

Carter Energy Efforts Backed

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Carter gained the economic summit's acceptance Sunday of his efforts to reduce U.S. energy consumption and oil imports, winning in exchange commitments from other nations to speed economic growth.

Carter said he told the leaders of the other six nations at the summit that Congress will pass the first part of his long-stalled energy program on Tuesday but that if a satisfactory program is not enacted he might have to take additional steps.

"I have told them what my own attitude would be," Carter said.

No Commitment Indicated

But, talking with reporters after the first of two days of summit meetings, he said he had not decided whether to impose quotas to reduce oil imports and it appeared from others' statements that the United States had not committed itself to expand its efforts to reduce the imports.

Carter, who returns to Washington Monday, joined German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in reporting substantial progress and predicted that "the final results of the deliberations will be good."

Japanese and German pledges to promote economic growth were sought by Carter to help support the dollar and avert a possible new worldwide economic slowdown.

It was understood the German government may commit itself in today's summit communiqué to reduce taxes by $5 billion. This was sought by the United States as an economy-boosting measure because it could increase German imports and reduce the huge U.S. trade deficit.

The leaders also agreed on a program to combat terrorism, focusing primarily on a plan to curtail airplane hijackings.

Energy Reaction "Positive"

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal described as "positive" the other leaders' reaction to Carter's outline of U.S. energy policy. He predicted the summit would achieve "a very substantial result."

Despite pre-summit bickering over responsibility for current world economic ills, Blumenthal said there was "certainly no acrimony" during the summit session but that each leader spoke his own mind.

"There was a frank and cordial exchange," he said. "Each head of state spoke of his particular concerns regarding other countries; nothing was glossed over," he said.

Economic Accord Reached

The treasury secretary declared that agreements had been reached on economic growth, inflation, employment, energy, and international monetary problems — meaning the decline of the dollar. He said specific language on these issues would be in the communiqué but had not been worked out.

Schmidt disclosed the summit agreement on new approaches to reducing international terrorism, a special problem for Germany and several other nations represented here, but gave no details. Such an agreement would be an important but surprising by-product of the summit because terrorism was not on the agenda.

He said the agreement came at a lunch meeting, rather than during the formal, official talks, which opened here at Schauberg Palace, the German chancellor's official renaissance-style home on the Rhine River. The sumptuous palace was ringed by some of the 15,000 police and border guards brought to the capital for the summit.

Schmidt, speaking for the seven conference participants, said at a break midway through Sunday's meetings that he anticipated a statement in the communiqué "on the need to reduce the volume of imported oil" and that such a reduction would "play a very important role" in easing economic difficulties in the major nations.

The other nations have blamed the dollar's decline on the size of U.S. oil imports while Carter has said that the decline was caused by Japan's and Germany's slow economic growth, which has caused them to import too few goods from the United States. Thus, he said, they have developed enormous trade surpluses and the United States suffers from a huge trade deficit.

The dollar has declined more than 20 percent against the German mark and 25 percent against the Japanese yen in less than a year.

DA-Elect Shows Zest For Being Tough On Crime

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THERE IS nothing harsh about John T. Montford except his approach to becoming criminal district attorney next year.

His composed expression, soft-colored clothes and casually parted hair suggest a low-key individual who likes harmony.

He has decided, however, that the best way to achieve harmony is to come down on crime like a falling sack of cement. And to that end, he is loading the sack with early recruitment of attorneys and investigators, grant applications for state money to enlarge the staff and an imperatively stated request for a bigger budget from Lubbock County commissioners.

Asks Budget Increase

He appeared in county budget hearings last week to ask a $450,000 budget financing the addition of four investigators and five law clerks and higher pay for the staff in general.

The budget this year under D.A. Alton Griffin is $387,000.

"I'm taking it very seriously, and I want to start early," Montford said in an interview at his office. "I feel that the initial impression we make with accused persons is very important."

"Some have told me I have a lot of nerve to ask for a budget increase during a taxpayers' revolt. But I haven't asked for any easy chairs or a raise for myself."

"I don't feel that my budget is unreasonable, and I'm prepared to defend it all the way through the next few months."

No Dispute Expected

He praised the county commissioners for their traditional stinginess with tax money and said he is "not going to fret" if his full budget is not approved.

He would feel "somewhat handicapped," though, he said.

Montford, 35, a product of Fort Worth and the University of Texas, won the Democratic primary with almost 80 percent of the vote on a platform primarily of adopting a harsher attitude toward crime.

He does not have a Republican opponent.

The office of criminal district attorney here was created in 1973 when the legislature combined the offices of district attorney and Lubbock County attorney.

Montford proposes getting $12,000 next year.

Vote Nears On ERA's Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a resolution to extend the deadline for ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment say they are looking for a narrow victory in a committee vote Tuesday, but do not expect the seven year extension they wanted.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said he will support an amendment that is expected to be offered to extend the ratification period by three or four years rather than by seven years. He said he believed the shorter extension would win approval.

Another source described supporters of the resolution as "reasonably confident" of winning the shorter extension in the House Judiciary Committee vote. The civil and constitutional rights subcommittee, of which Edwards is chairman, approved the seven-year extension 4-3.

Shorter Extension Favored

In an Associated Press poll, four members of the 34-member committee said they were inclined to vote for a shorter extension although they would not vote for a seven-year extension. Edwards had previously counted 16 votes, two short of a majority, in favor of the seven-year extension.

But a spokesman for Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., said Railsback does not believe an extension can win approval unless legislatures that have already ratified the ERA are given an opportunity to rescind their action. Railsback said he will offer an amendment to allow them to do this.

The original seven-year period for ratifying the amendment, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex, runs out next March 22. Approval by 35 states is needed for ratification.

33 States Remain Ratified

Legislatures in 35 states have ratified, but three of them — Tennessee, Idaho and Nevada — have voted to rescind their ratification. Kentucky's legislature also voted to rescind, but the move was vetoed.

The Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide if the rescissions are valid.

Shortage Of Nurses Curbs Use Of Hospital's Pediatric ICU

By CURTIS BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A CRITICAL shortage of trained personnel is holding back the rapid expansion of the new pediatric intensive care unit at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The facility, located on the second floor and adjacent to the pediatric ward, opened Monday with a two-patient capacity and will expand to a four-patient capacity on July 24.

Currently eight specially trained nurses work in the facility which has the most modern equipment available.

According to Barbara Sawyer, pediatric coordinator, the only problem restricting the size of the unit is the lack of the highly skilled nurses needed to care for the patients.

"Neither money equipment nor space is a problem in expanding the PICU program here," said Mrs. Sawyer. "It is the tremendous shortage of specialized pediatric nurses that is keeping us from growing at the speed we prefer." Mrs. Sawyer said the Health Sciences Center Hospital has the only pediatric intensive care unit in Lubbock and the surrounding area.

Long A Need Here

She said that due to the large population area the Lubbock hospitals serve, such a specialized unit has been needed a long time. The specialized care rendered can help in reducing the mortality rate.

The nearest hospitals with PICU facilities are in Dallas, Houston, Galveston and Albuquerque, N. M.

Three patients have been placed in the unit since its opening. Two required the care following heart surgery and one suffered respiratory difficulties.

Pediatric patients, infants through age 18, who require intensive care in other Lubbock and surrounding hospitals, are treated in adult intensive care units.

Specialists Needed

Mrs. Sawyer pointed out that children receive excellent care from the nurses in the adult units, but the difference is that the nurses generally are not specialized in working with children and neither are the adult intensive care units designed specifically to treat them.

"Children are not little adults," said Mrs. Sawyer. "Children have their own peculiar problems sometimes far different from adults. They even have different fears."

"A specialized pediatric nurse who is skilled in identifying these problems which become common in children can more easily and quickly care for the patient," she said.

Mrs. Sawyer, in order to make her point, used the example of the heart patient who often requires intensive care.

"In the adult unit, nurses care for patients who have suffered apparent heart attacks. The nurses are not specially trained to care for children whose cardiovascular disorders may be originated with birth, such as the hole in the heart."

Geared-Down Equipment Needed

Adult intensive care units usually do not have equipment geared down for the size of children.

"Imagine using an adult size cardiac defibrillator (machine which produces and electrical shock to stimulate the heart to beat) on a small child," said Mrs. Sawyer. She showed one designed for a youngster.

The Health Sciences Center Hospital PICU has much equipment and more on the way which is needed to care for pediatric patients who have had surgery generally performed on children.

The beds are so designed that a patient's weight can be monitored without having to move him. "Should a patient's body begin to accumulate fluid, nurses are immediately informed by a warning device."

Assorted types of monitoring instruments are on the wall behind the beds and are connected to one central unit which records the history of the patient's body functions for a doctor's immediate reading.

Police-In Missouri Town End 'Sick-In'

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — Police officers obeyed a court order and ended their "sick-in" in Sedalia on Sunday with a normal complement of four officers reporting for duty on the 6 a.m. shift.

The city had only minimum protection Saturday. Police Chief Bill Miller and his assistant Charles Knapp were the only members of the 46-man force on duty after officers phoned in sick during the day and night in a protest over low wages.

Miller said two lieutenants reported for the 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. evening shift after 10 patrolmen called in sick.

Miller said city employees had been offered an across-the-board $50 a month wage increase, but police said it would take at least $300 a month to bring their salaries to a level comparable to police in other Missouri towns.

Popular Crossword Game Starting Today In A-J

If you've ever wanted to play the SCRABBLE® crossword game, but couldn't find anyone to play with, your troubles are over.

Now, thanks to a brand new word game based on the principles of the SCRABBLE® crossword game, you can enjoy the fun and challenge of the SCRABBLE® crossword game by yourself, as well as with others.

What's the name of this incredible new game? It's called SCRABBLE® (BRAND) GRAMS and it is the brainchild of 32-year-old Judd Hambrick, currently the anchorman for the six and eleven o'clock news at WJKW-TV in Cleveland, Ohio.

A veteran gameplayer, Judd was first introduced to the SCRABBLE® crossword game by his mother in 1957. However, he did not begin to play the game on a regular basis until 1976.

"Usually two or three times each week," said the Texas-born Hambrick. "And anywhere from three-to-ten games in a sitting."

To improve his own SCRABBLE® crossword game he began developing a way to play the game by himself. This activity ultimately resulted in SCRABBLE® (BRAND) GRAMS.

Prior to his present anchoring position in Cleveland, Judd has worked both behind and in front of the camera in a variety of American cities including Dallas, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Honolulu.

Mideast Peace Talks Shift To Safer Site

LONDON (AP) — British and American security officials, fearing Arab terrorist attacks, made hurried preparations Sunday to shift the site of this week's Mideast peace talks from a London hotel to a moat-ringed castle in the English countryside.

The Israeli Cabinet reported, meanwhile, that it had received new peace proposals from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat but that it would defer taking a public stand on them until after this week's talks in Britain. Israeli officials would give no details of the proposals.

Sources said Prime Minister James Callaghan's government concluded it could not guarantee the safety of the U.S., Israeli and Egyptian delegations whose meeting, beginning Tuesday, was to have been held in a nine-story luxury hotel in the center of London.

The substitute site is Leeds Castle in Kent County, some 45 miles southeast of London, said the sources, American officials who asked not to be identified. The only access to the castle is a drawbridge.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Ministers Moshe Dayan of Israel and Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel of Egypt and their top aides would remain there throughout their two-day conference.

On their arrival in Britain, they would be shuttled by helicopter to the castle, beginning Monday afternoon with Dayan, then Kamel and, in the evening, Vance.

"It's 99 percent certain that's where we'll have the talks," said a U.S. official as preparations proceeded for shifting the negotiations away from the Churchill Hotel in the Mayfair area, not far from a hotel where a former Iraqi prime minister was assassinated a week ago.

Earlier Sunday in Bonn, West Germany, where Vance accompanied President Carter to an economic summit meeting, another U.S. official said of the scheduled London talks: "We've got a heck of a security problem there."

U.S. and British officials, confirming the decision to shift the conference away from the sprawling 400-room Churchill Hotel, said there had been concern from the outset about security and that it had intensified over the past few days. They refused to say whether new intelligence information about possible terrorist ac-

First Lady Comforts Dissident's Wife

LINZ, West Germany (AP) — Rosalynn Carter said Sunday she told the wife of Anatoly Shcharansky by telephone last week that she and President Carter would pray for the jailed Soviet dissident and that "particularly pleased" Mrs. Shcharansky.

"She asked me to ask Jimmy to help her husband publicly and privately and I told her we were praying for her," Mrs. Carter told reporters at an impromptu news conference on a Rhine River excursion boat. "She was very emotional. She hadn't known until the day before that her husband was alive."

Mrs. Carter, who took the river cruise while her husband attended the opening session of an economic summit conference in Bonn, said she placed the call Wednesday to Mrs. Shcharansky in Geneva.

The president's mother, Lillian Carter, also spoke by telephone to Mrs. Shcharansky, the first lady said.

Shcharansky was sentenced by a Soviet court Friday to 13 years imprisonment for espionage and anti-Soviet activities. The 30-year-old computer expert was accused of passing secret information to U.S. intelligence.

Mrs. Carter indicated she made no commitment to Mrs. Shcharansky, who was allowed to emigrate to Israel four years ago after Shcharansky's application for an exit visa was refused. Mrs. Shcharansky arrived in Washington Friday to begin an international tour seeking support for her husband and other Jewish activists wishing to leave the Soviet Union.

"She was particularly pleased to hear we were praying for her... that we would take time to call her," Mrs. Carter said. "I know we will continue to speak out for human rights for all people."

The first lady said she had been overwhelmed by the goodwill shown her and the president in West Berlin during their motorcade Saturday through streets jammed with an estimated 100,000 people.

"She said some of the spectators had tears in their eyes as they cheered the procession in which she, the president and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt drove through the divided city, and the show of emotion was "totally unexpected."

Mrs. Carter met with reporters on the windy deck of the 210-foot boat as it sailed down the river from Bingen to Linz, a suburb of Bonn. The trip, under hazy skies, took the first lady's party past a dozen medieval castles. The chartered boat flew a U.S. flag on the front, and passengers aboard other excursion craft waved white handkerchiefs at the first lady.

Mrs. Carter, who met the press with Mrs. Schmidt beside her, denied reports of friction between her husband and the chancellor.

"We laughed at that before we left home because the president and Chancellor Schmidt have a very good relationship," she said.

Mrs. Schmidt interjected, "We always laugh when we read that too."

Indians Seek Public's Support Against Government

By JOHN F. BARTON
WASHINGTON UPI — Indian activities held seminars in the shadow of the Washington Monument Sunday seeking popular support for their efforts to get the federal government to "stop stealing and raping our land."

"It's our land that is being stolen and raped," Murry MacNeill, a Yurok Indian from northern California, said in an interview with UPI.

MacNeill came a week ahead of the "Longest Walk" marchers to see administration and congressional sources about proposals to restrict Indian fishing rights on the Klamath River that runs through the reservation.

MacNeill said he finds the general public "is shocked to find out Indians are still living on reservations." But he said the isolation of the reservation is the key to why the Indian life style still exists.

MacNeill said he found support from interior Department officials, but that they were under intense pressure from the Commerce Department and some congressional figures to open up the reservations for exploitation by American mining companies.

MacNeill said the cross country march to Washington and this week's planned demonstrations "are political and spiritual because the land and the spirit are tied together for Indians."

without approval to the tribe.

Mrs. Carlson also said many lumber, fishing and mining companies want to strip her small property and the reservation of its natural resources.

She claimed so much water has been dammed up or diverted upstream that the Klamath River is only ankle deep throughout the reservation. This has destroyed salmon spawning grounds, she said.

"Indians have been treated like dogs," she said. "We have our own laws about how to fish on the reservation. But now they are saying you will live under our federal laws or you will be arrested. We shouldn't have to go through this again."

When some tourists asked how they could help, Mrs. Carlson replied: "Take all those law enforcement people out of there before a lot of people are killed."

Solons Want Agency Off Abortion Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two House Republicans want to strip the Civil Rights Commission of authority to study or act on the abortion issue. Reps. David Treen, R-La., and Tom Hagedorn, R-Minn., sent a letter to House colleagues saying the panel should no longer have jurisdiction over abortion-related issues.

They said the commission has overstepped its bounds because its mandate permits it only to study or advise on issues involving denial of equal protection because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin. Treen and Hagedorn also contend that abortion has nothing to do with these issues.

A group representing the American Indian Center in Little Rock, Ark., including Edith Dalton and Cerosha Clemmons, said they came here "to demonstrate that we are united in their cause."

Margaret Carlson, another Yurok Indian from northern California, said, "The United States government can not expect Indians just to lay over and not fight."

100-Degree Days Piling Up Across State

She expressed concern about legislation the Indians feel will further impinge upon their rights by opening up the reservations to exploitation by mining companies.

She said the bureau of Indian Affairs had sold some tribal land without seeking permission from family heirs, and that the federal government was trying to replace some tribal laws with federal laws

ARLINGTON (AP) — The old man reached down and shut off his lawnmower. Yanking a bright red bandanna from his overalls, he mopped his sweaty brow, gazed off into the morning heat and drawled: "Ah tell ya, The Man is trying to break us from suckin' eggs or somethin'."

It was 7 a.m. Sunday. The thermometer nailed to a nearby drooping mimosa tree in this Dallas-Fort Worth suburb registered an already-uncomfortable 80 degrees.

Another 100-degree "scorch" — the 15th in as many days in the Dallas-Fort Worth area — was virtually assured. By 4 p.m. it was official.

Heat records of one kind or another fell both Saturday and Sunday throughout the state.

made it 26 in a row Sunday, matching Abilene's high.

But nothing could match the sauna-like heat suffered by the residents of Olney. The small North Central Texas town 40 miles south of Wichita Falls vied for national honors Saturday with a high of 116, matched only by Needles and Palm Springs, Calif.

Sunday was Olney's 27th consecutive day over 100. The town tied Waco for the afternoon state high at 105.

Dick Elder, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service, said the abnormal heat was caused by an "adiabatic warming" condition resulting from a low pressure system hovering along the Texas-Oklahoma border. Air warms up when it moves to a lower altitude, he explained.

Dallas County Medical Investigator Mike Darst said no official warnings had been issued to the fresh-air fanatics, but added: "I wouldn't stay out in it unless I had to, and I'm a young man."

Vietnamese Said To Have Prisoners

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The State Department will investigate a Vietnamese businessman's claim that he saw 49 Americans in Vietnam jails after May 1975, a department official said Sunday.

"I think we will follow up on this information," said Frank Sieverts, who represented the State Department at the annual meeting of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Abilene snapped its 9-year-old record of 102 Saturday when the mercury peaked at 109 — two degrees higher than the new Dallas-Fort Worth mark set the same day. However, Sunday afternoon it was a balmy 103.

Wichita Falls recorded its 25th straight day of century marks Saturday with a blistering 114 — a new city high by eight degrees. The North Texas community

City and county officials in Dallas and Fort Worth attribute at least five deaths directly or indirectly to heat stroke. Area hospitals and clinics report increased caesalods due to heat stroke and heat exhaustion.

Sunday afternoon, National Weather Service figures showed 11 of 23 Texas cities that were checked with readings of 100 degrees or more.

"These guys, especially the ones with heart conditions, who go out and play 36 holes of golf are just asking for it."

Turning on his water hose, the old man walked menacingly over to the mimosa and sprayed his thermometer.

"Take that you over-heated so-and-so."

Ngo Phi Hung, 48, told the convention Saturday that he was able to visit jails in South Vietnam after the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong took control on April 30, 1975, by volunteering a 100-unit truck transfer service.

Vietnam has said there are no American war prisoners still alive in Vietnam. The United States counts 557 Americans missing from the war.

The Vietnamese refugee said he learned from a prison warden that three of the 49 men he saw were civilians and that three officers had died, two by suicide, while six others were in poor health. He said he "didn't dare ask" why the Americans were still being held.

But he said "other officials I talked to said 'we're keeping the prisoners in exchange for aid for reconstruction because the United States agreed to give us $2 billion.'"

Hung said he made a list of the Americans' names but lost it to pirates while fleeing to Thailand last February.

Sieverts said U.S. authorities knew nothing of Hung's claim until Saturday. He promised to interview Hung, who arrived in the United States early this month with his wife and 11 children and settled in San Diego.

Le Dhi Anh, a Vietnamese woman who has lived in the United States since 1964, said Hung was a wealthy businessman in Saigon who lost all his possessions when he escaped, including a briefcase with 175 ounces of gold, which would be worth more than $30,000.

Postal Talks Deadlocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators reported some progress Sunday in efforts to reach a contract settlement with 554,000 federal postal workers but said both sides remained deadlocked on the major issues separating them.

Negotiators for the U.S. Postal Service and three unions were working against a midnight Thursday deadline, when the current three-year contract expires.

"The parties have reached agreement in a number of areas, including some important ones, over the weekend," chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said in a prepared statement. "In that sense we are closer to an agreement, but we still have the major issues to deal with."

John Rogers, a spokesman for federal mediators, who entered the stalled talks a week ago, refused to disclose what issues had been resolved but said none of the big disagreements were included.

Two key disputes are wages and a no-layoff clause in the current contract which the unions are fighting to keep.

The unions have asked for a $1,965 wage increase per worker over two years plus full cost-of-living protection. Based on a projected annual inflation rate of 7 percent, the unions' wage demand would amount to about a 13 percent annual increase from the $15,877 the average postal worker now receives.

While federal law prohibits postal workers from striking, some militant East Coast locals have threatened a repeat of the scattered strikes that occurred in 1970 after bargainers working on a new contract failed to achieve a settlement by the deadline.

The Postal Service and several corporations have drawn up contingency plans in the event of another walkout. Postal Service plans include the possible use of federal troops, who delivered mail in 1970.

Lubbock Weather Mild Next To Heat Elsewhere

A hot 106-degree reading in San Angelo broke the old high temperature record of 105 set in 1918. In Austin, mercury readings leveled off at 105 degrees, two degrees above the record for the date there set in 1969.

Weathermen said the Austin reading was the highest there so far this year, and only four degrees off the highest mark ever for the city.

Elsewhere across the state, Waco, Laredo and Temple also reported 105-degree temperatures.

Olney, 35 miles south of Wichita Falls in North Central Texas, reported its 27th consecutive day of temperatures over 100 degrees.

The boiling temperatures combined with unstable, moist air aloft were triggering some thunderstorms across portions of South Texas late Sunday. Rain-fall amounts were small however.

Scattered afternoon showers and evening thunderstorms can be expected over far West Texas, South Central and Southeast Texas as the low pressure system prevails, weathermen said.

Dimmitt reported .18 of an inch, and Seminole received .03 of an inch of rain for the larger South Plains totals.

South Plains residents Sunday continued to sweat out a blistering heat wave, but at least the day's soaring temperatures didn't break the 116-degree marks that roared some Texas cities Saturday.

Lubbock's 101-degree high Sunday tied a 1969 record for the date, but even with that scorching reading, the Hub City wasn't the only Texas town to see records fall.

Temperatures as of 7 a.m. Sunday had hit at least 100 degrees in 26 of the National Weather Service's 40 reporting cities within the preceding 24 hours. And forecasters are promising more of the same for the rest of the week.

South Plains thermometers should show readings near 100 through Tuesday, but forecasts for the remainder of the week call for highs between 95 and 108.

Cooler nighttime temperatures near 70 should be the only break in scorching temperatures for quite a while, weathermen said, as a low pressure system over the Texas-Oklahoma border continues to remain dominant over other regional weather patterns.

Lubbock's 101-degree high under clear skies came in about 4:30 p.m., but temperatures quickly dropped back into the mid 90s.

Mark 9:1-19. The Living Bible

4 Then Elijah and Moses appeared and began talking with Jesus!

5 "Teacher, this is wonderful!" Peter exclaimed. "We will make three shelters here, one for each of you...."

6 He said this just to be talking, for he didn't know what else to say and they were all terribly frightened.

7 But while he was still speaking these words, a cloud covered them, blotting out the sun, and a voice from the cloud said, "This is My beloved Son. Listen to Him."

8 Then suddenly they looked around and Moses and Elijah were gone, and only Jesus was with them.

9 As they descended the mountainside He told them never to mention what they had seen until after He had risen from the dead.

10 So they kept it to themselves, but often talked about it, and wondered what He meant by "rising from the dead."

11 Now they began asking Him about something the Jewish religious leaders often spoke of, that Elijah must return [before the Messiah could come].

12,13 Jesus agreed that Elijah must come first and prepare the way—and that he had, in fact, already come! And that he had been terribly mistreated, just as the prophets had predicted. Then Jesus asked them what the prophets could have been talking about when they predicted that the Messiah would suffer and be treated with utter contempt.

14 At the bottom of the mountain they found a great crowd surrounding the other nine disciples, as some Jewish leaders argued with them.

15 The crowd watched Jesus in awe as He came toward them, and then ran to greet Him.

16 "What's all the argument about?" He asked.

17 One of the men in the crowd spoke up and said, "Teacher, I brought my son for You to heal—he can't talk because he is possessed by a demon."

18 And whenever the demon is in control of him it dashes him to the ground and makes him foam at the mouth and grind his teeth and become rigid. So I begged your disciples to cast out the demon, but they couldn't do it."

19 Jesus said [to His disciples], "Oh, what tiny faith you have; how much longer must I be with you until you believe? How much longer must I be patient with you? Bring the boy to Me."

HEMOCROWN HEROES — They were superstars in their own right, grunting and groaning, puffing and wheezing, as they displayed their athletic skills in 99-degree heat at Maxey Park. It was the first in a series of "Lubbock Superstars" contests, sponsored by the Lubbock Parks and Recreation department, and a healthy crowd of athletes and their fans turned out for the Sunday afternoon event. Cheered on by family and friends, at upper left Hoyt Glasscock, left, and Jim Goodwin, right, strain toward the finish line in the 60-yard dash. Below left, David Hare's athletic prowess is being recorded on film by his son Blayne, 2, as Glee Hare steadies her son's hand. Brooklyn Confrontation Averted

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 1,000 angry black residents and about 250 off-duty police officers came within minutes of a possible confrontation outside a Jewish synagogue Sunday as they staged demonstrations in the racially troubled Crown Heights section of Brooklyn.

The off-duty police left just before the black marchers arrived, leaving 200 uniformed, on-duty officers to serve as a buffer between the blacks and an estimated 200 members of a conservative Jewish community known as the Hasidim who were gathered at the synagogue. No incidents were reported.

Within a two-week period last month, black civic leader Arthur Miller died while in police custody and a 16-year-old black, Victor Rhodes, was beaten into a coma, allegedly by a band of Hasidic youths.

About a dozen officers of the 77th Precinct, one of two precincts that patrol the central Brooklyn area, have been called before a grand jury investigating Miller's death.

The black demonstration started Sunday in front of the 77th Precinct station-house and continued to the Congregation Lubovitch, about a mile away.

Blacks object to round-the-clock police protection for the synagogue and call it "favoritism." Jews say the protection is needed because the synagogue is the center of the worldwide sect.

The off-duty police were in the Crown Heights area Sunday for a brief service to honor 11 policemen who have died in the line of duty in the past 16 years in the area. Afterward, they marched seven blocks to the synagogue and grouped behind barricades across the wide street from the synagogue before returning to their starting point on orders of delegates from the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Mayor Edward Koch had asked the A Seeing Eye dog's working life averages eight to 10 years.

PBA to call off its rally, but the police union refused. The Jews held services inside the temple and took no part in the street activities. However, about 200 Hasidim looked on from the building, including several dozen from rooftops.

City law prohibits demonstrations within 100 feet of a church or synagogue during services.

AN EDITORIAL:

When Enough Is Too Much

ARE PUBLIC EMPLOYEES unions becoming Public Enemy No. 1 across America? Over the weekend, firemen in Louisville, Ky., walked off the job in a wage dispute. Police in Cleveland were refusing to work. Blue collar, clerical and professional employees of the City of Philadelphia—including garbage workers—were on strike. Earlier this month, Memphis was plagued by hundreds of deliberately set fires while firemen were out on strike. In other cities across the land, recent months have seen a succession of walkouts by teachers, policemen, firemen, garbage workers and other public employees. Postal Service employees threatened to strike if their outlandish wage demands were not met before this week's deadline.

IN ALMOST EVERY case, the public employe strikes have been caused by disputes over pay and benefit packages. An exception was the refusal by Cleveland policemen to go to work. Their ire was raised when the mayor fired 13 patrolmen for refusing to walk beats in a high-crime district. Walking the streets of Cleveland in broad daylight is too dangerous, the cops complained, which has to leave the public wondering what kind of protection they're getting even when the cops are on duty.

AN EDITORIAL:

City, Area Economy Bright

IN ALL THE more or less furor over taxes, busing and other assorted ills, real and imagined, one might come to the conclusion that things are in bad shape. While something needs to be done about rising taxes, forced busing and Big Brother government, there also are some bright notes for Lubbock and area residents, in particular. The City and the South Plains continue to enjoy a better economic outlook than many parts of the nation. And that has to be a plus factor, even with inflation.

ONE FOR Instance involves the sometimes overlooked City building totals. For the better part of a year now, Lubbock's construction total each week has been topping or averaging above the $2 million mark, often far exceeding that. Included in the hundreds of permits which have been issued through the first half of the year have been those for many, many new homes, apartment projects and numerous business buildings.

CURRENTLY, LUBBOCK'S building total is running at a $100 million a year pace, which is in keeping with that of the past several years. Of particular import in the total is the amount generated by individual homes and apartments. Money put into such building automatically means added work and income for those

ART BUCHWALD:

Free Port Pipe Dream Goes Up In Smoke Stack

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass.—It was known as the "Cruise to Nowhere." The SS America with a passenger list of 900 had left New York for an ocean voyage with no one knowing where they were going. But we on Martha's Vineyard had been informed that the America was going to stop here for eight hours so the passengers could buy souvenirs, take photographs of the natives, and see a culture that hadn't changed since the Stone Age. You can imagine our excitement. The SS America would be bringing hard-earned dollars to our island. Those of us who eked out a living clamming, fishing and playing backgammon could expect a windfall of money. IF THE SS America's trip was a success, other cruise ships would decide to drop anchor off our shores, thus saving the economy of this God-forsaken spit of land which people in the package four business had ignored for centuries. There was some grumbling by a few natives that the SS America might change our way of life. Instead of sailing when the spirit moved us, or playing tennis, or bicycling in the woods, they warned we might become corrupted by the easy tourist dollar, and soon our women would be depending all sorts of material things such as electricity, running water and indoor plumbing. But there was another group that insisted we had no choice but to look toward the future and take advantage of tourism even if it meant the end of paradise as we men had known it. WALTER CRONKITE, who had always dreamed of owning a television set, had his family start weaving colorful straw baskets which he planned to sell near the dock as the tourists stepped off their lighters. Mike Wallace of "60 Minutes" and his wife began to make whalebone necklaces which he would claim were Leon Spinks' teeth.

Certainly no man or woman who would go out on strike when his job is to protect the lives and property of his fellow citizens is worthy of being retained on the public payroll. If he doesn't want the job he hired out to do—whether as a policeman, a fireman or a sanitation man—he should give due notice of quitting and let a replacement be hired, then go out and get a job more to his liking.

TAXPAYERS WHO already are in a state of revolt over the uncontrolled growth of public spending are in no mood to continue coddling usually well-paid public employes. Personnel costs account for the bulk of extravagance in governmental budgets. As a potent bloc of voters, the employe groups rarely see an office holder with the courage to stand up against them; adding the power of organized unionism to this voting strength makes them a formidable force indeed. Fortunately, Texas does not permit collective bargaining by public employe unions and we have therefore not had the problems to the degree that residents of other states have had.

Rather than give in to the union bosses' attempts for further power grabs, Congress and other states would be well advised to follow the Texas example and clip their wings.

IN NUMEROUS other industries other than just the actual construction trade. Plumbing, electrical, home furnishings, landscaping—all share in the spinoff from such construction. In addition, such construction means that more and more people are moving into the City and therefore more and more are finding work in the highly diversified economy of the Lubbock area. All of this serves to emphasize what most longtime residents and businessmen recognize, Lubbock and the area continue to enjoy one of the brighter spots in the nation's economic picture. The unemployment total is still among the lowest in the country, or conversely more people are at work than in the past, thus fueling more buying power.

THE AREA'S crops, although in need of moisture, are looking good, prices of some commodities are up and the outlook for the Fall is considerably brighter than it was at the start of the year. Bank and business activity, while affected by what happens on the national scene, still is strong. In brief, while many persons are unhappy, and with good reason, over some aspects of their daily lives, from taxes to forced busing, we also should be grateful that basically we still have a good place to work and live. The challenge is to keep it that way.

Mrs. Katharine Graham and her house guests opted for glass blowing, which she would say were 300-year-old Martha's Vineyard wine bottles. Ed Bennett Williams, the lawyer, decided to set up a stand and sell hot clam chowder to the hungry tourists. WRITER WILLIAM STYRON elected to turn his shack into an all-night bar called "Trader Bill's." Robert Brustein, dean of the Yale drama school, organized a grass-skirted dance troupe that would perform every half-hour in a tent. I taught my wife and children to dive for coins which I was sure the tourists would throw to them while waiting to get off the ship. Robert MacNamara of the World Bank said he planned to open a hut near the dock and cash traveler's checks at the rate of 12 Martha's Vineyard seashells to the dollar. For the first summer none of us would go hungry.

BUT THEN AT the last minute, because of overbooking and a late sailing, the SS America decided to bypass Martha's Vineyard and our dream of being the only free port off the coast of Cape Cod went up in smoke. Cronkite, stuck with 500 straw baskets, had a garage sale to try to recoup his investment. But nobody on the island came.

The Brighter Side
George Gobel says teen-agers judge the worth of a rock recording by how many neighbors call the police. A retired baseball scout was asked who had the toughest position in baseball. Joe's answer: "The fan." Why? "Because he has to pay his way in. Then, he has to manage both teams. He has to umpire the game and, finally, he has to keep the concessionaire in business."

Carter's Bella Ache

WASHINGTON—On the night before she was named by President Carter to head a blue-ribbon national women's committee, Bella Abzug was at New York City's Union Square co-sponsoring a "mass tribute" to executed traitors and atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg—a bizarre juxtaposition that points to many troubles in the

ANDREW TULLY:

Hurry Up And Wait

WASHINGTON—Rereading the late Somerset Maugham is always a delight, even when the taste is bittersweet. It brings again an understanding of why the works of that prolific British author and playwright are out of style in today's America. Maugham's stuff is too civilized, too leisurely, for our discotheque society, with its emphasis on frantic pleasures. Yet Maugham's understanding of human nature, sometimes cruel but always accurate, was uncanny. He could describe a character with nothing more than a few words from the character's lips or by limning a single mannerism. In "Cakes and Ale," the reader can nod understandingly when, reporting on a telephone message from a writing acquaintance, Maugham reflects:

"I HAVE NOTICED that when someone asks for you on the telephone and, finding you out, leaves a message begging you to call him up the moment you come in, and it's important, the matter is more often important to him than to you." Today's politicians, business executives, and press agents, whose calls are always important, would not be comfortable with Maugham. He was the kind of man who would hang up if a secretary told him to "Hold for Mr. Smithereens." Maugham was at his best on the subject of boredom. In one of his short stories about a British spy during World War I, he wrote that "Ashenden was in the habit of asserting that he was never bored. It was one of his notions that only such persons were as had no resources in themselves, and it was but the supid that depended on the outside world for their amusement...he thought himself intelligent and so it was absurd that he should be bored..."

AND YET MAUGHAM was not about to ascribe perfection to any member of the human race. After describing Ashenden's pleasant life in Geneva, "one of the most agreeable cities in Europe," he forced Ashenden to see, "like a little lonely cloud in the sky...the possibility of boredom." Maugham achieved the difficult by being scholarly without being pretentious, so it was amusing when he compared Ashenden with Louis XIV, who had summoned a courtier to attend him on a ceremonial occasion "and found himself ready to go as the courtier appeared; he turned to him and with icy majesty said, 'J'ai falli attendre,' which Maugham translated as meaning "I have but just escaped waiting." Ashenden, it seems, "might have admitted that he now but just escaped being bored."

BUT I HAVE found Maugham most relaxing when he wrote about his addiction to reading "from habit." He would "sooner read the catalogue of the Army and Navy stores or Bradshaw's Guide than nothing at all, and indeed I have spent many delightful hours over both these works." No wonder the man's works are considered old-fashioned and even tedious by the with-it crowd. His prose is too hushed, too soothing, to compete with the shrillness and hooting of today's lively arts. Maugham always dawdled before getting to the point, and although that was one of his charms, his stuff takes too long if you're in a rush to get nowhere.

JAY HARRIS:

Andy's At It Again

THE CHICKENS have finally come home to roost as regards the Andy Young-President Carter Act. After some 18 months of letting his "good friend" and U.S. Ambassador to the UN, pop off on just about every subject under the sun, the President was privy to seeing the nation's top black "spokesman" embarrass his country before the world. In one of his free-wheeling interviews with the Paris paper, Le Matin, Amb. Young downplayed the trials of the Russian dissidents—despite the fact Mr. Carter was condemning them—and said that "in our prisons as well, there are hundreds, perhaps even thousands of people whom I would call political prisoners." In more or less equating the Soviet and American systems, Amb. Young for all practical purposes shot down the administration's carefully orchestrated protest of what was happening in Russia. It was a typical Andrew Young performance, and one which Mr. Carter richly deserved. In brief, the President asked for it, in spades!

AS A RESULT, the President was forced to call Sec. of State Vance in Geneva, where he was holding crucial talks with Russian Amb. Gromyko. Vance called Young on the carpet, then issued a statement saying that only the President and Secretary of State spoke for the nation on foreign affairs. For his part, the unquenchable Young, denying he was asked to resign, issued another one of his numerous "clarifications," saying what he said was not exactly what he had meant, or vice versa. The tragi-comedy of errors brought new demands in Congress that President Carter fire the troublesome "token" Cabinet-rank official, and also earned for the President a scathing editorial in The Wall Street Journal.

IT WAS MORE than a year ago, March 27, 1977 to be exact, that this newspaper demanded that the President ask for Andrew Young's resignation. We were one of, if not the first major newspaper in the nation to do so. The editorial gained support back when a lot of persons, including Mr. Carter, were saying "give Andy a chance." Andy Young had not one, but many chances. Time and time again, he would inject himself into issues that either were none of his business or in a way which showed both his ignorance of the subject and his intolerance. He insulted the British, accusing them of being racists and "running out" on the U.S. in Rhodesia, slammed the Swedes and played footsie with Marxist leaders in Africa, and told Americans the Cubans were "a stabilizing influence in Angola" and that we should not get excited about "a few thousand Communists" in Africa. And when Ian Smith and moderate black leaders in Rhodesia worked out a plan for black rule, it was Andrew Young who sought to shoot it down in favor of one which would include outside Communist-backed guerrilla leaders.

WE HAVE BEEN privy to conversations with some of the world's opinion makers in Africa, the Mideast and Europe. Almost to a man, they cringe when Andrew Young's name is brought up. They are puzzled why he has been given such free rein. The Wall Street Journal summed it up this way: "UN Ambassador Andrew Young generated more embarrassment than even the Carter administration can stomach..." Then the paper said that in "equating Anatoly Shecharansky and Alexander Ginzburg to mythical 'political prisoners' in the U.S., Young had forced the White House to again explain who was running the show. The WSJ added: "A President who wants to run his own ship would fire the ambassador; yet we will be astonished if Mr. Carter finds the courage to dismiss Mr. Young..."

THE PAPER noted "the whole episode is a telling counterpoint to the indignant chorus that greeted Alexander Solzhenitsyn's Harvard charge that the West has lost its moral courage..." It was no less a person than Rosalynn Carter who answered by saying: "The people of this country are not weak, not cowardly and not spiritually exhausted." Mr. Solzhenitsyn seemed to zero in more on the leaders than the people when he said: "The Western World has lost its civic courage, both as a whole and separately, in each country, each government, each political party, and of course in the United Nations..." "The decline in courage is ironically emphasized by occasional explosions of anger and inflexibility on the part of those same bureaucrats when dealing with weak governments and weak countries that are not supported by anyone, or with currents which cannot offer any resistance, but they get tongue-tied and paralyzed when they deal with powerful governments and threatening forces with aggressors and international terrorists..."

WE AGREE that Solzhenitsyn went too far in indicting the whole of the Western people. But we also agree when the paper says: "But barring a reversal of direction that would start with Mr. Young's resignation, it seems that Mr. Solzhenitsyn certainly does understand the kind of people that man this administration." The fact is that the Young-Carter episode illustrates all too clearly the unbelievable weakness of the Carter Administration's handling of foreign affairs. The President has brought confusion and disarray to the world scene. And while his "human rights" motives are noble, their implementation has been on a hypocritical double standard. A year ago, we said on these pages: "Either President Carter must assume responsibility for Young's at times ridiculous assertions, and suffer the consequences in lost prestige for the U.S., or ask the Ambassador to step down for grossly misrepresenting what we feel is the majority thinking of most Americans..." It was right then, and still is!

CARTER VISIT — President Carter made an official visit to West Germany and West Berlin before heading to the economic summit meeting in Bonn Sunday. Some of the official activities Carter engaged in with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt included a review of some 4,000 U.S. and West German troops lined up in Erbenheim U.S. Air Base, as well as visiting the Berlin Wall. On Sunday, Amy Carter, the president's daughter, included on the trip, took a cruise on the Rhine River with her mother and had the privilege of ringing the ship's bell. (AP Laser-photos)

STOP LEAKING TOILETS!

Your toilet can leak more than 1,000 gallons of water a month if your toilet tank ball doesn't seat properly. The annoying noises are a nuisance and the wasted water a real expense.

Proposition 13 Said To End New Deal

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Progressive activists, thrown onto the defensive by taxpayer resistance to expensive government programs, say they hope to develop a "new generation" of government policy that will fit the public's restless mood.

"The New Deal is dead," says Tom Hayden, the California activist. "The enormous super-structure of the welfare state was ended at the hands of California taxpayers on June 6th."

Hayden, whose Campaign for Economic Democracy opposed Proposition 13 because of fears that meat-ax revenue cuts would hurt services for the poor, said there is no need to mourn approval by Californians of the property tax cut.

"We have an opportunity and an ability to solve problems," he told reporters, characterizing the California tax revolt as "a legitimate grassroots populist revolt against stupidity in government."

Proposition 13, approved by voters last month and now part of the state Constitution, cut property taxes by about 57 percent and cost local governments billions of dollars in revenue.

The four-day National Conference on Alternative State and Local Public Policies, a gathering of 550 officeholders and political activists, ended Sunday after a full weekend of discussion of innovative policy approaches.

These approaches, which the policymakers say cost the taxpayers little, include using public employee pension funds to stimulate urban investments; channeling government deposits to lending institutions whose investments complement city development plans; requiring business firms to give advance notification before shutting down major plants, and creating community development corporations to redevelop troubled neighborhoods.

And most importantly, conference participants agreed, is the question of tax reform.

"The only legitimate answer to Proposition 13 is a program that will seriously restructure the nation's tax systems," said Michael Ansara, whose Massachusetts Fair Share organization helped push a tax relief plan through the Legislature that was vetoed by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Nicholas Carbone, deputy mayor of Hartford, Conn., said community pressure convinced the Connecticut Legislature to provide tax relief for his city in two ways: providing state payments, in lieu of taxes, to pay for services on state-owned, tax-exempt property, and providing a differential assessment system that allows the city to maintain a proper balance between business-paid property tax and residential payments.

In delivering his obituary for the New Deal, Hayden said, "What died is the notion that you can finance programs for the poor out of (economic) growth." The problems of slow economic growth are worsened by continuing high inflation, creating intolerable burdens on many taxpayers, he said.

"A middle class faced with saving their homes or saving the poor has no choice," Hayden said in a speech.

Sniffing the political winds, the conference gave an enthusiastic reception to economist Gar Alperovitz who said progressives must now embrace the war on inflation. He told the conference that inflation is "the single most important issue in the life of an ordinary family."

His remarks signaled a significant shift in progressive strategy. In the past, leftists have advocated the inflation battle to conservatives, arguing that unemployment was the more critical concern.

The citizen tax movement has been a sobering jolt to politicians and government officials of every stripe. The social-minded activists who met here viewed the movement pragmatically, conceding that programs to help the poor and the cities will have to be paid out of private funds and a restructured tax system, rather than by tax hikes.

"It will be difficult to maintain our progressive course of action in this new age of scarcity," says Carol Bellamy, president of the New York city council. "Taxpayers quite rightly demand that every tax dollar be well spent, and we must respond, not by cutting payrolls and eliminating jobs, but by eliminating waste and duplication."

Lee Webb, director of the National Conference, provided a consensus assessment for the group, saying, "It's clear that there are many more possibilities for bad effects than progressive reform. We have to see this as an opportunity — for the first time, for the first time in our memory, the entire revenue structure of local government is under discussion."

Terrorists Use Snakes, Smokes

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Poisonous snakes and booby-trapped cigarettes are the latest weapons being used in Turkey's continuing terrorist war between right-wing and leftist extremists.

The serpents were sent in a mail parcel to Ihtami Gencalp, a leftist and former labor leader.

"I first thought it could be a parcel bomb, but when I shook it a bit it gave me the impression that there was something odd in it," Gencalp said in a telephone interview from his vacation home in southern Turkey.

He opened the box, then closed the lid quickly when he saw the hissing head of one of two snakes, Gencalp said. He summoned police, who determined that the snakes were of a poisonous variety. They said they believed it was the first time such a bizarre assassination technique had been used in Turkey's years-long political wars.

Gencalp, 46, said the snakes were wrapped in paper, and each was about 30 inches long. He said he believed political rivals were responsible because his flower shop was sprayed with bullets recently by unidentified gunmen.

He retired from his union job because he was tired of "revolutionary and union work," Gencalp said. From now on, he added, he will be "prepared for any eventuality. Nobody knows what methods (they right-wing terrorists) may use in the future."

Earlier in the week, authorities discovered that packages of Turkish cigarettes shipped to an Istanbul prison contained some cigarettes packed with explosives. One man was killed when he puffed on one of the cigarettes and it exploded in his face.

In the past four years, about 700 persons have been killed in what police describe as politically motivated attacks.

Politicians say the lawlessness is part of an effort by extremists to bring down Turkey's 30-year-old democratic institutions and have them replaced by an au-

Some blame the current wave of terrorism on an outdated educational system and the influx of rural Turks into big cities where they become politically indoctrinated.

Gencalp served as a local head of the Genel-Is, a union affiliated with a left-wing labor federation that supported the Social Democratic Republican Party of Premier Bulent Ecevit in the past two general elections. The labor group has been portrayed in the right-wing press as the mouthpiece of the illegal Turkish Communist Party.

In other incidents, two youths were killed, reportedly by terrorists, in separate incidents Saturday near the capital of Ankara, and in Kirsehir, 62 miles southeast of the capital, security agents arrested a man who allegedly hurled a bomb into a crowd of students, wounding more than two dozen.

One-Man Jobs Slow Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A couple of one-man filibusters are jumbling the Senate's full platter of work it hoped to complete before fall adjournment, and the House this week faces the familiar topics of energy and abortion.

When the Senate resumes work Monday, it will keep hearing from freshman Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., who began a limited filibuster Friday against the conference committee report forcing industries to switch from oil to coal.

Senate leaders had hoped for quick action on the first portion of President Carter's five-part energy package — stalled in Congress for 15 months — by the time he arrived in Bonn for the economic summit. But Schmitt held the floor, and in return for an agreement not to keep the Senate in session all weekend, agreed with Democratic leader Robert Byrd to allow a vote Tuesday.

But other legislation was threatened by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, who has promised to use his own "guerilla tactics" to prevent consideration of a bill that would set aside 124 million acres in his state for national parks, wildlife refuges and wilderness areas.

Byrd, angry at both senators, said such one-man obstructions are "getting pretty rife" but he will not allow them to "straitjacket" him or the Senate, which is up more than two months time on the Panama Canal treaties and more than one month on the labor law revision filibuster.

Gravel willing, the Senate was scheduled to take up amendments to the Endangered Species Act that would set up a mechanism for resolving disputes such as the current one between the snail darter and a Tennessee Valley Authority dam and a foreign military aid bill including a proposal to lift the controversial arms embargo against Turkey.

The House resumes debate on a $4.5 billion Energy Department research and development authorization and a $6.2 billion authorization for the same department's regulatory power in marketing and management.

The House also will consider this week a bill setting procedures for coal slurry pipelines to gain federal eminent domain rights to cross railroad property. The pipelines would move coal from the Great Plains to the Midwest and eastern markets by mixing it with water.

One bill coming up for House passage would overturn a Supreme Court ruling that said companies with medical benefit plans did not have to include pregnant women in them, even though men in some cases can get leave or insurance for vasectomies.

The legislation would declare discrimination in health plans based on pregnancy to be illegal sex discrimination. The bill contains a provision allowing companies to bar abortions from such medical plans, guaranteeing another in an annual series of abortion battles between the House and Senate in conference committee. The Senate bill contains no such provision.

Also this week, the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee is expected to report for floor action and vigorous debate President Carter's civil service revisions. The bill sets up a corps of high level bureaucrats subject to pay raises or demotions based on performance and limits the government's built-in bonus on hiring tests for veterans.

Chinese School Reopens

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese People's University, closed in 1970 because of "disruption by Lin Piao and the Gang of Four," has reopened and will enroll 1,700 students this autumn, the official Hsinhua news agency reported.

The school will reopen all 12 university departments, Hsinhua said in a dispatch received here. Lin Piao, once named by the late Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung as his successor, was purged and reportedly died in a plane crash in 1971.

GSA Methods Criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Services Administration is ignoring federal contracting procedures in awarding many construction contracts without competitive bidding, the General Accounting Office said Sunday.

The GAO said in a report to Congress that its findings were based on a nationwide study of GSA construction contracts above $10,000 awarded between 1974 and 1976.

The findings were released by Sen.

Charles Percy, R-Ill., who had asked for the investigation.

The GAO, an arm of Congress, said its sampling of contracts showed that 2.7 percent of those awarded for new construction and 13.4 percent for repair and alteration were negotiated without competitive bidding.

"There appears to be too high a proportion of negotiated contracts, overly liberal interpretations of public exigency to justify negotiation, and little or no competition for many advertised and negotiated awards," the report said.

Percy said the study suggested "a pattern of non-competitive and extremely lucrative construction awards by GSA that has been going on for too long."

"Until we know why this happened, that agency's contracting procedures will be stained with an inference of favoritism, cronyism and worse," Percy said.

One of the government housekeeping agency's contracting practices that the GAO singled out for criticism was its use of "public exigency" as a reason for awarding contracts without competitive bidding.

Such "emergencies," the GAO said, included contract awards for landscaping, interior finishing, painting, decoration and the installation of bookshelves in government offices.

The report cited three examples of what Percy said were "questionable use" of the emergency clause:

—The award of an $803,240 contract to build a new courtroom in the Everett McKinley Dirksen Federal Office Building in Chicago to one of two firms that bid on the job even though federal procurement regulations require a minimum of three bids.

—A $287,000 award for construction at the U.S. Border Station at San Diego, Calif., without following normal bidding procedures on the ground that its speedy construction would help "maintain good relations with Mexico and increase efficiency and productivity."

—A $42,745 contract for sculpture foundations at the U.S. Courthouse in San Diego negotiated without bids because the funds would no longer be available after a certain time.

Non-Smoking Job Backfires

AUSTIN (AP) — Maria Hensch thought she had the perfect answer to her cigarette smoke allergy when she took a job with the Texas headquarters of the American Lung Association.

But two hours after she reported to her secretarial post at the agency, Miss Hensch quit. She said both of her new bosses were smokers.

"They're hypocritical. They (lung association) are getting contributions to promote non-smoking, but they're smoking, and I have to quit my job," she said.

Miss Hensch said she was hired by managing director Peggy Boyd to serve as secretary to Claudia Wood, director of financial development and public information. When she reported for work, she found that both Miss Boyd and Miss Wood smoked.

She said the smoke fouled the air in her office and caused her allergy symptoms to appear — a runny nose, watery eyes and upset stomach.

Miss Hensch said she had been promised a smoke-free working area. Miss Boyd, however, said there had been a misunderstanding.

"She didn't indicate her allergy was that severe. We offered to move her desk, but she quit instead."

Miss Boyd said the national office of the Lung Association hires only non-smokers. She said the Texas headquarters "prefers to hire people who don't smoke but tolerates longtime employees who have tried to kick the habit but failed."

Five More Explosion

Victims Die In Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Health Ministry said Sunday five more persons died overnight from injuries suffered in the gas explosion that devastated a campsite near Tarragona on Spain's Mediterranean coast last week, raising the death toll to 150.

The five, three Spaniards and two French women, died in a Valencia hospital where another 19 campers are in critical condition with severe burns. About 50 others also are reported in serious condition in burn centers and clinics in Barcelona and Tarragona.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan met Sunday with Cambodian Foreign Minister Ieng Sary and said afterward that "measures" were found to end the bloody fighting on the Thai-Cambodian border.

The prime minister told reporters after the five-hour meeting that he could not guarantee peace would come to the embattled border area, "but time will tell."

He said he and the Cambodian official "found measures on both sides to bring peace to the border." Sporadic fighting has continued along the border since the Communist takeover of Cambodia in 1975.

Ieng Sary, who ends his four-day visit Monday, said the border fighting was the result of "misunderstandings," but he did not elaborate.

Kriangsak said he had accepted an invitation to visit Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, but no date had been fixed. He also said Ieng Sary accepted the idea of an exchange of ambassadors. Thailand has no formal relations with Cambodia now.

Shortly after a high-ranking Thai delegation visited Cambodia in February, the Cambodians staged ground and mortar attacks into Thailand. More than 100 incidents have been reported along the 500-mile border this year and about 1,000 Thai villagers reportedly have been abducted and taken to Cambodia.

Thai newspapers reported Sunday there were indications from the Cambodian delegation that Cambodia might join the Mekong Committee, a U.N.-sponsored effort to develop the Mekong River for the benefit of Vietnam, Thailand, Laos and Cambodia. Cambodia, originally a committee member, withdrew after the Communists took power there.

Stunt Cyclist Dies In Crash

CHELMSFORD, England (AP) — Motorcycle stunt rider Earl Majors was fatally injured before a crowd of horrified spectators Sunday when he crashed while trying to leap his cycle over a row of 18 cars.

Majors, 26 and from London, died in a hospital of multiple injuries sustained in the crash near this Essex County town northeast of London.

His cycle landed on the roof of the last auto, struck the landing ramp and somersaulted on top of him.

"It looked like he was going to make it," spectator Peter Neal told reporters, "but just as the bike went over the last car the back wheel hit the ramp."

The jump was billed as a warmup for a 25-car leap Majors was scheduled to make later in the day, a feat he had often achieved.

In the southern French city of Montpellier, an assistant schoolteacher claimed a world record for free flight in an automobile.

Joseph Fallot, 25, drove his car at 100 mph off a ramp at the Montpellier race track and sailed over a row of 18 trucks, a distance of 60.47 yards, and crashlanded.

The 1978 Guinness Book of World Records lists a Dusty Russell as the current record holder. It says he jumped his car 58.66 yards in April 1973 in Athens, Ga.

National Leaders Meet In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda conferred with French Prime Minister Raymond Barre for 90 minutes Saturday, accompanied by Japan's Ambassador to France, Hideo Kitahara.

Fukuda declined all comment as he emerged from Barre's office in the Matignon Mansion, but Kitahara said the talks were "very constructive and very positive." The ambassador said the talks, on the last day of Fukuda's two-day private visit to France, dealt with "all international problems, particularly the relations between Japan and the European Community," and the preparations for the Summit Conference of the world's industrialized nations opening in Bonn on Monday.

Sources stressed that Fukuda was in France on a private visit, and that the two prime ministers had met on several occasions before each of them became the head of their respective governments.

Legislature Compares Tax Proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators examine details of key tax release proposals that would require constitutional amendments when they return to work Monday after a four-day weekend.

Senators and House members also will decide what to do with each other's version of legislation repealing the 4 percent state sales tax on utility bills and increasing the tax exempt portion of inheritances.

Both chambers passed the tax cut measures Wednesday before adjourning for the weekend, but in different forms.

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee will conduct a hearing Monday morning on 13 constitutional amendments including proposals to increase property tax exemptions for school districts, require a two-thirds legislative vote to pass a tax bill, tax agricultural land on productivity rather than market value and impose a ceiling on local property tax increases.

Most of those ideas — all supported by Gov. Dolph Briscoe — are contained in HJR 1 (House Joint Resolution), sponsored by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee.

The resolution also includes an outright prohibition on state personal or corporate income tax, but House Speaker Bill Clayton said last week that provision possibly will come out since Briscoe has not included it in his special session call.

Also on the Constitutional Amendments Committee's hearing agenda are proposals for initiative and referendum, the mechanism used in California to roll back property taxes and limit state tax increases, also supported by Briscoe.

Some legislators are saying chances of passing any of the amendments, which require 100 votes in the House and 20 votes in the Senate, are poor at best and almost non-existent if Briscoe fails to open the session to a bill providing greater uniformity in property tax appraisals across the state.

The utility and inheritance tax bills will be officially received and referred to committees in the House and Senate Monday. Unless one chamber accepts the other's bill exactly as passed, the final writing will be done in a 10-man, joint conference committee.

Clayton said last week this would be the best route because conferees could hold all measures that are passed until the end of the session in order to determine whether they reduce state revenues by too great an amount. This would allow some selection among various proposals.

Tax Cut Okay Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic member of the House Ways and Means Committee predicted Sunday that Democrats will accept some limited form of reduction in the capital gains tax, but not the cut advanced by Rep. William Steiger.

The GOP proposal would set a maximum of 25 percent. A compromise version with appeal to many Democrats would place the ceiling at 35 percent.

Another GOP proposal, designated by the national party leadership as a major campaign issue, calls for a one-third reduction in individual income tax rates over three years, accompanied by cuts in corporate taxes.

Rep. James Corman, D-Calif., said Democrats can agree to capital gains tax reductions in such areas as the sale of homes. But he said Steiger's proposal would benefit mainly the rich.

"The problem with the Steiger amendment is that it really does rig the cuts toward the very high income people who, up until 1969, were escaping their fair share of taxes," Corman said.

"We need to make some changes in capital gains because we do not treat all people who get capital gains the same way, and we ought to. But the Steiger amendment does not do that at all. It undoes the reforms that we undertook in 1969 and 1976," which were intended to ensure that upper income Americans did not avoid taxes.

Corman was asked if that meant Democrats are coming around toward supporting some kind of cut in capital gains taxes.

"That is right," he replied. "That was in the president's original proposal, to cut capital gains on the sale of residences because they have not been used to avoid taxes."

Steiger, a Wisconsin Republican who was interviewed at the same time, disputed Corman's view of his proposal as a tax break mainly for the rich.

"Most of the benefits, nearly two-thirds, go to those with adjusted gross incomes of less than $50,000," Steiger said.

That is not true, that somehow wealthy people are going to escape taxation.

"The effect of the '80 amendment on capital gains has now meant that 350,000 Americans, not wealthy Americans, modest income Americans, are now paying a tax as an additional tax, not as a minimum tax," Steiger said.

The two congressmen were interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Under present law, capital gains may in exceptional cases be taxed by more than 49 percent, though the Treasury says the average rate is 18.5 percent.

Briscoe Decided Not To Repeal Tax

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Sunday Gov. Dolph Briscoe considered, then rejected, the idea of including repeal of the 10-cent state property tax in the current special legislative session.

Hobby said there was large-scale lobbying by the 17 state colleges benefiting from the tax, as well as by the University of Texas and Texas A&M, against including it in the session.

The lieutenant governor, who presides over the Senate, was interviewed on "Capital Eye," a television-radio news panel show.

He said Briscoe had repeal of the state property tax, pegged at 10 cents per $100 county-assessed valuation, under consideration until a week before the call for the special session was issued.

Asked what led to Briscoe's "fading interest in the subject," Hobby replied:

"There was a very intensive lobbying effort put forth . . . not only by the 17 state universities affected but by the University of Texas and the A&M system."

He said UT and A&M "clearly regarded" the possibility of repealing the tax, which pays for construction at 17 schools, as a threat to the Permanent University fund.

Hobby said UT and A&M officials believed the 17 schools would apply pressure to share in the permanent fund — now exclusively dedicated to UT and A&M — if the tax were repealed.

The lieutenant governor said he personally favored repeal of the tax, which is under attack in the courts, because "it's very clear they (the colleges) don't need it."

"This tax, if collected and allocated or distributed by the comptroller as the current constitution requires will provide probably $700 million to $800 million over the next 10 years for institutions whose projected growth over the next 10 years is about 2 percent a year. . . . The period of major construction in those universities has passed," Hobby said.

Hobby said there was no sweeping public sentiment for Briscoe to call the special tax relief session that began July 10.

He said he had received no more than 50 letters on the subject, and "certainly half of those have been against the special session."

Disagreeing with Briscoe's request for a limit on local property tax increases, Hobby said, "I think that if the citizens of Austin or the citizens of Houston think their city governments are spending too much money, we have elections every year."

Kissinger, Colby Angolan Data Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee has been looking into the possibility that former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and one-time CIA Director William E. Colby misled Congress about the extent of CIA activities in the 1975 Angolan civil war.

A spokesman for the committee, Spencer Davis, said Sunday, "The review process is still under way, and we are receiving additional documentation which we will take into account."

He refused to confirm a report in the New York Times that the committee had concluded, after a secret year-long study, that Kissinger and Colby had misled Congress on the matter.

He said the committee expected to conclude a study on the matter shortly. But he acknowledged that a version of the study had been sent to the White House and the CIA for comment.

Members of the committee reached by The Associated Press — Sens. Daniel Inouye, Hawaii; Clifford Case, R-N.J.; and James Pearson, R-Kan. — declined comment on the story. Other committee members could not be reached.

The Times said the committee's compilation of CIA documents indicated that, contrary to assertions by Kissinger and Colby, more than $1 million was allocated to recruit mercenaries and an undetermined number of CIA agents helped train military units inside Angola.

It quoted unidentified sources as saying the study triggered a dispute among senators and committee staff members as to whether Kissinger and Colby deliberately lied in testimony before Congress.

But it also quoted "a government official" as saying that the Senate study did accuse the CIA specifically of having misled Congress.

In recent weeks, the official was quoted as saying, the agency has turned more documents and files over to the committee in an effort to show that Congress was not misinformed and to force a revision of the study.

A spokesman for the CIA, Herbert E. Heta, told The Associated Press: "They did a first draft of the report, and we weren't terribly happy. We've been working with them to at least make it more objective." He declined to elaborate.

Kissinger told the African Affairs subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Jan. 29, 1976, that "the CIA is not involved" in the recruitment of mercenaries for Angola.

He added: "It is, of course, possible that in a very indirect way that money has been given" to Unita, the pro-Western faction supported by the U.S. government.

The Times said another issue raised in the study was testimony in which Kissinger and Colby denied that any CIA agents were acting as military advisers to the CIA-supported factions in Angola.

It quoted unidentified sources as saying that file documents included as an appendix to the study show that at least 12 and possibly as many as 34 CIA agents did help train military units inside Angola.

The Times quoted an unnamed aide to Kissinger as saying the former secretary was "indignant and outraged" about disclosure of the study and called it "cheap politics."

"Leaks like this are malicious attempts to smear those who were trying to resist the Cubans, the Soviets and the communists in Angola," he was quoted as saying.

Colby told the Times that differences between his congressional testimony and the CIA documents were "a matter of perception."

On being told the committee has copies of the agency's cables indicating its men were training pro-Western Angolans, Colby was quoted as saying, "My normal practice was not to read raw traffic."

He told the Times that the thrust of his secret Angola briefings was "to show that we were not going to run it as we did in Laos," where the CIA conducted military training exercises.

Warning By Ethiopia Claims 'Wanton Acts'

ROME (AP) — An Ethiopian government spokesman threatened renewed war against Somalia Sunday, saying Ethiopia's eastern neighbor is being provocative "beyond limits" and that efforts to resettle war-displaced residents of the Ogaden region are "being hampered by the wanton acts of Somalia."

Maj. Girma Neway, head of the Ethiopian Revolutionary Information Center, also claimed that Washington has sent U.S. military advisers to help the separatist rebels in Ethiopia's northern province of Eritrea.

"The Carter administration has recently deployed about 60 military advisers along with Arab advisers," Girma said. He offered no evidence or further elaboration.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Ken Brown said he has "absolutely no information" on U.S. military advisers in Ethiopia. A spokesman for the Defense Department said: "We have nothing that would verify that report."

It is known that Arab nations have given assistance to the Eritrean rebels in their war against the Marxist military government in Addis Ababa.

"We want the whole world to know that in order to protect our people in the Ogaden and our sovereign right ... we might be forced to fight the next war not on the soil of Ethiopia," Girma said in a written statement.

"We are being provoked beyond limits," he said, but he declined to say whether this meant Ethiopia might invade Somalia.

Last March, Ethiopia repulsed a Somali drive to annex the Ogaden desert of eastern Ethiopia with a counter-offensive backed by Cuban troops and Soviet advisers.

Girma said Somalia must renounce claims to territories of Ethiopia, Kenya and Djibouti. "This is imperative for peace and stability in the Horn of Africa," he said. Somalia has claimed parts of the three adjacent nations on the basis that they are populated by ethnic Somalis.

In Eritrea, Ethiopia's northernmost province and only outlet to the Red Sea, "world imperialism and Arab reaction" were using "treacherous separatist groups and intensifying the reactionary war to secede Eritrea," Girma said.

Eritrean rebels have been fighting for independence for the former Italian colony since Ethiopia annexed it in 1962 to gain a seaport.

Ethiopia has sent massive forces into the area to put down the movement.

Girma said recent financial and material aid from what he called Arab reactionaries to Eritrean secessionist forces amounted to approximately $30 million.

'Baby Bears' Aid Oklahoma Troopers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — State troopers are getting help on interstate highways in Tulsa and Oklahoma City from some young citizens band radio users they have nicknamed the "Baby Bears."

Kevin Wiginton and the three other members of the Department of Public Safety Courtesy Patrol don't seem to mind the nickname, an outgrowth of the CBER slang term "Smokey Bear" used for troopers.

"Since we're unarmed and don't have arrest powers, they came up with the 'Baby Bear' nickname," Wiginton said after an off-duty police officer identified him that way during an assistance call.

"I hope it catches on," he said. "Once we get our CBs and people know we're monitoring (channels) 9 and 19, they can just come on and ask for a 'Baby Bear' and we'll know right away it's a motorist assist call."

Oklahoma Public Safety Commissioner Roger Webb decided to begin the courtesy patrol after studying similar programs in other states.

The four courtesy units — two in Tulsa and two in Oklahoma City — are station wagons equipped with tools, water, jumper cables, flares and emergency road markers.

Explosion's Bark Worse Than Bite

CHANNELVIEW (AP) — A blast in a plant storage area Saturday night where drilling explosives were stored caused more fright than damage, according to Harris County Sheriff's deputy Carl Hoagland.

The explosion at the Baroid plant, which produces well-drilling mud, occurred about 8:45 p.m., Hoagland said, and scattered blasting caps and debris around the area.

It is located near several refineries. Hoagland said the cause of the blast is unknown.

"As soon as we get the mess cleared up, investigators will go in to take a look," he said. "What we have right now is one shook-up security guard."

Ecuador Election Begins Return To Democracy

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Voters jammed polling places across this military-ruled country Sunday to elect a president for the first time in 10 years as Ecuador joins a handful of Latin American nations taking cautious steps toward a return to civilian democracy.

The election, intended to end eight years of authoritarian control, was expected to draw 1.8 million of the country's 2.9 million voters. They will be electing a president, vice president, mayors, provincial prefects and municipal and provincial councilmen.

Adm. Alfredo Poveda Burbano, head of the ruling military junta, has pledged to turn the government over to the winner.

"We are committed to respect the results, whoever wins," he said on national television and radio networks.

Only 896,475 votes were cast in the last election, when President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra won office. A heavier vote was predicted this time partly because of a new election law requiring both men and women to vote. Women previously voted voluntarily.

None of the six presidential candidates was expected to get an absolute majority. In that case, a run-off between the top two vote-getters would be held later this summer.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets guarded the polling places and supervised long lines that spilled into the streets, but no incidents were reported. Some voters arrived with their entire families and turned the long wait into a picnic under the day's sunny equatorial skies.

The other candidates were Rodrigo Borja, 42, of the Democratic Left Party, Abdon Calderon Nunez, 54, of the radical Alfarista Front party and Rene Mauge, 56, of the Communist Party.

Two of the other seven military governments in South America have taken their first steps toward civilian rule and have set a target date of 1980. Bolivia held presidential elections July 9, and Peruvians on June 18 elected a 100-member constitutional assembly that the government says will pave the way to civilian democracy within two years.

Other military governments in South America are Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay.

Ecuador has a history of fluctuating between military and civilian governments. In the past 30 years, there have been eight presidents, two military dictatorships and one civilian dictatorship.

Velasco Ibarra, the last president, assumed dictatorial powers in 1970 and was overthrown in 1972 by the armed forces. He remains in exile in Argentina.

Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara ruled until 1976, when a military junta came to power and immediately declared that it would lead the nation back to civilian government.

The people approved a new constitution in a national referendum in January, setting the stage for the presidential election.

The constitution takes effect upon inauguration of the president. He is required to set a date for congressional elections, but until then will rule by decree.

The military has protected its interests by decreeing that the defense minister in the new government must be the highest-ranking military man. The supreme court and attorney general will remain the same until congress is convened.

Tax-Incentive Plans Studied By Economists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles L. Schultze, President Carter's chief economic adviser, says the administration might turn to some form of tax-incentive plan to combat inflation if the present voluntary effort to get unions and companies to accept smaller wage and price increases fails.

"Some have suggested we should try some kind of incomes policy using tax incentives to help hold down the rate of inflation," Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in an interview with U.S. News & World Report published Sunday. "At this point, it would be premature to flatly rule out such devices — or to say that they are feasible."

He said the administration is studying such incentives but there are significant problems to be worked out, such as whether business and labor would accept them and whether Congress would be likely to make major changes in any proposed plan.

Schultze, who said that any toughening of anti-inflation efforts should not include controls, was asked in what ways such a plan would differ from wage-and-price controls.

"Use of tax incentives does differ from mandatory controls," he replied. "The degree of flexibility would depend on whether you were using a carrot or a stick."

"If you were laying down rules to determine what kind of action would qualify a company or its workers for a tax cut, it might be possible to be rather flexible. If you went the other way and threatened tax penalties, flexibility would be more difficult to achieve."

Public Workers Striking

By The Associated Press
Philadelphia garbage collectors, prison guards and health center employees were among 19,000 city employees on strike in the nation's fourth largest city Sunday.

National guardsmen were on duty working with fire department supervisors in Louisville, Ky., where 600 members of the Louisville Professional Firefighters Union were on strike for the second straight day.

In New York, negotiators for the city and the 18,500-member Patrolmen's Benevolent Association recessed their labor contract talks after a fruitless 10-hour session. Union officials warned patrolmen might initiate a campaign of vigorous law enforcement that could make jay-walking hazardous to citizens' wallets.

The latest contract offer by officials in Memphis, Tenn., was rejected by a 9-1 margin by police officers. Officials of the firemen's union postponed a vote on the offer. Memphis firemen walked off their jobs on July 1 for three days to protest an earlier contract offer.

In Sedalia, Mo., policemen ended their one-day "sick out" when a judge ordered them back to work. The 46 members of the Sedalia police department were protesting low pay.

The Philadelphia strike began at midnight Thursday and was sparked, officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said, by a decision by the administration of Mayor Frank Rizzo to furlough as many as 3,500 workers to offset the cost of a $21 million contract awarded earlier to the city's 8,300 police officers.

A contract offer by the city, under consideration by the employees' union Sunday, offered a two-year contract with wage increases of 13 1/2 percent, including an immediate 7 percent hike. It also called for layoffs in all city departments.

City officials said if the offer were accepted it would cost the city $26 million this fiscal year. Coupled with the police settlement and an eventual settlement with firefighters, the city could be faced with a deficit for the year of more than $46 million.

In Louisville, where firefighters earn $11,085 a year for a 56-hour work week, settlement of the strike hinged on demands by the union for a wage increase.

City negotiator Tom Forshee said the administration's last contract offer included all of the $900,000 budgeted for discretionary use and would increase total annual compensation for firefighters with five years experience from $12,758 to $14,315.

No major fires were reported in the city of 350,000 since the firemen first struck Friday.

The "sick-out" that affected the 46-man police force in Sedalia, Mo., was a protest against low wages, said Police Chief Bill Miller. The city depended upon the services of local sheriff's deputies to cover the city Saturday night, he said.

Sedalia police officers' earn between $7,500 and $8,400 a year.

In New Bern, N.C., the Board of Aldermen rehired on Saturday 13 members of the 34-man police force, which had quit en masse two weeks ago over salary demands.

Mayor L.R. Morgan said he expected five more former officers to be sworn in Monday, and all of the officers to eventually return, except the ones who had found other jobs.

Morgan said the men are returning to work under a 6 percent hike approved by the board. They had demanded a 10 percent raise.

Without the 6 percent raise, the pay scale for the police officers ranges from $7,900 to $14,269.

New York's 18,500 patrolmen, whose annual average base salary is $17,456, were demanding a $5,000 a year pay raise that would bring them in line with their colleagues in neighboring suburban Nassau County, where officers average about $21,000 a year.

That demand was far in excess of the 8 percent wage increase over two years that the city reached earlier with other municipal employees.

The New York police contract expired June 30.

Memphis police union leaders said they planned to take their dispute directly to the city council where they hoped to get agreement to binding arbitration to settle differences between city and union wage offers.

David Baker, president of the 1,100-member Memphis Police Association said, "It's hoped that the council will see the handwriting on the wall."

Baker emphasized no work stoppage was threatened. "We've kept our men working and they're going to continue to work until we get this thing resolved," he said.

Under the contracts that expired in Memphis on June 30, a police patrolman was paid $13,776 annually and a fire private received $13,307. Under the city's latest offer, policemen and firemen would get a 6 percent raise retroactive to July 1 and a 7.5 percent hike in October 1979. The offer also included raises in longevity payments.

UAW Delays Soviet Trip

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union has postponed indefinitely a trip to Russia by union officials to protest the trials of two Soviet dissidents, UAW President Douglas Fraser said.

"We had looked forward to a constructive exchange of views with Soviet labor officials, but it is clear this will not be possible in light of the repressive atmosphere prevailing because of the trials of human rights advocates in the Soviet Union," Fraser said Thursday.

The UAW leader said he deplored the decision of the Soviet government to try Anatoly F. Shcharansky, a Jewish activist accused of high treason, and Alexander Ginzburg, the manager of a fund that aids families of political prisoners, who was accused of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

Ginzburg's trial ended Thursday when he was sentenced to eight years at hard labor.

The Soviet meeting was to have concerned mutual problems confronting workers in both countries, including safety and health.

National Guard Given Training While Firefighters Stay Off Job

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — National Guardsmen manning city fire houses Sunday were given on-the-job training in case they were needed to fill in for the city's 600 striking firefighters.

The union firemen remained off their jobs in a wage dispute for the second day in a row.

A hearing on a city request that the union firefighters be held in contempt of court for disregarding a three-day-old back-to-work order is scheduled to be heard in Jefferson County Court Monday morning.

Mayor William Stansbury said the city "remains ready to meet at the bargaining table. However, no such bargaining will be held until the firefighters return to their jobs."

No major fires have been reported since Friday, when the firefighters first left their jobs and put up picket lines.

The strike has closed all but seven of the 23 fire stations in the city of more than 350,000. Fire Department supervisors, aided by the National Guard, have kept those stations open.

Gordon Nichols, Guard spokesman, said the 276 guardsmen on duty were "getting the basic skills down and being shown some of the dos and don'ts."

In the case of a major fire, help also would be provided by the 1,400 volunteer firemen of surrounding Jefferson County under existing mutual aid agreements.

Members of the Louisville Professional Firefighters Union Local 345 first left their jobs at 7:45 a.m. Friday. They returned to work Friday night so negotiations could resume. But the talks broke off about 5:15 a.m. Saturday with negotiators still apart.

The firefighters struck again at 6:25 a.m. Saturday.

Tom Forshee, the city's chief negotiator in the dispute, said the city's last contract offer included all $900,000 of budgeted discretionary funds and would increase total annual compensation for firefighters with five years experience or more from $12,758 to $14,315. He said for every dollar increase in wages for firemen, city pension costs increase 35 percent.

Forshee called the offer "fair and within the request of the firefighters."

However, acting union president Granville Ennis said, "They asked us to do more work, with the possibility of less men, and they graciously agreed to give us $250 a year to do it."

Spokesmen for both sides said the city offered $250 a year per person to maintain fire hydrants, a duty now held by private contractors.

The city previously offered wage and benefits increases totaling about $1,200 a year per person. The union had asked about $400 more. Under the contract that expired June 30, firefighters received a starting salary of $11,085 for a 56-hour week.

ERA Backer Decries Diversionary Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abortion and homosexual rights are "red herring" issues used by opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment to distract and divide its potential supporters, says Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., the senior woman member of Congress.

Miss Heckler, a co-chairwoman of the Congressional Women's Caucus and an advocate of the proposal to extend the time for ratifying the ERA, said abortion and homosexual rights themselves are issues worthy of debate "in other forums." But she contended that ERA "should be the bottom line for all women."

Miss Heckler's comments came in an interview as groups supporting ERA lobbied Congress for another seven years in which to win ratification of the amendment.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, has been approved by 35 states and must be ratified by three more by March 22, 1979, to become part of the Constitution.

But getting those last three states has proved so difficult a task that many of its backers are seeking an extension of the seven-year time period Congress granted in 1972.

There has been no previous request for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amendment. And until some amendments earlier in this century, Congress put no time limit on the ratification process, although the Constitution gives Congress the power to set such a limit.

The extension issue also raises the question of allowing states to change their minds.

Three of the 35 states that have ratified the measure have since rescinded approval, but the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide on the validity of rescissions. The states that have rescinded approval are Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska. Kentucky also voted to rescind but that was vetoed by the acting governor.

Although Miss Heckler and other ERA supporters say the ERA's main thrust is economic, opponents argue it would alter negatively the role of women in this society. They also have stressed the issues of abortion and homosexuality, saying the ERA would encourage both.

The controversy over abortion and homosexual rights has been used to advantage by ERA opponents, Miss Heckler conceded. The amendment's detractors sometimes paint any ERA supporter as favoring abortion and homosexuality, she said.

But she described the abortion issue as "an extraneous notion to ERA completely because there is no way you can give a man an equal right to an abortion."

"I feel very strongly that the whole issue of sexual preference is also one that does not belong in the debate on ERA," she added.

Baptist Meet Sets Attendance Record

ATLANTA (AP) — More than 22,800 delegates to the three-day meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention here in June set a record, the denomination has announced.

The convention attracted more than 4,000 more delegates to its annual gathering than any previous meeting, according to Lee Porter of Nashville, registration secretary.

Georgia and five neighboring states — North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee — accounted for nearly 14,000 delegates, Porter said.

BALANCE

A textbook is a necessary part of classroom instruction, but it can't possibly cover an event or discovery that has developed in the past 24 hours.

Many teachers have found they can utilize a newspaper as a source for information not yet available in the textbook, thus providing a balance between yesterday and today.

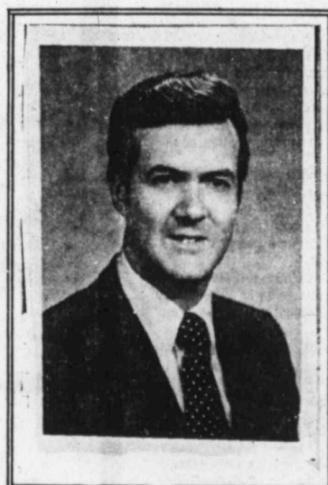

If you're a teacher, you can find out how to put balance in your classroom, by attending the Avalanche-Journal's 7th Annual "Living Textbook Conference", to be held August 8th, on the campus of Texas Tech University.

GIRLFRIEND CLAIMS CUT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The girlfriend of late rock promoter Steve Wolf says she should collect half of the $2 million Wolf earned during the 11 months the couple lived together as man and wife. Linda Grey, 31, filed suit Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court, claiming she gave up a career as an entertainment publicist to be a companion to Wolf, who was murdered last year. In return, the suit said, Wolf promised to support Miss Grey for the rest of her life.

Officers Investigating Rape Case, Robberies

Lubbock police Sunday were doing follow-up work on a reported rape and two aggravated robberies.

A city woman, who said she was walking home Saturday afternoon along Quirt Avenue, told police two black men drove up alongside her and offered her a ride.

The woman said the men introduced themselves as friends of her son.

After she climbed into the brown, 4-door sedan, the victim said the men drove her to an area near the Idalou Highway and Loop 289, where both of them raped her.

The victim said one of the men then took her purse and removed $5 from it. The victim was taken to Estacado High School, 1504 E. Estacado St., where she was released, reports indicate.

Garry John Houston of Chandler said he was crossing a parking lot in the 1700-block of 8th Street about 5:20 a.m. Sunday, when two men approached.

One of the suspects, brandishing what appeared to be a pistol, told Houston to hand over his wallet.

Houston said the tall suspects, in their late teens to mid-20s, took about $300 cash as well as some credit cards during the holdup, before they fled north in an alley. Later, reports indicated, it was determined that the pistol had been a toy.

Earlier, Patti Sue Gray, 22, had flagged down a Lubbock policeman in the 3400-block of Avenue H, to report another armed holdup.

The young department store cashier said she had been walking toward a companion's car about 12:40 a.m. Sunday when a tall man stepped from a car and demanded her money.

The woman said she gave the man $25 from her pocketbook, then was told to give him more or face getting her "head blown off."

With that, the victim showed the man her empty wallet. A companion also was told to give up his money, but the man reportedly had no money at all.

The bandit, who flashed a .22-caliber pistol, then fled with a companion in a black or dark blue Oldsmobile or Buick, reports indicate.

A Lubbock police officer said he had gone to assist other policemen early Sunday, following a reported domestic disturbance.

Before the incident was over, the officer had faced an alleged knifing attempt and a 27-year-old tile layer was in custody on suspicion of public intoxication, aggravated assault on a police officer and being loud and profane.

Officer William Allen said the man told him to leave as the officer walked up. Allen said he told the suspect to hold down his epithets, then stood back when the man allegedly drew an 8 1/2-inch long steak knife from his back pocket.

The man reportedly pointed the blade at Allen's chest before the officer drew his service revolver.

Boat Mishap Fatal For Boy At Area Lake

CANYON (Special) — An 11-year-old Hereford boy, who went swimming with a group of other children about 1:30 a.m. Sunday as his parents slept nearby, was overrun by a motorboat, authorities said.

Richard Dean Bacon was pronounced dead at the Palo Duro Hospital here about 2:30 a.m., about an hour after he was pulled from Buffalo Lake, southwest of here.

A ruling on his death is being withheld by Justice of the Peace W.A. Wilson of Canyon.

Until a recent flood the lake had been nearly dry, Chief Deputy Recl Johnson said. The youngster's death was the first at the lake this summer.

Services for the youth will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Rose Chapel of the Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home with the Rev. Gary Bandy, pastor of the Greenwood Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in West Park Cemetery in Hereford under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

The youngster had moved to Hereford in 1974 from Amarillo. He was a student at Aikman Elementary School in Hereford.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Joseph Rodriguez; three brothers, Joe Charles, Raymond William and Paul Eugene Rodriguez, all of the home; three sisters, Trixie Ann, Jennie Rebecca and Mary Hilda Rodriguez, all of the home; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tito Cardova of Hereford.

News Briefs

Roger Bell, 21, of 2601 Ave. K was in critical condition Sunday at Methodist Hospital with head and internal injuries he suffered in a motorcycle accident July 6 in the 2600-block of Avenue K.

Sid Hill, 19, of Levelland was in critical condition Sunday at Methodist Hospital with injuries suffered July 3 when his car ran off the road and struck a power pole three miles west of Farm Road 168 on Farm Road 1294 near Levelland.

Allen said he told the man to drop the knife, but the suspect replaced it in his pocket.

Asked by Allen if he still wanted to "cut" the officer, the man reportedly pulled the knife out again before saying no.

The suspect reportedly then threw the knife to the ground.

The officer said he then asked the man to shake hands. As the suspect did so, Allen said he jerked the man off the porch and "threw him to the ground face down and handcuffed him."

The officer said he then transported the man to the county jail, where he was booked just before 3 a.m.

Emma Darnell of 2806 Quirt Ave., apt. 1, said she returned home recently to find her 6-week-old Himalayan cat dead in a dumpster behind her residence. The woman said the animal, valued at $150, apparently had been killed by someone who broke its neck.

In reported break-ins, Suzie Biles of 2224 36th St. said someone stole $1,200 worth of assorted clothes and other goods from her house recently.

Drowned Man's Body Recovered

WHITE RIVER LAKE (Special) — Two Panhandle area game wardens, doubling as rescue divers, pulled the body of a 25-year-old Lubbock man from the waters of Sand Creek Sunday, nearly 18 hours after he disappeared.

Hipolito Hignojo, formerly of Pecos, drowned in about eight feet of water on the northwest side of this lake Saturday, after he apparently became tired following a long swim, Sheriff Fred Owen of Crosbyton said.

Search operations, which began shortly after the man disappeared at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, continued without success until midnight Sunday, Owen said.

Divers Buck Williams of Pampa and James Wilson of Perryton, both game wardens, began searching for the body about 5 a.m. Sunday. Williams reportedly found Hignojo's body at 10:10 a.m. Sunday.

The young roofer, who was employed with Lydick Roofing Co. of Lubbock and lived at 2701 Clovis Rd., reportedly had gone to the lake Saturday on a weekend outing.

Though he was accompanied by four other persons, Owen said the man apparently was alone when he disappeared.

Hignojo was the first person to drown at the lake this summer, Owen said.

Montford Displays Zest For Battle

 year from the county, the same as it is paying Griffin now, to go with the $27,000 he will be paid by the state.

Although he considers it "a good salary," one of his reservations about making the race was that he would make "two or three times that much" by continuing as a defense attorney.

Criminal Practice Established
 He was best known as a trial lawyer before his unsuccessful race against Griffin four years ago and had continued to build a criminal practice.

He is a major in the Marine Corps Reserve and a 1971 Navy Commendation Medal winner for his work as a court martial counsel.

The award specifically mentioned "his strict adherence to the principles of military justice, impartiality and integrity, which resulted in his immediate action to dismiss unwarranted charges."

That characteristic apparently has remained part of his personality because he said his office will be interested in fairness to the accused as well as in vigorous prosecution.

All evidence turned up by his investigators, whether favorable to the prosecution or not, will be considered in cases, he said. Evidence favoring the defendant will be given to defense attorneys, and in-

Commissioners Show Will To Back Montford

Lubbock County commissioners were inclined to give Criminal District Attorney-elect John T. Montford much but not all of his proposed 1979 budget after he appeared before them in budget hearings last week.

In an informal roundtable discussion with The Avalanche-Journal, they expressed varied opinions but generally favorably disposed toward the man who got almost 80 percent of the votes in his primary.

"It seems to me the voters stated their opinion when they elected the man to office, so it'll be hard to deny him all he asked for," Commissioner Coy Biggs of Slaton said. "I don't know if we can give him everything he asked for, but we're certainly going to have to look at it."

No Undue Pressure
 Asked if the size of his victory and the urgency of his budget request reduces the latitude they normally have in considering budgets, Commissioner Alton Brazell, an 18-year veteran of the court, said, "I don't feel any undue pressure because of the size of the vote because all of the commissioners court represents a majority of the people in the county, too."

Brazell said his approach to the Montford budget will be determined by how much money is available for it, and he added that he is particularly interested in how much it would help the other areas of county law enforcement.

Neither Brazell nor Biggs would say if they will go along with the request for the addition of an $18,000-a-year office administrator to the office.

Commissioners Jim Lancaster of Idalou and Edgar Chance both said they probably could approve an administrator but said the full increase Montford wants is more likely to be achieved in two or three years than in only one.

"I think he's a real ambitious, hard-working young man with a real good program," Chance said. "There's such a sizable increase there that I don't know if we can fill all he wants in this budget. Maybe in time we can."

Courthouse-Rate Pay
 Lancaster said his 10 secretaries, the same number that DA Alton Griffin has now, will have to be paid at the courthouse rate rather than on the scale he proposes.

Staff and salaries could be increased some, Lancaster said, "but not to the degree his initial request is."

Biggs said he liked the idea of investigators serving some subpoenas instead of deputies having to serve them all. Montford said during his appearance that that could be an extra duty of the seven investigators he wants. There are three now.

Lancaster said the centralizing of bad check handling under a business crimes division would also be an improvement.

An air of secrecy surround the start of the meetings, with delegations cancelling scheduled press conferences. The initial reluctance to discuss the meetings in public and the decision to let Schmidt speak for all the participants during the mid-day break was apparently intended to give harmony a better chance at overtaking disagreements, observers said.

Toasting his conference colleagues at a luncheon, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said: "We would not expect an automatic alignment of views. Therefore, that there are differences is no cause for surprise or alarm."

The Canadian leader said that the summit participants must seek common goals because "the world is watching us... we cannot afford to fail."

The summit meeting was preceded by Carter's official two-day state visit to Germany.

Besides Carter, Schmidt and Trudeau, others at the summit are French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, and British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

It is the same group that met in London last year at the third economic summit conference, Carter's first. That conference has been judged a partial failure because Japan and Germany failed to meet their agreed-upon targets for economic growth, and Carter has so far failed to make the progress in reducing oil imports he had promised.

First Lady Cruises
 Before the meetings began, Carter attended services at the heavily guarded American Protestant Church of Bonn with his wife, Rosalynn, and their 10-year-old daughter, Amy. Later, Mrs. Carter went for a cruise on the Rhine.

The leaders of the seven summit nations, with Carter and Schmidt at the front, emerged from the luxurious palace for an official photograph before their luncheon after the first session. Each strolled down the palace's carpeted stairs and across a red carpet spread over the green grass of a lawn the size of a football field.

Even Robert S. Strauss, the U.S. trade ambassador who rarely shuns publicity, appeared caught up in the secrecy. When reporters and photographers spied him sitting in his shirtsleeves on the palace porch before the other leaders emerged, he put his hand over his face, rose quickly, put on his jacket and moved behind some large flower pots where he could not be seen.

Each leader was limited to three other persons besides himself in the conference room. Carter was accompanied by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Blumenthal and a stenographer. Strauss remained nearby but did not attend the meeting.

He misses being able to run three or four miles a day, which he did regularly as commander of the Lubbock Marine Corps Reserve Center, and being in such good condition that he could work 18 hours in a day whenever he wanted.

But he has recovered from the accident enough to walk normally and is fully able, he said, to fulfill his duties in office.

He asked the approval of his doctor to make the race before announcing last August, he said.

In addition to continuing his law practice and laying plans for next year, Montford has been occupied lately with a new baby girl, Melanie, born June 10 to his wife Debbie and him. He has another daughter, Melinda, 8, from a previous marriage.

Pope Paul VI Adds Voice To Protest

By The Associated Press
 Pope Paul VI, adding his voice to the broad protest in the West, spoke out Sunday against the convictions of three leading Soviet dissidents, calling their alleged crimes "ideological infractions" and their sentences too severe.

In Moscow, meanwhile, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Americans who are calling for a break in trade, scientific and cultural relations with the Soviet Union because of the dissident trials "are losing all sense of reality."

The Washington Star quoted informed Senate sources Sunday as saying the Carter administration has decided to postpone indefinitely the sale of computer technology to the Soviet Union in retaliation for the crackdown on dissidents. Pope Paul, in a carefully worded address to 3,000 visitors gathered outside his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo, did not mention the convicted dissidents.

—Anatoly Shecharansky, sentenced to 13 years at hard labor for espionage and anti-Soviet activity, and Alexander Ginsburg and Viktoras Pyatkus, sentenced to eight and 10 years, respectively, for anti-Soviet activity.

public and the decision to let Schmidt speak for all the participants during the mid-day break was apparently intended to give harmony a better chance at overtaking disagreements, observers said.

Toasting his conference colleagues at a luncheon, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said: "We would not expect an automatic alignment of views. Therefore, that there are differences is no cause for surprise or alarm."

The Canadian leader said that the summit participants must seek common goals because "the world is watching us... we cannot afford to fail."

The summit meeting was preceded by Carter's official two-day state visit to Germany.

Besides Carter, Schmidt and Trudeau, others at the summit are French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, and British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

It is the same group that met in London last year at the third economic summit conference, Carter's first. That conference has been judged a partial failure because Japan and Germany failed to meet their agreed-upon targets for economic growth, and Carter has so far failed to make the progress in reducing oil imports he had promised.

First Lady Cruises
 Before the meetings began, Carter attended services at the heavily guarded American Protestant Church of Bonn with his wife, Rosalynn, and their 10-year-old daughter, Amy. Later, Mrs. Carter went for a cruise on the Rhine.

The leaders of the seven summit nations, with Carter and Schmidt at the front, emerged from the luxurious palace for an official photograph before their luncheon after the first session. Each strolled down the palace's carpeted stairs and across a red carpet spread over the green grass of a lawn the size of a football field.

Even Robert S. Strauss, the U.S. trade ambassador who rarely shuns publicity, appeared caught up in the secrecy. When reporters and photographers spied him sitting in his shirtsleeves on the palace porch before the other leaders emerged, he put his hand over his face, rose quickly, put on his jacket and moved behind some large flower pots where he could not be seen.

ONE MORE CHANCE—Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia says U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young should have one more chance-but should be fired if he embarrasses the United States again.

Byrd, asked about Young's remark to a French newspaper that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in the United States, called the comment "the most serious in a series of irresponsible statements" by the U.N. ambassador.

Young made the statement while the United States was condemning Soviet treatment of Russian dissidents.

Previous Remarks Bypassed
 Byrd said he has remained silent about previous remarks by Young because of a feeling that the ambassador "contributed a great service to this country."

Young, who arrived in Belgrade Sunday for two-days of talks with Yugoslav officials, was questioned briefly by reporters at the airport about his controversial statement. He told them he was trying to point out "the ridiculousness of these trials (of dissidents)" by the Soviet Union, but he was not commenting "out of our own righteousness."

Young is scheduled to visit Romania after his talks in Belgrade on developments in Africa and the Middle East.

At his weekly news conference on Saturday, Byrd refused comment on Young, saying he wanted to read the full text of the ambassador's remarks. But on Sunday, he said he had called President Cart-

Florida Couple Asks Damages In Test-Tube Baby Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethical and legal dilemmas posed by so-called "test-tube babies" will surface in court today when a Florida couple seeks damages from a doctor they claim destroyed their progeny.

John and Doris Del Zio, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., seek $1.5 million from Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center and its former chief of obstetrics and gynecology, charging that a laboratory-fertilized embryo was "maliciously and arbitrarily" destroyed in 1973, three days before it was to be implanted in Mrs. Del Zio's womb.

Lesley Brown, a British housewife, is waiting to give birth within the next few weeks in Oldham, England, to a child who was fertilized in a laboratory. If Mrs. Brown carries successfully to term, it is believed it will be the first case of a laboratory-fertilized human egg being carried to birth.

The Del Zios say they would have had the first such child, but for a doctor's decision to destroy the fertilized egg because of his qualms about the morality of the procedure.

Procedure Termed Unethical
 Dr. Raymond L. Vande Wiele, the center's obstetrics chief, allegedly told colleagues that he destroyed the egg because the National Institute of Health prohibited in-vitro fertilization as unethical.

But NIH has said test-tube fertilization is "not proscribed by law or by official NIH policy."

The couple's claim was made in papers filed with U.S. District Court, where Judge Charles E. Stewart will preside at the trial.

The Del Zios were married in 1968, each with children from previous marriages. Because of an earlier pregnancy, Mrs. Del Zio's fallopian tubes were blocked. Unfertilized eggs could not travel from the ovary to the uterus, where conception occurs.

After three unsuccessful operations to open the tubes and one miscarriage, doctors told her she could not again conceive normally.

But in 1972, the Del Zios heard of in-vitro fertilization, a procedure in which an egg is surgically removed from the ovary, mixed with the husband's sperm and fertilized. After an incubation period of several days, the embryo is surgically placed in the womb.

Undergoes Surgery
 Mrs. Del Zio, now 34, entered New York Hospital for the procedure on Sept. 11, 1973. She underwent surgery, and the eggs were rushed to the Columbia Presbyterian lab of Dr. Landrum B. Shetles.

But the Del Zios said Dr. Vande Wiele destroyed the embryo by "deliberately" opening the test tube two days later.

The Del Zios maintain the procedure is of "the highest morality, the work of the Lord to help us have our own children."

The couple said the suit was filed not just to recover damages, but also to heighten interest in in vitro fertilization.

"I thought I was a freak of nature, having my fallopian tubes blocked. Now I realize that there are 150,000 other American women with the same problem. I'd like to let them know that if they want to have children, there is a safe procedure for them," Mrs. Del Zio said.

 tivity caused the decision to shift the site of the talks.

"It has been decided to switch the venue for reasons of prudence and general administration," said a spokesman for the British Foreign Office.

But informed sources said the decision to change locations apparently followed intelligence reports that extremists of the Iraqi-based Palestinian "Rejectionist Front" planned to attack or try to sabotage the conference in some way.

Senator Proposes 'One More Chance' For Andrew Young

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd said Sunday that U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young can have one more chance — but should be fired if he embarrasses the United States again.

Byrd, asked about Young's remark to a French newspaper that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in the United States, called the comment "the most serious in a series of irresponsible statements" by the U.N. ambassador.

Young made the statement while the United States was condemning Soviet treatment of Russian dissidents.

Previous Remarks Bypassed
 Byrd said he has remained silent about previous remarks by Young because of a feeling that the ambassador "contributed a great service to this country."

Young, who arrived in Belgrade Sunday for two-days of talks with Yugoslav officials, was questioned briefly by reporters at the airport about his controversial statement. He told them he was trying to point out "the ridiculousness of these trials (of dissidents)" by the Soviet Union, but he was not commenting "out of our own righteousness."

Young is scheduled to visit Romania after his talks in Belgrade on developments in Africa and the Middle East.

At his weekly news conference on Saturday, Byrd refused comment on Young, saying he wanted to read the full text of the ambassador's remarks. But on Sunday, he said he had called President Carter and Young to tell them he could remain silent no longer.

Statement "Inopportune"
 "His recent statement was inopportune, inaccurate and incompatible with his position," Byrd said.

"He has made several irresponsible statements," the majority leader said. "His latest was of sufficient magnitude that resignation should have been considered, and if he makes another one, I think he should go."

The majority leader said Young "undetermined, undercut and underserved the administration" in his statement.

Byrd made the comments on the CBS television program "Face the Nation."

Young's comment was published in last Wednesday's edition of the Paris Socialist newspaper Le Matin and provoked an immediate storm of indignation in the United States, including an abortive impeachment attempt in the House.

Remarks Later Qualified
 The ambassador later qualified his remarks, saying he knew "of no instance in the United States where persons have received penalties for monitoring our government's position on civil or human rights."

Young also claimed that he had "never equated the status of political freedom in the United States with that in the Soviet Union."

However, he was chastized later by both Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance for the comment that appeared in the French newspaper.

Hospital's Pediatric Unit Short Of Nurses

 The intensive care room itself really is not unlike the remainder of the pediatric ward in appearance. The walls are painted in "cheerful" colors and the floor is carpeted in bright orange.

Presently the facility is not equipped to deal with head injuries. Radiology equipment will arrive in about six months or sooner.

Although the competition with the largest metropolitan cities is tough, there are reasons why graduating pediatric nurses should be attracted to the entire pediatric program here. "This is where the action is," said Mrs. Sawyer.

"We are one of the newest facilities and have the most modern equipment available with more on its way."

The facility is the site for a number of experimental programs and studies in the field of medicine.

"We are fortunate to have a number of pediatric physicians who specialize in cardiology (heart), nephrology (kidneys), endocrinology (glands) and neonatology (new born infants)."

Famed Case Recalled
 Immunologist Dr. Mary South, who worked with the somewhat famed case of the young boy who was cared for in "the bubble" in Houston, is chairman in the department of pediatrics at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

The staff also includes a pediatric cardiovascular surgeon, Dr. Hugh Firor.

The Health Sciences Center Hospital pediatric department is brightly colored. Red wagons and toys are to be found in the two hallways and rooms.

Each room has a large window. "No patient, particular particularly children, cares to feel shut in, regardless how ill he is," said Mrs. Sawyer.

The facility has a playroom for the young children and a game room, complete with bumper pool tables, for adolescents.

Adolescents and younger children are grouped separately.

For those who face lengthy hospital stays, say for fractures, a classroom with desks and a chalkboard is provided. A teacher from the Lubbock public schools gives instruction.

Mrs. Sawyer encourages tours to the facility by the younger set so if time ever comes they need to be hospitalized, they will not be afraid.

"We try to alter as little as possible the child's environment," she said. Parents are encouraged to be involved in caring for their children during the hospitalization.

Hospital Routine Ignored
 The young patients are not required to wear hospital clothing in the daytime. "We even avoid meals in bed when possible," she continued.

The nurses do not wear traditional uniforms and caps but brightly colored tunic tops. "In no way do we want to scare our young patients," said Mrs. Sawyer.

Health Sciences Center Hospital is the only Lubbock hospital which does not have structured visitation hours. Parents, family members and friends are free to be with the children at any time within reason.

Presently the pediatric staff is working on a sibling visitation program. Mrs. Sawyer said that it is important not to break the young patient away from his brothers and sisters and general daily routine.

Priority in future plans, according to Mrs. Sawyer, is more nurses. "Eventually we want a play therapist and additional social workers. Additional equipment always is needed."

'Good Old Girl' Route Needed

HOUSTON (AP) — What this town and Texas need is a good old girl network, something like the one the good old boys have used to advance themselves in business and politics, says the first woman elected to citywide office in the nation's fifth largest city.

City comptroller Kathy Whitmire says it gets mighty lonely at City Hall "when you have an administration that has no interest in and no obligation to women."

Speaking to the sixth annual Harris County Women's Political Caucus Saturday, Miss Whitmire said the group needs to broaden its support to bring in more women to maintain the initial high energy it started out with in 1972.

"The key to developing broad-based support is to find points where you agree with everyone you meet," she said. "I find...we sometimes get very elitist in measuring feminist credentials."

She also advised the caucus, whose political endorsements politicians seeking office are beginning to take seriously, to begin affiliating with other political groups working on issues of common interest.

Of the need for a good old girl network, Miss Whitmire said many women balk at associating with other women for the good of the whole.

She said San Antonio Mayor Lila Cockrill has been trying to get the women members of the Texas Municipal League together but without much success.

"They're convinced that the only way to keep their positions is to hold themselves apart from other women," Miss Whitmire said.

A recent study of women elected officials around the country showed, she said, that many were not seeking re-election or running for higher office.

She said the study revealed they suffered from frustration over not being able to bring "a higher order to politics" and a lack of confidence in their own ability to do the job.

"I don't know how many times I've seen in business, women not put themselves up for a position because they thought somehow they could not handle the job when the man who was eventually promoted was far less capable but had the self-confidence," she said.

She hopes a recent meeting of 15 elected women officials from across Texas represents the beginning of the network.

Overbookings Vex Officials, Air Passengers

BOSTON (AP) — Pan American may have sold too many tickets for its bargain-priced flight between Amsterdam and Boston, the executive director of the Massachusetts Port Authority said Sunday.

"I think there are just more tickets than there are seats between now and the end of the month," when the $50 Amsterdam-to-Boston offer is scheduled to expire, said David Davis on his return from Amsterdam.

Flights from Boston to Amsterdam, priced at $99, ended last weekend. Most of those stranded in Amsterdam bought $149 round-trip tickets in Boston.

Davis said the situation — which culminated in an incident last week in which frustrated travelers stormed the Pan American gates at Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam — is not "critical."

But he said hundreds of travelers are still camped at the airport, where they face a three-day wait to get one of the 186 seats daily back to Boston.

Davis said the passengers organized a queueing system after Dutch authorities stopped the airline from issuing numbered tickets for the stand-by flight. Passengers now appoint a chairman each day to hold the lists on which they reserve seats according to their place in line.

"Generally the mood of the passengers is quite good," said Davis. "But I don't think we're entirely out of the woods."

"The problem is that there are hundreds and more than hundreds of people that have got to have the cheap seats, that have got to come back before the 31st."

Davis said the problem could be solved if Pan Am puts on more flights, but airline spokesman Bruce Haxthausen said no such move was anticipated. "We do not have plans to operate extra flights," he said. "We do not have any extra planes. This is the height of the season."

"We believe we can bring back all the people at the lower fare before July 31 when the rate goes up," Haxthausen said.

DEMOS PLAN STRATEGY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders of the House and Senate plan to meet Tuesday to decide what bills must make their way through Congress before adjournment Oct. 1, and what bills could be put off until next year. The House still plans 2½ weeks of recess in late summer, while the Senate plans to recess for a week at Labor Day.

TREATED LIKE A KING — Soviet chess champion Anatoly Karpov is accorded the rights of royalty as he steps from a special jeep he used to review the cadet platoons at Philippines Military Academy Saturday at Baguio, 150 miles north of Manila. Incomes Falling Victim To 'Tax Bracket Creep'

By The Associated Press
Second incomes threaten to disappear. Pay raises are swallowed up.

Blame it on inflation. Inflation which not only boosts prices, but also pushes wage earners into higher tax brackets without increasing their buying power.

Marv and Nancy Ballentyne of Denver are among the victims. Mrs. Ballentyne would like to go back to work as a teacher, but she worries that the extra income will be eaten up by taxes. She takes consolation, she says, from one thought: "Teachers don't make that much money."

Periodic tax cuts can take some of the sting out of the situation. But a growing number of people are arguing — unsuccessfully so far — that we need a more predictable way to avoid penalizing families whose incomes keep pace with inflation.

Most of the attention has been centered on a concept called "indexation" which would directly link income tax brackets and exemptions to inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index. Canada adopted such a policy four years ago, but key Congressional leaders in the United States oppose it.

Ballentyne heads the appraisal department at a large savings and loan organization. His wife says she tries not to think about the steadily growing bite that taxes have taken as the family's annual income has risen to $25,000.

Worrying about rising taxes is like worrying about rising supermarket prices. "If I really think about it, I just want to stand there in the aisle and scream," said Mrs. Ballentyne.

"It seems like we were better off five years ago, making a heckuva lot less money," added her husband.

Ballentyne may be right. Figures compiled by the non-profit Tax Foundation, Inc., show that from fiscal 1972 to fiscal 1977, median family income — before federal taxes and adjustments for inflation — went up 47 percent. After taxes and inflation adjustments, it went down 3 percent. Americans earned more, but the dollars bought less.

Here are some examples of how the tax bracket creep now works, according to calculations by the Tax Foundation. Suppose you earned $15,000 last year. You're married, with two children; only one spouse works. Assume you got a raise equal to the rate of inflation the government is predicting for 1978 — 7.4 percent. Your 1978 earnings would be $16,610, up $1,110.

In theory, you should be able to keep pace with rising prices. In practice, however, taxes will slow you down. Your federal income tax bill goes up $239; you pay $97 more in Social Security. In 1977, 15 percent of your income went for federal income tax and Social Security; in 1978, 16 percent of your income goes to the government. Because of the extra taxes, your $1,110 raise shrinks to $774.

That $774 is not enough to offset inflation. If you measured your income in constant 1977 dollars, you would find yourself with 1.2 percent less this year than you had last year.

At the $25,000 level, a 7.4 percent raise from 1977 to 1978 would have resulted in a loss of 1.4 percent in buying power; at the $30,000 level, it would have meant a 1.6 percent loss.

(Note: These calculations involve federal levies only; state and local income taxes can boost the loss.)

U.S. Rep. Willis D. Gradison, R-Ohio, has introduced a bill to apply an indexing system similar to the Canadian one to U.S. income tax brackets. Gradison says he has 80 co-sponsors, but the idea is opposed by such Congressional figures as U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Ullman and Long contend that taxes are better adjusted on a year-to-year basis, depending on the economy.

The Canadian plan is not without problems. As a result of the indexation policy in Canada, the maximum amount a taxpayer can earn and still be eligible for the lowest bracket has risen from $500 to $761. The 52.1 percent increase is equal to the compound increase in inflation.

Because of indexation, a married taxpayer with a dependent spouse and two children is entitled to basic exemptions of $5,480 in 1978; without indexation, the same taxpayer would have had only $3,600 in exemptions.

These tax breaks have cost the Canadian government. Carl F. Steiss, a partner in Price Waterhouse & Co. of Toronto, estimates that indexation has meant $4 billion in lost revenue for the federal government alone.

Chess Dispute Solved

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — A U.S.-inspired compromise solved on Monday a dispute over flags that had threatened the world chess championship match between Victor Korchnoi and Anatoly Karpov.

Both Korchnoi and Karpov are Soviet grandmasters, but Korchnoi defected from the Soviet Union in 1976 and now lives in Switzerland.

He claimed the Americans had ganged up with the Russians on the flag issue.

The compromise, announced after a three-hour meeting of a special panel that included representatives of the two players, leaves Korchnoi without the Swiss flag under which he wanted to play. It also agreed that Karpov, the world champion, cannot have the Soviet flag on the playing table.

Lothar Schmid, the West German who is chief arbiter of the match, said the compromise would permit the 47-year-old Korchnoi to play under the flag of Aargau, the Swiss canton where he now lives, or a white flag inscribed with the word "stateless."

The Soviet flag will be displayed on stage along with the flags of the Philippines and the International Chess Federation, he said.

Petra Leeuwerick, head of Korchnoi's delegation, told newsmen that "even at the same time (President) Carter and the others are talking out for the (Soviet) dissidents — and Viktor is a dissident — the Americans are supporting the Russians against us."

An angry Raymond Keene, one of Korchnoi's seconds, added: "When the superpowers gang up on you what chance do you have?"

The Russians maintained that unless Korchnoi carried a Swiss passport, he could not play under the flag of that country. Korchnoi has a Swiss residency certificate but not a Swiss passport. He is listed as stateless in the chess federation's rankings.

The compromise means that when the match, which could extend over two months, begins Tuesday, Korchnoi will be playing without a flag for the fourth major tournament. He played under the Swiss flag in a federation-sanctioned tournament in Israel this year, but had no flag in three playoff to win the right to face Karpov.

Architect of the compromise was Ed Edmondson of Honolulu, a vice president of the federation and member of a special jury appointed for the match. Edmondson arrived in this northern Philippines mountain resort Sunday night, and Schmid said: "He came, he saw and he won."

But Keene criticized Edmondson, saying if the American had voted in favor of letting Korchnoi play under the Swiss flag, Korchnoi would have been allowed to do so. The seven-member jury voted 4-2 against Korchnoi, but had Edmondson voted yes instead of no, the vote would have been tied and Lim Kok Ann of Singapore, the jury chairman, would have voted for Korchnoi, because he had supported him earlier, Keene said.

Edmondson said later, "I just realize everybody is under a great deal of pressure and we do the best we can." He declined further comment.

The flag dispute had provoked a walk-out Sunday by the Soviet delegation.

Two other issues also were settled during the meeting that followed the walk-out.

Florencio Campomanes, local organizer of the match, said the jury gave Schmid discretion to choose the official timepiece. Schmid said he would choose "by lot" between a Dutch clock favored by Korchnoi and an East German clock selected by Karpov.

Korchnoi's Swiss-made chair was X-rayed at Baguio General Hospital Sunday, and Campomanes said Karpov's delegation accepted Schmid's statement that nothing objectionable had been found.

Crucifixion Shows Anger

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Rev. Willie Dicks carefully staged his own crucifixion in a city park to publicly express his disgust with unsafe streets and to plea for an end of crime.

But another clergyman suggested Dicks' action was a publicity stunt and was "demeaning to the spirit of Christ."

Wearing a hooded, white cotton gown, Dicks carried the 9-by-12-foot wooden cross to a tree at Arroyo Viejo Park on Saturday. He then shed his robe and reclined against the leaning cross.

Dicks, 37, said he wasn't wearing a crown of thorns, as Christ did more than 2,000 years ago, because "I'm not the King."

Five Oakland policemen were assigned to the site, but a crowd of reporters and photographers outnumbered onlookers.

Dicks, who said he is pastor of the St. John's Missionary Baptist Church in San Jose, told his attendant, James V. Fuller, where to place the nails. He warned him not to "miss the nail and hit my hand — I don't want no broken bones."

The nails, which had been immersed in a disinfectant, were pounded into the fleshy parts between Dicks' big and second toes and the third and fourth fingers of each hand. Each location was marked with ink. Dicks winced as the nails were driven in.

Flashes of pain reflected on his face during his 10 minutes on the cross.

Dicks' doctor had given him an injection to prevent infection, it was reported later.

While Dicks was nailed to the cross, an attendant supported his body around the waist to take the weight off the nails. Small trickles of blood seeped from the wounds. An aide carved a slash into his left side with a knife, but that didn't bleed.

"I would like to say from this cross that I'm disgusted that our senior citizens cannot walk through the streets of the cities they helped to build without being robbed and raped," he told spectators. "I'm asking you here today to refrain from all crime."

Aid From China To Albania Ends

TOKYO (AP) — Albanian students in China have begun returning home, the Hsinhua news agency reported Sunday, following a decision by the Chinese government to halt all economic and military aid to its former ally in Europe.

The first group of Albanians left Peking Thursday and the remaining students will leave next Thursday, the official Chinese agency said in a dispatch received here. It did not give the total number involved.

Dicks then ordered his assistants to take him down, offered a silent prayer at the base of the tree and left the park in a pickup truck with his 1-year-old son.

Dicks said many cities in the San Francisco Bay area had rejected his request for a crucifixion site. An Oakland policeman said Dicks was exercising his religious freedom and didn't need a permit.

San Carlos Baptist clergyman Bryant Wright said the event seemed to him a publicity stunt and "demeaning to the spirit of Christ. I have the feeling that he's a very naive young Christian, and it's that way with naive young Christians. They want to do something big and important for the Lord."

NAILED TO A CROSS — James Fuller hammers a nail into the foot of Baptist minister, the Rev. Willie Dicks of San Carlos, Calif., who had himself nailed to a cross for 10 minutes Saturday morning in an Oakland park. Dicks said he had himself nailed to the cross to help emphasize his message that Jesus Christ "is an alternative to crime." Fuller is a friend of Dicks. (AP Laserphoto)

Sadat Offers Ideas For Peace Parleys

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet said Sunday Egyptian President Anwar Sadat offered new ideas for a Mideast peace in his talks with Defense Minister Ezer Weizman in Austria last week.

But officials refused to reveal any details about the Egyptian proposals and the Cabinet put off further discussion of them until next weekend, after the resumption of face-to-face Egyptian-Israeli talks this Tuesday in Britain.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin said his government would consider the proposals "on their merits."

Begin later addressed a meeting of his rightist Herut Party, a faction of the ing Likud bloc, and said Weizman's trip had been important.

He did not discuss the new Egyptian proposals, but directed angry words at Cairo. "The leaders of Egypt do not cease defaming me. This time, unlike my habit, I shall turn a deaf ear," he said. Begin did not elaborate, saying he feared any response might force cancellation of the peace conference in Britain.

The prime minister also claimed there is an international campaign for his resignation. "I am being termed an obstacle to peace," Begin said, adding, "To my mind I am indeed an obstacle, an obstacle against capitulation."

A Cabinet communique issued after the regular Sunday meeting of government ministers said only that Weizman briefed the Cabinet and that "the proposals which were presented to the defense minister will be discussed at next Sunday's Cabinet meeting, at which time they will be decided upon."

Cabinet Secretary Arieh Naor refused to say whether the Egyptian ideas had been conveyed to Weizman in writing when the defense minister talked with Sadat and Egyptian Defense Minister Abdul Ghani Gamassy last week in Salzburg, Austria.

Unattributed reports in the Israeli press said Sadat wants Israel to propose a new border between Israel and the West Bank of the Jordan River, which Israel captured in the 1967 Mideast War along with the Gaza Strip and the Sinai Peninsula.

Asked his reaction to the latest Cairo proposals, Begin said that he "will express my opinion next Sunday," when the Cabinet meets again.

It would require a major change in Begin's thinking for him to agree to draw a new border. On July 9, the Israeli Cabinet rejected as "completely unacceptable" a six-point peace proposal by Sadat in which the Egyptian called for Israel to turn over the West Bank to Jordan and Gaza to Egypt. Sadat also called for Israel to give up East Jerusalem, also conquered from the Arabs in the 1967 war.

Egypt last December turned down Begin's plan, which would grant limited autonomy to Palestinian Arabs in the West Bank and Gaza while maintaining an Israeli military presence in the territories.

The new Sadat proposals apparently will be discussed by Foreign Ministers Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel of Egypt and Moshe Dayan of Israel when they meet Tuesday in Britain. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance also is to take part in the talks.

In interviews in Austria, Sadat said he is ready for full peace treaties and normal relations with Israel and that he understands Israel's desire for dependable security arrangements. Israel says a full withdrawal from the West Bank and establishment of an independent Palestinian state there would threaten its security.

The Jerusalem Post's David London, after interviewing Sadat in Salzburg, wrote that the Egyptian president "clearly indicated" that Egypt would agree to "a strategic Israeli military presence remaining in the West Bank after a peace agreement."

The Post said officials here saw Sadat's new ideas as a softening of Egypt's previous calls for complete Israeli pullout from the occupied territories.

Keeping Pace With Inflation Carries Drawbacks

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Second incomes threaten to disappear. Pay raises are swallowed up. Blame it on inflation. Inflation which not only boosts prices, but also pushes wage earners into higher tax brackets without increasing their buying power.

Marv and Nancy Ballentyne of Denver are among the victims. Mrs. Ballentyne would like to go back to work as a teacher, but she worries that the extra income will be eaten up by taxes. She takes consolation, she says, from one thought: "Teachers don't make that much money."

Periodic tax cuts can take some of the sting out of the situation. But a growing number of people are arguing — unsuccessfully so far — that we need a more predictable way to avoid penalizing families whose incomes keep pace with inflation.

Most of the attention has been centered on a concept called "indexation" which would directly link income tax brackets and exemptions to inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index. Canada adopted such a policy four years ago, but key Congressional leaders in the United States oppose it.

Ballentyne heads the appraisal department at a large savings and loan organization. His wife says she tries not to think about the steadily growing bite that taxes have taken as the family's annual income has risen to $25,000.

Worrying about rising taxes is like worrying about rising supermarket prices. "If I really think about it, I just want to stand there in the aisle and scream," said Mrs. Ballentyne.

"It seems like we were better off five years ago, making a heckuva lot less money," added her husband.

Ballentyne may be right. Figures compiled by the non-profit Tax Foundation, Inc., show that from fiscal 1972 to fiscal 1977, median family income — before federal taxes and adjustments for inflation — went up 47 percent. After taxes and inflation adjustments, it went down 3 percent. Americans earned more, but the dollars bought less.

Here are some examples of how the tax bracket creep now works, according to calculations by the Tax Foundation. Suppose you earned $15,000 last year. You're married, with two children; only one spouse works. Assume you got a raise equal to the rate of inflation the government is predicting for 1978 — 7.4 percent. Your 1978 earnings would be $16,610, up $1,110.

In theory, you should be able to keep pace with rising prices. In practice, however, taxes will slow you down. Your federal income tax bill goes up $239; you pay $97 more in Social Security. In 1977, 15 percent of your income went for federal income tax and Social Security; in 1978, 16 percent of your income goes to the government. Because of the extra taxes, your $1,110 raise shrinks to $774.

That $774 is not enough to offset inflation. If you measured your income in constant 1977 dollars, you would find yourself with 1.2 percent less this year than you had last year.

At the $25,000 level, a 7.4 percent raise from 1977 to 1978 would have resulted in a loss of 1.4 percent in buying power; at the $30,000 level, it would have meant a 1.6 percent loss.

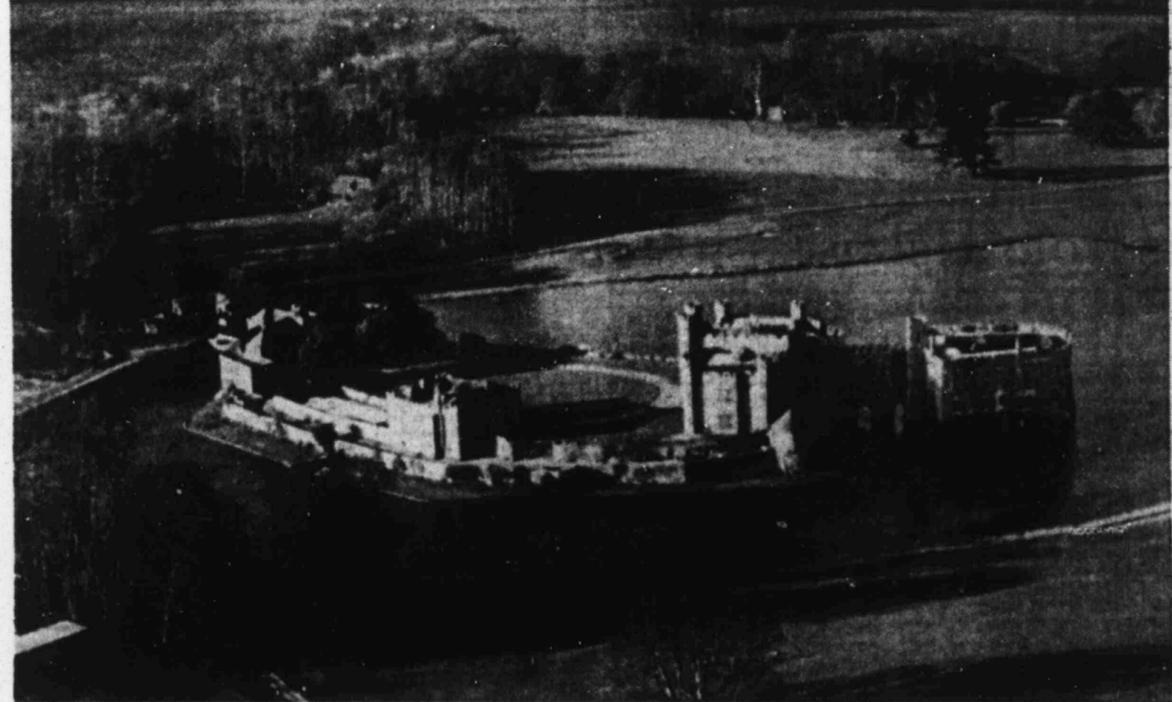

(Note: These calculations involve federal levies only; state and local income taxes can boost the loss.)

year-to-year basis, depending on the economy.

The Canadian plan is not without problems. As a result of the indexation policy in Canada, the maximum amount a taxpayer can earn and still be eligible for the lowest bracket has risen from $500 to $761. The 52.1 percent increase is equal

PROPOSED NEW SITE FOR MIDEAST TALKS — Preparations were underway Sunday to move this week's Mideast peace talks to Leeds Castle near Maidstone in Kent County, England, about 45 miles southeast of London. The move is being planned because of concern that Arab extremists might disrupt the drive for a settlement between Egypt and Israel if the talks are held at the original meeting site, a luxury hotel in central London. (AP Laserphoto)

English Castle New Site For Peace Talks

MAIDSTONE, England (AP) — Leeds Castle, its thick stone walls rising from a lake that forms a natural moat, is the answer to a security man's dream.

British police were already at work Sunday preparing the fortress, some 45 miles south of London, for this week's Mideast peace talks. Scheduled to attend are Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and the Israeli and Egyptian foreign ministers, Moshe Dayan and Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel.

U.S. and British officials said Saturday security considerations prompted the shift of the conference site from a luxury hotel in downtown London.

Leeds Castle is nowhere near Leeds, the industrial city in northern England, and a terrorist who failed to do his homework would find himself more than 200 miles off target.

The castle name is stretched from a Saxon chief named Led, who built a camp there in the 9th century, protected by the broad fields of Kent.

Norman Baron Robert de Crevecoeur built his castle at the same site four centuries later, with crenelated stone walls emerging from a 20-acre lake. The only access is a drawbridge.

An airfield is nearby and a helicopter can easily land on the lawns of the island compound. The conferees were to be shuttled by helicopter to the castle site when they arrive Monday, security sources said, and were to remain there throughout the talks Tuesday and Wednesday.

Governors Discuss Problems At Primarily Social Gathering

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The absence of eight governors from the Midwest Governor's Conference did not detract from either the business aspect of the three-day gathering or the social bonds built, conference officials said.

Those officials and governors' aides note the basic purpose of the conference was to discuss regional problems, examine solutions to those problems and build friendly relationships lasting far beyond last weekend.

While conference officials and aides praised the gathering as successful, reporters said the event was primarily social in nature.

Gary Auxier, deputy press secretary to host Gov. Julian Carroll, noted that "without the governor's conference, there'd really not be as much coordination and cooperation between the governors. They may never have had the chance to meet socially. It helps the governors to know each other."

The three-day conference was devoted to the discussion of regional problems, primarily those of rail transportation, agriculture, water, development and energy.

During the first two days of the conference, however, the number of governors present did not constitute a quorum and thus were unable to take definitive action. Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes arrived Friday, bringing the attending total to seven.

"It would be an error," said conference co-chairman Robert Babbage, "to say the conference was unsuccessful because only six of the governors were here. Whenever you get a couple of governors together, given the common problems of the states today, you're going to have a beneficial dialogue."

Auxier agreed with Babbage's assessment, noting Carroll "doesn't consider the quorum thing to be of any consequence because he doesn't think the resolutions are the prime thing. He's not at all disappointed with the turnout."

Babbage noted the resolutions passed by the governors were not the primary goal. "That's just a misconception of their role," he explained. "We have identified some areas that the governors are concerned about and wish to look at in the future."

"These particular governors get along well and have a particular kind of camaraderie and awareness of each other's challenges," he added. "I'd have to say they feel they've benefitted."

Babbage, who spent 18 months planning the conference, noted certain themes were of particular interest to the attending governors. "Basically, the themes of rural development and the economy, energy — regional problems have been fully addressed both informally and formally."

Among those issues was rail transportation and the storage of railroad cars, a regional problem that has struck Kentucky especially hard. "We're all saying rail, rail, rail," Babbage noted.

BUILDING COLLAPSES
PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The roof of Haiti's 29-year-old legislative hall fell in last week, dumping tons of concrete and twisted reinforcing rods onto the floor where the National Assembly meets. The hall was empty and no one was hurt in the collapse Thursday morning, about 12 hours after the assembly had adjourned a session. Sources said years of seepage had weakened the flat, 125-by-75-foot roof, and heavy rain early in the week may have been the immediate cause.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I never talk to a telephone answering machine that I don't suffer a major anxiety attack.

They're always so cutesy with their "Hi there, I'm Bunny and I'm really glad you called. At the sound of the beep, tell me where you're coming from."

They don't know they're talking to a woman who is so insecure that when someone asks me the time of day, I reset my watch to theirs. (When they have just told me their watch stopped.)

They do the whole number about where they are and how they'll return my call if I will just leave my name and number.

The beep sounds and the first thing the tape hears is the sound of me clearing my throat. (This has often been compared to a seal giving birth.) Aware of the limited time I have to leave my message I begin to stammer. "Why yes, my name is Erma Bombeck. That's E as in Everett, R, M as in Mary, A and Bombeck. That's B as in boy, O-M as in Mary, B as in boy again, e-c-k."

My mother said it was unnecessary of me to spell my name so thoroughly for her, but face it, I'm intimidated.

A few months ago, one of my children left me a scribbled message from a person I didn't know. I dialed the number and a recorder answered. Right away, I got mental picture of the deep, husky bedroom voice that answered. Skin tight white jeans, molded to 19-inch hips, a shirt open to the navel, tinted glasses, white capped teeth, and a chain around his neck that looked like it was straight from a bicycle.

"Hi, Honey," said the machine. "I told you you'd call. I'm out getting your favorite white wine. The key is in the usual place. At the sound of the tone, tell me what time you'll be here."

Wouldn't you have thought that I could have figured out that I had dialed a wrong machine! Like an idiot, I left my number. (Later, I would envision a girlfriend confronting me with jealous rage and a pearl-handled pistol and would marvel at my stupidity in leaving a track for her to follow.)

Frankly, I'm sick of carrying on conversations with inanimate objects. I expect any day now to dial long distance and have an answering machine that says, "Hello, I'm going to put you on hold for a minute."

That would just about make the human element perfect.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FRIENDS:

Have I got another goodie for you. Last night I was invited to dinner by an old friend, and I got to watch how Mr. Cox fixes his vegetables...I thought I was wacky, but this guy is something else!

The way he breaks up his frozen vegetables (this happened to be asparagus) is to drop the box on the floor a few times.

Yes, I said throw them on the floor. It breaks up the vegetables and they are all separated very nicely without having to tear at them or having the outside ones soggy and the inside still frozen.

You might inform your downstairs neighbor not to be alarmed if they should hear a thump, thud, around dinner time. — Hugs, Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

We have a beautiful home but the lawn is on slanted ground. This makes it very hard and difficult to mow with power mowers.

I have learned to wear my cleated golf shoes when mowing the hill now. It is surprising how one will not slip in these. Besides, it seems to aerate the ground a bit. In case my lawnmower should slip on the hill, it might have a good gash from the power blade. My neighbor lost a toe last year.

And do have a good day, my dear — Francoise McKenzie

DEAR HELOISE:

When I bake pies I like to make my husband's favorite cherry. But my son's favorite is apple. So to please them both, I build up the bottom crust across the middle, making a ridge.

Then I put a can of apples on one side of my crust and cherry filling on the other, and finish the pie as usual.

The fillings don't run together, and it is just enough pie for us. Now my husband and son are both happy with me. — Debbie L.

DEAR HELOISE:

For those of us without dishwashers, here's a tip:

As soon as you empty a pot or pan, put the lid back on! This keeps the inside of the pan moist. So if it sits for a while before being washed, food does not dry out and stick to the pan. This really saves on scrubbing. It sounds so simple, you would think everyone would do it, but they don't! — Mrs. Greg Myers

You're right — but if you fill that empty pot with water first, your pot wallowing will be even breezier and easier! Any hint is welcome that works for you. So share that simplest hint today. See you tomorrow — Heloise

SAFETY TIP

Never use a can of fruit or vegetables if one or both of its ends is swollen. This doesn't ordinarily happen, but it may — especially if the can has been forgotten and stored for an overlong time.

DEAR HELOISE:

I didn't have any unsweetened chocolate squares the other day and discovered a great substitute. I mixed three tablespoons cocoa and one tablespoon butter for each chocolate square called for in my recipe. — A Fan

We have had several requests for this. Try it folks. It really works! Those chocolate squares are rather expensive, and we don't always have them on hand. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

In preparation for a homecoming, I had several dishes of food to carry and was searching for tape to label them. My husband reached in the desk and came up with the little stickers with my name and address, used on envelopes.

I put one on the lids as well as the bowls, etc. I saved time in writing my name, and it was easy to spot my things later, even among so many. — Inez Corpew

Might be a good idea to put clear tape over the sticker. — Heloise

Dble. Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner can't have much—after all, he passed your one spade opening bid. However, you don't need much to make game, particularly since both of your red-suit kings seem to be well placed. You have more than you have shown by your opening bid and reopening double, so we suggest you make one more effort by raising to three spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K8 ♥K1076 ♦K3 ♣K9852
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♦ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Three possible actions come to mind: a jump to two no trump; a jump to three clubs; or a response of one heart. The first possibility protects your kings from immediate attack should no trump be the final contract. But you have a slightly unbalanced hand, so we prefer some other bid. Three clubs expresses the value of the hand, but risks losing the heart suit. Therefore, we prefer a simple response of one heart, holding back the club support for a later round.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ854 ♥A7 ♦AQ83 ♣Q5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Redouble. You certainly have more than a minimum opening bid, and you should advise partner of this fact. Even though he made a weak response at his first turn, he could have enough to extract a substantial penalty from the opponents. Game for your side is extremely doubtful since partner's response suggests shortness in spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K92 ♥K1098653 ♦A76
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—This is close. While your hand is basically heart oriented, you if you took the bit firmly between the teeth and jumped to four no trump, intending to bid a slam if partner showed a suitable number of aces. However, a probing bid of three spades is likely to yield more accurate information. If partner rebids three no trump, showing solid heart stoppers, we would pass.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A74 ♥6 ♦KQJ93 ♣KJ87
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♥
1 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Slam is a distinct possibility, and we would not fault you if you took the bit firmly between the teeth and jumped to four no trump, intending to bid a slam if partner showed a suitable number of aces. However, a probing bid of three spades is likely to yield more accurate information. If partner rebids three no trump, showing solid heart stoppers, we would pass.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠754 ♥K103 ♦AKJ84 ♣J7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—North's rebid at the three-level describes a very powerful hand—about 18 points. Since you have full values for your excellent support for partner's first bid suit, you should now give a jump preference to four hearts. Reverse the spade and heart holdings and a simple preference to three hearts would be adequate.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK8 ♥72 ♦AQ92 ♣A1076
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hearts were a bit stronger, you would have opened the bidding with one no trump. Now, you are faced with an awkward task—a rebid of one no trump is a drastic underbid, while two no trump is a considerable overbid. To extricate yourself from this dilemma, rebid two clubs. If partner passes, it is doubtful that you have missed game; if partner takes any action, you can rebid two no trump (or jump to three no trump if he reverses) to show your strength and distribution.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ932 ♥A107 ♦876 ♣Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Not only do you have a fine responding hand, but your queen of clubs is a very valuable filler for partner's suit. Your hand is worth a move toward slam and we suggest a cue-bid of five hearts, both to tell partner that you have the ace of that suit and to deny a first-round control of either minor suit.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: After reading that letter from the guy who signed himself Sitka Sentinel (he said 50 percent of the female bed partners in this world could be declared legally dead) I'd like to say a few words to Sitka.

I have read too many articles entitled, "How to Keep Your Man Interested in Sex," "How To Satisfy Your Husband," etc. I'm sick of corny suggestions like "change your hairdo," "take a bubble-bath," "buy a new nightgown," "invest in some fancy perfume," and "stay off subjects that irritate him." How about a few suggestions that really make sense? I am addressing myself to the men who feel they are getting short-changed between the sheets.

Take a bath. Use a little cologne. Brush your teeth. Lose some weight. (A stomach that sticks out like a bay window isn't much of a turn-on.) Say a kind word BEFORE you get into bed. It could work wonders. — Not Legally Dead, Just Fed-Up

Dear Fed: That thundering applause you hear is the reaction of millions of women who could be declared "legally dead." My comment: Amen, Sister.

Dear Ann Landers: I was pleased to read your answer to the young girl who felt obligated to marry the guy because he had told her, "If you don't marry me I will quit college and become a bum." You replied, "Don't let him blackmail you, honey. He could graduate from college and become a bum anyway."

Twenty-two years ago I was sent on a similar guilt trip. His words were stronger: "If you break up with me I will kill myself." Like a fool I married him. We now have two unstable children. I've been getting therapy which, had I had it earlier, might have saved me from this terrible marriage.

Every human being is responsible for himself. When someone says, "If I don't get what I want I'll jump in the lake or shoot myself," the answer should be "Sorry, I must live my life for ME. You can do whatever you want with yours."

Some people need to read it again. Please print my letter but not my name. — Paying A Big Price

Dear Paying: Here's your letter and my thanks to you for having written it. The lesson is well worth repeating.

Dear Ann: This letter is in regard to the woman who wrote concerning the safety of the modern school bus. First of all, if she is looking to Detroit for better buses, she's looking in the wrong direction. Detroit manufactures the engines and the chassis. The bodies are made by a separate coach company, which buys the frames from the manufacturer.

Since 1973, school buses no longer have those "treacherous bars" on the backs of the seats. The newer buses also have padding around the bars located directly behind the driver. Seat belts are out because they are impractical. A busload of 30 screaming kids would not use them.

The lady who wrote to you undoubtedly lives in a city where they are using pretty old buses. — Beverly Hills Fan

Dear Bev: Apparently there are a great many more old buses in use than new ones — and that's the problem. Many readers wrote to make the same points you made in your letter — and they are valid. Obviously, we need to replace the old equipment with new since it is unquestionably safer. Thanks for writing.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I live alone. The other morning I had a terrifying experience. I was having a cup of tea when it went down the wrong way. I have had this happen before, but this time I was barely able to get my breath back. Please explain what happens when liquid goes down the wrong way. Is there anything we can do to help ourselves? It's made me nervous about drinking liquids of any kind. — E.M.W.

This is not unusual in older persons. The liquid missed the gullet and got into your upper bronchial tubes. The liquid can be irritating, and coughing is nature's method of removing it, usually successful. It can be unnerving. You will have to drink liquids more carefully. If this continues to be a problem you should have X-rays of the gullet to determine any functional disorder there.

Your letter gives me an opportunity to deal with another problem involving choking, that of getting solid food stuck in the upper air passages. It can be a far more serious situation. With the traditional family reunion-picnic season here, it might be well to discuss a new and effective means of dealing with such situations.

The first aid procedure is called the "Heimlich method." You need someone to help administer this. The person administering it stands behind the choking victim, hands clasped as a double fist at about the belly button level (under the rib cage). A firm inward-upward thrust against the victim's body will usually force sufficient air up through the air passages to dislodge the food. But first determine whether or not the person actually is choking because of lodged food and not suffering from a heart attack. For example, ask the victim to nod or raise a hand if he has ingested food the "wrong way."

I have no doubt that this method has already saved many a picnic or other mealtime from turning into a tragedy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A while back there was some talk about artificial devices that could be implanted so a man might be able to have an erection. I kept up on this, but haven't seen much on it lately. Is it being done? How successful is it? Where can one have it done? — H.S.

Much research continues into this, but a recent report indicates it is coming of age, so to speak, as a surgical procedure. The device resembles a Rube Goldberg contraption, consisting of soft plastic rods or sacs operated on a hydraulic principle. The procedure is called the "flexible rod penile implant." It includes a manually-activated bulb pump for inflation when desired. Studies indicate a success rate of about 60 percent. Careful selection of candidates is important, since much so-called impotence is psychological. A local urologist can tell you where the procedure is done in your area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a teenager, approximately five pounds overweight. I started on a high protein diet that I read about, but my mother says I should not go on any diet because I am still growing. So she says I should just exercise. Is this right? — D.T.

I'll tell you just what I tell other youngsters who write me (frequently) on this subject. Five pounds over what weight-height charts say you ought to be should not disturb you. That's hardly what you'd call even "plump." You don't have to diet to lose five pounds. It's like using an elephant gun to hunt mosquitoes. Mother is correct. Needless dieting is unhealthy for anyone, and especially for teenagers, whose bodies need all the nutrients available to them.

Take up bowling or tennis. You will soon lose your five pounds. And if you look OK in a bathing suit, what are you concerned about? Try smaller portions of food, especially the starches, and cut down on your snacks — chips, ice cream, chocolates, etc.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read with great interest your response to the 16-year-old girl concerned about recessed nipples. I am a 41-year-old woman with the same problem. It is a source of extreme embarrassment. But no medical problem. Anything to do about it at my age? — E.W.

There is surgery to correct this if it causes great mental distress.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Quiet, Dignified Home Depicts Owner's Life

Perhaps nothing says so much about a man as his home. "Unpretentious ... dignified" were the words Edith Bolling Galt Wilson used to describe the house she lived in at 2340 S. Street, N.W., in Washington, D.C. She could have used the same words to describe her husband, Thomas Woodrow Wilson, 28th President of the United States.

It was to that house that Wilson retired when he left the White House on Inauguration Day in 1921. There, for the remaining three years of his life, Wilson led the intensely private life of a scholar and gentleman. Today the house is preserved as a museum open to the public.

The world remembers him as the man who tried to bring nations together, who fought at the cost of his own health for a League of Nations that would insure a permanent, just world peace. It remembers him, too, for the outstanding legislation passed during his presidency that even now brings stability to the nation's banking system and a measure of protection to the consumer.

Yet for all of his achievements, Wilson was as much a scholar as a politician, and his Washington house is strong evidence of his essentially quiet and stately nature. The rooms are large and comfortable, made grand not by a priceless collection of rare antiques but by the personal mementoes that Wilson collected during his lifetime. He was a baseball fanatic, and a small table in the library is set with cards he used while playing his favorite baseball card game.

When they heard that he was a semi-invalid who could only walk with a cane, Americans from coast to coast sent him canes, some primitively carved pieces of folk art, others family heirlooms. Many of the canes are still in the house.

On every table and every mantel are photographs, clocks, statues and other gifts sent to him by an adoring public and by world leaders. Nothing much has been changed at Woodrow Wilson's house since the time he died, thanks to the efforts of his widow, who carefully preserved the President's possessions and in 1961 gave them, along with the house, to the American people under the stewardship of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

During his last months in the White House, Wilson had thought to build a house of his own design, but he could not afford it. His great friend, financier Bernard Baruch, and others provided enough money for the Wilsons to buy the town house a few blocks from Washington's Embassy Row. The red brick Georgian-style house had been designed in 1915 by well-known Washington architect Waddy B. Wood. When they moved in, the ex-President presented his wife with the house key and a piece of sod from their garden, an old Scotch custom.

His extensive international travels in support of a League of Nations following World War I had left Wilson partially paralyzed. He used an elevator to travel between floors.

Much of his time he spent in his gracious reading library, lined from floor to ceiling with books he had used when he was a college professor and president of Princeton University. There Mrs. Wilson read aloud to him and he received visitors and looked through illustrated magazines. He only left the house occasionally to take drives in Rock Creek Park and to attend performances at Washington's theaters.

His favorite worn leather chair is pulled up facing the fireplace. Once a year he would go to the window to wave to the crowds gathered outside, loyal followers who came to salute him on Armistice Day. The crowds gathered for the last time in a three-day prayer vigil upon his death on Feb. 3, 1924.

Sometimes, when the sunlight radiates through the sweeping fan-like windows of the upstairs solarium onto the green plants and ferns, and the Victrola in the hall plays the scratchy sounds of Enrico Caruso singing "Over There," it is not hard to imagine that Woodrow Wilson was happier during his last years here than during any of his earlier years as educator, national leader and world statesman.

Oswald: "The man who's worth his while at the bridge table counts his winners and losers and sees that he doesn't need any successful finesses to make his contract. SLATED FOR NOVEMBER OPENING, AT 10TH AND AVENUE Q

Downtown Facility Among Expansion Announcements From Southern Sea

In its purposely-planned program of ever-expanding service to the eating public, Southern Sea might well recount several significant milestones:

(1) It was in 1974 that owners Robert and Priscilla Sims entered the Lubbock food service and preparation picture, pledging and following through in "finest food, prices to live with, and a service that reflects genuine appreciation of the customer."

(2) Southern Sea was established in mid-1976 at its already well-known South Loop 289-Indiana Avenue facility, where everything was new and planned with customer consideration foremost.

(3) Carry-out service was provided, together with fine in-restaurant service.

(4) Catering by Southern Sea was announced earlier this year and has met with instantaneous and favorable response from groups involved in business meetings, family get-togethers, banquets, club meetings, farm co-op groups, backyard suppers, church socials, etc.

(5) An added Southern Sea was opened this year in Amarillo, and plans are now in progress for a Southern Sea in San Angelo.

And now comes the really big news:

(6) Ground has been broken for construction of the largest Southern Sea facility of all . . . at the downtown Avenue Q and 10th site outstanding in its convenient location . . . for downtown Lubbock, for the north and west and east city region friends of times past (as well as new customers) and for through-traffic on Avenue Q.

Yes, Bob and Priscilla are understandably enthused (together with folks who have learned of the plans) about the new facility involving more than 5,000 square feet, with seating for 220, with carry-out service and all services of the other Southern Sea facilities that will continue their operation. Located on a full block tract east of Avenue Q and near the Civic Center, the new and added Southern Sea has an opening target date of November.

"A complete but fast-service lunch will be one of our prime considerations at the downtown Southern Sea," Sims emphasizes. "We have seen the demand for such and hope that by our experience and our concept of service we can perform the vital service in this field. We will personally supervise the operation, with Priscilla or myself on the job at the downtown facility and the familiar South Indiana Southern Sea."

"Thank you for letting us share our future plans with you at this time . . . and we look forward to new experiences in good eating! Watch our progress at 10th and Q!"

Abernathy Floral Designed, Operated For Comprehensive Area-Wide Service

"We would say that folks in Abernathy, Lubbock and the surrounding region are most fortunate in having access to such a business as Abernathy Floral, 1312 Ave. D in Abernathy."

After all, it is a regional and a comprehensive service that is rendered by this long-established (about 30 years) Abernathy business.

The outside of the facility may not be eye-catching, but here is a very good example of the maxim "don't judge a book by its cover!"

Inside is the prettiest and most, most attractive arrangement of flowers, gifts, etc., provided by Jan Hill, former teacher for eight years in the Abernathy schools, who is ably assisted in the operation by former owner Dorothy Stephens.

Servicing Area
"The multiple services and products of Abernathy Floral are so many that description would be impossible, but it is hoped that the following concise and random facts will convey just what this area business can do for you, whether a resident of Lubbock, Abernathy, New Deal or elsewhere in the near region."
Personalized and qualified service is assured. Jan has provided and arranged the floral needs for an 800-women convention in South Park Inn, for example.

Serving Lubbock and surrounding area with cut flowers, green plants, hanging baskets, wedding service and more, only a $1 delivery fee is charged within the area!

Abernathy Floral, phone 298-2334, is a member of FTD (Floral Trans-world Delivery).

It is a complete floral and gift shop. Wedding service includes the flower-wedding line from Regency (invitation, thank you notes, birth, social and party announcements, etc.); and rental of crystal cups and plates for receptions and showers, silver service, table cloths and even tables.

China, Pottery
Then, in the sales line, there is Noritake china, casual dishes and stemware, together with such other respected names as Vernonware, Poppy Trail, Fitz & Floyd, Villeroy & Boch, and Imperial.

And Oneida, International and Gorham stainless steel and sterling.

What a gift selection, too! There are the Village Bath products, for example:

and the Dirty Kids Headquarters where bubblebath and non-abrasive soaps, finger paints and all are stocked.

There is the Kelvin collector and birthday doll collection, too, for ages 1 to 16.

Ceramic figurines, also; and music boxes, jewelry boxes, mirrors and wall hangings, a line of baby gift items, silver cups and spoons by Oneida, bibs, infants seat covers, diaper bags, pillows, etc.)

Root candles (with the scent melted right into the candle); Windsor wooden flowers so right for arrangements with driftwood; brass and crystal, silver tray, and more and more!

Art Supplies
Such as art supplies including the Grumbacher paints and canvas; and Robert Simmons brushes.

What a selection . . . what a shop! And it is open until noon Saturdays.

Delivery is enabled throughout the area, remember; just call 806-298-2334; but in the meantime, why not pay a visit personally to the pretty and well-stocked shop, meet or renew acquaintance with owner Jan Hill and designer Dorothy Stephens, and discover just how very much Abernathy Floral can do for you!

MORE THAN JUST A FLORAL SHOP — Owner Jan Hill of Abernathy Floral is seen here in a part of the attractive area shop; correctly hinting of a gift stock and wedding services among the firm's specialties. Region-wide delivery is featured.

'AFTER THE FIRE COMES THE SALE, WITH CUSTOMERS PROFITING'

Lubbock Floor Covering Holds
Fire Sale Before Re-Stocking

"Mister Carpet's loss is your gain!"
"That's right; we've had a fire at Lubbock Floor Covering Co., Inc., 19th Street at Avenue V, and the big Fire Sale is now underway."
"Our complete inventory is being sold for the salvage company," Bob Hendon of Lubbock Floor Covering reports, "and we want to move it fast so that we can restock... with everything new."

Early Shopping Advised
"Fantastic buys on good merchandise can be made during this sale... so come early for best selection."
Whatever the carpet or decorating need, Lubbock Floor Covering is worthy of prime consideration; and there always are carpet values, Fire Sale or not! (Check regarding services including financing advantages, design consultation, decor planning, custom drapes, tile, counter tops, installation of hardwood floors, window treatment, etc.)

Rhea's Crafts Arranges Storewide Discount Marking 6th Anniversary

It is that time again... the annually-anticipated Anniversary Sale at Rhea's Crafts in Lubbock.
And this year, for its 6th Anniversary occasion, Rhea's has gone all out to provide values in absolutely every item in the most auspicious stock.

Everything in the big store is marked at 10 per cent off during the sale that commences today... at Rhea's Crafts, 2831 34th St.
This includes "everything," remember... plaster, decoupage prints, cut wood, beads and all!

But don't delay, if interested in craft, hobby and gift items; it can be a real saving and afford one the desired projects for fall and even for Christmas planning.
Free Instruction

Also...
There still are some openings in the children's classes in "Painting on Plaster," presented free of tuition charge by Rhea's.

Classes are divided into the 10-12 age group and the 12-16 age span. Students paint on plaster with their choice of pastel chalk, acrylic paints or with the new sponge painting technique.

The only expense is for supplies available at Rhea's.
Exceptional Store
Rhea's Crafts, long and favorably known for its craft supplies and ideas for the creative person, has other situations of interest:

Fresh, new stock augments the already-huge selection.
Rhea's makes each craft project fun (satisfying and economical, too!)
Always-ready assistance is a big factor in the services rendered at Rhea's Crafts, with individual instruction absolutely free when one purchases there.

The long-standing rule is that anyone buying supplies there is welcomed and even encouraged to come in, sit at the big work-table and even use the big spray paint room, completing the selected project without any further charge!

Personal Assistance
Rhea Abbott is on hand to "show you" just how the project is done.
What an opportunity always for uninterrupted pursuit of a craft project, with free instruction!

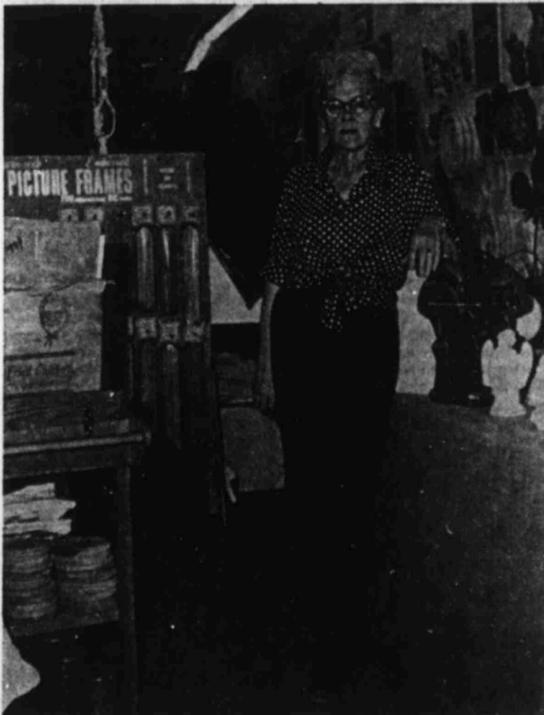

Everything for decoupage, including one of the largest selection in the area of beautiful prints, is stocked.
Rhea's has a full selection of pastel chalks, some may not yet realize.

Macrame Supplies
Of course, there are macrame supplies for every need.
And Mirro-Magic, too. With this process, one can open "windows" in mirrors to display and frame cherished prints, photographs, decorative paintings or those special mementos.

With this technique, mirrors become frames to reflect and protect fine prints, heirloom photos or decorative painting.

All materials are available at Rhea's. Check also regarding the multiple ways to finish plaster, including antiquing, bronzing, marbelizing, acrylics and pastel chalk.
Rhea's not only has ideas by the scores, but stocks all necessary supplies in kit or individual piece form.

Spray paints and base coats are included in the wide stock.
Glass beads, bangles, etc. are provided.
Get the idea: Rhea's knows the needs of the hobbyist, and stocks — and serves — accordingly.

CANNING TIME — Meinecke Bros. is ready to assist the home canner, with extensive and modern supplies as indicated here by Mrs. Mary Alderson and Steve Meinecke.

Meinecke Bros. Meets Demand, Stocking Canning Necessities

"It's canning time, for sure! (It also is air conditioning time and lawn care time.)
 For the right supplies for each, Meinecke Bros., 1633 Broadway, is heartily recommended as it maintains a full stock of the quality lines traditional at the big Lubbock store founded 53 years ago by the late A. S. Meinecke.
 In the same Lubbock location since 1938, Meinecke Bros. is owned and operated by Steve and Charles Meinecke who take pride in carrying on the traditions of the firm.
Canning Needs
 For the home canner, one can turn to Meinecke Bros. for the famous Mirromatic pressure canners in 4, 8, 12, 16 and 22 qt. sizes; the 16-pt. Presto pressure cooker (with parts for each); blanchers, food presses, corn cutters, rotary food mills, and more.

Jars, Lids
 There are Ball quart and pint jars, together with lids and rings.
 And pea shellers by Lady Jo.
 Also Seal-a-Meal bags, plastic freezer containers, West Bend sealers, freezer bags, jar lifters, funnels, vegetable slicers, canning books, preserving kettles, a great selection of cookware, etc., all the fine quality and all at fair price.
Cool Pads
 All kinds of "summer stuff" is stocked in the big store; including the quality Essick line of evaporative air conditioners and Cool Pads cut to size. These are actually revolutionary, of uniform thickness, long lasting, with no misty odors, and they will not shed, protecting the pump and drain from cloggings. They also are treated to inhibit fungi deterioration.

 Select, too, from White Mountain ice cream freezers, and other items great for the vacationer, for picnic time, or pleasant evenings in the back yard.
 There are lots of power and hand yard tools, including mowers, edgers and all.
 "To name the many items in the huge stock would be impractical and even impossible, so why not simply come to Meinecke Bros. for the assurance that value and selection is the rule there, with sensible pricing always."

Multiple Services 'For Just About Everyone' Provided At Galaxy Pawn

"Maybe you, too, will find it advantageous to visit Galaxy Pawn, at 1621 19th St. in Lubbock. After all, an amazing cross-section of area social strata and income levels passes through its doors week after week."
 (Not only does Galaxy make loans, but merchandise of value is purchased, among the several services there.)
 Meet Dean "Pappa Daddy" Kirkpatrick who runs Galaxy Pawn, at 1621 19th St., phone 763-3001, in Lubbock. He is one of a group considering themselves a "new breed" of pawnbrokers who are making drastic changes in the ancient trade.
 Now, a lot of people, in likely every walk of life, turn to pawnbroker-businessmen such as Kirkpatrick, not only for short-term loan on possessions of every type and price range, but even just to establish credit.
 Kirkpatrick, more familiar as Pappa Daddy, is a businessman, and as manager of the Galaxy Pawn performs accordingly.
 His tenure in the business community includes a stint of two decades as general manager of the regionally-based Shugart Studios, as manager for some time of Gibson Discount Centers in Littlefield and Andrews, and other years as owner of his own studio, and even five years spent with a carnival.
 "Kirkpatrick didn't have to be a pawnbroker; there were plenty of other things he could have done. But he likes his work, reporting that he finds it both interesting and lucrative, and believes it provides a genuine service to the public.
 Galaxy Pawn was opened in July of last year. Handling everything from valve grinders to clothing, and in between, Galaxy Pawn is open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., six days a week.
 "We absolutely loan on anything of value, or buy anything of value," Pappa Daddy emphasizes.
 "Running a shop like this gives you opportunity to do a little of everything; I make loans to people who can't get the quick cash they need from a bank or other institution, even some are surprisingly well-to-do. I deal with folks in every walk of life. I like selling things, and I like meeting people."

Not only has the image of the pawnbroker changed in recent years because of "self-policing" but also with the help of state laws, Kirkpatrick explains.
 One example of these laws is the stipulation that if a pawnbroker accepts stolen goods for pawn, the goods may be confiscated by authorities and returned to the rightful owner without compensation to the pawnbroker. So, not only does this make it risky to run a fencing operation out of a pawnshop, but it tends to add cooperation between pawnbrokers and police, Pappa Daddy explains.
 "A lot of folks still think the first thing a thief does when he steals is to head for a pawnshop," he adds, "but in fact I understand that only one out of every 200 items reported stolen in Dallas ever turned up in a pawnshop!"

 Some readers may not realize that the terms and interest rates on pawnshop loans are clearly specified by state law.
 "You'd be surprised at the number of substantial residents and businessmen who use our pawnshop regularly to raise cash," Kirkpatrick says.
 Of pawned items, diamonds, guns and machine tools are especially good sellers, locally as elsewhere. Galaxy Pawn has all this, plus antiques and just about anything, it would seem.

PAWNBROKER AND 'MISS GALAXY' — "Pappa Daddy" Kirkpatrick of Galaxy Pawn takes a boa constrictor from its cage there to emphasize his point that "snakes sometimes shed their skin here, but a customer is never skinned at our 19th Street shop."

FOR DELIGHTFUL SHOPPING — Janiece Proctor, department head, and staffmember Jane Green call attention to the fresh new-season apparel and gift items stocked for little folk at Latham's. Select for infants, girls and boys.

Latham's Considers Young Set, Infants In Popular Department

"For infants wear, for boys and girls apparel, too... there is no way to imagine a greater fashion-value combo than that at Latham's!"
 Never has there been better selection there than the present offering for late summer, fall and winter... with all the togs so very pretty, and practical, and affordable.
 Select from infants sizes to 24 months; girls in toddler sizes, size 3 to 6, 7 through 14 and even pre-teens.
 Not only is there a choice clothing selection in this department, but there are scads of appropriate gifts for showers and for the young folks in your life. There are cuddly stuffed toys, nursery decor items, and more.
 "We just cannot imagine any mother or grandmother failing to enjoy and appreciate the type department afforded at Latham's for the infants and young folk. With the change of seasons, everything is especially new and bright, making for even more fun in shopping at the big, friendly Latham's, 5th Street at Memphis Avenue in Lubbock."

Pivot Point Training, Other Aids Mark Cinderella School

"At the Cinderella Beauty School in Lubbock you may start any day, with classes beginning each morning at 8:30, continuing until 5 p.m., six days a week, Monday through Saturday."
 Cinderella Beauty School, at 5401 Aberdeen, phones 792-4439 or 792-4430, is the only "Approved Redken School" in Lubbock, reports owner Mrs. Winnie Vaughn who also states that the Aura books are available to the professional hairdresser at the school.
 "We carry Redken retail items, and included in our curriculum are sculpture nails, custom nails and Audutte natural nails (also plain and oil manicures). Facials, lash and brow dye and style, pedicures, electrical scalp treatments, as well as Redken hair treatments, too."
 Special courses are offered at the Cinderella including Shampoo Specialist, Manicurist, Facial and Wig Specialist, etc.
 "Our students are in great demand by leading salons," Mrs. Vaughn emphasizes.
Beauty Services
 "Come in or call for an appointment with one of our students. We will make you feel welcome and happy that you came in, and we know you will be happy with our students' work that is under careful supervision by very capable instructors who are well trained and who have many years experience."
 "So call or come in and see our carefully planned school. We are located two blocks north of the South Plains Mall and one block west off Slide Road."

A Pivot Point School
 "Cinderella Beauty School invites you to have a beautiful future... the Pivot Point way."
 "Learn faster and perform better in the shortest possible time! Our approved Pivot Point school teaches the Pivot Point International scientific approach to hair design program... the world's most comprehensive educational system."
 Pivot Point students receive exclusive advantages, and as members of the International Hair Designers Club receive the Pivot Point Student Package, a complete learning library of book courses, with photos describing each step to perform all facets of hair designing and their cutting.
 The book course includes the Scientific Approach to Hair Design book, Five Popular Hair Cuts book, Fourteen Classic Hair Styles book, and Charisma I techniques book, plus Aura, the "ultimate hair design course." Also you will be taught the Complete Cosmetology program by your teachers at Cinderella, with the incomparable Pivot Point audio and visual aids.
 "As post-graduate benefits, only Pivot Point graduates receive a certificate good for two tuition-free, stimulating Advance Hair Designing Classes, worth hundreds of dollars. The training can be taken at your convenience, up to two years after graduation."
 "So enroll now, come in and talk to our registrar who will be happy to answer your questions and help you start on a lifetime career of beauty!"

Good Products, Skilled Staff Contribute In Rainbo Success

Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock does not serve and excel by mere happenstance!
 A good product line and service to match is made possible by a knowledgeable staff devoted to the job at hand... and with the customer considered first and always!
 Harry Hoopes, manager of the Lubbock firm, is well aware of the several factors that contribute to a successful and smooth-running organization, and he is known for the pride he takes in the people who make up the staff. More than a few staffmembers' and customers alike have voiced their appreciation of Hoopes and the Rainbo family members.
 In conjunction with this recognition, Hoopes periodically introduces and salutes staffmembers on these pages of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.
 Coming in for salute this are Chester Harris, Rick Martin and Bob Rowten.
Chester Harris
 Meet them, one by one:
 Chester Harris, public relations and marketing, has spent most of his life in Lubbock, actually having been associated with real estate, auto sales, etc., and most recently with 18 years bakery experience.

 "I consider my present association... with Rainbo and the baking industry... as the most satisfying years of my career," Harris volunteers.
 Harris and his wife, Peggy, have two children, a daughter, Mrs. Judy Yaksick of Dallas, and a son, Jim Harris, vice president of an insurance company in Houston. Both Jim and Judy are graduates of Monterey High School and attended Texas Tech.
 Mr. and Mrs. Harris are members of the Calvary Baptist Church, and he is a member of the Lubbock Lions Club, Sales Executive Club and Downtown Bible Class.
Rick Martin
 Rick Martin, director of sales, has been with the company since 1967, starting his bakery-related career in Cedar Ridge, Iowa, then in Tucson, Ariz., and for the past year with Rainbo in Lubbock. His progress through the ranks included tenures as sales service, sale manager and sales supervision.
 Members of the First Baptist Church in Lubbock, Rick and his wife, Connie, have three children: daughters Shawn, 15, and Maribeth, 12; and son, Mike, 13.

 "Lubbock is an exceptionally good community in which to rear a family, we feel," Martin states, "and add to this the many advantages of working with Rainbo and you see why we are happy here."
Bob Rowten
 Bob Rowten is recently-named city sales manager for the Lubbock firm.
 Marking six years with the company, he commenced his career in Harlingen (Tex.) as a salesman, coming to Lubbock 1 1/2 years ago. He has served as salesman, junior supervisor, supervisor and sales manager.
 Rowten and his wife, Charlie Ann, have two children, Laura Gemeiss, age 1 1/2, and Christopher, 5.
 "We really like Lubbock and we appreciate the type firm and the type management that is Rainbo... we are 'sold' on every aspect of its operation including product, business concepts, management and community participation."
 "Don't you think all this speaks well of your friend, the Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock?"

Frame Selection, Specials, Class Scheduling Impressive At Mrs. B's

Three announcements at Mrs. B's Arts, Crafts & Gifts merit special and immediate attention:

(1) July Specials are now in effect!

(2) An extensive selection of beautiful picture frames has been stocked and made available at unbelievably low prices as outlined below. and

(3) A very impressive class and workshop schedule has been arranged, with popular and talented instructors heading each course.

Mrs. B's, at 5105 29th Drive, phone 797-5850, has searched extensively for a source of frames enabling this Lubbock shop to pass them on at low price without sacrifice of quality.

"Now, these frames have been secured, with the largest selection yet presented by the firm.

Check, Compare Prices
As a way of introduction, these frames for a limited time will be discounted 25 per cent from their already-low prices. Examples include some in size 24 x 24, regular $16, now $12; size 18 x 24, regular $13.75, now $10.31; and 16 x 20, now just $9.75.

There are other frames in a wide price range but all are distinct values.

"So... why seek out of town or wait for travelling merchants when good frames are available locally, at Mrs. B's, at such money-saving prices?"

Stretched canvas also is made available at low price, with some 16 x 20 as low as $2.75, as example.

July Specials have been arranged on many other items in the intriguing stock at Mrs. B's.

Fun Classes Ahead
Among instructors slated for workshops and classes timed just right for fall enjoyment and Christmas preparation are Charl Egeland and Sarah Storrs, Pee Wee Lanier, Jo Daugherty, Jeannie Lewis, Char Edwards and Sally Carter.

One may learn in the fields of toile painting, oils and acrylic in canvas painting of portraits, animals, landscapes, flowers, even gold leaf creations.

"For schedule and details of a course of your preference, inquire now at Mrs. B's... and take advantage of July Specials while in the shop. May we have the pleasure of an early visit?"

Insulating Windows Firm Open Featuring Specialized Service

For those who have depended upon Jim Haynes for Arcadia Stone, there is further good news:

Not only does Haynes still provide the products and services at 1922 Ave. E in Lubbock, but he has opened an added facility, the Insulating Windows, Inc., at 1616 Ave. F, where aluminum replacement windows, storm windows and storm doors are custom made!

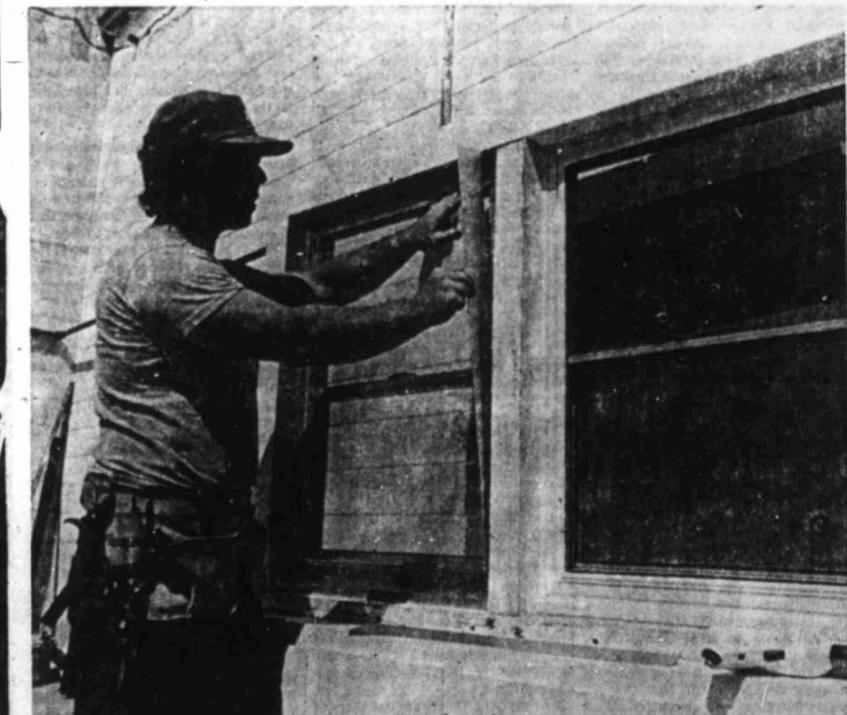

"For cleaner and more comfortable living", Haynes and his experienced crew can perform quite a service.

Imagine, for example, rubber seals on the custom-made windows, with this self sealing innovation making caulking unnecessary.

These products and services by Haynes are made possible upon his purchase in June of the window department of House Clinic.

Haynes not only has the background and knowledge for superior window and door manufacture and installation, but he has constructed beautiful homes throughout the area, together with construction of fireplaces and other units with use of Arcadia Stone.

Visits Invited
"The invitation is extended to visit Haynes and his staff at the added and new 1616 Ave. F home of Insulating Windows, Inc. They can open a whole new world in your enjoyment of your home every day of the year... with the finest in storm windows and doors, with insulating windows enhancing the beauty, comfort and hospitality of the home."

PRODUCT AND INSTALLATION TO SATISFY — Raymond Blair, foreman at Insulating Windows, Inc., completes an installation in an area residence. Note the accompanying story for specific benefits enabled by the firm.

VALUES IN HOUSE PLANTS, POTTERY — Shown is Tody Davidson, owner with husband George Davidson of The Greenhouse in South Plains Mall. Tody emphasizes that selection, pricing and availability are considered always in the shop's operation.

Weekend Sidewalk Sale Spells Special Values At Greenhouse

For a real treat any day, for exceptional selection and always-sensible pricing it is The Greenhouse, specializing exclusively in house plants, in South Plains Mall.

But this week is of special significance there, with a big Sidewalk Sale scheduled Friday and Saturday, July 21-22.

Many, many items are specially priced for this event, with real bargains available on the merchandise displayed both in and out of the so-attractive shop for these two days.

There is a very good selection of 10-inch hanging baskets at this time, it is observed, with one sure to be "just what you have been wanting" for room or patio, home or business.

A "very good pottery selection is stocked, with more arriving. For really decorative pottery, depend on The Greenhouse.

The Greenhouse stocks a fresh, healthy, wide array of house plants including many native to the area, and others from South Texas, California and Florida.

"We sincerely believe that we offer the best selection of house plants in the area" is the word from George and Tody Davidson, husband-wife owner-operator team.

The Davidsons have been at The Greenhouse since its opening back when the Mall opened, and since January of this year they have been sole owners. A very able staff assists, including Susie Rumpy and recent Monterey grads Terry Davidson and Lyle Cox.

Not only is the selection outstanding at The Greenhouse (located just west of Chick-fil-A in the west wing of South Plains Mall, but pricing is most competitive. One may select from a range extending from cacti and succulents in 3-inch pots to the big and beautiful dracena marginata . . . and everything in between!

The quality and selection is evident even from a casual view at the store's entry way. Note the gorgeous tropicals, the fantastic array of house plants of all types, and the accessories and decor pieces.

Beautiful, functional macrame hangers are stocked. And ceramic pots.

There are grow lights, brackets, chains, choices in baskets and more. "Plant food and everything for plants . . . we have it at The Greenhouse."

Visa and Master Charge purchases are welcomed, and The Greenhouse stays open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m., six days a week.

Plants are potted for customers at a nominal fee.

"As one of the highlights of your next South Plains Mall visit, browse and select at The Greenhouse as residents throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico have done. The word gets around when quality and selection, plus friendliness and convenient location, dominate: we at The Greenhouse appreciate the kind expressions and the growing patronage that has enabled our current stock and services."

"May we serve you, too, whether for gifting, for selection for your own home decor or for special occasions.

It all is at The Greenhouse, South Plains Mall (with the shop about midway between the fountain and Sears), phone 792-5587.

Stork Shop Tells Drastic Markdowns Highlighting 'July Clearance' Event

Imagine . . . everything in its spring and summer apparel stock marked at 25% to 75% discount!

This is the situation during July Clearance underway at The Stork Shop, 3416

34th St. (in Indiana Gardens). Yes, everything in spring and summer wear is now marked down at up to 75% to make room for the fall-winter items already being placed on the racks.

For everything in maternity wear, in Lubbock it is The Stork Shop, and July Clearance time provides ideal opportunity at unbelievable savings.

Under ownership and active management since February of longtime Lubbock resident Mrs. Doyle (Ida) Langford, the Stork Shop actually dates its record of service back some 30 years!

Since its establishment, it has been located in the same Indiana Gardens location, and under the ownership of Ida Langford it now has been remodeled most beautifully.

Actually, one visiting there this week will discover that beautiful new carpeting has been installed, with other modernization involving painting and rearrangement.

Everything at The Stork Shop says "welcome."

Stocked is everything in maternity needs (with exception of shoes).

Select from new items — from swim suits to hose!

New summer wear dominates, with selection enabled from coordinates, really "dressed" dresses, casuals, slack suits, lingerie.

Even denim jeans and a gorgeous array of sleepwear.

Ida Langford is on hand to render personal service to old friends and new customers alike at the so-pretty store, assisted by Rebecca McKinley.

Hours are 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and both Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed.

Doyle Langford has been in the dry-cleaning business in Lubbock some 30 years, and Ida, consequently, is no stranger to the public's preferences and needs in apparel.

"I really enjoy providing this kind of shop, serving both Lubbock and regional residents with as complete a selection as I can in maternity wear," owner Ida Langford reports.

It would seem that Indiana Gardens, Lubbock and region, and all in need of maternity wear are indeed fortunate in having the kind of shop and the type of personnel as is The Stork Shop, 3416 34th St., phone 799-5618.

EMPHASIZES SALE SAVINGS — Ida Langford, owner of the Stork Shop in Indiana Gardens, tells of July values in maternity wear.

CLEARANCE UNDERWAY — Billie Thigpen and La Nelda Gordon direct attention to "Clearance Time" in the Ladies Wear and Children's Wear departments at Woolco. The invitation is extended to shop our Sportswear department for tremendous savings in swimwear, shorts and tops ideal for our 90-degree weather. Boys ages 2-7 and girls, 2-14, can be completely outfitted in cool summer playwear at Woolco clearance prices; and there are sun dresses, pant suits, and dresses in a size range of 7-18 and 16 1/2-24 1/2, all at clearance prices and all displayed in a pretty carpeted area of the friendly store.

Woolco Furniture, Floor Cover Departments Heavily Stocked

"Everybody enjoys a beautiful home. Right?"
 To add the desired beauty treatments to the home, economically and in good taste, come to Woolco and take a look at the fantastic Furniture and Floor Covering departments.
 Browsing, comparison and selection is heartily encouraged.
 In the Furniture Department there is a large assortment of living room groups including two-piece, three-piece and eight-piece sets in many colors and styles.
 Also note the really impressive selection of recliners and swivel rockers, also in choice of colors and styles.
 There are cane or Bentwood rockers, music centers, entertainment centers, bar or room dividers, bar stools, gun cabinets, end tables with coffee tables, unfinished furniture, parson tables, five-shelf hutches, three and five-shelf bookcases, and more!
 Woolco also has catalogs for one to scan and from which to order.
 In the Floor Covering department there are area rugs that likely are just what you have been searching for; and bathroom carpet, indoor-outdoor carpet, room-size carpets in 9 x 12 or 12 x 15 or 8 1/2 x 11 1/2 sizes.
 Also five-piece bath sets, lid covers, contour rugs, tank sets, vinyl carpet runner, 5 x 6 bath carpet and vinyl rugs.
 The department also provides carpet samples from which one can order.
 "So come on down to Woolco and see one of our friendly salespersons including David Sanchez, department manager; Patty Gilbride or Raul Perez. It is quite possible you did not realize the extensive selection in these departments at Woolco; add to this the recognition of low Woolco prices and the knowledgeable and friendly help of each salesperson, and you have very good reason to rely upon Woolco and especially the departments featured in this report."
 "After all... Woolco wants to be your favorite store!"

"WANTING TO SAVE FOR YOU" — Raul Perez is among the Woolco staffmembers knowledgeable in home furnishings and anxious to point out the specific savings in the firm's furniture and floor covering selections.

'I know why I smoke.'

"There's only one reason I ever smoked. Good taste.

"So when I switched to low tar, I wasn't about to give that up. If you don't smoke for taste what else is there?"

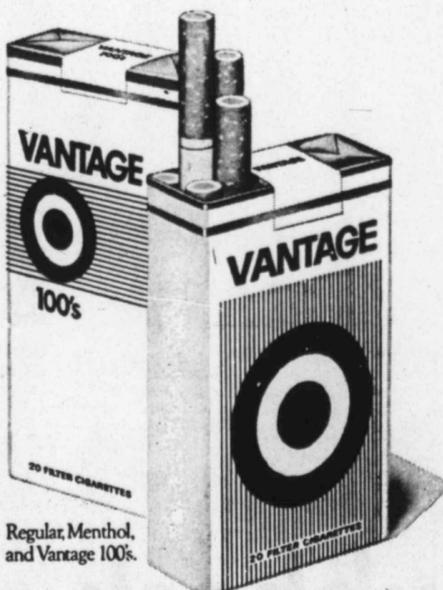

"But there was all that talk about tar.

"Unfortunately, most low tar cigarettes tasted like nothing. Then I tried Vantage.

"Vantage gives me the taste I enjoy. And the low tar I've been looking for."

YOU CAN'T PULL THAT OLD TRICK ON ME—If San Diego's Roger Perkins is aware there's a masked man behind him, he doesn't show it. It's only Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, leading off first base while wearing a mask. Parker wears the protective mask while a broken cheekbone is healing. Sunday's game against San Diego was his first back in uniform after 15 days on the disabled list. Pittsburgh won the game 3-2 in ten innings in the first half of a doubleheader. (Related Story, Page 2, Sec. D) (AP Laserphoto)

Regalado Wins Check, Bride At Quad Cities

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Victor Regalado recovered from a ragged start in the final round Sunday of the $150,000 Quad Cities Open and rallied to take a 1-stroke victory over Fred Marti.

Regalado accepted the winner's check for $30,000 and announced on the 18th green he would marry his fiancée he met during the tournament here three years ago.

"I have a special place in my heart for the Quad Cities," Regalado said.

It was the second PGA tour victory for Regalado, 30, of San Diego, Calif. He won the 1974 Pleasant Valley Classic his second year on the tour.

Regalado, the runnerup here last year, had a final round of 70 for a 269 total. He had been in command since taking a 2-stroke lead after the second round and led Marti by one going into Sunday's final trip around the 6,561-yard par-71 Oakwood Country Club.

But he faltered with two bogeys on the front nine and when Marti, playing just ahead of Regalado, birdied Nos. 10 and 11 and then 14 and 15 the two were deadlocked.

However Regalado also birdied the 514-yard par-5 15th hole with a four-foot putt to regain the lead and both players came the rest of the way home in par.

"I looked at the scoreboard after No. 15 and saw I was leading by one and said, 'I've got to do it here or nowhere,'" said Regalado. "I was watching the leader board almost every hole, watching what I was doing."

Marti failed to take advantage of Regalado's slow start and had some tough going of his own on the front nine, shooting a double bogey 5 just when he could have taken the lead.

"The eighth hole cost me a lot," said Marti, who needed two shots to get out of the tall grass. "At that time I figured I'd blow it."

But Marti checked the leader board

Carner's Chip Shot Brings Borden Title

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Defending champion JoAnne Carner chipped to within 18 inches of the cup for a telltale par on the final hole Sunday to win the $85,000 Borden Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The 39-year-old veteran, winning her 22nd career tournament, posted a final round of 1-under-par 71 for a 54-hole total of 209, 7 under par at the Riviera Country Club.

Mrs. Carner, who earned a first prize check of $12,750, defended a professional title for the first time in her nine-year career. She pushed her earnings this season past the $76,000 mark, and now has nearly $520,000 in her illustrious career.

Carner's chip shot from 45 feet avoided a three-way playoff with Pat Bradley and Betsy King, who had finished 6 under par.

Miss Bradley caught consecutive bogeys on the final two holes when she caught bunkers near the green on both holes. She lost a 1-stroke lead over Mrs. Carner with the consecutive bogeys.

Miss King closed with a 70, while Miss Bradley settled for par of 72 for their 210 totals.

Alex Reinhardt, Cathy Postlewait and Debbie Massey tied for fourth place at 212. Miss Reinhardt shot 70, Miss Massey 73 and Miss Postlewait 74 in their final rounds.

Rookie sensation Nancy Lopez once moved to within 2 shots of the lead, but settled for 72 and was 4 shots back at 213.

JoAnn Washam and Pat Meyers were also at 213. Miss Washam had a 73 and Miss Meyers 74.

Miss Bradley, bidding for her second victory in four weeks, missed a 20-foot putt after blasting out of the sand trap at 18. If she had made the putt, she and Mrs. Carner would have gone into sudden death.

Mrs. Carner had taken the sole lead with a birdie at 10, but fell back into a tie with Miss Bradley when she bogeyed 14.

Staubach Envisions Super Bowl Repeat

DALLAS (AP) — Like a certain Wall Street brokerage, when Roger Staubach talks, pro football devotees listen — especially when the Jack Armstrong of the signal-calling set starts making with his own Super Bowl predictions.

Not one given to idle boasts, Staubach notes it's not at all unreasonable to think the Dallas Cowboys will get an encore performance in THE game.

"I personally feel this will be a better team than last year's," he said. "That doesn't always mean you'll have a better record. But we're going to have a very competitive team. Our goal is to get back to the Super Bowl and win it, which is a reasonable goal. But a lot has to happen before that."

True enough. However, the Cowboys are converging on their Thousand Oaks, Calif., camp in a healthy state. Aside from muscle strain runningback Tony Dorsett suffered against Denver in last year's title game, the old wounds have healed admirably.

Retired Ralph Neely is the only starter missing from the lineup, but coach Tom Landry is hopeful his absence will be balanced by the return of veteran Rayfield Wright.

"I'm excited about our team," said Staubach, who caught a plane to camp Sunday. "It's come off a Super Bowl victory with a minimum of problems. Atti-

City Baseballers Open Tourney Play

It's playoff time, and ten Lubbock Babe Ruth and Little League teams will be in action tonight in search of additional baseball honors.

Two area tournaments will draw eight Lubbock Little League teams, and two LL tourneys will be held in surrounding cities. Also, two Babe Ruth teams will be out of town for games which could lead to further playoff action.

Eastern Little League will host the Area I LL Tournament at its park at 26th and Quirt, and Area II teams will gather at Dixie Park, 54th and K. At each site, two games are scheduled tonight, with finals Tuesday.

At Eastern, the hosts will take on Northeast All-Stars at 5:30 p.m., with Northwest to tackle Midwest All-Stars at 7:30 p.m. Winners collide for the championship Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., with tonight's losers playing Tuesday at 5:30 for third place.

The same time format will hold at Dixie, where Dixie plays the Western All-Stars at 5:30 p.m., followed by the Southern-Southwest contest.

The Area III tournament will be held at Crosbyton, Shallowater playing Wolfroth at 5:30, and Crosbyton hosting Cooper at 7:30. At Slaton, the Area IV meet will follow the same schedule, beginning with the Post-Slaton game at 5:30 and followed by the Tahoka-North Lynn County game.

Lubbock's senior Babe Ruth All-Stars will be in Pampa tonight for start of the state tournament. Lubbock will play tonight at 6 in the double-elimination tournament. The meet will continue through the week.

At the same time, Lubbock's 13-year-old Babe Ruthers will be playing at Canyon. Their game begins at 5:30.

El Pasoans Nip Abilene 4-3 In NBC Meet

Louie Llamas' sacrifice fly in the tenth inning plated the winning run as El Paso nipped Abilene 4-3 in the highlight game of the West region NBC Tournament Sunday.

In the late game, the Down Draw Brewers faced the Lubbock Z's in a second-round, winner's-bracket tilt.

Tim McNeil reached base on an error to open the bottom of the tenth and Jim VanNosdale followed with his fourth straight hit, a single to right field and Llamas then lifted a high fly to right center to end the contest.

Karl Bystrom homered for Abilene in the first, and it remained 1-0 until VanNosdale unloaded a 2-run blast in the fourth. Abilene came right back as Rusty Hamric and Larry Tatum drove in runs in the fifth.

Llamas knotted the game with a double in the sixth. Winning pitcher Bob Alsup struck out 13 and walked only one in going the distance.

Earlier, the hitting of Steve Fancher and Mike Coston sparked Wichita Falls to a pair of wins in run-shortened contests.

Fancher went 4-for-4 with 3 RBIs, as Wichita Falls eliminated the Lubbock Rebels 16-1, and Coston was 3-for-3 with 2 RBIs as San Angelo fell 15-3. Both games were called short of nine innings by the 10-run rule.

Brownfield eliminated the Lubbock Indians 9-2.

Frisco Splits Cardinal Series

By The Associated Press
Mike Sadek doubled home two runs in the second inning to help the San Francisco Giants beat the host St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 behind Ed Halicki's six-hitter and earn a split of their Sunday doubleheader.

The Cardinals won the first game 9-4 as Jerry Mumphy drove in three runs with a double and a single and Garry Templeton collected three hits.

The Cardinals' John Urrea, 3-9, permitted San Francisco only three hits in the nightcap but hindered his cause by issuing four walks, committing an error and hitting a batter.

Larry Herndon reached base with two out in the second when struck by a 1-2 Urrea delivery and Johnnie LeMaster walked to set up Sadek's double down the left field line.

Darrell Evans also walked to start the Giants' fourth and raced home when Urrea fielded Heity Cruz' grounder and threw wildly past first base. Cruz then scored one out later when LeMaster singled.

In the opener, Templeton had two RBI and scored twice to help the Cardinals' 14-hit attack.

Bearing the brunt of the assault was longtime Cardinal tormentor Jim Barr, 4-7, who started the day with a lifetime record of 10-3 and a 1.83 earned run average against St. Louis.

Ted Simmons tripled home George Hendrick to overcome a 2-1 San Francisco lead in the third and scored a go-ahead run on Ken Reitz' sacrifice fly. An inning later, winner Silvio Martinez, 4-3, singled to ignite a three-run rally that offset two-run homers by the Giants' Jack Clark and Herndon.

PHILLIES 4, BRAVES 2
Dick Ruthven and Ron Reed combined on a seven-hitter to lead Philadelphia to a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Ruthven, 6-8, making his first appearance against the Braves since being traded to the Phillies on June 15, recorded his fourth victory in six decisions for Philadelphia with Reed's relief help in the eighth. Reed gained his eighth save of the year, giving up a home run to Dale Murphy in the ninth before retiring the Braves.

Preston Hanna, 7-6, was almost as effective for Atlanta, allowing only five hits while striking out six and walking just one in seven innings. But he gave up the one walk and two of the hits in the same inning, the second, when the Phillies got two of their runs and a lead they never gave up.

Greg Luzinski walked leading off the second and scored on a double by Richie Hebner. Jose Cardenal's single moved Hebner to third and Ted Sizemore's sacrifice fly brought him home with the second run.

EXPOS 6, ASTROS 1
Left-hander Dan Schatzder pitched a seven-hitter and helped his cause with a run-scoring single and a run scored as Montreal defeated the Houston Astros 6-1.

Schatzder, 3-1, making his fourth start of the season, drove in the first Montreal run in the second inning with a two-out single after consecutive singles by Warren Cromarite and Gary Carter off Houston's Floyd Bannister, 3-5.

A sacrifice fly by Houston's Art Howe in the fourth tied the game before Tony Perez' RBI single in the fifth gave the Expos a lead they never relinquished.

The Expos scored four times in the sixth on RBI doubles by Dave Cash and Valentine and run-scoring singles by Larry Parrish and Cromarite.

DODGERS, CUBS SPLIT
Dusty Baker drove in two runs with a single and a homer and pitcher Burt Hooton aided his cause with a run-scoring single to give Los Angeles a 5-3 victory over Chicago and a doubleheader split.

The Cubs won the first game 3-2 as Dave Rader drove in all three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Mike Krukow won his fourth straight game with relief help.

The Dodgers scored two runs in the first inning of the nightcap on a double by Reggie Smith, a triple by Steve Garvey, and Baker's single off loser Ray Burris, 5-7.

The Dodgers scored two runs in the third inning and Hooton, 9-7, singled in an unearned run in the sixth after Joe Ferguson walked and reached second on an error. The Dodgers added another in the seventh on a single by Garvey and a run-scoring double by Ron Cey.

The Cubs got a run in the first when Rodney Scott walked, stole second and third, and scored on an infield out. Steve Ontiveros tripled in the fourth and scored on a single by Ivan DeJesus. The Cubs added a run in the ninth off reliever Lance Rautzhan on Larry Bittner's sacrifice fly.

PIRATES TAKE PAIR
Dave Parker, making his first start since he cracked his cheekbone June 30, rapped a triple to start Pittsburgh to a 10-6 victory over San Diego and a sweep of its doubleheader.

Pittsburgh won the first game 3-2 in 10 innings when John Milner singled with the bases loaded off loser Rollie Fingers, 4-9.

In the last inning of the first game, Parker made a pinch-hit appearance wearing a black and gold hockey goalie's mask to protect the cheekbone he cracked in three places in a home plate collision with New York Met catcher John Stearns.

After drawing an intentional walk in the first game, Parker went 0-for-2 in the second game wearing the mask, while Gene Tenace was helping the Padres to a 5-3 lead through four innings with a pair of homers.

Tenace's RBI single in the seventh put the Padres ahead 6-5 before Parker led a decisive five-run Pittsburgh surge in the bottom of the seventh.

After Omar Moreno drew a leadoff walk, Parker came to bat minus the mask. He also batted without it in the fifth and grounded out.

REDS 9, METS 2
Dave Concepcion had four hits, including a two-run homer and a two-run double, and Tom Hume allowed six hits to lead Cincinnati over the New York Mets 9-2.

Pete Rose doubled off the center field fence in the seventh inning to tie Cap Anson for 10th place on the all-time hit list with 3,081 hits. The Reds' third baseman extended his hitting streak to 29 games.

The Reds scored five runs off loser Kevin Kobel, 1-2, in the first inning and three runs in the third. Kobel was taken out in the fourth after giving up nine runs on eight hits.

Prior to the start, Kobel had not allowed an earned run in 19 2/3 innings. Lenny Randle, the Mets' third baseman who had not made an error in 57 games and 137 chances, committed two errors in the contest.

The Reds scored twice in the first on a run-scoring double by Concepcion and RBI single by Ken Henderson. In the Cincinnati second Henderson knocked in his third run of the day with a single.

Crowley's Single Sinks Rangers In Overtime 2-1

By The Associated Press
Terry Crowley drove in the winning run with a two-out, 12th-inning single Sunday, giving the homestanding Baltimore Orioles a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers Sunday.

Crowley's hit came off Reggie Cleveland, who had replaced starter Jon Matlack at the start of the 11th. Kiko Garcia, running for Andres Mora, who had doubled and moved to second on a walk, scored the winning run.

Joe Kerrigan, making his first major league start after 119 relief appearances, pitched the first seven innings for Baltimore and allowed four hits. Don Stanhouse, 25, picked up the victory with five innings of two-hit relief in his longest start this season.

The Rangers, who had 53 hits in their four previous games, tied the score 1-1 in the fourth when Al Oliver doubled and Jim Sundberg singled.

The Orioles took a 1-0 lead in the third on a double by Rick Dempsey and a single by Mark Belanger.

Kerrigan had not been a starting pitcher since he was in the Carolina League in 1974. His first full season of professional ball. His longest previous major league outing was a 5 2/3-inning relief stint on July 3.

The start of the game was delayed 48 minutes by rain.

Crowley's winning hit, on a 1-2 pitch, was lined to the right of shortstop Campy Texas.

BREWERS 10, WHITE SOX 1
Rookie Paul Molitor had three hits and drove in three runs, stole two bases and scored twice to lead Milwaukee's 10-1 rout of the Chicago White Sox.

Ben Oglivie added three hits and an RBI, and Robin Yount drove in two runs for the surging Brewers, who climbed 15 games over .500 for the first time in the franchise's 10-year history with their sixth victory in seven games.

THE BIG CHECKS—Carlos Reutemann of Argentina gets the checkered flag, indicative of victory and a big check at the British Grand Prix at Brands Hatch, England Sunday. Reutemann, driving a Ferrari, won after a last-lap battle with Niki Lauda. (AP Laserphoto)

Shackelford Reutemann Nips Lauda Loses T-M In British Grand Prix

To Tway

DALLAS (AP)—Medalist Bob Tway, a member of the NCAA champion Oklahoma State team, wilted 38-year-old former touring pro John Shackelford with four consecutive birdies Sunday to run away with a 6-and-5 victory in the 36-hole finals of the Trans-Miss Amateur Golf Championship.

Tway, 19, of Marietta, Ga., fell behind Shackelford of Austin two holes on the front nine of the morning round but birdied the 18th hole with a 15-foot putt to lead 2-up at the lunch break.

The baby-faced, curly-haired Tway, who shot 67-71 to lead the 400-man field in qualifying, birdied the first three holes of the afternoon round to daze Shackelford, a computer designer who plays out of Onion Creek Country Club.

The match mercifully ended in the furnace-like 100 degree heat on the 31st hole with Tway 1-under par for the day over the Par 36-35-71 Brook Hollow Golf Club.

"I didn't putt good until today and when I made that 20-footer to start the afternoon round I really got pumped up... there was no stopping me," said Tway, who one-putted five holes in a row.

Shackelford, a Texas Tech graduate who regained his amateur status after two years on the PGA tour, said "Bob's a strong player. He will be big on the tour someday. He reminds me a lot of Bob Dickson, another OSDU player."

After Tway birdied the first hole of the afternoon round, he made a 6-footer and a 40-footer for birdies to bury Shackelford.

Shackelford, a jogger and physical fitness nut, said "Evidently I was getting tired. You play 11 rounds in this sauna, and it will get anybody—even a 19-year-old."

Tway said he was traveling to Tarpon Springs, Fla. near Tampa to play in next week's Southern Amateur.

"I hope this qualifies me for the Walker Cup," he said. "I understand it's up to the USGA. The Trans-Miss champion usually gets it."

Weary Nastase Loses To Gerulaitis In WCT

Cook Quickest At Dirt Track

Hershel Cook made his return to racing an auspicious one Saturday night, winning not only the modified stock car main event at Lubbock Speed Bowl but the semi and trophy dash as well.

A week earlier Cook had purchased the ex-Roger Davis Camaro and his wins put him well out front in the chase for the season's second-half championship, which got underway with his debut.

In the street stock division at the dirt oval J.R. Fehland came on to win the main, and in the Volkswagens it was Don Spear. Danny Everett won a special figure 8 event, while Linda Spear drove a VW to a win in the powder puff derby, trailed by Carolyn Peters (street stock) and Frances Bilbrey (modified). The summary:

MODIFIED STOCK CARS
First heat—Bobby Hall, Hershel Cook, David Vaughn.
Second heat—Jimmy Bilbrey, Charley Whorton, Robert Shep.
Trophy dash—Cook.

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP)—Argentina's Carlos Reutemann won Sunday's incident-packed British Grand Prix by yards from the Brabham Alfa of reigning world champion Niki Lauda of Austria.

The engines of the two JPS-Lotus racers, which dominated qualifying, both blew — Mario Andretti's when he was fighting to catch up after a pit stop and pole man Ronnie Peterson's after only six laps when lying second to Andretti.

But Andretti kept the lead in the 1978 title race and Peterson remained second because of the points they have piled up in winning five of the nine earlier races this season.

For the 35-year-old Reutemann, the victory was a welcome return to form for himself and the Ferrari team after a bad patch following his victories in Brazil and Long Beach this season.

He dedicated the victory: "To my wife, Mimicha," kept away from the track Sunday by illness.

He was one of the few drivers not to suffer tire problems, Michelin having flown new tires from France Sunday morning for the race.

But Reutemann took the lead from Lauda only on the 60th of the 76 laps in a 100 mph shuffle passing backfield runners through a fast curve.

Lauda claimed that young Italian Bruno Giacomelli put him right off the track, allowing Reutemann to take the lead and the race.

Lauda set a race record of 119.71 mph for the 2.6-mile circuit, trying to catch his former Ferrari teammate.

Reutemann's winning time was 1 hour 42 minutes 12.39 seconds, an average speed of 116.61 mph.

Andretti took the lead from the flag with Peterson behind him, and followed by the Wolf of South African Jody Scheckter.

Scheckter had developed gearbox problems but would not yield to the pack of cars behind him, inheriting the lead when Andretti pitted for a new rear tire.

Even though Andretti stopped for only 15 seconds and averaged 90 mph on that lap he dropped back to 11th.

Behind Scheckter, a group of seven cars was covered by only 3 seconds in a nose to tail struggle with Australian Alan Jones, in the Williams, trying time and again to force his way past the Wolf but with Scheckter always "shutting the door."

Jones dropped out on lap 26 with gearbox trouble and the order was: Scheckter, Lauda, Riccardo Patrese in the Arrows, Reutemann, Watson, Patrick Depailler's Tyrrell, and Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi in one of his best showings in the Copersucar.

The SuperStars meets will continue each Sunday for the rest of the month, in a series of age groups.

Hammond scored 57 points to defeat James Dunnam, who scored 49 points in the men's division for 16-18-year-olds. Andy Geiger, with 48 points, was third.

Wood won over 19-21 age opponents, getting 59½ points. Second was Nick Sanders with 49 points, and Nick Pirkle was third with 30½ points. Conright totaled 54 points to win over Steve Viney (29½) and Rusty Hicks (25 points) in the 25-27 age group.

Jones won in 28-30 with 50 points. Larry Schovajsa scored 38½ for second and Lee Moss was third with 27 points.

Gary Schovjisa had 54 points to win the 31-36 division. Jim Goodwin with 35 points was second and Tom Moody third with 30½.

Eighty men participated in Sunday's competition. The next competition, will be at 2 p.m. next Sunday for 37-39, 40-42, and 43-and-over groups.

All women's events will be July 30.

Mitton Takes First Net Title

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Lanky Bernie Mitton of South Africa pulled off a close three-set victory Sunday over Australian John James to win the $75,000 Hall of Fame Tennis Championship, 6-1, 3-6, 7-6.

The victory marked the first win for Mitton, a 23-year-old righthander, on the Grand Prix circuit. He had beaten three seeded players, including top-ranked Arthur Ashe, en route to the finals.

Mitton was in complete control of the first set in the grass court final at the Newport Casino. However, he appeared to tire in the second set and James' game started to improve.

The champion's exhaustion stemmed in part from having to play a semifinal match Sunday morning in which he handily eliminated seventh-seeded Bob Giltinan of Australia 6-3, 6-0.

ND Baseballers Take On Lockney

New Deal and Abernathy baseball teams will tangle tonight at Mackenzie Park for the right to advance to Paris in the baseball playoffs.

The teams, for 15 and 16-year-olds, will collide at 8 p.m.

At tonight's game, the New Deal 13-14 age baseball team, which is undefeated this season, will be recognized. It is headed for the playoffs, to be held beginning next Monday at Andrews.

El Paso Wins

Rick Airington allowed only one hit to the Bulls Saturday night, and Glenn Villarreal unloaded two towering home runs.

John Lindsey and Jack Martin each had two hits for Wichita Falls, and Lindsey drove in 3 runs in the opener. Brett Patty had 3 RBIs in the second game.

Don Worth's home run keyed off-field's 4-run third inning, as the Astros came from behind.

Rutherford, Allison Cop Norton Twin Victories

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP)—Johnny Rutherford ended a year-old victory drought with a trouble-free victory in Sunday's 200-mile Indianapolis car race at Michigan International Speedway.

A 200-mile U.S. Auto Club stock car race, with A.J. Foyt starting on the pole position, followed the Indy car race on the twin event program. However, Foyt had to take a third-place ribbon in the event, as Bobby Allison, driving a Matarador, achieved a speed of 138.729 mph to nudge Gary Bowsher for the checkered flag.

Watts Team Takes Hillcrest Club Crown

Ted Watts and Tommy Wilson fired a 6-under-par 66 and never lost their lead in winning Hillcrest County Club's partnership golf tournament for members.

The team had fired a 65 on Saturday and finished with a 131 total, 2 strokes better than the team of Jack Williams of Plainview and J.B. White.

White and Williams had a 65 Sunday after being 3 strokes back at 68 after the opening round.

The tournament was a practically a two-team affair, however, as the duo of Dub Malaise and John Farquhar was third at 139 after a 69 Sunday.

Three teams shared fourth, Guy Conine-Mark Jarrett, Bob Meyer-Steve Earsley, and Johnny Lutrick-Hal Schauer at 140.

Bain Scores At Speedway

John Bain drove his 1977 Pontiac Trans-Am to a clean sweep at Lubbock Speedway Saturday night over a short field of late model stock cars that felt the impact of summer vacationing.

A below-average crowd turned out for the events at the paved southside track as it switched to Saturday night operation from its early season Friday night format.

Track operators anticipated a full field of cars in both the late model and sprint car divisions next week, with a contingent from the Midland-Odessa area expected to enhance competition.

In the street stock division, Mike Cox snared the main event and the trophy dash, with Robert Daniel the heat winner and Scott McGee scoring in the semi.

Johnny Mount won the main and the heat and trophy dash as well in sprint car competition, with Dave "Wolfman" Yeager the winner in the semi. The summary:

LATE MODEL STOCK CARS
Heat—John Bain, Dick Wood, Loyd Blackberry. Trophy dash—Bain.
Semi—Bain, Wood.
Main—Bain, Wood.

STREET STOCKS

race, with A.J. Foyt starting on the pole position, followed the Indy car race on the twin event program. However, Foyt had to take a third-place ribbon in the event, as Bobby Allison, driving a Matarador, achieved a speed of 138.729 mph to nudge Gary Bowsher for the checkered flag.

Rutherford cruised to the checkered flag with a sizable lead over runnerup Tom Sneva. Danny Ongais was sidelined with mechanical trouble with less than 10 miles to go, breaking up a tense duel for the lead.

"If the fans don't like that, they don't like auto racing," Rutherford advised. "It had to be a great race for the fans because it was really a great one from where I sat."

Rutherford and Ongais battled side by side through the last stages of the event, until Ongais, who had run out of fuel once during the race, slowed up and finally stopped with suspected fuel troubles.

Sneva, the early leader, lost a lap mid-way through race when he was black-flagged to tighten a loose rear tire.

Sneva, who won the pole position with a sizzling track record of 211.392 mph, jumped in front at the green flag and led until his first regular pit stop at the 56-mile mark.

Ongais, who seemed at that time to be running without fuel problems, took over the lead and kept it until he stopped four miles later.

Foyt and Al Unser, neither of whom finished due to engine problems battled briefly for the lead. But with 66 miles to go, Rutherford and Ongais took control.

Rutherford's average speed of 159.941

Strate Miss Wins Feature At Ruidoso

Spanish Amateur Said Near Death

VALENCIA, Spain (AP)—Salvador Pons, a Spanish amateur lightweight boxer near death from severe brain damage he sustained Saturday, doctors at a hospital in this city said Sunday.

Pons was knocked down twice in his three-round fight against a three-round bout before the referee stopped the bout.

Then Pons suddenly fell in the canvas and lost consciousness. He was hospitalized in the nearby town of Alcira where the fight was held, but later he was taken to a hospital here.

Coffey Wins NM Tourney

CLOVIS, N.M. (Special)—Paul Tankersley and Delvin Schutes didn't win the top prizes in the New Mexico Invitational Golf Tournament at Clovis' Colonial Park Country Club, but they will be the ones to advance on to the Governor's Cup at Albuquerque later this summer.

Borger's Jack Coffey won the tournament, but Tankersley and Schutes were the top New Mexico finishers and thus qualified for the cup play, where amateur teams play pros from over the state.

Tankersley finished third in Sunday's competition.

Students Take Sex Study Seriously

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Queen Victoria once refused to approve a law against lesbians because she couldn't believe women did such things.

Call it freedom through ignorance, if you will. Her majesty might have blushed at the mission of the Institute for Advanced Study of Human Sexuality — a better sex life through academic enlightenment.

In fact, its founder, Ted McLivenna, said the 2-year-old institute is the only one in the world devoted exclusively to the academic study of sex leading to approved graduate degrees.

Senate Committee Stalls Labor Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's proposed overhaul of the nation's labor laws seems destined to ride out the current congressional term in the clutches of a Senate committee.

Ever since backers of the labor law "reform" bill failed for a sixth time to end a Senate filibuster, the legislation has been in the custody of the Senate Human Resources Committee. Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia has made the issue a pending order of business after July 15, but there's no evidence the committee is ready to resubmit the bill. The legislation would streamline labor laws by making it easier for unions to organize and by strengthening penalties for employers who violate the laws.

What is sexology? It's the academic study of sex. And it's a serious business. Fooling around at the institute could get you thrown out the door.

The institute, housed in three floors of a modest store-front style building, so far has graduated 21 students with masters and Ph.D. degrees which require up to three years of rigorous study. The students represent a cross-section of the professional world — sociologists, priests, nuns, physicians, nurses, psychologists, even a physicist.

A key requirement for admission, says McLivenna, is a serious desire to become a sexologist, a person trained to work in sex, maybe as a therapist, teacher or counselor.

What goes on at the institute? Lectures are delivered to students lounging on large pillows because McLivenna has found that they learn more easily when comfortable. They study anatomy, physiology, psychology, gender and other subjects that will make them scientifically knowledgeable about sex.

"Our faculty is the best in the world," McLivenna says. "There are about 15 persons on the staff and about 15 outside lecturers. Our degrees are approved by the State of California.

"We use the finest and most updated training methodologies — everything is on video or film, all the lectures. We have the largest sex film library in the world and service more than 4,000 other institutions which use them," he adds. Films that might titillate are rare in the library and are used only for scientific purposes. Among the faculty members is Dr. Wardell Pomeroy, who worked on the famed Kinsey reports of the 1940s, pioneering efforts in revealing American sexual behavior. Another is Erwin J. Haerberle, author of "The Sex Atlas," an institute textbook escribed by McLivenna as, "At long last, a completely competent text for serious students of human sexuality, exhibiting both magnitude of perspective and excellence of execution."

Why all this attention concerning something that people have been doing since there have been people to do it?

"There's no doubt in my mind that people can learn about their sexuality and understand sexuality and use it in a creative way," says McLivenna, calling misin-formation about sex a serious problem.

McLivenna, a Methodist minister, says he decided to found the institute while working as a counselor. "You can't understand human personality without understanding human sexuality. I found that all kinds of people claimed knowledge of sex who didn't know anything about it. Our graduates are among the few people who do," he says.

Sex information has been passed from generation to generation, based on myth, prejudice, the anxieties of those in power and the fear that people who know too much about sex will run amok or destroy society, McLivenna says.

But the fears are wrong, he says, pointing to statistical research he claims proves that sexually informed societies are better off.

Amway Loses Fixed Price Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amway Corp., a company that was founded by two door-to-door salesmen in 1959 and became one of the largest direct-selling companies in the world, illegally fixed prices, a Federal Trade Commission judge ruled in a decision released Sunday.

Administrative Law Judge James P. Timony proposed an order that would require the company to stop price-fixing and allocating customers among distributors.

However, Timony refused to interfere with other Amway restrictions on its distributors and declined to agree with allegations in a 1975 FTC complaint that said the company made false claims and failed to disclose important information to its distributors.

The decision is not final and may be reviewed by the five-member commission.

Amway manufactures, distributes and sells more than 200 products, including soaps, home and car care products, cookware, smoke detectors, vitamins and food supplements. It sells the products through more than 300,000 distributors who call at the customers' homes, rather than through stores.

In a statement, Amway said it "does not engage in, and has no intention of engaging in, the practices proscribed by the initial decision. Therefore, the proposed cease-and-desist order will in no way affect the business operations of Amway or its distributors."

Timony rejected claims made by Amway at hearings that it stopped setting prices for distributors and consumers by 1972. Although the company's rules were changed then, Timony said Amway still applies pressure to distributors who retail products at less than the suggested price.

"Price cutters are quickly reproached by other distributors, and it is not long until Amway applies pressure directly and through direct distributors to stop the 'disturbance in the field.' Many Amway distributors are inexperienced in business and it does not take much pressure to stop price cutting," he said in a 127-page decision.

Timony cited the testimony of a former distributor who advertised in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., newspaper for Amway products "below wholesale." The former distributor testified that most of the response to the ad was not from consumers interested in buying the discounted merchandise, but from other distributors unhappy about the low prices. In a few days the Amway home office offered to buy back the inventory, thereby preventing the discount sale, Timony said.

He said the company "stopped Amway distributors from competing among themselves for customers and fixed the prices at which Amway products are sold among distributors and to consumers."

The judge found that the company's rules against selling the products in stores, regulations on advertising and its distribution system are legal.

Expert Airs Liquified Gas Hazards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two fuels, liquified natural gas and liquified petroleum gas, are being shipped by trucks through many American cities, and are nearly as dangerous as the gas that exploded in Spain last week, a government investigator said Friday.

David Rosenbaum, author of a General Accounting Office study on the hazards of liquified gas, stressed that accidents involving the fuels or liquid propylene — the gas that exploded in Spain killing 170 people and injuring 150 — could result in many deaths and injuries.

"Propylene is a little easier to explode: making LNG slightly less dangerous," he said.

Rosenbaum said liquified petroleum gas is equally as dangerous and "much more similar to propylene" than LNG; and "is sent much more often" through or near American cities.

"There's something like 16,000 rail cars and 25,000 trucks of various types that carry LPG," he said. "LNG is not sent by train and less than 100 trucks carry it. For many American cities there wouldn't be any movement of it at all."

LNG is mostly sent through pipelines, he said.

The 1,000-page report, undertaken by the GAO's Energy and Mineral Division, is expected to come out after the last week of July.

The New York Times said Sunday it obtained an early draft copy of the report in January.

The Times story focused on Algonquin LNG Inc. which owns a large LNG storage facility in Boston. The company applied in May for a license to move daily up to 21 truckloads of the highly volatile fuel to its warehouse in Providence, R.I.

The Times said although the trucks' route included sections of elevated highways over congested neighborhoods in both cities, Algonquin was unable to tell the federal Energy Regulatory Commission "the location and density of the population along the route, or the location of subways and other underground structures accessible to liquid flow."

"It could be very dangerous if a truck broke open," Rosenbaum said.

Algonquin's application is still pending. The draft report also cites a number of recent accidents involving trucks or trains carrying LNG and LPG, the Times said.

Rosenbaum said that "hundreds of trucking firms have licenses to truck gas. But no one has ever gathered information about where all the gas is being trucked," he said.

Peacock Catchers Outshine Wardens

LONGMONT, Colo. (AP) — Jeff Ritchey, 9, and his brother, Lance, 11, are the best peacock catchers around these parts, to the embarrassment of the town's animal wardens.

For 10 days before Saturday, Animal Warden Phil Archuleta and his co-workers had been chasing a large, male peacock around the town's streets and rooftops, prodded by townfolk's complaints of the bird's habits of house-hopping and nocturnal screaming.

Jeff and Lance spotted the bird on a neighbor's roof Saturday evening. They chased the fan-tailed fowl around the neighborhood for an hour before corraling him in a neighbor's garage and slamming the door shut.

The peacock is now residing at the local Humane Society.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Widowed in 1974 at age 54 and with no knowledge of the stock market but desperately in need of income, I went to an account executive at one of the country's leading brokerage houses. Under his guidance, I invested a total of $26,700 in stocks of six utility companies. All those stocks were later sold at profits in 1976.

In 1977, the broker suggested I sell the stocks I bought the previous year and put the money in a unit trust which now sends me a check every month. I also bought 100 shares of one of the stocks I originally purchased in 1974.

I have a feeling I am making the brokerage house prosperous with this technique. What is your opinion?

A. There's no doubt about it. Every buy and sell order that brokerage house has handled for you has generated a commission. That's how a brokerage house makes money.

Fortunately for you, your trading has been profitable to date. One of Wall Street's well-worn expressions is, "You never go broke taking profits." But, if you keep trading long enough, you're certain to run into losses. The one stock market adage that really holds up is, "Traders die broke."

Frankly, even though you sold them at profits, I think you would be better off with the six stocks you listed in your letter as your original purchases. They're all quality issues, with good records of steadily increasing their dividends.

There's nothing wrong with that unit trust the broker put you into last year. But the stock you repurchased and others like it seem more suited for you.

Q. If I sell some stock at a loss, can I buy shares of the same stock on the same day and report my loss on the sale as a capital loss when I file my income tax return?

A. No. That would be counted as a "wash sale" and your capital loss would be disallowed.

When you sell stock at a loss, you must wait more than 30 days before buying shares of the same stock — in order to steer clear of the wash sale tax trap.

You can, however, do this. Say you bought 100 shares of XYZ stock at $30 a share and have seen it drop to $20. Buy 100 more shares of XYZ. Wait 31 days. Sell your original 100 shares. No wash sale problem.

Q. We live on a pension and Social Security of about $10,000 a year. A nearby city is selling $20.4 million of hospital bonds. The minimum purchase is $5,000. Is it possible to lose on these bonds?

A. It's possible but highly unlikely. But they still should hold no allure for you. Those bonds are tax-exempt — meaning that the interest they pay will not be subject to either federal income tax or state income tax in the state in which they are issued and in which you live.

Because of that feature they pay low interest and appeal only to people in higher income tax brackets. That does not include you. Your $5,000 will work better for you in insured savings certificates.

Q. My broker had me buy 800 shares of a stock, at $7 a share, because he said it is "a sleeper stock." He is so busy I can't get to talk to him any more to find out what he meant by "sleeper stock." Do you know?

A. I guess you never spent any time at the race track, where the handicappers sometimes spot a horse they think will come awake with a sudden burst of speed and be a winner. Even though some of my best friends have been handicappers, I wouldn't put the kind of bets on their sleepers to put on that stock.

It continues to doze and is now closer to $6 than the price you paid.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

MON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Persevere at your work early in the day you'll have time to do other things later. Take needed health treatments.

(July 22 to Aug. 21) Put through a business deal that has been pending some time. Plan how to enjoy yourself without having to spend too much.

GO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning could find you discontented, but later smooths out nicely. Don't be forceful in any way now for best results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to have more harmony with all you come into contact with today. A new project needs more study to be successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may be worried about finances early in the day but later something turns up and you feel better. Be optimistic.

SCORPIO (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't take any associates into your confidence about important personal matters. Become more involved in civic affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what your desires of a personal nature really are and then you can proceed accordingly. Sidestep a troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study the path you want to take in the future and make plans to carry through with them. Safeguard your health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Take no risks with your reputation today and whatever improves your prestige. Find new ways to become more successful.

YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will come up with brilliant ideas even at a young age, and will not be satisfied with limited activity, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can. Don't neglect ethical training early and give a chance to participate in sports.

U.S. Army Engineers Assist Saudis

MOUNT WEATHER, Va. (AP)—On a Blue Ridge summit here, a unit of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is coordinating a multi-billion dollar military construction operation in Saudi Arabia. It's called the Middle East Division (REAR), and its work — rent, salaries, expenses — is paid for entirely by the Saudis. Mount Weather, overlooking Clarke County in northwest Virginia, also is the home of a top-secret underground command post to be used by the president and his cabinet in the event of nuclear war. The mountain setting is headquarters for several hundred Corps of Engineers employees involved in engineering and design, contract arrangement and troubleshooting for construction projects in the Middle Eastern country. The projects include artillery ranges, airfields, naval docks, schools and civilian and military housing. And with the help of experts, the corps also is collecting art to decorate, to royal Saudi taste and at royal Saudi expense, some of the buildings it's designing. Col. Donald J. Palladino, who runs the corps operation here, said projects approved so far by the United States and the Saudis total $9.6 billion. By the mid-1980s, if all proposed projects are approved, Palladino said the figure will soar to nearly $25 billion. The Saudis have a $142 billion construction program planned for the next five years, he added. Agreements between the U.S. and Saudi governments dating to the 1950s authorize the corps to work directly with the Saudis, he said. A forward echelon of the division is based in the Saudi capital of Riyadh and is responsible for overseeing actual construction of the projects in 21 locations in the country — places like Khamis, Mubayt, Tabuk, Jidda and Ras Al Mish'Ab, Palladino said. One project, he said, is the King Khalid Military City, which, when completed in the mid-1980s, will house 70,000 military personnel and their families. When the keys are given to the Saudis, the entire city will be furnished and decorated, down to ashtrays, Palladino said. It's a huge project, and the Middle East Division's 1,200 employees travel frequently. A bulletin board shows where they are — two-thirds bound to or from Saudi Arabia, the rest in the United States. Palladino said his unit of 345 came to Virginia two years ago from Riyadh to establish a home shop close to Washington and Dulles International Airport. The art-collecting mission is supervised by Gordon W. Dykes, chief of the engineering division. "The corps has not been in the fine arts business historically," Dykes said. But he explained, royal homes and other structures call for artistic decoration. Buyers scour markets for art that suits Saudi taste, he said, and some works are commissioned directly — like the 10-foot statue entitled "Sails" that stands in the Saudi naval headquarters building. Interior design specialists and museums help the corps make the selections. More than $10 million a year in Saudi money supports the corps' work here, Palladino said.

Equal Rights Amendment Gains Support

By LOUIS HARRIS
After a two-year period of serious erosion, support for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution has now risen to 55-38 percent, up from 51-34 percent back in January. The major cause of this turnaround can be traced to a change in the public's perception of just who is backing the ERA. Last January, a 44-37 percent plurality agreed with the claim that "advocates of the Equal Rights Amendment are mainly women's libbers who would totally change the traditional role of women, which is wrong." Now, a 51-44 percent majority rejects this charge. It is apparent that the new campaign in behalf of the ERA, which involves wider public support than before, is beginning to pay off, according to the latest Harris Survey of 1,500 adults nationwide. Of immediate importance to ERA advocates is the question of whether Congress will extend for another seven years the time in which the states can ratify the ERA amendment to the Constitution. The ERA is now stalled with 35 out of the necessary 38 states needed to ratify it. Unless Congress extends the time limit, the measure will automatically be defeated in April 1979. By 57-40 percent, a majority favors Congress extending the time limit. Significantly, women support the extension by 61-35 percent, men by 52-45 percent. There is also an important ideological overtone to this question. Conservative are divided 49-49 percent on the ERA extension. Middle-of-the-roads favor it by 57-40 percent, while liberals back it by 71-27 percent. Every region of the country favors the extension, but the East and West lead, with over 60 percent majorities favoring it. In the Midwest, a narrower 52-42 percent majority favors the seven-year extension, as does a 54-43 percent majority in the South. Most of the outstanding states that have not ratified the ERA are in the South and in the Midwest. Underlying the basic support for ERA is the 64-25 percent majority which favors "most of the efforts to strengthen and change women's status in society today." This group has grown since 1970, when a narrow 42-41 percent plurality favored these efforts. The public's reaction to the arguments made about the ERA has obviously changed in the past six months, with pro-ERA forces getting the best of it. By 50-46 percent, a plurality now feels that "the Equal Rights Amendment should be passed because until women are made equals with men under the law, they won't be treated equally in their day-to-day lives." Back in 1975, a close 47-45 percent plurality disagreed. By 45-42 percent, a plurality rejects the charge by ERA advocates that "the opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment are the same group who have opposed progress for less privileged people in this country for the past 75 years, and that is wrong." However, the number who are willing to categorize the anti-ERA forces this way has risen 10 points from 32 percent in the past six months. By 50-43 percent, a plurality disagrees that "the Equal Rights Amendment should be opposed because it would wipe out many of the laws which have benefited women with special protection for many years." Back in January, only a narrow 42-40 percent plurality disagreed. Thus, by 55-38 percent, a clear majority now favors passage of the ERA. Every region of the country backs the measure: the East by 61-34 percent, the West by 58-34 percent, the Midwest by 54-39 percent, and the South by 50-43 percent. Indeed, the key to the ERA majority today is the fact that majorities of nearly all groups favor it.

longer you have had the product), or may require you to return the product to the store or factory for service, or it may cover only the first purchaser. Don't let the terms "warranty" and "guarantee" confuse you. Where a product warranty is concerned, they mean the same thing — a promise by a manufacturer or seller to stand behind a product. Remember, however, that what a warranty promises varies greatly. Compare product warranties before you buy.

When your neighbor retired, he must have taken retroactive Social Security benefits for the 12 months prior to his retirement. Since the passage of the new Social Security amendments in December, 1977, this is no longer possible. Under the old law, a person was permitted to elect to receive benefits for up to 12 months prior to the month in which they filed an application. If such months were prior to age 65, then the benefits were actually reduced. The new bill will eliminate retroactive benefits where permanently reduced benefits would occur. It does not apply to cases where benefits are disability related or where un-reduced dependents benefits are involved. This became effective Jan. 1, 1978.

For people who are on Social Security or will be going on it shortly, Heartline has written a book to give an easier explanation of this program. You may order this book by sending $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B, this will be used for Step 2.

When a written warranty is provided on consumer products costing more than $15, it must be available for you to look at before you buy. The warranty must be easy to read and understand; no fine print or complicated legal terms are allowed. Also, every term and condition of the warranty should be set out in writing. There are two kinds of written warranties — full and limited. A product can have a full warranty on part of the product and a limited warranty on the rest.

The label "full" on a warranty means that:

- A defective product will be fixed (or replaced) free, including removal and reinstallation if necessary.
- It'll be fixed within a reasonable time after you complain.
- You will not have to do anything unreasonable to get warranty service such as shipping a piano to the factory.
- The warranty is good for anyone who owns the product during the warranty period.
- If this product can't be fixed (or hasn't been after a reasonable number of tries) you get your choice of replacement or refund.

There is one important thing the word "full" does not promise. A full warranty does not have to cover the whole product. It may cover only part of the product, such as the picture tube of a television; it may leave out some parts, such as tires on a car.

A warranty is "limited" if it gives you anything less than what a full warranty gives. Limited on a warranty should tell you to read it with extra care — something is missing. For example, a limited warranty may cover only parts and no labor, or only allow a pro-rata refund or credit (a smaller credit or refund than

Ford Sets Sights On Small Car Field With New Mustang, Capri

DETROIT (AP) — The man who created the original has just been fired, but the Ford Mustang keeps rolling along.

The model to be introduced Monday is the first of the 1979 year to be paraded for the press. Ford hopes the early hoopla will draw plenty of attention to what it calls another "milestone" Mustang — and maybe make people forget about recalls, exploding fuel tanks, alleged overseas bribes and infighting in the executive suite.

As it happens, the original 1965 Mustang is about to be displaced in the sales record books by another Ford product, the '78 Fairmont, as the industry's best-selling new car ever. But the Mustang still occupies a special spot in recent auto history.

It was the first low-cost ($2,368 in 1964), small, four-seat sporty car. Its first-year sales of 417,000 gave rise to Camaros, Barracudas, Monzas, Firebirds and Javelins in the late 1960s.

The Mustang gradually got 8 inches longer and 584 pounds heavier and had become a "muscle car" by 1974, when Ford lopped off a foot and introduced the Mustang II.

Now it's become four inches longer than Mustang II but 180 pounds lighter, and has been described as a stylistic cross between the compact $4,000 Fairmont and the $27,000 Mercedes Benz 450 SL.

It is intended to offer sportier looks and better performance than the current crop of new, small cars while taking advantage of strong small-car sales amid federal mandates for better fuel economy.

The Mustang will also have a "twin" for the first time as the Lincoln Mercury Division quits importing the Capri from Ford of Europe. It will be built on the same Dearborn assembly line as the Mustang.

The Capri, to be unveiled Tuesday, is the same as the Mustang except for minor styling differences.

"We are going to count first-year sales in the hundreds of thousands," forecast Eastern Backs Out.

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines has decided to withdraw from a 15-airline agreement that provides partial reimbursement for lost revenue caused by a labor strike. Eastern president Frank Borman said Friday because of a good management-worker relationship, "the cost of the insurance premium exceeds the value of the benefits."

Dog Visitation Rights Solved

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — When George and Susan Teebay dissolved their marriage, Susan got custody of Clyde, the couple's dog, and George was given "reasonable visitation" rights.

Although the couple included this agreement in their legal community property settlement, George felt Clyde was lonely and he complained in Alameda County Superior Court that his ex-wife wasn't letting him visit with the pet.

Once, George said, he found Clyde cold and whimpering in the yard next to Susan's house.

"Clyde was overjoyed to see me and needed me," George testified before Judge Richard A. Bancroft.

Susan countered that Clyde is happy, that she takes good care of him and that she lives alone and needs the protection of a dog.

Judge Bancroft, who owns two golden retrievers himself, weighed the decision and last week rendered this judgment: George "shall have visitation of the family dog, Clyde, on the second and fourth weekends of each and every month from Friday at 7 p.m. until Sunday at 4 p.m., commencing ... forthwith."

"It is expected that the parties will cooperate with one another to effect the intent of this order."

Rooster Saved From 'Crackdown'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mattie Kidd's rooster still crows every morning even though Mayor Charles Wheeler said last week that he would mobilize the police department to silence the crowing.

Wheeler announced the intensive fowl hunt after a woman called him at 6:30 a.m. and complained that the rooster woke her up every day.

In checking the city ordinances, animal control officers said they could not remove an animal for noise unless someone within 100 yards complains.

Mrs. Kidd's immediate neighbors sided with the rooster and city officials backed off.

"I don't want to be part of a big rooster crackdown all over Kansas City," Wheeler said. "I don't want to be part of a police state."

'Little Tramp'—Mexican Style—Analyzed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cantinflas defined Cantinflas in a rare retrospective creator's glimpse of the little Mexican tramp who, unlike Charlie Chaplin, always stumbles through to happy endings. "Cantinflas is the essence of what the people he represents have inside," Mario Moreno Reyes said in a serious vein in an interview in his penthouse office. "Cantinflas is a poor guy with a great feeling of happiness," Moreno continued. "He helps everybody. He wants people to do something and he helps make it possible. He is the eternal optimist."

Moreno, 68, said he never consciously developed the character who appeared in innumerable films during the past 42 years — so many in fact that not even Moreno recalls all of them. Cantinflas evolved, Moreno explained, because "I was born Cantinflas."

"He doesn't care about problems," Moreno said in English. "He has faith. He believes in people."

Moreno gazed out the ceiling-to-floor window of his wood-paneled fifth-floor office overlooking the city, then added, "I have this," emphasizing the first person. "I was born with it. And I represent, on film, what I feel."

Cantinflas has become such an institution that the name has become a verb in Spanish. It means to talk endlessly without saying much.

His first movie was "I'm Not Deceiving You, Darling" in 1936. Americans recall his role, as Passpartou, in the film with David Niven, "Around the World in 80 Days," the first of Moreno's three foreign movies. It was produced in 1961 by Mike Todd, who called Moreno "an expert in pantomime."

Recently, Moreno has made a Cantinflas film every year. He plans to continue doing so as long as he can.

He travels to promote the films and donates income from these appearances to charity. He was in Venezuela, Spain and California recently.

He writes his own films, together with the group of actors he picks to appear, and with a script writer.

"Humor hasn't changed," Moreno said. "But times have. Cantinflas never changes inside. But outside, yes. His clothing changes, for example. He has to change to keep up with the times."

If he had to do it over again, Moreno said he would do everything the same. It all began in a circus tent in the '30s when, searching for his lines, he blurted out in-anities, creating both hysterics in the audience and the character.

"I have everything now," Moreno said. "I have health, family, friends." He refuses to talk about his wealth. "I am not interested in money — I am happy giving the audience happiness."

Sino-Albanian Relations Weakening

HONG KONG (UPI) — When Chinese-Albanian friendship was in full flower, China's late Premier Chou En-lai described it as "the greatest and sincerest friendship in the world."

"It has stood the test of time," Chou said in a 1970 speech, and "will blossom forever."

Only a few months before he died in late 1976, Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung said Sino-Albanian friendship was "inexhaustible and truly invincible."

The Chinese Communist party newspaper, Peoples Daily, said, "The militant unity and revolutionary friendship between the Chinese and Albanian peoples are based on Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism and have stood the test of violent storms. They are, therefore, unbreakable."

Albania's Communist party strongman leader, Enver Hoxha, was just as effusive in his assessment of his nation's ties with China.

"Neither the long distance of thousands of miles, nor high mountains and oceans can block us. We shall always be together like blood brothers, in sunny days or difficult times," he said.

No matter how glowingly they spoke of the relationship between China and Albania, it was only a marriage of convenience that was doomed to eventual divorce.

Divorce may not yet be at hand, but formal separation came Thursday (July 13) when China announced an abrupt end to a program that pumped more than $5 billion in economic and military aid into the tiny Balkan country in about 20 years.

It was the ideology that brought them so close together which is driving them apart.

China and Albania found solace in each other when Stalinism and the cult of the individual came under attack by the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the 20th congress of the Soviet Communist party in 1956.

China became Albania's sole supporter when the Soviet Union tried to expel Albania from the Communist camp. As China's ideological rift with the Soviet Union widened and spread from party to state relations, Sino-Albanian friendship flowered to the fullest.

Chinese leaders backed up their words with an aid program that was second in volume only to Peking's assistance to Vietnam. That program, incidentally, was cancelled little more than a month before Thursday's announcement of the termination of aid to Albania and withdrawal of all technicians and military advisers.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry note announcing the end of the aid to Albania was couched in terms that sounded more in sorrow than anger.

It said China agreed to build 142 complete projects and had completed 91 of them to date. Another 23 were "in the main completed or under construction" when the aid was stopped.

China supplied more than 1.8 million tons of food grains to Albania even when there were shortages at home. More than 1 million tons of steel products were sent to Albania "when there was not enough steel to meet our own needs at home."

While Chinese farmers worked their fields by hand or with draught animals, China sent more than 10,000 tractors to Albania. Although short of power at home, the Chinese built power stations with a capacity of generating 885,000 kilowatts in Albania.

"We provided your armed forces with new China-made tanks and interceptors even before our own armed forces were equipped with them," the note said.

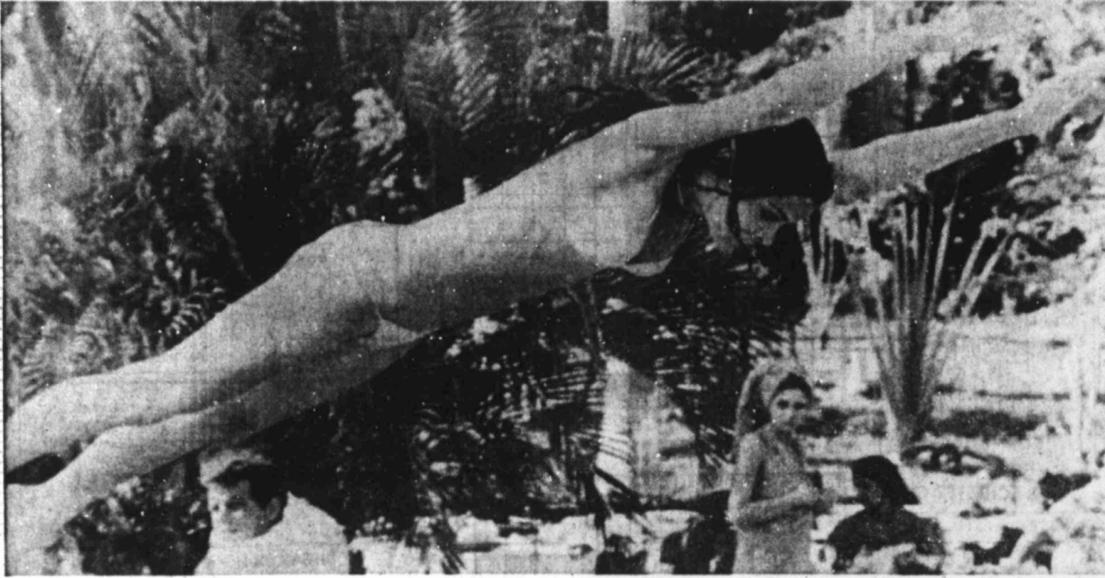

Almost 6,000 Chinese technicians and military advisers were sent to Albania and more than 2,000 Albanians were trained in China. On and on, the list went, in seemingly painful terms.

This generous outpouring of assistance was repaid, the note lamented, with "venomous public attacks" on China's "domestic and foreign policies," starting after Mao's death in late 1976.

The simple fact is, the leaders of the two countries are now on different ideological wave lengths.

China is as anti-Soviet as ever. But the Chinese have forged a new foreign policy in the post-Mao era that calls for closer relations with the United States and Western Europe, and Yugoslavia, one of Albania's prime enemies.

Some diplomats also see another reason — more pragmatic and somewhat selfish — for the Chinese decision to cut off aid to Albania as well as Vietnam. The Chinese need everything they have, and more, to achieve the ambitious development goals they have set for the end of the century.

Indians Set Plans For Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beside teepees erected on the Washington monument grounds, elders of American Indian tribes observed a day of prayer Sunday with traditional sunrise ceremonies and completed plans for weeklong demonstrations for Indian rights.

The elders led an estimated 2,500 Indians and friends to the monument groups Saturday to climax their "Longest Walk," a transcontinental march started in California Feb. 11 for political protest and religious observance.

Monday the Indians plan to march on Capitol Hill to present their "Native American manifesto" stressing their rights and opposing legislation they feel will open up their reservations to exploitation by mining companies.

During the week they also plan to demonstrate in front of the Supreme Court and FBI headquarters and to march to the White House to present a sacred peace pipe to officials.

The elders held religious ceremonies throughout Sunday to consecrate the Washington Monument grounds "so they can overcome their strong obstacles," an Indian organizer said.

He said 50 teepees were to be erected "at some time" during the day.

"The Indians have a certain sense of timeliness about things, you know," he said.

Many Washington churchgoers said prayers for the Indians.

Most of the Indians were bussed to a suburban campsite in Maryland Saturday night to take advantage of overnight camping facilities.

About 20 Indians including some elders, camped at the Washington Monument grounds Saturday night, with elders in a single teepee and handful of tents.

A dozen barechested Indian braves slept outside in sleeping bags.

Indian women wearing bright yellow and blue outfits, with their dark hair angling down or in braids, cooked food over an open, smoking wood fire in front of the teepee.

Despite rainy weather, small crowds of tourists — many foreign — gathered around the fenced off Indian campsite.

Some Indians said their food supplies — much of which has been donated by charitable groups — often had been meager throughout their cross country trek.

One Indian organizer estimated it costs $1,000 a day to feed the Indians.

Natural Gas Truck Crash Kills Four

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A tank truck carrying natural gas flipped over and exploded on a highway Sunday, killing at least four people and seriously injuring 200 others in an inferno that destroyed three passenger buses and two homes.

The ball of fire that spread from the tanker carried for half a mile, police said. The accident happened 53 miles north of Mexico City.

Authorities said the tanker began to zig-zag on the four-lane highway as it headed toward the capital, then overturned and exploded. Flaming gas engulfed the truck.

Police said the tanker's driver was killed in the explosion. Three other bodies found were charred beyond recognition, they said.

The explosion of the truck tore off the roofs of two nearby homes. Police said they saw blood in the ruins but no trace of any bodies.

Authorities said most of the injured, who were rushed to hospitals for treatment, received second-degree burns.

A policeman at the scene said the accident might have been caused by a tire blowout.

The three buses carried 123 passengers, police said. The accident happened at 2:05 a.m. Sunday.

There are about 225 species in the Zygophyllaceae family of herbs, shrubs and trees.
