City fiesta to celebrate independence of Mexico

By Esther Langeria
Update Staff Writer

The colorful local celebration of Mexican Independence Day, "The 16th of September," kicks off today with food booths, games and entertainment in Guadalupe and Rodgers Parks.

Lubbock's two fiesta committees, the Comité Civico Mexicano and the Fiesta Patria Folklorica committee, have coordinated a three-day celebration of "El diez y seis de Septiembre" in the two parks.

Guadalupe's activities get underway today at 5 p.m. with a disco dance, featuring music provided by the "El Padrino" club.

Tonight's entertainment in Guadalupe will feature the "Mariachi Los Palermos" of Juarez, along with Mexican singer Salvador Huerta at 7 p.m. "Los Nortenos de Cipriano Aguilar" and "El Hijo de Su y su Conjunto," will provide dance music until midnight.

Rodgers' festivities will open today with an address by State Rep. Froy Salinas at 6 p.m. Following Salinas' talk, Father Curtis Hallmann, pastor of Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church, will celebrate a Mass.

OTHER ACTIVITIES INCLUDE a menudo contest at 7 p.m., a children's puppet show at 8 p.m. and the Ballet Infantil of Shallowater.

Thursday's events at Rodgers include a performance by the Raza Unida Party dancers at 7 p.m. They will be followed by the Ballet Infantil.

Highlighting Thursday's celebration at Rodgers will be the Adelita contest at 8 p.m. The Adelita, symbol of the women who fought in the Mexican Revolution, is the "queen" of the Rodgers festivities.

A young woman is chosen Adelita on the basis of her talent, personality and costume.

At Guadalupe, Thursday's entertainment will begin at 7 p.m. with Mexican songs performed by Huerta, Armando Flores and Manuel Rodriguez. The vocalists will be accompanied by "Mariachi Los Palermos."

THE EVENING'S FESTIVITIES continue with "El Ballet Folklorico de Guadalupe," speeches concerning the independence of Mexico and the presentation of the flags.

At 9:30 p.m., the Reyna (queen) of the Guadalupe fiesta will be crowned.

The "grito de independencia" (cry for independence) is slated at both parks late Thursday. The "grito" will be given by Luis Enrique Castresana at Guadalupe at 11 p.m. and by Bidal Aguero at Rodgers at 11:30 p.m.

Music by Blas Jasso y su Conjunto Gardenia will conclude the night's festivities at Guadalupe.

Friday's merrymaking begins with a parade at 2 p.m. which will wind its way down Broadway towards Guadalupe Park. Spanish radio station KLFB will be doing a remote broadcast of the parade.

At Guadalupe, Friday night's activities will include more performances by "El Ballet de Guadalupe," "Mariachi Los Palermos," Flores, Rodriguez and "Blas Jasso y su Conjunto Gardenia."

At Rodgers, Friday's festivities will be a performance by the Guadalupe dancers at 7 p.m. and a local talent show at 8:30 p.m.

A dance, with music provided by "Nuestra Tequila," will conclude each night's activities at Rodgers.

Rodgers Park is located at 3200 Amherst Ave. and Guadalupe Park is situated at 102 Ave. P.

Puppet fun

Nephthali DeLeon thrills local youngsters with a preview of the puppet show, "El Tesoro de Pancho Villa" (The Treasure of Pancho Villa). The show, written by DeLeon, will be presented at 8 p.m. today as part of the three-day Mexican Independence Day festi-ties at Rodgers Park. The youngsters are, from left, Marisa Quirino, Xochitl Quirino, Aide DeLeon, Miguel Rangel and Sheila Chavez. Other fiesta activities are also scheduled at Guadalupe Park.

First run of agribusiness exposition proves successful

By Roy Westbrook
Update Business Editor

Farmers from throughout the area received an update in agriculture technology Sept. 8-10 during the first annual High Plains Agribusiness Exposition at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Industry exhibitors filled every available space in the exhibition hall plus the pedestrian mall areas of the center. Larger equipment displays were set up in parking areas adjacent to the building.

The exposition was highlighted by an educational symposium featuring top speakers on water and energy matters.

Danny J. Cunyus, director of the show, said the event drew an estimated 7,000 qualified buyers in addition to curiosity seekers.

Farm supplies on display were worth an estimated $1.5 to $2 million, and ranged from hardware and implements to chemicals and seeds.

Cunyus said Industry Showcase, Inc., sponsor of the exhibition, feels the show was successful, and for a first run stacked up very well with other shows throughout the nation.

Some 170 exhibitors comprised the Lubbock event, compared to 400 in the Farm Progress Show of the Midwest, which Cunyus said is now in its 25th year. That show attracts some 300,000 visitors.

Cunyus said dealers reported selling more equipment at Lubbock in three days than in any other show held recently in the South.

During a seminar on energy held in conjunction with the exposition, farmers and students heard an address by Richard Kenyon, market manager of the Fertilizer Division, Phillips Chemical Co.

Kenyon told the group that the energy problem is real—"and it is insidious." He noted that President Carter's energy proposals—"all 113 of them—have made news."

Kenyon continued, "They are extremely complex, and somewhat optimistic."

He pointed out that almost one-half of our oil supplies are being imported at high prices set by OPEC.

"Phillips forecasts that oil and gas will continue to be the cornerstone of energy for the foreseeable future," Kenyon said. "Much of the oil we need in the next few years will have to be imported," he pointed out.

The Phillips executive expects rapid growth in the usage of coal, perhaps "by as much as 50 per cent by 1985." He said nuclear power could quadruple by 1985.

"Phillips agrees with the CIA that the next 25 years may bring strife as nations compete for energy," he said.

Kenyon said, however, "There's nothing scarce about it (energy)—it's a market system. When people talk about running out of oil, they mean running out of cheap oil."

Sen. Kent Hance addressed a Water Development Symposium held on the concluding day of the show.

Speaking on the state's legislative activities in the area of water planning, Hance referred to a busy legislative session in which some 4,000 items were introduced.

The 63th Legislature passed Senate Bill 1,139, recently, combining the Texas Water Development Board, the Texas Water Quality Board, and the Texas Water Rights Commission into the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Sen. Hance said documents released recently by the Texas Water Development Board present data for the 43 zone designations of the 23 river and coastal drainage basins of the state.

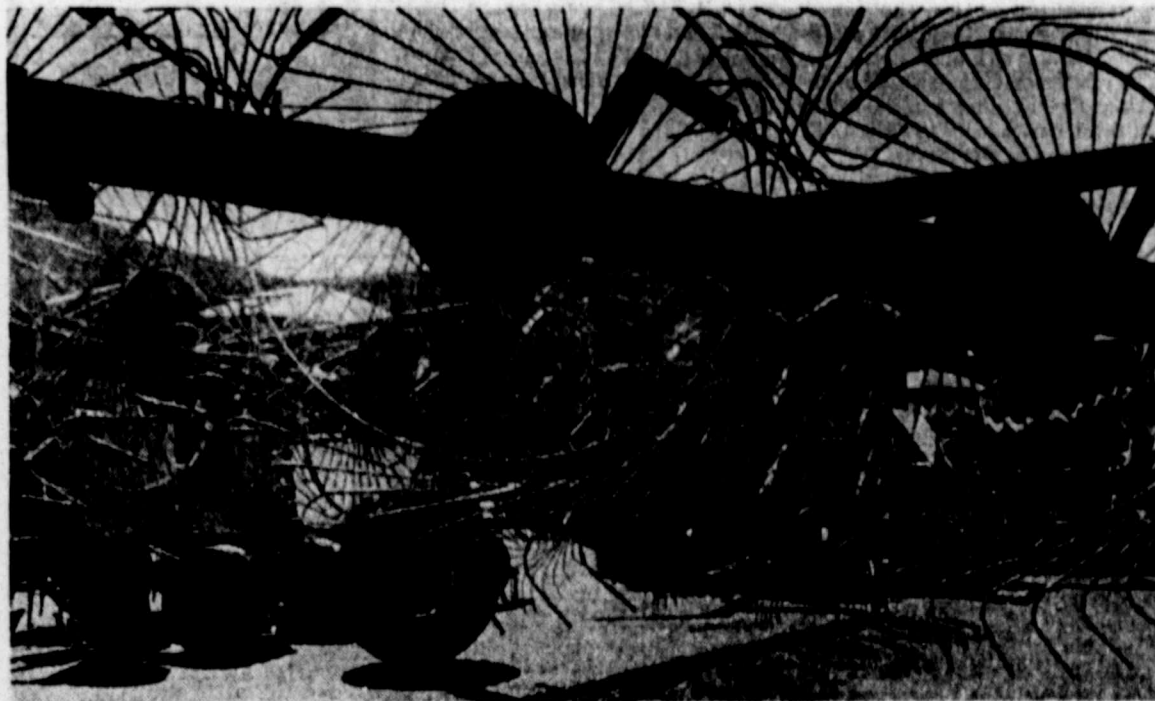

Some areas, such as the High Plains and the Upper Trinity River Basin (Dallas-Fort Worth area), are faced with water supply shortages much sooner than others, according to the studies.

City council accepts judge's resignation

By Paula Tilker
Update Staff Writer

Municipal Court Judge Gene Blair, who has served since 1966, will retire on Oct. 1.

The Lubbock City Council accepted his letter of resignation last week, saying it did so with regret. Blair, 71, has been retained by the council on an annual basis since he reached the retirement age of 65.

The judge said he is retiring because of age.

Mayor Roy Bass said he is not certain whether an interim judge will be secured before Oct. 1.

No corrective or protective steps will be taken by the city to reverse deterioration of an outdoor mural in the Aztlán Area of Yellowhouse Canyon Lakes, the council decided.

Completed in July, the mural probably will not last more than a year because the concrete wall it was painted on was improperly treated. Moisture continually will seep into the wall to cause peeling paint, according to Texas Tech art professors who studied the wall.

The Planning and Zoning Commission will study proposed changes in the alcoholic beverage sale ordinance before the council considers them.

Council members tabled scheduled discussion of the changes, deciding to let the commission first resolve restaurant owner complaints and iron out details of the proposals.

A proposed ordinance that would restrict swimming, wading and boating in private playa lakes within city limits was tabled after council members indicated a drafted proposal wasn't what they had in mind.

Housing rehabilitation in the Arnett-Benson area was strongly urged by numerous groups during a public hearing on reallocation of $543,600 in third-year Community Development funds.

Sister Regina Foppe, a Catholic nun, urged that the money be spent on a large scale weatherization program for low-income homeowners.

Amending an un-bar-able ordinance

CITY COUNCIL members are trundling along at a snail's pace but certainly in the right direction to restore integrity to Lubbock's essentially unenforceable alcoholic beverage sale ordinance.

Last week Planning and Zoning Commissioners got the potentially hot political potato dumped into their laps for further study on the best way to tighten existing legal loopholes that allow honky-tonks and bars to pose as restaurants.

As suggested, the amended ordinance would prohibit late-hour permits (presumably after midnight) for the sale of alcoholic beverages in restaurants, re-define bars and restaurants and make the sale of alcoholic beverages in legitimate restaurants an incidental and conditional use—subject to Zoning Board of Adjustment approval.

CITY PLANNING director Jim Bertram has asked for nothing more than an enforceable ordinance that the business community feels is workable and will abide by.

Compliance with the ordinance in question, or any ordinance, is a matter of equity. Ordinances should not be so inflexible as to be blind to special circumstances and thus unfair by design. But the ZBA was created to hear and grant special exceptions where and if conditions warrant. As proposed, the ZBA will hear alcoholic beverage sale special requests.

Not only is it patently unfair but unnecessary for the existing ordinance to continue to allow a bar with nothing more than a portable kitchen oven and a hot plate to masquerade as a restaurant, a business of totally different character, hours of operation and neighborhood acceptability.

NOW NO ONE is suggesting that a business whose gross profit ratio exceeds the 60 per cent food service and 40 per cent liquor sales limit should be legislated out of existence.

What is being suggested is that such establishments should be restricted to areas more conducive to and practical for their parking requirements, late night and early morning noise and traffic characteristics and limits of compatibility otherwise.

A big plus in the proposed amendments is a provision that will allow the city to enforce the new laws uniformly and equitably on existing and well as future bars and restaurants.

Thus, the impact of a stronger ordinance can be immediate as well as long range.

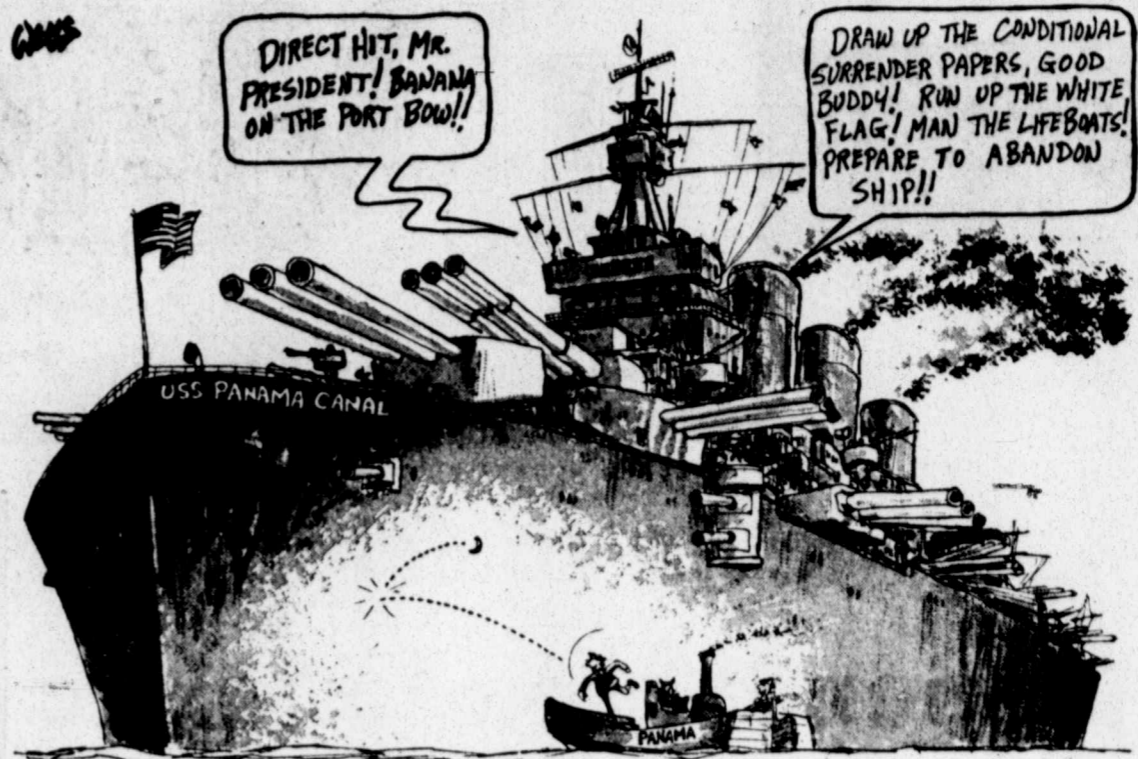

There is no abatement period proposed for noncomplying business so the resulting necessity of tolerating intolerable conditions and situations is effectively eliminated.

Neither the city nor the adjoining businesses will be forced to wait until a nonconforming establishment goes broke, moves out of the area or drives others out of it, thereby contributing as much by default as design to the deterioration of an otherwise sound business or residential area.

THERE ARE admittedly some questions about the complex and obviously controversial proposal that must be hammered out by the P&Z before being forwarded to the council for formal action.

But time has been granted, as Bertram says, for "hashing out" complaints from concerned restaurant owners. And since they are closer to the situation than anyone, affected businessmen conceivably could offer some of the most piercing and effective solutions.

Equal justice for—and compliance by—everyone is not too much to ask.

Housing project funds approved

Renovation of two Lubbock housing projects should begin in March, 1978, and be completed by September, 1979.

Final application for $690,000 in funds from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) were approved last week by directors of the Lubbock Housing Authority.

As planned, dwellings in the Hub Homes addition will receive an estimated $620,000 in renovation. Apartment complexes comprising Greenfair Manor will receive an estimated $170,000.

The directors also gave final approval to a Lubbock contractor to begin other renovation work at Hub Homes, to be financed by an earlier HUD grant.

Job Fair to seek local work force

Employers will interview prospective employees for an estimated 1,000 jobs at a Job Fair scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 24 in the Koko Palace.

Department stores, hospitals and large industries and manufacturers will be among those attending the event to interview prospects.

The Lubbock fair will be the eighth conducted in the state as part of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's "Texas First" program, encouraging local industries to seek out the resident work force. The fairs are coordinated through the Texas Industrial Commission (TIC).

TIC community development director Jerry Heare said last week the fairs are successful because they draw out job seekers not previously active in the work force.

Other sponsors for the program are the Texas Association of Business and the South Plains Association of Governments.

Ranch management meet set

Farmers, ranchers, researchers and technicians will gather to discuss ranching management at the 15th annual Ranch Management Conference scheduled for Lubbock on Sept. 23.

The conference, to be conducted at the Farmers Co-Op Complex at 3800 South-east Drive, is open to the public and will require a small registration fee.

Topics will include brush control, grazing systems, poisonous plant problems, range reseeding, income tax problems for ranchers, forage inventories, wildlife management and stocking rates.

The conference will begin at 8 a.m. and will end at 4 p.m., including a tour of Tech's Ranching Heritage Center.

Cost estimation course's deadline set Sept. 23

Concepts and application of modern cost estimation will be discussed in a short course at Texas Tech University beginning Oct. 1.

The department of engineering technology and the division of continuing engineering education at Tech are sponsoring the course, which will meet Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29 and Nov. 5 from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. in room 104 of the engineering center at Tech.

The registration fee will be $60 for a minimum of 15 participants or $30 for a maximum of 40 participants, with a proportionate fee adjustment between those limits.

Pre-registration is required by Sept. 23. The tuition fee does not include the textbook.

The course is being offered in association with Lubbock chapters of Women in Construction and Construction Specifications Institute, and the Tech student chapter of Construction Specifications Institute.

For more information and registration, contact Jo King, director of Continuing Engineering Education, Box 4200, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, 79409, or call 742-3456.

Lions

QUESTION: How large are lions and how fast do they run?

ANSWER: Male lions are larger than females and reach a total length of nine feet and a height of three feet at the shoulders. They weigh from 350 to 400 pounds, with some individuals weighing as much as 500 pounds. Built for their strength, lions cannot run as fast as antelopes or some of the other big cats like the cheetahs and tigers. When they run a short distance chasing prey, females reach a top speed of 35 miles per hour.

In India and east and central Africa, where they still live in the wild, lions form groups known as prides. A lion pride consists of one to four males, several lionesses and their cubs. The entire group may total as many as 35. Each pride has its own territory which is large enough to supply food and water for the group.

The size of the territory varies from 15 to 150 square miles depending on the abundance of prey. It is the job of the males to defend the territory against wandering male lions. The females hunt for the group. Most often the lionesses hunt under the cover of darkness or thick vegetation. Either singly or in groups, they stalk their prey and then rush at it in a surprise attack.

Kenneth Tandy of State College, Pa., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question is selected for a prize. Mail your question on a postcard to Junior Editors, in care of Update, Box 491, Lubbock, Tex., 79408.

City forced to delay sale of bonds again

By Paula Tilker
Update Staff Writer

For the second time in two months, the planned sale of $2.7 million in municipal bonds has been postponed because of legal action by Lubbockite James G. Marshall.

Marshall has filed a motion for a new trial in his efforts to have the May 21 election, in which voters approved $26.4 million in capital improvement bonds, declared invalid.

According to state law, no municipality can sell bonds involving litigation, so the Lubbock City Council last week postponed indefinitely the initial $2.7 million sale.

Proceeds from the bonds were to have been used to improve city streets, water pressure in the southwest sector, and the sewer treatment plant.

Money also is planned to be used to build a new fire station in Southwest Lubbock and to relocate the central station. Mayor Roy Bass called the delay of these two projects particularly distressing because it will mean some Lubbockites will be without adequate service for a while longer.

Because they estimate the bond sale could be delayed as much as a year, worried city council members indicated they may not get as much for their money in 1978 as inflation takes its toll.

They can't estimate how high inflation will climb, city officials say. But council member Carolyn Jordan, noting that construction costs have been increasing about one per cent per month, said the delay "obviously" will affect the types of fire stations that will be built.

Marshall filed his motion contending that there is "no evidence" to support 99th District Court Judge Thomas Clinton's recent decision that the May 21 election is valid.

If Clinton does not reverse his ruling at the yet-to-be-scheduled hearing, Marshall probably will appeal to the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

The city hall critic's original suit to have the May 21 election declared invalid was based on his belief that the ordinance authorizing the election was ambiguous and vague because it did not document the projects that the money would finance.

Clinton rejected Marshall's argument last month, declaring the election, and thus the bond sales, valid.

Bass said the council has not determined whether to file a counter suit against Marshall.

Registration slated for YMCA classes

The Lubbock YMCA will hold registration for classes today through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the YMCA office at 1601 24th St.

Scheduled classes for a variety of age groups include swimming, physical education, gymnastics and tennis. A blood pressure clinic and cardiovascular clinic are also planned.

Classes in karate, modern dance, beginning ballet, weightlifting, racketball, handball and advanced lifesaving will be offered when enough people register, according to the YMCA office.

reese report

By S. Sgt. David B. Galloway
Reese AFB Information Office

Start planning now for this year's Reese AFB Open House, scheduled for Oct. 10. The gates will swing open at 10:30 a.m. for this annual affair. Tentatively planned for your enjoyment will be the Thunderbirds, a model airplane demonstration, parasailing, a parachute team and a variety of Air Force aircraft. Musical entertainment will be provided by the Air Force Academy band, the Wolforth High School band, the South Plains College Bluegrass Band and Fifth String, a group from Reese AFB. Everyone is invited.

The Combined Federal Campaign gets underway Sept. 13 and runs through Oct. 31. This campaign supports 52 local, national and international agencies and provides aid and services to millions each year. Red Cross, Mental Health Association, March of Dimes for Birth Defects, American Cancer Society, Reese Dependent Youth Activities, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts and Young Women's Christian Association make up only a few of the agencies aided by this campaign.

National Hispanic Heritage Week is continuing through Saturday at Reese and throughout the United States and at military installations overseas. A 1968 law calls for the President to set aside the week which includes Sept. 15-16 for the occasion. Those particular dates are significant because five Central American countries (Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua) received independence on the 15th, and Mexico received its independence on the 16th.

More than 15,000 Air Force members are of Hispanic origin, comprising 27 per cent of the total Air Force population. Hispanic participation at the Air Force Academy is increasing. The Class of '77 commissioned 26 Hispanic officers, and there are 174 Hispanic cadets currently enrolled. Nine of these are women.

How do you get your ideas, thoughts, and voice heard at a local and/or national level? You join 140,000-plus people who have the same goal. The Air Force Association is a national organization comprised of active-duty Air Force personnel, Reserve, National Guard, Reserve Officer Training Corps, retired personnel and thousands of other citizens who support the nation's need for air power to keep the peace. Your voice in local AFA Chapter 273 can help develop community understanding and support for the Air Force, provide participation in community affairs and ensure strength in the defense of America. Contact Capt. Kenneth Hamlin at Reese ext. 2387 for information.

1st Lt. Dennis E. Wise, an undergraduate pilot trainee from Reese, earned a fifth place ranking in the 1977 Conseil International Du Sport Militaire parachute championships in Vienna. Lt. Wise, along with the other members of the U.S. team, won first place in the competition.

Sept. 14, 1957: SOVIET PREMIER HURLS WARNING AT TURKEY. Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin warned Turkey Prime Minister Adnan Menderes that any military action by Turkey against Syria could result in world conflict. Turkey denied Soviet accusations that they were forming troops along the Syrian border with aid from countries in the Western hemisphere in planning the removal of Syria's independence since her sway toward communism.

In other news: The northern lights, known as Aurora Borealis, filled Texas skies for the first time in more than 35 years, according to a National Weather Bureau employee.

Sept. 14, 1972: U.S.-RED TRADE PACT HINTED. A leading Soviet news correspondent announced that he felt chances for the negotiations of a $49 billion U.S. trade center in Moscow were near completion between the U.S. Secretary of State and Kremlin leaders. The center would include bank credits, hotels and other American firms.

In other news: Few vacancies were left for jobs opened in the Lubbock sanitation department by strikers for higher wages. The department superintendent hired new permanent workers to replace the strikers, threatening most former employees with a chance of completely losing their jobs.

Sept. 14, 1967: U.S. BOMBARDS RED FRONTIER. American Army howitzers and Navy guns on destroyers imposed severe losses against North Vietnam troops, amounting to 122 deaths. American losses in the three battles which stretched from the demilitarized zone to the Mekong River Delta, totaled 13 deaths and 130 wounded.

In other news: Pretrial procedures for a Shallwater man charged with killing his parents continued, delaying jury selection. A motion to move the trial out of Lubbock County was called because of publicity the case had received earlier.

Arabian horse show set

Some of the finest Arabian horses in Texas will be featured Saturday and Sunday as the Plains Arabian Horse Association opens its annual show at the Panhandle-South Plains Fairgrounds.

The show will benefit the Lubbock Humane Society for the second year. Admission is free to all sessions, but donations will be welcome at each performance.

The first show is scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday, followed by others at 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Two shows are slated for Sunday, at 9 a.m. and the closing session at 1 p.m.

The show is recognized nationally by the American Arabian Horse Association and the International Arabian Horse Association.

Officers of the Plains Arabian Horse Association are Margaret Hastings, vice president; Gordon Hastings, president; Mitzi Hastings, treasurer and Frances Knox, secretary.

Film critic slated at Tech event

Nationally known film critic Judith Crist will kick off the Texas Tech Speakers Series for this year with a guest talk at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the University Center Theatre.

Well-known for her direct and hard-hitting reviews of motion pictures, Mrs. Crist will be speaking on "Film As A Reflection Of Our Society."

Tickets are now on sale at the University Center ticket booth and will be available the night of the event. Tickets are $2 for Tech students with identification and $3 for the general public.

The famed film reviewer is currently film critic for TV Guide, Saturday Review, Playgirl and The American Way magazines. For ten years she served as film and drama critic on NBC's "Today" show and until 1975 she was film critic for New York magazine.

Mrs. Crist has won numerous awards for her writing and a recent poll conducted by Louis Harris Associates found her to be regarded as the most influential film critic in the United States.

Mrs. Dorothy Sutphin

Genealogist to speak to Pilots

Mrs. Dorothy Sutphin, governor of District Eight, Pilot International, will be a guest of the Lubbock Pilot Club at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Lubbock Women's Club.

Mrs. Sutphin, of Baytown, is a professional genealogist, writer and publisher of family histories. She is a member of numerous genealogical and historical societies and a life member of the Bay Area Heritage Society. She was included in the Bicentennial edition of "Personalities of the South." She is married, has one daughter and is a member of St. Mark's Methodist Church in Baytown.

Pilot International is a non-profit classified service club for executive and professional women with 19,000 members in the U.S., Canada, Bermuda, the Bahamas, England, France, Japan and Mexico.

The objects of Pilots International are to develop friendship as a means of broadening opportunity for service; to promote international peace and cultural relations; to inculcate the ideal of service as the basis of all worthy enterprises and to encourage high ethical standards among business and professional women.

Mr. and Mrs. Fidel Trevino have recently moved back to Lubbock from Lamesa with their two children Isabel, 5, who attends Cottage Elementary School and Jimmy, 1. Fidel is employed by Metal Products.

Rosa likes to sew, especially "back-to-school" clothing for her daughter. "Isabel wanted dresses this year instead of pants," said Rosa, "which was a surprise." Mrs. Trevino began sewing for her daughter during the early part of the summer.

The Trevino family enjoys fishing and camping.

One of the family's favorites is roast.

BEEF ROAST
Bake roast in 350 degree oven for one hour. Add green beans and potatoes and bake 30 minutes longer or until done.

For a gravy, combine 1/4 cup shortening and add flour until a paste forms. Add garlic, cumin, salt and pepper, and chopped onion. Next, add water and tomato sauce until gravy reaches consistency desired.

Pour gravy over roast and serve.

Mrs. Janell Evans is an avid golfer and has played in several tournaments this summer. She also likes to fish and is an active member of the Oakwood Baptist Church.

Mrs. Evans and her husband, Tommy, service manager for Gene Messer Ford, have two children and three grandchildren. Kirsti Kinsey, 6, Jackie Evans, 2, and Matt Evans, 6 months.

The couple likes to go camping in such areas as Red River and Ruidoso.

One of Mrs. Evans' "family pleasing" recipes is Banana Split Cake.

BANANA SPLIT CAKE
2 cups graham cracker crumbs

Mrs. Fidel Trevino and son, Jimmy

- 1 stick margarine
- 1 box powdered sugar
- 2 sticks margarine
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 No. 2 can pineapple, drained and crushed
- 5 bananas
- 1 large tub whipped topping
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- Maraschino cherries

This is a tasty ice-box cake which is made by layering the above ingredients sequentially in a 9x13 pan. Make the first layer by mixing graham cracker crumbs well with one stick of oleo and pressing them into the bottom of the 9x13 pan. Combine powdered sugar, one stick of oleo, eggs and vanilla and beat well in a mixer for 10 minutes. Pour ingredients on top of graham cracker crumbs to form second layer. Add the drained crushed pineapple for the cake's third layer. Layer four consists of slicing the bananas and placing them on top of the pineapple. The tub of whipped topping forms the fifth layer, and the chopped pecans make the sixth layer. Sprinkle maraschino cherries on top of all the layered ingredients to form the seventh layer. Refrigerate the cake overnight before serving.

Mrs. Beatrice Vega finds life in general pleasing and exciting. For many years she and her husband and their four children lived on a farm outside Andrews. In 1969 they moved to Lubbock and found adjusting from rural life to urban life a relatively easy matter.

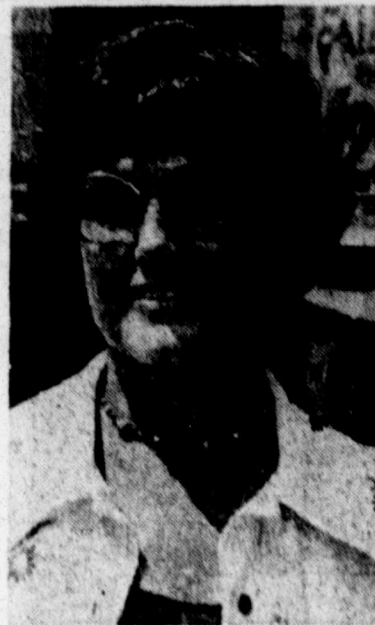

"I have really enjoyed city life," Mrs. Vega reflected in a recent interview. "Although our children are grown and married, we have our grandchildren for company frequently, and all in all we enjoy a happy family life."

A favorite home hobby, according to Mrs. Vega, which is as fascinating to her husband, children and grandchildren as to herself, is the hobby of raising canaries. "They are songful little creatures," she said, "and keep me company and in a happy frame of mind, especially when I'm in the kitchen cooking."

As a former employee at Furr's Cafeteria before she retired to another full time occupation (housekeeping), Mrs. Vega is well acquainted with many secrets of good cooking.

"I like to cook," she remarked when she agreed to share some of her favorite recipes with Update readers. With her children grown and away from home and her husband busy during the day working at Goulds Pumps, she says she has the kitchen to herself and the freedom and time that are favored gifts to one who aspires to be a good cook.

Mrs. Vega likes to keep her menus varied, as the different types of recipes she shares below indicate, but variety is not all. They must be tasty, too, she declares. The Italian dish, Green Enchiladas, and the two cakes which follow she recommends particularly if one likes both zest and taste in cuisine.

1 tbsps. white corn syrup
Canned milk
Mix above ingredients thoroughly, and boil two minutes adding canned milk until icing has the desired consistency for icing the cake. After two minutes, pour the mixture over the cake for an icing.

polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — When baking a cake with a mix I grease the cake pan and then flour it with a bit of the dry cake mix. This saves opening the flour canister and I have never had a cake stick. — VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY — Do you want a dog toy that costs nothing, is useful and still unbreakable? The next time you have a sirloin steak or arm roast save the ring shaped bone. Attach this to a length of rope or twisted cloth and you'll find it dandy for playing tug-of-war and your dog will love it. — REGINA

DEAR POLLY — The fisherman can easily preserve that extra catch for later by inserting the cleaned whole trout or other small fish in a clean empty milk carton, fill it with water and then freeze solid. When ready to cook the fish simply cut away the paper carton and defrost the block of ice. The fish will seem as fresh as when first caught and will keep indefinitely as long as it is frozen in the ice.

My other Pointer is for moving day. Go to your local liquor store and get empty cartons that have the bottle dividers intact. Glasses, vases and other miscellaneous articles can be packed in these sections and will survive the move beautifully. Often they fit snugly enough so they do not have to be wrapped but always wrap individually when more than one thing goes in a section. I have done this on numerous occasions and found it really works. — ANN

DEAR ANN — So have I and when the dividers are removed these sturdy cartons are great to use for packing plates when they are wrapped in paper and put in so they stand on edge — never flat — and put in so they are snug and cannot rattle around. — POLLY.

How Much Did You Pay To Keep Cool This Summer?

Probably a bundle right out the window — literally — because that's where most of the cool air we pay for so dearly goes. You insulate walls and attics — why not windows? Perrins can fashion beautiful Roman Shades and draperies with our Thermo-Suede insulated lining that will keep you cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter. Buy during the month of September and you'll receive Thermo-Suede lining at the same price as regular lining (which means if your finished length is 60" or longer, labor and lining is included in the price of the drapery fabric. In time, we think what you save on electricity and gas will insulate your wallet as well.

real estate review

For the first nine months of 1977, a total of 4,666 homes has been listed with the Multiple Listing Service and 3,510 of these homes have been sold for a total volume of $130,669,586. This is an increase of 686 more homes listed and 744 more homes sold than for the same period in 1976.

Even February, the slowest sales month of 1977, showed an increase of 72 more homes sold than during February of 1976. August produced the largest monthly sales volume with its 483 reported sales but it barely topped record sales figures of 479 for April and May and an active June with 473 sales recorded.

What has brought these new citizens to Lubbock? Two major factors for our growth has been the expansion of the Texas Instruments plant and the transfer of military personnel to Reese AFB.

Former war prisoner cherishes life

By Gerry Burton
Update Staff Writer

You have never lived till you have almost died, and for those who fight for it, life has a flavor the protected never know. Light from the window plays over the words, dancing here and there as a tree flirts with the West Texas breeze outside. It also catches a date etched in the metal — "16 Sep. 67, 14 Mar. 73" — a time when the world was black, full of torture and mental harrassment for the room's occupant.

Drapes are open always in the office of the deputy commander of operations at Reese Air Force Base. Col. Bobby R. Bagley, confined to prison of war cells in North Vietnam for almost six years, welcomes even the driving rain or blowing dust. To see him walking briskly about the base, greatly pleased with the world and his place in it, it's difficult to realize the scars with which Bagley lives. There is no feeling in his right hand, a little offset to a jaw broken and broken again in torture, and a leg which will not move without a mental message at each step.

INSIDE, BEHIND THE easy friendliness of a Georgia farm boy, there is a deep desire that Americans should know how Americans were treated in POW camps in North Vietnam, that they should know, too, how glad POWs are they didn't forget. There is a need, also, to inspire love of country and appreciation of its way of life in the upcoming generation, so the enemy, still out there waiting, will have no chance to bury it. Emotions, held tight for years to rob the enemy of any satisfaction, come easily now. They choke him most when telling of coming home. Tears also erupted once in a Vietnamese interrogation chamber when a package revealed pictures of his wife and daughter. He "cried like a baby" and gladly signed a confession saying he was sorry he had lied about not having a family. Then, there was the sight of the American plane in Hanoi when proper salutary words would not come for choked-back tears which flowed freely as the plane lifted skyward, bound home. Emotions were leashed, firmly controlled by the pilot whose unarmed reconnaissance plane was shot down on his 32nd mission to assess bombing damage and select new targets. But, born and reared with the right to be free with all its blessings, he knew emotion.

HORROR AT THE THOUGHT of falling and being beaten to death while running the gauntlet of villagers en route to Hanoi and custody of the military. Mental anguish at telling more than name, rank and serial number rather than go immediately back in torture chains, knowing that one more time—with back and jaw broken, skull fractured, shoulders dislocated, shin splintered—he would die. Orders as a POW are to survive, however possible. Surprise and satisfaction that his interrogators many times preferred to believe "the most fantastic lies" instead of the truth.

"Two voices came over the wire... 'We love you.'"
—Col. Bobby Bagley

Constant fear of the sound of keys rattling in the prison and the relief when he was not chosen, this time, for torture. Thankfulness that a cellmate was too sick to eat, leaving his share of the food to the others, and the equal thankfulness when he recovered enough to eat their share. Instant fear as the enemy sprang to cell doors and windows with machine guns ready, practicing mass execution should a POW release try come again. Anger and despair at POWs "violating their honor to come home early" when a combined effort "to come home with honor or not at all" was giving POWs strength to resist each session of the torture year after year. Pride at American ability to make the enemy fight for every word time after time rather than give in once and for all. Love of country on seeing massive damage done by the B-52s to win release of some POWs who had been secreted in a prison on the Chinese border to be held back after general release of POWs. Topping all emotions was the feeling of peace with his Maker found after depths of despair reached following initial torture sessions. There was the impassive front presented the enemy, especially before enemy cameras as orders for release were read. And there was the beginning of free emotion with the inevitable roof-lifting cheers once out of sight of the cameras and the enemy. There was the final release of emotion, the final feel of coming home when "those two voices came over the wire, saying 'We love you.'"

Still growing with Bagley is the determination to tell his story, which he begins with speeches on the South Plains this month. His book, covering the religious aspects of being a POW in North Vietnam, will be released in November.

Imports collect over $1 million here

Astonishing volumes of imports at the Lubbock Port of Entry this year boosted the duty collections past the $1 million mark last Friday, said port director Martin Gemoets. The figure for the port's second year of operations, with the fiscal year ending Oct. 1, is staggering compared to the $7,000 to $8,000 brought in the first year. Success of the Lubbock port also was a generating factor in the redesignation of the Lubbock Regional Airport as the Lubbock International Airport. That change, routed from the Chamber of Commerce to the Airport Board and finally to the Lubbock City Council, was ratified Aug. 25. About 90 per cent of the port's imports go to Texas Instruments, Gemoets said, with the remainder made up of farm tractors, electric pumps and sewage treatment machinery. In addition to clearing shipments by plane, the staff of three customs officers also inspect international shipments transported as motor freight or by railroad.

Library Friends seek books

Books for resale in the Friends of the Lubbock City-County Library annual benefit are being sought as contributions. The public is urged to deposit books, paperbacks, records and sheet music for the sale in boxes placed in locations around the city. Receptacles can be found at Furr's Super Markets at Redbud, Caprock, Family Center, 19th Street and Ave. T and Boston and 28th Street locations; Safeways at 66th Street and Indiana Ave., 19th Street and Frankford; United Food Stores at 29th Drive and Brownfield Highway and 50th Street and Slide Road, and Skaggs Albertson's store. Boxes also are located at First Baptist Church, First United Methodist Church, First Presbyterian Church, St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, St. John's United Methodist Church, Second Baptist Church and Shepherd King Lutheran Church. Donations may also be brought to the Godeke Branch and Mahon Library until Sept. 23. The book sale will be at the Godeke Branch, 2001 19th St., on Sept. 29 from noon to 8 p.m. and Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 from noon to 6 p.m. Proceeds from the book sale will aid in the purchase of carpeting, drapes and tables for the Godeke Branch and technical equipment, a sound system, tables and chairs for the Community Room at the Mahon Library.

Sloan says Tech could play better

Texas Tech's 17-7 season-opening victory over Baylor Saturday in Waco was pleasing to head coach Steve Sloan, but he admitted that the Red Raiders have substantial room for improvement.

"We made some big plays that really made a difference for us," he said, "but we can't count on that happening every time. We've got a way to go to reach our potential."

The big plays Sloan was talking about included a 54-yard touchdown run by quarterback Rodney Allison in the first quarter that opened the scoring after a lethargic beginning and a blocked field goal attempt by Eric Felton that set up the scoring drive.

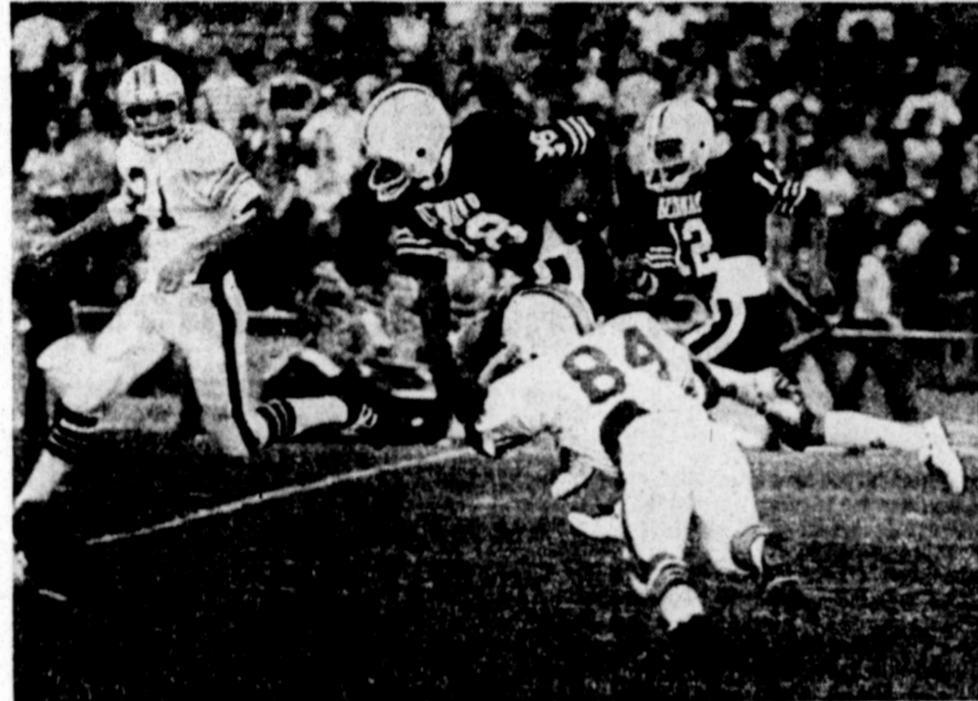

Other big plays were a 38-yard run by fullback Jimmy Williams in the Raiders' second scoring march, an interception near the end of the game by linebacker Don Kelly, a fourth-down tackle by safety Larry Flowers a little earlier that blunted a Baylor march and three successful blitzes that took the Bears out of field-goal range.

The contest was played in 95-degree temperatures and high humidity. The temperature on the artificial turf of Baylor Stadium reached 112 degrees.

The game was a physical one because the Bears have a large team, and Tech faces another physical matchup this week against New Mexico and an even more bruising contest the following Saturday against Texas A&M.

"We've got some tough games ahead of us, but this bunch has always played hard, and, when you do, good things usually happen to you," Sloan said.

Last season, the Raiders had an open date between the opener against Colorado and the second game against New Mexico and another week off between the UNM game and the A&M contest. However, the three games are run together this year, and Sloan said he prefers not to have the open date between the first game and the New Mexico game.

One on one

Dunbar halfback Bruce McKnight (28) heads straight for Coronado safety Johnny McCormick (84). McCormick hangs on to make the tackle in last week's game at Lowrey Field. Dunbar, 2-0 for the season, downed CHS 12-6.

High school teams show weaknesses

By Tom Halliburton Update Sports Staff

Now is the time for all good coaches to come to the aid of their football teams and correct early-season weaknesses.

And, indeed, there must be a few vulnerable spots around the local camps — for only one of the seven Hub City prep teams survived the first two weeks with perfect marks in its first two outings.

That one team, Dunbar, dialed the big play twice to beat El Paso Bowie (13-6) and twice again to nip Coronado (12-6). Coach Van Jefferson's Panthers called on the veteran quarterback, Walter Alsbrooks, to scamper 44 yards in the second half for the winning TD against Coronado last week.

Dunbar enters the battle of the unbeaten Panthers Friday when it plays at the home of the Fort Stockton Panthers (2-0).

The only other local outfit without a loss, Monterey, stands 1-0-1 at this juncture. The Plainsmen tied Wichita Falls Rider 13-13 Saturday and showed the makings of another stout defense. And quarterback Ron Reeves took to the airways for 147 yards but his ground game complemented with 43 rushing yards against Rider.

One big difference between this year and last year could be the amount of Plainsmen fumbles. MHS has lost seven of them in two games, and Rider turned one into a touchdown last week.

At the 500 mark, the crowd thickens a bit with Christ The King, Lubbock Christian High and Estacado at 1-1.

CTK's goalline offense punched in a big fourth-quarter score in last week's 18-14 win over Abilene Christian High. LCHS managed a minus-7 yards rushing and suffered a breakdown in the kicking game while losing 12-0 to Tulia and Estacado blanked Lubbock High with an aggressive defense that allowed 38 total yards.

Then the bottom line belongs to Coronado and Lubbock High, both at 0-2. The Mustangs suffered a severe early-season injury epidemic with quarterback Buck Williams, fullback Randy Lusk, end Danny Jacobs and Terry Scitern sidelined. Reserve quarterback received a miserable baptismal fire against Dunbar by bobbling the center snap seven times. But there are some bright spots in Coronado's defense.

Lubbock High really looked sharp defensively in a 14-0 loss to Estacado. The Westerners prevented the speedy Matadors from ever breaking a long gain. However, LHS needed a few long gainers of its own to produce a comeback.

Coaches are running, too

Even the coaches are running and running.

As a conditioner, Tech track coach Corley is undergoing a personal running program. And the aid who is handling the Texas Tech cross-country team this fall, Bob Hamrin, is a person dedicated to running. He runs frequently in races sponsored by the West Texas Running Club.

But, this week, Oglesby and Hamrin will have their cross-country team in action for the first time this fall.

The Raiders will enter the annual Wayland Baptist College Invitational in Plainview Thursday at 4 p.m.

Heading the list of runners will be senior Marc Johnson, junior Ricky McCormick and Greg Lautenslager. A sophomore, Randy Yates, will join, along with newcomers Robert Wilson, Richard Postma and Mark Hoel.

keglers' corner

By Walt McAlexander Update Sports Staff

HUB CITY keglers really get in the swing of things this week as most of the fall leagues enter their first or second week of action.

One league, the Nuts and Bolts League, again is having trouble locating sponsors. The league was formed last March and is for those bowlers having some type of handicap.

The league, believed to be the first of its type in the nation, bowls on Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. at Oakwood Lanes. This year, Donnie Morris is serving as president, with Larry Gardner as vice president and Margie Flowers, the charter president, as secretary.

Sponsors fee is $60, which covers shirts for the bowlers (four to a team), lettering and a $12 awards fund. Anyone interested in sponsoring a team can contact any of the league's officers.

TONY CARPENTIERE has reaped two awards for his bowling feats of last year. Carpentiere, a 19-year-old, won the North Regional Junior Bowling singles and All-Events titles in Dallas last April and advanced to the state meet in Waco, where he placed in the top five.

Saturday, Larry Hardin, president of the Lubbock Junior Bowlers Association, presented Tony with his first-place awards.

LUBBOCK WOMEN'S BOWLING Association president Gerogia Biggs has presented her association's first three 1976-77 yearbooks to Ben Brown of Lubbock Bowl, Bob Wood of Imperial Lanes and Frank Bennett of Oakwood Lanes.

The LWBA dedicated its yearbook to the proprietors of the three city houses.

The LWBA will conduct its city association meeting on Sunday, Oct. 23, at 2 p.m. However, a site has not yet been determined. The association will vote on city tournament rules and is open to all 2,600 LWBA members. This year, the LWBA city tournament will be hosted by Lubbock Bowl.

LUBBOCK BOWL WAS the only city house with much activity last week.

Highlight action there was a 794 (four-game) series by Mary Lee Galey, as she rolled a 181-202-206-205.

Bob Wright had the highest three-game series, a 630 accomplished in 204-210-216 fashion. This year, Update will add a new feature listing the Top 10 games and series by both men and women. This feature, which will begin next Wednesday, will be updated each week and carried at the end of the Keglers' Corner column.

Other 600 efforts included 620s by Joe Garcia and David Evans, Bob Terry's 226-214-618, Wayne Webb's 212-212-616 and Jesse Valerio's 6-8. Your electric bill. A monthly reminder you should have a GE Heat Pump.

As energy costs go higher and higher, the reasons for having a GE Heat Pump in your home or business make more and more sense. In winter, the GE Heat Pump can cut heating costs by 40% to 60% over conventional electric heating systems. In summer, savings of 12% to 20% are common compared to many systems presently in use. And as energy costs go up, your dollar savings grow.

Further, natural fuels are in short supply and may someday be unobtainable at any price. But, electricity is here to stay.

When your heating and cooling system needs replacement. Or, when you buy, build, or remodel, get the facts on the energy-saving, money saving GE Heat Pump. America's number one selling Heat Pump by far. You'll be delighted you did, month after month after month.

City students grab ROTC scholarships

The Texas Tech University Army ROTC recently awarded Col. Harold Griffith scholarships of $500 to Cadet William Joe Smith of San Diego and Corpdetta Laura Lewis of Fort Worth.

A senior psychology student at Lubbock Christian College, Smith is enrolled in Army ROTC at Texas Tech. He is chairman of the Orienteering Society at Texas Tech and executive officer of Scabbard and Blade, an organization of Army ROTC students.

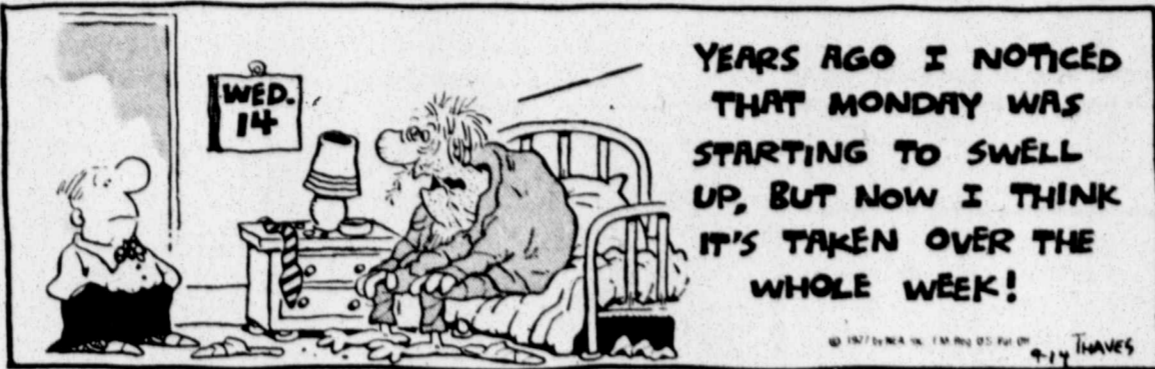

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Smith of Vista, Calif.

Miss Lewis is a sophomore interior design major and member of Corpdettes, an auxiliary unit of Army ROTC. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Lewis of Fort Worth.

The scholarships were endowed by Gen. Ross Ayers of Austin and formerly of Lubbock, in honor of Griffith. Ayers also was former Texas adjutant general.

America's master bank robber crime journal

By Jay Robert Nash

It was long thought that bank robbery, particularly in the United States, was a thing of the past. Stringent laws, coupled with modern equipment and police techniques apparently made the "super heist" too risky. However, a rash of bank robberies in the past year have police around the world scratching frantically.

The more than $8 million taken last year in Nice, France, in what is now termed "the bank robbery of the century," continues to baffle international officers. This year, one professional bank robbery team has taken $150,000 from nine Buffalo, N.Y., banks alone.

Nothing like it has been seen since the American depression, when bank robbery was a thriving business. And although he's little known today, one man was more than any other responsible for the torrent of bank robberies in that era. Edward Wilhelm Bentz was an unusual pioneer of high crime whose penchant for detail and obscurity has undoubtedly become the credo of the modern bank robber.

BENTZ'S CHILDHOOD in Tacoma, Wash., never suggested his future career. Studious, withdrawn, an avid book reader, Bentz grew to a strapping size. He had a sharp taste for high culture. His affable personality and intellectual pursuits beyond his high school graduation (he was first in his class) gave him the confident image of solidity and honesty.

That image, Bentz was shrewdly aware, insulated him against suspicion and countless times prevented his arrest. "I'm a big farmerish-looking sort of fellow."

When Bentz decided on a crime career, he aimed higher than the average crook. "I decided to become a yegg," he once admitted. "A bank robber, you know. They're the aristocracy of the criminal profession."

Traveling throughout the country, Bentz would visit a small but well-to-do town. He would introduce himself as a cattle-buyer or investor and take a room in a respectable boarding house.

Bentz would then visit the local library and dig deep into several months worth of the local newspaper. He would study the advertisements of the bank which detailed assets and liabilities.

Part of his elaborate note-taking included the bank's cash on hand and cash due from other banks, along with amounts owed the Federal Reserve. Bentz would also carefully note the bank's bond inventory after posing as a heavy depositor and obtaining involved bank statements.

Bentz then made allowances for deposits and withdrawals and was mindful to note any change brought about by commercial conditions. His system of deductions became so accurate that he could determine within $1,000 the amount of cash the bank would have when a gang entered the building to rob it.

Bentz then made detailed notes of sidestreets for escape routes, checking streetlights and the rounds of the local police. He estimated to the minute how much time each gang could safely spend inside a bank before detection.

Of the 50 banks Bentz personally robbed with professional bank robbers, his biggest score was the Lincoln National Bank and Trust Company of Lincoln, Neb., on September 17, 1930. He, Harold Bailey and a few others took more than $1 million in cash, bonds and negotiable stocks. The theft caused a run on the bank and forced its eventual liquidation.

Bentz was so successful that he soon retired from active bank robbing. He acted strictly as a consultant for at least 200 bank robberies by high-powered gangs.

Dozens of gangs paid him with the negotiable stocks and bonds taken with the cash. The cash was all the bandits wanted — to them, the bonds were useless. Bentz, though, placed the bonds with lawyers and certain corrupt government officials who paid him as much as 70 cents on the dollar. He was a multi-millionaire by 1936.

Bentz only worked in good weather. He spent the winter at the South's best resorts or on the Riviera. On these trips, Bentz always took along five large trunks containing his rare coin sets and hundreds of first editions of the classics from Washington Irving to Anatole France. In fact, Bentz's love of books led to his downfall.

Federal agents, tipped that he had moved from a small town in upstate New York to Manhattan, trailed Bentz to a small rooming house by following a moving van hauling his library. Bentz surrendered without a fight.

"I'll wait it out," he said quietly. "When I get out of stir, I'll dig up the $5 million in bonds I have buried and retire."

Bentz never dug up those bonds, though. He was sentenced to 20 years for bank robbery and died dreaming of the illegal fortune he had made — and lost — as a result of a ravenous literary appetite.

"HE WHO WOULD HAVE EGGS must endure the cackling of hens," went the old English proverb. And he or she who would break gossip scoops must occasionally endure having eggs all over cackling hen face.

H.R. Haldeman has denied that there will be any such story as I recently reported here of President Nixon flipped out, nude in the Oval Office, and I, for one, am just as glad to be wrong in this instance. After all, though I considered my sources impeccable, with names that would simply knock you out, it is hard to argue with the author himself.

If Mr. Haldeman ever told such a story around, he sure does not intend now to put it in his upcoming "The Ends of Power." I've been trying to reach ghostwriter Joseph DiMona to get a statement from him also, but he is off somewhere in the Carolinas. Incidentally, nobody can be right all the time, but this column was correct back in July in noting that ghostwriter DiMona had written for Ann Corio's famous show "This was Burlesque." DiMona still sounds like the right writer for a book on the agonies of Watergate.

My apologies to Richard Nixon and H.R. Haldeman, and that is not something I thought I'd write.

WILDER WIT: Billy Wilder—the man who directed Marilyn Monroe, Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis in the unforgettable "Some Like It Hot," and the talent who created the marvelous movie

"Sunset Boulevard," is winding up Tom Tryon's bestseller "Fedora" (from "Crowned Heads") in Paris. Wilder is as funny as ever. The other day he said to an English makeup man who was taking his time with one of Wilder's stars: "Well, with all that megillah, no wonder you people lost Singapore!"

"Fedora" will be a surprise to fans of the book, for evidently it bears little resemblance to Tryon's fiction. The movie makers sent the handsome author a copy of the final script and Tom, insouciant, charming and rich in his fabulous West Side Manhattan apartment, didn't even deign to reply. In fact he told me they paid him a mint for the story and, as far as he was concerned, that was that.

One of the interesting things about "Fedora" has been the presence of Hildegarde Knef in the cast. She has not won a lot of friends and fans in making this movie; several insiders have characterized her as "self-indulgent and a prima donna."

The German star was, you recall, a sensation years ago on Broadway in "Silk Stockings." She had never enjoyed her Hollywood film career much and wrote a bestseller about it, following up with another book on her ordeal with cancer. On June 1, Hildegarde married a 37-year-old blond Hungarian, who, it is said, "never stops sitting beside her, stroking her German battleship back."

Hildegarde annoyed the international cast by telling them throughout the filming that she was not interested in making movies anymore, but that Billy Wilder had asked and she could not resist working with him, with Bill Holden, with Joe Ferrer, with Henry Fonda, with Michael York, and on and on. She would never mention the movie's other star—the gifted Martha Keller, the person who first suggested Miss Knef for the role.

So much for credit where credit is due. And, of course, I can't wait to see "Fedora."

LAND OF FRUITS & NUTS: Talk about type casting—"The Greek Tycoon" will mark the fifth film in which Anthony Quinn has played a Greek... Scenes for the Walter Matthau-Glenda Jackson medical comedy "House Calls" are being shot in the posh Marian Davies mansion in Beverly Hills... The Press agent at Cafe Du Soir tells of showing ad copy for a disaster producer's latest film to the producer. The copy read: "From Hollywood's greatest producer comes Hollywood's greatest picture." The producer nodded. "Very good—it tells the facts!"... Carroll Baker calls pals from the wilds of the Yucatan jungle (where she is making an Italian disaster epic called "Cyclone") to say that her big news is a chance to play Sadie Thompson in Somerset Maugham's "Rain" on the London stage come October 15.

TRY GOD says the sterling and gold pins they sell at the swanky Tiffany on New York's Fifth Avenue, and proceeds from such sales go to charity, courtesy of the "Born Again" Christian who runs America's most jewelry emporium. Walter Hoving is that courtly fellow, responsible for the spirituality at Tiffany.

So the social mavens say Mr. Hoving wants to marry the beautiful socialite Carol Portago, a woman who has led a sporting international life and is the widow of the late racing driver "Fon" Portago. In fact, the social mavens are totally convinced of this rumor. What does Mr. Hoving say? He says Carol was a family friend of his and the late Mrs. Hoving for 20 years, and there is no truth to the rumor.

A nose by any other name

The guy on the right is a little alarmed, and who wouldn't be after finding out his nose was growing. The man is Don Shipman, and he has the lead role in the Texas Tech University Lab Theater's fast-approaching production of "Pinocchio." Betty Lutrick, left, plays Colombine, who seems to have trouble telling Pinocchio that he's going to turn into a donkey if he doesn't watch his lies. The play is slated to be staged Friday through Sunday and again Sept. 23-25. Ticket information and performance times can be obtained by calling the Lab Theater box office.

Tim Conway's roles stay basically the same — a bumbling idiot

TUBE TALK
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Think of Tim Conway and the word that comes to mind is bumbling. As Ensign Parker on "McHale's Navy," he nearly scuttled a PT boat fleet. He's bumbled his way through countless television guest appearances, three series of his own and Disney movies to his present berth on CBS' "Carol Burnett Show."

This Saturday you can see him salute the armed forces — in his own bumbling way, of course — in his latest special, "Uncle Tim Wants You." Bernadette Peters and Jonathan Winters join him at 7 p.m. (CDT) on CBS.

Conway has created an enduring character who varies with the situation but remains basically the same. He describes him thus: "He's a guy who thinks he's right but is dead wrong and doesn't know it. It's up to the viewers to see him for what he is, a bumbling idiot. No matter what disaster strikes him, he plows straight ahead."

It's a matter of attitude that turns it from drama to comedy. "Look at all the things that happened to the guy in 'Taxi Driver,'" he said, referring to the movie in which the driver reacts by going on a killing binge. "You could switch that around and make it a comedy. That's what comedy is — you take the serious things in life and look at them humorously."

This special is a salute to the military, but Conway said, "It's just an excuse for a special. We make no statements about all war or society. We just as well could have a salute to dogs."

A running gag has him as a German soldier trying to kill Gen. George Patton in a parody of George C. Scott's speech before the huge American flag in "Patton." Conway is so inept with an assortment of weapons, all of which backfire on him, that the general is never aware of his presence behind him.

Conway and Winters are especially effective as they ad lib their way through a sketch in which Conway, as a drill sergeant, tries to show recruit Winters how to assemble his M1 rifle.

"Jonathan wanted to wing it. That's the way he works best," he said. "If you're capable, why not get the best. All I'd have to do was ask him where he was from or had he ever shot a gun before. He'd make up weird things."

"When I asked him if he'd ever shot a gun, he said, 'Yeah, back on the farm. I shot my step brother out of a tree. He didn't have no business up there.' Obviously, you can't write dialogue like that, it just comes to fast."

My favorite among the sketches is Conway as a retiring general giving his farewell speech to the accompaniment of an echo. At first the echo only repeats what Conway says. Then it begins to correct his grammar and finally his claims of a distinguished military career.

After "McHale's Navy," Conway tested his wings in three series of his own, "Rango," "The Tim Conway Show" and "The Tim Conway Comedy Hour." All failed.

"I'm very happy on 'The Carol Burnett Show,' and have no desire to try my own series again," he said. "I'm working almost an hour a week now. When you're working with the best people in the business it'd be silly to go somewhere else and try to prove something."

Why didn't his own shows make it? He replied, "I imagine because they weren't that good. I guess the answer is that if you're good people will find you."

Conway isn't standing idly by, however. He will do a sequel with Don Knotts to their hit Disney movie, "The Apple Dumpling Gang." He recently completed "Billion Dollar Hobo" for the Atlanta-based International Picture Show Co.

In the first, he and Knotts will team up as two small town policemen called on by the governor for an undercover assignment in the state prison. Disguised as prisoners, their job is to find out where a bank robber has hidden his loot. Only the governor knows they're not real prisoners — and, of course, he dies and they're stuck in prison with no one to believe their story.

Hypnotist to charm fairgoers

Vandermeide, billed as "Europe's finest hypnotist," will stage free outdoor shows during the 60th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here Sept. 24-Oct. 1.

Shows are slated for 4 p.m., 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Sept. 24 and 26 and for 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on other dates. Due to prior commitments, Vandermeide will not appear here on closing day of the fair, according to Steve L. Lewis, general manager.

A 20-year veteran of hypnosis, Vandermeide lives in Salt Lake City and plays the college and fair circuit. He was born in Rotterdam.

Through concentration and relaxation, Vandermeide hypnotizes his subjects through the power of suggestion. Although he relies on audience participation, he never allows his subjects to appear ridiculous.

His shows have been acclaimed at many state and regional expositions.

Another free show — a helicopter trapeze act — also will be presented throughout the eight-day fair run.

A daylong fiddlers' contest will kick off the exposition in the Fair Park Coliseum. On closing day, a country music show featuring Texas Gold of South Plains College in Levelland will be featured on the coliseum stage. It also will be a free show.

These entertainment features also are scheduled at the fair:

* Sept. 25 — Charley Pride with Dave and Sugar, 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. only.
* Sept. 26 — Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass with the Hard Travelers of Lubbock Christian College, 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. only.

* Sept. 27-28 — Mel Tillis and the Stateliders, 7:30 p.m. only.
* Sept. 29-30 — Barbara Mandrell with Ronnie Prophet, 7:30 p.m. only.
Reserved seat tickets for all shows cost $6. General admission tickets are $5.

Richard Pryor takes 'vacation'

STAR WATCH
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Richard Pryor had a break in his schedule — he stars in his own television comedy series this fall and in such films as "Greeded Lightning" and the upcoming version of the Broadway hit "The Wiz" — and took his four children on a European vacation.

It was no holiday. Actually, it started out like a film contract negotiation. "One of my daughters said: 'I want 5 per cent of your attention. I'll settle for 5 — just 5 per cent every day. It goes to 7 per cent if you hesitate,'" said Pryor, who has signed multipicture deals with Universal and Warner Bros.

"I'm not married. I have four children (ages 8-20) and they have different mothers. And they've never been together. So, I decided since I've been making money and I've lived a terrible life, I should get my children together. God would love this. I would be respected by Him."

"Well, He taught me a lesson. If there was anything I owed the angels... in heaven, I paid that by having four kids fighting about getting attention, who gets to call home, why they can't go home," said Pryor, 36, who has been married and divorced three times.

An interview with Pryor, who in this case had just returned from Europe and was still suffering from jet-lag, is a series of careening conversations peppered with shouts, obscenities and asides in assorted accents.

"It's very interesting to have your car break down when you can't speak any French: (shouts) 'Can you help me?'" Pryor said of one of the many mishaps on his "vacation."

"It's funny when you are in another country, and you can't speak the language. You think everybody's deaf: 'Can you help me? The car!'"

Pryor ran into car problems of a different sort during the filming of "Greeded Lightning," in which he plays the role of Wendell Scott, the first black stock car racing champion.

"I went down with the intention not to drive because I'm afraid of cars, and I said, 'I'm not going to drive more than 35 miles an hour.'

"But then you go around the track a couple of times... you get to go faster and faster... Wendell showed me how."

"I drove once, I was going about 90 miles an hour on the track in a '71 model and the engine blew — that's because I didn't know how to drive, 'cause I didn't shift to third from second... Then the brakes locked — you've got to see the footage of me sitting there with a little smile, because in my mind, I said: 'Well, God you saved my goat. You didn't have to be in the car, I told you that.'"

Scott, now 56, helped in the filming, which took place in Georgia, rebuilding cars and advising Pryor.

Scott is portrayed as a taxi driver moonlighting as a moonshine runner. He eventually overcomes the color barrier at local dirt tracks of his home town — Danville, Va. — 30 years ago and goes on the national circuit to become champion.

Pryor said Scott's approach toward race relations "was different from how I would do it as a black man today, because I would have taken a shotgun with me. And he don't have none of that feeling."

"Like the guy that (costar) Beau Bridges played, (Hutch, a renegade white racing driver who befriends Scott) that's his friend, they really are friends, you can tell by the way they work still."

One of the more hilarious scenes in "Greeded Lightning" has Scott and Hutch using a Confederate flag and two steak dinners to hold back a mob of white patrons irked at the two drivers' efforts to integrate a restaurant.

Scott "is an amazing person, more amazing than in the film," said Pryor. "And I'm glad the film is that way too. He dismissed it, like the game, whatever the game was supposed to be."

washington update

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

It comes as no surprise that the average Russian lives about one-third as well as the average American; that he consumes, for example, less than half as much meat.

It is somewhat more surprising to learn that the standard of living in Russia also is lower than that of either Poland or Hungary, two Eastern European satellite countries of the Soviet Union.

And the Central Intelligence Agency reports that even harder times are ahead for the people of Russia during the next 10 years.

The CIA projection was included in a report on the economics of Russia and China to the Joint Economic Committee of Congress. As a member of that committee, and as a co-chairman of its subcommittee on economic growth, I studied the report with a great deal of interest.

The CIA expects the Soviet economy to grow by as little as 2 to 2.5 per cent in the early 1980s. By way of comparison, their rate of growth was 3.7 per cent last year, while the United States' economy expanded by 6.1 per cent.

The most serious threat to the Russian economy is a looming oil shortage, mostly to countries in Eastern Europe. By 1985, though, they may be forced to spend $10 billion a year to buy oil from non-communist countries.

Soviet leaders in Moscow will face some hard choices in trying to deal with this shortage, as it helps to intensify their economic woes.

The expected economic difficulties likely will trigger intense debate in Moscow over how much they spend for military arms.

The Soviet military effort last year accounted for almost 12 per cent of that country's total economic output, compared to 5.5 per cent for this country; they spent about $1.40 to every $1 we spent.

One of the central questions raised by the CIA projection is whether the Soviet leaders can continue their present pace of weapon building in a declining economy. Will they, in order to maintain a high level of military expenditures, demand further sacrifices from the Russian people — whose standard of living already is far below that of the Western world? And if they do, how will the Russian people react?

Communist China, according to the CIA report, already has made the decision to reduce military spending. As of the last year, such spending had remained at roughly the same level since 1969, and their aircraft, missiles, ships and ground equipment basically are copies of Soviet designs of the 1950s.

Even so, the Chinese had a rough time of it economically last year. Partly because of political disruptions stemming from the deaths of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai, their economy showed absolutely no growth in 1976.

It would be difficult to speculate on what the economic difficulties in Russia and Communist China will mean insofar as their relations with the U.S. are concerned.

Will the leaders of those nations decide it is in their interests to take a hard-line position in their dealings with us? Or will the need for U.S. technology — particularly oil development technology — and the need for easy access to our credit markets push them to seek closer ties with this country?

We don't know. We do know, though, that if CIA predictions of hard times for these two giants of the communist world come true, we must remain alert and fully prepared to deal with the repercussions, whatever they may be.

The Merry Mixers will host a special dance Saturday in the Merry Mixer building. Wayne Baldwin will be guest caller.

Multiple Sclerosis panel picks officers

The Multiple Sclerosis Chapter of Lubbock elected new officers at their monthly meeting Thursday.

New leaders of the organization are:

Shirley Cotton, residing president; Doris Samford, secretary/treasurer; Donnie Morris, Telephone committee chairman, and Delbert and Peggy Byford, reporters.

Johnnie and Audra Brooks were named to assist Morris on the telephone committee.

The membership was also introduced to the new Patients Services Director of M.S., Mrs. Beverly Banks.

Multiple Sclerosis patients are currently making ceramics to sell. For more information, call Ester Turner at 747-4353.

The group holds meetings on the second Thursday of every month.

LUBBOCK QUAKERS

An unusual religious element in Lubbock in the 1890's were members of the Religious Society of Friends. Originally established at nearby Estacado, the Quaker settlement had broken up shortly after 1890 and some members moved to Lubbock. As late as 1896 they held meetings in the settlement. But Lubbock was a long way from the centers of Quaker strength and the group disbanded.

Tole group meets at party house

The West Texas Cotton Pickin' Painters, the Lubbock chapter of the National Society of Tole and Decorative Painters, is organizing in the area.

Meetings currently are conducted at the Melonie Park South homeowners party house at 3500 74th St. The chapter has monthly meetings, except in May and December, on every second Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

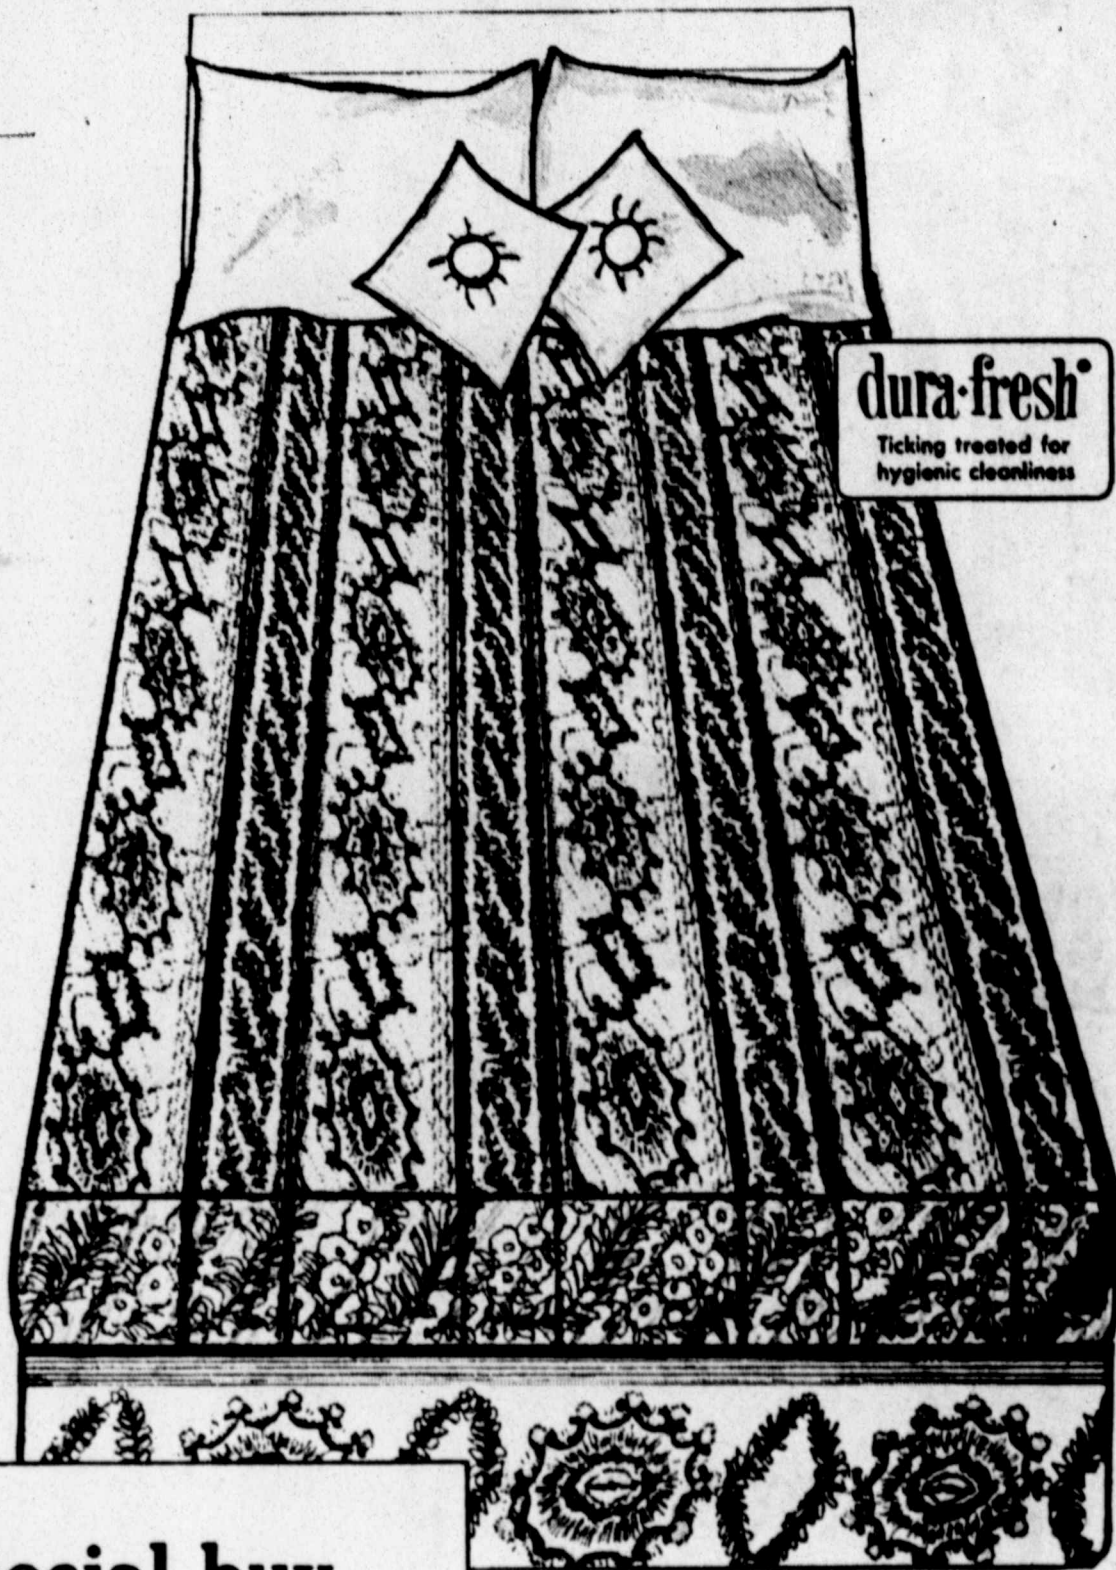

Demonstrations or workshops by teachers will be presented at the meetings.

National Tole Week is scheduled for October, and the group is planning a display of local members' work. Those interested in display should contact Kathy Railsback at 793-2087.
