A weak cold front moving across Northwest Texas at midday is expected to trigger showers and thunderstorms over much of the region this afternoon and tonight. The probability of rain on the South Plains is 20 percent today and 30 percent tonight, according to the National Weather Service.

Partly cloudy skies are expected through Wednesday, with temperatures in the mid-90s today, upper 60s tonight and near 90 Wednesday.

Temperatures this morning were in the 70s and 80s south of the front, but in the 60s north of it. Dalhart, in the Panhandle, had the coolest reading in the state with a 65-degree low.

The extended forecast for West Texas indicates the possibility of precipitation in the central and northern portions

Citizen's Tip Helps Nab Six In Holdup

Within 12 minutes of an early morning convenience store robbery today, Lubbock police had arrested six suspects and were crediting an alert and involved citizen with providing enough information to put officers on their trail

Arrested were a 21-year-old married couple, two 17-year-old youths and two

Bryan Jackson O'Neal, 19, night manager of the 27th Street and Avenue Q 7-Eleven Store, said he was in a storeroom when three young men entered the store shortly after 3 a m. As the clerk went to sisters, ages 13 and 14. A 10-month-old the front, the trio reportedly stated they wanted to call a cab. When O'Neal turne around at the counter, he suddenly was faced with a small black pistol.

This is a holdup," were the words of the bandit who held the weapon, as the attendant was ushered back into the storeroom. O'Neal said that just before they left the store, one of the armed bandit's companions entered the small room and, with his hand under his shirt as if too, had a gun, told the clerk not to

Meanwhile, a nearby apartment dweller had seen a suspicious-looking trio enter the store and called police while the robbery was in progress. The informant also watched the car leave heading north on Avenue S and told police of its direction of travel.

An officer was dispatched to the convenience store, where he found the visibly-shaken attendant, who told him the business had been robbed.

Minutes later, another officer stopped a car in the 1900-block of Avenue S after he reportedly saw it straddling two lanes of traffic. After ordering the driver out of the auto, police at that site were advised by radio of the nearby robbery.

The car's other occupants were ordered out, and the six suspects arrested. The sedan's driver reportedly was identified as the armed bandit at the store.

Inside the vehicle, police reportedly found a loaded and cocked .380-automatic pistol and $87 stuffed behind a rear seat. About $93 reportedly was taken in - PAT CARLSON

Boy To Remain Nameless Hero

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - A teen-ager risked his life jumping in front of a runaway pickup truck to try to save an old woman. She died. And the courageous youth must remain anonymous because he is serving time as a juvenile offender and Alabama law forbids release of his name.

The boy is 17. He's 5-foot-7, a fit 140-pounder. He's a kid with a fresh, young face and a reputation for trouble, one who got involved with thieves and, at 14, began doing periodic stints at the Mobile County Youth Center.

He's a bright kid who couldn't stay in school. He's a kid who darts his softbrown eyes away when he's on the spot and then, when he relaxes, lights those eyes up with a great, winning smile. He's a kid who likes basketball, pro star Julius Erving and comic books.

He's a kid who, forgetting early educational failings, sometimes dreams of a professional future - "maybe as a computer technician.

He's a kid who may have found his life anew when tragedy struck last Friday. He was on a day outing with probation officers and several other young of-fenders. They had been to the beach at Gulf Shores and had a picnic lunch at Alabama Point. He had strolled over to a bridge where two women and a man

In an instant he saw out of the corner of his eye a red pickup truck, rolling toward them down an incline. It had no driver. It was perhaps 20 feet away — then 10 feet — when he realized it was going to hit one of the women, who was sitting with her back to the truck. He acted.

"I didn't have time to think," he says now. "I just did it." He moved in front of the truck. It struck the boy and the woman, pinning the woman to a bridge guard rail. She had no chance to move. He had put his hands on the truck but had no chance to stop it. One of his legs was momentarily

Other youths quickly ran to the scene, helped push the truck away and began treating the woman, 68-year-old Sara Sanders, for shock. She died later at a hos-

"He literally risked his life for her," says the youth center superintendent, Gary Hazelton.

The boy faces between six months and two years in detention programs because of a recent shoplifting case, but Hazelton says of his actions last Friday: We think it reflects his character.

School trustees today requested a study that may result in under-enrolled Lubbock High getting more students - possibly with the start of school in August.

That proposal no doubt will bring a protest from Coronado and Monterey high school attendance zones, which would have to yield the youngsters needed to bolster Lubbock High's enrollment.

Classical Music Alive In China

TOKYO (AP) - The sounds of Brahms and Berlioz once again are flowing across China, reports Boston Symphony conductor Seiji Ozawa, who has just returned from a visit to Peking. After a decade of official government repression, Western classical music is alive and well on the mainland, Ozawa said Monday. The 42-year-old conductor was born in China.

One unidentified Chinese concert master, Ozawa said, recently was freed after almost serving 10 years in prison for criticizing his government's opposition to Western music.

Ozawa estimates Peking's Central Philarmonic Orchestra, which he conducted during his visit, should be on a level with Japanese orchestras within three to five years.

He said the Chinese plan to spend $60,000 in the United States for new instruments. He told them the money would not buy one good violin. They will concentrate on brass instruments, Ozawa reports.

Butz Returns To Ag Department

WASHINGTON (AP) - Earl L. Butz returned to the Agriculture Department where he was its secretary during the Nixon-Ford years, and he even managed to tell a few jokes.

The former secretary resigned on Oct. 4, 1976, after public protests over a joke he told with racial references.

The 68-year-old Butz visited his old department Monday to view a $5,000 oil portrait of himself. The painting was delivered to the department last fall but was not put on display until officials decided to hang it without a ceremony about three months ago. Butz had indicated several times that he would not make a spe cial trip here for a portrait hanging but would participate if he was in town on other business. He was joined for lunch by former associates and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. A guest who asked not to be identified said the jokes Butz told were mild.

Judy Carne Listed As 'Fair'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Actress-comedian Judy Carne, recovering from a neck fracture, has been transferred from Doylestown, Pa., Hospital to the neurological division of Temple University Hospital here, hospital officials said.

Miss Carne's condition was listed as fair Monday, and hospital officials said she shows no sign of paralysis or neurological problems. A Temple University Hospital spokesman said she was admitted for "evaluation and stabiliza tion" of the neck injury.

Miss Carne, the "Sock it to me" girl of NBC's "Laugh In" fame, was injured in an auto accident last week in suburban Philadelphia. Upper Makefield police said the accident occurred Thurs-

Feds, Firm Puzzled By 'Hot' Dirt

WASHINGTON, W.Va. (AP) - The ground erupts like a miniature volcano when a bulldozer scrapes it. Turning the soil with a shovel sends sparks flying.

The dirt is radioactive, and both federal officials and the L.B. Foster Co., whose pipe-making plant is over the patch of ground, want to get rid of it. But how? The Nuclear Regulatory Commission says the soil is laced with thorium - plus zirconium, a non-radioactive but highly combustible substance. "If this was just radioactive thorium, you could just dig in and move it," NRC spokesman Ken Clark said Monday from

Workmen experienced the combustibility when they tried to install a machine in the Foster building. They were digging a hole when there was an explosion followed by a flash fire. Sparks shot up 30 feet, singeing the ceiling, said Walter Pavlo, plant manager.

"It's a spewing effect — throwing out rocks or anything in its path. How would you describe lava from a volcano? The ground around it is blazing hot for two hours." Paylo said.

Several weeks later another explosion boomed when workers tried to dig up some of the radioactive soil.

According to Wood County emergency services director George Fox, once "they had a bulldozer in there and it was doing some grading and it got into it and it melted the tracks right off of it.

The NRC says the level of radiation presents no immediate health hazard to the 70 workers at the plant. But "it is high enough that it can't be allowed to stay in there for long," Clark said.

Foster also wants the contaminated soil removed. The company has been forced to suspend a $2 million construction project while investigators try to find a way to remove the dirt.

The investigators also want to know how the thorium got there.

Since 1957, three companies have owned the property just south of Parkersburg on the Ohio River, and all three - Foster, Amax Inc., and Carborundum Co. - disclaim responsibility for the The property was a farm before Carborundum built a factory in 1957. Amax bought half interest in 1965 and took over ownership in 1967. Amax stopped production in 1974 and sold out to Foster in Both Carborundum and Amax used zirconjum to manufacture casings for nuclear fuel rods. Clark said the thorium was contained in Nigerian sand used to manufacture the zirconium alloy rods but was not used in the process itself.

He added it appears that "at some time" someone illegally buried the sand. Clark said the NRC wants to know who did the burying and is trying to determine if federal regulations were broken.

Carborundum said it made no burials and does not know how the contamination could have occurred.

Amax said it made no burials. In a prepared statement, Amax said the radiation resulted from leaks from barrels of sand which Carborundum stored at the plant beginning in 1961. Louis Kasdan, a spokesman for Amax, said his company would be willing to help remove the ma-

For the past few decades, the United States has been the leading producer and exporter of the nutritious soybean, one of the world's best sources of vegetables protein.

In this country and in Europe most soybeans are used as a protein source in animal feeds. But in Asia, soybeans are a major source of protein for people.

To most Americans, the soybean is not a particularly desirable food item. For one thing, its taste falls short of our standards. Even its advocates say the soybean is "bland" find it unpleasantly "beany."

Also, the soybean takes a long time to prepare. Over-night soak ing is a must. The soaked beans must be cooked for several hours - sometimes as many as nine both for softening and for nutritional purposes.

Not only do most of our nutritious soybeans go into animal feed. Almost all of the sovbeans used in human food are there not to add protein, but to improve the functional properties of processed

(In processed food, a functional ingredient is one that helps the food maintain its color, moisture, shape or some other non-nutritional property. Such an ingredient seldom makes up more than 5 percent of the total product.)

You can find a few processed foods in your supermarket in which soy is used for its protein content, not its functional properties. Probably the easiest soybased product to obtain today is the "meat extender. Introduced with great fanfare in 1973 during a period when meat was undergoing a steep price rise. the extenders first took the form of a pre-mixed product that combined fresh hamburger with various soy extenders.

At first, extended hamburger sold fairly well. But as meat prices declined, sales slumped.

Soybean-based products, however, are more widely eaten than supermarket shelves indicate. Most of the soy used as protein in the United States can be found on the institutional market - schools, nursing homes, hospitals, prisons, employee cafeterias and the like. Institutions use large amounts of

To get ready for the expected demand. Department of Agriculture researchers are creating new ways to use significant amounts of soy in food. The major effort is aimed not at putting new foods on our tables, but at putting more soy in traditional foods.

Unfortunately, the soy that does so many marvelous functional things in small amounts often has deleterious effects in larger quanti-

Take bread, for instance. Put too much soy flour in bread, a prime candidate for soy fortification, and the loaf sags like the sales chart for extened hamburger.

But there is a way around this problem. Several ways, in fact.

"And this." he says triumphantly. "is a loaf of bread baked with 22 percent soy isolate, wheat starch and xanthan gum. A slice is as rich in protein as a piece of lunch meat.

Recently, two chemical engineers turned out yards of crisp, puffy corn-soy curls that looked and tasted - much like the corn curls beloved of U.S. television watchers. But they have up to 30 percent protein.

The taste of soy just starts to come through when the curls are 40 percent soy flakes, indicating that the objectionable soy flavor can be masked in some snacks.

Diet Cited As Cause Of Deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The director of the National Cancer Institute says it is possible as many as half of the cancer deaths in the United States are related to

Dr. Arthur Upton said is agency wants to spend more money researching suspected dietary links with cancer, but few medical researchers seem interested in taking NCI's funds for that purpose.

"About 380,000 Americans died of cancer last year." Upton said in an interview. "Some say half of those deaths were related to diet. I wouldn't argue with that, but we have no proof of it.'

Medical schools don't devote enough curriculum to nutrition, Upton said, and there is a lack of experts to probe such mysteries as the suspected link between a fatty diet and breast, colon and uterine cancer in this country.

We have sent out pamphlets to medical schools, doctors and research centers urging them to take an interest," he said. 'And we are putting them on notice that we want applications for grants to research nutrition and cancer. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.,

Facts About Lecithin

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I found your columns on high blood pressure helpful and I reduced some 15 pounds and got off high blood pressure medicine. With my normal blood pressure I suspect I wouldn't have needed to take medication in the first place if I had done this earlier.

I have a different opinion about your remarks about lecithin. You state that lecithin is a combination of triglycerides and choline. That is all. I believe lecithin also contains inositol and other B vitamins. Although I realize that the lecithin is digested before it can be absorbed in the blood stream, meaning it is broken down into the fatty acids and choline, I think we probably need the choline and the inositol.

It is true that choline is found in meat, eggs and livers but many doctors advise us not to eat too many eggs or liver because of their cholesterol content, so how about using lecithin as a good source of choline and benefited from your weight reduction and wish more people would do the same. I can't say that I'm so pleased about your lack of knowledge about lectithin. Lecithin does not contain inositol and it does not contain any B vitamins whatsoever. Wherever you got that information, you should discard it. Lecithin is lecithin just as I have described it in the past.

It's true we do need choline but I suspect that you do not realize that choline is present in many other foods. There is an abundant amount of choline in lean meat. And it's perfectly all right for people to eat a moderate amount of lean meat from which all the fat has been removed even if they're on a low-fat diet. Also cereals contain a reasonable amount of choline, 50 to 100 ounce portion. And if you want to be a real "health nut," wheat germ is one of the highest sources of choline, containing 350 to 400 mgs of choline. Now I'm not recommending that people run out and eat special foods to get choline. Why? Because your body can manufacture choline anyway. If you're getting an adequate amount of protein in your diet all your body has to do is use two amino acids, glycine and methionine, to make all the choline your own body needs. Since your body can make the choline you need if you're on a ser ble diet, paying good money for addi-tional amounts of it that won't be used is really a rather useless exer

Balloon Helps In Coronary Bypass Surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) - A tiny balloon snaked into heart arteries is helping clear clogged blood pipelines and eliminating the need for coronary bypass surgery in selected patients, doctors reported Wednesday.

And the procedure, which takes about an hour and is done while the patient is awake, costs only about one-tenth as much as the bypass surgery.

The balloon procedure has been used in 10 cases and in seven of those cases, heart disease symptoms disappeared and stress tests showed marked improvement, allowing the patients to avoid open-heart

Dr. Simon G. Stertzer, head of New York's Lenox Hill Hospital's Hemodynamics Laboratory, said the unusual treatment requires the placement of a balloon-tip catheter - the size of a paper match - in a part of the artery that has been narrowed by cholesterol deposits.

The balloon is snaked into the heart's blood pipelines via a thin tubular instrument, entering the circulatory system through an artery in the groin or right

When the balloon gets to a narrowed portion of a heart artery, it is inflated with little bursts of gas. This pressure pushes the waxy cholesterol deposits — plaque — against the ar-tery walls, widening the tunnel through which the blood must flow and unclogging the pipeline Stertzer said in the three cases in which the procedure failed to clear a clogged artery, the blockage was too thick and the instrument couldn't work its way through. Those three patients had to undergo open-heart surgery - the coronary bypass operation.

Dr. Michael E. Bruno, head of the hospital's department of medicine, said the use of balloon dilation could have a tremendous impact on the treatment of certain heart problems.

military forces in the region.

WASHINGTON-Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, whose off-the-record criticism of U.S. military withdrawals from South Korea and Panama led to his forced retirement, has raised some serious questions about whether the Joint Chiefs of Staff are being bypassed on major national security policy decisions. Without being challenged by either the White House or the President's military advisers, Singlaub has publicly stated in speeches and in writings recently that President Carter has made major decisions on Korea, the B-1 bomber, neutron bomb, and SALT II proposals without consulting the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In the case of Korea, Singlaub charges, the President's military advisers were never consulted on the actual decision to withdraw U.S. military forces but were asked to comment on three alternative plans to implement the decision.

MOST DISTURBING TO Singlaub was Defense Secretary Harold Brown's role in bypassing the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the impression he has given members of Congress and the press that the President's military advisers were consulted on the withdrawal issue.

In relating details of his meeting with the President and Brown following his recall from his post as Chief-of Staff for United Nations forces in Korea, Gen. Singlaub tells this highly significant and revealing story: 'In that May 21, 1977 meeting in the White House, I apologized to the President for having caused him some embarrassment. I said I was not trying to defy any civilian authority. "My comments were made off the record, and

"That position, he said, had been agreed to by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and by the Secretary of Defense. At that point, I looked at Brown, because I knew that was just nonsense

"THE JOINT CHIEFS had never been asked whether they thought it was a good idea to withdraw the ground troops.

"They had only been told to analyze three methods of withdrawing the troops; immediately, some now and some two years hence, or some in 1978 and all of them within five years.

Couple Planning Annual Wedding

SEATTLE (UPI) - Jack and Edna Moran have renewed their wedding vows every year on July 27 since 1937 when they first eloped and were married in Seaside, Ore. Their families were angry because they missed the ceremony, so on their first anniversary they were married again in Seattle. Thus began a tradition that has earned them a place in the Guinness Book of Records. We do it because we feel it is something we ought to do, something we enjoy doing, with our friends standing beside us," Jack Moran said Sunday.

The annual event has taken place in places as far away as Cairo and London.

Bond Critic Decides Against Suit Appeal

By SYLVIA TEAGUE Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 10-month delay in the sale by the city of $26.4 million in general obligation bonds to finance water, street, sewer and firefighting system improvements is

The bond sale was halted by a suit filed in August by longtime city hall critic James G. Marshall — a suit Marshall vowed to carry to the state's highest court if necessary. However, Marshall's attorney, Bob Garner of Amarillo, said Monday Marshall had decided against appealing the case to the State Supreme Court on his attorney's advice.

Previously the 99th District Court here and the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo had upheld the election permitting the bond sale.

Garner refused to explain why he had advised Marshall to drop the case and today is the deadline for filing an application for an appeal.

City officials were jubilant about Marshall's decision, as most had expected a six to nine month delay in the bond sale during the appeal.

"That's great," Mayor Dirk West commented. "I'm delighted that perhaps we'll finally settle a long, long delay on the bond sale. Whatever the reason Mr. Marshall decided not to pursue it, we are glad that this issue may be nearing a close," he West was hopeful the city can receive a good interest rate when the bonds are rebid - a process which he said takes "a However, the suit has taken its toll on projects to be financed by the bonds. In a memorandum to the city council and mayor last month, City Manager Larry Cunningham said the following major projects had been delayed: -Design and construction of a fire station at 79th Street and Slide Road.

-Street improvements, including Quirt Avenue at East 34th Street and Avenues K and L, as well as planned traffic sig-

-Storm sewers at 50th Street and Avenue A and in the downtown area.

Cunningham said costs of the projects had increased since the bond sale to the point that "we will not be able to complete all the anticipated projects...with the bond funds authorized Reached in Arlington at a city management convention, Cunningham said he was "pleased he (Marshall) has chosen not to make the appeal.

"It will give us the opportunity to go forward and provide facilities which are so badly needed," he said.

Cunningham predicted the bonds could be sold and delivered before the end of September and said he would "very much like to get $6 or $7 million sold as quickly as possible.

Another bond sale would follow in February or March, he estimated.

The city manager said it would be the city council's job to set priorities on what projects are most critical and should be financed first.

Engineering contracts on many of the projects, East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue improvements and starting the renovation of the Southeast Lubbock sewer plant were at the top of the list following the bond sale and "would still have to be high priority," Cunningham said.

Cunningham previously told the council many Southwest Lubbock residents were outside the fire department's fiveminute response time because construction of planned fire stations had been delayed, and said low water pressure in Southwest Lubbock had become "both a hazard and a nuisance."

In his lawsuit, Marshall contended ordinances authorizing the bond election were invalid because they are not specific

Nine Percent Of Military In Europe Using Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nine percent of the U.S. troops in Europe are "incapacitated by hard drug abuse," the chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control told President Carter today.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., who reported to the president on the results of a congressional study of military drug abuse, reported after the White House meeting that Carter said he was unaware of the magnitude of the problem of drug Paper Drive abuse among the military forces.

"He was impressed with the information we gathered and was deeply concerned about it," Wolff told reporters. The president has indicated he will take steps with the secretary of defense to try and solve this problem.

'The information we have secured indicates there is a great deal of interference with combat readiness," he said. Wolff said approximately 27,000 U.S. soldiers in Europe were using hard drugs. He said this represented the equivalent of two divisions

In addition, about 40 percent of the troops in Europe - "a very substantial number." - use marijuana, he said. The congressman said Carter promised to study the problem and would discuss it with Defense Secretary Harold Brown. Carter's special assistant for health is-sues. Peter Bourne, attended the meet-

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., who serves on Wolff's subcommittee and accompanied him to the White House, said the Pentagon seemed unaware of the ex-tent of the problem and was unable to determine its effect on combat readiness.

'Until we do that it will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to start the long road of recovery," English said.
"Many members of the military felt that after Vietnam, the problem went away."

Wolff said the problem's roots were similar to the causes of drug abuse among U.S. troops in Vietnam: idle offduty time, lack of clear understanding of the military mission involved, and the availability of drugs.

Ex-Radio Station Editor Says He Assisted FBI

SEATTLE (AP) - A former assignment editor at a Seattle radio station says he used taped stories by an unsuspecting reporter to help the FBI gather intelligence information during the Wounded Knee Indian protest in 1973.

"I've got no ax to grind, no flags to wave. I just did it because I thought it was right at the time," Ken Stuart, 56, who now runs a general grocery store in Conconully, Wash., said Monday night.

"I thought the bureau (FBI) was operating at a disadvantage." he said.

Stuart's unauthorized cooperation with the FBI surfaced after the Seattle-based Coalition on Government Spying revealed a purported FBI internal teletype message, dated March 16, 1973, which said KIXI officials agreed to give information to the FBI on the situation in Wounded Knee, S.D., gathered by reporter Clarence McDaniels

The coalition said it obtained the purported FBI document through the Freedom of Information Act. It released it to reporters Monday night.

The coalition is made up of representatives of the ACLU, the American Friends Service Committee and the National Lawyers Guild, said spokesman Tom Parson. The group is involved in researching and providing information on police intelligence issues.

In a prepared statement, the coalition said. "Such conduct by the FBI and a radio station raises critical questions about the viability of political and press freedoms protected by the First Amend-

Stuart said neither the station management nor McDaniels knew of his contacts with the FBI.

"It was not dictated or motivated by KIXI." Stuart said in a telephone interview. "Everything was on my own initiative. ... I'm sure sorry that I may have put him (McDaniels) in jeopardy. That wasn't my intention.

Gilbert Jacobsen, station general manager, said, "Since this is the first that KIXI has heard about it, we resent any implication that KIXI or anybody else has done anything wrong.

Said McDaniels, who still works for the station: "I had no idea this had taken place. I don't know what this does to my credibility. I don't know what action could be taken now (against Stuart).

"I never had anything that was secret." the reporter said, adding that he never would have given out information.

From Feb. 27 to May 8, 1973, militant members of the American Indian Movement occupied the hamlet of Wounded Knee, demanding government investigations into federal treatment of Indians During the occupation the town was ringed by FBI agents and federal mar-

It was Boatwright who sponsored the bill that resulted in the $44,000 grant to develop the car powered by methanol, a clean-burning synthetic fuel that can be made from such waste as rice hulls, peanut shells and wood chips.

The demonstration car looked and sounded like the other cars in the state government fleet. Boatwright said it costs $1.200 per car to convert other autos to methanol-power.

Boatwright asserted that a Texas firm has said it could deliver methanol to the state for 27 cents a gallon. Boatwright said mileage has thus far been about 10 miles per gallon, but that with refinement it may be doubled.

Part of the message, purportedly from the Seattle FBI to the acting FBI director in Minneapolis, said, "McDaniels is expected to continue furnishing complete coverage of activities at WK (Wounded

Rock Band's Show Under FDA Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A rock o' roll band has run afoul of the Food and Drug Administration with an unusual problem FDA officials say may be widespread in the music business. The problem is the laser used for light shows during concerts. In this case, FDA radiation experts measured the lasers used by a band called the "Blue Oyster Cult" during a performance earlier this year in Atlanta. Officials told the band to clean up its act.

The FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health, which enforces laws dealing with radiation exposure, told the band what it would have to do to its laser system to prevent possible burn injuries to concert-goers.

"Many entertainment people are pret-ty far removed from food and drug laws and radiation hazards," a spokesman said Monday. "They don't really associate lasers with radiation, least of all with the FDA.

"But lasers do produce potentially hazardous light radiation. Like any other light there is a potential burn hazard," he added. "It's like holding a magnifying glass to the sunlight.

The agency said there have been no actual reports of injuries, although some accidents have been reported.

We are aware of situations where there could be some (injury). Some of the rock groups have laser lights which flash over the heads of the audiences. If someone held up a hand, for instance, and the beam of light bounced off a watch crystal or something it could bounce into someone's eye," the spokes-

McKENZIE, Tenn. (AP) - A veteran South American missionary has been elected moderator of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Joseck D. Fajardo, 64, of Calick, Colombia, was elected Monday night at Bethel College in McKenzie. He succeeds Dr. Fred Bryson of Dallas as head of the Memphis-based church group. Fajardo has been a missionary for 32 spot in the eye. That's most likely the most serious thing that would happen."

Quite a few bands use traveling laser systems, the FDA said, including "Led Zeppelin," "Pink Floyd," "The Grateful Dead," "Wings," and "Earth, Wind and

In its letter to the "Blue Oyster Cult" the FDA asked the group to inform the agency what would be done to correct

The FDA said it has no plans to iss regulation specifically for band-related laser shows because existing regulations, if properly enforced, should take care of

It said lasers used in works of art also must comply with the same regulations, as must those used in planetarium star

In addition, eight states have regula-tions governing the use of lasers, includ-ing some which require a license for op-erators of the devices.

DWI Conviction Rate Criticized

AUSTIN (UPI) - The president of an insurance information service today said the poor conviction rate of drunk drivers in parts of Texas is endangering thousands of lives.

Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said drunk drivers contributed to 21 percent of the 776 fatal traffic accidents in Texas

"This needless slaughter of lives can be attributed to many things," Johns said. "Obviously, we need more and better prosecution of drunk drivers since it does not do any good for an on officer to arrest a drunk driver if charges are not filed or a conviction for a lesser offense is the re-

He said some parts of Texas have lower conviction rates for drunk driving that others. He said that during 1977 Dallas had 7.165 arrests for drunk driving but only 948 convictions. In Austin, Johns said, there were 1,666 arrests for DWI but only 162 convictions.

"Texas can continue to see an upswing in drunk driving until some positive steps are taken to correct the increasing num-ber of alcohol-related deaths and injuries." Johns said.

Tu is an intellectual and for him and thousands more the past decade has been a nightmare. He is "free" now, and, between puffs on his pipe, he talked about his ordeal during an interview at his home. It is a handsome, two-story structure and he shares it with another family.

His smiling wife, a drama teacher, refilled the tea cups and passed trays of candy. She was under virtual house arrest in 1975 and 1976 while Mao's widow and three colleagues who became known as the "Gang of Four" waged war against the country's intellectuals

Hundreds of plays and motion pictures. including the eight stage productions and four films written by Tu, were banned. So was his one folk operas.

With the arrest of the "gang" in late 1976, thousands of China's intellectuals. writers, artists, scientists, engineers, managers and teachers, are emerging once again to resume their work.

One estimate is that as many as 100,000 were either incarcerated, downgraded or banished to the countryside.

For many, their exiles started in the late 1950s, when they became too vocal during the short-lived campaign to "Let A Hundred Flowers Bloom." This was Mao's abortive attempt to demonstrate that the people of his Communist country could speak out freely.

Hundreds did, and wound up in jail, toiling on the farms or working in menial

The Chinese press has reported the steady return of the exiled in recent weeks, a campaign started during the past year under the more moderate government headed by Chairman Hua Kuo-Feng. He is given credit for "smashing" the radical group that included Chiang Ching. Mao's politically ambitious wife.

Hsinhuu, the Chinese news agency, revealed that in Shanghai, the stronghold of the radical faction, "tens of thousands" were tortured, a rare admission for the Chinese press.

Hsinhua also said hundreds who worked in the Ministry of Culture in Peking had been imprisoned and tortured to obtain confessions

"Some comrades became disabled, went insane or died as a result." Hsinhua Playwright Tu said he was not physically abused, in contrast to another Shanghai resident, engineer Lin Tsangtan, 52, who said he was severely beaten during 13 months under house arrest.

Both men were made available for interviews during a visit to China by 25 U.S. editors and publishers representing United Press International.

Tu's difficulties began in 1966 with the Cultural Revolution, another of Mao's campaigns, that one to rid the country of revisionists, re-emphasize agrarian development and rekindle revolutionary fervor among the young.

Youthful Ced Guards m get of criticism and he stopped writing and lived quietly on his salary of 200 yuan ($116) he receives monthly from the government. In addition, there were small royalties from his works.

Tu, a Marxist since the 1930s, was a propagandist with Mao's Communist troops in the 1940s and became a fulltime playwright in 1949 when the nation was taken over by Mao's forces.

"We truly believe socialism is the best system to save our country," he said, refilling his pipe from the tin of Panda tobacco on the small table around which he and his guests sat.

Does a Socialist playwright enjoy true freedom of expression

Are there restrictions on the subjects about which he wrote? "Only two," he replied. "We must not criticize the government. We must not criticize the leaders of the country.

His play, "When Ginger Flowers are in Full Bloom," recently concluded an 8month run in Shanghai, and is popular elsewhere in the country.

Motion picture houses are offering new films, some from Eastern European countries. Chinese studios are turning out as many as six new films each month, all with Socialist themes.

"For two years people got tired of seeing the same plays and films permitted by the Gang of Four," Tu said. "The theaters were virtually empty. Now they

Heated Battles Seen For Senate Seats In New Jersey, Virginia

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) - As Jimmy Carter demonstrated in 1976, the Solid South is not altogether dead. For the first time in many years, the states of the Old Confederacy - with a single exception went into the Democratic presidential

That exception was Virginia. In the last 24 years, it has given its presidential vote to only one Democrat (Lyndon Johnson). last year elected its third consecutive Republican governor and currently has a House delegation divided 6-4 edge in favor of the GOP. It also has not elected a senator under the Democratic label since 1966. However, Democrats continue to dominate legislative and county offices and that makes the state a political battleground.

Consider next New Jersey, which might look like it should be part of the Democratic stronghold in the industrial cast. Although it just re-elected its Democratic governor, the statehouse has been in Republican hands several times in recent years. And while the New Jersey House delegation is 11-4 for the Democrats, the state has voted for the GOP presidential nominee in six of the last eight elections. Another battleground.

There will be two interesting and possibly significant struggles for Senate seats on those battlegrounds this fall.

Both the Virginia and New Jersey GOP Senate candidates are rock-ribbed conservatives. But they are different enough to make comparisons worthwhile. Virginia's Richard Obenshain is a former state Republican chairman and former cochairman of the GOP national committee who has demonstrated his ability to work with Republicans not as far right as he. The New Jersey candidate, Jeffrey in 1976, but does not have Obenshain's experience or recognition across the whole GOP spectrum. Obanshain won his nomination - for a seat being vacated voluntarily by a conservative Republican - with old-fashioned convention tactics against a crowded field that included both conservatives and moderates Bell won his with the latest in direct mail appeals and media advertising in a primary that boiled down to a contest betweem himself and an entrenched liberal GOP incumbent. Against these dissimilar GOP conservatives are pitted two different Democrats. Virginia Attorney General Andrew Miller has come up through the ranks in a state Democratic party that has only recently shaken off the antebellum conservatism of the Byrd family. His own centrist position in the party was established painfully in his 1977 gubernatorial primary loss to populist Democrat Henry Howell, who like a good soldier Miller supported to the bitter end.

In New Jersey, the Democrat is what show business calls "a hot property" former New York Knicks basketball star Bill Bradley. Bradley bucked the Democratic organization in a state where political turf is divided and defended like Europe in the Middle Ages. Like Bell, he no track record to study, probably comes on as a moderate liberal for his time and

There are all kinds of auguries to read in these two elections. Is there a national tablished conservative in Virginia do better than the newcomer in New Jersey? Will the anti-organization Democrat in New Jersey fare as well as the staunch party man in Virginia?

But most of all, will the Republicans be able to retain the two precious Senate seats they have held in Virginia and New

But the textile industry, attacking the Labor Department's standards as excessive and inflationary, warned they will lead to higher cotton goods prices.

The criticism from both sides came Monday in response to the department's announcement of stricter regulations to protect textile workers from high cotton dust exposure, which over time can cause byssinosis and contribute to emphysema and bronchitis.

bling and sometimes fatal respiratory disease that afflicts an estimated 35,000 active or retired textile workers.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the new regulations will protect workers' health without burdening industry with unnecessary costs.

But the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union disagreed.

Murray H. Finley, president of the New York-based union, said the standards failed to protect the health" of workers exposed to cotton dust.

The textile union, joined by the AFL-CIO, asked the U.S. Court of Appeals here Monday to review the regulations.

sible cotton dust exposure level for yarning operations is too high. It also objected to a four-year grace period industry would have to meet the final standards, saying the industry can meet the stand-

However, the American Textile Manufacturers Institute said the new standards are "both highly inflationary and technologically impossible to meet in some areas of the mill.

Institute President Robert Small said the regulations, which begin to take effect in three months, will have "overwhelming financial implications for the entire cotton industry, not to mention taining cotton.

The institute appealed the standard to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond,

The Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OS-HA) estimates the standards will cost industry an initial outlay of $625 million to buy ventilation equipment and other engineering controls and $84 million a year in operational costs.

By contrast, the standards as first proposed in December 1976 would cost industry $2.7 billion in inital outlays and $270 million a year to maintain, OSHA ening of the regulations for segments of the industry where cotton dust levels and the incidence of "brown lung" are lower, OSHA said.

OSHA, under court pressure, had planned to issue the standards last month, but was delayed by a dispute with President Carter's economic advisers, who called the regulations inflationary. The dispute was settled this month when Marshall and Charles Schultze. Carter's chief economic adviser, agreed to modifications, which the two men said on Monday would help reduce costs to industry without weakening worker protec-

One change gave industry four years to meet the standard, rather than making it comply "as soon as possible," as OSHA had wanted. The agency previously esti-mated it would take industry three to four years to meet the regulations.

The standards set three different maximum exposure levels: for yarn manuface turing, 200 micrograms of lint-free respirable cotton dust per cubic meter of air averaged over eight hours; for slashing and weaving operations, 750 micrograms; and for cottonseed oil mills, bedding and mattress manufacturers and other non-textile industries, 500 micro-

That compares with OSHA's current standard allowing maximum exposure of up to 1,000 micrograms in all operations.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Wheat futures paced a rally in most grain prices on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Analysts said wheat was deriving its strength from the same factors that spurred higher prices last week. First, recent heavy exporter buying has been accompanied by rumors of pending

Chinese business. Some traders speculated that China was interested in buying substantial amounts of U.S. wheat due to shipping delays in Canada and Australia. two major wheat-exporting nations The reluctance of farmers to sell their newly-harvested winter wheat at current prices also contributed to the gains. Dealers reported that although the harvest was well underway, sales in cash markets remained relatively light.

And an ABC News-Lou Harris Poll released today showed a sizable majority of voters change their minds when confronted with the prospect of a cut in key

A survey of 1,500 adults across the country, questioned June 14-17, showed a 62 percent majority favored passage of a percent, with 28 percent opposed. But a sizable majority reversed itself when confronted with the prospect of a 35 percent cut in key services as a result.

Specific cuts those sampled would balk at making, even if it meant opposing a Proposition 13 in their own community included: by 71 percent to 24 percent if it meant slicing aid to the elderly, disabled and poor by 35 percent; by 66 percent to 27 percent if it meant a 35 percent cut in education in public schools; by 66 percent to 26 percent if it meant a 35 percent cut in fire protection.

And despite the hullabaloo over California's adoption of the Jarvis proposal, the poll also reveals that this tax revolt was not a sudden happening.

By 66 percent to 30 percent, a majority of those polled believed they and their families have reached the breaking point on the taxes they pay. However, the poll also showed that a year ago, a 66 percent to 26 percent majority felt exactly the same way.

Jarvis remains a hero to most taxpayers. But nagging second thoughts have been ignited by the word of harsh cuts in public services in California - and by the adage "There ain't no free lunch.

Victim Airs Doubts Of Regulations

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - After 40 years in a cotton mill, Lacy Dawkins was forced into premature retirement by "brown lung." a debilitating and sometimes fatal respiratory disease caused by

Dawkins and the organization of which he is vice president - the Carolina Brown Lung Association foresee a "new era of human rights in the workplace for the Southern textile work-

But, the 63-year-old Dawkins said, the new standards do not mean much unless they are enforced.

Dawkins, standing on the steps of the state Department of Labor building, read a statement in which his association objected to the four years manufacturers are given to meet the limits on cotton dust exposure inside their mills.

"We think that those four more years came from the interference of the White House during the last few weeks," the association said. "The texile companies got Carter's economic advisors to buy them more time, four more years. But time is something that brown lung victims don't have to sell."

Dawkins appeared with three women also forced into an early retirement by brown lung, or byssinosis, which makes breathing difficult and can contribute to emphysema and bronchitis. Like Dawkins, each had worked at a Burlington Industries mill at Erwin, N.C. The plant manufactures denim.

We want to put pressure on mill owners and OSHA (the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration) to fix things, so the young folks won't have to suffer like we have," Dawkins said. # Indian 'Walk' Nears Washington

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Before steel mills, before coal barges, before deer hunting licenses, they were here.

Now the American Indians are back

About 500 strong, their campfires flicker north of here in a woodland park as they pause on their "Longest Walk" from California to Washington, D.C. It is a walk against federal bills they say would strip them of land, minerals and wildlife and push them into oblivion with the Indians who named Pittsburgh's rivers - the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio.

'This is a fight for the very survival of the red man," says Ernie Peters, designated chief of the group. "The genocide has failed. We are still here in live, human form, and we are marching across the country," added Peters, whose South Dakota Sioux Indian name is Ojon-jon-wakon or Holy Light.

The Indians, from many tribes, carry a sacred pipe. It was used in a unity ceremony on Alcatraz Island before the walk began Feb. 11 in Sacramento.
"We follow the pipe and we pray," said Sidney Bearshield, 14, from the Rose-bud reservation in South Dakota.

When a blizzard hit Donner Pass in the Sierra Nevada Mountains of California, young runners carried the pipe relay-style while the others traveled in cars and trucks. It snowed in the Colorado Rockies. Kansas tornadoes sent them into armories several nights.

"But nothing can stop us," said Peters.

The aim of it all is to attract public attention. The leaders have mixed feelings about how that has gone

"Some of the media kind of joke about the situation. We see headlines like, 'Indians on the Warpath' or 'Indians Carry Warclubs to Washington," said Clyde Bellecourt, one of the walk leaders.

'There are no angry Indians here. Nobody is carrying war clubs or tomahawks," said Bellecourt, who grew up on the White Earth Chippewa reservation in Minnesota.

The Indians arrived in Indianapolis just prior to the 500 auto race. Bellecourt said there were "rumors" they would try to disrupt the event.

"These people have been sober, no alcohol, no drugs, no guns, and I certainly wouldn't march them in front of a bunch of drunks to be called names at the Indianapolis 500," he said.

Through the trip, the Indians have drawn spectators to their camp, which has a few teepees but mostly regular tents. Some guests bring food, clothes and money. They also bring cameras and questions.

'Some ask if we still wear breechcloths, but we understand," said Bellecourt. Most of the Indians wear jeans, tennis shoes or work shoes, and some wear "Longest Walk" T-shirts.

They say their way of life is threatened by 11 pieces of federal legislation that would strip them of land, mineral and wildlife claims they hold under treaties. In the Pacific Northwest, they battle fishing firms over steelhead trout. In Montana, it is coal-stripping on the Northern Cheyenne reservation. In South Dakota, it is uranium rights. In Maine, Indians have laid a huge claim to timber-

Yet they cling to many tribal ways, and that is the key to the walk

To the Indians, surrender of the land and rights would bring an end to tribal

"The sponsors of these bills say they want to help the Indians modernize." said Jose Barreiro, spokesman at the "Longest Walk" office in Washington,

"But you will find a substantial number of Indian people who want to live the Indian way. They have a very basic belief that they belong to the land; the land does not belong to them.

"A century ago, the Indians were driven to destitute areas, land people couldn't use. Now, with the thrust of our energy development, these lands be-

The walkers, to arrive in Washington July 15, paused at Deer Lake Park, a county-run facility where the Indians are staying at no cost.

They spent part of last week at a private campground in Wheeling, W.Va. That stay ended when the campground manager brandished a gun in a dispute

The manager claimed the Indians disrupted and damaged the camp. The Indians said he was miffed because he had wanted to charge admission to see the Peters said he had felt no fear in the face of the pistol.

"A gun would only kill me," he said. "The walk would continue. Nothing can old fetus within the womb will die without a delicate blood transfusion. Its Rh positive blood is being destroyed by its mother's Rh negative blood.

In an operation today, doctors will try to make the fetus' blood compatible with its mother's by inserting a needle through the uterine wall to inject 50 to 100 cubic centimeters of "good blood" into the fetus, according to spokesmen at Norton-Childrens Hospital.

The mother, Katherine Shifflett, 22, of Jacksonville, Fla., was given blood tests and ultra-sound tests Monday to determine the exact location of the fetus.

Her unborn child would have only a 5 percent chance of survival if labor were induced and it were delivered now.

Dr. Ernest Ferrell, Mrs. Shiflett's Florida physician, said the transfusion must be done no later than today, and a second will be needed before labor can be induced in about four weeks.

A hospital spokesman said Monday that the operation takes only a few minutes. Doctors will know shortly after the Doctors said Mrs. Shifflett's Rh nega-tive blood is destroying red cells in the fetus' Rh positive blood. The Rh factor is determined by heredity. Rh positive blood contains antigens. The airplane and about $1,500 in donations to help pay for the operation were contributed in response to local news reports in Florida about the couple, who have no medical insurance. Doctors said the total cost of saving the baby could run as high as $40,000.

Elderly Hurt By Various Con Games

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - White collar crimes, consumer fraud, con games and ripoffs plague the nation's elderly. And what happens to the elderly today, happens to everyone eventually, a corrections expert says.

"We're only just finding out how bad crime against the elderly is," Professor Paul H. Hahn, director of the graduate corrections program at Ohio's Xavier University, said Monday, "Even police departments are only beginning to look at the over-65 population category."

Hahn, speaking at the 25th annual convention of the National Institute on Crime and Delinquency, said the aged are vulnerable, because they are isolated from the mainstream, often suffer from physical restraints and have predictable The results can be devastating." Hahn not the major concern for the elderly. 'It's the con game where a person can lose his entire life savings. He can't meet the rent or pay the grocery bill - the basic needs of survival," Hahn said. Though the victim of crime may not

uffer physical harm, a financial disaster

can be traumatic and can further isolate the older person. Hahn said. The problem in the criminal justice sys-

Damaging Fire Season Seen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Smokey the Bear will have a busy season in Southern California.

This could be the most disastrous fire season in recent history. Clyde Bragdon Jr., Los Angeles County Fire Chief said Monday

The large amount of rainfall the county received this past winter has produced an abundant growth of grass in watershed areas," he said.

This light, flashy fuel ignites easily, burns rapidly and can carry fire into the larger chaparral, much of which hasn't burned since the disastrous fires of Sep-

This has given the watershed a period of eight years for regrowth.

Bragdon said the weather will be a key factor in the fire season, with expected high temperatures, low humidity and hot, dry Santa Ana wind conditions adding to the danger

The July 4th holiday could be explosive, he said, because of the use of fireworks. Last year in los Angeles County there were 143 fires caused by fireworks, amounting to nearly $364,000 in property damage. And 350 acres of grass or brush Most fireworks fires were caused by throwing sparklers onto rooftops and into dry grass and brush," he said.

It was the worst boating accident in Kansas' history.

The body had apparently surfaced on its own, according to Rick Bagby, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Lake Pomona. Weary workers had fought high winds, heat and occasional thunderstorms for the past three days dragging for the body.

Before the girl's body was recovered. authorities said they were satisfied with search efforts.

Filibuster Foes Trying Again To Stop Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) - A record-tying sixth vote on whether to end a month long Senate filibuster against proposed labor law revisions was rescheduled for Thursday by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, a supporter of the bill.

He won approval of a two-day Senate recess, which would give several senators in the anti-filibuster group who were unable for one reason or another an opportunity to vote on the debate ending mea-

Filibuster leaders, though, were trying to pressure their opponents into throwing in the towel if they fail in the next attempt to cut off debate.

Byrd won approval for the recess late Monday after opponents of the legislation refused to agree to voluntarily postponing the anti-filibuster vote.

He said the delay was needed to accommodate senators who would be out of town or unable for other reasons to vote

Filibuster leaders had expressed con-

Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, predicted that a vote taken today would fail by the same two-vote margin that two anti-filibuster votes lost last week.

As has been his custom, Byrd refused to predict the outcome of a vote. He said that had the vote scheduled today failed, he would have arranged another try

Hatch said that when the Senate votes for a sixth time on the filibuster, "I think we have spoken enough." He said the next vote "really ought to be it." Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, speaking Monday in Tennessee, expressed a similar sentiment.

Byrd gave no indication he is in a hurry to pull the bill off the Senate floor despite the press of other legislation stalled behind the labor law measure. He said that if the filibuster can be broken, action on the bill can be completed within a week

The legislation - organized labor's top goal for this session of Congress - would set deadlines for union representation elections and impose stiff penalties on employers who violate the law in trying to thwart unionizing and bargaining efforts. The record of six anti-filibuster votes

Carter administration.

However, Barry Bosworth, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability. and others say the economy could go into a recession if inflation is not brought under control.

The report indicated prices rose at an annual rate of 7.1 percent in the first quarter.

Before removing the effects of inflation, the department found that total output grew at an annual rate of $33.5 billion, or 7 percent, to $1,995.3 billion.

The main reasons for the revisions, the department said, were $500 million in increased consumer spending. $1.4 billion more spent in inventories and a $900 million increase in exports.

However, money spent by businesses on fixed investments, a sign of business confidence, was revised downward by $900 million. The department said the economy would have grown about 2.5 percent to 3 percent in the first quarter if it had not been for a coal strike and an unusually cold, wet winter. The unchanged growth in the first quarter followed an increase of 3.8 percent in the fourth quarter of last year. The department also said corporate profits in the first quarter decreased $18.3 billion to an annual rate of $126.5 billion. Before-tax profits declined $6.4 billion to $171.9 billion. The coal strike and cold weather accounted for about one-half of the decline in profits, the de-

USDA Says Bones In Meat Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department said today it will allow meat processors to grind up hard-to-trim bones and include some finely ground bone in frankfurters and salami.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the reclaimed meat will be allowed in some products beginning July 20 but only under rules assuring that "this product is wholesome and safe" to

The process involves grinding up ribs. neck bones and similar parts of a slaughtered animal that are hard to trim by hand. The mixture is forced through a sieve, screening out larger bits of bone.

But finely ground bone about the size of ordinary table pepper passes through and winds up in the mixture.

Under the rules, the meat-bone mixture can be used to comprise up to 20 percent of the actual meat portion of certain products, including salami and hot dogs. Seventeen percent of that mixture is meat and up to 3 percent could be bone. The use of salvaged meat was initially proposed by the Agriculture Department more than two years ago, including interim rules to let processors use it. But a court halted the plan after consumer groups objected. Mrs. Foreman also announced that the salvaged meat officially will be called "mechanically processed beef product" or "mechanically processed pork prod-The meat industry for years has called it "mechanically deboned meat" or MDM and objected sharply to the department's new proposal last fall that it be known as "tissue from ground bone.

Mrs. Foreman said that the regulations will require products containing the salvaged meat to have labels clearly telling consumers what they are getting, including a notice that the product contains powdered bone.

The rules prohibit the use of the salvaged meat in baby, junior and toddler

"Further, it may only be used in meat products where it will not alter their textural or visual characteristics, such as sausage, frankfurters, scrapple and canned spaghetti with meat sauce," the department said.

It will not be permitted in hamburger. ground beef, roast beef, corned beef, fabricated steaks, barbequed meats, beef with gravy, lima beans with ham and similar products, and meat pies.

Government Official Warns Railroads

ATLANTA (AP) - Unsafe rail lines will be closed, if necessary, to protect the public from derailments of tankers and boxcars carrying dangerous substances, a federal transportation official says.

Chester C. Davenport of the U.S. Department of Transportation told a workshop at the U.S. Conference of Mayors on Monday that railroads are being warned to repair substandard lines. But, he said. "if they don't do that ... what we're going to do is close down the railroads. We've number of cases already

He declined to say which lines have been closed, but he said about 300 to 400 miles of track are involved.

GI Paper May Sell Ads

Stripes, the American GI's daily newspaper abroad, is in financial trouble and may have to carry commercial advertising to avoid possible extinction.

But a congressional committee must first give the go-ahead.

The newspaper, remembered by millions of veterans of four wars, has not carried advertising except for a brief period shortly after its birth more than 60 years ago.

"I'm trying to save the newspaper," said Air Force Maj. Gen. Guy E. Hairston, commander of the American Forces Information Service, who wants a one-year test of advertising in the news-

Stars and Stripes is unique for a government-sponsored publication. Although under military command, it is regarded as the "hometown newspaper away from home" for hundreds of thousands of servicemen and women stationed overseas. Produced by a mixed military and civilian staff, it carries stories and features 000 there. In the Pacific, the paper lost its own reporters.

The Pentagon recently asked Congress for permission "to solicit and use commercial advertising to offset partially the cost" of producing and distributing Stars and Stripes editions in Europe and the Pacific

This request has been made because in recent years both ... have experienced substantial losses," Hairston wrote the Senate-House Committee on Printing. The committee, which has final say, is studying the proposal.

"The factors causing these losses can be expected to continue," Hairston added. He listed rising costs, falling circulation due to U.S. troop withdrawals from Korea, inflation and slippage in the dollar's buying power overseas.

Pentagon figures show the European edition lost $3.5 million last year on daily sales averaging 101,000 papers, but related book and magazine sales enabled Stars and Stripes to show a net profit of $900,-

Actress Pamela Sue Martin Shedding Teen-Ager Image at all. I don't. I've learned much more By JAY SHARBUTT she feels that was more important

So the brown-haired, gray-eyed actress, 25, was asked if all this is part of a Hollywood cliche, trying to change an image. in this case the Nancy Drew one. She grinned

Yeah, that's exactly how I feel, the same old 'image' cliche," she said. 'Obviously, nothing is my 'image.' But people do tend to stereotype you here.

And it ("Playboy") has helped me age-wise. Before, all the offers I got were Nancy Drew types of teen-age roles. But I feel I'm past that. It doesn't interest me much anymore Miss Martin, born in Westport, Conn., daughter of a businessman, began her career at 16 as a model. Her first TV job was as a teen-ager whose mother praised her hair in a shampoo commercial.

The commercials led to acting work in four films, among them "Poseidon Adventure," and to PBS "The Hemingway Play" and ABC's "Nancy Drew," which she left this winter after two seasons

That same winter, she went to Newfoundland with the Greenpeace animal activists to protest the slaughter of baby seals. It may have cost her jobs here, but

Women Police Officers Found Less Efficient

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - A study conducted for the city of Philadelphia has concluded that female police officers are not as efficient as their male counterparts in performing patrol duties.

The study, conducted in conjunction with a court directive that the city hire more female police officers, said women on the force "require more assistance to make arrests, are assaulted more often, have more vehicle accidents and tend to sustain more injuries than males. But the study also found that in some areas, such as making arrests, women do just as well as men, and in other areas hey rate higher than men Researchers of Bartell Associated Inc.

of State College, Pa., stressed the twoyear study was only preliminary and said "scientifically controlled research" was needed to confirm or refute the findings. The study recommended the women officers not be placed on patrol except for purposes of continuing research.

The report examined the performance of 100 women and 100 men in the Philadelphia Police Department. It was filed in U.S. District Court in connection with three sex discrimination suits against the

The study found women "do not project the impact of strength and power to he same degree as male officers.

The report did say female officers acted on an equal basis with male officers in certain areas, such as making arrests.

Women are "as diligent as men in making arrests," the report said. It added, There is no difference between the number of arrests made by men and women recruits."

Researchers found there were no significant performance differences between men and women in handling an as-sist of an officer, a demented individual, an arrest, a holdup in progress, a highway disturbance.

California Eyes Steam Plant

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The state of California plans to build the world's first power plant run by a combination of natural underground steam and burned wood waste, officials said.

The $45 million, 55-megawatt plant is scheduled to start operating near Susanville in northeast California in 1984.

The plant would produce enough power for a city of 73,000, but most of it would be used to run pumps for the state water project, particularly at the proposed federal-state Glenn pump-storage reservoir on the west side of the Sacramento Valley.

Besides producing electricity, the plant would:

- Provide hot water for heating 200 greenhouses and drying vegetables and fruits. It would be the largest hydroponic (growing in water) greenhouse complex. in the world. About 30 greenhouses already operating in the area are heated by geothermal water.

- Use lumber mill waste and forest waste that contaminates ground water when buried and causes air pollution

Government Approves CB Antenna Standards

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government has approvad safety rules for the installation of citizens band and other antennas to prevent electrocutions that occur when the devices come in contact with overhead power lines.

More than 500 people have died in recent years during installation of the antennas. The government said accidents during installation of antennas were the No. 1 cause of electrocutions among consumer products.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission regulations require red and yellow labels on the antennas themselves warning users that they can be killed if the device comes into contact with an overhead power line during installation.

The requirements go into affect 90 days after they are published in the Federal Register, which is expected to happen

Manufacturers will have to provide written safety instructions and other information warning that base stationed antennas, television aerials and other supporting structures for large antennas can be hazardous unless certain steps are followed during installation and disas-

CPSC officials said about 85 percent of the estimated 150 antenna manufacturers in the country already are using the warning labels.

The commission staff said its next move would be to draft another regulation to require an insulating device to be placed on antennas that would prevent electricity from traveling down the antenna, in the event contact was made with a power line.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who announced the action on negligence, said, We cannot estimate precisely how much the federal government will ultimately pay out in compensation. We expect, however, that the amounts awarded will be only a fraction of the amounts claimed.

The Justice Department still must review the claims, Califano said, and the decision not to make victims prove negligence will not apply to any non-Guillain-Barre cases.

"To receive federal compensation, Guillain-Barre claimants will not need to prove negligence by federal workers or others in the swine flu program as required by federal law and the law in many states," said the HEW secretary. 'Instead, claimants in most cases need to show only that they in fact developed Guillain-Barre as a result of a swine flu vaccination and suffered the alleged damages.

Swine flu swept the world in 1918-19 and killed 20 million persons, but had not been reported in this country for more than half a century.

Califano said that persons who got shots were not warned that they carried the risk that one in every 100,000 persons would contract Guillain-Barre, and that one in every two million would die from

He said that prior to this campaign, "there was no evidence linking Guillain-Barre to flu vaccinations. Health officials now say that any inoculation campaign increases a person's small risk of getting a disease. But they say that for the elderly and chronically ill, the risks of dying from regular flu are far greater. When it started the swine flu campaign, the government agreed to exempt the five vaccine manufacturers, and the health agencies and individuals who gave the shots, against any lawsuits filed by individuals.

The government, however, could sue the vaccine makers if it believed there was any negligence on their part.

The inoculation campaign was brought to a halt on Dec. 16, 1976, two months after it began, after some persons contracted the Guillain-Barre syndrome.

The government is planning an inoculation drive this winter among high-risk groups such as the elderly and chronically ill to protect them against common flu viruses, including the Russian strain.

The influenza virus changes very rapidly, with the result that every year or two a new type starts its sweep around the world. Recent varieties have included the so-called Hong Kong flu and A-Victoria

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sneak enemy nuclear attack on the areas U.S. defense planners consider the most likely targets could kill eight of every 10 residents, according to a recent federal report.

We have no civil defense program. merely the apparatus to start one," said Bardyl Tirana, head of the Pentagon's Defense Civil Preparedness Agency. He supervised President Carter's inauguration before moving to his latest job.

Dr. William K. Chipman, deputy assistant director of the agency, put it this

And the nation's vulnerability is not likely to diminish quickly.

America's civil defense program would need about a year of advance warning to provide actual shelter against the initial nuclear blast for half the nation's 230 million people. Chipman said.

A Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee is set to open hearings today on a plan that President Carter unveiled Monday to reorganize into a single office federal agencies which deal with natural and man-made disasters. While "there is a strong interest in civil defense ... there has been no decision to increase the emphasis on civil defense." Tirana said of the plan.

Among responsibilities of the new office would be the job of providing federal aid after a terrorist attack, which is not now assigned to any one agency.

The task force that devised the reorganization plan said in its report that "national security capabilities of civilian government at all levels have eroded considerably in the past decade."

Should an international crisis develop now, the Russians would be able to toss the big chip" onto the table of the highstakes poker game between two nations brandishing the world's most fearful nuclear stockpiles. The "big chip" - in the vocabulary of preparedness agency officials - is the Soviets' ability to quickly evacuate their cities.

The United States, with no up-to-date evacuation plan, has no such chip.

That gives the Soviets two options, ac cording to Dr. Leon Goure, a University of Miami expert on Soviet civil defense. They can shelter their population in place and give little or no warning to the enemy. Or, he says, they can evacuate their cities, which "could give Moscow major leverage in a crisis situation, especially if the U.S. were unable to disperse, or effectively shelter, its own urban pop-

Payne Skeptical Of Carter Plan

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The head of Lubbock's civil defense program was skeptical of President Carter's proposed consolidation of disaster agencies and said he would wait and see if the plan was more than "lip service."

Bill Payne, director of communications for the city, said "the civil defense function has been a stepchild since it was reinstituted back in the 1950s.

'It has been bounced from the Executive Department to the Defense Department to agency status," he said.

Until the defense establishment includes civil defense in the total defense picture and gives it a priority as high as the national defense system, I don't think we'll have much of a civil defense system," Payne commented.

"We've never seen a direct tie-in between civil defense and actual defense in anything other than lip service by the ministration is warning the Soviet Union that it must agree to a ban on killer satellites or the United States will not hesitate to escalate the arms race in space.

We're the world's most technically advanced nation," an administration official said on Monday. "We can achieve a system that is of higher quality and better than theirs.

He said he hoped the two countries would agree to curb anti-satellite systems before the superpowers engage in a new and "unhealthy" space arms race that could cost each nation billions of dollars. The official, who asked not to be identified, briefed reporters on a new national space policy recently drawn up by President Carter. The policy is dedicated to continuing U.S. technological supremacy in space, with strong emphasis on military systems to counter possible Soviet threats. Early in his administration, Carter made a public appeal to the Soviets to outlaw satellite-destroying systems. But that nation has staged five tests since then and has given no signs it intends to forgo the killer satellite system. The two nations held the first round of talks on a possible ban last week in Helsinki, Finland. But the briefing official

WASHINGTON (AP) - A $68.2 billion appropriation for the Housing and Ur-ban Development Department and a number of independent agencies is now before the Senate.

He said the Russians "in one sense already have a capability" shown by tests in which they have knocked several of their own satellites out of the sky. He said he did not know how close the Soviet system was to becoming operational. In response to the threat, the U.S. has started developing its own killer satellite system. But the official said "it will be a significant amount of time before we can The Carter space policy statement says that without an agreement the U.S. will develop a "contingency reaction capabilit which can effectively detect and react to threats to U.S. space systems." Carter's is the first U.S. space policy declaration since Pressident John F Kennedy in 1961 set supremacy as a goal when he committed the country to landing a man on the moon in that decade. The Kennedy statement came after several Russian successes which included sending the first man into orbit.

Under the Carter plan, presidential science adviser Dr. Frank Press will head a committee which will review and coordi nate the nation's space programs - civilian, military and commercial.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Defense Department are directed under the policy to cooperate more closely. Those agencies until now have conducted separate space programs. Within two years, both agencies will be using the manned space shuttle as a workhorse vehicle.

The shuttle, under development, is a reuseable vehicle that will land like an airplane and will be capable of repeated trips into orbit.

The shuttle is so technically superior that no country will be able to touch us in space transportation," the official said. We will use it to retain world supremacy in space."

"The development bank is crucial to our joint efforts to bring jobs and private investment to cities, counties and communities." Mondale told the annual concheering mayors. "Now is the time that our federal policies have to change, and start paying more attention to the cities."

But Kennedy suggested that solutions like Proposition 13, approved overwhelmingly by California voters, are far from ideal because they could "destroy local tax systems."

"If we are going to stop the hemor-rhage of revenues wasted in massive spending designed to help the many who are poor, let us do so in ways that also stop the hemorrhage of revenues wasted in massive spending through tax loo-pholes designed to help the few who are rich," Kennedy said.

Kennedy was invited to deliver the convention keynote address after Carter declined the invitation. After Kennedy accepted, the White House announced that Mondale would be available.

From simple soccer and track and field shoes, the range has grown to include almost everything from swimwear to baseball gear. They even make special parachuting shoes. "But they don't exactly sell by the millions," said Horst Dassler with a smile.

The sales philosophy is simple. Promote the most important sports in as many countries as possible and make sure the winners wear three stripes.

Those results of a patient survey were good news Monday to the board of managers of the Lubbock County Hospital District, which runs the Texas Tech University-affiliated teaching facility. "I am encouraged that those who responded to our questionnaires seemed to feel, for the most part, that we have treated them with sensitivity, concern and respect. -The board received from the hospital auxiliary a check for $3,000, the first installment of a $9,750 contribution to allow Emergency Medical Service technicians to attend a paramedic training program. With the auxiliary footing the tuition, the board voted Monday to allocate $6,200 from district reserves to cover extra salaries during the training period.

Young Says Troops Not Going To Africa

LUFKIN (AP) - The Carter administration has already taken a very strong stand in Africa in the form of its stand on human rights and its criticism of countries who violate those rights. Andrew

Young said here Monday night. And, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said, there's no chance the United States will be sending troops to Africa-"at this time or any other time." Young made the statements at a press conference in Lufkin before addressing the Angelina County Citizens Chamber of Commerce banquet, an annual Juneteenth celebration of the predominantly black organization. The best supporters of our foreign policy initiative are the Africans themselves, Young said, adding that the United States has a dominant influence over 47 of 49 states on that continent. He said Ethiopia and Angola are the lone holdouts. Young also said Africa has and will continue to turn to the United States for development, citing the need for American capital as the force behind the countries'

The United States is not really giving up anything in Panama, he said, because that country needs continued American assistance which is sure to last until after the canal is turned over in 22 years.

After those 22 years, development and democratization will be taking place in that country with an economic system very much influenced by U.S. banks, the ambassador predicted.

He also said a SALT treaty is in the American interest.

Miller Gives Guilty Plea while a $381,000 promissory note, se-cured by shares, was also allegedly given By FRANK PATRICK

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The former chairman of the board of Slaton Savings and Loan Association has pleaded guilty to a federal charge of willfully causing a false statement to be

Pleading guilty in U.S. District Court here was Edward T. Miller, 45, of Dal-

Miller's plea came on the eve of his scheduled trial, set for Wednesday. The former loan official and co-defendant W. Jaye Ford, 36, reportedly of Houston, were scheduled to go to trial Wednesday for allegedly conspiring to embezzle and misapply funds. As part of a plea bargaining arrangement, Miller agreed to testify in Ford's upcoming trial. Prosecutors in return agreed to recommend probation for Miller and agreed to drop five remaining counts of the indictment pending against him. Maximum punishment for the count to which Miller pleaded guilty is a $5,000 fine and/or two years imprisonment. While accepting the guilty plea, U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward ordered a pre-sentencing report and deferer date.

An indictment returned by a federal grand jury in April accused Ford and Miller of conspiring to profit from association transactions and loans and of intentionally overvaluing land in order to influence the association to make loans.

Miller was indicted on six counts, while Ford was named in seven counts. The fifth and sixth counts of the indictment accused the two defendants of causing false statements to be made in connection with a proposed $700,000 bank loan to two other individuals. Miller pleaded guilty to the fifth count. A factual resume filed by prosecutors statement in the fifth count arose from financing the sale of 75,000 shares of loan association stock in 1974.

According to the resume, Miller had in 1972 purchased as trustee 75 per cent of the outstanding shares in the Slaton financial institution for a price of $881,000. Of that price, $500,000 was borrowed from a bank, according to the resume, seller Frank R. Young. The document alleges that the $381,000 note matured and that Young was seeking to collect it when 75 per cent of the stock was sold to Jack Gaulding and Jerry R. Powell on or about May 30, 1974.

To finance the purchase, according to the document filed by prosecutors, Gaulding and Powell borrowed $700,000 from Lubbock's Texas Commerce Bank, using the 75,000 shares of stock as collateral for securing the loan.

Prosecutors contend neither Miller nor Ford advised Gaulding, Powell or the Texas Commerce Bank about the alleged $381,000 interest claimed by Young.

Ford and Miller thus caused a false written statement to be made to the bank to the effect that the 75,000 shares not subject to the interest of any third person, prosecutors allege.

The indictment returned in April alleged Miller and Ford conspired to manipulate resources of the Slaton Savings and Loan Association from approximately June to September, 1973. The government charges that Ford was connected with the savings and loan and acted as its agent while at the same time being connected with Bay Tree In-The indictment said the alleged conspiracy followed this scenario:

On July 30, 1973, defendants were alleged to have caused an appraisal to be made of approximately 8.3 acres of land near the intersection of Loop 289 and Quaker Avenue. —On or about the same date, defend-ants allegedly caused the association to sell a participation in the Bay Tree loan to the Franklin Bank of Houston.

—On or about Aug. 28, Ford allegedly received $94,000 of the proceeds of the association loan to Bay Tree in the form of a check from Bay Tree payable to Bankers Financial Services, Inc.

—Around September, 1973, the indictment alleged, Ford and Miller were present when, according to the indictment, the appraisal was changed to show a market value of the land of $847,400 as of Aug. 23, 1974. The above allegations were set forth in

Jeff Rubens' winning Bols Bridge Tip was that you should make life easy for your partner. An interesting case in point was reported by Terence Reese from a recent tournament. Can you spot the correct defense?

North felt that his hand was too strong for a simple heart overcall, so he chose to double. When South bid no trump, North elected to suppress his heart suit in favor of contracting for a ninetrick contract at no trump. Since South had barely enough for his original response, he might have declined the invitation-except that the result justified his decision to go on to game.

West led a low spade and declarer won the ten. Declarer could now count eight tricks, and since West al-most surely held one diamond honor, that suit was the obvious place to look for the ninth trick. A diamond to the jack lost to the ace. and now the jack of clubs return would have set the con-

Unfortunately, East had no reason to make that play. He simply continued a spade, and declarer had all the time in the world to set up dummy's high diamond to make his game.

The winning defense is not easy to spot. West must convey to his partner that he has no further interest in the spade suit, and that East should cast around for greener pastures.

When declarer leads a diamond toward dummy, it should be obvious to both defenders that declarer has neither the ace nor the king of diamonds. Thus, West should rise with the king and continue a diamond to partner's ace.

After East wins the ace of diamonds, he should realize that his partner has no further ambitions in the spade suit. Since East can now count declarer for nine tricks if he ever regains the lead, urgent measures are required.

Declarer must have the king of clubs for his bid, yet clubs offer the only chance of defeating the contract. East's only hope is that his partner started with specifically the A-Q-9 of clubs, so he must shift to the jack, neutralizing dummy's ten and enabling the defenders to collect three club tricks for down one.

DEAR ABBY: I have preschool children and a large home to care for, but I schedule my time so that everything gets done. When the children nap, I read, write letters, watch TV or just relax.

However, lately nearly every afternoon certain neighbor barges in on me. She helps herself to refreshments, then settles down for an endless outpouring of gossip, unasked-for advise and a monologue of opinions on various subjects. She is tiresome, boring and a vicious gossip.

I would pretend not to be home, but she can see my car in the carport. At first I found her entertaining, but she comes so often. I've taken a dislike to her. What should I do? No names or location, please. She has a sharp tongue and would make a better friend than an enemy

Television Program Aids Parent, Child

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - Someone has actually thought of a way of using television to get parents and their children to talk to each other.

It's called Parent Participating TV Workshop and what it is this: Once a month, when NBC's children's show, Special Treat, airs, any number of parents and their kids get together with a television and a group leader (one of the parents, a teacher, etc.)

They all watch the show together and then, cued to pertinent questions and themes by the leader and a handbook provided free by NBC to participating schools, they sit around and talk about what they've seen.

Shoplifting, death, abortion - things parents and kids often don't, and sometimes can't discuss.

"NBC was looking for a children's show idea and we suggested the workshop, which germinated from a discussion with a professor of education at the University of Chicago," says Gloria Kirschner, editor of Teachers' Guide to Television, a magazine which recommends worthwhile television shows.

"So NBC gave us a modest grant for the project," she continues, "and in the fall of '76, we started three pilot programs: one in Americus, Ga., with junior high students; one in Charlottesville, Va. with 4th and 5th graders, and one at Cathedral High School, a Catholic girls' school in New York City."

Now, she says, because parents and kids found they really did talk to each other even long after the shows, there are workshops in 25 cities and "hundreds of smaller school system.

Tucson hopes to have 106 and at the University of Wisconsin's extension service, under the direction of a specialist in child development, county agents are running workshops in about 30 counties in the state. They see it as a way to work with all the other youth service groups in each county." It doesn't cost anything to join or participate in the program. "All we ask is feedback from participating groups so we know how the project is going." she says. "It can be a simple phone call, a questionnaire, still pictures - some workshops videotape their sessions and send them to us." And even parents who are illiterate can take part because all television requires is seeing and hearing.

Recently, Special Treat aired a show called "Papa and Me," about death. Papa, the head of a large Italian family in New York in 1944, is dying, and it's his grandson Joey's first contact with death. From what he sees of its effects - Papa secluded upstairs, relatives sobbing downstairs - death is certainly dreadful

Finally, Papa sends for him. Joey: Papa, are you going to die? Papa: Well, might be. It's hard to tell. I

Local Puppeteer Blends Drama, Speech, Imagination, Animation

Family News Staff

When Mary Strout slips her fist inside the worn, frayed sock of a hand puppet, her voice suddenly slips into a growl, her hands wave animatedly and then, her puppets come to life.

It has been over 50 years since Mary Strout was first introduced to puppetry. In college at Northwestern University she majored in speech and drama, but at 1 the time putting those skills to use as a puppeteer was the farthest thing from her mind. Then she saw her first puppet show and her enthusiasm soared.

Although she had no training in puppetry, she gave her first puppet show with only her imagination to guide her. "Puppets at that time were a mystery to me and I didn't have a source to ask about how to make them," she explained. But lack of experience in the field didn't keep her from pursuing her

She experimented with marionette: puppets and learned how to make paper mache puppets during Work Project Administration (WPA) classes. The only condition was she give a puppet show when the puppets were completed and Mrs. Strout didn't hesitate to take advantage of the opportunity.

With a cast of puppets and one assistant she presented her first puppet show in the window of a local department store. She wrote the play around a Christmas i theme and despite her limited knowledge of puppetry, she delighted audiences with her shows.

With her background in the theater, she was able to learn the details of puppetry quickly. "I can change my voice to fit each character pretty well," she said. A knowledge of sewing made it possible for her to create the intricate costumes the puppets wore. When she combined her skills in drama, speech and writing she had the makings of a delightful puppet show. "It came easy to me - I knew how a person acted when he was fatigued so I, just transfered the actions to the puppets," she explained.

She kept her plays short, with a limited amount of dialogue and she gave puppet shows covering a variety of subjects everything from nursery rhymes to adult

She continued to give puppet shows in the area, occasionally holding workshops for youngsters interested in puppetry. She attended puppetry festivals and during world travels she looked for new pup-, pets and studied new tricks of the trade. While Mrs. Strout has used mari-

The charge filed Monday accuses the juvenile of causing Thomas' death by stabbing him with a knife and choking him with a waist belt.

Officers found Thomas late May 18 lying on his back near the north curb at 1300 E. Ursuline St. A black belt was lying beside the victim. Authorities indicated Thomas, of Wolfforth, had been stabbed seven times, with most of the wounds in the upper left portion of the Three other persons reportedly were riding in the front of the vehicle. According to witness accounts, the group in the truck was returning to town from a beer store on the Tahoka Highway.

Reports indicate Thomas had met three of the group — all except the driver earlier at a local bar and agreed to go get some beer with them One witness, who reportedly was riding in the front of the truck, said the juvenile had confided to him while at the beer store that he did not like the victim. The witness told police that, as the truck was traveling on Avenue A near 30th Street, the juvenile hollered that he had stabbed his riding companion. Reports indicate that the truck was eventually stopped on East Ursuline The witness said he noted the victim was not dead. He said he suggested taking him to a hospital. (The juvenile) took his knife out of his pocket and said that he would make sure then stabbed him again..." the witness said in a statement to police. The witness said he contacted police

Ethics Committee Cites Violation By McClellan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Ethics Committee investigators say, in their opinion, the late Sen. John McClellan broke the law by not reporting a $1,000. contribution from Tongsun Park in 1972.

They also released transcripts of conflicting sworn testimony on disputed contributions Park says he gave to aides of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

Perjury "is a possibility." Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-III., chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee told reporters Mon-

But Stevenson said his investigators turned all sworn testimony on Tongsun Park's Senate activities over to the Justice Department for possible investigation without recommending a specific perjury investigation.

The investigators released the testimony publicly along with an interim report on Park's assertion that he gave $16,000 to $21,000 to eight senators.

Republican, Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said they have no doubt that Park was an agent trying to influence senators for the South Korean government.

But Schmitt said it would be hard to prove any of the senators knew that.

Meanwhile a hearing before U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker continues here today into the competency of former Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., to stand trial for allegedly accepting about $213,000 from Park in return for channeling American rice business to Park.

On Monday, the first day of the hearing and with Passman in the courtroom, a court-appointed psychiatrist and cardiologist both told Parker that Passman is able to stand trial if lawyers on both sides take his age and physical condition into account

During a news conference Monday the Illinois Democrat who chairs the committee went on to compliment Texas' senior senator for cooperating with the investigation

Beef Imports Compromise Bill Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With the administration promising a veto of a Senate-passed beef imports bill, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, says his Ways and Means subcommittee should work out a compromise.

It is "particularly important to reach a compromise," Vanik said Monday as he opened the second day of hearings on a Senate-passed counter-cyclical beef bill and 32 other measures.

But the Ohio Democrat revealed little about the shape of a possible compro-

He noted that Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said President Carter would veto the Senate version, which would permit higher beef imports if domestic production were down and lower imports if domestic supplies were large.

A portion of the Senate bill would restrict presidential authority to suspend beef import quotas. The authority was used this month when Carter increased by 200 million pounds the amount of beef to be imported into the United Stated this year.

While not disagreeing with the president's move, Vanik said that as a general rule he would like to reduce presidential discretion and establish beef imports by statute.

"We do our work out in the sunshine and some of these other decisions are made in the closets," he said.

Vanik said his general goals on beef import legislation to amend the 1964 Meat Import Act would be to strike a. balance to provide safeguards for consumers and stability for producers.

Complaining of his own experience with high beef prices, he warned beef producers that if prices were too high, consumers might turn to substitutes.

Vanik said. "We'll be eating soybean steaks and maybe we'll begin to like

Noting that the testimony before the committee was given under oath, Stevenson said the transcripts had been turned over to the Justice Department for possible perjury violations.

Park and Tower differed sharply in their recollections of their dealing.

The South Korean rice dealer repeatedly referred to Tower as a "close friend or "dear friend" while Tower labeled Park merely a "social acquaintance." That's his perception of my relationship," countered Tower during a late-afternoon press conference following the Senate Ethics Committee press conference. "My relationship is that of a social acquaintance. Park did. however, sponsor Tower's membership in the Georgetown Club. when the Texas Republican first came to Washington, "But I paid the initiation fees and all my own bills," Tower said, adding that he was no longer a member for financial reasons." When asked why he joined the club, Tower repled that it was "free of noise...and has the best food in Washington, or did.'

During closed-door hearings on March 15. Park said he had a part in arranging two separate meetings - in 1962 and again in 1967 - between Tower and the director of the Korean CIA

Tower said he could not recall any such meeting in 1962 and said the 1967 meeting was arranged by "either the U.S. Embassy or the U.S. military" during his tour of South Korea. The subject of the meeting was the infiltration by North Korea. Tower added.

Tower also denied receiving - or asking for - any campaign contributions from Park. When Park was asked if Tower has requested a contribution for his 1972 campaign, Park replied: "I don't think so. It is possible that he did, but I

Tower stated flatly Monday that he had never received or asked for any contribution from the South Korean.

More Pieces Found Of Soviet Satellite

OTTAWA (AP) — More fragments from the Soviet spy satellite that fell from space in January have been found in the Northwest Territories, a spokesman for the Atomic Energy Control rd says.

Spokesman Hugh Spence said Monday prospectors have found small particles of the nuclear-powered satellite while looking for uranium along the north shore of Lake Athabasca, about 390 miles northwest of Prince Albert.

Park, who threw fashionable parties for congressmen and says he also contributed about $850,000 to 30 House members, denies he was a Korean agent.

The report said Park testified he in fact sent McClellan a $2,000 contribution but

Postal Workers Ask Immediate Wage Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Major postal unions want an immediate 7.7 percent wage increase for their 560,000 workers when their current contract with the U.S. Postal Service expires July 20.

In the meantime, they would like President Carter and White House advisers to keep out of the negotiations, especially in view of administration demands for a 5.5 percent cap on any wage in-

LaPenta said the wage increase proposal submitted Monday - $1,100 in the first year and $865 in the second year of a two-year pact - provides for catching up with other collective bargaining contracts for the past three years, and a share of a 5.2 percent increase in productivity by the Postal Service.

The average wage for postal workers is about $15,800 at the end of the current contract period, LaPenta said. LaPenta noted that during a 1975-78 period, all contracts provided an average 11.1 percent annual increase, while the postal workers received an annual 6.5 percent boost. He also said contracts negotiated during the first quarter of this year called for 10.2 percent wage hikes in the nonmanufacturing sector, and 9.9 percent in the manufacturing sector. He said when the coal contract - which had a 31 percent hike - is excluded, the increase is reduced to 7.9 percent.

"Our package there, not counting cost of living, comes to 7.7 percent this year," LaPenta said. "That's in line with other settlements this year."

Solons Ask Carter About

By BILL DENSMORE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - Thirty-six Illinois legislators have asked President Carter for assurances that a vote against the proposed Equal Rights Amendment in the Illinois House will not jeopardize federal funds for Chicago.

The bipartisan group of legislators from around the state, 28 of whom are ERA opponents, sent a telegram to the White House Monday in reaction to an allegation by Phyllis Schlafly, one of the amendment's major opponents.

Schlafly said "someone high" in Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic's administration told her over the weekend that Carter had threatened to cut off unspecified federal funds unless the mayor forced Chicago-area legislators to vote for ERA.

Mrs. Schlafly would not identify the purported informant. A White House aide denied the allega-

"The notion ... is simply unimaginable and totally untrue," said Lawrence D. Gilson, an official in the White House office that monitors administration of federal grants to cities. "All I can tell you is it isn't so. It wouldn't happen. Bilandic could not be reached for com-

Mrs. Schlafly, a conservative columnist from Alton who has led the nationwide fight against ERA ratification, made her latest allegation as the Illinois House prepared for a showdown vote on the endment as early as Wednesday

After the House rejected the amendment on June 7 by six votes, new resolutions were immediately introduced by supporters. They consider a favorable vote in Illinois critical to the ERA's nationwide fate

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, has been approved by 35 states and must be ratified by three more by March 22, 1979, to become part of the Constitution. Four of the 35 states which have ratified the measure have since rescinded approval, but the validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Dept has said it is up to Congress to decide. The states which have rescinded approval are Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska. Kentucky's action was vetoed, however.

Nuclear Power Called Safer

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - Nuclear power might be a better and safer form of energy than solar or coal energy, scientists told a seminar of the American Nuclear Society.

Dr. Leonard Hamilton of Brookhaven National Laboratory told the group's annual meeting Monday that nuclear power might be the more viable alternative energy source because of recent studies concerning the health effects of coalburning facilities. He said the findings on coal-burning plants are analogous to the discoveries of cigarette smoking's link with lung can-

Hamilton said sulfates from coal-burning plants in the Northeast have led to increased acid levels in the atmosphere, resulting in increased cases of emphezema and chronic bronchitis, as well as visible effects on foliage. He estimated that fossil-fueled power plants would account for 16-21 deaths per year, while deaths related to nuclear power plants would amount to about 5.6 to 9.8 deaths annually.

Court Studying Suit Against Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal court is studying a Labor Department suit that aims to force trustees of a teamster fund to turn over information for a department investigation. The department filed suit Monday in Chicago against the Central States health and welfare fund. The department is investigating alleged mismanagement of the fund, based in Chicago.

New Group Of Owners?

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. On a local sports telecast there was a mention that Yankee owner George Steinbrenner was leading a "new group" of baseball owners and they were going to change the game in radical ways. At least, that's what I made of it—like most TV reports, hit-miss-and-gone out the other ear. Can you explain some de-

-Danny Wycotte, Lynn, Mass.

A. Steinbrenner's "young tigers" include Bud Selig of Milwaukee, Ruly Carpenter of Philadelphia, Danny Galbreath of Pittsburgh and Brad Corbett of Texas. Most are second-generation hierarchy. Steinbrenner's game plan is to create a rotating "board of directors," a la big business, to oversee the Baseball commissioner's worst aberrations, bring about interleague games and therefore a bigger TV contract, plus battle the players on their next agreement. He sounds like he's got it all worked out.

Q. Is there any way to gauge how much winning a Super Bowl means, in mony, to a pro football club? I would like to know the size of the bonanza a championship means to the owner, etc.

-Abe Whitehurst, Appleton, Wis.

A. This one is a stunner. It turns out that the Super Bowl champion really loses money on the deal. Competing clubs get a flat $150,000 each for the playoff games leading to the Super Bowl (win or lose) and $180,000 as their share of the big game. The bulk of the money goes to the players' pension fund, insurance programs and other benefits awarded in the last agreement with the NFL Play-

For example, the Dallas Cowboys' expenditures during the playoffs were more than $600,000, while its income added up to $480,000. Part of the expense is due to clauses in players' contracts which specify different bonuses for every

In effect, the losing (non-playoff) clubs in the NFL have saddled the winners with the expense of paying off the players' benefits.

Q. Did any NFL players ever play without wearing a helmet? How long ago

-Mike Davidson, Corpus Christi.

A. You will probably be surprised to learn that the NFL did not have a rule requiring players to wear helmets until 1943. Dan Fortmann (Chicago Bears, 1936-43), a Hall-of-Fame guard, was the last player to forego a helmet. Evidently the headslap hadn't been invented by defensive linemen at the time.

Cobb, a member of the school's physical education department and a former chairman of the men's PE department, had been on the athletic council for seven years. For five of those years, he served as its chairman.

"I just didn't think I ought to be on there (the council), that it was proper any more," Cobb said Monday night in confirming the report. "I submitted my resignation that day (June 6, when Dick Tamburo was named Tech AD).

"I felt it was better for me, the university, and the athletic department, that I not be a part of any advisory body for

Tech Athletic Group

Cobb, Alabama assistant AD Charley Thornton and Tamburo were interviewed the weekend of June 3-4 in Dallas. Following those interviews with members of the Tech administration, athletic council and Board of Regents, Tech president Cecil Mackey made his recommendation of Tamburo, currently associate AD at the University of Illinois

The board approved Mackey's recommendation on June 7.

Cobb said he submitted his resignation to Mackey but has not heard from the Tech administration. There have been no athletic council meetings since that time, Cobb was chairman of the athletic council until December when Mackey named Frank Elliott, dean of the Tech law school, to replace him.

"We clearly stated that the taxpayers of Los Angeles would not have financial responsibility," said John C. Argue, president of the Los Angeles delegation. "We requested that the IOC representatives immediately transmit the memorandum of agreement to their headquarters (in Switzerland) for approval." Argue said his committee also asked that the IOC indicate within three weeks whether or not the agreement is accepta-

Howard Allen, another member of the committee and president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, also commented on the proposed contract.

"The fact that (it is) going to be submitted is a positive step forward, and at least there is a piece of paper in front of them that they can respond to for the first time," Allen said.

Los Angeles was provisionally awarded the 1984 Games last month by the IOC in Athens, Greece, but it hinged on a contract being signed by the end of July. The IOC has warned Los Angeles that if IOC rules, it will lose the Games.

But the organizing committee wanted to reach an agreement that would free the city from financial responsibility, as required in the IOC standard contract.

Davis Honor Set For Wednesday

The Texas Tech Athletic Dining Hall will today be named in honor of Dr. J. William Davis, former Tech Athletic Council Chairman.

The ceremony will begin at 4:30 p.m. near the entrance to the dining hall, which is on the west side of the structure. It will be open to

Davis, credited with originating the letter-of-intent in college athletics, was chairman of the Athletic Council from 1948 through 1969. He also served terms as Southwest Conference president, vice president of the NCAA and a member of the NCAA Council.

He was a member of the NCAA Infractions Committee from 1960 through 1967 and was chairman of the NCAA Eligibility Committee when he retired from Tech in 1971.

Brezhnev Names Ali As 'Envoy'

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, who has been trading verbal punches lately with the United States, has thrown his arms around boxer Muhammad Ali in an unusually successful Soviet public-relations stunt.

He asked the former heavyweight world champion to be his unofficial ambassador for peace to the United States, and sent with him the message he feels he has had trouble getting into the American press: that he is a man of peace.

It was the first time the 71-year-old Soviet president, usually stiffly formal in his public appearances, has played host to an American athlete.

As one Soviet source put it, he managed to modify the "big-bad-bear" image that has grown up about him in the Unit-

Ali was tickled pink. "I know Brezhnev. I've met Brezhnev," he crowed.

"I gave him a hug and a kiss on both cheeks - that's a great honor for a Negro from the United States, a Negro who had trouble eating in white restaurants a few years ago."

And Ali passed on the message Brezhnev would have wanted him to spread. "I didn't realize from the pictures I've seen and the things I've been told that he was such a quiet and meek gentleman - all he spoke about was peace and love for

The timing of Brezhnev's meeting with Ali was interesting. During recent weeks, the Soviets have accused the United States of sinister espionage activities and have arrested a U.S. businessman here for currency violations.

The Communist Party newspaper, speaking for Brezhnev, has accused President Carter of distortions about the Soviet Union that it said hark back to the cold happened to Zico, one of Brazil's biggest soccer names, whom many thought would become a World Cup superstar?

Still unbeaten, Brazil appears to have a good chance to reach another final. But for Arthur Antunes Coimbra, the Cup has been somewhat of a failure.

Zico, as he is known in Brazil, is one of the losers in Argentina.

The 24-year-old striker was a certain name in the Brazilian lineup before the big tournament started. But to alter two disappointing draws in the first round gainst Sweden and Brazil, Coach Claudio Countinho dropped four from the start-

Zico was one of them. Since then, he has been a benchwarmer and has played only as a substitute.

He came off the bench to score a goal one minute later on a penalty shot in Brazil's 3-0 quarter-final win over Peru. But that's his only achievement in the Cup so

"It's always sad to drop a player of Zico's class. But I was forced to re-shuffle the team," said Countinho. "I kept him as a substitute. He has a great capacity to score although he hasn't yet showed it."

Zico, who agrees he got off to a bad start in the championships, probably will never emerge as a Johan Cruvff, Holland's superstar in the 1974 World Cup. or "The White Pele," as he has been dubbed back home.

Although he hates that nickname, his background is similar to Pele. The son of a poor tailor, Zico grew up in a Rio de Janeiro suburb.

If the request is granted, it could cause revolution. The national team plays its matches at night, unlike the other competing squads, so that the whole nation can watch on television without closing down shops and factories.

While Argentina's games are in progress. the streets of Buenos Aires are empty. You don't see a car, or anyone on the sidewalks. Everyone is at home in front of their screens.

After the game, the city goes mad Thousands turn out of their homes and march down the main avenues banging drums and blowing trumpets, shouting and singing, carrying girls on their shoulders, waving Argentina's blue and white

Motorists join in, driving around at random and honking their horns. The carnival lasts far into the night.

It's all good fun, and there is no violence. But if Argentines were cheated of their night's entertainment, it would be like asking Germans to do without their beer festivals, or taking St. Patrick's Day away from the Irish.

There is some logic behind the Polish protest, which has been sent to the International Soccer Federation (FIFA), Argentina and Brazil are racing neck and neck for the top place in Group B, and Wednesday's games will decide which team wins the group and gets a place in Brazil is set to play Poland Wednesday afternoon, and Argentina faces Peru in the evening. If Brazil and Argentina are still even on points, the team with the better goals record goes into the final

The argument is that Argentina will go on the field knowing the result of Brazil's game and knowing exactly how many goals it must score.

Brazil was the first to object. But Poland is involved, too, because, theoretically, it could still reach the final-or Holland, which has a much better goals record than its rivals, needs only a draw to reach the final. But Dutch Coach Ernesto Happel promised his team will continue to use attacking tactics, as it has done throughout the tournament.

West Germany, the defending champion, has two points and plays Austria. The Germans could still get to the final, but they would need to beat the Austrians by five goals or more and it would be necessary for Holland and Italy to tie.

'Benign neglect can be costly," said Dr. William (Bud) Davis, president of the University of New Mexico. "The president may will wind up being treated like a losing coach."

Davis, a former head coach at Colorado, addressed the convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics at its opening session.

He reminded more than 400 athletic directors from around the country of a remark once made by Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State when asked who on his team he would most like to see return next year.

"Duffy quickly replied, 'Me.' Most of us presidents agree with that wisdom.

Lopez' Streak Helps Entire LPGA Tour

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - Nancy Lopez, the hottest item in profressional golf in the last 33 years, is trailing sparks with her meteoric success this year.

And the entire Ladies Professional Golf Association is benefitting from this 21year-old record shattering rookie, already the richest rookie player - male or female - to use a set of golf clubs.

Lopez, fresh off her fifth triumph in a row, a two-stroke victory Jane Blalock and Debbie Massey at Rochester's Locust Hill Country Club, leads the field for this week's LPGA event.

"It's given us a superstar, a real celebrity," said Betsy Rawls, a Hall of Famer and now the LPGA tournament director who is setting up this week's Lady Keystone Open.

'The women's tour had been growing by leaps and bounds without her. But she's really given us a boost. People come out just to see her. She's got a quality that attracts people. They like to watch her play," said Rawls, winner of 54 tournaments in her 25 years as a touring

With Arnold Palmer-like flair, Lopez has won five straight tournaments, more than any other woman in the 28-year history of the LPGA. Only Byron Nelson, who won 11 straight events in 1945 on the men's tour, has won more in succession.

Lopez, who's been at par or better in 16 of her last 17 rounds, has won a total of seven tournaments and earned $153,336 since turning pro last July. That's $234 more than previous record holder Jerry Pate, who won two tournaments as a rookie on the men's tour in 1976.

By comparison, no other woman has won more than one LPGA event this

"I never thought one person could dominate the tour like that again because we have so many good players," said Rawls, who pocketed a personal high of

"It's phenomenal for a first-year player. She's got everything going for her. If she doesn't win another tournament, she's had a spectacular year already," she added.

Lopez is gunning for her sixth straight win in the 54-hole tournament, which will be played on the par 72, 6,400-yard Hershey Country Club. Among the 76 competitors will be the venerable Mickey Wright, who has won a record 82 events and whose mark of 13 wins in a single year is within Lopez' reach.

"Leave it to the players," adds Walker. "They will police themselves. From my experience, I found that the guys who persisted on trying to get in some dirty licks never lasted very long."

Walker was a triple-threat backfield star at Southern Methodist University in 1945, 1947-49, taking a year out to serve in Uncle Sam's Army, and he won college football's highest award, the Heisman Trophy, in his junior year

From SMU, he went into the pro game with the Detroit Lions -playing six years, making all-pro and sharing in three divisional and two National Football League championships.

"At Detroit, we had what we called the 'dead dog play,' " the Doaker explained. "If one of our guys got unecessarily roughed up, we would go back in the huddle and say, 'Dead dog 36.' The ball would go one way, the other 10 would go after No. 36. No. 36 wouldn't give us much trouble aft-

Since retiring from pro football at age 28. Walker has been treated very well by life. He is a success in the construction business in Denver, married to former Olympic skier Skeeter Werner and active on both the ski slopes and the golf

A member of the Cherry Hills Country Club, he served as a volunteer locker-room attendant for the U.S. Open Golf Championship, won dramatically here Sunday by young Andy North.

Walker, a trim, athletic 190 pounds, but beginning to gray around the temples, spent as much time talking football as golf with the battery of sports writers who descended on this mile-high city last weekend.

"Personally, I never cared much for violence," the former allaround star said. "I remember when I played in Texas high school championship game for Dallas Highland Park against Port Arthur, there was a kid on that team that gave me a terrible working

"After the game, my mouth looked as if the dentist had taken a drill and cleaned it out. I honestly don't know how I kept any teeth in my mouth at all.

Still an avid fan in this hotbed of the Super Bowl runners-up Bron-cos, Walker said he believed modern football players were a richer but not a happier breed.

"I don't think ballplayers have as much fun today," he said. "They play because of the money. It's the high salaries that keep them around.'

If the Doaker had his way, he says he would make a few changes — such as eliminating the cheap shot in tackling and cutting down the sizes of the squads.

"Let the ballplayer get up and run when he is tackled," he said. 'You wouldn't see hard-hitting defensive backs unloading the way they do. The tackle would have to be clean.

"There are too many players on today's rosters. I am not against platooning, but I believe a team can operate with 31 or 33 players as well as with 45, the present-day

"I played end, fullback and half-back. I kicked, passed and ran with the ball. I was on a half-dozen different specialty teams — kickoff, kickoff return, punting, punt-returning, offense and defense.

"It wasn't a hardship. We found that when going got the roughest, the best athletes played."

UNLV Asks For More Enforcing

DENVER (AP) - The athletic director of Nevada-Las Vegas says the school did not deserve its stiff two-year basketball probation, but he believes the NCAA's enforcement efforts should be tripled.

"The NCAA Infractions Committee is one of the most distinguished panels of men in the United States," said Bill Ireland, the athletic director. "If I were going on trial for my life, I would want the NCAA Infractions Committee to hear

Ireland told the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics Monday that UNLV was not "guilty of the type of rules violations that should precipitate the type of penalty we received."

The school was put on a two-year basketball probation last August.

Ireland told the group part of the school's problem was the stigma of Las Vegas. "The garishness of the strip, the gambling and the negative image the town has in the minds of many people." Ireland urged that appeal proceedings be open to the news media so conflicting accusations can be aired. If a school tuly believes it has nothing to hide and the NCAA truly believes it has nothing to hide, everyone should be happy to receive full press covereage of

Now, 16 years later, the only player to take part in each of the Mets' 17 seasons is in no hurry to leave. But the decision, he feels, is out of his hands.

"Physically, I could play 20 years," he insists. "But I think the ballclub is going to let me know how long they want me to

The Mets wanted Kranepool to play mediately that first season because the talent they received in the expansion draft was so lean.

Thus the lefty stayed up with the Mets and learned to hit the ball to left field, something Manager Casey Stengel told him to do and veteran teammate-Duke Snider advised him not to do. . .and something he does to this day.

"Casey told me the first day that if I pulled one ball to right field he would send me right down to the minor leagues," Kranepool recalls. "Duke then told me to pull and I got into an argument with him about it. I told him I was going to do what the manager told me because he made out the lineup and I didn't want to go to the minors."

Kranepool has been on management's side ever since.

"I've never rapped the club," Eddie said. "The only complaint I ever made was wanting to play more." But in order to play more over the years, Kranepool had to hurdle many obstacles at first base, including Dick Stuart, Mike Jorgensen, Art Shamsky, Donn Clendenon, John Milner, current against the machines, which can simulate Manager Joe Torre and now Willie Mon-

"A lot of the guys who were the best hitters on this ballclub through the years were first basemen," says Kranepool, who has averaged .299 over the last four seasons and led the National League in pinch-hitting in 1974 and 1977. "If I was right-handed, I would have found another position to play.

The competition never bothered me. In fact, I've helped a lot of the first basemen here because it was for the good of the ballclub.

Kranepool always has been the organization man, unwilling to rock the boat because of his plans for the future. Eddie knows where his bread is buttered and is hoping his Met career doesn't end with his final turn at bat.

The 33-year-old veteran, an invaluable asset to the Mets as a pinch-hitter, says, "This organization has been great to me over the years and I think I've helped their organization too, so I'd like to

"I'm not taking managing a ballclub out of my mind," Kranepool adds, "But I'd prefer to work in the front office because I think it's more suited for my capabilities. I think Joe Torre is well-suited to be the manager, with his personality and his ability to handle players.

"I could do that if I wanted to channel myself in that direction. But I'd rather work with Joe to help rebuild our ballclub.

Striders Offer Track For City Youngsters

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Are you looking for something to do with your kids after the morning cartoons

Maybe the Lubbock Striders can help. Sponsored by the Lubbock Parks and Recreation department, the Striders offer children-teenagers and adults too -the opportunity to compete in track during the summer months.

The club participates in track meets sponsored by the AAU and the Texas Amatuer Athletic Federation (TAAF). Presently, more than 150 kids from the local club have competed in meets in Lubbock, Amarillo and Hereford.

The Striders will travel to Canyon for an AAU meet next Saturday.

Competition is divided into six age divisions. Nine-year-olds and under compete in the Bantam division and 10-11 yearolds participate in the midget division. The junior division is open to 12-13-yearolds, and the intermediate group accepts 14-15-year-olds. The senior division includes persons 16 through 18, and anyone over 18 can compete in the open division.

The club caters mostly to the elementary, junior high and high school crowd. Open to boys and girls, the club holds workouts at Monterey, Dunbar, Estacado and Lubbock High (Chapman Field)

The younger participants usually work out in the morning, and the evenings are reserved for the teenagers and adults. Four coaches, plus their assistants, supervise the workouts at the separate

Persons interested in signing up at Dunbar should contact John Ford at Dunbar from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Persons in the Lubbock High School area can contact Lawrence Gardner at Chapman field From 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., and in the Estacado area, Willy Laster can be reached at EHS from 7-9 p.m. Those persons living in south or west Lubbock should contact Greg Logan at Monterey from 9-11 a.m. or 6-8 p.m.

Runners participate in all track events except the pole-vault. Logan explained that the tracksters work out on runningrelated activities and practice relay handoffs during practice.

We are interested in providing people some coaching and supervision in hopes that they will learn to run correctly," added Logan.

To be a Lubbock Strider, a person must join the AAU ($3.50 registration fee) and join the TAAF for 50 cents. Spike shoes are not required for competitors, but

Hunter Gives Moret Deadline

ARLINGTON (AP) — Texas Ranger pitcher Roger Moret, who unexpectedly left for Puerto Rico Sunday morning, has been told by manager Bill Hunter to be back in Arlington by Thursday.

General manager Dan O'Brien said Saturday night he did not know when or if Moret would return this season.

A team spokesman said no decision has been made about his status with the club.

Moret missed several weeks of play while undergoing psychiatric treatment earlier this season and returned to pitch May 28. Last Friday night he was knocked out in the second inning of a game against Toronto.

"This is apparently a case of his wife being pregnant and expecting at any time," O'Brien said. "Roger feels he needs to be home."

season free-agent market, with lefthander Tom Burgmeier the latest to prove

"I knew I wouldn't pitch a whole lot when I signed with Boston," the 34-yearold pitcher said Monday night after beating the New York Yankees in a relief

"In fact, I didn't even think I'd pitch as many innings as I've pitched already. I had some good outings last season with Minnesota, but it's more gratifying with a winning club like Boston.

Burgmeier pitched 5 1-3 innings of shutout relief against New York before 33,163 in a nationally televised game at Fenway Park. It enabled Boston to improve its major league-leading record to 46-20 - seven games ahead of idle Baltimore and eight in front of the Yankees in the AL East

It was Burgmeier's longest outing of the year, giving him a 2-1 record in 19 games and 22 1-3 innings.

The veteran reliever was the last of four free agents signed by Boston last winter - after pitchers Mike Torrez and Dick Drago and infielder Jack Brohamer.

The quartet has been effective, to say, the least. Torrez is 10-2. Drago 2-1 with a 1.87 ERA and Brohamer is hitting .318 as Boston nearly was carried to the 1977 AL East title by Burgmeier's ex-Twins' teammate Bill Campbell, who was ready to relieve the 180-pound lefty Monday night.

It was 4-4 until Boston erupted for six runs on five hits in the eighth inning off reliever Rich Gossage, 3-7.

In the fifth inning. Boston right fielder Dwight Evans threw out pinch runner Fred Stanley at third base on Roy White's sharp single. There were no outs at the time, and Burgmeier escaped the inning unscathed.

"They beat us fair and square," said Reggie Jackson. But Clay said, "Evans" throw saved the game for them. That was the key play. Everything they did turned out right. They're hot."

"Even if they beat us all three games in the series, it's a long season," said Yankees Manager Billy Martin. "We're still a contender.

In tonight's game, Torrez faces Don Gullett, 1-0.

When you strike out three times in a row," said Scott, "the law of averages is in your favor. Sooner or later, you're going to make contact.

The "Boomer" finally lived up to his nickname, smashing a tie-breaking single that triggered a six-run rally and started the Red Sox to a 10-4 victory.

The meeting was the first of the 1978 season for the fierce rivals of the American League East Division and was typical of past battles at colorful Fenway Park. Along with rain that delayed things at the start for a while, it had all the thunder expected.

"It's a good win for us," said Boston second baseman Jerry Remy, "because now we can't be swept in this three-game

He added: "I don't think there's a game in which we can be counted out, not with our lineup.

In other American League games, the Oakland A's edged the Texas Rangers 2the Kansas City Royals nipped the Cleveland Indians 6-5 and the Seattle Mariners beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4. In the only National League game, the Chicago Cubs trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings.

Carlton Fisk, who keyed a three-run fourth inning with a single, started Boston's game-breaking eighth with a double off the famous "Green Monster" wall in left center against reliever Rick Gossage.

Fred Lynn was walked intentionally to bring up Scott. The big slugger fouled off a bunt attempt and then singled to center, scoring Fisk to snap a 4-4 tie.

Dwight Evans sacrificed and Butch Hobson walked, filling the bases. Rick Burleson singled, scoring Lynn, with Scott also coming around as right fielder

Remy knocked in Burleson with a double, and Jim Rice, the AL RBI leader, brought in Remy with the sixth run of the inning with a single. The victory, Boston's 20th in its last 25 games, improved its East lead to seven games over Baltimore and dropped the defending world champion Yankees into a tie for third place, eight games back. "We have 90-odd games to go, so we can't be overconfident," said Burleson, who had a double and a single, scored two runs and drove in one. "Last year we beat them a lot here and they still won the world championship.

Said New York Manager Billy Martin: We had hoped to take three straight, but now we're going to have to try to win two of three. But even if they win all three here, it's a long season. There's a long way to go.'

bined on a three-hitter and Jeff Newman hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth to lead Oakland over Texas and end the A's 11-game losing streak. The blast broke up a pitching duel between Renko and Texas' Jon Matlack.

Renko went seven innings before yieldng to Bob Lacey, who required relief help himself in the ninth from Elias Sosa. Sosa recorded his 10th save of the season after pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth

"My fastball was going good for me to-night," noted Renko. "I threw a lot of fastballs. I got in trouble (in the third when he walked three Rangers to load the bases), but I threw a couple of balls that were close and could have gone ei-scored two more to pace Kansas City over Cleveland. Hurdle helped the Royals overcome a 2-0 deficit with a run-scoring double in the third inning and came
