Wholesale Prices Rise; Unemployment Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) - The cost of food prices began accelerating again. food rose sharply, last month, to lead another increase in wholesale prices, but the nation's unemployment rate dipped to 5.7 percent, the government said Fri-

The Carter administration said the two Labor Department reports illustrate the need to fight inflation while showing 'striking progress" in the battle against unemployment, which dropped from 6.1 percent of the work force to 5.7 percent.

The prices grocers pay for food went up 1.1 percent in June, more than double the 0.5 percent gain the month before. These increases usually show up within a few months at retail stores.

Prices turned up sharply for poultry, pork, beef, veal, vegetables, fruit and rice. Prices declined for eggs, vegetable oils and sugar.

Prices of automobiles went up more slowly than in May, while prices of furniture went up faster. Gasoline prices were

Council of Economic Advisers, said that inflation, as reflected in Friday's report, is clearly too high. The numbers emphasize once again the need to pursue the administration's anti-inflation program vigorously.

The drop in the unemployment rate was attributed mostly to white teen-agers finding summer jobs in June. Schultze said the decline "may possibly reflect some statistical aberration" because of forced its troops along the I ebanese and Syrian borders, Friday, and world leaders stepped up efforts to keep President Elias Sarkis from resigning and prevent the Syrian-Christian feud from developing into a new Mideast crisis.

The administration does not expect any further decline in unemployment this year, however, one government econo-

The reinforcements, and the flight of seven Israeli warplanes over Beirut on Thursday, were a warning to Syria to stop its attacks on Israel's Christian allies in Lebanon. Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said Israel would have to "do more than just take note" of the Syrian attacks in Beirut's Christian quarter

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv confirmed an Israel radio report that said forces had been strenghtened "along the entire border" in the north. The spokesman said the reinforcement also was designed to deter Palestinian guerrillas from taking advantage of the Syrian action by stepping up activity against Christians in southern Lebanon.

Syria put its armed forces on alert. A pro-Syrian Newspaper in Belrut quoted diplomatic sources as saying Syria extended a "protective air unbrella" over northern Lebanon. The report could not be confirmed.

"Only Language ... Force"
Francis Rizak, the spokesman for Christian forces in southern Lebanon, anpealed to Israel and the Christian world to save Lebanon

In an interview with Israeli state radio. he said, "The only language the Syrians understand is force, and Israel has the force to deal with them.

'Our fate is linked to Israel's," Rizak said. He predicted that if the Syrians were allowed to eliminate the Christians in northern Lebanon, they would then capture the south and try to use it as a springboard to attack Israel.

The Christian quarter of Beirut was calm, Friday, as Syrian guns fell silent after six days of intensive bombardment of East Beirut, where rightist militias sniper fire, however, kept most of the quarter's 600,000 residents indoors. Ambassadors'Lineup

The parking lot at the presidential palace was brimming with limousines as ambassadors lined up to present their governments' views and get a reading on the complex political situation. Syrian President Hafez Assad, who provided key support for Sarkis' elevation to the presidency two years ago, said the 53-year-old Christian should remain in office for the sake of security and stability, Damascus radio reported.

But Moslem Prime Minister Salim el Hoss, who resigned and then reneged after a Syrian-Christian confrontation in April, told reporters Sarkis was still "insisting on his step." The president told political leaders that if he is not given the power to govern effectively he would re-

Hale Jury No-Bills Deputy

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW - After 10 hours of testimony Friday, the Hale County grand jury no-billed reserve deputy Charles Cypert, whose .45-caliber automatic discharged, killing a 25-year-old Mexican-American man June 25.

The seven-man, five-woman panel which included three Mexican-Americans and a black - heard from 18 witnesses Friday before returning the ruling. The grand jury then weighed the decision from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday.

Cypert, who has been relieved of duty pending the ruling, was not in the courtroom when the decision was made and was not available for comment.

Similarly, no Mexican-Americans were in the court at the time of the ruling. Jurors Friday twice heard testimony from Texas Ranger Jim Mull, who investigated the slaying. It also called Hale County Charles Tue and elicited a 30minute account from Cypert. The ruling came after 21 witnesses had testified for 12 hours in two days of Tue had said in public accounts that the 45-year-old Cypert stopped Tim Rosales' car at the intersection of two farm roads about 4 miles north of the Mayfield community because Rosales' vehicle was running on the rims of two When Cypert approached the car, Tue said, Rosales jumped and ran, Cypert chased him down, and a scuffle ensued, during which the deputy's gun discharged, killing the younger man.

The day after the incident Hispanic leaders began a protest of what they termed the latest in "useless" slayings of Mexican-Americans at the hands of law officers.

Mexican-American leaders earlier this week announced that a protest march would be held July 15 if the grand jury did not indict Cypert.

Tue was not available for comment late Friday, and other Hale County Sheriff's Office deputies refused to comment on the upcoming march. A caravan of cars and rallies will be staged beginning at Hale Center and moving to the county courthouse in Plainview, the leaders said. March leaders met with Plainview authorities Tuesday to map out the protest route and, Tue said, there will be no violence "as long as they do what they say they're going to do."

The demonstration was mapped out despite a statement early in the investi-gation by Tony Reyes, who said, "There will be no planned demonstrations as long as we are satisfied the investigation cted and facts presented are being searched out thoroughly."

The group broke into enthusiastic applause after Robert Green and Dr. Gene Medley, who moderated the association meeting, read the letter aloud.

Medley said that if only a few hundred letters are mailed to West, the council may view the association and its supporters as merely a "little old bunch of radicals." But if 20,000 letters are sent, the council will see that the tax-cut request eflects the feeling of the city's majority, Medley said.

Several association members asked why a similar request is not being made of the Lubbock Independent School Dis-See PROPERTY Page 14

Suspect Held In Kidnap Of Family

WINNIE (AP) - A former son-in-law of a couple allegedly abducted from their blood-spattered home here was arraigned Friday on five counts of aggravated kidnapping, officials said.

Federal, state and local law enforcement officers are still searching for five members of the Bishop Phillips family missing since Saturday night.

Justice of the Peace Mary Dugat setbonds of $100,000 on each count for Ovid Joseph Dugas, Jr., 31, in connection with the family's disappearance in Win-nie in Southeast Texas about 25 miles southeast of Beaumont.

When taken before Judge Dugat, Dugas denied any knowledge of the disappearance of his relatives.

Police said Dugas was mowing his lawn in the Port Acres area of Port Arthur when he was arrested.

Members of the family reported miss-ing are Phillips, 64, and his wife Ester, 66, a son, Elmer, 3l, his wife Martha and their four-year-old son, Jason. The younger couple was visiting from Wood-ward, Okla., for the July 4th weekend, according to another son, George.

Group Seeks Vote On School Tax Lid

AN ANTI-BUSING group notified the city and school district Friday that it will seek special elections to amend the city charter and to limit school taxes and spending. We the People, a group that claims to have about 2,000 members, filed with the school district and city secretary copies of petitions it plans to circulate through Lub-

If at least 10 percent of the city's registered voters sign the petitions, group member Ivan Barber said. We the People will demand a special election so voters can decide whether to approve the following suggested charter changes: -The city tax levy would not exceed 80 cents per $100 valuation;

-Real property would be evaluated for tax purposes at a value no greater than its last sale price or than its present owner's construction cost, if no sale was made; -Agricultural land would be valued by its productivity, not its fair market value; and -City tax money would be spent "first" on police, fire protection, garbage collection, water, sewer, parks, streets, library and public transportation services. A separate petition asks the school board and/or county judge to call a special election "for the purpose of placing a limitation upon taxes and spending." The group proposes the same measures suggested in the charter petition, with the exception that tax money would be allocated "first" by school trustees for "classroom teachers, instructional material, libraries, trainable handicapped, vocational classes, and educable mentally retarded." By spelling out how school tax money could be spent, Barber said, the school district could not allocate funds for busing programs.

"We feel that if money is not available to buy buses, it can help to stave off" forced busing ordered by a federal court, he explained. And the group wants to limit city taxes because they are too high, he said. City and school officials had little comment about the proposals Friday afternoon, saying they have forwarded them to their attorneys for review. However, School Supt. Ed Irons said, "Several of the points raised in the petition are, in my opinion, questionable." He cited the proposal that tax evaluations be limited to the property's most recent sale price as conflicting with state law that mandates fair market price evaluations. The city's current tagassessment is $1.41 per $100 valuation. An Avalanche-Journal check shows that if the 80-cent limitation were imposed, the city's budget would drop from about $12 million to about $5.5 million.

The same limitation would mean the school district's operating budget would be cut approximately in half, from about $17 million to about $8 million Barber said We the People hopes to join forces with other local groups opposing

Judge Orders Snepp To Surrender Book 'Gains'

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - Former CIA agent Frank W. Snepp III was ordered by a federal judge Friday to surrender his "ill-gotten gains" from a book about CIA conduct in Vietnam and to get the agency's approval before publishing anything else.

U.S. District Judge Oren R. Lewis did not rule on whether Snepp will be required to forfeit his profits, only that they be placed in trust pending appeal. Snepp has 60 days to ask for appellate re-

But Lewis rejected Snepp's contention that the evidence justified at most only a symbolic penalty.

Nominal damages in a case like this would be nothing more than a license to continue doing what the law forbids," the judge said in a written order. "This action involves a substantial wrong to the United States and to the public's interest in the effective functioning of its govern-

Snepp, who was a CIA agent for 71/2 years and served two tours of duty in Vietnam, contended in his book that the intelligence agency made errors in judgment in the evacuation of Saigon that resulted in leaving behind many Vietnamese who had aided the United States.

The CIA sued him, alleging he had broken an oath to clear his manuscript with the agency before publication.

Snepp told reporters after the judgment was issued that forfeiture of his royalties "won't buy back the honor that the CIA lost in the final days of the Vietnam war or purchase its immunity from responsible criticism.

'You're witnessing here something that is really quite unprecedented in American history because an American dared to criticize the government and do so responsibly," Snepp said. "He is being gagged and cannot speak out. ... And that's something I thought was reserved for the countries the CIA is working Snepp and his lawyers said the case will be appealed to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The former agent complained that CIA Director Stansfield Turner "was allowed to appear on the stand to impugn my integrity, but when I tried to answer him on the stand I was interrupted repeatedly and was unable to put my particular side of the case on the record. It looked like a stacked deck to me from the beginning.'

Snepp has said that so far he has realized about $60,000 from the sale of his book, "Decent Interval," to Random House, Inc., and from paperack rights. He testified at a two-day trial that this is less than he would have made if he had continued to work for the CIA. He said movie rights have not been sold, but that he has received $20,000 for paperback rights and is promised $20,000

Snepp contended the publication was legal. He said the agreement he signed when he joined the CIA in 1968 was modified by another he signed when he left in 1976. The second required only that he submit any manuscript containing classified material, he said.

Snepp argued that his book, published last November, did not reveal any confidential information. The Justice Department did not dispute that assertion, but said the book contained information on CIA activities which should not have been publicized.

"Snepp's willful refusal to comply with his prepublication review obligations to the CIA demonstrates, unless redressed, the potential vulnerability of all information provided to the CIA on a confidential basis," Lewis said in his order.

"It is elementary that the successful conduct of international diplomacy and the maintenance of an effective national defense require both confidentiality and secrecy," the judge added.

Lewis said the CIA cannot protect its sources and methods if agents are allowed to determine what intelligence should be made public.

"One who breaches his trust and secrecy agreements with the agency of the United States charged with the responsibility for protecting intelligence sources and methods ought not to be permitted to retain his ill-gotten gains," the judge

The action marked the second time a district judge here has denied bond for a defendant under auspices of a state constitutional amendment approved by voters last November.

Under terms of the amendment, bail can be denied a person who is charged with a felony committed while the person is free on bond for an alleged prior felony.

In addition to the charges filed Wednesday, Jackson has two indictments pending against him. Records show he was indicted Aug. 3, 1977, for burglary of a habitation. An attempted rape indictment was returned against him Sept. 8, 1977.

The defendant was charged Wednesday with aggravated rape as the result of a July 1 incident. The sexual abuse charge stems from an alleged attack on a 22year-old school teacher June 10.

Bevers Friday denied bond in the sexual abuse case. The ruling means the state must now bring the case to trial within 60 days of the date of Jackson's incarceration, unless the defense requests a

Bull Run Draws Tourists, Locals To Spanish Town

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI) --Spaniards and tourists, united in a daredevilry made famous by Ernest Hemingway, raced the bulls through the streets of this medieval hill town Friday in the annual Fiesta of San Fermin.

The only persons injured were two youths who tried to play matador inside the bullring. One of them had to be treated at the provincial hospital for bruised

The early morning running of the bulls lasted just two minutes from the firing of a rocket, the signal to open the gates of the corral, to the arrival of the herd at the bullring.

Aficionados said the tame bull. which led six fighting bulls up the steep and narrow streets, performed perfectly.

A Spanish teen-ager was killed and 40 other merrymakers were injured on one run last year. Deaths are relatively rare - 11 in the last half century - but there are dozens of injuries each year from hooves and horns.

The injured usually are not the local youths but foreigners trying to relive Hemingway's 1926 novel, "The Sun Also Rises," part of which was set at the Pamplona festival.

The running in the morning and the bullfights in the evening are the big events of the three-day celebration otherwise given to dancing, singing and serious wine drinking lasting through the night.

Town officials said the crowds appeared slightly smaller than in previous years but predicted they would swell on Saturday and Sun-

The bulls came from the ranch of Pablo Romero, known as the breeder of some of Spain's bravest. Once they were safely in their stalls under the ring, fighting cows with padded horns were sent out in their place for the amateurs to cape.

The Spanish press warned of possible political violence during the festival because Pamplona is situated in Basque country, where clashes between separatists and right-wingers are frequent

He told a news briefing that pictures taken with a 61-inch reflecting telescope showed a strange elongation or bump on Pluto. When the bump appeared on pic-tures taken on different nights, scientists looked at them more closely and concluded they were seeing a moon. Other observations and measurements and re-examination of older pictures confirmed the findings, Navy officials said.

Christy said the moon previously eluded astronomers because of its faintness and closeness to the planet, making it visible only under ideal conditions. Pluto, now about 2.8 billion miles from Earth, also is closer than it has been since its discovery in 1930.

Christy said he wanted to name the moon after his wife, Charlene, and searched for a mythical character with a similar name. He found that the figure Charon, pronounced like the female name Karen, was connected with the god Pluto and chose that name for the satel-

Charon was the ferryman who rowed the souls of the dead across the river Styx into Hades, the underworld. There, Pluto would see that the dead were properly judged and rewarded or punished in the 500 to 600 miles in diameter in an orbit 12,000 miles above the planet.

"It's bigger compared to its planet than any other satellite compared to its planet," Harrington said.

The satellite orbits Pluto every 6.3 earth days, the same time it takes the planet to turn ence on its avia. It is the planet to turn once on its axis. It is the only satellite-planet pair with this kind of synchronized orbit, essentially allowing the moon to stay in the same place in the Plutonian sky, he added.

Looking at the satellite's orbit also reveals much about Pluto's mass and density. Data indicate the planet is very light, ty. Data indicate the planet is very light, with a density slightly greater than water, and probably not composed of solid rock, Harrington said.

Clyde W. Tombaugh, who discovered Pluto in 1930 while working at the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, said he was "a little surprised," but pleased, by the discovery of the moon covery of the moon.

Tombaugh, now professor emeritus of astronomy at New Mexico State Universi-

"But it was beyond the instruments we had at the time, and Pluto was farther away," he said.

Pluto takes 248 earth years to circle the sun and, on its closest approach, crosses the orbital path of the planet Neptune. Its small size and peculiar orbit led some scientists to believe Pluto once was a satellite of Neptune that was knocked out of orbit by some unknown force.

Tombaugh says finding Pluto's moon casts more doubt on this theory, since it would be unlikely for a satellite to have a satellite.

"Pluto having a satellite gives it mor credence as a major planet in its ow-right," he said.

However, the controversy isn't over. Harrington says he is about to publish a new theory that says a large, unknown planet could have pushed Pluto out of a Neptune orbit and broken off a piece that became its mone.

"Unconstitutional," bellowed those who sweepingly interpret prohibitions against mixing church and state.

At least one leading candidate for the post told Dallas newsmen that he "voiced concerns" about his religious preference being brought up during his interview.

School board members said they thought their questions were proper to help them learn all they need to know about the person who will head the huge Dallas school system.

DALLAS TRUSTEES are looking for someone to replace Supt. Nolan Estes, who is quitting the $47,500 job for a quieter life. Estes is vice chairman of the board of deacons of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, where the Rev. W.A. Criswell is pastor.

A community survey last year revealed that Dallas residents want their superintendent to be "visibly and devotedly religious," trustee Gerald Stanglin said.

"The Constitution forbids using religious beliefs as a condition of employment," University of Chicago law professor Phillip C. Kurland told The Dallas Times Herald.

He added: "They shouldn't even be asking him what television programs he watches. It seems to me dangerous even to ask him

SOMETHING OF a flap has been brewing whether he's a Democrat or a Republican. in Dallas because school board members. The question here may not be whether they're using religious criteria but whether they're looking into the life habits of a superintendent.

Under that interpretation of the Constitution, a school board or any other employer could ask a job applicant nothing more than his name, rank and Social Security number -and certainly not whether he's ever been in jail, is married, practices homosexuality or likes to fish.

A MORE SENSIBLE interpretation was put forth by former Sen. Sam Ervin, who served as chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee and is considered a constitutional authority.

"I don't see any situation in which a member of a school board hasn't got the right to ask any kind of question he wants to, in order to determine if he thinks the person is suitable for the job," Sen. Sam said.

Another expert on constitutional law, Paul A. Freund of Harvard University, said questions about religion "shouldn't enter into the final decision, but it's hard to lay down a firm rule on questioning."

That it is. The Constitution bars any law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

It's hard to imagine stretching that to make it unconstitutional to ask a person, even one looking for a job, "where do you

Boycott Target Fees No Pain

THE WRANGLE over the marketing of Richard Nixon's memoirs is producing some better lines than are to be found in the book

Some might consider the book's list price -$19.95-discouragement enough. But not the Committee to Boycott Nixon's Memoirs with its "Don't Buy Books by Crooks" slo-

As the publisher sees it, the campaign is developing into an attempt to censor an important document of contemporary history.

"IT'S INCREDIBLE that anyone could suggest that a book not be published," declares Harold Roth, president of Grosset & Dunlap book publishers.

"If we abridge the freedom of any one e effectively apring the freedom of all." But censorship is not at issue, according to boycott leader William

"Our point is that people should not buy the books and help enrich Mr. Nixon. We never said the book should be suppressed.

"People who want to read it can get it out of the library...or wait six months til this $20 book goes into the remainder bin for $2." And so it goes.

The New York Times, which serialized the memoirs to newspapers has taken Solomonlike editorial note of the controversy and decided that all parties are in the right-the resigned President in writing his story, the publisher in marketing it, the opposition in not buying it while trying to persuade others to do likewise.

The marketplace, the Times intones, should decide the issue.

THE MARKETPLACE usually does. The lives and frequently the less-than-straightforward times of public figures are a staple of both book clubs and remainder bins.

In this case, even if the market decision is strongly negative it would be of no great pain to the boycott target. Nixon already is red of a reported $2 million from h original sale of all publication rights.

Quite possibly the last words on this particular controversy already have been delivered by publisher Roth in observing that "anyone in this country has a right to make a damn fool of himself."

Say. That dispensation is broad enough to cover any number of parties-from writers and publishers through boycotters and buy-

What We Think We Got Is Not What We Think

WASHINGTON-After all the fuss and feathers tion of ratification must be accepted by the other and acrimony, there is no treaty on the Panama Canal.

Oh, there is a document, all right-two documents, in fact-debated at length in the U.S. Senate and celebrated by President Carter and Panarha dictator Torrijos in an exchange of pleasantries a couple of weeks ago. In that sense, there is a treaty

But in the sense that really matters, meaning an understanding that is mutually agreed to and mutually binding on the contracting parties, there is no treaty.

THE POINT WAS made in a speech last month by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. He noted hat the problem which had plagued the treaty negotiations from the beginning had persisted through the period of ratification.

The documents were taken to mean one thing in Washington and quite another in Panama City. And since the point of a treaty is to define and overn the rights of the contracting parties, such thronic ambiguity undercuts the purpose of the

The most recent, and most serious, manifestation of this problem concerns the reservations added to the treaties by the Senate in the course of ratification.

These provisos, revolving around such matters as the procedure for keeping American troops in Panama and the right of the United States to inervene to protect the Canal, were essential to the passage of the treaties.

IF THEY HAD NOT been adopted, the adminration could not have mustered the votes reuired for passage. Also, Helms points out, it was stated repeatedly floor debate by such treaty supporters as Sam unn of Georgia, Edward Kennedy of Massachu-tts and Paul Sarbanes of Maryland that only if Panama accepted the reservations tacked on by the Senate could the treaties go into force.

Sarbanes, for instance, quoted one authority on international law who stated "that any changes nents inserted by one party as a condi-

party if the treaty is to come into legal effect."

ON THIS EXPLICIT basis, the Senate adopted a series of treaty reservations, the most famous being the language proposed by Sen. Dennis De-Concini of Arizona reserving to the United States the right of acting "independently" to keep the Canal open to international traffic.

Other reservations included Sen. Nunn's proviso for keeping troops in Panama after 1999, reservations by Sens. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., Ernst Hollings, D-S.C., John Heinz, R-Pa., and Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., concerning finances, and the reservation by Sen. Edward Brooke asserting that the articles of ratification could not be exchanged until implementing legislation passed the House of Representatives (already violated).

NOW IT DEVELOPS, with no fanfare to speak of, that Panama has repudiated virtually all of these reservations, and in particular has repudiated our official interpretation of the Nunn and De-Concini reservations bearing on the right of military intervention.

In an official state document published April 26, the Panamanian Foreign Ministry revealed its own interpretation of the treaty reservations, in every instance denying or strongly modifying the ing of these documents by our Senate. The most ominous of these repudiations con-cerns the DeConcini reservation, which the Panamanians find to be without real meaning because of other language adopted by the Senate.

This means that we—the Senate and the American people—think we have a right of intervention to protect the canal, and that the Panamanians think we don't.

What we have is not a treaty, but a standing invitation to further conflict.

Diggs In Over Zbig

WASHINGTON-The internal aspect of the current demolition campaign against Zbigniew Brzezinski is illuminated by a secret mission on Capitol Hill two months ago by Richard Moose, assistant secretary of state for African affairs. On April 24, Moose visited the office of Rep.

buted by L.A. Times Syndical

Charles Diggs of Michigan, chairman of the House African affairs subcommittee. His purpose, according to a memorandum writ-ten that day by Moose, was "to discuss with him (Diggs) the possibility" of aiding anti-Soviet guerrillas in Communist Angola. In the intervening two months, State Department officials have planted a multitude of news accounts blaming Brzezinski for trying to resume U.S. intervention in Angola's continuing civil Never has there been one suggestion that Moose, a focal point of anti-Brzezinski attitudes in the State Department, was engaged in exactly the same activity; he was because it was then an official administration initiative. ANGOLAN POLICY has focused a steadily in-ensifying barrage against Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, from multiple sources: Moscow, Havana, the U.S. Senate and

HENRY J. TAYLOR: Soccer's A Ball!

THE 1978 WORLD Cup Soccer Tournament in Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium provided enough excitement to shatter the nerves of an astronaut.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger (a soccer fiend) traveled to Buenos Aires to see the action.

Except in the United States, nothing even remotely approaches the popularity of soccer on every continent. Around the world, on many weekends, it lures more than 100 million spectators.

BECAUSE OF the intense, overwhelming interest throughout Scotland, the big loser at the River Plate Stadium was Scotland's "Tartan Army.

When the soccer team lost its first game to Peru. Scotland went into trauma. This was billed in Scotland as an easy triumph. The Scottish press. which had beat the drums for manager Ally MacLeod and his team, was bitter.

One team member was sent back to Scotland for taking "pep pills" and Edinburg's "The Scotsman" accused others of drinking all night and flouting fitness rules.

SOME IN SCOTLAND punched each other, the pubs belched crowds into the streets and in several places the police were forced to use nightsticks on maddened men wanting to maim somebody-anybody. Scotland saw a real, all-out Donnybrook.

The game gave birth to Rio de Janerio's 250.-000-spectator Maracana Stadium, the largest in the world. But soccer is a misnomer for today's jet-age version. It has practically nothing in common with the old game we knew

The action is packed into two 45-minute halves. Moreover, there are no substitutions. If a player is tired or injured (except the goalie) Gold Cup Soccer permits no replacements.

You would not think that any living soul could run, jump and whirl like this for the full, relentless two 45-minute halves. But Gold Cup Soccer players do.

TAKE, FOR example, Brazil's Edson "Pele" Nascimento, who retired last year. He made overall, nearly a million dollars a year. Only five feet eight inches tall and very slim, Pele first gained fame at 17 during Stockholm's 1958 World Cup matches.

But at London's 1966 World Cup matches Bulgaria's national soccer team from Sofia shame essly and illegally, to the crowds' boos, attacked Pele instead of the ball. He suffered injuries that put him on the sidelines for a year.

Here in the United States we have leagues and excellent players—St. Louis alone has about 300 registered players. Soccer is the action sport, believe me, beyond any sport in the world.

national news media, plus undercover encouragement from within the State Department and the White House itself. Brzezinski's problem transcends Angola and Africa. The campaign against him did not start until his proposed tougher policy toward Moscow became obvious. Since then, he has been the target of the relentless verbal assault often heaped during the past

30 years on U.S. officials with anti-Soviet inclina-But because that assault has been sustained by insinuations that Brzezinski has advocated madness on the African continent, it is worth tracing down the abortive change in Angolan policy. It began at an April 7 meeting of the cabinetlevel Special Coordinating Committee (SCC). which decided to explore helping Lucas Savimbi's UNITA forces fighting the Cuban expeditionary force in Angola.

A SUBSEQUENT SCC meeting decided to approach key members of Congress. Visits to the Hill for that purpose by CIA director Stansfield Turner, Brzezinski and David Aaron, Brzezinski's deputy, have been widely reported.

What was not made public was the simultaneous visit to Diggs by Moose, considered by his colleagues to be the State Department's staunchest foe of calling the Kremlin to account for its African adventures.

Moose's memo, classified secret, described the visit in some detail. He asked Diggs' opinion of providing "non-lethal" aid to "stiffen UNITA's resistance" and encouraging assistance from other countries, all to make the Angolan caper more costly" for the Cubans.

Moose's memo has no critical overtones and seems moderately enthusiastic. To nobody's surprise. Diggs put his thumbs down.

That's how we got involved in Angola in the first place," the congressman was quoted by Moose as saving.

WITH SIMILAR responses elsewhere on the Hill, the SCC initiative died without ever getting to the President. Brzezinski soon was publicly depicted as the author of Angola reentry, and the campaign against him was on.

A softer path in Africa quickly followed in Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's June 20 speech at Atlantic City.

State Department officials, having a month earlier predicted Vance would be forced out by Brzezinski's preeminence, now happily whispered that the secretary had refused to remove phrases in the Atlantic City speech that might offend Brzezinski.

Ambassador Donald McHenry was dispatched on a peace mission to Angola, reversing the pro-UNITA policy laid out April 7.

Contrary to many published accounts, the State Department lost its fight to give McHenry authority to promise Angolan President Agistinho Neto that the U.S. would discourage other countries from aiding Savimbi's UNITA.

Brzezinski, therefore, at least prevented a total U.S. sellout of one African fighting force opposing Soviet-Cuban expansionism.

BUT THERE IS no doubt that the McHenry mission was a severe setback for both Brzezinski's policy and his own status.

It gives credence to the ridiculous image of the national security adviser (newly identified in all news accounts as Polish-born) driving the President into dangerous confrontation with the Kremlin over obscure African intrigue

White House insiders claim the assault on Brzezinski only strengthens the President's support

Why, then, did not Carter take Brzezinski off the hook by revealing the SCC Angolan initiative and State Department participation in it? For the simple reason that he did not know about it, say reliable officials. In other words, what is happening to Dr. Brzezinski could happen only in this strange administration.

Offhand Thoughts

A delegate to the recent West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Lubbock keeps repeating the description of Congress offered by Lloyd N. Unsell of Washington, D.C., executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America: "It's the only asylum in the universe run by the inmates."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Ford To Pay Yet

HAD A LETTER from Jerry Ford the other day. He asked a lot of questions-and answered one: He's still itching to get back in the White

Why else would he send me, and probably thousands of others, a long, chatty note just to tell me he's worried about the country (who isn't?) and not exactly thrilled with the way Jimmy Carter's handling things (who is?)?

We haven't been what you might call pen pals since he stopped being President. I didn't even make his Christmas card list when he was.

But suddenly, now that folks are wondering out loud about Jimmy's chances of making it again, Jerry put down his putter long enough to let me know he wants my opinion on a lot of things.

WHAT BOTHERS him most, he says, is that President Carter "has moved so fast on so many critical policy questions that the American people have not had a chance to keep track" of what's going on. Nor to consider "the real consequences" his decisions may have on the country. So Jerry's going to tell us. And if his letter isn't a preliminary draft of a campaign platform, I'll eat his hat (the one he's dying to toss into the He tackles all the political "hot spots" (except one, which I'll get around to in a minute) in what could shape up as a script for another go-round at a Carter-Ford debate Only this time of Jer's going to be better prepared. And he's making his move early, to find out how many voters out there agree with the way he disagrees with Carter.

LIKE THE NIX on the B-1 bomber, which Jerry thinks we need to "keep air superiority over advancing Soviet air defense systems." And the cancellation of 60 new Minuteman III missiles. and the stalling around on the neutron bomb.

Not to mention Carter's tendency to whack a billion here and a billion there off the defense budget. In a thinly disguised pitch for the anti-Communist vote, Jerry hints that he'd never, ever, do such a thing.

'Now that we've scrapped the B-l bomber, what happens if the Russians can knock out the B-52s that are to carry the proposed cruise missile? The B-52s were developed with the technology of the 1950s and, under the Carter decision, will be flying combat in the 1980s."

He's against the President's energy program,

"IT WILL ONLY increase government control and regulation over our personal and business lives. The energy tax on gas will not be used to stimulate energy production, which this country so desperately needs. Instead, some of those tax dollars, yours and mine, will be used to pay for still more social welfare programs.

And that sews up the Texas-Oklahoma, business, and anti-welfare vote.

You'll never catch Jerry cozying up to Castro. either, not as long as the bearded one plays footsie with Moscow and sends Cuban troops to "export revolution throughout the world.

Carter's anticipated withdrawal of combat troops from South Korea surprises him, he says. because of the "essential role those troops have played in maintaining peace in the Pacific for the past 24 years."

THE QUESTION OUR most recent ex-President didn't ask was what I thought about Carter's plan to dump Taiwan and hop into diplomatic bed with Red China.

Apparently he's not interested in how millions of voters feel about a country that tries to wiggle out of a treaty with a friendly nation to join up

Maybe Jerry's remembering that he landed in the White House courtesy of the man who started it all with the Shanghai Communique, and that he still owes Nixon some kind of political debt. But there are those who think he paid that off with the pardon.

THE LETTER includes a questionnaire to record my opinions on South Korea, Castro, aid to Communist Vietnam, Cuba and Cambodia, the federal budget as a cause of inflation, deregulation of oil and gas prices, work projects for welfare recipients, and whether I think Moscow still wants to rule the world. (All possible campaign zingers for 1980.)

And it winds up with (surprise, surprise) a plea for money. What Jerry has in mind, he says, is a $375.000 kitty to help "excellent, dedicated and experienced Republicans" who hesitate to run because they don't have the "early money they desperately need to put together an effective

Well, it's "early," all right. And it's not hard to figure out just who it is Jerry considers "excellent, dedicated and experienced.

But some things can be done, and the corps is now developing projects along all coasts, including the Great Lakes, to demonstrate ways to slow or halt the de-

Sand can be dumped on a beach, a process called "periodic nourishment." After nature removes the artificially placed sand, more is added. Landowners can build groins - concrete, rock, steel or wooden barriers extending out from the beach - to slow currents paralleling the beach that carry away the sand.

Breakwaters can be built offshore to intercept a wave's energy.

Today, the corps has 10 public works erosion projects under way, ranging in size from a $65 million effort to rebuild 10.2 miles of beach in Dade County (Miami), Fla., to a $12,000 project to stop erosion on Lighthouse Point Park in Connecticut.

The worst erosion problems, says John

But regardless of the location, "the forces that cause erosion are basically the same," he says.

Waves crashing on shore put sand and earth in watery suspension. Currents carry it away, perhaps depositing it on a sub-merged sandbar offshore. The process is not necessarily a one-way street, meaning the sand is not necessarily carried off

"In general, beaches build in the summer and are eroded in winter," says Housley, citing California as the coastline where seasonal build-up and erosion are most pronounced.

Some coastlines are unstable. Barrier islands along the Central Atlantic, South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts - islands often blessed with mile after mile of white sand beach — tend to migrate, much to the disappointment of those who own

Now... a new environment for gracious living destined to become Lubbock's finest suburban address

One of Texas' most respected developers of exclusive real estate communities has joined with one of Lubbock's leading financial institutions to create a new environment for gracious living. From fertile farmland soils, expert planners have fashioned a 500-acre community designed to set a new standard of quality in a suburban residential area.

The dramatic centerpiece of LakeRidge is a beautiful country club and 18-hole championship golf course, with its fairways sprawling through the community, creating lush parkways adjacent to homes. Another unique feature is a 23-acre scenic lake surrounded by the championship golf course.

LakeRidge will ultimately be an exclusive neighborhood of 600 single family residences in the $100,000 class, along with luxury townhomes, golf villas and garden apartments, all away from the urban clamor. Yet with its relaxed seclusion, LakeRidge is convenient to all Lubbock, only a mile southwest of South Plains Mall and Loop 289.

Plan now to make your move to LakeRidge Country Club Estates, Lubbock's fine new suburban address.

Researchers Investigate Hazards Of Daily

Associated Press Writer Most people only talk about the dangers of everyday life. Roger Kasperson is trying to do something about them.

Kasperson heads a team of researchers at Clark University in Worcester, Mass., studying hazard management.

The aim of the 17-month project, now about half complete, is to identify the hazards produced by modern technology and figure out ways to control them. The study is being paid for by a $265,900 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Is life as dangerous as it seems? "In some ways it is," said Kasperson, "but a significant part of it is that we're increasingly intolerant of those kinds of prob-

The subjects under study range from artificial sweeteners to airplanes, from chemical pesticides to oral contracep-

Kasperson, a professor of government and geography, said the researchers are "trying not to get overwhelmed by the individual hazards," the sometimes-insignicant dangers that seem to face people from the minute they get up in the morn-

"We tried to look at a lot of health and mortality information in the United States and abroad ... trying to make some initial calculations and estimates on how many people are dying from hazards related to technology," Kasperson said.

He also said that preliminary research indicates that the new technologies are safer than the old ones. The problems resulting from older technologies, however, have been around longer. "We learn to live with them," Kasperson said. Cancer is "the major area where it looks like deaths from technology are on the increase," the professor added.

Defining technology is part of the problem. "We tried to take those classes of deaths that are somehow associated with technology, but we've had to make some arbitrary decisions," Kasperson said. Deaths and diseases related to alcohol, for example, may have some technological implications, but the researchers decided to treat them generally as non-tech-

Defining acceptable risk is another part of the problem. When do the dangers outweigh the benefits? Why are people willing to put up with some hazards and not flood watch was posted Friday as most of the 5,000 persons evacuated by heavy flooding in Rochester returned to their homes and flooding 140 miles to the northwest killed three more persons.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood watch for southeastern Minnesota, including Rochester, for the second straight day as more thunderstorms moved into the state.

The service said the situation was dangerous because "maximum runoff may be expected due to the saturated condition of the soil and the high river stages."

The death toll in the Rochester area stood at five after torrential rains caused the Zumbro River to surge more than 10 feet over its banks Wednesday night and Thursday. The dead included a nurse's aide and three elderly patients who were trapped in a flooded elevator.

In addition, nine persons died after tornadoes struck North Dakota and Minne-

Heavy rains predicted for the Rochester area did not materialize, but a 5-inch downpour caused flash flooding in central Minnesota and claimed three lives.

Besides our $35,000 mortgage, we are paying on a $1,000, low-interest, student loan and have applied for a $2,800 auto loan. Our savings account is only about $800. Are we spreading ourselves too

ER,

Dealing on margin - by borrowing money through a broker - works great when things go as you hope, because you make profits not only on your money but also on the money you borrow. But, when stocks go in the other direction, you lose more money. Margin trading increases both your potential for profit and your risk of loss.

Short-selling - selling stock you don't own by borrowing the shares through a broker and hoping to sell at a later date at a lower price - is an out-and-out speculative device. If the stock you have sold short goes up, you lose a bundle.

My advice is to crawl back off that financial thin ice by "covering" your short

Q. My father is retired and needs additional income. He has 2,027 shares of a mutual fund - valued at $7.31 a share as I write this letter - and wants to cash them in and put the money in a savings certificate at 73/4 or 8 percent. That would give him almost $100 a month in-

I suggested he take a $100 a month withdrawal from the mutual fund. Which would be better?

A. Only time will answer that question. If the stock market booms and the value of that mutual fund's shares increase sharply, your suggestion will be better. But that's too much of a long-shot to play with a retired person's need for steady cash coming in.

Right now, the value of that fund's shares stands at $7.25. A withdrawal of $100 a month would be at an annual rate of almost 8.2 percent. That's too high. The generally recommended rate on a mutual fund withdrawal plan is 6 per cent. At 8.2 percent, he would probably eat into his capital.

With the new 8-year, 8 percent, insured savings certificates - the "eight-by-- now available, he would receive close to $100 a month in interest and be sure of leaving his capital intact. My vote would be for the savings certif-

'TokyoRound' Talks Deadlocked

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - Just days before the leaders of the industrialized world meet for two days of economic talks, the United States, Japan and the European Common Market remain deadlocked in their debate over new ground rules for a worldwide free-trade system.

The United States, at the so-called "Tokyo Round" talks under way here, has urged establishment of rules to control the policies that may enable exporters to use government subsidies to sell their products more cheaply abroad than at home. American law allows imposition of countervailing duties on subsidized import goods in an attempt to defend its domestic markets.

Japan and the Common Market, in turn, are urging restriction of U.S. countervailing duties, and so far have resisted Washington's stand on the question of subsidies.

The talks are called the Tokyo Round. even though they are held in Switzerland. because they were started in the Japanese city. They are part of a broad series of negotiations aimed at setting up a world trading system for the 1980s

The current dispute is just one facet of a larger argument over the use of "nontariff barriers" that restrict international trade. The barriers, usually called 'NTBs," (as opposed to direct levies on imports), include import quotas, subsidies that allow export-good manufacturers to continue operating money-losing plants, farm price supports, auto-safety regulations and various rules on the quality, size or composition of imported

Planes Rejected American

NEW YORK (AP) - The decision this week by three big airlines to purchase fleets of smaller-sized European wide body aircraft instead of proposed American models may pose a major problem for the U.S. aircraft industry, and especially the giant Boeing Co.

The world's airlines have gone on buying spree as they replace aging, fuelgulping jet fleets built up in the 1960s and early 1970s. Aircraft sales last year totaled $3 billion and the market for commercial aircraft over the next decade has been estimated at as high as $70 billion.

Some of the most heated competition has been in the sale of wide-body aircraft designed especially for high-density, short-to-medium-haul traffic.

In the latest round of purchases, Air France, Swissair and the West German airline Lufthansa have decided to buy 20 of the 200-passenger A-300-B-10 Airbus models made by the European Airbus Industrie. The models compete directly with proposed wide-body Boeing and

McDonnell Douglas Corp. lines of planes. The B-10 is a smaller version of the A-300 Airbus that already has been ordered by Eastern Air Lines. Eastern will buy 23 of the 244-passenger aircraft for $778 million: Lufthansa says the B-10, with a range of 3,100 miles and a shorter fuselage and different wing design than the

The next major line scheduled to make choice for new aircraft is America's largest, United Airlines. United has said plans to order new planes to replace old-er, less efficient models in its fleet. United's choice apparently is among three models: the B-10, a planned Boeing model 767 or the McDonnell-Douglas X-200, which hasn't yet received the manufacturer's final go-ahead. United also could decide not to by the mid-sized air-craft and expand its fleet of McDonnell-narrow-body aircraft. According to analyst John Simon at the brokerage firm of Crowell, Weedon Co. in Los Angeles, because Boeing is the American leader in the race for 200-passenger wide-body plane orders, it has the most to lose from the Airbus offensive.

Douglas DC-10 jumbo jets and Boeing 727

Boeing recently captured a $900-million order from Singapore Airlines—the big-gest aircraft order in history—largely for the model 747 jumbo jets that are the most widely used plane on international

But while "Boeing has a hell of a good airplane in the 747, and it will continue to sell very well," its narrow-body, smaller 727 and 737 models may be becoming obsolete, said Simon

"Boeing worked itself into an extreme-ly wonderful position" with its 747s, "but it left a gap" in the 200-passenger class, he said. "The small Boeings now may be

He said Boeing may be Jorced to go ahead with production of the 767 and other similar models "without many or any orders," a risky proposition. Production of the 767 has not yet begun.

Solzhenitsyn Address Gains Attention Of Theologians

ing blast at the spiritual decline of the west by Russian exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn is getting a wide airing in religious circles, including passages not generally reported elsewhere

Some church publications have carried the full 4,500-word text, projecting his message as a kind of modern prophet's indictment of America's 'present sickness.

We turned our backs on the Spirit and ... based western civilization on the dangerous trend to worship man and his material needs," he said in that June 9 commencement address to 15,000 at Harvard University

'Man's sense of responsibility to God and society grew dimmer and dimmer," he said. Calling it a "calamity of despiritualized and irreligious humanistic consciousness," plunging democracies toward ruin, he said:

"All the glorified technological achievements of progress, including the conquest of outer space, do not redeem the 20th century's moral pover-

Theologians noted that the Nobel laureate writer, banished from Russia in 1974 for his scathing portrayal of Soviet prison camps, identified the West's failing with the Biblically designated prime sin: self-deification of man as supreme.

To that inverted view he said "man is the touchstone of evaluating everything on earth."

ALEXANDER SOLZHENITSYN

Its modern social roots, he said, are in "rationalistic humanism," claiming the "autonomy of man from any higher force above him. It could also be called anthropocentricity. with man seen as the center of everything that exists.

He said it has "ugly parallels" with Marxism's oaths "about Man with a capital M," its rulers outlawing spiritual reality, while in the West "commercial interests" suffocate it

"Society appears to have little defense against the abyss of human decadence such as ... misuse of liberty for moral violence against young people, motion pictures full of pornography crime and horror

"It is considered to be part of freedom ... Such a tilt of freedom in the direction of evil has come about gradually ... There are meaningful warnings which history gives a ... perishing

At the birth of American democracy. he said, "all individual hurnan rights were granted because man is God's creature. That is, freedom was given to the individual conditionally, in the assumption of his religious re-

Such was the heritage ... Even 50 years ago, it would have seemed quite impossible in America, that an individual could be granted boundless freedom simply for the satisfaction of his instincts or whims.

"Subsequently, however, all such limitations were discarded everywhere in the West; a total liberation occurred from the moral heritage of Christian centuries with their great reserves of mercy and sacrifice

Solzhenitsyn, a Russian Orthodox believer, says the change has drained the West of courage, will-power and

He said the West's state systems become "increasingly and totally materialistic ... One sees the same stones in tne foundations of a despiritualized humanism and any kind of socialism; endless materialistic freedom from religion and religious responsibility

"If humanism were right in declaring that man is born only to be happy, he would not be born to die. Since his body is doomed to die, his task on earth evidently must be of a more spiritual nature

"It has to be the fulfillment of a permanent, earnest duty so that one's life journey may become an experience of moral growth

"Even if we are spared destruction by war, our lives will have to change if we want to save life from self-destruc-

He said "the fight for our planet, physical and spiritual, a fight of cosmic proportions, is not a vague matter of the future; it has already started. The forces of evil have begun their decisive offensive, you can feel their pressure, yet your screens and publications are full of prescribed smiles and raised glasses."

"If the world has not come to its end," he said, "it has approached a major turn in history ... Our spiritual being will not be trampled upon as in

Episcopalians Set Parish House Fete

Members of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church will dedicate a new parish house Sunday, led by the Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton, Bishop of Northwest Texas.

Parishioners also will welcome their new part-time curate, the Rev. Kenneth Martin, a Dalhart native. He was ordained as a deacon in the church in ceremonies June 10 at St. James Episcopal Church in Dalhart after completing the Master of Divinity degree at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest at Austin

Martin will be vicar of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Brownfield, where he and his family will live. The Rev. William D. Nix Jr., rector of St. Stephen's Church in Lubbock, will supervise Martin's deacon-in-training program.

Bishop Henton will celebrate the Holy Eucharist during the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service, as well as preaching and confirming six persons. Following the service, he will bless the new parish house, where a pot luck luncheon will be served following services.

Sunday's activities will be a bon voyage party for Bishop and Mrs. Henton, who will leave the following day for two months in Europe.

Henton will be joining bishops from all over the Anglican Communion at the Lambeth Conference at Canterbury. England, an event scheduled every 10 years. The couple plans to take some holiday side trips during the time they are in Europe

SEARCHING FOR BARGAINS - Bargain hunter loads tray with silver-plated compotes once used by diners in the now-defunct Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia as the hotel's remains went on public sale, Friday. Everything from bed linen, furniture, glassware and dining silver to marble-topped front desk is being sold by new owners of the establishment, which closed as result of Legionnaires disease. (AP Laserphoto)

Elegant Bargains Offered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - It was a day for bargain hunters and memories Friday as the once-elegant Bellevue-Stratford Hotel began disposal of its fancy teacups and silver, monogrammed linens, ornate chandeliers and other knickknacks.

The public sale, expected to take two months, is the last step before the $20 million restoration of the 76-year-old, 700-room hotel closed in 1976 because of publicity from Legionnaire's disease. It is scheduled to reopen as the Fairmont with 200 less rooms in the fall of 1979.

"I feel very sad," said Kathryn Weiland, 64, as she lugged a carved mahogany desk chair to the cashier and paid $35 plus tax. "I'm buying it because I have the mate to it.

She had lived in the hotel for 25 years until it closed late in

The Bellevue had been headquarters for a Pennsylvania American Legion convention that Bicentennial summer, and its occupancy rate plummeted as many potential guests linked the hotel to the mysterious pneumonia-like disease that killed 29 and sickened 60 others.

More than 1,000 persons roamed the 19 floors Friday seeking bargains and souvenirs of a by-gone era among contents expected to bring at least $250,000.

"The buyers always say the prices are too high, and the sellers always say the prices are too low," said Clem Log, president of National Content Liquidators of Dayton, Ohio, which is conducting the sale. "We are the largest tag sales agents in the world, specializing in hotels. I've slept in more presidential suites than I can remember.

There were 13 acres of carpeting, 500 dozen sets of brand new silverplated flatware, thousands of china plates and crystal glassware, 13 grand pianos, 500 television sets, hundreds of framed pictures in oils and watercolors, new and used towels, bed sheets, spreads, tablecloths, and draperies, and chairs in all sizes, shapes and colors.

"There are a lot of bargains there," said Art Weiss, who operates a parking lot across the street from the hotel that once entertained presidents and queens. "All I want is a glass from the Hunt Room (the Bellevue's famous bar).

Mystery Plane Confounds Officials

MIAMI (AP) — A mysterious twin-engine plane flew past Cuban MiGs and U.S. Air Force jets Friday, then vanished as frustrated Customs officials were kept out of the chase because their only available airplane was antiquated and slow, authorities said.

Spokesman Jim Dingfelder of the Miami Customs office said the plane, a twin engine Cessna 404, apparently entered Cuban air space sometime Friday

Its origin was not known. But Customs patrols often keep an eye on flights over the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico, since Florida is the nation's major.

Miami television station WPLG said Cuban MiGs were scrambled to intercept the mystery plane, but it did not land. As the plane flew past the Cuban coastline, the Cuban government called U.S. authorities and fighters were sent aloft from Homestead Airforce Base, the station said.

They intercepted the Cessa somewhere between Cuba and the Florida Keys, the station said.

After determining that the plane "obviously did not pose a military threat," the Air Force notified customs, Dingfelder said. But the plight of the Customs air fleet became quickly apparent.

'Ours are in terrible shape," Dingfelder said. "We had one plane that was flyable," He said that plane was an 11-year-old aircraft with a top speed of 130 knots. He said the mystery plane was going about 200 knots when intercepted by the Air Force.

The plane was traced to an owner in Texas, who said he had rented it to another person for a flight to Alaska, said Dingfelder. He withheld the owner's

The mystery plane was tracked on radar until it disappeared in the Tampa area, its mission still unknown. "For all we know, he was just playing games," Dingfelder said.

MOSCOW (AP) - The Kremlin disclosed Friday that it will put jailed Jew- Kremlin confirmation that Shcharansky ish activist Anatoly Shcharansky on trial Monday for high treason. ### European Economic Summit Asks U.S. Enact Energy Plan

by West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, the Common Market nations closed a two-day summit meeting Friday with a vague pledge to stimulate their economies but clearly determined to press President Carter for a U.S. energy program in return.

The nine European leaders drew up their give-and-take plan as a strategy for hard bargaining at the July 16-17 economic conference in Bonn with Carter and the leaders of Japan and Canada.

Schmidt, government chief of Europe's richest nation and host of the two-day meeting, also announced virtual agreement on a "a most major and imaginative scheme" for reworking Europe's currency system.

Carter Approves

He said Carter had already given his basic approval to the new monetary arrangment, aimed at stabilizing European currencies and strengthening the dollar.

The summit participants pledged new economic growth to battle inflation and unemployment, but did not publicly commit themselves to specific growth-rate targets. This vague formulation was along the lines of what Schmidt and the West Germans had been campaigning for in preparation for the world economic

A final conference statement said only that countries without serious inflation or balance-of-payment problems should "do more," depending on "individual situations," to stimulate their economies.

Question Unanswered West Germany thereby left unanswered the question of how far it will go to meet U.S. demands that it step up government spending or cut taxes massively to stimulate its economy. The theory is that this would generate more demand for imported goods and raw materials situation in other countries.

The nine nations also pledged themselves to energy restraint - reducing their dependence on imported energy from about 60 percent of their needs at present to 50 percent by 1985. This served as another reminder to Washington of its failure to develop a comprehensive energy program

U.S. Oil Cut Sought

Schmidt left no doubt that at the Bonn summit July 16-17 the European partners will push the United States for a reduction in its own dependence on foreign oil - 43 percent of its consumption. The Europeans also are expected to the June job gains among teen-agers, the department said. Joblessness among white teen-agers declined from 13.8 percent to 11.6 percent, which department analysts said was a very large drop.

Unemployment among black teenagers declined from 38.4 percent to 37.1 percent, but the analysts said the drop was not statistically significant.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said black teen-age unemployment continues "at intolerably high levels."

AFL-CIO President George Meany hailed the unemployment report. "Heartening News"

"The decrease in the June unemploy ment rate is heartening news," he said. 'It demonstrates the effectiveness of targeted programs to provide jobs, particularly among the nation's teen-agers. "However, the news on inflation is not as heartening ...," Meany said. "When these higher prices for food reach the retail shelves, workers will be even more hard-pressed to make their paycheck stretch far enough to meet the needs of their families.

Dr. Jack Carlson, vice president and chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the unemployment report shows " ... a much better performance than previous U.S. business recoveries or what any industrialized country has experienced.

Mail Talks Reach 'Impasse'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Labor negotiations with unions representing 554,000 postal workers, a key test for President Carter's anti-inflation program, headed into the closing stretch Friday with the two sides far apart.

'We're at a real, real impasse. The Postal Service wants us to give them something for nothing," one of the union leaders, James LaPenta, said in advance of the meeting.

sion came after the Postal Service governing board met Thursday for a discussion of negotiating strategy. It was the board's last meeting before the current contract expires July 20.

Bolger Silent Postmaster General William F. Bolger in an interview Friday declined to discuss the Postal Service pay proposals or when they would be presented. "Collective bargaining belongs at the bargaining table." he said.

The union wage demands, presented more than two weeks ago, go far above what President Carter wants. The postal negotiation is important to Carter's antiinflation program because it is the largest of the year and could help set a pattern for other settlements

As an expression of dissatistaction with what Emmet Andrews, president of the largest postal union, called the "pokey pace" of the negotiations, the unions are organizing picketing in front of Postal Service headquarters here Wednesday. Union members from around the country are expected to participate.

Stalling Charged

In a communication to the 299,000 members of the American Postal Workers Union, Andrews said postal officials have "put a damper on the negotiating process" by stalling tactics and by trying to take back some of the gains made by the four unions in earlier contracts.

'They want to allow management to use supervisors to perform bargaining unit work; reassign, furlough, lay off employees; and substantially reduce the work force. At present, the only area of substantial agreement appears to be on the grievance arbitration procedure,

Perhaps a more important issue than the pay issue that the White House stresses is the no-layoff clause in the current contract. The postal unions do not want to give up the clause that limits any reduction in force to attrition, as management has been doing in recent years to gradually reduce the number of its employees.

Clause "Cherished"

J. Joseph Vacca, president of the 181,-000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, said the no-layoff clause "is one of the most cherished rights the postal unions and their members pos-

LaPenta's union, the mailhandlers division of Laborers International Union, represents 36,000 workers. The fourth union, representing 38,000 rural letter carriers, is bargaining separately.

CIA, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance urged Moscow to call off the trial. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin exressed 'great shock" at the decision to try Shcharansky, saying "he is innocent of all crimes. His one crime was the desire to emigrate to Israel." Begin appealed in Tel Aviv to "all free nations" to work for Shcharansky's release. Persecution Claimed

Shcharansky's cause also was taken up by many international human rights and Jewish organizations, who claim he is being persecuted because of his activism on behalf of Jews.

In mid-March, 28 U.S. senators sent a letter to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev asking for Shcharansky's re-

After Friday's announcement, a State Department spokesman, in a statement he said was cleared with President Carter, told reporters:

'In our view, the fate of Mr. Shcharansky and Mr. Ginzburg will be an impor-tant indicator of the attitude of the Soviet government, both with regard to observing its commitments under the Helsinki Final Act and to promoting a healthy atmosphere for the constructive development of U.S.-Soviet relations." "Ham-Handed" Move

Western diplomatic sources in Moscow said the timing of the two trials just before next week's resumption of strategic arms limitation talks was a "ham-handed" move by the Soviets that could dampen U.S.-Soviet detente at a critical point in the negotiations.

They said it would "almost certainly" cause postponement of the signing of a U.S.-Soviet agreement to cooperate in scientific research. Carter's science adviser, Frank Press, was to have visited Moscow next week to sign the pact.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter would not rule out the possibility that Vance would broach the subject of dissident trials in the arms talks.

advisory to foreign correspondents. In "People's Court" It said the Soviet Supreme Court had declared Shcharansky's trial"on charge of high treason in the form of espionage would be held in the "People's Court" of

The trial date was disclosed in a Tass

Moscow's Proletarsky District. People's court trials are decided by three judges, and the defendant is usually not allowed to call defense witnesses. Shcharansky has been held incommunicado inside Moscow's Lefortovo prison since his arrest.

Authorities have assigned a Moscow lawyer, Silva A. Dubrovskaya, to defend him, rejecting his mother's request to allow a French lawyer known to the family to plead her son's case.

Shcharansky's older brother, Leonid, said he and his mother had not been notified of the trial date. "We know absolutely nothing," he told Westrn correspondents. "I don't know if they will let us into the trial or not."

Relatives of dissidents on trial normally are permitted to attend the proceedings, but the fact that Shcharansky's mother was not informed of the schedule indicated family members might be barred on grounds that "state secrets" might be revealed.

The Tass advisory told correspondents they will be informed on the progress of the trial twice a day at a briefing in a Moscow city court, apparently meaning foreign reporters will not be allowed to attend the proceedings

Ginzburg, a close associate of exiled writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn, will be tried Monday on charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.'

Both defendants were key members of the "Helsinki" group in Moscow, formed to report on Soviet compliance with human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki

Stepped-Up Campaign The trials will be the latest episode of a stepped-up Soviet campaign, begun more than a year ago, of arrests and forced emigration of dissidents. A member of the Department of Computer and Applied Mathematics in the Moscow Institute of Physics, Shcharansky first applied for an exit visa to emigrate to Israel in April 1973. Authorities refused, saying his technical training had given him access to state secrets.

At the time, Shcharansky, who is fluent in English, already was active in the Moscow Jewish community and general human rights activities.

He was rounded up, along with other dissidents, in June 1974 in a police action to prevent a demonstration during Richard M. Nixon's presidential visit here. He was released July 2 in time to marry Natalya Stiglitz. He never saw her again.

Hotel Workers Strike In Rome

ROME (AP) - Tourists made their own beds and breakfasts and struggled with beach umbrellas, Friday, as thousands of hotel and restaurant employes staged a 24-hour strike for higher pay.

Small and family-owned enterprise functioned nomally, but some big hotels in Rome, Venice and other cities reported as many as 90 percent of their employes on strike.

Some hotels laid out cold buffets for their guests while others left tourists to fend for themselves at breakfast time.

"I guess this could happen anywhere for a day," said an Australian guest trying to make the best of it at a luxury Rome hotel where beds went unmade

'Gatormania' Seizes Wichita As 10-Foot Saurian Spotted

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - In the week since a parks employee said he spotted a 10-foot alligator idling alongside the Little Arkansas River in a downtown park, a wave of lighthearted gatormania has swept through Kansas' largest city. 'Alligator steaks available soon," reads the sign outside the Manning-Clampitt Meat Co. A special showing of the Burt Reynolds movie "Gator"

will start at a local theater Saturday night. A local radio station was giving away tickets for the movie, and offered eight cases of Gatorade drink to alligator searchers who congregated at the riverbank Thursday night in the face of heavy thunderstorms.

On Friday, another local radio station planned to dispatch its seven-story hot air balloon to search the river.

All the activity has come as a welcome diversion to this south-central Kansas community of 275,000, which has been sweltering under a heat wave with temperatures as high as 105 this week. City Civil Defense officials and volunteers have combed the river area the past two days, but the only possible sighting was by a helicopter observer who thought he saw "a critter about 10 feet long with a tail."

Still, city preparedness director Gene Beaver believes the young man who first made the sighting, 20-year-old Vernon Bennett. Beaver called him "very reliable."

Officials are divided over whether an alligator exists in the river, hundreds of miles north of the alligator's nearest natural habitat. They're also not sure what to do with it if it's found. Some say kill it: others want it spared.

"It's not impossible, but I'm skeptical," said Peter Gray, supervisor of the herpetarium at the local zoo, which says its three alligators are accounted for. "If there is one out there, the only way it got there is somebody dumped it in.'

A pair of 12-year-olds spent Thursday fishing the river from a bridge in hope of snaring a gator. Their bait was pork chops and corn. What if they caught it?

'We'll run around to the bank with the pole and bring him in with a net," replied Matt Curry.

A Wichita newspaper reporter, L. David Harris, who happens to be a founder of a group called the National Congress of Animal Trainers and Breeders, says he has caught alligators and told readers how.

"My experience has been to lariat the critter, pull it ashore, jump on top of it, pull up and back hard and firmly on its snout and hold its jaws closed while someone else ties its tail and legs," he said. "It also helps to have someone

Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. sentenced Ronald L. Humphrey and David Truong to serve a total of 47 years each, including two 15-year terms and several of lesser duration. But the judge said the sentences should run concurrently.

This means that neither defendant will be required to spend more than 15 years in prison. They will be eligible for parole after serving four years and seven months, but parole is not automatically

Defense attorneys have said they plan to appeal the convictions on constitutional grounds. Although Bryan ruled against the defendants when they asked for acquittal on those grounds earlier, the judge also said the government had committed massive intrusion in the case. Bryan noted in a pretrial proceeding that the FBI had wiretapped Truong's apartment for more than eight months had installed a secret microphone there and had placed a secret television camera in Humphrey's USIA office. Both defendants appeared in business suits at the sentencing, and neither showed any particular emotion as they made personal pleas for leniency. "I cannot feel remorse for crimes not committed," said Humphrey, 42. "I am

Unusual Reminder Slows Cars Down

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) - Motorists along a busy highway here are getting an unusual reminder to take it easy. "Caution: Nudist Crossing, Down," declares a sign erected a week ago by Danny and LaVonne Scheurich on their property on Stroudsburg Pike in East Lampeter Township.

The Scheurichs say they were concerned about the safety of their two sons and two daughters, ages 7 through 13.

"It's more or less a joke, but there is seriousness behind it," Mrs. Scheurich said. "Believe it or not, they are slowing

But, said Hance, "The people do not want new services or new programs.

Also Friday, the association, which has been urging homeowners to protest their new property appraisals to the cityschool tax equalization board, voted to retain Warren Goss as legal counsel.

Goss has said that if the city council does not respond to the group's tax-cut requests, the association should start a recall of council members. An interim board of directors for the group was elected. The board includes Green, Medley, George Nelson, Jerry Thomahlen, Logan McCabe, Manuel Torres, Ralph Bumpass, L.E. Settle, Arthur Opperman Sr., Merrill R. Riggen, Mike Stevens, James Hamilton, Roe Tipton and Jim Black. Hundreds of association members and

other taxpayers have requested hearings before the tax equalization board. The board starts listening to residential reappraisal complaints Monday. The board will take cases on a firstcome, first-serve basis - a policy that has some taxpayers upset that they may end up having to wait hours for a hearing. John Brooks, city-school tax assessorcollector, said the first-come, first-serve policy "definitely is not" an attempt to discourage complaints or restrict access to the board. Quite the contrary, Brooks said. The policy allows "anybody at all - people who come in right off the street and people who have contacted us earlier about their assessments — to get a hearing with the board.

The tax equalization board, appointed by the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District, will be hearing residential property valuation protests for 10 days, Monday through July Complainants who already have contacted the tax office have been given a day, but no particular time, to talk with the board.

Brooks said that since the board has a fixed number of days to meet, and there is "no way of anticipating" the number of cases, it would be impossible to give every complainant an appointment for a specific hearing time.

He said as a backlog and waiting line develop, complainants will be advised how long the wait is. "If they give us their telephone number as they register. they can leave. Then as their name gets toward the top of the list, we can phone them and say we're about ready," Brooks

Reporter Witnesses Violent Robbery

(EDITOR'S NOTE: As 50 people stood by, Harvey Green, a cafe operator, was clubbed, kicked and left in a puddle of blood by a trio of young loughs. Dary Mafera, a reporter for The Miami News, was there. Green is recovering from cuts and bruises. But Mafera felts of the guilf and shame he felt at not being able to help.)

MIAMI (AP) - On Independence Day, I watched a mugging. Three youths savagely beat the co-operator of the new Portside Cafe in Bicentennial Park.

There were 50 people in the crowd. At first we all watched and did nothing. It looked like a one-man robbery attempt, so I backed away and waited for the police, hoping they would arrive before things got worse. It was to be a long wait.

Only when I saw the man lying on the tile floor in a puddle of blood did I decide to get involved. For the rest of that night, and even as I write this, I had strong feelings of shame and guilt because I didn't do more.

As I walked out of the park after the incident was over, these feelings became stronger and I fought back tears.

I had been interviewing the co-operator, Harvey Green, at the counter of the cafe when a teen-age boy with the fright of a wild animal in his eyes came from the back of the cafe clutching a handful

I walked closer, to within 15 feet of Green and the youth. I felt twinges of

Would I join in and try to save Green if he were attacked? Would I fight and risk my life for a man I hardly knew?

I couldn't answer these questions, but l edged a little closer as the youth threatened Green with the stick for more than two minutes.

Like a flash, the youth charged Green and swung the stick at him, hitting him in the shoulder. Green came at the youth, got hit again, but took the stick from him and tossed it aside.

As the pair wrestled on the ground, I thought the danger was over. More than 10 minutes had passed. I felt the police would be there any moment.

From nowhere, another youth joined the attack against Green. When the fourth youth started toward them and got within five feet of them, I looked directly at him and said: "Stay away. He backed off. I looked back at Green.

Jurist Denies Bid To Block Neo-Nazi Rally

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. on Friday denied a request by Chicago parks officials to block a Nazi demonstration scheduled for Sunday.

Brennan issued a brief order refusing to grant a stay, but did not explain his reasons.

The stay had been sought by the Chicago Park District to temporarily prevent a rally planned by a Nazi group for Marquette Park in southwest Chicago, an area of racial tension.

The parks officials earlier in the day had asked Justice John Paul Stevens, who is the justice who handles matters for the seventh circuit in which Chicago is located, for the stay,

But Stevens was unavailable and Brennan handled the matter in his absence.

The Chicago Park District had asked for the stay until a lower court could rule on the merits of its appeal of a ruling by U.S. District Judge George N. Leighton permitting the demonstration,

On Wednesday, Leighton held that the park district's requirement that the National Socialist Party of America obtain $50,000 in insurance violated the group's right of freedom of speech.

Nazi leader Frank Collin called off an earlier march planned for Skokie, Ill., a heavily Jewish suburb of Chicago. Collin said he used the threat of the Skokie march to gain leverage to hold the rally in Marquette Park.

Attempted Murder Charges Filed Against Nurse

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - Alice LaRoche, a 52-year-old nurse's aide, has pleaded innocent to charges of attempted murder after a heart attack victim's life support unit was unplugged. She was resed on $20,000 bail after entering the plea Thursday

Authorities said she was a friend of Joseph Castillo, 50, who was admitted Monday to a hospital in Paramus with an apparent heart attack. Castillo was in critical condition Friday. The woman, a nurse's aide in a New York hospital, gained admittance to his bedside, authorities said. When an alarm went off at a nurse's station, aides rushed to the room and plugged in the unit to save Castillo's

He was getting the worst of the fight but did not appear seriously hurt. Should I help now? No, not yet.

I didn't know how many of the youths' friends were in the crowd or If they were armed. For the first time, I began to fear for my life.

Where the hell were the police? Would they ever come?

In less than five seconds, the attack turned from brutal to vicious. One youth kicked Green in the face, then the bigger youth I had told to stop ran in and gave Green a crunching kick to the face.

Green collapsed on the patio in a puddle of blood. I was struck with shock, fear, hate - then compassion for Green. I made up my mind the instant I saw the blood. It was instinct that moved me forward. No one would touch Green

I walked calmly toward Green, who had stopped moving and was uncons-

Two of the youths ran off. The third backed away, then started coming forward like a place kicker ready to kick a field goal.

I thought he wanted to get one final crushing blow at Green's face - a kick that I felt could have killed the man.

I looked at the attacker. I didn't say anything. I just looked at him. He looked up at me, stopped, then ran into Green was bleeding from the mouth and from two huge cuts on his face. I was angry at the crowd, still gawking from 20 feet away, but not helping. I screamed at them.

"You stood and watched while this man nearly got killed. Why didn't anyone help? Why the hell didn't anyone help? Where the hell are the police? Where are the guards?"

No one said a word. When the police finally came, I grew angry and ashamed of myself. Why didn't I join in earlier? Why was I yelling at the crowd? I didn't do much bet-

Maybe I could have stopped Green from getting hurt. Why didn't I hit one of the attackers? Why didn't I pick up the board and start banging away at them? Why didn't I get involved sooner? Those thoughts raced through my head

If something like this ever happens again, will I do more? Will I get involved sooner? Or at all?

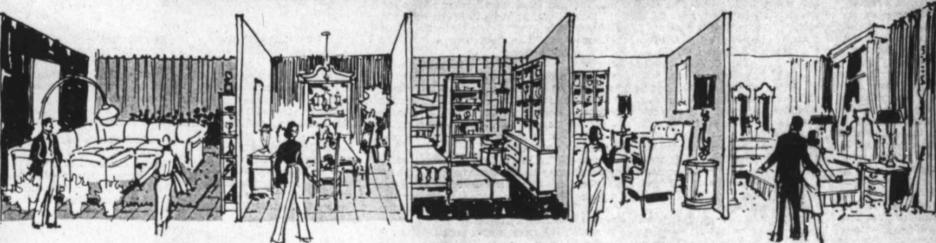

I really don't know. What I do know is that being there, ust standing next to Green, helped him. If more people had stood on the patio, just to give the muggers the impression that someone would join in, I think nothing would have happened.

I know I stopped the last kick. But I don't feel good about it. I could have tried harder to stop the first.

Official Limits Access By Amarillo Newspaper

AMARILLO (AP) - Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis, retaliating against what he called a "Pearl Harbor" attack on him by the Amarillo Globe-News, has limited the newspaper's access to his office and personnel.

Curtis called the restrictions "just common sense" and said they would be applied only to Globe-News reporters and not to any other news media. Later, a' Globe-News reporter who showed up without an appointment was denied access to Curtis.

Curtis said the newspaper will be required to telephone and make an appointment either with him, his first assistant or the administrative deputy before interviews will be granted or any information released from his office.

He said Globe-News reporters would be treated as "as the agents and employees of a hostile and malicious adversary.

The district attorney made his statements Thursday after implying he might file a libel suit against the newspaper in connection with a story published in last Sunday's edition about a telephone conversation he had with Potter County Commissioner Steve Scott.

Scott taped the June 14 conversation, which concerned salaries for workers in the district attorney's office budget.

Scott said he construed Curtis, in the conversation, to be threatening legal action against the Commissioner's court unless the commissioners followed Curtis' recommendation on the budget for the district attorney's office.

Curtis imposed his news restrictions after lashing out at length at the Globe-News, which published a transcript of the taped conversation between Scott and

Curtis labeled the news story and published tape "a Pearl Harbor."

After Pearl Harbor, they excluded the Japanese ambassador, and I think rightfully so," Curtis said during an interview in his office Thursday.

Curtis said newspaper interviews would be granted only "insofar as they don't interfere with other activities" and he said the Globe-News reporters would not be welcome in his office.

"This applies only to the newspaper and its representatives." Curtis stressed.

He said some district attorney's offices have a press secretary and many have reception areas where visitors wait and are admitted when appointments have been made and their business stated in adv-

"This is a common sense restriction,"

Curtis said the restriction on Globe-News reporters is necessary "because of our physical facilities - we have no reception room and we can't very well give free run of the office to news people likely to betray confidences and lie about what they see or hear.

"This isn't discrimination; it's just not going to penalize or do anything to make things difficult for other news media. I want to emphasize that these restrictions are only to representatives of the newspaper.

Curtis said that while placing the restrictions of the newspaper, "I'm deter-mined to preserve the public's right to know the truth.

Meanwhile Thursday, County Commissioner Scott mailed letters of grievance against Curtis to the general counsel of the State Bar of Texas in Austin and to a member of the Amarillo Bar Association's grievance committee, complaining of Curtis' telephone discussion.

POHENEGAMOOK, Quebec (NEA) - Even if he hadn't been seven feet tall; lumberjack Louis Berube would have become part of the folklore of this Canadian border region. According to accounts, by gar, the huge woodsman was the first man to observe "la bete du lac," the alleged monster of Lake Pohenegamook.

That was in 1874. Berube was reportedly canoeing across the lake when he saw a roiling of the water and then the emergence of a "black thing," long and scaly, which wheeled up and over in the distance. The man was so shaken he told no one for weeks. When he did, the melodramat-

TOM TIEDE ic legend of la bete du lac was born. One century later the legend of the lake monster lives, even if the viability of the serpent itself has never been established. In recent years 50-75 people say they have seen the beast. Many residents scoff at the stories, but just as many others insist something awesome and primevil is lurking at the water's edge.

Louis Fornier, for one, has seen the thing several times, usually from the balcony of his lakeside home. "I remember the first time," he says, "it was in the 1950s. I was sitting on the balcony when all of a sudden I see this big black object come out of the water. Mon Dieu, it sure in hell was not a fish.

Fournier says the thing he has seen may be as long as 50 feet, carries three humps on an opague body, and moves very fast. Others give similar descriptions. The beast, they say, bears a resemblance to the more noted Loch Ness monster in Scotland, and, in fact, may well be related to that celebrated ser-

Local speculation is that Lake Pohenegamook, which is a mile wide and six miles long, is connected to the ocean by a network of underground rivers. Perhaps Loch Ness is too. If so, the natives like to think monsters are hatched in the Atlantic and then make their way to safe havens such as the Ness and Pohe-

This notion is nourished by periodic reports of bottomless dropoffs and enor mous caves in Pohenegamook. Officially the lake has been measured at only 135 feet deep, but last a monster-hunting crew from Toronto said its sophisticated sonar equipment detected deepwater holes that "seemed to go on and on. So it is that the legend of la bete du lac goes on and on also. Not without its critics, however. Rennie Plourde, a customs officer stationed at the point where Pohenegamook empties into the state of Maine, says flatly that the beast is a myth established and perputated by "odd folks who drink too much."

Plourde says people in this isolated part of the continent are forever seeing things. Sasquatch, the man-monster, has been spotted in Quebec. So has the mysterious flying serpent by Lake Champlain. And there is the Pohenegamook chap who laughs at the monster stories, but insists he has taken photographs of

Then too, a la bete du lac could be a sturgeon. When the Dominion government explored the Pohenegamook rumors some years ago, it was determined that a caviar-loving resident had put at least one sturgeon into the lake. Sturgeons, ugly and long lived, have been mistaken for serpents since the beginning of recorded time.

But never mind the ratinal explanations. Perhaps a majority of the 3,000 residents that surround Pohenegamook would rather believe in the beast. "This is a quiet area," says Elzear Sirios, something of a historian, "and the monster provides some excitement."

Sirios says he believes "absolutely" in the serpeant. So does the crew from Toronto which last year spent $15,000 looking for the monster. Some expedition members say they saw the thing personally, others believe the sonar picked up an electronic recording of "Ponik." Crew leader Bob Murray says he is con-

But what? Abbe Leopold Plante, 75, says he saw the thing one after while fishing below his church, and he swears it was like a giant iguana. HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - You might be inclined to feel sorry for Burt Ward, upon learning that the young actor who once played Robin on "Batman" is now reduced to playing supermarkets.

'Next week," says Burt Ward, "I have a date in Milan, Tenn., to sign autographs at Big Ed's Supermarket."

He also has engagements to sign autographs lined up at department stores, auto dealers and some of the larger drug stores. And it might seem like this is a pretty steep come-down for Ward, who once was the idol of literally millions.

But Ward says that he will get a fivefigure sum for going to Bid Ed's Supermarket in Milan, Tenn He'll appear in his Robin costume, of course - that's what they want to see - and he'll smile and talk to the people and sign his name. And walk - away with that five-figure

Ward says that ever since "Batman". phenomenal three-year run, he has been doing this kind of thing. He estimates that he spends more than half his time on the road, beating a path between supermarket, department store and auto deal-

And because of his success in that area. he began thinking that maybe there was a career there, a career in handling other stars and arranging for their personal appearances and such matters.

BURT WARD

So he started something he calls Enterwent off the air, 10 years ago, after its tainment Management Corp., which does just that. And he is thriving. The venture is only a year old, yet already he represents (for merchandising and personal appearance tours and fan club dealings) uch biggies as Henry Winkler and Paul Michael Glaser

"I just got Mark Hamill two very lucrative dates doing auto shows," he says. He says that when he decided to get into this, he approached it very logically.

"Farrah already had a deal," he says, and I found out that Travolta wasn't interested. But Winkler okayed it. And I'm doing very well for him, I think. I've gotten him deals in sweatshirts. T-shirts. posters. He's going to make a lot of mon-

So Burt Ward has landed on the balls of his feet, and is happily bouncing. It wasn't always that way. He says that when "Batman" closed up shop, "Hollywood closed its doors to me."

But, fortunately, the rest of the country still wanted to see me," he says. "I was still hot everywhere except Hollywood, and I still am. I did my personal appearances and I did some plays and I

So, financially at least, you don't have to feel sorry for Burt Ward. He is doing

He says that he made next to nothing on "Batman" - "even the hairdresser says his salary the first year was $350 a week, then $450 the second year and, finally, it moved to $600 a week for the show's third and final season. That may sound like a lot but, compared to the top TV stars today, it is really a paltry sum.

The producers," Ward says, "made $3 million, but even that was just the tip of the iceberg. The big money on that show was in the merchandising, selling of items with the Batman and Robin names

'I know that the merchandising from Batman' was worth around three and one-half billion dollars. Adam this costar, Adam West) and I were supposed to get 5 percent of the merchandising income, but we never saw a penny.

He says they sued and the case came to court, where the defendants - many large companies - had batteries of law-

"We were told," Ward says, "that those lawyers could drag the suit out for 20 years and, besides, if we persisted they could make it very unpleasant for us in Hollywood.

Ward says with that staring him in the face, he settled his law suit. Instead of 5 percent of $3.5 billion — somewhere around $1.75 million — he settled for around $15,000.

Now he is, as he always was, an upbeat, mist who has invented a new glow-in-thedark compound. Ward wants to put it on T-shirts that will glow in the dark, theater programs that will glow in the dark, street lights that will glow in the dark.

Still, acting remains his first and best love. He says that he has been getting turned down for parts for 10 years, because of that close identification with the Robin character.

He says he once tried to see a producer, who said, "I know Burt Ward, and he's not right for the part." Later, he wangled an interview with that producer, walked in and the producer said to him, "Son, you'll just have to wait a while - I have Burt Ward coming in for an interview." ### West Germans Fret Sudden Appearance Of Neo-Nazism

HAMBURG, W. Germany (NEA) Adolph Hitler would feel right at home. The storm troopers are clad in brown shirts and jackboots. Death's head symbols adorn their military-style collars. Busts of der fuhrer are on display. His birthday is celebrated. Their leader, 22year-old Michael Kuhnen, a recently cashiered Bundeswehr lieutenant, spouts Third Reich vitriol with a vehemence that dates back to the days when Auschwitz' chimneys were still polluting the air with the stench of burning human bodies.

And some of the support for this 'Fourth Reich" office on the top floor of a building on Wandsbek, a Hamburg workers' suburb, comes from Lincoln, Neb., where American neo-Nazi groups are playing big brother to their German offspring.

Germany, frankly, is worrying about the sudden rise of neo-Nazism within its borders. "We've pinpointed 142 far-right groups with approximately 23,000 members so far," says a serious police official. 'Groups that call themselves Viking Youth, the National Revolutinaries, the Defensive Sport Club. Not much in a country of 61 million. But then, Hitler didn't even have that many followers when he started goose-stepping around the Bavarian beer halls in the '20s tors simply, We are a revolutionary group dedicted to restoring the German values which made the Third Reich Europe's major power. We want to create a greater Germany to protect all Germans from the threat that is now emerging from international communism and the colored races."

His 1930's-style message is falling on receptive ears. "Most Germans would like to see both Germanies united," says a Bonn politician. "And we know that this would create one of the strongest countries in the world, a hypnotic concept With leftist Baader-Meinhof terrorists shooting down our VIP's and dodging the polizei, it's a golden opportunity for the Nazis to claim that if they were in power. Germany would be orderly and powerful once again.

Nazi watched Kurt Hirsch says as many as 15 million Germans may secretly sympathize with the ideals of those who propose-a Fourth Reich, Unemployment,

Gernian masses, who have always had plenty of work since 1945. There's racial resentment against the Turks, Arabs, Yuzoslavs and Spaniards who come to Germany as gastarbeiters - "guest workers" - to do those dirty, menial, lowpaying jobs which offend German dignity. Like all minorities they've been ghetoized and exploited. They huddle in slums and cause a lot of crime. They've become Germany's new "colored race" enemy and a major target of neo-Nazi

With only 28,000 Jews still living in Germany, anti-Semitism is not a major plank in the neo-Nazi platform. Instead, they concentrate on dispelling the 'myth" that their Nazi forebears actually did run concentration camps and pile Jews into ovens. "That's all a lie deliberately spread by the victorious Allies after the last war." Kuhnen insists. "We are not against Jews individually, only

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Now that so many people are getting divorced, the problems regarding ex-in-laws and grandchildren are becoming more and more com-

This situation is different than most because both our daughter-in-law and our ex-daughter-in-law are wonderful girls. We have lovely grandchildren from both. For the last four Christmases, Easters, children's birthdays, family reunions, etc., we have invited both The Current and The Ex. They seem to get along well. Incidentally, for Christmas and birthdays we buy them identical gifts.) My husband says I'm kidding myself - that The Ex must suffer terribly when she is in the presence of The Current. If he is right. I want to spare the poor girl further grief, which is why I'm writing.

What is your honest opinion? - Mrs. Zereisendheit, If You Know What I Mean

Dear Mrs. Z.: Yes, I do know what you mean. Zereisendheit means "torn to pieces" in German, and your signature

Since both Current and Ex seem to be handling the situation, I see no reason to suddenly exclude Ex. So, my dear - as the old song goes, "Don't trouble trouble 'til trouble troubles you."

Dear Ann: Several years ago I loaned a friend a baby scale and told her laughingly, "I'll want this back when I begin to have grandchildren, so take good care of

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be ubmitted at least five weeks prior to he wedding date.

Yesterday my daughter announced that she is pregnant. I phoned my friend and asked her to return the scale. She shrieked, "For Lord's sake, I gave that old thing away for a rummage sale years ago. You GAVE it to me!" I did not give it to her - I remember clearly explaining that it was a loan. We went 'round and 'round and finally she said, "I certainly can't afford to buy you a new scale at these prices! You are being very unreasonable.

Who is wrong and what should I do? -Nonplussed

Dear Non: It goes without saying that a loan is not a gift, but your mistake was not giving your friend an outside time limit. You should have asked her to return it "next May, June or July.

If the woman values your relationship, she will buy you a new scale - but don't hold your breath waiting, dear. I have a feeling she's going to attach a lot less weight to your friend:hip from now on. Too bad

Dear Ann: Our daughter has been living with her boyfriend for 18 months. She told us last night she wants a big church wedding with all the trimmings. We may have to borrow some money from the bank to swing it.

The worst part is that she insists on wearing a white gown and veil. Everyone in town knows they have been sharing an apartment and I'm afraid she will look ridiculous - especially the white gown part. Please advise. - Embarrassed

Dear Mom: A white gown merely signifies a first wedding. As for going into debt, I don't recommend it. Tell your daughter you will give her as nice a wedding as possible, within your limits -

I put some solid-stick cologne in the cup as it can be used again with no fear of spillage when refilling the vaporizer, though liquid cologne may be used.

Fill the vaporizer with water and allow the steam to serve a dual purpose. While the air is being moisturized, the steam also gives off the fragrance you put in the medication cup.

I place the vaporizer in any room which I wish to smell nice. It's great to use before company arrives or just to make one's bedroom smell pleasant. Anything which has an appealing fragrance could be successfully used in the va-porizer, such as lemon peel, cloves, etc. It's cheaper than air freshener and much more effective. The fragrance lasts a long time and makes any room a little more pleasant to enter. - Mary Radford

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The experts say that an effective way to control blood pressure is to keep your weight down. But my sister-in-law is skinny as a rail and has been for years, yet her doctors wage a constant battle to keep her blood pressure DOWN. Now, myself. I am overweight, and have a hard time losing. But the funny thing is my blood pressure is al-ways low. I will be 61 soon, and my sisterin-law is 67. Can you offer an explana-tion? - Mrs. F.L.W.

A good question, since it illustrates how fickle blood pressure can be. Not all skinnies have normal blood pressure and not all fatties are hypertensive.

Your sister-in-law may have an entirely different psychological as well as physical make up. Possibly heredity has decreed her thin frame, but tensions and anxiety can cancel out the positive effects of that and produce high blood pressure. On the other hand, you seem from your letter to be a jolly, plump person, whose real problem is her waistline.

Weight is not the only cause of high blood pressure, although granted it is a major one. Nature cancels out some of the overweight problem by providing extra blood vessels, thus eliminating part of the high blood pressure threat. The general state of your blood vessels can be a factor, too.

Fortunately for you, low blood pressure is seldom a serious thing unless it is extremely low. High blood pressure must always be considered serious, whether in an overweight or underweight person.

Don't get the idea that blood pressure is a simple matter. Glands and the entire nervous system also come into play. So while I can't comment specifically on the difference between you and your sisterin-law, I can tell you it is not unusual. You may want to read a fuller discussion in my booklet, "Controlling Your High Blood Pressure." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Doctor: How can I get rid of facial blackheads? Are they treatable with creams or lotions? - A.G.

Blackheads are tiny plugs of dried se-bum, the substance produced by the sweat glands in the skin. A blackhead is a whitehead that has been exposed to the air. It is the air that causes the blackness, not dirt, as is sometimes thought

Your blackheads can be the begin of a superficial acne, and steps you take now might avoid deeper involvement. Begin by washing several times a day, and follow each washing with a good rinsing in clear water. Don't pick or otherwise tamper with the blemishes at this

The fact that the plugs are black is a good sign, in fact. At least they are reaching a point when they can be removed properly to avoid deeper clogging of the sweat glands and follicles. This becomes the problem in more serious acne, in which tiny cysts form.

You might be able to handle the situation yourself, but to be safe it is best to see to see a dermatologist, who is familiar with these skin problems. Blackheads are best removed with a comedone loop extractor which your pharmacist can provide. They are special devices built for this purpose. Removal is best done after a course of treatment with treti-

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A tip for all of the nailbiting readers who write you from time to time. Here's what I have found effective. I carry a nailfile around with me all the time. When the urge to bite strikes, I whip out my file and begin removing any of the rough edges. There are two advantages. It keeps one busy and it keeps nails less "chewable." A third plus is that everyone thinks I am just the most meticulous person in the world. — Miss

Robinson said he disagreed with the administration position that satellite photos and intelligence materials proved that Cuban advisors were involved in the Katangese incursion into Zaire's Shaba Province in May. "I don't accept that as valid information," he said. Various administration figures "themselves said the evidence was circumstantial," he sakd, and a Cuban diplomat had assured him that the country was not involved.

In any event, Robinson said, "the Cubans have entered their stripes in the field by supporting the struggles against white minority governments.

The United States, he said, "is on the wrong side." Brzezinski's adocacy of confrontation with the Soviet Union, he charged, had been "unproductive and offensive - an insult to Africans and black Americans alike There are indications that even blacks in the administration agree. Henry J. Richardson, an international law specialist on African affairs assigned to the U.N. Security Council, was removed from his post after he dissented from Brzezinski's positions on strategy with the Soviets. Haskell Ward, who handled African issues for the State Department's policy planning staff, has quit. "I would find it difficult to stay there under the current drift of policy," he said recently. TransAfrica in fund-raising events in Detroit, Atlanta, New York and Washington is trying to change that policy. The group already has 7,000 to 10,000 contributions who have pledged $5 or more. Robinson said. More events are planned for Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Memphis, New Orleans and Chicago.

This organization has great importance for the black world," Robinson said. "In the past there's been great emphasis on domestic issues and causes, but the world is getting smaller.

Ticking off TransAfrica's positions trade and peaceful development of relations with all black African states, withdrawl of support from white minority governments and a corporate retreat from support of the Vorster government in South Africa - Robinson paused and said. #### WHAT'S UP A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

NEW CARTER - Carlene Carter is flanked by Andy Warhol (right) and Johnny Cash, at a reception Cash gave to introduce his step-daughter to the record industry.

What's up in Carter Country

Carlene Carter does not intend to be just another country

She comes from a lineage that almost is country music the grandaughter of Mother Maybelle Carter, daughter of Carl "The Country Gentleman" and the step-daughter of Johnny Cash. But for her first album, she says, "I decided I was gonna do something a little different."

Instead of recording in Nashville, Carlene followed the advice of her Welsh manager, Martyn Smith, and joined forces with The Rumour, the British rock band who backs singer Graham Parker. With the help of The Rumour's Bob Andrews and Brinsley Schwarz, who were adept at mixing country styles from their nine years with Britain's best country-rock band (named, not coincidentally, Brinsley Schwarz), Carlene has come up with a record that is quite singular.

And how does her family like her first record? "I played the tapes for Mon and Johnny, and they realy liked it,' says the perky blonde. "I haven't played it for my grandmother yet because I dedicated the album to her and I want to take it to her with the cover."

But since "The Man in Black" hosted a reception in New York to introduce Carlene to the record business (and such folks as andy Warhol), we can guess that he is only one of the first in a growing legion of Carlene Carter fans. - Rob Patterson

What's up with Cavett

The one-time fair-haired boy of the talk show set, Dick Cavett, recently agreed to answering a few questions him-self in Viva magazine. The subject was marriage, something with which Cavett has had 14 years' experience. To Cavett, hwever, just because marriage occasionally works doesn't mean it's a great "...getting married is a ridiculouly unnatural thing to do - to bind yourself to one person who must by ition be largely a mystery to you - as any other nan being is - but to decide that, even with all the unknowns, you're going to spend the rest of your life

But Cavett retains some old-fashioned views on the subject. He asks, "How long has it been since you've Dick Cavets read the marriage vows in the Book of Common Prayer? God, the language! And they're trying to change that glorious language for 'modern' language. Appalling. There are so few masterpieces left ..."

Although his own wedlock has somehow remained blissful for so many years, he believes a lot of people who have been married as long as he has should have gotten out of it in the first two weeks. "Longevity isn't a true indicator. However, I happen not to be a masochist ..."

What's up in baseball

Members of the New York Yankees may not be too happy with coach Yogi Berra when the July issue of "Sport Magazine" starts circulating around the locker room.

Why? When asked by the magazine to select his ideal allstar lineup from among every player in the major leagues, Berra did not pick one Yankee. Instead, his lineup was:

1. Joe Morgan (Reds), second base. 2. Rod Carew (Twins), first base

3. Mike Schmidt (Phillies) third hase

4. George Foster (Reds), left field. 5. Dave Parker (Pirates), right field.

6. Cesar Cedeno (Astros), center field. 7. Johnny Bench (Reds), catcher.

8. Dave Concepcion (Reds), shortstop.

What's up in paychecks

In the midst of last winter's coal strike, Johnny Paycheck told America "Take This Job and Shove It" in song. "It's hard to explain how I feel after 27 years, when you finally hit big," says Paycheck, an ex-professional boxer who himself has never worked a blue collar job.

"I saw my Daddy do enough of that," he explains. "He did a little bit of everything — factory work, bartender ... I used to see how tired he'd be when he'd come home from beating his brains out, so I didn't think that was for me. I'd rather be a singer."

Though Paycheck's first big song was the surprisingly seductive, "Slide Off Your Satin Sheets," these days, championing the cause of the working class has become his way to repay his fans. His latest hit - "Me and the IRS" - kept toes tapping through April 15th and now provides a rallying cry for the taxpayers revolt.

Now, something of a flagbearer for the common man, this is one Paycheck that Uncle Sam won't get a tax bite out of .- Rod Patterson

What's up in liquor

Did you know: one-fifth of all the liquor sold in this country is vodka? We drank seven million more fifths of gin in '77 than in '76? Twelve million more fifths of light rum? And tequila imports are up 18 million fifths since '75? Will bourbon soon be found only in America's backwoods?

According to "The Great White Way," an article in Apartment Life, the white drink is not only the drink for this summer, but the wave of the future. Americans are now combining "tequila and tonic. Vodka and apple juice. A mint julep with gin. A rum martini.

And where did these foreign invaders come from, anyhow?

Decidedly Russian vodka has been in the U.S. since the '30s. It dropped in popularity during the Cold War, but was returned to favor in the late '50s. Tequila? It does indeed come from the huge maguey cactus plant south of the border, but the famous Margarita is home-made, created in Los Angeles. Gin was invented in the labortory of a 17th Dutch professor who was trying to invent a "blood cleanser." Turned out it was more fun to drink it with tonic, than as a tonic,

Wreckers Threaten Historic Washington D.C. Building

By DONALD J. FREDERICK National Geographic News Service WASHINGTON-The wrecker's ball hangs over a tavern full of history in the nation's capital. The British officer who directed the burning of the city dined there, Thomas Jefferson passed by it on his Inauguration Day, and William Howard Taft swapped stories with Press Club cronies in the building. Now Rhodes Tavern, the oldest commercial building left in the heart of Washington, D.C., may be replaced by a large shopping mall-hotel complex, the National Geographic Society reports. Built between 1799 and 1801, the embattled structure stands at the corner of 15th and F Streets, N.W., across the street from the Treasury Department. Few people who pass the busy intersection are aware of the building's rich heritage. Gone are the handsome chimneys and slanting roof that adorned the threestory, Georgian building. A sloping, rather nondescript roof shelters a souvenir store, newsstand, and fruit and sandwich shops on the first floor. Most of the rooms in the upper stories are all but de-

"Despite the building's dilapidated condition, it is still structurally sound and could be restored to its former glory,' points out Richard H. Squires, historian of a citizens' committee battling to save Rhodes Tavern.

"A simple renovation costing less than $500,000 could transform the building into a fabulous restaurant radiating 18th century charm which would pay for itself without funding from the community," Squires says.

Pacific Isles Celebrate Independence

HONIARA, Solomon Islands (UPI) -Royalty and statesmen from the four corners of the world have converged on Guadalcanal, the largest main island of this South Pacific archipelago, to attend the birth of the independent Solomon Islands on Friday.

The ceremomies on Guadalcanal, scene of the bloody victory of U.S. forces over the Japanese Imperial Army that turned around the war in the Pacific in 1942, will mark the end of 83 years of British colonial rule over the tropical islands.

Four warship's - the U.S. navy's Preble and Shipple, Australia's Vendetta and the Monowai from New Zealand will rendezvous for the occasion in Solomon Island waters northeast of Australia, an area that saw some of the fiercest fighting in World War II.

U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, England's Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, Australian Foreign Minister Andrew Peacock, and New Zealand Labor Minister John Gordon will speak at a simple one-our ceremony as official representatives of their countries.

The handsome brick building was finished while the Capitol and the "President's House" were still under construction, so politicians and lawyers gravitated to the tavern. It became an unofficial city hall, where the courts and city councilmen held sessions and local politicos argued the issues of the day.

Money followed the public servants to the tayern in April 1814 when John Vann Ness, a congressman from New York, and a prominent stockholder. Andrew Jackson, founded the Bank of the Metropolis on an upper floor there. General opening day, however. He was away fighting the British in the War of 1812.

The British halted bank business and almost everything else in town when they invaded Washington and burned the Capitol, the "President's House," and a number of other public buildings in August 1814. Rear Adm. Sir George Cockburn, who directed the scorching, must have worked up quite an appetite and

After supervising the holocaust, he rode directly into the main room at Rhodes Tavern on a mule. Dismounting, he introduced himself to the startled innkeeper as "the much abused Cockburn, come to sup with you, madam." Violence brushed the tavern again in May 1881 when a disappointed office seeker named Charles J. Guitaeu walked into a gun shop on the ground floor of Rhodes Tavern and bought a fancy pearlhandled model that he thought would look good in a museum. A few weeks later Guiteau used the pistol to gun down President James A. Garfield.

Later presidents had happier associations with the tavern. From 1909 to 1914 its upper stories housed the National Press Club. Woodrow Wilson, William Howard Taft, and Theodore Roosevelt were all members. This debate about the Holocaust 33 years after the Allies rolled into Hitler's body-littered camps is one which confuses many Germans. "Most of the older Germans want to believe it was all a hoax," says a psychiatrist, "because this lessens their guilt for letting it all happen." New books like "Did Six Million Really Die?" by Richard Harwood are snapped up by the neo-Nazis and quoted liberally from the speaker's platforms around the country-side.

The International Committee of the Red Cross recently had to jump into this numbers game debate because its tracing comittee records show only 350,000 confirmed concentration camp deaths at the end of World War II. From Geneva, the IRC recently issued a communique pointing out that its representatives were only allowed into the camps at the end of the war, that the Nazis had destroyed most records and that its figures were far too low and incomplete to be used as any official total. Still the neo-Nazis employ them, and many Germans listen, their consciences pleasantly relieved.

Not allowed to display the swastika, the young Nazis wear an armband which is red, with a white circle on it, and has four black lines within the disk. Two Nazi bank robberies netted the group about $50,000.

The neo-Nazis scored perhaps their greatest coup when they helped to spirit the imprisoned SS war criminal Herbert Kappler out of an Italian prison hospital and over the German border to safety. The ailing officer has since died, and at his televised funeral in Soltau, young Nazis appeared in jackboots and shouted a stiff-armed "Heil Hitler!" as his coffin was lowered into the ground.

Hitler's appeal to the young is undeniable. Most students were told little about him; many teachers and principals are veterans of the Nazi era. He burst back on the scene in the early '70s when maga-zines, movies and TV shows in Germany suddenly rediscovered him as a figure of fascination. He hooked a lot of kids just as he hooked their parents.

African Violets Offer Challenge During Hot Days Of Summer

By ELVIN McDONALD

As of this morning, I have 30 African violet plants, plus one cutting that has rooted in water and is ready to be transplanted to a pot of soil. Whether or not I will have 31 plants come September depends on how well I manage their needs during the next eight weeks, in many ways the trickiest time of the year for them.

When I want professional advice about African violets, I usually call my friend Anne Tinari, who, with her husband Frank, has been growing and breeding them for more than 30 years. Today. when I called, they had just returned to Pennsylvania with 24 blue ribbons from the 33rd annual convention of the African Violet Society of America. This year's meeting, in Austin, Texas, was attended dby 1,125 devotees of the hairy-leaved little plant with violet-like flowers that Baron Walte von Saint Paul brought back to Europe from Atrica around 1890.

If you are growing African violets indoors in hot weather without air conditioning, Anne makes these suggestions: Don't mist the plants as you might during the winter heating season. Promptly remove spent flowers and any leaves that show sign of dying. Water less, especially during periods of cloudy, rainy or unusually humid weather; avoid extremes of bone-dry and soggy-wet; don't leave pots standing in water. Space out plants so that air can circulate freely between. Use a small fan to keep the air moving: pull down shades or close the blinds during the hottest part of the day. In other words, as Anne says, "If you're comfortable your violets should be, too.

For those of you who do your growing in a space that is centrally air-conditioned. Anne's only advice is to keep African violets out of direct cold-air currents. In an office building that is not cooled at night or on the weekends, follow Anne's guidelines for growing without air conditioning; be especially careful about grooming the plants before you leave on Friday, otherwise disease may set in by Monday. Also move plants so that sun will not shine directly on them through the weekend.

In general, Anne says that mites are inclined to attack violets in the summer Since the mites themselves are too small to be seen without the use of a powerful magnifying glass, watch for the more visible signs of unusually hard, brittle leaves in the center of the plant, which grow little if at all, and an overall grayish appear-miticide, in a gallon of water; apply with a mister and repeat at seven-day intervals until new growth appears normal.

For controlling any of the diseases that are prone to attack African violets in hot, humid weather - botrytis, powdery mildew, various stem, foliage and flowerbud "rots" - Anne suggests Benomyl, mixed and applied according to label instructions. The likelihood of disease can be greatly reduced by proper spacing, ample air circulation, careful watering and good

Since Anne was just back from seeing all the newest and best of African violets, exhibited by breeders and growers from all over, I asked her to give me the highlights, off the top of her head. Trends include darker pinks to raspberry and other shades referred to, somewhat tongue-incheek, as "red," cupped leaves, which are making a comback after about 10 years of being out of favor, and true miniatures, with plant and flower size in proportion, and free-blooming habit.

Among the new African violets, Anne's favorites include Pat's Pet (creamy green flowers, hinting at the elusive yellow), Irish Spring (a double white with greenish edge on a small-size plant that is perfect for growing on a narrow window sill) and Lavender Tiara (double lavender with cupped leaf). She also mentioned Anne's Favorite (double pink with greenish edge and cupped leaf). Blue Mascara (light blue double-edged with white: sturdy, quilted leaf) and Mini Fantasy (a true miniature with bluish pink double flowers speckled with purple, pink and lavender).

Interest in African violets with variegated foliage continues to grow. Two current favorites are Mystic (rounded leaves with white pattern on green and semidouble lavender flowers) and Tribute ance. The treatment Anne recommends (pink and white variegated green leaves

A. Yes indeed. You have in mind the African Violet Society of America. P.O. Box 1326. Knoxville. ### Ancient Seed Now Popular In America from 35.8 million pounds in 1967 to more than 62.5 million in 1977. And further increases of 8 to 10 percent annually are predicted in the foreseeable future, the National Geographic Society reports.

WASHINGTON - "Open Sesame!" The United States has taken the command to heart in the last few years.

Much of the demand had been generated by the growing legion of fast-food customers who gobble up the seeds on buns, rolls, crackers, and even candy bars. The tiny seeds - it takes about 186,500 to weigh a pound - are also popular in health food stores.

Says Baily A. Thomas, president of Sesame Products, Inc., one of the largest sesame processors in the United States. 'Sesame has been named by scientists as a seed with as much protein potential as soybean. It's primarily used as a decorative item but more and more people are using it for protein. It's an idea whose time has finally come.

Crushed to make oil, sesame also appears in soaps, cosmetics, pharmaceuticals, and cooking oils, In the Middle East sesame butter is spread on bread much

Although sesame is the third largest spice import - exceeded only by black pepper and mustard flour - it is not grown commercially in the United States no practica mechanically has yet been invented.

Bulk of the U.S. imports come from Mexico and Central America. The spice has been known in other parts of the world for centuries. The Assyrians believed the gods refreshed themselves with sesame wine. Early Hindu legend relates the tale of Yama, the god of death, creating sesame as a symbol of im-

Strict controls and administrative procedures covered the production of sesame oil. A 4,000-year-old drawing in an Egyptian tomb shows a baker adding the spice to his dough.

The plant's medicinal qualities did not go unnoticed either. Its Egyptian name appears among a list of drugs on a scroll dating from about 1550 B.C

The Greek physician Hippocrates used it in cures, and the Roman naturalist, Pliny the Elder, recommended sesame oil as an antidote "to the bite of the spotted

National Geographic News Service WASHINGTON — Some creatures are forced to go through life wearing an extra large coat over a medium-size body.
That's the lot of the Chinese Shar-Pei, a breed of dog that is called the rarest in the world by the "Guinness Book of World Records."

As 2 puppy, the Shar-Pei is a mass of folds, with wrinkles from head to toe. When the dog reaches its adult height of 18 to 22 inches, its skin smooths out a bit but still appears loose, says National Geographic World magazine.

Besides wrinkles, the Shari-Pei has short stiff hair that stands upright, a small triangular ears that lie atop its head pointing toward its eyes, a black tongue. and a tail that forms a circle, its tip touching the base.

Although the breed is believed to be 2. 000 years old, the Shar-Pei has only been in the United States about 10 years There are now about 120 of them in this country and a few more in Canada.

Many were imported after 1973, the year a kennel owner in Hong Kong appealed to Americans to help save the dogs from extermination. He feared they would suffer the same fate in Hong Kong that they have in the People's Republic of China, where a stiff tax has made pets too expensive for most citizens to afford. Some Shar-Pei, along with other pets, have even wound up on the dinner tables of impoverished peasants.

One American to respond to the plea from Hong Kong was Ernest Albright, a retired California oil company employee looking for a hobby. He imported his first Shari-Pei pair for breeding in 1973 and 🗰 since has filled orders for the dogs from all over the country.

The eye-catching canine has caused a ensation, he reports.

Weekly Reader Founder Gives Tips On Success

By TOM TIEDE
COLUMBUS, Ohio (NEA) — The year 1928 was not a good time to begin a publishing venture. The Great Depression was just around the corner. Talking pictures were beginning to lure readers from their homes. And then there was the development of something called broadcast radio, instant print for the

But Eleanor Johnson had more vision than pragmatism. She knew the world was changing, and she believed that the children in it should be better informed about what was happening. Textbooks couldn't help. Parental advisories were unreliable. Perhaps what was really needed, then, was a newspaper for young people.

And so began My Weekly Reader, one of the most widely read periodicals of all time. The first edition was published in a modest Columbus print shop. It promised to give the kids "significant news without bias." Since then, according to estimates, half the population of the United States has read the publication.

In all honesty, the first edition did not betoken astounding attainment. It was a skimpy four pages, 8-by-11 inches, and there were only six stories and seven illustrations. As for significance, one piece concerned a sick fellow who was cured by "sky medicine" (sunshine); it was followed by a poem: Our little Buddy is robust and ruddy/Disease germs he knows how to foil,/For just like a man, he takes all he can/From a bottle of cod liver oil.

Then there was the story on page two, about the traffic cops who bore a resemblence to insects: "Policemen have lovely white capes to wear at night. When they stretch out their arms they look like great white moths. From far away, drivers can see them. They are safe, and their wings are pleasing to see.

Yet if the copy was not arresting, it presumably was just what America's school children, and their teachers wanted. Here at last was a chance for kids to read something in class besides Dick and Jane. Truth known, says founder Eleanor Johnson, now retired, legions of peeking parents also took a liking to the newspa-

So it was My Weekly Reader prospered even in hard times. The first edition was printed for fourth graders only, but demand was so great that additional editions were created during the Depression. Eventually, Johnson would print readers for each grade in the elementary school system, including kindergarten.

The reader's success was so great that competitors were soon rushing newspapers of their own to the nation's schools. One of them, Young American, was supported by the considerable holdings of Cornelius Vanderbilt. The rivals failed. however: Johnson says it was because they did not know how to write for children.

But Johnson did know. She was herself the author of children's textbooks, and she hired a staff of educators, not journalists, who also understood "what it was like to be a child and to be filled with questions." For good measure, Johnson put all her writers and editors through a rigid training program.

Nothing in the reader was ever "just written," Johnson says. Copy was carescriber. Johnson used university studies to determine children's profiles at different ages (physical, emotional and spiritual), and she insisted the weekly reader conform to a formula for success.

Johnson used 13 formula devices in the early days. Little was left to chance. Even the headlines were written with special words that Johnson knew to be potent. "You," was a good word. So was 'new." Therefore, says Johnson, a good headline may have been: "What The New School Lunch Program Means To

Most assuredly, the school lunch program meant something positive to the subscribers of My Weekly Reader. The newspaper of 1928 was nothing if not upbeat. The news was invariably good. Johnson dwelled on heroes, adventure and the golden rule. "Learning," said a story in the first edition, is "next in importance to religion."

Over the years, the weekly reader was to move gradually away from absolute good humor. A recent sixth-grade edition has a cover picture of a starving boy. The current editorial director, Dr. John Burton Jr., says today's seven million subscribers may read of Angel Dust or fradulent advertisement. "Times change," he

The change at the weekly reader is apparent in other ways than content. The parent company, American Education Press, has been absorbed by the Xerox Corporation. Eleanor Johnson spends more time in her Maryland garden than at her typewriter. And the newspaper itself, now in color, is created with the help of computers.

Gone is the innocence of that first edition. Gone are the silhouette drawings, and the masthead which featured a schoolmaster with a quill pen behind his ear. There is, albeit, at least one carryover. In 1928 My Weekly Reader sold for about 1 cent a copy; today it's about 3 cents a copy. There is still some good

THE STORY OF THE GOOD LITTLE BOY

Twain Finds Jacob Blivens' Fate Inexplicable

By MARK TWAIN

Once there was a good little boy by the name of Jacob Blivens. He always obeved tris parents, no matter how absurd and unreasonable their demands were; and he always learned his book, and never was Tate at Sabbath-school. He would not play hookey, even when his sober judgment told him it was the most profitable thing he could do. He wouldn't lie. no matter how convenient it was. The curious ways that that Jacob had, surpassed everything. He wouldn't play marbles on Sunday, he wouldn't rob birds' nests, he wouldn't give hot pennies to organ-grinders' monkeys; he didn't seem to take any interest in any kind of rational amusement. The other boys used to try to reason it out and come to an understanding of him, but they could only figure out a sort of vague idea that he was 'afflicted," and so they took him under their protection, and never allowed any harm to come to him.

Jacob had a noble ambition to be put in a Sunday-school book. He wanted to be put in with pictures representing him gloriously declining to lie to his mother, and her weeping for joy about it; and pictures representing his standing on the doorstep giving a penny to a poor beggar-woman with six children, and telling her to spend it freely, but not to be extravagant, because extravagance is a sin; and pictures of him magnanimously refusing to tell on the bad boy who always lay in wait for him around the corner as he came from school. That was the ambition of young Jacob Blivens

It made him feel a little uncomfortable sometimes when he reflected that the good little boys always died. He loved to ive, you know, and this was the most unpleasant feature about being a Sunday school book boy. He knew it was not healthy to be good. He knew it was more fatal than consumption to be so supernaturally good as the boys in the books were; he knew that none of them had ever been able to stand it long, and it pained him to think that if they put him in a book he wouldn't ever see it, or even if they did get the book out before he died it wouldn't be popular without any picture of his funeral in the back part of

it. It couldn't be much of a Sunday-school book that couldn't tell about the advice he gave to the community when he was dying. So at last, of course, he had to make up his mind to do the best he could under the circumstances - to live right, and hang on as long as he could, and have his dying speech all ready when his time

But somehow nothing ever turned out with him the way it turned out with the good little boys in the books. In his case there was a screw loose somewhere, and it all happened just the other way. When he found Jim Blake stealing apples, and went under the tree to read to him about the bad little boy who fell out of a neighbor's apple tree and broke his arm, Jim. fell out of the tree, too, but he fell on him and broke his arm, and Jim wasn't hurt at all. Jacob couldn't understand that. There wasn't anything in the books like

And once, when some bad boys pushed a blind man over in the mud, and Jacob ran to help him up and receive his blessing, the blind man did not give him any blessing at all, but whacked him over the head with his stick and said he would like to catch him shoving him again, and then pretending to help him up. This was not in accordance with any of the books. Jacob looked them all over to see. One thing that Jacob wanted to do was to find a lame dog that hadn't any place to stay, and was hungry and persecuted, and bring him home and pet him and have that dog's imperishable gratitude. And at last he found one and was happy; and he brought him home and fed him, but when he was going to pet him the dog flew at him and tore all the clothes off him except those that were in front, and

Once, when he was on his way to Sunday-school, he saw some bad boys start-ing off pleasuring in a sailboat. He was filled with consternation, because he knew from his reading that boys who went sailing on Sunday invariably got drowned. So he ran out on a raft to warn them, but a log turned with him and slid him into the river. A man got him out pretty soon, and the doctor pumped the water out of him, but he caught cold and lay sick abed nine weeks. But the most unaccountable thing about it was that the bad boys in the boat had a good time all day, and then reached home alive and well. Jacob Blivens was perfectly dumfounded.

When he got well he was a little discouraged, but he resolved to keep on trying anyhow. He knew that so far his experiences wouldn't do to go in a book, but he hadn't yet reached the allotted term of life for good little boys, and he hoped to be able to make a record yet if he could hold on till his time was fully up. If everything else failed he had his dving speech to fall back on.

At last, one day, when he was around hunting up bad little boys to admonish, he found a lot of them in the old ironfoundry fixing up a little joke on fourteen or fifteen dogs, which they had tied together in long procession, and were going to ornament with empty nitroglycerin cans made fast to their tails. Jacob sat down on one of those cans (for he never minded grease when duty was before him), and he took hold of the foremost dog by the collar, and turned his reproving eye upon wicked Tom Jones.

But just at that moment Alderman

McWelter, full of wrath, stepped in. All the had boys ran away, but Jacob Blivens rose in conscious innocence and began one of those stately little Sunday-school-book speeches which always commence with "Oh, sir." in dead opposition to the fact that no boy, good or bad, ever starts a remark with "Oh, sir." But the alderman never waited to hear the rest. He man never waited to hear the rest. He took Jacob Blivens by the ear and turned him aound, and hit him a whack in the rear with the flat of his hand; and in an instant that good little boy shot out through the roof and soared away toward the sun, with the fragments of those fif-

'Our Man" is an American consul, a fellow countryman who lives in Wherever," understands the language,

Service posts and State Department Offices of Special Consular Services. In the fiscal year 1977, the men and women consular officers:

But the consuls are not supposed to help straighten out hotel reservations, serve as travel agents, arrange for changing money, act as interpreters, or try to find missing luggage.

Many Americans get into serious trouble, say consular officials, because they may not fully realize that once they cross the border into a foreign country they are no longer under the laws of the United States and no longer protected by the U.S. Constitution.

Last year, more than 7,500 Americans were in some kind of difficulty in foreign countries, with some 2,700 arrested. The consular officers can try to get help for them, provide names of lawyers or doctors, insist they receive equal treatment under the local laws, and contact friends and relatives.

But they are not allowed to put up bail and are unable to "spring" anybody from jail. They do try to obtain medical and dental care when needed, and see that jail food is adequate and clothing provid-

Pelican Count Doubles

AUSTIN (AP) - There's good news for pelican watchers.

A summer count of brown pelicans on the Texas coast was almost double that of last year, reported the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Friday.

That adds up to a coastal population now of between 210 and 240 birds, with a nesting population of 117.

Brown pelicans were common on the coast several decades before the use of DDT and other persistent pesticides in agriculture, the department said.

Currently some 1,600 Americans are serving prison sentences in foreign jails, almost all of them on narcotics busts.

Consular officers say most Americans arrested as drug offenders abroad think 'it can't happen to me." But when it does, the consuls say, severe sentences can result, often in the countries that some drug-oriented magazines and underground misinformation claim have lenient attitudes toward narcotics use.

The State Department says it is trying to work out bilateral treaties with a number of countries for better treatment of incarcerated Americans.

Bilateral deals have already been negotiated with Mexico, Canada, and Bolivia allowing exchange of some prisoners so they may serve out sentences in their native countries.

The Czech left-hander - "I shall always be Czech, no matter what," she said - came from behind in the final set to win one of the closest Wimbledon women's finals since World War II.

The tennis was not the greatest ever seen on center court, and in the end, the match was decided by errors. But the duel swung back and forth and kept the 14,000 fans in doubt until the last shot.

They could be in store for another see-

Martina 'Tougher' Than Chris

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -'She's tougher than I am.'

Chris Evert refused to equivocate. She didn't bat an evelash or reach for an alibi Friday in assessing Martina Navratilova's 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory for the Wimbledon women's tennis championship.

'She played her best when she got behind. She never got flustered. In the past, I've been the consistent one when the going got tough. Today it was Martina." Is Chris' crown as recognized queen of the courts tottering? Is this big, strong 21year-old defector from Czechoslovakia ready to usurp Evert's five-year reign as No. 1 in the world?

"I have to want it a little more," the 23year-old Evert said after losing to the Czech girl for the second time in two

'The desire is there, but the intensity is not the same. I have always been able to psych myself up for an important match. The longer you play, I find, it's harder to psych yourself up.

Is the icicle melting? What the world had come to think of as tremendous calm - an inflexible, inhuman steeliness - turned out to be an absence of fire and spirit on Wimbledon's center court, maybe the same lack of drive that permitted Virginia Wade to beat her in the semifinals last year.

Chris recognized and acknowledged it. 'Is Martina a threat to become No. 1?' Evert asked repeating a question at her See CHRIS Page 5

"She has been through a lot of hurt andloneliness," said Evert, the girl who befriended her when she first settled in America. "But she is tougher than I am at this point, this week.

Navratilova's powerful serve-and-volley game made her an obvious candidate for success on Wimbledon's grass, although this was her first appearance in the final. But when Evert - twice a Wimbledon champion - went from 0-2 to 4-2 in the final set, it seemed that her coolness and experience would prevail.

Navratilova's volleys brought her back into the match, and at 5-5 the incredible happened. Evert, the ice-cool slugger who keeps going forever from her baseline, suddenly lapsed and hit four straightforward shots - three forehands and a backhand - out of court and dropped her service.

That left Navratilova needing only to hold service for the title, and she did it without dropping a point. In fact Evert scored only 1 point in the last three

"If I was going to lose I didn't want to be tentative." Evert said afterward. "I kept attacking and going for my shots."

From the start, Evert's task was to keep her opponent, a formidable volleyer, away from the net. But it was at the net that Navratilova won her most valuable points.

The Czech grew more confident at the net after a shaky start. In the first set she won points with eight volleys and lost on eight. In the second she won on 13 volleys and lost on nine, and in the final set she stabbed 13 volleys home and failed with

Executive Sports Editor Texas Tech came up to full comple-ment of football coaches Friday, the first time since the end of the school year, as head man Rex Dockery announced the hiring of two new assistants.

Named to the staff were Donnie Laurence, presently head coach at Mount Pleasant High School, and Watson Brown, from Jacksonville (Ala.) State

Laurence, a former all-Southwest Conference defensive end at Baylor, will replace Jess Stiles as defensive end coach, and Brown, a former quarterback at Vanderbilt, will take the place of Pat Hodgson as receivers-quarterback supervisor. Stiles resigned to enter the sporting goods business, and Hodgson has joined the staff of the San Diego Chargers. Laurence submitted his resignation to the Mount Pleasant school officials Thursday night, and Brown notified his superiors at Jacksonville Friday. We're elated to get two coaches of the caliber of Do nnie and Watson," Dockery

'And Watson is one of the top offensive coaches I have ever been associated with. There is no doubt that both of them will mean a lot to our program

Laurence is the first high school coach from the state to be added to Dockery's staff. In his seven years at Mount Pleasant, his team had a 66-11 record, went to the Class AAA semifinals once and was district champion four times.

In his seven years as athletic director at the school, it won 29 varsity district championships. Just last month, the Mount Pleasant baseball team won the state crown, and it also won a state track crown while he was there.

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) - Jane Blatock and JoAnne Carner, two of the hottest pros on the LPGA tour, and Kathy Martin, trying to shake a year-long slump, fired four-under par 68s Friday and shared the first-round lead in the $75,000 Wheeling Classic.

One shot behind the leaders was Peggy Conley, a third-year pro who, like Martin, is seeking her first professional victory. M.J. Smith and Pat Meyers were tied at two-under-par 70s.

Six golfers were deadlocked at 71 over the 6,265-yard par-72 Speidel Golf Course - Barbara Barrow, Janet Coles, Joyce Kazmierski, Sandra Post, Mary Bea Porter and Judy Rankin.

Carner, winner of over $43,000 in a month's span after a visit to veteran pro Sam Snead straightened out her game, was six-under-par until suffering a double bogey six on the 375-yard par four 17th

"I hate that hole," said Carner, noting she had bad memories of it from the 1976 tournament. She finished 31st that year, her worst finish of the year.

Both Carner and Blalock, winner of last week's tournament at Noblesville, Ind., and a winner here two years ago, credited their past play on hilly courses with helping them adapt to the mountainous Speidel course.

"I grew up in New Hampshire, and you get a lot of sidehill lies there like you get here," said Blalock, who has finished no worse that second the past three weeks. 'This isn't a bad habit to get into," added Blalock. "This is the most consistent I've ever been on the tour. I feel pretty good shooting a 68 on this course because you really have to think to play it." you really have to think to play it."

Giants, Colts Replay Greatest' Title Game

NEW YORK (AP) - Outlined against a clear, blue July sky, the Colts and Giants huffed and puffed Friday.

It was a touch football game in Central Park, taped for national television, between the members of the Baltimore Colts and New York Giants who played 20 years ago in what has been called "the greatest game ever played.

Football fans of all ages know the Colts beat the Giants 23-17 in overtime on Dec. 28, 1958, for National Football League championship. Not many people will remember the Colts won Friday, 28-14. Who cares?

"It was really nice," said Jim Parker, an offensive guard for the Colts. "Twenty years later. A lot of fun.

Soon the helmets and pads were gone, replaced by cigarettes and cans of beer. The game, which was played in two 30minute halves, was taped by CBS to be shown during the NFL season.

The Giants kicked off and the ball went to defensive end Gino Marchetti. Marchetti, who became a fast food magnate and who looks like he eats a lot of his own hamburgers, froze as lineman are supposed to do when they get the ball. Then he lateralled to halfback Lenny Moore, who faked his way 20 yards.

Unitas passed five yards to Moore and 15 to Alan Ameche, who scored the winning touchdown in 1958. Johnny U. then hit Marchetti with a 25-yard toss at the goal. After Ameche was stopped for no gain, Unitas hit Moore for the touchdown

They sent forward Kermit Washington, center Kevin Kunnert and guard Freeman Williams, a first round draft choice this year, to San Diego.

Boston forward Sidney Wicks also is expected to move to San Diego but final discussion on that is not expected for at last league. San Diego will play in a six-team two weeks. Irving Levin, a Los Angeles film mag-nate who gained control of the Celtics in 1975, is the new owner of the relocated John Y. Brown, who owned the Braves for one season, will take charge of the Celtics with Harry Mangurian, his co-

O'Brien refused to say who voted against the ownership exchange and franchise shift.

The complex maneuvering left unsettled the future of Celtics' general manager and former coach Red Auerbach. Brown said he had made an "attractive offer" to Auerbach and hopes to have a response within two weeks.

Before the Loard's actions Friday, Auerbach had expressed reservations about staying with an owner who had not consulted him on a trade.

But Brown said it would have been improper to have discussed the trade with Auerbach before he gained control of the

"It would have been unethical of me to talk to Red because I didn't hold the franchise," Brown said. "I would have liked to have talked to Red."

Auerbach, whose contract with the Celtics expires Aug. 1, said he has other offers in basketball.

Levin said he is considering conducting a contest in the San Diego area to find a new nickname for the Braves. He also said he had not decided on a coach to replace Cotton Fitzsimmons, who became head coach of the Kansas City Kings after the 1977-78 NBA season.

"I have some thoughts which I would rather not make public at the present time," Levin said. He said he might make a decision within a few days.

ing to Louisiana State University - the school he led to its only national football championship - Paul Dietzel pledged Friday to stay in the background as athletic director.

"I really didn't come down here to try to run a popularity contest," Dietzel said. 'I've never been interested in that. You have to understand I'm the director of athletics, not the football coach." Dietzel, 53, formally assumes his duties

Aug. 1. He was given a five-year contract at $50,000 a year to return to the school he made a national football power in the late 1950s and early 1960s. He has been athletic director at Indiana

University the last 15 months. · Coaches and players should be the stars of a college athletic program, Dietzel told a news conference. "The coaches are the ones that should be in the limelight," he said. "An athletic director should be in the background as far as possible." He asked that LSU fans not expect too much too fast.

"I am not a miracle worker. I don't know how to solve problems overnight," Dietzel said. "I don't think I have any measure of genius about me. The only think I have is that I will work about as hard as anybody I know." Why did he return to the school he led to a national title in 1958 but then abandoned after saying he'd never leave?

"I figued we have about 12 golden years left," Dietzel said motioning to his wife, Anne, sitting nearby. "And I thought it was important that we should spend those years in a place where we would be happy. And there was no question. That's LSU and Baton Rouge. Dietzel confirmed that in offering him the job, the LSU Board of Supervisors gave him full power over hiring and fir-

"You really have to be able to call your own shots," he said.

Dietzel sidestepped a question about what he would do about the contract of Charlie McClendon, who took the the head football job when Dietzel went to Army after the 1961 season.

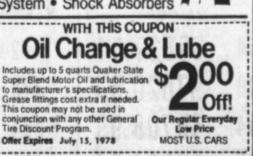

"A lot of people, things and situtations have changed," Dietzel said. "I don't have the background now to even try to answer that question.

Eyes Post At Big Spring

Ron Logback may leave Coronado High School without ever winning or losing a ballgame. The newly-hired assistant football coach has been offered the head coaching job at Big Spring High School. Logback was a defensive coach at Big Spring last fall before resigning to join new head mentor Jack Quarles at CHS.

He was offered the Big Spring job after Don Robbins, who guided the Steers for two years, was reassigned as a high school vice principal within the Big Spring school system.

Logback joined Quarles in the spring and has participated in spring train with the Mustangs.

Pete Ragus, Director of Athletics for Lubbock schools, indicated he would free Logback from his contract if he accepts the job. "However, official acceptance must come from Logback," he added. Logback, who currently lives in Big Spring, was not available for comment. Quarles commented, "It would definitely be a good financial move for Logden's Bjorn Borg bids for his third nors, and he expects the match to be a straight Wimbledon men's tennis title knockdown brawl.

Every match we play goes down to the final point," the 22-year-old Swede said. "We play the same kind of game. Both of us hit the ball very hard. Jimmy is playing well. I will have to be on top of my game to beat him.

He should know. It took him five long, gruelling sets to get by the American in the final last year. And, although Connors was hospitalized briefly earlier this year with mononucleus, he isn't showing the slightest ill effect.

Borg, who won Italian and French crowns on clay this year, has been dazzling the tennis world since he was 16, destroying opposition with a hard top-spin forehand and a two-fisted backhand, the ball coming his racket like a bullet.

A stolid Scandinavian, he shows little emotion on the court.

Topeka Man Concludes Long Trek

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) - A 54year-old Topeka man is back home after fulfilling a long-time dream. He recently visited all 26 major league baseball stadiums, saw 25 games and drove 16,466 miles in 25 days to do it. He was invited to throw out the first ball at three of the games, but not in Royals Stadium in Kansas City. And, the Royals are his favorite team. Henry Schmidt wanted to set a record by seeing a game in every one of the parks on consecutive days. He didn't make it because a game in Toronto got rained out. "Toronto messed me up, "he

Schmidt plotted his trip last March, and left Topeka on June 3. He went south first, to Houston, Milwaukee, etc. His longest haul was from Dallas to Los Angeles, which he drove in then drove to St. Louis, Chicago,

24 hours without stopping. He wasn't overly impressed with any of the games he saw, although he witnessed two grand slam home

But he did say the Astrodome in Houston is the most comfortable park in which to watch baseball, and that the Royals Stadium is the prettiest His biggest thrill, he said, was throwing out the first ball in Candlestick Stadium at San Francisco, the first park where he got to do

Why did he do it? "Because I love baseball, and I just love to drive," Schmidt said.

Chris No Match For Martina

for it. She is a tremendous athlete and now she has strong concentration. Whether she becomes the best is up to her. It's up to me and up to Evonne

The reference was to Evonne Goolagong, the graceful court artist from Australia's outback who has returned to competition after becoming a mother and injected herself into the scramble for world

Chris, twice champion and four times a finalist here since 1973 and winner of the last three U.S. Open titles, indicated that winning tennis championships was no longer the top priority of her life.

"I took a three-month break last winter because I thought I needed it," she said. 'I play better tennis the more active I am but I also have to think of myself. If it gets boring, I must take off. I probably will do so again." Chris didn't protest. But Martina stomped on the line where she said the ball hit and insisted it was Chris' point. The ball was played as a let and Chris purposely hit out of court. 'She's still a brat," Chris said jokingly afterward. "We all got emotionally in-appreciated her hurt and lonelin She and I have been very close in the past. Now she's closer to Billie Jean (King). But if she ever needs me, I'll be there as a friend.

Chris hinted that she felt Martina handled herself better under pressure — an unusual concession for the player thought to be most immune to it.

"She played better when she was behind," Chris said. "When I was ahead, I couldn't finish her off. When I had her down 4-2 in the last set I thought the match was in my reach.

"But I couldn't handle her service. I never sensed a bit of nervousness in her. She never got flustered. Two years ago, in the same situation, she might have gotten discouraged and given up."
There were some interesting bits of by-play during the match, showing the mutual respect between the two finalists.

Officials Fear Budget Chaos

government struggled Friday to agree on $5 billion budget that was supposed to take effect July 1, as 42,000 state workers threatened to strike because the crisis has left them unpaid for a week.

"We have an uprising all over," said John Harvey, director of communications of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. Council 93.

Angry prison guards already are on strike - about 300 of them walked out Thursday in a wildcat. Officials fear that other workers might join the walkout, leaving 1,600 convicts and mentally ill prisoners at two major prisons, Walpole and Bridgewater, virtually without super-

In the seventh day of the new fiscal year, the Legislature and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis still had not agreed on a final version of the budget, meaning the state has no money for paychecks, welfare payments or anything else.

The House of Representatives passed a version of the budget early Friday, and the Senate approved a slightly different one in the afternoon. The discrepancies were then resolved by a conference committee, and both houses were expected to approve the compromise

However, Dukakis said he would veto the budget on grounds that a rider barring state funds to pay for abortions for poor women was discriminatory.

The union council and local presidents meet Sunday, and Harvey said that "if there is no budget by then, there will be a major action Monday.

The problems of the Legislature in agreeing on a budget have drawn little sympathy from state workers. When antiabortion leader Raymond D. Flynn, a Boston Democrat, defended his record during a meeting with state workers, one snapped:

"We're not concerned with your past record. We want to eat this week. Where are our salaries?"

Officials in the state Departments of Mental Health and Public Health began calling institutions every half hour when the prison guards left their jobs, checking to see if the strike had spread, said Joseph Finnegan, deputy commission of the Department of Mental Health.

"He invited me to join his team for the Watkins Glen Toyota pro-celebrity match race," said Brolin, who currently is starring in "capricorn One." "it sounded in-teresting so I attended the Willow Springs Raceway driving school for a couple of days and got hooked.

with little training I entered the race last October and had a hell of a good time. I'd never raced a car before in my life. It was really exciting.

immediately afterwards I enrolled in the famous Bondurant school for race drivers in San Francisco. Clint and Gene Hackman went along with me. We all decided that car racing was for us."

since then, Brolin has entered five professional races and two match races. Because of mechanical breakdowns he has yet to complete a race. Three weeks ago the actor survived his first dangerous mishap. He was in the 60th lap of a 100-mile race in limerock, Conn., when he lost a wheel and most of the front end assembly of a Datsun

"Fortunately, it happened on the slowest, safest turn on the track," Brolin said. "Insted of hitting a wall or another car, I rolled into the grassy infield. I was lucky the car didn't roll over.

"We hit speeds of 150 miles per hour and average about 95. The courses run from a mile and a half to three miles. I'd slowed down to 50 miles an hour for that particular curve when the front of the car fell apart. "I've always owned a little sports car, a porsche or something, that I'd wring out on the freeways now and then. Guess you could say I've been a Walter Mitty, like a lot of guys. So when the opportunity to race came along, I jumped at it. "There must be some reason racing people want to see actors on the track. Maybe it's because we can draw more customers to their races, which is all right with me.

'On a personal basis, I've never been a really competitive guy. But I like challenging myself. And sitting in a car traveling at 150 miles an hour is a true test of self-discipline. It wakes me up and shakes me out of being lazy.

"Just when you think you're getting old, racing makes you come alive. It helps me in my work as an actor because it stimulates all factors of your life. It's take my time.

somewhat risky, but so is accepting a new picture.

'the minute you start playing it safe in life you begin to die a little sooner. I'm usually scared just before a race, worried about cracking up. But after the third lap or so I'm riding a big, big high.

'Racing gives me a wonderful aggressive feeling that you don't find too often in life. All my instincts are aroused. I can't afford to daydream, like I usually do, out there on the track."

Brolin reserves his highest praise for fellow actor Newman who has been driving bigger, faster cars. Newman, who began racing competitively five years ago, belongs to the same team as newcomers Brolin, Eastwood and Hackman.

"Paul is an incredible driver on any circuit." Brolin said. "He goes out and wins every other time out. He was national champion driver last year in C produc tion cars. He raced in two divisions. I wouldn't be surprised if Paul has been offered a car in the Indianapolis 500. I think

"Paul was smart. He stayed back with smaller cars until he knew what he was doing. Now he can write his own ticket.

"Next February there's a good chance Clint and I AND Paul will enter as a three-man team in the 24-hour Daytona driving a Ferrari. Paul was fourth in that big, important race with two other guys last year.

It's a tough, 24-hour grind with the drivers trading off every three hours. Hackman would be the team manager.

"But that's in the future. At this point I just want to finish a race and become competent in the cars I'm driving before I move on to bigger, faster cars. If you're a celebrity, they try to push you into big cars before you're ready. I'm going to

NEW RELEASES CHEAP DETECTIVE, THE (PG) -Peter Falk, Ann-Margret and a cast of dozens. Comedy-Mystery. This is Neil Simon's follow-up to "Murder by Death." It's a spoof of all those old Bogart movies. Most of it works, some of it doesn't, but you'll smile most of the way. The plot has more twists than a roomful of disco dancers, but don't worry about it. Just enjoy the gags and funny situations. Grade: B-plus.

GENERAL RELEASE

AMERICAN HOT WAX (PG) - Tim McIntire. Musical. The '50s, and the beginnings of rock 'n' roll are the setting for this small-scale offering. It is supposed to be the story of disc jockey Alan Freed, who first made rock 'n' roll big. If you like the music, you'll like this, because there are many musical numbers that really jump. GRADE: B.

Your

BIG SLEEP, THE (R) - Robert Mithum, Sarah Miles. Mystery. Another try at Philip Marlow, the prototype private eye, but this one misses. The direction is heavy, the acting over-emotional and the plot so convoluted you'll need a road map to stay even. Still, Mitchum makes a fine Marlowe. GRADE: B.

CAPRICORN ONE (PG) - James Brolin, Hal Holbrook, Brenda Vaccaro. Action-adventure. Plenty of action here, and something to think about, too. This suggests that the space program fakes a Mars landing - the astronauts are really in a Martian mock-up on Earth - and builds a great chase and survival thriller from that. GRADE: B-plus (and count-

CAT AND MOUSE (PG) - Michele Morgan, Serge Reggiani. Romantic mystery. A wealthy Frenchman dies under unusual circumstances, and his wife appears to be the most likely murderer. Of course, she insists otherwise. Fans of French director Claude Lelouch ("A Man and a Woman") find this film one of his best, but others may find the subtitled offering a bit difficult to follow. GRADE: B. (McDowell)

COMING HOME (R) - Jane Fonda, Jon Voight, Bruce Dern. Drama. One of the new wave of Vietnam war pictures, this is a strong, emotional story about a shattered man, the woman who waited for him, and another man. It is very strong stuff, but will leave you quivering. GRADE: A-minus.

DAMIEN OMEN II (R) - William Holden, Lee Grant. Thriller. Sequels seldom live up to the original, but this one is even worse than usual. Where the first "Omen" was scary, this one is ludicrous. The boy - the devil's son - is now in military school and everybody who ferret out his secret dies in a gruesome way. Caution: There are grisly scenes, but the rest of it is more funny than frightening.

DEAR DETECTIVE (PG) - Annie Girardot, Philippe Noiret. Mystery. Delightful romance between a reclusive classics professor and a hard-nosed, yet feminine, woman police inspector makes up for an average murder plot. French fun all the way. GRADE: A-minus. (Han-

DIFFERENT STORY, A (R) - Perry King, Meg Foster. Romance. Boy meets girl with a twist - they're both hemosexuals. Soon they need each other and they "go straight" over a lopsided birthday cake. That's when the film falls flatter than the cake. Overall effect is amateurish and superficial, but the film has its comic and touching moments. Caution: Some nudity, strong language. GRADE: B-minus. (O'Brien)

END, THE (PG) - Burt Reynolds, Dom Deluise, Sally Field. Comedy. Sonny (Reynolds) is dying of a blood disease. He'll be gone in a year — or less, if he can swing it. As his lovably mad "helper," Deluise is enchanting. In fact, the touch in all areas - writing, acting, directing is sure and skilled. A witty, sometimes touching film with more laughs than one would imagine. GRADE: B-plus.

FM (PG) - Michael Brandon, Martin Mull, Eileen Brennan, Cassie Yates, Drama with music. Most of this is set in a radio station, where the disc jockeys are in a confrontation with management. There are some good performances, some good music, some interesting back grounds. But the story fizzles where it should sizzle. GRADE: C.

GREASE (PG) - John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John. Musical. Not much plot, but plenty of fun, energy and music. Travolta can't sing, but, who cares? - he's a star. Slow direction stalls some of the musical numbers, but overall has a very enjoyable quality, and it builds up to a great musical climax. It's all fine summer fluff. GRADE: B-plus.

JOSEPH ANDREWS (R) - Ann-Margret, Peter Firth. Romantic comedy. Richardson's long-awaited successor to "Tom Jones," this is a bawdy, frantic, funny look at merrie olde England. Excellent vignettes by some of England's great actors enliven this, and the evocation of a long period is fascinating.

OUR WINNING SEASON (PG) -Scott Jacoby. Comedy-drama. Another 'American Graffiti" copy, this film about high school kids growing up in the 60s starts slowly but manages to find itself in the last reel. Mostly, it's about a young track star trying to find himself. GRADE: C.

PRETTY BABY (R) - Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields. Drama. Set in New Orleans' famous Storyville brothel area, this is a beautifully photographed look at a family of prostitutes. The subject matter may be objectionable, but director Louis Malle has handled it tastefully, or as tastefully as possible. Good performances all around. GRADE: B-plus.

SERVANT AND MISTRESS (R) -Victor Lanoux, Andrea Ferreol. Psychological drama. She was the servant, he the arrogant nephew. Rich uncle dies; now

she's the arrogant mistress of the manor and he, well, you get the picture. Fine acting fails to save this French import from final absurdity, pointlessness and bad taste. Caution: Not for the pure of heart. GRADE: C-minus (Grossman)

UNMARRIED WOMAN, AN (R) - Jill

Drama. The title is a misnomer, because the film is about a very-married woman and the trauma she goes through when her husband divorces her. A brilliant performance by Clayburgh in a film that would have been better had it been cut a little tighter. Caution: nudity reigns supreme. GRADE: A-minus. Clayburgh, Alan Bates, Michael Murphy.

Firms Eye Atlantic City Casino Profits

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The Las Vegas casino Golden Nugget an-nounced Friday it had purchased Boardwalk property for a future casino hotel near Resorts International Hotel Casino, its second major real estate acquisition in the past month here.

Meanwhile, the owner of the Benihana of Tokyo restaurant chain said he is close to a deal for the aging 550-room Shel-burne Hotel on the Boardwalk.

In addition, American Motor Inns Inc. a hotel chain based in Roanoke, Va., said it also wants to build a casino hotel here.

The announcements follow Resorts International's report Wednesday that its new casino was winning an average of $534,627 a day during June, its first full month of operation. At that rate, the casi-no would take in more than $192 million in its first year.

Golden Nugget president Stephen A. Wynn said his firm has purchased a 300foot by 400-foot parcel of old Boardwalk stores and a movie theater as a possible site for a new casino hotel.

The property is a half-block from Resorts International and is opposite Steel Pier. Wynn said his firm had no interest in acquiring the 80-year-old amusement

Last month, Wynn announced the $8.5 million purchase of the 150-room Strand motel, a square block of property about 11/2 miles down the Boardwalk

BOLL WEEVIL INFESTATIONS are reported to be three to four times lighter than last year in the Rolling Plains area below the Caprock. Emory P. Boring III, extension entomologist, says the infestations are limited to early planted fields which are near the most favorable overwintering habitat, Peak numbers of overwintered weevils were captured in boll weevil traps during the first and second weeks of June. Peak numbers usually are observed by the first week in June Producers who have cotton that is beginning to square should inspect the fields thoroughly for overwintered weevils, Boring says.

"AN EARLY SEASON WEEVIL CONTROL application should be applied only in those fields where overwintered weevil populations are detected prior to the appearance of the first one-third grown squares," the entomologist says. Most producers will not have to apply control measures for overwintered boll

"The high level of winter mortality and the uniform planting date which was observed by most producers have greatly reduced the level of overwintered infestations," he explains.

Weevil populations are expected to remain low until emergence of the second generation in mid-August.

Hot, dry weather will keep the size of the first generation of boll weevils small, Boring says. And higher-than-usual mortality of larvae within squares can be expected as a result of hot, dry weather, he adds.

AT LEAST ONE COUNTRY ISN'T JUMPING on the eat-less-meat, eatmore-grain bandwagon.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland learned during a recent tour of the Soviet Union that the Russians plan to boost livestock production to increase domestic meat consumption. All Union Deputy Minister of Agriculture Boris A. Runov has been quoted as saying: "Right now our meat consumption is 55 kilograms (121 pounds) per persons (per y ear). By 1980, we want to raise it to 75 kilograms (165 pounds): And just how do the Russians plan to boost livestock production? By expanding their use of grain feeding, which they have found is the fastest way to increase the supply of meat.

A SENATE-HOUSE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE has agreed to amend the Beef Research and INFORMATION Act to require approval by a simple majority of the producers voting in a referendum.

The act previously has required a two-thirds majority. In last year's referendum, 56.5 percent voted for the program.

Rep. Bob Poage of Waco led the debate for the change, saying cattlemen have been kicked around by consumer boycotts, food faddists, record economic losses, and now by unfair beef imports.

Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N. Y., a professed vegetarian, led the opposition, claiming that cattlemen would pass any incr eased costs on to consumers.

The next step, approval by the full House and Senate, is expected about mid-

Wheat Agreement Talks Opened In Switzerland

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) - Major convening of a second full negotiating wheat producing and consuming countries Friday opened a new round of private talks on an international wheat agreement, including maximum and minimum price levels and a reserve stock.

A full negotiating conference in March failed to resolve differences, mainly between the United States and Canada and

The other main difference is the Community's insistence on inclusion of coarse grains, such as rye, in the overall agreement envisaged while the Americans and Canadians want to go no further than establishing a provision for future coarse could propose mid-September for the ations.

-(c) 1978 Pacific News Service The case that was billed as the greatest confrontation between the rights of whites and minorities in 25 years flopped as a fandmark decision because ironically, it failed to address some crucial issues that have nothing at all to do with race. The desire of a 38-year-old white aerospace engineer to make a mid-career switch into medicine was touted as a serious test of the right of whites to be free from descrimination but all did was obscure the that there is not end in sight to white supremacy in America.

The most unfortunate consequence of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision ordering Allan Bakke admitted to the medical school of the University of California at Davis is the reinforcement of the fear among many whites that affirmative action is cutting into their opportunities for advancement. The truth is that for every Allan Bakke viewed as a victim of special admissions, there are 20 other whites who are excluded from medical schools simply because there is not enough room for applicants of any color.

In virtally every disirable job category today, the overwhelming majority of jobholders are white and in areas these positions have decision making powers, the jobholder is extremely likely to be both white and male. In the forseeable future. being born white and male in America will continue to be the insurance for acquiring the rewards of the middle-class

In fact, if there were no minorities at all in the United States, what to do with an exploding population of young, educated whites would still be a serious national crisis that few politicians and social scientists have chosen to address. Most minorities are so far from competing with whites for available opportunities that thay are hardly a factor in the distribution of limited opportunites.

All the talk about "quotas." 'affirmative action" and the 'meritocracy" has created a misleading schools, 92 of every 100 students are white. Ninety-five of every 100 law students in the country are white. In 1976, more than 42,000 persons applied for 15,700 places in medical schools. Less than 1,300 of those accepted were from minority groups. Even if no minorities were accepted there would still be 26,000 whites, most of them qualified to become doctors, who would have thier life-long dreams cut short by the sheer weight of competition from other whites.

At the University of California's Boalt Hall Law School, for example, 3,549 persons applied for 293 places in the firstyear class of 1976. Again, if there were no minorities at all in the applicant pool, more than 3,000 well-qualified candidates would have been turned away.

The image of unfair advantage for minorities has been reinforced by the projection of the crucial issue in Bakke as a confrontation of blacks and whites over the right to acquire graduate degrees. But in nine cases out of 10, both competitors in the tug of war are likely to be white. The most profound change that has taken place in the battle for places in graduate and professional schools involves sex, not race.

In 1959, only 6 percent of first-year medical students were women. In 1976, they constituted nearly a quarter of the

The cause for all this jostling is the infamous post World War II baby boom. The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that there are 58 million people in the 'prime" 25 to 44 age category. By 1990 the population of this group will be 60.5 million. "Competition will be intense and disappointment widespread," said Richard B. Freeman, a professor of economics at Harvard University. "This disappointment will be deepened by the fact that, on the average, these workers will be better educated than many of their superiors.

are unemployed or underemployed in omy will be able to absorb this flood of creasing attendence of blacks in college is seems gloomy at this time.

For the last five years an intense debate has been raging over the degree of progress blacks have made since rights era of the 1960s. Neo-conservatives have argued that substantial progress has been made and that there is little need for preferential programs. Civil rights leaders contended that there has been little forward movement and that calls for 'benign neglect" are a new form of racism. As is often the case in such debates. there is some truth in both positions. The situation is much like that of the blind men who tried to describe an elephant according to which part they touched.

Between 1966 and 1976 porportion of black families with incomes of $15,000 or more increased from 19 to 30 percent and black families with incomes over $25,00 grew from 3 to 8 percent. But during this decade the number of unemployed blacks doubled and the number of unemployed adult black men tripled. Also alarming were reports that the number of female-headed families among blacks (which are more likely to be poor) became the rule rather than the exception.

These developments not only documented the development of a dual economy that tracks the poor and the middle class into unequal futures. It also that gains made in the last decade may not been pemanent. In its June 1978 issue. Black Enterprise Magazine reported that the proportion of poor blacks is increasing while the number of thse in the lower middle class is shrinking. "Not only s the proportion of blacks at the bottom of the economy higher today than it used to be. but the base for black advancement into middle class is now weaker than it was in the late 1960s," the magazine said.

What these statistics indicate is that the likelihood of real competition for whites from minorities is not only remote but becoming less likely as we near the end of this decade.

Because education is such an important the United States. Profects that the econgateway to opportunity in America, in-the growth of black attendence in college from 4.6 to 10.7 percent of all students fails to note that more then 60 percent of blacks are attending two-year colleges and vocational schools. Recent figures alblacks in four-year colleges and vocational schools. Recent figures also have indicated that the number of blacks in fouryear colleges and professional schools has stopped or declined. The New England Journal of Medicine reported that the number of blacks applying to medical schools has decreased in recent years and that the pool of qualified applicants is so the near future is not likely. None of these statistics have been able to dissuade whites from the view that blacks have moved "too fast" in their struggle for equality. Because of the concentration on the racial aspects of oppor-tunity, the more profound and fundamental problems of access to the middle class for all Americans has been virtually small that the resurgence of applicants in

The Bakke case -- finally resolved by the Supreme Court after four years of ligition -- has not addressed other deeper questions about who can enter the world of American medicine.

Recent studies conducted at several universities show that medical admissions procedures:

-Favor the children of the weathly. -Discrimate against rural Americans, ethnic minorities and women.

-Fail to predict the success of medical

-Discourage applicants from seeking certain kinds of pre-medical training considered valuable to the healing arts.

Most notable is a new study undertake at Harvard University's Department of Education by Grace Ziem. Examining the composition of medical school students in U.S. universities between 1961 and 1973, Dr. Ziem found that despite some gains by women and blacks, the percentages of students from low-income amilies did not change.

The number of students from families with incomes below the national median (or middle point) remained frozen at 12 percent for each year -- the same percentage it has been since 1920. In short, Dr. Ziem found that when women, blacks and other minorities do make it into medical school, they are usually from upper-income families -- just like the white male students who form the majority of admissions.

John Garcia, professor of psychology an psychiatry at the University of California at Los Angeles, said he believes that the Bakke case should force medical school administrators to take a hard look at their admissions standards, which Garcia claims are academically meaningless and culturally biased.

"Obsessed with objective quantification, admissions people assign a number or several numbers to each applicant; then, realizing that these numbers are essentially meaningless when applied to complex human beings, they set up special procedures to admit obviously complex numbers are estimated to admit obviously complex numbers are estimated to the complex numbers are estimated petent minority applicants with low num-bers. Thus they set the stage for legal ac-tion, such as the Bakke case," Garcia

Bakke has been described as a victim of 'reverse discrimination," Garcia said. It is more accurate to say that he sued to force the university to return to its archaic discriminatory standards of ad-

Buttressing Garcia's complaints are the Buttressing Garcia's complaints are the conclusions of N.S. Cole, a research psychologist at the American College Testing Program, and J.M. Richards Jr., a professor of psychology at the University of Missouri. After a study of the Medical College Admissions Test (MCAT), Cole, and Richards found that two out of four of the MCAT sub-test (general informa tion and verbal ability) contain a large number of items in which "persons from other than majority, urban -even 'cul-tured' -culture would have difficulty, a difficulty that would not appear to correspond to any similar difficulty encountered in the process of medical education or practice. Cole and Richards found little correlation between the scores students achieved on the MCAT and their actual performance in medical school. At its best, the MCAT predicted only 4 percent of the variation in the performance of medical students In addition, Cole and Richards found "no data showing the relationship of MCAT scores to excellence in medical

They concluded that "MCAT measures adequately what simialr tests measure. but what is measured has little utility in the seletion of medical students."

"The exaggerated importance of standardized testing has other pernicious effects on the educational process," Garcia said. "If the student knows he must pass a standard test with a grade higher then his fellows, a premium is placed upon competitive tactics, perhaps even cheating, rather than cooperation with his felletters of recommendation -tech lows. The competitive student must restrict himself to classes that will raise his test score and forego many enriching activities in university life. However, tests such as the MCAT can direct the student's attention away from areas of training vital to the healing arts, which he One solution advanced by Garcia is to knows cannot be encapsuled in test

"Since the average performance of students on national tests reflects on their school, there is pressure on the faculty to train students to pass tests rather than to master arts and science."

Furthermore, in a study of 25 Northern medical schools conducted in 1969 by Dr. Marvin Dunn, assistant dean of the Medical College of Pennsylvania, admissions officers at 19 schools admitted accepting men in preference to women unless the women were "demonstrably superior.

The implications of all this, according to Garcia, is that not only are minorities, poor people and rural people unfairly redures, but also many students turned down would have become medical students and physicians than those admit-

As an antidote to the bias of conventional admissions standards, professional schools in the late 1960s began special interviewing and screening procedures de-signed to select promising monority stu-dents who would not have gained admission normally. Without the aid of such subjective instruments as interviews and not outlawed by the Supreme Court's decision -many students capable of impor-tant contributions to medicine would be excluded, Dr. Andrew Goldner, of the University of California at Davis School-design "culturally neutral" tests for each profession. Such adjustments might and arbitrary, Garcia said, but he noted that the standards that have already been made in IQ tests and the Graduate Records Examination (GRE) -used to evalute applicants to graduate departments, make them "sex neutral."

"Since men as a group score lower on the verbal Graduate Records Exam, each man is assigned a higher percentage score than any woman who does as well on the test, and he receives a higher percentile score than many women who do better than he does," Garcia explained.
