

High GSA Executive Loses Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the problem-riddled General Services Administration fired his top aide today because of differences over how to run the agency, a GSA source said.

GSA Administrator Jay Solomon dismissed Robert T. Griffin this morning after Griffin refused to retire.

Solomon, appointed to the top job at GSA by President Carter last year, issued a "retire or be fired" ultimatum in a hand-delivered letter to Griffin Thursday night.

"Because of the differences of opinion which continue to exist between you and myself regarding management of the General Services Administration," Solomon wrote, "I request that you take advantage of the retirement benefits for which you are eligible as a result of your 35 years of public service."

"Should you decide not to do so, I will have no choice but to terminate your employment," he wrote.

Griffin, a 35-year veteran of the agency, refused to accept the letter, said the source who did not wish to be identified.

Then Solomon dismissed Griffin this morning.

"Solomon thought people didn't think he was in charge. He had to take over... particularly in light of these investigations," the source said.

But in a statement, Solomon said he did not fire Griffin, 61, because any allegations of misconduct.

"I want to make it clear that this action is not related to any allegations of impropriety or wrongdoing on the part of Mr. Griffin. He is a man of high moral character and personal integrity."

Probes by law enforcement agencies, a congressional subcommittee and an internal GSA task force have turned up evidence of corruption, fraud, bribery, extortion and theft in the operations of the agency, which spends $5 billion a year as the government's chief landlord and central supply store.

Griffin had originally been in charge of the internal investigation of the scandals, but Solomon relieved him of that job and brought in former federal prosecutor Vincent Alito to head the probe.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, a personal friend of Griffin's, had pushed for Griffin's appointment as head of GSA before Carter named Solomon, a real estate company executive to the top post. Griffin was then given the assistant administrator's job.

School Finance Plan Approved

AUSTIN (AP) — House debate over a constitutional amendment on property tax relief has turned into one of those marathons that sometimes afflict the state Legislature.

Representatives went into their third day of debate today after working seven hours Wednesday and five hours Thursday without reaching a final vote.

But the House very quickly disposed of an issue that tied it up for hours Thursday. Sponsors accepted an amendment requiring the state to reimburse school districts for revenue dried up by homestead tax exemptions.

Then the House turned to an amendment by Rep. Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, that mandates a tax on oil refineries to reimburse school districts for money they would lose on property tax relief.

Senators, meanwhile, whipped out their version of the property tax relief package Thursday in about two hours, quickly agreeing 29-0 on a "compromise" produced by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The Senate then adjourned for the weekend.

For the voters to get a final say on the property tax relief question at the Nov. 7 election, both houses must agree on the same proposal and approve it by a two-thirds vote in each chamber.

The House calendar for today also included Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto's massive bill to create uniformity in appraisal of property for taxation. Peveto, however, indicated he was having second thoughts about pushing for the bill, which is acquiring serious opposition.

"I'm just so disgusted by the whole thing," Peveto said as the House quit Thursday after two days of debating and bickering.

Senators voted, 16-10, for a resolution adjourning the special session at 6 p.m. Tuesday and sent it to the House. Hobby said he and House Speaker Bill Clayton had agreed to try to end the session a week before its Aug. 8 adjournment deadline.

Price Index Rise Jolts Consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose 0.9 percent for the third month in a row in June, as the average worker continued to lose ground to inflation, the Labor Department said today.

The cost of food, housing and automobiles led the big increases in prices, which have continued steadily since the start of the year.

Consumer prices would rise 11.4 percent if the trend of the past three months continued for a full year, the department said.

The Carter administration predicts price increases will not be as large in the next six months and is banking on a downturn in food costs.

G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee today that his "best guess" is that prices in the next 12 months will rise between 7 percent and 7.75 percent, slightly higher than the administration's 7.2 percent forecast.

"If we pursue a course that does not soon contain the forces accelerating the advance of prices, the result will be increasing economic disruption and distortion, ending in all probability in serious recession," Miller testified.

The three months ended in June had the highest inflation rate since the September-October-November quarter of 1974. In those three months, the Consumer Price Index rose 1.2, 0.9 and 0.9 percent respectively.

The department said the average worker's purchasing power declined 0.4 percent in June, the second drop in a row. The worker made 0.5 percent more in hourly wages, just over half the increase in prices.

The prices consumers pay for food jumped sharply by 1.3 percent last month, and beef prices continued to spiral by 5.6 percent.

"Beef prices this June were 30.7 percent higher than in October 1977, when the current uptrend began," the Labor Department said.

The cost of poultry, dairy products, cereal, bread, oils and sugar increased in June, but prices of vegetables, pork, eggs and coffee declined from May.

Home-ownership costs rose 1.2 percent in June, as housing prices and mortgage interest rates continued to move up.

Electricity costs, which have risen rapidly since January, climbed a substantial 2.6 percent in June, the department said.

A mail rate increase pushed postal costs up 14 percent, the first big increase since early 1976.

Natural gas and fuel oil prices rose moderately, while telephone charges were unchanged, as they have been most of the year.

New-car prices went up 0.9 percent after rising 1.2 percent in May, reflecting

Murder Shocks UPI Reporter

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The name of the UPI staffer who wrote this story is being withheld as a safety precaution.)

DENVER (UPI) — I came a little too close to a news story this morning. I witnessed a murder and I'm scared.

I was awakened by a loud popping noise about 3 a.m. I got out of bed and peeked out my bedroom window to see a man curbed up on the lawn in front of the apartment next door. He moaned and murmured what sounded like a name.

A second man came off the porch next door, circled the man on the lawn, walked toward the victim's feet and fired a small pistol point-blank into the prone man's head.

The man with the gun took about five strides to a car parked in front of the apartment, got in the passenger's side and the car drove slowly away with only its parking lights on.

I watched the empty street. There was silence... dead silence... along the row of homes and duplex apartments on my block.

I groped my way in the dark to my phone and called Emergency 911. I reported a shooting and went back into my bedroom to wait for police... still in the dark. I was afraid to turn on the lights.

The events that followed are being kept out of my story. As a reporter, I have an obligation to report what I see. As a citizen, I have an obligation to protect police evidence.

There is no suspect in custody. The victim remains unnamed until his family is notified.

During my career as a journalist, I have often wondered why witnesses to crime don't step forward or can't remember any details of what they saw.

Now I know. My thoughts were confused. I was shaking when I picked up the phone and thought about getting involved.

It is dreadful to see a man murdered. My first thought was that it was a joke, party revelers just kidding around. The realization that it wasn't a joke was frightening.

What kind of car? What color? Did you see the driver? What did the man with the gun look like? What was he wearing?

Police asked me a barrage of questions. There is a bright street light on the corner, but I could only give a general description of the man and the car. In an attempt to gain my composure, I didn't pay attention to details.

I followed a homicide detective to police headquarters. I sat down at a typewriter in a large empty room to make my statement. The detective said he would be in touch.

What's next? Will I be called for a police lineup? Will there be retaliation for my testimony? Will my property be safe while I am at work writing this story?

The cream-heavy coffee I drank didn't calm my nerves. I witnessed a murder and I'm scared.

Begin Downplays Blast By Egyptian President

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin was quoted today as welcoming Egypt's willingness to continue President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative despite Sadat's attacks on the Israeli leadership.

In a nationally broadcast speech Thursday, Sadat called Israeli leaders "thugs," and said, "the day will never come" when Egypt will trade Arab land for peace.

The Israeli leader's reported reaction to Sadat's sarcasm-laced speech in Alexandria apparently was a continuation of Israel's effort to appear calm in the face of sharp comments and actions emanating from Cairo.

Earlier in the week, Sadat expelled a group of Israeli military technicians based in Cairo since the breakdown of peace talks in January. They were reportedly used as a conduit for peace feelers.

"Despite personal attacks Sadat has directed at me, I welcome his readiness to continue the peace initiative," the Yediot Aharonot newspaper quoted Begin as saying. Begin also has sought to play down the importance of Sadat's expulsion of the military delegation.

In his Alexandria speech, Sadat referred to Arab territories occupied by Israel since the Six-Day War of 1967 as stolen land.

"The land is stolen, and then, like what happens in our countryside, some wise guys come along and steal someone's animal," Sadat said. "Then they send for the owner and tell him to pay a tribute. God! The animal belongs to the man."

The Egyptian leader said the thief "is a thug and looks frightening and he shoots guns but this tribute thing does not apply to my land. I say whoever does this, finish him off."

Sadat's parable drew applause and laughter from several hundred students and professors in the audience at the University of Alexandria.

Sadat said he wanted to tell all Jewish people that he would not give up his peace initiative. But he added, "Israel has no right to one inch of land and the day will never come — under any conditions — that the guarantees of peace will include one inch of Arab land."

Egypt has demanded that Israel withdraw from all occupied territory while Israel has insisted that all the land cannot be returned for security reasons. Israel recently offered three major concessions, however, including a compromise on the West Bank.

Meanwhile, the American roving mediator, Ambassador Alfred Atherton Jr., left for Cairo.

Mahon Says Defense Funds 'Adequate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arguments over whether to build a giant aircraft carrier are going to get another hearing on the House floor as part of debate on the largest appropriations bill in the nation's history.

The measure is a $119.4 billion defense spending bill approved by the House Appropriations Committee on Thursday for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. The amount is $9.4 billion higher than the current appropriation — until now the single largest spending bill.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, the panel's chairman, said it is both "appalling and exciting" that the United States must spend such large sums on national defense when there is no war and none is expected. He called the appropriation "fully adequate at the present."

The measure includes $40.2 million that had been sought by the administration to test the suitability of civilian jumbo jets to carry cruise missiles. The House already has voted against money for the program, so the issue will be thrashed out again on the floor.

President Carter junked the B-1 bomber program in favor of the cruise missile last year, over the bitter opposition of many House members. Mahon was a staunch supporter of the B-1 until Carter effectively killed the project. Later, Mahon voted against an attempt to keep the B-1 program alive by funding three additional planes for development and testing.

PROTEST MARCH FAILS — Hundreds of fired San Antonio garbage men, their families and supporters march to city hall Thursday to protest City Manager Tom Huebner's firing of striking workers. The demonstration failed, however, as the city council took no action on demands to oust Huebner. The protesters threatened another march today. (AP Laserphoto)

The only argument during the committee's final mark-up of the legislation was whether to spend $2.1 billion for a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier that already has been authorized in earlier House and Senate votes. The issue was a major topic of debate in the House's consideration of the authorization bill.

Mahon said he was told by President Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown that the administration does not want any carrier this year. The chairman said that as a "fallback position," the administration would support construction of an oil-fired carrier, which would be smaller and less expensive than a nuclear model.

Supporters of a new ship said the administration already plans to buy an oil-powered carrier next year. They argued that a nuclear carrier is more combat-effective and would be cheaper over the long run than an oil-fired ship.

Critics argued that the nuclear ship is too costly. They also said there was no need to appropriate the money now because the likely contractor, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., could not build the carrier before the 1980s.

The vulnerability of aircraft carriers in a future conflict has been a major issue in the controversy. Critics of the flat-tops say they would be easy targets for enemy warplanes, submarines and missiles. Advocates counter that the carriers' mobility, plus increased armament and detection devices, would give them a reasonable chance for survival.

After nearly three hours of debate, the panel voted a 26-26 tie on an amendment to kill funds for any type of carrier. The deadlock left the money intact.

The committee then voted 38-0 against an amendment to build the oil-fired ship in place of a nuclear ship.

Overall, the appropriations bill includes $7.2 billion for military payrolls and benefits; $16.1 billion for pensions and other payments for retired personnel; $37.3 billion for maintenance and operation; $32.1 billion for weapons procurement and $12.2 billion for research and development.

Hiss Wants Conviction Overturned

NEW YORK (AP) — Alger Hiss is asking a U.S. District Court to overturn his 30-year-old conviction on charges he lied about his alleged Communist past.

His petition Thursday is based on new information acquired through the Freedom of Information Act. It claims that he did not get a fair trial and the government's chief prosecutor concealed evidence and misled the court.

"This is a moment I have been waiting for for nearly 30 years," Hiss said Thursday.

His petition relates to testimony by Whittaker Chambers, a former espionage courier for Soviet agents in the United States and to the typewriter on which Hiss allegedly typed State Department documents he allegedly passed on to Chambers.

Hiss was indicted by a grand jury in 1948 following testimony by Chambers before the House Un-American Activities Committee that he had known Hiss as a Communist Party member in the 1930s.

"I have now for the first time the documentary evidence that proves the falsity of Chambers' charges against me," said Hiss, now 73 and living in Massachusetts as a printing salesman and law consultant. He served 3 years, 8 months of a five-year sentence.

New York Honors Yul Brynner

NEW YORK (AP) — Royalty visited City Hall. Well, almost.

Mayor Edward Koch referred to his guest Thursday as "Your majesty," "King of Siam" and "King of Broadway."

But Yul Brynner is the first to admit there's no royal blood flowing through his veins, just grease paint.

The star of the Broadway revival of "The King and I" was presented the city's Bronze Medallion for his contributions to the theater and his efforts to help refugees throughout the world.

"To be King of Siam and King of Broadway is great," Koch said.

Brynner responded, "In the play the king says, 'When one does not know what to say, it is time to be silent.' So I'll just say I'm deeply moved and deeply gratified."

Council Battles Oral Roberts

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Evangelist Oral Roberts may have to pray harder. His plan to build a hospital here faces a formidable legal challenge.

The Tulsa Area Hospital Council was to go into court today to try to reverse an April 26 decision permitting Roberts to proceed with his hospital plan.

The hospital is one of three buildings the evangelist plans adjacent to Oral Roberts University at a cost of $250 million. The other structures are a medical arts building and doctors' center.

The hospital council opposes the hospital, saying it will create surplus beds in the area, escalating already high medical costs.

Roberts doesn't buy that argument, insisting that the hospital appeared in a religious vision. He said God told him: "You must build a new and different medical center for Me. The healing streams of prayer and medicine must merge through what I will have you build."

Amy Takes Part In Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was an evening of lectures, singing and banner waving by local youngsters taking part in a summer reading program for gifted children. One of the children was Amy Carter and on hand were President Carter and his wife.

The Carters spent 90 minutes at the Sidwell-Friends School Thursday night, where Amy is attending the program sponsored by the George Washington University Reading Center.

Sharon Metcalf, a White House press office staff member, said Amy introduced the singing of the Woody Guthrie song, "This Land is Your Land," and the Carters sang along with the 15 children and approximately 50 guests in the classroom. They also sang "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Amy recited a myth about the sun and the moon, Miss Metcalf said. No reporters were allowed in the classroom.

Proxmire 'Praises' New York

WASHINGTON (AP) — Could this really be U.S. Sen. William Proxmire? Nemesis of New York? Ardent opponent of a federal bail out for the Big Apple?

There he was on the Senate floor Thursday actually managing the $1.65 billion aid bill and rhapsodizing about "such a marvelous, pluralistic city."

He didn't stop there. "I think there is no city in the world like New York." He spoke glowingly of its "marvelous skyline," its "amazing, spectacular variety of human beings," of Damon Runyons, Billy Roses, Walter Winchells.

"No place else can you have a better time," he said. "It is a great place to live, too. That is the place to go, if you want a challenge."

Ah, but is that a crease forming at the senator's mouth? "If New York has one quality above all," he concluded, "it is that fantastic brass, that ability to con you into buying the Brooklyn Bridge, con you into a $1.65 billion (aid) guarantee."

A guarantee that the Senate approved following the Proxmire performance.

This Dog Is All Ears

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — "Muffin" is a mongrel who earns his keep as his owner's alarm clock and fire detector.

And he doesn't have to bark. His new owner, Dubuque dentist Jim Snyder, wouldn't hear him. He's deaf.

"Muffin" is one of 50 hearing dogs that have been donated to deaf people across the nation. American Humane Association spokeswoman Sandy Kilstrup Thursday said the dog's five-month training program cost $2,500.

"Muffin was put to the test Thursday when he jumped on his master's bed as the alarm clock went off."

"It's a lot better than waking up to a flashing light," said Snyder, explaining that he had to rely on a specially rigged clock that would shine a bright beam in his face every morning.

Ford Says Inflation Top Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford, who says he may try to recapture the White House, says inflation probably will be the No. 1 issue in the 1980 presidential campaign.

"Don't count me out," he declared Thursday.

In public appearances in the Washington area, Ford stepped up the attack he has been pressing in recent months against the administration and policies of his successor, with a distinct political edge to his words.

"Retirement isn't all that bad," Ford said, "and I would recommend it to President Carter at the earliest possible time."

Ford said the economy is shaping up as Carter's Achilles' heel and as a national concern.

"I believe the most serious question facing this country today is inflation," the former president said. "And unless the administration does a better job in fighting inflation, that will be a major issue, if not the major issue, in 1980."

Ford also said Carter was "pointing his finger at the wrong villain," by concentrating more on asking business and labor to hold down price and wage demands than on trimming government spending.

On foreign policy, Ford said it was too soon to know for sure what would be at issue two years from now, but he said "I don't see any significant successes (by Carter) in the foreign policy field."

Ford said "the big issue in foreign policy and military policy in 1980, in my view, is going to be the dangerous slowdown in the planning for our future capability in the military field."

Specifically, Ford criticized Carter's decisions to cancel the B-1 bomber, slow the development of the MX ballistic missile and reduce the Navy's shipbuilding program.

Ford made his comments in a speech to the Independent Truckers Association and later in a panel program arranged by the Business-Industry Political Action Committee.

Ford, reflecting similar statements he has made since he left office 18 months ago, said he hasn't made up his mind about trying a comeback in 1980. But he dropped broad hints that he's interested.

"Don't count me out and don't count me in," he said. "I'm healthy, I'll be around, and I won't duck any responsibility."

Christina Confirms Upcoming Wedding

MOSCOW (AP) — Greek millionairess Christina Onassis, after dismissing the idea as preposterous for weeks, said today she would marry a Soviet bureaucrat next week in Moscow, a French journalist reported.

"I am getting married on Tuesday," the 27-year-old Miss Onassis was quoted as saying by French television correspondent Gabriel Meretik, who contacted her early this morning before she slipped out of her hotel.

Well-informed sources had said early this month the shipping heiress would marry Sergei Kazov, a former employee of the tanker division of the Soviet freight firm Sovfrakht.

Repeated telephone calls today to Miss Onassis' suite at the Intourist Hotel to confirm the report got no answer.

She first arrived here five weeks ago, and since then she had either refused to speak with the press or called the reports of her marriage absurd or preposterous. But it was said she came to complete necessary paperwork, including documentation of her two previous divorces. She said when she arrived June 25 she would leave July 20.

Miss Onassis and Kazov posed for pictures in her hotel room Thursday for the British newspaper the Daily Mail. Its correspondent wrote a story implying the marriage was set for next week in a Soviet palace of weddings.

The French correspondent said Miss Onassis told him she wanted no newspapers at her wedding. When asked about her previous apparent denials of marriage plans, Miss Onassis explained that she did not like people talking about her private life, Meretik said.

She disclosed that the honeymoon would be in the Soviet Union but declined to say where, Meretik said. Soviet sources said the couple would go to Lake Baikal in Siberia.

The millionairess had said Thursday she would hold a news conference next Tuesday "to clear up a lot of the stories about me."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

No Mercy For Merciless

IT WASN'T on the agenda. And it does not, at least directly, have anything to do with economics. But the agreement on joint action to counter skyjacking could well turn out to be the most meaningful long-term development of the seven-nation Bonn economic summit.

At this point, there really isn't much to it—merely a three-paragraph statement in which the seven leaders express their concern over terrorism and hostage-taking and pledge their governments to halt air traffic to and from countries failing to deliver up skyjacked and skyjacked aircraft promptly.

IT COULD, however, mark the real beginning of an effective international program to bring under control a problem which so far has defied efforts at solution by international bodies, including the UN.

Already there are in existence a number of multi-nation agreements on air piracy. Their weakness is that they focus on countries in which skyjackers seek haven, with compliance remaining voluntary.

Furthermore, the really crucial nations—those prone to provide shelter—have declined to join the team.

THE BONN declaration is the first to commit its parties to meaningful sanctions. The seven nations do not control world air commerce. But, just as they carry the most economic clout in the non-Communist world, so are they more equal than others in the airways.

The severing of air connections would not in itself bring the government of either Algeria or Libya—to name two countries especially hospitable to skyjackers—to its knees.

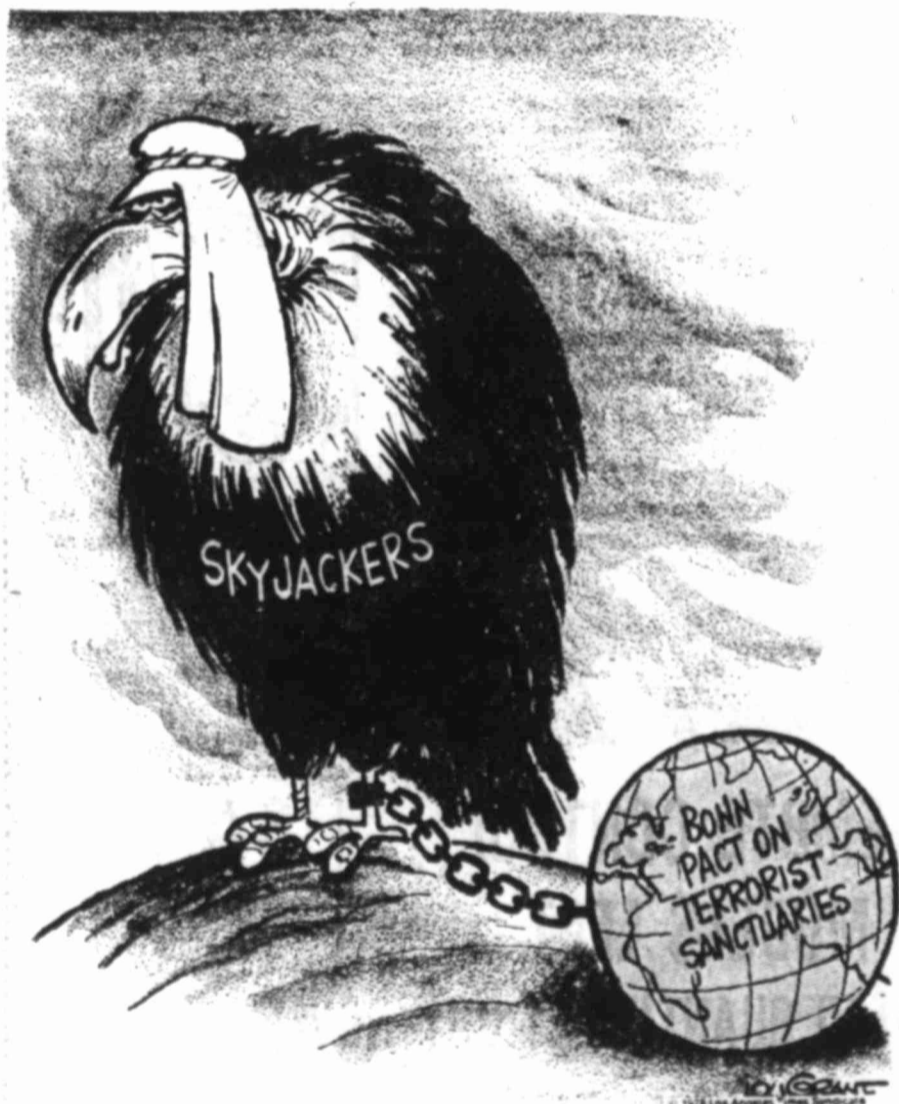

But it would hurt, and it would brand an offender as no carefully vague UN resolution is likely ever to do.

DETAILS OF the implementation still are to be worked out. And there is some bad news.

It is agreed that to be effective, the compact can allow no exceptions. It must apply to aircraft seized in totalitarian countries by people seeking asylum in the West. Nevertheless, the skyjacking agreement was a particularly gratifying development for the U.S., which had been thinking of pushing for similar action in the UN but without much hope of getting it through.

President Carter, indulging in a bit of diplomatic hyperbole, declared the skyjacking agreement alone "worth the entire preparation and conduct of the summit." Given adequate follow-through and a little luck, however, he could be right.

James J. Kilpatrick:

An Offer I Couldn't Refuse

(Editor's Note: Mr. Kilpatrick, who now practices law, recently went to his first horse race. There he encountered the shade of the late Damon Runyon.)

CHARLES TOWN, W.VA.—One morning about four bells, I am sitting at my desk minding my own business, when the telephone rings and it is Big Bernie with a proposition.

Big Bernie is called Big Bernie because he is a little guy, which is the way it usually is, and this time he has a proposition that surprises me more than somewhat.

"Me and my ever-loving wife," says Big Bernie, "are going to the Charles Town races tonight, and we would be pleased if you and your lady would accompany us thither, there to make a few prudent investments."

"Why, Big Bernie," I says, "in all my life I have never set foot in a parimutuel establishment. I would not know a furlong from a fetlock. In fact, I have not so much as looked at a horse since I summered with the horse-drawn Field Artillery at Fort Riley in 1946."

"BESIDES, IT IS well known to all and sundry that I am a very close man with a dollar and do not gamble except on sure things."

But Big Bernie insists, and he says furthermore that as a pundit I should enlarge my education, so what with one thing and another, we motor to Charles Town, which is in the state of West Virginia, and arrive at this establishment in time to take about a few libations and some very super-cracabacks.

Big Bernie and his ever-loving wife are nodding and speaking to old friends, and exchanging advice on impending investments, and it develops that they are horse players from very far back.

Indeed, the ever-loving wife, whose name is Little Jane because she is by no means a puny doll, was raised with the giddypads and once owned a few racing whinnies of her own.

And of course we are happy to be in the company of such persons as know how to make prudent investments.

BIG BERNIE HAS furnished all of us with copies of a newspaper called the Daily Racing Form, and I read this journal with amazement. It is like reading the stocks in the Wall Street Journal, but the scribes who produce the Racing Form provide ten times as much data.

After Big Bernie explains the code, I am translating such lines as "Proud Exchange July 28 CT sly :24 :48 4/5 :55 3/5 Md 7500" as if I had been following the bangtails all my life, which is not so.

This newspaper also carries the prognostications of the expert scribes who study the form charts and offer investment counsel.

And being a newspaper scribe myself, I am much impressed by their wisdom and decide to invest accordingly.

In the first race, the leading expert, writing under the nom de plume of Trackman, recommends a horse by the name of Sporty Native. I make a sporty wager on his nose.

MEANWHILE, MY ever-loving wife puts two dollars of the pickle money on Bold Kevin, because we have a son of the same name.

Sporty Native runs last. Bold Kevin runs first. Trackman has picked Rough and Rocky to win in the second; he finishes fifth. He has picked Fair Native in the third; Fair Native finishes tenth and would have finished fifteenth except that only ten horses are running in the third at Charles Town.

This experience shakes my faith in Trackman, so I shift to the advice of three other pundits who like Mister Fox in the fourth. Mister Fox finishes sixth.

In the seventh, the experts are united upon Pep Talk to win, but Pep Talk is out of money. Finally we get to the last race and I switch to Ajax, the expert from my own Washington Star, and he likes Maestro Magic.

THIS TURKEY RUNS ninth out of ten starters, but he is just behind the favorite Wagooloo at that.

While these disasters are befalling, my true and ever-loving has O'Biscuit on the nose because it is a nice Irish name.

She has Spare Time Lady to place in the third because a girl jockey is up, and that pays $31.20, which is nice scratch for a $2 investment.

By the time Khuskin has won the ninth, mama is talking like Howard Cosell and trading winks with one and all. Little Jane has hit an Exacta, and Big Bernie has made a wad on Quipster in the fourth.

Well, I says to Big Bernie, that was an education all right, though I did not expect to spend fifty smackers to receive it, and he says, well, it was worth it to you as a reminder of the fallibility of newspaper scribes.

Never put absolute faith, he says, in anything a pundit says. I pass the lesson along.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

'Scissors, Please'

ONE CLEAR impression emerges from a conversation with Gene Medley: He's not going to let himself get pinned down.

Medley is the spokesman for the Lubbock Property Owners Association, which has demanded a 25 percent reduction in city ad valorem taxes.

Ask him to say what programs, services or personnel he'd cut to effect a $5.5 million savings in the city budget, though, and Medley talks and talks without getting specific.

"I can't intelligently make that decision," he says finally. "What we want is the best government at the lowest possible price."

As to the possible budget reductions prepared by City Mgr. Larry Cunningham for the public's and the City Council's response, Medley says "a lot of those things I agree with, others I don't."

Again, though, he is not specific.

"THERE ARE JUST so many areas that may need re-thinking," he says. "Around my house, if we get short on money we re-think what we buy..."

The impression thus grows that the Property Owners Association—insofar as Medley is concerned, at least—isn't going to be too insistent about wholesale budget cuts at a preliminary hearing Monday.

"I've gotten more education in city government in the last four weeks than I knew existed," says Medley, who is associate director of admissions and records at Texas Tech.

Holmes Alexander:

Stennis Won't Straddle Defense

WASHINGTON—Don't despair of the country, don't jump off the cliffs of pessimism, don't even get trigger happy from anxiety, so long as we've got Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., as chairman of Armed Services.

This is the feeling I brought away from the gallery after hearing this veteran open the debate for military procurement in the fiscal year 1979.

The National Defense budget request of $125.6 billion is just too big for comprehension by the general reporter who does not sit in all the subcommittee hearings.

It helps to know that the full committee has come forward with a net increase of $596 million, or two percent over the President's request—and it helps to know the reason why, as Stennis explained it.

BUT ASIDE FROM money and percentages—which, of course, are important—I have a personal reason for not getting desperate about our national security. The sense of calm stays with me as long as I keep the memory of this wise and patient man at his place at the rear-center of the Senate chamber.

Stennis represents to me the informed intelligence of the Congress assembled, the good sense that lurks in the citizenry of our republic, despite almost daily assaults upon that optimistic belief.

I shall not embarrass him or myself by hyperbole or eulogist and to show my bone fides here, I confess that it wasn't too long ago when I hoped this admired judicious personality would retire, not seek re-election.

He is past the Biblical age limit when physical and mental stamina deserts the strongest of us.

No, the reason for having utter confidence in Chairman Stennis is that he is a Senate man, voked to his work, unheeding of siren calls to higher office.

JOHN STENNIS succeeded the late Richard Russell, but there was a time when Russell ogled the White House as the pinnacle of his distinguished career.

You can say it is a normal ambition, and so it is.

There were others. Millard Tydings of Maryland once had this chairmanship. Lyndon Johnson, never chairman of the full committee, was chairman of Preparedness, next door neighbor, and a good many persons knew that his thoughts were vagrant.

Other examples will occur, not always confined to the Armed Services committee, when absentee senators did not stay home to mind the store, let alone concentrate on the work at hand.

This is not going to happen to Stennis, and his ideas about his national responsibility are those we should all ponder. Ask who controls the size of the military budget, and Stennis will say—

That education apparently has brought him up against the same problem the City Council faces each year: In a budget that big, there's bound to be fat but finding it and not curtailing a service some citizens demand be continued is another matter.

MEDLEY ALSO CLEARS up a question as to what he thinks about City Manager Cunningham.

"I think that young man is in a terrible situation right now," he says. "But he must have been doing a lot of things right or the whole thing would have fallen apart...He seems like a super type guy."

By the time our conversation is over, I'm still at a loss to understand where the Lubbock property owners' tax revolt is headed.

If, however, it serves merely to get the entire city budget "re-thought" and acts as a counter-balance to those pressure groups which want ever-higher levels of spending, it will have served a useful purpose.

HOWEVER IT reacts to the city budget, I am nonetheless puzzled by the association's lack of interest in the school budget.

Medley, who has spent most of his 41 years in Lubbock (he was born here) and who taught at Lubbock High School for seven years, offers few clues.

At the time the group organized, he simply says, the city budget was on their minds and they just never did get around to anything else.

Yet, school taxes here are higher than city taxes and the school board has been talking all week about raising salaries especially generously and even adding personnel.

It seems logical that any group wanting to cut taxes would be at least as interested in the faster-growing of the two local budgets as it is in the one that provides such a diversity of services.

ANY TAXPAYER group really interested in economy in government, though, will have to look beyond Lubbock or even Texas—toward Washington.

State and local taxes in Texas are well below those in other states and cities. It's the federal budget that causes inflation and which is full of waste and extravagance.

As just one example, Sam Robbins says that Arianna Stassinopoulos, a writer with an economics degree, has figured out that annual expenditures for federal social welfare programs increased by $120 billion between 1960 and 1974.

"If that $120 billion increase were divided up among the 25 million American poor, she says, it would provide each with a yearly income of $4,800, or $19,200 for a family of four."

But, Sam, if the money all went to the poor, think of all the poor bureaucrats who'd be unemployed!

has said—that Russia writes these appropriations.

Ask where there is a modest increase in the Defense budget, and Stennis will say—has said—it is "prudent" to go for rising military expenditures even though they are already sufficient.

Ask why this should be, Stennis will note that a "delicate deterrent balance" has kept a 30-year peace between mortal enemies. He intends to deny the Soviets "any illusion of their superiority" which might give them rash ideas, or might make their arms control demands untenable.

Stennis is not so much counting the number of Soviet tanks, missiles, submarines and bombers as he is closely watching "technological innovations" which might take us by surprise.

Dare we relax our vigilance? No; but we can, from time to time, draw a comfortable breath that a man with no other ambition than to be Armed Services Chairman, is where he is.

Sylvia Porter:

APR Can Guide You On Interest-ing Tour

IN THIS, THE 10th anniversary year of the Truth-in-Lending Act, you can best celebrate passage of one of the most important consumer protection measures ever signed into law merely by asking and honestly answering this question: How thoroughly do you understand its two key credit terms?

(1) The finance charge: the amount of money the credit will cost you, meaning the total cost to you of the credit. But how do you compare the total cost of a 12-month loan with a 24-month loan?

(2) Through the second key term, the annual percentage rate or APR, which helps you compare credit costs no matter what the length of time over which payments are made.

The APR is a single rate which ties the finance charge to the amount you borrow and to the time period in which you have use of the funds.

The APR is not always the same as the interest rate, for it includes any other charges which may increase the cost to you and relates them to the time you actually use the money you borrow.

COMPLICATED? YES, but vital because the APR tells you the true cost of borrowing. It enables you to decide whether or not it's worthwhile for you to borrow and to compare lenders' charges.

Say, for instance, that you borrow $100 for one year at a simple 6 percent rate or $6. If you have use of all this money for the entire year, you are paying an annual percentage rate that is the same, 6 percent.

But if you repay the $106 in the familiar 12 monthly installments, you have, in effect, use of only about half the original amount for the year. So your annual percentage rate is 11 percent, even though the $6 charge for the credit remains the same.

You must be aware of the APR, its role as the measure of the true costs of borrowing, and use it, with the finance charge, as credit shopping tools.

EVERY LENDER must disclose the APR on all transactions.

But if you, the borrower, ignore it and don't use it to guide you to the least expensive loan, then this and all other disclosure rules in the law won't achieve their intended protection roles.

Even now, a full decade after Truth-in-Lending became law, many of you don't know the APR on your loans. A full 45 percent of you with auto, appliance, home improvements or personal loans did not know what annual percentage rate you were paying, a 1977 study showed.

Dismaying as this ignorance is, it is decreasing. The 45 percent compares with an astounding 85 percent who disclosed similar lack of knowledge a decade ago.

Thus, the T-L law has indeed heightened your awareness of costs, even though the law is far from satisfactorily effective.

IN RESPONSE, the Senate has passed a Truth-in-Lending Simplification Act which among other changes would require briefer, model disclosure forms to be issued by the Federal Reserve Board.

These forms, which could cut lenders' paperwork, would contain short explanations of such key terms as APR or Total of Payments.

The forms would make comparison shopping easier, although they would reduce the amount of information disclosed. The House is weighing similar bills.

In addition are these other problems:

* High pressure sales tactics which some lenders use to convince borrowers that optional expensive credit life insurance is essential to get a loan.

Read your contract, find out if insurance is required, do not sign the insurance authorization unless you want to.

* THE GROWING use of allegedly "spurious" open end credit plans, such as those used with credit cards, to sell such big-ticket items as pianos, hospital beds and encyclopedias sets.

While the credit plans give borrowers greater repayment flexibility, they also deprive you of such basic credit facts as the finance charge and total of payments—facts crucial to a decision on whether to borrow at all.

* The Controller of Currency has reported that since '69 many national banks may have miscalculated annual percentage rates, understating them to borrowers. He estimates that total overcharges from T-L violations may be as much as $32 million.

The proposed bills require enforcement agencies to order refunds—but they also limit the time period during which a refund can be ordered and restrict institutions' efforts in other ways some officials consider impractical.

Sirica Opens Ship Doors For Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says Congress erred in telling the Navy to keep women off its ships, although he concedes the Navy faces problems in planning for vessels that will carry both men and women as crew.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled on Thursday that it is up to the Navy to determine as it sees fit whether it wants to put women onto all types of naval vessels.

A law passed by Congress 30 years ago stipulates that women may serve only on transport and hospital vessels, all of which are now out of service.

It was not immediately certain whether Congress will move to amend the law in light of Sirica's ruling, but legislation is under consideration that would allow women on warships for several months at a time, provided the ships were not actually headed for combat.

Sirica's ruling made clear that there may still be "unanswered questions" in integrating women into the crews of all naval vessels, but he said such a development would be "no different than what's happening in college dormitories."

In a 38-page opinion, Sirica said that when Congress imposed a blanket prohibition on women serving at sea, "it acted without serious deliberation, against the express judgment of the military and ... it acted arbitrarily."

Sirica left it for the Navy, however, to decide whether "women members should be excluded from ... shipboard duties until such time as the vessels are properly equipped and crew members properly trained to accommodate their female counterparts."

The Navy had no immediate comment on the ruling.

But last March, Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee in favor of the legislation to allow women to serve on combat vessels for up to six months.

"Let's move now on this very small step that we've suggested," he told the military personnel subcommittee. He warned, however, that if the larger question of permanent placement of women on naval ships is taken up now, "we'll get into a very difficult, controversial row."

Sirica's ruling came in a suit brought by four Navy women who alleged that the Navy was discriminating against them as well as 21,800 other Navy women because federal law prohibits them from serving on Navy combat vessels.

The law restricts women to serving on transport and hospital ships.

Three-Alarm Fire Hits Gotham's Oldest Church

NEW YORK (AP) — The blackened, soot-filled shell of New York's oldest church was locked as artists and other neighbors sadly viewed the damage caused by a fire that caved in the roof of the 179-year-old landmark.

"It's a tragedy that words can't capture," said Arthur Tobier, a project coordinator for St. Mark's-in-the-Bowery Episcopal Church, as he surveyed the damage Thursday.

The church, often praised for its handsome Federal-style architecture, was built in 1799 over a vault containing the remains of Peter Stuyvesant, the last Dutch governor-general of New Amsterdam, as New York City was called until the British took over in 1664.

The three-alarm fire Thursday started above the second floor and quickly erupted through the roof, spewing masses of thick smoke. Firemen smashed centuries-old stained glass windows to save the structure.

The fire, which started in the steeple, was believed to have been started by an acetylene torch-used by workmen renovating the second floor. The exact cause is being investigated, officials said. St. Mark's is a vital part of its neighborhood, housing a developmental theater for new artists, as well as an internationally known poetry project and a crafts training program for young people which included supervised work restoring St. Mark's.

Catherine Glade said she went to the church often. "It is a sanctuary for the artists in this community," said the young actress.

Housing Authority Officials Lose Jobs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fourteen top officials of the San Francisco Housing Authority have been fired or demoted as the agency fields charges of financial mismanagement, including indications that nearly $150,000 in checks it wrote went unrecorded.

The shakeup, involving nearly half of the public housing agency's front office personnel, was approved Thursday by the city Housing Commission following two critical audits.

Those affected range from Ken C. Cavanaugh, the agency's $45,448-a-year deputy director who resigned under pressure, to $20,000-a-year staff members. The names of all 14 were not released, and it was not revealed how many would be fired and how many demoted.

"We're talking about general inefficiency and hopefully not more ... but we don't know," said commissioner Joan M. Byrnes.

A private accounting firm, hired by agency director Walter Scott to help straighten things out after the critical audits, found 55 unrecorded checks written by the authority, ranging from $74,864 to a general contractor, to $15 to individuals.

The unrecorded checks, most written from October through May, totalled almost $150,000.

State officials also said the authority was as much as nine months overdue on a total $356,000 it owes in contributions to the state Public Employees Retirement System.

An audit by city hall budget analyst Harvey Rose criticized the agency for paying its executives too much. That audit covered a period through September 1974, at which time Director Scott was making $52,500 a year and three of his top aides made salaries higher than $40,000.

Paper Cup Used In Magic Trick

For this magic trick, all you need is a single paper cup and a small ball made out of foil or paper. Cut away half of the bottom of the paper cup, and you are ready to go.

Turn the cup upside down, with the part of the bottom that is cut away toward the rear (away from the audience). Place your tin foil ball so that it rests on what remains of the bottom. The audience will not be able to tell that part of the bottom isn't there because they will see the ball sitting on what remains.

To perform this trick, reach over to get the ball so that the back of your hand blocks the audience's view of the ball. As you close your hand over what the audience thinks is the ball, slide the ball into the hole.

At this point the ball will be on the table inside the cup, and you will have made a fist out of your hand. Make a throwing gesture with your closed fist, as if you were throwing the ball into the cup. Open your fist to show the audience that the ball has disappeared, and then lift up the cup showing that the ball is now underneath.

Planning Institute Studies 'Science' Of Business

By JOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — At the Strategic Planning Institute they attempt to discern the laws of business, much as medical researchers learn the laws governing human health.

Into the electronic computers they pour the operating results of 1,500 business enterprises, many of them Fortune 500 companies and all members of the non-profit "club," as some call it.

"We are transforming the craft of business management into an applied science," said Sidney Schoeffler, executive secretary, a former General Electric executive and now a university professor.

"This data base permits a disciplined analysis of reality," he explained in the slow, careful manner of a man of science, striving neither to overemphasize nor understate.

"Out of it (the data analysis) comes the general laws, and it is these general laws that make application possible."

Some of the laws upset assumptions still held by business schools and practiced in business. Who, for instance, would find it easy to believe that modern technology is unprofitable? But it usually is.

"Businesses that are highly investment intensive, i.e., those that use higher levels of investment per dollar of sales revenue, are much less profitable than businesses with lower levels of investment per dollar of sales."

That's the law, and freely translated it means that heavy capital investments in modern technology, which we often look to as our economic savior, are relatively unprofitable for most companies.

Although reviewed many times before being issued, some members questioned the law. And yet, said Schoeffler, the phenomenon is "common, quite clear and extremely powerful." But unexpected.

What in fact happens, Schoeffler wrote to members, is that "public" benefits — higher wages, lower prices, higher quality — do occur, but "the expected private benefits do not occur."

Instead, the institute found "the profits of companies utilizing an investment-intensive technology are usually rather poor." And the reason? Such investments lead to almost "homicidal" competition.

In an investment-intensive facility, volume is commonly thought to be the key to profitability, Schoeffler continued, so the process "readily degenerates into a volume-grubbing contest" and price wars.

Some call it the "airline syndrome," because of the huge cost of airliners and the resulting pressure to keep them filled. But bulk chemical processing plants and consumer goods distributors also suffer.

The effect is not as observable in very good times, such as airlines are now enjoying. But, Schoeffler observes, "when good years are averaged with bad, the negative effect on profits is quite clear."

Other findings might sound equally controversial. What, for example, must trust-busters think when they learn that the more concentrated an industry, the more likely it will perform in the public interest?

Or, how do marketing people react to the knowledge that new product introductions generally should be limited to times when the company's market isn't growing, because the investment return is greater then?

The project was initiated in 1960 as an in-house effort by General Electric, but after a decade Schoeffler and his associates sought larger data bases by moving it to Harvard Business School. It became autonomous in 1975.

The institute now has more than 200 corporate members, large and small, who operate 1,500 product enterprises. Members contribute data and receive general and specific analyses in return.

Scores of company characteristics are studied, including such items as the market's growth rate and the company's share of it, and the company's degree of capital-intensity.

"We don't even know the names of the businesses in the model, and we don't know who runs them," said Schoeffler, an economist at the University of Massachusetts. "What matters are the characteristics."

Each business experience is documented in terms of actions taken, the nature of the market served, the kind of competitive environment and the financial results.

For membership fees of up to $15,000 a year, members obtain not only general research, but specific diagnoses of their major strengths and weaknesses, profitable expectations, and strategic alterna-

Said Schoeffler earnestly, "We are like doctors who develop statistics on what happens with caloric intake or with smoking." And, like physicians, they apply their findings to the patient's body.

Can the methods of medical research really be those of business too?

"Some of my colleagues and I are betting our professional reputations on this," the professor replied.

Yes, he said, there are scientific laws of business behavior.

Jogging Cited As Harmful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attention joggers: your hobby could cause such injuries as plantar fasciitis, shin splints and compartment syndrome as well as the better-known fractures, dislocations and sprains and strains.

Orthopedic surgeon Dr. Roger Michael of Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore, in an interview with U.S. News and World Report, warned that summer athletes who begin sports after a long lay-off are particularly prone to ailments.

Jogging, "the latest craze," is behind most injuries, he said.

He said joggers running with tennis shoes may develop plantar fasciitis — an inflammation of the supporting structures of the arch; or shin splints — believed to be an inflammation of the bone covering where the muscles attach.

He said a more serious joggers' condition is called compartment syndrome, and can lead to muscle death in the leg.

Michael said joggers should wear well-fitting running shoes with "a firm sole, adequate padding under the laces, an arch support and a built-up section around the heel to protect the Achilles' tendon," and that they should condition their feet and legs on a soft surface, and do systematic muscle stretching before they run.

'Tax Unfairness' Biggest Complaint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The main concern of the public about the tax system is what it perceives as its unfairness, according to a private survey announced Wednesday.

The survey, conducted by the Roper Organization, showed that on a scale of 1 to 10, the average taxpayer puts his tax anger index at 6.35.

It also showed that the average American ranks tax reform, or making the system fairer, as the third most important national goal behind fighting inflation and lowering the crime rate.

Krishnas Disown Robes For Suits

DENVER (AP) — Finding their orange and yellow robes a "barrier" between them and the public, members of the International Society of Krishna Consciousness are turning to suits and ties.

"It's not that we're compromising our standards," said Ramesh Vara, formerly Robert D. Grant — the name imprinted on his business card. "We still expect members to go by our four rules: a vegetarian diet, no gambling, no pre- or extra-marital sex, no intoxication and meditation and chanting for two hours a day."

Soviets Interfere With U.S. Letters To Dissidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is interfering with some mail from Americans to dissidents and Jews who want to emigrate, Postal Service and State Department representatives have told Congress.

Mark L. Schneider, deputy assistant secretary of state, said three official Soviet restrictions have been the subject of discussions between the two governments. They are:

- A 30 percent tax on money to Soviet citizens from abroad and a ban on sending coupons or checks that can be used at certain stores.
- Higher duties on gifts and regulations on how many items can be sent in one parcel. "This action effectively cuts off packages for thousands of Soviet citizens who had regularly received such packages from relatives in the United States," Schneider said.

— A ban for "health reasons" on packages containing bread products, such as matzoh, used for religious ceremonies. This measure was established just before Passover 1977, he said.

Schneider told a House post office subcommittee that one of the purposes of these measures was to curtail support from abroad for dissidents and "refuseniks," those who have been denied permission to emigrate.

H. Edgar Stock, director of the Postal Service's Office of International Postal Affairs, said the agency each year receives some 2,500 complaints about mail service to the Soviet Union.

"These complaints are more numerous and persistent than those concerning mail to any other country in the world," he testified.

He said the complaints include returning mail to senders when it could have been delivered, seizing mail that is not prohibited and reporting mail to have been delivered when the sender believes it hasn't been received.

Subcommittee chairman James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., said thousands of letters and parcels every year are mysteriously lost and delayed.

"It is safe to assume that a large number of Soviet Jews who have not been politically active have been deprived of the right to communicate with their family and friends in this country," he said.

Stock said U.S. postal authorities have complained to their Soviet counterparts, but have not lodged a complaint with the Universal Postal Union, the international mail organization.

Government Used Cars Mysterious

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — For the 23 rust-dotted vehicles that sat baking in the border sun, it was a chance to return to a respectable life.

For the 23 persons who bought the cars and trucks from Uncle Sam, it was an adventure.

"You know you're getting an unknown," said Ed Collier of Brownsville, who bought a pickup truck at the U.S. Customs auction here a few years back.

The vehicles and other assorted goods (and bads) were seized by customs officials at the border and rescued from a life of drug-running.

"That Mercedes had cocaine in it," senior inspector Ernest Tijerina said. The truck Collier bought contained 800 pounds of marijuana when it was seized.

But the 100 or so eager buyers here this week did not care about the vehicles' prior records. They were looking for cheap transportation or a car they could sell quickly for a profit.

"Some items are just about given away and others go for twice their value," Tijerina, the auctioneer, said. "People get carried away at an auction."

Tuesday's auction began with 19 boxes of assorted onyx goods — the kind that infest the souvenir shops across the bridge.

Carolyn Frizell of Brownsville quickly jumped into the bidding on the first box. She got it for $25 — the least expensive box of the day.

"I'll use them for Christmas gifts," she said as she began to survey her goods. "I don't even know what I got."

Tijerina hawked the merchandise as if he were a salesman in a Mexican market. "This one's got a lot of fruit. Make a nice dinner piece," he said as he combed through one carton of onyx.

"I guess these are pencil holders or something," he barked as he sold another box.

"This one's got Democrats," he said, holding up an onyx donkey.

The inspector-auctioneer said he has seen some quick profits made at these auctions.

"I saw a guy buy a box of binoculars for $6 each. He turned around and sold them for $15 each — just by making a few phone calls," he said.

Everything went. Uncle Sam disposed of confiscated onyx, water distillers, Ford ignition switches, sweaters, blouses and the vehicles.

About halfway through the onyx sale, small groups began gathering around the better cars — kicking the tires and checking under the hood.

The gamesmanship started as prospective buyers tried to discourage other prospective buyers. The theory is to tell the other guy the car looks like a dud — and then bid on it yourself.

The cars sold here were the bottom of the line. Tijerina said the better vehicles are kept for undercover use.

During the auction, Tijerina smoothly made the switch from Mexican trinket salesman to used car pusher.

"Here's a good fishing car," he said of one clunker.

"We'll start with $5 on this one. We ought to go all the way up to $10," he said about a car that later sold for $185.

But, like the trinkets, the cars sold quickly. The cocaine-toting Mercedes (minus the cocaine) went for $1,525 after rapid-fire bidding. The 1966 model appeared to be in good condition.

But many of the other vehicles looked less than new. Most have been on the lot for awhile and probably will not start.

Crime Plan's Price Tag Termed 'Low'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal study says the estimated annual price tag for a national program to compensate victims of violent crimes is $261 million — surprisingly low according to one top law official.

"The crime victim is very often a forgotten person and although the report shows that victims losses are generally minimal, it is often those who can least afford it who are crime victims," said James M.H. Gregg, acting administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which paid for the study.

FCC Denies Radio Station's License

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission says the license renewal applications of one of the nation's few black broadcast license holders showed "wanton, gross and callous" carelessness.

Because of that, the FCC said it was taking away the license of Golden Broadcasting Systems Inc. for renewal of the license of KOAD in Lemoore, Calif. It then issued a public notice inviting minorities or others to file for either interim or regular authority to operate the station.

Louisville Mayor Lied About Trip

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Despite his admission that he lied about an out-of-town trip with a female assistant at the start of a firefighters' strike, Mayor William Stansbury said he will remain in office and try to re-establish his credibility.

Some officials, however, including Gov. Julian Carroll, have suggested that Stansbury consider resigning in the wake of a newspaper account of the mayor's secret trip to New Orleans earlier this month.

Stansbury acknowledged to the Courier-Journal that he had lied about the trip. He earlier had maintained he was alone in Atlanta on official business.

Mary Ellen Farmer, the administrative aide who accompanied Stansbury on the trip, resigned from the mayor's staff Thursday. Mrs. Farmer is in her late 30s.

"I could very well be in the interests of not only the city of Louisville, but it would be in the interests of the Democratic Party that he strongly consider resigning," the governor said in a copy-righted article in today's Courier-Journal. "I am hopeful the damage can be repaired. Whether or not it can be repaired remains to be seen."

Stansbury, 55, appeared damp-eyed and somber at a Thursday news conference in which he apologized to his staff and to the public.

The mayor said that he was in New Orleans with Mrs. Farmer and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hawkins of Louisville when the city's 580 firefighters walked off their jobs July 14.

"I lied to protect my family," Stansbury said. "I don't offer this as an excuse, but it is the reason for my actions."

"While it is true that my credibility has been hurt, there are a number of reasons why I should continue to serve," he said. Stansbury said he had assembled a "qualified and capable" staff and had started several programs and projects.

"I was wrong in leaving the city when I did," Stansbury said. "I was wrong in lying about my leaving ... I say there is no defense for lying and I mean it."

Stansbury, who is married, denied any romantic involvement with Mrs. Farmer, who was recently divorced. He said he and Hawkins had stayed in one room and the two women stayed in another.

Stansbury's absence at the start of the strike prompted some city aldermen to look into procedures for removing a mayor from office. Alderman Sharon Wilbert said. She said the mayor's published admission Thursday morning that he lied makes the situation "much more serious."

W. J. Hodge, president of the board of aldermen, said he appointed four aldermen to a special committee to investigate Stansbury's actions.

Ballots On Contract Settlement Being Sent To Postal Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A postal contract settlement that has prompted wildcat walkouts, a rejection vote by a union advisory panel and a threat of new strikes is being sent to 554,000 postal workers for approval.

The outcome of the ratification vote won't be known for at least several weeks. And, ironically, union leaders must count on members to stay on the job to complete ratification, since it is conducted by mail ballot.

Until the votes are counted, union officials acknowledge the possibility of a mail strike persists.

Efforts by union leaders to sell the proposed accord to their rank-and-file were dealt a setback Thursday when a committee of local officials from the nation's largest postal union voted 29-15 to reject the pact.

But the committee agreed to let the 280,000 members of the American Postal Workers Union decide whether to push aside calls for a mail strike and approve the contract.

Ermet Andrews, president of the APWU, said he did not think the committee's vote was representative of the attitude of the rank-and-file, and he appeared confident the pact would be ratified.

An aide to Andrews said union leaders believe there are only isolated pockets of resistance to the contract.

Chief objections to the new contract are that the 19.5 percent pay raise over three years is not high enough and that a number of work rules remain too rigid, particularly concerning mandatory overtime.

The APWU and three other unions that negotiated a new contract with the Postal Service plan to mail ballots to members within a week. It will take at least another three weeks to tabulate the results, according to union officials.

The APWU's militant New York Area Postal Union, the largest local in the country, has scheduled a strike vote for early next week. A walkout could snarl delivery of the ballots.

Postal strikes are prohibited by federal law. But that didn't stop workers from walking off the job at bulk mail centers serving metropolitan New York and California during the past week.

Postal Service officials said Thursday that the walkouts, which began as a protest to the tentative agreement reached last Friday, have abated and operations were nearly normal again.

In another touch of irony, the Postal Service used the mails to send 112 notices of dismissal to workers who participated in the walkouts.

Several union locals have indicated they would follow the lead of the New York local if it votes to strike. That pattern occurred in 1970, when New York sparked a walkout that was joined by more than 200,000 postal workers.

Participants in the 1970 strike were not punished under the terms of a contract settlement reached to end the walkout. This time, the Postal Service has vowed, it will enforce the law.

Farber's Sentence Delayed By Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White today postponed the jailing of New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber, who has refused to turn over his confidential notes to a New Jersey judge presiding over the "Dr. X" murder trial.

White stayed an order for the jailing until noon Tuesday. Farber's appeal originally was filed with the office of Justice William J. Brennan Jr. but was acted on by White because Brennan is vacationing.

White acted less than an hour before Farber was to have surrendered to serve an indefinite sentence for contempt of court.

Lawyers for Farber and the Times sought the stay in a 30-page appeal and two inches of supporting documents filed with Brennan's office. The full Supreme Court is in recess until October.

The appeal asked that the jail order be stayed until the full Supreme Court can consider the case, or until New Jersey courts deal with the constitutional issues raised by the matter.

The Superior Court in Bergen County, N.J., ordered Farber jailed indefinitely for criminal contempt until he complies with an order to surrender his notes for a confidential inspection by Judge William Arnold who is presiding over the trial of Dr. Mario Jascavech.

"To this day, petitioners (Farber and the Times) have not been afforded a hearing by any court on their claims under the First and Fourteenth Amendments or on their claims of statutory protection of news persons' rights under various state shield laws," the petition said.

The appeal said enforcement of the subpoenas under threat of jailing and fines would irrevocably damage journalists' ability to gather and report the news, particularly in the area of criminal reporting.

Bergen County Judge William Arnold ordered Farber and the Times to hand over all files in the "Dr. X" case. Farber's information was gathered while he prepared stories about a series of mysterious patient deaths at Riverdale Hospital in Oradell, N.J., in 1965 and 1966.

Farber's articles led authorities to re-new their investigation of the deaths and eventually to charge Dr. Mario Jascavech, identified only as "Dr. X" in Farber's initial articles, with the murder of five patients.

Jascavech is standing trial on charges that he killed the patients with curare, a powerful muscle relaxant.

Arnold ordered the newspaper and Farber to surrender all materials in the case.

Infant Dies In Bathtub

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A 15-month old Flint boy, left to play in the bathtub while his mother took out the trash, died after being severely burned when he turned on the hot water.

Flint police identified the dead child as Phillip Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown.

An autopsy was to be conducted by the Genesee County Medical Examiner, police said.

Mrs. Brown told police her son was learning how to walk and she was worried he might tumble down the stairs of their second-floor apartment when she took out the trash.

She said she put the child in the tub around 10:30 Wednesday night and was gone only a few minutes. When she returned, the woman told police, she found the child floating face-down in a tub full of scalding water.

The mother managed to revive the tot by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and rushed him to Hurley Medical Center, police said, where he died Thursday in the hospital burn unit.

Vandals Wreck Medical Center

In addition to investigating the usual array of property crimes, police today were trying to discover who inflicted heavy damage Thursday at Presbyterian Medical Center.

Reports indicated that during a four-hour period that afternoon someone broke 29 windows and a front storm door at the 2305 Cedar Ave. building. Also included in the $925 replacement estimate was additional damage to the front of the building.

In recently reported burglaries, Paul B. Rivera said burglars kicked open a door at his 1913 2nd St. home Thursday and stole $1,769 worth of property including two television sets, a stereo and assorted jewelry.

A window reportedly provided entry for a burglar at Manuel Acosta Solis' 2922 E. Bates St. residence that same day. The complainant told police $250 worth of jewelry was taken.

Someone reportedly pried a front door at Hattie Henry's 3609 E. 14th St. house Thursday and got away with a TV set and 100 pounds of meat.

A $200 television set was reported missing by Pat Bradley of 1622 16th St. Thursday. A $600 microwave oven was lifted from 306 Quirt Ave., complainant Richard Rodriguez said. Reports indicated there was no sign of forced entry in either incident.

tried to fight back, five other white men jumped him and, after knocking him to the ground, took the airman's money.

The suspects also reportedly backed their vehicle into Covington's car before leaving the parking lot.

Charles S. Morina said that whoever broke a window in the front of a clothing store at 1321 University Ave. took $1,800 worth of goods from the business, including clothing, a music system and $15 in change from the cash register.

Jimmy Douglas told police that someone took $350 worth of tools from a house at 3210 92nd St. where he was doing carpentry work.

Elvis Florence said whoever entered his 1307 46th St. residence via a kitchen window made off with $250 worth of property. Florence listed as missing a Home Box Office unit, $60 in change, a .22-caliber pistol and two rings.

Burglars who used an automobile jack to break a window at an appliance store at 2111 Ave. Q early Thursday took a $400 television, according to store owner Charles Evans. Evans said the broken glass also damaged three stereos and a dryer.

Test-Tube Baby Hearing Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee plans to hold a hearing next week on the ethical and legal problems surrounding the birth of the world's first known baby conceived from an egg fertilized in a laboratory test tube.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., chairman of the House health subcommittee, said he would hold the hearing Aug. 4 to consider creating a special commission to study ethical problems in medicine, including test tube conceptions.

In England, a baby girl conceived in a laboratory was delivered to a couple, John and Lesley Brown, this week.

The commission created in the Rogers bill would serve four years.

Friends List Suggested For Carter

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon had his enemies list. It may be that what President Carter needs is a White House friends list.

The president seems to have recurring problems with people he counts among the best friends he has in the world.

That's how Carter described Dr. Peter G. Bourne upon installing him as director of the Office of Drug Abuse Policy. Bourne is gone now, after enmeshing the White House in a controversy over drugs and drug use.

A summer ago it was Bert Lance, a friend Carter said he knew like a brother. Lance resigned as director of the Office of Management and Budget after wearing weeks of dispute over his private banking practices and personal finances.

Appointing Andrew Young to be ambassador to the United Nations, Carter put him in the best friend category, too. Young said at the time that he wouldn't be likely to leave that post over policy differences, but that he wouldn't be silent about them either. He has not.

Young has stirred repeated controversy with his comments on topics ranging from racism in America to the Cuban role in Africa. He has sometimes seemed to be debating the State Department.

He drew a presidential rebuke for saying that there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of political prisoners in the United States — a comment made while Carter was denouncing political trials in the Soviet Union.

"I know that Andy regrets having made that statement, which was embarrassing to me," Carter said. "I don't believe he will do it again."

Even best friends can be trying at times.

None, it would seem, more than Bourne, although Carter hasn't betrayed any displeasure, saying only that his friend resigned "out of consideration for my administration."

That concern came a bit late. Bourne's troubles began when, as a physician, he wrote a prescription so that an assistant could get a powerful sedative under an assumed name, for the sake of privacy. Bourne said later that she needed the medicine and that he had done nothing wrong. When another woman tried to fill the prescription, the druggist called police.

That happened on July 11, and Bourne might as well have cleared out his desk then. He would have spared his friend Carter a lot of trouble.

Instead, he waited. So did Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, after the Justice Department advised him of the situation.

Even after the story was published by the Washington Post, Bourne tried to hang on. Powell announcing that Bourne would be taking a paid leave of absence from his $51,000-a-year job. It takes some doing to devise a way for a White House drug adviser to play a useful role after acknowledging that he had written a prescription like the one Bourne gave to the fictitious "Sarah Brown," innocently or not.

By all accounts, Carter was only a bystander in all of this. He didn't talk to Bourne, nor did he ask for the resignation that came a day later. By that time, columnist Jack Anderson had reported, and Bourne had denied, that Bourne had used an illicit drug himself at a Washington party.

In parting, Bourne told the New York Times that he was aware of a "high incidence" of marijuana use and some of cocaine by members of the White House staff.

That left Carter the task of telling his staff that anyone who chose to use illegal drugs should look for another job.

The whole episode was another headache for an administration that already has plenty. In Nixon's day, Bourne might have wound up on that enemies list.

Vegetable Prices Expected To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moderately higher prices are predicted for processed vegetables next fall and winter, the Agriculture Department says.

The department reported that production of the 14 main fresh vegetables was estimated to be slightly down from last summer.

The only bright spot for shoppers in the department's latest forecast was that growers of dry beans expect to have 16 percent more acreage for harvest this year.

GOP Candidate Blasts Hobby

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has done everything in his power to prevent any meaningful tax relief legislation from emerging from the special legislative session, Hobby's Republican opponent said here today.

Gaylord Marshall, whose bumper stickers ask "Who is Gaylord Marshall?" charged Hobby had been opposed to the special session from the beginning and "in the two weeks the Legislature has been in session has done everything he can to keep anything from happening."

The incumbent lieutenant governor is working with Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill to make sure the attorney general has enough money to fulfill his campaign promises, Marshall said.

Hill and Hobby "realized the promises would cost the state a lot of money and a state spending limitation would nullify Hill's promises," he said.

Marshall, who ran an unsuccessful race against Hobby in 1974, said tax reform "will cost us money" if passed before tax relief.

Hobby has said he has received only 50 letters supporting tax relief legislation, Marshall said. The GOP candidate urged Texans to send letters and telegrams to Austin supporting tax relief proposals.

"If we don't get tax relief this year, we should replace all those people," he said, pledging there would be tax relief next year if he is elected.

"John Hill, Jimmy Carter and Bill Hobby listen to the same drummer: spend, spend, spend," Marshall said. "To do that, you've got to tax, tax, tax."

Marshall, manager of Conti Commodities, Inc., said he favors a constitutional amendment which would limit any increase in state spending to two percent less than the national inflation indicator.

"If inflation was six percent, in Austin they could only increase spending four percent," he said. "That would gradually reduce the cost of government and return to citizens dollars to spend."

"Most Texans don't realize it," he said, "but the lieutenant governor is the most important political office in the state."

"He is the only person elected by all the people who has legislative power and responsibility."

Marshall said he is "traveling around the state attempting to point out the power of the office" and the importance that the individual holding the office "must share the philosophy of the state's citizens which I feel is basically conservative."

Hobby was elected six years ago, "and in six years the costs of state government have doubled," Marshall said. "He (Hobby) wants to follow in his dad's footsteps and be governor, but he hasn't shown why he should be governor."

"He's been using the power of the office for John Hill, not the state of Texas," Marshall charged.

"If Hill and Hobby get elected, we'll have a personal and corporate income tax in the next four years," he predicted.

Marshall said he expects to spend $250,000 in his run at the office of lieutenant governor and said he feels he has a good chance of winning "if Hobby will come out."

Marshall, 43, of Dallas, also ran for Congress in 1972. He is a former director of employment for Braniff Airlines.

Officers Probe Circumstances Of Shooting

Investigators said today they still are checking the circumstances surrounding the shooting death of a man attempting to repossess a pickup truck.

The incident Thursday at an East Lubbock residence claimed the life of William Tommy Wright, 35, of 1218 35th Street. The man whose vehicle was being hoisted by a wrecker was taken into custody.

The Criminal District Attorney's Office had not filed charges against the 33-year-old suspect at noon today.

The man is alleged to have opened fire on Wright and Rodney Peterson, 33, after they had hooked their wrecker to the pickup.

Peterson, whose arm was grazed by bullet fragments, told police they were first approached by the vehicle's owner as the truck was being lifted. He said they told the angry resident at the East Bates Street address that they had papers from a Slaton bank to repossess the truck.

Faced with a man carrying a .22-caliber rifle, Peterson said he and Wright then told him they would lower the pickup. A shot was fired, reports indicate, as Wright reached for the lever to reverse the hoist. He was struck in the chest and fell from the truck.

A second shot, fired toward Peterson, hit a piece of metal on the wrecker and only pieces of the bullet hit him on the left forearm. Peterson, who had been standing at the back of the wrecker, then ran past the suspect to be with Wright, who had managed to run across the street to a house before he fell again.

Police arrested the suspect without incident at the scene a short time later. Doctors reportedly were able to revive Wright after his heart stopped, but the man was pronounced dead at 9:50 a.m. at West Texas Hospital.

Services for Wright were still pending this morning at Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

Government Eyes Loan Abuse Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is trying to collect from all but 93 of the 6,917 federal workers who defaulted on federal student loans. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. gave that figure in an update on the agency's progress against abuses in major student-assistance programs.

Police Seek Driver Of Death Car

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Authorities here Thursday afternoon confiscated a car thought to have been involved in a fatal hit and run incident earlier that day, Hale County Sheriff Charles Tye said.

The vehicle, which deputies confiscated about 1:30 p.m. in the south part of Plainview, is owned by a woman who allegedly accompanied Bill R. Cupp, 47, to a club Wednesday night, the sheriff said. Cupp was found dead about 4:30 a.m. Thursday at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post south of town. The building contractor, whose body showed tire tracks and was strewn with gravel, apparently was run over by a vehicle, according to Capt. Richard Sims of the sheriff's department.

Tue said what appeared to be hair and blood was found on the underside of the car. He added that other marks indicated the vehicle had hit something.

Blood and hair samples taken from the car will be sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Lubbock for analysis.

Tue said he did not expect any arrests in the incident to be made for several days.

Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone, who was called to the scene, is withholding a ruling in the death pending results of an autopsy.

Services for Cupp will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Northside Baptist Church here with the Rev. Bruce Keller, pastor, officiating. Assisting him will be the Rev. Charles T. Jordan, retired Baptist minister from Pecos.

Burial will be in Plainview Memorial Park under the direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

He lived in Lubbock from 1965 until 1971 when he moved to Plainview. Cupp was a home building contractor and a member of Flint Avenue Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Survivors include a son, Lindy of Lubbock; five sisters, Claudia Cox of Fort Worth, Doris Brown of Olympia, Wash., Bonnie Reid of San Francisco, Calif., Faye Smith of Springlake and Wynona Krise of Anchorage, Alaska; and his mother, Thelma Cupp of Plainview.

Carter Health Proposal Will Leave Out Details

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided his long-promised and oft-delayed national health insurance proposal will be presented in only the broadest terms at this time, leaving many essential details to be filled in later, informed sources say.

The program's principles "are essentially a holding action that commits us to come up with something more later," the sources said, asking not to be identified.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is to announce the program's outline by Monday.

The president, who promised a universal, comprehensive and mandatory system of health coverage for all Americans during his campaign, has been under increasing pressure from his economic advisers in recent weeks to scale down or put off the proposal as too inflationary.

At the same time, Carter has promised Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a long-time supporter of national health insurance, and Kennedy's principal backers in organized labor that the administration's plan would be put before Congress this session.

The president has decided to try to please both sides by laying out his plan in vague terms that don't bind him to a program the country can't afford during the present period of rising costs, the sources said.

Symbolic of the unfinished status of the plan at this point was Carter's decision not to announce it himself. He has announced all other major initiatives in the domestic area, but this time, the sources said, he decided to let Califano outline the administration's intentions.

A year ago, planners said the health insurance legislation would be sent to Congress early this year. As that deadline slipped by, they said the principles would be presented this year, with the legislation to follow.

Now they are saying a "tentative plan" will follow the principles, delaying the legislation at least until next year.

Califano and his health planners have generally favored a plan that would guarantee all U.S. residents a "no-frills" benefit package protecting them against the costs of catastrophic illness, hospitalization and most outpatient medical treatment.

Private insurance companies would help administer the program, as they do with Medicare for the elderly, or they could choose to compete with the government if they believe they can offer better, cheaper coverage.

But HEW has estimated that even modest coverage under such a program would cost the government $40 billion more than the $57 billion it now spends each year for Medicare, Medicaid and other health programs.

The sources said Carter approved essentially the same goals as those contained in the $40 billion plan, but without committing the administration to a specific cost figure, thus leaving room for major changes in how the program is to be phased in over a number of years and a wide choice of alternatives that could substantially alter the final cost figures.

Jaworski Unhappy, Plans To Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leon Jaworski is stepping aside as chief counsel of the House ethics committee because of the panel's failure to secure testimony from a key South Korean witness in the congressional influence-buying scandal, sources said today.

Jaworski has not officially resigned, the sources said, but will step into the background of the lengthy probe which has ground to a halt. Efforts to secure testimony from Kim Dong Jo, former South Korean ambassador to the United States, have proved fruitless.

Seoul's intransigence virtually precludes any further action against congressmen who may have accepted gifts or favors from South Korean officials in return for favorable votes on foreign policy. Sources told UPI Jaworski shares this belief, feeling the committee's work is essentially finished.

The former Watergate prosecutor has indicated he will "be there to finish up" if needed, sources told UPI.

Jaworski's decision followed House Speaker Thomas O'Neill's announcement Thursday that South Korean President Park Chung Hee had refused to meet with two ethics committee members to discuss the possibility of getting Kim's testimony.

O'Neill had hoped Park would agree to confer with Reps. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., and Floyd Spence, R-S.C., about Kim if they traveled to South Korea.

Kim has been identified by other witnesses as a principal in the South Korean government's scheme to favorably influence members of Congress with cash payments, gifts and other favors, and Jaworski considered his testimony crucial to the investigation.

Meanwhile, O'Neill said he hoped the State Department can succeed where the ethics committee failed. He indicated there still is hope that if the State Department makes the plea, under instructions from Congress, "He (the ambassador) would follow through."

PANTHER PROBLEM

A zoo in New Delhi is having problems trying to get a supposedly man-eating panther to eat raw meat. The panther, which is believed to have killed 18 persons in the past year, is being tempted by zoo officials with buffalo and goat meat.

VISITING DAY — Drewry Little of Virginia Beach, Va., visits his pet pig Sweet Lips who now lives on a country farm. Two years ago, Little received a misdemeanor conviction for violating a zoning ordinance for keeping Sweet Lips at home as a pet. (AP Laserphoto)

Man Wants Pet Pig Back Home

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — If Drewry Little had his way, his 940-pound friend, Sweet Lips the pig, would be a movie star. And Drewry Little wouldn't have a police record.

"I have that misdemeanor conviction hanging over my head because of a pig. It has jeopardized me as far as applying for a job," says Little, who was convicted two years ago by a municipal court of violating a zoning ordinance barring farm animals from the commercial district where he lived.

Little argued throughout the court case that the pig "ain't no farm animal."

The Hampshire pig, who weighed a mere 240 pounds when the case went to court and who has grown to 940 pounds since, even smelled good. Little used to douse the pig with perfume.

He tried taking the case to the Virginia Supreme Court, but the high court refused to issue so much as a grunt on the issue.

Little still claims the circuit court conviction should have been overturned because "one of the jurors didn't like pork."

These days, Little has to visit Sweet Lips who resides on a farm in rural Chesapeake. But he would like to renew the battle and try to get the pig back home, perhaps through the influence of a book and a movie.

He says he'd call it "Sweet Lips Goes to Washington."

"It would be the prettiest movie for kids and adults any place in the world," he says, adding that it would be about Sweet Lips going before the U.S. Supreme Court to fight his owner's conviction.

Little said he's currently in the market for an agent or manager and may write a book on which a movie could be based.

Little owned a restaurant and marina during the Sweet Lips saga, but now sells cars and real estate.

"When I applied for my real estate license, I had to tell them about the misdemeanor," he said.

Little said his affection for Sweet Lips hasn't been diminished one whit by his own trials and tribulations.

"I'd have gone to hell for that pig," he said. "I've never been so attached to anything in my life. When I got it, it weighed only five pounds."

Little says he received an invitation to President Carter's inauguration, "but the pig wasn't invited, so I didn't go."

Assassination Witnesses Testifying In Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — Closed congressional hearings are being held into a published report that a Missouri man allegedly was offered $50,000 by a group of businessmen to kill Martin Luther King, but turned the offer down.

The widow of one of the contact men in the alleged scheme, Mrs. Beulah G. Kauffman, testified before a House assassinations subcommittee on Thursday. She refused to make any comments to reporters after her secret testimony.

The New York Times reported earlier this week that Russell G. Byers of Rock Hill, Mo., said that John R. Kauffman in late 1966 or early 1967 introduced him to John H. Sutherland, a St. Louis patent lawyer, who told him a group of businessmen would pay $50,000 for King's murder.

Both Kauffman and Sutherland are dead.

The subcommittee is investigating a number of such alleged plots. One member of the subcommittee said Thursday the alleged St. Louis plot "does seem to be more than run of the mill."

James Earl Ray has been convicted for the assassination of King on April 4, 1968 in Memphis.

Also the House subcommittee in a report last year quoted inmates who had been in prison with Ray as saying that Ray intended to look for a "businessmen's association" that he said was offering $100,000 for King's death.

Cattle Futures Prices Plummet At Closing From Early Gains

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures broke in the final minutes to close off 77 points to up 40 points — with only distant October higher — Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Prices declined as much as 240 points from opening limit gains in all 1979 contracts. Sales were 31,820 cars.

Initial strength stemmed from the favorable trade reaction to Wednesday's cattle inventory report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

However, floor sources felt the earlier advances were overdone and prices met resistance as local and commission house profit taking trimmed gains.

The break near the close, which uncovered sell stops on the scale down, forced prices to near daily lows.

Wholesale beef was off one-half cent to one cent at 83 to 83 3/4 cents a pound. The six markets expect 3,450 head today.

Cash cattle were off 50 cents to $1, with the best top at $55 per hundred-weight at Illinois direct. Slaughter was 138,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures came under pressure minutes before the close to finish in the lower end of wide trading ranges, off 45 to 77 points and up 67 points in distant January.

Prices slipped as much as 287 points in September from the opening limit gains across the board. Estimated volume was 3,781 contracts.

Traders said the market overreacted and was overbought after Wednesday's constructive tone to the cattle inventory report. Local and commission house liquidation followed the break in live cattle futures and erased gains in most contracts.

Grainmen Eye Court Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's wheat producers, who last year exported more than half of their crop, are poised to challenge in court a longshoremen proposed waterfront boycott of Soviet vessels.

A boycott "would violate existing labor laws and we would be forced to take vigorous legal action to protect the interests of our members," Glenn Moore, head of the National Association of Wheat Growers, warned Wednesday.

International Longshoremen's Association President Thomas Gleason, who has just returned from a European trip, did not respond to Moore's warning.

Wheat growers are dependent on wheat shipments to the Soviet Union, a third of which are to be moved by Soviet vessels under a five-year U.S.-Soviet wheat agreement.

Sales in the 1978-79 marketing year so far total 746,000 tons and 80 percent of the purchases remain to be shipped.

The union's executive council has authorized Gleason to begin a boycott of Soviet vessels by ILA members, which would interfere with Soviet grain trade at U.S. port locations.

The six markets expect 1,825 head today. Cash feeders were weak to up $2, with the best top at $77.25 at Oklahoma City.

Hog futures ended up 122 to 50 points, with October the strongest. The market opened sharply higher, following limit advances in pork belly and cattle futures, but came under pressure earlier from local selling and chart resistance. Estimated volume was 9,329 contracts.

Prices recovered late in the session, finishing near daily highs on local and commission house support. Strength in cash hams and hogs attracted support, traders said.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 2 1/2 cents at 81 1/2 to 83 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a six-week high. The six markets expect 20,300 head today.

Cash hogs were steady to up $1, with the best top at $49. Slaughter was 267,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures finished up 177 to 15 points, off from the opening limit gain of 200 points across the board. Prices slipped as much as 302 points in nearby August earlier. Estimated volume was 9,329 contracts.

Strength was attributed to limit advances in cattle as well as sharply higher cash bellies. However, when cattle came off the limit, pork bellies met resistance under aggressive local liquidation but recovered near the close in most contracts.

Deliveries total 253 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up two cents at 51 1/2 to 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a 2 1/2-week low.

House Fight Looms On Huge Tax Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $16.2 billion tax-cut bill is heading for the House floor and a struggle to expand it and make it more to the liking of President Carter, who opposes its reduction of the capital gains tax.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which had held up the legislation for months, approved the bill 25-12 Thursday night in a flurry of last-minute compromises. The bill would provide about $12.3 billion in income tax relief to individuals, the remainder to corporations.

The measure would cut taxes by $71 for a single person earning $15,000 a year and $160 for a single person earning $25,000. A childless couple would see a cut of $39 at the $10,000-income level, $6 at $15,000 and $160 at $25,000.

A couple with two children would save $62 if earning $10,000, $77 if making $15,000 and $232 if earning $25,000.

Most elements of the legislation, including the individual tax cuts, would take effect next Jan. 1.

Committee staff aides said the seeming discrepancy of a $6 cut for the childless couple making $15,000 comes about because such couples are on the borderline between taking the standard deduction or itemizing their deductions. Such couples now receive some benefits that would not be continued in the new legislation.

One late change given an excellent chance of House approval would — in the great majority of cases — eliminate the capital gains tax on profits from the sale of a home.

With bipartisan backing, the capital gains issue — a measure Carter has denounced as giving breaks to the wealthy while ignoring the needs of others — won out.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., the issue's principal author, put through a last-minute compromise making a slight concession to Carter's views.

The compromise would — through a complicated formula — try to assure that no taxpayer with substantial capital gains could totally avoid a tax.

The Treasury Department had contended that Jones' original bill would allow persons with capital gains of more than $1 million and with other sheltered incomes to pay no tax on that gain or income.

The measure, however, would still largely exclude capital gains from the regular 15 percent minimum tax on sheltered income, a major point in Carter's disapproval, and would set the maximum rate at 35 percent.

The theoretical maximum now is 49.1 percent, but the Treasury Department says few persons pay more than 40 percent.

Under present law, taxpayers generally may deduct one-half of capital gains they have realized from the sale of assets, such as stocks or real estate, which they have held at least a year.

They pay tax on the other half according to their income bracket. A special provision allows taxpayers to postpone the capital gains tax on the profit from the sale of their principal residence if invested in another home of at least equal value.

The committee voted to exempt from the capital gains tax altogether the first $100,000 profit from the sale of a home. This special privilege could be used only once in a lifetime, but the provision for rolling over the proceeds of a sale by buying a new residence, a method typically used by younger families, would be retained.

The Treasury Department estimated the new provision would cost about $750 million a year in lost revenues.

Two-thirds of the tax reduction on home sales would go to persons in the $15,000-$50,000 income bracket.

The committee also kept in the bill a provision to repeal income tax deductions — now totalling about $1.1 billion a year — for state and local gasoline taxes.

The bill heading for the House floor also would:

—Increase the standard deduction for single persons from $2,200 to $2,300 and on joint returns from $3,200 to $3,400.

—Widen individual tax brackets to help offset the effects of inflation and reduce some individual tax rates.

—Repeat the existing $35-per-person tax credit and raise the current $750-per-person exemption to $1,000.

Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., who had offered a capital gains tax-cut version the administration said it could accept, modified it substantially at the last minute but still failed to win committee approval.

Security Council session to determine the future of South-West Africa. The Americans helped to develop the western plan to create the new nation of Namibia. (AP Laserphoto)

South Africans May Defy U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says a U.N. mission will be on the way to South-West Africa within a week to put the Western independence plan for the territory into effect despite uncertainty over what South Africa will do.

The Security Council, by a 13-0 vote Thursday, directed Waldheim to name a special representative to "ensure the early independence of Namibia through free elections" held under U.N. supervision and control. The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstained.

In a second resolution which South Africa rejected, all 15 council members joined in a declaration that disputed Walvis Bay, the only deep-water port on the coast of South-West Africa, should be handed over to the new nation after it becomes independent.

Namibia is the African name for South-West Africa, the German colony South Africa seized in World War I, held under a League of Nations mandate and refused to give up after the U.N. terminated the mandate in 1966. Walvis Bay was a British enclave which Britain turned over to South Africa in 1910, but South Africa has administered it as part of South-West Africa since 1922.

The Western independence plan to which South Africa agreed calls for negotiations after independence to decide the disposition of the enclave. The South Africans threatened earlier to repudiate the plan if the Walvis Bay resolution was adopted. But after Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the council the resolution "does not prejudice the position of any party, it does not seek to coerce any party," South African Foreign Minister R.F. Botha indicated that might satisfy his government.

However, South African Prime Minister John Vorster said in Pretoria today that the Security Council's move "has no force of law and the government cannot allow that it be dictated to as to what it should do with its property or how it should control or administer it."

To negotiate with a friendly government in South-West Africa on the harbor and its use is one matter and speaks for higher price tags for imported autos and recent increases by U.S. automakers.

However, airline, taxicab and long-distance bus rates declined in June, and gasoline prices dropped slightly.

Despite the generally bleak report, the department said the cost of entertainment declined in June by 0.2 percent because of lower prices for sporting goods, toys, hobbies and music equipment.

Consumer prices last month were 7.4 percent higher than in June 1977. The department said the Consumer Price Index stood at 195.3, meaning that prices were 95.3 percent higher than in the base period of 1967.

In advance of today's report, top presidential trade and inflation aide Robert S. Strauss said, "June is going to be another bad month."

In presenting his 1979 budget in January, President Carter predicted prices would rise 6.1 percent this year, less than the 6.8 percent price climb of 1977.

But food and housing prices shot up rapidly in the first five months of the year, and administration officials slowly raised their targets.

On July 6, government economists increased their inflation prediction to 7.2 percent. And on Wednesday, Strauss said inflation could "very easily" climb above 7.2 percent.

In the first five months of the year, consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of almost 10 percent. That means every product costing $100 on Jan. 1 would cost $110 by year's end if the trend continued.

Even though Strauss says the 10 percent rate shouldn't continue because of predicted food price declines, he concedes that the inflation of the first half of 1978 will make it hard to slow inflation sufficiently in the second half to hold the line at a 7.2 percent yearly increase, he said.

The administration has also had to raise its estimate of food prices. The Agriculture Department started the year predicting a 4 percent to 6 percent increase for the year, then raised the estimate gradually to 8 percent to 10 percent last month. Other officials say that 10 percent is a more accurate prediction because of bad growing conditions last winter and dwindling cattle herds.

On a brighter note for the administration, the unemployment rate has dropped much more rapidly than expected.

In January, the administration said unemployment would be 6.3 percent by the end of the year. Only halfway through the year it is already down to 5.7 percent.

On Thursday, Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon had more predictions for a better economic picture when he said U.S. oil imports will continue to decline this year.

Solomon said the decline will lead to a stronger position for the dollar on foreign currency markets, a continuing worry for economists and American consumers of imported goods. Likewise, he said, the U.S. trade deficit should also decline.

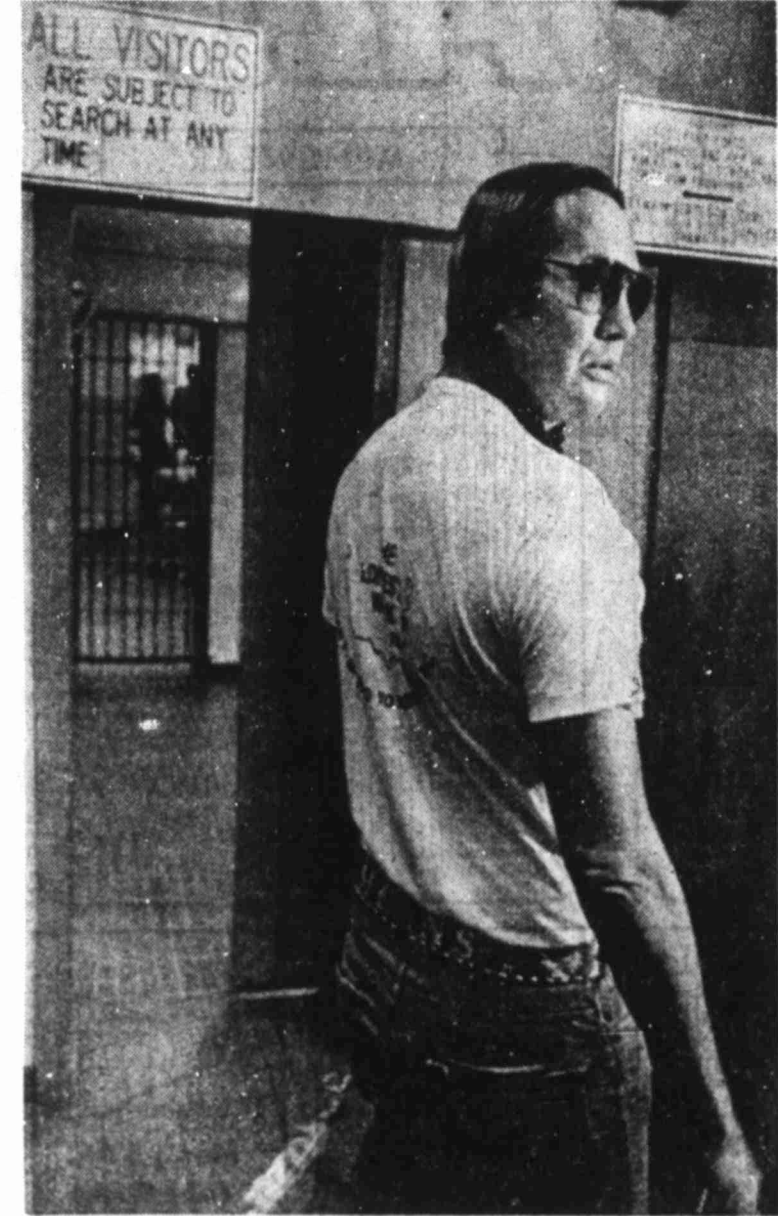

The Treasury official said the drop in oil imports should total one million barrels a day by year's end.

Home Insulation Standards Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Products Safety Commission has set new standards which require cellulose insulation used by the general public to pass flammability and corrosiveness tests.

The regulations also require that the insulation be labeled to inform the consumer that the product has passed such tests. The testing requirements are designed to reduce the flammability and corrosiveness of the insulation.

The regulations are applicable to products made after Sept. 8. Cellulose insulation is one of the major types of home insulation and consists basically of ground-up paper treated with flame-retardant chemicals.

Mercury Skids To New Lows

A-J News Services

It was almost like autumn in the upper Midwest and sections of the northern Rockies early today, as temperatures dropped to record — or near record — lows for the date in many areas.

Michigan residents shivered as at least seven cities were nipped by Canadian air. The mercury plunged to 39 degrees at Sault Ste. Marie, which broke an 87-year-old record.

Detroit recorded an overnight low of 48 degrees, which topped the mark set in 1971.

Marquette reported a 43-degree reading early today.

Some of that cool Canadian air spilled down the Great Plains into the Southwest, and there was just a touch of autumn in the northern and western portions of the South Plains as temperatures dipped into the 50s.

Dry air and a clear sky also gave Lubbock its coolest weather in almost two months this morning. The overnight low of 62 degrees was the coolest reading in the Hub City since the 60 degrees recorded June 9 and 63 on June 10.

However, the cool temperature did not match the 1933 record of 57.

Generally fair skies are forecast for today, tonight and Saturday with temperatures in the mid-90s today and Saturday and in the high 60s tonight.

The wind was expected to be southerly at 10 to 15 mph today and five to 10 mph tonight.

Rabbit Beats Heat In Pool

BOW, N.H. (UPI) — Thumper the rabbit knows how to beat the heat. He dives into the family pool and goes for a swim.

He's turning into a pretty good swimmer, too. He can even keep up with the Joneses, as long as his ears don't get wet.

Thumper was six weeks old when Neal Jones brought him home as a present for his children this spring. Thumper used to stay in the house, but he was evicted after he started nibbling on pillows.

To keep Thumper out of trouble, the Joneses put him in the swimming pool area. That's when the family found that he took to water like a — well, a rabbit.

Now Thumper takes a swim every hot day.

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — We need your advice. My husband has high blood pressure and takes one Hydro-diuril and one Apresoline each day. Recently he read an article that said a drink of alcohol a day is good for high blood pressure so in the evening he takes a shot of whiskey. He says it helps him relax. I am worried that it doesn't mix with his medication. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER — I really hate to see anyone develop a regular alcohol habit such as a drink a day for any reason. An occasional social cocktail is one thing but a regular habit is somewhat undesirable.

There are studies that show that at least drinking moderate to excessive amount of alcohol increase the likelihood of having high blood pressure. There was also a spate of news stories not too long back about drinking protecting people from heart attacks.

I'm sorry to say that the new stories weren't really representative of the true nature of the scientific articles that were published in medical journals and dwelled upon the sensational rather than the factual.

The truth is that individuals having one to two drinks a day in one study showed a lower instance of heart attacks than those who did not drink. The rest of the story is that those who drank more had an increased rate of heart attacks. Associated with the mechanism were changes in the blood fat compositions which may be related to a decrease in the amount of circulating male hormones in those who used the alcohol.

In any case the best method to prevent heart attacks, strokes and complications from fatty cholesterol deposits is a program to control high blood pressure, if a person has it as in your husband's case, to get as lean as possible and stay lean. Eat a diet that is low in fat, particularly low in saturated fat and cholesterol. Of course smoking should be scrupulously avoided.

I doubt that the one small drink an evening is going to harm your husband, but I hope he will not use that as a substitute for a much more important and basic program that he could follow to help him control his medical problems.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure to give you more information on how it is controlled and factors that affect it. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Just what is the different content in ordinary decaffeinated coffee, 97 percent caffeine free? Does that mean that 3 percent of the coffee is caffeine?

DEAR READER — No, that's sometimes confusing to people but what it really means is, of all the caffeine that would normally be in the coffee 97 percent of it has been removed. That means there is only a trace of caffeine in the coffee. Such a negligible amount is inconsequential.

That's why individuals who cannot drink coffee because they don't tolerate caffeine well and don't need all that stimulation from it can often tolerate decaffeinated products.

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 25 U.S. women and children of Vietnamese descent, trapped in Vietnam when the country fell to the communists, will be coming to the United States, Sen. Edward Kennedy says.

Fifteen children and 10 women will return here as a result of his humanitarian appeal, Kennedy said this week.

All are ethnic Vietnamese but hold U.S. passports and are naturalized or American-born citizens.

Colonial Attempts To Block Merger

ATLANTA (AP) — Colonial Stores, Inc., has taken new legal action in its effort to prevent a merger with Grand Union Co., a large supermarket chain based in New Jersey.

Colonial, which is based in Atlanta, filed legal papers this week with the Georgia Commissioner of Securities and the Virginia State Corporate Commission, where Colonial is incorporated, claiming that Grand Union's attempt to purchase a majority share of stock in Colonial does not meet the requirements of both states.

Colonial asked for a public hearing on its charges in both states. A tentative date of Aug. 1 was set for a public hearing in Georgia.

A Grand Union spokesman said the company would have no comment on Colonial's latest action.

Last month Grand Union said it would pay about $114 million in cash — or $30 per share — to acquire the 3.8 million outstanding shares of Colonial stock.

Colonial's directors formally rejected the Grand Union merger proposal July 7 and filed suit in U.S. District Court here to block it. An Aug. 21 hearing has been set on that request.

On July 14, Grand Union filed papers in Georgia and Virginia announcing a proposed tender offer to Colonial's shareholders. Under Federal Trade Commission regulations, the earliest date a tender offer could be made is Aug. 29.

The proposed purchase would create the nation's eighth largest food store chain.

In the papers filed this week, Colonial said Grand Union's tender offer application is "defective" because it does not include information about everyone who is involved in making the offer, some information in it is "incomplete, false and misleading," and it does not provide "full and fair disclosure" to Colonial shareholders.

Two Firms Battle Over Royalties

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The movie "Star Wars" has touched off a legal battle over royalties in Rhode Island. The conflict centers on the manufacture of novelty jewelry depicting characters from the highly successful science-fiction movie.

Officials of Associated Big Productions contend they are not getting the 5 percent royalties they said they were promised by Weingeroff Enterprises Inc. for coming up with the idea for the jewelry. Daniel Altman and William T. Hall Jr. charge that Weingeroff has refused to account for its sales and has not paid any royalties. They have asked a state court to order the firm to make an accounting of the sales revenues and pay the royalties.

LONDON (UPI) An idea is now floating through scientific circles that seems so obvious it's a wonder no one ever thought of it before.

It's a proposal for a dirigible covered with solar cells which would power it economically and efficiently over those vast stretches of the world richer in sunshine than in currency.

The idea was put down in its most concrete form thus far by two British engineers who foresee the day when airships cruise along at 60 miles an hour or so carrying tons of freight to the arid regions of Africa, Arabia, South America and, perhaps, Australia.

The technology is already available, according to Gabriel Khoury of Imperial College and Edwin Mowforth of Surrey University.

In an article in New Scientist, they point out that solar energy is the only alternative energy source that can be reliably used on vehicles without a cumbersome storage system. And of all the vehicles that operate over all forms of terrain only one has a large enough surface area for significant power to be generated by solar cells alone.

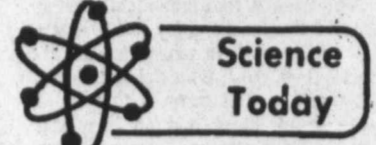

The airship. Combining these two creates what they call a "sunship." There is a third essential of their plan — large geographical areas of clear skies, lots of sunlight and light winds as well as fairly flat land or, at least a terrain that would permit operation at under 3,000 feet above sea level.

North Africa and the Arabian Peninsula have winds of less than 10 miles an hour for over 300 days a year. These are largely undeveloped areas and the sunship could provide immediate access to the remotest areas without the need for preliminary construction of roads and airfields — or refueling facilities. The authors say they could make out a similar case for operating in certain areas of Australia, southern Africa and Central South America.

The sunship concept does not demand any dramatic new scientific development. What it needs is refinement of processes already in use. The basic airship is conventional and the solar cells, motors, propellers and control system can be adapted from existing commercial units.

The result would not be commercially viable at the moment because the present solar cells produce power at $400 per watt, though the U.S. Department of Energy expects to bring this down to 50 cents per watt in the middle 1980s. In addition, Israeli scientists have just announced a solar cell well in advance of those in current use.

City Issues Gas Ultimatum

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Lubbock City Council gave Pioneer Natural Gas Company an ultimatum Thursday: either present evidence on industrial rates the company charges or have those rates set by the council without input from the utility.

The gas company has until Aug. 10 to pre-file information on the industrial rates before and Aug. 24 hearing on the rate case.

Last November the council initiated an industrial rate case to determine whether such rates charged by PNG are fair and reasonable. A public hearing on the case was set for Feb. 8.

That hearing was delayed pending a new audit of the gas company and later rescheduled for mid-July.

That date came and went without response from PNG and during the interim the gas company has applied for an increase in the rates charged domestic users.

City rate analyst Ervin Looney gave the council three options Thursday:

•Schedule a hearing and if PNG representatives do not appear, set a rate with the best knowledge available.

•Make any rate set subject to accounting and refund so the company would not profit from the delay.

•Or, confer with gas company representatives and set a new hearing schedule for the case.

The council settled on a combination of the three suggestions. Mayor Dirk West will notify the utility of the new hearing date and, at their next meeting, council members will discuss making the rate retroactive.

"How do you tell the gas company we're not going to sit around and wait for them anymore," Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan asked.

"If the gas company does not have anything to hide, I don't see why they wouldn't come forward with the information," she said.

Councilman Alan Henry noted the company had "plenty of time to work up information on a system-wide rate increase (for domestic users)."

Currently industrial gas users, including Lubbock Power and Light, pay a contract rate, usually set by the utility. If lower industrial rates result from the rate case, electric customers should notice a corresponding decrease in their bills.

Also at Thursday's meeting, councilmen attempted to decide how to pave future thoroughfares in outlying areas although the city has no funds for the paving.

City public works director Sam Wahl told the council he is receiving requests for paving of roads which in 10 to 15 years will be major thoroughfares, but are now just being developed.

Wahl said such paving costs the city $335,000 a mile to install the middle 50 feet of roadway. The 16 feet of paving on either side is funded by the developer, he said.

The developers are now putting their portion of the paving money into escrow, but the city has no prospect of funds to pave the streets, Wahl said.

At one time county commissioners would strip-pave major thoroughfares in outlying parts of the city, and Wahl suggested approaching the commissioners about reinstating the program since the city has a policy against strip-paving.

The council decided to seek help from the county, then possibly consider Wahl's second suggestion of using the money in escrow from the builders to "construct some kind of paving." The money would be returned to the account when the street was properly paved.

The council passed a resolution Thursday asking the state legislature to return an additional penny of the 5 percent sales tax to cities.

The city receives one cent of every five cents on the dollar collected in Lubbock. The resolutions asks that cities receive two cents on the dollar, leaving the state with the remaining three cents.

Sales tax is viewed as an acceptable alternative to property taxes because it is "better tied into people's ability to pay," Mrs. Jordan said.

Council members accepted the low bids for construction of a two-level parking building at the Lubbock International Airport and for parking and roadway improvements at the facility. The parking building is expected to cost about $1.6 million and the roadway improvements are about $666,000.

However, the council took no action on bids for airconditioning and heating the Godeke Library and for the purchase of tennis court lighting equipment.

Library service and parks and recreation are high on a priority list of potential budget cuts prepared by City Mgr. Larry Cunningham.

Mrs. Lozano Sues For Insurance

ODESSA (AP) — A Galveston-based insurance company has been sued for payment of a $20,000 insurance claim by the ex-wife of an inmate whose highly publicized death in the Ector County Jail has stirred protests among Mexican-Americans and a Justice Department investigation.

Rufina Lozano of Pecos filed the suit Wednesday in 161st District Court in Odessa on behalf of Derek Lozano, 7, a child of the marriage and the beneficiary of Larry Ortega Lozano's $10,000 insurance policy.

Her lawyer, Mike McLeish of Odessa, said Mrs. Lozano is seeking a double indemnity claim provided for accidental death.

Defendant in the suit is the American National Insurance Co.

An inquest jury ruled on April 12 that Lozano's death Jan. 22 in the jail was accidental, but Mexican-American leaders succeeded in getting the Justice Department to call a federal grand jury into session. Other inmates at the jail said deputies beat Lozano to death.

McLeish said, however, it would be up to jurors hearing the civil suit to decide for themselves whether the death was accidental and the double indemnity claim should be paid.

The suit said the insurance company is holding the money in a trust fund until the child is of legal age. A company official said Thursday the company has been awaiting notice of guardianship.

TEA Recommends City Accreditation

The Texas Education Agency has recommended continued accreditation of the Lubbock Independent School District. The recommendation now goes to the State Commission on School Accreditation.

In a letter to Superintendent Ed Irons, the agency lauded the district's "Five-Year Priorities Plan," a blueprint for improving reading and math instruction and upgrading facilities in Lubbock public schools.

"Everyone connected with the development of the priorities plan is to be congratulated," Walter Howard, director of planning and approvals in the agency's school accreditation division, said.

Krueger Raps Tower's Votes

By BOB CAMPBELL and CURTIS BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Senatorial candidate Bob Krueger talked at length about the problems of agriculture Thursday in Lubbock but denied that disgruntled farmers might be turning away from the Democratic Party.

"The New Braunfels Democrat, the 21st District congressman, said Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower, his November opponent, has consistently voted against agriculture programs which, during election years, he claims to support."

He spoke and then answered questions in a 2-15 p.m. news conference at the Hilton Inn.

Krueger told more than 20 Mexican-Americans from the Lubbock area at a 5:30 p.m. meeting that "factual evidence clearly indicates that John Tower is against social justice, has not represented the Mexican-American community in Washington and has consistently insulted Texas Mexican-Americans."

He attended a steering committee meeting at the Lubbock Club in an effort to gain support from Mexican-Americans in Lubbock.

In noting that there are about 10,000 eligible but unregistered Mexican-American voters in Lubbock, Krueger said that "as I am attempting to reach those of you present, I hope you in turn will reach out into your community of potential voters for me."

Earlier, at the Hilton Inn, he said, "More Democrats than Republicans voted for the Flexible Parity Act," referring to a bill that was defeated in the House. "I don't think they're (farmers) looking back (former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz)."

The candidate called for increased agricultural exports and more stringent inspection standards for imported meat.

"I have introduced legislation which requires stiffer inspection standards for imported meat so that our domestic meat raisers are not handicapped by having to satisfy regulations that are more strict than those that importers have to satisfy," he said.

Krueger hit hard at Tower as he has been doing recently across the state.

He said the senior senator voted for meat price controls at the request of "his friend Richard Nixon" and criticized Tower for his voting record on civil rights legislation.

"John Tower has voted against every piece of major civil rights legislation enacted in this country," he said.

Krueger, 42, told the Mexican-American group later at the Lubbock Club that he had lived two-thirds of his life when minorities had few rights, and said, "I look back in shame."

He said many of the indignities suffered by Mexican-Americans had been changed "by men unlike John Tower."

Krueger cited a number of bills and acts which affected minority groups that he said Tower voted against, including the Kennedy-Johnson Civil Rights Act of 1964, a bill permitting minorities to stay overnight in hotels or to eat in restaurants, the Fair Housing Act and the Voting Rights Act.

"In 1975 Tower voted against passage of the bill to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965 for seven years and to expand its protection to Spanish-speaking Americans," Krueger said.

Krueger, during the Hilton Inn press conference, described winning the support of U.S. Rep. Ralph Metcalfe of Chicago, a Negro, for the deregulation of natural gas prices and said Tower has eliminated the possibility of that kind of national support for his programs.

"Can you imagine him going to Ralph Metcalfe and saying, 'Ralph, I didn't vote for you to be able to eat in public restaur-

Salinas Behind In Tax Payments

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

State Rep. Froy Salinas, who is carrying legislation to ban local property taxes on the family car, owes nearly $300 in back taxes on automobiles.

According to records in the City of Lubbock-Lubbock Independent School District tax office, Salinas is delinquent on auto taxes from 1973 through 1976. The records indicate he owes $98 to the city and $127 to the school system.

Penalty and interest on that $225 sum now total about $50.

"My comment is the same as the last time you asked me. My wife takes care of that. If those are my bills, I don't know how they got by without being paid," said Salinas, who represents the city's eastside District 75-B.

The delinquent tax account in question matches the lawmaker's name (Froylan D. Salinas) and address (1306 49th St.).

Salinas was among about 20 public officials and candidates found to be in arrears on city-school personal property taxes in an Avalanche-Journal investigation five months ago.

A check Thursday indicated that nearly all of them have since settled their accounts. Salinas was found to be the only current office-holder still delinquent.

In the previous study, Salinas was listed as owing about $385 in taxes, plus $130 in penalty and interest, dating back to 1967. However, bills prior to 1973 apparently had since been removed from his file because the statute of limitations barred collection of that money.

According to the tax records, Salinas nevertheless still owes 1973 taxes on a 1968 Cadillac and a 1969 Buick; 1974 taxes on the same Buick and a 1972 Cadillac; 1975 taxes on both of those cars; and 1976 taxes on the 1972 Cadillac.

Salinas is sponsoring legislation he hopes would do away with ad valorem taxes on automobiles. Tuesday, he succeeded in getting the House to include in its omnibus tax-cut package an amendment to prohibit such taxation.

"It's a terribly unfair tax," Salinas said. "It's not administered uniformly."

"Some cities and school districts, like Lubbock, tax automobiles. Many others, like Houston and San Antonio, do not."

Salinas initially proposed that all "automobiles for personal family use" be exempt from local taxation. He later acquiesced to a substitute motion by Rep. Bill Sullivant of Gainesville, limiting the exemption to one family car.

The motion was approved by voice vote, despite concern that some school districts rely on auto taxes for as much as 30 percent of their local revenue.

The Senate has passed a proposed amendment that would provide a two-car exemption, Salinas said. After a compromise is worked out between the two chambers, the proposed constitutional amendment would go to voters.

Lubbock has an automobile tax roll of about $86 million. The roll is supposed to generate about $1.3 million for the school district and $1.2 million for the city a year. However, in any one year, the tax office typically collects only 50-60 percent of its auto tax levy because of taxpayer resistance.

The office says 20-30 percent more eventually is collected as delinquent.

John Brooks, city-school tax assessor-collector, said a one-car exemption would be an "administrative nightmare. If a family owns four cars, which one should be considered exempt? And which family members would you include as part of the family?"

Rather than make exemptions, Brooks said he'd prefer that the legislature abolish the auto tax.

Salinas said that is exactly his goal.

"My hope is that because of the administrative problems in exempting one or two cars, all cities and school districts would see it in their wisdom to do away with this unfair tax altogether," he said.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

We are living in an age of temperance. You can't go to a gathering anymore without coming face to face with a group of reformed smokers, sanctimonious joggers, committed dieters, or born-again drinkers.

I sit through entire evenings with people who have given up watching TV and want to tell me why, who no longer baste themselves in the sun and give me their reasons for abstinence, who have made a decision not to have children and insist on stating their case.

Everyone listens. After all, people have their own personal reasons for doing things. No one gets too uptight about a stand.

Until the other night. The conversation around the dinner table was about 86 decibels when the hostess placed on my plate a meringue shell, filled with ice cream, topped with butterscotch sauce, whipped cream, and a maraschino cherry on top.

"No thank you," I whispered as she placed the dish in front of me. "I don't eat dessert."

The entire room fell into silence. The host gasped. Forks poised in midair. Jaws stopped chewing. The hostess stopped breathing. Every eye in the room was on me.

"What do you mean you don't eat dessert?" asked my table partner.

"Do you mean to tell me you are going to pass up Helen's dessert -- Future Blimp -- which she has worked on all day long?"

"It's stubborn and it's spiteful."

"I suppose you're too big for desserts anymore."

"Are you saying that just this once you couldn't make an exception?" asked a woman across from me.

"How can you resist? Just a bite of it wouldn't kill you."

"I've never seen anything so rude," came a muffled voice at the end of the table.

Dinner continued, but a pall had settled over the entire group as I sipped at my coffee.

Yesterday, I was shopping in the supermarket when I met a couple who had been at the party. "You remember her, George. She's the one who refused Helen's dessert."

It's funny. I could discover a cure for boredom, run for governor, or give birth while running the Boston Marathon, but I will always be remembered for refusing to succumb to meringue and butterscotch.

PROTEIN BARGAIN
Entertaining in inflationary times isn't always easy. But eggs are still a protein bargain, so let them star in omelets or quiches. A dozen large eggs weigh 1 1/2 pounds, so at 80 cents a dozen you only pay 53 cents a pound for the highest quality protein you can buy.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and I've had terrible luck with dudes. I've had two illegitimate babies, which I gave up for adoption.

I'm ashamed to admit it, Abby, but I'm pregnant again. I will have to give this one up, too, because the guy I'm having the baby for can't marry me. He's in prison now and I just found out he's married and has five kids, so maybe it's all for the best that it worked out this way.

I want to put my past behind me and start a new life, but here is my problem: I have some very bad stretch marks on my stomach as a result of my pregnancies, and they're so noticeable I can't even wear a bikini.

Please tell me if I have to carry these ugly stretch marks for the rest of my life, or is there some way to get rid of them?

STRETCH MARKS IN THOMASVILLE

Dear Stretch Marks: A plastic surgeon can tell you if your stretch marks can be removed. In the meantime, you had better learn something about birth control as well as self-control. I think you've been stretching your luck too far.

DEAR ABBY: This probably won't make your column, but for the sake of all men who have fat wives, I hope it does.

My old lady is 5 feet 2 and she tips the scale at 225 pounds, but as long as she is happy, so am I.

Our children love her, and her friends adore her. She's a wonderful cook and housekeeper, and she always dresses neat and smells fresh and clean. She's never nervous or grouchy like most women who are always on some crazy starvation diet. To me, she is the perfect wife, and I tell her so. I couldn't be more anxious to get home to her every evening if she looked like Miss Universe.

SATISFIED WITH MY OLD LADY

Not all finesses achieve the same result. Even a choice of finesses in the same suit can reap different rewards.

The auction was short and sweet. Once North raised his partner's suit, South felt that he would have play for slam and he wasted no time in bidding what he thought he could make.

West led the ten of spades, and the jack was covered by the queen and taken by the ace. A casual glance convinced declarer that his contract hinged on a successful finesse in one of the minor suits, so he drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy, and opted for the diamond finesse. Unfortunately, West held the king, and the spade continuation spelled finis for the contract.

At the end of the hand, declarer looked at all the cards and announced that had he guessed to take the club finesse, he would have made his contract. He was right as the cards lay, but that line would have failed had East held the king of clubs.

What declarer did not see was that the contract was assured regardless of who held the missing kings. All he had to do was to take the "correct" finesse in clubs.

After drawing trumps, declarer should cash the ace of clubs and take a ruffing finesse by leading the queen from dummy. If East covers, declarer ruffs, returns to dummy with a trump and discards a spade and two diamonds on high clubs. Now he can try the diamond finesse for an overtrick.

If East does not cover the queen of clubs, declarer simply discards his spade loser. As the cards lie, West will win the king of clubs, but he cannot defeat the contract. Declarer can get back to dummy with a trump and discard three diamonds on the good clubs. As a result, he manages to avoid the diamond finesse and makes his slam despite losing the club finesse.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? The Slim Gourmet

Can you name a Slim Gourmet food that comes in a can? The answer is salmon: low in calories and cholesterol, in fat and saturated fat, but high in protein, vitamins, minerals and taste appeal. A one-pound can makes a no-waste meal for four.

But what kind of salmon? Red, silver, blue, pink, coral? The word "silver" or "blueback" on the label refers to the fish's outside, not the inside. It's the color inside that determines the price—the deeper, redder and more "salmon-colored," the more it costs. What you need is a color chart! Here it is:

Here's a blender-easy chilled salmon mousse that's great for entertaining. If you have a fish-shaped mold, here's a way to fill it:

SALMON MOUSSE

2 envelopes plain gelatin
 1/2 cup cold water
 2 tbsps. lemon juice
 1/2 cup boiling water
 1 small onion, peeled, minced optional: 1 tsp. fresh dill, minced optional: 1 tsp. fresh parsley, minced
 1/2 cup low-calorie imitation mayonnaise
 1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
 1/4 tsp. paprika
 salt and pepper, if needed
 1-lb. can red sockeye salmon, drained

Sprinkle gelatin over the cold water and lemon juice in blender container. Allow to soften 2 minutes. Pour in boiling water. Blend 1 minute, or until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add onion, dill, parsley, mayonnaise, yogurt, paprika, salt and pepper. Blend thoroughly.

Pick over salmon, discarding bones, skin and fat, if any. Add to mixture and blend smooth. Pour into 4-cup mold which has been sprayed with no-stick spray for easy unmolding. Refrigerate overnight. Unmold on to platter to serve. (Fish mold may be garnished with cucumber-slice scales, olive-slice eyes and pimiento fins.) Makes 16 appetizer servings, 70 calories each; 4 luncheon servings at 290 calories each.

COTTAGE SALMON SALAD

7 3/4 oz. can pink salmon
 3/4 cup pot cheese or low-fat cottage cheese
 1/2 cup cucumber (or new green pickle), unpeeled, diced fine
 2 tbsps. parsley, fresh, minced
 3 tbsps. carrot, grated fine
 1 tbsp. chives or scallions, chopped
 3 tbsps. low-fat mayonnaise salt (or celery salt) and pepper, to taste

Drain and flake salmon. Toss lightly with remaining ingredients and chill. Serve on beds of lettuce (or spread on melba-thin slices of pumpernickel bread). Makes four lunch-size servings, under 140 calories each. (Extra-thin slice of pumpernickel, under 50 calories.)

BAKED SALMON LOAF

1 cup celery, chopped fine
 1 cup onion, minced fine
 1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms, chopped
 2 lemons
 1/2 cup skim milk
 2 eggs, beaten (or 4 egg whites, or 1/2 cup no cholesterol substitute)
 3 tbsps. parsley or dillweed, fresh, chopped
 2 cups breadcrumbs, unseasoned
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/4 tsp. pepper

Put celery, onion and mushrooms through vegetable shredder. Add juice from lemons. Grate the lemon peel and add to mixture. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Spray a 9-inch nonstick loafpan with cooking spray, and pack with mixture. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 40 to 50 minutes. Cut in slices and serve hot. (Slice leftovers in serving-size slices and wrap in foil. Label and freeze. Defrost and reheat in warm oven or toaster oven, still foil-wrapped.) Makes eight dinner servings, about 305 calories each with whole eggs or liquid substitute, 295 calories each with egg whites.

Survey Reveals Job Changes

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — For every management-level employee who changes jobs because his position is insecure, four leave secure positions, according to a survey of management-level personnel agencies affiliated with National Personnel Associates.

"The frequency with which management-level employees are leaving their jobs constitutes one of the major phenomena of our times," says Charles W. Marks, the organization's executive director. He calls it a "mass migration."

Postal Service Displays Tribute To Photography

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Anyone recently receiving mail or buying postage is now undoubtedly aware that photography has just received a first-class honor from the U.S. government, a distinction that is greatly sought after and comparatively rare.

The United States has just issued the first commemorative stamp acknowledging the contributions of photography to our world — not a specific facet of photography or a particular photographer — but photography itself.

Ceremonies marking the issuance of the first first-class stamp with the new 15-cent denomination took place at a luncheon in New York City and at the annual convention of the Professional Photographers of America at Las Vegas on the first day of issue.

Postmaster Gen. William F. Bolger showed the New York audience an album containing a sheet of the new photographic stamps that was to be presented to President Carter at the White House. At the same time he acknowledged that though he has the honor of being in office with the stamp's issuance, the credit for its appearance must go to Benjamin Bailar, previous postmaster general.

"Ben Bailar's interest, encouragement and approval of this stamp concept never wavered," Bolger said, "and he even worked personally with the designer, photographer Ben Somoroff, to assure an image that would appropriately express our tribute. These stamps — 160 million of them — will symbolize internationally our national recognition of photography's increasingly significant role in medicine, law, science, earth and extraterrestrial explorations, as well as world communication and understanding."

Also present were leading executives of the photographic industry who fought for years for thignition now being applauded. They were introduced by James (Jimmy) Chung, president of the International Photographic Council, the group which spearheaded the stamp drive that resulted in official acceptance. Chung, an executive with Fuji Photo Film U.S.A., noted the international makeof the committee members and how they had united for the single purpose of honoring photography and had adopted the slogan, "Photography: The Universal Language."

Robert Copenrath, chairman, read a New York Times excerpt that summed up photography's role: "The stamp is being issued in recognition of the role of photography as a vital tool of science and industry; a basic component of communication; an art form of ever-expanding dimension; an integral element in shaping the American way of life; a hobby that has given pleasure to millions; and a visual record of history and of the joys and trials of living."

Professor Dr. Erik Suy, under-secretary-general of the United Nations and principal speaker at the luncheon, noted the common bond shared by the U.N. and world of photography.

"Although we represent different fields of endeavor," Suy said, "we deal in a common philosophy: the universality of communication."

He came as an avid amateur photographer who owns three cameras and six lenses.

Suy read a quotation from a book by Andreas Feininger: "Picture language is the oldest form of graphic communication known to man. The latest, most perfect form of picture language is photography."

Photography, we are aware, is quite different from spoken language. "The understanding of photographic language," Suy said, "makes the use of interpreters superfluous. The only interpreters are common sense and open-mindedness."

He quoted again from Feininger: "In contrast to the spoken and written word, a picture can be understood anywhere in the world. It can bridge the chasm created by the differences of language and alphabet. It is a means of universal communication. And never before has there been a greater need for universal language."

"Photographs have proven their ability to have enormous impact on people everywhere, and it is tremendously important that pictures be used wisely."

"Intelligently used," Suy quoted again from Feininger, "the picture language of photography can play a small but vital role in promoting universal understanding and averting global disaster."

Suy felt that, thanks to photography, international peace and security had come closer to realization.

"I sincerely hope," he said, "that the technique of remote sensing of our earth's activities via satellite photography will contribute to the establishment of a more peaceful society than the one we have been living in."

"Now I will go back to my work at the U.N. and, as to photography, I will continue to push the button," he concluded, "confident that you experts will do the rest."

'My House' Needlepoint Gives Casual Look To Many Areas

Amusing needlepoint calls a place home in the My House sampler pictured above. White lettering against a bright orange background — with tan, brown, and green highlights to draw in the home-stead — will put you in your own backyard. This lighthearted decorating piece can't miss and will start a casual corner almost anywhere in your home.

The most endearing and creative American sampler work was made in cross-stitch and dates to the 19th century. More often than not, young girls used home sewing projects to display their domestic talents. Complete alphabets, letter perfect and personally designed in a wide range of cursive and block styles, were often stitched onto the top half of the cloth. Family names and dates, as well as favorite mottoes and slogans, were then worked out underneath the alphabet.

For those who prefer, needlepoint is an alternative to cross-stitch and bears some resemblance to it, since the stitch used throughout is half of a complete cross-stitch. My House is available in a complete kit containing a 12-mesh mono canvas, Persian wool yarn, a needle, plus full instructions and color-coded design graph (the design is not printed). Your work will finish to 5 1/2" x 10 1/2" and fits the solid oak frame shown.

Order My House No. 00978 for $9.49 plus $1.45 postage and handling. Order Kit and Frame No. 00979 for $15.49 plus $1.95 postage and handling.

Send your name, address, order and remittance to Creative Home Crafts, Dept. 88B, P.O. Box 1281, Locust at 17th, Des Moines, Iowa 50336. If you wish to use your Visa, Master Charge or American Express please give the Master Charge interbank number, credit card number, and expiration date.

Our Policy: You are protected by Creative Home Crafts' policy of complete satisfaction or full refund.

Window Shades Conserve Energy

Nearly everything these days is tied in somehow with the saving of energy.

New, product or old, its manufacturer is beating the drums to assure us that its usage means a huge saving in the consumption of energy and, consequently, a substantial decrease in heating and cooling costs.

Some of it is wholly true, some partly and some not at all. It is surprising, though, how many ways there are to save energy and dollars by the proper use of household items we have known for years. One of these is the ordinary window shade.

Researchers at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago discovered after extensive tests that the common variety of window shade can make a significant contribution to cutting indoor heat loss and heat gain in hot weather.

The tests were conducted under conditions simulating a well-insulated home. Outside temperatures ranged between 20 degrees and 50 degrees Fahrenheit in the winter and 85 and 95 degrees Fahrenheit in the summer. Because windows are excellent conductors of heat, they are poor insulators. This explains why so much more summer heat can enter through a window than through the walls surrounding it and then, in the winter, so much furnace heat can make its getaway through those same windows. The study showed that shades act as barriers against both heat loss and heat buildup.

Here is what the researchers recommend to get the most protection from your shades. Pull them down on winter evenings, when the outside air is coldest. This will cause a substantial portion of the heat usually lost through windows to "bounce" off the shades and remain inside. Raise the shades during sunny days.

light hours to bring some winter warmth into the house. To take much of the summer scorch out of the house, lower the shades on hot, sunny afternoons. This will let cool air come in and make your house that much more comfortable.

The Illinois Tech study also found that the shade-hanging arrangement and the room air-flow pattern play important roles in the ability of the shades to reduce heat flow in and out of windows. The pulled-down roller shades tested were mounted within the window frame, had only a quarter-inch clearance at their sides and just touched the sill.

If even more thermal efficiency is desired, shades can be laminated with aluminum foil or other materials or treated with pigmented vinyls and other plastics and resins. Often bought solely for decorative and privacy purposes, window shades appear to be taking on a new dimension by lowering energy consumption.

YMCA, Anthem Honored On New Israeli Stamps

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Four new issues from Israel should arouse the interest of philatelists far and wide. One stamp is a special tribute to the 100th anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Jerusalem. Another set of two honors a pair of prominent people in Israel's modern history. A third adhesive is dedicated to the centenary of the national anthem. The fourth features a town in its landscape series.

One hundred years ago, a handwritten constitution of the YMCA was signed in Jerusalem and with this simple document the institution was founded in Israel. The YMCA-Jerusalem Centennial stamp design highlights an impression of the YMCA building in Jerusalem.

Dr. Theodor Herzl and Dr. Chaim Weizmann are the latest additions to the series which features "Prominent Figures in Israel's Modern History." Herzl was the founder of the Zionist movement, and Weizmann was the first president of the modern State of Israel.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Jewish national anthem, "Hatikva." It was written by Hebrew scholar Naftali Herz Imber and was published for the first time in Jerusalem in 1878 under the title of "Tikvatu" ("Our Hope"). The stamp depicts the first verse.

The fourth new stamp is the latest in the definitive series "Landscapes of Israel" and is devoted to Rosh Pina, earliest of the agricultural settlements in Upper Galilee. The stamp illustrates a picturesque view of the town from a local road. Rosh Pina was founded 100 years ago. All of these new stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department, according to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

If you are keeping close tabs on new U.S. issues, the U.S. Postal Service announced that a single commemorative stamp saluting the Viking missions to the planet Mars was issued July 20 at Hampton, Va., the site of NASA's Langley Research Center. July 20 is the second anniversary of the landing of Viking I on Mars in 1976.

On Aug. 11, a 28-cent regular stamp in the Americana Series will be issued at Tacoma, Wash. The design reproduces the reconstructed blockhouse at Fort Nisqually, Wash., founded in 1833.

The previously announced block of four stamps featuring American Owls will be issued at Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 26. The owls depicted are the Great Gray Owl, the Saw Whet Owl, the Barred Owl and the Great Horned Owl. All are indigenous to North America.

Watch this column for details and first-day cancellation information.

The Molly Pitcher 10-cent 1978 commemorative postal card will be issued Sept. 8 at Freehold, N.J. It is the first issue in a new series which honors heroes of the American Revolution.

The design shows Molly Pitcher taking her husband's place in a cannon crew at the Battle of Monmouth. Her real name was Mary Ludwig Hays.

Spotlight on Hobbies/Crafts Suggestions Given For Cleaning Wood

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — About four years ago, I used walnut paneling for the two rooms I finished in our attic. It has always looked beautiful, but recently has taken on a kind of dingy appearance. The paneling was finished when I bought it, and I have never done anything to it. I have hesitated to wash it, even though I am sure that it needs nothing but a cleaning, because I do not want to spoil the wood. What do you suggest?

A. — Use one of the products specially formulated to remove grease, grime, smudges and finger marks and at the same time bring out the natural beauty of the wood. This undoubtedly is all that will be required. Read the label on the product container to be sure that it has a cleaning action as well as a wood-conditioning formula.

Q. — I have read many times about different ways to remove white rings caused by wet glasses on table tops. I have a dark mahogany table that had such a condition recently. I spread some petroleum jelly on the marred areas and didn't touch it for more than a day. I then wiped off the jelly, rubbed a little and presto — no more white rings. I thought your readers might like to know about this.

A. — Thanks.

Q. — I finished a table recently with varnish. When the varnish had set, I noticed a lot of little bubbles in the surface. I have sanded them down, but before I redo the table I want to know what caused the bubbles so it doesn't happen again. Can you help me?

A. — It sounds very much as though you stirred the varnish or otherwise disturbed it just before using it.

Q. — I recently saw a ranch house plan (in a newspaper) which I like. Before I send for the blueprints, I want to find out whether the builder can construct the house on a concrete slab instead of with a basement, as shown in the paper?

A. — Impossible to answer precisely. However, most ranch designs can be built either with a basement or on a concrete slab. And most builders can make the change when necessary. You may find that the blueprints available from the architect have drawings applicable to either method of construction. In any case, if you have the name of the architect, write to him and ask exactly what the situation is for that particular house. He won't charge for answering your question.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

(Do-it-yourselfers will find valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 on this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Price Of Gold Surpasses $200

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold soared above $200 an ounce, an all-time high, on the major European bullion markets today.

The price was fixed at $201.30 in hectic afternoon trading on the London market and rose to $200.65 in Zurich, Europe's biggest gold market.

Dealers here said bullion given a boost when American buying developed at the start of the business day in the United States.

Investors traditionally turn to gold in times of monetary instability, and the steady decline of the dollar on the world's foreign exchanges has caused a surge in bullion prices.

The dollar sank to another record low in Tokyo against the Japanese yen today and continued to slide against major European currencies, falling more than 2 percent against the Swiss franc by early afternoon.

Gold had been trading around $199 an ounce most of the day and then moved higher following reports that the president of the Swiss national bank, Fritz Leutwiler, believed that a further appreciation of the Swiss franc against the dollar is inevitable.

In an interview on Swiss television Thursday night, Leutwiler also made it clear that Swiss authorities believe the control of inflation takes priority over massive national bank intervention to support the dollar.

European central banks have bought dollars on the foreign exchanges to keep their own currencies from rising too rapidly against the dollar.

The gold price had been fixed this morning at a record high of $198.80. The previous record fixing was $197.50, recorded Dec. 30, 1974.

The fixing is the price agreed to by London's five major bullion dealers for the day's trading after conferring, usually by telephone, on market conditions.

The previous record came just a few days before congressional legislation allowed Americans to buy and sell gold in the New Year of 1975. European speculators had expected that the new American law would cause a boom in the gold market. But that boom did not materialize and gold prices gradually declined.

Today's fixing price was $4.55 above Thursday's close of $194.25 and $1.30 above the 1974 high.

In Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market, the price this morning was $197.875, up $4 from Thursday's close.

Gold's strength reflected the continuing weakness of the dollar and strong prices for gold futures on the New York market. One London dealer said New York futures prices ranged from $198.20 for August deliveries to $204.50 dollars for the December position.

The dollar, despite massive purchases by the Bank of Japan to stem the drop, dipped on the Tokyo foreign exchange to yet another record low.

The ailing currency closed at 192.125 Japanese yen, down from Thursday's close of 193.475 yen and at its lowest closing level since trading began at the end of World War II.

It is in Japan's interest to keep the yen from rising too rapidly against the dollar because the United States is a key export market for Japan. A more expensive yen makes Japanese goods less competitive on the American market.

The dollar continued its slide when European foreign exchanges opened, registering lower morning rates against all major European currencies.

Morning rates for the dollar in key European financial centers:

Frankfurt — 2.0510 West German marks, compared to 2.0570 Thursday.

Zurich — (afternoon rate) 1.7575 Swiss francs, compared to 1.7938 Thursday.

Paris — 4.40125 French francs, compared to 4.4130 Thursday.

Milan — 843.60 Italian lire, compared to 845.55 Thursday.

U.S. Dollar Continues To Decline

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. dollar again fell sharply against the yen in Tokyo today, despite strong intervention by the Bank of Japan to support the price of the dollar.

The dollar closed at record lows every day this week. Today's close was 192.125 yen, down sharply from Thursday's close of 193.475 yen.

The dollar opened at 192.10 yen and traded as high as 192.80 yen.

The Bank of Japan intervened in the afternoon when the dollar again sank to 192.10, the lowest price so far. Traders estimated that the central bank bought about $240 million at the bottom price.

It appears the central bank is trying to create a feeling of "bottoming out" for the U.S. currency, but traders said the selling pressure has yet to recede.

The Bank of Japan has bought an estimated $1.5 to $1.6 billion this week.

The Tokyo market is particularly concerned over a U.S. consumer price announcement due later in the day.

"If inflation continues to get worse in June, the dollar could drop out of sight," said one trader. He added that it could recover a little if June inflation remained at about the same level as May.

Spot turnover today came to a fairly heavy $633 million, but was well below Thursday's near-record turnover of $1.123 billion when the central bank absorbed about $500 million.

Combined forward and swap trades came to $689 million.

The Japan Foreign Trade Council announced that export contracts in June at the 13 major trading houses fell 30.7 percent from a year ago to 806.1 billion yen while import contracts rose 2.3 percent to 808.8 billion yen. Traders said the report didn't have any effect on trading.

The government also announced today that consumer prices in the Tokyo area in July rose 0.8 percent from June and 4.8 percent from a year ago, after dropping 1.1 percent on a monthly basis and rising only 3.8 percent on an annual basis in June.

A bank analyst said that the recent heavy intervention by the Bank of Japan could boost growth of the money supply, but said the chances of renewed inflation are slight because demand is still sluggish, thereby keeping prices stable.

Lions Auction Set Saturday

The Lubbock Lions Club will auction more than $25,000 in merchandise which was donated by about 400 merchants and solicited by 350 Lions during its 14th annual TV Auction on KLBK-TV, Channel 13, from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday.

The auction raises funds for more than a dozen charitable organizations financially assisted by the club. Advanced bids can be made in person from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center banquet hall.

The Lubbock Lions, the largest Lions Club in the nation with more than 500 members, has raised about $73,000 through the auction which began in 1965 through former club president Ford Robertson.

The first auction collected $4,566 from about 100 items. During the past 13 years the KLBK-TV auction has been held, almost 3,000 firms have donated items totaling a retail value of approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

Proceeds have gone toward the Lions Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville, Camp Fire Girls, eyeglasses for needy children, Texas Little League Baseball, Girlstown, USA, the Big Brother/Big Sister Program, Texas Boys Ranch, and a number of other organizations.

The 1977 auction netted $11,632.36. Bill Wade is auction chairman and Ron Betenbough is current president of the District 2-72 Club.

Opposition Delays Carter Plan

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Opposition by unions, fears among Hispanic groups and congressional complaints of a heavy workload are responsible for a new delay in President Carter's plan to create a new Border Management Service.

The latest delay puts the project 15 months behind its original schedule, which called for a reorganization plan to go to Congress in October, 1977. The president now plans to send it to Congress next January.

"We just ran out of time," said one staff member who worked on the project. "We're dealing with a very complicated area."

The plan is opposed by organized labor, which fears the loss of unionized jobs and lucrative overtime that can push a border inspector's annual pay to $40,000 and above. AFL-CIO chief George Meany wrote the president a letter opposing the plan.

Hispanic groups fear that the plan might mean the downgrading of Leonel Castillo, the first Mexican-American to head the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which would lose the 4,000-person Border Patrol to the Treasury Department.

And the heads of two key congressional committees, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex. and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., wrote Carter saying they already had enough work for this year and asking him to postpone submission of the border management plan, which is subject to congressional modification or veto.

The re-organization proposal would move the Border Patrol, which has the primary job of keeping illegal aliens out of the country, from the Justice Department's INS into the Treasury Department.

It would be combined with the Customs Service, which levies import duties and looks for smugglers.

The resulting agency would be called the U.S. Border Management Service.

The idea is to eliminate the gaps and overlapping jurisdictions that have plagued the nation's several border-watching agencies for years, and to cut the flow of drugs and illegal aliens into the country.

The State Department would lose control over visas for tourists and commercial visitors. This would move to the Justice Department and a new Bureau of Explosives and Firearms, which would be separate from the FBI.

President Carter determined the present outlines of the border plan in a memorandum June 30, and scheduled formal announcement for mid-July. But the plan is so sure to stir controversy among the affected groups, including Hispanics and the unions representing customs and border patrol employees, that Brooks and Ribicoff sought and got a delay until next year.

Another consideration, a presidential assistant said, is that some members of Congress wanted to avoid dealing with one more potentially controversial issue just before the November elections.

State Officials Probe Greyhounds' Deaths

CONCORD, New Hampshire (AP) — State officials are investigating the slaughter of 39 greyhounds on the property of a Farmington dog racer.

"It looked like somebody took a machine gun and blew their heads off," said town dog officer John Fitch this week.

He said the dogs had been "put down" over a five-week period by the owner, whom he refused to identify, apparently because they had not performed adequately in competition. Fitch said he called the county sheriff, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the state Racing Commission for assistance.

SHIP CEREMONY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Carter will fly to Norfolk, Va., on Aug. 5 for the commissioning of the cruiser USS Mississippi and to Columbia, S.C., on Aug. 14 to address a convention of the Mid-Continent Farmers Association.

Joggers Encounter Odd Experiences

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — I ran into a neighbor the other day running out of a bookstore with one of those run-for-your-health books under his arm like he hadn't paid for it.

He had on those zippered longjohns Bruce Jenner wears when he spoons his breakfast cereal, heel-less sneakers and little sweat socks with pompons, which of course is the ritual gear these days for the joggers who throng our highways and byways like sheep in Ireland.

In the driveway he almost ran down a lady in satin shorts jogging in the other direction.

Not since Pheidippides, the Greek who began the rage by running himself to death without benefit of satin scanties on the original run from Athens to Marathon, has there been such a cavalry charge of bipeds on our public thoroughfares, both urban and rural.

Fred Lebow, who honchos the New York City Marathon in which commuters try to out run the muggers, reports he now has five cardboard boxes full of applicants, each box containing 3,000 names, for the October coronary classic. Almost as many as ran for Mayor last time when Ed Koch, a jogger, won.

Close on New York's heels, the 26.2-mile Mayor Daley jog-fest in Chicago in September is expecting 10,000 marathoners to puff through the Windy City. Everyone is expected to finish ahead of the White Sox.

I can recall less than a decade ago when a sports writer friend of mine named Tom Henshaw was the only marathon maniac that I knew or ever even heard of. Not that Tom was a jogger himself or even a waddler. He had a physique like Tony Galento embracing a keg of beer, but he followed runners, their careers, their diets, their breathing spasms the way other guys study Arnie Palmer's backswing or Bjorn Borg's serve.

Tom got married the weekend of the Boston Marathon. For a honeymoon, he took his bride along on the press bus, but being a gallant Bostonian, he gave her the window seat.

Last Sunday I met a woman who lives nearby out walking her dog. The dog was limping, dragging his left rear leg.

"Did he catch a thorn?" I asked.

"No," she said. "He pulled a muscle jogging."

I tried not to imagine what happens when a dog jogger meets a person jogger, because an airline pilot friend, who jogs to keep in enough shape to fit in the cockpit, carries along with him each morning a spray can of homemade doggie Mace compounded of vinegar, hot pepper and rose water to squirt at mastiffs who come nipping at his Achilles tendon.

Another neighbor claims to have been attacked by a gander while circling our little lake, but he didn't specify whether the other goose was out jogging too.

I tend to disbelieve these stories ever since a little girl told me a snapping turtle the size of a pizza tray bit a hole in her rubber raft, which was only slightly smaller than the ones they used in the D-day invasion. Early morning joggers claim they do meet up with deer, skunks and racoons in between school buses and other joggers.

The supermarket every Saturday is full of joggers in full fig, dressed like the Russian Olympic team as they roll their carts up the aisle piled high with yogurt, non-calorie salad dressings and wheat germ so as to make the rest of us loading up on beer and potato chips feel guilty.

The library has a whole display case full of books on running and jogging, under the sign "Light Summer Reading" that they used to reserve for murders, historical romances and spy thrillers.

Every morning a rather hefty looking hausfrau goes by in a fulsome T-shirt emblazoned "Do not talk to jogger while bustle is in motion."

But evenings in the country are best. The air is clear and cool, a light wind rustles the tall maples, birds sing in the thickets of the hydrangeas and down the road comes a vision of sheerest delight. Long tanned legs catching the sun's last rays, red hair flying, little blue sneakers pounding it out on the pavement, brief white shorts and a sweat-wet T-shirt unable to harness nature's bounty.

A jiggler, I believe is the word they used in TV circles to describe such a visual asset to prime time watching. They beat joggers any day.

NY Firm Plans To Build Casino

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The New York firm which owns the Dunes Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas has purchased the President Motor Inn and Mayfair Apartments here for $10 million and says it plans to build a $40 million casino hotel complex on the site.

Morris A. Shenker, chairman of Continental Connector Corp. and former attorney for former Teamsters union president Jimmy Hoffa, said that work on the 500-room casino hotel would begin immediately and would be completed late next summer.

Shenker said the 138-room President, on the Boardwalk at Albany Avenue, would be razed. But he said no residents of the 220-unit Mayfair Apartments will be displaced because his company will upgrade the apartment complex and build the casino behind it.

It is the second major Atlantic City apartment house to be sold to potential casino hotel developers this week. Last week, the Ritz Apartments, formerly the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, was sold to a Philadelphia businessman who said he plans to convert the building into a casino hotel.

The Dunes is also the third Las Vegas casino company to make an investment here. The owners of Caesars Palace and, more recently, the Golden Nugget, have announced plans to build casino hotel complexes here.

MYSTERY RECONSTRUCTION — Betty Gatliff of the Federal Aviation Administration Aeromedical Institute in Oklahoma City, Okla., worked in 1977 to rebuild the face of a woman found shot to death near Sycamore, Ill., so that the victim might be identified by those who might have known her. So far, no one has attached a name to the face she pieced together last year. (AP Laserphoto)

Medical Illustrationist Attempts To Provide Identity Of Victims

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — To Betty Gatliff, reconstructing faces from pieces of bone is like putting together a puzzle — satisfaction comes from identifying the picture.

But no one has attached a name to the face she pieced together last year of a woman who had been shot to death Wednesday. DeKalb officials buried their "Jane Doe" in an unmarked grave almost two years after her skeleton was found in a farmer's field.

William Sullivan, DeKalb County coroner, said he took the remains to Miss Gatliff, a medical illustrationist for the Federal Aviation Administration in Oklahoma City, to see if reconstructing the face would help identify the woman and, possibly, her slayer.

Miss Gatliff, 47, has rebuilt 30 faces from bones in the last 12 years, and 23 of them have been identified after pictures were displayed on police bulletin boards or in newspapers.

DeKalb's "Jane Doe" was the first Illinois case she had worked on.

"Somebody should have recognized her before now," said Miss Gatliff, a 20-year FAA veteran. "All the ones that have been identified looked quite like the people. You wonder when a person isn't identified if there's an error somewhere."

Sullivan said forensic pathologists who examined the skeleton determined the victim was Caucasian, about 19 years old, 5-foot to 5-foot-2, between 100 and 110 pounds, and probably smoked heavily. She also had a slight overbite and extensive dental work.

Miss Gatliff reconstructed her face by measuring facial bones to determine the width and aperture of the mouth, eyes, ears and nose. She contoured the face with a "map" of a human face showing normal skin thicknesses at various points.

She said she attached tissue thickness blocks to the skull and connected the blocks with strips of clay and then filled in the spaces. Once a complete clay model was made, she made a plaster cast which the police can keep and photograph.

Sullivan said he has had more than 500 inquiries about the woman from parents looking for a runaway daughter or other missing person.

Some residents of this college town of about 30,000 criticized Sullivan for searching so long for the woman's identity. But he defends the time and money spent, saying as long as the woman remains a mystery, so will her killer.

"Even if we didn't solve the crime, I'd feel better if we could identify her," he said.

TIPS FOR GARDENERS

Consumers Receive Assistance In Purchasing Fresh Produce

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

The federal government is trying to help you buy locally grown produce at roadside stands or pick your own tree-ripened fruit at the orchard.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and Science and Education Administration as of April had spent nearly $2 million in grants to 23 states and Puerto Rico for 22 projects under the Farmer-to-Consumer Direct Marketing Act of 1976. The act ends this year.

Here are some of the projects:

Arizona organizes producers to sell farm products directly to consumer cooperatives. Small producers will sell through roadside markets. Consumer groups in Phoenix and Tucson will buy directly from producers. Georgia and South Carolina joined to establish farmers' markets in Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S.C., bringing small farmers and low-income consumers together at inner-city markets.

Colorado is setting up open-air markets and New Jersey is encouraging pick-your-own farms where city people can pick (and picnic), paying by the size of the container.

Florida is trying to develop a produce market on wheels to serve densely populated areas.

Barbara Lindemann Schiel of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service says the total quantity of farm products that can be marketed directly is a small proportion of U.S. production, but contends it's important to many small farmers.

For the consumer, she envisions a nostalgic return of the past, saying: "It can be a way for people to buy fresher, locally grown foods at reasonable prices and, at the same time, see what farming is all about."

Foliar Feeding

A quarter of a century after Thomas P. Reilly claimed that nutrients could be applied to the leaves and used effectively to feed plants, the Atomic Age and use of radioactive isotopes supported him.

Reilly was founder of RA-PID-GRO Corp. of Dansville, N.Y. The company's current president, Mrs. Frances C. Reilly, recently gave Cornell University's State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences a $30,000 gift — the Thomas and Frances Reilly Fund for Teaching and Research in Plant Nutrition.

The income will be used to support research on feeding plants by applying nutrient solutions and other substances to foliage and other above-ground parts of plants.

Professor H. B. Tukey Jr. says nutrients applied to the foliage are absorbed rapidly and often utilized more efficiently by the plant than when applied to the soil. One objective is to reduce fertilizer use and thus save manufacturing energy.

RA-PID-GRO has supported such work since 1975. Its plant food is absorbed by plant roots and by foliage, stems, bark, fruit and flowers. It was first marketed in 1938 after 25 years of testing.

While working in his father's fruit-tree nursery, Reilly conceived the idea that a highly concentrated soluble fertilizer, dissolved in water, would make a nutrient solution for application to plants through the leaves. Cornell said a satisfactory product was found in 1932.

Scientists at Michigan State University and elsewhere backed up Reilly's idea despite skepticism by some chemical experts.

In 1959, Reilly received a special citation from the American Horticultural Society.

Mondale Sees Presidency As 'Awesome Burden'

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whether or not Vice President Walter Mondale covets the presidency in the future, he will have no illusions about the awesome burden or the magnitude of the job.

Mondale, in a revealing moment, told a group of visiting editors recently: "Even though I had been in Washington in the Senate for 12 years, it struck me how the pressure builds up in this office. It is almost inhuman what a president goes through. No issue hits his desk that doesn't have a knife in it, or a bomb in it."

"If it were good news, it would have been announced by someone else," he added.

"When the stock market goes up, it is (Federal Reserve Board chairman William) Miller; when it goes down, it is (President) Carter."

"And the pressure that a president is under... is unbelievable. It is an out-sized job. There may be nothing like it in the world."

Mondale himself tells reporters he is not so "dumb" as to say whether he would run in 1980 if Carter bows out, or in 1984 after a second Carter term.

Mondale does, however, display some unhappiness about reports he has lost his clout with the president. He recalled that in his first conversation with then Gov. Carter, he told him he was not interested in the No. 2 spot "unless it is a real job."

He said he was perfectly happy to remain as a Minnesota senator and was not interested in a strictly ceremonial job. His view of the vice presidency was that he should be an adviser on both domestic and foreign policy.

Indians Urge U.S. To Meet Obligations

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indians have presented federal officials with a manifesto calling for the United States to live up to its treaty obligations. Declaring themselves political prisoners, the Indians called for such things as a return of Indian artifacts and skeletons from museums and payment of war reparations.

The manifesto was presented Thursday in a Senate office building ceremony which formally ended the "The Longest Walk" protest march.

Coordinators of the trek from California to Washington presented copies of the manifesto to Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D.; Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif.; and White House aide Rick Hernandez.

Mondale said Carter agreed on all counts, "and I think we have broken new institutional ground."

He explained that he serves in crucial advisory groups, is privy to all classified information and has virtually unlimited access to Carter.

Analysis

Furthermore, he says he been "given a significant role" on foreign diplomatic assignments.

"So in terms of access and involvement and opportunity to participate in what counts, one could have no criticism. In fact, I am very pleased by it," he said.

White House observers agree Carter has an open-door policy where Mondale is concerned. The vice president attends all major policy meetings and he has lunch once a week with Carter. His White House office is down the hall, and his advice is valued as from a pro who has been ants, but I sure would like your help on natural gas?" he asked.

Krueger Raps Tower's Votes On Farm Issues

He later told the Mexican-American steering committee he thought it very important that representatives of all minority groups be employed in all levels of employment and schools.

Cox Chain Acquires Longview Newspaper

LONGVIEW (AP) — The Atlanta-based Cox Enterprises has purchased the Longview News Co., Inc., publisher of both the Longview Daily News and the Longview Morning Journal.

Margaret Estes, chairman and chief executive officer of the Longview News Co., announced Thursday that 100 percent of the stock had been sold to Cox.

After acknowledging the recent Bakke decision, he said he still believed "that it is necessary to make adjustments and special considerations in placing minorities in schools and employment."

Krueger drew the analogy of instances he recalled when he was teacher that it was a known and unquestionable fact that "perhaps a seven-foot basketball player or 250-pound football player who was deficient in his grades continued to play because adjustments were made.
"The total spectrum of the individual as well as the position and circumstances must be considered," he said.

Krueger said that one-fourth of his staff is Mexican-American and he promised the same ratio on his Senate staff if elected.

At the Hilton Inn, Krueger said the United States has the lowest level of capital investment of any industrialized country and should reduce its capital gains tax from 50 percent at least to 35 percent to promote investment.

Saying American industry is no longer competitive in many fields, he remarked that most of the cassette recorders and television cameras in the room were Japanese-made.

The congressman was asked if, as Tower has claimed, he has too much union support and is not strongly in favor of the right-to-work law.

"I have always supported the right-to-work law, and if John Tower didn't know that, he does now," Krueger said.
"I don't believe in ruling people out because they're union members. The last thing we need in a senator is division.

"You can't satisfy everybody, but of course you can try to represent them."

He also said the public revolt against high taxes makes two statements to the national government: "No. 1 is, 'Look, government, you don't have to do everything for us'; and 2 is, 'You've been telling for years that you're going to reduce taxes, and now we're taking it into our own hands."

A woman supporter read a telegram of support for his candidacy from retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock as the conference was ending.

"With his departure," the candidate said, "one wonders if the giants are leaving the land."

Commission Approves LoVaca Settlement

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission approved, 3-0, today a proposed settlement of more than $1.6 billion in customer claims against LoVaca Gathering Co.

"The plan, taken as a whole, is in the public interest," said commissioner Jon Newton.

The proposed settlement would transfer LoVaca and other smaller Texas pipeline companies owned by Coastal States Gas Corp. to a new company —

Valero Intrastate Transmission.

The claims against Coastal-LoVaca would be wiped out, as well as old natural gas contracts which call for LoVaca to provide gas at a much cheaper rate.

The proposal also includes permission for the new company to pass on 100 percent of its gas costs to customers, just as LoVaca has done.

Newton said he is "fundamentally opposed" to the pass-through, but he noted that it is subject to review beginning in the second year of operation of the new company.

"We must not cripple the new company before it has an opportunity to survive," Newton said.

Controversial issues involving Lone Star Gas Co. and Amoco were severed from the commission's order.

The settlement still must be approved by shareholders of Coastal, which is LoVaca's corporate parent, and several federal agencies.

At least one lawsuit has been threatened if the commission approved the settlement.

In addition to passing through its gas cost, the new company may charge an extra 10 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas the first year and 15 extra cents the second year.

LoVaca is now adding on 5 cents per mcf.

Newton said the state attorney general had stated that the settlement plan would "not lower the cost of gas nor will it make Texas consumers whole for the injuries they have suffered."

Senate Eyes School Costs

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators are still arguing about relief from local school taxes but senators have already approved a study committee to report the costs to the 1979 Legislature.

Senators approved on voice vote and sent to the House a resolution giving the study job to the Legislative Commission on Public School Finance. The state comptroller and the School Tax Assessment Committee on Public School Finance will provide aid.

The resolution urges the 1979 Legislature "to consider adjusting the formulas of the Foundation School Program to provide additional state revenues to those local school districts affected by reductions in potential ad valorem tax revenues as a consequence of the adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said that none of the provisions in the tax relief measure passed by the Senate Thursday will require money appropriations now. However, he said, there will be about a $230 million loss in local school tax revenue over the next two years from the exemptions planned for homeowners, farmers and the elderly.

Cancel Of Sale May Bring Trade Shift

By KRISTIN GOFF
NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter's decision to cancel a Sperry Rand Corp. computer sale to the Soviet Union may spell a shift in trade relations, the company's chief executive officer said today.

J. Paul Lyet, chairman and chief executive officer, said that he was "confused" but not angry at a White House decision to deny the firm's export application for a $6.8 million computer deal. The computer system was to be sold to Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Speaking at a news conference before the company's annual meeting, Lyet said: "This is the first time the President has stepped in on a fairly routine application.... That raises the question of future applications. Are they going to require presidential approval?"

While Lyet carefully avoided any direct criticism of Carter, he said the company might find that it wasn't worth its time to continue trying to trade with the Soviet Union if Presidential approval became a routine part of the export approval process.

Lyet several times said it was inappropriate to criticize the U.S. government's action which denied the export application following harsh sentences to two Soviet dissidents. He said it was too soon to tell whether the decision on the company's computer deal was an isolated case, or "a completely new ballgame."

Lyet called the news conference, he said, to "set the record straight" on the type and power of the Sperry Univac system the company had proposed to sell to Tass.

Lynet said the President had apparently been misinformed and was incorrect when he told a news conference last Thursday that the computer represented a "quantum jump" in computer capabilities and was far in excess of what Tass needed for handling news of the 1980 Olympics.

"In reality, the system proposed for Tass is at the lower end of our 1100 family of computers, and it is in the same class as the Sperry Univac 1100 series computers previously approved by the U.S. government for use by Aeroflot, the Soviet national airlines....

"The system was carefully designed to provide adequate but not excessive capacity for the application at Tass," Lyet said.

Veteran Gives Credit To Church

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"When you need a friend...we'll be there."

David Richards of Lubbock believes that the Rev. Jim Sutherland and members of his Lubbock congregation have lived up to their motto printed in an advertisement in the telephone book's Yellow Pages.

The registered nurse, who is employed at University Hospital, said he believes he owes his eyesight and possibly his life to Rev. Sutherland and his congregation.

And, Richards added, he is not even a member of First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), which Sutherland pastors.

Richards, a disabled veteran, underwent eye surgery in June at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Albuquerque, N.M.

After a hospital stay of a few days in Albuquerque, he returned to Lubbock and awoke the next day, in excruciating pain and unable to see out of the eye on which surgery had been performed.

A neighbor drove him to the Health Sciences Center Hospital emergency room.

Dr. John Buesseler, a member of the ophthalmology and visual sciences department at Texas Tech University School of Medicine, examined Richards that Saturday morning and told him the eye was infected and that an immediate return trip to Albuquerque was necessary.

Paul Heinrich, who directs social services work at the hospital, contacted Sutherland, who is one of the facility's volunteer chaplains, about the emergency medical situation.

Sutherland arranged for a private air ambulance flight by Avtech Aviation of Lubbock. Funds for the flight were provided by an emergency medical fund at First Christian Church.

Richards remained in the hospital at Albuquerque for approximately two weeks before returning to Lubbock. He said that cases such as his are a medical rarity, occurring perhaps once in every 10,000 eye surgeries performed. He added that delay in returning to Albuquerque for treatment could have cost him the sight of his eye or possibly his life.

Richards said that an eye infection such as his can be dangerous because the eye is located so close to the brain and there is the possibility of complications, such as meningitis, occurring. He added that meningitis can cause death.

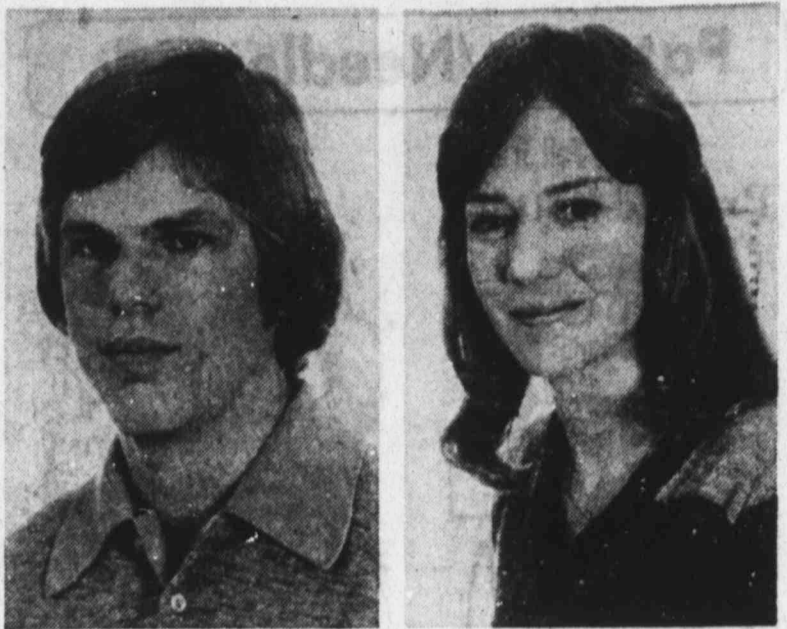

Richards said that an ophthalmologist may see such a case as his only once in his professional lifetime. He added that his case made him the No. 1 patient in Albuquerque for doctors and medical students because the case was so rare.

The Lubbock resident says he has regained some of the vision in the eye, but will not know for about six months how successful the surgery was. He added that he returns periodically to the Health Sciences Center Hospital for a followup by local doctors on the eye surgery done in Albuquerque.

Richards said he was so delirious from the pain in late June that he did not really know what was happening when arrangements were being made for the flight to Albuquerque.

Upon his return to Lubbock from Albuquerque, he began tracking down the Good Samaritans who helped expedite the flight by contacting Avtech. It was when he contacted Avtech that he found out Heinrich, Sutherland, and his church provided a helping hand.

Richards said he has since learned that the Veterans Administration will reimburse the church for the funds used to fly him to Albuquerque.

Chapel Hill To Hold Revival Services

Chapel Hill Baptist Church, 117 N. Mulberry St., will begin a series of revival services Aug. 6 with Rev. Jack L. Bailey, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church in Channelview, as evangelist.

Services are scheduled at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sundays and 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 5.

Music director for the revival is Bob Melvin, a Baptist church member in Lubbock, and Virginia Melvin is the pianist for the revival services. Cindy Conner, a member of the church, is serving as the organist for the revival.

Bailey is a native of Lubbock and a graduate of Denton High School. He also is a graduate of the University of Houston and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He earned a degree in church music and evangelism in music at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

He assumed a pastoral ministry in 1964. His first pastorate, Bel-Aire Baptist Church in Hobbs, N.M., was awarded fourth place in state evangelism in 1968.

The Lubbock native is well-known in West Texas, especially in the Brownfield area, where he served at Calvary Baptist Church prior to his Channelview pastorate.

Ex-Lubbock Couple Named Journeymen

RICHMOND, Va. (Special) — Two former Lubbock residents and Texas Tech University students are among the 95 young men and women who recently were commissioned as the newest and largest group of Southern Baptist missionary journeymen.

Steven Mark Gilger and his wife, Nita, are assigned to Kumasi, Ghana, as missionary journeymen. Gilger will be employed at the Bible Way Correspondence School at Kumasi and his wife will be employed as a publications worker in Kumasi.

Both are members of Trinity Baptist Church in Lubbock and received bachelor of arts degrees this year from Texas Tech.

Gilger's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gilger of El Paso, his hometown. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Hyden of Tyler.

The missionary journeymen for the Southern Baptist Church will work as teachers, nurses, evangelists, homemakers, secretaries and office workers in eight geographical areas of the world. This year's group includes nine married couples, including the Gilgers. Also a brother and sister were among those in the 14th group of missionary journeymen to be employed since the board started the program in 1965.

The new journeymen come from 24 different states, with Texas having the largest representation, 16.

Prior to their commissioning, "the group completed six weeks of special training at Meredith College at Raleigh, N.C. The commissioning service recently took place during a two-hour service in Richmond, Va., Bon Air Baptist Church.

The Rev. Alfonso Navarro, a missionary of the Holy Spirit, who is known for his work of evangelization throughout the United States and Mexico, will organize the content of the various sessions of the conference. He organized the first conference on Evangelization for Spanish-speaking persons, which was held in September, 1977, in El Paso.

The conference sessions on Aug. 11 will be exclusively for priests, deacons and nuns, Bishop Flores said.

The annual conference is one of the major activities of the El Paso Diocese Commission of Evangelization for the Spanish-speaking people.

The seven-member commission was established early this year and is responsible for all activities for evangelization of the Spanish-speaking in the diocese. The commission also is developing an evangelization center for its various programs.

Evangelism Groups To Merge

The merger of International Crusades of Lubbock and World Evangelism Foundation of Dallas will be announced today during a dinner at the Lubbock Civic Center.

The barbecue dinner at the Civic Center is being hosted by International Crusades and is the third annual barbecue dinner for the Lubbock-based organization.

The two organizations, which both began in Lubbock, have been possible for organizing partnership missions between American churches and churches overseas on a one-to-one basis.

Rev. Ben W. Mieth, president of International Crusades, Inc., said "The staff and board members of International Crusades look forward to merging with World Evangelism Foundation, under the direction of Dub Jackson. The merger gives International Crusades a way to extend and expand our ministry of church-to-church crusade evangelism. We are pleased to have the opportunity to join forces with WEF and work within their organization in its world-wide capabilities."

Dr. W.H. "Dub" Jackson Jr., president of World Evangelism Foundation (WEF), said, "With requests for over 30 overseas partnership campaigns in the next three years, we are especially happy to join forces with Ben Mieth and International Crusades. We welcome Ben, his staff, his board members and every Christian who has participated in past missions with International Crusades into the world witnessing efforts of World Evangelism Foundation."

International Crusades, which has offices in downtown Lubbock, has worked on church-to-church crusades evangelism in Latin and Central America. The organization's first campaign was in Mexico, and since that time, volunteers have participated in 11 crusades and eight countries.

The local organization began in May, 1973, with one staff member and has now grown to six staff members with offices in downtown Lubbock. When it first began, it was housed in an office at Calvary Baptist Church.

The staffs of both organizations will officially begin working together Jan. 1, 1979.

Dr. Jackson said the Dallas-based organization averages about 12 crusades a year in foreign countries on a church-to-church basis. The organization has a goal of approximately 10,000 persons a year witnessing in crusades by the mid-1980s.

He added that World Evangelism Foundation has participated in 32 crusades in 22 countries since it was first organized approximately 10 years ago. The crusades are staffed entirely by volunteer laymen, who pay their own way while participating in the evangelism crusades.

Dr. Jackson said that the crusades last one week in length and are arranged by invitations from foreign countries and their national leaders. He added that the volunteer laymen for the crusades come from all across the United States, especially Texas, New Mexico and other Southwestern states. He said that the organization has accomplished the crusades with the cooperation of many Southern Baptist churches across the nation.

JACK BAILEY

Anniversary Observed By City Church Group

Members of the Primary Association of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) in Lubbock are observing the organization's 100th birthday during festivities at 7 p.m. today.

The 100th birthday celebration is being held at the Lubbock Stake meeting house, 3211 58th St.

In Lubbock the 177 primary children, their families and friends have been celebrating the centennial anniversary with puppet shows, folk dances and fairs throughout the year. Many of the children have dressed in period costumes, made corn husk dolls and eaten penny gingerbread and homemade ice cream.

On Aug. 25, 1878, in the small community of Farmington, Utah, a large group of boys and girls met in a little rock church to form the church's first Primary Association.

The association is an auxiliary organization of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons). The primary has grown since that first meeting in Utah more than 100 years ago to a worldwide association with more than 540,000 children between the ages of three and 11 years.

Children in the association meet once a week after school to receive spiritual, social, and recreational training. The association also sponsors an early scouting program and the Merry Miss, a comparable program for girls.

Birthday pennies from primary children in Lubbock and around the world help support the world-famous Primary Children's Hospital at Salt Lake City, Utah.

At age 12 years primary children graduate and join the church's Young Men or Young Women organizations which continue the training through the adolescent years.

El Paso Hosts Annual Catholic Conference

EL PASO (Special) — The second annual Southwest Catholic Conference on Evangelization for Spanish-speaking persons will be held Aug. 11-13 in the El Paso Civic Center.

The announcement was made by the Most Rev. Patrick F. Flores, Bishop of El Paso.

The conference will be sponsored by the Diocese of El Paso with the cooperation of the Diocese of Juarez, Mexico.

All Catholic Spanish-speaking persons throughout the United States and Mexico are being invited, Bishop Flores said.

"The objective of the conference," the bishop said, "is to present the Word of God and to explain how we can share the good news with others under the guidance of the power of the Holy Spirit."

The Rev. Alfonso Navarro, a missionary of the Holy Spirit, who is known for his work of evangelization throughout the United States and Mexico, will organize the content of the various sessions of the conference. He organized the first conference on Evangelization for Spanish-speaking persons, which was held in September, 1977, in El Paso.

The conference sessions on Aug. 11 will be exclusively for priests, deacons and nuns, Bishop Flores said.

The annual conference is one of the major activities of the El Paso Diocese Commission of Evangelization for the Spanish-speaking people.

The seven-member commission was established early this year and is responsible for all activities for evangelization of the Spanish-speaking in the diocese. The commission also is developing an evangelization center for its various programs.

Church Plans Crafts Show

The third annual Senior Craftsmen Market will be held Aug. 17-19 at the Monterey Shopping Center open-air mall, 50th Street and Elgin Avenue.

The show-sale, for artists and craftsmen more than 60 years of age, is being planned by the First United Methodist Church.

A variety of crafts will be represented at the market, including handmade clocks, afghans, oil paintings, dolls, crocheted items, baby goods and others.

Plans also are being made for entertainment by the Retired Senior Volunteers from Levelland, who present their music on homemade instruments.

Further information may be obtained by calling Sherry Thomas, the church's activities director, at 763-4607.

Church To Show Alaskan Film

"Out There," a new sound film produced entirely in Alaska, will be shown at University Christian Church at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The film showing is open to the public without charge.

"Out There" is the story of Glenn McLain. Within a few short years of his scheduled retirement, his business was destroyed by an earthquake, he suffered a heart attack, and his wife died from cancer.

Bitter over the loss of his wife, McLain leaves Anchorage, Alaska, to wander through giant valleys searching for peace in the vastness of "the land that listens."

On his way to the wilderness he stops in a village to visit a friend who, years before, had saved his life. Seeing the Alaskan's bitterness and despair, the Eskimo friend persuades him to take his grandson, Peluk, with him.

Together the older man and the young boy search the vastness of Alaska. During their travels, the two have close encounters with bears, moose, caribou, mountain sheep and many other forms of wildlife of the far north country.

"Out There" was produced by MG Productions (Alaska) and is the latest release of Gospel Films, Inc., of Muskegon, Mich.

Primera Iglesia Bautista, 301 N. Sherman Ave., is hosting a showing of the film, "The Devil's Coach," at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

JAMES BRANKEL

Missionary evangelist James Brankel and his family will be present at Lubbock's First Assembly of God Church Sunday.

They will minister in music as well as preach at the 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. worship services Sunday.

The Brankel family was at the Lubbock church two years ago for a 10-day crusade. One year ago the family returned to the Lubbock church as special guests for the annual homecoming. In June they were at Roaring Springs as speakers for the youth camp of the West Texas District of the Assemblies of God.

Brankel pastored the First Assembly of God Church at Las Cruces, N.M., for 14 years. He also has served churches in Little Rock, Ark.; Bartlesville, Okla.; and Tucson, Ariz.

He has spent the last several years in evangelistic work.

The Brankel family returned recently from South America, where the members were involved in missionary evangelism and building new churches. They are planning another missionary crusade soon in Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Brankel have two children, Alexia and Stacey.

St. Isidore's Catholic Church in Abernathy has rescheduled its annual picnic from noon to 8 p.m. Sunday at the church.

The picnic was scheduled originally for July 23, but was postponed because of rain showers.

Mark 10:41-52, 11:1-6, The Living Bible

41 When the other disciples discovered what James and John had asked, they were very indignant.

42 So Jesus called them to Him and said, "As you know, the kings and great men of the earth lord it over the people;

43 But among you it is different. Whoever wants to be great among you must be your servant.

44 And whoever wants to be greatest of all must be the slave of all.

45 For even I, the Man from Heaven, am not here to be served, but to help others, and to give My life as a ransom for many."

46 And so they reached Jericho. Later, as they left town, a great crowd was following. Now it happened that a blind beggar named Bartimaeus (the son of Timeus) was sitting beside the road as Jesus was going by.

47 When Bartimaeus heard that Jesus from Nazareth was near, he began to shout out, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

48 "Shut up!" some of the people yelled at him. But he only shouted the louder, again and again, "O Son of David have mercy on me!"

49 When Jesus heard him He stopped there in the road and said, "Tell him to come here." So they called the blind man. "You lucky fellow," they said, "come on, He's calling you!"

50 Bartimaeus yanked off his old coat and flung it aside, jumped up and came to Jesus.

51 "What do you want Me to do for you?" Jesus asked. "O Teacher," the blind man said, "I want to see!"

52 And Jesus said to him, "All right, it's done. Your faith has healed you." And instantly the blind man could see, and followed Jesus down the road!

CHAPTER 11

1 As they neared Bethphage and Bethany on the outskirts of Jerusalem and came to the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two of His disciples on ahead.

2 "Go into that village over there," He told them, "and just as you enter you will see a colt tied up that has never been ridden. Untie him and bring him here.

3 And if anyone asks you what you are doing, just say, 'Our Master needs him and will return him soon.'"

4,5 Off went the two men and found the colt standing in the street, tied outside a house. As they were untying it, some who were standing there demanded, "What are you doing, untying that colt?"

6 So they said what Jesus had told them to, and then the men agreed.

THE SOUND OF BRASS

On a summer Sunday morning... at a boys' camp... a silhouette of the call to worship.

Interesting that man has used the percussion instruments to express the tempo of his excitement—and strings to translate his deepest emotions into melody. But generally he has chosen the brasses to sound his call to action.

Worship is action! It is our reaching out toward God.

Through centuries it has united men in their quest for truth. It has been the clarion of consecration, courage, commitment. It has inspired love and sacrifice, hope and resolve.

Make worship part of your life. Its trumpets call you to new adventures in the discovery of Truth... the journey to a lasting Joy.

GROWING OLDER Education Still Vital To Aged

By LOU COTTIN

Most of what we elders have learned in life came after we finished school. We were led on by the desire to know more, to reach wider horizons, to do a better job.

That's true for those of us who went to work after grade school. It's true for those of us who have gone through college.

Our formal education was just a beginning. Except for those who think they know everything about everything, we keep learning all the time.

Who is to say that what we have discovered on our own is less important than what the educators teach? Formal education can't take all the credit for our achievements.

Here we have a book with a unique approach to education. It's "The Lifelong Learner" by Ronald Gross. (Simon and Schuster, $9.95).

The book is based on the belief that to stop learning is to withdraw from life. It's a valuable tool for everyone who wants to get smarter.

Harold Taylor, former president of Sarah Lawrence College, understands that learning need not take place only in a classroom before age 25.

"The person who seeks an education," he says, "must involve himself in discovering the meaning of his own life... The purpose of education is to grow, to change, to liberate oneself."

Fine words. You read them and ask yourself: "What do they mean to me right now? What do I need now that I am past 60? What can I become at this late stage in life?"

"The Lifelong Learner" answers those questions. It provides a simple technique for doing so.

Keep a pad and pen in hand. Jot down ideas, thoughts, feelings, even dreams. Keep a log of what is exciting to you.

Use the log to record your reading, viewing, listening, random thoughts.

For many of us, a log or journal of this kind may define daily experiences. For others, it may encourage flights of fancy. We will have what amounts to an idea bank.

As we expand our creative and analytic powers, we will begin to grow in stature.

We discover what we know. We find out what we'd like to know more about. We join what this book calls the "invisible university." We develop respect for our own thinking.

Suddenly, we're different people. We bring ideas to others. We challenge what we consider to be erroneous concepts. We can support what, in our opinion, are correct positions.

Our middle-aged sons and daughter listen to us with new respect. We are never at a loss for interesting conversation. We are, in truth, lifelong learners.

"The Lifelong Learner" is divided into four sections.

First, the author gives us profiles of lifelong learners in action. Here we meet people, with or without formal schooling, who educated themselves. Very encouraging indeed.

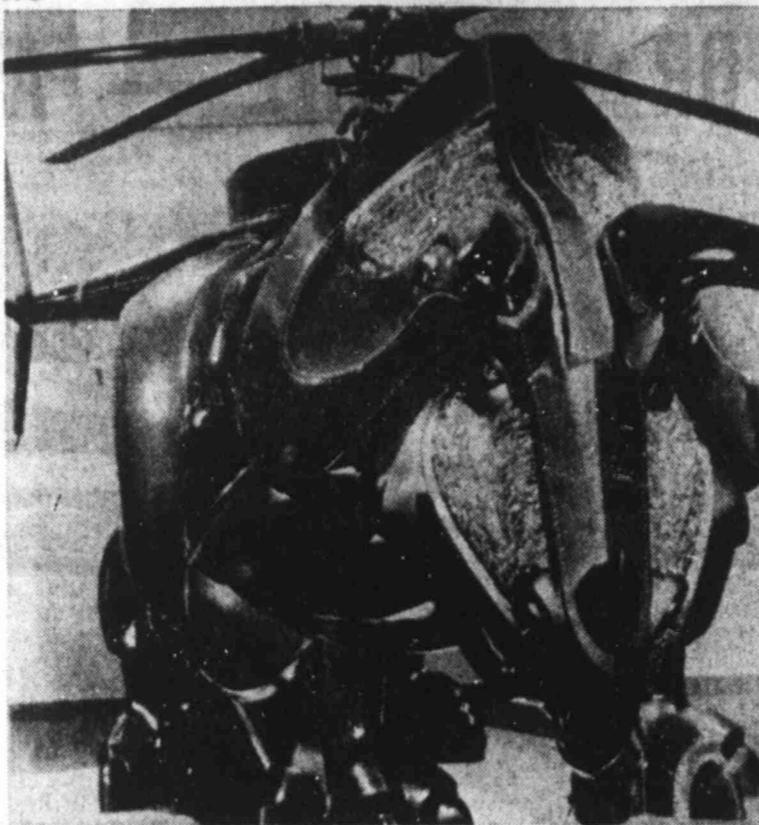

The second section, entitled "A Way to Be," carries on with more examples of how successful free learners developed their own schooling. They gained mastery over everything from free-lance writing to aerodynamics. More encouragement.

This is followed by a how-to-do-it section that tells how we can be free learners. Very practical.

We then get to the "invisible university." This section lists resources open to the free learner — place by place, state by state, subject by subject. There's even a basic bookshelf for the independent learner.

The last chapter is called "Free Learners, Free People. It is an invitation to fresh adventure in self-development. We go beyond what the school masters say "everybody must know." The initiatives are ours. So are the rewards.

TRICERACTOP? — This unique sculpture recently displayed at the Cincinnati Contemporary Arts Center is called "Triceractop" by its creator, Patricia Renick, a professor at the University of Cincinnati. The olive drab work of clay, rubber, wax, fiberglass and real helicopter parts is modelled on the triceratops — one of the last dinosaurs. The sculptor says it symbolizes her hope for the extinction of war. (AP Laserphoto)

FDA Sets New Rules For Medical Devices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is establishing new quality standards for the manufacture of all medical devices, ranging from such routine items as bandages and tongue depressors to such complicated hardware as pacemakers and heart-lung machines.

The new standards take effect Dec. 18. Based on legislation passed by Congress in 1976, the new regulations describe in general terms the quality assurance procedures that manufacturers must follow.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said: "While the over-all record of the devices industry is good, there is clear room for improvement. Ninety percent of the 232 device recalls monitored by FDA from October 1976 to November 1977 were caused by poor manufacturing practices and could have been prevented."

"These regulations will help manufacturers meet the expectations of consumers whose health and sometimes their lives depend on reliable medical devices," he added in a statement.

Regulations apply to diagnostic products such as pregnancy test kits and tests for blood cholesterol.

Makers of "critical devices" must meet even more stringent requirements than the general controls laid out in the regulations.

The regulations describe requirements for building maintenance, personnel training, record-keeping, equipment and packaging and labeling controls.

Caesarean Adage Not Correct

CHICAGO (UPI) — Caesarean section rates are rising rapidly, but a study of more than 500 pregnant women indicates the adage "once a caesarean always a caesarean" may not always be true.

Almost half the pregnant women who previously had given birth by caesarean section had safe vaginal deliveries in a carefully monitored "trial labor" study at the Robert B. Green Hospital in San Antonio. The study also estimated the vaginal delivery saved 35 to 40 percent of the cost of a caesarean section.

However, 34 percent of the women who had a trial labor required a repeat caesarean and had a significantly higher rate of maternal complications than another study group of women who had a repeat caesarean without trial labor.

The study, reported in the July issue of Obstetrics and Gynecology, was conducted from 1970 to 1974.

In the United States, once a woman has had a caesarean, the procedure generally is used for all other births. The National Center for Health Statistics reports the number of caesarean sections has almost doubled nationally over a 10-year period, from 173,000 in 1965 (4.6 percent of all live births) to 325,000 in 1975 (10.3 percent).

However, European countries have long been using vaginal deliveries following caesareans.

The policy "once a section always a section" was first proposed in 1916, when doctors used a "classic" caesarean cut, vertical from the top of the womb down. Currently, most doctors use a horizontal cut several inches below the navel, to discourage uterine ruptures.

To determine if a safe vaginal delivery was possible after a caesarean, researchers at the Robert B. Green Hospital picked for trial labor a select group of pregnant women who previously had undergone caesareans.

The trial labor was supervised closely and electronic monitoring of the mother and fetus also were used. The labor continued until either vaginal delivery or the need for a caesarean arose.

Roughly 634 patients indicated they had had only one previous operation. Of these, 526 pregnant women were given a test of labor. Vaginal delivery occurred in 313 — 49 percent — and these women had slightly less maternal morbidity and a shorter hospital stay than those having a repeat caesarean.

A total 213, or 34 percent of the women in the trial labor group, had a repeat caesarean, generally for arrest of the progress of labor or fetal distress. These women also had a significantly higher rate of maternal morbidity than those having a repeat caesarean without the trial labor, which researchers called an "unexpected finding."

The study also showed the trial labor group delivered fewer low-weight infants than the hospital's other obstetric patients. Slightly more than 9 percent of the trial group's infants had low birth weights, while during the same period, 10.2 percent of all infants at the hospital had low birth weights. Such infants are likely to have medical problems after birth, including lung complications.

THE PLAINS EXPRESS BANK

22 Tellers:
18 motor bank lanes,
4 commercial windows and another Teller 24.

Plains National is growing. Since our charter was granted in 1955, we've launched four major construction projects to keep pace with our growing list of customers.

The newest building is the Plains EXPRESS bank — a drive up / drive thru banking facility across 50th Street from our main building. The EXPRESS bank is just what you'd expect: it's a place for fast, efficient banking service. There are 18 motor bank lanes and space for almost 200 automobiles. There are 4 commercial windows inside for change and deposits. And the bank's second Teller 24: the automated teller that can cash a check, accept a deposit or transfer funds every day of the week, every hour of the day and night, 365 days a year.

When you need fast banking service, come to the EXPRESS bank. When you need a bank, come to Plains.

Rose Setting Sights On New Hit Streak

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose says opposing pitchers haven't seen anything yet, despite the fact his current hitting streak has now reached 39 games.

He could tie Ty Cobb's 40-game streak tonight by hitting safely in the first game of the Reds' two-night doubleheader against Philadelphia.

"I've got a feeling that the day after I go 0-4, I'll really get hot," said the Cincinnati Reds third baseman Thursday. "During the streak, I've had no luck. I've hit a lot of line drives that went for outs."

A lot of line drives, however, have dropped in for hits, enough to boost his batting average to .311, within striking distance of the National League lead. During the streak, which began June 14, he has batted .380.

While many of his teammates relaxed on the off-day here Thursday, Rose worked out for about an hour in preparation for the Philadelphia Phillies who are here tonight for a two-night doubleheader.

"I want to keep the adrenalin going," said Rose, who usually takes batting practice on the Reds' off-days.

A standing room only crowd of more than 51,000 fans was expected to watch tonight. He could tie George Sisler's 41-game mark by getting a hit in the second game.

"I'm glad those guys are there," said Rose, referring to Cobb, Sisler, and Willie Keeler, who hit in 44 consecutive games. "If I had to go from 37 games to 56 without three guys in between, it would be a long stretch."

The major league mark is 56 consecutive games held by Joe DiMaggio.

Rose will face Steve Carlton in the opening game of tonight's games.

"I'm 0 for 11 against him this year, but I can hit him. I've hit him in the past," Rose said.

Rose is hitting only .212 against the Phillies this year, largely because of his problems with Carlton.

Ironically, in the 32nd game of the streak, Rose failed to get a hit off Carlton. In his fifth at-bat, facing reliever Ron Reed, with two outs, he bunted for a hit.

Rose batted Thursday against Joe Kaiser, like Carlton a left-hander. Kaiser played amateur baseball with Rose when they were growing up here.

Dan Driessen and George Foster batted along with Rose during the noncompulsory workout.

Rose was surrounded by reporters during the Reds' series earlier this week, when he tied and passed Tommy Holmes National League 37-game hitting streak.

"When my streak gets to 45 or 46 games, then you'll see those writers who were here for the press conferences the last two days, but aren't around now, back here again," Rose said.

Strictly Rumor

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. I just read a story by a woman sportswriter named Samantha Stevenson that says (an NFL team) had several players who used cocaine on a team plane coming back from a game. This seems to me a very serious charge in a national magazine. Has there been any reaction or denial from officials of (the team)?
Eddie Wycliff, Rutherford, N.J.

A. Officials of the team are aware of the article, which described an incident when a very straight and prominent star member of the team started babbling to the press that he was tired of seeing "white moustaches" on the trips home. Some of the more hip players knew sweet cocaine would help them make it through the disgusting losers' syndrome for one more Sunday night.

We have omitted the name of the team, though the article doesn't, because this is a severe cheap shot. The press members with that team deny any such incident, and as a matter of fact, from what we personally know about team chapters, it is difficult enough for a player to sneak a highball, much less snort any dope. The ballclub won't respond, because to do so would only give wider dissemination of the story.

Q. A friend of mine and I have a bet going on whether Willie Mays played in the 1973 World Series or not. I say he did. He says he retired by then.
—R. J.T., Esid, Okla.

A. That was Mays' final season, with the New York Mets. He went 2-for-7 in the Series.

Q. How many men have hit for the cycle (home run, triple, double and single) in one game in major league baseball history? Who did it the most and who did it last?
—R. M., Detroit.

A. Hitting for the cycle has happened 71 times in the American League and 74 times in the National League. Joe DiMaggio (five) did it most; Andre Thornton of Cleveland did it last (April) as of this writing, according to Seymour Siwoff of the Elias Sports Bureau in New York.

Q. Has Frank White, Kansas City's second baseman, made an error this season? How many stolen bases has Kansas City's Willie Wilson stolen? Is he the fastest man in the major leagues? If not, who is?
—Brian Garry, Cardwell, Mont.

A. White has committed 13 errors last time we looked, and Wilson has stolen 30. Wilson is probably the fastest straightaway runner in the major leagues. But the fastest from home plate to first is undoubtedly Ron LeFlore of Detroit, from the right side, and Mickey Rivers of the Yankees from the left side, when not putting.

Q. Duke will be favored to win the NCAA basketball title next season, with all their young players back. How many times, please, has a team finished second in the NCAA one year and won it the next, and who was the last to do so?
—Dave Salinger, Norfolk, Va.

A. That has never happened. Several have put together back-to-back titles, but no team that finished second has ever won the following year.

Q. Could you tell me what years Cicotte played for the Red Sox? Also McConnell with the White Sox, do you know when Old Mill cigarettes were made?
—Mrs. Ida Devore, Louisville.

A. Eddie Cicotte, one of the infamous Black Sox of 1919, pitched four seasons for Boston before being traded to Chicago after nine appearances in the 1912 season. The only McConnell who played for the White Sox was Amby, 1910-11. Perhaps a reader somewhere will remember Old Mill cigarettes and write us about them.

Nelson Fires 64, Shares Hartford Lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Larry Nelson might be singing "I love Hartford" in a commercial if his string of success continues at the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Nelson shot a 7-under-par 64 Thursday to share the first round lead with Phil Hancock.

"This is my fifth year here, and the worst I've ever finished is a tie for 20th," Nelson, 30, of Kennesaw, Ga., said. He finished fourth in 1975, 18th in 1976 and second last year.

"My game always comes around when I get to Hartford. Of course, then it seems to disappear when I leave," he said, laughing.

"I enjoy this course because it is not too demanding," Nelson said of the 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club.

There were 69 players shooting less than par 71 at the course Thursday. Twenty-five more were at even par. PGA officials at the tournament said golfers would probably have to shoot sub par to make the cut Friday night.

Hancock said his 64 was the lowest round of his professional career.

"It seemed as if every time I pulled out an iron, it was the right club," Hancock said, explaining that he had few long putts to face. The 24-year-old native of Greenville, Ala., put together five birdies in six holes at one point and didn't have a bogey in the round.

The early leader was Rod Funseth who shot a record-tying 29 on the front nine. Funseth ended the day with a 65, tied with Artie McNickle and Jim Colbert.

"This is the first time in a month that I played," Funseth said. "I'm still not hitting the ball well, but I putted super on the front nine."

Funseth's month-long layoff to build a barn on some land he owned in Napa, Calif., came after a 29th place finish in the Canadian Open. He tied for second at the Masters earlier this year.

Funseth's 29 ties the course record set in the final round of the 1974 GHO by Tom Watson.

Six golfers were in a tie for third place at a 5-under-par 66. They were Dale Douglass, George Archer, Gil Morgan, Rex Caldwell, Lou Graham and defending champion Bill Kratzert.

Kratzert said he looked at the leader board before he began his round in the afternoon "and saw Larry Nelson was 8 under. I was already 8 shots behind."

"This was one of my better ball-striking rounds," the Fort Wayne, Ind., pro said. "There was more pressure on me last year because I had not won an individual title."

South To Play Defense Tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — South All-Star basketball Coach Bob Latham of Houston Westchester says he's going to try something different against the North tonight in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game — play tough defense.

"These all-star games usually turn into free wheeling shooting games but we're actually going to try and play some defense," said Latham, who must overcome the North's superior height.

A victory by the South also would give the 34-game series at 17-17 and give the Rebs three straight victories.

"I'm sure there will be some running but we're going to have to play some defense if we have a chance to win," said Latham.

North Coach Al Oglesby of Odessa Permian has the luxury of five players over 6-6, including Anthony Lee of Tyler and James Griffin of Fort Worth Dunbar, both 6-9, and Lamesa's Eddy Kerr, the tallest player in the game at 6-10.

Lee, who averaged 23 points as a senior last season and plans to attend the University of Washington this fall, has issued a warning to any South player who might try to penetrate the North's inside defenses.

"There's no way they (South) are going to mess with us inside," Lee said. "I feel the South will have to shoot from the outside because the North will have the inside blocked."

Lee and Griffin, scheduled to attend the University of Illinois, likely will get plenty of help from Whitehouse's Dwight Pettigrew, David Little of Abilene, a Texas Tech recruit, and Mike Allen of Highland Park.

"The most pleasant surprise of our workouts has been Pettigrew," Oglesby said. "He is much quicker than we originally thought and will be able to help us a lot."

Pettigrew, 6-3, hit 58 percent of his shots last season for an 30 points per game average.

Allen, son of Southern Methodist basketball coach Sonny Allen, averaged 26 points for Highland Park last season, shot 52 percent from the field and had 252 assists.

The South's chances likely will depend on the shooting skills of Houston Westchester's Joe Costello, Beaumont South Park's Arthur Gray and West Oso's Jerry Davis.

Davis averaged 34.4 points last season and led his West Oso team to the Class 3A state tournament three straight years. Gray averaged 21 points and 15 rebounds per game last season and was a Class 3A second team all-state selection.

Terry Teagle of Broadus, who averaged 20 points per game last year and was an all-tournament selection three straight years at the state tournament, could help the South cause if he recovers from an ankle injury suffered on the first day of practice.

REGGIE THE RIGHTFIELDER — Reggie Jackson, the controversial New York Yankee, warms up under his fans, who occupy seats bought by his candy bar company, in right field during the first game of Thursday's doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians. This was first time Jackson has played in right since he was made the team's designated hitter after the All-Star game and was suspended by former manager Billy Martin on July 17. (AP Laserphoto)

Jackson Comes Back With Bang

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson slumped on a stool in the New York Yankees' clubhouse, a half-empty bottle of beer dangling from his hand and the weight of the world seemingly on his shoulders.

He spoke softly and his expression was one of despair after his first baseball action in 10 days — four singles, a home run and four RBI in eight at-bats in the Yankees' wild 11-0, 5-17 Thursday doubleheader split with the Cleveland Indians.

He didn't perk up until someone asked if his welcome home — a solid chorus of boos which eventually changed to cheers — had drained him either emotionally or physically.

"I'm not drained at all," he insisted. "I could play another game."

It was Jackson's first appearance since his celebrated bunting episode of July 17. And just as he had been the focal point of the last 10 days with a five-day suspension that eventually led to Manager Billy Martin's resignation, so did he grab the spotlight with his lusty hitting on his return.

The controversial slugger delivered a pair of run-scoring singles and a solo homer in the opener before the Indians scored nine runs in the first inning of the nightcap as Catfish Hunter failed to retire a batter for the first time in his career and Duane Kuiper drove in six runs with a pair of bases-loaded triples off Bob Kammeyer.

Jackson, who had been reduced to a part-time designated hitter by Martin, played right field in both games. He was booed each time his name was announced until his third at-bat in the opener, when he received a mixed reception. He promptly lined a home run over the center field fence and from that point on the cheers outnumbered the jeers.

Jackson called his reception "not too bad. A few people were on me, but that's OK as long as they don't bring your family into it or get physical. I'll probably get booed for a long time by a lot of people, but it forces you to concentrate more."

"Some people down the right-field line were on me all day long, but it wasn't anything really bad. They weren't foul-mouthed; they weren't even really nasty. In fact, some of them were saying, 'Bunt, bunt,' all day. It takes something to come up with that."

It seemed obvious that something was pressing on Jackson's mind. Perhaps he expected more of an anti-Reggie reception than he received.

"They're gonna run me to California," he sighed. "That's what's gonna happen eventually. They're gonna run me right out of here. I'm human, just like the next guy. I put my pants on one at a time, just like you do. I put my shoes on one at a time. I shower and brush my teeth every morning."

Someone wanted to know if Jackson was satisfied with his 5-for-8 day.

"We lost the second game, you know," he said. "Other than that, I'm ready to come out and play tomorrow. I was lucky today. I was surprised at the way I hit. I just wanted to do what I could to help the ballclub, do the best I could do."

"There some excess pressure on me, some added pressure. I had to produce as soon as possible, and luckily I got a couple of hits in the first game. All I want to do is hit well. Nothing else really matters."

But it was obvious that Jackson was pleased to be playing for the soft-spoken Bob Lemon rather than the trigger-tempered Martin.

"He (Lemon) seems to be very low-key, a nice fellow, a good man, a nice man," Jackson said. "Billy got certain things out of me at certain times. We won under Billy, but I'm sure Bob Lemon can get things out of us in a different way."

In the nightcap, Lemon suffered his first defeat in four games since replacing Martin. The first 10 Cleveland batters reached base on five walks and five hits including Kuiper's first triple — as the Indians scored seven runs before a batter was retired, one short of the American League record.

"I'm the kind of guy who's supposed to get a single every game, not go hitless for two games and then drive in six runs."

said Kuiper. "I don't think I ever drove in that many runs in a game in Little League. I don't ever expect to lead the league in total bases, so a day like this is kind of special to me."

It was the Indians' first triumph in five games at Yankee Stadium this season and they are 10-30 overall against New York over the last three seasons.

"They came out smoking in the second game," said Lemon. "When you come to bat nine runs behind I think you tend to have a little sinking spell. But it seemed like Reggie won them over a little bit."

How about it, Reggie?

"I have no comment on that."

Rangers Help Pay Horton's Salary

CHICAGO (AP) — Willie Horton has a new lease on life and is happy just to be playing every day, and Charley Finley is happy to have Horton under a deal in which Texas still pays part of his salary.

Horton, who joined the Oakland A's after the All-Star break, drove out three hits including a homer and a double and scored three runs Thursday night to lead the A's to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Horton finished last season with Texas and was shuffled off to Cleveland in spring training but soon found out he didn't fit into the Indians' plans.

"I got caught in a political deal at Cleveland," said Horton. "They didn't intend to keep me. I hit .330 and five home runs on one road trip and then found myself frozen out. They got me to fill in for getting rid of Rico Carty."

Cleveland released him and the A's picked him up under a strange setup in which Texas is still paying part of his salary.

"I don't care who is paying his salary," said Finley. "I just wish I had him at the beginning of the season. Yes, Texas is still paying his salary but I'm also paying part of his salary."

Horton claims his salary comes from Texas but he also has a different contract with Finley.

All of which doesn't make any difference to Horton because he is assured of playing every day against all kinds of pitching and has been pounding the ball at a .321 clip since joining the A's.

"Sure I'm going to use him every day," said Manager Jack McKeon, whose orders come directly from Finley. "This is what we've been looking for, someone who puts fear into the opposing pitchers and gives us the long-ball threat."

Horton did all of that Thursday night. He singled to drive in one run and score another in a three-run, first inning. He doubled and scored on David Revere's single to break up a 3-3 tie in the fifth inning and he capped the evening with his seventh homer of the season and second since joining the A's to lead off the ninth inning.

Horton's hitting and four errors by the White Sox enabled the A's to sweep the two-game series in which they pounded Chicago pitching for a total of 29 hits.

"We didn't play well," said Sox Manager Larry Doby. "In baseball you have those nights. We just hope we don't have too many. If you hustle and make mistakes, that's one thing. If you don't hustle and make mistakes, that's something else. I don't have anyone who is not hustling."

All of which doesn't make any difference since White Sox owner Bill Veckh has proclaimed tonight against Texas the "real" season opener.

Ailing Matlack Gets Assistance From Mates, Stops Boston 3-1

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers finally got Jon Matlack more than one run and he was almost too sick to enjoy it.

A drained Matlack, who has permitted only seven earned runs in 60 and two-thirds innings, scattered seven hits Thursday night as the Rangers tripped the Boston Red Sox 3-1.

"I've had a head cold for five days and it's not a nice feeling," said Matlack, who has the second best earned run average in the American League and a mediocre 6-8 record.

In his last 34 innings, Texas has scored Matlack only six runs.

If Matlack had been provided with just three runs a game, his record would be 13-3.

"Those runs were a long time coming," said Matlack.

Texas got an unearned run in the fourth inning on Boston third baseman Butch Hobson's throwing error and rocked Luis Tiant in the fifth inning with homers by Bump Wills and Mike Hargrove.

Tiant allowed only four hits but lost his third game in 10 decisions.

Matlack yielded a third inning homer to Sam Bowen — the first major league hit for the Red Sox's utility outfielder — then cruised to the victory.

"It's a funny thing but the last two starts I felt good when I started but ran out of gas," said Matlack. "I think I need to sleep for five days."

"I had to be careful toward the end of the game. In fact I had to be damn careful. I was so tired I could have gotten into a lot of trouble."

Boston, now just 4½ games ahead of Milwaukee in the AL East, fielded a patch-work lineup for the game. Shortstop Rick Burleson and centerfielder Fred Lynn were out with ankle injuries and leftfielder Carl Yastremzki has an injured back.

"It's going to be a tough race," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "I know it and I have known it. When we were 10 games in front I knew it. Everybody said the race was over, but I knew and my players knew it wasn't over."

"I'll get my shortstop (Burleson) back and Lynn should be ready. Carl will be ready in a few more games."

Zimmer said, "We'll regroup in Fenway Park and Fenway Park is a good place to regroup in."

He said, "We are going to win three games from Kansas City for the Rangers."

Boston is 38-8 at home, but 25-28 on the road.

The Red Sox have lost eight of their last nine games and seven in a row to the Rangers, who are 8½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

Texas Players Sign Up For Training In CPR

ARLINGTON (AP) — The next time Doc Medich has to plunge into the stands to save a heart patient he may get trampled in the rush.

It seems Medich, a surgeon who seasonally swaps his scalpel for a turn in the Texas Ranger pitching rotation, so impressed his teammates last week when he revived a heart attack victim before a game in Baltimore that virtually the whole team has agreed to sign up for a course in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

"There'll be eight guys up there in the Milwaukee Moves Up On Bosox

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

There's no place like second, as far as the Milwaukee Brewers are concerned. As for Boston ... well, you know what they say about home.

The Red Sox, who owned a 10-game lead in the American League East not too long ago, slink home tonight after a 10-game road trip in which eight losses helped shave their margin over the Milwaukee Brewers to 4½ games.

While the Red Sox were losing 3-1 to Texas Thursday night, the Brewers were beating California 6-3. Now Boston's got to face Kansas City, which has won 12 of 13 games, including Thursday night's 3-1 triumph over Seattle that widened its AL West lead to four games over the Angels.

In other AL action, Baltimore beat Detroit 7-3, Minnesota topped Toronto 6-3, Oakland defeated Chicago 7-4 and the New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland, winning 11-0 and losing 17-5. In two National League games, San Diego downed Pittsburgh 6-3 and Houston whipped the New York Mets 8-3.

"It's a tough division," Boston Manager Don Zimmer said of the AL East. "I knew it when we were 10 in front. Everybody said the race was over, but I knew it wasn't over and my players knew it wasn't over."

"But we're going back to regroup in Fenway Park — and that's a good place to regroup in."

In Texas' Arlington Stadium, Jon Matlack eight-hit the Red Sox. The only hit that hurt him was Sam Bowen's first big-league hit, a homer. The Rangers got fifth-inning homers by Bump Wills and Mike Hargrove off Luis Tiant.

Brewers 6, Angels 3
Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas hit his third homer in two nights, a two-run shot that helped Mike Caldwell chalk up his sixth straight victory. Caldwell survived an 11-hit peppering by the Angels en route to his league-leading 15th complete game.

"There's no reason to get nervous, because we're not in first place with somebody breathing on our necks," Thomas said. "The pressure's on Boston. We've got the momentum, the drive, the potential, the personnel and the experience to win."

And Caldwell added: "We've got eight games coming up with Boston the last two months ... We want to beat Boston. We don't want to back into the pennant. We've already beaten everybody else so there's no reason we can't beat them."

Royals 3, Mariners 1
Kansas City got RBI hits from Steve Braun, Hal McRae and Clint Hurdie and eight-hit pitching from Larry Gura to down Seattle. McRae's hit extended his streak to 15 games.

Now the Royals head for Boston, where they've lost six of seven games this year. "We've got to go in there and tattoo that wall, and I don't know if we've got the ammunition to do it," Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said of Fenway's Green Monster. He predicted the Red Sox will be so happy to get home "they may go straight from the airport to the ballpark."

Orioles 7, Tigers 3
Singles by Larry Harlow and Rich Dauer, Eddie Murray's three-run homer and Ken Singleton's solo shot, all in the first inning off Jim Stalon, gave Scott McGregor and the Orioles all the runs they needed against Detroit.

McGregor scattered eight hits, including a pair of RBI singles by Jason Thompson.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 3
Stan Perzanowski of Minnesota pitched a six-hitter — his first complete game in the majors — in his first big-league appearance in more than two years. Mike Cubbage gave him all the support he needed by hitting for the cycle — single, double, triple, homer — and driving in four runs.

Austin Nines Take Wins In Tourney

Steve Drury ripped three hits and drove in five runs as the Austin Senators blasted the Lubbock Z's 16-4 in the opening game of the State NBC Tournament Thursday.

Bryan tallied seven runs in the fourth inning and hung on to beat Abilene 8-5 in another game.

Doug House ripped four hits and drove in six runs plus picked up the victory Lubbock's Town Draw Brewers outlasted Del Rio 14-12.

Doug Lauffer threw a one-hitter, and Wendell Hibbett hit a pair of home runs and collected six RBI as Austin Family Life pounded Kerrville 15-0.

Today's Mackenzie Park action starts at 4 p.m. with the Z's facing Del Rio; at 6 p.m., the Austin Senators face Bryan; at 8 p.m., Abilene and Kerrville clash; and at 10, the Brewers meet Austin Family Life.

Lauffer struck out six and walked one. Bubba Laughinghouse of Kerrville led off the fifth inning with a solid single to left field to end Lauffer's dreams of a no-hitter.

Hibbett hit a two-run homer in the first frame and a three-run blast in the fourth inning. Steve Klopp also had three RBI.

The tournament continues Saturday with five games and the possibility of two on Sunday.

Wayne Benson had four hits and four RBIs and Augi Jimenez collected four hits and four RBIs for the losers.

Scott Leimgruber had three hits for Town Draw, plus Chuck Johnson had three RBIs and Ernie Helweg ripped a two-run homer.

Lubbock Colts Remain Unbeaten

The Lubbock Colt All-stars remained the only unbeaten team in the Colt Sectional All-star Tournament Thursday night with a 2-0 win over Abilene.

Lawton faces Abilene tonight at 6:30 in a losers bracket game and Lubbock will play the winner at 8:30 for the championship. However, if The Hub all-stars lose, the two teams will collide again on Saturday night to decide the crown.

In earlier action, Lawton eliminated Tulsa from the double-elimination tournament by a 11-1 verdict.

Tournament Draws Vilas, Connors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Officials making the seedings for this year's U.S. Open Clay Court championships face a tough decision when they prepare the brackets for this year's men's singles.

Tournament director Stan Malless announced Thursday that Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, who defeated Jimmy Connors for the 1977 U.S. Open championship at Flushing Hills, has decided to play in the Clay Courts, which are scheduled at the Indianapolis Racquet Club, Aug. 7-13.

The field in the tournament also includes defending champion Manuel Orantes, who captured the men's singles title in 1973, 1975 and 1977, and Connors, last year's runner-up who finished first in 1974 and 1976.

"The size of our purse ($175,000 for the men) and the fact that we offer a national championship combined to give us one of our stronger fields ever," said Malless, who remarked that when the tournament returned to Indianapolis nine years ago the total purse for men and women was only $15,000.

This will be the last time the Clay Courts are held at the Racquet Club. Malless helped lead a drive for public and private funds that are supporting the construction of a new tennis stadium which will host the 1979 tournament.

"We've got the tournament here for the next 10 years," said Malless. "We're real pleased with the way things have worked out. Interest in the tournament has really grown in recent years. Most of our reserved and box seats are already sold out for the final two days.

"We'll certainly be able to have a lot more people at future tournaments."

Malless said he was very happy with the strong international field in the men's tournament. The field includes Italian stars Corrado Barazzutti and Adriano Panatta, Poland's Wojtek Fibak, Australia's Phil Dent and Chile's Jamie Fillol.

John McEnroe, the 1977 Wimbledon sensation from New York who turned pro after winning the NCAA singles championship as a freshman this year, is also entered.

World Team Tennis will keep the big names of women tennis from playing and the girls will be playing for a purse of only $35,000.

"We've been asked what can be done to increase the women's purse," said Malless. "The answer is we'd have to get the women from WTT. Wimbledon is the only break on the WTT's schedule. The WTT has mentioned the possibility of having a break to let the women play in Indianapolis, but right now it's just talk.

Malless said that if Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova were able to play, the women's purse would probably climb to $100,000.

Laura Dupont, the defending women's singles champion, faces a serious challenge from Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec, a strong player on clay in Europe who will be playing here for the first time.

Miss Jausovec, a quarterfinalist at Wimbledon, won the German and French championships earlier this year.

Romania's Virginia Ruzici, a frequent doubles partner of Jausovec, will also play women's singles.

North Carolina Town Eager To Host Games

By HAL BOCK
 Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that the spoilsports who run Los Angeles have lost their enthusiasm for hosting the 1984 Olympic Games just because they fear a dollar deficit that would make the Red Sea look like a local stream, that doesn't mean the Games won't be welcome elsewhere in the United States.

There already has been one bonafide bid, previously rejected, from New York City, which seems bent on committing financial suicide, one way or another. And now comes word that the North Carolina map dot town of Spivey's Corner would gladly serve as host.

MacPhail Urged Pilot Trade

CHICAGO (AP)—American League President Lee MacPhail suggested "six or seven weeks ago" that the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox might consider trading managers, the Chicago Tribune said today.

"Both clubs were going bad, and I have great respect for Billy Martin and Bob Lemon," MacPhail told the Tribune in a copyright story in today's final editions.

"I just threw out the possibility of a switch (of Martin and Lemon)," MacPhail added. "I talked to both clubs, and they seemed interested. Since then, both teams went on winning streaks and it was all forgotten."

In the meantime, too, the White Sox fired Lemon and replaced him with Larry Doby. Then this week, Martin resigned under fire as Yankees manager and was replaced by Lemon.

White Sox President Bill Veeck said he had not talked to the Yankees about a possible manager trade, nor had the Yankees talked to anyone in the Sox organization.

But Veeck did not deny that MacPhail had approached him about the matter.

Martin and Yankee spokesmen were unavailable for comment early today, but Sports Illustrated magazine this week quoted Martin as saying, "The Yankees even tried to trade me to the White Sox."

With their tongues planted firmly in their cheeks, the population of Spivey's Corner, N.C. — all 49 people — have agreed that their town could certainly handle the Games.

"What do they need?" asked John G. Thomas, news director of local radio station WCKB. "A swimming pool? Hey, we've got a swimming pool right downtown."

Until now, Spivey's Corner's main involvement in sports has been the annual Hollerin' Contest held each June at Midway School. "See there," said Thomas. "The last three Olympics have been in Mexico City, Munich and Montreal. The next one's in Moscow. They keep goin' to places that begin with M. Midway School would fit right into that format."

The president of the Hollerin' Contest is Ermon Godwin, assistant vice president of the Spivey's Corner branch of the First Citizen's Bank. He reported receipt Thursday of the first application for tickets to the 1984 Games at Spivey's Corner from I.R. Cain of Elizabethtown, N.C. "He will get the two best seats," said Godwin.

Irons Inks Pact

SAN JOSE, Calif. (Special)—Dan Irons, an All-American offensive guard from Texas Tech, has come to terms with the San Francisco 49ers, signing a series of one-year contracts for four years.

The 6-7, 270-pound graduate of Monterey High School suffered a knee surgery last March and will spend the upcoming season in rehabilitation. Team officials are hoping Irons will be ready for the 1979 season.

Godwin, who is adhering to a strict first-come. The Spivey's Corner town council sent off its official bid to the United States Olympic Committee today and cites its success with the Hollerin' Contest as evidence of its ability to host a major event.

"We've had the Hollerin' Contest for 10 years now," said Thomas. "This year's was particularly memorable because it was held on the day they elected Miss North Carolina."

The winner was Debbie Shook of Spruce Pine, N.C. "We made her an honorary citizen of Spivey's Corner, though," said Godwin. "That means the population is 50 now."

The townsfolk are handling the excitement their Olympic bid has generated very well, so far. "They're taking it in stride," said Godwin. "They're used to big events in Spivey's Corner because of the Hollerin' Contest."

The last time the town tried to expand its social activities, the idea was a national alligator festival to select the prettiest alligator. "That caught on and it looked like we'd have it, until the state said it was against the law to collect and cage alligators," said Thomas.

Spivey's Corner is hoping for better results with its Olympic bid.

"We've even made plans for construction of the village to house the athletes," said Godwin. "It will be a 10,000-unit structure. We think big in Spivey's Corner."

And what will they call the village?

"Why the Hollerday Inn, of course," he exclaimed.

Of course.

Houston Ex Sparkles In Drills

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — With six established running backs sharing the ball carrying load in the Dallas Cowboys training camp, Thursday afternoon's standout was Alois Blackwell of Houston, who'd been slowed in earlier practices by a hamstring.

Running against the Cowboys' first defense, the 5-10, 195-pound tailback ratted touchdowns from the three and six yard lines.

Another rookie, fullback Todd Christensen, scored from the seven in goal line work, and Preston Pearson and Tony Dorsett also battled through heavy hitting into the end zone.

While the hard-hitting and two-a-day practices continued at the California Lutheran College campus, three regulars joined right guard Tom Rafferty on the sidelines, where Rafferty is nursing a strained calf.

Center John Fitzgerald was held out of hitting practice when he turned up with fluid on his knee; safety Randy Hughes had a sore foot; and tight end Billy Joe Dupree split the webbing of his right hand, requiring nine stitches.

Team doctors said Rafferty and tackle Jim Eldson, who has a knee problem, are definitely out of Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage. The others are questionable.

NFL Season To Open Saturday

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Bob Griese will quarterback the Miami Dolphins in the season's first National Football League exhibition Saturday and then donate the glasses he wears against the Philadelphia Eagles to the sport's shrine.

The nationally televised game (ABC, 2:30 p.m. CDT) will follow the enshrinement of Weeb Ewbank, Lance Alworth, Ray Nitschke, Larry Wilson and Tuffy Leemans into the hall.

Griese, the Purdue veteran legally blind in his right eye, was forced to become the first NFL quarterback ever to wear glasses last season. He had been using contact lenses.

"The Dolphins are too young (13th year as a franchise) to have players in the Hall of Fame. So we send them mementos," cracked Bob Kearney, the club's publicist.

The shrine also houses Miami placekicker Garo Yepremian's shoe, the one he used to kick a field goal to win the longest game in history, 82 minutes, 40 seconds long, against the Kansas City Chiefs in 1971.

Griese was encountering vision difficulties as early as 1972 and 1973, but still completed 14 of 18 passes in consecutive Super Bowl victories over the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

He nurses the hope that one day he again will play without glasses.

"I'm not finished fighting the problem. I'm not giving up on my eyes," he said of the 20-200 vision in his right eye.

Griese is expected to play at least one quarter as the Dolphins begin work on a bid to gain the playoffs after just missing with a 10-4 record in 1977.

Miami Coach Don Shula likely will call on heralded rookie Guy Benjamin, college football's top passer a year ago from Stanford, and backup Don Strock, a veteran from Virginia Tech, to supplant Griese.

Shula also is eager to see running back Delvin Williams, picked up in an off-season trade with San Francisco, operate in the same backfield with Griese. Williams gained more than 2,100 yards in the last two years with the 49ers.

Dick Vermeil, the Eagles' third-year coach, will open with No. 1 quarterback Ron Jaworski, with reserve John Walton also to see some playing time.

Vermeil believes Philadelphia's most pressing needs are more potent scoring and better rushing. The Eagles managed less than 16 points and only 121 ground yards per game in a 5-9 season in 1977.

"Our team will be improved, but it might not show in our won-lost record because of our difficult schedule," said Vermeil. Some rate the Eagles' schedule the second toughest among the NFL's 28 teams this fall.

The inductions into the Hall of Fame, opened in 1963, will swell its number of immortals to 98.

Sipes Likes New Offense

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Brian Sipe, quarterback for the Cleveland Browns, says he believes the team's offense will work better this year because Coach Sam Rutigliano plans to utilize more passing.

"All indications are good," Sipe said Thursday. "I like what I see and so do the other guys. We seem to be going in the right direction."

Sipe endorses Rutigliano's plan, especially since he, as quarterback, will do more passing.

"I think we are going to be a lot more effective with our passing game this year because we pretty much ignored it last year," the quarterback said.

Sipe, whose personal statistics last season included 112 completions in 195 attempts for 1,233 yards and nine touchdowns in eight games, offered a baseball analogy:

"If you have a real good right-handed hitter who has power to left field, but the other team's right fielder is weak, do you tell your man to try to hit the ball to right, or do the thing he does best — hit to left?"

"What I'm saying is that it's best to go with what you do best, and not let the opposition dictate," he said.

Meanwhile at the training camp, General Manager Peter Hadzazy said he has been in contact with other National Football League clubs to discuss possible trades.

"Everybody is still assessing their own strengths and weaknesses, and probably will be doing so until after the first or second preseason game," he said.

"By then we'll all know better what we have and what we need, and at that point I look for a lot of action prior to the season and trading deadline."

Ten linebackers are on the Browns' roster although only six or seven are expected to be retained. The Browns are thought to be looking for offensive and defensive linemen.

Phillips Happy With Workout

SAN ANGELO (UPI) — Coach Bum Phillips gave the Houston Oilers a night without curfew and was so pleased with training camp practice Thursday that he said "we might do this more often."

"They've had real good workouts since veterans started last Friday," a spokesman said. "This morning they came back and had a real good workout and coach said, 'We might do this more often.'"

Spokesman Bob Hyde said there was no change in the stalemate with receiver Billy "White Shoes" Johnson Thursday, who has refused to report until winning a contract more lucrative than his $50,000 pact last year.

"We want Billy to come up here and Billy says he's staying there until he gets his contract," Hyde said.

Meanwhile, Phillips has started declining comment on Johnson's fines for absence from training camp. The fines started at $500 Friday, climbed to $1,200 Tuesday, but Phillips said Wednesday he wasn't sure what they would be.

HALLIBURTON IS LOOKING FOR THE UNCOMMON INDIVIDUAL— COULD IT BE YOU?

Halliburton Services is looking for ambitious individuals with these qualifications: 21 or over, in good health, high school education or the equivalent, some mechanical aptitude and the desire to get ahead in life.

We are the world's largest oil field service organization and recently the demand for our services has come close to exceeding the supply.

So we've set up a training program lasting about eight months to train capable people to work as oil well cementers, one of the basic oil field services required by oil and gas producers. When you complete this training, you are assigned to Halliburton locations either in the U.S. or foreign countries.

During the classroom training you receive excellent pay as well as all lodging, meals and transportation. After completing training and starting as a cementer, you'll get a salary increase and moving costs to your new location.

If you go abroad, you'll also get living and family housing allowances and a differential pay increase. There are important tax advantages, too.

Our work is truly unusual. Every assignment is different. A cementer works outside with big, high-powered equipment.

The responsibility is yours.

If you're interested, Halliburton Services representatives are interviewing from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, July 29 and 30 at the Ramada Inn, junction of highways 84 and 87 at the circle, 5845 South Ave. Q, Lubbock, Texas. Telephone: (806) 747-4346. Appointments are not necessary and your family is welcome. Contact Bill Tillman at the Ramada Inn's suite 152. We can arrange interviews at other hours, too. Or write us at Duncan.

Marty Liquori Favored In Race

By BERT ROSENTHAL
 COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Marty Liquori is a jack-of-all-trades — and master of them all.

The multi-faceted, multi-talented Liquori is the world's top-ranked 5,000-meter runner (the rankings were determined before Kenya's Henry Rono set the world record of 13 minutes, 8.4 seconds earlier this year). He is the American record holder in the event (13:15.1).

He is a well-received sportscaster for ABC-TV and his Athletic Attic sporting goods stores, which he started in Gainesville, Fla., with former track coach Jimmy Carnes, have turned into a million-dollar nationwide venture.

Liquori is in Colorado Springs this weekend, combining two of his major activities — running and broadcasting.

He is the favorite in Sunday's 1,500-meter race in the first National Sports Festival against a field including Don Paige of Villanova, Tom Duits of Western Michigan, veterans Bruce Fischer and Rick Musgrave, and Steve Foster, whom Liquori trains under the Athletic Attic banner.

Foster, however, will be at somewhat of a disadvantage against his teacher, whom he is meeting for the first time, because he was not due to arrive until today while Liquori already has taken practice runs over the Air Force Academy track, site of the three-day, 36-event track and field competition.

"Well, he had to stay back home and work," explained Liquori in his best businessman's approach.

The 1,500 used to be Liquori's specialty, but it isn't any more. He much prefers the 5,000, and if he makes an attempt to gain a spot on the United States Olympic team for the 1980 Games in Moscow, it will be in the longer distance.

"I ran the mile (or metric mile) for 10 years," said Liquori, "and it got fairly boring. I needed new challenges. In the mile, it's three laps and kick. The 5,000 is a more tactical race."

It also demands more training. "I have to run 100 miles per week in training," said the busy Liquori. "Actually, I'm like a sprinter among the 5,000 runners. Most

Tom Heinsohn Wins Case In Court

BOSTON (AP) — Tom Heinsohn will get $100,000, but it's still not clear which National Basketball Association team must honor his coaching contract.

A U.S. District Court judge ruled Thursday that the former Boston Celtics star, fired in January, doesn't have to coach the new San Diego NBA team to be paid.

"However, Judge Andrew Caffrey also dismissed Heinsohn's request for a restraining order that would have delayed the hiring of a coach for the San Diego team.

Caffrey ruled, in effect, that it is up to the Celtics and the San Diego club to settle on which team will pay Heinsohn.

Irv Levin, the former Celtics owner, swapped NBA clubs July 7 with John Y. Brown, who owned the Buffalo Braves. Levin then moved the Buffalo franchise to San Diego and offered Heinsohn a coaching job for $100,000.

The sum is the exact amount owed Heinsohn for the remainder of his Celtics contract. Heinsohn was fired by the Celtics in the middle of a two-year pay.

Heinsohn was negotiating with Levin when, he alleged, the San Diego owner told him this week to accept the $100,000 or possibly lose the money he is owed. Heinsohn then sued Levin.

When Levin swapped teams with Brown, the former Celtics owner apparently agreed to pay off the remainder of Heinsohn's contract with Boston.

Levin now is free to hire a coach and Heinsohn must decide whether to negotiate. Heinsohn said he is satisfied because "Now I know more about my rights. I slowed down the paper transactions, I'm not under the gun."

As for his prospects of bargaining with Levin for the San Diego post, Heinsohn said, "I don't know if we can have a relationship after some of the things that have been said ... But I'm not ruling anything out."

However, the former Celtics coach also said his next step is to "wait til Nov. 1," when he is due to be paid $80,000 of $100,000 he is owed.

Levin's Boston lawyer, Robert Caporale, said Caffrey "isn't saying who owes what to whom."

routinely do 140 miles a week.

"It's difficult to get in all that training when I'm on the road," added the former Villanova star and three-time collegiate mile champion. "But when I'm back in Gainesville, I can usually do it."

"That's the key to amateur athletics, being able to have a flexible schedule and make your own hours."

While he is preparing for the 1,500 — "I need the shorter distance work for speed," he said — he also is mixing in some telecasting of the 26-sport Festival, which will be shown on ABC Aug. 5.

In fact, he was up at 7 a.m. Thursday to do commentary on the archery experts in the Festival, including 1976 Olympic champions Darrell Pace of Reading, Ohio, and Luann Ryon of Riverside, Calif.

"This Festival is going to give a lot more people exposure to sports like archery, canoeing and other so-called minor sports," said the versatile Liquori. "It also gives athletes who never have a chance to reach the Olympics an opportunity to compete in an Olympic-like atmosphere."

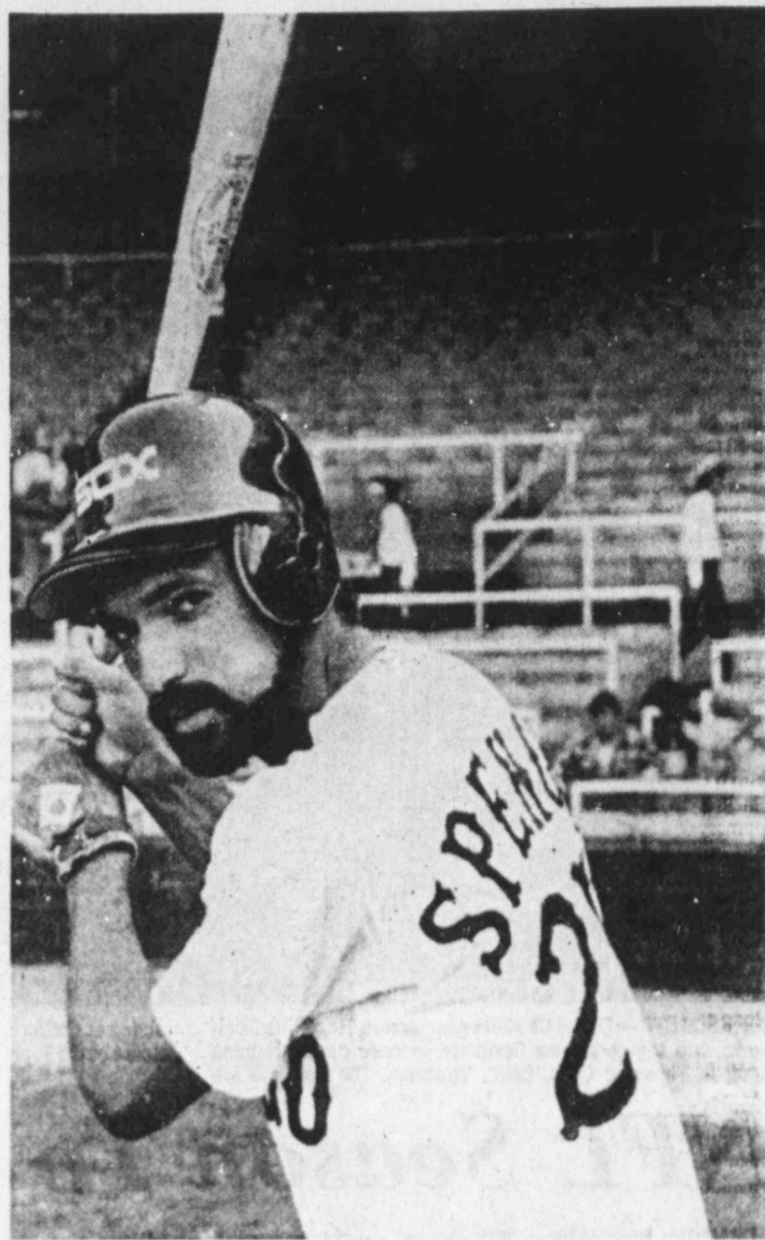

"If it turns out to be as successful as the Sports Festivals in the European countries, it will be fantastic. It is a great thing for all Olympic sports."

The 28-year-old Liquori said he is planning a low-key running program for the next one or 1½ years. "Maybe I'll do some road racing," he said.

Then he will give some serious thought to possibly gearing up for the Olympics. He never has participated in the Games, injuries forcing him to miss the Olympic Trials in 1972 and 1976.

"Each Olympics means less and less to me personally," he said. "Winning the World Cup would give me just as much satisfaction as winning the Olympics."

"The World Cup (held last year in Düsseldorf, West Germany, where Liquori set the American record in the 5,000 while finishing second to Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia) is strictly for track and field athletes. It doesn't have the circus atmosphere of the Olympics."

HIS WISH COMES TRUE — Tom Spencer of the Chicago White Sox went through batting practice prior to Thursday night's game against the Oakland A's in Chicago. Spencer has gotten his one wish — to get to the big leagues in his father's lifetime. Spencer's father has lung cancer. (AP Laserphoto)

Brothers Give Strings Win

By The Associated Press

It all came down to the Amritraj brothers of the Los Angeles Strings.

The cream of the World Team Tennis crop could only watch from the sidelines along with a New York crowd of 13,648 Thursday night as the brothers, Vijay and Ashok, lost to the Apples' Vitas Gerulaitis and Ray Ruffels 6-3 in the final contest of regulation play, sending the match into overtime.

Los Angeles' Chris Evert had already overwhelmed JoAnne Russell 6-0 and Gerulaitis, the No. 1 singles player in the WTT, disposed of Los Angeles player-coach Ili Nastase 6-3 in the featured matchups.

After the men's doubles defeat, however, the Strings still held a 25-21 advantage. But in WTT, the leading team must win the final set or the match moves into overtime. So the doubles' squads remained on the court.

The Apples needed to win five games in succession to pull out the match, but Vijay held service in the first game and Los Angeles had a 26-21 triumph over New York before the fourth-largest crowd ever to see a WTT match.

Evert teamed with Ann Kiyomura to capture the women's doubles 7-5 over Russell and Julie Anthony. Kiyomura then teamed with Nastase to beat Anthony-Ruffels 6-4.

In other WTT matches, Phoenix crushed Anaheim 28-15 and San Diego edged Seattle 28-25 in overtime.

Sue Barker whipped Nancy Richey 6-1 and teamed up with Kristien Shaw for a 6-2 victory over Kathy Harter and Françoise Durr, helping the Racquets beat the Oranges.

Phoenix won four of the five sets before a crowd of 2,491 at the Anaheim Convention Center.

San Diego's men's doubles team of Ross Case and Rod Laver won the first game of overtime from Seattle's Tom Gorman and Sherwood Stewart to clinch the Friars' victory over Seattle.

The Cascades edged the overtime when Gorman and Stewart defeated Case and Laver 6-3 in the final set of regulation.

Baseball Player Sees Wish Come True With White Sox

By HOWARD ULMAN
 Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A month ago, Tom Spencer went home to Gallipolis, Ohio, to visit his father, who has lung cancer.

At the time, Spencer was in his ninth minor league baseball season. He had never played in the majors.

"That's one thing I wanted to do — to get to the big leagues in his lifetime. Now it looks like he'll be able to see me," said Spencer.

Until he was called up July 17 by the Chicago White Sox from the Knoxville club in the Class AA Southern League it had appeared that Spencer might not get to the big leagues in his own lifetime.

He had been a fair hitting, strong fielding outfielder with speed in a Cincinnati organization loaded with outstanding outfielders. The White Sox obtained him before last season and this year he found himself in AA ball.

"I was about to give up at that point since I played Triple-A the last four years and I thought maybe they gave up on me as a prospect," said Spencer. "I sort of rechanneled my disappointment and tried to show them they were wrong."

He left little room for doubt. Spencer, who had never batted more than .291, was leading the Southern League with a .335 average when he was promoted. With Chicago, he was batting .348 in his eight games before Thursday night's contest with Oakland.

He said his decision that a 6-foot, 160-pound man should go for singles instead of homers helped his hitting. Some tips from Larry Doby, who was batting coach before he became manager of the White Sox, helped, too.

"He taught me primarily the principle of hitting with your top hand," Spencer said. "Before, I liked to hit with my front hand and get out in front and pull the ball."

The 27-year-old Spencer said he knew he was good enough to play in the majors had he not been in the Cincinnati system but added that he was prepared to spend another 10 years in the minors.

Many players who do long stretches in the minors "just fade out and go into other professions," said Spencer. "I had an inner feeling of satisfaction. I felt I was doing a good job and it wasn't my fault I wasn't called up."

Finally, now that he's in the majors, he has a better chance to control his own destiny.

"All I'm interested in now is getting my sleep, eating two good meals and going to the ballpark," he said. "One thing I hope I never lose is that feeling of excitement that I get in coming to the ballpark. I've been here nine days now and I still haven't lost the feeling I had on the first day."

When Knoxville General Manager Ed Holtz phoned to tell him he was going to the White Sox, Spencer was surprised and thought it was a teammate playing a joke. Then he started packing a suitcase.

"He told me I had a flight to Chicago in an hour and a half," said Spencer. "I made it in plenty of time."

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's your nature to be helpful when you can. Tomorrow, even though you're not seeking profit, there will be large returns for services you can perform.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tomorrow will be a good day to discuss matters close to your heart with your mate or loved one. A mutual understanding can be reached.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Opportunities to acquire something of value will be presented to you tomorrow. It's possible this will benefit the whole family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) After a hectic week tomorrow should be a fun day socially. Your bright, sparkling attitude will make you nice to be around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You shouldn't have to push to have things go your way tomorrow. The more you roll with events, the more good things can come through.

College Grads Outnumber Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're a recent college graduate, there's one chance in four that you'll be working at a job that has not previously required higher education, the Labor Department says.

The trend is expected to continue through 1985 as the number of university graduates outnumbers the supply of jobs requiring college training. The pattern started in 1969.

Between 1976 and 1985, some 10.4 million graduates will compete for about 7.7

million jobs traditionally requiring a degree, according to the department's handbook, "Occupational Outlook for College Graduates."

The handbook said these jobs will be in great demand during the next decade: accountants, bank officers and managers, dentists, economists, engineers, geologists, health service administrators, life scientists, physicians, computer programmers, registered nurses, statisticians and systems analysts.

Schlesinger's China Trip Contemplated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and Chinese officials are working on details of a trip to China by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, administration officials said Wednesday.

"It is in the preliminary stages of consideration with the Chinese," said one official who asked to not be identified. He said the trip would focus on technological matters in the energy area. He said no dates had been set. The official took pains to stress that the administration did not view the trip in the context of "a grand strategy" to increase contacts with the Chinese while high-level journeys to the Soviet Union are being reduced.

"These trips are happening or not happening based on the status of our individual bilateral relations," he said.

Multimillionaire-To-Be Favors Simpler Lifestyle

By PAUL PARSONS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Jack Buras was a young Baptist song leader, musically rich but pocketbook poor, when he gained worldwide fame as a multimillionaire-to-be.

On television one night in 1970, there was a report of a federal court ruling in favor of the Buras family of Louisiana in a landmark oil rights case involving millions of dollars.

Why, that's my family, Jack Buras said, and before long the 23-year-old minister of music at Harmony Missionary Baptist Church in rural Prattville, Ark., was a true celebrity. As soon as the suit was settled, the reports said, Buras would receive in the neighborhood of $20.6 million.

Suddenly banks opened their vaults to him, a car dealer gave him a new gold Thunderbird, newspaper reporters from New York to London besieged him and he was forced to get an unlisted telephone number.

His mail — previously a gas bill here and a piece of junk mail there — overnight contained outlandish requests for money. He was asked to restore the first territorial capital in Australia, finance a "Christian race track" and pay off an $87,000 gambling debt. He stopped counting the letters when they reached 10,000.

Buras, with a wife and daughter Melody and a $110 a week salary, welcomed the good fortune but repeatedly said he liked life like it was, directing the Harmony Baptist Singers and living in a small white house in the shade of the Prattville water tower.

"Oh, there are many things I would like to do, people I would like to help. But I'm not the answer to the world's financial problems," Buras said at the time. "And I'm perfectly happy with what I do for a living. To find something you really like to do, something that when you wake up in the morning you look forward to doing, that's what I have. I don't want the money to change that."

But, of course, it did. Jack Buras found it hard to keep the simple life as an expectant millionaire.

Ouachita Baptist University named him a fund-raising official. Banks encouraged him to undertake enterprises on 100 percent financing. After all, it wouldn't be long before he was rolling in dough, they thought. He became president of two new corporations and gained a reputation as a wheeler-dealer.

Then with equal suddenness, Buras' promising outlook went from the heights to the depths. A copyrighted newspaper story in 1972 declared he wasn't going to be a millionaire after all because he wasn't a member of the Buras family involved in the landmark case.

It wasn't long before Buras exited the state, leaving behind a long trail of debts, severed relationships and a lot of question marks.

Six years later Buras still is remembered as an enigma by those who knew him.

Rev. Jackie Holt of the Harmony Baptist Church:

"I guess we'll never forget about Jack. It was a real tragedy he messed himself up like he did. Jack in the beginning really felt he was going to get the money. I guess it just snowballed. I know that a lot of greedy folks got their hooks into him... When he left, I just tried not to think about it anymore."

Grant County deputy sheriff Mazel Pitts:

"He was a likeable, delightful person but he went off owing everyone money. I remember a car dealer made him give up his T-Bird. Jack just drove it down to a parking lot and left it with the keys inside. It was real sad."

W.R. "Witt" Stephens, a Prattville native who became one of the wealthiest men in Arkansas through his nationally known investments firm:

"He was a singing leader down in the church and a good one as I recall. I got to know him pretty well. But after that money business started, I never did see him again."

Lane Strother of Ouachita Baptist University:

"He was a real interesting saga — all the things he was going to do with the wealth he would accumulate. I guess he had problems distinguishing fact from fiction... Jack had a heart as good as gold. Either he just misunderstood or he's one of the best shyesters in town. But I don't think he was purposefully trying to pull the wool over people's eyes."
And each of them added: "I wonder where Jack is now?"
Well folks, Jack says he's doing just fine, thank you, and believes he still is going to inherit those millions of dollars someday.

UPI located Buras in Baker, La., a suburb of Baton Rouge, after a four-month search involving several states. Buras acknowledged having covered his tracks on purpose because "the embarrassment of it all was very strong."

"It was just horrible," a reflective Buras said, consenting to a telephone interview. "Everybody was scared they had been rooked (after the newspaper story appeared). The Ford guy called in my car. Almost every banker pulled in his loans. It was like pitching a pebble into a lake, the ripple effect you know. It absolutely destroyed my life."

At one time, Buras said, he owed a cumulative $500,000 to gobs of creditors. Some wrote it off as a bad loan. Others filed lawsuits. Another put a garnishment on his salary, so he "put his finger down on a map" and moved to McComb, Miss. "Those years, it's all such a blur to me. It took a year to get my head on straight," Buras said. "I liquidated everything I had."

"It taught me that nothing really, really comes for free. The banks that gave it to me snapped it away just as quick. They were afraid there was a possibility that they would look bad — that they'd learn I wasn't entitled to the money despite their own investigations which showed I was."

He opened a religious bookstore, he was a music store field representative, he worked for a college in Shreveport. There were other jobs along the way, too, before moving to Baker and settling down.

Today Buras, now 31 and the father of three, works for a Dallas marketing firm and is on the road much of the time. He also founded the Baker School of Music, which has an enrollment of 300 students, and is part-time minister of music at the Denham Street Baptist Church in Baton Rouge, where his father-in-law is pastor.

"I don't want to beat on my chest, but my business is doing quite well," Buras said. "I live a good life now. I've got a super family, a super home, super cars. For the first time in my life, I'm having trouble with taxes."

As nightmarish as the Arkansas years were, Buras said he's glad for the experience.

"It was a fortunate thing even if I never get the money. It was an education. Now I can work and not be choked with the sensation of dealing with large amounts of money. I've got the miles on me that a guy 45 or 50 has."

Buras has returned to Arkansas only once since his embarrassing exit. That was to come to Little Rock to file for bankruptcy on the advice of his attorney. He said he literally took pen in hand but could not force himself to sign his name and went back to Mississippi.

Remarkably, Buras never went into involuntary receivership despite the enormous debts.

The chain of events that led to Buras' claim of inherited fortune began in the late 1890s.

The Buras clan contends a distant relative gave the Army Engineers permission to blast a channel across family land to aid in flood control. The blasting reportedly created a sizeable island in the Mississippi River. In 1955 drillers struck oil on the island south of New Orleans and between the Gulf of Mexico and a town called Buras, La.

'Paper Chase' Producer Expects To Attract Different Audience

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's widely thought in TV that CBS' new "Paper Chase" series, facing ABC's hit "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" next fall, has got itself a kamikaze time slot. "I think that's an understatement," laughed executive producer Robert Thompson, who hopes his show at least proves a strong second in ratings to The Fonz and the lassies of Milwaukee. His heart is in his work. He produced the original, acclaimed "Paper Chase" film drama about a young apprentice tort-monger at Harvard Law School and the lad's brilliant, flinty old professor.

Veteran actor John Houseman, who played the prof and got an Oscar, reprises his role in the series. James T. Hart has the student role first essayed by Timothy Bottoms. About the top-rated ABC sitcoms his effort faces, producer Thompson had this to say: "I'm not being defeatist, but I don't know how you're going to beat them. They're so entrenched. "But the audience for them is not the same kind that's going to be watching our show." He was asked what kind that may be. "Well," he replied, "I'd think they'd be more serious-minded people who are academically oriented, more serious in general about where their lives are going and what they're doing with their lives." Ironically, after "Paper Chase" clicked as a movie, there were several inquiries about turning the proceeding into a half-hour comedy collection of zany students, Thompson said. "But we always said we wouldn't do it," he added. "Because you cannot make law students idiots, shallow people without substance, because they aren't. Nobody would believe it. "So finally, we came around to doing it this way (close to the film version), the way we'd always intended to do it." Despite forecasts of quick doom for the series, CBS thought enough of the "Paper Chase" pilot to order 12 more episodes for a total of at least 13 this season,

Thompson said. "I thought, after the pilot, that if we're lucky, CBS will give us an order for perhaps five or six. When I heard 12," he said, laughing. "I felt, 'My God, those people are brave.' " He was asked if he'd care to risk a prediction that "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" have shot their bolt. "I would like to say yes," he sighed. "But I don't really think so." He cited as an example the success of the '50s movie, "Grease" now doing big business at theaters around America.

Woman Test Pilot Eases Male Doubts

By PAUL STEVENS
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Some male test pilots would love to see her taxi away with her plane still tied down or watch her throw up her hands and squeal when a cockpit problem arises, Ginger Moore says. But after almost a year as a production test pilot for Cessna Aircraft Co., the world's biggest manufacturer of light planes, she has allayed their doubts about a woman in their midst. "I went through my first week or two as the new lady pilot, then I was just referred to as a pilot," she says. "Occasionally, I wear a skirt to work instead of slacks to remind them I'm a woman." Miss Moore is the only woman test pilot employed by the nation's three largest light-aircraft makers — Cessna, Piper Aircraft Corp. and Beech Aircraft Corp. In the job, she and 14 male pilots are the first to fly an airplane when it comes off the production line. They check for faulty construction and put the planes through flying stresses that a normal pilot would never dream of attempting. "Most of the stuff, 90 percent of it, can be caught by walking around the planes and checking them," said the 32-year-old Miss Moore, who flies an average of four single-engine planes a day. She once had an elevator cable fail on a plane she was testing, requiring a tricky landing, she said, but probably the biggest danger she faces is weather. The 16 aircraft-a-day assembly line doesn't slow for poor flying conditions. "Last winter when we had a big snowstorm, they had to scoop off just enough snow to let us get off the ground," she said. "But that's what they're paying us for, to fly in any weather." Miss Moore, a native of Jefferson City, Mo., and a journalism graduate of the University of Missouri, worked on newspapers in Sedalia, Mo., Arkansas City, Kan., and Wichita before dropping the career to take up flying. What hooked her was a flight she took with an aerobatic pilot while working in Arkansas City. "He turned me upside down, and that was it," she said. "I'd interviewed everyone from President Nixon to Phyllis Diller, but this was a lot more exciting." Miss Moore has obtained instructor, commercial and instrument ratings, and two months ago achieved the coveted rating of air transport pilot. This qualifies her to enter commercial airline flying, a path followed by an increasing number of women, but she'd rather stick to the small planes. "Being a woman does not put her at a disadvantage in test flying, she said. The only physical limitation, she said, is not being able to shove the small planes into their parking spots on the flight apron.

Aides Pay For 'Togetherness'

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Togetherness among President Carter's official family sometimes carries a hefty price tag — to the private chagrin of some of Carter's key advisers.

In question is the price exacted by Carter economizers each time someone flies to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., without enjoying official-business status.

That means, for example, that if the president invites assistant Frank Moore to bring his family to Camp David for a weekend with the Carters, Moore can expect to get a bill for the 30-minute helicopter flight from Washington.

Moore won't be billed for himself, because even the hard-nosed chief economist, presidential cousin Hugh Carter, Jr., assumes Moore was invited because of his official position as the chief White House lobbyist with Congress.

But Moore can count on getting dunned for a transportation charge for his wife, Nancy, and their four children.

With a family of that size, accepting a presidential invitation to relax in the beautiful Calocoin Mountains can be an expensive proposition.

Hugh Carter figures a Camp David trip by helicopter is worth close to $50 a head. In the Moore example cited, multiply that by five.

The Moore example isn't theoretical, either. He and other members of the White House senior staff actually were invited last year to spend an autumn weekend at Camp David with their families and the Carters.

The mountaintop gathering, which coincided with the escalation of Carter's manifold problems and erosion of his standings in the polls, was seen at the time as an effort to pull the White House staff closer together in the face of adversity.

To an outsider, that might seem to fall into the category of official business.

But Hugh Carter wasn't about to confer official status on wives and children. So helicopter bills were sent to Moore, press secretary Jody Powell and several other key Carter aides as Stuart Eizenstat, Hamilton Jordan and Tim Kraft because they were accompanied by kinfolk.

It's a fairly well kept secret that some of the bill recipients were outraged and stalled for weeks before paying up.

In a nutshell, they didn't expect to have to pay as much as $200-plus, in some cases, for the pleasure of accepting a generous presidential invitation.

Some of the aggrieved aides doubt the president knew they were billed for the journey. But each one questioned said he wouldn't think about raising the issue in the Oval Office; Carter has more important matters to consider.

Hugh Carter, Jr., told a reporter he simply applied guidelines drafted at the start of the administration to carry out Carter's insistent demand that no one in his White House be accused of joy-riding at the taxpayer's expense.

In fact, the presidential cousin said Carter himself is billed regularly when daughter Amy takes a playmate with her to Camp David.

"I think Rosalynn writes the checks," said Hugh Carter.

The bills are sent out, at Hugh Carter's direction, by the White House Military Office, which helps arrange military transportation for the president.

Checks are payable to the U.S. Treasury and the monies collected are added to the general fund, Hugh Carter said. He reported there is no means of directly reimbursing the military units that provide the helicopters.

Solons Stress Asian Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate says Asian security is of "major strategic interest" to the United States and that no president may act alone to alter policy concerning the 24-year-old mutual defense treaty with Taiwan.

In considering a $2.8 billion foreign military aid bill, the Senate approved an amendment 94 to 0 saying there should be no shift in policy toward the treaty's existence without "prior consultation" between the president and the Senate.

Supporters said abrogation of the treaty could have "serious military and political consequences" by creating doubt among such Asian nations as Japan, South Korea and the Philippines about U.S. policy and encouraging Soviet expansion in the region.

The U.S.-Republic of China treaty of 1954 specifies that both countries would deal with any armed attack that endangered the "peace and safety" of the western Pacific.

The United States has diplomatic relations with the nationalist Chinese government of Taiwan, which claims to be the representative of the people in mainland China. The United States has no ambassadorial relations with the Peking government.

Italian Movie Star Fails To Gain U.S. Attention

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Franco Nero, the handsome, dashing Italian actor, was destined to become a movie superstar in 1967 when he was introduced to Hollywood as the co-star of "Camelot."
 Franco played Sir Lancelot. Richard Harris played King Arthur. Vanessa Redgrave played Guinevere.
 Not only did Franco fail to become a superstar, "Camelot" was such a bomb it almost destroyed his career in Italy where he had established himself as a rough, tough hero of spaghetti westerns.
 Italians flocked to see Franco, whom they adored as an unshaven, monosyllabic killer in greasy western hat, dirty shirt and ragged trousers. He was fast on the draw and quick with the ladies.

 What the Italians saw in "Camelot" was their beloved Franco in fancy duds singing romantic ballads and encased in a tin can suit that only faintly suggested knightly armor.
 Franco was not seen in a Hollywood movie again. Not until this summer when he returned to star in the title role of "The Pirate," the movie version of the Harold Robbins best-selling novel.
 Not that "Camelot" was a total loss from Franco's point of view. He and Miss Redgrave, the firebrand Communist, became lovers and the parents of a child. They never married and have since found other liaisons.
 Franco survived "Camelot" abroad. In the past decade he has become an established international star everywhere but in the United States where movie patrons still think of him as the guy encased in tin cans.

"Actually, I was in Hollywood in 1975 to do 'The Legend of Valentino' for television," said Franco in surprisingly good English. "But for movies, no."
 "I decided after 'Camelot' that I would not return to Hollywood for many years. I was too young to cope with the system. The people in Italy thought I was ruined. They remembered me as the Clint Eastwood of Italy. And here I was in fancy costumes singing songs. They couldn't believe it."
 Franco grinned. He has brilliant white teeth, blue eyes, brown hair and a face that could be American, German, English, French or anything else. For that reason he has played 15 different nationalities in the past five or six years.
 He has starred in some 60 movies, speaking English in all of them. Most of the time he has worked in France, Italy, Germany and Spain where he demands and gets top dollar from producers.
 Franco, a man who does not appear to be unseemly immodest, has a novel explanation for the fact that his movies are not seen in America.
 "My films do very well in Europe," he said. "But American theaters don't want to show them. There is a reason for that."
 "Until this year we've made 250 pictures a year in Italy. We have at least 150 great directors over there. If the United States imported all our wonderful movies, it would ruin Hollywood and the American film industry."
 "Of course, they bring in a few big Italian name directors — Fellini, Antonioni, Pasolini — because of the great demand for them. But the United States must protect its own industry."
 Does Franco really believe Americans would shun their own movies to fill the-

Liberace Eyes Mansion As New Museum

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Liberace has bought an old mansion which he will convert into a museum for his musical memorabilia — if he can persuade the aged former owner to leave his rented quarters.
 The owners of the Austin mansion in suburban Wauwatosa said this week they have sold the 82-year-old home to the Milwaukee area native for between $100,000 and $150,000.
 However, Abe Austin, 82, the former owner who still lives there as a rent paying tenant under terms of the sale, said he is entitled to remain as long as he can manage his own affairs.
 The sellers said Austin cannot manage his affairs, but Austin's lawyer said he is competent and the owners had tried to force Austin to leave by ordering his gas and electricity shut off. The sellers said that happened because of a slipup in their real estate office.
 Liberace, who was born in the suburb of West Allis, said he wants Austin to be treated as gently and respectfully as his own 85-year-old mother. Liberace is expected to tour the mansion next week when he will perform at nearby Alpine Music Theater.
 A few years, Liberace turned his own Hollywood mansion into a museum but neighbors complained and he had to shut it down. Wauwatosa, on the other hand welcomed the museum.
 The mansion is three stories high, topped by a five-story tower. It was built in the 1870s by the suburb's first doctor.

ters showing Italian films?
 "But of course," he said pleasantly. "There is the language barrier, to be sure, another reason for so few of our films being seen here."
 Why, Franco was asked, does he not work in American movies now? Hollywood producers are well aware of the European boxoffice and are always seeking new means to exploit it.
 "I work in Europe because they pay me better over there," he said. "I'm very big in every country of the world except this one."
 "My problem is that because of my accent I cannot play an American in American movies. I could play a foreign-born American perhaps. I have what they call an international accent."
 While Franco speaks with a clear accent, he does not speak broken English. His syntax and vocabulary are faultless.
 "But an accent does not mean a European actor cannot be successful in Hollywood. Ezio Pinza and Rossano Brazzi did very well in Hollywood pictures."
 "On the other hand Marcello Mastroianni and Vittorio Gassman have not done well in American films compared to the success they enjoy in Europe."
 "The three of us are going to do a picture based on a story of three Italians in America. It was my idea and it seems like a good one."
 Unless, of course, Franco dons armor and sings love songs.

TV Producer Spoofs Radio Shows In Series Pilot

By JAY SHARBUTT
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Chris Bearde thinks, strange things happen. The latest is a radio show he's done. For TV. He calls it "The Radio Show," too. It's a one-hour pilot for a possible series.
 Of course, he thought up "The Gong Show." Next fall, he strikes anew with the syndicated "Cheap Show." Dick Martin hosting. It spoofs the worst in game shows. It even has a "prize lady," age 65.
 Doing a radio show for TV may seem strange, he concedes, but it goes on the theory our minds "see" what we hear on radio.
 So he's plotting what he calls "a musical 'Laugh-In' of the '80s" televised in a fantasy radio setting that covers AM, FM, rock, golden oldies, news, sports, weather and other ear wares.
 It emphasizes rock music types, but includes pre-rock stars in both comedy and song numbers, the show's producer-creator says.
 To aid this visualization, of, ah, listening, he says he taped "ordinary people listening to radio at their homes, in cars, at beaches and supermarkets, wherever people listen to radio."
 "We'll see all the dial-switching that goes on, which leads into the different segments of the show."
 Thus, he said, we tune in a progressive format, we might see the jazz-rock group Chicago. A jazz format might yield Count Basie, an unknown format Kate Smith and Alice Cooper. And so on.

 The fantasy is run by a local disc jockey, Don Steeie, the show's cosmic deejay. He's sighted, Bearde swears, atop a huge tower, "held by chains, surrounded by little punk-rock girls."
 The station's cosmic general manager is Gary Owens, the hand-on-ear announcer from "Laugh-In." In the new role, Bearde says, Owens "professes to know absolutely nothing about music except he knows what he likes — money."
 Monty Python-like gags rendered by Soupy Sales also are part of the proceedings, adds Bearde, who says he taped this voyage to the surreal two weeks ago. He's now editing it into final form.
 He laughingly calls it "a cross between McDonald's hamburgers and Fellini. The whole idea of it is, 'Let's not get too serious, let's just have some fun.'

 It was privately financed, he says, because when he tried to explain a radio show on TV to the networks, they looked at him as if maybe he should lie down a while or something. Didn't faze him, though.

 He says he'll soon hit the networks again with his finished "Radio Show" and try other avenues if the networks don't bite.
 If nobody bites, he was asked in jest, will he have a go at the halcyon days of silent radio?

 "No," he said. He smiled. His eyes took on a strange glint. "The next thing I'm going to have a go at is The Associated Press, I think."

Tax Revolt Nonexistent In Iraan

IRAAN (UPI) — Until a year ago, this town — the home of Alley Oop, one bank and two motels — was a city without a tax.
 Now the West Texas town of 1,050 has a 1 percent sales tax that contributed about $17,000 to city coffers the first eight months it was collected.
 "This town was incorporated in the early 1950s. We survived until now without any tax at all," said Mayor John Kniveton.
 But what is preventing a taxpayers' revolt is that while residents pay a small county and school tax, they don't pay a city property tax. Kniveton said the community gets along fine without it.
 "We just don't believe in spending more than we've got available. The people pay for what they want. If it's unproductive, we don't have it," he said.
 Iraan is among about 25 cities in the state that the Texas Municipal League says has no city property taxes such as that which sparked the controversial Proposition 13 vote in California to trim government spending.
 Economics was the reason the budget-conscious town opted for the sales tax rather than a property tax when it needed more money.
 "The sales tax is automatic. The state collects it for all cities. It doesn't cost anything to administer," said Kniveton.
 Except for the sales tax, the $220,000 annual budget is derived from city-owned utilities. Volunteers also run the Fire Department and ambulance service.
 Pecos County sits atop one of the nation's largest oil fields. The $250 million forwarded each year to the county by the petroleum industry helps keep school taxes low.
 V.T. Hamlin was working in Iraan as a newspaper reporter during the oil boom days when he had the idea for the comic strip "Alley Oop."
 Kniveton said folks in Iraan are "thrilled" about passage of Proposition 13 because it indicates a trend toward what they have operated all along — efficient government.
 "It's everybody's money. Who is the government? It's all of us," said Kniveton. "I think that's what we've lost sight of. You individually and I individually know there's a limit to what we can afford and what we can have."

Post Office Box Rate Increase Goes Unnoticed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One recent postal rate increase — a 40 percent price boost — has attracted little attention except for a tiny segment of the population which rents post office lock boxes.
 When the latest postage rate increase became official last May 29, the news that the cost of a 13-cent stamp was being increased to 15 cents became the focus of public attention, and the increase in box rentals got little attention.
 Some of the nation's 9.8 million box renters may not be aware of it yet, the spokesman said.
 The reason is that some postmasters are deferring the increases until the next rent payment is due, he said. The boxes are rented for six-month periods.
 Other box renters received immediate notices that they had to pay more for the remainder of their current rental periods.
 With the increase, the lock boxes in post offices across the country are expected to bring in about $162 million a year, a Postal Service spokesman said.
 The rental costs are based on the cost of the service and the value of the service to the customer, the spokesman said.
 "Lock boxes provide privacy, security and convenience to the customer," he said. "They can get their mail on Saturdays and Sunday."
 "Many people rent lock boxes because they don't want people at home to know what kind of mail they are getting," he added.
 The rent costs also vary according to the size of the box and the size of the city, the spokesman said.
 "In a large city a lock box is more useful than in a smaller city," he said. "In a large city mail is distributed around the clock."

Governor Uses Coat To Hide Split Pants

CONCORDIA, Kan. (UPI) — Despite 90-degree temperatures, Gov. Robert Bennett declined to take off his suit coat during a recent appearance.
 He had good reason, he confided later. Bennett said the seam in the back of his trousers had split.

Chilean Air Force Averts Disaster After Shakeup In Government

By CHARLES E. PADILLA
SANTIAGO, CHILE (UPI) — Chile's air force, considered one of the finest in Latin America, went to the brink of self-destruction this week, but edged back at the critical moment.

It lost its commander-in-chief, Gen. Gustavo Leigh, and 18 other generals in the wake of Leigh's ouster July 24 from the ruling junta led by President Augusto Pinochet.

On the night Leigh was fired, the former commander convinced many lower-ranking officers — especially at the colonel level — to stay on, air force sources said.

"It was impressive. The colonels were determined to resign along with the generals. Leigh had to convince them to stay on in the best interests of the institution and the nation," the sources said.

Leigh was removed from the junta and the air force for his outspoken disagreement with the other officers on the junta on how this country should be led back to democracy after nearly five years of military rule.

The high-level shakeup sent shock waves through the entire air force officer corps. In the end, only two of the 21 active generals were left.

One was Gen. Fernando Matthei, ordered by the junta to replace Leigh as commander and in the ruling 4-man group.

The other was Gen. Javier Lopetegui, head of Chile's air force mission to Washington. Lopetegui was made chief of staff.

Matthei has had to start practically from scratch. The names of 17 colonels who will be promoted to general were announced one day after the crisis.

"I'm starting with a new team. There's going to be no problem because the colonels are in condition to assume new responsibilities," Matthei said.

Still, the fact remains that the air force lost nearly 600 years of professional experience overnight. It is calculated that the generals who resigned had at least 30 years each in the service, some more.

The crisis for the air force came at a delicate moment for Chile.

Relations with neighboring Argentina are at the worst in many years. Rumors of an impending conflict over territorial rights near the southern tip of the continent have swept both countries for several months.
