Shcharansky verdict caps Soviet trials

By SETH MYDANS

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident Anatoly Shcharansky, whose cause was championed by President Carter and became the center of an international furor, was convicted of spying for the United States today and sentenced to 13 years at hard labor, his brother said.

The 30-year-old Jewish activist was also convicted of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," for which he must serve seven years concurrently with his espionage term, Leonid Shcharansky said.

The sentence was two years less than the 15 requested by the prosecutor, the longest prison sentence allowed by Soviet law. The charge of treasonable espionage could have meant the death penalty, but the prosecutor had cited the defendant's youth and clean record in asking instead for a prison term.

The verdict and sentence climaxed twin dissident trials that have brought the Carter administration into a confrontation with the Kremlin over human rights. On Thursday, a court in Kaluga, 100 miles south of here, sentenced dissident leader

Alexander Ginzburg to eight years at hard labor.

Carter reiterated the U.S. position today in Bonn, West Germany, telling a news conference, "Our voice will not be stilled as we consider these violations, and others around the world, of human rights."

In a closing statement, Shcharansky said: "To my wife and my people I can only say, 'Next year in Jerusalem.' To this court which decided my fate in advance, I say nothing," his brother reported. "Next year in Jerusalem" is a centuries-old rallying cry of Jews dispersed from their homeland.

Just before word of the verdict, a dark green van believed to be carrying the defendant sped from the courthouse in central Moscow as supporters surged around it chanting, "Tolya! Tolya!", the Russian nickname for Anatoly.

Speaking to reporters and dissident friends outside the courthouse, Leonid Shcharansky said the judge specified that the first three years of his brother's term be served in prison and the remaining 10 in a labor camp.

Western correspondents were barred from the dissident trials and depended on relatives of the defendants, and occasional briefings from court officials, for information.

While the West's attention was focused on the Ginzburg-Shcharansky trials, a third dissident — Catholic activist Viktorus Pyatkus — was sentenced Thursday in Vilnius, Lithuania, to 10 years at hard labor and five years of Siberian exile.

Like Ginzburg and Shcharansky, the 49-year-old Pyatkus was found guilty of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda. He was a founder of the Lithuanian branch of the Helsinki human rights group to which Shcharansky and Ginzburg also belonged.

Shcharansky in a defense statement to the court Thursday asserted that because he worked only to help others in the Jewish emigration movement, the Soviet government was being "immoral" by bringing him to trial, his brother Leonid told reporters.

He said he had been engaged in the "noble" work of helping others and publicizing their plight, but "it was a

Carter, Schmidt unite in criticizing prosecutions

By FRANK CORMIER

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Carter and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt joined today in deploring Soviet prosecution of dissidents, with Carter declaring that his criticism will not be silenced and Schmidt citing Eastern European human rights violations.

At an impromptu news conference following their only scheduled bilateral talks, the first questions sought their reaction to the prosecution of Anatoly Shcharansky and others in the Soviet Union.

"We deplore this action by the Soviet government," Carter replied, citing not only Shcharansky's case but similar moves against Alexander Ginzburg and Yuri Orlov.

Speaking in German, Schmidt said, "I would like to express my full agreement with what the president has said."

The German leader added that "such actions" are also taken "in the other part of Germany" and said that he would like to remind U.S. reporters

"that there are also people in Eastern Europe who suffer under such conditions but are not given such prominence" as the Soviet dissidents.

The U.S. president said it was obvious that "the courageous dissidents in the Soviet Union" are being tried, convicted and punished because they "sought basic freedoms" guaranteed under the Helsinki agreement, which he noted the Soviet Union "voluntarily signed."

Carter said there was little in a concrete way that could be done by the United States except to mobilize the force of public opinion against the prosecutions.

At the same time, the president expressed a willingness to "cooperate with the Soviet Union wherever possible to mobilize public opinion."

He said he had just received a personal report from Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on what the president termed Vance's "constructive meetings" in Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Discussing their bilateral talks, both Carter and Schmidt sought to play down differences and emphasize the pursuit of common goals, although Carter acknowledged there was bound to be "some small variance" in their respective attitudes.

Questioned about economic differences between the United States and Germany, the visiting president said there were some but he cited none.

And he acknowledged the problem of "excessive consumption of oil" by the United States — a point Schmidt and others often emphasize — and in another seemingly conciliatory gesture, noted the United States is less dependent on exports than are Germany and some other allies.

Carter's meeting with Schmidt followed a sedate official welcome here after a breakfast conference with Vance that touched on new difficulties in American-Soviet relations.

Vance arrived here Thursday after two days in Geneva, during which there was no apparent breakthrough in the arms talks.

Andrews County officials still following clues in man's death

By GUY SULLIVAN

ANDREWS — Almost two months after the death by gunshot of a truck driver here, Andrews lawmen still are following up clues in an effort to find the killer.

But the long arm of the law hasn't been long enough so far.

The bullet-riddled body of Richard V. Warren Jr., formerly of Hunter, Ark., was discovered at 10:15 a.m. May 23 by workers resurfacing Texas 176.

Warren's body was found partially covered by a pile of gravel 14 miles east of Andrews. He had been shot in the chest and head and twice in the hand with a .22-caliber weapon, said deputies.

Sheriff J.A. "Bud" Gregory is still trying to find the person or persons who killed Warren.

Andrews County Sheriff's Department officers have deduced that Warren actually died on May 20. He was found three days later and his body was identified on May 25.

Sheriff Gregory in late June released a composite drawing of a suspect.

The drawing has failed to produce any results.

Warren was 34. He was employed by Western Oil Transport of Andrews. His wife and three children still were residing in Aubrey, Ark., at the time of his death. They had planned on joining him in Andrews to establish a new home in West Texas.

These days, Sheriff Gregory said, he routinely calls lawmen "coast-to-coast" in an effort to break the case.

On May 24, Andrews County law officials termed Warren's death a homicide. An autopsy was ordered by Peace Justice Jay Williams.

Gregory said that Warren had spent only 10 days in Andrews prior to his death. The man's body was identified by his co-workers and by people who knew him from the El Royal Hotel, where he had been staying.

Evidence indicated his body had been unloaded from a vehicle and dragged several feet, authorities said.

Warren's royal blue 1970 Chevrolet pickup and a .22-caliber pistol were missing from the scene of the slaying, said authorities. Also, the man's pockets had been emptied, and the only items found on the body were a valve-stem removing tool and a plain gold wedding band, said officers.

Officials also said the pickup had Arkansas license plate number DOY277. The missing pistol had pearl handles and a six-inch barrel, county lawmen added.

Warren was last seen on a Saturday night. He did not return to work that Tuesday morning, according to authorities. Three men who worked with Warren told deputies that he was off work Sunday and Monday. When they heard that a man's body had been found, they went to the sheriff's office to report Warren missing, officers said.

Lawmen said Warren's friends identified him from photographs. His identification also was verified by fingerprints.

In late June, Andrews County sheriff's deputies distributed a composite drawing of a man wanted in connection with the death of Warren. The drawing and description depicts a man approximately 35 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing 170 pounds. He has dark brown hair, described as almost black, worn short with thin sideburns. The man has "rather large jaws." One arm has what was believed to be the likeness of a snake tattooed on it. He also is reported to be very talkative.

The description was provided by witnesses to the sale of Warren's pickup to a used car dealer in Silverthorne, Colo.

Deputies said Warren apparently had been in his 1970 El Camino pickup when he was killed.

On June 22, Colorado authorities notified Andrews lawmen that a vehicle matching the description of Warren's pickup had been found in Silverthorne.

A service station attendant in the Colorado town told authorities a man using the name of Glenn F. Brooks came to the station and sold the El Camino to the attendant. Brooks reportedly gave a Salt Lake City, Utah, address, which reportedly proved to be false.

Officials said the man who called himself Brooks left Silverthorne by bus after a motorist picked him up at the service station and took him to the bus station.

When the station attendant tried to register the vehicle, Colorado authorities were alerted.

Gregory says anyone with information relating to Warren or to the man being sought should telephone the Andrews County Sheriff's Department.

Gregory is decidedly still working on the case. Noted the sheriff: "At least we located the dead man's pickup in Colorado in June."

But the current state of the investigation hardly satisfies Sheriff Gregory. "We don't know where the killer is. But we're looking for him," he said.

Commodore Gene Darby stands beside "my friend, Kyle," and 1805 British relic that he's willing to part with for $4,200. The copper and wood statue came from an old seamen's home.

Commodore salvages memories

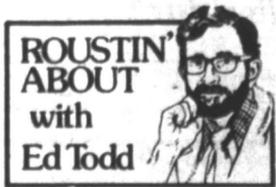

Commodore Gene Darby is the man who gives dignity and honor to ships long after they have been scrapped and scuttled and have lost their lady-like virtues.

He does it by salvaging the first-class innards of luxury liners and other vessels of the British Admiralty and lines. He sells these increasingly rare "treasures" in the spirit of laissez faire.

"I'm the only man in the world who, when they de-commission ships, (they) come to me," said Darby, who's really a honorary commodore and a land-lubbing merchant.

He salvages luxury furnishings, such as bone china and silverware, and vital instruments, such as master compasses, sextants and sextants, from broken vessels.

"I have been honored by all nations who have ships as a man who immortalizes ships," said Darby, who it at the Midland Hilton this week to sell his wares. Some, such as Ravenhead crown pint beer mugs, are affordable by the non-leisurely class, those plebeians who might never be able to afford the time or money for a pleasurable sea-faring trip.

Some items, as rare as R.M.S. luxury steamers, cost the price of a round-the-world steamship ticket.

Darby, a former "professional image-maker," is offering for sale in Midland only a morsel of his take from ships in the British Admiralty and from the Cunard and other lines.

"Before I came along," he said of his role in "immortalizing" these steel ships, "all of these lovely things were destroyed" in the scuttling of ships nobody wanted.

Ten years ago, Darby, then in the lucrative image-making business, began "rescuing" these ships' appointments, which he says are "all symbolic of an era that shan't be again."

In that respect, he's a sentimentalist who has turned a profit out of nostalgia.

Darby began ship merchandizing in 1968 with the luxurious Queen Mary, which was to be converted to a "hot-dog stand" at Long Beach, Calif. That didn't seem quite proper to Darby who, as a professional image-maker, was to promote the violated ocean liner. Instead, he junked his old career, hocked everything he owned, and bought the Queen Mary's furnishings.

"They all laughed at me when I began," said Darby who, from the viewpoint of his critics, grew "from idiot to astute" in his dealings.

In the years since, he and his "commodoreable" wife Frankie have been doing very well for themselves.

"If I brought everything I own in England," Darby said, "they couldn't

Public workers strike three major cities

By The Associated Press Public employees launched strikes in three major U.S. cities Thursday night and early today, leaving Cleveland with no police on the streets, Louisville without fire protection and Philadelphia without the services of 19,600 non-uniformed workers.

In Cleveland, 1,500 patrolmen went on strike Thursday night after 13 fellow officers were fired for refusing an order by embattled Mayor Dennis Kucinich to start one-man daytime foot patrols in housing projects notorious for violent crimes.

Some water and garbage workers were honoring police picket lines this morning, raising the threat of a wider work stoppage in this city of 700,000 persons.

There were no initial reports of serious problems from the walkout, as non-striking police manned station houses. Kucinich, who faces a recall election next month, obtained a court order against the walkout, but police refused to return to work.

Louisville firemen walked off the job and set up picket lines this morning, in protest of what they called the city's failure to bargain in good faith over wage demands. Union spokesman Steve Catlett said as far as he knew all the nearly 600 firemen were honoring the strike call.

The city obtained a temporary restraining order about two hours after the walkout began, and union officials said they did not know what their response would be. Stephan Phelps, executive assistant to Louisville Mayor William Stansbury, said earlier: "We have National Guard troops standing by if the firemen ignore the temporary restraining order."

The Kentucky Labor Relations Board has found the city guilty of unfair labor practices in its negotiations with the firemen, who had been poised to a strike for a week. The city has offered a 5.5 percent wage increase, and the firemen, who now start at a salary of just over $11,000, have not made their demands public.

In Philadelphia, the nation's fourth-largest city, 19,600 blue-collar, clerical and professional city employees non-uniformed workers went on strike today after union negotiators refused to accept or reject a contract offer.

The issues are wages and layoffs. The city was recently ordered by an arbitrator to give police a 9 percent wage hike, and said it might have to lay off 3,500 other workers to raise the money.

Stacy project was blocked once by CRMWD, foes say

AUSTIN — Attorneys for the Lower Colorado River Authority attempted to show Thursday that the Colorado River Municipal Water District, now seeking a permit to build a reservoir on the Colorado River near Stacy, earlier tried to stop the city of San Angelo and the Corps of Engineers from building a project on the same spot.

The CRMWD is seeking authority from the Texas Water Commission to construct a 554,000-acre-foot reservoir in Coleman, Runnels and Concho counties and is being opposed by numerous downstream users led by the LCRA.

Both sides dispute the amount of unused water in the river and are at odds on claims that most of the project would be used for municipal needs.

Under state law, water used for municipal purposes could take priority over water the LCRA currently sells to irrigators. The LCRA is attempting to prove, however, that the project primarily is designed to provide cooling water for a power plant.

LCRA attorney Fred Werkinthin pointed out Thursday during cross examination of CRMWD General Manager Owen Ivie that the city of San Angelo had attempted to become local sponsor of the project for the Corps of Engineers in 1966, and that the district had opposed the application.

Werkinthin produced a 1966 letter from the district saying the predicted yield of 107,000 acre feet of water annually "could be obtained only (by) reducing the yield of the Lower Colorado River Authority system by about 70,000 acre feet annually." The application, however, was for a somewhat larger project.

Werkinthin also attempted to show the project would use 40,000 acre feet of water for the power plant instead of the 25,000 the district claims. The difference in figures involves an amount Ivie says would be left in the reservoir for "insurance" against droughts and which Werkinthin claims is to meet the requirements of the power plant.

Water from the reservoir would supply a number of West Texas towns, including Midland and Odessa.

The commission will resume the hearing on Wednesday of next week.

Why do the British let Darby have first pickings from the scrapped ships?

Firstly, he's a master at image-making. "Her Majesty (the queen) and Lord Selwyn, commissioner of naval affairs, felt that I immortalized British shipping and all of it," Darby said right off. "They felt that I give great prestige to the ships and to British lore."

He hasn't hurt his own image, either.

In the off-season, which is the time he chooses, Darby at leisure can fly over to the French Riviera and cruise along in the Mediterranean Sea in his 165-foot yacht, the R.M.S. Queen. (He has taken the liberty to interpret R.M.S. as Darby's Royal Merchant Services. To the British, it's Royal Mail Service or Royal Mail Steamship.)

Darby's venture has been successful enough to attract a generous following in his 250,000-member International Nautical Society, which is headquartered at San Antonio.

His members are given first shot at his finds. "When I corner ships or old manor houses or whatever," Darby said he allows his members to enter and keep anything they can remove with 16-inch screwdrivers.

And what he puts on public exhibit for sale are the left-overs.

At his 10-day show in Midland are Items ranging from 15-cent bars of Cunard Line sea-water soap to binoculars, costing into the thousands, from the Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, the "old" New Amsterdam, and from Holland-American and Italian lines. He has bits and pieces from "11 different ships." Plus, he has thousands of relics, including flags and navigational instruments, from the British Admiralty Service.

He works at giving dignity to his sales. "This is not making a buck in the normal sense," Darby said. "It's a museum you can buy something out of." With the liberty of a ship's captain, Darby calls his exhibits "an array of things that you'll never see again, ... something that never will be repeated again."

Darby, who said he has made 300 oceanic voyages, likes to go back to those sailing days of yesteryear, to a bygone era.

"It was a very luxurious way of life," he said of the steamship days from the turn of the century and into the 1930s.

"Today, it's hassle and hurry. I call it a period of cardiac arrest."

The furnishings aboard the ocean-going liners "had to be the finest" available.

And that's what he's selling.

Four indicted in Lamesa

LAMESA — Four indictments involving a justice of the peace here were returned Thursday by a grand jury.

Indicted was Richard Nelson, 33, of Lamesa in connection with the alleged burglary June 27 of Amos Furniture Co., located in north Lamesa. According to a spokesman with the sheriff's office.

Of the four indictments, two were for burglary of a building, one was for burglary of a habitation and the last was for official misconduct.

Nelson was arrested on June 28 and charged with burglary in connection with the incident, and he posted $2,000 bond. Dawson County Sheriff's Office reported recovering about $5,000, dealer's cost, in furniture from Nelson's residence. Furniture had been taken in two separate burglaries from the store, officers said.

The opening show at Midland College's new Chaparral Center will feature The Captain & Tennille.

The Captain & Tennille booked for MC center opening show

The husband and wife musical performing team of The Captain & Tennille have been booked for the opening performance at Midland College's new Chaparral Center, at 8 p.m., Sept. 17, according to center director Larry Campbell.

Dr. Al Langford, president of Midland College; Campbell; and Charles Stone, president of Cobblestone Productions of Dallas, met outside the still-unfinished multi-purpose building Thursday for a formal signing of the appearance contract. Cobblestone Productions of Dallas is promoting the Southwest portion of a 36-city tour by the television and musical celebrities.

The Captain & Tennille, who are known in real life as Toni and Daryl Dragon, have scored several record hits and have their own musical and comedy television show.

Tickets for the performance may be purchased at $7.50 apiece by mailing requests to: Chaparral Center Tickets, Midland College, 3600 N. Garfield, Midland, Tex. 79701.

The Chaparral Center, which is expected to be completed late this month, is located on the Midland College Campus. It will have a seating capacity of about 5,000 persons, plus moveable seating for an additional 1,200 persons on the floor.

It is designed for a variety of activities and is named after the college mascot, the chaparral. There will be parking for 1,700 cars.

The center will be able to accommodate touring road shows, exhibits, conventions, banquets, home shows and home basketball games for the Midland College team. Other activities will include graduation ceremonies, convocations, indoor tennis exhibitions and education meetings, said Langford.

Features of the Chaparral Center include a center-mounted, four-sided scoreboard that lifts into the ceiling when not in use, four "super trouncer" spotlights, a bank of Leko spots, an Altec sound system, almost 700 center arena chairs with padded seats and mid-level entry concourses.

Ford Motor Co. president axed in executive reshuffling

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. President Lee A. Iacocca has been fired, little more than a year after his 32-year rise through the ranks of the world's second biggest automaker was derailed in a corporate shakeup.

Ford's board of directors voted unanimously Thursday to remove Iacocca from the presidency of the auto company, said William Clay Ford, one of the firm's top executives and brother of board chairman Henry Ford II.

"The vote on the recommendation of my brother (that Iacocca be removed from the post) was unanimous," said William Ford, adding he had known for a few weeks that the ouster was in the works.

Iacocca could not be reached for comment. But the industry publication Automotive News quoted him as saying: "There was no reason. He (Henry Ford II) and Bill (Ford) and I sat there and he just said he came to that conclusion and that's it."

Iacocca will vacate the post Oct. 15 — on his 54th birthday — the trade journal reported in an article to be published Monday.

After joining the auto company in 1946 as an engineering trainee and later switching to sales, Iacocca shot to the top. He had been considered the likely successor when Henry Ford, 61, steps down as chief executive in 1980.

But industry insiders said Iacocca had become too visible and aggressive to suit Ford's tastes. "Lee is like a Medici prince," one lieutenant said. "He created his own city-state within the company."

Iacocca won his way into Henry Ford's graces as the marketing genius behind the 1964 introduction of the Mustang, Detroit's first low-priced, sporty car.

Hearing today on liquor vote

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Testimony continued through noon today over whether District Judge Don Lane should order Taylor County Commissioners to re-canvass the results of last month's wet-dry election.

Unofficial results of the June 17 balloting showed wet forces with a narrow victory. However, last Monday, the commissioners threw out more than 800 ballots in a voting precinct dispute and declared Abilene still dry.

The one-time West Texas cattle town has been dry since 1902.

The wetts requested a hearing today and planned to ask District Judge Don Lane to order the commissioners to canvass "all" precincts and declare the results.

Abilene book dealer Ben Ezzell, however, isn't waiting for Lane's decision or the next county election to let the commissioners know how he feels.

Ezzell has filed a complaint with the FBI, claiming his civil rights were violated when the commissioners refused to canvass all the returns.

The book dealer said since a majority of the commissioners want Abilene to stay dry, "we feel they would enjoy a long, enforced stay in a certifiable dry federal prison."

hopeless task to defend himself in this only half-open trial ... where invited spectators shout and jeer."

Shcharansky is a computer programmer who lost his job after he applied to emigrate in 1973. He was turned down on the basis that he possessed state secrets as a result of his work, though he denies that this was so.

He became active in the emigration movement and in 1976 broadened his activity to the so-called Helsinki group formed in Moscow to expose Soviet failures to comply with the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accords on European security and cooperation.

Because he is fluent in English, Shcharansky served occasionally as interpreter and translator for dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov and also for some American correspondents including Robert C. Toth of the Los Angeles Times.

Before leaving the Soviet Union in June 1977, Toth was interrogated about his contacts with Shcharansky, and a statement Toth signed was one of the bases of the espionage charge that Shcharansky passed industrial and military secrets.

Weather routine

Summer appears to have turned into a routine matter with the forecast being limited to hot and dry.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport said the weather for Saturday is expected to be continued hot with warm nights.

The high Saturday should reach into the upper 90s, the weatherman said. Low tonight should be near 70. The record high for Thursday is 107 degrees set in 1933. The record low for today is 50 degrees set in 1936.

Area towns reported hot and clear weather early today.

Man satisfactory after accident

An 18-year-old Midland man was in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital today following a one-vehicle accident about 6:26 p.m. Thursday.

Charles William Alsheimer of 1500 Princeton Ave. was riding his motorcycle west in the 1200 block of West Scharbauer Drive in the dirt ditch between the two lanes of traffic, according to a spokesman with the police department. The motorcycle hit a curb and Alsheimer was thrown from the vehicle, the spokesman said.

Alsheimer was taken to MMH by city ambulance.

Report critical of Washington's grip on daily Vietnam operations

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Pentagon study echoes complaints expressed by generals and admirals during the Vietnam War: Washington officials took too direct a role in running day-to-day military operations 10,000 miles away.

"Washington certainly was too deeply involved in the details of actually running the war, particularly the air war in the North," said the study which was made public Wednesday.

But the report also said that "if the U.S. ever again is involved in a protracted war, its basic premises, its strategy and its tactics should be subjected to rigorous analysis in Washington."

These comments were made by Richard Steadman, a former high official in the Pentagon during the Vietnam War, in his report on a six-month study which recommended changes in the current national military command structure.

Steadman, now a New York investment banker, suggested strengthening and widening the powers of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, improving the quality of military staff officers working for the Joint Chiefs and making the chairman directly responsible for supervising U.S. field commanders around the world.

Steadman's comments on Vietnam did not go into detail on the conduct of the 12-year U.S. military involvement in Vietnam.

His critique of the Defense Department's management of the war was mixed.

At one point, he said that "good people operating under the pressure of war made the command structure work despite its shortcomings."

He made only a passing reference to Washington officials having become too deeply involved in the details of running the war.

But those familiar with the attitude of senior military men then recall how generals and admirals angrily complained — in private — that civilians without professional military background were calling too many of the shots, costing the United States dearly.

Many Air Force officers contended that Washington officials, including President Lyndon Johnson and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara personally approved lists of bombing targets in North Vietnam from which no deviations were permitted.

Critics in the military contended that this prevented shifting targets as needed.

Johnson often phoned the Pentagon's War Room in the middle of the night to check on air attacks over the north, prompting some officers to refer to him sardonically as "The Squadron Commander."

Senior officers objected because U.S. bomber routes to targets in the North were strictly defined and rigidly enforced for pilots.

The stated objective was to avoid killing North Vietnamese civilians while hitting military targets, but Air Force officers said the North Vietnamese military deployed their heaviest aircraft concentrations along the indicated approach routes, and that American fliers died as a result.

Soviets rerun 'rights' cutout

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper for the second time printed a cutout to be mailed to President Carter calling on him to "take concrete actions in your own country" to uphold human rights. Komsomolskaya Pravda, the youth newspaper, said it was repeating the coupon that first appeared in the June 23 edition in response to "numerous" requests from readers.

New York Times attorney enters innocent plea

By CAROLE FELDMAN

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The New York Times pleaded innocent today to contempt charges stemming from its refusal to turn over a reporter's notes to the judge trying Dr. Mario Jascavelevich on murder charges.

The Times staff attorney, Russell Lewis, entered the plea before Superior Court Assignment Judge Theodore W. Trautwein.

Times reporter Myron Farber, who wrote a series of articles before authorities in Bergen County reopened their investigation into a series of mysterious deaths at Riverdell Hospital in Oradell 12 years ago, did not appear in court.

He had failed to turn over his material by 5 p.m. Thursday, the deadline set by higher courts.

Eugene Scheiman, attorney for the Times, maintained the reporter was improperly served in the State of New Jersey with an order to produce the documents and appear before the contempt hearing.

"It seems to me that a responsible reporter in such a case with a man's life and liberty at stake would not hide behind some technical niceties as service of process," the judge said. "The New York Times is hiding behind the skirts of Myron Farber and those skirts are becoming more soiled every day."

Trautwein said if Farber and the Times exercise more legal appeals to block the surrender of the notes the trial judge may "find this type of frustration is one that demands a mistrial."

Jascavelevich, 50, originally referred to as Dr. X in Farber's articles, is on trial on charges he murdered five hospital patients. The prosecution claims the patients were poisoned with curare, a powerful muscle relaxant. The trial is in its 20th week.

The trial judge, William J. Arnold, ordered the newspaper to turn over Farber's files, saying he would review the material to determine if it should be given to defense attorneys.

The Times appealed, but Arnold's order was affirmed by the highest state courts in New York and New Jersey.

More death bring toll in explosion to 139

TARRAGONA, Spain (AP) — Eight more persons died during the night, bringing the death toll to 139 in the gas truck explosion at a campsite on the Costa Brava, the Spanish Health Ministry said.

Reports from burn centers in three cities indicated about half the estimated 100 persons still hospitalized appeared certain to die in the next few days, ministry sources said.

A truck loaded with propylene gas veered off a highway Tuesday afternoon and plunged into the crowded Mediterranean campsite starting a fire and a chain of explosions around an estimated 600 campers.

Two journalists picked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Texans were among 24 professional journalists announced Thursday as recipients of fellowships to study at Stanford University and the University of Michigan in the 1978-79 academic year.

Gregory G. Graze, 30, staff writer for the Dallas Times Herald, will study at Stanford.

John Stark, 28, assistant city editor of the El Paso Times, will study at Michigan.

Cameras, accessories missed

Theft of cameras and equipment from a business was reported to the Midland Police Department about 5 p.m. Thursday.

A spokesman said L. Sisk of Furr's Supermarket in Town and Country Shopping Center reported two 35mm cameras, bags and accompanying equipment valued at $1,420 had been taken from the store.

NOTICE TO PARENTS OF ELEMENTARY PUPILS

The majority to minority pupil transfer policy provision is an important part of the desegregation plan of Midland elementary schools. This transfer policy allows eligible young children to attend the same school as older brothers and sisters in grades 4, 5, and 6. The majority to minority transfer policy states:

A primary level pupil (grades 1, 2, or 3) may transfer from a school in which the pupil's race or ethnic background is the majority to another school in the assigned elementary school cluster, serving the residence, in which the pupil's race is the minority. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes which transport intermediate level pupils (grades 4, 5, and 6) within the elementary cluster.

Pupils in grades 1, 2, and 3 may transfer to another school in the elementary cluster when their race or ethnic background is a majority in the home school. Also, the race or ethnic background must be in a minority in the receiving school. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes within the elementary cluster.

You may receive more information by contacting the principal of any elementary school. Application forms are available from any elementary school principal or may be obtained at the central administration office at 702 North "N" Street.

Cause for concern

Here is something which is bound to be of utmost concern to every law-abiding citizen of the land.

It has to do with the fear, outrage and frustration which many Americans are bound to feel over the extremely light sentences being meted out to murderers and other violent criminals.

It found fresh focus recently in an appalling story from New York City.

A 15-year-old boy, whose name was not released, admitted killing two subway passengers and attempting to kill a subway motor-man — shooting and seriously wounding him — during one eight-day period.

Two days after committing the first murder, and before he was apprehended for it, the young killer appeared in Family Court on an unrelated pickpocket charge during which police described him as "extremely dangerous" and recommended that he be detained in a juvenile detention center.

Despite the city attorney's warning that the youth would commit a more serious crime, the judge released him in custody of his mother.

During the subsequent proceedings on the murder charges the defendant spat on an assistant district attorney, hurled a glass ashtray at a guard, cursed the judge and bragged that he was keeping a list of persons he intended to kill when he escaped. His previous record included eight robbery arrests and seven months' detention in the state reformatory, where he stole a truck, attempted to run over a social worker, attacked a psychiatrist, raped a fellow inmate, and menaced the director and 10 staff members with a crowbar.

Despite this record, despite two murders, other vicious crimes, and his unconscionable conduct in court, this cold-blooded killer was sentenced only to 18 months to five years — the maximum permitted the Family Court under the state's juvenile offenders law. "They put this kid away for 18 months," one detective said, "...in 18 months and a day, somebody's going to get killed."

A case like this provides another persuasive argument for those who favor stronger penalties commensurate with the crime.

Beyond complex philosophical and humanitarian arguments about state punishment by death, many persons see the question as not simply a matter of sparing a convicted murderer's life but sparing the lives and suffering for innocent victims, who would not have been attacked but for the leniency of judges and laws which turn known killers loose upon society.

It is no wonder that people are concerned. They should be concerned to the point of doing something about it.

Just think of it — turning the New York youth loose after 18 months in the face of his announced intention of killing other persons. The laws should and must be changed to prevent this sort of thing.

If punishment by death is too much, why not then keep them behind bars for life, if necessary, in order to protect the lives of others. Some persons convicted of crime merit lighter sentences, but those whose records and attitudes deserve longer sentences should be dealt with accordingly.

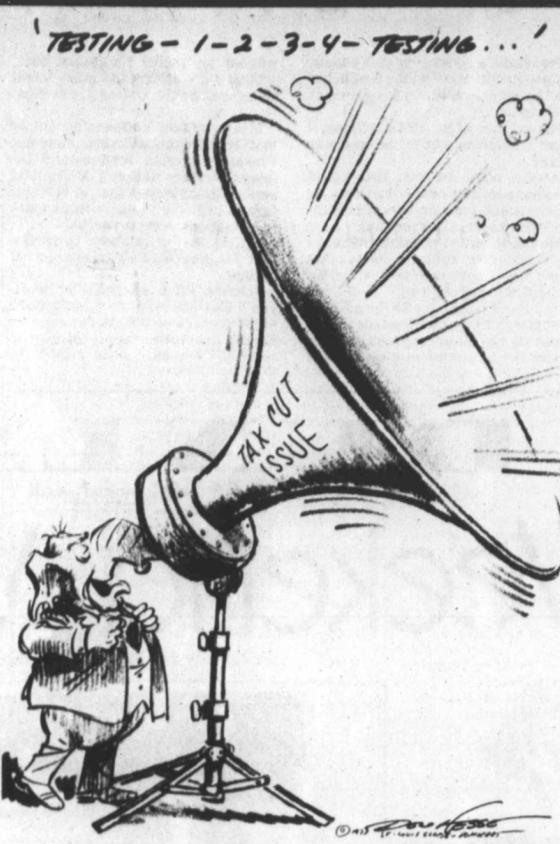

It is time also to impress upon the youth of the land that laws are not made to be broken, and that if and when they are broken, the culprits must pay the price for their criminal acts.

Thurmond does rare about-face

WASHINGTON — Stern, ramrod-straight Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the very model of a reserve major general, marches up and down Capitol Hill as if he were leading an unseen parade. Neither rain, sleet nor hail can turn him back once he is in full stride.

Yet a gaggle of lobbyists, upholding the right of candy and cereal makers to push their sugary foods upon small children, have caused Thurmond to do a rare about-face.

The battle lines were drawn by the Federal Trade Commission, which sought to ban TV advertising aimed at children. The 75-year-old senator, his banner held high, rushed at first to the side of the little children.

It was a curious capitulation for the steadfast Thurmond, who used to stand on his head to keep physically fit and once defeated ex-Sen. Ralph Yarbro, D-Tex., in a one-fall wrestling match in a Capitol corridor.

Explained Thurmond's office: "The more he thought about it, the more he thought it was just more bureaucratic regulation. But I don't think the lobbying was a determining factor."

Footnote: The Chocolate Manufacturers Association, meanwhile, has hired the law firm of ex-federal Communications Chairman Richard Wiley to fight the proposal. Wiley assured us he "thoroughly checked it out and is absolutely sure there is no conflict."

CHARLEY REESE Libertarianism rejects the concept of duty

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — In some corners of both the left and the right, libertarianism is catching on. That is the philosophy of pure individualism and it is about as useful in today's world as a raincoat in the Sahara.

Harry Browne, author of "How I Found Freedom in an Unfree World," lays out the philosophy with naked honesty.

To be free in the libertarian sense is to declare yourself an outlaw and to abandon all loyalty to government, country or any other group or institution.

Granted, many libertarians shrink from going over the logical ledge just as many liberals recoil from facing the logical conclusions of their philosophy which is totalitarianism.

Still, Browne is right. That's the choice. And that's why I reject it and call it impractical. I believe that without the glue of the individual's responsibility to the larger entity no civilization can last and I do not care to live in an uncivilized world.

Libertarianism rejects entirely the concept of duty. If there is no obligation except to self, then obviously duty becomes a meaningless concept.

It is never, for example, in the self-interest of the individual to expose himself to the hazards of war. An individual committed only to his own personal well-being can always do better away from war than in it.

From the purely individual point of view, it is always the wise course to go with a winner and avoid personal danger.

There are people like this — survivors — in every country. No matter what befalls their country, no matter how often the regimes and ideologies change, these people survive. But, as Browne pointed out, to do this you must not care what happens to anyone else.

I reject that. There are people and principles and even places I care about so much that I would defend them even at great personal cost. I suppose that is a moral reason for rejecting extreme individualism.

There is a practical reason, too. Namely it's a useless philosophy unless you happen to be a millionaire with money and assets salted away around the globe.

Most of us are in a literal sense tied to our nation. We physically occupy this ground. We lack the funds to have the international mobility of the Jet Set. If we knew for sure that 10 days from now, the Russians would start a nuclear war, we'd start digging shelters in our backyards because we don't have the funds, even if we had the inclination, to take off for Australia.

So in a real sense our individual destiny is linked with the destiny of our homeland. We simply are not independent in the libertarian sense. Our food, our clothes, our shelter and our incomes are dependent on others. If the farmers fail, we starve and if the truckers quit, we do without.

Just recognizing this reality is sufficient justification to conclude that if we share the benefits of collective association, then we should for the sake of justice share the expense and responsibility for our common welfare and defense.

Too often these days libertarianism is more cop-out and rationalization than philosophy. I've noticed that none of the draft dodgers have moved to Hanoi now that their heroes are running things over there. I've yet to find a libertarian or a tax rebel who disdains to use a public road, park, or school. This kind of self-professed extreme individualism in today's context is Grade A phoney baloney.

We live in a nation and our destiny and well-being are tied to the destiny and well-being of our nation. We are not only individuals but part of a larger whole and our survival in today's world depends on how well we function as a group.

Somewhere between the extreme of libertarianism and the extreme of collectivism there is room for rational nationalism which can embrace not only individual liberty with minimum limitations but also responsibility to one's neighbors and to God and country.

America is my homeland and the people in it are my brothers. I stand here and intend to stay put in good times or bad times and pull my weight. I guess that's just another way of saying, my country right or wrong but my country. Well, so be it.

Japanese get fireworks display, thanks to Strauss

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Japanese envoys participated in an unscheduled Fourth of July fireworks display when Ambassador Robert Strauss, abandoning his normal, conciliatory position, laid down the law on trade negotiations.

Fumihiko Togo, Japanese ambassador to Washington, had been seeking a meeting and finally got it, at Strauss' Washington apartment on Independence Day. Strauss, President Carter's chief trade negotiator, told Togo and other Japanese officials that their country had not been "forthcoming" in the current talks. He said flatly the U.S. had no intention whatever of agreeing to what the Japanese were currently proposing.

That plain talk, followed by Strauss saying much the same thing to newsmen the next day, cheered business circles in Japan who would prefer that barriers against U.S. imports be lowered. They long have felt a virtual ultimatum from Strauss would be preferable to more soft soap.

MONDALE FUMBLE

Senior aides at the White House are pointing to Vice President Walter Mondale's operation as the principal culprit in the embarrassing Gartner affair.

David G. Gartner, top aide to the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, was cleared by the president's and vice president's staffs for an appointment to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission even though his children had received a $72,000 stock gift from Dwayne Andreas, a millionaire Minneapolis grain dealer. Andreas, who was acquitted of making illegal 1968 contributions to Humphrey, contributed 1972 funds to Richard M. Nixon that later turned up to finance the Watergate conspiracy.

Michael Cardozo, the young White House lawyer who handled the Gartner appointment, simply did not know who Andreas was. Neither did top Carter aides such as press secretary Jody Powell. "But I'll say this," a White House staffer told us, "Mike Berman (a top Mondale aide) sure knew who Andreas was, and he never blew the whistle."

THE PRESIDENT'S DELEGATE

While the White House has steamed over the public statements of a longtime peace activist named to the U.S. delegation to the United Nations disarmament conference, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young had been distributing them around the country.

Harold Wilens, a Los Angeles manufacturer long active in peace and other liberal causes, was named by the president to the U.S. disarmament delegation. The U.N. session had not even been completed before Wilens was appearing in print with statements not following U.S. policy — decidedly bad practice for even a part-time U.N. delegate.

"For 30 years, the United States has led the way in arms escalation toward a world rapidly filling with terrorists and nations armed with nuclear weapons," he wrote in the Los Angeles Times. The Christian Century quoted him as saying, "I think the president is getting the wrong political advice" in taking a harder line on Soviet-Cuban operations in Africa.

"Outrageous" was the one-word description by a presidential aide. But Andy Young did not think so. The Los Angeles Times and Christian Century articles, plus a column Wilens wrote for the New York Times, were distributed by the U.N. ambassador to Washington newsmen.

NO GOP LIBERALS

The National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC), which prides itself on supporting liberal candidates of both parties, may not back any single Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate this year for the first time since its formation in 1948.

That is a sign of the decline of liberal Republicanism, plus some special factors. NCEC had planned to help finance two liberal Republican senators this year: Clifford Case of New Jersey and Edward Brooke of Massachusetts. But Case was upset in the primary, and NCEC flinches at backing Brooke while he faces trouble in the Senate Ethics Committee and in the courts.

One possibility: Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. NCEC had not thought of contributing to his campaign because he had seemed a sure winner. But with Democratic candidate Alex Smith making more of a race than was expected, the liberal group may back Percy to have at least one Republican on its list this year.

Young's opinions stir reaction in France, too

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — France and the United States had been enjoying a period of harmonious relations — until Ambassador Andrew Young spoke his mind about France's role in Africa.

The remarks were almost overlooked amid the furor over Young's allegations about political repression in the United States.

Shortly after Young's celebrated interview with the French Daily Le Matin appeared in Paris, American Embassy officials were summoned to the French Foreign Ministry for an explanation.

Young had said that French intervention in Zaïre against Katangan rebels two months ago was not motivated by humanitarian concerns but by a desire to "defend their own economic interests."

He said that France has "very fruitful neo-colonialist relationships" in Africa which help France overcome balance of payments problems. His statements were a clear departure from the Carter administration's enthusiastic support for France's decisive action in routing the Katangan rebels and in evacuating Europeans from the area.

State Department spokesman Thomas Reston disavowed Young's comments, stating that they "do not reflect the policy or the judgment of this administration."

President Carter is likely to do more fence mending when he meets with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing at the economic summit meeting in Germany.

But Thursday's flap over France was only a small part of what was perhaps the stormiest day of Young's tempestuous 18 months as Carter's ambassador to the United Nations. His assertion to Le Matin that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands of persons whom I would call political prisoners in the United States" drew a personal rebuke from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Vance took time out from arms talks with the Soviet Union in Geneva to inform Young of his displeasure. Young was there attending a United Nations meeting.

Back home, meanwhile, a resolution to impeach Young was introduced in the House. A motion to table the resolution was approved by a 293-82 vote but even many of Young's supporters felt he had gone too far.

"I think Andy could have done well if he had curbed his tongue at this particular time," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said of his former House colleague.

"I don't believe there is such a thing as a political prisoner in America and I don't believe Andy believes there is such a thing either. I guess it is how you interpret the word."

In a clarifying statement Thursday, Young said in Geneva he never meant to "equate the status of political freedom in the United States with that in the Soviet Union."

He said he is in "full accord" with the administration's opposition to Moscow's human rights practices.

Civil court jury's ruling favors ousted Supreme Court justice

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A civil court jury ruled in favor of ousted Texas Supreme Court Justice Donald Yarbrough Thursday, recommending the convicted ex-justice receive a $247,000 judgment from the Bank of Victoria.

An elated Yarbrough told jurors, "I thank you, my wife thanks you, and, who knows — some day maybe even the people of Texas will thank you."

But District Judge Frank Crain said the jury's recommendation is not the final judgment. Crain said he will hand down a ruling in the case at a later date.

Yarbrough, 36, who was sentenced to five years in prison for perjury last spring and is appealing that case, sued the bank in a deal involving equipment Yarbrough had used as collateral. But Yarbrough said the bank acted too quickly in selling the equipment and said the bank sold it for less than it was heavy construction worth.

The Kerry Dancer no longer a hazard on Padre beach

By KEN HERMAN

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — The Kerry Dancer, a grounded shrimp boat that had confounded officials here since May, is no more.

The 56-foot vessel, which attracted death and injury in the shallow waters here, was destroyed Thursday by a series of shattering explosions that left the beach strewn with charred debris.

A U.S. Army ordnance squad from Corpus Christi had been called in to do away with the deadly hazard.

The boat ran aground here May 4 and quickly became a plaything for swimmers in Andy Bowie park.

One youth died and several were injured while playing in the Gulf waters near the boat.

"We're trying to get rid of the boat the cheapest way possible," said Randy Friebele, an assistant Cameron County district attorney.

The local prosecutors had taken the boat's owners to court in an effort to have the boat removed. But Elizabeth Pierson of nearby Laguna Heights claimed she sold the boat for $1 after it beached. The salvage firm she said she sold it to, however, denied the purchase.

State district Judge Filemon Vela ordered Mrs. Pierson to have the boat removed. On a crowded Saturday at the beach she and a friend tried to set the water-soaked boat ablaze. Deputies stepped in and quashed that effort.

It went back to Vela's court and the judge ordered the county to arrange the boat's removal. The ownership — and financial responsibility — will be decided later.

It took over a week for the county to arrange the demolition. There were questions about whether the boat was technically in the county — it was nestled in the sand some 50 feet from shore.

But the district attorney's office, after consulting with the U.S. Coast Guard, decided the most important thing was to get the menace out of the water.

Deputies cleared the beach here early Thursday as the project began.

Mrs. Pierson watched from afar as the demolition crew waded out to the boat with cases of explosives.

"You'd have to be a shrinker to understand," she said of her emotions.

Mrs. Pierson and her husband had purchased the Kerry Dancer several months before he died of cancer.

Although upset at the destruction of the boat she had called her "dream," she said she was glad the hazard was gone.

The use of the Army team will save money for whoever the court decides owned the boat. Original estimates showed it would cost some $10,000 to haul the boat ashore, but Friebele said the ordnance team was not charging the county for its services. The only cost will be the $300 per day being paid to local diver-salvager Gene Robeson who aided Thursday.

The explosions splintered the boat and spewed debris some 400 feet into the air. The remains washed ashore and were collected by county employees.

Friebele, who had watched the Kerry Dancer become a major nuisance, took home a small chunk of a warning sign from the boat.

Robeson said he planned to return Friday to remove the remaining fragments. The bottom of the vessel is wedged six feet into the sand below the water, he said.

Memories of 1974 bring fears of recession now

By K. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The money-managing Federal Reserve Board is up to its old tricks, pushing interest rates to the highest levels in years and contributing to fears of a new recession.

It's all reminiscent of 1974 when the Fed's pressure on interest rates and the money supply played a major role in the nation's plunge into the deepest and longest recession since World War II.

But wasn't that in the days of Republican presidents and the conservative chairman of the board, crusty old Arthur Burns? Didn't Democrat Jimmy Carter name his own man, G.

William Miller, to run the Fed? What goes on here?

What goes on here is that the Fed, like the Congress and the presidency, has a role to play in government that sometimes transcends the inclinations of any particular chairman.

In other words, no matter what Miller's personal views might be, nor no matter how much he would like to please Carter, the business of the Fed comes first, and right now the Fed sees its business as fighting inflation.

The White House and the Congress are the spending branches of government, and, whether for better or worse, they are spending far more than the government has in revenues. The Fed, on the other hand — because of its control over the nation's money supply — is in a position to try to counter the impact of excess spending, especially when it shows up in worsening inflation. It reacts almost instinctively by tightening the money supply, an action that, theoretically at least, relieves pressure on prices by pushing up interest rates.

The Fed influences the nation's money supply by trading government securities in the nation's financial markets. When it buys securities, it puts money into the system, and when it sells, it takes money out. Such actions influence interest rates, which in turn can affect business activity. The Fed receives plenty of support and encouragement for its anti-inflationary stance from the nation's traditionally conservative banking system, which it regulates.

With prices rising at an annual rate of more than 10 percent so far this year, the Fed has predictably reacted by tightening the screws on the money supply, pushing interest rates to 1974 levels. The cost of conventional home mortgages is now over 10 percent, the highest in recent history.

But there is a danger that as the Fed pushes up interest rates to slow the economy and cool inflation it may push them too high and plunge the country into a recession. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has said the Fed is courting precisely that danger now.

Miller has openly admitted the Fed's actions could result in a recession if the White House and Congress don't cooperate by reducing federal spending.

But even Miller may have had enough of rising interest rates. He voted last week against the latest increase in the Fed's discount rate, which was raised from 7 percent to 7 1/4 percent, the highest in more than three years. He was outvoted 3-2, however, the first time in recent memory a Fed chairman has been on the losing side in such a vote. The discount rate is the interest charged on loans to banks.

The vote focused attention on the other members of the Federal Reserve Board, all of whom were appointed by Republican presidents, and who are generally more conservative than Miller.

They are J. Charles Partee, an economist and former head of the Fed staff; Henry Wallich, a former Yale professor of economics and magazine columnist; Stephen S. Gardner, a former deputy secretary of the Treasury and chairman of the Girard Trust Bank of Philadelphia; Phillip Caldwell, former head of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank, and Phillip Jackson, a mortgage banker from Alabama.

Women gaining in work, losing in pay, study says

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the number of women in the workforce has increased dramatically in recent years, job advancement has proceeded at an uneven pace, studies indicate.

Women, who now comprise about 40 percent of the total labor force, have made some gains in getting higher-paid, higher-status jobs. But as a group they have lost ground when their earnings are compared with median earnings of men.

A recent study by the Conference Board, a business research group, shows that the proportion of women managers in the United States rose from 13 percent of all managers in 1970 to 19 percent in 1975.

Another survey shows that women college graduates, who traditionally received lower starting pay, are now starting at about the same salaries as their male counterparts.

But the twin trends of more women seeking advancement and more women entering the labor force have helped create an apparent paradox in overall pay differences.

In 1955, for instance, the Department of Labor says a comparison of median earnings showed that a woman made about 64 cents for every dollar earned by a man. By 1974 the pay gap had widened to 57 cents for each dollar paid to men.

"In fact, men's median weekly earnings exceeded women's by about $97 and women had to work nearly nine days to gross the same earnings grossed by men in five days," according to the study by the Labor Department's Women's Division.

"Despite the fact that increasing numbers of women are securing higher-level and better-paying positions, there is still a predominance of women in lower-status occupations of a traditional nature which provide limited opportunity for advancement," the report notes.

The apparent paradox is also due in part to the large numbers of new and inexperienced women who have flooded the workforce in recent years, thus lowering the overall pay averages.

In the post-World War II period, the number of women who work has grown from one in three to nearly one in every two women, with the most dramatic increase among younger women.

The trend of advancement among experienced women workers is less clear, partly because the biggest push for better-paying and better-status jobs has come only in the past five years or so.

"Women's earnings, like those of men, are positively related to educational attainment, but highly educated women do not benefit nearly as much from rising earnings with advancing age as men," commented Margaret S. Gordon of the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education.

Part of that, she says, may be because large numbers of working professional women still are concentrated in such fields as nursing and teaching, where pay does not rise as sharply as in other professions.

But a study of starting salaries in 1976-1977 by the College Placement Council found a significant change from only a few years ago when female college graduates traditionally received lower starting pay than their male counterparts.

In its survey of 23 occupational groups, the CPC found that the average starting salary for women was only slightly lower than those for men. In three fields — farm management, statistical math and finance — where female candidates were scarce, starting salaries were a bit higher than those of men.

UFO producer Webb believes earth being watched

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Webb thinks it's possible somebody out there is watching us, but for "Project U.F.O." it's "just the facts, ma'am."

"With millions and millions of planets in space, I cannot believe we're alone," said Webb, once the star of "Dragnet" and now executive producer of the NBC series. "And with the rate we're polluting our planet, we better not be."

"I think there are other lives out there, both advanced and primitive civilizations. We've got to look outward. Just as we had a westward expansion, we've got to have a space expansion."

Webb, however, sticks close to the documents from the Air Force's Project Blue Book in the popular new series "Project U.F.O.," now seen on Sundays on NBC.

That's not to say, however, that the series isn't hyped with special effects of spaceships and extraterrestrial beings. It is. In fact, a casual viewer might get the idea that the spaceships are for real rather than a re-creation of someone's reported sighting.

"We're not saying they're from outer space," Webb said. "We can't say that and the U.S. government can't say that until one lands. But I think people are more willing to accept the fact that it could be machines from another planet."

"We show the machines, but we don't say this is the answer. The dialogue makes it clear that this is only what someone said they saw."

"Project U.F.O." premiered earlier this year, riding a crest of interest in space and UFOs spurred by such movies as "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Webb acquired a microfilm of Operation Blue Book's voluminous documents, dating back to 1947, after it became public under the Freedom of Information Act. He also obtained the services of retired Col. William T. Coleman, who had been chief spokesman for Operation Blue Book. Coleman is producer of the series, with Don Widener.

In the past 30 years, an estimated 15 million Americans say they have seen unidentified flying objects, once called "flying saucers." Their ranks include astronauts, pilots, policemen, military personnel, and even President Carter, when he was governor of Georgia. Numerous sightings have been reported around the world.

"The Air Force got into it because there were so many reports it felt there could be a threat to national security," said Webb. "It has been distorted that the government was out to prove these people wacko. You do find some, but in the main the people who reported UFOs are people of high credibility."

"The Air Force was out to prove these people did see something. But people thought the Air Force was out to hide something."

About 12 percent of the sightings were never explained. Air Force investigators found the rest to be anything from weather balloons to weather phenomena to outright hoaxes.

It's on that unexplained 12 percent that "Project U.F.O." is focused. "Those are the ones the Air Force couldn't find an explanation for — and couldn't prove people didn't see what they said they saw," Webb said.

Webb said the Air Force's objective was to scientifically investigate the claims of sightings. He said, "Here they had to prove that what people saw were machines from another planet — but they were never able to."

"I can't speak for the Air Force, but I think they agree with the philosophy of our show. It is that anything's possible in this age."

Webb was interviewed in his office at Goldwyn Studios, where he keeps a UFO cigarette lighter on his desk. It was given to him by Bill Stark, who does the special effects which eat up a huge chunk of the show's $400,000 weekly budget.

William Jordan played the Air Force investigator in the first season, but in the fall when the series switches to Thursdays, he will be replaced by Edward Winter. Caskey Swaim remains in his role as his assistant.

Webb, who starred as the laconic Sgt. Joe Friday ("Just the facts, ma'am") in "Dragnet," said he did not want the role himself. "The thought never crossed my mind," he said.

Cleveland patrolmen begin strike

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD

CLEVELAND (AP) — This city of 700,000 was without a policeman on the beat or in a patrol car today as its 1,300 patrolmen struck, demanding reinstatement of 13 officers fired for disobeying an order by Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich to begin one-man patrols of housing projects with high crime rates.

Several civil service unions, including a Teamsters local that represents drivers of garbage trucks, said they would honor any police picket lines.

Kucinich, who faces a recall election, said he had been in contact with Gov. James A. Rhodes but did not ask for any help. The 31-year-old mayor also said Cleveland had not asked for aid from surrounding community police departments. He would not say whether such requests would be made later.

No patrolmen reported for work when the 11 p.m. shift began Thursday night, said Lt. Edward Hocevar, a department spokesman. Thirty-nine of 41 supervisory officers, ranging in rank from sergeant to captain, scheduled to be at work were on the job, he said.

Normally, the city has 40 to 50 police cars on patrol. None of the vehicles was in service today, Hocevar said.

The police department said there had been no reports of major crimes or disorders since the strike began.

Presiding Common Pleas Judge Leo M. Spellacy issued a temporary restraining order against the strike shortly after the first pickets appeared, but the order was ignored.

The case was assigned to Judge Daniel O. Corrigan for a hearing today in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court.

After the court order was issued, acting Police Chief Edwin A. Nagorski issued a warning that any officer who refused to return to work would face disciplinary action.

The strike was called by the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association, and had the support of the Fraternal Order of Police, which represents supervisory officers.

The union was angered at a Kucinich order requiring one-man daytime patrols of housing projects in crime-ridden areas of the city. Thirteen officers who refused the assignments were fired Thursday for allegedly failing to obey a lawful order.

Kucinich began his eighth stormy month in office today by touring the city following the start of the strike. It also was seven months to the day since police staged a two-day walkout in a contract dispute.

Kucinich, whose troubles were heightened earlier this year when he fired former San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto from the post of police chief, faces the recall election on Aug. 13. It was called after Kucinich fired Hongisto and after the mayor had several run-ins with leading members of the City Council.

The patrolmen's association claimed the 13 fired officers were denied an opportunity to present a defense.

The adventure play for children was to have a performance at 2:30 p.m. today in Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., and a concluding presentation at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, with tickets to be available at the box office before curtain time. (Staff Photo)

Attorney pledges to battle for convicted Houston officer

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney for one of three former Houston police officers convicted in the drowning of a young Mexican-American while in their custody says he is prepared to carry the defense to an appeals court in New Orleans following a government attempt to reinstate stiffer sentences on the men.

The civil rights division of the Justice Department filed a brief with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans Thursday calling for a reinstatement of 10-year prison sentences suspended March 28 by a federal judge after the conviction of the three men.

Mike Ramsey, attorney for Stephen Orlando, 22, one of the former officers convicted of civil rights violations, told The Associated Press:

"I knew there was a lot of political heat in this case, but I never realized that it was this hot. I have never seen a case such as this, and I guess it will never end. We are prepared to go forward with the defense," he said.

Orlando, Terry W. Denson and Joseph Janish were found guilty by a federal jury last February in the death of Joe Campos Torres. They were convicted on charges of conspiring to violate Torres' civil rights, with death resulting, a charge that carries a maximum life in prison term.

The three arrested Torres in a bar-room disturbance in May 1977. Three days later his body was found floating in muddy bayou that runs through downtown Houston.

U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling handed down suspended 10-year sentences and placed each man on five years' probation. He also sentenced each to a year in prison on a separate civil rights beating charge.

In an unprecedented move, the Justice Department last April claimed the suspension of the 10-year sentences was illegal and asked Sterling to reinstate them, but he refused.

Israeli minister returning home after talks

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman returns to Israel today to report to Prime Minister Menachem Begin on his three-hour talk with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Weizman said he and Sadat "discussed various ways and possibilities for achieving peace in the Middle East" during their meeting Thursday. He said they would meet again in Alexandria, Egypt's summer capital, but he would not say when.

"I enjoyed the talk with President Sadat," he said, "and I believe the president enjoyed it, too."

Sadat met earlier this week in Austria with Shimon Peres, head of Israel's opposition Labor Party. After the talk with Sadat, Weizman met with Egyptian Defense Minister Abdul Ghani el-Gamassy.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said he sees some "meeting points" in the Israeli and Egyptian proposals for an Arab-Israeli peace, but he would not say what the points are.

"That's a matter for London," he told a news conference, referring to his meeting there next week with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Last week his office issued a completely negative assessment of the Egyptian peace plan.

The two defense ministers make up a military committee set up by Sadat and Begin last December at the start of their maneuvering for a peace agreement. They are primarily concerned with Israel's return of the Sinai peninsula to Egypt, and since there is more agreement on this than any other issue between Egypt and Israel, they have continued to meet periodically despite the rupture of political talks between the foreign ministers in January.

Dayan refused to confirm reports that he, Kamel and Vance would continue their talks at El Arish, in the Sinai, after the London meeting. The United States has been trying to revive the stalled talks, which broke off because of differences over Israel's return of occupied Arab lands and the future of the 1.1 million Palestinians who live there.

Dayan would not reveal the specific purpose of Weizman's trip to Australia. But an Israeli source said the meeting with Sadat probably concerned future security arrangements for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Egypt's proposal, rejected by Israel, would return the West Bank to Jordan and the Gaza Strip to Israel for a five-year transition period, after which the Palestinians living there would determine their own future.

Israel's plan, rejected by Egypt, calls for continued Israeli control of the West Bank and Gaza, local self-rule for the Palestinians there and discussions on their future status five years after a peace agreement takes effect.

Dayan said in the London meeting he expects to get explanations from Kamel of the Egyptian plan and suggestions for changes in the Israel proposals.

Methods of inspiration topic of Thursday Rotary Club meeting

Misconduct charges lodged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The committee investigating alleged South Korean influence-buying in the House is accusing four present congressmen of possible misconduct but says none knew Seoul was trying to buy favors.

The House ethics committee on Thursday announced proceedings to determine if the four committed violations and should be punished for allegedly taking money from Tongsun Park, a Korean rice dealer.

Its decision papers called Park a South Korean agent — rejecting his denial that he was an agent — but said it has no evidence any current congressmen should have known that.

The committee said, however, it has not completed its investigation of allegations that former South Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo tried to give congressmen envelopes stuffed with $100 bills.

Motivating people means changing their attitudes, members of the Downtown Rotary Club were told Thursday noon at their meeting in the Midland Hilton.

The speaker was Paul Straughan, Midland area manager of Dale Carnegie Courses, whose subject was "How to Inspire Motivation in People."

"What makes a difference in people, in clubs, in companies, cities, organizations?" he asked. "Why don't people become involved?"

Straughan then went on to explain that the average person uses only about 10 percent of his ability. "Just think of the latent ability going to waste," he added.

The speaker explained how best to motivate the "triangle of success or learning," the base of which (90 percent) is knowledge. He said that skill ("the way we use knowledge") and attitude make up the other lines of the triangle.

He said that everything that one does may be traced back to attitude, and this is why motivating people by altering their attitudes becomes so important. Straughan cited attitudes to conclude his several successful address.

Wayne Breise has been full-time father, mother, maid, cook and housekeeper with his two children, Cynthia, 13, and Devin, 11, since he and his wife separated a year ago. Here the children help with the kitchen chores.

Father gets to know kids 'for first time' after divorce

By DIANE CLARK
Copley News Service

Wayne Breise used to be more businessman than family man. He helped build a private aviation company to where it was grossing $3 million a year in plane rental, sales and flight training. Then, last August, when Breise was 35, his marriage fell apart, leaving him the primary caretaker of his two children — Devin, 10, and Cynthia, 13.

"When my marriage broke down I shortened my work hours substantially — I now work six or seven, rather than eight or 10 hours a day," Wayne explained in an interview.

All of a sudden, he became not only father and provider for the family, but also mother, cook, maid, home transportation director and general manager of Devin's Little League team as well as coach of Cynthia's Bobby Sox softball team.

And he's glad. "I've really gotten to know my kids for the first time in my life," said Breise, who has sandy-blond hair and a mustache to match. "Before, I was the typical businessman out to make $5 million as quickly as possible."

Breise is still general manager and 40 percent shareholder of his aviation company, but has gained new freedom through divestment of some corporate holdings and delegation of some of his former responsibilities to others.

He is confident that he can become a No. 1 family man, but to do so, "I'm going to have to get over my empire-building complex," Breise frankly said. "I want to settle down into a less demanding career."

What are the rewards he's now discovering? "It's an emotional thing — just a feeling you get when the kids come home from school with a report card you know they're proud of or they've accomplished something they're proud of. I'm not talking about something I might be proud of as an outside source, but something they feel good about. Just to see that glow in their faces...maybe they've surprised me by cleaning their room or something."

"Now that's a reward I never got before, and it's really a nice feeling."

Since Breise's children were fairly grown up when he became a full-time father, he has had less difficulty adjusting than someone with younger kids.

"I've learned to cook," said the father. And Devin noted that hamburgers have become a household word.

Breise also learned that "there's a talent to grocery shopping. You really need to be comfortable with a store and — quantities of things! (He gave a helpless gesture.) I'd end up with five boxes of pancake mix and forget the syrup and butter."

As for ironing, anything that wrinkles doesn't belong in the Breise wardrobe. And sewing has not turned out to be one of Breise's strong points.

There are other worries — trying to not to forget it's his pickup day for Cynthia's school car pool; wondering whether the kids have had all the necessary health shots and ferrying Cynthia to and from her orthodontist.

"I never used to have to think about these things. I just used to complain about the bills," Breise said.

Breise has concluded after 10 months of being a single father that the role of a housewife is "a much bigger responsibility than I ever would have guessed."

One of those responsibilities that is new for him is raising a 13-year-old daughter who is going through puberty.

"Devin is no problem because I was a little boy myself and I went through all those things and we can talk about them," Breise said. But with Cynthia it's another matter.

She gets uptight when Breise dates and, because of that, he now keeps his dating life separate from his home life.

Regarding the children's overall adjustment, Breise thinks it has been good.

"Their activities haven't lessened. Both are very bright kids and their grades have improved...There was no weeping or gnashing of teeth," the father said. They still see their mother about once a week and talk to her often on the telephone.

If anything, Breise thinks they get more attention now than before.

"When there were two of us here, each of us could sit back and assume that certain responsibilities were taken over by the other whether they were or not. Now, I have to sit down with my daughter and help with her homework. I can't assume my wife did it. I think both of them are getting more attention."

Best buys include vegetables, poultry

COLLEGE STATION — Budget buys center on vegetables and poultry at Texas grocery markets this week, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt. Also check for economy buys on cheeses—now in exceptionally large supply, she says.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Look for best buys on zucchini and yellow squash, carrots, dry yellow onions and cucumbers.

Also, corn, blackeye and purple hull peas, okra and potatoes.

POULTRY—Eggs still offer a good bargain for high-quality protein, valuable minerals and essential vitamins. Be sure to buy from refrigerated cases and keep eggs cool.

Look for some features on fryers and parts.

Turkeys and turkey roasts have reasonable prices.

FRESH FRUIT—Attractive prices appear on honeydew melons, cantaloupe and watermelons.

Varying price levels show on plums, grapes, nectarines, bananas and oranges.

Fruits with prices on the high side are Granny Smith apples (green in color) from New Zealand and peaches.

DEAR ABBY

Mom wants to stop sexually active daughter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter just told me that she's been intimate with her boyfriend. He is her first and only. My daughter and I are very close, and she has always told me everything, but I'm shocked by this news. She thinks there's nothing wrong with it because she "loves" him. Should I tell the boy's parents what is going on and ask them to tell their son not to see our daughter anymore? Knowing the boy, he would respect their wishes, but then my daughter would know I told them and it would ruin our good relationship. Or should I ask the boy to stop seeing our daughter, and threaten to tell his parents if he doesn't comply? I'm sure if we broke them up the chances for the same thing happening with another boy would be greatly reduced since she is quite picky about whom she associates with. In the meantime, she may mature more. Please tell me what to do.—WORRIED MOM to your skin, you'll look like an old lady by the time you're 30!" Some have even told me that too much exposure to the sun can give me skin cancer. (Is that true?)

Abby, I think it's very rude of people to make such remarks. Please print this. Maybe it will shut up people who offer advice when it's not asked for. Thank you.—LIKES A SUNTAN

DEAR LIKES: Although unsolicited advice is seldom appreciated, you'd be wise to heed it. Excessive exposure to the sun "ages" the skin prematurely, and it can cause skin cancer.

DEAR ABBY: I recently telephoned a friend and asked her if she was going to be home that evening because I wanted to visit her. She said, "Yes, I'll be home, watching my favorite television program. If you want to come over and watch it with me, you are welcome. Otherwise, let's make it some other time."

What do you think of such a friend?—OFFENDED IN OMAHA

DEAR OFFENDED: I'd prefer her forthright brand of frankness to the person who tells me "welcome," foregoes her favorite TV program, and resents me for it. Or the friend who tries to entertain me with one eye on the TV.

Instead of steak put beans to bake

Copley News Service

Most Americans eat too much meat. Meat is high in saturated fat and cholesterol, so limit beef, pork or lamb to three or four times a week.

You can replace some of the high-quality protein of red meat in your menus with the equally good protein of veal, poultry, fish, low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt.

Proper combinations of vegetable proteins may be used in place of animal proteins several times a week, once a day or even more often.

Boston brown bread is traditionally served with baked beans. However, any whole grain bread, cereal or grain will add the necessary vegetable protein to make the protein in the beans complete.

Heed the old saying, "Beans taste good after living on steak. Stir up a pot and put them to bake," and try these tasty bean recipes:

HOME BAKED BEANS

- 2 cups navy beans
- 3 tbsps. polyunsaturated oil
- One and one-half tps. salt
- One-half cup ketchup
- One-fourth cup brown sugar
- One-half tsp dry mustard
- 2 tbsps. molasses
- 1 onion, chopped

Wash beans; cover with water and soak overnight. Cook slowly about two hours or until just tender. Drain, reserving liquid. Place half the beans in bean pot or casserole. Saute onion in oil and add remaining ingredients. Carefully mix beans and seasonings. Cover with bean liquid. Cover and bake in slow oven (250 to 300 degrees) about six hours. If necessary, add more liquid. Serves six to eight.

Cooking for two adds challenge

By SHIRLEY GALLINA
Copley News Service

Betty Saunders, a cooking teacher, suggests Steak Diane served with Fettuccine Alfredo and stuffed mushrooms for an elegant dinner for two. When cooking for only one or two, she suggests not buying large cans of anything. (Copley Photo)

Cooking for just one or two people can be either a boring experience or a challenge.

Betty Saunders, a cooking instructor, says it's important to use the same basic rules of nutrition as you would if you were feeding a family.

"When cooking for only one or two, you can use more vegetables or salads than when you have to cook for a family where the meat must be extended with potatoes, pastas or rice."

She and her husband, Chris, have three sons, but they're leaving the nest, and Betty has worked out her own methods of cooking for two.

"Now, instead of making a full recipe of lasagna, I will make only half a recipe, and freeze the balance in two portions. This way, you don't have to eat it forever," she says with a laugh.

She also suggests that instead of buying an eggplant, which is too much for one or two, buy one large zucchini which will serve two.

It may be cooked in various ways as a vegetable or cut in half and stuffed to make a main dish.

Betty has found that a half cup of whipping cream serves the same purpose as a full recipe of white sauce in a casserole. Since it contains 30 per cent fat, you often can omit the butter.

Standard fare for cooking for singles or doubles is the chop and steak routine, but Betty has a better idea when you want a change.

"Learn stir-fry cooking," she advises.

"It's quicker, it's nutritious and flavorful and the recipes call for very little meat."

One of her favorite menus for two calls for a simplified version of steak Diane served with fettuccine Alfredo, stuffed mushrooms, tomatoes vinaigrette and fresh fruit for dessert.

STEAK DIANE FOR TWO

Three-fourths lb. boneless, well-trimmed, top sirloin, cut one-half-inch

- thick
- 2 tbsps. butter (see note)
- One-half tsp. dry mustard
- 2 tbsps. minced shallots or 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tbsps. butter
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- One and one-half tps. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tsp. freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 1 tsp. fresh parsley
- 1 tsp. minced green onions

"This steak may be broiled or barbecued, but I prefer to pan-fry it in an electric skillet because the surface browns quickly, yet it is tender and moist inside," Betty says.

Combine two tablespoons butter and mustard in electric skillet and heat until sizzling (about 350 degrees). Fry steak quickly on both sides — enough to cook the surface until nicely brown. Salt and pepper steak, and remove to a warm platter.

Quickly add the remaining two tablespoons butter, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice to pan. Over high heat, stir until pan juices are combined. Add parsley and green onion at the last minute. Pour sauce over steak, and serve immediately.

Note: Butter gives a special flavor, so don't substitute.

FETTUCCINE ALFREDO

- One-fourth lb. (about 2 cups) wide egg noodles
- 2 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsps. salt
- 2 tbsps. butter
- One-half cup whipping cream (don't substitute)
- One-half cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tps. fresh minced parsley
- Cook noodles in boiling, salted water until tender, about eight to 10 minutes.
- Drain noodles and return to pan, add butter and gently fold until melted. Or use a chafing dish.
- Quickly fold in cream and Parmesan cheese and stir gently until cheese melts and cream is partially absorbed.
- Return to heat if necessary.

Sprinkle with pepper and parsley, and serve immediately.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

- 4 to 6 very large mushrooms, washed and stemmed
- 2 or 3 green onions, finely chopped
- 3 tbsps. celery, finely chopped
- 2 tbsps. finely chopped nuts
- Small clove garlic, minced
- Pinch oregano
- Salt and pepper
- 3 soda crackers, crushed
- 1 egg, beaten
- One-half cup butter (1 stick)
- 2 tbsps. Sauterne wine

Scoop out a little of the mushroom cap with a melon ball scooper to make cavity larger. Mince with some of the soft stem ends.

Combine minced mushrooms with one-fourth cup butter with onions and celery, and cook until onions are transparent. Add seasonings, nuts and cracker crumbs. Fill mushroom caps with mixture.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, basting with remaining one-fourth cup melted butter combined with wine every five minutes. Serve hot.

One of oldest fruits still ranks as modern

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With the advent of summer, America's orchards are beginning to give forth the fruits that abound in this nation, including the juicy nectarine.

Contrary to popular belief, the nectarine is not a cross between a peach and a plum, but is related to both. All three are members of the rose family.

The nectarine is one of the world's oldest fruits, grown in China centuries before the birth of Christ. From Asia it traveled by camel caravan to the cities of the Near East and thence to Greece, Rome and England.

New World explorers brought the nectarine to America, but the small white-fleshed nectarine of that era would hardly be recognized as the lush gold and red fruit developed by California horticulturists since the 1940s.

Although one of the most ancient fruits, the nectarine as we know it is actually one of the most modern. Of the more than 50 varieties produced today in California — which provides 97 percent of the U.S. nectarine supply — every one has been developed since World War II.

Ever since the 1850s, when the miners who swarmed westward during the Gold Rush bid as high as an ounce of precious ore for a single piece of fruit, the pears, peaches, apricots and figs of California have been in great demand. But it was only in the past two decades that the nectarine joined the parade. In 1953, California's nectarine production was a mere 13,000 tons. But by 1972, the figure had soared to 86,000 tons.

Living space alters with one-room decorating

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

One-room living — lots of it altered by structural plays — has become a whole 'nother thing.

The studio room has become a joy, an oasis of creativity, on the whole providing room for essential things that are not only used, but are attractive enough to display decoratively. It is a do-it-yourselfers' challenge.

Air space is captured, and with a lot of headroom, balconies, bunk beds and the like, charm is injected quickly.

Many books have been written about decorating a one-room living space, but a slim volume, "One-Room Living," by Sue Rowlands has been reissued and gives some lively ideas on how to incorporate mass and space.

For students one-room living may be a transient stop, she points out, but also the one room makes a happy sanctuary for newlyweds, too, where they learn about the costs of living.

The one-room place should be cheap to heat, cheap to clean and require a minimum amount of furniture.

Older homemakers seek this same warmth and convenience. Aged parents who value their independence like the one-room setting.

One-room living, of course, can get chaotically out of hand, points out Rowlands. It can lead to untidiness, lack of privacy and failure to organize space. But an open-plan, all-in-one living space offers versatility, flexibility and freedom of space.

—A totally committed large room has separate living spaces at various levels leading up from the living area by an open staircase.

The photos of that room in the book give the appearance of an outdoor experience with green plants, a girl on a swing that hangs from the rafters and a hammock.

After finding the space, the next step should be to decide how to allot it. And that can go in many directions.

The book suggests beginning with basic necessities. But it really is the time to do the structural planning that is determined by the size of the room.

Plan the materials necessary and estimate their cost before acquiring work plans and beginning the project.

After basic essentials, a good bed and other necessary furniture might be chosen, and the space converted to suit one's needs as a student, day worker, whatever. For example, do you eat out a lot? If so, you might have less use for a well stocked cul-

Landlords may not like what you plan to do on their property, something that must be settled early. You may need to get permission to put up a shelf or do any structural work at all.

Then one might track down small-scale kitchen equipment that is specifically designed for smaller homes — modular furniture and the like, screens that might be found at junk shops and refurbished to match the decorating scheme, roller blinds or Roman blinds hung from the ceiling to conceal storage.

Moveable units are valuable in a small space. Low cabinets can house all sorts of things, and house-plant greenery does a good job of dividing spaces visually.

As for junk-shop decorating, which is usually ideal in the early stages of decorating a one-room — as the book points out — it may later become a junk-shopping mania.

A shopping hint: This year's bargains seem to be heavy on massive pieces of furniture. But some, like the Victorian wardrobes, may be turned into a variety of useful storage devices. The base drawer section can be made into a separate chest of drawers, the top can remain as a more reasonable wardrobe cupboard. The mirrored door can be used as a wall mirror and the remaining wood used to make shelves and cupboard doors.

Coffee pot ready at Anton's Foods

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — The coffee pot is always on for neighbors who come to shop at Anton's Foods, the last of the family-owned downtown markets in Mankato.

And Millie Anton, the 72-year-old owner and lone employee, greets most of the customers by their first names as they steadily trickle in.

The store was opened for business by Millie and her brother, John, on May 20, 1933 — just over 45 years ago. John died 22 years ago, but Millie continues to hold court in the little store.

Not much has changed over the years. The shelves are the same ones Millie's father, a stone quarry laborer, put up.

"He was no carpenter, as you can see, but they're still standing," Millie says.

The wooden floor, swept daily with fresh-smelling sweeping compound, has been worn smooth by two generations of shoppers. Bare light bulbs, turned on by pulling long metal chains, light the store.

A clock proclaiming the virtues of Nash coffee has held its same place on the wall since the opening day, and a plain brown radio playing in the corner has been Millie's companion for the same length of time. Both have run faithfully for nearly half a century.

Millie opens her grocery store at 8:30 every morning and plans to lock up at 4 p.m., six days a week. And she has a warm relationship with other business people nearby.

"Any time I have a problem, if something goes wrong here, my neighbors fix it for me," she said. "No matter what happens, they're right here to help. Sometimes they even come in and help me stock shelves. My neighbors are wonderful," she says.

Millie admits she probably couldn't have stayed in business in recent years if she'd had to pay wages for hired help. The only help she has is a woman who comes in on "stock day."

Although her store retains its old-fashioned charm, it carries not only the necessities, but also convenience foods, including frozen products and packaged mixes. From the small meat department in back, she cuts steaks and chops to order.

"I don't like to have them cut ahead," she explained. "Some people like their meat thicker."

Millie is proud of her store.

"I think this is a pretty nice grocery store for its age," she said. "The inspector says, 'I never have to check your store because it always looks so nice.'"

Millie says she has never had a vacation. On rare days when she feels too sick to come in, a sister fills in for her.

She says she would like to take a trip, "but who would run the store? Nobody wants to cut meat."

While Millie admits that retirement has crossed her mind, she adds: "I worry about the older people who come in here. Where would they go if I quit?"

"I love people. I love to work."

Frozen rainbow trout works as course to make ahead

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Don't feel sorry for yourself this summer if you aren't lucky enough to catch your own trout! In our opinion, the frozen rainbow trout available in markets is excellent.

Recently we used it to make a tangy Cold Platter for Two. Our offering was inspired by a recipe for Cold Fillet of Colorado Trout with Mustard Sauce kindly sent to us by Consulting Chef Edmond C. Johnsen of The Broadmoor, Colorado Springs. Chef Johnsen's mustard-sauce trout is one of The Broadmoor Golf Club's most popular dishes. Our version is a great make-ahead main course for a couple.

It may also be used as an elegant first course at a dinner for four. In this case you may wish to omit the salad greens, tomatoes and cucumbers on the platter and garnish the fish with sprigs of fresh dill. In serving these layered trout fillets in mustard sauce as a first course for four people, cut each of the two trout in half crosswise to make the needed four portions.

COLD PLATTER FOR TWO

(Trout with Mustard Sauce)

- 10-ounce package boned frozen rainbow trout (thawed)
- 1/2 cup prepared Dijon-style mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons (or more) minced fresh dill
- Salad greens, sliced
- tomatoes and cucumbers

There will be two whole boned trout in the package. Cut off the heads, fins and tails. Open each trout and cut in half lengthwise.

Into a 12-inch skillet pour 6 cups water; bring to a boil; reduce heat to keep water at a simmer. Add the trout, skin side down, in a single layer; the water will cover them generously as they swell. Simmer, uncovered, until opaque through when tested with a fork — 3 to 5 minutes.

With a slotted pancake turner, remove the fillets and place them, skin side up and in a single layer, on a kitchen tray to drain. Immediately skin fillets by inserting a thin-bladed knife just under the skin at the wide end, then peeling off the skin with your fingers; discard the skin.

In a small bowl whisk together the mustard, sugar, oil, vinegar and dill.

Remove two of the fillets (they will be firm enough to pick up with your fingers) to a serving platter. Spoon half the mustard sauce over them — it will run down. Top with the remaining two fillets so each fish is assembled as if whole; spoon the remaining sauce over the top. Cover with saran and chill 12 to 24 hours to allow the flavors to blend. At serving time garnish with the salad greens, tomatoes and cucumbers. Serve with French bread and sweet butter.

Makes 2 main-dish servings.

By AL CARRELL
I always like to get hints from J. Murray. First of all, they're good ideas. Secondly, Murray is an advertising artist and includes a drawing to illustrate his idea. This saves me from having to labor at the drawing board. Here's his idea for storing small items such as screws, nuts and bolts, tacks and brads. He uses a wooden cold drink case and gets 24 jars of junior food. One brand of these fits the openings like they were made for them. Murray suggests that if you don't have a toddler or a friend with one, you can buy fruits to use as sauces and spreads. He then puts a gummed label on each lid and marks the contents. This corral for small parts is easy to store in the shop or can be carried in the trunk to the weekend retreat and is strong enough to stand banging around. Thanks, Murray.

Dear Al:
Those plastic foam cups are ideal for keeping small nails and screws. However, they tip over too easily. I solved the problem by using a wooden soft drink case. The cups fit in and can't tip.—P.N.

Dear Al:
One of the best organizers for small parts is an old plastic ice tray. The several compartments will separate the different items and will fit in a shop drawer. When you need to use an item, the tray is easily carried to the work if necessary. The parts are easy to fish out to use.—W.H.

A SUPER HINT—Those flip-top metal Band-Aid boxes are great for holding small parts. They're also easy to store in a drawer because they're about drawer height, and you can line up several rows in most drawers. Now how do you tell what's inside? One very clever way is to use a dab of silicone sealant and stick a sample to the lid. That's even better than writing the ID on a tape, because this way you don't have to think about sizes, you just look.

Dear Al:
We save all the aspirin tins. They make good pocket carriers for small screws, nails and other tiny parts. If you try to carry these items loose in the pocket, they somehow get lost, until they turn up in the washing machine. The tins let you get a supply of what you'll need, keep them separated and also corralled.—A.S.

Dear Super:
All sizes of plastic pill bottles and vitamin containers with the flip-off plastic lids are great watertight, see-through containers for small items in the workshop. Not only do I store nails, screws and other small fasteners, I use them for batteries, matches, hooks and other small things for fishing.—V.L.

America's houses can unlock big profits to owners

By HERB LANCE
Copley News Service
Your home is not just a home — actually it's also a huge pile of dollar bills. People buy homes for shelter but they also are an important investment. For many it's the No. 1 investment of their lives. They cost money to buy and money usually is made in selling them — many times the profits are significant.

And not only couples are buying homes anymore. The number of single buyers entering the market is growing gradually.

The pile of money that a home represents grows as the rocketing value of real estate goes up.

Some homes are easier to sell than others when the times comes.

Others bring more when they go on the market than comparable homes. They are in "mint" condition (that means they have been well kept and are ready for immediate occupancy).

Because of the importance that people put in their homes as investments we asked some professionals in the field to provide some tips on how people can cash in more on a sale when the time comes.

Real estate agents point out that in many ways a house can sell itself — if it looks good the chances for an early sale move up markedly.

It's the consensus of most agents that homes with two bathrooms usually are hotter items on the market than those with one bathroom.

The reason is obvious: Those with two bathrooms offer more convenience to the occupants.

An additional bathroom can be added during time of ownership. The cost will be well offset by increasing the attractiveness of the house once it's to be sold, the real estate agents say.

Three-bedroom homes appear to be the most popular on the market. More than half of the 1977 sales of existing homes were in that category.

Michael J. Stelman, a manager of the resale division of Walker and Lee Real Estate Inc., said lack of interference by the owner with the real estate agent can many times be a key in making a sale.

"This is an area not thought of too many times."

"Owners shouldn't interfere with an agent showing the property," he said. The owners should be out of the house when the property is shown if at all possible.

"By being away, a prospective buyer feels more at ease and will take more time to look at your home," he said.

Stelman estimated that 50 percent of potential sales are lost because of home owner interference.

Owners normally are asked to spend time somewhere else when an open house is held for the property.

"It just makes good sense to allow the agent a situation where he or she can do the best possible," he said.

Other key tips that Stelman has for maximizing an investment when a home is about to go on the market:

— Check your paint situation (interior or exterior) and then touch up or repaint when necessary.

— Landscaping should be in beautiful condition both in front and in back.

— Check all the screens. Do they have holes? If they do, the screens should be replaced.

— Examine all the windows and see that they work properly.

— Steam clean or replace worn carpeting where needed.

— Keep all pets out of the way when buyers visit the property.

— Think about the buyer's first impression of the exterior of your home. Do what you can to improve the appeal.

— Remove articles of clothing from the closets to make them look roomier.

— Take items from kitchen cabinets to make them appear more spacious.

— Touch up or refinish cabinets wherever necessary.

— Give your sales agent a list of things your family likes about the house and the neighborhood in general.

— Replace any personalized doormats with new ones that are neutral.

— Remove any ornate items that a buyer may want as part of the house. For example, it could be a chandelier or a wall system.

— Clean the garage and storage areas thoroughly.

— All appliances should be spotlessly clean, especially the oven.

— Your house should be as impressive as a model home for a new housing development.

— Have all lights turned on when potential buyers look over the property and have the drapes open.

— It's important that your house smell attractively. Fresh baked goods such as bread and cookies will help.

— Placing liquid essence of cinnamon on light bulbs will cause a special odor when the lights are turned on.

— Keep the garage door closed. That makes the property look better. Buyer can inspect garage when that is desired.

— Keep your car or cars in the garage for a neater appearance.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

New combinations treat cancer more effectively and safely

Dear Dr. Solomon: A more serious than the very old and close friend of mine has been operated on for breast cancer, and they found that the cancer had spread to the areas under her arms. The doctor says the operation went well and my friends needn't be discouraged. She is getting anti-cancer drugs — chemotherapy — but she can't help wondering if that is really going to make any difference. She has heard so much, as of course we all have, about cancer being especially dangerous once it has started to spread. Could you give me some idea of just what the chances are?—Libby P.

Dear Libby: First of all, it is, of course, true that cancer which has radiation spread, or metastasized, is in your friend's case, is more serious than the kind which is still all in one spot. However, your friend should realize that great progress has been made in treating cancers like hers by several combined methods — surgery, drugs, and perhaps radiation. Often several different drugs are used in combinations worked out to be the most effective for the individual patient.

The use of multiple anti-cancer drugs as a backup have, about cancer being especially dangerous once it has started to spread. Could you give me some idea of just what the chances are?—Libby P.

Dear Frances: Sometimes there may be warning signs like hunger, excessive thirst, frequent urination, fatigue, recurrent skin problems and vaginal infections. But very often the kind of diabetes that comes in adulthood doesn't have any clear-cut symptoms. This is a very big problem. Estimates vary, but there may be as many as 10 million diabetics in the United States with perhaps only half of them diagnosed.

That is why regular checks are so important. The simplest is the urine test, but this is not as accurate as measuring the glucose level in the blood. If it is suspicious, the doctor will probably give the patient a glucose tolerance test — to find out the reactions to a big dose of sugar. You should be particularly watchful if your parents had diabetes or if you are overweight and over 40.

Water measure not necessary, Chamber says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — James Kachtick of the Houston Chamber of Commerce said Thursday the chamber does not believe groundwater monitoring should be required in the Houston Ship Channel area.

Kachtick addressed a requirement in the Texas' most recent proposed water quality program, which states:

"All solid waste disposal sites are required to monitor groundwater quality within the immediate area of the site."

This "blanket requirement . . . represents a departure from the original intent of the state . . .," Kachtick said.

He told hearing examiners of the Texas Department of Water Resources that the "aquifer used in the Houston Ship Channel area lies some 500-700 feet below the surface, well protected by clay shales and shales."

"The groundwaters near the surface are those contained in small sand pockets or lenses and have no practical use," he said. "They are not connected hydraulically to the useable aquifer."

The recharge zone for the useable aquifer, he said, lies in the southern part of Montgomery County. To prevent the contamination of aquifers, the state has recommended clay liners of from two to three feet for aquifers similar to those in the Houston area.

Kachtick said the subsidence faults in the Houston area are well documented, and there has been no indication that such faults extend into the aquifer. "If an engineer designs and builds the disposal site away from these faults," he said, "there is no other natural phenomenon, such as an earthquake, that might rupture or break the compacted clay barriers . . ."

Thirdly, Kachtick said, it would take so long for any seepage to reach the channel waters — "if indeed it ever did, it would be quite innocuous."

He said the chamber, with more than 6,000 member firms, wants the groundwater provision changed to consider possible extenuating circumstances in each area, with an engineer and the state analyzing the site.

The department said those interested in the proposed water quality plan would have 10 more days to file comments.

Dialing cooler up to 78 degrees cuts energy costs

Setting the air conditioner thermostat at 78 degrees or higher is one of the best ways to hold down electric bills, advises C.W. Barclay. "This summer's temperatures are a lot higher than normal," according to Barclay.

Texas Electric Service Co. manager, "and that means air conditioners are working harder and using more electricity than normal." Window air conditioners should be set with regard to thermometer readings in the room, instead of what "feels right," Barclay added. When a residence will be unoccupied all day, the air conditioning unit should either be shut off or raised five degrees. Sealing up air leaks with weatherstripping and caulking, particuly around doors and win- prising results, Barclay dows often brings sur- explained.

Families gather in Dome

HOUSTON (AP) — Thousands of families from 39 states and nine foreign countries have gathered in the Astrodome, in the words of one participant, "to learn more about the Bible and find a little peace."

The 55,733 Jehovah's Witnesses here for the five-day meeting that began Wednesday are not a typical Dome crowd. For one thing, they cleaned the place up even before things got underway. And they plan to leave it even cleaner when they depart Sunday.

Paul Stevens, a Houston member of the religious group, said, "It wouldn't be right for the Witnesses to come and leave a mess."

Much of the convention will be aimed at improving door-to-door techniques of encouraging people to read the Bible, the activity for which the staunchly independent group is best known.

There will be no debates on social issues of the day, according to John Charles Booth, a member of the group's world governing body in New York, because, he says, the Bible speaks clearly on things like homosexuality and abortion and says they are wrong.

Most of the participants sit quietly listening to discussions and lectures. Many take notes or make recordings of what is said.

A man walks through a corridor with a sign that reads "Quiet please."

Fourteen-year-old Judy LaShell, who drove in with her family from Orleans, Neb., said she liked "the spiritual food" available at the convention.

Bill Alley and his wife from Benton, Ark., said the gathering is a place "to get a lot of good information about the Bible."

Within the 41,600 Jehovah's Witness congregations around the world, there are no distinctions between clergy and laity. Congregations are coordinated by a group of male members called elders.

Although regarded as a conservative religious body in the United States, the Jehovah's Witnesses have been banned in Argentina where they were labeled "subversive" because their members refused to do compulsory military service or swear allegiance to the Argentine flag.

Soviet scientist inspires chorus call for (the) birds

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEWS ITEM: A Soviet scientist in the Ukraine says he has taught six canaries to sing in perfect harmony. His method involves auditioning hundreds of canaries.

SCENE: A rehearsal hall somewhere in the heart of downtown Kiev where Commissar Producer Big Bird and Commissar Director Dimitrievich Fussfeathers are auditioning canaries for the People's Barbershop sextet. Ivan Lightfinger is at the upright piano in the corner.

SOUND: Piano improvisations on "When the red, red robin, comes bob-bob-bobbing ..."

MARY CANARY: (cry of anguish) Oh, god (small "g" as becomes a cry of anguish in godless state) I gotta get this job. I gotta get this job.

FUSSFEATHERS: All Right, you on the right, let's hear it.

MYNAH BYRD: My name is Comrade Mynah Byrd. I was born in Minsk, raised in Pinsk, made my debut as a peace dove in a people's pageant in Omsk and will sing a little song I learned in Tomak: "Way down upon the Ob River, far, far away; that's where our quotas we deliver, that's the Sov-i-et way ..."

BIG BIRD: OK, dearie, just leave your address with the party cultural secretary. Next.

MYNAH BYRD: (underbreath) Cattle. They treat you like cattle at these auditions. Cattle from the communal farm.

MARY CANARY: (cry of anguish) Oh god (small "g") I gotta get this job.

BERTHA BIRDSONG: I'm Bertha Birdsong. My father was born in the Harz Mountains of the German Democratic Republic, famous for its fine singers. He made his debut singing "Happy birthday, Walter Ulbricht."

For this he was banished when Ulbricht was dismissed as first party secretary and now we live quietly in Odessa, where I'm clerk of the works at the people's tractor factory. I'd like to dedicate my song to Comrade Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev and the members of the Presidium: "Send in the Clowns."

(Shots ring out. Bertha Birdsong falls from her perch and is dragged from the stage.)

BIG BIRD: Decadent, Imperialist Western trash ... next please.

MARY CANARY: Oh god, I gotta get this job ... or it's back to the cage in the Kharkov Five and Ruble Store.

NIKOLAEVNA TWEETSKI: I'm little Nikolaevna Tweetski and I've been singing since I was 6, when I sang to the Secret Police about the radio my grandfather had in the barn. I also sang about the envelope with bird food my parents got from America and now I sing solo with the orphanage glee club. Nobody else will sing with me.

FUSSFEATHERS: Get on with it ... (aside) ... a real canary, this one. Compared with her, Joe Bananas is a deaf mute.

NIKOLAEVNA: (trills) "Let's all sing to K.G.B., tweet, tweet-tweet, tweet-tweet; off to Siberia with dis-sidents, keep your kultur neat neat..."

BIG BIRD: That's ideological harmony, the way I like it, kiddo, er, I mean, comrade. You'll do. Next please ...

OLGA FROM THE VOLGA: They call me Olga from the Volga, although I was actually born Dmitrievna Danalavokov at Dnepropetrovsky on the Dnepr River, but I knew because of power shortages I would never see that name in lights on the marquee of the Bolshoi. So as not to seem critical, I'd like to dedicate my song to the People's Electric Power Cooperative: "You Light Up My Life ..."

LIGHTFINGER: I don't know the tune.

ALL: What? You gotta be kidding. (Other exclamations and derisive howls).

(Shots ring out. Ivan falls from his stool).

FUSSFEATHERS: (Mopping brow tragically) I ask the culture committee for a piano player they send me a tank mechani....

BIG BIRD: Get on with it. What do you think we have here, a regular five year plan?

FUSSFEATHERS: Next please, and you'll have to chirp without a musical accompaniment.

MARY CANARY: That's me. Oh, god, I need this job. (nervously) Hello, out there ... I'm Mary Canary, the belle of Byelorussia. I sing a little. I dance a little. And I'd do anything, anything to get out of that cage in the pet section of the Five and Ruble. It's a regular Gulag, if you'll pardon the expression. I just want to try my wings and fly ...

BIG BIRD: Please, I haven't all week.

MARY CANARY: Here goes ... oh, god, I need this job ... "One singular sensation, every little chirp she makes ..."

FUSSFEATHERS: That's fine dearie, just leave your address (etc).

MARY CANARY: Cattle. That's what we are. Cattle. It's not an audition; it's a cattle call. (Curtain).

WIPP opponents not mincing words

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Opponents of a Department of Energy proposal to store nuclear wastes near Carlsbad, N.M., haven't minced words with DOE officials at public hearings in Texas this week.

"I hope you are thinking about alternatives, because the residents of El Paso do not want this, and we are not going to let you shove it down our throats," Mollie Smith of Las Cruces, N.M., said Thursday.

Some of the 100 citizens attending the hearing accused the department of using public relations tactics instead of scientific research in attempts to sell the idea of a nuclear waste dump in the area.

The proposed Waste Isolation Pilot Project would store nuclear wastes at a site about 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad between 2,000 and 2,600 feet underground in salt formations.

The five-man DOE team holding the hearing faced similar if less heated opposition at meetings earlier in the week in Midland and Amarillo.

Roger LeGassie of the DOE team said if the project is approved the cost — estimated at $350 million — would be passed on to the power companies.

"These costs will probably be internalized into electricity prices," he said. Nearly $30 million has already been spent on preliminary studies.

The DOE team said it wanted to explain some of the technology of the proposal "for the benefit of some of you housewives in the audience," but the comment prompted a sarcastic response from one New Mexico woman.

"I'm one of the housewives — so ignorant and naive that I should accept the implication that only clothing and tools will be stored, and therefore they're perfectly harmless," said Edith Kirby of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Peter Montague, director of the Center of Environmental Research and Development at the University of New Mexico said geological studies in the past have shown problems with salt dissolution at the proposed underground site, and he accused DOE of running "a well funded public relations campaign" to push the project through "without genuine scientific debate."

Many speakers who voiced their opposition to the proposal received standing ovations. Ruben Kretschmar, chief of the El Paso Environmental Health Services, won the most spirited applause when he said the government was more interested in solving the nuclear waste problem quickly than in finding a solution that is scientifically safe and valid.

"The federal officials predicted last fall that 23 of the country's 67 operating nuclear power plants may have to shut down by 1979 if a permanent solution to nuclear waste disposal is not found," he said.

Paul Garland of the Guadalupe Wilderness Committee said "when the people truly understand" that nuclear waste can "kill us, maim us, and alter our genetic structure, we will not allow the government to ram their plans down our throats."

British voting trends debated

LONDON (AP) — Britain's minority Labor government weathered two special election challenges today, but the Conservatives said if the voting trend were repeated in a nationwide election it would bring them to power.

Laborites retained parliamentary seats at Moss Side in Manchester and at Penistone in Yorkshire, but slimmer winning margins than usual gave Prime Minister James Callaghan little more than immediate relief.

Tom Murphy, the Conservative candidate at Moss Side who lost to Laborite George Morton 12,556 to 10,998 said: "The vote means we shall have a Conservative government at the next general election."

Declarer took the king of diamonds and led trumps until West took the ace. West waited for the third round of trumps and then returned a spade to dummy's king. Now South had to get to his hand to draw West's last trump.

South could try to get his hand with the ace of diamonds or could cash two high clubs and ruff the third club.

When declarer tried two high clubs West dropped the eight of clubs first and the four of clubs next. Since this indicated a doubleton, South trustfully led a diamond from dummy.

West ruffed the ace of diamonds, defeating the contract. Nobody snickered, but the silence was oppressive.

NO GUESS

"I guessed wrong," South apologized, but his excuse was lame. There was no need to guess.

After two rounds of trumps South should cash dummy's top spades and two top clubs. Then he can lead the third trump to West's ace.

No return by West can lock declarer in the dummy. If West can lead a diamond, South wins with the ace. If West leads a club or a spade South ruffs.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two diamonds (forcing to game), and the next player passes. You hold: S 10 9 5 2 H 7 D 10 7 4 C 9 7 5 3 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two notrump, denying strength. Don't dream of passing. Your partner is relying on you to keep him afloat and you will have an irritated partner if you let him down.

Energy plan hits stretch

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is ready to send the first part of President Carter's 15-month-old energy plan down the congressional home stretch.

Leaders predicted easy Senate passage today of legislation designed to force many power plants and factories to switch from oil and natural gas to coal.

The compromise bill, which would also ban outdoor gas lamps by 1982, is the first section of the president's five-part energy plan to reach the floor of either house for a final vote.

It was sent there by a House-Senate conference committee that has been working since last October to reconcile the broad differences between versions of the Carter energy plan passed by each chamber.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the Senate Energy Committee chairman, predicted before the vote that the compromise — a relatively minor part of the energy package — would pass by a wide margin.

Senate approval would send the measure to the House, where an affirmative vote would put it on Carter's desk. However, House leaders plan to await arrival of several other parts of the energy plan before taking final action.

Jackson and other Democratic leaders say they hope the expected Senate approval — although not a major victory for the administration — would give the president something to point to as he discusses U.S. energy strategy with world leaders in Bonn, West Germany.

Compromises on three other parts of the energy plan — dealing with natural gas pricing, energy conservation and electric rates — are awaiting congressional action later this summer.

The fifth part of the program — energy taxes — remains to be resolved by a separate set of conferees, who met briefly on Thursday but took no action.

Coal yield predicted

ROCKDALE, Texas (AP) — An estimated one million tons of lignite would be mined the first year of operations at a proposed Milam County lignite surface mine, a Shell Oil Co. official said Thursday.

Neil J. Ito, Shell mining manager, made the forecast at a Texas Railroad Commission hearing on the company's request to mine lignite on a 7,708-acre tract near here.

No outright opposition was voiced, but a landowner in the area questioned whether Shell's control of surface rights would endanger future oil and gas exploration.

Nicolai Von Kreissler of Mustang Exploration Co. said his company owns 400 acres in the proposed mine area and has filed applications to drill on the tract.

Shell officials said a "reasonable accommodation" could be reached. The company said it expects to employ 385 people with an annual payroll of $5.2 million.

The lignite to be produced is a "low-grade coal which will most likely be used for production of steam for power heat for industrial users," Ito said.

Phoenix well finals

Phoenix Resources Co. of Denver, Colo., has completed the second well in the recently opened Gardner Draw (Morrow gas) field in West Eddy County, N. M.

The confirmer, Phoenix No. 2 Gardner Draw Unit 7/8 mile west of the field opener, was completed for a daily flow of 3,040,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 6,945 to 7,024 feet. Flowing surface pressure was 400 pounds.

The well is 800 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 19-19S-21E and 26 miles west of Lakewood.

Phoenix opened the field with its No. 1 Gardner Draw Unit with a calculated absolute open flow potential of 13,080,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Total depth is 11,386 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set at 11,380 feet. It is plugged back to 10,980 feet.

Tests through Morrow perforations at 11,008 to 11,196 feet developed gas at the rate of 140,000 cubic feet per day.

The wellsite is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 9-20S-28E and 11 miles north of Carlsbad.

By RICHARD L. LYONS

WASHINGTON — House-Senate energy tax conferees met for the first time in seven months Thursday and said it was time to resume their search for agreement on an energy tax bill.

If, as it appeared, the meeting was staged chiefly as a pep rally to send President Carter off to the economic summit meeting at Bonn, West Germany, with an indication that his long-stalled energy bill is close to passage, it was pretty weak stuff. No one suggested that the proposed tax on domestic crude oil, which is the centerpiece of his energy package, can be enacted.

But Senate Finance Committee

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., who had insisted last year that the tax conference wait for agreement by other conferees on natural gas pricing, said now that the gas conferees have reached agreement he is ready to sit down and seek a tax compromise. However, no final decision on taxes is expected until Congress votes on the gas compromise to lift federal price controls from newly discovered natural gas by 1985, and that may not come until the end of summer.

After a series of brief remarks by leading conferees, Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., adjourned the conference, saying he would reconvene it in the near future to start making some decisions on taxes.

Ullman opened the meeting with a reminder that the President had just departed for Bonn for a meeting with trading partners who are concerned whether the United States can develop a national energy policy. Less imported oil means a stronger dollar abroad and a better market for foreign products in this country.

Ullman, who strongly favors Carter's proposed domestic crude oil tax to cut consumption by raising prices, said that if the tax is not enacted Carter would have no choice but to take administrative action — import fees or quotas. These alternatives are "very forbidding," he said. The Senate rejected the crude oil tax last year, though Long personally supported it provided at least part of the revenue was used to encourage more production. Carter wanted to rebate all the revenue to the public.

Thursday, Long said that since the natural gas conferees have now reached agreement, "the time has come when we should start to make progress." The nation needs a "constructive, imaginative compromise" on energy taxes, he said.

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, chief House coordinator of the complex energy package, noted that while non-tax conferees have agreed on four other parts of the package, the tax part is more important than all the rest put together so far as oil savings is concerned.

The crude oil tax would push the price of domestic oil up to the world price in three annual steps. The other tax proposed by Carter would be imposed on industrial users of oil and natural gas to encourage use of coal. The House and Senate passed different versions of this tax. The tax conferees have not voted on either tax.

Solar to get emphasis

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Thursday the administration plans major new efforts to promote solar energy in its budget for fiscal 1980, now in preparation.

Schlesinger said the successful adoption of solar energy on a large scale will require strong government encouragement but that this promising new energy source will have to be "cost-effective" to gain acceptance.

Schlesinger voiced his support in remarks opening the last of a series of public meetings held by the Energy Department throughout the nation.

The meetings are being held to gather suggestions and comments in the preparation of the next round of administration energy policies.

President Carter's energy plan, still being debated in Congress, focused mainly on energy conservation and pricing measures.

A further set of proposals is due early next year, and the administration plans to aim them more specifically at future energy production, including the development of solar and other "renewable" energy sources.

Schlesinger said preliminary findings are due in August and a final report to the president is scheduled for September.

Denis Hayes, a leading proponent of solar energy, said he hopes Schlesinger will be able to deliver on the commitment to a major solar initiative in the budget "because there is a broad-based constituency for solar energy."

Hayes, who organized the environmental movement's Earth Day demonstration in 1970 and the nationwide "Sun Day" celebration of solar energy on May 3, is a researcher with the Worldwatch Institute, a private, nonprofit study organization based here.

Hayes told Energy Department officials who remained in the meeting after Schlesinger left that the solar energy "constituency" is getting tired of waiting for strong government leadership.

"If the program is a grave disappointment," Hayes said, "we will go right around you and work with Congress" to adopt solar programs.

The Energy Department says more than 3,000 persons have offered their suggestions, knowledge and opinions on solar energy policy in the previous public meetings, held during the past month in Seattle, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Atlanta, New York, Chicago, Boston, Denver, Kansas City—and Dallas.

Three share lead in British Open golf

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Despite a catastrophe at the hole he hates most in the whole world, Arnold Palmer still has a chance to become the oldest golfer ever to win the British Open.

Saturday, when the tournament ends, Palmer will be 48 years, 10 months old. Tom Morris, with his Victorian whiskers and hickory spoons and niblicks, was 46 years and a bit when he won the Open in 1867.

Morris is a hallowed local legend, born and bred in this pretty old university town beside the sea. He is still the oldest man to carry off the coveted title. His golf shop has been standing beside the 18th green of the old course for 132 years.

PALMER FINISHED the second round Thursday at 2-under-par 142 and only three shots behind the leaders: Sevy Ballesteros of Spain, Isao Aoki of Japan and Ben Crenshaw. But he would have been even with them if he had not gone astray at his old enemy, the 17th hole, called the "Road Hole."

He drove out of bounds. He put his next shot into deep rough. Then he hacked out into a bunker.

"I finished with a good putt and a magnificent 7," Palmer said. Par for the hole is 4.

It was not the first time Palmer had made a mess of that hole when he needed most to conquer it. In 1960, he dropped a stroke there by rolling his ball through the green and into the road, and Ken Nagle of Australia finished one stroke ahead of him and won the title.

"They say it's a famous hole," Palmer said wryly. "All I can say is, I don't like it. I've been playing it for nearly 20 years now. I try to do something different every time I come to it, and it doesn't do me any good.

"It cost me the title in 1960, and it did me a lot of harm this time. But I'm still in there. Physically I'm in great shape, and if my golf remains as good in the next two days I shall be happy."

THE BRITISH OPEN, held usually on a tricky natural golf course of Scotland, is an endurance test as much as anything else. Since it was first played in 1860, only five men over 40 have won it — and four of those had won it previously.

Old Morris took the title for the fourth time in 1867. James Braid, another legendary Scot, was just 40 when he won it for the fifth time in 1910.

Harry Vardon, who was British Open champion six times, an all-time record, captured his last title at age 44 in 1914. Henry Cotton won it for the third and last time in 1948, at age 41.

Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina made history in 1967 by winning it for the first time at age 44. Peter Thompson of Australia, a five-time Open winner, is 48 and also is 2 under par after two rounds.

Arnie's Army was reborn Thursday. Hundreds of excited young Scots, who knew him only as a name, followed Palmer along the bumpy fairways — just as another generation of fans did when he won the British Open at Birkdale in 1961 and Troon in 1962.

"Palmer was going great out there," said Tom Watson, the defending champion. "You could tell by the way he walked. I could almost see the steam coming out of his ears."

Newsmen covering this most ancient of golf classics have a new problem. They need interpreters. Two of the three joint leaders were Aoki, who speaks no English at all, and Ballesteros, who speaks a little.

Together they formed a powerful threat to the long domination of the title by golfers from the English speaking world. De Vicenzo was the only exception, and Americans have won it seven times in the past eight years.

Like Palmer, Ballesteros drove out of bounds at the 17th, lost a stroke and had to take his tee shot again.

"THE SECOND TIME I say 'Go straight,' and he goes straight," said the Spaniard. "I make a good drive. I feel I make a 4, but I make a 6."

"That hole is more difficult because they put the pin so close to the edge.

JACK CLARK (22) of the San Francisco Giants, it tagged out at second in fifth inning of National League game with the Pittsburgh Pirates in Pittsburgh Thursday. Rennie Stennet (6), waits with the ball while shortstop Frank Taveras looks on during action. The Giants won to open up a bigger lead on the Dodgers and Reds in the sizzling Western Division. (AP Laserphoto)

UIL places Hutto on probation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In the small town of Hutto — where there should be few secrets — a talkative janitor tipped superintendent Ike Coward that overaged boys were playing high school sports.

Thursday, the University Interscholastic League put the Class B school on two-year probation in football, basketball and track because three-sport athlete Odell Kerley was 19 and 20 his final two years of competition.

UIL director Bailey Marshall said Kerley's school record had been altered to make it appear that his birthdate was Oct. 16, 1958. His birth certificate shows his birthdate as June 16, 1957.

Marshall told the UIL state executive committee there were indications the ages of others had been changed in school records to give them more eligibility.

The committee voted 5-0 to penalize Hutto, which is north-east of here.

It said the Hippos already have forfeited the games and track victories in which Kerley took part as a junior and senior. The forfeits cost Hutto two district basketball titles, a 1977 zone title in football and district and regional victories in the 400-meter relay this year.

Coaches said Kerley was a sub halfback; junior sub and senior parttime starter in basketball and a member of the sprint relay team.

A motion was made for one-year probation, but it was changed to two years at Marshall's suggestion.

The committee apparently decided not to disqualify Hutto from future championship honors because it was unable to determine who had changed the records. Marshall said, however, there "were indications that students had handled the records."

Committee member Jesse Villarreal said probation means "everybody had better watch it."

"If we could find the guilty party, hanging him up by his toes — as far as I'm concerned — would be legitimate," said Marshall.

"I know that in Hutto, Texas, some people knew this youngster was too old," said Marshall. "This worries me... there had to be adults knowing."

Hutto had a population of only 697 in the 1970 census.

Schramm seeing better rookie talent in NFL

By BOB OATES
The Los Angeles Times

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — A year ago, when the overseers of the National Football League changed the dates of their annual draft from February to May, they probably changed the course of the game in ways they didn't foresee.

This is the conclusion of Tex Schramm, president of the world-champion Dallas Cowboys, who thinks it will be "very difficult if not impossible" now for any club to rise from the bottom to the top with a few good drafts.

"At the least it will be harder to do after this and it will take longer," says Schramm, who is here for another summer of work with the team that beat Denver for the Super Bowl championship last January. "The rookie talent is more evenly distributed now because coaches and scouts have three extra months to check out college players before the May 1 draft. Some clubs with small (scouting) staffs used to make a few mistakes when they had to make their choices by early February. No more."

THESE ARE Schramm's two points:

—The day is over when a smart NFL organization can improve spectacularly by acquiring, say, six starting players in one draft (as the Cowboys did in 1975) and thus advance into two Super Bowls in three years (with a team that couldn't even make the playoffs in 1974).

—More than ever it is imperative for an NFL club to be "organizationally strong" to compete. In the struggle for rookie personnel, those with the strongest front offices "will eventually find a way to do what has to be done — somehow."

THE RECORD shows that during the years when the NFL draft was timed for late January or February, teams like the Rams, Dallas, Miami and Pittsburgh — those with the most efficient scouting programs — used to pick up gifted first-stringers in the third, fourth or fifth rounds or even lower.

In the early 1970s, for example, a bad Pittsburgh team built the nucleus of two Super Bowl champions by recruiting seven starters in one draft. The Steelers that winter were, in effect, drafting other people's mistakes — the players who should have gone to other teams on higher rounds.

"You can't do that today," says Schramm. "The clubs were all pretty well prepared for the draft this spring."

SAYS DALLAS vice president Gil Brandt: "I remember one day in April when there were five NFL scouts at Concordia College checking out one player at one time. When the draft was in February, most of them never got to places like Concordia."

Schramm: "You won't see so many good free agents any more either. With stepped-up scouting in February, March and April, players like Cliff Harris and Drew Pearson, who came to us as free agents, will be discovered by somebody else, too."

Brandt: "The later draft also benefits teams with new head coaches (including 10 teams this year). In the old days a new coach couldn't do much before a draft in February. Now there's time to hire a staff of assistants and send them out for two or three months of scouting."

Schramm: "I remember a year when eight of our 12 top-graded players were still on the board when it was our turn to draft and we were able to get all eight. We've often got three of our top 14 or 15. The difference this year was that our top 20 all went on the first round."

As a consequence, in the judgment of Dallas scouts, no more than four or five rookies will make their roster this

Tulsa Drillers down Midland Cubs by 5-3

TULSA—The Tulsa Drillers jumped on Midland starter Jeff Albert for five runs in the second inning to overcome a 2-0 Cubs lead and coasted to a 5-3 win in Texas League action at Driller Park last night.

Tulsa loaded the bases to open the second inning on consecutive singles by shortstop Odie Davis, catcher Rick Lisi and leftfielder Don Stewart. Davis then came home on Albert's wild pitch and an error by Cubs second baseman Steve Macko allowed Lisi to score.

Albert, who now stands 4-7 on the year, then walked a pair of Tulsa batters to load the bases again. Tulsa leftfielder Steve Rivera then stepped to the plate and rapped a three-run double and that was all for Albert.

The Cubs had taken a 2-0 lead in the first when Macko blasted a double to scoreleadoff man Kurt Siebert and then came home on designated hitter Kevin Drury's single to left.

After Tulsa's five run uprising, the Cubs were unable to get the timely hits to overcome that three run deficit, although they did manage to plate another run in the seventh. During the course of the evening Midland stranded seven baserunners.

Allen came on to relieve Albert after that disastrous second inning and silenced the Tulsa bats the rest of the way. He pitched five innings of no-hit ball.

Griffin picked up the win for Tulsa with some late inning relief help from Jakubowski. Griffin, who is 4-11 and 2-1 in the second half of the season, won the game in spite of himself. The Tulsa hurler had a pair of balks.

Midland's all-star second baseman Macko had a rough night with the glove as he was charged with a pair of fielding errors.

Brian Allard, 4-4, is scheduled to start tonight's game for Tulsa while either Darrell Turner (0-0) or Tom Butler (2-7) will take the mound for the Cubs.

Norton Twin 200 next race for Hall

BROOKLYN, Mich. — Midland's Jim Hall will have his highly respected Chapparral-Cosworth racing show here this weekend for the Norton Twin 200, which is set for the two-mile oval of the steeply-banked Michigan International Speedway.

Driver Al Unser will again be behind the wheel of Hall's car, which is sponsored by First National City Travelers Checks—the group that presents USAC's championship racing series.

HALL'S TEAM WILL be looking for their third major win of the year in the USAC National Championship Series for the Citicorp Cup. Unser rode to victory in the Indianapolis 500 and the Pocono 500 this year aboard Hall's Cosworth powered machine.

The Norton Twin 200 marks the halfway point of the 1978 title chase. It is the ninth round of the 18 series. Unser, whose only previous USAC championship came in 1970, is now moving in on defending Citicorp Cup winner Tom Sneva.

Point leader Sneva has gone winless so far this year with three second place finishes and a couple of thirds to his credit while Unser recovered from a disappointing start with Hall to win both 500-mile races at Indianapolis and Pocono.

A $400,000 resurfacing job of the two-mile track may permit a new course record during qualifying. Gordon Johncock's 204.545 miles per hour record mark was posted in 1973, before the turbocharger boost restrictions were enforced. But several of the 1973 records have either been surpassed or flirited with this year.

TWO DRIVERS HAVE been completely dominating recent qualifying runs in the Citicorp Cup series. Danny Ongais has been the fastest qualifier on five occasions with Sneva grabbing the pole for the other three events. Unser has never started on the pole slot.

In addition to the Norton Twin 200, the Michigan International Speedway will be the site for determining the machines which will be eligible for the trip to England in late September and early October as USAC's Championship Series competes there for the first time.

Qualifying sessions for the England entrants will be at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. EDT today at the Michigan International Speedway. Qualifications for the Norton Twin 200 race will begin at 10 a.m. EDT Saturday. Sunday's championship race will begin at 1 p.m. EDT.

Shackleford nabs lead

DALLAS (AP) — John Shackleford, a 38-year-old IBM executive from Austin, Texas, looked out of place this week at Brook Hollow Golf Course, where he was trying to qualify for the Trans-Miss amateur championship.

The three college players in his foursome were having contortions, calling their balls names or throwing clubs when misfortune occurred. One player threw his putter 125 feet on one green and broke his 6-iron against a tree two holes later.

"I used to do stuff like that 20 years ago," said Shackleford, the only one of the four who made it to today's third round.

He had his hands full Thursday with Oklahoma State's Jim Woodward who birdied the first two holes. Shackleford finally got even at No. 12, went ahead at No. 15 and won 1-up as both shot about even par.

"I just did the best I could, a stroke at a time, and hoped experience would overcome youth," said Shackleford, a former Texas Tech golfer who turned pro and toured the pro circuit for two years.

He qualified for the tour in 1968 with Hale Irwin and Larry Hinson, then applied for reinstatement as an amateur in 1970 to spend more time with his family. He gave up golf for six years.

Shackleford was paired in today's third round with 22-year-old Dale Blackburn, a University of Texas golfer.

Oklahoma State's Bob Tway and Lindy Miller won easily Thursday and marched toward a possible meeting in Saturday's semifinals.

Tway, the medalist in qualifying rounds, ousted Scott Fitzgerald of San Antonio, Texas, 7 and 6, and Miller, the pretournament favorite, defeated Mike Hughtel of Oral Roberts University 5 and 4.

Doug Clarke of Stanford, the 1976 Trans-Miss champion, beat Mark O'Meara of Long Beach State 3 and 2 despite not having his putter the first six holes. He holed a 30-foot birdie with his 2-iron on No. 3 and had a two-hole lead by the time he retrieved his putter after the sixth hole.

Battling Clarke today in a feature match was Wake Forest's Gary Pinns, who was down three holes with four to play but rallied to beat USC's Joe Flood 1-up in 19 holes.

Pinns, who won the Illinois state amateur match play tournament last Friday, parred the last four holes of regulation while Flood went bogey, double bogey, bogey, par. Flood bogeyed No. 19 and Pinns didn't even have to attempt his four-foot putt for an eagle.

Tway was paired in the first of today's double rounds with Wilson Schoellkopf, a member of Brook Hollow who won 6 and 5 Wednesday and 4 and 3 Thursday. Miller went against John Chaffee, a University of Texas player.

Besides Woodward, two other members of the NCAA champion Oklahoma State team were eliminated Thursday. YBritt Harrison lost 1-up to North Texas State's Jimmy Johnson and Jeff Walser lost 2 and 1 to Chris Gutilla of Fresno, Calif.

Former Card dies

GRUNDY CENTER, Iowa (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled here Saturday for Delmar "Del" Williams, 56, a former St. Louis Cardinals baseball player.

Williams died Wednesday in a Waterloo hospital of complications following a stroke. He will be buried Saturday at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

San Francisco Giants top Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-0

By The Associated Press
The San Francisco Giants' record is "top of the charts" in the National League.

A five-hitter by Bob Knepper helped San Francisco to its fifth victory in seven games, a 4-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night. Now the first-place Giants, who have finished no higher than third the last six seasons, have the best record in the NL — and a widening lead over Los Angeles and Cincinnati.

"We're making it happen," said catcher Marc Hill. "It's been a very fun year."
It started in February, when San Francisco committed itself to ending the string of disappointments.

"In spring training you could tell," said Hill, who had a pair of RBI singles against the Pirates. "Everybody wanted to play. We wanted to get a lead and quit hearing this fourth-and-fifth-place stuff."

Meanwhile, Los Angeles and Cincinnati went with their pitching aces ... and lost. The Cardinals' John Denny outpitched the Dodgers' Tommy John as St. Louis cruised to a 6-1 triumph and New York hurler Jerry Koosman bested his long-time friend, Tom Seaver, as the Mets trimmed the Cincinnati Reds 4-2.

In the other NL games, the Montreal Expos bested the Houston Astros 6-0 and the San Diego Padres beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2.

Knepper fanned eight, walked three and contributed an RBI single of his own in beating Candelaria, 8-9.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 1
Ken Reitz and Mike Tyson smacked run-scoring singles and Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer to back Denny's five-hitter and carry St. Louis past Los Angeles. Denny, who pitched his 10th complete game of the campaign, lost his shutout in the ninth when singles by Bill Russell, Reggie Smith and Ron Cey pushed the Dodgers' run across.

Mets 4, Reds 2
Doug Flynn, who came to New York in the deal that sent the star right-hander to Cincinnati, drove in one run and scored another as the Mets handed Seaver his third consecutive loss and helped Koosman, 3-9, snap a six-game losing streak.

"The biggest thing is getting in the groove," said Koosman, who hadn't won since May 4. "Beating Tom Seaver and the Reds just tops that off."

Pete Rose extended his career-longest hitting streak to 26 games — tops in the majors this season and one short of the team record — with a single and double.

Expos 6, Astros 0
Gary Carter's two-run double capped a four-run Montreal sixth inning and backed a five-hitter by Ross Grimsley, 12-6, in carrying the Expos past the Astros.

Montreal added two runs in the eighth, with Grimsley's single delivering one of them.

Padres 5, Cubs 2
Rookie first baseman Broderick Perkins drove in two runs with a single and his first major league home run to power the Padres and Gaylord Perry, 10-4, past the Cubs.

Perkins connected in the fourth off Rick Reuschel, 8-6, and sparked a four-run sixth with his single. Perry retired the first 16 batters he faced.

LPGA may increase number of tourneys

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — The doubling of major women's professional golf tournaments to four is a distinct possibility for 1979.

The game's leadership, Commissioner Ray Volpe and Ladies Professional Golf Association President Beth Stone, confirmed a move in that direction after an LPGA meeting Thursday night.

"It would be good for the game, but only if we have sponsors with long-term commitments and substantial purses," said Volpe.

Stone expects the 157 regulars on the LPGA tour to approve in a membership vote by Oct. 1, adding, "Our membership has expressed itself if the majors are done right."

Almost 100 of the LPGA members met with Volpe on the eve of a tour stop at Riviera Country Club.

Volpe and Stone emphasized the new format is only in the talking stage, but it would:

—Add the Dinah Shore Winners Circle in Palm Springs, Calif., the Women's International at Hilton Head, S.C., or the Peter Jackson Classic at Toronto.

Franz graduated this spring from Robert E. Lee High School where he was coached by David Whitlaw. A sprint free-styler and breaststroke specialist, he was state champion in the 50 freestyle and earned all-district, all-regional and all-state honors.

Dan Ongais to complete only half

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — It should come as good news to some of the participants in Sunday's twin 200-mile U.S. Auto Club races here that Danny Ongais is only competing in half the program.

Ongais, a three-time winner in eight races this season on the USAC Indianapolis car circuit, is the defending champion and a solid bet to repeat in Sunday's Indy car 200-miler. But the 36-year-old Californian will leave the 100-lap stock car race up for grabs.

Ongais has really shaken up the championship division in 1978, winning the pole position five times, leading every race and winning three.

At the distance of 200 miles, Ongais is almost unbeatable. In the longer races, reliability has been a problem — Ongais has the ability to drive his car faster, longer than the car has the ability to go.

"You know Ongais is either going to win or go out leading the race," said one admiring car owner.

Ongais, the Rookie of the Year last year after leading six of 13 races he entered as well as winning one race — this race, in fact — started off the season by winning a 200-miler at Ontario, Calif.

In the next race at Phoenix, Ongais battled with eventual winner Gordon Johncock until his clutch failed 23 miles from the finish. At Trenton, N.J., Ongais probably would have beaten winner Johncock except for an admitted official scoring error.

Ongais led the Indianapolis 500 and Schaefer 500 each until about the 300-mile mark when his car broke down. He led the first 61 laps at Milwaukee until another breakdown.

He ran away with a 200-miler at College Station, Texas and a 300-kilometer event at Mosport, Ont.

"With better reliability, he could be eight-for-eight. It's been years since anyone has dominated like that. And he just came on the scene last year," marveled a USAC official.

Ongais' busy schedule also includes various sports car races and an occasional Formula 1 ride.

Practice got underway today for the Indy car and stock car races. A.J. Foyt is one of the few drivers who has entered both events at this time, although it's expected several drivers will double up.

Marti shares lead in Quad-Cities golf

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Fred Marti, who has labored 14 years on the PGA tour without a victory, was a co-leader with defending champion Mike Morley going into the second round today of the $150,000 Ed McMahon-Quad Cities Open.

"I missed three greens, but I got the ball up and down with nice puts and when you do that, it helps your confidence," said Marti, who had five birdies and no bogeys for a 66.

Morley, who has not played well since early this year, had a round similar to Marti's with five birdies, despite driving with a spare club he had previously used only on the practice tee.

"I'd used that old driver for five years. That driver and I were pretty close," said Morley.

"But maybe I should have broken it years ago," he joked. "This one is about six ounces heavier and I think I hit the ball a little farther with it."

Morley, who had sent to Phoenix for a backup driver similar to the one he broke, said he'd stick with the heavier spare that helped him Thursday.

"I nearly lost all my clubs after the U.S. Open," he said. "I got on a plane to go fishing in Alaska and my clubs got on a plane for the Amana

Thomas to play out his option

WASHINGTON (AP) — Running back Mike Thomas, who gained 806 yards last season despite a pulled muscle that plagued him all season, has decided to play out his option with the Washington Redskins.

This means Thomas, the team's leading ground-gainer over the last three seasons, will become a free agent after the 1978 National Football League season.

"Mike and his agent feel it would be best for him to play out his option," said Redskins General Manager Bobby Beathard. "It's their decision. We couldn't agree about anything."

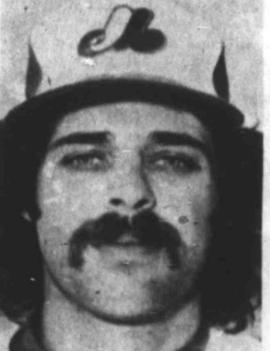

"The offer they (the Redskins) made us was one that we just could not accept," said Thomas' attorney, John Dickens of Dallas. "There was a hang-up on the money and the guarantee. No future negotiations are planned."

Dickens said he feels "very strongly about having some injury protection" for Thomas. "Running backs can get hurt, and we wanted Mike protected."

Dickens said Thomas will report to the Redskins' training camp Sunday in Carlisle, Pa.

"We don't believe in holding people out of camp," the attorney said. "He's in a good frame of mind and he wants to have a great year because it will help his bargaining position."

The Redskins could keep Thomas after this season by giving him a qualifying offer, then matching any offer he receives from another NFL team.

Carner feels top golfers in off year

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — JoAnne Carner takes nothing away from Nancy Lopez' great year, but she offers an explanation for part of the rookie sensation's success.

The established stars of the Ladies Professional Golf Association have been mired in off-years at the same time.

Kathy Whitworth, Judy Rankin, Sandra Palmer, Sandra Haynie and Carol Mann, the game's top five all-time money winners before 1978, had collected a combined $3 million and 189 victories.

All are active in 1978 save Haynie with these results: No victories and earnings of $70,000, little more than half of Lopez' money leading total.

Tex Schramm eyes rookies

year — by comparison with 10 last year, 11 in 1976 and 12 in 1975.

Competitively, nonetheless, Dallas should retain its lead over most in the NFL. If the rookies are more evenly divided these days, no one competitor of Dallas can get a quantum jump ahead in talent.

THE EXCEPTIONS, says Schramm, will be the weak teams with efficient organizations, if any. "It takes three things to win consistently," he says, "players, coaching and organization. If you only have two of the three you're in trouble. If you have one of the three you're in real trouble."

Schramm speaks as the chief executive officer of a club that has been in 11 of the last 12 playoffs and four of the last eight Super Bowls, winning two of the four.

"Consistency is the most important thing in sports," he says. "I mean being consistently strong. That's why we think the Cowboys' greatest accomplishment was winning (the Super Bowl) with our 1977 team after rebuilding the 1972 Dallas team that won our first Super Bowl. (Quarterback) Roger Staubach is the only Dallas offensive player who started both of those games."

SCRAMM'S PHILOSOPHY and leadership are key reasons for the Cowboys' success. These are the four main tenets in his program:

1 — "The test of a good football team isn't whether it rises to win one Super Bowl but whether it can remain in championship contention continuously during many years of rebuilding."

Thus in a typical year the Cowboys might miss the Super Bowl for lack of a linebacker, for instance, but their tendency is to make do without one — instead of trading the franchise for Dick Butkus or Bob Bergey — and wait till they can draft one.

2 — "The object is to develop a team that is always traveling around up near the top. Then if a little something extra goes your way (translation: if you get lucky) you win the title."

Last year the Cowboys were assisted by no fewer than five extras. First, St. Louis collapsed. Then injuries killed Washington. Next the Cowboys had to beat only an ordinary Chicago team in the tournament's first round. Fourth, after the Rams lost to the Vikings in a surprise rainfall in Los Angeles, Dallas met a Minnesota team in the semifinals that had been rendered ordinary by the loss of its quarterback, Frank Tarkenton. And, fifth, the strongest AFC opponent (Oakland) lost in the semifinals at Denver, which panicked two weeks later in the championship game.

Schramm's point is that the Cowboys were, as usual, "traveling around" up there where they could capitalize on the breaks when they came.

3 — "YOUR EMPLOYEES must have confidence in your philosophy despite any setbacks and they must feel secure enough personally to make bold decisions when necessary to implement the philosophy."

4 — "To keep the kind of people it takes to win in this league you've got to see that they get the credit. When you lose everybody loses and when you win there's credit enough for all."

Thus the honors no less than the responsibilities are divided in Dallas among coach Tom Landry, owner Clint Murchison, senior scout Red Hickey, Schramm, Brandt and others.

Yankee boss calls shots over Martin

NEW YORK (AP) — If there was ever any doubt about who calls the shots for the New York Yankees — and there really wasn't — it is all out in the open now.

The name (no surprise) is owner George M. Steinbrenner.

"He owns the team," slugger Reggie Jackson said Thursday following the Yankees' latest brouhaha — as well as the latest defeat, a 6-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox. "When George comes down and says what he's gonna do — if he tells me to go home, I go home. In my home I'm the boss, and if you don't like it — quit."

That essentially was what Steinbrenner told his stumbling, injury-riddled troops in a pre-game clubhouse meeting in which he lashed out at what he called a lack of discipline and too much griping. He said from now on club rules would be enforced "with no exceptions."

Earlier, Steinbrenner met with Manager Billy Martin, club President Al Rosen and General Manager Cedric Tallis and announced a series of lineup changes with Jackson becoming a part-time designated hitter — at least temporarily — sore-legged catcher Thurman Munson moving to the outfield and outfielder Gary Thonson getting a shot as an everyday player. Rookie Mike Heath will be the No. 1 catcher.

There also was a report that Steinbrenner offered to allow Martin to resign — staying with the club on a long-term, consulting basis — if his health had become too much of a problem. Martin, who has suffered from a lingering virus infection and almost fainted before a game in Minnesota, declined, and that was that, the New York Daily News said.

"I'm not a quitter," Martin told the News. "I want to try to win this thing. I owe it to Yankee fans all over the country to stay and see if I can turn things around."

The upshot of the changes is that Lou Piniella, the team's leading hitter, and Roy White will ride the bench for a spell while Jackson DH's against right-handers and selected lefties. Those involved followed Steinbrenner's orders without griping, but that didn't mean they were happy.

"I've been doing what I've been doing for 11 years — hitting .270, hitting some home runs and driving in some runs," Jackson said. "If that's not good enough, then they've got the wrong guy here."

"I'm gonna do all I can, the best I can. I've got no demands ... no gripes. If I've got a complaint, I'll talk to George like he said. He's paying me a lot of money, so he can tell me what to do whether I agree with it or not."

"My opinion doesn't mean much. I don't care to confer on Reggie Jackson, except to say that I'll hit somewhere around .270, somewhere around 30 home runs, somewhere around 100 RBIs, somewhere around 120 strikeouts. But the less I play against left-handers, the worse I'll do. They made the investment in me and I'm making no demands, no threats."

"When you're me, nothing really surprises you. I went to a movie last night and got sued," said Jackson, who was involved in a scuffle with a woman at a movie theater Wednesday night. "All I know is that everybody who's come here has played right field, except me. Maybe I'll just moonlight and sell candy."

Jackson drove in the only run in the loss with a ninth-inning homer.

"Just a meaningless, nothing home run," said last year's World Series hero, "the kind I've been hitting for 11 years."

Piniella and White were philosophical.

"It's his ballclub; he's paying the salaries," said Piniella. "What choice have I got? Naturally I'd like to play, but they want to see what certain people can do. But I don't think I was playing that badly. I don't think I was disgracing myself hitting .300 all year."

Ironically, Steinbrenner criticized Martin for not using Piniella more often in a recent series in Boston.

White went up to Steinbrenner's office after the clubhouse meeting.

"There's a lot I can say, but there's no sense in going through all that," said White, who made a fuss about lack of playing time earlier in the season and then hit well when he was given a shot. "When I played regularly, I did what I was supposed to do. It's not going to help to go around hollering and screaming about not playing. I did that earlier and I proved what I could do. I saw George just to re-evaluate my status and he assured me that nothing is permanent."

What really irks Steinbrenner is the Yankees' third-place standing, 1 1/2 games from the top before Thursday's loss.

"There are going to be some changes made," he said. "We are trying to find out about some of our young players, as well as the veterans."

"There is going to be a sense of discipline brought about and strengthened and the rules will be enforced with no exceptions. I told them I was not going to lie down on a die like a dog and neither are they. I told them I expect them to accept whatever role they are given without griping."

"I want no griping and no running to the manager because someone's not playing. I want each player to give 110 percent, even if he's sitting on the bench. If they choose not to accept that, I'll try to accommodate them and send them elsewhere. That's not a threat, merely a statement."

Roughnecks take 1-0 win

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ninoslav Zec scored on a penalty kick to give the Tulsa Roughnecks a 1-0 North American Soccer League victory over the Portland Timbers Thursday night.

Zec's penalty kick was awarded at 80:40 Portland defender Graham Day flattened Tulsa forward Bill Sautter in the penalty area.

The victory before 9,620 was Tulsa's seventh in its last eight home games. It broke Portland's four-game shutout streak.

Tulsa outshot the Timbers 21-12 and both keepers Mike Poole and Colin Boulton were forced to make six saves.

JIM MURRAY

Billy Martin irked at fans

By JIM MURRAY

The Los Angeles Times SAN DIEGO — Before the game Billy Martin sarcastically thanked the fans for giving him three left fielders and no centerfielder, a first baseman to play second base, and two starters who are having off years.

In addition to that, the rules require at least one player from every franchise — and Billy's league has two more expansion franchises in it than the other league.

Chalk up Billy Martin as just another guy who doesn't think democracy works, that baseball, like the Balkans, could be run best by a governing elite who knows what's best and has the muscle to prove it. One man, one vote might be OK for Thomas Jefferson — but who'd he ever beat? Billy prefers the Tammany Hall approach to the grand old game.

Ballot stuffing in baseball has become as common as it is in Cook County. Some day a guy at a razor-blade counter in Philadelphia is going to make out the entire roster by himself, and present the All-Star manager with a must lineup of guys who are either retired or dead or both or related to him by marriage.

An overhaul is necessary, but what form should it take? Let Billy Martin fill out the lineup card? Select the nine best players by position according to who has the best batting average or earned-run average as of July 1?

That would seem fair enough — except that you might have had All-Star teams in the past without Willie Mays, Henry Aaron, Roberto Clemente or Mickey Mantle on them. Sometimes, a phee-nom-who is just a guy that pitchers haven't figured out yet. Once they find his weaknesses, he bats .222 the last half and is batting in the American Association by the next All-Star break.

If the fans aren't to be trusted with the vote, who is? The players Uh-uh. The jealousies would make your head swim. I can think of a couple of guys who won MVPs in All-Star games who would never have been voted in by their teammates.

The writers, then? Congress? The U.N.? Billy Martin? Just draw straws?

I don't think there's any way you can have an All-Star game and have in it only guys who are having good years. Or good half-years. The fans want to see the bubble-gum cards in action.

For the record, the 1978 game was as close as it was not because the American League didn't have a center fielder in center field but because the National League didn't. George Foster plays left field for the Cincinnati Reds 162 games a year. He played center field in the twilight at San Diego. Rod Carew got two triples out there and George Brett got a double. They were legitimate hits, but Willie Mays could have caught them in his teeth.

As it turned out, with Reggie Jackson not only not in uniform but not in town, the AL had a probable Hall-of-Fame center fielder in the game, Fred Lynn.

An All-Star selection is a reward for a career, not a half season. Any formula should include batting or home run or ERA champions of the past five years, current champions and Golden Glovers. It, for sure, should adopt a designated hitter rule permanently. No one wants to see a .180-hitting pitcher go up with the game on the line and a dugout full of Hall of Fame sluggers just sitting there. It may be that the game could

Rangers muscle way over Bosox, 12-7

Gary Gibson Panhandle signs Gibson

GOODWELL, OKLA. — Gary Gibson, a 1978 graduate of Midland's Fenway Park ... eight home runs and a lot of stitch-popping hits.

But guess what? It wasn't the Red Sox doing most of the damage this time.

The Texas Rangers looked as ir-repressible Thursday night as the hard-hitting Red Sox usually do in their colorful ballpark and beat a steady tattoo off Boston pitching.

Before it was over, the Rangers pounded five homers and three doubles among their 17 hits and had a 12-7 victory over the team fearfully nicknamed the "Boston Manglers."

"This is the kind of game that can get us going," said Texas outfielder Al Oliver. The Rangers had lost 10 of 13 games before the All-Star break.

Toby Harrah was the most persistent of the Texas hitters, belting two homers and a single and driving in five runs.

"It's good to get out of Arlington Stadium," said Harrah, who has hit below par all season, batting only .208 before the game. "It's great to come here and hit. Everyone looks forward to it. I enjoy playing here."

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 8-6; the Oakland A's stopped the Cleveland Indians 7-3; the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Kansas City Royals 13-2; the Chicago White Sox whipped the New York Yankees 6-1; the California Angels blanked the Toronto Blue Jays 5-0 and the Seattle Mariners edged the Detroit Tigers 5-4.

The Rangers smashed three homers off Boston starter Luis Tiant, 7-2, in the first two innings — including shots by Juan Beniquez and Oliver in the first inning and Harrah in the second. They added three more runs in the fourth inning and single runs in the fifth and sixth before Harrah's three-run homer in the seventh off Boston reliever Allen Ripley.

Bobby Bonds also had a home run for the Rangers while the Red Sox hit three themselves — by Fred Lynn, Carlton Fisk and George Scott. Dock Ellis recorded his eighth victory for Texas with relief help from Steve Comer.

Orioles 8, Twins 6

Two home runs by Ken Singleton and one each by Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces, accounting for seven runs, led Baltimore over Minnesota. The triumph ended a four-game losing streak for the Orioles and halted an eight-game winning streak; by the Twins.

Mike Flanagan, 13-6, who tied New York's Ron Guidry for the most victories in the American League, had a no-hitter for 51-3 innings, but needed late relief help.

A's 7, Indians 3

Mitchell Page and Taylor Duncan each drove in two runs as Oakland snapped a five-game losing streak by beating Cleveland. The A's scored four unearned runs off loser Rick Waits in the second inning and added two more runs in the sixth on a leadoff home run by Dave Revering and another unearned run.

Winning pitcher John Johnson, 6-5, gave up a two-run homer to Gary Alexander in the sixth, his 18th of the season. Dave Heaverlo took over for Johnson after he walked leadoff batter Andy Thornton in the eighth inning and blanked the Indians over the final two innings for his sixth save of the season.

Brewers 13, Royals 2

Robin Yount's bases-loaded triple capped a four-run first inning, while Gorman Thomas hit a two-run homer and Don Money added a bases-empty shot as Milwaukee bombed Kansas City.

Yount drove in four runs and Thomas and Jim Wohlford knocked in three apiece and Money lashed five hits and scored three times to back the four-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell, 10-5, as the Brewers won their fourth straight game.

White Sox 6, Yankees 1

Veteran knuckballer Wilbur Wood hurled a six-hitter, retiring 15 batters in a row at one stretch, to lead Chicago over New York. Wood, 10-5, allowed five singles, only one after the third inning, and Reggie Jackson's 14th home run.

"I was throwing the ball good,"

Angels 5, Blue Jays 0

Don Aase, a last-minute substitution for Chris Knapp, who jumped the club in a contract dispute, pitched a four-hitter to lead California over Toronto. Knapp was placed on the disqualified list when he failed to report to the park. His agent had been unsuccessful in obtaining a raise after the right-hander compiled a 10-6 record at the All-Star break.

Aase, 7-4, struck out six and walked three in throwing his first shutout as an Angel. Dave Lemanczyk, 3-11, took the loss.

"I was stunned," said Aase when asked his reaction to learning that he was going to pitch against the Blue Jays. "They asked me if I wanted to pitch. I thought they were joking."

Larry Milbourne's run-scoring single capped a four-run, eighth-inning rally that carried Seattle over Detroit. The victory went to reliever Enrique Romo, 7-2. Jim Crawford, 2-3, took the loss in relief.

Tom Lasorda feels injuries hurt Dodgers

By ROSS NEWHAN
The Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — "I hate to use it as a crutch, an alibi," said Tom Lasorda, "but I can't get away from it. We've lost too many good men. If it hadn't been for the injuries I definitely think we'd be leading it again."

It, of course, is the National League West, which the Dodgers led from start to finish last year, enjoying one long hug-in during Lasorda's first season as manager.

Now, however, at the All-Star break of 1978, Lasorda insists that last year cannot serve as a base of comparison for his years.

Inevitably, however, the Dodgers confronted such a comparison during much of the first half, their record weighed against that of 1977 when they won 22 of 26 games en route to a 10-game lead in early May and a 9-1-2 game lead at the All-Star break.

The comparisons have created a subtle pressure that Lasorda regards as unfair and unjustified. He says the '78 team has faced adversity that never struck the '77 team, that the accurate measure of his team's skill and resiliency is found in the 22 wins in the last 31 games prior to the break.

He reflects on a record of 50-36 (it was 56-30 last year), in the standings which show the Dodgers second, two games behind San Francisco, and comes back to the injuries.

Almost every regular has been out for varying periods. At one point recently Lasorda was without relief pitcher Terry Forster, rightfielder Reggie Smith and centerfielder Rick Monday. Both Monday and leadoff man Davey Lopes were sidelined for two weeks in early June. Catchers Steve Yeager and Jerry Grote are unavailable now, and Smith, Monday and Forster are less than 100 percent.

Dusty Baker still puts a hamstring injury in April. The injury put him out of the lineup for a week and has frustrated his attempt to find the rhythm of last year, when he batted .291 with 86 RBI and 30 homers.

"When healthy," said Steve Garvey, "we're still the best team in the National League... If everyone had been healthy we'd be in first place right now."

Ron Cey agreed. "I don't take anything away from the Giants," he said. "I think it's going to be a three-team race all the way..."

"That's not to say I blame all of our inconsistency on injuries. A good team under any circumstances can't afford to lose leads as often as we do with complete platoons like football — an offensive nine and a defensive nine.

But the exempt list should be like a U.S. Open golf tournament — a reward for recent past prowess.

One other thing: Maybe they should alternate lineups. I mean, let the National League lineup represent the American League lineup every other year, so the AL can catch up.

The way the National League wins in silent boredom while the American League takes its best shot and comes up short every year is getting embarrassing. The American League reminds me of the cowboy in the George Gobel story who comes into the bar and gets annoyed at the piano player playing a hymn. He waves a gun at the guy, and commands him to stop. The piano player ignores him and keeps playing. The bartender calls the cowboy over. He suggests the cowboy cover that gun with lard. The cowboy wonders why. "Because," says the bartender, "as soon as Wyatt Earp finishes playing his mother's favorite song, he's going to stick that gun in your ear!"

That's what the National League, like Wyatt Earp, does every year. Waits till the American League gets through waving the gun around — and then sends it home with the gun sticking out of its ear. So give Billy Martin the NL lineup next year and maybe he'll be content. Maybe he'll even win.

Ed Biles not worried over 1978 offense

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oilers defensive coordinator Ed Biles says he's not worried about two offense-oriented drafts or his cornerbacks — "togetherness will be the key for 1978."

Biles notes that his front seven plus the two starting cornerbacks will be starting their fourth season intact.

"The great defenses have to play together at least that long, maybe six or seven years," Biles said. "We know each other now. We're getting better. We have a chance to be a great defense."

Biles said despite fan criticism last season, he likes the cornerback situation.

"The public thinks our cornerbacking is more of a problem than we think it is," Biles said. "If you check with fans of the league's 28 teams, you'd be told that at least 22 teams had secondary problems."

Biles said only 12 touchdowns were thrown against the Oilers last season and the defenses' 28 interceptions was third in the league behind Pittsburgh's 31 and Baltimore's 30.

"Does that sound like a cornerback problem? It sounds more to me like cornerback is a position where people find fault," Biles said. Rookies are continuing two-a-day workouts on the Angelo State University campus in preparation for a rookie game next Tuesday against the Kansas City Chiefs rookies.

Veteran Oilers arrive July 21 to begin preparations for the opening preseason game Aug. 5 in the Astrodome against the Denver Broncos.

Seeded players take victories

NEW YORK (AP) — A truce of sorts has been reached in the great tennis ball controversy at the $300,000 Forest Hills Invitational, while two of its leading contenders prepared to play each other tonight some 2,500 miles away.

Vitas Gerulaitis and Ilie Nastase both raised their records to 3-0 with victories Thursday night in this round-robin chase for a $100,000 first prize at the West Side Tennis Club. Today they boarded a plane for Las Vegas, where they will be on opposite sides of the net in tonight's World Team Tennis All-Star Match.

After playing their singles set they'll head back to New York, arriving Saturday morning. The semifinals at the Invitational will be held Saturday afternoon and evening.

Whether either Gerulaitis or Nastase will have to compete in the afternoon has not yet been determined.

"I wish we could play the set here and just tell them the score," Nastase said of the commitment to WTT. "It would save us both a lot of time."

As for the tennis balls, tournament director Gene Scott gave the competitors in three of Thursday's four matches an option of using the original ball selected for this tournament, the Spalding 56, or the less lively Spalding Davis Cup. Just about all the players complained here about the original balls being too bouncy and hard to control, thus producing less than top-grade tennis.

Scott said he would make a decision prior to today's matches on which balls would be used for the rest of the tournament.

"I waited three days to see if they could adjust," said Scott. "Obviously they're still a problem. All I'm concerned about now is the fairest possible conditions for the players."

Nastase, the player-coach of the Los Angeles Strings, who had $7,000 deducted from his paycheck for missing a WTT match Wednesday night, outfooted Dick Stockton 5-7, 7-5, 6-3 Thursday night to assure himself a place in the semifinals.

Stockton was leading 5-4 in the second set and serving for the match when he became involved in a verbal exchange with part of the pro-Nastase crowd of 6,885, largest of the seven sessions to date. "This is a tennis match, not a football game," complained Stockton. "It got out of control."

Gerulaitis survived a scare before defeating Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 in the second night match.

Pecci, charging the net effectively and also hitting sparkling passing shots, won seven games in a row to lead Gerulaitis 2-0 in the third set before the tournament's No. 1 seed recovered to beat the little-known 22-year-old Paraguayan.

In afternoon play, 19-year-old John McEnroe beat Billy Martin 7-5, 4-6, 7-5 and John Alexander downed Peter Fleming 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

The remaining two semifinals will be determined today and tonight. Pecci, 1-1, meets Phil Dent, 1-1, and McEnroe, 2-0, opposes Wojtek Fibak, 2-0, in the afternoon session and Martin, 0-2, takes on John Newcombe, 0-2, and Alexander, 1-1, faces Stockton, 1-1, at night.

Money, job offers pour in ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Robert Brewer, out of work and nearly broke, thought it was the last straw when his car broke down as he and his family started out to Ohio seeking a job.

But stories about their plight led to a deluge of help, and now Brewer can't get people to stop giving.

"I've never seen anything like this... We keep telling people that we've got enough and they keep giving more," Brewer said Wednesday.

Unable to raise enough money for their rent, Brewer, his wife, Patricia, and their two small children set out from Fort Lauderdale over the weekend for Middletown, Ohio, where Brewer hoped to find work. But 80 miles up the road, their 14-year-old car blew its engine, and mechanics said it would take $200 to repair.

Desperate, they abandoned the car and with the help of a church, the Brewers and their sons, David, 3, and 8-month-old Robert, made it to Orlando Sunday night. They had $4.

When stories of their plight appeared in the local paper, accompanied by a picture of a tearful Mrs. Brewer holding her children, the two pay telephones outside a small motel room in which they were staying began ringing. They were still ringing a day later.

By Wednesday, the Brewers, exhausted but ecstatic, had received nearly $1,000 in cash, two bus tickets to Middletown, new clothes and food for the children and job offers.

A woman who would not give her name brought new clothes for the children, diapers and milk. An elderly man offered to take the Brewers into his home for two weeks then drive them to Ohio.

There were dozens of others — those who left $300 at a social service agency and those who came to the motel and left $10, $20, $50 or $100.

People came with money in envelopes or wadded in their hands. They asked no questions, offered words of encouragement and left. Many refused to take their money back even when Brewer told them they had enough.

"Yesterday, I had just about given up," Brewer said as he made plans to return to Middletown, where he lived and worked for 20 years before coming to Florida. "But today, I see a future with not too many problems."

He says he is sure he will find work and be able to pay for a place to stay with the money the family has received.

"Everything's so bright now...I'll never be able to look down again and it's because so many people care."
