Small percentage of voters approve Lubbock bond issue package

By Pat Patrick Update Staff Writer

ess than 9 per cent of Lubbock's registered voters decided the fate of a $26.4 million bond election that will raise all citizens' water rates about 50 per cent and sewer rates about one-third.

Voters Saturday okayed the six-part bond issue about 3-to-1 on one issue, insuring the city will have enough water in the future, and about 3 to 2 on the other five issues, which included upgrading sewer systems, street improvements and money for new fire stations.

Here is a rundown on each proposition on the ballot:

• No. 1 — 3,962 for, and 1,885 against — $16.7 million for initial development of a third water supply, a pump station in southwest Lubbock and expansion of the water treatment plants' capacity. City staff say $5.2 million of the money will be used to buy land and right-of-way for the new water supply, but that another $85 million will be needed later to

No. 2 — 3,734 for and 2,099 against
$3.3 million to upgrade the sewage treatment plant in southeast Lubbock and add sewage mains to sections of the city that are developing.

No. 3 — 3,709 for and 2,121 against $473,000 for drainage improvements downtown and near 50th Street and Avenue A plus building new storm sewer inlets when state highways are constructed through the city.

No. 4 — 3,672 for and 2,148 against
 — $4.7 million for 13 street improvement projects including addition of traffic signals along 82nd Street and a grade crossing to be built at Quirt Avenue and 34th Street.

No. 5 — 3,761 for and 2,068 against
 — $792,000 for a new fire station at 79th
 Street and Slide Road, the relocation of the central fire station downtown and the addition of a ladder truck at the 4810
 Ouirt Avenue station.

No. 6 — 3,582 for and 2,225 against $310,000 in case northwest or southwest Lubbock needs another fire station within the next five years.

Only 5,857 bothered to vote.

City Mgr. Larry Cunningham said the first bond sale from Saturday's election will come in August when about $2 million will be needed to begin street, fire station and water supply development work

No exact timetable has been set for the water and sewer rate hikes. Tentative plans, however, call for a four-step increase in the water rate which would have citizens paying about 50 per cent more for water by 1980 than they do to-

The plan foresees the current $1.50 sewer service charge rising to $2 a

The city council decided to use the water-sewer rate hikes to finance the bulk of the bond issues because that spreads the cost burden to those who use services, they said.

Large water customers, such as Texas Tech University, would have escaped helping pay for improvements if the whole package had been financed through the tax rate, the council mem-

Some of the projects, however, will be paid for through taxes — but without a tax hike, officials claim. They say that as some current city bonds are paid off, the part of the tax rate going to them will be channeled to bonds from this election. There's good, bad news in school hearing delay

By Jeff South Update Staff Writer

irst, the good news: U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward has ruled out the possibility some students may be forced to change schools this August, by postponing until Nov. 14 a hearing on the Lubbock Independent School District's construction and desegregation disputes.

And the bad news? Because of the continued delay in resolving the issue, millions of dollars worth of new school facilities and improvements approved by voters Feb. 22 still are in suspension — and will be for at least several more months.

As a result, school officials say, the district will be unable to buy nine relocatable classrooms needed to comfortably accommodate enrollment at some campuses this fall.

Also on hold are large additions for Parkway Elementary School, the Arnett-Benson area, Struggs Junior High and other established parts of Lubbock. Furthermore, the hearing delay eliminates prospects that the three new elementary schools proposed to be built south of Loop 289 — if they are approved by Woodward — could be constructed and opened as plannad for the start of the 1978-79 school year.

THE SCHOOL DISTRICT, under a desegregation order imposed by Woodward after a U.S. Justice Department lawsuit in 1970, must get federal court approval on February's $11.9 million capital improvements program before sale of bonds to generate money for the construction can be held.

The Justice Department, saying that the proposed new elementary schools and junior high school in predominantly white residential areas outside Loop 289 would hurt integration, is attempting to block the building program until the district considers alternatives, such as the use of available space in under-enrolled eastside schools, that would promote a greater racial mix.

Also, in objecting to the bond program, the Justice

Also, in objecting to the bond program, the Justice Department has asked that the district's seven-year-old desegreation plan be reviewed and that the district be required to implement a more comprehensive plan to eliminate predominantly minority schools.

The Justice Department had been pushing for a new desegregation plan by the start of the 1977-78 academic town A bossies on the consumer of for Lune 20

Last week, however, school district and federal government attorneys asked Woodward for a continuance in the case, so they would have more time to prepare their arguments. In joining in that request, the Justice Department agreed it would not seek student assignment changes for the coming scholastic year.

Woodward granted that continuance, saying he would hear the case Nov. 14 at 10 a.m. in the U.S. District Courthouse in Lubbock.

THE CHANGE IN HEARING dates removes any uncertainty that had clouded the school system's student assignment plan for this fall. Under the earlier timetable, there was the possibility that, if Woodward were to rule in favor of the Justice Department's motion for greater desegregation efforts, the district would have only a month to prepare for a new desegregation plan by August.

Although the Justice Department has given no specifics, attorneys have said the plan they have in mind would entail some student assignment changes — and to school officials, that has raised the spectre of an increase in busing for racial reasons.

With the continuance, there will be no desegregationrelated surprises between now and August for school budget-makers or teachers and students.

budget-makers or teachers and students.

But the impact will be felt on the continued postponement of a bond sale for the $11.9 million building program. Originally, $6 million in bonds had been slated for auction in May. Then, with the June 20 hearing date, school officials felt that — if Woodward were to approve the construction projects — the bond sale might be held in July or August

BUT NOW, WITH the hearing postponed until Nov. 14, the bond sale probably will be tied up until very late 1977 or sometime in 1978, provided of course that Woodward gives the go-ahead on the projects.

School officials said $225,000 of the proposed May bond issue would have gone for relocatable classrooms for the start of the coming school year. The district now will have to do without those facilities.

"We needed nine more (relocatable classrooms), but now it looks like we're just going to be short that number," School Supt. Ed Irons said. "We'll just be more crowded than we expected."

Bryan, with a split open chin, walked about three blocks to his home where Willis was in the process of chasing the family dog, Tom, who had gotten loose.

After snatching up Tom and putting the canine in the unoccupied house, Willis grabbed the injured boy and took him to his grandmother's house. Bryan was then taken to the family doctor where he received 17 stitches in the chin.

Bryan's mother, Pat Motfitt, said she found a note at her house from Willis which read "Bryan fell on his bike and I took him over to his grandmother's—animal warden."

Rate hikes approved by Texas Tech board

By Candy Sagon Update Staff Write

R esidence hall rates and student service and health fees at Texas Tech University were raised by the school's Board of Regents during their recent meeting on the Tech cam-

The dorm price hike, which Tech president Cecil Mackey called regrettable but "inevitable," was approved by the board to meet the rising costs of salaries and wages, utilities and food.

Rates for residence halls without airconditioning were upped by $30 a year starting this fall, while prices for air-conditioned ones were increased by $40 a Board members also voted to increase student service fees for this fall from $2.10 to $2.17 per credit hour per semester, with a maximum of $26 per student instead of the previous $25.

The increase in fees was necessary to cover the cost of operating the Tech Aquatic Center for a full year, administrators said.

Student health service fees also will go up this fall following board approval of an increase from $9 to $10.50 per semester, with a maximum of $15 per student.

In an effort to ease the campus parking and traffic situation, the regents authorized construction of an access road from Flint to Indiana Avenue, and the construction of a new commuter parking lot west of Indiana

The parking lot will cost $98,577 in allocated funds, and is estimated to have a 300-vehicle capacity. Fred Wehmeyer, vice president for administrative services, said Tech hopes to have the lot completed by fall.

The Flint-to-Indiana access road will cost $78,291 and will run immediately south of the campus Physical Plant.

In other action, the board also authorized the sale of $8 million in student revenue bonds to First National Bank of Dallas to finance agricultural field laboratories in Lubbock County and a student multi-purpose recreation center on

For the 15th consecutive year, First National Bank of Lubbock was chosen by the board as the university's depository bank.

However, board members did not vote to accept the bank's bid without expressing some reservations about the school's receiving only one bid for the contract.

The board voted to accept First National's bid for the next two-year period with a recommendation for study of receiving statewide or multi-bank bids.

Regents also awarded contracts for a sprinkler and landscaping system for Indiana Avenue, general renovation of three areas of the University Center, and renovation of Junction facilities.

Traffic and parking regulations for both the university and the medical school were also approved by the board.

UPDATE

LUBBOCK ON more than one occasion in the past has been hit by various forms of vandalism.

Schools, businesses, autos, parks-all at one time or another have been targets of malicious mischief which cost taxpayers and private citizens thousands of dollars.

Last week, another form of vandalism broke out briefly, and hopefully was just as quickly nipped in the bud.

WHAT POLICE described as group of teenagers had been engaged in not only malicious mischief but some acts which could have resulted in serious injury or even death to both the accused culprits and innocent victims.

The youngsters had been picked up for questioning after a series of mailbox "bombs" had been set off in various parts of the city, often in the early morning hours.

It is not inconceivable that those who fabricated the crude explosive devices could have themselves been injured in the process.

OF FAR MORE importance is that residents minding their own business could have been seriously injured or killed.

Had such a tragedy happened, it may not have occurred to those who perpetrated the acts-nor their parents-but both could have been held not only criminally responsible but liable in a civil damage action.

Not to mention the physical suffering involved ...

IT MAY SEEM "old hat" and corny to some here, and elsewhere, to take such a view of what some might term an innocent teenage prank. But, all too often adults who complain of how hoodlums and lawbreakers "get away with mur-

It must have occurred to any number of persons, including the parents of some of those involved in the incidents just mentioned, that their children could have found a safer and more satisfying form of entertainment.

It certainly has raised our eyebrows to question if those selfsame parents wonder where their teenages are at late-night hours-and what they might be doing to entertain themselves.

WITHOUT BEING "preachy" about the whole thing, we feel that all citizens of a city have a right to expect all others to live and let live.

In peace and safety... We also feel that far too many parents today take the "copout" attitude that they are either too busy to supervise their offsprings' out-of-the-home activities. Far too many parents, in an effort to pursue their own personal desires and "not be bothered," or to "see that my son and/or daughter doesn't have to go through what I did as a kid," lay the groundwork for big problems later on.

AS FOR THE youngsters involved and any who might contemplate acts which could cause personal injury or bring property damage to others, we also make an appeal...

We long have praised the young men and women of Lubbock and the South Plains for their levelheaded approach to life, its problems and its fun times. Students of Lubbock and area public schools and those at Texas Tech deserve much credit for keeping their feet on the ground and for the most part respecting the rights of others.

We believe that the vast majority of Lubbock's young people subscribe to this as a sensible approach to life. In any event, it is far better than the grave dangers inherent in choosing the other

Satyrs

QUESTION: What are satyrs?

ANSWER: In Greek mythology, satyrs were the gods or spirits of the woods and hills. Grotesque in appearance, they were thought to be part human and part goat or horse. In art they are shown as men with pointed ears, hooves and short tails. Often satyrs were depicted as having goat's or horse's legs. Their counterparts in Roman mythology were the fauns.

The satyrs were believed to have minor powers of fertility. They were animallike in desires and behavior. Young satyrs were mischievious, handsome and extremely lustful. The older ones were ugly and lazy. Being fond of dancing, drinking wine and chasing after maidens and nymphs, the satyrs made up the cults of the gods Dionysus and Pan.

Dionysus, the god of wine and fertility, counted them among his follows and attendants because of their association with fertility. Pan, the god of flocks, forests and wildlife, himself looked like a satyr. Pan also greatly enjoyed chasing

The mass murderer—no longer a rarity

By Jay Robert Nash

Within human memory the mass murderer has leaped from the shadows of his own madness to slaughter his fellow beings on a grand scale. These horrendous incidents of the past were nevertheless isolated events producing authentic shock in a public that thought of such mass killings as nightmare eruptions of the medieval era, monstrous acts far distant from the realm of mod-

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

It is now widely recognized that the current system of criminal sentencing is not working.

Mass murderers like Charles Manson and Richard Speck are eligible for parole, and other dangerous offenders are going unpunished. Glaring injustices in the sentences of those who are punished have led to numerous and great injus-

What I have proposed in the past, and what several of my colleagues in the Senate are now proposing, is that we should have fixed, specific sentences written into the law for specific crimes.

As things now stand, federal judges sentence convicted criminals to an indeterminate number of years in prison, and then leave it up to the parole board to decide how long any individual should actually serve.

For example, judges are allowed to set prison terms for bank robbery at anything from zero years to 20 years under current federal law. And, at the discretion of the parole board, often only onethird of the sentence is ever served.

It is finally becoming widely accepted that our judicial system lacks standards and guidelines. The disparities in the sentences imposed under the present system have forced us to recognize that the use of indetermine sentencing is neither fair nor effective. The concept of trying to rehabilitate by promises of early parole has been an abysmal failure.

Recently the "presumptive" sentence approach which I have long advocated has begun to win broad support among law enforcement officials and in legal Legislation to revise and consolidate the laws - the Criminal Code Reform Act of 1977 - has been introduced by several members of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

It includes a provision similar to one I proposed a year ago which would replace the "indeterminate" sentencing system now used by federal courts with a system of "presumptive" sentencing. This approach sets a middle or "presumptive" sentence to create a uniform standard of justice for all.

For example, a four-year presumptive sentence might be set for first offense bank robbery, with yirtually no eligibility for parole. The presumptive sentences would then increase sharply for repeat Too often too many officials in the past have been hesitant to even face the issue of criminal justice squarely, preferring to speak in fashionable terms of rehabilitation" rather than punishment." There has been too much concern for criminals and too little thought for victims of crimes What it all boils down to is that punishment for the criminal offender in this country must once again be known to be swift and to be sure.

Rep. Froy Salinas

This week several bills were passed and sent to the governor for his signa-

One of the most important pieces of legislation this session as far as Lubbock is concerned is an enabling act for Texas teaching hospitals. Under this bill, the Texas Coordinating Board will be empowered to contract with hospitals which provide teaching services for certain Texas medical schools (including Texas Tech) to defray the costs they incurr in instructing medical students. The statute is phrased very broadly, even to include start up cost of Texas Tech medical school and teaching hospital.

This bill could mean tremendous savings for Lubbock taxpayers. The bill envisions reasonable reductions in the financial obligations of the city or county in which the hospital is located but if the reductions are too extreme the Coordinating Board has the power to stop compensating the hospital totally.

I was very happy to see this legislation pass because of the importance of it to Lubbock and also to myself as a co-sponser of the bill in the House.

Another bill I co-sponsored in the House passed overwhelmingly and is now on its way to the governor's office for his signature. The bill will prohibit insurance companies from using traffic citations given for speeds between 55 and 70 MPH zones, for the purpose of charging higher premium rates.

Insurance companies have taken advantage of the lowered speed limits to increase their profits at the expense of average drivers all over the state. Driving over 55 MPH but under 70 MPH does not significantly increase the risk faced by an insurance company in covering a driver. Since the higher premium is not needed to cover the risk the company is able to pocket the difference. This bill will end that practice and give a break to the pocketbooks of many Texas

There are only three people I have encountered in the field of country music who were born in Gainesville, Tex : Gene Austin (a well known singer of the 1920s and 30s, who is also the godfather of country star David Houston), myself and a red-bearded stranger named Red Steagall.

I call him a "stranger," because although he has had several hit singles on ABC/DOT records, and in spite of his appearances on nationally-syndicated country music shows, his name is not a household word among many country music fans east of the Mississippi.

IT'S A DIFFERENT story in the western part of the nation. Steagall graduated from West Texas State University with a degree in animal husbandry and agronomy. After graduation, he worked in agriculture chemistry for five years before realizing he would be happier in the music industry.

He moved to California and started a publishing company, where he still maintains an active partnership. His

Tickets remain for Hope show at civic center

The Bob Hope Show at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center is growing ever closer. Showtime is 8 p.m. Friday and tickets are still on sale at the civic center box office and Furr's Family Center.

With each passing day, new guest stars are announced. First there was the Texas Tech Jazz Ensemble. Then came the addition of lovely California singer Patrician Price, a woman whose primary goal seems to lean toward the acting field as she is a prime contender for the opening on "Charley's Angels." (That's if Farrah doesn't change her mind and decided to stick with the show.

This week it was announced that Carmen McCollum, the current Miss Texas, would also make an appearance with Hope. Preliminary scripts have allotted her time to play the saxaphone for the Lubbock crowd. And of course there will be plenty of humor offered by Hope himself, the 73 year old comedian (he'll be 74 next Sunday) whose hame has become an entertainment legend. He has been hailed by critics and fans as "Mr. Entertainment," "Mr. Humanitarian," "The King Of Comedy" and Uncle Sam Without Whiskers.

own recording career took with a honkytonk ballad called "Party Dolls and Wine.

In 1975, Steagall put together his own touring band called "The Coleman County Cowboys." Within a relatively short time, the band - playing many rodeos and state fairs - gained a good regional reputation.

THE WORD etiquette covers much more than manners Rules of living in our society tend to make us more comfortable, but it is also true that as we grow in years, we are often expected to meet more demanding social situations Economic changes, too, bring about social changes. And mannerly, considerate conduct is always an asset. It is our hope that this column will answer all the major questions of etiquette

as well as the minor ones

If you have questions about etiquette, write to Aunt Annie, in care of Update, Box 491, Lubbock, Tex., 79408. Questions of general interest will also appear in future columns, along with personal answers to inquiries about any social pro-oudini, the escape artist who boasted he could break out of any jail within an hour's time, once was invited to test his skills in a British hoosegow. Placed in a cell, the master pulled from his clothing a piece of wire the guards had overlooked, and started trying to pick the lock.

Thirty minutes passed. Forty-five minutes. An hour. Two hours. Then three hours. Houdini, wringing with perspiration, was beaten; his hand could not detect the tiny latches that make a lock lock. Exhausted, Houdini collapsed against the door of the cell - and it swung open freely.

The point, of course, is that the door never was locked - except in Houdini's mind. And Ray Fulenwider, minister of education for the Broadway Church of Christ, says there's a message in that story for the 1977 graduates of

'As you leave this school," he told the departing students and guests at Ballenger graduation ceremonies, "don't have the door of your mind locked to opportunities. Develop to your full potential. Reach out and find a job - find that thing to do that will make you happy in life.' Fulenwider's address had a special meaning for Ballenger, the Lubbock Independent School District's oft-praised program for trainable mentally retarded students. Their handicaps often can make the doors of opportunity seemed closed - but Fulenwider urged the graduates never to assume the doors are

He told the students to help build a better world - starting first with helping themselves, their families and their community

'And," Fulenwider said, "always have something to hope for

He gave each graduate a $1 bill and asked the students to look at it closely especially at the half-finished pyramid on the left end of the "In God We Trust" side of the dollar.

There's a reason that pyramid was left unfinished, Fulenwider said.

'Our forefathers said they wanted each new group, each generation that comes along, to help complete the picture. This country is not finished, this community is not finished. You can help make this a better world," he told

Ballenger principal Tommy Herring, who was presented a watch at the graduation rites for his work with students, said the graduation class was one of the largest in the three-decade history of the Ballenger program. He said most of the graduates will be applying the job skills they learned at Ballenger as employes at sheltered workshops operated by Goodwill Industries and the Lubbock Learning Resource Center.

All of the 1977 graduates had reached the age of 21 - the age at which they are placed out of the school district program. Herring said.

Some of the students had been in the Ballenger program since their elementary school years, he added.

ustom furniture builder David Garrison has been taking his craft to the classroom to explain his special design of "Texas Country Furniture," built to suit the owner's needs. Among the articles he showed students in art and shop classes in Lubbock public high schools were rocking chairs with seats woven of cowhide strips. For a family expecting to move, Garrison fashioned a table held together by pegs making it easy to disassemble He has sold dozens of wooden rolling pins and makes large walnut spice racks which measure 3 feet by 2 feet. A special project he constructed was a high-back bench. The back folded down to become a table and the bench seat housed storage room. Garrison, who is from Utopia, salvages old heart pine lumber from his own land and neighboring acres and often uses a customer's own trees for building the custom furniture He has studied architecture at Texas A&M University and apprenticed under an architect whose practice was largely the restoration of historic buildings. From that training, Garrison has been able to restore old doors to authenticity and he built a calcon double har faccimile for a laurer

Garrison told the students he made a set of eight chairs to match a table and gave them a carved look by turning the wood on a lathe.

Dupre students learn distances with aid of enormous U.S. map

upre Elementary students going on summer vacation understand a little better the physical proximity of their travels from home due to an enormal limited States mous United States map painted on the playground blacktop. The 78foot by 48-foot map, running almost the length of the basketball court beside it, was painted on last month by the Lubbock High industrial arts class.

Dupre principal Kay Knight who had seen such a map in another town and "wanted one for my students" said the map helps youngsters grasp the concept of the nation's physical presence.

Location of states in relation to other states, can be taught more successfully by standing or walking across the playground map than in asking students to accept distances between points on a paper map, she said.

The map is large enough for students to move from state to state and be able to put map skills learned indoors to use outdoors," Mrs. Knight said. Identification of states and their capitals is encouraged by the larger map and the names of states have to be committed to memory "just like multiplication facts" to get the best use of the map, Mrs. Knight said

In addition to teaching the concept of states in the United States, the blown up map also assists in explaining further divisions of government by city and county and world divisions by countries and continents.

"So many of the students have not really traveled and they just don't realize how places they have heard about exist in relation to other places," the

Besides its use for the social studies classes, Mrs. Knight said other adaptations have included physical education classes which choose a favorite state on which to do their exercises.

Lubbock High drafting students were responsible for the painting and drawing map detail, Mrs. Knight said. She had contacted David Hill, industrial arts consultant for the Lubobock Independent School District, about her idea Hift referred her to LHS drafting teacher George Gallemore.

Gallemore said the project was an unusual one for his students who are accustomed to working with much smaller measurements. A scale model was drawn on a grid of one-inch squares and later transferred to identical one-foot large grid squares made with chalk on the playground hard surface.

'It took us a full day, including putting on the grid lines" to paint the map which was put on with weather durable yellow highway paint, Gallemore said About nine students worked on the project one Saturday last month.

This week Lubbock High drafting students walked to Dupre, a block away, to dot on the state capitals with black spray paint. Stars were placed at the sites of the nation's capital, Washington, D.C., and at Lubbock

The map has become so popular with the youngsters, some of them come outside of school hours to ride their bicycles across the country in "Easy Rider" fashion.

Stephen F. Austin would blush with pride about his colony...

exas history buffs, take note. Evans Junior High School students have assembled a collection of memorabilia - from replicas of the El Paso Inn and the Nacodoches town square to Indian artifacts and paper mache cowboys - that would make Stephen F. Austin blush with pride about his colony.

The several hundred projects, on display in the school library, were built by seventh-grade social studies students. The Evans junior historian chapter was so impressed with the works that the club sponsored a fair to display the pro-

Among the most striking pieces is a model of a typical pioneer house, con structed by Greg Kelly. Greg used wood chips, mortar and pebbles to build an accurate miniature of an 1800s rustic home, complete with furnishings, chim-

When settlers moved West or anywhere, they usually were poor," Greg explained. "When they settled down, they had few luxuries or none at all. One thing about their house: it was tough, but when it rained, it wasn't tough Usually, the family had pots and pans strung out all over the place

"This pioneer house consists of a bed, two fireplaces, a table, three chairs, a well and a window - and one thing considered as a luxury, the porch swing."

A few students built models of turn-of-the-century general stores, showing the barrels of staples, bolts of fabric and other items they carried when an entire town relied on a single shopkeeper for the things families could not provide

The Evans display includes all kinds of windmills - including a working model by Robert Irwin, complete with a water barrel, drinking dipper and

Ann Smith made replicas of Indian hide paintings, drawings on rocks and carvings in stone. "The Kiowa Indians kept their tribal history painted on hides," she said. "The history is recorded in a spiral, starting in the lower right hand corner and ending in the middle

Using material that resembles animal hide. Ann pieced together a Kiowa tale of the seasons, employing the same symbols the Indians used - with winter represented by a brown bar, and summer by a medicine lodge or house

Karla Wilson spent her project time making dolls - in precisely the same fashion pioneer children did. These little handmade dolls show the history of Texas because this is the way girls during the early statehood of Texas had to make their own dolls. The dolls are made from socks, the dresses from old cloth, the lace from an old petticoat, and the ribbon from an old dress," Karla explained. The three dolls are displayed in a cigar box, just as they were in pioneer homes in the 1800s.

Some students constructed models of the Alamo, handmade replicas of the various flags that have flown over the state, displays of Indian villages, exhibits of natural resources and industrial centers in Texas, and miniatures of oil wells

Lisa Craig assembled a model of the Nacodoches town square - with replicas of the Golden Nugget Saloon, Hotel Grand, general story, jail and livery. Dorothy Hall, one of the social studies teachers involved in the project, said students learned much from the assignment - and many had an opportunity to use skills they learned in other classes, such as industrial arts The other teachers Were Connie Turrentine and Noelia Garza. They also are the sponsors for the junior historian club at Evans.

Twirling tot demonstrates talent

By Kay Bell Update Staff Writer

She looks just like any other 6-year-old - short blond hair framing a round face with shining brown eyes. And when she suddenly smiles, the dimples appear. She sits waiting for the sky to clear so she can go swimming.

But Heather Robertson is not just another 6-year-old. Put a baton in her small hands and she'll quickly prove she's different - with great skill. During the last three years she's won 65 trophies at twirling contests across the United States.

That's quite a feat for a little girl who said she started twirling because "it was just something to do.'

And June 3-5 Heather will be exhibiting her twirling talent once again when she competes in the Tiny Tot age division of the state twirling contest at the Coronado High School gym.

She is the youngest Lubbock twirler entered in the contest. To Heather, that weekend contest won't be any different from the many others in which she's competed. In fact, most contests hold no special thrill for her

"Contests are fun," she said, glancing over her shoulder at the trophy-filled shelves, "but I really liked being a sweetheart."

Heather was a runner-up sweetheart at last year's South Plains Fair.

"I got to ride in the parade and got a trophy and roses," Heather said with a wide smile framed by dimples.

"Did I get a crown?" she asked. The question was addressed to her mother, Glenda Robertson.

When the answer "no" came back she smiled again. "Oh, yeah," she said. "I'm glad. I can't stand to wear those because it hurts when she (the presenter) puts it on your head.'

But even if she has to suffer through a crown presentation, Heather likes to win twirling contests and works hard to do just that. Each summer she attends a twirling camp at Lake Brownwood.

"It's (the camp) a little bit of fun," she said, "because you get to go swimming." But there are some aspects of camp she doesn't enjoy a bit.

"One thing I really don't like," she said seriously, "are the salt pills you got to chew." A grimace crossed her small

The pills taste terrible, she said, but they serve a purpose.

"If you don't take 'em you get sick. If you do, you don't get sick," she said in a resigned, matter-of-fact way.

AFTER THE CAMP there is practice at home. Lots of it. Every day.

"Well, not exactly . . . ," she said. Her voice trailed off and she shot a glance at her mother. A glance with which all mothers of 6-year-olds are familiar. It seemed to say "I've been putting something over on you, Mom.'

"Sometimes," she said, "I sneak into my room after school and play and Maxine (her grandmother) won't even notice." She giggled before continuing.

"Then Mother comes home from work and asks me if I practiced." Another giggle and another glance at her mother followed.

She wouldn't comment on what she told her mother on such occasions.

But despite the temptation to play, Heather does practice quite a bit. And she must, for the tricks she does take a lot of practice, even for an older twirler.

"Vicki (her twirling teacher) makes my routines really hard," she said.

One of the more difficult tricks she's learned so far is also her favorite, she said. It's called the toss-turn.

'Well, you toss it (the baton) first," she said, concentrating on the moves, "and then you turn around and catch it.

"But I got the idea to toss and turn at the same time." She smiled at her inventiveness and said when done this way, the baton doesn't have to be thrown as high as usual.

"But my teacher told me to toss first, then turn. Heather said she finally learned the trick by practicing with a foam-rubber ball instead of her baton. "I wasn't afraid of the ball hitting me on the head," she said, "because it's

AND THE MOST difficult trick for

She hasn't learned it vet. "I haven't started on the two-turn."

she said. "but I think that'll be the hard-'First of all, I thought you just threw the baton up and turned and caught it then threw it up and turned and caught it again. 'Then I found out you throw it up and turn two times and then catch it." But since she's only six, Heather will have a long time to work on the two-turn. And once she's mastered that trick, what then? While she's not sure how much longer she'll twirl, Heather is certain of one thing. She doesn't want to be a majorette leading a band.

Heather said being a majorette doesn't look the least bit fun to her because there are too many people watching. Even though she's gone through countless contests, she said spectators still scare her.

THAT ASPECT OF the state contest is the only thing worrying her. In the contest she'll compete in three areas familiar to her: solo, modeling and T-strut. But even though the competition areas are familiar, the pressure is still there. "On solo," she said, "it (people watching) really gets me because I get nerv-

The modeling and T-strut competitions aren't as frightening, though.

"You wear a party dress and dress shoes and socks," she said, "and have and interview with the judge in the mod-

"And T-strut is just like modeling, only you twirl and walk along this T-shaped

But, Heather said, she is more excited about that than scared of the upcoming state contest. Part of the excitement stems from the fact that the winners of the four age divisions in the pageant advance to higher levels of competition. The Tiny Tot winner, whose title will be Miss Majorette of Texas, will go to

Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. to vie for the Miss Majorette Of America Sitting on the edge of her chair with her hands clasped in her lap, Heather summed-up the state pageant with the excitement only a 6-year-old can have. "I can't wait until state," she said, with a huge grin covering her face, "because I'll get to be Miss Majorette of Texas, Maybe.

It was a sentence any criminal would love - only four days in Huntsville. And for Lubbock Christian College last week, it was a stay the Chaparrals had been looking forward to for five years.

"It" was the Area II (NAIA) baseball tournament. Three times in the previous four years LCC had reached this tournament, but had gained the championship round only once, losing to Sam Houston State in the 1974 tournament in Phoenix.

It was different this time, however, as the Chaparral "Kiddie Korps" refused to fold, despite the presence of the nation's No. 6 (Sam Houston) and No. 16 (Jackson State) teams and the 85-degree, 85 per cent humidity of Walker County in the summertime.

LCC's first victim in the double elimination meet was Southern Utah, the meet's Cinderella team that had reached the area tournament despite posting a 13-30 mark.

Kyle Johnson suffered only one bad in ning, needing last-out help from Randy Vinson, freshmen Tim Leslie ripped a solo homer, his 13th of the year, and Steve Brigante got a two-run shot, his fourth, as the Chaps posted a 4-2 verdict.

Then against Jackson State, Daniel Tunchez got a double-play ball in the first when the bases loaded, no outs and a run in, and sailed through the final eight frames, allowing only a harmless lead-off homer to Tiger shortstop Joe Jones in the eighth inning

Richard Bowles had a two-run single and Leslie drove in the other two runs with an infield hit and a ground out as the Chaps again posted a 4-2 victory. Then against Sam Houston State in the

Baseball season has been better keglers' corner

By Tom Halliburton Update Sports Staff

Lubbock's high schools have definitely enjoyed better baseball seasons in recent years than the 1977 season. But there were a few bright spots. Monterey returned to the District 4-AAAA throne room with a devastating 16-0 league record and a 29-3 regular-season slate. The Plainsmen compiled a 20game winning streak until Amarillo High defeated them twice in the bidistrict

Season highlight

Monterey coach Bobby Moegle reached the 500-mark in career coaching at the regular high school baseball season's end. He moved into the second spot on the all-time career victory list for Texas high school baseball coaches. His MHS team finished 30-5 but bowed to Amarillo High in the bidistrict playoffs.

games. However, LHS suffered fourgame losing streaks on two occasions during district play.

Perhaps the season's highlight came May 3 when 18-year veteran coach Bobby Moegle of Monterey became the first coach in West Texas to compile 500 career coaching victories. The Plainsmen defeated Plainview 6-4 in the first game of a doubleheader when Moegle reached the 500 mark. The Monterey mentor ranks second in the state for all-time prep baseball wins, trailing Houston Reagan's Le Roy Ashmore with 519. Ashmore resigned in 1969 after 21 seasons because of heart troubles.

'It seems like time has really crept up on me. It doesn't seem like that long ago when I started but it's a lot easier now because of the winning tradition and carryover value. When I started coaching here, we had a rule that we stopped when the sun went down but we accomplish much more in a shorter time than we used to," Moegle said.

The 1977 season began as a rebuilding year for all three teams but the Plains men sported an outstanding junior class led by pitcher Ron Reeves, the all-city team's player of the year. Other juniors Phil Bruedigam, Jeff Harp, Mike Wooten and Dana Rieger received berths on the team from MHS as well as senior catcher Archie Crim. Coronado placed Johnson on the honors list along with Lee Brock, Tommy Inzer and sophomore of the year Jim Wells. LHS members were outfielders Ernest Day and Mario Montova

While previous district seasons were divided into halves, the 1977 season hinged on one 16-game race. By defeating its closest challenger, Coronado, four times in the first 10 league games, Monterey enjoyed a comfortable four-game loop cushion with six games to play.

I think that hurt us at Lubbock High, too," said Plumlee, who replaced the disabled Vince Buffamonte for one season at the LHS helm.

When the Westerners earned the league's playoff spot in 1976, Buffamonte's team captured the first-half championship and Moegle's Montereys won the second-half title. Then LHS defeated MHS in a one-game playoff 4-2.

"When we got so far behind this year, we didn't have much to look forward to at the end of the season. While that doesn't happen when the league play is divided in half," Plumlee said.

On the junior varsity level, Lubbock High (12-2) edged Coronado 5-4 for the city championship behind the pitching of sophomore righthander David Rush (7-

"When all the repairs have been made, Oakwood will be more like a country club image. Now, I don't want to sound like we're just going after that type image, but it will give us a more professional atmosphere, and that's what we're after.' Bennett went on to explain that "this building is 18 years old and has been remodeled only once previously. All the machines in here are 18 years old and the manufactures no longer are making parts for them, so our maintainence expenses have gone up drastically in the past few years.

We're going to be putting in the AMF model 82-70, which is the latest in solid state machines. They just became available May I and will be a more proficient machine and more economical, plus they will be a lot smaller and more compact. They'll be a lot quieter, and people won't notice the loud crash of pins as before. The manufacturer estimates it will take about 10 days just to replace the old machines with these.

RENNETT SAID Oakwood will be completely remodeled inside and out. We're going to change all our colors. install new carpet, re-do the parking lot and these sort of things. About the only thing that will remain the same will be the masking units in front of the machines and the bowlers' pit area, which will retain the current-score tables, and the bowlers' sitting areas.

Bennett indicated the decision for this massive project was made about the first of the year and the contract on the new machines was signed Feb. 1. "The only thing about all this," said Bennett, who declined to give a dollar estimate on the improvements, "is that we'll have to raise our rates from 75 to 90 cents per game." Bennett also said he has 10 storage units rented to hold all permanent items that will be taken up during the revamping.

STAR TREK: So the Joan Crawford story ends. While the Pepsico company gives out statements about "retirement" two years ago and claims she was still on their board and "on retainer for appearances," friends of the late actress say her "retirement" was forced upon her and that though she might technically have been listed on the board, she was not kept on the payroll. Also, her secretary was taken away from her, along with her WATS line.

About a year ago, an article on Pepsico Chairman Donald M. Kendall by Robert Scheer in Esquire simply devastated Miss Crawford. The piece was a vivid putdown of the actress and included the line about Mr. Kendall - "he took an awful lot of crap from Joan Crawford.

New building dedicated at Boys' Ranch

A lunch and informal dedication was held last week at Texas Boys Ranch for its newly-constructed $27,000 vocational building

The building will house vocational training sessions for the 20 boys at the ranch.

Material, labor and financing for the structure were credited to Caprock American Business Club, Broadview Steel Co., Sky High Steel Rectors Co., Lubbock Antique Car Club, Lubbock Home Builders' Association and the Nunn and Lubbock electric companies.

David Maley, ranch administrator, said the new facility would enable the facility to accommodate more boys. He said there are also plans to share the gift with other organizations such as the Children's Home of Lubbbock and the Roosevelt School District.

Speaking to ABC members at the dedication. Maley said juveniles will now be able to work in areas such as car mechanics or various building trades.

Maley, who along with other ranch staff members expressed his appreciation for the contributions, said a request for a $60,000 grant to the South Plains Association of Governments had been made to assure a continuance of the program and to provide for a full-time vocational instructor at the ranch.

ABC contributed about $12,000 to the project, according to Maley, and a major portion of the steel used in the construction was supplied by Broadview Steel.

Paul Bush, a member of the ranch's board of directors and a ABC member. said a major portion of the $12,000 gift by ABC was made possible from ticket sales for a club-sponsored invitational basketball tournament held each Christmas

The vocational building is presently vacant. Maley said "the boys think we built them a skating rink." but tools and other equipment are expected to be contribut-

May 25, 1957: TEN HURT, DAMAGE OVER $1 MILLION. Sixty Olton homes were leveled by a tornado while the twister severely destroyed an Olton grain bin and school. Another twister destroyed five Tahoka homes and damaged 70 other structures. An Oklahoma tornado touching ground six miles southwest of Lawton killed four persons and left one missing.

In other news: A Reese AFB pilot was able to save his life but lost his jet after battling a cloud hovering over the South Plains which contained severe thunderstorm activity.
