President Warns Rights Violators

Carter, restating his support for human freedom, bluntly warned delegates to the Organization of American States today that nations which persist in flagrant violations will be penalized.

In an address to the more than 20 foreign ministers attending the opening session of the Eighth General Assembly of the OAS, Carter said, "The rights and dignity of human beings concern us all, and must be defended and enhanced."

"My government will not be deterred from our open and enthusiastic policy of promoting human rights - including economic and social rights - in whatever ways we can," he declared.

"We prefer to take actions that are positive," the president said, "but where countries persist in serious violations, we will continue to demonstrate that there are costs to the flagrant disregard of international standards."

Carter said he is convinced that all people in the Western Hemisphere "want a world in which citizens of every country are free from torture, arbitrary arrest and prolonged detention without trial free to speak and think as they please free to participate in the determination of their own destiny," he said.

"Where basic human rights are concerned, all of our governments must be accountable not only to our own citizens, but to the conscience of the world," he

"During such a transition and in the midst of the electoral process, my government pledges not to intervene nor to show favoritism toward particular individuals or parties. But we will continually support and encourge political systems that allow their people to participate freely and democratically in the decisions that effect their lives.

Carter suggested combined sanctions against offending nations might be the best way to bring about changes.

Over and beyond any actions we take ourselves." he said, "we believe multilateral action can be the most effective means of encouraging the protection of human rights," he said.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will deliver the principal address to the delegates on Thursday.

Some members of the organization wanted human rights to be discussed in conjunction with the battle against terrorism. But the United States objected on the ground that some nations may try to justify some human rights abuses by the need to fight terrorist activity.

Terrorism will be discussed in a separate session of the assembly.

The United States is also seeking to have its traditional financial levy reduced. At present the United States pays the maximum quota, 66 per cent of the OAS annual budget of $70 million. The United States wants its levy to be reduced to 49 per cent.

The American suggestions for financial reorganization have been discussed for the past five years, but have been at an impasse for the past two years. U.S. officials served notice they intend to push the matter at this year's session.

The OAS also will review the Panama Canal treaties, at the request of Panama, which insists the U.S.-Pananamian agreement cannot conflict with the charter of the OAS which, among other things, bans aggression by one state against another.

In all, the assembly of the OAS will consider some 30 agenda topics, but human rights and the financial reorganization of the OAS are expected to generate most of the political heat.

Court Rules For Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that the Treasury need not impose penalty duties on imports of Japanese television sets and other electronic equipment, as urged by domestic manufacturers.

New Probe Of Lozano Case Set

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Justice Department source confirmed today that a federal grand jury will investigate the case of Larry Lozano, a Mexican-American found dead in his Ector County jail The authorization was given last week, the source said, to take sworn testimony from sheriff's deputies. There was no indication when or where the grand jury would be convened. Lozano's death was ruled accidental by an Odessa inquest jury April 12, after hearing testimony from sheriff's officials and several pathologists.

Lozano died Jan. 22. Several inmate enforcement officers.

Sheriff Elton Faught had initially said Lozano died from self-inflicted wound he suffered when he banged his head against a padded cell wall. However, deputies testified at the inquest that they had to use excessive force to subdue Lozano after he became violent and this led to his death.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that Attorney General Griffin Bell and his top assistants have not determined whether to seek federal indictments against any law enforcement offi-cers, although the FBI has developed information about possible violations of civil rights laws in connection with the

The administration feared such retaliatory action would create even more tension on the trade front, and the case attracted attention worldwide.

In other actions today, the high court: -Ruled 5-4 that television writer-supervisors were improperly punished by their union for crossing picket lines dur-ing a 1973 strike against the major net-

-Held 9-0 that a murder scene is not exempted from the Constitution's search

-Ruled 7-2 that a federal court in Omaha. Neb., had no jurisdiction to try a damage suit against a Nebraska corporation by the widow of an electrocuted lowa man after the corporation conceded its principal place of business actually was in Iowa.

In the trade case, the high court was urged to enforce a section of the Tariff Act of 1930 which requires the Treasury when a foreign country pays a "bounty or grant" for an exported product.

But Justice Thurgood Marshall, writing for the court, said Japan's tax rebate system did not constitute a "bounty or grant" under that law, and the Treasur thus does not have to impose a special countervailing levy. He noted the Treasury Department has maintained consistently since the basic countervailing duty statute was enacted in 1897 that the term "bounty" was not intended to encompass the non-excessive remission of an indirect tax.

Marshall said this interpretation was reasonable in light of the statute's purpose of using duties to offset unfair competitive advantage that foreign products otherwise would enjoy from export subsidies paid by their governments.

In Texas, by law, a person becomes an adult at age 17, but that is plenty of time for many - from all parts of town - to firmly set their course for a future life of crime. What worries police and citizens alike, however, is "quality" rather than 'quantity."

The magnitude of juvenile crime is greater today than it was just a few years

It is not surprising that more juveniles, and those who have just passed the threshold into adulthood, are involved in crime because the same is true for persons in all age groups. But the trend seems to be toward more serious, violent offenses — not just popping hubcaps.

According to Lubbock Police Depart-

Tech Slates Workshops For Student Journalists

Texas Tech University Mass Communications Department's 21st annual Publications Workshops are expected to attract 400 high school students and advis-

Three photography workshops are scheduled for July 16-21, July 23-28 and July 30-Aug. 4, two newspaper workshops July 23-26 and July 30-Aug. 4, and two yearbook workshops, July 23-26 and July 30-Aug. 4, according to Ralph L. Sellmeyer, workshops director and professor of journalism in the Mass Communications Department.

The workshops are designed for high school students who are or will be working on student newspapers and yearbooks.

Advisers bringing students to the workshop during the week of July 30-Aug. 4 may enroll for graduate or undergraduate credit of three hours. Those enrolled will attend class daily while high school students are attending the workshop.

Students and advisers will be housed in residence halls and take their meals in the Wiggins Complex Dining Hall. In the photography workshop sessions the groups will be divided into beginning and advanced photo sections, with instructional material specifically designed for the two groups.

Cost for photography sessions is $76 per student, which includes room and board in college dormitories, as well as registration and health care fees.

The first newspaper session will be a special three-day workshop. It will be conducted mostly by lecture and discussion method, with very little laboratory work. There will be emphasis on individualized attention to special problems of each student.

Topics will be concerned mainly with the basics of gathering news, newswriting, interviewing, feature writing, editorial and opinion writing and page makeup. No laboratory newspaper will be published because of time limitation.

City Hall Phone System Switching To Computer

A computerized telephone system that will double the number of telephone lines to and in city offices will go into use at City Hall Monday.

The computerized Dimension 2000 PBX system will replace the present 389extension system with 700 lines and the capacity for 840.

The $218,000 system, paid for with Revenue Sharing funds, is expected to have about the same monthly operating cost as the old system.

"The old system had just about reached capacity,"Vaughn Hendrie, public information director said. "We had just about gotten to the point where we couldn't add any more lines. We were having to engineer special circuits."

Major maintenance of the old system would have required the use of improvisational equipment since parts for the old system are no longer available.

The new system is a solid-state computer programmed to handle a wide variety of call situations. If a caller tries to call someone within the system and finds the line busy, the caller will hang up and dial a code. When the party hangs up the machine will automatically complete the call made earlier when the line becomes free.

Calls also will be forwarded from one station to another, allowing someone away from his or her regular office to have calls automatically forwarded to another location.

Call waiting also will be available. For example, a call to a busy station will be kept waiting while the person already talking on the line will hear a tone signal, informing them they have another call. Individuals may either put the call on hold or handle it immediately. City officials decided to stick with a central switchboard system rather than move to a direct dialing system such as that used by Texas Tech. A switchboard operator functions as a directory for citizens to use in locating correct agencies and offices, Hendrie said.

Switchboard operators will have been training for two weeks when the system becomes operational, he said.

He warned, however, that tax notices will be mailed Friday and the city is expecting a deluge of calls through the new system Monday. The calls could unavoidably slow down the system, he said.

In terms of the best prospect of success, the leading contender would have to be Kennedy, who appears to have overcome Chappaquiddick and is highly popular in the polls. But Kennedy's refrain is the familiar one - he won't run.

States Crack Down On Chemical Waste

NEW YORK (AP) - States are cracking down on illegal dumpers of hazardous chemical wastes, says Chemical Week. So widespread is illegal dumping, according to the magazine, that nearly every industrialized state is involved.

The crackdown has already led to prosecutions in many areas of the country, with some jail sentences meted out. 'Alarming amounts of hazardous chemicals are being poured into rivers, concealed in garbage and buried in farmland," says the magazine.

The illegal dumping has provided a financial savings to companies, the magazine explains.

However, there is every indication that Kennedy, who is gaining a reputation as one of the most effective senators, likes his job and does not want to run for presi-

That is not the same as saying he might not like to be president, but people close enough to Kennedy to know, say at this point it would take a very strong draft on very compelling issues.

Then there is McGovern, who was one of the mavericks to buck Johnson in 1968 over Vietnam and who gained the nomination four years later only to lose the election in a landslide.

Although McGovern predicts someone would challenge a faltering Carter, he flatly declares: "I would rule out doing it myself. Other prospects being mentioned include Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, who maries in 1976 but never built up a com-petitive delegate fold, and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, who managed McGovern's presidential campaign. A newcomer to the speculation is Sen. Patrick Moynihan of New York, growing favorite of the old guard Democrats who backed Sen. Henry Jackson's presidential hopes in former campaigns.

But early season speculation is easy, and talk is cheap. Until and unless someone is willing to risk challenging the White House, the political gossip game will remain just that.

MIAMI (AP) - The "court in session" light over the courtroom door is burning overtime. Judge Ellen Morphonios, alarmed by her case backlog, has been starting court early and running it late - sometimes working three juries at once. Miss Morphonios, a self-described "statistics nut," says her goal is to try cases within 60 days, largely by refusing to grant continuances for the defense.

On May 21 she had the fourth-largest backlog of cases among Dade County's 12 felony judges. Now she has the ninth

"I was guilty of letting things slide," the judge confessed. "I'd go to a meeting, return late in the day, be tired. And I'd wait until the next day to begin a trial."

No longer. Since last month, she has often had three juries going — one being selected, one hearing testimony and a third deliberating.

She ordered a rape trial to begin 30 days after the suspect was indicted. She began the trial of a man accused of killing a police officer less than a month after

But Miss Morphonios' decisions have produced grumbling among defense attorneys, who warn that her tactics may ultimately overturn her cases.

"One of these days, an appeals court is going to decide that a defendant has been deprived of his legal right to counsel if there hasn't been time to prepare an adequate defense," says attorney Philip Carlton, "And it becomes utterly impossible to prepare some of the cases in the time that's provided.

Her pace is already being challenged in the murder conviction of Manual Valle, who was sentenced to death for the shooting of a Coral Gables policeman. The trial began 24 days after Valle's ar-

Goodhart, a former circuit Judge appointed to defend Valle, said he crammed 100 hours of preparation for the case into less than a month.

"By working full-time, I had to completely abandon my practice," he said. "I'm still trying to catch my breath." Florida law defines a speedy trial as one within 180 days, but Miss Morphonios aims for one-third that time. "The last thing in the world a defendant wants is a speedy trial," she said, ob-serving that defense attorneys often seek delays with hopes that witnesses will move, die or forget details as time ticks

Subscribers phone the Post's circulation department to begin, stop or suspend home delivery. Their names, address, type of subscription; start and stop dates, etc., are recorded and passed along to one of the paper's 300 distributors.

THE DISTRIBUTORS, who are independent contractors, in turn pass along the information to one of about 7,000 local carriers they hire.

The information is written on a piece of paper, which usually is placed in an envelope or slipped under the cord binding the stack of papers each delivery boy receives.

Needed: A Capacity For Anger

June 6 demonstrated one aspect more heartening than all the rest: Our people have not wholly lost their capacity for anger.

I was beginning to think the characteristic was gone for good.

It is a curious thing. In the stereotyped view, Americans are cast as volatile, hot-tempered fellows in the same way that Scots are cast as skinflints and Latins as laudable lovers. Perhaps in the days of the six-gun shootout it was so, but it has been seen on our shores.

We saw it in California on the 6th. The docile, unoffending, easy-going, taxpaying sheep suddenly turned upon their shepherds and stomped them silly. I loved it. These are my kind of folks.

OTHER AMERICANS ought to follow California's example in other areas. Incidents constantly come along that should provoke us to white-hot, red-eyed rage-the kind of gut anger that cannot be contained by appeals to civility or expressed in parliamentary speech.

Let me provide a recent example.

About a month ago, the House Committee on Education and Labor reported an outrageous little bill. The measure provides a perfect example of the arrogance, the extravagance, the pure unbridled insult that fomented Proposition 13 in

The measure is known as the Domestic Volunteer Service Act Amendments of 1978. It's doubt-

The bill's purpose is to revise, reorganize and expand the "domestic volunteer services" programs that were authorized by Congress in 1973.

IT WAS TRUE OF the 1973 act, as it is true of every such act, that the intentions were ostensibly good. Help the volunteers! Who could object? Considering the billions that have been spent over the years by ACTION and its predecessor agencies, it would be astonishing if at least some good had not been accomplished. But the programs have turned into a gigantic rip-off, by which money is taken from ordinary taxpayers-the same kind of taxpayers who revolted in California-and sloshed into the hands of radical activists, hardcore bureaucrats, blueeyed dreamers, professional grantsmen, and street-wise con artists who know the gravy train is running when they hear the whistle blow. The "University Year for ACTION (UYA)" is typical. Read the next sentence slowly:

The program "is designed to encourage the involvement of student volunteers and utilize the resources of educational institutions in community efforts to eliminate poverty and poverty-relat-ed human, social, and environmental problems."

NOW READ THE sentence again. The sentence is hogwash. The sentence conceals one of the cynical blood vessels of the body politic that produce hemorrhage in the Treasury.

The weekend march from the Cameron County courthouse here marked the latest effort by Padre Nicolas Balli's ancestors to claim Padre Island - land they say they legally own.

The dilemma is not a new one. Persons claiming to be the Balli heirs have tried for decades to claim the now-valuable property. They have been largely frustrated in the courts, and spokesman Juan Gonzales of Brownsville said the weekend march was a call for a new federal in-

We can walk in there and kick everybody out," he said, indicating the Ballis feel they have been wronged in the courts. "Are we going to be nice about this or are we going to defend what is rightfully ours? It's up to the government.

The group claims that land legally granted by the king of Spain to Padre Balli has been illegally and unethically taken from them.

There have been previous federal investigations. A 1954 letter from the Department of State reported "each and every claim of this character to be wholly without foundation or merit.

But the purported heirs disagree on what they want.

Gonzaler cants it all.

"There has been cash settlement now.

We'll get fus. "From the government or we'll get it ourselves," he said.

He said there has been no thought as to how the land would be divided among the heirs if it was returned.

But Maria Estella Perez, a Brownsville attorney, is taking what she sees as a more realistic approach. She does not foresee a day when the current landowners will turn over their property.

'I don't think that would happen even by some miracle," the lawyer, who also claims to be an heir, said.

Macedonio Balli of Brownsville agrees.

He said the government should act quickly in an effort to avert violence.

'I will not be the type to say, 'this is my land you get out of here," he said.

Jim Davenport and Nick Malant be-lieve "next" should be more research by the claimants. Davenport is an abstractor and Malant is a title attorney here. Both have done extensive work in the often perplexing South Texas land situation.

Davenport said he has never seen an abstract of the island. He said such research might aid in answering the ques-

Both said the claimants will be hardpressed to prove they are heirs. "Padre Balli very good at his job. He baptised thousands of Indians and gave them his name," Davenport said. Miss Perez agreed that "a lot of people claiming to be heirs are not."

Malant said many of the titles on the island are "questionable." He said it takes months and perhaps years of work to trace claims.

"If they sold the land they have nothing to claim," Malant said.

"And even if those sales took place at the end of a gun barrel they might be hard to contest," he said.

"New York, when we need your help, we'll ask for it."

The Labor "Reform" Act looms as another desperate attempt by big labor bosses to grasp even more power. To spread their control to the Sunbelt. And to deny Texans their freedom to choose.

Because if they win this one, repeal of the right to work is next. And we lose, among other things, our freedom to choose between joining a union and not joining a union.

That's why Senator Tower says the issue isn't unions. It's freedom. You only have to look as far as New York City to see what happens when the people lose that choice. You'll see a once vibrant heart of a region now crippled by the excesses of big labor.

In standing for Texas, Senator John Tower stands squarely against the Labor "Reform" Act.

And for the right to work.

Today, he's spearheading the effort in the U.S. Senate to defeat this dangerous bill. And to preserve the right of employer and employee alike to choose.

His opponent, an ambitious two-term congressman, voted for the Labor "Reform" Act.

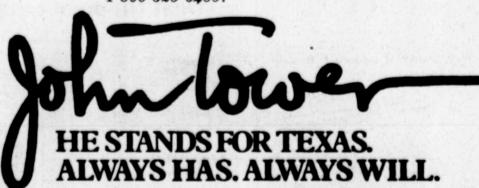

An unfortunate and political choice on his part.

Because the Labor "Reform" Act could be as devastating to the Texas economy as it is to our freedom to choose.

Which makes your choice in November clear. Senator John Tower. The man who votes for Texas. The man who stands on principle.

Not politics.

lack of a coordinated evacuation plan could make a South Florida hurricane more disastrous than it need be, says the head of the Federal Disaster Assistance

"I think the preparedness agencies of the state and local governments have done about as good a job as they could with what they had to work with," said FDAA administrator William Wilcox.

"But I have to say openly that a hurri-cane with a direct hit on a heavy populated area of South Florida would do enormous damage and result in significant loss of life."

After reviewing hurricane prepared-ness with the Red Cross and local and state agencies recently, Wilcox said he saw complacency and a muddled evacuation system as the two greatest problems.

"One of the biggest is that citizens simply wouldn't respond to requests to evac-uate or seek higher ground or a highrise building," Wilcox said. "Many will choose to stay with their low-lying prop-erties, and die, because of that very deci-

Enrollment Decrease Plaguing Schools

By ANNE ZUSY NEW YORK (AP) — Some 500 public schools closed nationwide in the past five years, reflecting enrollments that decreased as much as 48 percent in some urban areas, including New York City.

The trend, say observers who monitor education systems, is the inevitable result of a declining fertility rate. And they predict it will continue for at least anoth er five years.

The national system "is in a state of aging," says William Keough, a Boston-area school superintendent who is completing a study of school enrollment under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

"This is a very, very big problem, and the public refuses to take it seriously, says Keough, author of "Declining Enrollment: What Do We Do.

Martin Frankel, who works at the Na-tional Center for Educational Statistics, says the declining fertility rate has affected "virtually all" of the nation's 16,000 school districts. The men are keynote speakers in a three-day conference whistle-stopping across the country to explain the problem of declining enrollment to the public and to school officials. It opened here Sunday

"Absolutely everything that makes a school work is affected by declining enrollment ... its facilities, its teachers, the whole educational cycle for a comr takes on a different look," says Bud Kirkpatrick, spokesman for the conference, organized by the University of Southern

Keough says school populations began to decline about 15 years ago in California and reached New York in the late

"In a 100-mile circle around New York City, there are some school districts like Nassau County that have a 48 percent enrollment reduction in the past five

Those figures are reflected in the national picture, Keough says. "What began in urban areas has now spread to other regions, like Iowa - where present figures are down about 30 percent from what they were in 1972."

There have been about 500 school closings in the past five years," says Keough, who has been a school superintendent in Long Island, Vermont and

Frankel predicts that the fertility rate, now under 2.1 children for women of child-bearing age, will decrease even

"It could go as low as 1.7," he says. To stabilize school enrollment - now at 49 million - the birth rate would have to stop decreasing, he said.

The fertility rate is based on the number of births per 1,000 women aged 15-48 and is considered "a more meaningful figure" than the birth rate, which is the number of births per 1,000 people, Fran-

Enrollments are also affected by demographics. The population is older and fewer people have school-age children only 17 percent in many areas compared to 40 percent a decade or so ago.

Imported Beer Increasing In U.S. Market

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sales of imported beer have nearly tripled since 1970 and while imports still have only a tiny share of the market, their presence is growing.

Television ads extol Kronenbourg, the beer Alsace hates to share with us; bars around the country offer Bass Ale on tap; Heineken, pride of the Dutch, seems to be everywhere; and Tuborg, "by appointment to the Royal Danish Court," is finding a national market, too.

In 1970 the United States imported 27.6 million gallons of beer with the largest share, 9.5 million gallons, coming from

By contrast, domestic brewers sold nearly 3.8 billion gallons of beer that about 4.8 billion gallons, while imports jumped to 78.9 million, the National Association of Beer Importers reports.

The owner of a Washington restaurant pecializing in beer said he thinks imported brews are becoming more popular because, in his opinion, American products have developed a sameness of taste.

Maurice Coja, whose Brickskeller of-fers 600 different brands including 250 imports, said that while American brewers offer "excellent products, people want to find different tastes and European beers have a greater variety of taste than American products.'

There isn't an imported beer that doesn't sell, said Coja, whose biggest problem is obtaining a wide enough variety of imports.

from 1970 to 1977 also saw a new leader in the field: Heineken, at 31.9 million gallons, sold more in 1977 than the total of all imports seven years earlier.

After the Netherlands, Canada was the second largest exporter of beer to the United States last year at 23.5 million gallons, followed by Germany at 10.1 mil-

Sales of German beers dipped consider-ably from the year before as Miller Brewing Co., the No. 2 brewer in the United States, began producing Munich's Low-enbrau in this country.

One other previously imported brew,

Tuborg, is also made here now, by Carling National.

Mexico is the fourth largest supplier of imported suds to the United States with ing well in Texas and the Southwestern

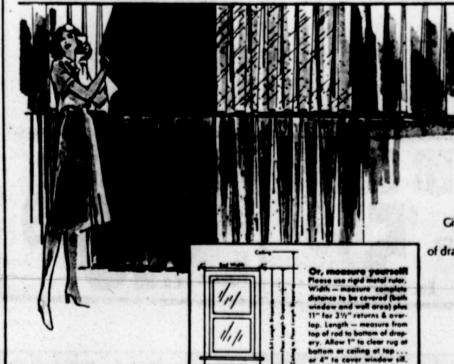

Other nations making a significant contribution to slaking the American thirst are Ireland, England, Australia, the Philippines, Norway, Japan and Denmark.

The U.S. Brewers Association reports that sales of domestic beer rose 4.4 percent last year, up from the 2 percent growth of the two previous years, appar-ently thanks to the explosive sales of the light — low calorie — beers that now have 8 percent of the market.

By contrast imports grew 7 percent last year, down from a 14 percent growth previously. This drop may have been, at least in part, because of the switch of the popular Lowenbrau from the imported to domestic category.

Children between the ages of 5 and 14 are addicted to the cheap and readily available toxins more than any other age group, according to Dr. Federico Puente of the Mexican Center for the Study of Drug Addiction.

Many times it's cheaper to inhale than it is to eat." he said.

In the short run, "sniffing" staves off hunger and relaxes the child. But after about three months of constant use, it can cause permanent damage to the brain, liver, kidneys, and bone marrow.

There are no statistics available on the number of child addicts in Mexico today. Many have left their families to roam the streets of Mexico's cities in search of their next hit.

These bands of children have no fixed address, they don't go to school, they don't have any secure source of income. explained Dr. Mario Campu Zano of the Centers for Juvenile Integration, a private, non-profit organization.

However, he continued, most addicts still live with their families and are never treated - physically nor psychologically for drug addiction. In 1977, 138,000 persons under the age of 25 were treated for drug addiction in the 31 Juvenile Integration Centers throughout the country. Twenty percent of these were addicted to industrial solvents, although two years earlier, the number of child addicts was estimated at 25,000 to 800,0000 by representatives in the health field.

But according to Dr. Campu Zano, the demographic explosion. Seven percent were diagnosed as heroin addicts, a group mostly concentrated in the northern part of the country near the U.S.-Mexican border. Sixty percent of the total number were males and 65 percent were unemployed.

Toulene, used in mixing resins and adhesives, is the most common inhalant. Paint thinner, plastic cement, household cleaners, and certain types of glue are also widely used. In Leon, Mexico's shoe capital, the incidence of children addicted to leather adhesives is especially high.

A study completed two years ago by a group of Mexico City psychologists characterized child addicts as generally belonging to poor families, with little or no formal education, and with a fierce contempt for all authority and institutions.

Without any steady income, they either beg for food and money and often steal.

The child addicts questioned in the study said they inhaled simply "because it feels good." Most children had been detained by police several times, but as Dr. Campu Zano explained, "They let themselves be picked up when they feel like bathing or eating regularly for a

As a representative from the Mexican Center for the Study of Drug Addiction said, "Mexico's drug addiction problems are unique to underdeveloped countries." He compared the "more sophisticated" drug problems of Europe and the United States with the "more primitive" ones of Mexico, associated with a poorer

Israeli General Seeks Help For Business School

And MYRON KANDEL

Gen. Chaim Bar-Lev, former chief of staff of the Israeli armed forces, has just returned to his country after 10 days of unpublicized talks with top American business leaders during which he tried to enlist their support for an ambitious new project designed to supply a badly needed ingredient that the considers essential for Israel's future growth.

No jets or other armaments were involved in this mission, however. For these days. Bar-Lev is spending much of his time working on the creation of a new school of business to train future managers for the burgeoning Israeli economy. The school, tentatively called the American School of Business and Economic Sciences, will be part of Bar-Ilan University. Israel's third-largest institution of higher learning, which was established in 1955 largely with the help of the Jewish community in the U.S.

We met with Bar-Lev just before he flew home and found him enthusiastic about the reception the new idea had received from the American leaders with whom he met. "All of them saw the need for such a school in Israel." he told us. and everyone, without exception, expressed the willingness to assist us in the

The limiting factor in Israel's econo-Bar-Lev stressed, "is manpower. More than capital, more than raw materials, more than new ideas, we need skilled workers and unskilled workers and we need managers - managers of all kinds, from production men to accountants. Getting good people, adequately trained people, is the problem

To help meet this need, the new school - which would incorporate "the best elements" of American business schools will offer programs on the undergraduate and post-graduate levels to an eventual total of 3,000 students. In addition, Bar-Lev said, it will provide seminars and others programs for the Israeli business

Although a career military man, Bar-Lev, now 53, attended the Columbia University Graduate School of Business in the early 1960s and spent five years, from 1972 to 1977, as Israel's Minister of Trade and Industry. He can speak knowledgeably about economic and business questions. He presently serves as a member of the Knesset, Israel's parliament, and is a leader of the Labor Party.

Bar-Lev also speaks wishfully of another role he envisions for the new business "If one day we finally achieve peace," he says, "this might become the American school of business for the entire Middle East and attract students from Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and other

True, he agreed, students from such wealthy as Saudi Arabia and Iran might still prefer to attend business schools in the U.S. But for those countries without oil riches, neighboring Israel might be a lot more feasible, he noted.

He also expects the Bar-Ilan business school to attract American students. The present university now numbers some 400-50 Americans among its 7,500 students. One possibility, Bar-Ley says, is offering summer courses for credit to American business students. Among the U.S. business leaders who expressed support for the school, he reported, were Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co.; Max Karl, chairman of Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp. of Milwaukee: Lester Crown, the Chicago real estate magnate and financier, and George Roberts, president of Los Angeles-based Teledyne Corp.

From the academic world, he said, former Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns: Boris Yavitz, dean of the Columbia Business School and Columbia professor Eli Ginzburg have all agreed to serve on an academic advisory committee for the new school. In addition, he noted, the Columbia school plans to set up a cooperative program with Bar-lan even before the business school is formally established.

Although the decision to go ahead with of Bar-Ilan and his British-born wife Jane the new school has been made, studies are under way to determine its size and Board of Overseers. the scope of its program. Present estimates envision raising $12 million, about

Bandits Accost Lubbock Man

Police today were investigating a new round of violence and property crimes reported by Lubbockites.

Abelardo Villereal, who lives at 302 Hub Homes, told officers five men jumped him in the 400-block of 5th Street late Tuesday and made off with his wallet. The 41-year-old victim said he had just left a nearby church when the robbery occurred.

Reports indicated Villereal was hit on the head. He estimated the loss at $80.

Charles A: Gray complained that someone walked through an open door at 2419 22nd Place Tuesday and stole $1,060 from his pants pocket.

According to reports, the resident was asleep and his trousers were lying next to his bed when the burglary occurred. Ramon Rodriquez told police a burglar reached through a previously broken glass door Tuesday to get inside his 2819 Emory St. residence. Reportedly taken in the incident was a $200 vacuum cleaner.

The city of Lubbock was a big loser in recently reported thefts. David H. McLellan, a pest control specialist with the city, told police someon hind one of the trucks in the station. In recent residential burglaries, Sherry A. Robinson said someone broke into her 5602 16th Place home Tuesday morning and made off with a $2,500 stereo system.

Jose A. Betancur of 3111 Fordham told police whoever broke a bedroom window to gain entry to his house took a jewelry box containing $250 worth of jewelry and a $100 television set.

Texas Court Rejects Bid By Inmate

AUSTIN (AP) - Death Row inmate Jessie Ray Jones was turned down today in his appeal of his conviction in the Jan. 15, 1974, shooting death of South Dallas grocer William Cain.

In a precedent-setting decision, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said an arrest is not illegal because officers break down a door without announcing who they are and why they are there. The court also said the state properly introduced evidence of another convenience store robbery-shooting to shore up its case against Jones. Cain's body was found on the floor of the E-Z Way Grocery on Second Avenue. Money, three radios and Cain's wrist watch were taken. Fingerprints were lifted from a cold can of beer found in a sack next to the cash register.

Six days later, two men in a car matching the description of Jones's held up Al's Grocery. One shot the attendant in the forehead, but the man survived. Again, fingerprints were lifted from a cold can

Based on the fingerprints in the second robbery, Jones was arrested under a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Robert Cole. A policeman broke down a door to

Jones's apartment building after hearing breaking glass, another officer shouting for someone to get back inside and the sound of footsteps inside. State law says officers with a search warrant must make known to the accused their authority. It also says a door can be broken down only after giving this notice and being refused entry.

But the court said it was well established that failure to give notice did not make a search illegal and applied the same finding to arrests.

"We can perceive of no reason why non-compliance with the formal requis-ites of an arrest . . . should render illegal that arrest when non-compliance with the formal requisites of a search does not render illegal that search," the court

The court said evidence of the Al's Grocery robbery was properly admitted, even though it was an extraneous of-prove identity, since the state's case was ed on circumstantial evidence.

CIA Book Judgment Withheld

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - U.S. District Judge Oren R. Lewis said today he is satisfied that Frank W. Snepp III wrote a book critical of the CIA "with full knowledge that he had no right to do it."

The judge withheld a formal ruling in the government's damage suit against Snepp, author of "Decent Interval," but "He did it willfully, deliberately and surrepticiously. He did it for money there is no question he did it for money. but he didn't want anybody to know about it until a certain time.'

The Justice Department filed suit against Snepp on grounds he did not submit his manuscript to the intelligence agency, for which he worked for eight years. The government did not ask for a specific monetary verdict, but it has asked Judge Lewis to put into a trust fund all of Snepp's profits from the book.

Mark Lynch, Snepp's principal attorney, said figures from the publishers, Random House, are incomplete but that so far Snepp has received only about $60,-000. He said that would have been less than the writer would have made if he had continued working for the CIA after January 1976.

Lewis, hearing the case without a jury, said "the remedy may require him (Snepp) to give up all his ill-gotten gains. "I don't regard it as a matter of money." the judge continued. "If I fined him $10 million it wouldn't reduce our income taxes by a penny - not even a

Lewis said he would prepare a written opinion as soon as possible, but set no specific time. He and attorneys for Snepp and the Justice Department were in agreement that whatever his ruling, the case is likely to go to the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond and perhaps to the Supreme Court.

The suit asked that Snepp be required to pay the government any damages it has sustained, be ordered to relinquish all profits and royalties from the sale of the book and that he be prohibited from any other such writings.

CIA Director Stansfield Turner, asked Tuesday whether there has been an adverse effect on the CIA's credibility as a result of the book, testified: "There clearly has. Over the last six to nine months we have had many sources who discontinued working with us and many who have expressed concern."

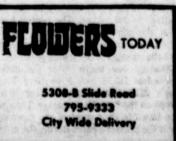

Snepp, a CIA operative from 1968 to 1976, said in his book that the evacuation of Saigon reflected mistakes and errors in

ministration, in a major decision affect- plant, Youngstown's major steel facility, ing the steel industry, today approved the merger of the LTV Corp. and Lykes Rejecting advice from the Justice Department's antitrust staff, Attorney General Griffin B. Bell ruled that the merger is acceptable because Lykes Corp. is a failing company that can be exempted from part of the antitrust laws.

Bell acknowledged that the merger would eliminate competition between Jones Laughlin Steel Corp., a subsidiary of LTV, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., a subsidiary of Lykes.

However, Bell said Lykes could completely run out of money in the second half of 1978.

The decision was the Carter administration's first major antitrust case and was acted upon by Bell himself.

LTV sought Justice Department approval because the company is precluded under a previous court case from acquiring more than 1 percent of the securities of a large company without court permis-

The decision was important to the steel industry because Youngstown is the eighth-largest U.S. steel producer, while Jones & Laughlin is the seventh-largest. The combination of the two would create either the third-or fourth-largest steel producer in the country.

The proposed merger of Lykes into LTV would involve an exchange of securities valued as high as $200 million.

Groups from steel communities have favored the merger, saying it could help the industry, which is suffering from reduced demand and rising imports.

In his statement, Bell said that by March 1979, the Lykes Corp. could have a deficit of $130 million or perhaps twice that amount.

Energy Conferees Seek Auto Tax Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) - House and Senate conferees, trying to settle their differences over President Carter's energy plan, are again searching for a compromise on ways to discourage the building and buying of automobiles that waste gasoline

The conferees slated a meeting today - for what leaders on both sides hope would be the last time - to try to put the dispute, along with the rest of the president's energy bill, behind them.

But, with no ready compromise in sight, conference leaders were predicting the session may develop into a final tugof-war between the spokesmen for the two houses.

The dispute began in October, when the conferees disagreed sharply over whether to tax or ban automobiles that get poor gasoline mileage. So they bypassed the issue and went on to something else.

Several weeks later, a separate panel working on tax aspects of the president's plan voted to back the tax, but made its approval contingent on what the first set months - must be settled before the en ergy conservation section of the president's proposal can go back to both houses for a final vote. The Senate bill contains an amendment, written by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, that would make it illegal, starting with 1980 models, to make or sell a new car that failed to get at least 16 miles per gallon. This standard would rise to 21 mpg by 1985 models.

The House-approved version of Carter's proposed tax on fuel-inefficient cars would create a $330 tax on 1979 models getting less than 15 mpg.

By 1985, the tax would range from $397 for cars in the 23-mpg range to $3,856 for those getting less than 12.5 mpg 'It's not going to be easily reconciled,' the adult age line possibly being dropped to 16 years because the increasing number of offenders has brought the juvenile system of criminal justice to the saturation point.

Lubbock is by no means atypical in the problem. Here, as in cities throughout the country, the juveniles handled by the law are from every social and economic stratum. In fact, say some police here, often it is the parents from West Lubbock. rather than from the east side, who are least supportive of the legal system.

Is there an attributable explanation for the more brazen activities of youth here at an earlier age? Police are almost unanimous in citing two major factors: an overwhelming lack of discipline in the home and peer pressure.

The latter reason is one that has been with every generation since the beginning of time. The momentum now just seems to be toward more violent acts.

As to why there is little or no domestic discipline, the answer would be different for each family in Lubbock, but juvenile workers point to case after case exemplified by such situations

The "braver" actions of the younger kids lead also to a well-established criminal lifestyle by the time he or she legally becomes an adult at 17. According to Hale, many "distinguished alumni" handled by juvenile authorities have less than a year until they are arrested as And the young girls are becoming increasingly liberated also. In addition to the teen-age sisters arrested after the convenience store heist early Tuesday, two other juvenile girls were arrested earlier this month on suspicion of armed robbery of a local fast-food business.

Each month in Lubbock there are numerous property crimes cleared by the naming or arrests of juveniles.

In 1977, of 793 burglaries cleared, 177 involved only persons under years of age. Of 1,537 cleared thefts, 490 allegedly were committed by those in the same age group. Sixty-one of the 167 cleared vehicle thefts involved only those under 18.

U.S. European Command Says Newspaper Not Going Broke

BONN, West Germany (UPI) - The U.S. European Command this week denied reports the European Stars and Stripes is going broke, saying it made a profit of almost $940,000 in fiscal 1977 and still is doing fine.

News reports from Washington earlier this week said both European and Asian editions of the armed forces newspaper were going broke and the Pentagon was considering closing them and producing a single edition in Washington.

The report triggered angry private reactions at the newspaper's offices in Darmstadt, where both military and civilian staffers jealously guard the editorial independence they fear losing if moved to Washington.

The U.S. European Command headquarters in Stuttgart said the Stars and Stripes was having no financial problem.

"In fiscal year 1977, the European Stars and Stripes operations ... made a profit of $939.744." it, said. "This fiscul year, in spite of the dollar's lower value, the European Stars and Stripes has shown a profit every month.

Farmer Uses Junk Heap

To Torment Neighbors

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) - Bill Parish's neighbors blocked his plans to put a landfill on his 80-acre farm. Now, "just to torment them," Parish has turned part of the property into a junk heap.

Next to the road sits a pig pen, piled up manure, junk cars, rubble and the remains of rotting bread Parish feeds to his animals. He keeps 100 pigs, a dozen cattle, 17 horses for his riding stable and six black bears which are on chains or in

The feud started several years ago when Parish, 76, applied for a permit for the landfill. Neighbors claimed that trucks hauling the fill would break up the roads and that paper and rubbish from the trucks would blow over their property. They fought the application

Now, they are fighting again, and there is speculation of court action to get Parish to clean up the farm.

"If they would bring paper over here signed by a notary public saying I could have a landfill, then I'd clean it up," Parish said. "They're so stupid they

"The organization has been self-supporting since 1951 and we do not anticipate a deficit in the future."

The European edition each day sells about 108,000 copies of its 28-page newspaper, at 15 cents a copy, to U.S. servicemen and their families in Europe and the Middle East.

The European Command said the price is too low to defray all costs. While the newspaper cannot accept commercial advertising, it does make extra money by operating magazine and book stores and by doing job printing.

The Stars and Stripes describes itself as an authorized unofficial publication for the U.S. Armed Forces.

It publishes news provided by commercial news agencies and its own reporters as well as syndicated columns and editorial cartoons. In recent years, it has won several American prizes for its investigative reporting.

Dry Faction Loses Bid For Recount

ABILENE (AP) - Told it cannot have a recount, a "dry" citizens' group probably will hire a lawyer to make sure Saturday's local option election in Taylor County was correct as reported, a organization spokesman says.

"We're not mad at the wets. We just want to make sure the vote was accurate," Neil Fry, coordinating secretary for the Citizens for a Better Community,

Out of more than 23,000 votes cast, the margin of victory for legalized sale of alcoholic beverages in Abilene and other portions of Taylor County was 131 votes.

Gary Hacker, assistant district attorney for Taylor County, said Tuesday he spent two days researching state election codes and found no authorization for recounts where paper ballots are used and there is no candidate.

He said personnel in the office of Secretary of State Steven Oaks agree with him, saying the Texas Legislature in its statutes dealing with recounts apparently overlooked elections dealing with issues rather than candidates.

If an electronic voting system or voting machines are used, the statutes allow a recount, Hacker said, but the Alcoholic Beverage Commission requires paper ballots in local option liquor elec-

Section 9.3AA of the Election Code provides for recounts of elections in which paper ballots were used, "but as far as I can determine, it applies only to candidates," not to an election in which an issue was involved, Hacker said.

The assistant district attorney said the Taylor County Commissioners' Court may canvass the votes, but may not or-

Fry said the Citizens for a Better Community, who actively opposed the pro-posed legal sale of alcoholic beverages, said they consider Hacker's views his opinion only "and we are looking up other opinions. There are questions about this because there are two sets of election regulations. Since the law specifically gives a candidate a recount, Fry said, "I don't understand why, in an election this close, we don't have the same rights."

The citizens' group has not retained a lawyer yet, but "it looks like we're going to, to see what we're going to do about the election," Fry said. He said the group is looking into the possibility of contesting the election if that's the only avenue open, as Hacker contends.

According to the ABC code, to contest the election, the group would have to prove "irregularities in the bringing about or holding of the election, such that the true result is impossible to determine, or the results are very doubtful," Hacker said.

Fry said that "at this point we are searching for irregularities. We have had rumors of them, but at this time all we're looking for is a fair shake to make sure the election was fair

Fry said the options open to his group are to ask for a recount, look for irregu larities and ask the courts to throw the election out, or petition the commission ers' court for another wet-dry election and try to vote the county dry again.

According to Texas Law, a year must go by before another election on the issue can be called.

County Judge Roy Skaggs said the votes will be canvassed Friday, and if Hacker's opinion is the ruling from the district attorney's office, "We'll likely abide by it."

Rabies Cases Spark Inquiry

LAREDO (UPI) - The Laredo-Webb County Health Department has begun an intensive 20-square block survey around the site where this year's second case of dog rabies was discovered.

Officials said Tuesday the latest rabies case occurred in the same vicinity as the year's first case a month ago.

The confirmed case was in a 6-monthold puppy that had not been vaccinated, a spokesman said. The puppy died while under observation of a veterinarian and its head was sent to Austin where the dog was confirmed to be rabid.

It was the 58th case of rabies confirmed in Webb County since August 1976, when an outbreak caused city officials to impose a leash law and strict enforcement of stray animal regulations.

There had been a year's lapse in rabies in the city until last month.

Health inspectors were investigating all possible contacts the rabid puppy had before its death in an effort to contain

Clements Says President Campaining For Hill

UVALDE (AP) - President Carter is visiting Texas this week with the specific purpose of campaigning for Democratic gubernatorial nominee John Hill, according to Hill's opponent Bill Clements.

Clements spoke at a reception in Uvalde Tuesday night, criticizing Carter, Hill and the Labor Reform Act.

"John Hill is a liberal," Clements said. "Carter's coming specially to campaign for him this week and I'm going to tie John Hill around Carter's neck every time I get up in the morning."

He said Carter's plan is to help elect Hill governor and to secure Texas for himself in the 1980 presidential race.

"I plan to do everything in my power to stop them both this election," Clements

Clements, who was deputy secretary of defense for four years under the Nixon administration, attacked Carter's defense strategies on several different points, ranging from his decision to halt construction on the B-1 bomber to the withdrawal of troops from South Korea.

The Republican also called Carter's decision for a rapprochement with Cuba

Briscoe Undecided On Tax Relief Plan

'hue and cry" for tax relief, House Speaker Bill Clayton conferred with Gov. Dolph Briscoe on Tuesday about a special legislative session but says the governor had not decided to call one.

Clayton told a news conference Briscoe planned to seek Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's views today.

Briscoe did not make himself available for questioning, but Clayton said the governor was "weighing in his mind" the possibility of tax relief.

Clayton is an advocate of such a session, following the wave of anti-tax sentiment stemming from California's passage of the Proposition 13 tax cut refer-

Hobby also has said he favors a special session.

Clayton insisted that the spending freeze he suggested to Briscoe in a twohour meeting is not a "Johnny-come-lately" proposal.

He said he and the governor talked about possible dates after mid-July for a session if one is called.

"Called sessions are not part of his ballgame," Clayton said of Briscoe, but "if it's important, I think he would give it consideration. He said he thought there was a "hue and cry" from Texans for property tax relief, "because the burdens are beginning to be unbearable." Clayton said he had proposed to the governor a freeze on spending, with any increases tied to population growth and KTBC-TV said a copy of the proposal showed that any additional expenditures, except in emergencies, would require a two-thirds vote of the Legislature. In addition, property taxes would be frozen, and the Legislature would be prohibited from creating local programs without funding them or reducing state funding for an established program unless the program were abolished There would be no prohibition against raising other taxes, such as the sales tax, but presumably increases would not be needed with the spending limit in effect. Here's a trio of slimming super salads to add to your personal "Who Wants to Cook Book." All three are easy-do mealsize assemblages, low in calories but high in nutrition...ideal for summer! They make the most and least of low-fat protein foods like canned tuna, shrimp and

What makes these salads especially worthy of your slim recipe file is that the tuna, shrimp or poultry could be interchangeable. The macaroni supper salad would be just as delicious with shrimp or turkey, if leftovers are available. The Riviera salad would be good with tuna instead of turkey, even chilled shrimp.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm a happily married 29-year-old housewife with two beautiful children and a faithful husband. My problem is unusual - in fact, I have never seen it mentioned in your column.

I'm addicted to pinball machines! A day doesn't go by when I don't have the urge to play. I'm now at a point where I'm spending much too much time and household money on the machines. Where can I get help? I feel so stupid. THE JUNGLE QUEEN

Dear Queen: Admitting that you have a problen you can't handle alone shows that you are very intelligent. Your pinball machine addiction is a form of compulsive gambling. Find Gamblers Anonymous in your telephone directory and acquaint yourself with that wonderful selfhelp group. (No fees, no membership and no commitment. Just attend, and listen.)

If there's no G.A. in your area, your nearest mental health clinic has counseling available at a price you can afford.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a guy named Al for about two months. My problem is that Al doesn't know how to kiss. He is 22 years old, hasn't been around much and kisses me like he's kissing his grandmother.

I know how a guy should kiss a girl, and poor Al doesn't know the first thing

Is there some way I can tell him without offending him? I would like to hang on to him, but I'm afraid if I criticize his kissing he will drop me.

Can you please give Al (and guys like him) a simple 1-2-3 lesson on how to kiss? I'm sure I'm not the only girl with this problem.

ISHY KISSES

Dear Ishy: Kiss him the way you'd like to be kissed. Then hang on to your hat.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you ask the waitress for separate checks and she says, "Sorry, it's against the house policy.

Ever hear of that? Well, that's what happened to me.

MIFFED IN MASS.

Dear Miffed: I'd ask to see the manager and state my complaint to him (or her). If that didn't produce separate checks, I'd take all future business else-

The bidding: North East South West INT Pass 24 Dble. Rdble. Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

There is an irresistible desire on the part of some players to make themselves heard at the table. That can prove to be very expensive.

After North opened one no trump, South decided to employ the Stayman Convention to check on whether his side had a 4-4 heart fit. West thought it would be nice to get a club lead if North were declarer, so he doubled. North redoubled to show a strong club holding. and South decided that, with his club filler and good hand, he would just as soon play in two clubs redoubled as anywhere else. As the cards lie, North-South can make a slam in hearts, but there was no way they were going to bid it. In fact, by playing two clubs redoubled, they scored more than the vulnerable slam!

West led the queen of hearts, won by the king. The jack of spades was covered by the king and won by the ace. With an announced trump stack at his left, declarer was in no hurry to touch trumps. He led the queen of diamonds, East put up the king and declarer

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and queen of spades, then entered his hand with the ten of spades. Next he cashed the jack of diamonds, his seventh trick, and continued with the ten.

West could do no better than ruff with the eight, and a heart was discarded. West cashed the queen of hearts (it would not have helped East to ruff) and now he was forced to lead a trump, which ran to declarer's queen. After finessing the jack of trumps, declarer took the club ace and conceded the last trick to West's high trump.

In all, declarer collected ten tricks, so he scored two redoubled overtricks. Declarer netted 800 for the overtricks, 160 for two clubs redoubled and 50 for insult. Add to that 700 for the rubber, and the total on the hand was 1710!

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" # Woman 'Creates' Everyday People ng a hairnet and a tired smile Two less-than-graceful ballet dancers with legs as stiff as their tutus.

A rosy-cheeked matron looking as fresh as the basketful of vegetables she's just picked from her garden.

They're Kay Ritter's characters, creased with the wrinkles of real life, sparked with a streak of good humor. And we know them all because they're us. Everyday people.

"I never run out of ideas," says Miss Ritter, 28, of Providence, R.I. "I love people and these are the kinds we encounter all the time

Made of cloth mache with chicken wire skeletons, the whimsical caricatures combine the Americana of Norman Rockwell paintings with the wry cynicism of Jules Feiffer cartoons. 'They're just meant to be amusing,' says Miss Ritter, who was born in Trenton, N.J., and raised in Levittown, Pa. People seem to like them because they can identify with them. Her 4-foot-high figures first caught the eye of shoppers strolling by stores in Boston, Hartford, Conn., and Providence, where she worked as a window display

Later a friend suggested she take her entourage out of the store windows and into New York to see if any art galleries would give them a better home. Well, I thought to myself, 'why not?'

So I put together a portfolio of pictures showing what my people looked like and came to Manhattan.

Did they like the big city? Miss Ritter doesn't know about that, but New York sure liked them. Incorporated Galleries here gave her two one-woman shows last year. A total of 26 out of 30 figures were sold. A dozen more were snapped up during a show at Incorporated Galleries last

Prices for the spindly legged, big-footed figures have doubled since her first one-woman show a year-and-a-half ago. Single subjects sell for about $1,200 Pairs, such as the ballet dancers or two elderly men playing cribbage at a card table, sell for around $2,500.

Miss Ritter's interest in mache took root at the Rhode Island School of Design where she made a paper mache stomach containing a butterfly for a class project.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

Mark 4: 18-36, The Living Bible

18 The thorny ground represents the hearts of people who listen to the Good News and receive it,

19 But all too quickly the attractions of this world and the delights of wealth, and the search for success and lure of nice things come in and crowd out God's message from their hearts, so that no crop is produced.

20 But the good soil represents the hearts of those who truly accept God's message and produce a plentiful harvest for God-30, 60, or even 100 times as much as was nted in their hearts.

Hair Stylist Has Playmate Hopes

nette said she wasn't ashamed of her body and figured she had to start somewhere to launch an acting career, so why not take off her clothes for the Playboy magazine photographer?

Nanette Lynn Gruss, a 20-year-old hair stylist, was one of the first to apply for the chance of being the 25th anniversary Playmate centerfold when photographer David Chan came to town Monday for a week-long beauty search.

'I like to seduce cameras. I'm comfortable posing and I think I'm photogenic. "m not ashamed of my body at all," said Miss Gruss after smiling sweetly for some shots in lacy red bikini panties and high-heel sandals in Chan's hotel suite. My mother doesn't know I'm doing this and she might be upset, but I think it would be really nice to be in Playboy. Miss Gruss will have to compete with about 6,000 aspiring Playmates by the time Chan and other Playboy photographers finish their tour of 30 cities looking for the ultimate in centerfolds.

The winner's photo will appear in the January 1979 anniversary issue. She will receive $25,000.

It's not the money, Chan said, that motivates housewives, secretaries, collegians and government workers to undress

"They just want to be in the magazine. Many consider it an honor," said Chan, grimacing at the mention of some of Playboy's racier competitors. "We don't do that gynecological photography. ... We zoom in on the eyes, the clothes, the expression. There's an aura and sensuality to our beauties.

Chan, 40 years old and a bachelor, said he looks for basic qualities: "smiling eyes, long hair - even when it's in disarray it can be charming - a nice nose, a sensuous mouth, a good, strong bust - if it's too big gravity takes over - and a nice flat stomach. The kind of girl you can be proud of and take home to mom and dad.

Applicants must fill out a form listing their measurements, previous nude posing experience and the reasons for wanting to be the 25th anniversary Playmate.

Some responses have included: "I have always thought of myself as an up-front person." "I believe I possess a lot of the qualities that your readers love to see.' I love being in front of a camera. It's almost a fetish.

"They're much more aware of what's going on," said Chan of the difference in his subjects over his 14-year career. They're much freer about their bodies: Chan has also had to contend with fem-

Fuzzy had enough of clubs. "The Lions always had a liars' contest. I never won. I'm not a good liar. Too much competition." he said and smiled

The unclubable Fuzzy's stature stems from his decision 31 years ago to halt working in the woods for companies and to open a cafe-bac. Every workday he opens at 4 a.m. and the loggers are fed. Across the room is Fuzzy's other special service - a chin-high cabinet filled with gloves, the unfancy type used by men who chop trees.

"Mostly, I sell beer," Fuzzy said.
"When I first opened I sold it at 15 cents a bottle. Now it's 60 cents a can. I knew the loggers wouldn't buy it when I had to raise the price to 30 cents.

"But they did. They'll do anything for beer. It's the Deary drink, this beer, their habit. Beer sells as good in winter as it does in summer.

The 60-year-old man nodded. "I remember we drank beer on Deary's two greatest occasions. One was when we got the sewer and Deary didn't have no more main street sewage flow and the other time was when Jack Lemmon, the actor,

"I got one just across the street, behind the war memorial. Bear had wandered into town and people were chasing it and it ran up a tree and I came out and aimed right for that little white patch on the black bear's chest. Sent him to the taxi-

The stool side of the counter fell silent. "Logs and bears and people die in Deary." Fuzzy said. "Beer goes on." Silence from the stools

It's all part of an anti-littering law which prohibits eating or drinking in public in this seaside town.

Roger Leigh of the village police force said tickets can be issued for merely drinking water on the street. "We've handed out 200 violation warnings in preparation of giving our real summonses," Leigh said.

Among those given a warning was Louis W. Gleckel, a graduate student at Columbia University. He was eating a chocolate ice cream cone in public.

Juanita Kreps Raps Tax Revolt Effects

tary Juanita Kreps said today that California's Proposition 13 poses a threat that could destroy the nation's cities if it leads to blind cutting of services as well

"Clearly, a significant diminution of services will produce panic out-migra-tions of firms and residents, further diminishing the tax base and further reducing the ability of affected cities to meet mininum needs," Mrs. Kreps said.

Addressing the final session of the U.S.. Conference of Mayors meeting, the commerce secretary called the situation "potentially the most vicious of cycles.'

Proposition 13, an initiative overwhelmingly approved by California voters June 6, would cut property taxes in that state 57 percent. It has been the major topic of discussion at the mayors' meeting and has been cited as probably the first wave of a nationwide taxpayers'

"The challenges posed by Proposition 13 make your difficult job even more onerous," Mrs. Kreps said. "I share your concern about the need to maintain essential services in the face of real or potential tax rebellions.

She added, however, that future programs "must be even more carefully targeted and selective than before." One day earlier at the conference, the nation's mayors were saying the White House had given them a city-saving pro-gram they could support, and Vice Presi-dent Walter Mondale was saying the people will back it despite the taxpayers' re-

Court Rules For Divorced Servicemen

AUSTIN (AP) - Divorced wives of retired servicemen can't sue the United for their share of the benefits, the Texas upreme Court ruled 7-2 today.

The court said the United States sent and a law allowing suits to garnishee federal paychecks for alimony or child support doesn't do the job.

Dorothy M. Stelter, divorced from Robert Stelter in El Paso in 1973, obtained the right to 35 percent of his military retirement benefits as part of her share of the community property. But, the high court said, Stelter left the state, stopped making his monthly payments of his ex-wife's cut of the reement check and is out of the jurisdiction of Texas courts.

Mrs. Stelter sued the United States, asking the courts to require it to pay her share of the retirement benefits directly Mondale said taxpayers will support the new National Development Bank or 'Urbank," the final piece in President Carter's national urban policy, because it is a fair and efficient use of tax revenues. The initial response from the U.S. Conference of Mayors, at whose meeting Mondale announced the Urbank plan on Tuesday, was one of jubilation.

"It's remarkable that the administration has sent 16 pieces of legislation dealing with urban America to Congress less than three months from the date the president outlined his urban policy," said Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., the conference president.

Alexander said the Urbank proposal "is one that we can support. We want to be as supportive as we can."

The program would guarantee loans, subsidize low interest rates and make cash grants to businesses and industries willing to locate in decayed areas or to improve existing facilities rather than flee to the suburbs

Mondale predicted that taxpayers, though registering their resistance to higher taxes, would not oppose such a project because "the way we've shaped this program will commend itself to the common sense of the American people."

He added: "I've seen many, many surveys recently, and every one of them says that an overwhelming majority of the American people want not less but more done for housing, for education, for the environment, for health needs."

The vice president rejected suggestions that California voters' approval earlier this month of Proposition 13, the state constitutional amendment slashing property taxes by an average of 57 percent was a message for public officials to cut public services.

"I think Americans are not unresponsive of human needs," he said. "I don't think anyone's giving that message. What they do want is government that's efficient, that's respectful, that doesn't waste - and that is precisely how we're perceiving it.

'Americans are, and always will be, willing to do their part," he said. "But they want to know that their tax dollars are going to the people with the greatest need. They want programs that reach

"And they want to share the burden of paying for these goals, but they want to share it equitably and fairly," Mondale said. "They want a system, including a tax system, that makes sense."

State School Will Try For Expansion Budget

School said today that he and his staff would "pull out all the stops" in trying to convince budget officials of the need for more room at the facility.

Dr. John Gladden said the Legislative Budget Board and officials from the governor's office will conduct hearings on proposed new construction when they meet in Lubbock Aug. 15-17. The sessions also will deal with other recommendations made for area mental health and mental retardation (MHMR) units.

"Our current enrollment is almost 600 With a waiting list of 200, there's not much hope for anyone seeking admission," Gladden said.

The MHMR state board recommended to budget planners that two new dormitories be built to house 96 more students. The cost would be $2.8 million. Another $600,000 would be needed for additional renovation.

Gladden said the projects, two among possibly as many as 200 statewide totaling $115 million, are relatively high on the MHMR list of priorities.

"We know everybody has pet projects," he said, "but we're not blowing smoke. Really, the people in West Texas are hurting - 200 on a waiting list is far

"We're going to do all the urging and begging we can. We're going to pull out all the stops. Speaker of the House Bill Clayton has shown a favorable attitude and so has Rep. (Froy) Salinas.'

Zoning Board Seeks Ideas On Parking

bills asks if citizens have a neighbor who parks a recreational or commercial vehicle beside his house, in the front yard or in front of the house. Residents will be asked if they think an ordinance is needed to regulate where such vehicles may park and, if so, where they should be allowed to park. For survey purposes a recreational vehicle is defined as "any boat, trailer, camper or motor home more than seven feet high, six feet wide or 21 feet long. "A commercial vehicle is any van. truck, trailer or other motor vehicle that is designed or used for carrying merchandise, freight or equipment that is rated at or in excess of one-half ton capacity," the

FDA Calls Light Show Lasers 'Potential Hazard' adjustments to the equipment housing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rock fans look out: the latest hazard on the consumer front may be the laser beams used for pulsating light shows at rock concerts.

That's what the Food and Drug Administration thinks, although it says there is no evidence that the piercing lights have damaged anyone's eyesight. But the regulatory agency has gotten a hard rock group called the Blue Oyster Cult to agree to make safety improvemunity property.

"Texas spouses are not protected as selves, their crew, or concert-goers, FDA ments to avoid harming the eyes of themspokesman Wayne Pines said today.

The FDA, which regulates lasers because they emit radiation, checked out the rock group's act at concerts in Dayton, Ohio, in March and in Atlanta in April.

'The investigation showed that the way they used their laser lights could expose themselves and consumers - the audience - to excessive radiation," said tors with at least 90 days notice before Pines, adding that if the light beam is intense enough it could harm the retina of

Land Bids Accepted By Urban Renewal

ban Renewal Agency accepted bids for land in three areas of Lubbock at its monthly meeting Tuesday.

The land, three lots in southeast Lubbock, three lots in north and northeast Lubbock and portions of 40-foot lots in the area near Clovis Road and Avenue U, will be developed for single family resid-

Bids on the lots ranged from $1,100 to $1,800.

The board must accept the bids for the property before the Urban Renewal Agency can make the final sale.

The 40-foot lots near Clovis Road and Avenue U have been "like a jigsaw puzzle," H.O. Alderson, secretary of the board and director of the Urban Renewal Agency, said. He explained by saying prospective purchasers would only want to buy parts of the land, leaving little pieces of the lots unsold.

In a routine meeting, the commissioners also voted to execute a contract for the legal services for the 4th Year Community Development Program, retaining the services of Galey, Brock and Waters - the firm which currently provides legal services tal organizations said Tuesday the United States should be required to consider environmental hazards before making loans to foreign countries for the construction of nuclear power plants or other exports of U.S. goods and services.

Such groups as the Environmental Defense Fund and the World Wildlife Fund are seeking to head off a move in Congress to exempt the U.S. Export-Import Bank from a requirement that each overseas loan be accompanied by an environmental impact statement.

The White House Council on Environmental Quality has taken preliminary steps to require that the bank study construction projects and the environmental impact of American exports on other nations before approving each major loan.

The Senate Banking Committee has already approved a bill exempting the bank from the requirement - now standard for most federal agencies - for regular impact statements.

In testimony before a Senate environment subcommittee, Russell Train, a former chairman of the council, said with pollution becoming an increasingly international phenomenon, "the survival of mankind is increasingly dependent on survival of worldwide ecological sys-

Train, who now heads the Wildlife Fund, said that contrary to critics of international impact statements, the United States is not seeking "to dictate environmental standards to other countries. Instead, he said, the National Environination of potential damage and a public statement of alternative actions to avert pollution or health hazards.

The Banking Committee and the environmental panel share jurisdiction over the proposal to exempt the bank.

Jack Carlson, a spokesman for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said attempts to require environmental studies by the bank are tantamount to "environmental Carlson and other opponents of requiring the bank to prepare impact statements said the delay they would cause would worsen the U.S. trade deficit by weakening the country's ability to compete overseas.

But in answer to a question from Sen. Kaneaster Hodges Jr., D-Ark., Carlson said he could name no specific U.S. exports which would be purchased from other nations if environmental impact statements were required.

James N. Barnes, a lawyer representing a coalition of environmental organizations, said the requirement for international impact statements will give other countries a means to understand the potential for environmental damage, especially from nuclear power plants.

Agent Claims Elusive Skyjacker Dead

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Joseph O'Connell believes phantom skyjacker "D.B. Cooper," the mysterious shadow for whom he and more than 100 other FBI agents have fruitlessly searched since 1971, has been dead all along.

"It is my personal opinion that he (Cooper) is dead," said O'Connell, who led much of the extensive FBI search for the man who parachuted in November 1971 from a jetliner over southern Wash-

Northwest Airlines using that name, add-

SAN FARNCISCO (UPI) - Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., told 1,000 internal auditors Monday that prisoners at federal penitentiaries are learning computer skills then committing computer

The Connecticut Democrat spoke at the 37th International Conference of the Institute of Internal Auditors at the Fairmont Hotel.

. He said he is sponsoring a bill which would thwart the current rash of ingenious computer frauds" by providing stiff penalties and classifying many computer frauds as federal offenses. Ribicoff said inmates at Leavenworth prison have been trained under a U.S. Bureau of Prisons program and then employed to write computer programs dealing with millions of dollars in Department of Agriculture programs

He said one prisoner received $25,000 in fraudulent income tax refunds while still in custody at Leavenworth

Ribicoff said computer crime outside of prison is also increasing and is difficult to detect because of bookkeeping complexities

The U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee will begin hearings on the bill Wednesday with Ribicoff as the leadoff witness.

CHICAGO (AP) - Wheat futures slipped lower, but other grains posted an advance on the Chicago Board of Trade

The Canadian Wheat Board's announcement that it sold 110 million bushels of wheat to China received both negative and positive interpretations. Under conditions of the sale, the wheat will be delivered over a year beginning in Sep-

On the bullish side, traders reasoned that the sale removes a substantial quantity of wheat from the world market. And especially because Canada has been experiencing problems with shipping delays, it amplifies the potential for U.S. wheat exports.

But a recent upswing in wheat prices has been fueled by rumors of U.S. sales of wheat to China. And analysts said that tack of confirmation of such business caused some liquidation by disappointed speculators.

Rains stalled winter wheat harvesting in Kansas and Oklahoma. But dealers reported a pickup in cash wheat sales and, consequently, hedge selling in futures

A late rally in soybeans was triggered by a large purchase by a prominent local

Better Prices May Ease Pinch On Grain Storage

grain storage space, a perennial problem of the wheat farmer at harvest time, may be eased this summer by better prices, a smaller crop and unprecedented on-farm storage construction activity. Although some country elevators in Kansas may see wheat piled on the ground temporarily, due to transportation shortages, officials in the nation's largest wheat-producing state say the over-all storage outlook is as promisng as it has been in years.

By and large, we're in pretty good shape," said George DeGraw, vice president of grain operations for Far-Mar-Co Inc., a giant grain cooperative based in Hutchinson.

Far-Mar-Co's 16 terminal elevators. serving more than 500 country elevators in the grain belt, are less than half full, DeGraw said. Don Watson, director of the Kansas

Grain Inspection Department, says the 755 state-licensed elevators in Kansas are half full, with room for 253 million bush-"We haven't gotten any yield reports yet but it looks like we're going to have a pretty good wheat crop," he said. "But we're in much better shape for storage now than we were last year.

Strong export activity last year and this spring has cleared some of the wheat from earlier harvests, making room for this summer's crop.

Many country elevators in Kansas are posting cash prices nearly $1 per bushel higher than the prices that greeted farmers at the start of last year's harvest. Jim Reed, manager of the O.K. Grain Cooperative in Kiowa, notes his price of nearly $2.90 this week compared with $1.90 a Wheat futures prices at the Kansas City Board of Trade for July closed at $3.11 a bushel Monday, compared with $2.39 on that date a year ago.

We're the only major market in the world that not only has wheat on hand but can deliver it," said Rod Turnbull of the Board of Trade. "The outlook seems to be pretty good in the year ahead."

Other factors encouraging the price increase are a healthy jump in the government target price, now $3.40 a bushel compared with $2.90 last year; the government grain reserve program that will keep about 350 million bushels off the market for the next three years, and farmer's participation in the government set-aside program, which has taken about 10 million bushels of Kansas wheat from production. Also brightening the storage picture is the unprecedented pace of on-farm storage construction. Kansas farmers built 21.7 million bushels of storage capacity in 1977 under the Agriculture Department's liberalized farm stroage facility loan pro-harvesting began last week, are having problems getting activity back into full swing, however Heavy rainfall in many southern and central Kansas counties last weekend and again early in the week kept machinery from the fields. Only limited harvesting occurred Tuesday.

Once the harvest returns to its normal pace, however, the chief worry of farmers and elevator operators is the shortage of railroad hopper cars - always a problem but considered the worst in history

Although terminal elevators are not expected to have storage problems, country elevators dependent on the railroads to ship their grain to theterminal outlets may be overloaded.

"I just see they're going to be awfully tight," said Jess Davis, service agent for the Interstate Commerce Commission's Wichita office. "A lot of them will be trucking their wheat.'

DeGraw agreed that the short-distance movement of wheat by trucks would be

Under a truck substitute program offered by many railroads, country elevators are reimbursed when they must ship their wheat by truck to a terminal eleva-

We make allowance to the elevator and they use it to pay the trucker on a short-haul baisis," said Gil Sweet, regionRailway Co. in Topeka. "We have seen an increase in this at Union Equity in Enid, Oklahoma, and I would expect this will hold true in other places.

Some elevator operators complain that they must absorb part of the cost of using trucks to ship the wheat. But Sweet contends that the rate paid by the railroads was not intended to pay for it entirely.

The pattern of the harvest movement also is of some concern. Normally the harvest moves northward as wheat ripens, but because of the weather delays in southern Kansas and northern Oklahoma, harvest could begin simultaneously in those as well as northern areas.

This could complicate schedules for custom cutting crews and further delay arrival of rail cars forced to serve a

"This is obviously a major accomplishment of preventive medicine," said three doctors from New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center where the technique was developed.

"On the other hand, it is hardly cause for national self-congratulation, since the untreated 20 percent will still produce several hundreds or even thousands of affected infants a year -meaning several thousands of preventable deaths or cases of neurologic damage," they wrote in a report in the medical journal, Hospital

"It cannot be stressed too heavily that Rh disease is now overwhelmingly preventable and could be virtually eliminated within the next 10 to 12 years. All that is needed is an understanding of the indications for prophylaxis and a willingness on the part of doctors, hospitals and public health authorities to make sure it is given when indicated."

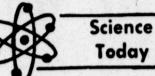

Rh disease is caused by the interaction between mother and unborn child or two normal, but imcompatible blood types. It involves an invisible substance attached to red blood cells. This inherited factor is called Rh because it was first discovered in the Rhesus monkey.

Some people — about 15 percent of whites and 7 percent of blacks - do not have this substance in their blood and are called Rh-negative. Those who have it are called Rh-positive.

If an Rh-negative women conceives a fetus which has inherited this factor from the father, some blood from the fetus will enter the maternal blood system during the delivery process and thus intro-pass through the placenta and attack the fetus' blood cells. This can causse anemia, neurologic damage or even death of the fetus or newborn.

The degree of damage to the fetus depends in part on the number of previous Rh-positive pregnancies the woman has had, since the mother's antibody level builds up after each such pregnancy. The report by Drs. Vincent Freda, William Pollack and John Gorman said most women do not become sensitized after their first Rh-positive pregnancy.

The preventive treatment uses an injection of Rh immune globulin — Rh anti-bodies — into the blood of the woman. This blocks the manufacture of Rh antibodies by the mother's immune system.

The New York doctors said the injections produce no ill effects "apart from the momentary discomfort of any injec-

Calcium In Baby Food

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - My mother says she read in one of your columns that there was a baby food on the narket that was loaded with calcium. Since she has that bone disease she was wondering what it is. She is 91

DEAR READER - By bone disease I presume you mean osteoporosis, the problem of degeneration of the bone that commonly occurs in women past the menopause and about 20 years later in many men. It's certainly true that women who are on calcium deficient diets are five times as likely to have this problem.

If your mother really needs an increased amount of calcium in her diet, its true that some baby foods are an excellent source of these. The thing to do is to look at the labels and see if they list the calcium content. The precooked cereals are often a good source. This includes the barley with added nutrients, oatmeal with added nutrients and rice with added nutrients. As an illustration, the precooked dry barley contains 736 mgs of calcium in a three-and-one-half ounce portion.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Others who would like this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My dentist cleaned my teeth and found that I had deterioration of the bone. He says very few people have this problem and nothing can be done except to keep the teeth clean. Can you tell me what causes this and can you suggest something that can be done? Could it be a form of cancer?

DEAR READER - No, it's not cancer and it is not uncommon. Your description fits what dentists call peridontoclasia which is commonly known as pyorrhea. It's associated with infected areas around the roots of the teeth and degeneration of the bone. Sometimes it's because of impacted food particles underneath the edge of the gum or the accumulation of plaque that leads to deterioration. There are probably many different causes for this disorder.

The degeneration of the bone around the roots of the teeth may be the first sign of osteoporosis, the degeneration of the bone seen in women past middle age. You didn't state your age, but that's certainly one thing that should be considered. I'm sorry to say that many dentists don't seem to be aware of this and seldom ask patients that are in this group to go see their internist and have further evaluation.

It is important to have regular dental hygiene with scrupulous cleaning out of the infected pockets by the dentist or dental hygienist. Sometimes it is necessary to resect infected areas of the gum. In fact this whole area comes under a specialized area of dentistry and such dentists are called peridontists.

Because dietary factors can be important in some cases I often recommend to people with such a finding that they be sure that they have an adequate amount of calcium in their diet. That means they should drink at least a quart of milk a day. In addition, large doses of Vitamin C seems to have helped in some patients. You might try taking 500 mgs of vitamin C a day and increase your calcium intake at the same time you're keeping your teeth cleaned and treated by your dentist. And if you smoke, stop.

Elite Benefit Most From U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The wealthy elite, not the poor majority, are benefiting from the billions of dollars the United States is pouring into Bangladesh, a new

This elite holds power from the national government down to the village level, and it is through this elite that foreign aid is channeled." the report said. "Under such conditions Americans can expect their foreign aid dollars to perpetuate rather than alleviate poverty in Bangladesh

The report was written by Betsy Hartmann and James Boyce for the Center for International Policy, a project of Stewart Mott's The Fund for Peace. They were in Bangladesh from 1974 to 1976 on grants from Yale University, and spent part of the time in a small bamboo house in a northwestern Bangladesh village, speaking Bengali and wearing native clothes.

Bangladesh, with 83 million people in an area the size of Wisconsin, is the world's eighth most populous nation. Per capita income is about $100 a year, life expectancy is 46 years, and the literacy rate is less than 25 percent. "Today no country better symbolizes the plight of the poorest of the poor." the report said. "In fact, little of the new wealth which foreign aid has bestowed upon the rich of Bangladesh is ever channeled into productive investment. Many wealthy Bengalis prefer the security of foreign bank accounts.

Hartmann and Boyce said a small minority of families own more than half the land. Those wealthy landowners and an urban elite are prejudiced against poor villagers, a major reason for the failure of foreign aid to reach the needy, they said. They noted a case in which family planning extension workers distributed birth control pills only after Hartmann and Boyce requested them to visit the village from a town only five miles away.

Wearing expensive jewelry and silk saris, the extension workers were educated, middle-class town women, separated from the village women by a gulf of ar-rogance and indifference," the report said. "They addressed the villagers in upper class Bengali and in their presence asked us how we could stand the 'inconvenience' of living in a 'dirty village.' After they left, the villagers inquired if they were our sisters from America. The report said much food aid ends up in the black market, where merchants hoard and sell it at exorbitant prices. "Food aid does increase the overall availability of foodgrains in Bangladesh," it said. "However, very little of it reaches the poor whose problem is not lack of supply but lack of purchasing power. Even when rice was plentiful and selling at a reasonable price in the local bazaar, the poor of our village went hungry."

The ancient Greeks thought all matter was formed of earth, air, fire and water, according to National Geographic. Aristotle added a fifth element "Aether," which supposedly accounted for the

To keep up with the trends and keep the Hawkeyes happy, Gallagher said, the state picks a number of the bourbon bottles to stock in the state-run stores each year, constantly updating the 300 to 350 new bottles made annually. The decanters run $5 and up in price.

People love to buy the decanters. Many little towns have bourbon-collecting clubs and regularly order a block of each new bottle we send out as soon as it comes on the market. he said. "It's not really a new fad, but it seems to be very consistent in its popularity. We're getting a reputation nationwide for the quality of the bottles we offer in the stores.

That is not to say Jowa deals only in bourbon.

"We don't stock every bottle that is offered. But, we do have a complete listing of the bottles on the market for those who want to order them," he said.

The Elvis Presley bourbon decanter, a music box that plays "Love Me Tender," may have brought a few new fans to the hobby of bottle collection.

"The response for the 3,600 bottles has been so tremendous that we have had to schedule a computer lottery to handle all

"What is even wilder is that the bottle will sell for more than $50. Many fans of Elvis who are wanting to buy the bottles said they weren't aware that bottle collecting was that popular in the state."

In the initial registration period, he said, almost 6,000 applications for bottles have been received.

He said the state was a little bit nervous about how Elvis would go over "because he was one of the highest-priced decanters with which we had dealt, but now we're very pleased with the response

Worms Receive Different Care For Use In Gardens, Fishing

more than just a wiggly little thing that crawls in the dirt. He's a hard-working creature who can get a little bit lonely

"They all are very, very different and unique little creatures and it takes a special kind of care to get the right worm ready for the right use," said Bob Frusch, an organizer of the Iowa Worm Growers Association.

There are bait worms, yard and garden worms and farm worms.

The bait worm is fattened up and stretched out to prepare for its eventual fate as dinner for a hungry fish. "He has to be nice and fat and stretched so he will stay on the hook and be attractive for a fish. This means he gets put aside and gets extra feeding." Frusch said.

Garden, yard and farm worms - which exist primarily to aid in fertilizing don't need to be as big.

"But they need to be hungry and willing to work," he said.

Frusch said the worm rancher has a set system of raising the worms from birth and then transferring them to their particular line of work.

Some people even have suggested using worms as garnish on pizzas, but Frusch said he didn't want anything to do with that idea.

The worm is a bisexual creature who lays its own eggs and then fertilizes them, but Frusch said they seem to get lonely when they are alone

"I have been told that all anyone would need would be one worm in the world and he in turn would be able to reporduce all the worms needed to make it. But, worm growers have found that the worms seem to do better in groups. They don't seem to do as well working alone, he said. "Maybe they don't like it.

Heart Transplants Earn Little Fanfare Nowadays

United Press International Writer

The world's longest living heart transplant patient, Emmanuel Vitria, 61, lives in Marseille, France, and will mark the 10th anniversary of his new heart next November.

He smokes a little, drinks champagne occasionally, and is one of the most active campaigners for the French blood banks since his awesome surgery at Centre Cantini in Marseille.

Short, stout, mustachiod with a permanent mile-wide grin, he plans to "live to be 100."

The tenth anniversary of the world's first heart transplant passed quietly last December. That, in itself was a sign of the new times in heart transplants.

The circus atmosphere is gone from this awesome surgery that turns out to be neither a giver of miracles nor a medical breakthrough. It is an experimental procedure that's still under investigation according to heart transplant teams and Dr. Robert I. Levy, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute

A sign of the progress in heart trans-

In the first year of heart transplants by the nation's most active heart transplant team, headed by Dr. Norman Shumway at Stanford, only 22 percent of the patients were alive 12 months later. Today, nearly 70 percent are alive 12 months aft-

The Stanford group has made a few significant advances to improve the outcome under a research program funded the National Heart, Lung and Blood In-

The team does no more than two dozen operations a year. At the most, authorities say, maybe 300 heart transplants could be justified annually in America but only after additional surgical teams gear up over a period of years.

Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York is doing transplants now. In the first year, there were four patients three of whom survived.

The University of Minnesota Medical Center is going to start up in Minneapolis, according to Shumway. The University of Virginia at Richmond reports an occasional transplant.

Shumway, in new a progress report, says a heart transplant should be able to last a lifetime. The trick is not so much in the surgery but in the follow up and postoperative care - the first three months being the danger zone.

After that, the modus operandi includes improved ways of monitoring the transplanted heart for early warming signs of rejection, 40 or more pills and other medicine to fight rejection and blood clots, a special diet to keep cholesterol down, to curb salt and sugar consumption and lots of exercise.

There are 66 heart transplant teams in the world. In the decade since Dr. Christiaan Barnard astounded the world with the first transplant Dec. 3, 1967, at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, South Africa, 354 persons have had transplants.

Eighty-five of the 354 are alive today.

Cardiac Operation Odds Improving

that the heart transplant recipient will survive in good health beyond one year has continued to improve.

A report from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute attributes this encouraging trend to:

-Better criteria for selecting patients, both likely and most likely to benefit. Preferably the patient should be less than 50 years of age, should not have high blood pressure in the pulmonary - lung

- circulation. The patient also should have no evidence or unresolved pulmonary blood clots or infarctions - lung tissue that died due to poor or cut off circu- years. lation. The candidate also should be free of any serious infections and should not have insulin-dependent diabetes.

-Improved means for early detection of rejection episodes and for monitoring immunosuppressive therapy. The patient must walk a tight line between suppression and rejection. The improved techniques make it possible to hit rejection early in the game. -Early and aggressive diagnosis and heart transplant recipients. This is due to their reduced resistance - a result of the nated hearts.

immuno-suppressive therapy necessary to prevent and control rejection episodes. -Careful control of diet to cut down the developement of hardening of the arteries in the new heart. The first three months after surgery are likely to be the most critical. In one study of 109 recipients, 49 died during the three month period. But for the ones surviving beyond that prospects for long-term survival improve substantially. Eighty percent were alive after one year, 66 percent after two years, 52 percent after three years. 48 percent after four years, and 43 percent after five

However, waiting for a heart to become available when one has been approved as a heart transplant patient doesn't always have a happy ending.

A report from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute notes that among 40 on a waiting list the average survival was 46 days when no hearts became available.

The longest a person with a failing heart lasted on a transplant waiting list tceatment of infections. Infections are a before dying was nearly a year. Organ major cause of sickness and death among procurement programs are not always successful in the search for suitable do-

Babies born with bad hearts were given new ones but died, anyway. The same outcome awaited many of the elderly, some in their seventies, given heart

By 1971, the high mortality rate made doctors less enthusiastic. That year, only 24 of the first 167 transplants were alive. But some of the early survivors had fantastic years added to a life doomed without the last-chance surgery.

Mail Rates Rise Faster Than Gasoline Prices

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - If the price of gasoline had gone up as fast as postage rates in the past 20 years, you would now pay $1.52 a gallon, an oil industry leader said today.

D. W. Calvert, president of the Oklahoma Petroleum Council, said in a news release that in 1958 mail cost 3 cents an ounce. Today the cost is 15 cents, up 400 percent.

Twenty years ago the average service station price for gasoline, nationwide, was 30.38 cents per gallon, including 8.91 cents in federal and state taxes, he said. During the first five months of this year the average price of regular gasoline was 72.32 cents per gallon, including 11.57 cents in taxes, he said.

If gasoline prices had climbed as fast as postage rates, motorists would now pay $1.52 for a gallon of regular gasoline." Calvert said.

Official Blasts Carter's Invitation List

DALLAS (UPI) — President Carter has made a colossal political error by limiting invitations for a weekend meeting with the state's Hispanic leaders to those who will "tell the president they love him" endorse him in 1980, according to the director of Texas' oldest, largest Mexican-American political organization.

"My apprehension is that the Houston meeting (Friday) is a political ploy, a political maneuver, to give the impression that the president has recaptured the Chicano electorate in Texas and that he has an overwhelming mandate of support by virtue of this meeting," attorney Ruben Bonilla, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens in a telephone interview from Corpus Christi.

sion at the Hyatt Regency Hotel with Mexican-American leaders that Bonilla charged were carefully screened and more likely to express adulation of Carter than to ask him about issues troubling the minority that accounts for 20 percent of the Texas population, a group which favored Carter by 88 percent against President Ford in 1976.

Based on my travels in Texas and meetings with Spanish-speaking Americans, I can tell you the Hispanic community is highly disillusioned with the present administration," Bonilla said.

The LULAC director said that in addition to himself, the leaders of the American GI Forum, the Mexican-American

Legal Defense and Education Fund and underlying purpose," Bonilla said. "It the Incorporation of Mexican-American Government Employees were not invited to the Houston conference

LULAC and the American GI Forum were founded in Texas, Bonilla said, "and any president that pretends to be meeting with Hispanic leadership should begin by getting the leadership of the three major groups together.'

Bonilla said he was aware of one person invited to the meeting who, when asked what he would tell Carter, "said he would tell the president he loves him and that he wants to ask the president what we should do to get him re-elected."

"That is why I am apprehensive about the general tone of the meeting and its was set up strictly along partisan lines. If you seriously want to discuss the Chicano in Texas, you don't do it on a strictly partisan basis, but instead invite persons from the left, those with a moderate viewpoint and those from the right.

"I have no quarrel with those meeting with the president. They are, for the most part. Mexican-American legislators. They are competent and have their constituencies. But on the other hand, others who have been invited have a vague understanding of the issues confronting the Chicano in Texas.

"I for one am not prepared to endorse Jimmy Carter for re-election at this point. He had not fulfilled his pledge to bring Hispanics into the mainstream of American society.

Bonilla insisted any Hispanicpresidential meeting must include discussion of the "maladministration of justice

"Never in Texas have so many persons ben killed while in legal custody," Bonilla said. "In spite of the killings, we've had only one serious prosecution (fedeal civil rights prosecutions against Houston police in the drowning death of a Mexican-American prisoner

Bonilla said Carter failed to respond to the police brutality issue for months. But I find it ironic that the president four days ago would issue a statement to the Los Angeles Times saying he deplores police brutality and believes that the Justice Department is doing a fine job and it is coincidental today that the Justice Department announces the beginning of a full-scale investigation of the Larry Lozano case (a Mexican-American prisoner who died after a scuffle with jailers in

tivity. We should not be so easily influenced. Bonilla said some Carter aides had told reporters that he is a Republican. "The problem is that they are not allowing free criticism." Bonilla said. "If he (Carter) means well and wants a clear picture of the situation in Texas he should have the political courage to invite those who are detractors as well as those who are his adulators.

Lone Star Gas Suing Childress

CHILDRESS (UPI) - Four Lone Star Gas Co. employees have filed suit in an Amarillo federal court alleging civil rights violations by the city of Childress. The four were arrested while digging up a gas line at a downtown intersection. The suit said city officials violated the civil rights of the employees through "embarrassment, intimidation and humiliation" during a gas-rate dispute.

Lone Star Gas ordered the pipelines excavated last year to determine their age and condition, which were factors involved in the company's rate hike request. However, the Childress City Council had forbidden the company to unearth the pipes except for repairs.

The four employees were arrested June 7, 1977, when they began breaking pavement. A fifth man, local Lone Star Manager Jack Rodney Russell, who issued the work order, also was arrested but did not join the civil suit.

Charges against the five were dismissed by U.S. District Judge Halbert Woodward, who told the city it could not halt the work

The Texas Railroad Commission in April granted Lone Star a rate increase in Childress, but the amount was about a tenth of what was originally requested.

The plantiffs, William Clark of Dallas and Joe Smith, Billy Farris and Buford McKeever, all of Childress, seek $350,000

PUC Warned About Rate Procedures

AUSTIN (UPI) - The Texas Public Utility Commission has recessed hearings on electric rates with a warning from industry experts that proposed changes in rate-making procedures are unworkable.

In Tuesday's testimony, representatives of industrial groups opposed proposals made Monday by an economist testifying for the Association of Citizens Organized for Reform Now (ACORN).

ACORN asked the commission to base electricity rates on so-called marginal costs (calculations of the future cost to the utility for delivering power to instead of average costs or tomer), embedded costs (the amount a utility has invested in plant and facilities to provide service).

'Average costs pricing may have problems dividing up the pie but at least you know it is a pie," a representative of Texas Industrial Electricity Consumers said. "With marginal costs it may be a cake or a cookie

"Marginal cost pricing is supposed to allocate resources efficiently in society. It may work for a model, but not for the real world," Alan Chalfant told the commission.

Chalfant and Maurice Brubaker, of the Clayton, Mo., consulting firm of Breazan-Brubaker & Associates, testified on behalf of Texas Industrial Electricity Consumers and urged the utility commission not to overcharge industries for the presumed benefit of other electricity users.

Kenneth D. Bishop of Newgulf, maintenance manager for Texasgulf Inc., said consumers would pay more in the long run if industries were forced to subsidize residential electricity users.

'There just ain't no free lunch, some one has to pay for it. The only one who can pay for it is the ultimate consumer, whether he pays for it when he buys the power or when he buys a car or a suit of clothes," Bishop said.

When he pays for the power indirectly, he pays more for it than if he had paid for it when he used it. The amount of increase in the finished product is far out of proportion to the increase in the cost of the basic ingredient."

Representatives of Pittsburg Plate Glass, Monsanto Co., Anheuser-Busch, Union Carbide Corp. Air Products and Chemicals and Armco Steel Corp. also testified Tuesday

The hearings recessed until 10 a.m. Monday when private individuals will be given an opportunity to present their views on electricity prices and alternative rate setting procedures.

Just how long a mosquito lives depends not only on the reflexes of a bite victim, but the weather as well. The recent warm days with high humidity provide a thriving environment for the insects.

"Swimming pools that are not kept up could be breeding places," Smith said. "Old tires, which you often see on top of mobile homes, catch rainwater and these will breed mosquitoes."

Even the lowly faucet leak or drip from an evaporative air conditioner can provide a place for the eggs to hatch.

"I once saw about 500 larvae developing in one of those small puddles made by an air conditioner," Smith said.

McAlister Proposing Anti-False Alarms Ordinance

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The staggering number of false alarm calls answered by Lubbock police each day has become not only a nuisance. City Councilman Bill McAlister says, but a potentially dangerous situation for law offi-

An ordinance proposed by McAlister designed to substantially curtail the number of false alarms will be discussed Thursday by the Lubbock City Council.

Also at the 9-30 a.m. meeting in council chambers, a resolution directed at city club owners discriminating against minority customers and an ordinance regulating substandard housing will be consi-

The anti-discrimination action, if passed, will not contain an enforcement clause, but rather will express the city's official opposition to any discrimination by businesses located within city limits. The resolution will also direct city employees to assist complainants in lodging complaints with the appropriate federal McAlister began researching the problem of false alarms after learning of a Pasadena, Calif., ordinance which reduced false alarms by 60 percent.

Figures supplied by the Lubbock Police Department show there were 1,748 alarm calls during a recent three-month period. Of those calls, only 3.6 percent were valid.

McAlister was informed that two offialarms was approximately $26,500 for a and more of a problem in the next three to five years," he said. McAlister predicted the current average of 19 calls each day would double in that time period. And McAlister is concerned that a police officer could be injured while answering one of legitimate alarms. Officers come to expect an alarm to be false and may be less alert when answering alarm calls, McAlister explained. Police Capt: Frank Wiley concurred:

'Luckily we haven't had any officers hurt," he said. Wiley also said the safety of the public is endangered each time police must investigate because it is a high priority call and officers must drive with red lights McAlister said most false alarms can be blamed on human error by employees of businesses or individuals who own alarms, so his ordinance would try to minimize the mistakes. The councilman has suggested all alarm systems installed in Lubbock be registered and alarm companies licensed for a $15 annual fee. Other suggested components of the ordinance include: -Require that all alarm systems be serviced by a licensed alarm company and require that all systems needing repair receive company attention within

-Eliminate the use of automatic telephone dialers unless they are serviced on a regular basis by a licensed alarm com-

-Evaluate each company's performance monthly and require corrective action and reports from alarm companies on each invalid alarm call.

once during a 30-day period, twice during a 90-day period, three times in 180 days and four times in 360 days.

On each call the police officer responding would attempt to determine the cause of the false alarm and report it to the customer and the alarm company.

A warning letter from the Police Department would be sent following a second false alarm within 30 days and a third false alarm would bring a personal visit from a police officer to discuss the situa-

Suspension of the permit would be the final step after the alarm went off for the fourth time in 30 days and the subscriber would have 15 days to file an appeal of the suspension.

In other cities a fee has been levied for each fake alarm, but McAlister said that sounds like charging for police protec-

McAlister also opposes heavily fining alarm customers who have excessive false alarms.

"I think people will give us full cooperation if they realize the extent of the problem," he said.

McAlister said he "wanted it (the ordinance) to be written in cooperation with the alarm companies" and solicited their written comments on the idea of an ordicompany representatives revealed they agree "something is needed," McAlister

He emphasized alarms are beneficial, and Capt. Wiley said alarm systems are responsible for the arrest of most business burglars.

Tougher Times' Predicted For U.S. Economy

ByJOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — In its fourth year, old age for an expansion, the economy is getting puffy with high prices and interest rates that, say those who claim to know, means the onset of tougher times.

And that means its time again to wonder what will happen to housing, which in past years always has been hit the first, the hardest and the longest by inflation and the downturns that follow.

Will it happen again? Maybe not. But a little background first.

The economic debate now is not whether a downturn will occur but when, and whether it will be a "rolling adjustment," as the economists call a spell of uneasiness, or something more like a fall on the face.

Samplings so far show an inclination toward the former, although some have dared use "recession," but like a doctor uncertain of his prognosis, prefacing their verdict with "brief" and "mild."

When? Nothing precise yet: maybe 1979, or perhaps not until 1981. The former seems to be nearer the consensus, but one very large bank maintains the odds favor a decline no earlier than 1980.

As usual, the housing markets need not wait. An economy that refuses to acknowledge its weakness always produces a temperature change, measured by the thermometer of interest rates. They are headed up now.

Home mortgage rates have risen in every month this year, and those for conventional loans - not backed by government - reached 9.37 percent in May, matching the highest ever recorded by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Since mortgage expense often is the biggest factor in homebuying, sometimes doubling the basic cost, it is no surprise that housing starts fell 4.9 percent in May, though remaining at a relatively high level.

Analysis

But this first symptom could be portentous. In the multi-family market, for example, Advance Mortgage Corp., a Citibank affiliate, forecasts a sharp decline in unsubsidized activity late this year. Housing's sensitivity is not just with with rates themselves, but with the drain on funds such rates produce, because money that in other times would be available for mortgages seeks higher rates

That process has not yet produced an outflow from the traditional mortgage lenders, the savings banks and savings and loan associations, but already it has restricted the funds available for hous-

The nation's mutual savings banks have just learned, for example, that they took in only $100 million over withdrawals last month, the worst May since an outflow of $182 million in May 1974.

The reason is obvious: savings institutions are by law limited in the interest rates they can offer depositors. Simply by transferring funds elsewhere, their de-positors might be able to earn more. However, the pattern of past years may be muted because, effective June 1, government regulations were eased, permit-

Morgan Guaranty also suggests the possiblity that housing may fare better than in other economic cycles because, it says, potential buyers have a heightened recognition of homeownership as an inflation hedge. And, says the National Associaton of Realtors, "Neither the shrinkage of mortgage credit nor the corresponding boost in interest rates has shown any sign of dampening the existing home mar-

Again, the question: Will housing be dumped off its foundation again this year or next, as it has been during other inflation-downturn economic cycles? It could be, yes, but this time there is a fighting chance it can maintain balance in relation to other sectors of the econo-thrifts seem better able to hold onto cash. But there is no question at all about costs: -You will pay more for houses for months to come, and most likely for years and perhaps forever if serious recessions do not result in price deflation.

-You will pay higher and higher rates for mortgage loans - and may not get them at all where usury rates forbid higher rates - until inflation is brought under more control.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Jarvis amendment should be a blessing for California, giving business such a lift that the state's tax base will expand rapidly, says Arthur Laf-fer, an economist at the University of Southern California.

Laffer, one of the country's younger top-flight economists, has been campaigning for a return to a low tax economy at the federal level and in those states presently having very high taxes.

He told United Press International he would not be surprised to see business pick up so much in California that around $3 billion of the estimated $7 billion in tax revenues lost through enactment of the Jarvis amendment will be recovered in a year and a half.

The amendment, known popularly as Proposition 13 and seen as expression of a grass roots taxpaver revolt, limits the state's power to tax property.

Laffer, USC professor of finance and director of the university's Center for Study of Private Enterprise, is a former economist for the Office of Management of the budget and consultant to other government and private organiza-

He also wants to see the federal corporate income tax abolished and replaced with something like the value-added tax. He says he likes the proposal of Rep. Jackie Kemp, the old Buffalo Bills star quarterback, to slash the total federal tax burden by at least 30 percent in three 10 percent incre-

Laffer, who concedes that economics, like medicine, still is as much an art as a science, said he is convinced of the scientific accuracy of one economic idea - that, in the long run, high taxes always are self-defeating.

He said high taxes can't prevent or curb inflation but they do stifle growth and result in misery and so-cial unrest. "High taxes always subsidize crime by making illegal activities more profitable," he ad-

He points to several historical precedents for the expansionary effect of tax cutting. As secretary, of the Treasury under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, Andrew

Mellon cut taxes sharply More recently, he said, President Kennedy's corporate and personal income tax cuts quickly brought the federal government a budget

But Laffer's latest and prize example of the dynamics of a tax-cutting policy is Puerto Rico Gov. Carlos Romero's abolition of the 5 percent income tax surcharge known on the island as "La Vam-

He said since Romero put an end to "la vampirita," Puerto Rico's $60 million a year deficit has been slashed so rapidly the Common-wealth may end up with a surplus this year. Also, prices of the Commonwealth bonds have gone up Laffer said it is obvious if lower taxes have an expansionary effect on the economy, that will slash unemployment and reduce welfare costs, one of society's biggest current burdens.

He said about the worst effect of high taxes is that they discourage replacement of worn-out or obsolescing plants and machinery. training workers to new skills and the adoption of more innovative technology in industry and com-

Humanities Official Worries About Books' Future

By MIKE FEINSILBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Joseph Duffey worries about the future of books and the future of a country that doesn't have time for them.

If anyone in government is paid to think about such matters, Duffey is. He is chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The endowment receives about $150 million a year from Congress to promote the study of language, linguistics, literature, history, jurisprudence, philosophy, ethics, archeology, comparative religion and the like.

In a speech a few weeks ago before an association of book publishers, Duffey expressed concern that publishing may be absorbed by entertainment conglomerates to become the farm system for the big leagues of television.

He worried that no one might be left to put out demanding books that can't be 'packaged' in a television tie-in.

He spoke, too, of "the risk of trivializing the printed word," "the effects of television on our national attention span,' and the prospect that overly commercialized publishing houses will put out only books of "titillation and instant gratifica-

Books are special, Duffey said: "When there were important or beautiful things to be said, a book was the way to say them. In the spacious interiors of a book there is room to share the most expansive and intimate thoughts: to ask and to ponder great questions about our society and Duffey, 45, is the son of a West Virginia coal miner and the first member of his family to go beyond fourth grade.

He is an ordained Baptist minister, a defeated antiwar candidate for the Senate in 1970, and formerly a Yale professor, national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action and spokesman for the American Association of University Professors. His wife, Anne Wexler, is a senior assistant to President Carter.

In an interview, Duffey said one pivotal book he read was a thin volume put out by the YMCA, a fictional diary of a boy's days in college. It caused him to think about going to college.

He was influenced, too, by two books of the type he fears will never be picked up by television - or by publishing houses owned by television empires.

One was the work of Henry David Thoreau and the other the essays of Ralph Waldo Emerson, required reading in the 11th grade.

When he read these, he says, "The whole world kind of opened up for me. That's why, I suppose, I had this passion to leave the mountains and go to New. England for an education." Excerpts from the interview:

Q. You expressed fear on your speech that if publishing houses are taken over by conglomerates, the result would be the trivialization of what is published. Do you have evidence of that?

A. I was relying to some extent on what have been very strong warnings by James Michener and Archibald MacLeish.

I once had a professor who described professionals as having three characteristices. They have a craft and skill; they know the theory of that craft and skill: and they carry some responsibility for the culture. I think that means a lawyer is technical aspects of law; a doctor is concerned about health and not just treating sick people; and a publisher is concerned about the quality and richness of the civilization.

Q. Don't you think television stimulates the consumption of books?

A. It is very clear that it does. The point I'm making is that there are books and ideas that don't lend themselves very easily to television and the movies.

Q. And you're afraid they'll wither away?

A. I think they may well. They'll have a much harder time competing. Now I'm not saying that somehow this civilization is being corrupted, that society has lost its standards and is going over the cliff. I reject that. But if book publishers simply become packagers, there's a danger that those things which don't lend themself to that process will then die away

Q. You mentioned the effect of television on the national attention span. A. That was in the context of talking about how the book requires a certain

"When there were important or beautiful things to be said, a book was the way to say them..."

I have a son who writes for Rolling Stone, so I've had a chance to look at it: tremendously long articles in there, which are quite demanding, a whole range of writing; serious writing. The references are not the references my generation would use. You don't find James Joyce referred to very often.

There's a book by a political scientist at Yale now, Ed Londblom, called "Politics and Markets," which is just a speculative book about the problems of monopoly and concentration of corporate power. # American Businessmen Begin To Leave India

By JOHN NEEDHAM

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) - The last U.S. businessman stationed in the Madras region of southern India to represent a sizeable American company left in Feb-

Union Carbide Corp., for years headed by an American in India, now has an Indian managing director.

The Ford Foundation, which a decade ago had around 100 Americans and two private airplanes, now has 10 Americans and no aircruft of its own.

The Peace Corps once had about 1,500 volunteers in India, one of them President Carter's mother. Today there are none. Nor are there U.S. Agency for International Development personnel, though once there were hundreds. The building that housed the AID workers is now a hotel, probably the only one in India with a bowling alley.

The AID and Peace Corps workers have been gone for years, withdrawn shortly before, during or immediately after India's 1971 war with Pakistan, when the Nixon Administration "tilted" toward Pakistan and incurred the wrath of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and millions of other Indians.

These days it has been the American businessemen who are leaving, yielding to the government's quest for "Indianization," or having Indians run companies in India.

In the 1960's, there were thousands of Americans working in India, stationed in the country for a year or two or three.

Today they number in the hundreds. Fifteen years ago, there were about 250

American businessmen in India, about 150 in Bombay alone. Now there are 40 or fewer, most of them in Bombay, the business center. The overall number is expected to decrease.

Even President Carter commented on the small number during his Jan. 2 address to members of the Indian Parliament in New Delhi. "It is sobering, for instance, that in a nation of so many hundreds of millions of people, only a few American businessmen are involved on a daily basis in the economic and commercial life of your nation," Carter said.

Scores of American businessmen interviewed during the past two years have told much the same tale: they don't want to be in India if the government doesn't want them and the delays, red tape and harsh laws indicate the government doesn't.

'This country desperately needs capital." said one American who is still here and, because most of his work is with the government.

But they won't take it in foreign investment. They want aid, a gift. If you do manage to invest here, they act like they're doing you a favor just by letting you in.

Prime Minister Morarji Desai and other Indians who grew up when India was a colony of Britain and the subject of what they see as colonial exploitation have a different view.

"We do not want charity." Desai told representatives of 55 multi-national companies last month after discussions between the businessmen and government officials arranged by Business International.

We only want to see that conditions are reasonable so that in the future no one can unreasonably take away the companies based on foreign investment

Desai's year-old government has been strictly enforcing the 1973 Foreign Exchange Regulation Act. which aims at having Indians own and run as much of the country's business as possible.

Foreign firms can have majority ownership only if most or all of their product is exported or if they use technology needed by India and unavailable locally.

A report prepared for the government-level. Indo-U.S. Joint Business Commission by Americans earlier this year compared conditions for investment by U.S. firms in India, Brazil, Indonesia, Mexico and South Korea.

It found India worst in the fields of technical assistance agreements, likeli-hood of labor unrest and number of sectors in which investment is curtailed or restricted.

U.S. investment in India has never been high and virtually none of the big multi-nationals operating here makes as much as one percent of its worldwide profit from its activities in India.

Coca-Cola and IBM have withdrawn from India, rather than comply with sections of the Foreign Exchange Regula-tion act which would force Coke to yield its branch here.

The action against Coke and IBM has made most U.S. companies even more unwilling to invest in India a Americans here to live, according to American officials and businessmen still life can be difficult. "I would say we have probably a love-hate thing with India," said Stephen Johnson, a 30-year-old New Yorker who is assistant manager of American Express International Banking Corp's. New Delhi branch.

"The phones don't work well. The power supply is bad. The water runs out. It's little inconveniences. At first you have trouble bearing with it. As time goes by, it's part of daily life and it doesn't bother you that much.

"On the good side, life here can be basically very cheap. Many things are cheap which would be expensive back in the States: having tennis court time, horseback riding, flying lessons.

"It takes you a little while getting used to it. If you're used to supermarkets, quality goods, they're just not here. But knowing it's not a permanent thing, you settle for second-rate things and get

India forbids or heavily taxes imported goods and locally made substitutes are often shoddy. Rents can range from the equivalent of $200 to $800 a month and an Indian-made car, modeled on the 1952 Morris, costs $4,000.

For the 220 American diplomats, communications technicians, secretaries, information officers and schoolteachers who make up the U.S. "official family," and for their 330 dependents, India can be better.

Diplomats receive a 20 percent bonus because the health hazards supposedly make India a "hardship post." Those on a three-year tour get a free flight home for themselves and family once and a free flight to Hong Kong, or an equiva-lent distance, for the whole family once.

They live rent-free in houses with wallto-wall carpeting, furniture sometimes made to order and air conditioning. Diplomats are allowed to run their air conditioners even when the government orders everyone else to turn them off, which last year occurred during daylight hours of 100-degree-plus heat for days on end.

The diplomats also have access to a commissary, with low-priced liquor, wine and cigarettes and high-priced American potato chips, toilet paper, beef (extremely rare in Hindu India) and Co-ca-Cola unavailable items in the local ca-Cola, unavailable items in the local markets. The American Club is available free for U.S. employees, for a nominal fee to other U.S. citizens, and on a Sunday a slice of suburban America appears in New Delhi with Americans lying by the swim-ming pool, sipping Cokes and watching a softball game.

Summer Camp Has New Atmosphere

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN Associated Press Writer

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. - When I was a boy back in the carefree pre-Jurassic days of yore, summer camp was a place where you learned how to pick up snakes, cremate hot dogs, tell poison ivy from poison sumac and insert frogs in the scoutmaster's sleeping bag.

At night you located Orion and the big Dipper, scared each other to death with ghost stories around a camp fire, listened to the owls hoot and the waves lap the lake shore and wondered if you could hold out until morning without venturing 30 yards into the wilderness to the latrine. Camp is still a place where your parents unload you for the summer, while they tour Europe or paint the house, but where they expect you to lose weight, improve your tennis, master the oboe, brush up on your algebra, get into transcendental meditation, pottery, aerobic dance, CB radio and rocketry.

Kids go off to camp today to learn baseball from Ted Williams, tennis from Don Budge, soccer from Giorgio Chinaglia, basketball from John Havlicek and Earl Monroe, golf from "our own touring pro" and a variety of other sports from certified muscle technicians of international repute.

"In depth coaching" and "Olympic-sized playing fields" are standard equipment in the great outdoors these days. We had a cow pasture for a battlefield at old Camp Hogawashi, and you had to be sure which was the base before sliding into second or you were in real in-depth trouble.

Last Sunday a music camp in the Adirondacks boasted "two symphony orchestras and a chorus ensemble" in its ad. In our hogan, which is what the big canvas tents borrowed from the National Guard were called, we had two harmonicas, a Jew's harp and a kazoo, plus a kid who could play the spoons on his

I can still hear him playing "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover," and to this day it sends a chill up my spine.

Camps today have become as specialized as university sub-departments or the most entrenched fiefdoms of Washington bureaucracy.

There are summer camps devoted exclusively to ailing, mountain climbing, modern dance, ballet, musical comedy, figure skating, gymnastics, back packing, fashion design, "breeding and training of show horses," water skiing, operatic performance and production, horseback riding, wilderness trekking, Scuba diving, Judo-Karate, canoeing, group leadership and "English riding at all levels with video tape monitored instruction."

There's a magic camp where in seven magical days a kid can learn to saw the head counselor in half while his parents watch their money disappear.

"Slim down" camps for girls and "trim down camps for boys" are dedicated to burning away blubber in a blissful summer of "pollen-free slenderization and nutritional re-education." In a four- to eight-week program of "controlled diet and medically approved exercise goals," the calorie-counting camper can shed 15 to 50 pounds and "develop self confidence and a sense of belonging" under the old camp slogan of "enjoy being a loser."

A number of summer camps are closet schools, learning factories tucked away in the woods, and it's a wonder kids don't see through them. Water sports, woodland trails, 1,000 wilderness acres are just the come-on. The small print in the ad reveals the place is a penal colony for "remedial reading and math, brushing up on basic learning skills, advanced and make-up courses in French, Spanish, algebra and American history." A camper packing his Bowie knife, flashlight and halazone tablets will be disappointed to hack his way through the nature trail to a clearing marked "individual attention," "fully accredited" and diagnosis and remediation of learning disabilities.

But then the wilderness isn't near as much on the wild side as it used to be. "Advanced riding and wilderness camping," one ad proclaims. "No poison

Another offers, "superior accommodations, carpeted rooms and balanced di-

The "lively creative workshop" in a Vermont camp with an Indian name two counties wide offers "rocketry, electronics, ham radio, weaving, clothes design, sculpture, painting, batik, creative writing, guitar, jazz and modern dance." Natty Bumpo and Daniel Boone would both be under-achievers here.

I'm also intrigued by a New Hampshire camp's "balanced wildlife program" that includes "photography, dark room and journalism," although observing some of the wildlife in our newsroom might make for an interesting summer.

Camp brochures aren't what they used to be either. Instead of stressing fundamentals like stenciling your name on your underwear and sending off the footlocker with one's impediments two weeks in advance, pre-paid, they now accent what nature really has to offer in the great outdoors: things like, "behavior modification," "motivation development," "non-competitive, non-compulsory enriching activities in a warm, humanistic environment" and "guidance counseling to find your real self in an orderly atmosphere conducive to improved self discipline.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cancer researchers will begin testing a new form of vitamin A next month to see if can prevent malignancies in humans, the Chicago Tribune

Dr. Michael Sporn, chief of the National Cancer Institute's lung cancer branch, was quoted as saying the new compound has been highly effective in stopping tumors in laboratory animals.

The doses given animals were so high that equivalent amounts would be poisonous in humans, the newspaper said. But the dangerous side effects have been reduced by researchers, the article said.

Vitamin A compounds, culled retinoids, have been chemically changed by molecular manipulation, Sporn said.

"This is a brand new concept," he said. " 1/4e are taking a totally different approach in trying to prevent cancer rather than attempting to cure it once it has oc-

The laboratory animals were given cancer-causing chemicals, then half were given a retinoid compound, Sporn said. Those given the compound developed far fewer cancers.

The compound has been given limited testing in humans with skin problems, the Tribune said, with researchers reporting encouraging results.

The more extensive human trials will involve patients who run a high risk of developing bladder cancer, Sporn said. Other groups expected to be tested later include people who have a high risk of developing lung and breast cancer.

The bladder cancer trials are scheduled to begin next month at Rush-Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago; Virginia Mason Clinic, Seattle; Medical College of Virginia, Richmond; Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, and the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

Small Stawberry Patch Grows Into Business

Eshelman, a chemist by trade, says his life is a bowl of strawberries - about 30,-000 quarts a year.

"We started out with one little berry patch eight years ago," Eshelman said of his garden east of Des Moines. "But we had more friends than we had berries and some friends who wanted more of the berries than of us at times, so we expanded to serve our friends and it got bigger all the time."

Now there are eight acres and tons of berries and Eshelman admitted he "is

Curtain Cost Draws Fire

CHICAGO (UPI) - A member of the Cook County Board is upset because the board has approved shower curtains cost-ing $162.50 for the new Correctional Offi-

The shower curtains are among $72.700 worth of furnishings and equipment the board has approved for the training center in the $22 million men's dormitory at the Cook County jail.

Tyrrell said he compared prices for some of the furnishings being purchased for the academy with prices for similar items listed in catalogs of various stores

He said the county is paying $192 each for shop benches which cost from $32 to $85 in stores, $158 for management chairs which cost from $100 to $128, and $431 each for two time-and-date stamping ma-chines which sell for $190 to $210.

Eshelman has stayed purely an amateur grower, but each year - during the peak berry times in June - he opens his patch to the world.

Advertisements appear in the local newspapers urging berry pickers to come out and fill their quart boxes by hand. Scores of people visit Eshelman's berry patch and save about 30 cents a quart.

"It's a psychological thing. People love to come out to the berry patch and pick the berries," he said.

"It gives them a good feeling to work out in the open air and actually pick the berries and do something with their hands. People like to get out in the open — and fresh strawberries taste completely different than what you buy in the

"It's a lot of work for a hobby. This year has been a particularly super year for berries. The weather has cooperated and the berries have grown well — and so have the weeds," he said. "So we have to be constantly on the lookout for the weeds to keep them pulled."

Everybody has a suggestion about what

Margin Debt Figure Rises

NEW YORK (AP) - While the New York Stock Exchange was setting trading-volume records this spring. Wall Street also passed a milestone in another important statistic - margin debt.

Margin loans outstanding, or the total amount of money borrowed from brokers by their customers against stocks, climbed above the $10 billion mark for the first time at the NYSE.

The margin-debt figure, which is tabulated by the Big Board through reports from its member firms, has been rising steadily, in good markets and bad, ever

Rock Group Performs In New York

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) - Mick Jagger played the naughty schoolboy Monday night as the Rolling Stones played solid rock 'n' roll in their only concert here on this year's American tour, at the 3,000seat Palladium.

While the rest of the Stones made good, tight, loud music which a listener could feel from the feet through the abdomen to the sinuses, Jagger was out in front, singing, always the eye-riveting show-

He skittered and pranced around an added apron of stage with a cheerful, energetic frenzy.

He said a few naughty words, some of them into the microphone, and made a few naughty gestures, at first looking tentative and going on to be more boldly showoff. He wore a multicolored T-shirt, white jacket and cap and shiny red pants, short enough that bare leg sometimes showed above brown socks.

Only a couple of old songs were done, "Honky Tonk Woman" and "Roll Over Beethoven," the latter getting the night's biggest ovation.

"I like to do the new songs," Jagger said. He did play piano for a soulful gospel number and followed it with a slow

The Stones, who have been scolded by some rock critics for playing huge halls and urged to "return to their roots" and play halls with smaller audiences, are doing both on this tour. They are appearing in seven mammoth outdoor arenas, about 10 halls with 12,000 to 17,000 seats and 10 more "intimate" theaters of around 3,000 seats

The last time the Stones were in New York they gave four concerts in three days at 20,000-seat Madison Square Gar-

They performed for the first time in New York in 1964, also at the Palladium, then named the Academy of Music. In honor of this first return, during the group's last two numbers the chandelier was switched on. Impresario Ron Delsener said it hadn't been lighted for 32

Tickets were sold to people who sent postcards to two local radio stations and

In April of this year, it expanded by $340 million - its biggest increase since December of 1976 - and reached $10.26

Traditionally, margin is used mainly by speculative-minded traders seeking to maximize their potential profits

Assume, for example, that such a trader has $5,000 to invest. Instead of buying 100 shares of a $50 stock, the trader puts in an order for 200 shares, borrowing another $5,000 from his or her broker. The Federal Reserve, which sets margin limits, currently allows up to 50 percent of the total value of the stock to be borrowed in this fashion.

If the stock rises subsequently, the trader gets twice the profit he or she would have realized on a straight $5,000 investment. If the stock declines, however, the trader is subject to a "margin call" - a notice from the broker calling for more cash to be deposited. If the margin call isn't answered, the broker sells enough stock from the account to bring it back within the 50 percent limit

Heavy margin activity occurred in the late 1920s and the late 1960s, both of which were periods of runaway speculation followed by collapses. In view of such past experiences, analysts came to watch the margin-debt data closely for signs of "speculative excess."

By that logic, the surge in margin borrowing in the past 31/2 years should be a source of concern. A number of analysts do admit to some discomfort about it but they also point out that the figures can't be read in quite the same way as they used to be.

Matters are quite different today than the days of the '50s and early '60s when average daily volume on the Big Board was fewer than 5 million shares and most trades were between individuals," said Robert Simpkins Jr. at the Princeton. N.J. firm of Delafield, Harvey, Tabell.

Margin debt is being used by the individual in different ways. In the last number of years, margin accounts have been used to purchase high-yielding securities rather than speculative issues, the cost of borrowing in some cases being less than the yield of the securities purchased."

For example, Simpkins noted in a telephone interview, brokers' loan rates typically stood at about 9 percent last week. At the same time, such utility issues as Southern Co., Philadelphia Electric and Ohio Edison all were sporting dividend yields above 9 percent.

In addition, Simpkins said speculators are applying new margin techniques in the five-year-old options market.

In April, some of these traders who had old so-called "naked" options, not backed by the stock on which they were written, were caught in a squeeze. But the effect of their rush to cover was to push stock prices up - "just the reverse of the classical selling climax," as Simpkins put it.

Lastly, there has been a big increase reported in what Wall Street calls "nonpurpose" loans - borrowing against stock for non-investment uses such as buying a car or getting a house painted. Simpkins noted, "Some people have found margin cheaper and a lot less trou-

American Exposition To Tour Middle East

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) - One hundred American corporations will send a floating trade exposition to Alexandria. Egypt, and ports around the Arabian peninsula in November that its sponsors say could lay the foundation for $20 billion in trade over five years.

Oceanic Trade Alliance Council International, Inc., of Southfield, Mich., is organizing the venture and Guy Willetts, originally a motion picture documentary producer, is directing it.

Willetts told UPI 69 of the 100 exhibitors the ship can carry have already signed up. "I consider our results so far fantastic, almost unbelievable," he said.

Willetts has charted the liner Calypso of the Greek Ulysses line for the trip which will start from Athens. The ship will spend three days at Alexandria, Egypt: Jidda, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and make two-day calls at Hodeida. Yemen: Muscat. Oman: Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates: Doha, Qatar; and Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

The idea that this voyage could lay the foundation for $20 billion in trade over the next five years originated in a computer projection made for Peter Hale of Commerce Action Group Near East in Washington," Willetts said.

"The figuge doesn't seem unreasonable in view of the fact the Japanese said they took $5 billion worth of orders in 90 days for industrial and consumer goods when they sent a floating trade exposition on the Saku Maru to the Middle East

The Japanese floating expedition was government sponsored. So were similar

French and the Australians which, Willetts said, were not terribly successful because they weren't planned on a big enough scale Willetts' expedition will be the first of this type planned and carried out entirely by private industry. However, Willetts said he had been given a lot of voluntary help over the past 15 months by both the State and Commerce departments in Washington.

"The main thing I've been concerned about," he told UPI, "is that a number of Arab businessmen have warned me: 'If you bring that ship over with a trade show you'd better be sure to top the Japanese floating show.

There are many reasons for sending a floating trade show to the Middle East, Willetts said. The Arab cities with the richest potential markets simply do not yet have the hotels and exposition halls for a really big scale land-based exposition. Also, the floating show and the ocean voyage between the Arab ports has a great appeal to American industrialists.

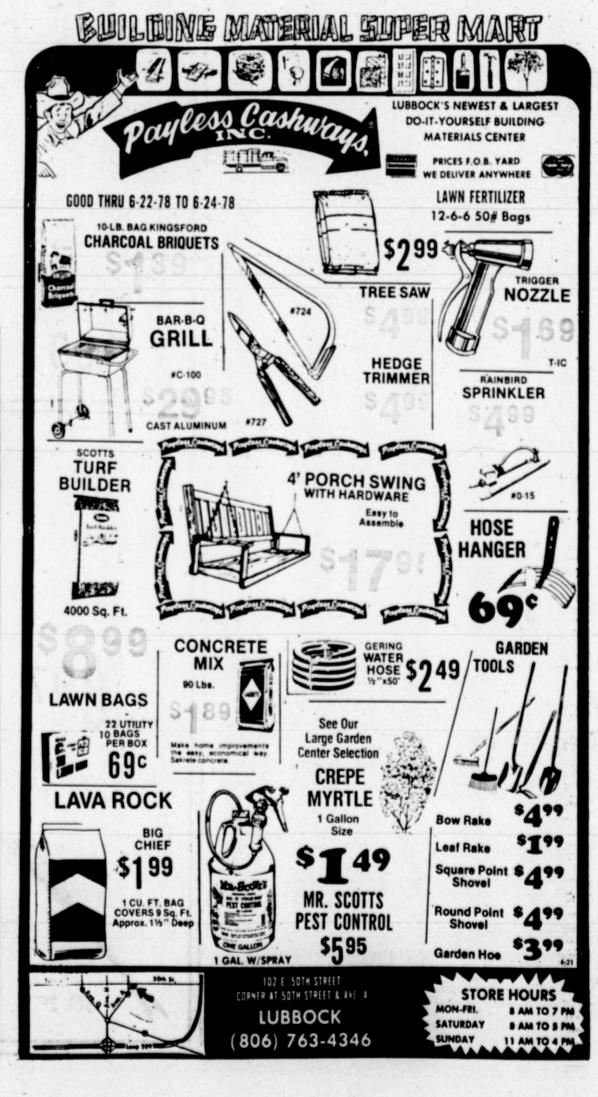

The American executives who accompany their exhibits will get a chance in each port to meet leading business and government personalities with decisionmaking powers as well as local U.S. consuls and diplomatic officials.

The range of American exhibitors aboard the Calypso will cover everything from fast foods and toiletries to sophisticated scientific instruments and machines and heavy industry.

Woman Biochemist Linked To Chemical Attacks

MASON, Mich. (AP) — Music teacher Duane Smith sat alone in his darkened home. He ignored a ringing telephone. Then a microphone in the garage picked up the sound of footsteps crunching in the snow.

Smith had hoped to catch the mysterious person who for three years had splattered noxious chemicals on the homes and cars of classical music instructors and students. He was startled by his quarry.

"Why Rosetta, what are you doing here?" Smith asked when he caught a locally prominent biochemist whose three children played in the Okemos High

Smith gave that account in his testimony at a preliminary hearing for Rosetta Reusch in Ingham County District Court, where she is charged with breaking and entering Smith's home with intent to commit a felony.

The hearing was to resume today. The only charges filed involve the break-in at Smith's home, but the prosecution contends Mrs. Reusch is responsible for more than 100 chemical attacks on about 20 families in Okemos, an upper middle class community adjacent to Michigan State University.

Victims of the chemical attacks say they suffered nausea, blurred eyesight and a burning sensation in the throat from chemicals dumped into the air vents

None of the victims reported serious injury, but Smith says he still suffers nausea. Blood tests show his body contains too much mercury.

Some of the university town's cultural upper crust gathered in the courtroom Tuesday as the hearing began, some to speak against the woman who prosecutors say was jealous of students who sat higher in the orchestra than her own

Among those testifying were Smith, father of a violinist and a cellist who have won music scholarships; and a professor of violin who said he was fired as a tutor for Mrs. Reusch's son, Chris, after he suggested the boy needed more basic

Smith's family found chemicals in their car on almost a dozen occasions dating back to late 1976. Smith said he had found a pattern to the chemical dumpings: the victims were usually members of the close-knit classical music community and the vandalism was discovered after a family returned from a concert or recital.

On March 17, just after one of Smith's sons had been honored for musical achievements and his picture was printed in the newspaper, Smith's family went to a recital. He stayed home

"I thought conditions were about right for a visit," recalled Smith. He rigged

Smith said he ran into the garage and exclaimed: "Why Rosetta, what are you doing here?

He said she replied: "It's not what you think. It's over. You won't be bothered again.

Smith said he photographed Mrs. Reusch in his garage and grabbed the arm of her coat to keep her from leaving. Afterwards, the music teacher offered Mrs. Reusch tea, and they sat and talked until police arrived "I asked her why we were chosen (as targets for chemical attacks)," Smith recalled. "She said Marily Kessler (a music teacher) had picked on her kids ... and

Mrs. Reusch has not yet entered a plea in the case. A short, refined-looked woman with slumped shoulders and dark circles under her eyes, she sat quietly throughout the hearing, making detailed notes along with her husband, William, also a Michigan State chemist.

Sheriff Blames Legal System For Girls' Rape

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (UPI) - The Carter County sheriff said strict justice could have prevented the gang rape of four high school girls by a group of mountaineers drunk on moonshine whiskey.

Sheriff George Papantoniou said Tuesday the five men wanted in the case all had been arrested before on a variety of charges, but were able to remain free either by paying small fines or through legal maneuvers.

U.S. trade deficit, a stronger dollar, and new jobs to ease serious unemployment

Carter will travel to West Germany on an official state visit on July 13, which will be followed by the economic summit conference in Bonn on July 16 and July

The summit will be the fourth in three years on world economic issues, and the second for Carter. Other participants will be the leaders of West Germany, France, Great Britain, Japan, Canada and Italy, the same nations represented at a summit Carter attended in London in May

The outline of a "possible bargain" for the summit has emerged from two preparatory discussions in recent weeks. A third is planned for next week. While a final agreement isn't vet a sure thing, it is understood it now has better than a-50-50

'The odds tilt in our favor on our getting there (an agreement) on that date, Robert S. Strauss, the nation's chief trade official, said Tuesday after three days of talks here with trade officials from Japan, Canada and the European Common Market.

The significance of the agreement is that each leader will pledge something the others want, so that everyone will get something in return for their own conces-

It is also expected to make it easier for individual leaders to win support at home for their policies, if politicians at home can see that the summit committment is part of a larger agreement that will have global benefits.

In Carter's case, it may make it easier to win enactment of a tough energy bill in Congress — if it has not by then approved one - by being able to show that Germany and Japan will speed their sluggish economies to increase imports from the United States and other countries.

Germany and Japan are understood to be very worried about both inflation and the lack of an energy program in the United States.

Carter Veto Strains Tie With Union

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's veto of a pay bill for federal fi-refighters has strained his relations with a key union ally almost to the breaking

"It comes pretty close to a parting of the ways between the administration and this union," said Greg Kenefic, spokesman for the 300,000-member American Federation of Government Employees.

The union backed Carter's campaign for election and is part of a delicate coalition supporting his civil service revision package, which the president says he wants very much.

The pay bill would have reduced the normal workweek for federal firefighters, employed mainly at military bases, from 72 hours to 52 hours. A union press release said last week that the organization "vigorously fought for" the bill.

Carter said in his veto message Tuesday that the measure would amount to an increase of 15 per cent to 30 per cent in the hourly rate of pay for the firefighters; would force the Pentagon to hire 4,600 more firefighters at a yearly cost to taxpayers of $46.7 million, and would reduce the administration's ability to man-

Kenefic said union chief Kenneth Blaylock was especially irked because the White House gave no warning to the union before announcing the president's

"Blaylock said we're back to zero; it's just like having Nixon or Ford in there. the spokesman said.

It was the second blow Carter has dealt to the union, following his decision to limit this year's federal pay increase to 5.5 per cent as part of his anti-inflation program. That decision brought Blaylock to the verge of withdrawing his support for Carter's civil service revision package.

Carter's rebuffs to the union come at a particularly bad time for Blaylock, who is up for re-election in August. He has three announced opponents, and they are making an issue of his support for Carter's civil service package, which is unpopular with many union members.

Blaylock's support for the civil service measure is considered a key element in the strategy to win passage, because it brings with it support from the politically powerful AFL-CIO.

Starfish Put To Good Use By Oil Company

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The nation's engineer directing the year-old, $25,000 fifth largest oil producer has a new star in its war to muscle out the mussels that encrust themselves on offshore drilling platforms — the lowly starfish.

After oil companies spent years and hundreds of thousands of dollars blasting the stubborn shellfish off oil rigs with high-pressure water hoses or battering em loose with jackhammers, Chevron U.S.A. found that mussels mean mealtime to the large Pisaster starfish that abound on the ocean floor near oil plat-

"The problem was getting the starfish to where they could do us some good," a Chevron official said.

Separating the starfish, scattered along the sea floor, and the mussels, clustered near the top of the pilings, was a barrier of prickly spined sea anemones that sting the tube-like feet of starfish.

So officials at San Francisco-based Chevron, the domestic arm of Standard Oil Co. of California, used the high-pressure water hoses to clear the way to the dinner table for the starfish.

"It was as though the stars heard a din-experiment at Chevron's Platform Hilda off Santa Barbara. "They moved up the (platform) leg like tin soldiers, covering nine yards in 24 hours instead of the usual six inches in two days."

She said once starfish, which grow up to three feet in diameter, become ensconced on the pilings, it is difficult for anemones to reclaim their territory. Mussels, which use thread-like secretions to cement themselves to the pilings in masses three and four inches thick, cluster near the upper end of the pilings, causing extra weight and increasing 'waveshock" during storms, Chevron officials say.

The starfish which will gather on the pilings do not have the weight and mass of the mussels.

Each platform had to be cleaned at least once every two years at a cost of $10,000, production officials said. Chevron has four of the 13 offshore oil platforms in Southern California.

But Chevron spokesman Bill Murphy said the main effect of the starfish experiment would be felt in the Gulf of Mexi-

Businessman Markets Hangover Relief

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - A Memphis kenness. businessman says he knows from experience that the hangover remedy he is marketing works.

It brings me back from the dead about once every two or three weeks," said Robert Powell, who is distributing "Mornin' Afta," a 39-cent package of relief for those who imbibed too much the night

Powell, a former brassiere company executive, paid $100 for the hangover relief formula 20 years ago.

A Miami, Fla., physician sold him the company in a divorce. He dug up the old hangover remedy formula, patented it, registered his trademark and spent $250,-000 getting ready to put it on the market.

He said the formula contains citric acid, sodium bicarbonate, salicylate (an aspirin-like compound), caffeine and fruc-

"Caffeine is certainly good for a hangover - this has the equivalent of one cup of coffee in it," he said. "And the fructose replaces all the sugar in the blood that the alcohol has burned up."

The product is being sold in drugstores,

WORK BEGINS ON MALL - The pavement of Chicago's State Street was being torn up this week as work began on turning the famous street into a shopping mall in an effort to revitalize business. This view looks south from Lake Street near the northern end of the mall. Only public transportation vehicles will run along the mall. All auto traffic will be excluded. (AP Laserphoto)

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a possibility tomorrow that you might leave an important decision up to someone far less capable than yourself. The results could be painful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should it be your lot to assign tasks tomorrow, be sure to delegate the duties wisely. The wrong person for the job could cause a calamity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tomorrow you may exceed prudent, calculated risk and take a flyer on something that could cost you a pretty penny. It won't be a good day to roll dice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to make yourself look better tomorrow, you may try some one-upmanship ploys. Unfortunately, SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone who has told you something in confidence will be disappointed in you tomorrow when she learns you revealed it to another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful with whom you do business tomorrow. Even if it costs you a few pennies more, you'll be better off dealing with reliable firms.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against a tendency tomorrow to put too much stock in the suggestions of persons who are illequipped to advise you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Let your generosity have no bounds with the truly deserving tomorrow, but be wary of those who have taken advantage of you previously and seek to do so again.

Firm Acquires Store Chain

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Carter Hawley Hales Stores Inc. has announced its acquisition of Thalhimer Bros. Inc., a Richmond, Va.-based department store chain, in a $70 million stock exchange. Monday's announcement followed last month's acquisition of John Wanamaker, a Philadelphia chain of 15 department stores, for $60 million and 500,000 shares of stock valued at $9.25 million.

Each Thalhimer share will be traded for 0.975 share of Carter Hawley, resulting in an additional issue of 3.77 million shares of the Los Angeles retailer. Based on Carter Hawley's Monday closing price of $18.75, the Thalhimer deal should be worth $70.82 million.

The deal will give the Thalhimer family, which founded the chain in 1841, the largest single block of Carter Hawley shares — 6 percent of the outstanding tock. Only Carter Hawley employees with 16 percent of the stock, could vote

The novitiate was the scene of an armed Indian takeover in 1975. The firm still plans to convert the buildings into a luxury-lodging facility designed for corporate meetings and training seminars, but the high level of business in other areas is one factor causing the delay, according to Ronald Spana, Rand's vice president for marketingcommunication.

James A. Delaney, Rand president, said another factor is the availability of money from Wisconsin lenders.

Rand has arranged commitments for the larger portion of the $2.8 million needed for reconstruction and operational expenses out of state, he said.

"But these arrangements depend on the outcome of negotiations for a commitment from Wisconsin lenders who so far have exhibited a good deal of enthusiasm for the concept," Delaney said.
Rand has a $1 million investment in the project so far, he said.

wealth and fame as a member of the Black Oak Arkansas Band. Now, after years of searching, Tanas has found something even better - his father.

Tanas, a 24-year-old bass player, was reunited with his father, Richard, last week when the popular band visited Detroit for a concert.

Tanas hadn't seen his father since his parents divorced. He was 8 months old at the time. Mother and son moved from their Battle Creek, Mich., home to Kentucky and lost touch with the senior Tan-

people's memories

"It was really mental anquish, being told you're just like someone but not knowing him," the tall, black-haired Tanas said. "It bothered me until I had to find out where he was."

For eight years, Tanas combed through telephone books and city records, turning up no clues.

Then last year, during an appearance with Black Oak Arkansas in Pontiac, Tanas found his father's name in an old telephone book. But the number had been disconnected and the band left town before Tanas could pursue his lead

Last week, Tanas drove into Pontiac and questioned people who lived in his father's old neighborhood. One neighbor But Tanas became obsessed with findremembered the elder Tanas and said he ing the father he knew only through other worked for a paint shop dealer in the Detroit area.

Tanas began making calls to distributors and dealers and, on the 11th or 12th call, he was told that Richard A. Tanas was standing right there.

"I didn't know what to say," the young Tanas said.

His father, 51, said he couldn't believe it either

"I picked up the phone and he said, 'Richard Tanas, you're a hard man to find. This is your son, Andy

Richard Tanas said he was afraid to contact his son after all those years. A minister advised him to leave the young man alone, he said.

"But I carried the memory of him with me. I had a big empty void that has been filled up now," the elder Tanas said.

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign . . . even if your name is John Hancock.

Tech Museum To Display Underwear Exhibit

Secrets women kept for centuries go on exhibit June 12 at The Museum of Texas Tech University in a display called "The Great American Coverup."

The exhibition reveals women's undergarments of handmade lace, eyelet and other intricate white embroidery, drawn work, ribbons and bows. The Museum's collection of this type of garment is considered among the finest in the

The breath-taking corsets are there, too, and hoops. Even knit stockings, sometimes with ribbed design and sometimes embroidered, are on display.

The shapely images created by corsets, hoops and bustles were not achieved lightly, exhibit material explains. A woman's total ensemble could weigh as much as 40 pounds.

On one hooped model, the wiring is revealed. On another, an 1850s tiered black silk gown provides the silhouette of the full hoop. The revealed hoops relate to the 1860s and 1870s when the skirt fullness was moved to the back and shaped with a bustle. The hoops are fitted over two handmade petticoats over a knee-length chemise. This embroidered top has "puffing," similar to shirring but made to stand out slightly to give fullness to the bust and shoulder lines.

Another model of the 19th century wears a pale blue handembroidered chemise and shows each of her four petticoats, one with borders of machine lace, one with hand-made eyelet in a deep band, one with machine eyelet but with tucks designed to give flair at the hemline, and all lifted to show the ruffled pantaloons Exhibited also is a petticoat with drawn work forming a lattice effect in the ornate trim. Wave braid lace, made with a fine rickrack-type braid that was applied to a paper before being crocheted into a lace, decorates another petticoat.

One model, dressed as m'lady's maid, wears a white apron trimmed in hand-knitted lace. In the exhibit the maid is assisting a turn-of-the-century high fashion woman with her coiffure, the final step in preparation for an important social

Mrs. Betty Mills, curator of historic costumes and textiles at The Museum, said that the exhibit is particularly appropriate this season, when high fashion stores are selling garments patterned after those of the late nineteenth century.

'One great difference, of course," she said, "is that the modern garments are all machine-made, while the earlier garments demonstrate perfection achieved with imperfect instruments.

Days, weeks and months of constant work with the needle were required to produce the garments on exhibit. "Women didn't know idle moments," Mille said. "The mark of a well-brought-up young lady was refinement in work with the needle.

"Deft fingers were supposed to produce a serene mind, and daughters were introduced to the needle early and maintained their skills into old age."

Needlework experts will recognize in the exhibit examples of punchwork, Broiderie Anglaise, white work, wave-brain lace, insertion, beading, drawnwork done with muslin, linen and lawn, hand hemstitching, bobbin or handmade lace, intricate tucking, puffing and handmade eyelet.

Odd Dishes Served By Jaycees

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - There was Texas rattlesnake and Nebraska beef, California wine and Billy Beer, and several thousand hungry Jaycees eager to savor the delicacies of the 50 states.

Massachusetts brought fish and chips, Iowa brought pork and Wisconsin supplied the cheese for the state parties Tuesday at the 58th annual convention of the United States Jaycees.

There was maple syrup from New Hampshire, Southern fried chicken from Georgia, crab soup from Maryland and candy bars from Illinois

There was music to eat by, plenty of conversation and, for an after dinner smoke, cigarettes from North Carolina.

The lines were everywhere, but the longest slithered past the Texas booth where the curious and the connoisseurs tasted rattlesnake.

"I didn't want to like it, but I do," said Gayle Railey of Sacramento, Calif, who waited in line for 20 minutes.

"It's delicious," said Roger Burgis of Park Ridge, Ill. "It tastes somewhat like chicken.

Charlie Cotten of Garland said rattlesnake was considered a delicacy in Texas. His delegation brought 2,600 pounds of rattlesnake meat for the convention. 'That's a lot of rattlesnake," he said.

The skinned rattlesnakes were chopped and cooked outside Convention Hall. After viewing the preparations. Don Wollet of Phoenixville, Pa., vowed there was "no way" he would ever taste the meat. "I don't think it would stay down," he

To wash down the rattlesnake, there was beer from Colorado, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Wisconsin and Kentucky.

This beer is here with the compliments of Billy Carter," said Jim Malone of Buechel-Fern Creek, Ky.

The Kentucky delegation brought 4,800 cans of Billy Beer to the convention, but Bill Porter of Colorado Springs, Colo., said it was no competition for the Coors his state distributed.

Two Researchers Await Signs Of Fatal Disease After Mishap

researchers exposed during a laboratory mishap to rat blood contaminated with deadly lassa fever virus are in strict isolation at an Army hospital while they and their doctors watch for symptoms of the dreaded ailment.

"Into each life a little rain must fall." quipped one of the men in a telephone interview two weeks after a tiny test tube popped open and changed his life into a deadly waiting game.

The names of the men were withheld at their request and because the Center for Disease Control, where they work, said identifying them would be "a clearly unwarranted invasion of their personal pri-

So far, there are no signs either of the researchers has contracted the disease. but they probably will be kept away from each other and the outside world through the weekend

Lassa fever, a virus identified in Nigeria less than 10 years ago, normally develops seven to 14 days after exposure. The men, who were exposed on June 5, are therefore believed to be past the most critical period.

Initial symptoms generally include headache, sore throat, coughing, vomiting, diarrhea, pain, malaise and fever over 100 degrees. The disease - carried by a rat found commonly in parts of Africa but not in the United States - was once thought to kill up to half its victims. It obtained particular notoriety with the 1974 publication of "Fever!" a book by John G. Fuller. Researchers who have worked with it in Sierra Leone, where it has caused epidemics, now believe the early reports of its virulent nature were exaggerated.

"I'd rather get lassa fever than Rocky Mountain spotted fever, which is endemic right here in Maryland," one of the researchers said by telephone from the Army's specially equipped hospital-at Fort Dietrick in Frederick, Md.

"Did they tell you that you could pick it up over the phone?" he teased. Drs. John H. Richardson and John Bryan at the government's Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said the men were phased into isolation hours after tests determined the sample that had splashed on one of them and exposed them both contained the lassa virus.

Both men had been working with the samples of rodent blood collected in Africa as part of a project to discover how the virus is transmitted from rats to humans and then from person to person.

'Our people work with dangerous agents all the time," Richardson, who heads the center's safety program, said. "It's inevitable you're going to have an accident sooner or later.

According to the accounts of the men, their supervisor and the safety officer, the researchers were transferring blood samples from a freezer to an area of the lab where tests could be performed on them. One worker was handling the sample tubes while the other stood nearby recording which items were being moved. During the operation, which is not normally as dangerous as the collecting of the samples themselves or some other stages of the research, one of the tubes remained frozen to its rack as the researcher lifted it by its plastic cap.

While there is no known treatment or cure for lassa fever, the men were given injections of immune plasma taken from patients who had survived the disease in the hope that it would give them some resistance to infection or make an attack

The cap popped off, and a bit of partially thawed rat blood splashed onto his clothes and chin.

Evidently, the two researchers did not use a specially designed glass container that disease center officials said was provided to protect the men during the transfer. They also were not wearing protective suits, although they did have on rubber gloves.

After the maximum containment lab was decontaminated, the men changed, showered and left to await the results of tests that showed four days later the sample was definitely contaminated. At that point laboratory officials decided to fly the researchers to isolation

City Teachers To Offer Salary Hike Proposal Agency said Tuesday the state base for that pay raises have not kept pace with

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Citing a "considerable deflation" in their salaries in recent years, Lubbock teachers want the school board to increase their annual pay by $500 to $1,500

That request reportedly is contained in a letter to the Lubbock Independent School District from the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association.

The full text of the proposal won't be released until Friday when the association officially presents it to the school board. However, the request informally has been circulated among district administrators and trustees.

According to one source, the teachers' organization estimates its proposed salary package would cost nearly $1.5 million more than the district now pays its em-

Administrators have declined to discuss exact figures of the proposal. But they generally say the district would be hard-pressed to grant such pay raises because - due to court-ordered integration and other expenses - their budget for the 1978-79 school year already is tight.

requested that similar revisions be made in the increment schedule for teachers with master's degrees. For them, that would mean increases in local increments of $500 to $1,200. The proposed increases for holders of master's degrees would cost about $700,-

All told, the association's package would cost about $1.5 million above the $1.4 million the school system already provides in local increments each year. School district administrators say the full cost actually may be higher because if raises are approved for teachers, they traditionally are passed on to clerical and other employees as well.

In their request, officers of the teachers' association reportedly said the increases are essential in maintaining quality education here. They cited several statistics showing that Lubbock salaries are low compared with other districts and

Those statistics and other details of the proposal are expected to be made public Friday. The association will address the school board at 7:15 a.m. in the district's administration building, 1628 19th St.

The teachers' organization already has had some success with the board lately. On Tuesday, the board approved the association's proposed personal leave poli-

Many teachers, however, are locked on the same step for two or more years and won't get such pay raises unless local increments are increased.

Teachers' salaries in Lubbock currently range from $8,960 to $13,950 for holders of bachelor's degrees; and $9,520 to $15,-380 for holders of master's degrees.

Local Hamburger Spots Show Price Increases

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Jumbo, Whopper, Old Fashioned or New-Fangled, the price of having a burger your way is going

One customer who noticed her favorite hamburger had jumped 10 cents in price explained it it this way, "Two all-beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles and a bunch of money.

A random survey of hamburger establishments in the city revealed most have had price increases within the last two to eight weeks. Mike Burk, manager of The Brittany at South Plains Mall, said

meat prices aren't the only culprit

in the inflation. "Lettuce really hurt restaurant prices and tomatoes are up right now, " he said. But the worst news was, "Our supplier has indicated

Although the Brittany restaurants have not changed prices on drinks or french fries, some of their hamburger prices have increased a dime. Burk said most of the price increases in the history of the 10-year-old chain have occurred in the last two years. He attributed it to the cost of meat and produce from suppliers.

At Burger King, price jumps have been put into effect for hamburgers, french fries and drinks.

Since early this month customers have had to dig into their pockets for an extra dime for Whoppers. The double meat Whopper, which contains four slices of cheese and two quarter-pound beef patties, is up to $1.99 - 24 cents higher than last month. French fries and all drink prices increased four cents. A spokesman said the higher prices but said the chain's franchise office gave no explanation for the increase in drink prices.

Gardski's Loft, a Broadway restaurant specializing in hamburgers, added a nickel to its burgers two or three weeks ago but has kept prices the same on fries and drinks "It's because of the increase in meat prices - they've been rising since January, "Gardski manager Randy Miller said. "And lettuce went from $11 a case up to $20 a case. But now it's down to about $9.45 or $10 a case. Locally, the McDonald's chain Barn increased hamburger prices by one dime within the last month. A regular hamburger at Mark's is now $1 and french fries are up to 60 cents, a nickel increase.

Burger Barn's two meat patty Jumbo Burger is $1.25, whereas two weeks ago the same menu item was $1.15. Mrs. S.C. Hughes who, along with her husband, operates the two Lubbock locations, said produce and meat supply costs were the reason for the menu price changes.

"Oh gracious, lettuce was up to $25 a case when at one time we got it for $7.50," she said, adding that tomato prices have ranged from $7.50 to $17 a case in recent

Lettuce prices also have been a concern to the Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers chain which has increased chili and drink prices, but not the cost of hamburgers.

"Produce was outrageous a month ago, " Wendy's manager Dan Dingess said Tuesday. "Tomatoes are a little high but we can actually afford lettuce now. We were depending on the California crop (of lettuce), but now the Texas lettuce is coming in.

A four-cent increase in the price of a Whataburger went into effect about six to eight weeks ago. The sandwich for which the chain is named now costs 99 cents.

If West Germany loses to or ties Austria, it could be eliminated from the World Cup. Even a win wouldn't necessarily keep the Germans in contention. And Schoen, 62, has said he will retire after the tournament.

To a whole generation of soccer fans, Schoen's face has been as familiar as the game's stars. He guided West Germany through four World Cups-to second place in England in 1966, to third place in Mexico in 1970, to victory in Germany in 1974, and now to the struggle for the last four places in Argentina.

Superstars like Pele. Bobby Charlton and Johann Cruyff came and went, but Schoen remained. Every four years, when the World Cup is televised around Schoen has had to contend with a spate of injuries. Midfielder Karl-Heinz Flohe has gone home, and another midfield star, Herbert Zimmermann, is out of the Austria match.

The two final places were wide open as the last second-round games opened today. The winners of the two groups meet Sunday in Buenos Aires.

In Group A, Holland and Italy are even in points. But the Dutch have a much better overall goals aggregate, so they need only a draw to stay ahead of Italy, which has to win to get into the final.

West Germany, 1 point behind, can still make the final by defeating Austria by 5 goals or more - but only if the Holland-Italy game is a tie.

In Group B, Argentina and Brazil have 3 points each, with the Brazilians 1 goal ahead in the totals.

Argentina faces Peru, and Brazil has to play Poland. Both were expected to win and in that case they would still be even and goals would count. Both teams were expected to go for as many goals as

Baseball Wins

ATHLETICS HAS ALWAYS come easily for Bruce Compton, but decisionmaking has sometimes been tougher, and one particular decision just over a Compton, a 6-2, 190-pounder with fine speed, was a much-sought-after football player following his senior season at Norman, Okla., High School (1976). One recruiter for a major football power labeled him as being one of the top

Texas Tech won the recruiting battle for him and considered it a major victory. The school failed, however, to reckon with Compton's baseball prowess, which proved to be considerable, enough so that he became the No. 1 draft choice of the Cleveland Indians and the 11th player chosen in last June's free-So would it be baseball or football? After a time, he spurned Tech and decided on bucking the long odds of making the major leagues, a choice no doubt influenced in part by a $40,000 bonus and incentive clauses that will total approximately $10,000 if he eventually reaches the big leagues. FOR A TIME, the Tech staff held the hope that he would come here if his baseball career did not work out. But baseball appears now to have won out.

The 19-year-old Compton says that he has allowed himself four years in which to make significant progress toward the major leagues, and he considers this to be his first campaign since he didn't begin the 1977 season until the middle of "I haven't missed football much, because I've been directing all my energies toward baseball," said Compton, who was traded to the Chicago Cubs over the winter. "I'm not interested in playing football now. In three or four years, I'll probably have completed enough college work that I wouldn't want to spend four more years just playing football. "I feel like I made the right decision in choosing pro ball over college and football. I really like Coach (Steve) Sloan and Coach (Rex) Dockery, but I had a feeling inside that playing pro baseball was what I really wanted to do. The money, of course, made a difference, too."

LAST SEASON WAS somewhat rough for him. He went to the Indians' Batavia, N.Y., farm club in the New York-Pennsylvania League, a rookie circuit, and finished with a .250 batting average.

"That year was really different," he admitted. "I felt awkward, and I don't think I was as aggressive as I should have been. But I'm still not disappointed in my year. The scouts all told me that I didn't do badly for it being my first sea-

At the winter meetings, though, he was dealt to the Cubs, and the move was surprising. Normally, a club doesn't give up so quickly on a No. 1 draft choice. It has a lot of money tied up in its top draft picks. Also, if a team takes a player that high in the draft, he must be considered a good prospect-the kind to win

Still, Compton realized that the Cubs had been very interested in him before he was drafted. Also, they traded a major-leaguer (shortstop Dave Rosello) for him, so he didn't feel badly

He began the 1978 season at St. Petersburg in the Florida State League but was recently sent to Bradenton (Fla.) in the Gulf Coast League, despite the fact that he was batting around .300 at St. Pete.

"THE FLORIDA STATE League is about half rookie and about half other guys," Compton said, "while the Gulf Coast League is a rookie league all the way. So I guess most guys would consider this a demotion.

"But I've been told that this league is better than the NY-P League. And they (the Cubs) indicated to me back in spring training that they would probably do this once the rookie leagues began. Since this is my first year in organization, they wanted me to work a lot with their coaches and learn their way of doing

A centerfielder for several years, including last season, he has been used mostly in right field and some at third base this season. He's rather baffled by the move-"they never tell you much"-but he likes it, calling his new position(s) "more challenging."

Doubtless, the challenges will continue to present themselves regularly.

Yankees Club Boston In AL East Struggle

By The Associated Press

Why does a chicken cross the bases? To get to the other side of home plate, of course, like after hitting a grand slam ho-

Fred "Chicken" Stanley, the New York Yankees' backup shortstop, received his nickname for the manner in which he runs. Tuesday night, however, the lifetime .226 hitter trotted instead of running after belting his sixth career homer—and second grand slam-to cap a seven-run fourth-inning rally against Boston's Mike

Meanwhile, Reggie Jackson added a three-run shot in the ninth and Don Gullett scattered five hits as the Yankees proved that turnabout is fair play— or, in the case of a chicken, fowl play-and trounced the Red Sox 10-4, the same score by which Boston bombed them the night before.

That wasn't the only similarity. Monday night, the Yankees chased Luis Tiant with a four-run fourth. This time, the Red Sox unloaded on Gullett for four runs in the second inning, including Butch Hobson's three-run homer, for a 4-0 lead, and like Tiant, ex-Yankee Torrez was kayoed in the fourth.

Torrez, the Yankees' 1977 World Series pitching hero, held his former teammates hitless before Willie Randolph led off the fourth with a double and Thurman Munson beat out an infield hit. One out later, Chris Chambliss singled to cut Boston's lead to 4-1. Graig Nettles singled to load the bases and Gary Thomasson hit a tworun double.

After Jim Spencer was walked intentionally to fill the bases, Stanley lifted a 1-1 pitch into the screen for his first homer and first four RBI of the season.

"I went up there anticipating a squeeze, said the light-hitting infielder. The pitch was a slider hung out over the plate. I hit it just high enough and far enough to get it into the net.'

Gullett, making only his fourth start after spending almost two months on the disabled list with shoulder trouble, walked seven but struck out six in his first complete game since last season

"Whatever the docs did to him this last time, they must have done something right," New York manager Billy Martin said. "He doesn't have any problems with his arm any more. He was strong a the end, still throwing hard."

The Red Sox, suffering only their sec ond loss in the last 12 games and sixth in 35 home games, had at least one baserun ner in every inning except the sixth, bu Gullett was tough in the clutch.

Orioles 8, Brewers 5

Rich Dauer's two-run double sparked five-run Baltimore fifth inning and Scot McGregor allowed one hit for 6 1/3 in nings, leading the Orioles to their 17th victory in 18 games. Ken Singleton score three times as Baltimore built an 8-1 lead before the Brewers, who had won 11 o 12 games, chased McGregor with three unearned runs in the seventh. A single by Baltimore's Billy Smith, a bloop single by Mark Belanger and Dauer's two-run double broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth.

Ashe Joins Field For RI Tournament

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) - Organizers of the $75,000 Hall of Fame Tennis Championships say defending champion Tim Gullikson and Arthur Ashe, a former Wimbledon winner, have signed up for July's tournament.

The tournament, which will compete with a $300,000 event at Forest Hills the week of July 10-16, again this year has a 32-player draw, most of which has been filled out.

Bob Day, executive director of the Hall of Fame, said other top entries include Gullikson's twin brother, Tom; 1977 finalist Hank Pfister, and Australia's Colin

Other players who have signed up for the tournament are John James of Australia, Byron Bertram of South Africa and American's Victor Amaya, Mike Cahill, Gene Mayer and Freddie McNair.

'We've got a much better draw than Gstaad (Switzerland's $75,000 tournament the same week) and, if you take away Harold Solomon and Eddie Dibbs, who only play on clay, we've got a better draw than Cincinnati (a $125,000 tourney)," Day said.

Last year, Ashe signed up to play in the Hall of Fame tournament.

Resignation of Dr. John Cobb from the Texas Tech athletic council has been accepted by school officials, but no replacement has been made.

Cobb, a member of the council for seven years, confirmed this week that he submitted his resignation as a member on June 7, the day Tech hired Dick Tamburo as the new athletic director for men. Cobb had one of three finalists for that AD post.

Clyde Morganti, assistant to Tech president Cecil Mackey, reported Tuesday that Cobb's resignation had been accepted by Mackey but that no replacement had been made.

"Dr. Mackey gets the nominations (for the council) from the faculty senate, as with all standing committees, and he has not made the athletic council appoint-

"Usually, the appointments are made for terms beginning Sept. 1," Morganti added, "and all the faculty positions on the council are for one year terms.

The indication was that current members of the council probably would be returned, with a new member to step into Cobb's seat

The new council was formed last December, when the president set up an athletic council to oversee both men's and women's athletic departments. Until that time, there had had been separate

"I just felt it would be improper for me to serve on an advisory board at this time," Cobb said this week, in comment--with Tamburo and Alabama assistant athletic director Charley Thornton-and the three were interviewed in Dallas on ing on his resignation.

Cobb was chairman of the council for five of his seven years on the board. He is a member of the Tech physical education department and a former head of the men's PE department.

Soccer Group Seeks Teams In High Schools

Lubbock Independent School District trustees on Friday will consider a request to establish a soccer program this fall in the city's high schools. The school board will meet at 7:15 a.m. in the district's administration building. 1628 19th Street, to study the Lubbock Soccer Association proposal. "We would like for there to be established a boy's soccer team and a girl's soccer team at each of the five city high schools," association president Charles Kellogg said in a letter to Superintendent Ed Irons.

"We envision these teams as being highly competitive on the playing field as well as in the selection of their players. The establishment of these teams can be accomplished through the existing physical education departments with a minimum commitment of resources," Kellogg said.

Kellogg said United States Soccer Federation officials are willing to provide coaching clinics for school personnel. Also, he said, the South Plains Soccer Referees Association would "provide an excellent cadre of officials for the high Added Kellogg: "From the growth of youth soccer in Lubbock from 350 in the spring of 1974 to over 4,000 in the spring of 1978, we can see that it is inevitable that soccer is destined to become a recognized and widely played sport throughout Texas as well as the nation.

"Therefore, we feel that Lubbock should continue to be farsighted and proceed with a strong development of soccer at the high school level.

Reds Provide More Firepower, Clip Frisco 6-3

By The Associated Press When the Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants met, everyone knew there would be fireworks.

There were — all kinds. A San Francisco fan shook up things at Candlestick Park for a while by tossing a firecracker on the field. But the real explosion came off the bat of George Foster, who doubled, tripled and homered to lead the Reds to a 6-3 victory over the Giants Tuesday night.

'When we're hitting good," said Foster, "nobody intimidates us-no matter how good they are."

It was a flashy way for the Reds to open their big three-game series with the Giants. The victory in the opener cut San Francisco's West lead to one game over Sparky Anderson's fast-closing team.

"The Giants have surprised a lot of people," said Foster, "but we were able to recover before they got away. We learned our lesson last year when the Los Angeles Dodgers got out in front and stayed there. This year, we knew we had to stay close."

Hardly dismissing the significance of the victory, Anderson nevertheless pointed to the obvious factor of a long season. "There are 96 games left to play," said

We've had 66 games, and there are 44 of them where we played without at least two of our regulars. I'm very satisfied with our posi-

Foster's triple in the eighth gave the Reds their winning run. The game was tied 3-3 before Foster delivered his big run-scoring hit off loser Gary Lavelle. The Reds added two insurance runs in the ninth on Ken Griffey's RBI single and Cincinnati took a 2-0 lead in the first inning off John Montefusco. Pete Rose doubled, Griffey sacrificed, Morgan belted a sacrifice fly and Foster followed with his 15th homer.

The Giants surged ahead with three runs off Paul Moskau. Singles by Terry Whitfield, Jack Clark and Darrell Evans scored the first run and Jim Dwyer with the bases loaded. An error by Rusdrilled a two-run triple. The Reds tied it in the sixth on Foster's one-out double and Dan Driessen's single.

The game was disrupted in the bottom of the sixth when a fan dropped a firecracker behind Foster in left field. The umpires sent the Reds off the field for a moment, but order was soon restored and the Cincinnati players returned to their positions to the tune of mixed applause and some cheers from the mammoth crowd of 55,920.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

James Rodney Richard and Bo McLaughlin combined on an eight-hitter and Houston utilized two errors by Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell in beating the Dodgers. The Astros reached Los Angeles starter Tommy John for three unearned runs in the first inning, aided by Russell's errors.

Art Howe doubled home one run and two more scored when Russell let Jose Cruz's slow roller go through his legs

Bob Forsch and Mark Littell combined on a seven-hitter and Ken Reitz had two RBI hits as St. Louis beat Philadelphia. With Littell's help, Forsch beat the Phillies for the third time in three tries this

The Cardinals took a 1-0 lead in the second on Jerry Morales' sacrifice fly and in the fourth scored their winning runs on Keith Hernandez's RBI single and an RBI double by Reitz.

Pirates 6, Cubs 1

Bert Blyleven scattered nine hits to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago and spoil Ken Holtzman's first pitching start since rejoining the Cubs this month. Holtzman, traded away by Chicago after the 1971 season and recently reacquired from the New York Yankees, yielded the first three Pirate runs in the fourth inning.

Blyleven struck out seven, walked none and allowed the only Chicago run in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Steve Ontiv-

Mets 3, Expos 0

Steve Henderson drove in two runs with a homer and an RBI grounder and Nino Espinosa pitched a four-hitter to lead New York over Montreal. Espinosa snapped a three-game personal losing streak while improving his record to 6-6. He struck out five and walked two.

The triumph ended a streak for ace

Montreal left-hander Ross Grimsley, 11-4, who had posted complete-game victories in his last five decisions. Braves 5, Padres 3

Run-scoring singles by Dale Murphy and Bob Horner in the 10th inning snapped a tie and sent Atlanta over San Diego. With two out in the 10th, Gary Matthews ignited the winning rally off left-hander Randy Jones with a triple to center. After Jones intentionally walked Jeff Burroughs, both Murphy and Horner followed with singles to center.

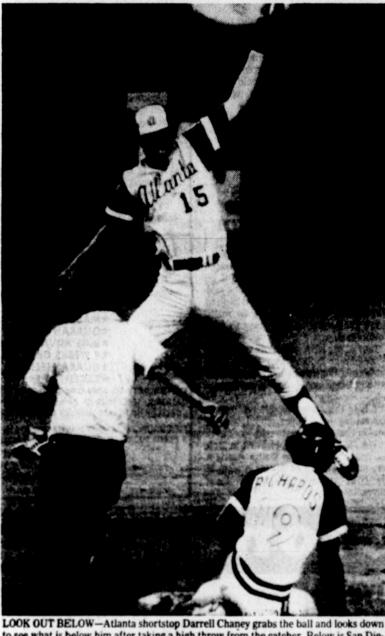

Veteran knuckleball specialist Phil Niekro, 8-7, went nine innings to pick up the victory. Jones, 5-6, a victim of three early unearned runs, took the loss.

John Mahler, the No. 2 driver for a two-car team that's now a one-car team. had some observations.

'We've had a very heavy, grueling schedule since Indianapolis," explained the Bettendorf, Iowa, native. "My teammate Spike Gehlhausen crashed at Indianapolis, so that's why I'm on foot here this weekend.

"Several cars were broken badly and a couple almost destroyed at Mosport (Ontario) two weeks ago. Fortunately not too much happened at Milwaukee last weekend. But a lot of teams are having trouble getting their act together in time to be ready for Pocono.

There was only one day-scarcely enough time to tow the 1.100 miles- between the Milwaukee race and the opening practice session here.

Only 10 cars made appearances on the track Tuesday. Most of the tuning up is expected to be crammed into today, the last full day of practice before the race. Most observers feel there will be about 30 actual qualifiers in time trials Thursday and Friday. "Hopefully, some of these teams will bring out their backup cars when they see it's going to be a short field." said one of-Short fields are more of a public relations nuisance than an embarrassment for the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club. Officials claim with some justification that the upper levels of competition have never been stronger; there are probably a dozen potential winners here. It may be, some suggest, that 33-car fields may be on the way out except at Indianapolis. Indy is the only place that attracts all possible entries; the season

Rosson Wins

At Lamesa LAMESA (Special)-Ronnie Rosson,

the host pro, recorded an even-par 72 in winning low pro honors at the Lamesa Pro-Am here Tuesday.

SPC Trackster Signs With A&I

KINGSVILLE (Special)-Woody Lyons, a high jumper from South Plains College, has signed with the Texas A&I University track and field team.

At SPC, Lyons won the conference title as a freshman with a 6-8 jump.

According to SPC coach Clint Ramsey, Lyons has cleared 7-1/2 twice in practice

He attended Smyer High School and won the Class B state title twice. His state winning jump of 6-814 in 1974 still stands as the Class B state record.

Lyons is the eighth signee for the Javelina track team this season.

The 22-car fields that are the rule at most other USAC tracks, and also on the Formula 1 circuit, may be the answer.

Wanted: More

Racing Entries

"There really aren't that many good cars around for any race except Indianapolis," said an official. "And really there aren't that many more than 33, despite the 92 entries, for Indianapolis. There's never more than 36 or so qualifiers at Indy. Most of the entries there are for backup cars anyhow.

Tradition seems to be the biggest thing standing in the way of trimming fields for the other Triple Crown events here and at Ontario, Calif.

Everybody thinks a 500-mile race should have 33 cars," said the official

Foyt's Chivalry Disappears

NEW YORK (AP) - Whether it's chivalry or chauvinism, A.J. Foyt is right up there with the best of them. Just ask Janet Guthrie.

Foyt, one of championship auto racing's premier drivers, loaned Janet Guthrie a car for some practice laps a few days before the Indianapolis 500 a couple of years ago "just to see how she'd do in really good car," he explained at the

A gallant gesture, everyone said. She did fine then-and in a good car of her own this year she and A.J. wound up battling each other in the race itself. A.J. finished just two places ahead of her -seventh to her ninth-and his gallantry seemed to evaporate a bit.

"I burned a piston on carburetion day there, and we went home and built a new engine, put it in and just went out and raced without setting it up the way we would have if we'd had the time," he said the other day, explaining his disappointing finish.

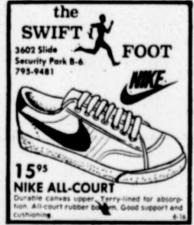

Then he took a swipe at Miss Guthrie just as this year's Indy winner, Al Unser, had done after the race. Unser said Miss Guthrie had just been "out for a Sunday drive," that her goal wasn't to win the race but just to finish it and because of that she was a menace to other drivers.

"I think she's done a fine job-for her ability-but I've got to go along with Al," Foyt said. "If you take myself and Al and Bobby Unser and Mario Andretti and Johnny Rutherford and put her against us and we're all running the same equipment and running good. Well, I don't think we have to worry about her ever beating us.

"I don't believe car racing's cut out for ladies. Not that they don't have the ability, but I think it's a man's world and men should do men's jobs," he said with a cheshire-cat grin.

"It'd be like putting a lady blocker against Dick Butkus. He's at full peak and she's at full peak and he's just gonna run right over her. Foyt is no doubt delighted, then, that he won't have to contend with her this Sunday when he tries to become the only three-time winner of the Pocono 500 He's already the only two-time winner of the race, just as he's the only four-time winner at Indy.

First Woman Signed Sees No Conflicts Between Cage Leagues

CHICAGO (AP) - It's natural that some comparisons will be made, but the newly formed professional Women's Basketball League should have no problems "competing" with its male counterpart, the National Basketball Association, says Karen Logan, the first player signed to play in the new league

"I don't expect any problems with competing with the NBA," Miss Logan said Tuesday after signing a contract with the Chicago Skyliners of the new WBL. "The women's league will create a different style of play which should be appealing and able to stand on its own. I don't think the NBA considers us a threat, anyway. In fact, they're all for us," added the 29-year-old native of For-

Five other teams also became charter members, and six more are expected to enter the league before the WBL's July 17-18 draft of amateur and foreign play-

Joining the Skyliners were the Iowa Cornets and unnamed teams in Milwaukee, Minnesota, New Jersey and Washington, D.C. The league's Board of Governors, based in Columbus, Ohio, will decide before the draft which of 15 other possible teams will fill the last six league openings. A 34-game regular season sechedule is to begin Dec. 17, WBL officials said.

Miss Logan, a 5-9 guard who played "four years of pro ball on a touring basis" with the All-American Redheads, also will serve as an assistant coach with the Skyliners. Chicago also announced signing 6-1 forward Mary Jo Pepler Tuesday. Salaries for Miss Logan and Miss Pepler were not revealed.

"The idea for the league is a super thing," said Miss Pepler, 33, who is currently volleyball coach at Utah State University. "The timing seems right and I'm optimistic that the league can survive. "I've always been a volleyball player, but I met Karen last year during the 'Superstars' competition and she's been tutoring me in basketball since then,' said Miss Pepler, a native of Rockford, Ill. She won Superstars competition in The league will rely on the draft to stock teams with collegiate seniors and players performing in various amateur leagues. Some foreign players also may be signed to play in the new league. Logan said. "The league will probably set a standard for the rest of the world as far as women's team sports are concerned." said Miss Logan in an interview. "There are women's professional teams in Europe, but they're more like semi-pros. "I think you'll see other team sport leagues being formed once we establish ourselves," she added. "This is the biggest thing to happen to women's team

Collapse Of WHA Hinted

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The Birno such plan when merger was being ne-ningham Post-Herald says in today's edimingham Post-Herald says in today's editions that the World Hockey Association and one of its teams, the Birmingham Bulls, appear on the verge of collapse.

The newspaper said a closed meeting is set for Thursday or Friday among the National Hockey League's executive com-mittee and four WHA teams seeking admission into the older loop.

Quoting a source who preferred anonymity, the Post-Herald said New England, Quebec, Edmonton and Winnipeg each put up $300,000 last week as an indemnity for the three teams not seeking Those teams were Birmingham, Indianapolis and Cincinnati.

The indemnity, the source said, was a goodwill gesture, adding that there was "Without it, the merger was quashed," the source said. "What the indemnity does is guarantee the NHL the teams not included in the merger will not file anti-trust suits. It also guarantees those teams like Birmingham a lump sum in order to pay off past and present debts.

"We are lucky, Most of our transactions have been paid in cash. We have not been a wealthy franchise, but we are not a heavily debt-ridden club, either."

The indemnity plan, the source said, calls for the four teams seeking merger to buy the player contracts from Birmingham. Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

He added that Birmingham is working on a plan to join either the American Hockey Association or the Central Hockey League, both minor leagues.

Miss Evert, only 23, has won all the world's major tournaments except the Australian Open. "That's always in December and collides with Christmas and my birthday, so I always spend the month with my family," she said. "A lot of the glamor is going out for me now, and I don't intend to burn myself out playing 11 months a year. I'm not as eager as I was, and although I love the game and don't want to quit, I do want to spend more time with my family and friends.

Miss Evert took a five-month break from tennis recently, the first extended vacation of her career.

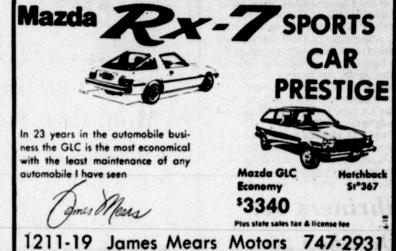

Both Mrs. King and Miss Evert came through the first two rounds Tuesday of the tournament here without dropping a set, although Mrs. King had a few anxious moments when Mona Guerrant of the United States took a 5-3 second-set lead against her in the first round. King survived that, won the match 7-6. 6-1, then went on to demolish Renata To-manova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-2. Miss Evert has dropped only four games in the first two rounds so far.

After her victory Monday over Katja Ebbinghaus of Germany, she crushed Aleida Spex of the United States 6-0, 6-1 in the second round. Virginia Wade, the current Wimbledon champion, had an easy time in the second round against Betsy Nagelsen of the Unit-ed States, before winning 4-6, 7-6, 6-3. JoAnne Russell of the United States

High Jumper Stones Faces Loss Of Amateur Status

Dwight Stones may lose his amateur status because of payments made for his appearance in the Superstars competition to a corporation that lists his mother, sister, grandmother and attorney as offi-

The question is whether the high jumper illegally evaded rules concerned with accepting money, said Ken Worthen, chairman of the registration committee of the Amateur Athletic Union's Southern Pacific Association.

Worthen, whose group met with Stones for four hours Monday, said Tuesday that the former world record holder faces loss of his amateur standing in a controversy over the $33,000 Stones earned in this year's Superstars, a multi-sports competition televised by ABC.

The money went to Stones' corporation, the Desert Oasis Track Club, which is not recognized by the AAU.

"I guess the basic thing is whether he is an amateur or a professional now," said Worthen, whose group will decide whether to grant Stones an AAU travel permit to compete in Europe this summer

"Did he illegally evade the AAU rules of amateurism and the international rules of amateurism by this action, or did he legally, through loopholes, avoid the requirements that amateur athletes cannot receive funds?" Worthen asked.

A ruling is expected shortly, as attorneys for both the AAU and Stones are studying the situation

Stones, 24, formerly held world records indoors at 7 feet, 51/4 inches, outdoors at 7-71/4 and was the high jump bronze medalist in the 1976 Olympics.

He said he plans to retire within two

More than $300,000 has contributed from the games with the first one staged

Skibell, in announcing the date for the game, said that committees from the Khiva Temple are beginning their preliminary ticket canvasses and also moving into the areas of program sales.

We're shooting for a crowd of 25,000 people and a net profit of $50,000 this year," said Skibell. "And we think we can reach it."

The game will be played in Tech's Jones Stadium the night of Oct. 26, beginning at 7:30.

This is the first year that the Shrine game has matched Tech and WTSU teams. Last year, Tech defeated the Aransas JV 26-17 in the contest

Stewardess 'Recognizes' Mrs. Harris

THE CAPITOL

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG WASHINGTON (AP) - Today's question is: who is Patricia Roberts Harris? And would you know her if you saw her? Mrs. Harris is secretary of Housing and Urban Development and one of two women in President Carter's Cabinet.

She had reason to think she was a big cheese in the governmental scheme of things the day she settled into her seat on an airplane and started to read a maga-

"I know you," said the stewardess. Mrs. Harris smiled modestly.

"You're Juanita Kreps," the stewardess added. Mrs. Kreps is secretary of Commerce in the Carter administration. Mrs. Harris' smile faded. "No," she said. "I'm not Juanita Kreps."

The stewardess was certain her passenger was in the Cabinet. Later, she figured out who it must be and went up to Mrs. Harris again.

"You're Brock Adams," she said, referring to the secretary of Transporta-

"I decided Brock Adams has a gender identification problem," Mrs. Harris

Mrs. Harris told that story to a group of Massachusetts local officials who came to Washington for a series of meetings with administration officials.

She told the group she has problems with Massachusetts because officials there "want 50 percent of all the money we have."

"Fair share," quipped Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. After a long pause, he added: "The other half goes to Georgia.'

Introductions

Kennedy set up the meetings and was there to introduce each speaker.

When House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts appeared before the group, Kennedy noted that the speaker always told audiences that he thought Jimmy Carter would go down in history as one of the great presi-

Another long pause. "He used to say that about me," added Kennedy.

Flattering Strauss

Robert Strauss is fast becoming the jack-of-all-trades of the Carter White House. The former Democratic national chairman joined the administration as the president's special trade representative and recently took on added duties as chief inflation fighter.

As a result, Strauss keeps reading about himself in the newspapers. And he loves it.

"The more flowery they get, the more I believe them," he told an audience re-

He said that one evening he turned to his wife and said, "You know, Helen, when you stop and think about it, there aren't many real leaders in Washing-

To which she replied, "There's probably even one less than you're thinking about right now."

Mondale's Happy

Sorry, Ray Rollinson, Walter Mondale likes his job. Rollinson recently wrote to Mondale and asked him to endorse Rollinson for the 1980 Democratic nomination for vice president He got this reply:

"This is in response to your recent communication to Vice President Mondale regarding your candidacy for vice president in 1980. Unfortunately, the vice president will be unable to lend his personal endorsement to your efforts."

Filibustering

The labor law filibuster doesn't draw much of a crowd on the Senate floor. The other day, one of the opponents, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, finished a long speech, and Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., a leader of the fight for the bill, stood up and said: "I congratulate the senator from Texas. The speech he has just delivered has had the undivided attention of the membership in the Senate ... The chamber was in perfect order.' Tower replied: "I thank the three members who were present for preserv-ing such splendid order and being so courteous and not making raucous noises while I was speaking.

Feds Studying Lunch Waste

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The federal government is trying to stop some of the waste of school lunch food that ends up in trash cans.

The Agriculture Department said last week that junior high school and middle school students who take part in the national school lunch program now can turn down two of five different foods offered them.

The students have been required to take milk and pile on their plates bread, meat or a meat alternate and two vegetables or fruits.

But students will have to pay for five items even if they take just three. And the amount of federal reimbursement for each lunch served will not be affected by Senior high students have had the option to choose three instead of five items for two years.

Cottonseed Seen As Strong Source Of Protein

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Barbara Ford is a former senior editor of "Science Digest." #### By BARBARA FORD

The soybean isn't the only source of plant protein available. It's simply the one on which the most work has been done.

Four crops that are widely grown in the United States look like paticularly good candidate or fulfilling some of our future protein needs: cotton, peanuts, corn and It's hard to pick which of these will be the first to become a significant source of protein in the American diet. But some scientists give the nod to the plant that sounds the most unlikely: cottonseed.

We think of cotton primarily as a cloth. But; according to nutrition researcher Margaret L. Harden of Texas Tech University, cotton actually produces more food for man and livestock than it does fiber.

For each 100 pounds of cotton fiber, the cotton plant gives 170 pounds of cottonseed.

Cotton is a small, yellowish seed, the kernel of which is 40 percent protein and 40 percent oil. After processing. 170 pounds of cottonseed supply 27-to 30 pounds of oil for human consumption and 72-to-82 pounds of defatted meal, which is eaten by cattle.

Even excluding oils, cottonseed foods designed for human use are not new. As early as 1876, cottonseed flour containing up to 55 percent protein was produced in the U.S. In the 1930s, a Texas firm came out with an improved cottonseed flour.

These early flours had problems. Most arose from the presence in the seed of gossypol, a substance that adversely affects the digestion of such animals as pigs, chickens and humans.

In the early cottonseed flours, gossypol was inactivated by heating. That made the flour less nutri-

In the late 1950s, a "glandless" cottonseed without gossypol was developed. Widespread use of glandless cottonseed, however, is still years away.

A better solution for the near future may be the Liquid Cyclone Process (LCP), a method developed at the Agriculture Department's Southern Regional Research Laboratory in New Orleans. The process uses standard cottonflour with very little gossypol.

To date, the most successful use of cottonseed protein in a food product is a beverage called Incaparina. The 25 percent protein drink was developed some years ago by an American scientist, Dr. Nevin Scrimshaw. Incaprina is marketed only in Central America.

Incaparina costs about one-third as much as milk, making it possible for many low-income families to buy it. Guatemala now has its own modern Incaparina processing plant, which produces 10 tons of the drink a day

In this land of plentiful and relatively low-cost milk, Incaparina would probably not find much of a market. But the Southern Regional Research Laboratory has worked with researchers at several universities in devising cottonseed-based proteins more appealing to our

Texas Tech's research team has worked out a number of cottonseed flour recipes for cookies, candy, quick breads and crackers, some of which have been will accepted by taste panels. One of its most successful recipes is a cracker that has 40 percent protein.

Another promising use of cottonseed is as a meat extender. Texas A&M researchers have successfully used various forms of cottonand meat loaf.

"I thing our cottonseed extended hamburgers are better than soy-extended hamburger," claims research chemist Leah Berardi of the USDA's New Orleans center. A local newspaper, one of her coleagues adds, has even come up with a name for the new product: cottonburger.

Don't start looking for cottonburgers yet. Before cottonseed can incorporated into processed foods a dependable supply of LCP or glandless flour, or both, is necessary. Nutritious cottonseed flour remains for now a laboratory item.

There's one exception to the present dearth of cottonseed products for humans: Cot-N-nuts. A Texas company plans to begin selling a small, nutlike product made from the seed of glandless cottonseed under that catchy name sometime this year. The yellowish kernels have 37-38 percent protein. (Peanuts are 25 percent protein.) They look and taste much like chopped nuts, but sell for less than any nuts except peanuts

The kernels are a bit small for eating from the hand (I kept dropping them behind the sofa cushions), but they tasted very nutty in

Pope Airs Goals For Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope Paul VI, marking the 15th anniversary of his election today, told a crowd of 10,000 the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council was the most important event of "this fleeing and nearly finished pontificate."

Speaking in Italian during his weekly general audience the 80-year-old pope

"We pray that the love for the (Roman Catholic) Church assists us to make of the council a true lamp for our history and our hope for the after-life.

"The dominant thought during our pontificate is for us the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council which we have celebrated in the past years. We must be faithful to this great event that now we try to translate into practice, in a living spirit, in this fleeing and nearly ended pontificate."

The Council, convened by the late Pope John XXIII, lasted from 1962 to 1965 when it was closed by Pope Paul. It marked a new and more liberal trend for the Rman Catholic Church.

For the past few years Pope Paul has been frequently referring to the approach of his death.

No special ceremony was planned to recall the day in 1963 when the College of Cardinals, after 36 hours in conclave, chose Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini, the archbishop of Milan, to succeed the late Pope John XXIII.

Instead, the election day and the anniversary of Pope Paul's coronation, June 30: will be celebrated on June 29, the feast day of St. Peter, when the 80-yearold pontiff says a solemn mass in honor of the first pope in St. Peter's Basilica or in the square in front if it.

Reviewing Pope Paul's 15-year reign, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said in an editorial it had been a 'crucified life.'

The editorial, by German theologian Rudolph Baubst, was referring to the conflicts arising over the modernization of the church set in motion by the Second Vatican Council in 1962-65.

Baubst said Pope Paul is caught between two fronts, "one of extreme progressives and one of extreme conservatives while the majority - disconcerted keeps silent.

The pope's most serious challenges, he said, came from the progressives' rebellion against his 1968 ban on all man-made contraceptives and conservative opposition to his modernization of church rites.

Baubst said critics of the ban on contraeption, "especially in Germany and the United States," were "so unreasonable and emotional that for many their relationship with the pople has been distort-

Turning to the rebellion against the modernization of church rituals led by rebel French Bishop Marcel Lefebvre, Haubst wrote that "it is only thanks to the pope's imperturbable patience that a schism has not yet been reached.

Mexican Scientists Develop Soy 'Milk'

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - Mexican researchers have developed "soy milk," which they say is cheaper and more nourishing than cow's milk.

A spokesman for the University of the Americas, just north of the colonial city of Puebla, said Tuesday one pound of soy beans can produce about 2 quarts of milk, with flour to spare.

Soy milk's marketing cost is estimated at about 15 cents a quart without added flavoring, and about 17 cents with strawberry, chocolate or other flavors.

Soy milk can be used to make other dairy products such as cheese, cream, vogurt and butter. It can also be stored without refrigeration for up to two

Israeli Defense Chief Will Retain Position

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) - Government sources say Defense Minister Ezer Weizman will not lose his job because of his reported charge that Prime Minister Menachem Begin was leading the country to war instead of peace. The sources said Tuesday Begin will not force Weizman out of the cabinet and aides to the defense minister said he would not resign despite pressure from his own party. Weizman was among five ministers but the only one from Begin's Likud bloc - in the 19-man cabinet to voice opposition to the phrasing of a response to American questions about Israel's plans for the occupied territories. The response said Israel was willing to negotiate the future of the west Bank and Gaza after five years of limited self-rule by the area's 1.1 million Palestiniun Ar-

The criticism of Weizman focused on harsh comments he was reported to have made after the cabinet approved a vaguely phrased response to U.S. requests for clarification of Israeli intentions on occupied territory

The opposition Labor Party newspaper Davar quoted Weizman as saying: Those two (Begin and Foreign Minister n) have been lying to us for months. They are leading us to war instead of grasping the opportunity to go toward peace."

The government-controlled radio quoted two unidentified leaders of the Labor Party opposition as saying Weizman stormed out of the cabinet meeting saying. "I'm going to ready the army for the next war. Weizman also was said to have described the Israeli response to U.S. requests for clarification as fraud and evasion that is likely to make the Egyptians think the Begin government has been leading them by nose.

Weizman had proposed a formula that would have indicated willingness to make a final decision after the five years, language suggested by the United States to help break the deadlocked peace talks with Egypt. Weizman toured two major cities on the occupied West Bank Tuesday, meeting with notables, easing restrictions and approving business ventures, in what analysts described as a pointed protest of the Begin government policy. "We want to live together," Weizman told officials of Nablus and Hebron, two large towns on the West Bank. "We don't want to rule over you. Weizman permitted the Nablus city government to buy generators rather than hook up to the Israeli electricity grid. He also allowed two prominent Hebron Arabs exiled to Lebanon two years ago on charges of subversive activity to return to the West Bank.

Officials Probe Hospital Fire

MONTREAL (AP) - Arson squad detectives are investigating a four-alarm fire at the Montreal General Hospital that destroyed the hospital's two-story laundry building early today.

None of the 684 patients or 300 staff members was hurt, but about 75 patients were evacuated to another part of the hospital when the wing they occupied became filled with dense smoke. About 200 firemen brought the fire under control after nearly three hours. Hospital officials declined to estimate the extent of the damage.

Fire Chief Rene Plaisance declined to speculate on the cause of the fire. The hospital's director, Dr. Harvy Barkun, said it was the institution's third fire in about 21/2 years, but he denied reports there had been several recent arson attempts at the hospital.

Another Montreal hospital, the Louis-Hippolyte Lafontaine Psychiatric Hospital, has had three major fires in the last two years, with damage totaling more

Italian Terrorists Kill Former Police Chief

NERVI, Italy (UPI) - Two terrorists shot and killed a former police chief who had been investigating the Red Brigades this morning, ambushing him on a crowded rush-hour bus and pumping a dozen bullets into his chest before getting

A telephone caller told a Genoa newspaper the attack was carried out by the Red Brigades — the terrorist abductors and slavers of former Premier Aldo Moro. The swift execution and precise timing bore all the hallmarks of their at-

The slaying followed a night of bombings in three major Italian cities, including one for which the red brigades did claim responsibility.

Officials said former police chief and anti-terrorist investigator Antonio Esposito, 36, was killed by two youthful men at about 8:30 a.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT) as he was riding on a crowded commuter bus in Nervi: a Riviera resort town 12 miles east of Genoa in northwestern italy.

The two terrorists boarded the bus and made their way through the crowd until they reached Esposito. Then they pulled two pistols and fired a dozen bullets into his body before jumping off the bus and making their getaway in a waiting automobile with two other accomplices, witnesses said.

Esposito had been chief of the police political crimes office in Turin between 1972 and 1975 and on that job had led investigations of Red Brigades' kidnappings and killings. He was married and the father of a daughter, 7, and a son, 5.

Earlier, terrorists damaged eight police cars parked in a Milan parking lot with hand grenades. An anonymous caller told Italian newspapers the attack was the work of the Red Brigades.

Fire bombs also went off in Rome and Bologna, causing damage but no casualties, police said.

The latest rash of violence followed an announcement that police in Rome had received warrants to arrest two more suspects in connection with Moro's kidnapping and subsequent murder May 9.

The names of the two people were not revealed. Five people already have been arrested in connection with the case and five more, including the two charged on Tuesday, were being sought.

Court Bans Two Jewish Activists From Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet courts today banished Jewish activists Vladimir Slepak and Ida Nudel from Moscow after convicting them in separate trials of 'malicious hooliganism' stemming from their attempts to emigrate to Israel, dissident sources said.

Only hours after the trials began, the courts ordered five years of internal exile in a remote part of the Soviet Union for Slepak and four years for Mrs. Nudel, the sources said.

Western reporters were barred from the courtrooms. After Slepak was driven away in a police van, persons inside the courthouse grounds turned a high-pressure hose on corresondents interviewing dissidents outside the court. There were no reports of injuries.

Slepak's brother-in-law, Zinovy Rashkovsky, said he was told of the sentence by a court official. Word of Mrs. Nudel's sentence came from Jewish sources who said she smiled and waved to them as she was driven from the court in a police van. Mrs. Nudel, a 47-year-old economist, was on trial in southern Moscow. Morris N. Hughes, a U.S. Embassy second secretary, arrived after the trial started and was told the courtroom was full. Raymond F. Smith, another embassy second secretary, was admitted to the Nudel trial. Slepak, who applied to emigrate to Israel in 1970, was arrested June 1 when he and his wife stood on the balcony of their eighth-floor apartment in the center of Moscow holding a placard demanding exit visas.

Slepak's wife, Maria, 50, also was charged with hooliganism but is in a hospital being treated for ulcers. She is expected to be tried later.

Slepak has been a mainstay of Moscow's Jewish community in Moscow and has helped other Jews trying to emigrate. Mrs. Nudel was arrested the first week in June during a series of protests staged by Jewish women seeking to emigrate to Israel. She, too, had hung a sign from her window. Mrs. Nudel first applied for an exit visa in 1971. Her application was rejected on grounds of national security although she contends her work involved no defense or security matters.

Her husband, Yuli, was permitted to emigrate in 1975.

Innocent Bystander Reported Slain In Irish Rebel Clash fell in a narrow alley between the high fence around the depot and a sports field. The spokesman said security forces BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) have been paying particular attention to Four men were shot and killed early today in an ambush by British soldiers who thwarted an attempt to blow up a post office depot, the army announced. But it said one of the dead was believed to be an innocent bystander caught in the crossfire, and a passing motorist was wounded

The army first reported that all four dead were suspected of being members of the Irish Republican Army's militant Provisional wing which is fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish Republic. A spokesman later said one of the men was apparently a pedestrian caught in the crossfire between the troops and the gun-

The shootout occurred shortly after midnight at a post office maintenance de-pot on Ballysillan Road in north Belfast. The army spokesman said a group of men were seen to be carrying bombs near the depot's outer fence.

The men were challenged," the spokesman said, "and there was an exchange of gunfire. Four men were shot dead. One of these is believed to have been a passerby caught in the exchange." The spokesman said three of the dead

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) -Ambassadors Yitzhak Unna of Israel and Hans-Joachim Eick of West Germany have refused invitations to attend the opening of the play "Golda" because it is being staged in a theater where blacks and whites are segregated.

The fourth was shot as he ran across the field. At daybreak the bodies were still lying at the scene.

The wounded motorist was taken to Belfast's Mater Hospital with arm and leg wounds

The army said four bombs were found. Army bomb disposal men detonated one of them and removed the others intact. The spokesman said each consisted of a charge of explosive attached to a gallon Dozens of persons living nearby were moved from their homes to church halls

In celebration of the arrival of the first train in Denver 108 years ago, the clocks atop Union Station were officially started Monday after seven dormant years. The celebration coincided with the arrival of the San Francisco Zephyr from Chicago, which was taking on a few dozen passengers on its way to the West Coast.

Discrimination Actions Set New Record

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Labor Department sought a record $10 million in back wages and penalties last year for 1,-943 victims of age discrimination by emplovers, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said this week.

In his annual report on the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, Marshall told Congress that of the $10 million, employers restored $2.7 million to 744 workers and job applicants between the ages of 40 and 65.

In addition to the back pay, many older workers also benefited from additional job opportunities, re-employment and on-the-job gains such as improved future wages and pension benefits, he said. The 1967 act prohibits age discrimination in hiring, job retention, compensation and other terms, conditions and privileges of employment. Approximately 26 million persons between the ages of 40 and 65 are covered by the act.

Amendments to the law signed in April by President Carter will eliminate mandatory retirement before age 70 in most

Marshall said that since the act took effect, the number of complaints received by his department has grown to 2,500 a

Since fiscal 1969, he said, the department has found 11,000 employees and job applicants to have been victims of age discrimination. Some $11 million was restored to these people out of $37 million that the department determined was due them, he said. He added that in addition to the federal statute, 44 states now have laws barring age discrimination.

While discrimination against older workers has not been eliminated during the past 10 years, much progress has recently been made in achieving the act's intent," the labor secretary said.

the "porous pavement," which allows water to seep through, rather than run of a sidewalk or road surface. Edmumd Thelem and L. Fielding Howe - who recently published a book about the properties, design and installation of porous pavement - say their pavement not only helps control floods, but also cleans and conserves the water draining through it. For all the complex engineering involved in the design and construction, porous pavement is simply pavement with holes. Rainwater or melting snow seeps through the tiny openings at the pavement surface and slowly enters the un-

The water then re-enters nature's elaborate water cycle by settling in underground layers of porous rock.

As a result, road surface pollutants that would ordinarily be rushed to a storm sewer and flushed into a creek are absorbed into the soils where they are atwhose proverbial time has come.

"Fifteen, 20 years ago, conservationists were arguing against the kind of construction that helped cause floods," says Thelen, who developed the porous pavement concept over 10 years ago.

'Studies show that by the year 2000, the public will be clamoring for water conservation," he adds.

With backing from the Environmental Protectiom Agency - which is trying to determine the feasibility of using porous pavement to control urban flooding the paving already has been installed at several locations, including demonstration sites in Philadelphia, Woodlands, Tex., and Tampa, Fla.

The "Ecological Parking Lot" at the University of Delaware in Newark, the oldest porous pavement site, won an award from the American Society of Landscape Architects. Selling the concept, Howe and Thelen say, is no problem. Selling the pavement, however, might be another problem. For one thing, it's a lot more expensive than conventional paving. Porous pavement, they say, is custom designed for the under soil in a given area.

"In computing the cost of construc-

One Killed, Five Hurt In Shooting

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (UPI) - Ruth Russel, caretaker at an apartment complex, warned a Census Bureau official that tenant William B. Robb Jr. didn't care much for census tak-

"I'm going to try it anyway," replied Richard Perez, a regional director with the Census Bureau working on an eniployment survey.

Moments after Perez knocked on the door of Robb's apartment Tuesday, shots rang out and Perez fell, wounded in the and abdomen. Before a police shot Robb dead with a single shot through the shoulder, four other persons had been wounded.

Police investigator Charlie Cox said officers still were collecting evidence to determine what caused Robb, a 60-year-old military retiree, to go on the shooting

'The man apparently just snapped,' said Cox. "The guy just had it in for somebody

After shooting Perez, Robb reportedly turned the .44-caliber revlover he kept in his apartment on a neighbor, 67-year-old Ed Olson, who was outside working on an air conditioner. Olson was shot once in the abdomen. Police said Robb then fired several shots into the back door of a restaurant located across an alley from the apartment complex. One bullet struck waitress Sally Thomas. Bullet fragments also hit the restaurant owner, Virgina Vincent, 49, and shattered glass struck dishwasher

Martin Duran. As policewoman Frances Downall and Sgt. John Schoonmaker arrived on the scene. Robb turned the weapon on them, hitting the front of the policewoman's car with one shot and narrowly missing Schoonmaker, a bullet striking a tree next to where the officer was standing. Schoonmaker returned the fire and Robb was hit in the shoulder. He died at the scene moments later

Miss Thomas was transferred to the Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque where she underwent surgery. She and Perez, who underwent surgery at St. Ann's Hospital in Truth or Consequences, were both listed in fair condition. The other three victims were not seriously injured.

Authorities said Mrs. Russel told them Robb had argued with census takers in the past and resented their "silly ques-

Cox said officers found various types of literature, flammable materials, camouflage clothing, electronic circuits and tools in Robb's apartment.

"He must have written a couple hundred pages on what was wrong with the town, and what things needed to be done," Cox said.

SOUTHWEST AIRLINES - making a quantum leap in service this year with new flights in Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and three other Texas points - is planning to spread its wings even further soon both inside and outside the state.

Southwest plans to file an application in early 1978 to extend its routes to Amarillo and the Beaumont-Orange-Port Arthur area, hopefully in 1979, airline president Lamar Muse says.

And it hopes by 1979 or 1980, he told The Avalanche-Journal, to be operating a subsidiary company, Midway Airway, in the North.

That interstate operation would center on Chicago's close-to-town Midway Airport and serve 14 other markets, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton. Des Moines. Detroit, Kansas City. St. Louis, Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Minneapolis-St.Paul, Omaha and Pittsburgh,

'Fight Crime' Reward Fund

Leaps Ahead THE "FIGHT CRIME NOW" reward fund - announced Wednesday by a group of anonymous citizens who want to help stem the mounting crime rate in Lubbock - has now climbed to $2,880; Robert R. Norris, vice president and the arrest and conviction of persons who commit crimes against society, particularly armed robberies and assault cases. Four citizens who requested anonymity to avoid the possibility of personalities becoming involved contributed $500 each to the fund to originally establish it.

The original $2,000 has been offered for information which leads to the arrest and conviction of one or more of the three persons who, without provocation, attacked, beat and shot 21-year-old Texas Tech student Jim Adair on Dec. 15 at the service station where he worked. The remainder ($880) will remain in reserve. Adair only recently returned to his home in Richardson from a Dallas rehabilitation center, where he had undergone treatment since Jan. 17. Still partially paralyzed and wearing back and leg braces and using crutches or a wheel-chair, he will remain home for about a month, after which a diagnosis will be made on his progress.

Fred Silverman Makes Initial Appearance At NBC Meeting

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) - Fred Silverman made his first appearance before his network's affiliates after a brief period of enforced retirement - he referred to it as four and a half months of the family hour -and made no waves.

Silverman briefly joked with the representatives of the television affiliates who showed up in unprecedented numbers this year to see the new president of NBC - and talked about having rescheduled Sunday brunch out of sheer habit.

Then he launched into a prepared speech, which he followed almost to the letter. He broke no new ground, spoke in generalities of television's obligations to society and NBC's desire to retain responsibility while achieving top ratings.

Before the speech Silverman stopped to mingle with television reporters covering the meeting - in most instances only because it was Silverman's debut. He looked as if he had lost a little weight, seemed relaxed and surprised a Washington television writer by complimenting him on a column. Asked about his new job, he spoke of priorities.

"The main priorities were the fall schedule and to keep John Chancellor in place," Silverman said, expressing satisfaction with most of the programs that were picked without him.

He pointed out that there were two that hadn't measured up — one of those, "Coastocoast," a stewardess cross between "Love Boat" and "Charlie's Angels." has been indefinitely postponed. The other, "Legs," set in Las Vegas, has been toned down to a family drama and its named was changed to "Who's Watching the Kids?

He gave full credit to NBC news president Les Crystal for talking John Chancellor into staying on as news co-anchor with David Brinkley. Silverman said Chancellor would be taking six to eight weeks off to work on special reports, giving him the best of both worlds.

The network made several moves that should please audiences and affiliate stations. It will move up the starting time of 10 weekend basketball games in an attempt to stop overtime games from dribbling overtime into station programming. To help rid the airwaves of non-pro-gram "clutter" it will shorten network promotion time preceeding the local 10 p.m. newscasts by 45 seconds and will urge the National Association of Broadcasters to amend its code limiting primetime nonprogram material to nine minutes, instead of the present nine and a half. Nonprogram material refers to commercials, promotions, etc.

Anyone who was expecting Silverman to come in like gangbusters, pulling new shows out of his sleeve and generally creating mayhem, must have been disap-

But the affiliate representatives seemed happy with the new NBC president and why not - they expect him to make them a lot of money.

Life insurance benefit payments in the United States totaled nearly $10 billion in 1977, up from $9.6 billion a year earlier. according to the American Council of

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: I heard that rock star Rod Stewart got into a fight and had his lip split open. Is this true? - Mindy O., Athens, Ga.

A. It was not in a fight. While performing in San Francisco, Stewart slipped on a flower and smashed his face against a drumstand, poking a nasty hole in his lip. He sang the rest of the song through a blood-soaked towel. Then was rushed to the emergency room at Children's Hospital where he received eight stitches. The next morning, with a stiff upper lip, he flew back to England for his next engagement.

Q. Now that it's official that Barbara Walters and Harry Reasoner won't be working together on the ABC evening news this returning to CBS), isn't that an acknowledgement of bitterness between them? - L. O'Brien, Baltimore.

A. More relief than bitterness. Their uncomfortable feeelings were more professional than personal. "I used to feel as if I had to come in every night and make friends all over again," said Barbara, of the bad vibes she got from Reasoner. "I'd talk and I'd chatter because it was important that he be in a good mood when the cameras came on, because Harry isn't a fake . . . For what I did as an anchor on this program, they could have hired Mary Tyler Moore to read my script." Summing up, Barbara revealed what insiders always suspected: "The old-timers in news can't stand a personality . . . This is why I'm in trouble. This is why Geraldo Rivera's in trouble. This is why Tom Snyder's in trouble. You have to be nice and bland, with a wonderful granite face, absolutely no expression. Well, the business is changing," Miss Walters told Us magazine.

Q: What bouncing beauty said this about herself? "When I see myself on screen, I say, 'Oh shoot, what are they talking about? "- S. McD., Phoenix.

A: That was Farrah Fawcett-Majors. Her full quote was: "When I look in the mirror I see only the flaws. 'Why is my mouth so big? Why are there so many teeth?' I thought Marilyn Monroe was the most beautiful woman in the world and Elizabeth Taylor breathtaking."

nuts with her jealousy, barking and messing up even her own beautiful girl in the world.

bed. Where can I go to find a dog psychiatrist or psychologist? Patricia W., Columbia, Mo.

A: There are several animal psychologists practicing at the moment. One very highly regarded one is Dr. Daniel F. Tortora of Alpine, N.J. He's written a book on his pet subject, "Help! This Animal Is Driving Me Crazy," that might interest you. He reveals his outlook in this comment: "The trouble is usually clashing personalities of owner and pet . . . or the way owners treat their pets as little people, with human emotions and feelings. They're not little people — they're animals!"

Q: Where did Joseph A. Califano, Jr. get the experience to run such an important and massive agency as HEW? And who were his backers? — Mrs. T.N.O., Seattle.

A: Vice President Walter Mondale (a neighbor from back home) and Cyrus Vance, who once employed Califano as a special assistant. Also, among other VIPs: Edward Bennett Williams, boss of the powerful law office in which Califano was a partner. Califano's experience was self-generated. Always known as a humanist with a hard heart but compassion for the

Q: Are the actors' unions doing anything to help members light alcoholism which has made so many of their careers shortlived? — Tracy B., Santa Monica, Calif.

A: Yes. AFTRA, SAG and Actors' Equity have provided a new facility to give some 80,000 performer-members (some of whom have drinking problems) the means to cope with this occupational disease. Stage and screen star Jason Robards, a recovered alcoholic, is hypoing the project. Now starring in the Broadway hit, called "A Touch of the Poet," Robards attended the unveiling of the new National Council's alcoholism facility, a five-story townhouse in Manhattan.

NEW YORK (AP) - "Lifeline." a new show featuring real-life doctors, has been added to NBC's fall prime time lineup, and six shows have been given day or time changes in a major scheduling shakeup announced this week.

NBC dropped from its fall schedule "Coastocoast," a comedy about airline stewardesses, to make room for "Life-

CHICAGO (AP) - For Tom Burns it was like Father's Day 20 times over. Shouts of "Happy Father's Day!" came from Ginna, Molly, Dan, Jon, Marge, Susie, Resa, K.K., Rosemary, Sharon, Marty, Joey, Annie, Laurie, David, Jean, Mike and Liz.

That's right, that's 18. Two of the Burns' 20 children - Kathy and Eileen - live out of state and couldn't make the celebration. "Thanks gang," Burns said after the choral greeting. Burns, 49, supports his family as an electrician and concedes that money can be a problem. "Sometimes we get in a squeeze," he

His 47-year-old wife, Barbara, said she spends about $200 a week on food. The day before, she said, she bought on sale several 100-roll cases of toilet paper. The Burns' kids range in age from 1 to 26. Fifteen of them live at home, sharing the seven bedrooms and four bath-and rescheduled "Legs," a comedy being developed by Garry Marshall, producer of ABC's hit "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" shows.

The new program, with a new format, will be called "Who's Watching the Kids? It will be aired Fridays at 7:30 p.m. CDT, rather than Wednesdays at the same time as had been announced.

The rearrangement was announced barely 10 days after Fred Silverman took over as NBC's president. Silverman, credited by many with engineering ABC's drive to the top in the prime time ratings, was still under contract to ABC when NBC's fall schedule was developed.

Silverman's role in the shakeup was not mentioned in NBC's announcement.

"Lifeline," to be shown Wednesdays at 9 p.m. CDT, will use professional doctors and no scripts "to capture ... the high drama, joy and occasional sorrow which are part of a doctor's life," said Paul Klein, the network's vice president for programs.

"Program contents are dictated by events," he said.

Biologists Fighting To Save Whale

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Marine biologists were fighting to save the life of a four-foot baby pilot whale that beached itself near Vero Beach after its injured mother floundered ashore and died.

Joe Baucom, a marine biologist at Sea World, said Monday that chances of the 80-pound baby's survival were marginal. The baby repeatedly beached itself earlier in the day despite attempts by bystanders to push it back into the ocean.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Like the poor little rich girl, many a young actress is pitied because she is "missing a normal childhood.

Melissa Sue Anderson, who plays Mary Ingalls in "Little House On The Prairie," doesn't agree. She has been starring in the series four years, and at age 15 she doesn't think of herself as being deprived of her childhood.

'Missy," as her friends call her, is blonde, blue-eyed and as pretty as any girl in the high school annual

One can picture Missy as a cheerleader at a pep rally, on the sidelines at a football game, all gussied up for a hop in the school gym, or maybe just having a Coke with the gang at the corner drugstore.

But Melissa is a professional actress and spends all day, every day — except weekends — on a soundstage or on locations dressed in 19th century costumes for her NBC series role

Her companions are technicians, stagehands, makeup and wardrobe specialists. Her mother, as required by California law, is inevitably in view.

Has this highly structured and confining life of hard work denied Melissa the joys of normal teen-age life?

'Not one bit," said Missy. She was having lunch - a green salad with mushrooms because she is watching her weight - on stage 32 at Paramount Studios. Her blonde, attractive mother was at her side

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Wall Street Downturn

Continues By WILLIAM GLASGALL NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market continued to move broadly lower today in fairly active trading on fears over rising interest rates, inflation and the strength of the dollar. The noon Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks was down 3.72 to 826.32, wiping out part of an early 5.11-point deficit. Among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, losers outnumbered gainers by better than a 3-1 margin.

Big Board volume came to 13.69 million shares in the first two hours of trading, against 11.86 million by noon Tuesday.

Indications the Federal Reserve has moved again to push interest rates higher came from the Federal funds market, where banks bargain over short-term loans to each other. The assumed Fed target for Fed funds had been 71/2 percent, but dealers noted the Fed apparently didn't act today to keep the key indicator from inching up to as high as 7%.

In addition, after New York's Chase Manhattan Bank boosted the interest rate on loans to stockbrokers from 81/4 percent to 83/6 percent, some analysts said another 1/4-point boost in the prime rate might be announced Friday, bringing it up from the 84 percent level set last week.

New worries over rising costs were sparked by Barry Bosworth, director of the federal Wage and Price Stability Council, who predicted the cost of living would increase 7 percent in 1978 and said, we are not so far winning our fight against inflation." President Carter's chief inflation-fighter, Robert Strauss, said, however, he sees a slowing in inflation toward the end of the year.

In other developments, the dollar slipped to a new low against the Japanese yen and the Commerce Department said the United States piled up a record $6.95 billion current account deficit in the first quarter.

Gambling stocks continued to show their gains of recent days. Del E. Webb led the NYSE mostactives, up % to 2114. Caesar's World was up % to 271/2, Playboy Enterprises rose 1% to 20%, and Bally rose 1/2 to 371/4. On the American Stock Exchange, an actively traded Resorts International class A gained 21/2 to 67%.

Other NYSE most-actives included Texaco, off 1/8 at 24%, and Litton Industries, down 1/4 to 24. Litton and the Navy settled a billion-dollar dispute over shipbuilding cost-overruns; the agreement will mean a $200 million loss for LTV, whose proposed merger with Lykes was approved by the Justice Department, opened just after noon at 7%, down %. Lykes hadn't opened by midday.

The noon NYSE composite index was off .19 to 54.03. At the Amex, the market value index slipped .54 to 147.68.

Senate Race Rejected By Wallace
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) - Gov.

George C. Wallace announced today that hewill not run for either of the U.S. Senate seats from Alabama in this year's elections, but said he will remain politically active.

Wallace had been expected to qualify for the seat held by the late Sen. James B. Allen. He hinted he wanted that post although he withdrew in May from the race to succeeed retiring Sen. John J. Sparkman. After much consideration I've decided not to run for either U.S. Senate seat," Wallace said in a statement. "I appreciate the many letters, telegrams, telephone calls and personal visits that I have received urging me to reconsider my earlier decision and qualify for the Senate

Wallace, 58, did not say exactly why he decided against running for Allen's seat. "I do not feel that this would be the proper thing for me to do," he said.

"At the same time. I want to say that this does not mean that I am retiring from politics," Wallace said. "I expect to remain politically active for years to come and will continue my interest and concern for those things that affect the people of Alabama and our nation.

Allen's widow, Sen. Maryon Allen, has qualified to seek the remainder of her late husband's term in the Sept. 5 Democratic Primary. Wallace appointed her to the interim post on June 8, following Allen's unexpected death on June 1.

Wallace cannot succeed himself for governor in this year's elections. He said when he withdrew from the race for Sparkman's seat that he did not like the idea of moving to Washington. The partially-paralyzed governor declined several days ago to sign qualification papers for the race although he said then that he might sign them before the

Greenlanders Vote Down Prohibition

GODTHAAB, Greenland (UPI) - The hunters and fishermen of this Arctic Circle island, who admittedly drink more than almost anybody, else, have voted down prohibition, officials said today. But a two-part referendum on temperance Tuesday produced a majority vote in favor of restricting the sale of liquor by rationing Officials said the voting trend was apparent after about three-quarters of the ballots had been counted. Final results of the vote by 22,000 Greenlanders were delayed - complicated by bad weather and the normal difficulty of collecting ballots from the small communities scattered around the periphery of the world's largest island. The sobriety issue arose because Denmark is granting Greenland home rule next year. A number of parliament members and other public figures feel the problem of alcohol intake - 6 gallons per person each year, 21/2 times as much as the average American - must be controlled before the island can handle its own affairs.

In addition to the liquor referendum, authorities gave syphilis tests to all voters who turned out in the Sugartorp constituency.

The referendum results will be used as a guideline when the Danish Parliament and Greenland's governing national council decide the island's liquor policy...

Briscoe Asks SBA For Disaster Aid

AUSTIN (UPI) + Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked the U.S. Small Business Administration to declare Montgomery County and adjacent counties a disaster area because of a June 7 flood.

The governor Tuesday asked the SBA to provide low-interest loans to persons whose homes, personal property, businesses or inventory were lost, damaged or destroyed during the flood.

Briscoe also said he had asked the SBA to declare Brooks, La Salle and Schleicher counties disaster areas eligible to participate in the Disaster Loan

China Places Emphasis On College Scholarships

WUHAN, China (UPI) - Lin Yia-ping recalls wistfully the long march to Shao

She and her teen-age classmates formed a brigade and with red banners streaming in the breeze they spent more than a month on the dusty roads. They slept in the fields at night. They read Marxist dogma around their campfires. Hundreds of other student brigades converged on the birthplace of Mao Tsetung, China's revolutionary hero, to pay

It was Mao who sent word to the youth of his nation of 900 million. They must live the revolutionary experience of their elders. They must denounce those who had veered from the party line. It was they who must, during this Cultural Revolution as it came to be known, be the guinea pigs in educational reform.

Lin, now 25 and an interpreter for foreign visitors in this city of 2.4 million in Hupeh Province, eventually spent three years in a university, and worked two years on a commune before going to work in her present job. She was a Red Guard, one of the millions who disrupted life in China in the Lin, while fondly remembering the Red Guard march, is less enthusiastic about her farm life.

"It was interesting, but it was not my life's work," she says, speaking probably for millions of others her age who were sent to the communes as part of Mao's obsession with instilling revolutionary

In the process, university enrollments dwindled sharply. Professors came under fire. Schooling at all levels suffered Today, with the Red Guard huving been officially abolished. China has begun to rebuild its educational system.

Scholarship has replaced Maoist thought as the ticket to college. Enrollments are on the upswing. Respected scholars are back in their teaching posts. As the Cultural Revolution subsided.

the country was plunged into new turmoil over the successor to the aging and Led by his wife, Chiang Ching, the now famous "Gang of Four" gained increasing power in a radical challenge for power in Peking. They controlled the Communist Party official organ, the People's Daily, and exerted widespread influence in cultural affairs and in education. With the backing of the Army, moderate Hua Kuo-feng, who had been designated first vice chairman by Mao prior to his death, took over and swiftly ordered the "Gang of Four" placed under arrest. Throughout China today, the radicals

Scientists Say First Lifeform Made Of Clay

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Bible says God created man out of clay. Now a group of American space scientists says that life may have, in fact, started in common clay 31/2 billion years ago alongside some ancient ocean. "I have a feeling that (the first living thing) might have been about half clay I'm not sure we would even recognize as life," Dr. James Lawless of NASA's Ames Research Center said Thursday.

Lawless said the metal-laden clavs may have acted as catalysts to help stack life's building blocks - amino acids and nucleotides

The theoretical recipe for life, as developed by scientists over the past two decades, includes a soup base of simple chemicals - hydrogen, water vapor, carbon dioxide, methane gas and ammonia. All are believed to have been present in the Earth's primordial atmosphere. The soup was created when the chemicals fell into the ocean, floating into steaming hot tide pools, where the chemicals were shuffled over and over again in a chain of evaporation out of and condensation into the sea.

As the ages passed, nucleotides somehow linked together into chains of DNA. the substance that carries the genetic code throughout each organism and from generation to generation

In living things, DNA sends a blueprint to the amino acids, telling them how to arrange themselves into specific prote-

Somewhere in the theoretical process, something was able to transfer the genetic code and reproduce itself. That something was very close to life.

The gap in the theory is an inability to explain how the building blocks, spread ever so thinly through the oceans, could be concentrated enough to permit stacking into more complex substances.

Lawless said his group has shown experimentally that clay containing nickel will attract amino acids, while zinc-clay will concentrate nucleotides and "that sets the stage.

75-Year-Old Man Receives Diploma

CUMMING, Ga. (AP) - Samford V. Wagoner, 75, finally got around to collecting his college degree after a 50-year break from the academic world.

Wagoner, a retired hardware store owner, left Ball State University in Muncie. Ind., in 1925 to take a high school teaching job. At the time he was 12 credit hours short of receiving a bachelor's degree in business administration.

When he contacted college officials last fall, they said his experience as an accountant could be substituted for the needed school work and they allowed him to graduate with the class of '78. He received his diploma on May 20.

thing from machine tool manufacture to the training of the country's future doctors, scientists, teachers and technical ex-

In education, they favored sham exams and reduced standard college requirements for graduation to three years. The magazine China Pictorial reported

"They countered proletarian criteria for the selection of college students, opposed cultural tests in enrollment exams, interfered with choosing the most talented, and hampered the building up of a contingent of working-class intellectuals. "This created a big gap in the ranks of qualified scientific and technical person-of China's industry, agriculture, national defense and science and technology."

Last December, the magazine said, two-day examinations were held throughout the country, with students for the first time allowed to list alternative study courses and institutions.

In order to ensure quality, those who do best in the exams are selected, after an all-around appraisal of their moral, intellectual and physical qualifications," the publication said.

May, Hsia Shu-chang, a professor at Chung Shan University — named for Sun Yat-sen, the 1911 revolutionary — told a visiting group of American editors about the "sharp struggle" that went on at the Ten departments now have an enrollment of 3,000, with 1,000 faculty members and teaching assistants. In the early 1970s, the student population had fallen

'Many students have returned," the Harvard-trained Hsia said.

The university, one of 88 in China, provides free housing for its students. They pay for their food and incidentals, with most receiving some form of subsiAt the Szechuan Medical College in Chengtu, Dean Wang Han said enrollment had reached about half of the school's 4,000 capacity. Medical and dental graduation requirements have been returned to five years, after a "gang"-directed reduction to three.

Szechuan's students help treat 2,000 medical outpatients and 600 dental patients each day.

The school is again receiving foreign medical texts, including American journals. Spotted among the 800,000 volumes in the library was a copy of the University of Texas Reports on Biology. Students filled every alcove as well as the main reading floor, buried in anatomical Chinese professors are among the highest paid professionals in the country, with senior staff members earning 300 yuan ($174) a month. Teaching assistants earn 50 yuan ($29). All receive generous subsidies for housing and food.

Political indoctrination still begins early in the Chinese school system.

In Canton, at one of the city's 20 kindergartens, the touring UPI editors were serenaded by a boy-girl duet with "We Miss Chairman Mao Day and Night. We Cherish the Memory of Premier Chou En-lai.

This was followed by another tot's squeaky rendition of "Make Revolution, Follow Chairman Hua Kuo-feng.
