday.

The rest of the approximately 6.52 million warrants are scheduled to expire this weekend if they are not exercised today.

The NYSE's composite index. gained .15 to 54.74. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 145.05.

Volume on the Big Board reached 13.41 million shares by noon, against 12.53 million at the same point Thursday

Two Airlines Proposing Merger

By BOB CAMPBELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff
Continental Airlines and Western Airlines have opened preliminary studies of a merger which apparently would not cause much change in Continental flights out of Lubbock.

Both airlines are based in Los Angeles, but Western has no Texas routes.

Tom O'Donnell, regional director of sales and service for Continental, said here Thursday a merger might give the company through service to Anchorage, Alaska, and more connecting trips to Honolulu, Hawaii. "I don't think there's much I can add because it came as a surprise to us," O'Donnell said of the Thursday teletype message from Continental President Alexander Damm in Los Angeles. "I think it would be a good merger. He said the combination of Continental, now the 10th biggest major airline, and Western, the eighth largest, probably would be the fifth biggest airline in the Western flies the western half of the United States and has routes into Alaska, Hawaii and Mexico. Continental does not go into Alaska or Mexico but has routes to Chicago, several Florida cities, New Orleans, Hawaii, and Japan via the Micronesia Islands.

"We currently have an interchange where we go into Seattle and go with the same airplane with Western pilots on to Anchorage," O'Donnell said. "We both go into Seattle, Denver, Los Angeles,San Francisco and Honolulu."

The Continental statement said the merger is still in the exploratory stage and no negotiations have taken place.

"It is too early to determine if a merger proposal will result from the study," Damm said. "If any agreement is reached, it would have to be approved by the boards of directors and stockholders of both companies and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Damm noted that the two companies entered merger negotiations in 1970 before the deal was called off.

"Let me emphasize that the current studies have not reached the negotiation stage of 1970 and that either party is free to discontinue the studies at any time,"

In Los Angeles Thursday, a spokesman for Western Airlines recalled that the company board of directors considered mergers with Continental and American Airlines in 1970 and decided in October of that year to proceed with American and drop Continental.
The Civil Aeronautics Board rejected the Western-American merger proposal in July, 1972, the spokesman noted. There is no timetable for the study, she said, so it is impossible to say when the matter might be resolved.

"We're not really in a position to add anything to the statement," she said. O'Donnell said the merger would be good also because the two airlines do not compete for many markets now.

"We are not very competitive Honolulu," O'Donnell said. "That market has an overabundance of airlines now and I think it would get rid of some of the confusion there.

Damm said the study has begun with an exchange of information between the two firms.

Adventurer Approaches Mid-Point

WASHINGTON (AP) - Naomi Uemurthe first person to reach the North Pole alone by dog sled, is approaching the midway point of his next goal: a solo, north-south overland crossing of Greenland, the world's largest island.

Dr. Lee Houchins of the Smithsonian Institution, one of the backer's for both exploits, said the Japanese explorer and his 19 sled dogs should reach the half-way point within the next two weeks.

Suffering from frostbite and surviving blizzards and a polar bear attack during the 57-day adventure. Uemura reached the North Pole on May 1. Twelve days later, he began the 1,700-mile Greenland expedition at Cape Morris Jesup, the world's northernmost land point.

In many ways, this trip is more dangerous than the North Pole crossing, Houchins, Smithsonian project officer, said in an interview

"Since leaving the cape, he has been climbing a huge glacier, 3,500 feet high and full of deep crevices ridged over with snow so that you can barely distinguish them from the hard ice. If he thinks it's ice and he's wrong, he could fall into the crack and never get out

Adding to the danger. Houchins said, are temperatures occasionally reaching above freezing that could cause avalanch-

Nevertheless, Uemura has had only minor accidents, he added.

Houchins said the 37-year-old explorer expects to reach the solid, 10.000-foot ice cap that covers most of Greenland this weekend. Once there, he plans to attach a sail to the dogsled for the remainder of the trip, reaching Narssarssuag on the island's southern tip by mid-July

While traveling like an Eskimo - "eating raw caribou and seal meat," Houchins said - Uemura is connected to the modern world by a transmitter monitored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Nimbus 6 weather research satellite.

Every 108 minutes, the satellite crosses within range of Uemura's radio, relaying the explorer's location and the area's temperature and barometric pressure to NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center here. But it's a one-way transmission, with no way for NASA to relay the information back to Uemura. Until last Friday, Houchins relayed the information back to Uemura's base through an amateur radio hookup involving the National Capitol DX Association (DX means long distance to amateur radio operators) and a Canadian ham base

The Alert station patched itself through to Uemura's base station which, in turn, relayed the information to the explorer on a different radio set-up.

However, Greenland is part of Denmark which forbids so-called third-party amateur radio messages, and Houchins now uses commercial telegraph facilities to contact the base station which was moved last weekend to Dundass, Green-

Ban On Headstones Hinders Sculptor

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Cemetery rules prohibiting headstones not made from natural materials have stymied a Gainesville sculptor's efforts to provide a lasting tribute to his dead father

Alan Sandman, 30, spent three months preparing a white cast stone, similar to concrete but more finely grained, for his father's grave. When he trucked it to Orlando last weekend to install it, he was told it would not be acceptable

Sandman carved a mold, then poured a mixture of cement, marble dust and lime into the mold. The cemetery says it al-

Marcos Praises Mondale Visit

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos says Vice President Walter F. Mondale's recent visit "had an invigorating effect on the whole gamut of U.S.-Southeast Asian relations in that it underscored American interest in Asia and the Pacif-

In an interview with publisher Limb Thok-kyu in the Korean monthly Diplomacy, Marcos also said U.S.-Philippine relations "are at a stage of intensive review by both countries, but this should not give the impression that they have weakened over the past years.' Marcos added:

"There can be no doubt now that relations between the Philippines and the United States will be as strong and close as ever, since our relationship is founded on mutual respect and cooperation, and on a new awareness of the changes that have taken place and are taking place in the world.

On June 3, Texas voters will elect one of two men as the Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner:

Jerry Sadler, 70, is a twice-defeated former Land Commissioner. Here's what three of the state's leading newspapers have to say about him:

The Austin American-Statesman: 'Voters deserve to know whom they will be choosing between in the runoff June 3. Poerner is not a household name; Sadler is. But Sadler has a sorry record in state government. He is the only person ever censured by the Texas House of Representatives (for failure to cooperate with an investigation). He became notorious for attempting to choke then-State Rep. Jake Johnson. He was defeated at the polls in 1970 and lost to Jon Newton in a race for Railroad Commissioner in 1976. And now he's back again." The Dallas Times Herald: "Sadler has made Texas government a universal target of ridicule and derision." The San Angelo Standard Times:

"Under Sadler, the Railroad Commission just might become the laughing stock he once made of the General Land Office."

IS THERE REALLY ANY CHOICE?

The Railroad Commission regulates the oil, gas and transportation industries in Texas. Our energy and utility rate problems demand vigorous and responsible leadership. We need John Poerner to fight for Texas and protect what is rightfully ours.

John Poerner, 45, is a respected businessman and rancher. John Poerner was elected to three successive terms in the Texas House before being named Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Aging and Director,

His honors include being named "Citizen of the Year" in his hometown of Hondo, receiving a "Distinguished Legislator" award from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, and being named to the "Agriculture Hall of Fame" at Southwest Texas State University.

Education Resources of Texas.

He was recently appointed to the Railroad Commission by the Governor.

'Poerner is a solid, competent individual with a record of 10 years of dedicated public service," says the Houston Chronicle. "(We urge) his election."

Statement By Judge Draws Fire

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) - Disciplinary action is being sought against a judge who dismissed an attempted rape charge and told the prosecutor: "You can't blame somebody for trying."

A legislator Thursday asked Connecticut's Judicial Review Council to take-action against Court of Common Pleas Judge Walter Pickett

"He should either be censured or not be allowed to continue on the bench." state Rep. Paul LaRosa told a news con-

He cited two other cases where Pickett allegedly engaged in "conduct unbecoming a member of the Connecticut judicial system" and asked the council to investi-

Gov. Ella Grasso later agreed the matter should go to the council.

I have personal views which I am not free to express," Mrs. Grasso said. "This is a very serious matter that deserves consideration.

The rape case involved Raymond La-Belle, 29, of Hartford, who was one of four men accused of kidnapping, raping, beating and robbing a Springfield, Mass.,

The three other men were bound over to Superior Court on sexual assault charges. According to testimony, LaBelle was unable to rape the woman, so the charge was reduced to conspiracy to ommit sexual assault. Pickett dismissed the charge at a hearing May 17 for lack of tools leased by LaRosa, read:

Prosecutor: "Your Honor, I think he was obviously a participant.

Judge; "He was there. He wasn't the driver. He was a passenger. What did he do to engage in a conspiracy? The only thing he did was he tried and failed.

Prosecutor: "That is enough of an overt act.

Judge: "You can't blame somebody for trying.

Prosecutor: "But he assaulted her." Pickett defended his conduct in the case. He said LaRosa, a professional bail bondsman, may have made his charges because last Friday Picket ordered only $800 of a $2,000 bond refunded to LaRosa. LaRosa denied the bond incident had anything to do with his complaint.

LaBelle's attorney. Stephen Horton of Hartford, said the portion of the court transcript quoted by LaRosa was taken out of context.

He said a full reading would show La-Belle never "even tried." He said Le-Belle at one point tried to stop his companions from beating the woman and attempted to recover the money stolen

The 5-year-old baboon had been captured in Africa and kept at the lab for six weeks to be examined by quarantine officials, police said.

The animal was first spotted here Monday and has been swingng from trees and utility poles since then, police said. No one here had been able to get close enough to the animal to identify it.

Police said anyone who spots the animal should not attempt to capture it. "It has very sharp teeth," a police dispatcher said.

Tuition Tax Credit Vote May Not Survive Veto WASHINGTON (AP) - President pected no difficulty with the courts, oth-

Carter may still have his way despite House passage of sweeping tuition tax credit legislation strongly opposed by the

The 237-158 House vote approving the bill Thursday was 27 votes short of the two-thirds majority that would be needed to override a presidential veto, expected if the measure finally clears Congress.

The legislation, which provides credits against college, elementary and secondary school tuition, now goes to the Senate, which has shown itself even more favorable to tuition credits than the House.

The House-passed measure would allow a taxpayer to subtract directly from his income tax 25 per cent of his tuition outlays, within limits

The maximum credit in the case of college or other post-secondary tuition would be $100 this year, $150 in 1979 and $250 in 1980, for each student. At the lower educational levels, the maximum would be $50 this year and $100 in each of the next two. The program would end after three years unless Congress renewed it. Pending in the Senate, with the approval of the Finance Committee, is a measure providing credits up to $500.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he does not think a veto could be overrid-

He said House leaders might bring up a bill embodying Carter's proposal to expand existing college aid programs by $1.2 billion and making families with incomes up to $25,000 eligible for some benefits.

The House, which unlike the Senate had never before passed a tuition tax credit bill, not only did so Thursday, but approved the measure after first broadening what had been only a college tuition credit to include tuition at the lower educational levels. That change carried by 15 votes - 209 to 194.

Because the credit would apply to private and parochial elementary and secondary schools, the House action raised a constitutional issue about which Carter has expressed particular concern.

The president has said that he was inclined to veto any tuition tax credit measure that was costly and unconstitutional.

The House measure, which appears to fit that description, would cost in lost taxes an estimated $635 million in its first full year and $1.2 billion in two years.

And an opinion by the Justice Depart ment says that a measure including elementary and secondary tuition credits would probably be declared unconstitu-

the House had "overturned the religious bigotry of the 19th Century," but an American Civil Liberties Union spokesman, who asked not to be named, opposed the bill and said the organization might test it in court if it is enacted.

Here are some questions and answers about its provisions

Q. How much help would I get with the cost of putting my child through college if the bill is approved by Congress and signed by President Carter?

A If the basic House bill were enacted. you could subtract directly from the income tax you owe 25 percent of the cost of college or other post-high school tuition. That's tuition and academic fees,

There would be limits: $100 this fall, $150 in 1979 and $250 in 1980. After that it would be up to Congress to decide whether to continue the program.

Q. What about the cost of tuition at a private elementary or secondary school?

A. The same 25 percent of tuition, but lower limits: $50 this year, $100 each of the next two

Q. Would I have to show financial

Q. With the cost of college running well into the thousands of dollars, and some private schools very expensive, those amounts are pretty low. Any chance they would be increased? A. Some. Awaiting action in the Senate is a bill that would by 1980 allow credits up to $500. If both chambers pass their versions, the eventual compromise probably would be somewhere between these

School Trustee Says Tax Bill 'Dangerous'

Avalanche-Journal Staff School board president Charles Waters said today a House-approved bill to give tax breaks to families who send their children to private school is "dangerous" legislation." He hopes President Carter vetoes the measure.

Tuition tax credits would undermine public education. They would further encourage parents to take their children out of public school and put them in private school," Waters said.

The resulting incentive for private school education would be "very detrimental" to public school desegregation efforts, he added.

In a 237-158 vote Thursday, the House passed a bill providing tax credits on elementary and secondary tuition. For each child attending private school, a family could deduct from its income tax up to $50 this year and $100 in succeeding

The bill now goes to the Senate. The Senate Finance Committee already has approved a measure for credits of up to $500. However, Carter has threatened to veto any such legislation as costly and unconstitutional Waters agreed, especially with that sec-

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC claimed only three of the week's 10 most-watched programs, but fared well in the ratings from then on and won the networks' weekly battle for the prime time television viewer.

NBC's best for the week ending May 28 was a new episode of "Police Story," No. 5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings. A consistent NBC hit, "Little House on the Prairie," was No. 9 for the week, and a third NBC show, "Class of '65," tied for Three of the four most-watched shows were on ABC. A new installment of "Laverne and Shirley" was ranked No. 1 in a week marked by at least two-dozen reruns. A rerun of another ABC comedy,

"Three's Company," was second.
CBS scored with "The Dain Curse," a three-part production of the Dashiell Hammett novel. The first episode Monday evening was No. 3 in the week's ratings, Part III was tied for tenth and Part II 13th. But it wasn't enough to pull CBS out of third place in the network standings for the week.

NBC's relatively strong start contributed to a rating for the week of 15.1, ABC was at 14.6 and CBS at 14.4. The networks say that means in an average

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 24.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 24.3 percent saw at least part of the show.

Three ABC shows were ranked at the bottom of the ratings - "Sugar Time" and "Sister Terri," both tied with NBC's "C.P.O. Sharkey" for No. 52, and "Vanishing Wilderness," No. 57. CBS' telecast of the pro basketball playoff game Thursday night was 55th, and NBC's "Comedy Time" 56th.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley," a 24.3 rating representing 17.7 million homes, and 'Three's Company," 23.4 or 17.1 million, both ABC; "The Dain Curse," Part I, 22.6 or 16.5 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 22.5 or 16.4 million, ABC; "Police Sto-20.8 pr 15.2 million, NBC; "M-A-S-20.4 or 14.9 million, CBS; "Carter Country," 18.7 or 13.6 million, and "Bing Crosby - Life and Legend," 18.6 or 13.5 million, both ABC; "Little House on the

Networks Put 21 New Series On Tap For Fall Schedules

LOS ANGELES (AP) - What vision contains two wars, five airline stewardesses, an old senator, two Las Vegas shows, a radio station, a law school and 23 laugh-ins? A bad drug trip, you say?

No. just some of the nightly images the ABC, NBC and CBS networks will flicker at you next fall in their quest to top the tidv $405.6 million in pre-tax profits they earned in 1977.

Twenty-one new series are on tap, five at ABC and eight each at CBS and NBC. Two spring tryout shows - CBS's "Dallas" and NBC's "Operation Runaway" also are booked for return engagements.

But "Runaway" and CBS's new law school series, "Paper Chase," may be cited as examples of the art of kamikaze. They face ABC's hit "Happy Days" and Laverne and Shirley" on Tuesday

The new season will usher in 23 halfhour comedies. Top-rated ABC will do most of the ushering, with 12 shows, foltwo 30-minute chucklers.

But NBC also has two new one-hour comedies, "Grandpa Goes to Washington." with Jack Albertson as an ancient senator, and "Coastocoast," about two airline ladies.

CBS, not to be outdone in aerial matters, has three female flight attendants in its new "Flying High" airliner series.

Should they land in Las Vegas, they'll find that high-roller haven the setting for two more new shows - ABC's "Vegas," a gumshoe show, and NBC's "Legs," a half-hour comedy.

'Legs' is from Garry "Happy Days" Marshall. He once gave ABC "Blansky's Beauties," which was set in Las Vegas and died there.

With "Legs," he may prove that if at first you don't succeed, try at NBC. In war matters, CBS's Korean-conflict

M-A-S-H" returns next fall; ditto ABC's World War Two-vintage "Operation Petticoat." Each war starts a half hour apart

Variety seems not the spice of TV life next season. Only three varieties are on Mary Tyler Moore's new "Mary" at CBS, "Donnie and Marie" at ABC and a new Dick Clark caper at NBC.

However, fantasy and sci-fi are in vogue for 1978-79. NBC's "Project U.F.O." is returning, likewise CBS's Wonder Woman" and "Incredible Hulk" and ABC's "Fantasy Island."

ABC also has a new entry, "Battle Star: Galactica," which some claim is "Star Wars" with fewer calories, Broadcasting also is in, with CBS's new radio station comedy, "WKRP in Cincinnati," and NBC's new "W.E.B.," about an ambitious lady executive at a televi-sion network called TAB.

And what of series categorized as About Those Who Nail Baddies by Means of Gunfire, Medical Science, Motorcyles or Downright Brilliant Detective Work? They're still a staple for next fall.

Revival Of Play Called Disappointing

NEW YORK (AP) - A disappointing 'Waiting for Godot" opened Wednesday night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, 25 years after its premiere in Paris.

The direction, by Walter Asmus, is based on author Samuel Beckett's own 1975 Berlin production. It is tempting to write glowingly about the 25th anniversary revival of a play widely considered a modern masterpiece, one in which Bert Lahr had a big success on Broadway in 1956. Indeed, the Brooklyn Academy production has many points to recommend it. But it also has pauses, longer than Harold Pinter's, between its speeches, and one waits for "Godot" to be over. Perhaps the mind is busier when it first encounters "Godot." Beckett seems to

absurd routines, striving for relationships and meaning, waiting for God to come and rescue them and he doesn't.

Milo O'Shea was splendid as Lucky, who has one big dramatic monologue. And Michael Egan was excellent as Pozzo, who keeps Lucky as a slave. He explained in convincing heartiness that means people are trapped, going through Lucky enslaves himself, trying to ingratiate himself with the boss.

The other "set" of characters, two tramps who are mostly incompatible but stay together anyway, worked together less well. Sam Waterston was very good, lanky as a scarecrow or a ruined radical, his every step and sway as effective as though choreographed.

Series Tells Of Blacks In 1930s

By JOAN HANAUER NEW YORK (UPI) — In some parts of the rural South in 1933 a school bus was more likely to run over black children than take them to school.

"Roll of Thunder, Hear My Cry" is a three-part mini-series that tells about a black family in Mississippi in those days. It will be broadcast on ABC Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7-8 p.m., CDT, the first two nights, 6-7 p.m. on the final

Based on two novels by Mildred Taylor, the story deals with how a black girl named Cassie Logan was forced to do a lot of growing up during her 11th year. It is no "black Waltons," although the style is reminiscent of John-Boy recalling his youth. The loving family and the Great Depression both are essential to the story, but in "Roll of Thunder" the comparatively affluent black family has problems more frightening and more violent than ever struck the Walton clan.

Cassie lives with her grandmother (Claudia McNeil), her school teacher-mother (Janet MacLachlan) and her three brothers on a partially mortgaged farm that is coveted by the richest local white landowner. Her father (Robert Christian) is away much of the year working on the railroad to pay off the mortgage. When the neigh-borhood is troubled by the night-riding Wallace family, father brings a quiet-spo-ken and immensely strong unemployed

The humiliations for black children brought up with pride who had not yet learned their "place" were overwhelm-ing — from not being allowed to ride the school bus (the driver of which would swerve toward the black children threateningly) to being thrown into the gutter by an arrogant poor white man.

Mennonite School Avoids Modern Problems

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (UPI) - Off a back road of this bustling resort city of more than 250,000 persons sits a tiny, oldfashioned Mennonite schoolhouse free of many modern day problems.

While other schools nationwide are troubled by drugs, assaults and dropping reading scores, students at Kempsville Mennonite School sit quietly and study at their classic iron-framed desks.

Many of their textbooks are frayed and some are more than 20 years old.

But despite the absence of high stacks of new books and up-to-date teaching techniques, the pupils, in grades one through nine, learn well, evidenced by their above average scores in national achievement tests.

"There are advantages and disadvantages," said Joseph Miller. 28, the schoolmaster for the past five years. "We don't have the facilities of most public schools. but we can keep out many of their problems, such as drugs.

And most importantly, we practice religion the way we want to," said Miller, a former brickmason with a ninth grade education.

In addition to teaching and leading prayer. Miller drives the school bus, bringing most of the 17 pupils, ages 6 to 14. to class each day

Some of his students call him "Joe." Others call him "Mr. Miller." But before they utter a word during class, they raise their hands.

There are no drugs or alcohol at Kempsville Mennonite School. There are also no real discipline problems or pupils playing hooky. There is no cheating, student "vandalism, restroom graffiti or dress code violations

Girls wear plain long dresses and white aps. The boys' attire is neat and simple. although they are no longer required to wear dress jackets

Last year the school, begun in the 1940s and run by the local Kempsville Mennonite Church, undarwent a major transition. The number of classrooms was doubled, from one to two. The staff was also doubled to two with the hiring of Miller's wife. Christine

Together, for $800 a month, the Millers teach the ';3 R's" as well as social studies, penmanship, health and art. "I believe the students generally do as well as students in public schools." Miller said. Mrs. Miller, in charge of grades one through four, said. "I believe they do bet-

grade level last year in the standardized national achievement tests," she said.

The school has grades one through nine After graduation, few pupils, regardless of how well they do, go on to high school. Most of the boys will go to work with their fathers, either as farmers or in construction. Most of the girls become homemakers or secretaries "I'd say only about five percent go on to the city's high schools and a few even go to college," said Miller.

"There have been some who have become professionals." Miller said, recalling a former student who is now a dector. a girl who went on to nursing school and others who are now successful local busi-

But most of our people with the simple way of life." he said. Most feel a ninth grade education is enough for what most of them do, man ual work

There are exceptions. At class recently Rosemary Kauffman, 12, helped the teacher by tutoring younger students: Rosemary is unsure if she wants to go onto public high school but is certain what she wants to do with her life.

"I want to become a teacher," she said. The-Millers cite the strong Mennonite family life as the reason for the students' good discipline, attention and educational achievement. For the few problems that do occur, the Millers have a paddle and the approval of parents to correct the situation.

"I think it is because we believe in discipline at home and in school," Mrs. Miller said. "The parents stand behind us and we work together.

A number of visitors have remarked to Miller about how well disciplined students appear. But he's not completely -atisfied, noting that some of his students, like many pupils in public schools omplain about homework.

I still don't think the discipline is near where it should be, but we are working on it and I've got the problem nearly licked," he said.

James W. French, principal of Kempsville High School, has no complaints about the Mennonite school.

The students are prepared well," he said. "Those students interested in learning have no reading or writing problems. Most of the kids are pretty well disciplined to work and study.

French noted, however, that the Mennonite school doesn't use many of the modern teaching techniques which he believes are beneficial

"But if what they are doing werks, you can't knock it." he said

Guard Killed During Burglary In London

LONDON (AP) - Four men burst into the offices of London's Daily Mirror today, fatally shot a security guard and made off with a newspaper payroll that police estimated at $364,000.

a youngster is progessing fast enough, he, is kept back a grade. There are no com-

Other churches within the Mennonite religion have placed greater emphasis on education than Kempsville. In Harrisonburg. Va., there is a Mennonite college, Miller didn't bother to continue his education after graduating from Kempsville in 1964. Grade school was tough enough, he figured, especially since he flunked two grades.

No-Hitter Highlights NAIA Play

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) - Kevin Mendon wrote himself a line in the NAIA record books Thursday night by pitching the first nine-inning no-hitter in the 22-year history of the NAIA baseball World

The feat led Mendon's team, Emporia State University, to a 2-0 win over Missouri Southern.

In an earlier game, Lewis-Clark State drew blood early with four first-inning runs and went on to a 5-2 victory over David Lipscomb (Tenn.).

The victories left three teams in the tournament with one loss each: Emporia State (Kan.), Missouri Southern and Lewis-Clark State (Idaho).

Post-game draws put Missouri Southern into the finals with a bye, and made Lewis-Clark the home team in the semifinal game against Emporia State scheduled for 1 p.m. today.

Mendon, now 12-4 on the year, struck out 11 and walked three. His closest callcame in the bottom of the sixth inning when left fielder Bob Moore went to the warning track to snag a long drive off the bat of Roger Dreier.

The Emporia State runs came in the seventh and eighth innings. Both came without benefit of a hit.

California Tabs, Original Angel Manager

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Jim Fregosi, an original member of the California Angels, is coming home, and he believes he can help inspire the club to greater heights in the American League West.

We felt the Angels needed more motivation and that Fregosi is the type of individual to fill that bill," said Gene Autry, team president and chairman of the board, in announcing the firing of Dave Garcia and the hiring Thursday of the 36year-old former infielder.

Fregosi, who played with the Angels for 11 seasons starting in 1961, becomes the eighth manager in the Angels' 18-year

"The biggest thing is baseball is a lot of fun and the players should have fun while they're playing it," said Fregosi Thursday night at the Greater Cincinnati Airport before flying to California. "If they have fun they can win."

Fregosi, who has been a utility infielder with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will take over as the Angels' non-playing manager when they meet the Boston Red Sox in the opener of a 10-game homestand at Anaheim Stadium tonight. He was in Cincinnati because the Pirates open a weekend series there against the Reds tonight. Fregosi follows Bill Rigney, the late Lefty Phillips, Del Rice, Bobby Winkles, Dick Williams, Norm Sherry and Garcia as managers of the team. Garcia succeeded Sherry only last July 11 and lasted less than a year as the team's skipper.

Garcia, 57, lost his job despite the fact that with a 25-21 record, California is only 11/2 games out of first place in the AL

West. But the Angels have lost five straight games, including a 17-2 trouncing by the Chicago White Sox in their most recent action Wednesday night.

Bart Hernandez New LHS Mentor

Bart Hernandez, who served the past spring as assistant baseball coach at Lubbock High School, has been promoted to head baseball coach for the Westerners, Lubbock Athletic Director Pete Ragus announced this morning.

Hernandez, a former standout at Lubbock Christian College, has been a coach in the Lubbock system since graduating from LCC in 1974, serving three years as an assistant at Matthews Junior High and this past year under Vince Buffamonte at

Earlier in the week, Buffamonte was named head coach at Estacado High School, which is starting its baseball program after an eight-year absence.

Bart has an outstanding baseball background," Ragus pointed out. Hernandez, 26, lettered three years as pitcher-shortstop at Victoria Stroma High School, reaping All-District honor

At Lubbock Christian, Hernandez wa part of a new program as he was a fresh man when the Chaparrals fielded the first team. Still, LCC compiled a 135-6 mark during Hernandez' stay.

Hernandez finished with a 12-5 moun mark and a 2.60 ERA plus hit .337 as first baseman and ranks No. 5 on the al time average list at the school plus is ser enth on both the homer (11) and hit (126)

As a senior. Hernandez landed a berth on the All-District VIII (NAIA) team as a first-baseman

Orioles' Palmer Hurls Third Straight Shutout

Jim Palmer says rumors that the Baltimore Orioles might trade him are grossly exaggerated In fact, Palmer, who tossed his third straight shutout Thursday in a 1-0 victory over the New York Yankees, says he's the source of those rumors.

"I started most of the rumors, so it doesn't affect me," he said. "I called rumor control last night, and they said if I keep pitching like this there's no chance of a trade.

Palmer, now 7-4, yielded only two hits to the Yankees, weak singles by Lou Piniella and Chris Chambliss, in securing his 201st major league triumph and 49th career shutout, one more than San Diego's Gaylord Perry to take the lead among active pitchers.

The 32-year-old, three-time Cy Young award winner was blase.

"Just another shutout." he said. "It was just a win and I just happened to pitch a shutout again. I don't think about give up as few runs as I can. It was just a very blah 1-0 game.

Palmer, who walked five and struck out two, has now won four games in a row, and he's still complaining of a stiff shoulder.

"My shoulder has hurt all year." he said. "I thought it was cured when I left Florida but the pain is always there and it never really loosens up. I've had a couple of shots, but they haven't really helped.

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Milwaukee 4-3, Kansas City clobbered Seattle 10-0 and Texas rallied to beat Minnesota 10-7. There were no games in the National League Thursday.

Rookie Jim Beattie. 2-1, who had beaten Palmer earlier in the year, allowed four hits in seven innings.

The Orioles' run came in the fifth when Doug DeCinces walked on four pitches and took second on Rick Dempsey's single. DeCinces moved to third when Mark Belanger hit into a double play, and when arry Harlow walked and stole second. eserve catcher Cliff Johnson threw the all into center field, scoring DeCinces.

Heinsohn Denies Deal With Braves

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - Tom Heinsohn, the colorful coach who was fired by the Boston Celtics early last winter after the Celtics took a nose dive, denies that he has made a deal to coach the Buffalo Braves next basketball season.

But Heinsohn acknowledged that he has been talking with John Y. Brown, half owner of the Braves who expect to move to another city, probably Dallas, before the 1978-79 National Basketball Association season gets under way.

The Braves coaching job opened up after the 1977-78 season when/Cotton Fitzsimmons left to become the new coach of the Kansas City Kings.

It was a rare turnabout in which writers got a chance to see themselves as athletes see them.

Asked if he ever closed his dressing room door to the media, Lemons deadpanned "Yeah, when I take a shower." Lemons, whose Longhorns were regular season Southwest Conference champions and later won the National Intivation Tournament, said he has had other teams that were better than the latest UT team. "But the thing that made them great was the love of the UT fans and the attention they got," Lemons said. "I think if you took the reporters out of the dressing rooms, you wouldn't get as good play from the teams."

Lemons said he has been criticized for putting down his players but there is method to his zany madness. He once stepped to the scorer's table as one of his players started to shoot a free throw and predicted it would be off to the right. "Actually it was an air ball," Lemons said. "I speak negative and think positive. They get on me for putting down my players but sometimes I do it to keep you guys from doing it. It's better for me to put them down. Before Lemons' stand-up comic presentation, Staubach entertained the writ-ments that had been taken out of context or misinterpreted. I once got knocked out in a game and Staubach said he got his square image when he ordered a station wagon instead of a sports car after being named the most valuable player in Super Bowl VI.

"I may not call the plays (Coach Tom Landry's job) but I'm not stupid," Stau-bach said. "With a wife and five kids, a sports car wouldn't do me much good."

Miss McIngvale, who has won 26 national championships in her diving career, said she didn't care what kind of rules are made concerning admission of writers of the opposite sex into dressing

"They can let men, women, or whatever in there but I won't be there," she said. "They can make all the rules they want to and that's fine, but if I don't choose to accept them, I'll be somewhere

Oliver, obtained by the Rangers in a trade with Pittsburgh prior to this sea-son, said he saw little excuse for being misquoted.

"He's (writer) got a pen and paper right in front of him," Oliver said. "Sometimes they'll get in on a conversation late and just go from there.'

Oliver said writers occasionally make the fail to make a distinction between confidence and cockiness.

"It's one of the things that always irked me," he said. "I consider myself a very Rono, a 26-year-old sophomore at Washington State, says he will try to become the first person in the 57-year history of the NCAA meet to win the steeplechase, 5,000 and 10,000 meters, an attempt criticized by many of his fellowdistance runners and coaches.

"I feel good, except for the foot," he said after his tiring day. The troublesome foot injury, suffered when he set the Rono, who also holds the world record in the 5.000 meters, had times of 8:18.63 and 13:21.79, respectively, to set meet marks in his two events Thursday.

Despite winning by large margins Rono ran surprisingly hard in both qualifying races, including a sizzling 58.3 on his final 440-yard lap in the 5,000. He said he was testing his foot to see if it would stand up in today's 10,000.

He won the steeplechase by 24 seconds and the 5,000 by a half-minute.

A distance-running rival and close friend said he thinks WSU Coach John Chaplin is forcing Rono to run the three races because of the team's long-shot title hopes, an accusation Chaplin denies. I'm sure Henry didn't want to do it.

Rono's friend told The Associated Press. I'm sure his coach made him do it, just like he did in the indoor meet. He's crazy to even try it. It could be very injurious to Ashe's easy victory, which followed his opening round thrashing of Australia's Phil Dent, was in marked contrast to the Thursday ordeal of Guillermo Vilas, who was forced to five sets by the young man who vanquished him last year at Wimble-

And perhaps the biggest surprise of the second-round was the fall of Italy's Adrianno Panatta to American Jeff Borowiak, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Vilas, the second seed and defending champion, was down 1.4 in the fifth set on the clay courts of Roland Garros stadium, playing an uninspired though conBills Martin of the United States

But the short, muscular Aargentine broke the 21-year-old's serve in the sixth game and then climbed back to tie the fifth set 4-4. Martin missed an easy volley in the ninth game and lost his serve. Vilas steamed to clinch the match 6-2, 2-6, 3-6.

"He had the match in his hand but he couldn't handle it at the end," Vilas said after the three-hour match.

Vilas now meets the impressive young French hope, Yannick Noah, and Ashe meets Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes in third-round matches later this week

Panatta, who won this tournament in 1976 and finished second to Sweden's Bjorn Borg in the Italian Open last week, seemed sluggish and temperamental as Borowiak, a 6-foot-3 classical cellist, served and volleyed to victory.

"My legs were a little tired." said the Roman, who was unseeded yet considered a threat to other top men. "Borowiak was playing the best he ever could

Cesai Cedeno

HOUSTON (PI) - Eight-year major league baseba veteran Cesar Cedeno is no longer to e treated like a mistakeprone child of the Houston Astros.

That was nade clear with the announcement hursday that Cedeno, 28, a near foster-sn to the team which found him on a Doinican Republic barrio ball field 11 year ago, was being fined $5,000 for accidently injuring himself during a gametime tmper tantrum.

Cedeno as expected to miss Astros games thagh this weekend as cuts across theop of two fingers healed. He could notbe reached for comment and. as in may cases during his career, the team spot for him.

"Cedep expressed his regrets and apologizd to the club, his teammates and thefans for the actions," an Astros statement read.

The niury was sustained Tuesday night as he swung his right fist in anger at himself aid accidentally hit a dugout roof. Celero had just failed to get a possible gane-winning hit.

Istros President and General Manager Ta Smith Thursday said "15 or 16 stitches' were needed to close the wounds.

The incident is one of many which has stained Cedeno's outstanding baseball In his book, former Astros manager

ez fined Cedeno $200 for accidentally striking pitching coach Roger Craig with a batting belmet.

Said Gomez at that time, "I've told Cesar it's time for him to grow up. He should be a leader on this club. But he only hurts himself by his actions. It's a shame. He has so much talent.'

In Cocoa, Fla., three years ago Cedeno's irritation at failing to get a hit caused him to topple a water cooler. A sliver of glass from the exploding cooler injured Ken Boswell's eye. If a fine was levied for that, it was never made public.

Several incidents which focused public attention on his volatile temperment occurred even after Cedeno was charged with voluntary manslaughter in the 1973 death of a 19-year-old Dominican barmaid. Attorneys for the team, attending Cedeno in his native country, succeeded in getting the charge reduced and in freeing Cedeno for spring training in exchange for paying a $100 fine

Since the Dec. 11, 1973 death of the Dominican teen-ager, Cedeno has not batted as well as he did in the 1972 and 1973 seasons, when he hit .320. But his play has often been exceptional and before this season he was signed to a reported $3.5 million, 10-year contract.

Texas Amateur

WALDEN-ON-LAKE CONROE (AP) Second-round play in the 69th Texas Amateur Golf tournament today will reduce a field of 125 to the low 60 scorers and ties in preparation for championship matches Saturday and Sunday.

Bob Gibbons, the only player to break par in opening round play Thursday never won anything as a member of the Texas Tech team "except a couple of West Texas partnerships.

The 23-year-old graduate student at the Universty of Texas at Dallas went around the 6.720-yard track in 33-37. He birdied holes No. 2, 5, 7 and 9, chipping in from 20 feet at No. 5. He got only one frontside bogey at No. 3 where he lost time in the trees off the tee.

Jimmy Adams and Reagan Brown tied for second place with par 72s while five others posted 1-over 73s

The championship is the first major event at Walden Golf Club which was built by Bruce Devlin, a veteran Australian tour player, and Bob van Hagge and formally opened in September 1976.

NBA Braves

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) - Norm Sonju already has his mind made up.

But it will be the decision of Buffalo Braves co-owners John Y. Brown and Harry Mangurian, along with an OK from the NBA Board of Governors, to relocate the Braves franchise next year

Sonju. Braves president, reaffirmed-Thursday that if the decision were his, he would move the team to Dallas for the 1978-79 season. Sonju admitted that as far back as six weeks ago the "economic figures" indicated Dallas would be a good location for the team.

'Our staff, after doing all of our analysis have made the recommendation that if the franchise is relocated it should be in Dallas," Sonju said. "We have felt this for some time.

Brown and Mangurian are still the decision makers. They have not made their decision.

There was no indication as to when Brown and Mangurian would make the decision

If the co-owners decide to move the team, the question will have to be taken up by the board of governors at their San Diego meeting June 12-13.

Sonju said he has received information from Dallas officials and will forward it to Brown and Mangurian.

The information we were waiting for from Dallas has arrived," he stated. They are answers to the questions that I had asked when I was there last week. Now the owners will have to look at it." Sonju admitted that if the Braves remain in Buffalo it would most likely be by default. "I would hate to think that a particular team winds up in a city for the wrong reasons," he said.

Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) - Texas thirdbaseman and former All-Star Toby Harrah still has a long way to go before he can comfortably declare his current hitting slump ended.

But Harrah, hitting at a meager 201 clip this season, says the key is swinging his bat at more strikes and fewer bad

He slapped a 2-2 pitch over the leftfield fence for a three-run homer Thursday night that propelled the Rangers to a 10-7 American League victory over the Minnesota Twins.

"I think it was a slider," said Harrah of the pitch from Minnesota reliever Mike Marshall. "It was a good pitch and it felt good when I hit it.'

It was only the second homer this year for Harrah, who hit 27 of the long balls last year and entered this season with a .262 career batting average.

Texas Sport Notes

"I just have to keep swinging and be more selective," said Harrah as he enjoyed the dressing room spotlight once

"If you just keep battling, things will come your way," he said.

Harrah's homer capped a four-run Ranger rally in the seventh inning and helped rookie relief pitcher Steve Comer get his first major league victory.

Comer started in the seventh inning with the game tied after the Twins had rallied from a 6-1 deficit with a five-run explosion in the sixth inning

Comer got in trouble quickly as Butch Wynegar and Glenn Adams hit consecutive doubles, with Wynegar scoring to put the Twins ahead 7-6.

Stan Ford's three-run homer over the 400-foot sign in dead center field capped the Minnesota sixth inning rally to tie

The Rangers fell-behind 1-0 after one inning but scored two runs in the third. one in the fourth and three more in the fifth to build their 6-1 advantage.

Texas League

By The Associated Press

The Arkansas Travelers muscled their way past Midland 11-3 Thursday night in Texas League baseball action as David Boyer picked up three hits and drove in four runs to pace Arkansas' East Division leading club.

In other Texas League games, San Antonio downed Tulsa 5-3 while Jackson and Amarillo split a doubleheader with Jackson taking the first game 2-0 and Amarillo clinching the nightcap by an identical 2-0 score. El Paso at Shreveport was rained out.

Boyer's triple, double and single helped Jim Otten to his first victory of the year against no defeats. Jack Ledbetter picked up his third loss of the year as Arkansas scored five runs in the first inning and added four more in the ninth.

In Tulsa, Rick Sander struck out 11 Tulsa batters as he went the distance for San Antonio to hand Tulsa its eighth loss in a

In Amarillo. Scott Holman garnered his fifth victory of the year against one loss as he went the distance in stiffling Amarillo with only four hits. Amarillo contributed to its problems with five errors that helped Jackson score its two runs.

In the nightcap Amarillo reversed the situation as Larry Rothschild upped his record to 2-1 with a four-hit shutout against Jackson.

Costello Bulls Coach?

CHICAGO (AP) - Larry Costello, former coach of the Milwaukee Bucks, has been picked by the board of directors of the Chicago Bulls to be the Bulls' new coach: the Chicago Tribune said today.

Costello led the Bucks to the National Basketball Association championship in 1971 and spent eight full seasons with Milwaukee Meanwhile, the Chicago Sun-Times said Kevin, Loughery, head coach of the New Jersey Nets, was the prime candidate for the Bulls' top job and that Costello was running second. Citing NBA sources, the Tribune said

Jerry Sloan was passed over for the job, apparently because he never has been a head coach. Sloan was an assistant coach last season under Ed Badger, who left the team at the end of the season

One of the sources cited by the Tribune was Pat Williams, who was the Bulls' general manager when Sloan was the teams' ace defensive guard.

"Larry wanted it desperately." Williams was quoted as saying. "He's a diligent, hard-working guy. Williams said "the choice came down to those two (Sloan and Costello), and Costello's experience was the decisive factor." Williams is now with the Philadelphia 76ers.

"I'm convinced Jerry will become a good NBA head coach," Williams said. It's probably better for him to make a fresh start somewhere else without all those Chicago memories on his back. Another source told the Tribune the deto green, Kermit Zarley considered it one of his worst rounds of the year.

But the 36-year-old PGA tour veteran broke out of his putting slump with a vengeance, knocking in four birdies in his last six holes Thursday for a 6-under-par 66 and the first-round lead in the $300,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

"I'm embarrassed," Zarley said afterwards. "I didn't play that well. I wish I could say I did, but I played pretty bad. I was very fortunate on a few occasions. Everything went right for me."

By his own count, Zarley hit bad fairway shots on all but five holes. After 12 holes, he was only 2-under par - but that, he said, was when his wife, Marilyn, entered the picture.

"I had a 12-foot putt for par, and she said, 'Knock it in, honey.' She said it on every hole coming in, and I holed every putt except one from there to the club-

Included in that stretch were three consecutive birdies. Zarley completed his day's work by hitting a wedge from the left of the green on the final hole, then sinking a 6-foot birdie putt.
"I just snuck it in there," said Zarley, who bettered his previous low round of the year by two strokes. "I've had eight

Zarley's highest finish this year was a tie for sixth at the Houston Open. He hasn't won an individual title on the PGA tour since 1970, and he is eyeing the $60,-000 first prize at the Kemper. "I need the money," said Zarley, who is 78th on the winnings list with $18,567

TOYOTA'S MILLION-DOLLAR-DASH FOR THE 1980 OLYMPIC GAMES.

SOMETHING FOR THE U.S. OLYMPIC ATHLETES... A $1,000,000 DONATION.

As you may know, our Olympic athletes are not government subsidized. So they need money to train now if they're going to win in Moscow in 1980.

Here's our plan: Toyota and your participating Toyota dealer will make a donation for the U.S. Olympic team every time a new Toyota car or truck is sold through June 30th, 1978. Help us make our sales goal, so we can give $1,000,000 or more, to help build a tough U.S. team. When you buy a new Toyota, you'll also get a specially designed Olympic pin, patch, and a certificate thanking you for your support. Now you can get a tough Toyota, and a tough Olympic team.

SOMETHING FOR YOU... A CHANCE AT $1,000,000 IN PRIZES. ENTER NOW!

Three "Gold Medal" first prizes, worth over $134,000 each. How'd you like to win all of this? A $100,000 condominium in Snowmass, Colorado. Two brand-new Toyotas. $5,000 in AMF Sports Equipment. A Nikon FM Camera. A $1,000 Levi Shopping Spree. A 3-week trip for two to Moscow, Munich, and Montreal, with $10,000 in pocket money And a Sony Color TV, in case you get bored. That's just the first prize. Three lucky people will win them. Good luck!

Ten "Silver Medal" second prizes. Every "Silver Medal* winner will receive a Toyota Corolla SR-5 Liftback, a $1,000 AMF Sports Shopping Spree, a Nikon FM Camera, and a one-week trip for two to the European Track and Field Championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia. And $2,500 cash.

1000 "Bronze Medal" third prizes. A Nikon FM 35mm Camera with 50mm F2 lens. Nice to have around even if you can't make it to the games.

How to enter Sweepstakes: See your participating dealer for a free entry form. No purchase necessary. No sentences to complete. But, act fast. Sweepstakes ends June 30th.

You asked for it. You got it. Toyota. Complete rules available at participating dealers. U.S. ficensed drivers only Sweepstakes void in Missouri, Maryland, and where prohibited by law

"I was surprised at the news, but at the same time having been in this business for so long, nothing surprises me," he said. "I'm disappointed. I don't get fired too often, but I'm not going into the bathroom and cut my throat.

"I have to believe when people do things they do them because they think it's right. I wish I was still there because it's the best job I've had but I'm not going to worry about it.

Fregosi was one of the most popular players in the history of the franchise. He holds 10 club hitting records and was a three-time winner of the Owner's Trophy as the team's most valuable player. His batting average with the Angels over 11 years was .268

"It was somewhat of a surprise but I'm excited about returning to the Angels as a manager," said Fregosi, who began his major league career with the Angels in 1961 but said he wouldn't miss playing. "It's about that time. You like to play as long as you can but when you get an opportunity to manage in the big leagues, it's a real thrill.

Details of his contract were to be worked out today and Fregosi was to be presented to the media at an afternoon press conference at Anaheim Stadium. Fregosi said that while he knows some of the current players on the Angels' roster, he wasn't taking the job with any set Managing today, you have to understand the players, get the most out of them," he said. "There comes a time to react to the players; they aren't going to react to you. "I have my own ideas on what we should do but it is according to the club and the players you have. The biggest thing is motivation. The Angels are a great club and they are in a pennant race

"I think there were players not playing to their capabilities, but I think they were trying to do their best," said Garcia, whose managerial job with the Angels was his first in the big leagues. "It happens to everybody.

"I don't think it was because they weren't trying: I think maybe theywere trying to hard," he continued. "Some times when you try too hard you do less than you can. Nobody can tell me that Bostock's a .200 hitter, watching him the last three years when he was a .300 hit

Garcia spent 15 years as a minor league infielder, 14 years as a minor league manager, nine years as a scout and more than six years as a major league coach before succeeding Sherry last summer

"It's always difficult to replace a manager, particularly one as nice a guy as Dave Garcia," said Angels Executive Vice President and General Manager Buzzie Bavasi, in his first year in that position. "However, I'm sure Dave understands our problem.

ministration is thinking about beaming propaganda broadcasts into Cuba in an attempt to spread dissatisfaction among the population over the regime's military role in Africa, U.S. officials say

The White House also is considering suspension of U.S. charter flights to the island and a cancellation of athletic exchange programs for a similar purpose.

The serious consideration of these measures represents a reversal of what had been steady progress toward normalization of relations between the United States and Cuba. a process that reached a high point nine months ago when the two countries opened diplomatic missions in Washington and Havana.

The administration has no intention of closing down these missions, and it has rejected as "much too extreme" a proposal to blockade Soviet oil shipments to Cuba, according to the officials, who asked not to be named.

The officials admit that U.S. leverage over Cuba is minimal, and that they do not expect adoption of any of the measures to have a dramatic impact on Premier Fidel Castro's foreign policy. But

The State Department estimates that U.S. tourism to Cuba will generate almost $3 million in foreign exchange for the island this year.

Another option is the curtailment of U.S. Cuban athletic exchanges, which have been increasing since the diplomatic missions were opened last September. There have been exchanges of boxing, baskethall, voileyball and other teams during this period.

Also on the list of alternatives is an effort to persuade other Latin American nations to reduce their ties with Cuba. officials said, increasing international pressure on Castro to moderate his policies. But officials admitted that the approach may not be feasible since Cuba's activities in Africa have not generated much attention in the rest of the hemisphere.

U.S. Officials Assessing Moscow 'Bug' Damage

By ROBERT PARRY WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, after discovering sophisticated electronic spy equipment in a chimney of the Moscow embassy, are assessing the damage it did to American security and puzzling over how the gadgetry works.

One official called the Soviet's use of the espionage equipment a "serious penetration of our embassy," but said the electronic gear would have to be analyzed before deciding if it had caused a major security breech.

The official, who asked not to be named, said the equipment was apparently maintained by Soviet technicians who sneaked into the embassy by crawling through a tunnel, which originated in a nearby apartment building, and then climbed up the chimney.

In Moscow, an embassy source said the cable leading from the device was traced to a room in the nearby building where a Soviet agent was discovered before a bank of equipment monitoring signals from the bug. He fled when U.S. officials entered, said the source, who asked not to be named. The discovery of the device also raised questions about the equipment's possible hnk to other mysteries involving the Moscow embassy - such as why the Soviets have beamed microwaves at the building for years, worrying U.S. officials about possible health hazards

The chimney is adjacent to the embassy's South Wing, which houses junior emplovees and does not have a high security rating, but U.S. diplomats were concerned that the bugging equipment could have been monitoring the neighboring Central Wing. That section houses the highly sensitive offices of Ambassador Malcolm Toon.

Since the discovery of the bug, embassy officials had reinforced their Marine security guard on the building's roof and at a point along the tunnel in case the Soviets realized their system no longer was secure, said the embassy source involving the tunnel began with U.S. officials removing a brick from its wall at night only to find it replaced the follow ing morning

Thomas Reston, the State Department's associate spokesman, said Thursday the device was discovered May 25 and that a protest was lodged with the Soviet Foreign Ministry

However, another official said the electronic gear — including a large antenna was discovered during a routine security search. "There was regular physical penetra-technical assessment of the problem right now. But it might take some time to determine precisely how it (the equipment) works. The embassy source said the electronic equipment could have been there since the 1950s when the U.S. government first leased the building from the Soyiets. One source said the equipment might never have been found if special American crews had not been flown to Moscow to repair damage to the embassy caused by a fire on Aug. 26, 1977. "They suggested a thorough sweep of the embassy and we're glad they did." the source said

The discovery has also raised new questions about what Russian firefighters might have done when they entered re stricted parts of the building to fight the

Some officials have speculated that the microwave bombardment could be connected with intelligence gathering activities, possibly supplying power to spy equipment concealed in the embassy.

The Moscow embassy historically has been a target of Soviet espionage. In 1964, the State Department disclosed that at least 40 microphones were found hidden in the walls of the embassy.

In 1960, a microphone was found beneath the eagle's beak of a U.S. seal on an embassy office wall. Later, during a United Nations debate on the U-2 spy incident. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge displayed the seal when countering Soviet charges of U.S. spying.

Tree-Cutter Ordered To Pay Damages

DEDHAM, Mass. (UPI) - Allen M. Schultz has been ordered to pay $3,600 in damages to his neighbors for cutting the tops off their trees because they spoiled his view

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Aydelotte of Wellesley, Mass., filed suit against Schultz after he had almost 20 trees on their property trimmed between 1974 and 1976. The trees were "topped at a height about 14 feet above the ground, they said

Richard McCarthy, an attorney for the couple, said Schultz' property is on a hill in Wellesley and the trees obstructed his view. Schultz said he had pruned trees on the property with permission of the previous owner and claimed he didn't know the property had changed hands.

A Norfolk County Superior Court 12member jury took two hours to rule in The official said a connection between favor of the Aydelottes.

GAO Cites Errors In Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) - Creation of a special watchdog system has saved money but failed to wipe out errors in the nearly $5-billion-a-year Supplemental Security Income program, the General Accounting Office reports.

GAO auditors, in a random review of 556 SSI cases from 1976, found 3.4 percent more errors in payments than did the special quality control unit. The report, released Tuesday, said these errors included overpayments, underpayments, payments to ineligible persons and incorrett personal data.

But despite shortcomings, said the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the quality control system has played a significant role in cutting the SSI error rate in half.

SSI provides federal benefits to more than 4.2 million needy aged, blind and disabled Americans. The federal benefits, which average about $178 a month for one person and $267 for a couple, are supplemented by several states

SSI was begun in 1974 and the Social Security Administration quickly ran into problems determining eligibility and ensuring that benefit checks were correct. About 24.8 percent of SSI recipients were incorrectly paid during the last half of

A quality control unit, now operating with a 703-member staff and a $15.4-million budget, was quickly created to monitor SSI payments and reduce errors.

In its review, GAO noted that in the 556-case sample the special unit had found 128 errors in SSI payments or data. But GAO determined that the unit made errors of its own in 32 of those 128 cases.

In 19 cases, according to GAO, the quality control unit incorrectly computed the amount of SSI benefits, missing the mark by a average of $66 per case. In addition, said GAO, the unit should have caught 24 errors averaging $62. And if the unit had used more extensive procedures, if could have found 17 additional errors averaging $57 a case, GAO said. HEW officials generally agreed with the GAO report. But the department said the document should reflect significant improvements in the SSI error rate over the past few years. The case-error rate has been reduced by nearly 50 percent, 24.8 percent to about 13 percent; the payment-error rate has been reduced by nearly 60 percent, from a high of 11.5 percent to 4.9 percent." HEW wrote GAO said, however, that because the quality control unit fails to gather sufficient data for an in-depth analysis, it 'has not played as effective and prominent a role in correcting program problems as it could.

Alaskan Crash Second Of Season For Fish-Spotters

DILLINGHAM, Alaska (AP) - Three men have been killed in the second inflight collision to occur this season during aerial fish-spotting, federal officials reported Wednesday.

There were no survivors of the crash Tuesday over Kulukak Bay, according to personnel at the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service station in nearby Dillingham.

Alaska State Troopers identified the victims as Richard Moll of Soldotna, and Edward Zimmerman and Ray Anderson, both of Seward. Moll was piloting a Supercub. The other two men were aboard

The accident occurred as the men, flying in two light planes, scanned the waters of the bay for herring about 40 miles west of Dillingham, FAA spokesman Cliff Cernick said. The fiery collision was reported by workers at a fish camp

On May 21, two pilots died in a similar crash near Homer. They had been observing salmon runs for area fishermen. Cernick said the National Transporta-

Problems Arise With New M-X Missile System

By ROBERT KAYLOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The $30 billion M-X missile system, featuring a new version of the old shell game to hide it from the Soviets, is the subject of what has been described as the most critical defense debate of 1978. Defense sources say the new missile is in trouble even before the debate goes public.

Already delayed once by the Carter administration, the M-X (which stands for Missile - Experimental) could face further slowdowns. The problem is concern that the 13-mile underground tunnels that had been favored as M-X launching bases may not be safe from attack.

A new plan, adopted by Air Force experts, would shuttle the missiles among thousands of missile silos. But that has raised arms control issues, and congressional sources warn prolonged indecision might scrap the program.

Debate has been intense. In addition to Defense Secretary Harold Brown and top-level Pentagon groups, President Carter's National Security Council staff and a White House panel of science advisors are involved.

Critics argue the M-X would "destabilize" the U.S.-Soviet balance and increase chances of nuclear war. Supporters say M-X would make Soviet attck less likely. The issue has been aired in closed-door hearings in Congress, which has been asked for $158 million for development starting Oct. 1.

request almost 40 percent from $258 million, said "survivability" tests on experimental tunnels had to be completed before it could be definitely decided by the end of 1978 whether to proceed.

Brown, explaining why he reduced that

What Brown did not mention publicly. according to informed defense sources, was serious doubt the tests could actually determine the safety of the "buried trench" plan, as the tunnels are officially

Last year, the Air Force wanted up to 300 M-X's, saying improved Soviet missiles would make U.S. Minuteman III missile silos vulnerable to attack in the mid-1980s. Bigger and more accurate than Minuteman, M-X would have been moved in random patterns inside the tunnels to foil Soviet targeters.

But now Gen. Alton Slay, who supervised M-X research, doesn't want the Air Force to commit itself to a basing system without full support of Brown, the White House and Congress.

"That would be a loser," he says. "It's too important. If it takes us another two years to get the support, we'd better do

Doubts about the system arose last fall when Albert Latter, an ICBM expert who worked with nuclear physicist Brown in the 1950s, told the defense secretary that without above ground nuclear tests (now banned by treaty), there was no certainty trenches could withstand attack.

Building them "would be like producing an airplane without having flight tests," said one source, who said Latter also believed spies could plant sensors near trenches to find the missiles

Latter proposed using relatively simple, unprotected silos and decoy missiles that would be moved around with the

New Rebel Group Disturbs Filipinos

MANILA. Philippines (AP) - Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile says the government is disturbed by a new group of insurgents in the southern Philippines, already in turmoil from a 51/2year-old Moslem rebellion.

In an interview published the Manila Times Journal. Enrile said the Moslem uprising, led by the Moro National Liberation Front, "is not as serious as it used to be." But he said, "We have detected a new group which is quite disturbing. I am, however, sorry I cannot give you details of this new group for security reasons.

measures would be needed so satellites could not use heat emanations to spot the real missiles

A panel of experts, dubbed the "Tiger Team," found the Latter plan could cut costs roughly by half, although there would be additional expenses for crews and special equipment to move the mis-

Sources said at least two silos would be needed for each Soviet missile warhead to ensure survival of enough U.S. missiles to answer an attack. Even with the reduced force of 150-250 M-X missiles now favored by the Pentagon, nearly 10,000 silos would be needed.

That many silos would raise problems of weapons verification for any arms limitation agreement without on-site inspection. If the Soviets built an equal number of silos and refused inspection, critics argue, additional missiles could easily be slipped in.

Some senior civilians now support a "hybrid" trench plan that would put the missiles in specially strengthened underground chambers that would jut from the sides of the trenches like thorns on a rosebush. It is regarded as a compromise that does not completely satisfy anyone, but congressional sources warn if the administration cannot agree on this plan by the end of this year, the M-X in any form could be doomed. This in turn could bring a reappraisal of whether the United States will continue its nuclear deterrent based on a "triad" of ICBM's, submarine-based missiles and aircraft. Although Brown still feels an ICBM force is needed, sources say some of Carter's advisers favor such a reappraisal and thus might support more M.X delays.

President Takes Tough Stand With Soviet Union

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is beginning to talk tough to the Russians. And national security affairs adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski is taking an even tougher stance.

The Soviets' growing military power and their activities in Africa are the causes of concern in the administration, which is also under pressure from some quarters, such as former President Gerald Ford and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, to take a firmer line against the Soviet Union.

In recent weeks, Carter has accused the Soviets of being racist and of fomenting strife in Africa. Brzezinski said the Soviets were not playing the game and keeping the "code of detente

In Spokane, Wash., earlier this month, Carter warned of the "danger" to U.S.-Soviet relations by the Russians expansionist moves in Africa and use of a "proxy" Cuban army to further its aims. And Carter told a meeting of NATO

"The Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries pose a military threat to our Alliance which far exceeds their legitimate secuity needs. For more than a decade, the military power of the Soviet Union has steadily expanded and it has grown consistently more sophisticated ...

"Our Alliance centers on Europe, but our vigilance cannot be limited just tothat continent. In recent years, expanding Soviet power has increasingly penetrated beyond the North Atantic area. As I speak today, the activities of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa are preventing

their own future."

To some observers, Carter and company are laying the groundwork for an easing of the restrictions on his ability to act. The congressional restraints, about which he has complained publicly, were imposed in the post-Vietnam "never again" era to prevent the outbreak of presidential wars without the approval of Congress.

Up to now, Carter has not followed in the aggressive footsteps of predecessors Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford. Some pundits have interpreted this as weakness and believe this posture has encouraged Russians into more adventurism.

Probably to counter some of that criticism, as well as to warn the Soviets, Carter has stepped up the cold-war-style rhetoric

Up to now, he has rejected linking the Russian intrusion in Africa and elsewhere to progress in the strategic arms limitation talks. Ford and Kissinger, while not using the term "linkage," favor warning the Soviets that SALT will suffer if they continue to "destablize" third world countries.

Carter says he doesn't buy that approach but concedes Soviet "abuse of human rights" and involvement in Africa could make it more difficult to win ratification of a SALT agreement in the Sen-

In adopting a more critical approach to the Soviets, Carter appears to be more in step with Brzezinski than with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other State Department officials who do not believe that the time has come for strong retalia-

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young also has taken a softer approach to the Soviets and Cubans in Africa, much more in line with the views of the moderate African leaders.
