Moving Downtown

Lawyer Horace Mitchell, left, received recognition today by the Greater Lubbock Development Association for moving his offices downtown. With Mitchell are association members James Spears and Charley Pope. The building purchased by Mitchell last year cost $100,000 to renovate in "Old Lubbock" style. For many years it was the location of the Sweetbriar Shop. Standing with Mitchell in front of the building at Broadway and Avenue J are, left to right, Pope, and association members Dorman Igo and Lennis Baker. (Staff

The remodeling is part of a general face-lift encouraged by the Greater Lubbock Development Association.

"The image of the city is downtown," said Charley Pope, chairman of the association. "I don't know of any more important area of a city

Pope said he often hears people say they have not been downtown in five years. "They also say they're surprised. They thought it was deteriorating. And it was for a while, but it's on its way back." he said.

Pope, executive vice president of First Federal Savings & Loan, said building

"Downtown will become the professional and financial center of the city," he said. "And as those interests develop, there will be renewed interest by specialty shops - restaurants as well as retail trade.'

Mitchell said his offices will be moved from the South Plains Mall and occupy one of four completed suites in the refurbished building

The facade reflects what has become dubbed "the Old Lubbock look," which has a Spanish accent. Architects of BGR, Inc., studied some 2,000 photographs in their efforts to design the exterior.

Contractor Grady Kirkpatrick said the structure, built in 1924, was a sturdy one. It took him three days to chisel through a 16-inch brick and concrete wall. The original cost of the building was $12,000 and it was constructed by W.E.

Israelis Raid Enemy Base In Lebanon

AAQBIYE, Lebanon (AP) - Israeli commandos striking before dawn from the air and sea attacked a Palestinian base at this southern Lebanon fishing village today, killing five guerrillas and wounding seven others, Palestinians here

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said two Israeli lieutenants were killed and eight of its soldiers were wounded in the surprise assault by seaborne commandos and paratroopers.

It said the strike destroyed a guerrilla naval base and there was evidence the seacoast compound was being used to prepare for terrorist attacks on Israel "in the near future.

An Israeli military spokesman said the raiders counted eight Palestinian bodies, and he claimed none of the estimated 30 to 40 defenders escaped before the Israeli raiders dynamited the base.

Guerrillas said they killed 8 to 10 Israelis in the two-hour clash.

Western correspondents who drove down from Beirut to this village 26 miles north of the Israeli border saw signs of a major firefight.

Abu Jihad, the Al Fatah guerrilla group's top military commander in Lebanon, toured the blood-stained site at midmorning. He denied the base was used to train guerrillas for seaborne attacks into

He said 19 guerrillas were manning the garrison when it was hit by a force of at least 150 Israelis, landed by rubber boats and helicopters. He admitted the base was caught off guard.

"This is not a major base at all," Abu Jihad told reporters. "We have people here, just as we have them scattered all around the area.

Israel invaded and occupied 500 square miles of southern Lebanon in March. That invasion, aimed at driving guerrillas out of southern Lebanon, followed a Palestinian terrorist raid into Israel that killed 35 Israelis.

A pooled report prepared for the foreign press in Israel quoted military sources as saying all Israel's casualties today were caused by the explosion of a Palestinian arms depot.

Three buildings were demolished in the beachfront guerrilla compound.

Guerrillas said there were six Lebane civilians buried beneath one of the wrecked houses. They reportedly were local laborers who tended the orchards around the compound. There was no way to verify the report before the rubble was

At least five boats, each 20 feet long, were burned. Their charred remains still smoldered at mid-morning, seven hours after the attack began. The guerrillas claimed the boats were not used for cross-border raids, but were fishing boats See ISRAELIS HIT Page 16

Labor Bill Filibuster Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backers of proposed labor law revisions are offering new concessions to gain support, but a leading Senate opponent says they aren't enough to call off a filibuster against the legislation.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd introduced a series of proposed charges in the bill, just hours after the Senate voted for the second time in as many days against limiting debate. But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a filibuster leader, said Byrd's proposals did not go far enough. "I want to make it clear that we are a long way from having a bill that will be acceptable to our side." Hatch said. "For all the interesting and enjoyable talk about how they tried to accommodate small business and the rest of our society . .. I have to add the problems are still unresolved."

Spokesmen for organized labor grumbled that Byrd's proposed concessions were unnecessary. Officially, the AFL-CIO decided to support them, but pri-vately officials made it clear they had no enthusiasm for them.

Labor lobbyists were not permitted to see the proposed changes until shortly before they were presented.

Byrd introduced the changes with the backing of more than 20 senators after the Senate voted 49-41 against choking off the Republican-led filibuster, which enters its 13th day today.

It takes 60 votes to invoke cloture, or a gag on debate. Anti-filibuster forces gained seven vote since Wednesday. when they lost their first attempt to limit Luper said the Washington suit "was unexpected because of the suit in Dallas already before the courts. The Department of Energy is ditching its administrative procedures.

The department contends that Exxon shut down several old wells at Hawkins Field and shifted production to new wells, but that total production from the area did not actually increase.

"Essentially, we are saying that Exxon has takem old oil and turned it into new oil without producing any more oil," one Energy Department attorney was quoted by The Post as saying. Rogers said: "We maintain that (the Energy Department) was aware of how we made the calculations (differentiating old from new oil) and took no exception to them at the time and now has made a retroactive interpretation. "That was the basis of why we went to court to challenge the allegations served on us in January," he said. "The suit in Washington apparently is in reaction to that (Dallas) suit." Rogers said the department appears to have bypassed a number of other administrative steps usually taken in price dis-

Nuclear Waste Storage Decision Delayed

AMARILLO (UPI) - Scientists studying the flatlands of the Texas Panhandle and upper South Plains say it could be three to four years before they know whether the region is geologically suitable for storing radioactive nuclear waste.

The Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin, under contract with the U.S. Department of Energy, last year began looking at the Northwest Texas region as one of six potential nuclear waste storage sites in the nation.

Studies also have been under way for several years of the area near Carlsbad in southeastern New Mexico. The proposal for nuclear waste storage in that region has drawn increasing opposition from residents and environmental groups The federal government's National Waste Terminal Storage Program entails deep, underground disposal of solid nuclear wastes generated by commmercial power-producing nuclear reactors.

"We're a long way from any kind of determination whether it (the Panhandle region) might be a candidate. The thing could abort at any point," said Dr. William L. Fisher, director of the bureau.

Fisher said in a telephone interview from Austin the study could run three or four more years before the prosperous farming and ranching region is sufficiently mapped and studied to determine its feasibility for storage of the waste thousands of feet underground.

Only small quantities of the waste are stored now, but greater amounts of waste will be produced in the future with a heavier reliance on nuclear power. What attracts scientists to Northwest and East Texas, the other area in the state under consideration, are the deep salt beds into which the waste could be lowered and stored for thousands of years without fear of leakage or major earthquakes.

Although geologists are considering a large section of the Panhandle and upper South Plains, including the Palo Duro Basin and Dalhart Basin, the major interest is developing in Randall and Swisher counties. In East Texas, the prime counties are Anderson, Freestone and Leon. The Palo Duro Basin underlies most of the southern Panhandle and northern South Plains, extending as far south as Lamb. Hale and Floyd counties. The Dalhart Basin is in the northwest corner of the Panhandle.

A deep test well to take samples of the salt formation under the Panhandle is being planned for late summer or early fall. Fisher said.

is, that could end the project," he said.

Of major concern is the hydrology of the region, since the vast Ogallala aquifer supplies the vital moisture farmers use in

"As far as the water's concerned, that's a high essential. You can't afford not to be absolutely thorough," he said.

A public meeting was held last summer in Amarillo to brief residents on the studies that were being conducted. Another meeting is being planned for sometime later this year. "We've heard some (opposition). This is not the kind of issue people are wildly enthusiastic about. People are not happy to have a mine or a garbage dump in their backyards," he said. "They are being given a considerable amount of consideration by the government. It's an area people are likely to be concerned and legitimately so."

Commission Questions Signature

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The Tennessee Election Commission has ruled that Sen. Howard Baker's name cannot appear on the ballot in his bid for a third term because election officials do not believe the signature on his qualifying papers is his.

Politics is rough enough without people playing partisan games, childish games," said the Republican leader after the Democratic-controlled commission issued its decision Thursday.

He said he will go to court if necessary to get on the ballot.

Unless overturned, the commission action will keep Baker's name off the Republican primary ballot Aug. 3 and the Nov. 8 general election ballot. The qualifying deadline for both ballots passed on June 1.

Baker was expected to win the GOP nomination easily and have little trouble in November against one of eight Democrats running for the right to oppose him. If all else fails, Baker could try for a write-in campaign to give him the nomination in August.

Baker, who flew from Washington to his hometown of Huntsville, Tenn., after the commission action, said his staff and attorneys would be at the state capital today to try to get the commission to reverse itself.

Baker's press secretary. Ron McMahan, predicted the commission would re-

Fred Thompson, a Nashville lawyer and Republican leader, said unless the commission "reverses itself and reverses itself rather quickly, we'll go to court."

He said Baker's signature was questioned first by David Collins, the Democratic state election coordinator. "Mr. Collins' newfound handwriting expertise could prove to be costly," said Thompson. Collins said he compared Baker's signatures on a Federal Election Commission report and a letter with Baker's signature on the qualifying petition. "I don't think you have to be handwriting expert to see the difference,'

Collins contends the "H", "o" and "d" in "Howard" and the "J" in "Jr." all appeared to be different on the qualifying petitions than those on the other

Democrats To Vote On Party Campaign Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rules nearing completion by the Democratic Party could put a new face on presidential campaigns and wrap up a decade of reform movements and partisan strife.

The latest wave of party reforms was before the Democratic National Committee today for final action, and the rules approved will be binding on the 1980 campaign and convention.

Since some of the bigger changes are likely to result in law changes in Democratic dominated states, they are expected to affect Republican presidential campaigns as well.

Some other revisions, which had been pushed through a special study commission by White House forces and which critics said would make it harder for another Democrat to challenge President Carter in 1980, were largely compromised in an executive committee meeting last month

The executive committee tried to skirt two other controversial issues Thursday by deciding they belonged in the "call" for the 1980 convention instead of in the party bylaws.

One of these involved efforts to require half the convention delegates to be women, and the other allows convention delegates to be chosen in single member dis-already includes a rule requiring half the delegates to be women. Party law, on the other hand, encourages this equal division but does not require it.

The most dramatic rules change would curtail the marathon primary season which traditionally begins in the snows of New Hampshire and ends in the heat of

The new rule would prohibit any state from holding its primary, caucuses or convention earlier than the second Tuesday in March or after the second Tuesday in June, a 13-week period.

An escape clause probably will allow New Hampshire to hold its traditional first-in-the-nation primary at least one more time. After that Democrats would have to select their delegates another way even if the Republican state government continues the early primary.

Another major change is the final demise of the cross-over primary, in which Republicans have been able to vote in Democratic primaries and thereby influence who their opposition candidates would be in the general election.

In states where legislatures refuse to prohibit crossover voting in primaries, the state Democratic party will be required to set up an alternative delegate selection system of its own which would exclude Republicans.

The biggest controversy, however, arose over rule changes pushed through the commission by members who also happened to be on the White House staff. Most of these were modified by the executive committee with Carter's consent planned in Memphis, Tenn. next winter after they drew angry protests from the ing scale which would have required a candidate to get 25 percent of the vote in the later primaries in order to get a share of delegates.

The old rule had guaranteed a share to any candidate getting 15 percent of the vote with a state option to drop the threshhold even lower. This commission plan also would have made late chalcommittee compromise made it 15 percent to 20 percent in caucus states with a complicated formula for the primaries which should have the same effect. The single member district question was more difficult. It would allow a candidate to win all of a state's delegates by winning them one at a time in individual districts, while a close rival would get nothing. It was the plan used by George Wallace to tie up past Alabama delega-tions and could be expected to favor an incumbent president in control of party machinery.

One other revision which drew protests but passed the executive committee guarantees most Democratic Party office holders and public officials automatic seats at presidential conventions.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - President Seretse Khama of Botswana criticized his fellow Africans and complimented the United States in an after-dinner speech at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations

"We have invited outside intervention," he continued, "and when there has been outside intervention, we protest and accuse the same people we invited of meddling in affairs that are strictly African .

"Perhaps the time has come when Africa should sit down and look very closely at itself ... and try to observe exactly where the fault lies, whether it is really due to the intervention of external parties or if it is due to our own dependency on others in the handling of our own

"At last," he said, "the United States does have an African policy. Previously we didn't know whether it did or not."

Young toasted Khama as "one of the great statesmen of Africa" and one of the front-line presidents promoting majority rule for Rhodesia. Sir Seretse and the presidents of Tanzania, Zambia, Mozambique and Angola are backing guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe against the three moderate black leaders who have formed a transition government with Prime Minister Ian Smith.

to get the mule's attention." That's the way a spokesman for the National Taxpayers Union describes the nearly 2-1 vote in California this week to roll back taxes and "send a message" that the public is fed up with runaway government spend-

It's a message that ought to be heard in Washington, Austin and Lubbock.

Actually, the California action on "Proposition 13" is unfortunate. It zeroes in on the property tax, because of its heavy and onerous nature in California, rather than on the real problem: Mushrooming budgets by all levels of government.

THE TAX REFERENDUM was the only way, though, California voters had of getting across an anti-spending sentiment its public officials had ignored or underestimated.

It's a sentiment that has been ignored in Washington and, to a perhaps lesser extent, in the Texas Legislature, Lubbock City Hall and school offices.

In 26 states, in fact, well-organized movements are underway to get the message across, either by limiting taxes or by putting a ceiling on budgets.

In Ohio, for example, voters have repeatedly refused to increase school funding despite an obvious crisis. That is one place

"CALIFORNIA is the 2x4 that's been used where the public has demonstrated it is not just against bigger budgets in the abstract.

> IT REMAINS TO be seen whether the public, generally, will be willing to give up services in California and other places where some sort of lid on spending might be forced into place.

> It must occur to many politicians, though, that the voters are convinced they're paying for more services than they need, want or

Over-generous salary boosts, retirement plans and fringe benefits, too many superfluous programs, overstaffing and other extravagances have their dander up.

TAXPAYERS MAY want their school teachers to be well paid, for example, but resent free breakfasts and other programs that enslave the next generation into the clutches of dependence on government even for the food they eat.

When postal workers start at more pay than many people make after years of experience, when state employes get their Social Security taxes paid for them, when school staffs grow in the face of declining enrollments, taxpayers get upset.

If Texas and Lubbock governmental officials are smart, they'll correct the overspending before the voters do it for them -as was done in California.

John D. Lofton:

'Amen' Your Ways, Congress

WASHINGTON-When you look at Sen. Patrick Leahy, there isn't the slightest hint that he is in any way sadistic or diabolical.

A youngish man in his late 30s who is balding and wears glasses, he is rather nondescript, the stereotyped image of your average, run-of-themill birdwatcher.

Put the Vermont Democrat has done a fiendishly clever thing: he has introduced a bill-S. 3086—which would require the Congress to abide by several laws that govern the rest of us mor-

"What?" you may be asking, "you mean there are actually laws that have been passed that apply to the rest of us but not the Congress who assed these laws?

There most certainly are. And these include: The Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Emloyment Opportunity Act of 1972, the Equal Pay Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the National Labor Relations Act, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, the Social Security Act, the Freedom of Information Act, and the Privacy Act.

EXPLAINING THE need for his law, Leahy

"Collectively, these laws spell out civil, social, physical, and financial rights and standards for all Americans—almost. It is that 'almost' that is the source of the embarrassment and injustice.

"The problem is that in enacting these meaures, Congress proclaimed that what is good for the country is not necessarily good and fair for Congress. In each instance, Congress specifically rrote itself out of the legislation...

"The purpose of the bill I am introducing is nple. It removes the congressional exemption meach of the nine laws. It rights the injustice. It removes the source of embarrassment."

COMMENTING ON the Civil Rights Act and the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, Leahy notes that while applying these laws to Congress will not prevent all religious, racial, or sexual discrimination on Capitol Hill, "it would give; affected individuals legal redress that they do not presently enjoy.'

Similarly, subjecting Congress to the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Equal Pay Act "would give legal standing to the women who currently, and all too often correctly, charge they are not receiving equal pay for equal work," the senator observes.

Calling the extension of the National Labor Relations Act to congressional employes "another obvious step," Leahy declares: "Those of us who support the labor law reform bill proclaim that it is good for the country. If that is so, why not extend its goodness to our own employes?'

AS REGARDS subjecting the Congress to the snooping of inspectors from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the senator points out: "I doubt that a single Senate office could meet OSHA regulations. Why should we not have to take the same remedial action private employers must take?"

On Congress' exemption from the Social Security Act, Leahy says: "I do not see why this group should be excluded from either the benefits or the tax bite. Individuals in the private sector who participate in voluntary pension programs must also partake of Social Security, so again I must ask, why not Congress?"

Leahy's bill is not the first attempt to force Congress to have to practice what it preaches. In ber 1976, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield introduced a resolution (S. 534).

Proposition 13. She'd heard that anything goes in Texas gubernatorial nominee John Hill read the

THE STOCK market, climbing ever since the Carter administration learned that inflation is the nation's Number 1 problem, took another spurt as Californians registered a protest against big spending by governments.

It was further proof that Americans haven't lost faith in the free enterprise system, only in the politicians who keep meddling with it.

"I like Froy personally," says Hester, "but I disagree with the way he votes in the Legisla-

Hester believes the one-term Salinas is vulnerable at the polls, even in a district that appears to be tailor-made for a minority Democrat.

The district embraces East, North and part of South Lubbock-traditionally Democratic and home for most of the city's black and brown vot-So, when Hester announced as a Republican candidate for the state Legislature from that district, many thought he just wanted to "flesh out" the GOP ticket. If a Republican has a chance, the "experts" thought, it'd be Buzz Robnett in the other half of the City of Lubbock. That seat now is held by Joe Robbins, the first Republican ever sent to the Legislature from Lubbock, and Robnett faces Democrat Xen Oden

"His record is fair game," the GOP nominee says. "He'll be defending it and I'll be attacking I think I have the better end of the deal.'

He ticks off a number of Salinas votes he thinks will hurt the incumbent: "Free breakfasts for everybody," the state paying employes' share of Social Security taxes and other spending programs which paint Salinas as an easy man with the taxpayers' bucks.

Tuesday's "taxpayer revolt" in California, Hester believes, is a good omen for a fiscal conservative, especially in Lubbock.

SALINAS NARROWLY defeated Delwin Jones (by just over 100 votes) in their Democratic runoff two years ago, Hester recalls. A young, unknown Republican, Lee Page, got 42 percent of the vote against Salinas in the 1976 general election. Then, in last month's Democratic primary, Salinas was as surprised as anybody when another political novice, Jerry Airhart, got 43 percent of the vote despite a shoestring campaign. "I'm going to knock on doors and I'm going to win," Hester predicts. Having sold his business, the youthful Hester now looks after his investment property, works

'a-bout a week a month for my brother" and has plenty of time to devote to public service. Salinas, who impressed his colleagues in the House favorably last session, goes into the race as the betting favorite-but Democrat President Carter and big-spending inflation could give him a heavy handicap in the home stretch.

Treaties Are Most Com-Pell-ing

in the November race

WASHINGTON-It's been a long while since a man made news by biting a dog, but something far more newsworthy and admirable has been undertaken by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., one of the upper chamber's brightest intellectual orna-

It hasn't been much noticed how unusual it is for an international treaty to originate in the Senate, rather than in the administration, and then become a United Nations Resolution of major

But in mid-May '78, Pell was chairing hearings of a Foreign Relations subcommittee on a Senate Resolution which would, in effect, extend the American policy of Environmental Quality to global size and vigilance.

IF THIS SENATE resolution can find running room in a crowded session, and if it goes on to passage by the UN General Assembly, it will be the third such international treaty for which Claiborne Pell has been responsible-all of them of prime importance to the world. These are Pell

(1) International Environmental Assessment (S. Res. 49) of the present Congress seeks agreement with other UN members to "assess" air-waterland projects for their ultimate impact on the world environment.

It is easier to exemplify from the past than to forecast. For example, when the Suez Canal was dug, there were no marine biologists around to "assess" the mingling of the fish which swam from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean, and the reverse, and which interbred in alien waters. Pell finds that this hybridization among sardines produces a species that is smaller and less commercially attractive.

It is a trivial and irreversible matter, but today we have the technology to look before we leap into large projects. Pell has in mind water-land-air trasportation, energy production from mines, reactors, the sun and the wind.

THE RESULTS NEED not be as disastrous as our crisis-criers like to think. For instance, Pell quotes one optimist futurologist, Herman Kahn, who finds that in another 1000 years, our way of living will support four times the present world population-or about 15 billion persons. The ghastly famine that the pessimists have projected. just won't happen, says Kahn.

The senator's two other treaties are in being, though not often enough accredited to his thoughtfulness. Back in 1972, Pell introduced S. Res. 281, and it became a UN General Assembly

Pell's third international treaty is the one which prohibits the emplacement of nuclear explosives and other "weapons of mass destruction" in the seabed.

As the senator is frank to point out, the UN has no power to enforce these treaties, but there is the stop-and-think inhibition that could lead to consultation.

In the end, the great persuader for peace may be simple self-interest. These treaties have no politics, just common sense.

ing monopolization against an industry leader ev-

Certainly, the folklore that industry giants are impregnable and can never be reached by antitrust suits has been shattered. The vulnerability of big companies is now clear for all to see.

You might say this vindicates the basic American ideal of courts open to all and justice even when the giants are involved. Or you might argue that this destroys the case for more drastic, new legislation to strengthen our antitrust laws to apply to today's giants in industry and in labor, too.

AND YOU MIGHT justifiably wonder whether the results of big damage awards, including three times the loss sustained, if they become more common, will actually help or hurt the public.

If the estimates are on the high side and are multiplied by three in a significant number of suits, cornerstones of U.S. industry could go the way of Penn Central.

If so, they would drag down many small companies with them, because an industry leader uses the services of large numbers of smaller companies and their employes for a variety of supplies, equipment, services and marketing.

A SIMILAR PROBLEM arose at the end of World War II when the courts held for the first time that employers, such as mine owners, had to pay for time needed for employes, once on the company's property, to get to the actual job site before they could begin work.

This, multiplied by a large number of employes over a span of years, with time and a half for overtime, mounted into hundreds of millions of dollars, suddenly owed by the companies in a lump sum.

Congress responded with the Portal-to-Portal Pay Act, saying in effect "enough!" and halting further damage awards of this type

A more flexible approach to antitrust damage awards might hold that when a violation is found, single damages—the amount actually lost—would be awarded instead of automatic tripling of damages in every case. Treble damages would be imposed when and only when the court found deliberate serious violations.

The Brighter Side

Trouble with this world is that most people want to have their cake and eat it too-but they "Simple equity and fairness demand passage of this legislation. It is time that we in Congress bedon't want to have anything to do with the bakgin to live by the same rules we have set for oth-

SO THE "IMPOSSIBLE" has happened. A major industry leader has been successfully sued by a medium-sized company for antitrust damages. Folklore has been challenged. Now questions might be raised as to whether some of our present sanctions at times may be too drastic for our own good. For maximum efficiency, our national economy demands free-wheeling, open and robust competition. But it also makes it essential that we are sure any remedy is not more harmful than the

NOTES ON HEALTH

Medical Detectives Discover 'Death Zones' Around Boston

tives have found "death zones" around Boston - areas where stress seems to have resulted in excessive mortality.

The areas with the highest death rates were Roxbury, with its black population, and South Boston, with its Irish population, both involved in an emotionallycharged school busing confrontation.

Dr. Sanford I. Cohen of Boston University reports that an epidemiological study by his psychiatry department found that residents of those areas had a 50 percent greater chance of dying than those in more affluent, "non-stressed" Boston suburbs.

There's a correlation between Boston's "death zones" and the Black Death of 14th century Europe, Cohen says. Bubonic plague and stress combined to kill far more people than either could alone. The stress came from the demoralizing effect of the disease, from the feeling that the disease was punishment for sins.

Cohen says evidence that emotional states can bring on sudden death was present in primitive societies where a person's belief that he'd been subjected to sorcery could bring on death.

"The terrified victims noted in the primitive society may exist in our cities as well," he says. "The powerlessness and misery experienced by the aborigine is probably also experienced by not only the

We're Getting Heavier

All those slenderizing diets and warnings against being overweight apparently haven't done anything to reduce the number of fatties.

American men and women in most age and height categories are heavier than their counterparts of the early 1960s, reports the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Citing the National Center for Health Statistics, the journal said that, for example, a 5-foot-10 woman, 35 to 44 years old, weighs an average of 13 pounds more than her sister of 15 years ago.

While most average weight gains weren't so great, the differences were significant across the board.

Mountain Of Red Tape Delays Indian School

By DAVE GOLDBERG

SHIPROCK, N.M. (AP) - The pain in the old Navajo's stomach would not subside, even after the medicine man's three-day sing. Now he would ride 75 miles over back country dirt roads to seek the white man's medicine.

The old man spoke only Navajo, and his son translated the words of the young white doctor. You need an operation, the doctor said. Your gall bladder must come out.

But the old man's misunderstanding was deeper than just language No. he would have to consult the medicine man

The doctor's lack of understanding was just as deep, a chasm of centuries and of cultures. Your father needs an operation, he insisted to the son. What is all this medicine man stuff?

Dr. Taylor McKenzie, a Navajo, may be the only man who can bridge the gap. In 1971, he decided the only way to upgrade medical care on reservations would be to create an American Indian School of Medicine to reconcile modern medicine with ancient Indian healing arts and to reconcile both cultures.

Not only is McKenzie the only Navajo physician among the 104 Indian Health Service doctors who serve up to 150,000 Indians, he's the only Navajo among 79 American Indians who practice modern medicine. The anomaly of Taylor McKenzie is the anomaly of medical care on the reservation where old Navajos know no English, where medicine men's instructions often conflict with modern medical advice, where traditional Navajos often assume, when they are admitted to a hospital overnight, that they are undergoing a two-day sing by medicine men

But that isn't all that is holding up an Indian medical school. Nobody concerned with either health care or Indians really questions that the school is needed. and three government-sponsored reports have called the project feasible.

But progress is delayed by jurisdictional problems, long-term funding, accreditation, all of the red tape that emanates from the white man's camp. Even if Congress would approve funds this year, it would be nearly a decade before the school would have significant impact on Navajo health care.

So it is that six years after. McKenzie's dream is still little more than that. All that exists of the school is a converted civic center with a medical library that overlooks Shiprock Peak on the 25,000square-mile reservation in northwestern New Mexico.

There are eight Indian Health Service centers on the reservation that spans rocks, canvons, buttes, mesas, and mountains between High Point, N.M., and Tuba City. Ariz. There are a halfdozen state and federal highways crisscrossing the area, but most Navajos raise sheep and horses and do their weaving in solitude, miles from the nearest neighbor. Until the advent of the four-wheel drive pickup truck, the major form of transportation on the reservation, it was common for Navajos to travel only a few miles in a lifetime.

Many homes are still traditional oneroom mud and stone hogans. More than half have no running water or toilets, and parts of the reservation are still without electricity

That leads to health problems unique in North America. There are a half-dozen cases of bubonic plague reported on the reservation each year. There are occasional cases of diptheria: dysentery and tuberculosis are still common maladies, and the rate of gastroenteritis among Indians is 11 times the national average.

Many doctors on the reservation are simply serving time - a two-year stint with the Public Health Service. And their numbers have fallen since the Vietnam War, when a number of young doctors chose Indian service as an alternative to the draft. Most take a year or more to learn the subtleties of Navajo practices, then leave soon afterwards.

"It's not a matter of not wanting to treat Indians." says a doctor who left the reservation. "It's just that the area is so remote, the living is so austere and the schools are not what we'd want.

The Indian Health Service doctors have difficulty taking the medicine men seriously, although many whites who have lived among Indians say they have seen numerous cures - particularly among those suffering from what non-Indians might call psychosomatic illnesses.

"For those people, it works," says Dr. James Schofield of the Association of American Medical Colleges. "In that culture, with their sense of values, that's McKenzie, who went to Baylor College of Medicine and did his early medical work in Michigan, has worked on the reservation for 16 years. He is deputy director of the Indian Health Service there. and prospective president of the proposed medical school.

But his impact on the community is even greater. Though he no longer practices medicine regularly, many Navajos trust only him for their health problems. and he must spend a great deal of time explaining to people why he can't treat

In late 1971, as the number of doctors volunteering for the Indian Health Service declined. McKenzie and other Navajo leaders decided an Indian medical school was the best way to train home-grown doctors and interested non-Indians who would better relate to reservation Indians and their medical problems. The first feasibility study ensued, under the auspices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. In March 1972, it recommended that work begin to set up the school and that $50,000 be appropriated for each of the next three years for preliminary planning. But the money was never appropriated and the school remained nothing more than an

Four years later, a Carnegie Commission on Higher Education examined proposals for nine medical schools and rec-. ommended that priority be given to two: a school at Morehouse College in Atlanta that would train black doctors and the American Indian School of Medicine.

In the fall of 1976. Congress acted on an Indian Health Care bill, which originally contained a provision creating an American Indian School of Medicine and appropriating $27 million over five years to finance it. The figure was amended to $16 million over three years, then the bill was amended again to delete the medical school and authorize another feasibility

Why a third study? Those familiar with the bill say there was concern that too much money was involved; that support was lacking from other tribes, and that the school would be of low caliber.

We spend $400 million a year for 130 .-000 Navajos. That's a lot f money." says a congressional aide. "Besides, we didn't want to get into inter-tribal politics; there didn't seem to be support from the Ford administration, and we thought it might be vetoed. A feasibility study just... seemed to be the best way to go."

Thwarted again, and more than a little frustrated, the Navajos took matters into ing their own hands. In February 1977, the Navajo Tribal Council approved a charter $100,000. Atcitty says he assumed the for the school under tribal auspices. The "money would be available because at the first step was to continue the search for accreditation begun after the first HEW turned $28 million in unappropriated

Among the many requirements for accreditation by the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges, three are basic:

1. The college must have a source of long-term revenue. 2. It must be affiliated with a recognized university with a strong science 3. It must be affiliated with teaching hospitals. The Indian school tentatively managed the second two. But it did not have the long-term financial guarantee. Pending that, all other things would have to wait. So while awaiting the outcome of the HEW study, it sought funds from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which has managed Indian reservations for more than 100 years. The reasoning was that while HEW handled health care, the BIA was responsible for Indian education. The school was both.

They were a little surprised when we chartered our own school," says Thomas Atcitty, the former president of Navajo Community College who heads the board of trustees of the Navajo foundation running the medical school. "They probably thought these silly Indians wouldn't be foolish enough to go ahead with it. But if we just waited for it, we'd still be wait-

The first request to the BIA was for end of the 1976 fiscal year, the BIA refunds to the Treasury. But the BIA replied there was no money available.

Subsequently, Atcitty was told BIA would coordinate with HEW "in determining which agency can best serve the interests of the American Indian School of Medicine." Nothing was said about

The latest study was completed last Aug. 29 and sent up through channels in HEW. It is still being reviewed, although those involved with it say there is little question about this conclusion: Based upon all factors, an American Indian School of Medicine is needed.'

Meanwhile, the Navajos make their plans from carpeted offices and conference rooms in their converted civic center. It is a rather plush facility. "The Navajos are a little like emerging nations,' says a man who has lived among them for years. "They make sure their top people go first class.

They already have a medical library about 10,000 volumes — and the Indian Health Service's Shiprock Hospital and clinic is about a quarter mile away.

But still there is no school, and the Navajos are resigned to more delay. They have sought foundation funds, but the foundations want to see government money first.

"Without the federal grant, there can be no school," McKenzie says. "There just isn't enough private money floating around to sustain a medical school. People just didn't seem to realize that this was a vicious cycle. The foundations won't commit themselves until they see what the government will do; the federal government said we should deal with the foundations.

Congress will have to deal with other problems. Despite plans by the Navajos to locate the school at Shiprock, the report deliberately avoids recommending any one site. And both congressional and HEW sources question whether the school should be run by one tribe, although the Navajos have support from other Indian groups and plan a board of trustees that represents the national Indian population. Nonetheless, there is some optimism that McKenzie will get the job done.

"We think very highly of Taylor McKenzie," says Schofield, who heads the accreditation team. "He's no Michael DeBakey, but for the Navajos, he's just the right person.'

Navajo Medicine Man Cures Woman

By DAVE GOLDBERG SHIPROCK, N.M. (AP) — Several years ago, a woman prominent in Indian affairs took sick. Doctors on the Navaio reservation couldn't cure her, nor could doctors at Mayo Clinic. But a medicine man did.

Few-people familiar with Navajo life belittle the curative powers of the medicine man. Most have seen numerous instances when they have done what the white man's medicine could not.

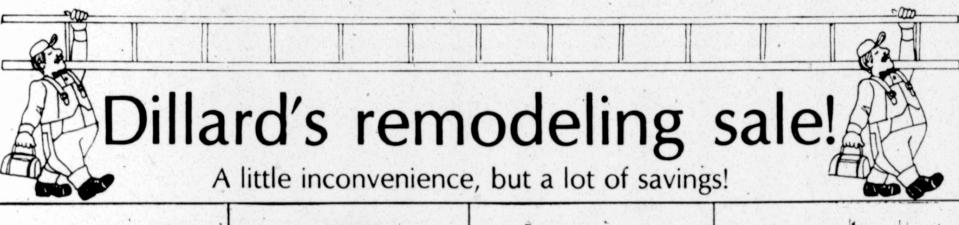

"For these people it works," says Dr. James Schofield of the Association of American Medical Colleges. "In that culture, with their sense of values, that's Navajo Community College has a course that teaches medicine men some elements of modern science, but there is no such thing as teaching them the trade. Medicine men are born, not made.

"It's not a learned thing," says Thomas Atcitty, former president of Navajo Community College and chairman of the board of the prospective American Indian School of Medicine. "It's acquired in some supernatural way. You know when you get it and you know when it's yours to use to benefit your tellow man

Often, but not always, it's a family trait, passed down through the generations, and mastered over a lifetime. The learning begins when boys not yet into their teens make the rounds with the fathers and grandfathers or an older medicine man with whom they have been sent to live. Observing the elder, the young man begins to learn the song. chants and rituals that may take him half his life to master. There are two types of medicine man. one who diagnoses illnesses and one who cures them at a "sing" of one, three, five, seven or nine days' duration.

Even the showcase Tamanskaya division, however, showed a sparer lifestyle than is common for Western troops.

The barracks - newly painted and polished before the reporters visited - were divided into rooms where 60 to 70 beds were lined up in narrow rows of two.

According to a mess hall display, the men receive only 5.3 ounces of meat a day. Even this amount must pose a supply problem in a country where meat is in such shortage that some outlying towns rarely see it. The unusual visit to the Tamanskaya

Division follows just three months after Soviet war games held in Byelorussia to which U.S. and British military observers were invited for the first time since Those observers, who were also per-

Locating Jobs For Displaced Workers Saves Firms Cash

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) - The outplacement techniques that have proved a godsend for displaced executives for the past decade are beginning to be applied for ordinary workers.

A company called Performance Dynamics, Inc., of Parsippany, N.J., active in executive outplacement for a dozen years, is selling a technology for blue collar worker outplacement and has attracted wide interest.

On one day recently, 12 big companies had representatives at Parsippany studying the workings of the plan.

Robert Gerburg, author under the pen name Robert Jameson of The Professiomal Job Changing System," a popular book on outplacement, heads Performance Dynamics. He said while blue collar outplacement still is quite new, his company has had enough experience to demonstrate that many companies can save money practicing it.

Under the Performance Dynamics method, an employee who must be displaced is not fired outright with severance pay, but kept on the payroll until the outplacement department finds him on some workers who are not entitled to much severance pay but it will make money by finding jobs for workers with longer service. Gerburg said.

'Our experience indicates the average cost of outplacement for blue collar workers, including our fee, is under $1.-000," he said, "while the employee might be entitled to $3,000 or $4,000 if he is just kicked out without help.

Of course some workers may refuse outplacement, demand their severance and look for jobs on their own. Or if outplacement fails in an individual case, the worker must be kept on the payroll after stopping work at least long enough to collect the severance pay to which he is enti-

Outplacement of blue collar workers is not a brand new idea, but in the past it has been resorted to only when plants are shut down. Gerburg's company is seeking to apply it to all the vicissitudes that force employment termination. He said blue collar outplacement appears to be cheaper than executive outplacement "It usually costs a company about 15 percent of a displaced executive's annual pay to find him a new job.

British Pension Funds Test U.S. Real Estate

And MYRON KANDEL

Giant British pension funds, which manage hundreds of millions of dollars in assets for nationalized industries and private companies, have been dipping their toes into the water of American real estate and they seem to like the feeling enough to want to get in a little deeper. The result could be an interesting new source of funds for the U.S. commercial real estate market, which is just recovering from a sustained period of drought.

Real estate equity investments are much more common among British pension funds — which have been putting as much as a third of their assets in properties for some years - than among American funds, which began moving into real estate only recently and on a much more modest scale. Most of the British investment has been in the United Kingdom and, to a lesser extent, in Europe, Canada and Australia. But in the last few years, interest has begun to develop in

Not surprisingly, the initial picture here has been mixed, with some investors getting burned in such places as overbuilt Atlanta. But the success of at least one commingled U.S. real estate fund, which has returned substantial yields to its British pension fund participants over the last two years, has encouriged their counterparts on the Continent to take part in similar investments

The testing of the U.S. real estate waters by the British and European pension funds hasn't exactly resulted in a flood of investment here as yet, although interest is continuing to increase. One of the more successful real estate investment vehicles for the British funds is the North American Propérty Unit Trust, whose real estate investment adviser is Schroder Real Estate, a division of J. Henry Schroder Bank and Trust Co. of New York, which is part of the London-based Schroder group

The unit trust - actually a commingled mutual fund that invests in real estate was set up 212 years ago with a total of $10 million invested by eight British pension funds, including those of government-owned London Transport and British Airway and of its two financial advisers and bankers, Samuel Montague & Co. Ltd. and J. Henry Schroder Wagg & Co.

Considering the standing of those two banks in London financial circles, $10 million was a modest initial subscription. Even more modest was the $5 million added a year later when the unit trust opened its books for additional investment. But as the results came in - a hefty net cash yield of 9.2 percent last year - interest quickened. Last June $19 million more was added. A further sub-add an additional $20 million, giving the unit trust a total of $54 million.

The sums already in hand have been invested in such properties as shopping centers in New Orleans, suburban Cincinnati and Las Vegas and office buildings in Dallas suburban Houston Scottsdale. Ariz., and Stamford, Conn. The purchase of an office building on Park Avenue in New York City is due to be closed any day now Schroder Real Estate is also the real es-mutual fund, which got under way last summer with $10 million by 14 pension funds and banks in the Netherlands and France and one private Swiss investor. To Europeans jittery abut the political tate investment adviser to a Dutch-based situation on the continent, the prospectus for the Dutch fund lays inthe line: "It is believed that a major advantage of acquiring U.S. real estate is that it provides a means of participating in one of the most wealthy and politically stable economies in the developed world.

Although the total investment by the British and European pension funds is relatively small by American standards, it ties into a trend that's been developing in commercial real estate in the U.S. - the institutionalization of the market. With projects becoming more and more expensive to build because of high land prices, soaring construction cost and environ longer can afford to hold on to their properties once they're completed, observes Norman Peck, director of Schroder Real Estate. "So more and more are building them to sell," he says. "At the same time, financial institutions are no longer content with merely providing long-term mortgages with fixed rates of interest They're looking for equity participations. a piece of the action to keep pace with inflation.

The increasing cost of new construction, adds Charles Grossman, executive vice president of the Schroder division, is making existing buildings relatively more valuable. We're going to see U.S. buildings rise in value at a much higher rate than in the past." he contends. "British funds that are willing to look at their investments from a 12-to-15 year perspective can see some extraordinary potential returns. They're interested in current income, which is better here than they get back home, but the long-term potential growth is what really interests them. (c) 1978, Enterprise Features

eniremen Decide Mormon Will Not Written By Howard Hughes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - The handwritten words that would have made a gas station attendant a millionaire have been rendered worthless because a jury concluded that Howard Hughes didn't write them.

The unanimous decision showed the jurors did not believe the strange story told by Melvin Dummar, the once obscure Utah man who said he met Hughes as a hitchhiker, helped him out and won a bequest of some $10 million.

The five men and three women of the jury, who heard seven months of testimony in the complex trial, spent 11 hours in deliberations before reaching their decision Thursday night.

In a hushed, packed courtroom, the verdict was unsealed and read:

Army Accused Of Using Force In Charity Drives

WASHINGTON (AP) - Three members of the United States Army band accuse the Army of forcing soldiers to contribute to the government's charity drive and of threatening to revoke privileges if they didn't.

They charge that last October the Army posted a list of non-contributors that included their names and those of 62 others, thereby violating the privacy act. And, they say, there was other pressure to make contributions they desired not to make for personal, moral, religious or political reasons.

TASA is a member of the Texas School Administrators Council, a coalition of nine school management organization.

Webb says that during the next year, TASA will work to develop a "comprehensive awareness program" to educate the general public, as well as school employees, about the "negative impact of collective bargaining by public school employees in other states" and to train school administrators in better communications skills.

action suit filed by the band members in U.S. District Court Thursday. The soldiers, all stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., ask damages of at least $1,000 for each of the 65 in the class.

The secretaries of the Army and of Defense were named as defendants. There was no comment immediately from their spokesmen.

The complaint says the Army Band is so eager to announce 100 percent participation in the Combined Federal Campaign that it faked contributions from people who chose not to make any.

Non-contributors were threatened that it would not be worthwhile for a member of the service to consider making the Army his or her career unless he or she chose to participate in CFC," the complaint says.

It alleges that the practice exists throughout the Army.

Melvin Dummar To Go Back To Driving Truck

OGDEN: Utah (AP) - Melvin Dummar was dancing to the "Tennesee Waltz" with his wife, Bonnie, when he heard the Mormon Will which named him a beneficiary to millions had been declared a forgery by a jury in Las Vegas,

"I'm lost like I was two years ago," said the 34-year-old former gas station operator and father of five.

He referred to the controversy that engulfed him in April 1976, when the purported will of the late Howard Hughes was discovered in the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Mormon Church

"I was kind of numb when I heard. Dummar said. "The jury didn't believe it. I still believe it because it's true.

Dummar said he would be back at work today. "We won't be taking any long vacations now," he said.

When the handwritten document was first discovered. Dummar denied any knowledge of how it got there. He said then that he had given a ride in 1967 to a hitchhiker he thought was "a bum" claiming to be Hughes. He said he gave the man a quarter and dropped him off at a Las Vegas hotel.

But Dummar, who now drives a beer truck, later admitted in court he had not told the truth about the document. He testified that on April 27, 1976, a stranger delivered an envelope to his gas station with instructions to take it to the church

Dummar said he steamed open the en-control of it so there's not much I can do about it. So I'm just planning to go on working like I have been.

The winners in the decision were four Hughes cousins who contested the purported will, which did not name them as

James Dilworth, the Texas lawyer who represented the relatives, said: "The probate of the estate will continue much as it has. I'm happy this is over.' Although Dilworth contends the will was forged, he said he did not know who wrote it. "I don't know who the forger was. If I did I'd have had him up on the witness stand singing like a bird.

The jury told Clark County District Judge Keith Hayes the vote was unanimous. The jurors declined immediate comment on their decision.

The verdict ended a trial that featured testimony from 59 witnesses and depositions from another 35. The star witness was Dummar, 34, who wept on the witness stand and insisted he had not forged the will

Dummar admitted he had lied more times than he could remember about the stranger-than-fiction events that led to discovery of the will. "I just thought the whole world wouldn't believe the truth, what really happened," he testified.

The truth, he said, was that in December 1967 he picked up a bruised, disheveled man in the Nevada desert near a brothel, left him in Las Vegas, loaned him some change and was suprised to hear him declare he was Howard Hughes.

On April 5, 1976. Hughes died aboard a plane bringing him from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston for medical treatment. On April 27. Dummar said, a mysterious stranger delivered an envelope to his gas station with instructions to take it to Mormon headquarters in Salt Lake City. Dummar said he steamed it open, read it, resealed it and dropped it at the church. Later, he denied any knowledge of how it got there. "I was scared," Dummar said later, "I was scared that I'd opened something that wasn't mine - that I was in a will of Howard Hughes

The trial, held in a courthouse surrounded by gambling casinos, was a big gamble for Rhoden who said at one point he had invested $500,000 of his own money in the case.

The absence of an authenticated Hughes will leaves his estate in disarray. Its worth has been conservatively estimated at $169 million, but some believe it may be as much as $2.5 billion

Dummar said he steamed it open, read it, resealed it and dropped it at the church. Later, he denied any knowledge of how it got there.

"I was scared," Dummar said later, "I was scared that I'd opened something that wasn't mine - that I was in a will of Howard Hughes.

The trial, held in a courthouse surrounded by gambling casinos, was a big gamble for Rhoden who said at one point he had invested $500,000 of his own monev in the case.

The absence of an authenticated Hughes will leaves his estate in disarray. Its worth has been conservatively estimated at $169 million, but some believe it may be as much as $2.5 billion.

Budget Cutting Not Easily Done

NEW YORK (AP) - The flip side of the coin demonstrates that things are more easily said than done, more readily proposed than enacted, more easily advocated than accomplished.

- President Carter proclaims the need to restrain inflation. But what will the President do to reduce the deficit which many economists claim is the windmill of inflation? What gets cut? How much?

Merrill Lynch Economics estimates that the $45 billion deficit for fiscal 1977, which ended last September, will grow to $59 billion in the current year and to $70

Federal Penitentiary Under Investigation

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) - The federal penitentiary at Lewisburg is under investigation for alleged violence by prison

Several prisoners claimed they were beaten by guards wielding ax handles in an April 14 incident.

The U.S. Justice Department's civil rights division is investigating the charges, according to press officer John Wilson, and the U.S. Prison Bureau is also looking into the incident.

Texas Lawmakers Hear Message Of Taxpayers

Avalanche-Journal Staff U.S. Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock all see federal significance in the passage of drastic property tax cuts by California voters earlier this week.

'I think it's sending all levels of government a message," Bentsen said."I got that message in '76 when I walked the streets of small towns (in his re-election campaign). People were fed up with over-regulation and too much government. I particularly heard it from the small business people.

Bentsen said he has been trying to get cago to Laredo dropped because of what he was told by voters two years ago.

"I think we're just going to have to cut down on some of these government things," he said. "That means some jobs, and that means that some of the people think they ought to have that passenger train going. The trouble is that they don't ride, and it won't pay its own way.'

Asked if he thinks people are becoming more willing to accept fewer services as government cuts expenses, the Houston Democrat said, "I think the pendulum is swinging more and more that way."

Jury Gives Juarez Probated Sentence

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Casimiro Juarez, convicted of voluntary manslaughter as the result of the death of a 7-month-old baby, was assessed a five-year probated sentence by a jury here today.

The seven-woman, five-man 72nd District Court jury deliberated about an hour before returning to announce the probated punishment.

Juarez, a tall, dark-haired 23-year-old who is described by authorities as an illegal alien, wept with happiness and relief when he realized he would not be sentenced to prison.

The defendant's parents - who reportedly journeyed from Mexico to attend the trial - also wept in the aftermath of the jury decision.

The range of punishment for voluntary manslaughter is from two to 20 years. Juarez was accused of causing the Dec. 22, 1977, death of infant Miranda Ann Ra-

Star witness for the state was Alma Ramirez, 19, the infant girl's mother.

Miss Ramirez accused Juarez, her former lover, of throwing the baby five times to a thin mattress on floor of the trailer house the couple shared near Canvon Gin Dec. 19.

Prosecutors contended alleged injuries suffered by the baby led to her death three days later.

One of the more dramatic moments in the trial came when court-appointed defense attorney Albert Perez, using a doll as a prop, asked Miss Ramirez to demonstrate to jurors how Juarez allegedly had thrown her now dead baby to the floor of the trailer house

"Okay. Pretend you're Casimiro - pretend you're coming in drunk," Perez said, handing the attractive brunette witness the doll.

Miss Ramirez held the doll by its back waist high, then slammed it to the floor, with the doll appearing to land horizontally on its stomach and head

She picked it up and slammed it down four more times.

"Just like that?" Perez asked. Just like that snapped.

Miss Ramirez claimed that Juarez had come home "stone drunk" about 2 a.m. Dec. 19 and abused her before allegedly injuring the baby She indicated there were no visible no reason to lie.

unusual happening Dec. 19. He indicated he was mystified by the baby's condition Dec. 22 and was eager for an autopsy to be performed so he could learn the reason for the baby's death.

Perez assailed Miss Ramirez' credibility during final jury arguments.

He alluded to the manner in which Miss Ramirez had thrown down the doll during the earlier demonstration. "Yet there were no visible injuries, not even a bloody nose. Be reasonable." he said.

Noting that, according to her testimony, Miss Ramirez had not contacted local relatives between Dec. 19 and Dec. 22, Perez opined that "something's not

He suggested the theory that perhaps the baby had been dropped on its head, as consistent with the testimony of a pathologist, but by someone other than the defendant and without the defendant's knowledge.

Perez also pointed out that Juarez had remained in Lubbock until his detention Jan. 12 even though he knew an autopsy was being performed on the dead baby.

The defense pointed out Miss Ramirez by her own admission had lied in the first statement she gave police that the baby had been thrown to the floor rather than a thin mattress, and contended prosecutors had not proved a case beyond a reasonable doubt.

Prosecutor Rick Howell also referred to the courtroom theatrics with the doll in final argument

Unfortunately for Miranda Ann Ramirez. Casimiro Juarez was not using a rag doll," he said.

Asking for a murder conviction, Howell wanted to believe. He told jurors there had been no evidence indicating Miss Ramirez had ever been under suspicion in connection with her baby's death.

against U.S. Rep. Robert Krueger, said the public could demand a reduction in spending just as it successfully opposed the mandatory buckling of seatbelts in cars and the banning of saccharin.

"The action by the people of California is a clear mandate to the federal government that spending must be curtailed," Tower said."It is that appetite for deficit spending, primarily by Washington, which is the central cause of inflation. That appetite can be squelched provided there is a unified voice among the citizens of this country that can be heard in Washington. This has happened before, and it can happen again.

"I might note that after 102 years, California has now caught up with the Texas Constitution, which in 1876 prohibited deficit budgets in our state," the senior Republican senator added.

Mahon sees possible new pressure for federal support of state and local governments if property taxes are cut nationwide and people demand that prior services be maintained at the same level.

People rebelled against high real estate taxes," Mahon said. "This means to me that this could even be the beginning of a trend nationwide toward reducing (government) income from real estate.

States and local communities require a lot of services of one kind and another. Services might be restricted, and local governments might have to go elsewhere to get the money. This could mean increased pressure on Washington for more and more contributions to the states and local communities.

They'll want the services that these high taxes bought," the House Appropriations Committee chairman said, "and they'll be looking to Washington, I'm afraid, for relief.

"This business in California could add to the momentum of looking to Washington for the solution to all our problems. Washington does not have the solution to all our problems.

Mahon said, however, that he considers it healthy for government officials and the public to ponder the question of what government should do as opposed to how much it can afford and how much tax the public can bear.

The fact is that local real estate taxes are high everywhere," he said. "All taxes are high and are becoming increasingly burdensome, and the American people have got to face up to whether or not they want to make a major effort to hold down the cost of government at all levels. To do that will require some restraint and sacrifice.

There has been talk for some years about a tax rebellion. I think it's healthy for the public and officials of the government to ponder this problem. We can't just go on indefinitely increasing expenditures, raising taxes and increasing the

Investigation Of Travel Program Set

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is investigating whether a trade group representing travel agents tried to get airlines to boycott an innovative proposal that would make it more convenient to buy airline tickets.

Under a Postal Service proposal, a traveler would call the airline to make a reservation, as often happens now. The flight information would then be transmitted electronically to the post office, where a ticket would be printed and delivered with the next day's mail.

It is designed to save the consumer from having to pick up a ticket in adv-

The trouble is that no airline is willing to use the program, which is strongly opposed by the American Society of Travel Agents, the largest industry group. Travel agents, who now receive a commission of at least 7 percent on the tickets they write, presumably would lose business because of the electronic-mail ticketing

The Civil Aeronautics Board is conducting an "informal investigation" into whether the travel agents' group tried to get airlines to boycott the proposal, CAB attorney Bryan Yolles said Thursday.

The informal investigation means that the CAB is interviewing airline officials and travel agents, but has not subpoenaed any documents, Yolles said.

The Federal Trade Commission also has looked into the subject, but an FTC official said the agency now is deferring to the CAB investigation.

Asked for reaction, Richard P. Ramaglia, executive vice-president of the travel agents' group, said: "It is totally without truth to say that ASTA conducted any boycott. We welcome any inquiry because we know it will confirm that."

He said the ASTA opposition has been based on questions of whether the Postal Service proposal is unfair competition with private businesses.

Braniff Airways is the only carrier the Postal Service has been able to get to try the program. As a six-month test was ending early this year, Braniff said it wanted to expand the test, but then abruptly canceled the whole program.

Braniff said then that the technical feasibility of the program had been proven but that questions remained about eco-

DEADLY DEBRIS - Officials of Research-Cottrell construction firm look over mangled debrfis of construction framework shortly after it collapsed at St. Marys, W.Va., last April. WASHINGTON (AP) - Six weeks after 51 men died when a scaffold collapsed at a West Virginia power plant cooling tower, federal safety officials say they have not inspected two other cooling towers now being built, one of them in that "I don't have enough resources (inspectors)," says Eula Bingham, head of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, which accused a contractor Thursday of "willful" federal safety rule violations that allegedly contributed to the 51 deaths.

It's an impossible task for 1,500 federal inspectors to regularly check the nation's five million workplaces, she said.

"I can predict, for example, that a refinery in this country is probably going to blow up sometime within the next six months. That's not a bad prediction based upon what we've had," she said. 'I'd like to get out there, but I don't have the resources.

OSHA cited the cooling tower's builder Research-Cottrell, for 16 violatons, 10 of them willful. The agency, which also proposed $105,100 in fines against the firm. linked three willful violations to the collapse of the scaffold.

A willful violation means an employer either intentionally violated a safety rule or was aware of a life-threatening hazard but made no reasonable effort to correct it, Miss Bingham said.

In issuing the citations, OSHA said it is considering whether to ask the Justice Department to bring criminal charges against the firm:

Research-Cottrell, based in Bound Brook, N.J., called the citations "unjustified" and said it would contest them.

In the aftermath of the scaffold collapse. Research-Cottrell has shut down three other cooling towers under construction in Pennsylvania, Alabama and Ohio, said Miss Bingham.

But work is continuing by other companies on towers in Port Gibson, Miss., and New Haven, W.Va., 50 miles from the site of the Willow Island disaster, OSHA

Crop Acreage Signup Will Exceed Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) - It will be another two weeks before the Agriculture Department has final figures on the farmer signup in this year's acreage programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton.

But preliminary figures have shown for some time that participation will be more than enough to exceed the Carter administration's goal of taking 22 million acres from crop production this year.

Through May 31, the final day of the signup period, farmers agreed to idle about 23.3 million acres of land under the set aside and diversion programs affecting the crops

Stewart N. Smith, associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said this week that the signup figures through May 31 did not include applications that county offices were unable to complete by the deadline. Thus, an undetermined number of farmers were asked to register at county offices to indicate that they intended to enroll in the acreage programs. Those will have through June 15 to complete their paperwork and a final report will be issued on June 20, Smith said. The May 31 figures, which represented the final official week of the signup which began March 1, showed that 1.19 million farms were enrolled, 51.5 percent of about 2.3 million eligible for par-

Although just barely a majority of the farms, the ones signed up account for almost three-fourths of the total eligible crop acreage. Smith said

The latest figures showed that more than 9.4 million acres were designated to be idled under the wheat program and almost 6.9 million acres under the feed grain program.

Those figures represent acreage that farmers have to set aside from production in order to qualify for the federal

In addition, feed grain producers have agreed to divert from production a further 5.2 million acres and cotton producers 515,399 acres for which they will get government payments. Wheat producers have agreed to use more than 1.3 million acres of their crop for livestock grazing or hay for which they also will get payers in 14 states will be able to use five experimental pesticides this year if they follow specified rules on the way the chemicals are applied to their fields.

The Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday that the pesticides, which have not been registered for general use, "could save cotton growers between $20 million and $40 million in damage from cotton bollworm and budworm caterpillars" this season.

Four of the five products were approved for use on cotton last year, the agency said. The fifth, Curacron 6 E. was not approved in 1977 because "not enough was known then about its toxici-

States receiving permission to use the pesticides are Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

The EPA said it will require that states authorize individual farmers and applicators to buy and use the experimental products and that those should contact local agricultural extension

Carter Beef Import Plan Called Bad For Future

GLENMONT, N.Y. (AP) - President Carter's plan to import more beef into the country was criticized Thursday by the New York Farm Bureau, which said the move ultimately would lead to higher meat prices.

"President Carter's decision to increase beef imports will cause substantial increases in meat prices in the future. particularly in the early 1980s, while not resulting in any price decline this year." said a spokesman for the organization. Richard McGuire, president of the 20,-000-member group, predicted the psy-chological impact of the Carter plan on beef producers would be catastrophic.

A 200-MILLION POUND RISE in U. S. meat imports is considered insignificant by major livestock industry analysts.

The decision by President Carter to increase imports is "a cowardly act in the interest of political expediency," National Cattlemen's Association vice president Bill Jones told Reuters.

"It's a cruel hoax on consumers because this will not lower retail prices." Jones said. The move could force prices even higher as producers may become frustrated and hesitant to rebuild herds. The liquidation phase may continue and prices may be forced higher as beef supplies become even tighter, he said. NATIONAL LIVE STOCK AND MEAT BOARD president David Stroud agreed that cattlemen may not proceed with plans for a long-term herd buildup.

'Out of disgust, they may continue liquidation," Stroud said. "False hopes are being planted in the public sector," Stroud said, "since retail beef prices will not be reduced. "It's absurd to believe this will have a significant effect on retail prices," he said, noting that the 200 million pounds accounts for less than 1 percent of annual U. S. beef production. While it is generally felt that raising import quotas by 200 million pounds is too small an amount to affect prices, American Meat Institute economist Ewen Wilson said there is a need for the lean type of beef which is exported by New Zealand and Australia.

"However, 200 million pounds may not be enough to satisfy this need," he

THE LIFTING OF BEEF IMPORT QUOTAS was a political mistake in 1973 and is similarly ill-advised today, former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz

Butz said Carter's decision will not motivate cattlemen to build their herds. He said he believes cattlemen will continue to liquidate herds. The continued liquidation, he said, would be a detriment to both consumers and the cattle industry. Butz said the import move is more evidence of the White House's dominance over USDA. "I think it is a symbolic slap in the face to our cattlemen." he said. He added that,"it won't make that much difference economically. It's more cosmetic than

Farmers Headed For Good Year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Barring a sudden catastrophe, farmers generally appear to be headed for a good year.

Such optimism must be tempered by certain qualifications. Agriculture is not homogeneous in its production or its financial rewards and penalties.

But neither is the U.S. industrial sector, the business community or family planning. So care must be taken by economists and others when describing the economic outlook for agriculture. keeping in mind that weather here and abroad can make the best forecasters book like losers.

The Agriculture Department periodically makes moderate-range forecasts based on the information and probabilities available at a certain time. The most recent analysis points to 1978 as being the best financially for farmers in a long

Although many other factors are involved, two are most important in talking about prospective farm income: production of agricultural commodities and prices that farmers get for them. A third important factor involves costs of production.

The responsibility for issuing such forecasts lies with the department's World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board. Last week the board published a preliminary report which included a new forecast that retail food prices this year will go up an average of 8 to 10 percent instead of the 6 to 8 percent it indicated on March 28. Prior to that, the food price forecast was for an increase of 4 to 6 percent this year.

The analysis said that "50 to 60 percent of the rise" in this year's food prices would be due to higher farm prices, with larger middleman expenses accounting for most of the remainder of

Also, the report said, net farm income this year now is expected to be in the range of $25 billion to $26 billion, up from $20.4 billion in 1977. If so, net farm income this year would be the third largest on record, exceeded by the record of $29.9 billion in 1973 and $27.7 billion in

The main reasons for the unexpected climb in food prices include the smaller supply of beef and pork than had been indicated last winter, damage to some vegetable crops and an upturn in foreign demand for some key farm commodities such as soybeans, cotton and grain.

Viewed as a group, farm prices have climbed steadily since last fall, including a gain of 3 percent in May.

The board's preliminary report included charts of figures computed by quarters for calendar 1978. In the case of aggregate farm prices, for example, those were converted to index numbers which used 1967 as a base year.

In 1977, farm prices averaged an index reading of 183 percent of the 1967 base. including an average of 179 percent in the fourth quarter of last year.

The farm price average in the first quarter of 1978 was 193 percent, showing that the index continued to gain through the first three months of this year.

Looking at the second quarter of this year - April, May and June - the analvsis projected the farm price index at 210 percent of the 1967 base, indicating a further increase. The third quarter index was put still higher at 214 percent. Not until the fourth quarter, with an index reading of 207 percent, are farm prices as a group expected to decline apprecia-

For all of 1978, the report said, the index of prices received by farmers is expected to average about 206 percent of the base, compared with 183 for 1977.

The "prices received" category was broken into two parts which included index forecasts for crops and livestock and livestock products. The livestock price index for all of 1977 averaged 175 percent of the base year and crops 192 per-

Looking at 1978 by quarters, the livestock price index - which includes prices for dairy, poultry and other animal-related products - is climbing significantly faster than the price index for

In the first quarter of this year, for example, the livestock price index climbed to 195 percent against 192 for crops. Projections for the remainder of this year included: second quarter 214 percent for livestock and 205 for crops: third 225 and 201; and fourth 221 and

Those indicated that USDA experts expect livestock prices to continue rising collectively through September, on a quarterly basis, and then decline slightly in the final three months of this year.

Crop prices, meanwhile, are expected to gain through June on a quarterly basis before leveling off and then dipping appreciably in the last three months of 1978 as this year's harvests are gathered.

For all of 1978, however, the livestock price index is forecast to average 214 percent of the 1967 base year, compared with 175 percent in 1977. Crop prices for the year were forecast at 197 percent against 192 in 1977.

As with all USDA economic forecasts, the figures are subject to later revision. Although they should not be taken as absolute indicators, farmers and others can get-an idea of general price trends expected by department experts for the renainder of 1978.

One of the major unknowns, of course, is production, and the report did not include index projections for 1978 crop and livestock output. It did. however, include forecasts of the dollar value of farm sales or "cash receipts" from mar-ketings of livestock and crops this year. Following the trends in livestock and crop prices, total cash receipts collected by farmers this year was forecast at a record of $106 billion. up from $95 billion in 1977. This year's receipts from the sale of livestock were projected at $57 billion and crops $49 billion, compared with $47.4 billion and $47.6 billion, respectively, in 1977. Gross receipts, including government payments and other farm income, were projected at around $119 billion against $106.1 billion last Production expenses this year were projected at another record of about $93 billion against $85.7 billion in 1977, according to the analysis.

Cattle Futures Rally From Early Losses

By Reuters

CHICAGO - On a rally from early losses of 77 points, live cattle futures ended 55 to 142 higher Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The December option led the advance. Volume was estimated at 26,432 con-

Aggressive support was uncovered after prices fell to their lowest points since April, off seven cents from the highs, on continuing effects of the increased meat import quota. Good commission house buying at the end found few offerings.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 89 1/2 to 91 cents per pound, a two-week low. Cash cattle were steady to off $2 per hundredweight with the top at $61. Thursday's kill was estimated at 133.

000 head. The six markets expect 4,050 head to arrive today. Feeder cattle futures recovered from an early loss of 110 points and ended 30 to 50 stronger led by October. The advance ran to 70 points for a time in January on short covering and other buying. Sales totaled 2.957 contracts. Early selling carried over from

Wednesday's limit losses on meat import news along with sharp declines in cash feeder cattle. However, support was attracted after prices fell to one-month lows, down $7.75 per hundredweight recently Cash feeder cattle were steady to off

$6 with the top at $74 per hundredweight in Oklahoma City. The six terminals expect 1.825 head to arrive today. Hog futures closed 65 points lower to

25 higher on 10,409 exchanges. August was off the limit of 150 points the second day in a row early in the session. February climbed as much as 50 points. The market rallied at times on higher cattle futures but resistance continued on heavy hog runs and sharply lower cash hogs along with limit down belly futures.

21/2 cents at 78 to 793/4 cents per pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to $2 with the top at $51 per hundredweight in Peoria.

Slaughter was estimated at 288,000 head. The six markets expect 20,300 receipts today. Pork belly futures (bacon) tumbled 140 to the limit of 200 points led by March at the limit for the third consecutive day. The market was lower all session and most contracts were limit down early. New season's lows were set in all 1979

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off six cents at 56 cents asked to 611/2 cents per pound, f.o.b. river, lowest since Jan-contracts.

CHICAGO (AP) - Soybean and oats futures managed slight gains on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, but wheat and corn failed to hold midsession gains and closed mostly lower.

There was some continuation of sovbean liquidation from the previous session followed by a large sell by a commission house. Prices turned lower but rebounded on active buying by another commission house.

Wheat prices also moved up in midsession but turned weaker as weather conditions in Texas and Oklahoma continued to cause delays in the winter wheat har-

Rain the the Midwest was bearish on corn as much of the planting has been completed. Country selling of corn and soybeans was reported very light.

On Saturday morning, the scientists in Houston will continue trying to alter the huge, 85-ton space station's position and extend its orbital life for perhaps another

If the maneuver fails, Skylab could plunge to its destruction as early as next January, breaking up in the atmosphere and possibly scattering large chunks of debris over a 3,000-mile swath.

The fear is that some of the pieces could hit populated areas, although space officials say that chance is remote.

"Can you imagine a 300-pound piece of metal plunging out of space into the Super Bowl?" asked one observer.

There currently are some 4,500 manmade objects in space and most eventually will fall out of orbit, burning up harmlessly as they plunge into the earth's at-

But when the Soviet Union's nuclearpowered Cosmos 954 satellite made a fiery re-entry last Jan. 24, bits of radioacarea of Canada's remote Northwest Territories. The incident, while causing no injuries or property damage, did arouse international concern.

Scientists have been making a major effort this week to extend the life of Skylab, the world's largest man-made satellite which the United States launched five years ago.

These have been preludes to the maneuver planned for Saturday, which key members of Congress will be watching

At 7:31 a.m., a team of 15 men led by flight controller Bill Peters will send a radio signal to Skylab from the same control center that was a hub of activity during the Apollo moon flights and when Skylab was inhabited by three different astronaut crews in 1973 and 1974.

If all goes well, the craft will be flying parallel to the earth, small end forward. If the signal doesn't work, there will be no further attempts to prolong the station's flight.

There will be a few hours of tense waiting to see if the maneuver works. If it does, there will be a collective sigh of relief throughout the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for it would reduce the atmospheric drag slowly pulling Skylab toward earth and could add as much as a year to its life in orbit.

That would give astronauts a chance to fly up to the abandoned spacecraft late next year and attach a small rocket to it. The rocket could be used to boost Skylab into a higher orbit, where it would stay several years, and perhaps be reinhabited. Or it could be used to guide the station to an atmospheric re-entry, breaking up over a remote ocean area.

The astronauts can't make the rescue attempt before October, 1979, because the space shuttle, the new reuseable manned spaceship, won't be ready for such a journey until then. The shuttle is slated for its maiden orbital flight in June next year.

Even if Saturday's maneuver is successful. Skylab's two gyroscopes must continue to operate if it is to remain in its new position. If not, the craft would shift in relation to the earth and its death plunge would be hastened.

Members of the House Appropriations Committee will be following the activity in Houston to see if they should approve the $20.5 million needed to develop the rocket the astronauts would attach to Skylab.

The committee recently rejected the financing, saying it did not believe the shuttle could be ready in time to accomplish its mission. But members said they might change their minds if Saturday's maneuver works

What concerns NASA is Skylab's size. It is 118 feet long and 22 feet in diameter. with the volume of a three-bedroom house. While much of its aluminum skin and other soft metal parts would burn up from atmospheric friction during re-entry, scientists say the fuel tanks and structural girders of steel and titanium might partially survive and strike the Computer calculations indicate that when Skylab dives into the atmosphere it could spew pieces over a track 3,000 miles long and 100 miles wide.

Possibly as many as 400 pieces, some weighing as much as 300 pounds, might survive the searing heat of re-entry and

The scope of the operation was not known, but the witnesses indicated it was extensive. Rebel leaders have said many insurgents stayed behind in the bush and will regroup for new attacks.

The government apparently was worried that the population of Lubumbashi and other towns in Shaba was sympathetic, if not actively involved with the rebel-

Prices to producers for their cattle have been increasing at an even greater rate, and neither spiral is expected to be reversed until sometime next year, if

The increases stem from cattle producers' reactions to devastating losses in 1974, losses that have been repeated for 15 of the last 23 three-month periods.

They have been sharply culling herds to get profits back into their business profits which just began reappearing this spring. Carter said those profits will continue despite his import decision, which was roundly criticized in advance this week by farm groups and congressmen. Carter said the added imports of lean, grass-fed beef "will not change the price of fat cattle at all.

"It will certainly not hurt the farmers who produce beef, but it will be of great help to consumers," the president said. Stretching the import chute, now held just below 1.3 billion pounds a year, would put less than one pound more beef per American into the basic supply of an estimated 23.9 billion pounds produced by U.S. ranchers and feedlot operators. The prices of steak, roasts and the other cuts that make up about 70 percent of the beef on meat counters aren't expected to be affected. Carter said. Hours before, Bergland had told a Senate appropriations subcommittee the action was "a little dinky dab (that) will have no profound effect on the consumer price index: ... But inflation has to be fought in little dabs.

Fact sheets distributed with the announcement projected an average beef price this year of between $1.60 a pound and $1.70 a pound, far above the 1975 re-cord of $1.46. Preliminary figures for current markets show a range of $1.62 to

Just Tuesday, the Agriculture Department, for the third time in six weeks, raised its retail beef-price estimates, this $1.66 a pound

The farm-group and congressional critics unanimously say Carter's decision will anger and discourage ranchers and feeders plus delay the rebuilding of herds, aggravating the retail-price pinch. They said the government never cuts imports when cattle prices slump. When ex-President Richard M. Nixon took the same step in 1973, beef boycotts and price controls followed in a few months. Many farmers cite that as the basis for a profound distrust of the federal government. But Texan Robert Strauss, Carter's chief inflation fighter, said that ranchers Experimental work at the university supports the theory that the high intestinal cancer rate in the U.S. may be linked to the 80 percent decrease during the past century of consumption of fiber, such as wheat bran, in the average diet, the school said recently.

The work has been conducted by Steven K. Clinton, doctoral student in nutritional science and research assistant in the School of Basic Medical Sciences. Clinton was assisted by C. He said wheat bran prevents exposure of intestinal cells to certain cancer-causing substances. The university research is now concerned with examining the protective capacity of a variety of fiber sources from vegetables, fruits and grains. Also being examined are various carcinogens cancer-causing substances), and how much fiber is needed for protection.

In the experiments, fiber constituted 10 percent of the diet. Clinton said fiber appears to protect intestinal cells by removing foreign substances such as carcinogens produced by charbroiling. He said that according to research done in 1964 at the Chicago Medical School, a large, well-done steak carries into the intestines carcinogens equivalent to those carried into the lungs by the smoke from 600 cigarettes.

Meteorite Fragment Holds Key To Solar Origins, Experts Say

HOUSTON (UPI) - Three experts have taken their first look at an unusually well-presevered meteorite fragment found in the antarctic and pronounced it a very rare type likely to give clues to the origins of the solar system.

"I think we are quite confident it is a carbonaceous chondrite," said Dr. Elbert King of the University of Houston. "The question now is which type."

King, Dr. Carleton Moore of Arizona State University and Dr. Everett Gibson of Johnson Space Center examined the charcoal-like fragment about the size of a tangerine through a microscope. The sample was moved in a sealed container from the lunar science laboratory's freezer where it has been kept since arrival

A more detailed analysis of the meteorite will be made by Dr. Brian Mason at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. Mason is regarded as the leading expert on carbonaceous chondrites, a carbon-rich space rock of which only a halfdozen have ever been found.

The fragment examined and a sister fragment believed also to be a carbonaceous chondrite were among 310 fragments found during the antarctic summer last December and January by a-U.S.-Japanese team lead by Dr. William Cassidy of the University of Pittsburgh. At the time Cassidy tentatively pronounced the samples carbonaceous chon-drites but said scientists with more expertise in the field needed to make a definite determination. He used the same type containers used to preserve Apollo lunar samples to return them to the United States. Cassidy said he was excited about the find because materials are better preserved for long periods of time in the freeze-dried antarctic environment. Carbon is a key element to life.

"I don't think it's a question of (minerals) evolving into life. It's a question of whether the complex organic molecules to help form the building blocks of living material were present that early in the solar system," Cassidy said.

DR. LAMB

Sterility In Men

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I need to know at what age a man becomes sterile if ever, or is his sperm always able to produce children. I'm in my change of life and my future husband is 66. Let me know if I need to take anything at this stage. I'd rather not raise any more children.

DEAR READER - There is no specific cut-off date for men that can apply to all cases. The Russians claim that one of the men that they have studied for aging was still potent and produced viable sperm cells at age

To give you more information on this I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Since many older men do father children I would suggest that you use precautions until you are certain you yourself are no longer able to become pregnant. That usually means at least one year after you have stopped having menstrual periods after your menopause; some suggest two years for even greater security.

You can check with your doctor in your individual case to make sure that you have completed the menopause and are no longer apt to get pregnant before you throw caution to the wind.

DEAR DR. LAMB - About two years ago my wife and I started having a "staph infection." The infection appears as boils and they interchange their position from one arm pit to the other. The boils do come and go about every six weeks. We have done all we can do within our power to control it. No medications seem to

Now my wife, who has a tendency to blame me for anything that goes wrong and not to praise me for anything that goes right, says that she really hates me and that she gets the boils from me. She worsened the whole situation by saying without shame that there would be no more sex because having sex with me would bring on the boils. I nearly committed suicide. I do not know how we can have a baby without sex. That's also one of our problems. Can you tell me what causes these infec-tions and what we can use to cure it.

DEAR READER - Staph infections are caused by the staphyococcal bacteria. These bacteria invade the root of the hair and start a little infection which turns into a boil. You will need medical guidance to help control it because once a staph infection has invaded a home it persists.

We all have some forms of staphylococcal organisms on our skin but fortunately our skin has sufficient protective barriers to help us out and they're often not the kind that set up

It's absolutely essential that in the presence of a staph infection that you do not exchange towels or washcloths. These can easily become contaminated with the bacteria. Your doctor should be able to culture the bacteria and fino out which antibiotics will help control it. With proper skin care and antibiotics you may be able to control the infection.

Infection has no relationship to sexual activity. The problem here, as suggested by your letter, is your basic relationship with your wife. To resolve these problems you may need some help from a marriage counse-

Firemen called to the scene checked the hatches and relief valves on three cars and said at least one of the cars was leaking. Only one contained a harmful chemical - ethyl acrylate - and Fire Chief Chris Lotz said it was dangerous only in heavy concentrations.

heart attacks - or myocardial infarctions - have no underlying illnesses, such as high blood pressure, as a likely cause.

"Our findings suggest that in this category, some 75 percent of infarctions could be avoided if women did not smoke," the doctors concluded.

Heart attack is the biggest killer in the United States. Each year, about 40 of every 100,000 women under age 45 suffer heart attacks. The rate is four to five times higher for men.

The Boston University study is the first to be limited to otherwise healthy women who had no reason to suspect they were in danger of having heart attacks.

The researchers compared 55 women under 50 who had had heart attacks with a control group of 220 women matched for age and area of residence.

The research, directed by Dr. Dennis or more cigarettes a day were 21 times more likely to have heart attacks than non-smoking women.

The risk dropped dramatically for lighter smokers. Women who puffed 25 to 34 cigarettes a day were 14 times as likely as non-smokers to have heart attacks, while the danger for those who smoked one to 14 a day was four times greater than for non-smokers.

National statistics show that the number of teen-age girls who smoke has doubled in the past 10 years, while the level of smoking among boys has stayed the same. Now, about equal numbers of teen-age boys and girls use cigarettes.

"Unless this pattern changes, the contribution of cigarette smoking to the occurrence of premature myocardial infarction in otherwise apparently healthy women will probably increase," the doc-

The letter, sent over Gammill's machine-penned signature, was about a man named Jack Tanner and no one on the personnel staff, or on the letter-writing staff housed in the basement, can figure out just why Riebe's name appeared in it.

Nor can a woman in Seattle. She had written to the White house last October opposing Tanner's nomination for a federal judgeship. # Short Cowboy At Disadvantage

Texas city is one of the few places left in the country where one can find working cowboys, and it's there that you'll find a cowpoke named Shorty riding tall in the saddle, more or less.

To Shorty Newman, size means nothing when astride a working quarterhorse, and that's a healthy philosophy for a man 5 feet tall.

Newman is one of 36 fulltime cowboys who work the half-million-acre estate. spending most of the time working cattle from the back of a horse

Newman won't say what his real name is, explaining that "Shorty" is the only

Shorty's equestrian colleagues take little note of his size. We must do it all and take our turn when it comes and this includes all chores," Newman said. He admits his size is often a handicap, "And there's no advantages to being a small cowboy...at least none that I've discovered. Being small means something special each year when they bring out new brones from which the Cowboys choose their workmate for the year. Newman gets there first and tries to pick one of the smaller mounts. His current horse stands 14 hands and weighs around 1,000 pounds. The average size

What real cowboys do. Newman said, is arise at 4 a.m., ride a van to the location that will serve as a work site, and spend the day working cattle or mending fence, depending on the season. They get their marching orders from the foreman, wagon boss or straw boss. And they carry out their orders.

While asking no compensation for his size, Newman isn't a braggart either. "I don't tell anyone I'm a good hand," he said. "I just try to be and let my bosses say if I'm a good hand or not."

Newman has never been turned down for a cowhand job

"When you're horseback, size don't mean anything," he said, "You just get the job done. You have to put out like anyone. You have to earn your own way. I love cowboying, it's all I ever wanted to do ... wouldn't do anything else.

His stepmother tried to guide him in another direction when he showed early aptitude with horses, suggesting that a jockey's life might be a realistic goal. I just didn't like riding with my knees up under my chin," was the reply that started the career of the state's smallest cowpoke.

Police Asking Citizens' Aid Against Crime

While most burglars are careful, many of the victims across the city are careless. according to police department investiga-

During June, which has been declared burglary prevention month in Lubbock by Mayor Dirk West, police are seeking citizen support to help stop one of the cit-

Many of these incidents, he said, could be prevented if citizens took time to follow a few basic burglary prevention tech-

The first rule, which many persons ignore, is to stop all home deliveries, which are an indication to a burglar that no one is home. Electrical timers set at intervals on radios, televisions and lights in an empty house also help deter burglars, as does a car parked in the driveway of a house. Finally, police encourage persons to report any suspicious persons or vehicles they see in their neighborhood.

Alley said the department is beginning this new push to halt city burglaries now because the crime traditionally increases during the summer when persons leave for vacation.

Magnet Plan Successful

By JEFF SOUTH Avalanche-Journal Staff

School administrators say enough youngsters are transferring voluntarily to 'magnet programs' at Dunbar High and Iles Elementary to meet court-ordered guidelines on racial balance and enroll-

That means U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward won't have to require students to change schools to achieve integration at those two eastside campuses.

Iles especially has been a surprise. School officials originally expected only 54 whites to transfer to that previously all-minority school for special programs beginning in August.

But already 69 white children have registered for Iles, Ed Stokes, elementary education director for the Lubbock Independent School District, said Thursday. And Stokes said more applications are coming in every day.

Superintendent Ed Irons noted that the second-year projection for Iles - which will offer several features unique to the district - was 75 transfer students. "It's very possible we will exceed that by the start of the first year alone," Irons said.

Many parents have requested applications for Iles but have yet to complete those forms and turn them in to Stokes. Application forms still are available at the district's administration building and neighborhood elementary schools.

Parents have been registering their children for Iles, 2401 Date Ave., "for a variety of reasons." Stokes said.

"Many parents are deeply interested in the emphasis lles will place on the creative and expressive arts as a vehicle for teaching the basics," he said.

Stokes said Iles will provide opportunities in music, dance, art and other disciplines far beyond what can be offered in other elementary schools. This is possible because Texas Tech University will be focusing its resources at Iles.

lles also will have an "exemplary program" in basic skills, expanded opportunities for gifted and talented children, team teaching and individualized instruction, Stokes said.

Besides the regular school day, Iles will have optional activities from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. These include supervised sports and recreation, arts and crafts, accelerated academics and tutoring pro-

Of the 69 transfer students who have enrolled so far, 36 are interested in the "extended-day program," Stokes said. He expects several children who reside in the Iles zone also to participate in the be-

CONTRACT AWARDED

AUSTIN (AP) - A $17.220 state contract has been awarded the city of Laredo Ben F. McDonald Jr., executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, said Thursday. The funds will be used by the city's Community Development Agency to provide training for the staff of its 10 child development centers, McDonald said

The school will be serving about 85 youngsters who live in the Iles attendance area, as well as transfer students. Originally school officials predicted the number of whites at Iles this fall would be about 38 percent. But the latest figures suggest that the percentage of whites will be close to or exceed 50 per-

Irons said the district is re-evaluating its staffing pattern for Iles to make sure the faculty is large enough for the surprisingly large enrollment. The district hopes to have a low pupil-teacher ratio at the school and make extensive use of university professors and student teachers.

Iles is the only minority elementary school involved in the district's court-ordered integration plan in which school officials hope to achieve racial balance without compulsory assignment of white

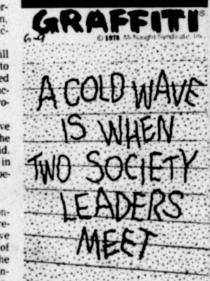

Voluntary techniques also are being employed at Dunbar High School.

The district is transferring to Dunbar various vocational courses that had been offered at Coronado and Monterey and providing Dunbar with programs that had never been offered in the city - such as computer science, commercial art, watercolor painting, jazz-rock music and

The goal is to encourage students, especially whites, to transfer to Dunbar voluntarily. And Irons said the plan is definitely working.

Roy Roberts, Dunbar principal, said he expects his school to gain about 350 transfer students for the 1978-79 year. "We're very close to that number right now, and more students are calling every day to sign up," he said.

The influx of transfers would boost Dunbar's enrollment to about 860 students, with whites numbering about 400. Irons said he is "very confident" the district will meet those goals.

If you're feeling sorry for yourself because your "fat genes" put pizza, hot dogs and french fries on the forbidden list...why not "pig out" with class; Live it up with lobster. Right now, when your self-pity level is at its peak! It's hard to feel deprived while eating lobster. Lobster is the ultimate indulgence for those of us who can't afford (the calories) to indulge in anything else.

But who can afford to buy lobster:

One way to modify the high cost of a lobster orgy is to enjoy it in private ... at home. Private lobster is only half as expensive as lobster in public, and a lot more relaxed. There's no neat way to eat lobster, but in a restaurant most of us feel compelled to try, often at the price of leaving behind the best parts'

Since lobster is easier to eat on home grounds, why don't more people do it? The real reason is the deadly deed that must be done. There you are, poised over a bubbling pot, wiggling lobster in hand, reflecting on the practicality of keeping it in the bathtub as a pet.

There's a way out of all this, and that's to let your friendly fishmonger play "hit man." Do your lobster-shopping just before dinner. "Finger" the (live) ones you want and ask the counterperson to have them split for broiling. Splitting the lobster does the deed instantly, by severing the spinal cord. Then run home quick as you can, cook your lobsters as qualm-free as if they were steak.

But suppose you don't want them broiled? You prefer them steamed (that's the best way) or boiled.

It's a convention that only lobsters for broiling or baking are killed before cooking (it wouldn't do to have them hot-footing around the grill or oven) while steamed or broiled lobsters must be cooked live.

Is there really any reason why lobsters have to enter the pot kicking and screaming (They really don't scream!)?

No reason whatsoever, according to

Thomas McPartland of New England Fresh Fish Council. We had never heard of a reason and neither had he. The point of boiling a lobster live is to maximize freshness, he said, but a lobster killed and promptly steamed will be no different from one that's promptly broiled. Steaming split lobsters has advantages for calorie-watchers. You can steam them in just a few cups of water instead of the whole potful that most timid souls find necessary in order to hasten the lobsters' demise. (Many Maine residents steam live lobsters in small amounts of

The bidding: South West North East Pass Pass Opening lead: King of ♥.

The hold-up play-refusing to win a trick when given the opportunityhas become quite fashionable. But it can be overdone, as this hand from the Philip Morris European Cup competition vividly illustrates.

North-South were employ ing five-card major-suit opening bids, which accounts for South's choice of one diamond to get the auction rolling. West's four heart overcall put considerable pressure on North. Since he had no room to explore the possibilities offered by his freak hand, he decided to gamble out six diamonds. and East was quite pleased with the final contract. He would have been absolutely enchanted had he known that his partner held a trump.

West led the king of hearts, ruffed in dummy. The ten of diamonds was run, and held the trick when East played low. Declarer continued with a low dia mond, and all East had to do to defeat the hand was to rise with the ace-that would have guaranteed a second trump trick. However he chose to play low again, and he is still ruing that decision.

The jack of diamonds won the trick and revealed the unfortunate trump break. Declarer shifted his atten-

My best friend, Mayva, is a grandmoth-

She called me yesterday to tell me the news. "I'm not going to be one of those grandmothers who bore you to death, but honestly, she does not look like a newborn baby."

(I got a mental picture of a baby with a full set of teeth sitting under a hair dryer drinking milk from an old-fashioned glass.)

"And she's alert! You would not believe how she follows you around the room with her eyes."
(Probably saying in perfect English. "You seem restless. Could I offer you a drink?")

"And good! You have never seen a child so respectful with such regard for people's feelings." (I could imagine a phone ringing and the baby saying. "I'll get it.")

Just when I thought I had taken all the bappiness my system could absorb, she baused and said. "I'm old."

Nonsense," I said. "You're not old, you're just getting more adept at lying."
Don't kid around," she snapped. "I never realized how having a baby has changed I couldn't relate to anything. I never realized how out-of-touch I am."
"Like how?"

"They breathe them out now. Everything is natural and your husband is with you throughout the birth, helping. Remember how it was?"

"Do I ever!" I said. "I became hysterical, frightened, and begged for sedation!"

"And that was at your initial pre-natal visit."
"Be fair." I said. "You'd have been upset too if your doctor has just completed a pelvic examination and wandered around mumbling. 'Has anyone seen my fountain pen?''

"It's still a new ballgame," she sighed.

"Super-absorbent throwaways, shoulder slings to carry them around, no bottles to fiddle with and it's a new relaxed atmosphere that babies are born into."
"You're overreacting," I giggled.

Surely women having babies today still have their hair done on the way to the labor room. I mean who would deliver with greasy hair?"

"I don't think she thought one minute about her hair."

"Next thing you know you'll tell me she isn't going to stay in bed 30 days to get her strength back! Mayva! Mayva! You there?"

MOREY'S WIFE

Dear Wife: Social Security isn't exactly "welfare" from the government. Since the mid-'30s working people have kicked in part of every paycheck in order to build up some retirement income. Your husband is entitled to do as he wishes, but he's also entitled to the money.

P.S. A person who earns more than $4,-000 a year at his job must return $1 of Social Security for every $2 he earns above $4,000.

There is an elderly gentleman (about 85) living in a small single room in a local hotel. This man has married children and grandchildren in town who hardly look at him.

He can't dress himself or bathe very well, and his eyesight is failing, so the maids help him. (The maids take better care of him than his own family.)

Several months ago, a maid found him on the bathroom floor. He had fallen the night before and couldn't get up, so he just lay there, cold and shivering, all night.

He eats only once a day on a tray sent to his room, and that's usually oatmeal and coffee. On Sundays the kitchen is closed, so he doesn't eat from Saturday until Monday morning.

How can people be so heartless? Today is Sunday, and believe me, Abby, my appetite is gone just thinking about that poor, old, neglected man.

Stamps Feature Chinese Script

By SYD KRONISH Associated Pres Writer

Five masterpieces of Chinese calligraphy - beautifully written characters of the language - are featured on a new set of five stamps issued by the Republic of China on Taiwan. Equaled only by the art of printing, calligraphy is revered in the Republic of China as a primary art form.

According to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, the first stamp depicts script writing of the Tsin Dynasty in the 4th century A.D. The second stamp shows a eulogy in script of the Tang Dynasty of the 7th century. The third illustrates an inscription from the Ming Dynasty of the 16th century. The fourth stamp pictures the writings of Huai-su of the Tang Dynasty, and the fifth (highest value) is devoted to a seal script reproduction of a poem of the Sung Dynasty.

New Card Due

The U.S. Postal Service will issue a new international surface rate postal card Aug. 4 commemorating the anniversary of the establishment (in 1790) of the Revenue Marine, the forerunner of the U.S. Coast Guard. The denomination will be 14 cents, which is the new rate for such cards. The previous rate was 12 cents.

The card depicts a painting of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter 'Eagle," a threemasted bark against a background of blue sky and sea. Beneath the vignette appears "U.S. Coast Guard Eagle." To the right is USA 14 cents."

Associated Press Writer

When you combine the allure of children's pictures with the wonder and beauty of nature, it becomes a combination almost unbeatable. That is the parlay presented by Dorothy Shuttleworth in "Exploring Nature with Your Child

A revised edition now makes available this classic book in up-to-date format with 80 pages of four-color and 160 pages of two-color illustrations

Children are natural explorers in a world of new wonders and everything they see leads to a question; why? Photography, with its revealing camera eye, is a rewarding way to accompany a child's explorations while you try to answer the question. And Mrs. Shuttlesworth is a source book for most of the an-

Exploring nature with a child also invariably rekindles the pleasure and excitement of simple discoveries that adults may have once experienced and which have dimmed with timem Now parents, relatives and friends can become partners with children as they explore to-

Fortunately, the explorations need not mean going to the African jungles or Alaska's mountains. Exciting discoveries begin in your own back yard, in city parks and nearby gardens, along woodland trails and by the shores of lakes, streams or the ocean which you may visit on vacations. Trips, too, can be made to zoos. museums and state fairs where more discoveries can be shared mutually.

Mrs. Shuttlesworth, founder of the Junior Natural History Magazine" and its editor for 15 years, has dealt with thousands of children's questions about nature. The book is a fountain of information that will a swer questions about birds, animals, fish, insects, pets, plants, trees and flowers. There is no "best" method of exploring nature with children, she says, because children vary in their approach to nature just as they differ in countless other ways. One child may be full of curiosity. about plant and animal life from infancy on. Many dwell in fantasy worlds of their own imagination, while others develop an early mechanical bent, remaining obli-

"On the whole," Mrs. Shuttlesworth says, "the successful approach lies in encouraging inquisitiveness and providing opportunities to satisfy curiosity.

Children make rapid strides once they become involved. She recalls her own 3 year-old's comment, "I know bees make honey, but I don't see HOW they get them into jars." Then, after the first grade, he was asking, "What's the difference between rodents and other kinds of animals?" And a year or so later he came up with a question that is still a puzzle to scientists. "If dinosaurs were so powerful, why did they all die?"

Children eventually begin to understand how people have put nature's inventions to their own use. When the first child asked, "Why can't I fly like a bird? the minds of adults grappled for the answer. In time, of course, the problem was solved and now we can fly higher, faster and farther than people ever dreamed possible.

Bats had been using the principal of radar to make way through black underground passageways long, long before it became a 20th century invention. They emit shrill squeaks when flying in the dark and when the sound hits a solid object, it bounces back to the bat, giving it a 'sound picture' of the surroundings. It even picks up a flying menu along the way ... edible insects in its path.

Then there's the lesson we learned from the wasp, something it had been doing for centuries: how to make paper from wood fiber. And about camouflage from animals, birds and insects. They have been protecting themselves through the ages by colorations that blend in with their surroundings. Man profited from the lesson in wartime, when danger is

Knowing about animals, seeing them and becoming used to their activities can dispel many fears in children because we all are afraid of the unknown. A screech owl's cry in the night can be unnerving until you have seen the creature and are aware that it's harmless to you. By passing on stories of nature lore, you can create a sympathetic acquaintance with nature and wildlife in children and do much to avoid or eliminate disturbing thoughts at night or in strange places.

As a child's knowledge and interest in nature and animal life increases, he or she becomes less conscious of a camera and the possibility of getting absorbing, spontaneous photographs also increases. Just be sure to have a camera handy and ready for instant use on your nature exploration trips and you're bound to return with treasures recorded in a child's fertile mind ... and on your film. It's a double dividend that will bring enjoyment and pleasure to both of you, and others, in the future.

By ANDY LANG

Associated Press Writer

- There are some oil stains on our concrete driveway. I have tried to remove them by flushing with a garden hose, but it has had no effect. Is there some way these stains can be removed?

A. - There are various kind of absorbents that can be left on such stains for a day or two, then swept up after they become heavy with the oil. However, this sometimes does not work on stains that are very old. If you decide to try it, use Portland cement as an absorbent or buy one of the products made especially for this purpose. When stains are very old, try scrubbing them with a mixture of trisodium phosphate and water according to the directions on the container. Rinse thoroughly with clear water. This is a treatment that may have to be repeated several times.

Q. — I read that mortgage loans made by the Federal Housing Administration w carry an interest rate of 8% percent, but the story didn't say anything about the size of down payments or how high the loans can be. Can you help me?

A. - Presumably, you mean mortgage loans guaranteed by the FHA rather than made by that agency. On a mortgage of that type, the down payment can be as percent on the remainder. The FHA now underwrites mortgage loans for as much. as $60,000

Q - Most stories about fixing faucet leaks refer to compression faucets. One of the faucets in our house is a Fuller faucet. How is a leak stopped in that kind of faucet? Our house is more than 50 years

A. - Remove the faucet body and take out the spindle. Then remove the ball from in back of the faucet. Replace the ball with a new one, since a wornout ball is the usual cause of a leak.

Faucet leaks, drain stoppages, plumbing noises and pipe repairs are among the subjects in Andy Lang's booklet. "Simple Plumbing Repairs," available by sending 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. At least seven mayors say they won't attend the U.S. Conference of Mayors, scheduled June 17-21 in Atlanta, primarily because of the status of ERA in President Carter's home state.

Many say they sympathize with Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson's position that the Georgia Legislature's anti-ERA posture is "absolutely contrary to the wishes of the citizens of Atlanta.

But pressures from city councils, a fastgrowing economic boycott of non-ERA states and political loyalty to pro-ERA constituents have prompted some mayors to dodge the meeting.

Figures from ERAmerica in Washington indicate that 22 local governments have passed resolutions disallowing expenditure of city funds for travel to non-ERA states. And since 1975, 170 organizations - including the United Auto Workers and the Communication Workers of America - have joined the boycott of non-ERA states.

Paul Soglin, mayor of Madison, Wisc., said his only part in the conference will be to head a delegation of mayors from Atlanta to Cuba. His decision came as his city council was considering censuring him for disregarding a city ban on employee travel to non-ERA states

Mayors Phil Isenberg of Sacramento, Calif.; Ron Bair of Spokane, Wash.; Neil Goldschmidt of Portland, Ore., and Gerald Springer of Cincinnati also have announced they will not attend the conference, which is expected to draw about 250 of the 500 member mayors of cities with populations over 30,000.

Bair and Isenberg cited schedule conflicts, but Bair said he "supports the will of the people" in his state who ratified the ERA. And Isenberg, a staunch ERA supporter, said that even if "I could have worked it out, I probably wouldn't have gone. ### Houston Integration Effort Criticized HOUSTON (AP) - A tri-ethnic advisory committee says the Houston Independent School District is not making satisfactory desegregation progress.

Dr. James C. Jones, chairman of the 11-member, court-appointed committee, said Thursday the group made such a report to U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan during a Wednesday meeting.

Jones said nine of the committee members agreed the district should be required to submit a timetable for completing integration.

The committee was established in 1970 to monitor the district's court-ordered desegregation plan.

Jones said the district still has more than 90 schools that have enrollments that are more than 90 percent black, brown or white.

William Wilde, a school district lawyer, said the number of predominantly one-race schools has decreased from 133 to 99 since 1970. The district has 235

Wilde said decreasing enrollment, especially for whites, has complicated the situation.

Jones said the committee does now know "which way the district is going." "Everything is being done on a haphazard basis," he said.

We are handed a lot of paper and told a lot of things, but questions still need to be answered."

WARNING ISSUED

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) - The administrator of Transvaal Province has told private schools they face serious consequences if they continue to admit black students. "Schools that believe we will continue to close our eyes to their breaking the law are expecting too much," Sybrand Van Niekerk said at a Transvaal provincial parliament meeting Wednesday night.

Jackson sent a letter last month to the 500 members of the conference, urging them to attend to "impress upon the Georgia Legislature how important passage of this amendment is to the entire

Thirty-five states have ratified the amendment, but Idaho, Nebraska and Tennessee later voted to rescind approval, a move that remains in question. Kentucky's vote to rescind was vetoed by the

If the amendment is to become part of the U.S. Constitution, it must be ratified by 38 states before March 22, 1979. However, there is a move to extend that deadline for another seven years. Many pro-ERA mayors say a chance to voice their support for ERA - and opposition to the boycott - prompts them to

The boycott is a tactic which I do not support and Atlanta is a good example where a mayor is one of the strongest advocates for the ERA in any city hall in the nation and yet they are penalizing his city for an act of the Legislature, or rather a failure to act by the Legislature,' said Richard Carver, mayor of Peoria, Ill., whose state is among 15 that have not ratified the ERA. Frank Logue, mayor of New Haven, Conn., is attending despite the protests of a local alderman who has threatened to submit a resolution to prevent spending of city funds for travel in non-ERA

Movie Company Fears Chris-Craft Takeover

NEW YORK (AP) - Twentieth Century Fox Corp., flush with success from the movie "Star Wars," fears that Chris-Craft Industries, Inc., is moving to buy it and wants the federal government to force Chris-Craft to say whether that is the Fox asked the Federal Communications Commission this week to require Chris-Craft either to deny that it is trying to take over the film corporation or to formally apply to the agency to take control of a Fox television subsidiary before buying any more Fox stock.

In the request to the FCC, Fox said Chris-Craft has purchased $17 million worth of Fox stock, about 8.5 percent of the quantity outstanding

A Chris-Craft official, Executive Vice President Lawrence Barnett, said the diversified boat and broadcasting company would not comment on the Fox action. In the past Chris-Craft officials have said that the purchase of the Fox shares was only an investment, not an attempt to take control of the movie company.

Fox's petition to the FCC was in the form of an objection to the renewal of the license of a Los Angeles television station owned by Chris-Craft. The pleasure-boat company also owns a station in Oregon. Fox owns TV stations in Minneapolis, San Antonio and Salt Lake City through a subsidiary, United Television, Fox also says that Chris-Craft already is in violation of FCC rules. The boat company owns nearly 2 percent of Columbia Picture's stock and that company holds licenses for radio stations in Salt Lake City, while Fox holds the license for a TV station there, Fox said. The result is "impermissible cross-ownership," the film ompany said.

Chris-Craft bought into Fox with part of the $50 million in proceeds realized from the sale of a large position in Piper Aircraft, which it sold after losing a long court battle over Chris-Craft's attempt to BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) - In Vietnam, they're once again publicly cele brating draft calls for the army.

In recent weeks, official radio stations and newspapers in Vietnam have reported large numbers of military activities, ranging from battlefield exploits on the Cambodian front to punji-stick planting

14 Million Homes Need Insulation

NEW YORK (UPI) - There currently are 14 million American homes with less than six inches of attic insulation, according to Richard E. Trumbull, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation's Insulation Operating Division.

'Six Inches," he said, "is the minimum amount recommended by the U.S. government for most American homes.

Many more homes still need insulation in side walls, basements and crawl spaces as well as other energy-saving devices such as storm windows, caulking and weather stripping to become more energy efficient," Trumbull added:

The evening stars are Venus, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter. Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

American songwriter Cole Porter was born June 9, 1893. This the 68th birthday of actor Bob Cummings.

On this day in history In 1899, James Jeffries won the heavyweight boxing title by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons in New York City.

In 1943, Congress passed an act providing for "pay-as-you-go" income tax deductions. It authorized employers to withhold payments from salary checks. In 1959, the first ballistics missile submarine, the nuclear-powered "George Washington," was launched at Groton, In 1976, former Postmaster General James Farley died in New York at the age of 88 and famed British actress Sybil Thorndike died in London at 93. A thought for the day: Norwegian playwright Henrik Ibsen said, "A community is like a ship; everyone ought to be preof the nation.

In the last week of May, official Hanoi and Saigon radio stations heralded the sending off to the frontlines "a large number of youths.

Across the country, official media hailed other military activities during the past two weeks. In several districts, propaganda sessions were held. In at least two, according to Radio Saigon, young people were mobilized to plant mines and sharpened bamboo stakes (punji-sticks) along the frontier.

The Vietnamese accent on the military is now stronger than at any time since the 1975 Communist victory in south Viet-

Reports from Vietnam indicate men between 17 and 35 are eligible for a widened military draft, with large numbers of youths being called up in the southern part of the country. The draft ceremony in Ho Chi Minh city, formerly Saigon, recently was given a county fair atmosphere, according to Radio Hanoi. "Nha Be district (in eastern Saigon) organized many festive meetings and art shows to send off its youths.

Especially praised by the media are those districts where authorities have met their draft quotas with little difficulty, and without allowing draft-dodging, still apparently a problem.

In Ho Chi Minh City's rural suburb of Binh Thanh, district workers "sent out personnel to study the specific situation of every family" to prevent draftdodging. Radio Hanoi reported last week.

Some diplomatic sources with Vietnam

army both to cope with the real war with Cambodia and one, Vietnamese say, is 'rumored" with China.

But others disagree. It's not a military buildup exactly," one diplomatic source said. "Vietnam uses its army not only for fighting but also in the fields and in construction. In addition, army cadre often conduct propaganda meetings. And there's a whole generation which has grown up in a military atmosphere," the diplomat said.

Still, with a 21-division main army force - fifth largest in the world - and a million-person militia force, Nhan Dan daily called for more.

The Vietnamese people and government ... are now paying great attention to the building of local armed forces," the newspaper said in a recent editorial. Every district and village should work out a military plan to cope with any military eventuality. The military local forces must be strong in both political understanding and combat efficiency," it said.

Whether Vietnam really expects another major war or is just putting contingency plans into operations is not known. But the country is getting back on a footing reminiscent of the war days.

Old Graduate Dons Suit For Reunion

MARLBORO, Vt. (AP) - What is so rare as a day in June when the newspapers fail to report yet another college reunion taking place in the cement groves alma mater to report importantly on the growth of their Mulipan's waistlines, families and annual income before taxes, to try to place the graying heads and rubicund faces emerging from the cars in the parking lot, to fit them into the frame of the old class picture, the two-fold frame of youth and memory that shields them forever from the ravages of time. Among all these intellectual sheep returning to the fold - or at least vintage mutton - what can be rarer in that rarified air than the 30th annual reunion of the Marlboro College Class of '48? After all those years, the entire class showed up. Can any other campus clan gathering make that boast? The class president, the class poet, the class lover, the class athlete, the salutarian, the valedictorian, the class treasurer, the chairman of the beer blast, the organizer of the protest march on the school cafeteria. the class intellectual and the most likely to succeed - all of them turned up.

The class secretary proudly could report perfect attendance. The class statistician could finger his pocket calculator and report that both on the average and the median, the Class of '48 has produced one marriage, no divorces, no children. The class had held two jobs in all the past 30 years, had written four books, traveled in 104 countries, gained 13 pounds and 312 inches around the equator since graduation, could count one upper plate, one mustache and no major operations in those intervening years. In the American odyssey from Harry S. Truman to Jimmy Carter, the class had divided its votes evenly in the eight show-downs between Republicans and Democrats and had never been called either to public office or public shame.

The Class of '48 had turned out no clergymen, no statesmen, no captains of industry, no Bowery derelicts, no educators, no housewives, no engineers, no scientists, one journalist

The class president, who organized the 30th reunion, had me to thank for all of this. No one else.

You see, I am the class president. I'm the Class of '48. In toto. In 1948, I graduated first in my class from Marlboro College. First in my school too. I was the one and only graduate, the lone matriculating senior in a brand-new college that Dr. Walter Hendricks, who for years headed the Humanities Department at the Illinois Instisute of Technology and helped found the G.I. University at Biarritz, France, brought to life on a lovely Vermont hillside. A cowbarn was the first dormitory, a blacksmith shop the first library.

My splendor that June day was so solitary. Life magazine sent a writer-photographer team to report the event. Robert Frost came to deliver the nation's only recorded one-on-one commencement speech. He kept it short.

Being the first and only graduate of a college has its problems as well as its unshared honor. Have you ever tried to rent one cap and gown? It can't be done. At least it couldn't in those day's, when no one had ever heard of now famous Marlboro College and its prestigious music festival. The rental firms in Boston, Springfield, Albany and New York City were all geared to hire out a gross of caps and gowns, a hundred, maybe a dozen, but they just weren't up to the strain of processing a single, solitary order.

In desperation, I tried to make one out of some shirt cardboard and war surplus blackout cloth, but it came out looking like a burnt slab of pizza with a tassle. The makeshift gown resembled a hangman's hand-me-down.

Finally, I drove over the mountain to Bennington College, then an all-girls school, and borrowed a cap and gown from a young lady who was graduating two days later. She was as reluctant and suspicious as the rental firms. As collateral, I had to lend her my Grove Press edition of Henry Miller's "Quiet Days In Clichy" and promise to get her Robert Frost's autograph.

The presidents of most of the neighboring New England colleges had come to welcome the new school if not to pay homage to its first graduate. There came the president of Middlebury in floppy velvet hat like a portrait of Christopher Columbus, followed by the presidents of Williams, Amherst, Smith, Vassar. Dartmouth and the Universities of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont, then the learned faculty, the entire procession in cowls and capes, a few from Oxford and Cambridge in robes fringed in ermine, looking bored and superior, like El Greco cardinals.

And then me, the lone graduate, in borrowed cap and gown, the sole reason why we were all gathered there, the classic case of the academic tail wagging the woebegone dog. The curious cows looking up on Mather Hill that drowsy June morning long ago hadn't seen such a sight since the locals gave up bundling in double runner sleds.

Drink up, lads, the next round's on the class president. These reminiscences are making me maudlin. And lonely

DENVER (UPI) - A blue topaz of more than 2,000 carats -- considered one of the largest in the world - has been cut and is being offered for trade or sale for $150,000, a spokesman for the Strabley Lapidary Co. said.

Denton Anderson, a company gemologist, Wednesday said the firm's owner, James Strabley completed the cutting this week after nearly 50 hours of work. 'It took more than a week to finish,

Anderson said. "We're going to either sell it or trade it on real estate. We do a lot of trading in our business. Anderson said Strabley acquired the 2.165-carat topaz May 26 from an Austrialian gem dealer who bought the stone "in the rough" in Brazil. He said the blue topaz stone, the most valuable of the topaz variety, was four inches long, 21/2 inches wide, and 1 inch deep.

Foster, which is not his real name, also pays state income tax, sales tax, personal property tax, plus other local taxes - all of which finance local government costs, including the public schools his children

Still, because he is a government employee, his children - along with thousands of other children of federal workers - are considered by law to have placed an inequitable burden or "impact" on local school costs.

This qualifies Fairfax schools for extra fedaral school aid - $13 million this year to offset the costs of educating federally-connected children.

The program is called "impact aid" and in the next fiscal year the government will pay out $811 million to 4,340 of the nation's 16,000 school districts to Every president from Dwight Eisenhower to Jimmy Carter has tried to cut the impact aid program, but Congress has resisted, largely because schools in 400 of the nation's 435 congressional districts get some money from it.

Having failed last year to convince Congress that major reductions were justified. Carter this year is trying modified cutbacks. And once again, a debate that began 28 years ago when Harry Truman was in the White House is underway.

Impact aid's original purpose was simply to provide school aid to communities where military installations, many in rural areas, added to local school costs without providing tax revenues to meet

The original program provided a flat payment for each student whose parents worked and resided on military bases. In 1951, this amounted to a modest $29 million a year. But as Congress added new groups of recipients to the program, its costs multiplied 28 fold. More than $9 billion has gone into the program since it

One of the key departures from the program's original rationale was to extend aid to communities where federal employes worked on government property, but lived in private residences, which of course were taxed. But communities argued that they were still losing money because they were getting no property or business taxes from the federal installa-

This part of the program grew so rapidly that by 1970 President Nixon found 70 percent of all federal impact payments to schools were "for children of federal employees who live off base and pay local property taxes.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said nearly twice as much tederal money goes into the nation's wealthiest county through this program as goes into the 100 poorest counties combined.

Thus, while Fairfax County, with a median family income of $28,000, may get up to $18 million in impact aid next year. less affluent communities are getting comparatively little. Examples: Buffalo, only $350,000, Cleveland, $398,000, and Jersey City, $263,000.

Other Washington suburbs, like Maryland's Prince George's and Montgomery counties, receive $10 million and $6 million respectively in federal impact aid. Affluent communities like New York's Westchester County and Connecticut's Fairfield County also are getting hundreds of thousands of dollars because they educate the children of federal emcation who lives in Fairfax County said. "For the life of me. I can't see why my child should generate a payment just because I work for t4e government."

Does the presence of federal facilities and employes indeed result in an adverse impact upon local school costs? Counties receiving impact aid say it does, but others reject that contention.

In 1974, Duane Mattheis of the U.S.

gress has resisted...

But while school officials are able to detail the negative impact of government facilities and workers, they are unable to provide any figures on any positive economic benefit.

One county official was asked which side would come out ahead if all negative federal impact costs were compared to

hower to Jimmy Carter has tried to cut the impact aid program, but Con-

Stockdale, an assistant school superintendent in South Bend, Ind., which gets virtually no impact aid money.

South Bend's 30,000-student school system has many of the same educational problems of other medium size cities, including special inner city needs.

"If one gets it, everybody ought to get it," Stockdale said, calling the impact aid system "outdated.

We have 70 different aid to education programs, with all the paperwork and costly overhead that goes with it," he said. "It drives you nuts. What we need is a single uniform aid to educution program in which the money would go to states and then be redistributed back to the local school districts.

Nevertheless, Myron Cale, assistant superintendant for financial services for Fairfax County schools, says continuation of impact aid is vital if his country is to maintain existing education services to its heavily federalized population.

One example Cale cites are the additional costs of providing special education classes for the handicapped children of some 600 federal employes, an expensive program that averages out to about $4,600 per child.

With yearly impact aid expected to go over $1 billion by 1982, the president is proposing a number of reforms to gradually phase down what he considers to be the least necessary elements of impact

Specifically, Carter wants to eliminate payments for children whose parents work on federal property outside the county in which the school district is located. But that was rejected by a House subcommittee, which in fact voted to relax restrictions on the program approved three years ago.

HEW Secetary Joseph Califano says the administration's reforms could save $76 million in 1979, money which, he believes, would be better spent to "meet other educational needs such as those of the handicapped and disadvantaged.

Experts Believe Pandas Too Heavy To Breed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The two giant pandas geven to the United States in 1972 by the Peoples Republic of China have not been able to breed because they are too fat, the National Zoo said this week.

The zoo's panda experts told a news conference they plan to put the two animals on a diet between now and next spring's breeding season to get their weight down from the current 130 kilograms to 135 kilograms down to a new weight from 90 to 100 kilograms. One hundred kilograms equal 220 pounds.

They also said there is no evidence that either of the pandas is homosexual or that the pair is in some other way incom-

Dr. Devra Kleiman, the zoo's reproduction biologist, and Jaren Horsley. the general curator, said they found out about the weight problem during a visit to China last month They said the Chinese suggested that 100 kilograms is about the proper breeding weight and in general did not feel the U.S. pandas were causing that much of a problem "They feel we have a very good chance" of breeding, Dr. Kleiman said. It may not be this year.

She said, however, that zoo officials will not get worried about the situation unless another seven years passes without an offspring.

She said that past breeding attempts at the zoo resulted in the female, Ling-Ling being dropped on her side during mating attempts with the male Hsing-Hsing, perhaps because the male was too heavy.

Since the pandas were given to the United States on the occasion of President Richard Nixon's visit they have dined twice a day on apples, carrots,

The two pandas at the National Zoo are the only ones in the United States and part of only a dozen in the zoos outside of China.

Attempts at breeding every spring starting in 1973 have been unsuccessful although the animals showed some interest in each other.

Nyerere Defends Soviet Presence In Africa ments show that the greater immediate danger to Africa's freedom comes from

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, one of the most influential statesmen in Africa. Thursday defended the Soviet role on the continent and said "hysterical voices" appear to be dominating the Carter administration.

In an unprecedented move, Nyerere summoned the entire foreign diplomatic corps in Dar Es Salaam to his office, where he delivered a 45-minute lecture on recent Western moves concerning Af-

In a paper handed out to the diplomats, Nyerere said that the current series of meetings being held in Europe by Western countries to discuss the Soviet and Cuban role in Africa are really meetings to discuss continued Western domination of the continent.

"There should be no mistake," he said. Whatever the official agenda, the Paris and Brussels meetings are not discussing the freedom of Africa, they are discussing the continued domination of Africa, and the continued use of Africa by Western powers.

At a subsequent news conference, Nyerere expressed displeasure with the Carter administration's handling of the crisis in Zaire. The United States has insisted that it has evidence that Cuban advisers trained the rebels who invaded Zaire's copper-rich Shaba province from

If the only objective of the United States is defense of capitalism and the fight against the Soviet Union, one cannot cooperate." Nyerere said.

There was a voice that was very helpful that was coming from Washington. Let that be the voice that Africa hears, not the hysterical voices talking about Africa being taken over by Cubans.

In an attack on President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Nyerere warned that U.S. relations with black Africa will get worse "if President Carter wants to turn around and listen to the new Kissinger in his administration, for this is really the problem."

The Tanzanian president told the diplomats the West is using the Cuban and Soviet presence in Africa as an excuse to dominate the continent.

He said that Soviet and Cuban forces are present in significant numbers in only two countries - Angola and Ethiopia and in both cases they had been invited by legitimate governments which faced external aggression.

"The West still considers Africa to be within its sphere of influence and acts accordingly," he said. "Current develop-

Common Cause is the moving force behind the bill that would provide public financing for congressional campaigns (at present, only presidential campaigns get public money). Wertheimer is indignant about the Washington game because, he says, it's a game that benefits special interest groups and incumbents, regardless

In fact, it's the advantages incumbents get from the system that makes legislators reluctant to vote for a public financing law. There's something of a chickenegg mentality to it: Few incumbent congressmen lose each year, in part because they get large contributions. So contributors flock to give to incumbents, assuming that will be a lot safer than alienating an incumbent by giving to his opponent when the opponent will probably lose

'Ideology is incumbency," says Werth-

A man involved in organizing Democratic fund-raisers puts it this way: "A lot of political donors give the same way they'd give to the United Fund. A little here, a little there, on both sides of the spectrum.

The best example may be the American Medical Association's 1974 contributions of $151,000 to 29 of the 37 incumbent congressmen in California. Seventeen were Republicans and 12 were Democrats and

Lobbyists Find Way To Get Around Law

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Four years ago, Californians approved a ballot proposal strictly limiting contacts between lobbyists and legislators. Those dealing with the law say it works, but there are plenty of ways to circumvent it.

For example, the law prohibits lobbyists from making campaign contributions, and legislative aides from getting involved in political fund-raising. So lobbyists don't make contributions and legislative aides don't get involved in politics, but the money gets raised anyway.

"It's easy," says a legislative advisor to a state assemblyman. "If you have a dinner, you have a political guy in the district handle the invitations. And you send them to the company or the union's home office rather than to the lobbvist. They check it out with their lobbyist and if he says OK, then the home office writes the check The same people are picking up the tab. It's just a matter of who writes the selot, a John Birch Society member, to Ron Dellums, an outspoken black liberal who represents Berkeley and Oakland.

Or take the example of Russell Long of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the most powerful men on Capitol Hill. When Long ran for re-election in 1974, he was unopposed in the general election and got 75 percent of the vote against two minor opponents. Yet he collected a campaign fund of nearly $600,000.

To people who need something from government, buying into campaigns like that is a form of insurance

You mean like Joe Waggoner's campaign?" asks a trade association lobbyist about his contributions to the Louisiana congressman who habitually gets 80 percent or more of the vote in his district.

'Hell, I don't think I even got an invitation to his party. But I heard about it and bought a couple of ($100) tickets anyway. It's a goodwill thing. You really don't need it, but it will insure that he will talk to you.

There is a converse to that - the hard-sell by the people peddling tickets. Some view it as just another innocent practice, others call it a shakedown. Last Sept. 19, for example, a dinner was held on behalf of Rep. Matthew B.

Rinaldo, a Republican from New Jersey. A number of businessmen and their Washington representatives received in-

John Rhodes which said of Rinaldo, a member of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee:

"Some congressmen are willing to sit down and listen to the views of business. and Matt Rinaldo is one of them.

The letter concluded: "You can make a reservation to join Matt with a few other key business leaders for this roundtable discussion by enclosing your check for $250 to the Rinaldo for Congress Com-

The pressure is usually more subtle, but not always.

A Republican working in one campaign remembers watching contributors flocking to a fund-raising dinner for his opponent because those contributors got invitations signed by Mike Mansfield, Hubert Humphrey, and Ted Kennedy.

"They figured it was kind of a command performance," the man says.

One lobbyist says he never heeds the original invitation to a fund-raiser, attending only those for which he gets a followup invitation by telephone. Another tells of being called on several occasions by wives of the congressmen for whom the fund-raiser is being held. A third gets a letter from a congressman that suggests that even though the lobbyist missed the dinner, he can still send his check to the congressman's campaign committee.

Rep. Otis Pike of New York announced recently that he was retiring from Conhe cited was his distaste for soliciting campaign money every two years, although, he said, he had never held a fund-raiser. 'The parade of daily fund-raisers in the Democratic Club or the Republican Capitol Hill Club in Washington, whereby the unions, corporations trade associations and lobbyists are milked is just so nauseous that we never did it," he said in announcing his retirement. "Instead, year after year, we have gone back to the same dear friends for political support. I simply can't ask them to give any more.' "It's a greasy business," says an aide to a senior senator. "We've got people who have done it for years and continue to do it for us. We don't get involved at all, and frankly, we don't really want to. But the junior guys who haven't gotten established have to do a lot of the work them-

says one. "I don't try to buy these guys. I just want to be able to go in and get a hearing. I'm honest with them and I hope they'll be honest with me." "You think we buy them?" asks another, a lobbyist for a major union. "I went to a guy and he told me 'I'm gonna have to vote against you because you contrib-uted to my campaign. How would it look if I were on your side?"" OLD MEANING

Gutters Termed Best For Water Runoff

By ANDY LANG Associated Press Writer

Gutters and downspouts are essential in getting rid of the water that falls on your house. While wide overhangs, used on certain types of houses under certain types of conditions, are sometimes sufficient to handle this necessary task, most houses benefit from the gutter-downspout method of rain disposal.

Gutters are available in galvanized steel. aluminum. vinyl. stainless steel, copper and various other materials. Wood gutters, once so prevalent, are seen these days mostly on old houses and where special effects are sought by the architects or builders. The absence of a rain-carrying system often results in leaky foundations, continuous dampness, ruined shrubbery, and stained patios and walks. Gutters also protect persons entering and leaving the house from walking under the water dripping from the roof during a rainy period.

Where there is no such system or when the existing materials have passed the stage of repair, a considerable sum of money can be saved by installing the gutters and downspouts yourself. Modern connectors make the job much easier than it was years ago.

Baked-on finishes on certain materials eliminate the need for painting every few years. One of these materials, aluminum, can be cut with a hacksaw and tin snips. products. Hunter Douglas, estimates that one downspout should be used for each 772 square feet of roof area and one gutter length for each 10-foot section of roof line. It is necessary that the gutter be sloped slightly when hung. The downspout end of the new gutter should be one inch lower than level for every 30 feet of gutter.

You can purchase a gutter section with an "outlet tube" already assembled for attaching the downspout. Place strap hangers 64 inches apart or less. Each strap is placed under a roof shingle and nailed to the roof with an aluminum nail. Fascia hangers are nailed directly to the fascia board and the gutter is 'dropped" in and locked into place with a connecting strap. Nail fascia hangers to rafter ends every 64 inches or less. To connect the downspout. lay out elbow and pipe bands. The first section, a downspout or elbow, is connected to the outlet tube in the gutter. Hold this in place and drill holes for the rivets.

The authors said there are no facts to conclude that these organizations take orders from a "central authority," but they said "a significant degree of coordination of terrorist activities does exist and ... it is mainly communists who are doing the coordinating.

A foreword by Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Texas, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, describes the study as a "balanced and carefully reasoned perspective" which "dramatically demonstrates that terrorism is principally a political pathology, woven together by a vague Marxist ideology internationally, which is supported overtly and covertly by communist governments that wish to destabilize non-communist countries.

The study concludes, "There is virtual ly no terrorist operation or guerrilla movement anywhere in the world today whether communist, semi-communist, or non-communist, from the Irish Republican Army to the Palestine Liberation Organization to our own Weather Underground, with which communists of one sort or another have not been involved."

"This includes non-communist operations and movements," it said, "for communist parties and governments always stand ready to exploit disorder in Europe, the Middle East, Latin America and elsewhere, however and by whomever it is fomented.

Change In Criminal Code Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) - Maximum sentences would be reduced but parole and time off for good behavior also would be sharply cut in a Senate-approved revision of the criminal code, a study says.

The Congressional Research Service report said Wednesday the changes could nearly double the time federal criminals actually spend in prison.

Artists' Royalties Law Provokes Varied Reactions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's new law requiring resale royalties for visual artists presents a model for the nation while drawing mixed reviews.

The law, pushed through by "artists liberation," says that if you resell a work for more than $1,000, you must pay a 5 percent royalty to its creator, if living.

If the artist lives in France, that's where you send your check. If you can't find the artist, you send money to the California Arts Council which has seven years to find him.

The law applies to California residents wherever the sale is made, anywhere in the world - although there is a suspicion some royalties are being illegally evaded. The theory is artists are exploited by galleries and collectors because the art market is a very inefficient economic

"There's a myth that the artists are spiritual beings not interested in money whose art would suffer if they become concerned with the business," says Richard Mayer, San Francisco sculptor who heads Artists Equity.

Mayer, who is also a hotel bartender, says, "The myth works to keep prices down.

Nationally, probably less than 100 painters and sculptors earn enough exclusively from fine art to provide a family with a good living. Most of the best pay their bills by teaching. In an anecdote famous in the art world, Robert Rauschenberg sold a work for a $800 in 1960 and stood by in 1973 to see the painting auctioned for $85,000. Rauschenberg complained angrily to the seller, "I have been working all these years for you to make that profit.'

John J. Davis, Jr., of Bay Area Lawyers for the Arts explains that the price of a painting goes up - not just because of its intrinsic value - but because the artist keeps turning out more works and group of collectors and dealers promptly

The main criticism of California's resale royalties act is that it puts California California's new law went into effect in dealers and buyers at a disadvantage in January, but very few royalties are the national market. known to actually have been paid. A

Henry Hopkins, director of the San Francisco Museum of Art, says museums ties when they do. Museums also depend on contributions from large collectors injured by the law Hopkins suggests royalties be a percentage of the profit so that a buyer of a $50,-000 work who sells it for $60,000 would pay only on the profit, rather than on the whole $60,000.

But the California law is a model for legislation pending in Congress. The dealers say they would be a lot happier if the royalty principle applied to all Americans rather than just Californians.

Diamond Search Hikes Australian Mart LAFF - A - DAY

"See what I mean?"

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - The prospect of a rich diamond discovery in western Australia has touched off a stock market rally and prompted an international consortium to invest millions of dollars this year on testing and explora-

The search for diamonds is centered on the isolated Kimberley region of western Australia, which bears the same name as the huge South African diamond fields.

So far, Conzinc Rio Tinto of Australia, which last year earned $77.9 million from its interests in copper, zinc, aluminium, coal and iron ore, and its consortium partners have reported finds in kimber-lite material. Kimberlite is a clay-like substance forming the core of ancient volcanoes in which diamonds are usually found.

"The finds are promising enough for us to invest $6 million this year in a testing plant and further exploration," said Conzinc's John Falk, the company's diamond expert. "You can draw your own conclusions from that."

Wig Designers Use Molds Of Clients

fect fit. 'It is a function similar to that of a dentist when he makes an impression of a patient's mouth before proceeding with the actual work," said Hartwich.

Diamond fever has made diamond-exploration shares the hottest property on the Australian market.

The Ashton consortium, of which Conzinc owns 52.7 percent, includes Northern Mining, whose shares have moved from a low for the year of 26 cents to a high of $1.88. Stock of other small companies in the diamond search also have leapt.

Handicapped To Benefit From Transport Rules

Thursday designed to make it easier for handicapped persons to travel on planes, buses and trains.

The program, to be implemented over several years, would require recipients of financial aid from the department to equip vehicles and terminals with ramps, lifts, elevators and other special devices to help the handicapped.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said the proposed rules were "a response to the needs of the estimated 13 million

Reynolds Raising Aluminum Prices

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Reynolds Metals Co. confirmed today it has raised the price of alumininum sheets used for beverage cans and on body sheet and auto bumper stock.

A Reynolds spokesman said prices for luminum sheet used in beverage containers were boosted by approximately 4 cents a pound, effective with orders of June 2 and shipments of July 3.

Sheet aluminum used in automobile body panels was increased by 12 cents a pound and the price of bumper stock, used for reinforcing bars in automobile bumpers, by 8 cents a pound.

Both these price increases on automobile materials went into effect with orders of June 6 and shipments of July 3, the Reynolds spokesman said, and will vary somewhat according to the width of

Drought Eases In Cattle Areas

tle country of Southwest Texas is green again. That's the most obvious indication the year-long, cattle-killing drought is

But to a cattleman, the empty pens and the absence of out-of-state buyers in the Southwest Livestock Exchange auction barn here Thursday were more subtle, but just as telling, indications of the recent rains.

"This is the lightest day we've had since last fall," Joe Hargrove, owner of the sale barn, said Thursday, "And we had some people here buying from Carrizo Springs who were selling out here only three weeks ago. We don't have enough volume now to attract out-of-state buyers. The rain did all that.

ranchers were forced to sell their entire herds. Others sent their cattle to expensive feedlots or burned the spines off cactus to provide forage.

Dr. LeRoy Hoermann, a Texas Agriculture Extension Service area livestock specialist here, estimates the ranchers have either lost or been forced to sell 250,000 head of cattle because of the drought

At the height of the drought three weeks ago, Hargrove's auctioneer sold 3,-391 head of cattle in one numbing 16-hour session. Many of the bony cattle went to California and Montana ranchers who are re-stocking after the end of their own droughts.

But only about 1,000 head of cattle were sold Thursday. They were sleeker, grazing, and none of them went to out-of-

Most of the area has been doused with six to eight inches of rainfall in the past month, but some isolated areas remained dry. Delighted ranchers warn that those rains will only help them for about six

"I think this old country is gonna come back, but if there is no more rain, this won't last that long," said Eagle Pass farmer-rancher Zan Mathies.

This rain ought to get us out of trouble for about 45 days. Depending on if we get any more, we may be out of trouble entirely or we may be right back in it.' agreed rancher Jim Hiler of Pearsall.

"If it doesn't keep raining, it'll just get

who runs a huge feedlot near Eagle Pass. "We still need a lot more rain to fill up the tanks. We got a good start, but some ranchers don't have very much water in their tanks," said Mathies.

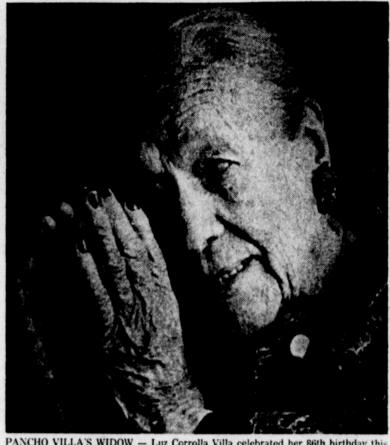

Zapata County Extension Agent Edmundo Martinez said, "Most of the rain is just helping the grass. There are some tanks that are full, but we still need a good tank rain of about four or five inch-

Crystal City ranchers R. C. and Larry Tate sold their last six head of cattle Thursday at Hargrove's sale barn and said they're waiting to see if it keeps raining before getting back in the cattle busi-

"We're just gonna start over, but we want to see if it rains some more," Larry Tate said. "We have to let the pastures build back up.

The rising beef prices and heavy rain in California and Montana might have saved Southwest Texas ranchers from total economic ruin, said Hargrove.

We are fortunate the market is real good." Hargrove said. "The out-of-state people had rain and the good market made them want to buy. That's about the only good thing about this - the market is real good.

Firefighters' Convention Sets Briscoe, Hill As Main Speakers

Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill will speak at the state Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association annual convention at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Saturday through Wednesday

Registration for the convention will be from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. until noon Sunday at the Civic Center Exhibit Hall. The convention program begins at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Civic Center Theatre with the introduction of city officials by Fire Chief Tom Foster and the welcome address by Councilman Alan Henry.

Monday's activities begin with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast for past association presidents, followed by Gov. Briscoe's speech at 9 a.m. in the Civic Center Theatre.

At 1 p.m. that afternoon, the Civic Center parking lot will be the scene of a driving contest with firefighters from the area driving pumper trucks over an ob-

DIES OF COMPLICATIONS - Guy the gorilla, the affable, 338-pound star attraction at the London Zoo, died Thursday. Cause of death was listed as too much civilization and kindness lavished upon him by adoring fans. It seems sweets tossed to him by fans ruined his teeth, and he died of a heart attack while coming out of anasthesia after having them pulled. He was 32 and Europe's oldest and largest gorilla in captivity.

House Vote May Aid NY's Financial Bid

backers are hoping that the easy House passage of a long-term federal aid package for the city will persuade reluctant members of the Senate add their support. Sen. # Boy Saves Third Life

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Ten-year-old Frankie Cruz has never had any formal swimming lessons, much less a life saving course. But he was credited Thursday for the third time with saving a youngster from drowning.

Thursday's incident began when 2year-old Jonnas Rodriguez fell into an apartent complex pool, said Cruz' mother, Florence Cruz Fitueroa.

Cruz leaped in, but encountered difficulty. "I found myself going under with the little boy and tried hard to keep both of us afloat," said Cruz, whose uncle, 14year-old Anthony Barajas, then jumped in to help pull the two out.

When he was 5 years old, Cruz was credited with saving a 2-year-old girl from drowning in a neighborhood pool. "I just know that someone had to save her, so I did my best to pull her from under the water because no one else was around," he said.

Three weeks ago, Cruz pulled a 5-yearold boy from deep water in the same apartment complex pool, his mother

- Homeowners may get an immediate windfall. Some lenders are already planning to reduce monthly house payments by the amount allocated for year-end property taxes. About 500,000 Californians pay their property taxes through these "impound accounts." Those who pay separately wouldn't feel the impact until their regular tax bills arrive in the fall. Homeowners will save an average of $870 a year, according to a legislative committee's analysis.

Owners of non-residential property stand to save $2.9 billion in taxes this year, state officials say, but California's $450 million annual inventory tax will be restored since its elimination was contingent on defeat of Proposition 13. The inventory tax, combined with the possibility that the state's corporate income tax may be increased, may make California less attractive to business. Many of the state's biggest companies, including the Bank of America and Atlantic Richfield Corp., campaigned against Proposition

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) - Charles Kingsford-Smith Jr. landed at Brisbane's Eagle Farm Airport today, completing a solo flight across the Pacific on the 50th anniversary of history's first trans-Pacific tlight by his Australian father.

The 45-year-old electronics engineer from Colorado had planned to land at 10:10 a.m., the time at which Capt Charles Kingsford-Smith and C.T.P. Ulm landed the Southern Cross at the Brisbane airport on June 9, 1928. But strong head winds off the coast delayed him 35

Charles Jr. taxied his plane to the hangar where the Southern Cross, a tri-motor Fokker monoplane, is preserved.

About 800 persons were on hand to welcome him. Among them were his wife, Mary, and his mother, Mary Tully of Toronto, Canada.

Like his father, Kingsford-Smith took off from Oakland, Calif., and stopped along the 7,389-mile route at Honolulu and Fiji. But Charles Jr. flew solo while his father and Ulm were accompanied by navigator Harry Lynn and radio operator

James Warner. His father, who was knighted for his teat, was killed in a plane crash in 1934 when his son was 2 years old. Charles Jr. said he was making the flight "as a way to get to know my dad indirectly by sharng some experiences that were impor-

Reeves 778th Selected

Major League baseball threw sports writers a curve Thursday when it continaed the annual free agent draft.

Indications were that the draft had ended after 22 rounds and 558 selections Wednesday. But such was not the case, as Thursday it resumed and went for a total of 48 rounds and 779 players.

Wednesday it was believed that Lubbock Christian College centerfielder Darius Copley was toward the end of the selections as he was the 543rd player picked.

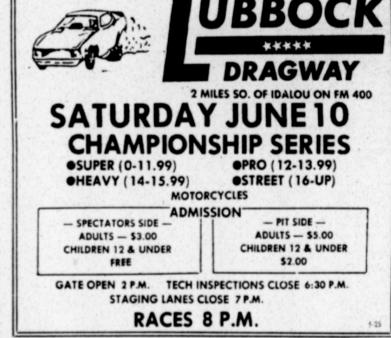

That honor, however, went to another Lubbockite, as Monterey moundsman Ron Reeves was the 778th player tabbed. oing in the 47th round. Reeves, who burled MHS into the state championship came Thursday, was the only player se lected that round, going to Cleveland who also made another schoolboy pitcher. Delbert Stacey of Rutland, Vt., HS the final selection of the year.

John Moses, who hurled Houston Bellaire into the state finals opposite MHS. went to Toronto in the 23rd round.

Other Texans picked Thursday includ University of Texas pitcher Jim McCoy to Kansas City (23), A&M pitcher Mark Thurmond to San Diego (24), University of Texas pitcher Terry Wright to San Francisco (24), Comfort HS pitcher Warren Reeh to Los Angeles (24), El Paso Eastwood pitcher Lawrence Dugger to Atlanta (26). Baylor pitcher Burl Coker to third baseman Paul Robinson to Atlanta 28). Arkansas pitcher William Bakewell to Cincinnati (28), SMU pitcher Sammy Bickham to Philadelphia (30), Dallas Baptist catcher Stephen Paine to Rang-

St. Louis (43) and Bryan outfielder Thomas Chandler, who father is the Texas A&M coach and who was picked to conclude the 46th round, just in front of

Big Eight Czar Tells Congress NCAA FrequentlyMisunderstood

- R.L. Tallman, Houston

Neinas, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, told a Congressional subcommittee today the NCAA is "currently in a no-win situation relative to enforce-

One of the difficulties confronting the NCAA today is that it is frequently misunderstood, both internally and externalr." Neinas told the House Subcommittee on Oversights and Investigations.

"I am not sure that anyone involved in an enforcement operation, including the Big Eight Conference, can develop a perfect system that will satisfy everyone

The Subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., launched a probe of NCAA enforcement policies last fall and has heard dozens of witnesses. Neinas, who worked for the NCAA for 10 years before becoming Big Eight commissioner in 1971, offered several suggestions to treamline the organization's enforcement department and create an atmosphere of trust among enforcement peronnel and the member universities they. in effect, work for Neinas prefaced his remarks by saving the NCAA has been "Very important to the conduct of college athletics. There are may benefits which have accured to the colleges and university bece of the NCAA," Neinas said.

There is a definite need for a national college sports organization. If the NCAA were ruled out of business today, a new organization would be required to take its place tomorrow.

The Big Eight commissioner, one of the most widely respected athletic administrators in the United States, said one change that must be forged is to divorce the NCAA Committee on Infractions from the enforcement staff.

Those of us involved in college athletics have a high regard for the gentlemen who comprise the NCAA Committee on Infractions. However, close association between the enforcement staff and the Committee on Infractions leaves the institution involved in an infractions hearing with an uneasy feeling.

ship between the Committee and the enforcement staff frequently leads the accused institution to conclude that the hearing procedure may be less than fair. although such a conclusion may be based more on appearance than fact.

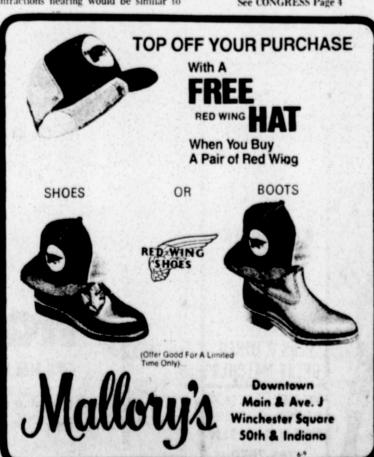

Neinas suggested the creation of a separate staff "to perform the necessary administrative functions and clerical details which now basically fall to the enforcemment staff.

Those involved in the conduct of the infractions hearing would be similar to stitution would not find the enforcement staff serving in the dual capacity of prosecutor, as well as assisting those who are to judge the case.

In another effort to remove the element of mistrust. Neinas advocated what would be a revolutionary change in NCAA procedures - having the accused school work directly with the enfordcement staff on an investigation.

It has been my experience that college presidents are interested in the conduct See CONGRESS Page 4

Analysis

In a season in which two great thoroughbreds have gone head to head, the dice have finally come up with another number. After being beaten out by Affirmed in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, stretch-running Alydar should get his revenge in the 11/2-mile Belmont.

Too bad. It's spoils a wonderful story. Don't bet the family farm on it. It's strictly intuitive. It's a hunch that was enhanced by the pre-race launching Wednesday evening of Cauthen's biography, "The Kid" authored by Pete Axthelm.

It was some clambake - wall-to-wall smart people jammed into a midtown eatery, television lights flashing all over the place, camera bulbs popping, a giant horsehoe of roses and paperback books forming a backdrop.

One would have thought it was a preview of "Gone With The Wind

Sponsors waited until the room had filled and then had the 18-year-old, 96-pound riding phenom walk in through a rear door. Cameramen had been alerted.

Stevie looked spiffy in his blue Bili Blass blazer with brass buttons. His ear-length hair was perfectly groomed.

As usual, he was the picture of poise and decorum - a young man who already has acheived enough for a lifetime. But a biography at age 18? How ludicrous. It should be equipped with loose-leaf pages.

Steve looked uncomfortable in the wild, teeming setting. He is only at ease astride a horse, where the two meld into a

Yet he never lost his cool. Like the late Gary Cooper, Cauthen is a "yup" and "nope" man. He replies in monosyllables only when a nod or a shake of the head won't do.

Pressed, he can be as articulate as anyone. 'We will win," he replied forthrightly but without braggadocio. "This is the best horse I've ever rode. He can run on any track, in any conditions. He can run with the pace or off

"Yeah, I am confident."

In the wings, a leathery man, uncomfortable in a tie and coat, watched the proceedings quizically but with pride. His boy has done well

"I always felt he would be a good rider," said Ronald 'Tex' Cauthen, a blacksmith from Walton, Ky. "He has a good seat, sensitive hands, good reflexes. He is smart. He is not afraid.

"But Velasquez (Jorge, Alydar's jockey) is a fine rider, too - one of the best. I thought he got the most out of his horse in both the Derby and the Preakness. In a race like this, where they are so closely matched, It is decided on a very fine line. I hope my boy can do it, but anything can happen. And probably will.

Coach To Use Son As 'Test Case

TORONTO (AP) - Birmingham Bulls owner John Bassett says he's going to use his 17-year-old son as a test case in Canadian courts over the controversial signing of under-age junior hockey play-

A meeting of the World Hockey Association here Wednesday deferred to the league's annual meeting in Edmonton, Alberta, June 20-21, the question of signing players before their junior eligibility

If the WHA decides against signing gifted teen-age players, Bassett plans to give his son, John IV, a contract then make a test case of the signing in a Canadian court to secure an order to prevent his being banned by the league.

Bassett last season signed Ken Linseman, then an 18-year-old star with the Kingston Canadians of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League, to a pro con-fired last year in the opening day of the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic. In that tournament, however, he followed with a tour record 59 in the second round

This time he was a distant six shots back of Mike Morley's 66 that set the pace Thursday in the $250,000 event that was interrupted by a thunderstorm and accompanying tornado warning Play was held up for almost two hours and the final men in the field finished in darkness on the rain-soaked, 7.249-yard Colonial Country Club course

The storm was one of a series that has moved through the area and left the course a muddy mess. Players were allowed to lift, clean and place the ball in the fairways

We ought to do it every week, regardless of the conditions," said Lee Trevino. "That way you're rewarded for hitting a good drive. What difference does it make if you hit the perfect drive right in the middle of the fairway and end up in somebody's divot?

We ought to be able to put our hands on it in the fairway every week."

Trevino, who had to endure the twohour delay, had a chance to tie for second but missed a 4-foot birdie putt on the fi-

That left him one shot back of Barry Jaeckel. Morley's playing partner in the hot, humid morning round. Jaeckel, who said he was "just trying to keep pace with Mike, trying not to embarass myself," finished off a 67 with 32 on the back nine

Tied with Trevino at 68 were Allen Miller, who had a hole-in-one with a 4iron on the 200-yard 15th hole. Spain's Seve Ballesteros, Miller Barber, Bob Gilder, Jim Colbert, Jim Simons, Alan Tapie and rookie Mike Sullivan.

Gary Player, winner of the Masters and two other events earlier this season, had to rally for a 73 and Johnny Miller shot

Morley, a low-key, soft-spoken journeyman, had an extremely solid effort. He didn't make a bogey and missed only one

"I've been in a two-month slump," he said. "I played too much early this year and got too tired. I let my swing get too long. I've been trying to shorten it. I had good ball-striking round today, real solid. I'm very pleased.

He got off to a quick start with birdie putts of 25 and 15 feet on the first two holes and then went 3 under par with an approach that stopped 6 feet from the flag on No. 4

He birdied the seventh from 12 feet, hit 6-iron to within 6 feet on No. 10 and birdied the par-5 16th with two putts after reaching the green with a 3-wood second shot battles tonight to prove he's a legitimate heavyweight boxing champion.

The 32-year-old ex-Marine was given the title by the World Boxing Council when Leon Spinks signed to give Muhammad Ali a return match in New Orleans

Never before has the heavyweight crown been awarded outside the ring, but Norton says he deserves it even though he would rather have fought Spinks in the fight the WBC had wanted.

Norton goes against undefeated Larry Holmes, who was the challenger named by the WBC to fight Norton in his first ti-

"I'll fight anybody, and I'd like to fight said Norton. And Holmes echoed the view, saying he would also like to fight the winner of the Spinks-Ali

Norton and Holmes dislike each other heartily, but nevertheless Holmes stood up for Norton, saying the WBC made the right decision in stripping the title from Spinks when he would not fight Norton in his first title defense.

To avoid any conflict similar to a training camp incident on Tuesday, the two heavyweights were weighed in 30 minutes apart. Norton scaled 220 pounds and Holmes 209 for their 15-round battle at Caesars Palace. The bout will be televised by ABC at 7 p.m. CDT.

In the undercard, Carlos Zarate of Mexico City defends his WBC bantamweight title against Emilio Hernandez, the No. 7 challenger from Venezuela. The undefeated Zarate has KOd 50 cf his 51 foes.

Norton, in this city where betting is legal, was an 8-5 favorite against the 28year-old Holmes, who is unbeaten in 27.

Legal difficulties were apparently worded when U.S. District Judge Roger Foley said he would not rule until later on a suit by Spinks who seeks to regain WBC recognition.

The World Boxing Association stills recognizes Spinks and Norton said, "It might be a year before we again have on-and that was too light. I had a brainstorm and went on a fish and fowl diet which left me light but with no endurance. This time I've been eating beef." Norton readily agreed with newsmen asking about the animosity between he and Hoimes, but said, "I don't like it.

We'll settle it in the ring. Norton has claimed Holmes talks to much, trying to emulate Ali, while the challenger says the champion slighted him and others in past years. Holmes said he would like to fight Ali but doubted the former champion would get into the ring with him. That echoed Norton's claim that Ali did not want to

Borg Zips Past Ramirez

Bjorn Borg may be a merciless machine on court, but his fiancee Mariana Simionecsu says that behind his icy exterior 'he's very warm, kind and not tough."

"I think it's not true Borg is an iceberg," says Simionescu, a warm, traditional Romanian who plays on the women's tennis circuit. "You can't judge somebody by the way he plays. He is completely different in private life.

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, Borg and Miss Simionescu talked of their life off court, their plans to marry in two years, their desire for children and their difficultives with the Romanian people over their decision to live together before marriage.

Whether speaking of tennis' glamorous groupies or Bjorn's new interest in reading history, the young couple laughed happily together Thursday following Borg's quarter-final victory over Mexico's Raul Ramirez, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

Borg, the favorite to win his third French Open crown, plays a semifinal match Saturday against Italy's Corrado Barazzutti, who beat No. 4-seeded Eddie Dibbs 6-2, 7-6, 6-1 in another match Thursday.

Dick Stockton and defending champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina square off in Saturday's other semifinal match

It was here on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium that Borg first began courting Miss Simionescu two years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) - American League President Lee MacPhail has reprimanded Billy Martin for some gestures made on the field by the New York Yankee manager, an official of the league said Thursday

In a letter to Yankee President Al Rosen, MacPhail called attention to the inridents in Baltimore and Cleveland and such behavior was not acceptable.

This is done routinely all the time, said Bob Fishel, assistant to MacPhail. The letter was sent along with a league bulletin that went to all clubs regarding rescheduled games, umpire matters and problem with language and gestures."

Rosen said he had spoken with Martin about the problem and that the manager had assured him it would not happen

They both want children but Mariana said it might not be a good idea to have another young tennis star in the family because the father was so good. Borg, who already has captured two titles each at Wimbledon, the Italian Open and the French Open, also sees the end of his career within five to seven years.

Third base coach Pat Corrales didn't think Bobby Bonds' fly ball to shallow right field in the 13th inning was deep enough for Bump Wills to risk trying to tag at third and go for the winning run. As Al Cowens made the catch, Corrales yelled "No" and Wills hesitated at first as if to stay where he was, then thought better of it and set sail.

Wills collided safe at home with catcher Darrell Porter, and the run gave the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over Kansas City and a sweep of a double-header that began seven hours earlier.

The victory, combined with a 5-4 victory in the opener, pushed the Rangers past the Royals into second place 212 games behind Oakland in the American League

In other American League games, Chicago edged Minnesota 2-1 and California beat Oakland 10-7. In National League games. Montreal toppled Los Angeles 4-1. Chicago romped over Cincinnati 10-1 and St. Louis blanked Atlanta 2-0. Houston's game at Pittsburgh was rained out. "The ball didn't go far enough to beat us. We should still be playing. It's a tough way to lose," Royals manager Whitey Herzog said:

A drained Porter, after playing 22 innings, sat stretched out before his locker in the dressing room.

"I don't know if the throw was good or not. I'm too tired to know," he said. "It got there before he (Wills) did, and if I catch the ball we get him. I guess I just missed it I felt the ball hit the end of my glove, but I never did tag him.

Bonds walked on a 3-2 pitch, and Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, the American League's second-leading hitter, pushed a base hit between third base and shortstop to score two runs and tie the game at 2-

"I knew I had a no-hitter going, but I was trying hard not to think about it,' Gale said. "My biggest concentration was to win it.

Walks led to Gale's downfall. He gave up two of them in the first inning and let them advance to second and third with one out by heaving a wild pitch past Porter. He then settled down and retired the next 17 batters before walking Hargrove in the seventh. Hargrove drew a walk in the fourth but was cut down on a double

He gave up two more walks in the ninth as Texas loaded the bases with nobody out and appeared ready to end things then. But a force out at home, a squeeze play that misfired and a fly ball sent the game into overtime.

Gale left after 8 23 innings with a threehitter. Steve Comer, Texas' third pitcher, Steve Rogers would be very happy if he did not have to pitch to Reggie Smith again . . . especially in Montreal's Olympic Stadium.

Thursday night, Smith tagged Rogers for another homer - at Olympic Stadium, of course - depriving the Montreal right-hander of a no-hitter.

After Smith's first-inning smash, Rogers did not allow Los Angeles another hit, pitching Montreal to a 4-1 victory over the Dodgers. "I made a mistake early, but any time you can keep them to one hit, especially a team like the Dodgers, you've got to feel good," said Rogers, 7-5. "I just wish the hit hadn't been a home run. Rogers didn't walk a batter and struck out six in hurling his sixth complete game in 14 starts. It was his third career one-hitter, and included seven fly balls and 14 infield outs. "I'm a ground-ball pitcher," said Rogers. "When you see me high, I'm not pitching my game."

After Smith's homer, Rogers retired 19 batters in a row until Steve Garvey led off the eighth by reaching second on a throwing error by third baseman Larry Parrish. Garvey and Smith were the Meanwhile, Montreal had tied the score against Don Sutton in the fifth on a single by Parrish, a sacrifice and an RBI single by Dave Cash. And the Expos went ahead 4-1 in the sixth on singles by Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine and a homer by Andre Dawson.

Cubs 10, Reds 1

The victory increased the Cubs hold on first place in the NL East to one game over idle Philadelphia, while the loss dropped Cincinnati into second place in the NL West, .008 behind the idle San Francisco Giants.

Rick Reuschel, backed by a 14-hit attack including Bobby Murcer's three-run homer, spaced seven hits and struck out 10 in beating the Reds for the fourth consecutive time over the past two seasons.

"He was throwing the ball on the outside corner and the inside corner," Cubs catcher Dave Rader said about Reuschel, See RANGERS Page 6

NCAA Committee Benches Organist OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Southern California won the College World Series Thursday night, but they did it without the help of their designated organist,

Madeline Franks. Mrs. Franks was benched by the NCAA Games Committee before the title game, in which the Trojans hammered Arizona State 10-3 to win the series.

"I've seen players benched before, but I've never had an organist benched." said USC Coach Rod Dedeaux following the game. "I don't know why it hap-

It happened because the NCAA received some complaints from fans, said Texas Tech baseball coach Kal Segrist, chairman of the Games Committee. "We received some complaints. It was not a complaint by a coach. It was and away for more than seven years. "She's an institution," a Trojan fan said And the players know when Mrs. Franks is around. She plays USC's "Carr music for USC opponents in her performance. The Hernet, Calif., woman could not be reached for comment late Thursday

An Omaha organist took over the keyboard for the title game. With the Trojans winning, even he played "Carry On" quite a bit.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young says he hopes the United States will hold talks with the Soviet Union "to spell out the meaning of detente in Africa," but he puts a lesser priority on trying to prevent Soviet domination of Africa.

"I think we have an interest in preventing anyone else from dominating Africa," he said in an interview with The Associated Press, "but I put that No. 3 ... after our concern for human rights and our economic interests."

"I am convinced that in any peaceful competition with the Soviets and the Cubans we win hands down and lose nothing," said Young.

"In military confrontations, we can win but it's at great cost both financially and in human lives. It may not be American lives, but it's still a high cost to pay and it's unnecessary."

Young said the Cubans had changed from "the stabilizing influence" in Africa he credited them with last year to a "militarist, interventionist role" in Angola and Ethiopia.

He said they were "shedding too much

solved politically rather than militarily.
However, Young said along with "cross-the-border incursions from Angola into Zaire, for two years there have been cross-the-border incursions from Zaire to Angola, and in a sense we can't stop one without stopping the other."

"If we are holding the Cubans, the Angolans and the Russians responsible for their allies, then we should also assume some responsibility for our allies," he declared.

He opposed U.S. involvement in any fighting in Africa, declaring:
"I say again and again that anybody that thinks a single drop of American blood ought to be shed for a thousand miles of sand is crazy."

He was referring to suggestions that the

He was referring to suggestions that the United States should have helped the Somalis in their losing battle to detach the Ogaden desert from the Soviet Union's Ethiopian allies.

He said the Russians fish in Africa "for points of influence" and they "very cynically give weapons to almost anybody that wants to upset anybody else." Young said both the Cubans and the Russians had "to assume some responsibility" for the massacre of Europeans in Kolwezi, Zaire, last month by dissident natives of the area returning from Ango-

Here are some questions and answers from the interview:

Q. How would you in fact define U.S. national interests in relation to Africa generally?

A. It's a combination of our economic interest and our human rights interest. I think that our country has always been on the side of majority rule... We've always tried to encourage the development of democratic institutions.

Q. The (Congressional) Black Caucus, as you know, yesterday decided that the U.S. policy toward Africa is war-oriented. Do you concur?

A. No. I don't. I think the Black Caucus is responding to the news reports of the last month, and there's been a lot of tough talk in the newspapers in the last month. But our policy toward Africa essentially is an aggressive diplomatic approach utilizing the organizations of the United Nations and working with the Organization of African Unity.

Young said he did not agree with his government's refusal to recognize the Marxist government of Angola.

"I would say," he explained, "that we would protect the possibility of liberalizing the policy of whatever government is in control in Angola by working with them. We would enhance and increase American economic interest. And we would tend to neutralize even the present Soviet and Cuban influence."

The dispute, which began over problems between children of the families, mushroomed to include two fistfights, two attempted hit-and-run incidents and a major brawl with weapons ranging from a pool cue to a rifle.

The combatants finally reached a truce through the intervention of the federal government. They agreed to submit their feud to mediation under the auspices of a new, experimental "neighborhood jus-

The warring families in Kansas City sat down with three mediators for more than six hours and came up with a solution. One family decided to move away, and both sides promised not to bother each other in the meantime.

The centers, a pet project of Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, have reported settling a good percentage of the problems reaching them in the initial weeks of operation.

Each center is run by four or five fulltime staffers who recruit two to three dozen mediators from the community. Each mediator is paid $15 per case from an 18-month budget of about $200,000 at "The centers are an institution of modest dimensions that should be effective in dealing with problems of modest dimensions," Bell said when he dedicated the Kansas City center in March.

That center is in a bank building in a downtown residential area. A storefront is the home of the experiment in Los Ana house next to a school.

The centers have been active in helping solve family and neighborhood squabbles, the majority of which occur in lowincome communities, and differences between customers and merchants and between landlords and tenants, which occur mostly in middle-class areas.

A typical case involved a tenant in Atlanta who had paid $800 to have his apartment repaired and was deducting the sum from his rent until he had recovered his expenses. When a new landlord took over, he wanted to rent to a new tenant.

With help from a mediator, the tenant agreed to move out in return for reimbursement for the repairs.

Bell describes the program as "the wave of the future" in reducing the number of lengthy court battles, at least in cases where quick solutions are possible with an outside mediator's prodding.

We must have a variety of institutions to resolve fairly and efficiently the great variety of disputes that arise," Bell said. "Otherwise, our justice system will continue to teeter on the brink of collapse.

Gen. Bradley Continues Career At Age 85 With Five Stars

EL PASO (UP1) - By law, a five-star D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, general in the U.S. Army remains on active duty until his death. Probably the last man who ever will hold this rank is Gen. Omar N. Bradley, now based at Fort Bliss, near here.

At 85. Bradley is crippled by arthritis and conducts his daily affairs in a wheelchair. But as often as possible, the aging leader speaks to military classes on the

"He's a saint," said one senior officer assigned to the general's staff. "You can't believe how he inspires these men when he goes out to speak. He's the hero that we've lost and found again."

Bradley's No. 1 admirer is probably his wife of 13 years, the former Kitty Buhler. Mrs. Bradley was Hollywood screenwriter, and when she isn't at the gener-

George C. Marshall and Chester Nimitz. Although Eisenhower relenquished his commission while serving as president, he reassumed his billet after leaving the White House.

Despite Bradley's illness, he maintains a full travel schedule. During the last half of June he and his wife will visit Los Angeles, Owensboro, Ky., and San Antonio.

A trip is planned next year to the D-Day festivities on the beaches of Normandy in France, along with a side visit to Eng-

'New Evangelicals' Gain Attention Of Politicians

By DAVID E. ANDERSON United Press International Writer

The nation's evangelical community. which came to public prominence with the election of born-again Southern Baptist layman Jimmy Carter as president, is finding itself up against the world and divided on its response.

Since 1976, when George Gallup looked at the election returns as well as his own polls on American religiosity and declared the year of the evangelical." a host of commentators have attempted to sort out and categorize evangelicals and their role in contemporary society

In that process, a great deal of attention has been focused on the so-called 'new evangelicals." politically left-leaning radicals who continue to maintain a biblical, conservative theological approach

Led by the Washington-based Sojourners community, the evangelical left, joined by others from the mainline Protestant and Roman Catholic anti-war constituency, recently issued a statement calling on the church to actively resist the nuclear arms race.

Our primary allegiance to Jesus Christ and his kingdom commits us to total abolition of nuclear weapons," the statement

It is not surprising to find on the list of signatories the names of the Rev. Daniel Berrigan and his brother Philip or Episcopal layman William Stringfellow or Donald Shriver of Union Theological

But Jeb Stuart McGruder, former Nixon aide and now with the evangelical Young Life organization? Or people from Southern Baptist Theolgocial Seminary, southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, the Baptist General Convention of Texas or World Vision International?

Those are institutions not normally known for attracting people who take a politically radical stance.

One of the best introductions to the the whole evangelical spectrum can be found in Richard Quebedeaux recent book. "The Worldly Evangelicals" (Harper and Quebedeaux notes that by and large in the 20th century white evangelicals have been either apolitical or associated with the Republican Party.

Since 1973, however, when a group of mostly younger evangelicals hammered cal Social Concern, that has changed and a new generation, challenging not only the political stance of the older evangelicals but some of their theological presuppositions as well has emerged.

"Within the evangelical community as a whole," Quebedeaux notes, "evangelicals of the left are probably a small mipority at the present time, but an increasingly vocal and influential one, to say the

While the older generation regards the bible as an inerrant depository of divine revelation, the new evangelicals are more likely to understand Scripture as functional, with the power to change and transform life.

They insist," Quebedeaux writes, 'that a precise doctrine of the inspiration and authority of Scripture is far less important than unconditional obedience to what it demands, urguing that those Christians most committed to inerrancy have tended to be the least passionate about the biblical requirements of social justice, righteousness and peace.

lately a crusader against homosexuality. She's considering a bid to be nominated for a denominational vice presidency. While membership climbed 1.2 percent last year, continuing a steady upward pattern that has contrasted sharply with the slump in most major Protestant bodies, enrollments in Sunday schools and ation of theological ignoramuses," says the Rev. Grady C. Cothen, president of the the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn. But efforts were being made to counter the slippage.

The Rev. Roy T. Edgemon, director of the church training department, said he senses that "pastors are now recognizing that the failure to train our people in Bible doctrine, discipleship and ministry is the cause of an erosion in all Baptist life.

"I also believe that pastors are now ready to move aggressively to equip, build up and grow their people in the Lord. The drop in baptisms, which fell 10.1

per cent last year to a total of 345,690, the lowest number since 1949, was causing even more concern as well as considerable perplexity. The decline hit last year even in Texas where Baptists had staged a million dollar media blitz and statewide revivals Eying the drop in baptisms despite the special efforts, the Rev. L. L. Morriss. the Baptists' state evangelism director.

"If we hadn't pulled out all the stops there's no telling where we would have come out. Virginia and South Carolina also experienced large declines in baptisms de spite massive evangelistic efforts "It's very disheartening," says South Carolina's evangelism director, the Rev. Earl Crumpler. "I have no concrete answers."

At a conference about the matter, state evangelism directors cited various demographic factors that have previously hit other denominations, such as falling birth rates, population mobility, the lure of quasi-religious movements, as well as people moving into the Southern "sunbelt' without roots in its strong church

"I think God is trying to say something to us, but we are like Rip Van Winkle and are sleeping through it," says the Rev. C. B. Hogue, the denomination's evangelism section director. "Maybe God is trying to bring spiritual renewal, but we

pening out there. The dip in baptisms came despite a tendency to baptize children at a younger age, differing with the Baptist tradition of baptizing at an "age of decision." Citing a growing trend to baptize children before school age, the head of the Southern Baptist historical commission, the Rev. Richard D. Patton, says it appears to "put us precariously close to the practice of infant baptism.

ren." which suggested that social conditions such as poverty and unemployment are more injurious to families than psychological or personal problems. The first report of the Carnegie Council provides an excellent description of the influence of societal injustice upon the family and its debilitating effects on children." Mrs. Lindner said. "If we say that children are a natural resource, our most vital natural resource," she said, "then we must also say that society has a responsibility to make available those things a child needs." The problem with conservatives, she said, was that they mistake government support as governmental regulation. We don't care if a child has a taco, or pasta or meat loaf," she said. "Does a family have the ability to take care of the physical necessities of life so it is freed up to perform the other, more valuable functions - that is the question.

"It is not our job to write public law." she said. "But the parents who encountered the slings and arrows of being parents. of having public policy impact on their life, have the right to do something other than just fall on their knees."

This is a part of the pastoral ministry of the church to the family," she said. The basis of ministry is the assumption that lives change.

A healthy family ought to work - and all too many don't." she said.

The afternoon sun was streaming through the altar window the day Ken and Carole spoke their vows. She looked even lovelier with the soft transfusion of light upon her face. But, had it been a cloudy day, there would have been no less promise in it for this couple.

Love needs light. But the light that love needs comes not from the heavens but from Heaven itself. It is the light of divine truth . . . of faith . . . of religious commitment.

That is exactly what our marriage vows mean to Christians. This is why we usually prefer to be married in church. Our promises are given not only to one another but to God. Our love looks up to Him who described himself as the Light of the world.

For Ken and Carole every Sunday in church renews the glow on their faces ... and in their hearts.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Rises 2.69 To 864.78

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market headed higher today, overcoming some early selling that followed the news of a sharp increase in the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 3 points in early trading, was up 2.69 at 864.78 by noontime.

Gainers and losers were about evenly balanced in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

At the close on Thursday the Federal Reserve listed a $4.2 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week

Analysts said the news was taken as a sign that troublesome inflationary pressures continued to build up in the economy. They also noted that the data appeared to increase the likelihood that the Fed would tighten credit further in the near future

But by mid-morning, selling had dried up and prices began rising. Brokers said the market appeared to be benefiting from buying by investing institutions which had been waiting for an opportune time to add to their holdings before the end of the second quarter:

active NYSE issue, off 1/4 at 11. A 332.500-share block traded at 10%. The NYSE's composite index rose .04 to 56.24. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .20 at 149.30. Volume on the Big Board came to 14.01 million shares at noontime, against 17.19 million at the same point Thursday.

Only Hint Of Intruder

By GIL BROYLES

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) - A four-or five-foot square section of canvas slashed from a tent flap was the only hint that intruders might have been in the area of a camp where three Girl Scouts were molested and killed last summer, a camp ranger testified.

Ben Woodward, who lives with his family at Camp Scott in northeastern Oklahoma, said the cut tent was discovered a few hours before the scouts arrived

However, the slain girls were in a different tent and no evidence has been presented to establish a link between the hole in the tent and the killings.

The camp ranger's testimony came Thursday during a preliminary hearing for Gene Leroy Hart, 34, charged with first degree murder in the slayings of Lori Lee Farmer, 8: Michel Guse, 9: and Doris Denise Milner, 10, all from the Tulsa area.

The hearing is expected to last about two weeks.

When Hart was charged on June 23. 1977 - 10 days after the killings - he had been a fugitive for nearly four years after escaping from the Mayes County jail in 1973.

He was recaptured at an eastern Oklahoma shack April 6 by authorities acting on a tip.

No evidence linking Hart with the slayings has been presented in the hearings. which have attracted crowds of up to 300 people. Some 100 can be seated in the courtroom. Others watch via closed circuit television in a city auditorium across the street. Testimony during the first two days revealed that the 27 young Girl Scouts in the Camp Kiowa section of the campground were restless as they settled in for what was to have been a two-week encampment.

Counselors testified the girls were not quiet until about 1:30 a.m. Less than five hours later, the victims' bodies were discovered with their sleeping bags several yards from their tent

The first Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper at the camp testified Thursday that the girls' bloody tent had a slit in a rear panel that could have allowed the killer to enter undetected. Barbara Day, camp director at the time of the slayings, testified Thursday she learned several weeks after the killings that a note threatening the death of four girls at the camp had been discovered during an earlier camping session.

Mrs. Day said the mother of a Scout who had been at the camp in April told her that such a note had been found.

There was no indication why officials of later camping sessions were not informed of the threatening note.

There were published reports of the note during the investigation last year. but officials have kept a tight lid on evidence in the case and have not said whether there is a link between the reported note and the killings.

Tower Slated At Banquet

U.S. Sen. John Tower will be guest speaker Saturday at a banquet celebrating the 6th anniversary of the Lubbock SER Jobs for Progress project.

The banquet will be at 7:30 p.m. at the

Economic Hearing Slated This Month

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) - Does communist economic infiltration threaten to strike at the heart of America's clothespin industry? A federal hearing is scheduled here later this month to find

The June 22 hearing before the U.S. International Trade Commission will try to determine how much the domestic wooden clothespin industry is being hurt by increased imports from China, Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

Diamond International Corp., with a plant in Peru, Maine; Forster Manufacturing Co. of Wilton; Penley Corp. of West Paris; and National Clothespin Co. of Montpelier, Vt., said profits are down and jobs are in jeopardy because of a flood of wooden pins from communist nations. In Maine alone, some 300 jobs are involved.

The four manufacturers, banded together as the Clothespin and Veneer Products Association, petitioned the commission last month, claiming that increased imports were disrupting the market.

RATE HEARING SET

AUSTIN (AP) - Railroads that operate in Texas have asked the railroad commission for an across-the-board 4 percent increase in freight rates. The commission set a hearing for Aug. 14.

by waiters and waitresses, long an almost tax-free source of income, are coming under closer scrutiny by the Internal Revenue Service.

Under Scrutiny Of IRS

An IRS spokesman noted that new rules require tips to be reported to employers. He said tax agents have been paying closer attention in recent years to tips that workers receive. However, because tips are usually cash, and record-keeping can be sloppy, it is a tough area to enforce, he said.

In a recent case the U.S. Tax Court ruled that a California waitress underreported her income from tips in 1973, after the Internal Revenue Service did an audit and determined average tip income in her hometown.

According to court records Nancy M. Hutt Rector, a waitress at Negri's Restaurant in Occidental, Calif., reported $367 in income from tips in 1973. She had not kept records.

Glad You Asked That!

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

The IRS reported that this income represented about 2 percent of the bills paid by her customers.

There are three restaurants in Occidental, all catering to the family trade. All three were audited in 1973 by the IRS, which determined that the normal tipping rate at all three was 6 percent.

So the IRS claimed that Mrs. Rector had underreported her income by $770.21 and sought taxes on that amount.

After hearing testimony that waitresses were sometimes undertipped at banquets, and some customers would leave without paying, the court ruled that Mrs. Rector had underreported her income by $685 and she owed taxes on

WASHINGTON (AP) - One problem with major speeches is that they seldom are. And President Carter's latest assessment of U.S. Soviet relations tends to prove the rule

Analysis

stead, he summarized a situation and a dilemma that has confronted administrations ever since the Cold War thawed into

And if the message was for Moscow, it also was for the American electorate and the congressional critics who contend that the Carter administration has been uncertain and divided on the course of East-West relations

"It was an effort to show that there is no disharmony, that the administration speaks with one voice, and that this is the definitive view." a Carter aide said.

The White House insists that there never has been any discord or confusion within the administration, and that suggestions to the contrary come from outsiders who are themselves confused.

Perhaps, but it was Zbigniew Brzezinski. Carter's national security adviser. who said strategic arms talks had reached a take it or leave it stage, with reasonable American proposals on the table to stay there until the Russians accept them. At about the same time, Paul C. Warnke, the administration's arms negotiator, was saying that his instructions were to do just that - negotiate.

In any event, the one voice at Annapolis was Carter's. And much of what he said could as easily have been uttered by Gerald R. Ford or Richard M. Nixon, at earlier stages of detente and the SALT

Washington wants peace, and Carter said he is convinced the Russians do, too. But the White House and the Kremlin define it differently. As they have for years, the Soviets persist in probing here, intervening there, constantly seeking to expand their influence abroad.

"To the Soviet Union, detente seems to mean a continuing aggressive struggle for political advantage and increased influence in a variety of ways," Carter said. The Soviet Union apparently sees military power and military assistance as the best means of expanding their influence abroad

Military assistance is not a Moscow monopoly, although Carter said as a candidate that he wanted to sharply curtail the commerce in arms.

He said the Soviet Union and other nations should join the United States "in emphasizing works of peace rather than weapons of war in their assistance to Africa," the arena of communist intervention that has led to much of the current controversy over SALT and detente.

"We should make it clear that detente requires that the Soviets, as well as the United States, refrain from irresponsible intervention in other countries," said Carter. "The Russians have no more business in Angola than we have.'

He didn't say that in Annapolis on Wednesday. He said it in New York City. ust two years ago. The administration has changed, but not the problem.

For the Annapolis address. Carter was in large measure his own speechwriter. He got advice and material from Brzezinski. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and CIA Director Stansfield Turner.

Perhaps as a result, there are both hard lines and soft lines in the final product. For all the rebukes to Moscow, Carter

Shipments Of Food To Ethiopia Okayed

ROME (AP) - The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization approved $2 million in food shipments to Ethiopia Thursday to help feed people short on food because of drought, locusts and civil war.

The shipments, to be supervised by the FAO's World Food Program, will include 10,000 tons of wheat to be distributed to 250,000 persons over the next 312 months in Wollo, the hardest-hit province, officials said

A spokesman for the program said representatives of several donor nations would visit Ethiopia shortly to assess food needs.

Besides drought and food-transportation problems caused by civil war, much of East Africa, including Ethiopia, is suffering from a massive invasion of locusts that experts say could spread to other parts of Africa and nearby Asia. The insects are devouring crops not damaged by the drought.

The United States has pledged $2.1 million to the food relief program in Ethiopia. The money is to be used to provide medical facilities and to keep food supplies flowing into the faminestricken nation

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - A probate court judge warned U.S. Sen. Edward W. Brooke Thursday that he could face perjury charges if "misstatements" he made during his 1977 divorce action had a substantial effect on the outcome of that proceeding.

Judge Lawrence W. Perera, taking the case under advisement, told the Massachusetts Republican he would have to consider whether his conduct "was consistent with the level of integrity and the level of disclosure this court must insist

"If I conclude it was not, then it may be necessary to take further steps," Perera added, "but I don't care to discuss them at this time."

LONDON (UPI) - Lloyds of London and other insurance companies in the British capital have-doubled and in some cases quadrupled their income from kid-

The Times of London said multinational business firms - especially those based in the United States - and rich families all over the world are pouring an estimated $100 milliom to $200 million a year into the London market as a hedge against terrorist abductions.

Two years ago the annual revenue for such coverage stood at $30 million, the newspaper said. Officials at Lloyds were reluctant to discuss with the press how much money they were making.

The distortion lies in the fact that NBC ran a good second in the awards, including capturing outstanding soap opera honors for "Days of Our Leves;" top game show honors with "Hollywood Squares" and picking up awards for both actor and actress in "The Doctors" and 'Another World.

In the ratings race, however, the competition for the last year has been between ABC, the new contender, and CBS, the old champ. According to the Nielsen figures, while individual weeks seesawed back and forth, ABC captured the January-March averages by a tenth of a rating point -7.7 for ABC vs. 7.6 for CBS, and for the last six weeks straight. ABC has been at the top of the ratings list.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It is just today I am recovering from Tuesday's premiere of the new ABC newsmagazine show, "20-20." Mercy, it looked like a No-Cal "60 Minutes" on speed.

It had greyhounds tearing apart rabbits, Flip Wilson crying, California Gov. Jerry Brown boring, a Greek tanker exploding, a former teen-aged nuclear extortionist reminiscing and some closing thoughts about the late Sen. Robert F.

British Plant To Be Studied By Chrysler

LONDON (AP) - Top officials from Chrysler Corp., the third-largest U.S. automaker, will visit Great Britain next month to investigate recurring problems at the largest plant of British subsidiary Chrysler United Kingdom Ltd., a spokesman said Thursday.

Eugene Cafiero, president of parent Chrysler Corp., warned Chrysler U.K. management that he is "most concerned" about the Linwood, Scotland, facility, where production has been lagging at 65 to 70 percent of targeted levels over the past few weeks. Caftero told Stanley Deason, the manufacturing director at Linwood, that he will review the plant's performance durvisit in July Cafiero also reportedly told Deason that the Scottish plant's future depends on production targets being met. In turn. Deason has written to the more than 9,000 employees to explain the seriousness of the situation. The plant assembles two of the three models Chrysler U.K. makes. After a series of warnings last year about low productivity, output rose in the first quarter of this year, reaching about 90 percent of planned levels at times.

Recently, however, production has declined Chrysler U.K. wants to turn out 42 of its Avenger and Sunbeam cars per hour at Linwood, but in recent weeks fewer than 30 cars have been coming off the assembly lines each hour. Chrysler U.K. officials claim that abenteeism of assembly line workers has been running at about 17 percent and that lateness of many workers has aggravated the situation.

It needs a Mad Prophet of the sort who lent deranged decency to the news-as-entertainment telecast in Paddy Chayefsky's corrosive film satire of TV and news, "Network.

The greyhound piece involved "coursing." the use of live rabbits to train race dogs. It was by Geraldo Rivera, who may not be of journalism's traditional lowkey, impartial school. At the start of his emotion-charged expose, he says: "... the greyhound industry says that their dogs (isn't industry singular?) need live bait. This report will establish that simply is not so. He shows "coursing" in Kansas, rabbits killed by dogs and tossed in the trash. and furtive-rabbit selling in Texas. He probes humane and legal aspects, triumphantly reports bills to end coursing are at hand, calls coursing "one of those petty barbarisms" that should end.

Co-host Hughes, a jaunty type, then says: "Thank you, Geraldo. Next - how Flip Wilson turned Geraldine out of the house to take in his own kids." We see the comic with three of his kids.

He talks of trying to be a good father. His eves fill with tears. Finally, it ends Hughes, not missing a beat, says:

chilling stuff, all done in the rat-tat-tat style of Walter Winchell. Like the greyhound piece, it zips about so fast you barely have time to think or reflect.

That may be the aim of "20-20," to juxtapose serious, silly and sad so quickly you're only supposed to react, not think. It seems the work of a twisted TV theorist who says just keep it exciting. brisk, and, oh, yes, go buy the TV rights to the Ecumenical Liberation Army's next bank holdup, that oughtta grab 'em. # Newsweek To Pay New York Times tion's most influential communications companies have avoided a legal showdown over the premature publication last February by the Washinton Post of excerpts from H. R. Haldeman's book "The Ends of Power."

The Washington Post Co. agreed Wednesday that its subsidiary, Newsweek magazine, will make a cash payment to the New York Times Co. In return, the Times said it was dropping consideration of a lawsuit

The exact amount of the payment was not disclosed, but it reportedly covers the balance owed on a $125,000 contract by which the Times syndicate gave Newsweek permission to run 30,000 words of excerpts from "The Ends of Power." Newsweek has paid only $50,000 so far.

Newsweek had invoked a penalty clause and contended that it no longer owed the Times the full amount because of a breach of confidentiality by its sister publication, the Washington Post.

The Times, whose publishing company put out the book, demanded full pay-spend large sums, a U.S. diplomat comment. After talks collapsed with the Post. the Times had been on the brink of filing a lawsuit when the Post decided at the last minute to hold more negotiations with the Times. "We have amicably settled the differences between us, and that's all I can say," Sidney Gruson, executive vice president of the Times, commented.

"Both sides are relieved that this thing needn't proceed any further," said Mark J. Meagher, president of the Post Co. "These things can be contentious," Meagher added, citing the "long relationship" the Post and Times have had in publishing together the International Herald-Tribune - an American newspaper published in Paris

Both Meagher and Gruson declined to characterize the agreement as an implicit admission that the Post was wrong in breaking the story during the week be-fore Newsweek hit the newsstands. The story caused early distribution of the book, early release of the excerpts and nationwide coverage of what had been exclusive material.

The Times' syndicate claims losses of nearly $50,000 as a result of the leaks last February. Excerpt rights with newspapers and magazines around the world were conditioned on the secrecy of the material and were sold for a total of more than $900,000.

After the Washington Post published parts of the book, the Times renegotiated its contracts with the other publications, giving them a minimum of a one-third and stir up trouble between the refugees mented: "It's quite possible to have a refugee settlement here which is better off than the local population."

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees issued a worldwide appeal for $15.5 million to aid the refugees through 1978. Some governments and private agencies already have started to send money, food, medicine and urgently needed material for the construction of housing, and about $3 million in U.N. emergency funds is being sent.

The U.S. Embassy described the situation as a "disaster condition" and said Washington would probably contribute about $1 million.

The Moslem refugees began crossing the frontier about six weeks ago. They say they have been persecuted by the Burmese army and local Buddhists in Burma's Arakan region, where they claim they have lived for generations. The Burmese government claims many of them are illegal immigrants from Bangladesh.

Independent confirmation of the claims and counter-claims is difficult to obtain because Western correspondents' access to the Burmese countryside is sharply limited. A veteran U.N. relief troubleshooter from Geneva, Pierre Coat, said the relief operation should "more or less reach cruising speed within a few weeks barring a major new influx." The U.N. refugee agency plans to spend about half the $15.5 million on food for 200,000 refugees. But they arrive at the rate of 2,000 to 3,000 a day, and there are no plans yet to handle more than 200,000.

The exodus of all the estimated one million Moslems in Arakan is feared. Bangladesh's foreign minister, Tabarak Husarn, and his deputy are in Rangoon trying to arrange for repatriation of the refugees and their protection after they return to their homes.

The refugees are living in crowded camps along the border, short of water. Coat says about half of them are under 15 and they are plagued by intestinal diseases, malnutrition, widespread malaria and a small incidence of cholera. The government says about 400 have died.

The U.N. World Food Program has worked out a basic ration consisting pri- foreign help because of the disastrous marily of wheat flour, fish protein concentrate and biscuits which would give each refugee about 1,300 calories a day, just at the edge of malnutrition. "Vulnerable groups" — mainly preg-nant women and children — may be given 650 calories more. Some U.N. officials do not consider that adequate but it is in line with what the average Bangladeshi

Vital Organs Donations Down; Movie Blamed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) - An Ohio State University surgeon says the popular medical horror novel and movie, "Coma", may be to blame for a drop in donations of organs for transplant. Dr. James Cerilli, a kidney transplant surgeon, said the number of organs donated for transplant in central Ohio is 50 to 60 percent below last year. Other cities in the United States are reporting a similar trend, according to an article in a recent publication of the American College of Surgeons.

The novel and movie is about the systematic murder of hospital patients to obtain human organs for

There is no rational reason for the drop," said Cerilli. "The protections that are afforded the donor are greater than they have ever can College of Surgeons says similar problems are being experienced in Delaware, Texas, Illinois and other states.

The Bulletin article quoted some employees of transplant centers as saying families have alluded to 'Coma" as the reason for not allowing organs to be taken from the bodies of deceased relatives.
