Poor schools get greater share, testify officials

By Jeff South Update Staff Writer

f the U.S. Justice Department forces the breakup of schools in heavily minority, low-income areas, students there may no longer enjoy the high calibre of instruction and wide range of programs they get now.

So suggest school officials, who say schools in economically depressed neighborhoods of Lubbock get a greater share of the city's educational budget than campuses in middle-and high-income areas.

Testimony to that effect was entered in the Lubbock Independent School District desegregation case primarily to bolster the district's argument that educational opportunities here for minority children are every bit as good as those for

Indeed, school officials said, campuses with the highest concentrations of a minority population actually have a significant edge over other schools in terms of teachers employed and instructional dollars spent

THIS IS BECAUSE such predominantly minority schools are located in lowincome areas and thus are eligible for special assistance, including an annual $1.2 million under the federal government's Title I program and about $300,000 a year in State Compensatory Education funds.

Also, school officials note, the district is operating an extensive bilingual education program, thanks to federal, state and local funding, in predominantly Mexican-American schools. In view of that aid, in concert with additional local efforts for students in "disadvantaged" areas, school administrators said schools in low-income, high-minority areas are getting the best the district has to offer. For example, they said, Lubbock's 14 low-income Title I schools last year had a ratio of just 16 students per teacher. They said the ratio in more affluent southwest schools was much higher - almost 23 pupils for each teacher.

The differences also are borne out in the amount of money spent by each school. Last year, school officials said, the Title I Wheatley Elementary spent $1,-216 on each of its students; most non-Title I schools had per-pupil expenditures

THE POINT OF THE testimony was to demonstrate the school district's efforts to make schools fairly equal throughout the city, with any advantages going in favor of schools in low-income areas.

The Justice Department contends the district has discriminated against black and Mexican-American children and attempted, often successfully, to segregate

The department has asked U.S. Dist. Judge Halbert O. Woodward to order the district to implement a systemwide, comprehensive desegregation plan. Among the various problems school officials see in the prospect of a systemwide plan for mixing white and minority children is the effect on Title I and other programs for students from low-income areas. If these students are dispersed throughout the city's public school system, school officials fear, it will be more difficult to provide them with the special services they now receive. A case in point is the district's bilingual program which, though not intended necessarily for "disadvantaged" children, nevertheless is aimed at a specific population - Mexican-American students with limited English-speaking abilities

Bilingual coordinator Mary Gryder says many Mexican-American parents want their children sent to predominantly Mexican-American schools, where they can receive the bilingual and bicultural advantages not offered elsewhere.

Puppets to perform

Two shows performed by the Texas Tech University Puppeteers have been scheduled for the public. "Santa's Magic Hat" will unveil Saturday at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. in the Community Room of the Lubback City-County Library, 1306-9th St. The puppeteers will also present "The Emperor's Nightingale" Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the library. Surrounded by their puppet friends are, left, Gynell Opperman, Tech senior from Lubbock, and Melba Vuicich, Tech sophomore from Seagraves. Both plays are under the direction of Mrs. Peggy Bright, associate professor of the art department at Tech.

mischievous tricks turned to playing with matches as a holiday hobby this week, setting blazes across Lubbock that put the lives of three city residents in jeopardy

The split-second reaction of a Lubbock man late Friday may have saved a Lubbock grandmother, her daughter and granddaughter from almost certain death from flames engulfing their 612 Ave. B

Ricky Perez of 2202 15th St. told authorities he was visiting relatives when he saw four men in the driveway of Mrs. Enna Jones' nearby house

Perez, who said he is a Green Beret reservist, said he saw two of the men throw what appeared to be flaming rags at the use, jump in a brown station wagon and drive off. Flames quickly engulfed the small house, cutting off all exits to

The young man ran to the Jones' house and broke a window through which

A window on another side of the house had to be broken before he could pull Mrs. Jones to safety and then notify the tire department

Mrs. Jones said she and her daughter, Wanda Carraway, didn't even know the house was on fire until Perez took them from the burning building.

Dist. Fire Chief Travis Burnside said the house was gutted

In other incidents, firemen were checking earlier this week for the possibility of arson in a fire that slightly damaged a vacant home at 3501 E. Cornell St.

Investigators were still checking early this week, but a sheriff's deputy said a Lubbock youth was arrested for arson a short distance from the home just after the flames broke out Sunday night.

Police were told in another incident that someone had set fire to a fence behind Gilbert Flores' 2614 Duke St. home about 11:15 p.m. Saturday, causing more than $100 damage. Firemen said the blaze obviously was set because the fire started in two different places

A laundry owner also told police arsonists struck at his business

Weldon Ahrens of the Wash Pot Laundry at 301 University Ave. said someone apparently unlocked a service panel to a clothes dryer there and then sawed holes in a gas line so that the dryer would catch fire when operated.

Ahrens said the gas leak was ignited by the dryer's pilot light between 10 p.m.

Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Fire Department investigators also were trying to determine the causes of two fires earlier during the past week in which arson was listed as a suspected

Other criminal activity during the week was centered mainly on residential and business burglaries and small thefts, Two Lubbockites, though, found old Mexican-American youth in custody in connection with the alleged armed robbery of a 95-year-old Mexican-American man about 2 p.m. Friday.

Police were still searching for a man in his early 20s who attacked, kidnaped an attendant and robbed the Pizza Inn restaurant at 2102 Broadway of about $320 about 5 p.m. Saturday. The man entered the store, ripped the telephone from the wall, ordered the employees to the floor and then took the

On his way out, the man forced a 36 year-old customer into a walk-in freezer, then took a store employee with him as he left through the back door.

Once outside, the man shoved the attendant to the ground and fled.

Is education really important? Elementary children give views how to buy candy bars, live a long life, lead cheers at football games and just think straight. Without education, there would be no grocery stores and you'd have to make your own bread.

Those are some of the comments by Wheelock Elementary School children in an essay-writing contest during a recent American Education Week commemora-

Unedited excerpts from their awardwinning papers on "The Importance of an Education" give a glimpse of what kids are thinking:

"Education is important to me because it's learning, and everybody wants to learn," wrote Sheryl Renee Duncan, winner of the third-grade competition.

"For instance, if I wanted a Snickers but I hadn't education, I probably wouldn't know which candy bar it was." Melinda Faulkner, runner-up in the sixth-grade contest, gave a stark description of what life would be like without

"We wouldn't have factories to make clothes, and this country would be run down and uncivilized. We probably wouldn't even have a country," she said

"WITHOUT AN EDUCATION, we wouldn't have stores because we wouldn't know how to add, and we would have to make our own bread and other food. Without an education, we couldn't travel for vacation, and how could we get a job when your older to support your

"An education is an opportunity to learn. That's why you go to school, for that opportunity. I know school can be boring sometimes, but if you think about it, it really is great for you and me," Melinda concluded

Added Roy Drexler, second runner-up in the fifth-grade: "Everyone that takes a good, long education usually has a good long life. As a fifth-grader, I know I'm going to be in school longer than I should "If it wasn't for education, man walking on the moon would be something of the future, along with vehicles to drive, television to watch, radio to hear, heaters

"I'll take education and make a new invention..."

to heat us and air conditioners to cool us. Education is just too important to for-

Roy has a secret why he wants an education. "I'll take it and make a new invention I've dreamed of. It's a car AND a boat (not to future-istic). George Weiss, second runner-up in the fourth-grade competition, advises that education is important to know "how not to get in trouble

"Getting an education helps you learn how to walk down the hall correctly, to not be noisy in the bathroom and schoolroom, not to talk to your neighbor in class and to follow directions," George

"Being educated helps you to get a job when you grow up, and maybe day become President of the United

OCCUPATIONS WERE ALSO a concern of Danielle Cowley, the fifth-grade

"Education is more important than just going to school. Not everyone who goes to school gets an education because not everyone trys to learn just because they go to school. An education is what makes a person what they are." Danielle

Without it, we could not become doctors, lawyers, teachers or anything. Without an education, everyone would be qualified to make hamburgers or dig Noted Teresa Luce, runner-up in the fourth-grade competition: "If you had no education, you couldn't get a job. But if you had an education, you may even get a job you like or want.

'And if you did not have an education at all, you wouldn't know how to use your money right, or you wouldn't know or understand what's going on around the world, or wouldn't get along with other people very good," Teresa said. Other students also emphasized the personal qualities an education fosters. "It will make you a better citizen and help you vote," said Alec Blakeley, fourth-grade winner. "An education is important because you need to learn the facts about things, added Jennifer Houze, runner-up in the third grade contest.

"An education is important so you can be successful, so you will learn right from wrong, and when you grow up you can support a family. Without an education, could not think straight," Jennifer

"You learn not to take things that are harmful," continued Katrina Sheffield, second runner-up in the third-grade.

Robert Reynolds, second runner-up in the sixth-grade, said education is everywhere, not just in school. "You learn from books, magazines, newspapers, pic-tures, maps, television and radio. You also learn from talking to other people.

'SCHOOL IS FOR not only children, but for adults also. Men and women are still going to school to get an education for a job. In our days, you need a college education for almost every job, or go to vocational training. Most people go to school and learn more than they expect;

some don't, but most do," Robert said. Michelle McCrady, runner-up in the fifth-grade competition, has her life all planned out. She says she'll go to Hutchnson Junior High, become a cheerleader at Monterey High, get a scholarship to Texas Tech University and then become a teacher or nurse. That's what is great about living in the U.S. - getting a free education and a good chance to go to college, Michelle

'So if you sit and think a minute, you will find that we are very lucky to live in America."

'The game' has its good points

SOMETIMES IN the rush of things in the Fall, there are those who lose sight of what athletics is all

This applies to "the game" at all levels of endeavor, and whether those who participate win or lose.

This is not to downgrade the goal of winning. On the contrary, in the proper perspective, being number one is one of the goals which has kept this nation a leader among the Free World's countries for, lo, these many years.

THERE ARE THOSE who may subscribe to the old bromide that "Nice guys never win...

Or to the idea that one has to be a physical monster and a mental pygmy to be a competitor.

Both are far wide of the mark. Most coaches with whom we are acquainted, and that includes a goodly number of those in Lubbock, at Texas Tech, over the South Plains and the Southwest, still emphasize character as well as perfection

For, no matter what the Monday morning quarterbacks may think, if you haven't got the former, you certainly aren't likely to acquire the latter.

ALL TOO OFTEN, those of us who have played the game or second-guessed it, forget that those out on the fields or courts today are still maturing youngsters and young adults.

While exhibiting varying degrees of physical and mental ability, the fact remains that they are still learning. And because of that, they will learn by trial and error. That is the way it is in life, as well as on the football field, the soccer field or the basketball

The real test, in the final analysis, is one's ability to take the hard knocks, the "bad breaks," the occasional "bad" calls and keep coming back to try again. That, too, is what life is all about

WE CAN THINK of two athletic teams in Lubbock's history which set most unusual examples. One

"won" on the scoreboard and the other "lost." Actually, both were Winners because they exhibited the ultimate in character. One was the 1939 Lubbock High Westerner team, known as the Cinderella Kids. The team, after winning only one of its first five games, and seeing its head coach die shortly after its first district contest, then pulled itself together and under the tutelage and guidance of the remaining coaching staff went on against "insurmountable" odds to win the city's first Texas Schoolboy Champi-

The other incident involved a Texas Tech basketball team which fought its way into the NCAA playoffs, only to face an outstanding Southern Methodist aggregation. The Techsans came within a whisker and one point of upsetting the Ponies and won for themselves the everylasting gratitude of those who still re-

WE WOULD BE remiss if we did not take note of the fact that this year, all of those who participated in athletic events in this city and area have played the game hard and contributed something special to a way of life as we enjoy it.

We should also take note of the fact that Texas Tech has earned itself a second straight bowl appearance, an honor and tribute to a team which fought adversity and injury. By the same token, Monterey's Plainsmen are still in the thick of things for the State Grid Title. They, too, have not had an easy time of it.

FOR THE RED Raiders and the Monterey Plainsmen, we offer what we feel is the City's heartfelt

But, for all of those who make the game possible, who also give their all, we feel they, too, have gained something most worthwhile.

Words like sportsmanship, desire, clean living, the search to excel-all are worthy goals. And they are for real in a world which salutes such accolades regardless of what the cynics may think.

City known for prostitution

Recent statistics indicate that prostitution is on the rise across the country. Every major city is teeming with ladies of the evening, and much of their activity gleans enormous profits for organized crime. However, one city still stands apart as the historical frontrunner of trollop turnover.

For all its romantic allure and gift of American jazz, New Orleans is best known as the city of prostitutes. Storeyville and the Red Light District are gone now, but it their heydays, these quarters were the most notorious scarlet patches

In the early 1870s, more than 8,000 professional prostitutes roamed the streets. In fact, in 1872 the New Orleans police superintendent told the governor of Louisiana that the harlots were "lost to all sense of shame and self-respect," and that they made the "night hideous with their drunken orgies, and (annoyed) the respectable residents of the neighborhood with their indecent behavior.

FOR ALMOST 40 years, beat cops ignored their supervisors' wrath and collected nickles and dimes left on the front stoops of bordellos. But when business fell off and the small-change kickbacks narrowed, police would raid the One such madam was Kate Townsend, whose lavish house offered resplendant tapestries, damask and black walnut furniture. The New Orleans Picayune once reported of Townsend's bedroom that, 'The hangings of the bed, even the mosquito bar, were of lace, and an exquisite basket of flowers hung suspended from the tester of the bed. Around the walls were suspended chaste and costly oil paintings.

Despite her beauty, fame and money, Townsend ran afoul of her "fancy man," Treville Egbert Sykes, the son of a wealthy New Orleans merchant. In a fit of rage over one of Sykes' indiscressions with another girl, Townsend almost slashed him to death while he slept. Sykes, however, wrested the knife from Kate and killed her. Although Kate left an estate of $100,-000, Sykes, after battling for the money for five years in court, was awarded $34. Complained the fancy man, "It ain't much for the love of your life."

The queen of all the New Orleans harlots was unquestionably the flamboyant Josie Arlington, whose sex emporium cost several hundred thousand dollars to build. Arlington made untold fortunes. but she grew morose long before Storey-ville closed down and bought an expensive tomb in the Metarie Cemetary.

After Arlington's death and entombment, the city erected a red traffic warning light just outside the cemetery. Its glow at night freakishly reflected off the tomb, suggesting that New Orleans was honoring its most celebrated madam. As years went by, until embarrassed authorities removed the light, visitors stood gazing as the red light blinked on and off above the tomb

Leadership Lubbock program starts second year

Leadership Lubbock, a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored program for potential community leaders, has kicked off its second year of operation.

Perry Gott of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, program coordinator of the leadership program, said the group provides "potential leaders with general background information on different aspects of the city so they will be available to fill roles of voluntary leadership in the community.

The program consists of seven monthly sessions. The first meeting, in October, focused on cultural aspects of Lubbock. The November session discussed local and county government.

Gott said the sessions were highlighted with tours to various city offices. The next meeting is slated for Dec. 19. when the participants will discuss community services such as the United Way and Heart Association.

Upcoming topics include the area economy and the criminal justice system. The sessions will conclude in May with a general evaluation of the leadership pro-what's cooking?

By Martha Bowden Update Staff Writer

We are really like one big happy family. I have watched children come and go down our cafeteria line through the years and I love them all as if they were my own," said Mrs. Ora Shamburger, the head cook at St. Elizabeth's Catholic

For 15 years this has been Mrs. Shamburger's life, and now that her husband is retired and their two children grown, she is more involved in her cafeteria work than ever. "I suppose I should retire," said Mrs. Shamburger who is 68years-old but as energetic and vouthful in many ways as the children she serves.

Cooking for approximately 130 children daily is no problem for Mrs. Shamburger. She has one helper, Mrs. Tiny Halfmann, and together they serve "kidpleasing" meals to the children of St. Elizabeth. The school janitor Tony Martinez washes the dishes and sweeps and mops the floor and does the general clean-up after each meal.

Mrs. Shamburger said that in determining each week's menus, she follows closely the government's Menu Planning Book for "Type A" school lunches. A Type A lunch as defined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture consists of the tollowing: one-half pint of milk; 2 ounces of meat, poultry or fish; 3/4 cup of vegetables or fruits or both; and one slice of whole-grain or enriched bread. There are substitutions, however, Mrs. Shamburger noted, if there is a short supply of some of the items. For the 2 ounces of meat, for example, 2 ounces of cheese, one egg or 1/2 cup of cooked dry beans or peas, or 4 tablespoons of pea-

WHEAT BREAD 8 pkgs. active dry yeast 21/4 qt. lukewarm water

31/2 qt. sifted all-purpose flour 31/4 qt. whole-wheat flour

13/4 nonfat dry milk 7/8 cup sugar

1/3 cup salt

7/8 cup melted fat or oil Add yeast to lukewarm water in a 10-15 quart bowl. Stir after 10 minutes. Sift dry ingredients, saving out 1 quart of the white flour. Add fat or oil and the dry ingredients to the yeast mixture. Mix 15 to 20 minutes at low speed, using dough hook, until dough is smooth and elastic and leaves the sides of the bowl. If after 2 minutes of mixing the dough is still sticky, add enough saved-out flour to form a soft dough. Form dough into a smooth ball. Place in a greased bowl and turn dough to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until increased 2 to 3 times in volume (about 11/4 hours).

Punch dough down. Cut into 12 equal portions. Form each portion into a ball, cover, and let rest on table top for about 15 minutes. Shape into loaves and place in lightly greased pans (about 3x9x2-inches or 4x8x2-inches). Let rise in a warm place until increased 2 to 21/2 times in volume (about 1-1/2 hours). Bake at 400 degrees 35 to 40 minutes. A small pan of water placed in the oven gives a tender crust. Yields 12 loaves, 1 pound each.

PRUNE-SPICE CAKE

3 cups shortening

11/2 qt. sugar

21/2 cups eggs 2 qt. chopped, cooked prunes 3 qt. sifted all-purpose flour

3 tbsp. soda

1/2 tsp. nutmeg 2 tbsp. cinnamon

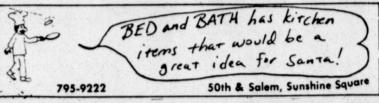

2 tbsp. cloves

2 tbsp. salt 21/2 cups sour milk

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat until light and fluffy. Blend in prunes. Sift flour, soda, spices and salt together 3 times. Add to creamed mixture alternately with sour milk. Pour batter into 2 baking pans (about 12x20x2-inches), lined with paper and greased. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes. Serves 100 when portions are cut into 134x2-inch

Both came originally from the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Both enjoy outdoor sports and are members of sororities. And both are employed part-time at the Wearhouse shop.

As active, working students, neither has time to do a great deal of cooking. When time permits, however, both enjoy preparing favorite dishes. One favorite they both share and recommend is the following:

UPDATE

Dirk West: From cartoons to politics

By Franks Coats Update Staff Writer

irk West pulled a chair around and sat down, relaxed and alert — especially for such an early morning Saturday interview. The mayor pro tem of the Lubbock City Council sat down to discuss his life here, his art and his politics.

West moved to Lubbock when he was six months old, and remembers very little of the journey, and even less of his previous life in Littlefield. As a child he started to draw and compared drawings and cartoons with school friends and his brother.

These drawings eventually took on a style, and now West is famous for his portrayals of the Southwest Conference teams. Fans chuckle and sometimes even heat their fists on the table at the exploits of Boo Bird, the dumb Aggie, the Texas Longhorn and of course the Yosemite Sam-ish Raider Red. These characters appear on mugs, posters and many other places, not forgetting the sports pages of your local daily.

"They get mailed everywhere," he said not with modesty but with a matter-of-fact air. "They're quite well known..."

"I could -1 say I could because I've been asked many times - do the cartoons for a lot of papers. But it's a hobby and I don't have the time or the inclination to do 10 or 12 panels a week."

West said if he had to draw too many cartoons, it would cease to be a hobby, stop being fun. His hobby would turn into work and it would lose that vital element of laughter.

"It's got to be spontaneous. If you sit and think one you'll think it to death."

One of West's "idols", Al Capp, finally gave up drawing Lil' Abner because he began to think of it as drudgery. West is afraid he'd fall into the same dilemma if he concentrated more on his hobby.

He leaned back and stroked his steel-gray hair and thought a moment.

"You know, when I was a kid the people I looked up to, my idols, were Al

"You know, when I was a kid the people I looked up to, my idols, were Al Capp and Walt Kelley, the man who did the 'Pogo' strip. Oh, and Hal Forrester, who draws Prince Valiant. Every one of his panels was like a classic painting.

Besides his drawing, West has been in the public eye for some time. He was a stand-up comic for a while and for three years he hosted a two-hour kiddle show.

About being a comic, he said, "I was just playing around, it was something to do. I had no aspirations, I just had a lot of fun."
"I wrote my own material," he said, "but you'd have to decide for yourself if it was good."

West was doing cartoons for the commercials for the newly formed channel

West was doing cartoons for the commercials for the newly formed channel 13, and he was asked to do his own show — live, two hours a day.

"We did everything we could to fill the time," he said. "I drew, talked with the kids and ran puppets. I ran eight puppets, all with different voices."

"And Ted Simon (the Avalanche-Journal travel-outdoors editor) was a clown. He dressed up in a clown suit and was hit by pies and squirted with seltzer bottles...and he hit us with pies."

West would smile and laugh and stroke his moustache when reminiscing about the kiddie show or talking about his cartoon characters, but the smile shortened and the face grew more somber when talking about city government. West is mentioned strongly as a candidate for mayor, but he hasn't yet announced.

"I'm about 80/20 for running," he said. "But — I've said this before — I'm not a politician.

"Politicians really turn me off. They're ego freaks, self-inflated, real bores. I've tried to be as unpolitical as I can be."

Dirk West by Dirk West

But, he said, "I'll run for mayor unless I can find someone to support."

And, looking in the current political picture of Lubbock, he hasn't seen anyone he would.

"It's not that I think I'm so smart, I think I have the approach to the city that's the right approach, " he said. West said if he ran he would run a strong law and order campaign, "with 100 percent support of our police."

"Lubbock has always been such a safe, clean city, and it terrifies me that we're losing it. I don't want people to be afraid to walk out on the streets at night. I want Lubbock to be the most unpopular city for the criminal element. And we need to get double-tough."

West also favors stricter penalties for negligent drivers, something he thinks would help curb the "alarming fatality rate" of Lubbock motorists.

If he decides to run, he knows where he'll get a base of support: from himself. "I'll probably have my characters campaign for me," he said. But if he doesn't run?

"I don't know. I'll either get out of politics and start something new, or run for mayor."

"It's that simple."

move on safely and smoothly.

Traffic Update: Share the streets

(Editor's note: The following article is presented by the Lubbock Otizens Traffic Commission in cooperation with Update to help keep local motorists better informed on traffic related matters.)

DEATH WATCH: Thanksgiving Day was marred by the city's 43rd traffic fatality this year. An urgent question in everyone's mind is: Who can prevent the next traffic-related death on Lubbock streets?

You may be able to prevent the next fatal accident if you drive defensively.
You may save your own life — and someone else's — if you share the streets with your neighbors, considerately and courteously.

An in-depth study of the record number of fatal accidents in 1977 has revealed that drivers' refusal to give others right of way was the number one killer. The American Automobile Association warns that if the other driver wants the right of way, let him have it. Better a mature decision than death or a lifetime of suffering.

DEFENSIVE DRIVING TIPS: Here are some cases where the other driver was at fault, but VOII could have prevented the accident.

was at fault, but YOU could have prevented the accident.

1. The light turns green, you start across and are hit by a driver going through on the red. Even though you have the green light, make sure the cross traffic is stopping before you proceed.

2. In heavy traffic you make a sudden stop and are hit by a following car. Avoid the necessity of a sudden stop by allowing more following distance. Watch two or three cars ahead to get an early warning of trouble in the making.

You strike the car ahead because it makes an unexpected sudden stop.

You could have avoided this by allowing greater following distance. Use a 3-to 5-second space cushion between you and the car ahead.

4. You are on a through street when a driver who had been waiting at a stop sign pulls in front of you. Don't assume that the stop sign gives you 100 percent protection. Watch traffic on the cross street.

5. While going straight through an intersection you are hit by an approaching car making a left turn in front of you. Never assume the other driver will yield until he has come to a stop.
The secret of preventing accidents is a constant awareness of the other driver.

The secret of preventing accidents is a constant awareness of the other driver so that no matter what he does, he can't involve you in an accident.

The illustration shows that drivers may make left turns at any point along the designated area.

Some motorists apparently mistake them for passing lanes or use them to enter the flow of traffic. McDaniel emphasizes that these are not lanes for through traffic. Drivers should enter such lanes only a few feet in advance of the point where the turn is to be made.

If drivers use these lanes properly, motorists behind them will be able to

Seniors can apply for scholarships

High school seniors interested in Army ROTC scholarships should begin preparing applications now, according to Lt. Col. George T. Kimbro, professor of military science at Texas Tech University.

"About 700 full-tuition four-year scholarships will be awarded to students who enter college in the fall of 1978," Kimbro said.

The scholarships pay all tuition costs for four years, books, laboratory fees, plus an additional monthly allowance of $100 for up to 10 menths of each school year, Kimbro said.

Students who apply for and receive an Army ROTC Scholarship must agree to serve at least four years of active duty as an Army officer upon graduation.

Red Raiders head for Florida after 17-14 loss to Razorbacks

It's all over except the celebrating for 7:30 p.m. CST. Arkansas will take on the Texas Tech footballers.

And the celebration will be staged in Orlando, Fla., just before Christmas.

Thursday, the Raiders finished the regular-season portion of the 1977 season, dropping a 17-14 verdict to Arkansas with more than 32,000 fans looking on.

But, before the kickoff, both teams knew they were going to bowl games and both in Florida. Tech had selected a trip to Orlando, Fla., and the Tangerine Bowl, and the Razorbacks, one of the surprises in the Southwest Conference this year, is heading for the Jan. 2 Orange

The loss dropped Tech to 7-4 for the year, all losses coming in conference, and Arkansas will carry a 10-1 record into the Orange Bowl

But, for a time-especially at the half it looked as if the Raiders would upset the conference's No. 2 team. A pair of touchdowns by Billy Taylor staked the Raiders to a 14-3 lead. And on the first possession in the third period, Tech had the ball inside the Porker 15.

But, a mixup led to a third-down pass and a blocked field goal blunted any hopes of additional points. From that point. Arkansas dominated, scoring the winning TD with six minutes to play

Brown, owner of Lubbock Bowl, received that title at the National Association of Independent Resurfacers annual convention in Hawaii in early Novem-

"I'm still in a state of shock over this (the award)," Brown said recently. "I was caught totally unaware and certainly wasn't expecting anything like this. "The one thing above all others that makes it so nice is that this award is voted on by the entire membership, not just a committee and is really an Industry Service Award." Brown served as president of the National Association of Independent Resurfacers back in 1973 and was the first leader elected from the membership. When I was elected, this organization was limited to 15 or 20 businessmen. From there, it's grown to some 60 firms and has steadily increased each year. There's 80 odd firms which do 90 to 95 per cent of the construction and resurfacing work in the U.S. and the majority belong to this organization.

"DURING MY YEAR we instituted a type of education program at the national convention and it's been carried down through the years. We break people into small groups for round table discussions. We place a specialized person such as a promotions man and have him at that table. After 30 minutes or so, he switches tables and another comes in. We've found this to be excellent, because quite often people are timid about asking questions in a large group but small round-table discussions have been an excellent way to transmit ideas.

Brown is presently chairman of the Industy and Public Relations Committee of the NAIR and part of his job is to act as liaison between all other associations and those interested in bowling.

junior editors' quiz

Encyclopedias

QUESTION: Who wrote the first encyclopedia?

ANSWER: In his attempt to bring all existing knowledge together in a series of books, the Greek philosopher, Aristotle, gave birth to the idea of an encyclopedia. Other early encyclopedists were the Romans Varro and Pliny the Elder. Pliny's "Natural History" was written in 77-79 A.D. The oldest encyclopedia extant, Pliny's work remained popular through 43 editions for almost 1,500 years.

These early encyclopedias, representing the accumulated learning of their individual authors, differ from modern encyclopedias. Today, these volumes serve as reference works and are written by many scholars.

One of the most important of the early encyclopedias was the "Speculum Majus" ("Great Mirror"), complied in the 13th century Bryan Cruz of Nicolaus, Calif., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus Associated Press' handsome World Yearbook if your question is selected for a prize. Mail your question on a postcard to Junior Editors, in care of Update, Box 491, Lubbock, Tex., 79408.

Tech women to present carol event

The Women's Swing Choir from Texas Tech University will present "A Ceremony of Carols" Monday at 11:30 a.m. at Westminster Presbyterian Church at 3321 33rd St

Gail Barber, associate professor of music at Tech, will perform on the harp. The choir will be directed by William Hartwell, assitant professor of music at Tech. In addition to many cantata ond oratorio performances, he has sung roles in opera and musical comedy. Hartwell created the role of Rogozhin in the world premier production of "Myshkin," which received the Peabody award and recently was recently shown in Latin America.

"A Ceremony of Carols" consists of an opening procession, nine carols and a recession, rich with poetic beauty and religious feeling, according to a spokesman. The public is invited to attend.

THINKING IS HARD WORK, but prejudice is a pleasure ... Making anti-remarks gives one a sense of effortless superiority unobtainable in any other way, to paraphrase Margaret Halsey, author of the new book "No Laughing Matter

—The Autobiography of a WASP."

The Bob Haldeman memoirs will soon be ready for delivery. It is said that the publishers just snagged an extra $250,000 for German rights to the book coming from the former Nixon aide who is still in the slammer over Watergate.

You can see Vernon Presley as a surprise guest on the Jan. 7 "Hee Haw." Elvis' dad was in Nashville watching his son's ex-love, Linda Thompson, tape the television show and the producer prevailed on him to provide an introduction to a gospel song.

Best-selling author Jack Higgins'

"Storm Warning" was bought by Peter 'The Deep" Guber for Columbia and will be a Mike Richie-directed movie starring Burt Reynolds and Peter Shaw. Totie Fields purchased the Beverly Hills house once owned by the late Laurence Harvey. Otto Preminger wants Anne Bancroft to repeat her Broadway impersonation of "Golda" and play the former prime minister in his movie "The Homeland," an epic about Israel's struggles

OUT ON A LIMB with a chainsaw (again!): One drama critic, John Simon, is made at me. Why not make everybody sore? Here's what I think - I think you'll see dance critic Clive Barnes leave the New York Times (they removed him as drama critic, you'll recall, as this space predicted) for the New York Post. The lawyers are drawing up an agreement based on a handshake right this moment, and it will all probably happen before Christmas. The salary being mentioned is astronomical. Most ink-stained wretches in the press eke by, but they say Clive might get in excess of $75,000 a year. Don't ask me what will happen to Post critic Martin Gottfried - I don't know STICK SIDE DOWN: GOP nabobs are sizzling at Ronald Reagan, who used to be their boy. He banks $5,000 per time out on the lecture circuit and now demands that same hefty fee to speak at Republican Party affairs. In other words, he treats his fellow Republicans as if they were Democrats..

Jacqueline Onassis may have won the $26 million decision over her step-daughter Christina, but so far she hasn't seen a drachma of it due to the roadblocks and red tape thrown up by the Onassis lawyers. They say the forms to fill out would choke a horse ... Safe tycoon John Mosler and his Sheila can't seem to find the combination to their wedlock ... Sally Struthers is the latest to tell pals that when her 'All in the Family" contract ends in February she won't renew. Auspices for a ninth season are not good It looks like the refurbished Marlborough-Blenheim will be the first of the five major boardwalk hotels in Atlantic City to open gambling facilities come March 1978 ... The half dozen producers of Broadway's big hit "Dracula" are be-having as if their play is a bomb that might close Saturday night. Instead of having a congratulatory ball, they are at each other's throats, threatening lawsuits and blood-letting. Two of them put only about $400 of their own money into the production, which is sold out through December. Question: Do they see their reflections in mirrors?

BURYING THE NEWS: Remember Ray Ryan? He was William Holden's partner in the swanky Kenya Safari Club and once upon a time was known as the top gambler and card player in America.

Well, he was blown up in his car in Evansville, Ind., recently and the papers quietly buried it. Once upon a time the story would have been page one news ... Two New York banks and Mayor-elect Ed Koch are said to be trying to convince Bess Myerson to run for governor of New York in 1978 Democratic primary.

They'd like to see the last of Hugh Carey Washington's Maxine Cheshire's book, due this spring, will definitely tell of her close encounter with Frank Sinatra and the money he stuffed into her ginger ale Steve McQueen is reading Nick Mayer's new one, "Black Orchid," with an eye to making it his next movie ... Arthur Marx, who already put Groucho between hard covers and is working on Red Skelton, will probably accept the offer to immor-talize "Believe It or Not's" Robert Ripley ... Forget those stories about Fave Dunaway playing Evita Peron in a musical. She doesn't sing and wouldn't think of trying. But Catherine Denevue is looking to play Argentina's legendary "dictator-ess" in a movie, which she'll also produce.

real estate review

When regulations limit a lending institution's mortgage loans to a definite percentage of appraised value, (80 percent, for example), it is possible to obtain a larger loan with a MGIC (Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corporation) guarantee without violating those regula-

MGIC developed the private loan guarantee insurance program. Its purpose is to make conventional loans more competitive with high loan-to-value financing authorized under government sponsored FHA and VA mortgage programs.

The MGIC loan insurance program has been available since 1957, but few homebuyers understand how it works. Under the provisions of this privately insured lending program, home purchasers can obtain conventional loans up to 95 percent of the appraised property value up to $60,000. For example, if a residence is appraised at $40,000, and a qualified purchaser wishes to make a cash down payment of only $2,000, he will need a conventional mortgage of $38,000. Even though the lender's limit is an 80 percent loan, a 95 percent loan can be obtained with a MGIC guarantee.

To obtain a MGIC insured loan, the borrower must pay a one-time service charge at the time of closing the transaction. The exact percentage of the charge is determined by the number of years it will take to reduce the loan balance to the 80 percent of appraised value limit.
